Brother Butler and I are now (May 25) in a meeting at King, a place where we have no congregation. So far we are having splendid attendance and the very best attention. Brother Butler will leave this meeting with the writer and begin another at Pfafftown on May 28. We held a debate at Pfafftown last August, and have continued regular work there since, which has resulted in reestablishing the cause, and a new church house is being constructed there. We are doing our best in this needy field. Pray for us.

A Good School.

BY F. C. SOWELL.

It was my pleasure to preach a few days for the Fanning Orphan School and community this spring. I wish to say a word in behalf of this splendid school. I feel that the brethren and churches are not taking the interest in this school that they should. But it is probable they would be more alive to its uplift if they could be made to realize that it needs their patronage and financial support.

I fear the people generally do not know the good work this school is doing under the principalship of David Lipscomb, Jr. This school is splendidly located, and its buildings and improvements would be an honor to any community. It has a capacity for eighty boarding girls. And let me say to all of the churches all over this country, give something to help some poor girl through this school. The Columbia churches made a move in this direction last fall. May others do likewise and make some good girl happy and add another star to their crown.

Since my visits to the school I have been awakened to greater activities in using my influence over some one who could be made to feel that by a liberal offering upon his part souls would be made happy and angels to rejoice.

There is system and order taught and practiced throughout every department of this school. They learn how to sew, cook, wash dishes, sweep, sing, study their books, and many other good things that are essential to make a good housekeeper. They study the Bible, which is the best guide in all things. I write these things about this school thinking the people are not as well acquainted with it and its working and its conditions as they should be.

With my knowledge of it, I am sure you make no mistake in giving it a lift.

Neglected Wounds Troublesome.

Did you ever notice how a small wound often festers and produces pus? That is a sign that the wound is becoming infected—it is the danger signal of blood poison. Don't neglect small wounds. Slight bruises, skin abrasions, sores, cuts, burns, pin pricks, etc., often cause blood poison which may prove fatal. Apply Gray's Ointment immediately to the affected part. It allays pain, heals the wound, and prevents the serious and common after effects. It has been used almost daily for ninety-six years by a multitude of families. Isn't that enough proof of its merit? Only 25 cents a box at drug stores. For free sample, write W. F. Gray & Co., 818 Gray Building, Nashville, Tenn.

THE STORY OF A GREAT DISCOVERY.

The hardships of a traveling salesman's life had wrecked my health. My family physician diagnosed my case as chronic gastritis, brought on by disease of the liver and complicated by kidney trouble. I consulted specialists who confirmed his diagnosis. Months passed, I grew worse and was finally compelled to give up my work.

By chance I heard of some wonderful cures which had resulted from drinking the water of a little spring in the Mineral Belt of South Carolina, a picture of which spring appears on this page. In desperation I tried it. On the second day I thought that I could notice some improvement; at the end of the first week my appetite and digestion had returned and I was much stronger; at the end of the third week I felt that I was completely cured. That was six years ago and I still enjoy perfect health.

Knowing that it had restored my health and believing that it had saved my life, I bought the Spring.

I then determined to see whether the water would cure others as it had cured me. I shipped ten gallons absolutely free of charge to each of one thousand sufferers from chronic diseases. Only four reported no benefit from the use of the ten gallons. The other nine hundred and ninety-six reported decided benefit or complete cures. Many claimed that the water had saved their lives.

I realized that I had discovered one of the world's greatest mineral springs, and I decided to devote my life to it. But how could I make the world listen; how could I make them believe my story? The precious water was running to waste while thousands were suffering. I said: I will make them believe me by showing my faith in them and in the curative power of the Spring. I will tell them that the water shall cost them nothing if it fails to benefit.

The world listened!

Some wrote for proof and I sent them the letters which I had received from their fellowmen. Others accepted my offer without question. Thousands have written me reporting relief and permanent cure of a great variety of chronic diseases.

But some of the water still ran to waste for lack of belief. I determined that every drop should be used to relieve the sufferings of humanity. To this end I requested the advertising manager of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate to come to see me. At my desk I opened my mail and showed him the letters from men and women from all parts of the country who had suffered and who had found relief. I gave him my letter files and induced him to spend several hours reading my past correspondence with those who were using the water. I showed him the chemical analysis and letters from physicians explaining the curative properties of the water.

He believed, and as a result he has written this announcement for me.

WILL YOU BELIEVE?

I do not ask your implicit faith; only enough to try the water for three weeks as I did. I estimate that I drank about ten gallons and I, therefore, offer gladly to ship you two five gallon demijohns on my guarantee that if you find that it does not benefit you I will promptly refund the price, which is only $2.00. You must promise to drink the water in accordance with the instructions which I will send you and return the empty demijohns. I make you the sole judge as to whether the water has benefited you, and as the Advertising Manager of this paper has kindly consented to guarantee my guarantee to refund your money, if you are not benefited, I hope you will feel perfectly free to accept my offer.

This offer is extended to all who suffer with any chronic disease, except cancer and consumption, but I especially recommend the water for the treatment of stomach, liver, kidney and bladder diseases and for rheumatism, gout, uric acid poisoning, gall stones, diabetes, nervous headache and general debility resulting from impure or impoverished blood. These are the diseases most frequently mentioned in the letters which I have received, but my offer is open to anyone who suffers from any chronic ailment. Yours sincerely,
N. F. SHIVAR, Proprietor

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir, As you are well aware, in 1909 I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered 10 gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months from date I began drinking it gained 25 lbs., was strong and perfectly well and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely nature's remedy.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—I ordered 10 gallons Shivar Spring Water especially for my feeble baby who was suffering with its stomach and bowels. This water cured her disorders entirely and she is so well again. I stopped all medicine and gave her only the water. I was also run down a from the heat and fatigue, and the water has restored me also. Thanking you. Very respectfully,

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—Until a few weeks ago my wife was a chronic sufferer from gall stones. She was stricken critically ill and nothing but morphine seemed to relieve her pain by rendering her unconscious. Rev. A. J. Foster, pastor of Shannon Baptist Church of Columbia, S. C., advised me to take her immediately to Shivar Spring. On consulting my physician he agreed that it would be best to do so without delay. In about three days after arriving at the Spring, she was apparently relieved and had regained her appetite. She has suffered no ill effect of the trouble since. Please publish this for the benefit of sufferers.

P. S.—I suffered for 8 years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.

Diversity of Thought in Unity of Purpose.

No special assignments were made for this number. The articles were written by our readers, some of whom are regular contributors, without any suggestion or solicitation on our part.

We say it modestly, but with pardonable pride, that we believe no other religious paper in this country has an abler corps of contributors than the Gospel Advocate. A wide range of subjects is covered in this number. Some of the articles are doctrinal, some are reminiscential in nature. Besides, there are practical exhortations and interesting reports from the churches. There is diversity of thought in unity of purpose.

We have had some of these articles on hand for several weeks. They were stored away, not because they lacked merit or did not deserve immediate publication, but because we lacked space. We have many more excellent articles in "warm" storage. All of which means that the Advocate should issue a thirty-two-page paper every week. This is one of our goals. Our readers can help us reach it.

We thank our contributors, one and all.

“From Dan to Beersheba;” or, from Donelson to Una. 1865-1872.

BY HOWELL.

It is often said that the aged delight in reminiscences. What if they do! It is right and proper for them and helpful to their progeny. To study and think of the successes and failures of those who have led in any good work of long, long ago is profitable to the young. If the succeeding generations do not profit by the experiences and observations of their ancestors, it will be more difficult to make progress in anything, material or spiritual. Real progress consists in learning and applying God's material and spiritual laws to one's thoughts and actions. Between the two there is a striking analogy, wholesome to study, giving one a higher conception of both.

Guided by the above principles, I ask the reader to follow me in a few reminiscences of the writer regarding the preparatory work in sowing the seed of the kingdom of Christ and the planting of three churches in an area of country reaching from Donelson on the north to Una on the south, embracing the contiguous country, making several square miles. Donelson, a little town seven miles east of Nashville on the Lebanon pike, is situated on a rim of a declivity which reaches the waters of the historical Stone River, about three miles from where it empties into the classical Cumberland.

We begin our narrative early in the month of June, 1865, at the home of William Dudley Baker, a farmer, who lived one and one-half miles southeast of Donelson. At this time Mr. Baker was fifty-three years of age, the father of eight children, having married at the age of nineteen. He was a zealous and active member of a large church congregation near by, the name of which is not recorded in the Book of God, neither did the individual members wear a name given by God or Christ. While Mr. Baker was a voracious reader, especially of the Bible and matter pertaining to it, he, like his brethren, had only a vague idea of the relation of faith, obedience, and salvation from sin as taught by Christ and his apostles. However, in one respect he was far in advance of his brethren of that day in that he had a conviction that the “mourners'-bench system” of “getting religion” was out of harmony with the teaching and practices of the apostles and early Christians. Sometimes he would express his views on this matter, especially to his preaching brethren. For this some of his brethren called him a “Campbellite.” He knew he was not a “Campbellite;” therefore these unkind thrusts did not move or intimidate him. He had never heard a “Campbellite” preach, nor had he read any literature from these “scarecrows.” However, he had heard that there were such people, and he had the traditional belief that with them baptism was the only indispensable condition of salvation.

In the protracted meetings, called “big meetings,” under the popular preaching and practices of those days, there was a cleared space fronting the pulpit, covered half-leg-deep with straw, with benches bordering the same, called “mourners' benches.” These preparations were indispensable to their “getting religion” on those occasions. The benches served the purpose of giving rest to the mourner's head and arms while he knelt upon the straw. The straw served another and a more important purpose. The shouting convert would often become so violently agitated that he would frequently fall prostrate upon the floor, the straw protecting him from physical injury. This preparation was a wise provision, we all must admit.

While these disorderly conditions were prevalent, in the early part of June, 1865, a stranger, weary, footsore, and hungry, called at Mr. Baker's home and asked for a night's lodging, saying he had no money. He was cordially received into the home. At this demonstration of ready hospitality the stranger in apt and fitting words expressed his appreciation. It was noticeable that, while the stranger was poorly dressed, his words and demeanor indicated that he was a cultivated and well-bred man. The stranger said his name was “Wright” and his home was in Missouri; that he had been in the Confederate Army four years performing the duty of chaplain and looking after the sick and wounded in the department to which he had been assigned, and that he was on his way home. When asked what sort of preacher he was, he replied, “A Christian,” stating that he was a Christian only, and that he endeavored to preach after the manner and instructions of the apostles of Christ; but that many people called him a “Campbellite,” which he repudiated. Presto! Here, right under his roof, Mr. Baker had caught the sure-enough thing. Under his own roof, with his stalwart boys about him, he felt secure. Now was his opportunity to hear what the “Campbellites” really believed and taught; so, plying questions, the good brother covered the subjects pretty well by midnight. The effect upon the host was such that he did not want to go to bed at all, but in deference to his tired guest he desisted for the present. The following morning the stranger was reminded that he needed more rest and, therefore, was asked to remain a few days and preach in the home at night. This proposition he gladly accepted. The neighbors were accordingly invited, several of whom came regularly for six nights. By this time the light of the truth began to disturb Mr. Baker's former views on several points. This experience awakened an active desire to hear more; consequently he subscribed for the Gospel Advocate, which was then in its babyhood, so to speak. A little later he sought and met its editor, David Lipscomb, securing a promise from him to preach in his community as soon as arrangements could be made for a meeting place. Efforts were made to secure a meetinghouse near by, but because of the opposition and influence of the preacher in charge they failed. Then arrangements were made for Brother Lipscomb to preach in Mr. Baker's home, returning each morning to his office in the city. These appointments continued at intervals until the audiences became too large for the home.

One and one-half miles still farther along the line from Donelson to Una a log schoolhouse, known as “Pleasant Hill,” was secured for Brother Lipscomb. Several meetings were held here by him, with an occasional addition to the church of Christ, until May, 1870, when a protracted effort was made, resulting in thirty-six additions, the writer being one of that number.

Before this move to Pleasant Hill, E. G. Sewell filled an appointment for Brother Lipscomb at Mr. Baker's home. In his discourse he spoke of the importance of Christian unity and how to attain it without giving up one Bible fact, practice, or commandment. In concluding his sermon, holding the open Bible in his hand, he said in substance that if any one present would meet him on the Bible, agreeing to take it as his only counsel in teaching and working, speak where it speaks, keep silent where it is silent, to manifest it by coming forward and placing his hand on the open Bible beside his. At this Mr. Baker arose and went forward, saying, “Brother Sewell, I accept and meet you on that proposition,” placing his hand beside that of Brother Sewell. This act was all Mr. Baker ever did from that night until his death, twenty-four years afterwards, toward joining anything, yet he was excluded from his former church connection on the charge of “joining the ‘Campbellites.’”

The circumstances and incidents attending his exclusion were both dramatic and pathetic. The charge was formulated, read, and prosecuted by the pastor of the said church before a large audience. The whole affair appeared to the unbiased as a ludicrous performance, although many tears were shed. After reading the charge as given, the pastor called for a motion to "exclude Brother Baker from the fellowship of the church." Everybody remained as silent as a death chamber. The call was repeated; no response. The third call was made, whereupon the pastor himself made the motion, which was out of the regular order of the church usage. Then a call for a second to the motion was made. The accused himself seconded the motion. Then a vote was called for. Out of the large membership present, there was but one vote cast, and that by the first cousin of the wife of the accused. As it was according to the polity of this church to decide all questions coming before it by a majority vote, the one vote, of course, was the majority cast; therefore the brother was duly excluded. Within three or four years after this event the voter on this occasion became identified with the church we read about in the New Testament. Hence he came again into full fellowship with Brother Baker.

During the popular "big meetings" of that day the preachers rarely, if ever, preached about the love and mercy of God, but represented God as an angry, vengeful God. The devil was depicted in terms most horrifying. The effect on the callow youth and the more ignorant and superstitious ones was the fear of physical punishment of an outraged, angry God. The fact that "Satan sometimes fashions himself into an angel of light," and that "it is no great thing therefore if his ministers also fashion themselves as ministers of righteousness, whose end shall be according to their work" (2 Cor. 11: 14, 15), was rarely presented.

After establishing an active, working church at Pleasant Hill, a successful move was made to plant a New Testament church at Donelson. An old house once used as a "tavern" was secured for a meeting place. David Lipscomb, who had been so true and self-denying at the other two places, came to the rescue again. One night while preaching to a crowded room, a rich and well-known bachelor who was addicted to the liquor habit pressed his way through the audience in an intoxicated condition, and, on arriving at the side of Brother Lipscomb, placed his hand upon Brother Lipscomb's shoulder, saying: "You're a good 'un." Addressing him gently, Brother Lipscomb asked him to have a seat. The man quietly seated himself and remained seated. Occasionally, however, smiling, winking, and nodding, he seemed to say: "I'm of the same opinion still."

In the latter part of the summer, 1870, Brother Lipscomb was driving from Nashville to Scobey's Chapel, in Wilson County. While stopping at a blacksmith's shop near Donelson to have his horse shod, he engaged in a conversation with the smith, and the blacksmith learned that he was a preacher and on his way to an appointment. Mistaking him for a well-known Methodist preacher who occasionally came this way, he began saying some hard things about the "Campbellites," among which he said: "We beat the biggest Campbellite in this country last week for magistrate." Being asked his name, he replied: "Squire Baker." Brother Lipscomb departed without making known his identity. "Squire Baker" had served his county for twenty successive years as magistrate, and his defeat at this time was due to his religious views. After two years he was re-elected twice, resigning during his last term.

The "tavern" before mentioned belonged to some heirs and was for sale. To stop preaching in the house, two men, otherwise truthful and honorable, notified the brethren on the day before Brother E. G. Sewell was to begin a meeting in it that the house had been purchased by them and could not be used. The following year, in assessing property for taxation, these men disclaimed owning the property. Dr. E. E. Buchanan, a successful practicing physician of the town and an official member of a denominational church, so keenly felt the unfairness of such treatment that he offered the use of his beautifully shaded yard, which was accepted. Ere long he, his wife, and several of his children threw off the yoke of sectarianism and became Christians only. He died some years later, full of faith and hope of life eternal. A truer and better man never lived in any community. Dr. William Boyd, a well-known physician of Donelson and a member of the board of trustees of the Fanning Orphan School, married his daughter.

There is a section of country extending from the Fanning Orphan School to Una, paralleling the Murfreesboro pike, known as "Nubbin Ridge." When this appellation was first given goes beyond the memory of the living. Why so called no one seems to know. It is a land pleasing to the sight and has always been occupied by a law-abiding citizenship. It is true that long ago it could not claim a denizen fitted to be called a "philosopher," as it can at this time. (Thanks to David, Jr.)

Near where the Una church house now stands, under the shade of the majestic oaks, the towering poplars, with here and there the less imposing, but more beautiful, dogwood in flower, two young men, students of Franklin College, Granville Lipscomb and T. B. Larimore, had an appointment to preach on a Sunday in the latter half of May, 1867. On this occasion the writer had his first view of these aspiring young men. The writer was then enjoying that period of life experienced by every young man when his ideals are far in advance of his ideas, when nothing escapes his sight, but much eludes his understanding. To him the sun shines brighter, the girls appear prettier; in fact, all nature is a panorama of music and poetry.

Granville Lipscomb (father of Editor A. B. Lipscomb) preached on this day. He was a young man of strong and handsome physique—ruddy and of quick motion. His voice was clear and distinct, bounding among the stately trees of the forest. Occasionally it would attain the height of eloquence. In one of these flights he endeavored to quote a passage of scripture to seal his thought in the hearts of his hearers. Failing to remember a portion of it, he made a second attempt with no better result. Just at this embarrassing point Brother Larimore, who was sitting near him, with that voice and enunciation which are so well known and pleasing to his hearers, quoted the passage in full for him. Unabashed, the speaker continued his discourse. Many years later, at the period of his greatest power and usefulness, Brother Lipscomb was a victim of an insidious disease "which walketh at night and wasteth at noonday," and loves the strong and plethoric. His companion of that occasion is yet spared to preach "the unsearchable riches of Christ." He is now advanced into the sear leaf of age, with undiminished power and eloquence in the Scriptures. With an eloquence unsurpassed he has preached "from Canada to Cuba, from Maine to Mexico."

At the beginning of our reminiscences there were only two churches in Davidson County which wore the divine name exclusively—one white and one colored in the city of Nashville. Now, in the year 1916, there are approximately forty.

In Behalf of Brother W. F. Duncan's Mission Work.

BY JOHN HAYES.

Allow me space to make an appeal in behalf of Brother W. F. Duncan, of Rome, Ga. He has been trying to secure funds to buy a tent for mission work in Rome and surrounding country. Brother Duncan is not a preacher, but a poor laboring man, whose whole soul is in the work of spreading the gospel. A letter from him to-day tells me he lacks just thirty dollars on the tent fund. Surely, if we knew the good resulting from tent meetings, we would help. How can we lay claim to being loyal and refuse to help? Send to W. F. Duncan, 1009 Avenue B, Rome, Ga. I have been there and know this is a worthy call.

If the People Had a Mind to Work.

BY W. L. REEVES.

When we see the good results which follow the efforts made in mission fields by self-sacrificing brethren, preachers in particular, who contribute their time and means in order that the people in such places may hear the truth in its purity, we are made to realize that the same amount of good could be accomplished in the many other fields which call earnestly for the gospel; but oftentimes in vain they do call, for "the harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few." (Matt. 9: 37.)

There are many individual members of the true church who are plenty able to sustain a preacher for one, two, or even three months each year while he goes to these needy fields to teach the people the word of the Lord just as it is written, leaving off the opinions of men and sectarian creeds, which are the cause of all strife and division in religious matters.

Men, self-sacrificing men, are needed in our ranks. This is not only true as to preachers, but it is true relative to both men and women who are not spending their time preaching, but are giving all of their time to secular employment which remunerates them, in many instances, very liberally. It seems to me that any one who draws one hundred dollars a month could easily give ten dollars a month to have the gospel preached in the cities and various other places where there are no loyal members of the one true church to sustain a minister who will declare "the whole counsel of God." If the salary of such a person were cut down to eighty-five dollars, he would go right along and meet obligations, and the public could never tell but what he was still drawing one hundred dollars a month just the same as before. The trouble about many such members is, they use their income in such a way that they are worse off than if they only received fifty dollars a month. They contribute less than one dollar a month to the church and spend many dollars for unnecessary luxuries.

If a single young man draws sixty dollars a month, I am sure he could easily give five dollars of that to support the gospel; but in many cases they do not give more than one dollar a month, if that much.

Man labors by sustaining laborers with his means. This being true, and it is true, there are many who labor but very little in the field of our Lord and Master. Such men would not expect to reap a harvest of wheat if they did not furnish more labor to be expended in the wheat field. "But this I say, He which soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly." (2 Cor. 9: 6.) The truthfulness of this passage is clearly seen in towns and country communities where one or two families have lived for many years and there is no congregation there yet. The reason many of their neighbors have not been converted to the truth is because they have not done their duty at all as they should in sacrificing their means, their earnings, to have the gospel preached to the people among whom they have been living.

If the people who do not work only had a mind to work, many places which now have not the gospel would have strong congregations in their midst sounding out the word in the regions there and elsewhere.

Not to boast, but to illustrate what can be done, I relate the following: In September, 1914, I was called to a town by a man who had just that year moved there. On my arrival I found that he, his wife, and one daughter were breaking bread—worshiping God—in their home. I preached there three weeks in a tent at that time and started the good work going, and before one year had passed we built a house for worship and have a membership of forty meeting regularly each Lord's day. These brethren are planning to hold several tent meetings during next summer in different parts of the city.

Until many so-called "members of the church" change their affections from the love of money and worldly show to the love of the cause of Christ, many towns and cities will continue to call in vain for the gospel in its purity and simplicity. When it can be said, "The people had a mind to work" (Neh. 4: 6), good results will show up in many dark corners of this loved land of ours.

Numbers are working. If you are not, why not join the forces and add more strength to a good cause? Let us all determine that this year shall be well spent in building up the cause of Christ.

Restitution.

BY LYTTON ALLEY.

"And he shall send Jesus Christ, which before was preached unto you: whom the heaven must receive until the times of restitution of all things, which God hath spoken by the mouth of all his holy prophets since the world began."

The above passage of scripture is found in the third chapter of Acts and is a portion of Peter's sermon from Solomon's porch. In these words is found a statement of truth that is preëminently significant—one which concerns the eternal destiny of every child of God. Therefore, let us study this great declaration of the apostle in the light of other passages to see if we may clearly understand its import.

The word "restitution" means "restoration," and the latter term implies or conveys the idea to the mind that something has been lost.

This question, then, naturally arises: What was it that was lost, and does the word of God clearly reveal to man the loss he sustained and how that loss shall be regained? We are ready to affirm that it does to every earnest, honest seeker after truth. Let us proceed in the light of that great beacon which stands at the entrance of every harbor and radiates its beaming rays over every dangerous rock of doubt and speculation and guides our frail crafts under the sheltering lee of the "Rock of Ages."

There was a time when man rested safely and serenely in the shade of the Father's love; when sin's withering heat had not cursed his pathway; and where God's own presence was supernal bliss. God, then, was man's only King. Jehovah's kingdom was the only kingdom, and it was here on the earth. Man was circumscribed by the laws of that kingdom, and so long as he remained loyal to their requirements, blessings untold were his portion, even eternal life was his to enjoy, contingent, of course, upon his keeping the mandates of the great I Am. But—alas!—man lost this happy and holy environment by his own acts of disloyalty. He was translated from the kingdom of God into the kingdom of Satan, and in this translation he lost (1) the sonship of God and the companionship of Jehovah; (2) the right to the tree of life, and became an heir of death; (3) an eternal home.

Now, if our antecedents are correct, we are ready to ask another question, which is a vital one in the development of our subject, and that is: When was (or is) this restoration to begin? Of course it could not be said to begin until the conditions that once blessed man are present, or like conditions that will lead into these great blessings. We may search the Old Testament and there read God's dealings with the children of Israel, and yet we do not find a single time, even when Israel's glory had reached its flood, where there was anything remotely approaching the conditions which are promised in Peter's declaration that God shall restore all things. We know beyond peradventure that man could not behold God's face, much less enjoy his sweet companionship. This being true, then, why should we expect God to revive or restore any order that may have existed then? David's throne reestablished, with all its regal splendor and glory, could not meet the requirements. But we notice again that the apostle used the word "times," which, of course, means more than one time, and which clearly harmonizes with God's plan of restoring the conditions and blessings that surrounded man before sin came.

Now we are ready to draw the conclusion from the premise laid down.

1. Man lost, first, the relationship as a son of God, and, of course, lost the privileges and blessings of the kingdom of God. Has this condition been restored? Yes. Gal. 3: 26: "Ye are all the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus." Where is this condition found? In Christ. How did we get into Christ? Verse 27: "For as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ."

2. The right to the tree of life. Has this condition been restored? Yes, in the promise that if we remain in Christ, he will guide us safely through the valley of death by a resurrection from the grace.

3. An eternal home. Has this condition been restored? Yes. Jesus said: "In my Father's house are many mansions. . . . I go to prepare a place for you."

Finally, when was this restoration of the kingdom of God to begin? Because all the blessings that we have named are in the kingdom of God. It could not have possibly begun until sin was propitiated. And when was that done? When Jesus Christ came forth from the grave a triumphant Conqueror over death, hell, and the tomb, and was crowned King of kings and Lord of lords. "Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." And that same Jesus said: "Behold, the kingdom of God is within you [his disciples]."

Special Providence.

BY JOHN T. POE.

If I did not believe in a special providence, I would never pray another prayer. If God has placed everything under fixed, immutable, unchangeable law, to work out to a certain fixed and immutable end, why should I pray? Can I so pray as to change God's eternal and immutable decrees? If he has so fixed it, he has done it for the very best that could be done, and he would not change the direction of his own divine will for my pleasure or my good, to the detriment of a greater good for which and toward which he had first set the law in motion. We are constrained to believe that God does all for the best. Then, if I could change him by prayer, I would change him from a divine to a human idea or purpose. It could not be done. All the prayers of all the religions of earth could accomplish nothing. But God has made prayer obligatory upon us. He has commanded and exhorted us to inquire of him, to pray to him, assuring us that he will hear and answer prayer. He has, therefore, so arranged matters in the world and throughout the universe that the prayers of his children on earth shall reach him in heaven, and shall, if for our good, be answered. This is a provision he has made in the laws that govern in both heaven and earth. What a privilege, then, that a poor sinner, washed clean in the blood of God's own Son, should have at his command, through the special providence of God, the emoluments and glory and powers of both heaven and earth! Every seraph, every cherub, every angel in the heavens might envy the child of God this high and noble privilege. "Ask, and ye shall receive." "Knock, and it shall be opened unto you." This is the special provision God has arranged for his children while on earth. And the angels know and glorify the children of God because of it. To think that I, you, or any child of God can reach up to heaven and call down to earth the power and the help of God is wonderful. But God has so provided this special privilege for those who love and serve him on earth. And then—O!—then, when at last we have served out our time here, we shall go to the inheritance in Christ. "Heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ!" What does it mean? Does it mean I am to be made an equal partner with Christ, who is heir to all things? Yes, indeed, it means all that. Every sun that shines in the depths of illimitable space, every revolving world with all its inhabitants of whatever grade or name, mine to enjoy forevermore in partnership with Jesus—God's only begotten Son, our Redeemer and our Savior. Is it not wonderful? Why should we not faithfully serve and praise God for the "eternal weight of glory."

And, dear brother and sister, are you about to surrender your birthright to such an inheritance for the few short-lived pleasures of the flesh? Look up! Try to look for a while at the things not seen by natural eyes, but by faith. Believe God, trust him; the reward is nigh. May God help us all to be faithful unto death, that we may reach the glory of that crown of life which Jesus will give us at that day. And don't forget to pray. God hears his saints.

A Good Report.

From J. Pettey Ezell, New Decatur, Ala., May 23, 1916: "The work of the church in New Decatur is certainly very encouraging at the present. Fine attendance last Sunday. All are much interested in the coming of Brother T. Q. Martin next Lord's day, and the prospects are bright for a good meeting. We ask that Brother Martin, the church, and their work be remembered in the prayers of the faithful. I preached at Mount Carmel on Saturday night and Sunday, with one baptism and one restoration, and two from the Christian Church took membership with the church. The work there has grown much within the last few months and the church as a whole is becoming more and more interested. I preached in the afternoon at Rogersville to a splendid audience, but we were hindered at night on account of heavy rains. Less than ten years ago we had no congregation there, and, so far as I know, the gospel in its simplicity and fullness had never been preached in the town. We got permission to meet for worship in the Presbyterians' house in the afternoon, and through kindness of these people we kept this up until J. T. Harris had held four or five meetings, T. C. King nearly as many, J. A. Harding one, and R. S. King three or four, which resulted in the completion, last year, of the nicest, most commodious, and best-located house of worship in the town, and by far the largest congregation of all in the town and the best congregation of the church of Christ in Lauderdale County, with the exception of the church at Florence. They are at peace among themselves, and, with the labors of N. B. Hardeman in a meeting in August, we can but predict for the cause there greater things. For all of God's wonderful blessings we thank, serve, and praise him daily, for his word has grown mightily and will prevail. (Acts 19: 20.) God's word is a 'fire' (Jer. 5: 14; 23: 29); it is a 'lamp' (Ps. 119: 105); it is a 'sword' (Eph. 6: 17), and is likened unto a 'hammer' (Jer. 23: 29); it is 'the seed of the kingdom' (Luke 8: 11); it is the 'gospel' (Eph. 1: 13), and the 'gospel' is the 'power' (Rom. 1: 16), and seems also to be the 'rod of his strength' (Ps. 110: 2), and in this connection I sometimes wonder if it may also be the 'rod of iron' with which the nations were to be ruled (Ps. 2: 9; Rev. 2: 27; 12: 5; 19: 15), or shall he smite the nations with one thing and rule them with another? How wonderful the love which he hath bestowed upon us, that we should be called 'children of God' 'fellow-citizens of the saints' in 'the kingdom of the Son of his love!' (1 John 3: 1; Eph. 2: 19; Col. 1: 13, 14.)"

A False and Slanderous Charge Refuted.

[Accompanying this article, the editor of the Gospel Advocate received a letter from Brother Campbell A. Taylor, of Louisville, Ky., which reads as follows: "I am sending herewith a paper that Brother F. L. Rowe refused to publish in the Christian Leader, and would very much appreciate having it published in the Advocate. Feeling that a great injustice was done the Campbell Street Church in general and Brother M. C. Kurfees in particular by the publication of Brother Brown's article in the Christian Leader, I ask you to publish my paper in the Advocate, as the best means now available to correct the false and hurtful impression that was made. The demands of justice would have been far better met had my correction been published in the same paper in which Brother Brown's article appeared; but as Brother Rowe refuses to do so after repeated requests have been made, I ask that you, in justice to those interested, publish my paper in the Advocate."

Brother Taylor's letter is self-explanatory. As a matter of justice to Brother Kurfees and the Campbell Street congregation at Louisville, we cheerfully give his article space in the Gospel Advocate. It is not only a refutation of an unjust charge, but a substantial statement of the missionary activities of a zealous church that should prove inspiring to others.—EDITOR'S NOTE.]

There appeared in the Christian Leader of April 18, 1916, signed by W. J. Brown, whoever he is, a false and slanderous statement about one of the churches of our city and its preacher. The statement was taken up mainly with what R. H. Boll and the Portland Avenue Church are doing, and it is certainly not out of place to report the work of a church and its preacher; and if this "meddler in other men's matters" had confined himself to this, or if he had confined himself to the truth even in referring to other men and churches, the case would not be so bad; but, after mentioning R. H. Boll's work and stating that the Portland Avenue Church "contributes from thirty to forty dollars per month to the Potter Orphan Home," which, by the way, is the only specific amount, it seems, he was able to say that the church was giving, he adds:

If one of the preachers of the city, and the congregation for which he has preached for many years, and both of whom look upon Boll and the Portland congregation as unsound, has done as much, it has not reached us. A preacher and congregation that takes up much time in looking after the soundness of others is not likely to build up at home. Critical people are a good deal like bees when they have nothing to do.

Although this misguided and cowardly writer did not call the name of the Campbell Street Church and its preacher, M. C. Kurfees, yet he was careful to add certain marks by which many of the readers of this paper know that he meant them; and this, together with my knowledge of what this church and its preacher are doing, and have been doing for many years, is my reason for meeting the very ugly, unbrotherly, and slanderous charge with the facts. I am not a member of the Campbell Street Church, and I wish it distinctly understood that I do this unsolicited by either the preacher or any of the other members of that church.

As to the work of Brother Kurfees himself, it is so well and favorably known that we need only say that during the thirty years he has been preaching for the Campbell Street congregation he has always enjoyed the full confidence, respect, and love of the brotherhood in all the churches of Louisville.

Brother Kurfees has greatly endeared himself to all right-thinking Christians in his home city and elsewhere by the fearless, effective, self-sacrificing stand he has always taken and maintained in the interest of pure, primitive Christianity. His unquestioned loyalty, unsurpassed knowledge of the Bible, keen insight, and logical mind, together with his splendid scholarly attainments, have enabled him to do a wonderfully successful work in Louisville; and to his willingness and ability to stand alone, as he did so long here in Louisville, is largely due the progress made by primitive Christianity in this city.

As to the work of the Campbell Street Church, not to mention numerous special offerings which it makes at different times to various calls for help from different parts of the country, I have received from the treasurer of that church the following facts and figures for the years 1914, 1915, and for three months of 1916:

For 1914, in addition to the support of its home preacher and all other local agencies, it gave to mission work alone in the city and elsewhere in the United States, $639, or an average of $53.25 per month; and it gave $98 to foreign missions, making an average of $61.41 per month for the whole year.

For 1915, for home missions, $540, or an average of $45 per month; and it gave $123 for foreign missions, making an average of $55.25 per month for the whole year.

For 1916 it is giving regularly $20 per month to the F Street mission in Louisville; it is giving regularly $20 per month to a mission in Jacksonville, Fla.; and it is giving regularly $15 per month to a mission in North Carolina.

For 1914 and 1915 it gave to charity an average of $22.23 per month, and to the same for three months of 1916 an average of $28.80 per month.

During this period of twenty-seven months, in addition to all the amounts here specified, and in addition to the support of its home preacher and all other local expenses, it gave to preaching the gospel in the city, $518.

With the exception of, perhaps, two or three years, it has given to mission work alone for the past twelve or fifteen years an average of between $50 and $75 per month.

Submitted for the benefit of the general public and especially for the benefit of the man who has no more sense of justice, honorable dealing among Christians, and consistency than to thus misrepresent a faithful church and its preacher, and then talk and write of "envious and traducing contemporaries." He writes blandly of Brother Boll's "love of God and man" and of "his meek and humble bearing," and tells us how he delights "to take lessons from him." If this writer himself has any appreciation of what a "meek and humble bearing" really is, then this exhibition of spite and malice, with its false and slanderous effort to defame a faithful church, of whose fine record for work he could easily have learned if he had wanted to tell the truth, is strange indeed. A Son's Tribute to His Father and Mother.

BY DR. G. N. MURPHEY.

In concluding my reminiscences of the War between the States of 1861, I cannot deny myself the impulsion to record a few lines to the memory of my dear old father and mother, who suffered so many heart-breaking moments for the safety of their three sons during those trying times of war. The subject is a delicate one, and one, too, which I feel myself altogether incompetent to do justice to. The effort seems so beyond me, so impossible. I most deeply realize that they need no words of praise from me, that nothing I could say would add new luster to their memories.

I desire, however, that my children shall know something of the love and kindness of heart which my father and mother possessed so abundantly. Their splendid influence reflected upon my own life has been to me an exceeding great reward. It has soothed my affliction; it has multiplied and refined my enjoyments, and has enabled me to see more of the good and less of the bad in all that meets and surrounds me.

God, in his kind and loving providence, saw fit, on November 26, 1833, to join in the bonds of holy wedlock the lives and destinies of Eliza Virginia Morris and Nathaniel Green Murphey. Two nobler souls were never destined to walk life's checkered pathway together. To this union of lives were born ten children—six boys and four girls. The two eldest died in infancy, boy and girl. Eight were reared to manhood and womanhood. The writer was the youngest of the ten children. He and his youngest soldier brother, Robert Smith Murphey, are the only members of the family now alive.

My father was born in the good old State of North Carolina in 1808, and my mother was born in Virginia in the same year. They met, loved, and married near the little town of Murfreesboro, Tenn. Soon after their marriage they removed to the western part of the State, Obion County, where they reared their family.

At one time there were eight homeless children domiciled beneath my father's hospitable roof—six nieces and nephews and two grandchildren—besides seven of his own children. Later another nephew was reared from seven years of age to maturity. If my father ever showed any partiality in this large household of children, it was in favor of the orphan ones. My father never hung out the sign, "The homeless and moneyless cared for here," but his unconscious practice of that very thing kept his doors on the swing for fifty years.

I have no definite recollection of his ever having turned from his door any weary traveler when seeking accommodations for himself for the night or asking for a meal. The nearest approach to a denial of this sort was after the war, when we were temporarily without a cook. As the wayfarer turned to leave, he remarked that he had no money. My father then told him he could, with welcome, share his couch and cheer.

When I recall my father's broad charity for the flotsam and jetsam of life, I am reminded of the large number who could have said: "I was ahungered, and ye gave me meat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was naked, and ye clothed me." Was he prompted to do these things for the sake of a future reward? Indeed, he was not. He did them out of the abundance of his loving heart for those who could not help themselves. However, his reward will be certain when our Savior returns to earth with the trump of God in his hand to call forth from the tomb all those who will have part in the first resurrection.

My father was never a rich man, but was a thrifty and well-to-do farmer of his vicinity, who shared liberally his means with those who were less fortunate in life than himself. When I look around me and see the large number of homeless children that crowd our public charities and think of the empty homes of the rich, and note their utter selfishness and disregard for these homeless ones, it makes me stop and wonder why, and leaves me pondering over the inequalities of life.

In his social life he was one of the purest men I ever saw. Profane and obscene conversation filled his soul with ineffable disgust, and in his presence the ribald jest remained unuttered.

My dear, sweet mother was simply God's good woman. Her lovable disposition and kind heart were the admiration of all who knew her. She possessed altogether the most forgiving spirit of any one I ever knew. I heard her once pray aloud and ask God to forgive some Federal bushwhackers who that same day had waylaid and killed her soldier brother and nephew. At that time I could not, as a child, comprehend the meaning of her prayer. Now I can. She had been born again. I had not. Her prayer was the beautiful flowering of her Christian life. I believe as honestly as I am inditing these lines to her memory that it was an answer to her righteous prayers that carried her three sons alive through the war. Her moral influence pervaded every place that knew her presence, and her lovely face was always radiant with the sweetest smile on earth. She taught her family to fear God and keep his commandments. Her death was as peaceful and serene as the setting sun. She closed her eyes on all earthly things, August 28, 1867, fifty-nine years of age. She had lived a faithful and devout member of the Christian Church for fifty-one years of her life. My father, though always a very moral man, was a member of the church for only fifteen years prior to his death.

My father and mother are resting side by side in the family burying ground on the old homestead in Tennessee, awaiting the final awakening of those who sleep in Christ.

May angels camp in legions bright
Around their tombs both day and night,
And guard that sacred spot from harm
Till resurrection's glorious morn.

As time in its ceaseless flight sweeps on and by and by and on, this world will be brighter, better, and purer because my father and mother lived, loved, and died in it.

In that great and final day when all must give an account of the deeds done in the body, should I be so blessed of God as to pass through the portals of the pearly gates, I know some bright and loving eyes that would mark my coming and grow brighter when I come.

Advance Orders for Hardeman-Leak Discussion.

Believing that many of our readers would like to have the Hardeman-Leak discussion, which takes place at Booneville, Miss., June 13-16, in book form, we have made arrangements to publish same, provided the advance orders will justify the expense to be incurred. The following propositions will be discussed: (1) "The use of instrumental music in divine worship is authorized by the word of God." D. A. Leak affirms; N. B. Hardeman denies. (2) "The use of instrumental music in divine worship is sinful, and the word of God so teaches." N. B. Hardeman affirms; D. A. Leak denies. In view of the known ability of the disputants, this discussion is calculated to prove of widespread interest and should certainly be preserved in book form. Brother A. G. Freed writes that already the proposed discussion is attracting much attention.

If you wish a copy for yourself or for a friend, send in your advance order at once. The price will be reasonable and will not exceed one dollar. We have no other idea in proposing this publication than to do good. You should have fellowship in the work. To assure publication, you should write without delay.

What is Christian Baptism?

By William Rhodes.

After a full century of writing, preaching, and debating on Christian baptism, is not the Christian world about as far from unity and harmony as when we began; and, if so, is it not possible that our methods are defective? We have taken our difference before the courts of lexicons and classic use to settle the action of baptism and failed. The Greek "baptizo" has been overworked without results, thus taking our disputes out of the Bible, the church, and inspiration of God, into a court which has little or no jurisdiction over the question. Divine problems must be settled by divine courts on divine evidence. We have appealed to heathen courts for divine justice. Paul condemned taking our disputes out of the church before the world. (See 1 Cor. 6: 1-7.)

The lexicons and classic literature give us only the visible, material, earthly side of Christian baptism, and only half of that—the submerge; it omits the emerge—gives the burial and omits the resurrection; does not even mention the death so essential as an antecedent to burial, and wholly ignores the divine and spiritual side, including the purpose, promises, and blessings of the divine ordinance. Yet we devote volumes to this half of the material side. No wonder materialism invades and prospers in the church. In this policy we admit literary jurisdiction over divine problems and acknowledge the inefficiency of the "inspiration of God" to control and settle divine issues and disputes.

The literary world without controversy concedes the authority of each science to select and define its own technicalities, its peculiar verbiage and its use in that science, from which there is no appeal. Has the divine science fewer rights or less ability than human sciences to dictate its own use of scientific terms and give the finer shades of thought in their use? In human law, its special use of law terms is completely under its own authority. Can divine law, the perfect law of liberty, the law of the Spirit of life in Christ, have less dominion over its own legal verbiage? If not, then to it we must appeal for a decision of the disputes under the divine law, and from which there can be no appeal.

We can conceive of but one reason why divine science shall not settle its own controversies, and that is a want of faith in, and respect for, this divine science.

Whoever believes all that Jesus and the apostles said about baptism, adds nothing and omits nothing, has the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. This eliminates all opinions, theories, and speculations about which men wrangle, dispute, and divide, and gives us the only possible basis of Christian union, and is the divine foundation for the "unity of Spirit and bond of peace."

If the "inspiration of God" fails to make this question, or any divine problem, so clear that faith in the word of God cannot harmonize our disputes and heal our divisions, then he who attempts to revise and amend it is right, and we have no "perfect will of God," and division is justifiable and permanent. But if the "will of God is perfect," and we fail to harmonize, it can only be for want of faith in the word of God.

The need and demand for an infallible standard of right, truth, and duty is conceded by all as essential to unity and harmony. Rome claims it in the church, and the church in the pope. Protestants, by making human creeds and confessions of faith, substituting sprinkling for a burial in baptism, affixing titles to their ecclesiasticisms and their officials, agree with Rome in church supremacy over the word of God. In theory, preaching, and debating, they condemn Rome's usurpations and acknowledge the Bible as the standard of right; but when shown that in conversion and sanctification they abandon the Bible, they claim the direct work of the Holy Spirit converts instead of the word of God, and that feelings and conscience instead of God's word are the supreme evidence of pardon, from which there can be no appeal. So that it is apparent that Protestants have no recognized standard of faith, practice, and duty, except human creeds and confessions of faith, and the same assumed wisdom and authority which made them may at human will amend or revise them. Therefore they have no fixed standard whatever.

In an appeal to the "inspiration of God" we have the supreme court of apostles and prophets, Jesus the Christ being the chief Judge. This coincides with the words of Jesus to his disciples, saying: "In the regeneration when the Son of man shall sit on the throne of his glory, ye shall also sit upon twelve thrones, judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Matt. 19: 28.) And again he said: "Ye are they which have continued with me in my temptations. And I appoint unto you a kingdom, as my Father hath appointed unto me; that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom, and sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Luke 22: 28-30.) This is clearly spiritual Israel, not carnal. Then Jesus foresaw that disputes and divisions would arise and made provisions for adjustment and harmony. This divine court has in it the wisdom and authority of God and is the same by which we shall be judged in the last day. "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my words, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I have spoken, the same shall judge him in the last day." (John 12: 48.)

That Christians might have the benefit of a divine court instead of a human one, Paul rebuked them for going into the civil courts instead of the divine to adjust their differences. (1 Cor. 6: 1-7.) When we have agreed on the authority which shall adjust our contentions, Christian union becomes not only possible, but probable. Whosoever can reject this divine standard for adjustment of our disputes must lack faith in the word of God and needs a course of instruction on the divinity of the Bible as the wisdom and authority of God, and that a want of faith in God's word is lack of faith in God. Then to it we must appeal for authority. This will appeal to all who are fit for unity and harmony and separate us from those unfit for this union. Thus to attach a real value to outward forms of obedience to God is to be called a "materialist," "legalist," depending on outward forms for salvation. When baptism with them is only "an outward sign of an inward grace," the "outward" is only formalism; so it thus separates.

When we appeal to the word of God to settle by faith, the outward form of baptism is both a burial and a resurrection—a submerge and emerge. "Therefore we are buried with him [Christ] by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even we also should walk in newness of life." (Rom. 6: 4.) And: "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." (Col. 2: 12.) This needs no Greek scholarship nor a library of lexicons and Greek classics. The one thing needful is faith in God, manifested by faith in his word, without which no man can render acceptable worship to God. But says some: "Is a specific amount of water essential to valid Christian baptism?" The divine specification is "buried in baptism." In that is the "obedience of faith" in God and his word. When we substitute something for it, it becomes faith in, and obedience to, men, human wisdom and human authority. This honors and glorifies men and human wisdom. Baby baptism is an effort to secure divine blessing without faith in God. Not only because the baby has no faith in God, but the administrator has no command or example either to baptize babies without faith or to substitute sprinkling for a burial and call it "baptism." Hence it is absolutely without faith in God or his word, and teaches, "By grace are ye saved without faith." So that those who make baptism a nonessential also make faith in God a nonessential. But as long as it is part of the inspiration of God that "by grace are ye saved through faith," and "without faith it is impossible to please God," and "he who comes to God must believe," and "he who believes and is baptized shall be saved"—just that long will faith in men and human substitutes in worship be a solemn mockery, a "vain worship;" for Jesus said: "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men."

Protestants object that "God only said twice that it was a burial and a resurrection." Well, our lexicons define anything but once. Each science defines its own technicalities but once. The law defines its own peculiar use of legal terms but once. When a witness repeats his testimony, it is no stronger by repetition. If in the first statement he put all of his wisdom and veracity, the second could add no more.

If Christian baptism has any divine purpose, then it cannot be a nonessential, and those who so teach must claim that God acted with a motive, purpose, or intelligence. They do affirm that "it is an outward sign of an inward grace" (repeating after Rome); but if so, then it has a use and is not a nonessential. It is remarkable that they prefer to quote and accept Rome in preference to the word of the Lord; but Jesus said: "Out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh." (Matt. 12: 34.) Our divisions and controversies are the logical result of a lack of faith in the word of God. Restore a deep and abiding faith in God and his word, and they will disappear. It is evidence of faith in God to believe that all he said, did, or commanded had a purpose, and that purpose worthy of the omniscient God. So, then, Christian baptism not only has a purpose, but one worthy of the "everlasting Father," and he alone can reveal that purpose. This takes the problem completely out of the domain of human wisdom, philosophy, and logic; so that its purpose is seen only by faith, and to him who lacks faith it is really a nonessential, nothing in it.

Paul said: "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable;" and if so, he gave no nonessentials, for they are all unprofitable. But when men pervert or corrupt any ordinance or command of God, using it for purposes and in a manner he never ordained, then substitute some other act for it, retaining only the name, their statement is clearly correct. It is "nonessential"—"nothing in it."

When men put their faith in creeds, confessions of faith, ecclesiastical counsels, and the wisdom and authority of men, faith so corrupted is a "nonessential—nothing in it." It is faith in men instead of God. Any command of God may be so corrupted that, as an act of worship, it is "vain worship." Paul, conscious of this, said: "But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine [teaching] which was delivered you. Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness." (Rom. 6: 17, 18.) Thus God made two things essential to true worship, "the obedience of faith"—first, to "obey from the heart," and, second, as evidence of this fact, "obey the form of doctrine" delivered to us. Then, and then only, are we made free from sin and become the servants of righteousness; and "being made free from sin, and become servants to God, ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life." (Rom. 6: 22.)

One Step Paves the Way for Another.

BY F. W. SMITH.

The following has been on hand for a long while, but its late appearance in these columns will not lessen the force of the truth it teaches:

I take pleasure in hereby introducing to you Mrs. Alice A. Draper, late of Urbana, Ill., now of Eureka. For years she has been a regularly ordained minister of the old Christian Order. She brings ample testimonials of her good standing in the conference to which she belonged. Her work in Urbana was well known to S. S. Jones and W. H. Cannon, both of whom speak in high terms of her character and efficiency. She put in her membership here with us Sunday evening, August 9, 1896. She has been earlier in life the regular lecturer of the Good Templars. She has lectured on other subjects, and her lectures are highly spoken of by good judges. We hope she may be useful in this part of the Lord's vineyard, where she desires to work. She certainly deserves a fair opportunity to speak for herself and for the cause she loves. She would like to hold a meeting or two or more, and later to take charge of a church as minister. May the Lord open before her an effectual door.

J. G. WAGGONER.

Eureka, Ill.

Apostasy from the truth does not come suddenly and radically, but by degrees, a little now and a little then before the full journey is complete. But the first step, however small and seemingly insignificant, paves the way and educates for greater ones until the long strides of departure from God's way become an easy matter. Those who seek to adhere strictly to what is written in the law become in the eyes of that class who presume to go beyond what is written narrow and illiberal in matters religious. Here is a professed preacher of God's word recommending and indorsing a woman to "take charge" of a church! Not only that, but she is recommended for the evangelistic field as well. How strangely does all this sound in the light of God's clearly revealed will concerning woman's place in society and in the church! "I desire therefore that the younger widows marry, bear children, rule the household, give no occasion to the adversary for reviling." (1 Tim. 5: 14.) The principle here involved applies equally to maidens, and the old women, whether widows or maidens, are assigned this duty: "That aged women likewise be reverent in demeanor, not slanderers nor enslaved to much wine, teachers of that which is good; that they may train the young women to love their husbands, to love their children, to be sober-minded, chaste, workers at home, kind, being in subjection to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed." (Tit. 2: 3-5.) Thus does divine inspiration clearly lay out woman's field of operation, assigning to her the most important work ever committed to any mortal. But pretended preachers of the gospel seek to remove her from her God-appointed position and station in life and place her in a field God assigned to men. What is her place in the worshipping assembly? Let inspiration speak: "Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but let them be in subjection, as also saith the law." (1 Cor. 14: 34.) But what does J. G. Waggoner care for what the "law saith?" He would have a woman to "take charge" of a church! Let the apostle Peter speak on this point. "The elders that are among you I exhort, who am a fellow-elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, who am also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed: Tend the flock of God which is among you, exercising the oversight, not of constraint, but willingly, according to the will of God." (1 Pet. 5: 1, 2.) Wonder how many women there were among those elders Peter exhorted to "take charge" of the flock?

But we are told that Mrs. Alice A. Draper has great "efficiency," witnessed by S. S. Jones and W. H. Cannon, both of whom seem to have as little respect for the word of God as does J. G. Waggoner. No doubt Mrs. Draper possesses great "efficiency" for the calling wherewith God has called her, but she seems unwilling to heed that call. She aspires to the position to which God has called men, and men only, in preference to fulfilling her own divinely appointed mission in the world. There are more Mrs. Alice A. Drapers in this age, and their number is multiplying with the aid and help of so-called preachers of the gospel. But how can better things be expected of a man who speaks of the church of Christ as "this part of the Lord's vineyard?" Has God any other vineyard on this earth in which men and women are to work and glorify him than the church of Christ? Is the "old Christian Order" from which Mrs. Draper came a part of the Lord's vineyard? Is "the Lord's vineyard" made up of the different religious sects that cover the earth? If so, why this changing from one part of the vineyard to another part? Do the parts differ, and are we at liberty to choose the part we like best? Beloved, we are afraid of this "part" business and decidedly prefer the whole thing or none at all. The Lord is coming for his bride—the whole bride—and it will be a little risky to be off with a "part." Let all those "milk-and-cider" Christians who are hungering and thirsting after societyism and the new way of doing things examine the field carefully and prayerfully before launching out. It will pay any one who can to hunt up and read the controversy between Brethren W. T. Caskey and J. B. Briney on woman's place in the church. Brother Briney owes it to the world to put that discussion in pamphlet form. He did some of the best work of his life in that investigation.

Adventists Silenced.

BY WILLIAM J. MILLER.

On a certain day, when the writer went to a meeting to hear an Adventist preach, he was presented with a small tract, in which it was contended that the seventh day (Saturday) of the week is the day to observe for a day of rest. As this writer saw that the tract perverted the sacred Scriptures, he procured a number of copies of a tract written by David Lipscomb, entitled "The Sabbath: Which Day Shall We Observe—The First or The Seventh?"

After receiving the copies of this tract, a number of them were distributed among the Adventists. To this a reply was written and subscribed to by four Adventists, and the reply was sent to this writer, who reviewed their article and sent the reviews (two reviews were written) to them. There has been no reply received. Part of the reviews sent to them were in substance as follows:

While Moses was at the head of the children of Israel, journeying from Egypt to Canaan, they came to Mount Sinai. While they were there, Moses went up into the mountain and received the Ten Commandments on two tables of stone. In the commandments they were commanded to "remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy." (Ex. 20: 8.) Do not make the mistake of thinking that because this requirement was given on the tables of stone, that people are now required to keep that day. The requirement on the tables of stone was a repetition of a requirement that had been given by Moses before there was any commandment on the tables of stone. (See Ex. 16: 29, 30.)

We are not under the law of Moses. Therefore we are not required to keep the seventh day. (See Heb. 7: 12.) If we are to rest on the seventh day because it is contained in the law of Moses, why should we not kill cattle and burn them for sacrifice because that requirement is in the law? Do not make the mistake of saying in your heart that "the Ten Commandments were the only law of God that was presented to the children of Israel in the days of Moses." All the law given by Moses was the law of

God. (For evidence, see Luke 2: 24.) The "pair of turtle doves" were not mentioned in the Ten Commandments on the stones, though they were mentioned in the "law of the Lord" given by Moses. (Lev. 1: 14.)

Not only the law given by Moses that was not written on the tables of stone was done away, but that which was written on the stones also was done away. (Read 2 Cor. 3.) This chapter shows that the Ten Commandments are abolished. You say that "the seventh verse of this chapter does not say that the Ten Commandments were done away." I ask you: What about the twelfth verse? The seventh verse speaks of the "glory" of the "ministration" being done away. The twelfth verse speaks of the "ministration" being done away. Therefore, not only the "glory," but the "ministration," which is the Ten Commandments, is done away.

In the days of the apostles of Christ the disciples were accustomed to meet on the first day of the week "to break bread." (Acts 20: 7.) This day is evidently the day that is called the "Lord's day" in Rev. 1: 10. It is the day on which the Lord Jesus rose from the dead. The requirement to keep the seventh day was given to the Jews. It was not given to the Gentiles, according to the record. As God has never required it of the Gentiles, who has the right to make it a law for us, who are Gentiles? This is not implying that the Jews were to keep that day after the law of Moses was abolished, for no one is now under that law. We are "under the law to Christ." (1 Cor. 9: 21.) "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." (Gal. 6: 2.)

You made mention about the author of the tract not signing his name, but wrote only his initials (D. L.) instead. You, therefore, expressed an opinion that he was too cowardly to write his full name. I answer that "D. L." are initials for David Lipscomb. He has been editing the Gospel Advocate, and in his editorials he has been accustomed to writing only his initials for his name, and, of course, the readers knew whose initials they were. It is likely that the contents of the tract first appeared in the Gospel Advocate, being afterwards copied from the paper.

You made mention about Jesus admonishing his disciples to pray that their flight from Jerusalem might not be "on the Sabbath day." I say that your statement fails to prove that they were required to rest on that day. Jesus was foretelling the overthrow of Jerusalem by the Romans, and he admonished them to pray that at the time of the siege their flight from the city would not be "in the winter, neither on the Sabbath day." (Matt. 24: 20.) It was not because the disciples were required to rest on that day that Jesus admonished them to pray thus. Nehemiah had commanded the gates to be shut at dark before the Sabbath and to remain closed until after the Sabbath. (See Neh. 13: 19.) It is reasonable to suppose that it was a custom of the dwellers of Jerusalem to keep the gates shut during Sabbath days until the city was besieged by the Romans. Therefore it was no desirable time to be required to try to flee out. If this admonition of the Savior proves that we are to observe the Sabbath for a day of rest, it also proves that we are not to work in the winter; for they were not only to pray that their flight should not be on the Sabbath, but that it should not be in the winter.

In Gal. 3: 24, 25, we are shown that "the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster." Therefore, no longer under the law, as the law was the schoolmaster that we are no longer under. Though the law of Moses was abolished, some things that were required by that law were incorporated into the law of Christ; but the requirement to keep the Sabbath (Saturday) was not incorporated into the law of Christ.

Thoughts by the Way.

BY JARRATT L. SMITH.

It takes money, time, and patience to properly control and edit a religious paper. The Gospel Advocate is cheap at the present price. When I can first remember, it was not more than half as large and went at two dollars per year. Money then was not so plentiful as now, and no one, so far as I remember, grumbled at the price. Perhaps people then did not consider other things first. Now, after we get other things, if we have a little money left, we may take a religious paper—try it six months, anyway. The Gospel Advocate is less than three cents per copy.

I knew a man who owned six dogs (all of them poor), a shotgun, a rifle, an organ, a banjo, a violin, and who took two secular newspapers and once in a while went to the moving-picture show, and who, with his wife and eldest boy, used plenty of tobacco, who, when asked to subscribe for a good religious paper, replied by saying: "I am not able, and I am taking about all the magazines I can afford." Cannot the reader see why he was not able? Poor fellow! If he would give away or kill five of those dogs, keep the other one out of his dwelling and away from the church house, give away or sell two of the instruments, discontinue one of the secular papers, pitch the tobacco behind the backlog, and studiously shun the dime museum, he would have a jolly cleaning up and be able to serve the Lord.

"They" say the preacher has an easy time. Yes, brother, you imagine so. Why don't you try it? "O," you say, "I can't preach." Well, couldn't you help some one else preach? If you do not help, then you have faith without works, and you know what kind of a faith that is.

A brother is sometimes offended and quits taking a good paper because he is asked to pay arrears or has not been notified that his time has expired. This is extra trouble to the editors. You may tell when the subscription is out. Look at the date on the paper. If you should not want the paper longer, write the company, pay up the subscription (if any), and the paper will stop. This will cost you only one cent, while it would cost the editors dollars. They don't care to stop the paper after the time expires, for they might offend you in doing this. Their rule is, the paper will continue to come till notified to stop. Don't give yourself an occasion to be offended.

Preachers are sometimes accused of preaching for money. Brethren who do this pay little or nothing for a preacher's service. Yes, they sit under the sound of his voice and do not give him a cent. When they do this, it is like the pot calling the kettle black. He is no better than the preacher who preaches for money. A preacher may preach two of his best sermons on Lord's day to one hundred people, and late on Monday morning—yes, the last hour before the train runs—receive from one dollar to two dollars and fifty cents, and this is practically his week's wages. He has to pay some board, train fare, laundry, buy clothes, etc., on this pitiful sum. Now, you who give this, could you get through on this? Think a moment. O, how sparingly you are sowing! Some do not even give anything where a preacher stops at night and preaches during the week. If he has on good clothes, they are inclined to think he is overpaid; and if he has shabby clothes, they call him "trifling." This fellow gets mad if he is called a "Campbellite," but he calls his brother in Christ a "tramp." (Read 1 Cor. 11: 27.) What do you think of Paul's condition? If you call Paul a "tramp," wonder what he would call you? A man who puts in all his time in preaching has no more right to preach for brethren and receive nothing for labor than they would to plow a man's field of corn for nothing. A man who teaches brethren to do this is encouraging them in the wrong and places them where they will have no fruit to their credit. Who will put a price on the gospel? And if you should price it, will you price it at one dollar and fifty cents? Paul says: "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the corn." (1 Tim. 5: 18.) But some brethren say (by deed): "We'll muzzle him all right." "O, consistency, thou art a jewel!" but rarely, if ever, found! The brother who objects to a contribution on the first day of every week may have been baptized for the remission of sins, but he stopped close to the water.

Jewish Evangelization.

BY J. H. ROSENBERG.

[We print this article as a matter of general interest to our readers. Mr. Rosenberg is superintendent of Hebrew Christian missions in Tennessee. His work is interdenominational.—EDITOR'S NOTE.]

No earnest student of the word of God, no candid observer of the signs of the times, can fail to recognize the great importance of the question of Jewish evangelization; regarding it, as we must, not only in its relation to the wonderful people who are its subjects, but also in its intimate connection with the fulfilled and unfulfilled purposes of God and in its consequent bearing upon the destinies of the human race.

It must be admitted that great apathy prevails throughout the Christian church with reference to the spiritual interest of God's ancient people. To many the synagogue—with its shibboleth of the unicity of God and righteousness by the works of the law—appears as the chief corner stone of all God's purposes with Israel and the world. They must be reminded of a better "corner stone" of salvation, that Christ claims them as his own, and that he is not (as some pretend) "good enough for the Gentiles;" but that, above all, he is their Messiah, the crown and glory, as well as the aim and end, of all God's revelation in Israel. Further our Jewish brethren must learn that Israel's mission to the world is attained in the person of Christ, and in his mission to the world—that Christ is the truth of God bound up in Israel. "The Jew question" which is knocking at our door is in disguise the "Christ question." Israel's sin culminated in the rejection of Christ. And since his appearance and their despising the God-sent divine Messiah, King of Israel, their hurt cannot be healed, and Israel has become what he is—a stumbling-block, an object of endless strife in the wilderness of the world.

The Jewish problem in its complexity can and will be solved only when Israel is brought face to face with the Christ of the Gospels. The watchword in mission circles is: "The world for Christ!" We say: "The Jews and the world for Christ!" Yea, the world will be won for Christ when Christ is owned by his own. And as, according to Scripture, the consummation of the kingdom of God cannot come without Israel's returning to God and his anointed, how much and how earnestly should all those who are Christ's and wait for "his appearance" pray for and sympathize with the mission to the Jews!

The Jewish people can be divided into three distinct parties—the Rabbinical Jews, the Reform Jews, and the Radical Jews.

The Rabbinical Jews, to this day, not only appeal to the law of Moses and the prophets, but also to the "tradition of the fathers" contained in the Talmud to be as authoritative for the Jews as the Bible. These orthodox Jews may be also called the conservative party in Judaism, because they want to retain the traditions delivered to them by their "fathers" in their entirety, and to observe them as necessary to salvation.

The Reform Jews are those who have sifted the whole Rabbinical Judaism so long till they have discovered so many exceptions, alleviations, mitigations, and reforms, that theirs is an altogether new Judaism in life and practice, as well as in public worship. But it is not only the binding authority of the Talmud which they have thoroughly undermined, but, in a measure, also the divine origin and binding authority of Moses and the prophets. It is neither the Bible nor the Talmud which these Reform Jews follow, but they have selected from the Old Testament and the Talmud that which suits their rationalistic mind and which they think compatible with modern thought and life.

The third party in Judaism are the Radical Reformers, to whom Moses is nothing more than a Jewish Solon or Minus, a teacher of righteous laws and theistic morality; the Jewish prophets nothing more than poets, orators, and politicians, like Pindar, Demosthenes, and Cicero. To them neither the Bible nor the Talmud has any divine origin or binding authority, for they deny all revelation and positive religion in any shape. This party among the Jews would do away with the whole system of Judaism and retain only the ethical part of the Bible and the Talmud, or, as they call it, "the pure ideas of humanity."

The orthodox or Rabbinical Jews, the great majority of them, take the same position toward Christ and his gospel as the Pharisees of old. They regard Jesus as a false prophet, a blasphemer, abhorring his gospel—though they know it not. Here it must be observed that the orthodox Jews, living as the bulk of them do in Roman and Greek Catholic lands, where the Mariolatry of the papal system and the image and the saint worship of the Greek Church are so glaring, must be somewhat excused for their looking upon Christianity as a superstitious and idolatrous religion.

The position of the Reform Jews toward Christ and Christianity is not so simple. They have too deeply drawn from the well of modern thought and education to be blind as to their Christian basis and origin, or to be able to close their eyes to the great and salutary changes Christ and his gospel have wrought in the history of the world. They have been compelled to investigate and to seek an answer to the question: Why is it that the mightiest, most cultivated, and most influential nations are called Christians, and why do they adhere so to Christ, worshipping God in his name? The result of this inquiry is manifest in the position they assume toward Christ and Christianity, and is as follows: They say Jesus was a Jewish reformer, a good and true man, a religious genius, a spiritual teacher, whose advanced and enlightened ideas clashed with the backwardness of his time.

The third party among the Jews, called the "Radical Reformers," have till of late been expecting the time when Christianity will be swept away, with the synagogue also and all religions based on "Revelation," when no other cult would remain but education, ethics, or rationalism pure and simple.

Judging from the vast influence the Jews have exerted in the past in the development of the United States, their future influence will be still greater. Therefore every effort should be made to bring the Jews in touch with the grand truth of the Bible by showing them the beauty, the harmony, and the irrefragable demonstration of facts that have convinced us of the truth of the gospel. We realize how sublime and helpful a Jew enthused with the spirit of Christ can be, and also how depraved he can become if he separates himself from all religious truths.

If it be the ultimate purpose of God that "all Israel should be saved;" if it be also the purpose of God that there should be throughout the dispensation "a remnant according to the election of grace," it must be the will of God that the gospel should be preached to the Jews. "How shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?" The command, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," has not been repealed. The unbelief of the Jews has not repealed it. The deposition of the nation from its place of preëminence has not repealed it. Nay, the prophetic vision of Ezekiel would seem to indicate that this very preaching is to be the means of awakening the nation from the sleep of centuries, of producing within it a genuine repentance, of begetting within it a living faith. "He saith unto me, Prophecy upon these bones, and say unto them, O ye dry bones, hear ye the word of the Lord." "Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God."

The preaching of the gospel among the Jews has created a desire for the word of God among those who previously had but little acquaintance with their own Scriptures. They are listening with great attention to the missionaries as they expound unto them the scriptures concerning Jesus of Nazareth, the promised Messiah of Israel.

Fifty years ago there were not known to be in this country a hundred converted Jews. There are now over twenty thousand Jewish Christian believers. Until recently there was no New Testament in Hebrew. In 1886 the first copies appeared. The demand for this has been so great that six hundred thousand copies have been printed. These have produced a marvelous change of thought and feeling respecting Christ. The proportion of converts is, indeed, far greater among the Jews than among the heathen. The lives as well as the teaching of our missionaries have told upon the Jewish mind, other causes have also been in operation, and, in the opinion of those best qualified to judge, the nation is rapidly approaching a great spiritual crisis. There is abundant evidence that the leaven of Christian truth is silently, but extensively, working throughout the mass; the people exhibit in its various stages the process of religious fermentation. There is a widespread shaking and gathering of the dry bones of Israel, bone to his bone, as modern Zionism among the Jews shows; but unless the life-giving Spirit from above is added, there is no hope—the dry bones lack the essential element of life. The word of truth has gone forth among them, that word which never returns void to Him who sends it, and the results which have already accompanied that word encourage us to make good the ground we have won and to ply more earnestly the weapons for our warfare with prayer and faith and zeal.

Pray that the churches may be roused from their stupor and leaden indifference toward that cause which was the cause dearest to the Lord and his apostles while on earth. Pray for the mission to the Jews, especially for a revival of the holy zeal and sanctified enthusiasm that characterized the fathers and founders of the various mission societies. Pray for the missionaries and laborers in the Jewish mission field—especially that God would raise up the right kind of men.

Brethren, the doors of usefulness among Israel are wide open; the seed of the gospel can be sown nowadays among the Jews everywhere; there was never a time when more could be done to make way for Christ to the hearts of his people Israel.

There was a saying among the French peasants that "when of the wolf there is talk, straight in view he will walk." And is it not true? People that look for failure are sure to get it in some form. The lad who cried, "Excelsior!" reached the top of the steep hill. It is good to be brave and hopeful. Wrong is strong only when the good fear and despair. Its real summit, bright and heaven-illuminated.

—Joanna Baillie.

I can but think that the world would be better and brighter if our teachers would dwell on the duty of happiness as well as on the happiness of duty; for we ought to be as bright and genial as we can, if only because to be cheerful ourselves is a most effectual contribution to the happiness of others.—John Lubbock.

When we look back to reconsider, and, if it may be, to recapture for ourselves the primal ideas which Christ came on earth to revivify for men, there is one that seems to stand first of them, perhaps to overshadow them—simplicity, singleness of heart. The single eye, the single heart, those Christ called for—they only could see and know him.—William Holden Hutton.

It does not matter what the outward conditions or circumstances are, they are not to be allowed to touch the springs of joy so as to overcloud the skies of the soul. We are to rejoice at all times and to be of good cheer in sickness and in health, in poverty and in wealth, alone and with friends, abroad and at home, in loss and in gain, in life and in death. It can be done. Multitudes have done it. How we feel or what we suffer or where we came from or whither we go—not one of these things should be allowed to cloud our hearts or our faces, or to shadow life either for others or for ourselves. The Lord passed over a darker way and through deeper waters than any of us, and he kept his spirit calm and sweet, and comforted others as he passed along.—Robert E. Speer.

This is what Sir Walter Scott, the great poet and novelist, wrote about the Book of books: "The most learned, acute, and diligent student cannot in the longest life obtain an entire knowledge of this one volume. The more deeply he works the mine, the richer and more abundant he finds the ore. New light continually beams from this source of heavenly knowledge, to direct the conduct and to illustrate the work of God and the ways of men; and he will at last leave the world, confessing that the more he studied the Scriptures, the fuller conviction he had of his own ignorance and of their inestimable worth."—Selected.

For the banner over us is love; the motive that we cherish and illustrate is the motive of service; the gospel that we preach is the gospel for the whole world, which will never grow so old but it needs welcome the gospel of good will and brotherly kindness. Within the range of our activities is every soul that is hungry for a bit of gladness and sympathy; is every one that yearns for the touch of a true friend; is every community that yearns for honesty, that yearns for decency; is every one that can in his heart feel a true reliance that in the intense brotherly love and real capacity for mutual burden bearing is found the true significance of all that we prize in the government and the institutions of the United States.—Justice Charles E. Hughes.

Bonaventura was one of the outstanding mystics of the thirteenth century. He was known to the church as "Dr. Seraphicus." The following is one of the passionate utterances of his heart: "Open, therefore, thine eyes; draw near thy spiritual ears, unseal thy lips, and apply thy heart, that in all created things thou must see, hear, praise, love, magnify, and honor God, lest, peradventure, the universal frame of things should rise up against them—yea, for this the universe will fight against them that are without sense, whereas to them that have senses it will be a matter of glory, who can say with the prophet: 'Thou, Lord, hast made me glad through thy work; I will triumph in the works of thy hands.' 'O Lord, how manifest are thy works! In wisdom hast thou made them all. The earth is full of thy riches.'"

We must not cling to the knowledge of Christ after the flesh. That is the lesson of the ascension. Jesus Christ has ascended—that is to say, he has passed into the invisible world. Do not think of him as occupying a position in the sky which could be determined by a good telescope. Christ has passed into the invisible world, which is very near us, around us, among us. His presence is of a different kind from what it was, but it is not less real, not less near. We come close to him when we are lifted up in heart and mind to the region where he dwells, to the sphere where all that is good and beautiful and true has its home. There is no up and down, no near and far, in the spiritual world. If we have the mind of Christ, we are with him forthwith. All that on earth is good and true and beautiful comes from him and belongs to him in whom it pleased the Father that all the fullness of the Godhead should dwell. "If ye then be risen with Christ, seek those things which are above, where Christ sitteth on the right hand of God." "Set your affections on things above, not on things on the earth."—Selected.

He preached the glorious gospel
Of God's great, living truth;
He preached the Bible story
Of heaven and hell, forsooth!
He let alone the novels
And frenzied stories of the day;
He came direct from study,
And preached the good old way;
And, then, the sermon ended,
He gave his heart in prayer
And asked the Father's blessing
On the message given there,
That souls might see the kingdom
And God's great mercy seat;
That he be always faithful
And, like the Master, sweet!
And when his year was ended
(No word of praise they lacked)
The people all insisted—
So the preacher came right back.

The True Martyr.

BY DAVID LIPSCOMB, JR.

So he died for his faith. That is fine—
More than most of us do.
But say, can you add to that line
That he lived for it, too?

In his death he bore witness at last
As a martyr to truth.
Did his life do the same in the past
From the days of his youth?

It is easy to die. Men have died
For a wish or a whim—
From bravado or passion or pride.
Was it harder for him?

But to live—every day to live out
All the truth that he dreamt,
While his friends met his conduct with doubt,
And the world with contempt.

Was it thus he plodded ahead,
Never turning aside?
Then we'll talk of the life that he led;
Never mind how he died. (Ernest Crosby.)

This poem goes to the heart of things. There is too much dying in our conception of religion, and not enough living. Peter would have died in the garden for his Master, but he found living true to him and to his own promise even for two or three hours more than he could do. He was full of fighting and dying courage, but short on moral and living fortitude. And in his subsequent life, after he was converted and told to strengthen his brethren, after being filled with the Spirit, he found it difficult to stay in the narrow path. What was bred in his Jewish bone would come out in his Christian flesh. He dissembled about mingling with the Gentiles, and received a stinging rebuke from that other sturdy Jew, Paul, the Hebrew of the Hebrews, but one that seemed able to slough off all his race prejudice and stand forth as the first exponent of the brotherhood of man and world-wide Christianity.

A tradition tells of Peter's inability to stand the pressure of living. After he reached Rome, where later he died most gloriously for his faith, he became terror-stricken, and was fleeing from a life that had become too strenuous for him, when he met the Savior, who brought him to his senses with the words, "Quo Vadis?"—"Whither do you go?"

Without making invidious comparisons, Stephen had a shorter, easier time than Paul. Stephen died for Christ; Paul lived for him. Stephen was stoned once; so was Paul. Stephen was called in his vigorous manhood, when will power is strong and mental fiber tough and resisting; Paul lived through all manner of dangers, insults, and temptations to an age when the natural powers are weakened and surrender is easy. He could review the road over which he had come, and, looking forward, he could see nothing in life that looked brighter or more pleasing. Even stout-hearted as he was, the forecast was so appalling that he wished to depart and be at rest. "For me to die is gain." And when the end was in sight, he almost shouted for joy: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?" But he had fought his good fight; he had lived. "Then we'll talk of the life that he led; never mind how he died."

To us there is small chance of suffering martyrdom for Christ, but there is all the opportunity for living for him. In many respects our times are too good and smooth. As iron sharpeneth iron, so opposition and oppression bring out the strength of human character. It is easier to be true in the face of persecution than when everything is pleasant and "life flows by like a song." It is easier for a soldier to ride with Pershing than to stay in camp at El Paso. An indifferent soldier under excitement can leap to the level of a hero, while many a brave fellow with nothing to do but eat and sleep and mount guard has become tired to the point of desertion. So, in the Christian life, inactivity and ease have caused many a courageous member to grow weary of a service that seems to call for no exercise of his faculties and to go over to the enemy. There is always something doing under that flag.

To many of us there is a wrong conception of our everyday duties as Christians. We are disposed to undervalue them. But if the prophet should bid us do some great thing, would we not do it? We want to dazzle, to rise and shine, to appear above the horizon, to have a place in the sun. And as these things are denied to a majority of us, we become weak and sickly, and some go to sleep outright.

Attendance at the weekly meeting becomes a burden. We offer to ourselves many an excuse—distance, heat, cold, failure on the part of others, no preaching, poor singing, etc., but never blaming ourselves for these shortages. Many say: "I'll read my Bible at home." I have never known one who gave this last as a reason for staying away from the meeting who really did read his Bible at home. Most of them sit around and chew tobacco or smoke, and whittle, and discuss crops, politics, and their neighbors. The Bible to many who own copies is a sealed book, bought largely for a parlor ornament or as a record book of marriages, births, and deaths.

Many speak of the services in the third person, or, at least, in the second—not in the first. They say, "When are you going to have a meeting?" meaning a "big" or protracted meeting—not, "When are we?" And when the meeting doth appear, they appear, and disappear with its departure. And sometimes (I speak sub rosa) they fail to contribute anything to the preacher's support. There is a common saying in the country, when drought prevails in a section, that the people have failed to "pay the preacher." I want to say that if failure to adequately pay the preacher would bring dry weather, our beautiful grass-covered country would become a Libyan waste. An old farmer once said to me that he gave the "stray quarters" to the preacher. He was a careful man about his quarters and his cattle. They mostly stayed within bounds. Lest I be said to be talking for buncombe, I will state that I teach school for a living, with farming as a side line; and I wish my statements to be taken in part as confessions and not altogether as railings.

"I beseech you therefore, brethren, . . . that ye present your bodies [your lives] a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable unto God, which is your reasonable service." That we should do this when we are young and vigorous goes without saying. John Corley, when asked on his deathbed if he wished to be baptized, said: "No; I am too much of a gentleman to offer my old, worn body, worn out in dissipation, to Almighty God now." It is living, my friends, that counts; death is but an incident.

Commendatory.

BY CHARLES L. TALLEY.

My attitude has always been to try and occupy a position that was not extreme and to have charity for all. In this I think that I have succeeded fairly well. I have tried to avoid being critical; yet, believing that our relation to God and his word demand that we "earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints," I have sometimes criticized some things written and some things done by the brethren, and sometimes even condemned the course pursued by the publishers of our religious papers and editors.

I have just read the Gospel Advocate of May 25, and, while the writers are still where the perfume of flowers can reach them, and, too, at an age that a little praise will not cause them to be obliged to get hats with larger bands,

I wish to say a very loud "Amen" to the articles of Brethren Elam and Walling, on pages 515 and 520.

At this present time, while the minds of many are considerably stirred up over the kingdom and Christ's second coming, I do not see how it would be possible for one to state the teaching of God's word better than Brother Walling did. He has certainly stated in a brief, yet sufficiently comprehensive, way the word of the Lord on this subject. Why any one should override these plain and emphatic statements and try to theorize is a question that is too deep for my intellect. I hope that those that have not already read carefully the article in question will take up the paper of that date and read it carefully, and, with myself, I think they will say "Amen."

The question of the eldership is one that has come in for its share of questions, articles, and positions. It to me has been a question, as many others, that called for quite a bit of study; yet I have never seen it shrouded with the seeming mystery that seemingly has given so many trouble. The article in question treats in a biblical way the question of "qualification" of the eldership. It occurs to me that any one wishing to be guided by the Bible, common sense, and logic would be entirely satisfied in the matter.

A Settled Policy for Preachers and Churches.

[This article was sent to us by the venerable J. D. Floyd, of Flat Creek, Tenn., with the following note: "The clipping I inclose is the leading editorial in the Christian Standard of March 11. There is so much good sense in it I would love for the Gospel Advocate readers to have the benefit of it."—EDITOR'S NOTE.]

Here and there we find an elderly preacher living a life of rich usefulness and quiet content in the midst of the territory to which his life service has been given. He knows everybody within miles of his home. He is honored by hundreds whose parents he baptized and married. He is welcomed by scores of churches, when he can supply their pulpits, because related to the people and their work by a hundred tender ties that reach back to other days. He has accumulated a little money, has some pleasant avocation that serves to keep the slowing life-currents active, and can give more time to reading, meditation, and the social intercourse than was possible in earlier and busier years. In the midst of a people endeared by the service he has rendered them and the support they have given in return, he watches the decline of life's sun, and is happy as the twilight hour draws nigh.

In unpleasing contrast to such a situation is the later life of most preachers. There is a slight anxiety as to the future after forty-five. Any change of field after fifty-five is regarded with apprehension. It has been necessary, already, to move further and further each time and to evade the matter of age or the request for a photograph when corresponding with a prospective church. And, presently, when another decade has gone—how quickly they go, too—the preacher is trying to pick out a place among the three or four dozen communities in which he has lived where he can settle down and work for churches near by. He cannot decide the matter readily, for the people he knew best in former fields are no longer there, and the new generation knows him not. And when the decision is reached he is troubled about it still. If he could go back and buy a home and invest a few thousand dollars, or a few hundred even, in bank stock or some paying enterprise, he would be welcomed and at once recognized as a useful member of the body politic. But—alas!—all his surplus has been expended in movings oft, and he is a poor old preacher in a strange new generation. He has rendered good service, but the flocks he has fed are dispersed, the vineyards he has planted widely scattered and under the care of other shepherds.

Two causes contribute to the unhappy state of those preachers last described. First, preachers themselves have no definite program or settled policy as to what they would try to compass in the brief space of an active life in the gospel ministry. They will begin here, and presently, when prompted by inner inclination or outer indication to move on, will accept the best thing in sight and camp on it till the next best appears. And so the process goes on, two or three years in a place and the places far removed from each other, in all probability, till, at forty-five, the minister suddenly realizes that after preaching the everlasting gospel for twenty years he is the citizen of no State, the resident of no community, the honored member of no Christian congregation. He is a bird of passage, with no continual abiding place, no loved landscape, no comrades on the long trail of life. For all of this that has come to him, he himself is to blame in part. The old horse that has served one master well for years will be cared for in his age; but what is there for an old horse in the hands of strangers? So, also, an old preacher, only that often he himself is to be blamed for frequent changing from place to place.

But the fault is not all on the preacher's side. The churches are enamored of the idea that the applicant for their pulpit, if he hail from another State, for this sole reason must be of far higher quality than the true-and-tried man who has labored in neighboring churches for ten or twenty years. So they call the more distant candidate, thus luring a man from the district where his life should be spent, and making it necessary for the preacher near at hand, if he would advance in his life work, to accept the call of a church similarly misguided in another State. Thus our churches go on flirting with strangers, making misfits of every imaginable variety, wasting their substance, and, what is of greater worth, the precious years, while we wonder just where the trouble lies.

Of course no sort of pressure or compulsion can be requisitioned to put a stop to this manslaughter and mismanagement. Better all that, even, than any "system" that would operate to limit the freedom we have in Christ.

But certainly there is a way to exercise and preserve our freedom without playing the fool, wasting the resources of the kingdom, and courting failure in the Lord's work.

We are made to think of L. H. Reynolds, of Kentucky; J. W. Kerr, of Indiana; the Lowe brothers, of Ohio; T. B. Larimore, of Tennessee; R. C. Barrow, of Nebraska; D. R. Howe, of Wisconsin; J. H. Gilliland, of Illinois; and others of high honor in all the States, some of whom are still living. These are men who did not move about much. They settled to the task of evangelizing a given district and ministering to the churches within a reasonable radius. They have done the work of evangelists in a true sense. They have not been widely known over the "brotherhood" as "men of light and leading," but, measured by faithfulness to the task set by the Master, and by actual fruitage from labors performed, they are of our leading brethren; and these all rounded out their life service in comfort among friends.

We counsel young men entering the ministry to choose a territory in which to spend their life work and stick to it. Very rarely should exception be made to this policy. The immediate gains imagined are far outmeasured by inevitable losses sure to come later on.

And, ordinarily, the young preacher, when qualified for his work, should return to the field of his nativity. It will not be commonplace if he has had proper training for a period in other environment. The old haunts will have new attraction, the old companionships new motive, the old ambitions new incentive to effort, and, presently, the white slab in the ancestral plot will tell of one who was saved to serve—a home boy that put the best he had into his home land.—Christian Standard.

The Power of a Living, Active Faith.

BY E. G. S.

Paul, in giving a strong chapter on faith, said: "And what shall I more say? for the time would fail me to tell of Gedeon, and of Barak, and of Samson, and of Jephthae; of David also, and Samuel, and of the prophets: who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the violence of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, out of weakness were made strong, waxed valiant in fight, turned to flight the armies of the aliens." (Heb. 11: 32-34.)

This is a wonderful piece of composition. This whole chapter is a wonderful lesson to Christians on living the Christian life. It shows the necessity of continued watchfulness on the part of the Lord's people, if they would be ready to meet the great Judge of all the earth. It takes strong faith in the commands and promises of God to keep Christians always at the post of duty. God, through his word, tells man what he must do, and promises results that will follow his obedience; and all who faithfully obey the commands may be fully assured that all the promises will be fulfilled. God promises pardon, remission of sins, to all that will obey the commands of the gospel; and these are so plain that all who give attention to them can understand them and can obey them.

The apostles were commanded to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature, with the promise that "he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Enough of the preaching of the apostles in carrying out this command is put to record to show plainly what the gospel is; so that all may understand what it is to believe the gospel. To believe the gospel of Christ is to believe that the Son of God died upon the cross, that he was buried, and that he rose from the dead on the third day. These are the facts of the gospel, and no sinner can be saved that will not believe these facts. Then, too, his faith must be strong enough to move him to obey the gospel—must move him to repent and be baptized—or he can never reach the promise of pardon. When he has done this, he has the definite promise of God that his sins are forgiven. But when this much has been done, he has only made a start for heaven. He then needs a strong exercise of faith to move him on in a faithful, Christian life, in order to at last be prepared for heaven. To do this requires a strong exercise of faith all through life. So there can be no let-up on faith while life lasts.

But it is equally true that faith by itself will not save. For it is said again: "For we walk by faith, not by sight." (2 Cor. 5: 7.) This word "walk" means more than people generally think about when they read it. It comprehends the doing of all that God commands Christians to do in his service in this life. All this service, this walking, must be done by faith—faith in the word of God, which tells people what to do. Peter says: "Add to your faith virtue; and to virtue knowledge; and to knowledge temperance; and to temperance patience; and to patience godliness; and to godliness brotherly kindness; and to brotherly kindness charity." (2 Pet. 1: 5-7.) This passage involves things that Christians need to be attending to every day they live. The word rendered "virtue" originally meant courage in a literal sense, but in process of time it was used to mean more than that. It was later used to signify purity and goodness in the life. It takes much courage and goodness of heart to live up to all that is involved in the above passage; but they must all be obeyed, if we would secure the promised blessings. To add all these things to our characters just means that Christians are to keep on doing them as long as they live. To add knowledge is to keep on studying the word of God so that we may know just what it is to do the will of God.

Many people that claim to be the servants of the Lord are leaving out some things that God commands and are adding things he never did command. As an example of this, God commands people to be baptized. All admit that the word "baptize" means to immerse in water; but there are many that do not like immersion, and so they drop that out and substitute the sprinkling of a little water upon them and call that "baptism." This is wholly an unwarranted procedure. The Greek word "baptizo" does not mean to sprinkle; and when people are induced to accept sprinkling for baptism, they are simply deluded and defrauded. They desire to do what God says do, but are defrauded by being led to do what uninspired men say. God never commanded any man to have water sprinkled upon him when baptism was meant; but every man that would be saved through the gospel of Christ is commanded to be baptized. As an encouragement to be baptized, the definite promise is made: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.) But immediately, in the same verse, it is said: "But he that believeth not shall be damned." Unbelief in the gospel of Christ or any of its divine commands is enough to condemn any man in the sight of the Lord. Unbelief persisted in, in any part of the plan of salvation, cuts men off from salvation. For Paul says: "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin." (Rom. 14: 23.) Hence anything done as service to God that is not found in the word of God, the will of God to man, is sin. To sprinkle a few drops of water upon any one as baptism is sin, because it is not, and cannot be, an act of faith; for faith comes by hearing the word of God, and not the words of men. Hence the only possible chance to walk by faith is to do just what the word of God says; for faith comes through the word of God. Therefore no man walks by faith that does not live as the word of God directs.

The Church as An Educator.

BY M. C. K.

The term "educate," of Latin origin, literally means to lead out. It is correctly applied to the acquisition of knowledge, whether the thought be that of leading out the faculties of the mind in the way of their own development and enlargement, or that of leading them in the way of research into different fields of fact. Possibly the correct view of this bit of etymology is to regard the term as applied to, and including, both processes.

The purpose now is to consider the divinely appointed function of the church or of individual Christians as members of the church in thus dealing with the faculties of the human mind. Education, in the broadest and best sense, is a theme of far-reaching import, and Christians cannot afford to be indifferent to its demands. Moreover, the education of the human mind, however extensive and varied, is incomplete without a knowledge of the things of God in human redemption in so far as these are available. Hence, it is a theme with which the church is directly concerned, and it so happens that the church itself is distinctly declared to be the instrument or medium through which the divine wisdom is made known to man. We here note Paul's significant declaration on the subject: "Unto me, who am less than the least of all saints, was this grace given, to preach unto the Gentiles the unsearchable riches of Christ; and to make all men see what is the dispensation of the mystery which for ages hath been hid in God who created all things; to the intent that now unto the principalities and the powers in the heavenly places might be made known through the church the manifold wisdom of God." (Eph. 3: 8-10.)

This is a wonderfully instructive passage. It is richly laden with facts often overlooked even by thoughtful men because their minds are preoccupied by other things resulting from early training with a subsequent environment which more or less obscures their vision. Let us carefully examine the passage, noting, in the order of their occurrence, its leading facts. First of all, it declares that the grace was given to Paul, and hence, in a sense, to all other preachers of the gospel, "to preach the unsearchable riches of Christ." Secondly, that by this means they should "make all men see what is the dispensation of the mystery which for ages hath been hid in God." And thirdly, that the ultimate purpose of this arrangement was that "unto the principalities and the powers in the heavenly places might be made known through the church the manifold wisdom of God." Here are three prominent facts which challenge our most serious and thoughtful consideration. They are not only plain, but solemnly significant; and yet the average man of the church scarcely knows of their existence, much less of the great and solemn meaning which they convey. Let us carefully analyze them. Not only are men to "preach the unsearchable riches of Christ, but they are to "make known the manifold wisdom of God;" and not only are they to "make known the manifold wisdom of God," but they are to make it known "through the church." Thus, by divine authority, the church is the honored instrument or medium through which the wisdom of God—yea, "the manifold wisdom of God"—is to be made known to the world.

There are different ways by which a thing can be done "through the church." It can be done by an individual acting in his capacity as a member of the church; or it can be done jointly by all the individuals constituting a local church and acting in their capacity as a church; or it can be done by an association of any number of individuals acting in their capacity as members of the church.

Under this last method the modern missionary society can be classed, so far as action in the name of the church is concerned; and if such an association went no further than merely to act in this capacity, nothing could properly be said against it. The wrong of such a society consists, in no sense, in the mere association of individuals to do what the New Testament enjoins to be done, but it consists in the substitution of a man-appointed central board of supervision, management, and control for a divinely appointed board in each local church for the same purpose. It is clearly a displacement of the divine order with the human, and a transfer of management and control from the former to the latter. Whoever clearly and fully comprehends the genius of New Testament church polity cannot fail to see this.

Let us now give attention directly to the matter of education from the church point of view. Saint Pierre, of the eighteenth century, truly said:

The first branch of the education of children should be religion. They should be taught to love and fear God, but to fear him not as an object of terror. Terrifying views of an amiable and good God generate superstition and inspire horrible apprehensions of death.

But a greater than Saint Pierre said of the young preacher, Timothy: "From a babe thou hast known the sacred writings which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." (2 Tim. 3: 15.) Christian parents and guardians should see to it that those committed to their oversight and guidance have the right teaching and training in the home. As members of the church of God, this duty is solemnly incumbent upon them. Children, while young and tender and impressible, should not only receive the proper teaching and training, but they should be scrupulously protected against the baleful influence of skeptical and godless teachers who pretend to honor the Lord Jesus Christ, and yet complacently reject what he requires of men. This point should be particularly guarded when children leave the parental roof to seek higher education in some institution of learning. As members of the church of God, Christian parents and guardians should remember that they are still responsible to an important extent for the molding influences brought to bear upon their children, and that, as members of the institution through which "the manifold wisdom of God" is to be made known to the world, they must see to it that this wisdom not only finds a place in the hearts of those committed to them for training, but that no other "wisdom" shall enter these hearts that is in conflict with the true wisdom. This, and this only, is true education—an education which patiently and persistently leads the soul with all of its faculties into the acquisition of true knowledge until it is brought into complete harmony with God. Then will be exemplified in the life the wise words of Clarence Lathbury:

The mind is the patient teacher of the body. It persists in holding the body to good habits until those habits become instinctive. We see the overwhelming importance, then, of having the mind lighted up with the lamp of God. Then that light will fling itself out to the remotest corners of our lives, shining in deeds and speech. We teach the fingers not to be selfish or thieving, by pressing them into philanthropies and kindnesses, until they become voluntary angels of mercy. We teach the tongue to utter sentiments of light and love until it no longer wishes to sting like an adder or to pierce the soul with many darts. We teach the feet to walk in straight paths and to climb high altitudes of peace and purity until they no longer seek the valleys of sensuality or move along the ways of death.

Finally, the reader will observe that in considering the church as an educator, we have had in view the obligation of each individual member thereof to stand for the true education in kind and in degree, and to utilize all opportunities for its advancement, whether as an individual or in association with others. This twofold obligation rests upon every child of God as an integral part of the body of Christ, and it requires that the mind and the heart not only be where they will receive correct principles and right impressions, but equally where they will not be under the influence of vicious principles and receive wrong impressions.

"What Did Peter Mean?"

On the occasion on which these words were spoken they were significant and words pregnant with weighty meaning. If Peter had said that circumcision was necessary in addition to faith in Christ for the Gentiles to be saved, or if Peter had said, as our pedobaptist friends contend, that baptism came in the place of circumcision, and that men must be baptized in order to obtain the remission of sins, there would have been a mighty division in the ranks of the Nazarene that day, for Paul says (Gal. 2: 5) that he "gave place by subjection, no, not for an hour; that the truth of the gospel might continue with you"—that is, with the Gentiles. If Peter believed that baptism was a condition of salvation, he was too much of a coward to say so that day, for he rang out clear and strong in his defense of salvation by grace and through faith, without that faith being expressed in any bodily act or any act of obedience.

But Peter also said: "We believe that through the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ we shall be saved even as they." By "we" he meant we Jews, whether they were saved, as he and the other apostles were, during the personal ministry of Christ, or saved on Pentecost or after Pentecost. By "they" he meant the Gentiles in the household of Cornelius. Since the household of Cornelius was saved by grace, through faith, before baptism or any other act of obedience, Peter here sets his seal to the statement that Jews before Pentecost or on Pentecost or after Pentecost were saved by grace, through faith, before and without baptism or any other act of obedience upon their part.

In Gal. 2: 9 Paul adds another significant statement to what Peter says in Acts 15. Paul there says that James, Peter, and John gave to him and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship at the conclusion of the council in Jerusalem. Bear in mind, the one issue discussed at that council was whether Paul's gospel of salvation by grace through faith without works or acts of obedience on the part of the believer was the true gospel.

Editor Taylor is an adept at confusing, perverting, and misrepresenting the Bible teaching. In the above he blends the admission of the Gentiles into the church with the controversy on circumcision which occurred in the church at Antioch. One phase of this controversy had taken its origin from the baptism of uncircumcised Gentiles in the house of Cornelius. The question then was whether such persons should be baptized; and by the evidences of the will of God which had been presented to Peter, and which he presented to the brethren, it was settled definitely and finally. (Acts 11: 18.) This fact must not be overlooked, if we would distinguish the successive phases which this controversy assumed. The question now raised in Antioch was a different one. The Judaizers from the Jerusalem church did not controvert the propriety of baptizing Gentiles, which Paul and Barnabas had been doing, both abroad and in Antioch, but took the position that, after having been baptized and receiving the remission of sins and the Holy Spirit, they must be circumcised as a condition of their final salvation. The position is thus introduced: "And certain men came down from Judea and taught the brethren, saying, Except ye be circumcised after the custom of Moses, ye cannot be saved." (Acts 15: 1.) The fact that these men came from Jerusalem, where the gospel was first preached and where the original apostles had been teachers, gave their utterances much authority with the Antioch brethren. They insisted on circumcision, not because of the covenant with Abraham, which was the original basis of the obligation, but because of the law of Moses; and they did so because, as a part of the law of Moses, circumcision bound those who submitted to it to keep all of the law, while circumcision as a mere Abrahamic rite did not. Paul knew by revelation that the teaching was erroneous (Gal. 1: 11, 12), and Barnabas doubtless had learned the same from him, if not from other sources. Paul doubtless would not have consented to the reflection that was cast on his inspiration by appealing to the original apostles at Jerusalem, had not the Lord expressly commanded him to do so; for he himself says in reference to this, "I went up by revelation." (Gal. 2: 2.) It was the divine purpose to settle the question at issue, not only for the church at Antioch, but for all the world and for all time.

When Paul and Barnabas reached the church in Jerusalem, they were received by the church, the apostles, and the elders. Theirs was a thrilling story, calculated to bring tears to the eyes and to arouse enthusiasm in the hearers, since God was graciously offering redemption to all alike.

Touching and inspiring as was the occasion, some in the Jerusalem church were not willing to miss the opportunity of calling attention to what they regarded as a serious defect in the instructions Paul and Barnabas had given the Gentile converts. (Acts 15: 5.) Paul and Barnabas had a private meeting with Peter, James, and John. "And I went up by revelation; and I laid before them the gospel which I preach among the Gentiles but privately before them who were of repute, lest by any means I should be running, or had run, in vain." (Gal. 2: 2.) Thus we see there was a private meeting of these five apostles between the two public meetings of the church, the apostles, and the elders.

Those who were in error and were seeking to bind the law of Moses on the church of Christ were given perfect freedom of speech and permitted to empty themselves of every argument they had; then the apostles one by one showed them the fallacy of their position. Peter was the first speaker. His speech is recorded in Acts 15: 7-11. In his argument there are just three points. (1) That God, by giving the Gentiles at the house of Cornelius the Holy Spirit as he had given him to the apostles, made no distinction between Jews and Gentiles; and as God had made none, men should make none. (2) To put on the neck of those Gentile converts the yoke of the law, which the Jews had not been able to bear, would be tempting God—that is, trying his forbearance by their own presumption. (3) The firm conviction indicated in the words "we believe" that both Jews and Gentiles were to be saved through grace, the grace of the Lord Jesus Christ, indicates very clearly that they were not to be saved by keeping the law of Moses. The Jews could not be saved by the perfection of their obedience to the law. The Spirit indorses this teaching through Paul: "Yet knowing that a man is not justified by the works of the law but through faith in Jesus Christ, even we believed on Christ Jesus, that we might be justified by faith in Christ, and not by the works of the law: because by the works of the law shall no flesh be justified." (Gal. 2: 16.) But because men cannot be saved by perfect obedience to the law of Moses or any law, it does not follow that, when they have been saved by grace through faith in Christ, they should not walk in the good works which God hath ordained that we should walk in them. "For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus for good works, which God afore prepared that we should walk in them." (Eph. 2: 10.) Because we are saved by grace through faith, does it follow that we must not deny ourselves ungodliness and worldly lusts? Because we are saved by grace, does it mean that we are not commanded to live soberly, righteously, and godly? Because no one could or can be saved by perfect obedience to the law, does it follow that God will save us without any work or obedience? Nay, verily; for "this is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." (John 6: 29.) Because boasting, glorying, and salvation by perfect obedience to the law is excluded, does it follow that we are not saved by a law of faith? (Rom. 3: 27.) Not the hearers of this law of faith are justified, but the doers. "For not the hearers of the law are just before God, but the doers of the law shall be justified." (Rom. 2: 13.) "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.)

Peter, James, and John gave Paul and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship because they indorsed the position they had taken in refusing to bind the law of Moses upon the Gentile converts at Antioch and elsewhere.

Some Questions About Marriage and Divorce.

BY E. A. E.

Dear Brother Elam: I have just read your article in the Gospel Advocate on "Adultery, Marriage, and Divorce," and was very much interested in it, as I always am in your writings, and want to ask a question for information. So far as I know, this has never been discussed in the Advocate. The Bible says: "What God hath joined together, let not man put asunder." Sam Jones said: "What the devil has joined together, let man kick to thunder."

Are all who stand before a preacher or other official and take the marriage vow joined together as man and wife by God? To illustrate what I mean, I will give an example that came under my knowledge. A young man of some worldly goods married a girl of a good family. Everybody thought he had done well. But shortly after the marriage his wife began to spend his money. He would put money in bank and she would draw it out. After several years, matters got so bad that he raised a row, and she threatened to sue him for divorce. Rather than have a scandalous lawsuit, he compromised by giving her the divorce and nearly all he had, and was glad of the chance. She, after seeing she could not get any more money out of him, went back and tried to get him to marry her again. Do you think God joined a good and Christian man to a woman like that for life? I do not.

Another case that I know. A man married a nice girl of good family. People thought he, too, did well. But after a while domestic troubles came up and grew worse, as all troubles do, if not soon stopped. The man went to the woman and asked her, for the good of their children and the love and affection she ought to have for him, to drop the matter, saying, if he had done wrong, he wanted her to forgive him. She turned to him and said: "I have not got a bit of love for you." The man left her for several months. He then came back and begged her to drop the past and do better in the future. She, without acknowledgment for the past, promised to do better in the future. They went back together; but in less than six months the old trouble came up again. Did God bind a woman of that kind to a man for life? I don't think so. Do you?

I would be glad to have you write an article on this. I think it sacrilegious to accuse a just God of such unreasonable stuff. If I thought the doctrine true, I would be an infidel.

I have been a reader of the Gospel Advocate for fifty years, and a subscriber for forty years. J. H. HOUSER.

We appreciate our good brother's interest in the articles of the writer and all he says about having been a reader of the Gospel Advocate for so long a time.

Does he think the couples cited were living in adultery all the time they were living together as husbands and wives? And does he think their children were born of fornication? All this is true, if the couples were not joined together by God.

The only question to settle is, whom does God join together as husband and wife? If we cannot answer this, we can never know that any husband and wife have been joined by him. What does God do to join them together? When, in his sight, are they joined together? When a man scripturally qualified to marry leaves his father and mother and cleaves unto a woman scripturally qualified to marry as his wife, or the two comply with the legal ceremony of the country and live together as husband and wife, compatibility, and finances are serious ones and should be settled before they enter into this lifelong relationship; but a discovery of a lack of any or all of these does not dissolve this sacred union. Leaving father and mother and living together as husband and wife is God's way of joining husband and wife. This joins them, makes them one flesh, and no man, no law of any government, can put them asunder.

The Bible recognizes the fact, and provides the remedy, that there may be incompatibilities, financial problems, and disagreements; but it does not teach that the remedy is divorce. It teaches husbands to love their wives as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for it, and wives to fear their husbands and be in subjection unto them. It teaches husband and wife to exercise forbearance, patience, self-control; to consider each the other's comfort and good; to waive personal rights and privileges for the other's happiness; to manage the finances honestly, according to their income and the needs of the family, in independence of what others have or do, and in self-respect and contentment; and in all things to treat each other according to the Golden Rule.

All parents should teach these lessons to their sons and daughters in order to help them to be better husbands and wives when they become such; all teachers in schools and colleges should teach them; and especially all elders and preachers and other teachers of the Bible should teach them. Preachers and all teachers of the Bible must teach, not only that which pleases, but the whole truth on all subjects of salvation. The practical everyday living of Christianity—being sure enough Christian husbands and wives, parents and children, meeting all obligations faithfully, discharging all duties—constitutes a great part of the New Testament and cannot be overlooked without ignoring a large part of the whole counsel of God and human happiness. To fail to clearly, plainly, fully, and strongly teach these and all other practical lessons and daily duties and obligations is to prove untrue to God and the race.

The widespread and increasing divorce evil has done far more than to "kick many to thunder;" it has sent, and is still sending, thousands to perdition. It is a cancerous sore upon society, which should be clean and pure; it is a disgrace to modern civilization. It has come from disregard for God's law, from a wrong standard, and from pride and passion.

Help the Fanning Orphan School.

The trustees sincerely trust that all to whom cards are sent will not cast them aside, but will fill them out, stating what amount can be given cash, what at a future date or dates, naming the dates. Some who will receive cards have already made a donation; but if they see fit, they can designate on the card some amount to be given at a future date.

Let us call our readers' further attention to this worthy work and the necessity of assisting it now. The trustees are giving this work their time, attention, and means, and are glad to do it, realizing that they are doing nothing but their duty, which is a pleasure and comfort to them. They are thankful for the kind responses already received to these calls—thankful because generous men and women are prompt to help them in carrying on this good work.

Let us remember that to the extent of opportunity and abilities one person as much as another is responsible for this and all other good work. While the trustees have most cheerfully accepted the work and responsibility of managing the school, besides giving it time and money, thousands of others should respond at once according to financial ability with sufficient means to carry it on to the very greatest advantage.

Kind reader, you expect to make a donation to this school; so make it now.

A Plain Talk With Our Readers.

In January of 1885 I began my work with the Gospel Advocate. Brethren Lipscomb and Sewell sent for me to come to Nashville to become office editor and business manager of the paper. Since that time I have been very closely connected with the workings of the paper, knowing almost its every pulsation.

During these years many changes have taken place. While Brethren Lipscomb and Sewell, we are glad to say, still linger with us and we enjoy freely their wise counsel and advice, they can no longer be active in the work. It is not possible for them to deal with the many intricate problems that confront the publishers or editors of a religious journal. However, I am glad to say that we have associated with us other tried and true workers, who are doing all that they can to advance the cause of primitive Christianity. Besides these, we have a host of readers and contributors who cooperate most heartily with us in the work and are continually speaking words of cheer and indorsement.

The Gospel Advocate has lived over half a century and has passed through sunshine and storm, through prosperity and adversity, and I am glad to say that I think it has more warm and ardent supporters to-day than it has ever had before. We have never received more indorsements and encouragement than we are at the present time receiving. By the grace and help of God, it is my determination that it shall take no backward step. If Christianity is worth anything, it certainly is worth our very best effort.

While I have never published the Gospel Advocate for the purpose of making money, it has ever been my determination and purpose, if it be the will of God, to hold up the paper and, if possible, give it a wide circulation and influence for good. Through all these years I have been ready at any time to turn over the work on the paper to any one who could handle it more faithfully and successfully than I have been able to do. The paper is devoted to the service of the Master, and not to the selfish ends of any individual.

The help and most hearty cooperation of all our friends are solicited at this time. As we have indicated before, the present high prices of materials make it very difficult for publishers to meet their paper bills. Our subscribers and friends can help us very much in this emergency by paying their back dues and by soliciting new subscribers and renewing their own subscription for one year in advance. The blank paper on which the Gospel Advocate is now printed has advanced one hundred per cent; in other words, it is costing double what it did six or eight months ago. If you have not already renewed your subscription, do so at once, and make it a point to send us all the new subscribers that you can. We are determined by God's help to go forward to greater achievement in the publication of religious literature, and to this end we most earnestly ask your prayers and active cooperation.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Compiled by A. B. Lipscomb

Brother Elam preached at Portland, Tenn., last Sunday. One person was baptized.

Paul C. Young writes that three tent meetings are in progress in Louisville, Ky.

C. M. Pullias is in a meeting with the West Nashville congregation. The interest is fine.

Matthew Cayce preached for the Gilroy Church, near Antioch, Tenn., last Sunday and baptized four persons. Such reports are encouraging.

Married, at the Hermitage Hotel, on Thursday, June 1, at 5:30 P.M., Mr. Claire Merryman to Miss Mary Cecile Johns, the editor of this page officiating. He's a happy man now.

The first week of Brother F. W. Smith's meeting at Russell Street, this city, was attended with good results. Three precious souls were baptized into the kingdom. The meeting continues this week.

Married, on May 31, at the residence of the bride's parents, Dr. and Mrs. R. H. Baker, of Watertown, Tenn., their daughter, Ellen, to Albert Bryan. Brother Elam performed the ceremony. The Gospel Advocate extends best wishes.

Brother Sewell and the editor of this page are indebted to the students of Abilene Christian College for a copy of "The Prickly Pear," their handsome 1916 annual. Its contents reflect credit upon this growing institution, and especially upon the editorial staff.

From Homer L. Williams, Lexington, Ky., June 2: "The church of Christ in this city now worships at the new Masonic Hall, on North Broadway. We have a loyal little band here. All visiting brethren are invited to meet with us."

Married, on June 1, at Dixon Springs, Tenn., Dr. Rhea H. Garrett to Miss Laura Gaston Young. The ceremony was solemnized by Brother Elam on the beautiful lawn of the bride's parents in the presence of many friends. The Gospel Advocate extends best wishes.

M. S. Mason writes from Rogersville, Mo.: "There is a mission point at Barr, Tenn., where the people are anxious for the gospel. Can you have some one go there this summer? If any one is interested, let him communicate with Hale Freeman, Herman Kessel, or Bill Miller, Barr, Tenn. Let us spread the gospel."

H. H. Montgomery reports the following amounts received for the Shreveport church building since last report: R. L. West, $2.50; Dubart Miller, $2; Sister Verba Watson, $2.50; W. H. Warren, $10; Mrs. A. S. Davis, $5; J. Douglas Davis, $5; J. E. Christian, $2. These generous donations encourage us to greater efforts."

From Charlie Taylor, Hickory, Ky., June 3: "Let us rejoice with the angels. As a result of the mission meeting held by the Gobel Avenue church of Christ, of Paducah, Ky., eighteen were buried with their Lord and Master in baptism and ten were restored to his divine favor. 'Again I say, Rejoice.' I go next to Fulton, Ky."

From John W. Hedge, Council Hill, Okla., June 3: "Our meeting at Eram closed on last Lord's-day night with the largest crowd ever seen at a religious service in that town. I began here last Tuesday night. Our audiences are fine, considering the opposition to gospel preaching. I shall close here in a few days, then go home for a rest."

Miss Valla Elam, one of the accomplished daughters of E. A. Elam, gave in a most pleasing manner her graduate recital in the Department of Expression of Cumberland University, at Lebanon, Tenn., on Wednesday, May 31, at 8 P.M. She was ably assisted by Miss Martha Lynn Buchanan, violinist, and the Cumberland University orchestra. Miss Valla is a member of this year's graduating class at the University.

From J. L. Hines: "There will be a four-days' discussion at Cromwell, Ky., beginning on July 11, between the writer and Elder J. H. Tow (Missionary Baptist), of Bowling Green, Ky. The general church question will be discussed. Those desiring to come from afar will please write me at Central City, Ky. We are contemplating a great time. The brethren and sisters have promised to have plenty to eat and ice water to drink."

From George M. Rance, Fayette City, Pa., June 2: "On the fourth Lord's day in this month I hope to complete one year and nine months' service with the church here. After this we plan to go South. We intend to spend a couple of days with Brother and Sister Robinson in Washington, D. C., then on to Louisiana and Texas. I shall be available for meetings after July 15, the Lord willing. My Texas address will be Sabinal, Texas, Box 162."

From James N. Cox, Cookeville, Tenn.: "I am reading with a great deal of interest the Gospel Advocate of May 4, containing a complete commentary of the matchless 'Sermon on the Mount,' and take this opportunity of expressing to you my appreciation of your great work. This is, indeed, a great issue, and to you and your staff is due great praise. Other issues of the recent past deserve special praise. I desire to send a few of this issue to some of my friends whom I feel would consider it a treasure; so kindly send me from six to a dozen Advocates, and I will remit for same."

From L. F. Mason, Fort Worth, Texas, June 1: "I have some time for meetings in September and October not yet engaged. I will be in Tennessee at that time, and would like to arrange some meetings. After several weeks of suffering, our little girl, Hazel Ruth, died last Saturday morning. We did all we knew to do; had nine doctors with her. We wish to thank our friends here and at Moody for their kind ministrations in these dark hours. We no longer hear that sweet voice and tongue that had just begun to say so many sweet things."

The editors of the Gospel Advocate extend sympathy.

From R. E. Wright, Albany, Ga., June 3: "I began a meeting at New Hope, out seven miles from Albany, on May 26, with Rece Rogers, of the Nashville Bible School, to take charge of the music. He is doing his part well and our meeting continues with increasing interest. We have a small band of brethren there, and most of them are faithful. We hope to begin a meeting in Albany about the middle of next week. We have a few good brethren here, and we are praying to be able to establish a congregation in this city of over fourteen thousand people. Will you also pray for this meeting? Truly the harvest is great and the laborers are few in this great field."

From J. P. Sewell, Abilene, Texas: "Abilene Christian College has just enjoyed the most delightful commencement of her history. Great crowds, packing every inch of available standing room and including many visitors from a distance, were in attendance. The programs were of a very high order and given in a very pleasing manner. There were seven in all, beginning on Thursday night and closing on Tuesday night, with the sermons Sunday morning and Sunday night in addition. On the last night, after the program, I presented to the audience the proposition for an endowment fund, and in thirty or forty minutes exactly seven thousand one hundred dollars was secured. With gratitude to God and inspiring hope in our hearts we look to the next session. Such support, given so gladly and freely by those who know, speaks more for Abilene Christian College than anything I could write."

Keeping Our Hearts.

BY S. WHITFIELD.

The heart is the source or fountain from which come all our thoughts and actions. If the heart is good and pure, we may expect good thoughts and actions; but if the heart is corrupt, the thoughts and actions will be evil. Hence, we should see the importance of keeping our hearts right.

"Keep thy heart with all diligence; for out of it are the issues of life." (Prov. 4: 23.) The marginal reading says that we are to keep our hearts above all keeping, which would indicate that the heart is the first and most important thing we are to look after. Keep it right and all will be right, for the thoughts and life flow from it.

This passage also shows us that we have the keeping of our hearts. Do we realize the great responsibility that is resting on us? If our hearts are not right, it is because we have not made them right.

"The heart is deceitful above all things, and desperately wicked: who can know it?" (Jer. 17: 9.) Evidently this passage refers to the heart in its wicked state. It becomes bad by sin and rebellion against God.

"Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me." (Ps. 51: 10.) God is creating a clean heart in us when we are using the means that he has given us, by which our hearts are made clean. When we try to help ourselves in his own appointed way, God will always assist us.

"And he did evil, because he prepared not his heart to seek the Lord." (2 Chron. 12: 14.) This shows us that we must prepare our hearts to do right and find the Lord. When we seek in God's way, not in our own way, God will cooperate with us. We draw near unto God, and he will draw near to us. We will make no mistake in spending much time in preparing our hearts and in keeping them in the proper condition to serve the Lord.

"Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee." (Ps. 119: 11.) God's word is the great means that he has given us to make and keep our hearts right. If we fill our hearts or minds with that word, it will drive the evil out. Evil will not stay where the word of God abounds. We overcome the evil with the good seed of the kingdom. We ought to let the word of God dwell in us richly, for it is sweeter than honey and better than silver or gold.

James (4: 8) says: "Purify your hearts, ye double-minded." But how can we do this? "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren." (1 Pet. 1: 22.) The heart and soul are the same, and it is

IS QUICKSILVER.

It's mercury! Attacks the Bones, salivates and makes you sick

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel, when fifty cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and cannot salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury, and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel to-day and you will feel weak, sick, and nauseated to-morrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead, and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue, or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you do not find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel, your money is waiting for you.

purified by obeying the truth, or the word of God. So, if we fill our hearts with the truth, and obey it, we will make and keep our hearts clean and pure.

"But the Lord said unto Samuel, Look not on his countenance, or on the height of his stature; because I have refused him: for the Lord seeth not as man seeth; for man looketh on the outward appearance, but the Lord looketh on the heart." (1 Sam. 16: 7.) God looks on the heart, and he knows it. We ought to try to please God, but I am afraid that many are more anxious to please people than they are to please God.

"And thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thine heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might." (Deut. 6: 5.) Our whole being must go out in obedience to God when we seek to serve him. All of our obedience must spring from the heart. Like David, we ought to say: "Bless the Lord, O my soul: and all that is within me, bless his holy name." "But ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you." (Rom. 6: 17.)

Jesus had a pure heart; hence nothing but good was in his life. He went about doing good. "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God." (Matt. 5: 8.)

The Box-Supper Fad.

BY W. N. ABERNATHY.

It is not always easy to define the boundaries of morality and fidelity without encroaching on either the negative or the ultra limits; but it is seldom difficult for those whose desire is, "Not my will, but thine, be done," to find a safe position. James tells us that if we would exercise pure and undefiled religion we must keep ourselves unspotted from the world, and John says that if we love the things of the world our love for the things of God is wanting. Now, Satan is crafty and often approaches us with a sanctimonious smile and wearing a saintly robe, and, being an adept in the art of persuasion, deceives many of the "very elect."

This archfiend and enemy of all righteousness is now making himself quite conspicuous, going up and down and through the earth seeking whom he may devour. One of the leading baits which he is holding out is the box supper for raising money for school libraries. Of course, he does not have to resort to argument with the worldly-minded. Just simply announce that he has a little gambling machine with which all may have a little fun, and the work is done. But occasionally he meets a loyal child of God who seeks to "try the spirits whether they are of God," and some-

Iron the Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous Rundown [People 200 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Week's Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. Sauer, a well known specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, when, as a matter of fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring for stomach, liver or kidney trouble or symptom of some other ailment caused by the lack of iron in the blood. This thing may go on for years, while the patient suffers untold agony. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, rundown people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray, while many another has gone down into inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sauer is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents is widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The Manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

thing like the following dialogue takes place:

Where Drugs Fail.

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gallstones, kidney or liver disease, uric-acid poisoning, or other conditions due to impure blood, do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported no beneficial results. This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter:

very useful thing, and I certainly should be glad to assist in securing one, and am willing to make an honorable sacrifice in order to secure it, but I am a little doubtful about the proposed method of getting the money."

Satan: "Why, Friend Loyal, I am surprised at you! The method has been tried time after time, and has proved to be one of the surest ways to secure money from the indifferent class that has ever been devised. Why, we gave a box supper over at — the other night, and one young man who never gives anything to charity—in fact, a regular drunkard and gambler—gave forty dollars for a box which cost a certain young lady only ten cents to prepare."

Loyal: "That is one objection that I have to your method. It is too popular with the worldly class. As the large crowd is always going the broad way, I feel sure that your scheme does not lie in the narrow way. Besides, do you not think that this young lady belittled her character when she auctioned off her companionship to the highest bidder and went and ate with a drunkard and gambler?"

Satan: "Ah, well, that is all true; but, you see, we get the money and use it in a good cause. We will buy a lot of good books with it, and these books will do a lot of good, which will counterbalance the evil of which you speak."

Loyal: "I suppose, then, that if you were not afraid of the law you would steal the money, if you could not get it otherwise. Paul says for us not to do evil that good may come. (Rom. 3: 8.)"

Satan: "Do you really think that box suppers and other entertainments are wrong and should not be participated in by Christians?"

Loyal: "Not by all means. Solomon says there is a time to all things—a time to be merry. I have no objection to a box supper properly carried out and given simply as an entertainment and not in the name of charity. Paul says: 'Let him that giveth do it with simplicity.' (Rom. 12: 8.) The word 'simplicity' means liberality or singleness."

Satan: "Paul is talking about church affairs. The box supper is no church affair. It is a school affair—a temporal affair, if you please."

Loyal: "The fundamental principles are the same. We are admonished to bring our children up in the teaching and fear of the Lord. (Eph. 6: 4.) If we teach them to give parties to raise money for libraries in school, they will want to give parties to raise money for the preachers when they come into the church."

Satan: "Well, you may go on with your old-fogy ways, but you'll never

The Great Problem of Fatigue.

Has it ever occurred to you that practically every adult person who works is an habitual drinker of some beverage other than water? Physicians have explained the reason. They tell us that mental and physical work inevitably produce "fatigue," which is nothing more nor less than nature's call for refreshment or for stimulation. Under modern conditions of life (which we call civilization) it is impractical for most of us to drop our work simply because we are tired, and yet the scientists tell us that to continue our work during fatigue is injurious to our nerves and muscles.

They explain that under such circumstances the judicious use of refreshing beverages relieves the fatigue by removing the resistance to the nervous and muscular impulses, making our work easier and lighter, in very much the same way that oiling a machine reduces the friction and prevents its becoming overheated.

Nature has provided us with the ideal lubricants to overcome the injurious effects of fatigue. They are the xanthin (pronounced zan-thin) beverages, including beef tea, cocoa, coca-cola, chocolate, tea, and coffee. The scientists tell us that the xanthin beverages refresh the nerves and muscles by a process similar to actual lubrication and without affecting the will in the least, therefore without exciting one to overexertion, as is the case with artificial stimulants.

In the case of beef tea and other meat extracts, the refreshing principle is an animal product called "xanthin;" in cocoa and chocolate, a vegetable xanthin known as "dimethyl-xanthin," or caffeine. When these beverages are digested, they are all converted into the animal form of xanthin, which is a normal and constant ingredient of the flesh and blood of all animals and is essentially abundant in the tissues of young animals and children. Many scientists regard this xanthin as the natural stimulant, and as the explanation of the remarkable freshness, alertness, and activity of children and young animals. As we grow older the quantity of xanthin in our bodies gradually diminishes, we become less alert and active, and feel a great need for the xanthin beverages.

Coca-Cola is, therefore, the same as tea and coffee, except that it is carbonated, is flavored with ripe fruit extracts, and contains no tannic acid or caffeine. The carbonation of the fruit flavors combines with the caffeine to give a delicious and refreshing beverage that quenches the thirst and relieves fatigue more perfectly than tea or coffee, in spite of the fact that coca-cola contains only about one-half as much of the active principle, trimethyl xanthin.

In their desire to give the public a thorough understanding of their product, the Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet containing the scientific opinions of the world's leading authorities, explaining the composition and the refreshing qualities of the drink. Write for a copy, read it carefully, and you will understand why Coca-Cola is the nearest approach to a perfect solution of the world's greatest problem of fatigue. A copy of this booklet may be had by addressing

The work will be carried on through the summer under this tent.

Some have asked what our plans are

BACKACHE? RUN DOWN? TIRED? CLEAN THE KIDNEYS WITH HOT WATER AND "ANURIC."

When run down after a hard winter, when life indoors has brought about a stagnant condition in the circulation, almost every one is filled with uric acid; especially is this so of people past middle age. This uric acid in the blood often causes rheumatism, lumbago, swelling of hands or feet, or a baglike condition under the eyes. Backache, frequent urination, or the pains and stiffness of the joints are also often noticed. Dr. Pierce says that every one should have a good sweat every day—should drink plenty of pure water, and exercise in the open air as much as possible. This helps to throw out the poisonous uric acid through the skin and the "water." But for such persons as are past middle age it is often impossible to do this, and lime salts are deposited in the arteries, veins, and joints, causing all kinds of distressing conditions. An antidote for this uric-acid poison is to take hot water before meals and "Anuric." Ask your druggist for Doctor Pierce's "Anuric," or send Doctor Pierce's Invalids' Hotel and Surgical Institute in Buffalo, N. Y., a dollar bill for a full treatment, or ten cents for a trial package.

"Anuric" is a recent scientific discovery by Dr. Pierce. "Anuric" drives the uric acid out of your body. It is a uric-acid solvent so effective that it eliminates these poisons, cleanses the system, allows your overworked kidneys to resume their normal functions; and just a few-days' treatment with "Anuric" will convince you, because it brings lasting relief to your painful, aching rheumatic joints—no more backache or dizzy spells. Try it now and be convinced.

and what is our loss. Our plans are to erect a neat, commodious, brick building. Our lot and building, with the building furnished, will cost us not less than nine thousand dollars. The lot where our former building stood has been traded for a larger one and a difference of five hundred dollars paid. The present lot is worth twenty-five hundred dollars. Our lot is clear, our tent is paid for, and all want incurred by the fire, immediate wants, attended to. We now have on hand something near two thousand dollars. This is applied on our building fund. We are wanting four thousand and five hundred dollars. Of course we are not asking the churches for all this money; but I do know, my brethren, that no worthier appeal has ever been put before the churches. We all stood by and saw our own church building burn with the number of houses and contents of our brethren—all gone. We then did not know what it meant. The Plan of Salvation.

BY WINNIE MORRIS.

If a person desires to become a Christian, he has four important steps to make. But before this he must hear the word of God.

"The word of God" is "the sword of the Spirit." (See Eph. 6: 17.) It is to be preached to all nations. "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." (Matt. 28: 19.)

1. He must believe in Jesus Christ. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3: 16.) Again: "Without faith it is impossible to please him [God]: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." (Heb. 11: 6.)

2. He must repent of his sins. "Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish." (Luke 13: 3.)

3. He must confess Christ. "Whosoever therefore shall confess me before men, him will I confess also before my Father which is in heaven." (Matt. 10: 32.) "With the mouth confession is made unto salvation." (Rom. 10: 10.)

4. He must be baptized. "There is one Lord, one faith, one baptism." (Eph. 4: 4, 5.) "Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." (Acts 2: 38.)

All four steps are essential to salvation. Without them there is no promise. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." (Matt. 7: 12.) "If any man love me, he will keep my commandments." (John 14: 23.)

After taking these four steps he becomes a Christian and a servant of God and has put on Christ. "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." (Gal. 3: 27.) After we get into Christ, we are new creatures: "Old things are passed away; behold, all things are become new." (2 Cor. 5: 17.) We have been translated from the power of darkness into the kingdom of God's dear Son. Now we are followers and workers in the vineyard of the Master. We are to put on the whole armor of God. "Stand therefore, having your loins girt about with truth, and having on the breastplate of righteousness; and your feet shod with the preparation of the gospel of peace; above all, taking the shield of faith, wherewith ye shall be able to quench all the fiery has perhaps relieved more sufferers than any other known remedy in the same length of time. More than one hundred thousand bottles sold in the past four months under an absolute guarantee to give satisfaction or money refunded, and only three bottles have been returned. Many have testified that they had suffered with rheumatism and lumbago until they had been forced to give up their work because they could not use their limbs. darts of the wicked. And take the helmet of salvation, and the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." (Eph. 6: 14-17.) Also, pray and search the Scriptures. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." (2 Tim. 2: 15.)

We are to follow faithfully the teaching of Christ and his apostles in all things.

1. We are to be pure and separate from the world. "If any man among you seem to be religious, and bridleth not his tongue, but deceiveth his own heart, this man's religion is vain. Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." (James 1: 26, 27.)

2. We are to meet upon the first day of the week to break bread and give to the support of the Lord's work. "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is; but exhorting one another: and so much the more, as ye see the day approaching." (Heb. 10: 24, 25.)

3. We are to continue steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine until death. "Blessed is the man that endureth temptation: for when he is tried, he shall receive the crown of life, which the Lord hath promised to them that love him." (James 1: 12.) "Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." (Rev. 2: 10.) "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." (Rev. 22: 14.)

Louise went to Napoleon on a delicate and humiliating mission.

Muhlbach's Historical Romances

These wonderful volumes tell the private, personal life and character of great men and women. History is here written in story form. These volumes are beyond question the most fascinating historical romances that have ever been given to the world. They contain a history of the crises in Germany, Austria, Russia, England, Switzerland, Egypt, France, Holland and Prussia during two hundred years of startling events, told in intensely interesting and romantic form. All classes are represented in these volumes as they lived and loved, thought and acted. Thus the human interest always prevails and has given this set of books enduring popularity. These wonderful historic romances are among the books that never die. They are interesting, instructive, reliable, truthful, wholesome and good. In the volume devoted to Napoleon and Blucher practically every historic character that the life of the great emperor touched in any way is here given—all the men and women of his time. The new edition is printed from new plates, upon extra quality of paper from easy-to-read type, are attractively illustrated and bound in Art Buckram Cloth, titles stamped in gold.

The Encyclopedia Britannica says: "Muhlbach's works show a talent for lively description and narration that gives enduring popularity and a power in weaving alluring romances from those stirring times that is unsurpassed."

you could not get another jar of Mentholatum, what a price you would put upon the remnant of the jar on your dresser!

That is, if you are one of the millions who have come to consider that little Mentholatum jar a very friend in need.

In the winter you fight your coughs and colds, sore throat and croup, with it. In the summer you seek relief from the smarting of sunburn or the sting of insects by rubbing with it.

All the year round you need it after shaving or to apply on cuts, burns, scalds and bruises, sores, skin abrasions, or chapped face and hands, not to mention its usefulness for headaches.

The jar of Mentholatum, neat, clean, handy, and always efficient, is now much more of a necessity than a luxury in millions of homes.

The Master's Vineyard

Alabama.

Montgomery, May 26.—Last Wednesday night our meeting at Prichard, a suburb of Mobile, closed out, having continued for twelve days and nights. The interest and attendance were very good. However, there is quite a bit of prejudice there that must be overcome. There is to be found there, as in nearly all places where great numbers of working men and women live, many such isms as Holiness, Advent, and Russellite; and where these have taken hold it is almost impossible to get the gospel fully before the folks. The result of the meeting was that five persons were baptized; and on Lord's day I crossed over the bay and baptized a gentleman and his wife, making seven baptisms in all. Brother Ivison Boles was with me in the meeting, leading the song service and preaching a few times. One pleasure of the meeting was that we could have the privilege of going out to the Mobile and Ohio shops and speaking to quite a crowd of men at the noon hour. Here we preached to more men than one usually speaks to at any church service, and they were very respectful and courteous. One located at this point could, by keeping that part of the work up, soon reach a great number of men. I go on Saturday, June 10, to Luverne for a two-weeks' meeting. Brethren Boles and Jordan are this week at Bay Minette.

CHARLES L. TALLEY.

California.

Tulare, May 27.—We had a good service last Sunday with an increasing number, as we had with us a lady and her three sons who had never met with us before. The Bible lesson was from the fourteenth chapter of Acts. The writer gave a talk from the first division of the Psalms at the eleven o'clock service. The best meeting we have had was on May 14, when Brother Perkins and family, of Hanford, came over; also Brother S. J. White and wife and Brother Everette White and family, from Fresno, motored down and was with us. We had dinner on the lawn and two splendid sermons by Brother Perkins. We also had an enjoyable time with the Whites. Brother Everette White's wife is a daughter of Brother T. B. Larimore, of the Gospel Advocate staff. It was surely an inspiration to the writer to meet with these true Christian friends. We had a much larger audience in the afternoon, as we had invited some of our friends from the Methodist, Baptist, and Christian churches to meet with us. The people of the West have very little conception of the church of Christ and what it stands for. I put notices in the local papers of our place of meeting, and people would ask: "What denomination is that?" "What doctrine do they teach?" I would tell them it was no denomination and that the doctrine we teach is that found in the Bible. Brethren, we cannot be too particular about calling Bible things by Bible names. We hope to be able to have some able brother come and be with us in a series of meetings before the year is gone.

Colorado.

Dolores, May 24.—I am at this writing in Dolores, in the extreme southwestern corner of the State, where I began a meeting last night—the first ever held here by our brethren. I am preaching in the Methodist meeting-house, and I believe we will have a good hearing. Only four members here. They have never met for worship, but are very anxious to have a congregation planted here that will reach out after Colorado people. For four years I have been trying to get off from my work in other sections of the State and start the work at Dolores, but have always been too busy; and even now I left Olathe the very day our new tent arrived there for the summer's campaign. This I was constrained to do by the appealing letters I constantly received from Brother A. W. Arnold, of Dolores. He is a godly man whose daily prayer for years has been that God might see fit to send a man to Dolores and plant here the cause of Jesus Christ. He is extremely happy now that his prayers have been answered; and I, feeling myself divinely sent in answer to his prayers, experience a peculiar delight in inaugurating the work here. We need a man located here all the time. At present I am forced to work in three sections of the State separated from each other by the Rocky Mountains. This is expensive from a financial standpoint and has my work too widely scattered for its best interest. But we can do no better now. In three weeks I will have crossed the Rocky Mountains four times in order to keep the work going in three sections of the State. Yesterday we barely escaped death, when a mountain "slide" carried away more than one hundred yards of the railroad track just ahead of us. It was one mile straight down to the bottom of the canon, where we would have been carried by the "slide." This is the second time death has passed so close to me within three months. The other time the "slide" cut the engine off from our train, but left us undisturbed. The few brethren here are very poor, but earnest. I am living alone in a vacant "shack" here while I do this Dolores work, though I take my meals "out"—as I have invitation. At present I partake in this respect of the hospitality of Brother Arnold, a shoemaker. Dolores must have a congregation of disciples.

E. C. FUQUA.

India.

Satara, March 17.—We are being treated to some real, dry, hot weather at present, and we may expect it to remain this way until June, when the rainy season should begin. The last report from Brother Umrao Singh was to the effect that his condition was not improved. Pray for him. This week an active worker in a prominent mission came to Satara and demanded baptism. He was buried with his Lord in baptism and went on his way rejoicing, full of determination to lead others out of error. We pray that he may prove a valuable addition to the cause in India. The harvest season is about over now and our workers will be able to reach more of the people. They are busy. I hope to join them for a tour before the big heathen festival which occurs early next month. We hope to distribute several thousand tracts and Gospels at that time.

W. HUME MCHENRY.

Louisiana.

Shreveport, May 29.—I preached at Fullerton yesterday to a nice number of people. We have a few good, strong, loyal members there, who are working hard to build up the Master's cause at that place. I wish to make an appeal to the brotherhood in general. We have not more than twenty congregations of Christ in the whole State of Louisiana. There are thousands of people here that never heard a gospel sermon, and there are thousands that never heard of the church of Christ. Are we doing our duty? God is going to hold us to an account for this. There are only two cities in this State that have congregations in them. Think of it! How can we say that we know God is pleased with our efforts? Let me suggest that every congregation that is strong enough send a preacher here for at least four weeks. There is not a congregation anywhere that has as many as two hundred members but what is able to send a man into this field. People are starving for the gospel. Brethren, this is the time to get ahead in this territory. We have not so much to contend with as we will have in a few years. Brethren, be wise. We are going to lament over our slothfulness if we do not begin this work this year. This is not an idle tale. Use your young men; send them; it will be the best practice they will ever have; and send as many older preachers as you can. Come to our rescue. It is well to sound the gospel in, but do not forget to sound it out. "Come over . . . and help us." Address me at 1906 Walnut Street, Shreveport, La. I have a number of places on my list that have asked me to help them, but my time is all taken up. My prayer to God is that you will come to our assistance.

World Peace.

How can peace be brought about that all the world may rejoice? We can enact laws and enforce them, but we cannot legislate sin out of the world by any power but the love of God. God is love, and Christ is the Prince of Peace; then where else can we go for help? Man's extremity is God's opportunity.

World-wide peace can come from God to man. One writer described the European war as the failure of Christianity because many of the countries that are at war are called "Christian nations." Christ has not failed. But it goes to show plainly that if we engage in human wars we will suffer. There is a better way to settle difficulties, and a way that we can establish peace on earth, good will toward men. Then why do men think they can establish peace by human war, when Christ is the Prince of Peace? When one of the apostles used a sword, Christ said unto him: "Put up again thy sword into its place: for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." Then are we going to continue to perish by the sword? May we that have eyes be made to see, and we that have ears hear the truth. We should not find fault with God, but rather with man, if we continue in human war. What kind of a sword are we to use to fight the greatest battle and win the greatest victory? Our weapon is "the sword of the Spirit, which is the word of God." (Eph. 6: 17.) When we all get filled with the Spirit of God, human wars will cease to exist. We must not think we can get along without God; "for whosoever exalteth himself shall be abased; and he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." (Luke 14: 11.)

Then the thing for us to do is for us all to get busy. We have tried for years to clean up things from the outside; but we find that sin is the cause, and it takes another remedy. We must go to the root of the thing and work to free men from sin. Many are preaching contention by finding fault with every one but themselves. We must not exalt ourselves. The main thing is to know that we are born of God and that his kingdom is in our heart. "For the kingdom of God is not meat and drink: but righteousness, and peace, and joy in the Holy Ghost." (Rom. 14: 17.) "Then," you say, "what am I to do?" Repent, and pray like Christ did: "Thy kingdom come. Thy will be done in earth as it is in heaven." In earth means in us, for we are of earth; and God wants our hearts to dwell in, that he may speak peace to our souls. God created us and gave us all that we have. That is why he demands so much love from us. We may try to fix things to suit ourselves; but if we are to succeed, we will have to do as God says. "Love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind, and with all thy strength." This is the first commandment; and the second is: "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." If you do this, you will never do anything that is wrong; for God will give you strength in the hour of trouble to protect you.

"The God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." This was spoken by Daniel to show that all who love God and do his will are a part of his kingdom. Organized or unorganized, we all catch the hypocrites; and Christ says his church shall be pure. "That he might present it to himself a glorious church, not having spot, or wrinkle, or any such thing; but that it should be holy and without blemish." (Eph. 5: 27.) There is no one class of people just like this today; but the elect, or true Christians everywhere, when picked out by Christ and planted together, will be like this, and they will be the true church. So do not be confused, but preach more of God's love and peace and less contention on doctrines, and you will be a blessing to your fellow-men. The real purpose of our Savior was to save men from sin. Then, any people that preach that you must be converted and saved from sin and that God's kingdom is in the hearts of the people have helped Christ to save them from sin. When you get salvation, righteousness, peace, and joy will be in your heart and soul; for these three things are what the kingdom of God is composed of. When we accept Christ as our personal Savior and do what he wants us to do, then we are in Christ's kingdom. Blessed are we when we are willing to be humble and not exalt ourselves, for our Bible tells us this: "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven."

Then let each class of Christian people go ahead doing good and not fighting other Christians, but helping them, if they can, to see the light, to know God, and to feel his power in their souls; for there is not much to a religion that does not speak peace and joy to your soul and help you to love your enemies. "Awake to righteousness, and sin not: for some have not the knowledge of God: I speak this to your shame." (1 Cor. 15: 34.) Teach your children to love God and be kind to one another, so that our country may always stand as a great nation; for when a nation turns from God, it is sure to fall. I do not believe it is pleasing to God for Christians to keep dividing against each other; it is caus-

Florida.

Ehren, May 30.—Sunday night marked the close of a meeting of three weeks' duration at Tarpon Springs. Two souls were added to the church.

J. PAUL KIMBRELL.

Kentucky.

Paducah, May 29.—We are entering the third week of our meeting at the corner of Sixth and Husbands Streets, with twenty-three additions—seventeen baptisms and six restorations. Two of those restored were from the "dissidents." "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow." CHARLIE TAYLOR.

Monticello, June 1.—Some time ago I set before the readers of the Gospel Advocate the condition and prospects for this field. In said report I made an earnest request for a helper for the months of July to November. I am sorry to say the response to said request has been almost nothing. Our work for the past six months has been very encouraging. Our congregations have grown, the brethren are much stronger, the prospects are very encouraging. The cause is in fine condition. Our opposition now content themselves by trying to keep the people from hearing. This has never availed much. The time is near when I will begin the tent work. I feel sure that our work would be much more successful with some one to help me. My observation has been that with two working together, their strength is more than doubled. Just at this time, it occurs to me, the prospects are great, and there is need for wise and earnest effort. If I could have a young man who can sing to aid in at least three meetings, the experience would be very beneficial to him, and I could then use him in a few places which I will not be able to reach otherwise. Brethren, will you not have some fellowship in this work? I am not asking for help for myself, but these are the facts. A small expense now, and a greater good can be done than at any later time. If you are willing to fellowship in this work, please write me at once. I would be glad to hear from any young brother that is willing to endure hardness as a good soldier. The experience should be a good school, which can be very profitable to one who wants to be useful. Since November 1, 1915, to May 30, 1916, I have received from outside sources, $31; from the home field, $268.50. Total remuneration, $299.50. I make this report for the reason that former reports of our work have been made. In conclusion, I want to say that I think a great amount of good can be accomplished by a small expenditure just at this time.

Nashville, May 16.—Our meeting at Reid Avenue, conducted by Brother S. H. Hall, began on the third Sunday in April and closed on Wednesday evening after the first Sunday in May. It was a good meeting. The crowds were large and attentive all the time.

The preaching was truth clearly and forcefully presented, and we believe that much and lasting good was done. Five baptisms, two took membership, and one was reclaimed. Reid Avenue has now about three hundred members, and we trust that the good work will go on and perfect harmony continue to reign among us. A. S. DERRYBERRY.

Obion, June 1.—Our meeting here at Obion closed last Sunday night. Brother John R. Williams did the preaching and Brother Harry Hayes led the song service. This meeting began on the second Sunday in May and continued over three Lord's days. The people in this community were very busy, yet we had a good attendance at almost every service. Brother Williams did some strong, practical preaching, and we trust that much and lasting good was done. Two were reclaimed and two took membership with the congregation. At the present time there is a lack of religious interest in Obion, which makes it very difficult to have the desired results; but the seed has been sown, and we await the reaping with hope and anxiety.

Rock Springs, May 23.—Our meeting has been put off till the fourth Sunday in June. I will probably begin a mission meeting at Alpine on the first Sunday in June, instead of beginning here that date. I shall begin at Krum on the third Sunday in July.

Houston, May 28.—This has been a busy day with me. I have preached three times—twice in Houston and once in Galveston—and traveled about one hundred and twenty-five miles. I baptized two persons in Galveston, and had another confession here in Houston to-night, to be baptized.

G. A. DUNN.

Dallas, June 1.—The meeting with the Central Church, in the city of Fort Worth, began on the first Sunday in May and closed on the third Sunday. Brother W. M. Davis labors with this congregation. He is a hard worker and is greatly loved by the entire church. He preached the first two sermons of the meeting. The Central Church recently launched "out into the deep" and let down their net. They sold their old property and bought a beautiful house that had been built by the Baptists. It has a splendid auditorium, besides twelve classrooms. So far as I know, this is the best house owned by our brethren in Texas. The entire church stood nobly by the meeting, and there was not a poor service. The preachers in Fort Worth attended much and assisted greatly. It was an inspiration to have Brother T. W. Phillips with us. He had been confined to his bed so long because of his broken hip. The interest grew to the close, and I never saw a more pleasant meeting or one of more deep spirituality. Brother T. S. Cobb led the singing, and he is fine. Much of the success of the meeting is due to the untiring efforts of Brother Davis. But he was supported by a band of faithful Christians. There were twenty-three additions to the congregation. I predict a great future for this church. L. S. WHITE.

The Good Confession. (1 Tim. 6: 12.)

I make an appeal this week, not especially to your reasoning faculties, nor to your imaginative powers, but to your memory. A Persian prince dedicated one apartment in his palace as a chamber of memory, in which he kept the memorials of his earlier days before royal favor lifted him from his lonely place to a position of honor. Every day he went for an hour away from the splendor of his palace into this humble apartment to live again amid the scenes of his happy youth. We are not Persian princes, but I believe every thoughtful human being has a place like that. Paul bids Timothy to open that chamber in his heart, to look back, to recall a scene and rehear a voice. There in Lystra, a city lying on a dreary place at the foot of a volcanic mountain, the population generally idolaters—there, in the very first days of Paul's and Barnabas' preaching, a Jewish boy was modestly standing in the sight of many witnesses. He was but a little way in his teens; yet in the hushed assembly, bravely and beautifully he speaks aloud the faith of his youthful heart: "I believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God."

When Memory Becomes an Impetus.

Let us note that Paul definitely and preëminently calls it "the good confession." I do not know of a place where the Revised Version helps us more than in its improvement of this passage. The Old Version reads "a good profession;" but the New Version translates it more accurately, "the good confession." For Timothy there was in the thought of it all the tenderness of a sweet human memory—his boyhood days, the devoted care of his grandmother Lois and his mother, Eunice. John Ruskin said: "All that I have said or written or done has been due to the fact that when I was a child my mother daily read with me a part of the Bible and daily made me learn a part of it by heart." I have no doubt but what Timothy associated the memory of his good confession with the memory of his good mother and grandmother. It recalled his learning of God and of the Messiah, the familiar walks and faces of his native town. He was a man now, a minister of the gospel, with an experience of twenty years' service under Paul, and just at this time charged with a laborious and dangerous mission in the idolatrous city of Ephesus. But in that far-off time, in that far-away scene, as Paul knew and as Paul urged, the grown man, as he recalled it all, would find an ever fresh and powerful motive for manhood's duty and the Christian's hope. Paul's reference to his noted convert's public acknowledged confession of Christ is a direct and earnest appeal to his manhood. He addresses him as a man. He does not say "my child Timothy" or "son Timothy," but he says: "O man of God, see these things; and follow after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, meekness. Fight the good fight of the faith, lay hold on the life eternal, whereunto thou wast called."

The Love That Speaks.

The world has greatly changed since Timothy lived in it. The direct and reflex influence of Christianity has worked wonders in point of civilization. It should be much easier now for a person to confess Christ than when Timothy lived. But it is my observation that the type of manhood urged by the apostle Paul is extremely scarce. There is a disposition among some professed followers that virtually says to Christ: "I acknowledge you to be my Lord, but I'll not tell the folks; I love you, but no one needs to know it." I do not believe that Jesus will accept that kind of love. He does not expect us to be religious blatherskites, all the time calling him, "Lord, Lord," in empty, meaningless phrases, neither does he bind us to absolute secrecy. He craves an open, sincere acknowledgment. Not long since I took a little three-year-old child home with me on the street car. Just for an experiment I whispered in her ear, "I love you." She did not whisper her reply, but in the presence of the conductor and all the passengers she threw her arms around my neck and said, loud enough for all to hear: "I love you, too." That is the kind of love that Jesus expects of us. For did he not say to his grown-up disciples: "Whosoever shall not receive the kingdom of God as a little child, he shall in no wise enter therein?" Not only through the shedding of his vicarious blood, but in innumerable ways has Jesus said to us, "I love you." Why, then, should it be a great effort on our part to say in words of simple, childlike faith: "I love you, too?"

Before Many Witnesses.

Young Timothy made the good confession in the presence of "many witnesses." A great many people are willing to make, and do make, this confession to themselves who do not make it openly. A refusal to do this has been the occasion of multitudes making shipwreck of their souls. In many hopeful characters the scripture which saith, "The fear of man bringeth a snare," is verified. Cato and other Roman philosophers honored the gods of their country, though unbelievers in such superstitions. Plato was convinced of the unity of God, but dared not to express his convictions. He whitewashed his own belief by saying, "It was a truth neither easy to find nor safe to own." Seneca was forced by temptation to dissemble his convictions. Augustus said of him: "He worshiped what himself reprehended and did what himself reproved." And when the progress of the Reformation was interrupted by the return of the papists to power, some of the Christians became Catholics again and said as they went to mass: "Let us go to the common error." Is it not still the common error among Christians to be ashamed of Christ? And why, may I ask, should any one be ashamed of him? A young fellow who had been recently converted stood up in prayer meeting and tried to express his happiness. But he was inexperienced in public speaking and could not talk very well. After he had sat down, an old gentleman said: "Young man, you ought to be ashamed of yourself. You cannot preach, and you ought not to try." Then the young man rose again and said: "Well, I am ashamed of myself, but I am not ashamed of my Lord." That was the best thing said in the prayer meeting that night, and it left its impression. The trouble with the most of us is, we are not ashamed of ourselves, though we ought to be; but we appear to be ashamed of Jesus. Cowardice flourishes now as in the days when he walked upon the earth. "Nevertheless even of the rulers many believed on him: but because of the Pharisees they did not confess it." And the same old excuse is behind it all: "They loved the glory that is of men more more than the glory that is of God."

When Nelson was asked by his friend, Hardy, to put on a cloak to hide the stars on his uniform, which made him a mark for the French sharpshooters, he answered: "No; in honor I got them, in honor I will wear them, and in honor I will die with them, if need be." "Put on Christ," says Paul. Let him be your uniform. Never be ashamed to wear it.

Definite, But Not Stereotyped.

"The good confession" is something definite and distinct. It is concerning a Person. Paul says: "If thou shalt confess with thy mouth Jesus as Lord, and shalt believe in thy heart that God raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved." When Philip and the Ethiopian "went on the way, they came unto a certain water; and the eunuch saith, Behold, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized?" Note how "the good confession" is made. "And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he answered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." It is proper to state that the verse containing this confession is omitted from the best of the ancient manuscripts and is not found in the Revised Version. Scholars believe that it was written in the margin by an early scribe and later copied in with the text. Brother Elam in the Advanced Quarterly makes the good point that "its interpolation shows that it was in use when it was interpolated." It was the custom of the early Christians to take this confession before baptism. This is undoubtedly true. But at the same time we must not get the idea that the good confession is rigidly expressed in a theological formula. Too many make a public confession of Christ before witnesses, few or many as the case may be, and then stop, as if their full duty in confessing Christ was done. The really good confession taught in the word is one that never ceases. It flows out in richness and in variedness of utterance, a personal speech, warm from the heart of a believer, and always more in meaning than the mouth can speak. Let us recall some of the characters at the outset of Jesus' earthly mission and mark how definite and distinct are their confessions. Andrew, abiding with Jesus and hearing his teaching, goes forth at nightfall to find his own brother, and he goes confessing, "We have found the Messiah." Philip, called by Jesus, hastens to find Nathanael; and again there is a confession, definite, but varied in the heart's joy: "We have found him, of whom Moses in the law, and the prophets, wrote; Jesus of Nazareth, the son of Joseph." Nathanael, guileless, devout, inquiring, convinced by what he saw and heard, speaks the faith of his heart: "Rabbi, thou art the Son of God; thou art King of Israel." So the record of confessions runs. There is no hard and fast form of words, no mechanical repetitions, no unintelligent memorizing, no liturgy, no catechism. Each man speaks as the heart gives him utterance. The presence of Jesus, the words of Jesus, the deeds of Jesus, are stirring the depths of human experience, and blessing those that receive him in faith and love; and every keen sense of the need of him, and every fresh attraction to him, and every new-found comfort in him brings forth a confession. Even in the depths of sorrow, the believer confesses with the mouth a good confession. Martha goes out to meet the Savior, and she hears the assuring message: "Thy brother shall rise again." Martha said unto him: "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." Then Jesus said unto her: "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die. Believest thou this?" When Martha's heart is challenged concerning its belief in this wonderful light radiating from the very presence of God, it does not stumble; it sees a truth, it feels a comfort, it sums up its faith in unhesitating confession: "Yea, Lord: I have believed that thou art the Christ, the Son of God, even he that cometh into the world." Would that all of us in times of sorrow were like Martha! We cannot always understand it, but we can confess his name. The answer can be clear and definite. The mind craves it; the heart prompts it. We cannot be satisfied with Carlyle's silence or with Renan's rhetoric. Let us speak out even through our anguish and tears. "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God," and, "I know that my Redeemer liveth."

Without the resolution in your hearts to do good work, so long as your right hands have motion in them, and to do it whether the issue be that you die or live, no life worthy the name will ever be possible to you; while, in once forming the resolution that your work is to be well done, life is really won, here and forever.—Selected.

FOUR CONTRIBUTORS

A Study of Acts 15: 13-20.

BY W. H. CARTER.

"After they had held their peace, James answered, saying, Men and brethren, hearken unto me: Simeon hath declared how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name."

"At the first." When was that? Read Acts 10, when Peter went to Cornelius, where God did "take out of them [the Gentiles] a people," etc., something like ten or eleven years before this. What did he visit the Gentiles for? To "take out of them a people for his name." When? When Peter went to Cornelius.

"And to this agree the words of the prophets; as it is written, After this I will return, and will build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down; and I will build again the ruins thereof, and will set it up; that the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called, saith the Lord, who doeth all these things."

"And to this agree the words of the prophets." To "this" what? To what Simeon had declared—"how God at the first did visit the Gentiles, to take out of them a people for his name." To this the words of the prophets agree. Notice, James said God did this "at the first," and not that he will do it at the last, or one thousand years before the last. God did visit the Gentiles. This he had done; hence this is not a thing yet to be done.

