"The principles of the doctrine of Christ" should be so close and dear to our hearts that we will not deviate from them nor allow others to do so without our protest. To "earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints" is a duty enjoined upon us all. There is a wide difference in doing this and in contending for our speculative theories. God's command is, "Preach the word," "Speak as the oracles of God." To preach our opinions is to disobey God, and deserves rebuke. To espouse the cause of the theorist is to become a partisan, a factionist, which is condemned. It is not good to become irritated and stubborn and undertake to conceal our departures from truth behind the thought that I stand as highly and am as well known as the one who calls my teaching and conduct in question. God knows us all, and will judge us righteously. To hold to a theory and refuse to state it plainly, but seek to keep it hid from the public, to my mind, denotes cowardice or a desire to deceive. To be willing to support a man regardless of what he teaches is to be lacking in fidelity to God and his truth,

Simplicity of the Gospel.

BY JAMES A. ALLEN.

On the day of Pentecost, at the conclusion of the first gospel sermon delivered under the great commission given by Christ to his apostles, the audience, laboring under an intense conviction, "said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, Brethren, what shall we do?" (Acts 2: 37.)

The answer to that question is of superlative interest to every responsible subject of the gospel call. No sane man, unbiased by passion or prejudice, desires to die in his sins or to appear before God, in the judgment, without a wellgrounded hope of meeting God in peace. The plainness, clearness, and simplicity of the gospel is conspicuously exhibited in the simple and easy answer given by inspired men to this question. "God is love," says an inspired oracle; and the very fact, therefore, that God commands a thing to be done shows that it can be done. God, who is the Creator of man, understands man's abilities and capacities far better than any conference, synod, or general council ever assembled. Inspired men spoke "as the Spirit gave them utterance;" "men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit;" and the Holy Spirit, who is the Advecate of Christ and the Author of the gift of tongues, is supremely more competent to address human intelligence than any manual, discipline, or creed in existence.

That the gospel was intended for popular consumption may be observed from the writings of the prophets before the dawn of the Christian era. Seven hundred years before Christ, Isaiah said: "And a highway shall be there, and a way, and it shall be called The way of holiness; the unclean shall not pass over it; but it shall be for the redeemed: the wayfaring men, yea fools, shall not err therein." Many have, and do now, err because they are thereout; but the illiterate and unlearned, and even those of limited intellectual abilities, if they come to the Holy Scriptures, and to them alone, as their only source of information, "shall not err therein." Habakkuk writes: "And Jehovah answered me, and said, Write the vision, and make it plain upon tablets, that he may run that readeth it." Anything that is so simple and plain "that he may run that readeth it" seems easily within the mental grasp of all, except infants and idiots, and readily adapted to universal consumption by the public.

No human vocabulary contains plainer terms than those used by Christ in commanding his apostles to evangelize the world, "Go ye therefore," sald Christ, "and teach all nations." No one not utterly blinded by bias and prejudice could possibly misunderstand it, "Baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit." Who, in his right mind, could misunderstand it, if he really desired to understand it? John baptized in Ænon near to Salim, because there was much water there." (John 3: 23.) "Then went out unto him Jerusalem, and all Judea, and all the region round about the Jordan; and they were baptized of him in the river Jordan, confessing their sins." (Matt. 3: 5, 6.) Jesus made and baptized "more disciples than John (although Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples)." (John 4: 1, 2.) The language used by Christ could not be plainer: "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (See Matt. 28: 19, 20.)

"And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Is it possible for language to be plainer or simpler? "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." (See Mark 16: 15, 16.)

Any man not blinded by bias or prejudice who cannot understand such language is not responsible enough to be a subject of the gospel call.

Letters to McHenry and Martin. No. 4 .- Continued.

- 6. "Where in all the word of God are we asked to celebrate or observe in any way the resurrection day? It is not in the Bible." (Page 13.)
- (a) See 1 Cor. 16: 1, 2. To whom is this epistle addressed? 1 Cor. 1: 2: To the church of God, all in Christ, in every place. Who is its author? 1 Cor. 1: 1: 14: 37: God is the author. What is the command? 1 Cor. 16: 2: "Upon the first day of the week let each one of you lay by him [not by another, but by him] in store [treasury, collection], as he may prosper, that there be no collections [each man's contribution being in the store, or treasury] when I come." What language could be more brief, full, clear? No way to make the words mean what you say-"a private duty performed at home." All collections were to be in one place, store, treasury, that there be no gathering when the need came. Each member was to go where this store was and personally place it in on the first day of the week. God connects the collection with the first day of the week, The day of Christ's resurrection is the day we are to offer the first fruits of our worldly prosperity to God, and the day on which and with which we are to commemorate his death by breaking bread. The contribution, breaking bread, and the first day stand together. With these acts God joins the apostles' doctrine, prayers, and praise. These are all named in this epistle as being a part of the service we render to God when we come together in one place on the first day of the week (1 Cor. 9: 13 to 16: 2); doctrine, teaching (1 Cor. 14: 26, 37; 15: 1-4); contribution, collection, gift (1 Cor. 9; 13, 14; 16; 1, 2; 2 Cor. 8; 4; 9; 6-14): breaking bread, communion, Lord's table, supper, feast (1 Cor. 5: 7, 8; 10: 16-21; 11: 17-34); prayer and praise (1 Cor. 14: 15, 26). This and Acts 2: 42 show God joins these acts in one service, and 1 Cor. 14: 37 shows it is God's command to the church of God, all in Christ in every place, as often as the first day of the week comes, to assemble together in one place and perform these acts in worship to God. To observe the Sabbath of the decalogue was to rest; to observe the first day of the week of the gospel is to engage in religious service to God. The Old Testament lesson to Christians on the Sabbath is, what God connects with a day must be done on that day. He connected rest with the Sabbath for the Jews; he connects religious service with the first day for Christians. To do as God directs on the first day is to obey God: to not do as he directs is to disobey him. The law by type emphasizes the resurrection day as a special day of rejoicing, when the people brought the first ripe sheaf of the barvest to the priest and he waved it a peace offering to Jehovah. (Lev. 23.) The prophet in promise speaks of the resurrection day and how it should be kept, the stone the builders refused is raised to be the headstone of the corner in God's marvelous way, the day the Lord made sacred above all other days. Let us rejoice and be glad in it. (Ps. 118: 22-24.) The gospel makes the worship God appoints on the resurrection day a service of joy and rejoicing before God in all its parts. So the law in type, in prophecy, in promise, and the gospel in fact, all join in emphasizing this day and the way it should be observed. You had been reading something else than "the roll of the Book" when you arrived at your conclusion. "It is not in the Bible." "What God hath joined together, let not man put asunder."

- (b) "In the Lord's Supper we do not remember his resurrection, but his death. It is the event and not the day we observe," you say. On the day of his resurrection, when he brought life and immortality to light, he commands us to commemorate his death. (1 Cor. 11: 24-26.) His death and resurrection are thus joined together by the event and the day. "Ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come." His life and promised return are thus proclaimed in the celebration of his death. Disconnect the day from the memorial of his death, and we destroy the force of this scripture.
- (c) You continue: "When or how often the Lord's Supper must be observed is a matter that was left to the congregations to decide. Paul gives the rule: For as often as ye cat this bread, (1 Cor. 11: 26.)" A rule for what? Not the when, but the why, is the rule here given. The when is not even suggested. Verses 23-26 show what constitute the Supper and its purpose. The bread and cup are memorials of the crucified body and bread of Christ. For as often as eaten it is for the purpose of remembering his death. It is never to be eaten for any other purpose than to remember Christ's death. But the remembrance of Christ's death alone has nothing of joy or hope in it; but joined to the thought of his resurrection, it blooms with all the ecstasies of hope and gladness. Hence, in Scripture the Supper is joined with the first day of the week, and no one can ever eat it on any other day by faith; and whatsoever is not of faith is sin. It is sin to eat it on any other day. How often is every first day? "Kata," on, upon, every: Luke 2: 41, every year; 16: 19, every day; Acts 14: 23, every church; Tit. 1: 5, every city; 1 Cor. 16: 2, every first day. But on or upon the first day we all know has the force of every first day, since each week has but one first day. "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy," means every Sabbath day. To omit keeping one Sabbath holy was to break the command and brought the death penalty for nonobservance. (Num. 15; 32, 33.) On the first day of the week means every first day as much as it means any first day. To omit the Supper and its worship any first day is to break the command and be guilty of nonobservance.

- (7) So related to God is this assembling on the first day of the week that God makes its nonobservance a sign of the soul's apostasy from him. (Heb. 10: 23-31.) "Forsake not"—a command not to stay at home, but meet together, and exhort each other to assemble the more as the day (of assembly, of course) approaches. We know Christ says: "This do in remembrance of me." If we disobey by not assembling, we sin willfully. For willful sin there remains no more sacrifice.
- (8) (a) You ask, "Did John refer to the first day of the week when he used the expression, 'the Lord's day,' (Rev. 1: 10)?" and quote Isa. 58: 13, 14, and say that "the Sabbath is the Lord's holy day." These words, "Sabbath, from doing thy pleasure on my holy day," addressed to the Jews, has no connection in wording or meaning with the words, "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day," addressed to Christians. This expression, "the Lord's day," is used once in the Bible, and the way in which John speaks of it indicates that it is a day well known and in which is connected the thought of giving it to spiritual service. There is but one such day in the New Testament service, the first day of the week. And this day of the resurrection is called "the day which the Lord hath made" in a marvelous way (Ps. 118: 22-24), hence appropriately called "the Lord's day."
- (b) You say: "John's Gospel was the last book of the Bible to be written, its date being placed near the close of the first century. John used the expression, 'first day of the week,' twice in his Gospel, but not once did he call it 'the Lord's day,'" In 1 John 1: 1, John 1: 1-4 is referred to, which shows the Gospel of John was written before 1 John was written. Rev. 22: 18-20 shows nothing from God through man comes after that was written. So Revelation was the last book written. Hence, the order is clearly John's Gospel, 1 John, 2 John, 3 John, and Revelation. Its chronology is placed about the year A.D. 96. In it we have the expression, "the Lord's day."
- (c) You add: "When the Emperor Constantine in A.D. 321 passed the first Sunday law, he did not call it 'the Lord's day,' but 'the venerable day of the sun.'" The Emperor Constantine, giving law to a pagan people who connected the first day with sun worship and called it 'the day of the sun,' in making it a universal holiday for his people, would naturally call it by the name the day was known by among the pagans. But why quote Constantine, who lived A.D. 321, instead of Justin Martyr, a Christian, who lived A.D. 100-150, who said: "On the Lord's day Christians come together and break bread and give thanks?" But why quote human authority at all for divine things? If God has not made his Book plain enough for any one to know his duty, how can be justly judge men by it? But the fact that God is just and judges men by the gospel shows the New Testament is plain enough to make each soul responsible to God. And on the subject of the day Christians are to regard as sacred, we ask the question and look to the New Testament for the answer. (1) God's commands show it is the first day of the week. (Matt. 28: 20; 1 Cor. 16: 1, 2; 14: 37.) (2) Apostolic example shows it is the first day. (Acts 20: 7; Phil. 4; 9.) (3) Gospel principle shows it is the first day. Type (Lev. 23: 9-14); prophecy (Ps. 118; 22-24); fulfillment (Matt. 28; 1; Mark 16; 1-9; Luke 24: 1-7; John 20: 1; Acts 2: 1-42). (4) Inference, that is necessary, shows it is the first day of the week (Heb. 10: 25; Rev. 1: 10), the day of Christ's resurrection, the Lord's day. By precept, practice, principle, and Inference, God shows it is the day of the resurrection, the first day of the week, the Lord's day, that is the Christian's holy day. How are we to spend the day? Read all the references, take the sum, and we have God's answer how to observe the first day of the week. To do this is to walk by faith.

> "This day from toil and pleasures free, We walk by God's divine decree, And spend the hours his love has giv'n In services that lead to heav'n."

In a Rose Garden.

BY CLARA COX EPPERSON.

How can I see your roses bloom When you are in your lonely tomb? Their perfume sweet, how can I bear, Filling with fragrance the summer air?

Would that the perfume-laden air Could rise to heaven, like a prayer Floating on incense straight to God— A prayer for you beneath the sod—

That God may rest your troubled soul, Which broke in twain life's golden bowl, And give you joy and sweetest peace; This would my heart from grief release.

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine, or Uncle Minor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney—one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?" This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake.

Query Department

By J. C. McQUIDDY

Brother T. S. Humble, of Pikeville, Tenn., wishes an explanation of Matt. 26: 27, which reads: "And he took a cup, and gave thanks, and gave to them, saying, Drink ye all of it," The meaning is clear. Each disciple was to partake of the contents of the cup, which was the fruit of the vine and which represented the blood of Jesus Christ, which was shed for many for the remission of sins.

0 0 0

Brother J. C. Ridgway propounds an unusual question in regard to what preachers do when they are filled with the Holy Spirit. He says: "When Peter was filled with the Holy Ghost, he preached baptism for the remission of sins. Can a preacher to-day, filled with the Holy Ghost, say that baptism is not for the remission of sins?" No preacher to-day is filled with the Holy Spirit as was the apostle Peter on Pentecost and throughout his ministry. Preachers to-day who receive the Holy Spirit, and who, in a measure, may be full of it, will not say that baptism is not for the remission of sin. Peter said this when he was full of the Holy Spirit, or, rather, the Holy Spirit said it through him; hence, the preacher who says baptism is not for the remission of sins is not under the guidance and direction of the Holy Spirit when he says it. The Spirit of God does not use such men.

$ $ $

Sister Lee Holt, of Franklin, Tenn., asks a question which she desires me to answer through the Query Department. The question is this: "Are all people who are pronounced 'man and wife' married, or could it be true that they are living in adultery if they are not pronounced 'husband and wife?'" As the marriage ceremony is required by the civil authorities and as the law of the land provides no specific ceremony, it is not actually necessary that the officiating minister pronounce the couple husband and wife. A man and a woman should have congenial spirits-should be one in heart, purpose, and aim in life, as far as possible-before asking any one to say the ceremony that pronounces them husband and wife and in which the woman says to the world, "This is my husband," and in which the man says to the world, "This is my wife." A man and woman who are united in heart and who have an affection for each other which by far transcends every earthly love should not be annoyed over such unnecessary things as the words used by the officiating minister.

0 0 0

Brother J. S. Oliver, of Daylight, Tenn., wants to know what is the distinction between Hebrews, Israelites, and Jews. He asks when and how each of these names was acquired, and wishes to know if it includes the whole family of Abraham. Without attempting to answer each question separately, I will simply state the meaning of each word. "Hebrew" is perhaps the broader, more national meaning. This word first occurs as given to Abram by the Canaanites (Gen. 14: 13) because he had crossed the Euphrates. Abraham and his posterity were called "Hebrews" in order to express distinction between the races east and west of the Euphrates. The word may also be derived from "Eber," one of the ancestors of Abraham. (Gen. 10: 24.) The term "Israelite" was used by the Jews of themselves among themselves. The term "Hebrew" was the national name by which they were known to foreigners. "Israel" was first given when Jacob wrestled with the angel and prevailed. (Gen. 32: 28.) It became the national name of the twelve tribes collectively. The twelve tribes are called "Israel" in Ex. 3: 16 and afterwards. At a later date the word is used in a narrower sense, excluding Judah. (1 Sam. 11: 8; 2 Sam. 20: 1; 1 Kings 12: 16.) Ever afterwards it was applied as the name of the northern kingdom. After the Babylonian captivity the returned exiles took again the name "Israel" as the designation of their nation. The name "Jew" was properly applied to one who belonged to the kingdom of Judah after the separation of the ten tribes. The word first makes its appearance just before the captivity of the ten tribes. (2 Kings 10: 6.) Later the word received a larger application, and now embraces all the remnants of the race scattered throughout the nations.

0 0 0

Brother Pride E. Hinton, of Hanceville, Ala., says: "1 have carefully studied the subject of instrumental music in worship, and find that there is absolutely nothing in the New Testament to warrant the use of it. But suppose the Christian leaves the Lord's-day worship where no instrument is used and in the afternoon attends a singing where it is used (which is called "worship"); is he not as guilty of sin as if the instrument were used in the assembly of the church of Christ?" If it is wrong to use the instrument in the worship in the assembly of the saints, it is wrong to use it anywhere else. The brother sinned in leaving the worship on Lord's-day morning in order to attend the singing in the afternoon. Faithful Christians meet upon the first day of the week to break bread, sing. pray, and study the Scriptures. The brother who does this commits the sin of breaking away from the worship, and he also sins in worshiping God with an instrument. This is undoubtedly true of the man who believes that an instrument should not be used in the worship. "To him who accounteth anything to be unclean, to him it is unclean." Christians should never desert the worship of God upon the first day of the week; and if they love Christ supremely, they will never be guilty of such conduct unless it is absolutely necessary, and then it would not be considered desertion. 0 0 0

Brother F. M. Green asks an explanation of Matt. 5: 23, 24, which reads: "If therefore thou art offering thy gift at the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." The meaning of the passage is that the Christian shall not harbor hatred or enmity in his heart, for even an evil thought may lead to murder and crime. Christians are required to cultivate a forgiving spirit; so when the Jew came to the altar and made his offering, if he remembered that his brother had aught against him, he should leave his gift before the altar and go and seek to be reconciled to his brother, and then come and offer his gift. If this were necessary for the Jew, it is also necessary for the Christian. Unless a Christian does this, he cannot worship God acceptably. The man whose heart is filled with malice and evil thoughts concerning his brethren cannot expect God to hear him when he comes and prays for mercy and forgiveness. The religion of Christ, which is the very essence of love and forgiveness. cannot suffer at its altars a heart filled with hatred and resentment. If our hearts are filled with obstinacy and hatred, we are wholly unfitted to worship God, and must right ourselves before God will hear and bless us.

A LINE O' CHEER

BY MRS. J. U. YARBROUGH

I am offering to the readers of the Gospel Advocate, without apology, the work of another-a selection from a little book, called "Mind and Work," by Luther H. Guick, this particular chapter bearing the title, "What is Real:"

It is possible to select the bulk, as well as the most real part of one's mental atmosphere. This may be more readily illustrated than proved. For example, I have in mind a certain image of a house, the windows of which overlook in the far distance some beautiful hills. In front of those hills there may be seen in the fall yellow fields of waving wheat. In the immediate foreground of the picture is a great stretch of smooth, green grass. But in the middle distance is a row of horrid little tenements—five room houses—built as cheaply and kept as wretchedly as possible. The inhabitants of that house, whenever they leoked out the wir.dows, at first saw very prominently the dirty little tenements. They stared at them in all their ugliness. Fresently, however, these people discovered that it was possible not to perceive the tenements at all, but, deliberately directing the vision beyond, to enjoy the hills and the waving wheat and the green grass. It was not so much a question as to which view first caught the eye, as it was a question of which view should take hold and endure. The view from those windows became a symbol in that family of the resolute holding in mind of the things in life that are beautiful instead of those that are ugly, of things that are pleasant as contrasted with those that are disagreeable, of things that are true as contrasted with those that are untrue.

That picture is life itself. It is not something out of a laboratory, or something out of a textbook. Deliberately to see the hills in the distance lies within our control.

There is probably no person in the world but has tragedy enough and pain enough straight along to warrant pretty complete discouragement. And I imagine there is no person so perfectly adjusted by nature, so entirely balanced in health, that there are not times when he finds it necessary to hold himself by deliberate will power-to forget how he has been hurt, to turn aside from some things ugly in a friend's character, to turn aside from the bad in his own character, for every one of us has in his character that which is bad. Our characters are ugly enough in part, so if we were to dwell constantly on that part, the prospect would seem pretty disheartening, and justifiably so.

I met a young man once who told me he was studying music. He said that his teacher had trained him to hear every defect in the voices of singers. And he added: "Now I am able to detect defects in the finest singers."

Of this he was very proud.

This, I believe, is the primary point with reference to the whole subject of the sanity and clearness of one's mental operations: we can have the fine things of life, or we can have the opposite—just as we choose. The type of person who is habitually seeing faults in others, who is constantly feeling for pain, who is always imagining slights, loses the sense of balance and proportion.

My first point, then, is this-the atmosphere which makes for sane, simple, straightforward thinking is predomi-nantly one that can be chosen by each one for himself.

is not playing a false part to choose deliberately for one's self the truest thing and to hold to it constantly, even when the thing that is less true presses at the moment and seems to dominate—that is, the deliberate assumption of the attitude of health in mind and body is not a false thing. It is the essentially true thing, because unless we are predominantly healthy in mind and in body, we cannot live; if the sum total of our lives were mainly defective, we should be dead or insane. So it is absolutely fair during the upstroke of life to formulate that attitude and carriage of the body, those words which one will use when the downstroke comes; and every person who has an upstroke in life also has a downstroke.

This attitude does not mean turning away from the world's suffering and the evil of life. People have made that criticism. They have said that this deliberate assumption of the position of health and happiness is just turning away from the suffering and evil in the world, but it is not. This can only be done when one looks with wide-open eyes at the wickedness and the suffering within and about one's self, but sees at the same time the good and realizes that the good is the thing to hold; believe that the deliberate selection of the best is possible; that one can to the extent of one's will-whether it be a strong will or a weak will, but at least to the extent of one's will—select the thing that is strong.

People sometimes say that those persons who deliberately choose to look at the good of life are dodging life's responsibilities and its realities. I think that is wholly a mistake. The hills in the picture that I have described are a great deal more real, more enduring, than those dirty little houses. The houses could not last very long; the hills will endure a long time. The thing that was real In the situation was the beauty, not the ugliness of it.

I think that is true about the most of life. Every one of us has things in life that are wretched. We are sick in some way, we are in trouble, or we have friends, those who are dear to us, who are in sorrow, pain, or trouble. We do not have to go far to find pain and sickness and evil in the world; and there are people of that temperament and that philosophy who pick out all the evil things and who perversely hold them in mind. They thus maintain about themselves an atmosphere of depression. We call them "pessimists." They are the people who of two evils will choose both. But is such a person dealing with reality in the world more than the person who takes life's good deliberately and conscientiously, and daily holds it in

It seems to me to be a question of ultimate reality. far as I see, the ultimate reality is one toward good far more than toward evil. Evil tends toward its own ex-tinction. It is becoming more and more ephemeral. I do not think we shall ever get away from it entirely, but it tively poor circulation, digests food less well, is less muscuand particularly has fewer motives in life than the optimist. Pessimism is negation, denial, believing that the evil is more than the good, that life is not worth while; it is the dampening down of life. Pessimism tends to its own annihilation, because it takes away life's vigor, power. Optimism tends toward the increase of life, increases the joy of living. If one accepts the pragmatic point of view, optimism is justified. Hence, I for one be-lieve in the optimistic point of view—believe in it as absolutely and in the same sense as I believe that two times two make four. It operates to make life a better thing; it makes for sanity as distinguished from insanity.

Optimism does not mean being satisfied. It says: "Here a good thing. What is better?" Optimism is the purchil is a good thing. What is better?" Optimism is the pursuit of the better, and the attitude which it takes is the attitude of success, as distinguished from the attitude of failure. The realities of life are its successes, its dreams and hopes, its health and love.

In keeping with the spirit and the theme of the above, I should like to add a few recent observations of my own.

We spent last week-end in the wonderful sand dunes of Indiana. Spring is just coming up here, and out in the dune country flowers and grass and orchards are a riot of spring colors: every shade and tint of green is in the trees. Add to all this rolling hills of silvery, glistening sand and a blue lake in the distance. It is a sight good to see, Yet, with such a prospect, we found one farmhouse with its pigsty to one side in plain view, with its motor truck and other implements "parked" in front of the door. And it was all so useless. Nature had placed a screen, so to speak, for that pigsty. It would have meant but few additional steps to have placed the thing back of a near-by clump of bushes. And surely the farm implements could have been placed elsewhere. I am in accord with the writer quoted above in that, when the undesirable is unavoidable it is the part of wisdom to simply ignore it, forget to see it. But I wonder if we do not sometimes mistake our own inertia for the quality of inevitableness in the situation. So few homes I know (this is particularly true in the country, for in the city we have to combat a rather uniformily dreary aspect to begin with) -so few country homes realize their own innate possibilities for beauty. How many times have you seen splendid natural view hidden by some unsightly building which might just as well be elsewhere? It is philosophical to be able to look beyond the pigsty to the dunes, the sky, and the lake, but how essentially practical to hide the pigsty beyond the grove!

Q AT HOME AND ABROAD

We enjoyed a visit from W. A. Sisco, of Lyles, Tenn., last Thursday.

James E. Scobey preached last Lord's day to the church at Woodbury. Tenn

Change of address: H. Leo Boles, from David Lipscomb College to 1400 Cedar Lane, Nashville, Tenn.

- J. S. Newman changes his address from Thorp Spring, Texas, to Clifton, Texas. Correspondents will please note the change.
- S. H. Hall, of Atlanta, Ga., made us a pleasant visit last Saturday. He was en route to West Huntsville, Ala., to hold a meeting.

We enjoyed a visit last week from C. E. Wooldridge, of Murfreesboro, Tenn. He reports the church as doing well in Murfreesboro.

R. C. White left last week to begin a meeting at Niota, Tenn., which is a mission point. Let us hope that his meeting may be a success.

Any one desiring the services of a vocal-class teacher or song leader should write A. L. Dixon, Dellrose, Tenn., as he has some time not yet taken up.

- R. T. Cawthon recently held a meeting at the Green Street Church, this city, which resulted in two baptisms and one restoration. The church was edified.
- R. A. Hovious recently held a well-attended meeting of ten days' duration at the mission on Twenty-second Avenue, North, this city, with considerable interest manifested, but no additions.

Married, Wednesday, June 9, at the Russell Street Church, In Nashville, Tenn., Mr. William B. McCord and Miss Mary Elizabeth Parman, A. B. Lipscomb officiating. The Gospel Advocate extends congratulations.

R. E. L. Proffitt, of Cookeville, Tenn., made us a call last week. He is in the city on account of his son's undergoing an operation. He reports that his son is doing well and that he thinks he is on the road to recovery.

William P. Walker, evangelist, of Clarksville, Tenn., wants a good song leader to be with him in two tent meetings during July. The work is a good one, and one that will give a good song leader more than a living.

From Cled E. Wallace, Temple, Texas, June 7: "The meeting in McKinney resulted in eleven additions—eight baptisms. V. O. Teddlie did excellent work as song leader. My next meeting will begin at San Angelo, Texas, June 13."

H. H. Adamson, of Lewisburg, Tenn., and Brother Rutherford, of Lynnville, Tenn., attended the annual meeting of the Tennessee Orphans' Home at Columbia on June 8. Both appeared to be pleased with the work that the Home is doing.

There were four baptisms at the Belmont church of Christ, this city, last Sunday. Brother Lambeth, who is here attending Peabody College, preached for them in the morning. The church was much edified and pleased with his sermon.

From A. J. Traylor: "G. C. Brewer and I have just closed a good meeting at Wartrace, Tenn. We had large crowds, splendid singing, and close attention. Brother Brewer is a courageous man, one who loves souls and works earnestly to win them to Christ."

- S. P. York, of Westmoreland, Tenn., Route 6, is open for leading songs in protracted meetings, teaching vocal music in schools or preaching for some country church that is in need of a preacher. He is young in the ministry, but is earnest, and will be able to accomplish good.
- H. Leo Boles closed a two-weeks' meeting with the congregation on Eighth Avenue, North, this city, Sunday night. The attendance was good and the services were helpful in reviving an interest in the work of the church at that place. There have been three baptisms there lately.
- A. J. Veteto, the song leader, would like to locate with some congregation desiring his services for one year, beginning on October 1. He is fully able to build up the song service and make it a great stimulant in the worship. Write him at Bonnerdale, Ark., in care of J. B. Massey.

Andrew Perry writes from Fouke, Ark., June 8: "I came to this place with Brother Westbrook, of Texarkana, last Lord's day, and listened to a good sermon from him that day. I preached at night, also on Monday and Tuesday nights. I hope good was done, as the attention was good."

A. B. Lipscomb, the editor of this page, left last Thursday morning for Toronto, Canada, to deliver three addresses at the union meeting of churches in Canada, which began on Saturday, June 12. He will begin a meeting for the Harbert Avenue congregation, in Memphis, Tenn., next Sunday.

We are pained to learn of the serious sickness of Sister E. C. Fuqua, of Fort Collins, Col. She has been very sick for a number of weeks, and Brother Fuqua has been forced to get a trained nurse to look after her. Faithful brethren will pray for her recovery. May the Lord speed the day when she shall be entirely well again.

From L. R. Wilson, Tupelo, Ark., June 7: "I preached for the faithful at Beedeville yesterday. Brother Whitaker, of Henderson, Tenn., is expected to hold their summer meeting. I have time to hold two more meetings this summer, the last of August and first of September. If you have not arranged for your summer meeting yet, you should do so at once."

Elsewhere in this issue, on the editorial page, is an article concerning the annual meeting of the directors of the Tennessee Orphans' Home. On the first Lord's day in July the regular contribution will be taken for the support of the orphans in the Home. Our cash is exceedingly low, so we shall need a liberal contribution at this time. We believe that Christians will not disappoint us.

From U. G. Wilkinson, Comanche, Okla., June 6: "Last Lord's day I was near Yukon, and to-day I am at home. If I continue to improve in health, I will soon be able to arrange for some preaching again. Any brethren who would like to have me for some meetings in July and onward can write me, and I will arrange to be with them in meetings, the Lord willing. I would like to have the address of Sister Thomas J. Bonner, as I wish to communicate with her. Will some one please furnish me her address?"

From W. Clarence Cooke, Lewisburg, Tenn., Route 1. June 10; "Last Saturday night I closed a singing school with the congregation at Lewisburg. I am new teaching a class for the Union Chapel congregation, near Rockwood. The brethren tell me this is the only congregation in Roane County worshiping as the New Testament teaches. On June 21 I shall begin again at Lewisburg, to continue ten nights. I have an open date the first of July. Any one needing my help as a song leader or teacher of vocal music should write me at my home address."

E. C. Fuqua, of Fort Collins, Col., is preaching every night in Loveland, Col. He reports an encouraging hearing. A new crowd to that which greeted him there in former meetings greets him at each service. On June 7 he announced that the meeting would continue for another week. He also states that the meeting is handicapped by having to use a German meetinghouse, as some people have not yet forgotten the late war with the Germans, and for this reason will not attend. He hopes to be able to convert them to the truth later.

Jennie Clarke, superintendent of the Belle Haven Orphans' Home, Luling, Texas, writes: "We wish to express our sincere thanks, through the medium of the Gospel Advocate, to the Woman's Institute, Correspondence School, of Scranton, Pa., for three scholarships presented to three girls of this Home several months ago, embracing one course in millinery, dressmaking, and domestic science. The girls are making rapid progress and are working hard to secure diplomas from this well-known and efficient school, teaching all branches successfully by correspondence."

We are informed that the work at 125 South Sherman Street, Denver, Col., is progressing nicely. When I was there last year, Brother Evans was anxious that we help him secure some good evangelist for that city. So far we have not been able to find an evangelist suited to the field. Brother Shoulders, who is assisting Brother Evans in the work, would be an able assistant to any one who would go to Denver, and would cheerfully lead the song service. Denver needs a good, live, energetic preacher to give all his time to evangelization of that great city; but, above everything, he must be a tried and trusted man, one loyal to the truth—not merely the truth of "first principles," but truth as it is in Christ Jesus. We would be glad to hear from brethren who know of such an evangelist.

