The only question between us and our opponents is, whether sins are to be absolved in the way the Holy Spirit directed the apostles to do it, (second chapter of Acts,) or in the way the papists and sects do it—by faith alone, which faith, without the obedience of, is dead. If we are in error in our teaching on this subject, then we have been led into it by the apostles; then all parties for the first four centuries have led us into it; then all the creeds of all sects in Christendom have led us into it; then we are more consistent than they are, for we practice what they only teach in theory. Then their subjects, infants, have no sins to be remitted, only one sin, original sin. Our subjects have sins to be remitted. Their subjects have no faith, without which we cannot please God. Heb. 11: 6. And if we had all the repentance of all the paedoes, before faith, it would not please God, and would not, therefore, avail more than faith alone without the obedience, which is immersion, and immersion is as necessary to pardon of sins and eternal life, as repentance. Immersion is just as necessary to pardon and eternal life, as the paedoes have made it unnecessary, non-essential, nothing. They have made the commandment of God of no effect by their wicked and unrighteous traditions. Matthew 15; Mark 7. No man in the Bible ever told God that he did not know what he told him to do. No man in the Bible ever told God that he told him to do more than he could do. Therefore he had not done it. There is no instance in the Bible of any person asking what was meant by baptism. It was as plain as any other word in the Bible. The paedoes opened the position that no person knows what baptism is; and, secondly, if he ever finds out its meaning, is it non-essential, nothing? But let one of their members find out its meaning, and obey it, and see if they ever have any use for him afterwards. Baptism is the most curious and complicated word in any language. It means these things: pour, sprinkle, immerse, stain, dip, purify; anything, everything, nothing. It divides all Christendom. There was no debate on the word before the Lutheran Reformation in 1517, so far as known to the writer, since which time the protestant sects have been born without a baptism, and they have to make one out of the scriptural one by cutting into three parts; then none of them have these three parts, and so they have no baptism. There is only one baptism, and that is a burial. Rom. 6: 1-7; Col. 7: 17.

In my next I will show the steps in repentance. JACOB CREATH.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. M. Ratliffe, Piedmont, Mo., August 22 writes: "I closed the meeting at Piedmont, las, Friday night, with sixteen additions. Preached last Lord's day, at Wilkinson Springs, and baptized a man seventy years old. They agreed to build a meeting-house."

W. J. Higdon writes: "It is very common now when the brethren are writing, they will use D. V. placed thus, (D. V.) What do they mean by it? No one has called for the thirteen volumes of the GOSPEL ADVOCATE I have, yet. When will Bro. Sewell's book of sermons be out?" [They mean by it, we are learned.—D. L.]

T. P. Barfield, August 16, writes: "Recently there have been five additions to the church at Franklin College, all members of the Sunday-school. This is as it should be, and I rejoice to see young people thus taught the way of life in their youth. With Bro. McGarvey's question book or Bible lessons, and Bro. Kuykendall's question book as aids, there is nothing to prevent the young from growing up in the knowledge of the truth. Bro. Fuqua presents the gospel with great plainness and much earnestness."

W. T. Breedlove, Collins, Ark., August 14, writes: "After a long silence, I will furnish a few more items from Arkansas. Bro. E. M. Northum and the writer began a meeting at Mineral Springs in Nevada county on Saturday before the fourth Lord's day in July, which continued four days, and resulted in six additions to the congregation there. Bro. Northum is one of Arkansas' veterans, but still preaches with great zeal and power. Embracing the second Lord's day in July the writer held a meeting at Millville, in Ouachita county, which continued four days with good interest from first to last, but without additions. Embracing the fourth Lord's day in June, Bro. J. H. Hill held a meeting near Bluff City, in Nevada county, which resulted in fifteen additions. Bro. Hill came from Kentucky to Arkansas, located at Prescott, and is said to be quite a good and effectual preacher. Bro. J. B. Davis sends in some cheering news from his field of labor in North Louisiana. Has planted one church and is having additions regularly at other points. We feel specially interested in Bro. Davis' field, and rejoice to hear of his success. Bro. Davis is booked for a debate with a Baptist preacher by the name of Simons. Do not know what their propositions are.

Bro. J. C. Mason is still succeeding finely at Texarkana. He and Bro. W. J. Hudspeth recently held a meeting at Sardis in Hempstead county resulting in ten additions; three from the Baptists and seven from the world. I am now at Collins, in Drew county, preaching night and day to small, but attentive audiences. Have had no additions yet. Can't tell what the result will be. I have received a few subscriptions for the ADVOCATE, which I will send in soon. I will go from here to Tyro, in Lincoln county. I will report again from that place."

W. D. Craig, Brentwood, Tennessee, writes: "On Saturday night before the second Lord's day in August, I began a meeting at a place called Ayer's Chapel, in the western part of this (Williamson) county, and continued until the following Friday, which resulted in six additions, —three by confession and baptism, two from the Methodists, who had been immersed, and one reclaimed. This is a place that has been visited but little by our brethren, and consequently there is a good deal of ignorance among the people in regard to primitive Christianity. The Methodists have a good house near by, which they invited us to use some time ago, but refused to let us hold this meeting in it, the man who kept the key stating that he would be in danger of being arraigned before conference, if he opened the doors to us. We found several scattered brethren and sisters in the community, and, with the six added during the meeting, we think they have enough to begin house-keeping, and they promised to do so. May the Lord bless them."

A. J. Avery, Jacksonville, Ala., August 18, writes: "I thank you, or some kind friend, or brother, or sister, heartily, for sending me the ADVOCATE, which, be assured, is a welcome visitor. It seems like the return of an old friend. I commenced a meeting at Center, three miles from Little Tanon, on Saturday before the first Lord's day in August. Closed Tuesday, at the water, with two baptisms. Commenced a meeting on Saturday before the second Lord's day in August, at Pleasant Grove, in Cleburne county. Closed on Wednesday night, with four baptisms. Revived the church greatly. I had the help in this meeting of Bros. Bryant and Brooks, Dr. Ferguson's step-son. I am now in a meeting at New Bethel. No additions yet. The brethren have hauled lumber to rebuild their house, which was burned over one year ago. This is the home of our dear old brother, Washington Bacon, who is, truly, a father in Israel. Would that you, or some kind brother, would send the ADVOCATE to him at Borden Springs. He is eighty-five years old, is unable to attend preaching, is quite fond of reading, and his mind is active as a boy's. He would appreciate the ADVOCATE so much."

J. Harding, Franklinton, Henry County, Ky., August 16, writes: "As this will be the last meeting I will hold till I go to Waco, Texas, I thought I would write a few lines, letting the readers of the ADVOCATE know my whereabouts. Since my meeting at Bedford, Trimble County, this State, I preached five days and nights at Flat Rock, Shelby County, where our venerable Bro. Thorp preaches once a month. The friends at Flat Rock know how to treat a preacher. Six were added. It was there I met one of our dear old sisters from Campbellsburg, M. P. Brown, one of God's noble women. She subscribed for the ADVOCATE. Then I went to West Port, Oldham county, where I labored fifteen days with the church. Our brethren at this place only have a fourth interest in the house and have only been meeting once a month. I succeeded in getting them to promise to meet in the afternoon when it was not their day for preaching. Bro. Lewis Bersot, of Brownsborough, preaches for them once a month, and I was much pleased with him. He has the respect and love of all this community, and he is worthy of it. We had fifty added to the congregation, making a membership now of seventy-eight. They are a noble band of brethren; they gave me enough to buy me a nice suit of clothes, in addition to a very fair remuneration. So you see a man feels good when he meets with such brethren. I promised to visit them again in November. I will be here two weeks; will write when I leave here. I hope to have a good meeting. I will be in Waco, Texas the second Lord's day in September, if not before. After my meeting there, will go to Dallas."

PAUL'S CONVERSION.

In what sense did Paul's conversion differ from that of the three thousand on Pentecost? Did he do less or more, in order to pardon, than others were required to do? If the eunuch must go down into the water and be immersed, in order to pardon, did Paul do less than this in his conversion?

We are aware that the Methodist discipline teaches that salvation is by faith only, and that it is a wholesome doctrine, and very full of comfort. We are aware, also, that the Presbyterians and Baptists teach the same doctrine, still we find that Saul of Tarsus did more than believe. So did the first converts on Pentecost. The question is, what did they do? We affirm that those who embraced Christianity on Pentecost, the converts of that occasion, did believe first; that then, in order to the remission of their sins, they were required to repent and be immersed. This, we suppose, will not be questioned by any who will carefully read the second chapter of Acts. Did the eunuch do more or less than this, in order to his pardon? Philip preached Jesus unto him. He then desired baptism. Philip replied, "If thou believest, thou mayest." Not a word of repentance, but his desire to be immersed was evidence of his repentance; it was repentance, for repentance is a turning away from sin to righteousness, and this is what he was doing. So, then, his conversion to Christianity was through faith, repentance, and baptism. Was less required of Saul? He believed from the time he was struck down in the way. His cry was, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" He was repenting. But faith and repentance were not all that was to be done. He prayed, prayed God to send the promised information. God had said, "Go down to Damascus, and there it shall be told thee what to do." He had gone, and now for three days had waited for the fulfillment of that promise. Doubtless then he was praying for knowledge as to what he should do. When the preacher came, he told him to "arise, and be baptized," which he did.

"Now," says one, "we have a difference. The eunuch went down into the water, and was probably immersed, while Saul was baptized right then and there in the house, and, doubtless, by sprinkling."

How do you know this difference exists? It does not say so in God's word. It says he was commanded to be baptized and wash away his sins; just how, or where it was done, does not appear here. But we may let Paul tell elsewhere how it was done. "Therefore we (himself included) are buried with him by baptism." Rom. 6: 4. Then Paul was buried when he was baptized. And he further says that he was resurrected in that baptism. How plain. So we see Saul did just what was done on Pentecost, and precisely what the eunuch did, in order to salvation or pardon of past sins.

The miracle which occurred on the way down to Damascus did not lessen the terms of pardon to him, any more than to the eunuch to whom Philip preached a plain gospel discourse, and who simply obeyed, from the heart, the form of doctrine delivered him. As one was born again, so was the other. We conclude, therefore, that none may reach pardon in any other way now, than by faith, repentance and baptism. Reader, have

MEETING BELOW TROUPE.

On Saturday before the first Lord's day in August, the church at Troupe sent me four miles below, to a school-house, to preach the gospel in a neighborhood where it had never before been preached. They had heard sectarianism preached, but the gospel, never. The people gave attention, and three took membership with us from the Baptists. After two days we returned to Troupe, leaving the people to "think on these things," and hope by-and-by to reap in that field. We preached at Troupe at night (Tuesday) on our way home, had one confession, a young lady, and went the same hour of the night unto a certain water, and buried her with Christ by baptism. Almost the whole congregation went, although it was near midnight when we baptized her. We have never seen a more beautiful, or a more solemn baptism, than this, performed in the midnight stillness, and attended by so solemn an influence. The church at Troupe grows gradually and constantly. The whole church is alive and at work. As an evidence, they sent me to hold a meeting some miles below, and supported me in the work. Thus they are sounding out the word, while others sound it in. The Lord prospers and blesses all who work as he directs.

THE HOPE OF THE RESURRECTION.

Were it not for the hope of the resurrection promised in the gospel of Christ, the grave would blight all our life here. The fear of death, with the loss of friends and loved ones, would soon crush us. With the resurrection before us, and the blessed hope of a reunion, it is still hard to consign our treasures to the dark tomb. It is hard to say "thy will be done." Time may heal up, in a sort of bungling way, the wounds death has made. Time may alleviate somewhat, but only the resurrection can cure. We must have our treasures back. We can hear to nothing else, nothing else will satisfy the vacancy made in the heart. Thanks be unto our heavenly Father, who hath given us a living hope, in that he hath raised Christ from the dead, and thus given us an earnestness of our resurrection also.

SLAY THEM.

As the prophets of Baal built their altars upon every hill top, and in every valley,—as they corrupted and perverted the worship of the true God, turning the people away to follow false gods, so have sects perverted the gospel, and so have they led the people away from the worship of the true God to worship men, and theories of men, and to forsake the Lord's way for the ways of men. It is time for some Elijah to come, and in the strength of Almighty God, to slay these false prophets and false teachers. It is time we decide in the presence of the world whether the Lord or Baal be God.

NO COMMAND TO USE IT.

There is not a single command in all the New Testament, for an alien sinner to pray for pardon, and there is not a single command to any Christian to pray for his pardon. Why then do the religious teachers of this age use the mourners' bench and teach men to pray, and seek pardon in a way God never ordained? Because they will not let God save men in his own way. If there is any Scripture which justifies such things, let them show it. We will give five dollars each for every verse produced teaching that the alien must pray, as a condition to his pardon.

Two baptized at Longview, Monday, August

ARE YOU CRUCIFYING CHRIST?

"For it is impossible for those who were once enlightened, and have tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Spirit, and have tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the world to come, if they shall fall away, to renew them again unto repentance. Seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame." Heb. 6: 4-6. Doubtless, Paul wrote this of some who had turned away from Christianity and gone back into Judaism, but it will apply just as well to those who forsake the right way now, and go off into babylon, sectarianism. Whenever a member of the church of Christ can get his own consent to attend regularly a sectarian church, while the church of Christ is meeting regular for worship in their own town, and when he can consent to send his children to sectarian Sunday-schools, to be taught all the misleading and soul destroying doctrines of sectism, then such a one has turned away, and trampled under foot the blood of Christ. This is doing that very thing. We pity the poor time serving professor of Christianity, who thus courts the applause of men rather than of God. Such are a disgrace to the cause of truth, and of righteousness. We know some such, and we know they have no principle involved in anything they do religiously. They have said by their actions that Jesus is not worthy of belief—that he is unworthy of their obedience. They are crucifying him afresh, and do put him to an open shame, by turning away from his doctrine—his teaching, to that of men and devils. We have no patience with such unprincipled offenders, and Jesus will hold all such to a fearful account. They are men-pleasers, they follow the big crowds, they care nothing for the command of Jesus, they desire the applause of men. It is impossible to renew such to repentance again. They are gone—their doom is sealed, because they turn their backs on Jesus, and will not have him to reign over them. Reader, search and see whether you are guilty.

THE ORPHAN HOME.

Before sending solicitors for the Orphan Home, etc., will the trustees do the brethren justice by publishing the terms of purchase of Add-Ran College? Who appoints or elects the trustees? Are there any reservations held for individuals or corporations in the deed of transfer? Tell us all about it. It is due the brethren to know what they must pay for.

TRYING TO KILL IT.

There are certain parties in Texas, preachers, who have fallen out with the ADVOCATE, because it has the nerve to tell them of their sins, as well as others, and because the ADVOCATE has not been willing to be used as a tool, or prize pole, to boost them up, and to carry out some of their pernicious schemes. They are now doing all they can to stop its circulation in Texas. We say to all such as these, that the ADVOCATE has more than doubled its total list of subscribers in less than ten months, and it will go on unearthing the wicked schemes of those who are trying to kill it off, showing them to the church and to the world in their true light. Some of these men are making merchandise of the gospel, and we intend to ventilate them soon. Some whom the ADVOCATE has helped to position, believing them to be good and true men, have proved themselves to be base frauds, and, as such, this paper would be recreant to duty not to unearthen them. We are not quite ready but will be soon. We

Self-Made Poverty.

I would not say a hard word against poverty; whenever it comes it is bitter to all; but you will mark, as you notice carefully, that, while a few are poor because of unavoidable circumstances, a very large mass of the poverty of London is the sheer and clear result of profuseness, want in forethought, idleness, and, worst of all, drunkenness. Ah, that drunkenness! that is the master evil. If drink could be got rid of we might be sure of conquering the devil himself. The drunkenness created by the infernal liquor dens which plague-spot the whole of this huge city is appalling. No, I did not speak in haste or let slip a hasty word; many of the drink-houses are nothing less than infernal; in some respects they are worse, for hell has its uses as a divine protest against sin, but, as for the gin palace, there is nothing to be said in its favor. The vices of the age cause three-fourths of the poverty. If you could look at the homes to-night, the wretched homes where women will tremble at the sound of their husband's foot as he comes home, where little children will crouch with fear, upon their heap of straw, because the human brute who calls himself "a man" will come reeking home from the palace where he has been indulging his appetite—if you could look at such a sight and remember it will be seen ten thousand times over to-night, I think you would say, "God help us by all means to save some." Since the great axe to lay at the root of this deadly upas tree is the Gospel of Christ, may God help us to hold that axe there, and to work constantly with it till the huge trunk of the poison tree begins to rock to and fro, and we get it down, and London is saved from the wretchedness and misery which now drip from every bough.—C. H. Spurgeon.

Liberty in Boston.

A correspondent calls attention in the following to what merits gravest consideration. Whether it will receive such consideration, remains to be seen. The Boston City administration, like that of other chief cities, seems to have fallen under an alien rule which fears not God nor regards man—except antagonism to an earnest religion can be construed to mean anything else than that. Says the correspondent referred to:

Sabbath afternoon, July 20, upon his attempting to preach the simple gospel, as he has done for two Sabbaths previous, to some hundreds out of the thousands waiting for the Sunday concert on the Common, Mr. Wm F. Davis, a Baptist minister, though a graduate of Harvard and Andover, and Rev. Mr. Hall, of Clarendon Street Baptist Church, were arrested and taken off to the station by policemen acting under official superiors. This persecution is based upon a statute of recent years made by the City Council, and is a deadly attack upon the principle of religious liberty which is the peculiar glory of America. That it was aimed especially against the Gospel is evident, from the first thing in the prohibition, viz.: "sermon." Japan is to-day less hostile than this. Shall it be permitted? Will the Christians of Boston allow, without protest (which New York City will not do.) Sunday band concerts on the Common; and yet while sending foreign missionaries, be forbidden to offer upon city free ground a free gospel to the masses in no other way to be reached? They will not come into close walls, except at least a Moody call them; they will and do eagerly crowd and stand to hear an earnest open-air preacher. There are now Gospel temperance meetings every evening in the various missions, but three times their audience are gathered even on week-day evenings here and there in side-streets and courts by some devoted redeemed men. Shall the Council not be importuned by protest of every Christian who is loyal to Christ's command to go out into the highways?

This case is a fresh reminder of what happened on the same Boston Common within a twelvemonth, in relation to one of the most estimable of our citizens, Dea. James William Kimball, who as a Christian tract distributor was inhibited in the prosecution of his work by a city official, as if he were doing an unlawful and wicked thing. And this is Boston, and so near the graves of those who came to these shores for "Freedom to worship God."

When one reaches the conclusion that everybody in the world is all wrong in life and spirit, it is generally time for him to begin to ask whether the trouble may not be with himself. If all the images in a mirror are distorted, it is pretty safe to infer that the distortion is in the glass itself, rather than in the world which it reflects. Nobody ever knew a mean man who was not firmly convinced that the majority of people were thoroughly given over to meanness; and an envious, or an intolerant, or a grasping man, who did not find his own characteristic sin to be offensively prominent in others, would be a greater curiosity than the Kahr-i-noor diamond. If the world appears all blue to you, be sure that you are not looking through blue glasses, before you make any noise about it. And if find you all men to be self seekers and ambitious and avaricious, first see whether you have not been projecting the evil which belongs to yourself, upon the lives of men you meet. There can be no doubt that the world would be a vastly better world to you, if you were yourself a vastly better man. That opens one way to you, by which you can help on the world's betterment.

He that hath tasted of the bitterness of sin will fear to commit it; and he that hath felt the sweetness of mercy will fear to offend it.—Charnock.

MONUMENTAL EVIDENCE.

The Royal Baking Powder Is "Absolutely Pure."

The following certificates from well known chemists and scientists form as strong an array of evidence as was ever given in behalf of any article of human food:

GOVERNMENT CHEMIST'S REPORTS.

Prof. Edward G. Love, the Government chemist, says:

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates or other injurious substances."

"E. G. LOVE, Ph. D."

Prof. H. A. Mott, Government chemist, says:

"It is a scientific fact, that Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure."

"H. A. MOTT, Ph. D."

W. M. McMurtrie, Prof. of Chemistry, Illinois Industrial University, late Government chemist, Dep't of Agriculture, says:

"The Royal Baking Powder has been used in my family for many years, and this practical test, as well as the chemical tests to which I have submitted it, prove it perfectly healthful, of uniform excellent quality, and free from any deleterious substance."

WM. McMURTRIE, E. M., Ph. D."

Rush Medical College, Chicago.

Dr. Walter S. Haines, Professor of Chemistry, Rush Medical College, Chicago, says:

"I have recently examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the open market, and have found it entirely free from adulteration and injurious substances of all kinds. I have several times before tested the Royal Powder, and have always found it, just as in my present examination, skillfully compounded and composed of the purest materials."

WALTER S. HAINES, M. D."

Dr. H. D. Garrison, Professor of Materia Medica and Toxicology, Chicago College of Pharmacy, says:

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder obtained from my grocer and find it to be composed of pure and wholesome materials in correct proportion. It contains no alum or other injurious substance. The purity of the cream of tartar employed in this powder is worthy of special mention, since it does not contain the tartrate of lime usually present in baking powders in which cream of tartar of inferior quality is used."

H. D. GARRISON, M. D."

College of Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago.

Prof. C. B. Gibson, Chemist, College Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago, says:

"I recently procured a sample of your (Royal) baking powder from the kitchen of a private family in this city, and subjected it to an examination. I found it so different from many of the baking powders advertised as 'strictly' and 'absolutely pure,' and 'so far superior,' that I thought you would be pleased to know it, and might find use for the certificate."

"In view of the vast difference and stupendous frauds that are offered to the most 'gullible' people on the face of the earth, it pleases me occasionally to strike an 'honest article.'"

C. B. GIBSON."

Kentucky State College.

Dr. A. E. Menke, Professor of Chemistry, Kentucky State College, says:

"I have very carefully examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, and find it to be a cream of tartar powder of high strength, not containing any terra alba, alum, or other deleterious ingredient, everything being pure and wholesome."

"ALBERT E. MENKE."

Prof. Henry Morton, president of Stevens Institute of Technology, says:

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or other injurious substance."

"HENRY MORTON."

Dr. J. H. Wright and Dr. Albert Merrell, analytical chemists, late the firm of Wright & Merrell, St. Louis, each says:

"I have made a careful analytical test of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the open market here, and in the original package. I find it to be a cream of tartar powder of the highest grade of strength, containing nothing but pure, wholesome, and useful ingredients."

JUAN H. WRIGHT, M. D.

BRO. HARDING'S RESPONSES ONCE MORE.

Bro. Harding, in his reply, makes no mention of the case of the Kenites, who did kindness to the children of Israel, and received kindness therefor from God. While we believe that no help from Hiram would have been received by Solomon, unless it had been tendered in the spirit of helpfulness and good will, we let that case pass. The help in the re-building of the temple by Ezra, he claims, was a matter of debt. It was just such a debt as this: The English dispossessed the Indians of this country. If the Chinese were to conquer our country, how much debt would the Chinese owe to the descendants of the Indians, whom our fathers dispossessed? The cases are similar. It was certainly a remarkable instance of a sensitive conscience among political rulers for Cyrus to recognize such a debt. I have not a doubt but that Cyrus had been so impressed with the power of the God of the Jews, that he thought it would be profitable to him to help reinstate them in their land. If he did it at the request of the Jews, it might go to prove that I am wrong in saying we should not ask help of the world; it cannot prove that Bro. Harding is right in refusing help tendered without being asked.

Bro. Harding says that Christ and the apostles associated with those that were Jews. But they were the godless, off-cast Jews, sinners. God permitted association with irreligious men who did not profess to serve him, that was denied to those in covenant with him, who were unworthy of that covenant. He makes no note of the Centurion who had "built our nation a synagogue," for which the Lord showed him favor. He thinks the heathens on the Isle of Melita did the favors as pay for the good that had been done them. Then does Bro. Harding think it right to receive help from those who think they have received benefits equal to the amount they give? If so, but few outsiders give, without thinking they have received, directly or indirectly, an equivalent in good influence to themselves, their friends, or the public.

I did not mention other cases of help given by outsiders to the servants of the Lord under both covenants, such as Rahab the harlot, and Cornelius. Cornelius evidently did his alms to the people of the Lord. The case of those who did not take help of the Gentiles, I still insist, is not definite enough to determine a principle. The contests growing out of circumcising the Gentile converts, had made factions without number in the church of Christ. Some were Judaizing, and some were of Gentile partizanship. These Gentiles may have been Gentile converts; the great majority of critics I have read, say they were. At that day Christianity was not popular; but few felt disposed to give, save those converted to Christ. Paul refused to receive help from some converts. These persons may have done the same from these Gentile converts. There is more likelihood that for some reason they refused to take help of some Gentile converts, than that, in that day, those not converted to Christ helped the teachers. We simply say, then, this case is not clear enough to build a theory on without strong corroborative testimony. So far from possessing this corroboration, the facts are against the conclusion.

In his second article he comments on but one case we mentioned. That was our use of the term "communicate." "No church communicated with me as concerning giving and receiving, but you only." Bro. Harding is right in this. It was an inadvertent use of it that is not legitimate. The communicating was only the bestowing help on their part. Still it remains, as we believe, that the context here, and the statements in other places, to which we referred, indicate that Paul did make known his condition to the churches. Bro. Harding occasionally states our case stronger than we state it ourself. We have never said it was right to appeal for help, but to make the wants known to those who ask to know them.

We understand Bro. Harding to admit that Paul notified the Roman brethren that he would need and expect their help on his journey. One single case establishes that it is no sin to make known necessities to the brethren, that they may help. We think the other cases just as clearly show that this was done. The very fact that Paul gave thanks, and commendation in letters that were to be read to the whole church for aid sent him, was equivalent to expressing a desire that they should continue to remember his need. Paul did send messengers to stir up the churches to their duty in helping Christians in danger of starvation, loss of this life. Much more should they be stirred up to save nations from eternal death. We have no wish to induce Bro. Harding to change his course if he can live in it; we only wish to indicate that if others make their wants known, there is no sin in it.

It gives us pleasure to note that Bro. Treat becomes a regular contributor to the Review. Bro. Treat has been a clear and safe teacher in opposition to the carnalizing tendency of the "evangelical wing" of the reformatory movement, and we are glad to see that his influence will be used in steadying and giving force to the opposition of the Review to these influences for evil. We have had some correspondence with Bro. Treat as to working with us in the Advocate. While this would have helped us to build up the Advocate, we believe that he will do more good by reaching a greater number where it is most needed, in the Review. And we are for that which will most effectively maintain the truth, whether it hurts or helps one paper or individual, or another? The truth of God, the faith of the churches of Christ is threatened now, as few are willing to believe, by those who assume to be leaders in the reformatory movement of this age. Our interest shall never stand for a moment in the way of the interests of the truth, if we know it.

WHICH IS RIGHT?

A brother asks us which we think is right, Bro. Walling or Bro. Bradley, in their controversy as to faith or the faith purifying the heart. We think there is not much difference, if they used terms in the same sense. Without referring to what they have said, we submit this:

On the day of Pentecost, Peter preached to the wicked sinners present. They were those who had demanded the crucifixion of the Savior. They had all the guilt of his murder in their souls. They were wicked in heart. Peter, or the Spirit through Peter, alleged that that Jesus whom they had crucified, God had been raised from the dead and made both Lord and Christ. He gave the testimonies in behalf of this truth. These testimonies convinced them that he was not an imposter, that he was a divine personage, that he was both Lord and Christ. The belief that he was a lying imposter made them hate him, filled their hearts with desire for his blood. They were cut to the heart by the conviction that he was not an imposter, but the Son of God. They cry out what shall we do? Their mind, feelings, purposes are entirely changed with reference to Jesus. What has brought about the change of mind, feeling and purpose in these people? The belief that he is the Son of God produced that change. Bro. Walling does not doubt or deny this. Bro. Bradley maintains it. Wherein then do they differ? Simply as to whether a heart in this condition ought to be called a purified heart. The only difference is as to the propriety of applying the terms pure and purified, to a heart in this condition. They do not differ as to the facts or the result of these facts. It is only this, Bro. Bradley thinks the term pure or purified may be applied to the heart at this stage as indicative of its correct thinking, feeling, impulses, before it takes steps to free itself from the guilt of sins. Bro. Walling thinks it ought not to be applied until it has taken those steps which frees it from the guilt of sins heretofore committed.

There is such a thing as being freed from the love of sin, and then freed from the guilt of sin. Bro. Bradley thinks the heart may be called pure when freed from the desire and purpose of sin. Bro. Walling thinks it ought not to be applied until it has been freed from the guilt of past sins, by the obedience that brings soul, mind and body into Christ. The difference is not in practice, nor is it practical, but only as to the propriety of applying the term pure at a certain stage of spiritual development or obedience to the law of the Spirit.

We think in the sense in which each uses the term pure or purified, each is right. If the feelings and purposes are not promptly carried out, embodied in active obedience, they die, and the heart is never purified in the sense of being freed from guilt. When these impulses fail of development they perish, and evil influences and impulses resume their sway, usually with seven-fold power, as illustrated in the case of the person, out of whom the evil spirit was cast, who walked through dry places seeking rest, but finding none returned to his home taking seven spirits more wicked than himself. The last state of that man was worse than the first. D. L.

EVIL COURSES WAX WORSE AND WORSE.

Last year we called attention to the tendency of the Island Park convention in which a number of religious pleasure seekers, collected at grounds for recreation undertook to act for the churches, had three men and three women to lay hands on three men and women to ordain them as missionaries to India, but struck out the fasting, because unpleasant to the flesh, notwithstanding they did it professedly in obedience to the will of God, and God always connected fasting with prayer and imposition of hands. Hence they took the privilege of striking the fasting out of the divine ordinance because unpleasant to the flesh and this was a pleasure seeking crowd. We then said it was all a money making scheme on the part of its managers. We said this because we saw the report made by one of the active men that it had paid. This was denounced by the Christian Standard as a slander. L. L. Carpenter, the chief getter up of it, wrote to us the charge was groundless.

Encouraged by their success last year, they have this year arranged for a few weeks of religious recreation, at a place they have sacreligiously named Bethany Park, seemingly to honor A. Campbell, who bitterly denounced all such arrangements, and all fun and frolic in the name of religion. L. L. Carpenter announced about a dozen Rev'ds to entertain the audience by speeches; such as Rev. F. M. Green, Rev. David Walk, Rev. Isaac Errett, etc., etc., The meeting has come on, and they charge ten cents admission on Lord's day to the services including the Lord's supper. The trains run to and fro on Sunday carrying crowds as to a base ball game. Of course some who are not wholly given over to shamelessness, protest against these things. But the numbers out vote them. An item in the Indianapolis News gives this:

"The running of the Sunday trains is denounced vigorously by a large number of the brotherhood, and the charging of admission to the grounds on Sunday, meets with the most pronounced dissent, and promises to lead to rank differences. It is said the pastors of all the churches in the city, of the Christian denomination, are opposed to the Sunday program, but they have been out-voted by the stockholders of the 'Brooklyn Assembly Association,' (it is held at Brooklyn, Ind.,) who openly say that it was organized as a money making concern, and that special trains and Sunday admission fees are a necessity from a financial standpoint. As a prominent member put it to-day, 'we believe that we follow the Scriptures in our services,' but I fail to find anywhere in the New Testament where Christ tells his followers to break bread in memory of him at ten cents a piece."

Now where is the slander in saying it was a money making scheme? The majority of the stockholders openly avow it was organized for that end. Without admission fee, it is clearly for the rich; the poor, the working people, cannot afford the trip. But an admission fee to any religious service of the church, is no better than Romish indulgence. It is selling the privileges of the Lord's house and his blessings for money.

The running the Sunday trains is a desecration of the Lord's day, is a traffic in the things of the sanctuary, more corrupting than the beer drinking gatherings and the base-ball clubs, because professedly done in the name of Christ. It is claiming the sanction of the Lord for breaking down, corrupting and destroying his own institutions, for Sunday frolic and desecration. These things have grown out of the conventions and societies, and are used to increase the power and make gain for the leading preachers and their supporters who countenance them, and they show how widely the carnalizing influences have spread themselves through the churches of Christ.

The preachers and papers who countenance these things are responsible for them, and all who encourage these preachers and papers help to spread this corrupting influence. The aim is, so soon as practical, to make these assembly grounds the meeting places for all the conventions, so all the denominational movements will pay tithe to these leaders, will bring gain to the coffers of these devoted lovers of the souls of the heathen.

WHO CONVERTS SINNERS?

"We heard a preacher of your faith say that he had more to do in converting sinners now than God has. Said he, God did his work more than 1800 years ago, while I am required to be at mine now."

This statement is from a notice the Baptist Gleaner gives of a note I made as to who should lay the stones in the heavenly building. I have not noticed the many challenges for notice the Gleaner has given us. The reason, Fair discussion of principles is desirable, but the course of the Gleaner has been one of misrepresentation and falsification of the teaching of the disciples. It will deceive a few who from prejudice desire to be deceived for a while, but with just and fair minded persons I am willing to leave the matter. He says he heard a preacher of your (my) faith say "he had more to do in converting sinners than God has." A man of my faith never said that or anything akin to that. A man that says that without qualification is half an infidel. I believe no sinner is converted save as God converts him. My objection to Baptist teaching is, that they practically deny that God does or can convert sinners in the use of his own appointed means, and they substitute for God's appointments man's inventions and devices, and accept as evidence of pardon human dreams, visions and imaginations instead God's assurance. But God works through his appointments, men through their inventions; hence Baptist practice converts men through human devices, and is a conversion by men. Their course drives God out of the work. They have more faith in human dreams, visions and imaginations than in the promises of God, given by the Holy Spirit, sealed by the blood of Christ and confirmed by the oath of Jehovah. Baptist conversion is wholly of men. I suppose the writer intended to say that a preacher among the disciples of Christ made the above statement to him. We simply say we believe he is mistaken as to this. He misunderstood him. Without calling in question his veracity, we do not believe the statement and ask for the name of said preacher.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

A WORK FOR OUR SISTERS.

The Fanning Orphan School proposes to open September 15. Sister Fanning has donated valuable property for the work. A number of brethren, and sisters, and friends, have subscribed a sum, the interest on which will put it in operation, and sustain a limited number of orphans. The school will need bedding, bed-clothing, and furniture. If the sisters will take it on themselves to furnish these, it will help materially, save money to the school, and do the givers good. Sheets, blankets, quilts, comforts, mattresses, pillows, towels, bedsteads, chairs, two or three milch cows, will be very helpful to the school. Do not send soiled, or half-worn clothing. The trustees expect to have the girls taught neatness and order; to this end, wish plain but neat, clean beds and bed-clothing, that can be kept in a tidy and orderly condition. If some sister in each congregation will take it on herself to see the others in reference to this matter, it will do good to all parties. In doing this, too, if the sisters will select some orphan girl, without friends to care for her, and send her name to John H. Ewing, Secretary, see how much they can raise among themselves toward her support, the trustees will furnish what is lacking, and help a child to usefulness that would otherwise be left to neglect and possible ruin. The Orphan School not only wishes to help the helpless, but to afford facilities, and so be an inspiration to others to deeds of kindness and charity to the destitute and neglected. There are many sisters that desire to do Christian work. Here is an opening and invitation to them to engage in that work which, when done in the name of Jesus Christ, is "reigion, pure and undefiled."

QUERIES.

BRO. LIPSCOMB: Please explain 1 Cor. 9: 14-19; Acts 20: 34; 2 Thess. 3: 8, and your statement, "Paul had to labor," in your article of "True Order of Work." They do not seem to me to agree. Did not Paul work for other purposes than from necessity? Please answer through the ADVOCATE.—[L. H. Wilson, Blue Bank, Ky.]

Paul was under the necessity of working, or of doing what he thought worse than working. He thought it would be worse to take a living from these brethren, than to work. His motives would be misconstrued, and it would be every way better for him to work, than to have his example the ground of evil. The only compulsion, not physical, that can ever be brought to bear on a man, is, that he is compelled to do this or something he regards as worse morally.

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview, Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DEAR BRO. POE: What day does Paul have reference to in tenth chapter, and twenty-fifth verse, of Hebrews? "Not forsaking the assembling of yourselves together, as the custom of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as you see the day drawing nigh." (New Version.) Is it a command to the Christian to meet and partake of the bread and wine on every first day of the week? Please answer through the ADVOCATE.—[James H. Thornton.]

BRO. POE SAYS: "The day referred to we think is the day of all days, the coming of Christ. The apostles themselves wrote and exhorted Christians to be ready for the coming of the Lord, as though he were coming in their day. (Hardly, Bro. Poe. See 2 Thessalonians, second chapter.) They did not know when he would come." And then he says: "The assembly which is not to be neglected (not forsaken) doubtless refers to our Lord's day meetings for worship, exhortation, and edification."

BRO. POE, my good brother, you have been careless in this matter. How can "the day" referred to be both the day of the Lord's coming, and the first day of the week, too? They cannot be synonymous. True, the Lord may come on the first day of the week, for aught we know; but they are not one and the same day spoken of in the Bible. And I know you did not intend to teach any such thing. But it needs to be corrected, and you will pardon me for the attempt. Of course you believe what you say when you say "the assembly that is not to be neglected refers to our Lord's day meeting," etc. And why do you believe it? Just because you believe the apostle intended to teach it by the language he used; and so do I, for the same reason, believe it. And suppose we supply a word or two that the text may read literally what we believe to be the true meaning, thus: "Not forsaking the assembling yourselves together upon the first day of the week," etc. Now, Bro. Poe, that is just what we believe the passage does teach; and if our beliefs are correct, it is no violence to supply those words here used. And I am sure that you, or any one else would not, with this reading, think of any other day than the first day of the week. The day of the Lord's coming, bears a different relation to the Christian than the first day of the week does. In this, there is something to be done; in that, something to be received. Reading and studying the Bible, singing songs of praise to God, prayer, supplication and thanksgiving, fellowship, and commemorating the Lord's death, are duties that belong to the house of God, and to be done upon the first day of the week; and there is great fitness in Christians exhorting one another to assemble and attend to those duties; "and so much the more, as you see the day approaching." See that every obstacle is removed of those that deem it absolutely necessary to meet and worship upon every first day of the week will not number by hundreds; and I believe the greatest reason is that the necessary teaching has been neglected, and I venture to say again that if all preachers, evangelists, and the elders had been as untiring and faithful in teaching the converted the how and the importance of living Christianity as they have been in teaching the unconverted the how and the importance of conversion, we would to-day have a practical Christianity. What is that power that takes hold of the unconverted and makes him arise amid scorn and derision by a gainsaying world, confess his faith in that crucified and risen One, go down to the water and be buried with his Lord, going on his way rejoicing? That power was brought to bear in teaching him the truth and its great value. He who will forego being made a Christian, he will live a Christian if he believes it to be as necessary as it is to be converted. We need waking up along here. I tell you, brethren, everywhere, that much of the Christianity among us will never save a single soul; the day is far spent, the night is near, better see to this matter; eternity is unbounded; our stay here is not a speck to eternity. May the Lord help us to learn and do our duty.

N. B. GIBBONS.

[We still believe that the day approaching was the judgment day, when the adversaries are to be burned up with fiery indignation, etc. But we give Bro. Gibbons' letter for what it is worth. Our readers must judge for themselves.—POE.]

STILL WAITING.

We met yesterday a lady sixty years old, who has never belonged to any church, who has been for years praying and seeking for some great mysterious change to come over her, and convert her. She has been following the instructions of blind religious teachers and hoping to get religion. We tried in vain to show her that religion is not something done for us, or in us by God, but something which we do for ourselves. We tried to persuade her to forsake these blind guides, and take the word of God and go by it. We hope she may yet do so.

STATE MEETING.

Our report of the State meeting was lost or stolen on its way to office or publication. Our editorials are so good that it is almost impossible to get them to the office for publication, being constantly stolen in manuscript. We have complained to the Department at Washington time and again, but to the present, no notice is taken of the matter. We hope to have a change in the Executive Department soon, when these matters will have more attention.

DEAR BRO. POE: Bro. A. B. Smith spent last week with us, lecturing at night. Four took membership, and three were baptized. He joins Bro. James Beard, this week, in a meeting in this county. His book had a good circulation here. He will spend a part of September in Kansas. A box of papers came from father Jacob Creath, last week, for our Indian Mission. The brethren will remember that all the money sent for Indian mission is to go towards building, and that I am compelled to go down into my own pocket for money to pay express charges. I can't afford it. Paris, Texas.

R. W. OFFICER.

DEAR BRO. POE: I have letters before me inquiring who has charge of our Indian Mission. May I state through the GOSPEL ADVOCATE that this is in the lap of the church of Christ worshipping in the city of Paris, Texas, but we have no objections whatever to the churches and brethren helping us to build a house to take the child into. Bro. A. B. Smith, author of a late work (and a good one, too,) on "Types and Shadows," will in all probability go to work in the Territory in the near future.

R. W. OFFICER.

HINTS TO BOYS AND YOUNG MEN.

In a familiar style I shall call you boys. Boys make young men, and the young men must soon take the place of those of us called old men. It is reported that a man once speaking rather lightly of boys, was thus answered by a brave boy: "Well, sir, we boys are the stuff out of which such things as you are made." Yes, we were all boys once, and some are boys a long time. I always look with interest on a truthful, steady, good boy, who loves and obeys his parents. Boys, always be brave enough to tell the truth. Best not say untrue things, even in a jest. If my boys, now young men, ever told me lies, I do not remember it. The one that died in his fourteenth year was proverbial for truth. It consoles me for his departure, when I remember on his death-bed, his lady teacher, calling to see him, said, in tears, "I shall miss Jimmie so much. For when there were difficulties, what he said of them settled all disputes in school." Boys, we cannot do without you. The scythe of death is thinning our ranks. You have to fill our places as citizens, law-makers, rulers, and ministers of the gospel. Then we cannot but feel interested in you on whose shoulders must rest the well-being of society in all its various ranks. Allow me then to say, be men. Remember, it is your God-like mind that makes the man. It was well said by the celebrated Doctor Watts:

"Were I so tall to reach the Pole,
And grasp the ocean in my span,
I must be measured by my soul,
For it is the mind that makes the man."

When Samuel was sent to the house of Jesse to anoint one of his sons to be king over Israel, as the well formed, fine looking young men passed before him, he was astonished that God made choice of none of them. Finally the shepherd boy, David, was called in. The Lord said that is my king. The Lord seeth not as man. Man looketh on the outward appearance, but God looketh on the heart. Then strive for a pure, honest heart. Beauty of the external man, wealth nor the honors arising from earthly trapping does not weigh much with God. A good character is the only currency that will stand the test in the great day of accounts. And a true and good character is all that we can leave behind at death, that will stand as a monument that we have lived on the earth. Do not mistake here. Reputation is not character. We may have great reputation arising from having done a few things that dazzle. And if we make much money even by unfair means, some faro, these things will hold us in high repute. The attritions of time will cut this away. Character arises from a constant exhibition in our external acts of a true inner man, showing in life by our acts, that these acts proceed for honesty and a pure heart of love. Have some purpose in life. Determine to follow some honest vocation. No man ever succeeded in life unless he had some noble aim in view. The highest mark you can have as your polar star is: (1.) To seek for glory, honor and immortality, taking Christ as your exemplar. (2.) Next try to be an honest, useful, philanthropic citizen. Avoid wasting time in games of any sort. These things fill the mind with frivolity, and prevent it from attaining its greatest usefulness and enjoyment. Avoid theater and circus going. These things waste money and do not improve the mind. Never engage in dancing nor "frolics," such things are childish. Cicero says, "The Romans and Greeks dance for amusement. But I am persuaded no man will dance unless he is drunk or crazy." Drunk men often dance. O, avoid the drunk. Do not learn to use tobacco; I wish I never had. Be temperate in all things. Do not be parsimonious, but save your money. Do not be so vulgar as to desecrate the Lord's day, or use profane language. Never speak lightly of religious matters, nor men's religion. Some may be in great error religiously, but if honest their religious matters are sacred with them. Show marked respect for aged persons and ladies. Select pure, modest, sensible ladies for your respect. Avoid all persons whose vulgar conversation and acts may lead you from a virtuous path. As idleness is the mother of vice and immorality, never be idle. A lazy man is a gangrene, a blotch on society. Don't be selfish. A selfish, envious, jealous man has in him the worm that never dies. Read some in your Bibles every day. Do not listen to or read after a man who will traduce the Bible or high female character. Any one who will do so is vulgar. To my boys and all others.

THE BEST

Hair restorative in the world is HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. It cures all diseases of the scalp, and stimulates the hair glands to healthful action. It stops the falling of the hair; prevents its turning gray; cures baldness, and restores youthful color and freshness of appearance to heads already white with age. The following are a few illustrations of what is done by

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER:

Mrs. HUNTER, 344 Franklin Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., after a severe attack of Erysipelas in the head, found her hair—already gray—falling off so rapidly that she soon became quite bald. One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER brought it back as soft, brown and thick as when she was a girl.

Mr. KESLING, an old farmer, near Warsaw, Ind., had scarcely any hair left, and what little there was of it had become nearly white. One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER stopped its falling out, and gave him a thick, luxuriant head of hair, as brown and fresh as he ever had.

Mrs. A. T. WALL, Greenfield, Cheshire, Eng., writes: "I have found the greatest benefit from the use of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER, it having restored my hair, which was rapidly falling off, and returned its original color."

Dr. EMIL SEIP, Detroit, Mich., certifies that "HALL'S HAIR RENEWER is excellent for hair growing, and gives back the natural color to faded and gray hair."

Mrs. S. E. ELLIOTT, Glenville, W. Va., says: "One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER restored my hair to its natural, youthful color."

No injurious substances enter into the composition of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER, and it is not a dye. Its vegetable ingredients render it in the highest degree beneficial to the scalp as a preventive of disease. Its effects are natural and lasting, and it does not make the hair dry and brassy, like the so-called restoratives compounded with alcohol.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

Is, in four respects, superior to all others. 1st—It will produce a rich, natural color, brown or black, as desired. 2d—The color so produced is permanent, cannot be washed off, and will not soil anything with which it comes in contact. 3d—It is a single preparation, and more convenient of application than any other hair or whisker dye. 4th—It contains no deleterious ingredients, as do many preparations offered for like use.

EVANGELIST vs. PASTOR.

Bro. Yancey writes as follows in the Old Path Guide:

"In passing through the country, observing the broken walls of Zion on the one hand and the depraved condition of the people on the other, we are forced to the conclusion that not only the churches but the preachers are far behind the gospel standard. Just what is the matter we cannot say. Many churches are cold, and in most instances their condition is explained by the maxim, reversed, 'Like priest, like people.' We believe it to be a solemn fact, yet a sad one, that we preachers are not fully, or to any great extent, consecrated to our work. The love of souls does not burn on the altars of our hearts. Unlike Jeremiah, we do not weep and fast and pray over the desolations of Zion. Like the great mass of the people, we are taken up with the bread question, 'What shall we eat?' etc. Whether a man should preach for a church week after week and year after year, with a few confessions now and then, while multitudes are perishing for want of the gospel, is a doubtful and, with us, a growing question, and that we should confine our preaching, for the most part, to the Lord's day, does not smack of the Spirit of the great commission, which, beginning at home, carries the preacher to the uttermost parts of the earth. What's the matter with the preachers?"

About two years ago, I wrote a series of articles for the Old Path Guide on "The Evangelist," in which the position was taken that a preacher can do much more for the Master's cause in evangelistic work, preaching daily, than he can in what is commonly called "pastoral work." He will do more preaching, more visiting, more talking on religious subjects; he will make more converts, and will strengthen and comfort more saints; and he can, if he will, devote fully as much time to the study of the word of God. He can easily average a discourse a day, (I have done more than that for ten years,) and he can give his afternoons to visiting, his forenoons to study. If he will devote, on an average, an hour or two of each day to writing for some good paper, he will be developing himself thus each day in reading, writing and speaking. Remember the Baconian rule. Let me remark just here that the book to be read is the Bible; other books should be read but little in comparison to the time you give to it. It is the great fountain of wisdom on earth, and is as superior to all other books as God is superior to man.

Bro. Yancy has been located in Louisville in the pastoral work longer than any other minister of the disciples in the city; and he is certainly one of the most successful workers in that line among us; moreover he is one of the most lovable of men. Such an extract as the above clipping comes with tremendous power from such a man. As matters now stand the strong, rich churches get the services of the preachers. If those who are giving their whole time to the ministry of the word, would adopt what has been ridiculed as the "Trust Theory," and would go abroad preaching the word, laboring with the weak and untaught congregations, and where there are no congregations, preaching daily the unsearchable riches of Christ, with praises and thanksgivings making all their requests known unto God, the question, "What shall we eat?" to which Bro. Yancey refers, would take care of itself, (or rather the Lord would take care of it,) and thousands and tens of thousands would be brought into the fold, where tens and hundreds are now reached; and the church would be instructed more thoroughly, too, for all of these ministers would be preaching once or twice each day, instead of twice per week; the elders being left to do their own work would become more efficient, the cause would prosper, men would be saved, angels would rejoice, and God would be glorified. Bro. Yancey says, "That we should confine our preaching, for the most part, to the Lord's day, does not smack of the spirit of the great commission, which, beginning at home, carries the preacher to the uttermost parts of the earth." I have long held to this idea, and am glad to see it gaining ground. God speed the day of its universal adoption by the servants of the Lord Jesus Christ. There are many, many places crying out for help. The fields were never whiter for the harvest. Let us pray, "Lord, send forth laborers into the fields," and then let us say, "Send me, send me." It is a glorious work, and blessed is the man that follows it with all his heart.

But let not any man flatter himself that the professional preachers, (for every Christian ought to be a preacher,) will ever as a rule go about this glorious work; for they will not. Their hearts are set in them to seek fine pastoral positions, and to secure the charge of flocks that yield an abundant fleece, as a rule; but there are notable exceptions to the rule.

EUPHRASIA MEETING.

The following clipping is from the Christian Worker of Meaford, Ontario, Canada.

Bro. J. A. Harding, of Kentucky, commenced a meeting in Euphrasia, eight miles from Meaford, July 16, as announced in last Worker. The attendance has been good from the first, and the meeting continues at this writing, August 18th, at the time of going to press; although haying and harvesting have been on, the house has been well filled every night, and very often numbers standing outside. Many have heard the gospel preached, and sixteen have believed, have been baptized and added to the church; the brethren have been cheered, edified, and built up in the Holy Faith, beside the above work; the whole community has been stirred up, and is searching the Scriptures to see if these things are so. The preachers of Meaford seeing that the people were being taught the way of the Lord more perfectly, are stirring themselves, to endeavor to satisfy the people with the doctrines they have been teaching which the people now see are only the commandments of men.

Mr. Paterson, the Presbyterian minister, preached two sermons on Infant Baptism to his churches August 17th, warning his people, and stating that the country was in great commotion over this question on account of modern preaching. Bro. Harding reviewed Mr. Paterson's sermon the same evening in Euphrasia, when every available spot in the house was filled, and crowds stood at every window and at the door to hear. Every inference and argument advanced by Mr. Paterson was refuted, and it was shown that pædo-baptists rejected the commandment of God to keep their own tradition, as the sprinkling of water upon infants for baptism is no where taught in the Bible. Bro. Harding invited Mr. Paterson or any other preacher in whom the people have confidence, to meet in debate, but so far no one is willing to defend the unscriptural practice. Mr. Wilkinson, a Methodist has been sent for and is to preach on the same subject in Euphrasia on August 19th, near our meeting-house. One reason of this commotion is that most of those who have obeyed the gospel during this meeting are persons who formerly were taught that infant baptism was a scriptural practice. The end is not yet.

J. C. W.

The Euphrasia meeting, reported above by Bro. J. C. Whitelaw, has now closed. It was continued for thirty-five days, and resulted in the addition of sixteen to the congregation by confession and baptism. The interest increased to the last. The congregation numbered about thirty at the beginning of the meeting, and was surrounded by a bitterly prejudiced sectarian community. Nearly all of our converts were drawn from the ranks of these people, and are substantial, good citizens. We began the meeting at Euphrasia immediately after the one at Meaford, which had been protracted for twenty-nine days; and though the places are seven miles apart, and the road between them is far from being good, we had an attendance of from eight to twenty-five from Meaford night after night for the thirty-five days, excepting on one dark, rainy night, we had but five from the town. The brethren at Euphrasia (a country place) were much pleased by the interest taken in their meeting by their brethren of the neighboring congregation.

Much of the success of the meeting was owing to the excellent music. We endeavored to speak the glorious gospel in psalms, and hymns, and spiritual songs, and those that were of the world were helped by the sentiments that were sung as well as the church. Had it not been for the attendance of Miss Tolton, Miss Abbie Layton, and Miss Cassie Jay, three ladies of the Meaford congregation, we would have fallen short of the excellent song services that we had. Much of the success of the meeting is due to them.

END OF KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT.

GRUMBLING.

Under the above heading appeared an article in the GOSPEL ADVOCATE of April 2nd, current vol., from the pen of Bro. J. R. Bradley. If I am not mistaken, grumbling is rather infectious, and Bro. Bradley is rather threatened with the same disease. Tell us, Bro. Bradley, if that large and old congregation had grown to that proportion (large) singing that one song, "Am I a Soldier of the Cross?" let us have the facts in the case. They, "by a tight squeeze," sang it a second time. If they sang it with the spirit and understanding, and that was their best that could not be beaten by Bro. Bradley, he cannot do better than sing his best, and sing with the spirit and understanding. I submit it to the thoughtful and reflecting if there is not much of the popular singing that is a greater outrage against that piety and devotion enjoined by Christ and his apostles, than the singing spoken of by Bro. Bradley?

Again, is it not strange that some who claim to be Christians, and preachers of the gospel, are always watching an opportunity to expose some one's errors instead of correcting their own mistakes? They usually strike at some good old congregation which has been doing the best it could, and if not doing the best, it ought to be the preacher's effort to stir up their pure minds by way of remembrance. Now suppose I point out a blunder that I saw one of our young preachers make on one occasion. He got so deeply interested over a singing class that he lectured hard before and after preaching, with the thought of making a few dollars without the sweat of his face, that he forgot the Lord's supper entirely. I would like to ask Bro. J. R. Bradley which is worse, to sing "Am I a Soldier of the Cross" before and after preaching, or to forget the Lord's supper?

J. D. WELLS.

Weakley, Giles County, Tenn., July 9, 1884.

Two wrongs don't make one right. The old congregation may have done the best it was able, and still been blameworthy. We are frequently responsible for our lack of ability. The lack of ability in most cases, and certainly in this one, arises from a failure to cultivate, exercise and use the faculties God has given us. And to encourage in the proper cultivation and use of our faculties, was what we understood Bro. Bradley's article to aim at. To mention things that thus occur, as examples to encourage in the practice, cultivate and use our faculties, is right. Many say they can't do this or that, the meaning of which is, they have not tried to use their faculties, have not cultivated them. No man can do anything without educating himself by practice in the work.

ITEMS, PERSONALS, ETC.

Three were baptized at Franklin College, recently, under the labors of Bro. Nathan Fuqua.

We learn that five made the confession at Hill's Chapel, at Bro. Cayce's last appointment, on third Lord's day, and were baptized.

Bro. G. Lipscomb has been carrying on a successful meeting at Hillsboro, the last week. Although he had a chill during the meeting, quite a number have been baptized. Report will be given next week.

Prof. W. Lipscomb baptized two persons at Rain's School-house, in this county, on Sunday, August 17. One of them was a preacher among our Baptist brethren, who, by ill health, has been prevented from preaching.

R. S. Robertson, Auburn, Tenn., sends an account of a meeting at Antioch, Jackson County, held by himself and Bro. H. J. Boles, and also one at Boling's Branch, with Bro. J. P. Whitefield, resulting in five addition.

J. L. Bryant writes: "Our meeting at Corinth began on the second Lord's day in August, and closed the Thursday night following. Nine persons made the confession and were baptized. The brethren and sisters at this place seem greatly encouraged and edified."

R. C. Abernathy, August 17, writes: "Had six additions at our Lord's day worship, second and third Lord's day of August; all heads of families but one young man. Father preaches for us three Sundays per month, and in connection we have a lively Bible class, using all the means in our power to teach our neighbors and their children the way of life."

E. A. Elam, Fosterville, Tenn., August 16, writes: "Began a meeting at Fosterville, Tenn., fourth Lord's day in July and continued a week; no additions. Bro. Floyd has been preaching monthly for this congregation the present year and has done more toward calling out the neighborhood than any of us. This is where I was raised, and I can safely say there is a better prospect for the cause of Christ than ever before."

W. J. Weaver, Flatwoods, Wayne County, Tenn., August 15, writes: "Brothers Godwin and James Brown held a meeting at this place (Flatwoods, Wayne County, Tenn.) beginning August 10 and held till the 14th, and had a good hearing all the time. Attendance as good as ever was seen. It is the first meeting at this place by the Christian people. There were five additions, and one returned to the fold that had strayed off. The brethren were kindly treated by every body, and invited to come back. People well pleased with the preaching."

F. P. Elliott, Cairo, Tenn., August 16, writes: "Bro. Shelton, from Franklin, Tenn., commenced a meeting for us last Saturday and continued until last night, preaching day and night except two discourses by our beloved Bro. John Nash, who assisted otherwise all through the meeting. The immediate result was eleven additions to the army of the Lord; one reclaimed, three from the Baptists, the rest by confession and immersion; the congregation considerably edified and revived. His preaching was all the time pointed, instructive and encouraging. We need many more in the vineyard, just such or better men, for truly the harvest is great and the laborers are few. A protracted meeting commences to-night at Crockett's Mills by Bro. Inman, of Henderson Station. It is looked to with great anxiety by the lovers of the cause, expecting much good to be done. It is a new congregation and their first protracted meeting. May the Lord bless and not disappoint them."

The Fanning Orphan School will be opened September 15th for reception of pupils. A few destitute orphans over twelve years of age of good health, will be received as pupils, to be supported by the school. Churches, charitably disposed persons and associations, may send destitute orphans at the rate of forty dollars per term of five months. Others, not destitute orphans, will be received subject in all respects to the same discipline and regulations, at fifty dollars per term of five months. The inmates of the school will be required to do the entire domestic work of the establishment except the cooking, they will in turn assist in this, so as to learn something of the most important accomplishment connected with this life; will be thoroughly taught in the elements of a good English education, and as practicable, will be taught to cut and make their clothes, and will be schooled in all work suitable for women to do, to prepare them for making a living. Having failed for the present to secure a suitable superintendent and manager, the school will be opened under the instruction of Miss Emma Page, with the advice and assistance of Mrs. C. Fanning and Prof. A. J. Fanning. Miss Page graduated at Hope Institute, under the supervision of Pres. T. Fanning and wife, and afterwards attended the Tennessee Normal School, Nashville. She has taught at Burritt College and other places, and has proved herself an excellent teacher and manager of children. In connection with this school, a day school for girls will be opened, in which pupils from the neighborhood will be received at the rate of $2.50 per month tuition. John H. Ewing, Secretary of Executive Committee.

F. C. Sowell writes: "We had no additions at Baxter's Chapel, but created some interest while there. We began work second Lord's day in August at Thompson Station, and after preaching eight discourses, received the sad intelligence that our father had died on Wednesday night, the 13th inst., of heart disease. Oh! brethren, we are now under a deep, dark shadow of sorrow, and we desire your prayers while in this sad affliction. One of our dearest and best earthly friends was taken when dear father was called from us. We now appeal to the word of God for comfort and consolation."

J. R. Bradley, Lynnville, Tenn., August 16, writes: "We have just closed our meeting at Wilson Hill, Marshall County, commenced last Saturday, (Saturday before second Lord's day.) Had a fine sermon by Dr. Brents Sunday. The writer preached ten sermons during the meeting. Had no help in the way of preaching but Bro. Brents' sermon. Had good crowds all the time. The members here all seem to be encouraged by the meeting. Had nine additions; six confessions and baptisms, one from the Methodists and two restored. We have a good Sunday-school here."

W. H. Windes, Saulsbury, Tenn., August 18, writes: "I have just preached fifteen discourses for the church at New Hope, six miles northwest of Middleton, Tenn. The meeting was well attended, especially by the brethren. There were eight accessions to the church; two from the Baptists, one from the Methodists, and five by confession and baptism. This church now numbers about one hundred and seventy-three members. They are quite zealous to hear preaching, but do not meet weekly, and have no Sunday-school."

T. J. Brooks, Isom's Store, Maury County, Tenn., August 13, writes: "On Saturday before the fourth Lord's day in July, I commenced a protracted meeting on Anderson Creek, in Giles County, and continued one week. Although it rained every day of the meeting, we had a good hearing all the time. The immediate result was six added to the Lord; one man about seventy years old. Also at my regular appointment at Salem, in Lewis county, the first Lord's day in August, I baptized one more. To the Lord be all the praise."

General News.

DOMESTIC.—The government has undertaken to remove white settlers who have intruded themselves in the Indian Territory. On the 5th, two hundred and fifty persons were taken from the territory, and the ring leaders taken to prison. The work will be continued till the Indians are delivered from this invasion of their rights.—The Treasury Department has taken steps to defeat a distilling company at Des Moines, which is engaged in shipping spirits to Canada, under the export bond, and attempting to bring them back in the United states without unloading them.—A mine opened on the Temperance River, seventy-five miles from Duluth, Minn., recently, is turning out rich rock silver, which yields about $200 per ton. The vein is five or six feet wide.—A number of convicts in the State Penitentiary at Frankfort, Ky., last week made a desperate attempt to escape. A pitched battle ensued between the convicts, who armed themselves from the prison armory, and the prison guards. Three murderers escaped. The sheriff and posse in pursuit captured two of them, at the cost of the life of one of the posse, shot by one of the convicts. The latter were both killed.—A fire in Boston, on the 13th inst., destroyed three large manufactories; loss, $70,000; seven firemen were buried under a falling wall, and were killed. On the same day a fire destroyed the business portion of the town of North East, near Erie, Pa.

FOREIGN.—The women of Siam have sent the king a petition asking for a repeal of the law which allows their husbands to use them as collateral for the gambling debts. The king, however, fears to abolish this custom of the good old days.—Professor Virchow, in a recent pamphlet, sustains the Turks in the apprehension of disease coming by the way of the Suez Canal which he regards as the chief, if not the only way, by which contagious maladies are imported into Europe.—The French Senate and Chambers have adopted an amendment to the Constitution, declaring that no Monarchic Pretender is eligible to the Presidency of the Republic.—The prospects of peace between France and China does not seem so bright as it did a week ago. France has declined American mediation. Prime Minister Ferry and the Chinese minister had an interview, which terminated in a disagreement, the Chinese ministers refusing to accede to the demands of France for indemnity. The Chinese legation is preparing to leave Paris.—The Duke of Wellington dropped dead at Berlin on the 13th, as he was entering a train for London.—The cholera is decreasing at Marseilles and Toulon, and increasing in the provinces. At Clermont, near Toulon, a priest while officiating at the altar, was seized with cholera and died on the spot.

Wm. H. Sandy, Jr., Minor Hill, Giles County, Tenn., August 17, writes: "I am glad to say that we had Bro. Wm. Coffman to preach for us last night; had one addition. Bro. H. C. Abernathy preached for us at 11 o'clock to-day at Noblitts Chapel; had one addition. He also preached at the school house on the Lamb's Ferry road at 2 o'clock; had one addition. We then went down to the water where the three that came out on the Lord's side were buried in baptism. There were three came out on the Lord's side last Lord's day; two of them confessed the Savior and were baptized. Bro. H. J. Spivy will hold us a protracted meeting at Noblitts Chapel, to commence on Saturday before the second Lord's day in September."

E. B. Cayce, Franklin, Tenn., August 22, writes: "At Hill's Chapel, last Lord's day morning, had one confession, and at night, three. Remained over, or rather I went back Monday evening, and immersed the four persons, one of them an old man, eighty-one years of age, a man of whom the neighbors speak well. I preached Monday and Tuesday nights, and left with much regret, because of such good interest, but I could not remain longer."

CRACKED!

'Twas a set of Resolutions,
As fine as fine could be,
And signed in painstaking fashion,
By Nettie and Joe and Bee.
And last in the list was written,
In letters broad and dark,
(To look as grand as the others),
"Miss Baby Grace X her mark!"

"We'll try all ways to help our mother;
We won't be selfish to each other;
We'll say kind words to every one;
We won't tie Pussy's feet for fun;
We won't be cross and snarly too;
And all the good we can we'll do."

"It's just as easy to keep them,"
The children gaily cried;
But mamma, with a smile, made answer,
"Wait, darlings, till you are tried."

And truly, the glad, bright New Year Wasn't his birthday old—
When three little sorrowful faces
A sorrowful story told.

"And how are your resolutions?
We asked of the baby, Grace,
Who stood with a smile of wonder
On her dear little dimpled face;
Quick came the merry answer
"She never an instant lacked—
"I don't fink much of 'em's broken,
But I dess 'em's 'bout all cracked!"

A PHILOSOPHER'S VERSE.

"What have I said that's worth the saying?
What have I done that's worth the doing?
What duties have I left undone,
Or into what new errors run?"

Said grandfather to himself, as he sat by the window in the twilight.

"What makes you always say that, grandpa?" asked Nellie, as she sat down on the little old foot stool beside him, "I've heard you say it lots of times."

"It is a verse that a man used to teach people to ask themselves every evening," said grandpa.

"Did he teach you?" asked Nellie.

"Oh, no," said grandpa, smiling. "He lived too long ago for that. He lived almost six hundred years before Christ came."

"What was his name?" asked Nellie.

"Pythagoras," said grandpa. "When he was a little boy he lived on a beautiful island called Samos. From this island he could look across the narrow strait toward the near land of Asia, or, if he wanted to see further, he could climb one of the oak-covered mountains of the island and look down at the valleys below, filled with olive trees and grape-vines, and the blue Aegean sea stretching far away to other islands. What a pity it is that poor little Pythagoras could not have known who was to come sailing over those waters many years after, and what wonderful news he would bring."

"Who did come?" asked Nellie.

"Don't you remember?" said grandfather. "Samos was one of the islands that Paul visited when he was on his last journey to Jerusalem. No doubt the Samiots, as the people of Samos are called, heard the gospel then, but in the time of Pythagoras none of them knew anything about it."

"What kind of folks were they?" asked Nellie.

"They were almost all sailors," said grandfather, "and very brave, independent sort of people, too. No doubt Pythagoras saw many a boat starting off with its crew for some neighboring islands, and perhaps such sights made him think that he would like to sail away, too, a thing he did do one day. But he had still another reason for going. He had always been a grave, studious boy, and now thought he would like to go to different countries and see what he could find out about the worship of different gods, for almost all nations worshiped idols then, you know."

"Didn't anybody know any better?" asked Nellie.

"The Jews did," said grandfather, "but Pythagoras had never seen them. So this heathen young man started out to find out what he could about religion. He went down into Egypt and stayed twenty-two years there, being taught by the priests."

"What would they teach him?" asked Harry, from his seat by the fire.

"Well," said grandfather they probably taught him some true and some false things. They believed that man's soul would never die, and that must have been good news to Pythagoras, for many of the Greeks taught that the soul died with the body. But the Egyptians also worshiped dogs and cats, hawks, and another large bird called the ibis, that used to wade in the river Nile. In fact, the Egyptians had so many gods that it is said every day in the year was consecrated to one. But, besides these things, Pythagoras learned to write on papyrus and make the queer figures we call hieroglyphics. No one in Egypt knew how to write but the priests."

"Did Pythagoras go anywhere else except to Egypt?" asked Harry.

"Oh, yes," said grandfather. "He is said to have gone to Arabia and even to India, and to have traveled through Phoenicia and Judea."

"Didn't the Jews show him the Bible, then?" asked Nellie.

"Perhaps so," said grandfather, "but you must remember that at that time the Jews had been carried away from their homes by the king of Babylon, Nebuchadnezzar, and the land of Judea was laid waste."

"Had the temple been burnt?" asked Harry.

"Yes," said grandfather, "the beautiful temple was gone and all the palaces of Jerusalem had been burnt and the walls broken down. So it was a very sad looking land indeed that Pythagoras visited. But, after spending about thirty years in traveling around, Pythagoras thought he would like to settle down. But he could not go back to live in his own beautiful island of Samos, for that was ruled over at that time by a great tyrant named Polycrates. So Pythagoras went to a seaport called Crotona, in the southern part of Italy."

"What did he do there?" asked Nellie.

"He started a school," said grandfather.

"He had about three hundred young men for scholars."

"Was he a nice teacher?" asked Nellie. "I wonder how he looked."

"Well," said grandfather, "he is said to have worn a long, white robe and a flowing beard and to have looked very grave and dignified."

"What did he teach?" asked Harry.

"He taught philosophy," said grandfather.

"Pythagoras was the first man who took the title of philosopher. Teachers in those days called themselves wise 'men,' but Pythagoras said there was only One who was wise, and so he would call himself a 'philosopher,' or a 'lover of wisdom.'"

"Then Pythagoras did not believe in idols, did he?" asked Harry.

"No," said grandfather. "You know people then had gods for almost everything. They believed that the god Apollo drove the sun and the goddess Diana owned the moon, and they had gods for the ocean, and the rainbow, and lightning, and fire, for all things in nature. But Pythagoras thought that all these things were governed by the laws made by God."

"Then Pythagoras must have been a pretty good teacher, wasn't he?" asked Harry.

"Very good in some things," said grandfather, "but he had some queer notions. He thought that all the stars made music as they turned, and he called this the 'music of the spheres.' Some of his scholars even went so far as to say that Pythagoras had heard this music himself. Then Pythagoras had another idea that perhaps he learned from the Hindoos. Though he believed man's soul would never die, yet he thought this soul had to pass through various bodies, and be at one time in a dog, and at another in a bird, and so on. For that reason he would not eat any animal, because he was afraid that by so doing he might kill some one who had before been a human being."

"That was foolish, wasn't it?" said Nellie.

"Yes," said grandfather, "but perhaps no more so than you or I might be, if we had no Bible to tell us the truth. Some of Pythagoras' followers told very strange stories about Pythagoras. They said that by speaking a word he tamed a bear that had been the terror of the surrounding country. Then they told another story of his preventing an ox from eating beans by whispering in its ear. Some of his followers said that he could be giving a lecture in two places at once, and that when he passed over a certain river, it cried out 'Hail, Pythagoras!'"

"Did he write out any of his teachings?" asked Harry.

"Perhaps so," said grandfather. "But, if he did, his writings have been lost. We know a few of his maxims, though, through the writings of other people. He is reported to have said that the highest blessedness of man is likeness to God."

One motto was, 'Above all things govern your tongue,' and he taught all his followers to think every morning about the manner in which they were going to spend the day. Every evening they were to ask themselves three times the questions in the verse I said to-night, and they were to answer the questions as honestly as they could."

"It seems to me he was pretty good for a heathen," said Harry.

"Yes," said grandfather, "I think we may learn something from him. At least we know that 'to whomsoever much is given, of him shall much also be required,' and if a heathen philosopher thought he ought to reflect every evening on his actions during the past day, I don't think it will do us any harm to do so, too. Now you know the reason why I say that verse so often, Nellie."

"I'm going to learn it, too," said Nellie, and she began to repeat:

"What have I said that's worth the saying?
What have I done that's worth the doing?
What duties have I left undone,
Or into what new errors run?"

BUILDING THE NEST.

All the young people who have watched a pair of robins as they begin the important work of housekeeping will be interested in this description, as given in the Boston Transcript:

When I met Rob, he took a fancy to me right away. But it was only after he had nearly torn to pieces several young fellows who wanted to pay me attentions, that I realized how much he was to me. At first I pretended a little that he didn't suit me. It was all to no purpose. Almost before I knew it, we were looking for places for nests. Any young person knows places where she would like to live after she gets married. I knew several, and told Rob how very nice they were. I couldn't for the life of me tell which I liked best.

He went with me at once; but when he saw the first, in the eaves of a barn, he only turned his head a little to one side and said, "Rats." Another cosy nook was on the top of a fence. Rob saw some tracks there; all he said was, "Cats." Then we went to a splendid place in the forks of an apple-tree near a porch and a doorway. A couple of pieces of rope were dangling from one of the limbs, and there were sticks and stones among the branches. Rob looked at them and shook his head as he sighed, "Boys." I began to feel rather cheap, and nothing could have induced me to show him another place. He knew one, he said; of course he had it all picked out before, (just like them, isn't it?) and we came to a place that didn't look at all inviting. There was nothing whatever to keep off the sun and rain. Rob pointed to a lot of little knobs on the twigs, and said they were buds. Besides, there was no view; one side was damp and full of weeds, and the other was all dug up. If he wanted a nest there, he might build it himself; I couldn't see what anybody would choose such a place for. "Good place for worms," said Rob.

If he had said anything else, I don't know how long I should have let him wait for me to decide and begin work. We set to work with a will. What a time we had with the sticks, and the mud, and the grass, and all sorts of things! How busy and how happy we were!

The nest was finished at last, and is now paved with the loveliest blue eggs you ever saw. Rob nudges me with his elbow, and tells me in a joking way I shall have to look sharp, or the first thing I shall know some of the ugliest little creatures, all mouths and necks, will come and swallow up those eggs. I wonder what young robins would look like if they had no mouths or necks. When they come, I'll tell you all about them. For the present, I've talked near enough. You can sum up what I've told you in this:—Birds, like men, have to learn by experience; as a rule, the older ones choose better places and build nests better adapted to their situations and circumstances.

A victory won against sin strengthens us for the next assault. A new line in our defense has been drawn against our enemy, and his darts, which once pierced our affections, now glance from our shield.

A Christian Editor's Opinion.

Mr. G. R. Lynch, publisher of the Alabama Christian Advocate, at Birmingham, writes: I travel all over the State and my friends say they find your Lemon Elixir a most excellent medicine. My book keeper and foreman both use it in place of calomel, pills, etc.

Twenty-five Years a Citizen of Georgia.

and the past seven years I have suffered continually from indigestion and bronchitis of a most severe type. I was treated by two prominent physicians and had taken all the patent medicines recommended for these diseases. I got no relief and continued to grow worse until I commenced the use of Dr. Mosley's Lemon Elixir. One dozen bottles has made a final cure of both diseases.

J. R. HALL,
No. 12 Connally St., Atlanta, Ga.

From a Prominent Lady.

I have not been able in two years to walk or stand without suffering great pain. Since taking Dr. Mosley's Lemon Elixir, I can walk half mile without suffering the least inconvenience.

LUTIE GRAPE VINES.

In offering this remarkable grape for sale, we wish to say to all grape growers that we have been growing and experimenting for these twenty years on different varieties, numbering a hundred or over, and so far have found nothing to equal the Lutie in all the essential qualities for profitable grape culture. We gave notice a year ago of this claim, and repeat it in this, that we challenge the world to show a better grape for this climate—hardier and thrifter in growth, free from rot, or finer in size or quality. But these are not its chief merits. It will produce more fruit at two years old, than any grape known to us can be made to produce in three. We challenge the test. If any have failed to see the Lutie in bearing, it is not our fault. We have invited all to come and see for themselves. Now, gentlemen of the vitus craft, come to law, or clear the way for "Miss Lutie."

We offer well-rooted one year old vines of this grape at the following rates:

One vine, well-rooted, one year old,	$3 00
Two " " " " " "	5 00
Five " " " " " "	10 00
Twelve " " " " " "	20 00

Orders for Lutie vines will be received till our fall delivery, which will be November or until our present stock is exhausted, due notice of which will be given. From the number of orders coming in at this early day we cannot hope to be able to fill any spring orders at all. Therefore all desiring vines for the coming spring must order early and secure them this fall. Our fall delivery for city and country orders will be made at Nashville, on Saturday, November 1, 1884. Orders from a distance will be sent by mail or express, as desired. Money must be sent in by November 1, or paid on delivery of vines. Address

Thousands Hastened to their Graves.

Relying on testimonials written in vivid glowing language of some miraculous cures made by some puffed up doctor or patient medicine has hastened thousands to their graves; believing in their almost insane faith that the same miracle will be performed on them, and these testimonials make the cures, while the so-called medicine is all the time hastening them to their graves. We have avoided publishing testimonials, as they do not make the cures, although we have of them, of the most wonderful cures, voluntarily sent us. It is our medicine, Hop Bitters that makes the cures. It has never failed and never can. We will give reference to any one for any disease similar to their own if desired, or will refer to any neighbor, as there is not a neighborhood in the known world but can show its cures by Hop Bitters.

A LOSING JOKE.

A prominent physician of Pittsburgh said to a lady who was complaining of her continued ill health, and of his inability to cure her, jokingly said: "Try Hop Bitters!" The lady took it in earnest and used the Bitters, from which she obtained permanent health. She now laughs at the doctor for his joke, but he is not so well pleased with it, as it cost him a good patient.

FEES OF DOCTORS.

The fee of doctors is an item that very many persons are interested in. We believe the schedule for visits is $3.00, which would tax a man confined to his bed for one year, and in need of daily visits, over $1,000 a year for medical attention alone! And one single bottle of Hop Bitters taken in time would save the $1,000 and all the year's sickness.

A LADY'S WISH.

"Oh, how I do wish my skin was as clear and soft as yours," said a lady to her friend. "You can easily make it so," answered the friend. "How?" inquired the first lady. "By using Hop Bitters that makes pure, rich blood and blooming health. It did it for me as you observe."

GIVEN UP BY THE DOCTORS.

"Is it possible that Mr. Godfrey is up and at work, and cured by so simple a remedy?"

"I assure you it is true that he is entirely cured, and with nothing but Hop Bitters, and only ten days ago his doctors gave him up and said he must die, from Kidney and Liver trouble!"

IMPROVED METHOD OF STRINGING.

MASON & HAMLIN IMPROVED

Upright Pianos.

Entire iron frames to which the strings are directly attached by metal fastenings, securing

1. Best quality of tone, which is very musical and refined; free from the tubbiness which is common.
2. Greater durability and freedom from liability to get out of order; adaptations to trying positions and climates.
3. Increased capacity to stand in tune; will not require tuning one-quarter as often as pianos on the old system.

Having tested this new system of construction for two years and proved its advantages, this Company are now increasing their manufacture of pianos, and offer them to the public generally. Every piano of their make will illustrate that supreme excellence which has always characterized their organs, and won for them the highest award at every great world's exhibition for sixteen years.

Mars Hill College.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fourteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for

(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen, mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

T. B. LARIMORE, President.

HE LEADETH ME.

In "pastures green"? Not always: sometimes He Who knoweth best, in kindness leadeth me
In weary ways, where heavy shadows be;

Out of the sunshine, warm and soft and bright,
Out of the sunshine into darkest night.
I oft would faint with sorrow and affright—

Only for this—I know He holds my hand;
So whether in green or desert land
I trust, although I may not understand.

And "by still waters"? No, not always so;
Ofttimes the heavy tempests round me blow,
And o'er my soul the waves and billows go.

But when the storms beat loudest, and I cry Aloud for help, the Master standeth by
And whispers to my soul, "Lo, it is I."

Above the tempest wild I hear Him say,
"Beyond this darkness lies the perfect day,
In every path of thine I lead the way."

So, whether on the hill-tops high and fair
I dwell, or in the sunless valleys where
The shadows lie—what matter? He is there.

And more than this; where'er the pathway lead,
He gives to me no helpless, broken reed,
But His own hand, sufficient for my need.

So where he leads me I can safely go;
And in the best hereafter I shall know
Why in His wisdom He hath led me so. —Selecte d.

THE SIN THAT DOTHS BESET

Is clearly a specific sin. If we will read the connection in Hebrews 1: 10-11-12, we will not be at a loss to determine what it is. Beginning with the 22nd verse of 10th chapter we read, "Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience and bodies washed in pure water. Let us hold fast the profession of our faith, without wavering, for he is faithful that promised; let us consider one another to provoke unto love and to good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together as the manner of some is, but exhorting one another, and so much the more as we see the day approaching. For if we sin wilfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins, but a fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation. * * * It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God. But call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions. * * * Cast not away therefore your confidence, which hath great recompense of reward. For ye have need of patience, that, after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise. For yet a little while, and he that shall come, will come, and will not tarry. Now the just shall live by faith: but if any man draw back, my soul shall have no pleasure in him. But we are not of them that draw back unto perdition; but of them that believe to the saving of the soul."

The subject here clearly is danger, after having begun the Christian race, of tiring and turning back and walking with God no more. Only a small part of the Jewish people had accepted Christ. The mass of them rejected him. Those who accepted him were ostracised as traitors to the faith; things in the church did not run as smoothly as they had hoped. Persecutions came, the first fervor, zeal, cooled, and there was danger of a general apostasy from the faith and a return to Judaism, among the Christian Jews. This letter was written to these Jewish or Hebrew Christians to counteract this tendency to apostasy and to hold them to steadfastness in their fidelity to Christ.

The admonition is "hold fast the profession of faith without wavering. Let us provoke one another unto good works. Let us not forsake the assembling of ourselves together," warns against sinning wilfully gives the example of him who despised Moses' law, that God will execute vengeance on those that turn back from their fidelity to him. He encourages by a remembrance of their zeal and self-sacrifice when they first believed. "Call to remembrance the former days, in which, after ye were illuminated, ye endured a great fight of afflictions." They were made a gazing stock, both by reproaches and afflictions; and partly, "whilst ye became companions of them that were so used." He admonishes them to cast not away this confidence or trust in God that led them to suffer these persecutions. "For this confidence has great recompense of reward." He tells them then, "ye have need of patience, perseverance, that after ye have done the will of God, ye might receive the promise."

The danger was a lack of patient, perseverance in the begun course to the end, that after ye have done the will of God ye may receive the promise. The danger was tiring and turning back, and losing all reward for the service already done, for the afflictions already endured. There is more danger of this apostasy in times of lukewarmness, when the cause seems to be popular, than in the days of persecution and trial. Worldly-mindedness creeps in, lukewarmness in religion follows, and the heart is filled with other things, is hardened, and men who were willing to give their bodies to be burned or to be made a gazing stock in the arena for wild beasts in the days of persecution, will now surrender all, apostatize for popularity and worldly prosperity. Seasons of persecution are never seasons of danger to the truth of God. These seasons drive men closer to God. Make them study his word, treasure his promises and give root and deepness to the faith. But seasons of ease beget indolence, carelessness, indifference, and lead man away from confidence in God and love for his service. At these periods, innovations and corruptions come into the church of God. At these seasons there is always especial need for watchfulness and carefulness lest our hearts be weaned from Christ, lest we throw away our early confidence, lest we turn back, fail in patience and perseverance that are needful to enable us to inherit the promises, lest we seek conformity to the world instead of fidelity to God.

He warns that it is but a little while the conflict will continue. That the just, those justified must continue to live through faith, but if any man draw back, my soul hath no pleasure in him. Faith keeps alive a watchful fidelity to God, a loyalty to him, a jealousy lest we depart from his laws, neglect his service, and substitute wise provisions of man for the simple services of God.

He then assures, "we are not of them who draw back to perdition, but of them that believe to the saving of the soul."

Can any doubt that the subject that burdened his soul in this writing was the tendency to turn back, fail to persevere, give up, forget their first love, cast away their confidence, lose their faith, fail to hold fast their profession and so sin wilfully and sink down to perdition?

Then the eleventh chapter tells of the heroes who through faith patiently persevered, pleased God, subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned flight the armies of aliens, women received their dead to life again, and others were tortured not accepting deliverance that they might obtain a better resurrection." All these were blessed and honored of God and stand as witnesses warning them not to turn back, not to forget God, but to persevere unto the end. Chapter 12, "Wherefore seeing we are also compassed about with this great cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight and the sin that doth easily beset, and let us run with patience (perseverance) the race that is set before us."

The sin that doth so easily beset, is the opposite of running with patience the race set before us. That sin that besets humanity is the disposition to grow tired, turn back and walk with God no more.

This was the trouble in Eden, in the days of Noah, in the days of Moses. They would start with zeal and devotion, run well for a time, when the way become thorny or rough, and foes beset their pathway, or food failed, then they lost heart, their courage failed, they murmured, chided Moses, lost faith in God, and pined for the flesh-pots of Egypt.

This was the great besetting sin all through the Jewish dispensation. It was the trouble during the personal ministry of the Savior,—thousands followed him, but when the loaves and fishes failed, when persecutions came, when self-denial was required, they turned back and walked with him no more. The apostles saw this would be the trouble down through the ages. Many would profess Christ, run well for a time, be full of zeal and devotion, but when trouble and self-denial came, popularity and worldly ease would woo them from fidelity to Christ and they would forget their first love and draw back unto perdition.

This has been so in every effort to come back to Christ since the first apostasy. It is true today, as of old. We started out to bring the religious world back to Christ, to the primitive apostolic ways. While persecution raged, we were zealous and true, faithful to our principles. When success comes, we become popular. Lukewarmness and indifference to the fundamental principles come in, and we seek the favor and ways of the world and try to be like the nations around us. Without fidelity now, friends, we lose our begun confidence, all the labors and sacrifices of the heroic band who led us through wilderness go for nothing, and we draw back to perdition. But the Holy Spirit said, If any man draw back, my soul hath no pleasure in him. Let us then be of them who draw not back, but believe to the saving of our souls. D. L.

How can that family expect the blessing of God where the worship of God is not daily performed? No wonder their servants are wicked, their children profligate and their goods cursed. What an awful reckoning shall such heads of families have with the great Judge in the great day, who have refused to petition for that mercy which they might have had for the asking—Ad. Clarke.

WASHING THE SAINTS' FEET—No. 3.

What then is the design of washing the saints' feet as instituted by the Savior and commended by his servant, the apostle Paul? It was not carnal cleansing only, or "putting away the filth of the flesh," as many have taken it, for several reasons.

The Jews among whom the service was instituted were already abundantly supplied with "divers washings" for personal and carnal cleansing, and certainly were not in need of any new appointment for the simple purpose of fleshly ablation. Indeed they were ever more scrupulous than the Master himself in the observance of existing customs and institutions to secure that object! see Mark, seventh chapter. "For the Pharisees and all the Jews, except they wash their hands diligently, eat not, holding the tradition of the elders: and when they come from the market place, except they wash themselves, (baptize themselves) they eat not: Revised text of Mark 7: 3-4.

2. Preparatory to participation in the passover tradition says, their custom was to wash twice. The understanding, then, that the Savior's solemn service of instituting foot washing on that last evening before his crucifixion, was only intended to cleanse the flesh, is wholly inadmissible, seeing the subjects of it were already clean as it respects the flesh, and needed no new enactment for a carnal object. Indeed this point is unwillingly conceded by many who take the carnal view, holding, as they do, that the service is binding and a good work acceptable to God only when the feet are in need of washing enactment of defilement. Ask them the direct question, "When is the proper time to observe foot washing?" their answer is, "When it is needed," i. e., when there is defilement on the feet. Now was this the only reason that the Savior washed the disciples' feet? Not at all; for whatever filth had been contracted on their way had already been removed in their established customs; washing in the bath even twice, and at the door where sandals were unloosed, to prepare them to recline at the supper. Whence it follows, from Scriptural and logical necessity, either that the first administration of this service was upon improper subjects at the hands of the infallible founder himself, (which would be absurd,) or that its design is spiritual—that is, affects the souls, being entirely different from all the Jewish washings, ritual and traditional, that had ever obtained among them. To parry the force of this conclusion it may be said, as in substance it often has been said, that the Savior's service may be taken simply as an object lesson setting before his people the necessity and greatness of humble service. Not to question the words of other authors the following from Dr. Adam Clarke will suffice: "Ye should be ready after my example to condescend to all the weakness of your brethren, to do the meanest offices for them, and in honor to prefer the least of them to yourselves." (See Clarke in loco). This view, it will be seen, recognizes some spiritual element in the service, which, however, by some mysterious process of the transmigration and commutation, passes away into other indefinite forms, leaving the original act itself among the obsolete and divers ablations of carnal and typical Israel. This understanding is forbidden by several considerations.

(a.) All the positive and general appointments of Jesus are real and permanent. Washing the saints' feet is both positive and general, for it was enjoined upon them as a positive, spiritual obligation, not as a credential of apostleship, but as something they "ought to do;" and it is general, being founded upon his example: "I, your Lord and Master, have given you an example, that ye should do as I have done to you." Hence to regard it as an exception to the fundamental law of the kingdom, is as plainly arbitrary as a similar dealing with baptism. Indeed, we have no more right to ignore this appointment than that. If this may be treated merely as an object lesson, whose spirit only is left to believers, so may that; and for the same reason, also, the real elements or forms of the Lord's supper, the bread and wine, may be abandoned with impunity. Nor is there any force whatever in the attempted offset against this scriptural conclusion, "that feet-washing is nowhere positively commanded by the Spirit through the apostles, for, as we have incontrovertibly shown, the authoritative teaching of Jesus is in his personal ministry over which his subsequent ambassadors had no repealing power; and being in his personal ministry as well as in the representative work of the comforter in the apostles, the specification in hand, like some others even more weighty than this, has its binding authority in the original appointment without the representative re-enactment. The commission with which the apostles were sent to the nations of earth, not only required them to announce the "things to come," or the additional truth into which the Spirit for whom they were waiting, would guide them, but also "all things whatsoever Jesus in person had taught them"—commanded them—which things, his mission, in part, was to bring to their remembrance: "Teaching them (the people disciples) to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you," is the mission on which they were sent. The apostles are sent to teach the nations disciples "to observe all things whatsoever he had commanded them." His personal teaching which they had been chosen to receive, and which the Comforter whom they only received immediately from God, brought to their remembrance the divine chart and compass that bounded and guided all the movements of the ship of Zion on which they were sailing. Among his numerous sayings and commands, none is more positive and plain than the one with which we are dealing. It was enjoined upon them as disciples, and they were commissioned to teach all others disciples to Jesus to observe this service among the many other sayings that he in person had delivered to them, therefore it is a permanent appointment and a perpetual obligation in the kingdom of God.

(b.) The strongest terms to denote moral obligation that language affords, were employed in the institution of this service. "Ought and should" enjoin it upon us. Of these, the former, says Webster, is the stronger, being used to denote obligation of necessity; the latter implying an obligation of propriety, merely. "We ought to love God and obey the law," is his example of the one; "we ought to be neat in our dress," is his illustration of the other. A few citations of Scripture will show how near the fountain of truth our celebrated philologist keeps. The Holy Ghost shall teach you (my apostles when brought before the synagogues, rulers and authorities) what ye ought to say. Luke 12: 12. Ought not Christ to have suffered these things, and to enter into his glory. Luke 26: 26. We ought to obey God rather than man; Acts 5: 29: and, ought not to think the godhead is like unto gold, silver, or stone, Acts 17: 29. Beloved, if God so loved us, we also ought to love one another. 1 John 4: 11. (For should, see Acts 10: 47; also 27: 21; the first affirming the propriety and necessity of the baptism of the Gentiles; the second, the obligation of Paul's traveling crew to have listened to him to avoid their loss by shipwreck.) Comment on the occurrences of the word ought in the quotations given is hardly necessary. It proclaims its own strength by expressing as it does the highest obligations known in God and man.

(c.) Hold fast the form (or pattern) of sound words, which thou hast heard of me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus. 2 Tim. 1: 13. If there come any unto you and bring not this doctrine, (the teaching of the Christ, see verse preceding) receive him not into your house, neither bid him "God speed." 2 John, 10th verse. His teaching we have seen includes his personal ministry, by which the service in hand with various other obligations not definitely enjoined in the representative work through the apostles, is bound upon us. We cannot, therefore, receive the arbitrary conclusion of men that the service was an object lesson merely, and that the obligation was fulfilled and ended when the Savior performed the service. Yet this is precisely what the opposers of continued foot-washing affirm. Their position is that when done by the Savior it was simply an act of necessity whose design was completed in itself, making a repetition unnecessary except as a carnal necessity.

On the parallel passage (1 Tim. 5: 10) Adam Clarke has the following comment: "This (washing the saint's feet) was an office of humanity shown to all strangers and travellers in the East, who either walked barefoot or having only a sole to defend, the feet needed washing when they came to the end." "When done," says Bro. Evans, the writer whom I have several times quoted, (i. e. when done by the Master on the passover occasion) "the design was completed in itself." "It does not belong," he elsewhere says, "to the institutions of the Christian church." "It was an office of humanity," says Dr. Clarke, "shown to all travellers in the East." The common understanding then is that in its design it is simply humanitarian, being founded upon obligations of nature and custom, and equally due to saint and sinner. This, readers, we regard as vain philosophy for the design being to secure humility (not merely to teach it) in his followers plainly demands a repetition of the act itself in them, and therefore leaves upon them the perpetual obligation to do for one another the very same act that the Master did for them. "If I, your Lord and Master, have washed your feet, ye ought also to wash one another's feet; for I have given you an example that ye should do as I have done to you."

The obligation, then, is more than humanitarian, it is divine, for it is solemnly imposed upon us by the only Savior, and it is perpetual because connected with, and bound upon us, by his imperishable example. It becomes his followers because they thus fulfill the best example of humility, as it became him to set before us all humility and righteousness for our personal training and perfection in the church of God. Nor can it be that it was merely carnal and transient in design, as the writers quoted claim, for it is not a promiscuous obligation enjoined by cultivated nature upon all, as their comments make it; it is a special injunction upon believers only, because of the example of their Lord and Master, having no application whatever to all men irrespective of spiritual relations, which proves the design to be spiritual, the obligation to be divine and perpetually binding upon the saints. To do good to all men, "as we have opportunity," is a general obligation, quite different from this special appointment over the household of faith. This is not like the general command, "Pray for all men." We are not commanded by the example to wash all men's feet, or to perform this office even for all travellers, east, west, north, or south. The example and command is to wash one another's feet, the feet of saints or believers only, the widow being commended for "having washed the saints' feet." It is reciprocally binding upon believers by an authority and in a design wholly unknown to the world, and is therefore perpetual in nature and obligation.

Various efforts have been made to parry the force of the continued obligation to wash the saints' feet. It is claimed by some that foot-washing was peculiar to the apostles, and therefore passed away with them. Yet there is not the remotest analogy between this and the obligations known to be exclusively apostolic. "He told them to take no thought beforehand what they should say, for the Spirit would teach them in the self-same hour what they ought to say." This has no binding force upon teachers now, for the plain obligation subsequently enjoined upon all to study the word, to show themselves workmen approved unto God, clearly distinguishes the purely apostolic from the common life of the believers. So, if in the subsequent development of the Christian institution, some order countermanding the obligation in question had been given, this, too, could have been assigned to the limited sphere of apostolic doings; but being commended by the highest authority subordinate to Jesus, the Spirit through the apostle, it is forever bound upon his followers.

Another offset against the continuance of this obligation is the idea and plea that the occasion or cause of our Savior's performing it was a contention among his disciples as to which of them should be accounted the greatest. See Luke 22: 24.

Referring to this passage as affording the cause of our Savior's remarkable humility, Bro. Evans says: "Look at what immediately preceded this remarkable instance of humility. The twelve were reclining around the table, but what were their feelings? Luke says, 'And there arose a contention among them which of them is accounted to be greatest.'" After quoting only a part of our Savior's reproof to his ambitious followers, the writer quoted adds: "And now to demonstrate this principle of humble, loving service, he does that which one or more of them should have done—washes the feet of the guests." Number 1, Christian Standard, April 5.

Evidently the author cited above considers the strife among the disciples the sole cause of our Savior's washing their feet, for he thinks the former was immediately before the latter, and that the Savior at once ("now") proceeded to demonstrate (by that service) the principle of humility. His impression is manifestly due to a false chronology of the events connected with the passover, during which the Savior washed the disciples' feet. It is true the strife mentioned by Luke is connected with that memorable occasion, yet not so immediately as to allow it to be the cause of the Master's solemn service, as described in John 13: 4-15. Luke is the only writer that mentions the strife, as John only has revealed the service of foot-washing, and, therefore, to find their chronological order we must consider all the events and circumstances of time that both have narrated.

Now as Luke alone mentions the strife, of course all that may be learned thereof, we get from him, all that may be learned thereof, we get from him, as well we know of foot washing must be gathered from John, he only having treated the subject. The full correction of the erring disciples is given in Luke (22: 25-27), and knows nothing of an interruption by the foot washing as Bro. Evans presents it which may be seen in the correction itself here submitted in full. "And he said to them, the kings of the Gentiles have lordship over them, and they that have authority over them are called benefactors. But it shall not be so: but he that is the greater among you let him become as the younger; and he that is chief as he that doth serve; for whether is greater he that at meat or he that serveth. Is not he that sitteth at meat? but I am in the midst of you as he that serveth." (See Luke in loco, revised text).

The main point in this reproof of the Master is this, that they (his disciples) shall not be like the Gentiles or heathens who have Lords over them, and are related to one another as the ruler and the ruled, master and servant. The only proper jurisdiction over them is spiritual, and being vested in the Son of God who appeared in the form of a servant, and by his matchless condescension conferred equal favor upon every creature, leaves all his redeemed upon terms of perfect equality. They cannot exercise lordship over one another, for they are all brethren, being entirely debtors and exclusively subject to reigning grace in Jesus Christ.

Furthermore, his own example among them is cited by the Savior to enforce the perfect equality that he enjoins upon his followers. Unlike the Gentile lords exercising dominion compulsory over their subjects and receiving honorary titles to flatter their ambition and gratify their lust for power, I, the Lord of heaven and earth "am among you as he that serves." He that sitteth at meat is greater (according to the world's measure of greatness) than he that serves; yet the Savior was in the relation of the latter, showing that the standard of greatness among the Gentiles was false, and teaching his disciples that true greatness is found only in ministering help to the weak and needy children of men. They were witnesses of his own example of ministering, instead of being ministered to, and of seeking the good of others, instead of coveting a false glory in promotion over them, and thus, by reference to that example, he rebuked the envy, jealousy, and rival feelings existing among them. This correction was complete, and instead of "proceeding" to demonstrate by washing their feet, (which, as we shall soon see, he had already done,) he immediately uses a disjunctive, adding on sentences denoting opposition of meaning. "But ye are they who have continued with me in my temptations; and I appoint unto you a kingdom," etc. (See, readers, Luke 22: 28-38.) His first, act after speaking the instructive rebuke already quoted, was his going out of the city to the Mount of Olives, whither his disciples followed him. See verse 39.

The service of washing their feet, which, by a false chronology, has been so immediately connected with their unholy dispute as to make the latter the cause of the former, was prior to that dispute, and, therefore, is not related to it as effect to cause. That the service of feet washing did occur before the dispute, and consequently, that the latter was not the occasion of the former is obvious from the following considerations.

1. Washing their feet occurred before they raised the question of ascertaining who the betrayer should be; the dispute arose after the enquiry, Lord is it I? (See Luke 22: 23 and parallel passages in Matt. 26, Mark 14, also John 13: 22-30.)

2. Judas Iscariot was present during the service of feet washing, but was certainly absent when the Savior spoke his rebuke of the rivalry among them, for John testifies that immediately after his reception of the sop, the token whereby he was identified as the traitor, "he went out," verse thirty, chapter thirteen. The hopeful encouragements given by the Savior in connection with the merited rebuke received by the disciples were inappropriate to the betrayer, whose sole concern was for the purse; nor had he any interest in the terrible agonies of Gethsemane, and therefore he next appears heading a military band to arrest the Son of God and deliver him up to the wonderful tragedy of Calvary. Luke 22: 47.

The service of washing the disciples' feet occurred "during supper," the dispute, sometime subsequently, and, therefore, the latter was not the occasion of the former. "Jesus knowing that his hour was come, that he should depart out of this world," * * * "And during supper, he riseth from supper, and layeth aside his garments; and he took a towel, poureth water into the basin and began to wash the disciples' feet." See revised text in loco. Now, what have we gained by showing that this service was instituted before the strife, and, consequently, independently of it? This much evidently, that its origin is not circumstantial, nor its design carnal and transient, for its origin bears all the marks of a positive and permanent institution, as needful to the disciples of Christ, and as sacredly binding upon them, now, as when it was first proclaimed by him who "speaks from heaven." Its design is not to be found in mere incident or circumstance of life peculiar to any age or people, but is deeply imbedded in the spiritual nature and needs of man as related to the Archetype of all true holiness, our perfect model of righteousness, the spotless Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world. Its design is obviously spiritual, relating as it does to the soul as well as to the body, like all the wonderful sayings of our Lord and Master. Indeed the scheme of redemption in Jesus Christ plainly recognizes man as a trinity yet in unity, his essential elements of being all equally involved in the fall, and equally favored in the great restoration to the presence and paradise of God.

"May your spirit and soul and body be preserved entire, without blame at the coming of our Lord Jesus Christ." 1 Thess. 5: 23, revision. Every appointment, then, of our Lord and Master affects man in his entirety while its design is properly and essentially spiritual. The object of this is not merely to teach humility by a general and obsolete illustration, but, also, to secure in his followers, by a suitable repetition of the same act in them, the great humility that was first displayed in the life of the Master. The searcher of all hearts, knowing what is in man, has adapted his ways to all human wants, manifesting thereby his own imperishable glory, and securing the creature's eternal good. Did he not know man's aversion to personal humiliation, and give up his own body to the baptizer in the Jordan, making his own example imitated in the believing their admission into his kingdom, and their participation in the benefits of his death? So this example in the most menial service copied by us tends to secure the humility that makes us his people, and the heirs of the kingdom promised to them that love him. He knew the spirit of pride by which alone foot-washing has been cast out of the church, and is despised among men, and treated as an obsolete custom: he knew the spirit of bigotry and rivalry that pervades all hearts, and appointed this reciprocal humiliation counteracting that dangerous spirit, and keeping them in helpful sympathy with one another and in humble communion with their common Master, the illustrious example of all humility.

Among his last acts on earth Jesus solemnly instituted this service, saying to his disciples, "I have given you an example that ye should wash one another's feet, as I have washed yours." His servant, the apostle John, the beloved disciple who leaned on the Master's breast and received the special tokens of the Savior's confidence and care, supplementing what was omitted by the other evangelists, has enjoined that example upon us by writing it in his gospel. Paul, the great apostle to the Gentile nations, has placed the seal of the Master's authority and blessing upon it by making its observance a condition of a believer's right to the confidence and support of the church. 1 Tim. 5: 10. Why, then, is it almost universally neglected, if not totally rejected? Readers, will you adopt the language of custom as defended by D. D.'s, and say that the widow's obligation, and yours, is due only to travelling strangers? Absurd! There is not the remotest hint in the passage touching her relation to strangers. As to existing customs, they had all been overthrown by him who said, "Every plant that my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be plucked up;" and as it respects strangers, we are commanded to entertain them, (Heb. 13: 2,) but not to wash their feet! The command is to disciples to wash one another's feet, and the widow is commended because she had done this to saints. Whose feet did the Master wash? Strangers? travellers? sinners? and saints? irrespective of spiritual relations? The thought is preposterous, and yet that is exactly the attitude of nearly all disciples in regard to this question.

Do you ask me, when and where may we do this? My answer is, whensoever disciples have come together in the name of Jesus. It is not inseparably connected with the Lord's supper, with which its association is incidental, nor with an upper room, which too was merely circumstantial; but the act itself is not a transient incident as we have shown, belonging as it does to the permanent sayings of Jesus. Do you say, that "whensoever" is indefinite? Not more, I answer, than many other obligations sacredly incumbent upon us, and better is an occasional fulfillment thereof than none. How many among us have been true to Jesus in this example? A few among a thousand may have washed others' feet, but is there one in all that number that has served the saints assembled as the example is found in our Lord and Master who set it before us? Why this universal neglect? Why do we ignore this divine means of fostering true fellowship, of casting out pride, and of counteracting the foul spirit of bigotry that more than any other evil arrays believers against one another, divides the household of faith, and delays the unity among his people for which our common Lord so fervently prayed. Awake, oh Zion! put on thy beautiful garments; be clothed with humility; then shall thy righteousness go forth as brightness, and thy salvation as a lamp that burneth; thy peace shall then be as a river, and thy righteousness as the waves of the sea.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

B. C. Goodwin, August, 22, writes: "The meeting closed on Wednesday after the first Lord's day in August, with thirty-eight additions. The meeting lasted eleven days. To the Lord be all the praise."

F. W. Smith, Minor Hill, Tenn., August 23, writes: "I found Bro. William Morton in a few days meeting, held at Shoal Bluff, this county. We succeeded in persuading a Baptist minister to place his 'creed' in the library with the rest of errors and trashy theology of this age, and to step out upon the one solid foundation. An erring brother was also brought back to the fold. From what we saw, we do not think the brethren are doing their duty as they should. Brethren, work while it is day."

J. R. Bradley, Lynnville, Tenn., August 26, writes: "Embracing third and fourth Lord's days in this month, Bro. W. S. Morton and I held a meeting with the church at Beech Grove, Marshall County, Tenn. Had good interest all the time. Had eleven noble souls to join the army of the Lord. They have the best singing of any congregation I know. Dr. Brents, of Lewisburg, delivered our first sermon on the third Lord's day. His subject was: 'Types and shadows.' The venerable Dr. Brents is a deep searcher."

WEAKNESS AND STRENGTH.

SECOND CORINTHIANS 12: 10.

By PAPE JULIAN: Preached at Madison, Ind.

"When I am weak, then am I strong." We might sever this fragment of a passage completely and view it without reference to its connection, and it would show us much practical wisdom of a worldly kind. Weakness in one sense is strength in another sense. If it were possible to put it into the mouths of lower animals and inanimate objects, from them it would often come to us with much force and eloquence. We should hear it from the small fish which has made good its escape through the tiny meshes of the net in which larger fish were taken.

We see the humble reed which has kissed the earth in obeisance to the windstorm, afterwards straighten up its slender trunk to teach the prostrate oak tree that weakness now is strength.

The proud mastiff takes pity on the fawning cur that begs mercy at his feet, but devours with lion-like revenge the impudent terrier who bristles in front of his bull-dog majesty.

The sportsman aims certain death at well-grown game, but stays the trigger upon fledgeling birds. Man finds that in his every day life, "weakness and strength" often go hand in hand; often the heavily burdened student, feeling himself well nigh unable to do the task assigned him in the time allotted, lays out his best efforts, and finds the work done in half the time.

Other things being equal, the army which is most cautious and doubtful is most certain of success. The proud, vaunting, and self-confident Xerxes with his five millions of men, was put to rout by the meagre, though cautious and diffident forces of Greece.

No harm comes nigh to the timid fisherman, who hugs the beach with his uncertain bark, but big ships who venture out to sea, go down in the storm.

The railroad train that must make its way 'round the mountain crest, over the threatening chasm, will seldom meet accident in the dangerous place, for there she feels her weakness; but it is on the safe parts of the track, where she abandons herself to rapid, careless speed.

Again, the passage taken in this isolated way, is not devoid of instruction for the Christian. Few of us travel a "Sabbath day's journey" in the Christian life that we do not come to the point where our most lion-like strength lies couched in that weakness which is lamb-like. I suppose we may take an illustration from the moon and still leave the skies unscraped: the moon according to astronomers, is about 240,000 miles from the earth, and there is a point between these two bodies at which a third body would be equally attracted by both. At this point a third body would remain stationary. We might imagine the point to move, so as to keep pace with the moon in its monthly revolution. If so, it would describe a line round the earth quite as easily conceived as the track of the moon herself. All bodies kept on this side the line would be drawn toward the earth; but all finding their way to the other side would be precipitated upon the moon. He would be a bold, a reckless aeronaut who should transgress this boundary. The Christian is, as it were, the third body, tossed out into space near the line where these opposite forces vie with each other. (The Christian, I say, others also, but nevertheless, the Christian.) The forces, however, which disturb his equilibrium are not physical, but moral forces.

He who cautiously keeps within the boundary—who holds at bay the dangerous margin, as children approach with fear the banks of the surging river, that person is safe. But if one, like the skater, skims with daring flight across the let-line, him Satan will devour in royal festival at his board. "I have set before you life and death, blessing and cursing."

Heathen mythology tells of a certain monster which could never be slain so long as it clung close to the bosom of mother earth, and which never was overcome till, in an unsuspecting moment, it was plucked into the air by Hercules and there strangled to death. Our strength is in clinging close to Christ, our weakness in separation from him.

I am told that the veteran hunter on the western prairies, when he would make "sure meat" of the wild antelope yonder grazing at the horizon, drives as take into the ground, and having hung upon it a gaudy, colored scarf or shawl, hides himself, gun in hand, in near neighborhood. Anon the keen vision of the animal espieth the object of attraction, and with genuine curiosity maketh near approach to hold inquest over this new comer upon the prairies, under the sun. But before her antelope curiosity has been satisfied, the timely, untimely, crack of the rifle has sounded out her death report to the skies above and the earth beneath. I need not make the application, further than to say, it had been better for the now breathless, bleeding animal to have remained by the herd, unsolitary and unventuresome.

I once heard an anecdote of Jesse James: While James was concealed at a point near St. Joseph, Mo., a photographer who had come to that city from Chicago, sent a private messenger to James requesting a confidential interview that he might take the picture of that celebrated outlaw. Said James to the messenger: "You tell that photographer that if he don't hurry back to Chicago faster than he came away, I'll make such a picture of him as his friends will not relish."

Why can we not learn a lesson from the desperado, and when Satan (temptation) comes to us under guise of friendship, say to him, "Get thee behind me Satan! Hie thee back into the darkness from whence thou comest out? But 'the children of this world are in their generation wiser than the children of light.'"

Such thoughts are suggested by the passage when, clipped from its place, it meets the eye unencumbered by its connections. But when we return it to its place, and view it in the light which there shines upon it, it then fulfills the mission on which the apostle sent it to our minds.

When fitted to its connection, it must shoulder the following circumstances: Paul was at Philippi in Macedonia, writing his second letter to the church at Corinth. I am no better informed than to suppose he was staying at the house of one of his brethren there. And he might have been writing with pen and parchment supplied by his host. His needs while he was absent were promptly supplied by the church at Philippi, and it is therefore hard probability to suppose him to any extent neglected while present. But we are not told that his supply of parchment was left behind as must have been the case on another occasion: 2 Tim. 4: 13. He is approaching the close of his letter, and shortly before reaching the point where expression is given to the language under consideration, his just indignation is stirred in speaking of certain Judaizing teachers who had come all the way from Jerusalem, following up the tracks of the journeying apostle, and spreading abroad their injurious doctrines in the churches he had established. They had made high headway in Galatia, and the infant church at Corinth was quick soil in which their sown seeds had taken root. These persons Paul compares to the serpent which beguiled Eve, and expresses fear (11: 13) of what had already taken place lest they should tarnish the Corinthian church, which, as a chaste virgin he had married to Christ.

His indignation swells higher as he points to the fact that these men have intimated his inferiority as an apostle to Peter and John, and have boasted their own superiority to him on the grounds of their Abrahamic descent and their superior labors for the gospel.

Fired by these insults, the apostle feels called upon, under the circumstances, to arm himself with armor not that of Paul, but such as alone suits the methods of his opponents. He must needs put into practice the principle of becoming "all things to all men," and to these men must become a fool, that he may match their boasting. Seeming, therefore, to apologize to the church for becoming "a fool," Paul condescends to blow his own trumpet a little while. He points out to the Corinthian brethren that he, above all others, has the right to boast. Not only was he more abundant in labors than all the rest of the apostles; not only had he periled life and limb, as well as to forego every earthly comfort for the furtherance of the gospel, but that the mysteries of heaven had not been veiled from him; for, either in the body or out of it, he knew not which, he had been lifted up to paradise, and had heard words "unspeakable, and not lawful to be uttered."

But he further emphasizes the fact that a bodily affliction had been laid on him to tone him for the carrying of such honors. Lest he should be exalted overmuch, lest he should feel to vaunt himself like the king of Babylon when he said, "Is not the mighty Babylon that I have built for the house of the kingdom, by the might of my power, and for the honor of my majesty?" For such discipline "there was given him a thorn in the flesh, and the messenger of Satan to buffet him."

He still further affirms that in this condition he had "thrice" besought the Lord that the sting and humiliation of his mortal flesh might be removed from him. God, who delivereth his servants "in the day of trouble," was ready to be Paul's deliverer. Paul's prayers brought an answer. But it did not come in the shape which Paul proposed in his petition—not in the form of a gentle extractor of the thorn from his flesh and a whip to scourge back the messenger of Satan; but the "windows of heaven" were opened, and showers of divine grace rained upon him. "My grace is sufficient for thee; for my strength is made perfect in weakness," was the answer to Paul's prayers.

Now we meet the text sufficiently circumstanced to enable us to partly appreciate its meaning. Paul has found himself to be as a vessel "marred in the hands of the potter"—a "broken and empty vessel"—a man no longer able to make a "fair show in the flesh." No longer sufficient of himself. He is assured that God's grace shall be his sufficiency. In the ecstasy of one liberated from prison, he now declares, "I take pleasure in weakness; for when I am weak, then am I strong."

Such were the circumstances, and such the apostolic utterance. He simply meant that by how much he was made a cripple in the service of Christ by the cumbering weight his flesh did carry, by so much and more also was he made an able servant by the grace of God. That wherein the armor of the human soldier had sustained a breach by the incoming thorn in the flesh, or any trusty weapon been shattered by the merciless buffeting of the messenger of Satan, these had been repaired in the royal armory of divine grace.

"Grace, 'tis a charming sound."

Assisted from on high, no human weakness could retard the progress or impair the prospects of that gospel which must stand, "not in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God."

So far, we have vouched for only a partial appreciation of the language. We can only approach to a full appreciation by viewing the statement as demonstrated in the experience of the apostle.

This utterance comes not from an untried soldier, who to the beat of the drum and sound of the life appears for the first time on the battle ground. It comes from the Ajax of Christian warfare. It comes from the battle-scarred chief, the veteran hero. To feel his language we must move beside him in journeys of land and sea, in perils of rivers and robbers, and let our eyes behold "Satan falling like lightning from heaven" before the man who in bodily presence is mean and contemptible.

At the time when he penned himself strong in weakness, he was sitting with his back to vastly the greater part of thirteen years' trial of this promise of God. Asia minor had succumbed to the might of the weakling, and he had planted the gospel banner at three different points along the European shore of the Aegean sea: Philippi, Thessalonica and Corinth.

The history of these years may be classified under three heads: (1) That which we read after the pen of Luke the evangelist; (2) that which the apostle himself has told; (3) that which remains untold. And this embraces much the largest part; for it might indeed be truthfully said of the apostle as of the Son of Man, "Many other things did the apostle, the which, if they should be written every one, I suppose that even the world itself would not contain the books that should be written."

The first class of events is introduced by his experience in Damascus immediately after his conversion and his preaching in that city. From this persecution, raised by his countrymen, he escaped by being let down over the wall in a basket. This is the herald of many persecutions which follow quickly on.—Three journeys among the Gentiles. The first took in more particularly Antioch in Pisidia, Iconium, and Lystra. At Antioch, he was contradicted and blasphemed, and expelled from the city. At Iconium, he was set upon by both Jews and Gentiles, and compelled to flee. At Lystra, he was stoned, and dragged out of the city and left for dead.

The second tour but emphatically repeats the first: At Philippi, he was scourged with many stripes and committed to jail. But at midnight, he and Silas prayed and sang praises to God, and the prison walls trembled, the iron door was thrown back upon its hinges, their bands were loosed, and they released. At Thessalonica, "lewd men of the baser sort" raised an uproar and assaulted the house where he was supposed to be lodged. He was persecuted from Berea. At Athens, he was scorned and ridiculed by the Epicurean and Stoic philosophers. At Corinth, he labored with his own hands, and preached the gospel without money and without price to blaspheming and opposing hearers.

At Ephesus, on his third tour, and just before writing this epistle, he had spent two years and three months teaching and persuading the unwilling people concerning the kingdom of God. A sample is all that is necessary here.

But the apostle has set his hand and seal to the fact that he endured many things of which we have no detailed account in history. "I am," said he, (meaning than all the rest of the apostles) "in labors more abundantly, in prisons more abundantly, in stripes above measure, in deaths oft, of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day have I been in the deep; in journeyings often, in perils of rivers, in perils of robbers, in perils from my countrymen, in perils from the Gentiles, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren; in labor and travail, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness." 2 Cor. 11: 23-33.

This hasty sentence gallops over much of his life which remains untraced by the pen of the historian, and throws intermittent light upon parts of it which had otherwise been still unilluminated. But could we look with cloudless vision arrear of the blinding curtain of eighteen centuries, we should doubtless behold scenes yet unspeakable in the career of this man. Could seas and mountains and rugged highways testify in words to us, they would tell much more abundantly of dangers from flood and tide, of pilgrim weariness and solitary loneliness. Could unknown prison walls rear up themselves from ruin, they might again re-echo with ancient midnight praises, which their rocky sides have not forgot.

Marvelous to tell, in the known and the unknown tribulations which make up Paul's soldier life, he rested not an hour from the burden of his flesh. He laid it by at no waystation to return and take it up again. His thorn in the flesh forsook him never, and the messenger of Satan was with him ever. But the grace of God was his constant companion. It departed not to heaven by rest nor alighted off him for a moment. "My grace is sufficient for thee, for my strength is made perfect in weakness."

"Lord, thou hast been our dwelling place in all generations. Before the mountains were brought forth, or ever thou hadst formed the earth and the world, from everlasting to everlasting, thou art God." * * * "Surely goodness and mercy shall follow me all the days of my life, and I shall dwell in the house of the Lord forever."

Now we come upon the meaning of our passage as it comes heavy fraught from the pen of the apostle. He was able from experience to say, "Wherefore I take pleasure in weaknesses, in injuries, in necessities, in persecutions, in distresses, for Christ's sake; for when I am weak, then am I strong." When he was dragged out for dead from the gates of Lystra, the grace of God in fairy form whispered courage in his ear. The same suffered him not to see despair as with heavy heart he felt his way darkly through the gorges of Mount Taurus, or forded by moonlight the sparkling waters of Cydnus, or "wished for the day" upon the mountains along her shores. When the star of hope had set with sullen portent behind the walls of Philippi's jail, by grace it was made to rise up, and with visiting rays shine "day spring" into his dungeon cell. "Dayspring from on high" made his heart sing to God:

"When through the deep waters I cause you to go,
The rivers of sorrow shall not you overflow;
When through fiery trial your pathway shall lie,
My grace all sufficient shall be your supply.
How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord,
Is laid for your faith in his excellent word."

Is God Particular?

"Then Elisha said, Go, borrow thee vessels abroad of all thy neighbors, empty vessels: not a few. And when thou art come in, thou shalt shut the door upon thee and thy sons, and shalt pour out into all those vessels, and thou shalt set aside that which is full." 2 Kings 4: 3-4.

Some one will say, "Why all this brother about shutting the door, and gathering vessels, and pouring out oil; could he not have helped the woman without all this detail?" But so it was; and if she had failed in aught she would have lost the blessing. I remind you of Israel's first king. Saul was told to go and slay the Amalekites; and he returned saying he had fulfilled God's command. "What mean the bleating of those sheep and the lowing of those oxen in mine ears?" "O!" said Saul, "I forgot for the moment; yes, to be sure, I did spare a few sheep and oxen, but it was for the purpose of sacrificing to the Lord." This was an obliviousness with a consequence; he lost the kingdom through it. Just so, my friend, when you begin to question what God commands, "What is the use of this appointment?" Where is the good of that injunction?" you are lost.—Christian Advocate.

No grace is more necessary to the Christian worker than infidelity, the humble grace that marches on in sunshine and storm, when no banners are waving, and there is no music to cheer the weary feet.—S. J. Nicholls.

Nature is very much like a shiftless child who, the more he is helped the more he looks for it. The more medicine a man takes the more he will have to take, whether it be anodyne, tonic, or alterative.

A WICKED ADULTERATION.

Eleven Per Cent of Tartrate of Lime Discovered in Price's Baking Powder.

Analysis of Price's Baking Powder, of Chicago, shows:
LIME..... 3.53 per ct.
AMMONIA..... 1.05 per ct.
Starch..... 19.00 per ct.

TARTRATE OF LIME..... 11.85 per ct.

Aside from the inferiority of a powder containing a useless substance equaling about one-eighth of its entire weight (and which is the cause of the great lack of strength of Price's Baking Powder, as shown by the tests of the Government Chemists), there is to be considered the serious consequences that may arise from taking this large amount of lime into the system.

Lime can not be decomposed by heat, and is not eliminated in mixing or baking, and, therefore, all of this enormous proportion, as found in Price's Baking Powder, remains in the bread, biscuit, or cake with which it is mixed, and is taken into the stomach.

By the application of heat to lime, carbonic acid gas is driven off, and there is left quick-lime, a caustic so powerful that it is used by tanners to eat the hair from hides of animals, and in dissecting-rooms to quickly rot the flesh from the bones of dead subjects.

Lime mixed with starch (and both are found in Price's Powder) will produce a ferment. The process is not quick, and does not take place until the food in which the baking powder is used has been some time in the stomach. Indigestion, dyspepsia, and more serious disorders result.

The cause of this large amount of Lime in Price's Baking Powder is the use of cheap and impure materials.

Prof. C. B. Gibson, Chemist of the College of Physicians and Surgeons, Chicago, had in view these impure powders containing lime, like Price's, when, after having made an examination of many of them, he volunteered the following testimony that Royal Baking Powder is the best and purest in the market:

THE ROYAL ABSOLUTELY PURE.

"ROYAL BAKING POWDER Co.: I recently procured a sample of your (Royal) baking powder from the kitchen of a private family in this city, and subjected it to an examination. I found it so different from many of the baking powders advertised as 'strictly' and 'absolutely pure,' and so far superior that I thought you would be pleased to know it, and might find use for the certificate.

"In view of the vast difference and stupendous frauds that are offered to the most 'gullible' people on the face of the earth, it pleases me occasionally to strike an 'honest article.'
Respectfully,

"C. B. GIBSON, Analytical Chemist."

Calling Evangelists, etc.

How does the Holy Spirit make men elders or overseers? How does the Holy Spirit call and qualify men for evangelists, and what is the evidence of the calling? What is the modus operandi of ordaining elders and deacons? Why did Christ wait till thirty years of his life was spent before he began to preach? Christ commanded the apostles to preach the gospel to all nations, and they died before they did it. Who was to succeed them in fulfilling the commission? By answering these through the ADVOCATE, you will get a Baptist stumbling block out of my path. [Thomas Thomas Sherman, Texas]

To discuss these questions fully would take several numbers of the ADVOCATE. Some of them were investigated a week or two since, by Bro. Sewell. The Spirit makes men overseers just as he makes them Christians, by telling them what to do, how to deport themselves, and in doing this, certain desires and qualifications are developed. The desire to do the work, not to hold the office, and the qualification to do it, are the indications of the call to its performance. A man with the desire will be found quietly doing the work in a private way, almost unconsciously to himself. He is the judge of his desire; his brethren, of the qualification. Many men desire the work, who have no desire for office. The desire or taste for doing the work, looking after the poor, comforting the distressed, or preaching the gospel, shows itself in the walk of a man. Capacity to do it is developed by exercise of the taste for it. The desire and the qualification are the evidence of the call to any work.

Christ never told why he waited until he was thirty years of age to begin his ministry, so I do not know. Some have supposed it was because, under Judaism, children attained their majority at thirty; some because the Levites entered the service at thirty. To those who wish a reason, we suppose one of these might furnish it, but we never cared for any. The fact that he did it then is evidence that this was the time that seemed good in the wisdom of God, and that is ample reason for me.

Our brother says the apostles died before they preached the gospel to all nations. Paul says, (Col. 1: 23,) "The gospel was preached to every creature which is under heaven; whereof I Paul am made a minister." Nation is usually here understood by creature. While we believe that under the ministry of the apostles all the different nations of the earth heard the gospel, yet it is true that it is to be perpetuated through the work of the church. Many nations to whom it it. If, in process of time, any nation should become in condition to receive it, or any portion of it, then the church in its ministrations, its service, its preaching, will carry it to them again.

Please tell me your understanding of Matthew 18: 15-17. What is the duty of the witnesses? Would like to know, too, of course, the duty of all concerned. I have been taken (as a witness) to help settle troubles between brethren, and would not know what to do; each brother would claim he was right, and the other wrong. Now, ought I to examine into the matter, or advise them to tell it to the church, and let the church examine into it?—"Subscriber," Blue Bank, Ky.

The witnesses, or those whom the injured brother takes with him, are certainly under obligation to try to get the brother who has done the wrong to correct it. The Scripture says, "If he fail to hear them, tell it to the church." That means, if he fail to listen to the advice of those who are taken to hear the case. The injured brother having sought to correct the wrong between himself, ought to take one or two more impartial, prudent brethren, who will hear the whole case, tell who is wrong, what the Scripture requires should be done, and then if the brother at fault refuses to hear them, and persists in the wrong course, the injured one should tell it to the church. It is the duty of the witnesses to advise this course, and if both parties fail, should do it themselves.

SPECIAL ATTENTION

Is called to our offers for new subscribers. We ask that our friends give some activity in calling attention of others to the terms, and in soliciting and sending in subscriptions. There are vital questions involving the purity and integrity of the church at stake, and the advocates of error are active and earnest.

It behooves those who would maintain the truth of God pure, and the church in its integrity as God gave it, to be active and earnest. Wide departures from the truth of God and from the fundamental organism of the churches of Christ are already made. Without earnestness and activity on the part of those who would maintain these inviolate, the present effort to return to apostolic Christianity will degenerate into a mere sect among sects.

The ADVOCATE has firmly opposed all tendencies to depart from the revealed will of God, believing that one, however slight, only prepares for and fosters others wider and wider still. The current of evil is more easily checked in its beginning than after it has gained volume and headway.

While almost all religious papers have been furnished with means by their friends to sustain them or to enable them to be offered cheap until they can gain a large circulation, the ADVOCATE has never asked this at the hands of its friends. Others are now underbidding it by virtue of money raised to run them. While a few thousand dollars would enable us to cheapen the price of the ADVOCATE and facilitate and extend its circulation, we have not asked this. We have borne the burdens and the losses ourselves, and we only ask those who believe the ADVOCATE is right, to aid us in maintaining that right by working to extend its circulation.

As an inducement and help to them in this work, we make the following proposition, To every old subscriber that will send us $3.00 and one new name, we will credit him with a year's subscription. That is, we will send the paper to one old and one new subscriber for one year for $3.00. To clubs of any size, half new subscribers at the same rate; one new subscriber to clubs of ten. This offer is an inducement for new subscribers. The paper, with our present list, cannot be published for less than $2.00. We make the offer, hoping every subscriber will get some friend or neighbor to take it, or failing in this, will enclose the other dollar and send it to some friend. If, by this means, our list is sufficiently increased to make a reduction to $1.50, it will be done, or the paper will be so enlarged as to correspond to the increase in circulation. Our circulation is larger than ever before, but it is not what it ought to be. Every family ought to have a good religious paper. It pays better than any investment that can be made. We ought to have ten thousand subscribers. Will not all our readers aid in accomplishing this result?

THE ORPHAN SCHOOL,

As announced, will be opened the 15th of September. The trustees will be able to support a few orphan girls. They have not yet selected them, and would be glad for friends to recommend such as come within the following conditions:

They must be twelve years of age, sound of body and mind, having been raised in moral associations, destitute of means themselves, or of friends who are able to educate them. The trustees can take six or eight of this class for the present; or failing to raise this number of children with a small amount of means, or if friends can partly furnish support, the trustees will supplement their lack of means by contributing something to their support.

The trustees hope soon to be able to take a much larger number, but part of the means subscribed is not yet available, and they are cautious not to involve the school. They propose to take destitute orphans, sent by churches, individuals or associations of any kind, at forty dollars per session of five months. Their aim is to take these exactly at cost. But as they are without experience in this matter, they place it at forty dollars; will lower or raise this amount in the future as experience shall show to be necessary.

They propose to take children of those able to pay, at fifty dollars per term of five months, charging ten dollars extra for tuition. The children will be all well cared for; will be taught well in all the English branches; will be taught neatness, order and industry in all the domestic duties; and the constant aim will be to improve and benefit them in every way that will promote their usefulness and happiness here, and for happiness eternal.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

ADULTERY AND DIVORCE.

We have been having a great deal of trouble over a case of what I term adultery. The man and his wife separated, because they could not get along together, (he admits that,) and he claims that when she broke her vow that she had taken to obey him in the marriage relation, that in that act she committed fornication. He says that falsification is the definition of fornication. He said his wife did not commit adultery, but no one could get along with her. And on the ground that falsification was the definition of fornication, and that the law of the land divorced him from her and married him to the woman that he now lives with; then takes the thirteenth chapter of Romans to prove that we should be subject to the powers that be, and that we should not resist. From the first to the fifth verse of that chapter was his defence, and upon that plea the majority of the church that were present sustained him, there being about one-fourth the church present at this trial. We want you to give us the definition of fornication, and if there is any difference between it and adultery. We had Webster's Unabridged Dictionary present, your article of April 30, on adultery, also Bro. Abernathy's article of July 30; but notwithstanding all that, and it presented in as mild a way as could be done, he was sustained. Now, if you can show the minority that we should submit, we will do it willingly; we (the minority) are perfectly quiet. Now, Bro. Lipscomb, we would be very grateful to you for an answer to the above.

If that is a correct statement of the case, and we base all we say on what is said of it here, and what we say applies to no other than the case that is stated, it shows how we may permit our selfish feelings to warp our judgment, and cause us to warp, twist, and pervert the word of God, to sustain us in wicked courses. No man of ordinary common sense, not biased by a strong self-interest, can believe that the disobedience of a wife to her husband is fornication. Fornication is sexual intercourse between persons not lawfully married. It specifically means that one of the parties should be unmarried, but is frequently used in the sense of adultery. Adultery is unlawful intercourse between married persons.

Frequently it is right for a wife to disobey her husband. The Bible so teaches. Whenever he comes between her and her duty to God, she must disobey him, or cease to be a servant of God. A man so self-willed as to twist and pervert Scripture, attach meanings to words that they never had, to carry his point, would be most likely a husband that would require his wife to disobey God, or himself.

While the wife is required to obey her husband until he requires her to do something contrary to the word of God, the Bible nowhere justifies a man for putting away his wife and marrying another for disobedience. Suppose a man were to go into a civil court and plead that, because his wife refused to obey him, or because she refused to live with him, she was guilty of fornication; who believes the court would tolerate such a plea? Such a charge would lay him open to a suit for damages as a slanderer and defamer of his wife's character. When a church entertains such a plea, it makes itself ridiculous and contemptible in the sight of all honest men. Christ says, "Whosoever putteth away his wife save for the cause of fornication, causeth her to commit adultery; and whosoever marrieth her that is divorced, committeth adultery." This clearly teaches that putting her away, and forcing her to marry again, causes her to commit adultery. It teaches that whosoever marries her that is divorced, commits adultery. Reverse the case. If she put him away, that is, refuse to live with him, she may force him into adultery; but she who marries him after they were divorced, commits adultery. But cohabitation between two cannot exist—right to one, and wrong to the other. So Christ clearly teaches that, even though the woman may have left him without cause, yet if he marries again, the woman he marries is guilty of adultery. If she is, so is he.

The Bible recognizes that sometimes husband and wife cannot live together, but it clearly demands, in such cases, they should not marry again. Only adultery on the part of one absolves the other. It is doubtful, with many of our best biblical critics, if even then the other is allowed to marry. I have always inclined to the idea that God tolerates the re-marriage in this case, but in no other.

We cannot see how the civil law can affect this case. The civil law can annul, repeal, render void; no law of God. The requirement of the Bible is, "Submit to the powers that be." This is clearly modified by the requirement, first to obey God. But to submit is to do or fear something that the civil law requires. To do something the civil law permits, is no submission to that law. The civil law permits a man to lie, to swear to a lie, so it is not done to one of its own representatives. But lying is not submitting to civil law, because the civil law does not require any one to lie. Civil law permits a man to be an infidel, to believe in God, or to deny him. But to disbelieve in God is no submission to civil law, because civil law does not require it. Then to get a divorce from a wife for any other cause than adultery, is no submission to civil law. The law does not require it, it only permits it. The law permits one to marry when so divorced, but does not require it. Marrying, then, is no submission to civil law. To pay tax is submission to civil law, because it requires this.

To say anything the law permits is allowable, and for the church to refuse to allow to its members all the civil law allows, is resisting the civil law, is simply to substitute the law of the land for the Bible as the rule of right in the church. This is dethroning God and annulling his law, and enthroning the civil power as God, and its law as the law of God. The civil law did not divorce nor marry these people; it only permitted them to separate, and the others to marry. They married each other. The civil law permitted, witnessed, attested and recorded the fact that they did marry.

The law does nothing, save as it requires it. What it permits others to do, it does not do itself. Because the law permits a house in which infidelity is taught, and guarantees their right in that house, do we say the law establishes infidelity, and to oppose infidelity is to resist the law? A true and just cause never needed such subterfuges and perversions of facts as these. This whole action of the church is based on false grounds, falsification of the meaning of words, falsification of the act of civil government, and in violation of the law of God.

But what must the minority do in the case? There ought to be no minorities or majorities in the church of God. This church has been educated to the idea that the church has the right to vote that one man shall stay in the church, another be put out. They cannot see how it can be otherwise. A Baptist church cannot see how a man can be received into the church except on a vote of the church. True disciples of Christ know this is a mistake. When a man complies with the law of God for entrance into his kingdom, all know that no one has a right to object, and no vote is taken. It is just as easy to determine when a man violates a law as to determine when he obeys it. It requires a vote no more to determine one than the other.

The question should never be will we receive this member who has complied with the law? It should never be shall we retain or reject this member? but the question should be, has he obeyed the law of God, has he disobeyed it? It is as easy to reach unanimity in the one case as the other, save we are educated to think we have a right to say whether a man shall be put out of the church or not. We do not think we have any right to say whether he shall be received into it. In the one case we look simply to the question whether he has obeyed the Lord. In the other we consult our feeling, our friendship, our interest, and we seek for excuses to gratify them, so, twist and warp the Bible, the dictionaries, the laws of the land to suit our preferences. I do not think any impartial man that will look at the law of God as given in the Bible, and the case as stated above, and doubt that the present cohabitation of the parties is unlawful, is in violation of the divine law, and that is all the church is called upon to decide. God decides when this is the case the disorderly person shall be withdrawn from.

Much that is done under garb of friendship is real enmity; a partizan will uphold a man. But a true friend will condemn the wrong, point it out to him, and try to get him right. No true friend will ever defend a man in the wrong. That encourages to continue in the wrong and leads him down to hell. Under a partisanship falsely called friendship, many sustain their relations, neighbors, and partisans in the way that leads to hell. They are enemies, and not friends. A father gets mad at a church that deals with a son, and sustains the son in a wrong. That father is the worst enemy his son has and leads him down to hell. A father ought to seek to have the law of God enforced on his child above all others, that he may be saved.

But under the circumstances what ought those who are for the law of God to do? They ought to clearly state the law and protest against its violation, then be patient and forbearing, striving to get the others to submit to that law. If that man is living in adultery, keeping him nominally in the church will not change the offence. The vote of the church will not change the crime, will not justify him. It may encourage him in sin, demoralize public sentiment, lead others to sin in the same way, but if it is adultery and he persists in it, he will go to hell despite all the votes of all the churches in the world. But because a church is sometimes perverted and the law of God set aside, it does not justify in breaking up that church. Let the law be known, protest against the wrong, forbear with your brethren, and try to get them to see right.

We have stricken off names and places so nobody save the persons interested will know who are concerned. So no one need write to us to get up a controversy as to whether the facts are correctly stated. We speak of them as stated, and if any case is not as stated then we have not spoken of that case.

F. C. Sowell, Water Valley, August 25, writes: "We closed our meeting at Thompson Station, with two baptisms. One prodigal returned, and two made the confession, who were not allowed to be baptized, their fathers being opposed to it. I am sure it is better to obey God in this matter, than man. During the meeting seventeen discourses were delivered—three by Bro. E. B. Cayce, and fourteen by myself. We are now at Water Valley, and expect to continue here several days. We are having good congregations and good interest, and as long as this is the case we have a hope of doing good."

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview, Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

THE STATE MEETING.

Our report of the State meeting, sent on at the right time, was lost. We shall not, therefore, attempt a report of the whole matter; in fact, this paper is not the State Meeting organ, and it will not be expected of us.

There had been a big attempt at a boom for this meeting. McGarvey had been secured, with his lectures, etc., and C. C. Cline with his Sunday-school Institute, all intended as a drawing influence to the meeting. We are satisfied that the progressive element were very much disappointed in Bro. Cline's work. It was too scriptural, it struck heavy blows at innovations. He let no chance slip to strike a blow at church suppers, festivals, grab-bags, beggars for the church, etc. Every step was in the direction of truth, and his work was eminently good. Bro. McGarvey's lectures, we are told, tended in the same direction. The sermons we heard him preach were good, and his style and manner simple and plain. We learned to love him as a great man, but we have somewhat against him. While he does not unite himself with the human plans, missionary societies, etc., he still works with them, and thus gives his consent to their existence. He is regarded as authority in these things, and if they are wrong, his word against them would be of great value in putting away these evils. His consent, even his silence, will have much to do in fastening these evils upon the church. Our great men are too much afraid of speaking out on these matters. They should let their voice be heard, and it should ring out clear and strong—there should be no uncertain sound. Everybody should know just where they stand. If the watchmen fail to give warning of the enemy's approach, God will hold them accountable. The reason we have so much trouble in the church, is because our great men have left the helm, and are willing that the young men shall steer the ship after their own notions, instead of the chart Christ gave us. Let our sound old brethren take hold of the helm, and by the old chart place us again in the old channel. A fearful responsibility rests upon those regarded as leading men in this reformation. The meeting, as far as we could see, did nothing, save to suggest to the churches. What did they suggest? They suggested many things to the churches, which the churches could never learn from God's word. There is one suggestion they might have made, but did not; perhaps they forgot it; so we will make it here. It is this: That the churches study constantly the word of God, and that they be guided by it literally in all they do religiously. This they did not suggest. State meetings and State meeting machinery has about as little use for the Bible, as a Methodist Conference. The study of the Bible will destroy all this man-made machinery. Hence they let it alone. True, they did appoint a committee at the State meeting, on evangelizing, and that committee appointed four churches to send out evangelists, and then the "State meeting" suggested to the churches—the other churches not authorized to send out evangelists—to send money to these former churches, to enable them to send out their evangelists, etc. Thus they expect to catch the churches with guile. Sherman church was used as a sort of Rome for the whole thing, a sort of "boss" church. Its pastor proved himself entirely loyal to the cause of State meetings, by trying to organize a Woman's Missionary Society at Bryan—a wheel inside of the great wheel. But Bro. Wilmeth drew his old Jerusalem blade, and made it so lively for them that he withdrew his motion, and said he would go home and organize it at Sherman. So the "Woman's Missionary Society, of Texas," is appointed to be born at Sherman. Here the little wheel will be made and polished up by the Sherman pastor, and at the next State meeting another effort made to fit this little wheel in the big one. It was suggested, that the churches take up collections to be sent to these four churches, to send out solicitors to collect funds, to pay evangelists, to preach the gospel. This sounds like the house that Jack built, and just about as silly, but it is so. The brethren are requested to send up money to send beggars for the purpose of carrying on the Lord's work. Very soon every church will be sending up to the State meeting, applications for pastors, and they will be sent through "the Committee on Evangelizing," aided by the chairman. Oh! the heaven is working nicely. We will soon out-sect the sects. It will be but a few years until our love of popularity and of the world shall land us into orthodoxy. Our brethren seem to care for nothing, so much as to be regarded as one of the orthodox churches. See what a blow they made recently, over the fact that our orthodox was settled by the Civil Courts. This was a sweet morsel to many. The cost of the State meeting could not have been less than three thousand dollars. If this had been spent in sending evangelists, and in sounding out the gospel, it would have done more good than the State meeting will do in ten years.

ON THE WING.

Leaving Henrietta, we sped away over the prairies for the much "blowed" town of Wichita. We found it of much less attraction than we expected. It is a confused babel of lumber, brick, stone, and humanity. It is situated near the banks of the river whose name it bears; numbers about 2,500 inhabitants, and is growing. When we were there the streets were full of standing water, it having rained the day before, and the ground upon which the town stands being so low the water stands. The whole valley overflows at times, and unless a levee is thrown up, will some time or other be washed away. We took dinner and returned on same train, having had enough of Wichita in one hour. We would not undertake to raise our children in Wichita for any amount of money. It is built in a dog town, and for ten miles this side the prairie dogs are thick, thousands can be seen in passing. The country is not fit for farms, on account of dry weather. It seldom rains here.

We dropped down to Bowie, Montague county. Stopped with Bro. L. B. Grogan, who teaches and preaches at the town of Bowie. Bro. Howell also preaches here, and both these men are doing good in preaching while they support themselves, mainly by their own labor. We made the acquaintance of many good brethren and sisters in Bowie, while we preached Lord's day and night. They are trying to build a house of worship, and we hope they will succeed. Took dinner with brother and sister Laroe on Lord's day, and stopped at night with Capt. Tindall. His son, Walter, about fourteen years of age, said as he had given Bro. Diminit all the change he had, at the close of his meeting a short time before, that he would not be partial, and so he gave us all he had, fifteen cents. We appreciated this more than the dollars which some give, on account of the spirit in which it was done. It seemed a pleasure to him to give the preacher what he had, while other men give a few dollars, a small pittance of what they have, and do it so grudgingly that the gift, instead of making the recipient feel happy, makes him regret the necessity of its acceptance. Walter promised to send us a dog, which we wish him to remember.