Now what had God promised to do, and for what purpose? He had promised to "build again the tabernacle of David, which is fallen down;" to "build again the ruins thereof," and to "set it up." For what had he promised to do this? "That the residue of men might seek after the Lord, and all the Gentiles, upon whom my name is called." The "tabernacle of David" was to be built for what purpose? "That the residue of men" and the "Gentiles" might "seek after the Lord." For more than six years Paul and Barnabas had been preaching the gospel to the Gentiles, and had organized churches in many of their cities. Peter had opened up the way of salvation to the Gentiles in the house of Cornelius. God had showed him that he should regard no man common, or unclean, "but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him." To all of this the words of the prophets agree.

Even the church at Antioch was composed of both Jews and Gentiles. They had become reconciled to God in the one body. The wall that separated them had been broken down and all were one in Christ the Lord.

If the tabernacle of David has not yet been rebuilt—the kingdom not yet established—then the way has not yet been opened up for the "residue of men," and the "Gentiles," to seek after the Lord. If the tabernacle of David is not to be set up till Christ comes, then the "residue of men" and the "Gentiles" have not a way of seeking the Lord till he comes. All nations, except the Jews, were Gentiles. Then it follows that the "residue" must refer to the Jews, or some of them. Almost nineteen hundred years have passed, and not a Gentile or a Jew saved, and cannot be till Christ comes!

If one should say, "Some of the Jews are saved in the church," then that one is not only driven to Mr. Russell's "second-chance" theory (which, indeed, is not a "second chance," for the Gentiles have not had the first chance yet), but has to adopt his "little-flock" theory, the special few and chosen privileged crowd. On back to Babylon! How long will it be before some brother will be advocating this "little-flock" theory, and, when told that he is teaching Russellism, will answer by saying: "Mr. Russell teaches some truth, and truth should not be condemned because taught by him?" Truth is truth, no matter by whom taught; but the question is, does Mr. Russell and those who have adopted his theories teach the truth on this all-important point?

Now, if the argument and theory, based on Acts 15: 13-20, are true, that this promise has not been fulfilled, that the tabernacle of David—the kingdom—has not yet been set up, and will not be until Christ comes, and as this scripture says it is to be done that the Gentiles may seek the Lord, why preach to the Gentiles and try to persuade them to seek the Lord, as though it had already been fulfilled? Has any one authority to do this thing before the Lord's appointed time? By asking these questions, I am trying to help a few brethren to see their inconsistency and to help them back to the truth. I want them to see the logical tendency of their interpretations and conclusions. Will they stop long enough to think and reason? I pray that they may.

But let us consider this a little further. The cause of this conference at Jerusalem, in which we have the speech made by James, is set forth in Acts 15: 1: "And certain men which came down from Judea taught the brethren, and said, Except ye be circumcised after the manner of Moses, ye cannot be saved." These were the Gentile brethren whom the Judaizers wanted to become circumcised. With them "Paul and Barnabas had no small discension and disputation." They then decided to send "Paul and Barnabas, and certain other of them," "up to Jerusalem unto the apostles and elders about this question." Certain Pharisees at Jerusalem contended that the Gentiles should be circumcised and be "commanded to keep the law of Moses." Peter told of his having been chosen that the Gentiles by his mouth should hear the word of the gospel and believe; how God bore them witness by giving them the Holy Spirit, as he had to the Jews, and had purified their hearts by faith. Barnabas and Paul told of the miracles God had wrought among the Gentiles by them. Then James made his speech and proposed the writing of the letter to them, which they did, and addressed it to "the brethren which are of the Gentiles in Antioch and Syria and Cilicia."

The above passages with other passages—such as Rom. 1: 13; Eph. 4: 17; 1 Pet. 1: 9, 10; and 1 Tim. 2: 7—show that the Gentiles were being taught, received into the fellowship of the saints, were brethren, citizens of Christ's kingdom, a people for God's own possession. In Eph. 2 we are told that they are "no more strangers and foreigners, but fellow-citizens with the saints, and of the household of God;" were built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone;" and that God had made of the "twain one new man," and had made peace between the Jew and the Gentiles. These are things that were done after the kingdom had been established, for the kingdom was to be established that the residue of men, and the Gentiles, might seek after the Lord. In these and other passages we see the Gentiles seeking after the Lord, finding him, and entering into his government. Therefore the "tabernacle of David" has been "set up."

Now, my dear brethren, those of you who have been misled by some one to indorse this theory of Russell, logically, if not in open avowal, what do you hope to gain by this contention against the truth? Do you think that in so doing you will both save yourselves and those who hear you? I trust that you are not, as Paul said some would do, seeking applause of men by drawing away disciples after you. As a brother in Christ, let me warn you.

Marrying Unbelievers.

BY W. F. COX.

From what has been written already, our readers are conscious of the fact that there is still a difference of opinion between Brother McQuiddy and myself on the subject of marriage. Our readers, no doubt, have discovered that our brother has candidly and boldly affirmed that he believes and teaches "Christians to marry in Christ and not out of Christ," and that "the general trend of Bible teaching encourages Christians to marry believers." But when those whom he instructs on "what is right" on marriage—that is, they should marry in Christ—refuse to accept his instructions and decide to marry out of Christ, and ask our brother to pronounce the ceremony, he compromises with them and assists in doing that which he told them not to do. This is not saying very much for our brother's teaching on marriage. He who goeth onward and abideth not in his own teaching hath not the favor of the loyal brethren of the brotherhood. What is the use spending precious and valuable time teaching "what is right" in marriage, if it is not wrong to marry out of Christ? It is grievously wrong to strive about words to no profit. "Of these things put them in remembrance, charging them in the sight of the Lord, that they strive not about words, to no profit, to the subverting of them that hear." (2 Tim 2: 14.)

In his last reply our brother spent nearly all his time showing the difference between a believer and an unbeliever, between an unbeliever and a disbeliever. He seems to have overlooked the fact that disbelief and infidelity are only degrees of unbelief, and must come under the head of "unbelief;" at least, this is in harmony with the teaching of the Scriptures. For example: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved, but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." (Mark 16: 16.) All who do not believe and are not baptized come under the head of "unbelievers" whether they are disbelievers (believeth not) or infidels. Hence our brother's contention that the word "unbelievers" in 2 Cor. 6: 14 carries with it only the force of "infidel" or "disbeliever" is very illogical, antagonistic to the translators of the American Standard Revision of the Holy Scriptures, and directly opposed to men of authority who have commented on the scripture in dispute.

Fault is found with me by my opponent because I have established my position on 2 Cor. 6: 14, 15. I can assure him that I am going to stand on this rock until I have been shown by him or some one else that it is only a sand bank, because it is the passage over which the controversy began, and I am not quite simple enough to let him coax me away with assumptions. After all he has written on 2 Cor. 6: 14, 15, the passage still remains unchanged. Here it is: "Be not unequally yoked with unbelievers," etc. On this disputed scripture I desire to give the judgment of a few logicians who are of no mean ability. They are as follows: Thayer, in his Greek-English lexicon, on the Greek word (apistos) from which the word "unbelievers" is translated, gives as its meaning "unfaithful, faithless, incredible, unbelieving, incredulous; with the added idea of impiety and wickedness." (2 Cor. 11: 4; 6: 14.) In connection with 2 Cor. 6: 14, please read 2 Cor. 4: 4. On the Greek verb (apisteo) he says: "To betray a trust, be unfaithful; to have no belief, disbelieve." Webster gives as a definition of the word "unbeliever:" "One who does not believe; an incredulous person; especially, one who discredits revelation, or the mission, character, and doctrines of Christ; an infidel." Do not these definitions harmonize with Mark 16: 16? "He that disbelieveth shall be condemned." Does not this scripture include all who are out of Christ, whether they are disbelievers, infidels, or unbelievers? Do they not come under the word "condemnation?" If not, why not? In "Explanatory Notes," on 2 Cor. 6: 14, 15, B. W. Johnson says: "The meaning is that Christians are not to pair off with unbelievers. All intimate associations are forbidden. As Christ has nothing in common with Satan, how can a believer in him have a close intimacy with one who is still in the world under the dominion of the prince of this world?" Just here let me ask Brother McQuiddy if the rulers in John 12: 42 and others in John 8: 31, whom he said were believers, were under the dominion of the "prince of this world," or were they under the dominion of the "Prince of Peace?" If he says they were under the dominion of the "prince of this world," they are classed with unbelievers, for Christ says: "He that disbelieveth [believeth not] [and is not baptized] shall be condemned." If he says they were under the dominion of the "Prince of Peace," he has the unconverted, unbaptized, in the church. He will hardly admit that. If they are not in Christ and are not classed with unbelievers, or disbelievers, where will our brother put them? Has Christ a little church—or, rather, a large one—for them here on earth and a heaven for them hereafter? My brother, the devils believe and shudder. Are there devils in heaven? If it is right to marry one out of Christ who says he believes, is it not just as scriptural to marry devils, for they believe and shudder? Would you, Brother McQuiddy, perform a ceremony for a sister who was marrying a devil just because he said he believed? Nearly all people believe in some particular item of the Christian religion. Just so, there are some particular things about Christ which nearly all people believe; but if they have not been translated into his kingdom, they are still in this world over which the "prince of this world" rules, and come under the head of "unbeliever." Here is more proof: In "Critical Explanatory Commentary," on 2 Cor. 6: 14, A. R. Faussett, A.M., says: "Be not (become not) unequally yoked—yoked with one alien in spirit—the believer and unbeliever are utterly heterogeneous." I ask, have those who are out of Christ an alien spirit, or are they homogeneous? I am certainly in agreement with those whom I have quoted on the subject. If these men are correct, and I believe they are, our brother's position is completely overthrown.

Our brother assumes that if my contention is correct I would be forced to leave the world. I have left the world already, yet I am still in the universe. Since coming to the knowledge of the truth on the question of marriage I have never been unequally yoked with unbelievers—that is, people of the world. Neither have I been intimately associated with them. In his farewell prayer, Christ, in speaking of the disciples, says: "I pray not that thou shouldst take them from the world [universe], but that thou shouldst keep them from the evil one. They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." (John 17: 15, 16.) Did not Christ and his disciples do business with the world? Did not Christ on several occasions tell his disciples to pay taxes to, and buy food from, people of the world? Were Christ's disciples unequally yoked, or did they have intimate associations with people of the world? Did any of Christ's disciples, while under the direct instructions of Christ, marry people of the world, unbelievers? Far from it; because they were taught "what is right" on the subject of being unequally yoked with "unbelievers."

I am rather slow to think that Brother McQuiddy would knowingly flatly contradict himself; yet I am forced to that belief, if I have the right impression of his language. He says: "It may be that that my critic has wrongly interpreted 'in the Lord' as used in connection with the marriage of a widow in 1 Cor. 7: 39. There is no doubt but that she is restricted in her marriage by the qualifying words, 'in the Lord.' But what does this mean? Our brother's contention is that they mean that she must marry some one who is 'in Christ.' Is this final? Cannot such language have another meaning?" I am certainly surprised at his asking if it might not have another meaning, when he knows it does not, for he has already admitted it. Listen to his own statement found in his reply to the one who asked if it was right to marry out of Christ: "There is no specific command of God forbidding [a Christian] marriage to an unbeliever, save to widows." Here he says that there is a specific command of God to widows to marry in the Lord. In his last reply to me he explicitly denies his former statement. Here it is: "I would have no more hesitancy in performing the ceremony for a widow who was marrying an unbeliever than I would in pronouncing the ceremony for a Christian maiden who was marrying a man of the world." Why? "It is certain that the restriction which Paul gave only to widows is advisory and not mandatory." After admitting that there is a specific command of God to widows to marry only in the Lord, then later saying that it is "advisory and not mandatory." Is it not mandatory? Having these facts before us, isn't my position in agreement with those who are of authority on the scripture over which the controversy arose? Can we afford to sacrifice scripture to please ourselves and those who are bent on doing that which is in agreement with their cherished opinions and notions? It is a grievous sin to disobey the commandments of God. God has commanded widows to marry "only in the Lord." Therefore it is a grievous sin for a widow to marry one who is not "in the Lord." Hence our brother's contention is directly opposed to the teaching of the Spirit and very displeasing to our Heavenly Father.

In order to justify his contention, another attack is made by our opponent on my position regarding the brother of whom the apostle speaks in 1 Cor. 7: 12 becoming a Christian after marriage. I am still of the opinion that my teaching on 1 Cor. 7: 12 is in harmony with divine intelligence. Let us examine it carefully to see if we can ascertain the correct impression. Beginning with verse 7 of chapter 7, the apostle addresses three classes of persons—"unmarried," "widows," and "married." Ordinarily these would cover the whole ground; but in verse 12 there is another class which is not included in the three classes already mentioned. Who are they? Evidently these are they who have become Christians after marriage. It is quite evident that at the beginning of the gospel dispensation a goodly number of those who accepted the truth were those who were married, and in some cases only one of the two was converted. This being true, the apostle gives them special instructions what they should do under such circumstances. Here it is. "But to the rest say I, not the Lord: If any brother hath an unbelieving wife, and she is content to dwell with him, let him not leave her." Why? "For the unbelieving husband is sanctified in the wife, and the unbelieving wife is sanctified in the brother: else were your children unclean; but now are they holy." (1 Cor. 7: 8-15.) Having the facts in the case before us, our brother's reasoning is very unsound and misapplied. Here is what he says: "If it be a sin for a believer to marry one of the world, will it not be a sin for them to continue in that relation? If the Spirit positively forbids such marriages, would he not positively forbid continuing in them? To show that Paul did not so regard it, note the following: 'But to the rest say I, not the Lord: If any brother hath an unbelieving wife, and she is content to dwell with him, let him not leave her.' The same is true of the wife. (1 Cor. 7: 12.)" I agree that the sins committed before conversion should be corrected to the best of one's ability; but can one correct that which was not a sin? Brother McQuiddy, is it a sin for two unbelievers to marry? Wouldn't their marriage be legitimate in the sight of men and in the sight of God? Was it not an impossibility for the brother of whom Paul speaks to go back and correct, by leaving his wife, an act which was not a sin? Thus the apostle says the believer is not to leave the unbeliever, otherwise their children would be unclean, unholy.

Finally, our opponent concludes by saying: "Two young people meet; they are congenial, and love is mutual, spontaneous. He is a believer, she is out of Christ. Must he crucify that love which God implanted in him, and over which he has no control, by forming a union with one whom he does not love, simply because she is 'in Christ?' Notice, he says: "Must he crucify that love which God implanted in him, and over which he has no control?" According to our brother's logic, if a brother meets a young woman and "they are congenial, and love is mutual, spontaneous," and he finds out later that she is an adulteress, yet he "must not crucify that love which God has implanted in him and over which he has no control." What is he to do? In fact, there is only one thing he can do, and that is to marry her. Again, a good young sister meets a congenial young man and "love is mutual, spontaneous," but she discovers later that he is a fornicator. She loves him dearly. What is she to do? If it is impossible to crucify that love which God has implanted in her, she must marry him and live with a fornicator the rest of her days, according to our brother's logic. This is not respectable nonsense. More than that, it is directly opposed to the word of God. The apostle says: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him." (1 John 2: 15; read verse 16 also.) The unconverted are in the world and part of it. We are commanded not to love them—that is, not to make marriages with them. If a brother or sister would like to love one of the world, let them convert such a one, then marry if they wish. If they do not succeed in converting one, this is proof positive that that person is not the right companion. Not only should we try to convert unbelievers for our own interest, but it is our duty. If it is true that we have no control over our love or affections, how are we going to love Christ? Because people of the world love the world. They must crucify that love for the world before they can love Christ. "Set your mind on the things that are above," says Paul, "not on the things that are upon the earth." (Col. 3: 2.) I flatly deny that we have no control over our love and affections. We are taught to direct them in the right course. Are we plastic in the hands of God? If so, let us ignore the solemnity of the marriage relation and turn Mormon.

Home Worship.

BY J. PERRY HODGE.

Sometimes we hear a brother speaking of the family altar, meaning that at some time during the day, possibly at night before retiring for the night or in the morning before entering upon the duties of the day, a short lesson from God's word is read, after which all the family engage for a few moments in prayer.

For almost a quarter of a century I have been identified with the disciples of Christ, and for many years of that time I have felt the need of this daily worship in the home. In fact, I fail to see how any Christian father with children growing up in the home can afford to neglect so great a privilege as the daily prayer and study period in God's holy word, as well as the opportunity that this study period affords him in the proper teaching and training of his children.

I write this, not to boast, but to acknowledge the sorrow I now feel that for some years I neglected this practice, and at a time that it should not have been neglected under any circumstances; for this practice, as I see it, is of special importance while our children are at home with us, in order that their minds may have the proper training for the duties along these lines and the influence that may linger round them in the years that follow.

Different homes and different surroundings may require differences as to the arrangement of the home study; and of that the head of each home must be the judge. I believe the home work, however, should be subordinated to the work that the congregation is engaged in. For instance, the congregation here (Tampa, Fla.) has a Wednesday-night Bible lesson, in which Brother Smith's "Outlines" are used as an aid. This lesson is good for all, both young and old, but specially good for the young. Well, in order that my little boys, aged ten and thirteen, know this lesson for Wednesday night, we use this lesson for a basis of study in the home worship on Monday night and Tuesday night. The result is that all members of the family know the lesson by Wednesday night, and the two boys are eager to go to the meeting, because boys and girls, too, naturally like to tell what they know.

There is another Bible lesson from the Bible itself—that is, without the aid of an outline—for what is known as the Bible class on Sunday morning, from ten to eleven o'clock, engaged in by only the older members of the church. It usually consists of a chapter from the New Testament. This lesson is the basis of our Wednesday-night home study.

On Thursday night we select some subject that seems to be of special interest to any member of the family; or, if no one is specially interested in a particular subject, a chapter from the Epistles is usually read and commented upon. Sometimes we call upon the older boy to lead the prayer in the home, and you would be surprised to know how well a thirteen-year-old boy can direct your own thoughts to the Father's throne of mercy and love. Then, are we not training him up in this way for the years that are to come in his life?

The younger people have a lesson on Sunday morning, usually from the quarterlies. On Friday night and Saturday night we use these lessons as a basis for our home study, together with a lesson in prophecy, usually from Revelation. The result is, the children know their lessons, and their parents also know them, and are benefited.

On Sunday nights we are free to select from any portion of the word the lesson for our study. Sometimes this selection is from the Psalms.

Parents, may you never neglect this great privilege and opportunity that comes to you only once in your lifetime, as I did; for you may, with me, have regrets if you do. May God bless all who read this.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. Hall

Good News from Florida.

"Brother W. A. Cameron, of Largo, Fla., was with the brethren at Umatilla, Fla., beginning April 27 and continuing three weeks. This congregation was established by Brother Cameron and Brother H. C. Shoulders about eight years ago. Since then they have had a struggle to live, as many of the young congregations in that State have had. But they succeeded in building them a small, but neat, place of worship (not quite finished), and to hold together until last winter, when the seed of discord was sown and the congregation went to pieces. Such was the condition when Brother Cameron began the recent meeting. A competent leader this congregation needed. After above two weeks' preaching, praying, pleading, and reasoning, our brother has gotten them together again and reestablished the former order of services, with Brother I. E. Beasley, a man true and faithful to the word of God, in the lead, doing what he can for the work."

We are glad to get the above statement of the good that has been done at Umatilla. May the Lord bless those brethren in loving each other and serving God as they have never served him before.

"Two Sinners."

We favor our readers with the following lines from Ella Wheeler Wilcox, who has been writing regularly for the Atlanta Georgian until the recent death of her husband. The thought demands our serious consideration. Just why people will condemn so unmercifully the woman and wink at such sins in the man, I do not know. But, in the eyes of our God, the sin is condemned in both. How often do we see the man committing adultery, and the wife still clinging to him and living with him! But let the woman become guilty of such a sin, and the man will shudder at the idea of living with her. Why is it any worse in the one than in the other? Well, it is no worse in the eyes of God. But false standards erected by man make a difference. Too, the young man can be guilty of fornication; knowledge of this can be had by the people; yet mothers will receive him into their homes and let him enjoy the society of their daughters. But when the young lady makes such a mistake, down and out she must go in the eyes of such mothers. And understand me to say, "down and out" both the young man and young lady should go, so far as our condemning their course is concerned. Such sins should be uncompromisingly condemned. But our hearts should ache over the fallen state of such, and we should long and pray for their salvation, and go to the fallen and condemn their sins, in love, that they may repent and be saved. But away with this habit of unmercifully condemning the woman only and letting the man go as "hale fellow well met." But here is the poem:

There was a man, it was said one time,
Who went astray in his youthful prime,
Can the brain keep cool and the heart keep quiet
When the blood is a river that's running riot?
And boys will be boys, the old folks say,
And the man is the better who's had his day.

The sinner reformed; and the preacher told
Of the prodigal son who came back to the fold,
And the Christian people threw open the door,
With a warmer welcome than ever before;
Wealth and honor were his to command,
And a spotless woman gave him her hand.

The world strewed their pathway with blossoms abloom,
Crying, "God bless ladye, and God bless groom."

There was a maiden who went astray
In the golden dawn of her life's young day.
She had more passion and heart than head,
And she followed blindly where fond Love led;
And Love, unchecked, is a dangerous guide
To wander at will by a fair girl's side.

The woman repented and turned from sin,
But no door opened to let her in.
The preacher prayed that she might be forgiven,
But told her to look for mercy—in heaven.
For this is the law of the earth, we know,
That the woman is stoned, while the man may go.
A brave man wedded her, after all,
But the world said, frowning, "We shall not call."

The Georgia Brethren Rejoice.

At this writing things look unusually good for the work in this State. Brother R. E. Wright is at Albany, and writes that he landed there at the right time, and that everything indicates that a congregation established upon God's eternal truth is assured. It was my pleasure to be with the "faithful few" at Albany last year, a short while after I contracted the tubercular throat. I enjoyed the stay, and hope to be with them again this fall. Brother Wright is one of our best workers, and will leave no stone unturned for the good of the cause there. Brother R. H. Rogers is with him helping in personal work and as song leader.

Brother R. C. White, assisted by Brother Byron Hughes, is now at Columbus, Ga., working with all the power of his soul for the cause there. Good news comes from that work. Brother White is a most godly man, and his influence means much to the work there. Brother Lovell, who has been teaching school out from Columbus, is helping. So are our faithful Brother Holtz and wife. We are expecting the work to be put on a permanent footing as a result of this effort.

Brother Morgan H. Carter is now at Trion in a most interesting meeting. He reports one more added at Macon since he left for the Trion meeting.

At this writing the writer is in a most interesting meeting in East Atlanta, with growing interest and five added to date. Among this number, three aged people have been baptized, ranging from seventy to eighty years old. Brother W. C. Graves is back from the Nashville Bible School, and will devote his time to East Point and Ingleside. Brother W. N. Luton is due here Saturday, and will work with the South Pryor Street congregation and at Constitution. May the Lord bless every soul that is consecrated to God and the cause his Son established.

Notes from India.

After a month's stay in Poona, we returned to Satara on February 29. It will not be out of place to mention in connection with our trip to Poona the arrival of a new missionary by the name of "William Joshua McHenry," who came to us on February 17. He and Mrs. McHenry are both doing nicely at this writing (March 3). We consider him an invaluable supplement to the India force.

I believe that I reported that while I was in Poona I was practically mobbed in the streets while giving away Gospels and tracts. Old and young alike show an eagerness for the Gospels that could scarcely be imagined. We wish that we might supply the whole population with Gospels, but on account of the numbers it would take a few generations to reach all of the people by distribution of 2,000,000 copies per year, and this would be a good showing.

Brother Jelley is now in Northern India, and his family will leave on Lord's day. He found Brother Umrao Singh very dangerously ill in the hospital at Haldwan. He is a very valuable worker, and we pray that God may spare him to continue the work in that part of the country.

The work in the Nizam's Dominions is doing nicely. Brother Y. K. James, who is in charge of the work in my absence, came to see me while I was in Poona. He reports the work in good condition. I hope to be able to go to those parts in a few more days.

In one more month the large heathen festival will take place at Werkerde. This is where sixty-eight were baptized last year. We hope to be there again with our force of workers and a good supply of Gospels and tracts.

Brethren, you will pardon me if I remind you that I need several more workers. While the nations are using every opportunity to overpower the enemy, why should not every Christian use every opportunity to crush the enemy of souls. Wars may somewhat heal grievances for a while; only to break out anew later on. Let us strike at the bottom and destroy the cause of war and bloodshed—the devil.

Remember us in all your petitions. W. HOME McHENRY.

Report of Mission Funds.

Summary: Total balances on hands October 1, $189.28; received since, $1,997.02; total, $2,186.30; disbursed, $1,591.14; balances on hand, May 1, $595.16. Most of this is in the Glenn travel fund.

Special Needs. There is urgent need for funds (about $1,000 more) to enable Brother Vincent to buy the desired and needed church lot in Tokyo, Japan. It takes about one hundred dollars a month to support the native helpers (about twenty men) in India. More could be used if the support were provided. Money for printing can be used both in Japan and India.

Warning. Please do not "switch" support from one worker to another because the one has a special need. The other's needs go right on. DON CARLOS JAMES.

Becoming a Christian.

What is the Christian religion? The Christian religion is the belief in only one God, the Maker of all things. As there is one sun that lights the world, so there is one God, who created us and in whom we live and move and have our being. He who becomes a Christian must cast away all idols and worship the true God only.

What kind of life must the Christian live? He must live a life of purity. The unmarried must refrain from adultery. The married must have but one wife. Drunkenness is forbidden. The Christian must tell the truth, be honest, and love his neighbor as himself, and as he has opportunity do good unto all men.

What advantage is there in being a Christian? In being a Christian the home is made more happy, because the father does not drink or smoke and has more money to spend to educate his children. He does not keep concubines, and this makes his wife happy. All the children are proper children and not bastards. He is honest with his neighbors and kind to them and dwells with them in friendship. For these reasons a Christian is happier than one who is not. But the chief purpose of the Christian religion is to save the soul from sin and to give us eternal life. All men love life, and to live forever in the future world, free from sin and its evil consequences, is perfect happiness.

Where may I learn how to become a Christian and to obtain this eternal life? In the book called "the Bible." In that book we may learn that God so loved mankind that he gave Jesus, his only begotten Son, that we might not perish, but have eternal life.

We must trust in Jesus, our Savior, and in God, our Creator; we must repent of our sins, confess our faith in Jesus, and be baptized in the name of the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. After becoming a Christian, one must then continue to live a holy life, must pray to God often in the name of Christ, and read God's word, the Bible, daily.

This is a tract now (May 1) being printed for distribution at the Katori Shrine, May 5. We are having fifty thousand printed at a cost of twenty-five dollars—fifty cents a thousand. This is a little higher than we would have had to pay had it not been for the war, on account of which printing has gone up thirty per cent. Fifty cents a thousand, however, is not so high, after all. Although I am going ahead and having the tracts printed at a cost of twenty-five dollars, I have up to the present received only six dollars for this purpose. If we wait longer, the time will be past and we will lose the opportunity. Judging from past experience, I am sure the friends at home will heartily approve of our course and come forward with the other nineteen dollars. We have on hand a few thousand tracts, which will bring the entire number up to sixty thousand. Last year we estimated that there were seventy thousand people at the festival. J. M. McCALEB.

The Fulfillment of Amos 9: 11 and Some Other Prophecies.

BY E. A. E.

A calm, unprejudiced, thorough investigation of any scriptural subject, hungering and thirsting after righteousness and with a will only to do God's will (John 7: 17), can do nothing else but good.

See on page 595 of this paper a clear and timely article on Acts 15: 13-20, by W. H. Carter, of Lafayette, Tenn. While in Brother Carter's home not long since, he read me this article; later I requested the privilege of publishing it in the Gospel Advocate, and he has kindly sent it to me. Let us give it a careful reading. I commend it, both for its strong presentation of the truth and its courteous and dignified way in meeting erroneous theories.

Jesus is now on the throne of his father David, and it is erroneous to teach that he is yet to be set upon that throne.

Having declared the downfall of "the sinful kingdom" of Israel and that God would "destroy it from off the face of the earth" (although God would not "utterly destroy the house of Jacob," but would sift it as grain, that "not the least kernel" should be lost—Amos 9: 8-10), Amos prophesies concerning the restoration of God's people as follows:

In that day will I raise up the tabernacle of David that is fallen, and close up the breaches thereof; and I will raise up its ruins, and I will build it as in the days of old; that they may possess the nations that are called by my name, saith Jehovah that doeth this. (Amos 9: 11.)

Suppose no fulfillment of this prophecy had ever been pointed out by Jehovah, and men had been left to find a fulfillment of it, then some might argue, as they do from similar ones, that the restoration of Israel here foretold consists in the establishment again of David's earthly and fleshly "tabernacle," house, or throne. But since God has pointed out its fulfillment, both the time when and the way in which it has been fulfilled, no one can say it is yet to be fulfilled and will be fulfilled in some other way. No one is wiser than God, or can know God's way of fulfilling prophecy better than God himself.

O the depth of the riches both of the wisdom and the knowledge of God! how unsearchable are his judgments, and his ways past tracing out! For who hath known the mind of the Lord? or who hath been his counselor? or who hath first given to him, and it shall be recompensed unto him again? For of him, and through him, and unto him, are all things. To him be the glory forever. Amen. (Rom. 11: 33-36.)

James declares that this prophecy has been fulfilled—that David's "tabernacle" has been rebuilt and "set up" and "the residue of men" and "all the Gentiles," upon whom God's name has been called, are seeking after the Lord. James further declares, as we shall see, that God has made known "these things from of old." James shows how and when God set up the tabernacle of David and placed one of David's descendants upon his throne.

In Acts 2: 29-35 Peter declares the same. Peter says these promises made to David and the prophecies made through him were fulfilled "in the resurrection of the Christ." "Being therefore by the right hand of God exalted" means in view and in virtue of these promises and prophecies, according to them, and in fulfillment of them. "Therefore" Jesus was exalted to God's right hand. Thus to quote Peter's own language, "that of the fruit of his loins he would set one upon his throne," was fulfilled in the resurrection and exaltation of Jesus as the Christ to the right hand of God. James and Peter use almost the same expression. Of "the tabernacle of David," James says God would "set it up;" and of the throne of David, Peter says God would "set one upon" it. David's throne and David's tabernacle are the same. When one is "set up," the other is. God "set one upon" David's throne at the same time and in the same way he "set up" David's tabernacle. Isa. 16: 5 says:

And a throne shall be established in loving-kindness; and one shall sit thereon in truth, in the tent of David, judging, and seeking justice, and swift to do righteousness.

This shows that the tabernacle and throne of David mean the same. The tabernacle of David could not be set up thousands of years before the throne of David.

"Therefore" God has fulfilled his promise and has kept his oath to David to set upon his throne one of his seed.

Besides, the kingdom of God to-day is "righteousness and joy and peace in the Holy Spirit" (Rom. 14: 17), and Jesus has established his throne "in loving-kindness," and sits "thereon in truth, in the tent of David, judging, and seeking justice, and swift to do righteousness."

In Acts 13: 22-39 Paul declares, as do Peter and James, that God's promise to David to place one of his descendants upon his throne has been fulfilled in Jesus.

Of this man's seed hath God according to promise brought unto Israel a Savior, Jesus.

Just as does Peter, Paul says "the promise made unto the fathers" God has fulfilled in raising Jesus from the dead, thereby not only showing him to be the Son of God, but fulfilling the promise: "I will give you the holy and sure blessings of David." Whatever "the holy and sure blessings of David" embrace have thus been bestowed. Could these include everything but David's throne, which is yet to be given? They embrace the throne, the tabernacle of David, and all "the holy and sure blessings of David," as we have seen.

Who can believe that "the kingdom of heaven," "the kingdom of God," "the kingdom of Christ," "the holy and sure blessings of David," "the tabernacle of David," "the throne of David," "the commonwealth of Israel" (Eph. 2: 12) (in which Jews and Gentiles are all "fellow-citizens"), are five or six different kingdoms with as many different thrones, of which different kingdoms Jesus at different times is King, and which different thrones Jesus at different times occupied? Or who can say they are different stages or phases of the same kingdom, with "the kingdom of heaven" and "right hand of God" first and "the throne of David" last and highest? All these hair-splitting theories and distinctions where there is no difference confuse people, hinder the progress of the truth, and turn their hearts from the plain facts, commands, and promises of the gospel and the practical and daily duties of the Christian life.

Since these promises and prophecies of the rebuilding of the tabernacle of David, and, hence, of the restoration of God's people, are fulfilled in Christ as King now "in the tent of David" ruling in loving-kindness and justice, are not all such promises so fulfilled? Promises and prophecies concerning the same events cannot be fulfilled in contrary ways.

Again, all Christians, all disciples of Christ, all saints, all children of God, both of Jews and Gentiles, constitute now "the Israel of God" (Gal. 6: 16; Phil. 3: 3); the children of Abraham (Gal. 3: 7, 29); "the true tabernacle, which the Lord pitched, not man" (Heb. 8: 2); "the house of God" (1 Tim. 3: 15); "the household of faith" (Gal. 6: 10); "God's building" (1 Cor. 3: 9); "the temple of God" (1 Cor. 3: 16, 17; 6: 19, 20); "an elect race, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, a people for God's own possession" (1 Pet. 2: 5, 9, 10); "a kingdom," whose subjects have their "citizenship in heaven" (Phil. 3: 20). This is "a spiritual house" (1 Pet. 2: 5), not one of flesh. Then "the tabernacle of David" in these prophecies as fulfilled in the New Testament embrace, not fleshly Israel, but all Gentile Christians as well as all Christians from the Jews; hence, I repeat, no Jews who are such only as David's fleshly descendants. This "holy nation," this "peculiar people" now, or "people for God's own possession," this "royal priesthood," this kingdom, embraces "the Israel of God" in Christ. This "Israel of God" constitutes the seed of Abraham now. Then, the prophecies concerning the establishment of "the tabernacle of David," "the holy and sure blessings of David," and the restoration of God's people are fulfilled in "the Israel of God," "the seed of Abraham" now, composed of both Jews and Gentiles, and not fleshly Israel. James declares that God "maketh these things known from of old." (Acts 15: 18.) So God does. Therefore, again, God promised to make Abraham "a father of many nations," "a multitude of nations." (Gen. 17: 5, 6.) Abraham became first a father of a great number after the flesh. But this promise Paul declares is fulfilled as follows: "For they are not all Israel, that are of Israel [born of Israel after the flesh]; neither, because they are Abraham's seed [after the flesh], are they all children. . . . That is, it is not the children of the flesh that are children of God; but the children of the promise are reckoned for a seed." (Rom. 9: 6-8.) All now who are Christ's are Abraham's seed, "and heirs according to the promise." (Gal. 3: 28, 29.) Abraham is "the father of all them that believe, though they be in uncircumcision," and the father of "the circumcision" who walk in the steps of his faith. And the promise is "sure to all the seed." (Rom. 4: 9-17.) Paul shows that the promise and prophecy to make Abraham "a father of a multitude of nations" are fulfilled in people's becoming Christians out of all nations—or both Jews and Gentiles—and that the seed of Abraham, "the Israel of God," are the children of God of both Jews and Gentiles. The promise being "sure to all the seed," and that being "the Israel of God" now, or Christians, what promises in the prophecies apply to Israel after the flesh? Only as they become Christians, or Abraham's seed in Christ, do David's seed after the flesh, fleshly Israel, become now the true Israel, "the Israel of God" and heirs of the promise.

Reply to W. F. Cox on "Marrying Unbelievers."

BY J. C. M'QUIDDY.

Read Brother Cox's article on page 596 before reading this.

My position is—and I think the Scriptures warrant it—that the general trend of Bible teaching on the subject of marriage encourages Christians to select Christian companions for prudential reasons. If the instructions on marriage were mandatory, Paul would not advise people not to marry under certain conditions, since God ordained marriage. I have never taught that it is a sin for a believer to marry an unbeliever. I hold that the Bible does not permit a Christian to be thrust out of the church simply because he marries an unbeliever. The Jews did not thrust the offender out of the congregation. They had law on this matter, and, acting accordingly, required the offender immediately to put away the unbeliever. If our brother follows the Jewish law in one point, he should follow it all the way. Has he ever required a believer to put away his unbelieving wife? No Jew would have been retained in the congregation for saying he repented of his unlawful marriage, nor would he have been taken in again for any reason short of putting away his wife. "And Shecaniah the son of Jehiel, one of the sons of Elam, answered and said unto Ezra, We have trespassed against our God, and have married foreign women of the peoples of the land: yet now there is hope for Israel concerning this thing. Now therefore let us make a covenant with our God to put away all the wives, and such as are born of them, according to the counsel of my lord, and of those that tremble at the commandment of our God; and let it be done according to the law. . . . And they gave their hand that they would put away their wives; and being guilty, they offered a ram of the flock for their guilt." (Ezra 10: 2-19.)

Let us be consistent, then. If we are to follow Jewish example without reference to the law of Christ, let us follow it closely. Let those who marry the unbelieving put them away, that they themselves may be retained in the church. But this is contrary to the teaching of Paul. He teaches that the believer may abide with the unbeliever, and that thereby the unbeliever may be sanctified. No believer, while living in open sin and rebellion to God, could sanctify an unbeliever. Therefore I insist, as it is a virtue to remain in the relation, it cannot be a sin to form it. Will our brother argue that it is a sin to steal a horse and a virtue to retain the stolen horse? The truth is, God ordained marriage for the race, and not simply for Christian companions. When God united Adam and Eve, they were natural—animal, and not spiritual. They were made one flesh, not one spirit. "Howbeit that is not first which is spiritual, but that which is natural; then that which is spiritual." (1 Cor. 15: 46.)

I have said to the young for prudential reasons: "You should marry in the church." A brother who marries out of the church is to be pitied, perhaps, but not to be put out. What a pretty figure we would make if we should excommunicate a brother for marrying a woman he loves, then declare that we would not receive him again until he said, "I am sorry for what I have done," thus putting out for love and taking him in for aversion to his own flesh!

Brother Cox claims that the Bible teaches that all believers are in Christ and that all unbelievers are out of Christ. I denied this and proved it by the Scriptures. As Christ said to those who believed on his name: "If ye abide in my word, then are ye truly my disciples; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8: 31, 32.) This shows that those whom Christ said were believers were still in bondage to sin. Our brother's issue is with Christ, and not with me. (See John 12: 42, 43.)

Our brother says that he has left the world already, and makes a distinction between the world and the universe that is not authorized by the word of God. The Greek word found in 1 Cor. 5: 10 is "kosmos," and means "universe," or "world." It sometimes means the world (universe) (Acts 17: 24; Rom. 4: 13; 1 Cor. 3: 22), and sometimes the people of the world (2 Pet. 2: 5; 1 Cor. 4: 9.) As our brother says he has left the world, he must not only be a hermit, but also entirely out of the universe, or world. Christians are in the world, but not of the world. We have the same Greek word when Christ prays that his disciples should not be taken from the world. Our brother puts in parenthesis "universe," but it is the same word that we find in 1 Cor. 5: 10. Our brother says he is out of the world, but Christ prayed that his disciples should not be taken out of the world. The word that is rendered "habitable earth or land" is "oikoumene." So Christ prayed to the Father that he would not take his disciples from the people of the world, or from the world, in precisely the same sense that Brother Cox says he has left the world. The thought is that Christians should mix and mingle with people of the world in order to convert them. Without association with them, they cannot lead them to Christ. But while this is true, while they are in the world, they must not partake of the evil of the world.

Brother Cox quotes authorities in an effort to prove that "unbeliever" is a stronger word than "disbeliever." I see nothing in the authorities that he quotes contradicting the position that I have taken. If he had quoted further from Johnson's "Commentary," he would have seen that Johnson says that association with the heathen was forbidden. Webster makes the same distinction between "unbelief" and "disbelief" that I make. He holds that "disbelief" is the stronger of the two. To disbelieve a proposition is to believe its contradictory. It carries with it the refusal of assent. Webster says: "Unbelief may suggest a mere withholding of belief; disbelief implies a positive rejection of what is stated or asserted; as, an attitude of general unbelief, with reference to a given rumor, may be changed by evidence to one of absolute disbelief."

So much for the modern use of "disbelief" and "unbelief." Webster continues: "In biblical usage, however, unbelief has the stronger sense of disbelief in divine revelation; as, 'He upbraided them with their unbelief' (Mark 16: 14); 'They could not enter in because of unbelief' (Heb. 3: 19). Incredulity implies indisposition to believe, or (often) a skeptical frame of mind; as, 'the stare of petulant incredulity.'" Thus it will be seen that both the modern and biblical use of the word makes "disbelief" stronger than "unbelief;" the unbelief of the Bible, however, being used in the strong sense of disbelief. This is just what I have said in reference to the unbelief of 2 Cor. 6: 14. Christians are forbidden to unite with infidels, disbelievers, those who are the personification of all that is evil. Hence the use of the word "Belial" in verse 15.

There is no contradiction in what I have said, as this is the sense in which I used "unbeliever." As there are different degrees of faith, so there are different degrees of unbelief. The man who in heathen lands does not believe the truth is not an infidel as is the man who has read the Bible, who has been taught it all of his life, and yet positively disbelieves its teaching. With the infidel, with the worthless, and with the faithless, Christians should not be yoked.

There is nothing in our brother's article that demands any further notice from me.

In regard to the relations that subsist in society, we may say there are the natural, the political, and the religious relations. To the natural relation belongs marriage, the relation of parent to child, etc. Our natural rights and relations are, indeed, legitimate objects of political legislation. We have all an equal right and need to our own will to pursue happiness, to acquire property, to marry, to have children, etc. But for social purposes we suffer ourselves to be curtailed of a certain part of our natural rights and liberties, that the residue of what is left may be secured to us by law and enjoyed without alarm or disturbance. Political law steps in and regulates our natural and social relations. In the case of children it says they should be under the guardianship of their parents until a certain age fixed for them by law, and after this period they should be at their own disposal. It also attempts to regulate marriage by forbidding polygamy, concubinage, and adultery, all of which things are judged the proper objects of political legislation. It also says to a man that he must be legally united to the woman of his choice before he can live with her as his wife.

Now let us look further into the meaning of the phrase, "only in the Lord." I have before me the Millennial Harbinger of 1831, Volume II. On page 206, one writing under the assumed name of "Parthenos," in speaking of instructions found on marriage in 1 Cor. 7, says: "But the truth is that this whole chapter is written, not about the persons to whom the Corinthians were to be married, but about marrying itself; and as the apostle wished them to be without 'anxious care,' he told both the unmarried men and widows that it was good for them to remain like him, unmarried; and, therefore, I rather conceive the whole passage ought to be read thus: 'If her husband be dead, she is at liberty to be married to whom she pleases. Only in the Lord is she indeed happier if she so abides according to my opinion.' That is my opinion expressed in the former part of the chapter—viz., that widows would be happier if they remained single like me."

"Parthenos" asked Mr. Campbell's criticism of his rendering of the verse. I insert in full Mr. Campbell's remarks on what "Parthenos" says. While I knew nothing of Mr. Campbell's position when I began writing on this subject, I am glad to see that he upholds fully every position I have taken. This only shows that I have been studying the same book that Mr. Campbell studied. Mr. Campbell's remarks on "Parthenos" are found on pages 206-208 of the same volume of the Harbinger. If any one else has any information to give on this subject, we would be glad to have it for our columns, but do not care to continue this investigation further at the present time. Here is what Mr. Campbell says:

Against the views exhibited by "Parthenos" in the preceding essay, and in his first number on this subject, it will be difficult to contend. The questions proposed by myself were designed to meet the objections of others, which we had heard urged against the ground taken in the first essay. It is clear to my mind that we have no law concerning the persons with whom political relations are to be formed; no law saying with whom we may marry, or with whom we may not; yet I conceive it to be manifestly the tendency of Christianity to lead the initiated to form all the intimate relations of life, as far as possible, with those who fear and love the Lord. But where the great King has not legislated, no tribunal, no individual, has a right to legislate; and certainly no Christian congregation can, consistently with their professed subjection to Jesus Christ, exclude a person simply for marrying any person not forbidden by the laws of the land. And if they should put away any person from the congregation on that account alone, they can never restore him or her to their fellowship unless a divorce, virtual or formal, be obtained, for reformation in this case would be a separation from the unbelieving party, as also says the Jewish institution.

There are some things which, to a comprehensive mind, and much more to that all-comprehending mind which originated this institution, would appear inexpedient to legislate upon, and inexpressibly more advantageous to leave to the decisions of experience and the tendencies of things. He or she that marries without regard to the spirit, the genius, and tendency of Christianity, will generally have enough to endure without the superaddition of exclusion from Christian society. Parents and seniors should teach the juniors the expediency of forming not only the marriage relation, but, as far as possible, all the more intimate political relations, with those who acknowledge and honor the same Lord and Savior. Commercial intercourse, the employment of the various tradesmen, the hiring and employing servants, and all other political intimacies, Christianity arranges not by law; yet it is its tendency to induce Christians to prefer to trade with Christians and to transact, as far as possible, all the business of life with the household of faith. How happy is the man who has a sister wife and Christian servants; who walks in the shoes which a Christian made or who rides on a horse which a Christian shod; whose body is covered with the cloth which a Christian wove and the garments which a Christian made! If a Christian plow his field, build his house, or perform for him any service, he feels himself happy in the assurance that it will all be done as if it was done for Jesus Christ. I will not say that he is happy who has these things done by men professing Christianity, but by men practicing it.

We only intended here to say that some important matters Christianity leaves to be inferred, and peremptorily decides not. Marriage, as respects the parties who may enter into it, is among these. Every man who reasons well will choose, if he have the power of choosing, a sister wife; but all that "Parthenos" seems to desire to establish, and which he appears to have established, is, that he who can reason well and infer that he himself ought to marry a disciple should not make his own inference a law for his brother who cannot reason as well as himself, and condemn him to exclusion because he either had not the choice of a companion, or, if he had, gratified his eye or his fancy more than his Christian taste and feelings in the Lord.

With regard to the criticisms offered by "Parthenos" on the phrase, "only in the Lord," we have to observe that we are sensible of the singularity of the style, if we couple that phrase with the verb "marry." As the punctuation is wholly human, we are at liberty to examine and re-examine the propriety of it. Although we have long felt the difficulty of understanding this phrase if connected with the verb "marry," we have not examined, till since we read the above essay, whether the canons of the Greek language, or the laws of punctuation, or the usage of the apostle, will permit such a punctuation as that which "Parthenos" has suggested. That the common reader may feel the importance of so slight a variation as the insertion of a point or the transposing of one, we shall give a few instances of passages having the word "only" in them and similarly constructed. Gal. 1: 22: "And I was personally unknown to the congregations of Judea which are in Christ only. But they heard that he who had persecuted them," etc. This is exactly according to the arrangement of the word "only" in the original. But the placing the point before only gives quite a different turn to it. Then it reads: "But only they heard of me," etc. Gal. 2: 10 affords a similar instance: "That we should go to the Gentiles, but they to the circumcision only. Desiring that we should remember the poor"—only desiring that we should remember the poor. A third instance we shall give from the same writer. Phil. 1: 27: "May abound through my coming to you again only. Behave worthy of the glad tidings."—only behave worthy of the glad tidings. She may marry whom she pleases, only in the Lord, or only in the Lord she is happier if she remain unmarried. From these instances an English reader may judge of the importance of transposing the point in passages, if not exactly similar, so similar as to make them quite analogous. I would not, however, rely upon any change in the punctuation here, as it may be questionable which of the two is more in accordance with Paul's style and with the genius of the language, were it not for the scope of the passage; and as the question was not concerning the persons with whom marriage might be formed, but concerning the expediency of the thing itself in that crisis, it is more in accordance with that object, and the text will bear it to point it as "Parthenos" has done.

Should any person holding different views on this subject wish to lay them before our readers, our pages are open to them. Much more may be added to enforce the necessity of making no by-laws or human arrangements regulating matters which have not been settled by some positive enactment of the great King. In this way all the platforms of church government were originated; and so soon as we make our inferences rules of practice for others, we begin to judge as the sectaries do and to condemn men because they think differently or have weaker heads than we suppose a kinder fate has bestowed on us; for he that condemns a person for a wrong inference condemns his intellect and censures him for being intellectually inferior to himself.

The Church and Secular Functions.

BY M. C. K.

In the Literary Digest for May 20, 1916, there appeared, from the pen of a layman, excerpts from a most timely and well-written criticism of the church for its manifest secularizing tendencies in modern times. We have not seen the article in full, which was published in the Reformed Church Review, of Lancaster, Pa.; but the clippings published by the Digest are not only clear and strong, but they present the subject with sufficient fullness to challenge serious thought in both pulpit and pew, and they show the writer to be wide awake and thoroughly familiar with the trend of modern church life. Barring a few expressions not exactly in accord with New Testament phraseology and thought, the teaching in these extracts is most timely, and we give them in full:

The sacred edifice heretofore dedicated to the worship of Almighty God has now, with its parish house, its club, and other auxiliaries, become the center of secular functions. We now go to church to hear sermons on the minimum wage, adequate housing of the poor, the regulation of moving pictures and the dance halls, how to vote, and the latest vice-investigation report. From this center agents and detectives of law and order societies make report of nightly investigations; and it is said that even ministers of the gospel keep silent watch during the hours of the night and assist in rounding up inmates from disreputable houses. They appear as prosecutors and witnesses before grand and petit juries in the Quarter Sessions Court. Billiard and pool tables are being installed, dancing classes are organized, and all sorts of amusements offered to entice the youth within its sacred precincts. A child returning home from Sunday school recently was asked by its mother the subject of the lesson. It was how to keep the streets clean. Another Sunday, kindness to dumb animals furnished the subject of the lesson, and this was in a graded Sunday school up to date. A good woman who had suffered greatly with a recent sorrow brought herself to church longing for some comforting words. She heard a sermon on the Charity Organization Society and the Visiting Nurse.

As we view it, the church by thus allying itself with secular movements is endeavoring to cure the evils of the social life by a species of legalism, striving to purify the sinful nature of man by attacking the outside, forgetting that crimes and violations of law are the external marks only of an inward demoralization and rottenness of the heart. The root of the evil in the world is in the human heart; and to redeem the world, the inner spiritual nature must be first purified. The crime committed is the fruit of sin in the heart. You may punish the criminal for violating the law, but that does not cure the sinful heart. The Christian minister has to do with sin, not with crime. When, therefore, he allies himself with the officers of the law in arresting criminals, he is departing from his proper function and weakening his power and ability to cure the sin in the heart.

Ministers of the gospel are willing to preach on every subject under the sun except the gospel; and when they begrudgingly hand it down, they almost tell us it is not divine, but a man-made thing. They have relegated to the brush heap most of the sacred beliefs, such as the miracles, original sin, the vicarious atonement of Jesus Christ, the efficacy of baptism and the holy communion, and many of them even deny the validity of their own divine office as ministers of God. They prefer to hold their office from the people, not of God. All comes from man, nothing from God. Perhaps this is the reason so many ministers look down on empty pews and complain bitterly that their members do not come to hear the sermons prepared with so much labor.

On the subject in hand we remark:

1. Is it not astonishing that, on the one hand, the modern pulpit, in many instances, furnishes "sermons on the minimum wage, adequate housing of the poor, the regulation of moving pictures and the dance halls, how to vote, and the latest vice-investigation report," while, on the other hand, Paul declared to the Corinthians: "I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified" (1 Cor. 2: 2); and to the Galatians: "Far be it from me to glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through which the world hath been crucified unto me, and I unto the world" (Gal. 6: 14)?

2. In the light of these apostolic utterances, think of ministers of the gospel appearing "as prosecutors and witnesses before grand and petit juries in the Quarter Sessions Court!" Surely such ministers have forgotten their calling.

3. Of the edifice "dedicated to the worship of Almighty God," our trenchant layman says: "Billiard and pool tables are being installed, dancing classes are organized, and all sorts of amusements offered to entice the youth within its sacred precincts." If this is not a travesty upon New Testament faith and practice, then we do not know what a travesty would be. If men are to attempt to bring the whole world, the flesh, and the devil into the church, why attempt to come into the church at all? They have the world already where they are; and if they cannot afford to turn away from it, as the Lord requires, then they should be allowed to stay where they are, and not attempt to bring the world into the church and thus corrupt the whole mass without distinction.

4. It is all right to learn "how to keep the streets clean," but certainly it is not a theme for pulpit discourse and Bible class. Lessons on farming, merchandising, architecture, political economy, commerce, civil engineering, and numerous other secular things are all right and proper in their places, but certainly they are not themes for pulpit discussion, if preachers in such discussion are to be governed by the New Testament.

5. Finally, it will be a sad day for Christianity anywhere when "ministers of the gospel are willing to preach on every subject under the sun except the gospel," but our lay critic does not hesitate to tell us that the day has already come in our own country. Let the guilty repent, and let all preachers of the gospel take heed accordingly.

Shall We Advance to Two Dollars.

Many have asked why we do not raise the subscription price of the Gospel Advocate to two dollars a year. The question is a very pertinent and reasonable one, as the cost of production has greatly increased during the last twelve months. While the price of paper, ink, and materials is much higher than formerly, yet the income of a publisher of a religious journal has greatly decreased. Many church members who pay five dollars a year for the secular newspaper do not subscribe to a religious paper. The money secured for advertising is not nearly so much as it was a few years ago. This works a hardship on the publisher of a religious weekly. Not only this, but with a decreased income he must meet and provide for greatly increased cost of living. From this there is no escape. But with all these difficulties to surmount, the publishers of the Gospel Advocate have definitely decided not to raise the subscription price of the paper to two dollars a year before January 1, 1917. If present high prices continue, it will probably be necessary to make the advance at that time. A man very much interested in propagating the gospel of Christ would readily and cheerfully pay two dollars a year for a religious journal rather than to be without one.

Not only so, but the right-thinking are not willing to put on the publisher a burden greater than he can bear. It is their purpose and wish to cooperate with and help him to bear the burden. We are glad to say that this paper has a host of friends who are ever ready to labor to increase its usefulness, for which we are appreciative and grateful. Recently words of congratulation and cheer have been so numerous that we have not had space to publish them. If we are compelled to advance the price of the paper, we do not wish to do so without giving our subscribers due notification.

The purpose of this article is to say that, in spite of high prices and disturbed conditions, all who desire may renew their subscriptions for one year at $1.50. For the present new yearly subscriptions will be received at $1.50. We will continue only for a short time our three-months' trial offer for twenty-five cents. While we have definitely decided to continue the one-dollar-and-fifty-cent rate till the close of 1916, it is also almost certain, if present high prices continue, that at the beginning of 1917 the subscription price will be advanced to $2 a year, in advance. Those who are in arrears and do not pay up their back subscriptions before January, 1917, will be expected at that time to pay up at the rate of two dollars a year. All back subscriptions may now be paid at the rate of $1.50 a year. Subscriptions paid in advance may be paid for another year at $1.50, but subscriptions will not be accepted for two years in advance at the rate of $1.50 a year. We would appreciate suggestions from any of our readers who may wish to offer them. PUBLISHERS GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

The Bible Study Helper to Become a Weekly.

Beginning August 1, this magazine will be merged with The Young People and will hereafter appear as a weekly. This is by no means a backward step. On the other hand, we believe it will greatly increase the usefulness of both publications. The editor of The Helper will edit The Young People, and will give the same painstaking care to the Sunday-school lessons and to other features as heretofore. All who have subscribed to The Bible Study Helper will be given full credit on the list of the combined papers, and all are urged to work for its improvement and advancement.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Compiled by A. B. Lipscomb

A new congregation has been organized at Bemis, Tenn. R. V. Cawthon reports a good meeting at Bethany Church, near Olmstead, Ky. There were seven baptisms.

The first week of C. M. Pullias' meeting was very encouraging. One was baptized and one was reclaimed.

J. P. Sewell reports a good start in the meeting at Brownwood, Texas. He will hold some meetings in Tennessee during July.

The church at San Francisco, Cal., acknowledges a contribution of seven dollars and fifty cents from the sisters of the Maple Hill Church, at Martha, Tenn.

R. V. Cawthon is conducting an interesting meeting for the church on South Eleventh Street, in East Nashville. Services at 3 P.M. and 8 P.M. All are invited.

An excellent lady from the Methodist Church came forward last Sunday at Russell Street, this city, expressing a desire to be immersed and to be known as a Christian only.

H. H. Montgomery, of Shreveport, La., reports the following contributions for the church building fund since June 1: J. H. Menges, 50 cents; W. F. Savell, $1; Mrs. Alice O. Hutchinson, $1; Jim C. Morgan, $2.50; S. Y. Shoemaker, $2; T. D. Fausett, $2.50; W. F. Allen, $5; T. J. Wood, $5; Mrs. H. J. Weiler, $2; Mrs. W. D. Fonlain, $5. Total, $26.50.

Jewell Matthews writes from San Angelo, Texas: "The work here is moving along very nicely. The meeting which closed a few days ago was very beneficial in a number of ways. There were thirty-two additions to the church in all, besides much other good in the way of spiritual uplift. W. F. Ledlow and Austin Taylor assisted us. Their work here measured up to the standard in every respect. They endeared themselves to us all."

From T. H. Etheridge, Dereno, N. M., June 5: "I preached the commencement sermon at the Methodist meetinghouse for the Kirkland (Texas) High School on Sunday night, May 28. There were no services at any other church and a large crowd was present. They had only seven graduates this year. I preached at the church of Christ in the forenoon to a smaller crowd, but to some appreciative people. No better people live anywhere, in my opinion, than at Kirkland. It is a pleasure to meet with the brethren there."

From T. W. Phillips, Fort Worth, Texas, May 8: "Surely the 'Heights' of Calvary (so to speak) were reached in the last special number of the dear old Gospel Advocate. The 'Sermon on the Mount' Number never can be excelled. I read it all, and humbly said: 'How I would love to take those men of God by the hand and say, God bless you, dear brothers, for surely you have been sitting at the feet of Jesus!' I desire to again assure my many friends that I continue to improve, and believe I will be in the field again by the first of June."

From W. F. Ledlow, Lockney, Texas, June 7: "The interest in Thorp Spring Christian College grows daily. We have five graduates of the State University in our faculty—a claim that no other Texas Christian school can make. We believe we have the strongest faculty in point of education ever assembled in a Christian college. Our location is ideal. We are prepared now to do the very best work and receive full credit for it. Our new catalogue is about ready to mail. Write for a copy. Prospective students are requested to investigate our college."

From C. B. Brewer, Fairview, Ky., June 10: "Charles H. Baker, of Moulton, Ala., is here conducting a fifteen-days' tent meeting, having begun on June 3. Large crowds attend every service and the attention is good, but no apparent interest has been shown, although Brother Baker is delivering some very fine discourses and playing havoc with the sectarians. This town is almost wholly sectarian, there being only a few loyal members of the church of Christ here. We are hoping for visible results, as some say that they are 'almost persuaded' to be Christians."

Carl G. Smith writes from Munford, Ala.: "I wish to locate at some place in Alabama as literary teacher and gospel preacher. I hold a first-grade certificate and have been teaching for the past four years, also preaching during this time. I am twenty-seven years of age, married, and have one child five years old. I desire a school requiring at least two teachers near some working congregation, or one capable and willing to work. For references, recommendations, and other information, write me at the above address. I shall be glad to visit any such place on trial."

We have received the following appeal from Miss Grace Gilley and Mrs. S. L. Spangler, two sisters at Chickamauga, Ga.: "In the town of Chickamauga we have Baptist, Methodist, and Presbyterian churches, but have no church of Christ at all, and only a few members. In fact, there are very few that ever heard the gospel preached. Our members are not financially able to pay a preacher. As members of the body of Christ we ask your help. We need a tent."

We commend this appeal to the special attention of the churches in Chattanooga, Tenn.

From A. D. Dies, New Castle, Ala., June 2: "Since my last report I have held meetings at several points in Texas, my last meeting in that State being at Midland, at which place we established a body of fifteen souls. I left Texas for New Castle on May 2 and began here on May 8. The meeting continued till the first of June. We used a tent furnished by the church at Birmingham. There were eleven additions—eight by baptism and three by restoration. This was my third meeting with these brethren. I shall visit them again next year, the Lord willing. I go next to Vina, Ala., a mission point. I have two weeks in June that I would like to spend somewhere. Let the Lord be praised. Pray for us."

R. E. L. Taylor writes from Decherd, Tenn., June 8: "I have just closed a twelve-days' meeting at Tatesville, in Grundy County, with five additions. This was one of the most interesting meetings I have ever held. One lady was baptized who was seventy-five years old; also her son, fifty-four years old. J. C. Moseley, who was with me conducting the song service, assisted in the baptizing. There was great rejoicing over these two persons. The old lady had been a member of the Methodist Church. Many were almost persuaded. This is a destitute place. There are only two brethren to begin with. The support is very weak. Brethren, will you help preach the gospel to a people that cannot support it? Let us wake up to our duty. I am now preaching at Gruetli, in Grundy County."

From Don Carlos Janes, Louisville, Ky., June 12: "The Highland congregation has entered upon the second week of its tent meeting, with a good attendance. Brother Jorgenson is doing good preaching. There has been one addition by 'relation.' Brother Fisher was at the colored mission yesterday, as usual, and reported a fine meeting. This also is the usual thing there. Brother Williams, one of the colored brethren and a good man, spoke yesterday. Thus they are getting some experience in that scriptural thing, edifying themselves in love. At the worship yesterday morning Brother Dean made a fine report, in which he told us the last note of our indebtedness for the addition to the meetinghouse (about fifteen hundred dollars in all) had been paid two years in advance of the time it was due. We are putting in new lights at the meetinghouse."

Relief in Pulmonary Or Throat Troubles

depends largely on the sufferer's ability to upbuild a weakened system, and thus hasten a return of normal body functions.

In this effort much depends on fresh air—night and day—and rest and good food. The patient should refrain from work that overtaxes, and all sanitary precautions should be taken. These commonsense measures do not always achieve the desired results unless aided by proper medication.

It is here that Eckman's Alterative has evidenced its worth, for in many cases it has effected lasting benefit. And often such troubles seem to yield to it.

OBITUARIES

On account of the large number of obituary notices coming to the Gospel Advocate the following rules must be observed: Obituaries that do not exceed one hundred and fifty words are published free of charge. When they exceed this limit, one cent will be charged for every additional word. Payment must accompany notice or else it will be reduced to one hundred and fifty words. Poetry will not be printed.

Pickering.

On October 27, 1915, John W. Pickering died. He was in his fifty-ninth year and had been a member of the church of Christ for about thirty years. He left a widow, six sons, and three daughters, and the entire community around Plantersville, Ala.—in fact, almost the whole county—to mourn his death. Brother Pickering was an extraordinary character and his place can never be filled. In time of need he was, in truth, a friend indeed. Those in trouble or distress always found in him a sympathetic ear and a ready hand for their relief. He has helped more people and used his influence to promote more worthy objects than any man I ever knew. Like the rest of us, he was not perfect, but was always ready to defend "the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints." May we all try to emulate his virtues.

R. W. BRADFORD.

McCollum.

Mr. W. P. McCollum, of Cornersville, Tenn., who was visiting his sons, Leo and Bruce McCollum, of Ethridge, Tenn., was taken sick on Sunday night and died on the following Thursday, May 4, 1916, aged sixty-one years. He had been twice married. Several of his children had crossed the river before him, so he will be no stranger in the land to which he has journeyed. He had been a member of the Christian Church from early manhood. He leaves four brothers, a wife, and several children to mourn his death. His remains were brought to Cornersville, where, after funeral services, conducted by Brother C. M. Pullias, they were interred in Cornersville cemetery. No more will pain rack the frail body and weary brain, for he sleeps the dreamless sleep that knows no awakening here, but a blissful one in a brighter world than this. M. L. Mc.

Baker.

Carrie M. Baker, daughter of D. R. and M. C. Baker, was born in Giles County, Tenn., on July 19, 1884. She was baptized into God's family by W. N. Murphy in October, 1902, and remained strong in the faith until the end, which came on December 29, 1915. All who knew her can truly say that she was ever ready to perform Christian duties and work for the Master's cause. She was always kind, loving, and good to every one. Her whole life was centered toward loving God and keeping his commandments. She had selected the eleventh chapter of Hebrews to be read by Brother T. C. King at the funeral, which was held at the home of her grandmother, Mrs.

West, at Campbellsville. At her request, her remains were laid to rest in the Campbell burying ground. She leaves a father, a mother, one sister, and three brothers to mourn after her. Some of the last words she spoke were to the effect that she was going home and that it was a good one, and she wanted all of them to meet her. She was a subscriber to the Gospel Advocate for six or seven years.

E. M. KERR.

Marsh.

On November 6, 1914, Charles French Marsh was born. On March 1, 1916, his spirit was liberated from the bonds of flesh and returned to God, leaving the cold clay to return to the dust as it was in the beginning. Little Charles was the only child of his parents—the brightest beam of brilliant light that ever shed effulgence on their earthly pilgrimage, the one sweet rose in the flower garden of life. Though he died young, he lived long enough to give promise of eminent intellectual ability and splendid character. His was a wonderfully sweet and marked infant personality. For consolation in the hour of trial and sore grief the parents are directed to the promises of God. We are taught in his word to cast all our care upon him, for he careth for us. When Jesus was on earth, he loved and blessed the little children. He said then: "Of such is the kingdom of heaven." Jesus is "the same yesterday, and to-day, and forever." He still loves the little ones. We can rejoice in the faith and hope that little Charles' spirit will rest sweetly in the paradise of God until the eternal home is fully prepared and all the redeemed ones are gathered there. "Wherefore comfort one another with these words." A FRIEND.

Parish.

On April 26, 1916, from her home in Kentuckytown, Texas, the pure spirit of Miss Ella Parish took its departure. She had been a patient, uncomplaining sufferer for many months. Three days before her departure, while the writer was in a meeting in Sherman, realizing that the end was near, he was requested to visit her. She seemed cheerful, glad, and happy all day. Her talk was of spiritual preparedness, of God's good men that she had known, and of leaving loved ones behind. The king of terrors and the terror of kings had no terror for her. She had hid her life with Christ in God and could fully appreciate the promise: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth—yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Also: "Precious in the sight of Jehovah is the death of his saints." Two brothers and two sisters still wait on this side for the summons home. In the presence of sympathizing neighbors and many friends and loved ones from Sherman and Whitewright, the writer spoke words of comfort from her favorite passage—John 14: 1-3. "Companionship with Jesus in the Mansion He Has Prepared" was the theme. In a beautiful grove near the home she loved so well, beneath a mound of roses and rare flowers, the body of our sister was laid to await the resurrection of the just. E. L. YORNG.

Taylor.

Brother Hope Taylor was born in Stevenson, Ala., on February 9, 1895, and died at Riverside, Cal., on April 1, 1916. Just before leaving Bridgeport, Ala., in 1905, to come to California with his parents, he was baptized into Christ by Brother A. B. Blazer. Soon after reaching California the family located at Riverside, where they still reside. Hope was an obedient son, an affectionate brother, a bright student, a devoted Christian, a faithful worker in the church, and a young man of good prospects for useful service in the cause of Christ. It was his desire and purpose to devote his life to preaching the gospel of Christ, and for this noble calling he was ever striving to fit himself. Just a few months before graduating he had to give up high school on account of declining health. One winter he attended a Bible study at Santa Ana, during which time the entire Bible was read. He seemed able to learn the Bible with but little effort, and could recite the "Outlines of Bible Study" by G. Dallas Smith as readily as almost any one can recite the English alphabet. It seems strange that one so full of promise for good should be taken away in his youth; but God knows best, and it may be that he had use for him in that better, brighter world above. A father, mother, one sister, and many relatives and friends remain to mourn his departure, but they sorrow not as others who have no hope; for he fell asleep in Jesus, and God promises to raise all such from the dead, and that they will be caught up in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air, and so shall they ever be with the Lord. "Wherefore comfort one another with these words."

G. W. RIGGS.

Stephenson.

The soul of Sister Mattie B. Stephenson (née Ferguson), near Little Lot, Tenn., was liberated from its tenement of clay on April 10, 1916, to cross over the ocean of death, to dwell with the redeemed in Paradise. Sister Stephenson was forty-nine years old. She was born on March 3, 1867. When about twenty years of age, she was "born again," born into the family of God, and hence became an heir of God and a joint heir with Christ. She was married to John V. Stephenson on January 27, 1887, and the union was blessed with five sons and one daughter, all of whom are left to mourn the loss of a mother and companion. Sister Stephenson was a helpmate to her husband, indeed. By good judgment and industry she had assisted Brother Stephenson in securing a comfortable home, and this home was presided over by a real "keeper at home." She loved her home and loved to prepare for her family and friends. The preachers will not forget the tireless efforts of Sister Stephenson to provide for their comfort, as this was their home while conducting meetings at Bethel Church. Her husband and all her children are Christians, except two small ones, who will doubtless reflect their good mother's example and teachings before long by obeying the gospel. While the body reposes under the green mound on the hill near by, this dear one is resting on the evergreen shore, where all tears are wiped away, and where there is no more death, nor pain, for these are all passed away—a home of perfect comfort whose occupants are filled and thrilled with boundless joy. Loved ones left behind would not call her back to this world of sorrow, but will strive to go where she is, where the happy ties of a family reunion will never be broken. May the good Lord bless Brother Stephenson and his children in their sadness. It is sad to give up a loved one. But beyond the dark clouds of this life lies the realm of endless bliss. Later on the grand old ship of Zion will land you in the city of God, where you can clasp hands forever. H. W. WYKE.

Arizona.

Phoenix, June 5.—After closing the thirty-days' revival at Fresno, Cal., I began a meeting at Patterson, Cal., but on account of scarlet fever, the town being quarantined, the meeting was postponed until later in the year. I visited Forestville, Graton, Santa Rosa, San Francisco, Santa Maria, Los Angeles, Colton, and San Diego, preaching once at each place, except Colton and San Diego, and delivering three discourses against materialism at Colton and four discourses at San Diego. All whom I had the pleasure of meeting and addressing were perfectly delighted with the message, greatly strengthened and encouraged to continue in the good work, with the bright hope of accomplishing greater things for Christ and his church in the future than they have in the past. I am now at Phoenix in a revival to last at least twenty days. The attendance and interest are excellent, with bright prospects for splendid results. I am due at Ballinger, Texas, on the third Sunday in June.

E. A. BEDICHER.

Kentucky.

Winchester, June 5.—Our meeting at Winchester began on May 14 and closed on May 29, with two services per day. One precious soul was baptized. Much interest was manifested from start to finish. It was quite a pleasure to me to preach to my old friends and brethren on my native soil after an absence of fifteen years. The Fairfax brethren are wide awake and keep pretty well all the available material worked up, but are encouraged and stimulated by the two yearly series of meetings they have various brethren to hold. The church through its several evangelists is doing much missionary work. I preached at their Lexington mission last Lord's day to two fine audiences. I have arranged for several meetings southward for the summer and fall. My address from now on will be 443 North Twenty-sixth Street, Louisville, Ky.

W. F. NEAL.

Louisiana.

Turkey Creek, May 27.—I closed a twenty-days' meeting at the water this morning. Ten confessions—five from the Missionary Baptists and five from the world. An ingathering from this season of seed sowing will, no doubt, take place at the next meeting.

A. K. RAMSEY.

Mississippi.

Tishomingo, June 1.—Again has the little band at this place had the opportunity of listening to two very strong sermons by Brother Frank Baker, of Belmont. He preached for us last Lord's day, morning and night. The truth is, indeed, safe in this good man's hands. If any congregation has a few secondhand books, "New Gospel Songs," that they have laid aside, we would appreciate two or three dozen, as we have a few of that kind already. We have paint with which to paint our house, and work will be begun at once.

LUTHER OWENS.

Oklahoma.

Lebanon, May 30.—I am leaving a good interest in Lebanon in the hands of Brother Robert Drennon, of Denison, Texas. I have baptized six. Another to be baptized this evening by Brother Drennon. I am going home to spend two or three days before going to Oklahoma City on the first Sunday in June. I pray that Brother Drennon will continue the good work with good results.

THOMAS E. MILHOLLAND.

Whitwell, May 26.—On the first Sunday in April, Brother Bailey Brooks, who is doing a fine work in the mountains, began a meeting for me at Pryor's Ridge, six miles out from Tracy City. This meeting resulted in three baptisms. I am now at Whitwell.

J. D. NOWRICK.

Bemis, June 4.—Brother C. M. Greer, of Lewisburg, has just closed a meeting here, with eleven additions—four from the world, six from the Baptists, and one from the Methodists. Seed has been sown here from which we look for an abundant harvest. Brother Greer dropped in here last January for three days, but we had a hard time getting a place for him to preach, as the people here are so prejudiced; but he managed to get the Baptist Church, and three obeyed the gospel at that time, one of them being the writer. So we got our little band together in a rented room twenty-four by twenty-four feet. We now have a house started and are all working faithfully, but, with the opposition, it is a heavy burden on us, and any donations from other congregations would be greatly appreciated. Brother Greer is an earnest defender of the truth and is devoted to the cause. I wish the Gospel Advocate much success.

Denison, June 1.—One year ago, after months of strife over classified Bible study, peace was made by buying out those who opposed the Bible classes on Lord's day. The task that then confronted the church was to bring order out of chaos; to overcome the ridicule of a criticizing public; to restore the church to that position of honor and confidence that it should have in the minds of the people; and to build up the cause of the blessed Savior who gave the world-wide commission to teach. It seemed to be a Herculean undertaking, but, trusting in the Lord and the power of his might, and pressing on with a determination and zeal that knew no bounds, we have succeeded far beyond the expectations of the most optimistic. We settled down to work with a membership of sixty-five; now we have a membership of one hundred and fifty. We have enjoyed a steady and continual growth, hardly a month passing but what we have had several additions. In making settlement on the property, we had to borrow one thousand dollars and give a mortgage on the church property. A few days ago, when the first payment of three hundred dollars came due, we were not only ready to meet it, but we paid the entire debt, with one hundred dollars interest. Considering the fact that most of us are poor in this world's goods, that we have not appealed through the papers for assistance, and that we have raised during the year about one thousand dollars in addition to this to keep the work up here, also assisting other places, the sacrifices the congregation has made and the results we have accomplished seem wonderful indeed. Surely the Lord has blessed us beyond measure. Shortly after our trouble over the teaching question was adjusted, Brother Thomas E. Milholland was engaged to devote half of his time to the work here. The great success of the work has been to a great extent due to his faithful and untiring efforts. He is in close touch with the people, and has the best hearing from the different denominations, and from the "digressives" as well, of any preacher that has ever labored with us; and, if you will pardon the expression, they are "sitting up and taking notice." When Brother Milholland cannot bring them out of sectarianism or digression, their case is hopeless. A great deal of mission work is being done in and around Denison and more new people are being reached than ever before in the history of the church at this place. Now don't some alarmist get scared and imagine that our paid preacher is supplanting or superseding the elders or failing to recognize their authority, for such is not the case. He is only working in conjunction with them, and, under their direction, doing a great deal of work that they cannot do, partly from lack of time, some for lack of ability, such as conducting funerals and preaching the word to the hundreds of people that are not members, whom we are thus able to reach. We have had paid ministers here most of the time for the past few years, and not one of them has ever tried to supersede the elders or tried to override or assume their authority. The only preacher we have ever had trouble with along this line happened to be a "traveling evangelist." Brother Robert Drennon, of this city, has also ably assisted in building up the work in and around Denison during the past year. We are now planning the enlargement of our house. Our future looks bright indeed. We give God the praise and glory and ask for the prayers of his people.

HELP FOR WORKING WOMEN

Some Have to Keep on Until They Almost Drop. How Mrs. Conley Got Help.

Here is a letter from a woman who had to work, but was too weak and suffered too much to continue. How she regained health:—

Frankfort, Ky.—"I suffered so much with female weakness that I could not do my own work, had to hire it done. I heard so much about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound that I tried it. I took three bottles and I found it to be all you claim. Now I feel as well as ever I did and am able to do all my own work again. I recommend it to any woman suffering from female weakness. You may publish my letter if you wish."—Mrs. JAMES CONLEY, 516 St. Clair St., Frankfort, Ky.

No woman suffering from any form of female troubles should lose hope until she has given Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism.

All women are invited to write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass., for special advice,—it will be confidential.

Thorp Spring Christian College.

BY CARL A. GARDNER.

The interest in the Thorp Spring school continues to grow, and the prospects for a great school here are more flattering than at any time in the history of the school. The great majority of the old students assure us that they will return next session, and many new ones are arranging to be in the school.

Brother C. R. Nichol, the president of the school for the next five years, sends in encouraging news from all quarters where he is preaching. Brother Nichol has made a careful study of the school question. For many years he has observed carefully the Christian and other schools, and he comes to the school as president with such experience and ability as are conducive to successfully promoting a large and growing Christian college. Brother Nichol has been offered the presidency of a number of Christian colleges, and has been urged to accept the presidency of Thorp Spring Christian College at least three times. He is making no little sacrifice in taking up this work, and it is gratifying to know that in this case the office sought the man instead of the man the office. As a business man and an executive, as well as a gospel preacher and a Christian of wide and mighty influence, Brother Nichol, as president of Thorp Spring Christian College, will do a great work for humanity and for Christ.

Brother W. E. Ledlow, one of the most widely known schoolmen, scholars, and preachers in the brotherhood, brings much strength to the work here. Brother Ledlow believes that Thorp Spring Christian College will grow by leaps and bounds and that the Christian disciples will rally to the work here as never before.

With a new library, new laboratories, improved buildings, a growing endowment, and Christian men and women with university degrees as teachers, the Christian disciples of America will surely take courage and help push the school higher and higher.

Important Information Both Given and Wanted.

BY W. L. BEEVES.

This is written to warn the readers of this paper against imposition by a man who gives his name in these parts as "Gerald LaMoyné Bohannon."

Mr. Bohannon came to Winston-Salem, N. C., a short while before Christmas, 1915, and passed himself as a Christian minister. He talked one night at prayer meeting in the Fourth Street Christian Church. At another

CALOMEL TO-DAY,

SICK TO-MORROW.

Dose of nasty calomel makes you sick and you lose a day's work.

Calomel salivates! It's mercury. Calomel acts like dynamite on a sluggish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile, it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated, and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a fifty-cent bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful; and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel to-day, you'll be sick and nauseated to-morrow; besides, it may salivate you; while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone, you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition, and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant, and safe to give to children; they like it.

What They All Say.

A few extracts from letters of club members will give you some idea of the many attractive features of the Gospel Advocate Piano Club and will explain why it is so popular. Here are a few samples taken from the correspondence at random:

I certainly am enjoying my piano. I couldn't have gotten any better piano in Decatur than the one I got from you if I had paid one hundred and fifty dollars more than this one cost me.—Mrs. F. B.

It is a beauty, and we are delighted with it. The tone is perfect. Your club is a grand thing.—Mrs. E. P. M.

I am perfectly delighted with it, and every one that has heard it, or has played on it, says they have never heard a finer-toned one. I can observe such a vast difference between this one and others that are in this community that have been placed by agents. Every one, even those who know nothing about music, can tell the superiority of this piano over others.—Mrs. J. R.

We like it mighty well. The tone is full and clear, and the smooth and glossy finish is certainly superb. We think it much better than we could have done here for the money.—Mr. O. F. P.

The piano has come, and it is everything I could wish it to be. The tone is so soft and mellow it sounds more like a harp. The bass notes are remarkably full and round; the case is specially beautiful. I am entirely delighted with it. I never saw a more perfect instrument.—Mrs. W. J. B.

Almost every letter received from club members contains similar expressions of appreciation. The advertising manager of the Gospel Advocate cordially invites you to write for your copy of the club booklet and catalogue, which explain the big saving in price, the convenient terms, the superior quality and durability of the instruments, the protective guarantees and other attractive features of the club. time he presented a letter of introduction to a member of the church at another town near Winston-Salem and wanted to preach some, but, by virtue of some statements he made, it was discovered that he was not a preacher of the church of Christ at all; so he was not permitted to use the church building. (See 2 John 10, 11.) He then secured the school building, and began to preach that the church of the New Testament ceased to exist by divine authority in A.D. 120. He contends that it gave place to the kingdom of God at that time. He also contends that Christ has already come the second time, as per Matt. 24: 25; 31-46; and that water baptism and the Lord's Supper were done away at the same time he claims the church was.

I write this much of the many false things he teaches, so that the readers of this journal may know that when said Bohannon comes to your place seeking to impose himself upon you as a member of the church you may beware of a man who teaches much of the most dangerous doctrine I ever heard. He is a man about six feet tall, weighs near two hundred pounds, has dark hair, a long nose, and is red-complected.

The information I want is this: Who can give me any information as to what this man has been teaching elsewhere before coming to North Carolina about last November? It is very important that I know something of this man's past record, and it is more important that the churches everywhere beware of his efforts to impose himself upon them as a friend, when he, at heart, is a deadly enemy to all churches.

In writing me, please inform me as to what sort of doctrine he has taught elsewhere, because information on this point will be important to myself and others here.

As to the genuineness of this exposition, I refer the readers to Dr. R. H. Jones and Brother C. B. Richards, minister of the Fourth Street Christian Church, Winston-Salem, N. C.

How She Stopped Her Husband's Drinking

By all Means Write to Her and Learn how She did it.

For over 20 years Jas. Anderson of 161 Pearl Ave., Hillburn, N. Y., was a confirmed drunkard. His case was about as bad as it could be, but a little over twelve years ago his devoted wife, after years of trying, finally succeeded in stopping his drinking entirely.

Write to this woman if you have a relative or friend who drinks

Not only did she save Mr. Anderson but she stopped the drinking of her brother and several of her neighbors as well. All this she accomplished by simple home treatment which she now desires every man and woman who has a relative or friend who drinks, to know all about, for she feels that others can do just as she did.

The treatment can be given secretly if desired, and without cost she will gladly and willingly tell what it is. Therefore every reader of this notice who is interested in curing a dear one of drinking should write to Mrs. Anderson at once. Her reply will come by return mail in a sealed envelope. She does this gladly in hopes that others will be benefited as she was. One thing she asks however, and that is that you do not send money for she has nothing to sell. Simply address your letter with all confidence, to Mrs. Margaret Anderson at the address given above and she will reply by return mail in a sealed envelope.

Erin, June 5.—Our meeting began here on May 31. We are having good attention and fair crowds. The "Nazarenes" are strong here, but are attending well. The church here has much opposition. Three services yesterday, with no "visible results" so far. I stopped at Paris two days. The meeting had a good start. Brethren Smith and Thompson are a good team. Paris deserves a good meeting and is having it. F. L. PAISLEY.

Woodbury, June 6.—While I have not been reporting for some time, still I have been very busy. I have been giving one Lord's day in each month to Bethel, Ivy Bluff, and Gassaway, and the work has been all that we had expected it to be. I shall begin my summer meetings on June 26, and am hoping and praying for a grand success for the Lord. I have time for a few fall meetings and can answer calls anywhere. Let us all do our best in a nice, kind way, and great will be the results. C. H. SMITHSON.

Paris, June 6.—The meeting being conducted in Paris by Brethren John T. Smith, of Jackson, and T. B. Thompson, of Murray, Ky., continues with great interest. The people of the entire town unhesitatingly express their appreciation of the great, impressive, soul-inspiring sermons given out by these men. Never before has this place listened to the simple gospel with so much interest and felt themselves so highly entertained. The tent, tendered to us by the Murray congregation, is proving very beneficial, having been crowded to its capacity a number of times. As some of the readers may know, we are few in number at this place, but are striving faithfully to establish the cause of Christ and, with the continued help of such energetic and enthusiastic proclaimers of the gospel and the support of the brethren who have contributed to our needs, we will spread the glad tidings throughout this place and elsewhere. May God bless our efforts and assist all who are earnest in their desire to uphold his cause. MRS. R. CRAWFORD.

Dallas, 401 Montreal Avenue, June 7.—We had a good day last Sunday at Ferris. I went out to India in the afternoon and had a fine hearing there, and then back to Ferris that night again. Brother C. R. Nichol will hold our meeting at Ferris, beginning about June 25 and running ten or fifteen days, I suppose. Therefore I will have about a week, including the first Lord's day in July, I can give to a meeting in Texas or Oklahoma anywhere within two hundred miles of Dallas. If you see this first and want my work for this time, beginning on June 26 or 27 at night, write me at once and I will reply, telling you that I will be there or that some one else has engaged my time before I heard from you. J. C. ESTES.

Sherman, June 5.—My labors with the church in Sherman will cease by September 1. I have served this church, in all, about six years—from 1906 to 1908 and from 1912 to the present time, and in all this time have learned to love more and more this most excellent people. This congregation has some of the noblest souls on earth, I believe. For the last four years these splendid people have stood by us in all that has come, and we can never forget how, when we were sick and unable to serve, they did not forget us, but saw to it that we were cared for. May our Father richly bless them for their faithfulness to him and to us. We do not care to have credit for the work that has been done during our stay; and yet we feel that God has blessed the work, and with becoming modesty are we thankful to God for the humble part we have had in whatever success has been. And now, while my work here does not close till the first of September, I have the privilege of taking some time off for meetings, and I have arranged to hold one meeting at Dawson, beginning on July 19 and continuing over July 30. I could hold others if desired. R. D. SMITH.

Rock Springs, June 1.—I am to assist the little band at Alpine in a series of meetings which will begin next Saturday night and will probably continue over three Lord's days. This is really to be a mission meeting. We have about ten or a dozen sisters there and two male members. They have engaged Brother P. N. Baker to labor with them for three months, and the church here at Rock Springs has made it possible for me to assist them in a meeting while Brother Baker is there to help. I will do the preaching and he will lead in song, etc. Our protracted meeting will begin here at Rock Springs on the fourth Lord's day in June. I shall do the preaching throughout the meeting. I will begin a series of meetings at Krum, in Denton County, on the third Sunday in July. This meeting will include three Lord's days, probably four. I am laying plans to conduct a series of meetings at Sonora some time in the summer or fall. We have a few members there, but they are not meeting for worship. I hope to firmly plant the cause of our Master there. The church here at Rock Springs is composed of fine people. They are not perfect, of course, and some of them are inclined to be a bit careless or indifferent. In fact, one could hardly expect conditions to be otherwise. This is a ranch country, and the climate is fine, and the people, as a rule, are care-free and big-hearted. When people acquire such a nature as the people of this country have, it requires lots of patient teaching to develop an ideal church. In fact, it may be impossible to develop an ideal church out of such people. There is no hypocrisy in our membership, and perhaps all are as open and frank as any people to be found. C. D. CROUCH.

During the past twenty-five years Mr. Morgan has built up this training school for boys, around his own long experience and his study of boy nature and of the problems of giving the boy the mental preparation, physical well-being, and spiritual strength for an honorable, manly, successful life. He has chosen his faculty, equipped his school, and ordered its conduct with one purpose in view.

Mr. Morgan is a graduate of the Webb School, Bell Buckle, Tenn., and the Vanderbilt University. He is a man of strong, wholesome personality and deep Christian character—an inspiration to every boy who comes under his care. His close, personal relations with his boy students, his attention to their work, their talents, their special needs, have given his school a position of high distinction. The citizens of Fayetteville have recently presented him with a fifteen-thousand-dollar building as an addition to his school.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, secretary Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

The meeting at Obion is now a thing of the past. The visible results were not what we had hoped for, but the dear Lord knows best. We tried to do our best—at least, what we thought was best; but, after all, we may have made a mistake.

Conditions exist that seem to be immovable. If not immovable, they can be removed only by the congregation. The congregation at Obion is one of the strongest in numbers and wealth in this county, and they have done a great work in many ways and could do greater things still for the Lord in building up the church of Christ. The devil knows just when and how, and always has some one or more ready to do his work. Congregational troubles, like domestic ones, seem very hard to adjust, and oftentimes become very bitter. Troubles in the home always extract all the sweetness from life and inject the bitterness of gall and wormwood. The same is true of congregations. Without love, no happiness in the home; without love, no happiness in the congregation. "Tis love that makes the home so happy."

Last Lord's day I preached for the congregation at Jones' Chapel. So far as I could learn, the congregation is doing well—all at peace with one another; and I pray that they may continue in this happy condition and that we may have a good meeting at that place this year.

Next Lord's day I am to begin a meeting at Rector, Ark. This congregation, like many others, has had some sad experiences and passed through many sore trials and troubles; and had it not been for the strong fight of faith of a few, the congregation would have gone down. Its greatest fight was against internal troubles, and it makes me sad to say these internal troubles originated with the preachers. Fearful thought! Preachers, like others, have their faults, and sometimes their faults leave destruction behind them. Men who claim to be leaders will magnify their differences to the division of a congregation, rending of the "body of Christ," creating and arousing strife and dissensions that time can scarcely heal. Worldly prosperity is a great hindrance to Christianity. It causes the love of many to "wax cold." "But know this, that in the last days grievous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of self, lovers of money, boastful, haughty, railers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy," etc. (1 Tim. 3: 1, 2.) All these things can be seen today; hence the "last days."

In nearly all the congregations a few can be found who are working with might and main to keep the good work going, who seem determined not to give up the fight or desert the old ship. Yes, the old guard is ever ready in every good work. I would rather be numbered with this class than to possess the wealth of the world. Riches take wings and fly away, while he that does "the will of the Lord" abides forever. Brethren, pray for us and the success of the gospel, which is "God's power unto salvation."

I wish all the brethren would subscribe for and read the dear old Gospel Advocate, which is making such a strong fight for the old paths and for godly living and fair dealing.

Showing Off.

BY JOHN T. POE.

In writing to the church, Paul reminds them that he did not go to them with "wisdom of words" (man's wisdom)—that is, he did not preach to them to show off his learning. He had a message from the Lord to dying men and women, and he said he had rather speak five words of that message in a tongue or language the people could understand than to speak ten thousand words in a tongue they could not understand. How different this from some modern preachers, who spend hours in the pulpit writing Hebrew and Greek on the blackboard and defining to an illiterate audience its meaning! Such a preacher may succeed in making a few persons believe he is an educated man, but he will never succeed in showing men their need of Christ and the way of salvation. Such men preach themselves and their learning, and not Jesus and his word. It is pedantic and an evidence of a lack of an understanding of the great plan of salvation. The purpose in the preaching of such men is to display oneself; and, standing in front of the cross, their hearers do not see Jesus on that cross agonizing in torture for their sin, and hence a failure to arouse gratitude and love in the hearts of those for whom he died. Such preachers would do more good on the farm or in the blacksmith shop.

Doctor Says Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate People, 200% in Ten Days

In many instances—Persons have suffered untold agony for years doctoring for nervous weakness, stomach, liver or kidney disease or some other ailment when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood.—How to tell.

New York, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a well known Specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, said: If you were to make an actual blood test of all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. The food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In some cases it is worse than foolish to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs which only whip up your flagging vital powers for the moment, may be at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run down people who were alling all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth upset their stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated iron, for example is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

me $176.62. Therefore, I lack $31.62 of having the cost of the tent. This I borrowed in Olathe, so we could get the tent out and use it, depending upon others to help me make good the amount borrowed.

I express the sincere thanks both of the brethren in this part of Colorado and of myself for this equipment. We have practically no seats, but we are grateful for the tent. We will arrange seats in some way temporarily. Several of the donations from Olathe are from outside people.

Protection Against Infection.

If you bruise, cut, or burn yourself or get a splinter in your flesh, do not neglect the wound just because it is slight. Many deaths from blood poison have resulted from neglecting just such slight wounds. For nearly a century Gray's Ointment has been used as a protection against such infection. You will find a box of this ointment in thousands of homes. It costs only twenty-five cents and will last indefinitely. You cannot afford to be without it. Get a box from your druggist to-day. For allaying pain and healing abrasions and eruptions of the skin, boils, sores, cuts, bruises, burns, etc., it has no equal. For a free sample, write W. F. A Noble Life.

BY JAMES H. LUNN.

Brother Andrew J. Kerr departed this life at his home in Brookport, Ill., on May 31, 1916, after suffering long from that awful disease, tuberculosis. Death came as a relief to his weary, physical body. Few have suffered as he did for the last six months of his life; but when the call came, he passed away as going to sleep. Brother Kerr was born on November 24, 1873, thus passing away in the prime of life. Such men as Brother Kerr are hard to find as citizens. He was loved and respected by all. Few have been held in esteem by every one as he. As I stood beside his corpse after it was laid in the casket, the president of the national bank paid this tribute to him: "There lies the nearest perfect man I ever knew. If he ever harmed any one or cheated any one out of a cent, I never knew it." As a father, he was a model. He leaves a wife and four girls, as devoted a family as I ever knew. They did all they could do to make his last days happy and comfortable. I know it is hard to give up the head of the family, yet death was a sweet relief to his suffering body. As a brother, he was held to be the dearest and best of the four brothers and one sister. One of his brothers is a preacher; and while he may preach many a sermon, he can never preach the one his brother lived, whose life was one long sermon of righteous living that will live on and on in the hearts of all who knew him. As a member of the "one body" that worships at this place, he was the greatest help. He led the singing and was wise in advice and counsel. O, how he loved to sing! Many times he would come to church when not able to be up and try to sing, but could not hold out. If all congregations had a few as faithful and true as Brother Kerr, the world could be brought to Christ. Early in life he started life right. When the division came, he remained loyal, and he and his two brothers and a few faithful brethren were locked out of the house they helped to build; but, Christianlike, they crossed over on the other side and built them a neat house of worship, where they can be found each Lord's day worshipping "as it is written." While they still are badly in debt, they are paying out, and, with the help of other churches, they will soon be free. Brethren, send them something; they need it and will appreciate it. Send to A. T. Kerr, Brookport, Ill. To this congregation which has lost its chief, I would say: Be comforted with the thought that while we lose, God gains. We often wonder why the best die early. This is plain: Death is the work of the satanical powers, and he wants to destroy the influence of the righteous. While the wicked are doing his work, he lets them live to do the work of Satan. To Sister Kerr, Ethel, Beulah, Pauline and Aliene, I would say: Live as if you were ever looking for the time when you will be called to where father has gone. Funeral services were conducted at the home by Brother C. M. Stubblefield, after which the body was laid to rest in the Pell Cemetery.

Can You Write a Letter Like This?

Mrs. Theo. Kuker, Florence, S. C., writes us under date of August 29, 1915, as follows: "I have ordered 'Renwar' for several people, and many others come to me for the name and address. As my recovery has been so wonderful, I am happy to recommend such a sure remedy. It has never failed to relieve those who used it." This is only one of such letters received by us almost every day. You, too, can be well, if you will. "Renwar" relieves rheumatism by removing the cause, uric acid, from the blood. For sale by all druggists; fifty cents per bottle, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price if your druggist cannot supply you. Warner Drug Company, Nashville, Tenn.

The Good Confession.

Having once made the good confession publicly, the informal ways of confessing Christ should continue. The number of these informal ways is multitudinous. Sometimes they involve a public acknowledgment in so many words; sometimes they do not. One may confess Christ by having a good deal to say, and again one may confess Christ and never speak a word. Some deaf-mutes have confessed the Savior. Every time a Christian boy or girl refuses an invitation to attend some worldly function and lets it be known that the sacrifice is for Jesus' sake there is a good confession. Every time a Christian woman holds her tongue when others are engaged in idle gossip or scandal there is a good confession. Every time a Christian man refuses to drive a dishonest bargain there is a good confession. Every time a Christian comes to the Lord's table in the right spirit there is a good confession. Every time a Christian comes to the study of the word of God with others there is a good confession. A few years ago the National Bill Posters' Association met in Chicago, and through a good, Christian man's influence, they voted that they would refuse to post placards on which there were pictures of the devil, saying that the "forces of evil are too serious to be made a jest of; and that the influence of such posters upon the public has been most marked, especially upon children." The man who introduced that resolution made a good confession. We should go still further. Fathers and mothers should insist, as they have done in New Haven, that pictures representing stabbings and brutal murders, and pictures whose manifest tendency is to dishonor woman and to corrupt childhood and manhood, should not be permitted on any billboard, in any moving-picture show, or anywhere else. That would be a good confession of Him who said: "Blessed are the pure in heart: for they shall see God."

For some reason the human mind more easily remembers that which is evil and more quickly forgets that which is good. The experience of Thomas Fuller is like the experience of us all. He said: "Almost twenty years since I heard a profane jest, and still remember it. How many pious passages of far later date have I forgotten! It seems that my soul is like a filthy pond wherein fish die soon and frogs live long." But the duty of confessing Christ will be a purifying process. If we will only learn to recognize our Savior in the daily walks of life, his strength will take the place of our weakness. "Casting down imaginations, and every high thing that is exalted against the knowledge of God, and bringing every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ."

General Howard once said to R. A. Torrey, the world-famous evangelist: "The proudest day of my life was when a vote of thanks was given me on the floor of Congress for my stand at Gettysburg." That was a high honor. Indeed, but a higher one is in store for the faithful confessor of Christ. "Every one therefore who shall confess me before men, him will I also confess before my Father who is in heaven." Then comes the dread alternative, the inevitable fate of the man who thinks so much of himself and is ashamed of Christ: "But whosoever shall deny me before men, him will I also deny before my Father who is in heaven."

Once again, in closing, I remind you of the precious things in life. Last summer a young woman showed me what she called a "memory pillow." It contained the fragments of many letters, and she told me that every one was precious to her heart. There were letters from her mother and father and from the man who is now her husband; from friends in heaven; letters which brought up pleasant associations of childhood and school days. Every one of them had to her a meaning. She could sit in her room and revel in past associations. And so may our rooms of memory be filled with scripture truths. Every one of them is suggestive of something in the past, the remembrance of which gives us delight. One tells of victory won; another, of a sorrow borne; another, of a perplexity in which we were guided; another, of some great calamity which might have crushed us but for the promise of God. But are not all of these contained in the words of the good confession? These carry a Christian through every year of life, through sunshine and through shadow, through stress and storm; and when he comes to the final hour, they furnish the pillow upon which his head shall rest.

Some have the opportunity to-day to make the good confession, as Timothy made it, before many witnesses. I urge you to do it. And having made it once, I urge you to make it over and over again, to write it in the memory room of your heart, and to weave it into every fabric of your being.

If you are a Christian, the sweet human memory that belonged to Timothy belongs also to you. The good confession you made stands like a bright angel at your door and beckons you to higher and better things. May George Eliot's words never apply to you: "The angels come to visit us, but we only know them when they are gone."

The Closet Door Shut.

I need not leave the jostling world
Or wait till daily tasks are o'er
To fold my palms in secret prayer
Within the close-shut closet door.
There is a viewless, cloistered room,
As high as heaven, as fair as day,
Where, though my feet may join the throng,
My soul can enter in and pray.
And never through those crystal walls
The clash of life can pierce its way,
Nor ever can a human ear
Drink in the spirit-words I say.
One hearkening, even, cannot know
When I have crossed the threshold o'er;
For He alone who hears my prayer
Has heard the shutting of the door.

That Note of Warning.

BY F. W. SMITH.

Brother O. P. Speegle (née O. P. Speegle) seems to be very much perturbed over the fact that a few good brethren who have the peace and prosperity of the churches at heart, and who, knowing the slick political methods indulged in by those who introduce innovations, sounded the following note of warning regarding Brother J. H. Hill:

We would state to the brethren everywhere, if you do not want the minds of the unsuspecting poisoned in your congregations, and if you want to preserve the purity of the faith, men of his type should be kept out of your pulpits.

In giving this bit of advice, these brethren drew the strings so tightly on Brother Speegle's foot that he cries out in the following sweet-spirited (?) strain in the Alabama Christian, of which he is editor:

"LET THE CHURCHES TAKE WARNING."

Such are the glaring headlines in a communication published in a recent number of the Gospel Advocate. A preacher has gone wrong. An Alabama preacher, at that! One of our brethren. And what has he been guilty of? Drunkenness? Worse than that! Lying? Worse than lying! Licentiousness? Worse than that! Indeed, it is none of these sins, including stealing, coveting, gambling, and such like—worse than all combined. Ah! he ran away with another man's wife? No, that is not a circumstance. He has committed the unpardonable sin; and now if you can find out just what he has done, you will never again have to hear a sermon on "What is the unpardonable sin?"

It is a serious matter when one of our preachers goes wrong, and it interests us all when we know it is an Alabama preacher; but such is the case this time. The article in question says: "We seriously regret having to make this statement, but duty compels us." We feel sorry on reading this contribution, for we know how hard it is to shed burning tears over serious matters like this. We have all too few preachers now, and none to spare.

But who is the Alabama preacher that has gone wrong? You will be surprised when we tell you that it is none other than J. H. Hill, of Hartselle! And what has Brother Hill done? What has Brother Hill been guilty of? For every one says he is "a good man." Well, he is the man that has gotten himself into the most serious trouble. But what awful thing has he done? Why, he has actually preached in churches of Christ built and maintained by the "Progressive Disciples of Christ," where the organ or other instrument is used and whose members give, sometimes, through a coöperation called "a missionary society!" This is simply awful! The signers of the article regard it so, for they say: "We would state to the brethren everywhere, if you do not want the minds of the unsuspecting poisoned in your congregations, and if you want to preserve the purity of the faith, men of his type should be kept out of your pulpits."

This monumental document is signed by the following lights of the world and guardians of the faith whose illustrious careers entitle them to sit in judgment and damn their brethren when properly provoked—viz.: J. T. Harris, W. C. Phillips, W. T. Goalen, R. L. Shook, R. W. Jernigan, W. T. Boaz.

First, we wish to say that we have heard Brother J. H. Hill a great many times. He preaches faith in Jesus Christ as the Son of God and Savior of sinners; repentance for sin; confession, before men, of that faith in Jesus; baptism into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Ghost; the Christian life in all its activities; wearing the Bible names as individuals and as the churches of Christ; Christian union, communion, and coöperation in every good work. Yes, his preaching always reminds us of the teaching of Christ and preaching of the apostles. We cannot see how he can preach as he does without having applied himself to the study of the New Testament. We confess we never heard him mention organs, tuning forks, "Gospel Advocates," or other "helps" to the work he was trying to accomplish, either to uphold or criticize.

Second, we wish to say that here is the spectacle of the "Gospel Advocate" and its coterie of satellites sitting in judgment on a true and tried brother, a preacher of the gospel of Christ, whom Christ has called to preach his gospel, tabooing and damning him because he will preach where there is an organ.

Jesus and his apostles preached often where there were instruments of music, and not one word of condemnation ever fell from their lips! Shades of the "advocacy of the gospel!" What and whose gospel is this sheet advocating? Surely not the gospel of Christ. It quotes not one line or sentence; it just picks up a brother, regardless of any action of the congregation with which he stands, and boxes him up and damns him according to the "short form!" There is not a club, a lodge, a society in the world that would do such a thing. No gambler ever killed his pal for his part of the booty without first picking a quarrel with him and seeking an excuse for killing him! But here is a set of men applying the sacred, divine word "brother" to one of their number and tabooing, condemning, damning, and publishing him without a trial or an excuse!

People, what are we coming to? And we have good men and women holding membership in just such societies called "churches" who are ashamed of it, and yet by their membership therein they indorse this sinful, un-Christianlike work. If you hold membership with a church carrying on this unchristian warfare against disciples of Christ who are doing his will, you become particeps criminis in the awful sin. This is specially true where we have congregations that you can belong to other than those with a "creed in the deed" or in "discipline;" for as to the fact of a creed there is no difference, nor as to the sin of the creed as a means of division.

It may be of some interest to close this editorial with a renewal of a proposition that we have had standing for twenty-five years—viz.: We hereby offer one hundred dollars to any one who will point us to one single verse of the 31,173 verses in the Bible where Jesus Christ, or any prophet or apostle, ever condemned any one for singing or worshipping where there was an instrument or instruments of music, or where any one was ever condemned for working through a coöperation in doing the Lord's work, which coöperation is sometimes called a "missionary society." Now, then, you "smart" men that have tabooed, condemned, and damned "Brother" Hill, you say you must have a "thus saith the Lord;" and we demand that you give us a "thus saith the Lord" for your action or confess that you are poor, ignorant, deluded, unworthy creatures, and take our admonition to "repent therefore of this thy wickedness, and pray God, if perhaps the thought of thine heart may be forgiven thee."

Did these brethren whom Speegle berates so vehemently have just grounds for their course in warning the churches? Let the reader note carefully the following from the pen of Brother J. P. Ezell:

There is a man whose name is J. H. Hill, and whose address is Hartselle, Ala., whose name does not appear in the "List of Preachers of Churches of Christ," and whose name is never seen in reports in papers published by loyal brethren, who is causing trouble in the churches of Christ in Lawrence County. In a letter to me of November 23, 1915, he says: "I am in no way connected with the digressive, progressive, or Christian Church." But this same man has worked with digressive churches for the past six or eight years, and is now preaching for digressive churches, and who worked at the request of the "State Board," going from one church to another in North Alabama presenting the needs of the "State work" and taking pledges for said "State work."

This same man, to my knowledge, has gone to three churches in Lawrence County over the protest of the elders, and, of course, has each time caused division and strife. Moreover, his name appeared in the program of the "Alabama Christian Missionary Coöperation," which convention was held at Jasper, Ala., in November, and the treasurer's report of said society shows that J. H. Hill received $197.50 from the State Board for 1914-1915, and in the January issue of the Alabama Christian is an article reporting the work of O. P. Speegle and J. H. Hill.

The last offense was on the second Lord's day (this month), when he went to Aldridge Grove, and those whom he had beguiled, over the protest of the elders, in Hill's presence, put it to a vote, and men and women voted in favor of Hill's preaching for the church this year. The elders having protested against such procedure, of course, voted neither "yea" nor "nay."

He claims to them, and makes many to believe, that he is loyal, and had with him copies of the Gospel Advocate, Christian Leader, and Firm Foundation, and showed that he took and read all; but when one asked why we see nothing of his name in any and why he did not report his work to them, he said he did not believe in reporting or advertising, whereas in the Alabama Christian of August is a report of his meeting with the Valhermosa Springs Christian Church.

Now, if the above be true, it shows a lack of fairness and candor on the part of Brother Hill. He has, of course, a perfect right to believe, teach, and practice what he pleases in religion in so far as any mortal is concerned, but he has no right to impose himself in the way here described on churches that desire to steer clear of modern innovations. According to Brother Ezell's report, J. H. Hill has overridden and set aside the elders—God's appointed rulers in his churches. O. P. Speegle is berating good brethren for warning churches against such men, thus tacitly indorsing such high-banded wickedness.

They writer knew O. P. Speegle, this brave (?) "knight of the quill," when he first began to itch for the "fleah-pots" of societyism, and did all that he could to keep the young man in the strait and narrow way; but he had gotten a glimpse of the long-green pastures of the broad way, and his ear had caught the melodious strains of the pipe organ.

Added to these were the honors of "bossism" to which he aspired and to which he successfully attained. It was too much, and Oscar jumped the fence. Many letters passed between us in which he was bleating like a sheep wandering from the fold, but his bleating became less distinct and finally ceased altogether. He had conquered his love for the truth, cleared the fence at a single bound, and gone the way of the transgressor. Unlike W. T. Caskey's lost sheep of the house of Israel who "lost his bell, shed his fleece, and was feeding on sneeze weed," Oscar has grown fleece of a golden hue and become a bell sheep of the society flock. It is unnecessary, for all practical purposes, to prefix "O. P." to his name; just write in plain letters "Boss Speegle," and he will get it. He once knew the truth, for he had been taught it at the feet of the saintly T. B. Larimore, whose teaching and preaching never did and never will lead a single soul to deviate one hair's breadth from God's will and way. Brother Larimore filled Oscar so full of the truth and the spirit of loyalty while at Mars' Hill that he had a hard time of breaking away from it; hence all that bleating around like a sheep in distress before he jumped the fence.

He writes so "sweetly" and so "elegantly" of the Gospel Advocate. Hear him: "What and whose gospel is this sheet advocating?" That little warning of the churches against Oscar's political trickery in the use of his "Fridays" has made his blood tingle. He is exceedingly mad, and vents his spleen on the Gospel Advocate. Be quiet, Brother Oscar, and take your medicine like a good fellow, for it may do you good in the long run.

He tries to be funny—yes, real funny—in cataloguing sin, and at the same time makes an effort to minimize the sin of adding to and corrupting the worship of God, as well as setting aside the divinely appointed agencies for the evangelization of the world. But we should not let Oscar off with a laugh at his wit (?). He must face the serious side of this question. If he does not know that to add to, change, or modify in the least the appointments of Almighty God is a greater sin than lying, theft, adultery, or even murder, then he knows precious little about God's dealings with the human family. O. P. Speegle may esteem it a light thing to depart from and corrupt the worship of God, but unless he repents he will learn better to his eternal sorrow. He closes his sweet-spirited (?) effusion with the following:

We hereby offer one hundred dollars to any one who will point us to one single verse of the 31,173 verses in the Bible where Jesus Christ, or any prophet or apostle, ever condemned any one for singing or worshipping where there was an instrument or instruments of music, or where any one was ever condemned for working through a coöperation in doing the Lord's work, which coöperation is sometimes called a "missionary society."

It was hinted to the reader that Oscar had grown "fleece"—yes, golden fleece—and here is actual proof of it. He has one hundred dollars to give away! Well, we have no "golden fleece" to offer him, but we challenge him to show by the word of God where any apostle, prophet, or early Christian, after the day of Pentecost or the beginning of the church of Christ, worshiped with an instrument or instruments of music, or did any kind of work for the Lord through any such institution as the society with which he is connected. If he cannot produce the proof, then by whose authority does he have these things? Oscar, it will be more in keeping with fairness and candor for you to affirm that the word of God authorizes your practice in these things. When you can summon courage to do so, let us know, and we will have a man on the ground. Until then, fare thee well.

Brother Speegle very profusely thanks the American Home Missionary for saying: "Mr. Speegle's ministry is State-wide and interdenominational." What kind of a ministry is that, Oscar? We read of no such in the Book.

Another Error of Mine.

BY PRICE BILLINGSLEY.

For several years I have given moral and educational lectures in connection with my work as a preacher, devoting a good deal of time to this end in my meetings. And, in fact, in none of my speeches was much Bible used, the talks being made up sometimes almost wholly of classic allusions and other irrelevant matter. I consumed upon outside things precious time properly to be devoted to the gospel itself, and engaged in the discussion of questions the gospel preacher is not to be concerned with. In all of which I have been greatly in error, in spite of the fact that I loved the Lord's way and did not intend to get away from the gospel. And I wish to make this statement public.

It is the gospel we are sent to preach. Jesus Christ, proved to be the Son of God, was the sum and substance of the apostles' preaching, and not some bleached and powdered dissertation about Jesus, or finespun theorizing upon questions of theology or philosophy. The burden of their preaching was that the world lay in death without the blood of the Lamb, and they bent their whole lives to the work of inducing men to believe and obey Christ. This to-day is the world's supreme need, and, professing to preach the gospel, I am true neither to God nor man when this is not the sum and substance of my preaching also. My business is to preach the word, to preach Christ, to exalt his name above all else, and to keep the story of the cross, the central and all-absorbing theme, constantly in view. I am, therefore, gravely in error to be interested in pretty speeches and mere moral and educational lectures while men around me are dying for want of the gospel God sends me to heal them with. Nor can a man preach the gospel whose love for it is not great enough to absorb his whole heart and purpose.

There is much truth, important enough in its way and to be taught by proper persons and in right connections, which is not gospel truth at all. In fact, it does not remotely touch the gospel. And it is therefore dangerous for the gospel preacher to teach such things; it would be fatal were such teaching mistaken for the gospel. Paul purposed to know nothing but Christ crucified, lest he should mislead men. (1 Cor. 2: 1-5.) It is a sad reflection that most folks like preaching a remove or two from the Bible, preferring it diluted with other things. Few want the gospel for its own sake and in the unmixed original. It is just here the preacher is in danger. He will be tempted to make his preaching popular by injecting into it matter which does not properly belong to the gospel story. No preacher is safe who does not know that even while he loves the truth, through interest in extraneous and irrelevant things, he may unconsciously drift from the Lord's way. We must avoid this danger as we would shun a deadly plague.

The moralist and even the politician often allude to the Bible, and really they are in as near a living touch with the word of God as are some preachers. With all such men the honor and authority of God are incidental. When they go to the Book at all, it is merely for some pretty text, from which they preach, and their pretty speeches are for other than gospel ends. With their tiny, diluted doses, it would require a thousand years to inoculate their hearers with the gospel, so little of it do they teach. But this is no way to administer the gospel of the Son of God. Men need the divine word, not in little capsule amounts, but in huge and unbroken doses; and the more, the better. God disallows the wisdom of man a place in the gospel, and expressly forbids us employing "excellency of speech" or "enticing words of man's wisdom," "lest the cross of Christ be made of none effect." And he who aims at making pretty speeches, by that very fact denies himself the power of telling the good news of Jesus.

We are in danger when we, even for a moment, get away from the cross. There are a thousand subtle influences and sophistries to attract and betray us, through which we can safely thread our way only by humbly and constantly consulting the word of God. We must allow the Father not only to start us right, but to correct us and to stay us on the true course. We cannot safely wander from the Book at any point. We must remain at the fountain of life under the guidance of God. As long as the Lord goes on forming and reforming our views, we shall not go astray. But it needs the balancing effect of divine truth playing constantly upon the soul to keep it from toppling over—the brighter the mind naturally, the graver the danger of its going wrong without divine guidance. And if before the giantlike intellects and the great literary skill we encounter in the speakers and writers of the world we are inclined to feel apologetic for the comparative lack of intellect and artistic and literary sense in our church leaders, we may reassure ourselves with the reflection that God has planned that they who will follow him shall glory, not in men, but in the cross.

I do not deny that in our preaching we may use illustrations from the pulsing life about us, provided they are for the sole and immediate purpose of setting forth the gospel; but he who confines himself solely to the gospel walks no hampered way. Rather, he is in a great field, in which his content and joy increase as he gives himself wholly to it. Besides, the only gospel truth there is, is in the words of the New Testament, the sole agency by which men are led to redemption. And, being merely a mouthpiece, I should be willing for the gospel to tell its own story, since it is God's words and not my own I want planted in the hearts of my hearers. And, once we gain the perfect gospel point of view, I venture to believe we shall be content to phrase all our preaching in the exact words of the gospel and cease believing we can help it by adding our own way. The gospel's own words constitute the fittest and most effective known instruments for conveying God's doctrines, that not being his doctrine which cannot be adequately and explicitly set forth in his own words. No man has any business with a doctrine God has not already given expression to better than any man can state it in words of his own choosing. I am, therefore, distrustful of him who, in presenting his religious beliefs, prefers his own words to God's. The Father can beat me telling what I am to believe and teach, and his words require no explanation at my hands in order to be grasped by honest hearers. It needs great spiritual virility to swallow without protest and without wish for dilution all the Bible says. However, he gives proof of being afflicted with a deadly disease who wants to take it any other way.

The gospel should be so grounded in the heart of him who teaches it as to act steadily upon all his thinking, forming a kind of subconscious base which will give color, shape, and direction to his whole mind and character. Not so much that the word itself shall be spoken every breath (though I think that happy end is finally achieved) as that the influence of the gospel upon the soul shall be constant. But no superficial knowledge of the Bible can give this effect, which is one reason why the superficial and secondhand reader of the Bible can be no trustworthy or effective teacher of the gospel. But O, the wonder of the sermon whose warp and woof, woven together from the material gathered here and there, is in the exact words of the living God! And the power of the preacher who sets his heart upon making the Bible tell its own story! It is thus he vitalizes the barren fields of his own thoughts and adds immeasurably to the clarity and effectiveness of his speaking.

I have greatly erred in yielding to the temptation to speak upon popular outside themes and in neglecting the gospel. And I want it set down here that in this my attempt to draw crowds I have demonstrated that the element in a community most appealed to by the discussion of these showy, irrelevant questions were the very ones who most resented it when I came to present the gospel, and I have discovered that they were the most insubstantial folks in the whole country. And I have seen that the preacher who thus attempts to attract the world both cheapens himself and injures the cause in the estimation of the truly considerable people of the country. It is clear that it is my duty to be wholly absorbed in the gospel and to present it in the love of it in the most unpretentious way possible. And this I now resolve to do. For men cannot come to God when not drawn by proper motives, which means the gospel was not meant for some people, seeing it does not appeal to them. I shall hereafter seek to lead those who will to come to Christ actuated by true motives, and cease my vain and foolish efforts to gain favor with and attract folks of the wrong sort. I acknowledge and turn from my grave mistakes herein recounted, and I pray to be forgiven and healed. And I make public this statement in the hope of counteracting some of the evil I may have done.

Closing Exercises of the National Teachers' Normal and Business College, Henderson, Tenn.

The eighth annual commencement, June 3-8, of the National Teachers' Normal and Business College, Henderson, Tenn., was a great success. College Hall was taxed to the limit every session for six days. Many of the old students were present.

There were in all departments thirty-five graduates. Brother W. H. Trice, of Memphis, delivered the address to the graduating classes. Prof. N. B. Hardeman preached the sermon, opening the exercises for the week. Everything was a feast of good things till the close.

The enrollment for the session was quite an increase over last year. Fifteen States and Canada were represented in the student body. They were a fine class of boys and girls, and a high grade of work was done by them.

The saddest part of the year came on Friday when the "good-by" had to be said. Each train carried loads of students and trunks homeward. The town is quiet, the college halls are still, and the old bell is silent. The teachers, too, have scattered, each busy in the Master's work for the summer.

All eyes are turned toward the opening of next session, September 6. Everything points to a great opening then.

By the time you read this our new catalogue will be from the press. We are anxious for aspiring boys and girls to read it, and for parents to know what we have in store for their children. Write now for the catalogue. It will give us pleasure to mail it to you.

Address A. G. Freed, President, or N. B. Hardeman, Vice President, Henderson, Tenn.

Mother o' Mine.

If I were hanged on the highest hill,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
 I know whose love would follow me still,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

If I were drowned in the deepest sea,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
 I know whose tears would come down to me,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

If I were damned of body and soul,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!
 I know whose prayers would make me whole,
 Mother o' mine, O mother o' mine!

In Behalf of Our Aged and Infirm Subscribers.

Hardly a day passes but what the publishers of the Gospel Advocate do not receive a letter from some aged and infirm subscriber who has been on our list for many years and who is compelled, through force of circumstances, to give up the paper. We do not like to lose such names from our list. They stand for friends tried and true, who have stood by us in sunshine and in shadow. A great many of these we have continued free of charge. We have cheerfully contributed this much to their happiness and to the usefulness of the paper. Omitting name and place, here is one of such letters which is self-explanatory:

Dear Brethren: Your letter to hand this morning, and I hasten to answer. I am sorry that I cannot remain with the Gospel Advocate, as I think it the best paper in our brotherhood. I am sixty-nine years old and have been reading it ever since my boyhood days. But having been afflicted with rheumatism for the last seven years, and a great deal of that time on crutches and unable to work, I find that I must do without many things I would love so much to have.

With best wishes for the success of the old and reliable Gospel Advocate, I am, Your brother in Christ, X.

Without hesitation we continued this subscription and, in addition, wrote our esteemed brother a comforting letter. We wish all our readers whom God has prospered to have fellowship with those who are crippled and bedridden and helpless, but who can and who do appreciate the Gospel Advocate. To be deprived of the paper after having read it for a long, long time is a real loss to them. Would you not, dear reader, prevent a heartache? Send us a dollar or more to continue the Advocate to some aged, crippled, or poverty-stricken brother or sister. We have them on the waiting list. "Make some other heart-joyce," and do it to-day. PUBLISHERS GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

Revelation.

BY JOHN T. POE.

Merely natural men—those not inspired—did not and could not receive and convey to the world the revelation of God's will. No one could search and know what was in the mind of God, save those who had within them the Spirit of God. "For," said Paul, "what man knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of man which is in him?" And the reasoning is: Who could read or understand what was the thought or mind of God, save those who had the Spirit of God—the supernatural man? Many Bible readers make the mistake of applying this scripture (1 Cor. 2: 14) to men in general, to all men; and hence arose the idea that men in the natural state—men as they are naturally—cannot know or understand the Bible, the word of God, and that the Spirit of God must take of the word and apply it to the heart of man, etc. This is a mistake. Paul spoke of the receiving of the will of God. He calls the un-inspired man the "natural man" in contrast with the supernatural or inspired man. None but inspired men could know or receive from God his will. But since the supernatural or spiritual man—the inspired man—has received the things God would have us know and has written the things down in a book, the Bible, we can read and understand. We could not receive the message direct from God, because we are not inspired; but those who were inspired did do it and wrote the Lord's will down for us. While the natural man could not conceive the things God has prepared for them that love him, God has been good enough to reveal them to us by his Spirit; so we may know them now, since he has told us, through his Spirit, in the Bible. The world is without excuse, then, if it does not know the will of God. All it has to do is to search the Scriptures and learn.

QUERY DEPARTMENT

[Brother A. G. Freed, the president of the National Teachers' Normal and Business College, has kindly consented to assist Brother McQuiddy in the Query Department. Brother Freed is a scholarly man of fine attainments, and we believe his answers to queries will be appreciated.—EDITOR'S NOTE.]

Brother McQuiddy: (1) Please explain what is meant by the word "city" in Tit. 1: 5. (2) Also, explain who are the "branches" spoken of in John 15: 5. Some take the position that only the apostles are branches and that all other Christians are fruit, or the result of the labors of the apostles, and are, therefore, not branches of the true vine; others, that "branches" has reference to religious denominations.

J. M. DENNIS.

(1) "In every city" refers to every city in Crete. It appears that Paul had visited the hundred cities for which this island was celebrated. It is not probable that Paul failed to preach Christ, and him crucified, in a single city of Crete. The command to appoint elders in every city indicates that he established a church in each. (2) John 15: 5 is: "I am the vine, ye are the branches: He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit: for apart from me ye can do nothing." Christ has already declared in verse 1 that he is the vine. It should be noted that not denominations, but that every disciple is a branch of the vine. The disciple can do nothing without Christ. Paul declared: "I can do all things through Christ who strengtheneth me."

Brother McQuiddy: What chapters and verses in the Bible give all the church ordinances? Do the Scriptures authorize the baptism of believers in pools in church houses? Do the Scriptures authorize instrumental music in the New Testament church?

FRANK T. TUCKER.

The Bible does not say anything about church ordinances. All the commands, laws, and statutes of Jehovah are the ordinances of God. Christ commands baptism. People who were baptized in New Testament times came unto the water, where there was much water, went down into the water, were buried in baptism, were born of the water, and came up out of the water. In obedience to the Bible command, people are, therefore, authorized to go where there is a sufficient quantity of water to be buried in baptism and come up out of the water. There is no specific command that the burial shall take place in a river or in a pool in a meetinghouse. John baptized in Enon because there were many waters there, and Christ was baptized in the Jordan. We do not find an example of a New Testament church using instruments of music in the worship. Those who wish to follow the example and practice of the New Testament church will not bring instrumental music into the worship.

Brother McQuiddy: (1) Brother A and Brother B are members of the same local church. Brother A is an elder and Brother B is a deacon. They had trouble, both being in fault. Brother B confessed his wrong to Brother A and the church. Brother A will not confess his wrongs. What is the church's duty in regard to Brother A? (2) Can Brother A and Brother B worship God acceptably in the same congregation, if Brother A does not confess his wrongs?

D. E. MURKIN.

It is difficult for one not acquainted with all the facts to answer this query correctly. Taking it for granted that the facts have been correctly given, the answer is easy. (1) The church should deal with Brother A as the Scriptures direct: "Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which they received of us." (2 Thess. 3: 6.) "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." (Matt. 6: 14, 15.) (2) Brother A should get right in order to worship God acceptably anywhere. So long as Brother B keeps right, he can worship God acceptably anywhere.

Brother McQuiddy: The Methodists have asked me to answer this question: "How may we be able to give a reason for the hope within us?" Now I can answer in a few words, but it is important that I give a deeper, fuller answer; so I turn to you for more light, which I know you can give. And I assure you that I will greatly appreciate your kindness and feel that good will result.

MRS. E. T. COLLINS.

"The Spirit himself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are children of God: and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joint heirs with Christ; if so be that we suffer with him, that we may be also glorified with him." (Rom. 8: 16, 17.) There are two that bear witness, the Spirit of God and the spirit of man. God's Spirit reveals the conditions of salvation from past sins to be faith, repentance, and baptism. Mark 16: 16: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." Luke 24: 47: "And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name unto all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem." A man knows whether he has believed, repented, and been baptized. God's Spirit says do these things; man's spirit says, "I have, or have not, done them." When we sin after entering the church, the Holy Spirit says: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1: 9.) Man knows whether or not he has truly confessed his sins.

* * *

Brother Freed: I heard a man preach not long since who declared that we are now living under the old covenant God made with Abraham, and defied any one to show where that covenant had been done away with. He declared that it was to last forever, or for a thousand generations. What about Heb. 8: 6-13? Does not this destroy the old covenant? If so, what about this man's preaching? Is he not misleading? And what about the thousand generations, or forever, that it should last? What is meant by "the church in the wilderness," spoken of in Acts 7: 38? Also please explain 2 Cor. 3: 6; 1 Cor. 5: 5.

X.

(1) The covenant God made with Abraham (Gen. 12) is everlasting. It contained the promise of a coming Savior. In and through Christ the nations of earth are to be blessed. Every Christian is a child of Abraham and an "heir according to promise." (Gal. 3: 29.) Hence this covenant is to last forever. Heb. 8: 6-13 has reference to the covenant God made with the children of Israel through Moses at Sinai. (2) "The church in the wilderness" (Acts 7: 38) has reference to the congregation of Jews delivered from bondage at the hand of Moses. (3) 2 Cor. 3: 6 is a contrast between the law of Moses and the law of the Spirit, or new testament. The first is called the letter, which kills; the other, the spirit, which gives life. That is called the "ministration of death, written and engraven in stones;" this, "the ministration of righteousness." The one "is done away;" the other "remaineth." (4) "Who also hath given unto us the earnest of the Spirit" has reference to the Holy Spirit promised those who obey God. (Acts 5: 32; 2: 38.)

MISSIONARY

BY J. M. McCALEB.

The Still Small Voice About India Does Not Ask Your Money—It Ask for You Yourself.

BY E. S. JELLEY, JR.

Brethren, this is the greatest emergency in the history of the church, and I believe it fully justifies the following extraordinary demands.

The facts are these: We are a missionary church, having been unalterably committed to a world-wide missionary policy by our Lord. Can any Christian deny it? And yet there are some twelve hundred millions who, so far as we can tell, have never heard a presentation of the way into the glorious kingdom which we all say has come (about which kingdom also some have been accusing others of high treason because they say the millennium is not exactly here). Moreover, there is not one religious body—no, not even the Holly Rollers—which has not more missionaries in foreign fields than we. Even the twenty thousand Christians in the British Isles are doing about as much for the evangelization of foreign lands as we nine thousand congregations.

While the millennium is here, upon the unimpeachable authority of many preachers, yet it isn't very perceptible here in India, outside of a tiny district or two. There are Christians among about a million out of India's two hundred and seventeen millions, and we have none too many missionaries in Japan and other parts of the world. Now, in view of this unprecedented emergency, I believe I am right in saying to every Christian in the United States and Canada, your King and his church need you.

This does not mean that you are to contribute five dollars more per year to the cause in India or Japan (your own conscience may demand that you do that or more), but it means that it is your duty to enlist in the fight and exert and sacrifice for Christ just as much as the soldiers in the carnal war now in progress are doing. Furthermore, in view of the fact that no one will volunteer for service in India, it means that you personally must volunteer to come to India, unless you are too old or too infirm to come, or unless you are the publisher of a paper. This call is not an extravagant one; it is made necessary by the shirking of duty by men much better qualified than you for service in India. As no one else will volunteer, it is your duty to do so. If too many volunteer, then the ones best fitted for the work can be sent and you can remain at home in the munitions department; but at present it is your duty to volunteer.

Finally, if you are absolutely unfit, it is your duty according to the Scriptures to do all you can for the work at home, and also to do the same for the work abroad; both with your means and with your tongue and pen. In England every man engaged in necessary work at home wears a khaki armband to show that he is a home fighter, doing his duty to his government. Brother Christian, if in the end you stay at home, will you not make yourself a distinct fighter of the Indian or other demons, although still at home?

Perhaps it ought not to be necessary to put any member of a missionary church in remembrance, but it is. It is very seldom, indeed, that a missionary sermon is preached outside of a very small number of congregations; and if I am not mistaken, scarcely any editor of any paper writes a missionary article once a year. I remember that some years ago I was one of the editors of a certain paper. Then a new publisher dropped the whole staff and some of them became editors of departments of other papers. Well, I may be mistaken, but I do not know of any of my former coeditors (excepting two who are with the old paper) who have ever written in the interest of the work in India. One, indeed, wrote several times in a manner which seemed to indicate that all of the foreign work was in Japan, and I wrote asking him to mention India also, whereupon he quit writing about all foreign work. Another coeditor (unsolicited) wrote my mother, promising to help the work in India, but, so far as I can discover, he never did so in any manner. He is an able writer and preacher. I should like to see him volunteer for India.

Brethren, this is plain truth that it is your personal duty to volunteer for India; your Lord and his church need you.

Moving Pictures.

One of the young men of the Zoshigaya church gave fifty sen, which paid for five hundred tracts to distribute at the Katori festival.

We greatly sympathize with Brother and Sister Vincent in her affliction, which, on the authority of the doctors, necessitates their return home. It is not very encouraging to see two leave the field for one that arrives. At this rate we will soon have no workers in Japan.

The great festival at the Katori Shrine has come and gone. Five of us went from Tokyo. Brother Fujimori was there with the brethren from Takahagi, and Brother Tuskamoto was there with brethren from Yamakura. In all, there were about twenty. We distributed fifty thousand tracts in about three hours, and spent the rest of the day in preaching on the roadside. There were probably not less than a hundred thousand people who attended this festival.

A man called to-day for help. He said he was a shlyra (Christian), but had lost his wife and had four children. I told him if he was a member of the church he had mentioned, they certainly would help him, if he was worthy. I further suggested, however, that if he would bring a cart and carry my tracts to the station on the next day, I would pay him for it. He reluctantly said he would come, but insisted that he was awfully hungry. I was about to let him go away, but before he was out at the gate I called him back and told him to go around to the kitchen door. I went to Togo, the cook, and asked him to give the man something. He fixed him up a double quantity, and the poor fellow ate as though he had not had anything for several days, sure enough. I could not have slept well that night if I had let him go away hungry.

A sister from Tennessee writes that she is in very bad health, and asks the prayers of the Zoshigaya church for her recovery that she "may be spared to live nearer to God." On Thursday night (April 27) at our prayer meeting I made mention of it and asked all who felt a desire to do so to join me in prayer for our sister. There were four prayers audibly expressed, while all, I am sure, lifted their hearts to God for the afflicted sister so far away across the sea, yet made near in God.

The Christian Minister and Sin.

BY M. C. K.

For the sake of a further statement and explanation of a most vital principle in the special work and mission of preachers of the gospel, we here reproduce a brief extract from the layman's criticism of the church published in our issue of last week. We quote again as follows:

As we view it, the church by thus allying itself with secular movements is endeavoring to cure the evils of the social life by a species of legalism, striving to purify the sinful nature of man by attacking the outside, forgetting that crimes and violations of law are the external marks only of an inward demoralization and rottenness of the heart. The root of the evil in the world is in the human heart, and to redeem the world the inner spiritual nature must be first purified. The crime committed is the fruit of sin in the heart. You may punish the criminal for violating the law, but that does not cure the sinful heart. The Christian minister has to do with sin, not with crime. When, therefore, he allies himself with the officers of the law in arresting criminals, he is departing from his proper function and weakening his power and ability to cure the sin in the heart.

We invite the reader's very careful and serious attention to the distinction here drawn between sin and crime. This is a distinction which, at first sight, may appear to be wholly without a difference, and therefore unwarranted; but this is so far from being the case that the difference in question is not only clearly marked, but it is radical and vital. Perhaps it would be more accurate to say that the distinction, strictly speaking, is between sin in its internal existence in the human heart and sin in its external manifestation in human conduct, the distinction being that between the condition of the human heart as the seat and source of sin in its essence and the various and multifarious forms of its outward manifestation in the lives of men.

While, in the ordinary phraseology of men, sin is any kind of wickedness or offense against God, and crime is any action contrary to the laws of the State, yet we do not find such a distinction definitely stated in the Holy Scriptures; but we do find, expressed in the clearest and strongest terms, a very broad and marked distinction between sin in the heart and the outward manifestation of sin in the overt acts of life. Listen to this distinction as it is solemnly drawn in revolutionary terms by the Son of God himself: "Ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; and whosoever shall kill shall be in danger of the judgment; but I say unto you, that every one who is angry with his brother shall be in danger of the judgment; and whosoever shall say to his brother, Raca, shall be in danger of the council; and whosoever shall say, Thou fool, shall be in danger of the hell of fire." (Matt. 5: 21, 22.) Again: "Ye have heard that it was said, Thou shalt not commit adultery; but I say unto you, that every one that looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart." (Matt. 5: 27, 28.) Again: "Ye have heard that it was said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy; but I say unto you, Love your enemies, and pray for them that persecute you; that ye may be sons of your Father who is in heaven: for he maketh his sun to rise on the evil and the good, and sendeth rain on the just and the unjust." (Matt. 5: 43-45.)

Now, it is not possible to give these passages a careful and searching examination with due thought to what they distinctly say without observing the marked distinction drawn by Jesus between sin as it exists in the heart within and the overt act without by which it manifests itself in the lives of men. According to him, sin in its essence exists in the human heart before it assumes the form of an overt act in the human life; and hence, even murder and adultery, which, in some instances, exemplify sin in one of the most hideous and repulsive of all forms, exist in all their baleful essence in the heart of man before any outward act has been committed. To punish a murderer or an adulterer, therefore, for the mere outward act in the case of either sin does not remove nor even reach the sin itself. Such correction merely strikes at one of the symptoms of sin, but does not touch the disease itself. This exists within the heart, and the only remedy is to change the heart, to bring the whole man within to a complete surrender to God, "bringing," as Paul so beautifully expresses it, "every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ." (2 Cor. 10: 5.) Then, and only then, is sin cured; and then, and only then, is a man delivered from sin.

Now, the lesson of all this is that the Christian's attitude toward sin, and preëminently the attitude of the Christian minister, requires that they shall deal, not directly with crime at all, which is only a manifestation or symptom of the disease, sin, but with sin in its essence as it exists primarily in the human heart. Moreover, the Christian minister must deal gently with poor, unfortunate men and women who have fallen a prey to sin and have been led into any of the crime forms of its manifestation. This is why our friendly lay critic regrets to see ministers of the gospel become prosecutors of criminals before the civil courts, or in any other way to form alliances with the world in attacking sin only in its outward forms; and this is why the Christian minister should not turn politician, nor convert his pulpit into a religio-secular forum for the exploitation of political or other secular themes. God has given him his message, and to this message he should be true. It not only embodies Jesus Christ, and him crucified, but it embodies equally the awful fact that it was sin which caused his death, and that it is through his blood alone that forgiveness of sin is possible. Hence, the Christian minister should make men feel the enormity of sin, as sin, regardless of the particular form in which it manifests itself, and that they must turn from it or be ruined by it. Reaching the human heart, the seat and source of all sin, and its complete renewal and cleansing by the blood of Christ, should be the object of all preaching. When one is, therefore, a minister of the gospel in the fullest and best and only true sense, he is a thorough sympathizer with men and yearns to deliver them from evil. No matter what misdeeds may mark their lives, nor how reprehensible and worthy of condemnation their conduct may be, he will still look upon them with mercy and lose no opportunity to do them good. No matter what their station in life, he would make all men feel the danger of allowing any sin to rankle in the heart. Hence, let ministers of the gospel, like Paul, "reason of righteousness and self-control and the judgment to come" until men, like Felix, are so impressed with sin that they are "terrified." Remove sin and all sinful impulses from the human heart, and then the life will be right and God's approval will be upon it.

Some Questions and Answers.

BY E. A. E.

Dear Brother Elam: Will you kindly help us to a better understanding of the following proposition? After the Babylonian captivity there seems to have been two kinds of worship under that dispensation, separate and distinct—the one from the temple, symbolic; the other from the synagogue, spiritual. That, Judaistic in character; this, not Jewish in character, and seems to have come over from the patriarchal dispensation and common to all dispensations. In the synagogue spiritual worship became social and conventional. The ritual and the spiritual forever separated, the first being wholly confined to the temple and the latter to the synagogue. There was no spiritual worship offered in the temple and no ritual in the synagogue. Their nature and object were wholly dissimilar—the ritual worship wholly out of place in the synagogue, and the spiritual wholly unnecessary in the temple. Since it was symbolic, the synagogue, though spiritual, did not and could not supplant the temple or ritual. But it seems that the synagogue worship was the precursor of the church of Christ, and prepared the way, and where the apostles got their footing, etc. Kindly help us through the Gospel Advocate.

R. M. GOODLOE.

All persons should gladly do whatever they can toward helping one another to a better understanding of the truth.

Some things are in the way of understanding the truth: (1) Building theories on that which is not essential to salvation, let the theories turn out either way or any way; (2) drawing distinctions and making differences where none exist; (3) contending for "propositions" which cannot be sustained.

It cannot be true that there were two different kinds of worship, "separate and distinct," acceptable to God under the same dispensation. It is not true that "there was no spiritual worship offered in the temple," or that the worship in the synagogue was altogether spiritual. The worship in the temple was ceremonial and ritual; but the worship in the synagogue may have been more or less "ritual," and there was "spiritual" services in the common meaning of "spiritual" in the temple. For instance, prayer is "spiritual," and prayers were offered alike in the temple and synagogue. Prayer could not be "ritual" and "symbolic" in the temple and "spiritual" in the synagogue. Reading the Scriptures could not be "ritual" in the temple and "spiritual" in the synagogue. Reading the Scriptures was a very important part of the service in the synagogue. But the Scriptures were read in the temple. (2 Kings 23: 1-3.) God commanded the study of his word. When the Jews met at their feasts three times in the year, the law was read. (Deut. 31: 10-12.) King Jehoshaphat sent out princes and Levites to teach the law in all the cities of Judah, which was done with great effect. (2 Chron. 17: 7-9.) Later the Jews met every Sabbath in their synagogues in all the land and wherever they were scattered, whether they had synagogues or not (Acts 16: 12, 13), to study the Scriptures. This kept alive in their hearts the knowledge of God, saved them from idolatry, and helped to prepare the world for Christ. "As his custom was," Jesus went into the synagogue at Nazareth on the Sabbath. It was his custom to do this while he lived at Nazareth; yet he worshiped in the temple in Jerusalem. After his public ministry began, he went into the synagogues wherever he was to teach. (Luke 4: 15, 16.)

Hezekiah spread the blasphemous letter which he received from the Assyrians before God in the temple and prayed, and God heard him and drove back his enemies. (See Isa. 36, 37.) While Zacharias was burning incense in the temple, "the whole multitude of the people were praying without." (Luke 1: 10.) Peter and John went up into the temple at the hour of prayer. (Acts 3: 1.) The psalmist asked that his prayer might be set forth before God as incense, and the lifting up of his hands as the evening sacrifice. (Ps. 141: 2.) Note the presentation of Jesus to Jehovah in the temple and the blessing of Simeon. (Luke 2: 22-32.) Anna, a prophetess, an old woman, a widow, "departed not from the temple, worshiping with fasting and supplications night and day." (Luke 2: 36-39.) Prayer was offered, not only in the temple, but toward the temple, if God's people could not reach that place. (Read 2 Chron. 6: 18-42.) God promised his people that if they should be in captivity and should repent and pray toward the temple, he would hear and forgive them. So Daniel in captivity prayed toward Jerusalem. (Dan. 6: 10.)

There were peace offerings and thank offerings made in the temple; praise and gratitude were offered there. (Read Jer. 17: 26.)

The temple was built for God's name and presence. There he met with and blessed the people. (2 Chron. 7: 1-3.)

The temple and the worship in the temple were typical (see Heb. 8: 2, 5; 9: 8, 9, 11, 21-26; 10: 1); yet they furnished the pious Israelites a system of faith and service which blessed and saved them in the end through Christ. The house of God under Christ and the sacrifices in it are "spiritual" in contrast with the material temple and the animal sacrifices in it (1 Pet. 2: 5); but it does not follow that the inner or spiritual was not blessed by engaging heartily in that worship. "So that the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and righteous, and good." (Rom. 7: 12.)

According to the best information we can get, it seems that the synagogue arose during the Babylonian captivity, when it was impossible to engage in the worship of God in the temple. According to the promise of God in 2 Chron. 6: 36-39, the Jews in captivity worshiped toward the temple. The synagogue—the house—was "so constructed that the worshipers, as they entered and as they prayed, looked toward" the temple. Smith's Bible Dictionary further says:

In the internal arrangement of the synagogue we trace an obvious analogy to the type of the tabernacle. At the upper or Jerusalem end stood the ark, the chest which, like the older and more sacred ark, contained the book of the law. It gave to that end the name and character of a sanctuary. This part of the synagogue was naturally the place of honor. Here were the "chief seats," after which the Pharisees and scribes strove so eagerly (Matt. 23: 6).

and to which the wealthy and honored worshiper was invited (James 2: 2, 3). Here, too, in front of the ark, still reproducing the type of the tabernacle, was the eight-branched lamp, lighted only on the greater festivals. Besides this, there was one lamp kept burning perpetually. A little further toward the middle of the building was a raised platform on which several persons could stand at once; and in the middle of this rose a pulpit, in which the reader stood to read the lesson or sat down to teach.

The Jews then in captivity made the synagogue to correspond somewhat to the temple, in it worshiped toward the temple, had it to take the place of the temple as much as possible, and upon their return to Jerusalem rebuilt the temple and restored the worship of God in it. (See the books of Ezra and Nehemiah.) They never intended for the synagogue to replace the temple or to offer a different kind of worship from that of the temple. Those who met in the synagogue to study the Scriptures, etc., went regularly to the temple to offer the sacrifices and services required there. Sacrifices, incense, and instrumental music were not offered in the synagogues; but there could be as much "ritualism" there as in the temple, or as much spirituality in the temple as there. No one can read the Psalms and many other portions of the Old Testament and not be deeply impressed with the piety, devotion, and spirituality of the Israelites. This devotion, as stated above, led to the erection of synagogues after the return from captivity. In Christ's time synagogues were in all the towns of Judea, Samaria, and Galilee, and in towns of other nations. (Acts 13: 14; 17: 3, for example.) It is said that there were four hundred and eighty in Jerusalem. Besides meeting in these buildings on the Sabbath (Saturday) to study the Scriptures and to worship God, in them children were taught and young men had their debating societies and libraries.

But there is no doubt that the plain and humble worship and organization of the New Testament church were patterned after those of the synagogue. The synagogue helped to prepare the way which led from the worship in the temple, with the types of good things to come, to the spiritual sacrifices and work of the worship in spirit and truth in the New Testament church.

Elders.

Brother McQuiddy: In your answer to "H. D. J." in the Gospel Advocate of May 18, you say: "Christians who have children should have obedient children before they may become scriptural elders. But I do not understand that a man who is childless, through no fault of his own, is on that account barred from being an elder in the church." Again, in answer to a similar question by J. R. Stubblefield in the issue of May 25, you write: "I cannot think that Paul means that, however good an elder is, his wife's dying or his becoming a widower disqualifies him. If not, then cannot a man who is not married, but prudent and pure in his life and possessed of all other qualifications, serve as an elder? . . . Of course, to be absolutely safe, in selecting or appointing elders, men with wives and children should be selected and appointed." As I see it, it does not follow logically, that because an elder is not disqualified upon the death of his wife, a man that has never been married can be a scriptural elder.

I am a young man of limited experience, and it would ill become me to incite a discussion with you, with your greater experience and ability; but this question is one that I am intensely interested in, and I am anxious to be right on the subject, if possible. It seems a very significant fact that the Holy Spirit both in Timothy and Titus makes mention of "believing children" as one of the qualifications of elders. In 1 Tim. 3: 5 there is what I will call an "explanatory clause" which asks the question: "But if a man knoweth not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?" To my mind, it is perfectly reasonable for the Holy Spirit to require such a qualification of elders, when we take into consideration the fact that the church (local sense) is a family, and, as a family, needs oversight. How can a man be qualified to exercise oversight of a family of God's children, where there are, in a spiritual sense, all ages from babes to adults, if he has never had the practical experience of controlling a family of his own? I do not believe (I base this statement principally upon what fathers of families have told me) a man can learn how to care for children without having had the practical experience with some of his own. I realize that, should it be true that elders have to be married and have believing children, it would disqualify many good men that are now occupying the office of elder; but what matters if it is right? They can still be good men and continue in the good work even though not considered elders. Is it possible the Holy Spirit would inspire Paul to write such qualifications if they were not absolutely necessary and essential?

I trust I will not be misunderstood in asking these questions. I am not desiring a discussion, in the general acceptance of the term, but I desire to be right. I am sometimes asked the question: "Is it necessary for a man to be married and have believing children to be a scriptural elder?" I always give it as my opinion that it is necessary, and could not have anything to do with the appointment of elders that did not have those qualifications, among others. If I can be shown from the Scriptures that it is not necessary, I will cease to teach it. In my humble opinion, the eldership question is not sufficiently studied by Christians, nor are the Bible qualifications sufficiently in demand; and, as a consequence, the elders of many congregations are incompetent and the work is becoming lightly esteemed. You say it is absolutely safe to demand these qualifications. Then why not be as safe on the eldership question as we believe we are on the question of baptism? Why leave any doubt?

If I have misrepresented you in any way, Brother McQuiddy, I ask your pardon. I trust that you can throw more light on this important subject. F. B. SHEPHERD.

Brother Elam answered Brother Stubblefield's question. I am glad to have Brother Shepherd's view of this matter, but do not care to add anything more at present. If others can give more light on the subject, we will be glad to have them do so.

Help the Fanning Orphan School.

BY E. A. E.

We have mailed to all the readers of this paper a letter asking for a subscription to this school. This letter contains a card or obligation to be filled out and signed, stating how much one can give, and when. Reader, please examine it with care, fill it out with the amount you can give and when you can give it, and return as requested.

We are in earnest about this. The school needs help now, and we think to know this the many good people in the land will cheerfully respond to these appeals. The school needs the help, first, to pay its present indebtedness of twenty-five hundred dollars, and, second, to increase its endowment fund so as to enable it to take more dependent girls free. In fact, the trustees wish to increase this fund until the school will be filled with such girls.

It seems useless to argue that this is the best way to help such girls, or to help any person—namely, to help them so as to be able to care for themselves intelligently and profitably and, above all, to become a blessing to others. This the school does. Kind readers, will you not help in this great work?

The Cumberland University, Lebanon, Tenn., is making an effort to increase its endowment fund, and one old pupil writes that he will give twenty-five thousand dollars on the condition that Lebanon and the surrounding county of Wilson will give as much. If one man will give so much to this university, ought not many, many give to such an institution as the orphan schools to help to educate and train orphan girls for the greatest usefulness? Answer: They will. Let the school have your contribution.

Our Bible Lesson Helps are rapidly growing in favor and circulation. On August 1 The Young People will be greatly improved and pushed more vigorously than in the past. It will be a very desirable and helpful paper. Our Advanced Quarterly leads all others.

Our Trial Offer.

Have you read our trial offer to send the Gospel Advocate for three months for twenty-five cents? If you have, have you sent the paper on trial to a number of your friends? Certainly you know people that would be benefited by reading the paper. Give them the opportunity to receive the instruction that the paper is giving each week. We have already received many trial subscribers, but we are anxious to have every reader send us a list of names to whom we may send the paper. Twenty-five cents is a very small amount, considering the cost of publication, but we are anxious to get the paper before the people more extensively than ever before, and for this reason alone do we offer it at this exceedingly low price.

People have been converted to Christ by reading the Gospel Advocate. Have you discharged your full duty until you have made every effort possible to lead your friends to Christ? You should not overlook the fact that people are going to read something. If they do not get good literature, they will read vicious.

We wish also to call your attention to the fact that this offer will not be continued much longer.

Publishers' Items.

If you want the most critical, scholarly, and best human production on the subject of instrumental music in the worship, send us $1.25 for Brother M. C. Kurfees' book on this subject.

Have you read the list of select books that we are offering in quantities at reduced prices? See advertisement elsewhere in this paper. The offer is a remarkable one and will be good only a short time.

"Christian Treasures," Volume I, has been accorded a favorable reception. E. A. Elam says: "I heartily commend the idea of publishing the articles in the special numbers of the Gospel Advocate in book form. It is a capital idea."

C. S. Austin says: "I have carefully examined the book, 'Christian Treasures,' Volume I, which you kindly sent to my address. I am glad that you have decided to put in permanent form the splendid articles of the special numbers of the Gospel Advocate. I commend the book to the brethren and believe it will be appreciated by all. In my humble judgment, these books will be what their name signifies—Christian treasures in the libraries of those who secure them."

Morgan H. Carter, of Macon, Ga., says: "'Christian Treasures' is just the name for the very excellent volume I have at my right hand. The contents so far as I have read, the arrangement, and the workmanship in binding and general make-up are such as to make this a valuable contribution to permanent Christian literature and a neat ornament in any library. It deals with vital problems in a live manner and deserves a wide circulation among Bible lovers." The price of this most excellent book, neatly and substantially bound in cloth, is $1.

We have heard from several sources words of praise and commendation for our Lesson Helps. It is the opinion of many that Brother Elam's work on the Advanced Quarterly for the current year could not be surpassed. The following extract from a note written to Brother Elam by S. W. Cox, of Miami, Fla., is only one of the many encouraging expressions that have come to our attention: "I have been told, Brother Elam, that you get up, or edit, the Gospel Quarterly. I feel that I should tell you how valuable it has been to me, or will be to any one who wants to study God's word or needs help in studying it. The lesson for April 23, I feel, has helped me much. May you continue the good work for God and be guided by him all the days of your life."

M. C. Kurfees, of Louisville, Ky., writes: "The copy of

"CHRISTIAN TREASURES."

All our readers who appreciate good, religious books will be pleased to know that "Christian Treasures," Volume I, is just off our press and ready for delivery. The book contains nearly three hundred pages and deals with vital themes that were covered in special numbers of the Gospel Advocate. It contains the very best thoughts, not only of the editors, but of a host of careful writers, to whom were assigned various phases of the following subjects: Studying the Bible; Teaching the Bible; Applying the Bible; History of the Bible; Restatement of the Issues; Fundamental Themes; The Wise and Unwise Course in Religion; Evangelistic Effort in General; Plans for Protracted Meetings and Missionary Work in General. We may safely say that no book has ever been printed containing articles on these important subjects from as many different writers.

The second volume of "Christian Treasures," dealing with subjects of equal importance, will quickly follow. By purchasing each volume as it appears, you will greatly increase the usefulness of your library and will soon be informed on living themes far above the average reader.

THE BIBLE STUDY HELPER.

Hundreds have subscribed for The Bible Study Helper, our new monthly magazine, edited by A. B. Lipscomb. It contains departments for teachers and scholars and helpful suggestions for all ages. Its illustrations are carefully gleaned from the finest books available. It is abreast with modern scholarship and at the same time thoroughly in accord with the word of God. We will send this journal one year for sixty cents, or fifty cents if sent in with your Gospel Advocate subscription.

AROUND THE LORD'S TABLE

The first edition of this valuable book was soon exhausted. We are now getting out a second edition. It is a mental and spiritual stimulus to all who would preside or partake. We will send one copy for twenty-five cents.

McQUIDDY PRINTING COMPANY,
Nashville, Tenn.

the book, 'Christian Treasures,' Volume I, by A. B. Lipscomb, sent me for examination, was duly received. You are fortunate both in the title of the series and in the skill displayed in the selection and editing of its contents. I have already examined it sufficiently to be able to pronounce it a treasure indeed; and if future issues shall measure up to the standard set in this initial volume, the series will constitute a valuable library in itself. I most heartily commend Volume I to the reading public and devoutly wish for it an extended circulation. While writing this note of commendation of this excellent volume, I take occasion to express my deep regret that the circulation and reading of religious books and religious literature in general are so limited. Is there not something wrong with the method of advertising? Or is it all a matter of cold-hearted indifference to religion? The latter, no doubt, has much to do with it, but I believe some improvement is possible."