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is malied regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are feceived and all arrearages paid in ful. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 217-219 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and If anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.

Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

The Annual Meeting of the Directors of the Tennessee Orphans' Home.

BY J. C. M'Q.

As the date of the annual meeting has been changed from October to June, the Board of Directors of this institution met on Tuesday, June 8, in the office of the Home. The public had been invited, and the good women of Columbia had made ample provision for feeding the large crowd that attended the meeting. The gathering not only enjoyed a feast of good things for the physical man, but were also entertained and helped by an address from C. C. Menzler, Secretary of the State Board of Charitles of Tennessee. The address abounded in gems of thought and in teaching that was calculated to stir those present to greater enthusiasm in the work of caring for orphans. The management of the Home had also arranged for a number of brief talks, which were made by F. W. Smith, S. F. Morrow, and H. H. Adamson. John W. Fry, the efficient treasurer of the Home, read a paper setting forth the work of the institution for the year and giving a number of letters from the children that were instructive and helpful to the assembly. The children of the Home sang a number of songs in a very attractive manner, winning the hearts of the hearers. A young lady gave a recitation that captured the audience. Brother Rutherford, of Lynnville, Tenn., sang two solos which made a deep impression on the audience. A number of people said to the writer of this article that the day was the most enjoyable and the most successful that had ever been spent in the Home.

Some person (I have forgotten the name) presented a Victrola to the institution, and a number of people present contributed for the purpose of buying records. A bookcase was also presented and a number of good books contributed to the Home, so that the children might be able to read and enjoy them. Some very valuable volumes were given, and it is to be hoped that no worthless volumes will be given to the institution. The directors are very anxious to have only the very best books and literature placed in the hands of the children.

The time given to the business of the institution by the directors was briefer than usual, but the meeting accomplished much and was the most satisfactory one the directors have held. At the suggestion of the chairman, a committee of five good, Christian women are to be selected to act in an advisory capacity in assisting the matron and her assistants in the institution. It is believed that this will be very helpful in the work. It was also decided to select an assistant matron who is specially adapted and qualified to look after the spiritual welfare of the children, whose duties will be to teach the Bible to them as well as look after their temporal requirements. This is regarded as very important, as the Home is endeavoring to be as nearly like the perfect Christian family as possible. Of course we can only approximate the work that a devoted, Christian mother does for her own children, and it is the purpose and wish of the directors to place the children in good, Christian homes at the earliest possible moment. It is desired that the children be retained in the Home the very shortest time possible and practicable. A resolution was spread on the minutes of the institution to begin at once the work of raising a permanent endowment fund. This fund is in no way to conflict with the liberality of the churches in supporting the institution, but is for the purpose of providing for the maintenance of the Home in case of emergency. The fund that is to be raised is to remain intact, and only the interest is to be applied to the maintenance of the Home. Of course such interest would not go far toward taking care of all the expenses of the Institution.

It is the wish of those managing the affairs of the institution to encourage men to contribute liberally to such institutions while they are living. Actual experience has taught some of us that this is far better than for one to wait until he dies to give his money to such institutions. When one wills an institution of this kind money, usually the lawyers get a good part of the amount that is willed to it, and sometimes the intended beneficiary loses the entire gift. There is not an example in all the word of God where Christ ever authorized or encouraged one of his disciples to wait until death and then bequeath a large sum to earing for orphans and the helpless. The woman with the alabaster cruse of ointment who anointed the head of Jesus and wet his feet with her tears, and wiped them with the hair of her head and kissed them, did not wait until death to do this, but she did it while she was living. Of course her good works followed as a memorial, as the good works of any man always follow after his death. God used the dead Elisha as well as the living; so when a dead man touched his bones, he revived to life. The action of the woman who anointed Jesus is one of the most beautiful acts of humility on record, and, instead of being an example for doing our good works in order to be seen of men or encouraging us to will money to charitable institutions to stimulate others to give in the same way. it bids us to do our good works in love and in humility

In life, then put a seal upon our lips, retire to the shade, and leave God to take care of the results. The Savior said to his disciples: "Even so let your light shine before men; that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven." (Matt. 5: 16.) He encouraged his disciples to do good works, to glorify him and not themselves. If a man does good, if he is truly humble and is a servant of the Lord Jesus Christ, he cannot hide his light under a bushel, for the world will find out what be is doing without any advertisement upon his part. Men who make contributions to the Tennessee Orphans' Home may rest assured that such contributions will not be in vain; and if they make them while living, they can see that they are being properly used and are not diverted from the purpose for which intended. I do not like the idea of encouraging a man to use his money for his selfish ends so long as he lives. I do not like to see one gratify every whim and desire, enjoying every temporal blessing, and then, when he can use it no longer, try in vain to compensate for his neglect and do what he should have done while living by giving his money to the Lord. The good works that we do while we are passing through this world, like those of the woman who anointed Jesus and like those of Elisha, will live as memorials after us to light and guide men to the throne of God. Such good works are the only memorial that any man should want, It is to be hoped that we will find many who will contribute liberally and cheerfully now, for "Now" is the watchword of the wise," and "'Now' is written upon the banner of the prudent." To will money to such an institution may be too late. Do not wait for to-morrow, but do it to-day. Do it now!

The chairman was a little disappointed when he learned from our treasurer that we had only about forty-six dollars in bank to the credit of the institution; but it is not long until our next quarterly contribution from the churches for the Home. The churches have been so thoughtful and so liberal and so optimistic about the work of the Home that I hardly feel that it is necessary to urge upon them the necessity of a liberal contribution at this time. We recently had to make repairs on the Home, which consumed most of our ready cash. This in a large measure accounts for the shortage. The improvements that have been made were not extravagant, but were actually necessary in order to take care of the best interests of the Home. We only ask that when our readers come to make a contribution to the Home, they will contribute as their souls require, and that they will do unto others as they would have others to do unto them. "The Lord loveth a cheerful giver," and he has taught us that "it is more blessed to give than to receive." Soon our work will be done; soon the things that delight us and trouble us now will be forgotten forever and our hearts will have ceased to beat. If we have been faithful in giving unto "one of these little ones a cup of cold water"-if we have fed the hungry. warmed the cold, and given the thirsty drink-at the great judgment day our hearts will be filled with inexpressible joy when the Redeemer of the world says to us: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me."

Seeing Things As God Sees Them. BY D. L.

(We are inserting this article from Brother David Lipscomb at the request of a number of our readers. Besides, the article is good reading and is as appropriate for the present time as it was for the time when formerly published. It is our purpose to give our readers an occasional article from the pen of our able and lamented Senior Editor who has gone to his reward.—Editor.]

We have been writing of the difficulty of doing what God wishes us to do, and stopping with that. We are fleshly, material beings. We see things with our fleshly, material eyes; we think of them with our fleshly thoughts and feelings; and it is exceedingly difficult to regard things that our fleshly senses can see no evil in, wrong or sinful. The mind must be educated and trained to regard and esteem things that are not material and sensual as good or evil. A man unschooled in literature cannot judge of the quality of literature, what is helpful or what is hurtful. This is more so in moral and spiritual truths than in the secular. We need to have our thoughts and minds trained into looking at things from a spiritual standpoint. We need to have them trained to look at them through the eyes of God. We must get God's standpoint, and his moral and spiritual vision, and view things from that standpoint and with the vision of God. Much of our religious training consists in schooling our minds to look at things through this vision of God and with the divine wisdom. Our aptitude to improve in the true life that brings us into union and harmony with God is the ability and readiness to acquire this vision and standard of right with God. It is difficult to adopt God's standard of right or to follow its principles of morality. A man selfish in his life and in all his babits finds it difficult to see it right to divide with the poor and help the needy as God does and requires us to do. We need to be educated and trained up to the point that we can see the justness and fitness of this rule of right. Much of the education of the Christian consists in training his thoughts so as to lift them out of the control and management of the flesh and bring them into harmony with and under the control of the Spirit-the spirit of man trained and led by the Spirit of God. "For they that are after the flesh mind the things of the fiesh; but they that are after the Spirit the things of the Spirit. For the mind of the flesh is death; but the mind of the Spirit is life and peace; because the mind of the flesh is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can it be: and they that are in the flesh cannot please God. But ye are not in the flesh but in the Spirit, if so be that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you. But if any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." (Rom. 8: 5-9.) A man with a heart controlled by the flesh, its passions and impulses, will not be a godly or elevated man. The Spirit of God must dwell in and control man's spirit to make him a holy or godly man. It will take time, education, training in Christ, to make him a godly man. The natural tendencies of the flesh will lead him back to sin and rebellion against God. This explains man's constant tendency to stray from God, and the necessity of constant watchfulness and carefulness lest he be led into sin. This explains the necessity of constant watchfulness on the part of man and the props and helps he needs at every step to hold him back from sin and lead him forward in a growth of righteousness and truth. Man continually needs helpfulness and watchfulness at every step to keep him in the path of fidelity to God and of uprightness before men. He needs the help of God and of his fellow men to keep his zeal and life straight. He finds the helpfulness from God coming in the acts of worship God has provided to help him, both in his own approach to God and in his union in prayer and worship with others. In the mutual helpfulness afforded each other in prayer and worship to God, much of good and strength comes to man. Helping another in his hours of weakness and temptation gives help and strength to ourselves when tempted and tried.

God who knows the weaknesses and failures of man, has made provisions to help him, or for him to help himself by coming to the places and the channels, using the provisions of wisdom and strength God has provided for his use. Peter (2 Pet. 1: 1-16) gives at once a picture of our need and of God's provisions of mercy and happiness: "Simon Peter, a servant and apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained a like precious faith with us in the righteousness of our God and the Savior Jesus Christ: Grace to you and peace be multiplied in the knowledge of God and of Jesus our Lord; seeing that his divine power hath granted unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that called us by his own glory and virtue; whereby he hath granted unto us his precious and exceeding great promises; that through these ye may become partakers of the divine nature, having escaped from the corruption that is in the world by lust. Yea, and for this very cause adding on your part all diligence, in your faith supply virtue; and in your virtue knowledge; and in your knowledge self-control; and in your self-control patience; and in your patience godliness; and in your godliness brotherly kindness; and in your brotherly kindness love. For if these things are yours and abound, they make you to be not idle nor unfruitful unto the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. For he that lacketh these things is blind, seeing only what is near, having forgotten the cleansing from his old sins. Wherefore, brethren, give the more diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never stumble: for thus shall be richly supplied unto you the entrance into the eternal kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. Wherefore I shall be ready always to put you in remembrance of these things, though ye know them, and are established in the truth which is with you. And I think it right, as long as I am in this tabernacle, to stir you up by putting you in remembrance; knowing that the putting off of my tabernacle cometh swiftly, even as our Lord Jesus Christ signified unto me. Yea, I will give diligence that at every time ye may be able after my decease to call these things to remembrance. For we did not follow cunningly devised fables, when we made known unto you the power and coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, but we were eyewitnesses of his majesty." If we will listen to Peter, hear his wisdom, and be guided by it while here, we will be blessed with the peace that comes from God, which is not of this world, and which lifts those who possess it above the influence of the world.

Things That Are Pure and Honorable.

BY E. G. S.

[A number of our readers have requested us to publish articles from Brother Sewell. While we are blessed in having Brother Sewell still with us and while his influence is still active, yet on account of the decrepitude of age he is not able to write for the paper as heretofore. We are gratified to see that our readers are anxious to hear from this faithful soldier of the cross, so it is with profound pleasure that we grant the wish and publish this article from Brother Sewell. Others will follow as we have space for them.—Edvror.]

"Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." (Phil. 4: 8.)

There are many passages of scripture that are taken very loosely, are applied variously, or are thoroughly perverted by many readers. There are many goody-goody sort of people that will accept anything as true and pure that suits their Ideas of truth and purity. Anything in religion that seems plous and in which people seem devoted will save, and they use this passage and others similar to it to prove it. The religious world is full of such ideas to-day, and people are confidently expecting to be saved by doing what seems to them right. They do not stop to consider what the standard of right is, seeming to feel that they know what is right; and whatever fills their ideas of right they accept, and risk their eternal all upon it, without further investigation. This passage was never intended to teach any such loose conceptions of what is right. Paul never expected anybody to take it in any indefinite way; and to prevent any from so using it, he immediately says: "The things which ye both learned and received and heard and saw in me, these things do; and the God of peace shall be with you." (Verse 9.) He had preached and taught among them, they had heard him, they knew what he taught, had seen his own course of life, and he gives that as the standard by which they were to determine what was true and pure and honorable.

God never left people to guess or decide by their own wisdom or by their own choice what was right; but, on the other hand, he warned them against such a course in all ages and dispensations. It was a terrible warning to all future generations when Adam and Eve were shut out of the garden of Eden, shut out from the tree of life and doomed to mortality, because they substituted something else than the plain and pure word of God which he had given them, and thus they brought a blight upon the whole world, and the primeval state of man was lost to the whole human race. Solomon said: "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man; but the end thereof are the ways of death." (Prov. 14: 12.) Men have always been rejected when they substituted something else in place of the word of God.

Jeremiah (10: 23) said: "O Jehovah, I know that the way of man is not in himself; it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." Man's wisdom is too weak and blind to guide him to heaven. The wisdom of men is foolishness with God. No man can know the way to heaven by his own wisdom. His only hope is to learn it from the word of God. The Philippians had no means of knowing what was pure and honorable in the sight of the Lord but by the word of God; and that is why Paul refers them so carnestly to what they had learned of him. It is impossible for us to know what is truth to-day, save by the word of God. Christ prayed to his Father to sanctify the disciples through his truth, saying: "Thy word is truth." There is, therefore, no truth in religion but the word of God, and hence there is nothing right in the service of God that does not harmonize with his word. Nothing can save or lead to salvation but the word of the Lord. There is no passage of scripture that in its proper connection intimates that any sinner can be saved, except through the teaching of the word of God. Paul, in this same letter, says: "Have this mind in you, which was also in Christ Jesus." (Phil. 2: 5.) The mind of Christ was a mind of obedience. He says he came down from heaven to do his Father's will. We will have the same sort of mind all the time if we obey the above passage. Jesus said: "And every one that heareth these words of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and smote upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall thereof." (Matt. 7: 26, 27.) This passage shows the utter impossibility for any sinner to be saved that will not hear the words of Jesus. If one were to do all the things that all the men of this world have ever invented, and not do the words of Jesus, he would be lest. Again, Jesus said: "He that rejecteth me, and receiveth not my sayings, hath one that judgeth him: the word that I spoke, the same shall judge him at the last day." (John 12: 48.) All are to be judged for eternity by the words of Jesus. That being true, we must live by them. No invention of men will be brought up in the judgment except for the condemnation of men. Not one soul will be saved by them. Everything God did not authorize will be destroyed.

We know of no one opinion of men that is more generally accepted or that is more dangerous to the interests of the soul than that anything a man thinks right will save. This idea is widespread, and millions to-day are depending upon human cpinions to save them. The passages last quoted show beyond any doubt the delusion there is in such an idea. No matter how earnestly a man may think that an abstract spiritual influence is God's converting power; that does not make it so. No matter how earnestly one thinks the Sabbath of the Old Testament is binding upon all the world to-day; that does not change the plain passages of the New Testament that so plainly show that the Sabbath was set aside, together with the whole law of Moses. No matter how much and how earnestly people may think baptism a nonessential; that does not change the language of Jesus: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." The word of God stands sure, but the opinions of men are certain to fail. Men may earnestly think for a lifetime that people once saved cannot fall away and be lost, but that can never change the decree of God that only those that hold out faithfully to the end shall be saved. All know that those who obey the word of God until death will be saved. On the other hand, all know that those who fall to obey have no promise of eternal life. Why not take the safe side, obey the gospei as it is written, become Christians, and then live the Christian until death, and thus secure all the promises of God here and hereafter? In this way, and in this alone, is perfect safety.

Finally, why would God have been so very minute in giving every item bearing upon our souls' salvation if it were possible for us to devise anything, even the very least, that would be acceptable to him? He says in his word that he has given to us "all things that pertain unto life and godliness." (2 Pet. 1: 3.) Not one single thing, therefore, that man can invent has anything to do in the way of saving his soul. Especially is this made clear when Jesus says: "I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prephecy of this book, If any man shall add unto them, God shall add unto him the plagues which are written in this book: and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life, and out of the holy city, which are written in this book." (Rev. 22; 18, 19.) This passage fixes the whole matter. -

The Rochester, (N. Y.) Mission Not Receiving Enough Help.

BY E. A. ELAM.

A direct report from the workers on the ground and of the work in Rochester is better and stronger than anything I can say.

I trust our readers saw the most hearty indorsement Brother R. L. Whiteside, of Denton, Texas, gave Brother Miller as a man first and then as a faithful preacher of the word. I hold, too, an indorsement and warm commendation of Brother Miller from the elders of the church at Ashiand City, Tenn., where he lived and worked last year. The preacher and the preaching are all right, and the work is scriptural and greatly needed. Japan and India are not more needy of the true gospel and the pure worship of God, so far as the New Testament order of work and worship are concerned. Now let the support of the work be equal to its need and it will move on to success.

Sister Fisher says the first knowledge she had of the publication of her letter, which she never once dreamed would be published, was from a good sister in Nashville, who sent at once a check for fifteen dollars, saying she would send something each month and that the letter was a personal appeal to her. Sister Fisher says:

I guess it is a good thing you published my letter without permission: in fact, that is the only way it could have been published. You know I so much dislike publicity and prefer always to remain in the background; but if it will help to arouse the churches to more liberality, then I shall be glad. The letter with your article is bringing results, forty-five dollars being received this week as a direct result.

She referred in her published letter to the contributions of the Catholics. Now she adds:

I haven't a full report on the Catholic contributions during Lent and on Easter Sunday, but it will be between twenty and thirty thousand dollars. The smallest church in Rochester—in fact, the chapel is above the school building—contributed on Easter Sunday $3,557. I have a friend who attends this church, and she told me this voluntarily without knowing that I wanted the information.

In a letter written later she says:

We begin a meeting Sunday, and Brother Miller has been doing some good preliminary work visiting and getting acquainted, and has made such a good impression upon those with whom he has come in contact.

Brother Miller writes that the meeting began the last of May, and says:

Our meeting opened Sunday per agreement, and moves along nicely, and we hope to accomplish much good. The crowds have not been large, but new ones keep coming in, and that is, of course, encouraging. It is pretty hard to get these people to listen to the pure gospel, but we intend to hold it before them until they do.

These statements are published in order to show what Is being done and the progress of the work.

Not enough has been pledged to the work to support if.

The incidental expenses—half rent, lights, and other things—must be met as well as the support of the preacher.

The Union Church, Sumner County, Tenn., gives fifteen dollars per month, but says it will increase that amount if necessary.

We want enough churches and individuals to give so much each month to support the work fully; then not another appeal will be made. The money will be properly used to the best advantage. Let others say what they can do per month. And let congregations make one Lord'sday's contribution to this work.

Send contributions directly to Mrs. Eunice Fisher, Mechanics Institute, Rochester, N. Y.

But why is she, Brother Miller, and I writing and working for this mission? Only because we love the cause of Christ and seek the salvation of souls. There is not a busier woman in Rochester, whose responsibilities are greater, than Sister Fisher. Besides, she is physically frail and works beyond her strength. If the churches could only realize their duty, a mere mention of this field and its needs would be sufficient to bring all the financial support required. Giving the money is the smallest part of it. Reader, you will not miss what you give; but you ought to give until you miss or feel it. Why be so indifferent to such work? Talk it over, give so much a month, or make a Lord's-day's contribution to it. Remember where to send the contributions.

The Eternal Recompense.

Still in my breast, despite its load of sorrow,
Despite the pressure of o'erwhelming care,
I sense the thrilling joy of a to-morrow
Whose dawn shall brighten up the darkness there.

I sense a moment nigh when, we abating,
I'll tread the path that leads on to release,
And find a cure for troubles dire awaiting,
Safe in the Everlasting Arms of Peace.

For life and love so close are interweaving
That none can live and yet be portionless;
And days must come with hours all retrieving.
The dreary years of unfound happiness;

And he whose share of Love is not yet ready.

Whose measure of its joy is yet unknown.

Need only keep his faith both both sure and steady

To come sometime, somewhere, into his own.

—Selected.

It is easy in this world to live after the world's opinion; it is easy in solitude to live after one's own; but the great man is he who, in the midst of the crowd, keeps with perfect sweetness the independence of solitude.—Emerson.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

Much Is Needed to Be Done.

When we take the time to look over the field and see how much needs to be done, it is staggering. I see so much that needs to be done just in the State of Georgia, so much that we cannot get to, that I have to put up a fight to keep it from discouraging me. But slip out of Georgia Into any adjoining State, and you find plenty to do. Much has been said, in the last twelve months, of the neglected condition of South Carolina. May the Lord bless Brethren Burton and Nix with every needed thing in their efforts to give all in that State an opportunity of hearing the pure, simple teaching of the gospel before it is too late. It hardly seems possible for the few preachers there to get to all in this generation. Then there is much room for mission work in Florida. More has been done in that State than in South Carolina, but only the hem of the garment has been touched in comparison to what yet needs to be done. And even north of us, in the much-boasted State of Tennessee, we have county after county in which no effort has been made to establish the cause of Christ. So, standing in Georgia and looking just a State deep in all directions from us, we see enough work that needs to be done that is not being done to make us feel a bit discouraged. But how about it when we look at the world? Well, let us not look so far, but stay in America, and we have about all we can stand to seriously think of in its neglected con-

But there is another thing that some of us have to think of along the way-that, in spite of the world's sad need of the gospel, unmixed with the teaching of men, we have to face the fact that many who claim to love souls and want the cause of Christ extended have to waste so much precious time speculating and teaching "foolish and ignorant questionings" which "gender strifes." If ever a people should strive with all their might and main to obey the command, "Foolish and ignorant questionings refuse" (1 Tim. 2: 23), we are the people—every one of us! If we have any mission whatever, it is to give to the world the pure word of God; and the task is so immense that we have not the time to lose one moment in teaching things not essential to the salvation of the soul. The time has come when it should not be left with preachers to say just what they shall teach; the churches should arise, in the name of our Lord and Savior, and stop the mouths of those who would waste precious time and money in wrangling over those things not vital to the needs of man. Such a stand all of our papers should take. There is so much that needs to be done that we should give our best, let not one obstacle come in our way, but all, as one man, move onward in the glorious work of giving dying men and women a knowledge of the One who can save, and how he may be received and enjoyed.

* * *

We Have Many to Do What Is Needed to Be Done.

I would not be at all surprised if some reader will not doubt the heading of this paragraph-" We have many to do what is needed to be done." But this is true, comparatively speaking. We have many disciples compared to the few with whom the church started its work on the first Pentecost after Christ's ascension. I think it safe to say we have enough to take the immense field before us, if we could only get them to work. I know a few who are so working that, if all would fall in line and work as hard as they, the time would soon come when there would not be one that could say that he had not had an opportunity of hearing the pure word of God preached just as It is. If all would work as the apostles worked; if all would give as they are taught to give; and if all would hunger and thirst for the salvation of souls as our Lord hungers for them, what would the results be? May no lover of souls and God's truth allow himself to be discouraged one moment. Keep working, keep praying, and your world-that part of the whole field that God is expecting you to fill with a knowledge of his truth-will be worked and your soul will be saved.

0 0 0

Some Propositions.

In the revival in which I recently engaged at Athens, Ala., Brother L. B. Jones put out quite a number of cards, on the back of which were these propositions: (1) "Show us one thing we teach, practice, or advocate, for which we cannot give a 'Thus saith the Lord,' and we will quit it:" (2) "Show us one thing the word of God requires us to teach, practice, or advocate, that we are neglecting, and we will begin it at once."

I like these propositions, and am glad that Brother Jones and Brother Pettey Ezell were careful to so teach here and get the work properly started. These propositions mean much, and it would be well that they be thundered into the ears of the members of all the congregations on earth. I could not circulate this card in some congregations I have seen and defend them. The Lord says for us to "sound out the gospel." But there would be staring me in the face the fact that the church at that place is not doing it, and that their so-called elders or leaders will not let it be done. Under such circumstances, I would have to deal with that church just like I would any other false church-viz., condemn it. I could defend my propositions as an individual, but could not for that congregation. It is bad to substitute sprinkling for baptism; it is bad to introduce instrumental music into the church worship; it is bad to teach that baptism is not essential to salvation and that just any old name will do for us to be known by in religion; but it is worse to have the gospel and make no effort to give it to other people. Not for one moment do I believe that such disciples will be saved. I think, too. I have seen congregations in which I would be handicapped because of a failure to obey this command: "Let love of the brethren continue." (Heb. 13: 1.) It would be well to take this second proposition and get some congregations to try themselves out by it. If the Bible teaches anything, it teaches that we must love the brethren or be lost. If we are not doing this, then here is one thing the Bible says do that we are not doing, and it is just as essential as baptism. We are in a bad way if we do not love the brethren as the Bible teaches us to love. Then take what the Bible teaches on the subject of giving. It says: "Let each one of you" lay by him in store, upon the first day of the week, as he may prosper; it says for you to purpose in your heart, and give, not grudgingly, but willingly and cheerfully. (See 1 Cor. 16: 2; 2 Cor. 9: 7.) While we put out cards with these propositions for the purpose of making our religious neighbors think of the things they are doing that the Bible does not teach, we should sweep clean before our own doors and see to it that we are living up to these propositions to the best of our ability.

Carefulness is generated by interest in one's job, by determination to make good, by ambition to master the work in hand and to earn promotion.-Selected.

Training Little Children

By ANNE GOODWIN WILLIAMS

(Suggestions by mothers who have been kindergartners. Issued by The United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., and The National Kindergarten Association, New York, N. Y.)

The Guiding of Imagination.

"When my boy was only four years old, I began to punish him every time he told a lie. It took great persistance to cure him, but now he is the most truthful child you ever knew. You can depend upon his word every time." The father spoke with great pride, ignorant that the merry little lad next door who was the companion of his own sullen boy had also passed through three years of "romancing," but with no punishment for lying, and consequently no unhappy memories to carry into later life.

Every little child passes through a mental stage when he finds it difficult, if not impossible, to distinguish between memory and imagination.

Five-year-old Harold spent a very happy day with little Jack, whose mother had so tamed a squirrel that it came to the window and ate from the children's hands. "Wouldn't it be fun if it would come into the room and play with us" "Yes, and get into the doll's bed and sit in a chair and eat from a table." Each child made his contribution to the delightful romance. Two or three weeks later something was said in Harold's presence about squirrels, and immediately there came to his mind all the memories of Jack's squirrel. Memory and imagination became confused so that the little lad thought he was telling the truth when he told of the squirrel which had eaten from his hand, slept in a doll's bed and sat in a chair, and he naturally resented as an injustice the punishment which followed.

"What is truth?" four-year-old Margaret asked earnestly of a loving friend who rebuked her for not telling the truth. The friend, by definite illustration, helped her to understand the difference between fact and imagination, and for several weeks the child's stories were followed by the question, "Was I telling the truth that time?" Finally she was able to distinguish the difference and her imaginative stories were introduced by: "This isn't true, but—!" "Once upon a time," etc. So she lived in her make-believe world joyously increasing a very valuable mental power, yet being saved the reproof and punishment too often meted out to children who are not understood.

Miss Elizabeth Harrison, in her book, "Misunderstood Children," tells of a little girl who prayed in her own simple, childlike way that the wonderful gift of imagination might be taken from her, because of the scorn and ridicule with which the teacher of geography treated her attempt to picture Arabia, about which she was studying, instead of merely bounding the country. "Please, God, help me not to see people and animals in Arabia instead of an old map on the wall," she prayed.

Fortunately that little girl's prayer was not answered, and her imagination developed and was so guided and controlled by a wise and understanding mother that when the child grew to womanhood she was able to use that imagination to write stories which have brought joy to thousands of little children.

The world of imagination is really the kingdom of the little child in which he lives with the companions we adults choose for him. Let us help him by telling him of the great heroes of history and literature, and cease to acquaint him with the cruel villains and coarse buffoons of the "movies" and the newspaper headlines. During their early impressionable years, children are influenced more by their imaginary companions than by the actual children with whom they come in contact.

"Let's pretend," the imaginative child says over and over again. "Yes, let's pretend," the wise mother answers, and jokingly may add: "Let's pretend that we are fairles and that all the specks of dust are wild animals for us to chase."

Let us pretend and pretend with the children and be thankful with reverent, humble gratitude when we as grown men and women are allowed to reënter the wonderland of childhood, living with the little people and guiding them in their use of this very great gift of Imagination.

0 0 0

Worship.

When the great sun sinks to his rest,
His golden glories thrilling me,
And voiceless longings stir my breast,
Then teach me, Lord, to worship thee.

And when the stars—the daylight fled— In serried, shining ranks, I see, Filling the splendid vault o'erhead, Then teach me, Lord, to worship thee.

If roaming by the ocean's shore,
The murmuring waves sing low to me,
Or thundering billows hoarsely rear,
Then teach me, Lord, to worship thee.

Or if in solemn forest shades,

The calm of nature steals o'er me,
And silence all my soul pervades,
Then teach me, Lord, to worship thee.

Not in the sacred shrines alone,
Which chime their summons unto me,
Would I look to thy heavenly throne,
But everywhere would worship thee,
—Maltbie D. Babcock.

0 0 0

Short Sermons.

God will not let us be without pleasures of our own. The fields are full of such: flowers, verdure, beautiful plants at every step; birds everywhere; and then an air all perfumed.—Engènie de Guérin.

* * *

It is because we are not humble enough in the presence of the divine daily fact that adventure knocks so rarely at our door. This very day, straining my eyes to see the distant wonders of the mountains, I nearly missed a miracle by the roadside.—David Grayson.

0 0 0

Christ is the amen of the universe to the righteousness in God and the deathless in man. It is this that lends an infinitely sweet and profoundly significant authority to his words for the race: "I am come that they may have life, and may have it abundantly."—Selected.

$ $ $

Faith and prayer represent habits of the soul which express our dependence on God and invite the divine intervention. This we shall never cease to need and, therefore, we are being trained by faith and prayer for that fuller appropriation of the divine which will differentiate the more perfect ministry of heaven from earth's imperfect service; and it is through temptation that the training comes.—W. Hay Aitken.

INTER NOS

From Ed S. Duncan, Mount Pleasant, Texas, June 9: "I spent the fifth Lord's day in May with the church at Sulphur, Okla., preaching three times. This is one of the best congregations I know, and it is a pleasure indeed to meet with them. Here I met J. D. Dossey, the blind man, and heard him preach one of the most masterful sermons I ever heard. His home is at Caney, Okla. The Lord willing, I will begin the annual meeting with the Gunter Bible College congregation, at Gunter, Texas, on the third Lord's day in July. I shall hold a mission meeting in Bowie County, Texas, beginning the first of July. This is the mission point I reported some time since. We have large attendance at each meeting and the best of attention. I think great good will be done there this summer, if we can get outside help enough to put it through."