We liked Bowie better than any western town we saw on this road, but not well enough to desire to live there. The water is bad, and the country is sickly. Most of the women in all this Northwest Texas looked unhealthy. We inquired the reason, and the answer was, "The country is hard on women." Just why, I do not know.

Bowie lies about the middle of the cross-timbers, which cover a belt of twenty to fifty miles wide, and reaches clear through the State, from north to south. We think the country now occupied by the cross-timbers was once the bed of an immense body of water, a great river, or sea. This is evident, from the fact that the soil is almost a solid mass of pebbles, after digging down a little way. This is our guess in trying to account for these wonderful cross-timbers.

The Adventists are busy in Montague County, turning the word of God into a lie, and disturbing the peace of the churches. How a Christian can be led away with this Advent doctrine we are at a loss to know, unless it be that Christians are now not posted in Bible knowledge. They do not read the Bible studiously, and constantly to learn what God has said: and so are easily carried about by every wind of doctrine. Their pet ideas are seventh, or Sabbath day, instead of the first, as a day of rest, or holy day; soul-sleeping; and "Jesus has no kingdom now on earth. When Paul expressly says that certain, to whom he wrote had been translated out of the kingdom of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son. They were now in it, not to be, but were they in it. And again, he speaks of others who were in the kingdom before himself. "The disciples met together upon the first day of the week to break break," (Acts 20: 7,) not on the seventh. It takes about as much "explaining" to run this Advent business as it does to run the Methodist Discipline.

Bro. C. Kendrick, while pitching into Bro. Errett for unscriptural teaching on the "pastors" mania, is, himself, trying to get up and run plans, missionary societies, etc., contrary to Scriptural teaching. Consistency is a jewel that every Christian should wear. If Bro. Kendrick will pitch into State meetings, plans, missionary societies, etc., as violently and as Scripturally as he does into Errett, his old brethren will rally around him, and his last days shall yet be his best days.

A lady named Mrs. Grumble, who was to leave the train on the T. & P. R. R. at Hawkins, waited aboard until the train was pulling out from the Junction, and then ran out and jumped off against the protestations of passengers, and fell and broke her leg in doing so. Moral: Never jump from a train while it is in motion. If anything happens that you can't get off in time, pull the bell rope and have train stop.

THAT MODEL CHURCH.

Wonder how many will be able to model after that church spoken of by Bro. Skiles, as a model for us all to work by. Brussels carpet, stained windows, telephones, eighteen hundred dollar preacher, and an organ and choir. Oh! isn't it nice? Just telephone Bro. Skiles for particulars.

Drought, plague, earthquakes, and rumors of war, afflict the country now. What do all these calamities mean?

Robust Health

Is not always enjoyed by those who seem to possess it. The taint of corrupted blood may be secretly undermining the constitution. In time, the poison will certainly show its effects, and with all the more virulence the longer it has been allowed to permeate the system. Each pimple, sty, boil, skin disorder and sense of unnatural lassitude, or languor, is one of Nature's warnings of the consequences of neglect.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only remedy that can be relied upon, in all cases, to eradicate the taint of hereditary disease and the special corruptions of the blood. It is the only alternative that is sufficiently powerful to thoroughly cleanse the system of Scrofulous and Mercurial impurities and the pollution of Contagious Diseases. It also neutralizes the poisons left by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, and enables rapid recuperation from the enfeeblement and debility caused by these diseases.

Myriads of Cures

Achieved by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, in the past forty years, are attested, and there is no blood disease, at all possible of cure, that will not yield to it. Whatever the ailments of this class, and wherever found, from the scurvy of the Arctic circle to the "veldt-sores" of South Africa, this remedy has afforded health to the sufferers by whom it was employed. Druggists everywhere can cite numerous cases, within their personal knowledge, of remarkable cures wrought by it, where all other treatment had been unavailing. People will do well to

Trust Nothing Else

than AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Numerous crude mixtures are offered to the public as "blood purifiers," which only allure the patient with the pretense of many cheap doses, and with which it is folly to experiment while disease is steadily becoming more deep-seated and difficult of cure. Some of these mixtures do much lasting harm. Bear in mind that the only medicine that can radically purify the vitiated blood is

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. S. Brown, Hohenwald, Tenn., August 25, writes: "Bro. Brown Godwin held a meeting at Salem, Lewis County, embracing the third Lord's day in August, the immediate result of which was twelve individuals added to the fold of Christ. Good audience throughout the meeting. The interest seemed to get better at the very close of the meeting, two persons obeying their Lord in baptism on the morning Bro. Godwin left. The brethren were very much edified."

J. B. Davis, Homer, La., writes: "Including the fourth Sunday in July, and the first in August, I held a meeting in Union Parish, five or six miles east of Farmersville, with twenty-four additions. Three others were kept away whose intention was to unite with us. When we had but two brethren last February, we now have a membership between forty-five and fifty, all brought about by one little note. To God we give the glory. Two additions at other places lately."

H. W. Baker, Franklinton, Ky., August 27, writes: Bro. Joe Harding is in a good meeting at Berea, Henry county, near this place. Has had thirty-six additions up to date. Will remain here over Lord's day. From here he goes to Texas to hold some meetings. He has created quite an interest in this community, and will long be remembered by the church and community here. May God's blessing be with him and his dear family, and may he live long to preach the gospel, is my earnest prayer."

G. C. Thigpen, Union Grove, Ala., August 25, writes: "Under the ministry of two young ministers from Mrs. Hill College, Lauderdale County, Alabama, the churches of this vicinity have been wonderfully blessed. The church at Union Grove was increased thirty-one—three from the Baptists, and three from the Methodists, and the rest from the world. They went from Union Grove to Bethel, where they had twenty-three additions. To God be all the glory. They are workmen that need not be ashamed."

B. W. Lauderdale, Coldwater, Miss., August 27, writes: "The annual protracted meeting at Thyatira, Tate County, Miss., closed last Sunday. Bro. E. G. Sewell did the preaching. Right well did he do his work. He is a workman that needeth not be ashamed. The people were charmed with the substance and manner of his discourses. They expected a great deal of him, but he fully met their expectation. He was complimented during the entire week with large and attentive audiences. Nor was his preaching without effect; twenty-five persons were added to the church by baptism, and six persons were restored to the fellowship. The church received a good share of attention. She was faithfully warned, exhorted and comforted. Bro. Sewell knows well how to teach the church. The brethren and people generally, will long remember with pleasure Bro. Sewell's visit to them; and I think he will remember with equal pleasure his acquaintance with them. He is now engaged in a meeting with the church at Antioch near Coldwater, Miss. I will write you results next week."

S. C. Alexander, Borden Springs, Ala., August 22, writes: "Last Wednesday closed a four day's meeting at New Bethel, and though only five souls became obedient to the truth, we feel built up, encouraged, strengthened. I have especial cause to rejoice, for I had the happiness of seeing my boy and girl buried with Christ in baptism. Oh! may the Lord enable me to fully appreciate the great blessing, and my dear ones, together with the other converts, hold out faithful to the end. Bro. Avery was our preacher, assisted by Bro. Gardner Wheeler. We have had bigger preachers here than Bro. Avery, but no better man. He is earnest and untiring, and deeply feels the responsibility of his position. Bro. Wheeler did not set out to make a preacher, but he has been a worker, and a faithful Bible reader, and it has come upon him unawares. He has now gone to assist Bro. Avery in another meeting, and having put his shoulder fully to the wheel, there will be no giving back with him. When I said we were about dead here, I excepted a few in my mind, and Bro. Wheeler was one of the few. I wish we had a few more like him in the church. The Bro. Edwards, who inquired as to the whereabouts of New Bethel, can find it in a half mile of Rowell's Station, on the East & West R. R. We will be glad to see him, or any other brother, and if he should come within the course of a few weeks it is likely that he will find a house to preach in. The lumber is on the ground, the contract is out for the building, and the neighbors are engaged with plows, picks and scrapes, in leveling off the spot where the old church stood. We are a poor people, and there are not so many members as some think, and those who live in the neighborhood have the work to do, such as hauling, hewing, piling lumber, etc., ready for the carpenters; and if brethren who live at a distance will be just as prompt with their subscription money as they are on crying shame on us who are trying to do something, we will soon have a house of worship."

W. R. Hughes, Bethel, Giles County, Tenn., writes: "Our meeting at Zion's Rest closed today. There were three who gladly received the word and were baptized. Bro. J. C. McQuiddy, of Columbia, Tenn., did the preaching. He was accompanied by his better half, whom we think a model Christian lady. We think there was much good accomplished by the meeting. The brethren have been greatly stirred up by the warnings, exhortations and encouragements they received to a more faithful discharge of their Christian duties. Bro. McQuiddy had good audiences most of the time, and much prejudice and misrepresentation has been removed. We were disappointed that Bros. Northcross and Smith were not with us during the meeting, but are satisfied that they have been laboring some where for the Master's cause. We expect them to continue their monthly appointments with us, which is on the third Lord's day. We desire in this to express our sincere thanks to the brethren at Rural Hill congregation for their liberality in sending Bro. McQuiddy among us. We hope they will continue to sound out the word through such mediums, and while the most of them are strangers to us and we may never meet them on earth, may we be permitted to strike hands with them on the other side of the river, beyond the stars, beyond the sun's set radiant glow."

W. B. Wright, Coopertown, Tenn., August 23, writes: "At the request of a sister living in Port Royal, Tenn., we stopped over at that place, Saturday night before the third Lord's day in this month, and preached to a very attentive audience, in the Methodist church. Port Royal is a little village, near the Robertson and Montgomery county line, on the banks of the Red River, thirteen miles from Clarksville. We were surprised to learn that many of the citizens there had never heard any of our brethren preach. Perhaps Bro. A. L. Johnson preached a few sermons there years ago. We promised to preach for them again next month. The third Lord's day and night we filled our regular appointment at Forest Hill, under favorable circumstances. Had one accession, a lady from the Baptists. She is the third to unite with the brethren at that place, this year, from the Baptists. The present outlook for the cause there is, we think, very good. If the brethren will only keep down dissensions and difficulties within, a triumph for the truth is certain. Monday night following, in company with Bro. J. W. Grant, we filled an appointment with the church at Oakland. This church is located seven miles from Clarksville, in the neighborhood of that faithful soldier of the cross, Wm. Killebrew. We had a very good audience and undivided attention. From all we could see and learn of this congregation, they seem to be doing good work for the Master's cause in that community."

W. H. Dixon, Petersburg, Tenn., August 14, writes: "I commenced a meeting at Booneville, Lincoln county, Tenn., second Lord's day in August. Preached in the grove, as there was some objection to us using the house. Our brethren have been using the house for some time, but at last it turns out that the work must stop in this house. I believe this will induce the brethren to build them a good house. I had good congregations and fine attention, but no one was induced to obey the Lord. I think, though, the efforts will not prove fruitless. We have a good cause, and it will prevail. Bro. H. F. Williams preached an excellent sermon for us. We closed on Wednesday."

W. T. Sandlin, Rock Creek, Ala., August 20, writes: "Embracing the first and second Lord's days in August, the church at Rock Creek, Ala., enjoyed a revival of unusual interest. The preaching was done mainly by F. B. Srygley, of Lebanon, Tennessee. He is a young man of good native ability, and from a child he has known the Scriptures. He speaks with much earnestness and force, and is so clear in the arrangement and presentation of his ideas, that the simplest-minded hearers easily understand him. J. H. Holbrook, of New River, Ala., and old father John Taylor, of Frankfort, Ala., were also in attendance most of the time, and aided much by prayers, exhortations, counsel, and occasional sermons. The immediate result of the meeting was twenty-five accessions to the faithful, all but two or three by immersion. Bro. Srygley is evangelist in Wilson county, Tennessee, whither he returned at the close of his meeting here. The good accomplished at Rock Creek is all the more creditable to him because it was his home congregation, right among those who had known him from infancy. The Lord bless him."

W. H. Carter, Dry Fork, Ky., August 20, writes: "We closed our meeting at Flippen, Ky. last Lord's day night. Immediate result, eleven added to the congregation; two from the Baptists, two from the Methodists, one from the united brethren, one from the world; and five by relation. Good congregations were in attendance day and night. Bro. Rogers assisted me in the meeting until Saturday, when he left to begin the meeting at Dry Fork. On Lord's day I preached a discourse on the Thief's care, at the conclusion of which, the Baptists feeling that their favorite refuge to escape baptism for the remission of sins had been captured, persuaded Prof. Franklin Taylor, a Baptist preacher, to reply at 4 p. m. Whereupon one of their members came forward while we were partaking of the emblems of the body and blood of our blessed Lord, to have the announcement made, and being overly excited or destitute of proper respect for the worship, went stalking down the aisle while thanks were being offered at the table. The appointment was made for 5 p. m. at our house, and for me to follow the Prof. with my discourse. We had quite an easy time exploring the Professor's arguments, at the conclusion of which we made a public challenge that if the Professor would affirm that the kingdom of Christ was established in the days of John the Baptist, we would meet him and deny it. To this he made no reply, and the future must develop whether he will or not. We are now at Dry Fork; congregations small, but growing. May the Lord bless our meeting."

J. M. Barnes, Montgomery, Ala., August 20, writes: "I am on my way to Mooresville. I have just closed a meeting at Highland Home; twenty-four additions. Have been troubled with sore throat. Bro. Jordan had a good meeting at Cross Roads; about twenty-four added. He is now at Farmersville. Bro. Price had a good meeting at Mt. Pleasant; nine added. He and Bro. Cawthorn are this week at Strata; four confessions last night. Sammy (Bro. J.) held the meeting at Pine-apple; four additions. Bros. Harrison and Wallace held meetings at Tucker's school house, Bargainer's school house, at Schell. Here Bro. H. took sick and had to come home. He could not fill his appointment at Andalusia. He was doing well when I left home. Bro. Cawthorn held a good meeting at Antioch, Monroe County; about eighteen added. Bro. Tom Gafford has held several good meetings. Bro. Harrison and others held a meeting near Shady Grove in Crenshaw county. You see our preachers are at work, and their faith are having good results. Bro. J. and I am to hold a meeting for Liberty the fifth Lord's day in this month. I will hold a meeting for Duthin first, and Mt. Ethel second Lord's day in September. I am now steaming in the hottest place I have found recently. I am in the setting room waiting for the train to get ready. Oh! how hot! — That dash means that I am now at Dr. Henry's; will go on to Mooresville this evening, and night week to Landersville, I guess. It is the 22nd of the month. Bro. Walter Henry stopped me as I was passing. I think I shall spend one day at Huntsville."

The silence of the soul speaks to God—Boswell.

ITEMS, PERSONALS, ETC.

Elder J. R. Graves, while preaching to one of the Baptist churches in Memphis, on Sunday, August 17, was paralyzed through his entire right side, and he is in a very critical condition.

Bro. Granville Lipscomb has closed his meeting at Leiper's Fork. Had about sixteen additions. He is now in a meeting at Compton's school-house, on the Granny White Pike, near this city. Fifteen additions up to Saturday.

Our readers should notice the advertisement of Messrs. Fillmore Bros. in another column. Their new church music book, "The Congregation," is just what is wanted by many churches, as it contains the cream of modern books, with a number of new songs, and is free from objectional hymns. Its cheapness will recommend it.

We note the death of Elder Jones Hartzell, of Iowa. He was one of the pioneers in the effort to return to Bible ways and work in religion; was a clear-headed, logical-minded man, and forcible preacher and writer. His life was spent chiefly in the northwest. He was about eighty years of age.

P. G. Potter, Dibrell, Tenn., August 25, writes: "Bro. Elijah Preston, of Woodbury, commenced a protracted meeting at Holcomb, nine miles north of McMinnville, Warren county, on Saturday before the third Lord's day in August, continuing seven days, with twenty-four additions—two from the Baptists, the balance from the world. The church was much edified. He is a workman that needs not to be ashamed."

J. B. A. Baxter, Talladega, Ala., writes: "The brethren met at Hopeful church in a protracted meeting, on Friday night before the second Lord's day in August. The meeting closed Monday night. Bro. W. J. Camp conducted the meeting. Three young men and two young ladies made the good confession and were baptized; also two Baptists joined, making seven accessions, the best order prevailed.

The Fanning Orphan School will be opened September 15th for reception of pupils. A few destitute orphans over twelve years of age of good health, will be received as pupils, to be supported by the school. Churches, charitably disposed persons and associations, may send destitute orphans at the rate of forty dollars per term of five months. Others, not destitute orphans, will be received subject in all respects to the same discipline and regulations, at fifty dollars per term of five months. The inmates of the school will be required to do the entire domestic work of the establishment except the cooking, they will in turn assist in this, so as to learn something of the most important accomplishment connected with this life; will be thoroughly taught in the elements of a good English education, and as practicable, will be taught to cut and make their clothes, and will be schooled in all work suitable for women to do, to prepare them for making a living. Having failed for the present to secure a suitable superintendent and manager, the school will be opened under the instruction of Miss Emma Page, with the advice and assistance of Mrs. C. Fanning and Prof. A. J. Fanning. Miss Page graduated at Hope Institute, under the supervision of Pres. T. Fanning and wife, and afterwards attended the Tennessee Normal School, Nashville. She has taught at Burritt College and other places, and has proved herself an excellent teacher and manager of children. In connection with this school, a day school for girls will be opened, in which pupils from the neighborhood will be received at the rate of $2.50 per month tuition. John H. Ewing, Secretary of Executive Committee.

HIGHLAND HOME MALE AND FEMALE INSTITUTE.

The next session of this school will open on October 13, continue seven scholastic months, and close April 24, 1885. We offer to the public a very mild climate, healthy locality, moral surroundings, a wide-awake school, and an active corps of teachers. Those of colder latitudes will find it both pleasant and profitable to their children to send them down among the pines, with freestone water to drink, and coarse sand to walk upon, and plenty of work to do. Terms very reasonable. Those desiring to teach or preach will find our school well suited to their wants. Send for our catalogue. Address, J. M. Barnes, president, S. Jordan, or M. L. Kirkpatrick, at Crenshaw County, Alabama.

W. C. Rallston, Union Hill, August 21, writes: "Bro. T. Talmage closed a meeting here last night of four discourses, which resulted in six additions—four by confession and baptism, and two from the Baptists. To the Lord be all the praise. Bro. Talmage is an able defender of the truth. He held the audience spell-bound with his black-board illustrations. We worship in a union meeting house. Any preaching brother desirous of helping us to further on the good work, will be kindly received by us."

GENERAL NEWS.

Among the other nominations made by the Georgia Democratic Convention, in a recent session, was that of the Hon. Nathan Barnett for Secretary of State. Mr. Barnett is ninety years old, and has held the office since 1842.—About one mile from Parmerville, Ohio, resides Austin Brady who has lost a number of his family in a singular manner. The last one was a baby, who, in company with her sister was playing some distance from the house. They got into a nest of black hornets, and both children were frightfully stung by the insects. Blood poisoning followed, causing the death of the baby. The body of the little girl was terribly swollen, but a rupture of the skin saved her life.—Eight men lost their lives in the attempt to extinguish a fire in the Buckbridge coal pit, Shamokin, P., last week. They were endeavoring to make a way from an adjoining mine though which water might be poured on the flames, when they were suffocated by the bad gas.—Albert S. Warner, President of the First National Bank of Albion, N. Y., is now reported as a defaulter to a large amount, and has disappeared. He was also trustee of a large estate valued at $4,000,000. It is uncertain as yet what sum the defalcations will reach, but stock speculation is known to be at the bottom of the defalcation.—Dr. Woodward, U. S. A., one of the physicians who attended on President Garfield, died in Philadelphia, last week.—Thieves entered the private study of Rev. Father Mollinger, Allegheny City, Pa., and robbed his safe of $4,000.—The manufactories of Lowell, Mass., will shut down a week, beginning with September 1st, by the reason of the accumulation of goods and low prices.—Fire ruined the elaborately carved Italian marble column of the Governor Morgan Mausoleum, in Cedar Hill Cemetery, Hartford, Conn. It originated in the work house built about the unfinished shaft. Loss, $15,000.

FOREIGN.—According to a dispatch from Madrid, a terrible plague of locusts has visited Central Spain. The damage to crops about Ciudad Real is placed at $10,000,000. The Rt. Hon. Odo William Leopold Russell Baron Amphil, the British ambassador at Berlin, and who was at one time an attaché of the British Legation in Washington, died on the 18th, at the age 55 years, thirty-five of which he had spent in the diplomatic service.—War has begun between France and China, on August 24th the Foo-chow arsenal was destroyed after three hours bombardment by Admiral Courbet's squadron; seven Chinese gunboats were sunk, and two escaped. The European settlement was undisturbed.—A fire has been raging for three days in Ravva, a town of Austrian Galicia. Three hundred houses have been destroyed and three thousand persons rendered homeless.—An ultimatum has been sent to the Rajah of Tenon, demanding the release within a fortnight of the crew of the British steam ship Nisero, whom the Rajah has held in captivity ever since the vessel was wrecked on his coast last November.

THYATIRA, MISSISSIPPI.

We began a meeting with the brethren at this place Lord's day, August 17th, being the third Lord's day. This place is in Tate County, and about sixteen or eighteen miles from Cold Water Depot, on the Mississippi & Tennessee R. R. The congregation at Thyatira is large, numbering now something over two hundred members, and is one of the oldest, if not the oldest, in North Mississippi. It was organized more than forty years ago, and a large number of disciples have moved out from this congregation into other sections, have built up the cause elsewhere. In this way they have sent out much light into other sections of country. We learn also that the original members of this congregation were mostly from the congregation at Cathey's Creek, of Maury County, Tennessee, and that congregation may well be thankful for such a daughter. Thus the light of heaven's truth is growing and spreading. There are doubtless many congregations elsewhere that may trace their origin to Thyatira, Mississippi, by members that have gone out from there, and doubtless many more will rise from the same source, if they continue faithful. A fair proportion of the members meet every Lord's day to worship the Lord, also carry on Sunday-school, and are thus exerting a very fine influence upon the community. And this influence will abound more and more if the members continue faithful to the trust the Lord has confided to them.

This congregation and three others in this part of Mississippi, employ Bro. B. W. Lauderdale, of Bailey Station, Tennessee, to labor all his time; to labor with them, and in the region round about. And Bro. Lauderdale is an industrious constant worker. In his rounds he preaches of nights in the week, at school-houses, or private houses, or any where he can get the people together, even a few of them, thus embracing all the little, as well as the large opportunities for doing good. And on fifth Lord's day he goes and holds meetings where he thinks good can be done. These brethren are fortunate in securing the labors of such a man as Bro. Lauderdale. He has the confidence of all, and is doing grand work. The congregation at Thyatira is made up of an industrious sort of people, being neither very rich nor very poor. Hence they are neither tormented with great possessions, nor annoyed by destitution. This class of people are everywhere the substantial and reliable ones to run the machinery of this world, and especially the church of God. Rich men may be, and by all means ought to be of great advantage to the church, but unfortunately not often are. These brethren have a large meeting-house, that was well filled throughout the meeting, and was filled overwhelming of nights, and nearly all seemed willing to hear the word of life. The meeting continued eight days, with interest unabated to the close. Up to Saturday night there were twenty-five confessions, all of whom had been baptized except two, and Bro. Lauderdale remained to preach there on fourth Lord's day and baptize them. There were some five or six reclaimed. One of the number baptized had been a Methodist preacher. But having learned the way of the Lord more perfectly, he was ready when the meeting opened, and came forward and made confession at the close of the first sermon. We hope he will now preach the word of the Lord instead of Methodism. Most of the confessions were young people, and several of them were attendants at Sunday-school. We spent most of this day-time work on the practical work of the church, preaching at night on matters pertaining the conversion, and we are satisfied that much good was done besides the number of additions. But the number added was truly encouraging. We hope these brethren will persevere in well doing, and that a bright future is in reserve for them. E. G. S.

THERE'S DANGER IN THE TOWN.

There, John, hitch Dobbin to the post; come nearer and sit down;
Your mother wants to talk to you before you drive to town.
My hairs are gray, I soon shall be at rest within the grave;
Not long will mother pilot you o'er life's tempestuous wave.

I've watched o'er you from infancy, till now you are a man,
And I have ever loved you as a mother only can;
At morning and at evening I have prayed the God of love
To bless and guide my darling boy to the bright home above.

A mother's eye is searching, John, old age can't dim its sight,
When watching o'er an only son to see that he does right;
And very lately I have seen what has aroused my fears
And made my pillow hard at night—I moistened it with tears.

I've seen a light within your eye, upon your cheek a glow,
That told me you are in the road that leads to shame and woe;
Oh, John, don't turn away your head, and on my counsel frown,

Stay more upon the dear old farm, there's danger in the town.

Your father, John, is growing old, his days are nearly through,
O, he has labored very hard to save the farm for you;
But it will go to ruin soon, and poverty will frown,
If you keep hitching Dobbin up to drive into the town.

Your prospects for the future are very bright, my son,
Not many have your start in life when they are twenty-one;
Your star that shines so brightly now, in darkness will decline,
If you forget your mother's words and tarry at the wine.

Turn back again, my boy, in youth, and stay by the dear old farm;
The Lord of hosts will save you with his powerful right arm;
Not long will mother pilot you o'er life's tempestuous wave,
Then light her pathway with your love, down to the silent grave.

THE BLACK SILK DRESS.

It was a lovely morning in hazy, beautiful September, when a young wife of several months stood before the mirror of a cottage bureau, in a sweet little country home. This had been her bridal-chamber, and every nook and corner, with all their belongings, was dear to her, from the prettily carved walnut bedstead, with its snowy spread and pillows, to the comfortable little rocking-chair, with its equally pure looking tidy, tied on so daintily with bits of bright ribbon; and picture-overhung mantel, with quaint vases, filled with flowers from the little front yard, and two large, lovely china cups, with their broad delicate saucers. To the dear spot she had come after a week's absence—the regular Saturday evening home-coming of young married people, blessed enough to be so near, and as she stood preparing (rather adorning, surely not the preparation which is so needful to unite into the holy sanctity of communion with the Lord) for the weekly worship of saints, her heart was as happy, as free from care as the birds which warbled in the wide-spreading trees outside, except conscience would occasionally give it a prick or two, as she continued to robe herself in the new, black silk dress, with its dainty crepe lisse ruching and embroidered tie of the same sheeny material. Not that it was the finest silk she had ever seen, for her natural taste would have preferred it even finer, but it was a new, pretty dress, and her care was to look as well as possible. (I wonder if all brides don't feel the same way.) Deftly buttoning it up to the throat and giving her head a toss to see the effect of the tout ensemble, her scrutinizing glance discovered that the ruchings, basted in by careful loving fingers, though not exactly to her taste, did not project enough. Oh, me! her appearance would certainly be quite marred. With an expression of regret, almost impatience, she manifested her disapproval. Watchful eyes and ears, ever too willing to please her darling, took in the situation, and at once proposed remedying the mistake. Pride gained the mastery, (as is often, I might say always, the case when the world is upper most in our hearts,) and the ruchings were quickly adjusted to her fancy. But Ah! the look of pleasure soon gave way to one of dissatisfaction as the light summer hat was mounted (I say mounted, for it had never been jaunty enough to perch, but then it was the style) on her head, for it did not correspond with the season; so she thought herself of one—"just the very thing"—at a near cousin's. It was dispatched for immediately, and, after its arrival, on close inspection, proved to have not half so pretty a plume as the long, snowy one on the rejected hat.

"Dear me! if it were only on it."

It was only the work of a moment to displace one for the other; besides fastening it with pins was not as much harm as sewing it would have been: so our wearer tried to make herself believe, but way down in her heart she knew one was just as much harm as the other.

Reader, did you ever try to make yourself believe thing was right when you knew it was wrong? If so, you certainly will begin with your own mote before commencing to pluck at hers. Soon she was tripping out to meet her lover-husband, who gave her a glance of admiration as he handed her into the buggy, and as they drove off, whispered he had never seen her look so well. Now, for the time-being, there was a balm for the wounded conscience, for he, the embodiment of earthly perfection to her, and, I fear, more than she realized, the pope of her heart, commended consummation, though she was sure he wouldn't all the means, could then be much she couldn't yet divest herself of the idea there was no harm in it. We allow such little things to tip the beam to one side in the scale of right! And often we bring to nought a dozen sermons by a single act or word. The zealous young minister (for such was he) should boldly have protested against outward adorning as contrary to the word of God, yet practically the human nature, so common to us all, in him, wanted to see his wife "look well." There is a snare in "outward adorning" either to please ourselves, the world, our husbands, or any one else. The Bible statement is plain against pearls, or gold, braided hair, and costly array. Especially is the warning against showy, costly attire given to wives, even to those whose husbands are aliens, that they may win them by their godly lives. Let each of us please his neighbor," for his good to edification."

But we will stop moralizing and follow our little lady to the Lord's house the Sunday following the one we have given an account of. This time the white feather encircles a hat more to her taste than the other, a brand new one, which harmonizes more with the sermon and her shining dress. But lo! like all earthly pleasure, her enjoyment vanished like the snow-flakes on the river. And didst ever think, dear reader, that one day for us all, will come a sad ending to all joys based merely on earth? That night disease claimed her for his prey. The morning light dawned on a pale, suffering little face, and for weeks months, he kept a tight grasp on her. In her delirium she would cry out: "Oh! don't put that black silk dress on me," feeling, she said afterwards, as if its folds would burn her like fire. After many months of ceaseless watching,—

The life which hung for a moment
'Tween earth and Eternity wide,
Was given back, in pity,
To him who had made her his bride."

But now comes the picture truest to the human heart. A drive out under the broad canopy of heaven, through God's glorious sunlight, breathing the fresh, pure air of spring, influenced her to think she had strength enough to go to the house of worship, there to partake once more the emblems of the dying Jesus, and hear his word proclaimed. That morning the husband, prohibited from attending to his calling during her illness, had an appointment away from home, and could not enjoy the privilege which would have given them such pleasure—taking her himself. As it was, after a sad heartache and tears on her part to see him go away, she was conveyed by careful hands to the house of prayer.

That evening, in answer to his question, "What did you wear?" in shame was it spoken—

"My black silk dress."

"Why, darling, you almost raved about not wearing that dress when you were sick."

"Yes, dear, but I had nothing else to wear."

"Your calico wrappers were new and nice."

"Yes, but," came the honest answer, "I wanted to look better than that! I know no power but force could have put it on me while sick; but ah! how we change when we get well."

Now, dear readers, this is no idle imagination of the brain, but a true story. Have any of you ever experienced a similar temptation? If so, which won the victory, God or Satan? If the one, rejoice though it called forth such expressions as, "She is not stylish," "How plain she looks," "Don't you think she would look a great deal better if she 'fixed-up' more?" "Her hair is so plain, and I think ear-rings would be very becoming to her." If the other, be sorry though, "The prettiest creature I ever saw," "Isn't she just lovely?" "How becoming dress is to her," "I wish I had a dress and jewelry like hers," be showered upon you.

Will we, dear sisters, adorn our lives with good works and "the ornament of a meek and quiet spirit," which, in the sight of God, is of great price, or with the corrupting garments of sin?

L. B. H.

THE FEVERISH HAND.

It was a Monday morning and a rainy day at that. "Mother" was busy from the moment she sprang out of bed at the first sound of the rising bell. Others besides children get out of bed "on the wrong side," as this mother can testify. She began by thinking over all that lay before her. It made her "feel like flying!" Bridget would be cross, as it was rainy, there was a chance of company for lunch, so the parlor must be tidied, as well as dining-room swept, dishes washed, lamps trimmed, beds made, and children started for school. Her hands grew hot as she buttered bread for luncheons, waited on those who had to start early, and tried to pacify the little ones and Bridget.

"My dear, you're feverish," said her husband, as he held her busy hands a moment. "Let the work go and rest yourself—you'll find it pays."

"Just like a man!" thought the mother. "Why, I haven't time even for my prayers!" But the little woman had resolved that she would read a few verses before ten o'clock each day; so, standing by her bureau, she opened to the eighth chapter of Matthew and read these words: "And he touched her hand and the fever left her: and she arose and ministered unto them."

It seemed to that busy wife as if Jesus himself stood ready to heal her—to take the fever out of her hands, that she might minister wisely to her dear ones. The beds could wait till later in the day—the parlor might be a little disordered—she must feel his touch! She knelt and whispered: "My strength (not yours, child) is sufficient. . . . As thy days so shall thy strength be. . . . My yoke is easy (this yoke you have been galled by is the world's yoke, the yoke of public opinion or housewifely ambition), take My yoke upon you and learn of Me. . . . Ye shall find rest."

The day was no brighter, the work had still to be done; but the fever had left her, and all day she sang, "This God is our God, my Lord and my God."

It is true that, when the friends came to lunch, there had not been time to arrange the parlor, and no fancy dishes had been prepared for the table, but the hostess' heart was filled with love for them as members, with her, of Christ, and they went away hungering for such a realization of him as they saw she had.

"Ah," said her husband, when he held her hands once more, "I see you took my advice, dear; the fever is quite gone."

The wife hesitated—could she tell her secret? Was it not almost too sacred? Yet—it was the secret of the Lord (not hers) and would glorify him. Later on, when the two sat together, she told who had cured her fever, and said, quietly, "I see that there is a more important ministry than the housekeeping, though I don't mean to neglect that."

"Let us ask the Lord to keep hold of our hands," said her husband. "Mine grow feverish in eager money-making, as yours in too eager housekeeping."

This is no fancy sketch. Dear mothers, busy, anxious housekeepers, let us go again and again to him, that he may touch our hands lest they be feverish and so we cannot minister, in the highest sense, to those about us.—Hope Ledyard, in Exchange.

WHAT A BOY ACCOMPLISHED.

A boy who attends one of our Sunday-schools went out in the country the past summer to spend his vacation—a visit he had long looked forward to with pleasure. He went out to help the men harvest. One of the men was an inveterate swearer. The boy, having stood it as long as he could, said to the man, "Well, I guess I will go home to-morrow." The swearer, who had taken a great liking to him, said, "I thought you were going to stay all summer." "I was," said the boy, "but I can't stay where anybody swears so; one of us must go, so I will leave." The man felt the rebuke, and said, "If you will stay I won't swear," and he kept his word. Boys! take a bold stand for the right; throw your influence on the side of Christ, and you will sow the seed the harvest of which you will reap both in this world and that which is to come.—S. S. Visitor.

DR. DUNCAN'S

BLACKBERRY ELIXIR!

Nature's Great Remedy for Diseases and Affections of the Bowels.

This splendid and unfailing medicine is compounded from Blackberry and other Medical Roots and Herbs, is therefore perfectly harmless. It is pleasant and safe to the most delicate stomach. It is the most speedy and effectual medicine for the cures of all forms of Diarrhoea, in children or adults, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Dysentery, and the various Summer Complaints of the Bowels, so prevalent among all classes during the Summer season. Only one bottle (Price, 50 cents,) is sufficient to effect a cure.

DR. DUNCAN'S CHILL TONIC.

You need not Shake or Chill if you will use the Tonic. It never fails to stop the most aggravated forms of Chills and Fever if taken as directed, in from three to seven days, when Quinine and all other medicines fail. It will also, if taken regularly build and tone up the weak and debilitated system, and above all leaves no bad effects behind, as do so many other preparations.

DR. DUNCAN'S*Liver and Kidney Medicine.

The great preventive and cure of all malarial diseases and a sure cure of all forms of Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It acts directly upon the liver and all the secretory glands of the stomach and bowels, it cures the disease by removing the cause from the system that produces or brings on the disease, hence it is unsurpassed for the cure of Consumption, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, and also those symptoms indicating the want of proper action of those glands situated in the stomach and bowels. Two or three bottles of DR. DUNCAN'S LIVER AND KIDNEY MEDICINE is positively recommended to relieve and cure any of the above diseases if taken as directed. Price, 75 cents.

DUNCAN'S WORM SYRUP.

One bottle of this Syrup will completely expel all species of Worms and without injury to the child, as it contains no Calomel or other injurious substances. Again, it is pleasant to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, and therefore administered without trouble. Price, 25 cents.

LUTIE GRAPE VINES.

In offering this remarkable grape for sale, we wish to say to all grape growers that we have been growing and experimenting for these twenty years on different varieties, numbering a hundred or over, and so far have found nothing to equal the Lutie in all the essential qualities for profitable grape culture. We gave notice a year ago of this claim, and repeat it in this, that we challenge the world to show a better grape for this climate—hardier and thrifter in growth, free from rot, or finer in size or quality. But these are not its chief merits. It will produce more fruit at two years old, than any grape known to us can be made to produce in three. We challenge the test. If any have failed to see the Lutie in bearing, it is not our fault. We have invited all to come and see for themselves. Now, gentlemen of the vitus craft, come to taw, or clear the way for "Miss Lutie."

We offer well-rooted one year old vines of this grape at the following rates:

One vine, well-rooted, one year old,	$3 00
Two " " " " " "	5 00
Five " " " " " "	10 00
Twelve " " " " " "	20 00

Orders for Lutie vines will be received till our fall delivery, which will be November or until our present stock is exhausted, due notice of which will be given. From the number of orders coming in at this early day we cannot hope to be able to fill any spring orders at all. Therefore all desiring vines for the coming spring must order early and secure them this fall. Our fall delivery for city and country orders will be made at Nashville, on Saturday, November 1, 1884. Orders from a distance will be sent by mail or express, as desired. Money must be sent in by November 1, or paid on delivery of vines. Address

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fourteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for

(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen;
mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

T. B. LARIMORE, President.

will fully prove what we claim. Bear in mind, we sell strictly for cash, which enables us to offer the greatest inducements.

THE WILL AND THE WAY.

There's something I'd have you remember, boys,
To help in the battle of life.
'Twill give you strength in the time of need,
And help in the hour of strife.
Whenever there's something that should be done,
Don't be faint-hearted and say,
"Why use to try?" Remember, then,
That where there's a will there's a way.

There's many a failure for those who win,
But though at first they fail,
They try again and the earnest heart
Is sure at last to prevail.
Though the hill is rugged and hard to climb,
You can win the heights, I say,
If you make up your mind to reach the top,
For where there's a will there's a way.

The men who stand at the top are those Who never could bear defeat;
Their failures only made them strong
For the work they had to meet.
The will to do and the will to dare
Is what we want to-day;
What has been done can be done again,
For the will finds out the way.

—Selected.

THE WORLD, THE FLESH, AND THE DEVIL.

The world, the flesh and the devil are the recognized enemies of God, and of piety and holiness in the Lord. By the expression "the world," we understand the things of the world, worldly goods and possessions. Man's love for the things of this world is a great temptation to him to devote his energies and zeal to their accumulation. Some exertion in that direction is needful that we may have to supply our own wants, the wants of our families, and have to give to him that needeth. But wealth gives power and enables its possessor to command the approval and associations of the world's great, and to gratify the lusts, tastes, desires of the flesh, so it is apt to obtain the mastery over him and make a slave of him. The man who makes the gain of wealth the leading object of his life, cannot be a Christian. The service of God, his honor and glory, and the good of our fellow men, must stand first in the esteem and command the devotion and labors of every Christian. A man who gives himself to the service of getting wealth, has no time and soon loses taste for true Christian work, and for the worship of God. A man who has great wealth, and must look after its management, has no time and soon loses all taste for religious service, devotion and the interests of his fellowmen. The Savior said it is difficult for a rich man to enter heaven. One reason is his property leaves no time for him to prepare for heaven. It becomes his master. It is an exacting master, and demands his whole time, his constant care, and soon absorbs all of his affections and his interest. It weans away from God, from holiness, from the love of virtue, and destroys man's taste for the things of the Lord. Then the man who devotes his time to the gaining and caring for wealth, is his own great enemy. A man who encourages his child to devote itself to money making, is the greatest enemy that child has. He starts it in a road that leads onward and downward to eternal ruin.

Man ought to labor industriously, but he ought not to seek wealth as end, he ought not to set his affections on it. He ought not to cultivate the fleshly tastes, nor seek the associations of wealth, either for himself or his family. He ought to labor for means and hold his wealth wholly subservient to ends approved of God. Otherwise wealth is a curse and not a blessing. Wealth administers to the dominion of the flesh, by affording facilities and so offering temptations for its gratification. The dominion of the flesh consists in gratifying its demands, its appetites, its lusts, and its passions.

We may give the flesh rule in the simplest appetites when we let them obtain the mastery over us, when we live and labor and make their gratification the leading purpose of life. We give the flesh the rule when we give way to the light frivolities and vain fancies of life. The flesh rules when we make it a leading object of life to gratify the appetite for food, for drink, for stimulants or intoxicants of any description. When we give way to the gratification of the lusts, the flesh is master. When we give ourselves to pleasure seeking—to amusement, to entertain ourselves, the flesh rules. We can have but one master; if the flesh is our master, God is not.

One of the greatest evils of this day, is a disposition to gratify the flesh to have a good time, to amuse self. Children from infancy are taught this is right, are indulged and encouraged in these courses. Hence whatever gratifies the flesh that is not positively and directly immoral, must be tolerated and encouraged.

Self-denial is the essence of the religion of Christ. Self-denial, denying self present ease, indulgence and gratification, is the condition of success in life. Children ought to be schooled to deny self, to abjure present gratification. They ought to be taught that true happiness is not found in living only for the present, in gratifying self in seeking amusement and having a good time after the flesh. This is not the road to honor, success and happiness here any more than it is the road to heaven. People who try to amuse themselves all the time, or seek only amusement, are the least amused of all people in the world. Those who seek only for enjoyment and pleasure find the least of them. That class that seeks only for enjoyment, suffers most from ennui, from loneliness, from a purposeless and meaningless life, and even in youth fail to find what they seek, to say nothing of middle and old age.

The young man or the young lady that looks only to the ball-room, the theatre, the dance, the party to fun and frolic for pleasure, finds the hours at home dull, dreary, empty, meaningless. To make life an amusement, an enjoyment, is living on sweet-meats and confections. That amusements may amuse and recreate, we must live on the corn-bread of duty performed, of useful purposes and employments. Then there is recreation in rest, in diversion, in society. Then there is meaning in our lives, content and pleasure in all we do. Happiness, contentment, enjoyment be along this pathway, not that.

The mania for amusement and entertainment, and the failure of amusements and entertainments to amuse and entertain, causes many questionable means to be resorted to, to entertain. And in the demand for something that will entertain everything whose immediate results are not clearly seen to be immoral, is pressed into service. The device has qualities for entertainment above others, because it excites the lusts. Because the immediate results are not seen, young men and women because they must have entertainment, engage in the dance. Christian parents first wink at it, then tolerate it, then defend it, because their sons and daughters engage in it, despite the truth that three-fourths of the fallen women of our country are brought to their ruin through the dance. It is true, of course, that many go through the dance without danger of direct immorality, yet no woman can go through the handling and justling and excitements of the dance without having the purity of her feelings shocked, the blush of her womanly modesty hashed off never to be replaced.

And while our daughters, trained to self-content, with pride of character and position in society to shield them from criminal approach, and to sustain them in temptation will not fall, thousands not so well trained, impulsive by nature, and without the protection that arises from pride of position, are ruined. Have Christian men and women the right to lead others into practices that bring them to ruin? Ought fathers and mothers to tolerate such courses in their children that lead others to so direful ends?

It is through the seductions and allurements of the world, that we become the stones of the devil. They are his arts, artifices and means to enslave and ruin men. Under his seductive influences, the worship of God itself is transformed into a theatre for entertainment. A Sunday theatre for entertainment would be a more appropriate name for much of the church service than the worship of God. All the elements of true worship are banished and the services are maintained for the entertainment of the young. It is time Christians were examining the true elements of worship and if they would retain the idea of duty, usefulness, earnest self-denying service to God, and devotion in worship that a change was taking place in the training of children and services of the Lord's house.

The Fanning Orphan School will be opened September 15th for reception of pupils. A few destitute orphans over twelve years of age of good health, will be received as pupils, to be supported by the school. Churches, charitably disposed persons and associations, may send destitute orphans at the rate of forty dollars per term of five months. Others, not destitute orphans, will be received subject in all respects to the same discipline and regulations, at fifty dollars per term of five months. The inmates of the school will be required to do the entire domestic work of the establishment except the cooking, they will in turn assist in this, so as to learn something of the most important accomplishment connected with this life; will be thoroughly taught in the elements of a good English education, and as practicable, will be taught to cut and make their clothes, and will be schooled in all work suitable for women to do, to prepare them for making a living. Having failed for the present to secure a suitable superintendent and manager, the school will be opened under the instruction of Miss Emma Page, with the advice and assistance of Mrs. C. Fanning and Prof. A. J. Fanning. Miss Page graduated at Hope Institute, under the supervision of Pres. T. Fanning and wife, and afterwards attended the Tennessee Normal School, Nashville. She has taught at Burritt College and other places, and has proved herself an excellent teacher and manager of children. In connection with this school, a day school for girls will be opened, in which pupils from the neighborhood will be received at the rate of $2.50 per month tuition. John H. Ewing, Secretary of Executive Committee.

REPENTANCE.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: The ADVOCATE of the 20th inst. is to hand. Since I sent the books to the Indian Mission, I have sent another box of our periodicals, containing 650 copies, to our mission in San Antonio, Texas, to help that mission, to the care of David Pennington; making 1575 to the two stations. I have some tracts and papers left, if some brother in the territories will let me know of another station, I will send the remainder to that station; I have no use for them; I wish them to do good to the people.

I will now write my second essay on repentance. Repentance is not one work only, it comprehends a number of works, some of which I will specify. The first step in repentance is consideration. One of the Jewish prophets says, Turn, therefore, thus says the Lord God; consider your ways. This consideration is equal to faith, without which faith it is impossible to please God. Hebrew 11: 6. So that if a person repents without or before faith it does not please God, and that which does not please God is nothing. Then a man cannot repent of doing a thing before he believes the thing which he has done, to be wrong. A man traveling to a certain place will never turn 'round and go back until he believes he is going the wrong course. I have heard of preachers telling sinners not to pray before immersion; I never told a man not to pray in the sixty-seven years in which I have been speaking publicly. When a man is in deep distress about the salvation of his soul, you had as well forbid him not to breathe as not to pray; for he will be as sure to pray as a sick man is to sigh or groan, which is a relief to his feelings. What else is a poor, blind, ignorant sinner to do, than to pray to God to have mercy on him, who does not know whether he is on the road to hell or to heaven, and who would give the world to some person to tell him the way to heaven? I know this was my condition. I knew, by long and sad experience, that I could not save myself by all that I could do; my condition rather grew worse than better.

Look at the lives of every description for the want of consideration. To look at the majority of our race, they seem to have very little more thought of hereafter, than the beasts that perish. When a man has prayed and worked himself out of work as I did, then I will say to him as my father said to me in April, 1817. When he asked me if I did not profess to have a hope, I said yes; then said he to me, "Why tarriest thou? arise, and be immersed, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." Acts 22: 16. I did so, and he immersed me, and I have never repented of the deed since. I had a joy unspeakable and full of glory. I had a peace that passes all understanding. I was as calm and serene as a May morning. I was as happy as it is possible for a human being to be this side of heaven. I was unfit to live in this world of sin. I thought I should never sin again. Wesley, hymn, which says, "How happy are they, who their Savior obey," expressed my feelings the most completely, which I hope the reader will repeat, our people often sing. I advise and request every true penitent on earth to do as I did, "Arise, and be immersed, and wash away your sins," which cannot be done in any other way than by immersion. You will never see the Egyptian afterwards. Ex. 14. If I had never been immersed, and was a true penitent, I would not let the sun set over my head without immersion. If re-immersion is now necessary, what is to become of me and the other pioneers who have gone before me?

Second step in repentance is humiliation for sins. I have only room now to name the steps in repentance, the readers must supply the defects. Third step in repentance is hatred of sin. If the penitent could do it, he would undo all the wrong words and deeds he ever did. I would, to-day, undo all I have ever wrongly done. There are three words hard to say by poor proud mortals. I have sinned, I am wrong. Fourth step in repentance is confession of sin. Prov. 51: "Have mercy upon me, O God, have mercy on me." Luke 15, the prodigal son: "Father, I have sinned against heaven." "He that covers his sins shall not prosper; but whose confesses and forsakes his sins shall obtain mercy." Solomon. Fifth step in repentance is an ardent and earnest supplication of the mercy of God for the pardon of sin. Sixth step in repentance is a firm purpose to obey the gospel, which is to be immersed in order to the remission of sins, and if we are wrong in thus teaching humble penitent sinners to obey the gospel, we are in company with the immerser, (Matt. 3; Mark 1; Luke 3; John 1;) and with Christ, (Matt. 28: 19-20; Mark 16: 16; Luke 2: 21; John 20: 23;) and with the apostle, (Acts 2: 38; 3: 19; 5: 30; Acts 10: 48;) and in all the apostolic letters, and in company with all the apostolic fathers of the four first centuries, and with the founders of all the protestant sects, Luther, Calvin, Wesley, and with all the creeds of all the sects, and with the immortal John De Wickliffe, the morning star of the English reformation of the fourteenth century, and with the no less renowned William Hutchins, or Tyndall, the author of the common version of the Bible, both of whom were immersionists, and both of whom were equally learned and renowned with Luther and Calvin, and both of whom were honored with martyrdoms or its equivalent, and neither of whom are often mentioned by pædo-baptist writers because they were immersionists, and Luther and Calvin were sprinklers. They count us with the witnesses who lay concealed in all the countries of Europe before Luther and Calvin were born. The seventh step in repentance is the turning away from sin, with loathing and abhorrence as from the fangs of a serpent, as being offensive to God, and the cause of all the sufferings of the whole human race in time and to all eternity.

The language of all the divine writers is that of Ezekiel, "Repent and turn, or convert yourself from all your transgressions, so iniquity shall not be your ruin." Ezekiel 18: 30-31. Cast away from you all your transgressions where by you have transgressed; and make you a new heart and a new spirit: for why will you die, O home of Israel? I must leave what more I may say on repentance for another essay. God makes it the duty of the sinner to repent and turn to him, to make himself a new heart, for he has furnished all the means of doing it. This chapter and the 33rd chapter cured me of the syren song, "once in grace always in grace," which the devil first sung to Adam and Eve in the garden of delights, and which thousands have sung to their ruin to this day. It is restoration or ruin.

THE CHURCH A SCHOOL.

The church is the great training school of earth to fit men and women for service in the mansions of our Father's house. This service shall not be transient. It shall continue throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity. In the heavenly city none are ever taken on probation—none are ever permitted to enter who have not first thoroughly prepared in the school of earth. There is no other school in which this training can be acquired. Those, then, who would enter the eternal city, must first enter as meek and docile pupils, this same training school of earth, and receive instruction in the divine art of holy and happy living. Those who would know, yea realize the joys of heaven and the delights of paradise, must learn by experience the lessons of sadness and suffering here. Shall we, then, despise the plan by which our Father has seen fit to save men and women? To do so, is to mock him who created us and gives all we have. Yet we sometimes hear honest, earnest, upright people say: "I can be saved as well out of the church as in it. The church will save no one. If I live a good, moral, honest life, I will be safe; hence, I will do no such foolish thing as to join any church." But in answer to any such I must say with the poet,

"Mistaken souls that dream of heaven,
And make their empty boasts"—

Aye, mistaken they, truly, who would delude themselves with the thought that the Savior's mission to earth, that mission of pain, of suffering and of death, was all in vain. And mistaken they who, forgetting the supreme right of God to rule over the human family, or else totally ignoring his commands, held their own opinions as superior to the plain, positive and forcible teaching of God's word. "The church will save no one." True, but obedience to the laws of the Lord will.

Since much has been said about Christians, and since we are urging men and women to become Christians, perhaps it would be well for us to answer the question, What is it to be a Christian? To be a Christian is to be a follower of Christ—a servant of God. For us to be followers of Christ, is to make him our master, his commands our law, his precious promises the objects toward which our souls go out in fervent anticipation of the delights and glories to be revealed. Our Savior tells us that if we would be his disciples, we must take his yoke upon us and learn of him. And again, he says: "If any man will come after me, let him deny himself and take up his cross and follow me." Thus we see that to be a Christian implies that we do something.

We may be asked by some, What is lost by being a Christian? Many things. But their loss makes the loser all the richer. There are many indulgences which must be given up by the followers of the meek and lowly Lamb, but there is nothing forbidden in the Bible which if indulged in, will not, in the end, bring misery and woe. In doing our duty, we will not always be approved and applauded by the world. If we take a decided stand for Christ, we are sure to cross the path of some one. But we should not shrink back from dangers of this sort. Having once enlisted in the army of Prince Immanuel, we should never give the battle over, nor lay our armor down till we obtain our crown. The battles which the Christian will be called upon to fight will be fierce and hard, the privations which he will be called upon to endure will be sore indeed, the awful gulfs of gloom and worldly persecution through which they may be made to pass, will be, at times, shrouded in midnight darkness, but in the midst of all this conflict, there ever shines a light from the lamp of God's word, which gives the Christian soldier's the courage of veterans in this spiritual warfare.

The great apostle to the Gentiles in view of all the losses and sacrifices which he was called upon to make, says, "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present life are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." "Let no one think it strange that we must be tried with many and sore temptations." "The meek and the merciful, the holy and the mighty Son of God prepared himself for his great mission by entering into personal conflict with man's greatest foe. By his example, he has shown us that our whole life is a process of education. Every temptation resisted is a lesson learned in the divine art of holy and happy living. Every trial patiently borne is an accession of strength and joy to the soul. Every doubt dispelled gives brightness to the light with which faith scatters the gloom of unbelief. Every fetter of evil habit broken makes it easier to come forth into "the glorious light and liberty of the sons of God." "To be anything noble, true or happy, we must first learn to suffer and to do. To possess anything that will enrich and satisfy the soul, we must be combatants, toilers, conquerors." We can make our way out of the bondage to sin and satan only by enlisting in the army of the Lord. We can be prepared for the society of angels and the enjoyment of heavenly bliss only by being trained in our Lord's great school of earth—the church. SAM. R. LOGUE.

Morrison, Tenn.

It has been well said that when people begin to doubt, it means usually that they have lost faith in the faith of others. There is always among the masses of Christian people a large number of believers who do not rest their faith directly upon God's revelation of himself in the person of Jesus Christ, but who believe because others believe, and who lift their faith to God through the medium of their faith in those whose lives they admire or whose intellect they respect. If therefore one of those leaders of men should fail in purity of life or falter openly in his faith, the faith of those who relied upon him would be likely also to falter and fail.

There remaineth, therefore, a rest to the people of God. Now blessed be Paul for the word,—rest. It makes one feel like a child in the evening of a summer's day, and it makes one's death-bed as soft to think of as going to sleep.—Euthanasia.

LETTER FROM A METHODIST.

ELDER D. LIPSCOMB: My Dear Brother—Your criticism on my notice of a certain book, which appeared some weeks ago, demands an explanation. I hope that I am not trespassing too much in asking for the insertion of this article in your paper.

Passing by certain reflections upon the Methodist church, which cause me to flinch just a little, I must thank you for your kind remarks in reference to myself, and especially in reference to my father, whom all true Christians loved. Any man who utters a word in praise of my father, removes from my heart, as far as he is concerned, any bitterness that Satan may have placed there. So, you see, if there were any poisoned arrows in my quiver, they have been taken away.

You will bear in mind that my remarks were digressive, and were intended as a compliment, not as a slur or ironical. You express surprise in your editorial at my seeming rashness in saying, "I have many warm friends in the church, (church of the Disciples,) and rather than give them up, I'd let water baptism go." Convictions, as well as circumstances, alter cases. My standpoint is not yours: I am not responsible for your views, nor you for mine. Entertaining the opinions that you do on the subject of baptism, the rashness is very apparent; but to me, entertaining very different views as to the design of baptism, the rashness becomes invisible. If I am not mistaken, your baptism is an actual procurer of regeneration; my baptism is only a formal service which represents the spiritual cleaning of the heart. So when the question is put to me: "In the event that you must give up Christian friendship or water baptism, which will you surrender?" I answer with ten thousand voices, if I had them, "Take baptism!" My love for the brethren and their love for me outweighs any formula; it is the pabulum, the pendulum and the sacred penetralia of my every day life. You, in the surrender of water baptism, give up all your Christian possessions. I only surrender a beautiful service. Your baptism is your spiritual umbilical cord; my baptism is only the picture of the cord. Understand I do not propose, and did not propose, to give up my baptism only in the event that brotherly love would be sacrificed by retaining it. I am satisfied that Satan has found water baptism a very convenient club with which to maul the churches; and it seems to me that the club is bloody enough now to be washed by tears of regret and consecrated to other and holier uses. We may profitably ponder over such passages as these: "God is love; and he that dwelleth in love dwelleth in God, and God in him." "If a man say I love God and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, how can he love God whom he hath not seen?"

I do not question your sincerity in entertaining whatever views you may have on any subject. However, if I knew you personally, and it should come to my knowledge that you were not a good husband and father, and not in love and charity with your neighbors, your views whatever they might be, would not furnish me an iota of confidence in your piety. It is not the mere acceptance of a doctrine, but the living right that constitutes the true "Israelite indeed, in whom is no guile."

Here in my own field of labor I can boast of more than four-score of friends—members of the church of disciples. These I do not intend to give up even if I have to set aside water-baptism. I do not court or solicit any religious (?) falling out with them, and propose to continue in this love and charity to the end. In Nashville, the place of my birth and the home of my childhood, there are noble Christian men whom I hold in the highest esteem; and the fact that they are members of the church of the disciples does not separate them from me even a hair's breadth. We were boys together, went to school together, swam the river together, grew up together; and I hope that there is nothing in the religion of Jesus that will cause us to depart from each other.

You are afraid that the Young Men's Christian Association will disseminate false doctrine, and you would have your members to come out of it. I was not aware that the Association had a written creed except the Bible. If it can do away (which it is trying to do) with the asperity and bickerings in the church, it will have accomplished the great work of the age, and I, for one, will cry aloud: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant!"

The leaven of charity is now at work; for there is a growing disposition in the churches to give more attention to the saving of souls than to differences that are the mere creatures of private opinions. It will be a thing almost incredible to our grand-children that we had any contention over water baptism.

Now I hope that I do not bear the same relation to you, with like results, as David did to his enemies, when he said: "I am for peace, but when I speak they are for war." Let us shake hands under the cross and repeat together: "Let brotherly love continue!" WM. M. GREEN.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

On Saturday before the second Lord's day in August, I began a meeting with the church at Damascus, in Union county, in this State, which continued until Friday night of the following week, resulting in sixteen additions to that congregation by confessions, restorations, etc.; but the great good accomplished was the revival of the brethren and sisters. They seem to be infused with new life, inspired with new zeal and strengthened by a new determination to serve the Lord. Upon the whole it was a glorious meeting. For years I have been among those dear brethren and sisters, and the more I mingle among them the more closely I am drawn to them by the cords of Christian love. They enjoy the regular services of our dear Bro. Archer, of Baldwyn, whose praises are upon every tongue. May God bless them, that they may be faithful unto death, and at last live forever with the Lord—like Jesus, perfect, pure and happy.—[W. A. Crum, Ripley, September 15, 1884.]

The annual protracted meeting with the church at Antioch, Tate County, Miss., began last Sunday, August 24th. Bro. E. G. Sewell did the preaching. It is not necessary to say to the readers of the ADVOCATE that he did it well. In seven days he preached fourteen discourses, save one preached by the writer to give him a little rest. The brethren and people about Antioch were charmed with Bro. Sewell's manner of presenting the truth. The interest increased during the meeting. The meeting closed too soon, ought to have continued a week longer, but another appointment was already made and had to be met. Seven persons were baptized, and six persons added to the local body by commendation; three of them from the Baptists. Bro. Dr. W. N. McCain did the baptizing and in other ways assisted in the meeting. We were all glad to have Bro. J. B. Armor with us a few days during the meeting. He is the "village blacksmith" of Hickory Flat, Miss.—the man that hammers iron and talks Scripture. He looks as strong and vigorous as ever. Long may he live to serve the Master. Bro. Sewell went to Senatobia to-day to begin a protracted meeting there. I join him to-morrow, will write you results next week.—[B. W. Lauderdale, Coldwater, Miss., August 31, 1884.]

Bro. G. W. Archer, of Baldwyn, began a meeting at Good Springs, near Iuka, first Lord's day in August, and continued eight days. Bro. Archer presented the good word, and presented it well, but the fruits were left for a future harvest. The enemy on all sides guarded their fortress well, and kept most of the people of the community away from our meeting. But the people are catching a little now and then, here and there, and we are content to watch and wait, and work and pray, till the gospel, as the power of God unto salvation, may take the places in the hearts of the people that are now occupied by the wild, ungodly teachings and principles of men who take to themselves the right to change the truth of God into a lie, and lead the people in ways unknown and untaught by God, angels or men, till modern times. Many were besought during the meeting, with all the imprudence and slyness of Satanic power, to let this damnable heresy alone, and, for God's sake, to bring it not upon their children. I am now for a few days, in company with Bro. Dr. Vickry, my brother-in-law, at the Baptist meeting near Good Springs, which is being held mainly by Bro. Taylor, the principal Baptist preacher of these parts. When the sermon closes the old scenes of the backwoods of forty years ago, as Sam Jones, of Georgia, says, and which he so severely condemns, are carried out to perfection. Bro. Taylor said last night: "I do wonder if there is one here so very ignorant, and who knows so little of God's word, as to say that if you (sinner) are willing to believe, and do believe, you are not saved right where you are, right now." Bro. Taylor, in his last meeting in my neighborhood, where his flock is small, would not have anything to do with calling mourners to the anxious seat; but I find that where his people have the floor, he uses it in every conceivable way that I have ever seen employed. We have twenty members here at Good Springs. They are young in the cause, but are faithful and hopeful, and are determined that truth shall possess the land. On account of my bad health, I seldom try to preach yet.

LATER.—Since writing the above, Dr. Vickry and I were moved upon rather severely at the above named Baptist meeting, and finally resulted in a little collision, which collision resulted in partial arrangements for a discussion between the writer and Bro. Taylor.—[A. P. Kendrick.]

W. B. Wright, Coopertown, Tenn., August 25, writes: "At Sycamore Mills, Cheatham County, Tenn., the fourth Lord's day in this month, I preached a funeral sermon to a large and very attentive audience. One young lady made the good confession and was baptized the same hour of the day. The brethren there are hopeful of the cause in their midst. May the Lord bless and prosper his holy truth there and everywhere."

GENERAL CONVENTION!

ATTENTION DELEGATES!

The undersigned, having been appointed a committee on arrangements for the entertainments of delegates attending the General Christian Missionary Convention, the Foreign Christian Missionary Society, and the C. W. B. M., convening in this city October 20-24, would, on behalf of the Churches of Christ in St. Louis, extend a cordial invitation to the brethren and sisters from all parts of the Union to be our guests during the sitting of these several conventions, provided—

1. That they come in the interest of the mission work, for the purpose of attending the Conventions; and—

2. That they notify us, at least two weeks before the assembling of the Conventions, of their intention to be present, that we may arrange for their accommodation.

The committee will feel under no obligation to provide places of entertainment for those who fail to give notice of their coming. Those making application for entertainment will receive cards assigning them homes, with number and street, so that they may report there, without further direction. For convenience let all applications be addressed to W. E. Hall, pastor First Christian Church, Seventeenth and Olive, St. Louis.

A prompt compliance with this request, and a cheerful acceptance of the assignments made by the committee will not only oblige us who are to entertain you, but will tend to prevent confusion, and to promote the comfort and happiness of all. Other papers please copy.

DEBATE.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: Please announce through the ADVOCATE, that, at Flippin, Monroe County, Ky., on September 23rd, a religious discussion between Elder W. H. Carter, of the church of Christ, and Prof. T. F. Taylor, of the Missionary Baptist, will begin and continue four days. Propositions to be discussed are (1.) The Scriptures teach that baptism is in order to the remission of sins. W. H. Carter affirms. (2.) The Scriptures teach that the kingdom or church of Jesus Christ was established in the days of John the Baptist. T. F. Taylor affirms. AVERY HARLIN.

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview, Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

"Is it a sin to take advantage of a good thing, even if we borrow it from the denominations? Maj. Penn baptized seventy-seven persons at Waxahachie, and they went into the Baptist church. A large number of them are not excitable persons, and were not 'excited' into the church, many of them were good solid men, heads of families and men of sense. He reserved the three front seats for inquirers, and urged all he could to occupy them, and then preached to them. They felt that the address was personal, they felt free to ask any questions, they had no one at their elbow who would try to occupy their attention, and I believe that this much of Major Penn's work is worthy of imitation. What say you, brethren? Let us hear from you. Shall we practice it in our meetings? If not, why not?"—McPherson in Old Path Guide.

There he goes, State meeting to imitate Baptist conventions. Next, Maj. Penn's mourners bench works well, and Bro. McPherson wants to copy that. Never mind Penn, my brother, you fellow Christ. Instead of reading Penn, you read your New Testament, and be content to follow that. Cease this restless, wandering spirit; let us follow Christ. Now, my brother, what does your New Testament say about Penn's flagged seat experiment? Not a word. You say it worked well, though, and therefore you would adopt it. But the flagged seat is not all,—could you tell the death-bed yarns Penn tells? Could you pray for the mourners as he prays? Could you consent to frighten men and women up to the flagged seats as he does? If not, your flagged seats would prove a failure, even in a sectarian point of view. You have but one way scripturally, my brother. If you choose to be scriptural in your evangelistic work, you must preach the word. It is your business to sow the seed God gives you to sow; you are to sow it broadcast, into all hearts in your congregation. Some may fall by the wayside, others into stony places, and some into good ground. You are not responsible either for the ground or fruit, but for the sowing. Now, Bro. Mc., don't run off after Penn, nor Harrison, the boy preacher, nor any other sensational fellow, but stick to your Bible—follow Christ and the apostles. Don't get impatient; do your duty, and leave results with God. You, my dear brother, have had a terrible outpouring upon you from the State meeting spirit. You seem to have been thoroughly baptized into sectarianism. Turn now to the old paths again, and may the Lord direct you.

DEAR BRO. POE: Will you give your idea on the following queries: (1.) Has the preacher, who has been employed by a congregation, the right to call in question the unscriptural work of the elders? (2.) If so, has he the right to demand a retraction of their unscriptural work? (3.) If so, and the demand is made, and they refuse to rescind, and resign their eldership because the congregation refuses to uphold them, and refuse to meet with the brethren on Lord's day, and treat all their admonitions with contempt, under the circumstances what should be done? Would the elders resigning disorganize the congregation, and thus leave the congregation powerless? Would not they still be members of the congregation after their resignation, and be responsible to the congregation for their action?—Robert W. Floyd.

1. We think it the duty of an evangelist to preach the word—to give to all a portion in due season. He should cry aloud and spare not, and he should certainly "call in question" all unscriptural work, whether by the elders or any one else.

2. The elders resigning should not disorganize a congregation. They (the congregation) could appoint others and go on with the Lord's work.

3. "Would they not still be members, etc.?" Yes, until the church withdraws her fellowship. But just here is where we lack strength. The withdrawal of fellowship is not dreaded by the offender, because there is little, if any fellowship to withdraw. What is the fellowship? It is co-partnership in suffering, in sorrow, in joy, in everything. If we are sick, the brethren visit us; if hunger, they feed us; if naked, they clothe us, etc. This is the true fellowship of the church. Now where fellowship is withdrawn, it means that the church no longer gives these needed helps. Where the church enquires after her sick and destitute every Lord's day, and then makes all haste to help the needy, her fellowship is worth much, and all good men will desire to retain it, that they may, in the name of Christ, help the needy, and if necessary, find the same needed help themselves. Brethren, study these things, and do them, that we may make the church a great power for good.

DEAR BRO. POE: Your Bible Class interests me although I've asked no questions, and never before ventured a reply except in my own mind. I have seen no answer to Bro. Lauderdale's question, "What king had sixty daughters?" Rehobaam, the son of Solomon, had sixty daughters, but that can hardly be the answer he expects; for the king he mentions had twenty sons, whereas Rehobaam had twenty-eight. 2 Chron. 11: 21. Bro. Lauderdale asks what day is alluded to in Luke 23: 54-56, and John 19: 31, called "the Sabbath day?" I always thought it meant simply the seventh day of the week, not attaching any particular meaning to the parenthesis, "for that Sabbath day was an high day." The 23rd and 25th chapters of Leviticus tells about the different Jewish Sabbaths. The seventh day of the week or day of rest for man and beast. The seventh week or feast of Pentecost or wave-offering. The seventh month or feast of trumpets. The seventh year or Sabbath of rest to the land. The fiftieth year (seven times seven years) or Jubilee. The 16th chapter of Leviticus speaks of the scape-goat and mentions the tenth day of the seventh month or day of atonement as being "a Sabbath of rest." See verses 29-31. I am still at a loss as to which is alluded to, and will watch eagerly for the answer, as Bro. L. says "An answer to this question will throw light on the question, how long did Jesus lay in the grave?"

Methuselah was 187 years old when Lamech was born, and Lamech was 182 when Noah was born. Noah was 600 years old when the flood was upon the earth. Methuselah was therefore 969 when Noah was 600. Please tell me if you think Methuselah was drowned for his wickedness, as that was his age when he died.—[L. M. Mathuss, Savannah, Ga.]

We think he died just before the flood.

DEAR BRO. POE: From the State meeting, where I saw you for the first time, I went to Ezzell, Lavaca county. Here I tarried four days and preached eleven discourses, and baptized four. Thence to Hallettsville, the county seat, where I tarried one day and preached two discourses. Thence to Bethel, near Mineola, where I tarried nine days and delivered twenty discourses, resulting in seventeen additions in all; six by commendation, one reclaimed, three from the Baptists and seven from the world. To the Lord be all the praise.—[S. R. Ezzell, Greenville, Hunt County Texas, August 12, 1884.]

DEAR BRO. POE: I began a meeting at Morgan's school house on Friday night before the fourth Lord's day in June, and continued for thirteen nights and two Lord's days, with twenty-two additions to the church; six from the Baptists, one restored, fifteen baptized. Some of them Presbyterians and Methodists. The people were behind in their crops, but they would work and then fill the house at night, and after the meeting had run some days, would baptize at half hour by sun, then to the meeting house.—[A. C. Borden.]

"We clip the following from the News as having occurred at Dallas at the Confederate reunion. Was it intended as a religious act? then it was solemn mockery. If as an act of patriotism, then it was an insult to large numbers who were present. Did Gen. Gano stand godfather? 'At the conclusion of Gov. Hubbard's remarks Gen. L. M. Lewis baptized and consecrated the ten-months-old daughter of Col. and Mrs. C. G. Mitchell, to the reunion as its daughter. The little baby, whose name is Grace Rector Mitchell, was held in the arms of Gen. Cabell, while Gen. Lewis made a few prefatory remarks, giving the child to the soldiers, not as the daughter of the regiment, but as the daughter of all the regiments of the Confederacy. The little one bore her honors bravely, and was passed about from one to another, and was kissed and re-kissed, especially by the ladies.'—Texas Baptist Herald.

Bro. Gano was no doubt as much disgusted with this blasphemous performance as was all others present, who love the Lord, and respect, and revere his ordinances. This proceeding should forever debar any good Christian from joining again in this reunion. This is a copy from the grandmother of the church, which committed the sin. It will not be long until pædo-baptists will be one people, and ruled by one head—the Pope.

DEAR BRO. POE: In brief I give you the result of our meeting with the brethren at Diamond school house. Twenty-four added to the congregation. May the good Lord prosper his cause elsewhere for Christ's sake.—[Newton Field, St. Joe, Texas.]

"Brethren, report your meetings to the Guide."—McPherson.

Does that mean the same as reporting to the State meeting?

Bro. McPherson has just closed a meeting at Peatown, with fourteen baptisms. We had three from the Baptists, and one immersion, last week, in Smith county.

LAYING ON OF HANDS.

BRO. SEWELL: I have been a reader of the ADVOCATE for eight or ten years. During this time much has been said on ordination, especially the laying on of hands. I am desirous of saying a few words, and asking a few questions.

God has graciously established his kingdom on earth, and has commanded that elders be appointed. I regard this as being a very important matter, and should be done in the way that God has directed. For God is only honored by us when we do things in his way. If we do them in our own way, God is dishonored, and we commit sin. When I open my Bible to find how this is to be done, I find that they fasted, prayed, and laid their hands on them. When I pick up the ADVOCATE, I find that it is opposed to laying hands on in ordination. Certainly the ADVOCATE would not oppose this without knowing a better way. Now, as an evangelist, I understand that I am to do this work. (See Titus 1: 5.) I do not want to make a mistake. I do not want to be guilty of adding to, or taking from, the word of God. (See Rev. 22: 18-19.) Now, if I am not to appoint elders by fasting, prayer, and laying my hands on them, will you please give me the chapter and verse that tells me how to do it. Has God told us to do this and left us without instruction on the subject? If we are to quit laying on hands because spiritual gifts were sometimes conveyed in connection with it, should we not quit praying for the same reason? Is not laying on of hands a part of the doctrine of the New Testament? and can we not as well do away with baptism, the resurrection, etc.? (See Heb. 6: 1-2.) Now, Bro. Sewell, I am honest and sincere in this. I want to do God's work in God's way. And having confidence in you, have concluded to ask you to just refer me to the chapter and verse where persons were set apart in some other way than fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands. I want to please God in this, and not men.

Habits of Distinguished Men.

The habits of distinguished men in composing and speaking or in thought and the public utterance of their thoughts are instructive as well as eccentric and amusing. They show both the weak and strong side of our human nature. They show the power of habit in the strongest, no less than the weakest of the race, and the dominion it has over mind and body both. Habits also exhibit the superiority of mind over matter and how the human personal will, consciously or unconsciously, controls, and directs, and uses all things to realize a proposed end. Illustrative of some of these things is the following relating to the Rev John Pitcairn, formerly of "The Synod of Relief," a branch of the Presbyterian church in Scotland. The peculiar habit of Mr. Pitcairn is given by a venerable father, a man of no limited acquaintance with the ministry at home or abroad. Of Mr. Pitcairn he says: "He was, I have thought, the most finished pulpit orator to whom it was ever my privilege to listen." His "little peculiarities or habits" he gives as follows: "He always held a white pocket-handkerchief in his hand during the Sabbath service of his church. Of this habit all his hearers were aware, but they had been so accustomed to it that they scarcely noticed it, and very seldom if ever spoke of it. I can fancy now that I see him on a Sabbath morning with great dignity ascend the stairs into his pulpit and take his seat in it. There, having calmly looked around on the assembly before him, he would take from his pocket a white handkerchief, neatly folded up, and then seizing hold of one of its corners, he proceeded by means of a smart jerk, to shake it loose; and this handkerchief he held fast through the whole of the services. In all the movements of his right hand—and they were often quite numerous—during the time of worship the white handkerchief played its part. A gentleman, who was a great admirer of Mr. Pitcairn, and who seems to have been a frequent hearer of his, made the remark 'that the white handkerchief was, in fact, a part of Pitcairn himself when in the pulpit.'"

The same father gives the habit of the celebrated Baptist minister, Andrew Fuller. I quote from the Vermont Chronicle, of recent date: "It was not unusual for Fuller when preaching to take hold of a button of his coat and to twist it round and round until he had twisted it off, so that on Mondays it was no unusual employment for Mrs. Fuller to be engaged in sewing fresh buttons on her husband's Sunday coat."

He further says of Robert Hall, whom the Encyclopædia Britannica calls "one of the greatest of English pulpit orators," and whose self-control was so great that he was able to compose some of the most eloquent passages of his discourses writhing in agony on the floor. When this man of great eloquence and power "was preaching, especially if rather embarrassed, which was apt to be the case at the beginning of a discourse, the fingers of his left hand were busily engaged in fumbling with the leaves of the Bible before him; but as soon as he became warmed with his subject his fingers were set at liberty, having no longer to do with the leaves of the sacred volume."

Of F. D. Maurice, who "was before all things a preacher," though writer of the Theological Essays and the reputed author of the Broad Church movement, his memoir details even more remarkable eccentricities. "It was a very great relief to him to compose his books by dictation and to avoid the labor of mechanical writing. His usual manner of dictation was to sit with a pillow on his knees, hugged tightly in his arms, or to walk up and down the room, still clutching the pillow, or suddenly sitting down or standing before the fire, with the pillow still on his knees or under his left arm, to seize a poker and violently attack the fire, then to walk away from it to the furthest end of the room, return and poke violently at the fire, not unfrequently in complete unconsciousness of what he was doing, poking the whole contents of the fireplace through the bars into the fender. The habit of holding the pillow whenever he was engaged in excited talk dates from such early days that one of his undergraduate Cambridge friends used to say that a black horse-hair pillow, which he then had, always followed him about of itself. My mother, in his Guy's days, used to call such an one his 'black wile.' All the while he poured forth a continual stream of words."

Christ Above All.

One evening Charles Lamb had met some friends to talk together on literary topics, and in the course of conversation it occurred to them to speak of the probable effects on themselves if they could speak mouth to mouth with the great and wonderful dead. "Then followed," says one who was present, "something of this sort, 'Think,' said one, 'if Dante were to enter the room, what should we do? How should we meet the man who had trod the fiery pavement of the Inferno, whose eyes had pierced the twilight, and breathed the still, clear air of the mount of the Purgatorio, whose mind had contemplated the mysteries of glory in the highest heaven?' 'Or suppose,' said another, 'Shakespeare were to come?' 'Ah!' said Lamb, his whole face brightening, 'how I should fling my arms up! how we should welcome him, that king of thoughtful men!' 'And suppose,' said another, 'Christ were to enter?' The whole face and attitude of Lamb were in an instant changed. 'Of course,' he said, in a tone of deep solemnity, 'we should fall on our knees.'"

One cannot always be a hero, but one can always be a man.—Goethe.

REPORTS OF GOVERNMENT CHEMISTS

As to Purity and Wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder.

"I have tested a package of Royal Baking Powder, which I purchased in the open market, and find it composed of pure and wholesome ingredients. It is a cream of tartar powder of a high degree of merit, and does not contain either alum or phosphates, or other injurious substances. E. G. LOVE, Ph.D."

"It is a scientific fact that the Royal Baking Powder is absolutely pure. H. A. MOTT, Ph.D."

"I have examined a package of Royal Baking Powder, purchased by myself in the market. I find it entirely free from alum, terra alba, or any other injurious substance. HENRY MORTON, Ph.D., President of Stevens Institute of Technology."

"I have analyzed a package of Royal Baking Powder. The materials of which it is composed are pure and wholesome. S. DANA HAYES, State Assayer, Mass."

The Royal Baking Powder received the highest award over all competitors at the Vienna World's Exposition, 1873; at the Centennial, Philadelphia, 1876; at the American Institute, New York, and at State Fairs throughout the country.

No other article of human food has ever received such high, emphatic, and universal endorsement from eminent chemists, physicians, scientists, and Boards of Health all over the world.

NOTE—The above DIAGRAM illustrates the comparative worth of various Baking Powders, as shown by Chemical Analysis and experiments made by Prof. Schedler. A pound can of each powder was taken, the total leavening power or volume in each can calculated, the result being as indicated. This practical test for worth by Prof. Schedler only proves what every observant consumer of the Royal Baking Powder knows by practical experience, that, while it costs a few cents per pound more than ordinary kinds, it is far more economical, and, besides, affords the advantage of better work. A single trial of the Royal Baking Powder will convince any fair minded person of these facts.

* While the diagram shows some of the alum powders to be of a higher degree of strength than other powders ranked below them, it is not to be taken as indicating that they have any value. All alum powders, no matter how high their strength, are to be avoided as dangerous.

CHURCH ORDER AND COURTESY.

Bro. Browning, of Clark county, Kentucky, asks us what is right when persons, excluded by one congregation, apply for membership in another?

The voice of the congregation in withdrawing from a member, if it follows the divine law, is the voice of God. Indeed, it is the sin of the individual that separates him from God and from God's family. The church only announces the existence of the sin and declares the decree of God in the matter. To set aside a properly rendered withdrawal, is to set aside the law of God. When a person withdrawn from, for sin, desires restoration to the privileges of the family of God, the proper course is to confess that sin, indicate a true repentance from it, and receive the forgiveness of the congregation, and its prayers in behalf of the sinning one for the forgiveness of God. This is the law of restoration. "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed." (James 5: 16.) "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1: 9.) A restoration to the fellowship of the church, without a thorough repentance and hearty confession of the sin, would be a mockery of divine law. It would establish a formal outward show of union where there is no real and vital union. This can be restored only by a compliance from the heart with the divine law. Hearty confession means one that comes from the heart, that is full, free. A confession that is only partial, that is not freely and gladly made, is not acceptable to God. A confession that is forced out of a person, and made only so far as necessary to prevent a public withdrawal on the part of the church, that is grudgingly and partially made, is not an acceptable confession. The individual who has sinned is more interested in making the confession than any one else can be in having him make it. He ought to be more anxious to make it, than any one is for him to make it. He ought to be anxious to make a full, free, hearty, unreserved confession of his sins, that he may be freed from the sin. A sin, hidden and unconfessed, works ruin, is a spiritual poison and breeds death to the soul. "He that covereth his sins, shall not prosper; but whose confesseth and forsaketh them, shall have mercy." (Prov. 28: 13.) "I acknowledged my sin unto thee, and mine iniquity have I not hid. I said I will confess my transgressions unto the Lord, and thou forgavest the iniquity of my sin." (Psalm 32: 5.) No one is fit for restoration to the church of Christ, until he is anxious to make a full and hearty confession of his sins. Instead of persuading and begging men to make confession as a satisfaction to the church and friends, the sinner ought to be labored with to show him how much it is his interest, how anxious he ought to be, to make a full confession of his sins, that he may be freed from the corrupting and contaminating influence of that sin. To come back to the church with sins unconfessed, is to provide to live a life of hypocrisy.

But the question before us is, when one who has been excluded from the church for a sinful course, applies to a different congregation for membership, what is right? The only reason that one would apply to another congregation for membership, we take it, is one of these three: (1) He has moved away from the reach of the congregation that withdrew fellowship, and he repents of his sins, desires the fellowship of the church where he is, and asks the privilege of confessing his sins, receiving the forgiveness of the church and its prayers in his behalf, or (2) he desires restoration without repentance and confession, or (3) he thinks the church has declared him a sinner wrongly.

In this 1st case, it is better for him to return and make the confession to those who fully or best know the circumstances. If this is impracticable, then he should write. As many members write things not clearly, when he makes application to the church, the church should demand evidence that he was an accepted member whence he came. A letter, not of dismissal, but certifying this truth, is the scriptural manner of attesting this truth, when an individual goes among strangers. If he fails to furnish this, the church should write to the church whence he came, stating the facts; if he makes a confession, that confession, just as he makes it, should be written by the church. If it is acceptable to the church where the sin was committed, they so communicate to the church, and it receives him. Or if the confession is insufficient, the church states wherein, or makes a full statement of facts, and leaves the church where the application is made to see the law is complied with. The only object is, that the law be complied with that the sinner may be saved. Restoration to the church without compliance with the law, will not save. So the law is complied with, it matters not which church administered it. But there ought to be harmony among the churches in such cases. This can be procured only through communicating with each other.

The second case under which the application might be made, is, they seek restoration to church privileges and fellowship, without repentance, without confession. A church ought at once to promptly refuse to countenance such a person. To tolerate it, would be to lead the sinner forward in a sinful course, to his own ruin. That church would be the worst enemy that man ever had. It would lead him to death. It would be an indignity and insult to the sister church. It would be dishonor to God and defiance of his law, and would necessarily bring much hurt to the church guilty of such crimes.

Third, the person applies from a feeling that wrong has been done him by the church in the withdrawal. That this may be sometimes possible, is true. The probabilities are, more than a thousand to one, that it is not true. But if individuals of this or another church are satisfied that it is not true, it is proper for them to seek to secure a rectification of this judgment. If a church is satisfied it is not true, it is right to secure a rectification of the judgment. In a wrong decision, the church has violated the law of God, and the individual is injured. As in all wrongs done, the wrong-doer is worse injured than the sufferer of wrong, the church is much more injured than the individual who suffers the wrong. It is more important that the church be made to realize and turn from its wrongs, than that the individual be restored to his privileges. The correcting the wrong of the church corrects both wrongs. Those who think the church has done wrong, should try to show it this wrong. They can do it by approaching kindly the elders, or thoughtful and prudent members, and quietly endeavoring to show them the wrong. In doing this, if pursued in kindly spirit, the church will likely be shown its wrong, or will show the party it did right. If it is a flagrant case, or if the impression that the church has done wrong becomes widespread, it may be prudent for the church to ask other congregations to send prudent men to examine the facts, in order to satisfy the public. But a church should never surrender the right, or shirk the responsibility of administering the law of the Lord upon its own members. But for one congregation to assume the right to determine the action of another congregation unscriptural, upon the one-sided statement of the individual charged with sin, is an offence against the Scriptures of truth, common sense, justice, and the ordinary courtesies that obtain among men of the world. It must tend only to excite bitterness and ill-will between congregations, and destroy discipline and the authority of the Scriptures among Christians.

TRUE COURAGE.

When the Jews in Persia, under Ahasuerus, the king, were under sentence to be massacred on a certain day; Esther, the queen, was a Jew, but the king was ignorant of her nationality. Mordecai, her kinsman, had her warned of the danger to her nation and people. He admonished her that she had, in the providence of God, been brought to the throne that she might use her opportunities to save her people. The rule at the king's court was that if any one approached the king in his court, unbidden, he should be put to death, save him to whom the king would hold out the golden sceptre, that he may live. Esther had not been called into the king's presence for thirty days, and she had serious doubts whether she were in favor with the king, and hesitated to approach him, lest she should be put to death. At her hesitation Mordecai reminded her that, if she failed to do her duty, deliverance might come to the people of God through another source, but she and her father's house shall be destroyed. She, with true, heroic courage, determined to risk the king's displeasure, challenge death, make known her affinity to the despised and doomed race, and with true heroism share their fate, she reached the determination, and said, "I will go in unto the king, which is not according to law, and if I perish, I perish." Casting away her life for God's cause, she saved it; sharing the destiny of the oppressed, she became their deliverer; typical of Jesus Christ himself.

This shows how God requires true heroism in his followers. "He who loses his life for my sake shall save it unto life eternal." Then, too, it teaches this lesson: God frequently calls us to positions of trust and places us where, by true, heroic devotion to the right, we may save ourselves and the cause of God and humanity. If we fail to bravely meet the responsibilities of our position, God will find deliverance for his cause and his people, but we perish. D. L.

A TRIP TO CENTRAL KENTUCKY.

On Friday morning before the fourth Sunday in August, we left home for the purpose of holding a meeting at Forest Grove church, Clark county, Kentucky. We reached Winchester, Kentucky, about midnight on Friday night, and were met by Bro. J. W. Harding, father of Bro. J. A. Harding, our associate editor. We spent the remainder of the night at his home in Winchester. On the next morning he conveyed us five miles out to the meeting-house, where we met a fair audience for Saturday morning. We spoke to them morning and evening, but during the night suffered intensely from a bilious attack. It was, doubtless, the effect of riding on the cars, loss of sleep, together with change of water. By frequent use of a cold sitz-bath during the morning, we were able to speak both morning and night on Sunday, but we continued to suffer several days from the attack. We remained until Monday morning, September 1, and spoke seventeen times. Five young persons were baptized. We left too soon, but Bro. J. W. Harding would preach the following night, and we hoped would be encouraged to continue the meeting. We disliked to leave, but the necessity seemed imperative.

This is a congregation of good, earnest, intelligent and solid brethren and sisters, needing more personal activity. With their zeal and activity quickened, they would, doubtless, be felt for good in the community. It is a point at which some of our best and truest brethren have labored. Ben and Joseph Franklin have both held meetings here. They are true to the Bible order and faith, have no disposition to run after new things. Bro. J. A. Harding holds his membership with this congregation. They esteem him highly. We, including the congregation, his wife and parents, looked earnestly for him to put in his appearance during the meeting, but, to the disappointment of us all, he did not come. We were disappointed in not being with him. His father was with us all the time; his mother, the greater portion. They are a Christian couple, growing old gracefully and cheerfully, kind and considerate of the happiness of others, and friendly in their manners to all. Bro. Harding is about sixty years old, a man of great energy, and, though engaging frequently in other callings, is said to have baptized more people than almost any man in Central Kentucky. He has for a good while preached for this congregation, and seems to be loved by all of them.

Bro. J. A. Harding's wife fully shares his confidence in the Lord's promises to provide for those who trust and obey him. She willingly and cheerfully shares his self-denial. The wife, by the prolonged absence of the husband, frequently has the greater burden to bear.

The country is a good one; not the best grass lands, but good, strong, productive lands, abounding in fat cattle.

We were surprised as we approached the blue grass region, to see so many and so large fields of tobacco. It almost, in this, equals the Green River and other tobacco growing sections of the State. It seems almost desecration to see a land so productive in the rich blue grass, and the resulting fine cattle, horses and sheep, poisoned with a plant so vile as tobacco. But it pays, and what pays will be raised.

The brethren and sisters at this point maintain the character of the Blue Grass region for bountiful living and unstinted hospitality. They are good cooks, bountiful feeders, and themselves generous eaters. Fortunately for us, our illness in the beginning gave us full liberty to deny ourself, resist the temptations and importunities, and to eat only what we thought proper. So we left the country in better health than we reached it. It seems that bountiful and high living does not militate against health with those accustomed to it.

Bro. Bush, now in his ninetieth year, is active in body and mind, watchful, and with a constant and keen interest in the truth, was able to be at meeting much of the time, both night and day. Bro. Martin Vivian, in his seventieth year, is as quick in his movements as a boy, ready to maintain the truth against all opponents. He is a ready writer, as well as fluent talker. There are quite a number of young men in the church that ought to be trained into active participation in the work and worship of the church. As the young are trained, so they will walk when old. Every young member ought to be encouraged to take part in the work and worship of the church. If this was done, the church would never lack for persons to lead in the active work and worship of the church. This church is able and ought to send a man to preach to the destitute.

We stopped a few hours in Lexington. Called at the office of Apostolic Times, found entrance difficult; the office was literally crowded with boxes of new press and type. Bro. Cozine was busy arranging. We bothered him an hour in talking over matters and things connected with publishing papers. He has an advantage over others of us, as he is practically familiar with all the work of the office, and personally superintends it all. But we found him like all other publishers, deprecating the cutting of prices to drive out the weaker papers, and the effort in this way to absorb all in one strong one. We met Bro. Turner just home from Rocky Mountains looking after gold-mining interests. We met Bros. Grubbs and McGarvey, of the Bible College, both looking well, preparing for the opening of the Bible College. We met Bro. Shouse, the amiable and excellent teacher in the Broadway congregation. Bro. Cowden, the preacher of the first church, was introduced, but he was busy and we had no conversation with him. We saw our old college friend, J. B. Morton, druggist. Time deals gently with him.

We also spent several hours in Louisville; we visited the Guide office, but found no one except one of the clerks in. Bro. Francis, business manager, was gone to Cincinnati. It is now no violation of confidence, since the Guide has published that it has made a deed of trust, to say that the Guide publications must be sold to pay debts incurred in its publication. It has attempted to publish a paper at a price lower than such a paper can be published, and must now suffer the penalty. We are sorry it is in this condition. We have known all the while that this was true and the end must come. Although this effort and its boasting of success have injured us and other papers, still we sympathize with them in their trouble.

The Standard has had large pecuniary aid, and through the society has gained an extensive circulation. It makes large profit on its other publications and advertisements, so is able to publish the Standard at less than cost. It does this to drive other papers out of existence. The Guide attempted to compete with it, and although the Popular Hymns and the formation of new companies now and then aided it, it was not able to sustain itself. The Guide has of late been more friendly with the Standard than any other paper. It is singular that it should be the first victim of the Standard's policy.

The best way is to publish at a price at which the paper can be sustained. A meager support necessitates a poor paper. Not many publishers, but in their pride and anxiety to excel, will improve a paper as fast as they are able.

We had to await at Louisville until 1 o'clock in the morning. We concluded we would visit the exposition. The building, with its electric lights, makes a fine display at night, and there is a fine display of the business of Louisville. Except this we were disappointed in the collections

ANTIOCH, MISSISSIPPI.

On Lord's day, August 24, being the fourth Lord's day of the month, we began a meeting with the brethren at the above meeting-house, which is six miles east of Cold Water Depot, on the road from Cold Water toward Thyatira. This meeting house is in the midst of a good community. The congregation is not large, and to a considerable extent is made up of people who came originally from Middle Tennessee. Quite a number by the name of Pritchard, who came from South Harpeth many years ago, and a brother Wynn, who came from Wilson County. Bro. Dr. W. N. McCain resides in this neighborhood, and does considerable preaching in this section of country, and also practices medicine. Bro. McCain is a large, stout looking man, weighing from 225 to 240, and looks to be in excellent health. He is exerting a fine influence, as far as he is known, and is a fast friend to the GOSPEL ADVOCATE, and is doing much good by inducing many to take and read it. Such men are great blessings to any community. Bro. J. B. Armor, of Hickory Flat, about fifty miles from Antioch was with us a few days, who is an earnest good worker in the Lord's vineyard, and is striving hard to build up the cause in his place. He also works heartily for the circulation of the ADVOCATE in his section of country, and is thus spreading light and truth abroad, and edifying Christians.

The meeting continued day and night through the whole week, with good audiences all the time, and especially so at night, closing on Saturday night with the largest audience we have had during the meeting. The people seemed deeply interested in hearing the plain word of the Lord, and we think much good was accomplished through the truth. Here were seven baptized—one from the Baptists, one reclaimed, and six took membership, making fifteen in all, added to the congregation during the meeting. The brethren were very much encouraged during the meeting, the results being much greater than they anticipated, both as to the hearing we had, and also in the number of accessions. These brethren have it in their power to leaven that whole community in process of time, if they will so live as to allow the beauty of heaven's truth to shine out through their lives, so that others may see their good works, and thus be constrained to glorify their Father in heaven. We have not met anywhere a more truly hospitable and sociable people than we have found in the congregations of North Mississippi. They have about the usual amount of prejudice to contend with in this section of country, but the truth will prevail extensively if the brethren will only be faithful to the trust the Lord has given them. From Antioch we go to Senatobia, about six miles south of Cold Water to hold a meeting, which will wind up our North Mississippi tour for this time.

Obituaries.

Died, in Edgefield, on Tuesday, August 26, Nettie May, infant daughter of J. W. and Susan Alley, aged fifteen months and ten days. The Lord bless the sorrowing parents and sanctify this loss to their good. And when this affliction has had time to bring forth the peaceable fruit of righteousness, may they have "beauty for ashes," and rejoice more and more in hope of the glory of God.

"One by one they pass away." The subject of this brief notice, John W. Haynes was born October 28, 1834; was married to Sarah E. Snell February 11, 1857, and was baptized by the writer in the fall of 1882, since which time he rejoiced in the hope of eternal life. Bro. Haynes had a very bad tumor in the mouth, and went to Nashville and had it cut out, where he died on the 11th of July, 1884. His bereaved family have our sympathies. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord; they shall be made alive in the resurrection of the just." B. C. YOUNG.

Died, August 25th, 1884, at her home on Charles Creek, in Warren county, Abinida Lowry, consort of Maj. Wm. Lowry, who was so well and favorably known by all Christian preachers who visited this mountain district ten to thirty years back. They were great church workers, and loved dearly by their brethren. Sister Lowry was eighty-six years, three months and twenty-one days old. Had been sorely afflicted for years, but bore her afflictions with patience; however preferring to be absent from the body and be present with the Lord. She was buried at Salem church in the presence of a large circle of relatives and friends. She will ever be remembered by her brethren for her good work. It is said that she had been a member of the Christian church for fifty years. We hope to meet her in the land that is fairer than day. We sympathize with the sorrowing children. H. L. WALLING.

The angel of death has again visited the home of Jonas and Elizabeth Victoria Underwood, and has taken from them little Elizabeth Legrande, called by her relatives and friends little Daisey, and wafted her spirit to the unknown realms. She was aged one year, six months and twenty-two days. Little Daisey lived but a short while with earthly friends, but how sweet and consoling to our bereaved hearts to realize that Jesus has said "of such is the kingdom of heaven." She was a tender, sweet, and affectionate child; she was loved by all that knew her. Her sweet voice is greatly missed by her papa and mamma, and relatives. She was sick only a short while, and fell asleep in the arms of Jesus July 23, 1884, there to sweetly slumber until the dawning of the last lovely morn. Oh! what a consolation it should be to the dear parents of little Daisey, to think that though her little voice can no more be heard in their homes, she is now on the sunny shore of sweet deliverance with the dear Savior, and with her baby fingers sweeps her golden lyre, while she watches across the chilly stream waiting for papa, mamma and little brother. Yes, "in the sweet bye-and-bye," you will meet little Daisey if you will hold out to the end.

"Farewell, little Daisey,
It is hard to give you up,
But our heavenly Father
Doeth all things well."

His will be done, not ours. We pray thee, heavenly Father, to sustain these afflicted ones in their sad bereavement, and help them to be prepared to go from the house of the Lord to heaven. WILLIE B. BROWN.

HEREDITARY TOTAL DEPRAVITY.

"Behold, I was shapen in iniquity; and in sin did my mother conceive me." Psalms 51: 5. This text is often quoted to bolster up the above doctrine. Why do men teach a depraved nature; then ask that nature to perform a good work? Verily, a fountain of bitter water, does not send forth sweet water: then why ask or instruct a depraved man, to think a good thought, or do a good act? but we see this done all the same in the prayer system of remission, and mourners bench repentance. If total depravity be true, man cannot be saved, for that nature that is total, or wholly bad, cannot think a good thought, or do a good deed, cannot hear the gospel, weigh the evidence, believe and obey it; therefore, that which Christ died to establish for the saving of man, becomes of no benefit to him. The Savior said: "The seed is the word of God," and "That on the good ground are they, who in an honest and good heart having heard the word keep it, (obey it) and bring forth fruit with patience." But total depravity contradicts this and says, man is entirely bepraven, has no honest and good heart, and therefore, cannot receive the word as the Savior says. Pardon the digression, and assist us in finding the cause that brought the expression from the Psalmist, that he was "shapen in iniquity and conceived in sin" there is a cause for every effect, and David had a cause to bring about this expression: he was peculiarly situated in the chain that Christ was to descend from; therefore, let us examine his situation, then we can see clearly why he made this declaration. We find it all couched in the book of Ruth. Elimelech and family (Jews) was driven by a famine from Bethlehem Judah, down into the land of Moab, he had two sons who married they and their father all died while in Moab. Naomi, the wife of Elimelech, returned to her native land, bringing with her Ruth the wife of her son Mahlon.

There was a law in Israel when one died leaving no seed, the next nearest relative should take the wife of the deceased and raise up seed to the dead kinsman honor. Deut 15: 5-10. But if the women of the deceased was a heathen, (one not a Jew,) the sin of marrying outside of the nation, should be visited upon the third and fourth generations: hence the proverb: "The fathers eat sour grapes, and set the childrens teeth on edge." The father sins and the children suffer the penalty.

After Naomi and Ruth arrived in Bethlehem, Judah, it fell to the lot of one Boaz to take Ruth to wife, in order to perpetuate Mahlon's seed "That the name of the dead be not cut off from among his brethren." We find that "Boaz begat Obed, and Obed begat Jesse, and Jesse begat David." David being the fourth generation, the sin of Boaz, his great grandfather, marrying a Moabitess or heathen woman, had not run out, he could truthfully say he "was shapen in iniquity, and conceived in sin." None of David's children ever made the expression, neither could they.

Just here I am glad to say our blessed Master had Gentile blood in Him, and shed the same upon the cross for the remission of sins. Then dear reader if you are an alien from the commonwealth of Israel seek to have this blood applied to your guilty soul that when you come to quit the walks of men and leave this mournful vale you may be transported across the Jordan of death and land upon the happy banks of sweet deliverance.

CORRESPONDENCE.

My last report was made from Collins, in Drew county. I preached five discourses there to small but very attentive audiences. There were no additions, but several persons were almost persuaded to be Christians. While at this place, my headquarters were at the hospitable home of Mr. and Mrs. S. M. Courtney, and they know exactly how to make a poor preacher feel comfortable and happy while at their house. Mr. Courtney, being almost persuaded to be a Christian, wanted the ADVOCATE to preach for him until I could visit Collins again. The same is true of Mr. S. R. Bullock, who, in addition to subscribing for the ADVOCATE, kindly took me in a buggy and carried me to Tyro, thirty miles distant from Collins. While at Collins, I met Bro. J. W. McGuffey, of Phillips county. Bro. McGuffey came from Middle Tennessee, several years ago, and is said to be quite an efficient preacher for one of his age. He is quite young, and is physically able to do a vast deal of good, earnest preaching. I did not have the pleasure of hearing him preach. I was booked for a meeting at Troy, eight miles below Collins, but was detained at home by sickness in my family until it was too late to reach the appointment there. I met several members of that church, while at Collins, who informed me that the church was in a very bad condition, and that the meeting could not have resulted in much good under the circumstances. Several of them agreed to subscribe for the ADVOCATE, but only two of them did so. Bro. F. A. Bezoni preaches for the church there once a month, but thinks the present outlook very unfavorable. I reached Tyro in time to begin the meeting on the night of August 15. Continued over the night of August 18, preaching day and night to good and attentive audiences. There were three additions up to the time I left. Bro. Bezoni was to continue the meeting over the night of August 23, with good prospects for several more additions. At Tyro, I met Bro. Thos. Williams, who, though uneducated in the popular sense of the word, is at home in the gospel, and wields the sword of the Spirit with power and effectiveness. Bro. Williams is now laboring in connection with Bro. J. T. Young, who has been preaching during this year at Judson, in Ashley county; Gravel Ridge, in Drew county; and at Cornersville and another point near Star City, in Lincoln county. There were once flourishing churches at the last three points mentioned, but they were, for some reason unknown to me, allowed to go down, and Bro. Young has been trying to build them up again. Just how successful he has been, I cannot say, but I am informed that he is succeeding very well. Bro. Williams said he would furnish me some news items as soon as they got through with their meetings. The present financial outlook in all this section of country is exceedingly gloomy. Many of the farmers will not make more than corn enough to last them till Christmas, cotton is very sorry, and there is but very little money in the country now. Many men have told me they would like to take the ADVOCATE, but did not have the money to pay for it. Financial embarrassment among the farmers means financial embarrassment among all classes of men here.—[W. T. Breedlove, Pine Bluff, Ark.

The church at this place has meeting every Lord's day. The Sunday-school attendance is large and regular. All our appointments for preaching are well attended. The active membership however is small. Apple Grove church is eight miles from here. This is an old but small congregation. We held a protracted meeting there about four weeks ago; three men were baptized. One man united with this church from the Baptists in July when Bro. Winds was there. We held recently a meeting twelve miles from here, at a point in Marshall county, with five baptisms and two joined from the Baptists. Bro. Billy Harden, of Marshall County, Ala., has labored faithfully here a few months with five baptisms. The prospects for building a church are very good. I spent last week with the small congregation where Bro. Harden lives. Much sickness and death were great hindrances to our efforts. One young man was baptized. The brethren and all the people seem to love Bro. Harden very much. We learn also that Bro. Weaver is preaching and doing good further back in Marshall county. Bro. Weaver a few months ago came out of the Baptist church and joins us in our efforts to restore all things as they were at first taught by the apostles of our Lord.—[J. M. Joiner, Valhermoso Springs, Ala., August 23, 1884.

WHAT WILL BE THE END?

Christ says when he comes, it will be as it was before the flood. Eating, drinking, marrying and giving in marriage. The people from what Moses says seems to have been in a general spree of revelling and all sorts of wickedness. The flesh and the lusts thereof seemed to lead all but Noah. Now we have all sorts of reunions, conventions and picnics. All sorts of conventions—editorial conventions, political conventions, religious conventions, Sunday-school conventions, State meetings, district and county conventions, Christian conventions, county meetings, Sunday-school evangelists, etc. Though the Bible word evangelist is disgraced by its being tacked on to every thing not of God, and the word union is made to have no meaning by using it to every thing. Now while I wish to be courteous and liberal, I am no more ready to sanction the organ worship than baby sprinkling, nor will I cry peace till all come to Bible style. Following the religious conventions, we have bass ball, picnics, and dances, and croquet playing on the Lord's day, and so many reunions, tent meetings, etc., there is no time for the poor humble man of sorrows to come in. Oh! is he king and ruler in all our religious fumery. O, blessed Savior, come and save thine sect ones.

Robust Health

Is not always enjoyed by those who seem to possess it. The taint of corrupted blood may be secretly undermining the constitution. In time, the poison will certainly show its effects, and with all the more virulence the longer it has been allowed to permeate the system. Each pimple, sty, boil, skin disorder and sense of unnatural lassitude, or languor, is one of Nature's warnings of the consequences of neglect.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only remedy that can be relied upon, in all cases, to eradicate the taint of hereditary disease and the special corruptions of the blood. It is the only alternative that is sufficiently powerful to thoroughly cleanse the system of Scrofulous and Mercurial impurities and the pollution of Contagious Diseases. It also neutralizes the poisons left by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, and enables rapid recuperation from the enfeeblement and debility caused by these diseases.

Myriads of Cures

Achieved by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, in the past forty years, are attested, and there is no blood disease, at all possible of cure, that will not yield to it. Whatever the ailments of this class, and wherever found, from the scurvy of the Arctic circle to the "veldt-sores" of South Africa, this remedy has afforded health to the sufferers by whom it was employed. Druggists everywhere can cite numerous cases, within their personal knowledge, of remarkable cures wrought by it, where all other treatment had been unavailing. People will do well to than AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Numerous crude mixtures are offered to the public as "blood purifiers," which only allure the patient with the pretense of many cheap doses, and with which it is folly to experiment while disease is steadily becoming more deep-seated and difficult of cure. Some of these mixtures do much lasting harm. Bear in mind that the only medicine that can radically purify the vitiated blood is

CLIPPINGS AND COMMENTS.

BRO. COZINE: I closed a meeting at Antioch, Estill County, which resulted in three restored; eleven excluded; and charges were brought against fifty for disorderly conduct. Five of the fifty made acknowledgments for their wrongs and were forgiven. We left before the elders saw the other disorderly members, but we advised them to see them immediately and deal with them according to the law of the New Testament. Antioch is one of Bro. Joe. Harding's congregations that have been doing without a preacher. —[R. W. Stancill, Winston, Ky., August 8, 1884.

The above report would not need to be copied into this paper were it not for the statement that "Antioch is one of Bro. Joe Harding's congregations that has been doing without a preacher." In the first place it is a mistake about Antioch's being "one of Bro. Joe, Harding's congregations." Bro. Joe was never at Antioch, Estill County, in his life. Bro. Stancill evidently has the editor of this department confounded with "Weeping Joe" who holds the "Halleluiah Meetings," and receives so many confessions.

In the second place a false impression might be made upon the readers of the Times, (from which we copy Bro. Stancill's report,) by so closely connecting the statements that "Charges were brought against fifty for disorderly conduct," and this is one of the congregations "that has been doing without a preacher." Doubtless Bro. Stancill designed to make the impression that if a congregation does without a preacher (that is, a hired pastor) it will as a natural consequence have a great many disorderly members.

Well, now for some of the facts concerning this Antioch congregation. It is an old church and for many years employed a preacher regularly. Instead of thriving it began to go from bad to worse. It was troubled by whisky-sellers, liars, drunkards, factionists and troublesome characters of almost every grade and hue. Finally money could not be raised to call a preacher for the next year, or at least it was not done; no preacher came, and the congregation ceased to meet. The meeting-house which was owned conjointly by the disciples and Baptists, had been neglected until it was as miserable a place for meeting as I ever saw.

About this time one of the members invited me to come over and preach them a few discourses. I did so, and held them a meeting which lasted seven weeks, and resulted in one hundred and ten to the membership. The interest of the Baptists was then bought by the brethren and the meeting-house was repaired and improved until it was made the best church building in the county.

The congregation then began to meet every Lord's day, (a practice which was wholly unknown in all that country; for not even the congregation of disciples had ever met oftener than once per month,) and has continued to do so to this day. At first there was much opposition to this step, some claiming that it was unscriptural and wrong. But the brethren persevered until finally they had a larger regular attendance each Lord's day than they formerly did at their once a month preachings. The church has made a great effort to preserve a proper discipline, under greater difficulties, than any other church I know.

But Bro. Stancill is ready to ask, perhaps, how does it happen that there are fifty disorderly members in the church? If the doings of the members of the churches in Lexington were as well known by the officers, and as strictly considered, and as promptly reported, I doubt not that there would be three times fifty charges brought before the churches.

If members of the church at Antioch drink whisky to drunkenness, sell whisky, swear, habitually stay away from the meetings etc., the matter is talked about, investigated, reported. And this is more than can be said of many of the wealthy churches of the "blue grass region" though they have their hired preachers. The church at Antioch, eight years ago, was surrounded by one of the most ignorant, demoralized, depraved communities on the continent. It had more to do than any church I know of. It converted the whisky seller of the village, stopped the traffic, and has kept it down ever since. It started a Sunday-school and Lord's day meeting and has kept them up to this day in spite of the customs and examples of all the churches round about. Indeed, considering its surroundings and circumstances I believe the church has done more within the last eight years than any other one I know.

I have held them one meeting, (and sometimes two,) of from two to four weeks duration every year since I first visited them, and hence have had an excellent opportunity to know about their work.

The Paris church has a choir that has few equals in the State, if any. It is a pleasure to hear them sing. Prof. A. N. Gutzet is one of the best organists in the State. Prof. Sanders, the leader, is wise in his selections, and aided in his work by many good voices, no wonder the music is good. Miss Carrie Hanson, Mrs. Lizzie Walker and Miss Allie Sanders each have a good soprano voice, and Mrs. Laura Hanley and Miss Kirby White as alto have few equals. The church is one of the largest and neatest in the State, just beautified at a cost of some $2,500. Bro. Sweeny is doing a good work, preaching to a crowded house all the time. He has been here for fourteen years, and has rather a life call.

This clipping is from Bro. J. G. Perkins, "State Convention Briefs" in the Apostolic Times. The different conventions of the State were held with this church this year, and when I read this note from Bro. Perkins, I hastened to look through the newspaper reports to see if the organ had been used in the conventions. It was used by the Christian Women's Board of Missions, but not by the others. Our brethren who advocate the conventions are surely and steadily stepping along in the highway of progression. The organist, Prof. A. N. Gutzet, is not a member of the church, we conclude from Bro. Cozine's report; he calls him "Mr." Gutzet. Both of these brethren, Cozine and Perkins, speak in a very complimentary way of the music. I wonder if Bro. Perkins has gone over the line on this music question?

It seems quite evident that the preachers of the State who favor the conventions are drifting rapidly to the instrumental music side of the line; that is, those of them that have not gone over.

A custom is obtaining in our conventions in regard to which we are just a little skeptical. The establishment of a "Memorial Fund," to which one donates what he feels disposed or able to give, "in memory" of some loved one who has gone to the spirit land. Whether an aged saint or a sinless baby, the name and memory are "perpetuated" alike, by a gift of fifty or a hundred dollars. Not only this, but life memberships are taken by the living for loved ones who are dead. Just how dead people are to become life members, we don't exactly understand; but still, it is done all the same. We are opposed from principle, in our churches or anywhere else, to the raising of money by appealing to any feelings of the human heart, save the love of Christ alone. What we give should be given for the cause of Christ, prompted only by the love of Christ, and in the name of Christ. Beyond this we may not go.—Old Path Guide.

Just so; another wrinkle for raising money. After selling life memberships and life directorships comes in the "memorial fund." Who doubts that money is the god of this world? Who doubts that the preachers who run these conventions put their trust to a great extent in money. If we can get the money we can have the work done, they think. The money, the money, let us devise ways to get money. So they appeal to a man's pride for money. The honor of being a life director is a thing not to be despised by many; they then appeal to one's love for his dead mother, or children to open his purse-strings.

That in which a man trusts is his god; hence covetousness is idolatry.

I go to Fisherville, Jefferson county, Kentucky, to begin a meeting to-morrow, (D. V.) My correspondents can address me there.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

Robert Kirby, Marrowbone, Cumberland Co., Ky., August 21, writes: "On Saturday before the fourth Lord's day in last month, I went to my appointment at Sulphur and preached five discourses, and there were two added to the church, both by confession and baptism. On Tuesday when we met at the water to attend to the institution of baptism, Bro. Isaac T. Reneau came up on his way from Lafayette, Tenn., where he had been engaged in a meeting. Bro. Reneau is getting very old, though he is able to preach the gospel. He preached on last Lord's day in Turkey-neck Bend to a large congregation; had four additions by confession and baptism. May the good Lord bless him in his labor for the glory and honor of our blessed Redeemer. I went from Sulphur to Poplar Grove and preached three discourses; had no additions, but left a good impression; closed on account of trouble in the neighborhood caused by one man shooting and killing another man. I went from there to Irons Creek. I passed old Rock Springs in Clay County, Tenn., and preached three discourses and had two accessions by confession and baptism; then went on to Irons Creek, but found the church in bad order; one of the elders had been selling whisky. I had no success, only they confessed their faults one to another with the promise to do better in the future."

J. B. Inman, Henderson, Tenn., August 30, writes: "I have been engaged in four meetings during the last month. The first was at Crawford, Miss. There were six additions, four of which were by confession and baptism and two reclaimed, and I left almost the entire town investigating to see whether these things were so. I then preached four days in Henderson county to splendid audiences paying good attention, but no additions. Preached three days near home, but had to postpone the work on account of the sickness among the brethren. One addition from the Baptists. The last work was at Crockett's mills, which resulted in fifty-eight additions to the church with fine interest to the last."

Brown Godwin, Boston, Tenn., September 1, writes: "Our meeting at Chestnut Grove, Hickman County, commenced the fourth Lord's day in August, closed Friday night. Immersed seven. The brethren at this place are at work in good earnest. I hope they will continue to grow stronger in the good work of our Master. Bro. J. P. Litton is a member of this congregation; he was present and spoke once for us. Bro. Litton has not had the privilege of speaking much this summer, as his family has been very unwell. Have had a great many to ask me where he was. I hope he can get to work soon."

There is no refuge from God except in God.

ITEMS, PERSONALS, ETC.

Bro. Laramore, including fifth Sunday in August, preached eighteen discourses at South Harpeth, Davidson County, Tenn., with nine confessions and baptisms.

We publish in this number a response of W. M. Green, of Franklin, Tennessee, to our remarks on his letter to the Christian Advocate, in which he expressed a willingness to let water baptism go, rather than give up his friends in the "Disciples' church." We trust our readers will carefully read it, and remember it until next week, when we will have something to say in regard to it.

J. M. Joiner, Valhermoso Springs, Morgan Co., Ala., September 2, writes: "Our meeting has been going on here eleven days. Twenty-five have been baptized, eight others have confessed. Three baptized people from the denominations have joined us. Four have been restored to membership. Audiences very large, deep interest manifested; prospect seems good for others to obey the Lord."

W. H. Carter, Lafayette, Tenn., September 2, writes: "Preached at Bagdad last Saturday, Lord's day and night to small but attentive congregations. The brethren are making preparations to build a new house of worship. They know the surest way to get a house, and are working on that plan, i. e. to build it themselves. Bro. Rogers and I will hold them a protracted meeting beginning Saturday night before the fourth Lord's day in this month."

We call our readers' attention to our proposition to send the ADVOCATE from first of September to close of next volume, for $2.00. Do not wait two or three months, and then send in, expecting us to send from September. Act promptly in the matter, and we will send the numbers beginning with first of September, else we will begin when name is received. Remember, for three dollars we will send two copies, one of which must be to a new name.

W. A. Wilkerson writes from Robinson, Texas: "This is a small village about seven miles from Waco. We have two churches—Baptist and Presbyterian. There is much prejudice against the disciples here, who have no congregation in the neighborhood, though we have preaching once a month in a school-house about five miles from here. We need preachers. I think it would be a good idea for some of the preachers to emigrate from Tennessee, while so many of other classes are coming. I am from Lebanon, Tenn."

A. R. Kendrick, Corinth, Miss., August 31, writes: "Bro. E. Stephenson, colored, began a meeting near Corinth, Miss., and continued five days. Four were added during the meeting and a congregation organized. E. S. is the only colored preacher we have near us. He is doing some good work but is opposed by most of his people. Think we should give more aid to our colored preachers. E. S. lives with me, and has for a number of years. I took him at his a b c's. He is now a good average preacher and defender of the truth."

H. W. Baker, Franklinton, Ky., August 27, writes: "Bro. Jo. Harding is in a good meeting at Berea, near this place, Henry county, with thirty-six additions to date; will remain here over Lord's day. From here he goes to Texas to hold some meetings. He has created quite an interest in this community, and will long be remembered by the church and community here. May God's blessing be with him and his dear family, and may he live long to preach the gospel is my earnest prayer." Since the above, Bro. Harding writes he closed with forty-two added.

HIGHLAND HOME MALE AND FEMALE INSTITUTE.

The next session of this school will open on October 13, continue seven scholastic months, and close April 24, 1885. We offer to the public a very mild climate, healthy locality, moral surroundings, a wide-awake school, and an active corps of teachers. Those of colder latitudes will find it both pleasant and profitable to their children to send them down among the pines, with freestone water to drink, and coarse sand to walk upon, and plenty of work to do. Terms very reasonable. Those desiring to teach or preach will find our school well suited to their wants. Send for our catalogue. Address, J. M. Barnes, president, S. Jordan, or M. L. Kirkpatrick, at Argus, Crenshaw County, Alabama.

Bro. McQuiddy earnestly denies having depreciated the ADVOCATE, and demands the names of those who said he had. We, of course, cannot give these, as we do not propose to involve them in an unpleasant controversy with Bro. McQuiddy, as his demand for their names shows he would do. Because he must see, that what they call running down, he might not so call. Hence we give him full credit for not intending to do it. While we cannot doubt, when persons, we are wholly unacquainted with, and unsolicited, write that he induced them, by depreciating the ADVOCATE in contrast with the Guide, to quit the ADVOCATE and take the Guide, and that they are sorry for the change, we are constrained to believe there is some ground for it. But in reference to the matter we have not the least feeling, and mentioned it because we believed the mention would correct and prevent the growth of worse feelings.

Bro. D. M. Breaker, of Madisonville, Ky., writes: "On the third Lord's day in August, I visited Manitou, a station on the railroad from this point to Providence, and preached two sermons. By request of the people the meeting was continued through the week. The services were held at first in the school-house, but this being entirely too small to accommodate the crowds who came, we moved into the tobacco factory. Eight persons made the good confession, seven of whom I baptized on the following Sunday afternoon—the remaining one not being ready. On Sunday night, Bro. Thos. H. Smith, who has been preaching at Manitou for about a year, being present, we organized a congregation of twelve members, to whom the seven baptized were added. The congregation is composed of excellent material, and there is reason to believe they will succeed well. Arrangements are already on foot to build a neat and commodious house of worship. I regret that I could not remain longer on account of previous appointments, as there might have been much more good done."

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We propose to send it one year to two subscribers, one of which must be a new one, for three dollars. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

ALL THE CHILDREN.

I suppose if all the children
Who have lived through the ages long
Were collected and inspected,
They would make a wondrous throng.
Oh, the babble of the Babel!
Oh, the flutter and the fuss!
To begin with Cain and Abel,
And to finish up with us.

Think of the men and women
Who are now and who have been—
Every nation since creation
That this world of ours has seen.
And of all of them, not any
But was a baby small:
While of children, oh, how many Have grown up at all!

Some have never laughed nor spoken,
Never used their rosy feet;
Some have even flown to heaven
Ere they have known earth was sweet:
And, indeed, I wonder whether,
If we reckon every birth,
And bring such a flock together,
There is room for them on earth.

Who will wash their smiling faces?
Who their saucy ears will box?
Who will dress them, and caress them?
Who will darn their little socks?
Where are arms enough to hold them?
Hands to pat each shining head?
Who will praise them? Who will scold them?
Who will rock them off to bed?

Little happy Christian children,
Little savage children too,
In all stages, of all ages
That our planet ever knew—
Little princes and princesses,
Little beggars wan and faint:
Some in very handsome dresses,
Naked some, bedaubed with paint.

Only think of the confusion
Such a motley crowd would make,
And the clatter of their chatter
And the things that they would break!
Oh, the babble of the Babel!
Oh the flutter and the fuss!
To begin with Cain and Abel,
And to finish up with us.

—The Welcome.

THE OLD PASTOR.

"Yes, things in the church is dull—all at a standstill, so to speak. Parson Miles ought to spur up a little."

Me and John was sitting on the porch Sabbath afternoon. He was smoking his pipe and looking over the Sunday paper, sometimes reading a bit to me which most always put me half asleep, as is natural enough when there's nothing to do to keep one awake. But I always get wide awake when he begins to talk, so when he said that I says to him:

"Well, I must say I'm getting tired of the same thing. Now, when I was over to Spencer-ville, where they've just got a new minister, there was so much going on and everything so lively. There was all the ladies fixing up the parsonage and everybody calling there, and presents, and the house-warming, dear me!—it all seemed to me so much good feeling—"

That's it," said John. "There's no feeling at all here. Parson Miles is a good enough man but he's slow—yes, rather slow. It sometimes comes over me, Maria" (and then John spoke lower, though whether it was in fear of being heard by the leaves that whispered in the apple tree that shades the porch or by the birds building their nest there, or by old Carlo that lay on the mat, is more than I can say, but there wa'n't nothing else to hear,) "that p'raps we need a change, though I wouldn't be the one to start the idea."

"No indeed," says I; "but still, he's been here a long time."

"Yes, and getting a little old. A younger man, now, would liven things up. We could pay him a better salary, and give him a good setting out. The church is well able to do it."

"There's no fault to be found with Bro. Miles, though!" says I, for I couldn't find it in my heart to hear him run down.

"Not a bit. It's only that—well—only that, p'raps—his usefulness here is at an end. What do you say, Maria, to us driving over to hear Parson Tuttle this evening just for a variety? He's more my style—beats and whacks away and wakes folks up."

"What?" says I. "Clear over to Radnor!" It was ten miles and more.

"Yes," says he. "I'll hitch up Prancer, and we can make it in an hour."

I seed he was a little restless, and rather liked the idea of a ride after the colt, so I made no objection. As we got near Radnor there were lots of folks on the way to church.

"Great many out for evening worship," says I. "Our folks don't turn out this well."

"Parson Tuttle's a man that draws," says John. "Keeps up the interest, you see!"

There was quite a crowd in the entry, and, as we was waiting for some one to show us to a seat, we over-heard a man say:

"You'll hear something worth hearing to-night. Mr. (I could not get hold of the name though I tried), is going to preach."

I was afraid John had set his heart on hearing Mr. Tuttle, but, as far as I was concerned, I didn't mind hearing a stranger, specially if he was like they said, for they were keeping right on:

"—He's a strong speaker, yes, strong—that's just the word. We're always glad when we get him on an exchange. Wonder is, a man like him's let stay so long in the country living. None of your hop-and-jump sort—don't waste no force hammering out sparks, but goes at it and drives in the truth square and solid, and there he clinches it!—that's the very word."

I could see the folks were expecting something a little more than common by the way they looked as they settled down into their seats. I was looking about a little, trying to see if anybody I knew was there, for I know a few of the Radnor folks, (though, what with running to Eliza Jane's or to Susan's, now they've married, and something or other always ailing with one or other of the children, and the work at home, it's a wonder I ever kept track of anything else,) and didn't look towards the pulpit at all till I heard the minister's voice, and then I almost jumped from my seat as I stared at him. Then I turned and stared at John and he stared at me.

It was Parson Miles as sure as you live!

If it hadn't'a' been in church I should a laughed right out to see John's blank look. But I sobered down, and then I couldn't help seeing how those people listened. It was very plain they considered Parson Miles no such small doings. And it set me to noticing him myself a good deal sharper than I had been doing of late. I tried to look at him and to listen to him as if I'd had been somebody else besides myself. I couldn't feel to say he was a very handsome man, but I made up my mind you don't often see a more earnest scholarly face than his.

Then I noticed the sprinkling of gray in his hair and beard, and somehow the tears would come into my eyes as I began thinking over the long years he had been among us. I couldn't think of a time of trouble or of joy when his face hadn't been good to see. I couldn't remember a time of sickness when he hadn't brought strength and comfort, and I could almost hear again how often his voice had seemed to bring down a beam of hope and faith as we stood by an open grave.

When he come to his text John gave me a little poke, for, if you'll believe me, it was the same we'd heard in the morning. But I had to confess to myself I hadn't listened much, for I'd got into a way of thinking. Brother Miles' sermons didn't edify me any longer. I thought to myself, though, that if I hadn't listened then I would now. And when I saw the man we'd heard in the entry give a little nod to the other man, once and a while, as much as to say, "Didn't I tell you so? That's one of his clinchers!" I actually began to feel a little bit scared wondering whether some of these Radnor folks mightn't take a notion to give our pastor a call.

I think John, as well as me, was a little proud to have folks know he was our minister when the handshaking came when meeting was out. And when some one congratulated him at hearing such preaching all the time he took it just exactly as if he'd always considered Mr. Miles the greatest preacher going.

We didn't speak a word for more'n half the way home, and then says John:

"I say, Maria, there's such a thing as going further and faring worse."

"Well," says I, "if that's what you mean we've been doing to-night. I think we've been faring just about the same."

"No," says he, "that isn't what I mean." And after a while he says: "Maria, how much bigger salary ought we to raise for a preacher?"

I was right up and down discouraged to hear him go back to that, for I'd been all the time hoping he'd been thinking pretty much as I had. But I didn't say anything for I've often seen it's no use to oppose John when he's worked up over a thing, but to try a quiet word or two afterward. He went on:

"Yes, it ought to be done. Things need stirring up, and I'm going to stir 'em." He jerked the lines so Prancer gave a jump. "That old parsonage wants lots of repairing. I'll talk to the men about it, and then couldn't some of you women folks see about new carpets and papering and things?"

I say yes, although there was a choking in my throat as I thought of doing it for folks I didn't care for, and it came right face to face before me the idea of our pastor going out to seek a home among strangers. I had a longing in my heart to do better by him and his than ever I'd done yet, and a feeling that he could do more for us now he was getting older than he could as a young man. But I didn't say anything, and, indeed John didn't give me any chance, for he kept right on, speaking louder and more excited:

"Yes, Maria, we'll set things humming—I'm blessed if we won't! We won't stop till we've done the thing up right, and then we'll wind up with a rousing house-warming—but it shall be for the old parson, Maria—and we'll let him know before we get through that he's worth ten times more to us than all the young ones that ever lived. Get up Prancer!"—Interior.

THE DUMB SPEAK.

The Springfield (Mass.) Republican gives the following: In a somewhat obscure corner of southeastern Connecticut, near the village of Mystic River, is a school where the deaf and dumb are taught to speak like hearing people and understand spoken words through the sense of sight. A very touching incident is told by the principle, Mr. Whipple, about a former pupil, a young woman who had graduated deaf and dumb from Dr. Peet's sign school in New York. She came to Prof. Whipple to learn articulation and lip reading. Through the aid of an ingenious alphabet (invented by the late Zerah C. Whipple), which pictures the organs of speech in the position they assume in producing audible sounds, this pupil was soon able to speak so as to be easily understood. One morning she brought her slate to Mr. Whipple with something written in this alphabet. On reading he found it to be the Lord's Prayer. Perceiving her agitation, he could scarcely restrain his emotion as he corrected the few unimportant errors and delicately returned it to her. The next morning she came exultingly to him, exclaiming, vocally, "I prayed last night with my voice." Her teacher then asked her if she had never prayed before. "Oh, yes," said she, "I have thought my prayers, but never spoke them before," and then she said, audibly, "My lips shall praise Thee, O God." "Attend to the voice of my supplication, O Lord," The enthusiasm and joy manifested by this young woman in her new-found power of speaking was shared in by her family and friends, who greatly rejoiced with her. We quote from a letter she wrote Prof. Whipple after she had returned home: "I shall never give up my speech for anything in the world. It is a great enjoyment to me, I assure you. My friends consider it a perfect wonder, and don't find it at all hard to understand me. Many smart and intelligent people think I have been restored to hearing. Is that not funny?"

BABY FREDDIE'S FAITH.

"Oh dear," sighed Lucy, "how I wish it would stop raining, so I can go to the skating rink to-morrow night."

Little Freddie, our four-year-old baby looked up from his play and said very earnestly: "Why don't you ask God to make it clear off? Then you can go."

"Perhaps I might," she answered somewhat shocked at the little one's saying.

No one thought more about it until Freddie was taken to bed at night. After he had said his usual prayer, he added in a pleading little voice: "Please, God, make it fair weather to-morrow, so sister Lucy can go to the skating rink."

In the morning it was indeed fair and beautiful and the little fellow greeted his sister joyously, saying, "I knew God would make it fair if we asked him."

As soon as we divorce love from the occupations of life, we find that labor degenerates into drudgery.—Whipple.

BURRITT COLLEGE,

Spencer, Tennessee.

This institution, chartered in 1848, has now been favorably known for more than thirty years, for its discipline, both as regards education and government. Located on the Cumberland Plateau, it is free from epidemics. The water is pure freestone and chalybeate. The breezes of Summer are delightful and invigorating, and the gales of winter not too severe. The College buildings, recently enlarged by the Christian Brotherhood of Tennessee, are sufficiently commodious to accommodate a large class of young Ladies and Gentlemen. Spencer is ten miles South-east of Manchester & McMinnville Railroad.

DR. DUNCAN'S

BLACKBERRY ELIXIR!

Nature's Great Remedy for Diseases and Affections of the Bowels.

This splendid and unfailing medicine is compounded from Blackberry and other Medical Roots and Herbs, is therefore perfectly harmless. It is pleasant and safe to the most delicate stomach. It is the most speedy and effectual medicine for the cures of all forms of Diarrhoea, in children or adults, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Dysentery, and the various Summer Complaints of the Bowels, so prevalent among all classes during the Summer season. Only one bottle (Price, 50 cents,) is sufficient to effect a cure.

DR. DUNCAN'S CHILL TONIC.

You need not Shake or Chill if you will use the Tonic. It never fails to stop the most aggravated forms of Chills and Fever if taken as directed, in from three to seven days, when Quinine and all other medicines fail. It will also, if taken regularly build and tone up the weak and debilitated system, and above all leaves no bad effects behind, as do so many other preparations.

DR. DUNCAN'S

Liver and Kidney Medicine.

The great preventive and cure of all malarial diseases and a sure cure of all forms of Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It acts directly upon the liver and all the secretory glands of the stomach and bowels, it cures the disease by removing the cause from the system that produces or brings on the disease, hence it is unsurpassed for the cure of Consumption, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, and also those symptoms indicating the want of proper action of those glands situated in the stomach and bowels. Two or three bottles of DR. DUNCAN'S LIVER AND KIDNEY MEDICINE is positively recommended to relieve and cure any of the above diseases if taken as directed. Price, 75 cents.

DUNCAN'S WORM SYRUP.

One bottle of this Syrup will completely expel all species of Worms and without injury to the child, as it contains no Calomel or other injurious substances. Again, it is pleasant to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, and therefore administered without trouble. Price, 25 cents.

LUTIE GRAPE VINES.

In offering this remarkable grape for sale, we wish to say to all grape growers that we have been growing and experimenting for these twenty years on different varieties, numbering a hundred or over, and so far have found nothing to equal the LUTIE in all the essential qualities for profitable grape culture. We gave notice a year ago of this claim, and repeat it in this, that we challenge the world to show a better grape for this climate—hardier and thrifter in growth, free from rot, or finer in size or quality. But these are not its chief merits. It will produce more fruit at two years old, than any grape known to us can be made to produce in three. We challenge the test. If any have failed to see the LUTIE in bearing, it is not our fault. We have invited all to come and see for themselves. Now, gentlemen of the vitis craft, come to taw, or clear the way for "Miss LUTIE."

We offer well-rooted one year old vines of this grape at the following rates:

One vine, well-rooted, one year old,	$3 00
Two " " " " " "	5 00
Five " " " " " "	10 00
Twelve " " " " " "	20 00

Orders for LUTIE vines will be received till our fall delivery, which will be November or until our present stock is exhausted, due notice of which will be given. From the number of orders coming in at this early day we cannot hope to be able to fill any spring orders at all. Therefore all desiring vines for the coming spring must order early and secure them this fall. Our fall delivery for city and country orders will be made at Nashville, on Saturday, November 1, 1884. Orders from a distance will be sent by mail or express, as desired. Money must be sent in by November 1, or paid on delivery of vines. Address

Mars Hill College.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fifteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for

(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen;
mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

T. B. LARIMORE, President.

HONESTY.

We have from time to time presented some thoughts on the necessity of Christians acting honestly, uprightly and justly,—that no Christian could gain wealth by injuring his fellow-man; that all wealth gained by deceiving others, holding out false hopes, and so inducing them to use their means as to injure them and benefit us, is unjustly, dishonestly gained. All injustice of this kind is dishonesty before God. It is dishonest to induce men to insure their lives under the hope of benefit to themselves, when we know, and they the most needy, that many of those who insure will pay out money and forfeit it. It is simply alluring those lacking in perseverance and energy and thrift, into a trap by which they will lose their little for the profit of the richer and more thrifty. It is wholly wrong in principle. It is wrong to take advantage of the instability of any one to cause him to injure himself that we may be benefitted. It is sinful to take advantage of his ignorance to induce him to do what will injure him and benefit us. It is sinful to take advantage of his necessity, to work on his fears, to excite his cupidity to induce a man to do anything that will injure him to benefit himself or others.

When we induce a hundred men to take a step being morally certain that a goodly portion of them will pay out money and lose it all, and that the others will be benefitted by their loss, we defraud them. The point that I wish to emphasize is that all such gains bring poverty and want and sorrow, and not competence. It is true, sometimes, God permits men by wicked ways, by unjust gain to grow rich and remain so as long as they live. But that success is not a blessing. Does any sane man believe Vanderbilt or Gould's property is a blessing to them? It is a source of harassment and cankering care, and unceasing trouble to them. The man out of debt, without ten dollars in the world, with plain wholesome food, comfortable clothing, and a conscience void of offense, enjoys a heaven of bliss compared to them. We think the exalted and honored ones of earth are particularly blessed. Does any one believe that the Czar of all the Russians is happy? He rules over more people than any other ruler. He lives in constant dread of the assassin. Was Garfield's elevation to the presidency a blessing to him? Gen. Sherman says "it was a year of hell to him." God frequently permits men to gain what they ardently desire and persistently seek, that it may curse them for seeking it. "When the wicked spring as the grass, and when all the workers of iniquity do flourish, it is that they shall be destroyed forever." Psalm 92 : 7.

Wealth improperly gained, and honor attained through turning aside from or neglecting our duties to God, are curses instead of blessings, and always bring want and poverty and shame and dishonor as the result. If they do not bring these in the life time of the person who does the wrong, still it brings no happiness to him and stores up a deeper wrath for his children.

"Wealth gotten by vanity shall be diminished, but he that gathereth by labor shall increase." Prov. 13 : 11. Again, "He that hasteth to be rich, hath an evil eye, and considereth not that poverty shall come upon him." Prov. 28 : 22. "Hath an evil eye" means simply that he sees things wrongly, and is led into a way that brings poverty instead of wealth. Again Solomon says, "The blessing of the Lord, it maketh rich, and he addeth no sorrow with it." Prov. 10 : 22.

This clearly intimates that all riches that do not come as the blessing of the Lord bring sorrow. Not only is all wealth that comes as the result of misleading an individual, cheating him, taking advantage of his credulity or cupidity to get his money a curse, an injury, a means of poverty and sorrow to him who gets it, but using any advantage that we may possess of an individual to get from him more than is just and fair, is extortion, is injustice, is dishonesty; such gains never bring wealth without sorrow. We have known farmers that employed laborers, who because they had them in their power extorted exorbitant prices for provisions for their families, or use other advantages to defraud them. Such farmers are foregone failures. We recognize that produce, goods, labor, are worth just what they will bring in an open market. But when a merchant or farmer has the power and uses it, to extort large prices from one needy, he insures his own bankruptcy.

Professional men sometimes get individuals in their power and charge enormous prices. No man ever gained riches by such courses that remained with his family. The prices of labor of professional men are subject to the same laws as of other laboring men. The cost of preparing to do a work, the skill necessary in the performance, the laws of supply and demand govern the charges. But occasions frequently offer, which enable them to extort more than is just. Because a man is the only man in reach that can do a pressing work, it does not justify him in extorting an exorbitant price. If only one man in a community could shoe a horse, when a life may be suspended on the shoeing of the horse, he is not justified thereby in an excessive charge. To take advantage of the necessity to extort an excessive charge would be unjust.

If a physician has the only dose of medicine in reach that can save a man from death, it would be unjust to extort an excessive charge for that dose. If he has the only knowledge or skill that could save the life, it would be unjust to extort more than a fair compensation, taking into consideration time, means, labor in acquiring that knowledge. Yet it is frequently done. When Bro. Smithson was in his last sickness, when the skill of his physicians at home was exhausted without relief, he thought it possible a physician at a distance with character for skill, might suggest something that would help him. He telegraphed to know what he would charge him; it was two and a half or three hours ride on the cars; the response was, "Seventy-five dollars, if I can return same day; if I stay all night, one hundred and fifty dollars. Wealth gained in that way will curse the children and children's children.

We knew a lawyer, with less than two years experience at the bar, called upon to assist an older lawyer in maintaining a claim. Under the general direction of the older lawyer, he did the writing, took three or four depositions, made a speech in the Circuit Court, and one in the Supreme Court acknowledged the chief speech in the Circuit Court that gained the case, was made by the senior lawyer. The entire work could be done in one week if compressed together. He charged nine hundred and fifty dollars to the widow and orphans. The senior lawyer testified half the sum was a large fee. Two other old lawyers testified that two thousand dollars would be a moderate fee. Though themselves charged a wealthy client—the guilty party to the suit as the courts decided—only three hundred dollars for equal labor on the other side, and the courts allowed a fee of eight hundred and ninety dollars. The same lawyer charged the same widow and orphans one hundred dollars per day, and expenses paid, for examining Register's records to see what land was subject to the satisfaction of the debt. These lawyers will all die poor, or if not themselves, the deeper poverty will await their children.

Every dollar brought into a family by injustice, by wrong, by oppression of the helpless, will curse the family; and the longer it remains, the deeper the ruin it will work. God adjudicates these affairs. This is the portion of a wicked man with God, and the heritage of oppressors, which they shall receive of the Almighty. If his children be multiplied, it is for the sword, and his offspring shall not be satisfied with bread. * * * Though he heap up silver as the dust, and prepare raiment as the clay, he may prepare it, but the just shall put it on, and the innocent shall divide his silver." Job 27 : 13. And if, in this world, the judgment is passed over the sinner to his offspring, his judgment in the future is the more fearful still. "Go to now, ye rich men, weep and howl for your miseries that are come upon you; your riches are corrupted, your garments are moth eaten. Your gold and silver is cankered, and the rust of them shall be a witness against you, and shall eat your flesh as it were fire. Ye have heaped treasure together against the last days. * * * Ye have lived in pleasure in the earth and nourished your hearts as for the day of slaughter."

A truth that we are slow to realize, is that God reigns, rules, adjudicates in this world, and that every wrong is vindicated with unerring wisdom and faultless justice. It is not always immediately righted, but it is none the less surely. "He is not slack concerning his promises, as some men count slackness, but is long-suffering to usward, not willing that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance." "Because sentence against an evil work is not executed speedily, therefore the heart of the sons of men is fully set in them to do evil." Solomon. "But every transgression meets with its just recompense of reward."

Do you wish to feel the highest joy which God has given as the reward of work well done? Just go and perform that neglected task which you know you ought to perform, and which you can perform, but for which you have an apparently unconquerable aversion. It is pleasant to do work which one delights in doing; but that pleasure pales into insignificance before the greater joy which comes to a person who has manfully taken up a work which he does not like, but which he has carried out faithfully in spite of his dislikes for it. In that case, all the bitterness of its doing becomes changed, through God's alchemy, into the sweetness of conscious accomplishment.—S. S. Times.

REPENTANCE—No. 3.

Beginning this essay where I ended the last one, the next step which I shall name which is comprehended in repentance is restitution, "which means the act of returning or restoring to a person some thing, the right of which he has been unjustly deprived; as the restoration of ancient rights to the crown. Restoration is made by restoring a specific thing taken away or lost." Webster. The old law and the new law, or gospel, both teach the necessity of restoration. Nothing can be restored which was once found and then lost. I will simply refer to those Scriptures which teach restoration in the old law, first without citing them in full, as I have not room in this essay to cite in full; as your readers have Bibles they can read them.

On Genesis, 40th chapter, A. Clarke thus speaks on the conduct of Joseph's brethren: "No man should expect mercy at the hand of God, who, having wronged his neighbor, refuses, when he has it in his power, to make restitution; were he to weep tears of blood, both the justice and mercy of God would shut out his prayer, if he make not his neighbor amends for the injury he has done him. He is a dishonest man who illegally holds the property of another in his hands." The second instance in the law is found in Levit. 6: 1-7; Numbers 5: 7-8; Levit. 5: 16. In these passages the word restore occurs twice. Reparation was to be in all cases where injury had been done to the person, the property or character of another person. "No restitution, no repentance, provided restitution can be made." "And may I add," says Bro. A. Campbell, "that without repentance and restitution, when possible, there can be no remission."