The Hardeman-Leak Discussion.

The advance orders for the proposed book covering the above discussion were too few to justify getting out the book at this time, in view of the high cost of paper and printing material. We thank those, however, who sent tentative orders and regret that they cannot be filled.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

The Impossible.

The Word and Way has raised the subscription price from one dollar to two dollars. The only surprise about this is that it was not done long ago. It is absolutely impossible to publish a paper of the Word and Way type for one dollar without doing so at a loss to the publishers. This is particularly true in view of the recent rapid rise in the cost of paper and ink. The only question in connection with the publication of a first-class dollar paper is: How long can the publisher afford, from other resources, to supply the annual deficit? The Word and Way is one of our most creditable publications, and is worth far more than the paltry sum of two dollars.

Many of our religious papers have tried the experiment of reducing the subscription, but in every instance the results have been disappointing. There are Baptists—the greater the pity—that would not take a denominational paper at any price, and would not read it if they got it without cost. Some folks do not read; and if they did read, they wouldn't read a religious paper. They are not built that way.

True, there are not a few who are absolutely unable to pay for a religious journal, yet a reduction in the price of the paper would not meet this situation. These should have the paper, and it should be paid for by the church or some of their more prosperous brethren.

There are others who take the paper and promise to pay for it, and these will promise two dollars as quickly as one, without any serious intention of paying either amount. Hence, even this class will not be materially benefited by the reduction.

The Recorder has never charged less than two dollars, and, personally, we would prefer to go out of business at once, rather than reduce the price of the paper and die by degrees. The idea that religious papers are profitable investments obtains only with those who never have, and never expect to, put a dollar in them. We know it to be a fact that one generous Baptist layman has given forty thousand dollars in the last decade to pay the indebtedness on probably the largest circulated Baptist paper in the South.

The question of denominational ownership has not, as was hoped, solved the question of the denominational paper. We know of no paper owned by the Baptists of the State that is making a dollar. As we see it, the only solution of the question is a quickened sense of obligation upon the part of the pastor.—Western Recorder.

What is true of the Baptist papers is also true of other religious papers. It is our wish and purpose to publish a first-class journal, and in order to do this it will be necessary to advance the price to two dollars a year. In our last week's issue we gave notice that the advance would not be effective before January 1, 1917. We will now accept renewals for one year in advance at one dollar and fifty cents a year, but not for two years. We are pleased to announce that our readers appreciate the fact that increased cost of paper and ink has greatly increased our burden and are rallying nobly to the support of the Gospel Advocate.

Division.

Men divide on most important questions, and the lines of division cross in almost every imaginable way. We get together on questions that seem most important, ignoring others. The line of division between evangelical Christianity and what the New Testament calls "the world" is clear. Shall we divide on the line of Baptist Christianity, or on that of labor unions? Suppose you commit the Baptist churches to the "closed shop." Then all Baptists who do not believe in the closed shop are invited to get out of the denomination. We have, therefore, substituted labor unions for Christianity. The true solution is to say that a Baptist church, as a church, has nothing to do with this question. Its members may hold one view or the other.

But if you attempt to pass a resolution in a church or association, you invite every member who does not favor the resolution to leave the denomination. Do we want to drive out of the Baptist denomination everybody who does not agree with the majority upon political or social questions? If we do not, what right have we to pretend to represent them? The case is far worse when a few men who happen to have been elected to some position in the denomination for Baptist work prostitute their position in an endeavor to speak for the denomination in matters with which it has no concern, or, at least, are not essential to it.—Journal and Messenger.

The greatest freedom should be allowed concerning matters on which God has not legislated. When God commands, we should obey; but opinions should never be pressed to the division of churches. The Holy Spirit condemns in no uncertain way factionalism. We should never allow our preferences and affections for men to lead us to do things that are contrary to the genius and spirit of Christianity. It is sad that professed Christians often contend more vigorously and earnestly for their opinions and preferences than they do for the law of God. Such contention is divisive and sinful. "For ye are yet carnal; for whereas there is among you jealousy and strife, are ye not carnal, and do ye not walk after the manner of men? For when one saith, I am of Paul; and another, I am of Apollos; are ye not men?" (1 Cor. 3: 3, 4.) To avoid further division and to remove the existing division, Paul admonishes: "Now I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgment." (1 Cor. 1: 10.) To help us to speak the same things, he again says: "Hold the pattern of sound words which thou hast heard from me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." (2 Tim. 1: 13.) We are told to hold not only sound words, but the pattern of sound words. We cannot show too much respect for the commands of Jehovah and too little respect for the commands of men intended to guide us religiously. The Holy Spirit says through Paul: "I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingdom: preach the word; be urgent in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and teaching." (2 Tim. 4: 1, 2.)

Some Happiness Secrets.

I have grown to believe that the one thing worth aiming at is simplicity of heart and life; that one's relations with others should be direct and not diplomatic; that power leaves a bad taste in the mouth; that meanness and hardness and coldness are unforgivable sins; that conventionality is the mother of all dreariness; that pleasure exist, not in virtue of material conditions, but in a joyful heart; that the world is a very interesting and beautiful place; that congenial labor is the secret of happiness; and many other things which seem, as I write them down, to be dull and trite commonplaces, are for me the bright jewels which I have found beside the way.—Arthur Christopher Benson.

Failure.

"He is counting on you."
O, the wonder and grace
To look Christ in the face
And not be ashamed!
For you gave what he claimed,
And you laid down your all
For his sake—at his call.
He had counted on you,
And you failed not.

J. H. McBroom preached at Cookeville, Tenn., Sunday. Brother Karnes is busy in the evangelistic field.

T. B. Larimore is preaching at Lafayette, Ga. He and Mrs. Larimore will return to Nashville about June 27.

G. Mitchell Pullias has become a coworker with J. Pettet Ezell at New Decatur, Ala. A good combination of workers.

Alexander Campbell, the colored preacher, has begun an interesting tent meeting in Pulaski, Tenn. The interest is fine.

H. C. Denson has been elected president of Burritt College. We believe this is an honor worthily bestowed and a good business move.

Bear in mind that The Bible Study Helper will be combined with The Young People, August 1. The new weekly will help you in your Bible studies. Send in your order now.

W. W. Slater, the song evangelist, has arranged a schedule of work for the summer and fall. Correspondence should be sent to his home address, Stigler, Okla. It will be promptly forwarded.

The protracted meetings at West Nashville and Eleventh Street, this city, are increasing in interest and fine results are anticipated. The congregation at West Nashville will shortly build a larger house.

Cards have been issued by Mr. J. S. Dabney announcing the marriage of his daughter, Phoebe Frances, to Mr. Jewell Matthews, at San Angelo, Texas, on June 17. The Gospel Advocate extends heartiest congratulations.

From T. B. Clark, Knoxville, Tenn.: "The work here with the church is progressing nicely. Brother Borden's meeting was more successful than we expected it to be. Excellent preaching and fine attention throughout."

T. Q. Martin has closed a good meeting at New Decatur, Ala. In a private letter J. Pettet Ezell mentions two baptisms, four additions from the Christian Church, and two by letter. But this was not the final report of results.

W. E. Morgan writes from Portland, Maine, June 12: "I will assist the church at Cardwell, Mo., in a meeting, July 16-30. I can hold a meeting in Tennessee, July 1-12. Who wants me? Address me at Box 458, Knoxville, Tenn."

It was my good pleasure to baptize David Burton, the young brother of A. M. Burton, last Saturday. The young man had been sick for some time. He has given himself unreservedly into the hands of Him who healeth all our infirmities.

A. N. Kennedy writes from Texico, N. M., June 7: "On account of some of my work being canceled, I have some time in July and August for meetings. I am ready and willing to go anywhere I can do good in the Master's name. If you want a meeting, write me at Texico, N. M."

E. M. Borden writes: "I am now at Elmwood, Okla., in a meeting. The meeting is about eight days old. Four have been baptized and one restored. Two more are to be baptized. The meeting is to continue several days yet. We have been using the 'Little Singer' song book a part of the time."

T. B. Clark, of Knoxville, Tenn., has one thousand copies of "New Songs of Praise," a 1916 song book, that he would like to dispose of at cost. He bought them before the church at Murfreesboro decided for him to stay at Knoxville. He will make a special price on these books and give all the profit to the Fanning Orphan School. He will send sample copies free. It is a good selection of songs.

A message from Terrell, Texas, June 17: "L. S. White, of Dallas, Texas, is here in an excellent meeting. Four have been added to the local church to date and the church has been greatly edified. Brother White is a lovable Christian gentleman, as well as an excellent gospel preacher. Joe W. White is in the meeting with his father and has been of great assistance to us. These brethren have labored with us, and we find them faithful and bid them Godspeed."

From F. L. Palsley, Metropolis, Ill., June 15: "The meeting at Erin, Tenn., closed last night. Two persons were persuaded to leave the errors of denominationalism to worship as the New Testament directs. I expect to be with them again, beginning on the fourth Sunday in August. They would like to have a tent for that time. F. W. Chunn is here now in a fine meeting. He can truly preach the word. He and I hope to be at Erin together next spring."

Eph P. Smith writes from Martin, Tenn.: "Beginning on the fourth Lord's day in May, I delivered fourteen discourses in a meeting at Dresden, Tenn. There were no baptisms, but we had splendid audiences, especially at the evening services. There are some loyal brethren at Dresden, and it was a pleasure to be in their midst. We begin a meeting here in Martin next Lord's day. Brother N. D. Hardeman will do the preaching and Brother Leon Holland will lead the song service. We are hoping to do good."

J. L. Legate sends us the following acknowledgment, signed by E. S. Jelley, Jr., and addressed to the church at Sherman, Texas: "We are grateful for your fellowship forwarded by Brother Legate on March 13, 1916 (eleven dollars), and also again acknowledge your fellowship (fifteen dollars) sent December 31, 1915. This is a far country, made much more distant by the present world war. Sometimes letters do not get through at all. It is better to send private uncertified checks, as they can be renewed if lost in transit without any trouble. Brethren, we trust that in the presence of the Lord you will rejoice with us over gathered sheaves. Brother McHenry reports eighteen baptisms recently. Pray for us."

From T. A. Northcut, Mango, Fla., June 16: "Our meeting of three weeks' duration began on the second Lord's day in May and closed with one addition and the very best of interest. Sam Chastine, the one added, has a nice family, and he will be a 'lively stone in the building' at Mango, we think. There are many deeply concerned, fully convinced that the gospel is the power of God to save, but worldly influences beat heavy; but we hope for a full harvest by and by. Will Rucker, formerly of Hamilton, Texas, but who now makes his home at Adrian, Fla., did the preaching. He shuns not to declare the whole counsel of God. He is very pointed, positive, and uncompromising, but he has his own peculiar way in kindness that wins even with sectarians. He works to the end that he may get characters and not numbers in his meetings. In other words, when he baptizes one, he is so taught that he does not consider his armor a plaything that he may lay aside part of the time and put it back at will. We need more of Brother Rucker's kind that will come and make their home here and work the byways as well as highways and risk the consequences. Any brethren wanting the old Jerusalem gospel more firmly established will make no mistake in sending for him."

Mrs. Sheldon Spent $1900 for Treatment Without Benefit. Finally Made Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Englewood, Ill. — "While going through the Change of Life I suffered with headaches, nervousness, flashes of heat, and I suffered so much I did not know what I was doing at times. I spent $1900 on doctors and not one did me any good. One day a lady called at my house and said she had been as sick as I was at one time, and Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound made her well, so I took it and now I am just as well as I ever was. I cannot understand why women don't see how much pain and suffering they would escape by taking your medicine. I cannot praise it enough for it saved my life and kept me from the Insane Hospital."—Mrs. E. SHELDON, 5657 S. Halsted St., Englewood, Ill.

Physicians undoubtedly did their best, battled with this case steadily and could do no more, but often the most scientific treatment is surpassed by the medicinal properties of the good old fashioned roots and herbs contained in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

OBITUARIES

On account of the large number of obituary notices coming to the Gospel Advocate the following rules must be observed: Obituaries that do not exceed one hundred and fifty words are published free of charge. When they exceed this limit, one cent will be charged for every additional word. Payment must accompany notice or else it will be reduced to one hundred and fifty words. Poetry will not be printed.

Sims.

On the morning of February 15, 1916, the death angel visited our community and took from our midst the spirit of Joe Estes Sims. Joe was nineteen years, eight months, and fourteen days old. He was baptized into Christ in 1913 by Brother G. W. Farmer and lived a Christian life till he was called up higher. O, how sad it is to go to Sunday school and Joe not there! For it was a rare thing for Joe to miss. It seems such a pity for one so young as Joe to die. He had the good fortune of being reared in a good, Christian home. He leaves a father, mother, and three brothers, besides a host of friends, to mourn his death. To his loved ones I would say: Weep not, for Joe has gone home a little sooner than the rest of you. The Christian's death is rest and peace, and gives life that never more shall cease. A FRIEND.

Wharey.

Margaret B. Wharey was born in Rutherford County, Tenn., on April 15, 1853. When she was just budding into young womanhood, her father moved to Cannon County. At the tender age of sixteen she confessed her Savior under the preaching of Brother James J. Trott and was baptized by a Brother Nelson in Brawley's Fork. Soon thereafter the family moved to Dyer County, in West Tennessee, where she was married to S. S. McCorkle on February 25, 1871. On the morning of April 24, 1916, her spirit wended its way to realms beyond. One by one our loved ones are fitting away. The longest time we can help mother is far too short. She leaves three sons and three daughters, many relatives and friends, to mourn her departure. Her furrowed brow and beautiful white hair was indicative of a long life of usefulness. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit; that they may rest from their labors; for their works follow with them."

FANNIE L. SANFORD.

Colley.

A. B. Colley was born on August 27, 1844, in Graves County, Ky. He had lived a long time in Farmington, Ky., where he died on March 20, 1916. He was a distant relative of mine and had acted more like a father to me than any one else since the death of my father about sixteen years ago. There has never been a man more consecrated to the Lord's work in all West Kentucky than he was. He reared four children to be grown, all of whom became members of the church of Christ early in life. He had acted as one of the elders of the church at Farmington since its organization. He was largely responsible for the existence of the church there. He gave liberally of his money to build the meetinghouse there and was liberal in supporting the gospel. His gifts were not confined to that locality, but reached others, as some in Texas could testify. His good work will continue. He died "in the Lord." While he rests from his labors, his work will go on and on. Eternity alone can tell the good of such a life. He was nearly seventy-two years old. The greater part of his life was spent in doing good. We have lost, so far as the visible eye is concerned, his presence at church and in the home and one of the very best of our citizens. As church members, let us all think that our loss is his gain. He suffered so much here, but he has gone home to suffer no more.

A. O. COLLEY.

Kennamer.

Brother Ben W. Kennamer, of Trenton, Ala., departed this life on February 18, 1916, after a long and fruitless effort to get well of the dread malady, tuberculosis. He was thirty-five years and eleven months old. He left a wife and three dear children to mourn his loss; also an aged mother, three sisters, and one brother survive him. I had the happy privilege of teaching Brother Kennamer and his wife the way of the Lord nearly three years ago at a meeting I held at Garth, Ala., and I baptized them both into Christ at that meeting. He took a deep interest in the work of the Lord from his obedience to Christ until his death. He was kind and considerate of every one, and to know him was to love him. He was very kind and lovable to his family. He was willing to die if it was the Lord's will, but he longed to get well to help his dear wife raise up their children in the way they should go; but God saw fit to take him from his sufferings, which he bore so patiently to the last. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." So to his loved ones and to the church he loved so dearly I would say: Look up to Brother Kennamer's God, whom he trusted, and he will dispel the sorrow and sadness, and we will be enabled to see that he "hath done all things well." Let me admonish one and all to prepare to meet our God, and let us be watching for our Lord's coming. Whether he comes in the morning of life or at noon or in the evening, let us be ready to welcome his coming to take us home. J. J. HORTON.

Walker.

Charles William Walker was born in Todd County, Ky., on December 23, 1851, and died on Saturday, May 6, 1916, at the home of Mr. H. A. Ramsey, near Farmer's Hill, on the Russellville road, following a runaway accident in the discharge of his duties as mail carrier on Route No. 4. In early life he moved to Russellville, Ky., and made his home with his aunt, Mrs. Hester Kurtz. He graduated at Bethel College, under Professor Wagner, in 1874, and began his life teaching school, his first school being at Ash Spring, Ky. He was married to Miss Hattie Wells in February, 1878. Unto this union four children were born—two sons and two daughters—Morton and Guy, Bessie and Duvey. He professed faith in his Lord when a young man and united with the church of Christ at Bethany, near Olmstead, Ky., being baptized by Brother E. G. Sewell. He was a member of Pluto Lodge, No. 65, Knights of Pythias, of Adairville, Ky., and had been in the employ of the government for eleven years. He is survived by his widow and all their children; three brothers—L. K. Walker, J. N. Walker, and J. T. Walker; and four sisters—Elsie Walker, Mattie Walker, Mrs. Jessie Fletcher, and Mrs. Ella Wade, of El Paso, Texas. Father made a good link for the endless chain, which is the plan of all nature. If we, his children, can so live as to duplicate that link, there will be a happy reunion some day in the land where God will wipe away all tears. It is not so sad, after all, when one is prepared to go, like I know he was, because we have these comforting words: "And I heard a voice saying unto me, Write, Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." (Rev. 14: 13.) Sorrowing mother, brothers, and sisters, God is our refuge and strength, a very present help in trouble; and we know his life to be not like unto "a snowdrop on the river—a moment white, then gone forever," because he has left a monument to his memory that will outlive us all. W. M. WALKER.

The Master's Vineyard

India.

Tali Tal, Naini Tal, U. P., British India, May 11.—On Monday I baptized two mountaineers. They sought me out and stated that many years ago they had been improperly induced by a certain missionary to be immersed when they were yet heathen; that now they wished to become real Christians. They come of a high caste and appear to be in earnest. Pray for them. On Wednesday one of them found employment (without any aid from me). It seemed providential, for I could see that he was in straitened circumstances. My health is slowly improving, although as yet I am not strong enough to be around more than about half of the time. Still, I am away from the dreadful heat of the plains which used to oppress heart and head. Our rent is about the same as at Satara. I am sowing the seed as I can by mouth, literature, and pen. Thomas goes to school and also distributes literature, both Hindi and English. I have one native preacher from the Deccan attending school here, and I am trying to get another one out; also to send a local brother to the Deccan.

Missouri.

Senath, June 13.—I wish to announce that on September 1, I will begin work with the church of Christ at Waxahachie, Texas. I plan to take some work in Trinity University also while there. The work in Southeast Missouri is in fair shape. The church at Senath plans to build a new house of worship this fall. The few brethren are making a move in that direction over at Cardwell. They are worthy and should be encouraged. If there are any who are interested in Southeast Missouri mission work, write Brother Ben Forrester or Dr. Scott an encouraging letter and send them a donation toward starting this work. I begin a mission meeting with the few brethren at Delrose, Tenn., on June 21. I am requesting the churches throughout Lincoln and Giles counties to send me a contribution for this work; and if you are close enough, lend your presence.

J. W. BRENTS.

Oklahoma.

Elk City, June 14.—We closed a fifteen-days' meeting at this place last Lord's-day evening. During the first of the meeting the schools were closing and the commencement exercises were on hand, which hindered the meeting much, and the second week was a week of raining and stormy weather, which also cut off the attendance; but in the main we had a good meeting. Nine were added to the membership of the congregation—three were baptized, two were restored, and four took membership with them. Brother A. J. Farris, a preaching brother, very greatly loved and respected, was in attendance part of the time and assisted by his prayers and encouraged by his presence. There are many good, faithful brethren and sisters here. I begin at Foss, Okla., next Lord's day for a two-weeks' meeting. G. W. FARMER.

Stigler, June 14.—Since the first of January I have preached at Forum, Holdenville, Calvin, Coalgate, Francis, Konawa, Wewoka, Seminole, Maud, Ada, Wolf, Shawnee, and Red Oak, Okla. I have preached several times at some of these places. I have been farming this spring, not because I did not have plenty of preaching and teaching to do, but because I wanted to rest a few months. The rest from mental labor and worry has been a great help to me, and I am now ready to enter the evangelistic field again. I will sing in a meeting at Rogers, Ark., beginning next Lord's day. Brother A. G. Freed, of Tennessee, will do the preaching. I will hold meetings at Talihina, Sallisaw, and LeFlore, Okla.; Havana and Heber Springs, Ark. I will hold an eighteen-days' singing normal at Palatka, Ark., beginning on August 7. I will sing for Brother J. B. Nelson during the month of October. My new song book, "The Christian Hymnal," is now ready. It is scriptural in teaching and is indorsed by Elders Joe H. Blue, J. B. Nelson, J. Will Henley, A. L. Elkins, David Parks, E. M. Borden, and many others. Let us sing "with

Have Mercy on Your Skin.

The skin takes all the hardest knocks of life. It is burned, scalded, abraded, perforated, chapped, soiled, bruised, stung, and worn.

Yet they say beauty is but skin deep.

Two very good arguments for better care of the skin.

If your skin could speak for itself, it would beg for Mentholatum to allay its inflamed surfaces, to destroy the disease germs which attack it, to sooth its smarting, and to smooth out its wrinkles and soften its texture.

Yours is a very useful skin. Make it comfortable, healthy, and beautiful by answering its mute appeal.

What Is the Club?

The Gospel Advocate Piano Club is both a theory and a fact. The theory is that a piano factory can afford to sell one hundred pianos and player-pianos at a much lower price than it would be willing to make on an order for only one instrument. The fact is that the club has saved each of its members forty per cent.

The theory of the club is "co-operation." The fact is "perfect satisfaction." The theory is: "A square deal to every member." The fact is: "Every member is delighted."

If you are interested in securing a piano or player-piano of the finest quality at the lowest possible factory price, write for your copy of the club's catalogue, discount sheet, and terms. Address Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Ga.

the spirit and with the understanding." May God bless the faithful, and may there be a great ingathering of precious sheaves for the Master during the coming summer months. As I will be away from home nearly all the summer, correspondents should address me at Stigler, Okla. Mail sent to Stigler will always reach me.

W. W. SLATER.

Texas.

Dallas, June 15.—We are having a most excellent meeting here at the Oak Cliff church of Christ. Brother J. W. Dunn is doing the preaching, and it is as good as I have heard in a long time. He sweetens it with the spirit of Christ. If there is anything about him akin to egotism, he has the knack of hiding it most successfully. A true and extensive knowledge of God's word, a humble and a meek character, a Christian spirit, with a ready mind, makes him an able minister of God's holy word. He shuns not to declare the whole counsel of God, but does it in love—a spirit not always manifested by all those who claim to be God's ministers. I am sorry to say. May the Lord ever bless him in all his work. Neither he nor any one else has any thought, so far as I know, of my saying a word of his work. It does me good to see such a spirit manifested in one of our ministers, and for this reason I would gladly speak a word of encouragement, not only for his sake, but for the sake of the cause of our blessed Lord, for the sake of many other godly ministers, and for the sake of our Father. When all we know is good, then we can tell all the truth we know and feel good over it; but when there are many things we know not so good, we shall have to be very discreet in what we say, or we will get to ourselves shame, a blot, and an enemy. (Prov. 9: 7, 8; 15: 12.) However, many of these things should be told in the spirit of Christ, that we may help the wise who may unfortunately fall into error, and he will be yet wiser. (Prov. 9: 8.) The habit of puffing one or more preachers in order to get a boosting in return is hypocritical and disgusting to all right-thinking people. This habit sticks out so prominently sometimes you cannot help but see it. I am busy all the time in my regular work, preaching from two to four times per week and keeping up any regular work at home. In the afternoons on Lord's days I go out to some school-house from three to eight miles, preach, get back to my regular place and preach again that night, making three times that Lord's day, also having preached on Saturday night before. I will soon be in my protracted-meeting work again. I have a little time for a meeting or two.

FROM THE FIELD

Arkansas.

Paragould, June 13.—The cause of Christ is progressing slowly in this part (Greene County). I am now in the evangelistic field. On June 17 I will begin a series of meetings, to continue ten days. On July 1 Brother Douglas and I will begin a fifteen-days' meeting at Antioch, near Cardwell, Mo. At all places where I hold meetings I will teach classes in vocal music, if they are needed and desired. I am now ready to fill calls for meetings, not only for congregations, but at any places where the people desire the old Jerusalem gospel preached. Brethren and friends to the cause of Christ, please write me if you want my assistance. I hope to be busy till late fall. My chief object is to do all I can to promote the cause of the blessed Master before I go hence. I will fill calls in other States, especially in Arkansas. W. J. JOHNS.

Colorado.

Dolores, June 1.—Brother E. C. Fuqua, of Olathe, has just concluded a short meeting here, the first ever held in this valley, and started the work in a most encouraging manner. He preached in the Methodist Church, save one sermon in the Baptist Church, and fairly good-sized crowds heard him, whose interest in the word spoken was intense. One was reclaimed and a number were eloquently impressed, and I believe we will soon see several baptized as a result of the short effort. We could not seat all the people on Sunday night, and to this large audience gospel seed was sown that will bring fruit in the years to come. I have prayed for years that the word might be preached here, and I am extremely happy now that my prayers are being answered. Brother Fuqua will bring his new tent here in July for a month's meeting, if interest demands that length of time. This is one of the richest valleys in Colorado for gospel sowing. There are only three brethren here, but they are determined to serve God as they have never done before on account of discouragements. Being weak, we need the fellowship of other brethren, if Brother Fuqua is to be enabled to stand by the work here in connection with his Olathe task. We are all poor and hard pressed, but we will do all we can. Brother Fuqua does his part, and more, in trying to work such places as this, and we will do our part; but that will not be sufficient to do this work, an account of the expense in getting to and from a place so isolated as Dolores. Treacherous mountain passes, snowslides, etc., have to be encountered in order to reach this place, but there are many noble souls here who will respond to the gospel invitation. Brother Fuqua is a thorough worker and knows how to reach this people. He is the man for this work. Even his adversaries have the highest respect for his statements, and oppose him only because the salvation of their parties demands that they do so. He holds their attention despite their efforts to appear disinterested. Breth-

The Great Problem of Fatigue.

Has it ever occurred to you that practically every adult person who works is an habitual drinker of some beverage other than water? Physicians have explained the reason. They tell us that mental and physical work inevitably produce "fatigue," which is nothing more nor less than nature's call for refreshment or for stimulation. Under modern conditions of life (which we call civilization) it is impractical for most of us to drop our work simply because we are tired, and yet the scientists tell us that to continue our work during fatigue is injurious to our nerves and muscles.

They explain that under such circumstances the judicious use of refreshing beverages relieves the fatigue by removing the resistance to the nervous and muscular impulses, making our work easier and lighter, in very much the same way that oiling a machine reduces the friction and prevents its becoming overheated.

Nature has provided us with the ideal lubricants to overcome the injurious effects of fatigue. They are the xanthin (pronounced zan-thin) beverages, including beef tea, cocoa, coca-cola, chocolate, tea, and coffee. The scientists tell us that the xanthin beverages refresh the nerves and muscles by a process similar to actual lubrication and without affecting the will in the least, therefore without exciting one to overexertion, as is the case with artificial stimulants.

In the case of beef tea and other meat extracts, the refreshing principle is an animal product called "xanthin;" in cocoa and chocolate, a vegetable xanthin known as "dimethyl-xanthin," or caffeine. When these beverages are digested, they are all converted into the animal form of xanthin, which is a normal and constant ingredient of the flesh and blood of all animals and is essentially abundant in the tissues of young animals and children. Many scientists regard this xanthin as the natural stimulant, and as the explanation of the remarkable freshness, alertness, and activity of children and young animals. As we grow older the quantity of xanthin in our bodies gradually diminishes, we become less alert and active, and feel a great need for the xanthin beverages.

Coca-Cola is, therefore, the same as tea and coffee, except that it is carbonated, is flavored with ripe fruit extracts, and contains no tannic acid or caffeine. The carbonation of the fruit flavors combines with the caffeine to give a delicious and refreshing beverage that quenches the thirst and relieves fatigue more perfectly than tea or coffee. In spite of the fact that coca-cola contains only about one-half as much of the active principle, trimethyl xanthin.

In their desire to give the public a thorough understanding of their product, the Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet containing the scientific opinions of the world's leading authorities, explaining the composition and the refreshing qualities of the drink. Write for a copy, read it carefully, and you will understand why Coca-Cola is the nearest approach to a perfect solution of the world's greatest problem of fatigue. A copy of this booklet may be had by addressing:

ren, we wish and need your co-operation if this work is to be completed. We will do more than our part, the Lord enabling us. For years I have tried to get preachers to come into Colorado and help us, but for some reason they skip entirely around Colorado. Brother Fuqua is here, and here to stay—and work; let us see that he remains able to continue the work. He is very favorably impressed with the outlook at Dolores, so much so that he has already planned and made definite arrangements to return and establish the cause here permanently, at the same time standing by his Olathe work. It is a double task, but he feels the necessity of undertaking both, and he is most deserving of your help and ours. Brother Fuqua does not know that I am writing this. If any brethren are thinking of moving to Colorado, I would like for them to write to me. I can interest them in this country—the best section, I believe, in the State. A. W. ARNOLD.

Riverland, June 5.—After leaving Tarpon Springs, I went to Ehren and preached seven times. I do not think I ever saw more interest manifested. I hope to return soon when I will have more time. I am now at Riverland to spend the week preaching and teaching vocal music. I am scheduled to be at Dade City on June 11 for an indefinite period. J. PAUL KIMBLE.

Georgia.

Albany, June 15.—We are now in a meeting in Albany. This is a mission point, but we are having good crowds and interest is increasing every night. Brother Wright is doing some good preaching. We have about nine loyal members at this place now. We feel sure we are going to leave a loyal church worshipping at this place. This is a fine field for doing good work. Pray for us. R. H. ROGERS.

India.

Tah Tal, Naini Tal, April 27.—Yesterday I came down to Kathgodam to see Brother Umrao Singh, who has just returned from Lucknow, where he had gone for treatment. He is much better, but his legs are still paralyzed. If any brother who is a physician can give me a prescription for him, I shall be grateful. This trouble originated with exposure in wet and cold, followed by lumbago. While in Lucknow at the hospital, Brother Umrao Singh sat for hours on the street and preached the gospel, distributing The Interpreter, of Glasgow (of which the publisher sends him fifty copies monthly), to English-speaking people who came within reach, while Sister Umrao Singh pursued others and gave them a paper. And this following a serious illness in which he had not been expected to live. Brethren, Brother Umrao Singh is not a dead one—are you? Had you not better speak the word to those within your reach? Millwood, June 13.—My brother (W. T. Hines) and I closed a ten-days' meeting at McHenry on June 9. The meeting resulted in nine additions, of which five were from the denominations. We preached night about. I am now near Millwood in a good meeting.
 J. L. HINES.

Louisiana.

Forest Hill, June 8.—We closed a ten-days' meeting last Wednesday night, with two additions from the Baptist Church and others seriously considering the "one Lord, one faith, one baptism" proposition. We met considerably more opposition this time than heretofore, the Baptists putting on a boycott so that few could be gotten out to the meeting; much prejudice and misrepresentation to overcome; yet the word is all powerful, and God gained a victory in putting it into hearts that are awakening to the greatness of "Christ, and him crucified" for a lost and ruined world. With all their boycott and opposition, we had a house full on Sunday night. Brother Chambers made most of the opportunity and preached in his convincing way on "The New Testament Church." The opportunity for New Testament Christianity is brighter in Louisiana than ever before, but how very few are here of God's people to "go up and possess the land!" A true illustration: A Methodist lady, sixty-eight years old, remarked: "I want my boys to hear such teaching as this. O, if in my young days I could have heard such truths, how much better I could have been!" Her people are holding her back, but she will yet take her stand for the Bible only. C. C. McQuibby.

EXCHANGE YOUR OLD BODY FOR A NEW ONE.

You can do it in three weeks, and thereby regain your health. This article is written by a physician who has seen it demonstrated in numerous cases and explains how it is done.

Listen: If your weight is one hundred and thirty-three pounds, your body contains eighty pounds of water, for, according to standard medical books, the human body contains sixty-seven and one-half per cent of water. Now disease is invariably caused by impurities which we call poison, and these are readily dissolved by the right kind of natural mineral water. Drink ten gallons (eighty pounds) of Shivar Mineral Water (use no other water for twenty-one days) and you will have exchanged your old body for a new one, so far as the soluble part of it is concerned. The impurities will be dissolved and pass away. If you suffer with dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gallstones, kidney or liver disease, uric-acid poisoning, or other conditions due to impure blood, accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer which appears below. Read the following letter carefully, then sign and mail it: Shivar Spring.

Box 21G Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your guarantee offer, and inclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in the booklet you will send; and if it fails to benefit my case, you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return promptly.

Georgia Field Notes.

BY MORGAN H. CARTER.

Our Heavenly Father continues his good work. We had excellent attendance and attention at the evening services during the Trion meeting, and a number out at each service. Seven penitent persons came forward to glorify God by a life in harmony with his word. Brother W. N. Luton was with me during a week of this meeting. I was exceptionally well pleased with the efforts of the church in personal work and the song service. Brother Reeves was with us at two services, and Brother Charles Holder continued the efforts over Lord's day. I am back in Macon. We hope to be used for God's victory here.

Brother Hall has just closed an excellent meeting in Atlanta.

Brethren R. C. White and Byron Hughes were engaged in a meeting just across the river from Columbus, and accomplished good work for God. Brother White is now in Atlanta.

Brethren R. E. Wright and R. H. Rogers are in Albany. Let us remember all of God's work in our prayers.

In Macon and the field surrounding, God's work is being blessed of him. The activities of the St. John Street Church in prayer, righteous living, Scripture searching, and personal evangelism is being blessed with fruit. There is a very great opportunity for doing good. The congregation is newly organized and has labored to pay for the building and at the same time sound forth the word. A few churches and individuals elsewhere have cooperated financially. Those who have given during the last six months are mentioned below, excepting the local congregation and the Hardie's Chapel Church near here, who have cooperated. On the building fund: Church at Phillippy, Tenn., through A. R. Wakefield, $5.71; church at McMinnville, Tenn., through L. E. West, $5; church at Lewisburg, Tenn., through J. G. Stinson, $10; church at Eagleville, Tenn., through M. M. Lamb, $3.30; church at Dasher, Ga., through J. P. Prevatt, $10; a brother in Christ, Nashville, Tenn., $50; another brother in Christ, Nashville, Tenn., $16. Amounts given for the preaching of the gospel: T. M. Smith, $20; Franklin Church, $20; John Gill, $3; Jessie Davis, $15; A. M. Holtz, $12.50; Cornersville Church, $5. If there are others not mentioned, it is purely an oversight. May God bless you all.

Among the Colored People

Brother Keeble's Report.

On the second Lord's day in May I began a meeting at Mount Pleasant, Tenn., and remained there twelve days. This is a hard field, because my people are so far back in ignorance that they do not realize that the Bible—God's word—is our guide to everlasting life. No one knows what a gospel preacher has to undergo in such places as this, say he that has it to do; and I am glad it has fallen to my lot to do this great work of carrying the greatest message that ever was sent to a perishing world. Just as soon as we entered this town the other preachers began working hard to keep their members away; but they came, anyway, and the blessed truth caught three, and they were baptized for what the Bible teaches, and one was restored. On the last day of the meeting a few disciples from the surrounding country met with us and agreed to keep the work alive, and I endeavored to impress them to meet on the first day of each week. Brother Joe Worley, who lives in the town and who cared for my wife and I while there, certainly made it pleasant for us. Brother Worley has all the responsibility of the work here on him, but he does not seem to be tired. While here I had the pleasure of visiting Brother Wrye (white) at his home, and spent about one hour with him; and he gave me some very good advice, for which I am very thankful. Brother Wrye, in my judgment, is doing a great work at this place, for which, if he is not paid here, he will get his reward in the end.

On the fourth Lord's day in May I began a meeting at Bellbuckle, Tenn., which I consider the greatest meeting that I ever conducted. We had to use the schoolhouse, which is very large, and at times it was full. Here we baptized three. I also baptized a young lady who came up from Wartrace and made the confession, going down there to baptize her. My wife is so much help to me in my work. She leads the song service. The second week of the meeting Sister Annie Tuggle joined us, and it was certainly a treat, for she gave new life to the work. She is a faithful worker. May God bless her in her field of labor. She is a solicitor for the Bible School at Silver Point. I do not believe I ever met as many white brethren and sisters as interested and eager to get the gospel to the negro as these are here. Brother W. R. Mingle (white) is, in my judgment, a great example of true Christianity, and I must say he has a good, Christian wife. The white brethren and sisters knew that the three or four colored disciples here were unable to feed us while here, and they would send cabbage, potatoes, milk, canned fruit, butter, meat, chickens, etc., and Sister Mingle sent over baked cakes and homemade light bread. Now, dear reader, does this look like real Christianity or not? I will leave the answer with you. I only pray that others may be inspired to do more to reach this fallen race of mine. The interest the white people showed in us at this place will ever live in my heart and will cause me to grow stronger and more faithful in discharging my duty and carrying the gospel to my people.

While we were at Bellbuckle a number of sisters and brethren came from Nashville and joined us in the meeting, and their presence was inspiring to us all.

We began a meeting at McMinnville yesterday (June 11). Though it rained, the outlook is bright. We ask the prayers of all of God's people:

Each individual hair is of delicate construction and requires scientific, careful treatment. If your hair is harsh, dry, coarse, and scanty, then you are not giving it proper treatment. The hair needs food just as the rest of your body; and in order to keep your scalp nourished and your hair plentiful and beautiful, you should supply it with the proper food and treatment. The Creoles, of Louisiana, possessed a formula for keeping the hair beautiful, and for many years kept the secret to themselves; but now you may enjoy their discovery by using "La Creole" Hair Color Restorer, the same recipe which the Creoles used. It darkens hair in the natural way and keeps the scalp in healthy condition. For sale by all reliable dealers. Price, $1. Manufactured by Van Fleet-Mansfield Drug Company, Memphis, Tenn.

BY THOMAS H. BURTON.

On Monday afternoon, June 5, Brother T. B. Clark (Christian), of Knoxville, Tenn., and Elder C. B. Massey (Baptist), of Pleasant Shade, Tenn., entered into a five-days' discussion at Red Boiling Springs, Tenn.

On the first two days Massey affirmed that the Scriptures teach that repenting sinners must pray for and expect remission of sins in answer to prayer, through faith, before water baptism. On the third day Clark affirmed that the Scriptures teach that since Christ died on the cross, penitent believers receive remission of sins after baptism. On the fourth day Massey affirmed that the Scriptures teach that a child of God cannot so act as to forfeit his right to heaven. On the fifth day Clark affirmed that the Scriptures teach that a child of God may so act as to forfeit his right to heaven.

During the first two days Massey produced almost every scripture pertaining to erring children of God, but failed to produce one showing that alien sinners must pray for remission of sins. Clark met his arguments fairly and squarely and showed truth seekers that God has never commanded alien sinners to pray for remission of sins, but has always laid down a plain, positive way under each covenant for them to come to him through obedience to him. On the third day Clark showed that since the death on the cross all who are saved are saved in the same way, by the same law. Massey made a great play on the conversions, but without scripture to substantiate his argument. On the fourth day Massey endeavored to show that it is impossible for a child of God to apostatize. Clark met all of his arguments and showed that the most of the scriptures he produced had a progressive verb and meant a continuation, which Massey did not reply to. On the fifth day Clark showed clearly that a child of God may so act as to forfeit his right to heaven, and showed what a dangerous doctrine it is to preach anything else. He showed clearly that that was first taught in the garden of Eden by the devil and had been taught ever since by his agents.

The discussion was attended by large and attentive audiences. Several times the house would not accommodate the crowd. The best spirit prevailed through the week. There was no wrangling to mar the pleasure of any one. It was certainly a victory for the truth. Clark presented the truth as the Bible teaches, thereby giving entire satisfaction to the brethren who heard him. Massey pre-

Like a Boy at 50 Bubbling Over With Vitality—Taking Iron Did It

Doctor says Nuxated Iron is greatest of all strength builders—Often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks time.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact a young man he really was notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 48 carrowy and nearly all in. Now at 50 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved, who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much of what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test; See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were alling all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely got rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fifteen days time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctored for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the affray, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M.D.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

NEARLY HALF OFF FOR INTRODUCTION

The June Introduction Offer on "NEW SONGS OF PRAISE" is Liberal

The Problem Solved

In order that the real merit of "New Songs of Praise" may be as early and as widely known as possible, we have decided on a rather expensive method of advertising during the month of June. The song-book question is a most important one in connection with the coming protracted meeting. The churches want and should have plenty of books. The cost of a really good book in large quantities is no small item, and this added to other necessary expenses makes the purchase of a sufficient supply of books in many instances almost out of the question. Unfortunately, many settle the matter by buying one of the many cheap, inferior song books that are every year placed on the market.

Singers, we have solved the problem for you. We are offering to send you for introduction one hundred copies of "New Songs of Praise" for $16.50. The cheap and almost worthless books—books that cost little to make and contain very little that is classical in the realm of song—will cost you this much and even more. Every selection in "New Songs of Praise" is a high-class song. It is a book brimful of the very best songs for the churches. It is not to be classed with the ordinary cheap book that is being offered every summer from almost every town and village in the country. It is a great book, a book that will live, a book that cost many hundreds of dollars to produce and that singers everywhere have but to use to appreciate.

50 copies, $9, during June.

One edition of "New Songs of Praise" contains ten lessons in vocal music. This edition costs five cents a copy extra.

$13.50 SAVED

COMMENDATIONS

Where "New Songs of Praise" has been introduced, it is receiving the highest indorsements. The statements below are taken from several hundred already received. Note carefully the opinion expressed by these well-known brethren:

I have examined "New Songs of Praise" carefully, and I firmly believe that it is the best collection of gospel songs I have yet seen.
JEWELL MATTHEWS,
San Angelo, Texas, May 15, 1916.

A copy of your 1916 song book reached me in due time. I have examined it carefully, and I, in my humble judgment, pronounce it the best book you have ever put out, and I predict for it a very large sale.
W. W. SLATER,
Maud, Okla., May 31, 1916.

I began a vocal school at Waggoner on Monday. In this school I used "New Songs of Praise" put out by the Firm Foundation Company, and tested its merits fully, and can say that it is the best song book I ever used. There are many songs in it that are well worth the price of the book.
T. P. BURT,
Commerce, Texas, May 10, 1916.

The "New Songs of Praise" is the best song book we have found. The church at Bonham purchased one hundred copies.
TOM WALKER,
Bonham, Texas, May 10, 1916.

It is doubtless the best book yet published by the Firm Foundation Company. I should like to see the churches use it extensively. It is scriptural and well adapted to all kinds of church work.

W. F. LEDLOW,
Lockney, Texas, May 15, 1916.

Vocal-music teachers are pleased with "New Songs of Praise."

To the Churches

Few of the brethren, perhaps, realize how much effort has been put forth, how much time was required, and how much money has been spent in order to furnish the brotherhood with this valuable collection of hymns and songs. The editors have selected only such songs as should be used by Christians who speak where the Bible speaks and are silent where it is silent. Brethren Taylor and Showalter are well known in the brotherhood for their integrity and faithfulness. They have earnestly tried to produce a book that the brethren will appreciate because it is filled with sound gospel teaching and the sweetest melodies that have been composed by the great masters in musical composition. We hope the labors of these good brethren will be recognized and appreciated by the loyal churches. They have done a good work. If all other things were equal, if their book were simply as good as the book of some other publisher, it would be a matter of loyalty to truth for friends of primitive Christianity to order and use "New Songs of Praise." But we really think that from every right standpoint the book is the best song selection that has been issued in recent years. We should sell at least twenty-five thousand copies at once. We earnestly request the churches and brethren who teach vocal school to give this matter serious attention. You need these books, and we have thousands ready to ship at a moment's notice. Let the orders come by mail or telegram. They will receive prompt attention. The price is right. The hearty and prompt cooperation of the brotherhood in this good work is most earnestly desired and solicited.

Where Do Our Thoughts Come From?

When we begin to ask questions about the origin of our thoughts, we begin to wander into the "unexplored areas of human ignorance." Some say that sincere thoughts always come from the heart. But there is the deeper question: "How did they come to be in the heart?" Is the old dictum true that the brain secretes thoughts just like the liver secretes bile? Are thoughts born only of experience, and is it true that they reflect what one is or has been or has seen? Or do our thoughts arise from that wonderful hive of hidden industry which modern psychology calls the subliminal mind? Frankly and emphatically, "I don't know." But there are some important truths about our thoughts that can be stated with confidence.

The Repetition of Thoughts.

(1) It is easier to think again a thought once received into the mind. Henry Drummond said: "If an intellectual process runs through our brain once, it leaves comparatively no effect; but say it over a hundred times, and a footpath is worn through the brain; the one hundredth and first time will be easy; say it a thousand times, and lo, through all the cellular structure of the brain there is laid forever a thoroughfare upon this one intellectual idea, and temptations and sins march to and fro in endless processions along the beaten track." Many years ago a mother was noted patiently teaching her little boy his lesson. She read it over and over again. A friend remarked: "That is the one hundredth time you have gone over that same lesson with your boy. Why do you repeat it so often?" "Simply because," replied the mother of the Wesleys, "if I had stopped with the ninety-ninth time, he might not have learned it." How wonderfully patient our Heavenly Father has been in teaching us the important lesson of obedience to his word! You will find it repeated on every page of the Bible. And yet how slow some are to learn it! Any thought that we cherish repeats itself until it becomes a mental habit. It is, therefore, never an unimportant thought. It is a friend or foe, a stone in the citadel of character.

How Thoughts Multiply.

(2) A second fact confirmed by experience is that thoughts multiply like weeds. Cherish to-day an evil thought, and to-morrow it is entrenched with a hundred kindred thoughts sprung to its defense. King Saul has but a little bit of jealousy of David at first, but that jealousy grows and grows until the king pursues David as he would a hunted animal. Cherish with resolution a good thought, and every day new allies spring to its service. David had an idea of building a temple for Jehovah. That idea developed and developed until forty years later the house of God crowned Mount Zion, in the city of the great king.

We Can Cultivate and Control Thoughts.

(3) But the most important fact is that a man can choose and cultivate and control his own thoughts. Paul suggests first by implication—

(a) The method of exclusion. "Think on these things" implies, "Don't think on base and mean and superficial things." There are a whole host of thoughts that should have no place in the cultured mind. Of a certain kind of sin Paul says: "Let it not even be named among you." God does not wish us to pick a living from the ash heap of the universe, but he would have us live among the fruitful trees and on the mountain tops of thought. If we persist in living in the world beautiful mentally, we shall not grovel. We only grovel when the mind is wallowing in the mire.

"Hushed be every thought that springs
From out the bitterness of things."

The selection of our thoughts determines to a great extent the health of the body. Health is not built out of sick pictures. We cannot build up strength by complaining of weakness or by indulging in superstitious fear.

When I was a boy, I spent a couple of weeks during one summer at a farmhouse where the talk during the evening was all of ghosts that had visited them, of evil dreams, of deaths and misfortunes they had experienced. By bedtime the air was so charged with fear and dread that it seemed a ghost lurked in every shadow, ready to pluck me by the sleeve. I have never yet quite recovered from the mental shock of that visit; and I know that sanitariums are filled with people who dwell, as that family dwelt, in the "dark chambers of imagery."

Take, for example, those who have had operations. Their experience was bad enough; but to review it and to establish it in their own minds and in the minds of others over and over in all of its details by talking about it is worse. I have had persons who have had an operation for appendicitis dilate upon their experience until my appendix ached in sympathy and I began to feel for it on the wrong side of my body. Let us learn to clear the mind of rubbish, of everything which mars efficiency and destroys peace of mind. You don't have to be a Christian Scientist in order to adopt this healthful view of things. You can adopt it as a Christian minus the "Scientist."

The Method of Inclusion.

(b) We should also give attention to the method of inclusion. The method of exclusion will accomplish little of itself. Into the chambers swept and garnished of useless thoughts will come seven other devils worse than they, except there be also the method of inclusion. The mind abhors a vacuum. A young friend of mine, suffering from nervous trouble, was told by a specialist to get out into the country, study the habits of birds, and make a collection of butterflies. He followed this advice and was cured. It was the very counsel which Jesus gave to the troubled men of long ago. "Behold the fowls of the air." "Consider the lilies of the field." Keep the mind filled with bright and beautiful thoughts, and there will be no room for the other kind.

Power and Aim.

Closely allied with our thoughts are the two essentials that Emerson calls the "two halves of human felicity"—power and aim. They go hand in hand together. Each is the complement of the other. Power without aim leads nowhere; aim without power tends to nothingness. Each by itself is fruitless; but working together, they accomplish the wonders of time and eternity. If our aim is strong and sure and right; if it is scriptural and divinely approved, we need not concern ourselves about the power. The power that we need comes from God; and when we do our part, his is always adequate. "His divine power hath granted unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness."

Nearly every one has some aim in view. Columbus aimed to discover a shorter route to India, and discovered America instead. We are debtors to his aim. Livingstone aimed to carry the gospel to the heart of Africa. Peary aimed to reach the North Pole, and to reach it first. Dr. Cook's aim, Peary's friends assert, was to rob him of his crown. The German emperor aims to become another Napoleon without his Waterloo. The allies aim to put a Waterloo into his hopes. President Wilson aims to write some more notes, and incidentally to get elected. There are a great many aims that people set before them in this world. Some aim to get rich; some aim to get an office; some aim to get married; some aim to get a divorce.

A Radiant Jewel Deserves a Radiant Setting.

There is nothing more discouraging than to find young people growing up without an adequate and permanent aim. Our purposes are not always blessed ones. They are not usually so. Many of them do not make a part of human felicity. "Aim" is an uncommon word, and it deserves an uncommon application. It is a radiant jewel in the language of human endeavor, and it deserves a radiant setting. When we speak of the "aim of life," it should stand for something worth while; something that belongs to duty, love, truth; something that is infinite and eternal; something that carries with it a glimpse of heaven and a foretaste of immortality.

When Paul was recounting his trials at Corinth, at Athens, at Ephesus, and was sorely tempted to become despondent, he adds a significant line: "These things do." In the friction of toil he forgot his heartaches; in the effort of to-day, the disappointment of yesterday; in the activities of service he no longer felt the sting of the thorn. To keep the life full of earnest and unselfish work is to banish from the mind many a thought that is not on Paul's list. Come into his garden of lovely things. It is a garden that all may enjoy. In it the blind can see, the dumb can speak, the deaf can hear. It is the garden of the mind, where the flowers are beautiful thoughts exhaling a fragrance that goes up to the Father's throne.

The End of Christ's Reign.

BY F. W. SMITH.

"Then cometh the end, when he shall deliver up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have abolished all rule and all authority and power." (1 Cor. 15: 24.)

The words, "the end," occur many times in the Bible with varying significance, but it is doubtful if at any other point they carry greater significance than is expressed in the above text. In this passage they signify the end of Christ's reign as King, the end of time and all things earthly, and the end of man's probation. They point to the ushering in of the bright morn of eternity and the unfading glories vouchsafed to the redeemed. Blessed thought! What rapturous prospects fill the soul in contemplation of such unending bliss! The little word "then" in the passage points out and denotes events extraordinary, resulting in an unending "destiny" to both saint and sinner. The kingdom over which Christ now rules, and the only one over which he ever will rule, will "then"—at that time—the coming of Christ—pass out of his hands into the hands of the Father, who will be all in all, the supreme Ruler of the universe.

When will these wonderful events take place? A thousand years after he comes? That is what some modern teachers proclaim, but the divine record says nothing of the kind. Note the following: "But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits; then they that are Christ's, at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall deliver up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have abolished all rule and all authority and power." (1 Cor. 15: 23, 24.) Please observe that we have the word "then" in both of these passages; and while it denotes "order" in the first passage, there is no reason why it should not denote also the "time" of the fulfillment of the thing signified—viz., "the end" of all things earthly. It might with some show of reason be confined simply to the order of the resurrection, if it were not for the immediate and unbroken context—viz.: "Then cometh the end, when he shall deliver up the kingdom," etc. Some conclude that the "then" in the second passage (verse 24) must of necessity mean "order" of events without any reference at all to specific time of fulfillment. This is done in order to get in between the time of Christ's coming and the end of the world what they call the "millennium," or thousand-years' reign. Now our English lexicons give as the first meaning of the word "then," this: "At that time, referring to a time specified, either past or future." Examples: "And the Canaanite was then in the land." (Gen. 12: 6.) "Now I know in part, but then shall I now as even also I am known." (1 Cor. 13: 12.) The second meaning is: "Soon afterwards, or immediately afterwards." Example: "First be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." (Matt. 5: 24.) What, let me ask, is there in the entire context of 1 Cor. 15: 24 to justify placing upon "then cometh the end" any other than the first meaning of the word "then?" Why not let it remain the adverb of time denoting a specific occurrence "at that time," referring to the previously mentioned event—viz., "at his coming?" There would be as much reason in contending that "then come and offer thy gift" must take place a thousand years after the reconciliation to "thy brother" as to suppose that 1 Cor. 15: 23, 24 demands a thousand years between "at his coming" and "then cometh the end." Would it not have been one of the most important places and one of the most propitious times for the apostle to have said in this connection, "But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits; then they that are Christ's, at his coming, shall reign a thousand years with Christ on the earth; and then cometh the end, when he shall deliver up the kingdom," if such had been true? But inspiration left that arrangement to modern teachers, who hesitate not at adding to the word of God. "But," says one, "does not John say in Rev. 20: 4, 'And they lived and reigned with Christ a thousand years?'" Yes, he says that; but are you right sure that you fully understand the what, when, how, and where of that passage? It is sufficient, however, for the "moderns" to know that such language is in the Bible, and they pick it up bodily and set it down between verses 23 and 24 of 1 Cor. 15, as if God himself had placed it there. They do this, and then prate about being "restricted" in their studies (?) of the Bible! Wonder why they limit this "reigning" to a thousand years, when the apostle talks about reigning this way: "And they shall reign forever and ever?" (Rev. 22: 5.) The same apostle, in speaking of what Christ had done for saints, says this: "And madest them to be unto our God a kingdom and priests; and they reign upon the earth." (Rev. 5: 10.) Here it will be observed that at the time John wrote the saints composed a kingdom, were priests unto God, and were then reigning on the earth. But a "modern" tells his readers that the language of 1 Cor. 15: 23, 24 will not permit the end of all things at the coming of Christ, but it will take more than "forty Philadelphia lawyers" to see why it will not. Other passages are pressed into service to show that an interval of a thousand years must intervene between the coming of Christ and the end of the world. Two passages (?) are thus arranged:

He appeared to Cephas;
then to the twelve;
then to about five hundred.

Christ the first fruits;
then they that are Christ's;
then cometh the end.

Did any baby sprinkler ever pervert the word of God more in an effort to sustain a human tradition? Why this leaving out a part of God's word? Did not a howl go up from the "moderns" about somebody not wanting to take all the Bible? And now—lo and behold!—here is one of the "all-the-Bible" teachers deliberately leaving out a part of the Bible in order to form a sentence which he thinks will sustain his doctrine. Did ever sectarian do worse? "At his coming" is deliberately cut off of 1 Cor. 15: 23, and a part of 1 Cor. 15: 24—viz., "then cometh the end"—is tacked on. This was done in an effort to make the two passages parallel each other in the one point of "order" without any reference whatever to time of fulfillment. Shrewd (?) trick, that, but it does not work with even a casual reader. To read 1 Cor. 15: 23, 24 just as inspiration left it, without the doctoring and tinkering of the "moderns," will make but one impression on any sincere mind—viz., at Christ's coming the end of the world will take place. Hence the modern teacher had to omit it for fear it would ruin his pet theory. What next? The word for "then" in 1 Cor. 15: 24 ("then cometh the end") is "eita," the same as in John 20: 27: "Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger, and see my hands," etc. Does not this show immediate occurrence of events? "But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits; then they that are Christ's, at his coming. Then cometh the end," etc. There would be no particular harm in all of these theories regarding a thousand-years' reign and bodies of flesh if it were not for the fact that they are used to support another theory that carinalizes the reign of Christ, having him King over a world power, ruling with a rod of iron, and denying him his seat now upon the throne of David, the spiritual rule of God—in short, the re-establishment of Judaism, a thing God abolished forever.

The Kingdom of Heaven. No. 1.

BY A. M. FOSTER.

I see a great many things of late in your paper on the kingdom question, pro and con and otherwise; so I have concluded to contribute just a little mite myself. I have no ax to grind in this matter, neither have I any pet theory to defend, but I just want to punish your readers a little, anyway. It seems to me that the very name of this institution called "kingdom" ought to help much in dissolving the mystery that so many seem to think is connected with it and enable us to enjoy a greater unanimity than seems to exist among many of our most able writers. We think, perhaps, the most perplexing thing connected with this subject is that many fail to see but one kingdom, when there are evidently two; and if we can settle this part of this subject, we think that the rest will be much easier. But as long as we fail to distinguish between these two kingdoms we can never have a very clear conception of either.

Of course, we believe that God's people are in a kingdom now. The reason we believe this is because the Bible says so. In Col. 1: 13, Paul, speaking of God, says: "Who hath delivered us [Christians] from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son. Again, in 1 Thess. 2: 12, he says: "That ye would walk worthy of God, who hath called you unto [Revised Version, "into"] his kingdom and glory." And again, in Rev. 1: 9, John says: "I John, who also am your brother, and companion in tribulation, and in the kingdom and patience of Jesus Christ." Now, the above scriptures certainly teach that God's people were in a kingdom at the time this language was used; and if then, why not now?

But they have the promise of another kingdom. In Acts 14: 22 it is said of Paul and Barnabas that they returned to Lystra and to Iconium and Antioch, "confirming the souls of the disciples, and exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that we must through much tribulation enter into the kingdom of God." Again, in 2 Pet. 1: 10, 11, we read: "Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." Again, Paul says, in 2 Tim. 4: 18: "And the Lord shall deliver me from every evil work, and will preserve me unto [Greek, "eis"] his heavenly Kingdom." And last, but not least, Jesus says in Matt. 25: 34: "Then shall the King say unto them [sheep, Christians] on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." That this scripture refers to our final inheritance is evident from the language in James 2: 5, where it is said: "Hearken, my beloved brethren, Hath not God chosen the poor of this world rich in faith, and heirs of the kingdom which he hath promised to them that love him?" Now we think the foregoing clearly sets forth the two-kingdoms theory—one in which the people of God are now, and another into which they will enter when the trials and troubles of this old world are over.

But we want to examine this last-mentioned kingdom just a little further. We think that the phrase, "from the foundation of the world," as used in Matt. 25: 34, clearly conveys the idea that this kingdom was prepared simultaneously with the world; and if this be true, then it could not be the same place Jesus went to prepare for his disciples (John 14: 2), because this one was prepared before that time. But what was the purpose of this kingdom that was prepared so long, long ago? We are told that it was prepared for the people of God, and that they were to inherit it. Therefore, then, it was their inheritance. But we are told in 1 Pet. 1: 3, 4 that these Christians, to whom Peter addressed this epistle, had been begotten again to an inheritance, and that this inheritance was reserved in heaven for them. But how could a person be begotten again to an inheritance, if he had never had the inheritance before? The very language of this text seems to imply that these people had at one time before been heirs to this inheritance, but had by some means lost it, but had now been restored to their former right. And this is not all; we think this is strictly in harmony with the whole tenor of the Bible.

When God created man and put him in the garden of Eden, he surely did not intend that to be his eternal home. If he did, why did he prepare another place for him? But if he did not intend the garden to be his eternal home, what was its mission and what was God's purpose in preparing it? We think that the garden of Eden was only intended for man's probation; and this thought certainly resolves itself into a fact when we remember that when God put man in the garden he put him under law and then suffered him to be tempted; and we all agree that if man had not fallen, there would have been no sin in the world, and the plan of redemption never would have been necessary. Just how God proposed to transport man from his earthly home in the garden to the heavenly kingdom he had prepared for him, we are not going to even try to say; but that he was going to do this is evident from the fact of its preparation. The law under which God had placed man, when he put him in the garden, had no remedial feature to it whatever, because up to that time man had not sinned and there was no need for a remedy. The garden of Eden was prepared for man in his state of innocence, and not in his state of sin; therefore, when man fell from his state of purity, there was nothing left for God to do but to expel him from the garden. Thus the garden became of no use whatever, and it was finally removed or destroyed. But we want to remember that this separation of man from the garden did not separate him from the law under which God had placed him. He was still under law; and while he could not repeat this first transgression, he could find plenty of other things to do that were just as much against the commands of God. John tells us that sin is the transgression of the law. (1 John 3: 4.) And while we have no mention of the specific precepts of this law under which man was, outside of the one that was broken in the garden, yet we know man was under law, or he could not have sinned (see Rom. 4: 15); and that man did sin is a matter of record (Gen. 3: 6; Rom. 5: 12-14). But notwithstanding man had a law by which he could sin, he had no law by which he could obtain pardon. Therefore, unless God could invent some plan by which man might be extricated from the throes of sin into which transgression had plunged him, God would have to give up the whole scheme as a flat failure. But, thanks be to God, he did not give up; that, notwithstanding the earthly part of his plan had been destroyed through man's coöperation with the devil, yet God hoped to bring him back to his Edenic purity through his coöperation with him, and, notwithstanding his fall, to yet give him the eternal kingdom he had originally prepared for him. Now, it is in the development of this plan through which God proposed to restore man to his original inheritance that we expect to find the kingdom we are in now. The plan of redemption is but a substitute for the garden of Eden, and necessarily includes everything from Abel's sacrifice to the close of probation. Notwithstanding the Christian dispensation did not begin till more than four thousand years after the fall of man, yet the blessings and benefits are now enjoyed as much by those who lived obedient to the law of God before Christ came as they are by those who live obedient to the law of God now. The efficacy of Christ's blood flowed backward to the beginning of time as well as forward to the end of time; and if it had not been for the blood of Christ, there could have been no pardon under the law of God in any age of the world. (Heb. 9: 27; 10: 1-4; 11: 40.)

THE KINGDOM IDENTIFIED.

But what is this kingdom, anyway? It is usually agreed that the kingdom and the church are the same, and nearly all arguments on the kingdom question are made from this viewpoint. But is this, strictly speaking, true? We know that the term "kingdom" is sometimes used in the sense of "church" (Matt. 25: 1), but this is not always the case. In fact, it is the exception instead of the rule. Of the kingdom Jesus said: "Verily I say unto you, That there be some of them that stand here, which shall not taste of death, till they have seen the kingdom of God come with power." (Mark 9: 1.) But of the church Jesus said: "And I say also unto thee, That thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church." (Matt. 16: 18.) So we see from these scriptures that there was something he called "kingdom" that was to come, but he was going to build something that he called the "church." But what is the thing that was to come? Daniel said, when telling Nebuchadnezzar his dream: "Thou sawest till that a stone was cut out without hands, which smote the image upon his feet: . . . and the stone that smote the image became a great mountain, and filled the whole earth." (Dan 2: 34, 35.) Now, that this was the kingdom is evident from what he further says in verses 44, 45: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed; and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever. Forasmuch as thou sawest that the stone was cut out of the mountain without hands, and that it brake in pieces the iron, the brass, the clay, the silver, and the gold; the great God hath made known to the king what shall come to pass hereafter; and the dream is certain, and the interpretation thereof sure." Now, in these scriptures we see that the word "mountain" and the word "kingdom" evidently mean the same thing. But, again, Isaiah, in describing the peace that should reign in the kingdom of Christ, says: "They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain: for the earth shall be full of the knowledge of the Lord, as the waters cover the sea." (Isa. 11: 9.) That this statement refers to the government of God is certain. But "government" means "kingdom;" and not only that, but it is, no doubt, the kingdom that was to come. But hear Isaiah further: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given: and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, The mighty God, The everlasting Father, The Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to order it, and to establish it with judgment and with justice from henceforth even forever. The zeal of the Lord of hosts will perform this." (Isa. 9: 6, 7.) Now, here we find the terms "kingdom" and "government" quite as closely connected in meaning as the terms "mountain" and "kingdom" in Dan. 2; therefore we conclude they all mean the same thing. But there is a further union of thought between these terms. The stone grew into a mountain; the government increased; and the kingdom, Jesus said, was like a grain of mustard seed, little, but when planted it became a great tree. (Matt. 13: 31, 32.) And further, Luke tells us that the word of God grew and multiplied—that is, was extended from one individual to another till it spread itself throughout the world. (Acts 12: 24.)

The Tremendously Increased Cost of Newspaper Making.

Very few readers of the Georgian and other newspapers realize the extreme seriousness of the white-paper situation and the tremendously increased cost to newspapers of that large item of expense because of the constantly soaring price of that indispensable commodity.

Not only is white paper far and away more expensive to-day than it ever was before, and likely to go still higher in price, but the gravity of the situation is further increased by reason of the fact that it may become a pressing problem in the near future as to whether newspapers will be able to get white paper at all.

Every agency of the government that may be put into operation under our present laws, as well as every contrivance that private enterprise can suggest, is at work seeking to relieve this distressing situation in as large measure as possible, but, at best, results cannot be expected to be particularly advantageous or helpful.

The newspapers are being put to it as never before in all their history to meet the demands of their constituencies and to supply the public that quality of output the public demands and has a right to expect, even admitting the stated necessities of strict economy.

Every avenue through which white paper may be conserved, therefore, is being closely guarded; for not only is it the duty of newspapers to meet the full requirements of the service imposed upon them, but it is a matter of pride with them as well to hold everything up to the maximum standard.

Practically without exception, every material entering into the manufacture of white paper has advanced within the past twelve to eighteen months from fifty to three hundred per cent.

Inks were never so high, and the increase in price of materials used in the art department (such as zinc) and in the composing room (such as linotype metal, etc.) has been positively staggering.

Some of the chemicals absolutely indispensable in the art department have gone to all but prohibitive prices.

The public is intensely and vitally interested in these matters, because the daily newspaper is an altogether indispensable institution; and never, perhaps, in all the history of the newspaper, was it so vital a factor in everyday life as it is to-day.

The great European war—the greatest in all history—has entailed upon newspapers a tremendous and extraordinary expense; but the public must be kept as fully informed as to the progress of that gigantic struggle as is possible, and so the expense is incurred and paid.

The Hearst newspapers are spending literally a fortune every day in this one direction alone; and now there are the big political campaigns to cover.

It is safe to say that, with these extraordinary expenses added to the tremendously increased cost of the white paper and collateral items, the reader is getting from the newspapers of this country to-day far and away the greatest value for the price he pays than ever before, and far greater than he had any right at any time to expect or even anticipate, and, really, far more than he is entitled to, from the standpoint of strictly good business and common sense.

The newspapers are carrying a tremendous financial burden, from which the public directly benefits in astonishing measure.

Just how much longer the newspaper will be able to bear this strain is problematical, but certainly they are deserving of the greatest measure of commendation and thanks for what they have been able to do and for what they have done so far.—Atlanta Georgian.

Our readers are rallying to the support of the Gospel Advocate as never before at this season of the year. It is not our purpose to advance our subscription price before January 1, 1917. When we do advance the price, we want our readers to know that we do so because it is a matter of necessity. We can do our best, but we cannot do the impossible. All can help us now by paying their dues, renewing, and sending us new subscribers. We earnestly solicit your prompt action and most hearty cooperation.

Many papers have already advanced their subscription. Among the number is the Nashville Tennessean. Now is the time to take advantage of the present subscription price.

EDITOR.

The Gospel Advocate "Joy Fund."

The publishers of the Gospel Advocate have been impressed with the happiness created in the hearts of the aged, the infirm, the crippled, and the financially depressed when they receive a letter stating that their subscription has not been discontinued as they expected it to be, but continues through the thoughtful action of another. So confident are we that springing this kind of a surprise not only creates unaffected joy, but is real missionary work, that we have decided to appropriate one hundred dollars to be used exclusively for this kind of work. We do this as a stimulus to secure the cooperation of our readers. Those who contribute to this fund may supply the names of those they wish to be the beneficiaries, or, if you prefer, we can supply them without any difficulty. We receive many touching letters from destitute fields like the following which came from a lonely sister in the far-off State of Washington:

Dear Brother: In regard to the renewing my subscription for the Gospel Advocate, I will have to ask you to discontinue it for the present. I am going to leave this place in a week, and my husband has been sick ever since October and has been in the hospital nearly five months. You know that means something serious for us. If he ever gets well, I will send for the Advocate again. I will miss it so much. There is not any loyal church here, and that makes it worse for me to give the Advocate up. X.

In sending for this purpose, it is not necessary to go into detailed explanation. Simply inclose the amount you wish to give in an envelope and mark it, "For the Gospel Advocate Joy Fund." We will do the rest. We start it this week with one hundred dollars. Who will follow? Remember, a small sum will be just as much appreciated as a large one, and just as acceptable to the Savior if it spells sacrifice and a ready mind. GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

Annual Meeting at the Potter Orphans' Home.

For the benefit of our many friends at large, I take this means of inviting you to attend our annual meeting which is to be held at the Potter Orphans' Home, Bowling Green, Ky., on July 5. We are looking forward to this meeting with a great deal of pleasure, for it is then we expect to meet a goodly number of our friends. We have arranged to have several speakers on that day, who will speak on various subjects; too, the good people near the Home have assured us that eatables will be plentiful. Dinner on the ground. You are cordially invited to attend. Come and enjoy the day with us. J. L. HINES, Superintendent.

QUERY DEPARTMENT

Brother McQuiddy: What will be the final destiny of a gospel preacher who gets in debt to a brother and leaves the community and refuses to pay the debt till the brother, as a last resort, agrees to settle for less than ten cents on the dollar, and the preacher settles at that? Should the brother to whom the account was due forgive him? At the same time, the preacher is receiving one hundred dollars per month for preaching.

STUD TOTTU.

The answer depends on what the preacher intended to do when he went in debt and his ability to pay the debt dollar for dollar. The mere fact that he receives a salary of one hundred dollars per month is not evidence that he could pay the debt. He may have a large family, may have worked many months for nothing or a very small compensation until he became involved in debt. He may have had much sickness in his family and, in consequence, large doctors' bills to pay. I cannot, therefore, pass on the ability of the preacher. If he meant to defraud the brother, if he recklessly went into debt with no possibility of paying his creditor dollar for dollar, he is guilty of sin and his preaching will not accomplish much good where he is known. Preachers, as well as other Christians, should be honest. They should be energetic, frugal, and economical. If they do not receive a sufficient amount to support them and their families from the people to whom they preach the gospel, they should supplement their salaries by some other honorable work. All Christians should be slow to make debts that they cannot pay.

Brother McQuiddy: (1) Please explain 1 John 5: 8. To what fact do the Spirit and the water and the blood bear witness? And how do they bear witness? Does the water in this verse refer to baptism? Does the blood refer to the blood of Christ? Does the Spirit refer to the Holy Spirit? (2) Also does the word "city" in Tit. 1: 5 mean "church," the same as is used in Acts 14: 23?

J. M. DENNIS.

(1) 1 John 5: 8 reads: "For there are three who bear witness, the Spirit, and the water, and the blood: and the three agree in one." The water refers primarily to the baptism that revealed Jesus to be the Christ, the Son of God, for the first time. "This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased." (Matt. 3: 17.) "And I knew him not; but that he should be made manifest to Israel for this cause came I baptizing in water." (John 1: 31.) While Christ was in the waters of the Jordan, the Spirit, descending in the form of a dove, bore witness. On the cross flowed the water and the blood. "Howbeit one of the soldiers with a spear pierced his side, and straightway there came out blood and water," (John 19: 34.) Two monumental institutions both witness or testify of Christ. We are baptized into his death (Rom. 6: 3), and the Lord's Supper points to his shed blood. Hence the water, the blood, and the Spirit all testify of him, "and these three agree in one." Witness is usually borne through words. Clearly the water refers to baptism; the blood, to the blood of Christ; and the Spirit, to the Holy Spirit. (2) Crete was noted for having one hundred cities. It appears that Paul had visited and established a church in each of these cities. When he appointed elders for the churches in these cities, he would appoint elders in every city of Crete. "City" does not mean "church" in any sense. Clearly the meaning is that he should appoint elders for every church; and as there was one or more in each city, he would appoint elders in every city.

Brother McQuiddy: (1) Please explain Rom. 8: 29, 30. (2) Please explain Matt. 7: 1-3. If one says he does not believe a person is saved without being baptized, would that be judging? (3) Is it true that "a person making a profession of faith in Christ is a member of God's church?" Give an explanation on this last, please.

A. M.

(1) "For whom he foreknew he also foreordained to be conformed to the image of his Son, that he might be the firstborn among many brethren; and whom he foreordained, them he also called: and whom he called, them he also justified: and whom he justified, them he also glorified." (Rom. 8: 29, 30.) Foreknowledge and foreordination do not mean the same thing. One is the act of foreknowing something; the other is to decree something. Augustine says: "There can be no predestination without foreknowledge; but there can be foreknowledge without predestination." God foresaw the character that would love him, and predestinated that the character that loved and obeyed him should be conformed to the image of his Son. He did not predestinate that they should love and obey him, but that those who loved and obeyed him should be conformed to the image of his Son. This is the only decree in the passage. Had not God foreseen their act of obedience, his act of predestinating them to be conformed to the image of his Son would never have taken place. They were called and justified by the preaching and acceptance of the gospel. (2) "Judge not, that ye be not judged. For with what judgment ye judge, ye shall be judged: and with what measure ye mete, it shall be measured unto you." (Matt. 7: 1, 2.) The passage condemns rash, harsh, and uncharitable judgments. We should not think evil where no evil seems to exist. It would not be judging to say that salvation is promised to the baptized believer. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.) It would not be judging to say that there is no promise of salvation to responsible people who neglect or refuse to be baptized. Neither would it be judging for one to say, "I do not believe a person is saved without being baptized," since Christ himself says: "Except one be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." (John 3: 5.) Salvation is in the kingdom of God and not out of it. (3) In the American Standard Version of the Bible we have "confession," and not "profession." (See 1 Tim. 6: 12; 2 Cor. 9: 13; Heb. 3: 1; 4: 14; 10: 23.) The mere confession of faith does not bring one into Christ. Believers are baptized into Christ. (Rom. 6: 3; Gal. 3: 27.) "And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" (Luke 6: 46.) "This people honoreth me with their lips; but their heart is far from me." (Matt. 15: 8.) The man who confesses Christ in the keeping of his commandments is in the church.

Prayer.

The mighty vessel was in midocean when one of the passengers was taken desperately ill. The ship's surgeon was called, and he did everything in his power to relieve the woman's suffering, but to no avail. When the first paroxysm of pain had passed, she said that it seemed like the return of the symptoms of a former malady, and that her family physician was always so successful in combating the attacks. As rapidly as possible the wireless apparatus with which the vessel was equipped got into communication with this physician in New York, and, in a surprisingly short time, his prescription was received through the air.

As marvelous as is the working of wireless telegraphy, the simple prayer of one of God's dear children is more powerful. Hundreds of years before such communication was thought of the psalmist said: "The righteous cry, and the Lord heareth, and delivereth them out of all their troubles." (Ps. 34: 17.) The great Physician has said: "Call upon me in the day of trouble: I will deliver thee." (Ps. 50: 15.)—Alan Pressley Wilson.

Japanese Farming Implements. No. 2.

BY J. M. McCALEB.

(Read before the Asiatic Society, Tokyo, Japan.)

II. PRACTICAL IMPROVEMENTS IN JAPANESE AGRICULTURAL IMPLEMENTS.

According to the conditions that exist in this country, there are many obstacles in the way of improving the farmer's present methods. The sickle, so primitive and slow, would be hard to abandon for more improved implements. Laborers are abundant and the harvest relatively small. The grain is often so tangled by the prevailing winds that any kind of harvesting machine would fail to be satisfactory. In many cases the fields cannot be drained, and the harvesting must be done in the mud or even the water. Many of the fields are mere garden patches, too small either for machinery or horses. In many instances, therefore, the direct method of the sickle, the hoe, and the bare hands is the farmers' only hope.

But modern implements to some degree could be adopted to great advantage. Many of the little fields could be easily enlarged and elongated so as to admit the horse and the plow and other horse-drawn implements. Much of the rice land, now worked in the mud, could easily be drained so that the preparation of the soil, the planting, and the cultivation of the crop could be performed by means of horse-drawn implements, much to the advantage and comfort of the farmer. Also more dry-land crops could and should be raised; for, remarkable as it may seem, vast stretches of uplands in various parts of Japan are lying idle, producing practically nothing but wild grass. There are, not including Hokkaido, 1,852,900 acres of this waste land known as "hara," or prairie. All of these idle lands could be turned into profitable orchards, grain fields, and stock farms; with only the hoe, however, it is hard for the farmer to conquer the soil. At present there is only about one acre of cultivated land to the man.

This is not altogether due to the smallness of the country, but partly to the slow and laborious methods of farming. It takes one man eight days' hard labor to dig up one acre. In America the same man in the same length of time, with a plow and two horses, will break sixteen times as much, or two acres per day. I speak not of the gang plows drawn by larger teams, but of the ordinary two-horse plow that could easily be used in Japan. In like manner one-horse and two-horse implements for seeding, cultivating, and harvesting could be used to great advantage. Japan can hardly hope to farm on a large scale, such as is carried on in Australia, Canada, and the United States; but even the smaller implements that may be operated by horse power are a great saving of labor. Small farms also could easily combine and make one team and plow do for two or even several farms. One threshing machine could easily serve for a whole village. By temporarily obliterating a few little mud walls in some instances, even the gang plow might be used. A plow of five blades would require ten horses. Ten farmers could combine and furnish them. This team and two men would, in one day, do the work of eighty men with the hoe. The farmers have the horses already. There are as many horses in Japan, it is said, as in England. But the rule at present is for the farmer to take the place of the horse, while the latter idly stands tied to a bush. The exceedingly slow method of beating up the clods one at a time could easily be replaced by bladed and toothed harrows and rollers. The latter would also be very useful in rolling down the wheat in the spring after the winter freezes. The present method of going over the field and tramping down the wheat one bunch at a time is unnecessarily slow, and would strike the average Western farmer as mere piddling.

For cultivation, the iron-toothed hand rake would be a great saving of labor, especially while the crops are small. Many of the farmers increase their burden tenfold, to the injury of the crop, by allowing the grass and weeds to get green before attempting to weed out the field. Corn, peanuts, beans, millet, and other cultivated crops should be gone over with the hand rake as soon as the plants are out of the ground. A light going over the row as soon as the seed begins to sprout would also kill the first crop of grass and put the soil in splendid condition for subsequent cultivation. When the grass is just beginning to appear above ground, one man with a rake can destroy as much in a day as ten men after it gets a start. This should be repeated every week or ten days. By thus keeping ahead of the grass, the farmer's labor is made immensely lighter and the crop is kept in much better growing condition. The rake must not be too long; the most serviceable make is one only ten inches in length with ten teeth about one inch apart. I recommended this rake to a certain farmer and he bought three. The next year he said he was going to order ten.

Also the steel-blade, goose-neck hoe, already in use to a limited extent, would be of great service. For digging the soil where plows are impracticable, the fork and the spade would greatly lighten the task. Nearly all Japanese farming implements are constructed on the general plan that necessitates the extreme bending of the back. A more erect position would accomplish the same end with less fatigue. But in breaking the soil, planting, and the cultivation of the crop, it would be greatly to the farmer's advantage to resort more to implements drawn by horses, mules, or oxen. The mule is decidedly the best animal of all for the farm. The ox is too sluggish and slow; and the horse, especially the Japanese horse, is too full of fire and fidgets about too much. Farm implements, to do their best work, must be drawn by a steady animal.

In the case of mulberry fields, vineyards, and orchards, where a bed is thrown to the trees, small turning plows drawn by one horse, such as are used in the West, could be used to great advantage. One man with a horse and plow could do as much as eight men with their hoes, and at night have a much better back than they. Also the same horse and plow may be used to great advantage in the last plowing of corn, peanuts, and beans. The single shovel with steel blade and iron beam would be invaluable for going between the narrow rows of "dalkon," wheat, barley, millet, dry-land rice, buckwheat, and other crops planted in a similar manner. For wider rows, such as corn, the double-shovel would be a splendid adjunct to the farmer's outfit. Except in rare instances, where the fields are exceptionally large, more complicated implements for cultivation, such as the cultivator with four hoes, would hardly pay.

As a suggestion, showing what machinery will do for Japan, note the marvelous growth of the silk industry, due in large measure to the use of machinery in reeling, seventy per cent now being done by the latter method. The silk production is now six times what it was twenty years ago—a similar case to the invention of the cotton gin and the consequent growth of the cotton industry in the United States. When the farmer learns to cultivate the mulberry trees with greater speed and less labor, the sericulture will progress yet more. And the same is true of all other lines of agriculture.

The Church and the Divorce Evil.

BY M. C. K.

Again we are called upon to discuss the divorce evil, and we introduce the subject with some statistics. In the May number of the Christian Statesman, of Pittsburgh, Pa., Judge W. H. Thomas, of California, as quoted by the Literary Digest, presents some timely and significant facts and figures on the alarming prevalence of the divorce evil and the crying duty of the church. We are glad to note such criticisms and to see them given such wide publication. They richly deserve it. When the sanctity and even the absolute destruction of the American home are threatened, it is certainly time for the religious element of the country to wake up to the meaning of the situation and the duty of the hour. Divorces are granted on grounds, as Judge Thomas truly declares, "often trivial, even frivolous," and lawyers will "delay cases in order to present them finally before judges known to be lenient."

In order to present this lamentable condition in its true light, Judge Thomas furnishes statistics for five counties in California for a period of five years from January 1, 1910, to December 31, 1914. The facts and figures thus furnished are as follows:

Los Angeles County: Divorces granted, 6,295; final decrees, 4,993; decrees denied, 1,594; marriages annulled, 26; marriage licenses issued, 34,942.

San Diego County: Divorces granted, 802; final decrees, 710; denied, 20; annulments, 21; licenses issued, 5,653.

San Bernardino County: Decrees granted, 424; final decrees, 342; denied, 12; annulments, 10; marriage licenses, 1,191.

Riverside County: Divorces granted, 210; final decrees, 170; denied, 3; annulments, 6; marriage licenses, 1,192.

Orange County: Divorces granted, 225; final decrees, 185; denied, 2; annulments, 5; marriage licenses, 6,120.

It will be seen that, in Los Angeles County, for every 2.71 marriages one ends in divorce; in San Diego County, for every 3.63 marriages one ends in divorce; San Bernardino County, one divorce for every 4.15 marriages; Riverside, one divorce for every 5.12 marriages; and in Orange, which is my own county, one divorce for every 14.67 marriages.

It will be observed, according to this disclosure, that there were, within the five counties and five years named, 49,148 marriages and 7,956 divorces. Leaving out the proportion of divorces to the number of marriages, these figures mean that there were 7,956 divorces in five counties in five years, or more than 1,500 divorces on an average to the county in that time, or, finally, over three hundred divorces on an average for each county annually! And while these counties are not given as an exact index to the general condition all over the country, it is claimed that, deplorable as it is, it is not so bad in them as it is in some other localities. Hence the facts are sufficient to alarm and stir to prompt and serious thought and action the church of God everywhere.

But what can be done? What can the church do? Possibly nothing at all as a body; and yet there is much in many ways that can be done by the church. Of course, neither it nor any other organized moral force in the country can take direct hold of this giant evil and root it out of society; but it must be done by the creation of an enlightened sentiment and an awakened conscience which measure up to the divine standard on the sacred subject of marriage. Note this further timely comment from Judge Thomas:

When men and women—so many of them—give little thought or consideration to the most important relation of their lives; when even ministers of the gospel will perform the marriage ceremony for so many of them who have been divorced on other than the scriptural ground, without even asking a question; when persons have the audacity to go to the court for the dissolution of the relation "by the surgery of divorce" on such flimsy, even absolutely frivolous, pretexts; and when judges have no more respect for their great office and give no more thought to matters then at hand than to allow themselves and their office to be prostituted to the extent that thousands of divorces are granted by them annually with no more concern than if they were ordering the filing or recording of a chattel mortgage; when all this is so manifest, is it strange that the American home appears to be going to Hades so fast that the scenery cannot be discerned on the way? Surely the condition is bad enough, though not hopeless.

This picture is enough to cause serious thought on the part of judges, lawyers, preachers of the gospel, and everybody else. Ministers of the gospel especially, but largely also all other members of the church of God, can exert an influence, if they will do so, that will bring about a thorough and radical revolution. Instead of performing "the marriage ceremony for so many of them who have been divorced on other than the scriptural ground without even asking a question," let ministers of the gospel promptly and emphatically refuse all such services, and thus have the courage to place their influence on the side of the sacredness of marriage and the sanctity of its inviolable obligations. Let Christian fathers and mothers give serious thought to the matter of marriage on the part of their children and let them impart within the domestic circle the much-needed teaching of the Bible on the subject. Let there be an atmosphere in the Christian home and in the social lives of Christians everywhere which demands the recognition of the sacredness of marriage.

Last, but not least, let Christians who contemplate marriage, or who in any way deal with the question, think and act with reference to it in the light of its sacred and divine meaning and with a due sense of their solemn obligations one to another. Think of Christian men and women either giving "little thought or consideration to the most important relation of their lives," or of dealing lightly with the question in any form or fashion! Such a fact seems almost incredible, and yet it is widespread over the country. Not only should the subject have the most serious and prayerful thought and consideration, but it should be looked upon at all times in its divinely sacred light; and no man or woman with proper conception of the question and with a truly awakened conscience will ever either contemplate the step or in any way deal with the question in any other light. Hence, precisely as marriage involves the very best in human nature—the most sacred feelings, the tenderest relationship, and the closest tie between man and woman in this life—so, where these all have proper pre-nuptial consideration and appreciation, the vows made at the hymeneal altar will be sacredly kept, and divorce will be impossible.

Some Questions and Answers.

BY E. A. F.

Dear Brother Elam: In a recent issue of the Gospel Advocate we read with much interest your article on "Adultery, Marriage, and Divorce." While we cannot agree with you in every particular of the article mentioned, we do fully agree with you that divorce is wrong and the divorce laws ought to be repealed or laws enacted which will prevent divorced people's marrying again. In the Advocate of June 8 we note the questions propounded by Mr. J. H. Houser, and we fully agree with him that in the cases referred to by him, or any other such cases, the parties were not joined in the holy bonds of matrimony by God, but only by the laws of the land. Whom does God join in the holy bonds of matrimony? Only those who take the solemn vows from pure motives, from the true love and affection they have for each other, and not from any mercenary or other impure motives. It is possible that one of the parties to the marriage contract enters it with the God-given motives, while the other party to the contract enters it with impure or mercenary motives. In a case of this kind, the one entering into the marriage with God-given motives would not be living in adultery, while the party taking the marriage vows with mercenary motives would be living in adultery; and when both parties enter into the marriage contract with mercenary motives, any children born of such wedlock would certainly be born of fornication. There are thousands of marriages being solemnized each year that are no more nor less than a commercial or financial transaction. That the great and good God is a willing and joint party to such marriages we cannot believe. We believe that in instances like those cited by Mr. Houser it is right that the parties should separate, but we do not believe that they ought to be divorced and marry again. We would be glad to have you publish this and comment on same. H. C. DAVIDSON.

This is only theoretical. When people are married, they are married. The motive for marriage does not destroy the marriage itself. The only question is: When does God join together man and woman, or when do the two "become one flesh?" God is not responsible for motives; he tells when and how the two become one.

I said that when a man and woman, scripturally qualified to marry (one divorced for any cause except fornication is not scripturally qualified), comply with the requirements of the civil law (because God requires all to submit to the powers that be) and live together as husband and wife, they have been joined together by God. One couple may have more sentiment and affection than another, or the motives of one party to the contract may be mixed or not the loftiest and purest; still, in the eye of God the two have "become one flesh." Let us hear Paul on this point:

Know ye not that your bodies are members of Christ? shall I then take away the members of Christ, and make them members of a harlot? God forbid. Or know ye not that he that is joined to a harlot is one body? for, The twain, saith he, shall become one flesh. (1 Cor. 6: 15, 16.)

Paul says he who is joined to a harlot is one body with her, because God says "the twain shall become one flesh." In this way the two become one flesh. Then, if living in sin with a harlot makes a man one with her, not only in sin, but "one body," will not living legally and virtuously with his wife make a man one flesh with her? When so corrupt and base a motive as licentiousness does not prevent a man's becoming one flesh with a harlot when he lives in sin with her (this does not in any sense make her his wife), will selfish or mercenary motives prevent a man's becoming one flesh with a pure and true woman when legally and virtuously he lives with her as his wife? If such marriages were fornication, and children born of such were children of fornication, the Bible would take notice of it and guard this point as it does real fornication, and would advise separation as it does when one of the parties is guilty of real fornication.

Furthermore, to avoid fornication, God teaches marriages. Let us read just here 1 Cor. 7: 1-7. Suppose, as Paul says, a man has not the gift of continency, and, in order to be clean and pure, marries; will this motive destroy the relationship? Far from it. God blesses the union, and in this particular, as in all others, directs the husband and the wife how to treat each other.

Having joined the husband and wife according to his own rule, God commands the husband to love his wife as Christ loved the church and gave himself up for it, and the wife to fear and obey her husband. This is not slavish fear or dread or obedience to her husband when he requires disobedience to God; it is respect and reverence for him. In obedience to God a wife honors her husband, as her head, and seeks his interest and greatest good in all things—his financial and spiritual interest. She is one with him. She is blind if she does not see that his comfort and interest, peace and good, are hers also. The two are not two contrary and contending parties, pulling at opposite ends of the rope. The wife is not playing a game of beat—of seeing how much money, service, and sacrifice she can get out of her husband, and he, in turn, how much he can keep her from getting, or how much work and drudgery at how small a cost he can extract from her. Shame, shame! At this game they both lose and fail and bitter trouble follows.

Every wife—every girl and woman—should commit to memory Prov. 31: 10-31; Tit. 2: 1-5. But if some wives fall short of this, their husbands cannot separate from them. Were all wives perfect, there would be no such instruction in the Bible. Just so, were all husbands perfect, there would be no necessity for the very much instruction which God gives them.

Ye husbands, in like manner, dwell with your wives according to knowledge, giving honor unto the woman, as unto the weaker vessel, as being also joint heirs of the grace of God; to the end that your prayers be not hindered. (1 Pet. 3: 7.)

Let husbands commit this and other passages to memory and live accordingly.

Of course, let there be sentiment, congeniality, admiration, affinity, and love—love genuine and true—love as pure as a lily wet with dew and unvisited by the sun, as beautiful as the first blush of a June morning, as innocent as the warm throbs of a maiden's heart, and as strong and everlasting as the law of gravitation. These lighten all burdens, sweeten all sorrows, give the silver lining and golden rim to all clouds, fill the desert with roses, entwine huts in honeysuckles and evergreens, wreathen palaces with flowers, and fill all hearts with the glad song of "home, sweet home." Where love is, happiness is, whether in a cabin or a mansion. But should any of these characteristics of love be lacking, or should none exist in the perfect degree in the one party or the other when the marriage relation is entered, that does not destroy the relationship before God.

If either party should discover when it is too late that the bargain is a bad one, that party must stick the closer to it and do all that is possible to make it a successful and happy union. Separation is not the remedy, but obedience to God is.

As the young people say, we can "live on love," if we know what love is. Love is not all emotion and feeling or personal magnetism; it is action, duty, service. No service, no real love. As Christ gave himself up for the church, his bride, so husbands ought also to love their wives—to serve them. As the church honors Christ and is in submission to him, so wives must honor and fear their husbands and be in subjection to them.

Husbands and wives must be taught to practice these things—that is, to obey God in these commandments; but not to separate because they lack something in motive or character. They must learn to grow in this grace of serving, of forbearing, of loving. To separate for every failure one or the other party makes would be ruinous to society, the church, and the souls of all. There are greatly too many separations and sinful divorces now; but the teaching of Brethren Houser and Davidson will encourage more.

The Bible teaches that under some circumstances the husband or wife is forced to live separate from the other; but in such a case the will of God is to remain unmarried or to seek reconciliation. (See 1 Cor. 7: 8-11.)

Newton, Ala., May 5, 1916.—Dear Brother Elam: In a congregation where brethren will not take the lead in the song service, is it wrong for the sisters to lead the singing?
Your sister in Christ, ZADIE RAINES.

If some brethren can lead the singing, but will not, they should be ashamed. If they would lead, but cannot, it is right for the sisters who can to do so. In this, as in everything else, the sisters should manifest a meek and quiet spirit and should be modest and humble.

Newton, Ala., May 5, 1916.—Dear Brother Elam: The church here wants you to give some advice as to how to conduct the Lord's-day worship with your literature. Some prefer reading the entire chapter containing the lesson, after which let the teacher ask the questions laid down in the Quarterly. Others think best not to have any reading at all, to leave Bibles at home, ask the questions of the Quarterly, partake of the Lord's Supper, and go home. Please give us what information you can on this subject, and oblige. Your sister in Christ, MRS. E. M. KING.

It is very easy to learn the acts of worship to be engaged in on Lord's days. On that day the disciples met to break bread (Acts 20: 7; 1 Cor. 16: 1, 2; 1 Cor. 11: 20, 21, 33, or read verses 17-34); they prayed and sung together (1 Cor. 14: 23, then verses 14-19); they taught and exhorted one another—read the Scriptures and learned the will of God (Acts 2: 42; 1 Thess. 5: 27; Col. 4: 16); they contributed according to the prosperity God gave them (1 Cor. 16: 1, 2). The fourteenth chapter of First Corinthians, while dealing with spiritual gifts, shows that all things must be done unto the edifying of the church, and decently and in order.

These all Christians should do on the first day of the week.

The number of songs to be sung, the number of prayers to be offered, the number of passages of scripture to be read, the number and length of exhortations to be given, and the order in which all this is to be done are not specified. The kind of songs and the spirit in which they must be sung (Eph. 5: 19; Col. 3: 16), the spirit in which prayers must be offered (1 Cor. 14: 15), the manner in which the Lord's Supper must be eaten (1 Cor. 11: 28-34), the purpose of the exhortations and the cheerfulness in which contributions must be made (2 Cor. 9: 7) are particularly specified.

While these things must be done, they are not the only things that may be done on the first day of the week, and this day is not the only day on which the Bible should be studied and taught to others. For example, Paul preached at Troas on the first day of the week, although the disciples met to break bread. When preaching is done at that time, it should be done for the edification of the church and instruction of all present.

I have taken pains to point out the service to be rendered on the first day of the week, that no one may make rules, or a ritual, where God makes none. Conditions or circumstances may determine the number of songs, prayers, passages to be read, and exhortations. No one must undertake to fasten his opinion or way or order of doing these things upon the church. That which in doing these things is best for all is the thing to be done, while each one counts others better than himself and does nothing through faction and vainglory—in a factious spirit and way or to carry one point. (Phil. 2: 1-11.)

In the use of the Quarterly only as a help to a better understanding of the lesson under consideration, it matters not, so far as right and wrong are concerned, whether the whole chapter or only the verses of the lesson are read. Jesus at times read only a short portion of scripture or few verses. (See Luke 4: 16-21.) Neither does it matter whether the lesson in the Quarterly be read first or some other portion of scripture, or any at all just at that time. The lesson of the Quarterly may be used profitably at the time the church meets to worship God. Or, meeting at a certain hour to partake of the Lord's Supper and to otherwise worship God "as it is written" in the New Testament, the church may meet at any other hour to further study the Bible and to teach it to others. This teaching may be done through preaching, teaching in classes, asking and answering questions, etc. The Quarterly, as a geography, dictionary, history, commentary, sermon, etc., may be used as a help, or it may not be used. It is only one way we have of teaching the word of God.

In Volume I, "Christian Treasures," edited by A. B. Lipscomb, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn., under the heading, "International Lesson Helps," this subject is treated at length.

In reply to the question asked and as applicable to the given case, I can make a suggestion only. Before making the suggestion, however, I must say that the Bible binds us to peace and harmony; there must be no contentions over ways and times of reading the scriptures and teaching them to others, since God has appointed no one way and time. That way should be pursued which will result in the greatest good. I would suggest, then, that, first of all, the lesson be studied at home during the week, the lesson connections read, and all references looked out; all take their Bibles to the meeting; some appropriate songs be sung; one read publicly the lesson and all in the chapter pertaining to it or the lesson connection, all looking on their Bibles; all pray, thanking God for his goodness and mercy and asking his guidance through the service and in making a proper application of the lesson. Or pray first, or read first; the order of doing these things does not matter. If there is no other teaching, it is well to continue this service up to the Supper; then let some one make some appropriate remarks in regard to it, impressing its purpose and blessings. Contribute, sing, and be dismissed. Or if the contribution is made before the Supper, it matters not.

The Quarterlies are only helps, as is a sermon or an article in this paper, to a better understanding and practice of the word of God.

Other questions will be answered so soon as they can be reached. Hence our querists are requested not to be discouraged. We are pleased to attempt to answer all reasonable questions.

Send for a copy of our new song book, "Praise Him." It is a splendid book.

Since our last report we have the pleasure of saying that we have received the following amounts: W. T. Boaz, Columbia, Tenn., $2; Mrs. Bettie C. Alexander, Hartsville, Tenn., $5; Mrs. M. M. Roberts, Guthrie, Ky., $10; A. E. Perry, Melbourne, Fla., $25; Jesse Barfield (by David Lipscomb, Jr.), $1; "A Sister," $1; T. C. Franklin, Hartsville, Tenn., $5; Mary E. Glenn, Sharon Grove, Ky., $1; J. A. Wilson, Sharon, Tenn., $10; Mrs. S. J. Merritt, Pulaski, Tenn., $10; Bertie Hynds, Dresden, Tenn., 50 cents; L. A. Winstead, Dresden, Tenn., $2; James T. Anderson & Sons, Hurricane Mills, Tenn., $50; Mrs. D. F. Barry, Gallatin, Tenn., $5. In addition to this, the following subscriptions have been promised: G. N. Tillman, $100; D. B. McCannless, $5.

The school and trustees are grateful for these donations and promises. They help to increase the sum given and to decrease the debt owed.

We are sincerely hoping to receive other gifts and promises until the debt has been canceled and the school has a much larger endowment fund.

Reader, if you cannot give at once all you wish to, specify the amount you can give later on, and the time when you can give it, and return the card as directed.

Our friends and neighbors give largely to certain institutions. Should we not give all that this school and good work needs?

To know the needs of this school should be enough to secure the money called for; and we have the confidence in the many generous people in the land that it will be given.

We are anxious to open the fall term out of debt and with the ability to care for more orphan girls.

Look!

DO YOU inquire at what? The answer is clear: At the reading to which the hand is pointing. Why? Because it is important to you as well as to us.

1. We want you to know that we appreciate the many good things that we are hearing concerning the Gospel Advocate and the success that is crowning the efforts of many of our friends in increasing the circulation of this journal.

2. We want you to look at the date on the little yellow slip on your paper. That date shows the time of your paid-up subscription. If it is not correct, we wish to make it correct, and ask you to call our attention to the error. Our clerks are only people and liable to make a few mistakes. I make some myself. Don't you? If the date is January 1, 1916, you owe for the paper from that date, and should send us $1.50 to pay your subscription up to January 1, 1917. Now, when you note that your subscription is due and unpaid, it would be appreciated if you would mail us check at once, and not wait for us to mail you statement. You can figure what you owe at the rate of $1.50 a year as well as we. After you have sent your remittance, wait about two weeks for the change of date on your paper. If it is not changed, and changed correctly, you should notify us in order that the error may be detected and corrected. We will appreciate such action on your part.

3. We want you to know that while the blank paper on which we print is costing double what it did, while the ink has doubled in cost, and while there is prospect of still other advances, we have definitely decided not to advance the price of the Gospel Advocate to $2 a year before January 1, 1917. We do not want to advance then, if we can help it. We cannot do the impossible, however. No religious weekly makes money. The editors of the Advocate are now doing their work as "a labor of love." As yet I have been able to see no way to ward off the advance in the price of the paper to $2 a year without a reduction of the number of pages.

This we do not want to do, as we are scarcely able now to meet the demands that are made on our pages.

You may help us by promptly remitting all dues and by renewing for one year in advance. If your paper is six, eight, or twelve months in arrears, pay up and renew for another year. You will enable us to economize if you act promptly and do not wait for us to send statement. It is considerable expense to send out thousands of statements.

Are you interested in the work the paper is doing? Believing you are, we most earnestly solicit your prompt and most hearty cooperation.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

"Prof. Eph P. Smith, superintendent of the Martin (Tenn.) City Schools, writes: "'Christian Treasures,' Volume I, came to me several days ago, and I have just finished reading it. Most sincerely do I thank you. The book is all that its name indicates. It is worthy a place in every Christian's library. Put me on your list for Volume II."

Charlie Taylor, evangelist, Hickory, Ky., says: "'Christian Treasures' is now in my library, and I consider it quite an addition to the same. To get Volume I is to order Volume II. Volume I is filled with the golden truths of God's word, which are, indeed and in truth, food to the soul that is hungering and thirsting after righteousness. It covers questions that deals with our welfare here and hereafter. Fathers and mothers should order each volume of these treasures as they come from the press and place them in the hands of their children instead of the ten-cent novels, and thus be bringing them up 'in the nurture and admonition of the Lord.'"

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

Lopsided Progressiveness.

A community with a twenty-five-thousand-dollar school-house and a five-hundred-dollar church needs to put on its thinking cap. A progressive stock farmer who pays five hundred dollars for a blooded hog, three thousand dollars for a blooded bull, and then attends a church which pays a preacher one hundred and fifty dollars a year needs a gun-cotton explosion in the neighborhood of his conscience. If in addition to this church disparity he takes no church paper, gets no good magazines, and buys no wholesome books for his boys and girls, he is in a fair way to sacrifice his boys and girls on the altar of allegiance to hogs and cattle. A little serious meditation here might save some fathers from such immolation—from such a lopsided progressiveness.—Midland Methodist.

It is very remarkable that some disciples can find money for almost anything but for religious purposes. They buy all the tobacco they want; they gratify all their appetites and desires pertaining to the flesh; they spend hundreds, and some thousands, of dollars annually on needless extravagances; and yet they do not spend ten dollars a year for religious work. It is time some people were waking up.

Church Members Should Be Consistent.

The General Synod of the Reformed Presbyterian Church, in session in Cedarville last week, passed a resolution providing that any member of the church who sells or rents a building to be used for the sale of liquor will not be permitted to participate in the communion service of the church. This action is all in the right direction. There are too many persons who are participating indirectly, and yet very directly, with the liquor traffic. Every such person is an incumbrance to the church of Christ and should not be permitted to be a representative of the church until he has put the evil out of his life.—Herald and Presbyterian.

Members of the church should not only profess, but also practice, Christianity. Disciples who aid and abet the works of evil should not be recognized as Christians. Christ says: "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth." (Matt. 12: 30.) "Ye cannot serve God and mammon." (Matt. 6: 24.) Men who love money more than they do the cause of the Lord Jesus Christ cannot be his disciples. Such should have no fellowship with the church. The Lord tells us what should be done with such. "Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which they received of us." (2 Thess. 3: 6.) The Bible draws a clear line between the church and the world. The church is in the world, but must not be of the world.

The Right Sentiment.

Reports that the Hon. William Jennings Bryan was to get one hundred dollars for speaking at the Sabbath Observance meeting drew from James Yereance, chairman of the Sabbath Committee, a statement that he "got nothing and paid his own expenses." Mr. Bryan said it was mortifying that such reports needed to be denied. In his address he rested the duty of Sabbath observance solely on the fact that God commands it. He was glad there were social and scientific arguments for it, but the sufficient argument is the divine command. "If the Bible commands a thing, we must either obey it or reject the Bible."—Herald and Presbyterian.

The position that "if the Bible commands a thing, we must either obey it or reject the Bible," is eminently proper. There is no room for quibbling when God commands a thing to be done. When God commanded Philip to "go toward the south unto the way that goeth down from Jerusalem unto Gaza," he arose and went. He did not inquire why. He did not decline to go on the ground that he was doing a great work in the city of Samaria. He did not offer as a reason for protesting against going: "I am baptizing both men and women." When God said go, he went. Even so it should be with us. When the command is go preach the gospel, we should go. When God admonishes us to give cheerfully as we have been prospered, we should give. When God speaks definitely, to cavil is downright presumption. The Honored William Jennings Bryan would do well to seriously inquire, Where in the Bible does the Lord enjoin Sabbath observance upon the Gentile world? It is true that the first day of the week should be observed, but for an entirely different purpose than that for which the Jewish Sabbath was kept.

Ministers and Their Work.

Some ministers, instead of magnifying their office, belittle it in a good many ways. One of these ways is by not preaching, or by calling their sermons talks, so that they come to be considered not as preachers of sermons, but as talkers. This may suit some men, or some people, but it is fatal to the best and highest style of ministerial success.

Any minister who does not exert himself intellectually, physically, spiritually, socially, oratorically, or every other possible way, to the last ounce of his endowments, on whatever field he may be placed, is making a mistake that may be fatal to the souls of some, and that may be fatal to any sort of prospects for himself. The difference in ministers, and in men generally, is not so much in what they are as in the way they exert themselves. Some men take things so easy, lying down on the job, that they make a failure wherever they go, and then blame every one else but themselves. A synodical evangelist once said: "Many of our fields are dying because we have men on them who pass as men, but who are misfits. And yet we are swamped with requests for work from ministers." No man's very best is any too good, in any place, for the Lord.—Herald and Presbyterian.

Every one should do his best. The Christian minister is not required to be faithful any more than every other Christian. It cannot be successfully denied that the cause of Christ suffers much in the house of its friends. Lack of interest and negligence on the part of disciples is a great hindrance to the advance of the church of Christ.

Whenever a minister of the gospel displays a lack of faith in Christ, he thereby crucifies Christ anew. If he declines to preach Christ, and him crucified, because his salary is not guaranteed, he by such action is damaging the cause of Christ. On the other hand, the church that does not support its faithful ministers is doing an injustice to its preachers and is destroying the cause it professes to love. "Even so did the Lord ordain that they that proclaim the gospel should live of the gospel." (1 Cor. 9: 14.) "By their fruits ye shall know them." (Matt. 7: 16.) The necessity for integrity, earnestness, and devotion to the cause of Christ, perhaps, was never greater than now. Christians should pray to be delivered from unreasonable and ungodly men. With wars and rumors of wars, with our own country threatened with war in Mexico, Christians should watch and pray lest they be ensnared by the wiles of the devil. With less than a third of our population members of any church, this nation cannot be correctly called a "Christian nation." With many of our own people restless and discontented and some calling for war, Christians should especially labor to be "as wise as serpents and as harmless as doves." Many of our young men are heady and thoughtless and ready to rush into war. If we can do no more for a Mexican than to shoot him, it is sad. May the Lord show us some way to lead them to a higher state of civilization without destroying so many of them. We would do well to pray the Lord to show our President a better way out of the difficulty. Whatever others may do, Christians should be patient, forbearing, long-suffering.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Compiled by A. B. Lipscomb

Uncle David Lipscomb is very feeble, but we are glad to report a slight improvement.

T. Q. Martin is in a meeting at Cookeville, Tenn. The brethren there have done some fine preparatory work for the meeting.

H. H. Montgomery reports additional contributions for the building fund at Shreveport, La.: J. W. Akin, $20; Mrs. Birdie Terry, $10.

Brother Sewell was able to preach in his old-time form at Russell Street last Sunday. We received into our membership a young sister from Dresden, Tenn., and baptized her husband.

Thomas H. Burton, of Hartsville, Tenn., sends us an interesting report of the Clark-Massey debate, which took place at Red Boiling Springs, Tenn., on June 5-10. This report will appear soon.

From Thomas C. King, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., June 20: "I am just home from Appleton, where I preached on Saturday night and Sunday. Four from the Baptists promised to be Christians only. The church seems to be doing well."

From J. S. Dunn, Dallas, Texas, June 19: "The meeting with the Oak Cliff church of Christ began on June 4 and closed on June 16. We had eighteen baptisms and twelve to take membership. J. W. Dunn, of El Paso, did the preaching, and it was well done."

J. W. Dunn was painfully hurt in a wreck on the Texas and Pacific Railway on June 17. He is being tenderly cared for in the home of Dr. E. V. Wood and is being attended by Dr. C. M. Yater. He expects to resume his work in a few weeks. Let us pray for his recovery.

From T. W. Phillips, Fort Worth, Texas, June 22: "I have just closed my first meeting since my accident. The meeting was at Frankston. I baptized six and reclaimed five. I go next to Alvord for a three-Sundays' meeting. I can now walk on just one walking cane, and feel well, and I am happy."

Brother Phillips' report brings to mind the old adage, "You can't keep a good man down."

From D. L. Halle, Atlanta, Texas, June 24: "My crop has been destroyed by a hailstorm. I am discouraged, but hope I am not forsaken. I shall continue to preach the gospel and trust in God for a support for my family. Pray for us."

Let the friends of Brother Halle pepper him with a hailstorm of encouraging messages and contributions. Then he can sing with better zest: "All hail, the power of Jesus' name!"

From Bynum Black, Blanco, Okla., June 20: "Since my return from my discussion with the Mormons at Duncan, Ariz., and North Oklahoma meetings, I have been teaching my boys how to farm. At this date I am in a meeting at Blanco, with prospects of a soul harvest. From Blanco I go to Alfalfa, in the western part of Oklahoma, for a meeting. Then to Center Ridge, Ark.; then to Saratoga, Gridley, Newark, and other points in Arkansas."

Brother Black has the right idea about teaching his boys. How much better than to be engaged in "teaching the young idea how to shoot!"

From H. B. Sykes, Goodlettsville, Tenn., June 20: "D. M. Hamilton, of South Tunnel, Tenn., preached at Ivy Point last Saturday night, and on Lord's day preached two sermons to unusually large and attentive audiences. All present paid the strictest attention and seemed to be deeply

Our Progress is Encouraging.

We are greatly encouraged by the way many of our friends are rallying to the support of this journal. The receipts on the paper are much more than at this time last year, and the outlook is in every way very bright. Many are paying their back subscriptions and renewing for another year. Many new subscribers are being entered on our list. We are also adding many names on our three-months' trial offer. This offer will be discontinued on July 1, 1916. If you have friends that you wish to try the paper, it will be necessary for you to act quickly. We would be glad to enter many more names on this offer. By the help of the Lord we are determined to make very decided progress with the Gospel Advocate, and very earnestly solicit your most hearty cooperation. Surely every friend will cheerfully send a list of new subscribers. We appreciate the effort of our friends and workers. Let us demonstrate to the world that we are deeply interested in the advancement of every good work. There is no good reason for allowing our religious interests to wane. Soldiers of the cross should never falter.

interested. He baptized one person into Christ. Ivy Point is at present a small congregation, but we predict that in the near future we will be abreast with most of our near-by congregations, as we have live and go-ahead members who are very courageous, and, with the help of our Lord, Satan cannot keep us from growing in the good cause."

The church at Mount Pleasant, Tenn., is enthusiastic over the prospect for a good meeting. Brother Larimore will begin with them next Sunday and will continue at least three weeks. All the congregations near enough are invited to attend. H. W. Wrye, the wide-awake evangelist at Mount Pleasant, writes that "the members are actively engaged in visiting and generally mixing with the people, talking up the meeting, praying for its success, distributing tracts and cards, pleading with the ungodly to surrender. Sermons preparatory to the campaign have been preached since the first of June." We congratulate Brother Wrye on the spirit of this report. It has the right ring for the King's business.

Brethren John Puckett and A. C. Huff never had a fuss. On the other hand, they are united in thought and purpose, as the following statement, signed by both, indicates: "On June 8, while Brother Huff and myself were engaged in a meeting at Isidore, and Brother Huff was preparing to go to Forrest to begin, he received an urgent call to go to a schoolhouse near Montoya and preach some, as the Holiness had been holding forth there for some time, and they wanted the truth taught to the people there. We then decided that it would be best for me to go to Forrest, while Brother Huff would go to this place. I had already received an urgent call to a point near Sapulpa, Okla., and, considering the great need of laborers, we decided that it would be best for us to separate and one of us take O. A. Huff to do the singing and the other try to get some one else to lead the song service. For this reason some tattler has become busy circulating the falsehood that we had disagreed, and had disagreed so badly that we would not work together any more. We, therefore, wish to make it known through the papers that we have in no way disagreed, but the best of feeling prevails between us, and we would be glad to work together if we could do the work that is needed to be done by remaining together; but this we cannot do. And be it known to all that we have not disagreed, but, on the other hand, we will be glad to be together whenever it is possible."

Certainly. And why should this tattler be manufacturing a contention when we have a plenty on hand?

PAINS IN SIDE AND BACK

How Mrs. Kelly Suffered and How She was Cured.

Burlington, Wis.—“I was very irregular, and had pains in my side and back, but after taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Tablets and using two bottles of the Sanative Wash I am fully convinced that I am entirely cured of these troubles, and feel better all over. I know your remedies have done me worlds of good and I hope every suffering woman will give them a trial.”—Mrs. ANNA KELLY, 710 Chestnut Street, Burlington, Wis.

The many convincing testimonials constantly published in the newspapers ought to be proof enough to women who suffer from those distressing ills peculiar to their sex that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the medicine they need.

This good old root and herb remedy has proved unequalled for these dreadful ills; it contains what is needed to restore woman's health and strength.

If there is any peculiarity in your case requiring special advice, write the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass., for free advice.

Heed the Warning If You Have a Cough!

The deep-seated cough that does not yield to ordinary treatment may lead to distressing pulmonary troubles. Or it may bring on a chronic bronchial affection. Many persons now incapacitated might have avoided such disastrous results by timely care and efficient medical treatment.

Among the latter Eckman's Alterative has an enviable record. It is a lime-bearing preparation which is easily assimilated in most instances. Where used in connection with nourishing food and proper living, it has given widespread relief.

Its freedom from poisonous or habit-forming drugs of any nature whatsoever renders it safe to try. And its content of calcium gives it tonic value. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

The Tennessee Orphans' Home.

BY W. T. BOAZ.

To the Brethren Everywhere: On the first day of June I mailed ten thousand circular letters to brethren over the country. My object in spending this amount of money was to free the Tennessee Orphans' Home from debt, and in response to those letters I have received some nice donations. In fact, I consider all donations nice ones, because I take it for granted that those who contribute do so according to their means. In the circular letter I inclosed a check, with the statement that the check could be dated to suit the donor, payable any time between now and October, as our board meeting and annual reunion will be then, and we are hoping that when that time arrives we will have sufficient funds to free the Tennessee Orphans' Home from all incumbrances. Doubtless many of the readers of this notice did not receive said circular and check, due to the fact that your name is not on my mailing list. If so, I hope that you will allow this to be a notice to you and a gentle reminder of the fact that the Tennessee Orphans' Home is overly anxious to be free from debt.

We have had an offer of four thousand dollars on fifty-two acres of our land. We refused to sell, because we believed we could pay out of debt without selling one foot of land we now own. But unless sufficient funds are raised to meet all obligations, we are going to be forced to sell this fifty-two acres. What is your verdict? Will you give it in the next mail, writing check payable any time between now and October 1?

A good sister in the State of New York received one of these letters, and I herewith give an extract from a letter received from her:

I am here in a city without a loyal church, and I am trying to get one started. Religiously, I am alone. I am hoping now that it will not be long before I can arrange to have a meeting. I have never before realized so forcibly the need of an institution like the one you have. This is a Catholic city to a great extent. There are about seventy-five thousand here, and my observations from my visits to the County Hospital, in which those who are unable to have care and attention in other hospitals are cared for, is that there is hardly a week that an illegitimate child is not born there, and almost without exception, whether Protestant, Jew, or Catholic, the Catholics get them all, and this is the source of a great deal of their strength; not that they are making converts of grown people, for they are losing in this respect. And what is being done in Rochester is being done in every city. I have often thought that if the church of Christ were as diligent as these people in this respect alone, what a wonderful growth it would have! Their zeal in what they stand for puts us to shame. And I have felt the same way when I listened to a Salvation Army leader speak a few weeks ago. He said this great association is built upon the failure of the churches; that there is no niche in the churches of today for the classes of people that they take care of; and I felt that we had to take that statement without resenting it, for it is true. There has never been a time when States and cities did as much for the uplift of humanity as they are doing now, and my work here has brought me in contact with the leading reformatory institutions and social-welfare centers in New York State, and to a great extent they are all failures for the reason that religion is left out of them all. I was talking with a woman who had spent a year in one of these institutions as a teacher, and she said the sad part of it all is that they are not reformed. They are made to be good while confined, but the majority go out without the desire to live a better life, and it is because Jesus is left out of their training.

This good lady incloses her check to assist in the work, the saving of homeless children, by enabling us to pay the debt against the Home.

I am going to insist that you read carefully the extract from her letter and place your estimate upon the religion of Jesus Christ, the teachings of that religion, and answer the question: "What does it cost to be a Christian? Can I live a Christian, perform the Christian duties, meet my obligations to the world in which I live, without making the slightest effort to part with some of this world's goods that God has made me steward over, to make the world in which I live a better world, and to help my fellow-man to be a better man and a better Christian?" I have confidence in you and believe that you will respond to our appeal, and that we can soon have sufficient funds to enable us to reach the goal by next October.

Remember that you can make your check payable any time between now and October, and may God bless you in the doing of your duty.

In many instances—Persons have suffered untold agony for years doctoring for nervous weakness, stomach, liver or kidney disease or some other ailment when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood.—How to tell.

New York, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a well known Specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, said: If you were to make an actual blood test of all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. The food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In some cases it is worse than foolish to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your flagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron, for example is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all Druggists.

FROM THE FIELD

Montgomery, June 19.—We had a good service yesterday, with one confession. I have some work in Tennessee during the summer, and hope to be in Nashville quite soon.
C. E. HOLT.

Bridgeport, June 21.—I closed a two-weeks' meeting at the Merrimac church of Christ, at Huntsville, last Lord's-day evening. Eleven souls obeyed the gospel during this meeting. I go to Gonce next Lord's day. Pray for us.
WILLIS JERNIGAN.

New Decatur, June 20.—Brother T. Q. Martin closed a good meeting with the Jackson Street church of Christ, New Decatur, on June 11. In spite of Brother Martin's illness and sadness, he preached some strong and helpful sermons and greatly endeared himself to all. Nine were baptized, five came from the Christian Church, and ten took membership, for all of which we greatly rejoice and press on. It was a genuine pleasure to have Brother Martin in our home, for we love him dearly, having been his pupils in Potter Bible College. Brother Martin greatly needs a rest. He ought to go to some mineral springs for a few weeks. May the Lord supply his every need.
J. PETER EZZEL.

Montgomery, June 23.—Our meeting at Luverne closed on Tuesday evening, having continued ten days, with two services each weekday and three on Lord's days. The meeting was much hindered by rain, indifference, and the Mexican situation. The membership at this place is not as active as it should be. There is also a lack of leadership, but this could be easily overcome, for there is in the congregation material that is fully qualified. I stressed this largely in the preaching. Two persons confessed Christ and were baptized and two others were added by fellowship. We trust that good results will follow our efforts. On the first Sunday in July we begin a meeting at Canoe, a small town on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad, between Montgomery and Mobile, in one of the best fruit and vegetable sections of Alabama.
CHARLES L. TALLEY.

Arkansas.

Rogers, June 20.—This leaves me at Rogers, singing for Brother A. G. Freed, of Henderson, Tenn. The meeting starts off well, with good interest. Brother Freed is a power, one of the most lovable characters I have ever been associated with. The meeting will continue over the first Lord's day in July. Remember us in your prayers.
W. W. SLATER.

Mangrum, June 20.—I had the pleasure of moderating for Brother W. Curtis Porter in his debate with D. N. Jackson, Missionary Baptist. The debate began on June 12 and closed on June 18. It was held at Hancock, near Monette. Four specific

R. K. MORGAN,
Principal Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tennessee.

Your Boy is Your All. If He is Lost, All is Lost.

Who are your boy's associates? The character of a boy's associates is a most powerful factor for good or evil in the shaping of his life. Your boy's greatest danger is local associates. They teach more than you. If they are bad, what is the remedy? Mr. Robert K. Morgan, of Fayetteville, Tenn., has given this question profound study during the twenty-five years in which he has built up the Morgan School—a training school for boys, of which he is principal. Mr. Morgan has devoted a long career to the training of boys. He knows boy nature. The close, personal associations which he has fostered between his boy students and himself, his carefully chosen faculty, his careful attention to the boy's work, his thoughts, his talents, and his special needs, are some of the features which have given his school its high standing. Mr. Morgan is a man of inspiring, wholesome personality, and deep Christian character. He has built his school to give the boy thorough mental, physical, and spiritual preparation for an honorable, manly life. He is a proper man to train your boy. A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, secretary Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., will bring a catalogue and full information of this school.

propositions were discussed—the establishment of the church, the design of baptism, the work of the Spirit in conversion, and the possibility of apostasy. Mr. Jackson had much to say about "Campbellism." However, he is an average Baptist debater and made the usual Baptist arguments. While Brother Porter is just a boy, only nineteen years old, I must say that I never saw a more complete victory for the truth than in this debate. Brother Porter is simply fine in clearing away the rubbish that his opponent throws over an argument and in meeting their quibbles and sophistry. He is modest and unassuming and conducted himself throughout the debate in a manner that won the respect of all the good people who were present. I am sure much good will result from the debate. Brother Porter has written a splendid little booklet on the possibility of apostasy which he sells at ten cents a copy. Orders should be sent to him at Mangrum, Ark. You will get your money's worth ten times over, and also assist a bright and worthy boy who is aspiring to further prepare himself that he may become more useful in the Master's work. T. A. PHILLIPS.

Olathe, June 20.—I have just returned home from Loveland (sixty miles north of Denver and near five hundred miles from Olathe), where I engaged the Russellites in a four-days' debate in the Majestic Theater. Loveland is where I held the meeting last fall, when the "trouble" between the Russellites and myself started, which culminated in this debate. I met Fred W. Werner, of Denver. The state of the dead, the duration of future punishment, the question of probation after death, and the nature of baptism—four propositions—were the points discussed. It was a grand victory for the gospel of Christ, as the position of the Russellites was so flimsy that it exposed itself in every instance. The demonstrations by the audience the last night clearly showed the effect the debate had upon the people of Loveland. They could not be restrained from thus expressing themselves. Russell's man did not sustain a single position during the debate. He seemed to think that a bare assertion of his was all that was needed to establish his position. He was so used to doing this in his preaching that he came to the debate feeling that this was all he would have to do; and when he found he would have to prove whatever he offered, he was knocked entirely off his balance and showed that he was not used to proving things. I challenged him for a repetition of the Loveland debate in Denver. The effects of this debate will long be felt there, and I predict that the Russellites will never recover their territory at Loveland lost by this debate. I am now preaching in Olathe under the new tent. I am expecting a splendid meeting, though it is a very busy season here, and whooping cough is in the community. E. C. FUGUA.

Elders and Bishops.

BY J. PERRY HODGE.

Disciples of Christ should ever be learners of the word; and when it becomes evident that error has been practiced and is being practiced, when the truth comes to light, all true and loyal disciples of Christ should be willing to abandon the erroneous practice and take upon themselves the practice of the truth in the matter.

The natural and common-sense view of who are the proper ones to take the oversight of the church at any particular place is that the older ones should do so. They should do this because that is the law of the Holy Spirit in the matter. (Acts 20: 28.) They should not wait for an appointment before entering upon the duties of feeding the flock of God, but this they should do willingly and without constraint. (1 Pet. 5: 1-3.)

This right, this privilege, and this duty falls upon them by reason of their age, maturer judgment, experience, and the respect due to age. And any aged person who is a Christian falls within the class known as "elders" of the church. The younger should submit to the elders. The Greek word "presbuteros" from which the word "elders" at Acts 14: 23; 15: 2, 4, 6, 22, 23; 16: 4; 20: 17; 21: 18; 1 Tim. 5: 1, 17, 19; Tit. 1: 5; James 5: 14; 1 Pet. 5: 1, and many other places, is translated, means an aged person. We must have respect for the meaning of words; and if "presbuteros" in the Greek means an aged person, and meant that at the time it was spoken by the apostles, we must accept that whether it suits our own ideas or not. It is not difficult to understand what is meant by an aged person; but when, by the practice of some young men, or at least not aged men, are appointed to what is called the "eldership," and the not-aged man forthwith becomes the elder, the aged man, if you please, it becomes very hard to reconcile this practice to the teachings of the word of God, the thing, and the only thing, that should govern disciples of Christ in this or any other matter.

An aged person is an aged person whether he is ever appointed to be an elder of the church in an official sense or not. In fact, as I understand the matter, men are not properly now, nor were they ever, ordained to be elders; but elders, possessing certain specific qualifications, were ordained to be bishops. (1 Tim. 3: 2-7; Tit. 1: 6-9.) It is not an office to be an elder or aged person, but to be a bishop is to have an office.

The natural overseers in the church are the elders or aged persons therein, and they are overseers because the Holy Spirit hath made them so (Acts 20: 28; 1 Pet. 5: 1-3); and when one of these elders or aged persons acquires the necessary qualifications for the office of a bishop (1 Tim. 3: 2-7; Tit. 1: 6-9) and he is appointed to that office, he becomes a bishop, which is from an entirely different Greek word, which means, in addition to being an overseer in common with the other elders, that he has now become a superintendent over the work which the elders, who are still overseers, lay out for the church to accomplish.

The bishop also is still an elder. He was taken and placed as a superintendent or bishop over the work of the church because of his qualifications for that office. He is the elder that rules well and is worthy of double honor. He is not over the eldership, but is still a part of it. May God help all disciples everywhere to get right on this eldership question and let this lording-it-over-God's-heritage idea of elderships cease from among the faithful. I would like to hear from every brother or sister who reads this with any criticism, friendly or otherwise, he or she may have to offer. My address is 2905 Tampa Street, Tampa, Fla.

Born to Succeed.

Among the skaters was a boy so small and so evidently a beginner that his frequent mishaps awakened the pity of a tender-hearted, if not wise, spectator. "Why, sonny, you are getting all bumped up," she said. "I wouldn't stay on the ice and keep falling down so. I'd just come off and watch the others."

The tears of the last downfall were still rolling over the rosy cheeks, but the child looked from his adviser to the shining steel on his feet and answered: "I didn't get some new skates to give up with; I got 'em to learn how with."—The Presbyterian.

Why Take Risks?

Many cases of gangrene and blood poison result from the neglect of small sores, cuts, bruises, skin abrasions, etc. Numerous deaths occur from blood poison due to infection of slight wounds. The Need in San Francisco, Cal.

I preached to the disciples in San Francisco on the first Sunday in May. There are only a few faithful ones there, who meet in a rented hall at 149 Eddy Street. They were very much encouraged by the sermon, "The Cry for Help." Ten years ago San Francisco was destroyed by an earthquake, and the cry, "Come over and help us," was heard and responded to throughout the United States. To-day San Francisco looks like a new city. The sympathy given and material help caused a new and a more beautiful city to be created on the ruins of the old. What the city was ten years ago, the cause of Christ is to-day in San Francisco; but ten years from now we can, by responding in our expressions of sympathy and material help, rebuild the walls of spiritual Zion. When Nehemiah of old viewed the ruins of ancient Jerusalem and purposed to rebuild the walls, his fellow-Jews responded as one man and said: "Let us rise up and build." They made their prayer to God and set a watch. Regardless of the opposition, they succeeded; and we can do the same. San Francisco is the gateway to the Old World and the New World. Almost all the nations of earth are represented within her gates. Here is one of the best opportunities of this century and this generation to do home and foreign missionary work. I passed through Chinatown in its slums with official guide, and I beheld the Idols Temple and her priest and heard explained their form of worship. Stop and reflect one moment. Heathenism in foreign countries is sad and bad enough in this enlightened age, but heathenism is being taught and practiced in one of our great cities, and larger numbers rally around the heathen god (Joss) than around the cross of Calvary. The church of Christ has no house of worship. With all the vast wealth laid up among the disciples of Christ, why should not they out of their abundance supply the lack of the few at San Francisco? Help them purchase a lot and build a house and support the work until the work can be self-sustaining. I have responded to the cry, "Come over and help us." I will assist the few in 1916, last of the season, to get together all we can in the city. The churches should now begin to set apart one Lord's-day contribution in each month for San Francisco. "To-day is the day of salvation." Let us work "while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work." I heard the little Chinese girl about twelve sing in the slums of Chinatown, and I heard a polished Chinese girl of twenty-one talk in the university. We can reach both classes by the proper service and sacrifice. Will you hear the cry for the bread of life, or will you is closely connected with your nerves—so close, in fact, that anything which affects your nerves must necessarily affect your heart, and vice versa.

If you are troubled with palpitation, dizziness, shortness of breath, swelling of ankles, pain on either side of the chest, or weak and irregular pulse, symptoms of a nervous breakdown, the best way to remedy the trouble is by giving your heart and nerves the proper tonic. Renovine for the heart and nerves is the best tonic for soothing and restoring a shattered nervous system. For sale by all reliable dealers, fifty cents and one dollar. Our Baby—Minnie Frances McCrary.

BY ANNIE CORA BRASHEAR.

Thou art fast asleep, my baby,
 Thy head on my circling arm,
 While I feast my eyes on thy beauty,
 Note each budding baby charm.
 Low drops the silk-fringed curtain
 O'er thy beautiful blue-gray eyes,
 And earthly views have faded
 In visions of Paradise.
 The soft, sweet glow of the wild rose
 Blooms 'mid the snow of thy face,
 Casting the magic of color
 O'er thy features' chiseled grace.
 Thy lips are smiling, baby,
 O, what did the angels say?
 Would they woo thee back to the heaven
 From which thou hast strayed away?
 She is thine, O Lord, forever;
 For a little while she is ours.
 The sweetest bud which was ever plucked
 From thy garden of baby flowers.
 We will love and shield and train her
 For thy beauteous realms above.
 O Lord, thou knowest our little child is safe in her mother's love.

Work at Allen's Creek, Tenn.

I moved to this county the first of the year and have been working faithfully to build up the cause of our Lord. This is a destitute place. I am having very good interest among the denominations, but there have been no visible results as yet. We have Lord's-day services regularly at Ashland, on Buffalo River, where there are none to help except my own family. We need some help. If the brethren will help me in this work, I think we can do much good for the cause of Christianity. As to my worthiness, I refer to H. T. King, of Nashville, Tenn., and James E. Chesor, of the Nashville Bible School.

Stop Cheating Your Family.

You doubtless fully realize your duty to your family in making your home life attractive, entertaining, cultured, and refined; and you have promised yourself that some day you will fill that vacant spot in the parlor with a splendid piano or player-piano of the sweetest tone and highest quality, or that you will replace the old rattle-trap with a superb new instrument. But the days, the months, and possibly the years have silently crept by, and still there is no good music in your home. In the meantime, home is not what it might be, for a home without a high-grade piano or player-piano is seriously and hopelessly handicapped.

You have only one life to live here; why let procrastination steal your family's best opportunity for social, mental, and spiritual advancement? The Gospel Advocate Piano Club will solve the financial problem for you now. It was organized to overcome the very difficulties which confront you. By clubbing your order with those of ninety-nine other subscribers, you save forty per cent of the price and yet are responsible only for your own order. Convenient terms of pay-

MONEY IN PIGEONS

Make Your Back Yard Profitable

THE demand for squabs in the Northern, Eastern and Southern markets has never been supplied, because pigeon raising as a business is comparatively new. Buy a half dozen pair of select birds, fence in a small portion of your back yard and watch them go to work. Success is easy. They raise from eight to fifteen pairs of squabs a year. Your squabs and fancy birds will bring handsome returns. You will actually make money in a hitherto useless part of your back yard. Pigeon raising is not a fad or fancy. It is a profitable business. Let us start you right. Our breeders are the best, and raised from prize winning parents. We will furnish you with the birds and teach you how to raise them, and you will reap a handsome profit with a very little outlay. Thousands are taking advantage of this same opportunity. Write to-day for our literature on pigeon raising as a money making proposition, or better still, write us to send you a few pair of Belgian Carneaux at $3.00 per pair, White Swiss Mondaines at $5.00 per pair, White Kings at $8.50 per pair, or White Maltese at $1.00 per pair. Our birds are all guaranteed. Your money back if after two months you are not satisfied with their work. Better prices on larger orders. Write to-day and get the pick of the flock.

MACEDONIAN CORNER

We have received the following appeal from the colored disciples at Roberson Fork:

Cornersville, Tenn., Route 2, June 12, 1916.—Gospel Advocate, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Brethren: The colored people, members of the congregation of the church of Christ at Roberson Fork, had their meetinghouse blown down by a storm recently, and they are asking the good white brethren to help them rebuild. The cost of rebuilding will be about one hundred and fifty dollars; and, besides, they are already in debt about eighty dollars on the house which was destroyed. This eighty dollars will be due on December 25, 1916. This is a small congregation of colored people who will not be able to overcome their misfortune without aid.

Trice-Canada Debate.

BY J. A. CULLUM.

This debate was held in Memphis, Tenn., and lasted three nights, beginning on May 22 and closing on May 24. We had a good hearing throughout, and nothing of an unpleasant nature came up. Both speakers conducted themselves as debaters should, discussing the issue and not engaging in personalities. The first night Brother W. H. Trice affirmed that the signs mentioned in Mark 16: 17, 18 have ceased; A. G. Canada, of Winston-Salem, N. C., denied. On Tuesday night Elder Canada affirmed that such signs follow believers to-day, and on Wednesday night Brother Trice affirmed that baptism in water to a penitent believer is for the remission of sins. Mr. Canada had never denied the last proposition in debate before, and as a speech he arranged about twenty scriptures referring to faith; but Brother Trice so hedged his proposition in with his first speech that Canada only referred to a few of his "pet" texts, and it seemed that they were in his way. Mr. Canada is a nice man in debate and a fairly good speaker, but knows nothing of logic. The following gospel preachers were present: Brethren Denton, Wilson, R. H. Bunner, and Brother Lowery, from Mississippi. We feel sure that it will result in much good, as it was a great victory for the truth. Brother Trice did his work to the entire satisfaction of the brethren and many others.

The June Introduction Offer on "NEW SONGS OF PRAISE" is Liberal

The Problem Solved

In order that the real merit of "New Songs of Praise" may be as early and as widely known as possible, we have decided on a rather expensive method of advertising during the month of June. The song-book question is a most important one in connection with the coming protracted meeting. The churches want and should have plenty of books. The cost of a really good book in large quantities is no small item, and this added to other necessary expenses makes the purchase of a sufficient supply of books in many instances almost out of the question. Unfortunately, many settle the matter by buying one of the many cheap, inferior song books that are every year placed on the market.

Singers, we have solved the problem for you. We are offering to send you for introduction one hundred copies of "New Songs of Praise" for $16.50. The cheap and almost worthless books—books that cost little to make and contain very little that is classical in the realm of song—will cost you this much and even more. Every selection in "New Songs of Praise" is a high-class song. It is a book brimful of the very best songs for the churches. It is not to be classed with the ordinary cheap book that is being offered every summer from almost every town and village in the country. It is a great book, a book that will live, a book that cost many hundreds of dollars to produce and that singers everywhere have but to use to appreciate.

50 copies, $9, during June.

One edition of "New Songs of Praise" contains ten lessons in vocal music. This edition costs five cents a copy extra.

COMMENDATIONS

Where "New Songs of Praise" has been introduced, it is receiving the highest indorsements. The statements below are taken from several hundred already received. Note carefully the opinion expressed by these well-known brethren:

I have examined "New Songs of Praise" carefully, and I firmly believe that it is the best collection of gospel songs I have yet seen.
JEWELL MATTHEWS.

A copy of your 1916 song book reached me in due time. I have examined it carefully, and in my humble judgment, pronounce it the best book you have ever put out, and I predict for it a very large sale. W. W. SLATER.

I began a vocal school at Waggoner on Monday. In this school I used "New Songs of Praise" put out by the Firm Foundation Company, and tested its merits fully, and can say that it is the best song book I ever used. There are many songs in it that are well worth the price of the book. T. P. BURT.
Commerce, Texas, May 10, 1916.

The "New Songs of Praise" is the best song book we have found. The church at Bonham purchased one hundred copies. TOM WALKER.

It is doubtless the best book yet published by the Firm Foundation Company. I should like to see the churches use it extensively. It is scriptural and well adapted to all kinds of church work.

To the Churches

Few of the brethren, perhaps, realize how much effort has been put forth, how much time was required, and how much money has been spent in order to furnish the brotherhood with this valuable collection of hymns and songs. The editors have selected only such songs as should be used by Christians who speak where the Bible speaks and are silent where it is silent. Brethren Taylor and Showalter are well known in the brotherhood for their integrity and faithfulness. They have earnestly tried to produce a book that the brethren will appreciate because it is filled with sound gospel teaching and the sweetest melodies that have been composed by the great masters in musical composition. We hope the labors of these good brethren will be recognized and appreciated by the loyal churches. They have done a good work. If all other things were equal, if their book were simply as good as the book of some other publisher, it would be a matter of loyalty to truth for friends of primitive Christianity to order and use "New Songs of Praise." But we really think that from every right standpoint the book is the best song selection that has been issued in recent years. We should sell at least twenty-five thousand copies at once. We earnestly request the churches and brethren who teach vocal school to give this matter serious attention. You need these books, and we have thousands ready to ship at a moment's notice. Let the orders come by mail or telegram. They will receive prompt attention. The price is right. The hearty and prompt cooperation of the brotherhood in this good work is most earnestly desired and solicited.

A Genuine Rupture Cure Sent on Trial to Prove It

Don't Wear a Truss Any Longer

After Thirty Years' Experience I Have Produced An Appliance for Men, Women and Children That Actually Cures Rupture.

If you have tried most everything else, come to me. Where others fail is where I have my greatest success. Send attached coupon today and I will send you free my illustrated book on Rupture and its cure, showing my Appliance and giving you prices and names of many people who have tried it and were cured. It is instant relief when all others fail. Remember, I use no salves, no harness, no lies.

I send on trial to prove what I say is true. You are the judge and once having seen my illustrated book and read it you will be as enthusiastic as my hundreds of patients whose letters you can also read. Fill out free coupon below and mail today. It's well worth your time whether you try my Appliance or not.

Pennsylvania Man Thankful

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in. It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am,
Yours very sincerely,
JAMES A. BRITTON,
86 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

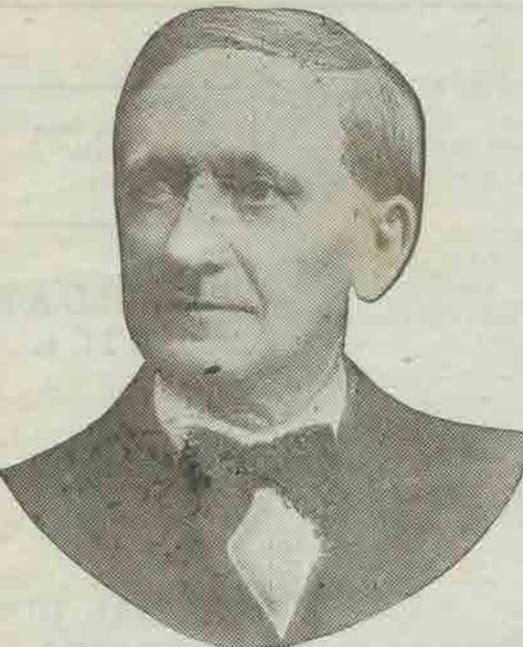

Confederate Veteran Cured

Commerce, Ga., R. F. D. No. 11.
Mr. C. E. Brooks,
Dear Sir:—I am glad to tell you that I am now sound and well and can plough or do any heavy work. I can say your Appliance has effected a permanent cure. Before getting your Appliance I was in a terrible condition and had given up all hope of ever being any better. If it hadn't been for your Appliance I would never have been cured. I am sixty-eight years old and served three years in Eckle's Artillery, Oglethorpe Co. I hope God will reward you for the good you are doing for suffering humanity.
Yours sincerely,
H. D. BANKS.

Others Failed but the

Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:—Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no

Cured at the Age of 76

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:—I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which, considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.
Very sincerely yours,
Jamestown, N. C., SAM A. HOOVER.

Child Cured in Four Months

21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa.
Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.
Gentlemen:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured, thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.
Yours very truly,
ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

"EDIFYING AS THE NEED MAY BE"

BY A. B. LIPSCOMB

Our Devotions.

It is to be feared that the devotional side of the average Christian's life is very limited, and I am not altogether sure but what some of the preachers are greatly responsible for the creation of a wrong impression on people's hearts as to what their devotions should consist of. Oftentimes you hear it announced from platform and pulpit that Brother So-and-So or "Doctor" So-and-So "will conduct the devotional part of the service." That usually means that the one whose name is mentioned will read from the Scriptures and will offer a prayer. But by what authority, let me ask with emphasis, do we circumscribe man's devotions to God? By what authority do we call one part of our service or of our lives devotional and leave the inference that the remainder is not devotional?

The beloved John in the first Epistle lays down the test of fellowship with Christ: "Hereby we know that we are in him; he that saith he abideth in him ought himself also to walk even as he walked." Let us apply this standard of daily conduct to the matter of our devotions. Suppose we take John at his word and resolve in our hearts to be as nearly like Jesus in our devotional work as we possibly can be. How would this plan work? In the first place, it would behoove us to study our Savior's ministry with a view of finding out how much of it was devotional and how much of it, if any, was not. Let us begin with his boyhood days. When Jesus was twelve years of age, he went with his parents, according to custom, from his quiet home at Nazareth to Jerusalem to the Passover feast. On the return trip his parents missed him; and, thinking that he had not been thoughtful of them, his mother said unto him: "Son, why hast thou dealt thus with us? behold, thy father and I sought thee sorrowing." Jesus said in reply: "How is it that ye sought me? knew ye not that I must be in my Father's house?" Thus we see that even as a boy the devotional part of his nature was very pronounced. You may put it down as a certainty that this quality did not diminish with the passing years, but became more and more prominent as Jesus moved among men. The whole life of the Savior was devotional. Isaac Errett, in his "Evenings with the Bible," truly says: "Not an act of his life, nor a word from his lips, partakes of a spirit of levity or of worldliness that would mar the solemnity of a scene of worship." You know how it is with some people when they laugh or let fall from their lips some remark that seems particularly out of place in the house of worship. "Wasn't that a terrible thing to say in church?" some one is heard to say. The very idea of a frivolous thought or deed in the house of prayer! It is proper and right that we show forth good behavior in the house of prayer, but it is just as proper that we be devotional at all other times if we would be like our Savior.

Jesus at His Devotions.

Everything that Jesus saw and heard had a religious application, became suggestive of the Father or some great truth concerning the kingdom of heaven. He saw the birds flying in the air—not an unusual sight; men shoot them with ruthless abandon; women wear them on their hats with never a thought of the sacrifice. But Jesus said of them: "They sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; and your Heavenly Father feedeth them." With the birds as his text, Jesus conducted a devotional service. He saw the lilies of the field—not hothouse plants, nor of the garden variety, but lilies of the field—the kind that fall below the mower in great profusion. And Jesus said: "Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin; yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these." Jesus could be devotional in the fields. He heard a hen clucking to her brood of newly hatched chicks, and her maternal instinct became to him a pious thought that later breaks out in tender yearning: "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, that killeth the prophets, and stoneth them that are sent unto her! how often would I have gathered thy children together, even as a hen gathereth her chickens under her wings, and ye would not!" Even the lowly hen could stir the deepest emotions of the Master's heart. Emerson said:

It is not only in the rose,
It is not only in the bird,
Not only when the rainbow glows,
Nor in the song of woman heard;
But in the darkest, meanest things
There alway, alway something sings.

The Keynote of Acceptable Worship.

When we come to consider his teaching, we find it in accord with his life—very devotional. When the woman of Samaria raised the question whether Jerusalem or Samaria was the place of worship, he said: "Believe me, the hour cometh, when neither in this mountain, nor in Jerusalem, shall ye worship the Father. . . . The hour cometh, and now is, when the true worshipers shall worship the Father in spirit and truth." The Jews worshiped in letter and in symbol; Christian worship was to be in spirit and in reality—a worship not dependent on time, place, or form, but the outpouring of a reverent and grateful heart. Worldly-wise policies have deceived a great many religious people. They look on the church as an institution or an enterprise to be "run" on business principles so as to make it "pay." They build gorgeous temples, and adorn them with all outside attractions, and furnish them with all possible luxuriousness, and add the artistic attractiveness of operatic music and the charms of the most popular pulpit oratory—all that they may be able to draw the crowd and rent the pews and make the thing a financial success. But what is the value of all these things if Christ is not there? How will it help a man to engage in worship that does not meet with his approval?

"Every Day and Sunday, Too."

But let us go back to Jesus' teaching and note how he encourages daily devotions. Take his appeal to parents: "What man is there of you, who, if his son shall ask him for a loaf, will give him a stone? or if he ask for a fish, will give him a serpent? If ye then, being evil, know how to give good gifts unto your children, how much more shall your Father who is in heaven give good things to them that ask him?" The thought Jesus would impress just here is: Your Father in heaven is a devoted Father, far more so than any of you have ever been or ever will be. Should you not, then, be devoted children? When we speak of a devoted child in the human sense, we do not think of one who is thoughtful for his parents once a week or on special occasions, but one who maintains a thoughtful attitude in every word and deed. What would you think of a child who was nice to his parents on Sunday, but who never mentioned their names or made a request of them any other day in the week? If we take John's advice and look to Jesus' life and teachings for our standard, we will get away entirely from the idea of an occasional devotional service and will endeavor to make devotion to God the very warp and woof of our being.

The Devotions of the Early Disciples.

In the next place, if we consider the lives of the early disciples, we will find that they were a highly devotional people. The one hundred and twenty that waited in Jerusalem for the promise of the Father continued with one accord in prayer and supplication. The first converts in Jerusalem continued steadfastly in prayers and were continually praising and blessing God. In every time of need they united in prayer. In every time of deliverance they united in thanksgiving. In their public assemblies prayer and praise were prominent features of their worship. While this worship was intended to be orderly, it was not marked by formality. A worthy Christian woman is described as one who "trusteth in God, and continueth in supplications and prayers night and day." (1 Tim. 5: 5.) She must have been a kind of nun, you think—one of those prophetesses that were found in the church then, but not now. You are mistaken. The same person is described as having brought up children, lodged strangers, washed the saints' feet, relieved the afflicted, and diligently followed every good work. Paul combines these again when he says, "diligent in business, fervent in spirit, serving the Lord." Our daily work is different from theirs, but the spirit of our work should be the same. Everything we do, we should do as unto the Lord, and not unto men. And devotion to God should be found in every place. "I have been wondering," writes Eugene Foster in the Sunday School Times, "what kind of a tentmaker Paul was. Somehow I feel that if I had been around then, and had wanted a real good tent, one that was made as well as it could be made, I would have tried to get one made by the man Paul. I recall something he said which impressed me very much: 'Whether therefore ye eat, or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God.' (1 Cor. 10: 31.) If you'll point out a man who has that for his motto, his are the goods I want to buy." If Christian tradesmen and workmen would carry this principle of devotion to the Lord into their daily product, there would always be a demand for it. You cannot hide its goodness under a bushel. And, furthermore, when they come around the Lord's table on the first day of the week, they would not have to strain themselves into a devotional spirit or have the preacher do it for them. The devotional spirit of the six preaching days would easily be manifest.

The Fire That Was Kept Burning.

And now I draw you a picture from the Old Testament. When night fell on Jerusalem, and the tide and hum of business had ceased, and one after another the lights were extinguished, and all fires put out in the sleeping city, one fire was kept alive. "It shall not be put out," said the Lord; "the fire shall ever be burning on the altar; it shall never go out." That fire had not been kindled by man's hands or blown into flame by his breath. Like the manna, it had descended from the skies. When Aaron and his sons were offering their first sacrifice, "there came fire out from before the Lord, and consumed the burnt offering and the fat, which, when the people saw, they shouted and fell on their faces." And so it burned by night and by day on God's altar. Nor was it till after the lapse of nearly a thousand years that it went out—quenched in the blood of priests who fell in defense of the temple at the first captivity. In that old altar on which the sacred fire was always burning, but where sacrifices were not always offering, we see a beautiful type of the heart of a devoted Christian. He is not always praying, but he is always prayerful. In his bosom glows the light of a heaven-kindled devotion that never dies.

And when I think of what that light can mean to you and to your family, how it can shed its radiance through the dark places of the earth, and how sorely it is needed, I can but repeat the matchless words of Paul: "I beseech you therefore, brethren, by the mercies of God, to present your bodies a living sacrifice, holy, acceptable to God, which is your spiritual service."

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

Some Observations.

BY LEE JACKSON.

In making a survey of the present condition of the plea which we are making for purity and simplicity in New Testament teaching and practice, it is noticeable that certain ideas, certain expositions of scripture passages, and certain conclusions based upon these expositions are accepted as being unquestionably correct simply because they have so long been held as correct by leading brethren among us. This condition indicates that there are many preachers and teachers among us who have never formed the habit of closely studying the Scriptures for themselves, but simply accept as true whatever has been passed to them through the medium of prominent preachers or leading teachers. Very many of these false notions and misunderstandings as to the meaning of passages of scripture are practically harmless, and, therefore, it is not necessary to raise quibbles and create disturbances by making efforts to correct them. Many of them are simply the well-formulated, plausible opinions of well-educated men among us; and, in certain respects, as governed by their acknowledged limitations, these men are as liable to err in their conclusions as other men. Oftentimes these same leaders have accepted from their predecessors unsound premises which they have never taken the trouble to investigate, and from these premises they have reasoned themselves into accepting false conclusions. And even such honored leaders as Alexander Campbell, Barton W. Stone, Walter Scott, and others who so nobly contended for the primitive order of faith and practice, were not free from error in many of their accepted opinions as to the meaning and application of certain parts of the Scriptures. But these wise leaders rose up as superior to our ordinary intellects when they protested against making matters of opinion a test of Christian fellowship. As just stated, many of these false notions are of minor importance; yet, as affecting the interest of the plea that we are making, some of these false ideas and misconceptions are vital.

Benjamin Franklin, founder of the American Christian Review, was a great writer and preacher among us a generation ago. As a successful debater he made quite a reputation. We call to mind his exposition of Eph. 1: 1-13, in which he makes the apostles and prophets of the gospel dispensation the persons referred to as the ones chosen in Christ "before the foundation of the world." In this exposition Mr. Franklin makes the "we" of the passage, as used up to verse 13, refer exclusively to the chosen apostles as the elect persons who "first trusted in Christ," and the "you" of verse 13 refer to those who were made believers through hearing the word of salvation as preached by these foreordained apostles. Apparently, Mr. Franklin was led to this exposition because confronted with the difficulty in explaining the meaning of being chosen in Christ "before the foundation of the world" without yielding to the claims of Calvinists. Since the publication of this exposition it has been more or less generally adopted by a younger generation of preachers simply because of the source from which it originated. A comparative study of the writings of Paul will show that "chosen in Christ before the foundation of the world" is general in its application, being predicated of all the saved; and as for the "we" of the passage, it refers to the converts from among the Jews as those "who first trusted in Christ," the apostle including himself with this number. Verse 12 reads: "That we should be to the praise of his glory, who first trusted in Christ." Then follows the specific reference to the case of the Gentile converts at Ephesus, to whom the apostle was writing: "In whom ye also trusted, after that ye heard the word of truth, the gospel of your salvation." The Revised Version is somewhat clearer than the Authorized Version, for this revised reading is to the effect that the Jewish Christians were those "who had before hoped in Christ." The hope in the Messiah to come was the especial heritage of the people of Israel (Acts 28: 20), for through God's dealings with them this hope had been implanted in their minds. The Gentiles had no such hope.