Here is a model advertisement for preachers of the church of Christ who wish to announce their protracted meetings, I am leaving out time, date, and place of meeting, which, of course, will be supplied as the circumstances demand. This is an announcement used by E. C. Fuqua, of the church of Christ: "The church of Christ, founded by him, A.D. 33, is the oldest church on earth, and is to-day, in faith, doctrine, work, and worship, exactly what it was when he made it. It is no human sect in religion, but is the true and original institution founded by Christ. This church presents to you the vital benefits of the Christian religion, demanding of you only those duties which Christ demands, and safeguarding your spiritual interests as only the church of Christ can. Come and hear the unquestionable truth preached. It can't harm you, and will do you inestimable good."

Fuqua, of Fort Cellins, Col., writes concerning the discussion between D. Austen Sommer and me as follows: "I am especially interested in your 'bout' with Brother Sommer, but fear he is not getting the satisfaction that 1 am. It confirms my long opinion that he and his colleagues have no argument or reason to present, have never had, and never can have, so long as they oppose things they do and never can have, so long as they oppose things they do for the reason they oppose them. However, I think you did wisely in drawing the 'discussion' to a close, seeing there is nothing to discuss. The point at issue they will not discuss; so why prolong the wrangle?" We have also received two other letters which we publish below. G. W. Farmer, who wrote one, is a most excellent man and a preacher of no mean ability. I am glad to have him express himself, and assure him that I shall engage in no wrangles and will discuss subjects only when I believe it is wrangies and will discuss subjects only when I believe it is best for the cause of Christ. The two letters show that it is impossible to please every one and that an editor must have a mind of his own and do what he believes God commands him to do. Brother Farmer says: "I do not propose to dictate the policy of the paper, but I suggest that you let Brethren McCaleb and Sommer alone for a while. I am anxious that the paper find more favor up in East Tennessee. Some people think there is too much wrangling in the Gospel Advocate. It makes an unfavorable impression on people who do not know how to take it." The other letter is from E. S. Kerr, of Brookport, Ill., who says: "I want to tell you how I feel about your discussion with Brother Sommer. He held a meeting for us a year ago last April, and had me believing as he does; yet I had never heard the question debated, and told my brethren that I would never be satisfied until I heard it discussed, but that it looked like, from the reading of the Review, you and your breth-ren were afraid to debate the question with Sommer, all of which made me stronger for the Review's teaching. But now I am perfectly satisfied that you are right and Brother Sommer is riding a hobby. I think this debate has done good and that we should have more debates than we do. The prevailing idea to-day is to get sweet and be goodygoody and do like a good many of our brethren are doing in Texas." I feel sure that if Brother Farmer and others knew conditions in the West where the Apostolic Review is circulated and that if they understood just how Sommer and his satellites were exercising what they call "evan-gelistic authority," thereby taking over churches of Christ and shutting out brethren who believe in teaching the Bible in schools, they would take a different view of this matter. For fuller information on the subject, I refer Brother Farmer and others interested to E. C. Fuqua, of Fort Collins, Col., and G. W. Riggs, of Riverside, Cal.

Sermons and Sermon Material.

(The titles appear under the authors' names.

(The titles appear under the authors' names.)
APERNETHY, ARTHUR TALMAGE. "Center Shots at Sin"$1.50
ADCOCK, ADAM K. "The Glorious Gospel"
Book, W. H. "Columbus Tabernacle Sermons," two volumes; per volume 1.00
volume 1.00 "The Indiana Pulpit" 1.25 "Sermons for the People" 1.25
Downey Manuscan M.
"Lights on Scripture Truths"
Brandt, John L. "Soul-Saving Revival Sermons" 1.00
Brown, Will. H.
"Illustrative Incidents for Public Speakers" 1.50 "Patriotic Illustrations for Public Speakers" 1.50
"Stories of the Great War for Public Speakers" 1.50
"Wit and Humor for Public Speakers" 1.50
COOMES, J. V. "The Christ of the Church"1.00
Darsie, George.
"Before the Throne"
DUTT, MEADE E. "Jesus Christ in Human Experience" 1.50
Elebett, Isaac.
"Evenings with the Bible," three volumes; per volume
"The Querists' Drawer"
FARIS, JOHN T. "How It Was Done in Harmony" 1.00
Lord, J. A.
"On the Lord's Day"
McGarvey, J. W. "Biblical Criticism"
"Lands of the Bible" 2.00
"Jesus and Jonah"
"Sermons"
"Commentary on Matthew and Mark 1.50
McGarvey-Pendleton.
"Commentary on Thessalonians, Corinthians, Gala-tlans, and Romans and the second of the second o
MEACHAM, EDGAR JONES. "Training to Teach"
MOFFETT, ROBERT. "Seeking the Old Paths"
PRITMAN, J. C. FERDINAND. "Bible Truths Illustrated"
RUTLEDGE, GEORGE F. "Pushing the World Along"
SWEENEY, Z. T.
"The Spirit and the Word"
Updika, J. V. "Updika's Sermons"
Wilson, Louis C. "Twentieth Century Sermons and Addresses" 1.50
Zollars, E. V. "Baccalaureate and Convocation Sermons" 1.75 "The Commission Executed"
Send all orders to the McQuiddy Printing Company, 317-
319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

So long as we dare to think that secular life must be

So long as we dare to think that secular life must be separate existence from the spiritual, that earthly engagements cannot be fulfilled in uninterrupted communion with God, just so long are we living outside the purposes of God, contradicting the majesty of our true nature and denying the efficacy of the gospel.—H. W. Webb-Peploe.

BUILD YOURSELF UP SO AS TO FEEL BETTER

Eat and sleep better, as well as look better, by taking Hood's Sarsapa-rilla. It is an all-the-year-round medicine, good in all seasons.

It purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood, creates an appetite, aids digestion, assists assimilation of the food you eat, and wonderfully builds up the whole system. In many cases it succeeds where other modicines fail to do any good.

If you need a mild effective cathar-tic, get Hood's Pills.

HEINEMANN'S

Non-Alcoholic (Trade-Mark Registered U. S. Patent Office)

A TONIC

For La Grippe, Colds in the Head, Fevers, Torpid Liver, and Flu

MANUFACTURED BY

A. D. HEINEMANN, Chemist Jackson and Decatur Sts. MEMPHIS, TENN.

TETTERINE

Clears Baby's Skin

and drives off the rash and pimples. Harmless, Soothing, Fragrant.

also at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Gs.

Martin College-Junior College

For girls and young women. Not sectarian, but positively Christian. Meets standard tests in all departments. Fifty years old. No experiment. Write for catalog,

> GEORGE A. MORGAN, President, Dept. A, Pulaski, Tenn.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and pre-scribed by physicians for over twenty ceribed by physicians for over twenty cars. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer rackage" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colds and Paim. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

CHURCH NEWS

Arkansas.

Fort Smith, June 2.-Sunday was a great day with the Park Hill Church. Brother J. B. Nelson, of Dallas, Texas, began our meeting on Friday night. and we had an all-day service Sunday, with dinner and a big song rally. We had visitors from Rowland, Spire, Shady Point, Cameron, Sallisaw, and Gans, Okla.; and from Greenwood, Charleston, Delaney, Booneville, and St. Paul. Brother Nelson is surely a great preacher and teacher of the word of God. We are having a good meeting and the brethren are all rejoicing. Will W. Slater.

Fort Smith, June 7.—The Park Hill church of Christ, of Fort Smith, wants to employ a young minister for three or four months this summer while their regular minister, Brother Will W. Slater, is away in protracted-meet-ing work. Brother Slater will be away three or four months. Here is a fine opportunity for some young preacher to get some real good experience and be well cared for financially at the same time. The church same time. The church is not expect-ing to get an experienced man, but one who is modest and wants a chance to develop his talents. For further information, write to Brother Will W. Slater, 1600 South T Street, Fort Smith, Ark.—J. B. Nelson.

Texarkana, June 5 .- After preaching at Cross Roads, near Emerson, to good and attentive audiences Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday nights, I came on Thursday night to Texar-kana. A meeting will be started here to-morrow by Brother Wainwright, the preacher who resides here, and will be carried on after Tuesday night by Brother Joe Warlick. At Cross Roads several of the members spoke to me about conducting a Bible reading and drill next winter. I go to Fouke to-morrow, and will preach at night, also Monday and Tuesday nights. Brother Wainwright has recently been in some successful mission meetings in Louisiana. A promising mission has been started by Brother Wain-wright and the College Hill congrega-tion in another part of Texarkana, and it is thought a second meeting will have good results.-Andrew Perry.

District of Columbia.

Washington, June 7.—The following contributions have been received for the house of worship in Washington during April and May and up to June 4: From H. P. Lucas, Florence, Ala., $100; Murfreesboro, Tenn., $50; donations through F. L. Rowe, $2.50; "A Sister," Jacksonville, Fla., $10: church at Avon Park, Fla., $24.50; church at Dickson, Tenn., $100; Mrs. J. J. Walker, McMinnville, Tenn., $5; Flat Creek, Tenn., $25; L. H. Bretz and family, $5. One brother in Alabama has agreed to join two hundred others and give one hundred dollars each. He has sent his, and two sisters and a brother have followed his example. How many others will give according to their ability? Let us finish the Washington building fund and then turn to St. Louis. My address is 110 Second Street, S. E.—W. S. Long.

Kentucky.

Louisville, June 10.-Last month I visited five churches in Kentucky, preached eleven sermons, and baptized one person-a young woman who had been a Catholic, I find a number of churches lacking in organization and system, and I take it for granted that this condition prevails in most of the churches of the rural districts. Some of our preachers do not take very kindly to the "sticks," or country churches, and this has brought about a deplorable condition. If the denominations about us can systematize their work and bring such wonderful results, and this without divine au-thority, surely the church of Christ has authority from the Most High to organize and systematize her work to bring the very best results. If the Lord wills, I shall devote my time to bringing about a better condition in the country churches of Kentucky. Any brethren interested in this work will please address me at 1740 Chichester Avenue, Louisville, Ky. If a meeting is needed, I will come or send some loyal preacher.-R. A. Craig.

Missouri.

Sedalia, June 5.—I began a meeting here last Thursday. Three confessions to date. Brother S. W. Bell is doing a great work here among the poor people. We are greatly in need of a tent here to reach the people that we should reach. The meetinghouse is small and rather far out toward the edge of the city. The brethren here are few in number and poor in this world's goods, but seem to be rich in faith and love for the cause.-E. P. Watson.

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no larger the alightest need of feeling annumed of your freekles, as Othine—double strength—is numeratived to remove these homely appear.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it high an ourning and you should soon see that even the worst freekles have beaun to disappear, while he lighter mes have randshed entirely. It is seldent that more than one owner is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a heantiful relear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as his is sold under guarantee of manny back if it falls to remove freekles.

CANCERS CURED AT KELLAM HOSPITAL,

1617 West Main Street, Richmond, Va.

it is known beyond a doubt and admitted by most of the leading physicians and sur-geons that cancer cannot be cured with the knife. X-Ray, radium or acids. Cancers are permanently cured at The Kellam Hos-pital, without the use of either. Physicians and surgeons treated free at the hospital.

The next time you buy calomel ask for

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are nausealess, safe and sure.

Medicinal virtues retained and improved. Sold only in sealed packages. Price 35c.

Those Nervous Headaches which are the lot of so many Housewives and Mothers.

Dr.Miles Panti-PainPills

Seldom Fail to Relieve Any Ache or Pain.

For Sale by All Druggists.

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Inc.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate. Padlock Argument. BY J. J. VANHOUTIN.

One of the strongest arguments ever used in the early part of the Reformation against the truth, and one that usually settled the importance of the commission and the mode and design of baptism, was the "padlock argument." It was used frequently forty and fifty years ago. And only some point in law pertaining to the ownership of the property was sufficient to remove the padlock from the doors of houses where the people met to hear the truth and were deprived of the privilege, for the last resort to show that the gospel was not true was to lock our preachers out. Old pioneer preachers of thirty-five to fifty years ago can tell how they were locked out of schoolhouses, union houses, and sectarian houses which our people helped to build, and thus thousands of people were deprived of the "bread of life." while a few, sometimes just one or two, with a padlock argument, would stand between the people and God's plan of redemption, and assume the responsibility over their souls, and, Elymaslike, try to prevent people from hearing the truth. Not very long ago several writers wrote about the dearth and scarcity of preachers. Brother Larimore described several incidents similar to many through which I have passed. Since the establishment of the dividing line between the "church of Christ" and the "Christian Church." some preachers and church officials have gone to extremes in both organizations in regard to who shall or shall not preach at certain places; and three Sunday nights in a month the padlock argument against all preachers is used, unless, perhaps, a skeleton key may be used and an occasional visit may be granted, but not approved of. Where in the New Testament do we find where the Lord ordained that a man should go into all the congregations and take a corner on suitable places and keep all other preachers out? I am aware that there are over one thousand less places in Illinois where a loyal preacher can go and preach, to what there were before the division. And the padlock argument is more killing and destructive to a loyal preacher's influence than ever the sectarians' padlocks were when they used to lock their doors against the old pioneer gospel preachers.

There are seven items in the commission, and at a sectarian revival no one can escape the padlock argument who attempts to harmonize them. Matthew says to go, teach, and baptize, and gives the ceremony to be used in baptizing. Mark says to go and preach, and enjoins belief and baptism and promises salvation. Luke enjoins repentance; and Paul, Philip, and Lake all enjoined confession. So we have: (1) Go; (2) preach, or teach; (3) belief, or faith; (4) confession of that faith; (5) a reformation, called "repentance;" (6) baptism "into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit;" (7) salvation-"He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Even a padlock argument cannot destroy the truthfulness of the seven items in the commission. And T. B. McCauley said: "Whoever hinders the expansion of Christianity in any way in the world, or tries to injure it, is guilty of high treason against God and the civilization of mankind." But the padlock argument still holds good in some places when an unscriptural position cannot be fairly met. Did not Isaiah say, "Come, let us reason together?"

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chili TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60e per bottle,

If your struggist cannot supply you send for a free sample to

THE MORGAN DRUG CO., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
Removes bandruft Stops Hair Falling Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
50. and Si.0 at drugglatt.
Hiscoz Chem. Was. Fatchogue, N.Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns. Catlonses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. loc. by mail or at Draggists. Hisox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. T.

Sunbeams.

BY ANDREW PERRY

"My brethren, hold not the faith of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Lord of glory, with respect of persons. For if there come into your synagogue a man with a gold ring, in fine clothing, and there come in also a poor man in vile clothing; and ye have regard to him that weareth the fine clothing, and say, Sit thou here in a good place; and ye say to the poor man, Stand thou there, or sit under my footstool; do ye not make distinctions among yourselves, and become judges with evil thoughts." (James 2: 1-4.)

Each Christian consists of two men—an inner man and an outward man, a visible man and an invisible man. The visible man is temporal and will come to an end; the invisible man is eternal.

But how are we treating the two men? Treating the spiritual or invisible man far worse than the poor man of whom James speaks. We are spending almost hundreds of dollars for food, residence, clothing, and pleasure of the visible man, to a small amount of time and expense for the welfare of the spiritual man. We must cease this.

Consider the great question of profit and loss raised by our great Teacher: "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Mark 8: 36.) Brethren, let us cease being judges with evil thoughts. Let us look at and care for the things that are eternal and labor for heavenly meat.

Look at the way people are spending money for moving-picture shows, snuff and tobacco, and cold drinks for the visible or fleshly man. Are we a party to this? Are we spending money as freely for the preaching of the word, for good books and to extend the circulation of our church papers, for the care of orphan children, and to relieve those who need our help?

Let us one and all make up our minds to be better stewards of the goods of our Master.

The Work at Oakland, Miss.

BY J. P. LOWREY.

For several years there have been a few brethren meeting in the school building at Oakland, Miss., and about a year ago Brother W. A. Burford, one of the most active workers of old Thyatira congregation, moved to Oakland and went to work with all the earnestness of his soul to help to build up the church at that place. If every one who moves into a new place would do as Brother Burford is doing, it would bring results in many destitute places. Since he went to Oakland a well-located lot has been secured and a few hundred dollars raised to build a meetinghouse. What has been done thus far has been accomplished at a sacrifice upon the part of Brother Burford and others who are anxious to see the cause permanently established in this splendid little town. They are anxious to complete the house in time to hold a meeting in it this year, and, with men like W. A. Burford behind the proposition, it will be done. He is not rich in this world's goods, but rich in the faith. Why let men like this shoulder all the load in such places. when a little help from a few congregations would show them that others are interested in what they are trying to accomplish and encourage them to press forward? Unless such places are encouraged, when the Savior comes, he will find Mississippi destitute of the gospel. The writer has been over a great part of the State since the first of January, and is more convinced than ever before that it is the greatest field for evangelistic work in the South. If you help to establish the cause of Christ permanently at Oakland, you will thus make it possible for people over a large territory to feel the influence of the church and hear the gospel preached long after you shall have passed away. If you wish to have fellowship in this work, send your contributions to W. A. Burford, Oakland, Miss. This work will be done whether you help or not; but what is your duty?

Recuperation. There is not so much in the ordinary vacation as there is in a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which refreshes the tired blood, sharpens the dulled appetite, restores the lost courage. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla this summer.

Kintho Beauty Cream

For the Treatment of

FRECKLES

In Use for Over 15 Years

Your frackles need attention NOW or may ramain all summer Use Kintho, the old and time-tried treatment that has given satisfaction for over 15 years, and rid yourself of these homely spots.

At All Druggists and Department Stores,

OH, DEAR! MY BACK!

Merciful Heavens, how my back hurts in the morning!" It's all due to an over-abundance of that poison called uric acid. The kidneys are not able to get rid of it. Such conditions you can readily overcome, and prolong life by taking

"Anuric" (anti-mic-acid). This can be obtained at almost any drug store, in tablet form.

When your kidneys get sluggish and clog, you suffer from backache, sick-headache, dizzy spells, or twinges and pains of lumbago, rheumatism or gout; or sleep is disturbed two or three times a night, get Dr. Pierce's Anuric, it will put new life into your kidneys and your entire system. Send Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel, Buffalo, N. Y., ten cents for trial package.

MEMPHIS, TENN, "Dr. Pierce's Anuric is the best medicine for the kidneys and for backaghe that I have ever taken. For some time my kidneys have been giving me a lot of trouble. I suffered with backaghes and rheumatism in my joints and limbs causing me a lot of misery. On learning of the 'Anuric Tablets' I began their use and they have given me real relief when all other kidney medicines failed to help.

kidney medicines falled to help.
"I am glad to recommend 'Anurio' to others who suffer with this allment."—
MRS. E. C. WILSON, 660 N. Sixth St.

We place White Teachers in Public, Private, and Normal Schools, Colleges, and Universities. The H. D. Yates Teachers' Bureau, Nashville, Tenn.

OBITUARIES

Burns.

Sister Alice Payne was born on December 15, 1859. On November 10, 1897, she became the wife of Brother R. C. Burns, of Bohon, Ky. In happl-ness and peace these two lived together as husband and wife until November 9, 1919, at which time the home was broken by the death of Sister Burns. She became identified with the church at Bohon about fifteen years ago, and we believe that she faithfully followed the Lord until she departed from this world. Brother Burns feels sad and lonely, but sorrows not as those who have no hope; he believes that his loss is her gain. Sister Burns was a living example of Paul's teaching in 1 Tim. 2: 9-12. The writer of these words conducted the funeral service at Bohon, after which her body was laid to rest in a near-by grave. THOMAS D. ROSE.

McCampbell.

Truly, "one by one our friends are crossing over the river." On Saturday, April 10, 1920, about five o'clock P.M., Mrs. Amanda McCampbell dled, at her home, in Bridgeport, Ala., after several weeks' illness of pneumonia. Mrs. McCampbell lived in this bright, beautiful world, with all its grand achievements and with its many wonderful opportunities for doing good, about seventy-six years. Think of the good one could accomplish in seventysix years! Mrs. McCampbell obeyed the gospel in early life and tried to the gospel in early life and tried to always live true to her profession. She certainly ministered to the sick and needy. The weather was never too hot nor too cold for her to help the sick and afflicted. She was a true triend, and I cannot believe she was deceitful in the least. Mrs. McCampbell came from one of the best families in Alabama, and I am sure her relatives and friends did all in their power. tives and friends did all in their power to help her get well. But she seemed to know from the first that her summons had come, and she was willing to go. She was intelligent, industrious, well read, frank, honest, and a Christian "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the MATTIE HOLDER. city.

Archer.

With sorrow we record the death of H. L. Archer, at Memphis, Tenn... April 24, 1920. He was forty-five years of age. He leaves a wife and six children to mourn his departure. He died at the Baptist Hospital, where he had gone for an operation. He seemed to improve for a short time, then came a change and he grew rapidly worse. His devoted wife reached his bedside a short time before the death angel wafted his spirit to the stient land. He recognized her, asked her to arrange his pillow, and then said: "I want to go home." With a breaking heart, she bravely answered: "I have come to carry you home." His death was doubly sad on account of the pathetic plea of his little children:

MASSEY MILITARY SCHOOL

Junior R. O. T. C. On Preferred hist of Colleges. Teachers, University Men. SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 8, 1920. Dept. A.

In answering advertisements, please mention this paper

"Bring papa home." That home meant more to Logan than mere space inclosed by four walls. It was a place where the latchstring was ever hanging on the outside, with peace and happiness reigning supreme within. He obeyed the gospel while young and lived a life worthy of imitation. He will be sadly missed, not alone around the family hearthstone, but by the community in which he lived. Brother Knight, of Henderson, Tenn., conducted the funeral service, and his form was laid to rest in the cemetery at Refuge, the place where he was wont to go every Lord's day.

A SISTER IN CHRIST.

Moore.

Permelia Moore was born on July 10, 1846. When but a girl, she came to Guntersville, Ala., an orphan, where she lived until her death. She obeyed the gospel when sixteen years of age, at Bagdad Church, in Tennessee. She was married to Capt. E. B. Moore during the Civil War. She died on March 5, 1920. For years she was the only disciple in Guntersville. It was through her influence that the late Dr. A. C. Henry, some time in the eighties, was invited to Guntersville to preach, and at the close of the first discourse seven came forward to confess their faith in the Savior and obey him in baptism. As the result of this meeting, a strong congregation was built up and a good house built. For years the congregation flourished, and numbered in its membership some of the most prominent people of the town. Numbers of the strongest preachers in the brotherhood have held meetings there, and I dare say that all of them who are living remember with pleasure Sister Moore. By deaths, removals, and indifference the congregation went down until there was not a man left to conduct the worship. Instead of giving up, she, as leader, and three or four other faithful sisters continued to meet for worship and tided the church over a time that in most instances would have meant the death of the cause in Guntersville. She was "full of good works and almsdeeds which she did;" ready always to visit and attend the sick, comfort the distressed, and help the needy. When her health and cir-cumstances would permit, she would have a class of women to meet at her home once a week to study the Scriptures, and no doubt her labors will bear fruit in days to come, especially in the lives of a few faithful girls who have had the benefit of her teaching and example. She had no children of her own, but reared, or partly so, two nicces, a girl who was committed to her keeping in childhood, and a boy whom she and Brother Moore adopted in his infancy and reared to manhood. He is now an active member of the little congregation in Savannah, Ga. As she had always requested, a short funeral service was held in her home, and her body was laid to rest in the Guntersville cemetery to await the resurrection of the just.

R. N. MOODY.

For Constipation

Indigestion, Sick Headache, Biliousness, Bloating, Sour Stomach, Gas on the Stomach. Bad Breath or other conditions caused by clogged or irregular bowels, take

Foley Cathartic Tablets

A wholesome and thoroughly cleansing physic-mild and gentle in action.

B. B. Haward, Unadills, Ga.: "I find Foley Cathartic Tablets give me quicker relief from constipation than snything I over tried."

Mormonism, Alias "Latter-Day Saints." No. 1.

BY R. B. NEAL.

David Whitmer says: "We asked Joseph how it was that he had received a revelation from the Lord for some of his brethren to go to Toronto and sell the copyright of the 'Book of Mormon ' and the brethren had utterly failed in their undertaking."

The "we" represented John Whitmer, Jacob Whitmer, Hiram Page, and Oliver Cowdery, as well as David

The prophet's "back was against the wall." He had to front the question and answer it. His reputation as a prophet was at stake. Joseph admitted he "did not know how it was." So he "inquired of the Lord about it. and, behold, the following revelation came through the stone: "Some revelations are of God; some revelations are of man; and some revelations are of the devil."

"This was a jump out of the frying pan into the fire." 'Twas bad enough to profess a revelation from God to sell the manuscript of the only book that had "the fullness of the gospel" and upon which the salvation of the world depended, from his viewpoint, in a public market, and the prophet was more than willing for it to be sold for "considerable money;" but it was worse to put such words on the lips of God as a revelation to explain the fiasco.

Under what head must the Toronto "revelation" be put? It was not of God; yet Joseph got it in the same way he did his other revelations. Was it of the devil? I think not. His Satanic Majesty would have worked against his interests had the copyright been sold and the book, perhaps, never published, or, if published, would simply have been as a book of fiction. Then the revelation must have been of man, and that man Joseph Smith, and the motive money-"considerable money."

I would regard it a privilege and a pleasure to go through the "Book of Commandments" with a seer, or an elder, and have him put a proper tag on the many revelations (?) Joseph had. The last was a "makeshift" and of man, and that man Joseph Smith. The devil is not a "revelator;" man is not. Neither can be. Hence, it was a fake revelation that he put on God to satisfy his grieved brethren. Did he satisfy them? He did not, Whitmer being judge.

I have a note from Dr. A. B. Morris, of Valdosta, Ga., which I think wise to insert here:

"Joseph Smith is the mainspring of the Mormon watch. I am sorry that the people of Carthage, III., lost their heads and shot him. He would have soon killed Mormonism with his licentiousness and thievery. But killed, he became a martyr, and that is the chief secret of the perpetuity of their fake system of religion—the foundation upon which the whole superstructure rests. The effort of every anti-Mormon worker should be concentrated against the foundation. Destroy it, and the superstructure will tumble into ruin."

With Smith revealed He is right. in his true colors, as a man and as a prophet, there is no foundation for any other conclusion than that the "system was conceived in sin, born of iniquity, and perpetuated through fraud and deceit."

Was Joseph Smith a prophet? The fact established that he was not cuts the taproot of the tree of Mormonism, and it withers and dies too dead to even send out "suckers" from the

TETTERINE

Makes hair beautiful, free from dandruff, and keeps the scalp healthy.

see at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Gs.

PHE RELIEF.

No matter what kind of piles you may have no matter how serious the case !! three jars of Hancock's Pile Remedy does not cure you, we will retund your money. Price, 50 cents a jar. At your druggist's or

HANCOCK CHEMICAL COMPANY. Oxford, N. C.

A LETTER FOR WOMEN

From a Woman Whose Serious Illness Was Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Garnett, Kas.—"I first took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a complete nervous breakdown follow-ing the birth of my oldest child. up too soon which caused serious fe-male trouble, I was so weak that I was not able to be on my feet but very little and could not do my housework at all. I housework at all. I had a bad pain in my left side and it would pain terribly if I stepped off a nurb-stone. One day one of your bookiets was thrown in the yard and I read every word in it. There were so many who had been helped by your medicine that I wanted to try it and my husband went to town and got me a bottle. It seemed as though I felt relief after the second dose, so I kept on until I had taken five bottles and by that time I was as well as I could wish. About a year later I gave birth to a ten pound boy, and have had two more children since and my health has been fine. If I ever have trouble of any kind I am going to take your medicine for I give it all the praise for my good health. I always recommend your medicine whenever I can."—Mrs. Eva E. Shay, Gornett, Kansas. that I wanted to try it and my husband

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents-Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orehard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freekles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.

"The Model Church," by G. C. Brewer, treats of live subjects, and is a book that should be distributed among the churches. This book has been almost universally commended and is being read with interest by many people. Price, $1.

Sign Your Name Here

If you suffer with any curable disease that does not seem to be benefited by drugs, such as dyspersia, indigestion, sick headache, neuralgia, rheumatism, liver or kidney diseases, or any ailment involving impure blood, you are cordially invited to accept the liberal offer made below. It is a mistake to assume that your case is incurable simply because remedies prepared by human skill have not seemed to benefit you. Put your faith in nature, accept this offer, and you will never have cause to regret it.

I believe this is the most wonderful mineral spring that has ever been disfor its waters have either covered. restored or benefited tens of thousands who have accepted my offer. Match your faith in this spring against my pocketbook; and if the water does not relieve your case, I will make no charge for it. Clip this notice, sign your name, inclose the amount, and let this wonderful water begin its restorative work in you as it has in thousands of others.

Shivar Spring, Box 21A, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your offer and inclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Spring Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send; and if it fails to benefit my case, you agree to refund the price in full upon re-ceipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return within a month.

Name
Address
Shipping Point

Is Applied. Fragrant and Soothing. 60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

FREE Booklet explaining cause of this disease and how it can be treated successfully at home. Sent in plain, sealed envelope. Write for yours today. Dept. F-29. Dr. W. J. McCrary, Inc., Carbon Hill, Ala.

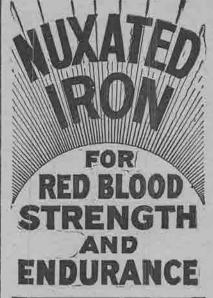

A Few Things.

BY W. S. VICKREY.

The courts of our country require all legatees of a man's will to accept the terms therein expressed without any addition thereto or subtraction therefrom. In other words, what is not stated in it is held as binding as the items specified in writing. This is true of all wills adjudged valid by all the courts having jurisdiction in such cases. But it is quite different as to God's will. Even the courts, that will not permit any changes in a man's will, recognize the right (?), or privilege, of making as many changes in God's will as men may see proper to do. And this is as It should be, for the laws of our country could not be framed so as to allow full religious liberty and at the same time require the courts to interfere with such liberties. The religious class of people in our country consider themselves the most law-abiding, and would scorn the idea that they are prompted to be thus through fear of punishment. But why is it that this same class of people will change God's law with impunity-a thing they would not dare to do with the laws of the country? Some of our brethren are guilty of this very thing. They must have less regard for God's laws than they have for the laws enacted by men. If this is not the cause, what is? There is no authority to punish violations of divine laws on earth, but punishment is expected to follow infractions of the laws of the country; and this fact must account for the preference entertained for human statutes. But all should realize the all-important truth that a time will come when the divine laws will be fully vindicated and every violation punished without mercy. I sincerely wish that this truth could be indelibly stamped on the memory of every member of the church of Christ Jesus-viz.: The silence of the New Testament, as to how persons may become members of the church and as to all the work and worship in the church, is as binding as the most positive commands; and we may expect to be punished for doing anything not commanded as work and worship just as certainly as for refusing to obey any written command. Just what is given, by precept, example, or necessary inference, must be strictly and faithfully followed, if we desire and expect an eternal inheritance.

Many of us do not realize our indebtedness and obligation to our Heavenly Father and loving Savior, and will be woefully disappointed at the judgment day unless we change for the better. Many of us spend dollars for pleasures and fleshly gratifications and contribute pennies to the

OVER 3.000.000 PEOPLE USE IT ANNUALLY

MR. DODSON WARNS USERS OF CALOMEL

Says Drug Acts Like Dynamite on Liver and You Lose a Day's Work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone-a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfeetly harmless.

fectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you. waiting for you.