To all the above, I most heartily subscribe. Let these examples suffice for the old law. We will now refer to some examples in the new law to show that the same principle of restitution is there enforced and taught. Matthew the third chapter, and Luke the third, "John the immerser taught the believing penitents to bring forth fruit meet for repentance." A phrase which can be understood in no other sense than those works which make amends to him who was injured in person, property and character by the act. And you will observe that I say believing penitent instead of penitent believer, as our writers speak; my phrase shows that I believe that faith is the cause of repentance, and their phrase shows that they believe that repentance is the cause of faith. How can a man have repentance towards God who does not believe in God? How can a man believe or disbelieve a thing which he never heard? How can an atheist disbelieve in a being he never heard of? Let him try it, if he believes he can do it. There is only one sun in the natural heavens which has given light to all the inhabitants of this earth for nearly six thousand years. And the moon and stars shine with a borrowed light. There is only one moral light in the moral heavens; the Bible alone, which has given all the moral light for nearly six thousand years, and beyond the light emitted from that Sun of Righteousness, not one ray of light has been emitted from the invisible world since John said, Amen! in 96. Christ said to him, (Matt. 5: 23-24.) "Be reconciled to your brother; first make the matter right with him, and then come and offer your gift. He that sins against his brother, sins against God." The case of the Ephesian magicians burning their magical books of incantation, by which they obtained their money, fifty thousand pieces of silver, fully illustrates the principle of restitution for which I plead.

I shall now try to make an application of this principle of restoration to the present state of Christendom. First, does not this principle of restoration, taught by Moses and Christ, require all system makers and creed makers to make a bonfire of their magical books of incantation, by which they have hoodwinked the people and made them believe that all these contradictory sects are authorized by the Spirit of God. Is it not high time the people were unbound and that these sectarian bandages were taken from their eyes? In what book, chapter, and verse, do we read of "all evangelical churches," which the late revision of the Scriptures were made to favor? Have not all these evangelical churches (sects) made their riches out of a twisting and perverting the Scriptures? Does restitution require them to put back these Scriptures where they took them from, the Bible? If they were to do this, how long would they exist? Does not restitution require them to take back all the slanders they have published against us? What is the evil with which they have not charged us? They have charged us with denying the Bible and almost every truth in it. Does not this principle of restitution require all sects to show that their plan of spreading the gospel is a better plan for spreading the gospel than God's plan revealed in the New Testament? Unless the present course of things is checked, we shall be carried back into the "dark ages," into a state of barbarism.

Does not this principle of restitution apply to all the liquor traffickers, to pour out their liquors, which have ruined the bodies, and souls, and families, and are now doing it, even if they should make a stream as large as Salt River, which runs eighteen or twenty miles south of this place. Does not this principle of restoration apply to all adulterers, and to all in the sects and out of the sects, who have wronged their neighbors by making over their property to avoid paying their just debts? Does not this principle of restitution apply to everything not found in the New Testament, and which have been added to it, or taken from it, since John said, Amen! in the year 96. Is it not easy to see why our brethren meet with so great opposition in trying to restore the New Testament in letter and spirit? Because if we succeed in doing it, it will show that all things done, not named in the oracles of God, (1 Peter 4: 12,) are counterfeit religions, and have been carried on by a sleight-of-hand, by religious counterfeiters. All things not done as the New Testament directs them to be done, are by politico-religious institutions, by emasculated gospels, done by the Scriptures and the maxims of the devil which he has set afloat on society by his apostles and ministers in the garb of sheep, while they are ravening wolves. Matt. 7. "The devil is a liar and a murderer." John 8: 44. Remember Christ spoke these words to the teachers of that age. The devil is the author of all the false religions in the world, of all not found in the New Testament, and of all the murders in the world of every description. He is a devil of means. He has agents everywhere working for him; he is not omnipotent; he has a system of means; he never sleeps; he always fishes in muddy waters; he has a hook and a bait suited to every case. We can sometimes see him busy with a person, and see the person nibbling at the bait, as we see a fish nibbling at the bait before he is caught.

I will let what I have said on repentance do for the present, hoping that all your readers will apply it to all wrongs done to others, and in this way prove that we love our neighbors as sincerely as ourselves, not as much as we love ourselves. I am yours in hope that the word of God will be restored as he gave it to us. I hope all organ-grinders will restore the singing to the whole congregation, to whom God gave it, and not to choirs nor organists. JACOB GREATH.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

F. C. Sowell, Shady Grove, Tenn., September 6, writes: "We closed a series of meetings on last night, at Dunlap, Hickman county. We began on the fifth Lord's day in August, and preached twelve discourses, which influenced fourteen to make the good confession, and to be baptized into Christ, and one prodigal reclaimed. Everybody seemed to enjoy the meetings. When brethren and sisters manifest such earnestness and zeal for the advancement of the cause of Christ, as these did, much good can be accomplished; and when it is otherwise, we can't hope for the cause to prosper much. We hope the brethren at some places where we have been, will take heed to this, and try to do better in the future. The Lord promises to bless those who will work earnestly for him."

J. W. Williams, Peytonsburg, Ky., September 3, writes: "Our meeting at Chestnut Grove, Adair county, Ky., began on Friday night before the third Lord's day in August, and closed the following Wednesday morning. The immediate result was fifteen added to the church—two from the Methodists, two from the Missionary Baptists, and eleven by confession and baptism. Many others seemed almost persuaded, and much prejudice removed. We also preached two discourses at Rock Spring church, Clay county, Tenn., on the fifth Saturday and Lord's day in August. Had two additions by confession and baptism. The converts, we think, were all good material. One young brother of high reputation and good education says he is going into the ministry soon. We hope the older brethren will give him encouragement. The cause in all places where we have been preaching recently seems to be moving on. Some opposition in some localities, and some coldness. A slight effort on the part of each member would remove all this trouble. Brethren, think of the great responsibility; think of the prize that is in the end; think of the life beyond; and if this is not enough to prompt you to an humble and faithful discharge of your duty, there is nothing that can be thought of that will."

W. T. Donaldson, Gates, Lauderdale Co., Tenn., September 9, writes: "About six months ago I came from Lexington, Ky. to Obion County, Tenn., to work for the church at Palestine. There was some discord in the church at that time. By the help of the Lord and patient labor on the part of the brethren, we have restored harmony, and to-day peace reigns among us. Bro. C. N. Sparkman and myself closed a meeting the 3rd inst. with the Palestine church which had continued twelve days. As a result of the meeting, all of the members were much strengthened and bound closer together than ever before. And from this we expect much good in the future. During the meeting there were forty added to the congregation, for which we praise the Lord. At this writing we have just begun a meeting at Beech Bluff, Lauderdale County."

J. L. Sewell, Viola, Tenn., September 4, writes: "I began a meeting at Granville, Jackson county, Tenn., on Saturday night before the third Lord's day in August, and continued it until the next Saturday. There has never been a congregation of disciples at this place, and but very little preaching by the disciples of Christ. Bro. John Smithson once began a meeting at this place, but was taken sick and had to stop in a few days. I was called there five years ago by three sisters, to hold a meeting. They had obtained leave to have the meeting in the Methodist meeting-house. But when the circuit-rider came round he was not pleased with it, and wrote to John Nichol, the author of the Grub-Ax Theology, to come and review my sermons. He came and concealed himself on Saturday night, and took notes of my sermon, and on Lord's day morning he and the circuit-rider, whose name was Owen, came to the meeting-house, and Owen announced that Nichol would preach time about with me during the meeting; that the house belonged to them, and he had a right to put him in the meeting with me, and he (Nichol) would preach that day, and I would preach at night. Nichol arose and began to review my sermon of Saturday night in his rough, uncouth style. I preached at night, and did not notice what he had said. The next day he reviewed my sermon and challenged me to reply to him, but I preached on and paid no attention to him. But he became so bold and abusive, and the people became so excited, that I saw the meeting could not do any good, and I determined to stop it on my part. So I gave a public history of his course toward me for some years past, how he had been following me up and interrupting my meetings, and then announced that I was out of the meeting. He announced that he would preach the next day and review my last discourse, but there was so few to hear him next day that he closed out, and so the matter ended. But public sentiment settled down against their course, and the few disciples and the people generally were so aroused that they determined to build a house, which they have done, and paid for it. My meeting was the first held in it. There were large congregations and good attention all the time, and the result was seven baptized, all from influential families, two of them heads of families. They have determined to meet on the first day of the week to worship the Lord and to keep the ordinances. So I am satisfied that the Lord overruled the course these Methodist preachers pursued, to the good of his cause and his people. The Methodists have not been able to get up any interest, or have any ingathering, since, but seem to be gradually on the decline."

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. A. Carter, Curve, Tenn., September 4, writes: "I send you this as the results of my labors. Humboldt, hearing good, no additions; Finley, nine additions; Mille's Chapel, ten additions; Concord, R. A. Cook's meeting, thirteen additions; Hinning, no additions, but hearing good."

F. B. Srygley, Carthage, Tenn., September 10, writes: "I preached eight times last week at Cainsville. Two noble women made the good confession and were baptized. There are but few disciples there, and much prejudice and opposition to our people. May the Lord bless the 'faithful few.' I am this week at Carthage."

F. P. Tankersley, La Crosse, Arkansas, writes: "On Saturday, August 9th, Bros. Smith, George, and myself, began a meeting with the brethren at Kent's Mill, Arkansas. Preached seven discourses. Three confessed the Savior and were buried with him in baptism, and arose, we trust, to walk in newness of life."

H. L. Walling, McMinnville, Tenn., September 11, writes: "Bro. T. B. Larimore had a large congregation to-night, and ten confessions this night, great interest and much joy among the disciples. We praise the Lord for the increase, and battle on and after glory run."

H. L. Walling, McMinnville, Tenn., September 10, writes: "The meeting continued from fifth Lord's day in August at Sink Creek, in the grove, by Bro. P. G. Potter, joined Wednesday by Bro. Wesley Kidwill, resulted in eighteen additions. Bro. T. B. Larimore is preaching here to the largest and most attentive audiences that we ever had. Five confessed faith in the Lord Jesus Christ to-day."

T. C. Little, Fayetteville, Tenn., September 9, writes: "Bro. Dixon and myself spent several days preaching for the congregation at Friendship, Lincoln County. Preaching closed August 29th, with seven baptisms, and we think some lasting good to the brethren. A large congregation greeted us at nearly every meeting. It was generally remarked that we had the best hearing that community ever gave our brethren. Left several 'almost persuaded,' to go to other appointments."

Thomas J. Shaw, Lynchburg, September 9, writes: "I commenced preaching to the church at Rock Hill, in Rutherford County, on Saturday night before the fourth Lord's day in August, and continued to preach twice each day for eight days; a good congregation both day and night. I baptized seventeen before I closed; one of the number was an old lady eighty-one years of age. This church was more liberal to me in paying me wages than any church I ever held a protracted meeting for."

J. M. Ratliffe, Piedmont, Mo., September 1, writes: "Since last report, I preached the first sermon in the new meeting house at Mill Springs with nine additions; two from the Methodists, one from the Baptists, two took membership, and the rest from the world. Our new house at Mill Springs is a gem, with capacity for five hundred persons, neatly painted and paid for. Cost about a thousand dollars. This church now numbers near fifty members; all came in since march last under my humble missionary labors."

William J. Moss, Leiper's Fork, Tenn., September 3, writes: "On Saturday night, August 9, Bro. Granville Lipscomb commenced a meeting at this place, which continued until Thursday night, the 21st, with the following results: Fourteen were added to the church; thirteen of whom were immersed and one reclaimed; besides, the brethren were much edified in faith and love, and encouraged to press on in the divine life 'to the mark for the prize of their high calling, etc.' And we feel assured that many of our friends of the world who yielded not to the gentle wooings of the gospel, were made to see and tremble at a sense of their duty. Bro. Lipscomb is a faithful, forcible, and pleasant speaker; and fails not to embrace every opportunity in the private circle of accomplishing good. His method of conducting the meeting was to have the brethren assemble in time for several songs and two or three prayers before the pulpit exercises commenced. The brethren will remember him and his labors with much love and satisfaction."

J. T. Eanes, Lynnville, Ky., September 8, writes: "I held a meeting at Zion's Hill, Weakley County, Tenn., nine discourses. Bro. E. C. L. Denton was to have been there and commenced the meeting on Friday night, August 29, but his little son getting his arm broken prevented his being there. I came into the community on Monday evening and expected to attend the meeting, but found none. Meeting was announced on Tuesday by persons going around over the community and telling their neighbors. The immediate result was five additions; four from the world by confession and baptism, and one from the Baptists. There will be more additions in the near future. I left an appointment for third Lord's day in September. My address for some time will be Lynnville, Ky. I am going to attend the debate between Bro. Denton and Elder Hall, of the Baptist church, to be held near Como, Tenn."

B. F. Rogers, Rich Pond, Ky., September 5, writes: "On Saturday, August 23, I took my first trip to Tennessee. The brethren at Bush's Chapel, near South Tunnel, not having had any preaching for some time, sent for me to come and preach for them on the fourth Lord's day. I went and found some excellent brethren and sisters there, and quite a number, also, 'who once had a name to live, but are dead.' On Lord's day our audience was not large, but at night we had a full house, and the brethren thought best to continue the meeting. We preached Monday and Monday night, and as the interest seemed to increase, we continued the meeting, closing Friday night. Five baptisms, and a few straying ones returned, and many of the brethren were renewed in strength. We had good attention and order, and we trust the seed sown will produce an abundant harvest. I expect to visit them on each fourth Lord's day until they can do better."

F. Talmage, Tullahoma, Tenn., September 8, writes: "I have just closed an interesting meeting near my own home, at Oak Hill Seminary, Coffee county, Tennessee. I preached eight discourses, resulting in twenty additions to the church. Nine were baptized on a confession of their faith in Jesus Christ, four came from the Baptists, three were immersed Methodists, one was restored who had fallen, and three were received by relation, two of whom I had previously baptized. Among the number baptized was my own son. I cannot express my feelings. Fifteen of the additions were married people. Six married couples came together. Only five were unmarried. All were my near neighbors. Nearly all were of middle age. It was a general time of weeping and rejoicing. Sectarianism here is dead. The meeting closed Friday night, with three additions the last night, as I was compelled to fill my regular appointment at Tullahoma. One more came forward at the water, Saturday morning, and was baptized. We give the Master all the praise. May we all live right below, and meet in the realms of light."

T. E. Tatum, Temperance Hall, Tenn., September 2, writes: "We are wide-awake and still laboring in this portion of the Lord's moral vineyard. Prejudice is running high, but the truth is having its effect. Our religious (and some who are not religious) neighbors are misrepresenting us, and circulating scandalous untruths on us, in order to weaken our influence, but, thank the Lord, the cause is still progressing. Thirty-two have recently been added, and one subtracted, in this vicinity. One sister has gone to the Baptists, while a number from the Baptists, Methodists, and Presbyterians, have confessed the Savior and been immersed by us. We now have about fifty members within a few miles of this place. Nearly all are poor, and have no church house, but contemplate trying to build one in the near future. We may appeal for help from our surrounding congregations; if so, brethren, be ready to help us, and your assistance will not only be appreciated by us, but 'God loveth a cheerful giver.' 'It is more blessed to give than to receive.' We are greatly persecuted here at present, but we have reason to rejoice, for Christ said, 'Blessed are they which are persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven. Blessed are ye, when men shall revile you, and persecute you, and shall say all manner of evil against you falsely, for my sake. Rejoice and be exceeding glad; for great is your reward in heaven: for so persecuted they the prophets which were before you.' We delivered seventeen discourses at Jefferson, about seven miles southeast from Smithville, recently. A great interest was manifested, but no additions."

At the close of a report of meetings, which we omit, because same is reported by his father, Bro. J. W. Henry says: "Bro. Barnes was with papa only a few days, as his appointments were calling him back to South Alabama. He is the president of that most worthy institution, the Highland Home Male and Female College, situated near Argus, Crenshaw County, Ala. He has been engaged in this noble work for more than twenty-five years. His greatest talent is training young people for the immediate duties of life, and as proof of this there are more than twenty-five of his students of last session now engaged in teaching in the counties around his school. The county superintendents are anxious to employ his pupils to teach for them; they are deeply impressed with many noble lessons of morality, discipline, and self-control, as well as the literary attainments incident to such a course. Fathers, send him your sons; mothers, send him your daughters and you will never regret the step. I have been there. Write to him for a catalogue. Our meeting commences here next Sunday, hope to have a good one."

C. W. Sewell, Sr., McKinney, Texas, August 30, writes: "As I have been scolded a good deal in my life for not reporting my labors and the results to the papers, I will give you a brief report. I have now been in McKinney eight months. Thus far we have not had more than eight or ten accessions, unless we were to count all the cold, indifferent ones, who had not been attending worship. A few of these have not yet been reached. But the church is in a harmonious, working state. We have a good Sunday-school, also a prayer-meeting. It is the purpose of the brethren to make an earnest effort to convert and save those out of the church during the fall. Some labors which I have performed outside of the town have been blessed. We found some fifteen or twenty scattered members some three or four miles east of our town, and have been preaching occasionally for them. The Lord has added about twenty-six or twenty-eight more during the summer, an organization has been commenced with one efficient teaching elder, and we think if the church will do their duty reasonably well, many more will be added. Nineteen of the new accessions were by confession and baptism. If I have anything else worth reporting during the fall, you will hear from me."

M. C. Leslie, Willis, Texas, September 4, writes: "Bros. G. W. Harvey and J. D. Tant closed a two weeks meeting on fourth Lord's day in August on Lone Oak prairie, four miles from Willis, with thirty-two additions; twenty-five of whom were immersed. Others give assurance of uniting at the first opportunity. For two years past a few congregations in this section have united in sending out an evangelist to preach in destitute places, and this year alone, Bro. G. W. Harvey, our evangelist, at a cost to the congregations of less than the expenses incurred by our big preachers in attending the big State meeting at Bryan, has accomplished more good than has or will result from that grand assembly. Several strong congregations have been established and so taught that they are living up to every duty, while many congregations are laying by in store money to send out an evangelist when a meeting shall take place at Montgomery on the second Lord's day in November next. If I can obtain it, I will send you a report of the results of the labors of our evangelist this year, so that some of our brethren who trust in new fangle societies, State meetings, ecclesiastical clap-traps, etc., to do the work of the Lord, may see how much can be accomplished when we rely upon the Lord's appointments, and work as he commands."

H. L. Walling, McMinnville, Tenn., September 3, writes: "Bro. P. G. Potter and myself preached at Sink Creek fifth Lord's day in August, one confessed. Bro. Potter continued the meeting. Bro. G. W. Gilbert, of Trousdale, closed a meeting at Ivy Bluff, in this county, last Saturday, with forty additions. I never saw the people more willing to be taught the word than now. We praise the Lord for the immemorial blessing to his children."

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview, Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DEAR BRO. POE: I preached yesterday (August 24th) in our new church, and one joined by letter and one by confession to be immersed next Lord's day. Bro. Wilmeth preached for us on Saturday night before the first Lord's day in the month, and Bro. Gano on Lord's day, and two united. We have had one or two by confession of commendation every Lord's day that we have preached in our new church. I believe the work would prosper here if it was only sustained so as to keep a preacher here all the time, but I have not been more than half sustained, and have had to answer the calls of brethren for protracted meetings, and am fearful I will have to abandon it altogether. You remember that Bro. Carlton said in his speech at the State meeting, on the history and work of the State conventions of Texas, that the San Antonio mission was not the work of the State convention, and though Bro. Carlton and the warmest friends of the State meetings did not claim that the San Antonio mission was under their fostering care, yet they pledged and contributed some to its support, and agreed to urge the brethren in their respective fields to send aid to this mission, and they did not ask that it be sent through the agents of that convention, but that brethren and churches send direct to the mission. Now it appears to me that here is a field that all the brethren who are opposed to any organization outside the church might work in without any violation of conscientious scruples. If the scriptural plan is for the preacher to work without any guarantee of support and trust to God, and the liberality of the brethren, then I have been working on the scriptural plan, and though I have been working, trusting and praying, the support has not come. Bro. Poe, shall I abandon the work here? Whether you answer yes or no, I will be compelled to do so unless there is a change soon. Paul, Peter and other apostles wrote to the brethren to "stir up their pure minds" on the missionary and kindred subjects, and so I ask that you help in this way. The organ, sewing machine, and other manufactories, merchants, mechanics, doctors and saloon men, and all kinds of business succeed by advertising, and had the San Antonio mission been better advertised, I would not have met so many brethren at the State meeting and elsewhere that asked me where I lived. This question showed that they knew very little about the San Antonio mission. D. PENNINGTON.

San Antonio, Texas, August 25th, 1884.

We have greatly desired the success of this mission, and for awhile the churches and brethren contributed to its support, until "the State evangelist" went down there, and in his report, led the brethren to suppose that the State meeting had taken that mission under its wing, and then they seemed to slack up, and allow the State meeting to run it. Now, that it is understood that it is a mission work for the church, we hope all who can will send all they can spare to this and the Indian Mission. Brethren, let us sustain these missions, and thus show that missionary societies outside of the church are not necessary. Send money as above directed.

MEETING AT ENNIS.

DEAR BRO. POE: Bro. Black, of Illinois, began a meeting at Ennis on Saturday night previous to the second Lord's day in this (August) month and is still going on, and to date there has been one hundred and ten accessions to the church, and the interest still increasing. Many are attending the meeting who reside twenty miles off. No frenzy excitement among the people, but earnest, thoughtful interest pervades every mind. You remember the size of our house in Ennis; a large opening has been cut out opposite the pulpit and the yard canvassed overhead, the ground seated, and a common expression is, the house and yard was full, with interest so great that nothing was heard or noticed, but what was said by the preacher and in interest of the meeting; and to give you an idea of the great interest taken in the meeting, an effort was made to count the number one night as they passed out of the gate, (being one gate only) and although many could not wait for their turn to pass out at the gate, and went over the fence, there were eleven hundred and thirty-five counted as they passed out at the gate. Bro. Black is faithful to his Master and to his blessed gospel; he needs no human wisdom or tricks to help the gospel along to its wonderful desire; his power as a true gospel preacher is beyond the reach of flattery—there is no margin left to describe it; his loving deportment, his well seasoned teaching, his heart melting appeals will ever be remembered—loved by us all. May the Lord bless him, and may he be spared and preserved in his great usefulness to this, a benighted world, is my earnest prayer.

N. B. GIBBONS.

Ennis, Texas, August 30, 1884.

N. B.—September 2nd, meeting still going on with ten more additions. N. B. G.

THE CAUSE IN EAST TEXAS.

The good cause prospers in East Texas. We learn that Bro. Sweeney recently converted a Baptist preacher, and put him to preaching the gospel at once. Bro. Brill is doing a good work in Cherokee, Smith and Nacogdoches counties. Bro. Leak also. He says he pulls down the Methodist church in his district faster than their preachers build up. Troupe church keeps growing, we had two confessions there last Lord's day night, and Bro. Ezzell is still going on with a meeting at that place. The people are listening and learning, and we expect a big ingathering at that point. Bro. McPherson has just closed at Bellevue with six immersions, at Hallville eight, and at Peatown fourteen. Bro. V. I. Stirman is in a meeting a few miles from Longview in Harrison county, and several have been baptized, we learn. We preached some half dozen discourses at Kilgore a week ago, with good attentive audiences, and hope soon to gather much fruit from this sowing. In all these meetings the brethren and sisters have done much to aid the preaching of the word.

"Rev. Dr. J. H. Foy, late pastor of the Central Christian (Campbellite) Church, of St. Louis has applied for orders in the Episcopal Church. He wants a "larger latitude of opinion." The only enlargement he could well make was to take in baby sprinkling, and sprinkling in general, as a substitute for baptism."—Texas Baptist Herald.

This shows that Bro. Link does not yet know what we, as a religious people, teach. He seems to have taken no pains to inform himself. Why will not the leading men of other churches inform themselves of what we do teach? We are not near so close to the Episcopal order as the Baptists. Did you know that, Bro. Link? If not, and you desire it, we can show you. You stand mid-way between us and the Episcopalians. Now don't chide us for accepting, believing, and teaching God's word. If you will persist in running a church and doctrine all your own, don't fall out with us if we choose to follow God and obey his commandments.

When a man preaches the gospel thirty or forty years, and does not learn the first principles of the law of Christ, as between brother and brother, it is time for him to stop. "If thy brother offend thee, go, tell his fault between thee, and him alone." Give him a chance to fix up the matter. We know an old brother who has not yet learned the 18th chapter of Matthew, and yet he claims to be an elder, and tries to preach. No wonder his success is small. What a poor example to the flock such men are.

BAPTIST BAPTISM.

If Baptists have any other use for baptism than to make Baptists, we would be glad to have them rise and explain. Will some of the wise Baptist editors answer the following?

1. What do Baptists baptize for?
2. Does their baptism take place out of the church, or in it?
3. If out, how can it be a "church ordinance?"
4. If in, how can it be a door to the Baptist church?
5. Has God commanded that believing penitents shall be baptized?
6. If yes, why do they vote whether they will do it, or not? Has the church a right to vote whether it will obey God, or not?

We would like some good, solid, square answers to these six interrogatories.

We recently talked with a lady, whose husband was a Christian, but she had never made any profession of Christianity. We enquired why, and she said she intended to do so some time or other. We suggested that a good plan would be to set a time—some definite time in the future, and then give herself to the Lord; and that if she did not systematize in this way, she might never be in the church. I then suggested that she say five years from now she would become a Christian. She replied that "she might die before that time." I responded, "yes, that is true. Then suppose we say three years?" She replied that "the same reason would lie there." I then said "one year." But she still urged the same reason. "Well then," said I, "why not to-night?" And that night, like a wise woman, she did confess the Lord.

BAPTISM OF THE HOLY SPIRIT.

Our Methodist friends often remark to us, that they care nothing for water baptism, and that the baptism of the Holy Spirit is the only thing necessary. Now we want to ask them why it was that an inspired apostle required—yes, commanded Cornelius to be baptized—water baptism too—after he had been baptized with the Holy Spirit? Doesn't this look like it was essential?

The negroes are terribly frightened here, over the report that a negro child was born out West recently with six teeth, lived six hours, spoke six words and died. The wonderful oracle was "world will end in six months." They believe this, and their preachers are using it to scare them into the church. Hundreds are joining. Superstition is much more potent than the truth.

We have a communication from a Methodist preacher, trying to prove that the mourners bench, or mourning altar, is scriptural. We will give it attention next week. Look out for it.

Feed the babes in Christ. Organize Bible classes for their benefit, and encourage them to study. Feed the lambs, and don't put the fodder so high up they can't reach it.

ASSIGNED.—We learn from the Apostolic Times that the Old Path Guide has made an assignment for the benefit of its creditors.

Church News.

We have an interesting meeting in progress at Bethlehem, one of the churches I preach for. The meeting begun on the fourth Lord's day in August, and has continued nearly two weeks. Bro. J. F. Story, of Caseyville, Ky., has done the preaching since his arrival on the third day of the meeting. Up to this date, September 5, seven have obeyed the gospel, and the interest is still good. I leave to-morrow to hold a meeting at Dalton. Bro. Story will continue the meeting at Bethlehem. He is a sound gospel preacher."

Our meeting has just closed. Bro. George Clark, of Terrell, commenced on Saturday before the first Lord's day in this month, preached nineteen discourses with twenty-five additions; eleven baptized, four from the Baptists, one from the Presbyterians, one from the Methodists, eight by letter and otherwise. Zion Hill Christian church is situated in Vanzandt county, in this State, near the Henderson county line. It was organized about one year ago by Bro. Clark, who is from Missouri originally; he is an efficient worker in the Lord's vineyard. Please tell us if it is necessary for a man to confess the Savior before baptism.—[G. C. R., Edom, Vanzandt Co., Texas.

[It is necessary for him to give evidence of faith. Confession is the simplest way to do this.]

I began a meeting at Mars Hill, Rutherford County, Tenn., Saturday night before third Lord's day in this month, and continued until Thursday; preached ten sermons. I found them as I believe, a zealous little band of disciples, earnest and steadfast in the apostles teaching, meeting regularly upon the first day of the week. They are sounding out the word as well as having home preaching. Bro. B. C. Young is a good worker, and is willing to do for the Lord; the brethren love him. I met Bro. Grigg also who teaches school and preaches. We had opposition meetings and prejudice to meet, but notwithstanding all this, we had a fair hearing, good attention, but only one confession. I found them a liberal and willing people. Continue faithful, dear brethren, you can and will, by the help of the Lord, succeed. I am now in a meeting at Friendship, Lincoln County, Tenn. Bro. Thomas C. Little is with me; he is a workman that need not to be ashamed; he has no cause before God, for he works to it—the word; two added.—[W. H. Dixon, Petersburg, Tenn., August 27, 1884.

I send you an account of my recent labors, which you may publish if you wish. I commenced a meeting at Rock Spring Academy, in Putman County, on the third Lord's day in July, where I preached twelve discourses, and baptized one lady. Had a good attendance and good interest throughout. On the fourth Lord's day I commenced at Cookville and preached six discourses, but it rained most of the time, so the attendance was very small. Here I found some very warm-hearted people and hope to be able to visit them at some future time under more favorable circumstances. That county is an inviting field for evangelizing. On the second Lord's day in August, I met Bro. F. F. Dearing, at the new church at Almonsville, in this county, where we labored together until Thursday, when he left to meet other engagements, and I continued the meeting until the next Monday night. There were nine baptized, and one reclaimed. I also went over to Rock Spring and baptized one on Monday. When I came home I found Bro. Dixon engaged in a meeting at Mars Hill, which resulted in one addition. On Saturday night following Bro. Shaw commenced a meeting at Rock Hill, which, up to this time, has resulted in twelve confessions. To-morrow I go to Rock Spring.—[B. C. Young, Cobb, Rutherford County, Tenn.

The Design of Baptism, by a Baptist.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: I have in my possession a sermon by Dr. John Gale, a distinguished Baptist minister, on the design of baptism. It was written forty years before Alexander Campbell was born. I send you the following brief extract by request of a brother who desires to have it in print:

"Some, perhaps, may be apt to imagine that there is too great stress laid upon baptism, while the remission of sin is made to depend so much upon it. But this exception lies against the Scriptures themselves, not against our reasoning; for the necessity and usefulness of baptism to the remission of sins is not our doctrine, but the undoubted doctrine of the Scriptures, which teach nothing more plainly. Saint Peter's advice to his converts, was not only to repent for the remission of sins, but (Acts 2: 38) first to repent, and then be baptized for the remission of sins; and Ananias' advice to St. Paul, even after the extraordinary appearance of God in his favor, was to be baptized and wash away his sins. Both these instances show, at least, that baptism should conduce to the washing away their sins; and that, notwithstanding their repentance and every other requisite, without this baptism their sins should not be remitted. The words "Be baptized for the remission of sins," and "Be baptized and wash away your sins," can import nothing less than this, unless it can be supposed those holy men, acting under the influence of the Spirit of God, could order a thing to be done for a certain end to which the thing had no tendency at all; and that the holy penman may have made us of expressions on purpose to bewilder and mislead us." Seventh sermon on baptism, page 183-199.

27 PER CENT DIFFERENCE.

The "Royal" the Strongest and Purest Baking Powder.

Our attention has been called to publications from the Price Baking Powder Co., the obvious purpose of which was to rid themselves of the recent exposure of the inferiority or low test of the baking powder manufactured by that house.

As to whether the Price baking powder is equal to the "Royal," the facts are that when the cans were purchased on the open market, and examined by Prof. Chandler, of the New York Board of Health, the report revealed the fact that Price's powder contained twenty-seven per cent. less strength than the "Royal."

When compared in money value, this difference would be as follows:

One pound can Royal Baking Powder worth 50 cents.

One pound can Price's worth 36 cents.

The Royal Baking Powder Company has been fighting for years past to break up the practice of substituting Alum, Phosphate, Lime, etc., as cheap substitutes for cream tartar, as well as short weights, and low test in baking powders, and the "stop thief" cry will not deter us from pointing out all who are engaged in the nefarious business of palming upon the public cheap or injurious baking powders at the same price at which a pure and wholesome article is sold.

The Royal Baking Powder has the commendation of the most noted chemists in the country for its purity and freedom from any substance of an injurious nature, being manufactured from grape cream tartar, in which no lime exists.

NINTH CHAPTER OF ACTS.

CONVERSION OF SAUL OF TARSUS, AND HIS APOSTLESHIP.

There were two things connected with the history of Paul that must be considered, or his conversion will never be understood. One of these is his apostleship to which the Lord called him, and for which he met with him, and the other in his conversion. The call to be an apostle was miraculous in every respect, while his conversion was ordinary, just like all others we read of in Acts of Apostles. If we mix up these two things, which are essentially different, we shall forever be in confusion regarding it. The idea that many have of this case, that he was miraculously converted, has given rise to all sorts of extravagances on the subject. Many claim to have appearances and manifestations to them at the time they claim to have been converted, that, if true, were just as miraculous as anything that was ever done. And in fact, if conversion is instantaneous as is claimed, and is brought about by a direct work of the Spirit of God, then every such conversion that takes place on earth is just as miraculous as the calling of Paul to the apostleship, or as the healing of the lame man by Peter and John. Upon this principle miracles will never end, and are just as common and extensive as the conversion of sinners. But there is not one particle of evidence of anything miraculous in the conversion of Saul, who was afterwards called Paul. It is true that the miraculous appearance of the Lord convinced Saul that Jesus is Christ, the Son of God. He had long heard the gospel, and had been familiar with the claims of Jesus of Nazareth as the Savior of sinners. But he did not believe its truth. Though he stood by and heard the wonderful discourse of Stephen, he disregarded it all, and held the clothes of the men that stoned him to death. He was one of the most zealous and determined persecutors of whom we have any account. But he was a man of an honest heart so far as the record shows, and verily thought he ought to do many things contrary to the name of Jesus of Nazareth. Yet he regarded himself as chief of sinners when convinced of the truth, because he had persecuted the church of God and wasted it, and concluded he only obtained pardon because he did it ignorantly and in unbelief.

Paul did not argue like many do in these days, that if a man is honest, and does what he thinks is right, he will be saved whether he does just what the word of God requires or not. But on the other hand, he put himself down as chief of sinners because he did so. And as honesty or sincerity of purpose did not make Paul right when he rejected the truth and persecuted Christians, no more will honesty make error right now. But the redeeming quality in Paul's life and character is, that just so soon as the testimony of the truth of Christianity, the thing he had so zealously persecuted was presented, he abandoned his errors, turned from his sins, embraced the truth and made one of the boldest and most earnest defenders of the gospel the world ever saw. This was not true with many of the Jews. They saw the most astonishing miracles with their own eyes, and yet persecuted those that performed them, as witness, the Jews who saw Jesus raise Lazarus from the dead, and those who witnessed the lame man healed by Peter and John, who acknowledged it a notable miracle, and yet continued to oppress and persecute the apostles. But not so with Saul of Tarsus. Just as soon as he saw the miraculous testimony to the truth, he yielded, and as fast as he learned the truth he walked in it. But the most of those in modern times who claim most sincere honesty, turn their ears away from the truth even when read to them direct, and in the very plainest words from the word of God. These are not honest like Paul. And yet they, and many even who claim to have the whole truth, claim that those who will not hear and receive the truth from God's own book, but are zealous and earnest in their own ways will be saved for their earnestness, when even Saul, with all his sincerity could not, and would not have been saved in that condition, though it is certain he was honest. But just as soon as the voice spake out to Saul and said, "I am Jesus whom thou has persecuted," he was as humble and gentle as a lamb, and cried out "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" This indicated a truly submissive heart, a heart ready to do anything the Lord would have him do. And this is the only kind of a heart that is ready to do the will of the Lord and be saved. Saul was not only a believer, but a very penitent one, turning at once from all evil, and seeking with all his soul the will of God that he might do it. This was honesty right. This sort of honesty, that seeks heartily the will of God that he may do it will always be blessed. And such honesty as this will always be able to find out what the will of God is. But those that claim to be sincere and to want the truth, and yet when presented will not walk in it, will not regard its divine directions, have little showing to be saved.

But just as soon as Ananias was sent to Saul who told him what to do, he arose forthwith and did it, although the thing that Ananias told Saul to do is the very thing which many now regard as a nonessential. Ananias said to him, "And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." When this was done, Paul was a converted man, a Christian. He had believed, had repented, and had confessed the name of Christ by saying, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?"

These are all that are required of any man to do in order to be saved. This is what the three thousand, the five thousand, and all others did in order to be saved. So far then as Saul's conversion is concerned, it was just like all have been, and like all others must be to the close of time. But when we come to look at all the things that make him an apostle, these are all miraculous. The Lord miraculously appeared to him in person, miraculously spoke to him, calling him by name, and told him plainly that he had appeared to him to make him a minister and a witness, of what he had seen and heard, and would send him to the Gentiles, "To open their eyes, and to turn them from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God, that they may receive forgiveness of sins, and inheritance among them that are sanctified by faith that is in me." Acts 26.

This passage just tells plainly that the Lord had appeared to Saul to make him a minister, an apostle. But making him an apostle was one thing, while making him a Christian was another. The one was by the miraculous appearance of the Lord to him, while the other was done by his own obedience to the gospel like other sinners. He was also filled with the Holy Spirit as a qualification to carry out his apostleship. All that was miraculously taken together, made him an apostle; and is not to be taken as any part of his conversion.

Paul himself teaches us that men must be in Christ, in order to be saved. Then he also tells us how he, himself, got into Christ. "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?" Rom. 6: 3. Paul himself, and all the Romans were baptized into Christ. This shows definitely and with perfect certainty the step by which we enter into Christ. Then again speaking of Christ said, "In whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins." Eph 1: 14. Paul then did not receive pardon till he entered into Christ, and was in him. This makes his conversion a remarkably plain case. Not one more so in all Acts of Apostles. And Paul even goes so far as to tell us how he was baptized. "Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death, that like as Christ was raised from the dead by the glory of the Father. Rom. 6: 4.

Now with Paul's own testimony as to how he was baptized, let no man hereafter say Paul was baptized in the house, standing up, and that therefore he must have been sprinkled, or had water poured upon him. Every man that says this, contradicts Paul himself. In the revised version this passage is rendered "were buried," which takes all the difficulties out of the way regarding tense or time. There is therefore nothing left but to believe that Paul was immersed, or repudiate the word of the Lord. And this is only in accord with the meaning of the word used to express the obedience.

While there are plenty of men that will say that sprinkling is baptism, not one has ever yet translated the word baptize by the word sprinkle in a single passage in the word of God. And if there is even one passage where it certainly means sprinkle it ought to be so rendered at least in that one passage. But who will give us the rendering? Is there a paedobaptist now living that will single out the passage in which the word baptize certainly means sprinkle, and translate it that way and publish it and send it out to the world? And is there another one that will single out another passage where the word means pour and so translate and publish to the world? Why should they not do so? If the word baptize ever means either one or both these actions expressed by sprinkle or pour, that passage can certainly be identified. Who will do it? No one will. We venture to say that no Greek scholar in the wide world will so far trifle with his reputation as a scholar as to give such a rendering and send it out to be criticised by a learned world. This fact puts those who claim these things in an awkward position. Why will they stay there?

LOVE TO MAN AND OBEDIENCE TO GOD.

We promised to notice the communication of Bro. Green, of the Methodist church. We understood that his note to the Christian Advocate, which we first copied and commented on, was written in kindness to the disciples, desiring to propitiate the favor of his brethren toward them. We copied it to show that the affiliation with the Methodists and other denominations was destroying the effect of the plea for a return to the primitive ways ordained by Jesus Christ and the Holy Spirit for which those you call more intelligent and religious among the disciples earnestly contend. The men who engage in these associations, do it not because they look lightly on what we consider the errors of Methodism, or of any other denomination, but because they think by this more intimate association they can reach and correct them. Some, not so well taught as they think, encouraged by this association of the leaders, when they have no church association of their own, unite in church association; these same persons who you think, are growing into affiliation with you, immediately charge they are "denying Christ." See article quoted from Christian Evangelist and Old Path Guide.

We say, that if it is a denial of Christ for private members to affiliate in your churches with you, it is a denial of Christ to affiliate in any religious service that leads to this, or endorses you as a religious body. Hence the only point with me, was that those who affiliate with any of the religious parties in worship, yet believe church affiliation is a denial of Christ, are inconsistent, and destroy the force of their plea. You and they disagree greatly as to what they mean by this affiliation.

But in no spirit of war we wish to make a few suggestions to Bro. Green. In the first place, when a man desires to do justice to a people, it is safe to state their positions in their own language. It would be difficult to find where a disciple ever said that baptism is an "actual procurer of regeneration." On the other hand you cannot find one that will not say that baptism, to an unregenerate person, in the sense you use the term regenerate, is a mockery and a farce. You say the heart that believes and repents, is regenerated. We say baptism without faith and repentance, is a mockery and sin. Nor has one ever said baptism is "the umbilical spiritual cord." We do say baptism, to the believer in Christ, who repents of his sins, baptism is the act through which the individual enters Christ, is baptized into Christ, is the condition on which God has promised remission of sins and sonship in Christ. Baptism is the embodiment of the faith. It is faith expressing itself in action. Except as the embodiment and expression of faith, it is a mockery. Whether your view or mine is the God-given one, I leave you to judge. Only suggesting that your views or mine are hurtful or helpful as they differ from or conform to the divine standard.

I am satisfied that Satan has found water baptism a convenient ordinance at which to tempt man to reject God's authority by persuading him this command of God is non-essential, so leading him to substitute his own preference for the will of God. Doing this in one case educates us to do so lightly in others.

But our brother thinks that love is the great thing; so do we. But does love to God and man militate against doing all the commandments of God? Why should they be placed in contrast as if irreconcilable one with the other? Do I love God less because I insist on implicit obedience to all his commands? And why should obedience to God's commands, all of them, indicate a lack of love to man? When I love a person I desire to see him do well. To obey God is to do well. Hence it is my love to man inspired by a true love to God that prompts me to urge every man to an humble obedience to all the commands of the living God, including water baptism.

The Savior loved God, and abode in that love by doing his Father's commandments. "If ye keep my commandments ye shall abide in my love, even as I have kept my Father's commandments and abode in his love." He not only abode in his Father's love by keeping his Father's commandment, but he showed this love for the Father to the world by keeping his commandments. "That the world may know that I love the Father, and as the Father commanded me, even so I do." John 14: 31. Jesus Christ knew of no better way to show his love to his Father, than by doing his Father's commandments. Are we wiser than he? Can we show our love to God in any better way, in any other way, than by doing the commandments of God? "He that hath my commandments and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me." "If a man love me, he will keep my word." "He that loveth me not, keepeth not my sayings." John 14: 21-24. This same John who recorded these sayings of the Savior, says, "He that saith I know him, and keepeth not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him. But whoso keepeth his word, in him verily is the love of God perfected, and hereby know we that we are in him." 1st John 2: 3. Then again he tells us, "By this we know that we love the children of God, when we love God and keep his commandments. For this is the love of God, that we keep his commandments." 1 John 5: 2.

John clearly did not think there was antagonism between loving God and keeping his commandments, between loving the brethren and faithfully keeping the commandments of God. On the other hand he clearly thought them inseparable. No man can love God without keeping his commandments. No man can love his brother without keeping the commandments of God. "By this we know that we love the children of God when we love God and keep his commandments." Without this we do not love them.

True love to the brethren cannot set aside, reject, "let go" a commandment of God. To do this for their sakes, is not to love them. It may please them. But love does not always please, only pleases to edification, does not always gratify. We sometimes mistake love. The Holy Spirit thought women needed to be taught to love their husbands, to love their children. Titus 2. This implies love takes a wrong course sometimes and needs to be guided aright.

A mother that indulges her child, and gratifies every wish, that denies it nothing, that fails to restrain it, does not love that child. Only she who out of desire for the well-being of the child restrains and checks denies and guides aright, truly loves that child. Hence Solomon says, "He that spareth the rod hateth his son, but he that loveth him chasteneth him betimes." Prov. 13: 24. That is he who fails to restrain the waywardness of the child, hates him. This only teaches that in the sight of God that only is love that works for and looks to the good of the object of love. Love wounds that it may heal, love chastises that it may benefit, love restrains, displeases and offends that it may teach the way of righteousness, and love slays that it may make alive. He who gratifies the child to its injury, hates the child. It is not love then that sets aside a law of God that it may please friends. Only that is love to man that displeases him, if need be, that he may be brought to obey God, that he may attain to true good. True love to the brethren never "lets go" or sets aside a command of God to please them. That injures them, that encourages them to set aside divine law, to lightly esteem the commands of God, which is ruin. But to permit a child to run its own course, is to hate the child. To permit man to run a course of disobedience that leads to ruin, is hatred of the man, even though done to please him. Love to the brethren demands we should obey every command of God that we may lead them to obey God. "Because the soul that sinneth (refuses to obey God) shall die."

Then again the very same apostle John, gentle, loving and tender-hearted as a woman, who dwells so much on love, is the very disciple that dwells on the necessity of keeping the commandments of God. Showing that in his esteem, love to God and love to the brethren are inseparably linked with obedience to God. Hence the expression, "love is the fulfilling of the law," means there can be no love without obedience to the law; to fulfill the law is to obey the law. Christ fulfilled the law by obeying the law perfectly. He only had perfect love. The degree of fidelity to the law is the only measure of love to the maker of the law.

The connection, "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor, therefore love is the fulfilling of the law," shows conclusively that the object was to show that love exists only where the law is obeyed,—not that a sentiment that makes us fond of our friends, disposed to gratify and please them, is all the law requires. Love is the thing defined here not the definition of obedience to law. Love is defined to be the fulfilling, obeying in all things the law. These suggestions are made in view of the truth that we need to be taught how to love God, just as we need to be taught how to love our children, wives, husbands.

But Bro. Green is willing, with ten thousand voices, to let water baptism go, if necessary, in order to hold the friendship and love of disciples. We are glad to assure him that the friendship and love of no disciple demands such a sacrifice at his hands. But is he as willing to obey a command of God to secure their love and friendship as he is to "let it go" to secure these? Why not? An humble obedience to the command of the Holy Spirit "be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins," will do more to cement that love and friendship into the indissoluble bonds of brotherhood in Christ, than letting go any of the appointments of God will do. Are you as willing to observe God's appointments in order to retain and perfect that love and friendship as you are to let them go in order to do it? If not, why not?

I trust that none of the disciples will let their friendship and love for you, wane because you do not obey the commandments of God, but friendship to you, love to God and man demands at their hands a true and faithful obedience to all the commands of God, a faithful witness to you and to all both by precept and example, that if a man love me he will keep my commandments—every command sealed by the blood of Christ and given to man by the Holy Spirit.

We only know of the Young Men's Christian Association, that they do not tolerate the teaching of some of the commandments of the Lord Jesus in their association. No Christian ought to aid in building up an association that discourages teaching the necessity of obedience to the whole law of God, without adding to or subtracting from. "Whosoever shall break one of these least commandments, and shall teach men so, he shall be called the least in the kingdom of heaven." I have written lengthily in no spirit of war, but in one of love to God and man, and in fealty to the good of the one, the honor and glory of the other, and in love and friendship to yourself.

REPLY TO "WHICH IS RIGHT?"

DEAR BRO. LIPSCOMB: I have examined your answer to the query, "Which is Right?" Bro. Bradley or myself, as to when the heart is purified. Some of my brethren here say you have treated me right: fed me on my own food; that I always endeavored to show that there is nothing between brethren, and to depreciate differences. As far as you have undertaken to give my teaching, you represent me correctly; and as far as I can see you represent Bro. Bradley correctly. But when you say there is but little difference between us, it is not very complimentary to Bro. Bradley nor myself. For I thought I saw my error and left it, warning my brethren of the conflict of our theory and the Scriptures on this point. Bro. Bradley saw that I was scared, and thought in my flight I had gone beyond Jerusalem. You about as good as say there is nothing in this controversy but bewildered minds; (nothing between them.) Now, Bro. Lipscomb, if you mean that Bro. Bradley is looking at the purification of the heart from a human standpoint, and I from a divine or scriptural standpoint, as some other preachers have said, and that we are both right with this view, very well. In answer to this, I must say, that I am not interested in human views, nor human experiences, nor examples back of the cross. The priesthood being changed since the cross, there must of necessity be a change in the law. And besides, we have the promise of plainer teaching after the cross. Your example to show us both right is back of the cross, and if it was after the cross, would not illustrate the difference between us.

The case of Simon, who believed and was baptized, and was afterwards found in the gall of bitterness and in the bond of iniquity, or one who failed to add to his faith (faith here including repentance and baptism) virtue, knowledge, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and to these charity; (2 Peter 1: 5-7.) those who fail to give all diligence, to be occupied in doing all that the Lord requires of his servants, the latter end is worse with them than the beginning, and the sow that was washed has turned to her wallowing in the mire. I have contended that faith in Acts 15: 9 is the faith; equivalent to the gospel. And that purify, justify, and save are all used in the dictionary and Bible as equal, and that God does not purify (save) the heart before baptism and purify (save) the soul in or after baptism.

I have said no apostles ever represented any one as being pure in heart before baptism, (after the cross.) I now say as they did not, we are forbidden to do so. We are to speak as the oracles of God. We have heretofore thought it best, to be silent on all subjects that the Bible is silent on, shall we now change and go with the popular current? bringing in infant baptism, found in the next chapter to a pure heart by faith alone, (faith before repentance and baptism) and then say we are saved by faith only. If faith before repentance and baptism purifies the heart, the heart is saved, and so is the soul and body; for God has but one way of saving or purifying. I have been thinking baptism essential to purification. Not because there was power in the water to cleanse, but because it is the act bringing the believing penitent into Christ where his blood cleanses from all sin. Christ appointed baptism as a means to reach his promise to save, and he will cleanse when we reach his promise, not before. If the heart is pure before baptism, then it is a fit temple for God to dwell in by his Spirit; and we are sons of God. Because you are sons, he gives his Spirit crying, Abba Father.

Blessed are the pure in heart. Matt. 5: 8. So if baptism should be attended to at any time in life, (being convenient, of course,) it is a Christian duty, (not the duty of the impure.) If neglected for life, is no more than to fail to assemble with the saints one Lord's day in the year when we could have gone. I am sure Bro. Bradley nor you would have this; but it is the legitimate deductions from this theory of purifying before complete obedience to the law of purification. The humans would say that Cornelius was pure in heart before he saw Peter, or heard the word from him; but from a divine or scriptural standpoint, he was pure in heart after he heard, believed and was baptized. See Acts 15: 9. If we may put in a word where the Lord never put it, (purify) may we not take out a word to suit us orthodox people? Then we read: "He that believeth and is saved, may be baptized when convenient. Again to him give all the prophets, witness that whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins." This is adding to the word of the Lord, and subtracting to suit the popular theory. In perfect harmony with faith alone, purification, (salvation).

Pardon my ignorance when I tell your readers that six months ago I believed that faith alone (faith before repentance and baptism) purified, but did not save. I was ignorant of the meaning of purify in our language, also of the Bible meaning and use of the term. I think the denominational man more consistent than your correspondent at that time. I said faith before baptism purified the heart, but did not save, when purify means save. Now if his heart is pure in a scriptural sense, he is saved, and thus the sect man is right. One might say there was but little difference between us, but I see a very great difference under my present views. The Scriptures say, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Salvation comes after baptism in this commission, and in every case of conversion after this time. I could not believe that I was pure in heart (saved) before baptism, without depreciating baptism, the church, and every act of obedience. The pure in heart are those that appreciate every appointment of God, and have complied with all the means appointed for his purification. Faith that fails to lead the possessor to humble, loving, child-like submission to the entire will of God, is not purifying. I do not want to talk of such faith purifying. My sect brother does, and hence the very great difference. Faith that purifies, leads through repentance, confession and baptism to the blood of Christ, in him where is life and purification. The GOSPEL ADVOCATE is solidly committed to this teaching, if I am not bewildered sure enough. I am sure it will not go back on its teaching until it can be shown to be unscriptural.

DECAY OF PIETY.

Will our readers read Christian instead of Methodist, in the following extract from the Christian Advocate, and ponder the truths presented? What is said here of the decay and abuses of Methodism, is true of the churches of Christ:

It behooves us, therefore, to look carefully after the slightest token of decay in the piety of the Church. It especially befits us to do so during this Centenary year. Mr. Wesley once said: "I am not afraid that the people called Methodists should ever cease to exist either in Europe or America. But I am afraid lest they should exist as a dead sect, having the form of religion without the power. And this undoubtedly will be the case, unless they hold fast the doctrine, spirit, and discipline with which they first set out."

There can be no mistake that not a few persons holding the name of Methodist are growing restive under her doctrines, and still more are growing impatient with her discipline. Not a few openly defy both doctrine and discipline, and he who enters protest is accused of bitterness, and howled down as narrow-minded and a disturber of Israel's peace. Members of our Mission Boards even give balls at their own houses, attend them at the homes of other people, and frequent the theatre at will. When the Chinese are converted to a piety of equal quality with that of these persons, it will still be an open question as to whether they are either Methodists or Christians. It is an interesting question upon which to meditate, What will the Methodist Church in China be if such things exist in prominent officials of the Church at home? If the mother be so diseased during the period of nursing, and the very hand with which she fondles her child is itself unclean, will the child escape? The original Methodists established American Methodism upon a high plane of life and experience. We have degenerated until dancers and theatre-goers are found on our Mission Boards. We cannot establish Methodism on a higher plane than on which we ourselves live. If we have become tainted, though born of the pure parentage of early Methodism, what will the Chinese Church, born of us, be? The doctrine nor the life of holiness cannot survive in such an atmosphere, and yet Methodism professes no other mission but "to spread scriptural holiness over these lands." If we succeed in spreading a dancing, theatre-going, wine-drinking Methodism over these lands will we have spread "scriptural holiness," or will we simply have extended another organization more or less religious? If we do not spread holiness we renounce our mission and the only reason that justifies our existence; if we do not spread holiness we ought not to spread anything. The world is already too full of dead sects.

I close this paper with a paragraph from a recent utterance of the great and good Spurgeon. He says: "We may live to see men calling themselves Christians and differing in no single item from Mohamedans; in fact, even now there are religionists among us who are not so near the truth as the followers of the False Prophet. Oak has given place to willow; everybody has grown limp. Out of the generalty of limpness has come an admiration of it. A man cannot speak a plain word without being accused of bitterness, and if he denounces error he is narrow-minded; for all must join the Universal Admiration Society, or be placed under band, and be howled down." For one I decline to join the society. Let the howlers begin.—W. A. Candler, in Christian Advocate.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

It has been so long since the disciples of this place were represented in your columns, that we think a few lines, though from a hand unequal to the task, would not be amiss, as we have cause to rejoice and feel as if we had been visited with times of refreshing from the Lord. On last night we closed a nine days' meeting here of unusual and unabating interest throughout the entire neighborhood, during which time eleven responsible souls were transplanted from the kingdom of sin into the Master's kingdom, through the obedience of faith, thus obeying the form of doctrine once delivered, and four who had wandered from the sheep-fold were restored, and the entire brotherhood built up and strengthened with renewed zeal and love for the Master's service. This meeting was conducted by Bro. Thomas Price, assisted in the beginning of the meeting by Bro. S. I. S. Cawthorn, who, having labored for the Master some five or six weeks since leaving his home, could not remain longer, hence fell the whole responsibility of the preaching on the young man. Bro. Price is our regular preacher here this year, who, though young and of short experience, has shown himself to be the Lord's workman, not ashamed, and has made the people of Strata and round about to recognize him as a living and growing power for good in the Master's cause. Our Sunday-school is good, meeting on each Lord's day, and attending to all the duties of the same, and by a faithful continuance in well doing, we hope to be mentioned in your deserving paper, by the pens of others, as living epistles known and read of men. But so much for my first effort.—[J. T. C., Strata, Ala.]

On Saturday night before the fourth Lord's day in August, I began a meeting with the church at Antioch, in Hardeman county, Tenn., closing the following Friday night. Nine confessed the Savior, and the church greatly edified. They did not know before that they could worship God without a preacher, but now quite a number of them can very creditably lead the worship of the congregation, and I predict that, in a very few years, instead of sending off for a preacher to preach to them, they will be sounding out the word to the world. Here I met Bro. W. H. Windes, who has been the teacher of the congregation for two years. Bro. Windes has been teaching a school at Saulsbury, and preaching what he could. It is a shame that such brethren as he should be obliged to hide his light under the bushel of the school-room, while all around us the world is groping in spiritual darkness. His whole soul seems to be on fire with the love of God and his people. Can he not be taken out of the school-room and kept at work in the Master's vineyard? Here, too, is the home of our venerable brother, K. L. Rose, who, for more than forty years, has stood like a rock for the defence of the truth, and like an avalanche hurling resistless attacks upon the strongholds of sin. That little congregation has in its membership two able proclaimers, and I think will soon have more. May God bless, strengthen, and keep them.—[W. A. Crum.]

A Pretty Woman's Secret.

Fear of discovery, when she resorts to false hair and dyes, is a source of constant anxiety to her. The very persons from whom she most desires to hide the waning of her charms are the ones most likely to make the discovery. But there is no reason why she should not regain and retain all the beauty of hair that was her pride in youth. Let her use AYER'S HAIR VIGOR, and not only will her hair cease to fall out, but a new growth will appear where the scalp has been denuded; and locks that are turning gray, or have actually grown white, will return to their pristine freshness and brilliance of color. AYER'S HAIR VIGOR cures

Hereditary Baldness.

GEORGE MAYER, Flatonia, Texas, was bald at 23 years of age, as his ancestors had been for several generations. One bottle of HAIR VIGOR started a growth of soft, downy hair all over his scalp, which soon became thick, long, and vigorous.

BRO. LIPSCOMB'S CRITICISM—No. 4.

The points of difference between Bro. Lipscomb and myself are, I am glad to say, rapidly disappearing. In his last article he says:

"Bro. Harding occasionally states our case stronger than we state it ourself. We have never said it was right to appeal for help, but to make the wants known to those who ask to know them."

Had I understood this to be Bro. Lipscomb's position in the beginning there would have been no controversy between us on this point; for I also believe that if one is asked concerning his affairs he is at liberty to make them known, if he deems it wise to do so. He is at liberty to exercise his judgment and discretion in the matter. So one of the propositions which we have been discussing is settled, namely this one, Should the minister of the Lord make known his wants to his brethren? Yes, we agree that he may do so, when they ask him about his affairs. I have always been of this opinion. Had Bro. Lipscomb made inquiries concerning my financial condition last winter I would have felt at liberty to speak freely to him. But I am glad he did not do it; for I was equally as well cared for as if he had done so, and at the same time my feeling of dependence upon God and independence of men was preserved and strengthened. As this matter is settled we hasten to leave it that we may consider the other proposition, hoping that we may be equally fortunate in disposing of it. It reads thus:

The evangelist may receive help in the prosecution of his work from those who are not members of the church of Christ. This Bro. Lipscomb affirms.

It is evident that no passage can bear directly upon the point in controversy that was written before the church of Christ was instituted. It is further evident that the passage must bear directly upon evangelistic work in order to meet the requirements of the case. In the light of these facts it can be easily seen that most of the passages cited by Bro. Lipscomb have no relevancy to the question at issue. In illustration of what I mean let this case be considered: In endeavoring to maintain his position, Bro. Lipscomb refers to the fact that Paul received help from the barbarians of the island of Melita. This is true, but they did not assist him as a minister of Christ, in his evangelistic work. This is what they did: they showed to the Roman centurion and his party of soldiers, sailors and prisoners no common kindness; for they received them hospitably, and built a fire on account of the cold and rain. They honored them with many honors; and when they sailed, they put on board such things as were needed. Now if Bro. Lipscomb were to affirm that a body of shipwrecked men, who had lost their ship and all that was in it, and who had been cast, cold and wet and hungry, upon an island, might innocently receive as gifts the things that they needed from the kind hearted islanders, I certainly would not deny it. Now this happened on the island of Melita and Paul was one of a party of two hundred and seventy-six souls that was thus wrecked and thus cared for. Paul had nothing to do as to the receiving of these gifts for he was under the absolute control of the centurion, the leader of the party. Clearly it does not follow from this account that the evangelist may receive money for his evangelistic work from those without.

Another case upon which Bro. Lipscomb seems to rely with considerable confidence, and which he says I have not mentioned, is that of the Kenites who showed kindness to the children of Israel when they came up out of Egypt. See 1 Sam. 15: 5-6. "And Saul came to a city of Amalek, and laid wait in the valley. And Saul said to the Kenites, 'Go, depart, get you down from among the Amalekites, lest I destroy you with them: for you shewed kindness to all the children of Israel, when they came up out of Egypt.' So the Kenites departed from the Amalekites." The Kenites are also called Midianites; at least Moses' father-in-law is called by both names. The Midianites were the children of Abraham by Keturah; hence they were cousins to the Israelites, and Moses married one of them. They were worshipers of one true God. See Exodus 18: 9-12.

The kindness to which king Saul refers that was done by the Kenites to their relatives the Israelites, on their way out of Egypt, was this: Moses' father-in-law spake kindly to the children of Israel and gave them good advice. See Exodus 18: 13-24. If the Kenites did more for the children of Israel during their journeyings out of Egypt than this, I am not aware of it. Moses asked his brother-in-law, Hobab, the Kenite, to go with them, "That thou may be to us instead of eyes," said he; but it is not clear that Hobab did so. It is true also that Jael the wife of Heber the Kenite killed Sisera the enemy of Israel; but this was after they had come into the land of Canaan. The return which Saul made to the Kenites for their kindness to Israel was this: when in obedience to God's command he went down against the Amalekites to destroy them, he gave the Kenites warning that they might escape. I can't see this matter has any bearing upon the question between us. It all occurred before the church was established; Moses' father-in-law was a child of Abraham, and a devout worshiper of the living God, he only gave good advice; and in remembrance of his kindness, Saul gave his descendants an opportunity to escape from a destruction that was not intended for them. Again, if Bro. Lipscomb had affirmed that a child of God may receive good advice from his father-in-law and afterwards show a kindly spirit in return, I would not have denied it; but this is the substance of the matter in so far as the case of the Kenites is concerned.

Bro. Lipscomb thinks that "Cornelius evidently did his alms to the people of the Lord." It is not evident to me. It is said that "he gave much alms to the people"—to the Jews evidently; but at this time only such Jews as had accepted Christ were the people of the Lord; so far as I know it cannot be shown that Cornelius had ever given anything to a Christian. It is pleasing to God to give to the needy, whether they are Christians or not, and this man found favor with God in so doing.

In conclusion I must once more call attention to the quotation from John, which I still think clearly settles the question. John says to Gaius, "Beloved, thou doest a faithful work in whatsoever thou doest toward them that are brethren and strangers withal; who bear witness to thy love before the church: whom thou wilt do well to set forward on their journey worthily of God: because that for the sake of the Name they went forth, taking nothing of the Gentiles. We therefore ought to welcome such, that they may be fellow-workers with the truth." I claim that the word Gentile in this place is used to designate those who were not of the spiritual Israel, while Bro. Lipscomb seems inclined to think that it means all who were not Jews by birth, whether Christians or not.

This latter view cannot be correct for Gaius, to whom John was writing, and whom he was exhorting to help these brethren, was himself a Gentile by birth as appears from the name Gaius, which is Greek, and from the further fact that the other proper names mentioned in this chapter, Diotrophes and Demetrius are also Greek names. It is more than probable that the church of which they were members was the church of Ephesus, or Corinth. But, of course, this cannot be certainly settled. The Greek word rendered Gentiles means the heathen, the nations. They went forth taking nothing from the heathen, the nations. Hence John says "We (Christians) ought to welcome such that they may be fellow-workers with the truth."

There is no better way of showing one's sincerity to the world than by laboring earnestly for its welfare while refusing to receive compensation. Moreover when outsiders are allowed to contribute financially to the support of the church, they are apt to be consoled by it; they do not feel their lost condition as they should.

Then we cannot guard ourselves too carefully against the sin of covetousness, mammon-worship, idolatry, the most dreadful prevalent sin of the age, and the one which is most difficult for men generally to avoid.

A QUESTION FOR BAPTIST PREACHERS.

I presume the Baptist preacher would agree with me if I should say that baptism, unless preceded by faith, would not be Christian baptism; and, therefore, we agree that an infant child cannot be subject to Christian baptism. Again, I suppose the Baptist preacher will agree with me when I say we are "children of God by faith." Furthermore, I suppose there would be perfect agreement between us in saying that faith is a continuous action. Faith being a continuous action; any result, immediate or remote, will answer all the demands of the expression that such result is "by faith." When, therefore, a result is said to be "by faith," such statement does not determine that the result is immediate upon faith. Heaven, as a state of unmixed and infinite happiness, is a result of faith; and while it is such, and so represented in the Scriptures, yet it is not an immediate result of faith. When Paul, therefore, declares that "we are all children of God by faith," we may conclude that this result follows instantaneously upon the existence of faith. We may very properly say "we are all men physically by growth." No one, however, would conclude from such statement that physical manhood is reached immediately upon the existence of growth. We may very correctly say "we are all scholars by study," but no one, from such expression, would conclude that scholarship is attained as soon as the act of study begins, and the same facts obtain with reference to all other words which express continuous action.

Now, should it be necessary to determine the exact time when any result follows from such action, it may not be determined from the word that expresses the action. If there were nothing except the word faith to determine when a man became a son of God, he would remain in absolute ignorance of the fact while he lived in this world, seeing there is nothing in the the word by which such result can be determined. In order to determine when we become children of God by faith, we must look further than such expressions as ascribe this as a result of faith. Paul understood this when he wished to assure the Galatians that they were "children of God by faith," and immediately added the evidence of that fact. "For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ." Now, baptism is not a continuous action like faith; and when this act is given as proof of the existence of a fact by an inspired man, we are compelled to the conclusion that whenever this completed action exists, that which is established by it as the proof, must also exist, as a fact. Whenever, therefore, a man is "baptized into Christ," then that man is by the Scriptures proved to be a "child of God."

by faith," and unless a man is baptized it may not be said of that man he is a child of God by faith.

Now the question I propose to Baptists preachers is this: They claim that no one is a proper subject of Christian baptism unless he is a child of God by faith, and consequently the fact of membership in the divine family must first be determined before, and in order to, baptism. Now, will they be kind enough to explain why they give that as proof which Paul gives as the fact proved on the one hand, and that as fact proved which Paul gives as the evidence on the other. I doubt if any of the family will undertake to unravel this difficulty.

G. G. TAYLOR.

END OF KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT.

SENATOBIA, MISSISSIPPI.

On Lord's day, August 31, we began preaching at this place, and continued day and night for eight days. We had to preach in the court house, as there are but few brethren here, and they have no meeting-house. The denominations at this place oppose us strongly, and are not willing for us to preach in their houses. Some of our preachers that have preached there in the past have imprudently said some very harsh things that has increased their opposition and bitterness. We believe in preaching the word of God plainly, boldly, and without any compromise in the world. But harsh, outside remarks of our own that give offence, we think should never be indulged in. Speaking the truth plainly, and in the spirit and love of the truth seldom gives offense. We had a good hearing during the entire meeting, better than usual for our brethren to have at that place. The weather was oppressively warm, but the court room was well ventilated, and was a very pleasant room to speak in, and pleasant for the audience. The attention at first was not as good as we have seen, but improved toward the close, and toward the latter part of the meeting we never had better, while the audiences were much larger toward the close than at first. One sister took membership here that had been baptized elsewhere, but not one single one added, either from the world or the denominations. We do not remember when we preached eight days and nights before without moving a single individual to become a Christian. But we are satisfied that we sowed seed that will bring forth fruit hereafter. The few members there were much pleased with the meeting, and if they will meet and worship regularly, and keep their own hearts alive to the work, and show in their lives the purity and beauty of truth, the cause will certainly grow there in process of time. Senatobia is a small town, the county seat of Tate County, Mississippi, and is filled up mainly with an honest, intelligent people, some of whom at least, will see and embrace the truth by-and-by, if the brethren there will live it, and have it proclaimed occasionally in plainness and love.

Bro. B. W. Lauderdale is preaching there occasionally this year, and we hope the arrangement will be continued. Bro. Lauderdale loves the truth, and loves to tell it, and is doing great good in North Mississippi. We feel a deep interest in the growth of the cause in this section. We have not seen a better disposed people anywhere, and surely many more of them may yet be induced to embrace the truth. The people of that county have recently voted prohibition, and during our whole stay at Senatobia, we did not see a drunken man. If the citizens there will persevere in carrying this out, it will prove a great blessing to the town, and the whole county. We were surprised to find in that country so many Middle Tennesseans. And at their hands we met a very warm reception. In fact, we met a warm and hearty reception at the hands of all, and enjoyed our associations with them exceedingly for three weeks hard labor as we ever performed. And we hope they will abound more and more in the good work. Brothers McCain and Lauderdale were with us during the meeting, giving aid and encouragement by their prayers, by their songs, and by good words in and outside of the court room, and thus added much to the interest of the meeting.

E. G. S.

ITEMS, PERSONALS, ETC.

Bro. Granville Lipscomb has had twenty-two additions at Compton's school-house near this city. The meeting is still going on.

Bro. J. E. Scobey reports that South Kentucky College opened with one hundred and ten pupils, with good prospects for an increase in this number.

We have received the first number of a monthly, by J. T. Walsh, Kingston, N. C. We have mislaid it and forgot the name. But those wishing it can obtain it by sending one dollar to J. T. Walsh, Kingston, N. C.

We spoke last week of the financial embarrassment of the Guide, and the cause. We did it only after the Guide itself had announced it was in the hands of the trustee. We did not mean to intimate it will cease to be published. The trustee announces that he will continue to publish it and other publications until other satisfactory arrangements are made.

Bro. Owen Henry held a meeting at Pleasant Grove, Cheatham County, including fourth Lord's day in July with seven additions; three from the Baptists, four baptized. At Fairmount Academy, Cheatham County, fifth Lord's day in August, with eight baptized. He is now holding a meeting at Zion in Davidson County; four baptized to date.

A COMMENDABLE EXAMPLE.—The church at Mars Hill, Ala., collects through its regular contributions, such sum as it can, and sends a couple of young preachers to the nearest destitute section to labor so long as they can on the support given. In July or August it started two out a foot; the last report gives sixty-seven baptisms as the result. Why will not other churches do likewise? Scarcely a church in the land but can do as much if it will.

We make but one comment on Bro. Harding's article, after saying we think he fails to show our deductions from the Scriptures are not legitimate. That is, if it is right to let any one know of his condition when asked, it is right for Bro. Harding's church at home, with whose approval he goes forth to preach, to say, Bro. Harding, we wish you to report to us from time to time, how you fare, if you are supported, and especially, to say to him, if at any time your support in your field of labor is inadequate, we desire you to let us know and we will send to your help. The church ought to demand this of Bro. Harding and promptly help in every time of need.

We have received first copy of Firm Foundation, a twenty-four page monthly, published at Austin, Texas, by Bro. A. McGary. It is especially devoted to enforcing the idea that those not baptized with the idea that baptism is for the remission of sins, are not scripturally baptized, and should be re-baptized. While we believe baptism must be submitted to as an act of obedience to God, we think the making of its validity turn upon any other point than this, upon any understanding we may have of its purpose and end outside of this, is transferring the healing virtue from God to ourselves. And we believe it is an undue exaltation of the remission of sins above other objects and ends, so is doing violence to the word of God. The end that embodies all ends and duties, is it puts us into Christ, where is found all blessings—remission of sins is one of these. We see no reason why it should be exalted above the others. Those desiring the work can get it by sending one dollar to A. McGary, Austin, Texas, or for five dollars six copies.

Remember, we will send the ADVOCATE from now till the end of next volume, for two dollars.

GENERAL NEWS.

DOMESTIC.—President Arthur attended the funeral of both Senator Anthony and Secretary Folger, the one at Providence, R. I., the other at Geneva, N. Y.—Suits have been brought at Dubuque, Iowa, to restrain saloon keepers of that city from maintaining saloons. It is the first civil procedure under the prohibitory law.—The most disastrous fire in the history of Cleveland, Ohio, occurred last week. It commenced Sunday evening, in the lumber yard of Woods, Perry & Co., and sweeping almost the entire flats, covering many acres with burning and smouldering ruins. The loss is estimated at not less than $2,500,000.—The Lincoln Saving Bank of Fayetteville, Tenn., closed its doors on the 8th. Stringency of the money market and inability to collect, forced the suspension. The deposits are about $100,000, and the assets $200,000.—The suicide of Charles S. Hill, cashier, and Mahlon Runyon, President of the National Bank of New Jersey, is announced. A deficiency of nearly $200,000 was found.—The State election in Vermont, last week, resulted in the election of Pingree, Republican, for Governor, by a considerable majority.—Ten out of seventeen prisoners escaped from the county jail, at North Bend, Ind., last week, by sawing off several bars of the iron grating of a ventilating register in the floor.—Ten thousand children in Philadelphia are deprived of a public education for want of room. The school buildings in Philadelphia number 238, 196 of which are owned by the city. Forty-two are rented.—A sad calamity occurred, on September 4, at the Grand Army Reunion, at Tremont, Nebraska. Twenty thousand people had assembled at the parade grounds to witness the sham battle. A large amphitheatre had been constructed to accommodate the throng, but before it had been filled up, it gave way, precipitating two thousand persons to the ground. More than fifty persons were injured, varying from sprained ankles to fractured limbs and internal injuries. None were killed.

FOREIGN.—An immense demonstration in favor of the Franchise bill occurred at Glasgow, last week. At least 70,000 persons took part in the procession, which stretched out ten miles in length. The procession was headed by four hundred Carters on horseback, and four hundred survivors of the reform agitations of 1832. Forty bands, placed at intervals, furnished music for the unending throng.—A dispatch from Berlin says Dr. Schloezer, Prussian Minister at the Vatican, has been instructed to offer final terms for the adjustment of the difficulties between the Pope and the Prussian Government. Failing to reach an agreement, the legation will be withdrawn.—Advices from New Zealand state that the large emigrant ship, Lastingham, from London to Wellington, New Zealand, was wrecked in Cook strait, (on which Wellington is situated,) and all on board, except fourteen of the crew, were drowned.—Preparations are still in active progress for the British expedition for the relief of General Gordon, at Khartoum.—A dispatch from Naples states that during the twenty-four hours ending at nine o'clock, on the 11th, there were 966 new cases, and 328 deaths, from cholera.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We propose to send it one year to two subscribers, one of which must be a new one, for three dollars. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

Home Reading.

Labor on from dawn till nightfall;
Choose not what thy work shall be,
Even if a homely service
Is what God requires of thee.
For the task first that appeareth
Is the one that needs thy care;
And while doing it remember
Thou must hallow it with prayer.

SPARE BEDS.

That's a curious subject you will all think, and I think so myself, but I've got a little tale to unfold about spare beds in general, and one spare bed in particular, and I had just as well get at it.

Last fall Jasper (that's my husband) and I went over to Luke Singleton's to spend the day, and, as a big rain came on in the evening, we had to stay all night.

I was anxious to get back home; but Jasper said not to trouble, for his mother was with the children, and everything would go right, so I tried to enjoy myself, and succeeded very well.

Sarah Singleton is one of the best house-keepers that I know. She does more work than half the other women put together, and she laid herself out for a good supper, and got it.

When bedtime came around she lit a candle and led me out of her room into her spare room, which is in the front part of the house, and comes nearer being a parlor than any other in the neighborhood, for it had a nice carpet on the floor, two rocking chairs, a big bureau, and a beautiful bed. The white counterpane was tucked in so nicely, and the big pillows had such pretty shams on them, that I said:

"Sarah, I don't want to muss up that pretty bed; put us in one of the back rooms."

"I shall not," she said, laughing as hard as she could, "this is my company room, and I intend for my company to use it—we don't."

Then she turned down the covers, and gave the bed little pats here and there.

"Will you have the bolster and pillows, too?" says she.

"Mercy, no!" I said, "the bolster is enough, it would break my neck to lie on them big pillows, I expect." I said, "that there's fifty pounds of feathers in that bed and pillows."

"I know it," said Sarah, "there's forty pounds of feathers in that bed alone. It's that heavy I can't manage it; Luke has to carry it out when it is sunned. Dear me!" said she, sitting down in a chair, while I unlaced my shoes, "the time I did have picking those feathers. Sometimes the geese would pick me black and blue, and the ducks were a sight of trouble."

"Your carpet holds out well," I said, "it looks as well as it did when new."

"That's because I take care of it," she said. "I promised Luke that I'd take care of it if he'd buy it, and I have. If I were to leave the doors and windows open, it would soon fade; and instead of sweeping, I go over it occasionally with a damp cloth."

"That's a fine bureau," I said, for I don't begrudge to brag on my neighbor's things, not a bit, "and the drawers are so handy to keep things in."

"Yes," said Sarah, "but we don't keep our wearing clothes in here. I hate so much passing in and out over the carpet. We keep our bed-linen and nicest quilts here; and that makes me think," says she, jumping up, "you'll need a quilt on your bed. I'll get out Mary Ann's newest one. We quilted it last winter, and it never has been slept under. It is the 'world's wonder,' and it's got nearly fifteen hundred pieces in it."

It was the prettiest thing I ever laid eyes on, when Sarah spread it over the bed, and I felt that ashamed of my Mattie that I didn't know which way to look; for Mattie and Mary Ann were of one age—fourteen—and Mattie didn't have a quilt to her name, while Mary Ann had pieced six or eight nice ones.

When Sarah had bidden me good-night, and gone out, I took the candle and looked all around that pretty room. The pillow-shams took my time. There were flowers, birds and butterflies, worked all over them, and by Mary Ann, at that. I wondered if that was the reason the girl was so stoop-shouldered and so unhealthy looking, and then I thought of my tom-boyish Mattie, who couldn't sit still one minute scarcely, and wished she was more like Mary Ann in her ways.

The fire-place was hid by a paper screen, and there was pictures on it, and pictures on the walls; but, although everything was so pretty, it all smelled damp and mouldy.

Jasper came in and we went to bed, but I didn't rest as I thought I should. I turned over and over, till finally Jasper said:

"What on earth ails you to-night, Minty?"

"This bed needs sunning and airing," I said.

"How do you know?" he inquired.

"I know by the smell. Can't you smell the feathers?"

"It's the damp weather," he answered. "Everything smells musty in rainy weather."

"But it's full of lumps," I said, sitting up and trying to work them with my fists. "Sarah said she couldn't manage this bed, and I believe her, for it has not been sunned lately. Fresh feathers ought not to knot up so."

"Her beds should be like ours—pretty flat," says Jasper, and that was the last of him, for he went off to sleep.

But I staid awake a long time, and sniffed the damp smell of the fire-place, the strange odor of the feathers, and the mustiness of Mary Ann's quilt; but finally I dozed off.

Jasper waked me the next morning, sneezing. "Kerchew! kerchew!" he said, "hum, hum, hum! The rain is over, Minty, but I've got a bad cold. Kerchew! kerchew!"

"I feel right stiff," I said, "but I guess it will wear off when I get up."

"I hope it's not your old complaint coming on," he said.

My old complaint was sciatica. Well, it did come on. As I stepped in the buggy on starting home, it struck me in my hip like a knife.

"Oh!" I said, "that old pain again!"

Of course I was laid up for a week or more, suffering great pain, and all the time Jasper went sniffing and coughing around, drinking mullein tea.

"It is strange," he said to me one day, "that our trip to Singleton's laid us both up."

"It's their fine spare room and their grand company bed that did the work, and I'll hint Sarah with it, if I live," said I.

But I didn't see Sarah in some time. A month passed by, and one day she came to see me. I knew something was wrong with her, for she seemed out of sorts all day, and in the evening when I remarked that I hoped to be well enough to go out on our next meeting day, she surprised me.

"I never want to hear Bro. Simpson preach again," she said. "He has hurt my feelings so bad I can't get over it."

"What in the world?" I said, in amazement. "I thought Bro. Simpson was all in all with you and Luke."

"So he was," she said, just ready to cry, "and Luke has paid him more than any other one member, but he has hurt my feelings, in my own house."

"What has he done?" I urged, and she told me.

"He went home with us on his last appointment, and when bed-time came, and I fixed my best bed for him, he refused to occupy it."

"Was that all?" I inquired.

"No, he gave his reasons, and that's why it hurt me. He said he had lain in it once, and had a spell of sickness in consequence. He said he believed sleeping in unused beds caused the 'preacher's sore throat'; that in his travels he had been put in the spare rooms, till the colds, coughs and ticklings in his throat, interfered seriously with his preaching; and now he makes it a rule to ask to sleep with the children, or in a bed that was regularly used. The idea of putting the preacher with the children! And he went on and told me of foul gases, and goodness knows what else, that comes from unused feathers. He even said that there was microscopic fungus—little growing things—under my carpet and on the fire screen, just because I keep that room shut up ready for company. I never was so insulted in my life; but he was the preacher, and I had to bear it. I've thought myself a good house-keeper, and the idea of my clean, best room, being a trap of diseases—it's just horrible!"

Then I thought I'd speak if I died for it. "Sarah," I said, "don't get mad with me, for we have always been friends, and I believe you are a little the cleanest house-keeper in the neighborhood, but perhaps there is more truth than poetry in what Bro. Simpson said."

She looked at me pretty hard, but all she said, was, "Minty, I'm surprised at you."

"But may be it is unhealthy to sleep on feathers that are not aired often; we don't know, for we have never studied the matter."

"Bosh," Sarah said, "I know I don't sun my bed as often as I ought, but there is no gas in it to kill people."

"I'll tell you how to find out, Sarah," I said. "You and Luke sleep in that room, and see if it has any effect on you. If it has, make two beds out of that big one. Let your doors and windows stay open, even if the sun does fade the carpet; it makes the air so close when a room is shut up."

"I will," she said. "We will sleep in that dreadful bed to-night."

The next time I saw Sarah she was in a good humor, and laughed over her experiment.

"The room was dreadful musty," she said. "I had no idea feathers could smell so old and strange, and I'm sure I sat up in bed half the night, and had a crick in my neck besides. Luke was so stifled he couldn't get his breath, so he hoisted a window, and had a headache for his pains. I don't believe a word about that fungus, but when I took the fire-screen out to sun it the next day, there was a thin green coat on the back of it—mould, I suppose. I've divided that big bed, and I'm bound from this on to use that room in the day-time, if we don't need it at night. If keeping a room shut up makes it unhealthy, and I expect it does, that one shall stand open. The boys have put a mat at the door, and I tell them to walk right in to the big glass to comb and brush, if they wear the carpet to a frazzle, but they brush their feet just as carefully. Mary Ann says she is glad the preacher said what he did, and I've gotten over it now. I'm sure when he stays with us again the bed won't give him the sore throat."

So you see there ends the story of one spare bed, and I'll be bound all through the length and breadth of the land there is many a company bed that smells just as mouldy, just as musty, just as unhealthy, as Sarah Singleton's; but it's not every person who has the courage, like Bro. Simpson, to call attention to the fact.

AILENROC.

"ARE YOU GOD'S WIFE?"

A very touching incident will explain our title. A wealthy lady, riding down Broadway, New York, one cold day last winter, noticed a little thin-clad barefoot boy standing at the window of a shoe-store, intently gazing at the goods displayed therein. Stopping her carriage, she alighted, and going up to him inquired why he was looking so earnestly in the window. He replied, "I was asking God to give me a pair of shoes." Taking him by the hand, she led him into the store, and asked the proprietor if he would do her the favor of sending one of his clerks to purchase for her a-half dozen pairs of stockings. He cheerfully consented. She then asked him if he would bring her a bowl of water and a towel. Her request was granted, and then this lady, richly dressed, there on her knees, washed this poor boy's feet and wiped them with the towel. By that time the clerk had returned with the stockings. Selecting a pair, and purchasing a pair of shoes, she put them on his feet, and giving the bundle of stockings, said, "Now I think you will feel better." With tears in his eyes, he grasped strongly the hands which had so humbly and comfortably ministered to his painful necessity, and looking up earnestly into her face, said, "Are you God's wife?"

It was a scene which moved every beholder. And He who gave His Son, who went about among the poor doing good, would not resent the grateful homage of this poor, ignorant boy by such a natural inquiry, under the circumstances, but would recognize in that kind and suppliant woman's service to that poor boy, a service of love to Him who said, "Inasmuch as you have done it to one of the least of my disciples, you have done it unto me." Brother Editor, reading this incident, I transcribe it from memory that others may read it in the good old Watchman with dry eyes, if they can.—S. W. F. in Watchman.

DR. DUNCAN'S BLACKBERRY ELIXIR!

Nature's Great Remedy for Diseases and Affections of the Bowels.

This splendid and unfailing medicine is compounded from Blackberry and other Medical Roots and Herbs, is therefore perfectly harmless. It is pleasant and safe to the most delicate stomach. It is the most speedy and effectual medicine for the cures of all forms of Diarrhoea, in children or adults, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Dysentery, and the various Summer Complaints of the Bowels, so prevalent among all classes during the Summer season. Only one bottle (Price, 50 cents,) is sufficient to effect a cure.

DR. DUNCAN'S CHILL TONIC.

You need not Shake or Chill if you will use the Tonic. It never fails to stop the most aggravated forms of Chills and Fever if taken as directed, in from three to seven days, when Quinine and all other medicines fail. It will also, if taken regularly build and tone up the weak and debilitated system, and above all leaves no bad effects behind, as do so many other preparations.

DR. DUNCAN'S

Liver and Kidney Medicine.

The great preventive and cure of all malarial diseases and a sure cure of all forms of Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It acts directly upon the liver and all the secretory glands of the stomach and bowels, it cures the disease by removing the cause from the system that produces or brings on the disease, hence it is unsurpassed for the cure of Consumption, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, and also those symptoms indicating the want of proper action of those glands situated in the stomach and bowels. Two or three bottles of DR. DUNCAN'S LIVER AND KIDNEY MEDICINE is positively recommended to relieve and cure any of the above diseases if taken as directed. Price, 75 cents.

DUNCAN'S WORM SYRUP.

One bottle of this Syrup will completely expel all species of Worms and without injury to the child, as it contains no Calomel or other injurious substances. Again, it is pleasant to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, and therefore administered without trouble. Price, 25 cents.

LUTIE GRAPE VINES.

In offering this remarkable grape for sale, we wish to say to all grape growers that we have been growing and experimenting for these twenty years on different varieties, numbering a hundred or over, and so far have found nothing to equal the Lutie in all the essential qualities for profitable grape culture. We gave notice a year ago of this claim, and repeat it in this, that we challenge the world to show a better grape for this climate—hardier and thrifter in growth, free from rot, or finer in size or quality. But these are not its chief merits. It will produce more fruit at two years old, than any grape known to us can be made to produce in three. We challenge the test. If any have failed to see the Lutie in bearing, it is not our fault. We have invited all to come and see for themselves. Now, gentlemen of the vitus craft, come to law, or clear the way for "Miss Lutie."

We offer well-rooted one year old vines of this grape at the following rates:

One vine, well-rooted, one year old, - -	$3 00
Two " " " " " " " " " "	5 00
Five " " " " " " " " " "	10 00
Twelve " " " " " " " " " "	20 00

Orders for Lutie vines will be received till our fall delivery, which will be November or until our present stock is exhausted, due notice of which will be given. From the number of orders coming in at this early day we cannot hope to be able to fill any spring orders at all. Therefore all desiring vines for the coming spring must order early and secure them this fall. Our fall delivery for city and country orders will be made at Nashville, on Saturday, November 1, 1884. Orders from a distance will be sent by mail or express, as desired. Money must be sent in by November 1, or paid on delivery of vines. Address

Indulgence in Excesses.

Whether over eating or drinking are made harmless by using Hop Bitters freely, giving elegant appetite and enjoyment by using them before and removing all dullness, pain and distress afterwards, leaving the head clear, nerves steady, and all the feelings buoyant, elastic and more happy than before. The pleasing effects of a Christian or sumptuous dinner continuing days afterwards.

Eminent Testimony.

N. Y. Witness, Aug. 15, 1880.

"I find that in addition to pure spirits contained in their composition, they contain the extracts of hops and other well-known and highly approved medicinal roots, leaves and tinctures in quantities sufficient to render the article what the makers claim it to be, to-wit, a medicinal preparation and not a beverage—unfit and unsafe to be used except as a medicine.

"From a careful analysis of their formula—which was attested under oath—I find that in every wine-glassful of Hop Bitters, the active medical properties aside from the distilled spirits are equal for a full dose for an adult, which fact, in my opinion, subjects it to an internal revenue tax as a medicinal bitter." GREEN B. RAUM, U. S. Com. In. Rev.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water. All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, '81.

Poverty and suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost, I know it." IMPROVED METHOD OF STRINGING

MASON & HAMLIN

IMPROVED

Upright Pianos.

Entire iron frames to which the strings are directly attached by metal fastenings, securing

1. Best quality of tone, which is very musical and refined; free from the ruddiness which is common.
2. Greater durability and freedom from liability to get out of order; adaptations to trying positions and climates.
3. Increased capacity to stand in tune; will not require tuning one-quarter as often as pianos on the old system.

Having tested this new system of construction for two years and proved its advantages, this Company are now increasing their manufacture of pianos, and offer them to the public generally. Every piano of their make will illustrate that supreme excellence which has always characterized their Organs, and won for them highest award at every great world's exhibition for sixteen years.

Mars Hill College.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fifteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for

(1) PREACHING; (2) TEACHING; (3) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen;
mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

T. B. LARIMORE, President.

PURIFYING THE HEART.

If Bro. Walling will read our article again he will see that we did not say there was no difference between him and Bro. Bradley, but we said there was no practical difference—that is, no difference that would lead to a difference of practice.

Bro. Walling insists that purifying their hearts by faith (Acts 15: 9) means purifying the hearts by the gospel—"the faith"—and the heart was not purified until the whole obedience of faith had been submitted to.

This may be so, but we would like our brother to remove one difficulty that lays in the way. The persons referred to are the Gentiles at the house of Cornelius. Take a few verses back. It reads, "God made choice among us that the Gentiles by my mouth, should hear the word of God and believe." That refers, I take it, to simply believing with the heart what was heard—not the full obedience of faith. "And God which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us." Now this was before the full obedience of faith. God knew their hearts, and because he knew them he gave them the Holy Ghost before the full obedience of faith. Now did he give the Holy Ghost because he knew the heart was pure, or because he knew it was impure? Is it not true, the same believing that fitted the heart for the reception of the Holy Spirit, was the faith that purified the heart? We suggest that the purifying of the heart is a gradual, progressive development. The sinner's heart must be purified, but the erring Christian is also commanded to purify his heart. Jas. 4: 8. Even those who are faithful as Christians are commanded to purify themselves. "We know that when he shall appear we shall be like him, and every one that hath this hope in him, purifieth himself even as he is pure." John 3: 3.

Then the work of purification is a continued process—a growth—that ends only when we shall have become like to the Son of God, when we shall see him as he is. There are degrees of purification. The heart has taken one step in the process of purification when it believes in the Lord Jesus Christ, so as sincerely determine to obey him. In contrast with the heart that refuses to believe and prefers the paths of sin, that heart may be said to be a purified heart. In comparison with the condition when we shall be made like him, it is not pure, and needs to be purified by adding the graces. All the way between these then are degrees of purification. A lower compared with a higher degree cannot be said to be pure, but with a lower still it is purified.

With this view, which is scriptural, both Bro. Walling and Bro. Bradley were right in their use of the term. I would call attention to the fact that the purification and the cleansing in the Scriptures are recognized as distinct. Examine Numbers 19: 11: "He that toucheth the dead body of any man shall be unclean seven days. He shall purify himself with it on the third day, and on the seventh he shall be clean; but if he purify himself not the third day, then the seventh day he shall not be clean." Showing there was a difference between the purifying and cleansing. The purifying is the process of preparation through which the individual goes. The cleansing is the forgiveness of the sin by God. Belief of the truth is the first step in the purifying process. The purification proceeds until it reaches the place and time when God cleanses. Of course it has reached a higher degree of purification than when it first started. Every act of obedience is a step in the purifying process. The trouble arises from the teaching of our sectarian friends. My old friend, G. W. Griffin, ridicules the idea of a pure heart, unforgiven, and even intimates that our position sends a pure heart to hell. But we always thought he ought to be ashamed of himself for such criticism. The Bible plainly teaches that the evil spirit is cast out of a man; but failing to fill the heart with what is good, the evil spirit returns and takes possession, and with him seven spirits more wicked than himself, and the last state of that man is worse than the first. Certainly when the evil spirit is cast out of the heart, it is pure, as compared with when the evil spirit dwelled in it. But it is not pure, as compared with what the heart would be if, occupied by a good spirit working love to God and man. So many a heart is purified from its evil purpose, but not carrying that purpose into active obedience, the purpose changes, and it becomes more evil than at first, and is lost in hell. Not while it is pure, but when failing to carry that purifying process on, it becomes impure. So when the heart believes, if it fails to carry the good purpose forward in obedience, the moment it changes, an evil spirit is in possession, and the heart becomes at once impure. The degree of purification needed to secure the cleansing from the Lord is attained when the whole man, soul and body, submits to God in baptism. The very moment the heart changes from a purpose of obedience to one of disobedience, it is impure, an evil spirit reigns in it.

D. L.

BRO. LIPSCOMB: We have here what we call "storm houses" excavated in our yards, covered by a mound supported by heavy beams. We use them for the same purposes that you use cellars in Tennessee. And during one of our violent wind storms we go down in the storm-houses for safety. Some men will not go, thinking it looks cowardly. Now, some questions. Do those who go in storm-houses lack faith? Do those who stays out have more faith? If an infidel husband stay out, and his faithful, Christian wife takes her children and go is in, what then? Is it right for Christians to hazard their lives to show their faith? Do cyclones never kill the faithful?—[A. B., Camanche, Texas.]

We once knew a Calvinistic Baptist who refused to put a lightning-rod on his house, on the ground that it was working against providence. His wife and son called on me in his presence to know if putting up a lightning-rod implied a distrust of providence, or was working against him. I told them it was no more so than putting a roof on his house to keep the rain off. God sends the rain just as much as he does the lightning. The roof is to protect us from the ill-effects of God's rain; the rod, from the ill-effects of God's lightning. I cannot see but that putting the roof on, or wearing clothes to ward off the ill-effects of God's cold winds, is just as much distrust of God, as using lightning-rods, or of making storm cellars to ward off the effects of God's cyclones.

God clearly intended that man should use his faculties to avoid the evil that grows out of the operations of his laws. Those laws are for the good of the universe, but in their operation they work evil to man, unless he guards against the evil. The heat and the cold, the wet and the dry, alike demand this care. We cannot see why the lightning and the cyclone may not, too; nor why the providing against the evil of the one is any more a distrust of God, than providing against the evil of the other.

While surely this, as a matter of principle, is correct, we have built and lived in several houses, but never had a rod put to any of them. This was not because we thought it was any reflection on providence, but the fewness of the houses injured by lightning has never impressed me with the importance of protection. Besides, we have never had any faith in the rod as a means of protection. We think the same of the storm cellars. We don't think they will ever save a life. The cyclone that destroys life does not wait for the women and children to get into the cellar. They will go so often for naught, they will tire of it, and not go when the death-dealing cyclone comes along. When we hear of one case of the family being in the cellar when the house is destroyed, we may change our judgment.

While proper thoughtful precaution against the evils of nature's operations, is not incompatible with Christian faith, a constant dread of evil, an unmanly or unwomanly timidity is. The spirit that continually dreads evil, that lives in constant fear, lacks trust in God and is unchristian.

While on this subject I will say more. God protects his children from danger and temptation when doing duty to him. God closed the lion's mouth, shielded from the heat of the furnace, only when his children were in these dangers through fidelity to him. Had Daniel gone into the den merely as an act of courage and bravery, when no duty to God forced him there, the lions would have had the mastery. Had the Hebrew children once preserved from the fury of the flames when led there through fidelity to God, concluded they could do it, when no such principle was involved, the fire would have consumed them. God preserves from danger and temptation only when the danger is incurred through the performance of duty to God and man. When we run in temptations way from any other motive than that of duty to God and man, God does not propose to provide a way of escape.

When we fail to cover our houses, prepare clothing or other fuel, to use means to ward off other dangers by preparation, God does not protect. Our failure to use the lightning-rod or the storm-cellar would be from no feeling that their use would indicate a lack of faith in God, but because of a lack of faith in the necessity of such protection, and if necessary, a distrust of these provisions as adequate to protect. The true part of a Christian is to use such means as is at hand to guard against evil, and having done this to implicitly trust God without fear or apprehension.

ELDERS, DEACONS, EVANGELISTS.

I have for some months intended to advance some additional ideas on this subject, but my occupation has been such that I could not possibly find time. Those who will look back to number 12, page 178, current volume of GOSPEL ADVOCATE, will see the ideas already set forth, which were elicited by a query from Bro. N. A. Bostick, and Bro. Lipscomb's reply.

I think no successful effort has been made to overturn the position which I have taken. In number 20, page 312, can be found some criticisms and a question propounded by Bro. Bostick, to which I shall make some reference; but my first and main object is to view the subject of "ordaining church officers" from another standpoint.

Inasmuch as the New Testament records the facts that Paul and Barnabas "ordained elders in every church," (Acts 14: 23,) and that Paul left Titus in Crete that he might "ordain elders in every city," (Titus 1: 5,) and other kindred facts, it is claimed by some that we have a Scripture precedent for "ordaining elders;" and, therefore, we must ordain them, or fail to follow the Scripture pattern.

At the present time, in deciding what we should or should not follow as a Scripture precedent, it is necessary for us to consider, (1) Was the original act performed by the apostles or other inspired men? or was it performed by uninspired members of the church, (such as we,) who were dependent upon the apostle's words for all they knew of Christianity? Having found it to have been performed by the primitive Christians in general, we should determine (2) whether or not it is applicable to us who live since "that which is perfect, the full will of God, the completed revelation," is given to the churches.

A failure to appreciate these considerations has caused men in modern times to adopt the convocation of apostles and elders at Jerusalem, as recorded in fifteenth chapter of Acts, as a precedent, and hence we find them in councils, assemblies, synods, conferences, societies and conventions, making and sending out laws for the government of the church; not realizing that every other question, as well as that of circumcision, has been settled by inspiration. Just so, we fail to recognize the very significant fact that in the primitive days of the church, it was God, himself, through the instrumentality of inspired men, who placed elders over the flock, while in no case did a congregation ever place elders over itself. Nor is there any command or instruction to a congregation with regard to "ordaining" or in any sense placing elders over itself. We have no precedent for this!

Let us then, as did the faithful disciples of old, recognize and submit to those whom God has placed over us. Here is our precedent!

But whom, we may ask, has God placed over us? We may answer, that so far as innate authority is concerned, it exists in God alone. He speaks to us through his Son, into whose hands he has delivered all authority in heaven and in earth. This authority is communicated to us through the apostles as instruments. If there are in the church any who should be called "officers," they are the apostles. They are ambassadors for Christ, judging the twelve tribes of Israel. They sustain this relationship to the church universal. Before the apostles' words were written and compiled into the New Testament, it was necessary, in the organization and regulation of the church, that men called elders should be "ordained" (set or placed) over the disciples in different localities (congregations). This ordaining was always done by the apostles or by inspired evangelists, who, it seems, were qualified to do whatever work of the apostles was necessary to be done in setting things in order. They seem to have been a kind of sub-apostles, in places where the apostles could not be. But I doubt the propriety of calling those primitive elders, or even the apostles, officers, as I understand from scholars that the word office, in its modern sense, does not occur in the original.

Another consideration is this: An officer enters as a constituent part into a distinct organization. There can be no officer without an office, and no office without a systematically organized body. The congregation of disciples in which the elder does his work, is not such a body. The congregation is simply the church of God, represented by the members at some particular locality, as at Corinth, or at Ephesus, or at Nashville. The church universal is an organization, with Christ as the head, the church herself as the body, composed of members, individual Christians of all ages. The disciples in any locality, while not the whole, are a complete representative of the whole. Whatever is done, as a matter of true faith, by the church in any particular place, is done by the whole church. To illustrate: When a member is scripturally received into fellowship by the disciples at Nashville, he is in fellowship with the whole church. The idea of an individual's being in fellowship with one congregation and not in fellowship with another, shows that something is wrong! Thus, while congregations are independent of each other, they are each dependent upon the Bible, and a strict adherence to the word will produce a uniformity in faith and practice.

We are aware that "stereotyped custom" is at variance with the ideas here advanced. The prevailing idea is that a congregation is an organized body, having a door by which those who are members of the church enter into and become members of a church. As the New Testament knows of no such organization, and furnishes no such door, men have had to bring their inventive faculties into use. So "a church is organized" in a certain locality, and Christians are received into it, some "by letter," some "by relation," some "by discovery," some by the "right hand of fellowship," etc.

I see that Bro. F. G. Allen, with his characteristic shrewdness, completely explodes this unscriptural bubble, (Old Path Guide, June 20.) Yet he tries to draw a distinction between what he calls "local church membership," and membership in the body of Christ in general. As an argument he says, "The disciples at Jerusalem and those at Antioch were alike members of the church of Christ, but those at Antioch were not members of the church at Jerusalem, nor were those at Jerusalem members of the church at Antioch." But he virtually admits that the sole reason why the disciples at Antioch were not members of the church at Jerusalem instead of Antioch, is the fact that they were at Antioch, and not at Jerusalem. For, if they were alike members of the church of Christ, those at Antioch were as fully members with those at Jerusalem, as with those at Antioch. But their membership was at Antioch because they were there. When one of them went up to Jerusalem, his membership was at Jerusalem. Can any organization, either human or divine, exist without a door? What is the door into the "local congregation?" If not a distinct organization, how can it have officers? Let us have light.

When we come to modern times, we are all alike under God through the instrumentality of his word, and the only sense in which God places men over us now, is that each is bound to use and improve his talent to the extent of his ability. Some, by reason of age and other superior advantages, learn more of the Scriptures, and become better qualified than others to teach and exhort, to watch over the flock. It is their duty to do this; and it is the duty of others to receive and obey the truth as it is taught by them in its purity. So all can see that so far as this work is concerned, I believe in it just as strongly as does Bro. Bostick, or any one else. I believe there is no escape from it except in rebellion against God, (while, according to Bro. Bostick, one who is qualified may escape the work by failing to be ordained. If not so, then why ordain him, if he is bound to do the work anyhow?) Neither am I tenacious as to the title "elder," so long as it is not abused.

Bro. Bostick claims that my position makes it obligatory upon each one to teach, govern and watch after the welfare of the church. Not so, from the fact that not all have the same talent. "Whatsoever thy hand findeth to do, do it with thy might." "We have many members in one body, and all members have not the same office (work)." Rom. 12: 4. Let those in the congregation, who are qualified for the overseership, be recognized as those who should do that work. But let not the congregation presume to exclude from the work, any who are qualified, for no one has a right to say to another, "You shall not improve your talent."

As to Bro. Bostick's efforts at reply as found on page 312, I leave the sincere readers to judge. All can see that he used the word lead in a sense entirely different from that in which I had used it. He is welcome to all he gains by his caricature of following after a faithful elder or strutting before him. The misrepresentation was that Bro. Bostick wrote me down as holding that elders and deacons had passed away just as apostles and prophets had, whereas, I had told him only the night before his query was dated, that I held that the apostles and prophets, as regards their work in the church, had not passed away, but occupied the same position in the church to-day that they did when in the flesh.

He closes by asking me for a categorical yes or no, to the question, "Do you believe in the eldership and deaconship, and their work as taught by the Christian church?" Suppose I should give him a yes or a no, would he know anything more about it than what I have written? I might ask him to define "Christian church" inasmuch as it is an unscriptural term. If he means the true church of God as composed of all true disciples of our Lord, I answer, they have no formulated statements or practice concerning the eldership and deaconship, but are seeking the truth on that and all other subjects, and are obeying the truth as fast as they find it. Doubtless many of them are identified with those who are wearing human names and are guilty of unscriptural practices, but if true disciples, their motto is, "Let us have the light that we may walk therein." But if he mean those who have organized themselves into a distinct body, and are known by such unscriptural titles as "Christian Church," "Disciple's Church," "Our Church," "Our Brotherhood," etc., then I cannot answer yes or no, from the fact that different ones differ widely from each other on this subject. And when a part of them shall formulate a system of faith on this or any other subject, shut up investigation and say to others, you must accept this or be regarded as a gainsayer, they at once become a sect.

Bro. Bostick fails to comprehend the force of my question about the work of the "ordained elder." I repeat that if necessary to ordain the elder, there is a work for him to do which he can not do while not ordained. Again, I ask, What is that work? If God has ordained that it shall be performed by an installed officer, then he has ordained that it shall not be done by any one else.

DEACONS, EVANGELISTS.

As yet, no ray of light penetrates the darkness enveloping the deacon's work.

My position with regard to the evangelist has not been controverted. Here I rest on my oars. Brethren, ponder these things. If I am wrong, right me; not by quibbling, but by solid argument from God's word. L. C. WELLS.

Bibb, Comanche County, Texas.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. L. Bryant writes: "I send you a brief report of some meetings. I began a meeting at Nazareth on the third Lord's day in August, and continued several days with two confessions and baptisms. Although we did not have many additions, I consider the meeting a good one. I held a meeting at Scobey's Chapel, beginning the fourth Lord's day in August; two were baptized. Our meeting at McWhirtersville began on the fifth Lord's day in August, and closed on the night of the first Lord's day in September. There were five young ladies baptized, and three other persons took membership with the congregation. This was my first visit to this place. Formed new acquaintances which will not be forgotten. Had the pleasure of meeting Bro. L. R. Sewell who helped us in the work. I am pleased with the work that I saw in this congregation. Bro. Sewell preached four discourses at Phillippi with one baptism. I continued the meeting and baptized five others, making six additions at this place. That the good work may go on is my prayer."

H. L. Walling, McMinnville, Tenn., September 18, writes: "Bro. T. B. Larimore closed his two weeks' meeting to-day, with thirty-six additions to the church. The good seed was sown and no doubt will bring much fruit by-and-by. 'Praise' is comely for us."

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

E. A. Elam, Lebanon, Tenn., September 17, writes: "Our meeting at Antioch, Rutherford County, beginning first Lord's day in September, closed on the following Friday with five additions. At 7 o'clock this morning sister Lucy Ann Thompson, Bro. Andrew Thompson's mother, breathed her last. She was seventy years old. Funeral from the church to-morrow at 3 o'clock, p. m."

W. B. Leslie, September 12, writes: "Bro. E. A. Land began a meeting on Saturday night before the fifth Lord's day in August, and closed on Thursday night following. Twelve were added to the church. Bro. Land has done a good work in the cause among us. Truly it was a time of refreshing. We esteem Bro. Land one of our best men. May the Lord long spare him to labor for the good of his fellow men."

R. P. Meeks, Guntown, Miss., September 15, writes: "Since the Bakerville meeting, I have held the following meetings: Adamsville, Refuge and Clear Creek, in Tenn. Bro. Michie was with me at Clear Creek. In addition to the above, held two meetings in Miss.; one at Booneville, the other at Red Hill, and am now in a meeting here. The immediate result of all these meetings is fifty-nine additions. The prospects, I think, are good here."

J. Harding, Waco, Texas, September 15, writes: "I reached here on the 6th of this month and begun a meeting on the 7th, and have been preaching to good crowds; last night the house and yard were full and many went away for want of room. Seven have been added to the congregation and a number have 'fessed up.' The brethren think the prospect good for a grand meeting. I go from here to Dallas; don't know when that will be, but when this meeting closes. I think I will get some subscribers for the ADVOCATE here. Pray for us."

E. B. Cayce, Franklin, Tenn., September 15, writes: "I met my regular monthly appointment yesterday, it being the second Lord's day in September. Had one elderly gentleman to unite with us from the Methodists by confession and baptism. Said he had not been satisfied with his position for a long while past, and finally concluded to yield to his conviction of duty to God and his soul's interest, though it required a great struggle to break away from old tried friends and associates. But he said to me just after his baptism, 'now I feel so much better satisfied.' Our protracted meeting begins at Berea next Saturday night, three and one-half miles from this place."

F. C. Sowell, Jones Valley, writes: "From Dunlap we went to Cathey's Creek, where we conducted a series of meetings for six days, which resulted in twenty six from the world, and two prodigals returned to battle for the Lord. There is quite a large membership of brethren at this place, and it is very encouraging to meet with so many in one neighborhood. We trust those who have just come out on the Lord's side will work earnestly and faithfully, remembering if in this life we make the failure to serve him, it will be forever made. We are now at Leatherwood school-house with Bro. Waldron. We hope to do some good at this place. There is work for the man who will do it."

V. M. Metcalfe writes: "I recently had the pleasure of attending a protracted meeting at Liberty Station, Kentucky. The meeting had been in progress about two weeks, conducted by Bro. G. B. Waggoner, of Ghent. There were, I think, about twenty-five additions, most of them by baptism. I heard Bro. Waggoner preach two discourses, and it is seldom I have the pleasure of hearing such an earnest, plain, gospel preacher. The people all appear to love him very much at Ghent, and at this point. He speaks of going West soon, which, I think, would be a great misfortune to this section. He is working and doing so much good that the brethren should keep him, if possible. The congregation at Liberty Station is a new one. Last year they built them a good house of worship, and are working in harmony and love, having a fine influence on the outside world around them. May the Lord bless Bro. Waggoner and the good brethren in that section."

John C. Laws, Bethlehem, Miss., September 10, writes: "Our meeting at Union Hill, four miles east of this place, in this county, (Marshall,) included the fifth Lord's day in August, and closed on Friday night following. Five additions to the church was the result of the meeting. The meeting was conducted by Bro. W. E. Crum, of Hickory Flat, Miss., assisted by Bro. W. F. Mitchell, of Colliersville, Tenn. Bro. Mitchell was visiting relatives here. He spoke for us twice at the Christian church, and once at the Methodist church. Bro. Mitchell speaks the truth in love, and gains the attention and confidence of all that hear him. Hope he will come back again. Bro. Crum is a good preacher, and doing much for the Master's cause. Three of the above additions were by confession and baptism, one from the Baptists, and one from the Methodists."

M. H. Northcross, Bunker Hill, Tenn., September 10, writes: "Bro. H. J. Spivy commenced a protracted meeting at Ephesus, Giles county, Tenn., on Saturday before the first Lord's day in this month. Bro. F. W. Smith and I joined him on Lord's day. Bro. Smith preached the evening sermon and returned home. After services Lord's day morning, I was invited to Aspen Hill to dine under the hospitable roof of our dear brother, W. T. Talley, where I found Bro. W. F. Watson and Sister Welch, of Talley Station, waiting my arrival, to be united in the holy estate of matrimony. Of course they were soon pronounced no longer twain, but one. The meeting continued until Thursday. Considerable interest manifested, but no additions. We think the cause of no additions was a cold church, and we think we continued to preach God's burning word until we got the ice-burys therein to melting properly, and then closed the meeting. May the melting process continue until the heart of the church is thoroughly warmed, giving a hearty circulation throughout its body, that its pulse may be felt by those within and without. We were highly pleased with the teaching of our dear brother, H. J. Spivy. He shuns not to declare God's counsel in full. He brings down with God's rifle, the word, the 'bon tons,' the upper-tens, societies, and even some Christian preachers who are regular dry goods establishments, with a jeweler shop combined, traveling through the country evangelizing. 'A pretty example to the flock,' says he."

L. R. Sewell, Shop Springs, Tenn., September 16, writes: "I left the dear ones, on July 30, for the mountains. I began a meeting at New Smyrna, in Warren county, on Saturday before the first Lord's day in August, and continued it till the next Friday evening. Eleven were added to the congregation, nine by confession and baptism. At this place we have a strong congregation, and but little outside material to work on. On Saturday night before the second Lord's day in August, I preached to a large congregation at Hebron, near Irving College, and on Lord's day began a meeting at Northcutt's school-house, in Northcutt's Cave, Grundy county, and continued until Thursday. Eight added to the congregation, five by confession and baptism. At this place the brethren seemed much discouraged. Had not been meeting regularly for some time. We left them full of zeal and determined to meet regularly and attend to all the ordinances of the Lord. From here I crossed the mountain, and on Saturday before the third Lord's day in August began a meeting at Bethel, near Sequatchie College, Bledsoe county, which continued until the next Friday. Five added to the congregation. This is another place where we have a fine working congregation, and but little outside material. Bro. E. H. Boyd, of this congregation, is a good preacher, and the brethren keep him in the field most all of the time. From here I went to Pikeville, same county, and began a meeting on Saturday night before the fourth Lord's day in August, and continued until Wednesday night. Here I succeeded in getting the brethren in and around Pikeville to come together as a church, to meet regularly on Lord's days, to worship and attend to all the ordinances. This they agreed to do faithfully. One young man made the good confession and was baptized. On Thursday morning I left them. I reached my home at Donelson, Davidson county, on Saturday, August 30, having been gone one month. I found all well, and ready for our meeting, which began the same night. Bro. J. L. Bryant joined me on Lord's day, and we continued the meeting, he doing the preaching, until the next Lord's day night. Eight additions to the congregation, five by confession and baptism, and much interest awakened in the community. At this place (McWhirtersville) we have one of the best working congregations in my knowledge, and its influence is both seen and felt in the surrounding community. I am now engaged in a meeting at Bethel, Wilson county. Have large and attentive audiences, but know not what the result will be. I am trusting all to the Lord, and to the word of his grace."

W. G. Loyd, Lewisburg, writes: "Bro. J. M. Kidwill is preaching for us; commenced on Saturday before the first Lord's day in this month. There have been twenty-two additions to date. The meeting will continue perhaps all this week."

J. D. Floyd, Flat Creek, Tenn., September 12, writes: "It was my pleasure to baptize, last Wednesday, my old time friend, Frank Brown, of Moore County. He and his wife spent the day and night with me, and while here the baptism took place in my fish pond in the presence of his wife and my family."

W. H. Carter, Lafayette, Tenn., September 18, writes: "Bro. Rogers held a week's meeting at Montrose, Smith county, resulting in nine additions. I began a meeting at Tompkinsville, Ky., Saturday night before the first Lord's day in this month, and continued until last Monday night. Seven were added to the faithful in Christ. One of them was a Baptist sister. She confessed her faith, and was baptized for the remission of sins. The rest were from the world. Bro. Rogers assisted me part of the time."

Robert Kirby, Cumberland County, Ky., September 13, writes: "I closed my meeting in White's Bottom, last Wednesday. Three added to the Lord, all by confession and baptism. One of them was a Presbyterian. All of them were young ladies, in the bloom of youth. About eighteen months ago we had no church at this place. We had no brothers, and but one sister, in this neighborhood. A Methodist gentleman in that bottom sent for me to come and preach for them, and his wife and himself and one other, Presbyterian, obeyed the gospel. Since then we have organized a church, numbering about twenty-four members, who are doing well, and hope there will be soon a large church at that place."

H. W. Baker, North Pleasureville, Ky., September 4, writes: "Our meeting at Berea, Henry County, Ky., closed last Sunday night, August 31st, with forty-three added to the congregation, and the cause greatly strengthened. Bro. Harding has some peculiarities that some do not like, but I must say that I have never heard a brother preach the word plainer and with more force. His preaching will long be remembered by the church and community, and the seed sown will in the future bring forth fruit to the glory of God. There were some troubles in the church that were adjusted which added much to the success of the meeting. May the blessing of God attend Bro. H. and his family, and bring them with all the redeemed to his everlasting kingdom, is my earnest prayer."

J. L. Sewell, Viola, Tenn., September 17, writes: "I went to Unionville on the first Lord's day in September, and preached until Thursday night, to very small audiences. Had no additions. There is no congregation there, and I saw only four disciples. I heard of some others that had been baptized, but they did not attend the meeting, and from what I could learn, they are doing no good, but are injuring the cause. The denominations are strong there and prejudice bitter. But the disciples have a good house, and, I think, the cause of truth ought to be established there. I think the ministers ought to visit it and see if the cause cannot be established. I am willing to go again, and I think the best time is when protracted meetings are over. I think there are people there who would receive the truth."

It is better in some respects to be admired by those with whom you live, than to be loved by them. And this not on account of any gratification or vanity, but because admiration is so much more tolerant than love.

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview, Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

CORRESPONDENCE.

DEAR BRO. POE: The church here sent me out last week to hold a meeting in a settlement where but few of our brethren are. Bro. A. R. Smith joined me. The result of our meeting was eight turned to the Lord, and were baptized. One young man, at the close of the lesson, yesterday, arose and confessed. "I believe with all my heart that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God; and upon this confession, and by the authority of Jesus, I ask for baptism." A young girl came to the water, yesterday, and made the good confession, and demanded baptism, whose father said if she joined the "Campbellite" church, she should not return home. Her mother is dead, but she found mothers many, and a home was provided. Bro. A. B. Smith leaves, this morning, for the Indian Territory. He goes by the consent of the elders of the church here. He will give his whole time to the Indian work up to January 1, 1885. The church here did not accept my resignation, but say they will send me out first of November, as evangelist. Some preachers have charge of churches, but in this case the church has charge of the preacher. We look for Bro. C. C. Cline, September 14. I will be out in the interest of Indian Mission soon. Will spend part of September in Kansas. "Can't we keep an evangelist in the field all the time, and build the house, too?" R. W. OFFICER.
Paris, Texas, September 1, 1884.

DEAR BRO. POE: Our meeting at Moore's Springs resulted in two confessions and baptisms, two from the Baptists, and three restored. The church is left in good condition. Bro. Barkley, of Kentucky, was with me in the meeting. I have a letter before me calling me into the Indian Territory to baptize seven persons, converted to the faith by reading the books I left with them. Three took membership with us here to-day. I will begin a meeting, to-morrow, a few miles from this place. The congregation will send me out, in all probability, about first of November, evangelizing and soliciting help for Indian Mission. We will try to keep a man at work in Indian Territory all the time after first of November. I received a check from Lipscomb & Sewell, for fifty dollars for Indian Mission work. My little boy has been very sick, but is better.
Paris, Texas. R. W. OFFICER.

ARKANSAS ITEMS.

BROTHERS LIPSCOMB & SEWELL:—I have a few more items for the readers of the ADVOCATE. Embracing the second Lord's day in August, Bro. E. M. Northum held a meeting at Rocky Comfort in Little River county, which resulted in thirty additions. Embracing the third Lord's day in Aug., Bro. J. H. Hile (not Hill) held his second meeting at Bluff City in Nevada county, which resulted in eighteen confessions and baptisms. At the same time, Bro. J. C. Mason held a meeting at Millville, in Ouachita county, which resulted in six additions to the church there.

Bros. J. C. Mason and W. J. Hudspeth held a meeting at Whitefield on the fourth Lord's day in Aug., resulting in seven additions. Bro. J. B. Davis writes: "I have just closed a two weeks' meeting near Farmerville, which resulted in twenty-seven additions. This is the best meeting of my life. I never saw such an interest." May the Lord bless Bro. Davis. He is a good man and is doing a grand work in North La.

My last communication was written from Pine Bluff, a thriving town of some five thousand inhabitants, situated on the west bank of the Arkansas River, some fifteen miles below Little Rock, the capitol of the State. Its citizens are enterprising and prosperous, but I could hear of but one disciple in the town, a lady. Several asked me why I did not try to build up a church there. I could only answer, I can't do it now.

From Pine Bluff I went via. home, spending a night and day with wife and children, to Mores' Springs in Lamar county, Texas, where I met, for the first time, Bro. R. W. Officer. Bro. Officer is full of zeal and energy, and abounds in the work of the Lord. Here I also met Bro. C. H. Barkley, well reported of by the brethren. I also formed pleasant acquaintances with brethren Walker, Moore, Williams, Jones, DeWitt, and others. Bro. Walker is a preacher of no mean ability. I staid in Lamar county ten days and preached sixteen times. The immediate result was four confessions and baptisms. Most of the preaching was done at new points, and was too badly scattered to do the good which might have been done by doing the work of all at one point. There was a good interest manifested where ever I went, and I was surprised to find so many there who had never heard the ancient gospel in its purity. I could not fill half the calls which I received. Had I attempted to do so, I might have spent the remainder of the summer and fall there. I am now at home trying to recover my health from an attack of bilious fever which came upon me in Texas. I am convalescing slowly, but hope to be able to go to work again in a few days.

W. T. BREEDLOVE.

FOOT WASHING.

I see in ADVOCATE of Sept. 3d that Bro. Armstrong says the Savior instituted foot washing the last evening before his crucifixion; in this we think the brother mistaken. Jesus washed the disciples feet in Bethany, at Simon's house, two days before the passover. Six days before the passover Jesus goes to Bethany, he stays there until two days before the passover. Lazarus, Mary and Simon made him a supper, Jno. 12: 1-10, Luke 22: 1-7, Mark 14: 1-19, Matt. 26: 1-12.

That John is speaking of the supper in Simon's house, there is no doubt, Jno. 13: 4. In the 12th chapter John tells us they made Jesus a supper, then tells us what the Savior said upon the occasion; then in 13th chap. 2d verse he speaks of the supper again, and informs us what the Savior did immediately after supper. In 1st verse of 13th chapter John says it was before the passover; the 29th verse confirms my views. The supper under consideration had been eaten, and the evangelist is speaking of the passover as being yet in the future. Matt. 26: 7, Mark 14: 3, Jno. 12: 3, all tell the same thing in regard to the ointment being poured upon the Savior—all state that it was for his burial; all say that Judas was displeased about the waste of the ointment: the three evangelist agree that the oint-pouring transpired in Bethany. Judas went to the chief priest and covenanted to deliver Jesus into their hands, see Matt. 26: 14-15, examine context and see where they were. Read Mark 14: 10, 11, examine context and find out where Judas was. Now read Matt. 26: 17, Mark 14: 12, and you will learn that the Savior was betrayed at Bethany two days before the passover, but was delivered into the hands of the chief priest up at Jerusalem on the night of the passover.

The Baptists say, that foot washing and the Lord's supper were instituted on the night of the passover, therefore they hold foot washing very sacred, from the fact of its being so intimately associated with the supper; and seeing some of our brethren holding the same error, it moved me to write the above, hoping they will examine the references given, and be satisfied with the truth: it is not ours, brethren, to propagate error, therefore let us dig deep into the treasury of the Lord Almighty for wisdom, in order that we may be able to walk in wisdom's ways.

Minor Hill, Tenn.

H. C. ABERNATHY.

We may judge of the state of our hearts by the earnestness of our prayers; you cannot make a rich man beg like a poor man; you cannot make a man that is full cry for food like one that is hungry; no more will a man who has a good opinion of himself cry for mercy like one who feels that he is poor and needy.—Dr. Payson.

If there were no enemy, there could be no conflict; were there no trouble, there could be no faith; were there no fear, there could be no hope. Hope, faith and love are weapons, and weapons imply foes and encounters; and relying on my weapons, I will glory in my sufferings.—Dr.

Satan selects his disciples when they are idle, but Christ chose his while they were busy at work, either mending their nets or casting them into the sea.—Farendon.

LIKE CAUSE, LIKE EFFECT.

The above proposition being self-evident, I wish in a kind, fair, argumentative style to apply it to religious teaching and practice.

James calls the New Covenant "the perfect law of liberty." Peter 2 Eps. says in it, God has given us "all things pertaining to life and godliness." Paul says of the inspired word, "that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works." The above scriptures I learned to believe literally when young, and thank God my faith is the same now; and yearly and daily experience confirms my faith. A perfect law must of necessity perfect all it controls. God's laws must all be perfect, for he being perfect, he could not do an imperfect act. There can be no addition to a perfect law in precept or example without injury. And to add to God's perfect law by word or deed, is a direct impeachment of his wisdom, and it is at once rebellious. The perfect law of liberty as given by the Holy Spirit, did perfect the apostolic Christians and church. All was harmonious until these new departures; 1st, in disobedience to the perfect law. 2d, in additions in practice. 3d, in written additions. Then when all believe God's statement of facts and truths literally, and believe and obey his commandments literally, all true obedient believers will be one, as Christ and God are one. The divisions and sectisms do not arise out of deficiency of God's law, but out of the stubbornness of, our depraved wills. The harmony and peace and success of our union-move of former years was owing to our motto, "The word of God alone as given, the union of all on the ground or terms layed down by Paul in 4th chapter of Ephes., and taking the God-given name Christian.

But when some began to do more than commanded, and started the name, "the disciples of Christ," there being no union in the things done not commanded of God, and no union in the name, "the disciples," discord crept in. Now, brethren, excuse my plainness. I still fear to do more than commanded, and still call for precept or example. I trust what I am about to say arises neither from jealousy nor hatred, but from a sense of duty, moved by love of truth and good wishes to my brethren. I should be ashamed to be so plain from any other motives. Wealth's great name and earthly honors can neither do us good in death nor the judgment.

Now please weigh what follows calmly. It is proven by history that a school to make professional preachers, as lawyers are made in a school made for that purpose, thus taking the matter out of the church, began the corruption of Christ's plain, humble religion. The corruption was completed by preachers holding ecclesiastical meetings in addition to and over the churches. The church of England did these things. They made professional preachers. Thus they had clergymen, pastors, parsons, bishops, etc., and these soon became so little piety and morality that the pious Wesley tried to reform Episcopacy. The parsons were in many cases dancers, gamblers, theatre goers, had race horses, etc. These church functionaries were dubbed Rev. D. D., etc. Now, following the same road, some of our members train race horses, dance, go to theatres, play billiards on the ground. And some play base ball like the Greek and Roman heathen athlete. All these things have come since preacher making has been taken from the church to college. Now we have reverends, D. D.'s, etc. And I have been addressed Rev. Dr. If God aid me, I will contend for a system of universal compulsory education. Universities, colleges, and high schools never can educate the poor—the very class Christ says he was anointed to preach to. Colleges never can show impartial love to all. The Sunday-school system has injured the devotion and piety of our singing, and has taken the place of the Lord's day meeting. Our district evangelizing has greatly injured individual effort. Our "pastor" system has hindered the development of God's overseer system. Our fine college made (not God and church made) preachers has caused in some cases a disgraceful neglect of other good preachers. Our trying to praise God with instruments has hindered singing in the spirit and understanding. For the organ has neither spirit nor understanding. Let all Bible men consider what is here said.

Church News.

I. S. Dupuy, Thyatira, Miss., September 10, writes: "Commenced a meeting at a school-house six miles south of Oxford, Lafayette County, Miss., the fifth Lord's day in August. Continued six days. Good interest to the close, but no additions. Much prejudice removed, and the brethren strengthened."

M. L. Ayers, Valhermosa Springs, Ala., September 9, writes: "I write you this card to inform you for the happy results from the preaching of our brother, J. M. Joiner, of which we all feel grateful to our Heavenly Father, and we desire you to give a little notice of it. He preached thirty sermons, and had fifty-seven additions, forty-three confessions, seven restored, the remainder from the sects. Bro. Joiner is a worthy preacher, and has been a great benefit to the cause at this place."

A. C. Henry, Hartselle, Ala., September 11, writes: "I write to inform you of my work in this field. Bro. J. M. Barnes came on August 22, to preach with me at Moorsville and Landersville. The meeting at Moorsville resulted in nothing, so far as can be seen, also a flying trip to Huntsville resulted in no additions. We came home on Wednesday, August 27, from Huntsville, and went the next day to Landersville. Our Meeting continued there only one week, and resulted in thirty-seven accessions to the congregation—one restored, six from the Baptists, one from the Methodists, and the balance from 'the other part of the world.' I went to Russellville and preached on Lord's day night, and the next day and night. Result, one accession from the Baptists. Bro. Barnes left the Landersville meeting on Tuesday, September 2. It is believed that if he could have remained until Monday, (September 8,) that there would have been many more. I am to begin here on next Lord's day."

Jefferson's Ten Rules of Life.

The following rules for practical life were given by Mr. Jefferson, in a letter of advice to his namesake, Thomas Jefferson Smith, in 1825:

1. Never put off till to-morrow what you can do to-day.
2. Never trouble others for what you can do yourself.
3. Never spend your money before you have it.
4. Never buy what you do not want because it is cheap.

5. Pride costs us more than hunger, thirst, and cold.

6. We never repent of having eaten too little.

7. Nothing is troublesome that we do willingly.

8. How much pain have those evils cost us which never happened?

9. Take things always by their smooth handles.

10. When angry, count ten before you speak; if very angry count, a hundred.

My Lot in Life.

I find myself where I am, and as I am. My duty is submission. My privilege is enjoyment. Because I am sick or disabled I need not be useless or unhappy. I accept my situation as a divine appointment, and I will try to be contented in it. Lamenting over the past will do no good—I cannot recall or change it. Complaining of the present will not mend it. It may make myself and others wretched. Anxiety of the future will not of itself make it any brighter.

My Heavenly Father has permitted things to be with me just as they are. But he knows what is best. I know he loves me. I will therefore leave all with him. No rebellion shall be cherished in my heart, and no murmur shall escape my lips. My Savior has promised that his grace will be sufficient for me. He will never leave me, but be a present help in my time of need. Trusting in him, and committing all to my Father's loving care, I will do what I can. I will make the place where my lot is cast as bright and cheerful as possible, and work and wait with patience till I am permitted to go to my heavenly home. —Anonymous.

"A Little Child Shall Lead Them."

A wife had long been praying for her unconverted husband. At times her distress of spirit was so great, that when about her household duties her troubled countenance was sad to behold. One day her little girl of seven summers, seeing her rise from her knees with the same weary, anxious face, ran up to her, asking: "Mamma, won't God say 'Yes'?" and receiving no answer, she asked again, "Mamma, why won't God say 'Yes'?"

A new light flashed upon the woman's troubled soul. Had she prayed in faith and humble trust in the Redeemer? From that time her petition was, "Lord increase my faith," and before that year passed, her husband became a Christian, and led the family devotions.

That religion is the source of the highest and purest happiness, even for this world, every faithful Christian knows from his own experience. And if any who are not Christians should ask for clear assurance as to this point—for higher evidence than the testimony of the thousands and tens of thousands who have tried it, and can speak from their own blessed experience, to such we may reply, as Coleridge did to one who asked him, "How shall I find the highest and surest evidence of the truth of Christianity—of the reality of religion?" "Try it for yourself." This is the test that every one may try, and on which we may safely rest the question, for time, as well as for eternity!

We should be troubled as much at

A PERFECT BAKING POWDER.

The great success of the Royal Baking Powder is due to the extreme care exercised by the manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care, and skill attained by a twenty years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no pharmaceutical preparation can be dispensed with a greater accuracy, precision, and exactness. Every article used is absolutely pure. A number of chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact power and effect in combination with its co-ingredients is definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials who is not an expert in his particular branch of the business. As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome, and uniform in quality. Each box is exactly like every other, and will retain its powers and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at any time. The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking Powder at the head of the list for strength, purity, and wholesomeness, and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

QUERY.

Please tell through the pages of the GOSPEL ADVOCATE what wicked person Paul alludes to, when he says, "Therefore put away from among yourselves that wicked person." 1 Cor. 5: 13. There is a difference of opinion as to who it was, I proposed to leave it to you.

When an elder of a congregation knows that a member or members of the church are offended at him on account of his course toward a brother or brethren, is it not the duty of said elder to visit immediately such members, and try to remove the offense; although said elder may think his course was according to law?

Does the parable of the prodigal son, (Luke 15: 11-32) teach (or Savior teach by it) that when a brother is offended, or backslides, or is withdrawn from, that the elders or any members of the church should make no effort to reclaim such until such come to themselves and ask forgiveness?—[A Brother.

The wicked person referred to, is the man who had taken his father's wife; in fourth verse he tells them to deliver him to Satan. A little leaven of sin leaveneth the whole lump. This sin overlooked in one will corrupt the church. From that one case, the apostle speaks of fornicators and covetous persons in the church and out of it, and tells them they must not keep company with any of these classes,—no, not to eat, draws the distinction between these characters in the world and in the churches, tells them his direction applies to those in the church, not those in the world. Then from these general principles tells them to put away the wicked man, of whom he had first spoken, from among yourselves.

An elder has no right to take action that is offensive to brethren and sisters. He has no right to do anything that is not directed by the word of God. What is directed by the word of God every member must approve. For an elder to undertake to exclude men or women by his declarations, or for a majority in the church to undertake to vote men in or out of the church, is as an assumption of power as unwarranted as any assumption of the Pope of Rome. The Scriptures direct how a man shall enter the church. They just as specifically tell how he goes out of the church. The church has no right to vote him out or in. The church hears the evidence that he gives of his faith. The church hears the evidence of his sin. Men seldom disagree about the facts of a case. If there is ground for disagreement, no action should be taken. There ought to be no division in church action. The facts in the case ought to be agreed to, and then the law of God says what shall be done.

But it is imperatively the duty of the elders of the church to instruct and labor with, and secure this unanimity of judgment. It is the duty of the elders to labor with the man after he is withdrawn from. The Scriptures plainly tell, after he is withdrawn from, "Count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother." 2nd Thes. 3: 6-15.

It is never a question as to whether they can do good or not, by admonishing. We are not able to judge of this. But whether we can or not, it is our duty to do what the Lord commands, and leave the results with him. If it is the duty of the church to do this, it is especially the duty of the elders to do it; to set the example in doing it, and so encourage all others to do the same.

It is the duty of any brother, when he thinks he is wronged, to go and earnestly and kindly tell the one who has wronged him, of the wrong. It certainly is the duty of any one, especially an elder, if one thinks he is wronged by him, to go and show him that his course is just and right, and if it is not so, to hear the offended brother and together try to see which is wrong. The assumption that we are right, and we will not hear the complaints against us, is an assumption of infallibility that is not becoming in mortals. It is the duty of the elder to labor to satisfy every member of the congregation of the rightfulness of the course taken, that all may work together in harmony. It is impossible for a church to work harmoniously when part of its members thinks it acts unjustly toward any. Yet the Scriptures constantly command the churches to be of one mind and one voice, and these admonitions are with reference to these very cases of individual discipline.

We hardly think it needful to reply to the query about the applicability of the case of the prodigal son, to persons disciplined by a church, especially to cases where the trouble grows out of differences as to what is right in personal difficulties. This is clearly the case of a man who purposely departs from God, thinking he can have a better time serving the flesh, in gratifying the lusts, in riotous living, than in serving with the Father.

For a man to apply this case to the settlement of difficulties between brethren, and to cases in which a brother or sister thinks that the church has dealt unjustly in its discipline with any of its members, looks very much like he was straining and perverting Scripture to sustain a course that is wrong. At any rate it is much better to change a course than to have to support it by such perversions of Scripture as this. If a course is correct, it can find support without this violent straining the word of God. We never violate a single principle of the Christian religion, by constant and earnest efforts to save the children of God from sin.

Any act which has the force of a formal and actual recommittal to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ, must be an invaluable safeguard and help to a Christian, old or young, in a world like this. Weekly attendance upon a well-conducted class-meeting is such an act.—Christian Advocate.

How can the attendance upon a service not ordained by the Lord Jesus Christ, be "a formal and actual recommittal to the service of the Lord Jesus Christ?" The Lord Jesus Christ did ordain a weekly service, attendance on which has all the force of a formal and actual recommittal to the service of the Lord. The Methodist church has set aside this service appointed by the Savior, relegating its observance to long and indefinite intervals, and has instituted an ordinance of its own instead. To observe this ordinance of the Methodist church, may have the force of an actual recommittal to the service of Methodism. It cannot have the force of an actual recommittal to the service of the Savior. Will Dr. Fitzgerald tell us why the class-meeting is better than the weekly communion, to recommit men to the service of God? That is of man. This of God.

DEBATE ON MORMONISM.

We have received from Clark Braden, the publisher, a copy of a debate between Clark Braden and E. L. Kelly, of the Latter Day Saints, or Mormons; a closely printed, large, double column page book, containing about four hundred pages. Questions debated: Is the book of Mormon inspired? Is the church of which Clark Braden is a member, a church of Christ? Is the church of which I (Kelly) am a member, the church of Jesus Christ? The interest, of course, centers in the first proposition. We think there can be no question but that Braden thoroughly exposes the claims to revelation; shows it is full of contradictions, absurdities, and blunders, full of quotations from the Testament and modern literature, although claiming to have been written in America long before the country was discovered. The price of the book is two dollars, with a supplement yet to be published. Those wishing to see a thorough exposure of the pretensions of Mormonism, can get it by sending to Clark Braden, 913 Pine St., St. Louis, Mo.

"David Lipscomb, of the GOSPEL ADVOCATE, offers five thousand dollars for the establishment of our Indian Mission. Go thou do likewise."—Texas Christian.

If we had five thousand dollars to give to the Indian Mission or any other work, we think we would commit a grievous sin in making such an announcement as that. But as we have not, somebody is guilty of the sin of gross untruthfulness. Who is it? We do not see how such things can be published. It shows a great disregard of truth in somebody. If it is carelessness, carelessness in reference to truth itself is a sin, is surpassed only by intentional falsehood.

We have made it a rule through our editorial labor to never publish what any man promises or has done in giving to any object. Near one hundred thousand dollars passed through our hands some years ago to the South when it was in want. We did not intentionally publish a single name of those giving. We have received divers sums for the Indian Mission, we published no name of a giver. We think the habit of doing this is offensive alike to the teaching of the Scriptures, and to good breeding. We never see a publication made with a man's sanction, of what he has done, without thinking he is at once disregarding of the teaching of the Scripture and greatly lacking in the elements of a well-bred gentleman. There is not one word of foundation for the above statement, and I never gave or promised a dollar for any object, the publication of which did not mortify and humiliate me. Five thousand dollars would ruin the Indian Mission. It would attract those seeking the money, not the souls. Those whose zeal for souls depends on the amount of money they get, would ruin any mission.

WERE HANDS LAID ON IN ORDAINING ELDERS?

Bro. W. H. Carter, in ADVOCATE of September 10, when speaking of ordaining elders, says: "When I open my Bible I find how this is to be done, I find that they fasted, prayed, and laid their hands on them." This he says regarding the ordination of elders. Now brother Carter, where do you find this in the Bible? I have no time just now to enter upon an investigation on this matter, on account of protracted meetings. But Bro. Carter has assumed the working oar and by the time he shows that hands were laid on in ordaining elders, I shall be through with my protracted engagements, and will have ample time to attend to the matter. We have questioned that hands were laid on in any ceremony of ordaining or appointing elders. Bro. Carter says he finds it when he opens his Bible, and we shall now wait for him to present it.

There is but one account given of ordaining elders in the New Testament that we are aware of, which is in Acts 14: 23, and in that passage there is not one word about laying on of hands. And this passage does not even show that the fasting and praying was part of the ceremony of ordaining. We have taken no particular ground regarding fasting and praying in connection with the appointment of workers in the church, and do not propose to now, only that in the only account given of ordaining elders, the passage does not show that these were part of the ordination. The passage says, "And when they had ordained them elders in every church, and had prayed with fasting, they commended them to the Lord, on whom they believed." This says first when they had ordained them elders, and then adds, and had prayed with fasting. This indicates that in this only account of ordaining, the fasting and praying were additional to, and not a part of the ordaining. But we are affirming nothing with reference to fasting and prayer now. The point is laying on of hands. Was this done as a part of an ordaining ceremony? We ask Bro. Carter to read again our article on sixth of Acts, as we cannot repeat it now. And we hope he will study carefully, and write with care on this subject, as it is one that demands close investigation. He says again, "if we are to quit laying on of hands because spiritual gifts were sometimes conveyed in connection with it, should we not quit praying for the same reason?" Spiritual gifts were sometimes conveyed. Please read again our article on sixth of Acts on this particular point, and since you affirm that when you open your Bible you find that hands were laid on in ordination, give us the passage where there can be no doubt but that hands were laid on as a part of the ceremony or work of ordaining elders. We have already given our reasons for doubting or disbelieving that such was ever done. But you affirm that it was, and now you are the man to show it. We have shown that of the only two passages in the New Testament where it is claimed that hands were laid on as a part of an ordination service, the facts in connection with them plainly indicate that in these cases also spiritual gifts were conferred.

Now if you can show certainly that such is not the case, but that hands in these two cases were certainly laid on as a part of the ordination service, let us have it, that we may all be agreed. And finally, we have expressed a doubt that there was any set form in appointing workers in the church that may be called an ordination ceremony. Now if you know such to be the case, it would be in point to give the evidence of it. The word that is rendered ordain in Acts 14: 23, is rendered chosen in 2 Cor. 8: 19, where one was chosen by the church at Corinth to travel with Titus in the matter of the contribution for the poor saints at Jerusalem. Does the word chose here mean a particular ceremony of fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands? We do not feel disposed to try to give chapter and verse for something that we are not sure ever existed. If ordination is a church ordinance, and must be done in some particular form or ceremony, we would be gladly informed. That fasting or prayer would be well on many occasions, both by individual Christians and by churches, we have no doubt. But whether all these, or any of them constitute a fixed form of ordination or not, is the question we raise. And we now rest our pen, and await further developments. E. G. S.