In some manner, about the beginning of "our plea," some one gave currency to the notion that "the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus" (Rom. 8: 2) means the gospel as a rule of conduct, in obedience to which the sinner is released from the guilt of sin. This, as an exposition of the meaning of the passage, has received acceptance generally among brethren; and as a text it has been often used as the basis of sermons on the necessity of obeying the commandments of the gospel in order to being made free. While all that is usually claimed in these sermons is in harmony with gospel teaching, yet the question arises: Is this the meaning of the apostle in this particular passage? A close study of the passage in connection with its immediate context shows that it is the law of Moses that is referred to as the "law of sin and death." Freedom from this law, with its condemnation, was accomplished in behalf of man through the death of Christ. This is clearly stated in verse 4 of the preceding chapter, where we read: "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also were made dead to the law through the body of Christ; that ye should be joined to another, even to him who was raised from the dead, that we might bring forth fruit unto God." (Rom. 7: 4.) The being made dead to the law, or made free from the law, came as antecedent to being joined to him who was raised from the dead. This is shown by the apostle's citation of the law pertaining to marriage. The woman must be released from the law that binds her to one husband before she can legally be joined to another man. Verse 2 of Rom. 8 reads: "For the law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus hath made me free from the law of sin and death." Then follows the statement: "For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh, and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh; that the righteousness of the law might be fulfilled in us, who walk not after the flesh, but after the Spirit." This condemnation of sin in the flesh was in the spotless life lived by the Son of God while in the form of man. The law of the Spirit of life operative in the person of this Christ Jesus made him an acceptable sin offering in behalf of man. This offering has forever released man from the condemnation of the law of sin and death. Sinners under the reign of grace do not stand before God as condemned under law, but their condemnation is because of their rejection of Christ, their refusal to become joined to him who was raised from the dead for their justification.

It is observable that the number of those among us who understand the "church of Christ" to be a general institution, and that "we as a people" constitute that general institution, are greatly on the increase. This is a sad departure from the original conception of our plea for a restoration. This present condition means a retrogression toward that ecclesiasticism against which our fight was being made fifty years ago. In truth, all of the well-informed men among the originators of our plea had no difficulty in understanding that the word "church" is itself an ecclesiastical term which came into existence during the ages of the great apostasy, and that it found its way into our English New Testament by order of King James, who required his translators to use it in preference to translating the original by the word "congregation." The word "church" gives countenance to ecclesiasticism, which is not true of the word "congregation."

In Thy Holy Keeping.

BY WILLIAM BRYANT.

Sorrows must and will befall
Times of bitter weeping;

But, O Lord, we rest for all
In thy holy keeping.

Labors often seem in vain—
Small our autumn reaping;
Yet we count our losses gain
In thy holy keeping.

When the night of death draws near,
Its dark shadows creeping;
Through the valley comes no fear
In thy holy keeping.

The Great Parade.

BY F. W. SMITH.

Possibly one of the greatest demonstrations ever made in the city of Nashville was what is called the "Demonstration of Preparedness." It was, or seemingly so, a mixture of business, politics, and religion. That it was intended to have a political significance, a boosting of the sentiment for a larger standing army and bigger and better battleships, cannot, and perhaps would not, be denied. That may have been, by the leading promulgators, the dominant motive; but other interests of a commercial-religious nature seized upon the opportunity to "make a hit" for each respective interest. The railroads and practically every line of industry connected with the city took a liberal hand in the parade, which was all perfectly legitimate in so far as advertising business was concerned.

But the occasion, as all such occasions do, developed the wisdom of Rome. It was a great and splendid opportunity for "the mother (?) church" to put herself in evidence, which she did in a great and conspicuous way. Under the guise of the "spirit of patriotism" she marshaled her forces in the most attractive way. There was the bishop heading the under priests riding in their autos, while the "Knights of Columbus" marched on foot, with their insignia around their hatbands. It evidently was a proud day for the worshipers of the successor (?) of St. Peter. They could thus glorify the Catholic Church under the pretense of American patriotism. If they simply wished to demonstrate a patriotic spirit for America and her institutions, why not march simply as American citizens, like the rest of those in that parade, instead of tacking on the religious phase and making that the most prominent feature of their presence on the occasion? Sure enough, why not? Ah! Not Rome, if you please. She never loses an opportunity to keep herself in the limelight and to glorify herself in every conceivable way. Bishop Byrne's name must be made prominent, as well as his person, and the priests in their peculiar attire must be on exhibition, followed by an order which one of the popes suppressed—"Knights of Columbus," with hatbands on which was written the name of their order.

A lecturer on Catholicism not long since made the statement that the Catholic Church had seized upon the moving-picture shows of the country through which to advertise and glorify herself. He said that nearly every picture exhibited had some feature of the Catholic Church as a part of the program. Either a priest, cathedral, crucifix, or making the cross on the breast accompanied nearly every picture. The writer asked a conductor of a moving-picture show if that was true. He said it was, and regretted that something could not be done to stop the Catholic Church from flaunting herself on the public in that way.

The Roman Catholic Church has become a great political factor in this country, so much so that all parties bid for their votes. In so doing they are continually catering to the Roman Catholic Church in some way pleasing to the gentleman over in the Vatican. The political party that incurs the ill will of the Roman Catholic clergy stands in danger of defeat; and to keep on the good side of the robed and mitred gentry, the old parties are constantly throwing kisses at them. Whenever opposition is raised against the efforts of Roman Catholicism to tamper with and get control of American institutions, she sends up a long and loud howl of "religious persecution!" She knows better. She knows that under the Constitution of this government she has the same right to worship and carry on religious work as any Protestant church. It is not the worship of the Roman Catholic Church against which protest is made, but against her everlasting meddling with our laws and institutions. Let her keep her hands off of our blood-bought liberties and attend to her legitimate business, and, further than an open repudiation of her doctrines, she will hear nothing from Protestantism. Religious persecution! That is only a pretense to elicit sympathy from the unsuspecting while she gets in her political work. Her history and spirit are too well and too sadly written to fool any clear-thinking and history-reading people. But my! How Roman Catholicism glorified herself in the big parade! How she must have laughed in her sleeve, when it was all over, to think how she had "put one over" on the population of Nashville and through the press, which is afraid of the very shadow of a Roman Catholic bishop!

The following leaflet was liberally distributed during the parade:

DO YOU BELIEVE IN PREPAREDNESS?

Brother!
Whoever you are, wherever you are on all the earth, I greet you.

You are a member of the working class.

I am a member of the working class.

We are brothers.

Class brothers.

Let us repeat that: Class Brothers.

Let us write that on our hearts and stamp it on our brains—CLASS BROTHERS.

I extend to you my right hand.

I make you a pledge.

Here is my pledge to you:

I refuse to kill your father. I refuse to slay your mother's son. I refuse to plunge a bayonet into the breast of your sister's brother. I refuse to slaughter your sweetheart's lover. I refuse to murder your wife's husband. I refuse to butcher your little child's father. I refuse to wet the earth with blood and blind kind eyes with tears. I refuse to assassinate you and then hide my stained fists in the folds of any flag.

I refuse to be flattered into hell's nightmare by a class of well-fed snobs, crooks, and cowards who despise our class socially, rob our class economically, and betray our class politically.

Why be a hypocrite?

Pray for peace and prepare for war!

"Then Jesus said unto him, Put up again thy sword into his place; for all they that take the sword shall perish with the sword." (Matt. 26: 52.) "Thou shalt not kill." (Sixth commandment.)

Do you stand by this or the moneyed power who profit by preparedness and war?

With the exception of the effort to array what is here termed the "working class" against some other kind of a class, the leaflet contains a good sentiment. No matter if one class is imposed upon by another in the business world, it does not justify a spirit of envy and hatred. All should belong to the "working class," and one who can and will not work is condemned by the Bible. Those who oppress their fellow-beings and withhold just recompense for labor bestowed will have a "hard row to weed" in the day of judgment. (See James 5: 4.) What an awful day that will be!

Japanese Farming Implements. No. 3.

BY J. M. McCALEB.

(Read before the Asiatic Society, Tokyo, Japan.)

III. EXTENT OF ADOPTION OF IMPROVED IMPLEMENTS.

The question naturally suggests itself as to what extent Japan has adopted modern methods. For a comprehensive statement on this point, figures seem to be wanting. Evidently their use, as may easily be judged in traveling over the country is not very considerable, since the long hoe and the sickle are everywhere in evidence. The Konoen sells about fifty American plows and about ten thousand hoes, rakes, and other hand implements annually. Allowing for what other houses may sell, the entire amount of foreign implements is quite small, and especially the plow. But, as may be observed by annual visits to such establishments, there is a steady growth in this line of trade in nearly everything except the plow, which, of all else, is the most indispensable to the farmers. Some ten years ago there was a plow factory at Mita that looked encouraging, but now the site is occupied by an electric plant. There being no demand for plows, the factory had to go out of business.

IV. COMPETENT INSTRUCTORS A NECESSITY.

One of the chief needs in Japan is competent instructors, for a formidable obstacle in the way of introducing modern farm tools is the lack of knowing how to use them. People are naturally prejudiced in favor of what they have been trained up to; and being unskilled in the use of better implements, they don't know their value. In America, for instance, half a century ago the old-fashioned bar-share plow, with its wooden moldboard, was the farmer's favorite; and when the turning plow, with its cast-iron or steel wing that would slip the dirt and turn it over, was introduced, there was strong opposition against it on the plea that it would "ruin the land." Coming down a few years later, there came an agent through the country selling a certain patent of sulky plow on which the farmer rode instead of walking behind. This in itself, with some, was enough; for a fellow that would ride while plowing was no farmer. A well-to-do man of the community, who happened to be at the village one day when the agent was there exhibiting his new plow, remarked: "If you will go up there and cover those tall ragweeds in my stubble field, I'll buy two of your plows." "That's a bargain," said the agent, and, with his two large, well-trained horses he plowed under the weeds, completely covering them, to the entire satisfaction of the farmer. The bargain was struck and in due time the new implements came. The farm hands undertook to run them, but could not keep them in the ground. After a few rounds they were thrown aside to rot. In the hands of others, however, they were a success.

Man-weight seeders and cultivators are invaluable to the truck farmer; and much of it in Japan is of that kind. When I returned from the United States in 1902, I brought a man-weight garden cultivator back with me. One day I rigged it up and truckled it out to a field near me at Zoshigaya where a man was at work, and asked him if I might try it between his rows of grain; but he would not consent, nor even stop long enough to raise himself up and look at it. He kept humping it along with his long hoe, and thereby emphatically declaring that the old way was better. I also brought to Japan at different times an Oliver chilled plow and two steel Avery plows. I put them in the hands of two farmers in Chiba prefecture and went to show them how to operate them. They did as well as could have been expected with raw hands and untrained teams; but they were thrown aside almost as soon as I left and the men returned to the hoe. They have since been used, but with only indifferent success.

What is needed are skilled instructors from the West to train the people in the use of Western implements. Even in America the farmer is often ignorant of how to use his tools. There are experts employed by the government whose sole business is to go about over the country and teach the farmers how to use their tools to the best advantage. This expert will be riding along the road, for instance, and will see a farmer doing poor work. He stops, hitches his horse, walks out to where the man is plowing, and enters into friendly conversation with him, assuring him that he is not a book agent, nor is selling lightning rods, and asks to show him a little how to make his plow do better work. He readjusts the harness, lengthens the traces a little it may be, drops the clevis down one hole, gives the plow a little more land, then takes hold and goes a few rounds with the man; and when he leaves him, his plow is doing fifty per cent better work with less exertion, and he is happy. The government can well afford to do this, as it increases the products of the soil, making the common people more prosperous, and a prosperous people make a wealthy government. Japan had a few Western instructors some years ago, but she dismissed them too soon; nor did she have enough of them.

For the chapel fund: Omah, Ontario, Canada, $6; McMinnville, Tenn., $5; Mrs. L. R. Slayden, $4; Mrs. A. M. Bibb, $4. Total, $19. In our last report we stated that we needed $20.05 more for the seats. We now lack only $1.05. So I think that we may consider that the amount asked for to cover both chapel and seats has been received. Total amount for chapel and seats up to the end of March, $677.90. Of this amount, $140.15 was given in Japan. Our aim at the beginning was to raise $100 in Japan. We exceeded this by $40.15. Again I must thank all the friends who have had a part in building this chapel, and together let us all thank our Father in heaven for this gift to our work in Japan.

I am about one hundred dollars behind with my personal accounts. As I have to put considerable of my own income into the work each month, it is hard to catch up.

Communion, or the Lord's Supper.

We are favoring our readers this week with the following article on the above subject by Brother S. N. Yeoman, of Smyrna, Ga. He has been for several years a regular worshiper at West End, in Atlanta. We have no member whom we love and esteem more than this good brother. We are always glad when Brother Yeoman presides at the Lord's table. He always draws us nearer the cross and enables us to more deeply commune with our Lord and Savior. I am taking the liberty to publish this splendid article without his consent, but feel sure that he will leave it with my judgment as to the disposition that I am making of it. Read it thoughtfully and prayerfully.

One pure, unleavened loaf, representing the body of Christ, and the pure blood of the grape, representing the blood of Christ, are the elements used. Jesus took bread, gave thanks, "broke it, and said, Take, eat: this is my body, which is broken for you: this do in remembrance of me. After the same manner also he took the cup, when he had supped, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood: this do ye, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me." (1 Cor. 11: 24, 25.)

"The cup of blessing which we bless, is it not the communion of the blood of Christ? The bread which we break, is it not the communion of the body of Christ?" (1 Cor. 10: 16.) The body and blood are symbols of the Christ life, and it is he with whom we are to commune.

This Supper is a commemorative institution. To commemorate our blessed Redeemer's death and suffering in the observance of the Lord's Supper is to recall to our memory and vividly image to ourselves the scenes of Calvary and its environs—not superficially, but discerningly. Discernment means keen, accurate mental vision. To discern the Lord's body is not merely to image his form, but especially the Christ life within, beholding it throughout his passion—standing lovingly sympathetic at his side in Gethsemane, before Pilate, robed in purple and crowned with thorns in mockery, spit upon, scourged, sinking under his cross, the cruel nails piercing his blessed feet and loving, tender hands, which are ever outstretched to us. Contemplate the scene!

Communion is joint participation, or the act of sharing, which is clearly comprehended and of deepest significance in the correct observance of this Supper; without it, it becomes a mere formality, void of merit or value to the communicant.

Having defined communion, let us examine further. Paul, in 2 Cor. 6: 14, 15, says: "What fellowship hath righteousness with unrighteousness? and what communion hath light with darkness? And what concord hath Christ with Belial? or what part hath he that believeth with an infidel?" How could Paul tell us more plainly that communion is had only in like elements? Can pride commune with humility; or envy, malice, jealousy, and hatred commune with love? Christ is our ideal, and every attribute perfect. Can we have, living and abiding in us, attributes adverse to his, and yet hold communion with him? We may with solemn faces and bowed heads show the Lord's death in the observance of this Supper, but do we, indeed and in truth, commune with him?

In giving thanks, we hear it frequently said, "May we so partake that we may receive the blessing intended;" when Christ's love is full to overflowing, and the only prerequisite to the blessing is to bring every element of our lives into loving, sympathetic harmony with the Christ life in his passion. I say "in his passion," because we are not communing with him in his baptism, ascension, or throne in heaven, but in his death. If communion means act of sharing or joint participation, and we are to commune with him in his death, and harmony of elements is essential thereto, it necessarily follows that we must possess the attributes of long-suffering, forbearance, patience, meekness, mercy, humility, and our hearts aglow with the love Jesus so richly bestowed when in the anguish of death on the cruel cross for us.

Brethren, does every element of our lives respond to every element of the Christ life as we approach unto this sacred Supper? Do we discerningly see it undergoing this terrible ordeal and properly appreciate its cost to heaven and its value to us? Deep in our hearts, does every cord of love, mingled with sorrow and anguish, beat in harmony with his, being brought into sacred, sympathetic touch with him on the cruel cross-tree, partaking of the richness of the Christ life in its every attribute? When hungry, we seek food; when thirsty, drink; when cold, the fireside. When does the spiritual man, while in this tabernacle of clay, find so sumptuous a table, such a fountain of living water, or a fireside aglow with such intense warmth as in sweet communion with this dying and ever-to-be-adored Lord and Redeemer? The soul that is not enriched—does not receive vitality and inspiration—does not commune.

"Sweet the moments, rich in blessing,
Which before the cross we spend."

An Appeal to Delinquents.

BY F. W. SMITH.

Many seem to think that a religious paper is a gold mine or a mint that turns out coin in abundance, and, therefore, the publishers can get along without what is due them. I say many seem to reason that way, and my grounds for this statement will be found in the fact that so many subscribe for the Gospel Advocate and are exceedingly slow about paying for it or never pay at all. It would be unkind to intimate that they never intended to pay for it when they subscribed. How, then, can their negligence be accounted for on any other ground than that the paper does not need the money? Unless delinquent subscribers are laboring under the impression that the Gospel Advocate can get along without what they owe, why do they not pay? Surely they intend to pay some day, because they know it is an honest obligation, and every honest person expects and desires to meet all such obligations. With the full confidence that all those who are behind with their subscription intend some time to pay, there remains but one solution to the matter—viz., the Gospel Advocate does not need what they owe it. But how do they know that such is the case? Neither publishers nor editors have hinted such a thing, and it must be that, because delinquents have not been forced by law to pay, the conclusion has been drawn that the money is not needed. Now, if any who owe the paper are in doubt on this point, just drop the manager of the Advocate a card asking if what they owe is needed. He will correctly interpret that dream and open your eyes to its full meaning. Poor publishers! They deserve sympathy, because they are placed between two fires. If they send out duns, those receiving them get mad; and if they stop the paper when the time expires, they get mad. So what, pray tell us, are they to do? It is condemned if you do and condemned if you don't. A religious paper, instead of being an asset, is a liability, and it often becomes a serious problem to keep it going. Under the most favorable circumstances, with cost of material and printing at a normal figure, religious papers are not a source of revenue, and under the present high cost of everything they are actually a financial burden. Not a single editor nor contributor receives one penny for the work done on the Gospel Advocate. Do you know the reason? There is simply nothing to receive. We are working to keep the truth before the people, giving much valuable time in order to send into the homes of the people the best paper we are capable of making. It is no easy thing to run a religious paper. To write every week an article for the paper in addition to much other work devolving upon one is no easy job. The writer has neither financial interest in, nor official place with, the Gospel Advocate, but he loves the paper for the good it has done and for that it hopes to do, and that is the reason for the interest taken in it. The Advocate needs every dollar its subscribers owe, and every one that owes the paper and can do so ought to pay it, and pay it at once.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

God's Agents.

God's workers on earth are those whom he has saved. He needs them in his earthly work; he has ordained that the evangelizing of the world shall depend upon them. When a godly Christian teacher died in a Virginia college, the president of that institution quoted the translation of Ps. 116: 15: "Costly in the eyes of Jehovah is death to his men of kindness." As Delitzsch said: "The death of his saints is not cheap to God." It was Jesus who said that a planet would be a poor exchange for a soul. So we can well believe that it is tremendously costly in Jehovah's eyes when, for any reason, he must take a "separated" and "kindly" life, one who is indeed a member of the body of Christ, from the earth, to put "a personality in abeyance until the resurrection." It is a striking fact that no mention is made in Genesis of the death of the descendants of Cain; but of all the godly sons of godly Seth it is said, "And he died." Are we looking at our own present place of opportunity on earth as God looks at it?—Sunday School Times.

How few appreciate their responsibility as they should! The Lord has a work for every one of his saints. There is no room for an idler in the vineyard of the Lord. The Lord kept busy while he was here; so must his children. For the salvation of souls Christians should undertake to crawl across the continent if necessary. While we pray for souls, we must work for them. Shedding tears is unavailing while we sit with folded hands. Christ commanded the apostles to go into all the world. Christians should be ready to go even at great sacrifice. "If a man therefore purge himself from these, he shall be a vessel unto honor, sanctified, meet for the Master's use, prepared unto every good work." (2 Tim. 2: 21.) Men must purge themselves from dishonor, impurity, and indifference. The Master's service calls for the deepest and sincerest earnestness. When we learn to place the right value on a soul and on temporal goods, our earnestness in the Master's work will be intensified more than a hundredfold. "For what doth it profit a man, to gain the whole world, and forfeit his life? For what should a man give in exchange for his life?" (Mark 8: 36, 37.)

National Teachers' Normal and Business College.

We have very recently completed ten thousand beautiful catalogues of thirty-two pages and cover, announcement for 1916-1917 of the above-named institution. The catalogue is in the form of a folder this year and is especially attractive. The success of this institution is deserved. The student body is composed of pupils from many of the States.

This institution is growing in usefulness and influence. Its power for good is felt throughout many States in the Union. Its helpful and elevating influence is being felt the more because those at its head are engaged in the work with the purpose of accomplishing the greatest possible good. They desire to fit and qualify for usefulness those intrusted to their care and guidance. The influence of these faithful instructors will live in the lives of the thousands they have taught long after they have gone to their reward. The educator is engaged in a most noble calling, and it is always gratifying to see him charmed with his work.

Those at the head of the college, Freed and Hardeman, and their associates, are endeavoring to fit their pupils for life. They are not neglecting the spiritual in their work. They know that an unprincipled, educated scoundrel is a most dangerous character. So along with grammar, mathematics, and the sciences, they are teaching the Bible. They have a goodly number of young men who are preaching the gospel and still others who are qualifying themselves for the ministry of the word. There should certainly be no objection to thus teaching the Bible in the school. They are doing this as individual Christians and without the solicitation of help. Why are not Christians under obligations to teach the word of God everywhere? We should teach the truth anywhere we can get hearers. It is not the purpose of these men to simply give knowledge to their pupils, but to train them to think and act for themselves. No man is educated until he is able to solve the new problems that present themselves daily. The problems that are solved in school are simply to prepare us to take care of the duties and responsibilities of life as they come upon us. The important thing is to be ready and able to solve them.

"There is a tide in the affairs of men,
Which, taken at the flood, leads on to fortune;
Omitted, all the voyage of their life
Is bound in shallows and in miseries;
On such a full sea are we now afloat;
And we must take the current when it serves,
Or lose our ventures."

It is very generally conceded and believed that this thriving and progressive institution is the liveliest thing in Henderson and that its influence is wide and far-reaching. The chief reason for this is that the Christian gentlemen at its head carry their religion with them into their daily work. They are not simply teaching for time, but for eternity. Because they are true to the New Testament order of worship and in their service are guided by "it is written," there are a few who oppose them in their work of sacrifice to advance the apostolic church. This is not a matter of surprise. No one can be true to the truth without paying the price. The Lord told Saul he would show him how many things he must suffer for his name's sake. Such persecutions never move a Christian, but stimulate him to more earnest effort, rejoicing that he is counted worthy to suffer for the cause of Christ.

Those interested, for further facts and particulars, should write to Freed and Hardeman, Henderson, Tenn., for descriptive catalogue.

Needs a Sound Faith.

"Rev." Bouck White, "pastor of the Church of the Social Revolution" in New York City, was found guilty of desecrating the American flag recently, and sentenced to thirty days in the penitentiary and to pay a fine of one thousand dollars. The offense of which he was convicted was that of printing the American flag on a libelous cartoon and of participating in the burning of the American flag in the rear of his church. This man, who graduated from Harvard University and Union Seminary and was ordained as a Congregational minister, has been a disturber, carrying his loose theology into loose social theories, and trampling upon what is evangelical, as well as what is patriotic. What is needed to-day is sound Americanism, coupled with sound religious faith; and when a person is lacking in one, he is apt, like this man, to be deficient in the other.—Herald and Presbyterian.

With a correct faith and a proper respect for the word of God, that man would not have been so vicious and unpatriotic. The Bible teaches us to submit to "the powers that be" and to pray for the rulers of our nation. Christianity is a mighty force. It is most practical and forceful. It wards off evil as nothing else can do. It is directed to the accomplishment of special and positive results. It develops the best that is in a man and trains him for a useful and happy life. The man who is under its control is capable of the highest good. Christianity is the hope of our nation. It will bring about the highest and best goodness in the world. Let us cling to it as never before.

A Visit to the Old Home.

BY JAMES M. PHILPUTT.

David on one occasion exclaimed: "O that one would give me drink of the water of the well of Bethlehem, which is by the gate!" David was a man of sentiment, of heart, and longed for the old associations which had never ceased to be dear to him. It was a feeling akin to this which led me in the month of May to make a pilgrimage to the place of my birth in Flat Creek, Tennessee. I longed to drink again of the old wells—the wells of memory, which have always fed and refreshed my soul. It was in 1868 that father and mother left the South, going up into Indiana for better educational advantages for their children. Just twenty-four years later, in 1892, I went back for a visit, which I reported in the Gospel Advocate at that time. Now in 1916—another twenty-four years—I felt impelled to go again. Mrs. Philputt had never seen this region, and she was as eager as I to see the people and the places she had so often heard me mention with veneration and affection.

After such a long absence, one is vividly impressed with the great changes which time brings. He gets these changes all at once, with stunning force, and not gradually, as they do who are on the ground. Persons whom he thought to be alive and well he finds have been gone for years. Some whom he left in comparative poverty have amassed wealth; others who were well to do have met with reverses. The playmates of your boyhood come up with pride, leading their grandchildren, to greet you. The effect is startling, and one vividly feels how swiftly "one generation goeth and another cometh." But Time's effect on places is even more noticeable than on people. Things change more rapidly than man himself. With eager eyes and bounding heart, I went to the site of our old home. The house was gone, the barn was gone, the spring house was gone! The spring itself remained—one tie, at least, to connect me with the long ago. How often as a boy had it refreshed me! It seems to recognize me and bubbles a welcome, asking why it has been forsaken all these years. The stream that ran near the house has grown weary of its old bed and sought a new course for itself. But here is still the old walnut tree under whose branches we used to sit in the long summer evenings, listening to the whippoorwills, tree frogs, and all the musical creatures that tune up as night approaches. Here, too, are the rocks and the hills. And the memories! Ah, the valley is filled with these, which nothing can destroy.

And some other things we found the same. The warm welcome, the affectionate greeting, the abounding hospitality, the gladness of heart so characteristic of the South—all this is here, and it did my soul good to feel it once more.

Here also is the church which was dedicated the very week we left the South, I being present at the service, a little lad on my father's knee. Now it is my sacred privilege to preach from its pulpit, and three of those who listen to me were charter members and present at that dedication in 1868. Two of these are Brother and Sister John D. Floyd, who recently celebrated their golden-wedding anniversary. Through all its history Brother Floyd has ministered to this church. In season and out of season he has gone among them as a father among his children, preaching not only by the lip, but much more by his life. And it speaks eloquently of the regard in which he is held when even now, aged and weak as he is, they would rather hear him speak than any stranger who could come to them. What a power for good is such a life in any community!

It was for me a sacred moment when I faced the congregation that overflowed the house. We sang again the very first song ever sung within those walls, "All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name," and together we blessed God that this power is still felt and acknowledged by those whose fathers and mothers had felt it in the long ago.

How beautiful that region is I seem never to have realized before, and this particular locality is recognized as one of the garden spots of the State. With its rolling meadows, wooded hills, and supreb vistas, its air fragrant with blossoming trees, and in the midst of it all the winding little river, Flat Creek, as beautiful as the Iris at Oxford or the Avon at Stratford, no region is more richly endowed or abundantly blessed.

The progress which has come to the whole country has found its way into this quiet valley. In the old days people came to church on horseback, men and women alike. Remembering this, I said to my wife: "If those good people come rolling up to church on Sunday in automobiles, I'm not going to play." But—bless you!—autos were thick as flies! Almost every prosperous farmer has one, and the space in front of the church after the service looked like a bit of Fifth Avenue, New York City. Telephones, daily papers, rural free delivery, and a hundred other conveniences have come in recent years. The people are prosperous and land has grown valuable.

The picture of it all which we bring away is full of satisfaction. The visit has done us good. One cannot have the depths of his life deeply stirred and not live ever afterwards on a higher level. How dear and vivid to us now are the faces of relatives and friends! God keep them and us until we meet again. •

The Kingdom of Heaven. No. 2.

BY A. M. FOSTER.

THE THEORY OF BEGINNING.

But when was this kingdom to begin? As the plan of redemption was not given in its complete form until established under the ministry of Christ, so the kingdom of heaven was not given in its completeness until it was established under the reign of Christ. The kingdom of Israel was a type of the kingdom of Christ; but it was no more the kingdom of Christ than the law of Moses, which was a type of the gospel, was the gospel. But this kingdom of Christ was to take the place of the kingdom of Israel the same as the gospel was to take the place of the law, and what was lacking in these former institutions was perfected in the latter. But to the point of beginning. There are several theories as to the beginning of this institution called "kingdom," and, of course, it would not be charitable for us to pass them by without some notice. One of these theories has the kingdom beginning in the garden of Eden; another, in the days of Abraham; another, during the fleshly life of Christ; another, on the first Pentecost after the resurrection of Christ; and still another, at the second coming of Christ. Now, we know that all these cannot be the Bible theory of the beginning of this kingdom. Therefore, if we could prove one of these to be the Bible theory of the beginning of this kingdom, of course that of itself would prove all conflicting theories to be wrong, whether they are catalogued here or not. I think we can settle the first two of these theories by one quotation from scripture. More than a thousand years after the time of Abraham, to say nothing of the garden of Eden, Daniel says with reference to this kingdom: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." (Dan. 2: 44.) Now, if this kingdom was to have its beginning after the days of Daniel, and he lived more than a thousand years after Abraham, then it certainly could not have begun in the days of Abraham, much less the garden of Eden. But the last theory can be disposed of, perhaps, with as little trouble as the first two. God said to David through the prophet Nathan: "And when thy days be fulfilled, and thou shalt sleep with thy fathers, I will set up thy seed after thee, which shall proceed out of thy bowels, and I will establish his kingdom. He shall build an house for my name, and I will establish the throne of his kingdom forever." (2 Sam. 7: 12, 13.) Now, here God promised to set up David's seed "when he slept"— not before David went to sleep, nor after he had awakened, but while he slept. If the adverbial element of time expressed in the phrase, "when thou shalt sleep with thy fathers," qualifies the setting up of this kingdom, then the language could not refer to the kingdom of Solomon, because he was made king before David died. (1 Kings 1: 48; 1 Chron. 23: 1.) But if it does not refer to Solomon, then it is bound to have reference to Christ, as he is the only other person to whom the language could possibly refer. But when is Christ going to be made king? Some say at his second coming. But this certainly cannot be so, because this will be too late. The Bible teaches us that the dead are going to be raised at the second coming of Christ; and certainly if the dead are raised, then David will be raised, too, and, therefore, will not be sleeping at all. (1 Thess. 4: 13-18.) Therefore, if this seed of David's was to be set up while David slept, and it refers to Christ, then Christ is bound to be made King some time before the resurrection. This being settled, then, we just have two theories left—namely, the Baptist theory and the Christian theory. But before we further notice these two theories we want to notice another feature of this kingdom.

THE CAPITAL.

Every government must have a capital. Washington is the capital of the United States; London, of England; Berlin, of Germany; Paris, of France; etc. But where is the capital of the kingdom of heaven? One of the theories we have just examined says it is going to be in Jerusalem. But the capital of England is in England; the capital of Germany, in Germany; the capital of France, in France; and, of course, we would necessarily expect to find the capital of the kingdom of heaven in heaven. But is that where the capital of this kingdom is? Let us see. In Isa. 9: 6 we are told that this heir of David's (Christ) was to sit upon David's throne. But where was David's throne to be? In Jerusalem? No; we read in Ps. 89: 35-37 of a promise that God had made to David: "Once have I sworn by my holiness that I will not lie unto David. His seed shall endure forever, and his throne as the sun before me. It shall be established forever as the moon, and as a faithful witness in heaven. Selah." Now, here God said that David's throne was to be in heaven. But Christ was to sit upon David's throne and the government was to be on his shoulder. Therefore, if he sits upon David's throne, he will have to do so in heaven. But as a further proof that this throne is in heaven, we invite your attention to what is said in Zech. 6: 12, 13: "Behold the man whose name is The Branch; and he shall grow up out of his place, and he shall build the temple of the Lord: even he shall build the temple of the Lord; and he shall bear the glory, and shall sit and rule upon his throne; and he shall be a priest upon his throne: and the counsel of peace shall be between them both." But Christ could not be a priest on earth. (Heb. 8: 4.) Therefore, if he is to sit and rule upon his throne and be a priest upon his throne, he will certainly have to do so in heaven, because he cannot do it on earth. But heaven is exactly where Paul says that Christ is a priest (Heb. 8: 1, 2; 4: 14); and as he was to be a priest on his throne, then his throne is bound to be there, too. But, again, in Phil. 3: 20, Paul tells the church there in his letter to them that their "citizenship" (marginal note, Revised Version, "commonwealth") was in heaven. But there is still another thought we want to notice. In 2 Sam. 7: 12, 13 it is said that this seed of David's was to build a house for the Lord, and this one referred to in Zech. 6: 12, 13 was to build the temple of the Lord. But did Christ do these things? In Matt. 16: 18 he said to Peter: "Upon this rock I will build my church." In 1 Tim. 3: 14, 15 this church is called the "house of God." And in 1 Cor. 3: 16 Paul tells the Corinthians that they were the temple of God. Having settled the question, then, as to the location of this capital, we are now ready to look for its beginning.

A House of Worship for Monticello, Ky.

BY J. D. WALLING.

We consider ourselves happy in that we have now a very bright prospect for a house of worship in Monticello. We have secured the lot upon which the old Christian Church meetinghouse stood. This old house was for years the only church house in the town. About two years ago it was burned to the ground. Some of the younger members took things in their hands and built a new house upon another lot, in another part of town. The old lot was sold. We have bought it and will build upon it. Many of the old members, who were dissatisfied with the rebuilding of the house, have said they were coming back home—back to the old foundation, the old faith, the "first love." Our greatest hindrance to the work has been the need of a house of worship. It has not only been an obstacle in the way of our work in the town, but in the country also. We are often told that we have nothing permanent in the town. But with a house on this lot, we will easily have a congregation of fifty members, which, we think, will soon grow to much larger proportions. We are able to pay for the lot and begin the house. We are not able to put it in condition to be used. We will have to build a brick or veneered house. It is our purpose to build the latter, as we can do it cheaper. I know of no place where a greater amount of good can be done than at this place at this time. Brethren who have been blessed and are looking for a place to do the greatest amount of good can do no better than to place some of their means in the hands of these worthy brethren. I feel sure if you were on the ground and saw the sacrifice and effort they are making, with the opportunity before them, you would cheerfully fellowship them. Brethren, may I not insist that you do this? The property will be protected by proper deed. The opportunity is rare. Please send to P. C. Rankin, Monticello, Ky. Do it now!

Having held three tent meetings in Monticello, I know their need of a house. The brethren that are there are willing to do all in their power to buy the lot and build, but they will need and must have help. I feel sure a good congregation can be built up in Monticello, and it will help to make the work that Brother Walling is doing in the country permanent. I hope the brethren will heed this call and send a liberal contribution. F. B. SRYGLEY.

Father and Son.

BY D. L. HAILE.

Often I read in our papers where father and son have held meetings together, working side by side and hand in hand in building up the cause of Christ. How happy I would be if I could live to see the day that my father and I could travel, preach, and work together; but—O!—I am afraid that time will never come. Father is near seventy-one years old. He is, I am afraid, too old now to change. He has been preaching for the Holiness people now about twenty years. He preached for the Baptists about ten years before he went with the Holiness folks. He was always kind to me and seemed to love me as a father should love a son until I baptized my mother and sister. This took place about six years ago, and was the result of a debate between father and me. Mother is dead now and father has cast me aside. I sometimes break down and weep and pray God to have mercy. Mother died a Christian, thank God. It cost her a great deal to give up all for Christ, but the debt is paid and she has gone to her reward. I see her now only in my dreams. I expect to continue on preaching the gospel of Christ, though my relatives continue to oppose me. I have no ill feeling toward any of them, but have a warm place in my heart for all. I pray God to guide me in the path of right.

Why God Chose the Jews.

BY M. C. K.

There are but few questions connected with God's dealings with the human race more generally misunderstood than his choice of the Jewish people. Even the Jews themselves formed a wrong conception of it and from the premises before them drew a number of erroneous and misleading conclusions. One of their leading misconceptions was the assumption that, because God had chosen them, and not another people, therefore they, and they alone, were in God's favor, and hence entitled to his mercy, thus overlooking the fact that God chose them for a specific purpose, and that that purpose was not at all that he might save them and not others. Not a solitary thing was ever spoken by the Lord concerning his purpose in choosing them that warranted such a conclusion. On the contrary, as we shall see in the light of facts, God's purpose in choosing them, as just observed, was specific, and that purpose is abundantly explained in the inspired record.

We may further introduce the subject to our readers by reprinting the following question and comments from the Sunday School Times of June 10, 1916:

WHY GOD CHOSE THE JEWS.

"Do we know why God chose the Jews rather than some of the other people of the time?" (California Bible Lover.)

No, we do not. But we can well believe that the man Abram, chosen of God to be the founder of the race of the Jews, was somehow living closer to God than any other soul in that dark day of world-wide sin. God may have known that Abram would respond to his call as no one else in the earth just then. On the other hand, it is possible that just the opposite was true: that God chose Abram's family to start the new line because Abram was in some ways less "likely" than any one else just then. God's grace works that way. Where sin abounds, grace abounds more exceedingly. (Rom. 5: 20.) The words of Pettingill as to the people Israel are profoundly suggestive: "It is often asked why God loved Israel above other people. I do not know. Neither do I know why he loved us so much that 'while we were enemies' he sent his Son to die for us, I glory in the blessed fact, but I cannot explain it."

"Thou art a holy people unto Jehovah thy God." This was his word to Israel. "Jehovah thy God hath chosen thee to be a special people unto himself, above all people that are upon the face of the earth. Jehovah did not set his love upon you, nor choose you, because ye were more in number than any people; for ye were the fewest of all people; but because Jehovah loved you, and because he would keep the oath which he had sworn unto your fathers." (Deut. 7: 6-8.) This explains why Jehovah set them in a peculiar place of relationship to himself—because he loved them above other peoples. It does not tell us why he thus loved them.

It is true, as the Times here remarks, that this passage "does not tell us why he thus loved them," but the facts revealed in other parts of the Bible show plainly his particular purpose in choosing them, and that his love for them was for carrying out, through them, that particular purpose. God's love of the Jews, in this case, was subsequently misunderstood and misinterpreted by them, and it is misunderstood and misinterpreted by many to-day.

Among the passages which have puzzled some minds, and from which erroneous conclusions have been drawn, is Mal. 1: 2, 3, which contains the famous declaration: "I loved Jacob, but Esau I hated." Here and in Paul's comment on the same passage in Rom. 9 we are sometimes reminded that it is distinctly stated that God not only loved Jacob and hated Esau, but that his purpose concerning them was formed before they were born, and the question is triumphantly asked: "Does not this show that the destiny of these two men, as subjects, respectively, of the mercy and the wrath of God, was altogether unconditional, and that, therefore, it is a case in which both the subject of mercy and the subject of wrath became such without any act of merit in the one case or of demerit in the other?" We answer no, it does not show anything of the kind. Listen to Paul's comment on the passage: "And not only so; but Rebecca also having conceived by one, even by our father Isaac—for the children being not yet born, neither having done anything good or bad, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth, it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger. Even as it is written, Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated." (Rom. 9: 10-13.) Thus it is distinctly brought out that, notwithstanding Jacob and Esau were of the same family, and hence were both Jews, yet a marked difference is made between them, and one of them is "loved" and the other "hated;" but "loved" for what, and "hated" for what? Paul answers: "That the purpose of God according to election might stand." Election here means choice, and the direct reference is to God's love for and choice of Jacob over Esau; but love for and choice of Jacob over Esau for what? That God might save him and not Esau? No; but he was chosen as in the genealogical line from which the world's Redeemer and Savior should come. And Esau was hated and rejected; but hated and rejected for what? Because God did not want to save him? No; but because he was not in the line from which the world's Redeemer should come. So far as carrying out that purpose was concerned, Esau was rejected—God "hated" him and had no use for him so far as the Messianic line was concerned; but, on the contrary, Jacob was in that line and God "loved" him as the one through whom to carry out that purpose.

But this is not all. Going back to the very historic beginning of the Jewish race, the same fact is illustrated in the same way. No sooner had God chosen Abram than he began to deal with the family of that illustrious patriarch in a way which clearly establishes this position. For example, God rejected Ishmael and chose Isaac, yet they were both Abram's sons; and while there is no specific statement to that effect, yet the general facts of the record show that God loved Isaac and hated Ishmael in precisely the same way that he subsequently loved Jacob and hated Esau. Hence, as if to explain to Abram that he had a special purpose to work out which would necessarily have to be through some particular genealogical line, he tells him plainly that his rejection of Ishmael, so far as carrying out that purpose was concerned, did not mean that he had no use at all for Ishmael otherwise. He did have use for him, and his explanation to Abram was in these words: "And as for Ishmael, I have heard thee: behold, I have blessed him, and will make him fruitful, and will multiply him exceedingly; twelve princes shall he beget, and I will make him a great nation. But my covenant will I establish with Isaac, whom Sarah shall bear unto thee at this set time in the next year." (Gen. 17: 20, 21.)

Hence we see that God did not, indeed, choose the whole Jewish race, including every individual, but he chose that race as the one through which should descend the genealogical line from which, in due course of time, the world's Redeemer should be born. This race, therefore, was chosen, not because God would have mercy upon and save it when he would not have mercy upon and save other people, but for the purpose of working out for the whole human race the way of salvation from sin; and hence, when that problem had been finally worked out and the way of salvation was fully opened, the divine order was issued to bear the glad news, not simply to the Jews, but to all nations alike, even to the whole creation of mankind. The Jewish race had been used in working out the plan, but now that the plan was complete, and the Christ had been given to the world through that race, the way of salvation opened up through him was for all nations and for every creature; and hence in him, the inspired record informs us, "there cannot be Greek and Jew, circumcision and uncircumcision, Barbarian, Scythian, bondman, freeman; but Christ is all, and in all." (Col. 3: 11.)

QUERY DEPARTMENT

Brother McQuiddy: (1) Please explain Matt. 22: 11, 12. How did that man get in? (2) Explain, also, Phil. 4: 3. Who was the "yokefellow?" What was the labor of these women in the gospel?
DAN KING.

(1) "But when the king came in to behold the guests, he saw there a man who had not on a wedding garment; and he saith unto him, Friend, how camest thou in hither not having a wedding garment? And he was speechless." (Matt. 22: 11, 12.) Among the Orientals, long white robes were worn at public festivals; and those who appeared on such occasions in any other robes were esteemed worthy of punishment. The person making the feast provided a garment for each guest, which was furnished him on his application to the ruler of the feast. It was this that made the conduct of the person mentioned in the text inexcusable; he could have had a proper wedding garment had he applied for it. Evidently the man walked in without making application for the wedding garment. This man evidently typifies the man who thinks he can be saved on his own righteousness without a trustful obedience to the Savior. Without holiness no man can see the Lord. It is worthless for a man to profess to be called by the name of Christ who is living without the preparation that belongs to Christ's kingdom. (2) Many conjectures have been advanced as to who was the "true yokefellow;" but as the Bible gives us nothing definite on the subject, we are not warranted in speculating on the subject. It is not known who were "those women." In both Grecian and Asiatic countries women were kept much secluded, and it was not likely that even the apostles had much opportunity of conversing with them; it was, therefore, necessary that the apostles should have some experienced Christian women with them, who could enter the families and preach Jesus to the female part of them.

Brother McQuiddy: (1) What is the duty of an elder to the church? (2) What is the duty of the church to the elder? (3) Explain this passage: "If any provide not for his own, and especially for those of his own house, he hath denied the faith, and is worse than an infidel."
C. A. DANIEL.

(1) "Take heed unto yourselves, and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit hath made you bishops, to feed the church of the Lord which he purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20: 28.) It is his duty to teach and care for the church. (1 Tim. 3: 2, 5.) It is his duty to "tend the flock of God which is among you, exercising the oversight, not of constraint, but willingly, according to the will of God; nor yet for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; neither as lording it over the charge allotted to you, but making yourselves ensamples to the flock." (1 Pet. 5: 2, 3.) (2) Support him. "Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially those who labor in the word and in teaching." (1 Tim. 5: 17.) The church should not receive an accusation against an elder, except in the mouth of two or three witnesses. It is the duty of the church to communicate unto him that teacheth in all good things. The church should also esteem them for their work's sake. "But we beseech you, brethren, to know them that labor among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; and to esteem them exceedingly highly in love for their work's sake." (1 Thess. 5: 12, 13.) For fuller information on the duties of elders, read Acts 20: 28-32; 1 Tim. 3: Tit. 1; 1 Pet. 5: 1-5. (3) If any provide not for his own people, relatives, or a poor widow relative that lives under his roof, he has denied the faith and is worse than an infidel. Even the dictates of nature lead men, believers or unbelievers, to provide for their own families. Tacitus, a heathen writer, says: "Nature dictates that to every one his own children and relatives should be most dear." And Cicero declares: "Every man should take care of his own family." As unbelievers take care of their own, the professed Christian who declines to do so is worse than an infidel.

Man is a Worshiper.

BY FRED W. CHUNN.

In all ages of which we have a record man has been a worshiper. It seems to be his nature to want to worship some one or some thing. It is significant, however, that almost every system of worship, regardless of how many gods are in it, recognizes the two great spirits—the good and the evil. This is true of the ancient Egyptians, the Persians, the Chinese, and even the North American Indians. Either love or fear has most generally been the incentive that has caused them to worship, and there is a shade of truth and a semblance of reality in it all.

When history first dawned upon Egypt, we find its inhabitants worshipping the Nile, their great river, together with various animals. They fancied that this river was a gift from Osiris, the great and good spirit; while the deserts were given to them by Typhon, the malignant one. They also believed that the spirit of Osiris came and dwelt in animals; hence their worship toward them.

Confucius was a great moral teacher of the Chinese people, and so great was his influence among them and so inseparably were they attached to him that their admiration and deep respect gradually developed into worship. Out of this grew the "ancestral worship" that has since predominated in China.

The North American Indian, in his primitive state, loved hunting. He loved the things of nature, his constant companions, and especially animals, the objects of his chase. Their uninstructed minds led them to worship the things they loved. Consequently the wolf, the bear, the turtle, and other animals became their clandestine emblems and gods, into whose likeness they expected to be transformed after death.

The sun worshipers, being overawed by the resplendent beauty and wonderful power of the king of day, like Plato's man of fancy, were constrained to fall down and worship him.

The Hindoos, through fear, desiring to appease the supposed anger of the alligator, will give to it the fruit of their own loins. The inferior animal has thus become an object of worship to them, and by them is considered to be the best god in the land.

The foundation of this worship has in it some reason, however ridiculous it may seem now, or men would not have taken it up. "Quackery gives birth no nothing, but it brings death to everything," says Carlyle. Possibly we, with their knowledge and environments, would do as they have done. It is obvious, then, from the foregoing, that if man is not conscious of the existence of the true God, he will inevitably worship a false one. If this, indeed, be the propensity of man, a great duty devolves upon us. We must first make him conscious of the true God and then create within him a desire to worship "in spirit and in truth." There are worthy laborers in the field now, and it is our duty to supply their needs.

The tract, "Lessons on the Church of Christ," by S. H. Hall, is now ready. Send us 25 cents for a single copy, or $2.50 for one dozen. The lessons are suitable to all occasions of Christian study and worship. The lessons may be used socially to good advantage. There are seventeen lessons.

Why Send to the Nashville Bible School?

BY THOMAS H. BURTON.

As a former student of the Nashville Bible School, I wish to present some reasons why Christians who send their children to boarding schools should patronize the Nashville Bible School. Unsolicited and unknown by any one, I write this, trusting that it may influence some one to patronize this grand institution, which has as its object the building of Christian characters.

1. Because the Bible is one of the textbooks (which, I am sorry to say, is not so in all schools). All students must recite at least five Bible lessons each week. With competent teachers, such as Brother H. Leo Boles, Brother S. P. Pittman, and Dr. Ward, to instruct in the Book of books, the students get lessons that will not only prepare them for this life, but also for eternity. If Bible study is neglected at home and in the schoolroom, where will our boys and girls get the lesson of all lessons?

2. The influence is next to home, and often better.

(a) Think of over two hundred boys and girls in one body, and something like ninety per cent of them Christians! Is it that good with their associates at home? Is it that way at all other schools? You must answer, "No."

(b) The faculty and teachers—such godly men and Christian women, studying, praying, and planning to know the best thing to do for each student, living and teaching the word of God each day, and thereby throwing the best influence and protection around each boy and girl. Is it that way at home and at other schools?

3. The graduates of this school are always in great demand and are competent to hold the most responsible positions.

(a) Because of the competency of the teachers and the thoroughness of the course.

(b) They are taught and taught and retaught the necessity of being honest, truthful, upright, responsible, plain, and trustworthy. I have often wondered how any one could stay under such influence nine months and not be a Christian. Is there much chance for your children to become Christians in most boarding schools?

4. Because everything is taught there from the chart to the A.B. or B.L. degree, including voice, sight singing, instrumental music, domestic science, art—in fact, almost anything you could want your child to study.

5. Because it is conveniently located—a few blocks from one of the best car lines in the city, thirty minutes' ride from town, on a nice, shady, blue-grass campus, on a sixty-five-acre farm. This gives it an ideal location—near enough the city for city conveniences, yet far enough away not to feel the evil influences of the city; in the country enough to get the pure, fresh, wholesome, invigorating air and the quietness of the country life.

Do not think if you send your children to the Nashville Bible School they will come away preachers; that is the wrong impression. I suppose the reason it is called the "Bible School" is because the Bible is used as one of the textbooks.

Parents, if you are contemplating sending your child away to school, I heartily commend this one. You cannot make a mistake by making this your choice, because it is everything Christian parents could wish for in the course—thoroughness, influence, faculty, location—in fact, I think it would be hard to make a better choice. I know some who have made mistakes by not being careful about the school their child went to, and evil impressions have been made on their child's mind that will be hard to erase, if ever. Be sure you get the best for your children by sending them to the Nashville Bible School.

"A thousand years from now it will not matter what a man's bank account was, but it will matter tremendously whether he was faithful to God's plans for the world."

Publishers' Items.

You will be surprised at the improvement in The Young People and The Bible Study Helper when the two are combined into a bright, snappy weekly. The new journal will contain splendid half-tone pictures. A. B. Lipscomb, our first-page man, will write the comments on the International Lessons. The change is effective August 1. Order to-day. Single copy, one year, forty cents.

Our good friend, Oscar Parham, writes: "The Gospel Advocate is most excellent and improving, though there is an occasional article I cannot indorse. I always speak a word in its behalf when I have opportunity." It should be borne in mind that the editors of the Gospel Advocate do not indorse everything that appears in its columns, but they wish to give every contributor a right to bespeak his views, provided it is done in the right spirit.

Brother E. C. Fuqua, the Western evangelist, who has had considerable experience in publishing religious periodicals and knows whereof he speaks, thinks the idea of raising our subscription price to two dollars a year is fully warranted in view of the ever-increasing cost of printing materials. He writes as follows: "Regarding the change of price of the Gospel Advocate—a suggestion. I believe you will find, after a few months' trial, that the readers of the Advocate will as readily pay two dollars as they now do the dollar and a half. Sensible people (and the readers of the Advocate are such) already well understand the advanced cost of all materials, being used to advances in the markets of all commodities, and will cheerfully pay the advanced price of the Advocate. You need have no fears along this line. The majority of your readers would even pay five dollars rather than do without the Advocate or see it go down. Don't overburden yourself with too many additional pages; the price of two dollars for what you are already giving us is, after all, small compared with the value received." We appreciate the kind suggestion of Brother Fuqua, and hope all our readers will view the matter in the same sensible light. We are hoping that, through the united effort of our readers, we may not be forced to take this step.

Commendations of "Christian Treasures" come in almost every mail. Two volumes are now ready. The price is one dollar per volume. Read what some thoughtful men have to say of these new books.

G. C. Brewer, Columbia, Tenn., says: "I have examined the book, 'Christian Treasures,' and I regard it a valuable addition to my library. I am glad we are to have a series of such books. The book is helpful because of the variety of subjects which it treats and because it gives the thoughts of many men. The conception of such a book was a happy thought, and I predict that it will be favorably received."

From J. C. Estes, Dallas, Texas: "Many, many thanks for 'Christian Treasures,' Volume I. As we all very well know, there is much in a name. The name given in this case is very appropriate—not in the least exaggerated. It certainly is a collection of jewels and gems of the rarest sort, a fountain of living water from the eternal truth of God. This book will make all who read and study it 'wise unto salvation.' It is easy and interesting to read and understand. I shall be more than anxious to have each volume as it comes from the press and as I have time to read it. As I modestly pass it out of my mind that I have an article in this first volume, I would be glad to make it stronger, Brother Lipscomb, relative to the merits of this collection of treasures, if I could, for I know they are such that deserve all that may be said good of them. The sources from whence they come tell of their greatness. Also, the mechanical work on the book deserves notice, as it is very attractive and substantial in its make-up, as is characteristic of the McQuiddy Printing Company to do."

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Compiled by A. B. Lipscomb

M. C. Kurfees will begin a tent meeting in Winston-Salem, N. C., on July 9.

L. B. Jones is preaching the word at Hatchett's School-house, near Bean's Creek, Tenn. He reports a fine prospect.

T. A. Phillips is preaching at Coal Hill, Ark. He preached three sermons at Slate Hill and baptized a young man.

The editors of the Gospel Advocate unite in extending a message of sympathy to the bereaved family of T. R. Burnett, editor of Burnett's Budget, who died on June 26.

R. V. Cawthon's meeting at Eleventh Street, this city, has proved very successful. At last report there had been four baptisms and one reclamation. Brother Cawthon is now at Martha, Tenn.

If you want one of the very best hymn books published, read our advertisement. One million copies sold. Both "Christian Hymns" and "Seventy-seven Sweet Songs" have been tried and found to be the very best.

F. W. Smith is in a good meeting at Paducah, Ky. His first report is cryptogrammatic and reads as follows: "Mighty hot; good audiences; poor preaching and fair prospects." I have my doubts about the "poor preaching." That sounds speculative.

From C. E. Holt, Montgomery, Ala., June 28: "We had one baptism at our evening service last Sunday and much interest among the young people. A state of apathy among the older members makes the work very discouraging. I may go to Knoxville soon."

From J. Paul Kimbrell, Plant City, Fla., June 26: "Last night I closed out a meeting at this place which continued one week. There were no additions, but the brethren were edified and built up. This is where I did my first work in Florida. In January I began a meeting here and continued three weeks, during which time ten souls were added."

Don Carlos Janes writes: "Were you one of those by whose contributions Brother Jelley and Brother McHenry went to India? Or have you sent anything to the work since they went? If so, kindly send me your address, to be forwarded to them, so they can mail you a copy of the publication they want to send to their supporters. Address 2225 Dearing Court, Louisville, Ky."

From M. S. Mason, Rogersville, Mo., June 26: "I held a meeting at Huffman, Ark., during the last two weeks in May. Was heard gladly and assisted generously by all religious classes. I left a small band to worship and a good feeling for the truth. I stayed at the home of A. S. Miller, and it was a real spiritual uplift to enjoy his hospitality. May the Lord bless all the faithful ones there."

A. J. Veteto, a "sweet singer in Israel," writes: "Please state to the readers of the Gospel Advocate that my time has not been taken for July or the latter part of August. I will be glad to have calls from the brethren, either for singing classes or to sing in meetings. I find it no trouble to secure singing classes among the sects; but when I know (as we all do) that our brethren need such work so badly, I prefer to work in the church. May I hear from some one at once? Address me at Scott's Hill, Tenn."

From Fred M. Little, Ravenscroft, Tenn., June 27: "I have been on Cumberland Mountain more than three weeks. The meeting at Eastland lasted eight days. One lady obeyed the gospel. I began a meeting at Clifty the same day the meeting closed at Eastland. The Clifty meeting was well attended from the very beginning. Six 'believed and were baptized.' The brethren confidently believe that much prejudice was removed. My stay on the mountain is most pleasant. People are kind and courteous and hospitable; and this is shared by my wife and two children who are with me on this trip. I am now at Ravenscroft. The meeting starts with good attendance. The brethren at Cleveland are worshipping in their new house."

From Aruna Clark, East Lake, Tenn., June 19: "The work of the Lord in Chattanooga is moving forward. Brother Price Billingsley is in a good meeting with the St. Elmo congregation, with four additions to date. Brother Jernigin is preaching the gospel in his strong, convincing style at East Chattanooga, with fine results. R. N. Moody is sounding forth the word of life to the people of Ooltewah. Other meetings are booked to begin soon in this locality. Chattanooga congregations now have a tent, and they are going to try and keep it busy. E. H. Hoover is doing a fine work with the Central congregation. The Cowart Street, Rossville, and Ridgedale congregations are all doing good work."

C. G. Vincent and wife, who have done faithful work in Japan, are now on American soil. Sister Vincent is taking treatment at Battle Creek, Mich. Brother Vincent wrote us from Vancouver, B. C., on June 22, as follows: "We reached this place yesterday morning safely. The voyage was a pleasant one, though it was cold and there were rollers large enough to cause an epidemic of seasickness. Sister Vincent stood the trip very well. We are enjoying the hospitality of W. C. Shelly and wife. I am to preach here on Lord's day. We leave for Battle Creek on Monday, the Lord willing. There were five baptized at Otsuka shortly before we left Japan. I feel that my wife will regain her health at Battle Creek. We need and want your prayers." It is important that the fellowship for the Vincents continue without abatement, since their expenses in this country will be heavier than in Japan.

From W. Hume McHenry, Satara, British India, May 19: "The hot, depressing season is almost over. High winds and occasional sprinkles warn us that the monsoon is near. We have stood the heat very well, but will gladly welcome a change to cooler weather. Brother Jelley's family have not been very well for some time, but were better at last writing. Brother Jelley reports the baptism of two former high-caste men. We hope this is only a beginning of what may prove to be a great work in that field. Brother Jelley will come to this region next month to assist in a Bible study for all the workers. A. R. Waleker and family are with me. Brother Waleker is supported by G. D. Knepper and wife, of Bryan, Ohio. He is a faithful young man, and, having a knowledge of English, will be able to render me very valuable assistance, besides teaching the native workers. Love to all. Remember us in your petitions."

"Burnett's Budget" is Completed.

BY J. C. M'Q.

Another strong man has gone to his reward. T. R. Burnett died on Monday night, June 26. He was undoubtedly the best writer of snappy and pointed paragraphs in the brotherhood. He wrote with ease and ability. We shall greatly miss his writings. He has been connected with our religious journalism for many years. For a number of years he conducted a department in this journal. He was fearless, brave, and ever ready to defend the truth as he saw it in Christ Jesus. Many an opponent has felt the force of his humor and sarcasm. We rejoice that the works of great and good men follow after them. Doubtless some one will prepare a more extended notice.

WOMAN AVOIDS OPERATION

Medicine Which Made Surgeon's Work Unnecessary.

Astoria, N. Y. — "For two years I was feeling ill and took all kinds of tonics. I was getting worse every day. I had chills, my head would ache, I was always tired. I could not walk straight because of the pain in my back and I had pains in my stomach. I went to a doctor and he said I must go under an operation, but I did not go. I read in the paper about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and told my husband about it. I said 'I know nothing will help me but I will try this.' I found myself improving from the very first bottle, and in two weeks time I was able to sit down and eat a hearty breakfast with my husband, which I had not done for two years. I am now in the best of health and did not have the operation." — Mrs. JOHN A. KOENIG, 502 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, N. Y.

Every one dreads the surgeon's knife and the operating table. Sometimes nothing else will do; but many times doctors say they are necessary when they are not. Letter after letter comes to the Pinkham Laboratory, telling how operations were advised and were not performed; or, if performed, did no good, but Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was used and good health followed.

If you want advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass.

In the Treatment of Tuberculosis remember that first aid to relief is found in abundance of fresh air—day and night—freedom from over-exertion and pure food.

Attention to these matters should do much to arrest the progress of the malady, but in many cases there is need for extra help. Where Nature has to work with a weakened body her power is limited.

Under such circumstances, try Eckman's Alternative, which has been used with large benefit by many sufferers. In numerous cases it has helped to bring about recovery. Also it has been successful in treating asthma and bronchial troubles.

And since it contains no opiates, narcotics or habit-forming drugs, its use is not attended with danger. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

The "New" and the "Old."

BY H. W. JONES.

In thinking on the vast superiority of the "new" covenant of our Lord Jesus Christ over that of the "old" or Mosaic covenant, I am deeply impressed with a feeling of higher appreciation, gratitude, joy, and praise, all because of the greater blessings and privileges we enjoy in being under the Christ instead of under Moses. The law is but a "shadow of good things to come" in Christ. (Heb. 10.) The first tabernacle with all its service was but a "figure for the time present." (Heb. 9.)

Let us note, then, some of the distinguishing features between the "old" and the "new," which, when clearly understood and appreciated, will do us good spiritually while here and better prepare us for hereafter.

1. The "old covenant" (like the laws of our land) related principally to the outward, overt act, while the "new" is addressed and appeals to the inner man—the spiritual being. For exemplification of this fundamental difference, I respectfully cite the reader to Matt. 5: 21, 22, where the Savior says: "Ye have heard that it was said to them of old time, Thou shalt not kill; . . . but I say unto you, That every one who is angry with his brother shall be in danger of the judgment," etc. Why does the Savior here seek to prevent anger instead of murder? Because if no one ever be "angry with his brother," no murder will ever take place. Anger (from within) leads to murder (the overt act). Cain was (1) "very wroth" and (2) "slew his brother Abel." (Gen. 4.) So the better way, the spiritual way, is to control the outward acts and words of mankind through the avenue of the spiritual or inner man, and it is thus the gospel of Christ is addressed to us. Lord, help us to control our passions, our appetites, our all, in Jesus' name, we pray!

2. In the old covenant no provisions are made for our shortcomings, but in the "new" there is grace, mercy, and love, thank the Lord! Praise his name! Under the "old" it was "life for life, eye for eye, tooth for tooth, hand for hand, foot for foot, burning for burning, wound for wound, stripe for stripe," "thine eye shall not pity," etc. (Ex. 21: 23, 24; Deut. 19: 21.) Under the "old," then, it was justice without mercy, while under the new the Lord is "merciful to our iniquities." (Heb. 8: 12.) And this is our only escape from eternal ruin. "Christ is the propitiation for our sins." (1 John 2: 2.) Praise the Lord for his goodness and mercy among the children of men!

3. Under the "old," sins "were remembered again every year" (Heb. 10: 3); but under the "new," sins are "remembered no more," pardon is full and free on easy terms—viz., faith in Christ, repentance, and baptism. (Heb. 10: 17, 18; Acts 2: 36-38.) I am so glad—yea, I rejoice to know that Jesus remembers my sins "no more forever" when once pardoned or remitted. "Then were the sins of the ancient worthies never fully remitted under the 'old' covenant?" you ask. Let's see: (1) "Without the shedding of blood there is no remission." (Heb. 9: 22.) (2) "It is impossible that the blood of bulls and goats should take away sins." (Heb. 10: 4.) (3) Therefore no sins were fully remitted till the death of Christ. Then Christ's death took place "for the redemption of the transgressions that were under the first covenant," as well as for the redemption of our transgressions. (Heb. 9: 15.) Thus it is that Christ is the propitiation for the sins of the whole world. (1 John 2: 2.)

4. The "new covenant" is founded upon "better promises" than the "old." (Heb. 8: 6.) The Israelites were promised an inheritance in the land of Canaan, while we "receive the promise of the eternal inheritance." (Heb. 9: 15.) The promises of the "old" are temporal (of the earth); while the promises of the "new" are eternal, in the heavens (2 Cor. 5: 1). Praise the Lord for these "precious and exceeding great promises; that through these ye may become partakers of the divine nature, having escaped from the corruption that is in the world by lust." (2 Pet. 1: 4.) Then, as the Lord has done so much for us, why should we not strive, day by day, to do more for ourselves in living soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world? May the Lord help us to do and to be that which is pleasing in his sight.

A Voice From "Gaza."

BY H. L. KIRBY.

Reflecting over the condition of the community in which I live makes my blood run hot in my veins. I have bought a farm three miles northwest of Hartselle, Ala., and I know of but one loyal Christian within thirteen miles. There are several Christians, but they are all affected with that thought. "I don't see that that makes any difference." Most of them are good, clever folks, but just as Matthew (28: 15) records: "They . . . did as they were taught." The people are doing as they were taught the world over to-day. The denominations here are very strongly taught to disbelieve anything that is not in accord with whatever their past teaching has been.

Paul said that Christ would take "vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel." (2 Thess. 1: 8.) He also declares that the gospel he preached was Christ's death, burial, and resurrection. (1 Cor. 15: 1-4.) Then, when I begin to wonder how I am to obey this kind of gospel, I turn to Rom. 6: 17, and here we are told that we obey a "form of doctrine;" and having "obey" in our minds while reading, we would naturally look for statements that harmonize. Then, since we have found that Christ will take vengeance on them that obey not the gospel, and the gospel is the death, burial, and resurrection of Christ, and we are to obey a form of doctrine, it looks clear to me that as Christ ceased to live on the cross, I die to sin when taught; and as Christ went down into the tomb, I go down into the watery grave; and as Christ came up out of the tomb, I come up out of the water; and as Christ walked a new life after he arose, I am to walk a new life after I am risen with him. (Rom. 6: 4.)

Then, brother, with the plain words of Jesus before us, and unable to get people to believe and obey his simple statements, what is to be done? I am not able to do much financially and meet my expenses. I still owe some on my farm and my health is poor. So let me ask all the readers of the Gospel Advocate to join me in prayer to God that he may send another Philip to another Gaza, that he may aid in planting the word of God, which is the seed of the kingdom (Luke 8: 11; 1 Pet. 1: 23), in the minds of people that are honest and with good hearts (Luke 8: 15), that the day may be hastened when there may be a band of people in this community that take the Bible solely for their guide.

Federal Inquiry or Railroad Strike?

Faced by demands from the conductors, engineers, firemen, and brakemen that would impose on the country an additional burden in transportation costs of $100,000,000 a year, the railroads propose that this wage problem be settled by reference to an impartial Federal tribunal.

With these employees, whose efficient service is acknowledged, the railroads have no differences that could not be considered fairly and decided justly by such a public body.

Railroads Urge Public Inquiry and Arbitration

The formal proposal of the railroads to the employees for the settlement of the controversy is as follows:

"Our conferences have demonstrated that we cannot harmonize our differences of opinion, and that eventually the matters in controversy must be passed upon by other and disinterested agencies. Therefore we propose that your proposals and the proposition of the railroads be disposed of by one or the other of the following methods:

1. Preferably by submission to the Interstate Commerce Commission, the only tribunal which, by reason of its accumulated information bearing on railway conditions and its control of the revenue of the railways, is in a position to consider and protect the rights and equities of all the interests affected, and to provide additional revenue necessary to meet the added cost of operation in case your proposals are found by the commission to be just and reasonable; or, in the event the Interstate Commerce Commission cannot, under existing laws, act in the premises, that we jointly request Congress to take such action as may be necessary to enable the commission to consider and promptly dispose of the questions involved; or
2. By arbitration in accordance with the provisions of the Federal law" (the Newlands Act).

Leaders Refuse Offer and Take Strike Vote

Leaders of the train-service brotherhoods, at the joint conference held in New York, June 1-15, refused the offer of the railroads to submit the issue to arbitration or Federal review, and the employees are now voting on the question whether authority shall be given these leaders to declare a nation-wide strike.

The Interstate Commerce Commission is proposed by the railroads as the public body to which this issue ought to be referred, for these reasons:

No other body with such an intimate knowledge of railroad conditions has such an unquestioned position in the public confidence.

The rates the railroads may charge the public for transportations are now largely fixed by this government board.

Out of every dollar received by the railroads from the public, nearly one-half is paid directly to the employees as wages; and the money to pay increased wages can come from no other source than the rates paid by the public.

The Interstate Commerce Commission, with its control over rates, is in a position to make a complete investigation and render such decision as would protect the interests of the railroad employees, the owners of the railroads, and the public.

A Question for the Public to Decide

The railroads feel that they have no right to grant a wage preferment of $100,000,000 a year to these employees, now highly paid and constituting only one-fifth of all the employees, without a clear mandate from a public tribunal that shall determine the merits of the case after a review of all the facts.

The single issue before the country is whether this controversy is to be settled by an impartial government inquiry or by industrial warfare.

Report of Work in North Carolina.

BY W. L. REEVES.

During the last six weeks our forces have held five meetings, two of which were mission meetings. In the five meetings there were thirteen baptisms, and much good was done in the way of removing prejudice from the minds of the sects and building up the brethren of the several little congregations who have been for so long struggling for existence against much opposition and lack of proper teaching along the line of the real duties of the church of Christ.

Brother W. J. Butler has been with us in this field for fourteen months, but he had to go away to hold some meetings in Alabama and Florida, which were arranged some time last year; and as he expects to go to school in the fall, he will not come back to join us in this work. He did a splendid work while with us. I can commend him to any church anywhere as one worthy of fellowship, and also as being capable of doing the very best preaching of any person of his age it has ever been my pleasure to meet. Any congregation will do well to secure Brother Butler to hold a meeting or to do regular preaching.

Knowing beforehand that Brother Butler was going away, I cast about for another helper, and I count myself fortunate in securing the services of Brother Frank Dunn, son of Brother John E. Dunn, to join me in this ripe, needy field of labor. He and I are now conducting a meeting in South Winston-Salem. We began last night (June 13) and expect to run indefinitely. Another young minister wants to join me in this work, and I need him very much, but I just simply have not the means to support him while he preaches in these destitute places from which so many calls come for the pure gospel of Christ.

Brother M. C. Kurfees, of Louisville, Ky., has kindly consented to hold a tent meeting here in the city of Winston-Salem in July, and we are not going to leave a stone unturned that would be a hindrance to the success of this meeting if left unturned. He was with us last year for ten days, and his work did the cause much good in many ways. He was here doing some preaching over thirty years ago, and established a congregation, but for lack of sound leaders afterwards it went off after the inventions and devices of men. However, Brother Kurfees yet has a number of friends and admirers among those who heard him back there.

Rest assured that I am doing all I can to carry on this work to the best advantage of all concerned under existing circumstances.

I still have on hand some copies of my tract on "How to Identify the True Church," which I will sell at ten cents per copy, one dollar per dozen, and give every cent to help keep a man here to labor with me in this work. Send all orders to W. L. Reeves, Clemmons, N. C.

I believe that God will take care of all who serve him as best they can. He will take care of us in time of peace and in time of war. He will supply all our needs—not all our luxurious wants, but our needs. He has promised to do so; and if I did not believe he would do so, I would not ask sinners to serve him, for I am not going to ask people to serve one in whom I have no confidence. I preach the God in whom all can trust if they will obey him in his own appointments. (Rom. 8: 28; 1 Pet. 3: 12, 13.) Let us all pray more, labor more, give more, and trust God more, and "lean not to our own understanding" so much. (Prov. 3: 5.) May God bless all the readers of this paper who love and trust him.

Was His Baptism Valid?

BY ISAAC E. TACKETT.

A great deal was said in the papers some time ago on the subject of valid baptism. It is not my purpose in this article to revive the issue. I think enough was said in that controversy at the time. But in my evangelistic work the past season, I met an old brother who told me of his baptism while he was in the Confederate Army. The circumstances connected with the incident were so singular I asked him to give me a written statement of the matter. He did so, and the following is a copy of it:

I was baptized while I was in the Confederate Army. Before going to the army I had heard the gospel preached by a Christian preacher, and I had read my Bible. From these I understood that baptism is necessary to salvation, but on account of my timidity I failed to obey the gospel. After I joined the army, I continued to read my Bible. I soon began to think seriously about becoming a Christian. My fellow-soldiers were being killed around me, and it appeared that my time would come next. I decided to be baptized at once if I could find some one to baptize me. I made an effort to find a Christian preacher, but could find none. We were encamped in a community near a Baptist church, and I learned of a Baptist preacher living near by. I called to see this preacher and asked him if he would baptize me. He said he would be glad to do so, but would have to bring the matter before the church before he could. I insisted on his baptizing me just as I was—just as Phillip baptized the eunuch—without asking the church to vote on the matter. He said it was against the rules of the church for a Baptist preacher to baptize a person without first bringing the matter before the church for the church to authorize the act.

I was very anxious to become a Christian, and I was willing to do almost anything to get some preacher to baptize me. But this preacher positively refused to attend to the matter then, but told me there would be meeting at the church the following Sunday, and, if I would be there, he was sure the church would vote to admit me to baptism. I promise to be present. As I approached the grounds the following Sunday morning, I met this same preacher in company with the visiting preacher, who came to do the preaching that day. This preacher told me that the home preacher had represented the matter to me correctly; that I would have to appear before the church while assembled together and let them pass a vote on the matter before I could receive baptism. I agreed to do this. This church was located in a rich, slave-holding district. The people were wealthy. Fine carriages began to roll up. I saw such a display of pomp and arrogance, of satins and silks, I was disgusted. In my timidity and bashfulness I was frightened at this display of wealth and arrogance, and turned and left the grounds without entering the house.

My next chance was to apply to my

OUTLINES OF BIBLE STUDY

REVISED AND ENLARGED

BY G. DALLAS SMITH

A BRIEF DESCRIPTION

Outlines of Bible Study (Revised and Enlarged) is a book of one hundred and twenty pages, besides five full-page maps covering all Bible lands. It is printed in large, clear type, on good, heavy paper, and is substantially bound in stiff cloth.

The book contains seventeen drill lessons for use in Bible drills, Bible readings, or any other Bible class where it is desired to cover the entire scope of the Sacred Record in a short time.

Outlines of Bible Study is not a commentary in any sense of the word. It contains but few comments. It is not "literature" in the same sense that some object to literature. It rather guides one in his study that it may be intelligent and systematic.

army chaplain, who was a Methodist. Upon revealing to him my desires, he agreed to baptize me. At the appointed time I reported to him, and he carried me through a series of questions and answers, which he read from his "Discipline." My education was very limited, and I did not understand the meaning of the questions he read; but I repeated the answers after him as he read them to me, to the extent that I could remember the words. I did not understand why he was doing this; but, as I was so anxious to be baptized, I was not going to let anything like that keep me from it. When the questions and answers were read and I had partly repeated the answers after him, we went to the water, and he baptized me. I was satisfied when this was done. I considered I was baptized into the church of Christ, into the church of the New Testament, was a Christian; and I have always thought so. I have never had any other church affiliation than to be just simply a Christian. I have never seen the day when I have been dissatisfied with my baptism.

This is old Brother Jule Miller, of Route 5, Mount Pleasant, Texas. He is one of the most devoted Christians I have ever met. In addition to the singular facts connected with his baptism, two very significant things are shown in the story—one, the unscripturalness of the Baptist people in refusing to baptize a candidate until a church has had a vote; the other, the lack of scriptural authority for the Methodist custom of taking candidates through such a list of questions of human origin.

The Pathology of a Burn.

Many people, when afflicted with a slight scald or burn, immediately apply heat as severe as they can stand.

The effect is to temporarily increase the pain, but it also expedites a cure.

Just as frostbite is treated with snow or ice-cold water to save the frozen part, a burn when not too severe is benefited by heat. All burns and scalds should be coated early with heavy oils or grease to shut out the air. This encourages recovery.

It is because Mentholatum is a delicate counter-irritant carried in a heavy oil that it is found so beneficial on scalds and burns.

As a counter-irritant it takes the place of heat and reduces inflammation, while the heavy oil body excludes the air.

Whenever you have a scald or burn, apply Mentholatum liberally and bind it on so that a thick coating will be kept over the injury.

Mentholatum is extremely useful in case of insect bites and stings and for severe cases of sunburn, and for the same reasons as apply in cases of scalds and burns.

Gospel Advocate Piano Club Prevents Waste.

You will not find many men who would deliberately throw away one hundred dollars, and yet there are many who unintentionally waste that amount every year in one way or another. Careless buying is one of the most common ways of wasting money. The founders of the club had that fact in mind when they adopted the principle of cutting down the cost of pianos by cutting out the waste in marketing them. The club claims to save its members forty per cent, and asks you to give it an opportunity to prove this fact to your entire satisfaction by thoroughly testing the piano in your own home before obligating yourself to pay for it. It will cost you only a postal card to investigate; and if the testimony of club members who have already received their instruments is to be relied upon, you will undoubtedly be delighted with the saving in price, the convenient terms, and the superior quality of the instruments. By uniting our orders in a club of one hundred members, each secures the benefit of the lowest possible factory price, and yet it is responsible only for his own order.

Write for your copy of the catalogue and full particulars to-day. Address The Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Ga.

FROM THE FIELD

Alabama.

Anniston, June 23.—Last Sunday I had another very pleasant visit to Mount Carmel and Rogersville. We had splendid audiences at these places. Brother T. C. King, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., will be with the church at Mount Carmel on the fourth Sunday in July for a meeting, and we expect great good to come of it. The Rogersville church looks forward to the coming of Brother Hardeman on August 20. Among those whose faithful labors have been potent factors in the building up of the cause of Christ in this part of North Alabama, the name of Brother W. W. Bates, the drummer preacher, must not be overlooked. There is not another like him, and in the hearts of the faithful here he has a place second to none. The Lord bless him and give us more such ardent soldiers of the cross. It was a great pleasure to be in the hospitable home of Brother John T. Lewis at Birmingham, Thursday, on my way to Anniston. Brother Lewis has the cause of Christ at heart, and for the past nine years has labored faithfully in the city of Birmingham. God has abundantly blessed the labors of the faithful there, and with implicit faith in him whose they are and whom they serve, and with a willingness to suffer for Christ and the gospel's sake, they will press on to greater things. I am now with the little band that was planted here in October last, concerning whom I shall have more to say in another report. J. PERRY EZELL.

India.

Tali Tal, U. P., British India, May 29.—Work is going on as usual. I have found a Brahmin officeholder who is down on idolatry and thirsting for the truth. Health about as usual. E. S. JELLEY, JR.

Kentucky.

Hickory, June 20.—On the second Lord's day in this month I closed a meeting at Fulton. Enthusiastic audiences greeted us at all the services, and as a result of our labors one came from the "digressives." This is the home of Brother F. O. Howell, and he is doing a splendid work in that city. I go next to Elkton, Ala. CHARLIE TAYLOR.

Tennessee.

Erin, June 15.—Our meeting closed last night, having continued two weeks. The meeting was conducted by Brother F. L. Paisley, of Metropolis, Ill. While there were some things of the world to hinder the meeting, it was a good one. We had excellent attention and good interest to the last. We are planning to have Brother F. W. Chunn and Brother Paisley next spring as long as interest demands, as this one had to close too soon, it seems. We have asked Brother Paisley to promise to be here this fall again, which he will do if he can so arrange. There were two additions to the congregation—one from the Baptists and one from the Presbyterians. (MISS) LOUISE BAGGETT.

Gray Hairs

mean that your hair is not receiving proper attention, and yet a gray hair will do more to make you look old than anything else. Rid yourself of an aged appearance by giving the hair correct treatment and proper food. There can be no life without food; and unless you give your hair the proper attention, you cannot expect it to retain its luster and beauty. Use "La Creole," the best of all hair dressings, and see your gray hairs disappear. This dressing was discovered by the Creoles, of Louisiana, many years ago, who were famous for their beautiful hair. Since then it has worked wonders, banishing gray hairs and restoring the hair to its original luster. As a hair dressing it has no equal, keeping the scalp in a clean, healthy condition. It has stood the test for over fifty years. Do not use strong alkaline soaps, as they do more damage than good. Use "La Creole" hair dressing, the natural preservative. For sale by all dealers. Price, $1. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Company, Memphis, Tenn.

Cutting Down the Cost of Pianos.

Have you ever stopped to ask yourself the question why oranges which sell for five cents each cost only two cents by the box, or why apples sell so much cheaper by the bushel than by a nickel's worth? It is the same way with pianos. If you were to purchase one hundred pianos (eight car loads) from the factory, you would get a much lower price than if you purchased only one. That is why the Gospel Advocate Piano Club, composed of one hundred buyers who club their orders into one big order, is saving its members at least forty per cent on high-grade pianos and player pianos.

You are cordially invited to write for your copy of the club's beautifully illustrated catalogue, which fully explains the big saving in price, the convenient terms, and the guarantees of quality and permanent satisfaction. Address The Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Ga.

NEARLY HALF OFF FOR INTRODUCTION

The Introduction Offer on "NEW SONGS OF PRAISE" is Liberal

The Problem Solved

In order that the real merit of "New Songs of Praise" may be as early and as widely known as possible, we have decided on a rather expensive method of advertising. The song-book question is a most important one in connection with the coming protracted meeting. The churches want and should have plenty of books. The cost of a really good book in large quantities is no small item, and this added to other necessary expenses makes the purchase of a sufficient supply of books in many instances almost out of the question. Unfortunately, many settle the matter by buying one of the many cheap, inferior song books that are every year placed on the market.

Singers, we have solved the problem for you. We are offering to send you for introduction one hundred copies of "New Songs of Praise" for $16.50. The cheap and almost worthless books—books that cost little to make and contain very little that is classical in the realm of song—will cost you this much and even more. Every selection in "New Songs of Praise" is a high-class song. It is a book brimful of the very best songs for the churches. It is not to be classed with the ordinary cheap book that is being offered every summer from almost every town and village in the country. It is a great book, a book that will live, a book that cost many hundreds of dollars to produce and that singers everywhere have but to use to appreciate.

One hundred copies, $16.50; 50 copies, $9 for Introduction.

One edition of "New Songs of Praise" contains ten lessons in vocal music. This edition costs five cents a copy extra.

COMMENDATIONS

Where "New Songs of Praise" has been introduced, it is receiving the highest indorsements. The statements below are taken from several hundred already received. Note carefully the opinion expressed by these well-known brethren:

I have examined "New Songs of Praise" carefully, and I firmly believe that it is the best collection of gospel songs I have yet seen.
JEWELL MATTHEWS.
 San Angelo, Texas, May 15, 1916.

A copy of your 1916 song book reached me in due time. I have examined it carefully, and I, in my humble judgment, pronounce it the best book you have ever put out, and I predict for it a very large sale.
W. W. SLATER.
 Maud, Okla., May 21, 1916.

I began a vocal school at Waggoner on Monday. In this school I used "New Songs of Praise" put out by the Firm Foundation Company, and tested its merits fully, and can say that it is the best book I ever used. There are many songs in it that are well worth the price of the book.
T. F. BURT.
 Commerce, Texas, May 10, 1916.

The "New Songs of Praise" is the best song book we have found. The church at Bonham purchased one hundred copies.
TOM WALKER.
 Bonham, Texas, May 10, 1916.

It is doubtless the best book yet published by the Firm Foundation Company. I should like to see the churches use it extensively. It is scriptural and well adapted to all kinds of church work.
W. F. LEDLOW.
 Lockney, Texas, May 15, 1916.

To the Churches

Few of the brethren, perhaps, realize how much effort has been put forth, how much time was required, and how much money has been spent in order to furnish the brotherhood with this valuable collection of hymns and songs. The editors have selected only such songs as should be used by Christians who speak where the Bible speaks and are silent where it is silent. Brethren Taylor and Showalter are well known in the brotherhood for their integrity and faithfulness. They have earnestly tried to produce a book that the brethren will appreciate because it is filled with sound gospel teaching and the sweetest melodies that have been composed by the great masters in musical composition. We hope the labors of these good brethren will be recognized and appreciated by the loyal churches. They have done a good work. If all other things were equal, if their book were simply as good as the book of some other publisher, it would be a matter of loyalty to truth for friends of primitive Christianity to order and use "New Songs of Praise." But we really think that from every right standpoint the book is the best song selection that has been issued in recent years. We should sell at least one hundred thousand copies at once. We earnestly request the churches and brethren who teach vocal school to give this matter serious attention. You need these books, and we have thousands ready to ship at a moment's notice. Let the orders come by mail or telegram. They will receive prompt attention. The price is right. The hearty and prompt cooperation of the brotherhood in this good work is most earnestly desired and solicited.

Vocal-music teachers are pleased with "New Songs of Praise."

BROWN.

Sister Arabella Brown, daughter of Brother and Sister Bedford Barton, was born on October 29, 1847; was "born again" in May, 1873; and died on May 2, 1916. She was married to Brother T. L. Brown on October 31, 1872. To this union ten children were born. Three of them died in infancy. She was sick thirteen months and bore her sufferings with Christian fortitude. Kind hands did all they could for her. Brother J. W. Grant spoke words of comfort to the bereaved; and well he could, for she was kind to her husband and children and neighbors, so good to nurse the sick, kind to the preachers, good and attentive to the Lord's-day meetings, and given to hospitality. She was indeed a mother in Israel and a splendid example of thrift and industry. As she neared the summons' call her faith and hope grew stronger and brighter, and she died leaving behind her the rich heritage of a good name and a life filled with devoted service.

JARRATT SMITH.

Jones.

On November 4, 1908, Willis Henry Wyatt, only son of Ollie A. and Mattie Lou Jones, came to bless their home circle, and on March 7, 1916, his sweet spirit winged its flight to realms unknown. He had been spared to his devoted parents seven short years and had so entwined himself around their heart strings that the breaking away has left their hearts torn and bleeding with an almost inconsolable grief. Their precious boy is gone from the once complete home, leaving a vacant chair. Wyatt is not there with his joy and laughter, bringing sunshine and happiness; but in his innocent childhood we know he is safe in a Savior's love, where parents and sisters may be reunited with their loved one in the "sweet by and by." In our shortsightedness we cannot know why these things should be, why we are compelled to bow in submission, but some day we shall see and know. To the parents I would say: Look up with trusting hearts and see the hand of God.

ANNIE R. CASEY.

Greene.

The beautiful life of Mrs. Lou Greene closed its earthly career on February 22, 1916, and her body was laid to rest the following day in the old Hogue cemetery beside her husband to await the resurrection morn. The bank of beautiful flowers showed the tender love of friends and loved ones. The funeral services were conducted in the home by L. E. Jones in the presence of a large assemblage.

She was a victim of that dread disease, consumption. All that loving hands and a kind physician could do was done for her comfort and to alleviate her suffering. She bore it all patiently and was always cheerful to her friends. Hers was a notable life. She was mother, friend, and wise counselor to her children. O, how they will miss her, and how we all have missed her strengthening presence! For as long as strength would permit she was at her post of duty at the assembling of the saints on Lord's day, putting to shame those of stronger bodies, but of weaker faith. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." MATTIE HAMPTON.

Burnett. *

Benjamin Leonard Burnett was born at Kingston Springs, Tenn., on December 16, 1856. In the year 1883 he accepted a position with the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway as dispatcher, and continued in that company's service for thirty-three consecutive years, having been transferred to Chattanooga some time in 1891. He was married on January 31, 1885, to Mattie J. Berry, of Gibson, Tenn. To this union were born three children—two sons and one daughter. He was a member of the Cowart Street church of Christ, and had served as one of its elders for twenty-one years. He had been in failing health for several months, and death came on Saturday morning, May 27, 1916, at 9:15 o'clock, at his home, 706 Vance Avenue, Chattanooga. Surviving him are his wife and children, three sisters, and one brother; also a niece, who resides in Chattanooga. Funeral services were conducted from the Cowart Street Church by Brethren W. A. McCullough, E. H. Hoover, and Aruna Clark. The interment was in Forest Hill Cemetery. May the life of this grand, good man ever influence us to greater efforts for Christ.

ARUNA CLARK.

Crank.

Sister S. D. Crank was born on October 1, 1827, and departed this life on May 18, 1916, having spent eighty-eight years, seven months, and seventeen days on the earth. A number of these years had been spent as a faithful member of the body of Christ. This dear old sister had expressed a desire to leave this world, feeling no fear at all. She wrote on a slip of paper, which she kept in her Bible, long before her death, several statements, among which were, "Gone to rest," and, "She lived a Christian life and died in full hope of a glorious resurrection." Paul says that no man knows the things of man, save the spirit of man that dwells in him.

(1 Cor. 2: 11.) Our sister's own statements should have more weight than all the eulogies of men; it shows her own spirit's knowledge of her Christian character, the sincerity of which it is possible to hide from others. Sister Crank had two strokes of paralysis during the week immediately preceding her death. She died in the home of her daughter at Conyersville, Tenn. She was of a highly respected family, and leaves behind children that reflect honor on the family history. The writer spoke the message of comfort at the burl of this aged sister in the presence of a large number of relatives and friends.
T. B. THOMPSON.

Hix.

Another home has been darkened and shrouded in sorrow by the angel of death and robbed of one who brought sunshine, joy, and happiness to its inmates; another has gone to wear the glittering crown and bask in the sunshine of the Savior's love. The angel of death silently treads the doorway of our homes and with his key fingers touches our fondest treasures and takes them from our embrace one by one—those dear to our hearts. Sister Una J. Hix was born on January 14, 1878, and winged her flight to the spirit world on June 9, 1916. She was born into the kingdom of God's dear Son about twelve years ago, under the preaching of Brother W. B. Boyd, at Whitleyville, Tenn., her home congregation. She lived a consecrated Christian until her Father called her home. She was perfectly submissive to her Master's call. She faced death bravely and passed into the spirit world without a struggle. Impressive funeral services were conducted by Brother Marion Harris. She leaves a fond father, a loving mother, a kind brother, and a host of relatives, schoolmates, and friends. Father, mother, and brother, weep not as those who have no hope, but prepare to meet her in that great family reunion around heaven's family altar, the throne of God. Friends and schoolmates, let us strive to meet her in the great college hall of eternity, there to again be students, with Jesus Christ as our dear Teacher and his will as our divine text, to go on learning and growing wiser and happier as the cycles come and go.

Renew Your Health At Nature's Fountain

Without the Expense and Loss of Time Necessary for a Visit to the Spring

THE CRISIS

There comes a time in the life of practically every man and woman when their digestive or eliminative organs, or both, fail to respond to drugs prepared by human skill. In fact drugs seem to do them about a much harm as good for their systems. Bel against all drugs. These are the cases which physicians call "stubborn" and "chronic" for the reason that they persist in spite of drug treatment. I do not refer to incurable diseases such as cancer and consumption, but to that larger class of functional disorders which we meet every day, where the organs of digestion and elimination are impaired.

For this class of cases our best physicians and our big city specialists send their wealthy patients to the mineral springs where, in the great majority of cases they are permanently restored or decidedly benefited. But what about the poor man who has not the money or the busy man or woman who cannot spare the time to spend several weeks or possibly months at a health resort? Shall circumstances deny them the restoration to health which Nature has provided? Read my answer in the coupon at the bottom of this page.

I have the utmost confidence in the Shivar Mineral Spring Water for to it I owe my Restoration to Health and probably my Life. It has made me tens of thousands of friends in all parts of America and even in foreign countries, whose faces I have never seen. Yet I count them my friends for the Shivar Spring Water has bound them to me by lasting gratitude.

I ask you to read their letters, a few samples of which I publish below for your benefit, and if you find among them any encouragement as to your own health do not hesitate to accept my offer which has no limits or conditions except those shown on the coupon. If you could read the letters that come to me daily, numbering about ten thousand a year, and the vast majority of them similar to those printed below, you would not wonder that I make this offer displaying my absolute confidence in the restorative powers of Shivar Mineral Water.

INDIGESTION

Savannah, Georgia.
I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

La Grange, Ga., Nov. 23, 1914.
I feel it my duty to suffering humanity to make public announcement of the benefits I have derived from Shivar Spring Water. I have been a sufferer for the past twenty-five years from indigestion and dyspepsia. After one week's trial of Shivar Water I commenced to improve, and after drinking it for four weeks I gained fifteen pounds. I feel better and stronger than I have in twenty-five years. I strongly recommend this Water to any one with stomach trouble of any character, and truly believe it will cure ulcer of the stomach. I am writing this voluntarily and trust it will fall in the hands of many who are so unfortunate as to be afflicted with indigestion and nervous dyspepsia.

C. V. TRUITT,
President Daily Cotton Mills.

Baltimore, Md., April 30, 1914.
For many years I suffered with stomach trouble as a direct result of asthma. I consulted the very best specialist in this country, and spent quite a large sum of money in my endeavor to get relief. However, I had about come to the conclusion that my case was hopeless, but by accident I happened to get hold of one of your booklets, and decided to try Shivar Spring Water. After drinking the water for about three weeks I was entirely relieved, and since that time have suffered but little inconvenience from my trouble. I cheerfully recommend the use of your Water to any one that may be suffering from stomach trouble.

It is a great pleasure to tell you that your Water has been a great benefit. I may say a great blessing, to me. My wife says it has helped me more than anything else I ever tried. I have been, for thirty years, a sufferer from stomach trouble.

REV. E. H. ROWE,
Co-President Southern Seminary.

RHEUMATISM

Leeds, S. C.
I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M. D.
Florence, S. C.

I suffered with indigestion and kidney trouble, and a year ago was stricken with acute articular rheumatism; was helpless for months, and since using your Spring Water I am walking without any crutch and improving daily. Indigestion much relieved. I wish I could write Shivar Spring Water in the sky so that the world could become acquainted with it.

MRS. THEO. KUKER.

BILIOUSNESS

Greenville, S. C., Feb. 26, 1914.
For over two years, following a nervous breakdown, I have suffered with a liver so torpid that ordinary remedies were absolutely powerless. Under such circumstances, I came to Shivar Spring, and began drinking the Water. Upon advice, however, the first night I took a laxative; the second night a milder one. Since then I have taken none at all. The effect of the water has been remarkable—its action on my liver most marked, and my health and spirits greatly improved. I am satisfied that the laxative, followed by the Water, was the proper treatment in my case. My condition is now perfect.

S. A. DEHEUX.

RENAL AND CYSTIC

Columbia, S. C.
I suffered for eight years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder to the extent that I would have to get up during the night some five or six times. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.

J. P. D.

High Point, N. C., Oct. 6, 1914.
My wife has had a bad kidney trouble for several years. She has been using the water only about three weeks and it has already made her a new woman. Her color is much improved, her appetite is all that she could wish for, her digestion seems to be perfect. We give Shivar Springs credit for it all.

GALLSTONES

Greenville, S. C.
Shivar Spring Water cured my mother of gallstones, or, I might say, it snatched her from the hospital door, as the doctors had said nothing short of an operation would do her any good. After drinking the Water she was able to get out of bed, and is today stout and healthy. I hope these few lines will be of help to some one suffering as my mother did.

Paul's Ideal of Growth and Development.

"And he gave some to be apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers: for the perfecting of the saints, unto the work of ministering, unto the building up of the body of Christ: till we all attain unto the unity of the faith, and of the knowledge of the Son of God, unto a full-grown man, unto the measure of the stature of the fullness of Christ: that we may be no longer children, tossed to and fro and carried about with every wind of doctrine, by the sleight of men, in craftiness, after the wiles of error; but speaking truth in love, may grow up in all things into him, who is the head, even Christ: from whom all the body fitly framed and knit together through that which every joint supplieth, according to the working in due measure of each several part, maketh the increase of the body unto the building up of itself in love." A Discourse on Acts of Apostles.

BY J. D. FLOYD.

[NOTE.—This discourse was delivered at Flat Creek, Tenn., and, at the request of a number of persons who heard it, was prepared for publication.—EDITOR'S NOTE.]

I have heretofore called attention to the fact that the religious world this year is studying Bible lessons taken mainly from the fifth book of the New Testament—the Acts of Apostles. From a diagram I had on the blackboard I preached two discourses, in one showing that the history of the beginning of the Christian dispensation, the inauguration of the new covenant, and the fulfillment of many of the prophecies concerning the blessings of the glorious reign of Christ were found in the Acts of Apostles; in the second, the purpose of the miraculous in the formative period of the church.

To-day I desire to call attention to some other things that stand out prominent in this important connection of the Holy Scriptures. In the Acts of Apostles we have the history of the beginning and early development of the most wonderful revolution in human history. This is especially so when the seeming simplicity of the means by which it was effected is considered. At that time the Roman empire, the last universal human government, was in the zenith of its power. The martial tread of its armies resounded in the remotest corners of the earth. Its eagles, symbols of her mighty conquests, floated everywhere. While boasting of its learning and culture, its civilization was of a low order. Its condition is concisely described by Paul in the first chapter of his Roman letter: "Being filled with all unrighteousness, fornication, wickedness, covetousness, maliciousness; full of envy, murder, debate, deceit, malignity; whisperers, backbiters, haters of God, despiteful, proud, boasters, inventors of evil things, disobedient to parents, without understanding, covenant breakers, without natural affection, implacable, unmerciful." That they were without natural affection is shown by the well-known fact that when parents became old and were no longer able to work they were put to death, like people to-day do with worn-out stock. Not only so, but defective children and sometimes even girl babies were slain. This fearful state of depravity was the result of an idolatrous, superstitious religion that was deeply imbedded in the hearts of the people. Polytheism prevailed. Deities innumerable were worshiped; heroes of antiquity, kings, emperors, and founders of nations had been exalted to the supreme height of gods; the sun, the moon, and various luminaries of the heavens were adored; rivers, mountains, trees, vegetables, animals, and even human passions were deified; men in priestly attire were everywhere; in every market were animals that were sold to the superstitious worshipers; on every hilltop and in every valley were altars from which the smoke of their sacrifices daily ascended to the heavens. Such was the condition of the Gentile world when the events recorded in Acts of Apostles began to transpire. The condition of the Jews was not much better. They were divided into warring sects; and, by the addition of human tradition, their religion, though divinely given, had become effete. So far had they departed from the way of righteousness that Paul said: "They are all gone out of the way, they are together become unprofitable; there is none that doeth good, no, not one."

Under these unpropitious surroundings the unequal combat began. Twelve unlettered men, unaided by any of those external circumstances regarded as necessary to success, began their appeal to the world. There were no marshaling of armies, no tread of soldiers, no burnished spears, no gleaming swords, no booming cannon and bursting shells; but, instead, the silent power of the gospel was relied on. They presented a few facts for belief, a few simple rites for observance, and a life of purity, self-denial, and sacrifice to be lived, with no promise of earthly reward and no immunity from human sorrow and suffering. The contest seemed hopeless; but at the first appeal three thousand accepted the new life, and a few days later the number increased to five thousand, then great multitudes. From Jerusalem the revolution spread throughout Judea, then to Samaria, then to the uttermost parts of the world. Within thirty years the entire Roman empire was permeated by the principles of the revolution begun with such unequal odds as detailed in the first part of this book, the Acts of Apostles. An entire change was wrought in the face of the world. Heathen altars tumbled into ruins, animals for idolatrous sacrifices remained unsold in the market, while idolatrous priests wandered idle and aimless in the streets. Man's fierce nature was subdued, and he was on the upward trend to a life befitting a being formed in the image of God.

The beginning of this revolution was, indeed, the beginning of a new era. The quickened intellect caused by the implantation of the gospel has brought about better conditions in all departments of life. The brotherhood of man was taught and human sympathy was aroused, and hence, instead of putting the unfortunate out of the way, homes and asylums are provided for them. This characteristic was marked in the very beginning, for we find those having possessions—a new thing in the world's history—selling them and giving to those in need. Another marked exemplification of this was that Gentile Christians in far-off provinces sent relief to the Jewish Christians in Judea, notwithstanding their former prejudices.

The beginning of this revolution marked the beginning of better material conditions for man. It has given us better homes, better and more comfortable clothes, better food, better domestic affairs, better implements of husbandry (the heathen scarifies the earth with a forked stick, while the Christian mellows the soil with an Oliver chilled plow), better conveyances, and better domestic animals.

Here I stop to relate an incident. Many, many years ago, when David Lipscomb, who is now aged and feeble, with a long life of service to humanity behind him, was a young preacher, he was riding one of the roads of Franklin County with a young doctor who was an avowed infidel. In the course of conversation the doctor said: "Mr. Lipscomb, I want you to tell me one good thing the Christian religion has given us." Brother Lipscomb thought he would take him on his own ground, and replied: "It has given us better hogs." And so it has, as well as other domestic animals.

I have now reached the point where I wish to take another view of the subject. These changes I have been considering are mainly changes en masse. This wonderful change en masse was the result of individual changes. All were not affected, but enough were to change the moral aspect of the world. Very soon the cold breezes from the Rockies will be deflected north, then the warm sunshine will come to our forests that are now of a leaden hue to burst forth in their beautiful foliage of green. This change as a whole will result from the change in each individual leaf. All objects will not be green, but enough will be to change the general aspect. So, in the case under consideration, the moral aspect of the world was brought about by the change in moral conditions of individuals. This change in the New Testament is called "conversion." The word itself carries with it the idea of a change or transformation. In conversion there is a change or purification of the heart. This includes a change or transfer of the affections from sin and the world to Christ and righteousness; a change of life, a ceasing to do evil and learning to do well; and a change in relationship from the kingdom over which Satan reigns to the kingdom where Christ is King. The man thus purified in heart and life and state is indeed a new creature. The changed condition of the world, as shown in the Acts of Apostles, was the result of the change in individuals as here pointed out. I now raise the question, By what power was this done? Negatively, not by miracles or the miraculous gifts of the Spirit. They imparted no moral quality. Those who were subjects of miraculous manifestation had to overcome the flesh and fleshly desires the same as others. Paul, though wonderfully endowed, had to "keep his body under." A few quotations will show the means by which conversion was brought about. "The law of the Lord is perfect, converting the soul." (David.) "I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth." "I declare unto you the gospel, . . . by which also ye are saved." (Paul.) "Receive with meekness the engrafted word, which is able to save your souls." (James.) "Seeing ye have purified your souls in obeying the truth through the Spirit unto unfeigned love of the brethren, see that ye love one another with a pure heart fervently: being born again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, by the word of God, which liveth and abideth forever." (Peter.) Here is brought out the fact that man must obey. The truth purifies, but the truth must be obeyed. The gospel saves, but the gospel must be obeyed. This prepares the way for one more quotation: "God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness." (Rom. 6: 17, 18.) The same persons here who were servants of sin, with all that term means, are now servants of righteousness, with all that term means. There was a dividing line between the two states. There was something that changed from one to the other, and that something was obedience "to the form of doctrine." The momentous question arises, then: What do persons do when they "obey the form of doctrine?" I heard Dr. Ditzler, standing where I am to-day, say: "The authority I have to-day for preaching the gospel to the world and offering them salvation through Christ is in the commission." That we may have before us what is in that commission, I have here on the blackboard a diagram of it; and that we may see how the apostles understood it, another diagram, with eleven of the most fully reported cases of conversion to be found in the Acts, the book the religious world is studying this year:

I now ask every boy and girl, man and woman, who is studying the Bible lessons this year, as well as others, to follow me while I briefly go over the ground covered by these diagrams, and to honestly compare what I have here with the Scriptures they are studying. In the commission as recorded by Matthew we have: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." In Mark: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.

He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." In Luke: "Thus it behooved Christ to suffer, and to rise from the dead the third day: and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." In Matthew, preaching and baptism are mentioned; in Mark, preaching, faith, and baptism; in Luke, preaching and repentance. Putting all together, we have preaching the gospel, with the promise that he that believes, repents of his sins, and is baptized shall be saved. This, as Dr. Ditzler said, was the apostles' authority for offering salvation to a sinful world. In order to see how they understood it, I now invite attention to the other diagram. On the day of Pentecost, as recorded in the second chapter of Acts, the Holy Spirit came upon the apostles, enduing them with power from on high, as had been promised. (This was the time and place they had been commanded to begin preaching the things found in the commission.) A multitude came together, the apostle Peter preached to them, and at the close said: "Let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." This is a command to believe in the very strongest terms. On hearing this, the people said: "What shall we do?" Peter answered: "Repent, and be baptized." Here, in the first case of conversion under the commission, are preaching, faith, repentance, and baptism. A few days afterwards, as found in the third chapter, Peter preached to another large audience gathered in the temple. In the discourse he commanded them to repent, and the record says that "many of them that heard believed." Here, again, are preaching, faith, and repentance. Baptism is not named in the connection, but other places show that they were baptized. After the disciples were scattered abroad through persecution, Philip (Acts 8) went to Samaria and "preached Christ unto them." The record says: "When they believed Philip preaching the things concerning the kingdom of God, and the name of Jesus Christ, they were "baptized, both men and women." Preaching, faith, and baptism are expressly named. In preaching to the Samaritans, Philip preached to Simon, a noted fortune-teller. He "believed also" and "was baptized." Directed by an angel, Philip left the city and went into a certain region. There he met with a distinguished traveler, who was reading the Scriptures. Philip took a seat with him in his chariot and preached unto him Jesus, with the result that, on a confession of his faith in Christ, Philip baptized him. Chapter 9 gives a history of the conversion of the great persecutor, Saul of Tarsus. In his case preaching and baptism are in the record. Peter (Acts 10) was miraculously called to bear the message of the gospel to the Gentiles at the house of Cornelius. They heard the gospel from the mouth of Peter and believed, they repented and were baptized. Now, that I may not be further tedious, I simply state that Lydia (chapter 16) heard Paul preach and was baptized; that the jailer had the word of the Lord preached to him, and he believed and was baptized; that Paul preached the gospel to the Corinthians (chapter 18), and they "believed and were baptized;" and that the Ephesians (chapter 19) had heard the gospel and believed, and that they were baptized. Now to recapitulate: The commission contains preaching, faith, repentance, and baptism. The history of the preaching under this commission is found in the Acts. Of the eleven most fully reported cases—occurring, too, during a period of twenty-five years—preaching is mentioned in all, faith in nine, repentance in three, and baptism in ten. In making the diagram, I put in what occurred in the context, as every student of the Bible lessons will see. Where an item was not in the context, other scriptures show it was not absent in fact.

We found in the earlier part of this discourse that in conversion there is a change of heart; of life, or conduct; and of state, or relationship. Into what new relationship, then, are converted persons brought? I answer: The church, or kingdom, of God. Including the conversions on Pentecost and Solomon's portico, it is said: "The Lord added to the church daily such as should be saved." After the conversion of the Samaritans, we read of the "churches of Samaria." Saul was converted; afterwards he is found in the church at Antioch. Cornelius is converted, and we have the church of the Gentiles. Conversions took place at Philippi, at Corinth, and at Ephesus, and we find the church at each place. One more question and I am through: What blessing or blessings did these all obtain when they became members of the church? I will let Paul answer: "Giving thanks unto the Father, which hath made us meet to be partakers of the inheritance of the saints in light: who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son: in whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins." (Col. 1: 12-14.) Redemption through the blood of Christ, forgiveness of sins, and, indeed, all spiritual blessings, are the rich heritage of all who by obedience to the gospel pass from the world into the church of the living God.

Letting Our Light Shine.

BY W. P. SKAGGS.

Jesus said: "Ye are the light of the world. A city set on a hill cannot be hid. Neither do men light a lamp, and put it under a bushel, but on the stand; and it shineth unto all that are in the house. Even so let your light shine before men; that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven." One of the definitions of "light" is: "The medium through which light is admitted." So when Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world," he taught us that we are to be mediums through which the world is to receive the light of the gospel. We are reflectors for the light; and as the light passes through our hearts and lives, it is so intensified that the world is made to see clearly the truth and divinity of the religion of Jesus Christ. As we reflect this gospel light, we give the world a constant object lesson of the Christ life. Our lights cannot give light to the world and show them the way of truth when our reflectors are all smutty and black, when our lives are so blackened and spotted by the pollutions of sinfulness that the light cannot shine through. So in order that we may make ourselves indeed lights unto the world, we must keep ourselves pure. The greatest argument that can be made for the Christ is the object lesson of a Christ life.

Another definition of "light" is: "To attend or conduct with a light; to show the way." We are to attend or conduct the world from sin and ruin to the Lord Jesus Christ. We are to show them the light by living the light, as Jesus said, "that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven." We cannot lead them to Christ by exalting our opinions. We cannot show them the way by preaching human theories. Nor can we lead them into God's house by leading them into some human institution. But by living the truth, by shunning the things of the flesh and "following after righteousness, godliness, faith, love, patience, and meekness," we may lead them to the church of Christ—God's soul-saving station—thus proving ourselves worthy of being members of God's life-saving crew, of the Lord's army. Not fighting people, but fighting for people, we get the light into their hearts.

But how are we to do all these great things?

1. By our words. Words are the signs of ideas, and we must make our words carry the right ideas to the world. If our words are filled with the right ideas, they will carry the light of Jesus to the world. Remember, our words will surely show the spirit that actuates them. Whatever may be the motive that lies behind our words will eventually reveal itself. Then let us be filled with the Spirit of the Lord, and let that Spirit actuate the words that we speak; then will they burn and glow with that divine light that will turn men in love from the dark ways of sin and fill their hearts with the joys of salvation.

Neither tongue nor pen should ever be dipped in the chalice of envy, strife, bitterness, or sedition. Never let our words become the harrowing teeth of the muck rake, but the rather fill them with love, joy, and peace. As our words are filled with and carry to others these great blessings, so will they return to us with the same blessings. Solomon said: "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in a network of silver." O, the power of words for either weal or woe! Solomon also said, "A soft answer turneth away wrath;" and a poet once wrote:

"A little word in kindness spoken,
A motion or a tear,
Has often healed a heart that's broken,
And made a friend sincere."

Our words are little arrows shot from our hearts that will speed on and on until they lodge in some other heart, there to abide and fill that heart with the ideas and spirit that actuated their sending. They will either be filled with heavenly sunshine and will fill the receiving heart with this heavenly boon, or they will darken counsel, banish love, and drive to ruin. God grant that we may watch our words and make them vehicles of light.

Again I want to impress this truth upon our hearts: Our words will have a reflex action. They will return to us with the same spirit that sent them out. If we have sent them in love, sent them filled with the joys of the Christian trust, they will return to us in the same way. They will bring to us the blessings of love and happiness. If we would fill our own hearts with the joys of heavenly sunshine, then we must fill our words and actions with these same principles; then will they return to us, filling our hearts with these same heavenly boons.

2. Our lights are to shine through our works. "Ye are a city set upon a hill that cannot be hid." We cannot hide our lives. The world sees and knows us. It sees and knows whether or not we are trying to do the right thing. Our reflectors should not be allowed to become spotted or blackened by questionable conduct. They will give better light when kept clean. James teaches us to keep ourselves unspotted from the world. Now if we are constantly guilty of conduct of a doubtful character, are not we spotted? If we are visiting places of ill repute, are not we spotted? If we are constantly doing things that give the world a chance to truthfully criticize our conduct, are not we spotted? And if we are keeping these spots alive, continually blackening and spotting our conduct, can we be lights to show the world the way? Can the world trust us to show them the light when we live on the low level of sin ourselves? I trow not.

Jesus said: "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works." Seeing the purity of our lives, they will be persuaded of the reality of our religion, will see the beauty of holiness, and will glorify our Father which is in heaven. They see you visiting the fatherless and widows, they see you relieving the oppressed, they see your faithful devotion to duty, they behold the happiness of your religion, and turn to the Lord that they may taste the joys of a full salvation. The exhortation of Paul to Timothy is very applicable here: "Be thou an example to them that believe, in word, in manner of life, in love, in faith, in purity." Instead of doing the things that bring shame and disgrace, that will cause the world to doubt the truth and deny the Lord, we should "let the word of Christ dwell in us richly" and make our lives an open book of good deeds.

Paul tells us that the works of the flesh are these: "Fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, sorcery, enmities, strifes, jealousies, wraths, factions, divisions, parties, envyings, drunkenness, revelings, and such like."

These we must fight. From these, all these, we must keep ourselves pure. These things are the great sin spots that will darken our lives and destroy our influence for good. To make our lives proper lights, we must keep ourselves clean from these evil things. Let us be careful to show in our hearts and lives the blessed fruits of the Spirit—love, joy, peace, and long-suffering. Fill our hearts with the Christ and make our lives soul-saving influences.

The psalmist gives us an excellent way to accomplish this glorious result: "Wherewith shall a young man cleanse his way? by giving heed thereto according to thy word." (Ps. 119: 9.) The word of God is "a lamp unto our feet and a light unto our path," and by giving heed to it we can "let our lights so shine" as to have a soul-saving power and lead many out of darkness into the glorious light of God's dear Son.

O, if we could only fully realize the beauty and glory of being light bearers for the Lord! What an honor he has conferred on us in taking us up out of the cesspools of sin and ruin and making us to be his attendants to attend or conduct the world into the light! Then would we sing: "Lord, make me a blessing to-day."

"O, to be like thee, blessed Redeemer!
O, to be like thee, pure as thou art!
Come in thy sweetness, come in thy fullness,
Stamp thine own image deep in my heart."

"The Old Paths."

BY T. A. PHILLIPS.

"Thus saith the Lord, Stand ye in the ways, and see, and ask for the old paths, where is the good way, and walk therein, and ye shall find rest for your souls." (Jer. 6: 16.) Thus did the prophet of God during the law age invite the people back to God's law—the old paths. In Jer. 9: 13, 14 we learn why the people had forsaken the old paths: they had walked after the imagination of their own hearts (no doubt boasted that they had "heartfelt religion") and after Baalim, which their fathers taught them. As they had departed from God's way and followed the dictates of their own hearts and walked in the way their fathers taught them, no doubt they claimed that theirs was the "old-time religion"—the religion their fathers had taught them, hence was good enough for them. And because of these things, doubtless they accused Jeremiah of teaching a new doctrine; but it was new only in the sense that they had forsaken the law of God on account of their own traditions and practices.

In the early part of the nineteenth century Thomas Campbell and his son, Alexander, and a few other men, began to emerge from the darkness of the long night of apostasy and sectarianism that had been foretold by the word of God (see 2 Tim. 4: 3, 4; 1 Tim. 4: 1; 2 Thess. 2: 3, 4), and to invite the people back to the "old paths"—back to the apostles' doctrine, back to the church as it was in its primitive purity before it became polluted by human hands. They pleaded for a return to the old Jerusalem gospel—the law of the Lord as it first went from Zion or Jerusalem. (Isa. 2: 2, 3; Luke 24: 46-49; Acts 2.) But some were then, and are to-day, like the people of Jeremiah's day. They say, "O, that is a new doctrine—that is not the way our fathers taught us!" and often excuse themselves by saying: "The old-time religion is good enough for me." Brethren, I believe in that old motto adopted by the pioneers of the Restoration movement: "Where the Bible speaks, we speak; where the Bible is silent, we are silent." But this motto was taught by the apostle Peter long before their day in these words: "If any man speak, let him speak as the oracles of God." (1 Pet. 4: 11.) If all religious parties would do that, it would be a long step toward the goal of union for which we all should strive; for every unscriptural expression carries with it an unscriptural idea.

Hence one of the cardinal principles of the Restoration movement is to establish a pure speech, or to call Bible things by Bible names.

Let me insist that when we ask the people to lay aside their creeds and articles of faith and take the Bible, and it alone, we are not preaching a new doctrine (2 Tim. 3: 16, 17; Rev. 22: 18, 19); neither when we promise salvation to the alien sinner on the condition of faith, repentance, and baptism in the name of Christ are we preaching a new gospel, but one that was taught long before Campbell's day—therefore not "Campbellism." (Mark 16: 15, 16; Acts 2: 36-38.) Then, brethren, let us in humility and love, yet with faith and confidence in the power of truth, invite the people to forsake their unscriptural names and their human creeds and practices and return with us to the "old paths," and in love endeavor to "keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

The Lord's Supper.

BY DAVID LIPSCOMB, JR.

Most of the religions of the world are ceremonious. Stripped of their senseless formalities, they are nothing. Processions, pageants, blowing of horns, beating of tom-toms, priestly garments, fixed times and words for prayers, vain repetitions to impress the simple, make up the greater part of their worship. Even upon the religion of the Nazarene so many forms have been grafted that the simplicity of the gospel as taught by Christ and his apostles is swallowed up and lost in outward show and mummery.

The religion of our Master has in it only two ceremonies—baptism and the Lord's Supper—and these are the simplest possible. "And they were baptized of him in Jordan, confessing their sins." And "supper being ended, he took bread, and having blessed it, he brake it, and gave to his disciples," etc. Can anything be less formal or more impressive? As to time of day and way of observing this feast, there is nothing rigidly fixed. It is well known that the precise manner in which the Savior instituted it has been widely departed from. There is no table for all to sit around, for it is found more convenient to have the bread and wine carried to communicants than to have all gather about a table. Also the time—after dark—is very inconvenient for many, and it is usually celebrated in the forenoon.

The materials are bread and wine. As to the kind of bread, except that it was unleavened, no one can be dogmatic. Wheat, rye, and barley were the grains in common use for food in the country of Palestine—wheat for the well to do, and barley and rye furnished the table of the poor. Some strife has arisen as to the wine. Some stoutly maintain that it was fermented; others insist that fresh or unfermented grape juice will answer. What is the use of arguing about what is not told? There should be no unseemly squabbling about the time of day or about the materials. It is stated that the bread was unleavened, and that the liquid was the fruit of the vine (grape, beyond question). But let it be observed in memory of the Master, whose death and the reason for it is too great a mystery for mortal minds, but whose life and teachings are so pure, so simple, so far above anything and everything that the greatest of earthborn teachers and philosophers have given or can give us. "For never man spake like this man."

As to the necessity of weekly instead of quarterly or annual observance, the disciples set the example, having no doubt received the instruction from Jesus. And God, who knows the frailty of the human heart, has put this as a test of loyalty, as an oath of allegiance to be renewed each week of our Christian lives; and it is not too often to pay our homage to him, to consecrate afresh our lives to his service.

"Lord God of hosts, be with us yet, Lest we forget, lest we forget."

Humility.

BY ALICE TIDROW.

(Written especially for the Gospel Advocate.)

When the news was heralded forth
That a great King had been born,
Wise men went with hearts intent
To find him on that bright and glorious morn.
Diligently the search was kept,
But not a royal palace entered;
For—lo!—the star, gleaming from afar,
Over a manger was centered.

And there, wrapped in swaddling clothes,
The Babe of Bethlehem lay;
Humble from birth and the poorest on earth—
Jesus, the life, truth, and way.
Humility—'tis one of the grandest lessons
Earth's greatest hero taught.
His cross he bore, a crown of thorns he wore;
To do his Father's will was all he sought.

And he had not place to lay his head—
Such a meek and lowly King;
Yet his dear name—O, wondrous fame!—
From every mouth some day will ring.
As we walk the narrow way,
From pride and arrogance free,
We can stronger be, as we daily see
The beauty in his humility.

Pious Disobedience.

BY JOHN T. HINDS.

Every kind of disobedience is unquestionably condemned by the word of God. No contrast is more striking than that which the Bible makes in presenting to us the difference between obedience and disobedience.

That God is no respecter of persons is a truth stated several times in the Bible. This we use with much force when trying to show alien sinners that all men are required to obey God. Is it not equally true that God requires all Christians to obey him? Should Christians be less respectful of God's law than sinners? If any difference should be made, the disobedient Christian deserves the greater censure. He professes to know the right. To the sin of disobedience he adds inconsistency.

Christians may neglect known duty. James says: "To him therefore that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." (James 4: 17.) But a Christian may pervert and change the word of God in his pretended obedience. This can be appropriately termed "pious disobedience." Jesus said that worship based on the doctrines and commandments of men was vain. No better example, perhaps, can be found of pious disobedience than the case of Nadab and Abihu. (Lev. 10: 1-7.) The principle of acceptance with God has always been the same—doing what he requires. Hence the case of these priests and their punishment is a solemn warning to the world against disobedience in general. There are a number of practical lessons easily derived from this case. We note the following:

1. It is possible that in offering the fire for which they had no command of God they "meant well." It may have been more convenient than what God commanded. They may not have been able to see why it would not do as well. Like many now, they may have concluded that it made no difference what kind of fire was used so they made the offering—that the end justifies the means. Still, the record says fire came forth from before Jehovah and devoured them. We certainly have no license to reject or change God's word because we do not see why something else will not do as well. It is presumption to sit in judgment on God's law.

2. This case shows that we need to act with fear when we have "no warrant" from God. The Bible says God is a "jealous God." "Uzzah put forth his hand to the ark of God, and took hold of it" (2 Sam. 6: 6), when he had no command for it. The record says the "oxen stumbled," and Uzzah may have sincerely wished to save the ark; but the record also says, "God smote him there for his error," and he died. God had stated how the ark should be moved. If it had been done as God directed, there would have been no occasion for Uzzah's rashness. A failure of some one else to do what God says is not justification for us to do something else.

3. This case also shows that "an intention to do good" cannot excuse us for doing something else when God has revealed his will. Since God had revealed his will on where to get the fire for the offering of incense, to get it anywhere else was disobedience. It was not doing a thing directly forbidden, but doing a thing not commanded. It was indirectly forbidden by something else being commanded. We cannot obey God by doing something he does not tell us to do. Cain evidently offered a sacrifice he was not told to offer; for Abel offered his by faith, and it was accepted. Faith comes from hearing God's word. Thus in the morning of worship—the first recorded case—God places the stamp of his disapproval on doing as worship to him acts he does not command.

4. The higher position one occupies, the more extensive will be the influence of his sin; hence the need for greater care on his part and the stronger punishment for the sin; while the same sin is the same, no difference who commits it, but one may be in a position to make it more prevalent than another. Great preachers are watched and closely imitated. For them to preach or practice a falsehood will quickly spread the evil. These priests were God's representatives in religious service. If their disobedience had gone unpunished, the people would have had no respect for God's law.

5. It was not a "private matter;" they were acting in behalf of the people. Their disobedience would not only affect them in their religious exercises, but would influence millions of others in future ages. We never know where a thing will stop when it gets started; hence these priests who began this perversion of the tabernacle service deserved the severe punishment they received. So do preachers and others now deserve the severest condemnation for starting some unauthorized religious practice that may affect millions and may not ever be stopped.

6. This was the very beginning of the tabernacle service. To ignore such a flagrant disobedience at the start would mean all kinds of perversions in a short time. The first departure is always quoted as a pretext for others. Hence the first should be seriously condemned. It should be prevented if possible.

7. It was clearly a case of "will worship"—a case of "self-devised" worship in part at least. The result shows that the self-devised part was rejected. The apostle condemns "will worship" in Col. 2: 23. Such worship has a "show of wisdom" and may demand "humility and severity to the body," but is of no "value against the indulgence of the flesh." Devising elements of worship has never been acceptable to God. There is no occasion for it, when God has revealed the worship that pleases him.

8. It was not a "lack of worship," or that they were worshipping a strange God. They were in God's house, offering incense to the true God, but were doing it in a way not commanded. Like people now who in religious worship praise God in a way not commanded—that is, with instrumental music—these priests were piously disobedient. Their being killed for such disobedience should never be forgotten by those who engage in worship to God.

9. If people do not "glorify God" in his appointments, God will glorify himself in punishing them. He said: "I will be sanctified in them that come nigh me, and before all the people I will be glorified." Ultimately, if not now, God's will must prevail and his name be honored. Better honor his will now.

10. Aaron and his sons were silent in the presence of their dead. God's law and acts were recognized as just and right. So will it be with us all at the judgment. Whether saved or lost, we will know that "pious disobedience" deserves as severe punishment as any other kind.

May this lesson help us all to "draw nigh to God" in his own way—in "full assurance of faith."

Things Preachers Should Avoid.

BY C. E. HOLT.

There are many things in this world which all Christians should avoid. It is much easier to prevent than it is to cure. There are many evils into which many good-intentioned, unsuspecting Christians fall. Preachers are very much like other people in regard to the weaknesses and imperfections of the flesh.

But there is one thing to which I wish to call especial attention in this article—one thing which preachers, especially young preachers, should avoid; and that is an old congregation which has been torn asunder by some preacher or by elders who have taken the "bit" into their mouths and, regardless of the consequences, have driven a wedge of jealousy and personal feelings and preferences into the body of Christ. When men do this, they are usually ruined for further usefulness in the Master's service. They not only lose the confidence and respect of the church and the community, but they suffer from cirrhosis of the conscience. One of the most fatal diseases to which flesh is heir is cirrhosis of the liver. The liver shrinks, gets hard, and dries up. So it is with a conscience that has been abused by a total disregard of the feelings, friends, and interests of others. In such cases the sinner suffers more than does the one against whom the sin was committed. It may not appear so at first; but as sure as effect follows cause, just that sure will the dire and hardening and poisonous effects of sin be seen and felt.

A family feud is a thing hard to manage, and is a curse to any community. Some feuds in Kentucky, Virginia, and other States have lasted for years, to divide and curse the people of those and adjacent communities. When a church has a feud among its members, especially where preachers and elders are involved, its usefulness is seriously crippled, if not entirely ruined. Unfortunately, in the majority of such cases, the aggressors are arrogant and selfish and stubborn. In vain are all the entreaties and admonitions and remonstrances by brethren of peace-loving and peace-making proclivities.

A preacher who undertakes to bring order out of chaos in such a case as I have mentioned has, indeed, an unenviable task. There is so much expected of him. Those who have been most active in tearing the church to pieces are often the most indolent and worldly-minded in the congregation. They usually call a preacher, turn the wreck over to him, and go on about their business as though nothing had happened, and then wonder why the preacher does not bring people to church and baptize them.

It is many times easier, and a thousand times more pleasant, for the preacher to go into a place where the work is entirely new, and where he is not handicapped by jealousies and bickerings among professed Christians. But do you ask what shall be done with such congregations? Now, my brethren, this is one of the hard propositions with which we so often meet. It is hard to answer this question with any degree of satisfaction to one's self. In this connection, I with diffidence mention one of the most serious obstacles with which we have to contend in our efforts to adjust differences and settle troubles in the congregations in which they occur. I shall not discuss this feature of the case, but simply call attention to it. It would, however, be well to have this subject thoroughly ventilated by those who are competent and whose courage is equal to the work. It is an exceedingly delicate question among those who have accepted the Episcopal idea of church government. I mean by this the idea that the management of the local congregation is, of divine right, in the hands of the episcopacy. Of course we use other terms, such as the "eldership," etc.

Now, accepting, as I heartily do, the divine recognition of men of certain characteristics and intellectual and spiritual endowments as leaders in the churches of God, yet I am somewhat dubious about the absolute authority which is by some thought to inhere in the "eldership." Associated with this idea of virtually acknowledged infallibility of the elders is the lifetime tenure of office to which many tenaciously hold. I mention this to set wise and good men to thinking for themselves along this very important line.

But I am digressing from my main line of thought. I do not advise any one, especially a preacher, to slight a task nor shirk a duty, but hopeless and incurable cases will damage any preacher's reputation. If a physician just starting into the practice of his profession selects some of the most hopeless cases, he evidently takes a great risk. Wisdom and common sense would say that he would better practice a while upon those whose troubles are mild and easily handled. When a congregation has dissensions and disruptions, many weak members are driven out and are lost. They are not able to stand. But the most virile and aggressive and independent members will band themselves together and carry on the Lord's work despite the charge of insubordination that may be hurled against them.

In a sense, some of the strongest congregations have failed. In another sense, God's work will not and cannot fail. Men may prove recreant and false to the trust reposed in them, but the truth will rise and shine and finally reign supreme. The gospel is God's power to save; and its saving power is not lodged in the hands of pope nor priest nor preacher. No order nor conclave has a monopoly on the word of God. The humblest disciple can tell the story of love and truth and mercy and pardon, and no ecclesiastical court has a right to say nay.

What a Poor Sister Did With Her Dollar.

A few days ago a dear, good Christian woman handed Brother McQuiddy one dollar with the request that he have the Gospel Advocate sent to some needy person who would enjoy the paper. The beauty about this thoughtful act lies in the fact that she herself was a poor woman and had received the paper as a gift from the publishers. When, however, she came into possession of a little money, she immediately began to plan for the happiness of another. Jesus Christ said of his disciples: "Herein is my Father glorified, that ye bear much fruit." A branch does not bear fruit for itself, but for others. It seeks not its own glory, but the glory of the husbandman. Jesus explained that he is the vine, the disciples are the branches, and the Father is the husbandman. The only way we can glorify the Husbandman is to bear fruit; and Jesus expects not a little bit, but "much fruit." The reward is determined by the quantity in proportion to what we have. The dear old saint who gave that dollar is like the poor widow who gave all that she had. There are many more prosperous readers who have not yet contributed to the Gospel Advocate's Joy Fund, set apart to have the paper sent to the poor, aged, and invalid who would like to read it, but have not the means. Are you not moved by the beautiful action of this good woman to do something yourself? Send a contribution to-day to the Joy Fund. We will see to it that it brings great happiness.

The Mystery of Godliness.

BY C. S. AUSTIN.

[So long as people are prone to ask questions that do not relate to their duty and cannot in any way help others, but that oftentimes create doubt and confusion, a simple "trust and obey" article is in order. We especially commend the effort of Brother Austin along this line.—EDITOR'S NOTE.]

There are two extreme positions with reference to man's ability to understand the Bible. In combating one of these extremes, men are likely to come to occupy the other. One class look on the Bible as being a sealed mystery from beginning to end. They regard its teachings as being far too profound for the ordinary man to understand, and, as a result, they make no effort to learn them. The other class purpose to understand all about the Bible; to answer any and all questions that may be asked about its contents, and to fathom all the knowledge displayed in the very secrets of God's great work.

Paul says, "Without controversy great is the mystery of godliness;" then, as a seeming contradiction to this, we hear him speak of the "simplicity" that is in Christ. The two utterances of the apostle can only be reconciled by saying that he had two different viewpoints under consideration. God's Book is written primarily to reveal his great plan of salvation. In this plan there are two sides—the human and the divine. Man represents the one and God represents the other. God's part is mysterious. We cannot understand God, his glory, his power, his work. This is mystery. But man's part, the part that God wants man to do, is simple and easily understood. When God speaks to man by way of commandment, it is always simple.

Mystery was in the very creation. What was that "tree of life" the eating of whose fruit was to cause Adam and Eve to live forever? And, stranger still, what was that "tree of knowledge of good and evil?" Why was it wrong to eat of this? Why did God forbid it? It is mysterious, so far as God's part is concerned. But man's part was simple and easy. God said: "Of all the trees of the garden you may freely eat, except this one tree in the midst of the garden; you must not eat of it." To understand how to obey God was easy.

When the Israelites were to cross the Red Sea, there was a great mystery shown. When Moses' rod went across the waters, they were divided. They stood back in a mighty heap on each side. There is no natural cause for such a phenomenon. It is absolutely unexplainable by natural law. It is mysterious because it is God's work. What was man's part? "Moses, stretch your rod across the water," was God's command. This was a simple thing. Then when the waters were divided, "Command that the people go forward," he said. No trouble to understand that part of it.

Take the building of the ark by Noah. There is mystery about it, but the mystery ceases when it comes to what man was to do. I used to wonder how it could rain enough to cover up the entire earth, and how even the tallest mountains were submerged. I would wonder, also, how all the wild and ferocious animals were collected and put into the ark, and I wondered why these animals did not prey upon and devour one another. All these things, however, worked in perfect harmony because God so ordered and controlled it. The part that man was to do was so simple that no opportunity was given for a misunderstanding. Noah could understand how to build the ark and go into it and be saved, even if he could not know all these things that God was doing for him.

When Naaman the leper was ordered to dip in the Jordan to cure his disease, this must have seemed like a strange prescription to him. So strange, indeed, it was that he came very near refusing to do the thing commanded. The command was simple, but the cure was mysterious. The command was man's part, the cure was God's part. Naaman obeyed—the simple part; God cleansed—the mysterious part.

The above examples are sufficient to establish the fact that God's is the part of mystery. We cannot understand God for the reason that he is wiser, greater, and more powerful than we. His works are a mystery to us just like a man's works are a mystery to a little child. All the mystery in God's plan belongs to him, and he is amply able to take care of that part of it. In his dealings with us now, the plan is like that of the examples above in that he requires us to do things that are simple, while he does for us things wonderful and mighty. We do not understand God's motives, power, and purposes, but it is the part of faith to "trust and obey."

In the plan of salvation, do you ask why it was necessary for Christ to give up his home in heaven with the Father, come to earth and be born of woman, suffer pain, hunger, privation, and temptation as man, and finally to die on a Roman cross, that we might be saved? The only satisfactory answer to me is that this is God's way. If it seems mysterious to you, it is all the more certain that it is God's plan. Do you wonder why faith, repentance, confession, and baptism are necessary to man's salvation? All I know is that it is God's way. Man is required to do these simple things, and God does the saving. When man is called upon to go down into the waters of baptism for the remission of his sins, the process is no more strange than the process of curing Naaman's leprosy.

Now, because we do not, and cannot, understand all of God's dealings with man, is this sufficient cause for us to reject his plan? I think not. Suppose you try to solve all the mysteries connected with the simple process of eating, promising yourself if you find anything that you cannot understand, that you will refuse to eat any more. Physiology tells us that our food when assimilated goes, a part to make muscle in the arm, part to constitute the hair of the head, another part of the same food goes to make blood, and yet another part makes the gray matter on the brain. Can you understand how the same food can make all these different tissues of the body? Of course you cannot, but it would be very unwise to refuse to eat because you cannot understand all about how it benefits you.

Just so, in Christianity, we must not take the mysteries too seriously. God will take care of them. Do not worry about the state of the dead; get ready to die, and God will let you be conscious or unconscious, whichever is best. Do not worry about your burying place; God will find you at the resurrection. Do not set the day for the Lord to come; but work and watch and pray, so as to be ready. I have known people to spend a great deal of time trying to find just where heaven will be. God will put it where he wants it. That is his part. We had better be trying to be worthy to be there.

Let us be content in this life to do the simple commandments of our Lord. Let us walk by faith. Let us trust in God, and put our whole confidence in him who doeth all things well. So far as spiritual things are concerned, we can only see through the glass darkly now; but when we are ushered into the presence of our God, then we can understand him, then the hidden things will be made plain. Until then, let us follow diligently the light we have unto the perfect day.

The Song of the Christian Toiler.

BY ALICE TIDROW.

To-day while time is mine,
An earnest worker may I be,
Though ne'er my name be known to fame,
If only, Lord, 'tis recorded by thee,
The talent thou hast given me
Improved ere life's setting sun,
That I may hear those words so dear:
"Well done, thou good and faithful one."

"They Know Not What They Do."

BY GEORGE W. FARMER.

"Then said Jesus, Father, forgive them; for they know not what they do." (Luke 23: 34.) This is the language of Christ, and it was his intercession in behalf of those who were his crucifiers; and some have supposed that these words were used while they were actually nailing him to the cross. Isaiah (53: 12) said concerning him: "He made intercession for the transgressors."

Now, why did Jesus do such a thing? "They know not what they do." "And now, brethren, I wot that through ignorance ye did it, as did also your rulers." (Acts 3: 17.) "For they that dwell at Jerusalem, and their rulers, because they knew him not, nor yet the voices of the prophets which are read every Sabbath day, they have fulfilled them in condemning him." (Acts 13: 27.)

Again, Paul says of himself: "I thank Christ Jesus our Lord, who hath enabled me, for that he counted me faithful, putting me into the ministry; who was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious: but I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief." (1 Tim. 1: 12, 13.) We observe here how our Lord is the first to fulfill his own precepts, thus furnishing the right interpretation and the perfect model of them. (Matt. 5: 44.) And how quickly was it seen in the martyr Stephen, that though Jesus had left the earth in person, his Spirit remained behind, and himself could, in some of his brightest lineaments, be reproduced in his disciples! (Acts 7: 60.) What does the world in every age owe to these few words, spoken where and as they were spoken!

Those people looked upon Jesus as being an impostor, a blasphemer, and a very dangerous fellow in several ways. They did not know him—they did not understand him. They did not know he was the Son of God and the Savior of the world; "for had they known it, they would not have crucified the Lord of glory." They were ignorant, they were blind, they were prejudiced; and as these people were, so we have hundreds and thousands of people in the world to-day in the same condition. They are enemies to the cross of Christ, enemies to the truth of God, haters and despisers, misrepresenters and slanderers, persecutors and would-be crucifiers of people who prefer to just take the Bible for all they believe, teach, and practice, and who meekly and humbly repudiate all names, save that of the name "Christian."

Why do we have to-day such a host of enemies to the cause for which Jesus died? It is manifestly this: they are conceived in blindness, rocked in the cradle of ignorance, fed on the spirit of partisanism, and soothed by the siren lullaby of prejudice. Now, what more could we expect? "They know not what they do." They are taught from childhood that the doctrine as taught by the people whom they delight to dub "Campbellites" is rotten and most dangerous; hence they know nothing else and are to be pitied rather than censured, for they know not what they do.

Now it seems to me that each one should ask himself the question: What should be my attitude, and what course should I pursue, toward people of this kind? Paul says with reference to the Jews: "Brethren, my heart's desire and prayer to God for Israel is, that they might be saved. For I bear them record that they have a zeal of God, but not according to knowledge." Now the people of whom I speak, many of them, have a zeal to be commended; in fact, many of them can put some of those who know the truth to shame because of their superior zeal over them.

Now, I believe I am right, and my suggestion is this: "Be wise as serpents and harmless as doves" among them. Treat them courteously and kindly; commend them where it can be done without flattery or at the cost of the truth; be patient; be kind and gentle; forbear their thrusts and threats; do not nag nor ridicule, but respect them for their honesty and zeal. Win their confidence and respect; make them your friends, if possible, by encouraging them in whatever truth they have, and then they will be in a mood to be reasoned with and thereby taught more and higher truth. This seems to me to be the only feasible way; for, as I see it, they know not what they do.

Preparedness. No. 1.

BY C. W. SEWELL.

"In time of peace prepare for war." It seems that our nation is being stirred to the consideration of the sentiment of this proverb as never before. Some contend that the nation's only safety is in preparedness; others contend that preparedness will bring war. As to which of these positions is true, I am not especially concerned; it is not my business. But if we apply the doctrine of this proverb to the church, I am ready to contend that the church of God should "in time of peace prepare for war." And I do not mean spiritual warfare, but real flesh-and-blood war. Is the church of God in these United States prepared for a war? Is the church of God prepared to do its duty if our nation should be plunged into bloody war? Have we made any preparation, or are we making any? I charge it upon our elders, preachers, and editors that we have been very much remiss in this duty. In the midst of a blissful peace we have not thought of the probability, or even the possibility, of a war being thrust upon us. The result of this inactivity and neglect is that if such a war should come, the church of Christ would suffer great loss. In some instances it would be almost, if not quite, obliterated.

But some one may ask: "What preparation does the church need?" In answering this, bear with me while I indulge in a little reminiscence. I grew up in part during the war between the States, commonly called our "Civil War." I was reared in Middle Tennessee, and did not see near so much of the horrors of the war as were experienced in many places; but I saw enough and heard more. I also began during those years to read the New Testament. When I read the Sermon on the Mount, I could not help but draw a contrast between the teaching of Christ and the spirit of war. The simplicity of my faith in Jesus caused me to wonder (and I am still wondering) how professed Christians, and especially preachers, could possibly, by word or act, encourage war. But they did. Professing Christians enlisted as soldiers as readily as others. Preachers preached war, prayed for the annihilation of the enemy, and became chaplains in the army. My father, Jesse L. Sewell, was an exception. He refused to act as chaplain, but went on preaching the gospel whenever and wherever there was opportunity.

What preparation does the church need to-day? Such teaching and drilling in the doctrine of the angel's message, "On earth peace, good will toward men," that it (the church) will refrain from any participation in warfare against "flesh and blood;" such teaching as will lead Christians to understand that they cannot go to war and be loyal to Christ.

"There can be no living unless there is life; there can be no life without birth; there can be no birth into the divine life without the processes of the Spirit of life."

Christ's Love for Us.

BY E. C. FUQUA.

Solomon's "Song of Songs" inspires to noble incentive the truly appreciative soul. The outbursts of passionate love spoken by Christ to his church, the bride, thrill us with reciprocal feelings toward him, if, indeed, there is within us a heart susceptible of the high tone of this divine love. It is vastly more than ordinary, human love; it is love on the grandest scale possible between divine and human affections. There seems to be no limit to human love, especially mother love, and yet there is a limit; but there is absolutely no limit to the love of Christ for the church. Even in her imperfections his love is astounding. Indeed, he can only love her in her imperfections, since she is never perfect as he is. He does not love her imperfections, her shortcomings, but loves her notwithstanding these. He expresses admiration for her "hair," "chin," "lips," "neck," "eyes," and the various parts of her body, showing his love for her form and features because these are exactly as God made them. He would in love correct her for any indiscreet or unholy use she might lend any one or more of her members, but he holds in the highest admiration the members themselves.

Christ loves the church, having given himself "for it." (Eph. 5: 25, 26.) He loves most marvelously every individual member of it. The admiration ascribed by "Solomon" to his "love" is precisely the admiration Christ holds for you—yes, and me—if we are really members of "his body, the church." He loves us as members, though kindly chastising us for foolishly lending our members "as instruments of unrighteousness." (Rom. 6: 13.) As members of his body, we are the product of God, hence perfect, since God himself "sets" all the members in the body. (1 Cor. 12: 18.) There is nothing wrong with me as a member in Christ's body—nothing wrong with the fact of my membership; the wrong consists purely in the manner in which I use my members. The fact of my membership is a work purely of the Creator, as much so as the fact of the world's existence; and he cannot be found at fault in any of his works.

The power that upheld the early Christians—and, indeed, all true Christians—in all their horrible struggles and patient faithfulness is the power imparted through the consciousness of the unfailling love of Christ for them as members of his body. Hence, with all the faults and astonishing sins of such members as those in the church at Corinth, the Holy Spirit addresses them as "the church of God" (1 Cor. 1: 2); and the apostle honors them as "brethren," notwithstanding he could only speak unto them "as unto carnal" persons (1 Cor. 3: 1). Not for one moment does the Holy Spirit indorse or approve of any of the sins or mistakes at Corinth, but these sins or mistakes did not sever the love of Christ for them and deprive them of being his "love" and "brethren" of even the great apostle Paul.

The knowledge of this great truth leads every appreciative soul to fear to do wrong, and, where wrong has been done, to undo it with all haste and certainty. Knowing Christ's dislike of sin in any and every form, and assured of his love for me at all times, I am overwhelmingly influenced to keep out of sin or to get out from under it when my subjection to it is discovered.

Everywhere I go, his love accompanies me and pleads with my soul. In whatever I do, he is there to love me and bless me, if only I acknowledge him and encourage his attentions toward me. I cannot go so far but his love reaches even where I am. It pleads with me to return with him and be content with his provisions; it warns me of the folly of listening to the love songs of others who profess to be my friends, and recalls to my foolish heart the evidences of the supremacy of his love in the price he paid for me as his bride and the joint heir of his vast possessions.

I am soon won by this love, and the return is inevitable. O, that we could have the same love for Christ as Christ has for us! Then would the church be perfect indeed. Such will her future be.

Brother, sister, if you are out of the Way, don't become discouraged and think Christ has forsaken you and with his gracious love turned to another, but return with him to the Way. He has all these sad days stood, unobserved by you, anxiously awaiting your acknowledgment of his presence and the sufficiency of his willingness and power to forgive and reinstate you to your former office. Open your eyes and behold him at your side—he whose love for you has never abated and whose interest in you and anxiety for you are as unchangeable as Jehovah. Take him to your breast, confess your foolish and sinful conduct, in his name implore the loving Father's forgiveness, and gladly return with him to the former relations; then all will be well. Thanks be unto God for his unspeakable gift!

But in the "Song of Songs" we are likewise struck with the love the bride has for her husband. This bespeaks the love Christ naturally expects as his due from the church. Read the song carefully and note the grandeur of the conjugal love as expressed by the bride. Christ gives to the church no more love than he justly expects from the church in return. We love him because he first loved us, but we should strive to see that we love him no less than he loved us. Surely a wife is under every obligation to love her husband as her husband loves her. If, then, Christ loves every feature of his bride's, every member in her body, the bride should love every word of admonition and invite every expression of admiration from Christ. He should be her daily joy—her desire should be toward him as her Head under the marriage vow. Hence, where the church's love toward Christ is not supreme and full of joy; where her chief delight is found in some one or something else; when she is seemingly as happy when his feelings are hurt as when she pleases him—then there is dire need of repentance and reformation; the heart is not right.

Pure and constant love for Christ will make the church as happy and contented under Christ as is the bride whose love is pure and constant toward her reciprocal husband. Has the world ever witnessed greater happiness than this latter? So should supreme happiness be written across the forehead of the church to be read by the world. "Rejoice in the Lord always; and again I say, Rejoice." There is no danger of our bestowing love upon one who will give us no returns when we love Christ. His love toward us is always true and fresh. Among human beings, a wife often loves where love is not returned. Not so where Christ is made the object of the church's love. Then what excuse, pray, can the church offer for not fully loving her divine Husband? Let us try loving him more. Our hearts will grow lighter, our faces will glow with happiness, our feet will be swifter to carry the glad tidings, our lips will utter more fervent prayers, our songs will consist in more "melody" unto the Lord, and our lives will be fuller of pure heavenly "sunshine" as our loving benediction upon the world about us. I say, let us try this from now on.

"If Smart Men Differ, What Am I to Do?"

BY W. L. REEVES.

The above question is sometimes asked by people who are not religious, but who live quiet, peaceable, moral lives; and if they could settle the above question, perhaps they would become true worshipers of God.

Only a short time ago I had a person to ask me the following question: "If there is but one church, why do so many educated ministers differ about which is the right one for men to join?" This question and the other one set before us a field sufficiently broad for one short article.

In the very beginning I assert that "smart men" do not differ on what the Bible actually says, but they differ on their opinions about it. The Bible says the same to all men. All men see the Bible alike, if they see it at all, on any vital point. This statement can be verified thus: The Bible says that God created the heavens and earth. Who can see in this statement that Beelzebub created them?

It is stated that Jesus was born in Bethlehem of Judea. (Matt. 2: 1.) I have never seen a man who disputed this. Why? Because all men who read this passage see it as it is, so see it alike.

The Bible says, in speaking of Christ: "There is none other name under heaven given among men, whereby we must be saved." (Acts 4: 12.) All smart men see this just as it reads; but smart men—many smart men, not all smart men—say there is nothing in a name. Seeing in this that "smart men" contradict what the Bible says, "what must I do?" The answer to this question is easy. Just take what the Bible says about the matter and let what "smart men" say alone. We can understand the Lord as well as we can "smart men;" many times we can understand the Bible better than we can "smart men."

The Bible says: "The whole family in heaven and earth" is named for Christ. (Eph. 3: 15.) Many "smart men" contend that just any name will do, and that part of the saved may wear one religious name and part may wear some other name, even the name of some uninspired man—Luther's or Calvin's name, etc. What am I to do relative to this question? I must do by this just what the Lord in the Bible plainly tells all to do. He says: "Obey God rather than men." Paul tells us to touch not, taste not, handle not the ordinances according to the doctrines and commandments of men. (Col. 2: 22, 23.)

Men have ordained the various names which people wear in religion; in fact, they have ordained the different denominations also. Now I conceive that people disobey a plain commandment of the Lord Christ when they unite with these sectarian institutions and wear the religious names which are applied to them. I say this because Paul commands us to have nothing to do with them, as stated in Col. 2: 20-23.

As to "What am I to do?" relative to such things which are taught and practiced by some "smart men," I would say that I must settle all religious matters by the law and the testimony of the Lord. John says: "Beloved, believe not every spirit [smart man], but try the spirits [smart men] whether they are of God: because many false prophets are gone out into the world." (1 John 4: 1.) How does John mean for us to try these "smart men;" these teachers, who are abroad in the land? To show the Bible way of trying them, I now give an example of how the Bereans tried Paul's teaching, and am sure that this will be exactly the thing for all to do in such matters.

Of these Bereans, Paul said: "These were more noble than those in Thessalonica, in that they received the word with all readiness of mind, and searched the Scriptures daily, whether those things were so. Therefore many of them believed; also of honorable women which were Greeks, and of men, not a few." (Acts 17: 11, 12.)

Paul was a "smart man." In fact, he was one of the most highly educated men of his time. (Acts 5: 34; 22: 1-4.) His speech as his own lawyer before King Agrippa is considered by those who are capable of judging as the finest literary production in the world. (See Acts 26: 1-23.) With all of his learning, he was also inspired; and yet he did not ask the people to believe his bare statements about religious matters, but he commended them for testing what he said by the holy Scriptures.

From this case we learn that it is the Bible way for us to first hear what "smart men" have to say and then test them by the Scriptures. If we find that the Scriptures teach what they teach, we should accept it; but if it is not to be found in the holy Scriptures, we must not believe what they say. The holy apostles preached the whole counsel of God on all subjects that are necessary to life and godliness. Paul so declared thus: "For I have not shunned Peter says: "According as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue." (2 Pet. 1: 3.)

Paul now testifies in this language: "But though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed. As we said before, so say I now again, If any man preach any other gospel unto you than that ye have received, let him be accursed." (Gal. 1: 8, 9.)

From the above plain statements from the Scriptures it seems to me that it would be impossible for any one who can read with intelligence to fail to see what to do about the different doctrines which are taught by "smart men."

If you happen to hear one preach or read after one who is advancing some new doctrine, just turn to the Scriptures and search daily to see "whether those things are so" (Acts 17: 11, 12); and if you do not find a plain "thus saith the Scripture" for what he teaches, your duty is to reject both the man and his doctrine and not receive him into your house nor wish him success in what he is doing. The Bible so warns you. "If there come any unto you, and bring not this doctrine, receive him not into your house, neither bid him Godspeak: for he that biddeth him Godspeak is partaker of his evil deeds." (2 John 1: 10, 11.)

No one can beat what God has said in the Bible about what we must do about "smart men's" teaching on religious subjects. It teaches that we are to test them by the Scriptures and reject every one who does not teach what is found written therein.

"Big" Things and "Little."

BY H. W. JONES.

I want to say "Amen" to Brother John T. Poe's "Amen" to Brother A. B. Lipscomb's remarks on "When a Small Audience is Inspiring." It reminds me of a recent experience of my own. I went, on Lord's day, to fill my regular appointment at a schoolhouse, near which about a score of brethren live. It was on the same day of the annual reunion of "Old Southern Harmony" singers at Benton, the county seat, when thousands meet—some for singing, some for social chat and to meet old friends, many "to see and be seen," and some for revelry, eating and drinking, etc. (one man got his throat cut in a drunken fight). Only six met me at the schoolhouse to hear the old Jerusalem gospel and to worship God in his own appointed way, yet it seemed that the singing was better, the attention as good, and the worship as hearty as if the house had been filled. I preached to the six (and myself) the best I could, taking for my theme "The Church"—(1) What is it? (2) Whose is it? (3) How enter it? (4) Why enter it? Good was done, I believe. I have preached to large and small audiences on different occasions, and addressed one man on one occasion, he being the only one to meet me, the weather being bad.

Many of our brethren, it seems, are looking for "big things," from a worldly point of view, to attract them hither. The big crowds are at the "big meetings," "big singings," and other "big" occasions when the "big preacher" or "big orator" is present. Almost everything they take part in is something "big" in the eyes of the world. But—alas!—how they do miss it! Every faithful child of God has a "big meeting" each Lord's day. Christ is present, the Holy Spirit is there, and we should be happy in doing those things that are pleasing in God's sight. The "big things" are the things ordered of the Lord. Let us, then, do them heartily as unto the Lord.

The Proper Subject of Baptism.

In the regular series of articles on this page, under the heading, "The Church of Christ," the proper subject of baptism was discussed. Since then the question has been raised as to whether a man to whose mind, at the time he is baptized, the subject is not clear about baptism being in order to the remission of sins is a fit subject. I submit the following, which I submitted to the consideration of a friend who raised the question. It is submitted to our readers for their careful consideration. We may have other things to say along the same line at another time.