Soothes Heals

As well as all other skin injuries.

Keep it handy for emergencies 50c and $1.09 at your druggist's. Ka-Dene Soap, applied first, cleanses and disinfects. Dealers write for special proposition.

THE KA-DENE MED. CO., Nashville, Tenn.

"Just Put Ka-Dene on it."

cause of Christianity. "He that soweth to the flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption." Hundreds of dollars are freely given to "have a good time"visiting, attending "movies" that are sometimes shameful exhibitions, buying cars, building costly homes and furnishings to correspond, etc., but the Lord's work is neglected as if of little importance. Such persons are surely "sowing to the flesh," and will most assuredly reap the fearful consequences of their sowing. Such persons show plainly that the gratification of their fleshly desires is more important to them than God's service. Some members, who are engaged in different vocations, it seems to me, say to the Lord by their actions: "Lord, I can't afford to neglect my business to look after yours; for mine is of more importance to me than yours, and you must get others to attend to yours for you if you want it done," What a great misfortune it be to some that God has not made arrangements for them to pass their lives as they please, and then allow them to purchase an entrance ticket into heaven! Brethren should be very, very careful, for God is not and cannot be deceived. If our contributions to the Lord's cause are not greater than our expenditures for pleasures and fleshly gratifications, we need not expect any favors from him, for he will not accept a divided service. He requires the best of everything and will not be satisfied with less, and all who refuse to give to Him the service he demands will be woefully disappointed at last. Of course, he is willing for us to have and enjoy all that is necessary in this life; but we must distinguish between what is needed for our health and comfort and our fleshly desires. God's people should be the happiest of any on earth, and they should manifest it to the world; but not in revelry and deviltry, as do those of Satan's kingdom.

We cannot copy the great work which Christ did for the world, but we may copy his Spirit. The smallest trickle of water down a city gutter will carve out of the mud at its side little banks and cliffs, and exhibit all the phenomena of erosion on the largest scale, as the Mississippi does over half a continent, and the tiniest wave in a basin will fall into the same curves as the billows of midocean .-Alexander Maclaren.

The church of the living God must fulfill its mission if scientific materialism is not again to lure men away from the truth which will make them free.-Selected.

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be very well described as "a carbonated fruit-flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea—1 cupful 1.54 gr. (hot) (5 fl. oz.) Green tea-1 glassful. --- 2.02 gr. (8 fl. oz., exclusive of ice) (cold)

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity, and also explains, in part, the wide popularity of Coca-Cola, whose refreshing principle is dérived from the tea leaf.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

The Coca-Cola Co., Dept. J, Atlanta, Ga., U.S.A.

NERVOUS DISEASES

We have reprinted from a leading Health Magazine a series of articles by Doctor Biggs treating on Nervous Debility, Melancholia, all forms of Neurasthenia, Nervous Dyspepsia, and other nervous diseases. The articles explain the cause of these allments and fully describe the treatment employed at the Biggs Saultarium in such cases.

A copy of the pamphlet will be sent FREE to any address on request.

THE BIGGS SANITARIUM, Asheville, N. C.

SOLD FOR SO YEARS For MALARIA, CHILLS and FEVER

Also a Fine General Strengthening Tonic. SOLD BY ALL DRUG STORES

Piles Cured Dr. A. Upham's valuable electuary or internal remedy for PILES. CURES all kinds of PILES, old or new cases. It cradicates the disease from the system. If your druggist cannot supply you, send $1.00 for trial treatment, 6 packages for $5.00. Guaranteed, if not satisfied money back. Thousands of satisfied patients all over the United States. References any Bank, Postmaster or City officials.

Why Suffer? Get CURED. J. C. & A. HALL, Oxford, N. C.

The Master's Vineyard

Alabama.

Snowdoun, June 9.—Since returning from David Lipscomb College, I am giving as many Sundays as I can to the church at Highland Avenue, Montgomery, until they can get a man to take Brother McBroom's place. One Sunday I preach at Liberty.—Guy Renfro.

Millville, June 8.—1 filled my regular appointment at Locust Bayou last Lord's day, preaching to two large audiences. At the evening service a young lady made the good confession, and at the water four others came forward and confessed their faith in Christ and were baptized. My work here has been very pleasant and continues with growing interest. I will go to Dubach, La., for a meeting the first Sunday in July, then to Mississippi and Tennessee.—R. L. Colley.

Oklahoma.

Muskogee, June 8.—I was with the brethren at Lenna on the fourth Lord's day in May. The fifth Sunday found me at Fayetteville, Ark., where Brother John T. Hinds lived for so long. The church invited me back for a five-weeks' meeting this summer, provided I can get some other loyal preacher to take some work I had already promised to do. I spent last Sunday with my home church (East Okmulgee Avenue), and baptized one young man.—W. L. Oliphant.

Braman, June 9.—The work in Oklahoma is progressing nicely. Brother H. K. Walling dropped in last Lord'sday morning and delivered two enthuslastic addresses—at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M. The congregation sent the congregation at Palestine, Texas, through Brother Walling, fifty dollars toward building their meetinghouse. On Lord's day wife and I drove five miles out in the country to Brother George Austin's home, where the writer united Sister Mary N. Austin and Mr. Isaac Shaffner in the holy bonds of matrimony.—W. T. Hines.

Texas.

Vernon, June 7.—Brother R. D. Smith, of Denton, closed a good meeting in this city last night, with six additions. Brother Smith's preaching was fine, and good will follow his work.—Tom Watker.

Fort Worth, June 7.—I am leaving this afternoon for Leslie, Ark., for a ten-days' meeting, after which I will go to Alma, Ark., for my next meeting. This will be my third successive meeting with the church there. I have learned to love the brethren there very much for their loyalty to the truth.—J. A. Cullum.

Itasea, June 4.—I was with the church in Keller the fifth Sunday in May. The church there is poor in this world's goods and few in numbers, but rich in faith. They have been enjoying the labors of Brethren N. L. Clark and Tice Elkins, and, of course, have been ably taught. While in Keller I solemnized the rites of matrimony between Brother J. V. Knox and Miss Ruth Ragsdale. Brother Knox is one of the earnest workers in the Keller church. The church in Itasea continues to increase in interest and the attendance is steadily growing.—W. P. Skagss.

Fort Worth, June 7.—Yesterday was one more glad day for us at Southside-Central Church. Brother F. L. Rowe, of Cincinnati, Ohio, was with us. He preached for us at 11 A.M., and his sermon was inspiring. We went to Smithfield in the afternoon, and Brother Rowe and I talked a little for the brethren there. Brother Ed Stewart, who preaches there twice a month, was there yesterday. I will begin a mission meeting in the Vanzandt addition to Fort Worth next Monday night. The work here is rapidly getting better, and I am greatly encouraged. I preached at Kellar last Wednesday night, and baptized two young people.—Tice Elkins.

Houston, June 5 .- My work with the First church of Christ, of this city, is growing in interest, with increasing attendance and with additions often. Last Lord's day I baptized a fine man, the head of a family, and on the fourth Lord's day in May I baptized another, and there is another to be baptized on Lord's day. The interest among the members is growing and we now have much Bible reading in the congregation. Brother Smith and I are now engaged in a tent meeting, and the attendance to date has been excellent, with one confession and one by letter. We are much encouraged with the outlook for the cause in Houston. Brother Shelton is laboring with the Central Church while Brother Dunn is away in meetings. Brother Shelton is a new man to Texas, but I am sure that he is a safe teacher and that he will be a valuable man to the cause here. We like him, Brother C. R. Nichol will be with the Heights Church, beginning the second Lord's day in June, for a siege of three weeks, and we are expecting a feast of good things. Let us labor while it is day,— J. H. Lawson.

To live is hard; and there is not one of us, I fancy, who has not again and again been tempted to despair of life when he has dared to look upon its dark mysteries; but again, there is not one of us who has not found a great sorrow, a great disappointment, a great trial, an avenue to unexpected joy.—Canon Westcott.

ICE CREAM

When you make ice cream don't try the old way, but use

Jell-0 Ice Cream Powder

Stir the powder in a quart of milk, without adding anything else at all, and then freeze it, and you will have nearly two quarts of delicious ice cream, at a very low cost.

No eggs or sugar needed, but only the Jell-O Ice Cream Powder and the milk. That's the way to make ice cream. Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon and Chocolate flavors and Unflavored.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make money—
ittlize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few cairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right. Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Pigeons No. 6." Carelina Pigeon Plans. Clinton, S. C.

SAVE SHOES AND STOCKINGS

They will last twice as long if you shake into your shoes ALLEN'S FOOT-BASE, the antiseptic, healing powder for the feel. It takes away the sting of corns, bunions, callouses, sore, aching, swollen, tender feet, Allen's Foot-Base stops the friction which causes the wear on shoes and stockings, saves expense, and makes walking a delight. Shake it into your shoes, sprinkle it in the foot bath. Sold everywhere.

"Diamond Dyes" No Risk Then!

Don't Spoil or Streak Material in Dyes that Fade or Run

Fach package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye a new rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, drapenes, coverings, whether wool, silk, lines, cotton or mixed goods.

linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist has color card.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Volume LXII. No. 26.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JUNE 24, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

SCIENCE AND THE BIBLE	60
OUR CONTRIBUTORS.	81
GEORGIA AND THE FAR SOUTHERN FIELD.	61
CONTRACTOR OF STATE OF STATE OF STATE OF STATE OF STATE OF	82
TRAINING LITTLE CHILDREN	02:
	62
FROM ANOTHER VIEWPOINT	621
COLUMN TO COLUMN TO MY A DISTRICT CARD ME LAST CARD CA	600
THE PROBLEM NATURE UP MAN INC. Discourses of the contraction of the co	256
THE DOUBLE NATURE OF MAN (NO. 5)	3000
NATIONAL PROPERTY AND THE PROPERTY OF THE PARTY OF THE PA	450
MEETING AT DAYTON, OHIO
THE MUSKOGEE MEETING	63:
THE CHURCH AT DUNCAN ARIZ	3/30

SCIENCE AND THE BIBLE.

It shall be my purpose in this article to describe and illustrate the use of the Bible in its most helpful relationship to science, and particularly toward sociology, which many consider to be the crown of all the sciences. Before entering into the discussion proper, let us note some popular misconceptions of the place really occupied by the Bible in the great field of scientific research. There are at least three important fallacies that need to be exposed.

(1) The Bible is opposed to science. Some contend that the Bible in its teachings discourages, if it does not prohibit, scientific investigation, and especially such as may likely disprove its history or its tenets. It is true that the Bible inveighs against vain philosophy and science "falsely so called;" but there is nowhere any stricture against real science. The Bible, like any other sensible book, is opposed to tomfoolery and humbuggery, but it encourages honest thought and experimentation. To say that the Bible is opposed to science is just another way of saying it is opposed to thinking. Fortunately, this view is not held by a large number of people, and would, perhaps, disappear altogether were it not for the popes who sit in high places of ecclesiastical authority and legislate against what they are pleased to call the "Modernist Movement." Certainly it is not illicit for reason to touch the mysteries of religion. In his "Philosophy of the Christian Religion," A. M. Fairbairn truly says: "The men who defend faith must think as well as the men who oppose it." Paul says ours is a "reasonable service."

(2) Science is opposed to the Bible. We would be surprised to learn just how many people of average intelligence about other matters hold to this erroneous view. The fallacy in this instance is based upon ignorance as to the real meaning of science. Fundamentally, it is a quest for laws. Descartes defined it as "the reduction of the unknown to the known, of the inexplicable to the explicable, of the obscure to the evident." The Bible is directed to the same goal—namely, to truth. To say that science is opposed to the Bible is to discount one of Jesus' fundamental teachings to the effect that truth makes men free. Of course he referred to a higher quality of truth than that usually sought by the scientist. But his principle is applicable to all truth, so far as the advantage of knowledge over ignorance is concerned.

Historically, the idea that scientists find a keen delight in undermining the Bible is easily refuted. Here we should distinguish between believers, agnostics, and infidels. The number of agnostics or skeptics among the truly great scientists is comparatively small; the number of infidels is fewer still; but the number of believers is very large. Professor Dana, the eminent geologist, bespeaks the sentiment of most of the scientific leaders in these words: "That grand old Book of God still stands; and this old earth, the more its leaves are turned over and pendered, the more it will sustain and illustrate the sacred word." In the Bodleian Library, in Oxford, England, is a paper signed by five hundred and ninety-seven scientific men, and they declare in that paper: "We conceive that It is impossible for the word of God as written in the book of nature and God's word written in the Holy Scriptures to contradict one another," This historic document suggests the important truth that the truly great are never bigoted, they never claim infallibility. Some scientific theories may be incorrect and misleading; but usually when a great scientific law is developed at the cost of years of study and research, it will stand the crucial test of criticism from all sides and will give no offense to the Bible lover. Religion, which is the best product of the Bible, rests upon faith. No one would care to stake his life and eternal welfare upon a mere fantasy of a supposed soul. The foundations of faith must be deep and firm. Science, too, in all of its experimentation, rests upon faith. In view of this analogy, an eminent preacher has concluded that "the forlorn effort to divorce religion and science results simply in the murder of both."

3. The Bible is the best textbook. There are many enthusiasts who claim that the Bible is the most authoritative textbook upon any subject. True enough, the Bible is very comprehensive in its teachings. Its great depth is only paralleled by its marvelous scope. But the Bible was never intended as a textbook on any subject outside of the spiritual and ethical realms.

What, then, is the true relation of the Bible to scientific study? The best answer is to describe it as a source book from which any or all scientists, who are working along the right lines, may find valuable material for constructive and illustrative purposes. As a reference book of this sort, its value is unequaled. Furthermore, it enjoys an unrivaled precedence in point of antiquity and circulation. The Bible is not a history, and yet it contains the foundation of all history. It is not a book of poetry, and yet the world has hardly remembered the name of a single poet who was not inspired by it. It is not a law book; but what principle of law is found in Blackstone that is not a development of the law of Moses? It is not a philosophical work, and yet it treats the most profound subjects of thought.

It has been my observation that scientific writers use the Bible sparingly, but, when used, the majority treat it with profound respect.

Brother Dunn's War Service.

BY ELKANAH.

Brother John E. Dunn went to war in 1917-1918 as a noncombatant, a religious worker, having the permission and the encouragement of government and military authorities. His course has provoked some discussion and unfavorable criticism. This article is written not to increase, but to calm, the dissatisfaction arising from his having gone.

It appears to the writer that a desire to condemn war and an anxiety lest the church be contaminated by the spirit of officialdom, either religious or political, have obscured the main point. Brother Dunn hates war. Nobody can doubt this who read his article in the Gospel Advocate against compulsory military training. Likewise, I am confident that he surrendered no part of the independence in spiritual matters which it is the right and duty of every Christian to exercise.

The question is, did Brother Dunn do wrong in putting himself into a position where he could lead and strengthen our sons, our brothers, our neighbor boys, in the great crisis facing them? Did he do wrong in living on terms of intimacy with boys and men who were away from home and home influences, who were in anti-Christian surroundings, and who were being daily confronted with every form of vice? Did he do wrong in exhorting Christians in uniform to be firm in the faith and to resist the forces of evil, or sinners with whom he was necessarily thrown into close contact to repent and obey? Did he do wrong in contending with the very authorities by whose leave he was there for better moral conditions near the canton-ments?

If Brother Dunn and men like him had not done these things, would they have been done? Who caused it that the American army remained the freest from disease of any ever organized, and that cities having camps were made to purge themselves for the protection of the soldier boys? The combined sentiment and action of all moral and Christian agencies in America. Does the church of Christ regret having aided in this? Could Christians have accepted this service from the denominations, from semi-religious and social organizations, for Christian boys, while themselves refusing to contribute anything toward the protection and salvation of the sons of others and their own sons as well?

The question is not, should these boys have gone to war? We were past that stage. They had already volunteered, many had. Yet many more were drafted and accepted service. These boys and men were firm in the determination to answer the call of the nation. No preaching nor teaching nor praying then could have stopped them. They were misguided, it is argued. That is not the question. Was it wrong for a Christian to go along with them, endure with them, steady them, furnish them the bread of life?

Brother Dunn went to war clad in the armor of God. For God he battled against Satan. He went under an arrangement not ideal, perhaps, but he went in the only way he was allowed to go. He ministered to American men and boys, our own and other people's, in a period of strain and sorrow. The writer believes that in so doing he pleased God.

This article is prompted by a desire to do good and by a knowledge of camp conditions and soldier needs acquired by close study of army life extending over three years.

(We are publishing the foregoing from "Elkanah," as no one should intentionally do Brother Dunn an injustice. A private letter from Brother Dunn brings the information that he did not receive any two hundred dollars a month from the Y. M. C. A., and denies that he ever turned to the Y. M. C. A. for support. From him I understand he voluntarily went to the army camp, sent by the church at Cookeville, Tenn. The church at Cookeville supported his family until it had assurances that the Y. M. C. A. would support him. Brother Elam had this information when he wrote what he did; but it now appears from Brother Dunn's statement that these assurances miscarried. The war is over, and Christians should devote their talents and energies to something more edifying. Doubtless we all made mistakes, for only dead men make no mistakes. The Bible teaching against war should be presented vigorously; but there is no necessity for condemning men who did what they understood God wanted them to do, unless in so doing they contravened the clearly revealed law of God. Let us forget the things that are past and move forward to purer and nobler things.-EDITOR.]

He Sat at the Wrong Table.

BY F. W. SMITH.

The following is somewhat antiquated, having occurred in the early part of last year, but is given for the lesson it teaches:

On Sunday morning Rev. H. T. Crumpton tendered his resignation as pastor of the first Baptist Church of this city, at the solicitation of the majority of the deacons of the church.

We do not desire to go into the details of the circumstances which have brought about the severance of the pastor from his flock. This is a matter, as we understand, of creed, and is too far removed from our jurisdiction as a newspaper.

But we do know our friend, Pastor Crumpton, to be a man of exceptional worth, and in this hour of sorrow, disappointment, and heavy rebuke our heart goes out to him, and we offer the consideration that when the days were dark in our own life, when the shadows fell heavy around the hearthstone, and the Grim Reaper passed over and left only a trace of those who were once with us, this man of God came to us and offered his tender sympathy and Christian prayers, and the influence of these were like a ray of light in a darkened cell. We knew his motives were not selfish, nor his intention ir sincere.

This note of praise is from one of the largest secular papers in Northern Arkansas. The offense against the Baptist Church for which the "pastor" was asked to tender his resignation is expressed by himself thus:

The action of the First Baptist Church in accepting my resignation last Sunday morning should be presented in its true light, that no misconstruction be placed upon the course pursued.

I partook of the Lord's Supper with the good people of another faith and order. This is contrary to custom of the Baptist Church in Arkansas. But it is practiced elsewhere. Among prominent ministers of this type, I may mention Dr. Len G. Broughton, Dr. A. C. Dixon, and Charles H. Spurgeon. However, that is not the question. I believe in brotherly love and Christian fellowship and have always thought our position wrong, but, on the basis of majority rule, I have held with the old teaching, accepting, if not cordially embracing. I believe the time has come for God's people to pull together and not apart. I believe in the congregation rather than the segregation of the saints. The day of creedal demands is in the past. Once it was: "What do you believe?" Then came another period when the emphatic question was: "How do you feel?" To-day it is: "How do you live?" This last includes the other two. I am modern in my views, progressive in my plans, and try to be like my Master in spirit.

There is no friction or personal unpleasantness prompting the church's action. It was for the sake of doctrinal conformity. I believe in personal freedom and soul liberty and love my fellows.

Abou Ben Adhem's name led all the rest because he loved his fellow men. May his tribe increase! Nobody is mad, and I trust no spiritual setback shall now or ever come to this noble, true, blessed little flock, all of whom I love. Sincerely, H. T. CRUMPTON, Ex-Pastor.

We have in the foregoing excerpt some food for thought and material for some preachment. In the first place, there is not one word of complaint from any source against the moral character of this Baptist minister; but, on the other hand, he was of good report from those without the Baptist fold. His sole offense against the church to which he ministered was sitting at the wrong table in commemorating the Lord's death. He says: "I partook of the Lord's Supper with the good people of another faith and order." Now, if what he partook of was "the Lord's Supper," and he was a child of God, what could have been wrong in his action? Is not the Lord's Supper for God's children? Again I ask, what made it wrong for Mr. Crumpton to do as he did? Let him tell us: "This was contrary to custom of the Baptist Church in Arkansas." Let us look at that custom a little. Where did the Baptist Church in Arkansas, or anywhere else, as to that matter, get such a custom? Most certainly they did not get it from the New Testament, for that book knows nothing of any such thing as the Baptist Church, and much less of "partaking of the Lord's Supper with the good people of another faith and order." There were only two classes in those days-viz., Christians and those in the world-and the idea of "people of another faith and order" was nelther mentioned nor thought of. There was only one faith (Eph. 4: 5) and only one church or body (Eph. 4: 4). The conclusion is irresistible, then, that this Baptist custom, which Mr. Crumpton violated, originated since the days of the New Testament; and no matter in what age of the world nor by whom it originated, it should be repudiated because not found in the word of God. It will be observed that Mr. Crumpton localized this custom, confining it to the Baptist Church of Arkansas, and instanced as proof that Len G. Broughton, A. C. Dixon, and Charles H. Spurgeon did not observe such a custom. Friend Crumpton rated himself a little too high in putting himself in a class with those celebrities of the Baptist Church. Those men could do as they pleased, and the Baptist Church was not big enough to bind their man-made custom regarding the Lord's Supper on them. The Baptist Church can handle small men, such as Mr. Crumpton and hosts of others; but Broughton, Dixon, and their stamp snap their fingers at Baptist customs when it suits them, and go on preaching to thousands of people.

But Mr. Crumpton displays a gross inconsistency when he says: "I have always thought our position wrong, but, on the basis of majority rule, I have held with the old teaching, accepting, if not cordially embracing." What sort of a religion is that? Here is a man assuming the rôle of a religious teacher doing things in religion on no higher authority than "the basis of majority rule!" The Bible teaches that "whatsoever is not of faith is sin" (Rom, 14: 23), and that we must walk by faith (2 Cor. 5: 7) in the service and worship of God. Again, we are told that whatsoever we do, in word or in deed, we must do all in the name-that is, by the authority-of Christ. (Col. 3: 17.) Majority rule may do in politics and other worldly institutions, but there is not so much as even toe-hold in the word of God for such a rule. Majority rule can have no place in even the smallest matter in the worship and service of our God, and all such procedure is usurping the prerogatives of Almighty God by puny man in assuming to legislate in religious and spiritual matters. The idea of Mr. Crumpton or any one else doing a thing in religion which he or they believe to be wrong shows a strange conception of Christianity and moral philosophy. But this is exactly what a certain class of religionists ask others to do who oppose instrumental music in the worship; and because they refuse to stulify their conscience they are charged with making such music a test of fellowship.

One more peep at that custom in the Baptist Church born of "majority rule." See where it places our Baptist friends. They freely admit that people of "another faith and order" are Christians—children of God, redeemed by the blood of Christ; but they will not let these children of God eat at their Father's table! Why? Because of water—the water of baptism; and yet they tell us that baptism has nothing to do with one's salvation. I know of no people on this earth who lay more stress on water than the Baptists, and yet with them it cuts no figure in the matter of salvation.

Friend Crumpton sat at the wrong table. He must sit at a Baptist table or not stand in a Baptist pulpit.

Reminiscences.

BY JAMES E. SCOBEY.

Recently I went to Huntland to fill an appointment which had been made for me to preach there. I left Nashville on the 8:30 A.M. train of the Nashville, Chattanooga & St. Louis Railway and arrived at Huntland about 1 P.M., stopping, by invitation, at the home of Hon. H. R. Moore, an old Franklin College schoolmate. It had been arranged that Brother J. O. Blaine, another old schoolmate, should accompany me, but business engagements prevented his going with me; but he came on the afternoon train.

We found our old friend in pretty good health, considering the circumstance of his being subject to a slight attack of paralysis in the early winter, from which it appeared to me he had almost, if not entirely, recovered. His good wife, who was a pupil of the beloved Charlotte Fanning at Franklin College, has excellent health, and, as Blaine said, "she is pert as a cricket." Brother Moore and his wife have reared a large family of children to manhood and womanhood. They have all married and are living in different States. They have one son, Brother Knox Moore, who lives near them.

It was a really enjoyable occasion, as we old people lived over again our young school days, rehearing many incidents, some grave, but many gay, with others exceedingly ludicrous.

We discussed the characteristics of "Old Boss"—President Fanning; and we concluded that for strong intellectual ability he was the foremost of his age, with none succeeding him his equal; that his comprehensive view of the Divine Oracles was such as enabled him to lay the foundation upon which others now stand, who maintain that the word of God, without addition to, or subtraction from, or modification of it in any way, furnishes man all that is needed in the work of life, necessary to his own safety or the good of humanity, for time and eternity.

We talked of Prof. William Lipscomb, Prof. Frank Carmack, Prof. Jack Fanning, and other teachers in the college. All these have passed over the river. They rest from their labors, and their works do follow them. But I must not omit to say that we had much to say about Mrs. Fanning, but more of the pretty, attractive girls who were in her school; for both Moore and I got, each, one of them to consent to marry us. He married Miss Annie Hunt; and I, Miss Sarah Alice Harris. Miss Hunt's mother was a Lipscomb. The town of Huntland takes its name from her father, who was about the first settler in that vicinity. It was, indeed, a pleasant evening's chat, and a little late we retired for the night to sleep.

Sunday morning came, and after a generous breakfast there was more talk, but mostly of the religious teachings of the present age—infidelity, higher criticism, etc. The time came for Sunday school, and Brother Moore, with his Book in hand, marched off, in company with Brother Blaine, to the church house not far away to meet and instruct his Bible class. Having to do the preaching, I did not follow immediately, as I wished a little time to collect a few thoughts on the subject on which I purposed to speak. However, I soon went over to the church, and within there was a busy scene. Brother Moore had a large class before him, to which he was propounding questions and giving explanations in as vigorous style as if he were a much younger man. There were other classes, all of which seemed to be interestingly busy.

I preached both morning and evening. At the morning service there was a good congregation in numbers. At the evening service the house was nearly full. From my observations and from what I learned from others, I should think the Huntland congregation may be said to be doing well.

There was a pleasant circumstance coincident with our visit to Brother Moore. That Sunday was his birthday. He passed the eighty-seventh milepost in his life's journey. His wife and one of his daughters, who was staying a while with her parents, had prepared a nice birthday dinner. Besides the daughter, there were seated at the table five persons who had been students at Franklin College. J. O. Blaine, eighty-five; John Lipscomb (brother of Granville Lipscomb), eighty-two; H. R. Moore, eighty-seven; Mrs. Moore, eighty; and James E. Scobey, eighty-six. Of Franklin College students now living, we could call to mind only about ten. Of all the men educated there, who became preachers, only two are now living-E. G. Sewell and the writer. Many became preachers, and only two or three ever ceased to preach the pure, simple, effective gospel of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ, and went off after the societies, organs, etc.-the commandments or teachings of men. And now to God, our dear Heavenly Father, through Jesus Christ our Savior, we lift our hearts in thanksgiving and praise for his tender care over us in the long journey of our lives. To the only wise God, our Savior, be henor, glory, majesty, and power forever.

Campbell's Estimate of Sir Walter Scott. BY JAMES A. ALLEN.

Perhaps no book was ever written about which was no good. Something can be learned from even the most veritable trash among the yellow-backs. The most blasphemous productions of Robert Ingersoll sparkle with an eloquence that was stolen from the Bible. But in the great mass of reading trash, so ravenously devoured by the publie, there predominates an insidious and most subtle poison. Good fiction is well enough in its place, and possibly no man's education is complete without it. But there is a vast distinction between the proper use of it and that exhibited by novel-soaked dupes who snook over fastidious and romantic tales until their taste for beneficial reading is destroyed. Readers may find some interest in the following editorial on the death of Sir Walter Scott, written by Alexander Campbell, and transcribed from Mr. Campbell's magazine, the Millennial Harbinger, for January,

Sir Walter Scott, the star that beamed with such effulgence in the heavens of romance, has vanished from the gaze of mortals. The lovers of poetry and fiction are in deep mourning, and all the votaries of Waverley are clothed in sadness. The fall of a monarch from the giddy heights of his ambition, or the demise of some mighty chief who guided the destinies of nations, could not call forth such a display of sorrow as the exit of this most accomplished story-teller. The genius, the admirable genius, of the author of fifty tales of fashion dwells upon the tongues of all the young misses and masters who riot upon the delicious products of imagination. The veteran maids and the ruthless old fellows, who frequent enchanted fields and castles, exclaim that the immortal author of a hundred romantic visions has "paid the debt of nature," and that mortal eyes shall never see his like again. The critics and reviewers, the poetasters and novelists, the romancers and fabulists are in bitterness because their model is no more—because this liberal purveyor for their amusement has left the world of shadows and has mingled with the nations of the dead in the world of realities.

The world often most admires that which has the least true merit. If some extraordinary genius, or some giant of prodigious stature, appear upon the stage, the pigmies are all amazed, and know not how to limit their admiration. But if real goodness, which is only another name for real greatness, happen to appear among us, only one in a thousand sees anything divine in it. Yet-even the giddy multitude, in some reflecting moment, is constrained to admit that no person is worthy of praise for his intellectual stature more than for his animal dimensions, and that matters of choice, and not of contingence, are the proper subjects of praise or blame.

But no man is a scholar, a poet, or an author, by the mere force of genius. Much labor, care, and toll are necessary to furnish the most splendid genius with the materials for future creations. Grant all this, and more: the miser, too, is laborious; so are all the votaries of pleasure. Neither talent nor toll, apart or united, are worthy of admiration, unless consecrated to some high end, pregnant with real good to man.

To whom, then, let us ask, is the memory of Sir Walter Scott most dear? To those, doubtless, to whom the labors of his pen administered the most gratification. And who are they?

We ask not whether he offered incense to the Whigs or Tories or labored to prop the falling glories of the British throne in his "Life of Napoleon." We ask not whether he sought to rivet again the chains of a heartless hierarchy upon the lacerated necks of an oppressed people. We do not inquire whether he labored to erase from the escutcheons of English lords and Scottish peers the stigma of their ancestors, either in his poems or his novels; but we ask, To what taste, and to what fashion, and to what sort of minds, did he devote the whole labors of his life? The airy, frothy, and fantastic minds of those who live without an object and die without a hope.

But "he wrote some sermons." So did the author of

But "he wrote some sermons." So did the author of "Tristram Shandy." and the far-famed Swift. Yes, these versatile genii have ministered to the stage, the toilet, and the pulpit with equal impartiality and eclat. They have made the theaters resound with acclamations; and on Sundays their sermons, well pronounced, have extorted from the eyes of sinners tears of the deepest contrition. Admirable men! No wonder the glare of their genius so dazzles the eyes of their admirers that they cannot see objects of real worth.