The orphan school opened on Monday, September 15, as announced. There are five beneficiaries entered, with a good day school. The buildings have been put in neat condition, and things promise to move off smoothly and satisfactorily. We again suggest to our readers that this school with its opportunities should not be relied upon to perform all the charities. But individuals and churches should avail themselves of the opportunities offered to exercise their charity, in sending destitute orphans around them to school, that they may be trained and educated for lives of usefulness. The charges for those who are sent as a charity by individuals or churches are only forty dollars per session of five months, or to those with means, fifty dollars per session of five months. To those destitute whose friends will pay a portion of the expenses, the trustees will supplement what is lacking. This will enable the trustees to do more, and encourage others to habits of charity to the helpless. No greater benefit could be conferred upon Christians than this. We have heard that the sisters in two or three different congregations are making up bed-clothes for the orphans. Looking to this source for help, just as little bedding has been bought as could be gotten along with. We trust those who are engaged in this work will send forward as speedily as possible, as the weather is liable to become cold at any time, and the trustees desire to husband the means as far as possible. We hope not only that those engaged in the work will forward what they have as soon as possible, but that others will aid. We do not wish too many pupils or too much school to begin with, desire to move forward on a safe basis, but it is clear that had we the means to aid them, we might open the second session of the school with fifty pupils. Who will help in this work?

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We propose to send it one year to two subscribers, one of which must be a new one, for three dollars. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

CORRESPONDENCE.

S. A. Hastin, Bilbrey, Carroll county, writes: "I closed my labors as an evangelist in Lyon County, Ky., July 1st, when I had labored for six months with but little results. Not being fully satisfied to leave the field without holding one more meeting, I continued a meeting at Hubbard school-house five days, closing before the third Lord's day in July with six confessions. Sold my little home there, and wife and I came to Union Hill church in Carroll County, Tenn., to assist Bro. Hill in a meeting. We began the meeting August 9, and continued over two Lord's days with fifteen additions to the well drilled and wide-awake little band, now sixty-nine. Six of the fifteen added were by letter, three from the Methodist church, the balance from the world. Bro. Hill, of Kentucky, has been laboring for them for the past few years with great success, and is still their preacher. During that meeting there was a Baptist kept filing objections to our teaching; I asked him if he would affirm in debate what he believed, he said he would. So I submitted the following proposition which he accepted and assigned, "The Scripture teach that the alien man is pardoned, saved, justified, and is a new creature in Christ prior to and independent of baptism." We met on the next Thursday and discussed the proposition about five hours before three or four hundred people. I have but one thing to say about the debate, viz., that the Baptist man knew more about the Gleaner, and had more of its author's spirit, than he did of the Bible and its author.

I continued a meeting at Christian Chapel from Tuesday until Saturday night, (nine sermons,) closing with twenty-five additions. I found a church of Advents there. They had caused a great deal of confusion, had captured several of our members; some of them identifying themselves with them, and some only had gone far enough to be observing the Sabbath. I examined their teachings which caused confusion. They sent for their leader, Mr. Sam Fulton, a man of fine learning and ability. He came, desirous for me to preach time about with him. I told him after the meeting closed he could have an investigation. At the close of the sermon, with him present, five persons came forward. Three of them were his followers; not all, however were attached to his church, but were observing his custom. I was troubled but little more after that by them, except to hear the acknowledgments of some of them for their wrong in following after such customs. Six in all came and acknowledged their sins and identified themselves with the church of God. At nine o'clock Sunday morning, I gave an invitation, and two more came forward, one to confess Christ, and one to unite from the Methodists. After the baptizing, thirteen that had not received the hand of fellowship took a seat on a log, and, after a few words of encouragement, we extended the hand to them and to one another.

I then went to an appointment at Hickory Plain. Continued till Wednesday, closing with two additions, and the members greatly built up and encouraged. Bro. John Johnston was with me one day, and preached. He is highly appreciated by all who know him. On Lord's day I preached at the Presbyterian church at Camden. I delivered three discourses while there, and took the confession of a Miss Holland, and, in accordance with her request, baptized her the same hour of the night. She had been taught the way of the Lord by our worthy and much esteemed sister, Dollie Halselbrook. I will never forget her! I closed the meeting and came back to Union Hill, where I first landed in the State. Will preach here Saturday and Lord's day, and then I will return to the Purchase, where I was raised. In all the above named meetings there have been forty-nine additions. To God be all the praise. Apostolic Church please copy.

C. A. Wheeler, Vernon, Lamar county, Ala., writes: "I send you a report of our meeting, which begun at Bethel church, on Saturday night before the first Lord's day in September, and continued until Thursday night following. Twenty-one were added to the church, sixteen by confession and baptism, and the others from the denominations. Bro. James Wood was with us, and did most of the preaching. Bro. Wood is a young man, twenty-one years of age, and is a promising young preacher."

Obituaries.

Died, at 10:30 o'clock, on September 8, 1884, JESSIE SEWELL GOWEN, the youngest daughter of Dr. J. M. Gowen, of South Spruce street, Nashville; aged, fifteen years. Brief existence, a life-work finished soon, but, in the language of the motto upon her coffin lid, "She is not dead, but sleepeth." The beautiful deeds of love which she performed for father, mother, sisters, brothers, teachers, classmates, are all indelibly written upon their hearts, and are not lost.

Thy look of sympathy, the gentle word
Spoken so low that only the angels heard—
The secret art of self-sacrifice,
Unseen by men, but marked by angels' eyes,
Are not lost.

The happy dreams that gladdened all her youth,
Which dreams had less of self and more of truth;
The childhood's faith, so tranquil and so sweet,
Which sat like Mary at the Master's feet.

Not lost, O Lord, for in thy city bright,
Our eyes shall see the part by clearer light;
And things long hidden from our gaze below,
Thou wilt reveal, and we shall surely know
They were not lost.

The funeral was performed by Elder R. L. Cave, in a most impressive and solemn manner, after which the remains were conveyed to Mount Olivet, followed by a number of friends, many of whom testified their affection by placing lovely garlands of flowers upon her newly-made grave. Farewell, Jessie, we shall contemplate thee as a bright star that has been transferred to a celestial clime, the radiance of whose light will be a beacon to your sorrowing friends.

"They will meet, but they will miss thee—
There will be one vacant chair;
They will linger to caress thee,
While they breathe their evening prayer."

MRS. MOLLIE MINOR SIMS.

WILLIAM JAMES SOWELL is no more. He has been called from the busy scenes of life. He has paid the debt, having crossed the Jordan of Death. Perhaps the death of no man in the circle of his friends and acquaintances, has caused more genuine sorrow. A wise and good counsellor, a true and tried friend, a Christian and a philanthropist, he possessed those characteristics which made him an almost invaluable element in his country for good to his neighbors, to his friends, and to the church. Who, indeed, will be able to fill his place? He was a man of the strictest integrity—loyal and true, always, to what he conceived to be right. He was born near old Williamsport, in Maury county, July 21, 1824. He died at his home, ten miles east of Columbia, on the night of August 13, 1884. He was, therefore, past sixty years old. He had one brother and two sisters. His brother, David Sowell, was not unknown to the readers of the ADVOCATE. Older than the subject of this sketch, having been a faithful Christian and an acceptable preacher for years, died several years since. His sister, Mrs. Catherine Daniel, died on the 29th of last December; and now the death of Bro. W. J. Sowell leaves only one remaining, Mrs. Martha Estes, his oldest sister. The father of this family was an old Baptist, and under this and other denominational influences, Bro. Sowell was reared. But in the year 1840, he heard old Bro. Joshua K. Speer preach the gospel. Being a man of convictions and true to them, and seeing the truth presented, he readily and eagerly embraced it. From that day to the day of his death, he grew in grace and the knowledge of the truth until, indeed, he came "to the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ," continuing in the faith, grounded and settled, never being moved away from the hope of the gospel, which he had heard, and which he has preached by word and deed to others, who have profited by his Christian life and labor of love. On May 8, 1850, he was married to Emily J. Hardison, a woman who, already a disciple, was fully prepared in heart and mind to share the burdens and joys of his Christian zeal, as, for many long years, she has done. God blessed them and prospered them, giving them the good things of this life, and children to enjoy them. Four of these have passed on before the dear father, to the shining shore—two sons and two daughters—and six remain—four sons and two daughters—who mourn the death of a good father, but sorrow not as those who have no hope. The consistent life and righteous example of such a father has manifested itself in the life and character of his children. All those who are living are worthy Christians, one a devoted and successful minister of the gospel; and of those who are dead, they were either Christians, or were too young to be members of the church. Bro. Sowell was the ruling elder of his congregation, and, as such, received the honor and enjoyed community. The duties of the Christian he was faithful to perform. The last day he spent on this earth, he and his wife spent on a mission of good, visiting the sick and afflicted. He reached home in the evening, partook heartily of supper, and retired early to bed, feeling quite well. About midnight he awoke and told his wife he felt a little strange, but was not sick. She gave him a little of something. He said he felt better, and lay down. Soon after he suddenly arose, turned his feet out of bed, and in a few seconds dropped to his side, dying without a struggle, so suddenly that not even his two youngest children, who were in the house, reached his bedside before he was a corpse. His children, having been informed of his death, one by one reached the desolated home of their childhood, scarcely realizing that father was, or could be, dead; that father who had ever been so kind and good to them, and whose counsel had ever been offered them with the savor of a pure Christian example. On Friday, August 15, after an impressive sermon, delivered by Bro. William Anderson, the body of William J. Sowell, followed by a multitude of friends and a family broken-hearted and sorrowing, was borne to the grave, and there, 'mid the songs of his dear brethren, was committed to the dust, to wait the great day of the Lord, when all that are in their graves shall hear the voice of the Lord, and shall come forth, they that have done good to the resurrection of life, and we doubt not his will be to life eternal. Peace to his ashes. Let us strive to meet him in the sweet by-and-by.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. A. Harding, Fisherville, Ky., September 11, writes: "Our meeting here is prospering. Five have confessed Christ."

J. D. Floyd, Flat Creek, Tenn., September 6, writes: "Meeting closed at New Hermon last night. Preaching by J. M. Kidwill; seven additions; all young persons. The congregation is in good condition to nurture them."

Andrew Perry, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., September 4, writes: "I recently, on Clear Creek, Giles County, preached thirteen sermons, resulting in ten additions; two immersions, one reclaimed, and seven took membership. I expect to hold a meeting in Alabama soon."

J. G. Barlow, Las Casas, Tenn., September 8, writes: "Bro. Srygley was at Hebron last week. Had a fine hearing, and did fine teaching; all edified and glad he came. Three additions to the church, and two others, a Baptist preacher and his wife, expressed a willingness to meet and worship with the brethren at Hebron. Bro. Srygley is at Cainsville now. Hope good will be the result. We think the cause safe in his hands."

G. W. Bryant, Ennis, Texas, September 4, writes: "Bro. Black, of Illinois, has been holding a meeting at Ennis for nearly four weeks, and the truth has added to the church one hundred and thirty-five, and is still holding on. Bro. A. C. Borden is holding a meeting at Antioch church, five miles west of Ennis. Forty-two additions in two weeks. Great good has been done in our country, and the work is still going on."

E. B. Cayce, Franklin, Tenn., September 11, writes: "Bro. T. B. Larimore began a meeting at South Harpeth, on August 23, and continued until next Lord's day night. Nine added by confession and baptism, but (as unfortunately for the church it occurs so often) the meeting closed one week too soon. However, much good will result from Bro. Larimore's earnest, able preaching. I could not attend the meeting but few times."

B. C. Young, Cobb, Tenn., September 8, writes: "I met Bro. Willie Morton and Bro. Tankersley at Rock Spring, on Saturday night before the fifth Lord's day in August. The meeting continued till the next Friday night, with fine interest to the last. There were twelve confessed the Savior and were baptized, one reclaimed, and one from the Methodists who had been baptized. This meeting, like most of our protracted meetings, closed too soon. But we all had to go."

I. S. Dupuy, Thyatira, Miss., September 10, writes: "Please announce through the ADVOCATE for the benefit of scattered brethren, that there will be a co-operation meeting held at Delay, in Lafayette County, Miss., beginning Saturday before the second Lord's day in October, to continue two days, for the purpose of uniting their efforts in the employing of some one to preach one-half of his time in that section of country."

J. L. Sewell, Viola, Tenn., September 4, writes: "I held a meeting on Spring Fork of Martin's Creek, embracing the fourth Lord's day in August; there were nine baptized and three that had been out of the fold returned and were restored. Was once a good congregation here, but they have been reduced by deaths, removals, until they are weak now. But this meeting has strengthened them some, and I hope that they will be able to sustain themselves; there are some good zealous members here; but they are poor in this world's goods, but I think they are rich in faith and good works, and I pray that the blessing of God may be with them."

J. M. L., St. Bethlehem, September 12, writes: "Thinking our church work may be of interest to some of our absent friends, will give a brief outline of our labors in the cause. On the fourth Lord's day in every month we have preaching by Bro. John W. Johnson, of Carroll County, Tenn., who is an able expounder of the truth. The brethren meet regularly every Lord's day for the purpose of attending to the ordinances of the Lord and Sunday-school. Prayer meeting every Saturday night. On last Lord's day after a few earnest and appropriate remarks, by our beloved elder W. H. Killebrew, three persons came forward and made the good confession, and were baptized by him the same evening. Bro. Killebrew is an efficient and faithful servant of the Most High, and watches over the welfare of the church, 'holding fast the faithful word as he hath been taught, that he might be able by sound doctrine both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers.' May the Lord bless and prosper him."

J. Harding, 3307 Bank Street, Louisville, Ky., September 3, writes: "I closed my meeting with the brethren at Berea, Henry county, this State, last Lord's day night, with a good interest. Forty-two were added to the congregation. The meeting lasted two weeks. This is where Bro. J. A. Harding held a debate with a Methodist, last November. Several of the additions were from the Methodists. I succeeded in getting the brethren at this place to agree to meet on the first day of each week. They have only been meeting twice a month. This is where Bro. W. H. Baker preaches once a month. He has been preaching for a number of years. Bro. Baker is a self-made preacher, and a very excellent man, and one that has the confidence of everybody. He is a good man, and well posted in the Scriptures, but we feel that he is most too easy with those that differ from us. I believe, at least it is my experience, that the hotter we make the fight, the quicker the work will be accomplished. We leave, to-morrow, for our meeting at Waco, Texas. To the Lord be all the praise."

E. A. Elam, Murfreesboro, Tenn., September 7, writes: "We closed our meeting at Cross Roads, Bedford county, beginning the third Lord's day in August, with no additions. The fourth Lord's day we began at Bellbuckle, and closed on following Thursday, with nine added to the brethren by obedience to the gospel. The Methodists had a meeting at the same time; but still people learned and obeyed the truth. The preacher 'in charge' said the presiding elder controlled the meeting, and gave this as a reason for protracting it. When the elder came, he expressed surprise at the meeting being protracted, and desired to return home on Monday. This difficulty they can settle between themselves. On the fifth Lord's day we began at Lynchburg, and closed Thursday night, with ten additions by obedience to the word. It was said there, by a Methodist preacher, that we misquoted, because we used the expression, 'washing of water,' when referring to Titus 3: 5, where is found 'washing of regeneration,' which verse at first we read word for word. It was said 'washing of water' was not in the Bible. He also said we left infants in purgatory, because we spoke of the mission of the church, and that people could not be Christians unless becoming at the same time church members. Popular evangelists say, become Christians and 'join any church you please.' The spirit of error has always misrepresented and persecuted the truth."

We are generally more solicitous to live long than to live usefully and serviceably; and it may be, our health had been more precious in the eyes of God if it had been less precious in our

KING'S EVIL

Was the name formerly given to Scrofula because of a superstition that it could be cured by a king's touch. The world is wiser now, and knows that can only be cured by a thorough purification of the blood. If this is neglected, the disease perpetuates its taint through generation after generation. Among its earlier symptomatic developments are Eczema, Cutaneous Eruptions, Tumors, Boils, Carbuncles, Erysipelas, Purulent Ulcers, Nervous and Physical Collapse, etc. If allowed to continue, Rheumatism, Scrofulous Catarrh, Kidney and Liver Diseases, Tubercular Consumption, and various other dangerous or fatal maladies, are produced by it.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only powerful and always reliable blood-purifying medicine. It is so effectual an alternative that it eradicates from the system Hereditary Scrofula, and the kindred poisons of contagious diseases and mercury. At the same time it enriches and vitalizes the blood, restoring healthful action to the vital organs and rejuvenating the entire system. This great

CLIPPINGS AND COMMENTS.

DEAR BRO. HARDING: Your "Clippings and Comments" in the ADVOCATE this week, in which an account is given of Bro. Stancill's meeting at Antioch, Estill County, Kentucky, remind me of a pleasant little conversation I had with Bro. Crutcher at Danville, Kentucky last Lord's day morning a week ago. He referred to the condition of that church. He asked me if I understood that you were opposed to regular preaching, or to a church's engaging a preacher as a constant pastor. I told him you thought a church with an efficient eldership was able to take care of itself without the constant care of a hired "pastor." He referred as an instance to the church at Antioch, saying that it was one you had labored a good deal with; and as a result of its trying to do without a regular preacher it had become disorganized and all broke up. From this conversation I was under the impression that the church had about disbanded; and I was about to inquire particularly about it when he was called away. I heard him preach, and had the pleasure of worshipping with the Danville church in the morning, and heard Bro. Hobbs in Louisville that night.

This extract is from a private letter written by a disciple of Georgia who has just been on a tour through Kentucky. It should impress upon the churches that are trying to walk according to the scriptural teaching the importance of their being strict and devoted to the right way; for they are watched, and their shortcomings will certainly be heralded to the world, though many will not take the same delight in publishing their good deeds. There are some facts concerning this Antioch congregation that brethren Stancill and Crutcher failed to tell; probably they failed to find them out. This church is the only one in all that region that has ever met regularly upon Lord's day. It is surrounded by the following congregations of disciples, Flat Woods, Sand Hill, Irvine, Station Camp, Crooked Creek and Red Hill. None of these congregations has ever met upon each Lord's day, so far as I know, unless the last two have recently begun to do so. Eight years ago, in the midst of a community that had never known of such a thing, the Antioch church began their regular Lord's day meetings. They have kept them up in the face of the greatest difficulties ever since. There are a number of members here who have not failed to assemble with the saints for a single Lord's day in all these years.

A number of the children have been wonderfully prompt in attending the Sunday-school. One little girl told me she had not missed in four years. I have conducted five or six meetings for this church in mid-winter, and have learned by an abundant experience that neither darkness, rain, cold, snow, sleet, nor rolling thunders and flashing lightnings will prevent a good audience at the night-meetings. I express it as my most earnest conviction that I have known no church that in the same time has exerted so great an influence for good upon the people about it. As for its disbanding, there are a number of its members that can never live with quiet consciences without the weekly meeting around the Lord's table.

But now for the large number of disorderly members:—The church has had a great number of additions in these years, and has withdrawn its fellowship from many. All classes attend its meetings, the worst as well as the best. It is not strange therefore that many should unite with it, and that it should then become proper to withdraw from a considerable number of the converts. It is only strange and unusual that the church does this last work. Bro. Crutcher preached for some time at Eminence, Kentucky. The church there is one of the large and influential ones in the State. It is in a rich intelligent community, and has had some of the strong men of the reformation "to preach regularly" for it; Bro. Crutcher himself has labored as its pastor for a number of years: yet he has made the impression upon my mind that there is in its membership a number of most disorderly people—some that drink to drunkenness and others that are engaged either directly or indirectly in the sale of whisky. How would it do for me to inquire, "Does Bro. Crutcher believe in preaching regularly for a church as its pastor? Why, he labored for years in that way at Eminence, and I understand he thinks the church there is in a terribly bad fix!"

Indeed he told me that the officers there could not discipline the church, and that they did not dare to undertake it. Shall I attribute this state of affairs to the "pastor system?" I know other churches that have not been without a "regular preacher" for more than twenty years that are equally as bad off as Antioch, or even Eminence. Let brethren Crutcher and Stancill consider these things before they attribute the disorders at Antioch to the fact that the brethren there are trying to conduct their congregation without a hired pastor. There are brethren and sisters there who have been making the bravest and most earnest and faithful fight for the right, with the greatest opposition, and under the most discouraging circumstances. I know no congregation that has done so nobly all things considered. The fact remains, too, that under "regular preaching" this church once died; without regular preaching it came to life and prospered as it never prospered before. I would as soon go to Antioch to find earnest, devoted, self-sacrificing Christians as to Danville, Louisville, Lexington or any where else.

But after all, the question is, What do the Scriptures teach? Nothing can be clearer than that the New Testament instructs the churches to look to their elders for teaching and oversight. The elders are called pastors (feeders) and bishops (overseers); there is to be a plurality of them in every church, and they are exhorted to feed the flocks and to take the oversight of them. The prevailing custom of hiring and importing a preacher to do their work is not only unscriptural, it is anti-scriptural. If Bro. Crutcher or any other body thinks he can show scriptural warrant for the custom of hiring preachers to take the pastoral care of churches, let him hasten to use the KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT. He shall have space. It will not do to claim that the "pastoral system" works best, for we are not competent to decide this question apart from the testimony of the Scriptures.

Jesus was killed; the apostles were outcasts, and were finally killed, except one. All Christians are persecuted; they have always been. Pure Christians have always been unpopular among men. The churches founded by the apostles in a comparatively short time apostatized, with hardly an exception. They were soon baptizing infants, sprinkling for baptism, worshipping the Virgin Mary and the saints, and so on. The question is not what is popular among men? What succeeds in the world? But what do the Scriptures teach?

If the Antioch and every other church that ever tried to walk by the divine law should apostatize from the right way, it would no more show that way to be wrong, than did the Roman Catholic apostasy prove that the churches founded by the apostles were wrong. Noah was right though every other family on earth had deserted the Lord. He was right, and his way was the best way. Lot was right, and he was the only man in Sodom who was walking in the right way. What does the word of God say about the plan for teaching and overseeing the churches? Search and see; and then contend for it, if every other man on earth does differently.

From B. W. Johnson's report of the Illinois Convention, in the Christian Evangelist, it appears that only $1,500 were paid into the State treasury during the last year. Concerning this he says: "Before the Millenium comes the Illinois brethren will think it a little thing to raise ten times that sum for State Missions." "The writer could name brethren in the the State who could singly, without wronging themselves, give as much as the whole State has done. Yet these brethren sing with zest:

'I gave my life for thee.
What wilt thou do for me?'"

Yet it is quite common to hear the brethren who favor the societies speak of those who oppose them as being stingy, and therefore opposed to everything that calls for money. When a great society, including the brethren of a State where the disciples are as numerous as in Illinois, raises only \$1,500 for the State missionary work, the society people should be exceedingly modest about accusing other people of stinginess. There are, I believe, about 90,000 disciples in the State; they give therefore, on an average, one and two-thirds cents (1 $\frac{2}{3}$ ) each to the State society for missionary work; or, allowing that one half of the disciples in the State are opposed to the societies, those who favor them will give three and one third (3 $\frac{1}{3}$ ) cents each. I know a man who opposes these societies, and who lives by his labor, for he owns but little property, who gives about \$600 per annum for evangelistic and church work; more than one third this great society. Indeed if Christians would contribute to the church treasuries as they should, there would not be the slightest need for these societies. Almost any congregation would then be abundantly able to sustain an evangelist in the ends of the earth. These societies grew up out of love for money. Preachers want salaries, so they work up societies to pay them; members want the gospel preached but are not willing to give as they should, so they join a great society, and drop in their "widows mite" (?), and shout about what a great work they are doing. Then if a man opposes them, he is close and illiberal and narrow-gauged.

A plan that only secures about three cents per member, where it ought to obtain from ten to one hundred dollars per member is surely a very poor plan. If I were not opposed to such a thing from principle I would be from policy.

ATTENTION, TRACT SOWERS!

The Christian Sower Tract Fund is now located at Mexico, Mo., and is again ready for business. Much delay has been caused by the move from Madisonville, Ky., and correspondents are asked for pardon for not filling their orders sooner. The trustee has just received 21,000 card tracts. This makes over three hundred thousand he has had printed in less than three years. Thousands of large tracts have also been bought and put to work. The personal labor given to this work has been at times snatched from his daily ministry of the word. But it remains to be seen whether or not he can continue to act as trustee, owing to his largely increased labors in his new field. But these 21,000 card tracts are ready for work. They are for sale to those who are able to buy, and free to those who are not. Not long ago a brother in New York City bought 1400 card tracts in one order. How many more will do as well? The Fund is much in need of money to pay for these last tracts. Be so kind as to send a donation. Address, J. W. Higbee, Mexico, Mo.

PROGRESSION.

To the word progression our attention is often called, and the query comes up. What does it mean? We turn to our dictionary and find the idea of continuing onward in a course, of moving forward. We lay out a course with an object at the end, and steadily advance toward it. This is progression. The world moves. The people are restless. Progression is the watchword. Rome believed in progression, and the world lay at her feet. Strong minds and strong bodies cause nations to move,—to progress. Alexander with his dying breath gave Greece and Persia "to the strongest." Who so well able to fight the battles of this world as the mentally and physically strong? From small beginnings we attain to great and honorable action. Our own glorious nation sprang from a pilgrim band. Look over the history of nations and you will find that progress was ever uppermost in their thoughts. It is lawful to be progressive; indeed it is a principle implanted in our nature which we should obey. Ever onward and upward should be our motto.

While the world has much to do with progression, we ask, Has Christianity anything to do with it? We hear it said there is a party in the church who are called "progressionist." A party in the church! Progressionists! How strange it sounds in "a believer's ear." The church itself ought to be progressive. Who will deny that the church should continue to move forward in virtue and piety, that it should grow in grace? Not always babes, desiring milk, should its members be, but gradually should they attain to the full growth of manhood and womanhood in Christ Jesus. Oh, no, the church cannot stand still, but with "excelsior" on her banners she mounts higher and higher.

That there is something creeping into the church denounced by some as "progression," we cannot deny. Let us examine the ways of this little stranger who comes in so quietly, has such potent influence, and works such transformations, that metamorphosed Daphne resembles her original self as much as the church of to-day that of eighteen centuries ago, and perhaps we will be able to name it, christen it if you please.

A church is at peace. The brethren dwell in love together. The prayer meeting is a place their souls delight in. The remembering of Christ in his death brings to them a holy calm and thoughts unutterable. They seek to do good and grow in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, esteeming others more highly than themselves. This is the foretaste of heaven which we mortals have on earth.

The Sunday-school needs Bibles. A private conference of the teachers is called. How shall we get the Bibles, is the question? It is suggested that we invite our brethren to help us buy them. "Oh, no," says one, "don't, I know a man who has a panorama, and if we will let him exhibit in the church he will give us all over six dollars that he makes." Some of the Christians had never read anything in God's word about that way of doing, and urged the first plan. The discussion which followed consumed much valuable time and engendered some bad feeling. The main argument was that "other churches do it, and they have such nice things." There was no decision arrived at, but the next Sunday the superintendent announced the panorama. Result: The man with the panorama required fifteen of the pennies thrown by the little ones into the Lord's treasury to make up his six dollars. No Bibles and fifteen cents gone, but they had a "good time," and the children of God, great and small, taught not to give unless they get some fleshly enjoyment in return. Any Scripture about that? But saddest of all to relate, much of the piety and Godly fear of that people went away.

"This congregation should be more social. Let's have a social and charge ten cents at the door. It will be so nice to get acquainted with everybody, besides we will be making money," says one.

"No," says another, "let us have the social and not charge at the door. You know there are some families who cannot come under those circumstances, and in order to follow out the principle, nothing should be done which would deter any one from coming."

But zeal which is not according to knowledge gains the day, and the social comes off. Many good brethren stay at home. Anything that can buy its way comes in, and our young people are thrown into the society of those whose morals are anything but good, and whose influence would be only for the tearing down of Zion's strong holds. A little more of the brotherly love steps out. Following close on the heels of the social, come festivals, with their lottery accompaniments, exhibitions, theatrical performances, etc. The man at the door takes the money in the name of Christ. The temple dedicated to God's worship is turned into a "den of thieves." The feelings of reverence for the spot are dissipated. The children learn to treat lightly the place, the ordinances, and the God they came to meet. Is this progression? No, my brethren you have the wrong word. Retrogression is the word you want. Backward and downward, step by step, our banners drag in the mire. So did Rome, So do we. Twenty years I have watched this backward march, and my soul has grown sick. Sorrow and disappointment filled my heart, and I cry out. "Oh! for the purity of Christ's religion, as I first met it among the people calling themselves disciples of Christ."

Columbus, Ohio.

SARAH ARCHER.

CORRESPONDENCE.

For the last two days I have been attending a religious discussion between Bro. J. B. Davis and a Baptist preacher, by the name of Simmons. The subjects discussed were the final perseverance of the saints, and the necessity of baptism. Bro. Davis affirmed that a child of God may fall away and be lost. Bro. Davis led off, and placed before the people over thirty Scripture arguments, showing that the Scriptures do teach that a man may fall away. Simmons replied, in a manner, to six or seven of the arguments, and then struck out with objections, nearly all of which amounted to nothing. In the second proposition, the Scriptures teach that a man may be saved before and without baptism in water, Mr. Simmons led off, with the case of Zaccheus, salvation brought to his house without baptism, and referred to the thief and a few other cases where salvation is affirmed and baptism not named. Bro. Davis' replications were simply crushing; so much so that in his last speech he (Simmons) quit the Scriptures, and told of his daughter's death, and of people dying on the battle-field, and played out entirely before he filled his last half hour. Bro. Davis is a large, portly man, red complected, with gray hair and beard, and is truly a workman that needs not be ashamed. He presents the word with great force and plainness, and wins the attention of all who hear him. And, with a withering glance and keen denunciation, strikes terror to the opposers of truth. A more complete and crushing defeat the Baptists never received. Long may Bro. Davis live to wield the sword of truth. Bro. Davis is sowing the seed broadcast over North Louisiana, but his field is too large. Oh, that some two or three good men would come and help him, for the harvest is great, but the laborers are few. Try to send us help. May God spare you long to publish the ADVOCATE, for there is no more welcome visitor than that same old reliable, the GOSPEL ADVOCATE.—[G. W. Hollis, Spearsville, La., September 10, 1884.]

RE-BAPTISM.

DEAR BRO. LIPSCOMB: I see that Bro. McGary has decided to have nothing more to say—in the ADVOCATE—on re-baptism. As you seem to be willing for more to be said, I have concluded to write a short piece on it and the confession. John's baptism was for the remission of sins. Christ established another on the day of Pentecost which was for the remission of sins, and to put a person into Christ. Since that time there has been another instituted by man—to baptize because their sins are pardoned. Now the apostles, guided by the Holy Spirit, found persons who had been baptized with the first; and I am satisfied they knew something about it. Yet they never asked them if they were satisfied with their baptism, or if they did it to honor God, but some spirit has authorized men of the present day to ask it of persons who have been baptized with the third one I named, and one that the apostles knew nothing of, one instituted by man which is in vain. See Mark 7: 7. Yet men still ask them if they did it to honor God, if so, they will take them. If Christ's word be true, they are not in Christ nor never can be until they are re-baptized. If what I have written be true, they will forever remain out of Christ. You say the good confession Timothy made put him in prison. Have you any proof except Heb. 13: 23 that he was in prison? It says he was set at liberty. But I think you can find as good versions as King James, that says he was sent away, and if sent away is right, the idea that he ever was in prison is not in the New Testament, or at least I have not been able to find it. So, I think, you had better conclude the good confession he made was one of the steps he had to take to become a Christian. J. R. WOOD.

The Tammany Hall Democracy has finally decided to support the regular Democratic Presidential nominees.—The steamer Wyoming arrived at New York from Liverpool last week, with five hundred Mormon converts, bound for Utah.—Floods on the Chippewa and Eau Claire Rivers, Wisconsin, are doing great damage. Ten large bridges were washed away. Two hundred houses at Eau Claire were washed away, and the damage is over $2,000,000.—Three survivors of the Greely expedition having been granted leave of absence, contracted to exhibit themselves as curiosities in a dime museum in Cleveland, Ohio. Secretary Lincoln did himself great credit by ordering them back to duty.—The jury in the case of Meyer Muskovitz, charged with complicity in the murder of Meyer Friedman, returned a verdict of guilty, and fixed his punishment at imprisonment for life. His attorneys made application for a new trial, which was refused. This case was tried at a former term of the court in July, but the jury could not agree.—The Congressional Convention in the ninth district met at Dyersburg, some days ago, took twenty-one hundred and thirty-five ballots, and adjourned without making a nomination. They met at Trenton on the 18th. They have taken about two hundred ballots, and seem no nearer a nomination than when they adjourned at Dyersburg.—A man had been seen hanging around the residence of Mrs. Garfield for some days. He was suspected of being a crank trying to shoot Mrs. Garfield, and was arrested.—Henry Lamb, aged 97, who died in Fairfax County recently, long resided near Mount Vernon. To his dying day he asserted that the vault containing the remains of Washington, had been violated and the skull carried away to France where it was sold to a firm of phrenologists. He says the desecration was committed by the sailors of a French ship anchored in the Potomac near Mount Vernon, and that the skull which was taken away was replaced by that of a negro servant of Col. Fairfax.

FOREIGN.—The Vienna police have discovered a band of forgers consisting of a father and seventeen children.—Matters between France and China appear to be in the same unsettled and unsatisfactory condition. ## A SUMMER BOARDER.

Mrs. Wren built a tiny brown house in a tree,
Where soon little eggs nestled, one, two and three;
And this is the story she whispered to me:

She was singing her rondo, one morning in May (And I think, should you hear it, you'd certainly say
She needed no Wagner to teach her the way),

When that big Mrs. Cuckoo, who every one knew,
Was too idle to build her own dwelling, peeped through
The branches, and entered without more ado.

She lingered awhile, and then fled o'er the sea,
Mrs. Wren coming home again, what should she see,
But four speckled eggs, where she left only three.

The blooms of the Summer crept up through the wold,
And heard the sweet story that never grows old,
The story that's only to mother birds told.

There were four little waifs in the tiny brown nest;
But the Cuckoo was larger and crowded the rest,
He was selfish and greedy, and snatched at the best.

Every day Mrs. Wren was away on the wing;
Though provisions were cheaper than early in Spring,
Yet, really, they left her scarce leisure to sing.

'Twas an arduous task, commissary for four,
Who were constantly hungry and calling for more,
And the Cuckoo was sure to be nearest the door.

Do you wonder she said, ere the Summer was done,
That this taking of boarders was very poor fun,
When of thanks for her trouble he'd given her none?

For he flew to the tree-top one sunshiny day,
With a brief au revoir as he hastened away;
And in his new home he is welcome to stay.

LITTLE JOE'S PRAYER.

BY AILENROC.

Perhaps the boys and girls who read the Advocate, would like to hear a sure enough story concerning a little boy named Joe.

I said a little boy; but if Joe is living, he is no longer a little boy, but a big one: for he was nine years old when the incident occurred, and ten years have rolled their course along since then.

I have lost track of little Joe, and his young step-mother, who was a dear friend of mine. This world is very wide, and friends get separated and lost from each other. I think of Joe very often. I like to think of him as a pious, godly young man, who is not ashamed of his religion. If it is possible that the dear little fellow has fallen into evil ways, has gone in the paths of ungodly, then I am glad that I have lost sight of him.

He had a stepmother, I said, and a true mother she was to him. Ianthe was a good girl, and she made a good wife and mother.

His father was a God-fearing man, a sober, stay-at-home kind of man, and Joe was nine years old before his father was called away from home to be gone a night. He got Ianthe's father to come and spend the night with his wife and child, and then he left them.

At supper that night, Ianthe returned thanks, and all passed off well until bedtime came.

Joe lingered longer than usual, and his mother, knowing his thoughts, said: "Go to bed my son. Papa is gone, and we can have no prayers to-night."

Then she helped him undress, and put on his night-gown; and when he had kissed her good-night, he went into his little bed-room, which opened into hers.

Ianthe and her father sat talking by the fire for some time, tell they were startled by an apparition—a little white-robed figure, with blue eyes drenched in tears.

"What is the matter, my son?" she asked.

"Oh mother," he replied, "I want somebody to pray. I can't sleep till somebody prays."

"But," my dear," she answered, tears in her own eyes, "papa is gone; we will have to wait till he gets home."

"Can't you pray?" he asked.

She looked at her father, and shook her head. He was not a religious man, never had been, and it was a cross to her to say a few words of thanks at the table, as to praying before him she could not do that.

"Grandpa, can't you pray?" he then said.

And the old man who had scoffed at religion all his life, felt strangely subdued as he answered "no."

"I will pray then," said the child. "If mother will read a chapter, I'll pray."

Ianthe got the Bible and read a chapter, then they all knelt down and Joe prayed.

It was a very childish prayer, but all the more touching, and had power to move those listeners more than the most eloquent appeals. Ianthe wept tears of contrition for her own faint-heartedness, tears of joy that this child of a dead mother and a loved father—this child which had been given into her keeping—should be so piously inclined. New resolutions were formed in her heart, new vows ascended on high.

The old man wept. Oh! the scalding tears over a misspent life. Memory carried him back to his own childhood; to the time when he was sinless as this little child, before his feet had trod in forbidden paths, or his lips been sullied by an evil word.

Joe arose from his knees satisfied and happy, and wondering why his mother and grandpa should cry so. He did not know why his mother should clasp him so close and kiss him so often, or why the old man's tears should bedew his flaxen head. He only knew that a duty had been performed, that God had been thanked for His care that day, and his protection asked for the night. Already his lids were twinkling with coming slumber, and very soon he was lost in sweet dreams upon his pillow.

I wish I could say that the old man who was so touched by Joe's prayer, reformed from that hour and sought the pearl of great price. But oh! how hard it is to break one habit, and this old man had a bundle of bad ones. He died as he lived, and as for little Joe, I know not where he may be; but one thing I do know, and that is, if parents do their duty their children will love the family altar. All may not, like him, be so religiously inclined; but yet in their hearts they will love the hour, they will honor their father more, and in after years they will look back to that hour of family prayer as life's dearest and sweetest memory.

ISLE AU HAUT.

Away off the coast of Maine, outside the cordon of rocky isles that stretch like a protecting chain between the Atlantic and Penobscot Bay, exposed to the ceaseless beat of the waves and to the fury of every storm, is the oddest, loneliest, and most primitive spot on the American coast, the Isle au Haut. This name was given to it by one of the early French voyagers, who thought lofty island a most appropriate appellation for the sea-girt rock, whose perpendicular sides rise immediately from the water, with scarcely a break in their monotony for a bit of beach. The island proper, with eight or ten smaller companions, now composes a town, having been set off from Deer Isle in 1874. All the islands together have an area of 3,000 acres, and about 200 people live on them. They all live by the sea, directly or indirectly, and their life is but a dull existence. Anthony Merchant first settled in one of the group, which now bears his name, in 1772, and since then the hamlet of fishers has grown by twos and threes, painfully slow. There is no post-office, no minister, no lawyer, and no doctor. If anybody is sick, or wants any red tape, or an expected letter, he must take a sail-boat and go to Deer Island or to Rockland, the journey being nearly always rough and often impossible.

On the summit of the cliffs is a great level plot, half sheep pasture and half blueberry bog, and there is grown the best mutton and wool in Maine, and there, too, is the blueberry pickers' paradise, whole schooner loads of people often going in summer from the main land to gather the berries. There was an attempt made years ago by a Georgia gentleman to make Isle au Haut a great summer resort, and he put all his own money and that of some other persons into the scheme. A splendid pavilion for concerts and dancing was built, and roads along the cliffs constructed at great expense. Then, just as the plans were ready for a great hotel, the finance department of that association collapsed, and with it the whole scheme. That was years ago, before the expressive term "crank" was on the boards. The natives used the roads for sheep paths, and dried nets on the hard-pine floor of the pavilion.

The fishers are as simple as the old Arcadians of whom it is written: "Neither locks had they to their doors, nor bars to their windows." Not many of them have ever seen the mainland, and scarcely any of them know what a city is like. Only a month ago the first horse ever landed on the island was brought there, and a good half of the simple folk gazed then for the first time upon a member of the equine species. No steamer ever lands there, and in all probability the only glimpses of good sized steam craft the islanders ever get is when, on clear days, they see through a glass passing vessels of the International and Boston and Bangor lines.

TWO WIDOWS.

There is a great contrast between country women who are left widows or without any male representative, who have been brought up according to modern notions, and those who have been trained to a knowledge of business. I have in mind two young widows, each left with a farm and a small family, who are forcible illustrations. One of them depended entirely upon her husband for everything, as such had been her training at home, and when he died she was obliged to lease her farm and walk to church, not knowing even how to harness a horse, when she could not catch a ride with a neighbor. She knew no more about the farm, the crops and the stock than a child, and her want of qualification was such that it was almost impossible for her to obtain an associate guardian for the property and her young children. The condition of the farm at present is a sad commentary on the helplessness of a woman when left to her own resources, and educated according to modern ideas, quite too common. The other widow, left in a similar condition, but differently trained, after her husband's death took the charge of the farm herself, drove her own carriage to church with her family, attended to her own business, brought up her children to aid her and has made a complete success. She has subscribed for several agricultural papers and endeavored to apply the knowledge which she obtained from them in a practical way. She has never appeared unwomanly or unladylike, but by her independence and success not only commands respect, but the commendation of every one.—F. D. Curtis, in New York Tribune.

A STORY FROM JAPAN.

At a meeting in Japan where a number of Christian girls were gathered together, the subject was: "How to glorify Christ by our lives." One of the girls said:

"It seems to me like this: One spring my mother got some flower seeds, little, ugly, black things, and planted them; they grew and blossomed beautifully. One day a neighbor coming in and seeing these flowers said: 'Oh, how beautiful! I must have some, too; won't you please give me some seed?' Now, if this neighbor had only just seen the flower seeds, she wouldn't have called for them; 'twas only when she saw how beautiful was the blossom that she wanted the seed."

"And so with Christianity; when we speak to our friends of the truths of the Bible, they seem to them hard and uninteresting, and they say: 'We don't care to hear about these things; they are not as interesting as our own stories. But when they see these same truths blossoming out in our lives into kindly words and good acts, then they say: 'How beautiful these lives! What makes them different from other lives?' When they hear that 'tis the Jesus-teaching, then they say: 'We must have it, too!'"

"And thus, by our lives, more than by our tongues, we can preach Christ to our unbelieving friends."

For the holiness that fights against sin, battles with temptation, keeps unspotted from the world; and lays self on the altar, there is a crying need in our time. It is a sympathetic spirit, going about doing good, yet it has no sympathy with evil customs and the fashions of the world. It strives to keep clean. Against the downward pull of the world it braces itself, and says: "If others do this, yet will not I." It dares to be singular and unfashionable. It keeps out of places where it would be smirched, and finds such enjoyment in its prayer service, its Bible study, its deeds of charity, and in the innocent joys of life, that it does not hanker after the playhouse and its kindred sensualities. Walking in the spirit, it does not stoop to the lusts of the flesh.—Dr. T. L. Culyer.

A friend cannot be known in prosperity, and an enemy cannot be hid in adversity.

LUTIE GRAPE VINES.

In offering this remarkable grape for sale, we wish to say to all grape growers that we have been growing and experimenting for these twenty years on different varieties, numbering a hundred or over, and so far have found nothing to equal the Lutie in all the essential qualities for profitable grape culture. We gave notice a year ago of this claim, and repeat it in this, that we challenge the world to show a better grape for this climate—hardier and bristlier in growth, free from rot, or finer in size or quality. But these are not its chief merits. It will produce more fruit at two years old, than any grape known to us can be made to produce in three. We challenge the east. If any have failed to see the Lutie in bearing, it is not our fault. We have invited all to come and see for themselves. Now, gentlemen of the vitis craft, come to law, or clear the way for "Miss Lutie."

We offer well-rooted one year old vines of this grape at the following rates:

One vine, well-rooted, one year old, - - $3 00
Two " " " " " " " " " " " " " " 5 00
Five " " " " " " " " " " " " " " 10 00
Twelve " " " " " " " " " " " " " " 20 00

Orders for Lutie vines will be received till our fall delivery, which will be November or until our present stock is exhausted, due notice of which will be given. From the number of orders coming in at this early day we cannot hope to be able to fill any spring orders at all. Therefore all desiring vines for the coming spring must order early and secure them this fall. Our fall delivery for city and country orders will be made at Nashville, on Saturday, November 1, 1894. Orders from a distance will be sent by mail or express, as desired. Money must be sent in by November, or paid on delivery of vines. Address

Mars Hill College.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fifteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for

(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen, mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

T. B. LARIMORE, President.

D. LIPSCOMB,

E. G. SEWELL.

Father, how can I thus be bold to pray
That Thou shalt grant me that or spare me this?
How should my ignorance not go astray,
How should my foolish lips not speak amiss
And ask for woe when fain they would ask bliss?
Just as Thou wilt is just what I would will;
Give me but this, the heart to be content,
And if my wish is thwarted, to life still,
Waiting till puzzle and till pain are spent,
And the sweet thing made plain which the Lord meant.
—Susan Coolidge.

OUR SCHOOLS.

For many years I have noticed closely the workings of the Roman Catholic Schools, and while they do not advertise largely, they are always full. First, it is known that a Catholic will not send his child to any other school, if a Catholic school can be had. Next, it is the common belief among a great many persons that they are superior educators, and, above all, they win the hearts of the young. Hence their institutions are crowded with protestant pupils, who do not stay protestants long; if they do not join them, they are ever afterwards inclined to them. As for them being better educators than the balance of the world, I do not believe a word of it; nor do I believe them to be so good, from all I have seen. But I do believe they have the true secret of having large schools and spreading their doctrine. If I wanted my son or daughter to be a Roman Catholic, I would certainly send them to their schools.

Now, I appeal to my brethren. Do you believe with all your heart that you are right, that you have the truth? If so, would you not like for your children to walk in the same paths? Now, why put them, of your own free will and accord, in a place that you may be reasonably certain they will be something else. We have as cheap schools, as competent teachers, the soundest code of morals, the Bible as our standard. And after all is said about education, and as much as a appreciate it, I had rather a son of mine to be educated in that one book than all the literature and science of the ages. Then why not patronize our own schools? One great trouble among our educators is to realize that this is an age of Young America, when children usually go where they please. The Catholics understand this, and are sure to make fair weather with the children; they know where to strike; hence they say that every boy or girl they have had with them is a standing advertisement. They win the hearts of the young, and so should we, if we wish to build up our schools for usefulness and do good.

Those who are not familiar with our colleges and schools, have no idea of the number of good schools we have in this great country; not less than twenty colleges, two hundred academies and high schools, and thousands of teachers at towns, villages, cross roads, as well as private schools. Then we should be at no loss to find good schools for our children. I might mention many of them, such as Bethany College, Kentucky University, Burritt College, and others.

But I wish now to call special attention to two, because I know them best. The first is South Kentucky College, located at Hopkinsville, Ky. It is at present under the control of President Crumbaugh and Bro. Jas. E. Scobey, both of whom are highly educated and accomplished gentlemen. I have known Bro. Scobey for thirty years, and can testify as to his true worth in every respect. The College has opened this session with fine prospects. At present one hundred and forty pupils have entered, about equally divided between young ladies and gentlemen. The school is a model one, and I would urge our brethren who live convenient by all means to encourage this school. Bro. Scobey has especial charge of the young ladies. Those who attend are required to board in the college building with his family. This fact alone insures success to those who are placed under his charge.

The other school I wish to call attention to, is that of Mars Hill, conducted by Bro. Larimore.

I learn, with great pleasure, that Bro. Daugherty, our singing brother, who has so long been with Bro. Harding, has agreed at last to go to school, and also to teach vocal music the coming session for Bro. Larimore. This certainly is a good move, and will result in honor and profit to both. Singing is an accomplishment that no one should neglect, especially those who expect to preach the gospel as a life-work. And now Bro. Larimore has his school complete. I have never seen his equal for teaching pure Christianity. Some time ago Bro. Lipscomb said he once thought that Bro. Larimore's school was about all the one that taught simple Christianity as held by the GOSPEL ADVOCATE, but was led to doubt this from some statements of Bro. Srygley. I can assure Bro. Lipscomb and all others, on good authority, that Bro. Srygley, nor any one else, ever learned that missionary societies, organs, or any human machinery for the work of the church, was ever encouraged at Mars Hill. If any of its pupils advocate these things, it is because they learned to love them after leaving that school. Bro. Larimore has the happy faculty of getting all his pupils enthused with the love of Christ. He teaches the Bible in its purity, and I have never seen a single pupil who was with him any length of time, but what was a good teacher of Christianity. They may teach something else after they associate with others and become contaminated, but they never learned it at Mars Hill. So I say to young brethren, especially those who want to do good in the world and preach the gospel, by all means go to Bro. Larimore's school. He is a gentleman and a Christian, and I cannot say more for him.

V. M. METCALFE.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL? Allow me to report through the ADVOCATE work and visible results since August 1st. The first Lord's day in August and week following, I was at Berea, Wilson County. Had a good hearing and apparently a good interest, but no additions. The second Lord's day in August and week following, at Philadelphia, Warren County. Had large crowds and most orderly "basket meeting" I ever attended. Eleven were added to the congregation; nine by obedience to the gospel and two by commendation. Third Lord's day in August I was at Grant, Smith County, and continued till Thursday night. We have no house at Grant. The Cumberland Presbyterians gave us the use of their house and made us feel at home. We had large crowds and I think made a good impression, but had no additions. Fourth Lord's day in August at Dixon's Spring, Smith County, continued till Wednesday night; baptized one and two others took membership with the congregation. Fifth Lord's day in August at New Hermon, Bedford County. Closed Friday night with seven added by obedience to the gospel. The first Lord's day in September I was at Lewisburg, Marshall County. Preached twenty-one discourses, resulting in twenty-five additions to the congregation; twenty-one baptisms, one from the Baptists, one from the Methodists, and two reclaimed. The above report includes six weeks of almost constant work, a considerable part of the time under what Bro. Walling terms the ten-hour-system. During this time, I preached seventy-five sermons. Total number of additions, forty-six. The brethren have been kind and liberal in supplying my temporal wants. All things considered, the good cause is prospering. The churches are growing in grace and zeal, and there is more earnest, practical Christianity than I have ever seen before. Prejudices are dying out and people are ready and even anxious to hear and read for themselves. We have abundant reason to thank God and take courage.

J. M. KIDWILL.

The world and its riches are like fire to man, a good servant, but a terrible master.—Golden Censer.

DENTON-HALL DEBATE.

It was my good fortune to attend the debate between Bro. E. C. L. Denton and Elder J. N. Hall, of the Missionary Baptist Church, held at Como, Tennessee, September 9-12, 1884. The subjects discussed were the distinct personal influence of the Holy Spirit, and the importance of Baptism in the remission of past sins. There were several very interesting points brought out in the discussion.

Elder Hall, in his first proposition, said a man was blind, and that this spiritual blindness had to be removed by a distinct personal influence of the Holy Spirit, before he could see; hence before he could hear and obey the gospel. He also said a man was sanctified by the Spirit before he could claim the truth, and quoted 2 Thes. 2: 13, in proof of the fact that "sanctification of the Spirit" came before, and was separate and distinct from "belief of the truth." Hence in his first proposition he had a man and without faith, indeed without the gospel, making the word of God a non-essential, and hence a failure.

Then in his second proposition, in order to set aside baptism, he (Hall) tried to prove that a man was justified by faith, and even faith only. And thus flatly contradicted his first proposition.

Again, Mark 16: 16, was introduced as proof of the second proposition by Bro. Denton, and he (Denton) showed that it contained all the terms of his proposition.

Mark 16: 16 was declared spurious and without divine authority, when, as Bro. Denton proved, its authorship was doubtful only.

Then the case of Cornelius was introduced by Bro. Denton, and the statement made by Peter at Jerusalem was quoted, that the angel said send for Peter "who shall tell thee words, whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved."

Elder Hall then said that Peter did tell the Jews this in his defense at Jerusalem, but that it was not found in the account of it in Acts 10, and that Peter was mistaken. Hence he (Hall) intimates that Peter, in making his defense or excuse for going to the Gentiles, used a false statement to free himself from their censure. All of that was to destroy the force of the expression, "Tell thee words," or in other words to set it aside entirely.

Then the question arises, if he will denounce Mark 16: 16 as false and unscriptural, because it proves Bro. Denton's proposition; and if he will charge Peter with dishonesty who is introduced as successful proof, has he not worked himself up to the point that he can declare as false any Scripture which proves something in an opponent's proposition, or charge with dishonesty any apostle who testifies anything contrary to his creed or position?

"I have no use for any doctrine that compels me to set aside any part of the Bible, the word of God, or forces me to hurl the charge of dishonesty into any apostles face," said Bro. Denton.

Elder Hall also put himself against the learned men of his own church as well as of the world and said that in John 3: 3 "water did not mean water," but was figurative and meant spirit.

The debate was satisfactory to our brethren, and all expressed themselves as well pleased with the manner in which Bro. Denton defended the faith "once delivered."

Bro. Denton holds a meeting at Como, beginning September 20. There are hopes of his reaping a bountiful harvest from the seed sown there during the four days of the debate. There is a small congregation at Como. There has been great prejudice there. It has been the case that fires were built more when Bro. Denton's appointments were, in order to make it too warm for him to preach, he having been compelled to preach in the grove, "God's first temple." But we are thankful that a great deal of such kind of prejudice is being removed and that the cause of our Master is being builded up.

THE SAN ANTONIO MISSION.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: Since I wrote you last, I have received the enclosed letter from Bro. D. Pennington, at San Antonio, Texas, acknowledging the receipt of the box of papers I sent him; which letter I send you that you may publish it, or so much of it as you may deem proper to publish, that the brethren in Texas may see the condition of the mission in San Antonio, and in other States also, and help it by their money and prayers. "As Bro. Pennington has asked me to help them all I can by encouraging the mission," I will say something to the brethren to help the mission. First, they should help this mission because of the importance of the place where it is located. The two rivers running through San Antonio and San Pedro, make it resemble the ancient city, Damascus, one of the most ancient cities in the world, with its two rivers, Pharpar and Abana, which were thought to be better than all the waters of the Jordan. 2 Kings, fifth chapter. Second, on account of the facilities enumerated by Bro. Pennington, of railroads, fertility of the soil, and a great highway to Mexico and the South. Then if it is not sustained, we shall lose all we have done. I therefore beseech the brethren of Texas and other places, to help the mission with their money and prayers, and not allow it to fail, and give it up to Satan and organs.

I have a word to say to the friends of the organ in the city, and in all other places. The command to sing, given in Colossians 3: 16, "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord." First, the burden of proof lies upon you to show that this command was given to choirs and organ grinders to let the word of Christ dwell in them in all wisdom. It is not my business to prove that the word cannot dwell in organs, but your business to prove that it can; and when I see your Scriptures and reasons and proofs for it, then I will prove that it cannot be done. I am not required to prove a negative. The command given to this church is the one given to every church. Secondly, the command given to this church to sing, is as binding on all the members of this church, as was the command to be buried in immersion. Col. 2: 12. Who has the authority to say only the choirs shall be immersed? The command to all the members of that church to sing, is as imperative as it is to celebrate the supper every Lord's day. The command to all the members of that church to sing, is as binding as the fellowship and contribution. Who took all the things from the churches of Jesus Christ and gave them to the servants of Satan? Answer: That brazen-faced, impudent creature, Dr. Anti-Christ, who has undertaken to supply the defects of Christ's gospel.

BRO. PENNINGTON'S LETTER.

ELDER JACOB CREATH—Dear Father in Israel: It did my heart good to get a letter from an old soldier of the cross, and especially one whose articles have been worth so much to me and the church generally, to guard the church from innovation. The box of books has been received, and we will do our best to use them to the honor of God. The express charges on them were four dollars. However, we appreciate them very much for the good we hope they will do, and especially do we appreciate them as a token of your sympathies for us in our struggles to build up our Master's cause in this city of thirty-five thousand population. Under the almost universal endorsement and encouragement of the brotherhood of this State, I came here fifteen months ago and commenced with about twenty members, and we have had no place to meet until recently except in private residences. We could not get to preach in any of the twenty odd churches, or the court-house, or any of the school-houses, of which San Antonio is well supplied. We commenced preaching in one of the public parks, and though this park is used every Wednesday evening by the band, and has been used by the Methodists to have ice cream festivals in, and the negroes had been allowed to hold an emancipation celebration on it, yet when we commenced preaching on it, complaint was made that our meetings disturbed the peace of the neighbors, and the city council passed an ordinance prohibiting preaching on it, then we had to meet in private residences; but under all these difficulties, we have increased in numbers from twenty to sixty; but our members are most of them sisters, and poor at that. By a very heavy sacrifice of our members, we have a very neat and comfortable house of worship in a central locality, and we have met four Lord's days in it to break bread and have preached twice each Lord's day, and we had additions by commendation and baptism at every meeting. We owe on our house by three parties pledged failing to pay their pledges. One party that pledged five hundred dollars moved off, and one that pledged three hundred dollars, and another that pledged two hundred dollars have failed to pay, and these failures have involved us in debt. I came here in the hope that I would be sustained in this mission, but I have not; I sold my buggy and two horses, and two hundred dollars worth of land, (all the land I owned) and have used it all here, and I am in debt, and we have not lived extravagantly. The dress of myself and family have been such as to create some unfavorable comment. I have held on rather than give up a well begun work. I did hope that our influential brethren would stir up the brethren through papers to sustain this mission. I am ready to give up the work as soon as some one else will take the work. I was away on Lord's day was a week ago, and our Sunday-school Superintendent introduced the question of bringing an organ into the Sunday-school. The superintendent took the vote of the school on the organ question, and all voted for it except some of the teachers and my children. When I came home I vetoed the organ question, and I believe it will be the means of us losing some of our members. The organ shall never come into the worship. There are a few members who are able (financially) to do much for the cause, who are standing aloof because I would not admit the organ. I am afraid I will be compelled to abandon the field, and then I presume they will bring in the calf. We have many good, true and pure members here who have been very liberal, and have sacrificed much, but they are not able to sustain me. I would be glad to remain here in order to send my children to school. San Antonio is a railroad center, being connected with the Pacific and Atlantic coasts, Mexico and the principle cities, and in the center of a rich section of country, two hundred and fifty by three hundred miles, with only four or five preachers. The San Antonio and San Pedro rivers both wind their way through city, and are bridged on every street. These two streams both come from immense springs that burst up only two miles above the city, and these are distributed into ditches and run the principle streets. Pray for us. I hope you will help us all you can by encouraging the mission.

SIXTH CHAPTER OF ACTS.

BRO. E. G. SEWELL: In the ADVOCATE of August 13, 1884, No. 33, you gave a comment on the sixth chapter of Acts, which has created considerable interest with me, and no doubt many others, concerning the appointment of servants of the church. Now, Bro. Sewell, I don't want a controversy over the matter, but I wish to give you a few points that seems to me to contradict your theory. If I understand the drift of your argument, you affirm that no others than the apostles laid hands on any one, and that it was always to impart miraculous power and spiritual gifts. Now, Bro. Sewell, I cannot yet endorse your affirmation for these reasons, the church chose the seven and the apostles alone appointed them over that business, and in the appointment to that service they prayed and laid their hands on them. For what purpose? To appoint them to do evangelistic work, and to give them power to work miracles to convince the people that they were servants of God? or to appoint them over this business, i. e., the daily ministrations? It is very clear to me that they did not need the gift to work miracles to aid them in this daily ministrations. But afterwards Stephen and Philip became evangelists and did work miracles. Now did the appointment to the deaconship also appoint them to the work of an evangelist? If so, then the gift to work miracles was then imparted to them, and a deacon and evangelist are the same kind of a servant; for it is very plain they were only appointed to one service, or office. Such a conclusion would be absurd, for there is a vast difference between the office (or service) of a deacon and an evangelist; consequently we arrive at the conclusion that Stephen and Philip were afterward appointed evangelists, and then this miraculous power was given them to aid them in proclaiming the gospel, as they did not need it in these daily ministrations as deacons.

Then again, who were the elders of the church at Jerusalem? Did not the apostles act as such? Did not they have the same care of the church there at that time that elders always had? It seems so to me, and also that they officiated as elders as well as apostles. Again you say that Acts 13: 1-3 is not a case of ordination. But it seems very clear to me that this is an appointment of Barnabas and Saul to the service (or office) of an evangelist, and the question arises, who laid hands on them? And for what purpose? Did the apostles do it? If so, then we might conclude that it was to impart miraculous power, for they only could do this. But we have no account that any of the apostles were at Antioch at this time; besides, could not Paul work miracles before that laying on of hands? It would be absurd to think that they would lay hands on Paul to give him what he had already. Now, Bro. Sewell, as the apostles were not present, (or at least, if they were, I cannot find testimony for it,) and as they had the power to impart these spiritual gifts only, is it not probable and conclusive that it was the elders of the church at Antioch that appointed these to the work or service of evangelists, by fasting, prayer and by imposition of hands? Again, in Acts 14: 23, we have an account that Paul and Barnabas appointed elders in every church and commended them to the Lord in prayer with fasting. In this case there is nothing said of laying on hands, though it seems from other appointments of similar character that they might have done so in this case. Again, it seems from 1 Tim. 4: 14; 5: 22, and 2 Tim. 1: 6, that others than Paul laid hands on Timothy. From 1 Tim. 4: 14 it seems that the presbytery laid hands on Timothy with Paul. 2 Tim. 1: 6: And I understand that an elder and presbyter are the same, and they have no power to impart spiritual gifts. It also seems that Timothy was to lay hands on some one, from 1 Tim. 5: 22. Now on who, and for what purpose, if not in appointing evangelists, elders and deacons in the churches? to these services as servants of the Lord's heritage.

Now, Bro. Sewell, after considering your comment with that of R. Milligan, in "Scheme of Redemption," book 3, page 352, and J. W. McGarvey's "Commentator on Acts of Apostles," page 76 and 77, and with my own views, I have arrived at the following conclusion:

1. That the apostles only could impart spiritual gifts, and they did it by imposing their hands on the parties to receive the gift.

2. That evangelists, elders and deacons are elected by the church, and are appointed or set apart to serve the church by fasting, prayer and laying on of hands by the elders or other chosen representatives, and that the ceremony should be solemn and impressive.

Bro. Sewell, I have not been a disciple but little over two years, and I have studied this and other subjects to know the truth, and not to support a hobby; and I ask you as a brother in Christ to give this subject further comment through the ADVOCATE.

ENQUIRER.

Bro. J. M. Haynes, of Murfreesboro, writing from Eureka Springs, Ark., says of the place: "This is one of the highest points of the Ozark mountains, and is a city of rocks, and many springs of pure cold water flowing from deep gulches in the mountain side. It has a population of about seven thousand. The people are very social, friendly and quiet. We have a good congregation here and a good house of worship."

It is pleasant to feel impelled to continue one's work by the growing conviction of its importance and value; more happy still to be constrained to go on by dear love of the service itself; but best of all to be so blessedly certain of the Lord's will and help in the matter that one dare not give up!

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

A. C. Henry, Athens, Ala., September 4, writes: "Our meeting is progressing well. I began here on Lord's day night, have preached three discourses, and made a little talk to the brethren. Two made the good confession last night and are to be baptized this evening."

E. A. Albritton, Bazette, Texas, September 19, writes: "G. A. Faris went down to Bazette, Texas, and preached Christ unto them, and many believed the things spoken of him. Up to date forty four are added to the church, with growing interest. Will report the final result when closed. Give all the praise to the Lord."

Levi Speer writes: I held a meeting on Camp Creek, Robertson county, Texas, the first Lord's day in September, fifteen additions. Set a congregation in order, with thirty members. I preached my first discourse in June, and have baptized about fifty persons since that time. I am the only preacher in Robertson county that takes the Bible alone."

James R. Brown, Hohenwald, Tenn., September 19, writes: "I held a meeting in Hardin county, Tenn., embracing the second Lord's day in this month. Preached thirteen discourses at and near Savannah. Nine persons brought into the fold of Christ, all by confession and baptism. Truly, in this section the harvest is great, but laborers are few. The Cumberland Presbyterians kindly permitted us to use their house while there, for which we tender our heart-felt thanks."

A. C. Henry, Athens, Ala., September 22, writes: "Closed a meeting of a week at Hartselle, yesterday. Only one addition, from the Baptists. Preached here last night, and expect to continue for a few days, perhaps a week. This is a new place with us, we have no house here, but are using the Baptists house. They are gone down here; have not had preaching in two years, we hope to do them good by building them on the Rock."

J. B. Bradley, Lynnville, Tenn., September 22, writes: "Bro. J. C. McQuiddy has just closed a very good meeting at Robertson's Fork, had twenty-one additions. Had a prayer meeting every morning at ten o'clock during the meeting, which resulted in great good to the church. Many of the young men took part in these exercises, that were never known to pray in public before. The congregation is splendidly worked up. Bro. McQuiddy's lady was with him, she is a fine lady."

R. W. Couch writes: "We have had a Baptist protracted meeting at our village, by a Mr. Porter, one of the editors of the Missionary Baptist. He, as usual, claimed salvation by faith alone, for he never told the mourners to do anything but trust or believe. On the fourth of this month he talked a great deal about Christ's baptism, the descent of the Holy Spirit, and the acknowledgement of Christ as the Son, by the Father. Now, I want to ask Mr. Porter, if you think advisable, What was this heavenly display for—what did it mean? Did it mean to show the order in which the Holy Spirit and the acknowledgement as a Son come, or did it mean anything at all? Why are we sons and daughters before baptism, and Christ had to wait until after baptism to be acknowledged a son? Why is it that we give them the hand of Christian fellowship, and will not eat with them at the Lord's table until they are baptized? Why is it, according to Baptist custom, that we have to take one more step to get into the Baptist church, than we do to get into heaven? I ask Bro. Porter to answer these. I would love to see his answer."

F. Talmage, Belmont, Tenn., September 23, writes: "I commenced a meeting at Singleton, Bedford County, Tenn., on the night of September 12, and continued until the night of September 21, closing with eighteen additions to the church; sixteen I baptized into Christ, one came from the Baptists, and one reclaimed. I immersed the last candidate after night in the waters of Duck River. It was a solemn sight. The crowd on the banks of the river, the light from uplifted candles and lanterns, the shining stars, the hushed silence, the burial, the resurrection and parting with the people at the edge of the stream, made it one of the most impressive sights I ever witnessed. I love the dear saints of Singleton, and trust they will not permit our cause to languish and die. I left a great number "almost persuaded." Of the eighteen additions, twelve were heads of families, all were in deep solemn earnest. Some of the added were men of prominence in the community. We urged the brethren to build a church-house, and secured reliable subscription for over half the necessary amount. Much credit it due brethren J. D. Floyd and J. C. McQuiddy, and others, for seed sown, and too much credit cannot be given to the brethren Reagor, McGill, and Brileys, and their estimable wives, for earnestness and zeal in bringing about the above result. Brethren pray for us that we may be humble and lowly in preaching the word."

Brown Godwin, Boston, Tenn., September 18, writes: "Closed a meeting, last night, at this place. Spoke twenty times, and twenty-nine were added to the fold—seventeen by confession and baptism, three from the Methodists, three from the Baptists, and six reclaimed. I find some of the brethren at this place at work in good earnest; others, who seem to think the work will go on without their assistance. During our meeting, one of our friends, who was loved and esteemed by all who knew him, was immersed, and in three hours from the time was cold in death. He looked to be in good health, though, I learn since, he had been complaining some. He was on his way home from meeting, and had stopped at Bro. Thomas Sparkman's spring to get water, and in a short time was found dead. He crossed his own hands across his breast. While it is hard to give up our brother, we feel assured that our loss is his gain. May God help us all to be prepared for this hour."

C. J. Hamilton, Buckeye, Clay county, Ala., September 17, writes: "I am living at this place, practicing medicine, though I preach all I can. I commenced a meeting Friday night before the first Lord's day in August, and continued until Tuesday night, with six confessions and baptism, and a great interest taken by all. On Friday night before the second Lord's day in August, I commenced a meeting near Dean post-office, Clay county, and continued until Monday night. Two additions, by confession and baptism. I visited a protracted meeting on the third Lord's day in August, at Liberty, near Christiana, and preached one sermon. Two baptized. I held a meeting at this place, commencing Friday night before the fourth Lord's day in August, closing Wednesday night, with five additions. I closed a meeting, last night, at Mount Hope, near Horse Creek, in Talladega county, with four additions and considerable interest. I am doing all I can for the Master's cause, but to him be all the praise."

G. B. Stone, Ellijay, Ga., September 19, writes: "Embracing the second Lord's day, I held a meeting of four days at Ludville, Pickens county. There is a good church at this place. The brethren seemed to be edified. Thence I hastened to Bethel, same county, to attend the North Georgia district meeting, which convened at this place, embracing the third Lord's day. Here I met Bro. T. M. Foster, State evangelist. Heard him preach two or three able sermons. He left on Lord's day evening. I remained to protract the meeting over Wednesday following. There were fifteen additions to the church—eleven by baptism, and four reclaimed. I went back to Ludville and preached Thursday and Thursday night. Thence to Cedar Ridge, in Whitfield county, and held a meeting of two days, embracing the fourth Lord's day. There are some good brethren here. Thence to my home in Tennessee, and found all well."

William H. Sandy, Jr., Minor Hill, Tenn., September 18, writes: "Bro. H. J. Spivy commenced a protracted meeting for us at Noblitt's Chapel, on Saturday, September 13. Four have confessed the Savior. The meeting is still going on. Bro. Spivy has labored for two years past in Lawrence and Giles counties, principally in Lawrence, in most destitute places. Added about one hundred to the church. The brotherhood are generally poor. He has received one hundred and twenty-five dollars. The congregations he has preached to are Bellevue, Cherry Hill, Cool Springs, and Ephesus. All of them are in very good working order. A Bible class at each place. Average about thirty at each place."

STEADFASTNESS IN THE TRUTH.

"See that ye refuse not him that speaketh." Heb. 12: 25.

Though this language seems to have been designed to warn the Hebrews against their constant tendency to return to Judaism, it is very profitable to us, for correction, for reproof, and for instruction in righteousness.

Let us note the reason for this command: "For if they escaped not who refused him that spake on earth, much more shall not we escape, if we turn away from him that speaketh from heaven." Evidently, a refusal is a turning away from him that speaketh, or the turning is a natural consequence of the refusal. When we took upon us the name of Christ, we changed our relationship to God and man; actually agreed to be no longer our own; having been bought by the precious blood of Christ, having come to this blood that purges from dead works, we formally promised to offer our body a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God.

Now, let us see what he speaketh, so that we may not refuse it. Let us stay our affections upon him, for he claims, and justly, our love, in soul, mind, and strength. If we set our affection upon earthly objects, without an eye single to his glory, we refuse, turn away from him that speaketh from heaven. How awful the consequence! "He that turneth away from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination." Dear brethren, is not this as applicable to us, as to the world? We have a law of liberty, which we must obey to enjoy liberty. If we are now turning away from hearing it, seeking earthly glory in any way, must we not expect our prayer to be abomination in the sight of God? Why do we ask, yea, so many of us, so earnestly, and receive not? Not because God is unwilling to grant our petitions, but because we, having refused God's word in some other or diverse duties, have made our prayer abominable in his sight. The poor are neglected, the weekly meeting disregarded, banqueting and revelry, and general conformity to the world, are tolerated, or looked upon with silent regret, by the most zealous; while the preacher, blinded by the god of this world, meekly submits to the yoke of bondage, and performs the labor required by whom? By his god, of course.

Our Savior says: "If two or three agree as touching anything they ask in my name, it shall be granted." Now, brethren, with the worldly conformity above described, we cannot ask God to convert the world; we have refused, turned away from hearing him who spoke from heaven, saying, "Be not conformed to the world," "Let your light so shine," etc.; hence our prayers, by myriads, fail to reach the Lord. To agree as touching any one thing we ask, to ask it in the name of Christ, it seems to me, implies an agreement that (1) we need the blessing asked for; (2) that it accords with his will or testament; (3) that the prime object in asking is to honor his name; for whatsoever we do, must be done in the name of Jesus Christ, to the honor and glory of God. It would not be to his honor, it seems to me, to ask him to increase our number, when we are so neglecting, refusing his plain direction. It would not be to his honor to work and pray for the conversion of "great men" while hungry, starving, poor, are in want of the bread of life. We thus turn away from hearing him who is no respecter of persons. 'Tis no honor to God, that I see, to be a Free Mason, an Odd-Fellow, a politician, Chairman of any committee, or to get $4,000 a year for preaching. Hence these things may not be done in the name of Jesus Christ, to the honor and glory of God; therefore are excluded from whatsoever a Christian may do without refusing him that speaketh from heaven. Hence, it is just as much a transgression for us to ask God to bless while we do these things, indeed, more so, we being the light of the world, as it is for us to ask God to bless us in answer to prayer before baptism. It is an apostasy that brings anathema maranatha.

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview, Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

THE RIGHT THING OR NOTHING.

We had just as well not attempt to do the will of God at all, as to change his commands, and do them in a different manner from that commanded. It is just as much sin to change God's manner of doing things, as it is to refuse to do them altogether. Now if any do not believe this, we can make them believe it, provided they believe the Bible. It makes no difference in the matter either, as to how honest a man may be in changing the commands of God, and substituting his own notion of things, he will be punished for not doing the right thing, and he will also be punished for not doing the right thing in the right way. Saul met Samuel and told him he had performed the bidding of the Lord. And in fact he had done enough of it to please almost any of the religionists of to-day. He had changed the commandment of God just a little. He saved the king as a trophy of his victory, and the nicest and fattest of the cattle for an offering to the Lord. No doubt he thought the Lord would be pleased with the action, when he should offer him the cattle; but Samuel told him that "obedience is better than sacrifice," and that he ought to have done the Lord's bidding. There are many Saul's now who pretend to obey God, but change God's commands and substitute something else. Uzzah attempted to save the ark from falling, by staying it with his hand, and fell dead beside the cart. God had said none but a Levite shall touch the Ark. Uzzah was not a Levite. His purpose was good, he was honest about saving the Ark, but he disobeyed God. Now, though God does not strike men suddenly dead for disobedience, nor pull men down from high places, because they change his commands, yet he has warned us by recording these things, that he will hold us accountable for such disobedience. We conclude then, as we began, that men had just as well not attempt to obey God, as to do only part commanded and then substitute our own ways for God's commands. Yet there are thousands doing worse than Saul and Uzzah. There are thousands who have perverted God's commands—broken them, and are teaching men so, and these shall be held to a terrible account.

PUT YOURSELF ON THE SAFE SIDE.

There is more controversy about baptism than about everything else now distracting the church. This controversy has done more to destroy true godliness, and has kept more to people out of Christ, than anything else. It has separated the professed followers of Christ, and divided their work, setting them in array against each other. For all the confusion that exists on this subject, paedobaptists are responsible. They occupy the doubtful side of this question, and while doing so, admit the other side—the side of immersion—to be right. All paedobaptists of any note, or weight as authority, admit that immersion, properly performed, is baptism. They could then adopt it without any sacrifice of principle or conscience. To adopt immersion exclusively, would end this everlasting strife about the mode. In adopting immersion as the only true baptism, they sacrifice nothing, for they themselves admit it to be right.

Now in view of all this, they are responsible for all the divisions and heresy among the professed people of God, brought about by this question. Why they will persist in keeping up the fight on the doubtful side of the question, to the detriment of Christ's church, and the confusion of God's people, is a mystery. By laying aside their substitute for baptism (sprinkling) and adopting baptism itself, they stop the controversy on this subject, and a long stride is made thus, towards the union of all God's people. Why men will choose to stand on the doubtful side of a question in religious matters, when they can just as easily stand on the side no one doubts, is another great mystery. Men do not do this way in business matters. Men will not take a doubtful twenty dollar bill, when they can just as easily have one that nobody doubts. But when the stake is eternal life, they trifle with the interests of their immortal souls. Somebody is responsible for all this, and we charge it upon the leaders in paedobaptist ranks, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men, and thus frustrating the commands of God. They break the commandment of God and teach men so. They do not desire the union of God's people, otherwise they would cease their contentions about that which, in its beginning, and for centuries afterwards, was only intended to substitute the right thing—immersion. Will our paedobaptist friends consider this matter; and will they not adopt the infallible safe side of this question—the side admitted to be right by all religionists? Will they not thus aid us in bringing about a union of all God's people.

On the way home I found Bro. Lumpkin in a meeting for the Moody Church, but at an arbor four miles East of that place. He preached on the subject, Salvation, what it is, whence it came; and how given. It was the best thing I have ever heard on that theme. He dried up the water between the sinner and the Savior and sent apostasy back to the source from whence it came.—Correspondent of Texas Baptist Herald.

When men professedly Christian, sneer at God's commands in this way, how can we expect anything else than that the world shall be full of infidels? "He dried up the water between the sinner and the Savior, etc." In other words, this writer means to say it is not true that "he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." True, Jesus said so, but his word is worth nothing in Baptist ranks. Peter said, "Repent and be baptized for the remission of sins," but what of that? Peter was only an old fogey, by the side of our post oak scrubs who wear clergymen's robes, and dub themselves "Rev's." and "doctors." True, Peter was full of the Holy Spirit, and spoke as the Spirit gave him utterance, but then he did not know that there would be any "Campbellites" to fight now. What a pity the Lord did not consult these wise doctors before he gave the law of pardon. They move heaven and earth to try to disprove his word, and make him out false. What a pity, too, that there were no Baptists present to tell Peter of the mistake he made when he directed men to "repent and be baptized, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins." That mistake corrected there, might have saved the world much trouble. We advise this correspondent to read an old book, called the New Testament. If he does so carefully, he may learn something to his advantage.

At this writing we are in a meeting at Kilgore. We have built an arbor, and the brethren from Bellvue, Peatown and Troupe are with me, and we shall try to organize a congregation here. The people are listening attentively, and seem pleased with the preaching of the old ancient gospel. We hope to do good here.

Baptized one at Longview first Lord's day in September.

MAJOR PENN'S PICTURE.

Maj. Penn, the sensational Baptist exhorter, who can convert more people without a word of gospel than any man in Texas, has gotten up a caricature picture of the churches, which we think would become Bob Ingersoll, and would be eminently worthy of such a man. If Penn believed in Christ half as much as he does in Penn, he would not desecrate holy things in any such way. Bro. McPherson ought to get a copy of this picture. Perhaps he will want to adopt it, as Penn thinks it works well. The Methodists think sprinkling works well too, had he not better adopt that?

PEACE! PEACE!

DEAR BRO. LIPSCOMB: While I am opposed to all things as faith and worship which we cannot read in the blessed old Book, I also believe you are saying more than ought to be said in reference to missionary movements of all and every kind. If a sinner or sectarian reads the ADVOCATE, they would think that we were on the eve of an internal war. And when one takes up the ADVOCATE to read a splendid (as he hopes) production from Bro. Sewell, yourself, or some correspondent, he reads on a while, delighted, and about the time he becomes absorbed in the theme, it suddenly breaks off into an effusion on "plans." Now, dear brother, while I know you are zealous to see our great plea faithfully carried out to the end, that all sects shall cease, and while I know that you are zealous for the purity of the church, (the lamb's wife,) still I believe your excellent and faithful ADVOCATE would do more good to treat more tenderly those grand, good brethren, who differ from you as to how to carry out the command, "Go preach the gospel to every creature." One of the bulwarks of our plea, and a powerful evidence before the world that we are right, is that we cannot divide, that we are one. Do not allow anything on earth to rob us of the plea for union. Dear brother, these lines are written in love by one who loves to see an earnest contending for the faith, but think we may unwittingly find ourselves riding to the death that poor, emaciated animal, whose name is "hobby." I write this for the ADVOCATE, if you will be so kind as to permit it printed, for I love to see brethren exhibit the spirit of love in their writings.—[J. M. Ratliffe, Piedmont, Mo.]

Why not apply the same principle to the work of the church that we apply to the worship of it? Why is God's order of worship more a matter of faith, more sacred, than God's order of work? It is just as much treason to God to depart from his order of work, as to depart from his order of worship. The Baptists might cry for peace and union in their departures from the Scripture order of obedience, as well as Bro. Ratliffe cry for it in his departures from the Scripture order of work. Great and good men are entitled to no more tenderness when they depart from Scripture teaching, than little men or Baptists. This following great and good men when they depart from the word of God, is what has built up every sect in Christendom, and what is rapidly changing the present move into a sect. The only plea that ought ever to be made by a man, is a plea for all to return to God's law, in faith, in worship, in work. When this is done, we will be united. We ought not to be until we come to this. It is just as much treason to set still and see the great and good men pervert the order of God's work, as it would be for Bro. Ratliffe to sit still and see the "great and good men" among the Baptists pervert the Lord's order in conversion. There are just as many "great and good men" among Baptists, as among disciples. "Whoever obeys the whole law, and yet fails in one point, is guilty of all." Let us take the whole word of God. If we obey the whole law in worship, and offend God's law by work, we break the law. The hobbyist is the man who brings something into the church not known to the word of God.

One With God.

People speak about holiness in different terms, but surely, in whatever words it may be expressed, holiness is oneness of heart and mind with God; true in its measure here, but to be completed and perfected when we shall see Him as He is.

I often think, when it is said of Enoch, "He walked with God and was not, for God took him," that Enoch became so one with God in walk, in thought, in all tastes and habits of his life, that, as when two hearts and ways are in perfect affinity they cannot be long separated, so God took him out of the narrowness in which his friendship existed here to the infinite sphere in which it could expand above, to be with Him in His own immediate presence forever.

We are faulty, failing, weak, full of infirmity, but yet, if we have received the unction of the Holy Ghost, if we are abiding in Christ, then we are in agreement with God. Let us search and see what our hearts answer to the question, "Do we, can we, desire anything apart from God's will?"

A lady lately told me that during the visit of a holy man who came to spend the day at her house she was much struck with the atmosphere of quiet calm about him (which I think always belongs to holiness), a restfulness and loving gentleness that marked his demeanor, and she said to him, "I have heard a good deal of 'the higher life,' and I think you must know something about it." "Yes, I believe I do, thank God!" was the reply, "and I think it is all summed up in this, 'Thy will be done.'"

This is just what we need to be brought to; we have been saying these words for many a day, but what is our experience of their reality? Jesus spoke of His Father and our Father, of His God and our God; between that beloved Son and the Holy Father there was a perfect harmony of will, and, in union with Him, we love that will even as He loved it, and so, "when He shall appear, we shall have confidence, and not be ashamed before Him at His coming."

And if this be holiness, dear friends, it is also happiness. Take away utterly the chafing thought and rebellious struggle, and the peace of God which passes all understanding takes possession of the soul. Amid pain and suffering, or toil and weariness, we comprehend the paradox, "Sorrowful, yet always rejoicing."

"Paying off Mother."

"Mother," said a little black-eyed of six years, "when you get old, and want some one read to you, I will pay you off."

Little Alexander's mother had been in the habit of reading to him a good deal, and on this Sabbath day she had read to him a long time out of the Bible and a Sabbath-school book. The child was just able to read a little himself, and the progress he was making doubtless suggested to him how he might at some future time return in kind all his mother's care. "I will pay you off, mother," says he, looking up into her face with childish satisfaction, as if a new thought from heaven had been sent down to light up the world of his soul. His mother pressed him to her heart with a delight that seemed to say: "My dear son, I am more than paid off already."

But, children, you can never pay off your mother. Her thoughts of love and acts of affection are more in number than the days of life. How often has she nourished you, dressed you, kissed you, rocked you on her knee, and in the cradle, carried you in her tender arms, watched you in sleep, guided your infant steps, corrected at times your misdeeds, thought of you in absence, and guarded your life in the unvarying remembrance of a mother's solicitude, and the free-will offerings of a mother's devotion! Ah, dear child, you can never "pay off" mother.

Mother has taught you to read and to pray. She has patiently sat by you and taught you the letters of the alphabet; and then she helped you to put them together and spell words of thought. She taught you to spell "God." Before you could read she taught you to say "Our Father which art in heaven." Mother has trained you with lessons and hymns and prayers to come to Christ. She has prayed for you when none but God knew it, and has prayed with you when your wandering eyes understood not the meaning of her grave and imploring looks. She has pointed you to heaven and "led the way." Dear child, you can never "pay off" mother.

Yes, there is one way—there is one way in which you can more than pay off mother. It is by loving Jesus Christ and His work, and by preparing for heaven. There Jesus dwells in glory, which He communicates to the saints of all generations; that same Jesus who said: "Suffer little children to come unto Me, and forbid them not, for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Come, little children, come to Jesus Christ! Come, my child; and pay off mother by praising God with her in heaven. —Children's Friend.

There are some men who are asking, "How can I serve God without using my hands? How can I serve God without using my tongue? How can I serve God without going to prayer-meeting?" There is tendency running all through human nature, namely, how to cheapen religion. "How can I live the religious life and have it cost me just as little labor, just as little money, just as little thought, just as little time, just as little trouble as possible?"—Rev. John Rhey Thompson.

There is no benefit so small that a good man will not magnify it.—Seneca.

DR. SCOTT'S ELECTRIC CORSETS &amp; BELTS.

Probably never, since the invention of Corsets, has so large a demand been created as now exists for Dr. Scott's Electric Corsets and Belts. Over three thousand families in the city of New York alone are now wearing them daily. Every Man and Woman, well or ill, should daily wear either the Corset or the Belt.

If you have any pain, ache, or ill-feeling from any cause, if you seem "pretty well," yet lack energy and do not "feel up to the mark," if you suffer from disease, we beg you to at once try these remarkable curatives. They cannot and do not injure like medicine. Always doing good, never harm. There is no shock or sensation felt in wearing them. There is no waiting a long time for results; electro-magnetism acts quickly, generally the first week, more frequently the first day, and often even during the first hour they are worn, their wonderful curative powers are felt. The mind becomes active, the nerves and sluggish circulation are stimulated, and all the old-time health and good-feeling comes back. They are constructed on scientific principles, imparting an exhilarating, health-giving current to the whole system. Professional men assert there is hardly a disease which Electricity or Magnetism may not benefit or cure, and they daily practice the same, as your own physician will inform you. The celebrated Dr. W. A. Hammond, of New York, formerly Surgeon-General of the U. S. Army, lately lectured upon this subject, and advised all medical men to make trial of these agencies, describing at the same time most remarkable cures he had made, even in cases which would seem hopeless.

The Corsets do not differ in appearance from those usually worn; we substitute our flat steel magnetoids in place of the ordinary corset steels. These Corsets are equally charged, differing only in quality and design. They are elegant in shape and finish, made after the best French pattern, and warranted satisfactory in every respect. The above applies equally as well to the Electric Belt for gentlemen.

The prices are as follows: $1, $1.50, $2 and $3 for the Corsets, and $3 each for the Belts. We now make all these Corsets in dove and white only. They are sent out in a handsome box, accompanied by a silver-plated compass, by which the Electro-Magnetic influence can be tested. We will send either kind to any address, post-paid, on receipt of price, with 20 cents added for packing or registration, and we guarantee safe delivery into your hands. Remit in post-office Money-Order, Draft, Check, or in Currency by Registered Letter. In ordering, kindly mention and state exact size of corset usually worn. Make all remittances payable to GEO. A. SCOTT, 322 Broadway, New York.

N. B.—Each Corset is stamped with the English coat-of-arms, and the name of the Proprietors, THE PAUL MALL ELECTRIC ASSOCIATION.

QUERIES.

There are four brothers of us, all able to work, but poor as to this world's goods, and all of us with small families. We have one old aunt, the only one we have in this country; she is very old and feeble. Is it the duty of nephews and nieces to take care of her, or is it a church's duty? Would it be right to send her to the poor-house? If you please, give us your views, as it might do some good.—[M. C. C. Spivy, Antioch, Tenn.]

Paul, 1st Timothy 5: 4, says, "If any have children or nephews, let them learn to show piety at home and requite their parents: for that is good and acceptable in the Lord." This showing piety at home is caring for the aged and infirm. It is the care and providing for these widows connected with us and our families, and not our wives and children, of which the apostle speaks, when he says, "But if any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own household, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel." That is, if any man have a widowed mother or aunt, (according to this translation,) and especially if she be of his own household, he is worse than an infidel if he fails to provide for her. I repeat, this language is used in reference to the widows connected with the families, and not to the families themselves.

This would be decisive of the question at once, but for the fact, that the word translated nephews in the common version, in the revised Scripture is translated grand-children. This, which we take to be correct, would lay the obligation on the children and grand-children to care for a widowed mother or grand-mother, on pain of being pronounced by God as worse than an infidel.

The fact that a man is poor does not alter the case, God has one law, for rich and poor alike. A poor man cannot keep the widow of his family in as much style, or with as many comforts, as a rich man, but he can do the best he can. And my faith is, no man was ever made the poorer by helping those in need as God says Christians should. It is a lack of faith in God that makes men think they cannot do things that God requires them to do. He requires us to help the helpless and needy, even if they are not of our kindred. And in doing good in God's name, we are never impoverished. If one of these nephews were to take this widowed aunt and care for her, he would never be the poorer thereby, and the others should be ashamed to let one do what all should jointly do.

While these nephews are doing this work, if they are poor and pressed for help, all their brethren and sisters ought to do kindness to them and help them, not because this law or that one requires it, but because we are brethren and we "ought to bear one another's burdens and so fulfill the law of Christ." It is a bad sign when men or churches begin to seek specific laws to exempt them from doing good. We think it would be alike a disgrace to the kindred and to the church to let their kindred or a member of the body of Christ go to the poor-house.

As the children and grand-children deny the faith and make themselves worse than the infidel in failing to provide for the widows of their household, the church certainly places itself in the same position when it refuses or fails to provide for its helpless widows.

While the Scriptures are strenuous in demanding help for the worthy helpless, they guard against providing for the unworthy. I have no doubt that our city churches sin in helping many who are unworthy, and who are able to help themselves, because they do not take the time to look into their condition. But many of the country churches sin in not looking after the poor and helpless at all. This was written several months ago, and mislaid. We hope it is not too late to do good.

Please explain through GOSPEL ADVOCATE St. John 5: 24. Do you understand this to teach that a man has eternal life while in this world? I have just been attending a big Baptist meeting. They teach that when a man believes, he then has eternal life and there is no way to lose it. Then they say that every man will be rewarded extra according to the work he does. I have always been of the impression that eternal life is the reward that the faithful are to receive in the world to come.—[W. A. Wilkerson, Robinson, Texas.]

The expression is, "He that heareth my word, and believeth on him that sent me, hath eternal life, and shall not come into condemnation, but is passed from death unto life."

These expressions must be interpreted in the light of other clear and explicit declarations of Scripture, else the Scriptures are made a medley of contradictions. Such a construction of this language cannot be reconciled with passages that plainly declare we shall inherit eternal life as the reward of a patient continuance in well-doing unto the end. The principle on which God deals with man is plainly laid down. Ezekiel 18: 24, "When the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? All his righteousness that he hath done shall not be mentioned, in his trespass that he hath trespassed and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die." This plainly teaches that when a man does righteousness, and in and for that righteousness receives the promise of a blessing, he may turn from that righteousness, and sin, and when he turns from the righteousness, he forfeits the blessing promised him in and for that righteousness. The principle is more fully declared in Ezekiel 33: 13, "When I say to the righteous that he shall surely live; if he trust to his own righteousness, and commit iniquity, all his righteousness shall not be remembered; but for his iniquity that he hath committed, he shall die for it." Even though a direct promise is made of good, while living in a righteous way, if the individual turn from that righteousness and sins, the promise is forfeited and he dies in sin, and reaps the sinner's reward. The same is true of the threats to the sinner. God threatens condign punishment upon the sinner. He repents, God turns the punishment from him, and he lives.

In the light of this explanation are hundreds of promises and threats contained in the Scripture, to be interpreted. Without the application of this principle the prophecies of the Scriptures in many instances are failures. God frequently promised good to Abraham's children, that they never enjoyed. The promise was made while they were obedient, and on the implied condition that they continued in this path of obedience. They turned from the obedience, God turned from the good, promised, and brought evil. Threats of evil were pronounced against a person or people, that never came upon them. They turned from the evil way that brought the threat, God turned from the purposed evil and brought a blessing. The Ninevites are an example in point. They sinned and God announced that in forty days Nineveh shall be destroyed. God sent Jonah to warn them. Forty days passed and Nineveh was not destroyed. What is the matter? Has God failed? Jonah thought so, was so ashamed of the Lord and his way of doing, that he asked God to kill him, lest he be humiliated by having preached for a God who promised destruction, but changed his purpose and dealt with men on conditions. Jonah is the only man I have found in the Bible, that held the doctrine of modern Calvinism, and God took it all out of him before he let him go.

But God's promises and threats are all conditioned on the man's continuance in the course that he is pursuing when the promise or threat is made.

When Jesus said to these people, "He that heareth my word and believeth on him that sent me, hath everlasting life," he clearly meant he has it in promise, as an inheritance to be enjoyed, if he continued to hear, believe and obey God to the end. Hence he says, "Because iniquity doth abound the love of many shall wax cold, but he that shall endure to the end shall be saved." A regard for God's own clearly laid down rules of interpretation will harmonize all these passages of Scripture. A disregard of these involves all the contradiction and trouble there is on this subject in the Bible. A great many men, to sustain a theological dogma, or a party creed, are willing to make God contradict himself or to make nonsense of the Bible.

"Dancing is not worse than drunkenness."—Christian Advocate.

Why compare or contrast the two? This treatment has the tendency to justify, or at least to mitigate the condemnation of one sin, without making the other more hideous. They are both sins; both fleshly, sensual and destructive of all true spirituality, all taste for worship of the living God, and for zeal and devotion in his service. The difference is, one is usually justified by those engaging in it, the other is not. Saying dancing is no worse than drunkenness, encourages the dancer without discouraging the drunkard. The truth is, there are two leading evils in society. Drunkenness and the "social evil" as it is called. Dancing stands related to the one as dram-drinking does to the other. They both lead to ruin.

W. N. Murphy, Centre Point, Maury County, Tenn., September 16, writes: "Bro. T. J. Brooks commenced a series of meetings near Enterprise, Maury County, Tenn., on Saturday before the fourth Lord's day in August, continuing four days. The result was two restored and six immersed."

QUERY.

DEAR BRO. LIPSCOMB: In last week's issue of the ADVOCATE, I read an article from one Mr. Green in reply to what you said sometime before with regard to what the said Mr. Green had said about giving up baptism altogether, rather than displease his disciple friends. In your issue of this week I see your reply. In that reply you answer him well and ably. But there is one thing in your reply that I object to, and at which I am a little surprised. I take you to be one of our ablest and soundest Bible men. I love and admire the ADVOCATE, with its editors and contributors. What I dislike in your reply to Mr. Green is, that you call him brother. What I desire to know is, upon what ground do you call him Bro. Green? Is it because you esteem him as a brother in Christ? Evidently all will so understand you. Then they are to understand that you recognize as a brother, one who not only teaches sprinkling for baptism, and sprinkles infants and thus perverts the plain teachings of Jesus and the apostles; but declares himself ready to abandon altogether a positive command of the Lord to please his friends. Do you believe that an intelligent man and preacher who will thus deny the plain word of God, and teach the people to disregard the commandments, can be a Christian? If you do, then of what account is the truth? If a falsehood believed and practiced will make one a Christian, we certainly have little use for revelation. If you do not recognize him as a Christian brother, then your language is misleading and ought to be corrected. All persons who read it will conclude at once that you view sprinklers and sprinkled as Christians, or in Christ. If this be true, then really of what use is baptism, and why not give it up as Mr. Green says? If Green is your brother, then baptism is a useless performance sure enough. I have no doubt but he was sprinkled, and even if he were baptized, he has no faith in it. He considers it of no value, and therefore is not benefited by it. Then we may say, that without baptism at all, you hold him a brother. "Know you not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ, were baptized into his death." Rom. 6. If Mr. Green were not baptized into Christ, he is not in Christ, and therefore is not my brother. But let us admit that he was baptized into Christ; but now he turns around and denies the fact, and says no one is baptized into Christ, is not this lying against the truth? and will not this put him out of Christ? If it will not, then all liars will not have their part in the lake that burns with fire and brimstone.

It is wrong, Bro. Lipscomb, to call such a one brother. It is misleading and debasing our holy religion. Let us have the fortitude to maintain the truth and expose falsehood. If we have the truth, let us hold to it. If we have not, let us be diligent to search it out. May God bless you and all the faithful. I. C. STONE.

Bridgeport, Ill., September 19, 1884.

We have studied God's word in reference to this matter. We believe there is no evil in kindly and fraternal expressions if we deal candidly and truly with the persons so treated. It would be a little difficult to draw the line exactly if we meant to approve all that one taught, or did, when we called him brother. I cannot see how it is worse to set aside baptism and change it into sprinkling than to set aside the church of Jesus Christ and substitute human societies, whose membership is on a monied basis, which give men the right to control the preaching of the gospel and to greatly modify that gospel preached according to the amount of money they pay. The church of God is crippled and perverted, its work destroyed, God's direction for giving is set at naught, those whom God has set to rule are set aside, and in place of those divinely qualified, others, whose only qualification is they pay money, are given the rule in their place. Yet we call these who go to a greater or less degree in this rebellion, brethren. Why not those who do no greater sin in changing or doing away with baptism?

Then Ananias called Saul brother before he was in Christ. Peter called the wicked murderers of Jesus, to whom he was preaching on Pentecost, brethren before they had believed or repented, or entered Christ. Acts 2: 29. Stephen called the wicked crowd to whom he preached, and who murdered him, brethren. Acts 7: 2. Paul called those to whom he preached at Antioch, brethren. Acts 13: 26. Some of them believed when they heard, some disbelieved and persecuted Paul and Barnabas. Paul called the crowd that mobbed him at Jerusalem, brethren. Acts 22: 1. Again, Acts 23: 1-6; Acts 28: 17. He called the unbelieving Jews at Rome brethren. The same Paul admonishes the church at Thessalonica to entreat him, with whom they were commanded to have no company, because he was a disorderly walker, as a brother. 2nd Thess. 2: 15.

It may be said that these were generally addressed to Jews, and they called them brethren as Jews. Yes, but they were rebellious and sinful Jews, and rejecting and persecuting Christianity, not even living up to the Jewish requirements.

If the inspired men who had become more than Jews, Christians, in which they were neither Jew nor Greek, called unbelievers, brethren simply because they claimed to worship and serve God, there can be no sin in my calling our Methodist and other denominational friends brethren, if I deal frankly with them in pointing out their errors. This I tried to do, to point out the failure to obey and honor God, while claiming to be his servant. Precisely as Paul did those in his day who claimed to serve God, yet rejected God's commandments. I have not called them brother to commend their teaching, but to show kindly feeling for them while I pointed out their neglect to honor God, to show them how, while professing to honor him, they reject and dishonor him. While I have the example of inspired apostles in this, I am on safe and solid ground. Expressions of kindly regard and brotherly love for those in error, is not what does harm, but the winking at and excusing and apologizing for the errors they teach. That I am willing to do, but not this. Doing that, helps to accomplish the correction of these errors. Bitter feelings toward individuals never win them to Christ. Be kind, fraternal, but true to God and his word, is the true course. D. L.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: There is a preacher in this country that says Bro. D. L. was once an old Primitive Baptist; that he is no scholar at all; that he knew nothing about the Greek, and butchered the English language wonderfully. I denied it. I want to know if I am right.—[H. M. Towry, Prairie View, Arkansas.

D. L. was never a member of any church but the church of Christ. He became a member of that church at fourteen years of age. He is not much scholar, and never claimed to be. He makes blunders in English frequently, knows a little Greek, but has tried to understand the Bible. And whether speaking of the Greek or English, is always careful to be right. Being right is the best scholarship. D. L.

NEWSPAPERS, ETC.

Now I propose to come to the point I have been striking at in my two former articles, under the above heading. I believe the position of the ADVOCATE in the essential, the fundamental elements, that called out the reformers, or rather the restorers, of the religion of Jesus, to the domain of the New Testament, in faith and practice, is in full accord with a large majority of the disciples of Christ in Tennessee. I have found but few that differed in the faith and obedience inculcated by the editors of that paper. There are a few, however, that call its senior editor an "extremist," but I have yet to see the one that will say his "extremes" are on the side of the world or Satan. I do know of some who do not patronize the ADVOCATE upon its known position upon politics and worldly institutions. Now, the point with me is this: that while this is the reason of non-support by a great many brethren "in Christ," who glory in the positions set forth as to the supremacy of the laws of Christ in faith and obedience, by Bro. Lipscomb. Does not the world, and those papers which demand human societies and human "organizations," in order to carry out the great commission of Jesus more successfully, attribute this non-support to disagreement in faith and doctrine, and thereby over-estimate the strength of those who seek to make these "societies" essential elements in the conversion of the world? And in doing this, they place these non-supporters in a false position before the brethren and the world. Now, to such I will simply put the question, Will you let "extremes" (so called) in reference to matters of worldly institutions and politics, keep you from holding up the hands of faithful watchmen upon the walls of Zion? Or are you willing to be set down as being upon the list of those who are trying to make the church of Christ a human organization, by rules and regulations repugnant to your conceptions of the teaching of Christ and his apostles? To you, faithful and humble followers of the "law of the Lord," are these suggestions offered; not to benefit any man pecuniarily, but that the world may know that true disciples of the Lord can overlook worldly "extremes," when the great foundation pillars of faith and obedience to the expressed will of God through Christ, as recorded in the New Testament, are being replaced by the foundation stones of tradition and human "expediences." May God help each and every lover of his kingdom to let the world know how he stands in this war. JAMES K. BLACKMAN.

THE CAUSE AT HUNTSVILLE, ALABAMA.

Dear Brethren and Sisters in Christ: Our little band of disciples has been struggling against the mighty opposition of poverty and sectarianism for a long while. The opposition is so great at times that it seems to be almost impossible to overcome it at all. What we need now is a comfortable house in which to worship. We have been meeting in the county court-house for a year and a half, but this is nothing more than a borrowed house. We desire to build a good, comfortable house, here in this city; but we cannot, unless our brethren and sisters will heed the Macedonian cry, "Come over and help us." We have a lot and about one thousand dollars subscribed to begin with. The apostle exhorts the disciples to "bear one another's burdens," and this burden is too great for us to bear alone. Now, we appeal to every congregation of disciples in the United States, to send us one Lord's day's contribution. Hear our cry, dear brethren, and help us in this, our time of need. Do not let us sink, when you, by a united effort, can help us so much. Huntsville has between five thousand and seven thousand inhabitants, and is located in North Alabama, on the Memphis and Charleston railroad. Let every one who reads this appeal, make it his duty to bring the matter before the congregation of which he is a member, then it will surely be brought before every congregation. Send remittances by post-office money order, or by registered letter, to Capt. O. M. Hundley, or J. W. Shepherd, Huntsville, Ala. Remember, one Lord's day's contribution from the organization of which you are a member, will help wonderfully in this grand work. Huntsville, Alabama. J. W. SHEPHERD.

Huntsville is a thrifty, growing place, and the centre of a good country. But the truth has only lately been planted in the city or country. The brethren are few, are without houses of worship, and the country not well supplied with teachers. The little band in Huntsville is a faithful, devoted band, and has done well to raise what they have. They need help. We believe any church, or any brother, would do a good work to help them. We will gladly receive and forward any amounts sent us for them. D. L.

J. A. Harding, Fisherville, Ky., September 22, writes: "The meeting at Fisherville closed last night. Nine were added. I can be addressed at Winchester for ten days. Expect to be in Nashville on Saturday, October 4, on my way to Murfreesboro, Tenn."

REPLY TO BRO. W. H. CARTER.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: The ADVOCATE of July 23rd contains a letter from Bro. W. H. Carter addressed to me. I regret that it miscarried and fell into your hands before mine, as I always prefer to peruse my letters before any one else, besides the response could then have appeared with the original, if publication had been deemed necessary. I am not much hand, however, to reach for the public prints "to be seen of men," and might have been able to satisfy my brother by private correspondence better than in this public way, had he sent his letter to me instead of misdirecting it to the ADVOCATE.

But as I am, without my consent, thrust before the public, tried and condemned without a hearing, my good brother acting as accuser, witness and judge, I ask the favor of a brief space in your columns, that I may at least help make up the record in my case, and appeal from Bro. Carter's ex parte trial and decision, to the impartial judgment of the readers of the ADVOCATE.

In his attack upon my course in being a Mason, Bro. Carter makes a mistake not at all uncommon, and always injurious to the cause of Christianity,—that is, he confounds matters of opinion with questions of faith, thus making such matters instead of questions of faith, tests of orthodoxy. In other words, Bro. Carter arraigns me on matters which he says himself are not in the Bible, instead of spending his time in preaching the gospel. Such course of conduct gets up much of the bickering and strife in the religious world. We differ about what is not in the Bible, and in the smoke of controversy lose sight of what is in it.

Our preaching brethren agree upon the essential doctrines of the church of God as taught in his inspired word. So long as they stick to this, they do a good work. When they quit preaching the gospel and get to "meddling in other men's matters," making themselves "busy-bodies" writing about things they know nothing about, and are not likely ever to learn anything about, as is the case with Bro. Carter when he attacks through me the institution of masonry, contention, controversy and strife ordinarily result, and no good is accomplished. This we ought always to avoid.

As to the masonic order, I must respectfully decline for the present, troubling your readers with an article in its defense. If during the centuries of its existence, it has been an institution of evil, its evil deeds are doubtless recorded in history. If upon the other hand it has advanced mankind in morality, civilization, charity and good works, ameliorating the condition of humanity and assisting in preparing material for God's spiritual building, then it needs no defense at my hands. Its own works pronounce its highest eulogium. The lives it has saved, the orphans it has clothed and educated, the widows it has assisted and the innocents it has protected, if indeed there be such works to its credit, speaks out more satisfactorily in its defense than any thing I can write or say. If it is, on the other hand, an institution of evil, and has done none of these things, the world knows it, and nothing I could promulgate would convince your readers to the contrary.

When Bro. Carter shows from the Bible that it is right for God's people to build meeting-houses, school-houses, steamboats, railroads, steamcars, telegraphs, telephones; make school books, dictionaries, and the various ten thousand things that mankind has made for man's advancement and comfort; when he shows from the Bible that you have authority to publish the GOSPEL ADVOCATE, and a "thus saith the Lord" for the publication of the various books and periodicals sent forth from time to time by our brethren on their missions of good, then it will be time for me to respond in detail, from a Bible standpoint, to Bro. Carter's strictures.

Permit me to recapitulate Bro. Carter's expressions, good feeling and kindness. I love all my brethren and sisters, though a mistaken zeal may sometimes lead them into error. They often, as in his case, fail to realize that in matters necessary for man's salvation, God has revealed what man must do so plain that none need go astray, while there are various things that he has left as untaught questions, upon which men and women may honestly differ and still be Christians. The safe rule for the preacher to be guided by is to stick to that which is revealed and preach the gospel, and let his brethren alone in matters of opinion upon untaught questions not affecting "the faith." In embarking in fields of speculation we often imagine that things exist that have no foundation in fact. Condemning that as evil which we know nothing about, we set ourselves up as judges without the light and knowledge of law to guide us. Without a rule of faith and practice, our own weak mentality becomes our uncertain monitor. With this kind of guide, varied by the peculiar mental constitution of each individual, we are too apt to make much ado about things insignificant, and often of the most trivial nature. As an old colored brother is credited with saying, "We strain at a gnat and swallow a Campbellite." We should all endeavor to get out of, and avoid all this, and live under that rule of charity or love that "suffereth long and is kind; that envieth not, vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, * * * is not easily provoked, thinketh no evil, * * * which never faileth." Gainesboro, Tenn.

Obituaries.

Died, August 30, 1884, near Leighton, Ala., at the residence of her great-grandmother, Annie Sue, daughter of J. H. and Ruth P. Hall. The dear little, half-unfolded bud of innocence and humanity, only tarried four fleeting months, like a bright ray of sunshine, to cheer our aching hearts, and then passed away to God and mother. A sweet treasure is lost to us, but another priceless jewel glitters in the diadem of the Redeemer.

"And oh! sometimes in visions blest
Sweet spirits visit our repose,
And bear from thine own world of rest,
Some balm for human woes.
What form more lovely could be given,
Than thine, to messenger of heaven?"

Sister Mary A. Spivy, wife of our venerable brother, H. J. Spivy, and daughter of Robert and Mary Osburn, enlisted under the banner of our great High Priest, August, 1850, her husband following the good example she so bravely laid, on the next day, to which they have ever been faithful and true. On August 12, 1884, after she had fought the good fight and kept the faith for about thirty-four years, she bade farewell to her dear, loving husband, and her darling children, to lay hold on eternal life; yes, to receive that glittering crown and forever dwell in eternal mansions not made with hands, for wearing the cross so nobly here. She and her husband obeyed the gospel under the preaching of Joshua K. Spear. They were baptized into the Lord, married in the Lord, (September 18, 1855,) and now she has fallen asleep in the Lord.

"Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep,
From which none ever wake to weep."
Press on dear husband, children all,
You'll meet again when heaven calls.
You'll meet again ne'er to sever,
When joy shall wreath your crown forever.
You will meet beyond the river,
Where the surges cease to roll;
Where in all the bright forever,
Sorrow ne'er shall press thy soul."

Bunker Hill, Tenn.

M. H. NORTHROSS.

Departed this life, August 8, 1884, Sister Mary Steele, wife of Bro. Samuel Steele. She was born, October 13, 1834; was married in 1851. She left eight children. The most of them are members of the church. Sister Steele became a Methodist in early life, and lived as such about twenty years. About fifteen years ago, under the teaching of Bro. David Lipscomb, she was convinced that she had not obeyed the Lord in full. Acting upon her convictions, and gladly yielding to the requirements of the gospel, she was baptized into Christ, where she lived faithfully until death. Having known her at home, and having met with her often in our little congregation at McWhirtersville, we considered her an earnest, sincere, unassuming Christian woman, true and faithful in all the relationships of life: in her speech, plain and without deception; in her walk, consistent. While at first the sadness seemed deepened by her comparatively early death, she being not quite fifty years of age, this after-thought comes with great consolation: she was permitted to live long enough with her family to leave the impress of a Christian mother's influence upon her children; long enough to do her life-work well; long enough, notwithstanding the frailties and weaknesses that attend all humanity, to secure a well grounded hope of a better life beyond this. To the sorrowing loved and left ones, we would say, let these thoughts, especially the last one, comfort and cheer your sad hearts. Ever look to the blessed Savior through whom only you can be able to pass over the sorrows and troubles of this life, and through whom only you can be able to secure a reunion with all the loved but not lost ones, in the bright and beautiful home of the blest, where sorrows never come, where troubles cease, and where the weary are at rest. W. BORN.

"Then shall ye return and discern between the righteous and the wicked, between him that serves God and him that serves him not." Mal. 3: 18. On the morning of September 17, 1884, about seven o'clock, Mrs. Thomas J. Thompson, of Lebanon, Tenn., a beloved sister in the Lord, breathed her last. She was born, June 14, or June 15, 1814, and spent her girl life about six miles northwest of Lebanon. As Miss Lucy Ann Peace, she was married, in May, 1835, to Mr. Thomas J. Thompson, who, after a long and peaceful life with her, several years previous to her death passed out of the narrow confines of present existence, into the broad expanse of eternity, in full triumph of the Christian faith. She was a gentle, obedient, loving wife; a patient, tender, affectionate, devoted mother; a kind, good neighbor. She fed the hungry, clothed the naked, visited the sick, and soothed the sorrowful. We always found her cheerful and happy at whatever time we called, and were ever glad to visit her. It seemed to us that any young person would feel bettered, having spent an hour in her company. She bore her sickness of several weeks' duration with the same becoming cheerfulness and Christian fortitude. She read her Bible much, as the time-stained and finger-worn leaves show. Though a woman of high moral principles and religious convictions through life, she did not obey the gospel until late years. Realizing, however, that convictions without action are worthless, and that faith without works is dead, being alone, she rendered that obedience to the truth so justly required by Christ in order to remission of past sins, and thereafter lived a beautiful, submissive life, a servant of righteousness. We transcribe here a short tribute of respect handed us by an esteemed friend, a venerable man, whose locks are silvered o'er by the frosts of seventy-five winters. He says: "I have known Mrs. Thomas J. Thompson fifty years. She lived (after she obeyed the gospel) and died a Christian. She had no vanity. She was amiable, quiet, prudent, discreet, kind, charitable, respected and beloved by all who knew her. She raised a family of excellent daughters. Her only son, Andrew, was always a good and exemplary boy; to-day he is a perfect model of a gentleman. Lebanon can boast of no better son." In her seventy-first year dust returned to its original dust, and the spirit to God who gave it. "Stern agony, and shroud, and pall, and breathless darkness, and the narrow-house," did not make her "shudder and grow sick at heart," for she looked upon death as the golden gate which opens into the home of the soul. She leaves a good name and beautiful example to her children, some of whom have not followed her in obedience to Jesus. "Prepare to meet thy God!" We sympathize with the sorrowing relatives, we weep with the weeping children, but rejoice in her hope of immortality. Under this cloud of gloom, through blinding tears, look up to him, who came to heal the broken-hearted, who wept with the bereaved Mary and Martha, and whose magnanimous heart is still touched by human infirmities, and say, "Not our will but thine be done," believing that all things work together for good to those who love the Lord. "And they shall be mine, saith the Lord of hosts, in that day when I make up my jewels; and I will spare them as a man spareth his own son that serveth him." Mal. 3: 7. Lebanon, Tenn.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We propose to send it one year to two subscribers, one of which must be a new one, for three dollars. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

THE BEST

Hair restorative in the world is HALL'S HAIR RENEWER. It cures all diseases of the scalp, and stimulates the hair glands to healthful action. It stops the falling of the hair; prevents its turning gray; cures baldness, and restores youthful color and freshness of appearance to heads already white with age. The following are a few illustrations of what is done by

HALL'S Vegetable Sicilian HAIR RENEWER:

Mrs. HUNSBERRY, 344 Franklin Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y., after a severe attack of Erysipelas in the head, found her hair—already gray—falling off so rapidly that she soon became quite bald. One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER brought it back as soft, brown and thick as when she was a girl.

Mr. KESLING, an old farmer, near Warsaw, Ind., had scarcely any hair left, and what little there was of it had become nearly white. One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER stopped its falling out, and gave him a thick, luxuriant head of hair, as brown and fresh as he ever had.

Mrs. A. T. WALL, Greenfield, Cheshire, Eng., writes: "I have found the greatest benefit from the use of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER, it having restored my hair, which was rapidly falling off, and returned its original color."

Dr. EMIL SEIP, Detroit, Mich., certifies that "HALL'S HAIR RENEWER is excellent for hair growing, and gives back the natural color to faded and gray hair."

Mrs. S. E. ELLIOTT, Glenville, W. Va., says: "One bottle of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER restored my hair to its natural, youthful color."

No injurious substances enter into the composition of HALL'S HAIR RENEWER, and it is not a dye. Its vegetable ingredients render it in the highest degree beneficial to the scalp as a preventive of disease. Its effects are natural and lasting, and it does not make the hair dry and brashy; like the so-called restoratives compounded with alcohol.

Buckingham's Dye FOR THE WHISKERS

Is, in four respects, superior to all others. 1st—It will produce a rich, natural color, brown or black, as desired.

2d—The color so produced is permanent, cannot be washed off, and will not soil anything with which it comes in contact.

3d—It is a single preparation, and more convenient of application than any other hair or whisker dye.

4th—It contains no deleterious ingredients, as do many preparations offered for like use.

J. B. JONES' REPORT.

Bro. J. B. Jones, the financial agent of the Kentucky Christian Missionary Convention, is a most excellent man, and he is highly esteemed for his ability as a minister of the word, but he is a failure as a writer of financial reports for the convention; he confines himself too closely to the business in hand, and is too neglectful of what R. Moffett sarcastically calls "padding." As proof of the truth of this assertion, and by way of illustration of it, attention is called to this fact, viz., that while the society has perhaps done as much during this last year as at any former period, Bro. Jones has succeeded in reporting only $3,948.76 received and distributed by the board; whereas former secretaries by a judicious use of "padding" have been enabled to report from three to four times as much as this. From the summary given in the minutes of the General Convention for 1883 I see that Kentucky reported $13,082.42 collected by missionaries and reported by the treasurer, and $1,500.00 raised and secured by missionaries and not reported by the treasurer; $14,582.42 in all; that is, last year's report was nearly four times as great as this, in so far as the money is concerned.

But let no one suppose that more work was really done, or that more money was really raised, for, I presume such was not the case; the report was more scientific; that, I presume, is the true hypothesis upon which to account for the great falling off in the report of the present financial agent.

Bro. Jones says: "It appears that it has cost $1,553.75 to collect $3,948.77 and to get pledged $2,020.85 annually for five years. If the work is considered for one year and measured by these results only, it does not justify the outlay."

Certainly it does not! for according to this plan when a man gives Bro. Jones ten dollars for sustaining evangelistic work in Kentucky, nearly one half of the money goes to Bro. Jones to enable him to take the remainder to the missionary. Now if I have ten dollars to invest in having the gospel preached, I can get it to the worker at a cost of not more than fifteen cents. Evidently there is a great waste in working by the society plan. Bro. Jones feels this keenly, too, as his remark plainly shows. But he consoles himself with the reflection that he got $2,020.85 pledged for five years. He says: "Our hope is in the possibility, yea, probability, of getting over $8,000 out of the pledges for more than $10,000 without another visit to the pledged churches by the financial agent, and without his continuance of office simply as collector." Brother Jones has a splendid faculty for hoping. It seems strange to me that any sane man should expect that those pledges will be redeemed without further solicitation. Why, during the entire year Bro. Jones did not visit but nine churches that had not been formerly enrolled, and he visited fifty-three in all. By far the greater part of the money he raised was from old pledges, as his report plainly shows. Of the $3,948.76 which he raised, or rather, which was received from all sources, $2,351.60 was obtained from the old pledges. Outside of the old pledges he did not raise enough money to pay his salary, traveling expenses, postage, printing, etc. And yet he is hopeful that the money pledged him will just come in, without any further work from the financial agent. It won't do it any more than it has done it heretofore. It appears that it costs about as much to get the money that has been pledged as to obtain that which has not.

In proof of this I call attention to the fact that the annual receipts have not steadily increased since the adoption of Bro. Briney's "five year plan." When he was elected general financial agent, he estimated that it would require five years to canvass the State, and he proposed that the agent should take pledges for five years as he canvassed.

This was adopted. In the first year, if I remember correctly, Bro. Briney raised something over three thousand dollars, more than half of which was required to pay his salary, traveling expenses, postage, paper, printing, etc. But then it was thought that in the second year three thousand could be raised again by the agent, and three thousand at least would come from the pledges; then in the third year the agent would raise his three thousand, and at least six thousand would come from the pledges; and so on till the fifth year when fifteen thousand would come into the treasury; afterwards as a result of this "five year plan" it was confidently expected that fifteen thousand dollars would be received annually from the labors of one agent. It was thought then as now that if the year were considered alone, the result would not justify the outlay, but the pledges were the things that would bring on the millennium. But those bright hopes were doomed to disappointment. The agent still raises something over three thousand per annum, still feels that the receipts do not justify the outlay, and still looks hopefully to the pledges.

The trouble in this matter is just this: Men are strongly inclined to settle every thing by their own reason, and to do that which seems to them expedient, which is approved by their judgments as wise. Hence of them it can often be said, "Being ignorant of God's righteousness, and seeking to establish their own, they did not subject themselves to the righteousness of God."

He is far more apt to be right who distrusts his own wisdom, and is fearful of the soundness of his judgment, and who therefore turns with a boundless faith to the wisdom and mercy of God.

It is certain that there is not the slightest intimation given on earth that the judgment of God approves of such associations as our General and State societies, as expedients for publishing the gospel; for when the book of his wisdom was closed, no such things were known on earth.

That book is called by the apostle James "the perfect law of liberty." It is a perfect rule, a faultless law for freeing men from the bondage of sin. In it are the records of thousands of cases of conversion from Satan to God. While its pages were being written, the gospel was carried to regions far more difficult of access to the Jews than the most remote nations of the earth are to us of Kentucky. For the first hundred years of the Christian era men lived who were inspired as apostles, prophets and teachers of the Lord. These men guided the Christians in all their missionary labors by their teachings and examples; God through them expressed his wisdom; and yet no missionary societies were ever organized, or even hinted at in those days. God, through those men, then wrote down a perfect law of saving men from sin; this law was designed for all ages, nations and climes, in it there is no intimation of the need of such societies. I declare it seems to me to be almost blasphemous to say that we need them now.

But we have made them and faithfully tried them. Kentucky has excelled all other States in this work. From the summing up of the work of the States by the general evangelist in 1883, she reports more additions, more money, more work than any other State. Yet of this year's work, which I presume is fully as good as last, Bro. Jones says, "If the work is considered for one year and measured by these results only, it does not justify the outlay."

The societies, we may judge from this testimony of their ardent friend, are a failure. But God's way does not fail. And now that I may not be accused of pulling down without building anything on the ruins, I desire to call attention once more to the Lord's way.

In the ancient days every one whose heart stirred him up to the glorious work went forth preaching the gospel. No one waited to be engaged by some one who would at some time promise a support. But while it is true that no church contracted to support an evangelist, it is true that those that were devoted to the Lord raised funds and ministered to the workers:

But in any event the workers were secure, for the Lord himself guaranteed to them all that they might need. The brethren were often covetous then as they are now; there were many false brethren then; they were often thoughtless then; but God's arm was not short, nor did his promise fail; in one way or another he always provided. So will he now. Let us do the work as he opens up the way.

BROTHER HARDING: In doing the work of an evangelist I meet with a difficulty, and would like some instructions. I can not better express the difficulty, than by asking, what is to become of the converts? When you go into a place where there is no congregation, and preach two or three weeks, and make several converts, how are they to receive edification after you leave them? No use to reply, they have the Bible, let them edify themselves; for my experience is, they will not do it. It seems that they do not know how to so conduct their worship as to make it edifying. You will reply, the evangelist should teach them what to do and how to do it. This I always try to do, but don't succeed unless there is some experienced brother who will take the lead. They need some one to show them, to direct them in the work. Who is to do this? Shall the evangelist stay with the new congregation till they are able to care for themselves, or shall he go to other fields?—[C. W. Sewell, Jr., Moorsville, Texas.]

The difficulty which Bro. Sewell presents is a real one of no little importance, but one about which I think our duty may be made clear enough. The solution is found in the last question of his letter. The evangelist should stay with the converts until they are able to meet and conduct the worship without him. Nor will this require as long a time as some imagine. Paul spent three years in Ephesus; but there were no printed books in those days; the New Testament was not yet written; nor one in five thousand citizens could read; moreover, he did not speak to the same audience all the time, but so spake "that all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks." With the general enlightenment which we now have, and the cheapness of printed Bibles, and the faculties which we have for preaching and teaching through the press, we can now do in months what in former times could be accomplished only by years of labor. The same mail that brought me Bro. Sewell's letter brought one also from Gadsden, Ala. In it was this statement, "We have met every Lord's day since you were here; we are prospering finely." When Bro. Daugherty and I visited this place last spring we found there six members, four of whom are women; there were, I believe, eleven added; the meeting lasted for a month; they have not failed to meet since, and more than one of them have written to me joyfully about their prosperity. The same story can be told about the disciples at Madison, Huntsville, and Scottsboro, at all of which places Bro. Daugherty and I held meetings. From the last named place I have not heard for some time. At each of these places we spent about a month.

As a rule our protracted meetings are too short. When there are but few disciples, and where there are none, if a fair hearing can be obtained and held, the meeting should as a rule be continued for a month at least, and doubtless it is often advisable to labor in such places even longer than this.

I hope to say something soon about the way which young congregations should conduct their worship.

ITEMS, PERSONALS, ETC.

Elder John A. Brooks, formerly the preacher of the church at Winchester, Ky., is candidate for Governor of Missouri on the prohibition ticket.

E. R. Perry reports, in Atlantic Missionary, a meeting embracing the fifth Lord's day in August, in Nelson County, Va., at which there were one hundred and six additions, forty-five in one day.

We do not believe that any Christian ever engaged in politics without losing to a goodly extent his interest and zeal in religion. Three members of the church of Christ, or who have been members, are now in three adjoining districts here, candidates for Congress. All of them we presume will be elected. All of them are men capable of high usefulness in the church of Christ. All of them are giving their talents to the service of the world, while the church of Christ needs the help of all the children of Christ.

We are receiving the Worker, by Bro. R. B. Neal, of Louisville, devoted especially to the advocacy of prohibition. We admire Bro. Neal's devotion and zeal, but cannot sympathize with his effort to urge Christians to engage in politics, even to vote prohibition. We believe it is seeking good through doing evil. Christians have a better way of working good than this. Let them make the churches of Christ what Christ intended them to be, then convert the world to Christ. Every one joining a church of Christ would then join the best of all temperance societies—the one framed by God.

The leading political parties are in a terrible muss as to their candidates. Cleveland was nominated by the Democrats as a reform candidate, as the model for politicians. He was nominated chiefly on the demand of the independent and reform element in the Republican party, who were displeased with Blaine as the nominee of the Republican party. It was soon charged that his morals were not good. He is a bachelor, a child was laid to him and owned by him. He was accused of treating the woman badly, neglecting the child, and of being not select in his associates. Some of the worse features of the charges are regarded as false. When the case was reported, he was telegraphed to, to know what course should be pursued. His response was manly, "Tell the truth about it." When Buchanan was nominated, Bro. W. D. Carnes said if a bachelor is elected some great evil will befall the country—an earnest South Carolina Democrat—he refused to vote for him. One or two of the papers published that Mr. Blaine had been forced to marry his wife, and that a child was born a few months after the marriage. Mr. Blaine published it was a lie and a slander in all its parts and implications. He brought suit for slander against the Indianapolis Sentinel. The Sentinel affirmed in court the truth of its statements, and propounded interrogatories to him involving the points at issue, and demanded that he should answer under oath. He did, making a fuller statement, that he was married first in Kentucky, secretly, before only two witnesses, without license or officiating person, not knowing a license was necessary. Afterward he found it was necessary, and the marriage was repeated in Pittsburg, some months later. Mr. Blaine was a professor in the Kentucky Military Institute, at Georgetown, Ky., at the time; a man of unusual intelligence; besides, it is found that, about the same time, he went on a license bond for a young friend who married the sister of the woman he claims to have married, not knowing the license was necessary. All of which makes an ugly case for the candidate. This so soon, too, after there was such a to-do over the moral and religious element in politics, a few years ago.

The Christian Quarterly, for October, has reached us. Below will be found a table of the contents:

"Biblical Psychology," by I. B. Grabbs; "An Old Book," by R. Moffett; "The Positive Philosophy," by B. J. Bradford; "The Basis of Education in Christ," by J. A. Beattie; "The New Heavens and the New Earth Scientifically Considered," by Thos. Munnell; "The Demand for Christian Scholarship," by Pres't. H. W. Everest; "Pure Speech," by J. C. Reynolds; "The Land of the Morning," by Geo. T. Smith; "The Strength and Weakness of Science," by W. J. Barbee; "Inspiration," by W. B. F. Treat; "The Unity of the Church as the Body of Christ," by B. F. Manire. The July number failed to reach us.

Our readers are all glad to read the cheering reports from the field, but we must admonish our correspondents they must be brief. We can hardly find room for them. It does not matter how you went to church, whether you walked, rode or how; it does not matter whether the converts were baptized forenoon or afternoon; don't stop to compliment the Advocate, its editors or the preacher; puffing is in bad taste—frequently does harm. Tell what is done. Let his work praise him. Don't publish your prayer for the welfare of the preacher, God can hear it in secret and reward openly. When published, it seems to be made to man instead of God. If the preacher is reporting it, he need not tell where he staid, nor that they know how to treat preachers. All the brethren treat them as well as they know how. These things are of no interest to the reader. Just report the meeting with any peculiar, interesting features, with the results good, and bad—and let us have more room for other things.

WATERTOWN MEETING.

On Saturday night before the second Lord's day of September, this meeting began, and continued with increasing interest till Thursday night following. There were four accessions, three baptized, one of whom was a Methodist, and one from the Baptists. We had a good hearing all the time, and an earnest attention that indicated real interest in the preaching.

This community is largely filled up with Baptists. Some Primitives, but mostly Missionary Baptists. The brethren here, though few in number, have built a good meeting-house, and have paid for it, and are meeting every Lord's day to keep the ordinances and study the word of God, and to worship the Lord. We think these brethren come nearer all of them attending the first day meetings than almost any we have known. Prejudice and opposition are strong in this community against the plain truth, but we are sure much of it is giving away, and if the brethren will continue on as they have begun, and will abound still more and more, a large congregation of Christians will crown their efforts after while.

Bro. Dr. R. H. Baker, an uncompromising lover of the truth lives in this neighborhood, and his father, Wm. D. Baker and his mother, sister Baker are living with him. Old Bro. Baker was first a Baptist, and for many years an active member of that church. But he was among the first fruits born of the word of God and that alone in the neighborhood of Donelson, Tennessee, and was leader in bringing a large number of Baptists in that community into the full and clear light of heaven's truth, and making them willing to take the word of God and that alone as their guide in all the matters of faith and practice. In fact almost all of the Watertown members are true and faithful to the cause of truth. And upon this fact we base our calculations for permanent success of the pure word of God in process of time. Be strong and faithful brethren, and you may yet live to see the truth triumph over all opposition. There is nothing like faithful, godly living, to break down error and build up truth.

General News.

DOMESTIC.—Harry Clay, a grandson of Henry Clay, a well known lawyer and politician of Louisville, Ky., was shot and killed on Sunday, September 21, by Andy Wepler, a councilman of that city. The fight was the result of a dispute about loaning some money. Both men were armed, and both took positions to fire. Wepler shot first. He is under arrest.—On the 18th an unmistakable earthquake shock was felt in Ohio, Indiana, and Michigan. Three distinct shocks were felt in Cleveland. The shock caused considerable fright but no damage is reported.—Mr. Keeley, of motor fame, conducted some experiments with his vaporic gun at Sandy Hook, last week, in the presence of a number of military officers. He sent a number of bullets against a target five hundred feet distant, and at close quarters through a three inch spruce-wood plank.—Postmaster General Gresham has been appointed by the President to the Secretaryship of the Treasury. It is rumored that the appointment is only temporary, and that Judge Gresham will soon resign to accept a judgeship in the Illinois Circuit. Boutwell will take the Secretaryship on Judge Gresham's retirement. Acting Postmaster General Hatton will likely be placed at the head of the Post-office Department permanently.—The exercise of the American suffrage has been brilliantly illustrated in Randolph County, Ala. A coroner was recently elected by three votes over his opponent, yet he received only five votes.—The Mormons are quite excited over the fact that the grand jury in Arizona has found indictments for polygamy against seven of their number, the first instance of the kind that has ever occurred in the Territory. A settlement of Mormons in Wilson County, of this State, have received notice that if they do not leave within a certain date, there will be a repetition of the Lewis County tragedy.

FOREIGN.—Dom Pedro II, Emperor of Brazil, while returning from a naval review, had a narrow escape from drowning. The boat which he was in capsized, but he was rescued.—Dispatches from Paris state that Prime Minister Ferry, in behalf of the French Government, is willing to forego pressing the indemnity claims upon China, provided the latter Government shall cede to France ninety-nine years the port Ke-Lung, the present treaty port of the island of Formosa.—There have thus far occurred one thousand and more deaths in Italy, from cholera, than in France, the disease appears to be abating, although the death rate is high in Naples. The official bulletin for September 21 recorded for the twenty-four hours. Three hundred and three new cases, and one hundred and one deaths.—The steamer San Pablo arrived in San Francisco, last week, from China, announcing that information had reached Canton of a frightful inundation in the province of King See. The flood lasted four days. And the entire country was submerged to the depths of sixty feet. Whole towns were swept away. It is believed that fully 70,000 persons perished. It was feared that a pestilence would follow.

THE "THANK YOU" PRAYER.

Once upon a time I listened,
Listened while the quick tears glistened
'Neath the drooping lids that hid them, as a little prattler said,
While a father's arms caressing,
Round the precious form were pressing,
And against his pillowing bosom lay a dainty, curl-ringed head,

"Papa," spoke the little trembler,
"Papa, dear, do you remember
When the gentleman was here to tea, his sober, solemn air?
How he bent his head down lowly,
And his words came soft and slowly,
As he prayed to God in heaven such a pretty "thank you" prayer?"

"And I wonder all about it;
For, of course, I couldn't doubt it
Was a funny way that made us be so kind to one another,
To say "thank you" for each present,
In a way so very pleasant,
And forget that God might like it; so I asked my darling mother.

But she looked at me so queerly,
And her eyes were nearly
Full of crying, and I left her, but I want to know real bad—
Here the shy eyes lifted brightly—
"Is it treating God politely,
When he gives us things, to never mind, nor tell him we are glad?"

"And since then I've been thinking—
Papa, dear, why are you winking?"
For a slow sob shook the strong man, as each keen, unconscious word
Pierced him, all the past unweaving,
All the cold neglect and failing,
All the thoughtless, dumb refusal—how the headless heart was stirred!

"God is good, and Jesus blessed them."
Murmuring thus, he touched the child-brow with a passionate, swift kiss
Of the little one beside him,
Of the angel sent to chide him,
And a "thank-you prayer," ah, never more his living lips shall miss!

MUCH ADO ABOUT NOTHING.

BY AILENROC.

Sitting by the window, where the breeze strayed in at its own sweet will, I tried in vain to fix my thoughts on the book which lay open before me.
My young friends in the next room had a caller, and a particular high strong voice floated in to me and set me to wondering who it could be who talked so loud, so fast, and used so many adjectives.

"Did you notice, Miss Emma," the voice was saying, "that I had cut off my bangs?"

"I was just thinking," said Emma "that something had improved your appearance, and that is it: I see your eyes more, you look better."

"Oh do you think so really? So much obliged,
I'm sure; but, O dear! you have no idea what a great confusion it caused in our family."

"In what way?" said Emma, perplexed, I knew.

"Why, my bangs were just long enough to be in my eyes, and that was so annoying. I was perfectly wretched half the time because of them; and one night as I was trying to read they annoyed me so much I took the scissors and clipped them off. I had forgotten all about it when I went into the breakfast room the next morning, but brother noticed me in an instant and said:

"Why Juliette! what have you done to yourself! you are the ugliest thing I ever saw. You are a monster a perfect demon."

Oh it was awful the way he raved, and then mamma came in and held up her hands in speechless horror.

"My dear daughter, Juliette," she said, "you have ruined yourself forever. I never can forgive you," and then she began to cry.

Oh it was perfectly frightful to hear her rave.
She was almost insane, and neither of us ate one mouthful of breakfast. When papa came in he was perfectly furious. He said he had no more pride in me, and would not buy me things I wanted. Oh it was perfectly awful. I wept until my head came near bursting, and they were greatly alarmed about me. Dr. Wood came in, he said, "my dear, Miss Juliette, you are very sick, you are very sick, indeed, dangerously so." Then he wished to give me morphine, for my head was almost killing me, and that it might relieve me quickly inserted it in my arm, as it happened I had on that dress with the rick rack yoke and sleeves, and it was no trouble at all. I was so glad I had on that dress, wasn't it just charming? I was relieved in a few moments and have had no return of it. Brother took me to ride that evening and we had a delightful time. The drive was perfectly lovely. Mamma was so sorry about scolding me that she went down town while we were gone and got me a lovely silk which I have longed for so ardently.

Do you see my new bracelets? Papa got them for me. I think they are perfectly sweet, and with my new silk they will be too lovely for anything."

"Is that one of the 'girls of the period'?" I said to Emma when the front door had closed behind her visitor.

"Yes," she said, "that was once Miss Julia Ward; she is now Miss Juliette Warde."

"Is she an idiot?" I asked.

Emma laughed, and then grew serious.

"No," she said, "she is a girl of good sense, good family, is well educated and highly accomplished, but is ruined, I fear, by this perfectly lovely, perfectly horrid, perfectly awful craze."

"What has wrought this change?" I asked in wonder, and she briefly replied:

"Fashionable boarding school."

THE TOURIST'S DECISION.

The other morning a man arrived in Detroit from some point in Kentucky, having among his luggage three fishing rods, two dogs, two guns, a tent and two pairs of rubber boots. He had heard that Michigan was chuck full of boss localities for a man on his vacation, and he asked Officer Button at the depot which way he'd bet-

"Want to camp out?"

"Well, I've got a tent, but I guess it will be safer to sleep in a hotel."

"Want to fish?"

"No I don't care about it. I've brought my outfit along, but what's the use of catching fish?"

"Those your hunting dogs?"

"Yes, but they ain't worth their salt. It kind 'olooks the thing to bring 'em along, and they are sort o' company like."

"You have guns there?"

"Well, yes, but I never fired a gun in my life.
It looks more business-like to bring 'em you know."

"Do you want to go into the woods?" asked the officer.

"No, not particularly. The woods are pretty damp and full of mosquitoes, and I can't see any fun in that."

"Might go up to St. Clare Flats."

"Yes, I might, but what's the use? All I could do would be to stop at the hotel and catch a few fish and row a boat and shoot a few birds."

"How's Macinac?"

"It's only an island. What's the use of squatting down for a month on an island when we've got so much land in this country?"

"Petoskey is a favorite resort," said the officer.

"That's on the shore of the lake, and I don't care for the water."

"Why don't you go out to some farmhouse?"

"Too lonesome."

"Well, stay right here then."

"Too lively."

"See here," said Button as he turned around on him, "What sort of a place are you looking for, anyhow?"

"Hanged if I know."

"What made you come?"

"Well, I have a four weeks' vacation, you know, and it seemed the thing to go off somewhere."

"Well, if I were you I'd take the next train for home, and put in my vacation lying in my own dooryard."

"I guess I will. Yes, that seems the best plan.
Please keep an eye on my traps until I can buy a ticket, and I assure you I'm a thousand times obliged to you for your kindness to a stranger."

NOTES FOR THE CHILDREN.

BY UNCLE MINOR.

What in the world is the matter, dear children —have I offended you? Yes, possibly I have,
by that long account of my trip in the North.
I wrote to Bro. Lipscomb to cut it in two, but he didn't, and I know you all got tired and sleepy reading it. But I will promise not to do so again if you will only forgive me. I know you will do this, won't you? Well I got home safely after my long trip North, and you don't know how glad my loved ones were to see me. The boys met me at the depot, and one of them almost grown had to kiss me; you may think this mighty funny for men to kiss, but then he has been such a precious good child, I feel like treating him just as I did when he was little. I always did love to hug and kiss little boys and girls. I love them so much. And then if it were the custom and prudent, I often feel like kissing some grown people, but it would not be right, because people would make remarks about it, and I would bring reproach on the cause of Christ. We are commanded by the Savior to avoid even the appearance of evil, and it is wrong for us to do anything that will bring reproach on the cause of Christ or lessen our influence for good.

I have five dear sons; the youngest is, almost grown. Their names are Charles, George, Thomas, Minor and John. The two oldest are in business working hard to make an honest living;
the three younger are going to school to Bro.
Scobey at South Kentucky College. They all appear to be doing well, and are much pleased with the school. I must not forget to tell you about my only daughter; she is married and has two of the sweetest little children you ever saw; they are little girls, nearly a year old now, and are twins; their names are Mary and Ellen; they look so much alike that it is difficult to tell them apart; they are good and pretty babies, and folks say I spoil them, but I don't believe a word of it.

And now I must introduce you to Uncle Minor's wife—her name is Aunt Ellen; when we were young I used to tell her she was pretty, and I have not changed my mind yet, if she is getting grayheaded like myself. One thing, I know, she is good, or she would scold me when I stay away from her so long; but she is a sensible woman and takes life just as it is, and makes the best of it. If my business calls me away, it is my duty to go, and she is willing to do the best she can without me. Some people get so cross and crabbed when they can't have their way.

I know some little boys and girls who get very angry if every thing don't go to suit them. I have seen them pull their hair, tear their clothes, cry, and say ugly words, just because they could not have their way. Now this is all wrong, if children do not control their temper when they are young, when they are grown they are not apt to, and then they get themselves into trouble.
Sometimes they go crazy, but oftener they do something that they have to be punished for by the law, are put in jail or hung. I saw an account not long since of a man who had killed his brother; just before he was hung, he stood up before the great crowd of people and said,
"Fathers and mothers, teach your children to control their tempers. I was not taught this great lesson, but allowed to have my own way, and now I am going to hell with my brother's blood upon my hand, all because I did not control my temper when I was young."

Look out for the ADVOCATE next week. I have a proposition to make you all, by which you may all get a nice present. Until then, good-bye.

PILLS FOR PAGANS.

Writing of the wild tribes of Soudan Mr. F. L.
James says: "A medicine chest is often of more use to the traveller than a revolver, for nothing gives an African savage greater pleasure than a good dose of medicine; but it must be a strong one and rapid in its effects. A good dose of croton oil and colocynth or four or five grains of tartar emetic is what they like. At some places, Cassala for instance, there were days when as many as two hundred people visited the doctor, who gave away, among other drugs, great quantities of Holloway's pills. These pills were found immensely popular, and we took a good supply with us, in half-pound boxes, on each of our expeditions." Col. Burnaby found Cockle's pills a popular specific in Asia Minor, but it is stated that a prince in Siam bought 1,330 pounds of Holloway's pills.