Here is one false position taken on the proper subject of baptism. It is taught by some that faith in the fact that baptism is in order to the remission of sins is absolutely essential to the validity of the act. Is this true? If so, every lover of the truth not only should desire to know it, but will know it. "If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the teaching, whether it is of God, or whether I speak from myself," declares our Lord in John 7: 17. "The friendship of Jehovah is with them that fear him; and he will show them his covenant," says David. (Ps. 25: 14.) Please to remember that we are not discussing whether baptism is in order to remission or because of remission, for it is admitted by the writer that remission comes in baptism. But the question is simply this: If a man at the time of his baptism does not fully see that remission comes in baptism, does this lack of knowledge invalidate the act, in spite of the fact that the man believes with his whole heart that Christ is God's Son, has truly repented of his sins, knows baptism to be a command of God, and is hungry to meet God in this appointment, and cannot be satisfied not to be baptized? To make the question clearer still, I submit a case of one's being baptized to whose mind the subject was not clear. He had been taught by parents who believed baptism to be in order to pardon. In hearing one of their ministers preach on Acts 2: 38, the minister said that "for the remission of sins" in this verse means in order to pardon. He turned to Matt. 26: 28, where it says Christ shed his blood "for the remission of sins." The point was made clear that Christ shed his blood in order to pardon, not because of pardon. It was contended that Acts 2: 38 means exactly the same. The case looked very clear and strong to the interested party. But not long after this the same man fell under Baptist teaching on the subject, and it was contended that "for remission" in Acts 2: 38 means because of pardon. The minister labored hard to show that "for" sometimes means "because of." Mark 1: 40-43 was introduced as one of the proof texts. The leper came to Christ and was actually healed, then he was commanded to go and offer "for" his cleansing what Moses commanded. It was contended that "for" in Acts 2: 38 has the same meaning. Please to remember that this young man knew nothing of the fact that in Mark 1: 44 we have the Greek "peri," which is quite different from the preposition "eis" in Acts 2: 38. He was simply confronted with the preposition "for" in English, and it was shown, beyond a doubt, that it means "because of" in some instances and "in order to" in other places. But it was not clear to him which meaning it had in Acts 2: 38.

Well, now, what must this young man do? Hunt for a Greek scholar, or enter college and learn the Greek language for himself, and get his mind perfectly settled on the question? Who will say he should? This is what he did. He reasoned with himself this way: "I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God; that I am penitent of all my sins, I know; and that baptism is a command of God, I also know; and I cannot be satisfied not to obey God in this appointment. But whether it is for remission or because of remission is not clear to me, neither do I care which it is. I want it to be just as the Lord has willed it to be. I will be baptized and leave it absolutely with him." In this condition of heart he was baptized. Did God accept it? Was he a fit subject for baptism? I leave it with you, kind reader, to answer as you wish.

But some will say: "In John 6: 45 it says, 'And they shall all be taught of God,' and only those who have heard from the Father and learned cometh unto Christ." Exactly so. But will you say the above soul had not heard of the Father? He knew him to be the God and Father of the Lord Jesus Christ. He knew Christ to be God's Son. He not only believed, but repented of his sins. Too, he knew baptism to be a commandment of his Lord and Savior, and for that very reason wanted to obey him in this command. Did his failure to understand the meaning of "for" in Acts 2: 38 make all the above knowledge null and void? This is for you to say. But we are told that Christ says: "Ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8: 32.) Exactly so. But will you say the above soul did not know the truth? He believed that God is, and that he rewards those who diligently seek him. Was this the truth? (See Heb. 11: 6.) He believed with all his heart that Christ is God's Son. Was this the truth? (John 20: 30, 31.) He had turned his back on all his sins, being truly sorry that he had transgressed God's law, and felt deeply his need of Christ. In this was he obeying the truth? He knew baptism to be God's command. Was this the truth? He felt that the fact that Christ commanded baptism is enough to show it ought to be submitted to, and his soul hungered to obey him in this act. Is this the truth? It was not clear to him whether remission comes before or in the act of baptism; but he felt sure that God would do his own will about the matter, and he was perfectly willing to leave that absolutely with him. Was this right? Did he violate any truth in doing this? With all of this truth in his soul, was there enough to save him? Or is it a fact that his failure to fully understand the meaning of "for" in Acts 2: 38 invalidated the whole thing, and he should now go and be rebaptized? I leave it with you, honest reader.

The Work Grows.

The Georgia work seems to grow as never before. The most pleasant work that I have done since coming to this State was my two-weeks' stay, recently, with the brethren at Morven. The congregation there is small, but some of the best people that I have ever met are standing by the work. "Grandma Scruggs," as she is familiarly called, was at every service, and her soul certainly was filled with joy over the result of the work. Brother Hugh A. Price has been teaching at Morven for two years. The brethren have asked him to quit the schoolroom and give his whole time to the work. This he has agreed to do. So Brooks County, one of the richest counties in the State, will have a man giving his whole time to building up the cause. Brother Price had everything well arranged for my two-weeks' stay. On the three Lord's days I was there, Barney, Hahira, and Welcome Hill congregations brought their baskets and spread dinner with us. How good these days were together! It was, indeed, a foretaste of the time when we will all feast together "over there." We had three services on the first and second Lord's days of the meeting and five on the last Lord's day. Six souls were baptized into Christ and new life put in the work. It was my pleasure to preach at Welcome Hill on Saturday in the forenoon. A splendid congregation was out. I am under promise to hold three meetings in that county next year.

Brother G. E. Claus, of the Valdosta congregation, was over for a day and night. He and Price make fine collaborators. They will join each other the second Lord's day in this month in a series of meetings near Brother Adair Chapman's home, out from Moultrie. We are expecting good news from this meeting.

On my return to Atlanta, I stopped at Albany and preached on Monday night, June 26. Brother Wright had just closed his meeting the night before. He and Rogers did a most excellent work there which resulted in organizing a congregation of seventeen faithful souls and putting them to work for the Master. The nucleus could not be excelled.

The West End brethren enjoyed Brother White's stay very much. While but one was added while he was here, lots of good was done. Luton is stirring things at South Pryor and Constitution. More good news we have to tell, but space and time forbid.

INTER NOS

Montgomery, Ala., July 3.—We had two baptisms yesterday. The audiences were fine.—C. E. Holt.

Lawrenceburg, Tenn., July 3.—I baptized three in Lawrenceburg last week. We are now at Luna's Chapel in a good meeting.—Thomas C. King.

Winfield, Texas, July 3.—I am now in a meeting near Mount Vernon. Everything starts off nicely and we are expecting a good meeting.—D. L. Haile.

Elkmont, Ala., July 3.—Our meeting is now five days old, with increasing audiences at every service. We are expecting a good meeting. Pray for us.—Charlie Taylor.

Murfreesboro, Tenn., July 4.—My meeting at Hatchett's Schoolhouse, near Bean's Creek, closed with three baptisms. I am now in a good meeting at Nazareth, near Murfreesboro.—L. B. Jones.

New Orleans, La., July 3.—One (head of a family) was added at regular service at Forest Hill on Sunday night. Interest is keen and prospects for acquisition of some splendid material are good.—A. K. Ramsey.

Louisville, Ky., June 30.—Our first tent meeting of nearly four weeks' duration has closed with seven added—four by baptism. I preached twice; Brother Jorgenson, the remainder of the time. Parkland and Portland are in tent meetings at this writing.—Don Carlos Janes.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 3.—I closed a twelve-days' meeting at Philippi, near Elkton, last Thursday night. We had large crowds and splendid attention, but those out of Christ said by their action that the carpenter's Son born in Bethlehem and cradled in a manger had no charms for them. I will begin a meeting near Cadiz next Lord's day.—H. F. Pendergrass.

Jasper, Texas, July 3.—The meeting at Jasper closed last night with three baptisms. One was a lady from the Methodists, seventy-five years old. The brethren were highly pleased with the meeting, as this completed just fifty baptisms for the writer in his four annual June meetings here. I will, the Lord willing, begin at Tenaha on Wednesday night.—J. S. Daugherty.

Scurry, Texas, July 3.—I began a meeting here last Thursday night, to continue as long as the interest demands. Then I begin a mission meeting at Rosser, Texas. On the third Lord's day in June I said the words that united in marriage Steward Ayres and Janie Glass. These young people are both Christians, and are earnest, devout children of God.—John Hayes.

Tracy City, Tenn., July 5.—Following is a report of meetings for April, May, and June: Pryor, three baptized; Tracy City, four baptized; South Pittsburg, none baptized, one reclaimed; Whitwell, eighteen baptized, eight reclaimed; Monteagle, no visible results; Summerfield, seven baptized, one satisfied with former baptism. I am now at Little Mountain Church, three miles out from Winchester. I will begin at Prairie Plains on the third Sunday in July.—J. D. Northcut.

Roaring Spring, Texas, July 4.—I spent the month of June in New Mexico in mission work. I had one baptism at Dereno and one at Vaughn, and started up the work and worship at the latter place with eighteen members. They have been meeting at Dereno for some time. Brethren A. S. Croom and A. N. Kennedy have done them some fine work. I am here in a mission meeting. Fine crowds, but no additions so far. I shall go on here ten days more.—T. H. Etheridge.

Plant City, Fla., June 27.—Brother J. Paul Kimbrell held a three-weeks' meeting here for us last February and another short meeting this month as he was passing this way. He is an earnest, zealous worker, and shuns no Bible truth. By his efforts our house of worship was filled, a thing which had not been done before. The church has been much strengthened, both in zeal and good material in new members. I heartily recommend Brother Kimbrell to any congregation of disciples.—J. T. Bushong.

Little Rock, Ark., July 7.—I am now in a meeting at Center Point, Ark., one of the oldest congregations in the State. This is my third year to hold meetings at this place. The meeting is five days old and two have been added. We are using the "Little Singer" in our song service. It is a small song book, prepared especially for use in protracted meetings. It sells for eight cents a copy, $3.50 per fifty, prepaid; $6 per hundred, not prepaid. Order from E. M. Borden, Little Rock, Ark. My next meeting will be at Floyd, Texas.—E. M. Borden.

Clarendon, Texas, July 1.—I am here in a meeting. I have just closed a meeting with home forces at the South Side church of Christ. There were eleven baptisms, one reclaimed, and eight promised fellowship who were already Christians. We all rejoiced over the meeting, and we believe that the angels did also. The Central church of Christ cooperated with us and helped us much in singing. The churches of Christ at Fort Worth seem to have fellowship with each other.—A. O. Colley.

Albany, Ga., July 2.—God has surely blessed us in this little town. Brother R. E. Wright and I came here about the first of June and held a meeting. We now have a band of about nineteen members and are working away. Brother Wright has done a great work at this place. He has gone on his way, and I am to stay until September. We had two fine services to-day. Everybody seemed interested. We are going to have a hard time for a while. We are paying twenty-five dollars per month for a house to meet in. But we are coming. Pray for us, and especially for me, for I realize the responsibility I have on me. Rejoice with us.—R. H. Rogers.

Amarillo, Texas, July 4.—Brother John E. Dunn and I closed a good meeting with the little band of Christians in Beaumont on June 28. Brother Dunn did very fine work in that he trained the brethren to do more work, more efficient work, and more systematic work. We also had a fine work with a fine class of children. Results as follows: Two baptisms, several by relation, six fine brethren restored from the First Christian Church, and the church edified. While in Beaumont our home was a very pleasant one, with Sister Alexander and her three fine boys. We shall long remember their kind and courteous treatment. Brother F. L. Young and I are in an interesting meeting here.—O. M. Reynolds.

Summitville, Tenn., July 4.—This is the tenth day of the meeting here. One added and interest good. We have just begun. The people of Summitville are not "quitters," but "stickers." Brother Joe Ridley, of Nashville, is conducting the song service. He is a good worker. To me he is what Timothy was to Paul. The congregation at Summitville is only one year old, but they have a nice church house and all are workers. They number about seventy. The writer celebrated the Fourth of July by preaching three times—once in the courthouse yard at Manchester. The people of Manchester and Summitville enjoyed a visit from the Nashville Bible School quartet. These young men proved to the people that those who try can sing.—W. S. Long, Jr.

Beaverdam Springs, Tenn., July 3.—Since coming home from the Bible School, I have preached at the following places in Hickman and Lewis counties: Defeated Creek, Byers' Chapel, Sulphur, Indian Creek, Flat Rock, Brushy, and Aetna. I have many calls for Lord's-day sermons that I cannot answer. Brother John Lancaster, the rural carrier at Coble, is a faithful young preacher in this territory. I work with him occasionally, and we are "true yokefellows." Hickman County Christians are much pleased with Brother McCaleb's nice references to his "native heath." We expect him to revisit the scenes of his childhood again some time. I shall report the results of protracted meetings in my territory in September. My permanent address is Centerville.—James E. Chessor.

Thorp Spring, Texas, July 3.—The annual camp meeting begins here on the first Sunday in August, possibly a few days before that date. Brother A. O. Colley or Brother W. M. Davis, of Fort Worth, Texas, will do the preaching. We have here the finest camping grounds in the country—a beautiful park, running streams, springs, fishing waters. Come prepared to camp and enjoy the meeting with us. The outlook for Thorp Spring Christian College grows brighter. Many students are arranging to come. People are moving here to be ready for the opening of school in September. The University of Texas declares our faculty is superior. Every regular teacher in the high school and college holds a degree from a reputable university. All are faithful Christians. Write for a catalogue.—Carl A. Gardner.

What Does it Mean?

BY JOHN T. POE.

I do not think the baptism of John put any one into the kingdom of Jesus. Yet I met a preacher some time ago, who claimed to be a loyal preacher of the gospel, who boldly asserted that John set up the kingdom of Christ, and that "when he baptized Jesus, he then turned the kingdom over to him." But I am sure that Jesus set up his own kingdom, and that he did not do it until after his own death and resurrection, and, further, not till he ascended up on high and made atonement with his own blood. Then he set in the church the members "as it pleased him: first, apostles." The apostles were, therefore, the charter members of the church, or kingdom, of Christ. These may have been baptized by John; but whether they were or not, that baptism could not put them into the body, or kingdom, of Christ. Nothing but the baptism ordained of Christ could put any one into the kingdom, save and except the charter members, who were simply placed as charter members by the fiat of almighty power and authority. Charter members are never initiated, but placed by the fiat of organizing authority to form a nucleus to build to. So the apostles were organized as the beginning of that body we call the "church." That being true—and it is—there was no church, or kingdom, of Jesus set up, or built, till the apostles were first placed as charter members to build to. After placing the apostles, pastors (elders), teachers, and evangelists were added, by initiation, through faith, repentance, and baptism. This seems to be God's order in the beginning, and no man or set of men have any authority to change this order.

Divine wisdom does all things well, and to maintain God's order of things in the church should be our highest aim. The apostles were to be "the light of the world" and "the salt of the earth;" hence to them we must go for all the light that leads us to Christ. From the day the church was set up on the first Pentecost, seven days after the ascension of Christ, until now, no man has been able to tell sinners what to do to be saved only as he learned it from the apostles. So they are still "the light of the world." I know that song of ours which declares "we are the light of the world," but I do not believe it. Not one of us could tell an alien sinner what to do to be saved only as we have learned it from the apostles.

In the appointment Jesus made for the perpetuation of the church and the officers or leaders of the same, he placed the apostles in the front and pastors ("elders"—plural) second and evangelists third. Yet how common it is now for an evangelist, young or old, to locate as "pastor" of a church, have himself elected as an elder, and "take charge of the church" himself—set the elders aside, lay them on the shelf, and run the church to suit himself! I think a man has read the New Testament to little purpose if he has not learned that the evangelists are to be subject to the elders instead of bossing them. This is the way our churches are fast becoming subject to a one-man rule instead of a plurality of elders. What are elders for now, anyway? What are their duties? Who knows or who can tell these things in a congregation where an evangelist (elder) bosses things? We need a little house cleaning along here. No evangelist should allow a church to make him an elder if they wish to do so. He should never be the disciplinarian in the congregation. Either he will refuse to exercise discipline or, doing it, he will make enemies, and thus destroy his usefulness as a peacemaker—a reformer of those who are out of the way, those who have been withdrawn from. He should keep himself clear of such work and endeavor to reform and restore the erring. If he is the cause of their exclusion, it will be hard for him to restore them again. That work, I repeat, belongs to the elders, and not to the evangelist. Then if one comes teaching such doctrine as mentioned in the beginning of this article, the elders should stop his mouth promptly.

Elders who sit and allow evangelists to preach unscriptural doctrine to the church over which the Lord has made them overseers will be held to account by the Master. The elders occupy the same relation to the church that the father does to the family, and they must see that the sheep and the lambs of the flock receive proper food—things that are scriptural. They should reverence God and his word, and inspire the same feeling in every member of the flock over which they are called to preside. To do this, they must lead the way; they must be what they would have the church to be. And they must be filled with the knowledge of God. This requires constant study of God's word. The reason so many congregations are weak and sickly is because they are hungry—starved for lack of proper food. The eldership have not prepared themselves to feed and care for the flock as they should, and hence they are ready to transfer their duty to the hands of an evangelist—elect him elder, turn the church over to a one-man rule, sit down with the honor of the name "elder" and allow the church to be run in any way the one-man boss may choose to lead it. No man is fit for an elder who will not inform himself of the word of the Lord and be able to teach or guard the flock from false teachers. An inefficient eldership will oftener kill and destroy the congregation than build it up. How can a man teach what he does not know? You might as well try to dip meal from an empty barrel or pour oil from an empty cruse.

"Back to the Bible," brethren! Prepare yourselves for the work of elders by informing yourselves, and teach the flock, or know this: that God will hold you to account for the loss of his sheep and the straying and starvation of his lambs. You must do this; or if you do not, it were better for you that a millstone were hung about your neck and that you were cast into the midst of the ocean.

While it is perhaps the most honorable position a man may occupy on earth—to be an elder, overseer, or bishop in the church of God—yet it is the most responsible and fearful. Still, if the elder will study that he may be filled with the knowledge of God and will ask of God wisdom and strive for the purity and upbuilding of the church in Christ, it is the most noble and happy position a man may occupy. However, eternal vigilance and labor is the price. But the recompense of reward and the glory of souls saved will compensate it all. What are we here for, if not to study and do the will of Him who loved us and died for us, and who graciously promises to divide the inheritance of "all things" with us? What more could we ask or desire?

Commendatory.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

I have not read anything much better on converting the pulpit into a moral and educational platform than Brother Price Billingsley's recent confession of "Another Mistake of Mine." When I heard Brother Billingsley thus lecture a few years ago, I thought he was making the mistake he has confessed; but I was a young man and incompetent and kept my thoughts to myself. But nothing has helped me so much in a long while. Coupled with Brother Kurfrees' two splendid articles on the moral and political prostitution of the pulpit and the true mission of the Christian minister, Brother Billingsley's article has thrown much light on my humble path. I was preparing notes for a rural school talk to be delivered about while I preached, to be entitled "Old Hickory and the Hermitage;" but now I shall be content with the old theme, "Christ, and him crucified." If we have no occasion to preach that, we had better hunt up the occasion, and we will not have to go far to find it.

Temptation is the beautiful doorway to a wretched interior.

Corrupt Speech.

BY E. S. LOVELL.

When one emerges from the watery grave of baptism, he is then a new creature in Christ, where old things have passed away and all things have become new. His mind is set on heavenly things, and the issues of his heart, his words, are pure and edifying, and his deeds are the deeds of our Savior, who went about doing good. But is this always true of the children of God? I am sad to say it is not.

The purpose of this article is to call attention to the low, vulgar speech used by some members of the body of Christ. This is one of the "old things" that passed away when we entered Christ, but, like the dog turning to his own vomit again and the sow that had washed to wallowing in the mire, a great many go back and resurrect the things they had once crucified and try to live in them again. Why, I have heard brethren, when they had come together upon the first day of the week to remember the death and suffering of their Savior, tell vulgar stories until time for services. Then, some make it a habit of repeating offensive language used by others, which is just about as bad. Shame on brethren who would stoop so low as to engage in speech so demoralizing to themselves and to the cause of Christ! Paul says: "Let no corrupt speech proceed out of your mouth, but such as is good for edifying as the need may be, that it may give grace to them that hear." (Eph. 4: 29.) In the face of this scripture can we afford to use speech so corrupting and so dishonoring to God and man? I think not. Do you not know, my brother, that such speech is very displeasing to your Heavenly Father; that it grieves him very much to hear one of his children engaging in such talk? Then why not repent and turn away from it, and from now on use only sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of us? May God help you so to do.

Jesus of Nazareth, Our Christ and Lord.

BY MORGAN H. CARTER.

INTRODUCTORY.

More than nineteen centuries have passed into history since the heavenly host sang the anthem: "Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased." And yet most of this world's people have failed to accept the Prince of Peace, to the degree that many millions are now engaged in one of the most destructive wars ever waged, and sin in its terrible plagues wrecks the life of multitudes throughout the world.

As we review the blood-stained pages of the past and look with sadness upon the present struggle, we come to believe that much of the woe and ruin resulting from sin could have been avoided had the servants of the King spent less time in wrangling over their opinions and more time in setting forth Jesus as the Christ and Lord by their life and testimony.

He is our Hope who said, "I am the way, the truth, and the life," and no one can come to God save through him. For "he that believeth the Son hath eternal life; but he that obeyeth not the Son shall not see life, but the wrath of God abideth on him." As I think of the importance of Christ and the need of him in the life of men, I am increasingly impressed with the profound need of testimony on the part of believers, both by life and word, that Christ may be manifested as the Savior of sinful men. And now I wish to set forth a few truths from God's word in a series of brief articles, hoping that they may prove helpful in leading sinners to Jesus and drawing those in Christ still nearer to our Shepherd. I especially hope that those interested will begin with article one, "The Hope of Israel," and continue the study long after the last of the six articles has appeared.

Our Father, in Jesus' name we pray that thou wilt hear us as we repent and confess before thee, and as we plead forgiveness as we have forgiven and request an open heart for the reception of thy truth and power to live as a testimony for Christ unto all we influence in life. Amen.

The Gain is Satisfactory.

This is the dull season for religious journals, but despite that fact the growth of the Gospel Advocate during the last month has been very encouraging. An increased number of new subscribers is being received, many are paying their dues and renewing for another year; so, on the whole, the prospects for the paper are brighter than they have been for a number of months. We take this opportunity to express our appreciation to our many friends who are rallying so nobly to the support of this journal. We wish again to emphasize the necessity for each subscriber examining the date on the address label that is attached to his paper. The date shows the time to which the subscription is paid. If you discover a mistake in the date, you should call our attention to it at once, so that correction may be made. When you send in your renewal, you should notify us within two or three weeks thereafter if proper credit is not given. This will enable us to correct mistakes without looking through our letter files covering a period of twelve months or more. It is more important to us all to keep the date correct than it is to acknowledge by card receipt of your remittance. This may be properly acknowledged and yet proper credit not be given on the list, as clerks and printers are liable to make mistakes. It is our desire to reduce mistakes to the minimum. To do this, we must have your coöperation.

If the Gospel Advocate does the work it should do, it is necessary for us to keep up a vigorous campaign. In order to do this, we are anxious to secure an efficient worker at each post office. With a worker at each post office, the growth of this paper would be much more rapid. There are many disciples who are not reading any religious paper. These would all find a religious paper very helpful and beneficial to them. Many people have been influenced to obey the gospel of Christ by reading the Gospel Advocate. Members of the church may have a good preacher in their houses every week at the cost of three cents per week. What an insignificant sum to a person who is interested in the cause of Christ! Will you not help us to greatly increase the usefulness and circulation of this paper? We are encouraged to believe you will. We have never called in vain on many of our subscribers. If we will humbly trust the Lord and put ourselves in his keeping, he will guide us to usefulness and finally to life everlasting. But while we are in his keeping, let us be diligent to improve the talents he has given us. No work is more important than the salvation of souls and the enlargement of our Christian influence. It is true that where the Gospel Advocate is circulated the churches are doing the best work. The paper has an inspirational value that should grow from year to year. PUBLISHERS GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

God's Law.

We must learn to set God above his own laws—not that he will reverse them, but use them as we know not how. We are not to think that where we see no possibility God sees none; that when all human skill has been fruitlessly spent there is no more that God can do; that when everything goes wrong with us and we are ready to sit down and wait for ruin there is no help for us in God.—Marcus Dods.

$1.50 a year if paid in advance, $1.75 after six months, $2 after twelve months. To Canada and foreign countries, $2 in advance. $2.25 after six months, $2.50 after twelve months.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express, post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrearages, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received, but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

Some Questions and Answers.

BY E. A. E.

THE NAME OF THE CHURCH.

Canoe, Ala., April 18, 1916.—Dear Brother Elam: Please find inclosed a clipping taken from the Nashville Banner, dated April 15, 1916. I have been seeing these notices in the Banner for nearly a year under the heading "Christian," and classed with Vine Street and others of like kind I find Russell Street Church, South College Street, and Green Street. Is not the church the "church of Christ?" Does this notice carry with it the right impression in your estimation? To my mind, it carries an impression of compromise and fellowship, besides the fact that the notices are not given under the proper name. If there is anything in the name, these notices should appear under consistent headings and in company with those whom we fellowship. If I were a stranger in Nashville and should go to these notices to direct me to a house of worship (since I belong to the "church of Christ"), I should not feel very much at home to accidentally select Vine Street Church and go there (as I did do once). This may seem a matter of no consequence, but to me it seems somewhat vital. May I hear from you on the matter either through private letter or through the Gospel Advocate?

Yours sincerely,

(Miss) LUCILE WATSON.

The notices of the services of different congregations in Nashville made in the Nashville Banner, which were inclosed in the envelope with the request, were arranged by the paper and not by the congregations themselves. No doubt some of these notices are sent in as "the Christian Church" and some as "the church of Christ;" but the paper puts them all under the one head, "Christian Church." The paper does this for convenience, order, and uniformity, and in respect for the church. The paper draws no distinction between these names. I say this to show that the brethren who send in the announcements are not necessarily responsible for their appearance under the head "Christian Church."

The name, "the church of Christ," may be used as much in a denominational sense or sectarian spirit as "the Christian Church." I much fear that "loyal" is. Whatever of the gospel is preached by some brethren is preached, we fear also, in a partisan and sectarian spirit. The only right thing to do is to preach the whole truth in the love of truth and in humility and firmness; to be in name, practice, and character just all, and only that, which God requires.

In the days of the apostles there were no denominations from which to distinguish the church. In the New Testament the church is more frequently than anything else called simply "the church," with the emphasis on "church," not on "the." Sometimes it is called "the church of God," "the church of the Lord," "church of the firstborn," meaning the people of God in given places, "the churches," "the churches of God," "all the churches of Christ," "all the churches of the saints," "the churches of Galatia," "the seven churches of Asia." Jesus says: "Upon this rock I will build my church." "The church" is God's house, his household, his family, his children, his saints, his building, his temple, a royal priesthood, a holy nation, and citizens of his kingdom. To be Christians is to be in the church; "the church" embraces all Christians.

Let us take a complete concordance and Bible and learn just how the New Testament speaks of the church, and let us then so speak of it.

In the midst of so many and various denominations with so many names and so much sectarianism and so much sectarian jargon, it is difficult to speak of the church and Christians in the language of the Bible and be understood. So much the more careful, however, must the children of God be to speak only as the Bible speaks and strive to be free from a partisan and sectarian spirit. We should speak of the church and announce the services in Bible language so as to let all know what is meant. No brethren should make an effort to see just how sectarian or denominational they can be in both language and practice without being numbered with such. It is better for the church for such brethren to go at once to some denomination. There is a wise and just, faithful and righteous, firm and scriptural, loving and loyal course to pursue; let us all pursue it in the fear of God.

SHOULD WOMEN ANSWER QUESTIONS IN THE CLASS?

Guntown, Fla., April 27, 1916.—Dear Brother Elam: There is a question which is causing some trouble here, on which I wish you to give us some light. We meet on the first day of the week to break bread and to do all the New Testament requires. We read the Scriptures, one reading a part of the lesson, another reading another part, and so on until we are through with it. Questions embraced in the lesson are then asked. Since 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35 says let the women keep silent in the churches, is it wrong to ask them to answer questions? One brother and sister say it is. I do not want to cause any one to do wrong. All the rest of the congregation think it not wrong for women to answer questions.

Your brother in Christ,

C. E. WATERS.

1. This brother is right in the spirit of not wanting to cause any trouble over a certain way of teaching and reciting a lesson, when God has made none. This is the spirit of unity and peace.

Where God has made no rule for doing a thing, that thing should be done in the most efficient way; and if it cannot be done in that way, then in the way upon which all can harmonize. But one or two should not force some inefficient way upon the whole church. The blessed rule of yielding opinions and preferences to others ought to work "both ways"—that is, with all parties. All congregations should commit to memory Phil. 2: 1-11, and then, if not doing so already, practice it. This will heal many a breach, stop many a trouble, still many a tempest, and restore peace and love.

Having the same love, being of one accord, of one mind; doing nothing through faction or through vainglory, but in lowliness of mind each counting other better than himself; not looking each of you to his own things, but each of you also to the things of others.

This will send a wave of peace—gospel peace, the peace of God which passes all understanding (Phil. 4: 7), sweet peace which knows no ending—over the church in all places, which numerous congregations have not experienced in many years. Instead of theorizing and causing trouble and division over many things, all should study and practice the things which make for peace. If all were as anxious and as studious to both understand and to practice Phil. 2: 1-11 and similar instruction as to split hairs over theories and force opinions upon others, the church in many places would make great development in spirituality and rapid strides toward saving the lost. One of the greatest curses of the church in many places to-day is the strife which has been caused by the petty notions, theories, pride of opinion, vanity and speculations of not a few who have failed to study and contend for the practice of Phil. 2: 1-11.

I am most anxious to persuade brethren in many places to strive in self-sacrifice for peace and harmony and the greatest good of all—"the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace"—which can come only through submission to God; and submission to God embraces all that he teaches on forbearance, bearing the infirmities of the weak, pleasing not oneself, but one's neighbor unto the edification of the neighbor, following "after things which make for peace, and things whereby we may edify one another." (Read Rom. 14; 15: 1-3.) Submission to God is not obedience to one or two of his commandments only, but to all his commandments—his will entire.

2. This brother is right in contending that the Scriptures do not forbid asking women questions in a class or in a private way, or women's teaching in the same way. When Paul says, "Let the women keep silence in the churches," he is discussing the delivery of public speeches—making addresses to the congregations or to mixed audiences. Had he been discussing answering questions or teaching in a private way, or singing, when he said, "Let your women keep silent," then he would have forbidden their singing, answering questions, and teaching in this way. Women must not do that which God forbids, but "learn in quietness with all subjection." (1 Tim. 2: 8-15.)

AVOID EVERY FORM OF EVIL.

Culleoka, Tenn., May 16, 1916.—Dear Brother Elam: Please explain if, in the light of the Bible, Christians should attend a concert on Sunday afternoon given by a brass band.

MRS. JOSH GREGG.

Much depends upon the character of an entertainment, its associations, the circumstances under which and the purpose for which it is given, as to whether Christians should attend it at all. Christians do not want to do wrong. They are children of God; they have the Spirit of Christ; they seek first the kingdom of God and his righteousness; they are the light of the world and the salt of the earth; they desire to exert an influence for good at all times; they endeavor to keep unspotted from the world and to do all they do in word and deed in the name of the Lord Jesus.

Within itself there can be no more sin in hearing a concert or a brass band than on any other musical instruments—an organ recital, for instance. The time, place, associations, and nature of some things have much to do with their being wrong or right. At certain times and places certain things are wrong, when they are not wrong at other times and places.

That which people want to do and places to which they desire to go depend upon the conditions of their hearts—their intentions and aspirations, purposes and hope. If their hearts are right and set upon the things which are above, they seek to set a good example, to be separate from the world in its practices and spirit, and will not attend many places of amusement with the world on Sunday afternoons and some such places at no time.

Some in the church are young and not so spiritual-minded as older and wiser ones; with such the older and wiser ones and the more godly ones must forbear, endeavoring all the while to influence and teach them the good and right way.

A question on Rev. 7: 1-4 and one or two other questions, I regret to say, have been misplaced by me in my numerous letters; but if the querists will be so kind as to repeat them, I shall as kindly attempt answers.

Election, Foreordination, and the Foreknowledge of God.

BY M. C. K.

The question of God's choice of the Jews discussed in our columns last week suggests the general subject of election and foreordination, and we make it the occasion of some reflections on the latter theme. Just as from the fact of God's choice of the Jews certain erroneous conclusions were drawn and certain false theories constructed, so, from the words "election" and "foreordination," or "predestination," as it is given in the Common Version, certain conclusions are drawn and certain theories are advanced which the premises in no sense warrant. The only way to understand the Bible doctrine of divine foreknowledge, election, and reprobation is, of course, to ascertain the Bible usage of these terms with such other facts as throw light on them; and to this task we now invite attention.

That there is such a thing as the foreknowledge of God, foreordination, election, and reprobation in some sense, is a fact beyond all reasonable controversy, because the Bible repeatedly uses these terms. (See Rom. 8: 29; 11: 5; Eph. 1: 5; 1 Pet. 1: 2; etc.)

The one vital and all-important fact in the solution of the problem, and which, by the average reader of the Bible, is often overlooked, is the marked difference between the human and the divine conception of time and of the time element in connection with the events of history. Even with men, the same fact or event, viewed by different persons or by the same person from different angles of vision, may appear very different at different times, although the fact or event is one and the same in reality at all times and under all circumstances. The only conception which finite minds can have of time is that it is past, present, and future, and the only way in which they can conceive of events is that they are either past, present, or future; but with God, according to the facts, there is no such limited conception of time. On the contrary, it is distinctly said of him: "A thousand years in thy sight are but as yesterday when it is past, and as a watch in the night." (Ps. 90: 4.) And the apostle Peter admonishes us: "But forget not this one thing, beloved, that one day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day." (2 Pet. 3: 8.)

Now, let us get at the full import of this significant teaching about God and his conception of time, and it will shed a bright light on our theme. According to the teaching of these passages, a thousand years which, in our conception of time, is a period yet future is already virtually present before the Lord. In such expressions, of course, a definite number is figuratively put for an indefinite one, and hence it means that any other number of years or period of time yet future to us is already virtually present with the Lord; and hence such a period of time, with all that is to transpire in it, stands now before the divine prescience as if it had already transpired.

Hence, so far as a knowledge of what it is or is to be is concerned, what men, of their own free will and choice, are going to do at some future time is already present to the mind of the Infinite. We have both from Moses and from Isaiah a significant illustration of this matter of Jehovah's relation to time in an attempt to give expression to his existence. Isaiah says: "Thus saith the high and lofty One that inhabiteth eternity, whose name is Holy." (Isa. 57: 15.) Please note here that, as to Jehovah, all time, as we conceive it, is totally obliterated, and his very habitation is eternity. He is thus present and existing at one time, whether past, present, or future, quite as much as at another. The Hebrew language, in which the Old Testament was written, has only two tenses, one of them expressing an action as finished and the other as unfinished; but, unlike the tenses in English, neither of these tenses, strictly speaking, takes any note of time; and hence, so far as the time of an action denoted by a verb in Hebrew is concerned, it may be either past, present, or future, the context alone being the determining factor. The tense determines nothing except that the action contemplated is, or is conceived of as, either finished or unfinished, as either complete or continuous. Hence, in an effort to express the existence of Jehovah, we have the following significant use of one of the tenses in Hebrew: "And Moses said unto God, Behold, when I come unto the children of Israel, and shall say unto them, The God of your fathers hath sent me unto you; and they shall say to me, What is his name? what shall I say unto them? And God said unto Moses, I AM THAT I AM; and he said, Thus shalt thou say unto the children of Israel, I AM hath sent me unto you." (Ex. 3: 13, 14.)

Now, in this significant effort to make known to Moses who the divine Being is, the verb to be in Hebrew is used and the tense is that of unfinished action or of continuous being. The translators express it in English by "am," the first person singular present, but that does not fully express the tense idea in Hebrew. The tense, as there used, neither expresses exclusively the idea of one who has been, nor of one who is, nor of one who is to be, but it merely expresses the idea of continuous being regardless of the particular time, whether past, present, or future, and hence it here denotes the ever-existing One, or one of continuous existence; or, as Isaiah would express it, the One who "inhabits eternity."

Now, in the light of these facts, we are prepared to appreciate how men are called and elected, or, as the case may be, how they are reprobated. Paul says: "But we are bound to give thanks to God always for you, brethren beloved of the Lord, for that God chose you from the beginning unto salvation in sanctification of the Spirit and belief of the truth: whereunto he called you through our gospel to the obtaining of the glory of our Lord Jesus Christ." (2 Thess. 2: 13, 14.) It is here distinctly declared that men are called and chosen "through the gospel" and by the "belief of the truth"—that is, men hear the gospel and believe it, and if they respond with obedience to its claims, they are thus called and elected; but if they refuse persistently and ultimately to accept it, they are reprobated. Thus, in an important sense, men elect or reprobate themselves by accepting or rejecting the conditions on which God calls them; and this accounts for the fact that Peter clearly makes it out that the election of men is in their own hands. He says: "Wherefore, brethren, give the more diligence to make your calling and election sure." (2 Pet. 1: 10.) If the election of men had been determined unconditionally from eternity, they could not properly be exhorted to make it sure. It would, in that case, be sure in spite of anything they might do.

Hence, finally, our subject becomes plain. No matter what men at some distant period of the future may, of their own free will, choose to do either in accepting or rejecting the call to eternal life, He who "inhabits eternity"—the Being whose existence has no past and no future bounds—sees and knows, or rather "foreknows," it all at this moment because it is, as it were, already before his eyes. And his foreknowledge of things yet future no more causes their existence than our knowledge of things now present causes their existence. In fact, there is nothing in "knowledge" that is causative. Our knowledge that a given thing exists does not cause it to exist, but rather its existence causes our knowledge. And there being nothing causative in the prefix "fore," there is, therefore, nothing causative in "foreknowledge." It follows that, just as finite minds can know what men, of their own free choice, have chosen to do after it is done, so the Infinite mind can know what men, of their own free choice, will choose to do before it is done; and neither the knowledge in the one case nor the foreknowledge in the other causes the choice to be made. In the one we have the operations of the finite mind, hampered by a thousand limitations and knowing things only when they have transpired; in the other we have the operations of the Infinite mind, hampered by no limitations and knowing things before as well as after they have transpired, and who, "inhabiting eternity," says to the world through the evangelical prophet: "I am God, and there is none like me, declaring the end from the beginning." (Isa. 46: 9, 10.)

QUERY DEPARTMENT

Brother Freed: If not asking too much of you, please answer this question: Does the word "him" in Matt. 18: 2; Mark 9: 36; and Luke 9: 47 indicate boy? If not, what does it indicate?
G. W. HALE.

The word "him" in each of the above scriptures has for its antecedent "child," which is common gender, either male or female, boy or girl. The word "him" is often common gender.

Brother Freed: Please explain Rev. 18: 6; Matt. 23: 14; Mark 12: 40; Job 34: 11; also, Rev. 19: 12. This angel had many crowns on his head. In Rev. 6: 2, this one had a crown on his head. Also, explain Zech. 6: 11.

J. C. SULLINS.

(1) "And I saw, and behold a white horse: and he that sat on him had a bow; and a crown was given unto him; and he went forth conquering, and to conquer." (Rev. 6: 2.) Let the reader remember that the book of Revelation is highly symbolical. We are not to look for a literal fulfillment, but must seek the meaning of symbols. The horse, its color, the armed warrior, the crown, and his mission must represent some conqueror. May the symbol not signify the conquest of Christ through the gospel? The crown was a "garland crown," given in honor of victory in battle, hence one crown. (2) "His eyes were as a flame of fire, and on his head were many crowns; and he had a name written, that no man knew, but he himself." (Rev. 19: 12.) This sublime picture shows the King of kings in his march and conquest. The armies of the saints, led by him, are marching to the great conflict with the hosts of evil. "Upon his head were many crowns," diadems, indicating that "all authority in heaven and on earth" is delegated to him. Here diadems are distinguished from the garland crown of Rev. 6: 2. To this scene, no doubt, the prophet Zechariah (chapter 6: 11) refers when he says: "Then take silver and gold, and make crowns." (3) "Reward her even as she rewarded you, and double unto her double according to her works:

in the cup which she hath filled fill to her double." (Rev. 18: 6.) The divine principle of judgment is that every one shall be rewarded according to his works. Babylon is no exception. What she sows, that must she reap. Hence, this power, Babylon, shall have returned upon her in double portion what she has meted out to others. (4) "Woe unto you scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye devour widows' houses, and for a pretense make long prayer: therefore ye shall receive the greater damnation." (Matt. 23: 14.) The parallel scripture is Mark 12: 40. Our Savior delivered a scathing denunciation against the hypocritical practices of the scribes and Pharisees. They sat in Moses' seat as expounders of the law of Moses. They bound heavy burdens on men's shoulders. Their works were done to be seen of men. They loved uppermost rooms at feasts, and to be called "Rabbi." They devoured widows' property under holy pretenses. On account of occupying prominent places, and from whom better things were expected, they "shall receive the greater damnation." (5) "For the work of a man shall he render unto him, and cause every man to find according to his ways." (Job 34: 11.) This thought is expressed when God says he "shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil." (Eccles. 12: 14.) Again: "For we must all appear before the judgment seat of Christ; that every one may receive the things done in his body, according to that he hath done, whether it be good or bad." (2 Cor. 5: 10.)

Don't fail to read "Instrumental Music in the Worship," by M. C. Kurfees. It is the most thorough work published on the subject. Price, $1.25.

Volume II. of "Christian Treasures" is now ready. Price, $1. You should not fail to read what competent critics are saying of "Christian Treasures."

Our Bible Lesson Helps are growing rapidly. The present quarter is decidedly the largest in the history of our Bible quarterlies and lesson papers. The orders for the third quarter of this year are still coming in rapidly. If you have not forwarded your order, mail immediately to the McQuiddy Printing Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

From H. C. Shoulders, Winchester, Ky.: "I received the copy of 'Christian Treasures,' Volume I., and have just finished reading same. I read this volume with great interest and pleasure. I confidently believe the book has the right name. I consider the book a very valuable one for the library of any person who is trying to gain a knowledge of God's word and live a true Christian life.

From W. L. Karnes, Cookeville, Tenn.: "I received the little book, 'Christian Treasures,' that you sent me. While I have not had time to read the whole book, still I have read a part of it. To my mind, the book is a little gem. In four respects the little book reminds me of the Bible. It is true to God; it was written by a number of authors; there is agreement of thought, so far as I know, among the authors; and the subjects discussed are many."

From Sister I. C. Hoskins, Florence, Ala.: "Having carefully examined the new book, 'Christian Treasures,' Volume I., I am impressed with the appropriateness of the name. Many gifted writers have here given the rich treasures of their thought. In addition to this, I would mention especially the appropriate and helpful selection made by Brother A. B. Lipscomb. This will be a valuable book for any home. I wish for it a large circulation."

From J. D. Walling, Monticello, Ky.: "I have before me 'Christian Treasures,' Volume I. I think it is rightly named. It is truly a treasure, for it contains the gospel. Paul said: 'We have this treasure in earthen vessels.' It is Christian because its teaching and purposes are Christian. It will make any one a better Christian to believe and practice its teachings. If succeeding volumes are to be up to the first, they will be worthy a place in the best of homes."

From Fred Cowin, Toronto, Canada: "Your 'Christian Treasures,' Volume I., came to hand, for which I sincerely thank you. Since coming here I have had little else to read besides my Bible and—well, I won't tell you the only other book I brought with me. I have, therefore, appreciated very much 'Christian Treasures.' I have read through the book; and though I read the articles as they appeared in the Gospel Advocate, I enjoy reading them now better than then. There are many helpful chapters for the Christian in general and the preacher in particular. I hope you will be able to send out many such volumes. I am delighted to add this volume to my no-small library."

From James E. Scobey, Nashville, Tenn.: "I have read every line in the book you have prepared and published, 'Christian Treasures,' and it has been very properly named. My judgment is that every disciple of Jesus would be greatly edified and wonderfully strengthened, spiritually, by a faithful reading of the book; and aliens could not fail in learning the truth as to what is required on their part in order to become citizens of the kingdom of God, children of the Heavenly Father, heirs of God and joint heirs with Christ. Every preacher of the gospel should have a copy, and by its study better prepare himself for his work. The book deserves an extensive circulation."

From E. C. Fuqua, Olathe, Col.: "Through the courtesy of Brother A. B. Lipscomb, I have been permitted to carefully examine Volume I. of 'Christian Treasures,' edited by himself and published by the McQuiddy Printing Company. 'Christian Treasures' consists of various articles on vital questions, written by some fifty-eight authors selected from among the most consecrated and able writers in the brotherhood, excepting one; and I gladly commend the book as indeed a treasure to all who seek a closer walk with God as his coworker. It should be in every library. It is the book for God's worker, for the man who yearns to be a 'profitable servant' to God. Splendid thoughts enable the grandeur of Christianity to impress itself upon the mind of the careful reader in the form of a call to action. No one can read it without inestimable profit."

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Compiled by A. B. Lipscomb

J. G. Allen reports a good start in the meeting at Mead's Chapel, this city.

C. H. Black changes his address from Garrett, Texas, to Bardwell, Texas.

The editor of this page will begin a meeting Sunday at Coopertown, near Springfield, Tenn.

Hal P. McDonald will begin his summer's evangelistic work in McNairy County, Tenn., on July 23.

Max Cole, one of our Birmingham, Ala., readers, writes to tell us of his appreciation of the Gospel Advocate.

J. M. Dennis, of Franklin, Ky., is in a meeting at Covington, Tenn., to continue so long as the interest lasts.

A physician desires a location in Tennessee, and in which there must be a church of Christ. Address G. H. M., care of the Gospel Advocate office.

Just at a time when a fine interest had been developed, F. W. Smith was called away from the meeting at Paducah, Ky., by the death of a little grandchild, the daughter of Phelps Smith, this city.

From J. I. Foster, Olathe, Col.: "E. C. Fuqua is in an interesting tent meeting at this place. Two additions to date—one from the Presbyterians and one from the Baptists. Others have promised to come into the church."

On account of a change in his schedule, Andy T. Ritchie, of Madison, Tenn., has time for a meeting the last two weeks in August. Here is an opportunity for some congregation to secure the services of a humble and very efficient evangelist.

From W. S. Long, Jr.: "This is the fifteenth day of the Summitville meeting. Four baptisms to date. We may have a good meeting before it is over. I go next to Hickerson, Tenn., with two tents—one tent for services and one for our camping."

J. W. Richardson writes from Cookeville, Tenn.: "T. Q. Martin is with us now. He began preaching the first Lord's day in this month, with a full house. Good crowds up to now (July 7) and fine attention. I hope and pray that we all may be ready when called."

Brother Elam's folks celebrated the birthday of Mr. Edwin A. Elam, Jr., and Mrs. Samuel Patton Thomson, at the Thomson home, near Lebanon, Tenn., on July 4. A large number of friends were present, and all enjoyed the unstinted hospitality of these good Christian people.

C. G. Vincent writes us that he and Mrs. Vincent reached Battle Creek, Mich., on July 3, and that his wife is now under treatment. Brother Vincent seems hopeful of her recovery. Offerings from the churches at this time are much needed. Send to Brother Vincent at Battle Creek, Mich.

From F. L. Young, Amarillo, Texas: "O. M. Reynolds, of Memphis, and I began a meeting here on July 4. Fine audiences day and night. At a great sacrifice the brethren have built a neat church home. We trust that in twenty days we may accomplish some good in His dear name."

Among our visitors last week were O. T. Bearden, the valiant pioneer worker at Atlanta, Ga.; R. L. Whiteside, the well-known evangelist, of Denton, Texas; and Jesse P. Sewell, president of Abilene Christian College, at Abilene, Texas. Brother Whiteside was on the way to a meeting in Maury County, Tenn., and Brother Sewell was en route to Alexandria, Tenn.

From J. B. Nelson, Youngsport, Texas, July 5.—Austin Taylor and I are in a meeting at this place. On June 30 I closed an excellent meeting at Irving, Texas, with five baptisms and one restored. On June 16 I closed a meeting at Mineral Wells, Texas, with three baptisms and one restored. W. C. Scruggs helped much in this meeting. We succeeded in getting a divided church together."

T. B. Larimore passed the seventy-third milestone last Monday, and celebrated his birthday, as usual, by preaching the gospel. He is now in a meeting at Mount Pleasant, Tenn., with splendid interest. Four persons had been baptized at last report. Brother Wrye, who has heard Brother Larimore in meetings for twenty years, tells us that his preaching at Mount Pleasant is the best of his career. May the good Lord spare him to us for many years.

C. E. Holt writes from Montgomery, Ala.: "I wish to say through the Gospel Advocate that I have severed my connection with the Catoma Street church of Christ as regular preacher for said church, to take effect on October 1, 1916. I have the following meetings in Tennessee: Iron City, the second Lord's day in August; Gordonsburg, the fourth Lord's day in August; and Petersburg (Chestnut Ridge), the first Lord's day in September."

From R. E. Wright, Hornbeak, Tenn.: "The meeting here continues to grow in interest from day to day. Five confessions to date. This is the home of John R. Williams, a most noble minister of the gospel. No man, perhaps, has done more for the cause of Christ in West Tennessee than he. He is loved and respected by all who know him for his work's sake. It has caused our hearts to rejoice to have him with us most of the time during this meeting."

From Willis H. Allen, Jacksonville, Fla.: "Our work here continues to move along in an interesting way. Splendid audiences at both services last Lord's day. At the morning service a splendid young man confessed his waywardness and renewed his stand for the Lord. A recent tent meeting in one of the suburbs resulted in three additions. There is much to be done yet, and many difficulties to be overcome, but we have every reason to believe the Lord is with us. We solicit the earnest prayers of the brethren everywhere. Stop with us while in the city."

From I. B. Bradley, Dickson, Tenn., July 7: "There have been two persons baptized at our regular services this week. One was baptized last Lord's-day night and one at our prayer-meeting service last Thursday night. Both of these were men, one being the head of a family. The work will be entirely in the hands of the elders for about two and one-half months. I leave to begin my regular annual evangelistic work Saturday evening. I will, the Lord willing, begin a meeting of a week or ten days with the Brown's Chapel congregation, four miles northeast of Bon Aqua, Tenn., next Lord's-day morning, the 9th inst. From there I will go to Cannon County for about six weeks, holding meetings with Auburn, Antioch, and New Hope churches."

From Mrs. W. E. Pittman, Childress, Texas, July 4: "I have never written to the Gospel Advocate before, but I read it, and certainly enjoy the many good pieces it contains. I want to tell you how our Bible study is increasing since we began using the literature published by the McQuiddy Printing Company. Our little card class is so interested that eternity alone can only tell the results of this teaching. We have a number of children who never attended a Bible study before. We not only have the little tots, but are interesting the larger ones. The intermediate class is progressing nicely. I am sure it will be of interest to our brethren and sisters in Christ, whom we have known at other places, to know that we are not idle in the Lord's work, but are up and doing and having good results. To God we give all the praise."

Shall We Evangelize South Mississippi?

BY H. R. STRINGER.

Brethren, permit me to give a brief history of the cause of Christ in South Mississippi. Some twenty years ago Brother N. L. Clark first preached the gospel in this country. Four or five congregations established were the fruits of his labors. Since that time he and other preachers have labored occasionally in this country, but mostly among those established congregations, as it seemed necessary in order to keep them alive.

Ever since I learned that the gospel is the power of God to save the believer and that faith comes by hearing, I can truly say, as Paul of old: My heart's desire and prayer to God for my countrymen is that they may be saved; for I bear them record [some of them] that they have a zeal for God, but not according to knowledge. But how can they believe the gospel unless they can hear it? How can they hear it without a preacher? How can a preacher preach without a support?

Do those people need the gospel? Should some one carry the gospel to them? Surely all my brethren will agree that somebody should carry the gospel to them.

Now listen. Brother T. E. Smith, of Brookhaven, Miss., and I have desired to put at least one able man in this needy field. We have the promise of some help from a few scattering brethren in this country. We all are among the very poorest of the poor, financially; but we have strong faith in God and our brethren, and believe you will help us in this much-needed work.

Dear brethren in Christ, we appeal to you, one and all, in Jesus' name and in behalf of perishing souls, not to pass this heedlessly by; but send in a contribution, and it will be thankfully received and acknowledged and duly reported in the papers. We also want to correspond with a loyal, God-fearing preacher, who is able to take care of such work as this, and who is willing to put in all of his time, in regards to taking up this work.

Brethren, pray for us, that we may have a strong and earnest faith and unwasting zeal, a prayerful heart, and a courageous will that will know no rest until our efforts are crowned with victory. Send all contributions to Brother T. E. Smith, Jr., Brookhaven, Miss., Route 2, or H. R. Stringer, Bogue Chitto, Miss.

REMARKS.

The foregoing statement needs little explanation. Brother Stringer is a very worthy Christian whose zeal for the cause of truth impels him to raise his cry for help in the Lord's work. Every statement he makes about conditions in Southern Mississippi is correct. In addition to what he says, I add the following: (1) The country is in most places timbered, reasonably healthful, and fairly accessible. (2) It is thickly settled with white people and negroes, many of whom are eager to learn more of the will of the Lord. (3) Religious prejudice in some places is strong, but in very few places will it keep the people from hearing the gospel. (4) I have spent nine summers, entire or in part, in Lincoln County, Miss. There I have baptized several hundred people and built up the churches mentioned by Brother Stringer. Those churches are supporting Brother N. F. Jacks for at least part of his time. The work is in need of several able evangelists, if arrangements can be made for their support.

I doubt that another field so inviting for evangelistic work can be found in the United States. All we need is the men to do the preaching and the disposition of the churches to support them. I earnestly urge that any capable and consecrated gospel preacher who is entirely satisfied with the Lord's way and who desires to enter a great field for gospel work write Brother Stringer or Brother Smith at once. Let the churches that desire to do fruitful mission work arrange to give regularly to this cause. I have sacrificed much to plant the cause of simple New Testament Christianity in that region. I cannot go there to stay permanently, but I expect to assist these brethren.

You cannot afford to buy a piano until you have investigated the club, for you cannot afford to throw away the money-saving opportunity it offers you.

The club makes the payments easy, ships your piano at once, freight prepaid, subject to your approval after one-month's trial. Perfect satisfaction is absolutely guaranteed to every member. Where Drugs Fail.

Many chronic diseases fail to respond to drug treatment, even in the hands of the best physicians, whereas acute diseases usually respond readily. When a disease has become chronic, drugs often seem to do as much harm as they do good, for the system rebels against them. It is just this class of cases which derive the greatest benefit from Shivar Mineral Water. If you suffer with chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, sick headache, rheumatism, gallstones, kidney or liver disease, uric-acid poisoning, or other conditions due to impure blood, do not hesitate to accept Mr. Shivar's liberal offer as printed below. His records show that only two in a hundred, on the average, have reported no beneficial results. This is a wonderful record from a truly wonderful spring. Simply sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring,
Box 21F, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your guarantee offer, and inclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in the booklet you will send; and if it fails to benefit my case, you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return promptly.

Christian Education.

BY C. A. BUCHANAN.

Brother Jesse P. Sewell recently spoke in Wichita Falls, Texas, on the above subject. He said some things we all should know. I hope every preacher who reads this much of this article will read right on through and then resolve to agitate this question more. Brother Sewell's address was two hours in length. I took no notes, but I believe I can reproduce some thoughts from his address that may provoke more study of the question of Christian education.

Brother Sewell's text: "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." (Eph. 6: 4.) Our attention was called to the woeful neglect of most Christian parents in obeying this command. This is just as much a commandment as the commandment to "repent, and be baptized." We preach that the man who neglects or refuses to obey the gospel will be lost; and that is the truth. Then how may we expect to be saved when we neglect or ignore a plain commandment addressed to us? We were shown that parents should not only live the Christian life before their children, but that they should see that their children learn at least one lesson from God's word every day, or, at least, as often as they see that they learn a lesson in grammar or arithmetic. If there is any difference made, the favor should be shown in the Bible lesson, unless we should consider grammar and arithmetic more essential to our child's welfare than the Bible. Some parents are afraid they will turn the child against the Bible when they force him to study it. Then, to be consistent, they should think this about all subjects the child seems not inclined to study.

Christian education should begin in the home. There will be no Christian education where the Bible is neglected. During the formative period of life is the best time to implant the principles of Christianity. The marvelous growth of the Catholics in our country is due to their regular and endless child training. Every day the Catholic child is in school he is taught Catholicism as well as the secular branches. When the child finishes the grammar grades, the higher grades are offered him in schools under Catholic influence until he has finished the highest degree. They are never forced to turn the Catholic student over to the State school or to some Protestant school for his finishing work. It is Catholic influence from the cradle on up, and only Catholic influence. The statistics show that

Don't Let a Cold Get a Good Start

The way to check a cold is to fight it from the first. Even the worst maladies often are easily conquered if attacked early enough. Colds may lead to asthma, bronchial troubles and pulmonary affections. In the treatment of these one of the first needs is to build up body resistance.

Eckman's Alterative often has assisted in such upbuilding. As a treatment for the troubles named, it has been used for more than twenty years. And in many instances it has effected lasting relief.

As with any other medicine, it should be regarded only as a first aid to right care and hygienic living—and a safe one. For it contains no narcotics, opiates or habit-forming drugs of any sort. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

YOU CAN AFFORD Familiar Songs of the Gospel (No. 1 or 2). Round or shape notes. $3 per hundred, samples 5c each. 88 songs, words and music. E. A. K. HACKETT, FORT WAYNE, INDIANA during the ten years previous to 1910 ninety-nine per cent of the children in Catholic homes were turned out Catholics, while less than forty per cent of the children in Protestant homes became members of any church at all. The Catholics are never seen conducting great revivals or evangelistic campaigns. They educate the child to be a Catholic, and he is a Catholic till he dies. We depend too much on preaching of sermons constructed and delivered mainly for adults. Brother Sewell here emphasized our need of schools where the Bible is taught daily, and the importance of schooling our children under Christian influence. Only two Christian schools in Texas run by loyal brethren have even junior college standing, whereas we should have a school able to confer the highest degrees. He called attention to many instances where the children of Christian parents had gone to State schools after finishing high school and had returned with their faith in the Bible weakened forever.

We have contented ourselves with the fact that we have the truth. It is true that we do have the truth. This, however, is no reason why we should be intellectually inferior to other folks or should have inferior schools. This fact should make us want to have the best. We can have the best when we get the brotherhood aroused to the point where they can see our great need of them. The Methodists had no trouble in raising one million dollars in one year for educational purposes. The Baptists raise their hundreds of thousands every year. Their preachers have educated their brethren along these lines. They see what it means to their cause. One Baptist in the "black land," when it was too muddy to drive his carriage, walked twelve miles to attend an educational rally and to make a contribution to Texas Baptist schools. A few generations ago the Primitive Baptists were more numerous than the Missionary Baptists; but now there are few communities where enough of the former can be found to have a church, while the latter are the most rapidly growing of the denominations in Texas. Why? Because the Missionary Baptists have done mission work and built schools, while the Primitive Baptists have done neither.

We have the truth, and the truth will win if we give it a chance and do not cover it up with a lot of rubbish. The old song, "We are poor in this world's goods and few in number," will not excuse us much longer. The church of Christ has many wealthy members, and we are at present the third largest religious body in Texas. If every member could be aroused to do just a little every year, we, all working together, could accomplish anything we might undertake.

Brother Sewell showed that our deficiency in educational work under Christian influence made us that far short of apostolic practice. The Jewish synagogues were used as Jewish schools during the week and as places of worship on the Sabbath; and when those Jews were converted to Christianity, they used the synagogues as places of worship on Lord's days and as schools under Christian influence throughout the week.

Brother Sewell thinks that the future for the church of Christ is bright; that our brethren nearly always do the best they have been taught; that there is a general awakening along practical lines; that when we get the brethren as well educated along these lines as we have on meeting on the first day of the week to break bread, singing without the organ, praying without the organ, taking the Lord's Supper without the organ (and some folks can't do these things without the organ), then they will gladly do their duty. It is in the hands of the preachers and elders and other leaders in the church to teach the brethren and agitate these practical questions until activity is aroused. This is no new question; it is an old one, but one that has not been talked about enough. I am ready now to do my part of the talking.

Brother Sewell emphasized the fact that he was not talking for Abilene Christian College alone, but for this school directly and specifically and for Christian education in general. He insisted that every Christian should regularly assist some Christian school. Abilene Christian College naturally expects the support of her territory; but if there are those who for any reason do not wish to assist this school, Brother Sewell insists that they help some other school, such as those at Thorp Spring, Lockney, Cordell, etc.

Abilene Christian College is now engaged in raising two thousand dollars for a library which is necessary in order to maintain its standing. I gave them a contribution. Send yours along while it is fresh in your mind.

The Prospect in Louisiana.

I began preaching in the State of Louisiana on October 31, 1915—not regularly, but as often as I could. I am living about ten miles west of Hope, Ark. When I lived in Shreveport several years ago, I learned that there was but one colored Christian in the whole State. If there were others, no one at that time had found it out. This state of affairs respecting my race put me to thinking. There lived an old preacher in Shreveport by the name of Gamerway, formerly of Texas. I talked the matter over with him, and he agreed to help establish a congregation in Shreveport. We began at once to look for a place, and secured the front yard of an old colored woman. I preached eight or ten nights, with no visible results. We gave up with that meeting. I told Brother Gamerway that if I lived I was going to establish some Christian work in Louisiana. From that day until to-day I have held Louisiana in my mind, and have succeeded in starting two congregations in the State since last October, having made only three trips to the State. I am sure that the work will succeed if I can continue it. While it is hard with no financial backing behind me, yet I am courageous, hopeful, faithful, and strong in the Lord and the power of his might. My dear colored brethren, what are you doing for the salvation of your race? Remember that you save yourselves by saving others. I need your help in this very needy field. I cannot do the work without your aid. What church will give to this work one Lord's-day's collection? At present I am not making railroad expenses. Yet I must go, for I have started the work; and if left alone, it will die. So you see I must keep going. I doubt that another field so inviting for evangelistic work can be found in the United States among the colored people. I earnestly urge earnest and consecrated Christians to put my case before their people from a scriptural viewpoint. The colored people are not so prejudiced as they are in Texas, Arkansas, and other places. All who wish to fellowship me in this work may do so by writing me at Hope, Ark. As to the importance of this work, write Brother J. L. Davis (white), Route 1, Randolph, La.

Iron the Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous Rundown (People 200 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Week's Time in Many Cases.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. Sauer, a well known specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, when, as a matter of fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened, nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring for stomach, liver or kidney trouble or symptoms of some other ailment caused by the lack of iron in the blood. This thing may go on for years, while the patient suffers untold agony. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, rundown people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the fray, while many another has gone down into inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sauer is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents is widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The Manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

The Home at Bethany.

BY MRS. I. C. HOSKINS.

"If you were breasting a keen wind, which tossed
 And buffeted and chilled you as you strove,
 Till, baffled and bewildered quite,
 you lost
 The power to see the way and aim and move,
 And one, if only for a moment's space,
 Gave you a shelter from the bitter blast,
 Would you not find it easier to face
 The storm when the brief rest was past?"

The shelter, hospitality, and love so graciously tendered the weary and lonely Savior shall, like a fair picture, be forever enshrined in the universal Christian heart. Each gentle ministration gave a little gladness and strength to Him over whose pathway the shadows of the cross was already lying.

A glimpse into the home reveals the presence of two sisters and a brother. Lazarus was spoken of as him whom Jesus loved, and the two sisters, though opposite in disposition and temperament, were blessed with the same tender regard of the Savior as was he. Mary's spirit seemed more in tune with that of her Lord. She dwelt more in the realm of thought and spiritual perception; while Martha's life was manifested most in service of practical utilities. Martha, no doubt, loved her Savior; and Mary's adoration of her Lord found expression in kind and gentle ministries. Christ would not undervalue practical duties nor disparage the hospitality so generously accorded him. He recognized deeds of mercy as the very fruit of the Christian heart. He plainly tells us that at the last great day we shall be judged by our service to the poor, the suffering, and the sorrowing. When he speaks to Martha, who "was cumbered about much serving," he refers to the unrest of her spirit in these words: "Martha, Martha, thou art anxious and troubled about many things." In the next sentence he shows the superiority of the soul over the body when he says: "One thing is needful: for Mary hath chosen the good part, which shall not be taken away from her." Mary had peace of soul as she looked through the visible into the invisible.

"She who has comfort of soul, who has risen into communion with divine things, has that one grand fountain from which all satisfaction flows." A gifted writer has said that "all civilization reaches away from the visible and sensuous to the invisible and spiritual; as a tree throws out its blossoms upon its highest and outermost boughs, farthest removed from its earth-root, though still vitally connected with it."

Our hearts love to linger in imagination and view the other two scenes associated with this home where Jesus loved to go. Christ is called from his peaceful security in the desert to show forth his power and sympathy at the grave of Lazarus. To Martha's heartbroken cry, "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day," the sublime answer comes in the present tense, bringing with it a floodtide of light from the great beyond: "I am the resurrection and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die." Precious words, glorious in their sublimity and world-embracing in their import—a citadel against which the archenemy can never prevail.

The third scene—Mary's anointing—transpired only a few days before the Savior's death and is precious and familiar to every Christian heart. Sweeter far than the fragrance exhaled on that occasion are the Savior's words: "She hath done what she could; she hath anointed my body beforehand for the burying. And verily I say unto you, Whosoever the gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, that also which this woman hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her."

Let us be thankful for what the Bethany home contributed to the comfort of our Lord; and may we remember that the cry of the orphan and the piteous wails of the destitute reach to our very door, and God will not hold those guiltless who leave them to die alone in the cold world.

When he comes surrounded by his angels, he will say, "Depart," if we have failed to help the needy; but if we have been faithful to those who are unfortunate, he accepts it as service to himself and will say: "Inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world."

A Nervous Breakdown,

no matter how trivial it appears, may be the beginning of the end of you. The heart and nerves are so closely connected that nothing can affect the nerves without affecting the heart. A shattered nervous system means a weak heart. If you are troubled with palpitation, short breathing, weak and irregular pulse, sleeplessness, swollen ankles, pains on either side of the chest, or the many other symptoms of a nervous breakdown, take "Reno-vine," the best of nerve tonic, and build up your nervous system. "Renwar" Never Fails to Relieve.

That is what Mrs. Theo. Kuker, of Florence, S. C., says about "Renwar," the new, scientific treatment for rheumatism, liver and kidney troubles. She writes: "I have ordered 'Renwar' for several people, and many others have come to me for the name and address. My recovery has been so wonderful I am always happy to recommend such a sure remedy. It has never failed to relieve those who use it." "Renwar" is guaranteed to give relief, or your money back. Sold by all druggists—price, fifty cents per bottle; or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, if your druggist cannot supply you. Warner Drug Company, Nashville, Tenn.

Your Greatest Problem—That Boy of Yours

What kind of a man will he be ten, twenty, or thirty years from now? You know, every parent knows, that it depends entirely upon the training he is getting right now, his associations, his ideals, his inspirations.

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, principal of the Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., has been training boys for twenty-five years. He wants your boy. He recognizes in him one of the men who may some day manage big affairs, and he wants to train him for that end. His school has been built and equipped and his instructors chosen with the first and only consideration of giving the boy the mental and physical training, the associations with clean, high-minded men, the ideals of character, the inspirations to ambition, which the world expects in the men to whom it intrusts its greatest affairs, be they business, professional, religious, or social.

Robert K. Morgan is a Christian gentleman of strong, wholesome, inspiring personality, and his school is the material projection of that character. He is a graduate of Webb School, Bellbuckle, Tenn., and the Vanderbilt University.

The boy deserves your most careful thought. Write Mr. L. I. Mills, secretary Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., to-day, and let him send you a catalogue and tell you what this school can do for your boy.

The Master's Vineyard

Alabama.

Dothan, June 29.—I am to begin a tent meeting to-night in this town of about nine thousand people. I am going to preach a series of sermons on the prophecies and types of the Old Testament and see whether I can get the people interested in the gospel plan of salvation. The church at Winchester, Tenn., gave me twenty-five dollars and the church at Lewisburg, Tenn., gave me five dollars toward this meeting; so I have rented a room and intend to do what I can toward the establishing of the cause of Christ here. W. T. GOALEN.

Arkansas.

Lamar, June 27.—Brother Joe L. Netherland, of Yuma, Tenn., engaged D. N. Jackson, Missionary Baptist, in debate at Mangrum, Ark., beginning on June 20 and continuing four days. The general church questions were discussed. Brother Netherland told Jackson that if he would read in the Bible anything about a Missionary Baptist Church he would quit the debate and go home, and said that when he came to affirm the church of his proposition, the church of Christ, that he would quit the debate if he could not read about the church which he was affirming in the Bible. It is strange, indeed, that men will claim a thing to be scriptural which is not even hinted at in the Scriptures. Jackson did not come out with hardly any of his doctrine till Brother Netherland brought it out himself and compared it with Bible doctrine, and he did a good work in showing the many contradictions between Baptist doctrine and the truth. On Brother Netherland's proposition, Jackson denied the church of Christ being scriptural; and in regard to the name "Christian," he said it was only mentioned three times in the Bible. Brother Netherland replied that that is just three times more than the name "Missionary Baptist" is mentioned in the Scriptures. All the brethren were well pleased with the debate. While there I signed propositions to meet W. E. Liddell, a Missionary Baptist, in debate. The time and place have not been arranged yet. I am glad to defend the truth against error whenever called upon. T. A. PHILLIPS.

Kentucky.

Hardin, July 3.—I preached at a schoolhouse in the southeast corner of this county yesterday. None of our brethren had ever preached in that community before. There were several present who had never before heard one of our brethren preach. Some of them expressed themselves as well pleased with the discourse and invited me back again. There are just such "nooks and corners" near many of us where the pure gospel has never been preached, and it is a pleasure to me to carry the gospel in its fullness to such places. H. W. JONES.

Louisiana.

Shreveport, June 20.—A few weeks ago I made an appeal for more gospel preachers to come to Louisiana. So far I have received three answers, and I believe that we are going to make the arrangements for them to come. Let me appeal to young men who are just starting out to preach, those who have had about two or three years' experience in preaching. I want you to come, and when we can arrange it you help these older or more experienced preachers at a certain place, then, after the meeting is over, stay with that congregation; no matter if there is only just a handful, stay with them and build up the work. If you will pardon me, I will give you an example of my work in Shreveport. When I came to this city to help Brother John E. Dunn a little over a year ago, I had only had a little over a year and a half's experience in preaching. I led the singing for Brother Dunn, Brother Stovall helping. After Brother Dunn closed the meeting more than twenty charter members were left here. I stayed with the congregation, and to-day we have sixty members, and this congregation is only fourteen months old. All I received for my work from the first of April to the first of January was a place to sleep and my food. I did not have any other money. Young men, we must sacrifice; and we never lose anything when we sacrifice to the Lord. My dear young preacher brother, this is the opportunity of your life. Think of a State as large as Louisiana, and only about fifteen congregations of Christ in it. I want to hear from the young preachers as well as the old; for the young preachers can stay with this work, but the older preachers cannot, for as yet there is not sufficient support for them. Now do not let any one scare you with the idea that this country is not heathful, for it is. I have never had a chill or fever since I have been living here. Young men, do not let this opportunity pass you by. My dear older brother preacher, come and help us get this good work going. But if you are a hobby rider, please do not come. Please let me ask those who have friends of the church of Christ who are in Louisi-

Pope, June 27.—I have just returned from Senatobia, Miss., where I assisted the brethren in a meeting. I am sure that much good was done, although only one person obeyed the gospel. The audiences were not large, except on Sunday nights. There were baseball games several afternoons and picture shows frequently at night, and there was one big Sunday-school picnic right at the time that interest should have been the highest. All these attractions, seasoned with an abundance of old-fashioned prejudice, kept the people away from the services. Senatobia is the home of Brother J. P. Lowrey. He was with me in the meeting and rendered valuable assistance. Brother Lowrey has charge of the work in Tate County, and is supported largely by two or three congregations—Thyatira, Looxahoma, and Senatobia. He is evidently doing a good work, and one that few preachers are suited to do. Mississippi is a great mission field. It is Brother Lowrey's native State, and he seems to love it more on this account. Preachers are astonishingly few and congregations scarce. Indeed, this section of the State might be called the "skirmish line of the battle." So if any preacher of our brethren wants some real fighting, let him take up his position in Mississippi. The little congregation at Senatobia treated me nobly, and I hope and pray that they may grow until their influence shall be felt all over North Mississippi.

C. S. AUSTIN.

Nashville, June 23.—Our meeting at Monticello, Ky., closed on last Monday night. The audiences were good through all the meeting, considering the rainy weather and that it was held in a tent. There were six who gave up the innovations of the innovators and agreed to worship with the brethren as the New Testament teaches. I feel sure we could have done better in our meeting if we had had a house instead of a tent. Brother Walling was called to McMinnville on account of the sickness of his mother, and we had to run the meeting the best we could without him. Jesse Walling has done a fine work in this mountain country, and I hope the brethren from other points will help him and the few brethren of Monticello build a house there. When he went to that county, there was not a congregation in it that met every Lord's day. They now have four in the county that meet regularly. One new meetinghouse has been built and another is in course of construction in the county. Besides, they have contracted for a lot in Monticello, and with some help from the outside they can build there. Brother Walling is anxious to establish the cause in every district in the county. He keeps busy in the county in protracted meetings from the time he can use his old tent in the early summer till cold weather in the late fall. He has had two debates, with another in soak for next winter, and has borne all kinds of persecution, but nothing moves him. He is patient, persistent, and not at all easily discouraged. This is the third meeting in succession I have helped him hold in Monticello, and we all thought it was the best one. I hope they may get the assistance asked for in building there, and pray that the cause may be permanently established in that county. There ought to be a good man in every county in Eastern Kentucky and Tennessee.

F. B. SRYGLEY.

Spur, June 24.—Brother Austin Taylor and I are here in a meeting. As yet we have experienced no spiritual upheaval. Drought, hot winds, sand and hail storms keep the spiritual thermometer a little below normal. In the shade the patent-medicine thermometer registers one hundred and four degrees; down at the tent, counting all, we register below freezing—not quite thirty-two.

F. L. YOUNG.

Childress, June 21.—I am home again from a five-weeks' campaign, closing a fine meeting at Madill, Okla., last Sunday night—the best meeting I have had this year. Some say they feel like they fail when there are no visible results; but it was no failure at Madill, for the church needed teaching, and they got it, and universally declared it fine. Brother J. O. Shults, wife and daughter, of St. Joe, led the singing, and it was of the very best. They are fine singers. The brethren at Madill treated us splendidly, paid me well, and paid Brother Shults till he was satisfied, and gave us all a standing invitation to return, all in spite of the work of the enemy to hinder. I begin at Tell to-night, and hope for a good meeting; if it lacks anything, it will not be hard work on my part. I will begin at Munday on July 8, and until then will you pray for us?

TICE ELKINS.

West Virginia.

Buffalo, June 21.—During the last six months I have received help in my work as follows: From F. L. Wisner, $10; Miss Annie Brashear, $8; church of Christ at Portersville, Cal., $6.35; James G. E., $1; C. Heinselman, $1; B. Culbertson, $2; T. J. Smith, $2.50; Peter Haubert, $10; H. H. Chase, $3; Mrs. Katie Jones, $2; May Cole, $1; W. S. Blakemore, $2; "A Brother and Sister," Lewisburg, W. Va., $1; Mrs. M. E. H., $3; "A Sister," stamp book. I have also received some help and encouragement near home. I am very thankful for all favors received, and I earnestly pray God that they may continue for a while, with some increases. If I could do the work here without help, I would not ask for a penny. Since I am not strong, if my brethren would help me financially and allow me to cultivate this immediate field according to my means and strength, it would be a Godsend to this people in time. Our facilities for holding meetings here are very poor; but we are growing some. One more added recently.

Belle Haven Orphans' Home, Luling, Texas.

Many who read this appeal may reside outside of Texas, but please do not pass it by if you are out of Texas, because Belle Haven Orphans' Home will receive children from the churches of Christ from any State. Several different States are now represented; even distant California has furnished three children in the past year; therefore our support is not restricted to Texas. We have fifty-one children in the Home now. This means quite an expense during the war crisis confronting us with Mexico.

For several years we have celebrated July 20, the birthday of our superintendent, Sister Jennie Clarke, and the offerings are special on this occasion, and used for some good purpose decided on by the inmates of the Home. A big fire in Luling last week reminds me that we are taking great risks in having the laundry work done in the main buildings; so, in order to secure better protection for Belle Haven, we want to erect a laundry building sufficiently removed from the main buildings. Please send a special offering for this purpose.

MILLER'S ANTISEPTIC OIL KNOWN AS

has perhaps relieved more sufferers than any other known remedy in the same length of time. More than one hundred thousand bottles sold in the past four months under an absolute guarantee to give satisfaction or money refunded, and only three bottles have been returned. Many have testified that they had suffered with rheumatism and lumbago until they had been forced to give up their work because they could not raise their limbs. Some who could not even raise their arms above their heads have been restored and are now praising this wonderful oil that other sufferers may be relieved. No wonder this great oil treatment has sprung into such tremendous popularity in so brief a time and is so much praised to-day by thousands throughout the South. For rheumatism, neuralgia, lumbago, stiff and aching joints, or any kind of an ache or a pain, it is said to be without an equal. For sore throat, croup, diphtheria, and tonsillitis, and for cuts and burns, it has been found most effective. This wonderful new oil remedy that is producing such results throughout the country is now for sale by all leading druggists. Accept no substitute, for there is nothing like it. Golden-red color only. Every bottle guaranteed—25 and 50 cents a bottle—or money refunded. Sent, postpaid, on receipt of price, if your druggist cannot supply you. Among the Colored People

In Behalf of Bible Education.

I have been interested in the Silver Point Christian School, at Silver Point, Tenn., for three years, and I am becoming more and more so each day as I see and realize the conditions of my people. When I go into the various homes and the different localities of my people and see how ignorant they are of the holy Scriptures which are able to make them wise unto salvation, my heart almost melts within me. I find many that are highly educated, but are as ignorant of the Bible as an infant, and even among many Christian families they fail to study the Bible as they should. Our people are even taught the dead languages, the arts and sciences, but the one great book, the Bible, is neglected everywhere. When I see these things and think over them, I can readily sympathize with Jeremiah when he said: "O that my head were waters, and mine eyes a fountain of tears, that I might weep day and night for the slain of the daughter of my people!"

Now, dear reader, I believe with all of my heart that there is a remedy for this, and I believe this remedy comes through the medium of the Bible schools; but I am sorry to say that we have one only in part. I believe if we had a real Bible school where our people could be given a Bible training together with their literary and industrial training, ignorance would be pressed to the walls and the blessed spirit of the Savior would have a home in our hearts. The reason I say we have a Bible school only in part is because we have no place to accommodate our pupils and comparatively no library, and, to make a long story short, we have scarcely anything to work with. Nevertheless, we shall never give up until the victory is won.

I highly appreciate the interest the white sisters and brethren are manifesting in this work, and my aim is to merit all that they do for us. I have visited the white disciples at Murfreesboro, Tullahoma, Manchester, and Summitville, and have been greatly encouraged by them both spiritually and financially. I am now in McMinnville in the interest of the school, and will leave in a few days for Chattanooga, if the Lord permits. We are trying hard to raise funds enough to erect a school building by the next term, and would be glad for all who will to help us in this work. For the sake of my people I will not hold my peace, and for the cause of Christ I will not rest until I see a real Bible school among my people and the students going forth as burning lamps, showing in their lives that the sacrifice was not in vain. I realize this will require some hard, steady work and a great sacrifice, but I am willing to undergo it all, and look for the reward in the world to come.

Boils Needn't Bother You.

Gray's Ointment puts an end to them right away. This remarkable ointment was first prepared in 1820 by a North Carolina physician. For nearly a century the American people have found it the most effective preparation for all eruptions and abrasions of the skin, burns, cuts, wounds, bruises, boils, carbuncles, ulcers, sores, etc. It speedily heals the skin trouble and prevents the development of blood poisoning, which not infrequently rises from a neglected sore or cut. "The best remedy I ever tried for risings, and all my friends who have tried it say it beats anything they ever used," writes Miss E. M. Manley, Auburndale, Fla. Keep a box in the house. NEARLY HALF OFF FOR INTRODUCTION

The Introduction Offer on "NEW SONGS OF PRAISE" is Liberal

The Problem Solved

In order that the real merit of "New Songs of Praise" may be as early and as widely known as possible, we have decided on a rather expensive method of advertising. The song-book question is a most important one in connection with the coming protracted meeting. The churches want and should have plenty of books. The cost of a really good book in large quantities is no small item, and this added to other necessary expenses makes the purchase of a sufficient supply of books in many instances almost out of the question. Unfortunately, many settle the matter by buying one of the many cheap, inferior song books that are every year placed on the market.

Singers, we have solved the problem for you. We are offering to send you for introduction one hundred copies of "New Songs of Praise" for $16.50. The cheap and almost worthless books—books that cost little to make and contain very little that is classical in the realm of song—will cost you this much and even more. Every selection in "New Songs of Praise" is a high-class song. It is a book brimful of the very best songs for the churches. It is not to be classed with the ordinary cheap book that is being offered every summer from almost every town and village in the country. It is a great book, a book that will live, a book that cost many hundreds of dollars to produce and that singers everywhere have but to use to appreciate.

One hundred copies, $16.50; 50 copies, $9 for Introduction.

One edition of "New Songs of Praise" contains ten lessons in vocal music. This edition costs five cents a copy extra.

COMMENDATIONS

Where "New Songs of Praise" has been introduced, it is receiving the highest indorsements. The statements below are taken from several hundred already received. Note carefully the opinion expressed by these well-known brethren:

I have examined "New Songs of Praise" carefully, and I firmly believe that it is the best collection of gospel songs I have yet seen.
JEWELL MATTHEWS.
 San Angelo, Texas, May 15, 1916.

A copy of your 1916 song book reached me in due time. I have examined it carefully, and I, in my humble judgment, pronounce it the best book you have ever put out, and I predict for it a very large sale.
W. W. SLATER.
 Maud, Okla., May 21, 1916.

I began a vocal school at Waggoner on Monday. In this school I used "New Songs of Praise" put out by the Firm Foundation Company, and tested its merits fully, and can say that it is the best book I ever used. There are many songs in it that are well worth the price of the book.
T. P. BURT.
 Commerce, Texas, May 10, 1916.

The "New Songs of Praise" is the best song book we have found. The church at Bonham purchased one hundred copies.
TOM WALKER.
 Bonham, Texas, May 10, 1916.

It is doubtless the best book yet published by the Firm Foundation Company. I should like to see the churches use it extensively. It is scriptural and well adapted to all kinds of church work.
W. F. LEDLOW.
 Lockney, Texas, May 15, 1916.

To the Churches

Few of the brethren, perhaps, realize how much effort has been put forth, how much time was required, and how much money has been spent in order to furnish the brotherhood with this valuable collection of hymns and songs. The editors have selected only such songs as should be used by Christians who speak where the Bible speaks and are silent where it is silent. Brethren Taylor and Showalter are well known in the brotherhood for their integrity and faithfulness. They have earnestly tried to produce a book that the brethren will appreciate because it is filled with sound gospel teaching and the sweetest melodies that have been composed by the great masters in musical composition. We hope the labors of these good brethren will be recognized and appreciated by the loyal churches. They have done a good work. If all other things were equal, if their book were simply as good as the book of some other publisher, it would be a matter of loyalty to truth for friends of primitive Christianity to order and use "New Songs of Praise." But we really think that from every right standpoint the book is the best song selection that has been issued in recent years. We should sell at least one hundred thousand copies at once. We earnestly request the churches and brethren who teach vocal school to give this matter serious attention. You need these books, and we have thousands ready to ship at a moment's notice. Let the orders come by mail or telegram. They will receive prompt attention. The price is right. The hearty and prompt cooperation of the brotherhood in this good work is most earnestly desired and solicited.

Vocal-music teachers are pleased with "New Songs of Praise."

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.
Dear Sir:—Perhaps it will interest you to know that I have been ruptured six years and have always had trouble with it till I got your Appliance. It is very easy to wear, fits neat and snug, and is not in the way at any time, day or night. In fact, at times I did not know I had it on; it just adapted itself to the shape of the body and seemed to be a part of the body, as it clung to the spot, no matter what position I was in.

It would be a veritable God-send to the unfortunate who suffer from rupture if all could procure the Brooks Rupture Appliance and wear it. They would certainly never regret it.

My rupture is now all healed up and nothing ever did it but your Appliance. Whenever the opportunity presents itself I will say a good word for your Appliance, and also the honorable way in which you deal with ruptured people. It is a pleasure to recommend a good thing among your friends or strangers. I am, Yours very sincerely,

JAMES A. BRITTON,
80 Spring St., Bethlehem, Pa.

Confederate Veteran Cured

Commerce, Ga., R. F. D. No. 11.
Mr. C. E. Brooks,

Dear Sir:—I am glad to tell you that I am now sound and well and can plough or do any heavy work. I can say your Appliance has effected a permanent cure. Before getting your Appliance I was in a terrible condition and had given up all hope of ever being any better. If it hadn't been for your Appliance I would never have been cured. I am sixty-eight years old and served three years in Eckle's Artillery, Oglethorpe Co. I hope God will reward you for the good you are doing for suffering humanity.

Yours sincerely,
H. D. BANKS.

Others Failed but the

Appliance Cured

C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—Your Appliance did all you claim for the little boy and more, for it cured him sound and well. We let him wear it for about a year in all, although it cured him 3 months after he had begun to wear it. We had tried several other remedies and got no relief, and I shall certainly recommend it to friends, for we surely owe it to you.

Yours respectfully,
WM. PATTERSON,
No. 717 S. Main St., Akron, O.

Cured at the Age of 76

Mr. C. E. Brooks, Marshall, Mich.

Dear Sir:—I began using your Appliance for the cure of rupture (I had a pretty bad case) I think in May, 1905. On November 20, 1905, I quit using it. Since that time I have not needed or used it. I am well of rupture and rank myself among those cured by the Brooks Discovery, which, considering my age, 76 years, I regard as remarkable.

Very sincerely yours,
Jamestown, N. C. SAM A. HOOVER.

Child Cured in Four Months

21 Jansen St., Dubuque, Iowa.
Brooks Rupture Appliance Co.

Gentlemen:—The baby's rupture is altogether cured, thanks to your Appliance, and we are so thankful to you. If we could only have known of it sooner our little boy would not have had to suffer near as much as he did. He wore your brace a little over four months and has not worn it now for six weeks.

Yours very truly,
ANDREW EGGENBERGER.

Ten Reasons Why

You Should Send for Brooks Rupture Appliance

1. It is absolutely the only Appliance of the kind on the market today, and in it are embodied the principles that inventors have sought after for years.
2. The Appliance for retaining the rupture cannot be thrown out of position.
3. Being an air cushion of soft rubber it clings closely to the body, yet never blisters or causes irritation.
4. Unlike the ordinary so-called pads, used in other trusses, it is not cumbersome or ungainly.
5. It is small, soft and pliable, and positively cannot be detected through the clothing.
6. The soft, pliable bands holding the Appliance do not give one the unpleasant sensation of wearing a harness.
7. There is nothing about it to get foul, and when it becomes soiled it can be washed without injuring it in the least.
8. There are no metal springs in the Appliance to torture one by cutting and bruising the flesh.
9. All of the material of which the Appliances are made is of the very best that money can buy, making it a durable and safe Appliance to wear.
10. My reputation for honesty and fair dealing is so thoroughly established by an experience of over thirty years of dealing with the public, and my prices are so reasonable, my terms so fair, that there certainly should be no hesitancy in sending free coupon today.

Remember

I send my Appliance on trial to prove what I say is true. You are to be the judge. Fill out free coupon below and mail today.

An Intimate View of Paul.

We never see a man as he really is until we look, as God looks, upon his heart. We never know a man at his best or at his worst until we know the purpose behind his life. To obtain such a view of a man, it will hardly suffice to dwell upon one circumstance in his life to the exclusion of others, to consider one victory or one defeat separately, but to study a number of them, enough to show us clearly and positively the manner of his life. Thus, if we wish to get well acquainted with the apostle Paul, we could not do better than study his farewell charge to the elders at Ephesus. In it we find a review of three years' work, a revelation of his great heart that is unequalled, a laying bare of the purposes of his being that fills us with wonder and admiration.

The first part of his charge is an autobiographical retrospect of his labors and aims. It is very brief, but comprehensive. "Ye yourselves know, from the first day that I set foot in Asia, after what manner I was with you all the time, serving the Lord with all lowliness of mind, and with tears, and with trials which befell me by the plots of the Jews; how I shrank not from declaring unto you anything that was profitable, and teaching you publicly, and from house to house, testifying both to Jews and to Greeks repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ." (Acts 20: 18-21.)

We Must Be Ensamples.

Note that Paul first calls attention to his own example. Deeds speak louder than words. Emerson said: "What you are speaks so loudly that I cannot hear you say what you are." The subject-matter of much of the preaching of our day is: "Heed what I tell you." Paul's theme was: "Follow my example." Simon Peter, in his exhortation to elders, says you must not act as "lording it over the charge allotted to you, but making yourselves ensamples to the flock." (1 Pet. 5: 3. Paul commended the Thessalonian church by saying: "Ye became an ensample to all that believe in Macedonia and in Achaia." (1 Thess. 1: 7.) We should bear in mind that he is not only commending the elders of the church, but all the members. The story is told of an English clergyman, that he called for an offering from his congregation for the India famine fund. The offering amounted to six pounds. The preacher was disappointed and not a little bit indignant. The next Sunday he preached on liberality, and at the close of the sermon he said: "You all know my family—there are eleven of us—and most of you know the amount of my income. I shall give ten pounds." The second collection was not six pounds, but ninety.

Brother, if you should differentiate yourself for a moment from the rest of the congregation, what kind of an ensample would you be? Would your life be an inspiration to others to give, to spend and be spent for the gospel's sake? Would it be an example of prompt, efficient, faithful service in the matter of attending to God's worship? Would it be a study of holy living every day in the week? Or would you feel like saying: "One day is my sample day; the other days are not for public observation?" Paul says to the elders of Ephesus: Consider my life—"from the first day that I set foot in Asia," and observe the "manner I was with you all the time."

Something Better Than Interest.

And then he states the earmarks of his ministry. He had been "serving the Lord with all lowliness of mind," which means he had not exalted himself, but the Lord Jesus Christ. He had served "with tears," which indicates the intensity of his anxiety for the Ephesian church. We often weep over our temporal misfortunes, our financial losses, and our family bereavements; but how often do you find a Christian shedding tears over the lukewarm condition of the local congregation, bemoaning the fact that it has departed from its first love, or manifesting the deep anxiety of Paul, who said: "I am jealous over you with a godly jealousy: for I espoused you to one husband, that I might present you as a pure virgin to Christ. But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve in his craftiness, your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity and the purity that is toward Christ?" We often rack our wits in an effort to create a certain amount of interest in the affairs of the church. But interest is not enough. May the Lord help us to attain unto that zeal that is deeply anxious even unto tears for the simplicity and truth of the gospel. Get a reasonable number of the members saturated with such zeal and it will be hard—yea, almost impossible—for the spirit of worldliness and human innovation to creep in.

Profit Should Be the Standard.

But in what way did Paul's zeal express itself? It expressed itself in not keeping back anything that was profitable. Profit was Paul's standard in teaching and preaching. It should be ours. Not what will entertain or merely interest those who sit at our feet, but what will really profit them. A boy who seemed to take special delight in going to Sunday school was asked what kind of a teacher he had. "O, she's fine!" he exclaimed. "She tells us every Sunday about her old home in the country and what good times she used to have." Very entertaining, but not very profitable. I note in the daily papers that a good many of the popular pastors these days are conducting special services for the departing regiments of soldier boys. It is the order at these services to preach on "Patriotism" and tell the boys how brave they are in being willing to go down and shoot their Mexican brothers. Very entertaining, perhaps, but dangerous and dishonoring to the teaching of Jesus Christ, the lowly Nazarene, "who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, threatened not; but committed himself to him who judgeth righteously." Let us be content, like Paul, to declare the things that are profitable, publicly and from house to house, and remember that while the word "profitable" is wide in its scope, permitting a great variety of teaching and exhortation, yet all things must bear a vital relation to Paul's central theme, which was "repentance toward God, and faith toward our Lord Jesus Christ."

Next week we shall consider Paul's prospective view.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS

A Statement of Faith.

BY J. D. WALLING.

Since the church at Monticello, Ky., is asking for the fellowship of the brotherhood, it might be well to make a statement of their faith, that all may know for what purpose their money will be used. I state, therefore, that the restrictive clause is in the deed to the lot upon which the house will be built. They believe that God has an organized government on earth; that this government is variously called in the New Testament "the body," "the church of God," "the kingdom of God," "the kingdom of God's dear Son," "the kingdom of heaven," and many other like expressions to mean the same thing. They believe that, in church government, Christ is absolute Monarch, "the blessed and only Potentate, the King of kings, and Lord of lords." (1 Tim. 6: 15.) They believe that his kingdom was set up on the first Pentecost after his resurrection from the grave. We believe this for the reason that, while on earth, Christ said: "The time is fulfilled, and the kingdom of God is at hand." (Mark 1: 15.) We understand, therefore, that, if his kingdom was not to be set up till his second coming, as some contend, then his second coming must have been at hand. But more than eighteen hundred years have gone, and no one can yet say his second coming is at hand. But was the second coming really at hand? Paul said that the day of Christ was not at hand. (2 Thess. 2: 1, 2.) Peter tells us it will come at the end of the world. (2 Pet. 3: 10.) Moreover, Christ tells his disciples that the kingdom was to come in their lifetime, and that the kingdom and power were to come together. (Mark 9: 1.) When asked by the apostles, "Lord, dost thou at this time restore the kingdom to Israel?" he said: "But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you." (Acts 1: 6-8.) We learn from these statements of the Savior that the kingdom, the power, and the Holy Spirit were to come together. The Holy Spirit came on the first Pentecost after the resurrection of Christ. Therefore the kingdom and power surely came at that time. Again, Christ said: "I appoint unto you a kingdom, even as my Father appointed unto me, that ye may eat and drink at my table in my kingdom; and ye shall sit on thrones judging the twelve tribes of Israel." (Luke 22: 29, 30.) If the church and the kingdom are not one and the same thing, as some contend, then how is it that we have the Lord's Supper in the church? Who is it that has taken the Supper out of the kingdom and put it in the church? When was this done, and by whose authority? Jesus is the head of the church. (Col. 1: 18.) He is "the author and perfecter of our faith." (Heb. 12: 2.) But when and where did he ever take the Supper out of the kingdom and put it in the church? We believe that Christ has received his kingdom and is now seated on David's throne; that David's throne is the Lord's throne (1 Kings 2: 12; 1 Chron. 29: 23); that David's throne is in heaven (Ps. 89: 35-37; Ps. 11: 4; Rev. 3: 21). "And as they heard these things, he added and spake a parable, because he was nigh to Jerusalem, and because they supposed that the kingdom of God was immediately to appear. He said therefore, A certain nobleman went into a far country, to receive for himself a kingdom, and to return." (Luke 19: 11, 12.) "And when he had said these things, as they were looking, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight. And while they were looking steadfastly into heaven as he went, behold, two men stood by them in white apparel; who also said, Ye men of Galilee, why stand ye looking into heaven? this Jesus, who was received up from you into heaven, shall so come in like manner as ye beheld him going into heaven." (Acts 1: 9-11.) Beloved, we believe Christ to be that certain nobleman; that after his resurrection he went into that "far country"—heaven; that he came to God the Father; that he received his kingdom and is now seated on his throne. We believe that he will be revealed "from heaven with the angels of his power in flaming fire, rendering vengeance to them that know not God, and to them that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus; who shall suffer punishment, even eternal destruction from the face of the Lord and from the glory of his might, when he shall come to be glorified in his saints, and to be marveled at in all them that believed in that day. (2 Thess. 1: 7-10.) We believe that "every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness: that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work." (2 Tim. 3: 16, 17.) We believe that "whosoever goeth onward and abideth not in the teaching of Christ, hath not God: he that abideth in the teaching, the same hath both the Father and the Son." (2 John 9.) It is our sincere purpose and desire to so teach and practice. We, therefore, earnestly solicit your fellowship and prayers. We need it, we want it. Won't you help us, and do it now?

"False Teaching."

BY F. W. SMITH.

The Baptist Builder, published at Martin, Tenn., representing one "wing" of the many "wings" of the Baptist Church, or denomination, speaks as follows on the subject of "false teaching:"

Doctrines may be judged by their fruits. This is true in every line of life. True principles of business will bring success. False teachings insure failures all down the line. Bad principles of government result in national calamities. Why doubt that wreck and ruin must follow in the wake of wrong religious teaching? Look on the debauched conditions of the heathen, pagan, and Catholic peoples and be convinced that false teachings will ruin any country. Look close about you and see the victims of false doctrines. Note splendid men and women that could have accomplished great good, but errors have been accepted and the results are ruinous. Antimissions is the fruit of wrong teaching. Infant baptism would unite the church and the world. Victims of Russellism, Eddyism, Mormonism, etc., are numerous. The salvation of the soul from sin and this life from destruction depends upon sound doctrine. (Read 1 Tim 4: 13-16.) No wonder Satan hates the truth and the light. But it is strange indeed that any saved one does not appreciate the truth—yes, all truth. In no way can you benefit others more than by teaching them the pure truth. And in no way can you injure people more than by teaching them error. False teachers are the worst enemies to the race. One false teacher may wreck thousands of precious lives, ruin families, communities, and whole nations. Those who hear them are aiders and abettors in their sins. But the Lord has said those who labor in word and in doctrine are worthy of double honor, for they are the benefactors of humanity.

The first sentence in the foregoing, which serves as a text for the author's preaching, is a splendid basis for sound teaching; but, on the principle that "those who live in glass houses should not throw stones," it places the author at a great disadvantage in the development of his theme.

Since "doctrines may be judged by their fruits," we would like to know what kind of doctrine produced the religious institution called the "Baptist Church." It will not do to say that the doctrine of the New Testament produced such fruit, for that doctrine was preached in all creation during the apostolic ministry, and not one single time is there the slightest hint of such fruit resulting from that ministry. It must, then, have resulted from a doctrine or doctrines of a later date than the New Testament. Again, we have the fruit of applicants for baptism relating an experience that "God, for Christ's sake, had pardoned their sins." No such requirement was ever demanded of an applicant for baptism in Bible times and no such experiences were given. Whence came, then, the doctrine that produced such fruit? And then we have the denominational name "Baptist," of which we read not one word in the New Testament. Wonder whose doctrine brought forth that fruit? There is also the fruit of the "mourner's bench," or the system of "get religion," growing on the Baptist tree. Say, neighbor, whose doctrine caused that to blossom, bud, and fruit? We must not overlook that other fruit growing in the Baptist orchard, called "inbred, Adamic, original, and inherited sin," so clearly (?) seen in the smiling face of the helpless infant on its mother's breast. That is such precious golden fruit hanging from the boughs of the Baptist denomination, so full of comfort and consolation! Why, without the fruit of original, Adamic sin, there could not have grown that other twin fruit, the "direct" operation of the Spirit. Without such a work of the Holy Spirit, how could that little helpless "sinner" keep out of eternal torment? The sin is there, and must be removed before the infant can go to glory. Again we ask, Whose doctrine brought forth such tempting fruit as that? Many more specimens of Baptist fruit could be plucked from that denominational orchard, but enough has been mentioned to show that the author of the above article should see that he lives in a glass house and, therefore, should not fling a stone.

Now, it is a well-known fact that Baptist doctrine says that neither baptism nor the church has anything to do with one's salvation. Why, then, all this criticism of "other denominations" who hold to and teach what the Baptists claim is the one and only essential to salvation—viz., faith in the Lord Jesus Christ—that is, faith alone, without any overt or outward manifestation? No doubt Christian Scientists, Mormons, Russellites, Roman Catholics, and others claim to believe that Jesus Christ is the divine Son of God; and if so, they have the one essential. What destruction, wreck and ruin can, according to Baptist doctrine, befall any soul out of the church or who has not been baptized? With the Baptists, baptism, the church, and other things commanded of God are nonessential to salvation. Suppose "infant baptism would unite the church and the world," what difference would that make in so far as salvation is concerned, since the church is a nonessential? What is the church intended to be, anyway? Is it just a playground, a kind of park for those who are already saved to romp in or rest in? Neighbor, what does the vineyard represent in the parable (Matt. 20: 1-16), and how many were rewarded out of the vineyard? Eh? To be sure, "doctrines may be judged by their fruits."

The Activities of Brother G. W. Riggs and Other "Boys."

BY S. F. MORROW.

Some weeks ago I received a letter from Brother G. W. Riggs, who resides at 3319 Barbee Street, Los Angeles, Cal. He writes as follows:

Dear Brother Morrow: If the Lord wills, I expect to spend August and September of this year in Tennessee. It has been nearly ten years since I have seen the dear old State and the many friends and relatives there. I have the meeting at my home place to hold, and while I am there I would like to hold other meetings, if possible, so I can be kept busy in my Master's vineyard. If, therefore, you see any chance to use me during this time, you may make arrangements to do so.

We are getting on nicely here in every way. The church is doing well, our family has increased to the number of six husky children (five boys and one girl), and we have had no lack financially, all of which we appreciate and thank God for.

Hoping to hear from you at your convenience, I am,
Yours truly, G. W. Riggs.

I publish the above letter, first, to let the brethren know that they can receive Brother Riggs' services during the months stated by him; also, to those who do not know him, I wish to say that he will suit any place where the Bible only is wanted to be taught. I have known Brother Riggs from a "Bible School" boy, and I know he has never looked for the rich and easy places to labor. Well do I remember his first call to another State where there were only a few members of the church of Christ. He, as a boy without experience, was afraid he might make a failure in going and have no means of returning. I told him, as I have told others, to preach the truth in the love of the truth, and, if necessary, check on me. I write this for the encouragement of the younger preachers. I have never been called on for one cent by one of the boys for expense money, and I do not think I ever shall be, if they will preach the truth in the love of the truth. We all should understand that when a brother goes to a new field he should be supported until the cause is established. I feel sure that every lover of the blessed Lord and Master rejoices in the work that has been done by our boys—as Brother S. H. Hall and the great good he has accomplished at Atlanta, Ga.; John T. Lewis, at Birmingham, Ala.; C. E. Claus, at Valdosta, Ga.; G. W. Riggs, at Los Angeles, Cal., and many others that are doing well in his service. The great need of the day is brethren who will stick to a place until the cause is well established. What these brethren have done, others can do. Think of the many cities in America without a church of Christ, to say nothing of the many millions of places in foreign lands; then think of the great number of church members we have who are doing so little to carry the gospel to those dying and perishing for the bread of life. Dear brethren, what is the cause of this great sin of neglect? May each one examine himself or herself in the light of the word of truth to see if it is I. May the good Lord help us all to awake in the strength of our God to the great work that is before us to be done.

The Answer to "Who Is Sound?" Is an Unknown Quantity.

Who can answer the question in this caption? Whom can one recommend and by whom can one be recommended? Whom should one support and who should support one? All these are unanswerable questions to-day, or, at least, the answers given depend entirely on what section of the country you live in and what "party" answers them. No longer is truth (?) the same in the different sections of the country. Even truth (?) has become a varying quantity and depends on the paper you read, the country you live in, and the "party" you belong to. It is deplorable. It certainly takes a carload of courage for a preacher of the gospel to preach unity among Christians before an intelligent audience of the world. As the boys name it, "he has plenty of gall" who risks himself to handle the subject nowadays. Still we all preach it and have to preach it even as we do baptism.

There has been a time when a gospel preacher could in all confidence stand before an audience and urge the importance of all Christians' being one and with telling effect refer to the great brotherhood of Christ and its beautiful oneness, but these are days of yore. Even in those days the disciples of Christ were no more one in minor details than they are to-day. Matters of inference and judgment and other minor matters have always been as they are to-day, save the undue emphasis and stress that are put upon our differences now. If Christians are allowed to keep their individualities and are permitted to make individual effort and progress in Christian growth, there must be, there will always be, differences among growing, developing children of God. The New Testament disciples had these differences. We find references to this fact throughout the New Testament history. In what period of the church's history would we not find differences like ours on the indwelling of the Holy Spirit, on the eldership, on "special providence," on prayer, and so forth? When I was a boy, the disciples were not alarmed about it; no disturbance of peace came up over it. Brother Jones might not agree with Brother Smith, but nobody was alarmed at it. When I entered the Bible School at Nashville, it was well understood that Brother Sewell and Dr. Brents differed on the appointment of elders, on the millennium, and other questions like them. So it was understood respecting Brethren Lipscomb and Harding, Taylor and Lipscomb, and so forth. Each freely discussed his side, or phase, of the controverted point. That anybody would consider one "unsound," "disloyal," or unworthy of the most hearty fellowship never entered one's mind. Different ones of these noble brethren were invited repeatedly to visit the school and present earnestly and ardently his knowledge of the subject, and we boys loved them all, admired them all. "Parties" or "divisions" among us over such things were foreign to all of us. Such an idea would not have been tolerated for a second. I am satisfied that there was not one on the scene that, had it been hinted that somebody was "unsound" because he did not agree with some one else, would not have fought it to a "finish."

I never saw the time after I studied the question that I didn't disagree with Brother E. G. Sewell on the Spirit question, the eldership question, and somewhat on the question of God's care for his children, and yet I never saw the day that I didn't love Brother Sewell and would have fought for him. I would have supported him in a mission meeting as readily as I would have supported any other gospel preacher. Why, it never entered our minds in those days that one was "sound" or "unsound" because of his position on any of these questions. One would have been regarded wicked to have advocated it.

Abraham Foster, a brother to our Brother Foster who lives near Paris, Texas, and I entered the Nashville school the same fall, he from Texas and I from Tennessee. We became strongly attached to each other. In the beginning we would go together to preach, and he would preach in the morning and I would "fill the pulpit" at night. Once I remember we did this at Tenth Street congregation. This was Brother Sewell's congregation, and is now known as "Russell Street" congregation. Brother Sewell was away from home that day, and Abraham and I were glad of it, and Brother Sewell was, no doubt, glad, too. Anyhow, Brother Foster and I did team work in preaching and working for the Lord. We had warm discussions sometimes, both public and private, over our differences on the "sect-baptism" or "rebaptism" question, but we never saw the day we would not have fought (in the Lord's way) for each other. We never dreamed of either's being "unsound" because we differed on that matter. He would have recommended me to preach at a place as quickly as he would some one who agreed with him on that "dangerous" question. That there should be made any difference respecting each other's loyalty never occurred to either of us. He is dead now, and I believe he was one of God's noble men. He and I lived real friends and brothers. We believed in each other and we were one in Christ.

As I have said, in those days our differences in these minor things were equal in every way to our differences now. What makes the difference? Ah, it has been the work of a few factious spirits that have infused into hearts a wicked, divisive spirit. The devil has been at work, and he has been urging that, no difference how nearly united we are on the great cardinal points of the gospel, these minor differences, after all, should be the final test of "soundness," and if one does not believe just right on prayer, indwelling of the Holy Spirit, and such matters, he is not sound. Not a month ago I heard of an elder's saying of three preachers: "I can't indorse him because he is wrong on the eldership; and I can't indorse the other two because they are wrong on the Holy Spirit and baptism questions." Neither one of these preachers was "sound" and worthy of his commendation. Just can't indorse a man as a faithful gospel preacher, just because he doesn't agree with me on some pet theory of mine about that mysterious Person known as the Holy Spirit. He himself knows so well this great Person of the Godhead that anybody that does not agree with him on him is "unsound" and he can't conscientiously support that one. My, isn't it terrible! What terrible! This divisive spirit; this party spirit; this self-righteous, dogmatic, intolerant spirit, that has made a determined effort to divide an otherwise united brotherhood and that has succeeded in shattering into a dozen parties, sects, the only people on earth that stand for God and his church and his Book. My dear brethren, every one of you, listen to me! May I beg you not to be wicked? May I entreat you and your goodness of soul not to think of one of your faithful brethren's being "unsound" because of his position on any of the differences now among us? The very thought is wicked. Let these differences be discussed fully, freely, and brotherly among us, but may our great Father forbid our ever regarding one sound and the other unsound because of their positions respectively on these matters. Brethren, whosoever does so is a factious man. He is a sower of discord and a builder of faction among the faithful of God. I know we are standing for better things, and I want to beg the readers of this paper to stand firm for this better ground. Don't tolerate and allow to grow around you the sentiment that would measure soundness by this intolerant, sectarian spirit. The progress of our beloved people and of that brotherly spirit so necessary to the peace of this people will not allow that divisive spirit. Let each conscience be free and settle the matter for himself and believe on all these questions what he believes; the Bible teaches about them. Let him not be afraid to make known his convictions lest he be called unsound; let us be real brethren, faithful brethren, loyal to one another, in spite of these matters. Verily, brethren, there is no road to peace among us but this one. He who travels another approaches the station of the destruction of the peace and harmony and brotherly love of the best people in the world.—J. N. Armstrong, in the Gospel Herald.

Have You Volunteered?

We are still very much encouraged over the showing our friends and workers made in June and the first ten days of this month. On July 10 of this year we received four and one-half times as many dollars on subscriptions as we did the same date last year. If we can just keep up the pace at which we are now going, our field of operation will be increased tenfold in a very short time.

We are receiving words of encouragement concerning the merits of the paper from almost every quarter. We have not space to publish the many complimentary expressions.

Last week we announced that we wanted a good agent at every post office. Will you not volunteer and undertake to send us a number of new subscribers from your post office? Is it not a thousand times better to volunteer in such a cause than it is to volunteer to go to war to destroy and to kill your fellow-man? Christians fight in the noblest cause of all. Hence they should ever be ready to enlist in every good work. By cooperating with us you may be instrumental in teaching the truth to thousands. Don't you want fellowship in preaching the gospel to thousands fifty-two weeks in every year? We can think of no way in which you can do more good than by cooperating with us. A little effort may result in the salvation of a soul or souls.

If you cannot act as our agent, will you not send us the name of some suitable person to represent the Gospel Advocate at your post office? We want one who loves the truth and is zealous of good works. Write and send us the names of persons whom you would be glad to have us send samples of the Gospel Advocate. Anything you may do to help us increase the subscription list of this paper will be appreciated. We want many volunteers at once. Will you not send us your name as a worker to-day? We want to publish a long list of volunteers in the next issue of this journal.

An Invalid Sister's Letter.

We have received a letter from an invalid sister which indicates a fine spirit of faith and trust in God and patience in the face of adverse conditions. Omitting name, place, and date, we here give her letter:

Dear Brethren: I have been planning to write to you for some time, but kept waiting, thinking I would get the money to pay my back dues, but it seems like it is impossible for me to get it; so I decided to write and tell you about my condition, then you will understand why I haven't sent it in. I have been confined to my bed for seven months with indigestion and rheumatism—just able to sit up in bed a little. Have just one boy and girl to work and take care of me. It certainly has made it hard on them to pay the rent, pay doctor's bills, and make a living; but we have been wonderfully blessed, and I certainly feel thankful. I will have to stop taking the Advocate, as much as I love it. I think it gets better all the time. I think the special numbers just fine. I thought the "Faith" Number the best. I would have written a piece on faith if I could have kept my mind together long enough. I am proud of the publishers of the Advocate. I feel that as long as we have as strong-minded men that the church of Christ will never suffer. While I have been an invalid for three years, I never get discouraged. I am perfectly resigned to lean on God's everlasting arm. What more could I ask? I can't do anything but read. Sometimes I have two or three Advocates on the bed at once, and read and reread them.

X.

It is hardly necessary to add that the publishers charged off this good sister's back dues and marked her subscription paid up for twelve months free of charge. We have many other readers of this class that we would like to continue. We need the help of our readers to do this. How many are ready to brighten the lives of the invalid and infirm by sending them the Advocate for one year? We will make a special rate of one dollar, which hardly covers the cost of production. Send us a contribution for the Joy Fund, and do it to-day.

The book is restful in appearance, being neatly bound and the type being large and plain. Japanese Farming Implements. No. 4.

BY J. M. McCALEB.

(Read before the Asiatic Society, Tokyo, Japan.)

V. RELATIVE PRODUCTIVENESS OF ORIENTAL AND OCCIDENTAL METHODS.

That Japan, with improved methods and better implements, could greatly increase her annual products cannot be questioned. If we compare the productive power of the farmer in other countries with that of the Japanese farmer, we may see what a tremendous waste of labor there is on the part of the latter. According to the latest issue of the Kokumin Nenkan (The Nation's Yearbook), in 1911 the entire output of rice for Japan proper was 51,694,000 koku; of other kinds of grain, 21,901,000 koku. In bushels this would be 265,190,220 for rice, and for other kinds of grain 112,352,130 bushels, a total of 377,542,350 bushels. Taking eighteen yen as the average value for one koku of rice and seven yen as the average for other grains, this would give a total value of 1,083,799,000 yen, or $541,899,500. The land area on which these cereals were produced was in round numbers 13,000,000 acres. According to the official figures of the Agricultural Bureau for 1914, the number of farmer families is 5,510,000. Allowing that there are three full farm hands to the household, this would give 16,530,000 farmers. The total area of tilled land is in round numbers 17,000,000 acres. This makes about three acres to the family, or one acre per hand. Of cereals, the 16,500,000 farmers produced in 1912 nearly 418,000,000 bushels of grain (including beans), valued at 1,246,416,000 yen, which makes about twenty-five bushels to the farmer, valued at seventy-five yen, or $37.50. If all other products (including live stock) put down as "industrial crops" are included, the estimated value is put at 1,800,000,000 yen. This would bring the farmer's gross income up to 109 yen per hand, or $54.50.

In the United States for 1909 (and the difference now is still greater) the acreage for cereals was 191,395,963, and the production 4,512,564,465 bushels, valued at $2,665,539,714. In round numbers, the United States has only 13,000,000 farmers, as against Japan's 16,500,000. This gives nearly fifteen acres of grain lands to the hand and a production per individual of 347 bushels of grain, as against twenty-five bushels in Japan per individual on one acre. To put it briefly, the American farmer, with lighter labor to himself, gets results over thirteen times as great as the Japanese farmer. This in reference to cereals only. Including all other products of the farm, which means also poultry and live stock, Japan produced in 1912 the value of 1,800,000,000 yen, or $900,000,000. The United States in 1913, with three million less farmers, produced to the value of over $9,000,000,000, or more than ten times as much, or a ratio of over twelve to one. That is, one man in America gets results twelve times as great as one man in Japan. The American farmer's gross income is $692, while that of the Japanese farmer is only $54.50.

Another point of interest that appears in these figures is that the yield per acre is not so much greater in Japan than in the United States. It is usually supposed that the Japanese intensive method of farming produces far greater results, but the intensive part of it is in reference to the extra waste of labor only, as a comparison of figures will show. The average yield of rice in Japan for 1911 per acre was 36.9 bushels; in the United States, 36.8 bushels. Other grain in Japan, 24.5; in the United States, 23.5.

Practically the same yield for rice and only one bushel difference for other grain; while the American farmer cultivates fifteen times as much as his fellow-laborer in the East, and with far more ease.

But I shall likely be met with the objection that America is a large country, while Japan is small, which accounts for the tremendous difference in results. Of course this is a factor which cannot be wholly ignored; but the chief difference, as I believe, lies in the difference of methods. For instance, comparing America now with America according to primitive methods, a like difference appears. In 1830 it required three hours and thirty minutes to produce a bushel of wheat in the United States, whereas in 1896 the time "required to produce a bushel of wheat, from beginning to end, was "on an average only ten minutes." (New International Encyclopedia, Volume I., under "Agriculture.") This marvelous difference was brought about solely on the ground of improved methods. The excuse, therefore, that Japan is too small to farm to better advantage is not well taken. If she had the whole world at her disposal, according to the slow way she does things now, it would still be impossible for the farmer and his family to cultivate more than about three acres, while the rest of the world would be a vast unconquered wilderness. Even Japan, as small as it is, is yet unconquered. Great Britain, with only about 2,000,000 farmers, has an output of 2,100,000,000 yen's worth of produce; while Japan, with 16,000,000 farmers, only produces 1,800,000,000 yen's worth—a difference in productive power of over nine to one.

Making due allowance, however, for the limited territory of Japan as compared with the United States, let us admit that she is not able to go to the full length in modern methods, but is only able to accomplish with two men what she now does with three. Instead of needing 16,000,000 farmers as at present, she would require only a little over 10,000,000, and, as a result, nearly six million farmers would be thrown out of work. Would it not be better, then, to go on in the old way? Supposing there would be nothing else for them to do, doubtless it would; but, small as the country is, much of it is yet unconquered. Not including Korea, the Japanese empire contains 162,153 square miles of territory, or 103,777,920 acres. The entire cultivated area amounts to only 13,948,862 acres, leaving 89,829,118 acres not in cultivation; in other words, less than one acre in seven. According to the Japan Yearbook (page 156), there are in old Japan, exclusive of Hokkaido, only 12,500,000 acres under cultivation, with 5,000,000 more that could be tilled. This means that nearly one-third more land in old Japan alone could be brought under cultivation. This would in itself almost supply the nearly six million farmers whose place had been supplied by machinery. Hokkaido, with an area of about one-seventh of all Japan, has only a population of 1,800,000 people, less than the city of Tokyo alone. Here is room for several million farmers. Karafuto is practically unoccupied, having only fifty thousand people. Only ten thousand acres of its tillable land is now under cultivation, while it has 325,000 acres that are available. Much land also could be redeemed from the sea.

CONCLUSION.

To conquer the soil of one's own country is a greater achievement than to conquer the people of another. It means better health, more of the comforts of life, and more time for self-culture. Too much leisure is not good, neither is too much toil. While the Israelites were bending beneath their burdens, they had but little time or disposition to listen to a story of better times. In like manner the Japanese farmer is a sort of slave, and he looks with more or less suspicion on any suggestion for a change, regarding it as only another scheme to squeeze out from him more of his earnings, and he turns away, saying:

"The old is better." Though he must keep everlastingly at it to keep body and soul together, he hardens himself to the task with a sort of settled conviction that, since his forefathers have always done it this way, he, too, is destined to follow their steps. His children may be able to read and write, but this is meager; while something of interest to read and about which to write is more meager still.

In Japan the farmer's home is almost entirely destitute of comforts. There is not even a chimney to carry off the smoke. The fireplace is a square opening in the center of the floor; the fuel, usually pine brush, produces more smoke than heat. The dingy, smoked walls have no portraits or pictures, and no windows to let in the light, while there are no chairs on which to sit. As often as otherwise he is not able to have tatami on the floor, but must substitute with a coarse matting laid on undressed boards. When he eats, he doubles up his knees and sits flat on the floor, and is content with a little vegetable soup and three bowls of rice for his dinner. Meat is a rarity. The mother and daughter, in addition to keeping the house, must also work in the field, often doing the drudgery of it, and not infrequently carrying the baby on the back at the same time. This condition, while due in part to various causes, is in large measure because of the primitive and slow methods of agriculture. Instead of spending three hours and thirty minutes, as America once did and as Japan is still doing, to produce one bushel of wheat, the farmer certainly could greatly shorten the time. If he could not reduce it to ten minutes, he might reduce it at most to one hour and save two hours and a half, which he could devote to something else—some other profitable industry, reading, social enjoyment, or in attending a farmers' institute.

But more leisure without higher ideals becomes a peril and a snare instead of a blessing. Along with better methods of agriculture there must be an awakening for higher things of an intellectual, moral, and spiritual nature—something more than sleeping, eating, and the gratification of the flesh. Wealth and leisure without good morals only sink man lower in vice. Along with the gospel of better methods of farming must also be the gospel of a broader and a brighter outlook on life and an aspiration for better things.

A Fifteen-Year-Old Girl's Pathetic Story.

BY A. B. L.

The most urgent appeal this week is that written by a fifteen-year-old girl describing the sufferings and distress of her family occasioned by the great storm that wrought untold havoc in Alabama last week. The letter was written by Mary Boothe, who lives at Fairhope, Ala., to her uncle, and tells its own story:

Dear Uncle Halle: Well, Uncle Hallie, we are homeless now. The gulf roared all day Tuesday, Tuesday night, and about twelve o'clock Wednesday it was something bad. At two the wind blew away half of our house, and finally it got so bad until we went to the horse stable and stayed there until four o'clock, then we went under the cow shed, and about five we had to go to the crib, and stayed there until a cyclone came up about daybreak and blew everything off of us and took all of a new crib except where we were.

The horse and pigs are all alive, but we don't know where our cows are. It got nearly everything we had, but did not damage any one else around here near so much.

At six o'clock papa went home with a little boy who had been with us during the storm. Then he went over to Mr. Stelznmuller's. There were not any of his folks in Baldwin. He was better off than we were, and he told papa to go home and get his bunch. When we got there, we had a fire and some dry things to put on. We got something to eat to-day, the first we have had since Wednesday morning. Mamma hasn't a dish of any kind, and the stove is gone, too.

Papa fixed up the fence so that the cattle could not get in. All of our fruit trees are lost. Papa found a half middling and some scraps of meat. The storm lasted twenty-four hours so hard. Uncle, tell all of our kinfolks that we are all alive, but that is all. Let us know if you are all alive, and let us hear, or mamma will go crazy. She hasn't nerve enough left to write.

We will stay here until times are better, at Mr. Stelznmuller's.

Our crops are all ruined—corn, cotton, potatoes, and everything. The watermelons are bursted in the field and all our fruit trees are up by the roots. Our chimneys are gone, too. None of the trees have any leaves on them.

Hoping you are all safe, I will close, as Mr. Stelznmuller wants to go to Fairhope, and papa and mamma want to go as far as our place with him and pick up all that is left.

Write soon. Be sure and let grandpapa and all the rest know. May God bless you all. MARY BOOTHE.

The writer of this letter evidently did not write it for publication nor intend it as a public appeal, but we have the confidence in our readers that its pathetic call will not go unheeded. Send your contributions quickly to Annie M. Boothe, Naffel, Ala., or to W. D. Boothe, Fairhope, Ala.

Clean Stories for the Young People.

In these days when there is so much literature of the light, "trashy" variety that is likely to fall into the hands of the young people, it is highly important to safeguard against this danger by providing them with clean, wholesome reading. Our weekly, The Young People, is intended to supply this need. Its stories are carefully selected and are brightened with half-tone illustrations. The comments on the International Lessons are written by A. B. Lipscomb, the first-page editor of the Gospel Advocate. The use of this weekly will greatly help to create an interest in Bible subjects and to develop the youth along spiritual lines. We will send The Young People to a single address for one year for forty cents, or we will send five or more copies to a single address for thirty-two cents each. Send in your order to-day.

More on the Question of Divorce.

BY M. C. K.

Following almost immediately upon the surprising disclosures on the divorce evil presented in our columns in a recent issue, we are treated to another astounding disclosure in the columns of the Courier-Journal of July 2, 1916. What may still be in store to be added to the disgusting record, no mortal can forecast. From a lengthy and revolting account of court proceedings in one of the Louisville courts we take the following item:

FIFTY OTHER DECREES.

Fifty other decrees were granted by Judges Wallace and Kirby yesterday, making a total of fifty-one divorces, forty-four of which were to wives and seven to husbands. This is the greatest number of decrees handed down at one time by the chancellors in many months and shows that divorce actions are on the increase in Louisville, according to a statement made by Judge Kirby yesterday. The latter also handed down eight decrees during the week. Judge Kirby said he had a number of other divorce actions under submission, but that it was impossible for him to decide them all before the beginning of the summer vacation because of the importance of matters before him other than divorce actions.

Now, is not that a shameful and disgusting picture to spread out before the eyes of this enlightened and so-called "civilized country?" "A total of fifty-one divorces" granted in the city of Louisville in one day! Not only so, but there are so many more cases of the same kind on hand "that it was impossible for" the presiding judge "to decide them before the beginning of the summer vacation!" That court record is a disgrace to the country, and all right-thinking people, when they see it, will hang their heads in shame and sorrow. What are the pulpits of our country doing? What are the religious journals doing? What are Christian parents and guardians doing? In short and in fine, what are any and all persons doing whose business it is to teach the Bible and to lead the people in right paths?

So far as the legislatures of the States are concerned, the only way by which we can hope to reach and influence them in any great degree is to create the right sentiment among their constituents, which, in time, might result in legislation that would show at least a decent regard for the legislation already made on the subject in the word of God. As matters now stand, both the legislative and judicial branches of the civil government favor and encourage divorce, and men and women who have never had the principles of Christianity instilled in their hearts and lives take advantage of such lax legislation and equally lax judicial proceedings, and they marry with no thought of living together permanently if, for any passing whim, they should prefer to separate! This is a most lamentable condition, and it cries out aloud for attention. All idea of the sacredness which properly belongs to the institution of matrimony is practically destroyed in such cases, and marriage is little short of the mere cohabitation of lustful hearts. It is a blot on the church; it is a blot on our national life; and it is a blot on society in general.

But it is not proper to spend all our time in either describing or decrying against an evil condition. The supreme and pressing need of the hour is a remedy for the deplorable condition. What is the remedy? Cannot something be done? Is the church of the living God powerless, and is there no remedy for such a deplorable social situation? Must we concede that good men and women can do nothing for the removal of such a foul and leprous spot, that those in whose nostrils this widespread laxness in divorcing married people has become a stench have no means of redress, but must sit still and continue to witness this lustful and disgusting violation and desecration of one of the most sacred ordinances of God?

So far as the Gospel Advocate is concerned, we make no such concession, but we contend that there is a remedy, and that the application of this remedy is in the hands of the religious element of the country. But what can this element do? We answer, first of all, that the sacredness of marriage and its inviolable obligations must be emphasized in proportion to its most solemn demands. There is great deficiency at this point. Those who profess to teach the Bible, whether by precept or by example, are responsible here. The pulpits and religious journals of the country must speak out with no uncertain sound on the question, and Christian parents and guardians must assist in enforcing the teaching by refusing, in the first place, to countenance any marriage which is itself a violation of Bible principles regulating marriage, and by faithfully and diligently instilling these principles in the hearts of the young of both sexes who are to be the candidates for future marriage. Let them be faithfully taught and solemnly warned that marriage, regardless of likes or dislikes on the part of the contracting parties, means either a union till death shall separate them, or a separation with no future marriage except where the one solitary biblical cause of separation exists; and let these principles be diligently taught and pressed upon the public until the civil lawmakers of the land are brought to their senses, so that they, too, will incorporate in their laws the prohibition of any other marriage after separation except where the biblical cause of separation obtains.

When these principles are thus diligently taught and observed, those contemplating marriage, whether Christians or not, will realize that it is not only a serious step, but a step for life, and that in all cases it must be taken with this distinct understanding by both the contracting parties. Then, and only then, may we expect that this frightful and disgusting divorce record in the courts will cease; and then, and best of all, marriage will be a sacred and happy union of two hearts that love, and the home will be permeated by the atmosphere of heaven.

No Time for Long Private Discussions.

BY E. A. E.

I have so much writing to do for the Gospel Advocate and on the Quarterlies (Advanced, Intermediate, Primary, and Little Jewels), so much preaching to do, and so many home and other duties to perform, that I have not the time for private discussions, however much I would be pleased to do so.

A few months ago I wrote some articles on the reasons stated in the Bible why all, including preachers' families, should have useful employment; on Jesus' being a carpenter, self-supporting, industrious, and independent while a boy and young man, never asking any one to educate him free of charge because he intended to preach; on Paul's being a tentmaker and working with his own hands at times to support himself and company while preaching to others, not allowing anything, not even poverty, to interfere with his proclaiming the way of salvation, and never threatening to stop unless better supported, yet gratefully accepting the fellowship of churches in furtherance of the gospel, and teaching most clearly and fully all churches to support the gospel, help the poor, and care for the aged and infirm; on the Bible way of making preachers and against making merchandise of the churches, commercializing the gospel, and turning godliness into a way of gain; on the duty of individual Christians and churches to support generously all true and faithful preachers of the gospel, showing that God has ordained that the ones who preach the gospel shall live of the gospel, as much so as the soldier is supported by his wages—not going to war at his own charges—as he who plants a vineyard eats of its fruits, he who tends a flock eats of its milk, the ox must not be muzzled when he treads out the corn, those who ministered "about sacred things" ate "of the things of the temple," they who "waited upon the altar" had "their portion with the altar," and that when one sows spiritual things it is no great matter to reap carnal things; on the Bible meaning and use of "minister" and against making a title of "minister," "pastor," "evangelist," "elder," or any word signifying any work; and in a lesson in the Advanced Quarterly at the beginning of the year I wrote that "according to Jewish tradition, this feast [Pentecost] was not only a day of thanksgiving for the first fruits of their harvest, but it also commemorated the giving of the law from Mount Sinai. Jesus, 'our passover,' was slain on the day the passover lamb was killed, and fifty days after that, on the day the old covenant was given, the 'new covenant,' or law, went forth from Zion, and the word of the Lord from Jerusalem." Different brethren have written me privately about different features of these different subjects. Some of these brethren have showed their letters to others, which prove that they feel satisfied with them, to which I raise no objection whatever. I object only to having to discuss these things privately; yes, I object, too, to the complaint some make at my showing their letters. Since we discuss matters of public interest privately, we should not object to the publication of our letters. I have no objection to any of my letters being published, and in writing to parties on one side of a trouble or controversy I request that my letters be showed to the other side. I stated in a letter recently that in regard to the disposition of some private letters I would act differently from the publishers of the Advocate in that I would publish a few of these letters, not in a tit-for-tat, good-as-he-sends, paying-back-in-the-same-coin, revengeful spirit—but by no means—but to let our readers see the partisan and unpleasant spirit that speculation and untaught questions can beget in otherwise good and wise men, and to show that all the humility and forbearance and goodness are not on one side. All private letters should not be published, I admit; but a man should not write in private unpleasant things, harsh criticisms, and ugly charges which he is ashamed and unwilling to publish and to meet in public. To treat others in all circumstances and conditions, trades and transactions, in mercy and justice and righteousness, as one would be treated, is one of God's commandments, which is not the very easiest thing to do, but which all Christians endeavor to do. In private letters and public print, as well as in all other things, all must manifest the spirit of Christ.

I think it is due the Advocate to say this, and due it to publish some of these letters. The Advocate has endeavored to be patient, forbearing, and persuasive.

A prominent preacher and writer told me recently that he had heard that one of the brethren who wrote me in regard to two of the subjects named above simply riddled my position, or words to that effect. I trust that this report was not started in the spirit of some modern debaters who seem to like to boast of the number of public discussions they have had, and every discussion a victory. If I unfortunately hold any positions contrary to the truth, I shall count it a great victory for me to have them overturned and riddled. I trust I have no positions of my own, but that I seek with my whole heart the Bible position on "all things that pertain unto life and godliness;" that I have no partisan spirit, but the spirit of the Master; that I do nothing through faction [to produce or maintain a faction, or teach some truth in a factious spirit] or through vainglory [to carry a point, gain a victory, in pride of opinion to maintain a position of my own], but in lowliness of mind count others better than myself; that I seek not my own things [temporal comfort and ease, welfare and interest, preferment and position], but also the things [the good and peace, spiritual welfare and happiness] of others; and that I am, at least, trying to cultivate and to have the mind of Christ. (See Phil. 2: 1-11.) I am praying that I may do all this, be open to conviction, and ready to receive the truth from any source. He is my friend who teaches me more and more of the truth and, therefore, helps me out of error. Frank, honest, open, straightforward and Bible-searching investigation can do nothing but good. Jesus says:

If ye abide in my word, then are ye truly my disciples; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free. (John 8: 31, 32.)

In order to get what my articles teach, all things must be taken in proper connection. Only the truth, the word of God, can stand.

No fair and just man objects to honest and courteous criticism, because he loves and seeks the truth; but he does object to impugning of motives, unjust insinuations, and misrepresentation.

In a letter recently I asked a good brother if one must study, strive, and pray to practice "the whole counsel of God" on "all things that pertain unto life and godliness" and preach it all in all earnestness, or must one preach only that part of the will of God which one practices—I do not mean practices (?) in theory, but in life and reality. The true and faithful preacher of the gospel has no choice of what he must preach; he must have no favorite themes, must not be partial to particular subjects. God has made the choice—the gospel, the word, his whole counsel, “Christ, and him crucified”—and has forbidden all “un-taught [unrevealed] questions,” “profane babblings,” “vain talking,” “old wives’ fables,” the opinions and theories and commandments of men. All preachers and teachers are commanded to study in order to present themselves approved unto God, workmen who have no reason for being ashamed, handling aright the word of truth. God’s word is truth, and it is “the word of truth” which must be studied and handled aright, or properly applied, and not unrevealed things or any of the subjects which God says must be avoided. No true and faithful preacher of the gospel or teacher of “the word” seeks or even desires to have any choice of what he preaches or teaches, or any favorite themes. As Jonah, he preaches the preaching which God bids him. He presents the entire will of God on all subjects to the people, regardless of consequences—any particular consequence or all consequences. Whether Nineveh stands or falls, he preaches the preaching of God.

What Is It to Hunger and Thirst After Righteousness?

BY E. G. S.

It is to earnestly desire to know and to do righteousness. The words “hunger and thirst” signify a sort of impelling desire to know and to do that which is right. When a man is literally hungry for food, he is uneasy and uncomfortable till he gets something to satisfy the demand; he will do everything that he can do till he secures that which will satisfy his hunger. And when a man is thirsty, he cannot and will not be easy for a moment till he finds that which will satisfy his thirst. So when one desires to know and do that which is right, he must seek to know and to do the will of God as revealed in the Bible. For this is the only thing that will fill with joy in eternity.

One with a real desire both to know and to be what is right will make every effort in his power to find out what is right, that he may do it. When I began to hunger and thirst after righteousness, there was great confusion in that community as to what was right in religion. Some said one way and some another, thus causing confusion and trouble in the whole matter of becoming and being righteous. So I decided finally to read the New Testament for myself and see if I could learn the right way; and so I did. And this is surely the right way to learn what is righteousness and how to become righteous.

Very many religious teachers then, as now, taught the opinions of men on the subject of conversion. They taught that repentance comes before faith in conversion and that pardon of sins comes before baptism. In fact, they claimed that baptism is only a command and has nothing to do with the conversion and salvation of sinners; and yet they would not receive people into their churches without something they recognized as baptism. But they made a great blunder in what they called “baptism.” Again, they were very inconsistent in what they called “baptism.” If a man had been immersed by what they called an “ordained preacher,” some of the preachers admitted that he had been baptized. However, the Baptists of that community laid very great stress upon the administrator of baptism. If a man presented himself to join the Baptist Church, claiming he had already been baptized, they at once demanded to know who had baptized him; and if he could not show that he had been baptized by what they called a “properly ordained minister,” they would not receive him into their churches until baptized by one of their regularly ordained ministers. Thus, while they denied that baptism had anything to do with the salvation of souls, they refused to recognize the immersion of any one that had not been baptized by a regular ordained minister of their church, thus placing the validity of baptism in the hands of the administrator rather than in the act of the man who was baptized. This was making a wreck of the purpose, the design, of baptism as given in the New Testament, which shows that baptism is the act by which alien sinners enter into Christ. Jesus said to the apostles: “Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost.” A better rendering would be: “Make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name,” etc. This shows that baptism, instead of being a nonessential, is an act of personal obedience by which people enter into Christ, and without which aliens can never enter into him. Hence, to say of baptism that it is a nonessential sets aside a very plain and positive command of God. To do this is to reject the word of God and put the words of uninspired men in its place, which is an awfully dangerous thing to do. To fail to enter into Christ is a failure to become a new creature. For Paul says: “If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature.” (1 Cor. 5: 17.) This shows beyond all controversy that no one is a Christian, a new creature, till baptized; for no one is in Christ till baptized into him. We make these points that all may see what a dangerous thing it is to denounce the very step that puts people into Christ as a nonessential; for no man can scripturally claim that he is in Christ till baptized into him. Hence the man that discards immersion is still out of Christ and can make no claim to be a new creature, a Christian; for the word “baptism” never means “sprinkle” and is never one time so applied in the New Testament. Therefore the man that has only been sprinkled can make no scriptural claim that he is in Christ. Surely, then, all should be careful not to say anything unfavorable to baptism, since an entrance into Christ depends upon it. To underestimate the ordinance of baptism is surely a thing not to be desired; no one should hunger and thirst after doing such a thing. But a penitent believer should hunger and thirst after baptism, should sincerely desire to be baptized, and should never delay his submission to that ordinance. He should go forward at once and attend to it. Then he will be in Christ, will be a new creature. Since baptism is the step that puts people into Christ, it is surely a very great sin to call it a nonessential. Hence to hunger and thirst after righteousness is to desire earnestly to do all God commands people to do to be saved.

But not only must people believe, repent, and be baptized; they must then go right on living the Christian life as the word of the Lord directs. To hunger and thirst after righteousness is to desire heartily to do all that the word of the Lord requires people to do in order to be righteous in the sight of the Lord. They must go right on and add to their faith courage, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and love. It takes the continued doing of these things to continue to be Christians, the followers of Christ. Whenever a Christian ceases to do these things, he ceases to be a Christian, a follower of Christ. The word of the Lord plainly teaches that this service must be continued to the end of life in order to reach heaven when we die. There is no other passport to the glory home but to continue faithful in the service of God until this life is ended. Then, if we have thus been faithful, we shall be called up higher, even into the glory home. Is it not worth while, then, to be faithful in doing the will of God till that call to go up higher shall come? Surely nothing else in all the world is so important. This is something well worth spending a lifetime for. This is about what Jesus means when he says: “Blessed are they which do hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled.” Those that hunger and thirst after righteousness in this way through life will be certain to be filled with happiness through eternity.

QUERY DEPARTMENT

Brother McQuiddy: (1) How long was it after Paul was converted on his way down to Damascus before he and Barnabas were set apart by laying on of the hands of the church at Antioch? (2) What work did he and Barnabas do before laying on of the hands at Antioch? (Acts 13: 1-5.) (3) Can a young minister baptize, minister the Lord's Supper, and marry folks before he is ordained, scripturally?

W. M. ROBINSON.

(1, 2) Barnabas had been preaching and teaching the gospel thirteen years and Saul ten years, and both had been endowed with gifts of the Holy Spirit to enable them to preach the word of God, before hands were laid on them at Antioch. It is said of Barnabas, who was preaching in Antioch: "For he was a good man, and full of the Holy Spirit and of faith: and much people was added unto the Lord." (Acts 11: 24.) Barnabas brings Saul from Tarsus unto Antioch. "And it came to pass, that even for a whole year they were gathered together with the church, and taught much people; and that the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch." (Verse 26.) Immediately after his conversion Paul went into Arabia and then returned unto Damascus. After three years he visited Cephas at Jerusalem. Then he came into the regions of Syria and Cilicia. Read the first chapter of Galatians. We do not read of Paul's working any miracles until after the laying on of hands at Antioch. About this time Paul receives a higher measure of the Holy Spirit, for soon after this we find him performing miracles. It is undoubtedly true that hands were laid on to impart the Holy Spirit. (3) Any Christian may baptize in an emergency. It is not necessary to ordain a person to give him authority to baptize or to eat the Lord's Supper. I read of Christians eating the Lord's Supper and not of "ministering" it. One may lead in giving thanks; but all Christians should give thanks with him. Each should follow in the thanksgiving so as to be able to say "Amen." A Christian brother should be recognized as a minister by the church before performing the marriage ceremony, otherwise the marriage might be held illegal. The law of the land recognizes as a minister of the gospel any one so recognized by the church.

Brother McQuiddy: (1) How would you go about teaching a church where practically every male member of age is pretty well mixed up in politics and thinks it a great neglect of duty not to vote? If you preached much about the Christian's true relation to government as I believe it is set forth in the New Testament, it would be to them as the "idle wind which they regard not." Would it not be well to argue the matter much privately to begin with? (2) If every Christian officeholder, from constable up, should lose his position, in the end would it not prove a "blessing in disguise," that they might be unhampered by political activities and worries in running the Christian race? (3) Does not the practice of law tend to draw one into politics more than any other profession? (4) Is there not something wrong with the sermon that has much to say about Wilson's Mexican and European policies? (5) Mr. Bryan is not a safe religious teacher, is he? (6) Finally, merely to preach "Christ, and him crucified," makes us appear "narrow" to many, does it not?

JAMES E. CHESOR.

(1) I would preach to them the word of God, gently, kindly, and firmly. I would not mix up with them in politics, knowing that if I did I would lose my influence with some of them as a minister of the gospel. It is always proper to preach to the people, all kinds and classes, the gospel of Christ, which is God's power unto salvation. As Paul did in Corinth, so should our brother do. Hear him: "And I, brethren, when I came unto you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, proclaiming to you the testimony of God. For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling. And my speech and my preaching were not in persuasive words of wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power; that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." (1 Cor. 2: 1-5.) In answering this question I have practically answered all the others, save question two. This question has been very thoroughly discussed by Brother David Lipscomb in his book, entitled "Civil Government." Price, seventy-five cents. Our brother is referred to this book for a fuller answer than I can here give.

Brother McQuiddy: For the benefit of any reader who has ever been affected by false teaching along these lines or may be touched by the same in the future, please answer the following questions in a kind, strong, truthful manner: (1) Who transgresses God's law—the preacher, the candidate, or both—when a preacher refuses to baptize into the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and insists that he should only say "in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins?" Has a man been scripturally baptized who, believing this error, conscientiously submits with the purpose of obeying God? (2) Explain the application of the great commission to the church today.

MORGAN H. CARTER.

(1) Christian baptism is in the name, or by the authority, of Christ, into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit. (Matt. 28: 19.) It is true there are passages in Acts of Apostles that speak of baptizing in the name of the Lord. They read: "And Peter said unto them, Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." (Acts 2: 38.) "For as yet it was fallen upon none of them; only they had been baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus." (Acts 8: 16.) "And when they heard this, they were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus." (Acts 19: 5.) These last had been baptized into John's baptism, and so informed Paul that they had not heard that the Holy Spirit was given. As Paul knew that Christian baptism is into the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, he knew there was something wrong with their baptism. So when they were baptized into the name of the Lord Jesus, they were baptized into the name of the Father and Spirit. So the man who does not baptize into the name of Father, Son, and Spirit does not baptize as did Paul. When Christ ordained baptism, he commanded it into the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. It is always safe to follow the Bible. As to whether God will accept the baptism of a man who believes it is not into the name of Father and Holy Spirit, and only into the name of Christ, I am not able to say. I know it is wisest and safest to believe what the Bible says. (2) "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matt. 28: 20.) The promise was made primarily to the eleven; but inasmuch as they were not to live to the end of the Christian age, or the end of the world, it properly extends to the entire church, of which they were the recognized representatives. While the world stands, therefore, Christ, who has all authority in heaven and in earth, is pledged to be with his church.

Our Bible Lesson Helps are growing rapidly. The present quarter is decidedly the largest in the history of our Bible quarterlies and lesson papers. The orders for the third quarter of this year are still coming in rapidly. If you have not forwarded your order, mail immediately to the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

"Who Is Sound?"

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

Sister R. F. Gill, of Allensville, Ky., sends us an article from Brother Armstrong for publication, which appears on page 724. We cheerfully give the article to our readers with our most hearty indorsement of the course pursued by the men mentioned in the article. I have been active in the management of the Gospel Advocate for almost thirty-two years, and during all these years it has vigorously opposed the propagation of speculative opinions as tests of fellowship. It has stoutly maintained that opinions should be held as private property, and not pressed to the division of churches. "The faith [conviction] which thou hast, have thou to thyself before God." (Rom. 14: 22.) Things that are not fundamental to salvation should not be exalted to the position of essentials. Things that one must not believe in order to be saved should not be taught and pressed to the disturbance of the churches. Instead of stifling investigation, the Gospel Advocate pleads for the right of each individual to study the Scriptures for himself and formulate his own faith without citation or hindrance from any one. While I have through all these years pleaded for unity in faith and liberty in opinions, I have never bound myself to teach the same thing through all the years of my life. My mind has undergone some changes. I have held some things as important that I do not now regard so important. The change is not in the truth, but in me. The truth is the same through all the eternal years of God. We should honestly teach the truth as we see it. We may be sincerely wrong, but never insincerely right. But through the years that have come and gone we have never been vicious enough to seek to bind our opinions as matters of faith upon the consciences of men. Brethren Lipscomb, Sewell, and Brents never presented their views on ordination, the millennium, etc., as their faith, convictions, and as vital to salvation. These brethren do not hold their views so important as that any one's salvation depends upon a knowledge of them. Dr. Brents, in his sermon on the millennium, very frankly says: "We do not see cause for alarm, even were we to indulge a little speculation about it, so long as we make no effort to force our speculations on any one else." Dr. Brents gave comparatively little attention to the millennium, preached on it seldom, and then for the purpose of drawing a large crowd. He spent many nights in my home and much time in the office during his life. If he ever mentioned the millennium to me in private conversation, I cannot now recall it. He was far from teaching that the best way to be a practical Christian was to be anxiously looking for the millennium. But read what he says on the millennium in "Gospel Sermons," pages 325-327:

There is surely something taught in the Bible on this subject, and it can do us no harm to study it. While it is vastly interesting, it is not so important as that any one's salvation depends upon a knowledge of it. A mistake concerning it, therefore, would be entirely harmless. Hence, we do not see cause for alarm, even were we to indulge a little speculation about it, so long as we make no effort to force our speculations on any one else.

We have read much of what has been written on the subject, and Brother M. E. Lard is the only man, whose writings have fallen under our notice, who seemed to have a tangible theory as to what the millennium really will be. On this point we believe his theory is correct, but we shall write as though he had not written.

Others think that it will consist in the breaking down of denominationalism; and the universal acceptance of the pure gospel of Christ, as taught by Mr. Campbell and his coworkers. However desirable this may be, we see no prospect of it; nor can we find satisfactory evidence on which to base such a belief. Denominationalism is here, and it is here to stay. It will be here when Jesus comes, perhaps about as it is now. Some of the denominations that are here now will doubtless pass away. Some are dying, and have been struggling in the throes of death for a number of years. The handwriting is on the wall, and they must go, and he is but a poor reader of the signs of the times who does not already see this; but perhaps other parties will rise up and take their place, and thus denominations will continue as long as time endures. All the world has never accepted the pure word of God, and never will. He is dreaming who expects the millennium to come about in this way.

Still others believe that the millennium will consist in the return of the Jews to Jerusalem, as a nation, and their conversion to the Christian religion, and that Christ will literally come to Jerusalem and reign among them in person. Some go so far on this line as to assume that after the Jews shall be converted they will go out as missionaries to convert the world, and that through their agency the world is yet to be converted to Christ—that the nation that rejected and crucified the Lord of glory is to be the means of converting the world to him. This may be all true; but it is, to our mind, not only unscriptural, but wholly unreasonable. We have two good reasons for not believing it—(1) the Bible does not teach it, (2) the Bible teaches just the opposite.

Thus Brother Brents held one view of the millennium, Brother Campbell another, and the premillennialist still another. But Brother Brents held his views on the subject so unimportant that a mistake about the millennium would be harmless. What a blessing if all the brethren would do as did he! If to teach a millennium is vital, whose view shall we accept—Campbell's, Brents', or the premillennialist's? Dr. Brents says of the premillennialist's view: "The Bible teaches just the opposite."

I am sure that Brother Armstrong is correct when he says that "the devil has been at work." Does he wish us to understand that Satan was at work in the pioneers of the restoration when they said, "Where the Bible speaks, we speak; and where the Bible is silent, we are silent," and advocated unity of faith and freedom of opinion, meaning by freedom in opinion that opinions should be held as private property and not forced on the consciences of others? He certainly does not mean to say that the devil was in such men as David Lipscomb, E. G. Sewell, Dr. T. W. Brents, G. G. Taylor, and a host of others who have sought to maintain the unity of the faith by teaching that speculation and opinions should not be pressed to the division of churches. The Gospel Advocate is doing the same thing now, not because the pioneers and the noble brethren mentioned did it, but because it is right. Would Brother Armstrong have us understand that the wicked spirit is in those who are teaching that the kingdom spoken of in Dan. 2: 44 has not been established, and that when it has been established in the future there will be new conditions of entrance into it, and that on account of changed conditions it is reasonable to expect new revelations from God? Is the evil spirit in those who are teaching that the kingdom of Christ is yet to be established by physical force, and that force a rod of iron, during the millennial age; that Christ shall rule in a material body on the earth, with Judaism as the center of his kingdom, the temple rebuilt, and the bloody sacrifices restored; and that those who do not believe that Christ is to come again in the flesh have the spirit of Antichrist? Would he have us understand that the spirit of faction is in those who are declaring that such views are their convictions, their faith, and are vital and important, or in those who urge that such views should be held to one's self, and not pressed to the disturbance of the churches? Can we maintain the unity of the faith by exalting opinions to the realm of faith, and is this what Brother Armstrong means to do? I am sure he does not, but that he will insist that speculations be not taught to the division of the churches, just as we are doing. He will do this because God requires him so to do.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Compiled by A. B. Lipscomb

Charley Taylor is in a meeting at Philippi, in Davidson County, Tenn.

Don't fail to read that pathetic letter from a fifteen-year-old storm sufferer on another page.

J. C. White, of Brownwood, Texas, is in a meeting at Roxton. He will begin at Santa Ana on August 5.

A physician desires a location in Tennessee, and in which there must be a church of Christ. Address G. H. M., care of the Gospel Advocate office.

Among our visitors last week were Dr. Albert Seitz, of McMinnville, Tenn., and Prof. Eph Smith, of Martin, Tenn. The latter is now in a meeting at Dillton, in Rutherford County.

G. A. Dunn reports a twelve-days' meeting at Midway, Texas, that resulted in thirty-one additions, including twenty-four baptisms. He is now in a meeting near Union City, Tenn.

Mrs. John Hundley, of Mooresville, Ala., and Mrs. M. E. Blanton, of Hines, Ala., have sent contributions for the "Joy Fund," which we use to send the Gospel Advocate to invalids and poor people.

W. A. McCullough is anxious to do evangelistic work this summer in rural districts and destitute places, and would be glad to correspond with any one from any place where the gospel is wanted. This is the true apostolic spirit. Address Brother McCullough at 1607 Whiteside Street, Chattanooga, Tenn.

I have reread with pleasure and profit E. M. Borden's book of sermons, called "Jacob's Ladder." In my judgment, this is one of the best collections of sermons for protracted-meeting purposes to be obtained anywhere and deserves a wide circulation. Send $1.25 to the Christian Book House, Little Rock, Ark.

Mitchell Pullias closed a week's meeting at Nolensville, Tenn., on July 10. Mitchell is a nephew of C. M. Pullias and a graduate of the Nashville Bible School. He is a humble and conscientious worker who bids fair to be one of our best. The church at Nolensville was greatly pleased with his preaching and conduct among them.

I would like to urge churches and individual Christians to send a contribution to H. C. Shoulders at Winchester, Ky., to be applied to the building fund for the church at Lexington, Ky. This little band is making an heroic effort to get a start and deserves the sympathy and encouragement of all those who believe in simple New Testament Christianity.

From E. M. Borden, Cove, Ark., July 11: "I am now at Cove in a short meeting. The meeting at Center Point came to a close last Sunday night, when I preached to the largest audience I ever addressed at that place. Six were baptized and one restored during the meeting. This was my third meeting at Center Point. I will begin a meeting at Floyd, Texas, on July 22."

C. G. Vincent writes from Battle Creek, Mich.: "If all goes well, I hope to begin visiting among the churches north of the Ohio River about the middle of August. I have brought nearly one hundred good lantern slides, which will give a splendid idea of Japan and our work. I shall be glad to hear from the churches soon, so I can arrange my trip to the best advantage. Write me, in care of the sanitarium."

From A. G. Freed, Marietta, Miss., July 13: "The meeting at Marietta continues with increasing interest. The crowds that come cannot be accommodated. It is raining almost every day, yet the people come. Five were baptized yesterday evening. It will be remembered that this is the place of the Freed-Pigue debate of about two years ago. The church here is alive. The coming session of school promises to be great. Write for catalogue to A. G. Freed, Henderson, Tenn.