The world, however, knows how to appreciate them that appreciate it, and will be lavish of its praises upon them who minister to its taste. But it has no honors nor encomiums for them who honor God and their own race The closest imitator of the great model of every perfection the most devoted follower of the Savior of the who spends his days and nights in acts of human kindness, who points the perishing sinner to the Lamb of God, who visits the abodes of affliction and distress, who wipes the tear of misery from the cheek of woe and pours the wine and oil of Christian sympathy into the wounds and bruises of the unfortunate-gives up the ghost, and the world is No panegyrist dilates upon his excellencies or recounts his hundred acts of heaven-born charity, the least of which will shine with incomparably superior splendor in the true heaven of real glory than ever shone this meteor ir the ideal heavens of the idolaters of fiction.

It is thus, however, the god of this world holds in homage to himself the sons of the flesh; and by such rewards he allures and binds to his interests the best talents, as well as the thoughtless crowds who feel not the majesty of Almighty Love and brook not submission to the Prince of Peace. Alms for the times! alas for Christian nations! when the taste and fashion, which fill the higher circles and the lofty places in society, can bestow such inmeasured praises on the inventor of a thousand fables, because he has told them in a graceful style, and allow to die neglected and unnoticed the sons of God, the unassuming disciples of Him who assiduously went about doing good.

But they are not of this world, and the world acknowledges them not. Yet there is a world where they will shine in brighter glories, where their virtues will be all appreciated; for there is one whose judgment of human worth, of true greatness and true goodness, cannot be biased by false appearances, and which infinitely preponderates over the reviews and criticisms and verdicts of the whole race of sycophants who judge after the flesh. He it is that can bestow an immortality of fame on earth and an eternity of honor in the highest heavens. It was he who said: "Wheresoever in all this world the gospel is preached, this token of love to my person, which this woman has bestowed, shall be told to her honor."

Christians let us aspire to the honor which comes from God, and let us devote our talents, whether few or many, to the honor of our Lord, and to the good of those he loves; and thus our names, though not enrolled among the mighty, and the noble, and the illustrious on earth, will be found engraven on the heart of Him who wears the eternal crown of unfading glory in the Palace of the Universe.

"These characters will fair abide, Our everlasting trust; When gems, and monuments, and crowns Are molder'd down to dust."

A Service of Remembrance.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR,

"This do in remembrance of me," Observing the Lord's Supper is peculiarly a service of remembering, of loving remembrance. Hence, those powers or faculties of the heart and soul which are employed in remembering, reflecting, visualizing, should be keenly alert and active during the service. I think the worshiper who has the greater power of concentration and reflection, and who employs that faculty, will be able to get greater spiritual benefits out of the service than those more deficient in this spiritual asset.

This is not a time to look forward, to concern oneself with the problem and responsibilities of the future; but it is a time to look backward—a time to forget the present and the future and to lose oneself in the central event of all history, the sacrifice of Jesus Christ for the redemption of the race. Our vision backward must span the centuries for nearly two thousand years and rivet upon the picture of the cross and the shed blood.

It is not a time to resolve, but a time to reflect, to visualize the atonement. Following a soul-stirring sermon we are likely to engage in reproving ourselves for the barrenness and shallowness of our past lives and in formulating devout resolutions to improve opportunities for service as they shall come in the future. This is all very commendable if engaged in at the right time. But the Lord's Supper is not the time for good resolves; it is a time to be reminded of the body and blood of Christ.

The object of our remembrance is a divine Personage, and precludes secular meditation during the service. To think of earthly things and affairs is to descerate and defile the worshiper and profane the sacred institution. Whispering and talking about temporal matters diverts the mind from divine reflection to worldly considerations and transforms the true worshiper into the vain worshiper. There is a real danger here manifest in many congregations.

We are to remember Christ. I do not think we are called upon to remember the entire scope of the earth-life of our Savior, those outstanding events which so readily come into the disciple's thoughts. I do not know that we are called upon to remember the full volume of trials and sufferings embraced in his three and a half years of personal ministry-the various crosses that he bore. But I do know that we are to remember one cross-the Roman cross which he bore to Calvary and upon which he tasted death for every man. We are to reflect upon that cross; we are to see that picture; we are to visualize that scene. We are to know nothing but Jesus, and him crucifiedwe are to remember and see nothing but the Son of man lifted up-during this service. We are to be drawn unto Christ and God by such holy reflection. We have but the one picture upon which to meditate, the picture that God in his infinite love and Christ in awful agony gave us. Jesus would not have us forget it. "There is power in the blood."

Who is it that "eateth and drinketh unworthily," save the worshiper who, because his mind is filled with carnal considerations, fails to see this picture, forgets to visualize the sacrifice whereby he is to be saved? He fails to "discern"—that is, "see by eye or understanding"—the Lord's crucified body. To fail to behold the bleeding Lamb of God is to eat and drink with the heart all wrong and the actions "unworthy" the sacred service. To discern the Lord's body is to observe the Lord's Supper in remembrance of Christ, and vice versa. May God's people learn to esteem it a very sweet service fragrant with the "rosemary of remembrance."

Short Sermons.

God would weave all our lives into patterns of loveliness. He has a perfect plan for each. It is only when we refuse to work according to his purpose that we mar the web.—Selected.

Just as sweetness comes from the bark of the cinnamon when bruised, so can the spirit of the cross of Christ bring beauty and holiness and grace out of the bruised and broken heart.—Robertson.

You need God in the very things that seem to separate you from him. You must seek him in the very places where the misery of life seems to be that he is not. You must question the stoniest paths for streams of water.—Phillips Brooks.

When in the center of the hosts we meet the One to whom all thoughts and hearts converge, there will be no need of introduction between the glorified Lord and his glorified servant, however humble he may be. The instant, rapturous recognition will be: Rabboni! Mary!—Selected.

Sunday is God's peculiar shore of life. That day is dedicated to rest and uplook. It is the particular section of time that wears the flavor of eternity. To preserve it rigidly, for noblest uses, as a portion of life peculiarly consecrated to God, is to stand by the divine program for a human life.—Selected.

A Prayer.

Ah, could I know thee, Savior mine,
As even I am known;
Could I behold thee face to face,
And not upon thy throne;
Could I but feel thee take my hand,
And hear thee whisper, "Come!"
As on a darkening road I stand,
Perplexed, and far from home—

How gladly, then, with thee for guide, I'd hasten on my way!
No doubts disturb, no ills betide,
When thou art strength and stay.

But then dost hide thy face from me,
No more I feel thee near:
No guiding touch is on my hand,
No still voice in my car:
For carthly cares have clogged my soul,
And bound my spirit's wings,
I cannot feel thy presence, Lord,
Absorbed in petty things.

Help me to walk the daily round,
My duties to fulfill,
With lifted heart and mind intent
To do thy perfect will.

Help me to bring my cares to thee,
And leave them at thy feet;
Then shall my soul be strong and free,
My purpose true and sweet.
Then shall I feel thy guiding hand,
And know thy warning voice;
Then things now dark I'll understand,
And in thy smile rejoice.

-Gene Scott Wright, in Exchange.

Letters to McHenry and Martin. No. 5.

BY J. MADISON WRIGHT.

V. CONCLUSION.

1. Who changed the Sabbath to the Lord's day?

(a) "The Catholic Church, . . . by virtue of her divine mission, changed the day from Saturday to Sunday." (Catholic Mirror.) God makes no secret of the change from the Sabbath to the first day. (See Heb. 7: 12-21.) Who changed the day? The Lord. (Verse 21.) he do? Changed the law of which the Sabbath was a part. (Verses 11, 12.) When? At the time the priesthood was changed. (Verse 12.) Why did he change it? The priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law. (Verse 12.) God says he changed it; the Catholic Church says it changed it. Which tells the truth? As the Catholic Church did not exist before the fifth century, and Christians had observed the first day of the week, Sunday, as a sacred day from Pentecost, A.D. 33, the Catholic Church's boasted change is without foundation of truth or fact.

(b) Your error is seen in taking up this false statement of Rome on which to base your doctrine of the mark of the beast. When the premises are a lie, how can the conclusion be truth? You say: "Changing the Sabbath from the seventh to the first day of the week is preëminently the mark of the beast." God says: "The mark, even the name of the beast or the number of his name." (Rev. 13: 17.) You say the mark is keeping the first day of the week. God says the "mark" is the name, or the number of the name of the beast. Which will you say is right?

2. You connect the doctrine of your tract with the everlasting gospel. (Rev. 14: 6-12.) The everlasting gospel is the everlasting covenant, the New Testament. (Heb. 13: 20.) This contains the commands of God and the testimony (which, when believed, is the faith) of Jesus. (John 12: 44-50; 1 Cor. 14: 37 to 15: 4.) This is to be preached by God's saints to-all nations. (Matt. 28: 19, 20; Mark 16: 15, 16.) Why leave this work and preach a perversion of the gospel? (Gal. 1: 6-10.)

3. You add: "The Seventh-Day Adventists, a small and persecuted people, have encircled the globe with this stirring message, and are carrying the story to every nation." As this name is not in the Bible, the thing itself cannot be there. The names God gives his people in the New Testament exactly fits them, and no other name describes them. When names outside the New Testament are needed to describe a religion, that religion is outside the New Testament. And the Saylor's words apply with awful force to all such religions. (Matt. 23: 13-15.)

4. "Our brethren of the church of Christ." "This body, the Seventh-Day Adventists." You associate yourself with two bodies. Christ has but one body. (Eph. 4: 3-6; 1 Cor. 12: 21.) To be joined to Christ and another body is spiritual adultery. (Rom. 7: 1-4.)

5. "When the apostle Paul saw the wonderful light from heaven, he could not disobey. After long and careful, prayerful study of God's word relative to his holy Sabbath, we were startled at the light that shined upon us. We could not exercise a pure conscience before God and longer trample under our feet the law of God." The light Paul saw led him to leave the law and follow the gospel. The light you saw led you to leave the gospel and go to the law. Evidently it was not the same light. The light Paul saw came from heaven. Where did yours come from? The Book Paul prayerfully and carefully studied led him to leave the Sabbath and observe the first day; the book you studied led you to leave the first day and go back to the Sabbath. Clearly it was not the same book. He studied the Bible. What book did you study? Paul must do as he did to have a pure conscience. How can you have a pure conscience and act as you did?

6. You say the law of ten commands is the law of liberty by which we are to be judged. God calls the law containing the ten commands "the yoke of bondage" (Gal. 5: 1), "the law of death" (Rom. 7: 10; 8: 2), and "the law of liberty" (James 2: 12). He explains James 1: 21-25 to be the law that saves the soul, which is the gospel of Christ.

7. "We shall continue to preach faith in Christ, repentance, confession of Christ, baptism, newness of life, remembering Christ's death, the faith." To lead souls to believe and be baptized and be saved and then teach them to keep the law is to disobey Christ yourself (Matt. 28: 20) and sever every soul thus saved from Christ. (Gal. 5: 4.) Why do such work?

8. Not "what is written in the roll of the Book" nor the Holy Spirit has led you to take this step. Whatever it was stands between you and heaven. So long as that thing influences you, so long is heaven barred against you. But God says repent and do the first works (Rev. 2: 5; Acts 8: 12-21), confess the sin (1 John 1: 9), and ask some righteous brother to pray God for your pardon (James 5: 16). God will forgive it. Not till then can you subscribe yourself, Yours for the commandments of God and the faith of Jesus."

Years ago I turned from the writings of uninspired men to the word of God to learn what God says for me to do to serve him. In this spirit I accepted your proposition to consider this tract, "In the Roll of the Book it is Written." Here is what God says in the Book. Will you stand by it?

Jehovah pleads: "I have set before thee life and death, the blessing and the curse: therefore choose life, that thou mayest live." Jesus entreats: "Satan hath desired to have you, that he may sift you as wheat: but I have prayed for thee that thy faith fail not; and when thou art converted, strengthen thy brethren." The Spirit says: "Come." "Whosoever will, let him come," Will you?

Help the Fanning Orphan School.

The following letter from Brother Trice shows the last donations to this school. As the school grows it needs more money. Send all donations to Brother A. N. Trice.

Nashville Tenn., May 4, 1920.—Brother Elam: I beg to report donations received for the Fanning Orphan School since last report as follows: From Washington Manufacturing Company, Nashville, Tenn., $250; Belmont Avenue Church, Nashville, $50; C. H. Williams, Nashville, $25; W. W. Harlin, Nashville, $25; A. F. Harlin, Nashville, $25; M. B. Comer, Nashville, $25; G. L. Comer, Nashville, $25; Harriet E. Kerr, Nashville, $3; Lawrence Avenue Church, Nashville, $25; Russell Street Church, Nashville, $100; Mr. and Mrs. J. C. Shacklett, Nashville, $25; W. E. Stephens, Nashville, $10; Charlotte Avenue Church, Nashville, $20; Chapel Avenue Church, Nashville, $100; Charlotte Avenue Church, Nashville, $100; Charlotte Avenue Church, Nashville, $50; Hugh D. Smith, Fayette-ville, Tenn., $5; H. D. Lipscomb, Grapevine, Texas, $100; D. L. Lindsay, Stamford, Texas, $250; unknown, $5; Maida Austin, Scott's Hill, Tenn., $4; Billy Young, Sparta, Tenn., $1; Ben F. Gill, Jr., Allensville, Ky., $12. Total, $1,135.

On account of the absence of the writer from the city, no report has been made previous to this since November 13, 1919, and the above donations cover a period of about six months. In the meantime we have been compelled to spend a considerable sum of money in building a new laundry at the school, costing something over twenty-five hundred dollars, and about eleven hundred in repairs, painting, etc., which has brought us considerably in debt, and we now owe the bank forty-seven hundred dollars.

You will recall that we have been getting out some of the timber from the school farm, which we have cut into lumber, and expect to realize something from this source at an early date, but it will not be nearly sufficient to pay our debts. On account of the low cost of the rate charged in this school and the high cost of living, we have not been able to run without sustaining a loss. This loss must be met in some way, if we continue to maintain the usual number of pupils in the school.

It will soon be time to plan for a new term; and unless we have means in sight to maintain the school without running in debt, we shall be forced to cut down the number of pupils admitted or continue to run in debt. It is to be hoped that the friends of the school will give the necessary support.

With best wishes for the school and kind regards to you and yours, I am, Yours fraternally, A. N. Treasurer for Fanning Orphan School.

Mormonism, Alias Latter-Day-Saints. No. 2. BY B. B. NEAL.

The "Book of Doctrine and Covenants" is the working book, the "New Testament," of the Mormons. It is made up of revelations (?) of Joseph Smith, Jr., and his suc-

David Whitmer, one of the "three witnesses" to the "Book of Mormon," and who states and proves that Joseph Smith, Jr., ordained him to succeed him as "seer, prophet, and revelator" of the church, says of the book: "But the Latter-Day Saints have another book of Doctrines and Covenants, in which are doctrines that Christ never taught to the 'twelve' at Jerusalem nor to the 'twelve' upon this continent."

This not only "blacks both eyes" of that book, but it hits Joseph, the so-called "prophet," a knock-out blow as a true prophet, and brands him too deeply ever to erase as a false prophet.

Mormonism, from the start, was full of prophecies, through Joseph Smith, Jr., concerning the Indians, the "Lamonites" of the "Book of Mormon."

David Whitmer, on page 27 of his pamphlet, "An Address to All Believers in Christ," commenting upon the claims of Joseph, Jr., being the "choice seer" (2 Nephi. 2), asks and answers a question that knocks the bottom out of his claims as a prophet.

Query: "How many Indians did Brother Joseph convince?"

Answer: "He never preached a sermon to them in his life, to my knowledge."

In other words, David Whitmer says: "I know that Joseph, Jr., never preached a sermon to the Indians."

In classical language, "that pulls every feather out of Joseph's cap as a prophet."

David Whitmer, who was something of a prophet himself, makes a cyclone argument that sweeps away the whole Joseph Smith business and all that has since grown out of it at Salt Lake City, Lamoni, and Independence. He says: "If you believe my testimony to the 'Book of Mormon,' if you believe that God spoke to us 'three witnesses' by his own voice, then I tell you that in June, 1838, God spoke to me again by his own voice from the heavens and told me to separate myself from among the Latter-Day Saints; for as they sought to do unto me, so should it be done unto them." ("Address to All Believers." page 27.)

He puts it strongly, and puts a Mormon elder in a dilemma, either horn of which will pierce him to his very

"If you believe my testimony to the 'Book of Mormon." You must believe this, and, believing this, both "Josephites" and "Brighamites" represent "a bastard church."

"If you do not believe this last testimony of mine, you cannot believe my first, for you must brand me as a liar, and therefore I'm not to be believed, and my testimony to the 'Book of Mormon' is no good." That's just the size of his argument, and it puts the elders in a very painful position. Either way they saw, they saw between themselves and the trunk of the tree, and the limb is the very tiptop one, and the ground below is full of thorns and rocks. But saw they must.

I next call attention to a wonderful prophecy, printed in the Utah "Book of Doctrine and Covenants," not printed in the Lamoni "Book of Doctrine and Covenants," though they know as well as the "Brighamites" that it was made.

AT AND AROUT SALEM, MASS., AUGUST 6, 1836.

I, the Lord your God, am not displeased with your coming this journey, notwithstanding your follies; I have much treasure in this city for you, for the benefit of Zion; and many people in this city whom I will gather out in due time for the benefit of Zion, through your instrumentality; therefore it is expedient that you should form acquaintance with men of this city, as you shall be led, and as it shall be given you; and it shall come to pass in due time, that I will give this city into your hands, that you shall have power over it, insomuch that they shall not discover your secret parts; and its wealth pertaining to gold and silver shall be yours. Concern not yourselves about your debts, for I will give you power to pay them. Concern not yourselves about Zion, for I will deal mercifully with her. Tarry in this place, and in this region round about; and the place where it is my will that you should tarry for the main, shall be signalized unto you by the peace and power of my spirit, that shall flow unto you. This place you may obtain by hire, etc. And inquire diligently concerning the more ancient inhabitants and founders of this city; there are more treasures than one for you in this city: therefore be ye as wise as serpents and yet without sin. And I will order all things for your good, as fast as ye are able to receive them. Amen.

There it is. Each utterance is clear. What about the fulfillment? Joseph's "rep" is at stake as a prophet, Fortunately, I have a full history of this visit to Salem, why he (Joseph) went, and of the origin, or cause, of this prophecy, from Mormon pens.

Here is a statement from the pen of Joseph himself: "On Monday afternoon, July 25, in company with Sidney Rigdon, Brother Hyram Smith, and Oliver Cowdery, I left Kirtland, etc. From New York we continued our journey to Providence on board a steamer, from thence to Boston by steam car, and arrived at Salem, Mass., early in August, where we hired a house and occupied the same during the month, teaching the people from house to house, and preaching publicly as opportunity presented; visiting occasionally sections of the surrounding country, which are rich in the history of the Pilgrim Fathers of New England, in Indian warfare, religious superstition, bigotry, persecution, and learned ignorance." He then gives verbatim the revelation (?) given above. ("Millennial Star," Volume 15, pages 821-822.)

Here we have the whole Presidency and the "Second ' (Oliver Cowdery) of the Mormon Church at Salem, Elder ' Mass. "What was up?" The sequel will show that each went along to watch the other.

Elder E. Robinson, one of the most intelligent and purest men ever connected with the "Latter-Day Saint's Church," "lets the cat out of the bag." He writes and prints in "The Return," a monthly magazine of which he was the editor, page 105, this: "A brother in the church, by the name of Burgess, had come to Kirtland and stated that a large amount of money had been secreted in the cellar of a certain house in Salem, Mass., which belonged to a widow, and he thought that he was the only person now living who had knowledge of it, or of the location of the house."

There it is. Money, mammon, is the moving cause. The whole Presidency, Joe and Hyram Smith and Sidney Rigdon, representing Peter, James, and John, with Oliver, who wrote the "Book of Mormon" and baptized Joe and had John the Baptist lay hands on him-"the whole shooting match" out hunting for Captain Kidd's gold.

So sanguine was Joseph that he poured forth the above prophecy.

He makes the Lord say:

1. I have much treasure in Salem for you, for the benefit of Zion.

- 2. You shall have "many people," a "big meeting"many additions in Salem for the benefit of Zion.
- 3. The whole city will be given over into your hands. "You shall have power over it, inasmuch as they shall not discover your secret parts."
 - 4. Its wealth shall be yours, its gold and its silver.
- 5. Don't be concerned about your debts, gentlemen, for I'll give you power to pay them.
- "Brother Burgess" met the "Presidency" and Oliver, the "Second Elder" of the Church of Latter-Day Saints, in Salem, according to appointment, but time had wrought so many changes in the place and in his memory that he could not for a certainty point out the house.

"They, however, found a house which they felt was the right one and hired it." "It is needless to say they failed to find that treasure or the other gold and silver spoken of in the revelation." ("The Return," page 106.)

Note the fulfillment (?) of the prophecy (?), for that "settles the question" as to the prophet:

- 1. He never got "a nickel."
- 2. He never got "a joiner."
- 3. The city was not "given into his hands" in any sense; he never had any "power" over it; and his "secret parts," or trickery and treachery, are laid wide open to the world.
- 4. Its "gold and silver" never became Joseph's, or any part of it.
 - 5. The Lord did not pay Joseph's debt.

Such work as this not only places Joseph in the ranks of false prophets, but it easily gives him the lead of them all. Not one item of his predictions above "came to pass."

The Burgess hint was to them like a straw to a drowning man. No wonder they went on what proved to be the grandest "snipe hunt" of the ages. Their creditors were after them. Their "Lord" deceived them, and the Peter (Joe Smith), the James (S. Rigdon), and the John (H. Smith) of Latter-Day Saintism took the bankrupt law. Shades of Gulliver! Stand aghast at the fact that thousands are gulled by them even to this day!

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine, or Uncle Minor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons," This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney-one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?" This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake. I

Sermons and Sermon Material.

(The titles appear under the authors' names.)
AFERNETHY, ARTHUR TALMAGE. "Center Shots at Sin"$1.50
ADCOCK, ADAM K. "The Glorious Gospel"
BOOK, W. H. "Columbus Tabernacle Sermons," two volumes; per volume 1.00 "The Indiana Pulpit" 1.25 "Sermons for the Pecple" 1.25
BOTELES, MATTIE M. "Lights on Scripture Truths"
BRANDT, JOHN L. "Soul-Saving Revival Sermons"
Brown, Will H. "Illustrative Incidents for Public Speakers" 1.50 "Patriotic Illustrations for Public Speakers" 1.50 "Stories of the Great War for Public Speakers" 1.50 "Wit and Humor for Public Speakers" 1.50
Coomas, J. V. "The Christ of the Church"
DARSIE, GEORGE. "Before the Throne"
DUTT, MEADE E. "Jesus Christ in Human Experience" 1.50
ERRETT, ISAAC. "Evenings with the Bible," three volumes; per volume
FARIS, JOHN T. "How It Was Done in Harmony"
Lord, J. A. "On the Lord's Day"
McGarvey, J. W. "Biblical Criticism" 1.25 "Lands of the Bible" 2.00 "Jesus and Jonah" 50 "Sermons" 1.25 "New Commentary on Acts" 1.50 "Commentary on Matthew and Mark 1.50
McGarvey-Pendleton. "Commentary on Thessalonians, Corinthians, Galatians, and Romans
"The Fourfold Gospel"1.65
MEACHAM, EDGAR JONES. "Training to Teach"
Morrett, Robert, "Seeking the Old Paths"
PITTMAN, J. C. FERDINAND. "Bible Truths Illustrated"
RUTLEDGE, GEORGE F. "Pushing the World Along"
SWEENEY, Z. T. "The Spirit and the Word"
Uperks, J. V. "Updike's Sermons"
Wilson, Louis C. "Twentieth Century Sermons and Addresses" 1.50
ZOLLARS, E. V. "Baccalaureate and Convocation Sermons" 1.75 "The Commission Executed" 1.25
Send all orders to the McQuiddy Printing Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

We know in order to follow; we follow in order to know. Light prepares the way for love. Love opens the mind for new love. The gifts of God are interwoven. They multiply and produce each other until we come to the perfect state of eternity. Through eternity we shall follow on to know more of God .- E. B. Pusey.

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This peace is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite or from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Gredits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust triffing disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

Brother W. H. Carter's Article Last Week.

BY J. C. M'O.

Under the heading, "State the Facts," Brother W. H. Carter had a most thoughtful and timely article in last week's Gospel Advocate. It would have been proper to have accompanied it at that time with the comment here made; but I take occasion to say now that what Brother Carter so justly and pointedly says Brother McCaleb should do, with the petent and serious reasons why he should do it, is the very identical thing which led us to the course which we adopted with Brother McCaleb. Brother Carter now testifies that he, in common with many others, has the impression that Brother McCaleb is in sympathy with the speculative movement. Knowing that this impression was abroad, I asked Brother McCaleb, in a brotherly and courteous way, for a personal interview, that we might know the facts in the case, but he declined it. Not only did he decline it, but when the matter came before the public, instead of coming out in a straightforward denial of the charges, he evaded the issue and wrote on irrelevant matters in a way that only confirmed the correctness of the impression in question. It is "an ill wind that blows nobody good," and along with his evasions and irrelevant matters the truth in full leaked out about his appropriation of money from the churches to an Episcopalian school.

Religious papers, churches, and individuals have the unquestionable right to ask about the teaching of those whom they support in missionary work; and when, like Brother McCaleb, they call in question this right by refusing to give the desired information and by charging that such inquirers are trying to sit in judgment on their soundness in the faith, they show clearly where they stand. We did not get a straightforward answer to our courteous inquiry, but we got enough to show the churches the essential facts of the situation.

Reverence for God and His Word.

BY M. C. K.

Reverence for God and for all sacred things cannot be too early impressed upon the human mind, and yet it is often sadly neglected and children grow up without any appreciation of what it means or of its serious importance, Sometimes even among children of God themselves, lack of it is sadly and painfully manifest. Of course the fault lies, in large measure, with both parents and all others who occupy the position of teachers of God's word.

That we may have the proper angle from which to view the matter in this statement, let us here consider some pointed passages which God has placed in his word for the very purpose of impressing the lesson of reverence for sacred things. After saying, "Heaven is my throne, and the earth is my footsteel; what manner of house will ye build unto me? and what place shall be my rest?" Jehovah then added the solemn declaration: "To this man will I look, even to him that is poor and of a contrite spirit, and that trembleth at my word." (Isa. 66: 1, 2.) Let that passage be calmly and seriously weighed. There need be no failure to understand its language and the solemn lesson of reverence for God and his holy word which it so plainly sets forth; and yet, in spite of its plainness and evident meaning, men sometimes speak lightly of the word of God, and semetimes act in other ways which show an utter lack of reverence for it. For example, think of persons assembled for divine worship and engaging in conversation while a lesson from God's holy word is being read! Such conduct does not even show respect for God, much less does it show that reverence for his word which leads one to tremble. But not only is this sin committed while God's word is being read, but sometimes even while the sacred emblems of the Lord's body and blood are being passed from member to member, persons with apparent but inexcusable thoughtlessness engage in conversation! This is a great sin, and the very thought of it is repulsive. It shows a complete and utter lack of reverence for sacred things. It should not only be promptly corrected, but semetimes, if such a method of correction can be wisely administered, it should be met with a sharp rebuke.

Listen to these words from an ancient servant of God: "My flesh trembleth for fear of thee; and I am afraid of thy judgments" (Ps. 119: 120.) Every Christian man and woman ought to be able to say the same thing. If they have not been trained up to it, then let them immediately begin the cultivation of this spirit. The same servant of God added this statement: "Princes have persecuted me without a cause; but my heart standeth in awe of thy words." (Ps. 119: 161.) What a beautiful fact in his life! He was persecuted by princes, maltreated by his fellow men, but he allowed nothing to hinder his reverence for God and his holy word. This is precisely as it should be in the life of every child of God. Hence, parents should teach it; elders in the churches should impart the lesson; teachers of Bible classes should impress it; preachers in the pulpit and out of it should proclaim it; and all religious journals and teachers of the Bible in any and every capacity should feel the solemn obligation upon them to teach and impress the great lesson.

Again, the Psalmist says: "Ye that fear Jehovah, trust in Jehovah; he is their help and their shield." (Ps. 115: 11.) This is a blessed assurance. Christians not only maintain a great principle by teaching reverence for God and exemplifying it in their lives, but God has promised to be "their help and their shield."

Again, the sacred record deposes: "I know that, whatsoever God doeth, it shall be forever; nothing can be put to it, nor anything taken from it; and God hath done it, that men should fear before him." (Eccles. 3: 14.) Let the reader ponder that passage. Jehovah is not only great over all his works, but he has graciously taught in his word that these things are meant to teach that men may fear before him. No Christian has even begun to grow properly until this spirit of fear and reverence for God has been firmly implanted in the heart; and no Christian has the fear of God properly implanted in the heart until there is also implanted the spirit of reverence for God's word. No matter what the subject may be on which God is speaking, whether it be sin, righteousness, justification, faith, repentance, baptism, the Lord's Supper, giving money to help the poor and spread the gospel, life, death, the judgment, heaven, hell, immortality, or what not, it should receive the profoundest and most reverent attention from every child of God.

Surely a subject which stands forth in such a light in God's word should be fully taught and appreciated in the churches. In the home, of course, is the place where the teaching should begin. Let fathers and mothers and guardians learn the lesson and solemnly impress it upon those placed under their guidance and care. The position which they occupy imposes upon them a most fearful responsibility, and the same responsibility rests upon all other Christians to the full extent that they have the opportunity to teach the lesson. The fact is, all teachers of God's word are under the solemn obligation to show reverence for it and to impress the lesson upon others.

In view of all these things, the one solemn and instructive conclusion to which we should all come is happily stated by the wise man of the ancients. After calling attention to numerous unsatisfying experiences, he significantly says: "This is the end of the matter; all hath been heard: fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man." (Eccles. 12: 13.) That passage gives us the divine and, hence, the proper conception of God and his holy word; and it finds a beautiful and reverent echo in the following impressive poem by Isaac Watts:

How should the young secure their hearts,
And guard their lives from sin?
Thy word the choicest rules imparts
To keep the conscience clean.
Tis like the sun, a heavenly light,
That guides us all the days;
And, through the dangers of the night,
A lamp to lead our way.

Thy precepts make us truly wise;
We hate the sinner's road;
We hate our own vain thoughts that rise,
But love thy law, O God.

Thy word is everlasting truth; How pure is every page! That holy Book shall guide our youth, And well support our age.

God's Commands vs. Man's Doctrine.

BY J. C. M'Q.

Christians walk worthily of the calling wherewith they are called by "giving diffigence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bend of peace." There are not many bodies of Christ, but there is only one body. Protestants are as inconsistent in representing that Christ has many bodies as are the Roman Catholics in representing that there are many heads to the one body. Both positions are absurd and monstrous. The Holy Spirit says: "There is one body, and one Spirit, even as also ye were called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all, who is over all, and through all, and in all." (Eph. 4: 4-6.) While a union of denominations is becoming popular with the mass of the people, such union as is favored is unknown to the oracles of God. Men are prone to have many standards instead of appealing to the one divine standard; they imagine that whatever way seems right unto a man is right, and cling more tenaclously to their own opinions than they do to the inspired word of God. As I see it, one of the greatest evils of the church to-day is in exalting human opinions above the word of Jehovah. Men fail to duly exalt the word of God; they are prone to argue with the commands of the Christ when he speaks and bids them obey. Few seem to have the spirit that moved and controlled Philip; for when the angel of the Lord appeared unto him and bade him go unto the desert way which led from Jerusalem unto Gaza, he did not stop and reason and combat the command of the Holy Spirit; he did not say, "I am doing a great work here in Samaria, baptizing many, both men and women;" but, in obedience to the authority of the Spirit, "he arose and went." This is the respect and reverence that every one should have for the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ.