The best thing to give your enemy is forgiveness; to an opponent, tolerance; to a friend, your heart; to your child, a good example; to a father, deference; to your mother, conduct that will make her proud of you; to yourself, respect; to all men, charity.—Mrs. Balfour.

The Bible does not say, "Well done, good and successful servant," but "Well done, good and faithful servant."—Gordon.

A Christian Editor's Opinion.

Mr. G. B. Lynch, publisher of the Alabama Christian Advocate, at Birmingham, writes: I travel all over the State, and my friends say they find your Lemon Elixir a most excellent medicine. My bookkeeper and foreman both use it in place of calomel, pills, etc.

Twenty-five Years a Citizen of Georgia. and the past seven years I have suffered continually from indigestion and bronchitis of a most severe type. I was treated by two prominent physicians and had taken all the patent medicines recommended for these diseases. I got no relief and continued to grow worse until I commenced the use of Dr. Mosley's Lemon Elixir. One dozen bottles has made a final cure of both diseases.

THE BEST ELECTRIC BELT MADE ONLY $1

A Positive Cure for RHEUMATISM, LIVER, STOMACH AND KIDNEY DISEASES, DISEASES OF THE BLOOD, SKIN DISEASES, FEMALE COMPLAINTS, PARALYSIS, NEURALGIA, CATARRH, LAME BACK, AND NERVOUS DEBILITY.

ORDER AT ONCE from this Advertisement. Nothing saved by correspondence. Good Agents Wanted. Circulars in German and English. Address, naming this paper, FORREST & CO., Sole Agents, 116 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y.

Having obtained the sole right to sell the German Electro-Galvanic Belt in America from the inventor, Prof. Conrad Ziegenfuss of Berlin, we are determined, whatever may be the cost, to introduce them here at once. The price of the Belt has always been Six Dollars ($6.00), but to induce invalids to give it a trial we will, for the next ninety days, send the German Electro-Galvanic Belt for ONE DOLLAR, provided you will cut out and send us the annexed coupon and give us your written promise to recommend the Belt if you find it as represented. This Belt is without doubt the best, strongest, and most scientifically constructed Electric Appliance ever introduced, being the invention of the great German Electrician, Prof. Ziegenfuss, and has met with the most marvelous success in Europe, being recommended and endorsed by the entire Medical Profession of Germany. The inventor has in his possession letters from Prince Bismarck and several members of the Royal Family. A quarter of a million of them were sold in the German Empire last year. These Belts, unlike many so-called electric appliances, are very light and not disagreeable to wear, and generate a current that can be immediately felt. Their action is stimulating and at the same time soothing; causing the Stomach, Liver, Kidneys and Nervous System to act as nature intended they should. Curing thousands of cases that internal medicines failed even to relieve. Under no circumstances can it do any harm and must do good no matter what is the complaint. They are made of cloth, silk lined, and the Electric Discs are so arranged that they retain their strength 20 years.

This Coupon is worth $5.00.

If you will cut out this Coupon and send it to us with ONE DOLLAR in a registered letter we will send you postpaid by return mail, One GERMAN ELECTRO-GALVANIC BELT with full directions in both English and German. Write Name and Post Office Address very plainly and give your exact measure in inches.

Indulgence and Excesses.

Whether over eating or drinking are made harmless by using Hop Bitters freely, giving elegant appetite and enjoyment by using them before and removing all dullness, pain and distress afterwards, leaving the head clear, nerves steady, and all the feelings buoyant, elastic and more happy than before. The pleasing effects of a Christian or sumptuous dinner continuing days afterwards.

Eminent Testimony.

N. Y. Witness, Aug. 15, 1880.

"I find that in addition to pure spirits contained in their composition, they contain the extracts of hops and other well-known and highly approved medicinal roots, leaves and tinctures in quantities sufficient to render the article what the makers claim it to be, to-wit, a medicinal preparation and not a beverage—unfit and unsafe to be used except as a medicine.

"From a careful analysis of their formula—which was attested under oath—I find that in every wine-glassful of Hop Bitters, the active medical properties aside from the distilled spirits are equal for a full dose for an adult, which fact, in my opinion, subjects it to an internal revenue tax as a medicinal bitter."

GREEN B. RAUM, U. S. Com. In. Rev.

Hardened Liver.

Five years ago I broke down with kidney and liver complaint and rheumatism. Since then I have been unable to be about at all. My liver became hard like wood; my limbs were puffed up and filled with water. All the best physicians agreed that nothing could cure me. I resolved to try Hop Bitters; I have used seven bottles; the hardness has all gone from my liver, the swelling from my limbs, and it has worked a miracle in my case; otherwise I would have been now in my grave. J. W. MOREY, Buffalo, Oct. 1, '81.

Poverty and suffering.

"I was dragged down with debt, poverty and suffering for years, caused by a sick family and large bills for doctoring. I was completely discouraged, until one year ago, by the advice of my pastor, I commenced using Hop Bitters, and in one month we were all well, and none of us have seen a sick day since, and I want to say to all poor men, you can keep your families well a year with Hop Bitters for less than one doctor's visit will cost, I know it."

IMPROVED METHOD OF STRINGING

MASON & HAMLIN

IMPROVED

Upright Pianos.

Entire iron frames to which the strings are directly attached by metal fastenings, securing

1. Best quality of tone, which is very musical and reined; free from the tubbiness which is common.
2. Greater durability and freedom from liability to get out of order; adaptations to trying positions and climates.
3. Increased capacity to stand in tune; will not require tuning one-quarter as often as pianos on the old system.

Having tested this new system of construction for two years and proved its advantages, this Company are now increasing their manufacture of pianos, and offer them to the public generally. Every piano of their make will illustrate that supreme excellence which has always characterized their Organs, and won for them highest award at every great world's exhibition for sixteen years. ## Mars Hill College.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fifteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for

(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen;
mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar an exception. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

T. B. LARIMORE, President.

LEARNING THE LESSON OF OBEDIENCE.

One of the most striking addresses at the recent meeting of the Prison Reform Association had for its text Obedience. Warden Brush, of Sing Sing prison, is accustomed to deal with criminals, and when, out of his long experience with the vicious and depraved, he declares he never hears a child's sullen "I will not" without shuddering, he compels attention. He says that disobedience to the laws of the state is what makes criminals. This is a truism. Every body knows it; but few consider that the disobedience which is criminal begins in the disobedience which is unfilial. "Disobedience to parents," says this prison official, "is often the beginning of a path that leads straight to the prison doors." Is not this a startling thought, and is it not true?

When we consider how widely and firmly crime has rooted itself in society, and read the chronicles of it for a day in a single city or state, we are overwhelmed with a sense of horror and despair. Is the world growing worse? How shall we check the black stream? We have prisons, we have courts, we have stringent laws. We arrest, we punish, we make the way of the transgressor hard; but criminality seems to increase in spite of our efforts. What is the cause of it? Is it possible that it lies in our home life? Mr. Brush's searching inquiry leads directly to that source, and forces us, whether we like it or not, to admit that we have overlooked it. We are accustomed to lay stress upon the fact that the children of criminals almost invariably grow into the life which their parents lead; but we have not considered how much lack of parental discipline contributes toward the making of law-breakers. We have only to state the question to feel its force. We are struck at once by the correspondences between the problem of the state and the problem of the family. The family is the unit of the state. The state exists for the benefit of its families. Whatever affects them for weal or woe affects it in like manner. The individual is but the unit of the family. Whatever helps or hinders the family helps or hinders him. The most perfect condition of the state is harmony or balance of rights, personal and property. Each individual has the largest liberty consistent with the liberty and interest of the rest. The common good requires common acquiescence. So in the family. Its peace and purpose can only be served by an adjustment of personal relations and rights. The violation of these relations and rights destroys its integrity and defeats the great end for which it exists. The principle of obedience is, therefore, the natural law of both family and state. The parental is the productive, the instructive, the molding authority, and if it fails in any respect, the family suffers and, ultimately, the state.

The foundation of order and usefulness is laid in the family training. Society looks with solicitude, therefore, to the character of the homes. It is not a matter of indifference whether children disregard the principle of obedience. The state assumes the right to protect itself against the evils of illiteracy by compulsory education laws. But the result of neglect to train in obedience are as bad as those of illiteracy.

How many parents think seriously, or at all, on these things? If the boy escapes his tasks, and becomes an idler, they dread the effect of bad company on him; but see no danger in his unwillingness to submit to the wholesome regulations. If he knows no law but his own will in youth, how can he expect to submit to the restraints which the state imposes? If he is a rebel in the family relation, what will he be in the state?

The principle of obedience lies at the foot of all social, moral and religious life. God has emphasized it by making it one of the ten commandments. Jesus has sanctified it in his blessed example; for he was "subject unto" his parents. The home is the appointed place to learn to obey. It is the best of all schools. There the lesson is taught with love and gentleness, and discipline of the school, super-added, fixes firmly the principle which all useful and successful men and women must regard. If the lesson is not learned at home and in school, it must be learned in the hard school of the state—the jail and the prison—with bitter humiliation; for those "contending 'gainst obedience as they would make war with mankind" must be brought into harmony with that law at any cost.—Independent.

CHARITY ORGANIZATION AND CHRISTIANITY.

Said Peter to the lame man, at the temple gate: "I will do better by you than giving you money. I will heal your lameness, and make a new man of you; and then you will not need to beg." The doctrine underlying the narrative is that what man needs is not an improvement in his external circumstances, but a change in himself. "Ye must be born again" is the New Testament teaching. The trouble is in yourselves. Become new creatures in Christ Jesus, become such men as you should be, and then all will be well.

It is worth noticing that the current Charity Organization movement is based on the same general idea. It aims not to carry along a beggar as a beggar, but to secure such a change of conditions that the man will not need to beg. A philosophical treatment of the subject of pauperism is based on a recognition of the fact that the great thing needed is a change in the man himself, so that, instead of being a lazy man, he shall be an industrious man; instead of a drunkard, a sober man; instead of a spendthrift, a prudent man. The science of charity is really based on the idea of the necessity of a new creation, the need of a thorough change in the man himself. It is but another instance in which practical worldly wisdom has found itself obliged to come into the path of Christian philosophy, in which the results of later study have been anticipated in the utterances of the Scriptures.

The great evils that afflict the community spring from faults in personal character. If all men were what they should be, industrious instead of indolent, temperate instead of dissipated, virtuous instead of vicious, the burdens of society would be reduced to a minimum. A moral community will thrive under the most disadvantageous circumstances, while a vicious society will be born down by weight of evils, no matter how favorable are its surroundings. From a winter's settlement on a rocky coast may spring mighty states, while colonies planted in palm groves may remain squalid and weak. The problem as to the alleviation of the ills of society is a moral problem. True relief can come only through a change in men themselves. The welfare of the community depends on the personal character of its members.

Many attempts at wit are made about giving a starving man, not a loaf of bread but a tract. Now, in nine cases out of ten it is the tract—that is, a moral influence—which the man most needs. In most cases the man is suffering because of deficiencies in some form in himself. He lacks industry, or lacks prudence, or lacks some other personal element. While this lack remains the man's case must continue a bad one. Help him to-day, and he must be helped again to-morrow. Temporary relief may wisely be given while a permanent amelioration is sought for; but in order that a true benefit be done the man, something else than material relief is needed.

The question whether a boy is going to succeed in the world is not the question whether his father can "set him up," or whether he has influential relatives. It is the question whether the boy himself is what he should be. If he is an industrious boy, a faithful boy, he will make his way through the world though his father can give him nothing but the parental blessing; while, if the boy is deficient in moral character, he is doomed to failure, no matter how much he may be bolstered up. A parent's anxiety regarding a boy should be, not to scrape together some money to leave him, but to see that the boy's personal characteristics are what they should be. If the feet and ankle bones of his moral nature are such that he can stand up firm and strong, the boy will not need an outfit of "silver and gold." He will take care of that matter himself.

And this exalts the work of the preacher of the Gospel, of the day-school teacher, and of all others who labor, not for the material, but for moral interests of society. The true relief of suffering in the community is to be attained, not by the distribution of sacks of flour and loads of coal, but by changes in personal character. The copper tossed to penury will be spent for the meager supper or the wretched bed, and then the suffering will be the same as before. A handful of gold will give no permanent aid. But when, in the name of Jesus Christ of Nazareth, the inward nature is changed, there is relief perfect, grand and glorious.—Independent.

GRACE IN LITTLE THINGS.

There is an old story of a certain minister who, in arranging his toilet for his parochial calls found a button gone from his shirt collar, and all at once the good man's patience left him. He fretted and scolded, and said undignified and unkind things, until the tired wife burst into tears and escaped to her room. The hours of the afternoon wore away, during which the parson called upon old brother Jones, who was all bowed down with rheumatism, and found him patient and even cheerful; upon young brother Hall wasting away with consumption, and found him anxious to be with Christ; upon good old grandmother Smith, in her poor, miserable hovel of a home, and found her singing one of the good old hymns as happy as a bird; upon young Mrs. Brown, who had a few weeks before buried her only child, and found her trustful and serene in the view of God's love which had come to her through her affliction. The minister went home filled with what he had seen, and when evening came, and he was seated in his easy chair, his good wife near him busy with her needles, he could not help saying, "What a wonderful thing grace is! How much it will do! There is nothing beyond its power! Wonderful! Wonderful! It can do all things." Then the little wife said, "Yes, it is wonderful, indeed; but there is one thing the grace of God does not seem to have the power to do." "Ah, what can that be?" said the husband. "Why, it doesn't seem to have power to control a minister's temper when a shirt button is gone." This was a new version of the doctrine of grace to the parson, but it was such a version as many another religious man needs to remember. There is many a man who can stand up before a multitude and "confess Christ," who can be most meek when insulted in some public place; who can rub his hands and bless God for the power of religion; but who is too weak to keep his temper at home. The value of art is in the fineness of the work; the perfection of music is in the little accuracies. So the beauty and power of our religion are seen when we manifest grace in little things. As it takes greater skill to engrave the Lord's Prayer upon a five-cent piece than upon a broad steel plate, so it takes more grace to live a good Christian at home than in public.—Golden Rule.

With many persons vanity is the greatest of all hinderances to conversion; and with a corresponding number of disciples it is the greatest obstruction to a growth in grace.

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

BAPTIZED FOR THE DEAD.

"Else what shall they do who are baptized for the dead." 1 Cor. 15: 29.

This passage of Scripture has given much trouble to Bible students, and many have attempted to explain it, and in doing so, have made it more mysterious. We think, that one reading this over for the first time, and taking a common sense view of it, would naturally strike its true meaning without trouble. Let us see. The theme in hand is the resurrection of the dead. Paul's argument is to prove that the dead shall be raised. He asserts this, and says in proof of it, that Christ is raised from the dead, and adds that since men die, and go to the grave through Adam's transgression, and not from their own fault or misdoing, so through the obedience of Christ, shall all be entitled to rise, or be restored, from the consequences of Adam's transgression which came upon us without our agency. And then to drive home the argument, he adds, that if the dead rise not, why then are ye baptized for the dead? (Christ.) If the Christ, in whom ye believed, and in whom ye trusted for pardon, be not risen, then indeed he is an imposter, for no imposter could raise himself, nor would God raise up an imposter, and thus palm off an imposition upon the world. Therefore he says, "If Christ be not risen, your hope is vain; ye are yet in your sins." This must be so, he argues, else what shall they do, or why are ye baptized for the dead? Why are you baptized for a dead Savior—one who though professing to save you, and to raise you up in the last day, is himself yet in the grave? You are baptized for Christ, because he commands it, but if he is still a dead Christ, your action is folly. He has promised that though you be buried, yet he will raise you up again at the last day. You believed this, and in your baptism for him, have represented both the burial and the resurrection of the body, and your faith in both. Now if Christ be not risen, all is folly, and you are yet in your sins. Why then are ye baptized for the dead (Christ) if the dead do not rise?

With this view there is no mystery and no far fetched theories. It seems to us the most natural conclusion, and connects well with the theme under discussion. If the dead rise not, Christ is still a dead Savior, and they were being baptized for him, as though he had risen, and was alive, which indeed was foolishness if he was not risen. There is then no mystery here, and the conclusion is natural and easy.

NO MISTAKE ABOUT HIS TEACHING.

There is a Baptist preacher in this country, who, when he goes into the water to baptize a subject, says to the congregation, "We want it distinctly understood that this baptism is not for the remission of sins." Any one can understand that, and there can never be any dispute about this kind of baptism, as to whether it is scriptural or not. Every one knows that it is not a scriptural baptism. In the face of the language of Christ himself, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.) It is easy to see it is not scriptural. In the face of the inspired apostles language, (Acts 2: 38.) "Repent and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." Of course it is not scriptural. Thus we see, Christ said a man must believe and be baptized to be saved; and Peter said, baptism, Christian baptism, or that of his authority, is for the remission of sins. But this Baptist preacher does not practice this baptism. It is not even John's baptism, for he baptized for the remission of sins. (See Mark 1: 4.) Now, if the people want scriptural baptism, they need not go to the Baptists to get it. They have ceased to practice that kind. They have a man-made article they think better. Well, the Spirit said that evil men should wax worse and worse.

BROKEN LEGS.

We have knocked the legs out of most of the "mourner's benches" in East Texas. Don't know whether they will be repaired or not, but it will take a very expert workman to fix them up again, so they will do service. Without this, or something like it, the Baptists and Methodists can never turn a wheel. They depend entirely upon it for conversions. Stop this, take away their mourner's bench, and they make no converts.

Send us reports of gospel success. Postal reports.

Did you ever see a man entirely satisfied with the weather?

Bro. Ezzell did some good solid teaching at Troupe, but his logic killed without making alive.

Bro. Jo. Harding is in a good meeting at Waco. Goes from there to Dallas, and there we intend to head him off.

We heard a Methodist preacher the other day on sanctification. He knocked the legs out of the mourners bench, and completely demolished "total depravity."

Bro. McPherson's meeting closed at Bellvue with six baptisms, and sectarianism stirred from center to circumference. And he did not use Penn's flagged seats either.

Send to Bro. S. R. Ezzell, and get "The Great Legacy. Address at Greenville, Hunt County, Texrs. Price $1.50. A book that carries home the gospel with irresistible logic. Get it.

Bro. A. J. Bush has moved to Thorp's Springs. By the way, are there not too many preachers going into quarters at Thorp's Springs? There will not be a chicken left in all that country.

The brethren have closed a good meeting recently at Leona. Brothers Carrington and McCarty, preachers. We lost report, will Bro. Mc. please send names for paper again.

Brethren who argue they ought to vote to put the best man in office, and thus promote good law and order, will have a chance to vote for St. John this year, and cast a vote for prohibition. Now we shall see whether it is not merely political feeling. According to the papers, no Christian could wish to have either Cleveland or Blaine. Let it be prohibition then.

DEAR BRO. POE: Our meeting closed on the night of the 10th with a full audience and profound interest; the hand of fellowship was extended to a few of the last baptized, and fully three hundred passed around to give the hand of fellowship, a sight I never saw before. One hundred and sixty-four in all added to the church. May the Lord bless them to the end of the race. —[N. B. Gibbons, Ennis, Texas, September 15, 1884.

MEMORIAL WINDOWS.

The "Great Central" Christian church of Cincinnati, with its "Catherine Wheel," is having its effect upon other church houses built in that city. The Standard gives an account of the dedication of a new house on Walnut Hills, Cincinnati, recently dedicated, and for which "Rev." Isaac Errett preached the dedicatory sermon, etc. In this new church front are two "memorial windows," bearing the names of two of the sisters who aided largely in building the house. Thus, they get their reward for whatever good they may have done in the matter, by having their names spread out before the public, telling what they have done for the Lord in helping to build this house. "Verily they have their reward." While the church has let itself down to a level, with the beast—the great apostasy. They tell us of the "memorial windows," the "baptismal fount," the choir, and the dedicatory sermon by a "Rev.," but do not say whether the "Rev." baptized or sprinkled the house. We write this that our readers may see how things are progressing (backwards) out East. This is all new to us old fogies, who have nothing but the Bible to go by.

Bro. McPherson wants to know why I did not pay what it cost me to go to the State meeting to some evangelist, and stay away myself. And asks how much I have paid evangelists? The fact is, Bro. McPherson, I have evangelized all the year nearly, myself, and have never got enough to divide. People save their money to go to State meeting with, and if they have any money to pay, they pay it in at State meeting, so as to have it reported, etc. Why did I go? I did not want to go, but went as a matter of duty to the cause of Christ. I am set as a watchman, and must keep a sharp lookout against Baptist conventions, Methodist conferences, "accredited delegates from the churches." Penn's "flagged seats," etc. Many of the brethren are trying to get us to adopt these things, you know, and as a faithful soldier, knowing the Scriptures do not authorize these things, and knowing the danger of State wheels, etc., I am forced at great sacrifice to be on hand. Good men, who mean well, do not mind being watched; bad men ought to be watched. You, of course have no objection, eh?

IN TROUBLE.

The Baptists seem to get into trouble everywhere they hold meetings in Texas, with what they term the poison of Campbellism. One poor fellow reports he had no success at Hico, because, as he says, "the people had received an infusion of Campbellite poison." Does Campbellite poison prove more potent to damn, than the gospel to save? Why didn't he pour hot shot into Campbellism from the gospel battery, that will route Campbellites or Baptists either? We would like to join him in casting out all these isms, and trying to make Christians of all men. We can do it with the gospel.

We set the church in order at Kilgore, on third Lord's day in September. With about a dozen members, brother James Prothro and Wm. Holland as overseers for the present. They agree to meet regularly, and keep house for the Lord. These members composing this little congregation are noble souls, and we believe they will prove efficient workmen. Kilgore is a hard place. The people are good people, but, on matters of religion, seem to be asleep. We think they read the Bible too little. We preached nine days without any accessions, though we had a good, attentive hearing.

D. PENNINGTON.

San Antonio, September 26, 1884.

DEAR BRO. POE: Our meeting has been conducted by Elder W. H. D. Carrington, J. L. Bowling, and A. J. McCarty, for the last ten days, came to a close last Lord's day night. Although it was very warm and dry, attendance was good, especially at night, having dinner on the ground every day. There were nine additions—five confessions and baptisms, two from the Baptists, and two restored. Brother Carrington and McCarty have done more towards bringing out good congregations than any one else, and can safely say there is a better prospect for the cause of Christ than ever before, at this place. People are well pleased with their preaching, and the brethren and sisters are greatly encouraged and edified. My paper came to hand after so long a time. Yet, I have never seen anything in print regarding our State meeting paper. May God bless as he sees you need it, and ever direct you in the right way, is my prayer.

DEAR BRO. POE: I am now at Jacksboro, where you remember you stopped a few days and preached. I have preached a few days in the county, have had, so far, seven accessions. The brethren of this county have gone into co-operation, and have pledged themselves to sustain me for six months. I am very much pleased with the prospects. I am to give half my time to the town work, the other half in the country. We have some of the Lord's noble men in this county.—[Otis Riall, Jacksboro, Texas, September 22, 1884.]

DEAR BRO. POE: Just returned from Cherokee County. Had one addition from the Baptists, one reclaimed at Lone Star. Four additions by baptism, and one immersed believer from the Methodists, at Walker's chapel. May God bless all the faithful, that will stand firm against all innovations.—[John F. Brill, Mt. Enterprise, Texas.]

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

A. C. Henry, Hartselle, Ala., September 27, writes: "I was called home, yesterday, by telegram, to two sick children. The preaching at Athens resulted in one baptism, and one other confession, but he put off his baptism, so as to have his parents present."

B. C. Goodwin, Elkmont, Ala., September 26, writes: "Since my last report, in July, I have baptized one hundred and eighteen at four meetings, and organized two congregations. The brethren are building a house of worship in Camden. They meet on Lord's day."

E. A. Elam, Lebanon, Tenn., September 27, writes: "Our meeting at Leeville began on the fourth Lord's day in September, with a respectable audience both morning and night. Monday night we had about half as many as on Lord's day night. Thus, with decreasing interest, we continued, like the frog climbing out of the well, ascending one foot a day and slipping back two at night, until, on Thursday, we knocked the bottom out. No additions. I hope the brethren were strengthened."

F. B. Srygley, Lebanon, Tenn., September 26, writes: "I am just from Riddleton. Our meeting closed Thursday night. Eighteen discourses, and twelve baptized. We had the use of the Methodist church, for which we are truly thankful. The interest continued good all the time. The people 'searched the Scriptures daily whether those things were so.' The brethren think they can build them a house very soon. May the Lord bless them. The people of that neighborhood know how to make the preacher feel good."

F. B. Srygley, Lebanon, Tenn., September 27, writes: "A good sister went to church on Lord's day, with thoughts of Jesus and his glory in her heart, and found the leading elder with an advertisement of the coming circus, explaining the different pictures to the flock in the house of God, while they all listened with rapt attention. Finally he folded the show-bill and put it into his pocket, with the statement that, 'if they would show half what they had advertised, it would be worth twice the money.' What next?"

J. L. Bryant, Rural Hill, Tenn., September 27, writes: "Our meeting at Corinth, Wilson county, commenced on the second Lord's day in September, and closed on Wednesday night. One gentleman from the Methodists made the confession and was baptized. This is the second protracted meeting at Corinth this year. We have a zealous little band of brethren and sisters at this place, and I believe some of them have the correct idea of preaching; that is, to send the man where they think the most good can be done. I commenced a meeting at Science Hill, Rutherford county, on Saturday night before the third Lord's day in September, and continued until the next Thursday night, with seventeen confessions and baptisms. There seemed to be a good interest kept up all the time through this meeting, and had it not been for other arrangements, would have continued several days longer."

W. H. Dixon, Petersburg, Tennessee, September 26, writes: "I am now ready to report up to date. I commenced a meeting at Philadelphia, Tenn., fifth Lord's day in August, and continued up to Thursday, with one confession. Bro. F. W. Smith assisted me after Lord's day, and did a good work. On the first of September, I joined Bro. H. F. Williams, at Towry, Lincoln county, Tenn. Had three confessions. On second Lord's day in September, I commenced a meeting at Chestnut Ridge. Bro. Ephraim Barham preached one sermon, and assisted me otherwise. Thirteen added. I am now at home. Bro. T. C. Little is helping me, as I am him. Bro. Neely, Petty, and Mat Northcross preached two sermons. Our meeting will continue until Lord's day night. Up to date, twenty-four have been added. Interest growing. I have never seen better attention generally than has been this season. Our congregations at all these places have been large and attentive."

F. C. Sowell, Columbia, Tenn., September 26, writes: "We began work in the new house, at Little Lot, on Saturday night before third Lord's day. My dear companion and myself remained with the brethren there until Tuesday, having been away from home then more than two weeks longer than we anticipated when we left home. Before we left, one was added to the church. Bro. Jno. M. Morton was left to continue the meeting, and we have heard since we left others have been added. We are glad to report through the ADVOCATE that Bro. Jno. Morton has resumed his pulpit work again. We trust he will not look back, but continue to the course of right and honor. No doubt Christianity is growing, from what we can see, through the papers. In this week's copy of the ADVOCATE, about eight hundred and seventy-five additions were reported. Brethren, we will have a good deal of work to do this winter in keeping all of the babes alive. We trust they may feast upon the pure milk so they may not die."

W. G. White, Unionville, Tenn., September 28, writes: "I have just found Bro. J. L. Sewell's report of his meeting at this place. I am indeed very sorry that matters are so; and while we highly appreciate his statement, yet I think an explanation necessary. We have struggled hard for six years, and yet the scene is dark. Our members have died and moved away so we are yet few. Three out of the ten baptized since we built have been called to cross 'the dark river,' others, as he says, 'are doing no good, but injuring the cause.' Several members living some five miles off failed to attend the meeting from some cause. The sects had three or four exciting meetings around three or four miles off, and the people preferred to go to them; beside, Bro. Sewell's preaching came so near being all Bible, that it was not very charming to our community just now—the hardest period of our struggle, I think. Bro. Sewell has endeared himself to us (me and my wife at least) that not even death can erase him from the affection of our Christian love. Brethren pray for us. And rest assured, that though brethren be discouraged, the cross heavy, and the way dark, the hand that holds this pen shall be raised in defense of the truth until stilled in death. And though alone, if need be, will stand, for Jesus has promised to be with his followers to the end."

A. J. Denton, Spencer, Tenn., September 26, writes: "We have had one accession to the church here recently—a gentleman about fifty years of age, and who has been somewhat skeptical for many years past, yet desirous of knowing the truth. Bro. Richard Gillentine, who lives in this county about ten miles south of Spencer, has given me an account of his work and success since the first of August. Bro. Gillentine has a very good mountain farm, and he divides his time between the farm and the pulpit, devoting enough of his time and labor to the farm to make a living for his family. He is an humble, pious man, and an acceptable preacher among the people, and has the respect and confidence of all irrespective of creeds, etc. In his quiet way, he, doubtless, does as much or more good for the church than a great many whose names are often seen in our papers. But the following report of meetings will speak for itself. At Hill's Creek, Warren county, six additions, all by baptism; at Childer's school-house, Bledsoe county, six additions, five by baptism and one from the Baptists; at Glade Creek, Bledsoe county, nineteen additions, sixteen by baptism and three from the Baptists; at Cane Creek, this county, five miles from Spencer, fourteen additions, all by baptism; at Rocky River, this county, eight additions, all by baptism; at Pine Creek, this (Van Buren) county, ten additions, all by baptism. In this last meeting he was assisted by Bro. Boyd, of Bledsoe county, who did most of the preaching. In all there have been sixty-three brought into the family of God. Bro. Gillentine has other meetings to hold, and will probably gather in many more. The church is doing well, and we expect to have a meeting this fall."

J. Harding, Waco, Texas, September 28, writes: "I thought I would give the readers of the ADVOCATE my whereabouts and what I am doing. I left Louisville Thursday morning before the first Lord's day in this month, and after a long, dusty and hot journey by the way of St. Louis, I reached this place on Saturday noon, began my meeting with the brethren here on the morning of the first day of the week. Began preaching to a tolerably good crowd; my crowds have been gaining ever since. We have had forty added to the congregation since our meeting began. A large number have 'fessed up.' The brethren here are not very zealous; seems that money is the great object for which the Western people strive. This is the home of Bro. Goodloe who used to preach in Tennessee; he has just returned from a meeting at San Marcos, and is with me now. Our young Bro. George Smith, of Illinois, is also here. He is a young preacher of promise, and expects to make his home in Texas. Bro. Nance, of Tennessee, and Bro. Grubbs, of Kentucky, have both been at our meeting. It is here that I have met Bro. Ragland, of Lebanon; Bro. Ferrell, of Shelbyville, and his son, Dr. Joseph Ferrell; the Bros. Sneed, Hobbs, Phillips, Brown and host of others from our old State. I am stopping at the 'preacher's home,' Bro. Dr. Thomas Moore's. I find these brethren very kind and disposed to look over my peculiarities, and engage with me heartily in the work. I am to go from here to Dallas, and from thence to Bonham. The ADVOCATE is not much read here, but I hope that a number may be induced to subscribe for it before we leave. There has been no rain here for over three months; the weather is hot, dry and dusty."

STEADFASTNESS.

Paul writing to the Corinthian brethren says, "Be ye steadfast unmovable; always abounding in the work of the Lord: forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not in vain in the Lord." (1 Cor. 15; 58.) This command from the pen of the inspired apostle, involves principle that is essential in the various vocations of life.

The farmer that "always abounds" in his work and undertakings, is he who is made successful in the agricultural circle, and he who from the golden harvest fills his barns to overflowing. The lawyer that rises to distinction and becomes an honor to his country, and a blessing to his fellow man, is he who stands firm and immovable upon principles of justice, and pleads for the interest of his country. So it is in the service of God. When Paul, being guided by the inspiration of heaven, said "Be ye steadfast and unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord," he penned the will of heaven that which is essential to keep men under the approving smiles of our Heavenly Father. Jesus says: "He that wavereth is like a wave of the sea, driven with the wind and tossed." As the waves of the ocean are moved to and fro by every toss, so is the unstable man who is not firmly planted upon the word of the Lord, moved by the emissaries of Satan whenever they appear with their many enticing charms.

For example of "true greatness," and men who have never pleased the Lord, let us examine some of the characters recorded by prophets and apostles. When Nebuchadnezzar was king of Babylon, he made an image of gold, and also a decree that all the nation at a certain time should fall down and worship this image, confirming the decree with an oath that "who falleth not down and worshipeth shall at the same hour be cast into the midst of a burning fiery furnace." (Deut. 9: 6.) Among the great number of that nation there were three, Shadrach, Meshach and Abed-Nego, who served the living God and would not bow to the king's command. When they were brought to trial before the king, the voice of whom had made the nation tremble, and were told the penalty if they refused to worship the image, they stood in the presence of the king with the moral courage that should characterize all God's people, and said, "Be it known unto thee, O king, that we will not serve thy gods, nor worship the golden image which thou hast set up." So it was with Daniel during the reign of Darius, as it is recorded in the sixth chapter. When friends had forsaken and foes united to destroy his life, he was unmovable in the faith of his Maker and could realize, that God was his shield and exceeding great reward. Joshua, a man that pleased God, during the forty years journey through the wilderness and on to his tomb, was unmovable, always abounding in the faith of Him from whom all blessings flow. In his old age he gathered the tribes of Israel together who were wandering from God, and tells them how they had been delivered from Egyptian bondage; how the faithful were preserved while journeying through the wilderness, and how God proposed to bless them who would put their trust in Him; pleads with them to come back to the way of wisdom, and finally says, "Choose you this day whom you will serve, whether the gods which your father served that were on the other side of the flood: but as for mine and my house, we will serve the Lord." (Joshua 24: 15.) So should we be, though sectarianism be popular, strong and powerful, we should stand upon the eternal truth and plead for its purity and simplicity, "thought the heavens fall."

Passing down to the New Testament, we find the life of our Savior, one of trials and temptations, and in the midst of every conceivable charge that could be brought against him, we see Him remain firm and unmovable as the rock ribbed mountains of Egypt that rear themselves heavenward as to kiss the very skies. The apostles of our Savior, as we learn from sacred and profane history, preferred martyrdom rather than deny their faith in the Christian religion. How many of to-day have such courage? Brethren, it seems that we ought to labor the harder as we behold our land of liberty and realize the golden opportunity given us for spreading the gospel. Notice also the character of the apostle Paul. The first history we have of him shows him to be laboring with all his power, soul and strength, for the sect called the Pharisees, whom he believed to be the only people who were faithful to the laws of heaven. Here we may learn the important lesson that faith and consciousness in false theories will not save us. While faith and a clear conscience is essential, it must be the result of a correct education in order to purify and save the soul. When the word of the Lord appeared unto Saul, and he was convinced that he was in error, he did not hesitate to leave his old theories, and ask why, wherefore, but cried out, at once, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" (Acts 9: 6.) It did not concern him why God should require certain things of men in order to be saved; he evidently realized that it was God's privilege to command, and man's duty to obey. From that time forth we see this servant of the Lord "always abounding" in the glorious work of proclaiming the glad tidings of a crucified Savior; we see him taken by wicked hands and beaten with many stripes; he is brought before the rulers; he is accused by false brethren, bound in chains and thrust into prison; yet, in the midst of all this, with the eloquence of Demosthenes and the inspiration of heaven, he pleads for "the power of God unto salvation" with all the earnestness a soul can possess. Having stood long and fighting bravely, he said to his brethren, "Be strong in the Lord, and in the power of his might. Put on the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil. For we wrestle not against flesh and blood, but against principalities, against power, against the ruler of the darkness of this world, against spiritual wickedness in high places. Wherefore take unto you the whole armor of God, that ye may be able to withstand in the evil day, and having done all, to stand. Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breast plate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery darts of the wicked." Eph. 6: 10-16.

The glorious consolation in standing firm and fighting the good fight of faith, is found in Paul's conclusion, which is your labor is not in vain in the Lord. A man of the world may labor with all the zeal and earnestness a soul can possess, for some worldly praise, and finally fail in reaching the goal. Not so with the Christian. The brave Leonidas was as firm and unmovable as the apostle; though the former failed, the latter succeeded. By contrasting the mission of either Leonidas or Jackson with Paul, we find that one was to create strife, the other peace; one was to slay his fellow man, the other to heal broken hearts, and prepare them for heaven; one wielded the death by the sword that is destined to crumble and decay, the other the sword of the spirit that is to shine with all its effulgent glory throughout the ceaseless ages of eternity. Hence Paul could realize that his labors were not in vain, and with an eye of faith he could look to the gates of the eternal city, and behold the angels "waiting and watching" to welcome him to his blissful reward.

Brethren, the book teaches "seek ye first the kingdom of God," that "without faith it is impossible to please Him," that you must "repent and be baptized into the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins," that is, resolve to abandon sin, and take up your cross and follow the Savior, teaches that we must attend Lord's day meetings, and walk blameless in the sight of the Lord. We should remember that we are entering the season of the year in which the emissaries of Satan do their great work. So let us labor to show the evil of the wine cup, strong drink, the ball room, and such things as are sinking so many souls to destruction, and keep our good brethren and sisters in the strait and narrow way that leads through the "gates into the city," where the voice of the angelic host are singing God's praise.

Griffin, Ga.

A. B. HERRING.

Harry and Charlie—aged five and three respectively—have just been seated at their nursery table for dinner. Harry sees that there is but one orange on the table, and immediately sets up a wailing that brings his mother to the scene. "Why, Harry, what are you crying for?" she asks. "Because there ain't any orange for Charlie!"

THE PRAISES OF GOD IN SONG.

By a reader and lover of the ADVOCATE, I am requested to write this essay for it.

Elder Jacob Creath said in the ADVOCATE, The Baptists and Christian brethren could restore apostolic religion in its humility and purity, if they would. Yes, and I say somebody will tremble in the judgment day for trying to keep the united energies of these two great people from being united. As these two great religious bodies have the greatest dislike to Rome's corruption of Christian immersion, and the Lord's supper, I call their special attention to the following. You both well know that Rome introduced rantism, or sprinkling, for baptism, and paidion or baby membership. A gentlemanly Roman priest told me he could prove that there was no proof in the New Testament for using sprinkling or pouring for baptism; that his church introduced it for convenience. And all who use sprinkling or pouring, must acknowledge the authority of the Roman Catholic church, or they had no authority for sprinkling. Now I ask Baptists and my brethren to prove by God's word, that baby membership and sprinkling are wrong. Your proofs are, Christ commanded to immerse believers. And you justly say, this command prohibits the substitution of anything in its place. You are right. Then you say the three thousand converts at Pentecost were believers. Acts 2. You then refer to Acts 8: 12 to the language, "And when they believed they were baptized, both men and women." Then verse 37, "And Philip said if thou believest with all thy heart. Then you go to Acts 16, "And Paul and Silas said believe on the Lord Jesus Christ." And to Acts 18: 8, "And Crispus, the chief ruler of the synagogue, believed on the Lord with all his house, and many of the Corinthians hearing, believed and were baptized."

Then you say we find no allusion to anything but immersing believers; and this settles apostolic practice. For had there been any sprinkling of babies, or any one else, for baptism, some allusion or hint would appear. Now turn this line of fair argumentation, you church splitting, organ praising of God, and you convict yourself of following Rome. For she started baby membership, sprinkling and organ worship. For you are doing what is not hinted at in the New Testament any more than sprinkling and baby membership. We are commanded to sing God's praise, and not not to fiddle or organ. And in Matt. 26: 30 we have the example of Christ and his apostles. We read that after supper, and when they had sung a hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives. I know some will say that Paul in 1 Cor. 14, says, "I will psallo with the Spirit, and I will psallo with the understanding." Now to make Paul say "I will organ or fiddle with the Spirit, and with the understanding, is so ridiculous that I am astonished that a Baptist, or one of my brethren, would even so think, much less so translate. Greek scholars say psallo with dative of person means, "To sing in honor or praise of, to celebrate in a song or psalm." Now some one, as an excuse for following Rome in organ worship, will refer me to David. Well, I refer such to Amos, chapter 6, and see the woes pronounced, and at verse 5 use the "Woe to them that chant to the viol, and invent to themselves instruments of music like David." Now how can I or any Bible Christian fellowship organ worship any more than baby sprinkling, seeing both are from Rome? Tremble over your Babylonish worship. Give it up, or no more condemn baby sprinkling. Your Sunday-school songs and fashionable singing has made singing so light, that there is no deep feeling of devotion in them. Old Hundred, and all our good old pious songs are laid aside. Book after book must be bought. I say use Mason's Sacred Harp, or A. D. Fillmore's Harp of Zion for music, and let my brethren use our old Christian Hymn Book, and stop this eternal book making. Church music poetry and tune ought to be such as will stir deep feelings of devotion. Picture Bibles, and these pictures as false as a printed lie, and new translations, and little baby notifications like Abbots, must be added to every one, all to get money Bro. Baptist, neither you nor my brethren who use the organ worship are primitive or apostolic. John the Baptist, no apostles organed God's praise. Neither did Stone or Campbell. I fear for you.

JAMES L. THORNBERRY.

Bible Difficulties.

Let it be understood, then, that this word of God is not a field all blazing with sunlight. Clouds hover over it, for even with this Book in our hands the Apostle tells us [we know in part. Shadows fall on its pages—the shadows of the Infinite. It is impossible that we should comprehend God. We may apprehend him—that is, lay hold of his nature, touch the shining hem of his garment blazing with stars, and press the soft hand of his grace; but who shall grasp the fullness or measure the altitude of his being, and comprehend the circumference of his truth? An easy Bible, one having no mystery and no difficulty, might please for a time, but it would soon be exhausted, and would fail to lure and lift the soul toward the heavenly heights. It would not be like God. It has become an accepted principle in the best modern art, largely through the teaching of Ruskin, that in order to attain to sublimity of style in representation of natural scenery, there must always be an element of mystery; a sense that all has not been said and cannot be said; an entrancing suggestion of greater things, beyond the magic of the painter's pencil to express. Nature is not a great crystal, with light dancing in every sparkling atom. She is a boundless sea, over which the sunbeams and the shadows tremble with alternating pulse, while vague horizons allure the imagination into dreams of eternity. And our precious Word has on it the same stamp of divinity. It is open and full of light. It is also vast and full of mystery. Those who study it longest are like the naturalists, who, as they sharpen their vision, and look with microscopic insight into the simplest objects of the material world, discover new realms ever revealing themselves in that which seemed so familiar as to be common.

An old saint, once the pastor of Abraham Lincoln, said to me: "I have been studying the Gospel of John fifty years, but it keeps ahead of me all the time." When unbelief assaults this book with the spear called difficulty, faith wrests the spear from the enemy's hand, and turns it into a weapon of defense. A Bible without that which is hard to understand might be the production of man alone. But again—and I speak from painful experience as a believer—how many of our troubles about God's word are the revelations of our own conceit and moral crudeness? We approached the Scriptures with theories and fancies furnished by our reading and speculation, and, comparing these with God's word, they did not fully agree. We are distressed, and could not read some parts of the divine revelation with any comfort and satisfaction. It seems to us that we include the Bible, and more too; but later in our lives we discover that the Bible included us as much besides. It recognized our truth and other truths equally important which our one-sidedness did not grasp. Many a child has the same experience with its mother. It sees one thing and craves that, and thinks it the only thing needful, and is angry that the mother does not sympathize with this state of mind. But years later the child, grown to manhood, realizes how much broader was the maternal wisdom than his own, and thus we come to reverence that once only fretted us.

Said the noble English Churchman, Fredrick D. Maurice, "I cannot understand the difficulties of the Bible, but they help me to understand myself." So many of us have gained the preciousness of self-knowledge in the twilight of things hard to be understood. We have been confounded by the sublime mysteries of creation. We have learned self-distrust as Peter did after he had doubted the word which his own sin verified. We have learned to seek for divine illumination through prayer as multitudes in every Christian generation have done, who, studying God's word as the blessed Fra Angelico painted his pictures—on bended knees—have seen the mists removed, or, rather glorified, even as the telescope of the astronomer resolves the hazy nebulae of the Milky Way into shining stars, eternal and supreme.—Rev. J. H. Burrow.

Hearsay, or Partial Evidence.

There is no relation, and can be no sphere in life, where it is permitted any one who would reach just conclusions to assume a one-sided attitude. One-sidedness is never hospitable to the truth. On the contrary, it is the enemy of Truth. It is said of the late "learned and upright Judge D— that he never gave judgments in any case when there was a failure to sift as thoroughly as should have been done, the facts on both sides, without afterwards seeing that he had made a blunder, or, as he phrased it, 'without making an ass of himself.'" The matter, as the judge thus puts it, is quite suggestive.

We are continually hearing, in all the spheres and walks of life, both men and women referring to matters personal and not personal, of which their information, commonly hearsay, is of the slightest. So much of knowledge as they may have is gotten at second or third hand, it may be. Then so far as such knowledge can help in any given case, toward reaching conclusions that can be rested in, it is likely to be knowledge of one side, and quite probably partial knowledge at that. It is too plain to admit of argument that knowledge of such sort is valueless, or worse than valueless. It often misleads rather than illuminates. Any one within his own particular sphere in life is continually reminded in all his observations of the truth of this general statement of the case.

But there is this that all can do—act under that Pauline challenge which says, "Prove all things," and this too, to the end of holding fast "that which is good." Plainly the pursuit of the "good" in Paul's day was confused by conflicting statements, varying glosses and comments on men and on things generally. Hence the primitive Christian had need, quite as much, perhaps, as may be seen now-a-days, of heeding this expressive caution of the apostle. It is a need which our lapsed human nature ever demands.

NEVER YET QUESTIONED:

The Absolute Purity and Wholesomeness of Royal Baking Powder.

It is a noticeable fact that in the numerous battles between the rival baking powder makers the absolute purity and wholesomeness of the Royal Baking Powder has never yet been questioned.

Hundreds of baking powders have been placed upon the market with great flourish of trumpets, and have strutted their brief hour in imaginary contention with Royal for the patronage of the public, but their impurities and imperfections were soon exposed by the chemist's skill and they speedily passed away, the victims of their own mephitic gases, or are awaiting the fate that sooner or later overtakes the fraud and the charlatan.

But the thousands of analyses, many of them by the most celebrated chemists of the world, the most searching scrutiny by scientific bodies in this country and Europe, the exhaustive tests before the juries of competitive and industrial exhibitions, and all the minute and prejudiced investigations by rivals and their chemists in the endeavor to find something upon which to base the shadow of a fault, have had but one result, to more fully determine and establish the fact that the Royal Baking Powder and all its ingredients are absolutely pure and wholesome. All reputable chemists, and all but the most ignorant makers of the low test, short weight, lime, alum, and other impure powders, long since ceased to examine the Royal Baking Powder to find anything impure or unwholesome in it.

While the Royal is proud of these unimpeachable indorsements, and highly gratified at the perfect result which it has, by the aid of the most competent chemists, the adoption of every available invention, and the expenditure of great sums of money, been able to accomplish, its greatest pleasure arises from the fact that its labors have been parallel with those great interests of the public sought in the protection of the lives and health of the people.

The gravity of the danger to the consumer from the many impure and unwholesome baking powders of the market is but faintly appreciated. The small amount of injurious substance imparted to the system at one time in the use of such powders is unnoticeable. They are therefore continued by the consumer in ignorance of the serious results sure to follow from the accumulated effects. This slow, insidious poisoning, because unapparent, is more dangerous than a larger dose at once. All the baking powders upon the market, except Royal, have been found to contain lime, alum, terra alba, or other ingredients that injuriously affect the health of the consumer.

The great advantage to the public of a baking powder like the Royal, whose purity and wholesomeness have never been questioned, and whose practical worth has stood the test of cooking for so many years, will be apparent to every consumer.

ACTS 2: 38.

Please explain Acts 2: 38, and answer the following objections to the idea that baptism is in order to the remission of past sins, and also against joining "repent and be baptized," in verse 38, and make them in order to the same thing. 1. Repentance is a command of God, and baptism is into the name of the Father, Son and Holy Spirit. 2. One seems a change of relation, the other a change of State. 3. If repentance and baptism are for the same purpose, then we need not repent but once, or we must be baptized every time we repent. 4. Verse 44 says, "They that believed." 5. Repent is not modified, be baptized is modified. 6. One is active, the other is passive; and action and inaction cannot be joined. 7. Baptism being passive, if it be for remission of past sins, man's salvation is put into the hands of a third party. 8. If joined together the preposition eis is in connection with both; then we repent into. These objections we meet with continually. Of course we have our way of answering them; but would be pleased to have you explain them.—["E. L. L.," Lynnville, Kentucky, September 27, 1884.

It is difficult to answer objections when you fail to see the point in them.

1. Baptism is just as much a command of God, as is repentance. We are commanded to be baptized into the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. But it is impossible to do this without the preparatory steps of belief and repentance. Hence the command first was, "Know assuredly that Jesus is both Lord and Christ," that is, believe with the whole heart that Jesus is both Lord and Christ, or the Son of God. When they believe this, they ask, what more shall we do? The response was, "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins." The command "repent" was the further qualifying step needed to fit them for baptism into the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit. We frequently use language similarly. The teacher says to the begrimed urchin that applies for entrance into his school, "Wash yourself, and be enrolled for instruction." Here the washing is a command of the teacher, as a preparatory qualification for enrollment. The enrollment brings into the school, but is as much a command as washing. Two commands joined together by a copulative conjunction, both for the accomplishment of the same end, yet the former is preparatory for the latter.

2. Relation is a very indefinite word. It may refer to state, or to mere quality. Webster defines relation, as used here, "The state of being related; relative quality or condition." Now, in the former definition, a change of state and a change of relation, would be precisely the same. In the second sense, it would mean one is a command to change the quality or condition, so as to be qualified to change the state. Certainly this style of speech is used thousands of times every day, in every relationship of life. The teacher tells the child to wash, change his condition or quality, and be enrolled in school for instruction. Here washing changes the quality or condition, it prepares for enrollment. Enrollment changes the state, and the end for which all is done, is, that the child may be instructed. This is a sentence exactly in structure like "Repent and be baptized, every one of you, in the name of Jesus Christ, for the remission of sins." Repent is a command to change the quality or condition of the man's life; it prepares for entrance into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; then, when thus qualified by obeying the first command, they are commanded to be baptized for the remission of sins. The end of all is, to gain entrance into Christ, and so the remission of sins. It seems nothing could be plainer.

3. It is true that man needs to repent of his past sins but once, that repentance works a reformation of life that continues until death. Man needs to be forgiven but once for past sins. If that reformation wrought by repentance is imperfect, as it is in all human beings, men will frequently sin after they have been baptized into Christ, just as the child, washed in order to enrollment in the school, will frequently get dirty after his enrollment, and need to wash again and again; but certainly no teacher would require the child to be enrolled anew every time its face or hands became dirty, and it was required to wash. Just so. A man's life must be clean in the sight of God, in order to be a member of the family of God. By repentance, the quality of his life is changed from hatred and sin against God, to love and obedience to him. When this quality is changed, he is fitted for membership in the family. By baptism he is enrolled into the family of God. With human imperfection, he will frequently sin, he will need to repent of these frequent sins; but as he is already enrolled, no repetition of the enrollment will be required.

4. They were spoken of as "they who believed." How this is an objection, we fail to see. This is simply to avoid the endless repetition of descriptive epithets. The one leading quality is used to describe or designate a new state. That leading quality, first requirement, was "know assuredly." It is properly used to designate them, because every honest-hearted man who that day believed, repented, and was baptized for the remission of his sins.

5. "Repent is not modified, baptize is." This means repent was commanded to all, because repent was to qualify for baptism, and all ought to be qualified for baptism. Baptize was restricted to the number who repented, because none ought to be baptized save those who were qualified for it by repentance. Hence the command was, "Be baptized, every one of you, (who have repented,) for the remission of sins." This modification of baptize, as it is called, is only a restricting of the command, "be baptized," to those qualified by repentance. Without this restriction, this distributing and so confining the command, "be baptized," to those who had repented, it might have been a question whether all who heard were not commanded to be baptized, regardless of their being qualified by repentance. But by thus distributing the command to those who repented, it is confined to that number, and we do not see how it could have been done otherwise, without great circumlocution, than by using a singular number with the distributive pronoun "every one." This command to all is yet distributed to each one that repents, so he is to judge whether or not he is qualified to receive the command.

6. One is active, the other passive, "action and inaction cannot be joined together." The reason one is active is, the one commands to do something. The reason the other is passive is, they are commanded to submit to something done upon or to them. The command "repent" requires those addressed to do something. The command "Be baptized," requires them to have something done to them. The individual is active in repentance, an active verb is necessary to describe the action. The individual is passive in baptism, merely submits, like a dead body, to have something done to it—be buried. A passive verb alone can describe this. Hence the Holy Spirit used the kind of verb in giving the command, that described the thing to be done or to submit to being done. This, too, is a sad commentary upon the foolish abuse of language, when people say salvation by faith or salvation by repentance, is of grace; but salvation through baptism is a salvation by works—of the individual baptized. The Spirit when commanding faith and repentance used active verbs, because it required them to do something. When commanding baptism it used a passive verb, because baptism is not something which the individual does, but something that he permits or suffers done to him. Baptism has fewer of the characteristics of a work of the individual than either faith or repentance. God recognized this in commanding man. Believe, repent, active; but be baptized, passive. But action and inaction cannot be joined. This is not action and inaction, it is action performed and action received. But it means active and inactive verbs cannot be connected in the same sentence by a copulative conjunction indicating that they bear the same relation to the other parts of the sentence, it is too ridiculously absurd to deceive any one that does not wish to be deceived. Copulative conjunctions connect nouns of like cases, verbs of like moods and tenses. But no one ever heard of a rule declaring they must be of the same voice. Active, passive, and neuter verbs are continually connected in the same sentence with one subject, and one object, and one purpose or end. Our illustrative sentence is correct, and illustrates this as other things, "Wash and be enrolled for instruction." Wash is active, be enrolled is passive; they are connected by one word and bear the same relation to the subject and the object. "Look unto me and be saved, all ye ends of the earth," is an example in which an active and passive are connected together, having the same subject and the same object. "Come unto me, all ye that labor and are heavy laden." Labor is active, are laden is passive. "Repent and be converted, that your sins may be blotted out." Acts 3: 19. "Wash and be clean." The mother says to her little child, come into the house and be washed for bed, or if able to wash, go wash and be dressed for a visit; go to town and be enrolled for voting, is a common and correct style of expression, and is one that is necessary when the person addressed is required both to do something himself and to have something done for him to secure the end. The objection is a ridiculously foolish one, originating in gross ignorance of the commonest use of language.

7. "Baptism involves a dependence upon a third person." This has force as an objection only on the ground that God cannot always have a third person where he needs him, which assumption involves a charge that God is not able to carry out his own provisions and perfect his own work according to his own purposes. This assumption involves the charge that God is not omnipotent. To use this as an objection, is to charge that God is not omnipotent. If he is omnipotent and has made man's salvation dependent upon the presence or help of a third person, he will always have the third person present when and where there is a subject prepared for salvation. Hence to make it an objection, is to defame the Almighty. But we recognize it requires the presence of a third person, but not more so than does faith. Faith comes by hearing. Not more so than does repentance. Without the preaching of the gospel, without the carrying the gospel to sinners, none will believe, none can repent. On the other hand, it is in perfect accordance with all of God's dealings with men to use third persons in inducing men to come to God, to hear with the ear, to understand with the heart and be converted, that Christ might heal them. We recall no single case of a person being saved from sin, without God's using a third person to effect that deliverance. So far from its being an objection, it is in perfect accord and harmony with all God's dealings with man. Being in harmony with God's usual mode of operations creates the presumption that God so works in this case.

8. So far as repentance can move man it carries him into Christ. But the rule is, with a verb of motion, "as indicates into the inside, or interior of an object, up to, into the immediate presence of; in general to denote the reaching of a definite hint." Kuhner's Greek Grammar, page 438. But with a verb expressing emotions or purposes, it points to the end, object or person of the emotion or purpose. When eis stands alone with an affection or emotion of the mind or a purpose of the soul, it indicates only the object or end to which affection, emotion or purpose looks. But when connected with both emotions, or purposes and actions of the body, it indicates clearly the successive steps by which the faith looks to remission, repentance, purposes, the ceasing to sin, the attainment of remission, and the verb of action, "be baptized," passes the person thus qualified into Christ where remission of sins is found. Hence into or for the remission of sins. Thus completed, it recognizes these qualifying steps for baptism into Christ, as successive steps leading into Christ. Eis is sometimes used with faith. If faith when it is so used refers only to the trust or confidence of the heart, eis only directs to the object or end on which that faith rests. If faith when connected with eis refers to faith embodied in the obedience to Christ, then eis indicates that faith by this obedience has led the individual into Christ. The connecting words greatly modify the exact meaning and reach of eis. There is not in the English language a more definite and exact sentence than the one under investigation. "Repent" in the plural, addressed to all, for all should repent and "be baptized, every one of you (who repent, only those who repent should be baptized) in the name of (relying upon) Jesus Christ for the remission of sins," into or in order to the remission of sins. Eis connected with repentance would indicate a turning toward God in purpose, but connected with "be baptized," also it clearly indicates that the turning in purpose was perfected and led to the transfer of the whole man into Christ. In Christ he enjoys remission of sins and all blessings of children of God. And no man can prove a sentence that more exactly and definitely points out these successive steps than does this one.

Dr. McCosh, president of Princeton College, now grown old as a teacher of youth, makes these statements in a farewell address, made on a recent visit to Scotland:

"I have come to this country at this time mainly to see my friends. The meetings I have had with them have, in many instances, been pleasant beyond measure, as recalling the scenes of other days. In other cases I have been able only to visit the graves of those who have gone before. There are events which have raised more painful feelings. I have been obliged to hear of friends whom I loved and of whom I expected better things, that they have fallen before temptations and gone down to hopeless and dishonored graves. I have observed of these last cases that they have commonly occurred in two sets of circumstances. My experience on this point has run over a lengthened life, and in three different countries, in each of which I have been in intimate relations with hundreds and thousands of young men whose after lives I have followed.

One is when no earnest endeavor has been made by parents to have their children become true Christians. I know that there is a common impression that the children of ministers and pious people are apt to go astray. Upon this I have to remark that I have not found all ministers pious, nor all professing Christians to be consistent Christians, and the children of inconsistent professors are most apt to go wrong, and when such cases occur the public are sure to notice them. I am able to testify that when both parents have been truly pious, and labored in faith and prayer for the conversion of their children, there have been few cases in which the children have turned aside, and of these few most of them have been brought to Christ before they died. I have found God faithful to his promise, "Train up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it." In many instances in which the children have done wrong, the parents themselves have been sober and moral, and set a good example; but they have not travailed in birth for them till they were born again, being content simply with sending them to a Sabbath-school or taking them with them to the house of God. Parents should know and realize that they have no security for themselves or their children that they will be able to resist temptation till they have the grace of God in their hearts.

The other set of circumstances in which there have been frequent falls are those in which there has been the habitual use of ardent spirits in the family and in the social circle—it may be moderation but still habitually. The parents could stand the temptation, being trained under a better system, but their children, or some of them have fallen the victims to intemperance. Few of those now present but must have had some relative over whom they had to grieve because they had thus been overcome. It often happens that one knows our failings better than we do ourselves. We must all be aware of the sin with which Scotchmen are reproached. Often am I obliged to listen to the accusation, without knowing how to meet it. Scotchmen do not need to learn the lesson that they can be happy, that they can be kind, that they can meet in pleasant and social intercourse, without the use of boldly stimulants. But I am speaking to parents and their children. You know what is the bitterest trial of fathers and mothers, and I beseech you to pray and act upon the prayer, "Lead us not into temptation."

Very frequently parents are moral, correct people, are passable members of the church, but they lack earnestness and heart in their religious services. Religious duties with them are performed in a way that indicates a lack of earnest faith and true devotion in the cause. Their children are impressed with the idea that it is a matter of form, and never take the matter to heart themselves, never become religious. These parents frequently think strange of this. But religion is of that nature that unless we make it first and highest in our esteem, in our service, unless we show in private, in our families, and in our whole bearing, that we esteem it above all else, our example is against instead of in favor of that religion. When a parent, by his example, says to a child, I regard the attainment of earthly good, pleasure, or honor, of more importance than I do the service of God, the performance of my religious duties, I say to them, religion is of no real value, it is not worth the service it demands, and the influence is against religion. Frequently the difference in the destinies of families of children is determined by the presence or the lack of earnest, personal devotion to religion ourselves, and to an earnest desire to see our families and others true, devoted Christians, as the highest and truest good to them.

We commend the admonition of Dr. McCosh, and heartily believe the Scripture that says, "Bring up a child in the way he should go, and when he is old he will not depart from it."

SALEM CHURCH, WARREN COUNTY, TENN.

We began the meeting at the above named place, Lord's day morning, September 21. The audience was very large on Lord's day, and they had provisions on the ground, and two sermons before leaving. This meeting house is in the edge of an old Baptist community, of the regular old two seed school. On Lord's day they turned out liberally. But when Monday morning came most of them went to pulling fodder and such like employments, and put in appearance no more. Some few that were in that opinion would come occasionally, and spout around a little on the outskirts, but did not care to come into close quarters. But the brethren of the community turned out well, and such of the people as were not tied down by prejudice attended and listened well. The meeting continued for six days, two sermons a day. Six persons were baptized, besides one that had previously made confession. One united with us from the Baptists, and two were reclaimed. The brethren seemed greatly encouraged, and made arrangement to meet every Lord's day to worship, and will have preaching once a month, as a general rule, and if they will persevere in this good work, they themselves will grow strong in the Lord, and will exert a mighty influence for good in that community. We hope they will do this, and thus save themselves and others. This meeting was the missionary work of the church in McMinnville, from which place Salem is about six miles. The house, Salem, belongs to our brethren, and there was once a regular congregation here. And we trust the present effort will grow, until they will shed the light of heaven's truth upon the whole community. Bro. H. L. Walling, of McMinnville, and Bro. P. G. Potter, of this county, have been preaching in this community, and working up an interest during this summer, and have doubtless done much good, and have thus opened the way for the good done in this meeting. Bro. Potter came from the Baptists a year or two ago, and is a zealous, noble souled man, and is doing great good in the cause of truth, and we hope he will abound more and more in the good work of the Lord. He and his wife, though living seven miles away, were present every day during the meeting with their provisions, and he gave us much aid in reading, prayer, singing, and talking among the people during recess. The meeting upon the whole was an interesting one, and one long to be remembered for the good accomplished by the truth during its continuance.

E. G. S.

Bishop Pierce used to say of the small amounts raised for the support of the ministry: "You don't let your left hand know what your right hand doeth; no wonder, it would blush to the elbow if it did. You don't sound a trumpet before you, and the hypocrites would have kept the trumpet hid, if they had done as little as you do." To quote these or other Scriptures, hide, or to use them ourselves as an excuse for a failure to do our duty, is to make hypocrites of ourselves.

A SERMON ON ACTS THE SECOND CHAPTER.

BY ADAM CLARKE.

EDITORS OF THE ADVOCATE: I send you a sermon on the second chapter of Acts, that your readers may see how Adam Clarke, the Methodist commentator, taught the second chapter of Acts fifty-three years ago, ten years after the Christian Baptist began to be published. Whether he had seen the Christian Baptist, when he preached this sermon, I am not able to say; but whether he had seen it or not, it is certain that he understood it as did the three thousand men, women, boys and girls understand it when the Holy Spirit spoke it in the year 33 in the city of Jerusalem, the capitol of Judea, and not Rome, the seat and throne of the heathen's deities. On page 157, he thus speaks:

1. The apostle doctrine: this is to be sought for not in our creeds or confessions of faith, nor indiscriminately in the New Testament, but in the chapter out of which the text is taken. Peter is the apostle who teaches the multitudes in this place; and it is in the doctrine which he taught on this occasion, by which the three thousand were converted, that these three thousand converts were said to have continued steadfast. Now the doctrines taught here are the following: (1.) The influence of the Holy Spirit on the souls of men to bring about the spiritual kingdom of Christ on the earth; this God had intended from the beginning, and had declared it by his prophets (by Joel 2: 28-29) eight hundred years before, which the apostle here quotes; also by Isaiah 44: 3, and by Ezekiel 36: 25-27, six hundred years before. This is the first point of the apostle doctrine. See verses 16, 17, 18. (2.) The doctrine of general redemption, verse 21, which should be the consequence of this outpouring of the Divine Spirit, Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. (3.) The notorious death of Christ, verse 23, who was delivered to death for the sins of men. (4.) His resurrection; verse 24-28; that being the proof that he had not died as a malefactor, but as a sacrifice; and that the end for which he died was accomplished. (5.) Christ's intercession; verse 33. For the apostle states him as being raised to the right hand of God, and as having, by his intercession, received of the Father the promise of the Holy Ghost, (the Holy Spirit,—J. Creath), that which has just now been poured out upon them all, and by which the three thousand were now on the eve of being converted. See verse 41. (6.) Repentance: Repent every one of you; verse 38. (7.) Baptism: i. e. without which they could not be saved. (8.) The remission of sins. It was in reference, eis aphesin harmersian in order to remission or removal of sins, that they were to repent and be baptized; verse 38. (9.) A ninth doctrine which he preached on this occasion, was that those who repented, etc., should receive the Holy Ghost, (the Holy Spirit) verses 38-39, to purify their hearts and make them fit habitation for God; and thus the spiritual kingdom would be completely restored. (10.) Jesus proclaimed in his threefold offices,—prophet, priest and king, or Jesus, Lord and Christ. These were the doctrines preached by the apostles and received by the people, and by which they were saved, and in which they were to remain steadfast.

The remainder of this sermon, I will leave to another time. When our religious friends have eaten what I have given them in this dish, I will give them another meal. I shall make some remarks on this sermon, and then leave Bro. Lipscomb and his readers to "fight it out on this line," as he and they are nearer together than I and they are, and he is a much younger man than I am, and is fully competent to meet and measure swords with any man who encounter him. If any person has anything to say against this sermon, I wish them to say it to Bro. Lipscomb. In December, 1829, or January, 1830, I brought on an engagement between Bro. A. Campbell and Dr. Jennings, in Nashville, and then I slipped out on one side and saw David and Goliath fight it out one night till eleven or twelve o'clock in the night. The result is published in the Millennial Harbinger of that date.

My first remark on the sermon of the second of Acts is, that such another sermon never occurred before nor since, and probably never will occur again. The events preceding that wonderful occurrence, the death, burial and resurrection of the Son of God, and his exaltation at the right of God, and his coronation as king, his being endowed or vested with all authority on earth, his reception of the Holy Spirit, his pouring out of the Holy Spirit on this occasion on the one hundred and twenty disciples—they speaking in seventeen different tongues—and the preaching of the first gospel sermon ever preached on earth, the creation of the first model, mother, Christian congregation in the ancient city of Jerusalem where Abraham, Melchisedeck, the prophets taught, and where the Son of God wrought his stupendous miracles, and preached his wonderful sermons, were all events of the most stupendous character. They were the fulfillment of prophecies. The Spirit of God is named some three hundred times in both Testaments; in the Old Testament he is uniformly called the Holy Spirit, never once called a Ghost. It is in the New Testament that this phrase occurs, and why the revisers of the common version should call him a Spirit in the Old Testament, and a Ghost in the New Testament, I am not able to say. Why then is this event of uniformity? What God does by his Spirit, he does by his word, and what he does by his word, he does by his Spirit; they are inseparable; and what God has joined together, let not men separate. All the miraculous gifts are ascribed to the Holy Spirit. He bore witness to the immersion of our Savior, Matt. 3. He produced the humanity of our Lord. The power of the Highest shall overshadow thee, and that which shall be born of thee, shall be called Son of God. Luke 1: 35. The phrases, the influence of the Spirit and the operation of the Spirit does not occur in my Bible as far as my memory serves me. When God says a thing, he is worthy to be believed, and when he swears to it, it is impossible for him to sin. Hebrews 6. He struck Zachariah dumb for refusing to obey him. God gives his Spirit to those who obey him, Acts 5: 29. If there is an instance in the Bible where God gave his Spirit to an unbeliever, let us have it. If we have a water baptism and a baptism of the Holy Ghost—two baptisms—what becomes of the word of God, which says there is one immersion. Ephesians 4: 5. The sixth chapter of Romans is quoted to prove the spiritual baptism. If this is a spiritual baptism, as nearly all sects teach, then where is the water baptism? And if there is water baptism, does one and one make one according to sects? Did any man ever immerse another man in the Holy Spirit? Was any man ever commanded to do it? Was there ever a greater perversion of a Scripture than the sixth of Romans to a spiritual baptism? Will you and the combatants please wait till I finish what I have to say, before you begin the battle? The issue is between Jesus, the Christ, and the popes, between the second of Acts, and popery, and sectism.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We propose to send it one year to two subscribers, one of which must be a new one, for three dollars. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

If there's a right thing to be done, and we seem to pass through a wrong thing on our way to it, depend upon it there's another way to it, and a better one, and it is our own fault, and not God's, that we do not find it.—Edward Gannett.

Obituaries.

With sadness I have to announce the death of Lula Pearl Draper, daughter of brother and sister John S. and Mary J. Draper. She was born December 21, 1881, and departed this life September 20, 1884; at her death she was three years, eight months, and twenty-nine days old. Lula was a beloved and brilliant little girl. She leaves a bereaved and loving father and mother, and many relatives and friends, to mourn her loss; but their loss is her gain. May her father and mother bear their bereavement with Christian fortitude. Brother and Sister Draper, continue faithful in the Christian race, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, and you will meet dear little Lula in the "sweet by-and-by," there to ever enjoy the happy associations of each other through eternity.

Whitleyville, Tennessee.

After several days of intense suffering, at five o'clock, A. M., on September 15, Jimmie Scott, son of J. D. and P. A. Mitchell, was wafted on angels' wings, from his home near Hansford, Lauderdale county, Tenn., to his home in heaven. He was born February 18, 1882; age, two years and seven months, lacking three days. His stay was brief. The bud had scarcely opened, when the destroyer came and plucked it in its purity, and transplanted to a more genial clime. Although so hard to give him up, it brings us nearer the foot of the cross, where we shall bow submissively to him that chasteneth. It is nature to grieve; but when we know he is safely housed from the storms and ills of this unfriendly world, and think of the precious promises of a happy reunion "in the sweet bye-and-bye," if we hold out faithful, we ought to be consoled. May the Father of mercies give us strength to bear this sad bereavement, is my prayer.

HIS MAMMA.

It is very sad, indeed, to chronicle the death of our dear sister, Permelia R. Kennedy, the daughter of John H. and Josie B. Kennedy, who was born November 4, 1868, and died September 24, 1884. Just two weeks before her body was consigned to the dark cold grave, she, with eyes closed, and hands folded and gently placed upon her breast, was baptized into Christ, during our good meeting at Oathey's Creek. Sister Permelia was sick before the meeting, but, through the goodness of God, she was spared long enough to obey the form of doctrine which was delivered unto her. Death may be far, and it may be near, but we are not able to tell; and for this reason we should always have the anchor-hope thrown out that our souls may ever be fastened to that sweet home of eternal rest. If we are invited to enter into the kingdom of Jesus at the eleventh hour, we should willingly accept the invitation and go. We trust that brother and sister Kennedy will continue to live holy and godly lives, and teach their children to so live that they may be able to meet dear sister Permelia in that land that is so fair and bright. We would say to the dear father, mother, and sisters, read the blessed book, and then your troubled souls will be comforted.

F. C. SOWELL.

On Saturday, September 20, 1884, death visited our Coon Creek congregation, and without even a moment's warning, snatched from our midst our much beloved sister, Margaret Craig, wife of Bro. E. H. Craig. Sister Craig had been in bad health for many years, but was able to be up the most of the time. Of late she seemed to be better than usual, having visited a sick sister the day before she died. On the morning of her death, the family, all except her and three little children, were scattered off, and she was preparing to get dinner when she fell dead, the bread-trough, dough, and dipper falling beside her. Little Bennie, the oldest of the children at home, had mind enough, small as he was, to know she was dead, and went after his papa a mile and a half, and also aroused some of the neighbors. When her husband came home he found her as above described. Oh! what a heart-rending scene to find the companion of his life prostrated and cold in death, when he had left her but an hour before seemingly as well as usual. Sister Craig was a daughter of Henry and Harriet Greer, who moved from Davidson to this (Perry) county, not far from the time of her birth. She was born November 3, 1838, making her forty-five years, ten months, and seventeen days old when she died. She and Bro. Craig were married January 29, 1857. She was the mother of twelve children, living, all of whom were with her or near her, except one, when she died. But thanks be to God (for the plan of salvation he has offered) her life had been such that when they were standing around her the last time here on earth, they could speak to each other of the "blessed hope" in a way that it was comforting to hear. Her brethren and sisters, friends and relatives, are all fully satisfied that if they do not meet her in heaven it will be their own fault. "Blessed are they who die in the Lord."

Farewell, husband, children, all,
From you a mother Christ doth call;
Mourn not for me—only prepare
To meet me, and be happy "over there."

WORTHY Of Confidence.

AYER'S Sarsaparilla is a medicine that, during nearly 40 years, in all parts of the world, has proved its efficacy as the best blood alterative known to medical science.

SARSAPARILLA (extracted from the genuine Honduras Sarsaparilla) is its base, and its powers are enhanced by the extracts of Yellow Dock and Sillaria, the Iodides of Potassium and Iron, and other potent ingredients.

IS your blood vitiated by derangements of the digestive and assimilatory functions? Is it tainted by Scrofula? or does it contain the poison of Mercury or Contagious Disease?

THE leading physicians of the United States, who know the composition of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, say that nothing else so good for the purification of the blood is within the range of pharmacy.

ONLY by the use of this remedy is it possible for a person who has corrupted blood to attain sound health and prevent transmission of the destructive taint to posterity.

THOROUGHLY effective renovation of the system must include not only the removal of corruption from the blood, but its enrichment and the strengthening of the vital organs.

RELIABLE witnesses, all over the world, testify that this work is better accomplished by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA than by any other remedy.

BLOOD that is corrupted through disease is made pure, and blood weakened through diminution of the red corpuscles is made strong, by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

PURIFYING the blood and building up the system require time in serious cases, but benefit will be derived from the use of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA more speedily than from anything else.

MEDICINE for which like effects are falsely claimed, is abundant in the market, under many names, but the only preparation that has stood the test of time, and proved worthy of the world's confidence, is

R. W. STANCILL AND ANTIOCH CHURCH.

In the Times of September 24th, Bro. R. W. Stancill writes again with the view of correcting some errors made in his former report of his meeting at Antioch, Estill County, Ky. His second article is fully as inaccurate as his first. It is due to the congregation and to the truth that I should state a few facts concerning it to the readers of the Times.

Bro. Stancill describes the church as being in a wretched condition, and attributes the disorder to the fact that it has been doing without a hired preacher. He says:

"If Bro. James A. or Bro. Joe Harding will visit Antioch now, either one of them will see the effects of the no-preacher doctrine with a church of incompetent elders."

There are troubles in the church at Antioch, as there are in most of the churches of the State, but that these troubles arise out of the "no-preacher doctrine" is not true, as is evident from the following facts. Antioch had for many years regular preaching; it secured at that time the most available talent. Among others the veterans James Azbill and Wilson Stivers labored here for years. But the congregation was small and poor, and owned only half interest in their meeting-house—a miserably wretched old log structure. In addition to its weakness and poverty it was troubled with some of the most turbulent and unruly members that it has ever been my fortune to meet.

One year the church failed to make arrangements with a preacher for the next year; the dissensions among them were so great, and they were so poor, they could not well do it. With the end of the year the preacher stopped coming and the congregation ceased to meet. It died under "pastoral care." Some months afterwards, learning that the church was in a disorganized state, and that it had ceased to meet, at the invitation of one of the members I went into the neighborhood with the view of preaching a few discourses. The interest increased steadily and the meetings were continued for seven weeks, and resulted in the addition of one hundred and ten to the congregation.

The church then bought the share of the Baptists in the meeting-house and so improved it as to make it the best church-house in the country—a pleasant and comfortable place for meetings. They determined to meet upon each first day of the week to break the loaf, and have done so to this day. This was never done by any church in the county, or in all that region of country, before This church died under "regular preaching," without it, under evangelistic labor, it came to life, and began to meet each Lord's day, started a Sunday-school, and to-day has in it more men who are able and willing to lead the public worship than any other church in all that region. If any man wants to be convinced of the wisdom and practicability of the Scriptural way, let him acquaint himself thoroughly with the history of the Antioch church. He will see God's wisdom in decreeing that the churches shall be taught and guided and cared for by a plurality of overseers in each congregation most forcibly illustrated.

But one other church in the county now meets every Lord's day. Its history is exactly similar to that of Antioch. It did not begin the weekly meetings until it had given up the monthly preachings. Estill, the county in which Antioch is located, is one of the mountain counties of Kentucky. It was much demoralized by the war, nor has it entirely recovered from the drinking, fighting, bushwhacking, kukluxing spirit to this day. Distilleries are common in many localities, and by some churches it is not considered a bar to church fellowship for a man to devote his time to making whisky. Pistol-carrying is common, and shootings and murders are not unusual. The elders and deacons in the churches are for the most part only nominal leaders. Many of them never read a chapter at the meetings, nor lead in prayer, nor conduct the services at the breaking of the loaf, nor take any part in the public worship, whatever. Except when they have a preacher to visit them they have no meetings. Except when they have a preacher to lead them they do nothing in the way of discipline.

Antioch is the first church in the county that ever tried to break away from the old customs and to walk in the light of the New Testament teaching. It is not strange that it has staggered along in much weakness, and that it has met with many difficulties. It is only remarkable that it has kept up the effort and succeeded so well under such heavy burdens. It has many troubles—so has every other church in the county—it has virtues that none of the others have. Bro. Stancill visited and held meetings for other churches that are in a far worse condition, churches that never meet except when they have a preacher (one Sunday per month;) in them can be found murderers, whisky-makers, whisky-sellers, whisky-drinkers and profane swearers. In one place one of the leaders of the singing is a distiller. Prominent men in the church take their apples and corn to the distilleries. Bro. Stancill says nothing about all these troubles. They have preachers.

In the same issue of the Times in which he reflects so severely upon Antioch, he reports in the most favorable terms a meeting with a church afflicted with all the above named troubles. He mentions not one of them. No, no! It has a preacher; it is in a much richer community. How would it do to take such a church as an illustration of the effects of regular preaching? That is, a church that meets once per month, when the preacher comes; that has no Bible class, nor Sunday School; whose singing is led by a distiller; one that is troubled with all the sins mentioned above. (At this point a brother informs me that Bro. Stancill approves of taking apples to the distillers and that he labored to remove the doubts of some who had scruples about it.) After Bro. Stancill left Antioch, he was heard to speak most indignantly about the small sum which the church paid him for his meeting. This, in connection with the fact that it has been doing without a preacher, accounts for his publishing the church to the world, from the pulpit and the press, as being so miserably bad. The church was under no obligation to pay him anything. It did not invite him to hold the meeting. A friend of his came into the neighborhood before him and explained that he was a young man, that he had been striving to educate himself to preach, that he had gotten through the Bible College, that he was in debt, and was anxious to make some money by preaching that he might pay up. The church took no action in the matter; the members generally were not favorable to his coming; but he came and was indignant at the smallness of the pay.

But to return to Antioch. The church at this time has on its hands a serious trouble—one somewhat similar to that which marred the peace and prosperity of Corinth in the days of Paul. This interferes with the attendance of the meetings, and presents a large list of disorderly members.

The trouble is not more serious, however, than the Reid affair at Mt. Sterling, or the Bowman difficulty at Lexington, or than hundreds of others of the church troubles that are so constantly arising. The fact that the congregation is led in its worship by its elders, as the Scriptures direct, had no more to do with the origination of the trouble than the "Pastor system" had to do with the death of Judge Reid.

Concerning the attendance at the Lord's day meetings, it is proper to add that the church has had, as a rule, larger meetings upon the Lord's days than it formerly had in the once per month preachings.

Bro. Stancill has given this church a pretty severe drubbing, and a very undeserved one. I have been evangelizing for ten years, have traveled several times from the Gulf region to the Great lakes, have preached in cities, towns and country places, in the States and in Canada, but have not in these journeyings met with a single congregation that seems to me to have done more for its community under such adverse circumstances.

Bro. Stancill winds up with a gentle and fatherly rebuke to Bro. Joe Harding and myself. He says:

"When they visit new fields and sow the seed, they ought to stay until the congregation can sit alone, or else visit them afterwards, confirming and setting them in order, or advise them get a Timothy or a Titus to visit them to see how they are doing."

Let me humbly reply to my gentle chastiser that I have only held ten protracted meetings, of about a month each, for this church within eight years. My apology for not doing more is that I have not had the time. My reason for not having a number of Timothys and Tituses to visit them is this: the young men of to-day who esteem themselves the successors of these ancient worthies, as a rule, wont go to such places unless they have nowhere else to go, or unless some one will promise before had a goodly sum of cash. It is exceedingly difficult to get men to go into poor and destitute regions unless you have money to give them. So our State evangelists have been testifying all through these years. I have written this article for the sake of Antioch, and for the sake of the truth.

In conclusion, I desire to sum up in the following statements. I have a pretty thorough acquaintance with the disciples of the county and can speak positively.

1. Antioch meets every Lord's day. As I have said, no church in the county that has a regular preacher does.

2. It has more regular Bible readers than any other church in the county. A number of its members have read the Bible through within the year. Others in that period have read the New Testament numbers of times. One tells me she has within the year read the entire Bible once and the New Testament six times.

3. It has more members that will lead the public worship, that will pray, read, speak, that will preside at the Lord's table, than any other church in the county.

4. Within the last eight years it has had more additions and has withdrawn from a greater number than any other church in the county.

At first I thought I would send this communication directly to the Times, but upon reflection have determined to publish it in the KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT, and to request the Times to copy it.

END OF KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT.

Censure and criticism never hurt anybody. If false, they cannot harm you, unless you are wanting in character; and if true, they show a man his weak points, and forewarn him against failure and trouble.—Gladstone.

ITEMS, PERSONALS, ETC.

Bro. J. A. Harding's address for the next few weeks will be at Murfreesboro. He is now in a meeting at that place.

E. G. S. has been in Warren County preaching, D. L. has been laid up the past week with a severe attack of flux, so neither of the editors have been in the office during the week. If this number possesses more excellencies than ordinary, the reader will understand the reason.

The reports from the field indicate that our readers are not taking much interest in political affairs. When they are doing this, the cheering reports we are now receiving never are made. We heard of one church in which the leading members had been active in trying to elect a sheriff. A cold church with little success in converting sinners is the report from their protracted meeting.

The labors of the evangelists are crowned with unusual success within the bounds of the circulation of the ADVOCATE. It ought to be the especial care of the teacher to make his work permanent. As a means of this, of securing a continued interest in the affairs of religion; nothing is better than the reading of a good religious paper. It would seem that all evangelists ought to try to place in the hands of the converts a good paper. Yet, how few do this? We read of Methodist and Baptist preachers doing, but never of disciples. Suppose you try. I am certain it would be well for the converts.

The Old Path Guide, with all the publications of the company, including Sunday-school papers and Popular Hymns, was sold in Louisville, September 30th. A note from Louisville says "they have gone into the hands of the Cincinnati monopolists," meaning, we suppose, the Standard Company. It will be run in Louisville, we suppose, till such time as the owners think the subscribers can be safely transferred to the Standard list. This is well, for some time the Guide has pointed toward liberalism instead of toward the Bible. Now all will understand it is only a feeder, a teacher training its readers to take the advanced position that the Standard now occupies.

"What would you think of a mother who had thirty babies, the oldest thirty years old and the youngest at the breast; none of them had grown any since they were born, or, if they had, it was like a wasp, less than when first hatched? Poor woman! ten babies on the bed, ten on a pallet on the floor, five or six in the crib, and four on her lap, and all of them squalling! She is to be pitied! But this is the condition of many preachers in this country; thirty or a hundred members, and all of them babies—not one able to take care of himself."—"Sam" Jones.

Good, only we did not know the preacher was the mother of the members, before. The truth in reference to the members so forcibly presented, atones for the lack of harmony in the figure.

The Fanning Orphan School has a supply of sheets and pillow cases and a fair supply of comforts and quilts, a few pairs of good blankets would be very acceptable. It stands greatly in need of a couple of good gentle milch cows. It will not pay to keep on the place any but good ones, and as the girls will do the milking, they should be gentle. Can not some of its friends furnish these and save the school from paying out money? It needs all it has or is likely to have for other objects. And it would do the givers good to help in these matters. If the sisters at different churches will select four or five destitute orphans, and raise half of the funds needed to sustain them, (twenty dollars per session) the orphan school will furnish the other half. If the school be compelled to furnish the entire support, it can take only half the number. This is a fine field of labor for the sisters. Remember, we wish them healthy, of fair natural sense, and of such raising as not to endanger by association, the other girls in the school. The school is moving off well. Several have been sent whose parents and friends pay their expenses, who would not be able to send to other schools.

J. M. Barnes, Highland Home, Ala., September 23, writes: "I have just reached home. Held a good meeting at Dublin and at Mt. Ethel. Seventeen added at Dublin, and eleven at Mt. Ethel. When I find more leisure, I have many things to write about these meetings. There were many pleasant incidents, the mention of which may be interesting to the readers of the ADVOCATE. A prominent Baptist said the meeting at Mt. Ethel was the best that had been held in that section in many years. The country abounds in sickness. I thank the Lord, I found all well when I reached home."

The Old Path Guide has entered fully the field of politics, placing at its mast-head, as the other political papers call, the name of St. John for President, with a list of Presidential electors. The Christian Evangelist noting the fact, says it is for King Jesus, yet publishes several articles advocating the election of Brooks for Governor of Missouri. The Apostolic Times likewise disavows being a political paper, but suggest St. John as a proper candidate for Christians to support. "We are sorry to see these things, they betoken a departure from the divine appointments for healing from sin and uncleanness, and will result in diverting the minds of many from God and his service, and will direct them to the devices of man. This diversion from God tends to infidelity—weans away from God. Whatever does this, is unmixed evil to humanity."

A CALL FROM A BAPTIST PREACHER.

DEAR BRETHREN: I have been a Baptist minister for nearly thirty years, and have been tantalized as being a Campbellite. Not knowing the ground they occupied, I would deny. But after becoming acquainted with some gospel ministers, I was astonished to learn that a people had been so misrepresented. I have just returned from a three years' tour in the West, and have mingled with many orders, have made many new and happy acquaintances. I find many here inquiring for the old land-marks, and now I ask, through your dearly beloved columns, for ministerial aid to visit those ends of the earth. We want men who can defend the gospel plan of salvation, and I will warn them in time to not come expecting an easy time. Any minister who can come, and will address me at Waterloo, Ala., I will take great pride in publishing the appointment, and will serve him as a pilot, and defend him to the best of my ability. They call me a Campbellite, a turn-coat, and I know not what all. I assure you that I have made no change in gospel sentiments, but feel that I have gained strength, like Apollos, from acquaintance with Aquilla, and I expect to prove my faith by my works.

JOHN R. VANDIVER.

THANKS.

The trustees, teachers and pupils of the Orphan Home, return to the sisters of Franklin and Stewart's Creek, their sincere thanks, for two boxes of comforts, quilts, sheets, pillow cases, towels, and other things most useful. The pupils came from their homes and friends, with sad hearts, at the idea of being separated for months at a time from them; but so much kind feeling, such deep interest has been manifested with regard to their new home and occupants they have wiped away their tears, and are engaging with energy and pleasure in the duties required by the Institution. For their true, sisterly love, we again thank our sisters, and we hope, in future years, the pupils will show their appreciation of it by becoming women useful in society—capable of returning the same favors to other homes needing them.

C. FANNING.

General News.

Two thousand, six hundred and ten feet of long bridge across Lake Ponchartrain, La., were burned last week. It is said the cost of rebuilding will be $75,000.—Mrs. Belva A. Lockwood received a letter last week from Mrs. Marietta L. Stow, of California, announcing herself as the candidate of the Equal Rights Party for the Vice-Presidency. The ticket is now complete.—During the past week more than a dozen fires have occurred in Cleveland, all of which are supposed to be the work of incendiaries. The communistic feeling is raging high, anonymous threats and a general alarm are reported.—While John Robinson's circus was on the way to Norfolk, Va, last week, two black tigers, the only two black ones in the country, escaped from their cages through the ventilating holes, and after killing two performing goats, took to the woods in Norfolk County. Searching parties went out, and great fears were entertained in the neighborhood.—Milwaukee has a "lady" rag picker worth $40,000.—Over sixteen thousand negroes have emigrated from the United States to Liberia, and others are constantly going.—John McCullough the celebrated actor is said to be insane, and his engagements for the coming season have been cancelled.—Some villain fired into the car in which Gov. St. John sat, on his way to Terre Haute, one night last week. The train was just slowing up when the shot was fired. The ball passed through the window on the opposite side making a clear hole and lodged in the side on which St. John sat, and a little in front of him.—A Mississippi man, whose time hung heavy on his hands, counted the number of grains in a bushel. He found 72,130 of corn, 132,00 of wheat, 109,900 of peas, and 164,166 of cotton seed.—The police of this city arrested the Rev. Henry White, alias Washington, a colored Baptist preacher, on a warrant charging him with the murder of a farmer named Howard, at Whippoorwill Ford, Logan County, Ky. The prisoner asserts his innocence, but the evidence against him is said to be strong.

FOREIGN.—The Australian astronomer, Palisa, has discovered another asteroid of the thirteenth magnitude.—Three hundred and nineteen icebergs are reported to be drifting southward between Cape Freels and Cape Race, Newfoundland.—The famine in India is reaching serious proportions. The native authorities claim that the government measures for relief are inadequate.—Germany, Austria, Russia, and France, have sent an identical note to the Khedive, protesting against the subversion of the Sinking Fund, and declaring the notification of it null and void. They warn the Khedive that his throne is in danger if he continues to endorse England's financial acts.—There are eleven thousand saloons in Berlin. The Gazette, of Cologne, says that ten thousand persons die of delirium tremens every year in Germany.—The German attitude in China is disgusting the French Cabinet. The reinstatement of Le Hung Chang, who favors peace, is considered of no significance.—A plot against the Government is reported to have been unearthed at Brussels, and arms and ammunition seized. The Liberal Association repudiates the cry of "Vive la Republique."—One fresh case of cholera was reported in Rome on the 28th. In the kingdom of Italy for the twenty-four hours ending at noon on the 28th, there were reported 308 new cases, and 222 deaths. Since the outbreak of the disease in Italy 13,229 persons have been attacked, and 9,480 have died.

Diligence in learning is all very well; but unless the learner intends to put what he learns to practical use, his learning will not amount to much. The Bible tells of those who are always learning, and yet are never able to come to the knowledge of the truth; and even that knowledge which they reach after, if it were attained, should be counted only a means to an end—the end being a faithful and willing doing of the will of God, as disclosed in, and as stimulated by, that truth. The blessings promised by Christ and his apostles are not for those who know, but for those who do; and right knowledge is of no value, in the moral and spiritual sphere, unless it bears its fruit in right doing.

PATTY'S COMPANY.

Patty Ellerson had very sweet, polite manners; everybody said so.

If there was a guest staying in the house, Patty slipped out before breakfast and cut a rose to lay on her plate; if a gentleman called to see her father on a hot day, Patty went off, without being told, and brought a glass of cool water; when her own little visitors came, she did everything to make them have a good time, without seeming to think about herself at all.

All this was very sweet in Patty, and indeed, she was such an attractive little girl, that I hate to tell you any "drawbacks" about her.

Yet there was a drawback, and as Patty found it out herself, and tried to cure it, maybe she wouldn't mind my telling it.

And it was this: Patty saved her best manners for company! She was not unkind to her little brothers and sisters, but I am obliged to say she did not concern herself much about their comfort and pleasure.

One summer, Mrs. Palmer, with a little daughter near Patty's age, came to board in the village, and Patty and Rose Palmer became great friends.

Mrs. Palmer wasn't very comfortable where she was staying, and one day she walked over to Mrs. Ellerson's, to see if that lady would take her to board. She left Rose in the yard to play with the children, while she and Mrs. Ellerson sat on the little vine-shaded porch, and talked it over.

When the arrangement had been made, and it was settled that Mrs. Palmer and Rose were to move over the next week, the children were called up, that the little friends might enjoy the prospect of being together.

But, to everybody's surprise, impulsive little Rose cried out, "O mamma! I don't want to live here!"

Her mother was distressed that she should have made what seemed such a rude speech, but Mrs. Ellerson was very wise about little girls, and putting a gentle arm about Rose—who, at the sight of her mother's displeasure, had begun to cry—she asked her kindly, what was the reason she did not want to stay with them.

After a moment's hesitation, Rose said simply that Patty was always nice and kind and pleasant when she came over to see her, but she noticed that she was sometimes cross with Ella, her little sister. "And I am 'fraid," continued Rose, "that if I come to live with her, she will treat me like she does Ella!"

And now it was poor Patty's time to cry, and the little girls would have had a sad day, if mamma hadn't proposed a doll's tea-party, and given them some bread and preserves. That brought back the sunshine.

Rose and her mother did come to live at the Ellerson's, but not one cross word did dear Patty speak to the little visitor all summer.

More than that, she tried hard not to be anything but polite to her own little home people; and I think she succeeded, for one day, when it was Ella's time to help mother wash the breakfast things, she said joyously:

"Mamma, we do have such good times now; Patty treats me just like company all the time!"

WAITING SERVICE.

It is wonderful that a large part of our life is absorbed even in the little "waitings" which happen every day! We have all heard of the French lawyer who wrote the whole of an important work on jurisprudence during the minutes, really numbering more than fifteen at a time, while he waited for his wife to join him for social occasions. The writer has known a busy lady, an active professional woman, and the mother of a household, who kept her family provided with hand-knit stockings, the product of waste "odds and ends of time," when, as she herself put it, "it would be impossible to do anything else."

The question whether the superior richness of some lives entirely due to a faculty—largely capable of development—of utilizing fragments of time, which others would allow to slip through their fingers. It is a common saying that busy people have most leisure. The man who receives most letters is the man who generally answers by return of post. When an Indian chief heard somebody excusing the non performance of a certain duty on the score that "there is no time," he wittily remarked, "I suppose each of us has all there is."

One peculiar trial besets most of the little inevitable daily waitings. They generally seem so unnecessary—nay, are quite unnecessary, so far as those who oppose them are concerned. Committees should not always wait for the member who is always late. Excursions should start without the loiterer who contrives to miss the appointed train. It is a habit which speeds with deadly rapidity. Busy people who can be punctual only by pains and management, are apt to relax their efforts when they find they are always wasted by some idler.

It is always well to have some little by-work for waiting seasons—something which we love to do, and which will therefore keep us sweet and smooth, when otherwise we should be only too liable to fret and chafe. But the manner of too many of our waitings forbids our emulation of the example of the French lawyer, or the busy professional woman. We cannot write, or knit, or sew, or sketch, in other people's room, in railway stations, or in the streets. A book is a more manageable resource. We knew a doctor who made himself a splendid German scholar while driving in his carriage from patient to patient. But then his unoccupied intervals could be reckoned on. With most of us it is not so. Generally the time, place, and manner of our waitings are infinitely various.

Different kinds of waiting must be taken each on its own merits. For waitings in our own houses there should be certainly some resource which in our "waiting work." For other waitings there should be always the promptly question, "What can I do?" to be followed by the equally prompt execution of the decision, once it is arrived at. Often a conversation can be entered into, with some other waiting one; and it is wonderful how soon a conversation may be made interesting and pertinent if we give our minds to that end, instead of to desultory chat. Often there is something to be observed and learned from our surroundings, and scarcely an observation or a fact can be stored away in our minds but it is sure to come out some day, and to make itself useful in a way we cannot now dream of.—Edward Garrett, in The Quiver.

A WOMAN'S CONSECRATION.

At the close of the eighteenth century a farmer's daughter left her home in Yorkshire, Eng., to go as a servant in a farm house. She had to fill the place at once of kitchen-maid, house-maid, milk-maid, and cook. She milked six cows morning and evening, besides all else, and when she found leisure beyond those services she occupied herself in spinning wool. But with all that was lowly and unpromising in this young woman's life, she had genuine piety. She had been brought up with the Bible as her guide, and with the pure and noble ideas which belong to Christian education. In the course of time she was engaged to marry a young weaver of Halifax, whose name was John Crossley. They married at length, and settled down to a life of honest industry. Crossley was frugal and thrifty. He got on well, laid by his earnings, and at length was able to rent a wool-mill and dwelling-house. When the couple were about entering their new quarters a holy purpose of consecration took possession of this young wife. On the day of entering the house, she rose at 4 o'clock in the morning and went into the door-yard. There in the early twilight, before entering the house, she knelt on the ground and gave her life anew to God. She vowed most solemnly in these words: "If the Lord does bless me at this place, the poor shall have a share of it."

That grand act of consecration was the germ of a life of marvelous nobility. It was the law of this home for many years, while sons were born and grew up under its ennobling influence. John Crossley died, leaving a comfortable property and a good name. The widow lived on to old age, and would never consent to remove from her first home to a better one. The sons carried on their father's business, educated and controlled by the spirit of the mother's early vow. One of the younger sons became a baronet and a member of Parliament for West Riding. In mature life he said: "It is to this vow, made and kept with so much fidelity, that I attribute the great success of my father in business. My mother was always looking to see how she could best keep her vow."

The Crossleys grew rich and great. The sons of the kitchen-maid became owners of mills which covered acres of ground. These structures rose, story above story, in solid masses; the working people were increased to the number of five thousand. The good old mother became alarmed, and said that such large operations were dangerous, and that a crash would come. The sons answered:

"No; we are well insured. 'Honor the Lord with thy substance, and with the first fruits of all thine increase; so shall thy barns be filled with plenty.' This is our best policy of insurance."

In 1853 one of these sons was in America. On seeing a fine landscape at sunset, the glory of the scene entered his heart, and he asked himself, "What shall I render unto the Lord?" The answer to this question was the purchase of land for a people's park, after his return home, at a cost of $30,000. The park was given to the town of Halifax. At length two spacious almshouses were built and endowed by two of these brothers. Then came a row of workmen's dwelling houses; then an orphanage; and besides these any number of less conspicuous charities.

LETTER TO UNCLE MINOR.

DEAR, UNCLE MINOR: My sister takes the ADVOCATE, the only one, I suppose, that comes to this far away Western town, or what was a town, for two years ago the greater part of it was swept away by a terrible flood. All the business part of town and several dwelling houses were built in a valley of the Concho, a beautiful little stream. One night it rose suddenly, and by noon the next day all was carried away, except a large, new, stone court house, and the jail. We live in one of the houses on the hill overlooking the valley, and which the water did not reach. We have a fine country around us. You can see for miles and miles on the prairie, and the horizon is generally skirted by a ridge of blue hills with a mirage at the bottom of some. We used to go hunting with grey hounds out on the prairie. They would start a jack rabbit, coyote, or antelope, and have a fine chase, while we would look on. We used to go buffalo hunting, too, and camp out for several days; but the buffaloes are all killed now. I read an article in the ADVOCATE about the animals of California, and I recognized several of them as the same we have here. We have a great many prairie dogs here, and the little screech-owl lives in their deserted holes. They do look lazy. Some one said that if you would walk round and round one long enough, that it would twist his neck off trying to look at you without moving. Of course that is not so. We have the large rats here, too, that build their nests of sticks at the foot of trees. They lay up pecans for winter, and people tear up their nests to get the nuts. I have heard of getting a bushel from one nest. We have two kinds of quail, the little brown "Bob-White," and the blue, top-knotted, El Paso quail. I had one of the latter last week. A little boy struck it with a stone and caught it for me, but it died. Everything dies that I have. I had two sweet little mocking birds, a beautiful Maltese cat, a king bird, a brown Leghorn hen and rooster, and a quail, and now I have nothing but my dear little pony, "Jesse." I have delightful rides on him. Oh! I must stop talking about my myself, and boasting of our country; but it is the best country in the world, I know. Dear Uncle Minor, I wish you would come this way when you are travelling over the country.

Your loving niece,

Benficklin, Texas.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fifteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for
(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen, mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS! Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now; do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

OUT OF THE DEPTHS.

"Out of the depths have I cried unto thee."

If with faltering feet I travel the way,
If through heedlessness I walk astray,
And fall as I must, O Lord, I pray
Leave me not to myself, whatever the cost,
Search me out, as the shepherd the sheep that was lost,
Save me out of the depths!

When I sink in the depths of doubt and despair,
When my spirit is bowed with its burden of care,
When my heart is too heavy to utter a prayer,
Speak peace! and let fears, like a spectral band,
Depart, as I feel thy strong right hand
Lift me out of the depths.

When prostrate I cling to the crumbling dust,
As I give up my treasures—I sometime must—
When I see not thy face but can only trust,
Oh, comfort my heart! though the night be long,
Lift me up! may I rise with a smile and a song
Out of the depths.

And at last when I come to Death's deep chilling wave,
May I enter so trustful, so fearless, so brave,
That I feel not its chill or see not its grave;
Only see just beyond the dear lights of Home
And thy welcoming face, as I joyfully come Up out of the depths.

MEETING AT HEBRON, WARREN COUNTY, TENNESSEE.

This meeting began on the fourth Lord's day of September, and continued over the first Lord's day of October. Preaching morning and night through the week, with basket dinners on Lord's days and two sermons before leaving the ground. There is no congregation of our brethren at this meeting-house, but there are several members living in the neighborhood, that belong at New Smyrna, some three or four miles distant from Hebron. The brethren are talking of building a house a mile or two still further from New Smyrna, and make it a mission point of the New Smyrna congregation, till they can build up and become self-sustaining, which might be done in pretty short time, in our judgment, and thus reach a good community of people that will never be reached at Smyrna. Hebron is a sort of union house, but our people have never done much preaching there. But it would certainly result in much good if they would do so from this time on.

We had a good attendance during the whole time, and at night, and on Lord's days, the crowds were very large. We have seldom had such an opportunity for seed sowing in a new place. The people turned out largely, and listened attentively, and we are sure many of them very materially changed their feelings towards our people. There is a feeling now in favor of truth in that community that ought by all means to be cultivated, and we hope the brethren at New Smyrna and at McMinnville will see that it is done. Bros. H. L. Walling, P. G. Potter, and O. M. Thurman were present some of the time and rendered assistance in the meeting, and Bro. J. C. Martin was present first and last parts of the meeting to cheer us with earnest singing. And the good wives of all these brethren named were present part of the time to cheer us with their presence and in song. The brethren and sisters of New Smyrna turned out well all the time. And upon the whole the meeting was a profitable one for the cause of the truth in that community. There were nine baptized during the meeting, and a general interest manifested by the people of the community that was truly encouraging. Now brethren, try to keep the good impression growing, so that a still greater harvest may be reaped in due time. Let us all strive hard to widen our fields, and enlarge our borders, and to increase the number of the saved in the earth. As fast as the Lord opens up the way for us, we should go in and occupy, and the blessings of the Lord will rest upon us in our efforts to do good.

The brethren at McMinnville were the movers in this meeting also, bearing much of the expenses of it, the brethren living in the neighborhood also assisted in this matter. The brethren of McMinnville have done good work in this line this year, and we hope they will abound more and more, and that many other churches will follow their example in this good work. The churches in this State are doing more and more of this sort of work every year, and we hope they will go on till all the people of our whole country may hear the glad tidings of salvation through Jesus our Lord.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We propose to send it one year to two subscribers, one of which must be a new one, for three dollars. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

TROUBLES THAT NEVER HAPPEN.

A story is told of an old man who in his long pilgrimage had borne many of the ills of life. His friends were condoling with him on the occurrence of some special affliction, and saying that he really had more troubles than other men, when he replied:

"Yes, my friends, that is too true. I have been surrounded by troubles all my life long; but there is a curious thing about them, nine tenths of them never happened.

What quantities of such troubles have afflicted us through all our pilgrimage! Most people take pains to secure all the enjoyment possible out of their troubles. They enjoy them in anticipation; and for all practical purposes a trouble which has not occurred is often fully equal to one which has. After having feared them, fretted over them, and talked about them in advance, then if they come they have the good of them again; and after they have come and gone still can recollect them, and think them over and derive great enjoyment from them. For those people who never are happy except when they are miserable, and who make the most of small troubles, seeing they are all they have, can derive nearly as much satisfaction from a dead trouble as they can from one that is alive. So by anticipating them in the future making the most of them in the present, and recalling them from the past, they keep themselves well supplied with troubles.

The brethren at Marvell, Phillips County, Ark., want a preacher to preach for them and adjoining churches three or four weeks, but can promise but little remuneration. Please make known their wants through the ADVOCATE. It is on the line from Helena to Clarendon. Perhaps some travelling evangelist might do a good work there. J. L. Beard, of Marvell, will give any information in regard to the prospects.—[A. B. Cathey, Isom's Store, Tenn., September 29, 1884.

We publish the above hoping some one will find it in his heart to go those brethren in Arkansas and help them. But we cannot refrain from one suggestion. If there is a sacrifice to be made, why lay it on some evangelist? The evangelists ought to be ready to make every sacrifice to preach the gospel and save people. But other Christians ought to be just as willing to make sacrifices as the evangelist. They ought to insist on their right to share in the sacrifices of the evangelist.

Bro. Beard, I take it, was formerly connected with the church at Cathey's Creek. If not, the wants of this community in Arkansas has become known through some providence to some of the brethren at Cathey's Creek. It affords an opportunity to the church at Cathey's Creek to send the gospel to Arkansas. An opportunity to do good, is a call from God to do the good.

The brethren at Cathey's Creek are three hundred and more strong—not wealthy, but with plenty to live upon. Twenty-five cents each from one-half, of them with what the brethren in Arkansas can supplement, will enable a preacher to go to Arkansas and give a month or six weeks labor to this destitute point. The brethren of Cathey's Creek church have two or more good earnest evangelists laboring in their midst. If they will raise this small amount and send one of these evangelists, it will be so much better than to depend on some traveling evangelist to do this work that God calls them to do. If it does not suit their evangelists to go, or if they think they are not the men to do the work, if they will just say they will do this, I will find an acceptable man to go and do the work.

I do wish to see the brethren realize their responsibility and privileges in these matters, and not wait for some society to do the work God has laid on them, or leave the burden of converting the world to rest on the shoulders of a few traveling evangelists. It is this drawing back of the churches and the brethren, from what is clearly within their power to do, that calls for unscriptural methods of doing work. The next best friend of a wrong way, after the direct advocate of the wrong, is he who knows the right, and fails to do it.

We feel that we can make free to say this much to Bro. Cathey and the brethren at Cathey's Creek, without offense, on the score of our long acquaintance with him, and true respect and love for the whole church.

If the brethren at Cathey's Creek cannot raise the amount needed, if they will do half this, or what they can, and do it promptly, and call on other churches to aid them, we will see if other churches will not supplement their lack. But, brethren, do try to do something to answer such calls, and quit putting it off on the shoulders of the evangelists. God never would have brought the knowledge of these facts to this congregation, if he had not wished them to do something. Now let's have a mission—a true Christian mission to Arkansas, and we ask the church at Cathey's Creek to lead in it.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

W. H. Carter, Bagdad, Jackson county, Tenn., October 1, writes: "Bro. Rogers and I are engaged in a meeting at this place. Congregations very good. Two additions up to the time of this writing."

W. A. Sewell, Viola, Tenn., October 2, writes: "Bro. Robertson and I commenced a meeting at Bethlehem, in Cannon County, Tenn., the third Lord's day in September, where I remained until Saturday night following. Bro. Robertson remained to preach on Lord's day. The meeting resulted in eighteen confessions and four reclaimed."

J. M. Barnes, Matthews' Station, Ala., October 5, writes: "I preached at this place yesterday. Will start home this morning. I left all our family well, but there has been much sickness in the country. I find quite a number of colored brethren in this section of country. I will not reach home until to-morrow. School will begin next Monday."

J. D. Floyd, Flat Creek, Tenn., October 3, writes: "I report the following meetings: Richmond, Bedford County, third Lord's day in September, two promising young men baptized; Salem, Franklin County, fourth Lord's day in September, four baptisms and one addition by letter. The brothers Lipscombs—William, jr., and Granville—were present and aided much; Bro. William doing half the preaching."

F. W. Smith, Bunker Hill, Tenn., October 8, writes: "I commenced a meeting September 27th at Friendship, Lincoln County, continued until Thursday night, October 2, result ten additions; six from the Baptists, three from the world, and one by commendation. Bro. T. C. Little was to have helped in the meeting, but owing to sickness was unable to preach any. He was suffering severely when I left him, hope he is better by this time."

James W. Harding, Ruckerville, Clark County, Ky., October 7, writes: "I am, at this time, in a good meeting at this place. Ten by confession, and three by letter, to date. Think the meeting will close to-night. No hindering providence, I will commence a meeting at Mt. Carmel, next Saturday night. Mt. Carmel is in Bourbon county, Ky. On the night of October 22, I expect to be in a meeting with Bro. G. G. Taylor, at Cedar Springs, in Jefferson county."

W. H. Carter, Lafayette, Tenn., October 7, writes: "Bro. E. H. Rogers held a seven days' meeting at Germany, Ky., embracing the third Lord's day in September, resulting in fourteen additions to the church. Our meeting at Bagdad closed last night. Though we had only four additions, yet we think much good was done. Some of the Baptist brethren expressed themselves as being well pleased with our teaching; said it was "just that way." We think that a good deal of prejudice was removed. Had a good hearing throughout the meeting."

E. B. Cayce, Franklin, Tenn., October 6, writes: "We closed our meeting at Berea, last night, with an over-crowded house. Six added by confession and baptism, and three by letter. One young lady made the "good confession," but her father and mother would not let her be baptized, saying they were Baptists, and intended their children to be Baptists, too. Bro. Shelton did all the preaching, except three sermons, and I am glad to say that he "hews to the line," preaches the truth in the love of it. The gospel trumpet gives no uncertain sound in his hands. Altogether we had a good meeting."

Henry Simpson, Morris, Jefferson County, Ala., October 5, writes: "On Friday before the first Lord's day in August, I commenced a meeting eight miles South of Alexander City, in Tallapoosa County, continuing six days, resulting in thirty accessions to the Lord's cause. Since that time I went back to the same place and continued from the 19th of September to the 29th, resulting in thirty-three additions; sixty-three in all. I find the gospel to be the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth. Therefore I am thankful that the good Lord sent Bro. J. M. Barnes in our community to bring the good news of salvation in its purity, untrammelled with human sentiments, pure from the fountain head."

J. D. Briant, Flintville, Tenn., October 8, writes: "We closed a four days' meeting at Antioch, three miles northwest of Flintville, third week in September. Had good attendance. Bro. E. L. Cambron preached for us. Had two additions by confession and baptism, and two others took membership. We think if we could have continued the meeting longer, we would have had several other additions. Others have told us that they were going to obey the gospel the first opportunity, and we are looking for them at Bro. Cambron's next appointment."

T. L. Weatherford, Big Creek, Limestone Co., Ala., October 6, writes: "Bro. N. B. Wallace preached here fourth Lord's day in September to a good audience. I continued the meeting at night [except Monday night] and closed Friday night with good interest—eight additions; five baptized, two from the sects, and one reclaimed. One old gentleman, sixty-three years of age, came forward and obeyed the gospel. This revives us, as we have been somewhat dormant for three or four years. We hope something still more glorious in the future. A few of us meet every Lord's day to break bread and for Sunday-school. We give the Lord all the praise."

C. N. Sparkman, Town Creek, September 29, writes: "I have just closed a meeting at this place. Preached eleven times, to small audiences generally, with good attention all the time. Six added to the church—five by confession and baptism, and one from the Baptists. There are but few members at this place, and they have great opposition to contend with. They have no house of their own to worship in, but have a school-house, which will answer their purposes until they can manage to build a house. This little flock would be extremely glad at any time to have any of our preaching brethren to stop over there, even if they cannot stay very long. A few sermons would be highly appreciated. Brethren, let's look out for such places as this, and avail ourselves of every opportunity for encouraging the brethren at weak points, instead of "pastoring" (to death) the stronger and more wealthy congregations, and the good Husbandman will reward us for all our labor."

E. A. Elam, Lebanon, Tenn., October 2, writes: "We have just closed a meeting six miles South of here, on the Murfreesboro pike, where we held a meeting last year in the woods. This time we preached in the old church house of the Baptists, they having built a new one and sold this old one for a school-house. We have been preaching here on Lord's day afternoon once a month during the year. The people generally are willing hearers, and in the not-far-distant future a congregation will be established there in its own house of worship. The few members are earnest and talk now of building a house. No additions, but a good meeting. We had prayer meeting at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, and various brethren talked about family prayers, reading the Bible, meeting on the first day of the week, etc. A few have family prayers and some promised to do better. Some had not met regularly with the brethren on Lord's day. Several brethren and sisters from Ephesus and a few from Leeville attended the meeting all the time, and helped much in songs, prayers and exhortations. This is right. Brethren from different congregations should especially visit and help a meeting like this. Brethren could do much in going to Bro. Srygley's meetings in destitute places. The Ephesians are good at this work. We hope, the Lord willing, to visit this community again next month, first Lord's day afternoon."

J. P. Elliott, Cairo, Tenn., October 3, writes: "On Saturday night before the third Lord's day in August last, Bro. J. B. Inman, of Henderson Station, Tenn., commenced a protracted meeting at Crockett Mills, in this county, where he had been preaching once a month during the year up to that time. He continued this meeting until the Lord's day night following, the result of which was sixty precious souls added to the army of the Lord, mostly from the world, by confession and immersion. The glorious and happy success of this meeting is prima facie evidence of the leavening influence of the glorious gospel of the Son of God. For two years before this meeting, Bro. Inman held a protracted meeting at Cairo, the result of which was quite a number of the precious souls of this vicinity uniting under the banner of King Emanuel. Among that number was J. F. Robertson, the owner of farm, mill and store, called "Crockett's Mills," who, since his uniting with the church, has erected a fine brick meeting-house, costing him something near four thousand dollars, which was dedicated last December, for the use and benefit of the disciples of that locality. At which place a congregation was set in order to keep the Lord's house, by Bro. Inman, who was employed by Bro. Robertson to take the pastoral charge for this year, where he has assiduously attended until the meeting in question. All these happy results I attribute to the influence of the gospel of Christ, and the love and faithfulness of its adherents. To God be all the praise."

Brown Godwin, Boston, Tenn., October 6, writes: "The third Lord's day in September, I spoke twice at Cathey's Creek, Maury County; immersed one. Came from there to Beasley's Chapel to join Bro. J. P. Litton in a meeting which lasted until Friday night. Result was three added; two immersed and one from the Methodists. Spoke at Phillippi the fourth Sunday and Sunday night. Spoke seven times at Mt. Hope, beginning Monday night. Had good and attentive audiences, but no visible good. Spoke yesterday, the first Sunday, at Leiper's Fork. We have some good workers at all of these places, and I hope they will continue in the good work of our Master. This closes my work till after attending school, at Mars Hill, nine months. At the present time I am at home with uncle Seth Sparkman, who is not expected to live many days, and when he goes we will lose one of our very best workers. May God help us all to take the example he has set."

T. C. Little, October 1, writes: "The meetings at Cane Creek, Marshall County, Tenn., closed last Sunday night. Bro. Dixon and myself did most of the talking. Several preaching brethren were present, and aided us by reading, exhortation, prayer and song. Bro. Petty, a young preacher belonging to this congregation, preached once for us; also Bro. Northcross, of Giles County, preached once for us. Both of these "young preachers" are men of promise, and are already workmen who "need not be ashamed." It is true they are not from "Bible colleges," but they belong to the class that are "bearing the heat and burden of the day;" let them be encouraged by all true followers of Christ. The number of people in attendance was estimated from four to six hundred. Interest and behavior were excellent. Seventeen discourses were preached, and thirty-two were added to the army of the Lord. It is very encouraging to attend such meetings and see brethren and sisters, who have neglected to exercise the privileges of "God's house," become aroused, and hear them pledge themselves to faithfulness hereafter. May our heavenly Father help them carry out those solemn resolutions. We are under lasting obligations to this people for the kindness shown us while there. No people have done more to encourage me in my preaching, than the Cane Creek congregation. On Monday we came to Friendship, where Bro. F. W. Smith was conducting a series of meetings, heard him preach twice, came home to bring my wife, fully expecting to join him again that night, but was so unwell that I feared to undertake the trip. Bro. Smith does his work nobly, and fully satisfied the brethren."

M. C. Adcock, Dowell Town, DeKalb County, Tenn., October 8, writes: "Bro. T. E. Tatum held a meeting at Antioch, DeKalb County, Tenn., commencing on the first Lord's day in August. Preached nineteen discourses, which resulted in seventeen accessions to the church; two from the Baptists, two from the Methodists, two from the Presbyterians, and thirteen by confession and baptism. One Methodist and one Baptist that came to the church of God made the confession and were baptized, which made the thirteen by baptism. Bro. Tatum organized a congregation at that place, which is the first organized congregation of the Christian people that we have ever had in this part. Bro. Tatum is a very efficient young preacher and made many friends while among us. He delivered a series of discourses in the same county at Jefferson, four miles from Antioch. Three were added to the church of God by confession and baptism."

DEBATE AT FLIPPIN, KENTUCKY.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: I propose to give your readers a short account of a debate at Flippin, Monroe county, Kentucky, commencing on September 23, and ending on September 26. The debaters were W. H. Carter, of Lafayette, Tenn., of the church of Christ, and T. F. Taylor, of Flippin, Ky., of the Missionary Baptist church.

First proposition: "Baptism is in order to the remission of sins." Second proposition: "The kingdom or church of Christ was established in the days of John the Baptist." Carter affirming the first proposition, and Taylor affirming the second.

Each of these men stands fair in the estimation of the communities where they are known. Carter may not be Taylor's superior in scholarship, but certainly is in speaking ability. When Carter took the floor on the opening speech, he layed before the audience all the co-operating causes to the remission of sins, the love, power, wisdom and mercy of God in giving his Son, the blood of Christ, the gospel, faith, repentance, confession and baptism. He then defined his proposition not to be baptism alone, or to an impenitent unbeliever, but that baptism to a penitent believer is in order to remission of sins. Taylor then arose to a question of order, denying the right of Carter to so define his proposition. Their moderators being unable to agree, the president gave his decision that a speaker had the right to define his proposition; but if the defining so changed the proposition that his opponent could not deny it, that closed the discussion on that proposition.

This decision left Prof. Taylor at liberty to agree with Carter, or, at least, so near that he could not negative his proposition. This would have committed Taylor and his brethren to a surrender to what they well knew was the teaching of our brethren everywhere. The discussion proceeded.

Bro. Carter, through the two days' discussion on this proposition, based his arguments on the commission as given by Matt. 28, Mark 16, Luke 24, Acts 2, and other passages usually referred to by our brethren. His ability in argumentative powers, and skill in delivery, also his expertness in exposing fallacious opposition, is such that his brethren need have no fears of endorsing him as a representative in debate.

Bro. Taylor was prompt and energetic in his opposition, by reference to many passages of Scripture where salvation was predicated of faith, saying nothing about baptism. In Eph. 2: 8, where it is, "By grace are ye saved through faith," etc., he cut off all works, assuming that faith was the grace there spoken of, and that faith was a direct gift of God; and in his next speech, in answer to Carter, said that God gave some faith, and not to others. On this Carter showed the Missionary Baptists, by their exponent Taylor, to be fully in the meshes of Calvinism, with all the consequences of that doctrine, from which Taylor made no effort to extricate themselves.

Bro. Carter's arguments on Acts 2: 38, on the nature of the copulative conjunction and, and the English preposition for, from the Greek particle eis, were forcibly made, to which Taylor made but little effort to reply, excepting his rebuts against the proposition by reference to where salvation was ascribed to faith; and if by faith, could not be by works; and as baptism was a work, could not, therefore, be by baptism. In addition to Carter's arguments on Acts 2: 38, he read from several Baptist authors, such as Dr. John Gale, sermon on baptism, page 183-199, Dr. Hackett, Baptist Quarterly, edited by James Wilmarth, Baptist Teacher, Journal and Messenger, Watchman, Advance Quarterly, international series, volume 1, used in Baptist Sunday-school at Flippin, showing that they all sustained the meaning of Greek eis to be in order to, and quoting from Dr. Hackett, where he said, "The Campbellites are right in translating eis in order to." Prof. Taylor, in reply, said that Carter had been reading from several Baptists, all of whom were out in the brush or backwoods writing up something to be published just before they should leave the Baptists, intending to join the Reformers.

I have tried to give an impartial, but short sketch of the line of argument on both sides, with some of the most prominent features in the discussion of this proposition, believing your intelligent readers will form a correct conclusion for themselves as to where victory and merit belong. I will next give a synoptical sketch of the debate on the second proposition.

THE UNSEEN HEARER.

Every preacher of the gospel should remember that he has one hearer, at least, that does not occupy a seat among his auditors, and hence is not visible to mortal eyes. Nevertheless, He is a constant hearer of all that the preacher says. That hearer is God. Of course, the preacher, if he be a sincere Christian, believes that God hears him as he offers up his prayers in the sanctuary in his own behalf and for the wants and welfare of the people. He believes that the promise is true, that God is the hearer of all rightly offered prayer. But, is he constantly conscious of the fact that God is always listening to the sermons he preaches? It is to be feared that he is not. As soon as he is done praying, he seems to think that God's ear is closed to anything which he may say during the rest of the service. But such is not the case, if we have a proper conception of God's character. We have reason to believe that God is deeply interested in the faithful preaching of His Word. He has exercised a good deal of wisdom and power in presenting to us His wondrous Book. He has deeded it to us through the blood of His only begotten. He has confirmed it by the sanctions of His holy covenant and oath. He has staked everything upon it, and expects to derive from it a rich revenue of bliss and blessing in the souls of those who are redeemed and glorified by its efficiency. It must be, then, that God is an interested listener to the proclamation of His truth. Is He always pleased with the manner in which it is preached? I think not. He hears many things said in the sermons of some, in perhaps of the most of, preachers which are not pleasant to hear. He hears false doctrines proclaimed, even by those who profess to be His friends. He hears the preacher argue in favor of some pet theory, which has no substantial support from the Bible. He hears attempts to bolster up some practice of human invention by inapt quotations from his Word. He hears sermons and essays which have no legitimate connection with the texts from which the preacher professes to draw his theme and inspiration, and which he claims in his authority. He listens to a good deal what men call the gospel, which He does not own as His gospel. And He hears not a little of self-laudation in the pulpit, and the glorification of denominationalism.

Yes, whether we have stopped to think of it, or not, God hears some remarkably strange and inconsistent utterances every Sabbath in the hundreds of pulpits of our land, which He does not approve of, and cannot bless. But He also hears a good deal of honest, faithful preaching, and this should encourage such preachers to labor on, with the assurance that they have one Hearer who appreciates their endeavors to do His will and work.—C. H. W.

CORRESPONDENCE.

W. N. McCain, Cold-water Depot, Miss., October 5, writes: "I closed my protracted work on the 4th inst. In the first place, I must acknowledge one of the grandest treats this summer that I ever enjoyed since I became a member of the church, which has been forty-four years this August, and that was, I spent two weeks with Bro. E. G. Sewell, in his protracted meetings at Antioch and Senatobia, Tate County, Miss. I never heard the primitive gospel more forcibly handled by any one. And the beauty of it was, aside from its force, was the spirit in which he handled the word. He spoke just like he believed and felt every word that he uttered. I think our church was greatly edified, and many convinced, and many added to the church. On the second Lord's day of September I commenced a meeting out west of Oakland on the Mississippi & Tennessee Railroad, some two miles from the town of Oakland, at a Baptist meeting house, where they had just closed a two weeks meeting. People very much worn down, but notwithstanding all that, we had a good and very attentive audience. The result of our meeting was we had seven added to the church. One who had formerly been a member of the Baptist church, and her husband who was by baptism. Also one other by baptism, and four took membership who long years ago had been members of the church. This is a beautiful country, and just such a country will always produce good citizens. In this country, many years ago, Bro. Manire preached, and the influence of that great and good man is fresh in the minds of the people yet. The people had just had a siege of the mourners bench system, and one poor, uninformed youth had not got religion at the anxious sect, when I extended an invitation he came forward. I asked him if he wished to be immersed, he said no; well, said I, what did you come for? Well, said he, I want to be baptized. So I took his confession. But next day, learning he was only carrying out his former teaching, the mourner's bench system, we left him to go on his way rejoicing. I think seven additions and one mourner, in a strange land, did well for a new beginner. From there I went to Tillatoba, in Yalobusha County, began a meeting there on third Lord's day; preached until Tuesday night and closed with one addition, a grand-daughter of old Bro. K. Wilcox, one of our old pioneer preachers. I went west of Harrison's Station eight miles, and commenced a meeting fourth Lord's day of September and continued over the first Lord's day of October; had one of the most interesting meetings I have ever held; had large attendance; seven were added to the faithful; four from the Baptists, two from the Methodists whom I immersed, and one from the world. I think the prejudice is pretty well removed. I am of the opinion that the day is not far distant when the church in that part of the country will be strong. This is another point where Bros. Manire, Caskey and others once preached. Also, at one time, we had the masterly influence of Bro. Dr. McClendon, whose influence is yet felt. But, alas, he is gone to his long home. Also it is the home of our young Bro. Lee Jackson. Oh! that we could have more preachers in our State; that is all we need."

Robert Kirby, Gittings P. O., Cumberland County, Ky., writes: "On Saturday before the third Lord's day in September, I went to my appointment on Judio, and preached four discourses. Had one addition by confession and baptism. Judio is the home of old Bro. D. C. Lollar. I found Bro. Lollar and family in bad health. Bro. Lollar attended our meeting some. I went to my appointment at Poplar Grove. Preached ten discourses. Four were added to the church by confession and baptism. I went from there to Sulphur, and preached eleven discourses, the result was six additions—three by confession and baptism, and three from the Methodists. At this meeting I buried an old man with Christ in baptism, eighty-one years old, who refused to be baptized by the Baptists on account of their close communion."

NO DIFFERENCE.

A little black girl, eight years old, was setting the table, when a boy in the room said to her, "Mollie, do you pray?"

The suddenness of the question confused her a little, but she answered, "Yes, every night."

"Do you think God hears you?" the boy asked. She answered promptly, "I know he does."

"But do you think," said he, trying to puzzle her, "that he hears your prayers as readily as those of white children?"

For full three minutes the child kept on with her work; then she slowly said, "Master George, I pray into God's ears, and not his eyes. My voice is just like any other little girl's, and, if I say what I ought to say, God does not stop to look at my skin."—Selected.

There are many dead people in the world, who are not yet buried. There are thousands who have been dead many years and do not know it. When a man's heart is cold and indifferent about religion; when his hands are never employed in doing God's work; when his heart is never familiar with his ways; when his tongue is seldom used in prayer and praise; when his ears are deaf to the voice of Christ in the gospel; when his mind is full of the world, and has no time for spiritual things—then that man is dead.

WATER! WATER!!

Why is it the people around the disciples sprinkle so much water at them? "Why," says one, "you place so much stress upon baptism; you just emphasize with all your power; you can't preach without closing on the action or design of the ordinance." Now, my friend, we place the stress just where our Savior directed, as you will find by reading Mark 16: 15-16, and as to the action and design, they are as clear as the words of the Spirit could record: and it is you, I fear, that place too much stress upon water, by not rightly dividing the word; and the action of that beautiful ordinance you have destroyed.

The Savior commanded, and by the Spirit taught, through the apostles, that baptism, when preceded by an active, living faith, and a true, genuine repentance, was for the remission of sins. He further commanded, that the gospel should be "made known to all nations for the obedience of faith" we cannot obey the facts of the gospel, but we can conform to the form of the facts: the form we have in that beautiful and divine appointment—baptism or immersion; we can obey the commands. In the act, we bring before the minds of those beholding, the death, the burial, and the resurrection of our dear Lord and Master, and in obedience to the gospel in submitting to the form of the same, the Spirit has assured us that we are then and there made free from sin. Rom. 6: 17-18; Acts 2: 38. Now, dear friend, you baptize the little babes; who claims most for water? pause and think. I ask, why you baptize them; you answer, to remove the adamic transgression, for the remission of their sins. My book teaches me that I was quickened, made alive, or put back in adamic innocence, with Christ at his resurrection, that he redeemed me from the curse, and placed me in infancy, innocent as Adam was before the transgression; and it further teaches me, as I grew to the years of accountability, I became a sinner by transgression, for "where there is no law there is no transgression," hence no sin. There is no law to the babe. The apostle says, "I was alive without the law once" in my ignorant or infantile state, "but when the commandment came" to my knowledge and conscience, and I had right conception of things, "sin revived and I died" to all that was right, just and good.

You recollect our Master used just such a character as you baptize upon one occasion to illustrate to the disciples the kind of a disposition that he would require of them before they would be admitted or made legal members of the kingdom of heaven; they were men of strong minds, had sinful appetites, and passions, craving desires of the flesh, lust of the eye, pride of life, ready to take revenge, and had the power to hate their fellow man; but, the Savior points to his illustrative character and says you must be changed from all those evil passions, and become as this little child, or you can in no wise enter the kingdom of heaven.

My friend, you remind me of Peter of old, when the Savior wished to wash his feet. Peter, led by his own wisdom, would not submit to this, as it appeared a degradation to his Master. "Jesus answered and said unto him, what I do thou knowest not now, but thou shalt know hereafter." Is not this enough for thee Peter? No, answers the fisherman, "Thou shalt never wash my feet," but Peter's obstinacy at last gave way, and he cries, "Not my feet only, but my hands and my head." When Peter saw that it was good to be washed by the Lord, he must have more washing than Christ commanded. Just so with you, my friend. Christ commanded believing penitents to be baptized; you cry out, not ourselves only, but our babies too.

O, says our objector, under the law the Jews were commanded to circumcise their children at eight days old, and I claim that baptism under the dispensation fills the place that circumcision did under the law; hence we ought to baptize children at eight days old. Do you know that in making this claim, that you claim more for water than all the disciples combined do? By this declaration you claim that baptism seals your salvation, when we only claim that it is the consummating act, the closing scene of our obedience; after which we are accepted and made ready to receive the seal. You say you want the proof of my assertion? Listen: "And he (Abraham) received the sign of circumcision, a seal of the righteousness of the faith which he had being yet uncircumcised." This positively declares that circumcision sealed Abraham's righteousness. Therefore we grant you the claim you hold on baptism—that is, that it seals your salvation, but we cannot agree with you, for the grand old apostle tells us [Eph. 1: 12] that after we have complied with all the requisitions of the gospel, and have obeyed from the heart the form of the same, that we are "sealed by that Holy Spirit of promise."

THE SUNDAY-SCHOOL GAUGER.

The Sunday-school must be gauged by the amount of religion and religious training there is in it. The light that is in thee may be darkness, and if so, "how great is that darkness!"

The Sunday-school may be so managed as to amount to little more than a desecration of the day. It may be so managed as to become a school of disorder and irreverence. Children may be as badly spoiled at Sunday-school as anywhere else.

The religious (or rather irreligious) character of teachers may be such as to impair that of the children. We do not now refer to those teachers who may not be professing Christians, but those who, while they are members of the Church, have no sound religious experience, and who in their intercourse with the children never approach the subject if they can help it.

Again, the instruction, if we may call it instruction, may be crude, or shallow, or frivolous, or so purely theoretical and perfunctory, as to induce the worst kind of habits of reading and thought.

In all these cases the children, if they belong to the well-ordered families, had better be at home than in the Sunday-school.—Methodist Advance.

"A MAN IN CHRIST."

The Apostle says, "I knew a man in Christ." And this was no unimportant knowledge, for "if any man be in Christ he is a new creature." "A man in Christ" is a man redeemed, pardoned, blest, saved. "A man in Christ" is a man who is not of the world, and whom the world therefore hateth. "A man in Christ" is crucified to the world, and the world to him. The life that he now lives is by the faith of the Son of God, who loved him and gave himself for him. "A man in Christ" may be unknown, yet he is well known. He may be surrounded by enemies, yet he possesses an Almighty Friend. He may be a pilgrim and a stranger on earth, yet there is for him a city that hath foundations, and a home beyond the flood. "A man in Christ" is a branch of an undying Vine! He partakes of eternal life; he drinks from the fountain of Divine vitality, and the life that he now leads is by faith of the Son of God.

"A man in Christ" is a partaker of heavenly calling, a member of a celestial brotherhood, an heir of God, and a joint heir with Jesus Christ to an inheritance incorruptible, undefiled, and that fadeth not away. Blessed are they whose fellowship is with the Father, and with his Son, Jesus Christ, and with one another. Are you "a man in Christ?" Do you know him in the power of resurrection-life? Do others know you as "a man in Christ?"—Anonymous.

Repetition is one of the essentials in effective school work. All orators who labor to impress a special truth upon an audience avail themselves of this art of restating a truth until it hits the hearer on many sides. The idea must be repeated in different phases so as to keep the idea prominent independent of phraseology, but the best expression of the idea should be repeated in the same language, since many minds catch words before they do ideas, and develop the idea from the words by ruminating, as it were,—"chewing it over and over," until the idea is incorporated into their thought. A well-trained school can be brought to a state of perfection in which little repetition is required; but until that condition is reached, we must repeat, repeat, repeat.—Church Union.

REPLY TO "PURIFYING THE HEART."

DEAR BRO. LIPSCOMB: In my reply to "Which is Right?" I endeavored to write so as to make a reply from you unnecessary, by saying, "Faith that purifies leads through repentance, confession and baptism, to the blood of Christ, in him, where is life and purification." And then said: "The GOSPEL ADVOCATE is solidly committed to this teaching, if I am not bewildered sure enough." Since you reply, it does, therefore, appear that you do not fully agree with me. That the pure in heart, are pure in soul, body, and spirit, and in every view that you may take of them, and are saved from past sins, and will be finally saved if they continue in purity to the end of life. In the GOSPEL ADVOCATE, page 354, we read, "It (heart) is purified by believing and obeying God." I understand Peter to teach the same thing in different language. 1 Peter 1: 22. This is all that I claim. By believing and obeying (he that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved) our hearts are purified, (made pure,) we are saved.

The above being true, we are prepared to examine any case of conversion. So then we take the only one offered by you or Bro. Bradley, after the cross, in Scripture. God made choice of Peter, that the Gentiles by his mouth might hear the gospel (the power of God to save) and believe—alone? No, believe in the sense of obey. See New Version, John 3: 36: "He that believeth on the Son hath everlasting life; but he that obeyeth not the Son shall not see life." And again, Acts 14: 14, "Who shall tell thee words whereby thou and all thy house shall be saved?" God put no difference between us and them purifying their hearts by faith (the gospel) heard from Peter, believed in the sense of (John 3: 36) obey. And Acts 11: 41, "Then they that gladly received his word were baptized." This is the way God purified their hearts, saved the Gentiles as the Jews—no difference. God knew their hearts (to be pure? no,) to be good ground; would, like the Jews on Pentecost, gladly obey the command to be baptized; gave them the Holy Ghost not because they were pure or impure, but to bare witness for them. Only the pure receive the Holy Spirit as a Comforter, (John 14: 17,) but as a miracle, Baal could be a subject of it. But you say the work of purification is a continual process. You are correct with this understanding: that there is in Christianity two laws of purification, or pardon. One to the alien sinner, faith, repentance, and baptism, (see Acts 2,) and the other to the erring Christian, (Acts viii: 22, and James 5: 16.) "Confess your faults one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed." This purifying is to be done daily. We are commanded to save ourselves, and we are commanded to purify ourselves. How? By complying with the law suited to our case. You say, "Belief of the truth is the first step in the purifying process. The purification proceeds until it reaches the place and time when God cleanses. To this I offer not an objection. The place and time is when he reaches the blood of Christ; the blood cleanses from all sin; he is then pure, not before. And your friend, G. W. Griffin, should not be complained of for ridiculing the idea of the pure in heart being unsaved. (See Matt. 5: 8.) The Jews were convinced of the salvation of the Gentiles, by God's purifying their hearts by the faith, without the deeds of the law. Since time began, it has never occurred that the pure in heart were lost, before the cross, nor since. But your friend, Griffin, with all others, should be ashamed of teaching that faith alone, faith before baptism, saves, (obedience of faith,) or that any one is pure in heart out of Christ. No apostle ever represented any one as pure in heart, or saved, before baptism. Neither did any apostle represent one thing to purify the heart, and another to purify the soul, and still another to purify the body. But when you learn what purifies the soul, you at the same time learn what purifies the heart and body. Let us be content, therefore, to speak as the oracles of God. So then, as the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead. And he that believeth, has power to become a son of God, by the obedience of faith. Now, my brother, I extend to you my hand on your own words, "It is purified by believing and obeying," and that the pure in heart are not lost in hell.

The Light of the World.

I am the Light of the world, so Christ said, and he said also to his disciples, Ye are the light of the world. The correspondence of the two phrases is most startling, and yet this prerogative of light-bearing is indeed the necessary consequence of discipleship. When Christ ascended from the earth he did not wholly leave it. According to his own promise he is now seen outwardly in those who are his. Each Christian reflects in his measure the light which he receives. Each fulfills, as he may, in the sight of men, some fragment of his Lord's office. So we are each constrained to consider with what ministry we are severally charged as sons of light.

Christ, as the Light, opens the secrets of the visible order of Nature. We, too, on our part by reverence, by tenderness, by patience, by watchful and loving care for all creatures, can make it felt about us that we look for him and see him in his works, and know that through them he is still waiting to teach us more of the wonderful things of his law.

Christ, as the Light, reveals the terrible fact of darkness. And here, perhaps, our consciences convict us of dissembling too often in daily life the conviction which we feel in our hearts. We smile at evil, we dally with it, we do not confess in act that we hate it with a perfect hatred. And the temptation to this false indifference is the more perilous because it comes to us in the guise of humility and self-distrust. It is not then without cause that we are reminded that there are woes in the gospel: that Christ himself said, For judgment I came into this world, that they which see not may see, and they which see may become blind.

Christ, as the Light, is the type of unity in manifold co operation. It is for us then looking to him to hold what we know in part, as believing that he will complete our partial knowledge through that which he reveals to others. And we may be sure of this, that he will ever trust most, hope most, love most, who believes most firmly.

Christ, as the Light, is self-attested. And what dare we say of Christians? Amidst all failures and weaknesses is it not still true that the Christian life, wrought out, as we ourselves must have seen it wrought out, in suffering, in sickness, in poverty, borne and transfigured through the power of the Savior; wrought out by the use of splendid gifts and high station and large means, consecrated and blessed by the love of the Savior, is the best witness of Christ to those who are without? The age of saints, let us thank God, is not yet past.

Christ, as the Light, sweeps onward to new regions, and thither it is our charge to follow him. As we look back we can see the course of his Church in a pathway of glory broadening through all the ages. And let us not doubt that the pathway will broaden still. Meanwhile our part is clear—to look to the Light steadily, to receive the Light heedfully, to spread the Light untiringly. The Light cannot mislead us, and cannot fail us; it is the Light of Life.—From Canon Westcott's Revelation of the Father.

Leading and Following.

Always must some be first, and lead; and some come after, and follow. But it makes a great difference who leads. The chief priests and scribes would have patronized Christ, if he had followed them. But they could not think of his leading. A man may have a sinful nature, and yet the sinfulness of that nature may not ruin him, if his old nature is led and controlled by his new and implanted spiritual nature. I have seen a horse I could not drive when by itself, do fair, honest work when placed beside another and stronger horse. It was controlled and "led."

Peter tells us (2 Peter 1: 5) to add to our faith virtue, and other Christian graces; or, as we might paraphrase it, to "lead in orderly, glad and musical procession, first faith, then all the graces of a Christian." Faith is only one grace; and there are others; but faith does not follow other graces, it leads them.—Sunday-School Times.

Why is it that most people find it so much easier to be earnest in their amusements than to be earnest in their work? There could hardly be a greater contrast than between the slow pace of the average school-boy going to school, and the joyous unanimity with which a whole troop of school-boys will burst from the school house when the day's work is over. Other things being equal, a proposal to stop work is always sure of a wider popularity than a proposal to begin work. The truth is, that, in this particular, as in many others, men and women are too much like children who prefer candy to wholesome food. The question of pleasure is allowed to take the place of principal motive, instead of the question of duty. Yet no man will ever be likely to be successful as a man, until he decides, once for all, that his work is as deserving of enthusiasm and devotion as his play, and that his work will get the benefit of that enthusiasm and that devotion which he would so willingly expend on his pleasure. It is all a question of the will and of the training of the will. When once there is the determination that one's legitimate work shall be performed with that whole energy of the mind which most people devote to play, work will cease to be a task, and will become, if not a pleasure, at least pleasurable. And work like that need spoil no one's capability to play, at the fitting time. Only, then, work will be work, and play will be play.—S. S. Times.

Many pray not to be kept from sin, but to keep it; and with a secret hope that prayer will excuse it and be accepted instead of reformation.—Rev. T. Adams.

SALE OF OLD PATH GUIDE.