Many of our readers will be grieved to learn of the death of Dr. J. M. Dill, who died at his home in Rutherford County, Tenn., on June 23. Our hearts go out in loving sympathy to the bereaved family. Dr. Dill was the mainstay of the church at Dillton, and many of our best-known evangelists have shared his hospitality. He had been a reader of the Gospel Advocate from its very beginning. G. C. Brewer, of Columbia, Tenn., conducted the funeral services.

From John A. Klingman, Midland, Ind., July 13: "I left Cincinnati for this place last Monday. We had splendid meetings there in the homes in different parts of the city, and also in Ludlow and Bromley, on the Kentucky side of the river. The visible results were two restored, one added by relation, and three baptized. The Cincinnati brethren are doing a good work. I began near here, at Summerville, last Tuesday night. We are having good interest in the meetings."

From J. M. Dennis, Covington, Tenn., July 13: "Our meeting here, which began on the first Lord's day in this month, closed on Wednesday evening after the second Lord's day. The attendance during the meeting was fairly good; the singing, conducted by F. J. Rogers, was good; the attention to our humble efforts to preach the gospel was good; and while there were no additions to the one body during the meeting, we feel like saying we had a good and very profitable meeting. May the Lord bless all of the faithful."

From R. V. Robinson, Washington, D. C., July 10: "The church of Christ in Washington has changed its place of meeting from the Pythian Temple to the Masonic Hall, at Eighth and F Streets, N. E. Visitors or strangers should take a car labeled 'N. E.' Eighth and F Streets, and go to the end of the line, and the Masonic Hall is just across the street from where the car stops. L. S. White, of Dallas, Texas, is to begin a meeting with the church here on August 6, and continue three weeks. We hope for a great meeting."

From C. R. Nichol, president of Thorp Spring (Texas) Christian College: "The readers of the Gospel Advocate who are interested in Christian education will rejoice to learn that the outlook for Thorp Spring Christian College appears brighter than ever. The University of Texas has just written us that our school was given an 'A' grade by the classification committee on Texas colleges. No other junior college in the State received a better grade. Thorp Spring Christian College was the only Christian college which received so high a grade. The brotherhood will appreciate the advancement the school is making. Substantial people are now moving to Thorp Spring."

From Dr. Jesse F. Love, Bristol, Tenn., July 13: "The tent meeting here has resulted thus far in nine accessions to the church of Christ. I think now, with the members already here, that the brethren will continue to grow, and we will have a foothold for the true worship of God in this section of country. There is not a loyal congregation of the church of Christ anywhere in this country of the mountains for fifty miles. I shall close my work with the congregation here next week till another time. The congregation here meets at 818½ State Street, in Brother F. B. Barnes' picture studio. Brethren stopping in Bristol are invited to worship with them every Lord's day at 10:30 A.M."

What They All Say.

A few extracts from letters of club members will give you some idea of the many attractive features of the Gospel Advocate Piano Club and will explain why it is so popular. Here are a few samples taken from the correspondence at random:

I certainly am enjoying my piano. I couldn't have gotten any better piano in Decatur than the one I got from you if I had paid one hundred and fifty dollars more than this one cost me.—Mrs. F. B.

It is a beauty, and we are delighted with it. The tone is perfect. Your club is a grand thing.—Mrs. E. P. M.

I am perfectly delighted with it; and every one that has heard it, or has played on it, says they have never heard a finer-toned one. I can observe such a vast difference between this one and others that are in this community that have been placed by agents. Every one, even those who know nothing about music, can tell the superiority of this piano over others.—Mrs. J. R.

We like it mighty well. The tone is full and clear, and the smooth and glossy finish is certainly superb. We think it much better than we could have done here for the money.—Mr. O. F. P.

The piano has come, and it is everything I could wish it to be. The tone is so soft and mellow it sounds more like a harp. The bass notes are remarkably full and round; the case is specially beautiful. I am entirely delighted with it. I never saw a more perfect instrument.—Mrs. W. J. B.

Almost every letter received from club members contains similar expressions of appreciation. The advertising manager of the Gospel Advocate cordially invites you to write for your copy of the club booklet and catalogue, which explain the big saving in price, the convenient terms, the superior quality and durability of the instruments, the protective guarantees and other attractive features of the club. Address the Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Georgia.

KINDLY send me your name and address. I will greatly appreciate the favor.

The Master's Vineyard

Alabama.

New Decatur, July 1.—On Thursday night, June 22, it was my pleasure to begin a meeting with the little congregation at Anniston. This congregation is the result of our meeting there last October. Brother R. S. King, who has been principal of the Calhoun County High School for the past three years and who has been reelected for the fourth year, has been an untiring worker. He has preached for the congregation three Sundays in each month; and not only so, but at the same time he has borne cheerfully his part of every financial burden, in all of which his faithful wife has been a partner. Some six or eight have enlisted themselves in the work since October under his preaching, and it is seldom that one is more appreciated and that love rules more supremely than here. This was in many respects one of the most pleasant meetings of my life, "for the people had a mind to work." I was called home on last Monday, and Brother John T. Lewis, of Birmingham, continues through this week. To date six had come from the Christian Church, two from the Baptist Church, and one who had made no pretensions. Others were interested, and we hope to hear that they have become obedient to the faith. In my judgment, there is not a more deserving, consecrated, and self-sacrificing little band than the eight-months-old congregation at Anniston. What say you, Brother Lewis? The work in New Decatur is growing.

J. PETTEY EZELL.

Sheffield, July 6.—Between here and Tuscumbia (about two miles) is a neighborhood of which about fifteen or twenty are Christians who cannot easily go to either place to worship. About a year ago it was decided to have services each Sunday afternoon at three o'clock from house to house in the neighborhood. Brother C. E. Coleman was here at that time, and went out each Lord's day, preached for them, and assisted in the worship. Soon after it was decided to have Bible study at two o'clock, and, later, prayer meeting on Tuesday nights (afterwards changed to Friday nights). These have all been very successful. Different brethren who have been here have preached for us, among whom was Brother J. T. Harris. We decided to have a tent meeting, and Brother Harris was chosen to do the preaching. We failed to get the tent we had planned to get. While trying to decide on the better way to solve the problem, a Methodist house near was offered to us, which we readily accepted. This matter being arranged, we immediately made ready to fight. The meeting began on Monday night, June 26, and was expected to continue until Friday night, July 7. Good crowds greeted us, and it was thought that a glorious victory would be won. When our meeting was only three days old, the pastor of the Sheffield Methodist Church announced in the neighborhood that he would begin a series of meetings in the house on the next Sunday afternoon. We were allowed to use the house until that time, however. We immediately set about arranging to continue near by. Rough lumber was procured and seats made and placed in order near the house and sufficient lights put up. On Sunday night a large crowd was out, and had not rain interfered we would have continued to have good crowds. God knows best, and perhaps he saw the need of not continuing longer. The meeting came to a close last night. Only one soul was persuaded to turn from the power of Satan to God. Though this one was all we can see, we are assured that this was only a seed sowing and that God will cause the harvest to be gathered in. The Lord willing, we plan for Brother Harris to hold a tent meeting in the same neighborhood early next spring. In the meantime we shall continue our work, and hope in course of time to have a permanent meeting place there.

H. G. HANLIN.

California.

Armona, June 28.—On the first Lord's day I was with the congregation in Fresno. This bids fair to be one of the largest congregations in California. They have quite a few members from Tennessee, and all who are acquainted with this stripe of Christians know the teaching they were brought up under, and it means to go forward. I am to preach for them the first Lord's day in each month for the present. On the second Lord's day I was with the new congregation at Tulare. We always have a fine service at that place. We have some of the best workers on earth there. On the third Lord's day I was with my home congregation at Hanford, and we had a splendid service. On the fourth Lord's day I was at Tulare again, and we had an all-day meeting, with dinner on the ground. We had fine audiences, especially in the afternoon. Next Lord's day I go to Fresno again. The San Joaquin Valley is one of the finest bodies of land on earth, if not the finest. Land can be bought reasonably cheap and on good terms, and we have a body of disciples in nearly all the prominent places. We would advise the elders in the East not to give any members letters of recommendation, but find out where those who are coming to California are going and write the elders direct that they are coming, and they will be met and cared for and helped to get suitable locations.

L. D. PERKINS.

Tulare, July 2.—The brethren are still meeting at our home, 259 South F Street, for worship. We have about twelve or fifteen loyal members at this place now, and we are reaching out for others. The interest is increasing from time to time. On June 25, Brother L. D. Perkins, of Armona, was with us. Brother Perkins is doing some good preaching, and his good wife is holding up his hands in the work. Brother Perkins is giving all his time on Lord's day to the work, while he works with his hands during the week for a support. We feel sure we will establish a loyal church in Tulare. On next Lord's day, the Lord willing, Brother Perkins will be with us again. We expect to be able before the year is gone to have some one come here and hold a series of meetings. This is surely a mission point. We have some bright boys and girls who are being taught the word of God and who will be sufficiently informed to obey the gospel before this year is gone. Brethren, pray that we may not become weary in well-doing, for we know we shall reap if we faint not.

Florida.

Pensacola, July 1.—Since the beginning of this year I have held six meetings and one debate and have baptized eighteen souls into Christ. I am now at home in Pensacola for a day or so to rest up and arrange for future work. At Pfafttown, N. C., where, with Brother W. L. Reeves as moderator and helper, I held a public discussion with the Socialists in August, 1915, I closed a very successful meeting on June 8, with eleven baptisms. Leaving North Carolina on June 9, I went to Corinth, Miss., and remained over Lord's day, meeting with the church of Christ at that place, at which time I heard three fine discourses by Brother A. G. Freed, president of the National Teachers' Normal and Business College, of Henderson, Tenn. On Monday I left, in company with Brother P. G. Wright, for Booneville, Miss., and remained over for the debate between Brother N. B. Hardeman and D. A. Leak on the instrumental-music question. This was an enjoyable event, although I believe the "digressive" brethren could pick a stronger man for such work. Something like fifteen or twenty preachers of the church of Christ were present, some "shore-enough" preachers among the number. From Booneville I went to Alabama, where I held a short meeting at Blacksher, closing with five baptisms. After arranging to hold a debate with the Russellites and one with the Mormons, both to be held in the fall of the year, possibly at Bay Minette, Ala., I left for home, arriving here on June 29.

W. J. BUTLER.

Illinois.

Brookport, July 7.—The work at this place moves on nicely. The little, but faithful, band is much encouraged by the aid that brethren and congregations have given us to help pay off the indebtedness on the house. Our lot and house cost eighteen hundred dollars, but, with the help of brethren and what the congregation has done, the debt now is only one thousand dollars. We can eventually pay for the house; but what about all the souls that need the gospel during that time? Our hopes and prayers are to clear the house of its debt so we will be able to have preaching, hold meetings, and do mission work. As to our worthiness, we can refer to many of the preaching brethren: C. M. Stubblefield, Paducah, Ky.; D. N. Barnett, Paducah, Ky.; A. L. Wilson, Mayfield,

We now lack one thousand dollars being out of debt. May the Lord help us in the great warfare, and some day you will hear of our congregation being out of debt and doing a good work. E. S. KERR.

Kansas.

Edna, June 27.—I closed a debate with A. L. Eaves, Baptist, on June 21. We debated four propositions—two on the establishment of the kingdom and two on the plan of salvation. Eaves was represented as a very strong debater, but I found my job easy. Our brethren were well pleased with my defense. We are to meet on the general church proposition in the fall, at the same place—Stockman, Texas. The debate was well attended, good feeling prevailed from start to finish, and no doubt much good will result from our work. I am in a meeting nine miles from Edna. I will go from here to Rockdale, Texas. W. F. LEMMONS.

Kentucky.

Louisville, July 10.—Three were added at the Highlands yesterday. Two of them, who had been Catholics, were immersed. DON CARLOS JAMES.

Bowling Green, July 10.—We are having a good meeting here. Brother Hall Cullom, of Nashville, Tenn., is here. We are glad to have him with us. Brother T. H. Burton is located here and is held in high esteem by all. We had a pleasant day last Wednesday at the Potter Orphans' Home and School. All are cordially invited to be present at a similar meeting there on the first Wednesday in next July. May the Lord bless us all and use us for his glory. M. L. MOORE.

Paducah, July 6.—Brother F. W. Smith began a meeting here on Monday evening after the first Lord's day in July and continued it just one week. During his stay we learned to love him, not only as a faithful preacher of the gospel, but also as a Christian "in whom there is no guile." There were two additions while he was here and one since.

HEAT FLASHES, DIZZY, NERVOUS

Mrs. Wynn Tells How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her During Change of Life.

Richmond, Va.—"After taking seven bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I feel like a new woman. I always had a headache during the Change of Life and was also troubled with other bad feelings common at that time—dizziness, nervous feelings and heat flashes. Now I am in better health than I ever was and recommend your remedies to all my friends."—Mrs. LENA WYNN, 2812 E. O Street, Richmond, Va.

While Change of Life is a most critical period of a woman's existence, the annoying symptoms which accompany it may be controlled, and normal health restored by the timely use of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Such warning symptoms are a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backaches, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness and inquietude, and dizziness.

For these abnormal conditions do not fail to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

The meeting continues with home forces. Just as a splendid interest had been created, our brother was called home on account of death in his family. From many earnest hearts prayers have ascended to the throne of our Father in behalf of the bereaved ones. Some day, the Lord willing, we hope to have him with us again. C. M. STUBBLEFIELD.

Sedalia, July 11.—I have just closed a fine meeting at Mount Olive. The people were very busy in that section, but we had large crowds and a splendid interest. There was one baptism. At the close of the last sermon I received a challenge to debate. The challenge came from a Baptist preacher (Newsom). So I announced that when the doors of the Baptist Church were opened we would be ready. The Baptists in that community need something to settle their trouble. They have "turned out" about twenty-nine of their members in the last year on the charge of "getting sanctification." Impossible for a child of God to so live as to be finally lost; yet if one gets "sanctification" and claims that he is now better than ever before and that he can live without sinning, "we'll turn you out!" I go to Sugartree, Tenn., for my next meeting. I. A. DOUTHETT.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

The meeting at Rector, Ark., began on June 11 and closed on June 25. Eight were baptized, one came from the Baptists, and one was restored—in all, ten. Twenty-three years ago I set in order the congregation at Rector, and have held eight or nine meetings and a six-days' debate with J. H. Peay, Baptist, since that time. I do not know whether I have given satisfaction or not, as some of them want me to go back and try it again. The Rector congregation is made up of good men and women, and I am looking for greater things from them in the future.

Brother R. E. Wright is now engaged in a meeting at Hornbeak. Four baptized to date. He is a great preacher, and I am so thankful for the privilege of hearing him for a few days. Brother Harry Hayes is leading in the song service, and is doing it well. No one enjoys these services more than the writer. No one needs preaching more than the preacher—some preachers. I am among the "some."

Brother T. M. Carney, of Obion, is engaged in a meeting at Mount Zion. Good hearing, good preaching, but no additions to date. This is where I started up the work on August 28, 1904, under a brush pile—twelve years ago. Now they have a good house and a good congregation. May God bless them in their efforts to do good.

At an early date Obion County will have two more great and good preachers, J. Paul Slayden and R. C. White, to proclaim the old gospel to lost sinners—Slayden at Glass and Rives, White at Oak Ridge. I hear that Brother Eph Smith, of Martin, is to come to Troy for a meeting. Troy is also one place where I had a hard, hard fight to establish a congregation, but now they are doing a great work for the Lord. Brother L. E. Jones lives there and preaches for the congregation. Brother Carney is to be at Bethel some time in September, and a good meeting is expected.

Next Lord's day (July 9) I will begin the camp meeting at Glady Hill. This is where I began on July 2, 1912, under a tent. There were three members in the neighborhood; now there is a good congregation with a beautiful meetinghouse, and it paid for, all but one hundred and eight dollars, due next January. I have not served them quite long enough yet to be swapped off, but this meeting may end my labor there for a while. They may want another man after this meeting. If so, they should get another, and I will look out for some other destitute place and pitch tent and try to build another congregation and get them housed.

I hear of some preachers who claim that they cannot get work to do; but at my age and with the destitute places near me, I have no fear of running out of a job. I may soon reach the point where the established congregations will not want me, but they cannot control the new fields where we have no congregations; so I am not worrying over the thought of going on the shelf. I just do not intend to go on the shelf as long as I am able to preach and my tent and new territory holds out. Of course, when my tent wears out and all the territory in Lake and Obion counties has been worked, then, perhaps, a shelf will be needed, but not until then. Pray for me in my efforts to sow the seed of the kingdom. Subscribe for the Gospel Advocate and get all the reports of meetings held by sacrificing preachers—preachers who are preaching to do good, and not for the money only.

Roanoke College.

Roanoke College closed its sixty-third year of service in the cause of liberal education on June 16 with a successful commencement.

Among the students enrolled the past session were many from various States and foreign countries, including Mexico and Japan.

The substantial growth of the college is manifested in the notable progress being made in the erection of new buildings, according to a harmonious group plan, which will form a double quadrangle when complete; a handsome new gymnasium, a commons, three sections of a new dormitory system, and a president's house having been completed. Two additional sections of the dormitory system have now been completed, making a row of dormitories two hundred and fifty feet in length. This imposing building is modern in every respect, having steam heat, electric lights, toilet and shower baths on every floor.

The college has a curriculum with electives well adapted to suit the wants of all students, for liberal culture, efficiency of life preparation, and for the beginnings of specialization toward the professions and practical life.

The instruction is thorough and the standard is high. The faculty is composed of men of liberal scholarship, eight having had thirty-two years of postgraduate work in American and foreign universities and two others being authors of college textbooks. The faculty numbers twenty professors and instructors. The library contains twenty-five thousand volumes. Few institutions offer so much at so little expense.

The Roanoke Valley is famous for its beautiful mountain scenery and healthful climate. The moral, social, and religious advantages of Salem are unsurpassed.

The catalogue of eighty-two pages shows that Roanoke is abreast of the times in its facilities and methods. For a copy of the catalogue, with the July Alumni Bulletin, address Roanoke College, Salem, Va.

There is rest to the soul in the word everlasting, because there is weariness in the soul for the rest which that word supplies. To believe with all the heart that "underneath are the everlasting arms"—that is the very peace of God.—Selected

A Hard Lesson.

BY JOHN T. POE.

"From that time many of his disciples went back, and walked no more with him." (John 6: 66.) And no wonder; they could not understand him. The idea that they must eat his flesh and drink his blood in order to eternal life, they could not see. It was too hard for them. Could you have understood his language that day, had you been there? You certainly could not. Even the apostles did not understand it; and had it not been for subsequent developments, the apostles themselves could never have understood it. It took that last paschal supper and the Lord's Supper at that time. It took more. It took a Gethsemane, with its agony and its bloody sweat. Yea, more—the judgment hall, the cruel whippings, a crown of thorns, the cross on Calvary, the tomb, and the resurrection of Jesus. It took all this and more to open up to the apostles even the whole of what was meant by eating his flesh and drinking his blood. I have no doubt but many went away saying: "The man is crazy. What! Give us his flesh to eat and his blood to drink! What is he talking about? He is surely crazy." The apostles had been with him long enough to believe that at some time in the future, somewhere, somehow, he would explain these mysterious sayings and make it plain to them. They certainly did not understand him then. But their faith in him as the Son of God led them to trust him even where they could not trace him. On the night of his betrayal, he "took bread, and blessed it, and brake it, and gave it to the disciples, and said, Take, eat; this is my body. And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and gave it to them, saying, Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the new testament, which is shed for many for the remission of sins." This, with subsequent events, explained to the apostles the hard lesson taught in John 6. For Jesus said to them, "This is my body," and, taking the cup, he said, "This is my blood"—figuratively, of course, for he had not yet given his body nor shed his blood, but he would, and did; and then, when he arose from the tomb and proved to them his divinity, they saw it all and understood. And from that time forward, on the first day of every week, they assembled themselves together to eat his flesh, his body, and drink his blood—an assurance to them that, since Jesus had become the propitiation for sin, they could gain eternal life. And the man or woman who does not eat—he who is not in a condition to eat—whether in the church or out of it, has no eternal life and no legitimate hope of eternal life. A member of the church, to be in communion with Jesus, must be morally and religiously in such condition that he can lawfully and worthily partake at the Lord's table as often as it is set for the use of the assembly of other members, and the main purpose of it is that he may eat of the Lord's body and drink of his blood. If he can do this worthily, it shows he has eternal life dwelling in him. But when, from any cause, either from withdrawal of fellowship by the church or his own secret sins which render him unwilling or unworthy to approach and partake of the Lord's body and blood, then, in that case, it seems to me, he has put himself without the reach of eternal life; and if he does not repent in due time and receive pardon, but dies in that condition, he is lost. Not really because the loaf and the wine can give eternal life by eating and drinking the same, but because of his sins, unrepented and unforgiven, which separate between him and the loving Father. Should he repent, God stands ready to forgive and to restore to him the promise of eternal life. For we know that God has said: "When I shall say to the righteous, that he shall surely live; if he trust to his own righteousness [his own right way of doing], and commit iniquity, all his righteousness shall not be remembered; but for his iniquity that he hath committed, he shall die for it." (Ezek. 33: 13.) "Again, when I say unto the wicked, Thou shalt surely die; if he turn from his sin, and do that which is lawful and right; . . . he shall surely live, he shall not die." (Verses 14, 15.) So we see that when a Christian backslides into the old life of iniquity, God takes from him the promise of eternal life. If he repents (provided it is not presumptuous sin), God pardons and restores to him the promise of eternal life; for God delights to show mercy, and is always ready to pardon the erring Christian when he repents. He is then once more a partaker at the Lord's table, and can eat and drink of the body and blood of Jesus—that is, the emblems of his body and blood—and may enjoy with all saints the glorious privilege of showing forth the Lord's death till he comes again, while he also rests in the promise of eternal life.

Among Our Workers

Georgia.

Trenton, July 12.—Our meeting at Durham, on Lookout Mountain, was rained out after the fourth day. The people were very kind and extended an invitation to return when the rains were over. We have no house or worshiping congregation there, but a few believers. I am to begin a meeting next Sunday at Shiloh, on Sand Mountain. It is my intention to begin a meeting every other Sunday till the weather is too cold for meetings in the Sunny South. C. E. COLEMAN.

Louisiana.

Amite, July 12.—Brother A. K. Ramsey, of New Orleans, is conducting a series of gospel meetings under canvas at this place. His lessons are plain and instructive. The attendance is increasing, and the meeting continues. W. J. JOHNSON.

North Carolina.

Winston-Salem, July 12.—Our work in North Carolina, still moves upward. We are now in our third meeting in this city since spring opened. We have our tent right in the heart of the city, with Brother M. C. Kurfees doing the preaching; so you see we are doing our best to get the gospel planted in the hearts of the people. Rain hindered the first three services, but our fourth service (last night) was well attended. Our expense in this meeting will be heavy, but we count it worth while and shall continue indefinitely. All good seed sown in good soil will grow. W. L. REEVES.

Tennessee.

Nashville, July 10.—Our tent meeting on the Brick Church pike closed on last Friday night. Immediate results, six baptized. Fine interest among sectarians makes us hope for many others by and by.

V. E. GREGORY.

Tracy City, July 5.—I am in a good meeting in Lankford, one mile from Tracy City. The meeting is ten days old; six have made the confession, and three are to be baptized next Lord's day. Three came from the Methodist Episcopal Church. We have good crowds every night. We are preaching in a schoolhouse. BAILEY BROOKS.

Alexandria, July 10.—Our meeting at Brownwood, Texas, was attended by very large audiences, and we think much good was done. In spite of almost constant rain, our meeting started here yesterday with good crowds. We are hoping for clear weather and a good meeting. Prospects for Abilene Christian College are very fine. Every mail brings inquiries, and far more have arranged to come than ever before this early. We have a very pleasant surprise for all who are going away anywhere to school, who will write us at Abilene, Texas. I hope to spend a few days in Nashville while in Tennessee.

J. P. SEWELL.

Lexington, July 3.—Perhaps it might be well to let the readers know where we are and what we are doing. We have been laboring in Henderson County since February 22, 1915. We have nine places of meeting in the county, most of which are weak, but we have three live and acting churches. Through the sacrifice of several of the brethren we have purchased a tent to be used in the interest of the cause in mission work. It has been rather hard to interest some in this kind of work, and several will not be interested at all nor give anything to the work of this kind. This makes the burden fall heavy on a few, and also makes the support light for such work. We are doing the best we can, however, to keep the work moving on. Brother Paul Slayden and A. J. Veteto began a meeting with the church here yesterday. The meeting started off with good interest and a large crowd. Brother Slayden holds to the grand old Book "as it is written." Brother Veteto places his stress on the singing "with the spirit" and "with the understanding." Whether you hear from us or not, just remember that we are doing what we can in the Master's work. E. P. WATSON.

Decherd, July 12.—I have just closed a twelve-days' meeting at Coalmont, with twenty-three additions. I baptized six Methodists, one Methodist preacher in the number. This was one of the most interesting meetings I ever held. Brother J. C. Moseley led the song service. Last November I held a meeting at this place and had forty-six additions. There is a congregation established at Coalmont with a membership of seventy-two. They have recently built a new house. They lack some having the house paid for, and any help that brethren may send will be appreciated. I preached for the brethren at Dans, in Sequatchie County, on the second Lord's-day morning, and for the Whitwell congregation at night, also on Monday night following. I stopped over at Bridgeport on Tuesday, where I found many brethren. This is the home of Brother Bob Jernigan. On the third Lord's day in this month I will begin a tent meeting in Bedford County. There are but few members there, and they have no place to meet. Brethren, cooperate with us by praying that we may be instrumental in bringing many souls to Christ through his word. R. E. L. TAYLOR.

Texas.

Fort Worth, July 10.—I closed a very fine meeting at Alvord last night, with twenty-seven additions (fifteen by confession and baptism) and an ugly church fuss settled. I go next to Baird. T. W. PHILLIPS.

Scurry, July 10.—The meeting here grows in interest and attendance. Four confessions and one restored. One of the number baptized is an old lady, seventy-seven years old. She has been a member of the Methodist Church over fifty years. I go from here to Rosser for a mission meeting.

JOHN HAYES.

Van Alstyne, July 8.—I am just beginning the second week of a meeting at Pilot Grove. This is one of those hard places where we are boycotted under the guise, as "they say," of being "Campbellites," whatever they are. It is sweltering hot now. Both the extreme heat and the boycott make it pretty tough on a fellow. One man was baptized the first day of the meeting. I will begin a meeting next Lord's day at Garrett. Interest good here. I expect to reach home about August 10.
JOHN E. DUNN.

Longview, July 12.—I closed a good meeting with Kickapoo Church, nine miles from Mexia, on Sunday night, July 9. Seven were baptized, two restored, and a run-down church revived—once a large and working congregation. Hobbies have almost killed this church. It is now almost a mission point. Though they have fifty or sixty members, they are dead, or most of them. All they do is to hinder those who try to work. They paid me seventeen dollars over expense of travel.
JOHN T. POE.

Chireno, July 12.—The fourteen-days' meeting here closed at the water this morning. Thirty-one were added—twenty-one baptized. Among those baptized are the leading doctor, merchant, barber, ginmer, blacksmith, and other business men. The Methodist preacher's daughter, five other Methodists, three Baptists, and other church folks gave up a false religion and obeyed the gospel. This is my second meeting with the church. They have a new meetinghouse. I am to hold a twenty-days' meeting for them in 1917 and a short meeting this fall. Two good singers from Brookeland and two from Martinsville—a fine quartet—led the singing. I begin to-night in Broadus.
BEN WEST.

Dallas, July 11.—I recently held a two-weeks' meeting at Terrell. We had two services daily. The audiences were fine and the interest good all the time. Brother C. A. Norred has been laboring with this church for the past two years. He is a young man of splendid ability, and is not only held in high esteem by the church, but by the entire town. He has been a great help to the church there. There were six additions during the meeting. I have not been in a more pleasant meeting. The spirituality was of the very best, and the members love each other very much. They have one of the nicest church houses in the town, centrally located. I expect the church to continue a great work. We had a fine day at the Pearl and Bryan Streets Church, in Dallas, last Sunday. There were four additions at the morning service. This church is doing the best work I have seen it do in many years. My son, Joe W. White, is holding a meeting at Grand Prairie. This is his first meeting. There has been one confession in that meeting. I expect to begin a meeting in Washington, D. C., the first Sunday in August, to continue throughout the month.

Household Therapy.

Every mother is of necessity half nurse and half physician.

The necessities of the children often call for slight medical attention.

The impossibility of having a physician at hand every hour of the day and night requires the mother to be informed of the simple remedies and to have them at hand for prompt use when necessity arises.

It is worth while for every mother to know that with a healthy child cuts, sores, bruises, abrasions of the skin call for three things only.

The injury should be cleansed, not merely in appearance, but from a germicidal or antiseptic standpoint.

After disinfection, it should be kept in an aseptic condition and the air should be excluded.

All three of these purposes can be accomplished by binding up with a heavy application of Mentholatum.

It is antiseptic, and its heavy base when bound on the injury is a safe protection against contamination from air.

LETTERS THAT INSPIRE CONFIDENCE.

I wish very much that every reader of the Gospel Advocate could spend sufficient time in my office to read the thousands of letters which I have received from all parts of the country. I have printed several hundreds of them in a booklet; but I wish you could see the originals, for I would like for you to realize the wonderful results which they report in the relief of dyspepsia, indigestion, persistent headache, rheumatism, gallstones, kidney, bladder, and liver diseases, uric acid poisoning, and other conditions due to impure blood.

Before my own health was restored by Shivar Mineral Water and I purchased this spring, and before I received all of these letters from sufferers, I did not take very much stock in advertisements like this. I, therefore, cannot blame you if you doubt; but, my friend, I am absolutely convinced that the Shivar Spring is the greatest restorative mineral spring ever discovered, not excepting the famous spas of Europe. I have shipped this water to thousands of sufferers in all parts of the United States, and they almost invariably report either permanent restoration or beneficial results. That is why I make the guarantee offer contained in the following letter. Sign it now and mail it. Shivar Spring,

Box 21J, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your guarantee offer, and inclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions and if it fails to benefit my case, you contained in the booklet you will send; agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return promptly.

FROM THE FIELD

Louisiana.

Plain Dealing, July 10.—I preached twice yesterday to large and appreciative audiences at Pleasant Hill, near here. We had dinner on the ground and a most enjoyable time. I am to be in San Antonio, Texas, on the fourth and fifth Lord's days in July. Following this date I have a meeting at Louise, Texas.

GEORGE M. RANCE.

Missouri.

Springfield, July 10.—Our meeting at the corner of Ramsey and Turner Streets is one week old. Crowds and attention splendid. Both congregations are taking an active part in this work. We are very hopeful of another congregation in this part of the city in the near future. Berea congregation all attended the tent meeting yesterday. My son, Charles, is leading the song service. We have some splendid singers in Springfield. The meeting is to continue all of July. A welcome awaits one and all.

O. L. HARDIN.

Poynor, July 10.—I have conducted two gospel meetings and have now entered into the third. The first was at home, with the church at Waldo, Ark. We had a short meeting, but it served as a church revival. We have done two hundred dollars' worth of work on our house in improving it inside and out, and now have a neat church home. My second meeting was at Nichols' Schoolhouse, sixteen miles north of Waldo, in Nevada County. Waldo church, through me, has been doing mission work there for two years. In all, we have had about thirty additions there. The work is doing well. We will soon have a church house, then I think the kingdom will be permanently established in that region. We raised something over one hundred and fifty dollars the last night of the meeting for building purposes. I am now in a very promising meeting at Poynor.

OSCAR E. BILLINGSLEY.

New Mexico.

Hope, June 23.—At the request of Brother W. A. Watson, who recently moved to this place from Tennessee, I make a statement concerning the Redeemer's cause at this place. Last December, just before Christmas, the church sustained a great loss in church workers by Brother J. D. Tant and his Christian family moving to Cleburne, Texas. This loss, however, has been partially regained by the moving in of the Watsons from Tennessee and the Pucketts from Arkansas, most of whom are faithful worshippers and zealous workers in the Lord's vineyard. Through their efforts and that of the tried and faithful few of the old band, the cause began to take on new life during the months of March and April and still continues. At our monthly appointments, one, two, three made the confession and were baptized; one erring sister returned to her first love; and two, who had been satisfied with their the descendants of the original Spanish and French settlers, prided themselves upon their hair; and rightly they should, for it was they who first knew the secret of beautiful hair, the one great successful remedy for hair diseases and the greatest of all hair foods—La Creole Hair Dressing. The recipe was kept a profound secret by the race until about fifty years ago; but now you can reap the benefits of their early discoveries by using "La Creole" hair dressing, the very best dressing for keeping the hair fluffy, light, and beautiful.

This wonderful preparation of the Creole race not only cleanses the scalp from all disease and filth, but also renews the life of the hair; makes it light and fluffy; restores to the hair its natural color and original luster; and supplies the hair with oil, food which it requires. No house should be without it. Ask your dealer for it. Price, $1. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Company, Memphis, Tenn.

Baptist baptism, became dissatisfied and were baptized by Brother Joe Puckett for the remission of their sins. During April the church decided to build a house of worship, and at this writing the foundation is laid and the forms constructed for the erection of a concrete building, forty by sixty feet. The building will cost between twenty-five hundred and three thousand dollars above the cost of seating. Contributions from brethren who are able and willing to help us in this work will be duly appreciated. Send to Dr. Puckett, Treasurer of the Building Committee, Hope, N. M. In a few months we hope to be worshipping God in our new house and working faithfully in the Lord's vineyard as we have opportunity. I have just returned from Lower Pecos and Mayhill, where I preached the word to attentive hearers from the second Lord's day till the third Lord's day night, stopping over at Dunken for a sermon on Monday night. I will return to these mission points during July, at which time we hope to reap the harvest of what has been sown. May the Lord send other laborers into the mission fields of New Mexico and justly reward those already in the field.

A. J. Cox.

Oklahoma.

Elk City, July 3.—I closed a mission meeting of fifteen-days' duration at Foss last Friday evening. I did not have this meeting scheduled when I left home to come West, but, on account of a meeting being called in, I had the time to give somewhere. There was a call for a meeting at this place. The first week was a rainy, stormy one and the services were rained out fully two-thirds of the time, yet we held on and did better the second week. Brother L. F. Martin led the singing. There was only one addition to the church, but much prejudice was removed and considerable interest worked up. While there are fifteen or sixteen members there, yet they are all spiritually dead, except three or four. Brother R. L. Vaughn, a godly, self-sacrificing man, is directing the work there, and they will have their worship every Lord's day. If anybody wants fellowship with us in this meeting, it is not too late yet. I am at Taylor now, with good prospects. I go from here to Crandall, Texas. GEORGE W. FARMER.

Tennessee.

Hornbeak, July 3.—Our meeting at Albany, Ga., was quite a success in every way. We left a nice little congregation there of seventeen souls. We leased a nice building for them to meet in every Lord's day and left Brother R. H. Rogers to stay with them until we can secure a man for the work in that part of the State. I began a meeting here yesterday with fairly good hearing and interest. R. E. WRIGHT.

Nashville, June 24.—I leave to-morrow night on my ninth annual missionary tour to North Florida and South Alabama. I begin Sunday morning in Esto, Fla., and expect to preach every day for six weeks, holding short meetings at the following places: Esto, fourteen days; Elton, Ala., eight days; Gum Head, Fla., eight days; Liberty, Ala., eight days; Tennille, Ala., four or five days. I have labored with three of these congregations for the last eight years and with the other two for a short while. No one of these congregations is large, hence the support has never been burdensome. I have managed to live all this time without calling upon the brethren for help, and am leaving now, not in the hope of filling my pockets, but because I love those brethren and others whom I hope to reach with the gospel. There are calls in this field that I shall not be able to answer, because I must hurry home to begin my winter's work. I teach for a living and preach when I can. If the remuneration were sufficient to give me a living, I would be glad to locate in this field and labor with these brethren all the time. VAN A. BRADLEY.

Memphis, June 26.—Since my last "Notes" appeared we have conducted two protracted meetings and held one debate in Memphis, in addition to our regular work. The writer preached about two weeks at Olive Avenue to attentive audiences, but there were no additions. One person who had been scripturally baptized has abandoned the Baptist denomination and taken his stand with this congregation since the meeting. The debate with A. G. Canada, Pentecost Holiness, was held at the Holiness meetinghouse on Olive and was largely attended, and we think much good was done. Brother C. M. Stubblefield, of Paducah, Ky., did the preaching in the meeting at Harbert Avenue, and it was well done. Four persons were baptized and one reclaimed during the effort. Brother Cullum is in a tent meeting out at Highland Heights, but it has been hindered much by rain. The writer will assist Brother Bunner in a meeting in New South Memphis, to begin next Sun-

Astonishing Power of Iron to Give Strength to Broken Down Nervous People

Physician Says Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate Folk 200 Per Cent. in Two Weeks' Time in Many Instances.

NEW YORK, N. Y.,—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a well known Specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, said: "If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue, and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down, and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night; others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your flagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what one tells you, if you are not strong, and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, run-down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of iron, like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated, and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated iron, for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed in this city by all druggists.

day. When this meeting is over, I will hold a tent meeting near the car barns. Our preaching force has been reinforced recently. Brother W. T. Wilson has returned to Memphis, and Brethren H. J. Sudbury and J. W. Dixon are attending the Normal and will assist in the work in and around our city. Brother Denton has been suffering some with rheumatism of late, but he is still able to preach each Sunday morning at Olive.

W. HALLIDAY TRICE.

Elora, July 5.—On the first Sunday in May we had our yearly meeting at Greenwood, in Giles County. A large crowd gathered about 10:30 A.M., and I am sure that for about thirty minutes we had as fine singing as I have heard in many a day, if not the best. Brother John Kincaid led that day, and he did it well. I think he is the principal leader in song at Greenwood. I tried to preach for about fifty minutes with the same earnestness as in days of yore, and many old brethren and sisters remarked at the close: "Brother Bradley, we think you preach just as well as you did thirty years ago when you and W. B. McQuiddy were here, if not better." Of course this made me feel good. We then had a bountiful dinner under the green trees, and rest for an hour, with hand-shaking and greeting. Many of the old-time friends who were there when Brother McQuiddy and I were there are gone. Then another service in the afternoon closed my meeting at Greenwood for this year. They tell me that I have a standing appointment for that time every year as long as I am able to go. The next Sunday was spent at Ethridge. We have a loyal congregation at Ethridge, and I heard of no dissensions among them. They furnished me two good-sized audiences. I visited old Robertson Fork on the second Sunday in June. We lived and labored with these dear people many years ago. This was my first visit after an absence of twenty-nine years. They have a nice, new house of worship. We intended to have had preaching at night, for a few nights at least, at the "Blue Creek" Schoolhouse, not far from Robertson Fork, but so much rain prevented a single service. On the third Sunday in June I was at Wilson Hill. They had two sermons and dinner. This is in Marshall County. I preached there many years ago a great deal. Pleasant faces that used to greet us there are seen no more. We had splendid audiences at both services, and dinner enough for as many more people. Old Brother Ben Phillips was buried there just a few days before our visit. On the fourth Sunday in June I was at Cornersville. We had services on Sunday and Sunday night and on Thursday night. These brethren seem to be at peace with each other; no troubles that I heard of. Last Sunday I had a splendid audience at Beech Grove, in Marshall County. I preached only once. I preached and held meetings there many years ago. Quite a lot of the old ones are there no more. I will be at Ostella, in Marshall County, on the third Sunday in this month. May the Lord help us. J. R. BRADLEY.

MACEDONIAN CORNER

Funds Needed at Ripley, Tenn.

One of the trustees and elders of the church of Christ at Ripley, Tenn., sends us the following:

To the Brethren: We are struggling to build a house of worship at Ripley—a neat, little, modern building. There are only about thirty-two members of the church of Christ here, and only seven male members, heads of families. We have the building plans and have just let the contract. The excavations have been made and the work of construction will begin at once. We have enough confidence in the brotherhood to start the work. We hope you will come to our rescue, though the offering be ever so small. We need and must have seven hundred dollars to finish the building. We ask you to send us a liberal free-will offering, and we assure you that we are ready to pass the gift on to others in need as soon as we get in our new house. Brethren D. H. Friend, S. P. Pittman, L. K. Harding, S. T. Nix, and O. C. Houston have preached here and know the situation. Donations may be sent to J. A. Byler, Ripley, Tenn., Route 2, or to T. H. Green, Ripley, Tenn. Your gift will be reported to the congregation here and a receipt will be mailed to the sender.

A Call from Alabama.

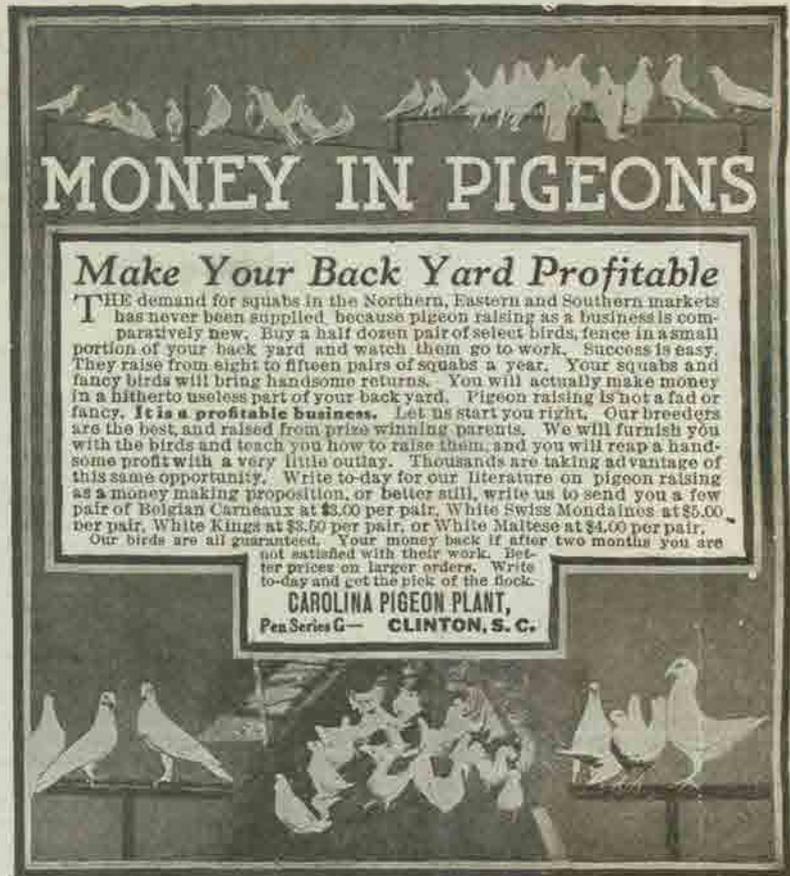

The following note, signed by W. O. Norton, W. C. Morgan, G. W. Thompson, and J. T. Aston, of Route 3, Town Creek, Ala., was sent us for publication:

Brethren, we are trying to thoroughly establish a congregation of loyal Christians at Hatton, some nine miles south from Town Creek. We meet each Lord's day at the home of Brother Morgan. There are only a few of us, but we keep up the worship. The brethren, by the help of churches at other places, have bought a half-acre lot and put up the framing of a church house thirty-five by forty feet. The deed contains the restrictive clause. We want the house ready for a meeting this season. We are not strong enough to finish this work. Those who are able and willing, will you not help us? Send all contributions to W. C. Morgan, who will report the same through the Gospel Advocate.

Notes from India.

BY W. HUME M'HENRY,

We are sorry to relate that Dr. James Umrao Singh, the laborer in Northern India, is now (March 10) in the hospital at Lucknow, India, paralyzed from the waist down. From this you will see that for the present (and who knows if not for all time?) his labors have ceased. Brethren, pray that God may restore him again, that he may be used to advance the Lord's cause among the

Make Your Back Yard Profitable

THE demand for squabs in the Northern, Eastern and Southern markets has never been supplied, because pigeon raising as a business is comparatively new. Buy a half dozen pair of select birds, fence in a small portion of your back yard and watch them go to work. Success is easy. They raise from eight to fifteen pairs of squabs a year. Your squabs and fancy birds will bring handsome returns. You will actually make money in a hitherto useless part of your back yard. Pigeon raising is not a fad or fancy. It is a profitable business. Let us start you right. Our breeders are the best, and raised from prize winning parents. We will furnish you with the birds and teach you how to raise them, and you will reap a handsome profit with a very little outlay. Thousands are taking advantage of this same opportunity. The activities of Satan are not confined to heathen strongholds, but, arraying himself in religious garb, he parades himself as a respectable fellow. Our workers write that a certain mission in their parts is sending its leaders through the country, offering to build schools, give the farmers oxen to cultivate the land, or even to give them money, if they will but join their missions. Who says that this is the spirit of the Lord Jesus Christ?

Notwithstanding I had sent word for two of my workers to come to Satara for instruction, they requested that I permit them to remain a while longer, saying that many of their people were calling them to immerse them. Satan may buy his followers, yet God's word is still full of power, and through it souls are being drawn to God, to the Savior in whom there is redemption. We thank God and take courage. Let the armies of the Lord mobilize and fight in earnest, not with flesh and blood, but with all the powers of evil, ever looking to the Captain of our salvation; and not only looking to him, but, being prepared, look for his appearing.

To be silent, to suffer, to pray, when there is no room for outward action, is an acceptable offering to God. The Man Who Went.

We next consider the prospective portion of Paul's charge to the elders of Ephesus: "And now, behold, I go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem, not knowing the things that shall befall me there: save that the Holy Spirit testifieth unto me in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions abide me. But I hold not my life of any account as dear unto myself, so that I may accomplish my course, and the ministry which I received from the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God. And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I went about preaching the kingdom, shall see my face no more. Wherefore I testify unto you this day, that I am pure from the blood of all men. For I shrank not from declaring unto you the whole counsel of God." (Acts 20: 22-27.) Paul states that he was about to "go bound in the spirit unto Jerusalem," and, furthermore, that "the Holy Spirit testifieth unto me in every city, saying that bonds and afflictions abide me." There has been not a little speculation as to how Paul received this testimony of the Spirit. That is not a matter for profitable discussion. The really important point for us to consider is that Paul, constrained by conscience and duty, went. Nothing could keep him back. It reminds us of that time in Elijah's experience when God commanded that he show himself unto Ahab. In one verse is recorded God's command. In the next verse appears the simple statement: "And Elijah went to show himself unto Ahab." On his way he met Obadiah, a good man, who was over Ahab's household. The prophet said: "Go, tell thy lord, Behold, Elijah is here." But Obadiah objected strenuously to delivering any such message to Ahab. "As Jehovah thy God liveth, there is no nation or kingdom, whither my lord hath not sent to seek thee: and when they said, He is not here, he took an oath of the kingdom and nation, that they found thee not." But to every objection that Obadiah advanced, Elijah turned a deaf ear. How magnificent the courage of the man who could say: "As Jehovah of hosts liveth, before whom I stand, I will surely show myself unto him to-day!" "Go tell Ahab that I am coming." Such is the dauntless spirit of the apostle Paul. "The Spirit tells me I must go to Jerusalem in the face of trials and afflictions, and to Jerusalem I must go." You talk about patriotism. That is the kind of patriotism that God honors.

How Do You Think of Mexico?

Some are willing to go to Mexico and "fight for your country," as you think, but how many would be willing to go down there in times of peace to preach the gospel to their perishing souls? I stand ready to give credit to any man for a fine sentiment whenever and wherever uttered, and, therefore, I do not blush nor apologize for quoting the words of Francis Xavier, a Roman Catholic, who, speaking about the dangers and difficulties of a missionary's life, said: "If those islands had scented woods and mines of gold, Christians would have courage enough to go thither, nor would all the perils of the world prevent them. But they are dastardly and alarmed because there are only the souls of men to be saved. But this I dare to say, that whatever form of torture or of death awaits me, I am ready to suffer it ten thousand times for the salvation of a single soul." What a pity that a man with such a spirit did not deliver the message like Paul!

Is Your Life Dear Unto Yourself?

The apostle said: "I hold not my life of any account as dear unto myself." Not long ago a metropolitan paper recorded the death of a prominent citizen. The notice stated his name, a historic one, and mentioned his family; then it gave the various social clubs with which he had been identified, and concluded with these words: "He was a well-known patron of the turf; he was one of the best connoisseurs of wine in America, and was always present at every first night at the theater and opera." This man was the exact opposite of the apostle Paul. He held his life as dear unto himself, not as dear unto his Maker.

"I lived for myself, I thought for myself,
For myself, and none beside;
Just as if Jesus had never lived,
As if he had never died."

Sometimes a young man approaches you with an air of self-complacency and says, "My idea of life is to take things easy," by which he means that his idea is to get just as much for himself as possible, regardless of others. It would be a hard thing to say, but the truth, no doubt, to tell him: "Young man, it would be better for you and for the world if some one would hang a millstone around your neck and throw you into the river."

Climbing the Hills on High Gear.

Paul's great purpose in life was to accomplish his course and the ministry which he had received from the Lord Jesus. In automobile phraseology you hear a good deal about "high gear" and "low gear." The car that can go up the highest hill on high gear always receives favorable mention. And the Ford, which has become the butt of many a joke, has been facetiously likened to the Bible because it carries you up "on high." But, seriously, this remark affords a striking figure of Paul's high purpose of living. The lever that operated was always marked "high." His eye was ever on the goal. What were such things as bonds, imprisonments, and afflictions? Nothing more than hills that he felt abundantly able to climb so long as kept "in high." The prophets used to call the service of the Lord a "burden." It was an awful weight upon them which they would have gladly laid down if the Lord had permitted. Never once does Paul use the word "burden" in reference to his work. It is not something that he carries. It is something that lifts him up, gives lightness to his feet, expansion to his heart, grace and power to climb the hills of life. How truly has some one said: "There is nothing to be done unless we are contented to live on the stretch. Easy-going lives are always contemptible lives!" Let us resolve not only to go to heaven, but to go on high gear, "stretching forward to the things which are before," pressing on "toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

When Paul Heard the Hoof Beats.

Longfellow, in "Evangeline," has a beautiful bit of verse about the "shrinking mimosa," a tender plant that closed its leaves when the horses' hoofs were tramping on the turf of the prairies. Just so the apostle Paul heard the hoof beats of his enemies. Scenting danger, he turned to those Ephesian elders and said: "And now, behold, I know that ye all, among whom I went about preaching the kingdom, shall see my face no more." He spoke only of this life. Those Ephesian elders, if they were faithful, and you and I, if we are faithful, shall see his face in heaven and thank him for this lesson.

If the governor of your State should call upon you to go and fight the Mexicans, and you should refuse for conscience' sake, it is my belief that Jesus Christ would be pleased. If I should ask you, and I do ask you, in his name, to become a volunteer in his army, and you should refuse, he would be disappointed, he would feel ashamed of you. Jesus Christ calls for volunteers. What will you do?

Brother Huntsman's Criticism.

BY F. W. SMITH.

Brother L. E. Huntsman, of Beamsville, Ontario, Canada, files objections to some points the writer recently made on "The End of Christ's Reign." It is with pleasure that his criticism is laid before the readers of this journal. Truth loses nothing from the crucible of the severest test, but, on the contrary, is made to shine brighter with each fiery trial. Read carefully what our brother says:

In the Gospel Advocate of June 29, 1916, is an article under the heading, "The End of Christ's Reign," by Brother F. W. Smith. While I agree with him in believing that the writers he criticizes teach a theory that is contrary to the Scriptures, I cannot accept all of his article as correct.

In discussing the force of "then" in 1 Cor. 15: 24, the first meaning of the English word "then" is given, with 1 Cor. 13: 12 as an example, and also the second meaning, with Matt. 5: 24 as an example. As the word translated "then" in the first passage is "eita," while in the last two it is "tote," this has little or no bearing on the force of "then" in the first passage.

The word under consideration (eita) is used (a) of time, i. e. afterwards, after that, in Mark 8: 25; Luke 8: 12; John 13: 5; 19: 16; 20: 27; James 1: 15; and as a redundant in Mark 4: 17; (b) of order and succession, in 1 Tim. 2: 13; 3: 10; Mark 4: 28; 1 Cor. 12: 28; 1 Cor. 15: 5, 7, 24; (c) as a particle of continuation, in Heb. 12: 9. In no case has it quite the same force as the first meaning of the English "then," i. e. at a specified time, as a careful consideration of the context in each case shows; but rather as given above, afterwards, after that. On the other hand, "tote" has more nearly the force of the English "then" in 1 Cor. 13: 12, where it refers to a specified time (future), and in Matt. 13: 26, where it refers to a specified time (past).

When immediateness was intended, another word was used—viz., "eutheos," meaning straightway, immediately, forthwith. In Mark 4: 28, 29 we find both "eita" and "eutheos." "The earth beareth fruit of herself; first the blade, then [eita] the ear, then [eita] the full grain in the ear. But when the fruit is ripe, straightway [eutheos] he putteth forth the sickle, because the harvest is come." "Then" (eita) is here used to give the order or succession of events; but when it is desired to specify immediateness as to a point of time, "straightway" (eutheos) is used.

In 1 Cor. 15: 23, 24 the expression is of order—first, Christ; second, they that are Christ's; third, the end. Incidentally the time of the second is expressed by the phrase "at his coming," while an event simultaneous with the third is expressed by the clause "when he shall deliver up the kingdom." The idea of immediateness or remoteness of one event with either of the other two is entirely absent.

In Rev. 20 it is said that there is a "first resurrection," and that "the rest of the dead lived not until the thousand years should be finished." And again: "And the sea gave up the dead that were in it; and death and Hades gave up the dead that were in them: and they were judged every man according to their works. And death and Hades were cast into the lake of fire." Since we are told in 1 Cor. 15 that the last enemy to be destroyed is death, we are forced to conclude that the end of Christ's reign will be after the thousand years and the giving up of the dead by death. Further, if we place the resurrection of those that are Christ's, and his coming, after the thousand years, we have only one resurrection besides Christ, which contradicts Rev. 20. Though this may seem to support a theory that carnalizes the reign of Christ, it does not teach such a carnalizing. The real support (if such it may be called) of such a theory is to be found in assumptions and speculations.

I am gratified to know that Brother Huntsman repudiates in the main the theories I have been combatting, and that he regards them as contrary to the Scriptures. While this is true, I am persuaded that he has missed the mark in his criticism. In dealing with 1 Cor. 15: 23, 24, the writer said: "The kingdom over which Christ now rules, and the only one over which he ever will rule, will 'then'—at that time—the coming of Christ—pass out of his hands into the hands of the Father, who will be all in all, the supreme Ruler of the universe." This contention was based upon the context and the meaning of the word "then" as related to Christ's coming and the end. It was shown that "eita" was the word for "then" in 1 Cor. 15: 24 ("then cometh the end"); and as J. H. Thayer, in his Greek-English lexicon, says of "eita," "adv. of time, then; next; after that," I argued that as there was nothing in the context to show that the "end" did not immediately follow his coming, "eita" had the force of immediate occurrence, and gave one passage to sustain the position—viz.: "Then saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger and see my hands." (John 20: 27.) From this position our brother dissents, and, like many others, sees "one thousand literal years" between "at his coming" and "the end." Now this point, abstractly, is not worth contending for one way or the other, for it in no way affects the salvation of a single soul. But as used by some, it is made to support other theories destructive of the spiritual reign of Christ by the reestablishment of Judaism—denying Christ his seat now on David's throne.

Brother Huntsman says, "In 1 Cor. 15: 23, 24 the expression is of order," and: "The idea of immediateness or remoteness of one event with either of the other two is entirely absent." He then gives the same passages given by Thayer in which "eita" occurs. Very well, I shall take a few of these and show from the context that not only is "order" expressed, but immediate occurrence of events as well. Remember that "eita" means next, i. e. the next thing. "Then [eita] again he laid his hands upon his eyes; and he looked steadfastly, and was restored, and saw all things clearly." (Mark 8: 25.) Now take the context: "And he took hold of the blind man by the hand, and brought him out of the village; and when he had spit on his eyes, and laid his hands upon him, he asked him, Seest thou aught? And he looked up, and said, I see men; for I behold them as trees, walking. Then again he laid his hands upon his eyes," etc. Then, when? Does not the very nature of events show the "when?" Would any one conclude from the nature of the case that much time elapsed between the man's answer to the question, "Seest thou aught?" and Christ's laying his hands on him the second time? Again, in John 20: 27, after appearing in the midst of the disciples and saying, "Peace be unto you," we read: "Then [eita] saith he to Thomas, Reach hither thy finger," etc. Does not this indicate immediateness of occurrence? Would any one, in the absence of a single fact of history, qualifying word, phrase, or clause to the contrary, even dream that "the idea of immediateness with the other" events mentioned was "entirely absent?" I think not. What, let me again ask, is there in the entire context of 1 Cor. 15: 24 to show that "then cometh the end" does not immediately follow "at his coming?" Brother Huntsman, like many others, must sandwich verses 23 and 24 of 1 Cor. 15 with one thousand literal years. But how does he do it? He proceeds to the book of symbols, the book abounding in figurative language, and finds something said about reigning a thousand years. He just knows this must be a thousand literal years, and that they must be between the coming of Christ and the end of the world. I cannot express my convictions on the matter so well as Adam Clarke, who says:

Some think that, by them that are Christ's at his coming, we are to understand Christ's coming to reign on earth a thousand years with his saints previously to the general judgment; but I must confess, I find nothing in the sacred writings distinctly enough marked to support this opinion of the millennium or thousand years' reign; nor can I conceive any important end that can be answered by this procedure. We should be very cautious how we make a figurative expression, used in the most figurative book in the Bible, the foundation of a very important literal system, that is to occupy a measure of the faith and no small portion of the hope of Christians. The strange conjectures formed on this very uncertain basis have not been very creditable either to reason or religion.

It seems to me that Christ himself has forever removed this doctrine of a thousand literal years from between his coming and the end of the world. He said: "No man can come to me, except the Father that sent me draw him; and I will raise him up in the last day." (John 6: 44.) Again: "He that eateth my flesh and drinketh my blood hath eternal life; and I will raise him up at the last day." (Verse 54.) It was generally understood by the Jews that the resurrection would take place in the last day. Hence, Martha said: "I know that he shall rise again in the resurrection at the last day." (John 11: 24.) Christ says of his word: "The same shall judge him in the last day." (John 12: 48.) Paul fixes a specific day for judgment: "Inasmuch as he hath appointed a day in which he will judge the world," etc. (Acts 17: 31.) The apostle tells us this judgment will take place at or by the appearing of Christ. (2 Tim. 4: 1.) He also says his crown will be given him "at that day." (2 Tim. 4: 8.) In all of these passages we have mentioned a specific time in which certain events are to transpire, and it is termed "the last day." In the "last day" they that are Christ's shall be raised, for he has said so. What, then, is the meaning of the word "day" in these passages? Does it refer to an indefinite period of time, or to a period covering a thousand literal years? The latter would have to be its meaning to meet the demands of our brother's contention for a thousand literal years' reign between the coming of Christ and the end of the world. Mark you, Christ does not say, "I will raise him up in the last days," but "in the last day"—in the singular. "Hemera" is the word translated "day" in these passages, and J. H. Thayer says it means "a day according to Jewish reckoning, i. e. from sunrise to sunset (Luke 2: 44; Matt. 12: 40); the civil day, i. e. a period of twenty-four hours." On its third meaning he says: "Of the last day of the present age, the day in which Christ will return from heaven, raise the dead, hold the final judgment, and perfect his kingdom, the following expressions are used." Among the expressions cited are John 6: 39, 44, 54; 12: 48; 11: 24. Now, unless all the dead, both saints and sinners, are raised in the "last day," when will they be raised? Will not the "last day" be the winding up of time? I see no place after the last day for a thousand literal years, do you? Hence, I conclude that no valid objection can be filed against "then cometh the end" as an immediate sequence to "at his coming" in 1 Cor. 15: 23, 24. We are told that Christ must reign till the last enemy, which is death, shall be destroyed. Well, if all the dead are raised in the last day, will not death be destroyed?

But, again, Christ says: "Marvel not at this: for the hour cometh, in which all that are in the tombs shall hear his voice, and shall come forth; they that have done good, unto the resurrection of life; and they that have done evil, unto the resurrection of judgment." (John 5: 28, 29.) In the light of this declaration by the Son of God, will our brother undertake to separate the resurrection of saint and sinner from the same hour and sandwich them with a thousand literal years? Christ says that in the same hour, the same period of time, both the good and the evil shall hear his voice and come forth. When will this be? "For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven, with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God: and the dead in Christ shall rise first." (1 Thess. 4: 16.) It avails nothing to contend that the wicked dead will not then be raised because not specifically mentioned, because Christ had already plainly stated that they should be raised at that time. In First Corinthians Paul is discussing the general resurrection. "For as in Adam all die, so also in Christ shall all be made alive"—that is, raised from the dead. "But each in his own order: Christ the first fruits; then they that are Christ's, at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall deliver up the kingdom of God," etc. (1 Cor. 15: 22-24.) I maintain with all confidence that but one impression can be received from these scriptures taken in their connection—viz., when Christ comes, the end of time will be—unless the mind is preoccupied with some other theory not deducible from the context. He says "eutheos" means "immediately." Not always, as we generally use the word "immediately." (See 3 John 14; Matt. 24: 29.)

To the Ex-Students, Teachers, and Friends of the Nashville Bible School.

This college has just completed the first quarter of a century of her history in the educational world. "The first session opened on October 5, 1891, in a rented house on Fillmore Street, with nine young men in attendance. During the session thirty-two students were enrolled. The second session opened on October 4, 1892, in a rented house on South Cherry Street. During this session the enrollment was forty-two. In the summer of 1893 property was purchased and buildings were erected for the school on South Spruce Street. Here the third session opened, enrolling fifty-two pupils. During the summer of 1894 a larger dormitory was built for boys. Forty-eight students were enrolled during the fourth year. From the fifth session to the thirteenth session the yearly enrollment averaged about one hundred and twenty-five pupils. On February 2, 1901, the school was chartered. In the fall of 1903 it was removed from South Spruce Street to its present permanent location, on the Granny White road, about four miles from the Public Square and about one mile from the corporate limits of the city. The following (thirteenth) session one hundred and sixty-four pupils were enrolled. The enrollments of the following sessions have varied from about one hundred and fifty to two hundred. The enrollment for 1915-1916 was two hundred and twenty."

The present home of the school is upon a beautiful, shady, blue-grass campus and farm of sixty acres. The location is ideal, one of the most picturesque to be found in the famous blue-grass region of Middle Tennessee. The buildings are modern brick structures with stone trimmings and slate roofs. They are well lighted, well ventilated, heated with steam heat, lighted with electricity, and equipped with the latest modern equipments for school work.

The Nashville Bible School is in a healthy and growing condition. The faculty is strong and harmonious. The board of trustees and faculty are in perfect sympathy with each other and united in their efforts to keep this school abreast of the times in all modern methods and equipment in the educational world and at the same time on a firm and substantial basis and in perfect keeping with the highest ideals of true education, true to the original purpose of the school. The original design of this school was set forth in the following language: "The Nashville Bible School originated in the twofold desire on the part of disciples of Christ to see schools in which children, while obtaining a literary education, will be taught daily also the Bible as the most important study of life and as the only rule of faith and practice, and, therefore, excluding all additions and devices of human wisdom from the work and worship of the Christian." The school has college affiliation. "Students' credentials from the Nashville Bible School are recognized by the University of Tennessee, the State Normals, and other State universities, and each pupil will be given the class standing in these institutions that his credentials justify."

After mature deliberation and consultation with the board of trustees and faculty, a number of the graduates and ex-students decided to form an association of all ex-students and teachers of the school. Any one who has ever attended the school as a student or taught in the school is entitled to full membership upon enrollment of his name on the secretary's book. Any friend of the school may be elected to honorary membership. We request every one to send his or her name to the secretary, Prof. Charles R. Brewer, Nashville Bible School, Nashville, Tenn. We hope soon to be able to mail a copy of the constitution and by-laws of the association to every ex-student and ex-teacher of the school.

The purpose of this association is to foster the spirit of loyalty to our Alma Mater, stimulate our fraternal relations, and to work for the upbuilding and the enlarging of the influence of the Nashville Bible School. We who have kept a watchful eye on our Alma Mater bring to our friends and schoolmates of the Nashville Bible School a message of hope and cheerful news for the future of the mother of schools in which the Bible is taught. The outlook for her future is most hopeful.

There are many ways by which we can render valuable service to our Alma Mater. She served us faithfully as a nursing mother when we needed her service, and now it is our privilege to widen her influence and increase her powers. The college issues a quarterly bulletin. We hope to make use of its columns as a medium of communication and dissemination of news. We need a substantial endowment. We can make donations to this fund. We can seek gifts from those who have means and bequests by wills. Yet the best plan is for people to do good with their means while they are living. In the future one of the programs during commencement will be rendered by the Alumni Association. It is our purpose to make the Alumni Association an active working force in coöperation with the trustees and faculty of the college. JOHN E. DUNN,
President of the Alumni Association.

Report of Silver Point Bible School for Negroes.

The following contributions have been made for the purpose of assisting the Bible School for negroes at Silver Point: Mr. and Mrs. David Lipscomb, Sr., $100; J. E. Acuff, Nashville, $3; cash, $383; Bible Union congregation, Latham, Tenn., $7; Cora M. Brooks, Kansas City, Mo., $5; Frank Jones, Nashville, $3; congregation at Lewisburg, Tenn., $25; W. B. London, Cornersville, Tenn., $5; congregation at Manchester, Tenn., $4.41; J. C. McQuiddy, Nashville, $10; W. T. Selley, Nashville, $5. Total, $550.41. Brother David Lipscomb, Jr., gave a horse that will be of much use to the school.

A few other congregations and individuals have indicated their wish to contribute, but have not yet been heard from. The colored brethren think they will be able to raise about two hundred dollars among themselves.

As recommended by the trustees, lots costing two hundred and seventy-five dollars were purchased, and one hundred and fifty dollars has been paid on same.

We need very badly at least four hundred dollars to complete work started. It has been decided to build the chapel of brick. The initial cost will be a little higher than a frame building, but it will be cheaper in the long run to have a substantial brick building. The material in the old chapel building (that was almost ready to fall down) will be used as far as practical in the girls' dormitory.

The brick, cement, gravel, and lime for the work contemplated will cost about four hundred dollars, delivered at Silver Point. The other material and the expense of putting the building up must be met, and any contributions to this most worthy cause will be greatly appreciated. The colored people will do all they can, but they have but little money, and need our help to place their Bible School on a firm financial basis where it can do a grand work in educating the youth of the negro race and fitting them as Christian workers among their people.

The trustees are as follows: White—J. S. Hammond, Sam Pittman, O. P. Barry, and A. M. Burton. Colored—Brethren Campbell, Womack, Black, Clay, and Keeble. A. M. Burton is treasurer.

The Booneville Debate.

BY W. H. OWEN.

According to previous announcement, the debate on instrumental music between N. B. Hardeman, of Henderson, Tenn., and D. A. Leak, of Columbus, Miss., began on June 13 and continued four days. For two days Brother Hardeman affirmed that such use of instrumental music in divine worship, and for the two remaining days Brother Hardeman affirmed that such use of instrumental music is sinful. Space will permit only a very brief statement of some of the arguments presented and the general impression made by the discussion.

The debate was an important event for Mississippi, first, because of the confidence the State Board people have in their representative, Elder Leak (they consider him among their strongest and ablest debaters), and, second, because the subject of instrumental music has received very little attention in that part of the country. I have found many honest people in the State who are willing to be taught on the subject and ready to accept the truth when they see it, but, never having heard the question discussed or had occasion to study it in the light of Bible teaching, consider instrumental music as a matter of expediency and almost a universal practice among all churches. For this reason the debate should be held in many places in Mississippi.

More than twenty preachers from six or seven States were present; and from the reports we had received through some of the society papers and from some of their leading men, we expected to find Elder Leak a very scholarly man and an able defender of their cause. While he is not a novice nor a man of insignificant ability, we will have to say that we were considerably disappointed. As a speaker, a scholar, a logician, and a debater, he fell far below our expectation. In the main he is gentlemanly and fair, but when hard pressed he will seek to gain advantage by misrepresentation. This he did several times during the debate, both with respect to his opponent's position or argument and to authorities quoted. The general impression made by the debate was good. Some of the sectarians are reported as saying that, while they believe in instrumental music, Leak failed to prove it by the Bible.

Elder Leak spent a great deal of his time showing that instruments of music were used in the Jewish worship—a thing that was not questioned at all. When, after much exhortation on the part of his opponent, he did undertake to show that they are allowed in Christian worship, he made the principal part of his fight on the meaning of the Greek word "psallo;" in fact, in his summary, he practically abandoned all other arguments and made his final stand on the proposition that "psallo" means to sing with an instrument. Brother Hardeman easily showed from the highest authority that, while in ancient or classic Greek the word carried the idea of instrumental accompaniment, it has no such meaning in New Testament Greek, and no respectable lexicographer so defines it. Let the reader judge as to the strength of a cause that must depend on the meaning of one Greek word with the best of the world's scholarship against it.

In his affirmative, Brother Hardeman, in a clear, logical, and convincing manner, set forth the definition and essentials of acceptable worship. He showed that instrumental music cannot be an act of faith; that it is an addition to God's law and a going beyond his decrees, and therefore sinful.

At the close of the discussion Brother Hardeman announced that six churches had requested that the debate be repeated with them, and asked Brother Leak if he would meet him at those six places. He answered in the affirmative. So far as I can learn, however, the "digressives" at these places do not seem to want the debate, and the general impression is that debating between Hardeman and Leak is over, especially so far as Mississippi and Henderson, Tenn., are concerned.

Strange, But Not Rare.

I relate the following incident, not because it is unusual, but rather because it is one of many that are constantly coming up. It was the Lord's day, and at the close of the meeting for the Lord's Supper, or, rather, just before its close, for we had not sung the usual closing hymn nor "pronounced the benediction." When the Supper had been served and the offering taken, a brother rose and said he had just a word. I sat down (for I had preached that day and had charge of the services) to see what the brother had to say. He said: "As the emperor returns to-day from the coronation ceremony at Kyoto, let us sing the national song to close with." He sat down, and I remained silent, in the meantime looking for a suitable song, for I intended to pass the suggestion over in silence and close as usual. A sister promptly rose to her feet and started the national song. The audience rose and joined in. They sang it twice, as the custom is; but I remained silent. When they had finished and sat down, I remained standing. I then spoke as follows: "I sometimes sing the national song of Japan when the occasion is only to honor the emperor. I sometimes also sing the national song of America, but not on an occasion like this. This meeting is not for the purpose of celebrating the emperor, but Christ; it is the meeting for the Lord's Supper; hence to close this meeting with the national song was a great mistake. For this reason I could not sing it with you." I then prayed that God might be merciful to our sins and forgive us.

As I said, this is only one instance of many of a similar nature that are coming up almost constantly. It takes no little courage and much patience to deal with such things. The most stubborn thing the gospel of Christ has to meet in Japan is this extreme nationalism that sometimes borders on to fanaticism. With many the emperor is their god, their supreme being.

Moving Pictures.

One of the young men came up to my room one morning to ask some questions. The first was: "Who was Jesus Christ?" The second was: "Why was it necessary for Christ to suffer and die on the cross to save us from sin?" I endeavored to explain both questions. After about an hour, he went away thinking.

In the afternoon a brother called and asked an explanation of the following questions: "Did two different authors write the first and second chapters of Genesis, and did Moses borrow these two stories and put them together? Or did Moses write these chapters himself?" We decided that Moses undoubtedly wrote both chapters. Another question was about the tree of knowledge of good and evil: "Was it a real tree?" We decided that if it was not a real tree, there was no means of knowing what it was. But since Adam was a real man and Eve was a real woman, the most natural way of thinking was to accept the tree also as a real tree and the serpent as a literal serpent. "If Adam had not sinned, would it have been necessary for Christ to die?" was another question. "Probably not," was our conclusion. But though reached, it is of but little value. We must deal with matters as they are, and not as they might have been.

Two little boys of one of our nearest neighbors in Louisville, Ky., send us fifty cents and ten cents. The father in sending it asks if I can tell him what these little amounts can do in some definite way. Just now I am having printed fifty thousand tracts for the great festival on May 5, at a cost of fifty yen or one yen per thousand. As fifty cents amounts to one yen, it will pay for just a thousand of these tracts, and the ten cents will pay for just two hundred of them. In this way these two little boys enabled us (and them) to preach on that day to twelve hundred people. No small crowd for two small boys to preach to.

"When Thou Prayest."

"But thou, when thou prayest, enter into thine inner chamber," said Jesus. The Greek word here translated "inner chamber" originally meant "treasure house." It would be good for some Christians to open the heavy iron doors of their safes and look upon the books and papers—the records of their wealth—and pray; some, to enter their granary and pray; some, to enter their bank vault and pray for the suffering, the needy, and the lost everywhere!

My Strawberries.

As they were sent me from Shorewood Farms, in Michigan, I have taken a special interest in them. About one year ago they were only the tiniest little seed in an envelope; now they constitute three rows across the garden. They are not much in rows now, however, for they have spread out till they almost cover the ground. The way strawberries have of spreading themselves is both interesting and suggestive. It is done by means of runners. These runners stretch out about a foot from the parent plant, then put down roots and form a new one. In course of a season one plant will in this way have at least a dozen children planted all round it. All, however, do not come out directly from the parent. The children also send out runners even to the third and fourth generations, so that the most remote plants may be quite a distance from home. In looking over them, I noticed that a misfortune had befallen one of the parent plants and it had died. Around the dead parent, though, there were four living children. In this way it saved itself from extinction and its work lived after it.

While looking at my strawberries I was thinking, and my thoughts ran something like this: This is the way God intends his churches to spread. Every church should put out runners and plant itself in the form of new churches in all the region round about; these, in turn, should push on to regions still further away; and so on till there is no more land to be occupied. Then there must also be a going back over the same ground to fill up the vacancies. Churches, like strawberry plants, must die sooner or later. They must live in their children. Not one of the churches planted in the first century is now in existence. The early scenes of the gospel have again become fields for missionary operations. Those of each generation that have the light must make it shine out to those of their own generation who have it not.

Another point of peculiar interest was that the young plants, while still connected back home by the "runner" cord, were at the same time putting out runners of their own. One parent, I noticed, had four young, sturdy children growing around it, all still connected back home. In like manner mission churches, while still receiving help, should be reaching out to help others. "To give is to live; to deny is to die."

Paul felt and wrote, "I am debtor to the Greeks and to the Barbarians, both to the wise and foolish;" but many modern preachers have no such sense of duty and no such unselfishness and broad vision. Judging from their utterances and actions, one is forced to conclude that they have altered the above quotation to "I am debtor to Americans only."

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. Hall

The Revival Season.

The Georgia forces are now in a big way sounding out the word of the Lord. Brother Flavil Hall has finally made a landing at Chickamauga, and we are expecting much to be done there. Brother Hugh A. Price, Jr., has just closed at Welcome Hill, and he and Brother Claus are together in a meeting near Moultrie. Brother Carter is in a tent meeting in Macon, and goes from there to Hardie's Chapel, Austell, and Liberty Hill. Brother Luton is in a very interesting revival with the South Pryor Street brethren, of this city. He baptized one there at the regular services on the first Lord's day in this month. Brother Clark, of Chattanooga, Tenn., is now in a meeting at Rockmart. The writer is now in a tent meeting at East Point. Brother Brumit, of Buchanan, will begin his protracted work by the time this reaches our readers. Good reports from all the meetings. Good reports come from the new congregation at Albany. Brother Larimore's meeting at Lafayette resulted in several baptisms and much good done otherwise. May the Lord strengthen us all.

Meeting at Chickamauga.

For two years I have been looking for a chance to hold a tent meeting at Chickamauga, Ga. The opportunity has at last come. We have Brother Fred M. Little's tent, and held our first service in it last night (July 6), though I had been preaching five days in the homes of the small number of disciples here.

The tent was shipped here from Ooltewah, Tenn., where Brother R. N. Moody had just closed a fine meeting, concerning which Brother Claud Neal writes as follows: "Brother Moody is a forcible speaker. Some of the people here heard the truth preached as never before. There were two confessions. Outsiders complimented the preaching very favorably." (I quote Brother Neal from memory.)

We had the tent shipped to Chickamauga before securing a place to put it, it always having been easy to find a place for a tent in other towns. But for about twenty-four hours it looked like we were going to fail here. The Crystal Springs Bleachery Company said they had decided not to allow any more tent meetings held on their property, and this seemed to be the decision of all the wealthy individual owners of real estate. The claim was that those who had before held tent meetings kept the people up too late at night, and they could not do good work, also that it was against the denominations of the town who had their houses of worship. But every one who had held a tent meeting here had taught and practiced the same things, in the effort to "get people saved," that the denominations of the town have always taught and practiced—viz., faith only, the direct operation of the Holy Spirit, and the "altar exercises." Nor was any one of them a "Holiness" of the unknown-tongue variety. If the "altar exercises" is the thing in the meetinghouse, why not in a tent? And if this is the most effective way to get people saved in a revival, how can the religious "workers" consistently leave the mourners as long as they linger at "the altar" for salvation? Good work in the bleachery and cotton mills is nothing to compare with the importance of getting people saved.

A Missionary Baptist preacher came to Chickamauga with a tent a few months ago; secured a place for his tent from the only man in town, besides the company and wealthy people above mentioned, who had property convenient for a meeting; was setting up his tent; but at this juncture somebody gave the information that the preacher "kept up so much fuss in his meetings and held on so late, even till four o'clock in the morning, sometimes, that it disturbed the people who stayed at home." Then the said company and wealthy citizens made an appeal to the man whose property the tent was on to have the preacher leave with his tent. In this they were successful. That preacher is one of the Billy Sunday sort and succeeds in stirring the emotions of the people and making them think they have "got religion" where other preachers fail, that's all. The leaders of the town, though affiliating in religious work, have no confidence in such delusive doctrine and practice, but they will tolerate it in others, less successful, at the houses of worship, because these are places of pride and fashion. Thinking people can see something delusive and spasmodic in the methods of the revivalist who stirs the passions, feelings, and emotions of the people and calls this "salvation," whether it be in a house or a tent.

But, without any guile, in talking with the president of the above company and with the man on whose property the foregoing preacher was putting up his tent, but had to take it down, we have, in much gladness, succeeded in securing permission to set up our tent at the same place, and we hope to continue the meeting for some weeks.

The Nashville Bible School.

It is now time for fathers and mothers to consider the question, "To what school shall we send our boys and girls this fall?" Too, there are young men and young ladies who will pay their own way, hence are asking the question: "To what school shall I go?" I want to help you answer this question to your best advantage.

It was my pleasure to be in the Nashville (Tenn.) Bible School for five years. It has also been my pleasure to be with the student body and faculty in two revivals since graduating there in 1906. I feel safe in saying: I know the school, and can recommend it to you in the strongest terms. There you will find the courses of instruction that meet the demands of the day and the needs of the boys and girls of this age. Too, you will find a faculty which is competent, experienced, successful, interested, and consecrated, and will spare no pains and sacrifices in doing their very best in helping your boys and girls to abundantly prepare themselves to grapple with the stern realities of life. The buildings, equipments, laboratories, etc., are modern, convenient, and practical. And the location cannot be excelled: it is inspiring, encouraging, healthful, and beautiful. I have known Brother Boles, the president, and his splendid wife, for a number of years. To say they are the right persons in the right place is putting it mildly. They love their work, and, with their splendid faculty, will send your boys and girls from their great institution thoroughly prepared for the battles of life.

The literary work done in this institution is standard—fully accredited by the State Normals, University of Tennessee, and other universities of the South. The faculty consists of sixteen experienced teachers. It maintains eighteen departments—Bible, Greek, Latin, English, Philosophy, Mathematics, Natural and Physical Sciences, History, Modern Languages, Expression, Voice, Music, Art, Sight Singing, Domestic Science, Business, and Primary and Academic Departments. It does not matter what grade you are in, you can enter the Nashville Bible School and find classes to suit you.

If there ever was an age in the world's history when education counts, this is the age. A good education is one of the greatest investments you can have. If fuller information you would like to have of this institution, write Prof. H. Leo Boles, Nashville Bible School, Nashville Tenn., and he will give it to you.

Some Commands Impressed.

BY E. A. E.

1. Giving diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.

We all know that not only preachers, elders, and other teachers, but all Christians and all congregations of Christians, are commanded by the Lord, and are, therefore, bound to both God and men, to walk worthily of the holy calling wherewith they are called "with all lowliness and meekness, with long-suffering, forbearing one another in love," and to give "diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." "Lowliness," "meekness," "long-suffering," "forbearing one another in love," and keeping "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" are plain and direct commands of God. These commands must be obeyed as much so as the ones to believe in Christ, to repent, to be baptized, and to worship in the public assembly "as it is written." A failure to cultivate these graces and to obey these commands is disobedience to God, a lack of faith in Christ, and ruinous to the church. Here, as elsewhere, faith without works is dead. The sad lack, if not an entire destitution, of "lowliness," "meekness," "long-suffering," "forbearing one another in love," has done as much or more in late years to disturb the peace and to destroy the unity of the church in many places as all other wrong things put together; because where there is a lack of these qualities of heart and this obedience, there are vanity, self-esteem, self-assurance, self-seeking, pride of opinion, ambition for titles and chief seats and preferment, and other vile things.

2. The commandment of God to avoid certain questions is as authoritative and essential as to preach the word. Again, to fail to do this is disobedience to God, and to refuse to do so is rebellion. These questions are specified—foolish and ignorant questionings, untaught questions, unrevealed things, questions about the law, and genealogies, vain babblings, old wives' fables, human opinions and speculations, etc. The command of God to hold all such scruples and opinions to oneself must be obeyed. To fail or refuse to do this destroys the unity and peace of the church. Unity and peace can never come through the opinions, speculations, scruples, hobbies, parties, sects, denominations, and vainglory of men.

3. God commands the church to "mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to" the teaching of Christ, learned through his apostles, and to "turn away from them." This command must be obeyed, as much so as all others, and however unpleasant it is to the flesh to do it. God declares that all such characters "serve not our Lord Christ, but their own belly; and by their smooth and fair speech they beguile the hearts of the innocent." (Rom. 16: 17, 18.) "The innocent" are not familiar with, and are unsuspecting of, the subtle and insinuating evils of all these questions which God commands all to avoid; they are deceived to think "smooth and fair speech" is good preaching, whether the truth or not, for they do not know, while some are more captivated by vain speculations than the plain gospel.

Just here let us seriously study the following declaration of Jesus:

He that speaketh from himself seeketh his own glory; but he that seeketh the glory of him that sent him, the same is true, and no unrighteousness is in him. (John 7: 18; see verses 16, 17.)

What is it to speak from oneself? It is to speak one's own opinions, theories, speculations, and teaching. "He that speaketh from himself"—whose theories and teaching originated with, and is propagated by, himself or his party or sect—"seeketh his own glory." Every man who teaches these things seeks not the glory of God, but his own glory. He who teaches only and all the will of God in the love of the truth seeks God's glory. This marks the great difference between men. There are "things which have indeed a show of wisdom in will worship, and humility, and severity to the body" (Col. 2: 23); through these some seek their own glory. Others with no pretensions to learning, wisdom, humility, and superior piety go straightforward in implicit submission to God, preaching and practicing his word only. These are the truly wise, humble, meek, and submissive ones, who seek God's glory. All theories, notions, opinions, and speculations of men, however pleasing and plausible, when pressed upon others, injure the church and dishonor God. All who love and honor God and seek his glory only avoid all these things. This is the standard or test, erected or set by the Lord, by which all can tell who seek their own glory or the glory of God and good of men.

BROTHER BILLINGSLEY'S CONFESSION OF "ANOTHER MISTAKE."

I heartily commend Brother Billingsley's article, and especially his determination to know nothing except Christ, and him crucified. I also commend that which Brother Chessor has said in regard to this.

Brother Billingsley will allow me to make some general observations based on his confession and determination.

Brother Billingsley is a good man, a pleasant and interesting speaker, and reads much of certain literature. But for his own confession and determination, many would never have suspected but that he had always sought first the greatest good of men and the glory of God. He reveals in his confession that which, it is feared, moves many hearts—an ambition primarily to glorify oneself, in one way or another, and secondarily to glorify God (!) by reflecting upon him the glory of oneself. It may be, one is unconscious of this primary ambition or has been deceived to think it is right. Brother Billingsley confesses that he has been moved by the ambition to become a popular lecturer on popular moral subjects, or words to that effect. I know that for this reason he has failed to satisfy many thoughtful, truth-loving, and truth-seeking brethren in not a few places. I have heard him apologize for quoting so much poetry. It is not wrong to quote either poetry or prose. Paul quoted poetry when it was applicable. But—ah!—it was not Paul's ambition to appear "literary," learned, philosophic, or to be a moral lecturer and popular platform speaker. The man who attempts to shine makes a flash. Paul shone out upon the world, and still shines, a learned and wise and good man, all because he stood only in the light of the gospel and sought only the glory of God. He served God, which means, not doing a few moral and religious things which God commands, but working in God's plan, according to God's directions, to carry out God's purpose to save mankind, that God's will may be done on earth as it is in heaven. He says, "whose I am and whom I serve." He preached not himself, but Christ Jesus as Lord, and himself a servant for Christ's sake. Time and again I have tried to emphasize the fact that Paul's "one thing" in Phil. 3—his sole ambition, his high and holy aim—was, not to be a great literary character, a great lecturer, a great orator, a great polemic or debater, a great commentator, a great teacher of a great school, a great editor, but a great Christian, if by any means he might "attain unto the resurrection from the dead." For this "one thing" he let the dead past bury its dead; he forgot the things which were behind and stretched forward to things which were before, and pressed on "toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." His being a preacher—a true and faithful and mighty preacher of the simple and powerful gospel—came out of his being, sincerely and earnestly and first of all, a Christian. Being a Christian, he was without pretense or show of piety, humble, meek, devout, righteous, and godly. Being a Christian, he wronged no man, defrauded no man, corrupted no man, took advantage of no man (2 Cor. 7: 2), never in any way turned godliness into a way of gain, waived his personal rights, became all things to all men that he might save some, and had "anxiety for all the churches"—sought the unity and peace and greatest spiritual development of all the churches. He sought no church of which to be "the pastor" or even "the regular minister."

When the secrets of all hearts are revealed, how many will appear as having made saving souls, the good of the churches, and the glory of God secondary considerations, if considerations at all? How many will appear as serving the creature rather than the Creator; being ambitious to be considered literary and wise; great pulpit orators, great debaters, great evangelists, great reformers, great writers of books; or desirous of attracting attention by being sensational and doing strange and odd things? In every meeting which some preachers hold something out of the ordinary or something wonderful is done—that is, according to their reports. With some, every convert made under their preaching is a "glorious" one, every Sunday where they preach is a "glorious" day, and there is glory all around about them and all they do. After they have been glorified, if there is any glory left, God can have it; so they add, "Unto God be all the glory."

SECRET PRAYER IN PUBLIC PLACES.

Why do some offer secret prayers in public places? Jesus says when you pray, enter the closet and close the door. One G. Campbell Morgan, of London, ends some of his writings with a printed prayer. Some young preachers—only a few yet—have caught this. Let us not strain at piety, be overmuch righteous, or make a show of devoutness. Why should frail, fallible, weak, vain, proud mortals be so desirous of appearing religious as to print private prayers? Are their prayers inspired, or even better than the tens of thousands which go up from the closets of the purest and most godly men and women of earth? Or must they make prayers for all the rest of mankind? To put it mildly, recording these prayers cannot come from a deeper piety, truer and more genuine humility, or greater learning than all other Christians have.

Let us not imitate a man's vanity and other faults, but his virtues. Let us not try to be great, except in God's way; the servant of all is the greatest of all. A brother told me on the street in Nashville the other day that he heard a young preacher a few Sundays before that emphasizing one of my faults by imitating it. The preacher quoted what he had heard me say about "three-story sermons"—one before prayer, one after prayer, and one after the invitation song—and justified himself in preaching so many by that which he had seen me do. Sermons warm from the heart to the hearts of the people in the love of truth and for the salvation of souls cannot be delivered always in measured sentences, rounded and numbered periods, and of just twenty and one-half minutes in length; but I certainly would have no one make my mistakes his precedent. Of course, I should avoid such mistakes myself, since I would have no one follow them.

ABOUT ENCOURAGING YOUNG PREACHERS.

A young preacher said to me recently that he had heard that I do not like young preachers. I did not ask who told him this; but I named some worthy, earnest, good young preachers, and asked if he had ever heard them say such a thing. He said, "No." Then I told him this is a great mistake; that I like all young preachers and all young Christians, all old preachers and old Christians, and I do not dislike sinners, but that the sins of sinners and the ways of some preachers and other church members I could not like; that these ways in some young preachers I had sought in love for them and the truth to correct, and in this way had incurred their displeasure and the displeasure of a few of their relatives. Some young preachers, as well as some older ones and some who are not preachers, think of themselves more highly than they should; some seem to seek titles of some sort, if they do speak against "Rev.," "D.D.," and some others; some seem to desire to form a class unto themselves; some are lacking in the principles of industry, economy, honesty, integrity, and other Christian virtues; some warp the truth, if they do not do worse; some fail to pay just debts and to meet other obligations; and some actually defraud others. I am glad that I do not like, but that I abominate, such unrighteous and unholy ways, while in all earnestness and sincerity I seek to save the wrongdoer from them. The word of God condemns all dishonesty, all fraud, pride, vanity, egotism, worldly and selfish ambitions, in preachers as much so as in all others. I have wondered what thoughts must fill some preachers' hearts while they are preaching to others on humility, honesty, meekness, speaking every man truth with his neighbor, etc.; or do they ever preach on such themes? Do they preach the whole counsel of God on all duties, or do they preach only on favorite themes and such things as they have already done?

Brother Billingsley and all others can preach and must preach in preaching Christ, and him crucified, on all things men and women ought to know and to do and to be. His confession reveals another mistake, which many make—namely, that preaching the gospel is one thing, and teaching honesty, integrity, uprightness, purity of life, submitting to the powers that be, rendering to all their dues, performing all duties of husbands and wives, parents and children, neighbors and friends, all the Bible says on marriage and divorce, etc., is another and quite a different thing. But all that God wants men and women to be in all conditions and relationships in life is in the gospel. Of course, all this can be preached in a light, sensational, and popular way, as a lecture, or in the dignity, seriousness, and strength of the word of God. All must be preached and taught otherwise with all the power of the gospel and in the name and spirit of Jesus Christ.

With all other reading, let us read and study and preach the word of God.

A sad thing is true of almost all who begin to speculate, to desire to be sensational, to seek titles and notoriety and their own glory, to aspire to become great evangelists or debaters or reformers—they never return to the simple gospel. Some find that which they seek among the denominations or start a denomination of their own.

"The Peace of God."

BY M. C. K.

There is a well-written and interesting little book bearing the significant title, "Peace, Perfect Peace," by F. B. Meyer, of London, England. With the exception of a few minor points, its four brief chapters are a treasure indeed, and they not only impress the thoughtful reader with the inestimable value of the peace which Christ alone can give to men, but they emphasize the utter failure of men to find genuine peace anywhere else. At a time when cruel and bloody war rages in so many parts of the earth, and the peace which man can give is found to be so evanescent, unsatisfying, and unreal, it is well to think of that peace which alone deserves the name.

Jesus distinctly says: "My peace I give unto you; not as the world giveth, give I unto you." (John 14: 27.) And Paul says: "In nothing be anxious; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God. And the peace of God, which passeth all understanding, shall guard your hearts and your thoughts in Christ Jesus." (Phil. 4: 6, 7.) And again he says: "Let the peace of Christ rule in your hearts, to the which also ye were called in one body." (Col. 3: 15.)

In order to emphasize this genuine peace, the peace which Christ gives and which is called "the peace of God"—this peace which, ocean-wide, is so vast that it passes the human understanding—we quote some extracts from Mr. Meyer's book as follows:

There were many obstacles to our peace, but they have been entirely met and put out of the way. God's holy justice, which would pursue us with its drawn sword, can say nothing against us, because it has been more vindicated in the death of the Son of God than it could have been in the perdition of myriads of worlds. The broken law, which might press its claims, is silenced by the full and complete satisfaction rendered it in the obedience and death of the Lawgiver himself. Conscience even, with its long and bitter record of repeated sin, feels able to appropriate forgiveness without scruple or alarm; because it understands that God can be just, and yet justify the believer in Jesus. "Who is he that condemneth? It is Christ that died, yea rather that is risen again, who is even at the right hand of God, who also maketh intercession for us." (Pages 15, 16.)

Again, he says:

"In me ye shall have peace." 'Twas our Savior who said those words. Let us abide in him. Let us live in him. Let us walk in him. Let us make of him the secret place unto which we may continually resort. And as we are joined to him, in the intimacy of deepest union, the peace that fills his heart, like a Pacific Ocean, shall begin to flow into ours, until they are filled with the very fullness of God; and the peace of God, like a dove, with fluttering wings, shall settle down upon our hearts, and make them its home for evermore. (Page 27.)

Pointing to the trials, the conflicts, and sometimes the suffering, which lead to "the peace of God," he further says:

The way of the cross, rightly borne, is the only way to the everlasting light. The path that threads the Garden of Gethsemane, and climbs over the Hill of Calvary, alone conducts us to the visions of the Easter morning and the glories of the Ascension Mount. If we will not drink of his cup, or be baptized with his baptism, or fill up that which is behind of his sufferings, we cannot expect to share in the joys of his espousals and the ecstasy of his triumph. But if these conditions are fulfilled, we shall not miss one note in the everlasting song, one element in the bliss that is possible to men. (Page 47.)

That which the world calls peace is, after all, not peace. It is not worthy of the name. Hence, when Christ said to his disciples, "My peace I give unto you," he immediately added: "Not as the world giveth, give I unto you." Let us thank God that there is a peace far above that which the world gives. Nations are sometimes said to be at peace with one another; but, as a rule, this means nothing more than a suspension of actual hostilities until some excuse is found for entering into carnal warfare, and then they are ready to ruthlessly deal to each other death at the cannon's mouth. Such a suspension of hostilities is unworthy of the name of peace. But when men surrender to God, and Christ, with his sublime doctrine of sweet forgiveness and the nonresentment of evil, is enthroned in their hearts, then they not only love and would not kill each other, but rather they would die for each other. This is "the peace of God which passeth all understanding;" and, like a faithful sentinel at his post of duty, it "guards our hearts and our thoughts in Christ Jesus." May this peace not only "rule in our hearts," but may it be extended farther and farther over the earth.

Some Reflections.

BY J. C. M'QUIDDY.

On Saturday, July 15, I boarded the "Dixie Flyer" for South Pittsburg, Tenn. The run to Bridgeport, Ala., was made in about three hours and twenty minutes. Arriving at South Pittsburg, about the first thing I heard was that two children had fallen from a sleeping porch, a distance of about twenty feet, and were so seriously injured that they were not expected to live. Both were little girls, one six and the other three years old. These were the only children in a happy home, the home of Dr. Ferguson. Lucile, the older, lived until ten o'clock, just about five hours after the accident occurred. In this very unexpected and sad accident is an important lesson for us all. The little girls were playing happily together, with no thought of danger, when, like a flash of the lightning, a break of the wave, they both passed from a happy consciousness to an unconscious condition. The younger rallied, regained consciousness, and is spared to be the light and joy of a devoted father and an affectionate mother. The other lingered a few hours on the borderland and then passed away from this life of joy and sorrow, sunshine and shadow, success and failure, into the glory light of heaven. To me such a death is most triumphant. Just a few hours of unconscious suffering and then came to Lucile the eternal years of happiness with God; "for of such is the kingdom of heaven." Her spirit, freed from the shackles of the body, sped away to the throne of God to dwell forever in undisturbed happiness. Such a translation is the most glorious moment of life. Without the bitter disappointments and failures, without the rugged discipline of life, and without excruciating sorrow and painful sickness, she is transplanted to bud, bloom, and grow in the heavenly Eden above.

There is no death! What seems so is transition.
This life of mortal breath
Is but a suburb of the life Elysian,
Whose portal we call death.

Such a death should impress upon us all the uncertainty of life and the certainty of death. Death will come as a thief in the night. If we are wise, we will always be ready. The way to be ready and watching is to be about the Master's business.

On Sunday morning, at ten o'clock, I met with the church. A brief time was devoted to the study and teaching of a portion of God's word. The Bible school was not large. The church at South Pittsburg is not strong. At eleven o'clock I delivered a brief discourse to a small but attentive crowd. With a systematic, determined, and enthusiastic effort, more interest should be aroused in teaching the Bible and in the salvation of souls. The church remembers very kindly Brother Northcut, who recently conducted their protracted meeting. Brother Charles Holder preaches monthly for this church and is appreciated. The great need of the hour is consistent, Christian living. A consistent, Christian life is perfectly irresistible. It tenderly woos and draws people to Christ. Along with gospel preaching we must have Christian living. Humble, devout, and consistent Christians are our dear Lord's best interpreters. I shall pray for greater achievement on the part of this church. May God lead it in the way of life everlasting. Its light is very much needed, as the people of South Pittsburg are not very devoted to the service of God. I would not, however, leave the impression that there are no zealous Christians in South Pittsburg. A number appear to be much in earnest and are laboring to increase the zeal and piety of others.

On Monday night following I preached to a hastily assembled crowd at Pikeville. At 4 P.M. I promised the brethren I would preach. By eight o'clock they had assembled considerably over a hundred people. This of itself bespeaks the zeal and earnestness of the brethren. I was delighted with the reception given me. They have a splendid new brick house. Brother Price Billingsley, who held a meeting for them not very long ago, is held in high esteem by the church. A number spoke to me of the most excellent preaching he did. The church appeared to be deeply in earnest. May its knowledge and zeal grow.

Many members in both the above-mentioned churches subscribed to the Gospel Advocate. They are not like the brother whom I telephoned. He had nothing but criticism for our efforts. He found fault with the teaching of Brother Elam in the Quarterlies. In the church over which he is bishop they do not use literature. He informed me that they just take the Bible, but from his admission I am sure they do not follow the Bible. When I inquired if the church did any mission work, he replied that the church was taking care of itself. I replied that the engine that would pull only its own weight was worthless and would be ditched by the officials. "The light that shines the brightest at home reaches the farthest away." Too many churches are dying while simply trying to save themselves. Some people are so busy criticizing their brethren that they do not find time to do the will of the Lord. Churches should let their light shine. No, this brother does not take the Bible and follow it. The Bible commands: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Paul said of the church at Thessalonica: "For from you hath sounded forth the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith to Godward is gone forth; so that we need not to speak anything." (1 Thess. 1: 9.) The faith of the Roman church "is proclaimed throughout the whole world." It is not enough to criticize the method of teaching of others, while we labor to bind our own method on the consciences of our brethren. The Lord commands us to teach, but the Holy Spirit does not reveal any method of teaching to the exclusion of other methods. When God has not revealed a method, he demands that we exercise our judgment in finding and developing the most efficient method of teaching. May the Lord lead us all into the full light of the truth and into greater activity and usefulness.

The Outlook Is Hopeful.

I have just recently made a visit in a section of the country where the number of members of the church of Christ is small and where the circulation of the Gospel Advocate is very limited. I was out of the city for only a few days, but visited two congregations and found a goodly number who were glad to subscribe to the Gospel Advocate. One thing is very encouraging to me in the work of securing subscriptions, and that is to note the readiness with which one will subscribe who has formerly read the paper. It has ever been so. If the preachers generally would make an effort to induce people to read good, religious papers, the circulation of religious journals would be greatly increased. While many reasons might be given why preachers should encourage the circulation of religious weeklies, I will just give one out of the many. The religious weekly is a partner and helper of the preacher in his work. The paper is continually creating a demand for the preacher in his work. People who read a first-class religious paper are more active in the work and read the Bible more than those who do not. Hence no preacher can afford not to help circulate a first-class paper in his field of labor. The preachers and the Gospel Advocate should be fellow-laborers together in the great work of preaching and advocating the gospel of Christ. We are calling for volunteers among the preachers.

We are managing, publishing, and helping to edit the Gospel Advocate, not for any earthly consideration, but for the good we may do in winning souls to Christ. While we do not get money out of it, we do get satisfaction and joy out of such work. Our greatest happiness comes from doing good. When we earnestly and faithfully teach the truth, we lead people to Christ. We rejoice to have the coöperation of so many in this work, and for their encouragement we are pleased to say that the Gospel Advocate is on rising ground. The receipts are much larger than they were at this time last year. But while this is true, much more is needed, as our expenses are much heavier. The demands made on us are much greater than our present income will enable us to meet.

Here is a letter that speaks for itself: "I would be glad for you to continue the Gospel Advocate, but as I am getting old and have not the money, will have to stop taking it." I like the frankness and honesty of this dear old brother. He wants the paper, is old and out of money; so he must stop taking it, as he is not able to pay. He is too honest to read it, leaving us to think he will pay, when he does not expect to be able. Poverty is very trying, but honesty is a virtue that is always rewarded. The paper will be cheerfully continued to his address for another year.

We do not want our friends and workers to discontinue their efforts. The work must go forward to still greater victory. We want more and more active volunteers. Send in your name as a volunteer to-day.

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

A Deadly Parallel.

The Western Recorder is responsible for the following parallel:

BIBLE BAPTISM.

"And Jesus, when he was baptized, went up straight-way out of the water," etc. (Matt. 3: 16.)

"And John also was baptizing in Ænon near to Salim, because there was much water there; and they came, and were baptized." (John 3: 23.)

"And he commanded the chariot to stand still: and they went down both into the water, both Philip and the eunuch; and he baptized him. And when they were come up out of the water," etc. (Acts 8: 38, 39.)

"Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life." (Rom. 6: 4.)

"Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." (Col. 2: 12.)

PITCHER BAPTISM.

And Jesus, leaving John the Baptist on the bank, went into the Jordan, and John took a pitcher and poured some water on his head, etc.

And John was also baptizing in Ænon near to Salim, because there was a pitcher and some water there.

And the eunuch went down into the water while Philip stood on the bank, and the eunuch came up out of the water, though he was not under the water.

Therefore we are buried with him by pouring into death, according to imaginary pictures in the catacombs.

Poured with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen, though not buried in a liquid grave.

Watch and Pray.

This is to be a summer and fall of great political excitement. The whole nation will be engaged in a strenuous campaign, and from President down to township officers hundreds of thousands of men will be running for office. It will not be a time for abating religious earnestness. The very safety of our nation rests upon its Christian citizenship. Our country needs to be kept on a basis of faith and prayer and Christian integrity. There was never a time when a pervading revival spirit was more needed. Let Christian people not forget to watch and pray.—Herald and Presbyterian.

Christians should ever be watchful and prayerful, but there is special need for devotion in the perilous times through which we are now passing. With war very seriously threatened between the United States and Mexico, with the war in Europe, and with the election of a President and many other offices to be filled, we should not neglect to ask God to give us the strength that we need to conquer the temptations that surround us. We should have the courage to do right regardless of the consequences. We should not fail to cultivate those graces that characterize the religion of Christ.

Is Ours a Christian Nation?

The above question should stimulate our readers to very serious thought. All reflecting people must concede that our government is not run by Christians. While some reflect unfavorably on Christians for the conduct of our government, the reflection is an unjust one. The following is clipped from the Journal and Messenger:

In his book entitled "Kingdom Preparedness," Dr. Bruce Kinney asks the question: "Is ours a Christian nation?" And he argues that it is, by citing several of the charters issued by British sovereigns to those about to migrate to and settle in this Western land. It is notable, however, that though the word "Christian" is used several times and God is appealed to in several instances, the name of Christ, or Jesus, is used only in the Massachusetts and the Connecticut charters. In all other instances it is simply a recognition of God and the undefined "Christian religion." It may be said that ours is a deistic nation, but it cannot be said truly that it is a Christian nation. Dr. Kinney himself admits that the "great bulk of the voters" are not Christians, and there are only six States in which fifty per cent of the population belongs to any religious body whatever. Of the whole nation, only 39.1 per cent belongs to any religious body.

Though he greatly desires to reckon ours as a Christian nation, Dr. Kinney admits that it is not such. He says: "No country can be really Christian when more than sixty per cent of its population makes no profession of any kind of religion, and when thousands of others are infants who have no influence on the government at all. It is a well-known fact, also, that man for man the one who is not a member of an evangelical church has a larger influence on politics than one who is. This is accounted for by two reasons: there is a tendency on the part of good people (?) to avoid the nasty pool of politics, and the other kind will stoop to measures that a really good man cannot utilize." All this is too true. It is to be greatly regretted that, in a country boasting of its high moral and religious character, the political machinery is largely in the hands of men who are not only non-Christian, but who are not reckoned among the truly religious forces of the republic.

It is also too true that Christians in politics too often ignore and trample upon the religion of Christ.

Must Accept the Whole Bible.

The whole Bible is one. Made up of many books, these books are closely coordinated. If we accept one, we must accept all. To reject one is to reject all. If we only accept that which coincides with our reason, we do not accept any part as the word of God. We are walking by sight, and not by faith. If we believe with all the heart that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, we must believe that the whale swallowed Jonah. Christ indorsed the fish story. The man who cannot believe that God could make a fish large enough to swallow a man and then keep the man alive in the fish does not believe that Christ was conceived of the Holy Spirit and born of the Virgin Mary. Neither does he believe that God spoke worlds into being and that he created man out of the dust of the ground. The man who believes with all his heart that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God, believes all the Bible from the first of Genesis to the last "amen" in Revelation. J. Ambrose Dunkel, of Saginaw, Mich., in a recent sermon, said correctly and emphatically:

The time has come for an end to the quibbling over the word of God. The man who takes and believes a part of the Bible, or casts other parts into the rubbish heap as allegory or legend, is not honest. I believe the story of Jonah is a fact, not a myth, not an allegory. If it is a mere legend, we have no assurance that the rest of the Bible is true.

The man who cuts out part of the word of God is doomed to failure. He may be brilliant, he may have the power to attract and charm by his eloquence; but if he does not speak as do the oracles of God, his greatness will fade away in a night, as did Jonah's gourd vine. The greatest and most useful preacher is the one who the most faithfully preaches the word of God. Whenever men outgrow the Bible, they outgrow their usefulness. The preacher who would destroy his usefulness can easily do so by caviling at the word of God.

W. H. Carter will begin a meeting near Camden, Tenn., on the third Lord's day in August.

C. E. Wooldridge will begin a series of meetings with the Wells Hill (Tenn.) brethren next Sunday.

Uncle David Lipscomb is in a weakened condition, but we are thankful to say he is not suffering physically.

From Sarah Andrews, Tokyo, Japan: "I acknowledge with sincere appreciation the receipt of seven dollars sent through the Gospel Advocate."

From Fred L. Wallace, McMinnville, Tenn.: "Our meeting at Piney, Van Buren County, lasted ten days. During this time two were baptized."

James A. Allen, with the assistance of S. F. Morrow and other white brethren, is conducting a tent meeting for the negroes at the Kayne Avenue mission, this city.

C. M. Pullias closed a meeting of ten days' duration at Decherd, Tenn. Fine interest was manifested and four persons were baptized. He is now at Smyrna, Tenn.

Brother Kurfees writes from Winston-Salem, N. C.: "Rain! Rain!! Rain!!!"

Same here, Brother Kurfees. Think of Noah and cheer up.

We rejoice to report that J. D. Floyd, of Flat Creek, Tenn., is slowly gaining strength after a serious illness. He will not be able to preach for some time. May the Lord bless him.

T. B. Larimore, of Nashville, will begin his seventeenth annual meeting at Hurricane Mills, Tenn., on July 30 and close it on August 6. Services will begin promptly at 11 A.M. and 5 P.M. each Sunday, 10 A.M. and 5 P.M. each week day. Everybody is cordially invited.

T. Q. Martin came to see us Saturday. He had just closed a splendid meeting at Cookeville, Tenn., in which there were sixteen baptisms. Brother Martin preached for the Twelfth Avenue Church, this city, Sunday. He will begin a meeting next Sunday for the Liberty Valley Church, at Belfast, Tenn.

Alabama Christian College has an opening for a teacher in the college department; preacher preferred. There is also a proposition to make a teacher of bookkeeping and stenography. Hal P. McDonald has been elected president of this institution for a term of five years. We wish for him and the school great success.

From Ed S. Duncan, Mount Pleasant, Texas, July 29: "I have just closed a two-weeks' meeting with the Dudley Avenue church of Christ, Texarkana, Ark., with six added to the congregation. This meeting was my sixth meeting there, and was hindered much by my being sick. I am now at home, helpless. The doctors say I have gallstones and hold out little hope for me. Pray for me and my family, brethren. God bless the faithful."

H. J. Miller, of Bowling Green, Ky., sends us a clipping from the Warren County Courier containing a report of the second annual meeting of the Potter Orphans' Home, held on the grounds on Wednesday, July 12. The meeting was very enthusiastic and encouraging, fully two hundred visitors being present from Tennessee and Kentucky. There are at present twenty-nine charges in the home. Brother and Sister J. L. Hines take care of them. This Home was established through the munificence of Brother and Sister C. C. Potter.

From W. T. Beasley, Belleview, Tenn., July 22: "On the third Lord's day in this month I began a series of meetings at Cedar Grove, in Benton County, which continued, with services day and night, until the following Friday night, with one confession and baptism. This meeting should have continued longer. I go from this place to New Lasea, Maury County, to begin a meeting to-morrow, to continue over two Lord's days. From this point I go to Granite, Okla., and I expect to spend the month of August in Oklahoma. Any one wishing to write me can address me at Granite."

From C. S. Austin, Henry, Tenn., July 17: "I have just recently been in a meeting with the Oak Grove congregation, seven miles east of Fulton. The meeting continued eight days. There were no additions to the church. We had splendid audiences and reasonably good interest. We made a special effort to teach church members their duty. I preached one discourse on the Lord's Supper and one on the contribution. On the last Sunday of the meeting nearly every member of the congregation was present to break bread and the offering was nearly fifty dollars. I am sure that good was done in this way."

A. O. Colley writes from Fort Worth, Texas: "On the fifth Lord's day in this month I am to begin a meeting at Thorp Spring. I have promised to stay three weeks. To those who wish to camp and take an outing I wish to say that the spring lot or park will be an ideal place. Let all who desire to camp arrange to be with us. Let us have a good meeting and enjoy ourselves at the same time. The church and the school are planning for great things. Let all join in with them to make this session a record breaker. Let any one interested in the meeting or the school, place to camp, etc., write Carl A. Gardner, Thorp Spring, Texas."

John E. Dunn labored in Port Arthur, Texas, from May 24 to June 10, and at Beaumont, Texas, from June 11 to June 28, doing the work of an evangelist. In the two meetings there were twenty-four baptisms, restorations, and confessions of faults. Brother O. M. Reynolds, of Memphis, Texas, was colaborer with Brother Dunn in this work. Brethren Dunn and Reynolds were happy over their work at Beaumont and Port Arthur. They separated on the morning of June 29. Brother Reynolds went to Amarillo, Texas, and Brother Dunn went to Pilot Grove, Texas, to begin meetings on July 2. Word comes to us that Brother Dunn is preaching the old Jerusalem gospel with effect at Pilot Grove. One man confessed faith in Christ and was baptized on the second day of the meeting. Brother Dunn says O. M. Reynolds is one of God's noble young men—pure, clean, cautious, earnest, zealous, spiritual-minded, and withal a sweet singer in Israel.

From A. G. Freed, Henderson, Tenn., July 20: "The meeting at Marietta, Miss., closed at the water on July 19, after eleven days. Notwithstanding the rains, the meeting grew in interest and attendance until the close. There were five confessions the last service. I had to close in the midst of intense interest to meet other promises. There were, in all, seventeen baptisms and one reclaimed. Three of these were from the Methodists and two from the Baptists. I made my home with A. C. Cox. He and Sister Cox know how to treat the preacher. The church at that place is active, and they are planning greater things for the coming year. There have been forty-five baptisms since the Pigue debate there. Let all know that R. H. Pigue has refused to repeat the debate for publication as he agreed to before a large audience on the last day of the discussion. He does not propose for the 'stuff' he uses in debate to go in print. The interest in the coming session of our school, opening on September 6, is good. Write for catalogue."

The Boy Deserves the Best.

Will he look back from the vantage point of thirty and feel that you were a wise parent in the selection of a school for him, or will he think that if you had given his case more careful attention you would have placed him in a school where he would have received better training?

The thoughtful, considerate parent feels that the school to which he sends his son must be equipped and its faculty chosen with the primary end of training the boy to become a man—to teach true Christian faith, to develop manly independence and self-confidence, to inspire high ideals of life and service, to strengthen and develop mind and body alike.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, of Fayetteville, Tenn., which has been built up around the Christian character and wholesome, inspiring personality of Robert K. Morgan, who has been principal for twenty-five years. Graduating from the Webb School, Bellbuckle, Tenn., and Vanderbilt University, Mr. Morgan has devoted his life to the training of boys. He is the man to train your boy. The close, personal instruction and association with clean, high-minded men will help him wonderfully. A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school.

Spruce Pine, July 17.—I have just closed a short meeting at Williams' Schoolhouse, three miles east of this place. Six made the good confession and were baptized. Five of the number came out from the Methodists.

J. H. STONE.

Arkansas.

Waldo, July 17.—My meeting at Union Ridge closed last Wednesday night, with seven baptized and one restored. Five of these were young men. Old Brother E. N. George was with me part of the time, and enjoyed the meeting so much. His work is nearly done. I am now at Hickory Ridge, in Columbia County. Crowds and attention good. I go to Bernie, Mo., next.

J. H. CURRY.

Colorado.

Nederland, July 14.—So far as I know, I am the only member of the church of Christ at this place. Nederland is a mining town located near the top of the great Rocky Mountain range; only five miles to perpetual snow. This is certainly a mission field. The needs of the world and the calls of Christ's cause are so great that they often run overwhelmingly beyond our individual power of response. There is so little I can do that I grow discouraged and feel that my efforts are useless; yet I realize it is only when every one does his part, each in his own place, that the work goes forward at all; and whether our power be great or small, we cannot, for the sake of our love and loyalty, fail in our part. So I send you one dollar, for which send me some copies of your tract, "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" I shall put forth my best efforts to place them where we will get the best results, in the hope that I can interest others so that we may be able to have some brother come and hold a meeting for us. I feel that I can ask no greater favor than an interest in the prayers of the entire church in this work.

MRS. C. L. SMITH.

Georgia.

Morven, July 11.—Our meeting began on June 11 and closed on June 25. There were three services the first two Lord's days and two services each day the first week. Because of the Methodist District Conference, we had services only at night the last week, except on the last Lord's day. On that day we had four sermons at the church house and two baptismal services. Dinner was spread on the ground every Lord's day. There were six baptized. Notwithstanding the prejudice and opposition we have here, there were good crowds and most excellent preaching all the time. Brother S. H. Hall did the preaching, and it was well done. Barney, Hahira, and Welcome Hill congregations assisted us very much in the meeting. Their presence was greatly appreciated. Morven, Hahira, and Welcome Hill have booked Brother Hall for meetings next year. The writer has just closed a most excellent two-weeks' meeting with the Welcome Hill congregation. There were seventeen additions—fifteen baptized, one from the Baptists, and one restored. Several of those baptized were from the Methodists. This congregation has a greater mind to work than ever before. The four congregations for which I am preaching are going to buy a tent to be used by me in this and adjoining counties. We hope to have the tent by the first of September. The writer, with Brother G. E. Claus, will begin a meeting at Moultrie next Lord's-day night. This is a mission point.

State Line, July 18.—I began a meeting here last Sunday. Everything starts off well for a good meeting. Brother A. B. Reavis is leading the song service, and is doing it well.

R. E. WRIGHT.

Susie, July 17.—We began here yesterday with a good hearing. We have Brother Hamilton Wray to lead the song service, and a good leader he is. Also a young brother, O. F. Shearer, is assisting in devotional work. Brother Shearer should make an able minister. He has many of the earmarks; and we hope that by proper encouragement we will have an able assistant of our own. We also have one other young brother that bids fair to enter the service. The Holiness people have just closed a camp meeting of four weeks' duration here; so we have much rubbish to remove. Pray for us.

J. D. WALLING.

Shreveport, July 14.—Other donations to our church building fund are: Mrs. E. A. Walker, $1; N. Y. Queen, $1; J. E. Jones, $1; church at Aspermont, Texas, by J. S. Cameron, $3.45.

H. H. MONTGOMERY.

Oklahoma.

Stigler, July 17.—Our meeting at Talihina was very successful, considering the surroundings. Six made the good confession and were baptized into Christ—two heads of families and their wives, together with two daughters. Talihina is more of a mission point than anything else. We have several members there, but only about four that are trying to do anything at all, but through their untiring efforts the cause is being planted there. I think I shall take Brother Nelson with me next year and let him do the preaching, while I will look after the song service. I am now in a meeting at a schoolhouse near Sallisaw. Large crowds are attending and much interest is being manifested, and we hope to do much good at this destitute place.

W. W. SLATER.

Tennessee.

Bolivar, Route 3, July 14.—F. O. Howell began a meeting at Middleton on July 3; and the rains descended, and a flood came; but the people came, the gospel was preached, and five were baptized.

C. W. THOMPSON.

Bon Aqua, July 17.—Last night we closed an eight-days' meeting here. The meeting was almost rained out at first, but we had large audiences at night the latter part of the week. No additions. We begin next Sunday at Luna, in Marshall County.

J. H. SISCO.

Obion, July 14.—Last night I closed a twelve-days' meeting with the Mount Zion congregation, five miles northwest of Hornbeak. Five were baptized. Of these, two had been Methodists, one was a Baptist, and two young men of Christian families. We believe this was a good meeting. Many attended and heard who previous to this would not attend our services.

T. M. CARNEY.

McMinnville, July 15.—The meeting at Mount Olive Schoolhouse, in Grundy County, lasted five days, in which time three were baptized. There is no organized congregation at this place; but it is a community of splendid prospects, and it is my intention to visit these brethren regularly with the hope of establishing a strong congregation of the church of God here. Brethren, pray for us in this great work.

FRED L. WALLACE.

Bemis, July 14.—C. M. Greer preached for the church of Christ in Bemis last Sunday, morning and night, with large crowds and good interest. One lady came from the Methodist Church and was baptized on Monday night. There is a great work to be done here, and we know of no one that is better fitted for the work than Brother Greer. We hope to have him with us once a month in the future.

H. C. HARDY.

Big Sandy, July 17.—On the second Lord's day in July I began a meeting with the Liberty congregation, near Paris Landing, and continued it one week. Five souls were baptized into Christ, and we hope much good was done otherwise. This congregation has a unique plan for conducting a meeting, having one service at two o'clock and one at four o'clock each afternoon, thus saving one trip back and forth. It is easy on congregation, preacher, and work stock.

DAVID THOMPSON.

New Providence, July 17.—The meeting at New Providence, conducted by Brother John T. Smithson, began on the first Lord's day in July and continued eleven days. It was a good meeting. Everybody seemed interested, and there were large and attentive audiences throughout the meeting. The truth was clearly and forcefully presented, and we believe that much and lasting good was done. Brother Smithson is an earnest, zealous worker who shuns no Bible truth, and who, like the apostle Paul, Sister: Read My Free Offer!

I am a woman.
I know a woman's trials.
I know her need of sympathy and help.

If you, my sister, are unhappy because of ill-health, if you feel unfit for household duties, social pleasures, or daily employment, write and tell me just how you suffer, and ask for my free ten days' trial of a home treatment suited to your needs. Men cannot understand women's sufferings. What we women know from experience, we know better than any man. I want to tell you how to cure yourself at home at a cost of about 12 cents a week.

If you suffer from women's peculiar ailments causing pain in the head, back, or bowels, feeling of weight and dragging down sensation, falling or displacement of pelvic organs, causing kidney and bladder weakness or constipation and piles, painful or irregular periods, catarrhal conditions and discharges, extreme nervousness, depressed spirits, melancholy, desire to cry, fear of something evil about to happen, creeping feeling along the spine, palpitation, hot flashes, weariness, sallow complexion with dark circles under the eyes, pain in the left breast or a general feeling that life is not worth living,

I INVITE YOU TO SEND TODAY FOR MY FREE TEN DAYS' TREATMENT and learn how these ailments can be easily and surely conquered at home without the dangers and expense of an operation. When you are cured, and able to enjoy life again, you can pass the good word along to some other sufferer. My home treatment is for young or old. To Mothers of Daughters, I will explain how to overcome green sickness (chlorosis), irregularities, headaches, and lassitude in young women and restore them to plumpness and health. Tell me if you are worried about your daughter. Remember it costs you nothing to give my home treatment a ten days' trial, and does not interfere with daily work. If health is worth asking for, then accept my generous offer and write for the free treatment, including my illustrated booklet, "Women's Own Medical Adviser." I will send all in plain wrappers postpaid. To save time, you can cut out this offer, mark your feelings, and return to me. Send today, as you may not see this offer again. Address,

MONEY IN PIGEONS

Make Your Back Yard Profitable

THE demand for squabs in the Northern, Eastern and Southern markets has never been supplied, because pigeon raising as a business is comparatively new. Buy a half dozen pair of select birds, fence in a small portion of your back yard and watch them go to work. Success is easy. They raise from eight to fifteen pairs of squabs a year. Your squabs and fancy birds will bring handsome returns. You will actually make money in a hitherto useless part of your back yard. Pigeon raising is not a fad or fancy. It is a profitable business. Let us start you right. Our breeders are the best, and raised from prize winning parents. We will furnish you with the birds and teach you how to raise them, and you will reap a handsome profit with a very little outlay. Thousands are taking advantage of this same opportunity. Write to-day for our literature on pigeon raising as a money making proposition, or better still, write us to send you a few pair of Belgian Carneaux at $3.00 per pair, White Swiss Mondaines at $5.00 per pair, White Kings at $3.50 per pair, or White Maltese at $4.00 per pair. Our birds are all guaranteed. Your money back if after two months you are not satisfied with their work. Better prices on larger orders. Write to-day and get the pick of the flock.

is "not ashamed of the gospel of Christ" or to declare "the whole counsel of God." Six were baptized—two young men and four young ladies—and others were "almost persuaded." Everybody was anxious for the meeting to continue longer, but other engagements previously arranged made it necessary to close. Brother Smithson will be busy in meetings until the last of October, when he will return to his home in Hopkinsville, Ky. V. A.

Kilgore, July 17.—I have just closed a meeting at Boon Prairie, near Franklin. Two baptisms were the results. I go next to Red Oak, near Kaufman, for a meeting. I hope for a harvest of souls. JOHN W. HEDGES.

Concho, July 12.—Our Rock Springs (my home) meeting closed on the first Sunday night in July. Crowds and interest were good and one was baptized. I began here a week ago. There is a very deep interest on the part of the large crowds attending, but no additions yet. I must close to-morrow night. I begin at Krum next Sunday. C. D. CROUCH.

Forney, July 14.—I am in a meeting near Forney, which will close to-night, I think, and will begin at Heath next Lord's day. Owing to recent changes made in my summer's work, I have some time to engage for one or two meetings. As I have two or three meetings in Tennessee, I shall gladly put in the other time while there. Any one wanting my help will please write me at 401 Montreal Avenue, Dallas, Texas. J. C. ESTES.

Rosser, July 16.—The meeting at Scurry closed last Tuesday night, with eight baptisms and one restored. I began a tent meeting here last night. This is a mission work. There are only four or five here who claim to be Christians only. Many that promised to give me a dollar each month have failed to do so, and meeting my promise to hold this meeting is causing me to fall behind financially. Who will help me keep busy all the time? My address is Cedar Hill, Texas. JOHN HAYES.

Constipation Yields to Renwar.

It is very dangerous to allow yourself to become chronically constipated, for this condition is the forerunner of innumerable diseases, which, if neglected, may prove fatal. There is one sure way to relieve constipation easily and swiftly, and that is by taking "Renwar," the new, scientific treatment for constipation, liver and kidney troubles. "Renwar" also relieves rheumatism by neutralizing the uric acid in the blood and by aiding nature in eliminating the poisons from the system through the kidneys and bowels. "Renwar" is guaranteed to give relief or your money back. Sold by all druggists. Fifty cents, or sent, postpaid, on receipt of price. Warner Drug Company, Nashville, Tenn.

The Work at Shreveport, La.

BY B. U. BALDWIN.

Our work here is moving along nicely. Our Lord's-day services are well attended and much interest is being manifested in all of our work and worship.

We have with us Brother W. D. Humphrey, of Trenton, Tenn. He came to us from the "digressives" some two or three years ago. He is a worthy man and a good, strong preacher. Brother Humphrey's heart is in the work, and he has consented to go into the different States to the churches of Christ and solicit funds to erect our meetinghouse. Brethren, we mean business. We commend Brother Humphrey to all of the loyal congregations wherever he may go. He is doing this work just for his expenses. Will you sacrifice accordingly?

I have been writing some letters to the preachers of the church of Christ asking them to send us one dollar to help build the meetinghouse here, and in reply I have received the following donations: B. F. Hart, Petersburg, Tenn., $1; M. C. Kurfees, Louisville, Ky., $1; W. T. Hines and wife, $1; C. C. Merritt, Odessa, Mo., $1; I. A. Douthitt, Sedalia, Mo., $1; T. A. Foster, Sparta, Mo., $1; Charles E. Fogle, St. Marys, W. Va., $1; Isaac C. Hoskins, Florence, Ala., $1; church at Jordanton, Texas, $1.70; John A. Cook, Buckner, Ark., $1; George Douglass, Red Oak, Texas, $1; W. N. Luton, Atlanta, Ga., $1; A. J. Bochman and P. M. Newman, Portsmouth, Ohio, $1; Don Carlos Janes, Louisville, Ky., $1; W. M. Burton, Nashville, Tenn., $1; George McNeal, Green Forest, Ark., $1; church of Christ at Fargo, Texas, $3.50; Sisters D. A. Cole and May Cole, Granby, Mo., $1.50. Many thanks to these good brethren and sisters for these amounts.

Another Debate.

BY JESSE F. LOVE.

There will be a debate at New Albany, Ind., between Jesse F. Love, M.D., of the church of Christ, and G. W. Moore, of the Advent Christian Church, beginning on August 23. The following propositions will be discussed: "The Bible teaches that man is wholly mortal, and unconscious between death and the resurrection." Moore affirms. "The Bible teaches that the spirit of man is immortal, and conscious between death and the resurrection." Love affirms. "The Bible teaches that the church of

Like a Boy at 50 Bubbling Over With Vitality—Taking Iron Did It

Doctor says Nuxated Iron is greatest of all strength builders—Often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks time.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact a young man he really was notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 46 careworn and nearly all in. Now at 50 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved, who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test; See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fifteen days time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctored for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the fray, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M.D.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

Christ is the kingdom of heaven, or kingdom of Christ, and was established in the lifetime of the apostles of Christ." Love affirms. The discussion will last ten days. I hope that every one who can will attend and encourage such investigations of the teaching of the word of God by their presence. I want to thoroughly expose the teaching of materialism in this discussion. Materialism is one form of infidelity, and one of the things on which Russell bases his deceptive teaching. We have only a few brethren in New Albany, and they are having a struggle to pay for their house of worship. Because they are few in number, I ask every brother who can do so and is in reach of New Albany to give us the encouragement of his presence. New Albany is just across the river from Louisville, Ky.

Never Neglect Colds; Treat Them Promptly

Often they lead to those pulmonary troubles which are responsible for more than one-tenth of all lives lost through illness.

Heavy colds which develop deep-seated coughs or cause inflammation of the air-passages and persist in spite of medication, weaken the system to a point where resistance easily is overcome—and asthma, bronchial and pulmonary troubles are the result. To renew normal resistance, Eckman's Alterative has been found highly beneficial in many instances.

Its lime content is so combined with other remedial agents as to be easily assimilated by the average person—and it contains no narcotics or habit-forming drugs of any sort. So it's safe to try. Wyatt.

"Uncle" Rol Wyatt was born on August 6, 1823, and died on February 3, 1916. His wife, "Aunt Jack," died about two years ago. To their union were born ten children, all of whom lived to be grown and nine of whom are still living. All are married, and most of them have large families. No family in Graves County, Ky., is better and more favorably known than the Wyatt family, a number of whom are devout members of the church. Brother Wyatt obeyed the gospel after most of his family were married, together with his wife, and they were faithful attendants at Lebanon as long as they lived. Brother Wyatt was a financial success. When he came to Graves County many years ago, he was a share worker, but his great ingenuity won for him plenty of this world's goods, much of which he distributed among his children some years before the death of his much-loved wife. Brother Wyatt was a dear lover and great indulger of children, and was familiarly known and much loved by every child in the entire country. We have every reason to believe that Brother Wyatt's life was such that with him all is well. May the generations after him so live that they will be prepared to meet him in the home of the blessed.

F. O. HOWELL.

Channell.

On June 8, 1916, the death angel visited our home and took from us our darling baby, Abbie Lou Channell. She was given to us on May 17, 1916. Her stay on earth was short, but we had learned to love her. It was so hard to give our darling baby up so soon, but "the Lord gave, and the Lord hath taken away; blessed be the name of the Lord." She budded on earth to bloom in heaven, and has joined her brother in the sweet beyond. May the Lord bless this sorrowing home, and may we so live that there may be a happy reunion "some sweet day," where God will wipe all tears away and parting will be no more.

MOTHER.

Elrod.

Brother John Elrod, the subject of this sketch, was born on September 25, 1838, and died at his home in Cookeville, Tenn., on June 9, 1916. He came into the church under the preaching of Brother Rice Sewell nearly forty years ago. Brother Elrod was the father of five children—three boys and two girls. All of Brother Elrod's children, together with his good wife, are still living, and all of them are members of the church of Christ. God has been exceedingly good to Brother and Sister Elrod. They lived together about forty-nine years, and never had a death in their immediate family until God took Brother Elrod. When we say that Brother Elrod is gone, it is equivalent to saying that the church has lost a good, brave-hearted, consecrated member, and that his home has lost a loving husband and a kind father. Our brother was full of life and health until stricken a few months ago. He was patient in his sickness and seemingly died without a fear. May God help Sister Elrod and her sons and daughters to live faithful, that they, too, may die in full assurance of meeting God in peace.

W. L. KARNES.

Rees.

It is with sadness that I chronicle the death of our dear nephew, Aaron Rees. He was born on January 2, 1877, and died on April 21, 1916. He was united in marriage to Miss Annie Gill, of Mulberry, Tenn., on July 5, 1902. To this union were born two children, a boy and a girl. Aaron was a good son, a kind husband and father. He became obedient to the gospel when quite young, and was always strong in the faith and satisfied to worship "as it is written." He had no patience with the fads and societies that man has introduced into the worship of God. Aaron was taught when a very little boy that the only true and safe way from earth to heaven is through faith and obedience to God. He became a victim to that dread disease, tuberculosis. He suffered long and intensely without complaining. He said that he wanted to stay with his family, because they needed him, but that he was willing to go; and the nearer the time came, the more anxious he was to depart. The large concourse of friends, neighbors, and relatives who attended the funeral showed the high esteem and love in which he was held. The funeral was conducted at his home on the Fayetteville pike, after which his body was carried to Fayetteville and interred in Rose Hill Cemetery, there to await the resurrection. Dear wife and parents, brothers and sisters, relatives and friends, Aaron is not dead, but is asleep in Jesus; and if we hold out faithful in the service of the Lord, we will one day meet him at the Beautiful Gate, where he is waiting and watching for loved ones.

AUNT MATTIE.

Bearden.

I write to announce the death of my brother, W. C. Bearden, of Commerce, Texas. He was also my brother in Christ. He was born in Bedford County, Tenn., near seventy-nine years ago. His wife, five daughters, and one son survive him. All of them are members of the church of Christ. I pray God that they may all live the life that God would have them live, that they may all meet an unbroken family in the great beyond.

J. J. BEARDEN.

Worley.

In the dispensation of God's providence the church at Isom, Tenn., has been called upon to part forever, so far as this life is concerned, with another of its members. Brother Samuel Alonzo Worley passed over the river on March 22, 1916, aged seventy-four years, four months, and twenty days. He became obedient to "the faith" in the nineteenth year of his life and lived a faithful member of the Ca-they's Creek congregation for more than fifty-six years. During the last thirty years of his life he was an acting elder of this congregation. He was married on December 14, 1865, to Miss Mattie Strong, who patiently lingers on this side of the river in full assurance of a happy reunion later on. To them were born several sons and daughters, all members of the church of Christ. As a student at Franklin College, he resigned to enlist as a soldier in the Civil War. He served through those four years of duty, as he understood it then, and came out with a clean record. Early in life, like Daniel of old, he "purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself" in sin—that there should be no blot upon his name. Through his whole life this resolution was faithfully kept. His associates in the army testify to his faithfulness to this principle and its effect upon them. Four years of stainless service in the "lost cause" and fifty-six years of faithful, stainless service in the cause of the Lord—a cause that will never fail. While Brother Worley was a gentle, modest man, he was firm in his convictions and steadfast always for the church and its teaching. The many friends who assembled at his funeral, notwithstanding the cold, windy day, the tear-dimmed eyes and the words of commendation all indicated that he had not lived in vain, but that he was loved and honored by the people of his community. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; for their works follow with them."

J. S. W.

Wyrick.

The death angel visited the home of Brother D. Wyrick and took from them their oldest child, Hazel, who was born on August 25, 1894, and died on May 16, 1916. She was married to Mr. Cecil Turner on November 29, 1914. Her life was one glad ray of sunshine to all who knew her, and especially her husband, who is so sadly missing her. She and her husband were born into the family of God last August, and up until her death she lived the true, devoted life that God would have us live. We cannot help but weep, as there is a vacant place that cannot be filled; but we should not weep as those who have no hope. Her husband, father, mother, four brothers, and three sisters, besides a host of relatives and friends, are left to mourn her loss, but our loss is her eternal gain. May we arouse from sleep, realize that life is uncertain and death is sure, and be prepared when we are called from this toilsome world to live with her again in that sweet home where neither sickness nor sorrow ever come, but happiness ever reigns supreme. Quite a number of people gathered at the Mount Pisgah church house, where funeral services were held by Brother Sam Litton, after which her body was laid away in the cemetery near by. While we are made sad to know we can see Hazel no more here, we hope to meet her again in a fairer clime, where there will be no more partings. May the Lord bless the bereaved ones, keep and use them for his glory, and at last call them into the home prepared for the faithful.

MRS. ORTON HARTSELL.

Ricks.

Aleck Ricks was born in 1844, and died on June 16, 1916. In early life he joined the Christian Church and remained true to its teaching. When a young man, he was a slave. He and his owner were great friends, and this friendship lasted until death separated them. He was of a quiet nature, never caring for rowdy crowds. He never wandered from the old plantation, for no other place to him was so dear. Most of us were acquainted with our departed brother and knew his daily walk. He said to his faithful companion just a few days since: "My name is written in the Lamb's book of life." Jesus has said: "Let not your heart be troubled, neither let it be afraid." "In my Father's house are many mansions. . . . I go to prepare a place for you." Now let us think of our brother as happy in that beautiful home, not racked with pain, for our Father has promised to wipe all tears from our eyes. X.

THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

One of the brightest and most entertaining of all our Sunday-school publications is THE YOUNG PEOPLE, a four-page weekly, devoted especially to the interests and welfare of young people of both sexes, but which will prove a channel of cheer and blessing to older ones as well. This periodical has just been consolidated with THE BIBLE STUDY HELPER, and presents the strongest and most essential features of both in an improved form. Three pages are given to stories of an entertaining and elevating character and articles of an educational nature, by gifted and well-informed writers, strikingly illustrated by photo-engravings and line drawings; and one page is devoted to a clear and concise presentation of the Sunday-school lesson, historically and exegetically, by A. B. Lipscomb, one of the editors of the Gospel Advocate, in which are presented the thoughts of many of the world's best thinkers. The size of the page is 10¾x14 inches. Help the Tennessee Orphans' Home.

BY W. T. BOAZ.

I have a letter from Brother Alex. J. Parks, of Greenbrier, Ind., with a conditional promise of a donation from one to two hundred dollars to the debt fund of the Tennessee Orphans' Home, and he requests that this be made known to the readers of the Gospel Advocate and brethren encouraged to assist in this undertaking. The condition on which he offers to give from one hundred to two hundred dollars by October 1 toward the debt fund is as follows:

I will donate from one to two hundred dollars toward paying the Tennessee Orphans' Home out of debt by October 1, on condition that from ten to twenty brethren will join me in this undertaking with a like donation of from one hundred to two hundred each. So, brethren, hurry up and let's pay this Home out of debt by the appointed time. I would like to be there at the board meeting next October and have a hearty handshake with the brethren who will assemble upon that occasion.

[Signed] ALEX. J. PARKS.

Greenbrier, Ind., July 10, 1916.

Now, brethren, with this liberal offer of this good brother in the State of Indiana, can we not find nine others who will give two hundred dollars each toward this work, or nineteen others who will give one hundred each for said purpose? We have been fairly successful in raising funds toward the debt fund, but have fallen behind on the maintenance fund. Many donating to the debt fund have only donated the amount that they otherwise would have sent to the maintenance fund. So, while getting out of debt in one sense, we have been compelled to go in debt in another, and we are hoping by a concert of action all along the line upon the part of churches interested in work of this nature, also individuals, we will be able by the time the board meets to meet every obligation, which I am confident the readers of this and other papers will enable us to do.

Will you please let me hear from you immediately, stating the amount that you will contribute toward this fund by October? I must make these appeals frequently, keep this matter constantly before you, up to the very time of the meeting in October, unless I can see sufficient funds in sight to meet all obligations without further effort. Cannot I hear from ten to twenty men like Brother Alex. J. Parks, of Indiana? Will you be one? How many more?

Our Bible Work.

BY W. F. LEDLOW.

It is my pleasure to be head of the Bible Department in Thorp Spring Christian College, and I shall instruct personally most of the classes. I have spent more than twenty years as a preacher and have studied the Bible much longer. I regard it as the greatest book on earth, and the only one that contains the true principles of correct living.

Our work will be thorough. We have made the courses of study so strong that the University of Texas gives us full credit for all we do. The Bible courses count just the same as other work in college.

In order to acquaint the students with the principles underlying the spread and growth of Christianity, I am offering a course in General Church History. This course will consider Christianity from its origin to the present day. The work will be interesting and especially profitable to young preachers.

I am also offering a course in the Evidences of Christianity. The purpose of this work is to establish in the young more firmly faith in God and the Bible and to prepare the student to answer the objections of modern infidels. This field of study is a very wealthy one, and one that yields much fruit to the faithful student. Quite a number of young preachers are planning to be with us for these classes, and we hope to enroll a large number of students in each class.

Our other Bible classes will study the Bible itself as a textbook. It is my purpose to do some good, honest work in the Bible, and I shall be pleased to have as many students as possible enroll with me.

We believe that Thorp Spring Christian College has the best faculty ever assembled in a Christian school. This is true both as to experience and scholarship. The work we offer has full recognition at the university and is standard in every way. It is our purpose to make this school the strongest and best school in the Christian brotherhood, and to this end we ask the friends of Christian education to assist us by sending us names of prospective students.

Let any young man or young woman who intends to go away to school this fall write me for a catalogue. Address me at Thorp Spring, Texas.

W. F. LEDLOW,
President of Faculty.

Two Letters from Brother Yohannan.

BY J. W. GRANT.

Yes, since my last message through the Gospel Advocate in regard to the Persian mission work I have had two letters from Brother Yohannan. The first was written on March 2, a little before I mailed my last remittance to him; and as it was brief and could not tell of receiving the draft, I decided not to publish anything of it till I should hear from him again. The other letter I received yesterday (July 18), and in it he tells of having received our last contribution sent to him on March 16. This letter was written on May 21, and indicates that my letter to him was delayed en route. But he got the draft, and that was what we that are helping him cared most for. I suppose that the letters were detained, or one of them, at least, by the British war policy.

The letters are both short, and each contains some matter not necessary to publish. So I shall give copious extracts from each, and not give either in full. In the first he says:

Dear Sir and My Beloved Brother in Christ: I send you much Christian greeting, and my best wishes to my dear "mother" and sister in Christ, Mrs. Grant. Please present my best greetings to all brethren and sisters in Christ. Please, brethren, remember me in your prayers, as I do the same for you all.

I let you know that our country is a little better from the Kurds and Turks, now that our Russian friends are successful everywhere. Now we are a little quiet.

In this letter he mentions preaching in his "own village," and that the people greatly enjoyed it. He also in this spoke again of coming to America until the war is over. In my last letter to him, which he had not then received, I advised against this step at this time, on account of the trouble with Mexico and prospect of war here. So he does not mention coming in his last letter.

This last letter is dated May 21, but was not postmarked till June 3; and as it had been "censored" (cut open), I suppose it was detained that long by the authorities in Oroomiah before they mailed it. In it he says:

Dear Sir and My Beloved Brother in Christ: I have received your welcome and kind letter in which was the draft for twelve pounds, eleven shillings, and six pence, for which I thank you very much, and for your love and kindness, that you remember me again at this needy time. I say, "Thank you very much." Also give my best regards to my dear mother in Christ, Mrs. Grant. Give my best greetings to all brethren and sisters in Christ. Please, brethren, remember me in your prayers, as I do the same for you all.

Also I let you know that I am preaching and teaching the gospel of Christ to the poor sinners. We must bring them from darkness to light, from the power of Satan unto God. This is the duty of every Christian.

The war in our side is very hot with the Turks, but our Russian friends are gaining the victory. Not long ago they took a big city from the Turks and destroyed nearly thirty-five thousand of them.

The little son of my sister died [I asked about him in my last letter.—J. W. G.], and her husband is in America. So I am taking care of her. My mother is with me, too.

Give my best regards to Brother Abernathy and wife; to sisters in Christ, Mrs. Roberts, Miss Inez Dalton, and Mrs. Maupin; and to Brother W. C. James. I have received your encouraging letters, and I thank you very much.

I preached in my own village, Dizza, and the hearers enjoyed it very much. This year we cannot accomplish as much as I want to, because the war is a great hindrance to our cause.

Some of those he mentions above by name sent with their donations letters written direct to Brother Yohannan for me to send to him. The others wrote such good, encouraging letters to me, with their donations, that I inclosed the letter of each in my last letter to him. We see what a pleasure these were to him and how grateful he is for them. I think it well that several such personal letters be sent with each remittance. So I suggest that the friends send short, encouraging notes, written on thin note paper, that I may send them to him with my letter each time that I send him a contribution.

And now I want to send another contribution of sixty dollars just as soon as I can get it. I have some on hand, but not enough; so if you wish to be one to help in the next remittance, please send your donation to me as soon as possible. We see that our brother is caring for the dependents of his own family and preaching the gospel to those who need it. Let us, then, be prompt to help and encourage him. May I hear from you right away? Address me thus: J. W. Grant, West Station, Nashville, Tenn.

Small Wounds Often Fatal.

It is the little cuts, bruises, sores, or burns that so often prove fatal by their being neglected and resulting in blood poison. There is no use taking any risk when a twenty-five-cent box of Gray's Ointment will give you protection. A little of this extraordinary ointment, if applied at once to the affected part, will allay pain and heal the wound. For nearly a century it has been in daily use in a vast number of homes, and its effectiveness is attested by hundreds of letters which we have received from those who use it. For sale at most drug stores. For free sample, write W. F. Gray & Co., 818 Gray Building, Nashville, Tenn.

FROM THE FIELD

Colorado.

Olathe, July 14.—The tent meeting at this place, after continuing three weeks, closed on Sunday night last. It was remarkable in many respects. There were two additions (two persons were baptized just before the meeting, and one confession without baptism. This latter case was peculiar. The lady made the confession and asked to be baptized "like Jesus was." She had only been sprinkled into the Presbyterian Church. The time was set for the baptizing, but the Presbyterian minister, hearing that one of his "flock" desired to do things "like Jesus" desired to have them done, immediately set himself about the task of preventing it if possible. Accordingly, he requested a conference with the lady before she was baptized, which was granted. As a result, the baptism was postponed. She will yet be baptized, but claimed "reasons" for postponing it. I expect to baptize her next Sunday. I have preached no less than one hundred and ninety sermons in Olathe since I came here in December, and not one of the four preachers in the little town has ever heard me preach. The opposition is strong, but, notwithstanding this, my tent was well filled throughout the meeting and an exceedingly healthy interest was kept up till the end, the last night's audience being considerably the largest during the meeting. At least three from the Christian Church took a decided stand with us and are fully lined up for that service that is divinely ordered. We have every advantage here now. The denominations are afraid of us. In the Methodist Church there is a serious trouble now regarding baptism, as many who were sprinkled are "dissatisfied" and seeking more light. The seed is sown triumphantly. I have shipped the tent to Dolores, Col., where I am preparing to hold my next meeting. I wish to say to the brethren generally, on behalf of the brethren here and at Dolores, that this work at Dolores needs the fellowship of those who are able to help get the word planted. At Dolores there are only three brethren; and when they pay the freight on the tent and arrange seats, etc., they will have exhausted their strength. The brethren at Olathe are not able to help in this Dolores work. This leaves the expense of reaching the place, boarding while there (none of the brethren are fixed to keep us), and of the return home resting on my shoulders solely. I have not a dollar on hand and am seriously in debt as I undertake to do this work. It will cost me at least fifty dollars; but a congregation at Dolores will be worth far more than fifty dollars, and I have determined to do the work. I will be there at least three weeks, after which I will return to Olathe. Those who desire to fellowship the Dolores work may, if they elect, send their fellowship to A. W. Arnold, Dolores, Col., or to me, at Olathe, Col. E. C. FURQUA.

MACEDONIAN CORNER

In Behalf of the Cause at Lexington, Ky.

The church of Christ in Lexington, Ky., began meeting in the home of Brother and Sister J. L. Morrison on the first Lord's day in March, 1915. For five weeks they met in their private homes. They then rented Jackson Hall and continued to meet there until the first of March, 1916. From there they moved to the second floor of the New Masonic Temple, on North Broadway, one block and a half north of Main Street. The congregation is gradually growing in numbers and influence.

For some time I have been trying to raise money to buy a lot on which to build them a house of worship. To buy a lot suitable to locate the congregation where it will grow will cost about eight hundred dollars. I now have in bank for this purpose $479.90, with $30 more promised. You can see I lack very near $300 on the lot. When the lot is all paid for, they plan to build a house to cost $2,000 or $2,500. They are not able to pay for the house, only on the monthly-payment plan. Now, if they had the remainder of the cash on the lot and $1,000 for the building fund, they could build and soon pay for their house and at the same time soon be self-supporting. Now there are thirteen hundred brethren and sisters in the several congregations of the churches of Christ that could give one dollar each to this work, put it on a solid basis, and thus be instrumental in winning souls for Jesus. Will you, my brother or sister, place a one-dollar bill in an envelope and send it to me at Winchester, Ky., for the work in Lexington, Ky.? If there are some congregations that will give more, it will be appreciated by these brethren. I will acknowledge all money received for this purpose in the papers.

Brethren, I am not asking for any great amount from any one, but just a small crumb. Will you give it in the name of Jesus for this work?

What is the Club?

The Gospel Advocate Piano Club is both a theory and a fact. The theory is that a piano factory can afford to sell one hundred pianos and player-pianos at a much lower price than it would be willing to make on an order for only one instrument. The fact is that the club has saved each of its members forty per cent.

The theory of the club is "co-operation." The fact is "perfect satisfaction." The theory is: "A square deal to every member." The fact is: "Every member is delighted."

If you are interested in securing a piano or player-piano of the finest quality at the lowest possible factory price, write for your copy of the club's catalogue, discount sheet, and terms. Address Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Ga.

RAILROAD WAGES

Shall they be determined by Industrial Warfare or Federal Inquiry?

TO THE AMERICAN PUBLIC:

Do you believe in arbitration or industrial warfare?

The train employees on all the railroads are voting whether they will give their leaders authority to tie up the commerce of the country to enforce their demands for a one-hundred-million-dollar wage increase.

The railroads are in the public service—your service. This army of employees is in the public service—your service.

You pay for rail transportation three billion dollars a year, and forty-four cents out of every dollar from you goes to the employees.

On all the Southern railroads in 1915, seventy-five per cent of the train employees earned these wages (lowest, highest, and average of all), as shown by the pay rolls:

	Passenger		Freight		Yard
	Range	Average	Range	Average	Range	Average
Engineers	$1972 3810	$2306	$1455 3505	$1916	$1156 2424	$1566
Cond'ct'rs	1552 2696	1847	1353 2358	1580	1055 1749	1245
Firemen	943 1652	1209	649 1638	979	406 1302	777
Brakemen	957 1736	1109	755 1854	958	754 1405	990

The average yearly wage payments to all Southern train employees (including those who worked only part of the year), as shown by the 1915 pay rolls, were:

	Passenger	Freight	Yard
Engineers	$2144	$1712	$1313
Conductors	1723	1488	1157
Firemen	1096	865	688
Brakemen	1013	845	868

A one-hundred-million-dollar wage increase for men in freight and yard service (less than one-fifth of all employees) is equal to a five-per-cent advance in all freight rates.

The managers of the railroads, as trustees for the public, have no right to place this burden on the cost of transportation to you without a clear mandate from a public tribunal speaking for you.

The railroads have proposed the settlement of this controversy either under the existing national arbitration law or by reference to the Interstate Commerce Commission. This offer has been refused by the employees' representatives.

SHALL A NATION-WIDE STRIKE OR AN INVESTIGATION UNDER THE GOVERNMENT DETERMINE THIS ISSUE?

Spiritual Exercise.

Spiritual exercise is encouraged by Paul's admonition to Timothy: "Exercise thyself unto godliness." In our study of this text we should note that it was originally addressed to a young preacher of the gospel, one who had been brought up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord and from his youth had been acquainted with the Holy Scriptures, which had made him wise unto salvation. From this fact we conclude that there is no preacher so gifted or so pious but what he does not stand in constant need of spiritual exercise. It is sometimes falsely assumed that the minister's life, as compared to others, is a sheltered life, free from ordinary temptations. But to show the primary purpose of his letter to Timothy, the apostle Paul writes: "These things teach and exhort." Although addressed to Timothy in particular, it is intended for the church at large—for anybody and everybody who wants to do his or her duty as a Christian under all circumstances and who feels the need of more strength than he now possesses.

Before we take up the matter of exercise, let us consider the meaning of the spiritual life. Its very essence is the recognition of things that are unseen and eternal. From start to finish it is a life of faith. Throughout the Christian's course he walks by faith, and not by sight. He must believe that there is a God, that there is a heaven, that there is a hell, that the spirit of man is immortal and of inestimable worth, that the will of the Father is supreme, that he has manifested his love toward man in the gift of his Son for his redemption and ultimate salvation.

A Dangerous Bit of Sophistry.

It is necessary that we place great emphasis upon these fundamental truths; for there are a great many people who have been more or less influenced by that cheap and superficial talk, of which there has been a great deal during the last thirty or forty years, that these great matters of belief are not of vital importance. They say that conduct and character are the only real essentials; that if a man does right, it makes no difference what he believes about Christ or what he does about the gospel plan of salvation; that unseen things are necessarily uncertain; that ethics is better than religion, and that our one effort should be to make this world fit for the people who are now here to live in, rather than to spend our time trying to get them ready for a world to come, which, they argue, may not come.

This kind of unbelief has been strikingly called "the real fall of man." It takes the crown from his head. It takes the glory from his life. It leaves him, so far as his inner life is concerned, with no intelligent or worthy purpose back of him, no authority above him, and no destiny before him. It limits him to the here and now, to things tangible and perishable. It confines his moral relations to his fellow-men and takes away God from his thoughts. It draws a small circle around him, the circle of the earth, and says: "This is big enough for you: with the circle of the heavens, the unseen, and the eternal you have nothing to do." It is unquestionably true that the noblest belief is worth little or nothing unless put to a practical test and given substance and reality by noble conduct; but to say that the fundamental truths of the gospel are of minor importance, as compared with the duty of the present moment, is the same as if some ignorant landsman should say to a navigator in midocean: "Why do you waste your time taking observations on the sun and the stars and watching that trembling needle and studying those mysterious charts? These winds, this water, these waves, this ship—these are the things that demand your attention." Would they ever reach the port?