How often do we find people stopping to reason with, and making an effort to overthrow, a plain, positive, pointed command of Jehovah!' So many imagine that just so a man thinks to worship, his worship is all right, regardless of what he does. They ignore the positive declaration of the Savior when he says: "But in vain do they worship me, teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men." The multitude even of church members, instead of holding fast the pattern of sound words and instead of "speaking as it were oracles of God," speak in the language of Ashdod. How often do we hear men talking about joining the church and what church they shall join, when there is but one church! We learn from Col. 1: 18 that "he is the head of the body, the church;" and we also learn from Eph. 1: 22, 23 that Christ is "head over all things to the church, which is his body." Thus the church is the body, and the body is the church. We learn, furthermore, from 1 Cor. 12: 20: "But now they are many members, but one body." Why should people persist in talking of joining the church, or in asking, "What church shall I join?" when Christ has but one church on the earth? How much better to speak as the Bible speaks and to be silent when it is silent!" It will never be possible for us to enjoy "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" so long as men use the language of Ashdod, so long as men set up their own opinions and notions and unduly exalt these instead of clinging firmly to what God says.

We often hear men to-day talking about "unbaptized believers," but we nowhere read in the New Testament of a man who had a living faith being unbaptized. Believers with all the heart in the days of the apostles were always baptized. In this sense we never read of "unbaptized believers." Whenever one heard the gospel, believed and obeyed it, that one became a member of the church of Jesus Christ. In order that men might hear the gospel and their faith come by hearing, when the divine philanthropy had accomplished its work and all authority in heaven and on earth had been given unto the Christ, he commanded his apostles to "go . . . into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation," with the assurance that "he that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." Here salvation is affirmed of the man who believes and is baptized. There is no affirmation made of the man who simply has a dead faith and does nothing more; there is no affirmation made of the man who is simply baptized; there is nothing said of the man who sits still with folded hands, failing to go forward in obedience to Christ's command. The language is clear and easily understood-so clear that it seems an insult to the divine wisdom to undertake to make an argument and show that the man who believes and is baptized shall be saved. Again, men are commanded everywhere to repent. (Acts 17: 30.) pentance began to be preached from Jerusalem. "And he said unto them, Thus it is written, that the Christ should suffer, and rise again from the dead the third day; and that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name unto all the nations, beginning from Jerusalem," (Luke 24: 46, 47.) These men who thus believed and who hated and loathed their sins and went forward in obedience to the command of Christ, being baptized into the name of the Father, the Son, and Holy Spirit, became members of the one body, or church. The same conditions that had to be accepted in order to obey Christ, when complied with, made them members of the body of Christ. You may examine every example of conversion recorded in the Acts of the Apostles, and you will find this to be true. Whenever and wherever any man does what God commands him to do, he thereby obeys Christ and becomes a member of the church of Christ. The same things that constitute his obedience bring him into the church of God.

It does seem that men who have the proper respect for the word of God and for the authority of Christ would be satisfied with simply being members of the church of God without joining any human institution. Whenever a man becomes a member of a denomination, he is a member of two things instead of being simply a member of one-the church of Christ. Why should men turn away from the simple word of God to denominationalism and other "isms," and thus bring confusion and strife among the people of God? Christ never prayed that his followers should be united in denominationalism, but he prayed that they might be united in the truth. He says: "Neither for these only do I pray, but for them also that believe on me through their word; that they may all be one; even as thou, Father, art in me, and I in thee, that they also may be in us: that the world may believe that thou didst send (John 17: 20, 21.) The union for which Christ me." prayed was union in the truth-such union as the Father and Son enjoy. The result of such union would be the conversion of the world. God would not have his people united in error, but he would have them united in the truth. Union in error would give strength to sin, just as union in the truth gives strength to righteousness.

After one thus becomes a member of the body of Jesus Christ by taking God at his word, he must continue to be satisfied to allow God to direct and control him. Saul's great sin was in the fact that he preferred his own wisdom to the wisdom of God. He thought he could modify the command of God and save Agag, the king, alive, and bring the best of the fatlings and of the flocks to Gilgal and offer as a sacrifice to Jehovah. He overlooked the truth that sacrifice without obedience is sacrilege. God will have no such. He wants our whole hearts; he wants our whole lives; he wants our entire being—body, soul, and spirit. He is a jealous God, and with nothing less will he be satisfied.

In the Sermon on the Mount, Christ says: "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven. Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy by thy name, and by thy name cast out demons, and by thy name do many mighty works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity. Every one therefore that heareth these words of mine, and doeth them, shall be likened unto a wise man, who built his house upon the rock: and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and beat upon that house; and it fell not: for it was founded upon the rock. And every one that heareth these words of mine, and doeth them not, shall be likened unto a foolish man, who built his house upon the sand; and the rain descended, and the floods came, and the winds blew, and smote upon that house; and it fell: and great was the fall thereof." (Matt. 7: 21-27.) So we learn from Christ that many who prophesied in his name, who cast out demons and did many mighty works in his name, were rejected at last. The trouble with them was that they did not have enough respect for God and for his authority. All that we do, in word or in deed, must be done "in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father through him." (Col. 3: 17.) The Christian's life is one of self-denial; it is one of continued perseverance; it is a severe conflict from the cradle to the grave. The Christian must fightsubdue the world, the flesh, and the devil; and it is only upon a subdued nature that he can rise to the presence of God and finally hear the welcome plaudit, "Well done." If we will only thus continue faithfully, when we come to the great judgment bar of God, we shall be filled with inexpressible delight to hear our Savior say: "Well done; enter thou into the joys of thy Lord."

Money Matters, Again.

BY T. B. LARIMORE.

I had a friend—a good one—who lived a little less than twenty miles from the capital of the county in which we both lived, and about the same distance from me. As I am now, so he was then—somewhat on the sunset side of life.

His home was a pleasant home, likewise a hospitable home. He and his ever-busy wife lived happily together there. Many a peaceful, restful night have I spent in that delightful, happy home, it being near enough to my preaching place for me to easily be on time next morning. That sweet home was not a palace. It was a log-cabin, country home, always neat, cozy, comfortable, and clean, where love lightened labor and made life sweet.

My friend had a son, a benedict, about fifty years eld. This son persuaded his father to sign a paper granting the son certain privileges which, he said, would enable him to take better care of his father. The paper, however, granted and gave more than the father was aware of or even suspected; and a few days after that contract was closed and that paper was signed, the son ordered his father off the premises, telling him one family was enough for one house, and two were too many.

The distressed and almost distracted father, thus driven by his own son from the home where he and the wife of his youth had lived happily together nearly threescore years, and where he had been so sad and sorrowful since she went away and left him to weep alone, walked to town, procured poison, swallowed it publicly, and died.

A vigorous youth married an industrious girl, and, together, they reared a family. By incessant toil, self-denial, and close economy, he built up a landed estate of nearly a thousand acres, having every acre of it deeded to his wife, that, in the event of his death, she and the children might have no trouble about it. When he grew old, some of his own children, their mother having passed away, refused to permit him to have a few acres of that selfsame land cleared for cultivation, to add a little to his meager income in his declining days. But the Lord has lifted him up, caused him to prosper, and made him useful, healthy, and happy, so that his latter days promise to be days of peaceful, blissful triumph.

A friend who never forgets, forsakes, or fails me, who has reared about a dozen exemplary sons and daughters, owns much valuable land—thousands of acres—all of which he expects his children to own, control, and enjoy; but he purposes to hold the title in his own name as long as he lives. He has divided his estate among his children, however, his will making everything perfectly clear, and they have their homes on, control and cultivate, their respective parts of the paternal domain.

It is certainly not difficult to determine which of these three courses is the safest, the wisest, the best, "yet show I unto you a more excellent way;" and this is that way: "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also," (Matt. 6: 19-21.)

Trust the Lord and do the right, and he will provide. "I have been young, and now am old; yet have I not seen the righteous forsaken, nor his seed begging bread." (Ps. 37: 25.) Leave it to the Lord. Mortal man hath never trusted the Lord Almighty in vain. Leave it all to him.

"Grief" and the Remedy.

BY E. A. E.

The beautiful and touching poem, entitled "Grief," by our sister, Clara Cox Epperson, which recently appeared in this paper, aroused to the depths my sympathy; opened the fountain of my tears; made me want to reach across, take by the hand and encourage her, praying for her God's guidance and strength and protection; increased my desire to look through the thin, strong, mystic veil which intervenes between this life and "the better land," and to wonder what glorious things our own there behold and what eternal joys are theirs, while we weep and labor on here; caused me to pray that I, more Christlike, may more fully weep with those who weep; and stirred in my heart a stronger desire to be able to learn and in tenderness and love to teach our Father's remedy for unceasing sorrow, his balm which heals the broken-hearted, his peace and rest for tempest-tossed souls.

Are there none to be found? Is there no bright side? Ah, yes, Jesus was anointed by Jehovah to bind up the bruised and wounded spirit, to heal the broken-hearted, and to give the peace which passes all understanding. Can be not do it? The "man of sorrows, and acquainted with grief." who bore our afflictions and took upon himself our diseases, has now in heaven a heart touched with the feeling of our infirmities and is able and ready to succor all who are tempted. (See Heb. 2: 13-18; 4: 14-16.) Here is comfort. Jesus, though stricken and marred, was really the happiest being who ever lived on earth, and is the true and only source of all peace and rest. Then, does he not know? The great Physician-has he no remedy, can he not cure? All who are burdened with sin and sorrow and the deep grief which follows sin are warmly invited to him for rest. All who will are exhorted even to roll their burden upon Jehovah and to east all their care upon him, because he cares for them. (See Ps. 55; 22; 1 Pet. 5; 7.) "He will never suffer the righteous to be moved." "Like as a father pitieth his children, so Jehovah pitieth them that fear him." "Faith, hope, love, these three," are the remedy. Love is service.

And O, when human hearts by storms are tossed,
And life's lone bark drifts in the dark
Mid wildest waves, when all seems lost,
He now, as then, with voice of power and peace,
Murmurs: "Stormy deep, be still—still—and sleep;"
And lo, a great calm comes, the tempest's perils cease.

In all Job's afflictions—the loss of property, the loss of ten children at once, the loss almost of life itself with piercing pain and bitter suffering, the loss of friends, the advice of his wife that it was enough and to curse God and die—with all this upon him at the same time, he held fast his integrity—his faithfulness to Jehovah; told his wife she was talking as a foolish woman; never charged God with foolishness; and declared that although Jehovah should slay him, yet would he trust in Jehovah. I have thought that a man could endure anything, with his faithful wife to encourage and comfort him.

In this are the remedy and peace!

In the chastisement of the Lord we obtain the blessing of salvation.

My son, regard not lightly the chastening of the Lord, Nor faint when thou art reproved of him; For whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth, And scourgeth every son whom he receiveth.

All affliction and sorrow God will overrule for the good of all who really love him. If we endure this chastisement as from God and are exercised by it, or take it to heart, in order to be benefited, it yields in us peaceable fruits, even the fruits of rightcousness—a more useful and better life—and draws us closer to God.

In God's own goodness and love he works all things together for good to those who love him, who are the called according to his purpose—those who hear and heed the gospel call and work according to God's plan for the accomplishment of his purpose to save men, and not for the accomplishment of their own purposes of worldly positions and honors, wealth and ambitions. To love God is to obey him, not to do something else. To love men is to treat them as God directs.

All my fears center in myself—in my weakness and worldliness, my failures and shortcomings, human wisdom and ways—not in God's promises and power, grace and love. This heart-stirring poem on "Grief" brought to mind Osgood's poem on "Labor," "labor" being used to mean one's mission, which is as follows:

Pause not to dream on the future before us;
Pause not to weep the wild cares that come o'er us;
Hark, how Creation's deep, musical chorus,
Unintermitting, goes up into heaven!
Never the ocean wave falters in flowing;
Never the little seed stops in its growing;
More and more richly the rose heart keeps glowing,
Till from its nourishing stem it is riven.

"Labor is worship"—the robin is singing;
"Labor is worship"—the wild bee is singing;
Listen! that eloquent whisper, upspringing,
Speaks to the soul from out Nature's great heart.
From the dark clouds flows the life-giving shower;
From the rough sod blows the soft-breathing flower;
From the small insect, the coral bower;
Only man in the the plan shrinks from his part.

Labor is life—'tis the still water faileth;
Idlenoss ever despaireth, bewaileth;
Keep the watch wound, for the dark rust assaileth;
Flowers droop and die in the stillness of noon.
Labor is glory!—the flying cloud lightens;
Only the waving wing changes and brightens;
Idle hearrs only the dark future frightens;
Play the sweet keys, wouldst thou keep them in tune!

Labor is rest—from the sorrows that greet us;
Rest from all petty vexations that meet us;
Rest from sin promptings that ever entreat us;
Rest from world sirens that lore us to ill.
Work—and pure slumbers shall wait on thy pillow;
Work—thou shalt ride over Care's coming billow;
Lie not down wearied 'neath Woe's weeping willow!
Work with a stout heart and resolute will!

Labor is health—Lo! the husbandman reaping, How through his veins goes the life-current leaping! How his strong arm, in his stalwart pride sweeping, True as a sunbeam the swift sickle guides! Labor is wealth—in the sea the pearl groweth; Rich the queen's rohe from the frail cocoon floweth; From the fine acorn the strong forest bloweth: Temple and statue the marble block hides.

Droop not-though shame, sin, and anguish are round thee!

thee!
Bravely fling off the cold chain that hath bound thee!
Look to you pure heaven smiling beyond thee!
Rest not content in the darkness—a clod!
Work for some good, be it ever so slowly!
Cherish some flower, he it ever so lowly!
Labor!—all labor is noble and holy;
Let thy great deeds be thy prayer to thy God.

Jesus, although a man of great sorrow and deep grief: although buffeted, abused, accused of being under the prince of devils, spit upon, ridiculed, scorned, mocked, and crucified, was happy, because he knew no sin himself and endured and did all this for others and even for his enemies. Purely unselfish, he died to save the world from selfishness. Selfishness is partly the cause of much grief. Unselfish service and suffering are the source of real happiness and abiding peace. Our trials become occasions of great joy when we endure for Christ's sake. When our light afflictions, which are but for a moment, work out for us a far more exceeding and eternal weight of glory, we can rejoice with exceeding great joy in them all. When our loss of dear ones for a few days is their eternal gain, we can sorrow not as those who have no flope.

Poor Naomi! But in her bitter sorrow she led Ruth to the true God, and Ruth became one in the line of the mother of Jesus. To lose ourselves—our sorrow and srief, our earthly pleasures and ambitions—in self-forgelfulness in love and service according to the will of God for others is rest and peace and salvation. So I have learned thus far from the life and teaching of Him who says he did always those things which pleased God.

The deepest, bitterest, most cruel grief is that caused by the sins of others. "O my sen Absalom, my sen, my sen Absalom! would I had died for thee, O Absalom, my sen, my sen!"

A Trip to Canada.

BY A. B. T.,

The writer of this has just returned from a brief trip to Canada and wishes to write down a few of the impressions gained. The occasion was the June meeting of Christians living in the province of Ontario. For several years this gathering has been an interesting and implring event in the history of these congregations. The meeting has no other purposes than to promote acquaintance among the disciples and to cooperate with each other in doing missionary work. The Batthurst Street congregation, in Toronto, was the host for the 1020 meeting. Its members left nothing audone as relates to kindness and hospitality. Every visitor was assigned to a Christian home. A social session was held in the basement of the meetinghouse, during which less was served and short speeches were made by visiting brothren. For the Program Committee, Fred Sommer automized that the keynote of the meeting was "Forward" along the lines of fellowship with one another, communion with God, utinistry of the word, and a full sense of stewardship. The topics assigned to the speakers were in perfect accord with the chosen watchword. The need of greater evangelistic effort was particularly stressed. W. D. Campbell, of Detroit, Mich., and the writer each delivered three addresses bearing on these themes. The audiences were very large and appreciative. I have never heard better singing anywhere. Visiting brethren were present from Detroit, Mich.; Pekin, N. Y.; Beamsville, St. Catherines, Newmarket, Stouffville, Pine Orchard, Smithville, Meaford, and Hamilton, Canada. The four churches of Toronto are Bathhurst Street, Fern Avenue, Wychwood, and East Toronto. Among the preachers were O. E. Tallman, of Owen Sound; J. L. Hines, of Meaford; C. E. Petch, of Pine Orchard; Gordon McPhee, of Carman, Manitoba;

D. H. Jackson and Fred Sommer, of Toronto; G. E. Claus, of Valdosta, Ga.; and W. D. Campbell, of Detroit, Mich. The celebration of the Lord's Supper on Sunday morning. was most impressive. J. G. Waterfield presided, and Dr. Paul L. Scott made an appropriate talk. The Canadian people are more grave and settled in their ways than their neighbors to the South. The city is not noted for joy rides. They impress one as being dead in earnest about their undertakings. I noted the absence of Sunday newspapers and a quiet atmosphere on the Lord's day such is rarely seen among us. Some of the townspeople spoke almost reverently of "the king" and "the prince," who recently paid them a visit. All of this seemed strange to those of us who admit only of allegiance to the "King of kings, and Lord of lords." But in the church meetings we were all made to feel the blessedness of "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

The Eternal Quest.

I reach out to the vast unknown,
I preen my wings to fly;
All former hopes are new outgrown,
I seek the open sky.
My body hath its bounds, I know,
But like an arrow from the bow
My spirit seeks the throne on high.

For thought can travel fast as light
And faster far; the bounds of space
Are left behind, and cherubs bright,
I meet the Eternal face to face.
It is my right, no barren claim,
For I have come in Christ's own name,
It is my true abiding place.

From that wast height what can we bring
To bless this weary earth?
What elories past imagining
To sive it second birth?
To be the home of sons of God,
For Christ's own sacred feet have trod
Its fields and given them heavenly worth.

Let us with joy then enter in,
Invited by His gracious hand;
All things are yours, no need to win
The heights of heaven on which we stand;
Take what thou wilt, his choicest been Shall give to earth a brighter noon
And make the whole world Beulah Land!
—Selected.

RELIEF FUND

"Whose stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry, but shall not be heard."

Church at Lavergne, Tenn	8.52
Church at Colina, Tenn.	50.00
A few Christians at Cookeville, Tenn	3.50
Church at Harms, Tenn	12.00
Church at Charleston, Miss,	10.00
Church at Ethridge, Tenn	3,500
A LINE OF THE STATE OF THE PARTITION OF	11.00
Sister McChristian, Kirksey, Ky	1.00
	1.75
Church at Dunlap, Tenn	2.80
B. E. Wilkins, Only, Tenn.	1.50
Mrs. B. F. Scruggs, Morven, Ga	2,00

In sending contributions, be sure and state whether they are intended for the Home Orphans' Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Fund, or the Poland Fund. I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for crphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb, who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. HALL

The Meeting at Athens, Ala.

On May 30, assisted by Brother B. H. Murphy, of Springfield, Tenn., as song leader, I began a two-weeks' revival at Athens, Ala. Brethren J. Pettey Ezell and L. B. Jones were with us the first week and had the meeting well advertised and all things ready for success. It was a glorious meeting, and I sorely regretted that I could not stay longer. Seven were baptized into Christ, and more than twenty who had formerly stood with our digressive brethren or aloof from either side, trying to decide which way to go, took their stand with us in the effort to have a church there that stands foursquare for primitive Christianity. Brother Murphy remained over to help them in their first service after the meeting, June 13, and Brother Ezell run over from Albany and preached for them. Brother Murphy reports a glorious service, with everybody in high spirits. A good man who is not ashamed to work and make sacrifices for the cause of Christ is sorely needed at Athens for all of his time. Jones and Ezell are looking for such a man, and I hope he will soon be found. I am expecting one of the best churches in Alabama to soon exist at Athens. I have never seen a brighter future for a young congregation.

Brethren Ezell and Jones are most excellent men, and they are doing a great work in that part of Alabama. I wish time and space would allow me to write it up fully, but this I cannot do just now. I hope, however, to soon make a full report of the great work they are doing. To know these brethren is to love them and esteem them for their work's sake. They are in love with the plain, simple teaching of our Lord, and men who indulge in speculating and preaching things they know nothing about would find little comfort from them. Murphy is a splendid song leader, and I enjoyed every moment of the time with him.

It will not be amiss, I hope, to give a bit of our experience with our digressive brethren at Athens. They are just moving into a most excellent building a half block from the old house that was purchased for five thousand dollars by the brethren with whom I was laboring. Some of the townspeople thought it very strange for two churches to be worshiping so close together and agreeing in so many things. Many thought instrumental music to be such a little matter to divide over. The request, from various sources, became insistent that I preach on why we do not use it, and this request was granted, with the time well announced. The house was full. I have never received more compliments than I received from that effort, many expressions coming from people who are members of other religious orders. But the address was painfully discomforting to Brother P. H. Mears, who was present and who believes in such things. He used bad judgment and took the streets next day and was making some very strong statements about it. Things continued to come to my ears until I thought duty demanded a word from me; hence, I sent him the following letter by Brother E. S. Robison:

Athens, Ala., June 10, 1920.—P. H. Mears, Athens, Ala.—Dear Brother Mears: It has not been my pleasure to meet you, but I feel constrained to take steps to make an acquaintance with you.

1. You are perfectly aware of the fact that I have been here in a series of revival services with the church of Christ, and I am told that you have been at my meetings some two or three times. I wish you had tarried till I could have met you, else come to the front at the close of the services and met me—a thing that local ministers always do for the visiting minister, provided they consider him their brother in Christ.

2. By the request of quite a number, I spoke Monday night of this week on "The Blood of Christ," in which discussion I gave one of our reasons for not using instrumental music in church worship. I am told that you were there, and have heard quite a bit that it is claimed you have said since then. If you thought I was wrong in my position, it is strange to me that you did not do me the kindness to come forward at the close of the service and speak to me about it. I think I left the way open.

3. The following news has come to me (it may be correct, and it may be incorrect; anyway, you should know it):

(1) I am told that you say that you can give two arguments in favor of the use of instrumental music to my one against it. If you said this or anything like it, I am begging you to give me the arguments. I claim that you cannot make one argument for it that is one whit better than the burning of incense, which our Roman Catholic neighbors try to defend.

(2) I am told by another that you say you will give me one hundred dollars for a scripture that says not use it, or words to that effect; and this friend informs me that you told him to tell me so. My good brother, it would have been more elegant for you to have made this statement to me. But I do not need the one hundred dollars; but I promise you the scripture, if you will let me give it to you before the people of this town.

(3) I am also informed that you say you will soon preach on the subject, a thing you have a perfect right to do. But may I insist that you do this before I go, that I may have the opportunity of hearing?

Give these thoughts your prayerful consideration and let me know by to-night if these requests will be granted. My time is limited here, but I can extend it to meet your convenience. Can't we meet each other and, in the spirit of our Savior, thrash out this question before both the people for whom you preach and the brethren who are helping me in this meeting? Why not? May the Lord bless you is the prayer of one who stands for "the old paths."

S. H. HALL.

Brother Mears admitted to Brother Robison saying just what I had heard, but said he could not grant my request; that he thought such would be wrong. Just why it would have been wrong for him to let me have his arguments for instrumental music, 1 cannot imagine. It is my honest judgment that his only reason for not giving them to me was because he did not have them. And why he would not let me give him the scripture he offered one hundred dollars for, just because I wanted to give it before the people of the town, is stranger still. I am quite sure it was because he was afraid I had it. And, worst of all, why he would not preach on the subject while I was there caps the climax. I gladly consented when asked to preach on it, and he was sent a special invitation to be there and hear it. Why it was right for him to listen to me, but would have been wrong for me to listen to him, is strange. I am sending him a marked copy of this Gospel Advocate, and am insisting that he still let me hear him try to defend it. I am exceedingly busy, but will gladly hurry back to Athens to hear him in the effort.

One of the strangest things in the world to me is that people who claim to be Christians cannot discuss their differences together, and love each other the more for the discussions. I am opposed, with all my being, to wrangles. God's people simply cannot afford to indulge in such. But they certainly should meet, as brethren, and study their differences together. May Brother Mears and those with whom he labors come to see the matter this way is the prayer of one who would be ashamed to teach something he is afraid to defend.

By what they said I perceived that He had been a great warrior, and had fought with and slain Him that had the power of death, but not without great danger to Himself, which made me love Him the more.—Pilgrim's Progress.

Training Little Children

By ALICE WINGATE FRARY.

(Suggestions by mothers who have been kindergartners. Issued by The United States Buresu of jucation, Washington, D. C., and The National Kindergarten Association, New York, N. Y.)

Home Occupations for Children.

A woman who overheard her small daughter discussing mothers with her playmates was gratified to hear her triumphantly conclude the argument with the words: "Well, your mother isn't such a play mother as mine!" Being a "play mother" evidently meant one who did not permit household duties to crowd out companionship with her children. The "play mother" had not known before how fully her efforts were appreciated.

Grown people sometimes fail to realize how children delight in their companionship. Every mother should employ care and insight as well as love for her child when she selects his occupations. Given an eager desire to enter the child's world, he will welcome her with countless suggestions. It is often the mother's privilege to modify these ideas-to make a quiet occupation more attractive than a noisy one, to offer materials that are large and easily handled when little fingers show signs of restlessness, or to direct active games when repression becomes unkind.

If limited to the simplest of materials with children, 1 should choose paper. Used with pencil, scissors, and paste, it has limitless possibilities, and to adults who puzzle their way through toy departments I would say: "When in doubt, buy paper." Colored paper, cut in various sizes: a large, plain tablet, the child's undisputed possession; the wrapping of a kodak film pack, or any colored advertisements, will all be hailed with joy. One four-year-old was made happy for days with sample coffee wrappers, brightcolored and glazed. The little child should have the opportunity to experiment freely with new material, expressing his own ideas. He should also have suggestions from the mother as he needs them and her appreciation of every achievement. Child direction and adult suggestion should be wisely balanced in order that the child may make the greatest progress.

For more active play, there are games which can be carried on with only a little help while the mother is busy. The simple hiding or guessing games can be played by very young children. One game which trains in observation consists in placing different common household objects, such as a pencil, a thimble, a spool, scissors, etc., on a tray, covering them, then allowing the guesser a brief glimpse, after which he is to tell what he has seen. It is wiser to begin with two or three objects, increasing the number with each turn.

Physical feats also fascinate children. I recently saw a small girl amuse herself for an hour walking away from a full-length mirror with a block balanced on her head. Each time it fell she marked the spot, then began again at the mirror, watching the block as she backed away. The same little girl has her happiest play times being tossed and swung by her father, "walking wheelbarrow" and various improvised feats being equally entertaining to both.

Why not substitute an extra fifteen minutes of games or stories for the more elaborate "treats" in offering rewards? Is it not an ideal worth striving for to be considered a good "play father" or "play mother?"

0 0 0

There is a pleasing story that when a beloved artist pupil had wrought long at his picture, growing weary and discouraged by reason of the many faults of his work, and had fallen asleep by his easel, the master came softly and with his own hand corrected the pupil's mistakes and finished his picture. So, when we strive to be holy and to do our best, and yet are disheartened by our failures, the Master will come and with his own hand correct our mistakes and finish our work-the fashioning of his own image on our soul. When we awake, we shall be satisfied with his likeness .- J. R. Miller.

The distinguishing characteristic of man is not his affinity with the lower orders of creation; it is not that he is a composite museum of all the past; it is not even in the fact that he builds cities and modifies in countless ways the earth on which he lives. Man's supreme and distinguishing uniqueness is this: he has power to respond to and be transformed by the Holy Spirit of God in Jesus Christ. The end of the natural order, man is the beginning of the new creation. He closes the old series involved in the natural and inaugurates the reign of the spiritual.—Selected. 0 0 0

To My Mother.

BY ALBERT TERRY, JR.

(Sixteen years old.)

May this, my mother, be a helpful thought for you, May this be a poem in honor of you who are true; May this, dear mother, tell what I think of you, The person who always has stood true blue.

To you, my mother, do I give my praise; You are the one who helped me through dark days, You are the one who has kept me straight, You are the one who is really and truly great.

To you, dear mother, do I tell this little story-A story of love, of cares, of pleasures, of worry-A story that is meant only for your ears; For when I think of you, I lose all my fears.

Dear mother o' mine, sweet mother o' mine, A thought of thee makes life sublime; For you teach love, obedience, truth, and trust; For you, dear mother, I must live—I must.

O true mother o' mine, my thoughts turn to you; How happy you make this world that we live through! Your ideals are pure, your thoughts are the best, Your place is guaranteed in the home of the blest.

True mother o' mine, my ideal in life, You seem to make easy the hard part of the strife; You seem to "carry on" after many others fell; You work right on, and encouraging words tell.

Beautiful mother o' mine, with life so pure. You kept your heart right when there was much to endure; You filled your place well and helped other people, When your own troubles reached high-yes, high as a

Dear mother o' mine, O mother o' mine, Your life has been to me so beautiful and kind; You mean so much, your aims are so high, To reach them I must work-yes, climb to the sky.

True friend you are, O mother o' mine, You teach a good life-yes, one that's divine; Your true Christian faith has kept the road clear, You cheered me on when things seemed drear.

O how I pray to live and to be As good a Christian as thee-as thee! O truly great are those who fight! And you work on through day and through night.

O mother o' mine, may this now be A story of love, praise, and of hope in thee, May your dreams for me be fulfilled in life, May I live up to your aims and fight in the strife.

Dearest mother o' mine, so kind you are, You challenge me to hitch my wagon to a star. O how I pray that you may live to see Your hopes, your aims, your dreams, completed through me!

AT HOME AND ABROAD

- E. A. Elam has recently closed a meeting at Lone Oak Church, near Paducah, Ky.
- Dr. J. S. Ward is in a good meeting with the Joseph Avenue congregation, this city.
- A. B. Lipscomb is preaching for the Harbert Avenue congregation, in Memphis, Tenn., this week.
- F. B. Srygley has recently closed a meeting at Anniston, Ala. We are not informed as to the results of the meeting.
- J. C. Estes advises us that the meeting place at Davenport, Iowa, has been changed from 510½ Brady Street to Junior Hall, No. 2, Palmer School of Chiropractic Building.

On account of a conflict in meetings, Herbert E. Winkler has the period from July 4 to July 16 open for a meeting. If interested, write him at 23 Grove Street, West Point, Miss.

Condensed reports of meetings: L. B. Jones closed at Bay Minette, Ala., June 13, three baptisms; J. W. Dunn closed at Mineral Wells, Texas, June 13, fourteen baptisms and one restoration.

We enjoyed a visit last week from our associate editor and colaborer, M. C. Kurfees, of Louisville, Ky. He always shows much insight into the work in which we are all deeply interested.

S. N. Johnson, of Millport, Ala., requests us to announce that John T. Lewis, of Birmingham, Ala., will begin a meeting at Mount Pleasant Church, about three miles north of Millport, on the first Sunday in July.