The Old Path Guide speaking of "the causes which necessitated a transfer into new hands," says, "For it, the Guide, was in no way responsible. Those who circulated the report, because they had an interest in doing so, that the embarrassment was due to the management of the Guide, simply drew on a distorted imagination for facts." We presume that was intended for us, but it would have been more just to have said so. We drew for our statement upon a balance sheet furnished us of the business of the company, by Chas. Francis, Trustee and business manager of the company. That balance sheet shows that since March 15th, 1884, the Popular Hymns made to the company $1,250 gross, or $1,000 net. One of the Sunday-school papers showed a small profit, the other two a loss, and the Old Path Guide a loss. The company had lost in the same length of time. Bro. Francis stated that the Sunday-school journals about paid out. The one thousand dollars, profit from the Popular Hymns, were all swallowed up and still a loss on the Old Path Guide Company. How can Bro. Allen say the Old Path Guide had nothing to do with this condition of affairs? And how can he charge his brethren with drawing on distorted imaginations, and attribute evil motives to them for these statements made by their own manager? I have also the balance sheet of the business for 1883, which shows a heavy loss on the Old Path Guide. Bro. Cline, the then manager, told me in May, one year ago, that they could not get out two numbers of the Old Path Guide but for the help of Popular Hymns. I asked Bro. Francis how it could have been said as was published in the early part of this year, that the Old Path Guide was paying a good percent on investments. He said it only could be said on the ground, that for a few weeks the receipts were greater than the expenses for those weeks. According to the figures furnished me by the business managers, the Old Path Guide has paid expenses no year of its publication.

If this statement is not true, the fault is not mine. I have been, without any seeking of mine, otherwise than in response to requests for a combination or for bids for the Old Path Guide, very well posted as to its circulation from its beginning. I speak of them now because the Advocate helped to introduce and sell the Popular Hymns. These profits, on the Hymns, have been used to reduce the price of the Guide below cost, and bring the Guide into a competition with the Advocate at less than cost. We feel it is unjust.

And now, after the Hymns have gained a value through the help of the Advocate, they are sold to other parties on terms they were not offered to the Advocate. I mean by this, simply, that Bro. Allen offered his good will and co-operation in the sale to others and refused these to the Advocate if it should bid. Those to whom the sale was made had done nothing to give the Popular Hymns currency, but their influence was against Popular Hymns.

Our attention has just been called to the report of circulation of Old Path Guide for 1883, as given in Alden's Newspaper Directory. It is given there as five thousand. On what kind of an imagination did he who gave this information draw? and who did it? Bro. Allen knows the statement is not true, and Christian papers ought to make true statements about their circulation when they make any.— D. L.

OUR ONLY SAFETY.

A strict construction of the law is necessary to those who have no other guide than the Bible. If those who reject all creeds but the Bible, place a free construction on this, then there is little to restrain them. Human creeds restrain within conservative limits, those who adopt them as their interpretation of the Bible. They become a standard of faith to those who adopt them. They define that faith. We believe this is all wrong. We believe the Bible is the all-sufficient, and the only standard or declaration of faith for the Christian. The adoption of any other, or any human interpretation of this, as the authoritative declaration and exponent of faith, is a displacement and rejection of the Scriptures as the guide of our faith.

But without this fixed and authoritative standard, unless there be a strict construction of the Bible, and a firm adherence to its teachings, the individual is without any standard of authority, and in his faith is liable to drift with every passing wind of doctrine, or to float out into free thinking and his own desires and passions become his standard of faith.

It is a historic truth that all the churches that start out without written creeds or interpretations of the Bible, and claim license to change ordinances and institutions, or to exercise discretion in departing from clear precepts and examples, have drifted into latitudinarianism and semi-scepticism. Congregationalism, whose creed utterances have never been regarded as very authoritative, is now sadly afflicted with this latitudinarian tendency.

The only safety of churches or individuals who reject written authoritative standards, is to cling closely to the rigid interpretations of Scripture precepts and examples. This has been the only ground of safety and union to the disciples in all ages of the world. The moment this is lost sight of, the chord that holds them to the truth, and to each other, and to God, is severed.

This tendency is very marked among the disciples to-day. In many things, there has been a breaking away from Scripture precedent. The breaking away from it, in one point, gives license to break away in a hundred. It not only gives license, but it frequently demands a breaking away in other points to justify and be consistent with the one departure. Just as the committal of one wrong, frequently demands the committal of a dozen others to carry out and justify the one; just as the telling of one lie, demands a dozen others to justify or conceal this one.

One departure never stands alone long, it invites and opens the way for others that soon come. The departure from the divine law of sending the gospel to the destitute, soon demanded the breaking down congregational authority in a dozen places, to justify and harmonize with this. Soon a meeting of such men, women and children as are able to leave home and business and gather at Island Park pleasure ground, for a couple of weeks of recreation, where no church of Christ exists, have men and women to trample on all congregational existence, and lay hands on men and women to send them to heathen lands. Even in pretending to go through the divine order, the fasting is dropped out as it was unpleasant to pleasure seekers. Soon the congregational existence, as an organic body of Christ, is called in question. And men deny the distinct existence of congregations of Christ. They merge them in one general denomination, and strange enough, only those who are able and choose to pay money constitute the officers of this organization. Its officers and managers are self-elected, and are bought with money.

More recently still, Bro. B. B. B., who seem to have assumed the office of justifying all these departures by perverting the Scripture, has written an article to show there are no prescribed order or forms, or institutions of worship ordained by God. But that it is left to the promptings of each man's own preference to worship God just in the manner and through the forms that he may prefer. This justifies almost any departure, and points strongly toward the position of Theodore Parker, who affirmed that the Indian as acceptably worshipped God, as the great Spirit, through his forms, as does the Christian through Jesus Christ.

Of course the example of Cain and Abel, and all the cases in which God rejected worship because not in harmony with his will, are very studiously ignored as are the Scriptures that declare, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrine, the commandments of men." If this path is followed still, as a great many are walking in it, no people will be so afflicted with latitudinarianism and scepticism as the disciples of Christ.

All of it grows out of one single departure from the examples and commandments of the Scripture. One departure justifies, leads to, and demands a thousand. Hence there is no middle ground between a firm and close adherence to Scripture, precept and example, and the ingress of all the errors, follies and delusions that afflict humanity. A departure in a point that seems innocent, leads to a departure in ways and places that are most hurtful. Our safety, our nearness to Christ, our only bond of union in days past, has been found in a strict construction of our constitution and laws, and a firm adherence to the examples and precepts given. We can remain one, can maintain oneness with Christ in the future only by firmly holding to the precepts and examples as set forth by Jesus and the apostles. D. L.

QUERY.

Is it right that a brother should go to one offended by him, and confess the wrong to the one offended, in case the offended one is in reach, before he can be forgiven by the church?—[R. Little, Pine Hill, Rusk county, Texas.

Most certainly a man who has wronged another should confess the wrong to that person first. A confession that does not involve this, is not a scriptural one, and is not from the heart. Every man that is truly sorry of a sin against his brother, will correct it, as far as possible. To confess the wrong and ask forgiveness, is the first test of sincerity. Where a man does not show an anxiety to do this, we may know he is not sincere in his profession of sorrow.

RESPONSE TO INQUIRER.

The article to which this has reference appeared in the Advocate of October 1st. We were absent from home when the article was published, or this, or something similar would have accompanied it. Enquirer is very much mistaken when he understands me to say none but apostles laid on hands. I do not believe any such thing, and affirmed nothing of the sort. Enquirer assumes the thing in dispute when he says the apostles appointed the seven by prayer and imposition of hands. This is the very thing we called in question in the article on sixth of Acts. The seven were appointed, that is plain enough; but that they were appointed by fasting, prayer, and imposition of hands, as an appointing ceremony, is a very different thing. We showed in our article on sixth of Acts, that in all the cases of laying on hands, except two, this one, and thirteenth of Acts, miraculous power was imparted, and that in both these cases miraculous power was exerted immediately afterwards, by those upon whom hands were laid. These are facts incontrovertible. Our brother, like king James' translators, has much in his mind that was not in the mind of the Holy Spirit when the New Testament was written, and this gives him more trouble by far than what is written in the word of the Lord. There is no evidence in the word of the Lord that there was any fixed or set form of appointing any one to any work whatever. We gave several examples of the word appoint in the article our brother calls in question, showing there was no formal ceremony about it, so far as the use of the word in the New Testament indicates.

Our brother still has the idea of office in his head, as is plainly shown by what he says about deacons and evangelists. He thinks it very absurd that one appointment should be sufficient for both offices. We showed plainly in our former articles that there is no such thing in the New Testament as office, in the common acceptance of that term. And as there is no such thing as office, how could there be a formal appointment to a thing that does not exist. But our brother concludes that Stephen and Philip were, after the first appointment, appointed again, to the office or service of evangelists. If the work of evangelist needs any special appointment, we have not yet learned the fact from the New Testament. That they needed miraculous power in those days, no one can question, and that miraculous power was conferred by imposition of hands none can dispute. But if our brother knows an example in the New Testament that shows that a man needed to be appointed or ordained in order to do the work of an evangelist, we should be very glad for him to produce it. He would confer a favor on many by so doing. There are many readers of the Bible that have never found this yet, but would be glad to see it, if there be such.

Also the idea that in this second appointment miraculous power was conferred, needs considerable support, to make it stand the test of the word of God. There is no intimation of such an appointment. It is much easier to say things are so than it is to read them out of the word of God. This is simply guess work, nothing more, and guess work is worth nothing in religion. The only question of any importance is, what does the word of God say about it? And to this we answer, nothing at all. He also asks who were the elders of the church at Jerusalem. The apostles were certainly the first teachers of that congregation. But in the fifteenth of Acts, we have the expression, "the apostles and elders," some three or four times, which would indicate that those called elders then, were not the apostles. But the word elder, only means older ones, not officers. The apostles taught that church until others were competent to teach them, evidently, and then the work of teaching no doubt gradually fell into the hands of others as they became competent. But if any were ever ordained to what is called the office of elder, we are not informed in the word of God. Indeed, if there were ever any official elders in any church, the New Testament is silent on it. The older members were required to take the oversight of the churches, and were appointed to do this work. But this appointment only imposed a work upon them, but did not make them officers. Peter exhorts the elders, the older ones to feed, that is, teach the flock, taking the oversight thereof. He also exhorts the younger ones what to do. But neither the older ones nor younger are spoken of as officers. We think our brother will never see these things clearly till he gets the idea of office out of his head. Enquirer also refers to Acts thirteen as a case of ordination to the office of evangelist. And yet there is not one word said about ordination in the entire connection. Barnabas and Saul had both been preaching for years, but were at this time abiding in the church at Antioch. There were also other inspired teachers there besides them. And as these "ministered to the Lord and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." Here the Holy Spirit said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul.

These men were remaining at Antioch when the Lord had work for them to do elsewhere, and he said by the Spirit, Separate them, send them out from among you. The word rendered separate occurs about ten times in the Greek Testament, and always just means separate, but never ordination. Christ is to sever (separate) the wicked from the just. Paul separated the disciples at Ephesus. These are examples of the same Greek word rendered separate in Acts thirteen. It has no reference to a ceremony of ordination, but only means that these men were to depart from Antioch and do work to which they had been called. And when they were about to depart, the other prophets and teachers fasted, prayed, and laid hands on them. So far as can be determined by the reading, these prophets and teachers are the ones that did the fasting, praying, and laying on of hands. Now what was this for? Not to make them preachers, for they had been preachers for years. While they had been inspired to preach the word, there is not an intimation that either one of them had ever performed a miracle, or that they could do so. But immediately after starting off on this trip, Paul performed a most noted miracle upon Bar-jesus, striking him blind.

Now since it is certain that the general purpose of laying on hands was to impart or exert miraculous power, why not understand that hands were laid on in this case for the same purpose? and especially so, since they immediately exerted miraculous power. And as to the claim that none but apostles could impart miraculous power, our brother will have to substantiate that by the word of God before we can accept it. There are some passages that to our mind prove the reverse, but we will not present them now.

When the brethren at Antioch sent Barnabas and Saul away, the work of separating them was thereby accomplished. The prayer, fasting, and imposition of hands was surely for another purpose. This passage and the one in sixth of Acts are the only ones in which laying on of hands is claimed to have been done as an ordaining ceremony, and it so turns out that nothing is said about ordaining in either case. And besides, the word ordain does not occur in the revised version, at all. The claim therefore that these are cases of ordination rests upon a sandy foundation. We have also shown from the general use of the word appoint, that it does not carry with it any special formality. There is nothing therefore in the connections to hinder the idea that hands were laid on in these two cases to impart miraculous power, which is without any doubt the usual purpose for laying on hands. There were different measures of the Holy Spirit. Some in the days of the apostles had one gift, and some another; some had the gift of tongues, some of healing, and some the interpretation of tongues. Some at first had inspiration, that is, were filled with the Spirit. Paul was filled with the Holy Spirit from the time he was called to be an apostle. But there is no account of his working one single miracle till after hands were laid on him at Antioch. After this time, he wrought many miracles, and began at once after this event. If we will get rid of all that priestcraft has added to the word of God, it will be easy enough to understand what the word of the Lord really teaches. But so long as we try to harmonize the word of God with the traditions and doctrines of men, we shall have trouble. The conclusions our brother has reached as expressed in the close of his article are far more from men than from God in our judgement. But we know he is by no means alone in these conclusions. But there being many on this side of the question does not make it right. Brothers Milligan and McGarvey being on that side does not make it right. They are great and good men, but by no means infallible. We want the word of God on these matters, and not the words of men.

Bro. Milligan is no more, and of course he will not change his views here. But Bro. McGarvey may yet change his views on these matters; that is, men may, and do change, but the word of God never. Hence it is our highest interest to learn what the word of God teaches on these matters. Our anxiety is not to be with the multitude or the great of earth, but to be with the Lord and his word.

If our brother wishes to write more, we hope he will confine himself strictly to the word of God as the foundation for all his conclusions.

The presbytery did confer some sort of gift upon Timothy, but we do not know that Paul was among them. Indeed, he speaks in another place of a gift bestowed on Timothy by the laying on of his own hands. These are spoken of as two occurrences, and likely they were. The passage where Paul tells Timothy to lay hands suddenly on no man, we do not believe from the connection has any reference to ordination whatever, but refers rather to the matter of discipline in the church. It is in immediate connection with matters of discipline, and a man will have to have the idea of ordination already in his head in order to find it in this passage, and then the idea is from without, and not within the passage.

CORRESPONDENCE.

The following will manifest to the readers of the Advocate the bitterness of sectarian prejudice. The brethren of the church at Ashland City, Tenn., announced through the columns of the Reporter, (the Cheatham county paper,) that we would commence a meeting at Carney's school-house, on Marrowbone creek, in that county, the fifth Lord's day in August. The Methodists then announced in the same paper that they would commence a meeting the fourth Lord's day in August at the same place, just a week in advance of ours. Last year at the same place, they commenced two weeks in advance of us and attempted to run over our time. So I was not surprised when I arrived in the neighborhood Saturday evening, to find that they had gone on the entire week, and had announced meeting Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, proposing to disregard and utterly ignore our appointment; and I will here state that the house in which these meetings were held was built by the public, mainly by the Baptist, and our brethren have some stock in it, but the Methodists not a dollar, notwithstanding they usurp such full control. The preacher in charge at Ashland City, who was holding the meeting, left the neighborhood, instructing another preacher, who was comparatively a stranger, to go on with the meeting, who said that if he could be made to understand that it was our appointment that he would have nothing to do with it; but we do not know what it would take to make him understand, for one of our brethren informed him of the facts in the case, telling him that our appointment was of a month's standing, all to no purpose.

When we arrived at the school-house on Lord's day morning, we must confess that we felt amused. A large concourse of people had assembled at an early hour; it seemed that every body had come and brought his family, and the common question upon many tongues was, who is going to preach? while it was rumored by others that there would be two sermons, one in the house and one out of doors. My answer to many, who asked if I were going to preach, was that I had come twenty-three miles to fill my appointment of long standing, and of course I expected to preach, however I would be subject to my brethren, who consulted with the leader among the Methodists, and agreed that both should preach, to which I agreed; but when the program was made known to the Methodist preachers, they declined to say any thing on the occasion, and left me to do the work; so for more than an hour we tried to preach in its simplicity and purity the gospel of Christ.

The Methodists then announced that they would have meeting again at night, and said privately that they thought they would break up that night, but if they did not, that we could have our meeting in a new school house some two miles away, to which we agreed, and announced that we would tell the people that night when and where we would preach the remainder of the week; but, alas, they utterly ignored the presence of myself and many of my brethren in their meeting that night, and announced that they would continue their meeting and dismissed without giving us a chance to say a word; but we called the attention of the crowd, and told them that we would preach at the new school-house above mentioned the next night. But after the crowd dispersed, some of their leaders came around and informed us that according to the way the deed read, we could not use the school-house to preach in. So as we had nowhere there to preach we went five miles away and preached Monday and Monday night and returned home Tuesday; and as they doubtless felt like they had accomplished their purpose, (kept us out) they broke up Tuesday night. Why are the sects so afraid to have the gospel preached in their midst? Is not this spirit akin to the spirit that catches away the word when sown in the heart? But for want of time and space we would criticise some strange things we saw and heard in the Methodist meeting referred to.

Cooper town, Tenn.

W. B. WRIGHT.

[Bro. Wright ought to regret the course of these Methodist friends only as he regrets foibles and follies in others. Such courses always injure those who do the wrong, help those who patiently suffer it.—D. L.]

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: We take the following extract from Southern Baptist Almanac, 1850. A tract in it written by Dr. J. R. Graves, "Evils of Infant Baptism," found on page 24, 25. The doctor says: "Infant baptism is an evil destruction of the doctrines of THE BIBLE. It is directly at war with its plain teachings, and subversive of its cardinal doctrines." Then follows the doctrines it is supposed to subvert; the seventh says, "It changes the order of the requirements of Christ and thus throws the whole plan of salvation and order of the gospel into utter confusion and uncertainty, reducing all to a mass of contradiction and absurdity."

The plan and order, published by Christ is, (1) Faith; (2) Repentance; (3) Baptism; (4) Observing all other commandments. This order is embraced and enjoined in the commission, (1) Preach, that the people may hear and believe; (2) Baptize the believer, "he that believeth and is baptized—"; (3) Teach them to observe all (other) things whatsoever I have commanded you, among which was union with the church and the supper, from which order we clearly see that believers only are to be baptized, and baptized believers only to eat of the supper. Now the system of infant baptism inverts and subverts the whole order and harmony of the plan. It teaches that man may vary the order to suit his purpose. One order is (1) baptize; (2) unite with the church; (3) eat the supper; (4) hear the gospel, etc. Another order is (1) unite with the church, (being born into it); (2) baptism; (3) repentance and faith. The order is again changed thus, (1) eat the supper, (as a means of grace), and then join the class six months; (2) be baptized and confirmed; (3) observe the rules of the discipline, in which there is no requirement for regeneration." There is a plan of salvation proclaimed in certain places after this order, (1) preach; (2) hear; (3) believe, i. e. have historical faith; (3) repent; (4) exercise (or receive) saving faith; (5) tell an experience, after which, if it is accepted by the church, (6) be baptized; (7) unite with the church; (8) eat supper, etc. The Doctor's order and plan seems to exclude this also from the teachings and doctrines of THE BIBLE. ## NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. W. Smith, Lynchburg, Tenn., October 6, writes: "Just home from a trip to Robertson Fork. Preached five discourses, four were added to the church at Center Hill, five added to the church in all."

J. H. Webb, Wenasaga, Miss., October 7, writes: "Bro. J. B. Walker preached for us here on the night of the fourth Sunday in September, resulting in three additions. Bro. Walker is a young preacher, but is having fine success. Bro. M. Kendrick preaches here once a month."

J. M. Kidwill, New Middleton, Smith County, Tenn., October 4, writes: "We closed a meeting at this place last night with seven additions; six by confession and baptism, and one from the Baptist church. We had a better hearing than usual for this place; the brethren think that much prejudice has been removed. Others seem almost persuaded to be Christians."

A. R. Kendrick, Corinth, Miss., October 3, writes: "Bro. M. Kendrick and I preached six days at Henson, three miles North of Corinth, and had eleven additions to the church. Bro. J. B. Walker, who had recently taken up the preacher's cross, continued the meeting two nights and baptized one into Christ. Had ten additions recently at Oak Hill, our home congregation. We have some troubles here even among brethren, in contending for the old way. But we hope, work and pray for more of the Spirit of Christ among us that we may work together in gospel unity."

B. W. Lauderdale, Bailey, Tenn., October 4, writes: "Thyatira, third Lord's day in September, preached twice; two restored to fellowship. At Antioch, Tate county, third Lord's day preached twice; one added by baptism. Between the third and fourth Lord's day in September, I preached eight discourses in a tent made of bushes and cotton bagging; the tent was in full view of a Methodist house. I was denied the use of the house. I had good congregations at night, and pretty good in the day. I think good was done. No additions. Such opposition when fairly ~~can~~ do harm to the truth."

Obituaries.

Little Ada Story, daughter of John W. and Clara Story, of Paris, Texas, took her abode with the angels of eternal bliss, on August 25. Notwithstanding she had all the skillful treatment that kind parents and the best physicians could command, the grim monster claimed her as his own, and unloosed her little spirit from its tenement of clay, so that the angels could waft it sweetly over the dark river, and land it safely in its haven of eternal rest. Friends and relatives, cheer up; there's another bright jewel in the firmament of heaven to beckon us on home. P. D. H.

On the night of September 19, death, the unwelcome visitor, made an inroad into the family of James and Elizabeth Rogers, and claimed as his victim their beloved son, William Commodore, aged almost twenty-one. He was born in Lauderdale county, Alabama. The happy hours of childhood were spent there. Although he had sweet recollections of the present life, he had for some time been impressed with the truths of the gospel, but had postponed obedience to the Master, though, during the first days of his illness, he was buried with Christ in baptism, to arise and walk in newness of life. He seemed ever quiet after he had obeyed, and rejoiced in the hope of a blessed immortality beyond the grave, where to-day, no doubt, he dwells with God and angels. When he neared the river of death, he called every member of the family up, and exhorted those out of the ark of safety to obedience, and those who had made the good confession to be faithful to the end, and meet him in heaven. And to the one that had promised to share his earthly future, exhorted to meet him in that place of true happiness above; and though he regretted to leave her in her loneliness, it was all right. And to his dear grandfather, a true veteran of the cross of Christ, whose hoary head shows the frost of many winters, and tottering steps show that he is fast nearing the Eternal City, he turned to converse; but I am too sad to say any more. I pray God's blessings to rest on the bereaved ones, and may this affliction be in mercy sent. W. L. A.

Sister Laura J. Wood departed this life, in Skylesville, Muhlenburg county, Ky., on September 20, 1884. Sister Wood was born March 14, 1828; was united in marriage to W. J. Wood, in Maysville, Ky., October 5, 1848, old Bro. John Young officiating; obeyed the gospel under the preaching of Bro. Pickett, in Maysville, Ky., in October, 1846. Her husband died in Memphis, Tenn., leaving her with six small children—two sons and four daughters—to whom she devoted the best efforts of her life. She was a woman of wonderful energy. Having comparatively little of this world's goods, she met promptly the grave responsibilities resting upon her, and, with her dear children, struggled on bravely in the great battle of life. The oldest daughter died in Memphis some years ago, in the Christian's hope. The other five still survive her, to mourn as only children can for a dear mother who has been their best friend and only protector. Sister Wood devoted her life to her children. They have never felt the sting of poverty. They have had the good of the land, and their education has not been neglected. They have every reason to thank God for a good mother in all the relations of life. Sister Wood was a Christian. She loved the Lord, and his people, and his service, and through a long widowed life she realized that God was to her a husband, and a father to her children. When death came she was ready. She said from the start that she would not get well. She was in her right mind all the time, and no one who visited her during her sickness can ever forget that entire resignation to the Master's will. With a blessing for all upon her lips, and a prayer for her children, she fell asleep. The funeral services were conducted by the writer, in the presence of a large assembly, in the Christian church at Rochester, Butler county, Ky., on September 21. May God bless and comfort the dear children, and may we all meet her in heaven.

JOHN P. TUCK.

A striking instance of the power of a suddenly awakened conscience occurred recently in Halifax, N. S. The national division of the Sons of Temperance being in session in that city, General S. F. Cary, of Ohio, lectured on temperance on the evening of July 12. At the close he addressed himself particularly to liquor sellers, using very strong language. In the audience was Wm. Lowe, a liquor dealer of the city. The speech of General Cary affected this man so much that he was taken ill immediately on reaching home, and lived only two hours. His wife had always been opposed to his continuing in the liquor business, and at times he had been almost persuaded to give it up. Mr. Lowe showed great agitation at the close of the meeting.

A Safeguard.

The fatal rapidity with which slight Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the gravest maladies of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand, as a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

Nothing else gives such immediate relief and works so sure a cure in all affections of this class. That eminent physician, Prof. F. Sweetzer, of the Maine Medical School, Brunswick, Me., says:—

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."

The same opinion is expressed by the well-known Dr. L. J. Addison, of Chicago, Ill., who says:—

"I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice of medicine, any preparation of so great value as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is more effective than anything else in relieving even the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

Is not a new claimant for popular confidence, but a medicine which is to-day saving the lives of the third generation who have come into being since it was first offered to the public.

There is not a household in which this invaluable remedy has once been introduced where its use has ever been abandoned, and there is not a person who has ever given it a proper trial for any throat or lung disease susceptible of cure, who has not been made well by it.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has, in numberless instances, cured obstinate cases of chronic Bronchitis, Laryngitis, and even acute Pneumonia, and has saved many patients in the earlier stages of Pulmonary Consumption. It is a medicine that only requires to be taken in small doses, is pleasant to the taste, and is needed in every house where there are children, as there is nothing so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for treatment of Croup and Whooping Cough.

These are all plain facts, which can be verified by anybody, and should be remembered by everybody.

Kentucky Contributions and Correspondence.

This Department is conducted by JAMES A. HARDING, Winchester, Ky., to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

DEAR BRO. HARDING: Your letter of September 13 was received Saturday evening, just before I left Huntsville. We commenced a meeting here, yesterday, which will continue for some time. The Baptists have kindly agreed that we shall have the use of their house. When the Cumberland and the Methodists heard I was coming, they commenced a union meeting, so as to hinder the progress of our meeting; but we had a good attendance yesterday and last night.

In order to meet with your request, I will give you an account of my meeting in Calhoun County. The place where the meeting was held was in a grove, near Ragan's Chapel, a Methodist meeting-house, ten miles north of Lincoln, Alabama. I never had a meeting where there were more discouraging circumstances thrown around me than at this place. The Baptists and Methodists were both holding revivals near by. Our meetings were held in a grove, because we could not get the use of a house, and at four o'clock P. M., so as to not come in conflict with the appointments of the Methodists and Baptists; but as soon as the Methodists heard this, they made their appointment at three o'clock; by so doing they monopolized all of the time. The first time that I preached, when I was in the midst of my discourse, a rain fell which broke up the services. I then made an appointment for the next day, but only a few came out next day to hear, because the election and those two revivals had more attraction than the pure word of God. I attended services several nights, at Ragan's Chapel. The first night that I attended, the preacher, Mr. D. D. Warlick, invited me to preach. I consented to do so; but I had no sooner accepted his invitation, than he asked me to take a walk with him. As we walked down the road he cautioned me very particularly that I should not speak on certain subjects. I said to him, "it is my aim to preach the Bible in its purity; and where it speaks, I speak; but where it is silent, I must be also." "Well," said he, "you must not speak on the subject of baptism, for we are all satisfied with our baptism now!" I, however, preached on the Christian's directory, as given in 2 Peter 1: 5-11, showing that men must live consistent Christian lives. When I was through he complimented my remarks by saying that he had most certainly heard the truth.

I was well supplied with tracts and distributed them whenever I had an opportunity; this put the people to reading their Bibles. The people are taught that they cannot be Christians unless they "get religion" at the mourner's bench, or in the grove. Some of the tracts that were distributed were, "Errors of the Anxious Seat." One of them fell into the preacher's hands. He had been laboring hard to get sinners to come to the mourner's bench, but very few came. Now the secret of the failure is revealed—"the devil is in our midst, and he must be driven out." With this feeling of revenge burning in his bosom, he came to meeting that night. I was there, but wholly unconscious of what the little tract had done. I did not leave there, though, till I found it had created a spirit of vengeance in Warlick's heart. I will give a sketch of the proceedings there that night:

In Warlick's first prayer, he prayed to God to make the people know that the Bible is a dead letter. Without reading any Scripture at all, he began his sermon immediately after prayer. His text was, "By grace ye are saved." In his sermon he made many personal references to me. He finally closed by saying, "we are saved by grace, and by grace alone." This grace, he said, was some secret power which God imparts by his Spirit into man's heart to make him of his children. When he closed his remarks he called for mourners, but only a few came, after working with them for a while, trying to get up an excitement, in which he failed, as he had on the night previous, he proceeded then to denounce me. I quote some of his remarks: "My friends, I don't want you to think that religion is something to be received through a series of logical reasonings addressed to the human intellect, as one who sits before me teaches, (pointing to me,) for it is all a lie; because religion comes into a man's heart as a direct gift from God, and is not dependent on this dead letter which lies before me (the Bible). It does not matter whether a man lives by its teachings or not; he is all right, if his feelings tell him that God, for Christ's sake, has forgiven his sins. I feel the Holy Ghost in my heart right now, bearing witness to my spirit that I am a child of God. O to God, that you all could feel him in your heart as I do! Now, let me warn you against this Campbellite who is in our midst, preaching that men must obey the Bible, or they can't be saved; for I tell you that this doctrine is leading thousands of souls to hell. This Campbellite doctrine amounts to nothing anyhow. They are a very insignificant people, not known at any place long at a time. I say, let me impress it upon your minds, to beware of Satan, who often transforms himself into an angel of light. The devil is in our midst to-night, in the form of a man, and here he is (pointing to me.) Beware of him, don't listen to him; for if you do, he will lead you astray, just as Satan tried to lead Christ; but you with Christ must say to him, 'get behind me, Satan.'"

After having denominated me as the devil, he sat down, and asked if any one wished to say anything. I rose (Bible in hand) and asked if I might say a word. "No, you shan't," said he, "sit down." I sat down, but I had no sooner touched the seat than I rose again, and asked permission to announce my appointment. In answer to which he said: "You shall not speak a word in my house; if you do, I will kick you out." As I sat down, I said to him, "you have shown to us that you have the Spirit of Christ." He then dismissed the audience very abruptly. I then pressed my way through the audience till I came to the preacher. I told him that I did not think he ought to do to any one as he had done to me, and that I taught nothing but what I could prove by the Bible, etc. This made him so very mad that he shook his fist in my face. He made his way out of the house as soon as he possibly could. Most of the congregation gathered around me, and I preached the gospel to them, (still in the house,) and distributed tracts among them for more than half an hour. On the next evening after this took place we had a much better attendance than we ever had before. Our meeting then took a turn for the better. Some of the Methodists asked me to send an appointment to a school-house near Ragan's, which I did most willingly. When the time arrived for me to preach at the school-house, I found a good audience assembled, composed mostly of Methodists, and among them a preacher. On this occasion I preached two hours on the subject "What must I do to be saved?" presenting to them, as fully as I could, the gospel plan of salvation. Our meeting continued for two weeks, and during this time I baptized five persons, two of them Methodists.

The way Warlick treated me has almost killed Methodism in that community, and has made many friends to the cause of Christ. Bro. Briant has held a meeting near this place since I was there, and baptized about sixteen persons, and started the little band to work, and they have built a very neat house in which to worship. I should have stated that Bro. David T. Macon was the cause of my going into this neighborhood to hold this meeting. He was one of the number whom I baptized while there. He is a very zealous disciple now. May the Lord bless him.
Scottsboro, Ala. J. W. SHEPHERD.

DEAR BRO. HARDING: Bro. J. W. Shepherd began a meeting at the Baptist church here, on September 21, which closed last night. Twenty were added to the Lord—seventeen by baptism, and three reclaimed. Sectarian opposition ran high. Having heard of our intention to begin a meeting, they began a union meeting at the Presbyterian church, on Tuesday night before, after having just closed a meeting of six weeks, resulting in one profession; and as soon as they saw we were having a good hearing from the country some two or three miles away, they sent one of their preachers out to a school-house in order to begin a meeting, and, if possible, checkmate us in that quarter, while the other continued the meeting in town. Also, I understand that they tried to get their Baptist friends to turn us out of their house.

I know you will be glad to hear of the above results, (I mean the results of our meeting,) and also that we are continuing our Lord's day meetings. We meet each Lord's day to break bread, and to attend to the things spoken of Paul.

Now, as you come south, can't you call and see us? You can do great good here now. Almost every one I meet asks me when Bro. Harding is coming back. Bro. Shepherd, however, had all the time a large and attentive audience. He is a man who is able to present and defend the truth, and to expose error. Hoping to hear from you soon, I am, dear sir, yours in the one hope, Scottsboro, Alabama. W. J. ROREX.

This letter is a very pleasing one to me for several reasons. Eight or nine years ago I baptized the speaker who conducted the meetings, Bro. J. W. Shepherd: then he was a boy perhaps less than fifteen years of age; now he is a faithful preacher of the gospel, and an able defender of the faith, a son in whose work I delight. Then the news from Scottsboro is grand! Less than a year ago there were only six disciples there, and they were so discouraged and weak that they did not dare to hope for a good meeting; but we did have a good one, and eleven were added to the number; they have met every Lord's day since, and now they number about thirty-five. They will grow in strength and numbers just as certain as they remain true to the Lord.

If brethren have means to expend in the Master's service, and know nothing of more importance demanding their help, they might wisely minister to the church at Scottsboro. The brethren there desire to build a house for their meetings; though they have not requested me to say this. Bro. Rorex can be addressed.

END OF KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT.

CORRESPONDENCE

Seeing an article in the ADVOCATE of September 10, written by Bro. Jacob Creath, I feel somewhat inclined to explain one thing a little more explicitly, viz., in speaking of Acts 22: 16, "Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins." I do not want the people who read the ADVOCATE, that do not know our teaching, to think Bro. Creath had any reference to the water washing away sins. It is the blood of Christ that cleanses us from all sins. Nor does Acts 22: 16, say baptism washes away sins. But we have done everything else, and now he says, "Why tarriest thou? Arise, and be baptized," wherein we come in contact (typically) with Christ's blood, which washes away sins. Therefore it is not baptism, but it takes that (baptism) to bring us to the blood.
Eugene City, Oregon. J. H. MOORE.

HOW TO SEND MONEY BY MAIL.

The Trustee is led to believe that there are a number who are anxious to buy tracts of, or to send a gift to; the Christian Sower Tract Fund, but who are puzzled to know how to send the money. Here are six ways, either of which will prove successful: (1) A one or two dollar bill may be sent in a well sealed and plainly directed envelope, but do not send silver or gold in this way; (2) by registered letter; (3) by post-office money order; (4) by post-office note for less than five dollars; (5) by bank check; (6) by postage stamps in a well-sealed and plainly directed envelope, and without registering. I will take all risks on money sent in either of these six ways. Some do not like to take postage stamps, but the Trustee will take any amount and of any denomination, as they are as easily used as currency. So, if you had rather, send on the stamps. This notice will answer the question so often asked, "How can I send money?" "Will you take postage stamps?" Address J. W. Higbee, Mexico, Mo.

Herein lies a great truth. We are builders of our own characters. We have different positions, spheres, capacities, privileges, different work to do in the world, different temporal fabrics to raise; but we are all alike in this—all are architects of fate.—J. F. W. Wane.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: I am anxious to see something from you in regard to washing the saints feet. Bro. Armstrong has written several pieces, contending that it is obligatory upon us, and I must admit that he seems to sustain it by Scriptural authority. Now as we claim to be a people claiming to be governed by God's holy word, is it a church ordinance? If so, why neglected so long by us as a general thing? I hear that it is practiced among some who claim Christ as their head. I have been a subscriber of the GOSPEL ADVOCATE for many years, and I admire the spirit of investigation it tolerates, and if it continues, I will be a life-time subscriber. Perhaps if we had washed the saints feet, the organ and all the other innovations that have been brought in, that have disturbed the body of Christ, would by this act of humility have caused peace and harmony. I want you at your earliest convenience to write on the subject. I want to know my duty; pride will be no barrier in my way; and lest I write too lengthily, I will desist, wishing you peace and prosperity.—[L. E. Sheridan, Stephenville, Erath County, Texas, September 26, 1884.]

To see how little impression we make on our readers discourages us. We get every few weeks a query as to the meaning of 1 John, "Whosoever is born of God sinneth not." We cannot answer it every time it is asked, nor can we at any time give a clear elucidation. We have made it a rule to do the best we can with it every few months since we have published the ADVOCATE, still, regularly, the question comes up, as if we had never mentioned it. So of foot-washing, we have not given our convictions of it so often, but think no year has passed, of the nineteen of our connection with the ADVOCATE, that we have not presented what we regarded truth on the subject. We do not believe the disciples' feet were washed the same night the Savior instituted the supper. We do not believe foot-washing was ever observed at a church meeting. It is never classed with church observances. It is classed among good works to be followed by the individual members. I believe as such it is of perpetual obligation. It should be observed by Christians in their social and private intercourse as an act of kindness, humility and love. The apostle classed it with entertaining strangers, bringing up children, relieving the afflicted, and every good work. With these, it stands as of perpetual obligation on all Christians for all time. Its performance would no doubt give humility and spiritual strength, and tend to keep us in the way of truth and righteousness, and hold us back from sins that spring from pride and worldliness. D. L.

DEAR BRO. LIPSCOMB: I see in the ADVOCATE of October 1, a letter published, that I wrote you in last month. I did not write the letter for publication, nor for controversy. I do not object to the publication, however, for I am never ashamed of my sentiments. I write this not for controversy, for I esteem you too highly for your work's sake to desire any controversy with you. I must say, in all kindness, Bro. Lipscomb, that your remarks on my letter have not, in the least, changed my mind. In all the cases in Acts that you have cited, they were Jews; and it was their custom to call each other brethren. When Peter had preached to them at Pentecost, they said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" But I think it would puzzle you to find the place where they call any Gentile brother. The Gentiles were all religious in their way. So the heathens are now. They are Brahmins, or Buddhists, or Moham-medans, etc. They are very religious. Shall we call them brethren? Now, I think that we can with as much propriety call them brethren, as we can a Methodist, Presbyterian, or Baptist. And as to the persons who have left us and gone into any of the human societies of the present day, I do not call, nor consider them brethren. In going into the societies and doing the things that you enumerate, they clearly abandon the cause of Christ, and barter the pure word of God for the commandments of men. Jesus said of such, "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrine the commandments of men." Matt. 15: 9. Now, if the people to whom Jesus spake worshipped him in vain because they mixed the commandments of men with the word of God, so do those who do the same now. To worship in vain, is to worship without effect, or to no purpose; or, it is a worship that God will not accept. According to this logic, God will not accept the worship of persons who have instituted human societies through which to do their worship and service. They have done all this without even a shadow of authority from God's word, and have, according to the testimony of Jesus, vitiated all their worship. I cannot claim as brethren those who I know worship God in a manner that is an abomination to him. "He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination." Prov. 28: 9. Surely all who introduce organs into the worship, and engage in festivals, and parties, and societies, for a pretence to raise money to carry on the Lord's work, have turned away the ear from hearing the law. I am exceedingly sorry that such is the case. Many, very many, of those who were the leading men among us have turned away, and have gone with the tide of popularity. I can hardly believe they are so ignorant. If you wish to publish this, do so; if otherwise, all well. The future to me looks dark for the cause of Christ; yet, when I read the ADVOCATE and Review, and thus hear from the many heroes we yet have in the field, I take courage, and press for the mark of the prize of the high calling in Christ Jesus. "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." I. C. STONE.

Peter and Paul, after becoming Christians, conformed to no Jewish custom that compromised the Christian religion. If they could call those wicked Jews brethren, and yet tell them they were the persecutors and crucifiers of the Son of God, and of his church, I do not sin in calling persons claiming to be Christians, brethren, while striving to show them their departure from the truth of God. I don't propose to get more strict than the apostles, if I can help it. It is easy to reason ourselves into theories and to run to extremes, but plain Scripture examples are safer than any of our reasonings. Kindness toward opposers of the truth, while plainly warning them of error, is certainly demanded by the Christian religion.

ITEMS AND PERSONALS.

Bro. Allen, of the Old Path Guide, has gone to Texas. His address at present is at Mason.

Bro. J. F. Billingsly has removed from Saltillo, Miss., to Weatherford, Parker county, Texas.

Bro. R. P. Meeks, the Lord willing, will begin a protracted meeting at Berea, Maury County, Tenn., Saturday before the third Lord's day in October.

Bro. J. A. Harding will hold a debate with a Mr. Wilkerson, on December 15, at some point in Canada. Mr. Wilkerson is considered one of the strongest paedobaptists in Canada.

Beginning the third Lord's day in September, the word of the Lord was glorified at Ashland City by the turning of twenty-five from darkness to light; Bro. Granville Lipscomb doing the greater part of the preaching.

Wm. H. Devore, Beallsville, Monroe, County, Ohio, October 8, writes: "I have just closed a meeting at Antioch, Ohio. It commenced September 27th, closed October 6th, with seventeen additions; sixteen by baptism, one reclaimed."

We are sorry to learn of the dangerous illness of Prof. N. B. Smith, of Franklin County, Tenn. He has been quite feeble for a number of years; recently has had a spell of typhoid fever with a tendency to flux. Those near him despair of his recovery.

GIVING.

Yes, I always give for missions and everything else," said Phil. "I give something every Sunday, don't you?"

"Why, no—I give five or ten cents when I think I can spare it, when I have a good deal of money and don't want it all for anything," said Tom.

"I give whatever papa or mamma give me for it," said James. "Sometimes its more and sometimes its less."

"Oh, I always give my own money," said Phil. "I don't think it's any giving at all unless you do that."

"Your's is the best way, I'm sure," said Tom, soberly. "They say that it is the regular giving that counts."

"And then, of course, what you give is just so much out of what you'd like to spend on yourself."

"Yes," said Phil., feeling very self-denying and virtuous.

"I'm going to try your way," said Tom. "And I'm going to keep an account and see what it will amount to."

The three boys were on their way home from Sunday-school where they had heard, from a missionary, some very interesting accounts of the great work which is going on in Africa. He had treated his subject with all the power which comes of a heart glowing with zeal in the grand work to which he had devoted his life, and love for the poor creatures whose eyes had learned to look to him in earnest seeking for the knowledge of the way of life.

And, as heart always awakens heart, he had succeeded in deeply stirring the sympathies of his young hearers as he told of lives wretched and degraded in this world and hopeless as regards any other, of down-trodden women and neglected children who are crying out to those in our favored land: "Come over and help us."

So that many of them went away with the solemn feeling that they should, in some sense, be held answerable if they did not strive to hold out a helping hand to those in such sore need. For the present it was plain that the missionary interest was to be centered in the Dark Continent, and little societies were formed among Sunday-school children, they believing it would be pleasanter to put their gifts together than to offer them separately.

Several boys came to Phil's house on the next afternoon to talk it over, and Phil brought his account book to put down their names as the first members of their society, with a preamble in which occurred many high-sounding words setting forth their resolves and intentions.

"Oh, that's my account book, uncle. I brought it down to take names and draw up resolutions for our missionary society."

"May I read it, or is it a secret organization?"

"Certainly you can. I am simply, you know, trying to work up the idea of liberal giving among the boys."

"A most excellent idea," said his uncle, concealing his amusement at Phil's rather pompous tone. "Let me see—bananas, twenty-five cents; soda water, ten cents; peanuts, twenty-five cents; bat, thirty five cents; candy, fifteen cents; baseball cap, seventy-five cents; Sunday-school, six cents—"

"Oh, stop, uncle George, that isn't it. That's when I was visiting at cousin Tom's, and I promised mamma I'd put down every cent I spent."

But uncle George seemed not to hear and went on:

"Peanuts, fifteen cents; bananas, twenty-five cents; getting shoe mended, forty cents; soda water, ten cents; missionaries, five cents; getting bat mended, fifteen cents; lemonade for the boys, fifty cents; bananas, twenty-five cents; collection in church, two cents."

"Please give me the book, uncle."

"I am glad you don't forget your charitable duties, Phil," said his uncle, giving up the book with rather a mischievous smile.

Phil took it in some confusion. He had heretofore thought but little more of his spendings than to remember his mother's wish that he should keep an account of the money with which she kept him so liberally supplied. Now, in looking over his hasty entries, he was astonished.

"Well, well!" he exclaimed, as he added up one page, "two dollars and ninety cents for eating and play, and seventeen cents for giving. And I bragging to the boys what a good thing it is to give regularly!"

He was a conscientious boy, and his heart smote him as he ran over the long list and thought with his newly-awakened feelings of the bread of life which that much money might have carried to starving souls. If his mother had aimed to teach him a lesson through his account book she had not failed.

He got up at last and stood before the glass.

"Now, my young man," He said, shaking his head very threateningly at the boyish face he saw there, "you know very well that a quarter for peanuts doesn't look any larger to you than a pin's head, and that a quarter for giving looks as big as a cart wheel—but that's got to stop, sir! This book isn't going to hold any more accounts of dollars for trash and cents for Sunday-school."

—N. Y. Observer.

WHY SHE "COULDN'T HELP IT."

"Oh, mamma, I am sorry! but I couldn't help it; I didn't mean to do it."

And so saying, Minnie Norris looked down at the fragments of what had been a very pretty pink china cup and saucer, as they lay upon the floor in a most pitiable state; such tiny fragments some of them, mere chips, that it was well nigh impossible to put them all together again.

"Of course you didn't mean to do it," answered her mother, "but why did you meddle with the cup?"

"I wanted a drink, and—"

"You might just as well have taken a drink out of one of the goblets," said Alice, Minnie's youngest sister, to whom the cup had belonged.

"The goblets are all in the dining-room closet, besides water tastes so much nicer out of anything pretty. I am sorry I broke your cup, Alice; indeed, I couldn't help it. I'll give you my new vase to make up."

Alice was very easily pacified, and as she knew that her sister's destruction of the cup and saucer was not intentional, she said no more about it; neither did their mother.

Grandma Norris was sitting in her arm-chair, knitting as usual, and when the above conversation took place, she looked up over her spectacles, first at the children, then at their mother, but she said nothing.

The next day Minnie came home from school with a grievous rent in her best merino school dress; when her mother uttered an exclamation of dismay, she hastened to say:

"I am real sorry, mamma! I caught my dress on a nail in the school-yard fence. I couldn't help it tearing."

Again grandma looked up over her spectacles, but said nothing.

Just before bedtime there was a chorus of "ohs!" and "ahs!" from the table in the back parlor where the Norris children were clustered, preparing their lessons for the next morning.

"What is the matter out there?" asked their father, whose perusal of the evening newspaper had been disturbed by their cries.

"I upset the ink bottle, papa," answered Minnie.

"All over my new atlas, too," grumbled Will. "It will not hurt it; it has only gone on the paper cover; and I'm sure we're mopping it up as fast as we can," cried Minnie.

"How came you to be so careless?" "I don't know, sir. I s'pose one of my books must have hit in some way. I did not mean to do it; I'm sure I couldn't help it," she replied. "I'm very sorry about it."

"Well perhaps you couldn't avoid it; but do be more careful! For a girl twelve years old, you certainly get into a great many scrapes," said her mother quickly, afraid, perhaps, that Mr. Norris might feel it his duty to scold Minnie or to punish her.

Half an hour later Minnie was in her pretty little bedroom preparing for her night slumbers, when grandma came in.

"As a general rule, Minnie dear, I think you are a truthful girl. I was very glad to hear you own up so promptly and courageously when you upset that ink bottle a little while ago, but was exceedingly sorry to hear you tell an untruth about it."

"An untruth grandma? I don't remember it? What did I say?" and Minnie looked and felt very much puzzled.

"The same, also untrue, which you said when you broke Alice's cup and saucer, when you tore your dress this morning, and which you have said on many, many other occasions—that you couldn't help it."

"But, grandma, surely that was the truth! I could not help dropping the cup, nor—"

"Just think a moment my dear; it was not at all necessary for you to have touched the cup; in fact, it was not yours, and you should not have done so; but after touching it, you did not grasp it firmly. Suppose, for example, you had been sure that it would have cost you your life if you dropped it, could not you have avoided the calamity?"

"Yes, ma'am, I suppose so."

"And your dress was torn on a nail. I fancy that you were able to avoid going so near the nail. Where was it?"

Minnie looked the least bit guilty as she explained that she was trying to climb up the fence just for fun, not even to really get over it, and when she jumped down the offending nail did the mischief.

"Then you could have helped it?"

"Yes, ma'am. I understand now what you mean, I think. And if I had not been pushing my books on the table, so as to joggle Alice's slate, I would not have upset the ink."

"Exactly so. I am glad that you comprehend what I mean that in saying you 'couldn't help' this, that or the other, you were not telling the truth. You should have said, 'I did not try, as I ought to have done, to avoid unfortunate consequences' to some apparent trifling act. When one does what he ought not to do, or leaves a plain duty undone, one is responsible for the results, and therefore we can 'help it' oftener than we realize."

"Next time, grandma, I'll try and only say, 'I didn't mean to do it,' when I meet such misfortunes; for I see now that I wasn't really truthful when I complained I 'couldn't help it.'"—Universalist.

SOMETHING HE DID KNOW.

In former days candidates for admission to certain churches were examined as to their knowledge of sundry doctrines. Questions which no theologian could answer were gravely put to uneducated men, and even to boys. On the length of his reply and the frequency with which he used the stereotyped phrases depended, in some degree, the approval which the Church committee showed the candidate.

Among the young people in a New England village, who professed themselves Christians, was a simple-minded youth of the smallest possible amount of wit consistent with moral responsibility. But being sincerely anxious to join the church, he presented himself to the church committee. The first question put to him was:

"Do you understand the doctrine of the Trinity?"

"No, I can't say I do."

"Can you give the committee a definition of regeneration?"

"I don't think I can."

"Well, what do you understand by foreordination? Take plenty of time to answer," said a kind-hearted old deacon, thinking the candidate was confused.

"I don't know much about it."

"Can't you give us some opinion respecting God's decrees?"

"I'm afraid not."

"Well, then," said the minister, a little impatiently, "what do you know?"

Promptly came the answer:

"I know that I'm a sinner, and I know that Christ died to save me. And I want to join the church to get more help from Christ and his people."

Every member of that committee felt rebuked, and one of them said afterward, "I learned from that moment to respect the spiritual knowledge of the humblest man or woman, and not to think so much of that knowledge which comes from the head alone."—Selected.

A Prominent Farmer Writes.

ROBERT STATION, Jones county, Ga., June 20th, 1884.—By the recommendation of Rev. O. C. Davis, I used Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir for indigestion, debility and nervous prostration, having been a great sufferer for years and tried all known remedies for these diseases, all of which failed. Five bottles of Lemon Elixir made a new man of me, and restored my strength and energy so that I can attend to my farm with all ease and comfort. Refer any one to me.

WILLIAM B. EMERSON.

A CARD.

From a number of St. Louis' prominent citizens as to the merits of Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir, the following named gentlemen pronounce it the only pleasant, thoroughly reliable and economical remedy they have ever used for the diseases for which it is recommended.

Judge Alex. — Davis, Fourth and Chestnut streets.

Judge John P. Hughes, 102 N. Fourth St.

Hon. J. I. Martin, office opposite Four Courts.

T. P. Grasty, Law office, 1107 Clark avenue.

Capt. J. A. K. Stotts, of the St. Louis Beef Canning Company.

Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir, prepared at his drug store, 114 Whitehall street, Atlanta, Ga.

It cures all biliousness, constipation, indigestion, headache, malaria, kidney disease, fever, chills, impurities of the blood, loss of appetite, debility and nervous prostration by regulating the liver, stomach, bowels, kidney and blood.

Fifty cents for one half pint bottle, one dollar for pint and half bottle. Sold by druggists generally, and for by all wholesale druggists, Memphis, Tenn.

"Their Occupation Gone."

R. V. Pierce, M. D., Buffalo, N. Y.: I was attacked with congestion of the lungs, soreness over the liver, severe pain in the joints, a burning fever, and general giving away of the whole system. Failing to find relief in remedies prescribed, I tried your "Golden Medical Discovery." It effected my entire cure. Your medicines have only to be used to be appreciated. If every family would give them a trial, nine-tenths of the doctors would, like Othello, find their occupation gone. Yours truly, L. B. McMillan, M. D., Breeseport, N. Y.

"My child is rosy cheeked and cured; Samaritan Nervine did it." Mrs. Wm. Schelpeper, Nichols, Iowa, $1.50 at Druggists.

Some years since, the Mason & Hamlin Company became interested in a plan for the improvement of upright pianos, which commended itself to their large experience as musical instrument makers, as promising to be of very great practical value. Realizing the fact that such an improvement rarely comes into existence perfect from the start, they have been for several years experimenting with, perfecting, and testing it. At last they announce complete success, and claim that the pianos with this improvement, which they have commenced to manufacture and sell, produce more pure, musical tones, and are desirable than those without it. They are more durable, and more easily turned than other pianos, and will stand much better in tune.—Boston Journal.

Skepticism was routed when the people knew the virtues of Samaritan Nervine. No cure no pay.

Hard Lumps in Breast.

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I wrote you some time ago that I thought I had a cancer. There was a large lump in my breast as large as a walnut, and had been there four months. I commenced taking your "Golden Medical Discovery," "Favorite Prescription" and "Pellets" in June, and the lump is gone. Yours gratefully, Mrs. R. R. Clark, Irvington, Mich.

Could Hardly Stand on Her Feet.

R. V. Pierce, M. D. Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—I must tell you what your medicine has done for me. Before taking your "Favorite Prescription" I could hardly stand on my feet, but, by following your advice, I am perfectly cured. The "Favorite Prescription" is a wonderful medicine for debilitated and nervous females. I cannot express how thankful I am to you for your advice. Yours truly, Mrs. Cornelia Allison, Peosta, Iowa.

A Dangerous Case.

* * * ROCHESTER, June 1, 1882. "Ten years ago I was attacked with the most intense and deadly pains in back and kidneys."

"Extending to the end of my toes and to my brain!"

"Which made me delirious!"

"From agony."

"It took three men to hold me on my bed at times!"

"The Doctors tried in vain to relieve me. But to no purpose."

"Morphine and other opiates"

"Had no effect!"

"After two months I was given up to die!"

"When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first dose eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain."

"The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had used five bottles, I was well and at work as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that was ever known. I called the doctors again, and after several weeks, they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I poohed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again. In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since. It also cured my wife, who had been so for years; and has kept her and my children well and hearty with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used."

J. J. BERK, Ex-Supervisor.

"That poor invalid wife!"

"Sister!"

"Mother!"

"Or Daughter!"

"Can be made the picture of health!"

"With a few bottles of Hop Bitters!"

"Will you let them suffer?"

IMPROVED METHOD OF STRINGING

MASON & HAMLIN IMPROVED

Upright Pianos.

Entire iron frames to which the strings are directly attached by metal fastenings, securing

1. Best quality of tone, which is very musical and reined; free from the tubbiness which is common.

2. Greater durability and freedom from liability to get out of order, adaptations to trying positions and climates.

3. Increased capacity to stand in tune; will not require tuning one-quarter as often as pianos on the old system.

Having tested this new system of construction for two years and proved its advantages, this Company are now increasing their manufacture of pianos, and offer them to the public generally. Every piano of their make will illustrate the supreme excellence which has always characterized their organs, and on for them highest award at every great world's exhibition for sixteen years.

Illustrated and descriptive Catalogues of Pianos and organs, free.

Mars Hill College.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fifteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for

(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen, mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-

COMPENSATION.

The truest words we ever speak
Are words of cheer,
Life has its shade, its valleys deep;
But round our feet the shadows creep,
To prove the sunlight near.
Between the hills those valleys sleep—
The sun-crowned hills;
And down their sides will those who seek
With hopeful spirit, brave though meek,
Find gently flowing rills.
For every cloud a silvery light;
God wills it so.
For every vale a shining height,
A glorious morn for every night,
And birth for labor's throes.
For snows white wings a verdant field,
A gain for loss;
For buried seed a harvest yield,
For pain a strength, a joy revealed,
A crown for every cross.

TENTH CHAPTER OF ACTS.

In this chapter we have an account of the introduction of the gospel to the Gentiles. And in order to put the Gentiles upon an equality with the Jews so that God should show himself no respecter of persons, we would naturally expect miraculous manifestations to be connected with it, such as accompanied the introduction of the gospel to the Jews on the day of Pentecost. And so it was. Therefore in studying the conversion of Cornelius and his household, it will be necessary to consider the miraculous manifestations on the one hand, and their conversion on the other hand. For nothing miraculous ever entered into the conversion of any one. Miracles were necessary to confirm the truth in all ages, and in every new message God sent to man. When Moses was sent to the Jews in Egypt, and to Pharaoh, he was empowered to perform miracles to prove to them that he was a messenger sent from God, and that the message he bore was true. When Elijah was sent to put down idolatry in Israel, and to restore the worship of the true God, he was able to perform miracles. Christ performed miracles abundantly to prove to the Jewish people, and through them to all the world that he was the Son of God. And when the time came for the kingdom, the church of God to be set up in its fulness, an account of which is given in second of Acts, the Holy Spirit came miraculously from heaven upon the apostles, filling them, and enabling them to speak in other tongues, other languages, and thus demonstrating to the Jews that came together when they heard of it, that the power of God was with the apostles, thus confirming in the most direct and miraculous manner the truth of the gospel they preached on that occasion. These miraculous manifestations of the Holy Spirit had nothing to do in the conversion of the three thousand, except in confirming to them the truth of the gospel the apostles proclaimed.

The effect of the miraculous power of the Spirit upon the apostles was to inspire them to preach the gospel to all, and in all languages. The people then heard, and by the miraculous manifestations then present, were convinced of the truth of the gospel, and obeyed its requirements, and were that day three thousand of them born again; not by any miraculous power upon them, but by obeying the gospel. And just such another event occurred at the house of Cornelius. We will sum up the miraculous events on the one hand, and their conversion on the other.

In the first place, Cornelius himself saw a miraculous vision, an angel appearing to him at the ninth hour of the day. This angel spoke to him, but did not convert him, did not even preach the gospel to him, but simply and plainly told him to send for Peter, who should tell him words whereby he and all his house should be saved. This was all the angel did. And when the angel was gone, Cornelius started his servants to bring Peter to him. But the Lord knew the prejudice of the Jews against the Gentiles, and that Peter would be unwilling to go. So just before the messengers sent by Cornelius for Peter got to Joppa, Peter went up upon the housetop to pray. And while thus engaged, he saw the vision of clean and unclean animals and fowls, all mixed up together, with a voice saying, arise, Peter, kill and eat. He replied, nothing common or unclean hath at any time entered into my mouth. But the voice answered, that which God hath cleansed call not thou common or unclean. This was done to convince Peter that he should not call any man common or unclean,—that is, that he should preach the gospel to all alike, Gentiles as well as Jews, so that when he went to the house of Cornelius, and heard him relate his vision his prejudice was removed, and he was ready to preach the gospel to him and to all his house.

But the other Jews are not yet convinced of these things, and something must be done that will convince them that the Gentiles are embraced in the gospel as well as the Jews. The Gentiles also must have a public, palpable demonstration of the truth of the gospel, and of their acceptance with God upon the same principle as the Jews. Hence, when Peter was preaching the gospel to them, and before they had time to obey it, the Holy Spirit fell on all that heard the word, as it did on the apostles at Jerusalem, and they also spoke with tongues and magnified God. There are six Jewish brethren with Peter on this occasion, and all their prejudices are now put to silence, and these Gentiles are also now thoroughly convinced of the truth of the gospel proclaimed by Peter. And being thus fully convinced of the truth of the gospel, they are thus made ready to obey its demands.

This miraculous outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon the Gentiles was simply a testimony to them of the truth of the gospel, and did not convert them by any means. Nor was it any evidence of their conversion. Peter, in Acts 15: 8, tells what this outpouring of the Holy Spirit was for, in the following words: "And God which knoweth the hearts, bare them witness, giving them the Holy Ghost, even as he did unto us." This explains the whole design of this miraculous outpouring of the Spirit so far as the Gentiles were concerned. It was a witness or testimony borne to them by the Spirit, the same as had been borne to the Jews, thing more, nothing less. But it was to have an effect upon the Jews as well as upon the Gentiles. And by going with Peter up to Jerusalem after preaching to these Gentiles, we shall see exactly what that was.

When he went to Jerusalem the apostles and brethren complained at him for going among the uncircumcised. He expounded the whole matter by order to them, telling them how Cornelius had seen a vision, directing him to send for him, and how he had seen a vision upon a housetop, directing him to go with the men sent after him. Moreover, said he these six brethren accompanied me. Thus he had plenty of witnesses. And said he, as I began to speak, the Holy Ghost fell on them, the Gentiles, as on us, Jews, at the beginning, and closes by saying: "Forasmuch then as God gave them the like gift as he did unto us who believed on the Lord Jesus Christ, what was I, that I could withstand God?"

Read all this in first part of the eleventh chapter of Acts. Peter tells all these things to the apostles and brethren, to convince them that God had called the Gentiles as well as the Jews. And it had the desired effect. For in the very next verse we are told: "When they heard these things, they held their peace, and glorified God, saying, then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life."

These things give the full scope of the design of all the miracles performed in connection with the introduction of the gospel among the Gentiles. First, Cornelius was instructed where to send to get a preacher that should tell him what he should do to be saved. Secondly, Peter was prepared to go, by the vision on the "housetop." Thirdly, the miraculous outpouring of the Spirit upon these Gentiles was a witness to them of their calling. Fourthly, it was a testimony first to the six Jewish brethren that came with Peter, and through them and Peter to the apostles and brethren at Jerusalem, and through them to all Jewish Christians, that the Gentiles were called by the gospel as well as the Jews. These were the things accomplished by the miraculous descent of the Holy Spirit. Not a soul was converted by these miracles. Nor was any one ever converted by a miracle. But now, we will look after the conversion of these Gentiles, and see how that was done. In the first place, the angel that appeared to Cornelius said to him, "Send men to Joppa, and call for Simon, whose surname is Peter, who shall tell thee words, whereby thou, and all thy house shall be saved." Acts 11: 13-14. And as Peter was to tell them words whereby they were to be saved, then of course they were saved that way, and not by the outpouring of the Holy Spirit upon them. But it may be asked, what words could save them? the answer is, the gospel of Christ, "for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." But did Peter preach the gospel to them when he went? hear him testify in Acts 15: 7. "And when there had been much disputing, Peter rose up and said unto them, men and brethren, ye know how that a good while ago God made choice among us that the Gentiles by my mouth should hear the word of the gospel and believe." This is position testimony that Peter did preach the gospel to them, and that they believed it. And by reading Peter's sermon as given in tenth of Acts when he was preaching at the house of Cornelius, he preached Christ and him crucified and raised again from the dead, which is the gospel, by believing which all are to be saved, if saved at all. This is the gospel that was to be preached in all the world, and to every creature, with the precious promise, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." And when these things were preached at the house of Cornelius, together with the miraculous outpouring of the Holy Spirit, they did believe and were baptized.

Some people at the present time are claiming to be baptized with the Holy Spirit, and also claim that to such, water baptism is not needed. But those at the house of Cornelius were baptized in the Holy Spirit, and yet Peter immediately said, "Can any man forbid water, that these should not be baptized which have received the Holy Ghost as well as we?" And he commanded them to be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus. Here then were people that without any doubt were baptized in the Holy Spirit, and yet they had to be baptized in water immediately. This shows that even if people were baptized in the Spirit now, as some of them claim, that would not suffice, and they would also have to be baptized in water at once. But then it is not true that any are baptized in the Spirit now. There are only two cases of baptism in the Holy Spirit mentioned in the Bible; one on the day of Pentecost, the other at the house of Cornelius. And these were miraculous in every particular. The Spirit came miraculously, as the sound of a rushing mighty wind, filled the house where they were sitting. Cloven tongues like as of fire appeared and sat upon them, they were all filled with the Spirit, and began to speak in other tongues, languages, as the Spirit gave them utterance. It would take just these same things now to constitute a baptism of the Spirit that it did then. But nothing like this ever occurs now, nor ever has occurred, since the one at the house of Cornelius. Therefore there is no such thing now as a baptism of the Holy Spirit. The claim of it therefore is a delusion. If they want us to believe it, they must manifest the same powers that the apostles did on Pentecost, and the Gentiles at the house of Cornelius. And until this is done, no one need say I have been baptized in the Holy Spirit. But those Gentiles believed and were baptized, and therefore were saved, since Jesus says "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." And surely no one can doubt that they repented. The apostles and brethren at Jerusalem said, "Then hath God also to the Gentiles granted repentance unto life." Repentance is unto life. All that refuse to repent, refuse life, and are doomed to perish. These Gentiles therefore did repent. They believed the gospel, repented, and were baptized, and were therefore converted precisely as the three thousand on the day of Pentecost in the city of Jerusalem.

But some one may be ready to say, the Gentiles were saved by faith only, and quote Acts 10: 43, in which it is said, "To him give all the prophets witness that through his name, whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins." But this passage shows that remission of sins comes to the believer through the name of Christ. Believers then must come into Christ in order to receive remission through his name. Paul says to the Romans, "Know ye not that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death." This passage shows how we get into Christ, and thus obtain remission of sins through his name. Thus Cornelius and his house heard the gospel preached by Peter, believed it with the heart, repented of their sins, and were baptized into Christ, and in Him received redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins, as Paul teaches both in first of Ephesians and in first of Colossians. Thus the gospel was introduced to the Gentiles in the same miraculous way that it was to the Jews, and they believed and obeyed it precisely as did the Jews on the day of Pentecost, and were saved in all respects just as they were. Peter said God put no difference between us and them, us the Jews, and them, the Gentiles. Again Peter says, "For there is no difference between the Jew and the Greek, for the same God over all is rich unto all that call upon him." Romans 10: 12.

It is therefore utterly contrary to the word of God to talk about there being one way of conversion to the Jews, and another to the Gentiles. All are to be converted and saved precisely alike, if saved at all. It is the mercy of God that saves all that are saved, but he saves them by his plan of mercy, and this plan of mercy is the gospel, and none can be saved by the gospel unless they obey it. Therefore none can be saved by the mercy of God who reject his plan of mercy, the gospel. E. G. S.

WOMAN AND POLITICS.

The subject of Woman's Rights that has been so long agitated, seems to have reached a climax, and the immensity of the joke in which it has culminated, should put it to rest forever. But it involves a principle, which, if allowed to spread, threatens to destroy the most sacred of all institutions, and make of America a homeless nation. There are restless and ambitious women who seek for notoriety; strong-minded women who think the home circle too narrow for their intellectual development, and disregarding the claims of duty seek for a wider field in which to display their attainments.

Thinking that worldly glory and honor will satiate this ambition, they would lay aside the greatest ornaments of the female character—modesty and refinement—and stand side by side with man in the political strifes of our land. Such women will not content themselves with a limited sphere, but will spread the leaven of corruption to other homes than their own; carrying the blight of discontent, telling the story of woman's wrongs, and calling on them to break the "bond of subjection" divinely laid upon them and assert their independence; vote, hold office, electioneer, and, if necessary, fight their way to the ballot-box.

Woman would no longer be woman, home no longer home. The demon of dissatisfaction having once entered, all the laws which govern society would be destroyed and chaos alone would reign. And what would woman gain? Those who favor the cause claim that she would have an elevating and refining influence on politics if allowed to take a part in them? But this is yet to be proven. Would politics be elevated, or woman degraded? Man does not escape corruption, and is she stronger than he? Queen Elizabeth has been held up as an example of almost unparalleled success as a ruler. That a woman could be found in all ages and countries who might rule wisely and well, cannot be doubted. History verifies the statement. But have they improved the moral character of their governments? is the question to be considered. Of Elizabeth it has been said by a historian of her own country that, "No woman ever lived who was so totally destitute of the sentiment of religion," and "of womanly reserve and self-restraint she knew nothing." Her court was as corrupt as any other, and she made no attempt at refinement. The same writer has said, "As we track Elizabeth through her tortuous mazes of lying and intrigue, the sense of her greatness is lost in a sense of contempt." Few men would have been worse. This has been given to show that even England's boasted queen did not elevate the standard of morality, but sank to the level of that already erected. She was as strong, perhaps, to resist evil as any woman now living, and if she failed we could expect no better now. Even a throne would not compensate for what would be lost to woman in the exchange.

Every instinct of humanity points to home as her realm, and no picture of home-life has ever been drawn but she finds a place there, for without her there is no home. It is her to adorn and beautify, to keep it pure from all contaminating influences, a place in which fathers, husbands, sons and brothers can find rest after toil. "Man for the field and woman for the hearth." There her influence is felt, beginning with the first dawning intellect placed under her care and extending through all succeeding time till it reaches the shores of eternity. There is room to exercise the noblest ambition. Let all see that their influence is for good. Man has respected woman most when most true to herself, and in no country has she been treated with more deference than in America. When she ceases to be womanly and strives for manly glory his respect for her ceases; for is there one in all the land who would give the modest, refined woman, one "who looketh well to the ways of her household," for the contentious political opponent, disputing with him at the ballot-box, and competing with him for office?

The avenues of learning are open to her, and she has attained excellence in both art and literature. But the most illustrious names among women, names whose lustre can not be dimmed, are those who have adorned themselves with Christian deeds. It is Christianity and not politics that has elevated woman, and to that she should consecrate her life and energies. Wherever the Christian religion has been taught, there woman has been honored. Few have heard of the names made famous in history, but in almost every land in every tongue, "this that she hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her." Woman should not complain that her position is too low, her sphere too limited. God in the arrangement of his plans gave her a place that man can not fill, neither can she fill his. But she can command his love and protection everywhere by being true to herself and her womanly nature, by filling to perfection the place she has been given, and seeking no longer to destroy the harmony of divine law. S.

GOD'S POWER TO SAVE.

"I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." Rom. 1: 16.

Whatever may be God's power to accomplish other things, His power to save is the gospel. That being so, if man is saved at all he must be saved by the gospel of Christ. God's power to relieve hunger is in food, but all the food in the world would not keep a man alive if he did not eat it. He might stand over the most beautiful spring of the purest water that ever bubbled from beneath a hill-side, and unless he drank, death would be the inevitable result. Just so man may stand amazed, and while the gospel river of salvation flows at his very feet, yet unless he submits to its mandates and bathes in the water of regeneration, all other powers of heaven and earth are not sufficient to save him. Salvation is only of the Lord, (Acts 4: 12,) and all the power of God extended to save sinful, fallen, responsible man, is manifested in the gospel of Christ.

POWER TO BECOME SONS OF GOD.

"He came unto his own, and his own received him not. But as many as received him, to them gave he power to become the sons of God, even to them that believe on his name." John 1: 11-12.

The denominations teach that salvation is by faith alone—that when a man believes he is a child of God. God's word says, has "power to become a son of God." Now if both of these statements are true, it is evident that to be a child of God, and to have power to become a child of God, must mean the same thing. We say of an infant he will "become" a man, is that saying he is a man? A man receives a check for one hundred dollars on the First National Bank, Nashville, has he the money? He only has the power to get it. He may destroy that power (check) and therefore cannot get the money, or he can present it and get it. This shows that a man may have the power, and so use or treat it as never to receive the blessing. So right here the bottom falls out of the man-made theory. In John 12: 42 we see "many believed on him," hence had the "power to become the sons of God," but loving the praise of men more than that of God "did not confess him," did not "become" sons of God. So a man can believe and not be a child of God.

Nashville, Tenn.

W. G. WHITE.

We all can set our daily deeds to the music of a grateful heart, and seek to round our lives into a hymn, the melody of which will be recognized by all who come in contact with us, and the power of which shall not be evanescent, like the voice of the singer, but perennial, like the music of the spheres.—W. M. Taylor.

"WHAT THE LORD HATH SAID, THAT WILL I SPEAK."

The above language was spoken by Balaam when Balak offered him money to curse Israel. When pressed to curse Israel, he said, "If Balak would give me his house full of silver and gold, I cannot go beyond the commandment of the Lord to do either good or bad of mine own mind: but what the Lord saith, that will I speak." Num. 24: 13. In John 12: 49, Christ says, "For I have not spoken of myself; but, the Father which sent me, he gave me a commandment, what I should say, and what I should speak." We see here that even a hired false prophet could not be induced to go beyond the command of God, and our blessed Lord spake the express words of his Father. Yet some among us ridicule us for calling for precept or example for all we do in the service of God. They call it "fogyism," and bring up the sayings of some extremist to do away our calling for Bible authority. Yea, some are offended when we try to bring them to, and keep them to the Bible. I may fear the fate of such will be as the fate of Balaam. So I will try and warn such in kindness.

I am grieved to see the line of argument some among us use. Sooner than give up their notions, some try to throw doubts on the correctness of our copy of the word of God. Some use the very style and line of argument against those of us they call "old fogies," that the sects use against our union move. As the introduction of one addition to "the simplicity that is in Christ," opens the way for all departures, and as voting in the organ begins, that is made the skirmishing field of battle. Therefore, some who do not really sanction the organ in heart, or the use of the organ in the worship, apologize for it. For to admit the voting in and the use of the organ without precept or example, is wrong, they would thus condemn all their innovations. The reason some hold to innovations, may be, because money, ease and honors of the world is theirs. Self-deception is very common; so some leave us and join Episcopalians because they thus get honors of men, ease, and money. It is hard to get a man on good salary as "pastor," State evangelist, college professor, or circuit rider, to give up their pay, and go to work and preach on Lord's lays; or go on horse, as our pioneers used to do, and to go and preach to the poor without salary.

I offer no plea here for unfair, stingy brethren; for I fear for some in the great day. They cannot face me there, I fear. I speak plain, my brethren, because it is my duty; and you will thank me for it some day, may be when too late. I try to apply my words to myself. Excuse me, I wish myself and brethren to be at least as faithful as Balaam. I will try and not go beyond God's plain word; I will try and do nothing in Christ's name for which we have neither precept nor example; or I will try and not do more than is exemplified or commanded, until I have done all that is so set forth. For to be doing things not commanded nor exemplified, is to say Christ did not give us a perfect law or saying by action, I have done all commanded; now I will do more. O that all did do all that is commanded. How silly the shifts some use to excuse the introduction of things not commanded; for instance, the organ. When fairly beat out, they say "the Bible does not say you shall not use the organ." That is like one when I fairly beat him out on baby sprinkling; he said, "The Bible does not say you shall not sprinkle babies." I cannot feel such are honest seekers for truth.

Now, brethren, when I can offer no better arguments against you, than you do, I will go with you. Certainly all of us ought to do all we can in harmony with God's word to advance the cause of Christ. But we must not admit that the ends justify the means; for so doing, we at once admit all the sects and all they do is right. I am told we have neither precept nor example for making hymn-books. How do you know that? Did not the primitive Christians have David's book of Psalms? The command is to sing. The book does not sing; singing is certainly to be done with the human voice; and Paul says it is to be done with the spirit and the understanding. The use of words with continued sounds varying the length and pitch of the sounds, is singing. These continued and varied sounds is a command of God. The organ is said to lead and aid in making these sounds called tune. The organ, therefore, leads and joins in the service of God. So I have known wicked, ungodly persons, hired to aid as the organ does. Why not the preacher who has an unsteady, weak voice, have an instrument to aid him to pray and preach? Show my position to be wrong; as I have yours, and I will yield. Ah! if you will not yield to my proofs here, I fear you are "joined to your idols and will not let them go." But you say Paul travelled on foot, and we on railroads. Yes, Paul travelled on foot, on beasts, and boats; so did Christ. So we have example here. But when men put hymn-books, meeting-houses and modes of traveling on a level with preaching the word and worshiping God, they show they have no proof. I am not denouncing you, but I want you to follow the book. Let us follow the Bible; if all our pet notions, salary, ease, fame and all go. There is too much money making out of hymn-books, picture Bibles, lives of Christ, commentaries, etc. I fear for these money makers, fair makers. All who hope for heaven, I pray come up to old Bible style and living. Stop the money, and you stop many evils. Christ never said nor did any more than commanded of God. How dare then any who do more than commanded just as written, claim to be following Christ? I ask a candid investigation of our differences in a kind spirit. Do not dishonestly say my objections are not formidable. But I despise the way of some who seem to be more for victory in argument than for truth. They show a ruffled spirit. Some cannot say they are wrong; they will use every shift sooner than give up even to God's word. They are not for truth, but victory. If ever such become wise, it will be by accident. May God lead us all safely to him.

PERFECTION IN THE PULPIT.

Preaching is like most other things. It is a great deal easier to sit down and imagine how it ought to be done than to do it. Those who have not tried it will not be prepared, perhaps, to appreciate this remark; but those who have tried it for the space of twenty or thirty years, under all sorts of circumstances, and have never been able even once in those thirty years to satisfy their own idea of what a sermon ought to be, will appreciate the difficulty in all its length and breadth.

The situation of the preacher of the gospel is a very peculiar one. He has before him a congregation of people representing a great variety of opinions and tastes—old, young, rich, poor, high, low, learned, and unlearned. He may be supposed, if he is a man of common intelligence and ordinary sensibilities, to have the same desire to please that others have. It is as pleasant to him as it is to other people to know that he has rendered satisfaction to those whom he serves. But behind him there is another power to which he is responsible, and to which responsibility he is keenly alive. To him is committed a dispensation. He has a definite message to deliver. He is restrained within certain bounds. He must speak in both matter and manner as becometh the oracles of God. He cannot give loose rein to either humor or fancy. He cannot give himself up to the single object of pleasing. He must be faithful to Him by whom he is sent, by whose authority he speaks. He must speak not what the people would be most pleased to hear, but what they most need, whether they will hear or whether they will not. He must acquit himself before the bar of his own conscience. He must deal honestly as one that must give account. If this is not a paramount consideration with him, he is no longer fit for the responsible position which he holds. He cannot therefore always prophesy smooth things. He cannot consult the opinions, tastes, and convenience of those who hear. He must sometimes rebuke and reprove. He must discriminate, and give to each his portion in due season. He cannot, he dare not, shut his eyes to the real wants of the community, the world.

Again, if he is wise as he ought to be, he must know the sensitiveness, the selfishness, the shallowness, the capriciousness of the world, even the better portion of it. He knows that the majority of those to whom he ministers do not appreciate the difficulties of the situation, and are not prepared to exercise that charity which is

He therefore appears before them under the greatest embarrassments. He must declare the whole counsel of God, and he would fain show himself a workman that needeth not to be ashamed before men. If he is duly permeated with a sense of his relation to God on the one side, and to sinning man on the other, he cannot but feel the delicacy of his situation. It is strange, then, that he should fail to satisfy himself, and how can he expect to satisfy others? How easy it is to say too much or too little, to be too severe or too tender. When and how is he to find the exact balance wherein he shall feel that he has been true to God, and secure the approbation of man? So multifarious are the qualities, so numerous the adaptations, that must enter into the perfect sermon, that few if any of those charged with the duty of preaching may ever hope to attain to anything more than a barely respectable ideal. A sermon may be good, and yet it may have many faults. He has done a very ordinary thing who has successfully picked a half-a-dozen flaws in the ablest discourse of the first preacher of the land. If he wishes to do an extraordinary thing, let him produce a sermon that is absolutely faultless.—Methodist Advance.

LINCOLN ON THRIFT.

The original of the following letter to a half-brother, is held by B. L. Worth, of St. Louis, and came into his possession through the purchase of the office fixtures of ex-Mayor John How:

WASHINGTON, December 24, 1848.

Dear Johnson: Your request for $80 I do not think is best to comply with just now. At various times when I have helped you a little, you have said to me, "We can get along very well now," but in a short time I find you in the same difficulty again. Now this can only happen by some defect in your conduct. What the defect is I think I know. You are not lazy, but still you are an idler. I doubt whether, since I saw you, you have done a good whole day's work in any one day. You do not very much dislike to work, and still you do not work much, merely because it does not seem to you that you could get much for it. This habit of uselessly wasting time is the whole difficulty, and it is vastly important to you, and still more to your children, that you should break this habit. It is more important to them because they have longer to live and can keep out of an idle habit before they age in it easier than they can get out after they are in.

You are now in need of some ready money, and what I propose to you is that you go to work, "tooth and nail," for somebody who will give you money for it. Let father and your boys have charge of things at home—prepare for a crop and make a crop—and you go to work for the best money wages, or in discharge of any debt you owe, that you can get. And to secure a fair reward for your labor, I now promise you that for every dollar you will, between now and the first of May, get for your labor, either in money or on your indebtedness, I will give you one other dollar. By this, if you hire yourself at $10 a month, from me you will get $10 more, making $20 a month for your work. In this I do not mean that you shall go off to St. Louis, or the lead or gold mines of California, but I mean for you to go at it for the best wages you can get close to home—in Coles County. Now, if you will do this, you will soon be out of debt, and, what is better, you will have a habit that will keep you from getting in debt again. But if I should clear you out, next year you will be just as deep in as ever. You say you would almost give your place in heaven for $70 or $80 with four or five month's work. You say if I furnish you the money you will deed me the land, and if you don't pay the money back, you will deliver possession. Nonsense! If you cannot now live with the land, how will you then live without it? You have always been kind to me, and I do not mean to be unkind to you. On the contrary, if you will but follow my advice, you will find it worth more than eighty times $80 to you. Affectionately, your brother. A. LINCOLN.

The principles of politeness are always the same; sound sense, and a kindly heart is the subtle charm by which you may distinguish the gentle bred from the boor.

ORDINATION.

DEAR BROTHER SEWELL: In the Advocate of September 24, I find your reply to my article on laying on of hands; but you must allow me to say that you utterly failed to answer my questions. You seem to invite me to a discussion of the question with you. Now, my brother, I feel very grateful to you for your manifest willingness to condescend to a discussion with one of such an humble standing as myself. I must say just here that I deeply feel my inability to do this. I am seeking information, not controversy. And having confidence in you, thought I would put some questions, an answer to which, I thought would be beneficial to myself and others. The questions were as follows:

1. Now, if I am not to appoint elders by fasting, prayer, and laying my hands on them, will you please give me the chapter and verse that tells me how to do it? Has God told us to do this, and left us without instructions on the subject?

2. If we are to quit laying on hands because spiritual gifts were sometimes conveyed in connection with it, should we not quit praying for the same reason?

3. Is not laying on of hands a part of the doctrine of the New Testament? and can we not as well do away with baptism, the resurrection, etc.? (See Heb. 6: 1-2.)

You say that I have "assumed the working oar, and by the time I show that hands were laid on in ordaining elders, you will be through with your protracted engagements, and will have ample time to attend to the matter." Well, that is a little rich, and I suppose a very good place to "switch off." I have protracted engagements, too, and don't know when I will get through with them. But I did not understand that it was necessary for me to prove anything, that you might thereby be enabled to answer my questions. I find that the first workers in the church were appointed by prayer and laying on of hands. Acts 6: 16. Elders were appointed with fasting and prayer in connection with it. Acts 14: 23. Paul and Barnabas were appointed to their work by fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands. Acts 13: 3. The presbytery (or eldership) laid hands on Timothy. 1 Tim. 4: 14. Timothy was charged to lay hands suddenly on no man. 1 Tim. 5: 22. When these different accounts are all put together, as we put the different accounts of the commission, we find that we have fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands. Hence, when Paul appointed elders in every church, they fasted, prayed, and laid their hands on them. This is what leads me to say, when I open my Bible to find how this is to be done, I find that they fasted, prayed, and laid their hands on them.

I cannot see that Acts 14: 23, proves the conclusion that the fasting and prayers were not connected with, and had nothing to do with the ordination. If they first went around and ordained them elders in every church, and then fasted and prayed, they would have contradicted Paul's teaching, "that first of all, supplication, prayers, etc., be made for all men." 1 Tim. 2: 1. They certainly prayed with every church. And if we admit this, we must also admit that they fasted.

You requested me to read your article on Acts 6. I had read it two or three times carefully, and have examined it closely again, but fail to find the desired information. It seems to me that your conclusion, that hands were laid on the seven to give them power to work miracles, is not by any means certain. Your position, logically stated, I think, would be thus: Seven men were selected by the church at Jerusalem to do a certain work. The apostles, in appointing them to the work, laid their hands on them. Soon after this we find them working miracles. Therefore hands were laid on to enable them to work miracles.

Now, let us draw another conclusion from the same logical standpoint. Seven men were selected by the church at Jerusalem to do a certain work. The apostles, in appointing them to the work, laid their hands on them. Soon after this we find them preaching and baptizing. Therefore hands were laid on to enable them to preach and baptize.

Now, is not one of these conclusions just as good as the other? is not one just as logical as the other? Yet I do not believe either to be right, for the history of the case shows that they were selected and appointed for a different purpose—to attend to the daily ministration, and not to work miracles, preach, or baptize. Not a word of this in the case. To contend for either of the above conclusions, we would have to ignore the facts in the case, and rest our cause on mere assumption.

In reply to my first question, "If I am not to appoint elders by fasting, prayer, and laying my hands on them, will you please give me the chapter and verse that tells me how to do it?" you say, "We do not feel disposed to try to give chapter and verse for something that we are not sure ever existed." Now, to my mind, this drives you to one of the following conclusions: (1) The scriptural way of appointing workers in the church is fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands. Or (2) God has commanded that elders should be appointed in the church, but has failed to tell us how to do it. Therefore every evangelist may use his own judgment in the matter, but no one can tell which one pleases God.

Now, my brother, it looks like we might bring about a harmonious action just here. Some of us think that the Bible teaches fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands, in ordination. You say that you are not sure that any particular form or ceremony is taught. Then we would ask, is there any that is not particular? If not, why not drop the question, quit opposing the laying on of hands, and accept it so that we can all stand together without any sacrifice of truth or conscience.

I have written this, not because I want a controversy with you, but hoping to elicit truth, and thereby gain information. W. H. CARTER.

There are but few things in the above that we need to notice at present. You misunderstood me when you thought I was inviting you to a discussion of these matters. You stated that when you opened the Bible you found certain things regarding the ordination of elders. If you were certain in this, that information plainly presented would settle the matter, and we asked you to give it. This you have certainly failed to do. You have taken up considerable space in assigning positions for me that I never assumed, nor ever thought of. You will get along better if you will simply state your own convictions in your own words, and let me state mine. When you wish to criticize any of my positions, state them in my own words, and then you will know what you are opposing.

Much of your present article is a loss of space and time, stating things that I no more believe than you do. I am ready to defend my own positions when necessary, but am under no obligation to defend positions assigned to me by others. For this reason we leave much of your present without reply. You still state that elders were appointed by fasting, prayer and laying on of hands. This you assume, thus assuming the very point that we called in question. We know the apostles prayed and laid their hands on the seven at Jerusalem, but whether this was a ceremony by which the appointment was made or not is the question at issue. To appoint does not indicate that any particular formula must be gone through with, such as fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands. To appoint means to designate or command, or to charge a person or persons to do a certain work. But the question is, was this appointing done with or by means of the formula of prayer and laying on of hands. If so, then such formula becomes an ordinance. The apostles were praying continually, and directed the seven to be chosen to attend to the Grecian widows, that they might give themselves continually to prayer and the ministry of the word. It is also a fact that the prophets and teachers at Antioch where Barnabas and Saul were separated to the work to which they were called, were fasting as they ministered to the Lord before this separating of Barnabas and Saul took place. It is also a fact that in all the cases of laying on of hands mentioned in the New Testament miraculous power was exerted or imparted, unless these two cases are exceptions. It is also a fact that in all cases where hands were laid on, those who did it were themselves miraculously endowed. There is not one case of a man not himself miraculously endowed or inspired ever laying hands on any one. It is also a fact that in every case where hands were laid on, the persons upon whom they were laid either received some miraculous power or performed miraculous power immediately after hands were laid on. Some were healed by laying on of hands; others received the miraculous power of the Holy Spirit, as the Samaritans and the twelve of Ephesus. The seven at Jerusalem, and Barnabas and Saul worked miracles immediately after hands were laid on them, making these cases no exception to the general rule, so far as results are concerned.

Now with all these facts in the case before us, we can but regard it guess work or assumption to say that hands were laid on in these two cases, as a part of an ordaining or appointing ceremony or ordinance. We have neither precept nor example for uninspired men to lay hands on any one, under any circumstances, or for any purpose. If laying on of hands had been intended to be kept up as an ordinance by the church through all time, there would certainly have been some precept or example on record that would have left us without any doubt or uncertainty in the matter. Paul appointed Titus, to appoint elders in Crete. Does that mean that when Paul appointed Titus to this work that he fasted, prayed, and laid his hands on him as an appointing ordinance? Surely no one would say so. And yet why not, if such ceremony was necessary to appointment to a work. Would it not have been as important for Paul to have laid his hands on Titus, as that Titus should lay hands upon elders in appointing them? We can see no difference in the two. When the presbytery laid their hands on Timothy, they imparted a gift. When Paul laid his hands on him, he imparted a gift. When Paul said to Timothy "lay hands suddenly on no man," he was talking about discipline, and had said nothing about ordination, either before or after, in the entire connection. We therefore understand Paul to mean that Timothy should discipline no one hastily, neither an elder, nor any one else. As to the case of ordaining or appointing elders as mentioned in fourteenth of Acts, there is no laying on of hands mentioned there at all.

Again, the Spirit did not tell the prophets and teachers at Antioch to ordain Barnabas and Saul, but only to separate them to the work to which the Lord had called them. Counting Barnabas and Saul, there were five of these prophets and teachers then staying at Antioch, and two were to be separated or sent off to other work. When they were to go away, the other three, as the language indicates, laid hands on them, sent them off, and very soon after starting Paul began to work miracles, which he had never done before, so far as the word of God records.

Now if you wish to write further on this matter, take all the above facts into consideration, and give some reasons for concluding that laying on hands in appointing men to work in the church, is an ordinance or appointing ceremony, to be performed by uninspired men. You surely did not reach the point at issue in your last. And you will certainly excuse me for not attempting to point out what I do not believe exists in the word of God. But if you succeed in showing that laying on of hands is part of an ordaining ceremony, established as an ordinance to be perpetuated in the church of God, that ought to be satisfactory. This seems to me to be what your own statement of the matter involves. If not, you can tell us what you do mean by the words you use. But you will please get down to your work, and give us your own positions regarding the matter, and not be making logic and syllogisms for me. I can tell what I believe, and shall certainly allow you to tell what you believe. This is the shortest way of getting at our real difference. We cannot see how any one could ever reach the idea of office, officers, ordaining ordinances or ceremonies from reading a correct version of the New Testament if they did not have these ideas already in their minds when they begin to read. Our translators of the common version had these ideas so strong in their minds that they have placed many things in the revised version unheard of in the Greek. The word office has been put in first letter to Timothy three times without one syllable of authority for it in the Greek. And from the idea of office and officers, comes the ordinance or formula of ordaining appointing, or inducting into office. If there be no office or officer in the church, why then an ordinance to induct men into that which does not exist. Very much of the controversy on ordination is based upon the denominational and Catholic idea of office. When this is out of the way, we think it will be easy enough to settle this.

E. G. S.

We have said more than once in these columns, and we say it again, that co-operation must begin at home. Members who do not work acceptably at home and churches, that do nothing for themselves are not likely to be of much service in saving the heathen. The convictions take deeper hold on us, if possible, every day. It is one thing to live a real consistent Christian life and to be a real aid in doing the solid, Scriptural work necessary to build up the cause of Christ in a permanent way at home, and quite a different thing to do a little senseless chatting in some of our conventions; and so far as our observation goes, those who usually engage in the latter are not the ones to be depended on for the former. Christians should be consistent if nothing more. "By their fruits ye shall know them."—Christian Herald.

It was a quaint and singularly wise remark of a modern essayist, that no one's example is so dangerous to us as our own; for when we have done a certain thing once, it is so much easier to do it again.—Anon.

To have our hearts balanced on God as their center, and so balance that under the ruder touches of temptation they may be moved to and fro like nicely-polished stones of the Druids, but like those stones always return to their rest—that is to be blessed like the Psalmist, who said, after some rough onset of Satan's, "I shall not be greatly moved."—Lewiston.

Obeying Christ.

If I keep Christ's commandments only because I have come to see for myself that they are wise and good, I do not obey Him. If I recognize His authority, I shall keep His commandments before I recognize that they are either good or wise.

Half a century ago many unwise persons thought that children ought always to be shown the reasons for everything that they were required to do. This pernicious theory has happily lost its temporary popularity. It is obvious that children who were brought up under its influence could never be disciplined to obedience. But the inevitable conditions of human life must have made it impossible to translate the theory into practice. There are many things that can hardly be explained to a baby in long clothes. Even a child of six will not find it easy to understand why it should be compelled to take offensive medicine, or why any limit should be placed upon its innocent pleasures in the vineries and strawberry beds. It is doubtful whether even a boy of nine or ten can be made to understand why he should learn the multiplication table or the Latin declensions. He has to do it first, and to learn the reasons afterwards.

The same principle holds in relation to morals. If a child is not disciplined to truthfulness, industry, kindness, before he can see for himself the obligations of any of these, the chances are that he will never see that lying, indolence, cruelty, are hateful vices. Compel him to be industrious, and he will discover for himself the obligations of industry; make it hard for him to lie, and he will discover for himself the obligations of truthfulness; use authority to accustom him to kindness, and he will discover for himself the wickedness of cruelty. In morals, practice comes before theory.

And so, if we obey Christ, the commandments will soon shine in their own light. "He that followeth Me shall not walk in darkness, but shall have the light of life." It is not by mere meditation that we come to see the beauty and excellences of Christ's commandments; we must obey them before we see how beautiful and noble they are. We must actually follow Christ if we desire to have "the light of life"; if we decline to follow Him till the "light" comes, we shall remain in darkness.—Rev. R. W. Dale.

Religion, to be beneficial to others, must be seen. A concealed light does not help the traveler.

A PERFECT BAKING POWDER.

The great success of the Royal Baking Powder is due to the extreme care exercised by the manufacturers to make it entirely pure, uniform in quality, and of the highest leavening power. All the scientific knowledge, care, and skill attained by a twenty years' practical experience are contributed toward this end, and no pharmaceutical preparation can be dispensed with a greater accuracy, precision, and exactness. Every article used is absolutely pure. A number of chemists are employed to test the strength of each ingredient, so that its exact power and effect in combination with its co-ingredients is definitely known. Nothing is trusted to chance, and no person is employed in the preparation of the materials who is not an expert in his particular branch of the business. As a consequence, the Royal Baking Powder is of the highest grade of excellence, always pure, wholesome, and uniform in quality. Each box is exactly like every other, and will retain its powers and produce the same and the highest leavening effect in any climate, at any time. The Government Chemists, after having analyzed all the principal brands in the market, in their reports placed the Royal Baking Powder at the head of the list for strength, purity, and wholesomeness, and thousands of tests all over the country have further demonstrated the fact that its qualities are, in every respect, unrivaled.

THE WHOLE LAW OF GOD.

The great end of divine revelation, of conversion, of Christian labor and Christian worship, and Christian profession, and Christian edification, is to make man obedient to his Maker.

Obedience to God is doing the will of God, because it is his will. We may do what God has approved from some other motive than the desire to obey God. It is not obedience to God unless done because God commanded it, unless done with a view of honoring him by doing his will.

Man often does things commanded by God from some other motive than the desire of obeying God or of honoring him. This is not obedience to God. Then there is sometimes a disposition to honor God, but it seeks to honor him not through obedience to him, but by instituting a service of our own in his honor. This is not accepted by God as service or honor to God. When Saul attempted this, God said, "To obey is better than sacrifice and to hearken than the fat of rams." We are constrained to believe that it is in reference to this same principle, that the apostle said, "If any man's work shall be burned he shall suffer loss, but he himself shall be saved yet so as through fire." That is, a man may possibly be saved, if he, with a desire of honoring God, builds upon the one foundation, and through mistake builds man's devices instead of God's appointments, he may possibly be saved, yet so as by (or in revised Testament) through fire. That is, it is with difficulty he is saved as if brought through or snatched from the fire. His work is destroyed, is burned up, and he suffers loss. The Holy Spirit adds, "Ye are the temple of God. If any man defile that temple, him shall God destroy." To defile the temple of God, is to add to it something of human invention or device. To bring into the church of Christ, as a part of its service, any device or practice or institution not ordained of God, is to defile that temple. Him that defiles that temple God will destroy. It is probably true that the direct reference here, is to persons improperly brought into the church, but these were brought in by untruthful teaching—by substituting human devices, human authority, human teaching for the teaching and appointments of God.

But back even of our conceptions of truth as a defiling element, is the spirit that dwells within us; I mean by this the animus of the heart. From the heart proceed good thoughts, desires and purposes, or evil ones. Evil thoughts, desires and purposes dwelling in the heart, corrupt the life of the man, and so defile him. It is important above all else that man has within him a spirit in harmony with the divine will. It is sometimes difficult for a man to determine when his heart is right—when the spirit of it is good, when it is evil. In order to a correct determination of this point, we must have a correct standard. If a man takes a wrong standard by which to judge his heart and life, he can never by this wrong standard make them right. We are satisfied that in the selection of a standard of right, the greater number make the mistake that leads them to wrong and to defilement of the temple of God.

Most men take the common agreement of the community in which they live, as their standard of right. They measure themselves by this rule, and think if they do not offend the average moral sense of the community, they are acting well. They are generally educated up to this standard; and if this is wrong, they are wrong in their standard, wrong in their measurement of themselves, and hence fall as far short of obedience to God, as the standard of right in the community is short of the divine law.

Most men are educated to believe certain things are right and proper. We are very much given to resting in just what we have been taught from childhood to believe is right, as right, without questioning on our part. This makes us judge ourselves by ourselves. Measuring ourselves by ourselves, we of course come up to our standard, and we are satisfied. But in this way we never obey God. Paul (2 Cor. 2: 12,) says: "For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves; but they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise." It is not wise according to the divine wisdom, to compare ourselves with ourselves, to adopt any standard of measurement, derived from ourselves. The only wise way, is to lose confidence in self, and earnestly seek the standard God has given. Only the heart that loses confidence in self, in all human judgment and wisdom, and comes to trust divine guidance and light, is wise. The great trouble with most religious people, is, they desire to be religious, they desire to honor God, but they desire to do it in their own way. They have confidence in their ability to invent ways that will please God. They please themselves, satisfy their own conscience, and take this as satisfactory evidence they please God. This is a fatal mistake. Christ to undeceive, says, "The words that I have spoken, they shall judge him at the last day." John 12: 48. We will not be judged at the last day by our consciences, by our own standards of right, by what we have been taught, nor by the general agreement of the public, but by the word spoken by Almighty God to guide the world.

The great difficulty with man, is to bring himself to the point that he sincerely desires to do the will of God. We may have a desire to honor him, but in our own way. We may have a desire to "flee the wrath to come," but may imagine we can do this without yielding up all preference on our part, and emptying ourselves of ourselves, humbly seek only to do his will.

Hence, the troublesome point is to get the heart sincerely anxious to do just what is God's will. When we sincerely desire this, we have the mind of Christ, the spirit of Christ. He had no will of his own, he had no desire or thought to do other than the will of God. In humble submission, he sought his Father's will. He who seeks that will with a perfect heart—that is, desires to know and do no other will, has the true animus of a child of God. He has the Spirit of Christ. He desires the true standard as a measure by which to shape his character and govern his life. "If any man desires to do his will, he shall know of the doctrine, whether it be of God or whether I speak of myself." John 7: 17.

Many of us bring ourselves to the point that we desire to do the will of God in some acts of obedience, but not in all; some are willing to believe in Christ, but are willing to go no further; some are willing to believe and repent, but are not willing to be baptized; some are willing to do some things as God has commanded, but in other things they are not willing to follow God's will and wisdom; some are willing to be baptized, but in their own way. Many are willing to obey God, follow his will in entrance into Christ, but are not willing to follow him in the worship he requires after entrance into Christ. Many are willing to believe, to repent, to be baptized as Christ directed, but to meet together on the Lord's day to remember him in his memorial of the body and blood, they are not willing.

Many are willing to worship him in his appointments, that are not willing to conform to his order of work, are not willing to sacrifice for his cause, are not willing to work through God's own institutions. Many do not object to this that yet refuse to be animated and governed by his Spirit in their bearing toward one another, and toward the world. Many of us not only fail to be led by his spirit of kindness, forbearance, meekness, long-suffering under evil; to fail is human; but we utterly refuse to cultivate the spirit, to cherish the forbearing and kind disposition, to try to love our enemies, and to do good to, and pray for, those who insult and malign and evil entreat; we glory in the spirit of resentfulness, and seek only to cherish the spirit the world loves and cherishes. We seek to be governed in the forms of worship by the law of God, but in our dealings in life with our fellowmen, we utterly repudiate God's law as commanded by the Savior, and as exemplified in his life, and adopt the rule of the world.

We let the popular sentiment control us in our church associations. We seek to convert those whom the world honors, rather than those to whom the Savior sent his gospel—the poor, the degraded, the sinners and outcasts of earth.

We neglect, discourage and repel the poor from the gospel and from the church. We court, conciliate and wink at the sins of the rich and the honored. We saw a statement not long since of a popular preacher in a thriving town giving public notice, both from the pulpit and in the paper, that negroes were not desired or expected to attend services in his meeting-house. We heard, recently, of a church professing to be Christian, refusing membership to a negro, merely because she was a negro. Did Christ do that way? Did he repel a single humble child of mortality? How can a preacher, a church meet God, who so refuses to follow his law, be guided by his Spirit?

These individuals, it matters not how much in other things they walk according to the divine law, in this course reject it, and substitute what they regard as the public sentiment of the community, and that a community not imbued with the knowledge or spirit of the Christian religion.

I would much prefer to be the rejected negro here and hereafter, than the church that rejects and repels the humblest creature of God seeking to do his will, and seeking the help of his institutions.

It is in these relations that we must accept the law of initiation into the church; the order of worship, the order of work, the true service in the church, the true spirit of Christ in seeking the lost, and in helping all forward to a purer and better life in God, as a whole. "He who shall keep the whole law, yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all." Let us seek to humble ourselves before God and strive to do his will, be guided by his law in all departments of our life here, that we may be his children, blessed of him here, and saved by him in eternity. D. L.

QUERY.

Please explain Acts 7: 38: "This is he, that was in the church in the wilderness with the angel which spake to him in the mount Sina, and with our fathers: who received the lively oracles to give unto us." As the church was set up on the day of Pentecost, how was it that he (Moses) was in it? Also James 5: 14-15: "Is my sick among you? let him call for the elders of the church; and let them pray over him, anointing him with oil in the name of the Lord: and the prayer of faith shall save the sick, and the Lord shall raise him up; and if he have committed sins, they shall be forgiven him." If this means just what it says, it is not practiced at this age. Please answer this through the ADVOCATE.—[A. J. Speer, Rock Prairie, Robertson County, Texas.]

Church means persons called out, separated. It matters not what the purpose, it is a church, if separated from the rest of the world. The word translated church is ecclesia. The same word is used Acts 19: 39, "It shall be determined in a lawful assembly." Assembly is translated from the same word as church. It was only the church of Christ that was set up on Pentecost, and it set up only in the sense of being fully organized and equipped for service. The Jews were separated, called out, and were properly the church or the people separated in the wilderness; it was God's Jewish church, but not the church of Jesus Christ, and Moses was in the Jewish church.

2. We think the Scripture means exactly what it says, and believe it proper to attend to it now. But many think it pertains exclusively to the age of miracles, and of course could not do it in faith. It had better not be attended to, than to do it without faith.

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We propose to send it one year to two subscribers, one of which must be a new one, for three dollars. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

It was an exquisitely beautiful saying of Saxe Holm, and one that fits exactly into the present season: "The years write their records on human hearts as they do on trees, in hidden inner circles of growth which no eye can see."

A LETTER TO GEORGE H. MORGAN—No. 2.

DEAR BRO. MORGAN: In the ADVOCATE of October 1, I find your response to my letter of July 23. I had come to the conclusion that you had declined to answer. I am sorry to see that your article indicates so much chafing upon your part. I assure you, my brother, that I did not intend to wound. I know that men sometimes give expression to their ill feelings when they have nothing better to offer. But I was persuaded better things of you. While in such a mood, they are apt to accuse a brother of "meddling in other men's matters," or as being a "busy-body," or of writing "to be seen of men." I would hardly have thought that, to defend masonry, such as this would have to be resorted to; especially from you, my brother. I cannot tell what could evoke this, unless it was the light of God's truth shining in on the concern. I would have thought that one who had drunk so deeply into 1 Cor. 13, and had imbibed so much of that heaven-given principle, (love,) would have remembered some of its teaching, especially that "charity thinketh no evil."

You say that you have been tried and condemned without a hearing. Were you not invited to respond? Why the delay? If you are tried and condemned, I did not do it. I was only trying masonry by the word of God, and the argument drawn from God's word, to which you make no reply, condemns you, and you stand consenting to the decision, in that you refuse to answer.

But you say the trial was "ex parte." Why, then, did you not refer us to some place in the Bible (the law) that would allow you an appeal and reverse the decision? But it is not ex parte now, for you have put in your plea. That is:

1. "Busy-bodies writing about things they know nothing about, as is the case with Bro. Carter when he attacks through me the institution of masonry."

2. "He confounds matters of opinion with questions of faith, thus making such matters, instead of questions of faith, tests of orthodoxy."

3. "The safe rule for the preacher to be guided by is to stick to that which is revealed and preach the gospel, and let his brethren alone in matters of opinion upon untaught questions not affecting the faith."

Now, we desire to file our answer. "Who, but Bro. Morgan, is the accuser, witness and judge in saying that I don't know anything about masonry? Thus we have another ex parte side to this case, but not a sentence from God's word to sustain it. Bro. Morgan is guilty of the very thing he would condemn in me. Why, my brother, I have been acquainted with masonry all my life. It is true that I do not know the color of the "goat," nor how long each one is allowed to ride him; but am very well acquainted with the outside workings. I can now call to mind two deeds of charity the Masons have done in the country where I have lived. I know that your speech, referred to in my first letter, called some of the brethren away from the Lord's work. I know that a leading Mason once told me that the Masons were doing a greater work for the poor than the church, and used this as an argument against the church. I told him the reason of this was that the brethren who were able to give to the poor had given their money to masonry, to build up masonry, and to furnish him with an argument against the church. I know that many brethren pay large sums of money to support masonry, while they give but little, if any, to support the Lord's cause. There are several other things that I know that perhaps I had best not mention here. One other must suffice. I know that the Bible does not say anything about masonry.

As to plea No. 2, I deny having confounded matters of opinion with questions of faith, or of making matters of opinion tests of orthodoxy. It is wholly a matter of faith with me. The idea is not in my letter, neither has it ever entered my mind. I asked you if it would not be better for us to try and get the brethren at Bagdad to use their money to advance the Master's kingdom among men, than to use it in building Masonic buildings. Is this a matter of opinion? I asked you if you had not better make gospel speeches than masonic speeches. God tells you to do one, he says nothing about the other. Is this a matter of opinion? Are you and those brethren not trying to do a work through this human institution that you should do through the church? And by so doing, are you not dishonoring Christ and his body, the church, to build up a human-made society? Now, I again ask, is it right? and does the Bible teach that brethren should join the Masons, and give their means to support it? If so, then we should all join them; if not, we should be content with the church of God. Is this only a matter of opinion? No, my brother, for if God teaches in his word that we should do our deeds of charity through the masonic institution, it is a matter of faith in God, and in his wisdom for us to do it. But if he teaches us to do all such work through the institution he has ordained, his church, our doing it in that way shows our faith and obedience to God. Should we prefer another institution for the accomplishing of this work, it would be rebellion against God and his cause, and would show a want of confidence in the wisdom of God.

Again, we drew an argument from 2 Tim. 3: 16-17. From this we learned that if the Bible does not teach masonry, it is not a righteous institution; is not a good work, and is not of God. If God does not teach it, who does? It can come from but one other source. As it proposes to do the work that God has ordained that his church should do, it does not require much time and labor to tell whence it is.

We next called attention to 2 Peter 1: 2-3. Here we found that as the divine knowledge does not tell us anything about masonry, it neither pertains to life nor godliness. This is only a "matter of opinion" though, I suppose.

You say "when I show from the Bible that it is right for God's people to build meeting-houses, school-houses, steamboats, railroads, steamcars, telegraphs, telephones, etc., then it will be time for you to respond in detail, from a Bible standpoint, to my strictures." Well, if you can rest easy after having squeezed through these and your "various ten thousand" other loop-holes to avoid answering my arguments, I suppose I will have to let you go. Now, as you go, be it remembered, that I have never heard of any of the things you mentioned, or of the "various ten thousand things" you did not mention, usurping the work that should be done through the church, or of arrogating to themselves the honor of doing such work.

"He that fights and runs away,
May live to fight another day."

To plea number 3, we would say that it is also the business of the faithful preacher to contend against spiritual wickedness in high places, and warn his brethren against honoring the devil with their substance, time, and talent, in building up human institutions, to the detriment of the church. Paul says, "Them that sn rebuke before all, that others also may fear." 1 Tim. 5: 20. "Wherefore rebuke them sharply, that they may be sound in the faith; not giving heed to Jewish fables, and commandments of men, that turn from the truth." Tit. 1: 13-14. (Such as masonry.) "These things speak, and exhort, and rebuke with all authority." Tit. 2: 15. So you see, Bro. Morgan; this is no "matter of opinion" with us, but a matter of fidelity to God.

But, Oshaw! this has miscarried and got into the ADVOCATE office, too. Well, don't blame "Uncle Sam" for it. W. H. CARTER.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. M. Joiner, Valhermoso Springs, Ala., October 14, writes: "Five persons have recently confessed the Lord and been baptized at Liberty church, near Apple Grove, Morgan County, Ala."

I. S. Duprey, Thyatira, October 8, writes: "Since our last report we have been preaching at school-houses and private houses about once a day; have had one addition from the Free Will Baptist. Commenced a meeting at county line the 6th; preached two nights, had a good hearing; left Bro. Anderson to continue; having other appointments to fill."

W. H. Carter writes: "Please announce in the ADVOCATE that Dr. E. M. Berry will begin a meeting at Lafayette, Macon County, Tenn., on the second Lord's day in November, to continue ten days. Also, that I will begin a meeting at Berea, Wilson County, Tenn., on Monday night after the fourth Lord's day in this month, (Oct.) to continue over first Lord's day in November."

Obituaries.

Died, September 8, 1884, Anna May Bailey. In the death of our dear little baby girl, we are made, more than ever before, to sadly realize the fact, that "into each life some rain must fall, some days be dark and dreary." May our heavenly father help us to be resigned and bear the loss of our precious babe with humble submission.

Sleep, sweet little daughter, sleep,
We would not disturb thy rest;
Though with sad hearts we sigh and weep,
We submit to the will of him
"Who knoweth and doeth all things for the best."

The family of Bro. J. T. S. Fall, of East Nashville, has been very deeply stricken in the loss of Miss Carrie Fall, who died in Memphis, Tenn., on the 9th of this month, (October, 1884.) She had been in Memphis, where she was visiting a married sister, only a short time, when she was attacked with typhoid fever, and though surrounded with all the care that loving hands could give, and treated with the best skill of medical aid, her fair and promising young life was transferred from earth to the better land. She was born July 23, 1864, and was therefore twenty years old when she died. Under Bro. E. G. Sewell's preaching she confessed her faith in Christ, and became a member of the Woodland Street church in this city in December, 1880, and was a sincere and faithful Christian, adding to the graces of her person and the loveliness of her nature, the crowning and perfecting grace of Christian faith. At home, in the church, in the Sunday-school, and in society she was universally beloved, and will be sadly missed. No pen can tell the grief of the stricken household, but sustaining grace of God is and will be there, and will in time turn this terrible loss into a tender and blessed memory of love, and a sweet, ever brightening hope of happy meeting in the presence of our Father—God. The church and many loving friends extend to the family their sincere sympathy.

It is not often that a physician is called upon to witness a death so deeply to be lamented as the death of Miss Sarah Elizabeth Daniel, who passed away in peace and the full possession of her right mind on the morning of October 1st, 1884. She was eight days before the very picture of health, just merging into womanhood, the only daughter of her parents and only sister of six brothers who loved her beyond expression. Her life has been one of sweetness, love, purity and sympathy and above reproach, loved and esteemed by all who knew her. She has written her name by kindness, love and charity on the hearts of all who knew her. Between us and the deceased, there existed friendship of the most tender nature, like that between David and Jonathan. She was a Christian, and when informed by her physician that she must soon go, the announcement of which did not excite her in the least, for she talked softly and sweetly to her relatives, and when speech was hushed, and just as the lovely spirit was leaving her body, she extended her hand and bided them farewell, and by the assurances she gave us we can look forward to the grand re-union in heaven of parents, brothers and friends—it will be joy even for the blessed angels.

"Our sorrow is deep;
For there is hushed on earth
A voice of gladness—there is veiled a face,
Whose parting leaves a dark and silent place
By the once joyous hearth;
A smile hath passed which filled its home with light,
A soul whose beauty made that smile so bright."

Cookeville, Tenn.

W. W. BAKER.

"Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." Then great must have been the rejoicing in heaven when on the 27th of September the Spirit of Bro. R. C. Hoover left this earthly home for the house of many mansions. He obeyed the gospel of his Lord and Savior in early manhood, and from that time forward, became the earnest, devoted Christian that Jesus would have all his followers be. His life is a noble example of truth and virtue; his love a model of strength and purity; his faith a lasting tower over which a single ray of unbelief dared not scatter itself. Few men possessed so many noble traits of character as did he, and his influence for good upon those with whom he associated will be felt for long years to come. His striving for the Master, and his unassuming, Christian-like way of living, will bring sweet peace and joyous comfort to the bruised hearts of those he loved and left. His home life was indeed beautiful. His devotion as a husband and father, his gentleness as a brother, and his steadfastness as a friend, will ever bring sweet recollections of him to our minds. We pray that he may live in our hearts, and that we may live with him in glory. He kept that faith so precious to his heart, and now his spirit mingles in blissful communion with that angel mother, whose love and watch-care he never knew. It is the bitterest dreg a human heart can drink to have death steal in and snatch our loved ones from us, yet there is consolation that we can meet them again where hearts never break and where dying kisses are never given. O, God, help our darling sister to bear this unspeakable grief, and through her tears may she look to Thee, and exclaim,—

Other refuge have I none,
Hangs my helpless soul on Thee;
Leave, O leave, me not alone,
Still support and comfort me.

May she feel the blessedness of being a Christian in her deep sorrow, and lay-up her treasure in heaven; may she bring up her dear little Alma in the "nurture and admonition of the Lord," and at last grant, that as a little family, they may be reunited with the loved one gone before, in that wondrous city where angels stand ready to welcome, and where Jesus has promised that death shall never enter.

EMMA BELL McQUIDDY.

Born June 17, 1866; passed away October 1st, 1884, Miss Lilly Bobo, daughter of brother Jas. S. and sister M. J. Bobo. Oh! how sad, how distressing! to have death thus enter a loving family circle, and rudely carry away one so near and dear, to have those tender cords of love and affection which so firmly binds a loving child to a parent's heart, torn asunder. Who can fathom the depth of a parent's love? And while our hearts are indeed drawn out in deepest sympathy with these bereaved ones, shall we not also commend them to God. That they may meekly submit in trusting confidence to him who "doeth all things well," exclaiming with good old Job—"though he slay me, yet will I trust in him," remembering that although "he woundeth, yet his hands make whole," although "he maketh sore, yet he bindeth up." And now may this sad dispensation remind us all "that we have here no continuing city." By him, therefore, let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually; that is, the fruit of our lips, giving thanks to his name."

DEBATE AT FLIPPIN, KENTUCKY.—No. 2.

On this proposition, Prof. Taylor obligates himself to prove by the Scriptures that the kingdom or church of Christ was established during the ministry of John the Baptist. He laid the foundation for his line of argument by reference to several passages in the epistles, Acts of Apostles, and narratives, to show that the church was a body of individual members, believers of which Christ was the head, or a kingdom of which Christ was king, and that John was his forerunner to prepare a people for his reception. And that John baptized the people, putting them in the church or kingdom, introducing passages of Scripture to prove, as he thought, that the kingdom was then present in John's ministration, introducing chronology and admitting that he must show the kingdom set up or established within or between the years of 26 and 29.

Bro. Carter took every passage introduced, and the chronological account introduced, and showed that John was put in prison and his ministry ceased before any of those references were made, and consequently his own proof, if proof at all, placed the establishment of the kingdom after John's day, and his proposition fell to the ground.

But Taylor rallied to the support of his proposition with the courage of a brave hero, but mistaking the effect of his own manœuvre by reference to the four years difference between the true date from the birth of Christ, and the common or vulgar chronological account. But here Carter captured the whole of that point by showing that a correction or move of the dates must go all together, and not for Christ without John, or Taylor without Carter; illustrated by reference to pushing a bar of iron, one inch at this end by removal is one inch at that end, and so on. But the last forlorn hope for the salvation of Taylor's proposition hung on Luke 16: 16: "The law and the prophets were until John; since that time the kingdom of God is preached, and every man presseth into it." The point here made by Taylor was that the law and prophets only continued till John came, the ceremonial law being then annulled by the establishing of the kingdom. But Carter reminded Taylor that Christ came to fulfill the law, and it could not be taken away till fulfilled, and it was only taken out of the way when nailed to the cross of Christ. On the teaching of Christ that the least in the kingdom was greater than John the Baptist, Taylor admitted that John was not in the kingdom himself, but he baptized and introduced others into it. At one time Taylor read 1 Cor. 12: 28, where apostles were first set in the church. At another time, that they first got into the church by John's baptism. At another time, that Peter, and Andrew his brother, and James the son of Zebedee, and John his brother, these four as called Matt. 4: 18-22, were first. At another time he read John 1: 35-45, where Peter, Philip, Andrew and Nathaniel were convinced, and confessed Jesus as the Son of God, as being in the kingdom, the proof of which is in the narrative above referred to.

(Now, we are curious to know who were first baptized by John, and how many ways of getting into the kingdom, if but one. Whether by John's baptism, the calling of the first four, the confession of the four in John 1: 35-45, or the twelve apostles when called and sent to preach the things, was too much mixed on this point of getting in the church, for our comprehension. Excuse the digression in the way of a query.)

Bro. Carter showed that any such kingdom as Bro. Taylor was trying to establish before the death of Christ, would be an institution without the blood, death, burial, resurrection, ascension, glorification and crowning of Jesus as King. Consequently no remission, as the blood had not been offered by our great High Priest; no life in it, as the Spirit had not been given; no eternal life assured with its immortality, as Christ had not by his resurrection brought life and immortality to light; no exhibition of the power of God unto salvation, as the gospel of Christ could not be preached. And as Christ died after Taylor's Baptist church was established, it was without a living head, and also without a founder, as John, too, was dead, and the whole Baptist church died before Christ established his church by the Spirit through the apostles on the day of Pentecost, the Spirit remaining in this church with life to raise the banner red with the blood of the Lamb, inscribed with victory over death and the grave.

Bro. Carter then made a cutting appeal to the audience to decide for themselves as to the value of an institution established without the resurrection, the blood of the Lamb and the Holy Spirit, and also with a High Priest. I have no doubt but that much good will grow out of this debate.

DERISIVE COMPENSATION.

A kind of derisive compensation appears in history from time to time in harmony with the teaching of the Second Psalm. "Why do the heathen rage and the people imagine a vain thing? The kings of the earth set themselves, and the rulers take counsel against the Lord, and against his Anointed. * * * He that sitteth in the heavens shall laugh: The Lord shall have them in derision." The psalm of which these are the opening words has always been noted as one which finally sets forth the folly of all human attempt to thwart the plans or hinder the purposes of the Almighty. The Lord has them in derision. There is an irony at least in history that illustrates how feeble and worthy of derision only are the boasted efforts of man to hinder the truth or thwart any of the agencies God has ordained for its triumph. The very house in Europe in which a noted infidel not far back in these times boasted he would soon rid the priest-ridden world of the Bible has for years past been used as a depot for the Bible Society. A missionary among the Mohammedans, Rev. T. P. Hughes, of Peshawur, India, gives us another illustration of this derision: "It is a startling fact that the irony of circumstances," he says, "has brought it to pass that the greatest ruler over Mohammedan people—people who have done more to lower the position of women than any other—is herself a woman, the Queen Empress Victoria." History has a kind of grim humor in hanging Haman on the very gallows he had raised for Mordecai.

For people who are of that eager spirit that they must contend with something or somebody, there are always the great men of former days to contend with, and if possible to surpass; and, also, there is nature to be wrestled with, who will not yield her open secrets without much compulsion, and who is an antagonist always at hand, offering full scope for our utmost energy and metal.—Arthur Helps.

DYSPEPSIA.

Sedentary habits, mental worry, nervous excitement, excess or imprudence in eating or drinking, and various other causes, induce Constipation followed by general derangement of the liver, kidneys, and stomach, in which the disorder of each organ increases the infirmity of the others.

The immediate results are Loss of Appetite, Nausea, Foul Breath, Heartburn, Flatulence, Dizziness, Sick Headaches, failure of physical and mental vigor, distressing sense of weight and fullness in the stomach, and increased Costiveness, all of which are known under one head as Dyspepsia.

In every instance where this disease does not originate from scrofulous taint in the blood, AYER'S PILLS may be confidently relied upon to effect a cure. Those cases not amenable to the curative influence of AYER'S PILLS alone will certainly yield if the PILLS are aided by the powerful blood-purifying properties of AYER'S SARSAPARILLA.

Dyspeptics should know that the longer treatment of their malady is postponed, the more difficult of cure it becomes.

Ayer's Pills

Never fail to relieve the bowels and promote their healthful and regular action, and thus cure Dyspepsia. Temporary palliatives all do permanent harm. The fitful activity into which the enfeebled stomach is spurred by "bitters," and alcoholic stimulants, is inevitably followed by reaction that leaves the organ weaker than before.

"Constiveness, induced by my sedentary habits of life, became chronic; AYER'S PILLS afforded me speedy relief. Their occasional use has since kept me all right." HERMANN BRINGMOTT, Newark, N. J.

"I was induced to try AYER'S PILLS as a remedy for indigestion, Constipation, and Headache, from which I had long been a sufferer. I found their action easy, and obtained prompt relief. They have benefited me more than all the medicines ever before tried." M. V. WATSON, 152 State St., Chicago, Ill.

"They have entirely corrected the costive habit, and vastly improved my general health." REV. FRANCIS B. HARLOWE, Atlanta, Ga.

"The most effective and the easiest physic I have ever found. One dose will quickly move my bowels and free my head from pain." W. L. PAGE, Richmond, Va.

"A sufferer from Liver Complaint, Dyspepsia, and Neuralgia for the last twenty years, AYER'S PILLS have benefited me more than any medicine I have ever taken." P. R. ROGERS, Needmore, Brown Co., Ind.

"For Dyspepsia they are invaluable." J. T. HAYES, Merla, Texas.

A BOY'S POUND.

Morris sat on the roof of the old corn-crib, looking down on a load of wood to be cut and put away in the wood-house. Beyond was the garden, overgrown with weeds, and close to the garden gate was the kitchen-door.

From his high seat Morris could look in at the open door, and see his mother, as she walked with quick step, back and forth, preparing supper for the harvest-men.

"Mother must be warm and tired," he thought. He wondered if any other family in the country had as much trouble as his family? His father was ill—there came the doctor round a turn in the road, to see him; his brother Dick had broken his arm; Hannah the house-maid was gone—there was no one to help his mother in the busy harvest-time. If only his sister were home! Morris had never before wished so earnestly for a man's strength. "I could chop the wood, put the garden in order, and get things straight," he said. Then he looked at his feet and hands, and sighed to think that they were only a boy's feet and hands.

But wishes and sighs could do no good! He was tired of his high seat, and tired, too, of the sight of the lazy turkeys strutting up and down across the lawn. He scrambled down in some queer way, putting his hands in and out of the lattice-work, breaking the strips in one or two places, thus helping to make the general appearance of things more forlorn. Morris ran by the kitchen, and jumped in through the window into the sitting-room. If he could not work he could read, and drive the thought of all those stupid things out of his mind. He found just such a story as he liked. It was about the building of a ship. He read every word—how day after day the workmen were busy on the several parts; and how the time came, at last, when the noble thing was to be launched and to begin its work.

He read how the crowd began to gather, how great strength was put forth, and how every one expected to see the ship pushed into the water. It all seemed so real to Morris that he felt himself one of the crowd, ready to shout as loud as any one.

But what was the trouble? Why so much strength put in vain? The vessel would not move! People wondered. Just then a boy came pushing through the crowd crying: "Let me try, captain; I am small, but I can push a pound, at least."

The people laughed at the boy. Some even tried to push him back. But he was a brave little fellow. He ran with all his might against the ship, and lo! off it glided into the water.

Then there went up a shout of triumph. The men who had laughed at the boy now praised him, and declared that it was just his pound of help that was needed to launch the ship.

"He was only a boy!" exclaimed Morris. Then quick as a flash came the thought: "I am only a boy, too; but I might try to do something to help mother push our ship along."

He jumped out of the window, and ran round to the kitchen door. There he stopped a moment to consider what he meant by "our ship."

"All the farm-work, of course," he said. "I might push with my might, and resolve to get some of this wood split and piled up, and some of those weeds out of the vegetable garden."

He looked in at the door just then, and nodded his head, and smiled, and said:

"As there is no 'big sister' about mother, would you like me to set up the chairs, and stir the fire, and bring in a few armfuls of wood?"

"Thank you," his mother said, a look of pleased surprise coming into her face.

"I do not feel as tired as I did a little while ago," she said, an hour afterward, when Morris had been going in and out, drawing water, and bringing in wood, humming, meanwhile, two or three of his Sunday-school hymns.

"Why, Morris, dear, you are as helpful as a 'big sister,'" she added.

"O mother, I am so glad! I see now how foolish it was to waste time wishing that I were a man. It was just that ship story, though, that opened my eyes."

His mother did not know what he meant by that ship story till the two found time to talk over the matter that very evening.—Maud Middleton, in Sunday-School Times.

AN EARNEST APPEAL.

DEAR BRETHREN IN CHRIST: Our Savior said, "Then shall the kings say to those on his right hand, 'Come ye blessed of my father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was an hungred, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink: I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Then shall the righteous say, 'Where saw we thee thus? And the king shall say unto them, 'For as much as ye did it unto one of the least of these, my brethren, ye did it unto me.'"

Now, dear brethren, we have a brother, and I will say an earnest one, too, in the person of Bro. S. J. Moor, of the Smyrna congregation, on whom the hand of affliction has been heavy. His wife has been an invalid for years, and unable to aid him. Last fall his oldest son was taken with consumption, and in March or April his only daughter was taken down, and both lay ill until June 9th, then the son died, and on June 15th, the daughter died, leaving the wife a heart-broken wreck. Now for some weeks the next oldest son and his aged father about 88 years old, have been at the point of death, and is still in bad health. Now, Bro. Moore is a poor man, and has to depend on his daily labor to pay expenses, procure nourishments, etc., and having lost all the year, I think it the duty of the brotherhood at large to rise as one man and help in this time of need and distress. If the church would only arouse herself to her duty as the worldly institutions do, it would be the loudest preaching that could be done.

Brethren L. & S., why do not you give more essays on this subject? for surely it is one of the greatest importance. Now, if any one wishes to know more of Bro. Moore, write the elders of Smyrna congregation, Silver Creek, Tenn. Come, brethren and sisters, here is work for us, and we do not need any board, corresponding secretary, or president. Put your gifts in an envelope and address S. J. Moore, Culleoka, Tenn., and cause a sorrowful heart to rejoice. Elders of the various congregations, bring this to the notice of your charges, and suffer not worldly institutions to be more liberal than Christians.

C. H. W.

[We hope the brethren will aid the above case, as it is doubtless a worthy one. But it is the duty of the church at home first to exhaust its means of helping. A masonic lodge at Culleoka would help its members, not make a public appeal. The church ought to do the same.]

IT IS CURIOUS WHO GIVE.

"It's curious who give. There's Squire Wood; he's put down $2; his farm's worth $10,000 and he's money at interest. And there's Mrs. Brown; she's put down $5; and I don't believe she's had a new gown in two years, and her bonnet ain't none the newest, and she's them three grandchildren to support since her son was killed in the army; and she's nothing but her pension to live on. Well, she'll have to scrimp on butter and tea for awhile but she'll pay it. She just loves the cause; that's why she gives."

These were the utterances of Deacon Daniel after we got home from church the day pledges were taken for contribution to foreign missions. He was reading them off and I was taking down the items to find the aggregate. He went on: "There's Maria Hill, she's put down $50; she teaches in the North district and don't have but $20 a month, and pays her board; and she has to help support her mother. But when she told her experience, the time she joined the church, I knew the Lord had done a work in her soul, and where he works you'll generally see the fruit in giving. And there's John Baker; he put down $1, and he'll chew more than that worth of tobacco in a fortnight. Cyrus Dunning, $4. Well, he'll have to do some extra painting with that crippled hand, but he'll do it, and sing the Lord's songs while he is at work. C. Williams, $10. Good for him. He said the other night to prayer meeting that he'd been reading his Bible more than usual lately. Maybe he read about the rich young man who went away sorrowful and didn't want to be in his company.—The Advance.

EVERY-DAY LIFE.

It is said that Beethoven when he had completed one of his grand musical compositions was accustomed to test it on an old harpsichord, lest a more perfect instrument might flatter it or hide its defects. Many are unwilling to put the results of their labors to any such test as this, preferring to be deceived and to deceive others with outward appearances.

With reference to human character it may be observed that those traits that most entitle us to the love and esteem of men, and which honor us most in the sight of God, are not always revealed on notable occasions and by extraordinary events, but manifest themselves in the quiet course of every-day life. This is the old harpsichord that tries the character on its real merits. It is one thing to appear great in the midst of popular favor and worldly successes, and another to carry a noble, generous and magnanimous spirit amid the worries, anxieties and petty trials that spring up along the path, hour by hour and day by day.

Ruskin has truly said that "greatness is the aggregation of minuteness." It is the sum of little things well done that constitutes, as a whole, a really useful and noble life. It is not those who wait in idleness for some chance opportunity to distinguish themselves and do the world a great service who are likely to be the benefactors of the race, but rather those who proceed earnestly about their daily duties, "doing with their might what their hands find to do." There are but few to whom it is given to discover new continents, to do an act that frees a race from bondage, to utter thoughts that stir the heart of mankind, but it is given to each and all to pass each day of life so well, so nobly, so truly, so faithfully, so near to God, that all life is lifted up, and all the world made better by such living and doing.—N. Y. Observer.

GRADUAL BACKSLIDING.

Great temptations are not the most dangerous to Christian people. We are not likely at once to deny the Lord, or to commit flagrant violations of the law. There is danger of yielding here a little and there a little from the right. One does not become a Sabbath-breaker or profane because one great temptation is too strong for him, but by a gradual process. He does not become cold in his service through any sudden chill, but by first neglecting some duty and then another. The disciples slept during Christ's agony before they forsook him and fled. Peter followed afar off before he denied him. Those who would serve faithfully must avoid the beginning of evil.

The same thing is true of churches. They do not become cold and negligent, or formal, or lose their doctrine, or practice by any sudden transition. On the contrary, the change is usually unnoticed, save by those who recollect the past, and put it side by side with the present. They remember how the prayer meeting was first neglected, and then the night service; how family worship became less and less common and the Sunday-school less and less interesting; how infidel ideas crept in. Christian people, especially those who, as officers in the church, have accepted a special responsibility, and need to watch the beginning of evil.—Journal and Messenger.

DESIRES.

Set a bound to your desires: think not how much others have, but of how much which they have you can do perfectly well without. Be not the slave of show or circumstances. Do not lose the present in vain perplexities about the future. If future frowns to-day, she may smile to-morrow; and when she lavishes her gifts upon you, cherish an humble heart, and so fortify yourself against her caprice. Keep a rein upon all your passions—upon covetousness above all; for once that has you within its clutches, farewell forever to the light heart, and the sleep that comes unbidden; to the open eye that drinks in delight from beauty and freshness and infinite variety of nature; to the unclouded mind that judges justly and serenely of men and things. Enjoy wisely, for then only you enjoy thoroughly. Mar not your life with a hopeless quarrel against destiny.—Sir T. Martin.

Success leads to success. One point gained will continue to accomplish.

SOUTH ALABAMA NOTES.

After leaving the consultation meeting on the eve of the first Lord's day, we wended our way toward Antioch, Monroe County, where we had an appointment for the Wednesday night following; did no work on Lord's day night, the first since the first Lord's day in July that I have failed to speak to people in the interest of their souls. Circulated an appointment and preached at the residence of Bro. Wm. Robinson's Monday and Tuesday nights to appreciative audiences. Wednesday night filled an appointment for Antioch; very few out. I am sorry that some of the good brethren of this congregation are so very tender of the human societies that dot the hills that they seem to be inclined to ask that the word be sugar coated, so that they can take it and not be disturbed as to their safety, forgetting that all who teach is arraigned before God and the Lord Jesus Christ who is to judge the quick and the dead at his appearing, and his kingdom to preach the word. We suggest that they read Matthew 15: 7-8-9.

From Antioch we went to Midway, and met our appointment for Thursday night; audience small. Methodist society was conducting a protracted effort. Called in the appointment for 11 a. m., Friday, went to the residence of Bro. T. J. Buffington, met a gentleman who we had previously learned was thinking of obedience, we talked a short time with him upon the importance of obedience and the danger of delay when he announced his desire, and we went to where there was water and buried him in baptism; his wife who had obeyed, and instead of rising to the new life, was deceived by the philosophy of the Baptist, and walked after their human traditions, but when the light came unto her she refused not to be led by it, hence she too took membership with the Antioch congregation. Back to Midway Friday night, audience better, two Mormon "Elders," so-called, present, subject baptism; think we showed to some of the pædo's the mode. This little band has a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, in the person of Bro. Dr. J. M. Mason; he is not ashamed of the gospel of Jesus Christ, and he is one that daily contends for the faith once delivered to the saints. I trust the brethren will give him their support both as a Christian and physician, as he is worthy of their confidence and support in either field. May God bless his effort. The little band at Midway is faithful and will certainly grow to the full stature of men and women in Christ under the leadership of Bro. Mason. From Midway we went to Fairfield; continued from Saturday, 11 a. m., until Tuesday night; good audience all the time; two additions from the Baptists. There is a field white here and no laborer. Oh if we had just a little help a good work could be done for the Lord.

S. J. S. CAWTHORN.

CHURCH NEWS.

F. B. Srygley, Lebanon, Tenn., October 11, writes: "I preached fourteen discourses at Oak Grove, beginning the fourth Lord's day in September, which resulted in six confessions. One the last night of the meeting and one at the water. The interest was increasing when I left. The workmen were at work on their new house while the meeting was going on. The house and the church were going up together."

J. M. Kidwill, Smithville, writes: "Embracing the first Lord's day in October, I held a meeting at the Curlee meeting-house, in Cannon county, with fourteen additions—twelve by baptism, and two reclaimed. This is the oldest congregation of our brethren in Cannon county. This church was planted by old brother Calvin Curlee, within sight of his home, about fifty years ago. Now there are more than a dozen congregations in the county. This oldest church is one among the best in the county. Bro. Curlee sleeps in front of the church house door, but still lives in the memory of the people among whom he lived and labored. I expect, the Lord willing, to hold a meeting at Pleasant Plains, Coffee county, embracing the second Lord's day in November. I expect to be at Bean's Creek, Thursday night and Friday night before. Bro. J. L. Sewell will fill my appointment at Watertown for same time. The fifth Lord's day in November I have promised to be with the brethren at Antioch, Warren county."

T. E. Tatum, Temperance Hall, Tenn., October 11, writes: "We are still sounding out the truth in these destitute localities, and we are thankful to the Lord that it is having its effect. Thirty-one have been added in my field of labor since my last report. I had the pleasure of meeting Bro. L. B. Wilcher, of Woodbury, Tenn., on last Lord's day. We conducted a meeting on Bowlings Branch; delivered eight discourses, which resulted in eleven additions; eight by obedience and three by restoration. Give God the praise."

J. R. Bradley, Lynnville, Tenn., October 15, writes: "Have just closed a meeting at Smyrna, Maury County, Tenn., embracing first and second Lord's days in this month. Had a good meeting for the place. Some old difficulties hanging over the people of this community, which is a great offset to the power of a little man like me. Young Bro. Sewell preached twice and Bro. Derryberry once during the meeting; had five additions. I have been going there almost three years, and my first additions were at this meeting, owing to this trouble."

G. McD. Tippen, writes: "The cry was made by the congregation worshipping at Holly Springs, Winn Parish, La. to the co operation of Claiborne and Bossier Parishes, Bro. J. B. Davis was sent. Meeting began third Lord's day of September, continued until fourth Lord's day; visible result, one young lady came forward, confessed and obeyed. Many of the sects came and heard the ancient gospel, and were astonished to think such preaching could be done by the so-called Campbellites. This meeting will remove much prejudice. Bro. Davis was solicited by some of the sects to come again and preach for us. Bro. Davis is a workman that need not be ashamed; he delivered us two chart lectures that astonished the sect more than any thing they ever heard before. We give all the praise, honor and dominion to God the Father."

ITEMS AND PERSONALS.

We are sorry to announce the death of Prof. N. B. Smith, of Salem, and Elder Seth Sparkman, of Williamson County, Tenn.

G. A. Palmer, Esq., of Robertson County, Tenn., sends the ADVOCATE to his brother in Missouri. Quite a number have availed themselves of our proposition, and are sending to others. Will not others do likewise?

Bro. F. H. Davis reports twenty-four additions at Belleview, Dixon County; Linden, Perry Co., two; Farmer's Valley, Perry County, four; Old Lasea, Maury County, fifteen. At Linden met with Bro. Brown Godwin, and with Charley Sparkman at Belleview, in Hickman; and Willie Morton, son of Jas. H. Morton, at Old Lasea, and Sammie Sewell at same place. All these are young brethren of excellent promise, and are students of Bro. Larimore.

Bro. McGary states that I defend "Baptist baptism." He has had ample opportunity to know this is not true, and if he expects to be regarded as a truthful man, he must not repeat it. We have no more faith in baptist baptism, than we have in Bro. McGary's. Both are sinful. Bro. McGary accuses his brethren of being Campbellites, yet will receive no baptism unless performed by these same Campbellites. Verily, he is the most complete Campbellite I know. We say that men may submit to the baptism ordained by Christ, whether performed by Baptists or by Bro. McGary. When this is done, it is acceptable to God. When done to please Bro. McGary or the Baptists, or when done through his reasoning or theirs, it is sinful. Bro. McGary must not get so far over, like other sectarians, that he cannot correctly represent his brethren. At least he must not leap clear over into such unfair sectarianism as this at once. By the by, Bro. McGary never told us whether he thought A. Campbell, T. Fanning, and that host of heroes who suffered all to obey God, committed a sin when they, having learned that baptism was a command of God, gladly obeyed the command before they learned it was for the remission of sins. Sometimes clear examples help more than human reasonings.

General News.

There is decided alarm at New Orleans lest the capricious Mississippi may go rushing to the Gulf through the atchafalaya, and leave the city stranded as an island town. The Produce Exchange, recently, adopted an address to the Governor inviting his attention to the steady enlargement of the atchafalaya outlet, and that there is serious danger of the great body of water being deflected into that river to the irreparable injury of New Orleans.—Every State in the Union has St. John electoral ticket in the field except Vermont, Mississippi and South Carolina, and they, it is said, are soon to have them.—R. W. Kittrell, a student at one of the medical colleges of this city, was crazed by the horrors of the dissecting room, and jumped twice from a second story window, but escaped unhurt.—Much excitement exists over the attempt to remove the county seat from Purdy to Falcon. In 1876 the question of the removal began to be agitated. Several elections have been ordered and held, in which more than two-thirds of the votes cast have been for removal; but at no time have two-thirds of the qualified votes of the county voted for removal, as required by the constitution. The County Court upon three or more occasions has declared the election carried and ordered the removal, but have as many times been enjoined. On account of the great excitement and bad blood growing out of the removal question, it is thought that the Governor may have to order out the militia to aid the sheriff's posse.—The October elections are over with in the States of Ohio and West Virginia. Ohio gave a Republican majority of about 10,000; West Virginia went Democratic by a majority of about 6,000. Both parties claim to be jubilant over the result in Ohio.—The drouth in Mobile, Alabama, is causing great trouble. Cattle are being driven miles for water, and at some places drinking water is retailed at fifty cents a bucket. The rivers in Alabama are lower than they have been since 1836, and the steam boat business is very quiet. People are waiting for rain as the Egyptians do for the flood of the Nile.—Col. E. W. Cole has purchased the Terriss place, about two miles from the city. It is said Col. Cole will donate it in the name of his son, Randal Cole, who was recently killed by a train, to be used by the city and county as a home for the friendless.