Requisites for the Spiritual Life.

If the spiritual life be such as we have defined it, the first great requisite for its culture is a study of the word of God and prayer. We must exercise ourselves along these lines. If we wish to guide our lives by the heavenly vision, we must get the vision. If we wish to apply spiritual ideals to our dealings with spiritual things, we must get the ideals. And these are things which can only be accomplished in that place which Walter Lander has beautifully called "the audience chamber of God." No fact in the earthly life of Jesus stands out in bolder relief than that he constantly renewed his strength through communion with the Father.

"Cold mountains and the midnight air Witnessed the fervor of his prayer."

If he could not do without prayer, neither can we. Timothy was versatile and well read, and yet the apostle Paul urged him in this wise: "Study to show thyself approved." If he needed that exhortation, we need it, too. We must exercise ourselves unto godliness.

The second requisite that we shall mention as highly important in spiritual culture is a regular attendance upon God's worship. Without stopping here to point out all the items of scriptural worship, without considering the question of its comparative quality, let us say that the question of attendance is an inherent duty which no thoughtful man can fail to recognize. The spiritual life is primarily an individual life. Every one must give an account of himself before God; every one must work out his own salvation with fear and trembling. But we must remember, too, that because its essence and excellence is love the spiritual life has a social aim. It craves love and friendship, and it wants to give love and friendship. It pines away and starves if this desire is denied. The true disciples of Jesus both need and wish to confess their sins, to render their thanks, to offer their prayers, to enjoy their blessings, and to speak of their hopes together. In order that our social service may not fall short of its scriptural purpose, there are two characteristics which should be kept in mind. In the first place, one must be qualified to worship. That means he must be a member of the church. He must have rendered obedience to the divine conditions of salvation—he must be buried with his Lord Jesus Christ in baptism and through this open door enter into his spiritual kingdom. Going to church all of one's earthly life will not save a man if he is not completely incorporated into its membership and does not add his contribution to its work and worship. I make this point clear because so frequently we hear it said of a man after his death, as if it were a commendation: "This person was a constant attendant upon such and such a church, although he was never a member of it." That very fact would speak volumes against him before the judgment of God. The question that would confront him then would be: "How could you willfully neglect so great salvation in the face of so many wonderful opportunities?" Our attendance upon God's worship should be regular. If we observe a man staying away from his place of business with great regularity, we will not be surprised any day to hear that man has failed. If we observe a pupil attending school only at intermittent periods, we will not be surprised to find that pupil deficient along all the lines of his education. With corresponding exactness, when we observe a man or woman attending the Lord's worship at irregular intervals, we will not be surprised to find that their service ends in disastrous neglect.

But the man who worships God must be devout. He must worship him in spirit and in truth. He must realize that he comes to church, not to have everything done for him, but to do something himself that will redound to God's glory and praise and help his fellow-members. I could not emphasize this thought in a better way than by emphasizing the word "exhorting" in the familiar passage: "Not forsaking our own assembling together, as the custom of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day drawing nigh."

"Bodily Exercise Profiteth Little."

There never was a time when so much care and attention were given to the exercise of the body as there is to-day. The idea of bodily exercise in the open air is the most popular one in the physician's realm. It has pervaded the schools and colleges until it actually threatens to disrupt the study of arts and sciences. It has become the most attractive feature of the various young men's organizations throughout the world. And yet in the face of all this activity and all this popularity, the apostle Paul said: "Bodily exercise profiteth little." The exercise that the world needs is the exercise which builds up the soul. The exercise that is worth the time, pains, and endeavor is the kind which promotes a spirit of godliness, which always belongs to the perfect man. In this light the text before us becomes more than an apostolic exhortation. It is the embodiment of a divine law; it is the divinely stipulated price of possession. If we would gain the victory, we must make the effort; we must exercise ourselves for it; we must make constant application of God's teachings to our conduct; we must do the things about which we think and talk and pray and sing. There are two overwhelming reasons that should inspire us. First, there is the infinite value of the soul. There is the question of the Master, "What shall it profit a man, if he gain the whole world, and lose" the priceless thing? Second, there is the welfare of those around us. There is the message which says: "Do good unto all men, especially those of the household of faith." It has been said: "The times are big with change and destiny. God only knows the kind of people with whom we deal. Perhaps the next man we meet will be like Ishmael, son of the desert and son of strife, his hand against every man and every man's hand against him. Perhaps he will be like Isaac, son of laughter, whose tents are spread in green pastures and beside the still waters." But whoever that man is, we must do him good. And for our own encouragement let me say, in conclusion, if we give to our spiritual exercise that same thought which some of us bestow upon our bodies; if we bring to His service that same eagerness and enthusiasm that we waste upon the games of life; if we use the tremendous forces that are in our hands, not for the selfish interests of time and sense, but for the salvation of our souls, the strength of our brethren, and the betterment of the world, we shall have done our part in raising the church of Jesus Christ toward that high plane of usefulness and goodness toward which it has been climbing for two thousand years.

FOUR CONTRIBUTORS

Bible Wines.

BY E. S. JELLEY, JR.

I wish to indorse Brother M. C. Kurfees' conclusion in the Gospel Advocate of March 23, that grape juice, whether fresh or intoxicating, is fruit of the vine. I, however, beg the privilege of making a few corrections to the definitions he quotes in his article.

Young's Analytical Concordance gives the meaning of "yayin," which occurs one hundred and thirty-two times, as "what is pressed out." Brother Kurfees says it is from a root, "to boil up." No doubt he is right, but the reference was to the "boiling up" or "gushing out" of the juice from the press.

Brother Kurfees only refers to six Hebrew words rendered "wine," although Young gives eleven of them. However, only the two words "yayin" and "tirosk" are commonly used in the Old Testament, one of them being used six times, the other four times, and the remainder once each. "Tirosk" is used thirty-eight times. Young says it means "what is possessed"—mead, new wine. Gesenius quotes Hos. 4: 11 to show it was capable of intoxicating. Gesenius is a very prejudiced authority; for, of the thirty-eight references, the one he quotes is the only one which could possibly lead to that conclusion. He might have referred to Isa. 65: 8 to prove the opposite, for it says "tirosk is found in the cluster." Certainly every one knows there is no fermented wine in a cluster of grapes. Tirosk was not looked upon as possessing a man's head, but as being a valuable possession of the man—a possession that God repeatedly promised him. If it was necessarily intoxicating and God considered it a blessing, then we may as well vote prohibition out and patronize the barroom.

But does Hos. 4: 11 indicate that tirosk was necessarily intoxicating? It reads: "Whoredom and wine [yayin] and new wine [tirosk] take away the heart." Whoredom is scarcely intoxicating, although yayin (grape juice) is so when it becomes spoiled (fermented); but tirosk (new wine, in contrast with yayin which often was old) might take away the heart of a man from his duty or business, just as any other soft drink will do if taken to excess. "Tirosk" is found in Gen. 27: 28, 37; Num. 18: 12; Deut. 7: 13; 11: 14; 12: 17; 14: 23; 18: 4; 28: 51; 33: 28; 2 Kings 18: 32; 2 Chron. 31: 5; 32: 28; Neh. 5: 11; 10: 37; 13: 13; 13: 12; Ps. 4: 7; Prov. 3: 10; Isa. 24: 7; 36: 17; 62: 8; 65: 8; Jer. 31: 12; Hos. 2: 8, 9, 22; 4: 11; 7: 14; 9: 2; Joel 1: 10; 2: 19, 24; Mic. 6: 15; Hag. 1: 11; Zech. 9: 17. Please read the references. You can find them grouped together in a concordance for convenience.

Turning to the New Testament, we find "gleukos" in Acts 2: 13 only, and "oinos" twenty-eight times, which latter is the Greek word for wine, beer, grape juice, cider, etc. "Put young wine (oinos neos) into new skins ("bottles," in Matt. 9: 17), not to ferment, as that would burst the bottles or skins, new or old, but into new ones to avoid the refuse of the old wine, which may be sour [and cause fermentation.—Jelley]." (Smith's Bible Dictionary.)

Finally, Brother Kurfees says "methuo" means "to be drunken." Donegan says it means literally to "indulge to excess." It is translated "well-watered" in Ecclesiasticus (Septuagint) in regard to a "well-watered garden." "Methuo" is the liquid equivalent of gormandizing. I do not believe even the Corinthian Christians would have represented Christ's pure and life-giving blood by that which steals a man's brains and makes him worse than a beast. They, however, feasted and gormandized at the Lord's Supper. Their course was not approved.

Finally, it would take a great deal of Hebrew and Greek to convince a great many disciples that God contradicted himself by both approving and disapproving of alcoholics, and that our Savior actually countenanced the trade in intoxicants. "Look not thou upon the wine when it is red. . . . At the last it biteth like a serpent." (Prov. 23: 31, 32.) "Abstain from all appearance of evil." (1 Thess. 5: 22.) "Let all things be done decently." (1 Cor. 14: 40.) Yes, intoxicating wine doubtless is fruit of the vine, but it is less fit for the communion of the body and blood of our Savior than moldy bread (which is none the less bread).

"This Generation."

BY F. W. SMITH.

C. M. Wimberly has written a book, entitled "Behold the Morning." This is one of many books written by different ones on the "millennium," and, like all the others, is filled with speculative assertions without one iota of divine truth to support them. When an appeal is made to the word of God, it is so twisted and perverted that it is made to teach what God never intended. On the subject of what he terms "the rapture," at the "invisible coming" of Christ (he has two comings, visible and invisible), he says: "Headlines telling of 'missing ones' will appear on the front page of all the big dailies, but it will be an overwhelming catastrophe which will not be fully understood or explained." We have heard of this prophecy (?) before, and now know from whom it was borrowed. This prophetic utterance is based upon the passage: "I tell you, in that night there shall be two men in one bed; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Two women shall be grinding together; the one shall be taken, and the other left. Two men shall be in the field; the one shall be taken, and the other left." (Luke 17: 34-36.) Mr. Wimberly may try in vain to sandwich the taking and leaving here with a thousand literal years. What, then, is the thought involved? Simply this: When the end of time comes and the world is called into judgment, the most intimate and close relations existing between many who are then living on the earth will be severed, because of the difference in their relation to God.

But Mr. Wimberly must get in a thousand literal years between those taken and those left, during which time the "big dailies" will be flaming with "headlines telling of the 'missing ones.'" Indeed, how many false prophets are gone out into the world!

But it is more particularly of his utterances on "the great tribulation" that I desire to speak. He, like all those who are filled with what they are pleased to call "the pre-millennium," confounds the Scriptures, and uses passages which have no relation to each other at all to prove the same thing. For instance, Mr. Wimberly uses Rev. 7: 14 to support his theory of the "great tribulation" mentioned in Matt. 24: 21, 22. He forgets, however, that he and those who stand with him have the saints escape the great tribulation of Matt. 24: 21, 22 by being "caught up in the air," to which position 1 Thess. 4: 17 is made to testify. But now he comes with Rev. 7: 14 as proof of the great tribulation of Matt. 24: 21, 22, which he affirms will take place at the end of the millennial reign. If, as he and they affirm, the saints escape the great tribulation of Matt. 24: 21, 22 by being caught up in the air, how could it be possible for those mentioned in Rev. 7: 14 to have come "out of" that same tribulation? It would be impossible to come out of a thing without having been in it. Truly "the legs of the lame are unequal." Would it not be more in harmony with the Scriptures to associate Rev. 7: 14 with Acts 14: 22; 2 Thess. 1: 4; 2 Cor. 1: 4; Rev. 1: 9?

But on what ground does Mr. Wimberly and others place the "great tribulation" of Matt. 24 at the wind-up of the world? They do it on what they claim is the meaning of the word "generation" in Matt. 24: 43: "Verily I say unto you, This generation shall not pass away, till all these things be accomplished." Among the things that were to be accomplished was the "great tribulation;" and since their theory places this tribulation at the end of time, they must have a meaning for the word "generation" that will make it last until Christ comes. But even with their strained meaning of the word "generation," they cannot make out their case, for a prediction could be fulfilled during the existence of a race—"men of the same stock, a family"—at any time, and meet the demands of the prediction, unless limited to the close of the race. So what is gained by contending for the second and not the primary meaning of "generation?" Thayer, in his Greek lexicon, gives as the first meaning of "genea" (generation): "The whole multitude of men living at the same time." What is there in the whole of Matt. 24 to demand the meaning of "race" instead of "men living at the same time?" Nothing, absolutely nothing at all. But, on the contrary, there are facts recorded in connection with the "great tribulation" mentioned in that chapter that forestall any and all efforts to place it after Christ comes. Mr. Wimberly and those of his school claim that the saints living on the earth when Christ comes will escape this great tribulation by being caught up from the earth. But that is not the way the saints were to escape the great tribulation mentioned in Matt. 24: 21, 22. Begin with verse 15 and read through verse 22, and you will see that they were to escape by fleeing to the mountains; were told to pray that their flight be not on the Sabbath nor in the winter; and, "Woe unto them that are with child and to them that give suck in those days!" Why should "woe be unto them that are with child and to them that give suck," if they were to be "caught up from the earth" to escape the tribulation? Men in their zeal for human theories become blinded to plain facts right upon the surface which completely upset their contentions. I will here introduce J. W. McGarvey's comment on this disputed point, and would like to see the living man that can overturn it:

"This generation." Some very superior scholars understand the word rendered "generation" (genea) to mean "race," and the passage to mean, This Jewish race shall not pass away till all these things be fulfilled. (See Alford.) But, as we have just seen, the expression "all these things" designates things to be witnessed and experienced by the Jews, and it would be a mere truism to say that their race would not pass away till all of their own experiences had terminated. The true key to the interpretation of this much-disputed passage is found in the expression "all these things," repeated from the preceding verse. It must here have the same meaning as there; for an identical expression repeated in consecutive sentences always has the same meaning, except where something is introduced in the new connection to force upon it a different meaning. There is certainly nothing of the kind here. We therefore conclude that in the two statements, "This generation shall not pass away till all these things be fulfilled," and, "When ye see all these things, know that he is near," the expression "all these things" has the same meaning. But in the latter instance, as we have shown under verse 33, it means all the events previously mentioned in the speech except the coming of the Son of man. This last event, then, is not included in "all these things," and is not one of the things which were to take place before that generation passed away.

With all of the above facts submitted, I am fully convinced that the word "generation" as used in Matt. 24: 34 refers to the Jews then living on the earth, and that the "great tribulation" predicted in Matt. 24: 21 has passed; that it actually occurred during the lifetime of those on earth when Christ uttered the prophecy, and has no reference at all to something yet future.

Slough and a Syllogism.

BY G. C. BREWER.

Brother E. D. Slough, of Terre Haute, Ind., has written a book which bears the sensational and legal-sounding title, "Indictment of Eternal Torment." "A Universalist," you say at sight of the book. But you will soon discover your mistake; he is not a Universalist.

"Well, but if he does not believe the wicked will suffer endless punishment, he must think the punishment will end," you say.

But you are wrong again; he tells of an endless punishment that ends quickly. You must observe, however, that he does not use the word "punishment;" "torment" serves the purpose better. To indict "eternal punishment" would be to impeach the Lord Jesus Christ (Matt. 25: 46); hence the ingenuity of error long ago devised an eternal punishment for the wicked that does not punish them long. Here is the same old fallacy that assumes that a man can cease to exist and his punishment continue.

The author of this book is an annihilationist, and he has written a four-hundred-page book to prove that man is wholly mortal, and, therefore, ceases to be at death. The same old, gloomy, carnal materialism that was advocated by Dr. Priestly is advocated by all Adventists, and of which the illustrious Charles T. Russell is the present-day champion. Our author says it is prejudice that calls his book "Russellism;" but if his life depended upon it, he could not show one iota of difference between his doctrine and Russell's doctrine on the nature of man and the destiny of the wicked. But he protests that it is not Russellism; it is the truth. Very well; then you must admit that Russell is the present-day champion of this truth. At least, he was the champion before this book appeared. I am not sure now but that we will have to accord the honors to Brother Slough. I freely admit that he makes the strongest fight for the doctrine that I have yet encountered, though I have debated the question. His contention is not strong because of any new affirmative arguments, for he did not make any, but because he made a desperate effort to meet the opposition. He "bearded the lion in his den," truly. And if I may be pardoned for expressing my honest judgment frankly, the biggest and newest thing about the book is the boundlessness of its assumptions. The author examines such men as Alexander Campbell, Alex. Wilford Hall, J. W. McGarvey, B. W. Johnson, Clark Braden, Henry Drummond, and such less-widely-known writers as A. M. Morris, D. Sommer, and Charles R. Nichol. They are all criticized and indicted. They are charged with illogical reasoning, inconsistency, tergiversation, prejudice, an indomitable determination to establish an eternity of the direst torture of the wicked, and actually with being afraid to see and accept the plain truth. Yet I have the assurance from a good source that this brother is not bigoted and does not mean to be overweening in his assumptions. I accept the assurance, and I do not criticize him for reviewing and opposing these men if he believes they have taught error, but I must say that he was rather unfortunate in some of his expressions. And it does seem to me that his love for his theory and his manifest aversion to a certain idea of eternal punishment led him to some rather strong charges against his brethren as well as some rather obvious errors. He seems to have stood in the gruesome glare of the lurid lights of a literal lake of liquid fire until he has become morbid on the subject and has embraced what I consider an insidious and a fatal error.

Far be it from me, however, to incite any bitter feeling against this brother or to arouse any prejudice against his book. Bitterness is unchristian and prejudice is cowardly and dishonest. I wish to examine the book carefully upon its claims and see if it is the acme of all logic. If Brother Slough has solved the problem of life and death, he has put us all under everlasting obligations; and if he has disposed of eternal punishment without mutilating the Bible, I, for one, am ready to come down at his feet. Did he do it?

I can give only one example of his efforts to dispose of the texts that are used to prove immortality, and I cannot do that without an apology; for how can I presume to offer criticism on a man who has reviewed and assumed to answer such profound productions as "The Problem of Problems," "The Problem of Human Life," "Life and Death," "Natural Law in the Spiritual World," etc.? I do not mean to be sarcastic. That is the way I feel, but here is both the apology and the criticism.

In discussing Christ's answer to the Sadducees, Brother Slough says:

"We will throw the argument into the syllogistic form, and you will gather its force more readily.

Major premise: God is the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Minor premise: He is not the God of the dead, but the living.

Conclusion: Therefore there is a resurrection of the dead.

This is a simplified, condensed presentation of the argument. How came the conclusion to be, "There is a resurrection?" There is no mention of it in either premise, and the moment we admit the conclusion of the Lord to be correct, we logically eliminate all conscious life till the resurrection occurs, or else we must conclude that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are raised from the dead.

Here is the usual way of presenting it, which destroys the Lord's argument and makes him prove that the dead are living in a separate place without a body, a point not found in the proposition—to say:

1. God is the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.
2. He is not the God of the dead, but of the living.
3. Therefore, Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are living in a disembodied state.

This is an interpretation void of logic, and is just what the Lord refuted. He did not conclude they are alive. No, indeed. He concluded that since God is not the God of the dead, there must be a resurrection so he can be the God of the living, for Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are dead.

In his "Elements of Logic" (page 82), Whately said: "No term must be distributed in the conclusion that was not distributed in one of the premises." That it would be an illicit process of reasoning. This rule is profoundly reliable; and since the Lord distributed the resurrection in the conclusion, it must be involved in the premises. And as Christ is the resurrection and the life, it must be wrapped up in the word "living"—that God is not the God of the dead, but of the living.

His arguments, to meet the requirements of the proposition as proof of a resurrection, which silenced his disputants, shows conclusively that the life spoken of concerning the patriarchs is dependent upon the resurrection." (Pages 161-163.)

If that isn't confusion worse confounded, please let me know when you find something that is. I quoted him at length; for the more he said, the worse he made it. There are so many baseless assumptions and glaring fallacies here that one hardly knows which ones to point out. And some of the assumptions are so bald that one can scarcely keep within the bounds of moderation in dealing with them. If this does not manifest a disposition which our author so often charged upon others—viz., a thorough prepossession by a theory and an invincible determination to find his idea in a text—I am sure I never saw that disposition manifested; and if our brother's most ardent admirers cannot see it after an analysis of his argument, I shall be surprised, to say the least.

The first thing I wish to bring to the reader's notice is the assertion that the conclusion that Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are now living is "just what the Lord refuted." Now you remember the controversy was with the Sadducees, who "say that there is no resurrection, neither angel, nor spirit; but the Pharisees confess both." (Acts 23: 8.) Yet, according to Slough, the Lord refuted the Pharisees and agreed with the Sadducees! Was it the Pharisees' doctrine in question? At the conclusion of the argument, a Pharisee said: "Teacher, thou hast well said." (Luke 20: 39.) Then, for a man to say the Lord had refuted a cardinal tenet of the Pharisees' belief! The statement is contrary to the facts and shows the strength of our brother's feeling.

Secondly, our brother declares that the Lord did not conclude that the patriarchs are now living. "No, indeed!" This is exactly what he did conclude, and I shall force him to admit it if he has any regard for the law of logic. But he asserts: "He concluded that since God is not the God of the dead, there must be a resurrection so he can be the God of the living, for Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are dead." Reader, is that the way it sounds to you? Did Christ say something must happen so God can be the God of the living? This makes the declaration of God to Moses absolutely false. He says he is, not will be nor has been, the God of these patriarchs. And Christ says he is not the God of the dead, but our author says positively that these patriarchs are dead. Either we must deny God's statement and say he is not the God of the patriarchs, or we must deny Christ's statement and say he is the God of the dead, or we must deny Slough's statement and say these patriarchs are not dead. I leave the reader to his choice. This is not a misrepresentation, for our brother said plainly there must be a resurrection in order that God can be the God of the living, for those of whom he says he is God are dead. Then God is not the God of Abraham at all now, and was not at the time he spoke to Moses in the bush or when Christ repeated his declaration, and will not be until the resurrection; or else he is the God of the dead, according to this statement.

But now let us notice our brother's syllogism. If a man tried to frame a syllogism for the express purpose of violating every rule in the canon, I doubt if he could beat this one. The definition of a syllogism is, "A syllogism is an inference by which a proposition is derived from two others conjointly, the one being contained in the others;" and, "To conclude is to shut up together in the last proposition notions which stood apart in the first two." But in this syllogism we have a conclusion which is not in the premises at all. The subject of the conclusion is not even mentioned in either premise. Hence this cannot properly be called a syllogism at all. But our author calls it a syllogism, and we take it for one and number fallacies as though it were.

Fallacy Number One. The premises are named wrongly. His major is really the minor.

Fallacy Number Two. There are eight general rules governing syllogisms. The first one says: "A syllogism has three, and only three, terms." This syllogism has at least four terms. If "resurrection" were wrapped up in, "living," it must stay wrapped and the word "living" be used in the conclusion or there is a violation of Rule 1. Logic, however, "postulates to state explicitly all that is implicit in a thought." It does not leave things implied, involved, and "wrapped up."

Fallacy Number Three. The three terms of a syllogism are "middle term," "major term," and "minor term." The major premise contains the major term, and the minor premise contains the minor term; the premises are determined by the terms. The middle term must be found in both the premises, but not in the conclusion. The major term is always (in extension) the predicate of the conclusion. The minor term is always (in extension) the subject of the conclusion. And yet the syllogism under review does not have the minor term in the conclusion anywhere. What a travesty!

Fallacy Number Four. "No term must be distributed in the conclusion that was not distributed in one of the premises." Our author quoted this rule, and he was ashamed to draw a conclusion that violated it outright; hence he charged the Lord with the fallacy and then attempted to excuse the Lord. A rare sophism, really! Of course, the author knew his premises did not yield his conclusion; but he must have that conclusion, forsooth he must. What else was he writing the book for? How did he attempt to excuse the Lord for such reasoning? Why, the word "living" is found in the major premise, and Christ once said he is the resurrection and the life. So there! "Illicit major"—is that a sufficient name for it? The word "living" refers to persons—the living—those who have life. The idea of saying it is equivalent to resurrection!

Fallacy Number Five. "If one premise be negative, the conclusion must be negative." (Rule 4.) In this syllogism the major premise is negative, yet we are about to be forced to accept an affirmative conclusion by being told the Lord did it. And the man who made this syllogism is the same man who charged C. R. Nichol with "insufferable logic."

THE SYLLOGISM CORRECTLY STATED.

Major premise: God is not the God of the dead.

Minor premise: But God is the God of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob.

Conclusion: Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob are not dead.

I challenge any man living to write any other conclusion from those premises and not violate the rule that demands a negative conclusion from a negative premise. The reader will see at once that "God" is the middle term; "dead," the major term; and "Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob," the minor term.

Now, in the conclusion, put down the minor term for the subject and the major term for the predicate, and join them by the negative copula, and you have your conclusion. Any ten-year-old-child can see what it is. If we expand the terms, the syllogism would read:

1. God is not the God of the dead persons, but of the living persons.
2. But God is the God of Abraham, and the God of Isaac, and the God of Jacob.
3. Therefore, Abraham and Isaac and Jacob are not dead persons, but living persons. And Christ adds: "For all live unto God."

"Why did this silence the Sadducees?" we are asked. Because it forever exploded their theory of no existence after death. But does it prove the resurrection? It puts it beyond question. (For a strong and clear exposition of this text, see McGarvey's "Commentary on Matthew.") This one argument forever makes Brother Slough's theory impossible and renders his big book both useless and dangerous. It is a gigantic error.

Preparedness. No. 2.

BY C. W. SEWELL.

In one of our school readers used when I was a boy was a poem which began thus:

"How big was Alexander, pa,
That people called him 'great?'
Was he like old Goliath, tall,
His spear a hundredweight?"

I wish I could quote the whole poem, but it is too long and I have forgotten some of it. But pa taught son that it was war, devastation, bloodshed, that made Alexander great. But son replied:

"If killing people make men great,
Then why was Abdoe Young,
Who killed his neighbor, training day,
Put in jail and hung?"

The philosophy of that poem has remained with me to this day. Like this boy, I cannot understand why, if killing one man is murder, killing a thousand could be anything else. The apostle John says: "And ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." (1 John 3: 15.)

We need to educate our members, and especially our young men, along this line. I was too young to enter the Civil War, and as soon as it was over I said: "I am too old for the next one." Another did not come while I was of military age; but if it had, I was fully determined I would not go into it. But they force men into the army. So they did during the Civil War. How did Brother David Lipscomb and others in Tennessee keep out of it? He went and conferred with both Presidents, Lincoln and Davis, and reached an agreement with them that Christians that did not believe it right to go to war should be excused. What we need to do is to go to teaching along this line till we create a sentiment against war—till it is understood that we oppose it. Then it will be an easy matter to get an exemption. In a very short time every young man will be required to enter the service and train for a period of years, just as it has been for a long time in Germany. When one enlists and drills, it will then be impossible for him to avoid service if war breaks out.

I insist that our leaders, and especially our editors, get busy on this line. I regret that Brother Lipscomb is no longer able to write. Is there not some man that can take his place?

Before closing I want to again express my astonishment that men who have given their lives to studying and teaching the word of God have never discovered that the teaching of the New Testament is utterly opposed to war! I cannot understand it.

Tribute to T. R. Burnett.

BY ED S. DUNCAN.

The sad news that our dear brother and colaborer, T. R. Burnett, was dead came as a thunderclap from a clear sky. For thirty-five years he had been my best earthly friend and spiritual adviser. I loved him like a father. I believe he stood among our truly great men. His influence will live on and on. Personally, whatever good I may accomplish and have accomplished as a preacher, he is responsible for it. I cannot see why our papers have not said more than they have about his life and death. In his death the church has lost one of her purest and most fearless soldiers. I have been closely and most intimately connected with him for twenty years. He often begged me to go in with him on the paper, and only last winter he wrote me: "My strength is failing fast, and unless I can get some of you younger men to take part of my burden, the paper will die with me." I have many of his letters, written to me personally, that I treasure almost above everything. I sincerely believe that he was one of the cleanest-minded men I ever knew. Fearless, brave, and true, with a consciousness that he was right, he feared no man, but met error with the most uncompromising rebukes, using the sword of the Spirit without mercy. He was the first to plant the pure gospel in all this Northeast Texas region, suffering many trials and persecutions that would have driven a weaker man from the field. Almost every congregation here owes its existence to his undaunted efforts. His annual visits will be greatly missed. He has gone to his reward, and we can almost hear the welcome—"Well done, thou good and faithful servant: enter thou into the joy of thy Lord"—extended to his pure soul at the pearly gate. The old soldiers of the cross are fast passing away. May we all meet them at home in the morning of joy.

Correspondence Relating to Brother Langpaap's Going to India.

It is not every man who is competent to do mission work on a distant field who will cut home ties and go; but Brother Max Langpaap, of San Francisco, a young man of good report, has signified his willingness to join the brethren in India and help in the great work so much needed in that vast field. Owing to his German ancestry and the fact that India is involved in the European war, it was not considered wise to send Brother Langpaap on such an expensive journey without assurance that he would be permitted to land. Correspondence addressed to government officials at Washington, London, Bombay, and Delhi have been heard from, with the exception of that sent to London.

Under date of January 11, 1916, the following (taken from a letter from the British embassy, Washington, D. C.) was written: "It is observed from your letter that Mr. Langpaap was born of German parents. The embassy is not authorized to grant permission for missionaries of German origin to enter India, and the ambassador is, therefore, unable to give any assistance in the matter."

In January the Department of State (Washington) gave information to the effect that Mr. Langpaap was entitled to an American passport, and that "in order to facilitate his entry at that port (Bombay) it will be necessary for him to notify the American consul at Bombay in advance of the name of the vessel upon which he is sailing and the approximate time of its arrival in Bombay." This could have been done by telegraphing from Aden, Arabia.

The American vice consul in Bombay advised that Brother Langpaap request the Department of State to take up the matter with the British embassy in Washington and through that office obtain a permit to enter India. This, according to the embassy's statement, could not be given.

Some time ago I received word from the British consulate at St. Louis as follows: "With regard to your recent letter to the India office respecting a Mr. Langpaap, of San Francisco, who wishes to go as a missionary to India, I am instructed to inform you that the Secretary of State for India considers that it would be desirable for Mr. Langpaap to defer his application, in view of the fact that he is of German origin and of the German name he bears."

More recently the following communication came to hand from Simla, India, written by S. R. Hignell, Deputy Secretary to the Government in India: "In reply to your letter dated January 27, 1916, to the address of His Excellency the Viceroy, inquiring whether Mr. Max Langpaap would be permitted to land in India and carry on the work of a missionary, I am directed to say that the whole question of foreign missions is at present under discussion, and that until a decision is reached Mr. Langpaap, in view of his German extraction, should defer his journey to India, since no assurance as to his admittance on arrival can at present be given."

"The matter of the entry of aliens into British territory is one that is governed entirely by the laws of Great Britain," says the American Department of State, "and, for this reason, the Department cannot assure you that Mr. Langpaap would be permitted to enter India even if he should provide himself with a passport of this government. Therefore the Department deems it advisable for him to defer, for the present, the proposed trip."

Thus it is apparent that, after persistent effort has been made on this side of the water (and Brethren McHenry and Jelley have also worked on the matter), it is out of the question to send Brother Langpaap forward at this time. The next question is, Who will offer himself to go? The field is none the less needy because the India government regards it good politics to reject the present application. In view of conditions as they exist in India and elsewhere, we need to feel no resentment toward the government for its decision. I am willing to render assistance to any one who may wish to inquire about going to India.

The other two are mostly self-supporting.

The children are contributing every Sunday to help raise money to print twenty thousand tracts for another festival that comes off on December 7 near the church and home of Brother Tsukamoto. The church at this place is entirely self-supporting. I volunteered to furnish him twenty thousand tracts for the coming festival. Our children here are helping. It will take ten dollars to print them. One cent will pay for ten; five cents, for one hundred; fifty cents, for one thousand. How many children in America will join their little brown cousins in Japan to raise the ten dollars before December 7?

BROTHER ARMSTRONG'S ARTICLE ON "WHO IS SOUND?"

Brother T. A. Dunagan, of Horse Cave, Ky., has sent me this article and writes as follows:

Dear Brother Elam: Please read this and send it to the Gospel Advocate. These are my sentiments, and I think they should be followed by us all. Why not be brethren? As J. A. Harding once said, each has his message, and each can deliver that message better than any one else. Peter and Paul differed, yet Peter referred to Paul as "our beloved brother Paul," and said Paul taught some things that were hard to be received, etc.; yet he did not say that Paul was unsound.

Because Peter did not say Paul was unsound, it does not follow that the great majority of humble and faithful preachers, of elders, and of the whole church must accept the vain and hard-to-be-understood speculations and interpretations of unfulfilled prophecy of some uninspired man of to-day, or must not say he is unsound.

Here is what Peter says:

And account that the long-suffering [embracing the delay of Christ's coming—see verses 9, 10] of our Lord is salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given him, wrote unto you; as also in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things; wherein are some things hard to be understood, which the ignorant and unsteadfast wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction. (2 Pet. 3: 15, 16.)

Certainly, Peter never said Paul was unsound, for they both wrote by inspiration the will of God and were in no way discrepant. Had they differed in their teaching, the difference would have proved one or both to be unsound. We know when and in what they differed. At Antioch Peter dissembled, and led others into the dissimulation; Paul resisted him to the face, "because he stood condemned," and presented the case in its true light according to the gospel "before them all." (See Gal. 2: 11-21.) Paul did this in courtesy and dignity, according to the will of God, and, therefore, in love of truth and all the church. Paul could not have done right without doing this; he was true, faithful, and heroic. This was evidence of his love for Peter. On the other hand, Peter took no offense; no one accused Paul of being envious and jealous of Peter and of persecuting him; Peter never pulled off from Paul, never accused Paul of being a Sanhedrin, never started a paper of his own in order to propagate his dissimulation in spite of Paul's advice against it; on the contrary, he never again practiced dissimulation, but wrote of Paul as stated above.

It is significant that even in Peter's day the things about the second coming of Christ which were "hard to be understood," and not the many things easy to be understood, were the very things upon which "the ignorant and unsteadfast" laid hold and which they twisted and perverted "unto their own destruction."

Let us not be too much carried away with the idea that each one has his message, when every one is charged to "preach the word," "Christ, and him crucified," "the whole counsel of God," "all things that pertain unto life and godliness," "the gospel." To be workmen "approved unto God," all must do this. Paul declares that he never shrank from declaring the whole counsel of God, never shrank from teaching anything that was profitable, and "in all things" set a good example, even working with his own hands in order to show the church how to have something with which to help the needy. (See Acts 20: 20, 27, 34, 35.) The message is God's message, his will; and all must preach that, and must preach it all.

Brother Armstrong's article, I am glad to say, has already appeared in the Gospel Advocate, and Brother McQuiddy has made already some very appropriate and splendid remarks upon it. I was in the office when it came. Knowing that I was preparing some articles covering some of the things contained in Brother Armstrong's article, Brother McQuiddy requested me to proceed with mine, since that which we might say would not interlap; but if so at places, it would be only to impress the truth.

I am glad this article has been written and trust all will read it again. It will help us all to see the only scriptural ground of unity and peace. The grand old brethren to whom he so worthily refers understood this ground; they sought it, found it, and occupied it. Aylett Rains is a most striking example. He was a Universalist. He accepted this ground of teaching only and all that which the Bible teaches and in the language of the Bible, "the pattern of sound words." He wrote in the Millennial Harbinger, 1830, page 148, that his "Restorationist" sentiments "were slowly and imperceptibly departing. He said: "The facts of the New Testament will conquer the world."

The only sure ground of unity and peace is most clearly and strongly taught in the Bible. It is to know nothing, "save Jesus Christ, and him crucified;" to preach not oneself, "but Christ Jesus as Lord," and oneself "a servant [bondservant] for Jesus' sake" (2 Cor. 4: 5); to "all speak the same thing," to "preach the word," to preach the gospel, to speak "the oracles of God;" to do this in the words which the Holy Spirit teaches, "not in words which man's wisdom teacheth;" to "hold the pattern of sound words," "even the words of our Lord Jesus Christ;" to avoid all secret things, which belong to God, and all other questions which God commands to be avoided; and to hold all scruples, opinions, theories, etc., to oneself. Rom. 14 and 15: 1-13 plainly teach all what to do with personal liberties, private opinions, "inference and judgment and minor details," and how to treat brethren who hold to such. No one is to be received into the church for a discussion and decision of his scruples and opinions. Let him hold these to himself. Brethren with scruples about eating only vegetables or about eating meat, about esteeming one day (not the first day of the week) above another, must be received; but they must not be allowed to disturb the church over these things. Those who eat only vegetables must not refuse to others the right to eat meat, and those who eat meat must not attempt to force others to eat it. Just so with "inference and judgment and minor details." So, also, according to Brother Armstrong's article, brethren with their theories about the millennium, Christ's body now in heaven of flesh and bones without blood glorified, the return of the Jews to Palestine and their future, Christ's reigning on David's throne in Jerusalem a thousand years when he comes, "the open route" or "the underground route" to heaven, etc., must be received, but they must hold these things to themselves and not disturb the churches over them.

In the very midst of this teaching Paul stops to exhort all to "follow after the things which make for peace, and things whereby we may edify one another." Not to do this and not to hold all these things to oneself, but to disturb churches over them, is disobedience to God, if not open rebellion against his will; not to do this is certain destruction of the unity and peace which God commands all to give diligence to keep.

In addition to the scriptures referred to, there are 1 Cor. 8 and 1 Cor. 10, demonstrating and enforcing the law of love, and Phil. 2: 1-11, teaching and enforcing humility and the duty to be of one mind, having the same love, of one accord, to do nothing through faction or vainglory, but in lowliness of mind to esteem others better than oneself.

Brother Armstrong very truly says "the undue emphasis and stress that are put on differences now" over "inference and judgment and minor details" have caused the deplorable strife, bitterness, and divisions of to-day. I most seriously ask, Who has done this? Most certainly the ones who have placed the emphasis and given the stress to their own "inference and judgment and minor details." Brother Armstrong cannot mean to teach that the ones who cannot receive and adopt the "inference and judgment and minor details" of others who stress and emphasize them are to blame. It is the same old question of who troubles Israel. "The devil is at work" always in trying to make it appear that the true and faithful ones have troubled Israel. The brethren now who are doing all in their power to persuade all brethren who emphasize and stress their own "inference and judgment and minor details"—peculiar views, crotchets, scruples, speculations, etc.—to hold them to themselves and to be content to preach the gospel, live the Christian life, and worship God "as it is written," cannot be charged with these evil and woeful conditions. They stand on the only ground of unity and peace, and they alone stand on it. Every brother who emphasizes and stresses any "inference," "judgment," or "minor detail" of his own is partly to blame for the strife and division of to-day. There can never be peace and unity until every one keeps his own "inference and judgment and minor details" in the background.

Brother Armstrong further says:

Ah, it has been the work of a few factious spirits that have infused into hearts a wicked, divisive spirit. The devil has been at work, and he has been urging that, no difference how nearly united we are on the great cardinal points of the gospel, these minor differences, after all, should be the final test of "soundness;" and if one does not believe just right on prayer, indwelling of the Holy Spirit, and such matters, he is not sound.

This is shamefully and woefully true, only the "factious spirits" may be not "a few." It is most grievous and fearful to tear apart and rend asunder the body of Christ by "these minor differences." Brother Armstrong cannot mean that all the faithful in Christ Jesus must sit silently by and see the body of Christ tested and torn and divided by "these minor differences" of others. The ones who emphasize and stress "these minor differences" and press them upon the churches are the ones who make them "tests of soundness," just as those who emphasize and stress and press instrumental music upon the churches make it a test of fellowship. Of course, "the devil is at work;" he has always worked. He fashions "himself into an angel of light," and "his ministers also fashion themselves into ministers of righteousness." "By their smooth and fair speech they beguile the hearts of the innocent." Through these gentlemen who "serve not our Lord Christ, but their own belly," the devil is at work. These are the factious spirits who bleed and crucify the body of Christ to-day. They infuse into the hearts of others "a wicked and divisive spirit" and cause occasions of stumbling contrary to the doctrine of Christ. Must these "minor differences," "minor details," one's "inference and judgment" be considered "minor" by those only who cannot accept and adopt them, but major to the ones who emphasize, stress, and press them to the division of churches? Since they are "minor," they should be held as private property. Must all the faithful and godly men and women now, who cling simply to the gospel, God's will, "the things that are written," worship God in spirit and truth, and live soberly and righteously and godly in this present world with an abiding and precious hope of heaven, be accused of being "factious" and of infusing "a wicked and divisive spirit" into the hearts of others, because they cannot accept the "inference and judgment and minor details" of others, and because they warn against making such things "tests of soundness" and against agitating any of the questions which God commands to be avoided? Brother Armstrong will say, "No."

Brother Armstrong is cutting on the taproot of this huge tree of multiplied evils when he says "inference and judgment and minor details" and "minor differences" are generating strife and causing divisions. He might add that the question of who is to be considered the smartest and biggest and leaders has produced no little of the trouble. We were told many times a few years ago that instrumental music in the worship is a "minor detail," a "minor difference," "a piece of furniture," "an add," "a little thing," and that we should not "fuss" over such a small matter. If this "little thing," "minor detail," had been let alone, O the unity and peace the churches would enjoy to-day!

Here is an example. A good brother writes:

Please explain through the Gospel Advocate the following: You say on Lesson III. of this quarter: "The apostles were Christians three years before they were baptized with the Spirit."
Yours in Christ,

This is a kind request from a certain State, with which it is a pleasure to comply. But from another State comes a kind of demand to explain by return mail what is meant by this; and the printing company has just written me that a brother from the third State criticizes me very severely for saying this, because from this the "inference" is, there were Christians before Pentecost. This brother has a theory that there were no Christians until the day of Pentecost, and by that theory the lesson referred to is tested and severely criticized. And while that theory must not be crossed, he and dozens of others can violate God's plain commands in all the scriptures I have mentioned in this article, and the bitterest feelings and divisions ensue. When this and similar examples are multiplied by hundreds, we have the cause of so much bitterness, vilification, denunciation, and division.

To show that the baptism of the Holy Spirit was not to convert sinners, not to let people know they were forgiven or saved, cleansed and purified, etc., I cited the fact that the apostles were followers of Christ, clean (John 15: 3), etc., more than three years before they were baptized in the Holy Spirit. The disciples were not called Christians until some years after Pentecost, which was done at Antioch (Acts 11: 26), but it does not follow that they were not Christians before that time. I shall not fall out with these brethren if they do not call the apostles Christians before Pentecost. They were branches of Christ, the vine; they were "clean;" they were disciples of Christ; they were his "friends;" they were children of God; they were not of this world; they had been sent to preach the gospel of the kingdom and had the power to work miracles; and they belonged to God.

To criticize this statement leads one to think the critics are hunting something to find fault with.

Wine In the Communion Service.

BY M. C. K.

On page 771 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate will be found an article from Brother E. S. Jelley, Jr., of India, on "Bible Wines," criticizing our article published in March on the wine to be used in the Lord's Supper. We write now far removed from our library, and hence without access to any of the authorities to which our brother refers; but we wish to accord to his article the courtesy of an immediate appearance, and hence publish it at once with such comments as seem proper.

Not having access to our former article, we cannot quote the language then used; but the one material issue, however then expressed, is whether or not the wine used in the communion service must necessarily be the unfermented juice of the grape. That it must be the juice of the grape, or fruit of the vine, is beyond all question, for this the Savior, as before shown, distinctly specifies; but we respectfully deny that anything he said makes it binding upon us to have this fruit of the vine in the unfermented state. We showed in our former article that the Hebrew and Greek words used to describe the element used in the communion indicate plainly and indisputably that it may be intoxicating. We had directed particular attention to the Hebrew words "yayin" and "tiros" and to the Greek words "gleukos" and "methuo," contending that, from facts presented by Gesenius and other authorities, the conclusion was unavoidable that fermented wine was used. Now, after our brother makes the wholly gratuitous assertion that "Gesenius is a very prejudiced authority"—an assertion for which he offers no proof—he says: "Of the thirty-eight references, the one he quotes is the only one which could possibly lead to that conclusion." All right; for the sake of the argument, let it go at that. Even if "the one he quotes is the only one which could possibly lead to that conclusion," that is enough. If a thing is proved by one passage in the word of God, it is proved, of course; and neither our courteous critic nor anybody else can overthrow it. From all of this, it seems that it would take several passages to convince Brother Jelley that a given conclusion is true; but we are glad to say that when there is even one passage which can "possibly lead to that conclusion," it settles it with us.

Our brother offers no proof that the wine in question was called by the Hebrew term "tiros" because it was "a valuable possession of the man;" and, since we know that "tiros" is derived from a root meaning "to possess," we stand by the decision of Hebrew scholars that it was so called because of its nature, when taken in sufficient quantity, to get possession of man's brain or intellectual powers. Neither does it follow that "if it was necessarily intoxicating and God considered it a blessing, then we may as well vote prohibition out and patronize the barroom." There are many things which "God considers a blessing" which Brother Jelley could use to his injury, but we are neither to reject them on this account nor to indorse his injurious use of them. Indiscriminate reasoning on religious matters is the source of much false faith and false practice.

Once more, our brotherly critic says: "Brother M. C. Kurfees says 'methuo' means 'to be drunken.' Donegan says it means literally 'to indulge to excess.'" Very well; what if Donegan does say "it means literally to indulge to excess?" Is not that in perfect harmony with our contention that the word meant "to be drunken?" And this word, let the reader bear in mind, is the identical word used by Paul to describe the wine used in the communion service. And so no matter whether Brother Jelley would "believe even the Corinthian Christians would have represented Christ's pure and life-giving blood by that which steals a man's brains and makes him worse than a beast" or not, Paul represented the element by a word which has that exact meaning, and the conclusion, already pointed out, is, therefore, inevitable.

Finally, so far as we are concerned, no "Hebrew and Greek" has been submitted "to convince" any "disciples" at all "that God contradicted himself by both approving and disapproving of alcoholics," any more than God has "contradicted himself by both approving and disapproving of" things to eat, when men, on the one hand, eat them properly, and, on the other hand, use them in becoming gluttons and gormandizers. We must use the fruit of the vine in the communion service because the Scriptures say so, and it is all right to use it in the unfermented state, because the Scriptures do not say in which state it shall be when thus used; but, since the Scriptures do not specify the one to the exclusion of the other, it is useless to undertake to contend for something in religion which the Bible nowhere says, nor says anything from which it is a necessary inference.

The Interest Is Unabated.

The editors of the Gospel Advocate are firm in their convictions of right, but are doing their best to combine kindness with firmness in contending "for the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints." All harshness and the "tit-for-tat" spirit are carefully excluded from the columns of this journal. We earnestly request all our contributors to rise above bitterness and partyism. Truth is served by neither bitterness nor partyism. Either unfits a man for the reception of Christ with his whole heart.

We are pleased to believe that we are succeeding in giving to the church a paper that can be read with interest and profit in any home. Recently a person was telling one of the publishers of a Christian whose wife was a member of a religious denomination. This brother kept the Gospel Advocate in his home. His wife would read the paper when alone, and would cease to read it on his appearance. This she continued long enough to learn the way of the Lord more perfectly. She united with the church of Christ and, thus giving up denominationalism, became simply a Christian. This is only one instance out of many. If your companion for life is a member of a sectarian body, you should by all means have this journal in your home. While the paper often publishes editorials and articles that teach the plan of salvation, it does so lowly, but kindly, in the love of the truth. While we are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ and are ready to defend it, we are not seeking a quarrel with every one we meet. We have no disposition to compromise any part of the truth, but we are sure that all who are bitter and partisan hurt or compromise the truth. Christ never left us any such an example. We shall continue our efforts to improve the paper in every particular and make it just such a paper as you would delight to hand to your religious neighbor and one that all may read with profit.

We shall not neglect to encourage our young to write for our columns. We must develop the young to take the places of those who are passing to their reward. How rapidly "the old guard" is slipping away and leaving for others the work they have so nobly done! Without development the young cannot be prepared for the increased responsibilities that must come upon them. We ask for our young contributors a respectful reception and patient reading. We can never know into what the young contributor will develop. Our greatest editors had to learn how to write.

The publishers are receiving words of encouragement from many sources and from almost every one interested in the work. Occasionally they are losing a subscriber because they firmly stand for the right; but for every one such they lose they gain two who admire a firm presentation of the truth without malice or compromise. We want you with us. We need you and you need the paper. It is fine to work together for the salvation of souls. Ask your friends and acquaintances to subscribe to the Gospel Advocate. Many people are ready to take the paper if you will only ask them. Help us now to swell our circulation.

Just Keep Loving On.

BY LOULA MAE ADKISSON.

(Written especially for the Gospel Advocate.)

Are we His disciples? Do we care to know?
This is the test He gave the world:
That we love each other as through life we go.
So we must love, and just keep loving on.

Doth thy stream of love seem to run low?
Ask of God, and he shall give thee more
From the fathomless sea of love's ceaseless flow;
And you can love, and keep loving on.

Count the many blessings bestowed upon you,
Think how it would be without them,
And your heart shall be filled with love so true
That it shall be easy to keep loving on.

The more we grow like our Father of love,
Whose Spirit dwells within us, he hath said—
The closer we cling to the Savior above,
The easier it is to keep loving on.

Have others pierced thy tender, aching heart
With cruel-pointed daggers gleaming?
God shall heal each wound, bidding thy sorrow depart,
If you trust it to him, and keep loving on.

This is hard—O, very hard!—to do, you say.
Just put yourself in the other's place
And say, "Would I have acted that way?"
Perhaps you would; so just keep loving on.

Usually those who have been unkind
Have some time been kind; think of the good,
Forgetting the evil, and you will find
It easier to just keep loving on.

Has some one been indifferent to thee,
'Tis a test of your loving; for if we love
Only in return, what reward have we?
Seek to forget it, and keep loving on.

O, may we be noble enough alway
To forgive, forget, or overlook
The unkind things others may do or say,
To rise above it, and keep loving on!

O, may we be like the sweet, red rose
That opens its warm heart unto every one,
Exhaling its sweetness where'er it grows,
E'en to the ungrateful, and keep loving on!

O, it shall lessen the anxious care
That fills the great, restless heart of mankind,
And life's desert shall blossom with roses fair
If we love, and just keep loving on!

O, that the word "duty" may be swept away
By the deep, rolling tide, forever lost
In an infinite sea of love, I pray!
And it may be so, if we keep loving on.

O, we shall awake with His likeness some time,
And dwell where love eternal ever reigns,
Far away in a fair and beautiful clime,
If through the years we just keep loving on!

SPIRIT OF THE PRESS

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

Commercializing Christ.

At a recent meeting of the Salesmanship Congress in Detroit, practically all the pulpits of the city were occupied by traveling salesmen. Nearly all the subjects discussed were of a purely business nature, without even the remotest reference to the gospel. It is just possible, however, that many of the congregations failed to detect anything unusual in the preaching.

Sad to say, but it is probably true that the worst enemies of the cross are its unconscious enemies. And this reminds us of the appropriateness of the old prayer; "Lord, deliver us from our friends."

It should be said in behalf of the commercial travelers that they were in no wise to blame for this spectacular specimen of pulpiteering. If the preachers did not have any more grace or gumption, the "knight of the road" could scarcely be supposed to do anything less than accept their graceless invitation. This leads us to say that if the Detroit preachers were, like the commercial men, "on the job," their pulpits would be dedicated to Christ, and not to commerce.

The commercial spirit, now manifest in many of our churches, is discouraging in the last degree. Materialism, and not atheism, is the curse of our century.—Western Recorder.

Preachers can make no greater blunder than to cease preaching the gospel of Christ. Of the gospel Paul declares: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." (Rom. 1: 16.) Commercialism is not the gospel. Again, Paul says: "But far be it from me to glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through which the world hath been crucified unto me, and I unto the world." (Gal. 6: 14.) Paul manifests his deep interest in Timothy and his concern for souls by charging Timothy to "preach the word." The pulpit will never lose its power so long as ministers faithfully declare all the counsel of God. No greater calamity can befall the pulpit than for preachers to show their lack of faith in Christ by ceasing to preach the gospel. The hope of the world is the gospel of Christ. The salvation of the world is dependent on the gospel of Christ. God would not give his own dear Son to come to this world to suffer, bleed, and die in order to give us the gospel, if we could be redeemed without and independent of the gospel. Paul, knowing the gospel is for the conversion of the world, wrote to the church at Corinth: "For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling. And my speech and my preaching were not in persuasive words of wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power; that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." (1 Cor. 2: 2-5.) The preachers who are winning souls to Christ and strengthening the churches are those who are leaving severely alone side issues and are faithfully and persistently preaching the gospel of Christ. If the gospel is not God's power unto salvation, then the Holy Spirit is mistaken and we had as well reject the whole Bible. But the gospel has proved itself through the centuries that are gone; so we may know that when we fail the fault is with us, and not the gospel.

Working for Numbers.

A contemporary says that "the minister who works for numbers more than for purity and piety is destined to see his labors in vain and his work burned up." The aim of the preacher should be to preach the full gospel and leave the results as to numbers or purity with the Lord. "What then is Apollos? and what is Paul? Ministers through whom ye believed; and each as the Lord gave to him. I planted, Apollos watered; but God gave the increase. So then neither is he that planteth anything, neither he that watereth; but God that giveth the increase. Now he that planteth and he that watereth are one; but each shall receive his own reward according to his own labor." (1 Cor. 3: 5-8.) The preacher should not worry if he preaches for ten years without one addition, provided he faithfully declares all the counsel of God. The farmer sows his seed and cultivates and waits for God to give the harvest. If God does not give the genial sunshine and refreshing showers as needed, all his labor will go for naught. He sows his seed without knowing which seed will bring forth new seed. God plants many acorns that never grow an oak, yet some of the acorns produce oaks. God takes care of the crop. So it should be with Christian sowing. "Cast thy bread upon the waters; for thou shalt find it after many days." (Eccles. 11: 1.) On this same subject the Herald and Presbyter remarks:

Possibly true, if he works for numbers only; but suppose he works both for numbers and purity and piety. Success depends on his "foundation." This may be what our contemporary means by purity and piety. If so, it is well to note that the men most efficient in winning numbers are most strenuous in declaring, with Paul, that Christ is the only foundation.

It is the whole duty of man to do the will of God. It is not his business to be anxious about what the morrow may bring forth. "Be not therefore anxious for the morrow: for the morrow will be anxious for itself. Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof." (Matt. 6: 34.)

* * *

Sincerity.

A dispatch from Camden, N. J., last Saturday, told of two painters being killed at a railroad crossing by a train, while working on a sign calling attention to the danger of the crossing, as a warning to others. Is it not possible that some who are giving warning as to eternal spiritual danger may be themselves involved in ruin, being unrepentant and unprepared, and thus unmindful of their own spiritual welfare? The apostle spoke of his personal concern lest when he had preached to others he himself should be a castaway. Let no shepherd forget, even in his studied care for his flock, his responsibility to God for the purity and steadfastness of his own heart and life.—Herald and Presbyter.

Earnestness and sincerity are characteristics that should be prominent in the life of every public proclaimer of the gospel. "Thou therefore that teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preaches a man should not steal, dost thou steal? thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou rob temples?" (Rom. 2: 21, 22.) Often preachers speak out against envy and jealousy, and yet they are far from being free from envy. It has been said that, of the preacher, the lawyer, and the physician, the preacher is the most envious. This may not be true, and I hope it is false. There is no excuse for jealousy on the part of preachers. If I am writing to a preacher who is jealous of his brother preacher, I would say to him: "Physician, heal thyself." The preacher should be far from taking the highest seat in the synagogue. In honor they should prefer one another. All should ask the Lord to give them a heart that is free from guile and envy. "Love envieth not; love vaunteth not itself, is not puffed up, doth not behave itself unseemly, seeketh not its own, is not provoked, taketh not account of evil." Let all covet the large, generous soul that envieth not.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Compiled by A. B. Lipscomb

E. M. Borden, of Little Rock, Ark., is in a meeting at Floyd, Texas.

J. C. Estes, of Dallas, Texas, is holding some meetings in Tennessee. He is now at work near Ashland City.

Eph Smith was in to see us on Tuesday. He had closed an interesting meeting at Dillton, with three baptisms.

Jesse P. Sewell called to see us on Tuesday of last week. He had just closed an interesting meeting at Alexandria, Tenn. One baptized.

John T. Smith was in to see us last Friday. He was on his way to Cathey's Creek, Maury County, to hold a meeting, which will continue about ten days.

G. W. Riggs, of Los Angeles, Cal., is visiting relatives in Tennessee. He would be glad to hold a few meetings from August 15 to September 30. Write to him in care of the Gospel Advocate.

In a personal letter Brother Kurfees writes from Winston-Salem, N. C., under date of July 27: "Several have demanded baptism here to-day. Good interest, notwithstanding the unprecedented rains and floods."

T. B. Larimore closed a meeting at Mount Pleasant, Tenn., on the fourth Lord's day in this month. Eight baptisms and fine interest throughout. He is now at Hurricane Mills, Tenn., in his regular annual meeting.

From J. Paul Kimbrell, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., July 28: "On last Lord's day I preached at Greenwood, Giles County, once, and twice at Weakley's Creek. I will spend next Sunday at Hohenwald, and will be at Rich Pond, Ky., on August 6."

From David L. Thompson, Murray, Ky., July 26: "I closed a ten-days' meeting with the Fairview congregation, in Henry County, Tenn., on Monday. Two were added to the one body—one by primary obedience and one by restoration. Crowds and interest were good throughout."

From John A. Klingman, Midland, Ind., July 26: "After leaving Cincinnati, I began a meeting at Summerville, Ind., which will close on Thursday night. The interest has been good throughout. Three young ladies were baptized last Lord's day. My address next week will be Lyons, Ind."

Mrs. J. W. Hart, of Flat Creek, Tenn., writes us the cheering word that J. D. Floyd is slowly improving, but we regret to learn that his daughter has contracted typhoid fever. Sister Hart states that "the whole community very much enjoyed the singing of the Nashville Bible School quartet."

From R. V. Cawthon, Mount Juliet, Tenn.: "I have recently been in two meetings—one at Martha, under a tent, with six baptisms; the other at Hill's Chapel, with six baptisms. At present I am at Silver Springs in a tent meeting. Claude Woodroof led the singing at the first two places, and my father, H. P. Cawthon, is with me now."

The editor of this page closed an interesting meeting at Coopertown, Tenn., Friday evening, July 28. Thirteen persons responded to the Master's invitation. This number included eleven baptisms. Coopertown is the home of T. J. Ellis, one of the best men I ever met. For fifty years he has lived in this community, teaching and preaching the gospel. His influence is far-reaching.

From H. M. Phillips: "I have just closed an interesting meeting near Murray, Ky. There were six baptisms. Large crowds every night. I left the church in good condition. It is above the average. Union Grove is a working band. I go next near Watertown, Tenn., with the Commerce congregation. I will be there for a week or more. Success to the Gospel Advocate."

The wedding of Mr. David M. Hestand and Miss Bessie Mai Dodd, in Nashville, on July 17, was an enjoyable social event to a large number of relatives and friends. The ceremony took place at the home of the bride's parents and was performed by her grandfather, our beloved E. G. Sewell. The happy couple will make their home in Sherman, Texas, where the groom is in business. The Gospel Advocate extends heartiest congratulations.

John S. Durst has our deepest sympathy in the death of his son, John M. Durst, who departed this life on July 10, 1916. It is natural to mourn over the loss of our dear ones, but we should not forget that God doeth all things well and that our light afflictions work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory. Brother Durst has long been a faithful servant of the Lord, and we can only commend him to Jehovah, who will give him the strength to endure his loss.

From C. R. Nichol, president of Thorp Spring Christian College: "Every reader of the Gospel Advocate who truly loves the cause of Christian education will rejoice to learn that we have an A-grade college at Thorp Spring. Christian education everywhere will be strengthened by this advancement at Thorp Spring. We have just added another university graduate to our faculty. Every mail brings more calls for catalogues and school inquiries than we can answer. We are compelled to use a stenographer part of the time. The outlook grows brighter. Thorp Spring Christian College moves along purely on her merits. She has no special reduced rates and other inducements merely to get students. Thoughtful students will see the value in genuine merit."

From L. S. White, Dallas, Texas, July 27: "We had a good day at the Pearl and Bryan Streets Church last Sunday. There were two confessions and baptisms. My son, Joe W. White, closed his meeting at Grand Prairie with two baptisms. His next meeting will begin next Sunday with the Diamond Hill congregation, at Fort Worth. I am to begin a meeting in Washington, D. C., on the first Sunday in August. The meeting will be held in a large hall on the first floor of the Masonic Temple, at the corner of Eighth and F Streets, N. E. Any of the readers who have friends in Washington will do well to write them and tell them of the meeting. I want the earnest prayers of every lover of the Lord for the success of that meeting. I expect to be there through the month of August. I expect to speak in Nashville on the first Sunday in September—at Foster Street Church in the morning, at Watkins Hall in the afternoon, and at the West Nashville Church at night."

The Joy Fund Grows.

Many of our readers have become interested in the fund for sending the Gospel Advocate to invalids and poor people. We are writing letters almost every day to the beneficiaries, whose gratitude is freely expressed. Let the good work continue. We have a long list of people who are eligible for this fund. The following have sent contributions for the Joy Fund since last week: William Bradford, Nashville, Tenn., $5; Mrs. J. W. Owens, Nashville, Tenn., $2; H. M. Towney, Prairie View, Ark., $1; C. S. Hawkins, Auburn, Tenn., $1; W. R. Mingle, Bellbuckle, Tenn., $1; Mrs. D. W. Scates, Martin, Tenn., $1; W. H. Owen, Henderson, Tenn., $1. Just mark your contribution, "For Joy Fund;" or, if you prefer, send us the name of the person you wish to receive the paper. PUBLISHERS GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

R. K. MORGAN,
Principal Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tennessee.

Not Equipment, But the Man Makes the Difference in Schools.

A man to whom you may trust your boy with absolute confidence is Mr. Robert K. Morgan, principal of the Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn.

During the past twenty-five years Mr. Morgan has built up this training school for boys, around his own long experience and his study of boy nature and of the problems of giving the boy the mental preparation, physical well-being, and spiritual strength for an honorable, manly, successful life. He has chosen his faculty, equipped his school, and ordered its conduct with one purpose in view.

Mr. Morgan is a graduate of the Webb School, Bell Buckle, Tenn., and the Vanderbilt University. He is a man of strong, wholesome personality and deep Christian character—an inspiration to every boy who comes under his care. His close, personal relations with his boy students, his attention to their work, their talents, their special needs, have given his school a position of high distinction. The citizens of Fayetteville have recently presented him with a fifteen-thousand-dollar building as an addition to his school.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, secretary Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school.

Calcium's Value in Tuberculosis

As a tonic and remedial agent in the treatment of tuberculosis, this element is being studied by scientists and physicians everywhere.

For more than two decades users of Eckman's Alternative have tested its efficacy in such cases, for calcium chlorid is one of the chief constituents of this preparation, which has produced beneficial results in thousands of instances. And in this form it is so combined as to be easily assimilated.

If you are thus afflicted, a trial may prove this to be just what is needed to assist Nature in bringing about a return to normal health.

It is safe to take, because it contains no poisonous or habit-forming drugs of any sort. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

Tribute to a Good Man.

When a man has lived a godly life for over threescore and ten years, it seems fitting that such a life be made known to others, that they may be encouraged to emulate such an example and thus glorify their Father who is in heaven.

Brother J. C. Riley died on June 14 at the ripe age of eighty-seven. Brother Kurfees preached the funeral sermon from Rev 14: 13: "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." No more fitting text could have been chosen; of him most truly could it be said.

Brother Riley was born at Springfield, Ky., on May 10, 1829. When but a youth of fifteen he confessed his Savior and was buried with him in baptism. From that time throughout his long life he devoted himself to his Master's service. In the prime of young manhood he began to take public part in the worship at Lebanon, Ky. Later he erected near his home at Riley's Station a building to be used both as a church house and schoolhouse. He then engaged and boarded the teacher. On Sundays he conducted a Sunday school and the worship of the assembly and on Wednesday nights led the prayer meeting. When a preacher could be had, he was invited to preach for the little congregation, and his hospitable house became the preacher's home, where his faithful wife fitted up a "preacher's room." Among those who found rest and refuge here was a minister from Australia, who said: "Sister Riley, this is the easiest place to come to and the hardest place to leave, I have found in America."

In 1871 Brother Riley left his native State and went to Kansas to live. Here he searched out the brethren and gathered them together for worship, meeting at first in a building which has done service as a granary for corn. Later, when his own dwelling was completed, he often had preaching here.

Returning to Kentucky after some years, he settled near Middletown, and there identified himself with the church, serving it as an elder for many years. Wherever he went, like Abraham of old, he raised an altar to his God, and was always active in the worship, serving as elder with different congregations for fifty years.

During the past few years he had lived at St. Matthews, and when able to do so had worshiped with the Campbell Street church of Christ, Louisville, Ky. While one of the best of men all his life, he allowed nothing to interfere with the service of his Master; that dominated his life. His Bible was his lifelong companion, and next to his Bible came the Gospel Advocate, which for years he read with deepest interest.

In an intimate acquaintance with him for almost half a century, I have never known him to utter a word or do an act unworthy a Christian. All who came within his influence felt the power of his godly life. A kind and tender husband and father, a true and faithful friend and neighbor, a sincere and devoted Christian—what higher praise could be given any man?

ONE WHO KNEW AND LOVED HIM.

Club Solves Piano Problem.

The greatest danger in buying a piano or player-piano is the difficulty in selecting one of real and lasting quality. There are so many cheap imitations on the market that the chances of full and permanent satisfaction are slight unless you are an expert judge and are extremely careful in your selection.

If you feel that you are not a good judge of the quality, durability, and value of an instrument, or if you have not time to make an exhaustive investigation of these matters, why not throw the responsibility on the piano club? It has already made the investigation for you and will assume the full responsibility of giving you absolute and perfect satisfaction and the largest possible value for your money. What your insurance policy is to your home, the club is to your piano or player-piano.

But the club does not stop there. It clubs your order with those of ninety-nine other subscribers, thus securing the lowest possible factory price for each club member. It provides convenient terms of payment, the strongest guarantees of quality and durability, and gives you the opportunity to try your instrument thoroughly before you buy. The club absolutely guarantees perfect satisfaction in every detail of piano buying. Write for your copy of the catalogue to-day. Address the Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Ga.

An Appeal in Behalf of Brother Fuqua.

On account of gross misrepresentation sent out against Brother Fuqua about one year ago from Greeley, Col., he has been unable to meet his financial obligations. What he owes is for the necessities of life, doctor's bills, and carrying on the work in Colorado. Contributions to sustain the mission work he is doing here in Colorado have fallen off and he has been running gradually behind till he now owes three hundred dollars that he cannot possibly pay without assistance from the brotherhood. These obligations have been due for some time, and the demand that they be met is so urgent that it is imperative that something be done without delay, or our good brother will suffer humiliation at the hands of creditors and the cause will be greatly injured. Remember, Brother Fuqua's work is in a strictly missionary field. He has no opportunity to preach to strong congregations that are able to remunerate him. He has received urgent invitations to preach for congregations in Tennessee, California, and Kansas, that could pay him for his services, but he has declined to go, preferring to suffer privation and hardships to preach the gospel where others will not. We are sure that there is no more needy field than Western Colorado, and few that are better qualified to do the work than Brother Fuqua. Now, brethren, let us all do our duty and relieve Brother Fuqua of this distressing condition within the next thirty days. Three hundred brethren at a dollar each, or sixty at five dollars each, or thirty at ten dollars each, would wipe out this indebtedness and save Brother and Sister Fuqua worry, and possibly humiliation, and would scarcely be missed by the givers. We want to especially appeal to preaching brethren that are laboring for strong congregations to lay this matter before their respective congregations and send a contribution to Brother Fuqua. We most earnestly request those who can to assist Brother Fuqua in this hour of need. Address him at Olathe, Col.

Report of Funds.

BY LEE GARRETT.

In addition to the amount previously reported ($725.65), the following contributions have been received for the use of the church at Paris, Texas: From Mrs. S. M. Hatchel, Anson, Texas, one package; John T. Hines, $1; church at Rio Vista, Texas, one box of bed clothing; two primary classes, Hebron, Ky., by Miss Annie Flint, $4; church at Temple, Texas, by W. B. Newby, $5.50; Mrs. Etta Moody, Idabel, Okla., $2; G. M. Jones, Charco, Texas, $2.50; church at Wichita Falls, Texas, $12; Mrs. Annie Hudson, Anson, Texas, $1; Don Carlos Janes, $1; church at Kenton, Tenn., by A. D. Midyett, $4.65; Miss Rosa Bullock, Konawa, Okla., one quilt; Mrs. J. T. Jordan, 50 cents; Bryan Shofner, Nashville, Ark., $2; Eppie Wilcox, Murray, Ky., $1; B. F. Jordan, Prescott, Ark., $1; Owen's Chapel congregation, Williamson County, Tenn., $15.61; Florence, Texas, by W. J. Tomlin, bedding and clothing; F. L. Young and a sister, Cleburne, Texas, $2; church at Lubbock, Texas, by J. D. Wood, $40; reported in the Leader, by F. L. Rowe, $1; Mrs. Laura V. Odom, Jud, Texas, $1; individuals at Roxton, Texas, by Mrs. Loughmiller, $3.50; church at Denison, Texas, by W. D. Cameron, $13; church at Bismarck, Ill., by B. B. Brown, $10. Total, $849.91.

This includes all that has been sent to me from the date of the fire until now (July 19). Brother D. T. Carlton is traveling in this State in the interest of the Paris church and is receiving some nice contributions, but almost all who are being solicited are having some fellowship. Some five hundred dollars has been received by the church treasurer through Brother Carlton's efforts.

It was reported in some of the secular papers of Texas that a certain brother was furnishing the greater part of the money to build the building. I do not know how this reached the papers, but it is not the truth. The church has borrowed enough money to erect the building, and expects to pay this in the next few years.

The work is progressing nicely on the building, and we hope to have it completed by September and to have a meeting in October, conducted by Brother J. B. Nelson, a former evangelist of this church. Had it not been for the help received from the churches in America, our burden would have been much the heavier. The church is indeed grateful for all help received and is putting forth the best effort possible to use it aright. May God bless every one who has had

Books for the College.

I want to make the Bible department in the Thorp Spring Christian College the most attractive work in the school. To do this, we must have a good library. As I am head of this department and shall teach most of the classes, I am more deeply concerned in it, and am asking the friends of Christianity to assist me in this work. We need a good selection of church histories, Bible dictionaries, and works on Christian evidences. Commentaries on the Bible are badly needed. Any good commentary will help. We shall appreciate any good work on the Bible.

Will those who have books they do not need please send them to us? Preachers and teachers and others collect good books, read them, and lay them aside. Send them to our school. Send them at once.

Stop Cheating Your Family.

You doubtless fully realize your duty to your family in making your home life attractive, entertaining, cultured, and refined; and you have promised yourself that some day you will fill that vacant spot in the parlor with a splendid piano or player-piano of the sweetest tone and highest quality, or that you will replace the old rattle-trap with a superb new instrument. But the days, the months, and possibly the years have silently crept by, and still there is no good music in your home. In the meantime, home is not what it might be, for a home without a high-grade piano or player-piano is seriously and hopelessly handicapped.

You have only one life to live here; why let procrastination steal your family's best opportunity for social, mental, and spiritual advancement? The Gospel Advocate Piano Club will solve the financial problem for you now. It was organized to overcome the very difficulties which confront you. By clubbing your order with those of ninety-nine other subscribers, you save forty per cent of the price and yet are responsible only for your own order. Convenient terms of payment are provided. You try the instrument in your own home and must be thoroughly satisfied before finally accepting it.

Write for your copy of the club's catalogue and full particulars to-day. Address Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Ga.

The Master's Vineyard

Alabama.

Bridgeport, July 19.—Brother J. D. Gunn, of Sparta, Tenn., began a meeting with the church here on the second Sunday in June and continued it till Wednesday night after the fourth Sunday. The attendance, attention, and interest were fine throughout the meeting. The preaching was fine, and the whole church seemed pleased with the preacher and the preaching. Twenty-four made the good confession and were baptized and two were converted from the error of their way. The church was very much aroused, encouraged, and strengthened, and lasting good was done in the Master's name. This was one of the best and most helpful meetings ever held at Bridgeport. Brother Gunn is a good man, a strong preacher, and always true and loyal to God's word. May the Lord abundantly bless him and his family.

CHARLES HOLDER.

Moulton, July 24.—Last Wednesday night we closed an eight-days' meeting at Hattin, which resulted in twelve additions—ten by baptism and two reclaimed. We began preaching in the home of Brother Morgan. After having preached three discourses, the trustees opened to us the schoolhouse, which had been closed against the truth. The brethren have permission from the trustees to use the school building for Lord's-day worship until they can complete the church building, which they have framed. A large audience attended each service, and all seemed to be very eager for the truth to be preached. The brethren there have a nice lot, the deed of which contains the restrictive clause. They have framed a good-sized building, but are going to need some help in completing the work. Brethren, you will do a good work in helping them. Send all donations to Will Morgan, Town Creek, Ala., Route 1. I am doing evangelistic work in North Alabama. Pray for me in the great work.

C. H. BAKER.

Arkansas.

Camden, July 17.—I am now in a fine meeting near this place. Large crowds and good attention. I hope to do much good.

D. L. HATLE.

Colorado.

Olathe, July 17.—My tent meeting in Olathe closed one week ago yesterday. I reported the direct result of said meeting a few days ago. At our regular Lord's-day meeting yesterday there were five more additions—two from the Baptists and three baptized yesterday evening. I heard directly to-day that there were at least two more wanting to be baptized. This is certainly a glorious work. The accessions yesterday at our regular Lord's-day meeting show the gradual and sure increase in interest here in Olathe. I had another very large audience last night in our old hall. This is our fifth month in Olathe, and we have about twenty-two faithful members already. Somebody is praying for this effort. Is that somebody you? I leave to-morrow for a meeting in Dolores. Will return to Olathe, the Lord willing. Address all mail for me to Olathe, Col.

E. C. FUGCA.

Georgia.

Atlanta, July 19.—The meeting at Douglasville closed on Sunday night. No additions, but much good done. Rain hindered much. I begin at Klondike, Texas, next Sunday.

D. S. LIGON.

India.

Tali Tal, Naini Tal, U. P., British India, June 8.—A few weeks ago a member of the priestly Brahmin caste expressed the wish to improve his English. I suggested the American Standard Bible as textbook and promised to teach him. He soon began to attend prayers and meeting and witnessed two baptisms, all of which were new to him. On Monday I baptized him, the pure word having won his heart. He is a young surveyor with good pay and prospects, but he intends to fit himself for the ministry. Pray for him.

E. S. JELLEY, JR.

Kentucky.

Louisville, July 26.—The Highland Church is in its second tent meeting in a section of the city away from our former tent work. The attendance is good. One baptized the first week. I was at Buechel and Okolona last Sunday.

DON CARLOS JAMES.

Dixon, July 20.—We closed our meeting at Henderson on Saturday night. Seven were baptized, two of whom were Baptists and one a Methodist. One was reclaimed. I am now in a meeting at Baker Schoolhouse, near Dixon.

C. C. HOUSTON.

Hopkinsville, July 24.—I closed a two-weeks' meeting at Antioch Church, near Cadiz, last night. We had large and enthusiastic crowds at each service. Two were baptized into the one body. I will begin a meeting near Wynne, Ark., on the fifth Sunday in this month.

H. F. PENDERGRASS.

Louisiana.

Amite, July 21.—We have just started a congregation in this city. Our meeting here continues until Sunday night. I will send in report when it closes.

W. J. JOHNSON.

Ridgeland, July 22.—Last Sunday night I closed a week's meeting in a schoolhouse about two and one-half miles from Carpenter. We have only a few members there—two families who went from Tennessee. Interest was good. Two were baptized and the seed sown. Last Sunday we had din-

The few brethren need help on a house which they hope to build in the near future. Send Mrs. C. R. Welch a contribution for this work. I have just closed a good meeting at Hollywood. Six obeyed the gospel. I go next to Zelma, and then to Calvert City, Ky.

Roswell, July 20.—Our meeting closed at Lubbock, Texas, on Tuesday night, near midnight, at the water. There were forty-nine additions—thirty-seven by baptism. Brother Liff Sanders, who has made Lubbock his home for seventeen years, is a fine man and has the confidence of all. We began here last evening. Prospects good.

J. W. DUNN.

Clayton, July 18.—I came here on the first Sunday in August, 1914, and held a meeting, which resulted in one addition, and found a few members scattered around, who agreed to meet as the Lord commands, which they did from house to house part of the time when they could not get the schoolhouse. Then I moved here in April, 1915. This is twelve miles southwest of Clayton. After seeing it was almost impossible to keep house for the Lord without a house, while we were all poor and hard run trying to improve our claims and live, we decided to build; so I wrote to several churches and stated our condition, telling them if they saw fit to help us we would appreciate it and report same. The following churches responded: Church of Christ at Florence, Texas, $5; church at Garrett, Okla., $5; Antioch Church, in Jackson County, Tenn., $5. We are very thankful indeed to these brethren for their donations. We have now a good, nice house, twenty-four by thirty-six feet, with the restrictive clause in the deed. We have preaching once or twice a month; church meeting every Lord's day. This is an almost destitute field, and we are doing all we can to advance the cause. We owe only one hundred and twenty-seven dollars and twenty cents on our house, and it is not due till fall. We all are working hard to raise a good crop, so we can pay our note this fall.

Oklahoma.

Erick, July 21.—I recently closed a mission meeting at Roaring Springs, Texas. Many heard the word, but there were no additions. I started a few members to meeting there in the winter, and Brother Rice preached once for them since and Brother Mike M. Young several times, but this was their first protracted meeting. I hope there was some real good done. Brethren from Matador and Afton helped much in the meeting. I am here in Erick, to begin to-morrow night.

T. H. ETHERIDGE.

Foss, July 7.—Brother George W. Farmer, of Lebanon, Tenn., began a meeting for us on the third Lord's day in June and continued it till June 30. There were only three live members of the church of Christ here and some twelve or fourteen dead ones (spiritually). We have no house of our own to worship in; so we had to hold our meeting under an arbor in the city park, and we were rained out for three nights, which was a setback to our meeting. We had as good preaching as could be. Brother Farmer is a strong man in the gospel and a fine teacher of the word of God in its purity. He is a forcible speaker, and to know him is to love him. He allayed prejudice and made a good impression with all he met while here. We were not able to pay Brother Farmer for his labor, as there are only three of us, and all poor in this world's goods. We had one added to the church, and we are going to meet each Lord's day and keep house for the Lord. We have to meet in the opera hall, but we are determined to worship God according to his word. We would be glad of any encouragement or help from any brother or congregation that may feel like helping us. May God bless all the faithful in Christ.

Gassaway, July 24.—I am in a meeting at Gassaway, in Cannon County. Good crowds and good interest to begin with.

C. M. GLEAVES.

Jingo, July 24.—Our meeting closed with much interest manifested. There were eighteen added to the church—fifteen baptisms and three restorations. Two of those baptized were from the Methodists.

WILLIAM P. WALKER.

Prairie Plains, July 21.—I closed a fine meeting at Little Mountain Church, three miles out from Winchester, with ten additions. Now in a good meeting here. I will begin at Pelham next Sunday night.

J. D. NORTHCUT.

Livingston, July 25.—The meeting at Mount Pleasant closed yesterday after continuing nine days. Four were baptized. The audiences were large and attentive. A more energetic congregation I have never found.

B. C. GOODPASTURE.

Henderson, July 19.—I have just closed a good meeting at Knob Creek, near Dukedom, which continued eight days. Large crowds attended these services both day and night. Seven were baptized and one restored. I will begin at Blackwater, in Western Missouri next Sunday.

WOMAN HAD NERVOUS TROUBLE

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helped Her.

West Danby, N. Y.—"I have had nervous trouble all my life until I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for nerves and for female troubles and it straightened me out in good shape. I work nearly all the time, as we live on a farm and I have four girls. I do all my sewing and other work with their help, so it shows that I stand it real well. I took the Compound when my ten year old daughter came and it helped me a lot. I have also had my oldest girl take it and it did her lots of good. I keep it in the house all the time and recommend it."—Mrs. DEWITT SINCEBAUGH, West Danby, N. Y.

Sleeplessness, nervousness, irritability, backache, headaches, dragging sensations, all point to female derangements which may be overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

This famous remedy, the medicinal ingredients of which are derived from native roots and herbs, has for forty years proved to be a most valuable tonic and invigorator of the female organism. Women everywhere bear willing testimony to the wonderful virtue of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Like a Boy at 50 Bubbling Over With Vitality—Taking Iron Did It

Doctor says Nuxated Iron is greatest of all strength builders—Often increases the strength and endurance of delicate, nervous folks 200 per cent. in two weeks time.

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Not long ago a man came to me who was nearly half a century old and asked me to give him a preliminary examination for life insurance. I was astonished to find him with the blood pressure of a boy of 20 and as full of vigor, vim and vitality as a young man; in fact a young man he really was notwithstanding his age. The secret he said was taking iron—nuxated iron had filled him with renewed life. At 30 he was in bad health; at 40 careworn and nearly all in. Now at 50 a miracle of vitality and his face beaming with the buoyancy of youth. As I have said a hundred times over, iron is the greatest of all strength builders. If people would only throw away patent medicines and nauseous concoctions and take simple nuxated iron, I am convinced that the lives of thousands of persons might be saved, who now die every year from pneumonia, grippe, consumption, kidney, liver and heart trouble, etc. The real and true cause which started their diseases was nothing more nor less than a weakened condition brought on by lack of iron in the blood. Iron is absolutely necessary to enable your blood to change food into living tissue. Without it, no matter how much or what you eat, your food merely passes through you without doing you any good. You don't get the strength out of it and as a consequence you become weak, pale and sickly looking just like a plant trying to grow in a soil deficient in iron. If you are not strong or well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run-down people who were ailing all the while double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fifteen days time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctored for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the fray, while many another has gone down to inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.—E. Sauer, M.D.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron, recommended above by Dr. Sauer, is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents are widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

A Good Meeting at Cookeville, Tenn.

The cause of the Master is moving along nicely in Cookeville. Brother M. Keeble, of Nashville, has just closed a two-weeks' meeting here with good success. Six persons were baptized, one from the Methodists and one from the Baptists. Like Paul, Brother Keeble turned Cookeville upside down. (See Acts 17: 6.) This was one of the best meetings ever held in Cookeville at the church of Christ. We had good attendance each night, except when it rained. Brother T. Q. Martin, who was holding a series of meetings here for the white people, and a good many of the members came over on the first Sunday in July, in the afternoon, and spoke for us; and we heartily thank them for their liberal contribution, for Brother Keeble is worthy of his hire. May God be with him and his family and strengthen him, that he may go on and preach the word.

OLLIE M. JOHNSON.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

The camp meeting at Glady Hill began on July 9 and closed on July 23. Six are baptized, two confessed their sins and promised to live better, and one by commendation—nine in all. There were a few more campers this year than last, and all seemed to enjoy the meeting. A few from other congregations attended a part of the time, but not as many as usual. Wars, rumors of wars, wet and dry weather, short crops, automobiles, joy riding, moving-picture shows, the dancing hall at the Shaw Park, baseball on Sunday, and the "washout" in Lake County, where men and women in an almost nude condition wade, swim, and do many things that would cause a blush to come to the cheek of Modesty—all to hinder, all to work against during a meeting—make it very hard on a few faithful, God-loving and God-fearing souls in an effort to convert people. The world is money and pleasure mad, and not a few church members are falling into the mad craze and downward course to ruin. Feminine modesty is growing less; true gentlemanliness is waning; Christianity is fighting in the last ditch for existence, and at times seems to be unable longer to cope with the great odds and influences that now exist.

Deaths from gunshots, drowning, etc., do not check the many in their frenzied pursuit of pleasure, frolic, fun, and lustful pastime. If the devil has headquarters on earth, Reelfoot Lake and the "washout," if not headquarters, are branch offices with full connection with headquarters, receiving the approval of the satanic one and full instructions for things more indecent and damnable. Carload after carload of members of the church would pass Gladly Hill on their way to the lake—no time to stop; no time for churchgoing; no time for singing, praying, preaching, and converting sinners; headed for the park and the washout, and there we must go. A poor preacher and a few faithful souls seem to make slow headway in a fight against such things. But the fight is on; the call for volunteers can be heard, but very few heed the call. One more thing to add—religious prejudice, hatred for the truth as taught by Christ and the apostles, the hardest of all to remove. We are still in the fight and very close to headquarters of the enemy, doing what we can to drive him from his intrenchments, and would rejoice over all the help we can get.

MONEY IN PIGEONS

Make Your Back Yard Profitable

THE demand for squabs in the Northern, Eastern and Southern markets has never been supplied, because pigeon raising as a business is comparatively new. Buy a half dozen pair of select birds, fence in a small portion of your back yard and watch them go to work. Success is easy. They raise from eight to fifteen pairs of squabs a year. Your squabs and fancy birds will bring handsome returns. You will actually make money in a hitherto useless part of your back yard. Pigeon raising is not a fad or fancy. It is a profitable business. Let us start you right. Our breeders are the best, and raised from prize winning parents. We will furnish you with the birds and teach you how to raise them, and you will reap a handsome profit with a very little outlay. Thousands are taking advantage of this same opportunity. Write to-day for our literature on pigeon raising as a money making proposition, or better still, write us to send you a few pair of Belgian Carneaux at $3.00 per pair, White Swiss Mondaines at $5.00 per pair, White Kings at $3.50 per pair, or White Maltese at $4.00 per pair. Our birds are all guaranteed. Your money back if after two months you are not satisfied with their work. Better prices on larger orders. Write to-day and get the pick of the flock.

Next Lord's day (July 30) we begin at Jones' Chapel, north of the washout, and then at Burris' Chapel, south of the washout, and hope and pray to be neither washed out nor knocked out, and that we may not play out, but do good, faithful work for the Lord and turn many "from darkness unto light, and from the power of Satan unto God." Pray for us.

Brother, do you pay for and read the Gospel Advocate? If not, why not?

Various Thoughts.

BY DON CARLOS JAMES.

"Jehovah knoweth the thoughts of man, that they are vanity." (Ps. 94: 11.)

An artist, who afterwards became Bishop Tucker, of Uganda, was painting the picture of a poor, thinly clad woman wandering homeless on a dark, deserted street on a stormy night as she carried her babe pressed to her bosom, when he suddenly threw down his brush and said: "Instead of merely painting the lost, I will go out and save them."

As a part of "Our Purpose," which the Interpreter (Glasgow, Scotland) publishes on its first page, we have the following:

To advocate the purity and holiness of life—the observance of all things whatsoever Jesus commanded the apostles to teach, as set forth in the teaching of Christ and the apostles.

To advocate the authority of the congregations, with their overseers and deacons, to conduct the worship, administer discipline, receive or exclude members according to scripture, and to transact all matters of the kingdom within their limits, recognizing no jurisdiction from abroad.

To advocate, in a word, a complete return in all things to the original—an acceptance of that which came from the Lord and a repudiation of what did come from the Lord.

Says W. D. Cunningham: "In view of the frequent reference to the subject in the Bible, one wonders why so little is said nowadays about the coming of our Lord."

A Superb Instrument.

The advertising manager of this paper has recently purchased a Baby Grand Piano from Schmoller & Mueller Piano Company, Gospel Advocate Department, Omaha, Neb., whose advertising is appearing in the Gospel Advocate. We cannot too strongly commend this house and its product to the readers of this paper. The instrument is beautifully finished and makes a splendid appearance, is of exquisite tone and easy action, and it is difficult to see how it could be improved upon in any particular.

Any reader of the Gospel Advocate who is interested in securing a most excellent piano at a very reasonable figure, considering the quality, should consider the catalogue and prices of Schmoller & Mueller Piano Company, Department G. A., Omaha, Neb.

Among Our Workers

Tennessee.

Union City, July 24.—The meeting closed at Berea last night with four baptized and four reclaimed. G. A. Dunn did the preaching. Brother J. Paul Slayden's meeting at Lexington closed about ten days ago with fine interest, but no additions.

A. J. VETETO.

Lewisburg, July 24.—The Hartsville meeting closed last week with good interest, but no additions. It is here that Brother T. H. Burton lives, instead of Bowling Green, Ky., as the note in last issue makes me say. I begin at Hendersonville next Monday night.

M. L. MOORE.

Gainesboro, July 21.—Meetings among the disciples of the Upper Cumberland country continue with increasing interest. Notwithstanding the heavy rains and intense heat, the crowds have been immense. Fourteen added in twelve days. I had been in the field in Florida before coming to Tennessee.

L. J. JACKSON.

Fayetteville, July 22.—I am in a meeting at Center Ridge, one mile off rural route and three miles from telephone. Rough country—well, yes; but good folks. Four baptized to date. Good interest. The Primitive Baptists and Holiness people are stirred. I will close to-morrow night. I am very hoarse; preaching in a tent.

C. E. WOOLBRIDGE.

Henderson, July 24.—I have just closed a meeting at McConnell, with good interest and eight baptized. Two were Methodists. The church there has a great opportunity for doing good and extending its influence. They are doing fairly well. I am now in a meeting at Bethel, four miles east of Mayfield, Ky., which promises well. Two more meetings in Alabama will keep me engaged till the opening of school, September 6.

W. H. OWEN.

Friendship, July 8.—I closed my work with the Highland Avenue church of Christ, at Jackson, on the fourth Sunday in June, after laboring with them about two and one-half years. On Friday night after my last Sunday with the church I baptized two very excellent women, wives of two of our best brethren in Jackson. Our stay with the church at Jackson was fairly pleasant, and I trust that great good was done. There are some as good brethren in Jackson as are to be found anywhere—men who love the work of our Lord and are willing to sacrifice and be spent in his service. We regretted to leave these brethren who stood by us so faithfully, but there were other conditions which seemed to indicate that it would be best for the work that our labors with them cease. There were quite a number added to the church during my stay, and brethren were pressed into the work until numbers of them are able to conduct the work properly and profitably. The church has been raised to a standard where it is recognized among other churches of the city. I consider the work in fairly good condition. I regret that there is not perfect peace and harmony among them, and pray that the brethren who are causing trouble and division in the churches throughout the land by trying to dominate the whole affair will see the error of their way and repent before it is too late. I began here a week ago, but we have not accomplished much so far that we can see. It is a very busy time with many of the brethren, and some have manifested more anxiety about their crops than about the salvation of souls. I expect to continue here until about the middle of next week. I am to begin at Alamo on the third Sunday. Success to the Gospel Advocate.

JOHN T. SMITH.

Texas.

Sherman, July 17.—I closed at Mc-Dade last Sunday night. There were four baptisms. I go to Dawson on Wednesday.

R. D. SMITH.

Winters, July 13.—Thirteen baptisms and twelve restorations is the result of our work in Winters. I will close in a few nights. Brother Luther Norman lives here and has done a good work. He is leading our singing now. He is a fine leader. I go to Merkel next.

THOMAS E. MILHOLLAND.

Dallas, July 17.—I baptized five at Oak Cliff Church just before leaving on July 1 for Loraine. The meeting at Loraine lasted twelve days. Nine were baptized and two took membership. The Loraine church is a good one. I am now at Roscoe. We start well here. I go next to West, then to Farmersville.

J. S. DUNN.

Munday, July 17.—I am one week into the best meeting of the year. The people here say such throngs of people never were seen at church in this city. Hundreds are hearing gladly for the first time in life. I am in fine trim physically, am doing my best, and hope for great results. I go to Hamilton County from here.

TICE ELKINS.

Cisco, July 18.—The meeting at Token closed at the water last Sunday afternoon. Four were baptized. Brother Elkins is in a good meeting at Goldsboro. Brother Milholland has just closed a good meeting at Winters, with seventeen baptisms. Brother Bedichek has done a good work at Ballinger. I am on my way to Ethel to begin a meeting on Saturday night.

W. P. SKAGGS.

Cleburne, July 20.—The Amarillo meeting closed on Sunday. There were fifteen added to the fellowship—eight baptized. They are a noble, self-sacrificing band. They seem to be of one heart and one soul in the work and worship of the church. I preach at home this week; then to Nashville, Ark., for a meeting. Paul C. Young is with me now. He begins at Campbell next week.

F. L. YOUNG.

Thorp Spring, July 19.—I am at home for three days after an absence of two months. During this time I have held meetings at Mount Vernon, Sweeny, Berclair, and Sterling City. I have meetings to hold at Randolph, Tom Bean, and Kaufman, which will keep me employed till September, at which time I expect to move my family to Fort Worth for a year's residence, the Lord willing. I expect to spend the year in Texas Christian University, which institution will graduate me in that time. I expect to preach every Lord's day for churches within reach of Fort Worth.

R. C. BELL.

Mansfield, July 18.—I have closed an eleven-days' meeting at Clarendon. The meeting was very much interfered with by Fourth-of-July celebrations, shows, and other worldly attractions; but some had a mind to work for the Lord, and with that class the meeting seemed to do great good. Twelve identified themselves with the church at that place; no baptisms. The church there is the result of the debate with D. A. Leak on the music and society questions. It has been established a little over two years. It has some good people in it, brethren and sisters who will stand by the "old Jerusalem gospel." I am now in a good meeting at Mansfield, which is a very promising work.

A. O. COLLEY.

Crandall, July 18.—I closed a twelve-days' meeting at Taylor, fourteen miles south of Elk City, Okla., last Friday. I preached twenty-four discourses, baptized six persons and restored three to the fellowship, visited thirty-nine homes, and conducted one funeral while there. This is a farming community, and the people were just as busy as it is possible for them to be. Besides, we had sickness and death in the community. All these things hindered the meeting. I began here last Lord's day, to continue two weeks. I have thirteen days, embracing the first and second Lord's days in September, that I can give to a meeting in Tennessee, Kentucky, Alabama, Mississippi, or Georgia. I prefer it to be in Tennessee or Kentucky. Owing to a conflict, I have been thrown out for this time. If any congregation wants a meeting at that time, I would be glad to hold it. I shall be back in Tennessee next week.

Woman's Crowning Glory

Is beautiful hair—coveted by all, but possessed by few. If you have allowed your hair to become coarse, stiff, streaked with gray or void of its original luster, the trouble lies in the absence of the natural hair oil. There can be no life without food; so unless the hair is well fed with proper oil, it cannot be expected to retain its luster and beauty.

La Creole Hair Color Restorer, when applied to the scalp, will restore those ugly, grizzly hairs to their natural color and at the same time leave the hair light and fluffy.

The tremendous success of La Creole Hair Dressing has encouraged a large number of imitations. The merit of this preparation has been proven through fifty years, continuous use; and just as counterfeit money never reaches the same high plane of value as the genuine, so none of the imitations of "La Creole" Hair Dressing ever attain the peculiar value of the original. Ask for La Creole Hair Dressing and refuse to accept any substitute. For sale by all dealers. Price, one dollar. Manufactured by Van Vleet-Mansfield Drug Company, Memphis, Tenn.

If You Value Your Health

It is told by one who has himself experienced the regeneration in health which he encourages you to seek by the self-same means.

THE STORY OF A GREAT DISCOVERY.

The hardships of a traveling salesman's life had wrecked my health. My family physician diagnosed my case as chronic gastritis, brought on by disease of the liver and complicated by kidney troubles. I consulted specialists who confirmed his diagnosis. Months passed, I grew worse and was finally compelled to give up my work.

By chance I heard of some wonderful cures which had resulted from drinking the water of a little spring in the Mineral Belt of South Carolina, a picture of which spring appears on this page. In desperation I tried it. On the second day I thought that I could notice some improvement; at the end of the first week my appetite and digestion had returned and I was much stronger; at the end of the third week I felt that I was completely cured. That was six years ago and I still enjoy perfect health.

Knowing that it had restored my health and believing that it had saved my life, I bought the Spring.

I then determined to see whether the water would cure others as it had cured me. I shipped ten gallons absolutely free of charge to each of one thousand sufferers from chronic diseases. Only four reported no benefit from the use of the ten gallons. The other nine hundred and ninety-six reported decided benefit or complete cures. Many claimed that the water had saved their lives.

I realized that I had discovered one of the world's greatest mineral springs, and I decided to devote my life to it. But how could I make the world listen; how could I make them believe my story? The precious water was running to waste while thousands were suffering. I said, I will make them believe me by showing my faith in them and in the curative power of the Spring. I will tell them that the water shall cost them nothing if it fails to benefit.

The world listened!

Some wrote for proof and I sent them the letters which I had received from their fellowmen. Others accepted my offer without question. Thousands have written me reporting relief and permanent cure of a great variety of chronic diseases.

But some of the water still ran to waste for lack of belief. I determined that every drop should be used to relieve the sufferings of humanity. To this end I requested the advertising manager of the Wesleyan Christian Advocate to come to see me. At my desk I opened my mail and showed him the letters from men and women from all parts of the country who had suffered and who had found relief. I gave him my letter files and induced him to spend several hours reading my past correspondence with those who were using the water. I showed him the chemical analysis and letters from physicians explaining the curative properties of the water.

He believed, and as a result he has written this announcement for me.

WILL YOU BELIEVE?

I do not ask your implicit faith; only enough to try the water for three weeks as I did. I estimate that I drank about ten gallons and I, therefore, offer gladly to ship you two five gallon demijohns on my guarantee that if you find that it does not benefit you I will promptly refund the price, which is only $2.00. You must promise to drink the water in accordance with the instructions which I will send you and return the empty demijohns. I make you the sole judge as to whether the water has benefited you, and as the Advertising Manager of this paper has kindly consented to guarantee my guarantee to refund your money, if you are not benefited, I hope you will feel perfectly free to accept my offer.

This offer is extended to all who suffer with any chronic disease, except cancer and consumption, but I especially recommend the water for the treatment of stomach, liver, kidney and bladder diseases and for rheumatism, gout, uric acid poisoning, gall stones, diabetes, nervous headache and general debility resulting from impure or impoverished blood. These are the diseases most frequently mentioned in the letters which I have received, but my offer is open to anyone who suffers from any chronic ailment.

Yours sincerely,

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir, As you are well aware, in 1909 I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered 10 gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months from date I began drinking it gained 29 lbs., was strong and perfectly well and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely nature's remedy.

Shivar Spring, Shelton, S. C.: Gentlemen—I have suffered for years with nervous indigestion and kidney troubles. Derived more benefit from the Shivar Spring Water than from months at Hot Springs, Ark., and numerous other Springs. I consider it the very best water extant.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—I suffered with intestinal indigestion and the Shivar Spring Water has cured me. Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—I ordered 10 gallons Shivar Spring Water especially for my teething baby who was suffering with its stomach and bowels. This water cured her disorders entirely and she is healthy again. I stopped all medicine and gave her only the water. I was also run down from the heat and fatigue, and the water has restored me also. Thanking you very respectfully,

MRS. W. C. MCGILL.

Columbia, S. C., Aug. 11, 1912.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.: Dear Sir—Until a few weeks ago my wife was a chronic sufferer from gall stones. She was stricken critically ill and nothing but morphine seemed to relieve her pain by rendering her unconscious. Rev. A. J. Foster pastor of Shavano Baptist Church of Columbia, S. C., advised me to take her immediately to Shivar Spring. On consulting my physician he agreed that it would be best to do so without delay. In about three days after arriving at the Spring, she was apparently relieved and had regained her appetite. She has suffered no ill effect of the trouble since. Please publish this for the benefit of sufferers.

P. S.—I suffered for 8 years with kidney trouble and inflammation of the bladder. After using this water only a few days, I am entirely relieved and suffer no more effect of the trouble whatever.

hold: but one thing I do, forgetting the things which are behind, and stretching forward to the things which are before, I press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." (Phil. 3: 13, 14.)

Belated Use of One's Gifts.

The fact that so good a man as Timothy needed to stir up his gift reminds us forcibly that there are few men even among Christians who completely unfold all that is within them. There are possibilities yet undeveloped in every one of us. Some have no suspicion of their latent powers. Mirabeau was forty years old before he showed any signs of his vast knowledge, but then he suddenly became the greatest statesman of his age. King Edward, of England, as a young man, was called a "spoiled child of fortune." His chief ambition was to set the fashions and to own race horses. Before his death he was recognized as a master of diplomacy. The man who was most instrumental in a world-wide distribution of the Bible did his work after he became eighty years old. These accomplishments were not accidental nor the result of some new gift bestowed in their later days, but were attained through a belated use of gifts that had been with them all the time only waiting to be employed. Power was present, but long unused. Resources were at their command, but crises were needed to summon them to the front.

One large part of God's discipline toward his children is to teach them to master and use their possessions. The reason why he permits us to suffer loss, sickness, disappointment, and death is that in the struggle and strain of it all we may learn for ourselves what manner of men we are. As Paul puts it: "We also rejoice in our tribulations: knowing that tribulation worketh steadfastness; and steadfastness, approvedness; and approvedness, hope." We can never learn the lesson of faith in highest measure until our wants have taught us the need of faith. We can never appreciate the supreme value of prayer until some great sorrow has taught us the need of prayer. We can never believe the intrinsic worth of friendship until some calamity has brought to our hearts the need of friends. Then true friends seem like ambassadors from heaven.

God's "Made-Over" Men.

When we put ourselves unreservedly into God's hands, he helps us in a truly wonderful way to develop our latent resources and to turn our unused energies in the right direction. Perhaps it would be simpler to say that God makes us over. The Bible has accounts of many "made-over" lives, and we would do well to study them. The first glimpse we get of Jacob in the Old Testament is extremely disappointing. He appears in the rôle of a supplanter, a cheat, and a deceiver, mean enough to steal his brother's birthright. But God was wonderfully patient and kind toward Jacob. He could plainly see beneath the excrescence of evil the good that was in him. With all his faults, Jacob did not forget to pray. And in the course of time he wrestled with the angel of the Lord, and limps away to justification and to power. Instead of Jacob, the supplanter, the man becomes Israel, the prince of God. What wonders God worked with that common lump of clay! Elijah was a man of like passions as we are, but his passions did not get the mastery over him. Controlled by the very help of the Lord, instead of dragging him down, they were like the steeds of the chariot that drew him to the heavenly city. Referring to his pre-Christian life, Paul called himself the "chief of sinners." We know that he was a bitter persecutor of Christians, thirsting for their blood and following them to strange cities. Yet, under the purifying touch of our Lord Jesus Christ, he became as gentle as a woman, and gloried in the fact that he bore on his body the marks of his suffering for the sake of the gospel. Simon Peter, a man of weakness and failure in other days, becomes the mighty preacher on the day of Pentecost, when he held the key to the kingdom of heaven. He wrote two superb Epistles to the churches, which the scholars say are the purest Greek of the New Testament, and finally laid down his life for the Master. These are fine examples of "made-over" men. In none of these cases was the power diminished or taken away. It was only turned in the right direction. Paul's zeal in persecuting Christians is transformed into zeal for preaching the gospel. Peter's impetuosity in denying his Lord is turned into holy boldness in declaring the riches of his salvation. What God and his Son have done for these men, they can do for us. Some of the very powers that we have been using for the advancement of our own selfish interests and in following after the sins of the world can be used for the glory of God and the upbuilding of the church. When a man is baptized into the kingdom, he brings with him all the powers he has been exercising in the ways of the world. He brings with him this faculty, that faculty, and the other. He brings his passions, his temper, his conscience, his speech, his thoughts, his humor, representing all the powers of his being. What does Christ do with them? Does he destroy them? Does he diminish them? Does he denude a man of these powers as Samson was shorn of Delilah of old? Certainly not. He came not to destroy, but to redeem; not to diminish, but to decrease; not to subtract, but to add and to multiply. And so he purifies, and glorifies, and turns into the proper channel all the energies we bring. In one brief sentence, he conserves our spiritual resources.

Don't Cry, "O, My Leanness."

The church of God is poorer because of the unused talents of its members. Resources unemployed are the same as unpossessed. They are powerful, but powerless. Too many of us excuse our inactivity by reference to our inability. They cry, "O, my leanness!" instead of believing with Peter that God hath richly supplied all things that pertain unto life and godliness. Let us remember that the disciples fed the five thousand with five loaves and two fishes. The poor paralytic needed but to stretch forth his hand at Jesus' word and he was healed. Faith and obedience were the only requisites. It is marvelous to consider the great rewards that have been coupled with the doing of the simple commands of the Savior. For Timothy to stir up the gift that is within him was not to look for something strange or deep or mystical with which to revolutionize the churches, but it meant to apply himself earnestly and devotedly to the word of God which he had learned from the days of childhood. Each Christian who reads this lesson has found the most important guidepost along the footpath of peace when he has learned "to be satisfied with your possessions, but not content with yourself until you have made the best of them."

Communion.

On this, the first day of the week,
We meet, O Lord, thy face to seek;
And, having laid aside our cares,
We come with penitence and prayers.

Judge not our deeds as we deserve,
For only by thy grace we serve.
While humbly bowing at thy feet,
We pray before the mercy seat.

May we forgive and be forgiven,
Thy will on earth do as in heaven.
Let love like the refreshing dew
Descend and make our hearts anew.

Help us that we may worthy be,
Discern His body on the tree;
And as we take the wine and bread,
May every soul from heaven be fed.

If You Are a Christian, Why Not a Baptist?

(Reprint of a tract by W. W. Landrum.)

A Baptist from experience and conviction was asked: "If you were not a Baptist, what would you be?"

The answer was not the one expected. It was up and down without compromise. "Why," returned the man addressed, "if I were not a Baptist, why then I would be—a Baptist. Being by God's grace a Christian, I wish to obey my Lord in all things, and my idea of New Testament obedience makes me a Christian of the type called Baptist."

Naturally, my friend was called on for good and sufficient reasons for preferring the Baptist interpretation of the New Testament. The apostle Peter enjoins (1 Pet. 3: 15), "Be ready always to give an answer to every man that asketh you a reason of the hope that is in you with meekness and reverence."

I. The first reason I would name to a converted person who wishes to obey Christ in church relations is this: The Baptists offer me the broadest possible Christian fellowship without the surrender of my personal convictions.

Consider this carefully (1 John 3: 14): "We know that we have passed from death to life because we love the brethren." Who are the brethren? All true believers in our Lord Jesus Christ. In order to be my brethren, must they not be members of some church? No. Christ is the Savior, not the church. May they be my brethren in some church regarded by the Baptists as defective in doctrine and practice? Yes. May they be unbaptized disciples of Jesus Christ? Even so. Baptism does not make a disciple. One is first a disciple, and afterward, for the reason that he is a disciple, should be baptized. All true believers are brethren. In the dialect of the Baptists, there is an expression sweet and sacred, always and everywhere used toward every sincere follower of our Lord: "Receive the right hand of Christian fellowship." With that hand, given before baptism, goes the love of a brother's heart. The true Baptist is never a bigot.

II. Another reason for being a Baptist is that the denomination offers me the simplest and sanest creed or statement of belief. A child can understand it.

The Baptist creed is the New Testament. This book, for the purposes of religion, is authoritative, clear, sufficient, final. The New Testament only is the book of doctrine and practice; no additions to it; no subtractions from it; no alterations in it; no substitute for it.

"Yes," one asks, "but are there not 'Confessions of Faith' or formulated creeds made by Baptists and published to the world as differentiating them from other Christians?" Yes, but they are only symbols. They are convenient and succinct expositions of the New Testament teaching held by certain groups of the brotherhood when they were written. Others may be written at any time. No one of them is final. Not one infallible or authoritative. Our opinions change. Our creed, the New Testament, abides the same yesterday, to-day, and forever. Whatever, therefore, may be the surprises of the future, derived from conscientious study of the New Testament, Baptists will never be taken unawares. We contend for the truth only. We fear no discoveries of sound and reverent scholarship. We welcome all unquestioned disclosures of God to man, coming from any source whatsoever, knowing that God is one and that all knowledge of his will perfectly coincides with the principles of the New Testament rightly interpreted, concerning salvation and Christian duty.

III. The Baptists furnish me the most loving and practical test of my absolute loyalty to Jesus Christ.

Obedience is that test. John 14: 14: "If ye love me, keep my commandments." Obedience includes doing commands that are (1) moral, (2) evangelical, and (3) positive. (1) Moral commands are condensed in Christ's summary of the law: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and thy neighbor as thyself." (2) Evangelical commands concern the conditions of salvation given in the gospel. These are repentance toward God and faith in our Lord Jesus Christ. (3) Positive commands are those which rest solely on Christ's lordship. We must do them simply because he says we must. These are baptism and the Lord's Supper.

Obedience to a positive order of Jesus Christ, a literal carrying out of his Great Commission (Matt. 28: 18-20), precisely as it was given, is a filial, affectionate and tender obedience of the most admirable kind. Love, when at its height, always literally obeys the object of its supreme devotion. Baptists, acting on this principle, require exact conformity to our Lord's commands in the ordinance of baptism, which comes normally at the time of conversion, and the Lord's Supper. The first of these, baptism, which both logically and chronologically precedes the second, or the Lord's Supper, is a burial in water in the name of the Father, Son and Holy Ghost and the raising again, of a redeemed and regenerated disciple of the Savior. It is a fitting expression of the feelings in the newly converted soul. The Lord's Supper is a memorial of Christ's broken body and shed blood. Both these ceremonies are pictures, or object lessons, teaching the gospel, illustrating its fundamental facts, if observed precisely in the way Jesus prescribed. Change them in any way and you break the mold of doctrine they set forth to the eye of the beholder. Better to omit them altogether than to do this.

Is it necessary to be a Baptist in order to be saved? No. Jesus saves, not the church. The blood of Jesus washes away the stains of sin, not baptism (1 John 1: 7). Men become children of God by faith in Christ (Gal. 3: 26, John 1: 12), not by the natural birth (Rom. 9: 8, John 1: 13), nor by obedience (Rom. 5: 19), nor by works (Rom. 4: 5), nor by joining the church (Acts 2: 47). Men are born into the family of God by the new birth, but men are not born into the church. Luke says the Lord added to the church daily "those that were saved." Salvation first, then baptism and church membership.

IV. Baptists invite me to enjoy liberty, equality and fraternity in the local church. Their churches are of the people, by the people, for the people. Baptists seek to illustrate democracy. It is the only form of church government proper for free and equal individuals, showing a common personal religious experience and bound together by a common belief and associated in a common work. Every church is an independent and self-governing democracy, as befits an association of men and women with personal spiritual religion. Officers are servants, not rulers. The pastor is only a president, an overseer or bishop chosen by the people with duties specified by them, an executive officer to carry out the will of the people interpreting the New Testament for themselves. A local Baptist church acknowledges no creed but the New Testament and no authority on earth or in heaven but its divine Lawgiver and King, Jesus Christ.

At the same time, though always insisting on its independence, a Baptist church feels a sense of interdependence with all churches of like faith and order for united effort in spreading Christ's kingdom throughout the earth.

V. The Baptists offer me participation with them in fostering the most enlightened patriotism. Their motto is "A free church in a free state." Religious liberty in America is a gift to our countrymen from the Baptists. Roger Williams, who founded the colony of Rhode Island, was the first man on this continent to advocate and to incorporate into a constitution the doctrine of soul-freedom. Religion, as Baptists see it, in its last analysis, is love, and only love. Love can never be forced. We must conquer by kindness and win by persuasion. All men must be allowed to worship God according to the dictates of their own consciences, or not to worship at all, with no one to molest or make them afraid. The first amendment to the American Constitution, which establishes religious liberty in this land of ours, was passed on the petition of our Baptist fathers. Baptists, though often persecuted, have never persecuted others. Where, then, if not to the Baptists, a thoroughly democratic people in sympathy with our best national ideals, shall the American look for peace and good will among the divided and sometimes warring forces of our common Christianity? Our principle demands equal rights to all citizens, be they atheist, agnostic, Jewish, Catholic, Protestant or what not, but special favors to none.

VI. Only one other reason may be given in the narrow limits of a tract why the writer commends the Baptist interpretation of the New Testament. Baptists have a cosmopolitan conscience. Baptists have led the Anglo-Saxon race in missionary endeavor. They gave modern Christians a new world view. They say in substance: "The world is my country, and to do good in the name of Christ all over the world is my religion." Their hearts, warm and all-embracing, like the equator, girdle the globe.

William Carey was the first to lead the foreign missionary movement toward the heathen millions of the Orient. Adoniram Judson was the first foreign missionary to go out from America.

Our world view is not only extensive, but intensive. Salvation is not only for every man, but for the whole of every man, body, mind and soul. Social salvation following individual salvation was the ideal of William Carey. He was the father of those schools, hospitals, orphanages and other agencies which now supplement the preaching of the gospel.

If, then, you are a Christian, why not a Baptist? Should not every Christian be one of the original type? What do Baptists ask of those who truly love the Lord but a candid and faithful comparison of their message with the teachings of the New Testament? We wish no denominational glory. We would not build up a divisive body of believers. Quite to the contrary. First, last and all the time our supreme aim is practically to apply ourselves and to induce all other Christians to apply Christ's test of fidelity: "If ye love me, keep my commandments." There are in no denomination and in other denominations devout souls who, being dissatisfied where they are, should follow their convictions whithersoever they may lead. These convictions, if based upon the New Testament alone, should urge those who hold them to union with the people who advocate and seek to express New Testament obedience in all things. Baptists believe, in all meekness and humility, but with unswerving strength of mind and heart, that the ideal of creed, character and conduct they offer the universal brotherhood can never be surpassed, inasmuch as it is not theirs, but his "in whom dwelt the fullness of the Godhead bodily."

"The Everlasting Kingdom."

BY F. W. SMITH.

"With the time near at hand for the setting up of the everlasting kingdom, it is incumbent upon us to give earnest heed to the principles of the kingdom in which we must all desire to have a part when Christ comes." ("The World's Crisis," page 63.)

Such phraseology as the foregoing is very common in the writings and preaching of the so-called "millennialists." They will have it that when Christ comes again he will "set up" a kingdom in which they hope to "have a part;" but just what that "part" will be, and how they will get into that kingdom, is not made clear. One of them claimed that there would be terms of admission into this kingdom, but said these terms "had not yet been revealed." They all fail to tell us what will be the nature of the blessings in the kingdom Christ is yet to "set up" on this earth further than that the saints shall "reign with Christ." Now, inasmuch as the saints have been reigning with Christ for more than eighteen centuries, I cannot see what special blessings are to be obtained by reigning in this new kingdom unless those blessings will be of a higher spiritual order than those now enjoyed by the same saints. Again, it would be of interest to know whether the present kingdom or institution in which the saints are now will continue during the time of this kingdom Christ is to set up on the earth. If so, will there still be preached the gospel, and will sinners have an opportunity to repent and enter the kingdom? Again, will sinners living on the earth be required to enter both of these kingdoms? In short, what relation will the two kingdoms sustain to each other? These are questions that naturally present themselves, but no solution has as yet ever been offered.

It is a fact worthy of note that these modern teachers, when closely pressed, recede from former and dogmatically avowed positions. They deny that the kingdom prophesied in the second chapter of Daniel has ever yet been established, and that this is the kingdom Christ will set up on the earth, and at which time he will literally take his seat on David's throne in a body of David's loins. But when their attention is called to the fact that the kingdom prophesied of by Daniel is to "never be destroyed," but "shall stand forever" (Dan. 2: 44), they find themselves in the attitude of having Christ seated on an everlasting literal throne on this earth, one that shall never be destroyed, while Peter says the earth and all things therein shall be burned up. (2 Pet. 3: 10, 11.) It does not relieve the predicament in which they have placed themselves by saying they do not mean Christ will sit on an ivory throne or the identical chair David occupied. If Christ is yet to set up "the tabernacle of David" and "build again the ruins thereof," and the "tabernacle of David" means the kingdom in all points over which David ruled, how can they escape the just charge of a literal kingdom in all respects? If they begin to modify even in one point, saying "there will be no literal chair," is it not virtually a surrender of their whole contention? If one literal feature of the kingdom of David may be eliminated, by what rule can they forbid every literal feature being eliminated? They have yet to show that the "tabernacle" of David means the "kingdom" of David. J. W. McGarvey, in his "Commentary on Acts," says: "The term 'tabernacle,' therefore, must be put for the family who dwell in the tabernacle, and the reconstruction of it the reestablishment of the royal dignity which the family had lost." It is not here claimed that Brother McGarvey was inspired; but until a better interpretation of this passage is given, the writer can never see in it a kingdom of any sort, much less one yet to be set up.

But what about the "eternal" kingdom? Are there two kingdoms, or the same kingdom under different conditions? Is there one kingdom for time and another for eternity? Some seem to think so, and, as proof, quote: "For thus shall be richly supplied unto you the entrance into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." (2 Pet. 1: 11.) Does this mean that when time shall be no more the kingdom that now is shall cease to exist, and that the redeemed shall enter into another kingdom, or does it mean that the kingdom now existing will be ushered into the state of eternity? It cannot be a new or different kingdom, for the "eternal kingdom" (2 Pet. 1: 11) is said to be "the kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." Is not this the same kingdom mentioned in 1 Cor. 15: 24—"Then cometh the end, when he shall deliver up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have abolished all rule and all authority and power?" If not, what becomes of the kingdom delivered up to God? Besides, if—and of that there is no proof to the contrary—the kingdom prophesied of by Daniel (2: 44) is the kingdom now on the earth, and which will be delivered up to God, and it is never to be destroyed, what else can it be but an eternal kingdom?

To me, all of this talk about Christ's setting up a kingdom when he comes is without one vestige of support from the holy oracles. I think I am as anxious to see, know, and teach the truth as any one else, and most certainly could have no objections to the setting up of such a kingdom if it be God's purpose. The propagation of these theories about what Christ will do when he comes serves only to confuse the minds of the people, separate lifelong friends, disturb and divide and distract churches, and will serve in the end to undermine the faith of some, driving them into infidelity. There were numbers of brethren and sisters who loved each other that have become estranged since the propagation of these things which in no way affect the salvation of a single soul. Partisans have sprung up, and the party spirit is rife in many churches. There is a foolish notion that somebody has denied the right to study and teach all the Bible. It is absolutely false; but every one who pretends to love God and his word should protest against men propagating their opinions to the disturbance of, and division among, his people. Does any one desire to preach: "And they lived, and reigned with Christ a thousand years. The rest of the dead lived not until the thousand years should be finished?" (Rev. 20: 4, 5.) If so, let him do it to his heart's content, but not mistake his opinions about what such expressions mean for preaching the word of God. There are some now who at one time had no trouble at all in determining sound doctrine from unsound doctrine that have permitted themselves to become partisans, and are now asking, "Who is sound?" Well, are they sound? Perhaps they think so; and if so, how did they arrive at that conclusion? Will they arrogate to themselves the liberty of deciding in the light of God's word what is sound or unsound, and deny the same liberty to others? The fact is, it seems to me, for one claiming to be a teacher of God's word to confess himself unable to decide what is or is not sound teaching on the all-important matter of salvation is to place himself in a pitiable attitude. He should quit trying to tell people what to do to be saved and study God's word until he has learned one of the simplest things in the world. But does such a one mean "sound" or "unsound" teachers of human opinions? Suppose he or they cry out against any and all teaching opinions in religion to the disturbance of God's people, instead of condemning those who are doing this.

The Facts Respecting the Gospel Advocate-Boll Matter.

In view of the fact that the publishers of the Gospel Advocate have set forth time and again the attitude of this journal toward the agitation of some peculiar doctrines relative to unfulfilled prophecies, which have caused disturbance in some of the churches, and, furthermore, have shown clearly that there has been no mistreatment of any one in this connection, we do not feel that our readers generally are interested in a further discussion of personal differences through our columns. The management has studiously sought to avoid such differences, viewing the issue without malice as one that was doctrinal rather than personal. For the benefit of some, however, who have received a little pamphlet sent out from Louisville, Ky., entitled "The Full Testimony Respecting the Advocate-Boll Matter," and have written us for further information, we have printed a brief pamphlet in reply covering all the facts in the case. A careful and unbiased perusal of this pamphlet will leave no doubt in anybody's mind as to the agreement that was distinctly made and later repudiated. It will furthermore show that the course of the Gospel Advocate in this matter has been such as to commend itself to all right-thinking people. This pamphlet, "The Facts Respecting the Gospel Advocate-Boll Matter," will be sent free upon request. PUBLISHERS GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

Good News from Huntsville.

BY S. P. PITTMAN.

Our meeting began at Huntsville, Ala., on Sunday, June 18, just in the midst of the greatest crisis the little city had ever experienced. Politics had reached an exceedingly corrupt stage, terminating in a foul murder, which deeply stirred the people of the city, the county, and the entire State. Soldiers guarded the courthouse to prevent further trouble. This excitement and the continuous rains prevented us from ever making much impression upon the outside public; yet we feel that we had a most satisfactory meeting, one that will long be cherished in memory.

Unfortunately, there has been trouble of long standing in the Huntsville congregation, with intervals now and then of peace. About two years ago an open division occurred, some of the brethren remaining to worship in the church house, others meeting to worship in the Masonic Hall, and afterwards in the courthouse. It would be unnecessary and unwise to recount the causes and the circumstances which led up to the breach. Let us cast the mantle of charity over the conflicts of the past, attributing sincerity to each side. As to members of the same family, after an estrangement, long to be united again, so, I believe, in the hearts of the Huntsville brethren there was a longing for reconciliation. Those Huntsville brethren are good people; they want to do right.

For the five Lord's days during the meeting we met in the church building, commingling our voices in prayer and song and communing together in peace and harmony. It was not till near the close of the meeting, however, that the way was made clear for an amicably permanent union. I trust I do them no injustice when I say that it was when their hearts got just right. Then it was that they needed no signing of agreements—no documentary statements of a basis of union. God's plan of reconciliation is to "get right and agree." His plan is always the best plan. The brethren are unanimous, I believe, in their determination to stay united, and the one who suggests "trouble" to them whether one of their own flock or an "outsider," will be considered an intruder.

There were several baptisms and restorations during the meeting; and if peace prevails, there is a glorious future to the cause of Christ in Huntsville.

"Behold, how good and how pleasant it is for brethren to dwell together in unity!" (Ps. 133: 1.)

Brother Gantt's Appeal.

Below you will find Brother W. N. Gantt's appeal in behalf of the work at Hazlehurst, Ga. I want to commend this appeal to the prayerful consideration of the brethren. You could find no more faithful members than the faithful five that he speaks of. They will stick to the "old paths" through thick and thin. Like Joshua, others can do as they may; but for them, they will serve the Lord and be true to his teaching. It was my pleasure to be at Hazlehurst during Brother Hayes' debate with Mr. Davis. I was kindly invited back there for a meeting on the part of the members and a number of the people who are not members. I then thought I could find the time. But I am sorry to say that I am absolutely covered with work just now, and will be to the end of the year. Brother Graves is abundantly able to do the work. He was with them for a short meeting last year. Too, I want to say that Graves would go if there was not a penny in sight. He is not out preaching for money. But Brother Gantt knows the Bible too well to allow him to go there and labor with them in a meeting without a support. For this reason he makes this appeal. The Atlanta brethren would gladly take this support upon themselves, and not let this appeal be made; but Atlanta is doing all she can, and I feel safe in saying that when this year ends she will have more mission meetings to her credit than the most of congregations. There are more calls than we can fill, hence we do hope that others will step in and help Brother Gantt with this meeting. Here is what Brother Gantt has to say:

Brother and sister, how do we show our faith by our works? Christ said: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." "Believe" is a verb, and expresses action. Do we believe what the Lord said in the following words: "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you?" Paul says these things are to be given to faithful men, that they may hand them to others. (See 2 Tim. 2: 2.) A faithful man is one who hears and obeys God. Are you a faithful man? If so, here is an opportunity to show your faith by works.

We have a little band of five here longing for a preacher to teach us all things to be observed, and others all around us to whom we want the gospel preached. These are the things the Lord has told us to do. We know of a faithful brother—W. C. Graves, of East Point, Ga.—who is willing to do the preaching, but he must be sent.

In lending us aid in the work here, you may never know just how much you helped preach the gospel to the whole creation, but you can know you are doing the Lord's will. We do not ask you for much. Freight on a tent to and from here will not be much. And we want Brother Graves to have a reasonable support. Let your faith work by love, and send us a contribution at once. Send to W. C. Graves, East Point, Ga., or to me, at Hazlehurst, Ga. All donations will be reported in the Gospel Advocate.

W. N. GANTT.

Another Appeal.

We give our readers the following appeal from near Rockingham, Ga. I know Brother Lynch and his wife. They are consecrated souls. I regret so much that Atlanta is not able to answer all calls just now and support the men for these places. Brother Graves left this morning (July 28) for that place. Last night we had special prayer for him at the tent, and we gave him a little above fifteen dollars toward this work. This is not enough. He goes from Rockingham to Hazlehurst. There are two other calls on my desk from places where we have but two members. Here is a chance, brethren, for real missionary work. Send donations as directed. Here is what Brother Lynch has to say:

Rockingham, Ga., July 26.—Dear Brethren: As the Gospel Advocate is read by many Christians, I appeal to those that read same to assist us in having a meeting near this place. My wife and I are the only New Testament Christians in this neighborhood, and we are very anxious to have a meeting here. We are about one hundred and fifty miles from Atlanta. Arrangements have been made to use the school-house, and Brother W. C. Graves, of East Point, will do the preaching. We hope to be able to start the meeting by August 1. If you desire more references, I refer you to Brother S. H. Hall, of Atlanta, Ga. Acknowledgments will be made through the Gospel Advocate, Address T. E. Lynch, Rockingham, Ga., Route 1. May God bless those who can in helping us.

A Most Worthy Cause and Appeal.

BY E. A. E.

This letter speaks for itself:

Monticello, Ky., July 14, 1916.—Dear Brother Elam: I guess you have noticed in the Gospel Advocate that we have bought a lot on which to build a house of worship. This is in many respects the most available lot in the town for us. It cost us seven hundred dollars. We have it paid for, and restrictive clause is in the deed. We think about the cheapest house we can build will cost us three thousand dollars. We are not able to raise this amount. We think if we had one thousand dollars we would be able to take care of the rest. I know the papers are full of calls to help build churches. But the conditions here are not ordinary. We have a rare opportunity to reap the results of our labors. We are the hub in a wheel of five counties. We hope, sooner or later, to plant the cause in all of these counties. At present there is not a house of worship in the county seat of any one of these five counties. You know what a handicap this is. Our purpose is to put the work in this county on a self-sustaining basis, then move to another county. To show you what we are doing, the society has now an evangelist in Clinton, an adjoining county. He is to hold one meeting in this county, but that will be his last. I hope you can see the situation. I wish I could so present it that I could cause all the faithful to see it as I do and as it is. I am sure brethren who have money would cheerfully have fellowship with us in this our time of need. The Christian Church built a house last year at a cost of sixteen hundred dollars. The Methodists and Baptists both have good houses. We have been meeting wherever we could find room. Since we have bought our lot we have had ten from the Christian Church to come with us, and more than as many more have said they would. When we get our house, we feel that our work will be on a permanent basis. My whole soul is in this work. I have been persecuted on every side, lied on, and abused in pulpits, associations, conventions, etc. Brethren have said they could not and would not stand it. But I have let them fight while I preach the word. We have already had as many additions this year as we had all of last year, and our work has just begun. My faith in the gospel as the power of God is stronger than ever before. I shall preach it with a full assurance. I am confident it will not be fruitless. My only wish is that I was financially able to bear all the burden; if I were, no one would ever know our needs. But, in truth, this would not be right. Others should have the privilege to bear a part and thus gain the blessing of fellowship. I hope you will not think me blue; but when I feel the heavy burden and the need of counsel since wife is gone and I have no companion to confide in, I usually come to you. If you can get the brotherhood to see this open field and to help us now, I feel sure that you will have done a great work that will bear precious fruit in the end. I hope your family are all well. I will be glad to hear from you at any time.

Fraternally,

J. D. WALLING.

Speaking disparagingly of no work in any mission field, I confidently say that Brother Walling is one of the most practical, economical, and best missionaries and men of the present generation. He has accomplished more in a shorter time on less money than any one known to me. He has worked and lived on as many hundred dollars as it has required thousands for some. He is not appealing, and has never appealed, for himself. I made an appeal or two for his work because it was so deserving. Now he and his effort to build this house need encouragement. Let him and the brethren there have the full support and ready help needed. Money cannot be given to a more worthy and needy field. Let us send now.

MISSIONARY

Missionaries Mobbed in the Streets of Pandhapur— a Sad Scene to Behold.

BY W. HUME M'HENRY.

On July 20, Brother Jelley and I started to Pandhapur to be there for a heathen festival on July 22. At Dhond we were met by Brother Govindrao Chayhan, the native missionary, and one of the workers. It is estimated that about four hundred thousand people go to this place each year. I am not much of a judge of numbers, but one thing I do know, and that is that I saw one of the largest gatherings that I have ever seen at one meeting before. Do you ask why they were there? They went there strictly for religious purposes, for worship. They were there from villages several hundred miles away. No doubt hundreds went without food for several days, having spent the last cent they possessed in buying a railroad ticket. Every train going in that direction carried several thousand people. To pass through the streets of the town was almost impossible because of the crowd. I was told that the principal part of the worship was to a departed Brahmin of long ago. On account of the numbers, police were necessary to whip the crowd along to keep them from completely stampeding in front of the large temple. They merely got a quick look at their god and then were hurried on. I saw a peculiar scene in the streets. A number of people were stretching themselves full length in the street. I was curious to know just what this signified. I was told that they had about despaired of ever reaching the temple and were casting themselves full length in the direction of the temple, signifying that they did their best to reach it.

In some of the streets they were burning incense, like the Jews were once commanded, and each person came by the fire and inhaled some of the healing odors. Around and around through the streets the professional dancers and their nerve-deranging music proceeded. I have had occasion to remark in a former article that they would impress one that they were a bit possessed with demons, not only from appearance, but from their movements; and they even claim that evil spirits do enter them by means of music. Could it be possible that music has the same effect sometimes in the "big camp meetings" in America?

Another scene was the bathing in the river. This city is one of their real holy cities and this river is a holy river. We witnessed many hundreds in the river, and this same scene might have been seen at any hour of the day for several days. They do not bathe as we do, simply to remove the filth of the flesh; but, like our baptism, it is the answer of a good conscience. While away from the holy city and their gods they may chance to commit a great sin by eating food from the hands of one who belongs to another caste or in some way break a caste law. This constitutes one of the greatest sins that a Hindu conceives of. But by going to this place and worshiping their gods and bathing in the holy water they believe themselves clean and go away with a good conscience. And as we came back, we saw some of the people with their cans filled with this holy (?) water, and were told that they kept it; and if at any time they felt sick, a few drops were put in their water as a medicine.

But to the main heading. Some one is asking: "Why do you not tell us about your being mobbed?" Well, I will, but please do not become too excited. Do not too harshly criticize these poor Christless people until I have presented the facts in the case. Behold us, a few humble Christians, as we strive to make our way through the streets. On every side are masses of real heathens pressing us. It was at one time seemingly a sport to mob Christians and in every way torture them, but at so late a date one would think that all such times had long passed away. But suddenly we were seized by dozens of hands just as we were in the street crossing. It seemed that we were almost doomed, and it was only by much talking and scrambling that we were able to get away from the anxious mob. But must I tell you the cause of all of this? Yes, I must. Our supply of Gospels and books consisted of only fifteen hundred pieces, and almost before we were in the town proper all were gone and the people were clamoring for more. Just think of it—people in dark India pleading for Gospels! Who is responsible for their going hungry for the truth? Consider prayerfully that question. Our hearts are sad, indeed, because we had not many thousand more. While they are very cheap, yet remember that our funds are very limited, and we can only do the best we can with what we have at our disposal. An appeal was made for funds to furnish free literature, but very little was received. While little preaching, except private preaching, was possible, we trust that the seed sown in this way and through the few books distributed will produce fruit that will some day be reaped. This was our first trip to this place, and giving them the gospel to read will better acquaint us with them, and when we go again they will know us and be more ready to listen to us talk.

In about four months from now there will be a big festival near Satara. It is estimated that about two hundred thousand people will be present. We are going to begin at once to get a supply of tracts and Gospels. We hope that we may be able to distribute about one hundred thousand pieces of literature. If so, we will feel that we have preached to quite an audience. But we cannot do this unless our brethren who read this will send us an offering at once. It takes mail a long time to reach us, and the time is short. This is purely a work of sacrifice for God. It is through God's people that this work must be done. So, on behalf of the millions, who are densely ignorant of the way of truth, we appeal to you, my dear brother and sister, to send us at least a small offering. Send to any of the papers, or Brother D. C. Janes, Louisville, Ky., or to Brother Ben F. Gill, Jr., Allensville, Ky., who will forward your offering. Mark it, "Free Literature."

Remember us and the work in this land in all your prayers. God bless all the faithful.

Items of Interest.

BY C. G. VINCENT.

Some weeks ago a Salvation Army native worker called on us to help raise seventy-five dollars in order to save a young girl from being sold into a life of shame. It seems that the husband died, leaving a wife and three children. In a short time, owing to sickness, the widow found herself seventy-five dollars in debt and unable to meet it. Her creditor pressed her hard, finally demanding that she sell (for that is what it amounts to) her seventeen-year-old daughter into the life of shame. The mother, hearing of the Salvation Army rescue work, appealed to them for help. Mrs. Vincent had a little "pin money" which a few good Tennessee sisters sent her for her "very own." She gave a part of this to help the little girl. Recently the Salvation Army officer reported to us. He said, with a happy smile: "We saved her!" And we rejoiced with him.

A brother writes from Texas: "Inclosed find money order for five dollars. I was once a covetous man, and to what extent I have overcome that ugly disposition is due to the grace of God." To assist in the support of the gospel in foreign lands is an expression of Christlike unselfishness.

Some Commands Emphasized.

BROTHER ARMSTRONG'S ARTICLE FURTHER CONSIDERED.

"Diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

Since God has commanded all Christians to give "diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace," all are bound in obedience to God to do this—that is, to do all God has commanded and to leave alone all he has forbidden, that this unity and peace may be reached and maintained. He who attempts to teach that which God says must be avoided is as disobedient to God as he who refuses to teach all that which God commands. This has been emphasized heretofore.

Not many of the present generation of preachers, elders, and other church members seem to have learned the only, but all-sufficient, scriptural ground of unity and peace, which is so clearly and wonderfully emphasized in the New Testament; or, if they have learned it, worse still, not many seem disposed to stand upon it. There is more teaching about the Bible and more known about its literature, characters, history, and the places connected with it, and there are more Bible schools, more preachers, and more preaching now, than formerly; but throughout the church generally there is far less knowledge of that which the Bible really teaches, less fear of God, less trembling at his word, less preaching of the gospel, and less reverential desire to be governed by the will of God at all times and in all things than there were thirty years ago. It is one thing to know some things and even much about the Bible, and an entirely different thing to know, to do, and to teach fully and only the word of God. The purpose of learning the will of God is to be governed by it in all one says, writes, and does in all relationships of life; it is God's will that all obey him—obey him in thoughts, words, and deeds. There is no knowing the word of God in reality and fully without practicing it.

My teaching is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the teaching, whether it is of God, or whether I speak from myself. (John 7: 16, 17.)

Without this purpose and determination, not simply to learn things about the Bible, but to do the will of God, that will will never be fully known. Being unwilling to implicitly follow the will of God, the Jews were so blinded by their theories as to reject Jesus as the Christ. There can be no teaching the Bible really and fully without begetting in the hearts of the ones taught reverence for it as the word of God and the desire to obey it. It cannot be placed in schools and out of schools on a par with ordinary history, literature, mathematics, and science. Many of the churches, as Paul declares, having itching ears, have turned away from the truth—that is, the plain, simple gospel and "whole counsel of God"—and the humble and faithful Christian life—and have turned unto fables—literary productions, beautiful stories, fascinating theories, beguiling speculations, and aesthetic entertainments; and they have piled up such teachers as will give them that which they seek. They pay their money for such things and get them; preachers pander to such demands and make professional dealers in such wares. In other places churches demand a partisan and sectarian spirit, a bitter and knock-down-and-drag-out manner, a challenging and denouncing style, and they find the preachers they seek.

There were contentions and divisions in the days of the apostles caused by Judaizing and other false teachers over the questions which God commands to be avoided; there were contentions and divisions not many years ago over instrumental music in the worship and human organizations to do the work God has committed to the church; there are now contentions and divisions among those who have adopted the instrumental music and these organizations, and we shall let them say what their contentions and divisions are over; and there are contentions and divisions among those who claim to worship only "as it is written" and to work only through the church. What has caused the last contentions and divisions? "Minor details," as Brother Armstrong says; exalting means and methods into laws, when God has not done so; making rules where he has made none, and disobeying the ones he has made; self-esteem, pride of opinion, and causing internal strife over scruples and speculations; seeking the chief seats, the glory of men, and to be greatest; a woeful desitiation of self-denial, humility, lowliness, meekness, "forbearing one another in love," considering others better than oneself, trembling at God's word, and reverence and awe for God and godly things.

The first paragraph of Brother Armstrong's article is this:

THE ANSWER TO "WHO IS SOUND?" IS AN UNKNOWN QUANTITY.

Who can answer the question in this caption? Whom can one recommend, and by whom can one be recommended? Whom should one support, and who should support one? All these are unanswerable questions to-day, or at least the answers given depend entirely on what section of the country you live in and what "party" answers them. No longer is truth (?) the same in the different sections of the country. Even truth (?) has become a varying quantity and depends on the paper you read, the country you live in, and the "party" you belong to. It is deplorable. It certainly takes a carload of courage for a preacher of the gospel to preach unity among Christians before an intelligent audience of the world. As the boys name it, "he has plenty of gall" who risks himself to handle the subject nowadays. Still we all preach it, and have to preach it, even as we do baptism.

The answer to his question, "Who is sound?" depends altogether on the standard of soundness. According to the theories, notions, prejudices, and speculations of men, the standard varies, certainly; and really following these, none are sound. According to the will of God, in spite of all theories and speculations, the section of country in which a man lives, the paper he reads, or the school he attends, it is easy to tell who is sound. Of course, Brother Armstrong does not mean to say that according to the will of God this question cannot be answered. To say that is to reflect upon Paul, inspiration, and God, because God commands us to be sound—sound in faith, in love, in patience, in doctrine or teaching, in speech, in mind even, etc. Would God command us to be sound in faith, to speak the things which "befit the sound doctrine," "to hold the pattern of sound words," "sound speech," "even the words of our Lord Jesus Christ," and by "sound doctrine" "to convict the gainsayers," if there were no standard of soundness and we could not tell who is sound? God has made the standard his word, the gospel of Christ, his will, "the way of salvation," which is so plain that wayfaring men, yea fools, shall not err therein; and to say one cannot tell who is sound is to dispute his word. To say one cannot tell who is sound is to cast oneself on the open sea of infidelity, without chart or compass, to be driven to and fro by every wind of doctrine which blows; is to place the New Testament, sealed by the blood of the Lamb, on a par with the doctrines and precepts, theories and speculations of men; is to lift the flood-gate and submerge the church in the foul waters of strife, sectarianism, and division. If we cannot tell who is sound, we should never preach another sermon, write another article, or make another effort to live the Christian life, because we have no way of knowing that the sermon, article, or life is acceptable to God. In fact, I have been made to fear that many do not stop to measure their writings, sermons, and lives by God's standard in order to see if they are acceptable to him. If we cannot tell who is sound, no man can give "a reason concerning the hope" within him, that he is living right, that he worships in spirit and truth, that Christ will ever come again, or that there is a heaven. But if we can know the gospel, can believe and obey it, can live daily in submission to God, and can entertain a hope of salvation, we can tell who is sound. Jesus commands all his disciples for all time to "beware of false prophets;" but if we cannot tell who is sound and who is false, we cannot do this. The standard is not holding to some parts, or even all, of God's will as a theory, but really doing it.

Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven.

Every one therefore that heareth these words of mine, and doeth them, shall be likened unto a wise man, who built his house upon the rock.

All men who depreciate or in any way lessen the importance of hearing and doing all the words of Jesus, and, therefore, of obedience to God's will, are false prophets. How fearful it is, how woefully wrong, to detract from the plain and powerful will of God by human theories and speculations, to waste the time of dying and lost audiences by vain efforts to entertain and to appear literary, learned, and wise!

Beloved, believe not every spirit, but prove the spirits, whether they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world. (1 John 4: 1.)

To "prove" is to put to the test in order to see if a thing is pure or genuine or true. We cannot "prove" a "spirit," speaking through a prophet, without a "tester" or "standard." "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." (1 Thess. 5: 21.) What is the standard? Here it is:

Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God. . . . We [John and other inspired teachers] are of God: he that knoweth God heareth us; he who is not of God heareth us not. By this we know the spirit of truth, and the spirit of error. (1 John 4: 2-6.)

To confess—not simply to say, as did demons—who Jesus is—that Jesus, the son of Mary, is the Christ, the Son of God—God manifest in the flesh—"the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us" (John 1: 14)—is to be "of God." But to "confess" this is to accept Jesus as "that prophet," and, therefore, to accept all he teaches; to accept him as a Priest after the power of an endless life, who ever lives to make intercessions for us, and as the Lamb of God that takes away the sin of the world; to accept him as King—"King of kings, and Lord of lords"—and to submit to his rule. To detract from Jesus of Nazareth as "that prophet," or teacher, who spake as never man spake; to detract from him as Advocate, Mediator, Priest, the need of his blood and intercession; and to detract from his authority now as King, and not only King, but "King of kings, and Lord of lords," is to be a false teacher or prophet.

Whosoever goeth onward and abideth not in the teaching of Christ, hath not God: he that abideth in the teaching, the same hath both the Father and the Son. (2 John 9.)

To abide in the teaching of Christ is to be satisfied and contented with what he teaches, to hear and do his words, to teach others to do the same, and never to try to teach more and to do more than his words—God's revealed will. When a man tries to know more, to preach more, and to do more than the words of Christ, he is not abiding in the teaching of Christ and, hence, has not God, and is a false prophet.

We can tell who is sound, true, and faithful. Whoever in love of truth does and teaches the words of Jesus, the will of God, and never goes onward or beyond the teaching of Christ, is sound, is true, is faithful. But the will of God—his "whole counsel," "all things that pertain unto life and godliness," the words of Jesus—must be done and taught in the love of truth, in reverence and awe for God, and in the spirit of Christ. To preach these, or some parts of these, as "our doctrine," "our plea," to the denominations of the land in a partisan and sectarian spirit, and not in the love and power of the gospel, is to be as sectarian and partisan as the unsoundest. Nothing but the will of God in love of truth and the Spirit of Christ is sound; but we can all know the will of God, love the truth, and have the Spirit of Christ.

There are unity and peace now between the children of God, and have always been. Numbers and huge organizations count nothing with God. One can chase a thousand, and two can put ten thousand to flight. If there were now only eight Christians on earth, as there were only eight righteous ones in Noah's day, they would all be one. I cannot believe that Christ's prayer in John 17 has never been answered. All who do the will of God are mothers, brothers, or sisters to Jesus (Matt. 12: 50), and are one.

It may require "gall" to preach unity on various theories, speculations, and ways of men; but it requires no more faith now to preach "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" than anything else God commands. The trouble with "the boys" is, they may have too much "gall" and not enough faith; they may rely too much upon human philosophy and ways and means and not enough on the power of the gospel; they may seek more to please a few congregations, a sect, or party, than God. It requires faith to please God (Heb. 11: 6) and "gall" or something else to please men. In fact, the use of this word "gall" by "the boys" shows a lack of faith on their part, a need of reverence for God and his word, and a shrinking back from preaching the whole truth. The expression, "he has plenty of gall" who risks himself to handle the subject nowadays," indicates that "the boys" think more of their reputation and themselves than of God and the truth. Can they not risk themselves to preach the truth? The cause of our Master is in dangerous hands with those who cannot risk themselves to preach the truth.

Brother Armstrong speaks of "a few factious spirits." The churches would be in a better condition if there were only a few, and far better if there were none. It is very grievous to think that almost all the internal strife now disturbing so many churches in so many places is produced by preachers and papers. I do not hesitate to say if public teachers and papers would cultivate the spirit of humility, lowliness, meekness, forbearance, and would really give "diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace," the churches would follow their example and be at peace. These "factious spirits" in their own self-esteem will not read one another's papers and articles, except to criticize, find fault, and show unsoundness. They are heresy hunters. If preachers and teachers and papers would set a good example and make an effort to see how nearly they are agreed, the churches would be at peace. Instead, certain papers are devoted to the propagation of certain features of doctrine and speculations. Each denomination, or sect, or party, has its paper to propagate its "peculiar views." Brother Armstrong speaks in his article of "sect baptism," "rebaptism," "special providence," etc. Just as papers devote themselves to these different features of doctrine, or to any theories, they differ and sow the seeds of difference and of strife wherever they are read. Then, as they manifest a partisan and bitter spirit, they beget the same in their thousands of readers. It is true of all preachers and other teachers that like begets like. This is just as true of schools, too. As the tests of one's soundness (!), as Brother Armstrong says, with some depends upon the paper one reads or section of country one lives in, it may be also true that the test of one's soundness (!) depends upon the school which one attended and which recommends one. This is deplorable, too. One man starts a paper or founds a school, or does both, in order to teach against "sect baptism," or "rebaptism," or to emphasize "special providence," "the second coming of Christ," or to feature some peculiar view; or if they are not started for this purpose, they are turned to it. One school has some debater to lecture in order to show "the boys" how to meet "the errors of the denominations;" another school teaches the Bible by outlining arguments in discussions to show "the boys" how to meet the sects; another school features some special theory or point of doctrine to show "the boys" how to teach that; and still another school makes a favored class of preachers and teaches "the boys" how to become professional singers and "ministers." What all such "boys" will teach and the special party they belong to will be known by the school they hail from. Some will be "ready for a spute;" some will feature "special providence;" some will dwell on the second coming of Christ and unfulfilled prophecy; and some will grub up "sect baptism." Some of these boys will be ambitious to have papers and schools of their own, and thus by a hundredfold these parties and divisions, strife and bitterness, will be multiplied. All such schools and papers would better have never been started, because they are destructive of unity and peace and curses to the church. On the other hand, papers and schools devoted to teaching the Bible, only and all its principles and truth, the will of God, in love of truth and righteousness for the good of all and glory of God, are mighty influences for good.

It is very wrong, indeed, to take the hard-earned money hundreds of brethren and sisters have given to establish a paper or found a school and pervert it to the propagation of some divisive theory, special feature of doctrine, or some man's view. Hundreds of self-sacrificing men and women give thousands of dollars to build up a school to teach with other useful studies the Bible—its principles of common honesty, integrity, virtue, righteousness, submission to the powers that be; duty of parents and children, husbands and wives, neighbors and citizens; and godliness—duties and obligations to God—to all pupils. No set of men then have any sort of right to pervert that school into one for making preachers, professional singers and ministers, or to the benefit of any favored class of pupils. The Nashville Bible School was the first school started for this purpose; others have been established since. Now, so long as they all remain true to this purpose, they will accomplish untold good; but when they are turned into schools for making preachers and singers to feature certain theories and special doctrines, they become curses.

Just so with papers. No paper has done more than the Gospel Advocate to teach the whole counsel of God; to preach the pure and whole gospel of Christ—its facts, commands, promises and blessings, and hope; to keep innovations out of the churches and to maintain "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." Its columns have always been open and free to a full and thorough discussion of "all things that pertain unto life and godliness;" its venerable and beloved editors, who have gone through the conflicts and storms of fifty years, Brethren Lipscomb and Sewell, are with us still, lingering on the brink. No two men have exerted a greater influence for good. For more than fifty years the Advocate has stood and worked for these things. But if its columns should be turned into advocates of human theories and philosophies of men, speculations and special features of doctrine, its days of usefulness would end and the days of its becoming a curse would begin. Those into whose hands it has fallen desire the prayers and coöperation of all godly men and women and will endeavor to keep it pure and clean and devoted to teaching the entire will of God in love of truth and the Spirit of Christ.

"If You Are a Christian, Why Not a Baptist?"

BY M. C. K.

On page 795 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate will be found the reprint of a tract by Dr. W. W. Landrum, of Louisville, Ky., with the title, "If You Are a Christian, Why Not a Baptist?" We are requested to publish this tract in our columns and reply to it. We gladly comply with the request, but do not propose a formal examination of all that it contains, which is not necessary in order to meet the one doctrinal point on the issue involved. All we propose is to answer the distinctive and pointed question which constitutes the title of the tract. We ask our readers, first of all, to examine it carefully, and then to note the following observations:

I. Coming at once to the main question, "If you are a Christian, why not a Baptist?" we answer: Why, if a Christian, be a Baptist? What good is there in it that is not already gained by being a Christian? Who would dare to say that there is one solitary good thing to be gained by becoming a Baptist that was not already gained by becoming a Christian? The New Testament, under the direct dictation of the Lord Jesus Christ through inspired apostles, tells people to become and to be Christians, but it nowhere tells them to become and to be Baptists. Now, there is something radically wrong here somewhere and with somebody. Who is it, and where is it? Is it possible that the New Testament, thus dictated and inspired, omitted some good thing in telling people what to become and what to be? Who would dare to say that it did? Yea, we respectfully press the question upon the genial and cultured author of the tract himself, and ask him if he will dare to affirm that there was any such omission on the part of the Author of the New Testament? We do not believe that he will say there was. Then, with all the emphasis that we can command and with the solemnity of death itself, we repeat the question: If a Christian, why be a Baptist? In fact, why be anything in religion which the word of God does not tell one to be?

2. Let us look at this question from another point of view. If it be necessary for one to be anything at all that is not required in the New Testament, then what shall that something be? Moreover, it is equally appropriate to ask, if it be necessary for one to be something which is not required in the New Testament, then why may it not be one thing as well as another? Who has the privilege and the prerogative of saying what particular outside thing one shall be? And if one man has the right to say that, if a man is a Christian, he should also be a Baptist, then why may not another man say that, if a man is a Christian, he should also be a Methodist, a Presbyterian, a Lutheran, or an Episcopalian? Never mind now about whether Baptists teach more that is in the New Testament than Methodists, Presbyterians, Lutherans, and Episcopalians, for that is not the question. No matter which one teaches more that is in the New Testament than the others, the question, and the only question, here is: Why be anything at all religiously that is not in the New Testament? Assuredly, if the fact that Baptists teach more that is in the New Testament than these others teach is in favor of the Baptists, then it follows to a demonstration that the nearer we come to being just what is in the New Testament, no more and no less, the nearer are we of being right; and our question recurs with added force and solemnity, Why be anything that is not in the New Testament! And hence, if a Christian, why be a Baptist? Why not stop with what is in the New Testament?

3. But our author says his "idea of New Testament obedience makes" him "a Christian of the type called Baptists;" but most assuredly that was not Paul's "idea" nor the "idea" of any of the other writers of the New Testament. They all, without exception, omitted it; and since our author is "a Christian of the type called Baptists," we respectfully ask, "called Baptists" where and by whom? Not in the New Testament nor by any one of its writers, for they are unanimous in its omission from that volume. And we further respectfully ask, if our author may properly say that his "idea of New Testament obedience makes" him "a Christian of the type called Baptist," then why may not our Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, and Episcopalian friends, with equal propriety, say that their "idea of New Testament obedience makes" them "a Christian of the type called" Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, or Episcopalian? And we doubt not that, if they should make any such plea, our author would politely and pointedly ask them, where and by whom do they find authority to be "a Christian of the type called" Methodist, Presbyterian, Lutheran, or Episcopalian?

4. But listen to what our author further says and to his candid admission: "Is it necessary to be a Baptist in order to be saved? No." Here is an absolute and complete surrender of the whole question in all its essential particulars, and we repeat our question: If, according to the author, it is not "necessary to be a Baptist in order to be saved," then why be one or why bother with the question in any way at all? If it has nothing whatever to do with the salvation of men in time or in eternity, then surely we should throw it overboard, and thus get rid of at least one of the many needless things over which good people are confused and divided in religion.