Change of address: H. W. Wrye, from Roaring Springs, Texas, to 5004 Kentucky Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.; L. E. Carpenter, from 102 Osage Street, Abilene, Texas, to Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas.

From Dillard A. Lyun. Whitleyville, Tenn., June 14: "1 preached at Pine Hill yesterday, morning and evening. We had fine singing, and all seemed encouraged to go onward with the Lord's work. I ask the prayers of all the people."

From R. D. Smith, Denton, Texas, June 15: "We begin a meeting with the home congregation next Lord's day, to continue several days. Brother Teddlie, one of the best seng leaders we know of, has been secured to conduct the singing."

From W. F. Roberts, Troy, Tenn., June 14: "Eph. P. Smith, of Martin Tenn., will begin a series of sermons here the second Sunday in July, Leon Holland leading the singing. Brother Freed preached for us yesterday at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M."

Professor Morrison, of Dickson, Tenn., made us a pleasant call on Monday, June 14. He reported John T. Smith in a good meeting at Dickson. The meeting resulted in nineteen baptisms, and the church was much pleased with the preaching of Brother Smith.

From M. C. Cayce, Jackson, Miss., June 17: "Our tent meeting on the corner of Gallatin and Winter Streets closed on Sunday night, with two added and much other good done in seed sowing that I trust will later yield fruit. On Tuesday night we began another meeting under the tent on the corner of West and Fortification Streets."

For the benefit of brethren who wish to visit Los Angeles, Cal., the following announcement is made: The church of Christ of Los Angeles meets regularly at the corner of Sichel and Attura Streets. Take North Broadway car, get off at Sichel Street, and go one block north; or take Griffin Avenue car, get off at Sichel Street, and go one block south.

From Ben West, Waxahachie, Texas, June 17: "The new addition to our church auditorium and five Sunday-school rooms were opened here last Lord's day, and the church was filled. Preparations have begun for our revival in March, 1921, when Brother Busby will assist us again. The church is an enthusiastic crowd of workers and worshipers."

From Charlie Taylor, Paducah, Ky., June 15: "The tent meeting conducted under our large tent on South Fourth Street closed on the first Sunday night in June. Four persons were baptized. We feel that much and lasting good was accomplished. Brother Nichol is a forceful speaker. We hope to have him again sometime. The work moves along splendidly at Goebel Avenue."

From E. W. Sewell, Dinuba, Cal., June 14: "One more addition at our evening service yesterday. We were glad to have several visiting brethren and sisters from Visalia and Fresno. Among them were a sister and daughter of Brother Larimore. I go next Lord's day to Fresno, where Brother Trice preaches, to deliver a discourse on 'The Purpose and Beauty of the Church of Christ.'"

R. A. Craig writes: "I was at Van Buren, Ky., on the third Sunday in June, and preached two sermons. This church has much good material; the members are nearly all sound and seem to want the work to move along in a scriptural way. Some improvement could be made in the business affairs of the church. I think a little system would do good. We are looking for bigger and brighter things of the churches of Kentucky."

Four loyal sisters living at Samson, Ala., a town of twenty-five hundred population, need contributions with which to purchase a lot for a meetinghouse. The price is six hundred and twenty-five dollars, and they have raised four hundred dollars of the amount, W. J. Butler, of Andalusia, Ala., preaches for them, and will give full information concerning the prospect. The sisters are anxious to get the balance of the money by July 1. Write Mrs. P. Killgore, Samson, Ala.

Morgan H. Carter writes: "We want the names of members of the church of Christ who have moved to the following cities, which I expect to visit in the interest of the cause of Christ during the next few weeks: New York City, Washinston, Baltimore, Newark, Philadelphia, Boston, Phitsburgh, and Buffalo. It is very important that you send these names. Let all respond, that I may visit these people and help promote Christ's kingdom. In some of these places we have not yet established congregations. We shall deeply appreciate your prayers in the interest of saving souls. Address me at 275 Oak Street, Atlanta, Ga."

We have a letter from John W. Fry, treasurer of the Tennessee Orphans' Home, concerning the expenses of the entertainment at the Home on June 8. He reports that letters of thanks have been written to the friends who supplied baskets of food for the dinner on the grounds; to the merchants who supplied fruits, cream, coffee, ctc.; and to the young lady who contributed a Victrola. He also reports that cash contributions aggregating ninety-two dollars were received, of which amount thirty-two dollars was unused. He states that this amount is to be used as the donors designate, and extends the hearty thanks of the institution for the many kindnesses shown on the day of the annual meeting.

We have a letter from a good brother in the South asking that we help him secure a good preacher for the congregation with which he worships. Of the field he says: "We are a typical old city congregation, or a typical old city congregation—good people, good name in the community, rather inclined to be self-satisfied, conservative. Yet we are liberal with our means, giving a preacher good support; hospitable, well taught, inclined to the right always. A good field, in my judgment. The right man could build for himself a wide influence which, rightly used, could serve effectively the Master cause." We should be glad to hear from a good preacher who thinks he would fit this position as a key fits the lock.

On Sunday afternoon, June 13, the Maury County Automobile Association gave the children of the Tennessee Orphans' Home an automobile ride. Shortly after three o'clock on that day a score or more of automobiles appeared in front of the Home and took all the children, as well as the matrons of the institution, for a ride to Mount Pleasant and back. The Columbia Daily Fierald reports that the children had a delightful time, and that when they arrived at Mount Pleasant they assembled on the lawn of the old Williams place, where several prominent citizens of Mount Pleasant greeted them. Some one kindly presented to the children a large basket of home-grown peaches. It is needless to say that the children enjoyed them very much. They were also served with ice cream. During the afternoon a number of the ladles who were in the party told interesting stories, which, as well as the ice cream, also had a delightful time, and it is to be hoped that a number of occasions like this will be enjoyed by the occupants of the Home. Our readers will please remember that the first Lord's day in July is the time for the regular contribution to the Home.

MEDICINAL ROOTS, HERBS, BARKS AND BERRIES

And other alteratives, tonics and health-giving ingredients that are recommended in the best medical books, are combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla. It builds up the blood, improves the appetite, invigorates the digestion, tones the stomach and gives nerve strength so as to promote permanent good health. Has merit-ed and held the praise of three generations. You should give it a trial.

As a gentle thorough eathartic many recommend Hood's Pills.

Dye It Right! "Diamond Dyes"

AT ALL DRUGGISTS

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Don't Risk Material in Poor Dyes that Fade or Run

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any womtains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk,
linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist
has color card.

has color card.

The Master's Vineyard

Arkansas.

Leslie, June 14.—The meeting here is progressing nicely. We had two sulendid services yesterday. The splendid services yesterday. crowds last night were about as large as we could well accommodate, next meeting will be at Alma, beginning on June 27 .- J. A. Cullum.

Ohio.

Akron, June 10 .- Last Lord's day we met in our new house. We had a very large crowd. One noble young man made the good confession and was baptized. The work here, so far as I can see, is doing nicely. Our house is very nice, but too small.— H. F. Pendergrass.

Kentucky.

Sharon Grove, June 15 .- I am in a meeting at Sharon Grove this week, with good interest from the beginning. shall go from here to Ivy Point. Robertson County. The Lord willing, I will be on the firing line without any intermission until October 1.-W. M.

Tennessee.

Cleveland, June 14.—We had two fine services here yesterday, with one baptism at the evening service. I preached at Waterville Schoolhouse at 8 P.M. Good audience, Yesterday at 3 P.M. Good audience. Testerm, was a great day for the church in this section. Brother Little was at Liberty, Brother Daugherty at Liberty Hill, Brother Wilson at Riceville, and Brother Rozar was at Athens. These Brother Rozar was at Athens. These four points are in MeMinn County. Brother R. C. White, with Brother J. D. Derryberry to lead the singing, both of Nashville, will begin a tent meeting at Niota this evening. We shall need help here. Brother Vernon Rozar, our new evangelist for this sec-tion, is now located at Athens. He has succeeded in getting fifty or more brethren and sisters together, and they have gone to meeting. They will assemble under the shade of the trees till they make arrangements for a meeting place. The prospects for the cause at Athens are very encouraging, In fact, the work all through this country seems to be taking on new life. Brother Clarence Cook, of Lewisburg, is with the Union Chapel congregation at Rockwood, teaching them We have got the tent how to sing. from the church at Rome, Ga., for one month, and shall move it to Athens or Lenoir City when done at Niota. I hope to be able to put in the order for our tent soon. We need it so much right now. Chairs and lamps for lighting have already been bought. Some are here and others are coming. On we go with this great work. George W. Farmer.

Texas.

Brownfield, June 8.—On Lord's day at the hour of worship a lady came forward, confessed her faith in Christ, and was baptized. She is seventy-four years of age and has spent her life in the Methodist Church. Our meeting will begin on June 13, the preaching to be done by me.—J. P. Kimbrell.

Lockhart, June 10 .- We are having one of the best meetings we have had here in a long time. Brother C. H. Kennedy is doing some of the best preaching I ever heard. I have time for a meeting in August. Who wants the time? Address me at Lockhart, Texas, Box 677.—W. M. Mann.

BAD RISK TO KEEP SICK

Insurance Companies Won't Take a Man Who Suffers Continually from Stomach or Liver Troubles.

Acworth, Ga.-"We have used Black-Draught in our family for years, and can say I never have found a liver medicine that could equal it," writes Mrs. J. A. Millwood, of this place. "It is fine for indigestion, headache, and sour stomach," she continues.

"I use it for the family, and certainly feel it has saved me a lot of

"I am glad to recommend Black-Draught, and am sure if others would use it they would be as glad as I've

Thousands of families keep Thedford's Black-Draught in the house all the time, for its use at the first sign of indigestion constipation, colic, colds, and fever, thereby preventing illnesses that might develop seriously.

When you notice that you are bilious, have a bad taste in the mouth, coated tongue, offensive breath, or if you are dizzy at times; restless, sleep poorly, do not neglect your liver. It is calling for prompt treatment. Use Thedford's Black-Draught. Its merit is widely acclaimed from long, satisfactory use:

Your druggist sells Black-Draught.

TETTERINE for the COMPLEXION

60c at your druggist's or from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

FREE Booklet explaining cause of this disease and how it can be treated successfully at home. Sent in plain, sealed envelope. Write for yours today. Dept. F-29. Dr. W. J. McCrary. Inc., Carbon Hill, Ala.

NERVOUS PROSTRATION

Mrs. J. Christman Proved That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Remedy for this Trouble.

Binghamton, N. Y.—"I was in a very nervous condition for over a year, my mind was gloomy, could see no light on anything, could not work and could not have anyone to see me. Doctor's medicine did not help me and Lydia E. Pink-h a m's Vegetable Compound was re-

Compound was recommended. I took it and am now well. I recommend it to all afflicted with nervous prostration."—Mrs. J. Christman, 193 Oak Street, Binghamton, New York.

The success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, made from roots and herbs, is unparalleled. It may be used with perfect confidence by women used with perfect confidence by women who suffer from nervous prostration, displacements, inflammation, ulceration, irregularities, periodic pains, backache, bearing-down feeling, flatulency, indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. indigestion and dizziness. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the standard remedy for female ills.

If there are any complications about which you need advice write in confidence to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass.

Stop Itching

Skins with Tetterine

60c. at your druggist's or from SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

A Treat for the Skin

A Treat for the Skin
Freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema, all can be easily and delightfully vanished with the use of Palmer's Skin Success Ointment. Used for over 80 years. (Rev. A. E. Ballard, D. D., President Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, Ocean Grove, N. J., writes: "Your Skin Success Ointment completely cured me of an irritative itching eczema and I cheerfully recommend it to all who may be similarly afflicted." It is not only delightfully antiseptic and cleansing, soothing and softening to the skin, but also immediate ly effective in bleaching the complexion and in vanishing blackheads, freckles and all skin eruptions. Ask your druggist or send for free sample to The Morgan Drug Co., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brocklyn, N. Y.

From Another Viewpoint.

BY S. T. ANDERSON.

By way of introducing myself and as a reason for writing this brief article, I will state that I have been a member of the church of Christ for more than thirty years and a reader of the Gospel Advocate for practically the same length of time, and realize the need of a good paper in keeping before us the things that pertain to life and godliness. Especially at this time, when so much that is transient, fleshly, and worthless is being scattered broadcast through the press, and when the follies and sinfulness of men thus revealed is so great as to almost overwhelm us in doubt and despair, the religious papers should go out as messengers of hope and carry messages of cheer. Believing that the Advocate desires to meet this great need and to be of the greatest service to its readers, I hope a little friendly suggestion to the able writers who contribute to its pages will not be amiss

First, it seems that some are presenting too many little gnats to be strained at, while great elephants of distrust and discouragement stalk through the land. From reading some of the things written, where minor points, personal thrusts, and sharp criticisms are so conspicuous, it seems like an elephant of egotism and vainglory must have appeared somewhere.

We have heard hairsplitting theories and personal opinions presented in regard to preachers and their support. From one extreme to the other have we seen this question presented-murmurings at the church by some who, perhaps, had not fully considered the obligations of the church to them, and who had not proven by their zeal, talent, and work that they were entitled to support up to the standard they desired, or that they had any just grounds of complaint. Brethren, I fear that neither the lack of preachers nor the lack of support is the one great lack. These are but the gnats we are straining at. We squabble over these things, while zeal expires, faith weakens, and the dark cloud of indifference lowers over all. We need something to awaken and stimulate the conscience of both the preachers and the church to the needs of the hour, something to fire the zeal of all for the love of God; then the question of preachers or their support will need no discussion.

Another question that has given ground for many words and much controversy is the one of ways and means of teaching the word of God. Reading much that has been written on this subject, I am constrained to think that much of it is a further illustration of that same weakness charged against the religious teachers of his day by Jesus, who saw that they were straining at gnats and overlooking more important things. The Master said: "Go, . . . teach." Shall we not go until all the gnats have been dissected and analyzed and all agree whether we shall go on foot or by airplane? Shall teaching lag while we fall to discussing whether all who teach shall be of the same age, sex, and color; or whether all teaching should be by word of mouth, by writing, or by printing; or, perhaps, whether the teacher should teach from the pulpit alone or might stand anywhere in the house where most convenient to those being taught?

I appeal to those who write to give us something to fill the minds of God's people with the beauty, worth, and meaning of the Bible to the children of men, and get every soul imbued with the idea of its great importance -that it is the one thing, the only thing, that can bring peace to a troubled world to-day, or a life of peace beyond this sinful world. If such were done, then no further discussion of how to teach it would be heard.

Brethren, these thoughts are expressed with the hope that some may see the harm being done by these endless discussions along the lines mentioned by leading us away from the more important things and helping to create a spirit of indifference as to whether the thing be done at all.

Likewise, such wrangles are hurtful to our papers, because many think that we have gnat hunters enough near us without subscribing for a paper to learn what they are doing elsewhere. Worse still, this spirit is helping to destroy the life interest and usefulness of the church by creating a burden within and distrust without.

Every writer should seriously consider whether what he writes is done in a true spirit of meekness and is prompted only by a desire to do good before sending it out to take its place in the thought force that moves the world for good or evil.

Fifty Against Two. It is not reasonable to expect two weeks of outing to overcome the effects of fifty weeks of confinement. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla along with you. It refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, makes sleep easy and restful.

The Double Nature of Man. No. 5. BY TICE ELKINS.

With the mention of a few of the practical suggestions growing out of the subject, we will close this phase of our discussion:

1. The possession of a physical nature is not necessarily an evil. What is said by inspiration of the vegetable body is also true of the animal body, that "God giveth It a body as it pleaseth him." The ancient philosophers were often accustomed to regard the body as an encumbrance to the soul-a sort of jail in which the spirit was imprisoned and from which it longed for deliverance. Such also seems to be a too-prevalent notion among many religious folks to-day, those of minds with a mystical cast. But the fact that God gave us these bedies, and that they, in our resurrection state, are to be the inheritance of the children of God, sufficiently demonstrates that the human body is not an evil in itself. God intended man to be, not a seraph, but a human being, and, therefore, endowed him with a body as well as with a spirit.

2. This union of soul and body, though mysterious, is by no means incredible. The combination of material substances, the impenetration of the one by the other, are scarcely less mysterious; and yet they are facts observable every day. How the electricity of thought can find expression in the movement of the tongue or of the hand is no more wondrous than that the electricity of nature, conducted by the metallic wire, shall give expression to its message thousands of miles away in an instant of time. As with a thousand other things, our inability to comprehend the mode is no argument against the fact. The endowment or connection of animal life with a material body is of the same sort of mystery, and yet the fact of such connection is too palpable for

3. This union of soul and body is essential to the objects of our humanity. A physical organism was necessary to adapt man to the physical world designed to be the theater of his action and the scene of his embryo growth and development. But, without the spiritual element, the higher link that united him to his God and made him the representative of the divine image and likeness of the divine Being in the lower state would be wanting. Nor is the material body without its uses. It is the inlet of numerous enjoyments to the soul. It is a source of infinitely varied knowledge. It brings the soul into visible and tangible connection with the material world and gives it a wonderful control over the elements of nature. Then, too, our humanity will not reach its ultimate perfection until a reunion of these elements is consummated by the resurrection of the body. Hence, like the apostle, all we "which have the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for the adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body." (Rom. 8: 23.)

4. In the creation of so august a being as man, there must be ends or objects commensurate with his character and endowments. He was to occupy a preëminent position in the animal creation. In this subdivision of the kingdom of God he was to be the ruler and governor. The sublime mysteries of creation were to be explored by his intellect; the rough outlines of nature were to be molded to forms of beauty by his hand. He was to be at once the representative and friend of God. The very contemplation of such a being awakens within us the loftiest expectations with regard to his destiny. The poorest and the darkest specimen of humanity upon the face of the earth has yet some glimmering indications of what humanity is capable in its present or future state.

5, Organism and life. "Spirit and soul and body." (1 Thess. 5: 23.) "The body without the spirit is dead." (James 2: 26.) "Being yourselves also in the body." (Heb. 13: 4.) "God giveth it a body as it hath pleased him, and to every seed his own body." (1 Cor. 15: 38.) We have already seen that man possesses a double nature—the one organized from the dust of the ground, the other imparted directly from the living God. These two natures were necessary in order to constitute him the connecting link between the spiritual and the material worlds. Without the former, his present relation to the earth and the inferior animal and vegetable creations would have been impossible; without the latter, his present relation to the spiritual universe could not have existed, and he would have become one with the brute creation. Without the combination of these two natures, then, there could have been no such thing as humanity. On the one hand, man has organism and life in common with the animal and vegetable creations; but, on the other hand, he has soul and spirit in common with angelic or heavenly natures. This question, then, of organism and life is essential to the full understanding of the nature and the destiny of man. It becomes especially necessary in order to determine his relation to animated beings and his rank among them.

Renwar vs. Rheumatism.

Renwar vs. Rheumatism.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism, when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood, and in order to effect a complete cure it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve or your money is refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50-cent bottle has done me more good than all sanatorium treatments, and what it did for mewhy should it not do the same for others? Should any one doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." For sale by druggists (price, 50 cents) or by mall on receipt of price from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

For Bad Breath

Coated Tongue, Biliousness, Sour Stomach, Sick Headache, Bloating, Gas, Constipation, or other result of Indiges-Biliousness, tion, no remedy is more highly recommended than

FOLEY CATHARTIC TABLETS

They cause no griping or nausea. Cleanse the bowels, sweeten the stomach and benefit the liver. Never dis-

Mrs. Elizabeth Slauson, 137 So. Main St., So. Norwalk, Coun: "I can honestly say Foley Cathartic Tablets are wonderful."

TO TAME A WILD-GAT

Mr. Dodson Warns Against Use of Treacherous, Dangerous Calomel.

salivates! Ĩt's Calomel mercury. Calornel acts like dynamite on a slug-gish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel billous, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomet today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they like it.

BTTERI

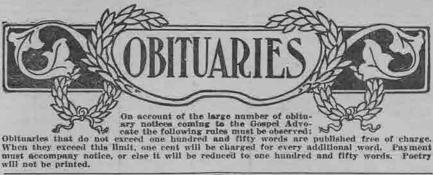

Makes low necks and short sleeves possible. It clears the skin

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Swinny.

Our father, J. W. Swinny, was born on December 2, 1839, and departed this life on May 15, 1920, aged eighty years, five months, and thirteen days. He had suffered with kidney trouble for several months, which was the cause of his death. His suffering was great, but he bore it patiently. In early life he joined the Baptist Church and lived with them for a number of years, but he became dissatisfied with their teaching and practice, and, in the year 1874, united with the church of Christ at Trezevant, Tenn. He was an elder of the church of Christ for about forty years. He was a man of much courage and Christian fortitude, a Christian at all times and under all circumstances. He was the father of four children—three sons and one daughter. Of these, three are still living—J. H. and C. L. Swinny and Mrs. Ella Calhoun. Besides these, he leaves eleven grandchildren, one greatgrandchild, and one brother to mourn after him; but we mourn not as those who have no hope. We believe that, if we live as he lived and as he taught us to live, we will meet him again on the shores of sweet deliverance, where partings will be no more. To this end let us all work, watch, and pray.

J. H. SWINNY.

Carpenter.

On Saturday night, May 15, 1920, at 7:40 o'clock, the death angel made his sad call at the home of Brother S. E. Carpenter and took away the spirit of Sister Carpenter, leaving "Brother Eddie," nearly sixty-six nearly sixty-six years of age, to battle all alone here below as far as earthly companionship goes. Sister Carpenter became obedient to the faith at the age of about sixteen, being baptized by Brother 1. C. Sewell, near Hornbeak, Tenn., and lived an earnest member of the "one body" till death claimed her. She was afflicted for the last few years so she was not able to attend the worship at the place she loved, Oak Ridge; but part of the time brethren met with her and her devoted husband when he was with her, so faithfully doing all that loving hands and willing hearts could do. I can now well remember how she looked last summer coming down the aisle in her invalid chair to be at worship on Lord's day and listen to the old story of the cross again. She could not walk a step, as one foot had to be taken off two or three years ago. Her faith was great; her pa-tience, almost unsurpassed; her love for her friends, beautiful-and I feel the loss keenly, for I know wife and I have lost one of our best friends; her devotion to husband and her children, all that could be wished, so far as I know. Her friends were only limited by her acquaintance, for all loved "Aunt Dulcina." She leaves six living children, one son adopted at the age of two years, several brothers and sisters, her aged husband, and many relatives and friends, to mourn their loss. May God sanctify this and other recent bereavements that have come to the Oak Ridge congregation to their spiritual good, to the end that all may imitate the faithfulness of Sister Carpenter, overlook any faults that might be known, and at last have the consolation that she had, that death may come as a gateway into the paradise of God, where the spirit waits for the resurrection of the just.

R. C. WHITE.

Humphries,

Mabel, daughter of H. A. Brown and wife, was born on October 6, 1895, and was "born again," being baptized by her father, at the tender age of twelve. She was married to Everett Humphreys on April 22, 1910. On March 28 this beautiful young life completed its mission on earth, and, surrounded by loved ones, answered the summons, "Come up higher." She leaves two children (a little boy and a baby girl), husband, father, mother, six brothers, many relatives, and a host of friends, to mourn her departure. Mabel was of a sunny disposition and made many friends and won the esteem and love of all with whom she came in contact. Her life was the embodiment of all that makes character lovable. She was rruly a Christian character. The writer was called upon to speak words of comfort and Christian condolence to the bereaved; and it was certainly a great pleasure to have such a noble, Christian life to hold up as a beacon to those left behind. While it is sad for her loved ones to give her up, yet it is a joy to know that she had made the necessary preparations and was ready when God called. I would say to the bereaved ones: Be comforted in the thought that, while her body has been consigned to the tomb and will molder back to the dust from which it came, her spirit is basking in the sunlight of God's love, and that, by living as the Father of mercies admonishes us, you can meet her in that home "whose builder and maker is God," where trouble, sorrow, sadness, and death never come. It is one tie less to bind you to earth and one tie more to bind you to beaven. May the God of love and peace be with you and help you to bring up her children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." After the funeral services, which was conducted at her father's home, Paris, Tenn., her body was laid away in Maplewood Cemetery beneath an abundance of pretty flowers, another indi-cation of the high esteem in which she was held by her many friends.

J. B. BROWN.

Lee.

On November 2, 1844, was born into the home of Alexander and Sallie Ann Montgomery their first child, whom they named "Martha Abigail." At the age of fourteen Martha was, by the death of her mother, forced to assume the duty of taking care of her younger brothers and sisters, which she faithfully did until her marriage to J. Minis Lee, in the year of 1863. To this union were born eleven children, of which six are still living, two having died in infancy, and Jennie, James P., and Willie M. have been dead only a few years. Her husband died in the year of 1891, thus leaving her with this family to train and care for, which she did with credit to her life. Besides those of her children left to mourn her departure are twenty-two grandchildren, five great-grandchildren, four brothers, four sisters, and a number of nieces and nephews. 1859 she confessed her faith in Christ and was buried with him in baptism by Jesse Sewell, and she lived a consistent Christian life until her death. On December 16, 1919, her spirit took Its flight back to God who gave it, and on December 18 we tenderly laid her precious body by the side of her loved one to await the resurrection morning. Words of comfort to the sorrowing Christians and words of warning to the unprepared were spoken by her grandson, J. B. Beck, of David Lips-comb College, Nashville, Tenn. She had been a patient sufferer for several years, but was suddenly stricken by pneumonia, which was the immediate cause of her death. The last Lord's day that she knew in this life found her at her post of duty in the house of the Lord. God, by the pen of in-spiration, said: "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; for their works follow with them." With these blessed promises, let us not think of her as being dead, but asleep in Jesus. Let us strive to imitate the life of the Master, whom she faithfully served, that we may meet her in the great beyond, where there will be no parting. ANNIE BARTLETT.

Redding.

The years are swiftly passing by and our friends and brethren are now and then called away from their labors on earth. Their bodies we place in the grave and their spirits go to God who gave them. We greatly miss them in the associations and fraternal relations in this life. Years ago I became acquainted with a man for whom I formed a feeling of great attachment because of his manifest interest on the subject of Christianity. He was especially fully fixed and grounded on the proposition that God's word is the only safe guide for the journey of life from time to an eternity of happiness. He maintained that he would neither work nor worship in the vineyard of the Lord outside the clearly revealed methods given in the inspired Scriptures. Joseph Taylor Redding lived in Maury County at Campbell's Sta-He was born on October 27, 1838, and died on April 3, 1920, in his eighty-second year. In the course of his life he had married four women, He was the father of seven childrenthree boys and four girls. these children preceded him to the grave. Surviving are R. T. Redding; Mrs. J. E. Hobbs, of Campbell's Station; and Mrs. Nettie Hodge, of Lynnville, Tenn. He had eighteen grandchildren and seven great-grandchildren. His last wife, who died only a short time before his death, was the mother of all his children, save one, Her maiden name was "Hardison," and a more devoted wife and consecrated Christian woman would be hard to find. Brother Redding became a Christian in early life. He had heard that Brother Wade Barret would preach at Robinson's Fork on a certain Sunday, and, having become convinced of his duty and understanding the conditions of entrance into the service of his Lord, he determined he would go to the meeting and he bap-He took with him a change of raiment. At the close of the sermon, while a song was being sung, Brother Redding went forward and demanded baptism. He confessed his Savior and was baptized. No man, so far as I know, ever lived a more consistent, consecrated, Christian life from the day of obedience to the gospel to the close of his life. His integrity was unquestioned, his honesty unimpeached, and, so far as I know, his life as a Christian was never called in question. His life was an epistle read of all who knew him. He leaves the heritage of a good name to his progeny. May they emulate his exprogeny. May they emulate his ex-emplary life, and may the blessing of heaven be theirs. James E. Scobey.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHII TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHIII TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S
TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to-day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

Cupid

That love sometimes cures disease is a fact that has been called to the attention of the public by a prominent physician. Love is not, however, the cure for all women. Many a woman is nervous and irritable, feels dragged down and worn out for no reason that she can think of.

Doctor Pierce's Favorite Pre-scription gives new life and new strength to weak, worn-out, run-down women. "Favorite Prescription" makes weak women strong and sick women well. It is now sold by all druggists in the United States in tablets as well as liquid form.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo N.Y., for trial pkg. of the tablets. NASHVILLE, TENN.—"I have used Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and found it to do what it is recommended to do. It did me more good than the doctors. I had several and none of them did me any good. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is the only thing for weak, broken-down women. I felt like a new woman after taking it. 12 weighed 155 lbs. and never felt better in my life."—MRS. AGNES TATUM, 175 L. Green St.

CURED HER FITS

Mrs. Paul Gram, residing at 915 Fourth Street, Milwaukee, Wis., recently gave out the following statement: "I had suffered with Fits (Epilepsy) for over fourteen years. Dectors and medicine did me no good. It seemed that I was beyond all hope of relief, when at last I secured a preparation that cured me sound and well. Over ten years have passed, and the attacks have not returned. I wish every one who suffers from this terrible disease would write to R. P. N. Lepso, 198 Island Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., and ask for a bottle of the same kind of medicine which he gave me, He has generously promised to send it postpaid, free to any one who writes him."—Advt.

ECZEMA

IS CURABLE. Write me to-day, and I will send you a free trial of my mild soothing, guaranteed treatment that will prove it. Stops the liching and heals permanently. DR. CANNADAY, 1226 Park Square, Sedalia. Mo.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make moneyatilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit Pigeons are easily raised, prolific, and clean The markete are clamoring for squabs. A few oairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Pigeons No. 6." Carolina Pigeon Plant, Clinton, S. C.

INVENTIVE GENIUS ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Doctors' Favorite Medicine Now Purified and Refined from All Objectionable Effects. "Calotabs''-the New Name.

What will human ingenuity do next? Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, herseless carriages, colorless iodine, tasteless quinine,—now comes nausealess calome! The new improvement called "Calotabs' is now on sale at drugstores.

For biliousness, constination and indigestion the new calome! tablet is a practically perfect remedy, as evidenced by the fact that the manufacturers have authorized all druggists to refund the price if the customer is not "perfectly delighted" with Calotabs. One tablet at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no salts. By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed and you are fealing for with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no salts By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite. Eat what you please—no danger—go about your business.

Calotabs are not sold in bulk Get an original package, sealed. Price, thirty-five cents.—(adv.)

Meeting at Dayton, Ohio. BY C. O. VINCENT.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE.

The Lord willing, beginning on the first Sunday in July and running three or four weeks, the small and faithful band of Christians in Dayton will make an earnest effort to firmly establish the church in that rapidly growing and important city. The church now consists of about fifteen members. None of them are either rich or "well to do" as to money. They meet in a private home. They have been laying by in store for this meeting. A tent has been engaged. They need about one hundred dollars more in order to properly advertise and otherwise meet the demands of such a meeting. Brother R. A. Zahn, of Dugger, Ind., will conduct the song service. He will greatly assist in many ways in this special work. I have been asked to undertake the preaching. Sister Zahn and my wife will be there to help in any scriptural way. Three requests are here made: (1) Will you pray for the success of this meeting? (2) Will you make an offering? (3) Do you know of any faithful brother or sister living in or near Dayton? We want to locate all the faithful in Dayton. If you know of any such, write Homer Wolfe, 402 Edgewood Avenue, Dayton, Ohio; or write me at 1210 North Fourth Avenue, Knoxville, Tenn. Send your offering to Brother Wolfe.