FOREIGN.—An explosion of fire-damp has occurred in the mines at Ostran, in Moravia, causing the death of the twenty persons.—Fourteen children, while playing in a boat on the river Drave, at Esseg, Austria, last week, capsized the boat and lost their lives in the water.—Eleven pupils of the School of Agriculture at Bordeaux have died from the effects of eating mushrooms gathered in a wood near the school.—A conference of the European powers is likely to be held in Berlin, upon the invitation of Germany, to secure freedom of commerce to all nations in the Congo country.—During a gale in the gulf of Trieste, which continued several days, a large number of fishing boats were wrecked, and the bodies of their crews washed ashore.—A transport has taken two hundred and fifty workmen and their families from Lisbon and the island of Madeira to the new settlement near Massamedes, South Africa, which is being founded by the Portuguese Government.—At Cracow the Jews, Ritter and Strochlenski, who were charged with the murder of a Christian girl under most revolting circumstances, several months ago, have been found guilty and sentenced to suffer death.

CO-OPERATION MEETING.

We take pleasure in saying to the brethren in West Tennessee, that the next co-operation meeting will be held at Humboldt, beginning the 5th day of November next. Each congregation is respectively solicited to have representatives present, to take part freely in the work that is before us. Send up the amount that has been promised with such pledges for the future as you may desire. We anticipate a pleasant and profitable meeting. Do not fail to be represented. All are cordially invited, whether representing any congregation or not.

SIX LITTLE WORDS.

Six little words arrest me every day;
I ought, I must, can—I will, I dare, I may.
I OUGHT—'tis conscience' law, divinely writ
Within my heart—the goal I strive to hit.
I MUST—this warns me that my way is barred,
Either by Nature's law or custom hard.
I CAN—in this is summed up all my might,
Whether to do, or know, or judge aright.
I WILL—my diadem, by the soul imprest
With freedom's seal—the ruler in my breast.
I DARE—at once a motto for the soul,
And, dare I? barrier 'gainst unlicensed zeal.
I MAY—is final, and at once makes clear
The way which else might vague and dim appear.
I ought, I must, can—I will, I dare, I may;
These six words claim attention every day,
Only through Thee, know I what every day,
I ought, I must, I can, I will, I dare, I may.

CINNAMON.

It is safe to say that few people nowadays when about to visit a king or queen, would think of taking with them as a present a stick of cinnamon. Yet, two thousand years ago a monarch would have felt very much pleased with such a present, for small quantities of cinnamon were then very expensive and even royal school children did not enjoy the modern privilege of carrying bits of the pungent bark in their pockets and slyly nibbling them between lessons.

In those days cinnamon came mostly from the island of Ceylon, but it had to be carried by the Arabian merchants' caravans of camels on a long journey across the hot deserts before coming to that civilized portion of the world lying along the shore of the Mediterranean Sea.

But, however high its price, it is certain that cinnamon has been in the world's market a great many years. Herodotus mentions it in his writings, and Moses in Exodus speaks of the "sweet cinnamon" to be used in making holy ointment.

At the present time cinnamon comes from the Malabar coast, from Java and China and from the West Indies, but still the most productive region, as of old, is in the southwestern part of Ceylon.

There the voyager approaching the bold, rocky coasts that guard the little harbor of the capital city, Colombo, sees spread out before him a picturesque scene. The mountains, from one of the highest of which, Adam's Peak, the natives assert that Buddha ascended to heaven, are covered with tropical green, and the groves of palms overlook the one-story houses of the town.

Here, in the perfectly white "cinnamon soil," as it is called, surrounding the city of Colombo, the tree flourishes better than in any other portion of the known world. The native Cingalese call the tree "corandoo." They formerly used to collect the cinnamon from the trees growing wild in the forests, and sold it in its natural state; but now such cinnamon is regarded as of the lowest grade, and much care is expended in the cultivation of better trees.

Cinnamon first began to be properly cultivated when the Dutch took possession of Ceylon early in the seventeenth century. They cut down the underbrush that the natives and the Portuguese had allowed to almost choke the trees, and, having drained the south part of the island, prepared to make a regular business of the cultivation of cinnamon.

To obtain the best results it was necessary that all other nations should be prevented from participating in this trade, and so successful were the Dutch in doing this that for more than one hundred years the whole world had to go to the city of Amsterdam for cinnamon. Of course, the amount sold every year at Amsterdam was enormous, averaging one hundred and sixty tons every year.

The natives had allowed the cinnamon trees to grow in the forests to their natural height, about twenty or thirty feet, but the bark from such trees would be old and tough. It was discovered that, by keeping the trees pruned, the young shoots that sprang up would produce a much finer kind of cinnamon. This is the method employed at the present time.

At last, however, in 1815, the Dutch were forced to yield the island of Ceylon to the English and, soon afterward, the trade in cinnamon was thrown open to the world.

In the present day the cinnamon gardens cover about twelve thousand acres around Colombo, not quite so large a portion of the country as was used in this way in the days of the old Dutch traders, but still enough to produce great quantities of cinnamon. In some places an acre of ground will produce five hundred pounds of this spice.

The tree has a greenish sort of flower which gives forth an unpleasant odor. The fruit of the cinnamon looks like an acorn. It is of a brown color and from it the people of Ceylon formerly made candles for the exclusive use of their king. The fruit yields a kind of oil that is used in the making of incense, and gives out a very pleasant odor when burning. The inner bark of the cinnamon-tree, however, is the most valuable portion, and this is prepared by the "peelers," as they are called, a class of men who, through long practice, have become very skilful in their trade.

Twice a year, after the rains are over, in May and November, these "peelers" gather the cinnamon harvest. They cut down those branches that have had a growth of from three to five years and that are about three feet long, and scrape away the white outer bark which is almost tasteless. The inner bark is then split longitudinally, and taken off. The pieces are then dried in the sun where they curl up into quills. The smaller of these are then put inside the larger until bundles are formed three or four feet in length.

Cinnamon is sorted by persons who taste it for that purpose. These people, however, are apt to suffer bad effects from this practice, the cinnamon soon making their mouths very painful. The best cinnamon is very thin, almost like paper, and of a light yellow color. The leaves of the cinnamon-tree taste like cloves and yield a kind of oil that is prepared in Ceylon. It is afterward sold under the name of "clove-oil." Two kinds of oil are also made on the same island by grinding coarse pieces of bark and soaking them in sea-water. Upon distillation two oils pass over, one heavier and one lighter than water. Almost the entire product of the cinnamon harvest of Ceylon is sent from that island to Great Britain, there to be used by cooks and confectioners.—Mary E. Bamford, in New York Observer.

FIVE YEARS OVER A TOY HOUSE.

For the last five years Police officer William Clark, of the steamboat squad, has occupied his leisure moments in the construction of a toy house. The model stands upon a platform of walnut and ash, inlaid in 3,500 pieces in various fanciful figures and designs, which contains also a model of a carriage house, with fences, arbors and garden chairs. The house itself is eighteen inches high, being two stories in extent, with a mansard roof. It is as perfect in detail inside as out. It is carpeted throughout, and each window is curtained, and the kitchen is furnished with a boiler, range, closet and sink. There is glass in all the windows, and the front door is paneled and also has a neat little bell. The carriage house stands at a proper distance in the rear of the house to the right, and there is a drive from the front gate. Officer Clark constructed the entire model with two jackknives. He has executed two similar pieces of work before. The officer is in his seventy-first year, and has been on the force since 1835, when the watch-house was in the City Hall. He is a grandson of Ezra Clark, the ninth signer of the Declaration of Independence.

ONLY A CRACK.

"Can you not see it?"
"Where?"
"That little crack stretching across the ice ahead! Look out, Tommy?"
"Nonsense!" says Tommy; skating over that thin little line of danger.
"Only a crack!"
It is lengthening though—widening.
"Look out, Tommy!" is the warning again sounded to the returning skater.
"Shut up!" says the offended Tommy, pushing on; but the ice does not "shut up" at all. It yields, opens, and lets Tommy down into an Arctic bath.
"Help-p-p!" is the cry ringing out all over the pond. "Fetch a board there!" "Throw him an end of your comforter!" "Get a rope!" "Quick; quick!" are the excited outcries on either hand.
At last Tommy is pulled out, his hands purple, his lips white, his teeth chattering. A minute more and he would have been stretched out on the bottom of the pond. What a serious risk he ran!

"Only a crack!"

That is the trouble with Frank Peters. He takes now and then a glass of beer.

"Shut up!" he says to his mother, father, Sunday-school teacher, and all the time the crack is opening, widening, a gap to-day and it may be a grave to-morrow. Look out!

LETTERS TO UNCLE MINOR.

DEAR UNCLE MINOR: I read your letters in the ADVOCATE, and am always glad to hear from you. I am nine years old. I have four sisters and one brother. We go to school at Stewart's Creek Seminary. We have prayer-meeting every Lord's day. I wish you could come and preach for us. I will close, as my hand is getting tired. Hope my letter will not be too long, and that we may hear from you again soon.—[Annie Ross, Smyrna, Tenn.]

DEAR UNCLE MINOR: I am a little boy, not ten years old. My mother takes the ADVOCATE, and I like very much to read your good letters; have been reading more this week than usual, as I have had severe tooth-ache and swollen jaw, so that I cannot pick cotton. I am an orphan; my father has been dead nine years. My mother has very poor health; she has been sick for several weeks, and has slow malarial fever. As this is my first attempt, I will close, for fear of worrying you.—[Jodie Walters, Newcastle, Ala.]

DEAR UNCLE MINOR: I assume the opportunity of writing to you for the first time. I am a little girl, sixteen years old, and have been a member of the church of Christ for three years. I go to Sunday-school every Lord's day. Bro. William Smith preaches for us at Shanghai church, seven miles west of Athens, every second Lord's day, and Bro. Wallace on the fourth. I read so many good letters from you, I think it is our duty to write to you, if we can't say much; we will let you know we appreciate your kind letters to us. I think that long letter you wrote was the nicest letter I ever read; I would never get tired reading such letters as that. Well, I am afraid you will get tired of reading my letter, so I will close, as this is the first time I have tried to write.

Remember me, I only ask;
Remember me, if not a task;
Remember me, and so will I Remember you until I die.

—[Sallie Terry, Athens, Ala.]

In the earlier days of the legal profession in the United States, Elisha Williams was reckoned, deservedly, one of the most accomplished orators at the bar of New York. His pathos was always irresistible with a jury, and he seldom failed to secure the verdict he desired. Like many other orators, however, Mr. Williams often repeated himself, his graceful figures and forcible bits of elocution and rhetoric. On one occasion this fact did him an unlucky turn. It was at the defense of a man charged with murder, and Mr. Williams made as usual a splendid effort. The jury were all in tears—the case in Mr. Williams' hands. His opponent was no speaker, but a "plain, blunt man," who had fought his sparkling opponent before. When Mr. Williams had finished, the counsel for the prosecution rose and said, to the consternation of the lachrymose jury, and the uproarious mirth of the court-room, as he coolly advanced: "Gentlemen of the jury, I should despair, after the weepin' speech which has been made to you by Mr. Williams, of saying anything to do away with its eloquence. I never heard Mr. Williams speak that piece of his'n better than what he spoke it now. Onct I heard him speak it in a case of stealin' down to Schaghticoke. Then he spoke it agin in a case of assault, up to Esopus; and the last time I heard it, before jest now, was when them niggers was tried—and convicted, too, they was—for robbin' Van Pelt's hen house, over beyond Kingston. But I never knowed him to speak it so elegant and affectin' as what he spoke it just now." The jury were overcome. Mr. Williams was for the time being, demolished by his smartness, and the man promptly brought in guilty.—Independent.

It is what the child does, and not what is done for him, that makes him what he becomes.

A Prominent Farmer Writes.

ROBERT STATION, Jones county, Ga., June 20th, 1881.—By the recommendation of Rev. C. C. Davis, I used Dr. Moxley's Lemon Elixir for indigestion, debility and nervous prostration, having been a great sufferer for years and tried all known remedies for these diseases, all of which failed. Five bottles of Lemon Elixir made a new man of me, and restored my strength and energy so that I can attend to my farm with all ease and comfort. Refer any one to me.

WILLIAM B. EMERSON.

A CARD.

From a number of St. Louis' prominent citizens as to the merits of Dr. Moxley's Lemon Elixir, the following named gentlemen pronounce it the only pleasant, thoroughly reliable and economical remedy they have ever used for the diseases for which it is recommended.

Judge Alex. Davis, Fourth and Chestnut streets.

Judge John P. Hughes, 102 N. Fourth St.

Hon. J. I. Martin, office opposite Four Courts.

T. P. Grasty, Law office, 1107 Clark avenue.

Capt. J. A. K. Stotts, of the St. Louis Beef Canning Company.

Dr. Moxley's Lemon Elixir, prepared at his drug store, 114 Whitehall street, Atlanta, Ga.

It cures all biliousness, constipation, indigestion, headache, malaria, kidney disease, fever, chills, impurities of the blood, loss of appetite, debility and nervous prostration by regulating the liver, stomach, bowels, kidney and blood.

Fifty cents for one half pint bottle, one dollar for pint and half bottle. Sold by druggists generally, and for by all wholesale druggists, Memphis, Tenn.

"Dragging Pains."

Dr. R. V. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y.: Dear Sir—My wife had suffered with "female weakness" for nearly three years. At times she could hardly move, she had such dragging pains. We often saw your "Favorite Prescription" advertised, but supposed like most patent medicines it did not amount to anything, but at last concluded to try a bottle, which she did. It made her sick at first, but it began to show its effect in a marked improvement, and two bottles cured her. Yours, A. J. Huyck, Deposit, N. Y.

The balsamic healing and soothing properties of Samaritan Nerve are soothing marvelous.

When the Mason & Hamlin Company announced the accomplishment of a great improvement in Upright Pianos, which they would soon give to the public, much was expected, because of the vast improvements which had been effected by them in reed instruments, and the acknowledged superexcellence of their organs. These expectations are fully justified by the pianos which they are producing, which have extraordinary purity and refinement of tone. Every mechanic will see that the peculiarities of their construction must add greatly to their durability and especially their capacity to keep in good tune.

This company have as great a future in their pianos as they are already realizing in their organs, which are confessedly unequalled among such instruments.—Boston Traveller.

Preventive of Malarial Diseases—OPINION OF EMINENT DR. H. R. WALTON, OF ANNAPOLIS, MD.—"Golden's Liquid Beef Tonic is par excellence superior to cod-liver oil or anything I have used, in wasted or impaired constitutions, and extremely beneficial as a preventive of malarial diseases." (Take no other.) Of druggists.

This splendid and unfailing medicine is compounded from Blackberry and other Medical Roots and Herbs, is therefore perfectly harmless. It is pleasant and safe to the most delicate stomach. It is the most speedy and effectual medicine for the cures of all forms of Diarrhoea, in children or adults, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Dysentery, and the various Summer Complaints of the Bowels, so prevalent among all classes during the Summer season. Only one bottle (Price, 50 cents), is sufficient to effect a cure.

DR. DUNCAN'S CHILL TONIC.

You need not Shake or Chill if you will use the Tonic. It never fails to stop the most aggravated forms of Chills and Fever if taken as directed, in from three to seven days, when Quinine and all other medicines fail. It will also, if taken regularly build and tone up the weak and debilitated system, and above all leaves no bad effects behind, as do so many other preparations.

DR. DUNCAN'S

Liver and Kidney Medicine.

The great preventive and cure of all malarial diseases and a sure cure of all forms of Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It acts directly upon the liver and all the secretory glands of the stomach and bowels, it cures the disease by removing the cause from the system that produces or brings on the disease, hence it is unsurpassed for the cure of Consumption, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, and also those symptoms indicating the want of proper action of those glands situated in the stomach and bowels. Two or three bottles of DR. DUNCAN'S LIVER AND KIDNEY MEDICINE is positively recommended to relieve and cure any of the above diseases if taken as directed. Price, 75 cents.

DUNCAN'S WORM SYRUP.

One bottle of this Syrup will completely expel all species of Worms and without injury to the child, as it contains no Calomel or other injurious substances. Again, it is pleasant to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, and therefore administered without trouble. Price, 25 cents.

Mars Hill College.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fifteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for

(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen, mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

T. B. LARIMORE, President.

THE GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

VOLUME XXVI,
NUMBER 44.

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE, OCTOBER 29, 1884.

{TWO DOLLARS PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

EDITORS:

D. LIPSCOMB,

E. G. SEWELL.

WHO WAS THE WICKED PERSON MENTIONED IN 1 COR. 5: 13?

DEAR BRO. LIPSCOMB: In answer to query in GOSPEL ADVOCATE, page 614, you say, (as I had contended,) that the wicked person in 1 Cor. 5: 13, was the man who had his father's wife. The person who differs with us, desires me to say to you that your answer is not satisfactory to him; desires you to explain the eleventh verse. What are to be done with the characters mentioned in that verse? Are the disciples of Christ, at the present time, the light of the world?—[A Brother.

It seems hardly worth while to respond further to this. No student of the Bible ever doubted that the wicked person commanded to be put away from them was the incestuous person. It was that wicked person. That specifically points out the person referred to. It is one specific person to which reference has been made. What person is it? No one can conclude it is any other than the incestuous person without setting aside the plan and simple laws of language.

It is supposed that the woman in the case was not a member of the church, therefore the apostle introduces those without to tell them they have nothing to do with her. He had written to them in general laws not to keep company with fornicators. He now writes that this admonition is to be interpreted as referring only to those in the church who are fornicators, and has no reference to those without. The eleventh verse gives the general rule he now gives for dealing with offenders. "Not to keep company if any man that is called a brother be a fornicator, or covetous, or an idolater, or a railer, or a drunkard, or an extortioner, with such an one, no not to eat." This is the rule by which offenders are to be dealt with. They are not to company, no, not to eat, with such. The eating here refers to eating a common, social meal, not the Lord's supper. They were permitted to eat with those of the world as they were not those offenders in the church. Among the Jews eating with persons was recognizing them as worthy of association. Hence when the Savior ate with Publicans and sinners it was a great scandal to the Scribes and Pharisees. While refusing to eat with brethren walking disorderly they were commanded to entreat them as brethren. "If any man obey not our word by this epistle, note that man and have no company with him, that he may be ashamed. Yet count him not as an enemy, but entreat him as a brother." 2 Thes. 3: 16. The general rule is that any member of the church guilty of any of the crimes mentioned here, shall not be kept company with, no, not eat with them. Under this general rule that wicked person of whom he has been speaking, must be put away from among them.

2. The disciples of Christ should be the light of the world. If they are true disciples they are the light of the world. The disciples are to preach the truth of God to the world. They are to do this in their practice and in their lives, as well as with their voices. "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good work and glorify your Father who is in heaven." All Christians who do good works let their light so shine as to induce others to glorify God their Father, who is the author of these good works. If evil works exhibit themselves in the Christian life, they bring shame and reproach, and cause men to dishonor God. Peter, writing to Christians, says, "Dearly beloved, I beseech you as strangers and pilgrims, abstain from fleshly lusts which war against the soul; having your conversation honest among the Gentiles, that whereas they speak against you as evil doers, they may by your good works, which they shall behold, glorify God in the day of visitation, * * * for so is the will of God, that with well-doing you may put to silence the ignorance of foolish men." Most certainly the Christian life is to be to the world the living example of the teachings of Christ. What Christ taught in theory he exemplified in practice. We should strive to do like him. If we do not, we are not his disciples.

IN MEMORIAM.

Prof. N. B. Smith, after years of feebleness, was attacked with malarial fever and lingered several weeks, when he died, Saturday, October 11, 1884, at his home near Salem, Franklin county, Tenn., aged sixty-seven or sixty-eight years. Prof. Smith was born in central Kentucky. His mother was a sister of Hon. John J. Crittenden. He was raised in Versailles, Ky., and learned the saddler's trade. In the year 1845 he came to Franklin College, Tennessee, depending upon paying his way through a college course by working at his trade. He graduated in 1848 with honor to himself. He soon after was elected professor of mathematics in the same institution, which position he held a number of years. He then moved to Franklin county, Tenn., where he taught until failing health compelled him to desist. He became a member of the church of Christ soon after his graduation, and not long afterwards married Miss Keren Lipscomb, the oldest sister of the writer.

Prof. Smith was one of the kindest hearted, most courteous and gentlemanly men in his whole bearing, that I ever knew. Pres. Fanning once said of him, he was the most perfect gentleman in his whole character and deportment he ever knew. I am sure he never desired to do a wrong to any one, or cause pain to a living mortal, or to make one unpleasant. His kindness, courtesy and affability, were just as marked to the humblest child or poorest negro, as they were to the greatest of earth. It was the outgrowth of his own kind heart. He was as pure and clean in his thoughts and conversation, even before he became a Christian, as a girl. He was one of the most modest and unassuming men that I ever knew. The chief defect of his character was a lack of persistent and aggressive force. It affected his whole life, in his business, social, and religious character. He never exerted the influence to which his ability and character entitled him.

But with all of his modesty and inoffensive bearing, few men are possessed of more true moral and physical courage than he was. While he shrank from difficulties, when they were to be met, I never saw a man that could do it with a calmer courage or steadier nerve, than could Bro. Smith.

His deeds of kindness and helpfulness to those in need were limited only by his ability. Many very poor youths, those thought too low for help, were helped to an education, and lives of self-respect and usefulness by him. Indeed he sometimes did this to the injury of his own family at times.

In accordance with his character, he calmly and quietly awaited death, without a fear or tremor, and quietly from earth passed to the presence of the Father in heaven. He leaves a wife, with three children, to mourn a loss that to them is irreparable on earth. The love and respect in which he was held, were manifested by the large concourse of people, black and white, who attended the committal of the body to the grave. D. L.

UNFAIRNESS IN CONTROVERSY.

There is perhaps more unfairness connected with religious controversy than in any other one thing. The unfairness largely consists in an unwillingness to allow opponents to express their own views, in their own words. As for example, those of the denominations who oppose those who claim to stand upon the Bible alone, and to express Bible ideas in Bible words, never accept these things as we state them. They never meet our teaching as we present it, either on the action or design of Baptism, nor on the work of the Holy Spirit. These are the chief points of difference between truth and error, between the church of God and denominationalism. When they set out to oppose our teaching on the design of baptism, they almost invariably represent us as teaching that confession of Christ and baptism is all that we teach as necessary to convert and save the sinner, or represent us as teaching that water literally washes away sins. If they wish to oppose our teaching on the work of the Spirit, they say we deny its work in conversion altogether.

These are but two examples of how they do all along the line of differences between the church of God and denominationalism. And not only is this true of denominationalism, but among our own brethren those who oppose human plans to spread the gospel, are accused of opposing the entire work of spreading the gospel, and thus accuse them of opposing everything, and doing nothing to advance the truth. All this is unfair and false. We have no objections to the denominations opposing what we teach on the design or action of baptism, or the work of the Spirit in conversion and sanctification, provided they would represent our teaching on these matters in our own words. And when they present our teaching on these things in our own words, then they are welcome to fight them to their hearts content. But when they represent us as teaching what we no more believe than they do, we think it unfair, mean and wicked. For all in this country can easily know what we teach if they will. Again, we have no objections to our own brethren criticising opposition to human plans in spreading the gospel, provided they state the position in the words of those opposing. But when they represent us as teaching what we no more believe than they do, and thus misrepresent us, and place us in a false light before the world, we think that exceedingly unfair. There will certainly be an immense amount of sin of this sort to answer for in the great day of accounts. All should be exceedingly careful in representing the teaching of others, that they represent it in the very words of those who teach it, and then there is no misrepresentation, and no unfairness to any one. E. G. S.

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview, Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

CLOTHED UPON WITH THE HEAVENLY HOUSE.

In 2 Cor. 5: 1-10, we have presented a subject which is generally misapplied by Bible students. "This tabernacle" is generally understood to mean this body, and is understood to mean, that when this body dies, we shall receive a new, spiritual body from heaven. Is this true? How then can the dead body be raised? What of Paul's language in 1 Cor. 15, where he says, "Then shall this mortal (dying) put on immortality (undying) and this corruptible, put on incorruption?" The dying body is to be raised, and made undying, or immortal. If the old exegesis is correct, and the Christian now has another body in heaven, awaiting the falling down of this mortal body, then we have a good argument in favor of the doctrine of the final perseverance of the saints. Then, too, where necessity of seeking for glory, honor and immortality, by a patient continuance in well doing? If the body is already there, and we are to be clothed upon with it, when this one falls down, then of course we are to have it any way. But this is not true. The antithesis is between things temporal, and things spiritual. Things seen and things unseen, and refers no doubt to earthly homes, as in contrast with the heavenly. And the thought is: if we lose our earthly inheritance—our homes, our tent or tabernacle, we shall soon be in possession of the heavenly city—the New Jerusalem. It has no reference to the body, but our home.

Remember, dear brethren, that this orphan work is your work, its obligations, duties, responsibilities, yours. Shall Texas have a "Home and School" for our orphans? The question will be answered in the light of your liberality and generosity. The work is gaining; shall it develop into that great and good enterprise which the cause of our Redeemer demands? May our Father so determine the minds and hearts of his children.—A. Clark in Texas Christian.

The college is there, but what about the "Home" for orphans? Have our brethren not gone a little hastily in this work? We think, first of all, the home should have been provided, and then the college could have followed. As it is, orphans who get the benefit (?) of the college, have no homes to stay at, only as they can be squeezed into families living about the college, and in the capacity of servants are expected to work for board, and so may get but little time at last to attend school. A home, or a place designed for a home, was purchased, but we were informed that the trustees would sell that to help pay for the college, etc. This reminds us of the boy who gave his last fifty-cents for a new pocket-book.

We should like very much to see an itemized statement of receipts and expenditures for this orphan work. We think it would give a more hearty response to the call for aid in this direction. Of course it would be some trouble to copy the accounts, receipts and disbursements in this work; but as the books are on hand, and many people like to know just what goes with their money, let us have it. As this is the special charge of the church now, an annual statement should be made, setting forth all the facts in the case.

Brethren, study your Bibles. Read—read and study. We are on the eve of string events. You will need to be fortified with a knowledge of God's word. Post yourselves, brethren, thoroughly.

JOE HARDING.

We took a run to Dallas to take Joe Harding's measure. We got it, and returned a wiser, if not a better man. Wiser to the degree of knowing the man we had read so much about, and no better, because of the incessant way he has of keeping his audience always in a titter, by anecdotes and jests, which, in a theatre, would be considered most common-place. When he does preach, there is no compromise of the gospel. He preaches it straight and strong, and if it were not for the jests, which often border on the vulgar, he would be a good, gospel preacher. He makes himself the center of all observation, by his constant manœuvring, and drives his meeting like Jehu drove his chariot—with all his might. He has a way of making the brethren bear his burdens,—regards a good, stout, Christian man as invaluable as a servant in the Lord. Is very fond of good things to eat; especially of cream—sweet or sour.

HOW HARD.

It is hard to labor and toil; to spend days and nights of anxiety and care, even years, to train our children for the church, for usefulness in the world, and for God; and then as they near manhood's estate, see them turn from the church, cease to attend the Sunday-school and preaching, and go entirely away from the road we hoped they would take. Then hopes are crushed, and hearts do ache and continue to ache. The children who should be our greatest blessing, become our curse; instead of helping to bear our burdens, they become, then, our heaviest load. None can know the depth of such feelings, save those who, day by day, have borne such feelings up to a throne of mercy, when the door has seemed always shut. They who have prayed when prayer seemed hopeless, and who still pray against a raging storm of vice, in the hope of reform at last,—these know the heart-ache caused by a boy from home at night, or a daughter's disregard of parental advice. Eternity alone can reveal the burdens borne by such hearts, even while trying to do their own part, in the great struggle for victory over self. We had almost said, how can the ingratitude of ungrateful children be forgiven? but then the parent can gladly forgive, and shall not God forgive also? If you have a wayward boy, pray on; he may yet come back. If your daughter does not hear now, she may hear you when your head is cold in death. Pray and work.

A PECULIAR MEETING.

A union camp-meeting, not according to the Chatauqua regulations, was held on the banks of a beautiful stream near Marquez, Leon Co., embracing the first and second Lord's day in September. The M. E. Church South, the Methodist Protestant Church, the Baptist Church, and the Primitive Baptist were represented by some of their best preachers. The Church of Christ was represented by Bro. W. H. D. Carrington and myself. There were four Methodist preachers, (one of them Presiding Elder,) one Methodist Protestant, four Baptists, and one Hard-shell. There was much cross firing all around; every one preached what he thought was the doctrine of the church with which he was connected. Many very interesting and ludicrous things were presented. The result was, the Church of Christ secured ten confessions; eight of whom were baptized, the other two having deferred their baptism, and three reclaimed. No converts were made to either Baptist, Methodist or Hard-shell. In the midst of the fiercest opposition, and the most vindictive misrepresentation, the truth triumphed greatly. Truly has the poet said:

"Truth crushed to earth will rise again,
The eternal years of God are hers;
But error wounded writhes in pain,
And dies amid her worshippers."

Marquez, October 13, 1884. A. J. McCARTY.

"There is a converted Catholic, named De Schullie, preaching the ancient gospel, in and about Galveston and Houston. He is said to be very successful among the Romanists."—Christian Messenger.

"Is it possible the Christian Messenger does not know the real character of De Schullie after all the publicity he has had in these columns, and in the St. Louis dailies? We warn brethren in Texas against him. He is a wolf in sheep's clothing. Receive him, and he will devour your lambs."—Christian Evangelist.

There it is again. This is what comes of receiving strange preachers without proper recommendations. Brethren should compel preachers, travelling, to carry proper credentials from churches where they hold membership. Our piney woods churches in east Texas, refuse to receive or recognize tramp preachers who do not come properly recommended.

DEAR BRO. POE: The propositions are, (1) The Scriptures teach the church of Christ was in existence before the first Pentecost after Christ's resurrection. (2.) The Scriptures teach that immersion is a condition of pardon. (3.) The Scriptures teach the direct influence of the Holy Spirit in regeneration or new birth. (4.) The Scriptures teach that a child of God, born of the Spirit, may so apostatize as to be finally and eternally lost. I affirm 2 and 4; he affirms 1 and 3.—[C. McPherson.

This debate is to take place at Hallville, November 5th, between C. McPherson, Christian, and McClelland, Baptist.

WHAT MAJOR PENN SAYS.

I understand that the Major is telling it over the State, that he so routed a Campbellite preacher at Dallas, three years ago, that he quit preaching and went to practicing law.

I guess I am the man to whom he refers. The facts are these. The Major said one night, "Talk to me about baptism having anything to do with saving a man? why bless my life, it has not, never did, and never will have." Hence I kindly asked the Major to let me read three passages of Scripture. He first refused, remarking that "I know you. I am not afraid of your sort. You are a Campbellite," which, in its manner, very much amused the people, reminding them of the boy whistling in the dark to keep the "buggers" off. But he finally assented, and I read, "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter the kingdom of God." Again, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." And again, "A like figure whereunto baptism doth also now save us," etc. Thanking him, I then took my seat without comment. I learn the Major also says he "unanswerably answered this by reading three other passages." Why Major! Did you? How silly and suicidal that would be! I gave you credit with being sharper than that. Do you not know that putting Scripture against Scripture is suicidal—that it only resulted in making the word of God a bundle of contradictions?

Major, that is what makes infidels; they see such wicked absurdities as that, and have faith in none of it. Oh! Major, don't tell that! But that is not what the great Major did. Oh, no, far from it. He could not find one verse that contradicts another, much less three. But he said with much gusto, "Why there is no such thing as water mentioned in these verses." That settled it, did it? No, verily. He got so mad at me, and acted so undignified in his uncontrollable wrath and anger, that he disgusted every body present. And some of his brethren gave him such a brow-beating, and so chagrined him for his folly in allowing a Campbellite to courteously read, without comment even, the Scriptures in his meeting, that he has not spoken to me from that good day to this, though I have been in the same house, at the same time, with him often since.

Not only this, it put the breaks on him so thoroughly, that the words Campbellite and baptism, which, up to that time, were rolled under his tongue, were not spoken again by him during the whole three weeks he remained here. And instead of me not preaching a sermon since, I preached to a packed house the very next day in two blocks of his tent.

Not only this, if he (the Major) is not thoroughly and everlastingly satisfied with the chagrin he felt on that night, in having to save his ipse dixit, by telling the people what he knew they did not and could not believe; if he is not done smarting from that funny anger he disgusted the people with; if he is not sufficiently satisfied with the curtain lectures of his brethren for his folly; if nothing else will do him, I know a "lawyer" that will come to his side and help him like a man to repeat that or a similar scene. And I know he will be kind and good to him, too; and will show him as much courtesy as was shown him on the former occasion by "the preacher."

Now, Major, please don't intimidate my brethren by such a flourish of trumpets in boasting this great victory over this poor man at Dallas; for I tell you now that he can't do any such great things as answering Scripture by reading verses that contradict Scripture, but if you will give him a kind and civil invitation, he will take the word of God and stand by you until the people are satisfied that you are again most graciously pleased to "change the subject." Now next time you make this great swelling boast, will you please tell the good people of my kind offer, so that they may not think that you did utterly ruin a poor Campbellite sure enough? And just notify me, and I will see that there is enough left of the "preacher lawyer" to show the people which way he went anyway. Though I am of the opinion that that boast will not be heard again when the Major finds that he did not utterly annihilate him; at least, I think there will be more fun in having him around than the "interests" of the meeting demand.

CORRESPONDENCE.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: One month ago today I left home for Parsons, Kansas. I found there a body of disciples, warm-hearted and zealous. Among them was elder David Kimbrough, with his Christian wife and earnest daughter. We had but five baptisms as the result of two weeks' preaching. But the brethren were satisfied with the result of the meeting.

On my way home, I stopped off at Atoka, Indian Territory, lay over four days. A hack load was made up for Tushka-Homma. Our company consisted of A. Tell, who divided blankets with me, as we lay out on the way; John M. Hodges, with a budget of fun from Polk County, Arkansas; young McCauley, who drove the team and shot at turkeys along the road, and myself. After a trip of about seventy miles through the mountains, we dropped into a beautiful prairie. Three miles before us a $23,500 council house arose, a splendid building, occupied by a noble, big-hearted body of men, whom one could learn to love without much effort. I was kindly received, and preached for them three nights. The last night I was with them, Col. Peter Tulsom, a delegate to Washington, D. C., from Choctaw Nation, had his report read by Gov. Right, after which he made a short talk. I was impressed with his earnestness. He is about seventy years old, six feet high, and yet unbent by age. I could but think while he talked of the time when the U. S. Agent called upon them in the old country, told them they must move and make their home amid the rolling prairies and thick tangled forests of the West. Col. Tulsom heard that speech, and he, with the rest of his people, bowed his head in meek submission, and started for their new home. But they caught the mantle of civilization, and surrounded by many difficulties, they have arisen above their former habits. May the God of all good help them in their onward move to freedom and to glory.

Their laws require of each missionary that enters their country, an endorsement from his church, and also the missionary of his denomination in the nation. We have had no missionary among them; therefore bad men have been known to take advantage of us and the Indians. They would write for themselves a recommendation, and in the absence of a missionary from the Christian church to look into the matter, have both misrepresented our teaching and deceived the Indians. So we are compelled to plant a mission in self-defense, and in order to protect the Indians from injury. But a short time ago I met a man in the Nation who professed to be a Christian preacher, I told him the law of Choctaws, and desired his papers. He had a good commendation that, beyond doubt, had been forged. When he was told by a citizen that I was an acknowledged missionary from the Christian church, and that his papers would be submitted to investigation, he left in the night with a horse partly paid for. He is only one of many who have acted badly under the name of a Christian preacher. Our religious neighbors are protected by their missionaries among the Indians, and we are the sufferers.

We wish to connect with our mission an Industrial school; teach the boys to farm, and teach them a trade, and Christianize all we can. The church here agrees to let me off this winter to solicit money to erect buildings for the work. I was encouraged while at the council to expect an appropriation from the Indian Legislature. One brother agrees to give $100. a year for three years; Col. G. W. Harkins, of Choctaw Nation, $50. a year for three years. Who will be next? The Indian mission board consists of the Elders of the Christian church at Paris, Texas. All money for the mission will be sent to Elder W. H. Sluder, Paris, Texas.

ITEMS.

Bishop Pierce never had an organ in the church if he could keep it out.—Christian Advocate.

We have received from Owen's Chapel congregation, twenty dollars for a house in Huntsville, Alabama. Who next?

Bro. Floyd gave us a call in returning from a meeting of days at Forest Hill, Montgomery county, Tenn. Two were baptized and added to the Lord.

There are briars besetting every path
Which call for patient care;
There is a cross in every lot,
And a need for earnest prayer;
But a lowly heart which leans on God
Is happy anywhere.

Bro. Bryant, of Wilson county, is holding an interesting meeting at Fain's Hall, South Nashville. Has continued the past week, with one baptized, one added from the Baptists, up to Saturday, October 25.

A. W. Moss, Good Spring, Giles County, Tenn., October 12, writes: "On Saturday night before fourth Lord's day in September, Bro. H. J. Spivy commenced a meeting at Coal Springs, Giles county; preached nine discourses, the result was three additions; two by baptism and one reclaimed, and the church edified."

MILLENNIAL HARBINGERS FOR SALE.

Twenty volumes, including every year from the beginning, except 1832; also Milligan's works, Lard on Romans, McGarvey on Acts, etc., about thirty volumes in all. Will be sold for $1.50 per volume. The books are all well bound, and in good condition. Address, W. E. Armstrong, Bartow, Florida.

W. H. Carter, Lafayette, Tenn., October 20, writes: "Bro. Rogers and I closed our meeting at Tiel's Chapel, yesterday. Immediate result, eight added to the congregation—five by confession and baptism, one from the Presbyterians, one by relation, one restored. The church at this place seems to be in good working order. They need a larger house, which we hope they will build before long."

Bro. Harding will go from Murfreesboro to Pulaski, and will hold a meeting in that place. We trust the brethren in Giles county will second his meeting heartily. They can aid much. He does not yet know when he will leave Murfreesboro. His habit is to remain as long as there seems to be good in the meeting. Pulaski is the largest town in Middle Tennessee, in which there is no church of Christ. He will try to have Bro. Daugherty with him to sing.

General News.

DOMESTIC.—As Governor Cleveland was going from the Executive Mansion to the Capitol, about nine o'clock last Monday morning, he was assaulted by Samuel Boone, of Elmira, a man who failed to get a pardon for his brother-in-law. He struck at the Governor several times without striking his face. He then darted toward a pile of obble-stones, but was intercepted by Dr. George H. Houghton, who seized and held him.—A woman at Des Moines, Iowa, secured the conviction of a small boy on the charge of stealing her watch in a street car, and afterward found the article in her bureau drawer.—A Massachusetts contractor was seized last week, bound and imprisoned in a barn, by Italian laborers in his employ, they claiming that he had received money and refused to pay them their over due wages. He was rescued by Boston police, and nineteen Italians arrested and held for trial.—There are four miles of tunnelling under Hallett's Reef, near Hell Gate, and along the sides and roof of this tunnel are not less than 220,000 two and three inch holes, and in about a year from now the spark will be struck, and the greatest artificial earthquake on record will follow.—Secretary Lincoln has settled the question whether a colored man can be enlisted in the Signal Corps by deciding that he can be, and ordering the young man Howard Green, a college graduate, who passed an excellent examination, to duty at Fort Meyer. This was done over the head of the Chief Signal Officer.—According to the Chicago Tribune, out of one hundred and sixty-five polling places appointed for the forthcoming election, ninety-four have been located in saloons, some of them of a very disreputable class.—Hon. William Daniels, candidate for Vice-President on the Prohibition Ticket, spoke at the Capitol in Nashville on the night of the 23rd.—Shelby C. Price, son of John L. Price, ex-sheriff of Davidson County, has been arrested in Chicago on the charge of murdering Jimmie Raymer, a twelve year old boy, who disappeared on the night of Oct. 4. Nothing was heard of the boy until the 14th, when Mr. A. A. McEwin was walking along the railroad his attention was attracted by a nauseating odor coming from a culvert. He went down to the opening of the culvert, and to his horror saw the decomposing body of the missing boy.

FOREIGN.—Several warehouses and the German theatres, situated in the center of Moscow, were burned last week.—Six officers of the Russian army were executed at the St. Petersburg citadel last week for political offences. Two women also paid the death penalty, one Mme. Walkenstein, the other Mary Figuer, the daughter of a priest.—On the opening of Parliament, a commission will be appointed to inquire into the state of the Navy, and the Admiralty will ask for an increased grant for ship building to enable it to give orders to private firms for the construction of swift, heavy armed, light armored vessels.—On the arrival of a steamer from Philadelphia at Liverpool a Hungarian was arrested, having in his possession thirty packages of dynamite, amounting to a pound and a half.—The protective tariff cry is being raised in England as well as in France. This home question overshadows all others, but her affairs abroad are in an unhappy condition.

We stopped over in Murfreesboro to hear Bro. Harding preach. Had never heard him. Heard one discourse and part of another. He had held large audiences for ten days, preaching night and day, without an addition until the first discourse we heard. Neither the size of the audience, nor the interest, had abated when we heard him. This is unusual. We studied to see the secret of it. His manner and oratorical powers are not above ordinary. His matter is simple, plainly presented, and strictly Scriptural. He indulges in no tricks or eccentricities. The influence that interests and holds the people, clearly is the simplicity of truth, presented in a manner that shows he heartily believes what he says, and is thoroughly in earnest in presenting it to men as the condition of their salvation. His power is simply that of earnest faith.

THE PEOPLE'S HAND BOOK ON BAPTISM.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: I have read with surprise a part of The People's Hand Book. The author has certainly studied his theme well, for it is falsehood and misrepresentation from beginning to end, so far as I have read. If he would give the apostle Peter's simple words, which we can all read by turning to the second of Acts, as to what the sinner must do to be saved, he would have saved himself study, but to keep the fog and mist of Rome over the eyes of the people he vilifies, Mr. Campbell and others in reference to the teaching of the word of God, as great a falsehood, but not so sacreligious as some others are, that the Campbellites, as he calls them, are a unit in discarding the authority or force of the Old Testament Scriptures, which no one else but himself ever heard before. The whole Bible is taught in our Colleges, pulpits and Sunday-schools with as much faith in its divine prophecies, types and promises as any people living. We believe, too, from beginning to end, in obeying all of its sacred laws so far as applicable to us.

Our last great reformer was a discernor of error and truth. Therefore as the Jewish Sabbath being the seventh or last day of the week, was given to them for a different purpose from the Lord's day, the first, we worship on the first day as we find the first Christians did, except when they taught the Jews at their times of worship. Our Lord's day was never called Sabbath by the New Testament disciples—called Christians first at Antioch. This name we reverence and prefer above all human names, and on that day we meet and keep sacred from manual labor as much as possible, but working for our Lord in the Sunday-school, in worship, in song and prayer, and communing with one another in love, participating in the communion of the body broken and the blood shed for us. Every first day of the week, as did the first Christians, so do we meet to break the loaf, whether we have a preacher or not. But why waste time in showing up the falsehood on this 19th chapter, page 65? The enlightened community knows better. There is one statement in it that is true, which is Mr. Campbell's motto. Every other statement is positively false and absurd. He quotes authors as prejudiced as himself instead of reading the Bible literature and teachings of the lights he would gladly extinguish. So it was in the days of Luther, with the Romish priesthood. So it is to-day with Mr. Parker. Read the Bible for yourselves, every one of you, and see what Christ's law is for yourselves, and be blinded no longer by false teaching, was another injunction of our great scholar and Bible advocate. So the leading thought of Mr. Campbell was to unite all Christians upon the Bible and in Christ, by dropping off all human innovations and man's inventions, every thing not found in the word of God, and come back to the doctrine and practice taught by Paul, Peter and others, and be one in Christ, as he prayed we should be, instead of all come to the Campbellite church as Mr. Parker says. Certainly this gentleman's associations must not be very good, an illiterate and unchristian set of pretenders at least.

We all now are under the law of Christ. He is the head of his church, not Mr. Campbell, nor Wesley, Calvin or Luther, yet we feel grateful to each of these great lights for all the truth he taught. The church then was in darkness; it would have been overwhelming to the greatest minds for the light of to-day to have shone in on their befogged intellect. Mr. Campbell, the greatest of all, cleared away the errors of Rome. But we have priest-ridden people yet, who will not read the Bible for themselves, but listen to the false interpretations from the pulpit blinded by the good, for there is truth mixed with their errors in much of their teaching.

It is revolting to the feelings of any Christian to read this author's sacrilegious effort on immersion, to prove sprinkling was the baptism for the believers in the beginning. We, even women, know better; church history tells us better. Leaving out all of the Catholic fathers, who said the church changed it for sprinkling, we come down to the great scholar of our day, the Archbishop of Canterbury, Dean Stanley, he wrote a long article, which was copied in many of our papers about five or six years ago, stating that the ancient mode was immersion, but for convenience the church changed it, and that they had a perfect right to do so. We know, too, that King James was a strong affusionist, and did all he could in his translation for his cherished object; besides the Greeks to this day never have practiced sprinkling or pouring for baptism, and they certainly understand their own language better than Mr. Parker with all of his Greek pretensions and a half dozen others to help him. I am sure no scholar of reputation among the author's own brethren, would use such absurd arguments on immersion. To think that a people ever lived who would change from that easy and pleasant mode of sprinkling to immersion, with all of its inconvenience and unpleasant practices, is out of all reason. Read his objections; chapter 20, page 74.

On page forty-one, on immersion, he tells us that John baptized six millions of people, and he did not immerse them, for it was impossible. He would have to stand in cold water ten hours a day, to dip sixty persons every minute or thirty-six thousand a day, for six months. Such a work would have killed any hundred men in the world, and John would have been paralyzed in two days. He then, on page twenty, shuts off all the water of Jerusalem from the immerser, and says too, that he would have to go fifteen miles on the day of Pentecost to the Jordan to dip the three thousand, then back by three o'clock to baptize again, because Peter and John went up to the Temple at that hour of another day. But he is not satisfied by adding the five thousand, his imagination brings in at least three thousand women and children, page 64, just because this five thousand were men. Acts 9: 9. Can he prove that any women were there. No children were included, for the word expressly says these believed, making for the Pentecostal day eleven thousand. Read his sixth chapter on baptism, then turn to Acts 2: 41, "The same day were added unto them about three thousand souls," the apostle rather coming under, than going over in his calculation.

This inconsistent false teacher has two baptisms by immersion on that day; read his book, page twenty. He skips over the healing of the impotent man that next day and gets further along. I think strange he did not say these five thousand were not baptized at all, as violent hands were laid on the apostles and they were put in hold for the next day, while Peter was then speaking; but he makes Peter immerse eleven thousand on the day of Pentecost, these included and in a prescribed time of two hours, these, he says, all confessed and had to give in experience, then he has them dragging in the filth and dust of Jerusalem to make ridiculous and absurd the baptism of our Lord—that form of doctrine delivered to the saints as Paul said, "For we are buried by baptism into death with him, that like as he was raised from the dead, so do we arise from the watery grave to walk in newness of life." Read sixth of Romans and second of Colossians. Then think how men have transformed this fit emblem of the death, burial and resurrection of our risen Lord. Do they never fear the threatenings of this book of books to those who add to or take from the word? After saying the whole nation, instead of large numbers representing all portions of the country, were baptized by John, he boldly says that the apostles were never baptized, nor the dying thief. I wonder where they were when John was immersing the six millions; all the other Jews, of course, according to his calculation, must have been included.

Did he ever know how to divide the word? Christ saved men by faith in him during his life, for the Holy Ghost had not been given then, nor his blood shed. His law, sealed by his blood, given the by Holy Spirit for us, went into effect after his death and the gift of the Spirit, but before he left this earth after the resurrection, he issued his law of pardon, which all may see by reading the close of gospel as recorded by Matthew, Mark and Luke. Then again, on Pentecost, by the Spirit speaking through Peter, the first gospel sermon was preached in full to this blood-redeemed nation, which must be as strictly obeyed as was the Jewish law to them. Uzzah in his zeal disobeyed God to save the Ark from threatened destruction, and was struck dead; a much less offense seemingly to us, than covering up the word of God by ridicule and falsehood, and by perversion of the Scriptures just to keep up a decent and respectable church, such as this little book teaches. Then the work he puts upon the immerser is not according to the Scripture statement. Even had it been, it was in the days of miracles when nothing was impossible. The multitude were filled from a few loaves and fishes, and baskets full left. Paul did not baptize those partizans at Corinth who believed through his teaching, lest they should say he baptized in his own name instead of Christ's, making them Paulites instead of Christians. Did this Rev. Dr. ever know that this great apostle was baptized by a layman, who was not even an officer in the church, for that church had none at that time? Could not the other apostles or the strong men among the hundred and twenty, of Acts 1st, have assisted at Pentecost? for they were there with many others of the followers of Christ.

Away with such a book filled with blasphemous caricatures and perversions of God's appointments, for it contradicts the teaching of the Holy Ghost, as I have shown. To take up every false statement would require a waste of time and too much paper. A Sunday-school boy can see the misrepresentations of the Bible. And its absurd falsehood in reference to the teaching of others is a grand collection, which could not be beaten by Satan himself. I will now close up this rather lengthy review, asking the indulgence of its readers. Enough at present.

MRS. M. A. GLENN.

[We publish this as an indignant protest of a Christian woman against the wicked perversion of God's word, and the gross misrepresentations of the teachings of disciples, by Z. A. Parker, of Gadsden, Ala.—Eds.]

OFFER EXTRAORDINARY.

For the purpose of introducing the GOSPEL ADVOCATE to new readers, we offer the ADVOCATE from September 1, or from time of subscription, to the end of next volume, for two dollars. This is giving the paper four months free to new subscribers. We ask our readers to give prompt attention to this, and during the protracted meeting season to see brethren and friends and make an effort to extend our circulation. We believe the ADVOCATE is amply worth two dollars. It pays no profit at this price. Those familiar with the paper know its value. If they do not esteem it worth two dollars, we will not find fault with them for not taking it. Our object in these inducements is to make a larger number of readers familiar with the ADVOCATE and its positions. Our aim is the restoration of a religion "pure and undefiled," with all the institutions of heaven, just as God ordained them. We propose to send it one year to two subscribers, one of which must be a new one, for three dollars. We ask the active and earnest co-operation of all who sympathize in this work.

How sweet the thought that "all things work together for good" to those who have submitted their lives to God's guidance and control. Even our mistakes and failures are often our best teachers; and our trials and sorrows are but so many 'stepping-stones leading us onward and upward.

If we find that our time passes slowly and heavily, we may be sure there is something wrong within. Either we have not enough to do or we work mechanically, without heart or energy. If past time looks short and empty, it is because it lacks a distinct record of noble aims, definite resolves, worthy endeavors. If the immediate future looks tedious and uninteresting, it is because we are not living full, rich, and earnest lives, by faith in God.—Ex.

The editor of the S. S. Times, speaking of the death of Uzza for touching the Ark on the journey from the house of Obed-edom, says:

"It is so easy to improve on God's way of having work done. What if the Lord did command that the ark should be borne on the shoulders of his priests? The Philistines sent it home on a new cart when they wanted to do it honor. Why shouldn't the Israelites secure a similar ride for it in their turn? There is a good deal of this Philistine-cart business in doing the Lord's work now-a-days."

Meeting at Allensville, Kentucky.

This meeting began second Lord's day in August, and continued day and night for nine days. Good audiences and good attention from the beginning to the close. There is a good sized congregation here, and they meet every Lord's day, and keep up a Sunday-school among the young people, and a Bible class for the older members, and have a pretty good attendance in these regular meetings, and usually have preaching once a month. These brethren are exerting a good influence in that community, and we hope they will keep this influence growing. Our late Bro. C. M. Day, was their preacher for many long years, who preached the word of the Lord in great earnestness and plainness, the influence of which is still at work in that community. Our young Bro. Dorris, evangelist in Southern Kentucky was with us most of the time, giving assistance in the meeting in the way of reading, prayer, preaching some, and doing the baptizing. If he perseveres in the good work, he will accomplish great good.

The immediate result of the meeting was that six were baptized, and one took membership, and we are sure from the attendance and attention, and the general talk that much good was done beyond the number of additions. And we hope the congregation will so live and work as to keep this impression growing.

Bishop Riley and the Blind Child.

Bishop Riley of England says the happiest child he ever saw was a little girl eight years old, who was quite blind.

She had never seen the sun nor moon nor stars, grass nor flowers, nor trees nor birds, nor any of those pleasant things which have gladdened your eyes all your life. More trying still, she had never seen her own father or mother, yet she was the happiest child of all the thousands the bishop had seen.

She was journeying on the railway this day I speak of. No one she knew was with her, not a friend nor a relation to take care of her; yet, though totally blind, she was quite happy and content.

"Tell me" she said to some one near by, "how many people there are in this car. I am quite blind and can see nothing." And she was told.

"Are you not afraid to travel alone?" asked a gentleman.

"No," she replied, "I am not frightened; I have travelled before, and I trust in God, and people are always very good to me."

"But tell me," said the bishop, "why you are so happy?"

"I love Jesus, and he loves me; I sought Jesus and I found him," was the reply.

The bishop then began to talk to her about the Bible, and found she knew a great deal about it.

"And how did you learn so much of the Bible?" he asked.

"My teacher used to read it to me, and I remembered all I could," she said.

"And what part of the Bible do you like best?" asked the bishop.

"I like the story of Christ's life in the gospels," she said; "but what I like best of all is the last three chapters of Revelation."

Having a Bible with him the bishop read to her, as the train dashed along, Rev. 20th, 21st and 23d chapters.

"White as Wool."

A minister walking near a brook, observed a poor woman washing wool in the stream, which is done by placing it in a sieve, and dipping it in the water repeatedly, until it is white and clean. He engaged in conversation with her, and from some expressions of regret and gratitude which she uttered was induced to ask if she knew him. "O yes, sir," she replied, "and I hope I shall have reason to bless God for all eternity. I heard you preach at W—some years back, and I hope your sermon was the means of doing me great good." "Indeed, I rejoice to hear it; pray what was the subject?" "O, sir, I can't recollect that, mine is such a bad head." "How then can it have done you good, if you don't even remember it?" "Sir, my poor mind is like this sieve, the sieve doesn't hold the water, but it runs through and cleanses the wool; my memory does not keep the words, but blessed be God, he made them touch the heart, and now I don't love sin; I go whenever I can to hear of Jesus Christ, and I beg of him every day to wash me and cleanse me from sin."

He who directs his life well, understands the best sort of grammar. To speak from the heart and tell the truth, is very good logic, and will serve very well for rhetoric also. He who runs up a long score of good actions, succeeds well in arithmetic, and the man whose life is starry with virtues is a famous astronomer. This is the kind of education which all people ought to have.—From a German Writer of the 13th century.

It is always a choice of masters to which Christ is urging men. It is not by striking off all allegiance, but by finding your true Lord, and serving him with a complete submission, that you can escape from slavery. Then give yourself to him completely. Let him mark you as his by whatever marks he will.—Phillips Brooks.

A man with whom an obligation to pay a just debt becomes lighter as the debt grows older is not honest.

SUGGESTIVE.

Those who read the different papers will note that there are greatly more additions to the churches reported in the ADVOCATE, than through any other paper published among the disciples, even in those having four or five times the circulation of the ADVOCATE. This is owing somewhat to the fact that in the Northern country the additions are more in the winter season. They hold their protracted meetings more in the winter than we do. But it is a truth, now beyond all doubt, that the rate of increase in Tennessee and portions of Alabama, Mississippi, and Texas, among the disciples, has been much greater for a number of years, than in the country north of us. Not only is it true that there have been three-fold more additions in this country than in the same territory in other sections, or among the same number of disciples, but ten destitute places have had the gospel carried to them, where it has been carried to one destitute place in other sections of country. Much of the work done in this section has been in destitute neighborhoods. Many of the converts were in neighborhoods where there were few or no Christians. These additions have not been spasmodic efforts to leave the members without care or culture. While this is not what it should be, here, it is better here than in most communities. Here these congregations all meet for worship every Lord's day. I do not mean all the members meet, but, as a rule, the congregations meet to worship God, whether they have a preacher or not. And as a rule, as great a proportion of the members meet to attend the worship of the first day, as attend the monthly or weekly service of the preacher, in other sections.

That we may realize the difference in the progress of the churches here and elsewhere, when I was in Central Kentucky, a few months ago, prominent brethren told me that the churches in that section, with all their colleges, endowments, learned men, and home and foreign missionary organizations, male and female, the churches were hardly holding their own in numbers from the world, or in contact with the religious bodies around them. That is, the additions from the world were not greater than the losses by death and apostasy. They received no more from the sects than the sects took from them. In accounting for it, some of them said it was because the sects had so greatly improved that the difference between the sects and the disciples was not so discernible. It is clear the difference has greatly lessened; but whether the lessening of this difference has been more from the improvement of the sects, or the backward movement of the disciples, would be a debatable question. In those sections scarce a preacher has come from the sects to the disciples in a decade of years, while a number of preachers have gone from the disciples to the sects. In Ohio there has been no increase in the number of disciples for thirty years.

With us, at least a dozen preachers have come to the disciples from the sects, in the last two years. There is almost a constant stream of private members flowing into the congregations of Christ. Sometimes these preachers have not been of the highest character. My friend, Griffin, a few years ago, intimated that some of those who came were not of the highest moral character. We answered, "You can, in this case, truthfully use apostolic language, 'Silver and gold we have none; such as we have we give unto you,' and that driftwood always shows the direction of the current." But the majority of these are as good, true, worthy Christian men, as can be found in any country.

It is a long time since a teacher left the disciples for a sect in this country, and seldom a private member ever goes. Where one leaves, it is almost always in a community in which the members or preachers pursue a compromising course; where the church has lost confidence in the word and institutions of God. Why this difference?

We feel certain it lies in one thing. The disciples in this country have clung more closely to the Bible, than in other sections; hence can make the plea for a return to primitive Christianity more distinct, and can present it without laying themselves open to the retort, "Physician, heal thyself." The disciples have so flagrantly departed from Scripture, precept and example in many places, that the plea to return to them in their mouth, has lost its power. When we trample under foot the precepts and examples of Christ and the apostles in one thing, the plea in our mouth to return in some other things is weakened and nullified. Hence this plea is almost lost sight of among the disciples in the States north of us. The plea now is simply for union; and the ground of union is a liberalism, a freedom for every man to do as seemeth good in his own eyes. If a man desires an organ, let him have it; if the women are to preach, lay hands on others, every one to his liking. Some take the position that the requirement of hospitality on the part of saints, was temporary and local in its nature, and is no longer obligatory.

The chief owner and controller of the largest circulated paper, and one who controls more of the publications of the disciples than all others, and who, by virtue of this, exercises more influence as a teacher, and who threatens to monopolize all their publications, marries a Romish wife, for his companion and the trainer of his children, and because he succeeds, and has money, and is popular with the world, the preachers and the people say it is no one's business save his own, and sustain him. Notwithstanding the Bible says teachers must have believing wives and children, and all Christians are commanded to bring up their children in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.

A general infidelity permeates the minds of even church members, and the editor of a popular paper, catering to the sentiment, declares the Bible is not "absolutely infallible;" yet preachers honor and court his favor, because he is popular. He is popular because liberal in compromising the truth and accommodating the appointments of God to the fancies of men.

There is a general association in unscriptural organizations, Sunday-school Associations, Young Men's Christian Association, and a building up of institutions by the money and talent of disciples, which not only ignore but forbid the teaching of certain commands of the living God. How can a man build up and give influence himself to an association that forbids the teaching of God's commands, and yet retain influence with the world in calling them back to a return to all the commands of God.

All these things show how and why the plea to return to God, and his ways, has lost its power with the religious people where these things are practiced. The plea to return to God's ways has lost its power with the denominations and with the world, because it has lost its power in the hearts and lives of those who started out to return in heart and practice to the ways of God. It has all arisen out of a determination, under plea of sending the gospel to the destitute, to adopt organizations unknown to the word of God.

They aim to depart only in a slight non-essential matter from the apostolic order. But a little leaven leavens the whole lump. I can point to men and papers who started out to oppose the extreme liberal tendencies and unscriptural practices of certain other men and papers, but admitting the entrance of the leaven in a slight matter, they bound into the arms of those they started out to oppose.

There is but one ground on which any innovation, any departure from divine law, can be successfully opposed, that is, in all things pertaining to our religious faith and practice, we follow rigidly the divine precepts and examples.

But these organizations that were intended to be more effective in spreading the truth, have defeated the very end of their formation in another way. Men are disposed to shift responsibilities from themselves when possible. Organize a society to do a work, and pay our money into it and we feel we have done our duty. They form a society to do the work, then they give no further heed to it. They attend to their worldly affairs. They grow cold and indifferent to the whole subject of religion, drift into a semi-skepticism. They have delegated their religious duties to the society. But the Christian religion cannot be extended save through personal piety, zeal, devotion and the holiness of the members. Then the human organizations to spread the truth abroad have a tendency to weaken and destroy the church of God at home. Go where these organizations have existed for a length of time, and a lack of personal zeal and devotion, and piety among the members is manifest. Where these are lacking, the church will not, ought to, succeed.

Here is the trouble with what is called "pastoral" work. True scriptural, pastoral work is needed by every church. Without it, no church can prosper. But when this service is delegated to one man, when we pay him to do the preaching, praying, giving thanks, and the exhorting, admonishing, visiting, warning and overseeing, we feel we have done our duty; we grow cold, indifferent, lukewarm, neglectful, and ere we are aware of it, a feeling of indifference and skepticism fills our hearts, and we are a dead weight instead of help to the church. We cannot delegate the performance of our duty to others, without becoming barren ourselves. The only safety is for all to faithfully conform to the examples and precepts of Scripture in the whole work of God.

D. L.

HOW THE HAND OF THE LORD WAS WITH THE PREACHERS.

In the eleventh chapter of Acts and twenty-first verse we have these words; "And the hand of the Lord was with them, and a great number believed and turned unto the Lord."

Among the denominations the impression is almost universal that the Spirit of God is sent down upon sinners and into their hearts to convict and convert them, and that this is a power separate and apart from the word, and without which the word could have no effect. And having the idea already in their minds when they read such a passage as the above, they readily conclude it means the hand of the Lord was there in the way of this direct work of the Spirit upon the hearts of sinners to convert them. This conclusion might be reasonable, if it could first be shown that the Spirit ever worked that way in the conversion of sinners. But in the absence of even one single case in the word of the Lord where such a thing was done, it is certainly a great piece of violence to the above passage to give it such an application. The passage itself does not say so, and no other passage in the New Testament gives account of the Spirit of God ever having been given directly into the heart of the sinner to convert him, to make him a Christian. Therefore it is the highest presumption to suppose that in this passage such a work is referred to. Let one single case be shown in the Acts of Apostles where the Holy Spirit was sent directly into the heart of the sinner as is now claimed, to convert the sinner, and the point is gained. But as no such passage ever has been or ever can be shown, to make that sort of an application of the word of God does inexcusable violence to the word, and men that do so had better stop and think a little before they further go. But it may be asked, is there any other way plainly revealed in which the hand of the Lord was with the preachers of the early times? to this question we answer emphatically, yes. In close of Mark, when the apostles had been commanded to go into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature it is added, "And they went forth and preached everywhere, the Lord working with them and confirming the word with signs following." This shows how the Lord worked with the apostles and preachers of early times. He was with them to confirm the word with signs—miracles. We have many examples of this. Peter and John were enabled to heal the lame man at Jerusalem. This brought an immense crowd of people together, and the miracle of healing confirmed the word, the gospel spoken by Peter, and five thousand believed that word. Philip at Samaria was enabled to cast out unclean spirits, and thus the hand of the Lord was with him, to confirm the word when spoken, so that the people believed, and were baptized, both men and women. And wherever those early preachers went the Lord worked with them, not by sending the Spirit abstractly into the hearts of sinners, but by enabling the preachers to perform miracles in proof of the truth of the word which they were preaching. No miracle ever converted a sinner; but these miracles attested the truth spoken by those preachers, so that when the people heard the word, and saw the miracles, they believed and obeyed the word, and were thereby saved.

All this harmonizes exactly with the closing part of the verse in Acts 11: 12. It says, "And a great multitude believed and turned unto the Lord." The hand of the Lord let it be observed was with the preachers helping them to do their work, not only inspiring them to preach the word to the people, but enabling them to perform miracles, to confirm the word when spoken, and thus giving the people confidence that the gospel was true, and that if they would obey it, they should be saved by it. But the hand of the Lord never was with them by sending the Holy Spirit into the hearts of the people to convert them. Those therefore who thus apply this passage do so without one word of authority. And when those people believed the truth of what those preachers spake, they had nothing to do but turn to the Lord and be saved. The gospel was plain then. It was the power of God to salvation then to such as believed, and it is the same gospel yet, and has the same power to save now that it had then, if people will only believe and obey it now as they did then. And the same book that reveals the gospel to us, gives us also an account of those miracles, and this account of miracles is written that we also may believe the same truth and be saved.

This is all we care to write now on the eleventh chapter of Acts. We gave the first part of it, in the article on tenth chapter. And Bro. J. M. Kidwell gave an article some time since on the name Christian, as mentioned in this chapter, giving the same leading points that we should give if we were to write on it, and we will let his article suffice on that, and ask those interested to re-read his article. We hope soon to be able to go on with this series of articles on Acts.

LETTERS TO A METHODIST PREACHER—No. 13.

"For ye are yet carnal: for whereas there is among you envying, and strifes, and divisions, are ye not carnal, and walk as men?" 1 Cor. 1: 3.

My friend, after a silence of sometime, I resume my letters to you. You now know what I teach as essential to the union of an alien sinner to Christ, that he may be an adopted son of God; and I trust you have learned also, why I teach it. And now I propose to notice why I think you are in the wrong institution for a Christian to be. I know that those of your brethren in your institution, who do not know me, will think me presumptuous; but I am sure you know better, for the matter between us is this: We would be brethren in the fullest extent of that word religiously, but with our present surroundings, we cannot be. There is a gulf between us, and that must be "bridged," ere we can stand in accord with the intercessory prayer of Jesus as recorded in the seventeenth chapter of John. Paul tells the Corinthians that they were carnal, because one of Paul, another of Cephas, and of Apollos, etc.

Now the question comes home to my heart, am I carnal? because of some name I willingly wear and glory in, I think I have searched myself thoroughly upon the question. And I now record the fact for you and all, that I desire no name, save those names the Holy Spirit through the apostles, gave to those who submitted to the commands of Jesus Christ. I have ever desired to own those names, since I thought seriously on the subject of religion. And the more I read God's word, the more I am impressed with the beauty, the simplicity of those names, and the more firmly convinced of the sinfulness of any other names beside these.

You have often talked with me about the union of Christians; you have heard me speak (publicly) my mind upon the importance of it; I have heard you pray for it earnestly. Now I suggest to you, aside from our distinctive difference in teaching, the elements of the gospel. (How sinners may be pardoned in accord with God's revealed will.) There is a "barrier" that must be removed, ere we can stand as one in faith and obedience. What is this "barrier?" One of the principle components (besides those mentioned as elements) of this obstacle is in the name you wear. Your individual name distinguishes you from me and others. I cannot wear your name without a due process of law, nor can you wear mine. But when you and your wife were married, she lost her name, gave it up, took yours upon her, and she is known to you and to all by the name given her in her marriage with you. She will, if true to that name and to you, wear it when you are dead, should she outlive you, until by law she be married to another. I trust I have been married to Christ. If so, I desire no other husband. If I ever refuse to wear his name, then I might be married to Methodism, rather than to Romanism or Mormonism. But so long as I understand the relation that should exist between wife and husband, between Christ and his disciples, as I do now, we can never be united, be as one, as the Father and Son are one, as long as you are espoused to Methodism.

Now I place the burden before your door; you can remove that much of the barrier, I cannot. If you are married to Christ as you are to Methodism, (and you know I do not speak disrespectful of Methodism more than any other human institution,) then you have two husbands, religiously; (for you, yourself, do not pretend to claim that the Methodist church and Christ's church are one and the same.) Jesus speaks very plainly of those having more than one husband. (Mark 10: 2-12.) Now, you see, as I look on all worldly institutions in that light, you have the key that unlocks any mystery that may have been in your mind; why I never join them, and regarding this as the only true way to remain, subject to Christ, the head over the body, you will see that you must divorce yourself from Methodism, or prove to me that Methodism is the church that Jesus said "the gates of hell shall never prevail against." Do one or the other, and thereby remove one stone of division from between us. But until this is done, we need not pray; we need not work to be one. God will not unite us as he and the son are one, so long as we work, one for Paul, one for apostles, and one for somebody else. Christ will have our undivided love; we cannot serve two masters, neither can we love two husbands. I cannot give up Christ, but you can give up Methodism, and be a purer spouse of Christ. I would not have you give up Christ, he will be yours, he will be mine if we will forsake all others and cleave to him. Hence, the first step, be married to Christ by his own laws of union. Forsaking all other husbands of whatever name or rank, take his name and faithfully wear it, and all being married alike, and wearing the same name, can have no cause for reproach, for strife, nor for division, and hence losing all carnality, and becoming spiritual, may bring forth fruit to the honor of God. May this be your desire and success, is the prayer of—

A DISCIPLE.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

T. J. Brooks, Cathey's Creek, Maury County, Tenn., October 17, writes: "Saturday before the first Sunday in October, I began a meeting in the South side of Maury County, at a place called Screamer, and continued until Friday night following with good audiences. There were six added from the world, one restored. The brethren are much encouraged and say they are going to build them a house and organize into a church as quick as they can."

F. C. Sowell, October 17, writes: "The meeting at Little Lot, Hickman County, resulted in twenty additions. We only had two before I left. Bro. Jno. Morton conducted the meeting after I left. Preached several discourses at Philadelphia, but had only one addition. Preached one week at Rock Spring and had one addition. At this place we preached a part of the time in the school house and a part of the time in the Baptist church. This is a good place at which to build up the cause."

Thomas V. Eskridge, Bold Spring, Tenn., October 15, writes: "It has been some time since my report from this section of country. Bro. A. J. Luther, of Dickson County, and Bro. James Litton, of Hickman County, Tenn., commenced a meeting at the new church and school house, in this neighborhood, on Friday night before the first Lord's day in this month, (October) with good preaching or teaching, until Monday night following with one addition, and the few brethren much edified and strengthened, and on Tuesday morning they went to Indian Creek church in our (Humphreys) county, and held the meeting until Thursday night."

Laugh, and the world laughs with you;
Weep, and you weep alone;
For the sad old earth must borrow its mirth,
But has trouble enough of its own.
Sing, and the hills will answer;
Sigh—It is lost on the air;
The echoes bound to a joyful sound,
But are slow to voice your care.

Feast, and your halls are crowded;
Fast, and the world goes by;
Succeed and give, and it helps you live,

MRS. PICKETT'S MISSIONARY BOX.

"That there missionary box," said Mrs. Pickett, surveying it with her head on one side, as it stood in state on the best parlor mantel, "That there missionary box is worth its weight in gold two or three times over to me. You'd never believe it, Mis' Malcolm, the things I've been alearnin' of, ever sence Mary Pickett, she brought it home, or rather the mate to it, an' sot it out on the dinin' room shelf, an' told me she'd brought me a present from meetin'."

"Do tell me about it," said the new minister's wife, with girlish pleasure at the prospect of a story.

"I've half a notion to," replied her hostess. "You've got a real drawin' out way with you, Mis' Malcolm. Some way you make me think of Mary Pickett herself, that was the beginnin' of it all; she that's a missionary to Turkey now—my niece, you know. You've got just her colored hair and you're light complected like her, too. Mary Pickett always was a master hand for laughin'. I remember how she laughed that afternoon when she come in with them two boxes an' sot mine on the shelf out there. She knowed I warn't the missionary kind. I don't no but she done it jest for a joke. It was five years ago, you know, and I was scrapin' along with my boarders, an' rent was high an' livin' higher, an' I had hard enough times to make both ends meet, I can tell you, though it warn't half as hard times as I thought it was. I was that down-hearted that everything looked criss-cross to me, and I had got to have hard feelings against every one't looked's as if they got along easier'n me, 'n I'd most give up goin' to church at all, for all I was a professor, an' I won't say but what I had murmurin' against Providence—fact is I know I had—if you be a minister's wife! An' so it was work, work, from one week's end to another, an' I never thought of nothin' else. Then Mary Pickett she come home from school, where she'd been ever sence she was fifteen, for she took all the money her pa left her, to get an edication, so'st to teach; an' she got a place in the grammar school an' come to board with me, an' she'd heard about missions to that school till she was full of 'em, an' the very fust meetin' day after she came she walked out in the kitchen an' says she:

"Aunt, a'n't you comin' to missionary meetin', down to the church?" says she. "I'll meet you there after school," says she.

"An' if you'll believe me, Mis' Malcom, I was that riled that I could have shook her! I says:

"Pretty doin's 'twould be for me to go traipsin' off to meetin's 'on leave the i'nin' an' the cookin' an' set alongside o' Lawyer Stapleton's wife hearin' about—the land knows what! Folks had better stay to home an' see to their work," says I. But law! nothin' ever made Mary Pickett answer back. She jest laughed and said good-bye, an' I stayed and pattered over the kitchen work till I was hot as fire inside an' out; an' 'long about five o'clock back she come with them two boxes.

"I've brought you a present, Aunt Mirandy," says she, settin' of it down, an' when I see what it was, I jest stood an' stared. 'Twarn't that one there, 'twas one jest like it, an' it had a motto written on one end, 'What shall I render unto the Lord for all his benefits to me?'

"Well, you're smart!" says I, an' Mary she jest dropped into a chair an' laughed till I couldn't help laughin' too. "Great benefits I have," says I, standin' with my arms akimbo an' lookin' that box all over. "Guess the heathen won't git much out o' me at that rate!"

"I s'pose that depends upon how much you render," says Mary, says she, "You might try at a cent apiece awhile, jest for the fun of it. Nobody knows who's got this motto, you know, an' even a few cents would be some help," says she.

"'Bout's many as grapes off bean vines, I'd get!" says I, for I was more than usually low-spirited that night, an' I jest made up my mind I would keep count, jest to show myself how little I did have. "Them few cents won't break me," I thought, an' I really seemed to kinder enjoy thinkin' over the hard times I had, while I was settin' the table, with Mary helpin', an' I kep' sayin' little mean things about how I s'posed she wanted me to put in a cent for the smoky stove, an' for the bread that warn't light, so't I knew all the boarders would be grumblin' at supper, an' plenty more in that line, that she never took no notice of. Miss Stapleton said once that Mary was a girl of great tact, an' I guess I know it better'n any one else."

"Well, the box sot there all the week, an' I used to say it must be kinder lonesome with nothin' in it, for not a cent went in till next missionary meetin' day. I was settin' on the back steps, gettin' a breath of fresh air, when Mary came home, an' I called out to her to know what them geese talked about to-day. That was the livin' word I called 'em—'them geese!' Well, she came an' set down along side o' me, an' begun to tell about the meetin', an' it was all about Injy and the widders there, poor creturs, an' they bein' abused an' starved an' not let to think for themselves—you know all about it better'n I do—an' before I thought I up an' said:

"Well, if I be a widder, I'm thankful I'm where I kin earn my own livin' and no thanks to nobody an' no one to interfere!"

"Then Mary she laughed an' said there was my fust benefit. Well, that sorter tickled me, for I thought a woman must be pretty hard up for benefits when she had to go clear off to Injy to find 'em, an' I dropped in one cent, an' it rattled around a few days without any company. I used to shake it every time I passed by the shelf, an' the thought of them poor things in Injy kep' a comin' up before me, an' I really was glad when I got a new boarder for my best room, an' felt as if I'd oughter put in another. An' next meetin' Mary she told me about Japan, an' I thought about that till I put in another because I warn't a Jap. An' all the while I felt kinder proud of how little there was in that box. Then one day when I got a chance to turn a little penny sellin' eggs, which I warn't in the habit of, Mary brought the box in where I was countin' of my money, an' says:

"A penny for your benefit, Aunt Mirandy," an' I says:

"This ain't the Lord's benefit," an' she answered:

"If 'ta'n't his, whose is it?" and she begun to hum over something out of one of the poetry books that she was always a readin' of:

God's grace is the only grace,
And all grace is the grace of God.

"Well, I dropped in my penny an' them words kep' ringin' in my ears, till I couldn't help puttin' more to it, on account of some other things I never thought of calling the Lord's benefits before. An' by that time, what with Mary's tellin' me about them meetin's an' me most always findin' somethin' to put in a penny for, to be thankful that I warn't it, an' what with gettin' interested about it all, an' sorter searchin' round a little, now and then to think of somethin' or other to put in a cent for, there really come to be quite a few pennies in the box, an' it didn't rattle near so much when I shook it. An' then, one day, Mary she brought me a little purplish pamphlet, an' she says:

"Aunt, here's a missionary magazine I've subscribed to for you, bein' you're so interested in missions."

"Me interested in missions! But when I come to think it over I didn't see but what I was, in a way, an' I said it over to myself, kinder curious, to see how it sounded. It was jest what they said about Mis' Stapleton, she 't was the president of the missionary society. An' that night our new boarder he picked up the magazine, an' said:

"Why, what's this?" An' I said quite pleased before I thought:

"That's a magazine that my niece, Mary Pickett, she's subscribed to for me, bein' I'm so interested in missions."

"My mother used to take it," says he. He was a young man, not much mor'n a boy, an' home-sick, I guess. 'Td like to look it over, if you don't mind," he says. 'It looks like home.' So I was so pleased to hear him say that, for the boarders they don't most generally say much, except to find fault, that when I went out in the dinin' room, I jest put another cent in for the magazine itself, part for what he'd said, an' part for what I'd been readin' out of it that afternoon; an' while I was a droppin' of it in, Mary she come up behind me and give me a big hug.

"You dear old inconsistent thing?" she says, an' then I knew she'd heard what I'd said in the parlor.

"Well, it went on that way for quite awhile an' it came to be a regular thing that a cent would get in there every time I heard about the meetin'. I thought Mary would 'a' died laughin' the time I put one in because I warn't born a cannibal, an' one day—I'll never forget that day—Mis' Malcolm she was a tellin' me about Turkey, an' she told how some missionaries heard a little girl sayin' how the smallest thing in all the world wa'n't any smaller than the joy of her father when she was born. Them words went through me. I was standin' over the i'ning-board, an' Mary was opposite to me, but all of a sudden, instead of her, I seemed to see my husband's face, that had been dead ten years, an' him a-leanin' down over our little baby that only lived two weeks—the only one I ever had. Seemed to me I couldn't get over it, when the baby died. An' I seemed to see my husband smilin' down at it, an' it lyin' there, all soft an' white—she was a white little baby, such a pretty baby—an' before I knew it, I was droppin' tears all over the starched clothes an' I turned round an' went an' put another cent in that box, for the look on my husband's face when he held her that time. An' Mary she see somethin' was the matter, I guess, for she walked off an' never asked no questions. But all the rest of the day I kep' seein' that little face before me, an' thinkin' how I'd had her for my own, an' how I knew she was in glory—I'd only felt it hard that I couldn't keep her before that—an' before I went to bed I went out in the dinin' room, an' I put in a little bright five-cent piece for my baby, because I couldn't bear to count her jest like everythin' else, an' I found myself crying because I hadn't enough money jest then, to spare anythin' bigger. I suppose it was from thinkin' about her so much, that that night I dreamed about mother. I could see her as plain, an' father with her, an' we was back on the old farm, an' while I was kissin' of 'em both, I heard some one sayin', 'As one whom his mother comforteth.' An' I woke up an' I was sayin', 'O Lord, I am a wicked, ungrateful woman!'

"Miss Malcom, I don't suppose you could understand—you that's a minister's wife, an' thankful to the Lord of course—what I thought that night. I laid awake, thinkin' an' cryin', an' yet not all sorry, for half the night. I kep' thinkin' of all the things the Lord had ever done for me, an' the more I thought of mother an' the old home, the softer my heart seemed to grow, an' I jist prayed with all my might and main, an' that there box weighed on my mind like lead. 'A cent apiece,' I kep' sayin', a cent apiece for all his benefits! Why, they come over me that night while I lay there prayin', till they were like crowds an' crowds of angels all 'round me. In the mornin' I went up to the box, feelin' meaner than dirt, an' I put in a cent for mother an' a cent for father, an' one for the old farm, an' the rose-bush in front of my window, an' for my little pet lamb that made me so happy when I was a girl, an' for heaps of other things that I'd been forgettin' in them hard times. An' when I couldn't spare no more, I went to work, an' do believe I was a different woman after that. For there was the verses in the Bible, that I used to get up early to read them mornin's an' there was the love of God, that I'd never rightly understood, an' there was the church, that I couldn't bear to miss now, an' there was the daily bread, that I'd never thought of bein' thankful for till after that night when I found out how much I'd had in my life, an' begun to look about me for what I had now. And so it went on, till the box grew heavier an' before the day come for it to be opened, three months from the time I'd had it, it was full, an' I stuck in one cent into the slit at the top, an' said:

"That's for you, Mary Pickett, for if ever I had a benefit from the Lord, you're one!" an' Mary she cried when I said it.

Robust Health

Is not always enjoyed by those who seem to possess it. The taint of corrupted blood may be secretly undermining the constitution. In time, the poison will certainly show its effects, and with all the more virulence the longer it has been allowed to permeate the system. Each pimple, sty, boil, skin disorder and sense of unnatural lassitude, or languor, is one of Nature's warnings of the consequences of neglect.

Ayer's Sarsaparilla

Is the only remedy that can be relied upon, in all cases, to eradicate the taint of hereditary disease and the special corruptions of the blood. It is the only alternative that is sufficiently powerful to thoroughly cleanse the system of Scrofulous and Mercurial impurities and the pollution of Contagious Diseases. It also neutralizes the poisons left by Diphtheria and Scarlet Fever, and enables rapid recuperation from the enfeeblement and debility caused by these diseases.

Myriads of Cures

Achieved by AYER'S SARSAPARILLA, in the past forty years, are attested, and there is no blood disease, at all possible of cure, that will not yield to it. Whatever the ailments of this class, and wherever found, from the scurvy of the Arctic circle to the "veldt-sores" of South Africa, this remedy has afforded health to the sufferers by whom it was employed. Druggists everywhere can cite numerous cases, within their personal knowledge, of remarkable cures wrought by it, where all other treatment had been unavailing. People will do well to

Trust Nothing Else

than AYER'S SARSAPARILLA. Numerous crude mixtures are offered to the public as "blood purifiers," which only allure the patient with the pretense of many cheap doses, and with which it is folly to experiment while disease is steadily becoming more deep-seated and difficult of cure. Some of these mixtures do much lasting harm. Bear in mind that the only medicine that can radically purify the vitiated blood is

THE MEETING AT MURFREESBORO, TENN.

At this writing the meeting at Murfreesboro has been in progress for sixteen days; ten have been received into the congregation—nine by baptism and one from the Baptists. The interest seems to be increasing steadily, and it is probable that the meeting will be continued for some days yet. For two weeks we had three meetings per day, two for preaching and one for practice in singing. We have now dropped one of those meetings.

The first addition was not received until the ninth day of the meeting. In a late number of the ADVOCATE Bro. E. G. S. reported a meeting of eight days at which no additions were received; and in commenting on this fact he said that he did not know when he had preached at a place so long before receiving a confession. His success in this way has been much better than mine, for it has not been unusual for me to preach ten or twelve days, twice each day, before receiving a single addition; in one case that I remember the meetings were continued for three weeks before there was a confession; then in the two following weeks about fifteen were baptized, as many more scattered disciples were gathered together from the regions round about, money was raised and a house built, and from that day to this (about five years) there has not been a failure to meet in it on the first day of the week to break the loaf.

It is encouraging to see people come forward to confess the name of Jesus; but as long as good audiences listen with eager interest to the preaching of the truth, one need not be discouraged. He should not endeavor to hasten matters too much, nor should he "shake too hard" for fear some of the green ones might fall; let him preach the truth; the truth must do the work, if it is properly done. "You shall know the truth," says Jesus, "and the truth shall make you free."

We have been fortunate in the time for our meeting at Murfreesboro, the brethren think, and they say our audiences are the largest that have been secured for many years. A free use of printer's ink in getting out cards with the announcement of subject, etc. has helped much in securing this end.

In this connection I desire to apologize to my correspondents for tardiness in replying to them, and to the readers of the ADVOCATE for the failure of the KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT to appear last week. Since returning from Canada, I have been much troubled with nausea and dizziness, and on several occasions have not been able to leave the bed at all. Several years ago I was affected by a partial sun-stroke, and since then have scarcely been able to endure the hot weather. When the frosts come, I hope to be all right again.

I trust that my friends will not altogether forsake me because I cannot write to them, seeing that they hear from me anyhow through the paper, while I am dependent upon their private letters.

DEAR BRO. HARDING: Please explain John 20: 22. Did the disciples receive the Spirit then or at some time in the future? If then, in what form? if in the future? why breathe on them?

They received the Spirit after Jesus was glorified (crucified). See John 7: 39, Acts 1: 4-5, Acts 2: 4. I do not know why it was necessary or him to breathe on them.

DENOMINATIONALISM.

There is a marked tendency on the part of many of those whose avowed object is to return to apostolic simplicity and purity in religion to drift into sectarianism. They are disposed to convert the "restoration movement inaugurated by the Campbells" into a sect, called "The Christian Church," and to claim that all Christians belong to this body.

If you tell one of those brethren about Muller of Bristol, England, he immediately inquires, "Is he one of our brethren?" When you explain that he was brought up a paedobaptist, that he became convinced from the reading of the Bible that he ought to be immersed and that he was, that he has built up about him a congregation of immersed believers who take the Bible and the Bible alone as their rule of faith and practice, refusing to be called by human names, and to be judged by human standards; that he is a faithful, God-loving, God-fearing man who daily studies the Bible diligently that he may see, and who walks in the light as it shines along his pathway, immediately our brother of the "Christian Church" sighs, "What a pity he cannot be induced to join our church!"

But some one may be ready to inquire, "Are you sure Mr. Muller is such a man as you have described?" He has been so described to me by those who knew him personally, and his writings confirm me in the belief of their report; but of course he may not be such a man; it may be that when all secrets are revealed it will be seen that we are deceived in him; but of one thing I am certain, if he is such a man as he has been described, he is a member of the church of the Lord Jesus Christ and is a brother to every Christian in the world; he is a member of "our brotherhood" whether he ever heard of Alexander Campbell or not, whether he knows there is such a thing as the "current reformation" or not. It is not necessary to know of Alexander Campbell in order to be saved, nor to read the literature of the "current reformation" in order to enter the church of the living God. He has the word of God and the ability to read it, may learn from its pages of the one true God and his Son Jesus Christ; if such a one then becomes a penitent believer and is immersed into Christ, he then becomes a child of God, and, while he continues to walk in the light of the New Testament teaching, he remains one.

We frequently hear it said that "Our Brotherhood" numbers about 600,000 in the United States, with a good number of churches in Great Britain, Australia and the Canadas, and that we are increasing at the rate of 60,000 or 70,000 per year. Such expressions are sectarian and misleading. It is impossible to tell how numerous the Christians of the world are, seeing that God alone knows the heart, and that the Lamb's Book of Life is the only true church-book. The brotherhood of the Bible is the family of God. When we use the expression church of Christ, or church of God, we should have it in our minds to include all the Christians in a given locality, or all the Christians in the world; any other limitation is sectarian and sinful. One of the mightiest results of the work of that remarkable man, Alexander Campbell, is the leavening of the entire religious community of the world; and every man who preaches the gospel in its apostolic beauty and simplicity not only benefits the church to which he preaches and those who come in under his personal ministry, but he sows the seed in the hearts of the entire community—seed that will bear fruit for years to come.

The attention of the readers of the ADVOCATE is invited to the following reprint of a card that I use in protracted meetings. Questions concerning it, and brief criticisms upon it, are solicited from the Bible students.

THE HOLY SPIRIT'S WORK.

1. To whom does he come? 2. What does he do? 3. How does he do it?

ANSWER TO NO. 1.

- (a) He comes to the believer. John 7: 37-39. Eph. 1: 13. Acts 19: 2. Gal. 3: 2-14.
- (b) He comes to the obedient. John 14: 15-17, 23. Acts 5: 32.
- (c) He comes to the baptized. Matt. 3: 16. Acts 2: 1-4. Acts 2: 38. Acts 8: 15-16. Acts 19: 1-7.

ANSWER TO NO. 2.

- (a) He reproves (convicts) the world. John 16: 8-11.
- (b) He comforts Christians, dwelling in them and helping them. Rom. 8: 26. 1 Cor. 3: 16. 1 Cor. 6: 19.

ANSWER TO NO. 3.

- (a) He convinces by testifying. John 6: 26.
  - (b) He testifies by speaking. John 16: 13.
  - (c) He speaks through apostles and prophets. Matt. 10: 19-20. 1 Cor. 11-13. 2 Pet. 1: 20-21.
- Is the Spirit sent into the heart to make one a Christian, or because he is a Christian? Ans. Gal. 4: 6.

Can the worldling receive the Spirit. Ans. John 9: 17.

How does God strive by His Spirit to draw wicked men to himself. Ans. By sending inspired men to give them the words of the Spirit. See Neh. 9: 30. Jeremiah 7: 13-14, 25-26. Jer. 25: 2-4. John 6: 44-45.

THAT FINANCIAL AGENT'S REPORT.

The courteous review of my report as Financial Agent of Kentucky Christian Missionary Society, came to notice a few days since. It is greatly to be regretted that its conclusions were drawn without a complete indication of facts. Had the review been withheld till the facts submitted by all the evangelists were before the reviewer, he could have accounted for the difference between $3,948.76, the amount collected by the writer from Aug. 4th, 1883, to Aug. 15th, 1884, and the $14,582.42, the results of all that was collected and disbursed by all the men in the employ of the State Board.

It is illogical to draw conclusions without complete induction of facts. If the weights of ten men are compared, and the head of one is set over against the body of another, it is clear that the comparison is unjust. The part of this year's work is compared with the whole of last year's work. If this is not a gross non sequitur all the realms of sophistry can furnish none.

The report starts with the assumption that the Society work is wrong. Facts and conclusions are made the slaves to this assumption. We respectfully suggest that the work in question may be a failure, and still the societies may be right.

Now Bro. Harding I make you a promise. I pledge myself to abandon the society work and join you in an effort to destroy societies on the following conditions:

1. That you show that the word of God provides specific means for spreading the gospel.
2. That it unfolds a definite plan for developing, combining and utilizing the resources of the congregations constituting the church of God.
3. That the work done by the societies usurp the functions of the church and make void the commandment of God.

You must get down to this work and establish these propositions before thinking men will accept the allegations you make against the society. "Being ignorant of God's righteousness and seeking to establish their own, they did not subject themselves to the righteousness of God." They will not accept the work of one year, by one man, representing the churches of one or part of one state as proof of the failure of all societies of all descriptions, of all churches in all States in all Nations. The great work of Missions at home and abroad cannot be swallowed by one universal conclusion from one particular premise.

Now we ask this question: What is the divine plan contravened or destroyed by societies? Let their most ardent foe testify: "In the ancient days every one whose heart stirred him up to the glorious work went forth preaching the gospel. No one wanted to be engaged by some who would at some time promise a support." This is the Lord's plan nutshell. We may rejoice that it is found to be so encompassed as not to elude our touch. The proposition must be analyzed.

Is it a fact that "every man whose heart stirred him up to the glorious work went forth preaching?" If so then, it ought to be so now. Bro. Harding affirms; we deny. Every heart stirred to the glorious work of saving souls, did not and from the fitness required, could not preach. Personally only those preached who were sent by the church and who possessed the requisite qualifications. Elders, deacons and evangelists had to possess a natural or acquired fitness. Preaching personally was not as universal as discipleship. Hence Bro. Harding's proposition is too broad. It will not do to make the exception the rule. The fact that the persecuted disciples went everywhere preaching, does not bind all the disciples in all ages to become preachers. Pure lives are in a sense eloquent sermons; but the preacher must be able to make full proof of his ministry, to give himself wholly to the work, and to be an example of the believers in word, in conversation, in faith in charity, and in purity. Not only is the statement defective because too broad, but it implies what is not a fact, viz: that every man went out as he chose, to preach. This is not apostolic, because it violates the law, "let everything be done decently and in order."

Paul said "How can they preach except they be sent? Any position which violates this text or usurps the right to and duty of the church to send out evangelists and to be represented by them, is not, and can not be true. Evangelists were put in the church, not above or apart from the church. If this be true, then as a part of the church, as the divinely appointed messenger of the church, the evangelist has the pledge of all whom he represents. Where he goes, the church goes where he preaches the church preaches. The fellowship defines, protects and enforces his rights "The laborer is worthy of his reward." Whether there be a definite agreement between the church and the evangelist, is not revealed. Work done creates his right to receive, and the obligation of the church to render a just and fair compensation. The church is the one to assure the pay. The work is the measure of the pay. No definite agreement before, in, or after the work is done, creates any right or obligation. The agreements only defines the right. Definition saves misunderstanding; it prevents hard-feeling. The absence of definition is no proof of superior faith. Its presence is no proof of greed or of unsoundness in the faith. Common sense, the desire for peace, the protection of rights, suggest the propriety of having a definite agreement. It is not a question of divine revelation. Were man absolutely free from bias, were Christians disposed to look upon the right of others as upon their own, then the matters of compensation might always be left an open question. But suppose that farmers, merchants, doctors, lawyers and all Christians in any business whatever, were to leave to the receivers of their products to determine their value, what a Babel we would have? Misunderstanding and confusion would hold high carnival over broken vows and violated rights. If Christians in secular pursuits have the right to protect themselves by a distinct and well-defined contract where there is the exchange of value between Christian and Christian, what makes it wrong for the preacher, one Christian, and the congregation, a number of Christians, to have a well-defined contract? Did a just God ordain that the preachers should be burdened, and those he represents eased? Does New Testament equity require that Christians out of the pulpit provide for their families and for the contingencies of old age and sickness; while preachers must leave this wholly to the providence of God working through imperfect Christians? Is the evangelist the sole recipient of God's care? Is he alone to tread the path of faith when it comes to support? This opposition to contracts proceeds upon the assumption which these questions suggest. I can not accept a theory which allows Christians to deal with one another as if they were not perfect, but requires the preacher to act as if they were absolutely perfect, to pocket all his wrongs and comfort himself with the thought that God wills that he must be burdened and the church he represents eased.

It is admitted that no rule is universal. In Paul's life emergencies arose when "he robbed" the churches of Macedonia to do the Corinthians service. But this was a choice of evils. It was less injurious to the cause for him to do this than for him to assist and enforce his right then and there to a support. The rule was that followed by the Philippians, who from the beginning recognized the obligations which the fellowship imposed. This case alone demonstrates the Apostolic plan so far as it exists in definite outline. Every Philippian Christian was by his conversion obligated in person or by proxy to preach Jesus. Epaphroditus was the agent to bear their gifts to Paul in Thessalonica and elsewhere. Other men were agents to collect; he was an agent to bear funds."

Now, Bro. Harding, either your congregation at Forest Grove sends you out as its messenger, or you go unsent. If you go out apart from the church, or unsent, I ask you by what authority you do these things? Are you above and independent of the church? To what spiritual powers are you amenable? If you are sent out by Forest Grove congregation, either it sustains you entirely, or it does not. If it does not sustain you because, though able, it is unwilling, then you and that congregation are guilty of departing from the apostolic plan, for you are bearing the burden that ought to be distributed among the entire membership. They are eased; you are burdened. Injustice is unsound. If Forest Grove can and will sustain you in going into all the world and preaching the gospel, all praise to it and to you. This is right. But if Forest Grove cannot entirely sustain you, and your work is sustained by the members of the congregations as you go from place to place, then you and Forest Grove are with us in co-operating with other churches to spread the gospel. Whether your eldership sustain you alone or by help received from other congregations, if your work is scriptural, you are sent out by them, and you and they are virtually endorsing the work that I am doing.

Some of the elders of the congregations in Lexington make the board which sends me from church to church to preach, to gather up the fragments of liberality, and these funds sustain myself, and the pledges paid are to sustain other preachers. I preach every Lord's day, and sometimes through the week, and often from house to house.

The $8,000 of the $10,000 will be paid, and we trust without much additional cost to the Board. One difference between our work is in the number of additions. Even here my work is not wholly barren. But the presumption is that the enforcement of the special truth that the spirit of Jesus is the spirit of missions, is not fruitless. Out of the $8,000, we expect to have some preaching done for the next five years.

Now, my brother, how can you condemn my work and uphold yours? Are you directed by the eldership? so am I. Are you supported by co-operation? so am I. The convention cuts no figure in the argument; it supplants no part of God's word or God's church; it is evil only in your imagination. Please do us the justice to publish this, and state the full facts when the minutes are out.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

E. B. Cayce, Franklin, Tenn., writes: "Bro. Cave is holding a meeting for us. He has large audiences; one confession to date." We have learned of others since.

W. N. McCain, Coldwater, Miss., writes: "It was my happy privilege on last Lord's day, to meet a good audience at the water's edge in order to attend the ordinance of baptism. I addressed them on the subject of baptism. (1) Why we baptize; (2) who are the subjects of baptism; (3) the action of baptism; (4) the design. Good attention. I then baptized one man, seventy-four years old, and one young man. I will commence a meeting four miles west of Coldwater the first Lord's day of November."

Kate K. Sangster, Hazen, Ark., writes: We had a protracted meeting held by Bro. Gillespie (E. C.) and J. K. Reid; had fifteen added to the church; nine by confession and baptism, and six took membership. Please let me hear soon regarding the ADVOCATE."

B. H. Darmer, College Grove, October 20, writes: "Bro. J. M. Curtis commenced a meeting at this place on the fourth Lord's day in September, and continued nine days, and there were nineteen accessions; one from the Baptists, six by relation and the balance from the world. We meet every Lord's day to break bread and attend to the ordinances of the Lord's house."

Wm. H. Sandy, jr., Minor Hill, Tenn., October 16, writes: "Bro. H. J. Spivy commenced a protracted meeting at Cherry Hill on Saturday, October 11. There have been five added to the church up to this time; four of them were from the world, and one prodigal son returned home to the father. The meeting is still going on; I think much good will be the result. There have been two added to the church at Noblitt's Chapel since my last report."

R. P. Meeks, Stantonville, Tenn., October 14, writes: "Including the Bakerville meeting, have had one hundred and one additions during the past summer and fall up to this time. Will start (D. V.) to-day near Columbia, Tenn. Am due there next Saturday. Closed my last meeting at Savannah, Tenn. last Sunday night; had only two additions. Established a congregation while there with twenty-four members. During the meeting Mr. John Williams donated a lot upon which we expect to build a church house soon."

O. A. Jones, Little Lot, Hickman County, October 15, writes: "I wish to continue the report of the Little Lot meeting as commenced by Bro. F. Sowell in GOSPEL ADVOCATE of October 8. Bro. John M. Morton continued the meeting until Saturday following. Results, twenty noble souls came out on the Lord's side; fourteen by confession and baptism, two reclaimed, four from the Methodists. We had a crowded house towards the latter part of the meeting; never saw better attention given. Interest increased to the close. One added the last sermon. We think much prejudice has been removed, and much good accomplished at this meeting."

S. J. S. Cawthorn writes: "I began the work, in extreme South Alabama, on Friday night before the first Lord's day in July, with that true and tried soldier of the cross, Jacob Hamison, of Highland Home. We continued this effort ten days. Nine were added to Shady Grove congregation. I met Bro. Gafford at Good Hope. Commenced a meeting on Friday night before the second Lord's day, and continued until Tuesday. No visible result. From Good Hope I went to Antioch, Monroe county. Carried the meeting forward for ten days, beginning on Saturday before the third Lord's day. Fifteen restored and baptized. Friday night before the fourth Lord's day I reached Fatama, and assisted the brethren until the Thursday night following. Three were baptized. Back to Antioch, finding that the brethren had arranged for a series of discourses at Fairfield, I hastened to meet the appointment. Had good audience, opened the eyes of the Baptist, and inclined them to read. No results visible. Then to Gravena, no results; then home; then to Midway the second Monday in September to meet Mr. Chute, Mormon, in debate, which run over six days. The brethren expressed themselves well satisfied with the effort made to hold up the truth. Organized a congregation of thirteen members on the battle field, with three additions. Went again to Fairfield on Lord's day evening to attend a Baptist meeting. By invitation of the Baptists, attended the meeting on Monday, when the fight opened, and their preachers began to dodge and also deny the word of the Lord, this caused considerable excitement. Bro. Wallace, of High Land, was with me, and I found him to be a valiant soldier; we pressed them so hard they (the preachers) were compelled to fold their tents and abandon the field. Though they were fortified, we held the fort, baptized two, three took membership from the Baptists; the clerk, his wife and another sister. I calmed the storm and left for the dear ones, all well."

"So, when the day come, I said I was goin' too, an' left the i'nin', an' went off together, an' there was singin' an' everythin', jest as there always is, only it was all new to me, an' every one seemed as glad to see me as if I'd been as rich as any of 'em, and at last it come time to open our boxes. An' I brought mine, an' I says, 'Mis' Stapleton,' I says, 'if ever there was a mean feelin' woman come to missionary meeting' I'm the one; for I've ben a-keepin' count of my mercies, at a cent apiece,' I says. It's all cents in there, 'cept one five-cent piece, that means somethin' special to me.

An' I wouldn't let myself put in more,' I says, beginin' to cry, 'for when I begun to find out what I had to be thankful for, I says to myself, 'Mean you'd oughter feel, and mean you shall feel! You'll jest finish this here box the way you begun!' An' here't is,' I says, 'an' every cent is one of the Lord's mercies, so I set down cryin' like a baby, an' Miss Stapleton she began to count, with the tears a-running down her own cheeks, an' before she got through we were all cryin' together, for there was three hundred and fifty blessed cents in that box, not countin' the little five cent piece that nobody knew what it meant.

"And now," says I, 'for mercy's sake give me another box, but don't let it have that motto on it, for I believe it'll break my heart!'

"So they gave me this one, with 'The Love of Christ constraineth us' on it, an' Miss Barnes, that was the minister's wife then, she prayed for us all, about havin' thankful hearts, an' lovin' the Lord for what he's done for, an' I went home with the new box, that's standin' there on the shelf, and life's been a different thing to me since that day, Miss Malcom, my dear, an' that's why that missionary box is worth it's weight in gold."—Miss Eddy in the Advance.

TO THE BOYS AND GIRLS.

In order to give you all something to do, by which you will do good, I have decided to make you the following proposition without even consulting brethren Lipscomb & Sewell.

1. The boy or girl, fifteen years old or under, who will send ten new or old subscribers to the GOSPEL ADVOCATE, I will send them, free, one beautiful gilt-edge Bible.

2. The girl or boy twelve years old or under, who will send five new or old subscribers, I will send them a beautiful Testament.

3. The girl or boy, twelve years old or under, who will send two new subscribers, I will send them a photograph of Uncle Minor.

You may have from now until the first of January next to get up the clubs, and you can take advantage of the club-rates offered by the publishers.

Send all communications and money to GOSPEL ADVOCATE, Nashville, Tenn., and let them know you are working for Uncle Minor's premiums.

In addition to the above, the girl or boy who will send the highest number of subscribers, I will make them a suitable present they will be very proud of.

UNCLE MINOR.

LETTER TO UNCLE MINOR.

DEAR UNCLE MINOR: I am glad that you wrote that letter in the ADVOCATE; it learned me a lesson. I have not seen any letters in the ADVOCATE in a long time. I have been thinking about writing for a good while, but I had not got at it. I am going to school now, and I think I am learning fast. We have a good teacher; he never scolds any one, but he says he is sorry for us sometimes. I joined the church last August at Bro. Kidwell's meeting. He had a good meeting; nine confessions, and two returned back to the church. I never have regretted it, but I feel like I had done my duty towards the Lord. I have waited to see the last ADVOCATE but there was not anything in it from you. I wish you would write some more good letters in the ADVOCATE to the children. I love to read them, and I read all of them. I hope you will write in the next one. I hope my letter will not be thrown in the waste basket.—[Mollie Alexander.

Miserable is the life of him who wishes rather to be feared than to be loved.

AN ANSWER TO A PRIVATE LETTER.

EDITORS OF THE ADVOCATE: I received a letter a short time ago from a man in your State with objections to my essays on Repentance, which he requests me to answer in a private letter to him. He is not a subscriber to the ADVOCATE, nor a friend to you nor our people. I did not promise to answer his letter privately, nor do I think it fair that I should stand out in the open field for him and others to shoot at me, and then when I shoot at them I must do it privately—in the bushes or behind a tree. I do not know his motives for asking me to answer him privately. I will do it to gratify him, but I now give notice that I will not answer another such letter privately. I would just as soon not read an essay as not to know who wrote it. And because men know their own names, they suppose all other persons know them, and hence they put only the initials of their names to their essays. Put your names in full to your writings. "He begins by misapplying two passages of Scripture to the subject of repentance. The first is 1 Peter 3: 18, 'Quickened by the Spirit when the apostle was speaking of Christ preaching to the spirits in prison.' In 1838 or 39, before I moved from Kentucky to Missouri, I wrote an essay on that subject, which I read to my deceased Uncle Jacob Creath, sr., which he requested me not to publish on account of the Ferguson affair in Nashville, Tenn., and which I have not published to this day. The next passage of Scripture which he misapplies is Ephesians 7: 5-8, 'You hath he quickened who were dead in trespasses and sins, and by grace are you saved, and faith is the gift of God.'

Both these passages are written to Christian churches, and not to sinners. The four gospels are written to sinners to prove that Jesus Christ is the Son of God. John 20: 30-31. The Acts of Apostles shows how the apostles presented this great proposition, how the people believed it, and how they obeyed it and became Christians. The book of Acts is a connecting link between the gospels and the epistles, and contains the history of the apostles' preaching from the ascension of Christ to the second imprisonment of Paul in Rome, a period of about thirty years. This letter writer and most of our writers speak of the influences of the Spirit, and of the operation of the Spirit," words or phrases which I have not seen in my New Testament, nor the things, as words are things. We have said we would be silent where the Bible was silent. David, a Jew, who lived one thousand years before Christ was born, was far ahead of the blind guides of this age. He says, in the nineteenth Psalm, The law or word of God is perfect, converting the soul. What sectarian believes this statement? He says eleven times in the 119th Psalm, "Thy word hath quickened me." What sectarian believes this?

Now it is all done by the Spirit without the word. God has joined his word and Spirit together, and let not man attempt to separate them; what one of these agents does, the other does. The Ephesians were saved by faith and baptism. See Acts 19; Ephesians 1: 12-14; 5: 26-27. This doctrine of physical regeneration by the Spirit without the word, and over and above the word is the backbone of sectarianism, and their faith grows out of this sectarian regeneration as the stalk of corn grows out of the grain of corn. God has two ways of giving faith, one miraculously, (1 Cor. 12,) the other way is through the gospel, (Mark 16: 16; John 17: 20,) through the word of the apostles. Ephesians 2: 8, "By the gospel or grace of God, through faith in the gospel, you are saved; and this salvation by the gospel is the gift of God, and it is not of yourselves, lest any should boast." I cannot say all I can say in one short essay. The word, that is neuter gender, and the word faith is feminine gender, and they cannot agree together. God had two ways of giving bread to the Jews; one miraculously, the other in the ordinary way. He has two ways of healing diseases; one miraculously, the other in the ordinary way—by medicine. What man cannot do for himself, God does for him. He cannot make himself, nor redeem himself, therefore God does these things for him. Man can believe God, he can love and obey God, and be immersed, therefore God will not do these things for him. In the first gospel sermon ever preached, the Holy Spirit said to the wicked Jews, "Save yourselves from this wicked generation." Acts

2: 40. This is a grating expression on orthodox ears. The Jews for four thousand years never heard of what is called the doctrine of the perseverance of the saints. Abel and Enosh, without either the law or gospel, walked with God; we with both and with the promise and oath of God (Hebrews 6) must be operated upon before we can do what demons do, (James 2: 3) believe God; we can believe the Divine, and all the religious lives in the world, but cannot believe the God of all truth, so says orthodoxy. This writer wants to know of me what I will do with John 10: My sheep hear or obey my voice. All who obey him he gives eternal life. Hebrews 5: 9-10. He is the author of eternal salvation to all who obey Him. Sheep are not goats, nor are goats sheep, they were goats before they obeyed Christ.

He wishes to know what I do with that text in 1 John 3: 9, "Whosoever is born of God doth not commit sin." The Greek word for commit means a continuation of action, he does not follow sinning as a trade like the wicked man; the trade of the Christian is to do right, to work at righteousness as his daily trade. The wicked works at wickedness, that is his daily trade. He wishes to know how I reconcile my saying I had a hope, before my immersion, that my sins were pardoned. It was by being taught to misapply the word hope which always refers to things future, and never to things past. If we hope for what we do not see or enjoy, then do we with patience wait for it. Rom. 8. Hope has but one face; faith, like the heathen God, Janus, has two faces, one before and one behind his head; he by looking through the word of God, sees God create the world, and he sees him destroy it. He wishes to know about Paul and Cornelius praying before immersion. They did not pray before faith, they were not commanded to pray for pardon of sins before baptism. He wishes to know if I felt so happy before my immersion or after my immersion? after I was buried with Christ in immersion and arose to walk in a new life, Rom. 6, a passage now perverted by the pædos to the baptism of the Holy Spirit, a more gross and unauthorized perversion of a passage of Scripture was never made. There is not one hint of such a baptism in the whole epistle. It is contrary to the teaching of all christendom for 1300 years. They have two baptisms instead of one. Eph. 4: 5.

JACOB CREATH.

Obituaries.

It is with hearts full of sadness that we give the dates of the birth and death of our dear little babe. Sewell Houser was born October 16, 1883, and died October 7, 1884. He was a namesake of Bro. E. G. Sewell, of the ADVOCATE, and we had hoped that you might see him; for it had often been said by our many friends that he had the right name, for his expression was more like Bro. Sewell's than any one else. It was often said that he had such a bright, firm expression. Those that knew him best would say when they came in and would see his suffering, that it seemed hard to see as good a babe as he was have to suffer so much. But we know our Savior was as innocent as a lamb, and he had to suffer death. His death was from spinal affection. His sufferings were intense for more than a week. But, thank the Lord, his sufferings are over, and his dear little form is resting by the side of his dear little sister, who crossed over the river of death, five years ago, on October 22. We have two in heaven, and one on earth. Justus, named for Bro. Barnes, is five years old, bright and promising, and our prayer to God is that he may live to be a servant of God, and be endowed with wisdom from on high. While we ask for your prayers in our sad bereavement, we remain faithfully yours in Christ. Shady Grove, Tenn. J. H. and L. B. HOUSER.

Sister Diana Elizabeth Maury died at her home near Leiper's Fork, Williamson county, Tennessee, October 17, 1884, after a painful illness of several months, which she bore with great patience and fortitude. Sister Diana was born January 2, 1832, and at the age of twelve years she accepted Christ as her Savior, and ever afterwards, so far as known to man, lived a consistent member of the Christian church. She was pure, earnest, devoted to duty, conscientious and spiritually-minded. It is sad to lose so valuable a member of society and the church, but much sadder to her dear old mother, to whom she had ever been a loving, dutiful child, and to her brothers and sisters, to whom she had always been an affectionate, self-sacrificing sister; but to them, and to all the dear friends and relatives, let me say, remember our loss is her gain. "For if we believe that Jesus died and rose again, even so them also which sleep in Jesus will God bring with him." 1 Thess. 4: 14. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." Rev. 14: 13. Sister Diana was a member of the Leiper's Fork congregation. She was laid away to rest in the old family grave-yard, by loving hearts and tender hands, in the presence of a large concourse of friends. Funeral services by the writer. E. B. CAYCE.

A Prominent Farmer Writes.

ROBERT STATION, Jones county, Ga., June 20th, 1884.—By the recommendation of Rev. C. C. Davis, I used Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir for indigestion, debility and nervous prostration, having been a great sufferer for years and tried all known remedies for these diseases, all of which failed. Five bottles of Lemon Elixir made a new man of me, and restored my strength and energy so that I can attend to my farm with all ease and comfort. Refer any one to me.

WILLIAM B. EMERSON.

A CARD.

From a number of St. Louis' prominent citizens as to the merits of Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir, the following named gentlemen pronounce it the only pleasant, thoroughly reliable and economical remedy they have ever used for the diseases for which it is recommended.

Judge John P. Hughes, 102 N. Fourth St.

Hon. J. I. Martin, office opposite Four Courts.

T. P. Grasty, Law office, 1107 Clark avenue.

Capt. J. A. K. Stotts, of the St. Louis Beef Canning Company.

Dr. Mozley's Lemon Elixir, prepared at his drug store, 114 Whitehall street, Atlanta, Ga.

It cures all biliousness, constipation, indigestion, headache, malaria, kidney disease, fever, chills, impurities of the blood, loss of appetite, debility and nervous prostration by regulating the liver, stomach, bowels, kidney and blood.

Fifty cents for one half pint bottle, one dollar for pint and half bottle. Sold by druggists generally, and for by all wholesale druggists, Memphis, Tenn.

"Threw Away Her Supporter."

DR. PIERCE:—A neighbor of ours was suffering from "female weakness" which the doctors told her could not be cured without a supporter. After considerable persuasion my wife induced her to try your "Favorite Prescription." After using one bottle she threw away the supporter and did a large washing, which she had not done in two years before. James Miller, 4246 Jacob Street, Wheeling, W. Va.

The finest alternative and anti-bilious medicine on earth, is Samaritan Nerve. $1.50.

For sufferers of Chronic Diseases, 36 pp, symptoms, remedies, helps, advice. Send stamp—Dr. Whittier, St. Louis, Mo., (oldest office.) State case your way.

If your lungs are almost wasted by consumption Dr. Pierce's "Golden Medical Discovery" will not cure you, yet as a remedy for severe coughs, and all curable bronchial, throat, and lung affections, it is unsurpassed. Send two stamps for Dr. Pierce's large pamphlet treatise on Consumption and kindred affections. Address World's Dispensary Association, Buffalo, N. Y.

"The doctors said my child must die with spasms, Samaritan Nerve cured him." Wm. E. Tanner, Dayton, Ohio. At druggists.

The method of fastening the strings of pianos by metal fasteners, dispensing entirely with wood, perfected and introduced in Upright Pianos by the Mason & Hamlin Company, is not a new idea. At least, makers, both in Europe and America, have perceived the unquestionable advantages of such an arrangement, and have been striving for many years to bring it into successful use. Simple as the matter now appears, there have been practical difficulties which have not before been overcome. Mason & Hamlin have been experimenting with it for many years before they obtained satisfactory success. Their pianos add this improvement to best modes of construction heretofore known, and they believe are destined to rank with their organs, as the very best instruments of their kind.—Boston Journal.

Testimonial.

CAMPBELL BROS.:—It affords me peculiar pleasure to testify to the great efficacy of your Ethiopian Pile Ointment. I was an intense sufferer from protruding Piles and a few applications of this wonderful remedy, speedily effected a permanent cure.

Truly,

Testimonial No. 2.

This is to certify that I was affected with Piles for twenty years. I tried every remedy offered me. Finally used the Ethiopian Pile Ointment and found it the very best preparation I ever used. It gave me almost instant relief and has effected a permanent cure.

DR. DUNCAN'S

BLACKBERRY ELIXIR!

Nature's Great Remedy for Diseases and Affections of the Bowels.

This splendid and unfailing medicine is compounded from Blackberry and other Medical Roots and Herbs, is therefore perfectly harmless. It is pleasant and safe to the most delicate stomach. It is the most speedy and effectual medicine for the cures of all forms of Diarrhoea, in children or adults, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Dysentery, and the various Summer Complaints of the Bowels, so prevalent among all classes during the Summer season. Only one bottle (Price, 50 cents,) is sufficient to effect a cure.

DR. DUNCAN'S CHILL TONIC.

You need not Shake or Chill if you will use the Tonic. It never fails to stop the most aggravated forms of Chills and Fever if taken as directed, in from three to seven days, when Quinine and all other medicines fail. It will also, if taken regularly build and tone up the weak and debilitated system, and above all leaves no bad effects behind, as do so many other preparations.

DR. DUNCAN'S

Liver and Kidney Medicine.

The great preventive and cure of all malarial diseases and a sure cure of all forms of Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It acts directly upon the liver and all the secretory glands of the stomach and bowels, it cures the disease by removing the cause from the system that produces or brings on the disease, hence it is unsurpassed for the cure of Consumption, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, and also those symptoms indicating the want of proper action of those glands situated in the stomach and bowels. Two or three bottles of DR. DUNCAN'S LIVER AND KIDNEY MEDICINE is positively recommended to relieve and cure any of the above diseases if taken as directed. Price, 75 cents.

DUNCAN'S WORM SYRUP.

One bottle of this Syrup will completely expel all species of Worms and without injury to the child, as it contains no Calomel or other injurious substances. Again, it is pleasant to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, and therefore administered without trouble. Price, 25 cents.

A Dangerous Case.

* * * ROCHESTER, June 1, 1882. "Ten Years ago I was attacked with the most intense and deadly pains in back and Kidneys."

"Extending to the end of my toes and to my brain!

"Which made me delirious!

"From agony.

"It took three men to hold me on my bed at times!

"The Doctors tried in vain to relieve me. But to no purpose.

"Morphine and other opiates

"Had no effect!

"After two months I was given up to die!

"When my wife heard a neighbor tell what Hop Bitters had done for her, she at once got and gave me some. The first does eased my brain and seemed to go hunting through my system for the pain.

"The second dose eased me so much that I slept two hours, something I had not done for two months. Before I had use five bottles, I was well and at work, as hard as any man could, for over three weeks; but I worked too hard for my strength, and taking a hard cold, I was taken with the most acute and painful rheumatism all through my system that was ever known. I called the doctors again, and after several weeks, they left me a cripple on crutches for life, as they said. I met a friend and told him my case, and he said Hop Bitters had cured him and would cure me. I poohed at him, but he was so earnest I was induced to use them again. In less than four weeks I threw away my crutches and went to work lightly and kept on using the bitters for five weeks, until I became as well as any man living, and have been so for six years since. It also cured my wife, who had been so for years; and has kept her and my children, well and hearty with from two to three bottles per year. There is no need to be sick at all if these bitters are used. J. J. BERK, Ex-Supervisor.

IMPROVED METHOD OF STRINGING

MASON & HAMLIN

IMPROVED

Upright Pianos.

Entire iron frames to which the strings are directly attached by metal fastenings, securing

1. Best quality of tone, which is very musical and refined; free from the rattling which is common.

2. Greater durability and freedom from liability to get out of order; adaptations to trying positions and climates.

3. Increased capacity to stand in tune; will not require tuning one-quarter as often as pianos on the old system.

Having tested this new system of construction for two years and proved its advantages, this Company are now increasing their manufacture of pianos, and offer them to the public generally. Every piano of their make will illustrate that supreme excellence which has always characterized their Organs, and won for them highest award at every great world's exhibition for sixteen years.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for
(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen, mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS! Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

FORGOTTEN WORKERS.

They lived, and they were useful; this we know,
And naught beside:
No record of the name is left to show
How soon they died;
They did their work, and then they passed away,
An unknown band;
But they shall live in endless day in the Fair, shining land.
And were they young, or were they growing old?
Or ill, or well?
Or lived in poverty, or had they wealth of gold?
No one can tell:
Only one thing is known of them—they faithful
Were, and true
Disciples of the Lord, and strong through prayer
To save and do.
But what avails the gift of empty fame?
They lived to God;
They loved the sweetness of another Name,
And gladly trod
The rugged ways of earth, that they might be Helper or friend,
And in the joy of this, their ministry,
Be spent and spend.
No glory clusters round their names on earth;
But in God's heaven
Is kept a book of names of greatest worth,
And there is given
A place for all who did the Master please,
Though here unknown,
And there lost names shine forth in the brightest rays
Before the throne.
O, take who will the boon of fading fame!
But give to me
A place among the workers, though my name Forgotten be;
And if within the book of life is found
My lowly place,
Honor and glory unto God redound
For all his grace!

—Selected.

TWELFTH CHAPTER OF ACTS.

At the time spoken of in this chapter, there was a great persecution raging against the church of God at Jerusalem. The former persecutions at Jerusalem were carried on by the Jews. But in this instance, it was by Herod, the Roman ruler of that part of Palestine at that time. And it is probable that even this persecution was instigated by the Jews. At all events, when Herod had put the apostle James to death, and saw how the Jews were pleased over it, he proceeded to take Peter also, and intended after Easter, to bring him out, and put him to death also. The persecutions that were thus carried on are hard to account for, except upon the principle of utterly abandoned wickedness. The Christians of those times were entirely inoffensive, and never, under any circumstances, attempted any resistance to the uncalled for inhuman treatment they received at the hands of their tormentors. They were yielding the most passive obedience to every law of their country that did not conflict with their duty to God, which, with them, was their highest and most sacred duty.

They made no arrangements whatever for defence by physical force, though very numerous at that time. Christians in these days claim that it is right for them to fight, and slay their fellow men in defence of what they call their rights. Immense blood was shed in our own late war on both sides by those claiming to be the children of God over what they called political rights and right of property. But not so in Jerusalem. When James had been slain, and Peter thrown into prison with the fixed intention of putting him to death also, with the prospect that when Peter should be slain that would only be a beginning of the work of slaughter among them; the Christians instead of appealing to the arm of flesh to protect them, put all their trust in God, and betook themselves to prayer. Hence it is said in the fifth verse, "But prayer was made without ceasing of the church unto God for him." Their confidence and trust was in the living God, not in the arm of flesh. They prayed without ceasing. It was not by fits and starts, but constant. They were earnest enough to pray on till they should see the results. The apostles themselves had been trained up to pray. They had heard the instructions of Jesus, that men ought always to pray, and not to faint. They had heard the statement that God will avenge, will hear his own elect who cry day and night unto him. They knew that the Savior prayed often and long; that sometimes he spent whole nights in prayer.

These same apostles that had received their lessons and examples on the subject of prayer, were the teachers in the church at Jerusalem. And from the very birthday of the church of God the apostles, and that too under the direct inspiration and guidance of the Holy Spirit, taught the first Christians to pray. In Acts 2:42, we are told that the disciples that had obeyed the gospel on the day of Pentecost continued in the apostles teaching, naming prayer as one of the things the apostles taught. And in fact they were under solemn charge to teach prayer, as Jesus had charged them to make disciples, and to teach them to observe all the things he had commanded or taught them. He had taught these apostles to pray, and had given them his own example in it, and they must of necessity teach it to others. They did teach. In Jerusalem, and the Christians there observed it. Their procedure on this occasion was simply sublime. That wicked ruler, Herod, had already slain one of their leaders, and had another one in prison with the avowed intention of putting him to death also. But the church is wrestling with God unceasing, day and night for him. And so the night before Herod intended to bring him out to slay him, he was sleeping between two soldiers, bound with two chains.

The custom of the Romans on such occasions as history says, was to require a soldier to lie on each side of the prisoner, and in addition to other fastenings, chains were fastened securely to the prisoner and to each one of the soldiers, so as to make it impossible for the prisoner to make any movement without arousing one or both of the soldiers thus fastened to him. They now think they have him secure, and that they are certain of their prey. And besides these two soldiers lying by him and chained to him within, others were standing about the door without, sleeplessly watching to prevent any chance of friends helping him out. But how weak and powerless is man when he undertakes to work against God. Away on in the darkness and stillness of that night, and when the soldiers lying with Peter were well wrapt in heavy slumbers, an angel of God made appearance in that well guarded prison, and a light suddenly shone around Peter, and the angel smote him on the side, and raised him up, and told him to bind on his sandals, and to cast his garment about him, and to follow. So the angel led him out of the prison, and through the first and second wards, and through the iron gate, which opened to them of its own accord.

While these things were going on Peter was so overwhelmed that he thought surely he saw a vision, was dreaming. But when the angel left him foot-loose in the open street, he was then fully at himself, and said to himself, "Now I know that the Lord hath sent his angel, and hath delivered me from Herod, and from all the expectation of the people of the Jews." He then made his way at once to the house of Mary, the mother of John, whose surname was Mark, where many were gathered together praying. Yes, away in the lateness and darkness of that night these devoted servants of God are found praying together for their teacher. And all of a sudden he appeared at the gate. Thus God hears and answers their prayers while they are yet presenting them. What joy, what thanks and praise must have filled that house that night when Peter appeared to them, and told them how an angel had appeared from heaven and delivered him from the power of the wicked wretch who was bent upon his death.

Here is an example of prayer that should deeply impress every Christian heart on the subject of prayer. We should not conclude that these Christians just began then to pray, nor that they prayed merely because they were in great distress. They were accustomed to pray. They were taught to pray from the time they became Christians, and were only carrying out with perhaps greater earnestness now, what they were accustomed to do regularly. We are told that when the decree was signed that Daniel was to be cast into the den of lions, he went into his chamber and prayed three times a day, as aforesaid. It was no new thing for Daniel to pray. He was accustomed to it regularly. And it was evidently from the fact that he was a devout, praying man, that his prayer on this special occasion was heard, and that the Lord sent an angel with him into that den to close the lions' mouths, and thus saved him from an awful death, and at the same time made known the power of the true God to those heathen people. So in this case in twelfth of Acts. Those Christians were a praying, devotional people, and this opened the way for their prayers to be heard. There is no evidence that Daniel's prayer would have been heard had he not been a Godly man, and one who prayed regularly. Nor is there assurance that the prayers of those Christians in Jerusalem would have been heard in behalf of Peter, upon any other principle. They were a godly, praying people, and the Lord heard them, and delivered their leader and teacher from the hands of those bloody people, and sent him to them all safe and sound while they are yet praying for him.

Brethren, shall we not learn to be more constant and earnest in prayer? The principles of this case are none the less valuable to us because the answer in this case was miraculous. Miracles were common then, but have ceased now. But shall we conclude that God only answers prayer by miracles. Surely not. The Lord will bless now, through the ordinary course of things as surely as he blessed then by miracle. But we need not hope that our prayers will be heard and answered except upon the principle that we are an humble, faithful people, doing his will and praying to him constantly. But when calamities befall, and we feel more deeply the need of the gracious aid of our Heavenly Father, then it is but natural that we should pour forth our souls to him in deeper earnest, and present our pleadings with deeper and more stirring desires. But this sort of prayers will no more be heard than others, unless we are striving by day and by night to do the Lord's will, and pray to him always. Christians should never allow a day to pass over their heads without prayer, earnest devotional prayer to God. Let this example of prayer make deep and lasting impressions upon every heart, and let all strive to be more earnest and devotional in life, and pray more to the merciful father. Not only was Peter delivered from these unreasonable and wicked men, but it gave an opening for the word of the Lord to have still greater influence upon the hearts and lives of the people. So we are told near the close of the chapter that "the word of God grew and multiplied." And the word of God will always grow upon the people where the Lord's own people will live as those of Jerusalem did.

If Christians want their neighbors converted, let them do their duties faithfully, and let others see the purity and beauty of religion of the Savior, and they will soon be anxious to be like them, and to go with them, and thus prepare for a better world.

Almost immediately following this wonderful delivery of Peter, another event occurred that tended in its results to a furtherance of the cause of truth. There had been a trouble between Herod and the people of Tyre and Sidon. But they came to Herod, to seek peace, as their country was nourished by the king's country. And Herod, arrayed in his royal apparel, delivered an oration to them, and the people said it was the voice of God, and not of a man. And immediately an angel of God smote him because he gave not God the glory, and he was eaten of worms, and died thus a miserable death. Even Josephus, though ignoring Christ and his religion, gives very much the same account of the death of this wicked Herod that is here given in the word of God. Thus the wrath of man is made to praise the Lord, although man's heart is bent otherwise. The efforts made by this wicked prince to blot out Christians, and to put an end to the spread of the gospel, were so thwarted and changed around as to result in the increase of the number of disciples, and the extension of the kingdom of God. And so it often turns out now. Unreasonable opposition to the truth very commonly works out its advancement. There are very many meeting-houses to-day in this country, with congregations meeting in them every Lord's day to worship the Lord, where a few years ago we had no house, and very few members. Were we so disposed, we could give the history of a number of these cases.

But brethren, let us not be disturbed about this unreasonable external opposition. It will all be turned into the advancement of truth if only we will be faithful to the interests within. We need have no fears of outside opposition if we will only be faithful to the trust confided to us in the internal work of the church. If we will be faithful to the Lord we will turn the work of the enemies of truth upon their own heads as in the above case at Jerusalem. Let us learn to trust the Lord more, and be more faithful to the trust placed in us, all will be well. The brethren at Jerusalem were faithful in the work entrusted to them, and trusted the Lord for things beyond their control. Neither will we be disappointed if we will faithfully perform what is enjoined upon us, and pray devotedly to God as they did. Let all be deeply in earnest in these matters, and the Lord will bless, and open the way for the success of his truth.

THY WILL BE DONE.

My God and Father, while I stray,
Far from my home, on life's rough way,
Oh, teach me from my heart to say,
Thy will be done!

Though dark my path and sad my lot,
Let me be still and murmur not,
Or breathe the prayer divinely taught,
Thy will be done!

What though in lonely grief I sigh
For friends beloved, no longer nigh,
Submissive still would I reply,
Thy will be done!

Though thou hast called me to resign
What most I prized, it ne'er was mine;
I have but yielded what was thine:
Thy will be done!

Should grief or sickness waste away
My life in premature decay,
My Father, still I'll strive to say,
Thy will be done!

Let but my fainting heart be blest
With thy sweet Spirit for its guest,
My God, to thee I'll leave the rest:
Thy will be done!

Renew my will from day to day;
Blend it with thine; and take away
All that now makes it hard to say,
Thy will be done!

—Charlotte Elliott.

DANGER IN SELF-SUFFICIENCY.

"When Ephraim spoke trembling, he exalted himself in Israel, but when he offended in Baal, he died."

This means when Ephraim spoke with fear of God before his eyes, trembling lest he should fail to properly reverence the divine will, lest he should disobey—leave something undone that was commanded by God, or lest he should transgress—go beyond and do something not commanded by God, God exalted him. This is in accord with God's universal law of dealing with man. The presumptuous sin—the sin that grew out of man's presumption that he could change, amend, or improve Divine institutions, was unpardonable. The sin of ignorance, weakness, impulse, was pardoned gladly by Almighty God when repented of.

The mother of Jesus in the spirit of prophecy said, "He hath showed strength with his arm, he hath scattered the proud in the imagination of their heart, he hath put down the mighty from their seats, and exalted them of low degree." Luke 1: 51. The Savior said, "Whosoever shall exalt himself shall be abased; and he that shall humble himself shall be exalted," Matt. 23: 12; Luke 14: 11. "The fear of the Lord is the instruction of wisdom, and before honor is humility." Prov. 15: 33. "Those that walk in pride, he is able to abase." Dan. 4: 37.

Then the Pharisee in his self-satisfied righteousness is rejected, and the poor, humble publican is accepted and approved. "God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble. Submit yourselves therefore to God." Jas. 4: 6. "God resisteth the proud and giveth grace to the humble. Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due season." 1 Peter 5: 5. It is true, that in the Scriptures God's servants are condemned ninety-nine times for doing something God has not commanded, for changing or modifying or improving his institutions and appointments, for substituting man's own inventions in lieu of Divine appointments, for exercising and following his own wisdom instead of submitting to the service of God in his appointments, where he is condemned once, for merely failing to do the will of God. Indeed the disposition to do something else than what God says do, or to work in a way not ordained of God, or to add human inventions to God's appointments, or to substitute human organizations for Divine institutions, is recognized as the prolific cause of man's failure to do the will of God. Hence the charge, "My people have committed two evils; they have rejected me, the fountain of living waters; they have made for themselves cisterns, broken, cisterns, that can hold no waters." Jeremiah 2: 13. These two go together, the disposition to build their own cisterns leads to the rejection of God, the fountain of living waters. To choose to do something not commanded by God, or to do it in a way different from that commanded by him is to reject him the fountain of living waters. To choose our own acts of service to God, or to perform the acts ordained by God in a way of our own choosing, rather than in the way approved by God, is to form for ourselves cisterns.

The doing of the one leads to the refusal to do the other. The difference between a fountain and a cistern will be noted. A fountain is a source whence flows an inexhaustible, ever replenishing supply of living water. God is this fountain. We accept and draw from it a supply of the water, of which, "if we drink, we shall never thirst," by coming to him and walking in him as he has commanded, doing his commandments in his way. A cistern is a vessel that contains water, and can give out only what is put in it. This is true of all man's institutions and ways. Man frames or devises them, the virtue and power that is in them came in and through man, their maker and founder. These cannot exceed the virtue and power that man himself possesses. These cisterns are broken cisterns, that can hold no water. That is, man can frame no institution, nor devise a way of operating God's institutions through which he can secure or retain the water of life. This passage plainly teaches this truth.

Now we submit that the great besetting sin of man has been, and is, a disposition to exalt his own wisdom and to walk by it, in preference to humbly denying self and walking in "the wisdom that cometh down from above," and that there is more or less of pride, of presumption, of self-sufficiency, of self-confidence in all the changes that are made in the appointments of God, in all additions made to the order of Divine service, of Divine worship, to the provisions God has made for the spread of his gospel and the extension of his kingdom on earth. It is safe to walk in the old paths, to follow humbly the ways of God, and to distrust and eschew as leading away from the fountains of living waters, all suggestions of changes, modifications of or additions to the simple appointments of God.

When Ephraim trembled at God's word, he exalted himself. But when he offended in Baal, he destroyed himself. His offence was, he committed lewdness with the daughters of Moab. They invited them to attend the sacrifices and the people did eat, and bowed down to their God. "And Israel joined unto Baal-Peor, and the anger of the Lord was kindled against Israel." Num. 25: 23. Now fleshly whoredom and its treatment under Moses, typified spiritual whoredom under Christ. They began with this offence in worshipping the false God out of friendship to those who worshipped Baal, and the prophet adds, "And now they sin more and more, and have made them molten images of their silver, and idols according to their own understanding, all of it the work of craftsmen." Showing a continued growth in sin when the wrong way is once entered upon, and the danger of working according to our understanding. Let us be warned of the danger.

"My boy," said a father to his son, "treat every one with politeness; even those who are rude to you. For remember that you show courtesies to others not because they are gentlemen, but because you are one."

A WILD INDIAN SPEECH.

The following is a speech delivered before a delegation from Washington, D. C., by Bos-co-pa, the Chief of the Klamath Indians:

"I have something in my heart which wants to come out. I see that your ears are large; they can hear my words. I want you to open your ears, and let these things go into your heart. They may make you ashamed of your people. I am ashamed of myself, and my people. My eyes are on the ground; I cannot look you in the face. I have lived here since I was a young man, was born on the ground. My people were wild Indians. We did not know much. Our fathers had not told us much, because they did not know. We had no swear words, mad water, (whisky,) or shame women, before the treaty of 1864. The white chiefs told us we could be like them. They promised us a good man for a father, and good men to show us how to do and work. They promised two mills—one to make houses, and the other to make bread. They promised us a blacksmith and wagon shop; they promised us a church and a school-house, and good men to teach us in all these things. We believed them; we signed the treaty paper. They went away. We had a great council after they left us. Some of our people wanted to burn their old houses. Some of them cut trees to have them ready when the mill came, but those trees have rotted. I have rode all over the land hunting for the church and the school-house, and the mills and the blacksmith and wagon shops, and have not seen them. I can see houses for people and horses, but white people and their horses live in them, (pointing to the Agency buildings.) The Indian sleeps on the ground, as he always has. We want to be like white men. We are not slaves. We want an agent who has a straight tongue; we do not want a man who gambles, or drinks mad water, or makes fun of the Great Spirit. We want a man who has a wife of his own; we do not want any more shame children. We want all the men who come to live here to bring their wives. We want the soldiers moved away from the Fort; we do not need them there; they make bad blood. We want a mill, and a school-house, and a church house. I speak for this people; (pointing to the Indians;) they hear what I say. If my tongue speaks not their hearts, they will tell you. When you take the soldiers away, and give us good white men; when you bring us the mills, wagons, harness, plows, log-chains, axes, wedges, mauls, saws, nails, and all promised us in the treaty, and lay them down before us, and say, 'These things are for you, take them and go to work,'—when you do all this, and we do not take hold of them, then you may say an Indian won't learn to work. Until you have done your part of the bargain, you should not say an Indian can't be a white man. We know we can't always be Indians, but must be white men. If we are not like white men now, who is to blame? If you had been born wild, and did not know how to make tools, mills and houses, and somebody had promised you all these things for your country, and then did not give them to you; and compelled you to stay on a small land where there was no game, would you do any better than I have done? No, my friends, the fault is not with the Indian if he does not like the white man. It is with the white man, who does everything with his tongue, and nothing with his hands. He has a religion that is like a spotted horse. We want a religion that is alike all the time. The spotted religion of some white men is not as good as our own. We do not want a religion that will get mad at the Great Spirit and swear at him. We do not want the kind of religion that steals men's wives, drinks mad water, and gambles.

"You told me to show my heart to you. I have told you a few things which you may not like. I have not talked with a small heart or a forked tongue. Bos-co-pa has spoken for his people."

Yes, and Bos-co-pa told the truth, and Bos-co-pa makes no unreasonable demand. In view of the fact that the great body of disciples (Christian church) had not a single mission in the Indian Territory, I began the work, four years ago, which would lead to planting a mission and an industrial school, and I must say I am ashamed that we have not done more; but we cannot look back, and in the name of the Lord Jesus we must succeed.

A short time ago, in one of their councils, after I had talked to them of their needs, and how to meet them, (by request,) a short time, one of the members of the council arose and said, "I want to pray for you all before we part." The old man kneeled down and prayed most earnestly for the prosperity of his people, then arose and sang the first stanza of "Jesus, My All to Heaven is Gone," in his own tongue:

"An Chisus ut uba yakni, Taisala ka la hatok;
Anukcheto li' hokuta,
Yummak o a biekushke."

As the old man sang, his deep feeling impressed me of the fact that his all had gone to heaven. Before he dismissed his people, he said: "I have left about seventy-two years of hard life behind me," and with clasped hands, and looking upward, said: "but before me is a happy eternity." Then turning to his people once more, he said: "My brethren, I see a better day for you; may God help you to improve it," and dismissed them.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: May be a report of my work among the Indians would interest some of your readers. I have held four meetings, baptized thirty-eight, circulated three hundred and fifty books and pamphlets, besides a flood of papers. Spent out of my own pocket about one hundred dollars a year, the past four years, and am out of debt. Secured the privilege of locating mission and school, and being last to get in there it required work, for some of our religious neighbors did not want us to come. In all I have received for the Indian Mission, $246.15. Paid to the following brethren the following amounts for holding meetings among the Indians: Bro. M. Askew, $30.00; Bro. C. Moore, $18.00; Bro. R. B. Smith, $25.00; Bro. W. L. Thurman, $5.00; leaving on hand a total of $168.15. The result of Bro. M. Askew's meeting, fourteen additions and church organized; Bro. Moore's, six additions; Bro. Smith's, thirteen additions; Bro. Thurman preached but a few times among the miners at McAlister, no additions.

NOTES FROM OUR CORRESPONDENTS.

J. Harding, Dallas, Texas, October 23, writes: "Thirty-six have been added to date here. Meeting still goes on. Will continue here for several days. Will get some names here."

F. B. Srygley, Lebanon, Tenn., October 24, writes: "I preached six discourses, last week, in a Methodist house, five miles from La Guardo, and baptized one. This week I preached five times in a Presbyterian church, four miles from Berea, and baptized one. One week seems like a slow go."

Lee Jackson, Thyatira, Miss., October 21, writes: "Beginning Friday before the second Lord's day in October, preached eight discourses at a point a few miles east of Grenada. Only three additions—two ladies and one man. This is a field very little cultivated by our brethren. Bro. Sharp held a very successful meeting at Walthall, in Webster county, and is to hold a meeting, sixteen miles east of where we preached, in November."

I. S. Dupuy, Thyatira, October 24, writes: "We commenced a meeting in Yalobusha County eight miles from Water Valley, the 14th inst. Preached the 14th, 17th, 18th, and 19th at 11 o'clock and at night. The free Methodists not only gave us the use of their house, but furnished lights. We had an excellent hearing. The people searched the Scriptures to see whether these things be true; they are anxious to know the truth."

T. C. Little, Fayetteville, Tenn., October 27, writes: "Bro. M. N. Moore and myself preached at Flat Creek, Bedford county, for six days and nights, to small audiences after Sunday. A few faithful brethren and sisters took an interest in the meeting, and did their part. Well, this was Bro. Moore's first trial in a protracted meeting. 'He beat himself.' Nine baptisms. Will always remember the kindness of these brethren and sisters to me and my family; they did their whole duty."

W. P. Hamilton, Evening Shade, Ark., writes: "Brethren Flippin and Jenkins, of Marion county, Ark., have just closed a meeting of a week with us. Had some good preaching. Eighteen added to the church—fifteen by confession and baptism, three restored—and a great many more almost persuaded to be Christians. The church greatly built up. May the good work go on in our prayer."

J. W. Grant, Idlewild, Tenn., October 25, writes: "The Forest Hill congregation in this (Montgomery) county, began a meeting on the third Lord's day in October, and closed the Thursday night following, with two baptized into Christ as the visible result. The meetings were conducted by brethren J. D. Floyd and W. B. Wright, the latter being our pastor. Bro. Floyd did most of the preaching, and he certainly is a 'workman that needeth not to be ashamed.' He endeared himself very much to our people."