5. As to the author's statement, "Men are born into the family of God by the new birth, but men are not born into the church," we respectfully deny that there is a word in the New Testament to the effect that "men are born into the family of God" in one way and then get into the church in another way. We deny that one is or can be in the family of God at all and not be in the church of God. Moreover, we respectfully deny that there is any such thing in the New Testament as becoming a Christian and not at the same time and in the same way becoming a member of the church. We deny that there were any Christians in New Testament times that were not members of the church. This idea that persons are saved at one time and in one way and then are to become members of the church at another time and in a different way is all of man, and the New Testament, we respectfully remark, says not one word to that effect. In New Testament times, the same process that made one a Christian made one a member of the church. There was no such thing then as becoming a Christian and afterwards joining the church. Our author is here attempting to support the notion that men become Christians in one way, and then, by being baptized, become Baptists and members of the church. We respectfully deny that this is taught in the New Testament, or that the word "Baptist" is ever used in that sense in the New Testament, or that it was anywhere else ever so used in Greek literature. The word "Baptist" means one who baptizes or a baptizer, and it has no other meaning in the New Testament, and never had any other meaning in the language of the New Testament. The term "Baptist," in the denominational sense, is wholly of man and wholly foreign to the New Testament; and hence one cannot be "Baptist," in that sense, without being something that is not in the New Testament. And hence, finally, if a Christian, why be a Baptist? And if a Baptist, in the denominational sense, why not be simply a Christian?

Who Are Our Friends?

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

As the pendulum swings from one extreme to the other, so does human nature. Satan understands this perfectly. So when he tempted Christ in the wilderness, he first tried to get him to doubt his Sonship by suggesting: "If thou art the Son of God, command that these stones become bread." As much as to say: "I do not believe you are the Son of God; but if you are, you can prove it by feeding yourself and hungering no more. How easy, if you are what you claim to be, to make these stones become bread!" Failing here, the devil next rushes to the opposite of doubt and seeks to lead Christ to foolhardily presume upon the protecting care and love of God. "Then the devil taketh him into the holy city; and he set him on the pinnacle of the temple, and saith unto him, If thou art the Son of God, cast thyself down: for it is written, He shall give his angels charge concerning thee: and, On their hands they shall bear thee up, lest haply thou dash thy foot against a stone." What folly to unnecessarily put God to the test! Yet thousands of professed Christians deliberately walk into needless temptation. A Christian in the saloon, in the billiard hall, and in the gambling hell is unnecessarily putting God to the test. When of his own choice the disciple of Christ associates with the vicious, he is out of place.

DISCUSSION.

Formerly discussion of scriptural themes was considered right and in order. It is also true that many abused this sentiment and indulged in bitter wranglings and not dignified discussion. The practice of engaging in so-called "discussion" has so deteriorated into bitter personalities that it has become popular to oppose an honest and courteous

Investigation between two brethren in search of the truth. With some it is all right to skin sectarians in the most scathing terms and in the severest logic, but it is unchristian for brethren to discuss any Bible subject. Indeed, the pendulum has swung far the other way! An able, devout, and godly preacher not long ago endeavored to get a sister to take a religious journal. She finally consented to do so, provided, on the examination of two copies of the paper, she did not find any reasoning in them. It is enough to say that she did not become a subscriber to the paper. If the publisher cannot reason with brethren, if he cannot kindly, but firmly, show the brethren that they should avoid erroneous doctrine, it is time not only to cease the publication of all papers, but also to cease the publication of the Bible itself. The Bible in an unmistakable way shows us all how fallible and how sinful we are. Give us more reasoning, more research, and more dignified, honorable discussion. The prophet Isaiah says: "Come now, and let us reason together, saith Jehovah: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." (Isa. 1: 18.) Paul did much reasoning: "And Paul, as his custom was, went in unto them, and for three Sabbath days reasoned with them from the scriptures." (Acts 17: 2.) Also read Acts 18: 4: "And he reasoned in the synagogue every Sabbath, and persuaded Jews and Greeks." Also read Acts 24: 25: "And as he reasoned of righteousness and self-control, and the judgment to come, Felix was terrified, and answered, Go thy way for this time; and when I have a convenient season, I will call thee unto me." At Ephesus, Paul reasoned with the Jews. So may God forbid that we should ever espouse a sentiment that forbids reasonable discussion. When Peter dissembled, Paul withstood him to the face because his conduct merited censure and reproof.

CRITICISM.

The man who will not receive and profit by a just criticism in kindness given is unworthy a compliment. Our friends who have confidence in us will not hesitate to criticize us if they are confident the criticism is needed. If I find a brother teaching error, I am not his friend if I condone the error, thereby encouraging him to continue in his erroneous teaching. Such a course is a curse to the truth and is a mistreatment of one's friends. Paul, in writing to the Galatians, says: "So then am I become your enemy, by telling you the truth?" (Gal. 4: 16.) The marginal reading is "by dealing truly with you." When we believe one at fault and are afraid to undertake to show him his error, we thereby show that we do not have confidence in him. If we quietly tell him of his fault, such action bespeaks our love for him. When David had sinned, and had sinned egregiously, he never had a truer and better friend than Nathan, the prophet. Nathan, in his parable of the rich and poor man in the same city and the one little ewe lamb, dealt a just and severe reproof to David, which led him to pronounce himself worthy of death in passing sentence on the rich man. Then Nathan, in devotion to right and with an unfaltering friendship for the king, said to David: "Thou art the man." The prophet then pointed out to King David the terrible consequences that would follow his sin. Then David said: "I have sinned." It takes a big man and a noble man to confess his sin. Little men and men lacking in devotion to principle never speak right out and say, "I have sinned." And yet this is the only way to get rid of sin. We must confess it with the mouth and humbly turn from it.

Those of a contrite heart God does not despise, and "he saveth such as be of a contrite spirit." Those who criticize should do so in the spirit of the Christ. "Brethren, even if a man be overtaken in any trespass, ye who are spiritual, restore such a one in a spirit of gentleness; looking to thyself, lest thou also be tempted." (Gal. 6: 1.)

The man who rejects a just criticism given in a spirit of gentleness does so at the peril of his own soul. It does not follow, because a man uses strong language, that it did not emanate from a pure heart. The words of Stephen were strong and pierced like daggers. Read them: "Ye stiff-necked and uncircumcised in heart and ears, ye do always resist the Holy Spirit: as your fathers did, so do ye." (Acts 7: 51.) The words of the Spirit spoken by Stephen bore a message of truth which, if heeded, would have brought joy and salvation to many hearts. But, as is often the case, those criticized resisted unto their own destruction. "Blessed are the poor in spirit: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." (Matt. 5: 3.) Our truest friends are those who deal truly and sincerely with us, speaking out against our mistakes and seeking to get us to abandon them.

From Bynum Black, of Ward Springs, Okla., August 1: "My meeting at Center Ridge, Ark., will close to-night. Six persons have been baptized. The call for discussions are reviving. In the past week I have received calls for four discussions—one with the Dryland Holiness, at Anderson, Okla.; one with the Adventists, at Cabness, Okla.; one with the Baptists, at Celestine, Okla.; and one with the Baptists at Springfield, Ark. The debates will be held the last weeks in September, October, and November."

From Carl A. Gardner, Thorp Spring, Texas: "A. O. Colley is doing the preaching in the annual camp meeting conducted by the church of Christ at Thorp Spring. The meeting starts well. The faculty is exceptionally strong. Our work is fully credited by all leading universities. Many people are coming this way. The Bible is emphasized and the influences are the best. The school offers no special and cut rates, but moves along purely on its merits. Write for a catalogue."

What the "Joy Fund" Means.

We print an extract from a letter of Brother W. H. Owen, of Henderson, Tenn., that explains the happiness that can be created by those who contribute to the "Joy Fund," and also the joy of the giver. He writes as follows:

Knowing the Gospel Advocate as I do and remembering what a source of joy and pleasure it was to my aged grandmother, and knowing how it would have grieved her to have been deprived of it, I can appreciate the comfort and blessings it can bring to many that are not able to pay for it. Therefore, I have decided to make contributions to the fund as the Lord shall prosper me. There are many of us who can, every time we renew our own subscription, send enough to pay a year for some worthy one who cannot pay for the paper. I think your "Joy Fund" move is a grand thing.

We have a long list of people who would like to receive the paper, but are unable to pay for it. Send us one dollar and we will send a year's subscription with a note telling of your kindness.

PUBLISHERS GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

YOU WILL WRITE A LETTER LIKE THIS.

I wish that I knew which one of the thousands of letters I receive would have the most weight with you, my friend. I cannot quote all of them here, but I am going to ask you to read these carefully and then give me a chance to renew your health and make you write me one very much like them.

701 Barnard Street, Savannah, Ga., December 28, 1910.

Mr. N. F. Shivar, Shelton, S. C.—Dear Sir: As you are aware, in 1909 I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders, and all its train of horrifying phenomena for several months. I had lived on milk, soft eggs, shredded wheat, a very insufficient diet for an active working man, and, of course, from disease and starvation, was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your mineral water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every instance had the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantities as possible, for its properties are so happily blended, and in such proportion, that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely nature's remedy.

Leeds, S. C., March 2, 1911.

I have tested your spring water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and in nervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time it will produce a permanent cure. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys, and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter. C. A. CROSBY, M.D.

These are not selected cases, nor are the results unusual. I receive thousands like them from physicians, ministers, lawyers, merchants, farmers, manufacturers, and every conceivable profession. I want the satisfaction of receiving such a letter from you. No matter what your complaint may be—dyspepsia, indigestion, nervous headache, rheumatism, gallstones, kidney or liver disease, or any chronic ailment that has not responded to drugs—I invite you to match your faith in the spring against my pocketbook. If the water fails to benefit you, simply say so, return the empty demijohns, and I will promptly and willingly refund your money—every cent. Sign below.

Shivar Spring,

Box 21B, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your guarantee offer, and inclose herewith two dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. The Master's Vineyard

Alabama.

Haleyville, July 30.—Since leaving Sweetwater, Texas, for the work in Alabama, I have held meetings at the following places with results as stated: New Castle, eleven additions; Vina, three additions; Phil Campbell, two additions; Beech Grove, ten additions; Pine Grove, ten additions. Brother J. H. Stone, of Spruce Pine, assisted me in the latter meeting. I am now with the White House congregation, near Haleyville, holding forth in the new building which I planned last year. These brethren have surely built a fine home for the church. This is my fourth annual meeting with this church. I will go to Clover Ridge next. I have some time in October and November that I will give to any who can use me.

A. D. DIES.

Arkansas.

Wynne, July 31.—I began a meeting at this place yesterday. Prospects are fine for a good meeting. We had a house full last night. This is a very prejudiced place.

H. F. PENDERGRASS.

Maynard, July 27.—I have just finished a good meeting at New Liberty Church, Poynor, Mo. There were seven additions. Different brethren told me we had the largest crowds, best attention, and best behavior they ever did have there in a meeting. Much good was done in many ways. I feel sure. They are a living church. They treated me kindly. I love them much.

O. E. BILLINGSLEY.

India.

Kathgodam, June 16.—I am on my way back to Nafni Tal, having been to Bareilly to see Brother Umrao Singh in the District Hospital. He is down with partial paralysis, is improving, and it was a spiritual treat to see his courage and cheerfulness in spite of trouble and sorrow. Pray for him. Such as he cannot well be spared from the work. Yesterday in Bareilly I baptized a young girl, and this morning I baptized her sister. Both had long wanted to follow their Savior. I am starting for the Deccan to hold a Bible study for the workers and their wives. Pray for the work.

E. S. JELLEY, JR.

Mississippi.

Tishomingo, July 27.—On July 11 I closed a very interesting meeting at Odd Fellows' Hall, in Giles County, Tenn., with seven baptisms. I am now in a meeting at Tishomingo. The meeting is four days old, with four additions so far.

J. T. HARRIS.

Missouri.

Battlefield, July 25.—I assisted the brethren of Johnson and Dale congregation, in Springfield, in a mission meeting in Northeast Springfield, beginning on July 2 and continuing up to July 23. The attendance and attention were good from the beginning to the close. The visible results were nine baptisms and eleven by membership from the Christian Church. We now have thirty-three members in that part of the city, and feel hopeful to effect another place of worship soon. The work is great before us this fall.

O. L. HARDIN.

Oklahoma.

Ward Springs, July 28.—My meeting at Alfalfa was well attended and the close was with crowded house and fine attention. Our people there are not working so much for members as for faithfulness of the members. They did not anticipate a great ingathering. I am now at Center Ridge in a fine meeting. The crowds are the largest here in a long time. Three have turned to the Lord, and we hope that the ingathering will be great.

BYNUM BLACK.

Tennessee.

McMinnville, August 1.—The protracted meeting at Grange Hall, in Warren County, continued for eleven days, with three baptisms. I am now assisting the brethren in a meeting at Smartt.

FRED L. WALLACE.

Murfreesboro, July 25.—I am now in a meeting at Florence, with large crowds at night. The meeting is three days old and the interest is fine. I am having some trouble with my throat and may have to leave out the day service during this meeting. I will begin a meeting at Arrington on the first Sunday in August, if the Lord wills.

E. L. CAMBRON.

Bolivar, July 30.—Brother A. G. Freed closed an eight-days' meeting at Bethany, with four confessions and baptisms. Interest grew to the last. Could we see the great number of preachers and teachers that have gone from the halls of the college at Henderson, we would be proud of the National Teachers' Normal and Business College.

C. W. THOMPSON.

Lynchburg, July 26.—Our meeting closed at Corinth, in Wilson County, last Lord's-day night. It had turned into the third week. There were two baptized. Large crowds attended throughout. We believe a great deal of prejudice was broken down. I am now in a meeting near Lynchburg; will be here about ten days. I will go from here to Deason, Bedford County.

THOMAS H. BURTON.

Boonshill, July 29.—Brother C. E. Wooldridge, of Fayetteville, closed a good tent meeting with the Center Ridge brethren on July 23. There was splendid attendance and interest throughout the meeting. Four persons were baptized and one came from the Missionary Baptists. Brother Wooldridge preached some strong and helpful sermons. He fails not to proclaim the whole counsel of God. We look forward to the time when we can have him again.

O. B. R. CARPENTER.

Covington, July 25.—Our meeting at Covington closed on Wednesday evening, July 12, with no additions. I am now at Detroit, about twelve miles west of Covington, in a good meeting. Two men have been baptized and others are expected. The meeting will close on Thursday evening. I will preach at Gates next Lord's day. I shall go to Neosho, Mo., about August 20 to assist in a tent meeting.

J. M. DENNIS.

Decherd, August 1.—I have just closed an interesting meeting at Raus, in Bedford County, with nine baptized and one restored. There is much prejudice at this place. Most of the people are Baptists and Cumberland Presbyterians. We found several brethren and sisters in and around Raus, and they agreed to build a house of worship. I started a subscription list, and before I left they had about four hundred dollars subscribed. They are doing all they can to raise enough money in a few days to start the building. The brethren at Flat Creek are going to give them a good subscription, and the brethren at Singleton are going to help. Contributions from any brethren or congregations for the building of this church will be greatly appreciated. Send all contributions to Claud Roberts, R. F. D., Tullahoma, Tenn. Dr. Wiley Grizzard, of Winchester, was with me the first week. The meeting continued two weeks. I go next to Elkhead, in Grundy County.

R. E. L. TAYLOR.

Fayetteville, August 1.—Brother R. H. Largen attended the Morgan School at Fayetteville. After the close of the school in May, he entered upon an evangelistic campaign in Lincoln County, his home county. He has held a number of meetings and will hold several more before the summer ends. He began at Taft on the first Sunday in June, with a good hearing and two additions. He was at Kelso for several days, embracing the second and third Sundays in June, and had four additions. This is a mission point. The meeting was held under a tent. The Lord's-day meetings will be observed in the schoolhouse. From Kelso he went to Delrose, another new mission field, where but very little preaching by our people had ever been done. Here he pitched his tent and began preaching. The meeting continued over two Sundays and resulted in nine additions. This was considered a great meeting. A subscription was started for a house, and the building will be started soon. From Delrose he went to Mimosa for ten days, during which time it rained so much that the people could not attend. He labored as best he could, but closed without any additions. On the third Sunday in July he began a ten-days' meeting with the congregation at Cyruston, one of the oldest congregations in the county. There were twenty-one additions. This was the largest ingathering they have had for years. Brother Largen is truly "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed;" and the churches and brethren at these places gave him the support and assistance in the meetings he had a right to expect. I am glad to report that the church throughout the county is supporting Brother Largen in word and deed. A number of brethren have bought and equipped a tent that will seat three hundred people for him to use in his work. Brother Largen is young, humble, active, earnest, able, and faithful, and is doing a great work. May the Lord ever bless him in his work for the Master. T. C. LITTLE.

Cutting Down the Cost of Pianos.

Have you ever stopped to ask yourself the question why oranges which sell for five cents each cost only two cents by the box, or why apples sell so much cheaper by the bushel than by a nickel's worth? It is the same way with pianos. If you were to purchase one hundred pianos (eight car loads) from the factory, you would get a much lower price than if you purchased only one. That is why the Gospel Advocate Piano Club, composed of one hundred buyers who club their orders into one big order, is saving its members at least forty per cent on high-grade pianos and player pianos.

You are cordially invited to write for your copy of the club's beautifully illustrated catalogue, which fully explains the big saving in price, the convenient terms, and the guarantees of quality and permanent satisfaction. Address The Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Ga.

Dill.

Dr. J. M. Dill departed this life on June 23, 1916, aged eighty-four years. In the death of this faithful brother the church, the community, and the family have sustained a great loss. We will miss him. We will miss his gentle words of comfort and admonition that we have heard so often on Lord's-day morning. We will miss his presence as a physician in the sick room. For years he has been a faithful member of the Christian Church, and his seat was never vacant on the Lord's day unless providentially hindered. He leaves a wife, two sons and two daughters, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his departure. He was a devoted father, and certainly left a noble heritage to his children. May God bless his family in this dark hour of sorrow and help them to remember that their loss is his eternal gain. Funeral services were conducted at the Christian Church, at Dilton, on Saturday, June 24, by Elder G. C. Brewer, of Columbia, Tenn., and Dr. Curlee, of Bradyville, Tenn., in the presence of a large crowd. His remains were laid to rest in the Harrell graveyard to await the resurrection morn. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

A. B. S.

Wilson.

Mrs. Willie Kate (Walker) Wilson departed this life on April 29, 1916. She was baptized into Christ by Brother H. F. Williams on July 13, 1896, who was then preaching at Cedar Dell, her home congregation. She lived a consistent member of the body of Christ till the summons came and called her into the great beyond. She was married to Mr. V. M. Wilson on April 11, 1909. To this union two children were born. She leaves these two little children, a husband, mother, two brothers, and a sister, to mourn her departure, her beloved father having preceded her eleven years. She was of a sunny disposition and made many friends wherever she went. Her Christian father and mother brought her up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord," and she was faithful to this early training to the end. She was ever desirous of making her calling and election sure, and we believe she succeeded in her noble attempt. We hated to see the merciless hand of death snatch her from our midst, but though we "long for the touch of a vanished hand, and the sound of a voice that is still," we must yield to the inevitable and say: "Father, thy will be done, and not ours; for thou knowest best and doest all things well." Though we are pained to be deprived of her sunny presence, let us look with an eye of faith at the wonderful power and righteousness of God and say with Campbell as he stood by his beautiful daughter's open grave: "It's all right; it's all right." The funeral services were conducted by the writer on Sunday, April 30. The great concourse of people who attended and the long distance from which many came showed the high esteem in which Sister Wilson was held.

JOHN L. RAINEY.

Preston.

Our dear, good, Christian uncle, J. R. Preston, of High Bridge, Ky., fought a good fight, kept the faith, and finished his course in this world of suffering and took his departure to be with Christ and to receive his crown of righteousness that was laid up for him, at 2:30 P.M., May 12, 1916, after an illness of six weeks with heart trouble. He was sixty-three years of age; had been a merchant for twenty years. He had been a member of the church of Christ since quite a young man, and was an elder in the church which he himself mostly built, for he was indeed a cheerful giver, and we know that God loves such a one. Neither we nor the church can ever describe our great loss, but we know it is heaven's gain. Even to the last he was cheerful. Nearly always in the store he was singing some sacred song, and was ever ready to talk of heaven to his customers and quote scripture, giving book, chapter, and verse. I cannot remember of ever receiving a letter from him (and I received them quite often) that he did not quote a passage of scripture. In his last letter to me, written on March 17, in speaking of living a true Christian, he said: "Be assured that there is nothing else in this present world for any one; therefore to attain a home in the world to come is a decided victory for those who attain it, and without it all is utterly blank." And he closed the good letter by saying: "O how sweet will be the rest from this tiresome world! So let us work for our blessed Master while here; so when we grow tired here, how sweet will be the rest!" He never knew, neither could I ever express to him in words, what a great comfort and consolation his letters were to me, and how heavy my heart to know I shall never receive another good letter from him! His door was ever open to the poor and fatherless. He had at different times in his home three or four orphans, and at the time of his death he had a little girl in his home who had recently lost her mother. It was said of the extremely large crowd that gathered to pay their last tribute of respect and love, that never were people more grieved, even to the old colored washerwoman, many expressing their great loss, saying he had been a father to them. O, it is hard to give him up; but we sorrow not as others that have no hope, for we read: "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." Indeed, his good work will live long in the minds of the people. We greatly sympathize with his second wife, who has lost a faithful and true husband, and with his daughter, Mrs. John Gibson, of Ludlow, Ky., who was very ill during his sickness and at the time of death, and who had not seen him since January. He leaves one brother, who deeply mourns his great loss; also nephews, nieces, and many friends. May we submit to God's will and prepare to meet him where there is no more death, neither shall there be any more pain, sorrow, or crying. Brother S. H. Jones conducted his funeral, and he was laid to rest beside his daughter in Willmore Cemetery.

Theophilus Rucker Freeman was born on June 30, 1830, and died on July 8, 1916, aged eighty-six years and eight days. He was married three times. His first marriage was to Margaret Bingham. To this union seven children were born, six of whom are living. One

THE YOUNG PEOPLE.

One of the brightest and most entertaining of all our Sunday-school publications is THE YOUNG PEOPLE, a four-page weekly, devoted especially to the interests and welfare of young people of both sexes, but which will prove a channel of cheer and blessing to older ones as well. This periodical has just been consolidated with THE BIBLE STUDY HELPER, and presents the strongest and most essential features of both in an improved form. Three pages are given to stories of an entertaining and elevating character and articles of an educational nature, by gifted and well-informed writers, strikingly illustrated by photo-engravings and line drawings; and one page is devoted to a clear and concise presentation of the Sunday-school lesson, historically and exegetically, by A. B. Lipscomb, one of the editors of the Gospel Advocate, in which are presented the thoughts of many of the world's best thinkers. The size of the page is 10 3/4 x 14 inches. Printed from clear type on good paper.

girl (Edna) died at the age of eighteen years. His third marriage was to Rebecca Clark. No children. He was baptized by the pioneer preacher, Elder George W. Cone, in 1851, at Bellbuckle, Tenn., and lived a consistent Christian life for sixty-five years. In 1855 he moved to Izard County, Ark., where he was a pioneer in Christian work and worship for thirty-five years. He was a faithful leader in the Lord's-day work and worship at Mill Creek (Melbourne) when it was not popular to do such work. In 1891 he moved back to Tennessee, and was an elder in the Mars' Hill (Rucker) congregation up until death. His home was a home for the preachers. The care for him during his declining years fell upon the son that bears his name (Theophilus Rucker, Jr.) and Miss Zenobia, the youngest daughter. Never did two children care for a parent with more gentle love and faithfulness than these two. He was a good father, and his children will miss his advice; a kind neighbor; a faithful, loyal Christian. He will be sadly missed in the neighborhood in which he lived, and more especially in church work. He has gone to reap the reward that is promised to the faithful. Like David said when his child died, he cannot come to us, but we can go to him. May the long battle he has fought be an encouragement to all who knew him to continue faithful until they, too, shall be called upon to go. There are so many things that I could write, but eternity alone can tell the good this man of God has done. From my earliest recollection he was a subscriber to the Gospel Advocate.

J. K. FREEMAN.

Moultrie.

Isaac Sewell Moultrie was born in Hornbeak, Obion County, Tenn., on November 7, 1877, and departed this life on May 19, 1916, in the Christian Hospital in St. Louis, Mo., aged thirty-eight years, six months, and twelve days. He was the fourth of nine children of Mr. and Mrs. R. C. Moultrie. He obeyed the gospel in 1891 and lived in the service of the Lord till death came and took him from earth, wife, children, mother, two sisters, and a host of relatives and friends. His wife and three children have lost most, as he was the mainstay and supporter of the home. Remember, death is coming to one and all; so let us be watching, for we know not the hour when it shall come. If we live as we should, death will be robbed of its terrors—only the gateway into an endless life where death comes not. May the dear Lord bless all who mourn the loss of Brother Moultrie.

JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

Gulles.

On June 16, 1916, Mrs. Laura Gulles departed this life at her home near Baker's Schoolhouse, in Parker County, Texas, and her remains were laid to rest in the neighborhood cemetery by the loving hands of neighbors, friends, and relatives. Brother A. O. Colley conducted the funeral services. She was the daughter of J. W. and Mary Gibson, deceased. She left a husband, John Gulles, and a son, Ralph Gulles, together with many relatives and friends, to mourn her loss. She was born on April 13, 1866, in the same county in which she lived and died. Sister Gulles was a worthy member of the church of Christ for many years; and while she did not have congregational church advantages, she maintained a lively interest in Christianity, being a subscriber to the Gospel Advocate for more than twenty years. She was devoted to her husband and son and it was hard for them to give her up, but they should be comforted with the thought that we have every reason to believe that it is well with her.

Doctor Says Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate People 200% in Ten Days

In many instances—Persons have suffered untold agony for years doctoring for nervous weakness, stomach, liver or kidney disease or some other ailment when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood.—How to tell.

New York, N. Y.—In a recent discourse Dr. E. Sauer, a well known Specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, said: If you were to make an actual blood test of all people who are ill you would probably be greatly astonished at the exceedingly large number who lack iron and who are ill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied all their multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at once loses the power to change food into living tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you any good; you don't get the strength out of it. The food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and all run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin; another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dyspepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day; some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In some cases it is worse than foolish to take stimulating medicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your flagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous run down people who were ailing all the time double, and even triple their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of their symptoms of dyspepsia, liver, and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form, and this, after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old iron to put color in your cheeks and good, sound healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and the best blood builder in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic iron like tincture of iron, iron acetate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset their stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic iron all this has been overcome. Nuxated Iron, for example is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

NOTE—The manufacturers of Nuxated Iron have such unbounded confidence in its potency that they authorize the announcement that they will forfeit $100.00 to any Charitable Institution if they cannot take any man or woman under sixty who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent. or over in four weeks' time, provided they have no serious organic trouble. Also they will refund your money in any case in which Nuxated Iron does not at least double your strength in ten days' time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

FROM THE FIELD

Texas.

Rosser, July 22.—The mission meeting here is one week old. Audiences small. Six confessions to date.

JOHN HAYES.

Garrett, July 23.—We are having a glorious meeting here. Immense crowds and fine interest. There is a very strong church here of very fine people.

JOHN E. DUNN.

Granger, July 25.—I am in the second week of a good meeting here. Five additions to date—two baptisms and three restored. Brother J. W. Acuff, of the Trio Music Company, is leading the songs.

J. B. NELSON.

Munday, July 28.—Our meeting has outgrown anything in the past. Out of doors, open air, fine singing, preaching my best. Nine baptized and others expected. Will close on Sunday night, home on Monday, then to Hamilton County for twenty days.

TICE ELKINS.

West, July 31.—The meeting at Roscoe was good, all things considered. Picnics, election, and indifference hurt our meeting. We had seven baptisms and some restored. I am at West now in a good meeting. I go to Farmersville next.

J. S. DUNN.

Floyd, July 24.—I am now holding a meeting at Floyd. The meeting is two days old and interest is good. The meeting at Cove, Ark., which lasted only a few days, resulted in one addition to the one body. My next meeting will be at Mercury, Texas.

E. M. BORDEN.

Krum, July 21.—The meeting began here last Sunday. Good crowds and fine attention. I will continue here over the fifth Sunday. I left the Concho meeting with Brother L. D. Ferguson last Friday. Fine interest there. Eleven baptisms up to Monday.

C. D. CROUCH.

Halsell, July 31.—My meeting at French Port, near Camden, Ark., was a success. Three baptisms were the visible results. I am now in a meeting in West Texas—at Halsell, in Clay County. Brother Herbert Bass, of Mount Vernon, is conducting the song service.

D. L. HAILE.

Klondike, July 28.—I am now at this place in a fine meeting. While the Baptists are in a meeting here in town and the Holiness people a short way out, we are having good crowds and fine interest. Two baptisms to date. I am to begin at Dodsonville on August 5. Brethren, pray for me.

D. S. LIGON.

Sherman, July 31.—Brother C. T. McCormack and I closed a meeting at Dawson on July 30, with two by letter and two reclaimed. Paradise is the next place. Then we go to Stroud, Okla., and from this meeting I go to Tennessee the first of September. I could hold other meetings in that State in September and October.

R. D. SMITH.

Houston, July 24.—The meeting in Broadus closed yesterday with seven baptized, and a great number who have had a divorce from Christ renewed their most sacred vows. I was never treated better in my life than by the brethren in Broadus and Chireno. I spent the month at the two places, with sixty-eight added. Blanco, my old home, is my next point.

BEN WEST.

Cedar Hill, August 1.—The mission meeting at Rosser closed with six baptized and a small band of disciples organized for regular work and worship. While the financial support was not enough to meet my needs, yet I rejoice that through my labors souls were turned from darkness to light. After while the conflict will be ended; and if I win the "crown incorruptible," I shall then look back at the trials and sacrifices made here as "light afflictions." JOHN HAYES.

Wellington, July 29.—I had a very fine meeting at Baird; four baptisms. I closed there on Sunday night and returned home, spent one day, and came on to Wellington, where I am now in the midst of a meeting that bids fair to be a good one. We had two confessions last night. I will be here over the first Sunday in August. I am to be at San Saba on August 10 for a meeting, then to Stephenville, and on and on. As busy as can be in the work of the Lord.

T. W. PHILLIPS.

Merkel, July 24.—At Winters we had a fine meeting, with thirty-one additions—seventeen baptisms. Brother Luther Norman is the local preacher, and he is a good one, too. He is also a fine singer. He led the singing mostly in our meeting. Prof. M. D. Ussery, of Abilene, also made us glad with his assistance in the song service. I am now in Merkel, with eight baptisms and six otherwise. I am praying for and expecting a good meeting here also. I go to Bartlett next. I will have there Acuff and Evridge to sing—Texas' best.

THOMAS E. MILHOLLAND.

Cumby, July 17.—I have been reporting but little, but I have been busy. The last two weeks in June Brother Dewy King and I held a meeting at Cooper. The preaching was the best that we could do, but shows and things headed us off some. A big tent show came to town about the time we did, but I do not think we interfered with it much. The first two weeks in July we were at Rattan, in Delta County. We had good crowds and fine interest and were treated the very best. There were seven baptisms and two restorations.

W. H. GEORGE.

Munday, July 10.—I am in a great meeting here, and we expect a great deal of good to be done. We have a host of people out at each service who never heard a Christian preacher before. The crowd has grown till we

R. K. MORGAN,
Principal Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tennessee.

Your Boy is Your All. If He is Lost, All is Lost.

Who are your boy's associates? The character of a boy's associates is a most powerful factor for good or evil in the shaping of his life. Your boy's greatest danger is local associates. They teach more than you. If they are bad, what is the remedy?

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, of Fayetteville, Tenn., has given this question profound study during the twenty-five years in which he has built up the Morgan School—a training school for boys, of which he is principal. Mr. Morgan has devoted a long career to the training of boys. He knows boy nature. The close, personal associations which he has fostered between his boy students and himself, his carefully chosen faculty, his careful attention to the boy's work, his thoughts, his talents, and his special needs, are some of the features which have given his school its high standing.

Mr. Morgan is a man of inspiring, wholesome personality, and deep Christian character. He has built his school to give the boy thorough mental, physical, and spiritual preparation for an honorable, manly life. He is a proper man to train your boy.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, secretary Morgan School, Fayetteville, Tenn., will bring a catalogue and full information of this school.

Every Cold Should Be Considered Serious

So say the best medical authorities. Unless promptly checked, often they lead to chronic bronchial and pulmonary troubles which may prove fatal.

If your cough or cold has not responded to treatment—and remember, medicine should not be solely relied on—timely use of Eckman's Alterative may give you relief.

For more than twenty years it has been benefiting sufferers from these disorders. It is especially indicated where the system demands lime, for it contains calcium chlorid so combined as to be easily assimilated by the average person.

Safe to try—because it contains no harmful or habit-forming drugs of any sort whatsoever. Sold by leading druggists or sent direct. Booklet containing information of value and references sent upon request.

had to haul lumber and seat the ground outside the house, and still they keep coming. We have the foolishness and crankiness about all out of the thing now and will have a good meeting of it with nothing to hinder. I preached recently at Wichita Falls and St. Jo, and found a good lot of brethren at each place. I want to engage meetings for November and December, and await your call.

TICE ELKINS.

Ballinger, July 25.—The Ballinger meeting lasted eighteen days and resulted in nine baptisms. Large attendance and splendid interest in every service. Although in the past things have not been altogether pleasant and harmonious in Ballinger, there is now perfect union and harmony and peace. The church perfected arrangements by which I will return on September 15 and give my entire time to the work in Ballinger, except during the summer months, which will be spent in evangelistic work. Brethren, remember me and mine in your prayers. I will join my family on August 1, after sacrificing and enduring hardness for the past eight months, having been away from them all of the time, except three days, since November 15.

E. A. BEDICHEK.

Dallas, July 31.—I have just closed a four-days' debate with Ben M. Bogard (Baptist), at Mexia. Bogard is the strongest Baptist I have ever met and is about as strong as the Baptists have in Texas. During the debate I baptized a prominent man who was brought up under Baptist influence. At the close of the debate Brother C. W. Ing, who moderated for me, and who did his work well, preached two sermons and I preached one, and ten more were baptized and one restored. Brethren told me that even if I had not made an argument, my conduct in the debate would have won over Mr. Bogard. I never did see why we could not manifest Christ's spirit in debate as well as in protracted meetings. At the close of the debate the superintendent of the Baptist Sunday school, who was a Methodist, resigned, giving as his reason: "I am in the wrong place."

A. E. FINDLEY.

Midway, July 28.—On July 10 we closed the greatest meeting I can remember ever having for the Lord in our little town. Brother G. A. Dunn did this great work for the Lord. He shuns not to declare "the whole counsel of God." He spoke the true knowledge of God's word with all kindness and love toward all and with that meek and sincere Christian spirit that puts us all in remembrance of our duty toward our Lord and Savior. There were thirty-one additions, including twenty-four baptisms. The Lord sent us the blessing of rain the first few days of the meeting, but we continued the work of the Lord with good crowds. During one of the baptisms the lightning flashed and the thunders rolled. Let us all be strong in the work of the Lord in sunshine and rain. We had fine attention. The church was edified greatly, and we all learned to live better and more righteous lives for our Lord and Savior.

MONEY IN PIGEONS

Make Your Back Yard Profitable

THE demand for squabs in the Northern, Eastern and Southern markets has never been supplied, because pigeon raising as a business is comparatively new. Buy a half dozen pair of select birds, fence in a small portion of your back yard and watch them go to work. Success is easy. They raise from eight to fifteen pairs of squabs a year. Your squabs and fancy birds will bring handsome returns. You will actually make money in a hitherto useless part of your back yard. Pigeon raising is not a fad or fancy. It is a profitable business. Let us start you right. Our breeders are the best, and raised from prize winning parents. We will furnish you with the birds and teach you how to raise them, and you will reap a handsome profit with a very little outlay. Thousands are taking advantage of this same opportunity. Write to-day for our literature on pigeon raising as a money making proposition, or better still, write us to send you a few pair of Belgian Carneaux at $5.00 per pair, White Swiss Mondaines at $5.00 per pair, White Kings at $3.50 per pair, or White Maltese at $4.00 per pair. Our birds are all guaranteed. Your money back if after two months you are not satisfied with their work. Better prices on larger orders. Write to-day and get the pick of the flock.

CAROLINA PIGEON PLANT,

Buffalo, July 18.—Last Saturday evening I baptized a prominent citizen of Point Pleasant, and on Lord's-day evening following I baptized a noble woman at this place. Thus we are slowly, but surely, gaining ground in this section; but most of us are poor and have no meetinghouse of our own here. The true cause of Christ is being planted here at a terrible cost upon our part. I have tried in vain to interest certain persons in this work. The only hope for the cause of Christ in these river towns is for our men to move into them and stay with the work until churches of Christ are developed and set in order. It is most surely our duty and high privilege to help sustain these men until that work is done, and surely this cannot be done by making a few transient visits to such places. Where tradition prevails, it may require years of patient work to train and develop an intelligent congregation of Christians. Mushroom congregations seldom last long. Let us exercise more care in building. When we find men willing to toil and sacrifice in order to build aright, let us help them all we can. I need the love, sympathy, and support of the faithful ones very badly, indeed. May I hear from you soon?

Notes from Macon, Ga.

BY MORGAN H. CARTER.

The kingdom is growing in this field. God is granting us victory. And although opposition is always strong and sometimes fierce, yet, through his strength, his church prevails so long as faithful to his truth. We are trying hard to build a congregation loyal to God. Much is said about loyalty, but so often it is faithfulness to some hobby, making questions of opinion and prejudice and party the leading issue and even a test of fellowship. Away with such "loyalty!" Christ is our King. His life, his love, his law, his church, and his promise to return and accept his own are the things that we want to learn; and seeing him revealed in God's truth, we want to become Christlike in thought, word, and deed.

A school position paying about fifty dollars a month can be obtained for a loyal Christian preacher. He will have opportunity of doing much church work. Send religious and educational recommendations to me. Write as soon as possible.

We are very much interested in obtaining a faithful Christian who can do efficient song leading. We shall be glad to try and obtain such a brother whatever kind of position he can best hold. Write immediately.

Any one interested in moving to an excellent city with increasing opportunities in church work, business, social and educational advantages, may write me for information regarding Macon, the central city of Georgia. I am not connected with any real estate company or agency, and will be glad to give you an unprejudiced answer to your question.

Will any reader please give me information regarding the history of J. J. Ingram, who recently arrived in our city claiming to be a loyal preacher of God's truth? He is now preaching in some of the mill districts of this city. He opposes baptizing into the name of the Father, Son, and Holy Spirit, and claims that the books of Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John do not apply to us. He is about seventy years old. He claims to be well acquainted in Dallas, Texas, and many other parts of that State, also about Rome, Ga. Please let me hear from the elders of true churches in these sections, if they know this man's history. Address me at 708 Broad Street, Macon, Ga.

Two Forthcoming Debates.

A debate between W. G. Roberts, of the church of Christ, and A. M. Baker, of the Latter-Day Saints (Mormon), will begin at Sedalia, Mo., on August 29, and will last for sixteen nights. The following propositions will be discussed: (1) "The Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, of which I, A. M. Baker, am a member, is in harmony with the church established by Christ and the apostles, in origin, organization, name, doctrine, and practice." A. M. Baker affirms; W. G. Roberts denies. (2) "The church of Christ, of which I, W. G. Roberts, am a member, is in harmony with the church established by Christ and the apostles, in origin, organization, name, doctrine, and practice." W. G. Roberts affirms; A. M. Baker denies. (3) "The 'Book of Mormon' is of divine origin and worthy the belief and respect of all Christian people." A. M. Baker affirms; W. G. Roberts denies. (4) "The sixty-six books of the Bible found in the King James translation and Revised Version is the complete will of God to man essential to salvation." W. G. Roberts affirms; A. M. Baker denies. (5) "Joseph Smith was a true prophet of God." A. M. Baker affirms; W. G. Roberts denies.

All brethren who expect to attend this debate should notify A. J. Hogan, Sedalia, Mo. Also, if any one wishes to help us a little financially, let him send a donation to Brother D. P. Warren, treasurer. A. J. HOGAN.

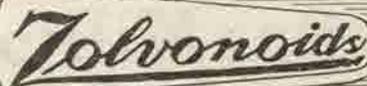

Beginning on August 28 and continuing for eight nights, at Bay Minette, Ala., I will conduct a public discussion with Mr. R. G. Green, who represents the "International Bible Students' Association," on the following propositions: (1) "The Scriptures clearly teach that all hope of salvation, to-day, is dependent upon accepting the gospel of Christ as revealed in the Scriptures, and that such acceptance is confined to this present life." W. J. Butler affirms; R. G. Green denies. (2) "The Scriptures clearly teach that man is wholly mortal and unconscious between death and the resurrection." R. G. Green affirms; W. J. Butler denies. (3) "The Scriptures clearly teach that the punishment of the finally incorrigibly wicked will consist of conscious, painful suffering, eternal in duration." W. J. Butler affirms; R. G. Green denies. (4) "The Scriptures clearly teach that after Christ's second coming a chance of salvation will be offered to all those who did not accept the gospel in this age of the world." Green affirms; Butler denies.

Bay Minette is on the Louisville and Nashville Railroad and is easily reached from any point. Visitors will be looked out for by the brethren, and a good time is expected.

Among Our Workers

Colorado.

LaPorte, July 31.—The writer has been in the Northwestern field for about two months. While my prime object is to investigate the adaptability of the climate to my lungs, I have been preaching as opportunity afforded. I find much wealth and prosperity in Oklahoma, Kansas, and Colorado. Central Kansas and Northern Colorado are the most prosperous districts I have ever seen. "Christianity" and "prosperity" are not synonymous terms. I have met with more infidelity in one month in Colorado than in all my life before. Many of the most radical religions of earth are found here. Brother J. D. Evans, at Denver, is a true and tried soldier, and is doing effective, permanent work in the city and at other points near. Brother James H. Bailey, at Boulder, is an energetic, effective worker. Brother J. A. Sidney is one of the principal workers at Bellvue church. All these places are making a steady, permanent growth. There are many other faithful, active men and women not mentioned, and the cause is being developed at other places; but these seem to be the prime, radiating centers, including Colorado Springs also, though we have not yet been there. Brother Fuqua seems to be the principal factor in the spread of the truth in this State. He is much loved by all the brethren that I have visited. I know of no medium more effective than he for the spread of the truth in Colorado. By the time you read this I will be on my return home, at Stephens, Ark. I will preach in Texas through August. Will be glad to hear from brethren in destitute fields who want the gospel preached. Write me at Stephens and I will arrange suitable dates. Will return by the way of Amarillo, Fort Worth, and Texarkana, and will stop off at any point convenient in Texas, Arkansas, or Louisiana.

J. D. NORTHCUT.

Called from Service to Reward.

BY LENA BURGER WOODLEE.

Tongue cannot express the sadness I feel while writing this in memory of a lovable woman—Sister Elizabeth Rutledge Martin (wife of our beloved brother, T. Q. Martin), who calmly, peacefully, and serenely fell asleep in Jesus, at Winchester, Ky., on April 29, 1916. Sister Martin was born in the year 1863. She was married to Brother Martin on November 2, 1894. She leaves her companion, two daughters (Nancy Sue and Christine), and numerous relatives, friends, and brethren and sisters in Christ to mourn her departure.

Sister Martin was highly esteemed by all who knew her. To know her was to love her. Hers was a beautiful life. She seemed to live for the pleasure of others, and always looked on the bright side of everything. She possessed many lovable traits, among which were kindness, cheerfulness, mercy, and love. She was cheerful even in the face of death, and manifested a tender consideration for her husband and daughters. She always met one with a smile on her face and was always kind to all who came in contact with her. It is, indeed, hard for us to understand why one so useful and so much loved should be called away; but while we cannot understand, the Lord knows why.

We may not know why death should come

To take the dear ones from our home; But tho' our eyes with tears be dimmed,

The Lord knows why; we'll trust in him.

O, yes, he knows—the Lord knows why, These things are ordered from on high;

And tho' dark clouds may hide the sun,

The Lord knows why; his will be done.

This loving companion and affectionate mother will be much missed in the home, but it is an inspiring hope that, when we separate here on earth at the summons of death's angel and when a few more years have rolled over the heads of those remaining, if "faithful unto death," we shall meet again in heaven, our eternal home, there to dwell in the presence of our Heavenly Father, and go no more out forever.

We miss her—O, so much! Those kind words which came as a sweet balm to our hearts are heard no longer. But our loss is truly the gain of our dear sister. It is so hard for us to give our loved ones up; but God, the loving Father, knoweth best. We must look for comfort from him when the dark clouds hover over our souls.

The sadness of death is banished by the precious promise relative to a future life, when there will be no more sad "good-byes." I thank God there will be no sorrow, no tears, no death, no vacant chairs in heaven. O, heaven! Beautiful heaven! No sorrow, no pain, no tears, no heartaches, no death, no sad good-byes!

The writer shares true sympathy with the bereaved ones, and with them entertains the precious hope of a grand reunion of friends and loved ones "over yonder," in the sweet, sweet by and by. God bless the sorrowing ones and help them to be faithful to the end; and may the taking away of this precious one draw them nearer to God and heaven. A loving wife and mother and a true and faithful Christian and servant of Christ has gone. She is not lost, but gone before. She prepared in this life for the life eternal.

O, why should we in anguish weep
When Christian's sweetly fall asleep?
The precious Lord their souls shall keep;

They are not lost, but gone before.

Secure from every mortal care,
Eternal happiness they share,
We, too, shall soon be going there.
They are not lost, but gone before.

O, happy day when we shall meet
Around the throne at Jesus' feet!
The thought of heaven, O how sweet!
They are not lost, but gone before.

Yes, some sweet day, on that fair shore,

We'll meet again, to part no more,
Where earthly sorrow all is o'er.
They are not lost, but gone before.

Gospel Advocate Piano Club Prevents Waste.

You will not find many men who would deliberately throw away one hundred dollars, and yet there are many who unintentionally waste that amount every year in one way or another. Careless buying is one of the most common ways of wasting money. The founders of the club had that fact in mind when they adopted the principle of cutting down the cost of pianos by cutting out the waste in marketing them. The club claims to save its members forty per cent, and asks you to give it an opportunity to prove this fact to your entire satisfaction by thoroughly testing the piano in your own home before obligating yourself to pay for it. It will cost you only a postal card to investigate; and if the testimony of club members who have already received their instruments is to be relied upon, you will undoubtedly be delighted with the saving in price, the convenient terms, and the superior quality of the instruments. By uniting our orders in a club of one hundred members, each secures the benefit of the lowest possible factory price, and yet it is responsible only for his own order.

Write for your copy of the catalogue and full particulars to-day. Address The Associated Piano Clubs, Gospel Advocate Department, Atlanta, Ga.

A Bystander's Experience.

As I am not an evangelist, I shall not append my name to what I shall have to write, except in a private note to the editors as a matter of good faith.

Several weeks ago, while making a railway journey, our train was delayed by a washout, which circumstance afforded the belated passengers time to get acquainted and exchange views. Fortunately or otherwise, I fell into company with several gentlemen who introduced themselves as ministers of the gospel. Quite naturally the subject of religion was raised. In response to some queries, I assured my clerical acquaintances that I was a member of no church, and, further, did not purpose to unite with any until I could be assured that I was, beyond all question, on the right road. Nothing easier. The sun in heaven could not be plainer. But the scheme proposed appeared to me to be so full of flaws that I ventured to put a few queries.

After considerable parleying, I made specific inquiries concerning the matter of baptism. O, yes, baptism; well, it was a thing of some importance, after all, but hardly vital to the plan of salvation. This did not satisfy me.

Finally I inquired: "Was Jesus Christ in earnest, or was he a blasphemous mocker of his own religion, when he went down into the river Jordan, was baptized, and came up out of the water? And if he was in earnest, which must be admitted, by what earthly authority does any one presume to change that mode?"

Concluding, I observed: "Gentlemen, I am neither a preacher, a politician, nor a Roman Catholic; but as the case now stands in court, I would give judgment for that church, for all the rest of the sprinklers and pourers are mere imitators. The Catholic Church altered the mode of baptism centuries after Christ as a matter of convenience."

"O, you are a Campbellite!" exclaimed one.

"No," I replied, "I am not a Campbellite, either. Guess again."

As a parting shot, looking out over the tumbling waters, I said: "Gentlemen, seeing there is considerable water here, I suggest that it might be a good time for you to follow the example of your Savior."

There are so many things to do—so many duties, studies, pleasures for each busy day—but we can judge ourselves pretty truly if we look back at evening and note what things we allowed to be crowded out.—Selected.

"EDIFYING AS THE NEED MAY BE"

BY A. B. LIPSCOMB

Faith and Hope Compared.

In the letters of the apostle Paul the leading word is "faith," but in the letters of the apostle Peter the leading word is "hope." The latter has been called the "Apostle of Hope" because in five chapters he makes no less than ten allusions to the future. If one asks concerning the difference in meaning between the two words "faith" and "hope," the truth is, there is no essential disagreement. They are related to each other in the sense that each is trust in God. They differ in that faith looks back to that act of divine love which made the gospel plan of salvation possible and looks forward to the consummation of the Christian life in the world to come. Hope, on the contrary, looks only to the future. It is dependent upon faith. It is truly one of the most permanent fruits of faith.

Hope Springs from the Resurrection.

We cannot experience what Peter calls a "living hope" without the expression of a living and active faith. Our hope is obtained by the resurrection of Jesus from the dead. In his wonderful argument upon this subject in the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians, Paul reasons thus: "If Christ hath not been raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also that are fallen asleep in Christ have perished. If we have only hoped in Christ in this life, we are of all men most pitiable." The apostle here teaches that there is a hope which is not dependent upon faith. He is emphasizing the lesson that unless a person really and truly believes the fact of the resurrection certified to by unimpeachable witnesses and indisputable proofs, all preaching, so far as he is concerned, is vain and his religion is vain. He is in a miserable state himself, and his dead have perished without salvation and without the "living hope;" for if Christ had not risen from the dead, no hope of immortality would have dawned over this world's perpetual night.

Acknowledgment Not Enough.

But our belief in the resurrection must not stop with a mere acknowledgment of this glorious fact. If this is all it does, it is not a living faith and cannot produce a living hope. The apostle Paul not only taught the doctrine of the resurrection, but he also taught an obedience to the form of that doctrine. Writing to the Romans, he said: "But thanks be to God, that, whereas ye were servants of sin, ye became obedient from the heart to that form of teaching whereunto ye were delivered." They had become dead to sin, they had been buried with Jesus Christ in baptism, and they had risen to walk in "newness of life," and now they had in their hearts what Peter calls the "living hope;" and for all of this, thank God!

Now, if you will turn again to Simon Peter's letter and examine the salutation, you will find that it is addressed to men and women who had passed through the same familiar process of induction into the church—Christians who had obeyed from the heart the same form of doctrine—and, as a trial of their faith, were now sojourners of the dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia.

Must Not Compromise the Gospel.

We ought to emphasize the teaching of these passages because there is a compromising spirit in the religious world to-day which accepts almost any kind of faith in Jesus Christ as an active and saving faith, just so one acknowledges the fact of the resurrection. Such a person may have a certain kind of faith and hope; but acknowledgment is not enough. The whole plan of salvation must be kept in view. Its conditions must be obeyed and the additions of the Christian graces must be made. Churches are springing up all round us which do not insist upon the fundamental principles taught by our Savior and his apostles. Preachers are coming into the limelight who rarely mention the holy ordinance of baptism and the Lord's Supper, but are confining themselves wholly to the discussion of faith and love and philanthropy and other themes which they say have to do with the betterment of our social fabric. But the true gospel preacher should see a great deal further than the evils of to-day. He should constantly bear in mind the judgment to come. "Knowing the terror of the Lord," he should seek to persuade men. He should teach them plainly the conditions of salvation, leaving out nothing that the Savior has told them to do, and impressing the lesson over and over again that the way to "lay hold of the hope set before us" (Heb. 6: 18) is to obey the Savior's commandments.

A Stable and Certain Quantity.

The Christian's living hope is something stable and certain. We know of some people whose hope increases and decreases in very much the same ratio of stocks and bonds. You ask them how goes the Christian life and if they are attaining any growth in the Christian graces, and they give you a cheerful affirmative answer. But let the day be leaden and gray; let their business be falling; let them be the least bit "out of sorts," and there is a great slump in their religion. Evidently such persons do not possess much of the living hope mentioned by the apostle Peter. If they had it once, they lost it because their faith was weak. The living hope is not affected by the weather nor one's bodily ailments. It is not peculiar to the sunshine. It is the tenant, not of a heart that was never broken, but of a heart that has been broken and healed again. Like a pure, bright star fixed high in the heavens, it reaches with its rays the uplifted eye of the weary pilgrim. But the "stars shine not in the day; darkness brings them out." Here is the kind of hope we need—the kind that sustains us in the dark. When our homes are smitten with disease and death, it is the hope that answers: "Lead me, Heavenly Father, lead me." When temptations crowd around us thick and fast, or when we are called upon to make some great sacrifice for the Master's sake, it is the hope that places our hands in his and inspires us to say: "I'll go with him all the way."

The Living Hope and the Calamity Howler.

The living hope is a persevering hope. There is no burden it cannot bear; there is no sorrow it cannot break; there is no fear it cannot overcome. There is a character which we meet almost every day and which we would like to change if we could. It is that person commonly known among business men as a "calamity howler." He never sees the bright side of things. In his mind a panic is always imminent. The country's safety and credit are always on the verge of disaster. If we believe his story, all of us are continually walking on eggs, with nothing solid to anticipate, and nothing soft to catch us if we fall.

If there is no room for this kind of a person in the commercial realm, surely there is no place for him in the kingdom of God. Nevertheless, it is no uncommon thing to hear a church member complain. It frequently happens that one who has taken upon his lips the name of Christ, and in whose heart there should be instilled the living hope of the gospel, becomes morose and distrustful of his brethren and sisters. Nine times out of ten the trouble does not lie with the church. It is not the lack of friendship and brotherly love. It is because the man himself did not continue in the faith, grounded and steadfast, but was moved away from the hope of the gospel by neglect of the teachings of God's holy word. As the apostle Paul taught the Romans, it is only through patience and through the comfort of the Scriptures that we keep this asset in our lives.

Messages from T. A. Dunagan.

BY F. W. SMITH.

Brother T. A. Dunagan, who has for many years been a leader and earnest worker in the church at Horse Cave, Ky., sends the two messages quoted in this article to me. In the first message Brother Dunagan says:

Now ask Brother Smith if he ever, in any of his preaching here, did any "speculating." If he has forgotten, I might give him a few of his outlines to refresh his memory.

It has been my pleasure to serve the church at Horse Cave in several meetings, besides preaching for the church monthly for a few years. Hence I have preached a great deal in that community, and feel gratified to know that our brother thought enough of even a few of my sermons to take an outline. I must answer his question in these simple words: I do not know. I do not claim infallibility; hence to disclaim any mistakes in my preaching would be a species of egotism of which I would feel heartily ashamed. But I can truthfully say that I did not intend to deal in "speculation;" and if our brother will kindly forward to me the "outline" or "outlines" of any sermon or sermons he heard me preach in which there is "speculation," I will retract it and apologize to him and the church. Is not this fair? And does not Brother T. A. Dunagan owe it to himself, to me, and to the church to send the "outline" or "outlines?" He was one of the public teachers and recognized as one of the leaders in the church at Horse Cave during my ministry there. Hence it was his bounden duty as such to have protected that church against any and all false teaching at the very time such teaching was given. (See Acts 20: 28, 29; Heb. 13: 17.) In view of the relation Brother Dunagan sustained to the church and the interest he should have had in me, I am compelled to conclude that one of two things is true—viz.: he has been very remiss in his duty to both the church and me, or else it has taken him an exceedingly long time to discover "speculation" in my preaching. Nearly eight years have passed since our brother heard me preach; and if it takes a teacher or leader in a church that long to discover unscriptural teaching, the churches are certainly not very well protected. But "better late than never" may apply in this case, and I shall patiently await the sermon "outlines" containing "speculation." The only thing I shall request of our brother is to be certain he forwards what I said in the sermon or sermons which he considers "speculation," and not his deductions from something I said. I wish him to remember that I am always subject to advice, suggestion, and even correction from my brethren. If he succeeds in showing that I dealt in "speculation" in my preaching, I think I am man enough to publicly acknowledge it, and to publicly ask him and all other brethren to forgive the mistake. I thank my God that I am not so self-inflated, stiff-necked, and afflicted with preacher bigotry and unmitigated egotism as to be above criticism by even the humblest disciple in the kingdom of Christ. Furthermore, one, two, or a dozen of my brethren may feel perfectly free to counsel with me about my teaching if they feel so disposed. Will Brother Dunagan please forward the "outline" or "outlines" with which he thinks he can "refresh my memory?" I assure him that I am perfectly willing to correct any mistakes I may have made along that line; and if it could be shown that my "speculation" had caused division among God's people, I should feel deeply grieved.

While waiting for Brother Dunagan to "refresh" my memory with some of those "speculative outlines," I will "refresh" his memory with the following extract from one of his own letters to me on my severing my relations with the church as one of its teachers:

Horse Cave, Ky., February 2, 1909.—F. W. Smith, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Brother Smith: Your letter of February 1, 1909, to hand. In reply, will say that the congregation here dislikes very much to give you up, as they are very much attached to you as a preacher and as a man, and that to form new acquaintances is a risk we all dislike to go through with. Your work here has been very satisfactory; but if you think the cause at Franklin demands your attention, we will release you, hoping that our loss will be their gain.

From the foregoing it would seem that our brother had up till the time he wrote this letter found nothing in my preaching to which he could object. Why, then, at this late day threaten to expose "speculation" in some of my "outlines?" Is there "another finger in the pie," or does Brother Dunagan now repudiate what he once regarded as "very satisfactory?"

The second message from Brother Dunagan runs thus:

I have just finished your article on "The End of Christ's Reign." You will have to try again, my brother. Some things stand out too plain to be brushed aside with such little effort. "'Then cometh the end.' The apostle does not mean to say that this end comes immediately after the resurrection, but that it is next in order of great events so far as humanity is concerned." ("Standard Bible Commentary," McGarvey and Pendleton, page 151.) "'Then'—after that, next in the succession of 'order' or 'ranks.'" (Jameson, Faussett & Brown's "Commentary" on 1 Cor. 15, page 293.)

I have known for some time that Brother Dunagan was in sympathy with the theories which such men as Tolbert Fanning and others equally as able found it necessary to combat in their day, hence did not hope to convert him from the error of his way. For his information, however, I will say that quite a number of very able, thoughtful, and studious men think that I succeeded abundantly in showing that when Christ comes the end will take place. In fact, they have told me there is no argument against the position I have taken on the subject. Brother Dunagan, like all the rest who are looking for a temporal kingdom, contents himself with naked assertions. But in the meantime let us wait, patiently wait, for the "outlines."

I will here remind Brother Dunagan and all others to write me no letters on religious subjects, especially of a controversial nature, they do not desire to see in print.

The Kingdom of Heaven. No. 3.

BY A. M. FOSTER.

THE BEGINNING.

In Dan. 2: 44 it is said: "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed: and the kingdom shall not be left to other people, but it shall break in pieces and consume all these kingdoms, and it shall stand forever." The word "kings" in the foregoing refers to the kingdoms that make up this image, beginning with the kingdom of Babylon and ending with the Romans. But all of Babylon is not represented in this image; for we are informed that the image begins with Nebuchadnezzar, who was successor to his father, Nebopolassar, who founded the kingdom at least twenty years before Nebuchadnezzar's time. The image, perhaps, did not include all the Roman kingdom, but only enough of it to usher in the kingdom of heaven. But it can make no difference how much of Babylon or Rome either was included in the image, because the beginning of the kingdom of heaven is evidently indicated by the point where the stone came in contact with the image. If this stone had smitten the image on the head, then Babylon would have been the place of beginning; if it had first come in contact with the breast and arms of this image, then its beginning would have been during the existence of the Media-Persia kingdom; etc. Of course the particular place of this respective part of this image the stone came in contact would indicate at what particular time of this kingdom's existence the kingdom of heaven began. But we are sometimes told that the ten toes of this image represent the ten divisions of the Roman empire, and are the now existing nations of the Old World. Now, I do not believe the ten toes of this image represent the divided state of the kingdom; but suppose they did, that would not alter the situation in the least. For the stone smote the image on the feet, and not on the toes. The fact that the stone came in contact with the feet of this image shows that the kingdom of heaven was to have its beginning at the time represented by the feet of this image, and, therefore, at a time before the kingdom was divided in any sense, except the iron and clay division; and this only represented a master-and-slave division, and not a political division in any sense. The iron and clay division of the Roman empire began several years before this time, when the Romans began their world conquest, bringing under its control the nations around them and holding them in subjection by force of arms. Thus the subjected peoples formed the lumps of clay, and the Roman soldiers, who were stationed among them to hold them in subjection, the bands of iron. The Jewish nation, which was held in subjection to Rome only by force of arms, is a sample of this iron-and-clay division. The foregoing, then, being true, and seeing that the kingdom of heaven had its beginning long before the toe division of this image (if there ever was such a division), we will now turn our searchlight backward and see if we can find the exact time and place that this stone came in contact with this image.

There are only two theories outside of those already examined where there is any claim made as the beginning of this kingdom, so far as time is concerned—one during the fleshly life of our Savior and the other on the first Pentecost subsequent to his resurrection, and to these we now invite your attention. But what do we find happening at this time to indicate the beginning of this kingdom of heaven? We have already found that the language in 2 Sam. 7: 12, 13 and Zech. 6: 12, 13 refers to Christ. Now, in addition to this, we have God telling Mary, the mother of Jesus, through the angel Gabriel: "Behold, thou shalt conceive in thy womb, and bring forth a son, and shalt call his name Jesus. He shall be great, and shall be called the Son of the Highest; and the Lord God shall give unto him the throne of his father David; and he shall reign over the house of Jacob forever; and of his kingdom there shall be no end." (Luke 1: 31-33.) Now here it is said that this child was to be given the throne of David, and he was to rule over the house of Jacob forever. The house of Jacob as used here certainly does not mean the Jewish nation, or fleshly Israel, any more than the house that Christ was going to build was to be a house of wood and stone. It was a spiritual house that Christ was to build; and so, too, it was over a spiritual Israel he was to reign. But the throne of David was to be in heaven. (Ps. 89: 35-37.) Therefore, if this Son of Mary sits on David's throne, he will have to go to heaven to do it. But the Baptists teach that Christ's kingdom began while he was on earth. But I think that by the time we get through with what we have to say with reference to the beginning of this kingdom, this theory will be sufficiently refuted without any special notice. On the night before Jesus was crucified he said to his apostles while seated at the supper table: "With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer. . . . And he took the cup, and gave thanks, and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves: for I say unto you, I will not drink of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come." (Luke 22: 15-18.) Now, if language means anything at all, this certainly shows that the coming of this kingdom was still in the future. But again, on the following day, while he was hanging on the cross, the thief said to him: "Lord, remember me when thou comest into thy kingdom." (Luke 23: 42.) If this thief knew anything about this kingdom (and he is quoted as having a great deal of knowledge on other matters), he evidently understood that our Lord had not as yet entered his kingdom; and certainly he would have been in his kingdom if it had been here. After Christ was dead, it is said of Joseph of Arimathea, who was an honorable counselor, that he "also waited for the kingdom of God." (Mark 15: 43.) Now, here was a man who was a learned man, and one who we have every reason to believe had the capacity to understand this kingdom question, and who was a disciple of our Lord (John 19: 38), and yet he was also waiting for the kingdom. But certainly he would not have been waiting for something that was already here. But "also" as used in the above text necessarily implies that some one else was waiting, too. But who were they? We are informed in Acts 1: 6 that after Jesus arose from the dead, his disciples came to him and asked him, saying: "Lord, wilt thou at this time restore again the kingdom to Israel?" Now, these scriptures certainly show that up to this time, if there had been any kingdom come or set up on earth, his disciples failed to know anything about it; and certainly, if it had been here, they would have known it. But is this all? No, not by any means. In Luke 19: 11, when his disciples thought the kingdom was going to immediately come, Jesus corrected their mistaken idea and showed them under the parable of the nobleman that he must go and receive the kingdom before it could come. (Luke 19: 11-27.) But this parable is used by some to prove that Christ's kingdom will begin on earth at his second coming. But we have already shown, in our reasoning on 2 Sam. 7: 12, 13, that this could not be true; that the kingdom over which Christ was to reign must have its beginning while David slept; and as this coming in the above parable is to judge the world, certainly David will be awake then, and it will be too late for Christ to set up a kingdom under the promise God made to David. But this is not all. As Christ was represented here as going to receive a kingdom, it naturally follows that he was not a king at that time, and, therefore, they owed him no allegiance whatever as such. And if he is not king now, nor will he till his second coming, then no one can owe him any allegiance before that time. Therefore, what right would he have to mete out punishment to any one for a violation of his kingly rights before he had any such rights? Such conduct would be an ex post facto proceeding pure and simple, and contrary to every principle of law, both human and divine. If Christ has no government in the earth now, then his coming to judgment is but an empty phrase. Because Paul says: "For where no law is, there is no transgression." (Rom. 4: 15.) Therefore, if Christ has no law in the world, he has no government, and consequently there can be neither merit nor demerit. But Paul says: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." (Gal. 6: 2.) Then Christ has law; and as governments are made up of law, Christ has a government in the earth, and certainly all of mankind is amenable thereto. But we have already shown that the government of heaven and the kingdom of heaven mean the same; therefore, then, Christ has a kingdom in the earth, and when he comes to judgment, having the kingdom many years before, we will be judged according to the laws thereof. Jesus had already told his disciples that some of them should live to see his kingdom come (Mark 9: 1); and not only that, but live to see him come in his kingdom (Matt. 16: 28). But this coming in his kingdom and coming to judgment do not mean the same coming; because we know that no one who lived at that time is living now, and Christ's coming to judgment is still in the future. But we are told in this parable that this nobleman was to go into a far country to receive this kingdom. Now, if this refers to Christ (and we know it does), then he represented himself as having to go into some distant land to get this kingdom. But we hear him telling his apostles, in John 16: 7, that it was expedient for them that he go away; and in John 14: 2 he tells them the reason of his going, and that he would come again and receive them to himself. Now, this place he says he was going to prepare for them could not be their eternal home, because we have already seen that that was prepared from the foundation of the world. Then this place he was going to prepare for them and his return to receive them to himself must have been something that was to take place before his final coming to judgment. If this reasoning is good, then this coming to receive them to himself and his coming in his kingdom, which some that were with him then were to live to see, must refer to the same coming; and if so, then the place prepared must have been the kingdom. Therefore, let us follow him a little further and see if this is in harmony with subsequent facts. In Acts 1: 9-11 we are told that when Jesus ascended a cloud received him out of their sight. Then he left this old world in a cloud. In Dan. 7: 13, 14, Daniel says: "I saw in the night visions, and, behold, one like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominion, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him; his dominion is an everlasting dominion, which shall not pass away, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed." Now, the phrase here, "Son of man," must refer to Jesus Christ, and the phrase, "Ancient of days," must refer to the Father. If so, then Daniel saw Christ come to God in the clouds of heaven (Christ left this world in a cloud), and God gave him dominion, power, and a kingdom. Here we see that the very thing the nobleman had to go into a far country to receive, Jesus went to heaven and received from the Father. The angel Gabriel told Christ's mother that he (Christ) was to be given the throne of David. (Luke 1: 31-33.) But we are told that the throne of David was to be established in heaven. (Ps. 89: 35-37.) And now we see Jesus going to heaven to receive this kingdom and to take his seat on David's throne. Yes, heaven is the capital of this kingdom, and the scepter will have to be wielded from that place.

But we have not yet found the beginning of this kingdom on earth. We have already noted that the word "mountain" means kingdom, and that the word "kingdom" means government. Now, Isaiah and Micah tell us that it was going to come to pass in the last days that the mountain (kingdom, government) of the Lord's house was to be established in the top of the mountains—that is, in the top of the governments of the earth—not as a separate and distinct government, ruling over separate and distinct territory, as the nations of the earth do, but in conjunction with them; not over the temporal, but the spiritual, lives of men and women, thus forming a spiritual brotherhood of all. But what is the Lord's house? Paul tells us in 1 Tim. 3: 14, 15 that it is the church of the living God. Therefore the government of the church of the living God was to be established in the last days. But the government of the church of God is the new covenant. Therefore the new covenant was to be established in the last days. (See Isa. 2: 2, 3; Mic. 4: 1, 2.) But when was these "last days?" On the day of Pentecost, when the Holy Spirit was poured out in all of its fullness upon the assembled disciples and they were all under its influence, the multitude came together, and some mocked and accused them of being drunk, and Peter lifted up his voice and said: "These are not drunken, as ye suppose, seeing it is but the third hour of the day. But this is that which was spoken by the prophet Joel; And it shall come to pass in the last days, saith God, I will pour out of my Spirit upon all flesh: and your sons and your daughters shall prophesy, and your young men shall see visions, and your old men shall dream dreams; and on my servants and on my hand-maidens I will pour out in those days of my Spirit; and they shall prophesy; and I will show wonders in heaven above, and signs in the earth beneath; blood, and fire, and vapor of smoke: the sun shall be turned into darkness, and the moon into blood, before that great and notable day of the Lord come: and it shall come to pass, that whosoever shall call on the name of the Lord shall be saved." (Acts 2: 15-21.) Now, here Peter says that Joel's prophecy was to be fulfilled in the last days, and that this that happened at that particular time was the fulfillment of it. If this is true, then, the day of Pentecost was the last days, and the very time when Isaiah and Micah said the government of heaven should be established. But we have a few more items we want to offer on this line. In Acts 2: 30, after telling the people that David was both dead and buried, and that his sepulcher was with them at that time, Peter further says of David: "Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God had sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne." Now, in this promise which Peter refers to as being made to David, he evidently refers to the one made to him by Nathan. (2 Sam. 7: 12, 13.) If so, he couples that promise with the day of Pentecost, thus showing that David is now sleeping with his fathers, and Christ, his Son, is now seated upon his throne. If this is not what Peter intends to teach, then why should he refer to this promise at all? Again, Jesus said his kingdom was going to come with power. (Mark 9: 1.) But the power was going to come with the Holy Spirit. (Acts 1: 6.) But the Holy Spirit came on Pentecost. (Acts 2: 1-4.) Therefore the power and the kingdom came on Pentecost. Again, Pentecost is called "the beginning." (Acts 11: 15.) Therefore, let those who say the kingdom did not begin on Pentecost tell us what this beginning refers to.

The Authenticity of Acts 8: 37, and the Letter to the Hebrews.

A. J. McClees, of Potomac, Ill., has been having some trouble as a Sunday-school teacher on account of the introduction of the question indicated in the foregoing caption in the recent lessons. In a letter in which he seeks information on the subject, he says: "I am teaching a class of young men, with thirty enrolled, some of them attending high school, and it is very embarrassing to try to teach a class of young men when the authority and authorship [of Scripture.—B.] are brought in question by the learned."

I can readily appreciate this embarrassment, and I feel like raising a protest against the introduction of these critical questions into Sunday-school lessons. The average teacher cannot be supposed to be able to cope with them, and in view of that fact they are liable to put skeptical notions into the minds of thoughtful young men. In harmony with Brother McClees' request, and in view of the probability that others may have felt the same embarrassment, I feel disposed to give the readers of the Standard the results of my study of the questions involved.

1. For a long time the authenticity of Acts 8: 37 has been called in question, and the revisers, both English and American, omit it from the text; and in view of these facts a contrary opinion expressed by me may appear to savor somewhat of immodesty. However, I shall not allow this consideration to deter me from presenting what I believe to be the truth in the premises. I believe the passage to be genuine for the following reasons:

(a) Without verse 37 there is an obvious and harsh hiatus in the narrative, as any one may see by omitting the verse in reading, as follows: "And as they went on the way, they came unto a certain water; and the eunuch saith, Behold, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized? . . . And he commanded the chariot to stand still; and they both went down into the water," etc. The dots indicate the place of the omitted verse, and it is perfectly plain that there is an unexpected break there, and that something is demanded to fill up the gap, so as to make the narrative run smoothly and naturally, and verse 37 welds the disjointed sentences together in a fitting and natural way.

(b) That the eunuch asked that question, and immediately, without an answer, stopped the chariot, is most improbable. He certainly would have waited for an answer, if he was a considerate and sensible man.

(c) That Philip withheld an answer to the important question of his dignified, distinguished, and earnest inquirer is hardly supposable. I once heard an aged preacher say that if Philip was a gentleman, he answered that question; and he was not only a gentleman, but he was a herald of the cross of Christ, and anxious to give information on such a matter.

(c) That Philip withheld an answer to the important any expression from him of faith in Christ, or other assurance that he was a proper subject of baptism, seems to me to be unreasonable. Every sensible consideration suggests that the eunuch's question was promptly and plainly answered, and the idea that it was not answered appears to be repugnant to reason. A more appropriate answer than that contained in verse 37 cannot be imagined.

(e) While it is true that the verse is omitted from the most ancient Greek manuscripts now known, it is also true that it is contained in very many manuscripts of a more modern date, and that fact must be taken into consideration in the investigation of the subject. In view of the state of the case, the question emerges: Is it more likely that later copyists inserted the passage without any manuscript authority than that earlier copyists omitted the passage by oversight, as is often the case in copying? The next paragraph will give aid in answering this question.

(f) Irenæus flourished about A.D. 167, and Cyprian about 250 A.D., and each quotes a part of this passage, and that without the least suggestion of doubt as to its genuineness. This shows that there was a manuscript about two hundred years older than the oldest now known, and within about sixty-seven years of the apostolic age, that contained the passage, and that it was quoted and recognized as canonical Scripture without question. It is much more likely, therefore, that earlier copyists omitted the passage by oversight than that later ones inserted it without authority. "The Pulpit Commentary" in loco says: "So that in the second and third centuries, long anterior to the oldest existing manuscripts, this entire verse must have been found in the codices [manuscripts.—B.] both of the Greek and Latin Churches." Irenæus represents the Greek Church, and Cyprian, the Latin. Without hesitation, I accept the verse as genuine and entitled to a place in the sacred text.

2. The question of the authorship of the letter to the Hebrews is a large one, and has given rise to much disputation, and limitations of space forbid even a partial examination of the subject here. Without wavering, I accept the Pauline authorship of the Epistle, basing my belief upon the exhaustive examination given the subject by that master in criticism, Prof. Moses Stuart, and the sane conclusions reached by that eminent scholar. His examination of the question is the most thorough and convincing treatise that I have ever seen on the subject. Indeed, it comes as near a demonstration, it seems to me, as it is possible to come on a question of this nature. He presents the argument in favor of the Pauline authorship with tremendous force, and then takes up every material objection that has ever been made to this position and thoroughly refutes it. The objections of Eichhorn, Bertholdt, Bleek, Schultz, and others give way before the trenchant pen of Professor Stuart as the mist retreats before the rays of the rising sun. After a most searching examination and a careful and candid weighing of objections, Professor Stuart has no doubt of the Pauline authorship of this part of Scripture, and his arguments have never been refuted, and hence I believe that Paul wrote the Epistle to the Hebrews. I may say, in conclusion, that the question of authorship does not affect the question of inspiration, for all Christian critics concede that the Epistle was written by inspiration, whoever may have been its author.—J. B. Briney, in Christian Standard.

An Appreciation of T. R. Burnett.

BY H. W. JONES.

I am sorely grieved at the death of our beloved brother, Thomas R. Burnett. As a token of love and admiration, I write a short memorial of his eventful life.

By reason of strength, Brother Burnett's life had passed "threescore years and ten" about five years, if I remember correctly. He served honorably as a Confederate soldier in the Civil War. And, better, he had been a "soldier of the cross" a good part of his life, having been immersed into Christ by a Methodist preacher; but just as soon as he learned "the way of the Lord more perfectly" he identified himself with the disciples of Christ apart from all sectarianism, and so continued till death.

Brother Burnett was a man of highly intellectual attainments, being a ripe scholar and a very able debater with either pen or tongue. In my humble estimation, he was the most pointed, concise, and convincing writer in the brotherhood. He could tell more in fewer words than any man I ever read after. His was a style of its own. There is not another man living who can fill his place. How we will miss, each month, his "Budget" of sparkling gems of truth, repartee, and all-round good humor! How sad to think that we can never read another pointed article from his trenchant pen! How keenly I feel our loss at his death! But God's will, not mine, be done.

Brother Burnett and I agreed on almost every point of doctrine and Bible exegesis. Hence I am deeply affected. I loved him for what he was and for what he did. Through correspondence and otherwise I have been in close touch with Brother Burnett for several years, and can truly say that I always considered him an honest, conscientious man, and ardently devoted to the truth of God as he saw it. He was one of the most fearless, God-honoring men I ever knew. He would stand for what he honestly considered to be the truth though the world of mankind be against him. Be it said to his honor that he was anything but a place hunter or "policy man." I greatly admired him for his wonderful strength of character, and I feel sure that I understood him sufficiently to form a fair estimate of his real worth.

Brother Burnett wanted me to "come to Dallas and join him in the 'Budget' work," but I could not, it seemed, leave Kentucky, however much I desired to be associated with such a grand old man. He wrote me about a year ago (when his health was not good), stating that he could not continue to publish the "Budget" without a helper when he got so he could not take his "rounds" among the brethren to sell his books and take subscriptions for his paper. He told me how much it cost to publish the "Budget" each month, and I offered to pay, each month, out of my own pocket, about one-third of this amount to keep the "Budget" going and enable him to be at home more; but no, he would not let me do so unless I collected from subscribers and sale of his books to that amount. I have wondered who else but T. R. Burnett would refuse such an offer? After that I worked for his paper more than ever and sold many of his books, sending him quite a bit of cash each month.

Another incident reveals the true character of the man. I sent some paper money in a plain envelope for a club of subscribers, and the money was lost in the mail somewhere, somehow. I offered to pay it again, but he would not allow me to do so, saying that he would send the paper to the club of subscribers without my paying it again. I helped Brother Burnett all I could, and am glad I did. And who but a true, conscientious brother could act toward me as he did? Our souls were knit together as was David and Jonathan; hence how hard for me to give him up! He helped and encouraged me so much. But "blessed are the dead which die in the Lord: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." (Rev. 14: 13.)

To Christians in Tennessee.

St. Louis, Mo., July 17, 1916.—Dear Brethren: As most men do in advancing years, I think often of the past, and thus of necessity of Tennessee, as most of my life was spent in that good old State. I consider myself fortunate to have had so favorable an environment, and doubly so to have fallen under the influence of Tolbert Fanning during my boyhood, from the time I was old enough to understand until he died, when I was about sixteen years of age. I heard him teach twice on Lord's day and on Wednesday evening almost without fail. I love his memory because he taught the exalted office of Christ and magnified his word. He had little faith in the counsels, schemes, manipulations, achievements, and institutions of uninspired men. I believe with him that man's attempts to improve the divine order impeach God's wisdom and retard the advancement of his kingdom. We should keep to the work of preaching the gospel and planting scriptural churches, which, while in sympathy with each other, as all Christians must of necessity be, are entirely independent of each other.

I am anxious to get back into the work that I love—that of preaching Christ. I think to persuade sinners and to encourage saints is the most blessed work ever undertaken by mortal man. I am not seeking the fleece of a well-kept flock, but the privilege of looking up the stray sheep of the wilderness. I want to go where the people want to hear the simple gospel. I want to tell them that there are enough temptations in the country, and that there are so many and so great in the cities that it is almost impossible to endure them. May God give us all, who seek it, strength to fight the good fight of faith. May his grace attend us all.

The Soul's Lesson.

BY CLARA COX EPPERSON.

All hurts, dear Lord, thou sendest me,
Are but the needed lessons of my soul;
All pain well meant, all loss well spent,
If I but win through heaven's goal.

Then let me not deride the fate
That strews my path with thorns instead of flowers;
Just let me view the sunshine through the rifts
Of clouded, shadowy, darkened hours.

MISSIONARY

BY J. M. McCALEB.

Appeal for the Japan Work.

BY I. B. BRADLEY.

I must once more appeal to those who so readily and liberally contributed to the expense fund for Miss Sarah Andrews' trip to Japan, to send another contribution for her support and to send "once and again" to this work. I have not been able to send her a check every month. This is the beginning of the eighth month since she went to Japan, and I have only been able to send her five checks. I should have had enough to have sent her a check each month, but the contributions have not been sufficient to enable me to do so. I have on hand about twenty dollars and need enough to make fifty dollars at once, so that I may be enabled to meet her necessary expenses.

Brethren, think of her there, a stranger and pilgrim far from home and friends, among an alien people, and everything to buy, and at the high cost of living in our homes where we buy from our own people and without import duty to pay. Think of her needs and the sacrifices she has made to go there as a teacher of the people "who sit in darkness," that they "may have the light of life" and "the gospel of Christ shine unto them," and ask yourself the question: "Can I afford to let her stay there and not aid her in her work?" She is our—yes, your—missionary. Let us all do our part in "holding up her hands" in this great work. Think of the many millions of the Japanese without the gospel, without the church, and then let us do our duty. I fully realize that this work is one in which the whole church should be interested and take a part, and I desire to "stir up their pure minds by way of remembrance," lest we forget and neglect what we realize ought to be done.

There are a number of persons who made promises of a regular contribution this year who have not sent in anything. Of course it is an oversight or a matter of neglect. But this has crippled this fund, and I have been caused some disappointment by it. Brethren, won't you who made these promises send me the amounts promised? Or, if you cannot send back amounts, please begin now and send regularly. "The King's business requireth haste." Let us "be forward to make up this bounty," that we have a sufficiency to keep this work well supported.

Send me a contribution for Sister Andrews. Send to me at Dickson, Tenn. Let us not let her have to appeal for aid directly. May I expect a contribution from you soon? May the Lord put it into your heart to aid this work with a liberal contribution. May his love and grace be with you. Amen.

The Story of an Old Well.

[The following story by Mr. K. Kimura is translated from a Japanese magazine.—Euros.]

Changing cars at the Fukushima station and traveling north about four hours, we reach the station of Kamino-yama. Looking east from this point, one sees the Hayama Mountain. On the south side of this mountain at its base is the birthplace of the writer. In this vicinity are many mountains, included under the name "Hayama." In ancient time they were called "Dewa." Hawks were also caught in these mountains in ancient times and their feathers used on the arrows. But this is not especially to the point. My story is about an occurrence that happened when I was about six years old.

At that time my father opened a small farm at the foot of this mountain. At the present time the land has all been cleared up, but then we were surrounded by dark forests on all sides. From the time of which I speak these forests remained for many years. I remember it very well, for many times I have gone out into the woods to pick up chestnuts when I was a child. It was no uncommon thing for even a boy to pick up a gallon or so. But now such a thing would be impossible. When I think of it, I am filled with regret. Now there are many fields everywhere; but then there was only our small farm in the center of the forest. Among other things, we raised cantaloupes and watermelons. I thought there was nothing so sweet as a watermelon. According to the saying, "The history of thieves is the common weakness of man," so there were thieves also who came to steal our melons. Accordingly, my father built a small hut in the corner of the field and watched there at night. As the land had been newly cleared, there were many stumps that had been dug up and thrown out, and with these he built a fire in the hut. I was very fond of playing out in the field with my father, and used to stay with him to watch the melons at night.

By the way, there was near by an old well, dug before we came to the place; for what purpose we did not know.

It was about midnight, along in September, and my father was watching his melons as usual and took me with him. I was only a small boy, so was not concerned about whether thieves would come or not; so I was soon in the Land of Nod. Late at night daddy also stretched himself out on the floor; but as he was keeping watch, he kept one ear open. In an instant he was awake again.

As I said, it was in September; so there was a regular chorus of insects outside; but apart from this, there was nothing to be heard. With deep forests all around, it was certainly very lonely. While daddy was lying stretched out across the floor, he thought he heard low voices. Wondering if it were thieves coming, he leaned over to listen. It kept getting a little louder and a little louder. But, strange to say, the voices did not seem to be above ground, but down in that old well. Listening more carefully, he was sure that was where the voices came from. But there was nothing in the old well, he supposed, but rotten grass and stagnant water; so it was not possible for men to be in there. How, then, could these mysterious voices be coming from the old well? He began to feel creepy, but I in blissful ignorance was sleeping on.

Items of Interest.

Baron Shibusawa, Japan's foremost business man, speaking recently at a luncheon given to promote the proposed St. Luke's International Hospital, paid a tribute to American medical missionaries in Japan. He said: "Medical science was the first of America's gifts to Japan; knowledge of Western government followed; and next, modern business methods." I believe that in the next generation it will be recognized that Christ is the greatest gift from the West to the East.

Old Union Church, in Tennessee, sent twenty-five dollars and this message through the treasurer: "Our best wishes are always yours and our love you-ward is abundant. A word about yourselves and work is appreciated. The faithful ones here are praying for your success."

In every action consider what precedes and what follows, and then proceed. Otherwise, if you do not consider, you will start with spirit, but afterwards, when some of the consequences emerge, you will barely give over. Consider, first of all, the particular action, and then your own nature; consider what you can endure.—Epictetus.

Glorying in the Cross.

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

Man will worship something or somebody. It is natural for man to sigh for something better than he has known. "Man never is but always to be blest." He sings, "It is better further on." The Indian is looking forward to his happy hunting grounds.

When Christ was tempted by Satan, he gave us the Being whom all true worshippers worship. "Then saith Jesus unto him, Get thee hence, Satan: for it is written, Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shall thou serve." (Matt. 4: 10.) But if a man does not worship God, he will worship Baal or self. Ahab corrupted the worship of Jehovah, pulled down his altars, and sought to destroy all the prophets of the Lord. Ahab served Baal and worshiped him. "And Elijah came near unto all the people, and said, How long go ye limping between the two sides? If Jehovah be God, follow him; but if Baal, then follow him. And the people answered him not a word." (1 Kings 18: 21.) We must not lose sight of the fact that we cannot divide our allegiance between God and another. "No man can serve two masters; for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to one, and despise the other. Ye cannot serve God and mammon." (Matt. 6: 24.) Paul's matchless description of those who worship the creature rather than the Creator of all is vividly and fearfully dark. Without the worship of the Creator, man sinks to the lowest degradation. It is a fearful thing to know God and not worship him as God. "Because that, knowing God, they glorified him not as God, neither gave thanks; but became vain in their reasonings, and their senseless heart was darkened. Professing themselves to be wise, they became fools, and changed the glory of the incorruptible God for the likeness of an image of corruptible man, and of birds, and four-footed beasts, and creeping things. Wherefore God gave them up in the lusts of their hearts unto uncleanness, that their bodies should be dishonored among themselves; for that they exchanged the truth of God for a lie, and worshiped and served the creature rather than the Creator, who is blessed forever. Amen." (Rom. 1: 21-25.) How unnatural, how base, and how senseless is man, unguarded and ungoverned by his Creator! It is not safe to depart from the truth. We must hold on to even the pattern of sound words or be led astray. Our only safety is in knowing nothing but Christ, and him crucified. "But the Spirit saith expressly, that in later times some shall fall away from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of demons, through the hypocrisy of men that speak lies, branded in their own conscience as with a hot iron; forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats, which God created to be received with thanksgiving by them that believe and know the truth. For every creature of God is good, and nothing is to be rejected, if it be received with thanksgiving: for it is sanctified through the word of God and prayer." (1 Tim. 4: 1-5.)

The pope has departed from the truth. He forbids the marriage of the priests, the Roman Catholic "Sisters," and thus sets at naught the ordinance of Jehovah. But he does this at a fearful cost. Innocence, virtue, and purity are sacrificed. It is always so when God's laws are infringed. No man can violate God's law without paying the penalty. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth unto his own flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth unto the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap eternal life." (Gal. 6: 7, 8.)

GLORYING IN MEN.

Many glory in men and not in Christ. Some follow the leadership of men and not of Christ. In religion, as well as in politics, some are led by men. They do that which is positively prohibited. Listen to the Spirit through Paul: "Wherefore let no one glory in men." (1 Cor. 3: 21.) How often do men think they are contending for a principle, when in reality they are shouting hosannas for men! It is the very essence of folly to seek the glory of men, which fades as the dews before the rising sun. Men will crown you to-day and crucify you to-morrow. The Jews that rejected and crucified Christ at one time thought to crown him. "Jesus therefore perceiving that they were about to come and take him by force, to make him king, withdrew again into the mountain himself alone." (John 6: 15.) This same glorying-in-men spirit has placed Peter on a throne in Rome. This same spirit exalts man to the throne that Christ occupies. It exalts man to the position of leader instead of Christ. It turns people away from Christ to man. Churches divide over men, but not over Christ. This same spirit makes factionists. In the days of Paul it led some in the church at Corinth to be for Paul, another for Apollos, and still another for Cephas. Such a spirit produces carnality, and carnality means death.

PAUL'S EXAMPLE.

Paul did not glory in men. He knew nothing but Christ, and him crucified. He realized that Christ's strength is made perfect in weakness. He sought not to please men, but God. He truly said: "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." (Phil. 1: 21.) Paul's life was a blessing and benediction of peace to the human family. He left behind him a monument that will not crumble through all the ages. How did he build it? He tells us in the following: "But far be it from me to glory, save in the cross of our Lord Jesus Christ, through which the world hath been crucified unto me, and I unto the world." (Gal. 6: 14.) Perish the thought that men should glory in anything or anybody, save Christ! Glorifying in the cross is not only profitable for this life, but also for the life that is to come. So Paul, when he came to die, was not filled with vain regrets. He did not look back over an empty life spent in wrangling over the opinions of men. As he knew he had gloried only in the cross of Christ, a thrill of joy filled his soul as he saw what God had in store for him. So he said: "For I am already being offered, and the time of my departure is come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give to me at that day; and not to me only, but also to all them that have loved his appearing." (2 Tim. 4: 6-8.)

GLORIFYING IN PARTY.

Partyism is wrong. Christ is not divided. He prayed that his followers should all be one. To be one, they must speak as the oracles of God. They are commanded to hold fast the pattern of sound words. They are to hold, not only the sound words, but also the pattern of sound words. Partyism blinds one to his own defects and will not permit him to do justice to the virtues of others. It unfits us for the reception of the gospel of Christ. It leads to unscrupulous methods and does things that no Christian will do. "Now I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgment." (1 Cor. 1: 10.) It is not possible to obey this scripture, if we are at liberty to preach opinions and speculations about which there can be no agreement.

GLORIFYING IN DOCTRINE AND HUMAN REASON.

We should not glory in the doctrines of men, but should abide in the doctrine of Christ. Our faith in Christ should lead us to believe what he says, do what he commands us to do, and humbly trust him for the fulfillment of his promises.

What Does Faith Do in the Matter of Salvation?

BY E. G. S.

Paul makes it clear when he says: "But what saith it? The word is nigh thee, even in thy mouth, and in thy heart: that is, the word of faith, which we preach; that if thou shalt confess with thy mouth the Lord Jesus, and shalt believe in thine heart that God hath raised him from the dead, thou shalt be saved. For with the heart man believeth unto righteousness, and with the mouth confession is made unto salvation." (Rom. 10: 8-10.)

Faith is a mental act, is something exercised in the human mind. Faith, therefore, in the matter of becoming a Christian, is simply the act of believing what the word of God says in the great matter of salvation through Jesus Christ our Lord. The gospel of Christ as recorded in the New Testament is the plan of salvation through which sinners are to be saved. Hence, Jesus said to the apostles: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." (Mark 16: 15, 16.) This passage shows beyond any doubt that sinners must believe the gospel or be condemned. There is simply no escape from this issue, if sinners refuse to believe the gospel when they hear it or read it. Not that faith by itself saves any one; but faith, strong belief in the word of God, moves people to obey the requirements of the word, and then God promises to save the obedient ones. Hence, Paul plainly says: "But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness." (Rom. 6: 17, 18.) So faith moves people to obey the word of God, and then he saves them. So faith is a wonderful power in moving men to obey God, in placing themselves where God has promised to save them. A faith that does not move men to obey God is a dead faith and can do no one any good. The word of the Lord says that faith without works, which means faith without obedience, "is dead, being alone." (James 2: 17.) Faith only, faith without obedience, is dead, because it is alone. If our faith is not strong enough, therefore, to move us right on in our obedience to the word of God in continued service to him, it is simply a dead faith.

Very many people have faith enough to obey the gospel and become Christians, and then stop, as if that were all that was needed to take them to heaven. In fact, very many do so little that it is a very doubtful matter if they ever reach the heavenly home. Every child of God, therefore, ought to see to it that his faith never gives out in him. It had been better for him that he had never been born than that he should allow his faith to die on his hands. The word of the Lord speaks of some whose faith was growing exceedingly. This is emphatically necessary to insure the salvation of the soul. Our faith must be strong enough to keep us adding to it virtue, knowledge, temperance, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and love, if it takes us to heaven. In fact, it takes a very lively, working faith to take people to heaven. It takes a faith that works by love and purifies the heart to save the soul. Hence all should see to it that they have a lively, working faith so long as they live, a faith that will keep them busy doing the will of the Lord so long as he spares their lives. This is one thing we must never allow to die, if we expect to go to heaven at last.

"The Authenticity of Acts 8: 37," and Kindred Question.

BY M. C. K.

We publish on page 821 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate an article by Brother J. B. Briney, headed "The Authenticity of Acts 8: 37, and the Letter to the Hebrews," which appeared in the Christian Standard of July 15, 1916. We have a twofold purpose in placing this article before our readers. First, we are glad to let them see the strong argument which it is possible to make in favor of the authenticity of the Acts passage which has long been in dispute, and the still stronger plea for the Pauline authorship of Hebrews; and, secondly, we hail it as an opportune time to say still more on what Brother Briney very appropriately says of the unwisdom of introducing such questions in an ordinary Sunday-school class or anywhere else where there is no time, and sometimes not the ability, to treat them properly. With the request that our readers give Brother Briney's article a careful examination, we desire to say:

1. While we do not accept his conclusion touching the authenticity of Acts 8: 37 as beyond all question, we are glad, nevertheless, to concede that his article is one of much more than ordinary clearness and force and his conclusion is reasonable. Having given considerable thought to the question at issue here, we are deeply interested in any plausible argument on either side, and especially any such argument in favor of retaining the passage in dispute. The six points presented in the article in question constitute altogether as strong a defense of the passage as we remember to have ever read, and especially do we consider as strong the two points marked (e) and (f). Our reasons for withholding acceptance of his conclusion as beyond all questions are: First, the fact that, from the premises he submits, the conclusion still may be otherwise; and, secondly, the fact that both the English and American Revisers of 1881, after sifting the evidence of centuries, were unanimous in rejecting the passage. We can scarcely see how the array of scholarship there represented could have so decided if the premises in the case necessitated the opposite conclusion; and of course so long as a given conclusion is not necessitated by given premises, some other conclusion may be the correct one. While, therefore, we consider our brother's reasoning strong and his conclusion reasonable, still it is not quite beyond question.

On the authorship of Hebrews, we have ever held to the Pauline authorship, and have never seen an argument that shook our faith in the correctness of Brother Briney's conclusion.

2. Not only is it exceedingly unwise, and sometimes a fatal mistake, to introduce such questions where they cannot be properly handled, but it is a successful way to sow seeds of doubt and skepticism. The same mistake is sometimes made in the pulpit. Questions of criticism are introduced and the position of noted skeptics on certain passages is stated when the minister, even if he has the ability to handle such questions properly, which frequently he has not, has not the time on such an occasion to do so, and the result is that about the only thing accomplished is to suggest doubts and confusions where none existed before, and possibly those thus unfortunately started on the road of doubt and uncertainty will not have any subsequent opportunity to have their doubts removed, and thus permanent evil is the result. Why should a preacher bring up such questions where otherwise probably they would never be heard of, and hence where their existence would otherwise never be known? It is enough for the ordinary preacher of the gospel to have to grapple with such questions when they are thrust upon him. Certainly they should not be introduced by him on ordinary occasions and to the average audience.

Some Commands Emphasized.

BY E. A. E.

Further attention is now called to the woeful effect which Jesus declares seeking glory of men produces.

How can ye believe, who receive glory one of another, and the glory that cometh from the only God ye seek not? (John 5: 44.)

It makes no difference in what way the glory of men is sought—whether through teaching one's own theories and doctrines, or through literary efforts and oratorical display, or through sensational themes and maneuvers, or through any vain ambition to appear as some great one—the effect is most fearful. Seeking the glory of men so blinds the heart that it cannot see the truth or fully receive the gospel of Christ. The humble Christian life of self-denial and service, without rank or title, distinction or classes, and the simple worship of God without show and display and imposing ceremonies are not enough for those who seek glory of men. For this cause the Jews rejected Christ. But, while they rejected Christ, they claimed to be the very conservators of the truth; were punctilious; hairsplitting in their theories; scrupulously religious; prayed and did their righteousness before men to be seen; disfigured their faces and hung their religion on their clothes; loved and sought titles and the chief seats; robbed widows, and in hypocrisy made long prayers; would not enter the kingdom of God themselves, and would not allow others to do so; compassed sea and land to make one proselyte, and, having succeeded, made him twofold more a son of hell than themselves; and, because Jesus of Nazareth did not fill their interpretations of prophecies concerning the Christ and his kingdom or their conceptions of the coming King, rejected their only Savior. Seeking glory of men caused all this. This course of the Jews and its terrible consequences, and especially the cause of it, have been written for our instruction, warning, and salvation. Poison kills any man of any nation at any time; and this poison of seeking glory of men, however disguised, insinuating, sugar-coated, fascinating, subtle, as surely leads to unbelief and death now as in the time of these rebellious Jews. God clearly and strongly warns us against this deception of sin when he declares that Satan is not only a "roaring lion," but also fashions himself into an angel of light, and his ministers fashion themselves into ministers of righteousness and apostles of Christ (2 Cor. 11: 11-15), who serve not our Lord Christ, but their own belly, and by their smooth and fair speech beguile the hearts of the innocent (Rom. 16: 17, 18).

From these consequences all who seek the glory of the only true God desire to save all who seek their own glory.

There is "one faith" as much so as there is "one body," "one Spirit," "one hope," "one Lord," "one baptism," or "one God and Father." The New Testament clearly and fully states what this "one faith" is—the one in whom all must believe and that which all must believe in order to please God and be saved. This faith comes through hearing the word of God. By this faith all must walk; "for we walk by faith, not by sight." More or less than the word of God produces, not faith and unity, but contention and strife, and these lead to division. The "one faith" and these other six "ones" are the only basis of unity and peace. These are all embraced and expressed in "the gospel," "the faith," "the word," "the whole counsel of God," "all things that pertain unto life and godliness."

Nothing is more clearly and strongly taught in the Bible than that all are to hold their opinions to themselves and avoid all untaught questions, or unrevealed things. No man, however learned, wise, and good, can prove that his interpretation of unfulfilled prophecy, his conceptions of "the millennium," his conception of what Christ's body in heaven is, his theory that Christ will return to a certain spot on earth and there reign on David's throne for a thousand literal years, and his theories as to what will then take place, are the revealed will of God, and, therefore, essential to salvation, and the basis of "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." He who undertakes to do this is infatuated with his own speculations; is deluded, presumptuous, and vain. Not only so; he who attempts this seeks glory of men, is blinded to the truth, and is guilty of producing strife and causing division. But if he denies the claim that these interpretations, conceptions, and theories are the revealed will of God, and denies, therefore, that they are the basis of unity and peace, then he is guilty of attempting to teach unrevealed things and is willfully guilty of producing division, if he presses them.

Help the Fanning Orphan School.

BY E. A. E.

At the meeting of the board of trustees of the Fanning Orphan School on the second Thursday in July the treasurer made his report. The school was operated last year at a loss of nine hundred and fifteen dollars. This was done by taking more free pupils than the endowments of the school justified. These pupils were received for two reasons: (1) With the desire to do all the good possible and, therefore, to turn none away; (2) with the hope that the generous friends of the school would contribute to its support more than they did. The cost of keeping pupils is much more than for several years; hence, not so many can be cared for without additional contributions. Friends are receiving more for their products and should be ready to give more. This debt added to the other indebtedness made the debt of the school at the time of the treasurer's report twenty-four hundred dollars, with some contributions on hand.

Considering the incalculable good the school does for orphan and other dependent worthy girls, all friends to such girls should gladly contribute enough to fill it with them. Some individuals and many congregations can support a girl in the school. One hundred dollars now will support one girl in the school one ten-months' session. By giving money to the school outright or by paying a girl's way, much good can be done. Reader, do either.

Good friends, the school would be in much better condition could it open the next session free of this debt. Let us free it; then we will talk about raising the endowment. Send all contributions to A. N. Trice, treasurer, corner Wall and Monroe Streets, Nashville, Tenn.

A Note from Brother Vincent.

I am sure that the brethren wish to know how my wife is getting along.

On July 21 she underwent a painful, though not so serious, operation, and the purpose of the operation has been realized and she is doing very nicely. However, this operation was only a preliminary one, for she must have another operation, and a real serious one, so our doctors advise, before she can become permanently strong. Probably this will be done toward the last of this month.

So far, from July 5 to July 31, the extra expense has been one hundred and eleven dollars and fifty-five cents, but the "special" offerings asked for have not been sufficient to meet this. Perhaps I could get my wife in a common ward as a "charity patient," but I feel sure that the churches of Christ and our friends would not want me to do such a thing. I am renting a room and getting my meals out and am living as cheaply as possible. The brethren have been "busy" (and too hot), so that they have simply forgotten our extra needs. That's all. But now that they have been reminded of the matter, they will, I believe, respond promptly and gladly. C. G. VINCENT.

Fanning Orphan School Opening.

The thirty-third session of the Fanning Orphan School will open on Thursday, September 7, 1916, and will continue to May 23, 1917. During the thirty-second session, which closed on May 11, 1916, seventy-seven girls were enrolled, mainly from Tennessee; but Alabama, Georgia, Kentucky, Oklahoma, and Texas had representatives.

The location of the school is ideal, away from the noise and dust of the city, in the midst of a spacious lawn which grows in beauty as the years go by. The water supply is abundant and pure. The building is lighted by electricity.

The course of study lays especial stress on the fundamental branches too much neglected in many schools. Domestic science, the much-talked new departure in the public and Normal schools, has been taught practically for thirty-two years here. If there is any idea higher than all others in our course, it is utility. Yet the beautiful in education, music, and literature is not neglected. And the moral and religious feelings are encouraged by a daily study of the Bible. The chief effort is to equip young women with what is needed to insure success as teachers, housekeepers, wives, and mothers.

The Young People.

One of the brightest and most entertaining of all our Sunday-school publications is The Young People, a four-page weekly, devoted especially to the interests and welfare of young people of both sexes, but which will prove a channel of cheer and blessing to older ones as well. This periodical has just been consolidated with The Bible Study Helper, and presents the strongest and most essential features of both in an improved form. Three pages are given to stories of an entertaining and elevating character and articles of an educational nature, by gifted and well-informed writers, strikingly illustrated by photo-engravings and line drawings; and one page is devoted to a clear and concise presentation of the Sunday-school lesson, historically and exegetically, by A. B. Lipscomb, one of the editors of the Gospel Advocate, in which are presented the thoughts of many of the world's best thinkers. The size of the page is 10 $\frac{1}{2}$ x 14 inches. Printed from clear type on good paper. Subscription price: Five or more copies to one address, per year, each, 32 cents; single subscription, per year, 40 cents. Write for sample copies. SPIRIT OF THE PRESS

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

Faith in Christ.

W. J. Bryan, speaking of "Christ before Pilate," said: "The power of Rome is gone and its legions forgotten. The power of Christ has increased until hundreds of millions of people have taken his name with reverence upon their lips, and millions have been ready to die rather than surrender the faith he put into their hearts."

It is faith in Christ that the world needs. Christ must be exalted to the throne, and not the theories and doctrines of men. "Many other signs therefore did Jesus in the presence of the disciples, which are not written in this book; but these are written, that ye may believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God; and that believing ye may have life in his name." (John 20: 30, 31.) Simon Peter, with his characteristic readiness to assert himself, said: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." (Matt. 16: 16.) To believe in Christ is to take him at his word, is to do what he commands us to do, and is to trust him for the fulfillment of his promises. The exaltation of the theories and doctrines of men to the throne of God is not believing in Jesus the Christ. It is sad that some think more of their peculiar doctrines and views than they do of the Lord Jesus Christ. Some so glorify their method of teaching that they disfellowship every brother who does not accept it. This is not glorifying only in the cross of Christ as did Paul, but it is glorying in the doctrines of men. Such a course seeks to bind Christians where God has not bound them. It is dishonoring to God and a reflection on the church. It is a sin to seek to bind on the church things that are not clearly revealed. "The secret things belong unto Jehovah our God; but the things that are revealed belong unto us and to our children forever, that we may do all the words of this law." (Deut. 29: 29.) Things that are not fundamental to salvation should not be pressed on the consciences of men as vital and important. Men believe in Christ to the salvation of their souls who do not accept your theories on the "design of baptism," on the "order of worship," or on the millennium or the second coming of the Lord Jesus Christ. Pressing on the churches one's peculiar theories is not faith in the Lord Jesus Christ, but a lack of faith in him. The minister of the gospel who humbly and devoutly believes in the Christ with all his heart is busily engaged in preaching the word.

"Gospel for the Age."

The Herald of Gospel Liberty objects rightly to the demand for a "twentieth-century Christianity." The man who is not ready to accept the Christianity of the first century is not seeking Christianity, but a substitute for it. The editor declares:

Its idea of sin and the gospel is to eliminate sin and make the gospel a mere code of ethics—a sort of philosophy for the guidance of moral conduct. The one fundamental trouble with life is sin, and the one fundamental purpose of the gospel is to take away sin, and any conception of either which does not include these fundamentals strips sin of its hideousness and the gospel of its merits.

Men do not need a twentieth-century Christianity, but a Christianity revealed on Calvary nearly twenty centuries ago. They do not need a philosophy for life, but a Savior from sin. They do not need new ideas about social service, but a life of service patterned after the Man of Galilee. They do not need to know their duty so much as they need power to do right. They do not need to be saved to an easier life, but to a holier one. Jesus did not give his life that men might have better wages and more comfortable homes, but that they might find their way to God. In the absence of a consciousness of God and a sense of sin, men will not seek a Savior whose life was given, not that men might be happy, but that they might be holy.

The gospel of Christ is not for any age, to the exclusion of others, but for all ages. Principles are eternal and change not. The gospel that Paul preached was the power of God unto salvation, not only for that age, but for this age and all time to come. Jesus Christ is "the same yesterday, and to-day, and forever." In Christ's name in the first century, and in his name in the twentieth century, and in his name in all other centuries must men be saved. Men who refuse to obey the gospel in the first century or in the twentieth century will be lost. "And to you that are afflicted rest with us, at the revelation of the Lord Jesus from heaven with the angels of his power in flaming fire, rendering vengeance to them that know not God, and to them that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus: who shall suffer punishment, even eternal destruction from the face of the Lord and from the glory of his might." (2 Thess. 1: 7-9.) Men in all the ages to come who refuse to accept the gospel will be lost. So Paul declared: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." (Rom. 1: 16.) There is nothing in the Bible that warrants us to expect a new gospel or new conditions of entrance in the kingdom of Christ. The same thing to do is to faithfully preach the gospel while we humbly walk in the strait and narrow way that leads us unto eternal life.

The European War.

The third year of the terrible European war has been entered on, and there are no signs of abatement, except that many of the nations must be nearing the limits of their financial and vital endurance. Another year like these and the mere interest on the accumulated debt will equal the entire revenue of the nations at the outbreak of the war, while the people, by the millions, will be absolutely impoverished. It is impossible that such crazed conditions can much longer continue. There is a limit to what human nature can endure. Almost world-wide havoc has been wrought. Centuries cannot undo the damage.—Herald and Presbyterian.

Christians should pray and work more. If we were as active as we should be in living the Christian life, it is not probable that this war would now be. Instead of more guns, give us more missionaries; more lives of devotion and sacrifice and less shedding of blood. We should look well to our own spiritual condition.

The Roman Catholics.

It is stated by America, the Roman Catholic paper of New York, that "some sixty per cent of the public-school teachers of Chicago are said to be Catholics," that the "schools of New York and Boston are reported to be almost as seriously imperiled, and those of Philadelphia and St. Louis are not much better off." It grows very jocose over "this menace to our liberties." It is well to know what things certain classes of people are chuckling over. It may be that the people of this country will arouse some day to a realization that the grasping at an undue proportion of places in the public service, be it schools, police force, or anywhere else, by any one class of people is, for a fact, a "menace to our liberties," and will look into the matter.—Herald and Presbyterian.

We should be watchful. People who are seeking to put the Bible out of our schools are not working for the best interests of humanity. Man without the Bible must grope his way in darkness. Any teaching that drives out the word of God from our public schools is a "menace to our liberties" and to the salvation of our people.

In our life we should do three things. To gain the victory over our passions, "live soberly;" to respect the claims of our neighbors, "live righteously;" to derive our motives from the highest source, "live godly."—Reynolds.

The meeting at Scott's Hill, Tenn., was conducted by C. S. Austin and resulted in six baptisms and one reclaimed. Brethren Austin and Veteto held a meeting at Fairfield, near Bellbuckle.

There is a fine opening for an expert dentist and also a photographer in Halley, Idaho. Christians are desired, preferably brethren able to preach. Halley has an ideal climate and is a popular summer resort. Address George H. Byars.

C. E. Holt, who has been at Montgomery, Ala., for several years, will be located with the church at Knoxville, Tenn., about October 1. T. B. Clark will reënter the evangelistic field. His ministry at Knoxville was profitable and pleasant.

Matthew C. Cayce writes: "I closed the meeting in Ridgeland, Miss., on Wednesday night, July 26. Considering that it rained nearly every day, the attendance was fine for a place where there are only ten members. Baptized one. Wanted back next year."

A. W. Young, of Galnesville, Texas, writes: "My meeting at Davidson, Okla., resulted in four additions. I was rained out at Ravenna, Texas, and am now in a meeting at Plainview, with four additions to date. All my summer time is engaged, but I have some open time for fall meetings."

J. C. Taylor closed a good meeting on August 10 near Covington, Tenn. Eleven were baptized. Three of this number had been Methodists; two came from the Baptists. There was one restored. Large crowds and good attention were features of the meeting. Brother Taylor bespeaks his love for the congregation.

From E. W. Moon, Holland, Ga.: "I wish to correspond with an earnest, consecrated young brother who is capable of conducting the song service and otherwise capable of assisting in a tent meeting in Georgia in a vicinity where the simple truth is practically unknown. The earthly remuneration will be small; the heavenly, adequate."

In our issue of August 10 it was stated that John T. Smith had closed a meeting at Mount Carmel, Ala. This meeting should have been accredited to Thomas C. King, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn. The mistake was the printer's and no blame attaches to Brother Smith. We ask Brother King and others to kindly overlook this unintentional confusion of names.

Monthly rent. Address Fred K. Jones, 41 Arcade, Nashville, Tenn.

From E. O. Coffman, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., August 5: "I began a meeting at North Carolina, Lauderdale County, Ala., on the fourth Sunday in July and it one week. There were nine additions. I held a week's meeting there last July, with twenty-four additions. The additions in each case included the baptized and the restored. North Carolina has a fine congregation."

John T. Poe writes from Longview, Texas: "I have no appointments for meetings after August. I want to be busy all the time and need the work. Do you want an old-fashioned, Jerusalem gospel meeting? If so, write to Longview, and state your desires and the condition of the church or mission point, as the case may be. I can serve you after August, if the Lord permit."

William Etheridge writes from Dresden, Tenn., August 11: "My meeting at Milan resulted in three baptisms. We had large crowds and good order. My meeting at Memoresville resulted in three baptisms and one restored. My meeting west of Dresden resulted in twelve baptisms and one restored and a house of worship to be built at once. My meeting at Sidonia resulted in three baptisms."

N. L. Walker, of Montgomery, Ala., sends us a clipping from the Advertiser with an account of the action of the Catoma Street church of Christ relative to the resignation of C. E. Holt. The tribute of the church was expressed in the following resolutions: "Whereas, Brother C. E. Holt came with our congregation at a time when great vigilance and much caution were necessary on the part of its minister; having served us with energy and unselfishness during the past four years, and having maintained the esteem, love, and fellowship of our people. As much as it may be regretted, Brother Holt, after due consideration, now deems it advisable to cast his lot in another field of endeavor, his resignation to become effective October 1, 1916. Therefore be it resolved, That we tender him our most profuse thanks for his abundant works of faith and untiring labors of love during his sojourn in our midst, and as he goes from among us may be and his family be assured that our good will, esteem, and affection will attend him and them wherever they may go."

THE MASTER'S VINEYARD

Alabama.

Paint Rock, August 3.—My meetings at Lascassas and Sharpesville, Tenn., and at Woodville, Ala., closed with no additions. In all of these meetings we had fine audiences. I am now in a meeting at Spruce Pine.

L. B. JONES.

Moulton, August 5.—I was with the little band of disciples at Hatton yesterday and last night. I preached one discourse which resulted in two additions—one by baptism and one from the Baptists. The brethren at Hatton are at work building a meetinghouse and will appreciate any help from the brotherhood. Send all donations to W. C. Morgan, Town Creek, Ala., Route 1.

C. H. BAKER.

Elkmont, August 8.—Some real apostolic missionary work is being done near here by Brother W. T. Goalen, of Dothan. He has just closed a meeting at Pettusville, with ten baptisms. There are a few disciples around there, and he is going to get them to keeping house for the Lord. They will in all probability build a meetinghouse this fall. He goes from there to Veto, on the Tennessee-Alabama line, where he goes by invitation of some who heard him at Pettusville. They have secured the Methodist meetinghouse for him, a thing the Methodists at Pettusville would not permit. We feel that Brother Goalen deserves the hearty commendation of the brethren everywhere for his willingness to sacrifice and work so much for the cause. If the work demands, he will be in and near this county for some weeks yet.

ASHFORD TODD.

Elkmont, August 7.—I came north on account of an attack of the Southern malaria, and after a few days' rest I went over to a mission point of the church at Elkmont, where Brother Boaz has been preaching, and preached in the schoolhouse at Pettusville for fourteen days, and ten precious souls put on Christ by their obedience to the gospel. Brother Holt is going to deed them an acre of land for to build a meetinghouse. I am going to stay with them for a while and care for them until they can care for themselves. With the ten added are fourteen more, and they intend to keep house for the Lord. I have been advised by the doctors not to go back south to stay on account of the malaria and the weakness of my system, and have been invited by the church at Elkmont to stay with them and work out in the surrounding country.

W. T. GOALEN.

Arkansas.

Vilonia, August 3.—We closed a fine meeting at Mars' Hill on July 31. Ten persons—six by baptism and four by restoration—were added to the church. The attendance and interest were good from beginning to close of the meeting.

T. E. TATUM.

Blue Bayou, August 3.—I began a meeting here last Sunday, and expect to continue one more week. There have been five baptisms so far. I go next to King, Texas, for a camp meeting. Paul C. Young is now in a meeting at Campbell, Texas.

F. L. YOUNG.

Paragould, August 5.—I am now at home from a tour in the southwestern part of the State. My next meeting will be at Gatewood, Mo. I am ready to hold meetings anywhere good may be done. Whether there be any congregation or not, if you want a meeting, write me and I will reach you as early as possible. If you should desire a class in vocal music in connection with the preaching, I can teach a class.

W. J. JOHNS.

Indiana.

Borden, August 7.—The meeting here is one week old, with splendid interest. One restoration. Brother Zahn is conducting the song service. We shall be here through next Sunday, the Lord willing. The day following Brother Zahn will go to Athens, Ohio, and to Coal City, Ind., for meetings. The meeting closed at Worthington, Ky., on July 30, having been in progress two weeks. Interest was good throughout. Nine persons were baptized, one of them nearly eighty years old. Brother John T. Glenn conducted the song service. On the last day of the meeting Brother J. W. Harding, father of Brother J. A. Harding, was with us and preached a soul-stirring sermon. He will be ninety-four his next birthday. He seemed to be enjoying good health, and he was the very embodiment of faith, hope, love, and zeal. May the last days of us all be like his.

J. E. THORNBERRY.

Kentucky.

Bardwell, August 3.—I closed an eight-days' meeting at Blood River, Tenn., on the fifth Sunday in July, which resulted in eighteen baptisms. I have held four meetings at Blood River. They are a faithful band of brethren, and it is a pleasure to work with them.

JOE RATCLIFFE.

Louisiana.

New Orleans, August 3.—I labored the last week in July at Turkey Creek. Four were added by primary obedience. The Sunday school enrollment now is eighty-six. We hope to have our own building before the end of the year. Backbone of opposition is about broken. The United Brethren preacher says, "Ramsey has made a rabbit of me," making this comparison: "He came here preaching unity, and, like the bound running the rabbit, when he has caught it he wants to eat it up." We have just about cornered the false teachers at this place and the word is "eating them up."

A. K. RAMSEY.

Mississippi.

Senatobia, August 2.—On July 16 Brother J. P. Lowrey began a meeting at Wyatte, eighteen miles east of here, which lasted six days. Four were added to the one body by baptism. Of this number, one was the daughter of Mormon parents, and, of course, they made objection to her acceptance of the truth. A zealous member of the church had from time to time handed her copies of the Mississippi Evangelist and her attention was called to the truth in this way. Brother Lowrey's next meeting was at Crockett, six miles west of Senatobia. Nineteen sermons were preached here, and eighteen were added by baptism and one restored. In each of these meetings the writer conducted the song service and gave daily drills in vocal music. There is a great interest in the work throughout this county. Brother Lowrey has been here for one and one-half years, and has certainly endeared himself to the hearts of the people. With the exception of sectarian preachers and denominational leaders, there is a general desire for the plain truth on every hand. The Christian Church, of Senatobia, has lately been treated to a revival of the usual sort. Atkinson, of Memphis, was at the helm; and a prominent Baptist, leader of the Sunday school, said it was impossible to tell whether he was a Baptist, Methodist, or Christian. It is disgusting to the sects even how those who have left their "first love" court favor of the denominations. Our next meeting, at Looxahoma, will begin next Sunday. Brother A. G. Freed will be with the church at Thyatira, beginning on August 20.

FRED BLANCHARD.

Oklahoma.

Konawa, August 6.—I closed a good meeting at Erick last Thursday night. We had good crowds and twelve additions. The church there is very enthusiastic now. I came here and began a meeting last night. Rain is interfering, but we hope for a good meeting.

T. H. ETHERIDGE.

Rush Springs, August 7.—Since my last report I have held meetings at Muldoon, Bogn Prairie, and Red Oak, Texas. I am now at Rocky Point, near Rush Springs, with fine crowds and the best of attention. I shall be in this part indefinitely. May the Lord bless his servants who are preaching the word.

JOHN W. HEDGE.

Tennessee.

Gassaway, August 2.—The meeting at Gassaway continues with good interest. Five baptized. One reclaimed to date.

C. M. GLEAVES.

Smithville, August 3.—During the last four weeks it has been my good pleasure to do the preaching in two very interesting meetings—one at Baxter, with one baptism and one restoration; the other at Moss, with twenty-nine baptisms and ten restorations. I hope to begin a meeting at Silver Point next Lord's day.

THOMAS D. ROSE.

Hendersonville, July 28.—We are having good audiences and interest here despite the hot weather. No additions so far, but we are hopeful that there may yet be some who will turn to the Lord.

M. L. MOORE.

Livingston, August 5.—I closed a week's meeting at Flat Creek, my home congregation, last night. Six were baptized and one restored. Plenty of rain. Let the Gospel Advocate continue to grow better.

B. C. GOODPASTURE.

Murfreesboro, August 7.—I closed a good meeting of fourteen days' duration at Bean's Creek, about ten miles from Manchester, yesterday. Ten people were baptized and two returned to the fold. I have time for a ten-days' meeting, beginning on the third Sunday in this month.

J. H. MCBROOM.

Eaton, August 7.—My meeting began at Dorris' Chapel, two miles north of this place, yesterday, with large crowds and good interest. This is the home of Brother W. R. Hassell, and he is doing a good work in these parts. My meeting at Ruthville closed on Friday night with an immense crowd and good interest.

F. O. HOWELL.

Pocahontas, August 5.—I have just closed a good meeting near Middleton, with one added. Interest was fine throughout and I left the people reading their Bibles. I am now in a meeting near Pocahontas, with two added and interest fine. I go from here to Gibson's Chapel; then to Otterville; and back to Utica, Ind., the first Sunday in October.

R. A. CRAIG.

Winchester, August 3.—I have just closed a fine meeting with the church at Florence, with four baptisms and the church strengthened. I go to Arrington, near Nolensville, to begin a meeting next Sunday. I recently held a meeting at Smith's Spring, with four reclaimed. I will begin a meeting at Old Jefferson on the first Sunday in September, if the Lord wills.

E. L. CAMBRON.

Ethridge, August 2.—Brother C. R. Brewer has just closed a ten-days' meeting here. It was a good meeting. We do not think our young brother's faithful and forceful presentation of the word could be surpassed even by those who are older in the work. Though there were no additions, we are confident that the influence of the meeting on the church and neighborhood will endure for years to come.

LUCAS NORTH.

Morrison, August 7.—Our meeting at Pleasant Knob was one week old yesterday. I established this congregation about eight years ago. Since that time I have held a few meetings for them, and Brethren Smithson, Mansfield, and Billingsley have held good meetings here. There have been nine baptized in our meeting to date and we have withdrawn from one disorderly brother. We are here for so long a time as we can do good.

R. E. WRIGHT.

Lacy, August 5.—Brother W. H. Trice, of Memphis, closed a ten-days' meeting at Lock on July 30, with four baptized and one from the Baptists. Brother Trice did some fine preaching. He is a strong man in the gospel, a fine teacher of the word, and a forcible speaker, and all who met him learned to love him. I began this work here about two years ago without any house or members, but at present there are about thirty-two members, and we have built us a house and are having preaching every Lord's day with good interest. Pray for us, brethren, that the good work may go on.

PORTER NORRIS.

Elora, August 5.—Our meeting here began on the fourth Lord's day in July and continued ten days. Brother J. M. Gainer, of Scottsboro, Ala., did the preaching, and it was well done. The attendance, interest, and attention were good throughout, and we are sure that much good was done in the Master's name. There was only one addition, but we feel sure that others were "almost persuaded." Brother Gainer is a good man, a fine preacher, a forceful speaker, a recognized scholar, and does not fail to declare the whole counsel of God. The congregation was highly pleased with his efforts, and the church was greatly strengthened by his able presentation of the gospel.

AARON ROBERTSON.

West Point, August 6.—Brother E. O. Coffman, principal of the Lawrence County High School, held a meeting here in June, beginning on the second Lord's day and continuing for two weeks. We had a splendid meeting. We had good crowds all the time and fine attention. Three were added to the church. Brother Coffman has done some fine work here during the past three years. He preaches on the second Lord's day in each month, morning and night. This is the first meeting he has held for us, and the congregation thinks it is one of the best we have had. We have a nice little congregation here, with services every Lord's day and prayer meeting every Friday night.

JONAH L. KELLY.

Hartsville, August 7.—Our tent meeting with the Deason congregation, in Bedford County, began to-day at Green Hill with good audiences at both the morning and evening services. The Deason congregation is trying to establish the cause of Christ in their community. Up until two years ago the gospel had never been preached here. At that time I opened the work in a tent and preached about two weeks, with no visible results. Last year the above-named church sent Brother Slayden here, and while here he baptized two. The prospects this year are good for several additions. I go from here to Deason for a two weeks' meeting, beginning on the third Lord's day.

THOMAS H. BURTON.

Ethridge, August 3.—I closed a ten-days' meeting last night at Park Grove, four miles east of Ethridge. We used the Baptists' house during the meeting. The church worships each Sunday in a schoolhouse there, but secured the Baptists' house for the meeting. The crowds were fairly good throughout the meeting. No one accepted Christ, but I believe the harvest time will be soon. I held a meeting at Brace, four miles north of here, before I went to Park Grove, and had two additions. The last part of the meeting was rained out. I promised to return this fall for another meeting. I am to begin a tent meeting next Sunday, near Campbellsville. The harvest is great.

B. A. MCCOLLUM.

Lynchburg, August 3.—A successful meeting has just been closed at Owl Hollow. Owing to the very inclement weather during the first of the week the crowds were small, but as the weather cleared up and the interest increased you could hear it said on every hand: "That was the largest crowd ever seen at this place." The preaching was done by J. E. Mullins, of the Nashville Bible School. Brother Henry Sullinger, of Crystal Ridge, conducted the singing. This added very much to the success of the meeting. Eighteen persons confessed their faith in the Lord and Savior Jesus Christ and were buried with him in baptism. Of this number, seven were Methodists, two were Lutherans, and one from the German Reformed Church. Two other Lutherans and one Baptist came forward and said: "We have been baptized for the remission of sins, but are tired of the ways of the worldly institution and desire to be Christians only." The cause was helped very much and the little band was left in a good working condition. They will have preaching once a month during this year.

JOE W. MULLINS.

Franklin, Route 3, August 7.—On the third Sunday in July I began a meeting at Flat Rock, three miles from Hohenwald, and continued it till Saturday night following. Owing to a good deal of sickness and the fact that the people were very much behind with their crops, the attendance was not as good as in former meetings. The brethren seemed to be satisfied with the effort. This was my first trip to that section, and I enjoyed it very much. I preached in Hohenwald on Sunday and Sunday night following. On July 25-28 I engaged in match preaching with Elder W. R. Rushton (Primitive Baptist), in Dickson County. We spent two days of the meeting at Old Turnbull Baptist meetinghouse, established one hundred and sixteen years ago, and two days at Jackson Temple, our new meetinghouse, where we were established last year. We have an excellent congregation there one year old. I enjoyed the meeting more than any other I ever held. Good feeling prevailed throughout. The outlook there is very promising. I will begin a meeting there on the third Sunday in this month. On the fifth Sunday in July I began a meeting at New Liberty, Williamson County, and continued it till the following Sunday morning. The election and rains interfered somewhat, but we had a good meeting. The members were urged to do more work in the Master's vineyard. They agreed that they could do more. One was baptized. I am engaged to hold other meetings, which I will report later.

OSCAR PARHAM.

"Elder."

BY ISAAC E. TACKETT.

It is well to teach as the Bible teaches and to use Bible phraseology. It is well to oppose unscriptural terms; but it is inconsistent to oppose one unscriptural term and then use another as objectionable. A lot of our brethren continue to use the word "elder" as a title when addressing preachers. Why object to the term "Rev." or "D.D." and then, when addressing our own preachers, use a term for which there is no more authority than for those? I continue to get letters addressed to "Elder Isaac E. Tackett," and I presume the other preaching brethren have a similar experience. Some of these letters come from some of our ablest preachers—preachers who would oppose very stoutly my being addressed as "Rev. Isaac E. Tackett" or "Isaac E. Tackett, D.D." Yet they use the term "elder" as a title as freely as if it were really a scriptural term in this connection.

O, well, I understand the word "elder" can be used scripturally, even as a title, when properly used; but certainly not in addressing a preacher by virtue of the simple fact that he is a preacher. There might be two senses in which the word could be properly used in an address. If I were an old man, I could be addressed as "elder" by virtue of my age, provided there was a younger man by the same name; but even in this case few people would understand the use of the word in this connection. I could be an elder in a church, and be so addressed, but the people who addressed me would not likely know it, and most assuredly the postmaster would not know that was the reason I secured the title. I would just as soon be addressed as "Rev." as "Elder," the terms being used as mere titles. In fact, it is a rare instance when there is any use in having a handle to a preacher's name, in the form of a title, by virtue of the simple fact that he is a preacher. The postmaster at Troup, as well as at every other place where I have lived, knows who "Isaac E. Tackett" or "I. E. Tackett" is. I always get mail so addressed. The title never serves me any purpose. Sometimes, when the preacher is away from home at a new post office, it might serve to assist the postmaster for a preacher to be addressed with a term indicating the fact that the one addressed is a preacher. There is a scriptural term that can be so used, but it is certainly not "elder." It could be "Evangelist A. W. Young" or "Evangelist F. W. Smith." If need be, and all desired ends would be served. But even this is seldom necessary. When an evangelist goes to a new place, the postmaster soon learns about it and who he is. Such a thing is certainly not necessary at an "evangelist's" home office. Brethren, let us quit opposing one unscriptural term and then using another.

Fruit Bearing.

BY H. M. PHILLIPS.

In many places in the Bible we are admonished to bear fruit. There seems to be no promise of life to those who do not. It is also just as essential that we all know what kind of fruit God wants us to bear. No person on earth delights to use faulty fruit. It is our nature to long for, love, and admire the good. This would suggest peaceable, righteous fruit as the kind. In short, we are to bear the fruit of the Spirit. If this is done, God will accept such. Man may reject, rebel, and positively refuse to approve; but in this God, and not man, is to be the judge. We must work to please him by being faithful to his laws of fruit growing.

In order to bear good fruit, it is necessary to notice some things closely. It is a law laid down by Christ that a good tree brings forth good fruit; an evil tree, that which is evil. Then it depends on the kind of a character each one is as to the kind of fruit he will bear. We stand as trees in the sense of fruit bearing. Let us keep the tree in good condition. Trees need to be pruned. We all have to lay aside our unnecessary weights, cut off the offensive limbs, lest we become wholly corrupt and fall in the great work. In pruning ourselves, it will likely hurt at first. We may have to doctor and nurse the fresh cut, but in the long run it will be much better. The trouble with nearly all is a lack of getting rid of the old, dead, rotten, and decaying limbs. Our evil deeds need to be cut off and worldly habits need to be mortified. We need a separation from these; and the sooner, the better. If we are careful to add the Christian graces and other remedies to the tender spot, there will be no real hurt. If we do not prune now, Christ will after a while. It will then be to our destruction. So how much better it would be to do this now! Every branch in Him that beareth not fruit, he taketh it away. A spray is used to keep off germs. So a spray of pure gospel will keep off the germs of sin. It takes a full dose and a constant supply, but it is cheap and easy to apply if you are willing. Some are sprayed during the meeting, but do not come back till the next year. Long before this their supply has been completely exhausted. Sometimes it is good to dig about a tree and fertilize it before you give it up. If you go to digging about some cold, fruitless Christians, they are so offended that they almost fall over, roots and all. They become so enraged as to cry out: "It is my business." But as we are our brother's keeper, let us go about the work with a cheerful heart and hold and steady the weak, fruitless one, while we dig about and find the trouble and fertilize the neglected parts.

All ought to want to bear fruit. No one really wants to be cut off; but if we do not bear fruit, we are sure to be cut off. Christ has so said. Each one needs to have some good things placed to his account. If we bear fruit, it will be so placed, as Paul told the Philippians. What a blessed thought, that we here can bear fruit that will be for our good in that great day! How busy we ought to be in the work of the Lord, since we know it is not in vain! By our fruits we are known. That being true, if I bear evil fruit, it is known that I am evil. If I could be in a state to bear none at all, I surely would not be known of God in the sense of having his divine approval. But we all bear fruit every day we live. It may be either good or bad. It is our duty to carefully consider the kind of fruit to bear, the best way to have the good, and that we will be blessed according to the kind we have. Then let us bear none other than the fruits of the Spirit. Study Gal. 5: 22, 23, and make each word your motto in the Christian life. Live up to such with all your power, and you shall know perfectly some day that there is no law against such, either earthly or heavenly. You can be able to show an increase of good things in the kingdom of God if you will. The cause will have been made better by your being in the body. Then do all you can, live faithful to the end, so you may be able to wear the palms of victory and dwell with God forever. May the Lord help us all to so do; for the night will soon come, when no man can work.

Send us $2 for the "Gospel Plan of Salvation." This is a splendid book and has enjoyed a wide reading.

MONEY IN PIGEONS

Make Your Back Yard Profitable

THE demand for squabs in the Northern, Eastern and Southern markets has never been supplied, because pigeon raising is a business comparatively new. Buy a half dozen pair of select birds, fence in a small portion of your back yard and watch them go to work. Success is easy. They raise from eight to fifteen pairs of squabs a year. Your squabs and fancy birds will bring handsome returns. You will actually make money in a hitherto useless part of your back yard. Pigeon raising is not a fad or fancy. It is a profitable business. Let us start you right. Our breeders are the best, and raised from prize winning parents. We will furnish you with the birds and teach you how to raise them, and you will reap a handsome profit with a very little outlay. Thousands are taking advantage of this same opportunity. Write to-day for our literature on pigeon raising as a money making proposition, or better still, write us to send you a few pair of Belgian Carneaux at $3.00 per pair, White Swiss Mondaines at $5.00 per pair, White Kings at $3.50 per pair, or White Maltese at $4.00 per pair. Our birds are all guaranteed. Your money back if after two months you are not satisfied with their work. Better prices on larger orders. Write to-day and get the pick of the flock.

Appeal for the Church at Grand Saline, Texas.

The churches at Terrell, Wills Point, and Mineola have come to the rescue of the church at Grand Saline and assumed an indebtedness of about seven hundred dollars owed by the Grand Saline church. These churches did this to save the property from falling into the hands of the "digressives." In fact, the "digressives" had already assumed the indebtedness and had taken charge of the work, but through the timely work of some of the loyal brethren the property was saved to the loyal brethren. For the "digressives" to have secured this property would have meant the permanent overthrow of primitive Christianity in Grand Saline.

These churches assuming this indebtedness must have help. The church at Terrell is hard pressed, but is determined to do her part. The churches at Wills Point and Mineola are not strong, but are also willing to do their part. The church at Grand Saline has only one active male member and is not able to help, but will help some. We are asking the congregations to set apart one Lord's-day's contribution for the Grand Saline church.

This appeal is made by the churches at Terrell and Wills Point.

Prospects for Abilene Christian College.

BY J. P. SEWELL.

Prospects for Abilene Christian College grow brighter each day. Far more students than ever before are arranging to enter on September 5.

Our work is not "fully credited by all leading universities." Neither is the work of any other Christian College in Texas thus credited. Nor is the work of any junior college in Texas thus credited. But we can enter our 1916-17 graduates with credit for nine and two-thirds to nine and three-fourths courses, which is more than any other Christian College in Texas can do. I state these facts just to keep the record straight, not that we attach so much importance to them. We have other things in Abilene Christian College far more important and valuable.

Cowan.

Our little circle at San Francisco, Cal., has been broken, as our dear sister, Mattie Cowan, passed into rest on July 22, 1916. We miss her greatly, as she was always faithful to be present at all the services of the Lord's house as long as strength permitted. "Asleep in Jesus, blessed sleep!"

Mrs. T. J. McRAE.

Garner.

Frances Rebecca Barrett, wife of Dr. J. E. Garner and daughter of W. W. Watson, was born in Arkansas on September 24, 1876, and died in Texas on April 26, 1916. She was the mother of eleven children, ten of whom are still living. She obeyed the gospel under the preaching of Brother C. M. Wilmeth. She was both a good wife and mother and a keeper at home, and she is greatly missed in the family circle.

J. R. JONES.

Wilson.

Brother J. T. Wilson, my true and lifelong friend, has been called by death. He and I walked together as the best of friends till he crossed the mystic stream, and I shall hold him dear in memory till called upon to lie down in the sleep of death. He leaves a large family of loved ones to mourn his death. He loved his family greatly and wished them to do and be good. He built a nice church house at Blacksher at his own expense, where a good congregation meets, which will be a monument to his memory. His body rests in the churchyard close by. I would say to his family: His footsteps will be heard no more and he has kissed you good-by for the last time on earth; but believe on, hope on, love on till you finish life, then wrap yourselves in the mantle of a well-spent life and lie down to sweet dreams.

C. PERRY.

Stone.

One of our beloved citizens, Mrs. I. C. Stone, departed this life on July 10, 1916. She was born on March 22, 1841, in Northwood, Germany, and came to America when a young girl. In April, 1864, she was married to Jonathan Huggins, in Murfreesboro, Tenn. To this union three children were born. Her second marriage was to I. C. Stone, in Manchester. To this union were born five children, all of whom are living except one—Sister Sallie Stone, who went to her reward nearly two years ago. Sister Stone united with the church of Christ about the year 1863 and lived a consistent Christian until death. It was my good pleasure to know her in her home. She was devoted to God and a daily student of the Bible. A devoted mother has gone to her reward, and we rejoice that she is at rest; and if we obey and follow Christ, we shall soon meet her again where perfect health and joy shall be ours for evermore.

W. S. LONG.

Bouldin.

The death angel again visited our community and claimed for its victim little Leola Bouldin, the only daughter and child of Brother and Sister A. H. Bouldin. Leola was born on March 17, 1911, and departed this life on July 8, 1916. She had suffered for several months with spinal trouble, having been blind for more than three months; but she bore her sickness patiently. She was a bright little girl, loved by all who knew her. Just a short time before she died she said to her mother: "Mamma, don't worry over me." And "mamma" should not worry any more than she can help, for the promise is to her, for our Savior said: "Suffer little children to come unto me, and forbid them not: for of such is the kingdom of God." Little Leola, after funeral services by the writer, was laid to rest in the Hill cemetery, near her home, to await the resurrection morn, when she will be carried home to heaven, where there is no pain, no sorrow, no sad parting, and where death never comes; but all will be joy, peace, and happiness for evermore.

J. J. LITTLE.

Davis.

With sadness and sorrow we chronicle the death of Brother Ed L. Davis. Brother Davis was born in Christian County, Mo., on June 29, 1866; was married to Miss May Bingham on February 20, 1898; and obeyed the gospel of our Lord and Master in September, 1902. He leaves a loving, faithful, Christian wife, three brothers and two sisters, besides a host of true and tried friends, to mourn their loss. Brother Davis was in every respect a pure, clean, trustworthy gentleman, one of Greene County's best citizens; but far above all this, he was a loyal, faithful Christian. O how his place will be missed in the family of God at Walnut Hill! He found no delight in the common or uncouth, but had a great love for the pure and holy. No one, I am sure, ever heard a vile, unbecoming word proceed from his mouth. He was confined to his bed for eight weeks with gallstones and cancer of the liver, and suffered much, but he bore it without complaining. He said from the beginning: "I am ready to go." May God bless his heartbroken wife and all the connections. Their loss is his eternal gain. To one and all let me say: Be faithful unto death. The meeting on yonder shore will repay for all sadness and tears here.

O. L. HARDIN.

Riddle.

On Thursday, June 22, 1916, our beloved sister in Christ, Rachel Riddle, closed her eyes to all earthly scenes and bade farewell to all the happiness, as well as the sorrows, of this fleeting life. Her body was placed in the grave at Viola to await the resurrection of the dead on that great day. We feel comforted by the Scriptures that she will be one of Christ's at his coming, for in much was her daily life in beautiful harmony with his word. Rachel possessed several of the Christian graces. Two of these, meekness and patience, seemed to shine out from her countenance. She leaves a bereaved husband and two little children to mourn her loss, but they do not mourn as "those who have no hope." She obeyed the gospel in September, 1905, under the teachings of Brother F. W. Smith, and lived faithfully the Christian life. She was born on February 4, 1888. She was married on August 4, 1909, to Charles Riddle, who, with her mother, father, and several brothers and sisters, survives her. While it almost breaks our hearts to part from our beloved ones, we have the comfort of the Scriptures to sustain us on our lonely pilgrimage thereafter. The more faithful study of these, coupled with faith and our unceasing prayers, becomes the healing balm to all kindred woes. A SISTER IN CHRIST.

Mason.

Sister Mollie Mason, wife of Brother L. F. Mason, of Polytechnic, Texas, passed away on June 27, 1916, killed in an automobile wreck. She was born on July 15, 1886; was married on June 23, 1907; and was baptized by Dr. J. S. Ward at the Nashville Bible School. Sister Mason lived a true Christian life, pleasant and kind in her home and well disposed toward others. The writer lived in their home more than a year, at Polytechnic and always held her in very high esteem. To Brother and Sister Mason were born two little girls—Inez and Hazel Ruth. The latter died only a short time before Sister Mason's untimely death. The loss of this little jewel brought sorrow into the home. Now, the mother gone, there remains only additional sadness and grief to the bereaved ones who are left. No heart can know what this means until hard experience has proved to it the lot which falls to every man. The relatives are mostly in Tennessee; and these and the friends should administer such comfort in words and deeds as their capabilities will allow to the father and little girl. Let these take consolation in the thought of a brighter life in a better world, now enjoyed by their departed loved ones. How sweet it is to think that we can go there! Reunion of the blest, everlasting happiness in blissful regions with all the pure and good! Sister Mason's death is another reminder of the truth that life is uncertain and death is sure, but eternal life awaits those who love God.

Iron the Greatest of All Strength Builders, Says Doctor

A Secret of the Great Endurance and Power of Athletes

Ordinary Nuxated Iron Will Make Delicate, Nervous Rundown [People 200 Per Cent. Stronger in Two Week's Time in Many Cases.]

NEW YORK, N. Y.—Most people foolishly seem to think they are going to get renewed health and strength from some stimulating medicine, secret nostrum or narcotic drug, said Dr. Sauer, a well known specialist who has studied widely both in this country and Europe, when, as a matter of fact, real and true strength can only come from the food you eat. But people often fail to get the strength out of their food because they haven't enough iron in their blood to enable it to change food into living matter. From their weakened nervous condition they know something is wrong, but they can't tell what, so they generally commence doctoring for stomach, liver or kidney trouble or symptoms of some other ailment caused by the lack of iron in the blood. This doing may go on for years, while the patient suffers untold agony. If you are not strong or well, you owe it to yourself to make the following test: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary nuxated iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. I have seen dozens of nervous, rundown people who were ailing all the while, double their strength and endurance and entirely get rid of all symptoms of dyspepsia, liver and other troubles in from ten to fourteen days' time simply by taking iron in the proper form. And this after they had in some cases been doctoring for months without obtaining any benefit. But don't take the old forms of reduced iron, iron acetate or tincture of iron simply to save a few cents. You must take iron in a form that can be easily absorbed and assimilated like nuxated iron if you want it to do you any good, otherwise it may prove worse than useless. Many an athlete or prize-fighter has won the day simply because he knew the secret of great strength and endurance and filled his blood with iron before he went into the fray, while many another has gone down into inglorious defeat simply for the lack of iron.

NOTE—Nuxated Iron recommended above by Dr. Sauer is not a patent medicine nor secret remedy, but one which is well known to druggists and whose iron constituents is widely prescribed by eminent physicians everywhere. Unlike the older inorganic iron products, it is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach; on the contrary, it is a most potent remedy, in nearly all forms of indigestion, as well as for nervous, run-down conditions. The Manufacturers have such great confidence in Nuxated Iron that they offer to forfeit $100.00 to any charitable institution if they cannot take any man or woman under 60 who lacks iron and increase their strength 200 per cent or over in four weeks' time provided they have no serious organic troubles. They also offer to refund your money if it does not at least double your strength and endurance in ten day's time. It is dispensed by all druggists.

Among Our Workers

Georgia.

Dasher, August 8.—Brother J. O. Barnes has just closed a meeting of eight days' duration with the church at Union. He preached seventeen sermons and baptized three persons.

W. J. COPELAND.

Macon, August 10.—We had excellent attendance and attention during our tent meeting here. The meeting closed well. The house was filled to overflowing in the recent meeting at Hardie's Chapel. Six believers were baptized and one was restored. Brethren, continue with us in prayer as we continue in the battle for victory.

MORGAN H. CARTER.

Illinois.

Rosebud, August 10.—Brother W. A. Record, of Lone Oak, Ky., held a two-weeks' meeting here. He preached some splendid sermons that interested the people very much, and there was one addition to the church. The meeting closed on account of Brother Record's ill health. We believe that if he could have continued much good would have been accomplished. We hope that he will soon be able to go back to his work, as the world needs many such splendid teachers.

EFFIE WILSON.

Indiana.

Lyons, August 9.—Our meetings at this place are being held in a hall. The interest has been good throughout. We will have a basket meeting in a grove next Lord's day. I expect to leave next Monday for Lebanon, Tenn.

JOHN A. KLINGMAN.

Kentucky.

Murray, August 8.—On July 29 I began a meeting with the Hickory Grove Church, in the eastern part of Calloway County. This meeting continued for ten days and resulted in four additions. Brother Tate Ring was with me part of the time and preached several sermons.

DAVID THOMPSON.

Mayfield, August 10.—I baptized one at Birmingham on the third Sunday in July. In a mission meeting near Benton, I baptized two and four were reclaimed. I closed at Coldwater last Lord's day with large crowds and good interest. I begin another mission meeting near Magness to-night.

J. S. WHITE.

Bell City, August 7.—Our mission meeting closed here last night, with one addition. We began with small attendance, but grew and closed with large crowds. Attention fine. Murray brethren furnished the tent and singer. Williams' Chapel gave $2.25; Lebanon congregation, $4.50; Farmington, $6.30. My support was twenty-six dollars. Congregations around should see that another meeting is held here.

D. N. BARNETT.

Louisville, August 6.—The Highland Church closed its second tent meeting of this season to-night, with three baptismal services to-day. There were nineteen added in the two meetings, all baptized but four. Brother Jorgenson left to-night for Henning, Tenn. Brother Henthorn and family, faithful, worthy, and useful members, will leave soon for Minneapolis. Our foreign mission money is baptizing more than our local gifts.

DON CARLOS JAMES.

Monticello, August 7.—I closed a meeting at Susie last night. There were six baptisms. The Holliness people had just closed a camp meeting. I had thought I had seen a prejudiced people before; but if the Lord ever winked at the ignorance of people, he will surely shut both eyes at this one. The school-teacher brought his school to the meeting, and they tried to get an indictment against him and brought him before the school board and wanted to take the school from him. Tell Brother John R. Williams to cheer up. We have missionaries in India and Japan; and these are not much worse than the people across the "big pond." I do not think I was ever in a meeting where more good was done. Brother O. F. Shearer was an able assistant in this meeting. I begin at Alpha on Thursday night.

J. D. WALLING.

Comer, August 7.—Brother William Kerr closed a twelve-days' meeting at Shady Grove Schoolhouse on the last Sunday in July with six baptisms. One young lady who had been baptized while quite young did not think she was old enough to understand what she was baptized for; so she requested Brother Kerr to rebaptize her. Brother Kerr certainly did a good work here. There were three other meetings going on at the same time—one Baptist and two Methodist—and he had more additions than all the rest. One of the six baptized was from the Baptists. A few of the brethren and sisters promised Brother Kerr to meet every Lord's day and keep house for the Lord; so we met last Lord's day at four o'clock and had a very good meeting. We hope to be able to organize a congregation here at this place and get some brother to preach for us once a month. We thank the brethren at Murfreesboro (Tenn.) and elsewhere for sending Brother Kerr here. He proved to be the right man in the right place. We hope to have him here with us again. He made lots of friends while here.

J. H. MACKAY.

Mississippi.

Belmont, August 11.—The church here has just closed its annual meeting, and in many respects it was a good one. We began at eleven o'clock on July 23 and closed on Tuesday night, August 8. Brethren Frank Baker and R. L. Shook preached the first two discourses. Brother G. A. Dunn, of Houston, Texas, took up the work on Monday night and did the preaching the rest of the time, except one sermon by Brother Baker. Brother Dunn preached the gospel in his usual forceful manner, manifesting at all times the spirit of the Master, and

TRY THIS FOR YOUR HEALTH.

For diseases which do not readily yield to drug treatment, such as chronic dyspepsia, indigestion, rheumatism, Bright's disease, gallstones, uric-acid poisoning, and diseases of the kidney and liver, the best physicians send their wealthy patients to the famous mineral springs. Some even spend months at the spas of Europe, and are almost invariably cured or greatly benefited.

I believe that the Shivar Spring is the greatest mineral spring ever discovered, and I believe it so firmly that I offer to send you enough water for a three weeks' treatment (two five-gallon demijohns) on my guarantee that if it fails to benefit your case I will refund the price. You would hardly believe me if I told you that only about two out of a hundred, on the average, say that they have received no benefit. The water is restoring thousands. It restored my health when friends and physicians thought my case was incurable, and I am willing and anxious for you to match your faith in the spring against my pocket-book. If I win, you become a life friend of the spring; if I lose, I will be sorry for you; but I will appreciate your courtesy in giving the water a trial, and will gladly refund your money on request. Sign the following letter:

Shivar Spring,

Box 21C, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your guarantee offer, and inclose herewith two dollars for 10 gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in the booklet you will send; and if it fails to benefit my case, you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return promptly.

Better Than Spanking.

Spanking does not cure children of bed wetting. There is a constitutional cause for this trouble. Mrs. M. Summers, Box 195, South Bend, Ind., will send free to any mother her successful home treatment, with full instructions. Send no money, but write her to-day if your children trouble you in this way. Don't blame the child; the chances are it can't help it. This treatment also cures adults and aged people troubled with urine difficulties by day or night.

apparently much prejudice was removed from among the people. Splendid audiences greeted every service. Thirteen precious souls accepted Christ and were baptized into his name, and two wayward souls returned to live a better life. Many others showed their interest in the simple gospel of Christ, but did not obey it. The last half of the meeting was conducted under a tent, recently bought by this congregation, assisted by some other brethren at Red Bay, Ala., and Dennis, Miss. It is our purpose to sound out the word to those around us, and to this end Brethren Frank Baker and R. L. Shook will use the tent in holding meetings in destitute places in Tishomingo County and adjacent territory. These brethren both live here and are making many sacrifices in order to spread the cause of the blessed Master. Those desiring fellowship in this good work can send their contributions to J. H. Lambert, Belmont, Miss.

W. W. SHOOK.

Oklahoma.

Milburn, August 7.—My meeting at this place resulted in two baptisms. My next meeting will be at Cheyenne. Brother Howard, of Mannsville, came down and spent the last day and night of the meeting with me.

J. A. CULLUM.

Tennessee.

Whitwell, August 9.—I have just closed a two-weeks' singing school at Center Point. I also preached three or four sermons and had ten additions. The people there are fine. If any preacher has an invitation to go there, I wish he would go. I am now in a singing school at Bethel, with about one hundred in attendance. I think I will get a few additions before I leave here. All the people here, except a few, belong to the church of Christ and depend on Christ as their Savior. Christ died for the church, shed his blood for the church, and is the Savior of the church and the head of the church. If we depend on any other church, we will not find any Savior for that church; for neither Charles Russell nor Martin Luther nor any other man can save you. So don't depend upon them. Look to one body, one church, one kingdom, one Savior, and one way to get into him, and you will land safe on the other shore. May all obey God before it is too late.

J. C. MOSLEY.

Heard, August 6.—On Saturday night, July 15, I began a cooperative meeting for the Heard and Ashburn Creek congregations. The meeting continued ten days at Heard, with eight added; we then went to Ashburn Creek and continued ten days, with eleven added; and we returned to Heard on Saturday night, August 5, and on Lord's day we had our last service of these great meetings. These two congregations are wide-awake, young ones. They enthusiastically entered into this joint meeting, and the Lord gave us another great victory. Two years ago, on the third Lord's day in August, I began a meeting at Ashburn Creek, and since that time seventy-four have been added to the saved there and at Heard. These are two live, energetic, enthusiastic congregations, only two years old, cooperating together in the Master's vineyard. How often the faithful servant of the Lord will go and sow the seed and gather in a number, to return the next season to find a great many backsliders, and most of the additions must be reported "reclaimed." How gratifying to your humble servant to find that, of all added in these meetings, not one of the new converts has backslidden! This meeting again demonstrates the great importance of cooperative work where two congregations are so situated as to do so. I am now at Independence, in Overton County. I will preach only at night on account of the unwillingness of the patrons of the school for us to use the house during school hours. There are only a few faithful members of the church of God at this place. Plenty of Methodists, Baptists, Presbyterians, and aliens.