A poor sister at Mt. Willing, Ala., October 22, writes: "We, the disciples in and around Mt. Willing, are truly anxious to establish a church at this place. We have made several efforts, but have failed, (cannot raise the money.) We would be glad to meet every Lord's day, but cannot on account of the distance to (Cross Roads) our nearest place of worship. Thinking perhaps you could and would aid us, I determined to rely on your good nature for this intrusion. If you can help us it will be thankfully received. Send to George Salley and it will be faithfully appropriated."

T. E. Tatum, Temperance Hall, DeKalb Co., Tenn., October 25, writes: "Since my last report I delivered three discourses at Bethel, Wilson County, Tenn., no additions. We have a number of zealous sisters and brethren at Bethel, to whom I became very much attached. From there I went to Iconium, Cannon County, and joined Bro. G. W. Gilbert in a meeting which resulted in six additions. Iconium is in quite a lukewarm condition. We tried to warm her but failed. Thence, I went to Grange Hall, Warren County, met Bro. Jackson, the blind preacher. We delivered four sermons, no additions. Grange Hall congregation is alive, and, we think, doing well considering the opposition with which she has to contend. Bro. Jackson preaches for this congregation monthly. 'The blind preacher' has our sympathy and love. He deserves assistance and encouragement. Brethren, help him."

A. B. Herring, Griffin, Ga., October 24, writes: "After attending some interesting meetings in the Griffin district during the month of August, I left September 4th for the Washington district to assist Bro. T. M. Harris in his work. I met Bro. Harris, the evangelist and their only preacher for the eleven churches known as the Washington district, at Davisboro. Our first work was at this place. Time forbids a general description of these churches, though I must say to their honor, I have never met a more generous and hospitable people. During the month Bro. Harris was with me but little on account of sickness in his family. He preached nine times and had seven additions. I preached twenty-eight times and had eighteen to come forward. Hence the visible result of our months work was twenty-five added to the church of Christ. The brethren seemed to be much encouraged and strengthened for the great work that is before them. We held but four meetings, so it was not my pleasure to visit all the churches under Bro. Harris' charge. These organizations were organized, and have been kept alive by Bro. Harris, who has been in their midst fighting bravely and fearlessly for the 'truth' for more than thirty years. They have been trying for some time to get more preaching, and among them the Macedonian cry is still heard. A young brother who wishes to devote his time to preaching will find it to his interest to address Elder Thos. M. Harris, Davisboro, Ga. I was so well pleased with the district that I accepted a proposition from four churches for the ensuing year, and will leave Griffin to morrow to enter my new field of labor."

The more the diamond is cut the brighter it sparkles, and in what seems hard dealing God has no end in view but to perfect his people's graces.—Dr. Guthrie.

PROPHESYING SMOOTH THINGS.

There is a temptation which besets both pulpit and pen and tongue to "prophecy smooth things" and shirk unpopular truths. Paul did not make himself popular on that corn ship by predicting storm and opposing a venture before a treacherous South wind. Yet before the gale was over he was the most trusted and respected man on board. There is a theology of South wind and smooth sea that is becoming very current, and it "takes" prodigiously in these days. It suits human nature exceedingly. It sets a low estimate on the exceeding sinfulness of sin and its desert of retribution. It treats very gingerly the primitive justice of God. It hoists no storm-signal in the direction whither so many souls are leading; it practically ignores hell. Even if the voyage here be with some "loss of lading," it holds out the hope of a possible second probation in the unseen world.

However seductive or popular this un-Pauline theology may be, I do not discover it on God's charts, or in his weather tables. If I deceive a soul with any such delusions, may not God hold me to a fearful account? Love demands fidelity. However smooth the sea, and however fair the wind before any and every soul yet out of Christ, let such be lovingly warned that the voyage will be with terrible loss, both to lading and to life. In the penitent acceptance of Jesus Christ is the only absolute, complete, perfect and everlasting salvation. Run no risks when your soul is at stake.—T. L. Cuyler, in Pulpit Treasury.

THE WAY OF LIFE.

To one accustomed to view things from a religious standpoint, confusion and division among the professed followers of Jesus, is more widespread than is generally supposed. The causes are many. A great number of people are willing to be governed by what their preachers say, and do not read and think for themselves, not being impressed with the fact that if they do not serve God in this life, in his own appointed way, that they can never be blessed in heaven.

Again, one preacher says, this is the way; and another, here is the way; and over yonder another says, neither of you are right, but my way is right. And a great many good people have been, and are yet, living outside of any connection with Jesus Christ, because they are bewildered on account of the different opinions of men, and they stand confounded, and don't know what to do. How long will it be until the prayer of Jesus, that they may all be one that the world might believe that God had sent him, will be answered?

Let us turn now to the word of God that we may dispel this mist of confusion and find something upon which the soul of man may rest with certainty.

Jesus says, "Whosoever heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them, shall be likened unto a wise man. * * * And every one that heareth these sayings of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man." Matt. 7: 24, 26. The wise he compares to one who built his house upon a rock; and the foolish, to one who built upon sand. Now, we must hear him, for Moses prophesied of him, and Peter quotes the prophecy, and says, "Every soul that will not hear this prophet, shall be destroyed from among the people." Acts 3: 23. Then Jesus says, "He that believeth not on the Son of God shall not see life; but the wrath of God abideth on him." John 3: 36. Since "faith comes by hearing," we must hear, that we may believe on him and escape the wrath of God. "Except you repent, you shall all likewise perish." Let us apply the above rule here. If we hear his sayings, and don't do them, we will be like foolish men; but we want to be like wise men, and have our hopes built upon a solid foundation. So we must repent. Paul says, "A godly sorrow worketh repentance." Sorrow is not of itself repentance, but leads to the forsaking of sin, and the practice of righteousness, which is repentance. "If you confess me not before men, neither will I confess you before my Father who is in heaven." Well, we must confess him—that is, acknowledge our faith in him—in order to be accounted as wise men before him, and we must continue to confess (acknowledge) him in our every-day walk, by obedience to all of his commands. He says again, "Except you are born of the water and of the Spirit, you cannot enter into the kingdom of heaven." John 3. And, "He that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved." Mark 16. Now, if we want to enter into the kingdom of heaven, and be saved, we must do the things we hear of him. So we must be baptized. When we have gone through this process, we are said by Paul, to be "in Christ." Rom. 6: 3; Gal. 3: 27. "Complete in him." Col. 2: 10.

Dear unconverted friends, do you not think that if you will hear Jesus, believe on him with all your heart, heartily forsake sin and practice righteousness, acknowledge him as your only Savior, be buried with him by baptism, and continue a life of trusting faith in him, doing all his sayings, that you would be safe for time and eternity? Just so certain as the Bible is a divine book, you would be safe. Be sure that you do the part that God has appointed for you to do, and he will certainly fulfill his part. May God help you to move forward in obedience to him.

THE CHILD'S PRAYER.

"Mother, every night when I go to bed I say, 'Now I lay me,' and do you know, mamma, though saying it so often, I never thought what it meant till Fanny Gray died? I asked nurse if Fanny died before she waked; and she said, 'Yes.' She went to bed well, and had a spasm in the night, and died before she knew anything at all. Now, mother," continued Rena, "I want you to tell me about 'Now I lay me,' so that when I say it I may think what it means."

"Well, Rena," said her mother, "I shall be glad to tell you. What does it mean when you say, 'Now I lay me down to sleep?'"

"O that means, mother, that I am just going to lie down in my bed, to go to sleep until morning."

"Well, then as you lie down to sleep, what prayer do you offer to God?"

"I pray thee, Lord, my soul to keep." I want the Lord to take care of me while I am asleep, and take care of me all over, mother. But, mother, if I should die before I wake, would the Lord be taking care of me then? Now, it seems to me when Fanny died that God did not take care of her that night, and so she died."

"O no, Rena! God did take care of her. The little verse says, 'If I should die before I wake, I pray thee, Lord, my soul to take;' so you see God took little Fanny's soul to himself, and when she awoke she was in the arms of the blessed Jesus. Now, Rena, when you say, 'Now I lay me,' I want you to think in this way: Now I am going to bed to sleep, and I want the Lord to take care of me. If I am not a good child and do not pray to God, ought I to ask him or expect him to take care of me? Let me lie down feeling I am in the Lord's care; and if I should die before I wake, that I am still the Lord's child; and I pray that he may take my soul to dwell with him."

"O mother! I will try and remember. Why, I used to say it slow, and clasp my hands, and shut my eyes, and yet I did not think about it. Thank you, mother, dear. Please hear me when I go to say my prayers."

Ah, little children, are not there not a great many who, like Rena, say their prayers without thinking what they mean—mere words, with no meaning in them? God cannot listen to such prayers. They are not for him "unto whom all hearts are open, all desires known, and from whom no secrets are hid."

Think of what I have written about little Rena when you say "Now I lay me" to-night; and pray that God will watch over you, waking and sleeping.—Early Dew.

Upon me lies a burden which I cannot shift upon any other human creature—the burden of duties unfilled; words unspoken, or spoken violently and untimely; of holy relationships neglected; of days wasted forever; of evil thoughts once cherished, which are ever appearing as fresh as when they were first admitted into the heart; of talents cast away; of affections in myself, or in others, trifled with; of light within turned to darkness. So speaks the conscience, so speaks, or has spoken, the conscience of each man and woman.—Maurice.

A LETTER TO THE LOVERS OF SECTARIAN DIVISION.

"Every kingdom divided against itself is brought to desolation, and every house divided against itself cannot stand." Matt. 12: 25.

The church or kingdom that Christ our Savior established is a temple in which unity is the essential element of its strength. Hence the many prayers, exhortations and examples, Christ and his apostles taught and advocated the doctrine of the unity of the church. We find that Christ, while on earth, prayed fervently for unity. Therefore, if unity be an essential element in the church, to be divided is certainly very wicked. We are commanded by the word of God to speak the same thing. Do the modern sectarian denominations speak the same thing? We answer, No. Yet they boast of their spiritual unity in Christ, and have no visible unity with each other. The primitive apostolic church eighteen hundred years ago had both spiritual unity in Christ, and visible unity with each other. God's word plainly teaches that the church or his kingdom shall be one, (not many,) one body, (not many sectarian bodies.) Yet we have heard men in their prayers thank God for a plurality of churches. For many years after the church was organized there was no divisions into sectarian parties, such as Cumberland Presbyterians, Baptists, Methodists North, Methodists South, Mormons, Tunkers, etc. They maintained the unity of the spirit in the bond of peace. No divisions occurred among the primitive Christians. They all advocated the same doctrine concerning the scheme of redemption, or plan of salvation. They all continued together with one accord in prayer and supplication. Acts 1: 4. And they were all of one accord in one place. Acts 11: 1. And they continued with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread from house to house, did eat their meat with gladness and singleness of heart. Acts 11: 46. Such was the union and prosperity of the church of God in primitive times. They were of one heart and one soul. Acts 4: 32.

Do the sectarian denominations of the nineteenth century come together with one accord, one heart, one soul, and one fellowship, in the apostles' doctrine. We answer, no. Yet they boast of their spiritual unity in Christ. Primitive Christians were all one. Our Savior prayed that it might be so on earth, that the world might believe. John xvii: 21. Therefore we must conclude that sectarian division is wicked and contrary to the doctrine of Christ and his apostles. For says Paul in his Letter to the Romans: "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them which cause divisions and offences contrary to the doctrine which ye have learned; and avoid them. For they that are such serve not our Lord Jesus Christ, but their own belly; and by good words and fair speeches deceive the hearts of the simple." Romans 16: 17-18. What a volume might be written upon these two verses.

Does not the above quotations condemn the lovers of creeds, disciplines, and confessions of faith that cause sectarian divisions? Division is here declared to be contrary to the doctrine of Christ. And the man that strives to create division should be avoided and regarded as a wicked heretic. Primitive Christians were admonished to be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgement, 1 Cor. 1: 10. But what shall we call all the different separate organizations that claim to be branches of the church, in which each party has its own creed or confession of faith formulated by men? The religious denominations are so divided, and the separation so entire and complete, that they have no Christian fellowship with each other at the Lord's table. Yet they claim to be baptized into the one body by the one Spirit. They claim to be fit for the society of heaven and will not commune together at the Lord's table. They claim to be orthodox. But in their zeal to make proselytes they fight and devour each other, and in order to increase in numbers, during a big meeting, they will take in each other's converts.

Brethren, let us labor faithfully for such a union as Christ prayed for so that we might all come into the unity of the faith and the bond of peace, holding to Christ the Head, of whom the whole family of God in heaven and on earth are named.

Concentrated Effort.

Save a hundred souls at a time if you can. But to do this work is of no small magnitude, and will require great courage, grace, faith, and heavenly wisdom. We would, therefore, urge the vital importance of concentrated labor upon the few, rather than a partial effort upon the many. Better to bring one soul to Christ than to lead a score half-way to the cross, and there leave them. Christian labor is very much like our secular work in its laws and methods. Should a man go into the forest to fell trees, you would not expect him to strike his axe a few times into one trunk, and then into another, until he had gone through the whole wood; but to take his stand by one tree, and deal one sturdy blow after another, until he had reached the centre, and brought the tree with a crash to the ground. Or, if the hunter should chase one deer for a while, and then, after wounding it, leave it, to go in pursuit of another, which he would follow only till he saw the third, and continue this course through the day, he would certainly return to his home without any game. The result will be much the same with the spiritual archer, if he does not follow hard after the soul which he has undertaken to bring as a trophy to Christ.

Occasionally a single word, spoken at the proper time, and in the right manner, may result in the conversion of a soul. A single seed, dropped into a soil ready to receive it, may, under the gently dews of grace and the nourishing influences of the Spirit, spring up and advance by regular stages to maturity. But this is not the rule. It is the exception. The seed must be well planted, hedged about, watered, cultivated, and carefully looked after until the harvest is ready to be gathered.—Rev. J. L. Harris, in Christian at Work.

True Sympathy the Result of Suffering.

He who has passed through trial can feel most tenderly for those who are similarly afflicted. This is so true that the inspired writer has said even of Jesus, "In that he himself hath suffered, being tempted, he is able to succor them that are tempted;" and, indeed, in one aspect of it, the very necessity for the incarnation is found in the principle which I have just enunciated. To have a sympathizing God we must have a suffering Savior, and there is no true fellow-feeling with another save in the heart of him who has been afflicted like him. Nay, more, the having suffered like another impels us to go and sympathize with him. Those of us who have lost little children, feel a prompting within us to speak a word of comfort to every parent who is passing through a similar experience.

Indeed, it was in connection with an affliction of that sort that my attention was first drawn, some twelve years ago, to the text of this discourse. I had just a few weeks before buried a beloved daughter, the light of the household, and the darling of all in it, and had gone to attend a meeting of Synod where an honored minister, who had been through the same trial oftener than once before, came up to me and took me by the hand, and said to me, with reference to my sorrow: "By these things men live." That was all, but each successive year since then has given a new verification of his words, for O, how often in the interval have I been enabled to comfort others with the comfort with which I have been comforted of God, and the efficacy of the consolation lay largely in the fact that it was offered by one who had proved its value for himself.

We cannot do good to others save at a cost to ourselves, and our own afflictions are the price we pay for our ability to sympathize. He who would be a helper must first be a sufferer. He who would be a savior must somewhere and somehow have been upon a cross; and we cannot have the highest happiness of life in succoring others without tasting the cup which Jesus drank, and submitting to the baptism wherewith he was baptized. Every real Barnabas must pass to his vocation through seasons of personal sorrow—and so, again, we see that it is true that "by these things men live." The most comforting of David's Psalms were pressed out of him by suffering; and if Paul had not had his thorn in the flesh, we had missed much of that tenderness which quivers in so many of his letters.

Sourness in the Pulpit.

There is little excuse for sourness in the pulpit, and less for scolding. No scolding preacher, every yet succeeded, a fact which we attribute to the good sense of the people. As well try to reverse the course of the stream pouring over Niagara as to try to scold men into better life. One bright, sunny word of comfort, spoken with mellow voice, from a warm heart, is worth all the eloquence of the ages, if coupled with a fretful, complaining spirit.

If children only knew the loving care and unwearied labor bestowed upon them in early life by their mothers, we think surely they would never allow a cross or unkind word to escape their lips, nor would they fail to yield a ready obedience to their mother's wishes. Be to your mother what she is to you—a comfort, a joy, and blessing. Say to yourself, "I will do what my mother desires me to do; I will be what she desires me to be."

It is the love of money, not money, that the Bible condemns, and the man who will be rich, not the man who is rich.—Rev. Dr. F. L. Patton.

"SOUR GRAPES."

The following is from the GOSPEL ADVOCATE:

The Old-Path Guide, with all the publications of the company, including Sunday-school papers and Popular Hymns, was sold in Louisville, September 30. A note from Louisville says, "they have gone into the hands of the Cincinnati monopolists," meaning, we suppose the Standard Company. It will be run in Louisville we suppose, till such time as the owners think the subscribers can be safely transferred to the Standard list. This is well, for some time the Guide has pointed toward liberalism instead of toward the Bible. Now all will understand it is only a feeder, a teacher training its readers to take the advanced position the Standard now occupies.

We take great pleasure in assuring the ADVOCATE that the Guide is the identical paper it was a few weeks ago, when the editor of the ADVOCATE was desirous of obtaining an interest in it, with the expressed intention of uniting it with the ADVOCATE; and, moreover, that the editor of the Guide is the same one whom he insisted on retaining as an editor. If the Guide, editor, "liberalism and all," was good enough to unite with the GOSPEL ADVOCATE, why should it be so terrible by itself?

But we are most happy to inform the ADVOCATE that the purchasers of the Guide have assured it the very permanency which the proposed purchase of the editor of the ADVOCATE would have denied it. It is to be maintained intact, with abundant capital to improve its pages and increase its circulation; and, we hope, never, never, never, to be swallowed up by the GOSPEL ADVOCATE, the Christian Evangelist, or even by the ominous Christian Standard, which, by the way, is the only paper that has evinced no appetite for it, but, on the contrary, its publishers have declared that they would not give one cent for it to consolidate with that paper.

Permit us to say, in fine, that the Guide, will, God willing, be improved, enlarged, and made continually more efficient, until it is the peer of any paper in the Reformation. In spite of many misfortunes it has retained its vitality, and now has a promise of usefulness that has been denied it until now. And those who, having failed to purchase it at great sacrifice, are now filled with forebodings of its landing in some other man's hands, may rest easy in the assurance that it has a better hope of final success than they.—Old-Path Guide.

If it is meant by the foregoing, and we can interpret in no other way, that we sought to purchase the Old Path Guide at a great sacrifice, it is not true. We never put any price on the Guide, made no bid for it. We never saw or heard but one estimate of the value of the Guide publications and office. We have it now, made by, and in the handwrite of Chas. Francis, Trustee. While near Winchester, Ky., about the 25th or August, the following note was forwarded to us:

[We have the letter, but not in the office. It was simply a statement that the Old Path Guide publications had been placed in the hands of

Chas. Francis, as trustee, for sale by September 30, and asking a bid for them, and stating that they had one bid, that was open only until September 1. It was dated about August 20.]

From the fact that one bid was in, and to be open only a few days after it was open to others, we did not believe fair, open, bidding was intended. I simply wrote to the Trustee that I would be at his office on the 1st of September. When I reached there he was gone to Cincinnati. This confirmed my convictions. I left word that if the owners of the Guide had determined to let it go to the Standard, or did not intend an open and fair sale, it was useless to trouble me or others about it. If no sale was perfected, or likely to be perfected, and an open and fair sale was intended, if he would give me a correct statement of the business and condition of the affairs, we would consider the matter.

In a few days I received a note from the Trustee, stating no sale had been effected or likely to be effected soon, but proposing to come to Nashville and see us in a few days, which he did, bringing balance sheets of the different publications, showing profit and loss of each. He assured me it was open, but he was doubtful of Bro. Allen's co-operation in a combination with us. I made no estimate, no bid, but proposed to him that he should form a company and purchase the publications, (he said this was what the creditors desired him to do,) and we would put the ADVOCATE in at a fair valuation, combining the two papers. He seemed favorably impressed with the proposition. He gave us what he estimated a fair value of the different publications. We did not express an opinion as to whether his estimates were high or low. I did not know. I wrote him in a few days, stating that on inquiry among friends, I found I could raise sufficient means, that he might need toward purchasing the publications and combining the papers. He wrote that he had written to Bro. Allen, and Allen had said, "Not having received a proposition from Bro. Lipscomb, or statement as to what his purposes and policy would be as to the Guide, I am wholly unprepared to say anything as to what I would or could do in the premises. Whether or not my good will and influence to the Guide, should it be bought by Lipscomb, Sewell & Co., would depend on circumstances of which I am wholly ignorant." Francis added, "I advised Bro. Allen that you said he and you could come to an understanding in a little while at a meeting."

I then wrote Allen that my proposition was for Francis to form a company that would buy both papers—combine them—make one good strong paper, that would destroy the antagonisms and hurtful competition growing out of the existence of the two, and that the editorial management should be united in one; that there was but one point about which there would be a difference, that was "the societies," and I proposed on this perfect freedom to each to speak his convictions, and promising that I would try to speak so as not to be personally offensive to him, and that any one he desired would be accepted as a stockholder in the company. To this he replied:

MILTON, KY., September 24, 1884.

Dear Bro. Lipscomb: Yours of the 22nd to hand. I see but one real difficulty in the way of the combination of which you speak. As you say, we seem to agree in principle, in the main, but we differ as to the application of the principle, in regard to our missionary enterprises. While I expect in the future, as I have in the past, to criticize every feature of these societies which I believe to be wrong, either inexpedient or contrary to the teaching of the New Testament, I regard them, when properly conducted, as permitted by the principle of co-operation enjoined in the New Testament. For us, as the principle editors, to disagree in so important a matter, and utter a conflicting voice, would neutralize the paper's influence, and be embarrassing to all concerned. I feel it my duty to the God whom I try to serve, to support our colleges, Bible colleges, Orphan schools, missionary enterprises, and every other good work among us, to the extent that I believe them to be in harmony with New Testament Christianity. To this you will agree; but then we differ as to the extent that these things are in harmony with the New Testament. And how can two work together unless they are agreed? I could hardly expect you to join me in the support of these things, or cease to oppose them, without which our work would lack a unity essential to power and success. You see, then, the difficulty in the way, as it appears to me.

Fraternally and Truly,

F. G. ALLEN.

Now I never put any estimation on the Guide or made a bid for it. I only said I could raise the means to enable Francis to purchase them at a "fair valuation." Then Bro. Allen's statement that we failed to purchase it at a great sacrifice, etc., is without one word of foundation, and Bro. Allen had the evidence of it in his possession when he wrote the article. It looks as if all the negotiation with us was to satisfy the creditors, and yet force them to take the bid of the Standard company.

Bro. Allen is very much mistaken when he says the Guide is the same paper now that it was before the sale to the manager of the Standard. Every particle of influence it now obtains on whatever grounds, is controlled by the Standard Company or by Russell Errett. Bro. Allen's health is precarious; if it were not, he dare not conduct it in a manner offensive to the man who furnishes the capital to run it. He labors to build up the paper; when he dies, Russell Errett chooses his editorial successor. What kind of a teacher would he choose? He chose a Roman Catholic teacher for his own children, and we presume obligated himself that they should be trained in the faith of the Romish church.

Our information is, that before a Priest will marry a member of the Romish church, to one not a member of that church, the latter must enter obligation to let the children of the marriage be trained in the Romish faith. If a dispensation was granted permitting a marriage in this case, without this obligation, it must have been because the Romish authorities saw some wonderful advantage to the Romish church in having a devoted member, the wife of the man and the mother of the children, who own and control the chief publications among the disciples of Christ.

In a few years, by law of descent, the Standard, the Old-Path Guide, the Popular Hymns, all the Sunday-school and other publications of both the Standard and Guide companies will be chiefly the property of these children trained in the Romish faith. Oh no; F. G. Allen laboring with us, to build up a paper to maintain the truth of the Christian religion, or as he has been, is wholly a different man from F. G. Allen dependent upon Russell Errett for his position and for money to run his paper, and building up and giving influence and value to publications that must soon be the property of children trained by a Romish mother, if not trained in all things in the Romish faith.

One object we had in proposing the combination was to save Bro. Allen and his influence from being thus used. But he repelled our efforts, preferring these associations, to work with us, because he differed with us only as to the application of a principle, when, too, he is compelled to own we apply the principle more strictly than he does, hence are on the safer side. Because we refuse to labor for societies that he pronounced "violative of the law of God." We believed that a combination of the two papers would have destroyed an unchristian competition that stirs bad feeling among brethren, weakens and injures both papers, and would have enabled us to build up one good, strong paper, devoted to the truth of God, that would have commanded the support of the disciples throughout the southern country. We believe there is a loose and infidel tendency in the churches that could have been averted and counteracted by a combination of the two, and that Bro. Allen by his course, without intending it, has thrown himself into the arms of that influence, and has weakened our ability to oppose it. Our conscience is clear, we did what we could. Bro. Allen repelled our advances and overtures, and selected to place his labors and influence where it is, and forced the creditors of the Guide to sell to Errett, by refusing his good will and co-operation in any other direction. He says it was his selection for Errett to purchase it.

Since writing the above, we see that Bro. Allen heads an article "Bro. Lipscomb's Charges and Insinuations." It will be remembered we said what we did in reply to Bro. Allen's charge that we had drawn "upon a distorted imagination" prompted by self-interest in speaking of the failure of the Guide to pay expenses. He says we received, like others, commission on what Popular Hymns we sold. True, but we induced thousands of others to use it, by recommending it, for which we received not a cent. He says the owners had the right to sell to whom they please. Most certainly; but most men would please to give an equal chance at least to those who had aided them in giving value to their property, not a preference to those who had sought to prevent its attainment of value.

In another article, speaking of papers that persist in uniting the Guide with the Standard, he says, "We have considerable knowledge in our keeping respecting the journals that are now forward in our affairs. We do not need surmise to spread reports that would be equally unpleasant to them, and some of them far more so. They would hardly think it kind of us to make them known." We are not sure that this is intended for us, but we think it a very unfair way of dealing. It is much more honorable to tell plainly what you have against people than to insinuate something is wrong—leave people to surmise the worst, yet give the person no chance to meet the charge. We have but few secrets—fewer concerning ourselves than others. We therefore invite Bro. Allen, if we are referred to in the above, to open his heart and relieve his mind; we will try to bear it with equanimity. If he does not wish to take space in the Guide for it, if he will send it to us we will publish it in ADVOCATE.

QUERIES.

Did Elijah and Enoch go where the righteous go after the resurrection?—[O. K. Posey.

They were righteous, and in the resurrection would have dwelled in the home of the righteous had they died. On account of their walk with God they were exempted from death, God took them. We suppose he translated them to the home of the blessed, though of this we have only inference.

Is it scriptural, when a brother or sister has gone astray, to force them to make confession of their faults before the world, as well as the family? Is not the doings of the family of God, as sacred as our families? and would it be conducive to the moral growth of our families to call our neighbors together when one of the family was tempted into sin, and have them confess their shortcomings, in order that it be trumpeted abroad? Or would it not be much better to keep this fault sacred in the family circle, and all the family join in love to correct the fault and restore the erring one? If this is the proper course in reference to our own households, would it not be best in the family of God? It is the custom in this section, during the protracted efforts, to work diligently for the restoration of the fallen. One is touched by the appeal, and comes forward. The preacher says, stand upon your feet. Now, the tale of sin, sorrow and repentance, is gone through in the presence of the world and church, to the detriment of the cause, and discomfiture of the prodigal, I am forced to think. Is not confessions, provokings and rebukings, strictly for the family, and the family alone? An answer will be greatly appreciated.—[S. I. S. C.

No confession ought to be forced. A confession that is not freely, voluntarily, gladly made, is not a scriptural confession. Paul published his sins and errors to the whole world; was never ashamed to say, I was a sinner, I persecuted the church, I obtained forgiveness only because I did it in ignorant unbelief. Paul is a good example to follow. If the world knows we have sinned, we ought to be anxious that it know we have repented of the sin. Fear of the world's knowing we have sinned, usually is indication that our repentance is not deep and earnest.

D. L.

Bro. Bryant closed a meeting of two weeks at Fain's Hall, South Nashville, Friday night. There were two baptisms, and two or three others united with the congregation. While there were not many additions, all bear testimony to the fact that Bro. Bryant was an interesting and instructive teacher of the word of God. He held good audiences to the close of his meeting.

PERSECUTIONS OF CHRISTIANS.

A letter to Bro. Harding, in ADVOCATE of October 15, from Bro. Shepherd, reminds me of our experience here, where prejudice is high, and disciples of Christ few, and too poor to have preaching oftener than once in two months, by Bro. J. B. Davis, who generally spends a week in our parish when he does come. Last spring Bro. Davis had four additions at Dry Cypress, (a union house,) and with myself and one more brother, we went to meeting once a month only, as Baptists and Methodists had third and fourth Lord's days for their meetings.

Mr. Martin, the Baptist preacher, gave out an appointment to preach on "Campbellism," fourth Lord's day in August. Bro. Davis wrote out some propositions for discussion with him, and asked me to present them. I did so, after he had blustered around for about three hours, quoting Ray and Jeter, and misrepresenting the Disciples. He asked me to come back next day, and he would reply. I went. They had morning services, and dinner on the ground, and then evening services, after which Martin spoke about an hour, hunting up and telling all the mean things that any of our brethren had been guilty of, and many things that they had not done, and classed all the brotherhood in the same low channels, from dishonesty to polygamy. During his remarks, he asked any one to show where people ever preached in apostolic times without being ordained. I arose and quoted part of Acts 8. He replied, that it might read that way to me, but if he would read it, it would read different. I then referred the audience to the passage. He called me Davis' "sub," and said he would hold me responsible for the propositions. I said, "All right." He said I had no sense, and he expected to meet me at the bar of God and witness my destruction. After he had said enough to disgust any decent person, some left the house; and when he was through, I asked to say a word. He told me to "shut my mouth, that it was his day there."

I have written above just a few of the things that occurred and was said, that the readers of the firm old ADVOCATE may know how much we need workmen in this country. We need preaching in this part of Louisiana, by some one who can give all his time; but we are so weak in numbers and purse, we can't do the work ourselves. If destitute regions could have just a little of the means employed in making fine show on meeting houses, and furnishing them with organs, etc., our half-starved and over-worked preacher could do more good in those regions, and the gospel of Christ would reach the world much sooner.

H. H. MONTGOMERY.

TRUTHFULNESS.

A good man, some time since, observed, "Teach the boys, now, what they should practice when they become men." He considered the first aim in the education of both sexes, should be to teach them to love truth, and to hate falsehood.

According to his ideas, training that did not form true men and women, was not worth the name of education—that a man had better not know how to read—better, indeed, not know a letter in the alphabet, and be a true, reliable man, than to be acquainted with all science, all languages, and at the same time false in heart and life. He observed with wonder the influence of some of his acquaintances on their children. Mothers, considered good women, by their own conduct at home, impressed them with the idea that their every-day actions and words were of little consequence, if others did not see or hear; that fathers, he knew, were far from setting an example that would render their children noble in character, or pure in heart. Some would swear and drink slyly. They would not have it said abroad, "Mr. So-and-So drinks," but the boys at home knew that strong drink disappeared, although they did not see how it went. Instead of such teaching, the person of whom I speak would impress the young with the idea that truth, in every word and action, is more than riches, more than the highest culture without it, more than earthly power and position to give happiness and self-respect.

He valued a man, true and reliable in all things, as the noblest work of God; one, false and deceitful, as the devil's handiwork.

Purity of heart and life, was the next object in his course of education. He looked upon an impure man as the poison of society; that his vulgar tales and filthy conversation, corrupt all who listen to them; that, like the leper of old, he should be driven from association with men, and forced to cry, "Unclean! Unclean!" He should have the word as firmly fixed on his shoulders, as the expression of impurity is impressed on his countenance. Such a man, he thought, sows a harvest of corruption, of sin and shame. He cares not for the evil influence he exerts on old or young, for the impure feelings he excites in the hearts of boys—feelings that should sleep for years and years.

He considered that not only do the impure men have this influence, but newspapers, that are widely read, have the same effect. The action of the vilest men and women are freely described for their information, and they cannot help becoming familiar with them. He thought the mother could not make too much effort to prevent the reading of such trash—could not too much exert herself to teach her sons and daughters to avoid whatever is impure, not to indulge in reading anything calculated to fix impure or trifling ideas in the mind; to cultivate the good and the true, that they may respect themselves, and have the respect of others; that every mother should as much as possible, teach her children to be unselfish, polite, just, in all things, generous, noble, manly, true, womanly, to respect the aged and sacred things, to have reverence for God. They might not succeed as she wishes; but her influence will never be forgotten, and her children would, most probably, be useful and happy, respected by all.

He expressed regret at the want of reverence manifested by young people, in places where God is worshiped, and where many attend for the purpose of light conversation, thinking more of amusement, than the value of their never dying souls, or of the great God whose eye is over all. He thought sensible girls should set an example that would lead young men to purity and goodness, not to thoughtlessness and irreverence. The consciousness of wrong influence exerted, sometimes comes home to girls when it is too late to repair the wrong—too late to benefit those they have helped to lead in ways foolish and forbidden. It is wise to remember that example may save or destroy, and so act, that future years may not call up memories of sadness. A soul saved from ruin is a jewel to him who reclaims it. "They that be wise shall shine as the brightness of the firmament; and they that save souls, as the stars forever and ever."

LETTER FROM JACOB CREATH.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: These lines will inform you that I am afflicted with a sore eye, which renders it difficult for me to write; so that I am unable to do what I promised to do, and what I expected to do when I sent you Dr. A. Clarke's sermon on the second chapter of the Acts of Apostles. After you receive these lines you may say what you think proper on this subject.

My first remark is that the transactions recorded in the second chapter of the Acts never took place before that memorable day, and it is more than probable they will never occur again. All things written in the law of Moses, in the Psalms, and in the prophets respecting the Messiah, were fulfilled. Luke 24. These things occurred soon after the death of Christ for the sins of the world, soon after his resurrection from the dead, and soon after his coronation in heaven as prophet, priest, and king of the kingdom of God, and soon after he received all authority in heaven and earth for the glory of God and the good of man. These transactions took place under his immediate administration and direction, and that of the twelve apostles, and under the inspiration and superintendence of the Holy Spirit.

2. For any man or set of men to pretend that they have discovered a different plan from this one, or a better one, is to impeach both the wisdom and the benevolence of God, and comes near the sin against the Holy Spirit, for which there is no forgiveness, and which endangers the salvation of the men who have done it. Rev. 22: 19-20.

3. God by giving us this plan, model, pattern of salvation, of a gospel church, of a revival of religion, this is the mother church in age, in the year thirty-three, in the letter and spirit of it, and all that God can do for men this side of heaven is exhibited in the New Testament. It is one that men are capable of enjoying in this world. By giving us this mould of doctrine of doctrine in Acts 2, he has thereby forbidden men or angels to invent any other plan except at their peril. Galatians 1: 1-8. When he gave the pattern of the Ark to Noah, he thereby forbid him to erect any other building than the Ark, as certainly as if he had said, Thou shalt not build any other building than the Ark. The Ark and the flood were types of the salvation of the gospel. 1 Peter 3: 20. This reasoning applies to the tabernacle of Moses, to the temple of Solomon, and to every thing that God did in both the Old and New Testament, and to the law and gospel. The choosing of Saul for king, was the rejection of God as king, whom they chose at Sinai. Exodus 20. For they have not rejected thee, but they have rejected Me, that I should not rule over them. 1 Samuel 8: 7. Whoever chooses to do any other thing than the one God commanded, has rejected God's plan of doing it. A thing that is not done as God wills it to be done, it is not done at all; it marks the author of the law, whether he be human or divine. Moses, the Jewish law-giver, was killed for one act of disobedience, and Aaron the Great High Priest of the Jews. What will become of all those persons who have made additions and subtractions to the New Institution since John said amen? Rev. 22.

Anti-christ begins to speak where Christ ceased to speak; the doing of a matter is one thing and the authority by which a thing is done is a one different altogether. Nearly all protestant sects say that Babylon the Great, in Revelation 17, is the Romish church, her acts are null and void with them. She says the same of them as heretics. Their testimony destroys each other. History testifies that the Pope of Rome expelled Henry the eighth from her communion for his disobedience to his orders. Then all the acts of the church of England are null and void. Luther and Calvin were born members of the man of sin; she nursed and educated them, then expelled and cursed them. Then they acted without authority. The Wesleys were born members of the expelled church of Henry the eighth, and died members of it. Where did they get authority to set up Methodism in 1729 in England instead of Jerusalem? We ask for scriptural authority. There are only two permanent classes of men in the kingdom of Christ—overseers and servants.

Will the editors of the ADVOCATE give any man liberty, who opposes what I say, to tell who is that woman called Babylon the Great, the mother of harlots, and who are the harlots? and when, where and who made these harlots? 'evangelical churches,' in the nineteenth century? Tell us who is anti-christ? Peter's sermon in Acts, second chapter, comprehends the Messiahship of Jesus the Christ, his death for the sins of the world, his burial, his resurrection, his ascension, his coronation, his reception of the Holy Spirit, and his shedding forth this divine agent on that occasion on the one hundred and twenty believers. Not on the wicked to produce faith; then faith in these truths; then a change of heart; then a confession of Christ before men; ("Whoever shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father who is in heaven." Matt. 10: 32); then immersion into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit; then the remission of all past sins; then the Holy Spirit; then perseverance in well doing, (Rom. 2); then a resurrection from the dead at the last day, (John 6); then eternal life and happiness. "Lo! they have rejected the word of the Lord and what wisdom there is in them." Jer. 8: 9.

If Methodism is the gospel, let us all go into it. If the second chapter of Acts is the gospel, let us all go into that. There is no more need of two gospels, than of two natural suns to give us light. Let us save the people from this immense waste of money in all the sects. The Methodists themselves cannot object to this Jerusalem mother church, for Father Wesley himself speaks thus of it in his translation and notes, chapter 5: 10: "The church. This is the first time it is mentioned; and here is a native specimen of a New Testament church; which is a company of men called by the gospel, gathered into Christ by baptism, animated by love, united by all kinds of fellowship, and disciplined by the death of Ananias and Saphira." Agreed.

Now let us have all these put into practice, and we shall receive considerable help in the restoration of the gospel in word and spirit.

But Christ spoke of a people in his day: "All therefore whatsoever they bid you observe, that observe and do; but do not ye after their works, for they say, and do not." Matt. 23: 3. He said they took away the key of knowledge from the people; they would not go into the kingdom themselves, nor would they let the people go in. Father Wesley speaks thus of the remission of sins in his notes. Acts 22: 16: "Be baptized, and wash away thy sins." Baptism administered to real penitents, is both a means and a seal of pardon. Nor did God ordinarily in the primitive church bestow this on any, unless through these means." Practice these things, and we shall be able to shake hands with you over the chasm which now divides us. I will ask Bro. Lipscomb to say the rest that ought to be said. JACOB CREATH.

COMING EMPTY.

Christ deals in gifts, not in merchandise. He buys from none; but he is ready to sell to all without money and without price. Who carries a full pitcher to the fountain? None but a fool. And if he does, what is he benefitted? He returns as he went; or else, after the labor of carrying his full vessel, he must empty it by the well's mouth ere he can carry off the sweet water of the fountain.

And yet how many fools in spiritual things are there? How many go to Christ full—full of themselves, of their own doings, of their own deservings, of their alms or prayers, of good works or charity? How many go with their vessels full of the polluted waters of a corrupt heart?

Is it wonderful that many return unbenefitted? Is it wonderful that many are kept long at the well's mouth? He that would come from Christ full must go to Christ empty.

It is not given to any man always to walk in the sunshine of prosperity, or health, or gladness; but it is given to every man who will, in all the vicissitudes of life, to preserve unruffled in his heart of hearts the peace of God which passeth all understanding. Happy he who, in his seasons of sickness, adversity, and discouragement, no less than in his seasons of exuberant happiness, keeps his lamp of faith burning, with a steady and undimmed light.

Obituaries.

Died, at the residence of his father and mother, in Obion county, Tenn., Bro. R. H. Partain, of consumption. He bore his afflictions with Christian fortitude. He was a praying member of the church of Christ, and had carried on a Sunday-school in the neighborhood for some time before he was taken sick. He set a good Christian example. He was loved by his brothers and sisters and neighbors. We are sorry to give him up; but he is gone to his reward, and to receive that crown of righteousness which the Lord will give to those that love and serve him. Bro. Partain was born May 20, 1858; died, July 18, 1884; age, 26 years, 18 days. May God bless and strengthen the bereaved ones in every Christian effort in this life, and may they meet the loved one that is gone before in heaven. D. R. RIVERS.
Apostolic Church please copy.

Departed this life, at his father's residence, in Perry county, Tenn., little James W. Boyce, son of Samuel M. and Harriet E. Boyce, on October 18, 1884, being a little over three years of age. He was an affectionate child, and his loving parents did all they could for him; but the death angel came and summoned his spirit to the spirit land. I know that it is hard for them to give him up; but they should not sorrow as those who have no hope; for we are sure that his pure spirit will rest with angels beyond the skies, in a pure and brighter world than this. Jesus says, "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me; for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Matt. 19: 14. I sincerely hope that brother and sister Boyce will train their remaining four children to serve the Lord, that they may meet their two little brothers who have preceded them to the grave, in the bright climes of celestial glory, where separation will be no more. May God bless the sorrow-stricken parents and numerous relatives, is my humble prayer.

E. S. B. WALDRON.

Bro. W. W. Bobo was born in Spartanburg, S. C., in 1813. Removed with his parents, in early life, to Middle Tennessee. In 1833, under the work of such men as Tolbert Fanning and Jesse Wilkes, he was led out of the confusion of predestinarianism into the simplicity of the gospel of Christ. Some time before the war he went to Mount Vernon, Mo., and lived there till after the war closed. He then returned to Flat Creek, Tenn., where he stayed until about the year 1870. He came thence to Texas, and settled at this place, which he called Bedford, in view of the fact that the colony was made up mostly of citizens from Bedford county, Tennessee. Bro. Bobo has been a reader of the ADVOCATE from its initial number. He has been "steadfast, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord." From the time of his baptism he learned rapidly and became an earnest and successful advocate for Jesus and the word of his power. In his early Christian career he was assailed on every hand as a heretic, a schismatic, and a Campbellite. Under such dishonoring names he realized that the gospel and the name of Christ must be honored above all else, and so applied himself closely to the study of the Bible and the practice of its precepts. His teachings and examples were such that many were constrained to acknowledge Christ. Those who opposed the Bible could not stand before him, and sectarian assumption was put to flight. He was a tower of strength among Christians where he lived. He did not often appear before audiences as a public teacher; but when he did, he never failed to make himself understood. He dared to speak on occasions where other men were timorous and fearful. The tattler, the busy-body in other men's matters, and strife-makers, met such severe rebukes at his hands that such evils did not long prevail in communities where he lived. He sought to criticize his friends rather than others, and he reproved face to face. He was liberal in support of the gospel, quick to help the needy, and ready unto every good work. The church of God was before all else with him. He was foremost in the work of building up the church at this place; and other churches have been started by his effort. For about twelve years his place in the congregation here was not vacant, except in sickness. I have been in public life in Texas fifteen years, and I have not at any time before seen so large an audience gathered to show their regard for the dead. As the people lamented his death, they were heard to say, "He was a friend to the poor," "He was a Christian," "His hospitality was without grudging." His watchword and motto, both in business and religion, was, "Be ye ready." He leaves a faithful, Christian wife, three sons and one daughter. The sons are grown to manhood, and in many respects have the traits of their father. It is my heart's desire and prayer to God for them, that they may keep their father's Christian character before the world by living out the doctrine of Christ. W. H. WRIGHT.

A Safeguard.

The fatal rapidity with which slight Colds and Coughs frequently develop into the gravest maladies of the throat and lungs, is a consideration which should impel every prudent person to keep at hand, as a household remedy, a bottle of AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL.

Nothing else gives such immediate relief and works so sure a cure in all affections of this class. That eminent physician, Prof. F. Sweetzer, of the Maine Medical School, Brunswick, Me., says:—

"Medical science has produced no other anodyne expectorant so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL. It is invaluable for diseases of the throat and lungs."

The same opinion is expressed by the well-known Dr. L. J. Addison, of Chicago, Ill., who says:—

"I have never found, in thirty-five years of continuous study and practice of medicine, any preparation of so great value as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL, for treatment of diseases of the throat and lungs. It not only breaks up colds and cures severe coughs, but is more effective than anything else in relieving even the most serious bronchial and pulmonary affections."

AYER'S Cherry Pectoral

Is not a new claimant for popular confidence, but a medicine which is to-day saving the lives of the third generation who have come into being since it was first offered to the public.

There is not a household in which this invaluable remedy has once been introduced where its use has ever been abandoned, and there is not a person who has ever given it a proper trial for any throat or lung disease susceptible of cure, who has not been made well by it.

AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL has, in numberless instances, cured obstinate cases of chronic Bronchitis, Laryngitis, and even acute Pneumonia, and has saved many patients in the earlier stages of Pulmonary Consumption. It is a medicine that only requires to be taken in small doses, is pleasant to the taste, and is needed in every house where there are children, as there is nothing so good as AYER'S CHERRY PECTORAL for treatment of Croup and Whooping Cough.

These are all plain facts, which can be verified by anybody, and should be remembered by everybody.

J. B. JONES' DEFENCE OF HIS REPORT.

Bro. Jones does not claim that in the apostolic age there was any such organization as the Kentucky Christian Missionary Society, or that the apostles and first Christians used any such instrumentalities in co-operation for the spread of the gospel. That they did co-operate, both he and I most clearly understand. Indeed Bro. Jones claims, and properly enough too, that I am sustained by a co-operation of brethren. He says:

"If Forest Grove cannot entirely sustain you, and your work is sustained by the members of the congregations as you go from place to place, then you and Forest Grove are with us in co-operating with other churches to spread the gospel."

So it seems from Bro. Jones' own testimony there can be a co-operation in preaching the gospel without the use of any such institutions as the Kentucky Missionary Society. In the apostolic age individual Christians and congregations of disciples did co-operate with each other in sustaining evangelists; about this there is no doubt. The question between Bro. Jones and myself is whether we shall co-operate as they did, or use methods of modern invention. I stand for the "old paths," the apostolic way, while he favors the modern inventions, the missionary societies. Which is the most certain way? It seems to me that he who believes the Bible to be "The Perfect Law of Liberty," the perfect rule for setting men free from sin and its consequences, cannot hesitate as to the answer to this question. The first Christians, under the apostolic leadership, did co-operate, and the way in which they did it is clearly revealed: it is safe now to do the same work in the same way.

With the view of obtaining more light on this matter the reader's attention is called to another extract from Bro. Jones' article. He says:

"Now, Bro. Harding, either your congregation at Forest Grove sends you out as its messenger, or you go unsent. If you go out apart from the church, or unsent, I ask you by what authority you do these things? Are you above and independent of the church? To what spiritual power are you amenable? If you are sent by the Forest Grove congregation, either it sustains you entirely, or it does not. If it does not sustain you because, though able, it is unwilling, then you and that congregation are guilty of departing from the apostolic plan, for you are bearing the burden that ought to be distributed among the entire membership. They are eased; you are burdened. Injustice is unsound."

Neither the Forest Grove church, or any other, suggested to me that I should go forth as an evangelist. Not a church in the world troubled itself about me in any way as a Christian worker. I got into the work thus: My father educated me, hoping that I might become a faithful preacher of the word: upon leaving Bethany College I located at Hopkinsville, Kentucky, and taught a school for boys: Bro. Ben Campbell, one of the elders of the congregation, insisted that I should be one of the speakers to address the audience upon the first Lord's day of my residence at this place: he and the other elders always encouraged me, and I generally made a ten or fifteen minutes address upon Sunday morning or Wednesday evening, and frequently upon both occasions: through the encouragement of Bro. V. M. Metcalfe (our "Uncle Minor") I was induced to visit the school-houses round about the town on Sunday afternoon to speak to the people about Jesus: this manner of life was continued for about five years: my health failed and I gave up the school and returned to Winchester: for some months, on account of ill health I did nothing: one day Bro. John Adams, a most excellent servant of the Lord, and a faithful preacher, came to me and said he wanted me to go with him back into the border of the mountains to hold a meeting; he had secured the services of Bro. McDairmid, he thought, but Bro. Mc. had gone to Canada, the day had come to start to the meeting, and I was his only chance; in vain I protested that I was not a preacher and that I had no sermons; he replied "you have been studying the Bible for years, and now you must come and tell the people the glorious 'gospel story':" he would not take nay, so I armed myself with a Bible and a concordance, and started out with him: he was a whole-hearted, enthusiastic worker, ever ready to help and encourage me; for months we worked together; what I lacked, he supplied in the way of teaching and exhorting; one meeting opened up the way for another: that was ten years ago, and from that day to this I have gone out of one meeting into another, with but little cessation from the work: thus I became an evangelist. Generally the churches that have interested themselves in me at all have exerted themselves to stop me from this work and to induce me to locate as their pastor. Some of the members of Forest Grove have contributed to my support from time to time all through these years; last year, for the first time, the church took the matter in hand and made a donation to me for the work; of this however I knew nothing till I received the money.

It is a rare thing that churches induce men to preach. Generally the young man feels in his heart that it is his duty to God to tell the gospel story; he realizes that the world is lost, and that he must do what he can to save his fellows; the necessity is laid upon him to preach: some pious woman or godly man perceives his great desire, and sympathizes with and helps him: he becomes a success in preaching and teaching, and then some church or society is ready to take him up. "But," says Bro. Jones:

"If Forest Grove does not sustain you because, though able, it is unwilling, then you and that congregation are guilty of departing from the apostolic plan, for you are bearing the burden that ought to be distributed among the entire membership. They are eased; you are burdened. Injustice is unsound."

I am glad that Bro. Jones here admits that when we depart from the apostolic plan we are guilty. In this he is correct. But when he thinks I am guilty in departing from the apostolic plan, because Forest Grove does not entirely sustain me, I beg to differ. It is able, in my judgement, to sustain at least three or four evangelists all of the time, as most of the congregations in Central Kentucky are. If each member would give a tenth of his gross income to the Lord, doubtless the church would have several thousand dollars to expend for the cause every year. But the members fail to do this. I doubt if they give the one hundredth part; and of that which they do give the most is expended in securing preaching at home. But do I sin in preaching when the congregation does not sustain me? Does Bro. Jones' congregation sustain him? Do the congregations to which the evangelists in the employ of the State board belong, sustain them? Did any congregation sustain Paul, or Luke, or Timothy, or Barnabas, or any other apostolic man for all of his time? No congregation that I ever saw gives as it ought to, for the support of the cause; very few individuals give as they should. If the speakers were to cease from the work till the congregations should give as they ought, Christianity would die out from the earth within twenty years, no doubt. I enquire again, did I depart from the apostolic plan in going out to those school-houses about Hopkinsville with Bro. Metcalfe? The church paid me nothing, nor should it have done so, for I was making as much money as I had any use for. Did I sin in going with Bro. Adams to hold that meeting? My home church said nothing about it, nor do I suppose it knew anything about it.

But let no one suppose that I think Forest Grove church ought to engage me or any one else to evangelize, with a promise of a support. I think no such thing. It ought to spend a great deal more money than it does for evangelizing, and so ought almost every other church that I know; but it ought to be expended without a contract by giving it to those who are doing the work. Nor does it matter to whom it gives it, nor to how many it ministers, provided it contributes always to faithful servants of the Lord, who are doing the work.

Observe the apostolic plan: Paul, without consulting with any man or church, began to preach as God opened up the way, from the day that he became a Christian: meeting Silas and being pleased with him, he took him with him: afterwards they met Timothy in their travels, and Paul, finding him to be of good report, and withal a most excellent young man, took him as an addition to his evangelistic party: Barnabas, in the meantime had gone on his way taking Mark: Luke, Tychicus, Epaphroditus, and others afterwards labored with, or under the directions of Paul: not a word is said about any church's sending them, or about any one's covenanting to support them: it is certain that at sometimes they received uncovenanted contributions from brethren, and at other times they supported themselves. Thus did the Christians co-operate and thus was the gospel preached in the beginning.

I have endeavored to go by this rule. Every Christian should be a preacher, (notwithstanding Bro. Jones' remark to the contrary;) that is, every Christian, male and female should tell the gospel story as he has opportunity, as did the Aquilas and the Priscillas of old; indeed, I doubt if any one can remain a Christian without becoming a preacher. The mother, in telling her little one's about Jesus, is preaching; the father, in talking to his guest at the fireside about the glorious salvation provided for us through Jesus Christ our Lord, is preaching; the young man, standing before his class of pupils at the Sunday-school, filling their minds and hearts with blessed news and glorious hopes is preaching; the evangelist standing before the great audience, holding up Jesus as the Lamb of God that takes away the sins of the world, is preaching; and last, but not least, the editor who tells the old, old story with his pen and sends it out to his thousands of readers is also preaching the gospel of the son of God. Now let every man preach as he has opportunity; let him go on as God opens up the way; and at the same time let him give regularly and systematically to the poor, and for the Lord's cause, and we will have the co-operation that the apostles taught and practiced, the Bible plan. The worker need not concern himself about his receipts; let him do the work faithfully, and give liberally as God prospers him; God himself will see to it that his income is ample.

There are three things that Bro. Jones asks me to show; let us consider them in order.

1. "That the word of God provides specific means for spreading the gospel."

The word of God provides the congregation with its elders, and deacons, and members. Now,

Bro. Jones, if elders, deacons, and members would give as they ought to give, and work as they ought to work, and expend their funds in the fear of the Lord, and for the advancement of his cause, would there be any need for the societies?

There are in Kentucky not less than fifty churches that could each sustain from one to five missionaries, in the ends of the earth, if their members would give one tenth and appropriate it in this way: many others would be able to sustain an evangelist at home: others could sustain a man for a part of his time, and so the work would go on.

So we see that God has given a society that is competent for the work. But he asks me to show.

2. "That it unfolds a definite plan for developing, combining and utilizing the resources of the congregations constituting the church of God."

As we have seen, if congregations will do their duty, there will be no need of any such thing. The church prospered marvelously for a hundred years, under the guidance of inspired men, without any such combination.

"But" it is said, "the churches will not do their duty, God's societies do not operate successfully in this matter, and we have therefore invented others that will do the work." If that is not impious blasphemy, it borders closely upon it. In the third place I am to show—

3. "That the work done by the societies usurp the functions of the church and make void the commandment of God."

It is just as wrong to invent a society to do what God has committed to his church, as it is to write a book to take the place which God has given to the Bible. With me creeds and human missionary societies stand on precisely the same footing; the one supplants God's book, the other his society.

It seems to me that these societies are the outgrowth of stinginess and covetousness. One church is not willing to do what it can and ought to do, its conscience will not let it rest without doing something, so it calls upon ten or fifteen others to help it, and thus a missionary society is formed. I doubt not that the church in Louisville or Lexington, ought to do more than the entire Kentucky society does. More anon.

END OF KENTUCKY DEPARTMENT.

ITEMS AND PERSONALS.

W. Lipscomb, Jr., has gone to Texas, prospecting, with a view of settling in that State.

Bro. W. B. Wright telephones a meeting at Sycamore Mills, Cheatham county. Twelve were baptized. The brethren came together as a congregation of disciples.

G. Lipscomb held a meeting last week at Rains' School-house, in this county. Four were baptized. This week he has been preaching at Owen's Chapel, Williamson county. Five or six had been baptized at last report.

G. W. Rice, of Birmingham, Alabama, gave our office a call, last week. He reports the city growing, and over thirty disciples there, but are without a house, and are not doing much, religiously. Bro. Sympson preaches some for them, but not regularly. We trust the brethren will build up.

Bro. C. P. Williamson, of Richmond, Ky., gave us a short call on Saturday, October 25. He was in the city, taking it in. He had been preaching for a week or more in Gallatin. When in, there had been fifteen additions to the church. We have not heard directly from the meeting since. The secular papers published there were about thirty converted. We were sorry Bro. Williamson did not have more time to spend with us.

Bro. J. B. Kelton changes his location from Sparta, Tenn., to Irene, Hill County, Texas. He takes charge of a school there the beginning of this month. We trust he will build up a good school and will do good for the Lord in the church.

Bro. Elijah Hansborough and wife, of Austin, Texas, have been spending the summer in Virginia and South Carolina, with friends and relatives. Sister Hansborough is an old Virginia acquaintance of our youth. She was of a good Baptist family. One of her brothers is professor of languages in the Richmond College, Virginia. Another is a professor in Greenville, South Carolina. We were gratified to have a visit from them. Bro. Hansborough spoke for them twice at Franklin College. The brethren were pleased with his teaching.

On the possibility of division among disciples, Bro. Treat writes as follows in the American Christian Review:

"It is significant that the articles against divisions are written by the New Interest wing among the Disciples. They seem to fear that division will take place. They are in a position to know to just what extent departures have been encouraged and are likely to take place. Whatever there is among us that has a divisive tendency has been introduced by them. It is well known that the great mass of the brotherhood, lying as it does in the agricultural districts, has made no changes. It is well known that such papers as the Review, the Gospel Advocate, and others of the same class, stand firm in the doctrine and in the advocacy of that form of worship and practice in religion that characterized the first churches of this restoration and of the original church beginning at Jerusalem. Therefore there can be nothing divisive in their attitude. If there is any danger of division, it comes from the 'advanced wing,' the boasted 'progressive element' in the Church. If they advance beyond the customs and practices of the first church, they will divide themselves from the true and the tried. If they progress into teachings and customs not found in the New Testament, they will, by their own progress, divide themselves from those brethren and churches who are satisfied with the old paths, and who walk by the rule God has given."

It is true that churches as ordained by God, true and faithful, cannot divide. But when the character of these churches are changed, when human features are introduced, then they can and will divide. The primitive churches, so long as they were faithful to the order God gave, did not, and could not divide. When they changed the order, they divided. D. L.

CORRESPONDENCE.

It has now been more than two years since I furnished any items of news for the dear Advocate. Good morning, to my Tennessee brethren; how I would love to shake you by the hand once more. Many of you will remember that I left Tennessee for Texas two years ago. Well, I never got there. Sickness and other things stopped me among the mountains of Arkansas. This is a very healthy country. Most everything can be raised here that people need or want. Yet many of the people are poor and ignorant, especially so far as Bible knowledge is concerned. I have presented the Advocate and its claims to them publicly and privately, and have failed, so far, to get any to subscribe for it. Some would like to know if it has nice love stories in it, and continued stories, its politics, etc. I will try again. "Where there is a will, there must be a way." The weekly visits of the Advocate to me is dear, is like meeting with an old friend. I see the names of so many of the dear brethren with whom I have so often labored in word and doctrine, and hear of success of the gospel at so many places where I have so often preached in by-gone days.

Dear Bro. Carter, I am waiting for you to open your Bible, and show us that officers in the church were ordained by "fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands." Be very careful, as Bro. E. G. Sewell will help you. Don't come to the conclusion that our good Bro. Morgan came to in his reply to you. If it was right, according to the Bible, to be masons, you wanted him to preduce the Scriptures that taught it. Instead of appealing to the Bible, he referred to what masonry had done, (a different question entirely). Try to forget all that men have said and written upon that subject, and study it closely in the Bible.

We have some good brethren here. Bro. Dodson is a good preacher, though he is not popular. Why? Because he preaches the truth. Well, says my good brother back there, are you not popular out on the frontiers? Oh, no; by no means. I try to sift everything out of Christianity: politics, masonry, dancing, gambling, playing, etc. How could such a man be popular? Cave Creek, Arkansas. H. M. LOVELADY.

General News.

DOMESTIC.—On Saturday of last week, services were held by the Jews throughout the civilized world in observance of the hundredth anniversary of the birth of Sir Moses Montefiore, the Jewish philanthropist, who was born at Leghorn, October 24, 1874. Mention in honor of the philanthropic patriarch was made in many Christian churches, and many Christian ministers attended services in the synagogues. Little decoration of any kind was attempted, and the exercises consisted chiefly in short addresses.—The accounts of the Postoffice Department have been made up to the 30th of June last, and show a net deficiency of $3,193,137, which is attributed to the reduction of postage.—The Democrats of the South and in Nashville are considerably worked up on account of rumors that the Republican managers are arming and swearing negroes as deputy United States Marshals to carry the election in Nashville and New Orleans. The prominent Republicans in this city denounce the charges as false in every particular.—A grand Democratic rally takes place in this city on Saturday night. Some enthusiastic Democrats say there will be thirty thousand strangers in the city on that night.—Ex-Governor Moses of South Carolina, who is in Detroit, Mich., charged with swindling Rev. Dr. Recford and others, attempted suicide by hanging himself in his cell. He was cut down and sent to the House of Correction.—Hon. W. Q. Gresham has resigned the secretaryship of the Treasury, and Hon. Hugh McCulloch, of Vermont, has been appointed to succeed him. The resignation of Secretary Gresham was tendered in order that he might be appointed to fill the vacancy which will occur in the United States Circuit bench, by the resignation of Judge Drummond.—The Scott liquor law has been decided unconstitutional by the Supreme Court of Ohio. The two Republican Judges declaring for, and the three Democratic Judges against it. The decision necessitates the refunding of $3,000,000 already collected from the saloonists, and requires a levy of a special tax to pay police.

FOREIGN.—Parliament reassembled on Thursday, 23rd. The Queen's speech was brief. The commoners were informed that the operations in the Soudan made it necessary to make further pecuniary provision. Her majesty regretted the necessity of convoking Parliament, referred to the Franchise bill and hoped that it would soon be passed. There were references to affairs at the Cape and to Egypt, and Gen. Gordon was eulogized for his gallant defence of Khartoum.—Only two of the persons who were reported to have been executed at the St. Petersburg citadel, October 1st, for political offences, paid the death penalty. The sentence of both the women and of the other four army officers was commuted to banishment to Siberia.—The police seized a secret printing press in St. Petersburg on the 19th of October. They discovered documents with the press which showed that arrangements were being perfected to make an attempt on the life of the Czar. Numerous arrests have been made.—A monster Radical demonstration in favor of the abolition of the House of Lords was held in Hyde Park, London, on Sunday the 26th. Over one hundred thousand persons were present. Many banners were displayed, leaving such inscriptions as "Down with the Lords." Resolutions were passed declaring that the House of Lords is useless and dangerous, and ought to be abolished. No speeches were made by members of the House of Commons.

INDIAN SUMMER:

October's mellow sun is shining,
We float on the river, my boat and I,
Adown the stream lies the busy city,
We have let the world and its cares go by.

On either side bright harvest glory,
Of flower and fruit and flaming tree,
Bears a message of joy from the King of Seasons
To all His children with eyes to see.

The gentian blue of the fairy fringes,
The golden-rod with its dusky glow,
The cardinal-flower, bright plume of autumn,
Are waving their blossoms to and fro;

While back and back to the far horizon
All veiled in a mantle of purple haze,
The tree-crowned hills and tree-lined valleys
With gold and crimson are all ablaze.

Before me the surging, sparkling river
Winds onward and upward its shining way,
Till I dream it leads to the fields Elysian
Or the glorious city of endless day.

Float on, my boat, up the rippling river,
Bear me away to the sunset sky;
Adown the stream lies the busy city,
But let the world and its cares go by.

—Annette W. Holt.

THE BABY'S HABITS.

What a host of little martyrs there are in the baby-world! And what a host of mothers there are who use no intelligence in their way of caring for the dear little beings intrusted to their care. They seem to think that a baby is incapable of receiving any training whatever; but from the very fact that it is a baby the more work and care and trouble it makes the truer it is to its nature. If it cries from pain it is bounced and trotted and jolted. It is fed at any hour, at both long and short intervals of time, and, no matter how warm the weather or nervous the child, its mother's arm is its pillow at night.

In order to realize the injustice of such treatment, we have only to apply it to ourselves. Only think of a grown person, when not well, perhaps suffering from headache, having their bodies jarred and jolted as we have all seen little babies done to keep them from crying when they are supposed to be suffering. We have no doubt but so much rocking and jarring of the tender little bodies has in many instances been the cause of brain disease.

Babies are human beings, with far more sense than most mothers credit them with having, and if they were treated as such it would be to the good of both them and the mothers.

The mother of two small children said to us not long since: "Oh! what would I give if I could only have good rest at night again. Since my first baby came, four years ago, I have spent but few nights without one sleeping on my arm. If I move it awakens baby; and so, however tired and uncomfortable I become, I cannot change my position."

By way of contrast, I will give my neighbor's way of managing her baby at night. We happened to call the other night just at the baby's bed-time. We went into the mother's bed-room, where she was disrobing the four little ones for their night's rest.

"Now," she said, "you can see just what babies can be taught about going to bed."

In a small bed-room opening from the mother's, the two little girls, aged four and six years, were put, without a word of complaint or fretting. In one corner of the mother's room was a small, single child's bed. In this, two-and-a-half-year-old Willie was tucked, as quietly as though he had been years older.

"Now," said the mother, "I will show you my ingenuity in fixing baby's bed. I like to have her close by me and an even height with my own bed, so I can reach her easily when taking care of her in the night. A crib would be too high, and so I make her bed on these chairs."

With the head chair next to the wall, two armless, cane-bottom chairs were placed by the side of the mother's bed. On these was a soft, cunning little mattress made of cotton. The six-months-old babe was disrobed and, after being wrapped in soft woolen blankets, was laid in her little bed.

"Does she not cry when she is put to bed?" we asked.

"No, she seems to understand as well as the other children that she is put to bed for the night, and very often never awakes until morning. There is where she slept the first night of her life, and she has become so accustomed to her little bed that she goes off to sleep as quietly as a grown person. By having her sleep alone we both get good rest and I am better prepared for the day's duties than though my sleep was disturbed by having her in bed with me."

In caring for the babies in our own home, we have always made it a rule to commence at the very start and train them into regular habits in feeding them, in putting them to bed without rocking, and having them lie when awake without being constantly held and cared for. And we know, from our own success, that so much of the time and care that is usually given them is unnecessary. We say by commencing at the start, and it is only by so doing that good habits can be formed in a baby. In a very short time a baby will adapt itself to whatever it is accustomed, and it is very important that its habits should be right from the beginning.—A Mother, in Arthur's Home Magazine.

CARPENTRY FOR GIRLS.

The Starr King School of Boston is an institution for girls, and its aim is to supplement the training of the public schools with an elementary and technical training. It is now nearly at the close of its second session, and has an average attendance of 120 pupils. There is a kitchen garden class, a class in modeling clay, a class in knitting, a class in art needlework, classes in color, in weaving, in gymnastics, and a class in carpentry. "It is surprising," says the Boston Advertiser, "to see how well the girls do, and especially how well they do in the latter class, and how naturally some of them take to the use of tools. Their efforts are mostly in the cabinet-making line, although the first lessons are in getting out pieces of wood for miniature fences, and learning to use the tools and shape the wood. From these they go to something more ambitious, knife-trays, ironing-boards, foot-stools, etc. One of the girls is making a pretty oak desk, another an easel, still another an ornamental table. There is no play about this work; it is genuine labor. They do everything themselves, under the guidance, of course, of a skilled carpenter, who acts as teacher. They take the dimensions, get out the wood, prepare it properly and put it together. The result in many cases would not shame experienced workmen. Of course only the larger girls can do this laborious work; but the little ones have their coloring and weaving, their part in the needlework and the kitchen garden classes, and all have the gymnastic training under one of Professor Sargent's best graduates. The classes in modeling do surprisingly well; they model from the flat, and they show a really remarkable skill. The teachers are of the best, and are all interested most thoroughly in their pupils. It is hoped next year to add designing to the list of studies, as many of the older girls are anxious for the opportunity of such study. In the meantime, what has already been achieved by this short session of a technical school for girls will be shown at the Institute fair, where there will be an exhibit in the woman's department of the work of the school, Mrs. McBride having made a special effort in behalf of this display, which will show how much may be done, and well done, by girls, when properly trained and directed. The wish has been expressed by many interested in educational matters that this school should become a permanent institution, instead of so temporary a one."

Why should it be so hard a lesson for some of us to learn that we have no claim upon God, whether for life or salvation? All that we have has been given us, and even if we were sinless all that we could do for God would never exceed our debt, so that in any case we are servants from whom God receives no profit. It is pure unmerited grace which has made us what we are; and those who have done most and who have borne most for God, are always the readiest to admit that only pure unmerited grace gives them any claim to the reward which God promises to give, freely, to those who trust themselves to his grace here. We merit nothing, we earn nothing, we receive all; yet some of us, so far from being even decently thankful, seem to think that the Lord is largely in our debt, for the trivial work which we have been enabled to do for him.

Disputing should be always so managed as to remember that the only true end of it is peace.

LOCUSTS.

The acknowledged type of the migrating insects is the locust. There are many species of locusts, but, as their habits are identical, we may use the word as applicable to all the species.

Both in the Old and New Testaments the locust is mentioned, and the researches of modern travelers corroborate in the minutest particulars the Scriptural narrative. What manner of locust swarm that was which was brought into Egypt our minds can scarcely conceive. It is said in Exodus 10: 14 that "before them there were no such locusts, neither after them shall be such." Bearing these words in our minds, let us see what they are at the present day.

A swarm of these insects stopped the advance of a Russian army! They filled the air and blinded both officers and men, so that the former could give no orders, and even if they had done so the men could not have obeyed them. The horses would not face them, and they lay on the ground many inches thick. Every man and horse in the army was incrustated with the insects, and their clothing was literally eaten off the men as they stood helpless and blinded. The railways were useless, as the locusts covered the rails and the oil which exuded from their bodies when crushed prevented the driving-wheels from "biting."

After they had settled, whole regiments were detached for the purpose of trampling them to death. Trenches were dug across their path and filled with burning coals, but the rowding swarms actually smothered the fire, so vast were their numbers.

Even on a little island like Cyprus, in 1882 one-fifth of the entire revenue was spent in destroying the locusts and especially their eggs. When these eggs are laid they are inclosed in a horny envelope called a "pod," each pod containing thirty-five eggs.

In seven months one thousand three hundred and thirty tons of pods were destroyed. Now, a single ton of pods contains sixty million eggs, and yet, in spite of this almost incredible destruction, the locusts are still a dreaded plague, and show little if any symptoms of diminution in numbers.

The Arabs say that the dark mottlings upon the wings of the locust are ancient Arabic, and that their signification is as follows: "We are the army of the great God. Each of us lays ninety-nine eggs. If we laid the hundredth we should destroy the world."

Not long ago I saw a letter from a gentleman over whose property a locust swarm had passed. He said that in the morning his garden was a Paradise. In the afternoon it was all blackened and withered as if a fire had swept over it. Unconsciously, he used the very same image which the prophet Joel employed some two thousand six hundred years ago. "A fire levoureth before them, and behind them a flame burneth; the land is as the garden of Eden before them, and behind them a desolate wilderness."

Wide-winged as they are, the locusts are very feeble in the air. Not only are they incapable of flying against the wind, but they cannot direct their course. All that they can do is to raise themselves into the air, and allow themselves to drift with the wind. See Ps. 109: 23: "I am gone like the shadow when it declineth: I am tossed up and down as the locust."

So we find that in the great locust plague the insects were first blown by an east wind into Egypt, drifting between the Mediterranean and the northern parts of the Red Sea. When once in Egypt they spread themselves southward all over the land of Egypt. Then, in order to remove them, a strong west wind was sent, which necessarily blew them into the Red Sea, where they were drowned.

In Palestine and other countries, although the locust devours the crops, it is not altogether an unmixed plague, inasmuch as it affords food to thousands. The locusts are gathered together in bags, dried over the fire, their heads, wings, and legs winnowed away, and the bodies ground into a sort of meal, which can be kept for almost any length of time. When eaten, honey is mixed with the locust meal, thus illustrating the habitual food of St. John the Baptist. Canon Tristram tried this food and found it very palatable.—Rev. J. G. Wood, M. A., in Sunday Magazine.

A Prominent Farmer Writes.

ROBERT STATION, Jones county, Ga., June 20th, 1884.—By the recommendation of Rev. O. C. Davis, I used Dr. Moxley's Lemon Elixir for indigestion, debility and nervous prostration, having been a great sufferer for years and tried all known remedies for these diseases, all of which failed. Five bottles of Lemon Elixir made a new man of me, and restored my strength and energy so that I can attend to my farm with all ease and comfort. Refer any one to me.

WILLIAM B. EMERSON.

A CARD.

From a number of St. Louis' prominent citizens as to the merits of Dr. Moxley's Lemon Elixir, the following named gentlemen pronounce it the only pleasant, thoroughly reliable and economical remedy they have ever used for the diseases for which it is recommended.

Judge Alex. — Davis, Fourth and Chestnut streets.

Judge John P. Hughes, 102 N. Fourth St.

Hon. J. I. Martin, office opposite Four Courts.

New Catalogue of Organs.

The Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Company have just issued their new Catalogue for the season of 1884-5. It forms a handsome 4to pamphlet of 46 pages, and contains illustrations accurately showing the appearance of all the styles of organs regularly made by them, with detailed description of the capacity of each; together with quite full mention of the general modes of construction employed and the great favor with which their organs have been received all over the world; with accounts of their triumph at all the great comparisons of such instruments at World's Industrial Exhibitions for many years; with pictures of medals, decorations and diplomas of honor obtained.

In looking over such a catalogue one is forcibly reminded of the magnitude which the business of reed instruments has attained. Twenty-five years since only a few were made, under the name "Melodeons," which had not and did not deserve much favor with the musicians, enjoying very limited sale at prices varying from $40 to 125. Now 80,000 are made yearly in the United States, which are sold in all civilized countries at prices from $22 to $1,000 or more.

The great success achieved by this Company, pecuniary and even more material, is the result of a principle which they deliberately adopted in the beginning and have never lost sight of. This was always to make the very best; never sacrifice excellence to economy. Doubtless their main object was to make money, as it is with manufacturers generally, but they had firm faith that the best way to do this was not by cheapening their productions so that they might be sold at low prices, but by giving to them such superlative excellence that they would command the necessarily higher prices; and they have succeeded on this plan so that the market for the sale of their organs may be said to be the whole world. Royal courts of foreign nations are furnished with the more expensive American organs made by the Mason & Hamlin Company, and there is hardly a cottage on our Western frontier so poor that it cannot afford to have one of their smallest.

This at least may be said to any purchaser of a Mason & Hamlin organ; he will unquestionable get the very best instrument of its class which can be made. Thirty years' experience is a guarantee of what this company can and will do. They cannot afford to send out poor organs.

The present catalogue shows an increased and very complete assortment, both as to cases and capacities. It will be sent free to any one desiring to see it, on application to the Mason & Hamlin Organ and Piano Company, Boston, New York, or Chicago.—Boston Traveller.

CATARRH

AND DISEASE OF THE THROAT, causing Loss of Smell, Offensive Breath, Deafness, Cough, Hay Fever, Bronchitis, and Incontinent Consumption, permanently cured, by a treatment so effective that it cures the worst cases, though the bones of the nose have become affected. No douches, snuffs, washes, inhalers, or stimulants. The medicines are so pleasant that a child will take them. The only internal treatment offered to the public for these dangerous diseases. Dr. Brockington has had fifteen years experience in the treatment of this class of diseases, and a trial will convince the most incredulous of the efficacy of his treatment. The most obstinate cases cured at small expense. Send full description of case and Fifty (50) cents (more cost), for a trial package (by mail), to last fifteen days, with full instructions for treatment.

DR. DUNCAN'S

BLACKBERRY ELIXIR!

Nature's Great Remedy for Diseases and Affections of the Bowels.

This splendid and unfailing medicine is compounded from Blackberry and other Medical Roots and Herbs, is therefore perfectly harmless. It is pleasant and safe to the most delicate stomach. It is the most speedy and effectual medicine for the cures of all forms of Diarrhoea, in children or adults, Cholera Morbus, Flux, Dysentery, and the various Summer Complaints of the Bowels, so prevalent among all classes during the Summer season. Only one bottle (Price, 50 cents,) is sufficient to effect a cure.

DR. DUNCAN'S CHILL TONIC.

You need not Shake or Chill if you will use the Tonic. It never fails to stop the most aggravated forms of Chills and Fever if taken as directed, in from three to seven days, when Quinine and all other medicines fail. It will also, if taken regularly build and tone up the weak and debilitated system, and above all leaves no bad effects behind, as do so many other preparations.

DR. DUNCAN'S

Liver and Kidney Medicine.

The great preventive and cure of all malarial diseases and a sure cure of all forms of Dyspepsia and Indigestion. It acts directly upon the liver and all the secretory glands of the stomach and bowels, it cures the disease by removing the cause from the system that produces or brings on the disease, hence it is unsurpassed for the cure of Consumption, Sour Stomach, Heartburn, Headache, and also those symptoms indicating the want of proper action of those glands situated in the stomach and bowels. Two or three bottles of DR. DUNCAN'S LIVER AND KIDNEY MEDICINE is positively recommended to relieve and cure any of the above diseases if taken as directed. Price, 75 cents.

DUNCAN'S WORM SYRUP.

One bottle of this Syrup will completely expel all species of Worms and without injury to the child, as it contains no Calomel or other injurious substances. Again, it is pleasant to the taste and acceptable to the stomach, and therefore administered without trouble. Price, 25 cents.

SPURLOCK, PAGE & CO., Prop's,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

The sweet gum taken from the tree of the Southern swamps contains a stimulating expectorant principle which loosens the phlegm, and cuts the false membrane, relieving the early morning cough in Consumption, curing Coughs, Croup, and Whooping Cough. This, combined with the mucilaginous healing and flesh producing principle in the Mullein Plant of the old field, presents in Taylor's Cherokee Remedy of Sweet Gum and Mullein, the finest known remedy for Coughs, Croup, Whooping Cough, Croup, and Consumption. For full information send a stamp for "Taylor's Riddle Book" for the welfare of home and amusement of the little ones.

Mars Hill College.

With pleasure we lay before our readers the following extracts from the Fifteenth Annual Announcement of Mars Hill College, an institution perpetually wielding a wonderful and wide-spread influence for truth, refinement and righteousness.—EDITORS.

POSITIONS PROCURED FOR OUR PUPILS.

We make a specialty of preparing pupils for
(1.) PREACHING; (2.) TEACHING; (3.) PREACHING and TEACHING.

Many educated here—among whom are successful lawyers, physicians, merchants, salesmen;
mechanics, farmers, editors, authors, teachers and preachers—have so demeaned themselves, that the humility, fidelity, integrity, accuracy and ability of "Mars Hill students" have become proverbial. There is, consequently, such a demand for the services of our pupils, that we deem it perfectly safe to promise to procure pleasant, profitable and honorable positions for all who qualify themselves here for usefulness. Indeed, for several years we have been able to fill comparatively few of the positions tendered.

HEALTHFULNESS!

Mars Hill as a Health Resort.

Our school was founded in 1870. All the "doctor bills," for services rendered our pupils, from then till now, do not, we think, amount to twenty-five dollars—probably not to one dollar a year. Those who have come here pale and puny, from malarial districts, have, without an exception, we believe, returned to their homes enjoying health.

What "Watering Place," or "Health Resort," then, can justly claim more, as a health-preserver and health-restorer, than Mars Hill? Address,

T. B. LARIMORE, President.

FLORENCE, ALABAMA.

will fully prove what we claim. Bear in mind, we sell strictly for cash, which enables us to offer the greatest inducements.

THIRTEENTH CHAPTER OF ACTS.

This is a chapter that on account of the differences that exist regarding it, needs much prayerful and earnest study, in order to reach a correct understanding of its teachings. It is generally claimed that this is a case of formal ordination, giving an example for the church to go by for all time to come. There are several things for us to think about in this case. We will here give the verses about which the dispute or difference exists. "Now there were in the church that was at Antioch certain prophets and teachers; as Barnabas, and Simeon that was called Niger, and Lucius of Cyrene, Manaen, which had been brought up with Herod the tetrarch, and Saul. As they ministered to the Lord, and fasted, the Holy Ghost said, Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them. And when they had fasted and prayed, they laid their hands on them, and sent them away." In the first place, this was not an action of the church at Antioch as such, but something the Holy Spirit commanded these prophets and teachers to do. There were five of them. The Spirit said to them, "Separate me Barnabas and Saul for the work whereunto I have called them." Separate. What does the word separate mean? Does it mean a ceremonial performance, such as in modern times is meant by the word ordain? It surely does not. The word separate means to place apart from the rest, but does not indicate any particular formality of doing the thing commanded to be done. The Lord said to Moses and Aaron, "Separate yourselves from this congregation." Did the word separate in this passage mean a ceremony of fasting, prayer, and laying on of hands? No one can say so. Jesus says in Luke 6: 22, "Blessed are ye when men shall hate you, and shall separate you from their company, etc." Does the word separate here mean something done by fasting, prayer and laying on of hands? All know better than that. Paul said to the Corinthians, "Be ye separate saith the Lord." This means no ordination, but only means the Corinthians should stand aloof from certain things.

We could give nearly a hundred examples of the word separate or separation in the Bible, in none of which does the word mean ordination as a formula. When the Spirit therefore said "Separate me Barnabas and Saul," that was not a command to ordain them, but simply to send them away from Antioch. The Lord had a work for them to do elsewhere, and thus the Spirit gives orders for them to go out into that work. And when it is said in last of third verse "they sent them away," this fills the meaning of the word separate. And to bear out this idea, the fourth verse says, "So they, being sent forth by the Holy Ghost, departed unto Selencia, and from thence they sailed to Cyprus." The whole matter was done by a direct and special command of the Holy Spirit, and nothing like it was ever commanded on any other occasion. This was not a fixed command to the church, thus establishing a fixed ceremony to be observed in the church through all time to come as is claimed, but a command to those inspired men that Barnabas and Saul should be sent out to engage in the work the Lord had called them to do, and they sent them. But these other prophets and teachers fasted, prayed, and laid their hands on them before sending them away. Now the only question is, what was this for? was it an ordinance, a ceremony of ordination fixed in the church of God for all time to come? There is no evidence that the church as such at Antioch was involved in it at all. The word separate involves nothing like that, and it was not a church action as such, and where then was the ordinance of ordination given to the church to be observed through all time? We know nothing of any such ordinance in the church of God.

But then again, if we call what those prophets and teachers did, ordination, then what was it for? Was it to give them authority to preach? nay verily. The Lord, the Holy Spirit did that, and under that authority Paul said, "Woe is me if I preach not the gospel." Was it then to make them preachers in any sense? This could not be, for they had already been preaching for a long time, and in many places. What bearing then could an ordination ceremony have upon these divinely inspired teachers? None at all. And we are satisfied that the things done were not an ordinance of ordination. Leaving off the idea of ordination in the matter, and then what? These teachers were already engaged in fasting, and as fasting and prayer usually go together, it is reasonable to conclude that they were regularly engaged in prayer. Nothing special in these things, and they were not commanded in the word separate. But they laid their hands on them. What of that? In near twenty cases in the New Testament, mention is made of miraculous power exerted through laying on of hands, and touching with the hands, which is no doubt about the same thing. Since the exerting of miraculous power, or the impartation of miraculous power is the established purpose of the laying on of hands in the New Testament, what is there in this case to prevent that application of this passage?

One objection that many urge is, that none but apostles could work such power, that none others could impart miraculous power, or the Holy Spirit, in any sense. In reply to this assumption, for it is only an assumption, we give first the case of Ananias, sent to Saul of Tarsus. He said to Saul, "The Lord, even Jesus, that appeared unto thee in the way as thou camest, hath sent me, that thou mightest receive thy sight, and be filled with the Holy Ghost." Acts 9: 17. Ananias was sent for two purposes; one was, that Saul might receive sight, and the other was that he might be filled with the Holy Ghost. The first was accomplished by laying on of his hands; that is, the eyesight of Saul was restored when Ananias laid his hands on him. This is a certain fact. And as being filled with the Holy Ghost was just as much connected with the coming of Ananias as was the receiving of Saul's sight, it is but a fair, rational, reasonable conclusion that the Holy Spirit was given to Saul in the same way. Therefore here is an example of one not an apostle conferring the Holy Spirit by imposition of hands. Again, the Presbytery bestowed a gift on Timothy by laying on of hands. Here therefore are two examples of imparting the power of the Holy Spirit by others than apostles. Thus this difficulty is removed.

But a second objection is, that Paul and Barnabas were already inspired, and needed nothing more in that line. Regarding this matter, let it be remembered that there were many different measures or gifts of spiritual power. Inspiration, or speaking with tongues is one. The power to heal was another. The power to interpret tongues was another. The power to govern was another. Working of miracles was another. See 1 Cor. 12. There is no evidence that Barnabas and Saul had all these powers when the Holy Ghost ordered them to be separated from those at Antioch. There is no evidence that they had the power to work miracles. They had never worked a miracle before this so far as the Bible records. But immediately after this, they did, as is recorded in this same chapter. As they never did this before, but did immediately after the hands of these prophets were laid upon them, what is there to prevent the conclusion that hands were laid on them for the usual purpose to confer miraculous power? Simply no reason at all. It is the most rational conclusion that can be reached. To take this incident as the establishment of a church ordinance when the church as such was not involved in it, is about as great violence to the word of God, as the making of a human creed for the government of the church instead of governing it by the word of God. In fact, it is virtually the same thing. The mourners bench can be easily established upon this principle, and so can abstract spiritual influence. This case and the one in sixth of Acts both occurred in such a way as to leave no traces of an ordinance to be observed by the church, so far as laying on of hands is concerned. In both cases inspired men, and none but inspired men, laid on hands, and none but inspired men ever laid on hands in the entire New Testament, for any purpose whatsoever. Nor was any uninspired man ever commanded to lay hands on any one for any purpose in the world. Therefore as no uninspired man was ever commanded to lay hands on any one, and no example that such ever did it, where then is authority to be obtained to perpetuate the practice as a church ordinance, and as a means of imparting authority?

The whole thing is a device of the clergy as a means of holding a patent right to the exclusive performance of the ordinances of the church of God. Among the denominations no one is permitted to baptize, or administer the Lord's supper unless he has had holy hands laid upon him. It is high time Christians were breaking loose from this offshoot of popery, and freeing themselves from this yoke of bondage. When the persecution arose against the church at Jerusalem, they were all scattered abroad except the apostles. And they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word. There is not a more responsible work connected with the church of God than preaching the word. Yet this multitude of Christians thus scattered, went everywhere preaching it. Did they all have hands laid on them when they started out, driven out as they were, in such a state of confusion? Let any one prove it who can. And this multitude had the same right to baptize that they had to preach. Will any one presume that these Christians went everywhere preaching, and yet left their converts unbaptized? surely not. Laying on of hands is therefore no part of an ordaining ceremony in the church, and never had anything to do with giving authority to any one to do any work in the church of God.

We do hope the brethren will study this subject more closely, throwing aside their early impressions, and with an unbiased mind study the word for the sake of understanding the whole truth upon this as every other subject. And we are perfectly certain that whenever the word of God is thus faithfully studied without prejudice or prepossession, this custom of laying on hands will go just where infant baptism is gone, which will be to the moles and the bats. There is quite as much authority for one in the Bible as for the other.

CONVERTED OFFICE HOLDERS.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: From years 1860-61 until within a few years past, I was substantially of the same opinion that you are, in regard to the relation of Christians to human governments. But I have become convinced that it is not only the privilege, but, in some cases, the duty of a Christian to give his voice in these matters, acting therein in the fear of God. I do not propose to argue the question; I propose only to refer to some precedents recorded or referred to, and ask you to reconcile or explain them if you can to harmonize with your position, viz.:

In the eighth chapter of Acts we have the account of the conversion of a man in authority or in office under a human government. In the tenth chapter of Acts we have the account of the conversion of a captain of Roman army. In the thirteenth chapter of Acts we have the account of the conversion of Sergius Paulus the deputy. In the sixteenth chapter of Acts we have the account of the conversion of the jailor at Philippi. In the seventeenth chapter of Acts we have the account of the conversion of Dionysius Areopagite. Now there is not even the slightest intimation in any of these cases, that the convert was required to resign his office as he certainly should have been, both as a duty on his part and instruction for us if there had been any incompatibility between his former calling and his new profession. And this view is strengthened by the record in the nineteenth verse of the nineteenth chapter of Acts, viz.: "Many, also, of those who used curious arts, brought their books together and burned them, etc." Now here were some converts whose previous practices were manifestly incompatible with their new profession; and as a matter of course they abandoned them; and we may reasonably, or even irresistibly, infer that if, in other cases, there had been incompatibility between their old and new profession, they would have renounced them, and it would have been so recorded for our instruction. As supplemental to the foregoing, we only allude to the several instances where Paul used his citizens for his own protection. Please let us hear from you fully.—[C. H. Barkley, Paris, Texas.

The Bible and its teachings are the same now, and have been for the six or seven years past, that they were the twenty years preceding. If the Bible previously taught it was wrong to engage in political affairs, it teaches the same thing yet. It becomes us when we change our convictions on religious questions, to ask the cause of that change. Whence the influence that caused the change, Why did our brother believe the position true? Was it because he imbibed it from the world? Did the temptations and associations of the world prompt the faith? If not, what did? Was it anything save the Bible teaching, to which his attention was directed that made him believe Christians should not hold office and vote? Candidly, between your own heart and your God, was it the study of the Bible cut off from the influences of the world, that prompted the change of this faith, or was it not the associations with the world, the constant appeal of worldly influences, your own judgment of the result of certain courses of life in worldly affairs, independent of the teaching of the Bible, that produced the change? And then you sought to accommodate the Bible teaching to these views of what is good? If such was the course the judgment took in the matter, it may be well looked upon with suspicion.

But why is it not stated that these converted officers gave up the offices? Why is it not stated that the conversion of a priest caused him to cease the performance of the priestly office? Why is it not stated that the thief ceased to steal, that the adulterer ceased his adulteries? These things are not stated. Indeed, what men ceased to do is not stated in their Christian lives, but what they continued to do is frequently referred to, commented upon, and direction given for its performance. This is true, whether they continued to do good or bad. If good, encouragement was given in the good and directions how to perform the good were given. If the bad was persisted in, warning was faithfully given to cease to do the bad, and the evil results were foretold. No one will deny this. If these officers, after conversion, continued in the offices, why was their position in these offices never referred to? Why were every other relationship and position in life, from the greatest to the least, referred to, rules to guide in them laid down, and carefully specified, but not in all the book of God a single reference to one of these officers in their position, after conversion, mentioned, and not a single sentence of guidance or direction to those in the office given in all the book of God? Will some one explain this? This seems to me a thousand fold harder to explain than the difficulty our brother proposes. The Bible tells the Christian how to act as a husband, a wife, a parent, a child, a neighbor, a friend, an enemy; how to act as a rich man, a poor, a slave, a master, and as a subject of a civil government, and here are a number of officers of these governments, converted to Christ, on whose course of life the peace and happiness of the world depends, and not an allusion to their being in the office, not one word of direction or guidance here in this most difficult of positions is given. Who can explain such an omission?

Of the number of office holders, whose conversion is mentioned in the Scriptures, it is not said a single one of them resigned his office. Yet we know that some did. Matthew resigned his office; so did Paul. How do we know? Their after life is given, and that life shows they resigned their offices. Then some resigned whose resignation is not mentioned. If some resigned whose resignation is not mentioned, others or all may have done it without mention. Further, every one whose after life is given, resigned his office and no mention is made of the resignation of any. If this is so, it raises the probability that if the after life of the others had been given, their lives would have showed they all resigned office, without any mention of the resignation.

Now there is one who is designated by his former official position, Erastus, the chamberlain or treasurer of the city. But the account given of him in other portions of the Scripture shows clearly that he was not exercising the office when called the chamberlain. He was a great portion of his time away from the city, travelling with the apostles and evangelists, himself acting as evangelist. The title he had gained by his former office was given him by way of designation, as we call a man who has been a General, General; who has been Governor, Governor; or an ex-Judge is still called Judge.

While it is not mentioned that any of them resigned or was turned out of office, it is absolutely certain that they did all give up their offices. Take the jailor at Philippi. His business as jailor was to imprison Christians and other criminals. All Christians were criminals in the sight of the government. The law was so strict that to let a prisoner escape by accident, involved punishment so severe, that death by his own hands was preferable. See, when the jailor thought the prisoners had escaped through the open door, he drew his sword to kill himself rather than meet the punishment for such carelessness. Paul's assurance that we are all here, stayed his hand. But after his conversion he turned these Christians out of his own accord. Does any one believe the government permitted him to continue in office after this? If his after history was written, it would doubtless reveal, he either fled for his life, or was thrown to the wild beasts and torn to pieces for turning out these prisoners.

The business of the centurion was to arrest Christians and other criminals. See Acts 22: 25. It was the magistrates who on the accusation made at Philippi arrested Paul and Silas, commanded them to be beaten and delivered to the jailor with the command to make their feet as well as hands fast in the stocks. It was doubtless a centurion who had them beaten by his soldiers and guarded the prison. This was their official work. Does any body believe that Cornelius held an office that required such treatment of Christians after he became a Christian? Does any body believe that the government persecuting Christians, seeking to destroy them from the earth, would permit a Christian to hold an office in that government? "If weak thy faith, why choose the harder part?"

A man who can believe such things, is not to be reasoned with. It is as morally certain as any proposition in the world, that no Christian after his conversion held office in civil government in primitive times. But no mention is made of the resignation or expulsion of any one from office. Why not? If some had held office, and some had not, it doubtless would have been mentioned that certain ones resigned office and went to preaching, or devoted their life to preaching. If some had continued in office doubtless it would have been sometimes noticed, and direction given for their guidance. The fact that neither is mentioned is an indication that there was a universal and well understood rule, and it controlled the course of every converted office holder; hence it was known what course he pursued without mention of the matter, just as it was known what course a thief pursued when he was converted. It was no more necessary to say an officer resigned; than it was necessary to say a thief ceased to steal when he became a Christian. There was a well understood law governing it. Judaism in contact with the nations of earth had taught it. "My kingdom is not of this world." "You cannot serve two masters." The Prince of this world was recognized as the evil one, who had nothing in Christ. These earthly governments were all built up under the rule of the evil one, and constituted a part of his government or means of ruling the world.

The enemies and the followers of Christ understood that fealty to Christ, forbid active participation in or support of human governments. It was on this supposition they asked him, thinking to entrap him, "Is it lawful to give tribute to Cæsar?" It was on the ground that he was building a kingdom inimical to the kingdom of Cæsar that they extorted the sentence of condemnation from Pilate.

The disciples of the Savior so thought, and were disposed to run to the extreme of refusing all recognition of, or submission to these governments. It was to correct this conclusion, drawn from these premises that caused Paul to write to the Romans, "Submit to the powers that be." And to Titus that he should "Put them in mind to be subject to principalities and powers, to obey magistrates," and Peter to teach them to "Honor the King," drawing the line of duty and of contact, not at active opposition, not at active participation, but in passive submission modified by the highest duty to obey God.

This is the only view that will explain the failure to mention the resignation of any officer, and the failure to refer to Christians in office, or to give guidance to office holders, and it is in harmony with the same course on other subjects. "Paul appealed to the authorities for protection." Every loyal citizen of the United States during the late rebellion, who fell under the rebel authorities, if oppressed by the laws or partizans of the Confederacy, appealed to higher authorities in the Confederacy to shield him from the oppression of the lower authorities. Every one oppressed by the laws of the Confederacy, availed himself of whatever protection these laws afforded him from these oppressions. No lawyer—no man ever argued because a loyal man availed himself of the protection afforded by the laws, that he thereby recognized himself as a member and participant in the Confederate government. There is not an allusion in the Scriptures to Paul doing more than this. Where the laws of the Roman government were used to oppress him, he appealed to, and availed himself of whatever protection or delay the laws gave him. This was no more a recognition that he was a participant in that government, a part of that government, than the loyal man doing the same thing in the Confederacy made him a member and upholder of that government. It no more involves that than a citizen of England who is tried under the laws of the United States government for a violation of those laws, when he claims all the exemptions, delays and privileges that these laws grant, acknowledges by this that he is a member in affiliation with, and support of the United States government.

I claimed from both the Rebel and Federal authorities, for both myself and my brethren, the exemptions from military service that the Constitution of Tennessee guarantees to its subjects. I would do it again under the example of Paul, and in it would not recognize that I was an active participant in the State government, but a subject living under its laws, subject to them in all requirements not contrary to the law of God. In claiming its exemptions, I would be submitting to these laws. Not only does the Bible teach this, but profane history bears it out fully. It tells when and how the question arose as to Christians holding office, tells that it was opposed. As late as the year two hundred and fifty a man was deposed from the bishopric for accepting secular dignities. When we come to the study of the Bible, I think there can be no doubt about the question.

Questions will come up some times in civil government involving points seemingly moral, and the appeal comes very strongly to our judgment to give a vote on the side of morality. But the devil transforms himself into an angel of light that he may deceive, and under these moral questions he seeks to seduce the children of God from their fealty to God's kingdom alone, and to bring them into service and fealty to him in his kingdom. It is the part of wisdom to be guided by the teachings of the Bible, not by our own understanding. The world can never be brought to honor God through following the dictates of human judgment instead of the law of God. This is just the controversy God is having with the world, whether it will follow his law or man's judgment and wisdom. It is the same question, at a different point of the field, that is involved in the action of baptism, of remission of sins; of the order of worship, of the order of work in the conversion of the world, and this is what means the Christian shall use to promote the well being of the world. The question is, shall we be governed by our own judgment in these matters, or shall we, in faith, trust God's appointments to bring the fullness of good to the world?

ELDERS AND DEACONS.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: Since Bro. Wells has found time to "advance some additional ideas" under the heading, "Elders, Deacons, Evangelist," by your permission, I will try to examine some of them. Bro. Wells admits that in the primitive days of the church, God himself, through the instrumentality of inspired men, did ordain elders to the oversight of the congregations. The only question to be settled between us then, is this: Shall we let the congregation remain under the oversight of such elders as Paul to Timothy and Titus, describes? or shall we, with uninspired hands, wipe them out and say to "each member," use and improve your talent to the best of your ability? What would you think of a school teacher who, on entering the room, would say, "Children, each one of you now, use and improve your talent to the extent of your ability;" and never claim nor exercise any authority to discipline and guide them in the prosecution of their studies? Or of a father who would say to his children, "Use and improve your talents to the extent of your ability," and never claim nor exercise any authority to "rule," discipline, and train them up to habits of usefulness and happiness? Paul to Timothy says: "If a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?" But Bro. Wells reasons that as the primitive congregations did not have a complete revelation, and we have, therefore we do not need such elders to help us in the divine life as they did. According to his reasoning, Bro. Wells' first children needed his assistance and guidance in conforming their lives to his requirements and instructions; but those born afterwards will not have any use for him; especially his disciplinary authority can be dispensed with, provided he will write down the instructions he gave his first children in a book and leave it in their hands. His last children could just take the book, "the complete revelation," and use and improve their talents to the best extent of their ability. Does any one doubt that the last child that will be born to Adam's race will be just as weak as the first, and will need the watchcare and discipline of its father as much? And does any doubt that the last born into the family of God will be as weak and helpless as the first? The more grown up and exemplary sons and daughters a father has, the less will be his work of training the younger children. But as long as there are untrained and unfaithful children in the family, so long will the father's presence, wisdom, and authority, be needed. Even so, the more exemplary and orderly walking sons and daughters of God there are in a congregation, the less will be the work of the elders in training and developing Christian character of the younger members. And even so, so long as babes are born into the family of God, as long will be the presence and work of such men as Paul to Timothy and Titus described, be needed in the congregation.

Bro. Wells' second objection is based, not on the assumption that we don't need elders; but on the ground that we have no apostles no sub apostles," as he calls them. He claims that the church should not ordain them, because she has no command or instructions of any kind to do so. Whenever he finds a good reason why he preaches the gospel, and baptizes penitent believers in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost, without a command or instruction of any kind to do so, he can then better understand why the church ordains elders without any such command.

Bro. Wells' third objection is urged on the ground that the congregation of disciples in which the elders do their work is not an organized body. It is true that Bro. Wells uses the word officer where one more tenacious for a Bible phraseology would have said elder or bishop; but then I understand him to mean elder or bishop. What I understand by organization of a church is better expressed by Paul to Titus when he tells him "to set in order the things that are wanting," he would of course, correct every one who had departed in any way from the instructions they had received, then ordain elders and deacons. They are now organized, as I understand it. If Bro. Wells does not believe that elders can exist and work in such an organization as this, it is because he does not believe the Scriptures; for Paul says to the Philippians: "Paul and Timothy, the servants of Jesus Christ which are at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons." All saints which are in Christ Jesus certainly would include such elders as Bro. Wells speaks of, but it did not include those that the apostle Paul addressed. The New Testament standard of qualification for elders is found in 1 Timothy, chapter third, and Titus, first chapter. Those whom the Holy Spirit has made overseers can be identified by thoroughly comparing their character and ability with the standard. And it is no more necessary to have "inspired men or sub apostles" to decide whether one possesses the qualifications of an elder or bishop, or not, than it is to decide whether a man is a Christian or not, or whether one is a penitent believer, or not. These questions one and all, the church can and must decide.

If Bro. Wells is going to have the church leave off selecting and appointing men to the oversight of the congregation because she has no command to do so, he should, to be consistent, have her leave off demanding an evidence of faith and repentance before baptism for the same reason. If Bro. Wells will not allow the church to pass upon the qualifications and character of one who "desires the office of a bishop," surely he would not allow such a one to decide upon his character for the church. And if we are to pass by such a simple, yet important, question as that, for want of "inspired men or sub-apostles" to decide it for us, I see not why we might not close our Bibles and pass the whole of it by, for the same reason. Bro. Wells thinks that, according to me, one who is qualified for an elder may escape the work by failing to be ordained. I admit that, sometimes brethren who in their own estimation, are qualified, escape the work by failing to be ordained; but I do not believe with Bro. Wells, that such an escape amounts to "rebellion against God." Again, if Bro. Wells will show me an ordained board of elders that in any way interferes with the legitimate work of any other member of the congregation, then I will show him one that is unworthy to be entrusted with the oversight of the congregation. This tyrannical elder rule is one of the greatest curses with which many of our congregations are afflicted. Under it I have seen the peace, happiness and prosperity of a congregation wither like the verdant fields before winter's chilling blasts. But this perversion of the eldership and their work no more disproves the true order of the church government, than does a counterfeit bank note, the genuine money.

Bro. Wells claims that his position does not make it the duty of each member to teach, govern, and watch after the welfare of the church. Here is his language: "It will not do to name the work of teaching, governing, and watching over the church, as a work peculiar to his (the elder's N. A. B.) office; for all Christians are kings and priests to God; and since the complete revelation is given to all, the quintessence of the Christian religion itself demands that each member do this work to the extent of his ability."

Now since Bro. Wells says that this work of teaching, governing, and watching over the church, is not peculiar to the elders, and that "each member is to do his work to the extent of his ability," it follows to an absolute certainty, that if he admits of an eldership to watch over the church at all, it is composed of "each member." But Bro. Wells says again: Let those in the congregation who are qualified for the overseership be recognized as those who should do that work." I would be pleased to know by what authority Bro. Wells uses such expressions as qualified overseership, qualified eldership, seeing he rejects every Scripture that says anything of the subject as inapplicable at the present time. But he continues, "But let not the congregation presume to exclude from the work (of the overseer N. A. B.) any who are qualified; for no one has any right to say to another, you shall not improve your talent." Because my congregation passed by me in selecting their elders, am I to consider them presumptuous, and understand them as saying to me that I shall not improve my talent? That is the way Bro. Wells puts it. Would not a more charitable view be to conclude that they had enough without me, or that they did not believe that I possessed the necessary qualifications? Bro. Wells, rather than undertake to explain to you what I mean by the term, Christian Church, I will withdraw my question and content myself with what little I can gather from your writings on the subject.

Bro. Wells says I failed to comprehend the force of his question about the work of the ordained elder. Very well, I will try again. He says: "I repeat that if necessary to ordain the elder, there is a work for him to do which he cannot do while not ordained. And I ask, what is that work?" Paul's direction to Timothy and Titus was to ordain elders, provided they could find any qualified to do the work. The difference between Paul and Bro. Wells is this: Paul wanted elders ordained because they were qualified and could do the work; and Bro. Wells affirms that if necessary to ordain, it is because they can't do it, and in order that they may do it.

I think the readers of the ADVOCATE, (minus Bro. Wells) excused me for failing to comprehend the force of this question, after my first effort, and I think Bro. Wells ought to excuse me now for the simple reason that his question has no force in it. There is no such force as that after which he is inquiring, as I know of. If Bro. Wells don't know, and wants to know what according to the Scriptures, is the work of an ordained elder, I will try to tell him; but if he is opposing such elders only as are qualified by ordination, then I have no more to say, and this already too long discussion might very profitably end.

ELDERS AND DEACONS.

BROS. LIPSCOMB & SEWELL: As the elder and deacon subject is attracting so much attention just now, I have decided with your consent, to examine the subject from the standpoint from which I view it, believing, as I do, that much harm has been done to the cause of our dear Master from this source. I have given the subject a very careful study for some months, and more particularly since my debate with Mr. Chute, the Latter Day Saint, as the elder question was very frequently referred to, and as often met, when we get Paul's measurement of an elder and deacon. 1 Tim. 3: 2 to 7th verse inclusive makes an elder, then the 8th to 12th verses inclusive describes the deacon. Now when we start out among the congregations, officered, as it is claimed, how often do we find a man possessed with all these qualifications? Will some one whose prerogative it is to appoint, or cause to be elected, as the case may be, elders and deacons, answer? We would be glad to get the answer; we want to ascertain, if possible, how many bishops in the brotherhood whose children are all faithful (Titus 1: 6); and how many there are that have taken the work without constraint or solicitation, but willingly; and how many that do not think he holds an office that gives him authority to rule by reason thereof, instead of as ensample to the flock. 1 Peter 5: 2-3. Then how many deacons can we find who hold the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience? how many who was proven, prior to being ordained? Should we not, under all circumstances, be led by the Spirit "word" in all things that pertain to the church. Does not this guess business savor of human tradition? It really looks so to me, though I may be sadly wanting in scriptural knowledge. If so, I trust some of our scribes will throw the mantle of charity around me and give me the much desired light. Now, when we begin to examine, we find Paul informing us how there were differences of administration, and these different administrations, or manifestations, were given by the spirit that those possessed might be of profit. 1 Cor. 12: 5-7.

Then we will examine a bishop. We find that he must be a man capable by sound doctrine, both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers. Titus 1: 9. Now we can find use for the word of wisdom and the man thus spiritually blessed. 1 Cor. 12: 8. Next we find that the elders anciently could, by the anointing and prayer of faith, heal the sick. James 5: 14. Is this the case with the present bishops? We find that the first deacons chosen were men full of the Holy Ghost, and when men after that were ordained to the places of elder or deacon, they were such as were possessed of spiritual power by the imposition of the hands of those authorized to do such work. Hence, I am forced to the conclusion that, that elders and deacons were adjuncts, simply in the absence of a codified or formulated law, that is written as we now have it. These were given for the perfecting of the church, till we all come into the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God unto a perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ, (Eph. 4: 12-13,) which we can now do by using our natural talents through the word, teaching one another. If this be so, then we can't exactly find a place for the bishop and deacon. It seems in apostolic days there was a common faith, which certainly implies a faith that was not common to all; hence the language of James 5: 14. We are now in a condition that we can profit and grow, by diligently using our talents and teaching. And we are so situated that the widows can be all cared for, without the aid of deacons, if we but have the spirit of our dear Master; and if we all, yes, every Christian in America, will read carefully and prayerfully the first thirteen verses of the sixteenth chapter of Luke, we will have no use for any earthly display—societies, organs, fine edifices, nor anything of the kind; and the poor will be fed and have the gospel preached to them also. There will be no idle preachers; in fact, there will not be a drone in the hive. I have witnessed lovely, zealous congregations go to naught, in consequence of this appointing deacons and bishops to rule, who invariably lorded it over God's heritage, especially young congregations. The idea of setting children to govern or rule children is one of extreme simplicity, and is something that none of us would do in our own families. Then why do it in the family of the living God? And what is as bad, is to set a man, who has never governed a child, (or had one to govern,) over the house of God, and to let such a one be a novice is still worse. Oh, how careful we should be in our work for the Master, when we contemplate that the destiny of human souls is hinging upon the work done in the court below. My prayer is, that the truth in its strength and beauty may be reached; that we may, in all things, be lead by the Spirit, and thus become the children of God. Rom. 8: 14.

I have assisted in the work of making deacons and bishops to the hurt of congregations, and I can only attribute the idea to human tradition that has been received from the human societies, and not from the words of God. And until I get more light, I shall in the future let bishop and deacon making severely alone, and give my mite of talent to the persuading of men and women to flee the wrath to come, and accept salvation in Christ, and teach them that each individual has a talent, and that God holds us strictly responsible for its active use in the work of human redemption; and should we fail to use it, we will also fail to reach our own. The mansions that the king of kings has gone to prepare are only for those whose talents are at usury for him. I think the ADVOCATE has fully exploded the sectarian tradition that bishops and deacons were church officials. I long to see Zion stand in the unity of the faith. Oh let her away with everything that would, in the least, hinder her from adorning herself as a bride, without spot or wrinkle, that she may be ushered into the bridal chamber to sit and enjoy the wedding feast with the lovable groom; and without the loss of one, is my prayer.

S. J. S. CAWTHORN.

We think Bro. Cawthorn gets alarmed at one extreme, and runs to another in some things. He gets so alarmed at Babylon, that in his flight to get away from it, he runs beyond Jerusalem. The abuse and misuse of a thing is no argument against that thing. He is rightly disgusted at the official idea connected with elders and deacons, and with the practice of prematurely ordaining men who have no proper qualifications for the work to be done, and repudiates the whole thing out and out.

There is certainly no official dignity or authority in the church of God in the usual acceptance of that term. And again, men without any proper qualification for the work to be done, have often been elected and ordained through the influence of personal friends or otherwise, and in this way great injury has been done to the cause of truth. All of these extremes should be avoided in our effort to return to the primitive order of the church. But nothing that God has ordained should be left out. That competent overseers and servants should be appointed in the churches for the proper development and work of all their talent, seems to us to be plainly taught. And that the characters of those men should be as nearly what the word of God requires as can be, there can be no doubt. But that these workers should be disposed of altogether because there are none that completely fill the bill we cannot exactly see. God gives perfect models in every thing. He gives perfect models for the Christian life. But who comes completely up to that perfect model or pattern? None we presume. But we sincerely thank the Lord that in his goodness and mercy he has made provision for the pardon of wrongs committed through the weakness of the flesh. But then every Christian should come as near as possible to the divine standard of perfection and earnestly strive to approximate it more and more every day of life. Christ has given us a perfect example, and we should come as near to it as we possibly can. But because we should miss it occasionally is no reason why we should not keep trying. So upon the same principle we should approach as nearly to the divine standard of character in appointing overseers and servants (elders and deacons) in the churches as possible. We may seldom, if ever, be able to fill the bill in every particular, as that would require a perfection that seldom belongs to mortality. But let all do the best they can, and approximate the divine injunction as nearly as possible, and let there never be too great haste in appointing young members in new congregations till they are tried awhile, and begin to show by their actions who can work, and what they can do. But we had about as well cease to try to be perfect Christians because we find imperfections in our own lives, as to cease to appoint workers in the churches because there are none that completely fill the perfect standard given in the inspired word.

But let us, at least, try to clear away the palpable rubbish that has been encumbering the church of God for years. There is not one word of authority in the word of God for the papal and denominational idea of office, and official authority. So let us get rid of that. And as there is no such thing as office in the church of God, there is certainly no fixed ceremony in the church to install men into a thing that does not exist. There is, therefore, in our judgment no ordinance of ordination in the church of God, which ordination is only another name for induction into office. But that evangelists may appoint or designate certain men as overseers and deacons that approximate the scriptural character, with the consent of the churches where it is done, seems to us to be plainly taught, both by precept and example. But these things should be understood and acquiesced in by all the members, so that all may work in harmony. But this designation or appointment to certain work, is no induction into office, and needs no imposition of hands, or ordination formula to impart authority. All work in the church must be done willingly, and as nearly up to the divine standard as possible. Hence overseers should do their work willingly, gladly doing everything in their power for the edification of the church and the conversion of the world. So should it be with the deacons, and so with all the members.

Work that is done unwillingly in the church is always poorly done. And again, we think it likely that most of the overseers in the days of the apostles, and some of the deacons, were endowed with some sort of spiritual gifts, to enable them to do their work till the New Testament, the divine guide for all work in the church should be given in full. Then all these spiritual gifts ceased. So the preachers of the first age of the church were mostly endowed with direct inspiration, until the word of God was fully given. Then that inspiration ceased. But shall we do away with preachers now because we have no direct inspiration? Surely not. No more do we need to do away with overseers and deacons because the first ones were inspired. Let us try to get right, but at the same time let us try to avoid extremes.

E. G. S.

While the command, "Love thy neighbor," was no new one on Christ's lips, the position assigned to it was new. To co-ordinate it with love to God, and thus to incorporate morality in its highest form with religion, was to give it the highest possible sanction and impulse. Who can estimate the stimulus given to humanity in all ages by the parable the good Samaritan? Whether Christ meant in that parable to portray himself or not to the the Church has always seen the good Samaritan in him. The truest Christian philanthropist have consciously followed in his steps.—London Quar.

Pride of Consistency.

No one can avoid being at times inconsistent; none but a coward will fear to be. Always to demand perfect consistency of speech and conduct is to expect infallibility where it is never found—in the human judgment. No man but occasionally makes the wrong choice, or speaks the wrong word, or leaves the straight path for a dangerous by-way. If he be too proud to retract his words or to retrace his steps, he goes on into worse perils. In politics, in business life, even in church management, one may suddenly find that the side to which he has fully committed himself is more or less wrong. It is the right thing to retreat; but it is not always easy to do so. No man likes to cast discredit on his own judgment. No traveler enjoys hearing the people sneer: "A fine traveler you! You just passed here going one way, and now you pass going the other way. You will never reach any goal." It is not pleasant, but it is frequently the only safe course. Happy the man who chooses it in its season, who would rather turn about and be right, than go on and be wrong. One may pay too high a price for even the jewel Consistency; one may be too intent on making his course a perfectly straight one, to heed the direction in which it leads him. A bend away from the precipice is better than a straight course over its brink. Every sinner is wretchedly inconsistent in God's sight—he must be, so long as he is human—and he makes a fatal mistake if, finding that he cannot be fully consistent in the right, he allows himself to be consistent in the wrong.—Sunday-School Times.

There is a certain pathos in the thought that whatever one may lack in this world, he will not like the chastening of pain and sorrow. The highest and the lowest, the keenest and the dullest, the most richly gifted and the least cultivated, must each pass under that yoke. If pleasure were the chief aim of being, it would be hard to understand why pain should claim so large a part in human life. But when we understand there is a higher good than pleasure, and that suffering is a necessary step toward that higher good, we have reason to bear calmly, and to wait. Not all who suffer pain will reach that highest good; but no stroke falls in the quivering flesh, which is not, or which cannot become, a blessing and a help. If suffering be other to us than a messenger of God's grace, it is we, and not God, who are to blame.

Giving Me Something Better.

Many years ago, says Dr. W. Lamson, while I was pastor at Brookline, I took a seat in the cars one morning for Boston by the side of Professor Hackett. I always felt that such a position was a providential privilege to be improved. Soon therefore, I drew my learned friend into conversation by mentioning a sceptical work I had lately read, remarking that some of the infidel objections in the work were new to me and seemed very strong.

"Strong, strong!" said he, in his nervous way. "I see stronger difficulties than any which infidelity ever presented; but give me something better than Christianity to stand on and I'll step off. Till that something better is presented I stand, and shall stand where I am."

The remark, like many another from the good Professor's lips, has abode with me and done me good. When some new sceptic comes forward to try his hand at demolishing Christianity I ask:

"Can you offer anything firmer and better? If not, spare your pains and leave the believer the one standing-place to which he clings, and on which millions are reposing. Amid the troubled sea of life there floats this one refuge. If you know a stronger and safer one do, for humanity's sake, point it out, and guide me and struggling souls everywhere to its rest."—Presbyterian.

From all parts of Georgia the news comes of improvement in the prospects of the crops. "Let the people praise thee, O God; let all the people praise thee." It will be well if the people whom God has so blessed will this once consider how they may worship God with their substance. Instead of planning to use all the products of this year's toil on themselves and for the increase of their worldly possessions, to invest largely in the cause of education and missions would be for their soul's good and the betterment of mankind. It would seem that God is prospering the labor of our hands in order to see if we mean sincerely to praise him with our thank-offerings during this year.

At a recent church school anniversary in Berlin the aged Kaiser was invited to make a few remarks. Here is what he said: "The foundation and rock to which I and ye all must cling is the undefiled faith, as this is taught us in the Bible. Do not join that great crowd which either neglects entirely as the sole source of truth, or at best, misinterprets it to suit its own ideas. If there is anything that can give security in the present world of action, it is this only foundation, which is laid in Jesus Christ. May this day be a blessed one to all of you, that it may increase in you the knowledge of God his only begotten son, Jesus Christ."

The promises of the Bible are just as sure to come to pass, if the conditions are complied with, as the prophecies of the Bible. These may all seem to be slow of fulfillment, but they are sure of fulfillment. These promises are all made personal to us through faith, and the faith that makes them personal honors God in their fulfillment.—Missionary Baptist.

A WORD MORE ABOUT PUBLISHING PAPERS.

Now that in the change of hands of the Old-Path Guide certain facts are developed, we wish to emphasize a truth that those not familiar with the business are slow to understand.

Bro. Allen, in a round about way, acknowledges in last number of Old-Path Guide, that it did not pay expenses during the past year. It has not paid expenses during any year of the seven of its publication. The company made a profit on Popular Hymns from March 15th to August 15th of one thousand dollars net. I suppose this is not over an average of the profits made upon it since the plates were completed, excepting the year in which a revised edition was published. In addition to this, several thousand dollars have been put into the company as stock. Yet with all this loss to the stockholders, it settles with its creditors at a heavy discount of their claims, and now begins with new capital advanced to run it, with the Standard publications to help it out.

Bro. Allen says that the stock of the Christian Evangelist is very low. Intimates that its prospects are worse than of the Guide. We are surprised at this statement. The Evangelist claims a circulation of eighteen to twenty thousand subscribers. It has had help from money paid in as stock to give it a start. It has help in the way of various publications, and we presume receives a good revenue out of the handling of the Hymnal. The Christian Evangelist publication company securing the publishing of the Hymnal was what caused the Standard to publish the rival book. With all this help and this large subscription, Bro. Allen intimates that the stock is very low and its future doubtful.

The Review was built up by Bro. Franklin to a good circulation, when there was no rival paper. Yet the publishers failed, and it went into the hands of Alden Bros., advertising agents, who still own it.

The Standard was started by a stock company, who paid in an amount to keep it alive until it could have time to gain a circulation. We have heard the amount, expended on it before it became self-sustaining, variously estimated at from twenty-five to fifty thousand dollars. This was expended and R. W. Carroll & Co. became its publishers. In a few years they gave it up and C. H. Gould put into it fifteen thousand dollars; by securing recognition as the organ of the societies, and by good management and enterprise in getting out other publications, and by advertising them, it has succeeded.

The Apostolic Times was started at Lexington, Ky., by J. W. McGarvey, W. H. Hopson, M. E. Lard, L. B. Wilkes and Robert Graham. It was supposed by them and others that the prestige of their names, their influence through the students that went out from the Bible College, that it would succeed. But soon it was found that it dragged heavily and was surrendered by its original founders, and passed through different hands until now it is in the hands of Bro. Cozine, who, by his familiarity as a practical printer with the work, and by doing much of the work, clerical and editorial, himself, is keeping it alive, but it does not have such a circulation as will enable it to command the time and talent that is necessary to make the paper what its publishers and patrons would wish it.

In Virginia the brethren have made efforts to publish a paper, have failed from time to time, are now publishing under manifest embarrassment for lack of funds.

In Texas two papers have been published; the Christian Preacher changing from place to place from lack of support. The Messenger is sustained by Bro. Burnett's own family, doing all the work within themselves.

The ADVOCATE was revived as a weekly in 1866, when the country was poor and without mail facilities, by Prest. T. Fanning and the writer. They published it for two years at a loss of twenty-five hundred dollars, besides the writer gave his whole time, doing his own book-keeping, mailing, etc., for which he never received a cent. For two years then we published alone, it about paid expenses without a cent to me for editorial or clerical work. Bro. Sewell then came into it, and by his boys learning to do the type setting, was enabled through their wages to live. The circulation has increased, and by the editors working for nothing, or very meagre pay and economizing closely, we have kept along until today; no man losing a dollar by it save the sacrifices of the editors. It is the only paper among us of its age and circulation that has lived, paid its debts and received no outside subsidies.

We have stated these things to let the readers see the unsubstantial basis on which these publications all rest. The publishing of the ADVOCATE has been a source of anxiety and care to us. It does not pay enough to enable us to employ the business attention it needs. We are unwilling to risk failures to pay others. We would have given it up long since, had it not been that we believed the truths it maintained were vital to the interests of our Holy religion, and that God demanded at our hands the sacrifice needed to maintain the truth.

The trouble in the matter has been that the papers have been published too low—lower than such papers can be published at. Among the denominations, no papers involving same labor and cost are published so low. The Standard, with its subsidies, is chiefly to blame for this. Elder Isaac Errett told, three or four years ago, that the Standard, at two dollars, was paying nothing to its owners. It has since been lowered in price. The Old Path Guide received subsidies from other directions, as we have pointed out, and both have been published at less than cost, clearly to break down other papers and to monopolize the field of publication.

We insist were a man with outside means to raise potatoes, and sell them at less than cost, to break down all other potato raisers and monopolize the industry himself, it would not be regarded as an honorable business course.

Were a manufacturer of nails or horse-shoes, because he is wealthy, to sell nails or horse-shoes at less than cost, to break down all less wealthy manufacturers of these items, and monopolize the field, he would be regarded as a dishonorable business man. Were a merchant to pursue the same course with reference to any article of merchandise, he would not be regarded as an honorable business man. Why should publishers of religious papers do the same things, and yet be countenanced as honorable business men?

The ADVOCATE has asked no favors, except the co-operation of those who believe it maintains the truth. Others have paid liberally to sustain papers to maintain their tenets. The ADVOCATE is the only one of the older and more widely circulated papers that, without outside help, has paid its debts, and never changed hands to get clear of debts.

Now, we submit it is a piece of supreme folly to be running papers, Christian papers, on such a basis. It is no more honest for a paper to go in debt, with the probability that it will never be able to pay its debts, than it is for an individual to do the same.

Publishers ought to charge enough to pay the expenses of a paper, with the circulation it is receiving. To do it for less, is to defraud some one. To make a reckless venture, hoping some lucky turn will help them out, is gambling, as much so as Wall street gambling.

We are anxious to improve the ADVOCATE, and even to reduce its price. It would be dishonest in us to do it, until we are sure of a subscription that would enable us to do it without defrauding those from whom we purchase material or labor. We have never received the hearty and active co-operation from those who think we are right, that those who uphold unscriptural practices give to their papers. Why is it the friends of error are more willing to sacrifice for, and uphold error, than the friends of truth are to uphold truth?

We ask our friends to arouse themselves and help us in these matters. If we had a couple of thousand dollars, we could use it profitably to put the whole publishing business of the ADVOCATE on a firmer basis, and to give it greater power for good. But we now only ask the hearty and active co-operation of those who think the ADVOCATE maintains the truth. With this and our present circulation, we can see our way clearer than we could heretofore, at any time. The ADVOCATE intends to uphold the truth of God, as it is in the Bible, whether it lives or dies by it. Then will you who love that truth, help us to maintain and spread it? D. L.

AN OLD PREACHERS ADVICE.

The Boston Courier says: "A clergyman who, when a student, read a sermon to the late Rev. Dr. George Putnam for his criticism, says that when he had finished the doctor said, in substance, in his emphatic way: 'Very well—very well; well reasoned and aptly illustrated. But you have spoiled everything by your qualifications. Bear this always in mind—whenever you are earnest to effect something which will bring you into conflict with public sentiment, or which has become habitual to custom, never qualify—never qualify! Set forth your point as boldly as it will bear, fortify it by argument and illustration, and there leave it. There will be enough who will qualify for you, rest assured of that. Don't help them to neutralize your effort by qualifying yourself.' That was eminently characteristic of this noted and patriotic divine."

We would laugh at a man who should suppose his field of grain to be cut simply because he had whetted his scythe. No less absurd is it for a man to think he can do his duty by merely praying.—Morning Star.

TEXAS WORK AND WORKERS.

This Department is conducted by JOHN T. POE, Longview, Texas, to whom all correspondence intended for these columns should be addressed.

A. MCGARY AND HIS PAPER.

I know Bro. McGary, and have known him for years. I know him to be a very earnest man in anything he undertakes. While he served the devil, he worked with all his might; and now he is just as earnest about serving the Lord. He is exceedingly zealous; his zeal has far out-stripped his knowledge. A zeal for God, without knowledge, may be very harmful to the cause of Christ. Bro. McGary believes in every one being an hundred-fold fruit-bearer, or nothing. In his eye, thirty fold and sixty fold are nothing. Now, one demanding such perfection in others, should be careful of his own life and character. He brings terrible accusations against his brethren; against all who are not in sympathy with himself on his hobby of re-baptism. He gets into a terrible way, and is guilty of many things unbecoming a good Christian. First of all, he is guilty of dissembling in publishing an advertisement in a sectarian paper, and wording it so as to make sectarians believe he is their friend, and an enemy to the church of Christ. No doubt he expected thus to "catch them with guile," and secure loads of subscribers from their ranks. He calls his brethren all Campbellites—nick-names them—while he knows they repudiate the name, and constantly refuse to wear it. In nick-naming Christ's disciples, he is guilty of dishonor to the Master himself; for, "In as much as ye have done it unto one of the least of these, ye have done it unto me," will be said of his slanderous nick-naming of us, in the last great day.

He is a false accuser of the brethren. He says of his brethren in his first issue, "They verily believe that water can wash away unbelief—infidelity," and then adds, "If they could invent some means of getting Mr. Ingersoll into the water, what a shining light he would make." This is not true, and Bro. McGary certainly knew it when he penned it. If he has not learned this much about us, he is certainly unfit to write against us. He has undertaken to destroy the church of Christ, which he is pleased, like all others who have gone in advance of him, to style Campbellism; but while he fights against us, we would like him to understand what he is fighting. An honest debater should inform himself of his opponent's position, and then represent him fairly. Surely one professing so much perfection as Bro. McGary, should do this.

He adds, further, concerning the getting of Ingersoll into the water: "True, he (Ingersoll) does not believe in Jesus Christ as the Son of God; but why should that make any difference?" This implies that we baptize persons without faith in Christ; not only that we do this, but that it is our rule to baptize without faith in Christ. Now, Bro. McGary knows that we baptize no one who does not first confess that he believes with all the heart that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God. Can a man have more faith in Christ, than to believe with all his heart? Then why this false accusation? If Bro. McGary intends to be at all consistent and fair, he should retract this. If he does not, we say, with Bro. Burnet, we could wish his paper had never been born.

Bro. Burnett correctly defines Bro. McGary's creed, or confession, thus: "I believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the Living God, and that baptism is for the remission of sins." This must be so, else how shall Bro. McGary baptize any one? He says that unless a subject knows baptism to be "for the remission of sins," that it is not good, not legal. Now, how shall he know what a subject of baptism believes, or knows, unless it is confessed with the mouth? He cannot know it otherwise, and hence he must re-form the confession given us by inspiration.

Bro. McGary can find plenty of Sauls to give consent, and hold his clothes, while he stones us, if he wishes to throw stones at us; but God will hold him to account for creating unnecessary confusion and discord among the people of God.

Where a person has been baptized only to make them a Baptist, a Methodist, or anything else of like nature, we say they should, of course, be baptized, not re-baptized, for such have never received a Christian baptism. But where the purpose and object has been to obey God, to be baptized because God commanded it to be done, such persons have been rightly and truly baptized, whether they knew it was "for the remission of sins," or not. That which they sought was salvation. They believed salvation or pardon could be found in obedience to God. God commanded them to be baptized; they obeyed, that God might save, and he will. A man who has been baptized thus, and who doubts his salvation on such baptism, is an unbeliever in God. He believes more in Bro. McGary, than in God. Jesus says: "He that believeth and is baptized, shall be saved." Bro. McGary says, "Provided he knows it is for the remission of sins." Thus adding to the word of the Lord. We are wont to believe and teach that the great commission, as given by the inspired writers, Matthew, Mark, and Luke, contain all the terms of pardon to man. We believe it does. If so, then the confession, as given in the Scriptures, covers the whole ground of our necessary faith. If it had been necessary to believe baptism to be "for the remission of sins," God would have put it in the commission. It seems so to us at least.

We call upon Bro. McGary to retract his false accusations against our brethren. If his cause must thrive upon such as this, we do not envy him all the applause he may get from the enemies of Christ, and his people. We think it unkind in an enemy to misrepresent us; but when a professed brother in the Lord does it, we feel it is a great sin.

"Church of God," is the latest choice of the disciples of Alexander Campbell, for a denominational name. What will the other folks do about it, who have a prior claim to that name?—Texas Baptist Herald.

No, sir; excuse us. The Church of God courts no affiliation with denominations, and hence needs no denominational name to "distinguish from other denominations." We propose to stand by the Bible, and wear only such names as God has seen fit to bestow upon his people. From one standpoint, they are the "Church of God;" from another, "Church of Christ;" from another, "Kingdom of Heaven," etc. The church of God is composed of children of God; Christ's church, of his disciples; kingdom of heaven, of subjects, loyal subjects of King Immanuel, etc. Bro. Linck can thus see that we may apply to ourselves several different scriptural names; not "denominational," but scriptural names. In this enlightened age, a man or church ought to be ashamed to say they believe the Scriptures, while they dishonor Christ by wearing a human and a denominational name. "Whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." We prefer to live and work in this name, not in Campbell's name. If Bro. Linck and his party prefer to dishonor God by building up and sustaining a human party, which is against the church of God in its work and teaching, he can do so; but to God he must account for his wickedness in so doing.

T. W. CASKEY.

Sister-Caskey had better call the elder in. He has done but little on this trip, but write compliments to the sisters. Will he please reproduce that sermon on pastors, and consider himself one of his own audience. He pitches into the "scriptural plan of missions," and says the Women's Missionary Society beats it all hollow. He wants to join the sisters. But then there is always a wheel in a wheel. Don't forget that Bro. Caskey has a book to sell. He is rather modest (?) about saying so, but he has.

IN PERILS BY BRETHREN.

A great General once said to his King: "Now, protect me from my friends, and I'll take care of my enemies." And truly there is sometimes more danger from one's own friends, or brethren, than from an openly avowed enemy. Paul said he had suffered in perils by his own brethren, while he says nothing of the perils which came from his avowed enemies. These he was watching, and knew how to meet; but the friend, or brother, may take us unawares.

DEAR BRO. POE: Bro. W. L. Harrison, of Commanche Springs, began the fight on Friday night before the fourth Lord's day in September, at Turnersville, and I joined him on Sunday. We both stayed till Thursday, at which time he left for Troy, to begin a meeting there, in connection with Bro. C. W. Sewell. I stayed till the following Lord's day, Bro. Sewell helping me with a good sermon. The final result of our labors, was nineteen added to the church there, at the close of which I took sick, had a spell of fever, and came here. Will report the results at the close of the meeting here.—[Thos. G. Nance.

DEAR BRO. POE: I immersed four persons during the last week. Set in order the things wanting (which was an organization) at Pleasant Grove school-house, the second Lord's day, with twenty-three members. Others will soon follow. We feel certain there can be a good-sized church built up in that community. Will give you full report of my work at the close of the month.—[Otes Riall, Jacksborough, Texas.

MEETING AT BETHANY, KENTUCKY.

We began preaching at this place on fourth Lord's day of October, and continued eight days and nights except as hindered by rain. Two days we were entirely hindered by rain, and nearly so two nights, and otherwise hindered by prospects of rain, and mud. On these accounts the meeting was not well attended after Lord's day, till the latter part of the week. But better attention we never had, when the people could get there. Wednesday night we had the first confession, one more on Thursday morning, and eight on Friday night, and one Saturday morning, making eleven, all of whom were baptized. Two more reclaimed during the meeting, and one took membership. The audiences from Saturday night were very large, and as attentive as people could well be.

This meeting was truly refreshing to the brethren at this point. They were rather few in number, and surrounded by strong opposition. It did their souls good to see their neighbors and their own children coming into the church of God. They seemed greatly strengthened and encouraged, and if they will only be faithful in their work of faith and labor of love, we think their future will be a successful one, and that they may thus save themselves and others.

Nothing so melts away prejudice, and breaks down opposition, as godly lives on the part of the members of the church. If they will let their light shine, others will surely walk in it after a while. These brethren at Bethany have in their power to do immense good in that community, and we hope and trust they will do so. E. G. S.

Obituaries.

Bettie F. Coe, daughter of brother and sister Allie and Fannie Coe, was born April 23rd, 1884, and died August 27, making her four months and four days old. Her stay was brief. The bud had scarcely opened when the destroyer came and plucked it in its purity, and transferred it to a more genial clime. She was idolized by her parents and five little brothers. Notwithstanding she had all the skillful treatment that kind parents and physicians could command, the grim monster claimed her as his own, and unloosed her little spirit from its tenement of clay, so that the angels could waft it sweetly o'er the dark river, and land it safely in its haven of eternal rest. May her father and mother bear their bereavement with Christian fortitude, and continue faithful in the Christian race, looking unto Jesus, the author and finisher of our faith, and you will meet dear little Bettie in the "sweet by-and-by," there to ever enjoy the happy associations of each other through eternity.

Sleep, sweet little daughter, sleep—
We would not disturb thy rest;
Though with sad hearts we sigh and weep,
We submit to the will of Him
Who knoweth and doeth all things for the best.
Lebanon, Tennessee. MATTIE A. LAYNE.

Rachael Summers was born in Buncomb County, North Carolina, August 24, 1793; daughter of Maning and Sallie Summers. In early life was married to Daniel G. Bills and moved to Tennessee, locating near Lewisburg, Marshall County, where they lived until God claimed her husband in 1862, after which time she lived with her children until God called, and she was truly ready and waiting to go to the reward which she so richly merited. Ten children was the result of this marriage. All lived to the years of maturity, and only one preceded their angel mother to the home beyond the skies, and one has died since. Of the many virtues of that noble old soul, we hardly think it necessary for us to speak. Where the church was known in her early life, she and her husband was known, as the true disciples were then few, and persecuted by all human organizations. Persecutions made them love each other more, and they knew each other better. It costs us but little sacrifice to-day to be a Christian; consequently a like of zeal where the least sacrifice is necessary, there is but little religion. Noble, self-sacrificing, generous and liberal almost to a fault, charitable in the fullest sense. She was ever ready and willing to help the poor—administer to their necessities. She fed, clothed and schooled orphans and widows; and being a regular practicing physician, (as well as her husband,) they gave their time, medicine and talent to all who was not able to pay for the same. She would get on old "Sealom" (her favorite horse that she rode for years) and go through storms and snows in the dead hours of night to relieve the sick or distressed. I lived with them and know whereof I speak. I have known her to go at the dead hours of night, in cold stormy winter, fifteen to twenty miles to watch the sick and nurse them until her husband could go. He was often several days behind with his calls, and in this way she commenced the practice of medicine and continued it, and their lives and fortune was spent in charity. They supported the church at Lewisburg for years, now, as of old, a glorious old congregation, now wealthy, then poor financially, but very rich in spirit, grace, good works. May God bless that old congregation for her works sake. We know that there are those in that noble old congregation that would have performed this task had they not been waiting for some one else. Rachael Bills was our grandmother. She is gone to her reward. We hope to meet her in the sweet beyond. Of her children, ten in number, eight living, seven are consistent members of the church. One, a noble man, with as much soul as any man possesses, is yet living out in the cold, chilly paths of sin. May God help him to see the error of his way, and may he be constrained to follow the example of his angel mother and father whom he loved so devotedly. Two daughters crossed the river,—Sallie Holbrook preceded her mother several years; Alcy Elliott, wife of John O. Elliott, was called to her reward July 16, 1884. She was born in Marshall County, Tenn., Feb. 20, 1827. Truly it has been said of aunt Alcy—that she was a Christian. She had no enemies; her acquaintances and associates all through life was her warmest friends. She was loved by all. She leaves a devoted Christian husband and seven children, beside seven brothers and sisters, and a host of friends and loved ones to mourn their loss, her eternal gain. Mourn not, dear uncle, there is one more jewel in heaven; one more loved one in the courts above, beckoning us on; one more link in the chain binding us to heaven. God claimed her, she was ready. Dear children, follow the example of your mother and father; four of the seven are now numbered with the army of the Lord; be faithful to the end. And to her dear brother who is yet a stranger to the ways of righteousness, we would say, let this be a warning to you; let that one more link that is now added to the many, (your father, your mother, your dear wife, your good boy, and all that have gone before, bind you or draw you to your God. To all loved ones we would say, we have consolation in the fact that she was ready for the summons, and so expressed herself. She had the very kindest of attention; her husband and children was very much devoted to her, and every attention possible was given her. Her grief-stricken husband was beside her bed almost every hour for two months. She could not have had kinder attention from friends and loved ones than she had. With the loved ones mentioned, life is over, all is gain to them, nothing lost; but with us dear friends, the living, how is it? If we was persecuted more, and was forced to sacrifice a great deal to be Christians, our chances for gaining admission to that home beyond the skies would be increased in proportion to the persecutions or sacrifices. Let us try, without being driven, to so act and live, to land in heaven.

LETTERS TO A METHODIST PREACHER—No. 14.

"No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to the one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." Matt. 6: 24.

My friend, I propose to close my letters to you with the present one. And from the heading of my present one, you will not be surprised to find a plain one. I have felt a peculiar interest in your religious sentiments, ever since you first mentioned the subject to me. I know what it is to be in the dark and mist, and have to feel and seek for ease and comfort, where there is no certainty of a sure foundation. And for this reason I have talked with you; and to present a sure and certain path out of doubts and fears, has been the motive that induced me to pen these letters to you. And now I ask you, have you studied and examined the points placed before your mind, as ardently and sincerely as I have endeavored to write them. If you have, I feel that you have been benefitted; though you may not have been convinced or the safety of the satisfaction there is in resting our hopes of pardon from sin, of our union with Christ, alone upon his words, as revealed to us in the New Testament Scriptures. If you have been thus benefitted, I care not what others may call me, nor say of my manner of writing. If, on the other hand, you have passed over these "letters" as the whimsical notions of a religious fanatic, and resolved to pass them by as an idle tale, I warn you now of the accountability each one is held for neglected opportunities to know something more of the truth, that alone can make us free, even though the information come through an evil design. Pause, then, re-read, reflect, and act as your judgment, determined by the word of God, bids you.

And now to the heading of the present letter. I suggested in my last the thoughts of having two husbands. In this I speak of—

TWO MASTERS.

As the servant of Methodism, you must conform to her Discipline, (page 77,) and act in accord with the will of those over you. Page 78, article 3 and 128, question 4, and answer; page 117, section 2, question 1, and answer. This compels you (not only yourself) to bind the will of those "over" you upon the hearts and consciences of men and women, and force it upon helpless infants and children, regardless of conscience in them. See Discipline, page 70-73, and page 188-193. This, with the unerring light of the Scriptures before my mind, to me seems a task that no order of created intelligence, excepts man, in submission to God's will, would demand, or undertake to fulfill. You are commanded to preach that a man is "justified by faith only." Page 14, article 9. And that while preaching that the Lord's supper "ought to be administered to all Christians alike," (page 21, article 19,) you still refuse to offer it to the children who have been "dedicated to God," and brought "by baptism into the church of Christ." Page 192, 189. And in trying to perform this Herculean task, imposed upon you by those over you, the commands of Jesus Christ demand you to preach the gospel (his gospel) to every creature, and to baptize believers.

And now we see where the clash of the masters come in. Two masters, two institutions, each with a gospel of its own, and peculiar to itself, and according as the one or the other is preached, believed, and obeyed; just so sure it makes the obedient one a Methodist or a Christian; as the gospel of Mohammed obeyed, makes one a Mohammedan, or the gospel of Mormonism makes its follower a Mormon. And one would come as near being made a Baptist by the Mormon gospel, (in fact,) as he would be made a Christian by the peculiar gospel of Methodism. (I mean by the peculiar gospel of Methodism, the peculiar doctrines that make Methodism different from any other religious institution; or, to make it plainer, Methodism does not claim of itself to have any saving power.)

The gospel of Christ demands that a believer "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Acts 2: 38. Yet any one preaching this, and calling it the gospel of Methodism, would be brought to trial for heresy by those "over" the preacher. The gospel of Christ, as Paul preached it, says, "Faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." Heb. 11: 6. And that "Faith comes by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Rom. 10: 17. And he who would preach this as the peculiar gospel of Methodism, would be silenced as the worst of heretics.