Harper College Gets a New Building. BY L. C. SEARS.

Harper College has just closed one of the most successful years in the history of Christian education. It has been a wonderful year, not only for the work actually accomplished, but even more for the promise of the future; and yet the work accomplished has been beyond our greatest expectations.

In the fall of last year we anticipated an enrollment of two hundred for the year, but it grew to two hundred and seventy-two in all departments. Next year I believe it will reach three hundred and fifty or four hundred. At the opening of the session we had an endowment of about $45,000; this has been increased to $177,500. This large increase in endowment and enrollment has allowed us to add several new teachers to the faculty for the coming year. Four or five of our teachers will have M.A. degrees, while all the teachers in the college and academic departments will have their A.B. degree from a standard university. This increase in faculty is partly in preparation for the senior college, which Harper expects to have in a short time. With the present endowment, we lack just $22,-500 having the minimum required for entrance into the North Central Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools as a standard senior collegea distinction that no Bible school has yet attained; and I believe brethren who love the work will supply the $22,500 before the opening in the fall.

This year we were pressed for room both for housing the students and for class work. But this evil will in a large measure be remedied by the completion of our large dormitory for girls and the erection of a big new dormitory for boys. Brother Z. C. Thompson, president of our Board of Directors, is putting up the boys' dormitory at his own cost. He has let the contract, and the work on the basement and foundation has already been started. It will be rushed to completion at the earliest possible moment, and Brother Thompson believes it will be ready for occupancy by the opening of school, September 7. It is a large two-story building with basement. It will be lighted by electricity and heated by steam throughout, and there will be baths and toilets on each floor. The rooms are all large and comfortable-for the most part eleven by fourteen feet-and each has a good closet in connection. These two splendid new dormitories will make it possible for the school to increase very largely in enrollment next year and to offer our students a comfortable and attractive home while they are with us.

Our new catalogue is being printed and will soon be ready for distribution. Write us for a copy and for information about rooms.

A Century of Service

In 1820 a good, old-fashioned doctor in North Carolina prepared an elniment for skin eruptions. It met the needs of his patients, and has likewise met the needs of millions of other doctors' patients. Gray's Olntment, the compound he prepared, is now rounding its hundredth year of honest, good. old-fashioned service and value. It is very effective for sores, boils, cuts, bruises, burns, stings, eczema, and the many similar forms of skin eruption. It soothes the pain, cleanses the wound, kills the germs, and begins healing. If your druggist cannot supply you, send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., $18 Gray Building, Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you.

God's Gifts.

God gave our lips to me and you To utter words that are kind and true, Brave and cheerful and glad and clean, But never one that is base or mean. We should speak of His love to rich and poor,

And keep the lips that he gave us pure.

God gave us ears to hear the song That echoes ever the world along, Music of waters and birds and breeze, And all life's wonderful melodies; To hear all that is to him akin But never to listen to wrong or sin.

God gave us eyes that we might look At his world like a beautiful open book, Reading his love in fields and skies With earnest, reverent, watchful eyes, And learning wherever we gaze to see His gracious kindness to you and me.

God gave us feet that we should go On errands of mercy to and fro, Walking all of our busy days In upright, honest, virtuous ways; Following only the safest guides, And never straying where sin abides.

God gave our hands to me and you Faithful and grateful work to do; To raise the fallen, the weak to aid, Doing our duty all unafraid; Always using the gifts he gave To help the world that he came to save.

God gave our bodies to you and me Dwellings meet for our souls to be. So should we, as we march along, Keep them healthful and clean and strong

So shall they be through our length of days

Temples filled with the Giver's praise. -L. M. Montgomery.

The Church at Duncan, Ariz.

BY W. F. FOSTER.

We gladly and gratefully acknowledge the following contributions received from our brethren and friends to help us build a meetinghouse at this place. But we must keep on asking for contributions. Brethren, we know there are many appeals for help just now; but if you could only realize the need of the work here, I believe you would not hesitate to assist us to put our plea before the congregations. Send us, at least, part of one Lord's-day's contribution. The Mormons are in the majority here. Won't you help us to build and have the gospel preached to this people? We pray God's blessings on those who have contributed. The following have had fellowship with us: Church of Christ at Munday, Texas, by W. H. Bray, $5; church at Largo, Fla., by W. A. Belchet, $5; church at Palmyra, Ind., by Britton B. Baston, $10; Miles A. Foster, Mocksville, N. C., $1; church at Powell, Texas, by L. M. Warren, $5; church at Mount Vernon, Texas, by J. L. Rutherford, $5; church at Carter, Okla., by J. H. Waggoner, $9; church at Horse Cave, Ky., by H. F. Mustain, $10; church at Loco, Okla., by L. B. Roberson, $5; R. V. Robinson, Stephenville, Texas, $1; I. L. Sanders, Miami, Texas, $5; D. A. Martin, Oxford, Fla., $1; church at Bend, Texas, by James T. White, $4.72; R. C. Nielsen, 1228 Elizabeth Street, Fort Worth, Texas, $2; church at Mooresville, W. Va., by A. R. Fox, $2; church at Sistersville, W. Va., by Jonathan Moores, John M. Eddy, and O. D. Cosper, $11.50; church at Port, Okla., by R. N. Lookingbill, $15; church at Wharton, Texas, by W. C. Harris, $11.20; D. L. Robinson, Smithville, Tenn., $2; W. H. Crain, Houston, Texas, $5; Ben Stern, Wallis, Texas, $8; J. Q. Carter, Statesville, N. C., $1.

The Muskogee Meeting.

BY W. L. OLIPHANT.

We have just closed a grand meeting of four days' duration on East Okmulgee Avenue. This meeting was what is commonly called a "preachers' meeting;" but I think that is the wrong name, as more people attend who are not preachers than who are. The following subjects were discussed: "Duty of the Church Toward Ungodly Members," "Christian Liberty," and "Qualifications and Duties of Elders and Deacons." Other than myself, the following preachers were present; F. L. Rowe, J. N. Armstrong, C. L. Spier, J. M. McCaleb, W. E. Williams, D. C. Williams, O. L. Hays, John W. Hedge, G. R. Matthews, A. M. Foster, D. S. Ligon, Rue Porter, J. C. Hamilton, U. S. Cannon, and Brother Reinhart. If others were present, I cannot call them to mind just now. The very best spirit prevailed all through the meeting. All questions were discussed with firmness, but not without love. The preachers who attended will be long remembered and loved by this congregation. We shall expect to meet them after death in the "home of the soul."

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try it! Make this lemon totion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the jnice of two lemons into bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freekles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

Jell-0 Ice Cream Powder

Makes Ice Cream for two cents a plate

Stir the powder in a quart of milk and freeze. That is all. Everything is in the package. Makes two quarts of delicious ice cream. Vanilla, Strawberry Lemon and Chocolate flavors, and Unflavored.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY Le Roy, N. Y.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freekles, as Othme—double strength—Is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othme—double strength—from your droughst, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should som see that even the worst freekles have begun to disappear, white the lighter mes have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one conce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear completion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as his is sold under guarantee of money back if it falls to remove freekles.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

CHURCH NEWS

Arkansas.

Fort Smith, June 15.—The meeting at Park Hill church of Christ, in this city, was a successful one. Brother J. B. Nelson, of Dallas, Texas, did the preaching and I led the song services. Brother Nelson knows the Book and knows how to tell it, and he did some great work here. We had large attendance throughout the meeting. Brother Nelson stayed until Wednesday night, with four confessions, and I continued the meeeting over Sunday, with four more confessions and two restorations. Eight were baptized, all heads of families. The brethren were strengthened and encouraged to greater efforts. All learned to love Brother Nelson and hope to have him with us again. I began a singing school at Allen last night. My protracted-meeting work will begin the first of July.—Will W. Slater.

Missouri.

Springfield, June 5.—I closed a meeting at Huffman, Ark., May 16, with ten additions, several from the Bap-tists. Brother Charles F. Hardin led the song service. He is fast developing into a great preacher and should be encouraged by the brethren. We left about eighteen members working at Huffman under the leadership of A. S. Miller, a very worthy Christian. spent about a week at home and attended the meetings at Dale and Johnson Streets, conducted by Thaddeus will close a two-weeks' Hudson. meeting at Antioch, near Dunnegan, to-night, after a successful effort to rescue a congregation from digression and dilapidation. I have been assisted in this meeting by Lincoln Baker, a good singer and a loyal Christian. am to begin a two-weeks' effort at Turner and Ramsay Streets, Spring-field, on June 13. I learn that Brother Will Ellmore, of Indiana, will hold a meeting soon at Philipps and Evans Streets, Springfield. S. C. Garner will hold the Flint Hill meeting the first two weeks in October. I go from Springfield to Portageville for the last week in June and the first week in July .- M. S. Mason.

Oklahoma.

McAlester, June 16.—I have just closed a meeting at Harvey, in Kiowa County. It was a busy season and the harvest hindered—thousands of acres of wheat and oats being ent; but bretheren came in their automobiles for miles, some coming as far as twelve and sixteen miles. Three souls were baptized and one erring brother confessed his faults. One lady made the confession, but her family opposed and she failed to obey the Lord.—Bynum Black.

Tennessee.

Livingston, June 14.—I closed a fifteen-days' meeting here last night. There were eight baptisms and one restoration. E. Gaston Collins, who preaches regularly for the church, conducted the song service.—B. C. Goodpasture.

What Is Nuxated Iron?

Physician Explains—Says Public Ought To Know What They Are Taking—Practical Advice On What To Do To Build Up Your Strength, Power and Endurance And Increase Red Blood Corpuscles.

The fact that Nuxated Iron is today being used by over three million people annually and that so many physicians are prescribing it as a tonic, strength and blood builder in weak, nervous, run-down conditions has led to an investigation of its merits by designated physicians and others whose reports should be of great importance to the public generally. Among these is the statement made by Dr. James Francis Sullivan, formerly physician of Bellevue Hospital (Outdoor Dept.). New York and Westchester County Hospitals who says: "When one patient after another began asking my opinion of Nuxated Iron, I reslived to go choroughly into the subject and find out for myself whether or not it possessed the value claimed by its manufacturers and attested to by so many prominent people. This is exactly what I believe every honest, conscientious physician should do before prescribing or lending his endorsement to any product whatsoever. If an article is worthless we practitioners ought to be the first to know at it and if it is efficacious we are in duty bound to recommend it for the welfare of our patients! A study of the composition of the Nuxated Iron formula so impressed me with the therapeutic efficacy of the product that I immediately tested it in a number of obstinate cases. So quickly did it increase the strength, energy and endurance of the patients of whom it was administered that I became firmly convinced of its remarkable value as a tonic and blood builder. I have since taken it myself with excellent results. There are thousands of delicate, nervous, run-down folks who need just such a preparation as this but do not know what to take. Therefore I have urgently suggested the widespread publication of the sworn statement of the composition of its formula so that the public may know what they are taking. This complete formula is now to be found in newspapers throughout the country. It is composed principally of organic iron in the form of Iron peptonate of a special specific standard and glycerophsophates which is one of the most costly tonic ingredients known. To the credit of the manufacturers it may be said that they use the most expensive form of iron peptonate, whereas by employing other makes they could have put the same quantity of actual iron in the tablets at less than one-fourth the cost and by using metallic fron they could have reduced the cost to less than one-twelfth, but by thus cheapening the product they would undoubtedly have impored its therapeutic efficacy. In my opinion a careful examination of this formula by any physician or pharmacist should convince him that Nuxated Iron is to be placed among the very highest class and most strictly ethical preparations known to medical science. It excels anything I have ever used for building up the system and increasing the red blood corpuscies thereby enriching and fortifying the blood against the ravages of disease.

WINTERSMITH'S WI

FOR MALARIA, CHILLS and FEVER ALSO A FINE GENERAL STRENGTHEN-

Those who live nearest to Christ should recognize him most quickly; yet, somehow, with all our background of knowledge about him, we, who so often go where he is, do not see him. We go into the courts of the Lord's house and we see people and hear about people and talk about them, too, We go into the market, and in our bargaining mood we do not discover him under the poor clothes of the needy buyers. We need to see Jesus in life's throng and press. We become sordid if we do not. Let us pray daily for the vision to see our Lord, and find joy in it. Selected.

Revival is a fervor or intensity resolved on the highest aims, a deeper sense of the meaning of life, a determination to subordinate all to God,—J. Leckie.

VACCINATE YOUR HOGS.

BUY SERUM direct from the manufacturers and be assured of a fresh, reliable product. United States Veterinary License No. 114; long-distance phone. Main 2500, Nashville, Tenn. Write for 30-page Hog Book; it to FREE WHITE SERUM COMPANY.

LADIES CAN WEAR SHOES

One size smaller and shoes last longer after using Alben's Foot—Ease, the antiseptic powder for the feet. Shaken into the shoes and aprinkled in the foot bath, Allen's Foot—Ease makes tight or new shoes feel easy; gives instant relief to corns and bunions; prevents bilsters, callous and sore spots. It's the greatest comfort discovery of the age. Try it to-day. Sold everywhere.

DEEP-SEATED

FRECKLES

Need attention NOW or may remain all summer. Use the old and time-tried treatment that has given satisfaction for over 15 years, and rid yourself of these homely spots.

Kintho Beauty Cream

At All Druggists and Department Stores,

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Volume LXII. No. 27,

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 1, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

EDIFYING AS THE NEED MAY BE	633
OUR CONTRIBUTORS	634
QUERY DEPARTMENT	639
TRAINING LITTLE CHILDREN	640
EDITORIAL ,	641
	643
	1844
GEORGIA AND THE FAR SOUTHERN FIELD	646
	650
DOUBLE-TONGUED	652
DO YOU HAVE CHOIR PRACTICE?	653
I REARED MY BOY TO BE A SOLDIER	654
OLD-FASHIONED YEARLY MEETING	654
ABOUT MINNEAPOLIS	654
MEETING AT FORT WORTH, TEXAS	654
WERE THEY PART OF THE LAW?	655
A LETTER FROM WASHINGTON, D. C	656
NOTICE TO THE CHURCHES	656

BY A. H. LIPSCOMB

SOCIOLOGY AND THE BIBLE.

Edifying as the Need May Be

The leaders in sociological research are those who have developed some theory of their own. Again, it is to be noted that every great writer in this field stands for some particular force which he has assumed to be the main force in the making of life and social progress. Tarde, the brilliant French writer, builds his theory upon imitation as the main force; Gumplowicz has selected struggle; Ratenshofer finds in interest the explanation of all things; Giddings stressed consciousness of kind; Ward makes achievement the goal to which all social forces flow.

Let us see to what an extent the Bible might have been used as a helpful ally or might have opposed them in the working out of some of these theories had the authors been disposed to use it freely. We select Lester F. Ward for the reason that his theory is very clearly stated and for the further reason that we have recently made a critical study of his work on "Pure Sociology." That we may proceed intelligently, let us give a brief digest of what he means by his central idea of achievement. He starts with the assertion that we are not to consider what men are, but what they do. We are to study more from the viewpoint of physiology rather than that of anatomy. Function is the chief end. He deals with social activities, not after a descriptive method, but as a logical process by which the various social products have been created. According to this author, "material civilization consists in the utilization of the materials and forces of nature." Spiritual clvilization is based upon the material.

Achievement implies permanency. The products of achievement do not consist in material goods or wealth. The real products are found in the means employed, not in the ends obtained. They are not material things, but institutions and inventions, anything and everything that rises above mere imitation or repetition. The fundamental condition of achievement is social continuity. Individuals may die, but the race continues. Species may become extinct, but the genus remains. Society consists in a series of existing institutions. From Ward's viewpoint, "the highest type of men stand on an elevated platform which man and nature, working together, have erected in the long course of the ages. This is not only true of our time, but it has been true of all times. The most advanced of any age stand on the shoulders, as it were, of those of the preceding age; only with each succeeding age the platform is raised a degree higher. The platforms of previous ages become the steps in the great staircase of civilization, and these steps remain unmoved and are perpetuated by human history." His theory reveals the triumph of the directive agent.

The Bible contains abundant and striking examples of the permanency of achievement. The great sevenfold promise that God made to Abraham is contained in these words: "I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and be thou a blessing: and I will bless them that bless thee, and him that curseth thee will I curse; and in thee shall all families of the earth be blessed." (Gen. 12: 2, 3.) From this we learn that what he achieved through faith became a permanent asset for the betterment of the human race. The achievement of righteous Abel is in the same class. Four thousand years after he had passed from the scene of action the writer of the letter to the Hebrews in the New Testament refers to it, saying: "Through It [Abel's achievement] he being dead yet speaketh." (Heb. 11: 4.) In the same chapter are given the names of other great men and women who wrought great achievements through faith. In honoring the deed of the woman who broke the alabaster box of precious cintment and poured it upon his head, Jesus said: "Wheresoever the gospel shall be preached throughout the whole world, that also which this woman hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her." (Mark 14: 9.) As one small proof of the permanency of this achievement, I am writing about it in this paper here in the twentieth century.

Moreover, the Bible sustains and exemplifies Ward's definition of an institution. His ideal institution is a social structure. The institutions of the Bible answer this description. The institutions mentioned in the Bible are noted for their permanency. The Passover, while strictly typical in its significance, lasted for hundreds of years. "And this day shall be unto you for a memorial, and ye shall keep it a feast to Jehovah: throughout your generations ye shall keep it a feast by an ordinance forever." (Ex. 12: 14:) The Passover was superseded in Jesus' time by the Lord's Supper. This institution, we are assured, will be celebrated until he comes again. Speaking in a prophetic way of the church he was about to establish, Jesus said to Peter: "Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it." (Matt. 16: 18.) Ward dwells with peculiar emphasis upon the fact that institutions are imperishable. Paul makes the same claim for spiritual life. "Wherefore we faint not; but though our outward man is decaying, yet our inward man is renewed day by day." (2 Cor. 4: 16.) The same thought is contained in Jesus' assertion that "a man's life consisteth not in the abundance of things which he possesseth." (Luke 12: 15.) The condition of social continuity, or of one race contributing to another, may be effectively illustrated by numerous passages relating to God's purpose in dealing with Israel and by the law which was "our schoolmaster to bring us to Christ." (Gal. 3: 24.) There are numerous other passages bearing on Ward's general theory of achievement, but these are enough to demonstrate the effectiveness of the Bible in sustaining and illustrating his position.

Brother Srygley to Teach at David Lipscomb College.

It gives me pleasure to announce that F. B. Srygley will be associated with me and the other teachers at David Lipscomb College in teaching the Bible. The engagement of Brother Srygley for this work is in line with our promise to keep the school true to the purposes for which it was founded and to give Bible study a supreme place in its curriculum. No man is better known or more generally esteemed in the Christian brotherhood. He will bring with him the benefit of the experience of many years in the evangelistic field, during which he has stood loyally for the truth as opposed to human error. Brother Srygley has reared and educated a large family of children, all of whom are filling useful and honorable positions. He knows the value of an education, the dangers and pitfalls of youth, the worth of a father's counsel and a mother's love. For such reasons his presence in our faculty should have a salutary influence upon the student body. He has not sought this assignment, but, on the other hand, had to be importuned to undertake it. Brother Srygley is honest, straightforward, and forceful in all of his dealings, blessings that have attended his labors attest the wisdom of such a course. We believe that many of our readers will be glad to learn of this arrangement. The new catalogue of David Lipscomb College is now ready for mailing, and a copy will be sent upon request,

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney—one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?" This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake.

The Congregation and Its Worship.

BY LEE JACKSON.

"Say not thou, What is the cause that the former days were better than these? for thou dost not inquire wisely concerning this." (Solomon.)

Admitting the correctness of this philosophic statement of Solomon, we are yet compelled to open our eyes to the fact that existing conditions indicate that the status of our plea for New Testament teaching and practice is not as good in many quarters as it was in the former days. One of the papers now claiming to stand for this plea came into my hands to-day, and in it I find an article written in protest against the "Interchurch World Movement," so called. The protest is all right, and I agree with the writer in the good things that he says; but in his article he refers to the "church of Christ" as a denomination. He tells that we owe it to our denomination to fight against the interchurch movement just as the Methodists owe it in the interest of their denomination to fight against it. The editor of the paper referred to went through more than one college, finishing his education with a course of instruction in the College of the Bible in Kentucky University. I know that some of the preachers identified with us who have been denied the advantages of being trained in any of our Bible schools are in the habit of referring to all of our congregations as simply constituting one "church of Christ," thus using the designation "church of Christ" in a denominational sense; but I must confess surprise and chagrin at such forms of speech coming from those who were trained under the preaching and teaching of the old vanguard. Such men as J. W. McGarvey, Moses E. Lard, David Lipscomb, Isaac Errett, or T. B. Larimore, never taught any of their students to think of the congregations identified with us in our plea as constituting but one church. These old teachers at least taught us to speak of these congregations as churches of Christ, thus following the New Testament rule of using the plural form when reference is made to more than one congregation. Those among us who now refer to all of our congregations as constituting one body of people which they call the "one church of Christ" are drawing a denominational line, and have, therefore, drifted away from our early teaching.

Calling the horse a chicken does not make it a chicken, neither does naming a millpond the Pacific Ocean make that pond an ocean. To be entitled to the designation "church of Christ," a congregation or assembly of persons must possess the distinctive marks of those congregations which are called "churches of Christ" in our English New Testament. The distinctive marks of the primitive congregations of Christ were a distinctive faith and a distinctive worship. The faith of the persons making up the membership of a New Testament congregation was faith in the crucified and risen Christ as the Savior of men. This faith was then, and is now, the faith of gospel teaching. The definite article before the word "faith" occurs about one hundred times in the Greek New Testament, according to scholars, and out of this number of occurrences the English translators retained its use about thirty times. I mention this for the purpose of suggesting that there is no real reason for claiming that the definite article before the word "faith" is used to indicate some system of doctrine which primitive Christians accepted as the object of their faith. Their primary system of doctrine was a system of teaching in the form of gospel testimony concerning the one Savior in whom they believed, and the doctrine which came after this was a systematic teaching that enjoined upon believers the necessity of obedience to their Savior's authority. No such thing as a set of abstract opinions regarding either the testimony or the teaching was made a test of fellowship in the New Testament congregations. Those who were baptized into Christ became participants in the worship and fellowship of the congregation as a natural sequence of this act of obedience to the authority of Christ.

The leading and central act of the worship in which the members of a New Testament congregation engaged not only represented their faith in Christ as a crucified and risen Savior, but it also gave expression to that faith before the eyes of an onlooking world. The gathering of the believers in Christ to partake of the loaf and the wine in commemoration of his suffering and death upon the cross marked them as essentially different from all other assemblages of worshipers. Jewish worshipers in their synagogues and pagan worshipers in their temples and pagodas would offer prayers, sing songs, and repeat psalms, but none except Christian worshipers made use of the bread and wine as expressive of their faith in the One who had suffered and died in order to bring life into a perishing world. By this gathering of the disciples at the table of the Lord on the day of his resurrection the congregations of Christ were known throughout the provinces of the Roman Empire and in all parts of the world where converts to Christ were made. Being widely dispersed throughout distantly separated regions, these converts could not meet at the same place as one congregation; hence there were many of these congregations, called "churches" in our English Testament. They were not all the same congregation-not all the same church-but they all met on the same day, all had the one common faith in the Christ as the Savior of all, and all had the same common table as central in their worship. In this one common worship each separate congregation was required to keep the "unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

Some men-and women, too-apparently love factionalism. Such men and women were in the congregations of the apostolic age, and they are present among us to-day. Some of them make a great ado about the discussion of vital issues for the sake of investigation through the enlightening columns of our papers, even threatening to close out their subscriptions if such discussions are not stopped, and yet in their own home circle they exaggerate every minor issue which tends toward creating dissensions and divisions in their home congregation. Sometimes such brethren claim to be sounder in the faith than other brethren, claiming to be more loyal than others simply because all do not hold to the same opinions that they hold, and yet for the sake of their notions they encourage a sentiment of factiousness that causes brethren to absent themselves from the worshiping congregation on Lord's day. While never making an effort to build up an interest in the worshiping assembly, they tell us that they belong to the "church of Christ," using the name "church of Christ" in the sense that it is used by the denominations.

The Church of the New Testament.

BY F. W. SMITH.

The promise made by Jesus Christ, "Upon this rock I will build my church," was most certainly fulfilled. Moreover, he established a perfect church in all its entirety, fully adapted to and thoroughly furnished for the work he assigned it; but owing to the confusion in the minds of the masses relative to the divine institution designated by the term "church," it becomes necessary to call attention to the misconception of this vital matter. There are a multiplicity of religious bodies in the world with different articles of faith and designated by different names to which the term "church" is applied, as if the word of God abounded with reference to such institutions. The people accustomed to such theological phraseology are under the impression that all of these religious bodies are either churches of Christ or all taken together constitute the church of God; hence, it is extremely common to hear such religious denominations referred to as "branches of the church." One is frequently asked, "To which branch of the church do you belong?" as if the church Christ established was composed of branches made up of different religious organizations.

To be sure, the Scriptures speak of "branches," but no reference whatever is made to religious bodies for the simple reason that no such things were then in existence. The branches referred to are individual members of the church. In proof of this the Savior says: "I am the vine, ye [individuals] are the branches." (John 15: 5.) It is an indisputable fact that when we open our New Testament we search in vain for a single mention of a single denomination in existence to-day. In fact, the word of God, instead of being the author of denominations, sects, and parties in religion, positively condemns such institutions. (See 1 Cor. 1: 10-13.) Thus, when some of the congregation at Corinth attempted to organize denominations, they were severely rebuked. Hence, it follows that it is as great a sin to belong to a party or denomination and wear a denominational name to-day as it was in the days of the apostles. It is, therefore, a most stubborn fact that no one can follow the word of God, believe just what it says and do just what it commands, and become a member of a single denomination in Christendom.

In order to become a member of any one of the religious denominations, a person must believe things and practice things unauthorized by the word of God. The church of the New Testament is referred to as "one body," and this one body is the body of Christ. "For in one Spirit were we all baptized into one body," (1 Cor. 12: 13.) The "one body" is the one church; and "he [Christ] is the head of the body, the church." (Col. 1: 18.) This one body, over which Christ, the one Head, presides, was never intended by its divine Founder to be divided into parties or denominations. I, therefore, say in the language of a great student of God's word: "The church of Christ upon earth is essentially and constitutionally one, consisting of all those in every place that profess their faith in Christ and obedience to him in all things according to the Scriptures, and that manifest the same by their tempers and conduct, and none else can be truly and properly called Christians."

The religious body known in current religious literature as the "Christian Church," and whose national conventions meet annually, is a denomination pure and simple. They number their communicants about one and a quarter million. The fact that they hold to more truth than some other denominations does not free them from denominationalism. Those who speak of the "Christian Church" in Nashville refer to only a limited number of congregations, while the church of Christ includes every child of God in this city. It would be proper to speak of the "church of Christ" in Nashville or in the world, meaning to include every child of God in the city or in the world; but those who speak of the "Christian Church," as a rule, do not so use the word "church." They refer not to the entire body of Christ, but are using the word "church" in a denominational sense. The church of Christ and body of Christ are one and the same. (Col. 1: 24.) But a few of the members of his body (1,250,000) call themselves and are known in the religious world as the "Christian Church." This fact cannot be met and covered up by saying that the difference between the church of Christ and the "Christian Church" is the same as that between "a stack of hay and a haystack."

True enough, the New Testament speaks of the "churches" of Christ-"All the churches of Christ salute you" (Rom, 16: 16); but reference is here made only to congregations of disciples which were all precisely alike, because built upon the same pattern and doctrinenamely, the doctrine of Christ and his inspired apostles. (Eph. 2: 19, 20.) Inasmuch, therefore, as denominations are not the product of the word of God, and are not, as rellgious organizations, any part of the body of Christ, whence came they? To any unbiased student of sacred and profane history, the question is not difficult of solution. The congregations of disciples planted by the apostles and evangelists of the New Testament were free and independent of each other in so far as any organic law binding them into any synod, conference, association, or convention was concerned. Each congregation was presided over by a plurality of bishops, or overseers, and each managed its own affairs without the dictation or interference of others; but in process of time they departed from this order, and from this departure has evolved every sect in Christendom. Furthermore, the congregations of the New Testament were intensely missionary in both spirit and practice.

It is doubtful if the world has in any period since the New Testament witnessed such missionary activities as were displayed by those first disciples; yet it is a fact, so clear and so unobscured that "he who runs may read," that no society, mission board, nor any sort of organization other than the local congregation, existed for the spread of the gospel. While the New Testament shows church cooperation in mission work, it was simply and only such cooperation as each congregation sending directly by one of its own chosen messengers its contribution to the evangelist in the field. (See Phil. 4: 15, 16.) There is not the shadow of an organization in the New Testament other than a local congregation with its bishops and deacons (Phil. 1: 1), and "any religious organization larger than a local congregation and yet smaller than the entire body of Christ, which includes all of God's children," is a human institution in rebellion against God's It follows, therefore, that missionary societies, boards, and conventions of modern times are contrary to the word of God and are a reflection on divine wisdom and goodness. Those who organize and operate such say by their actions that the Lord made a serious blunder and was not wise enough to put into operation an institution sufficiently adequate for his work. The worship of the New Testament church is noted for the simplicity and freedom from anything even bordering on show or display.

The disciples met on the first day of the week to celebrate the Lord's Supper, read the Scriptures, and admonish one another. (Acts 20: 7.) The praise they rendered to God in their assemblies was simply and only by means of vocal music. They never used instrumental music in worship; but in receiving the command to praise God the apostles used a specific word to denote the kind of music they were to offer-that is, to "sing." (Eph. 5: 19; Col. 3: 16.) Thus by the use of a "specific" word we are limited in the music we offer to God in worship to the kind only that can be made with the vocal organs. The utter absence of instrumental music in the worship of the congregations of the New Testament and the fact that it was not used in Christian worship for hundreds of years after the death of the last apostle should cause people to fear and tremble in thus adding to his word.

Under Judaism, or the old covenant, instrumental music was a command of God. (2 Chron. 29: 25.) Those who introduce it into Christian worship are obligated to show us when, how, and where it ceased to be a command and resolved itself into an aid or expedient. It cannot, from the very nature of the case, be an aid or expedient, but, if used at all, must be done as a command of God. This, bowever, no one will hardly claim; for we would be compelled to use instrumental music every time we praised God or be in disobedience. Instrumental music in the worship of God ceased at the same time and for the same reason that animal sacrifice, the burning of incense, and the keeping of the Sabbath ceased. The same principle that would admit of instrumental music in the church will admit any or all of the other things mentioned in this connection. If not, why not?

There are local congregations, or the church in its local sense, revealed in the New Testament, in which were elders and deacons, whose qualifications and duties are clearly laid out. This order was intended to be perpetuated until the end of time, and every church to-day that has men in its fellowship who, by reason of exercise and growth, possess the requisite qualifications should recognize them as elders and should honor them as such.

Mormonism, Alias Latter-Day Saints. No. 3.

BY R. B. NEAL.

Was Joseph Smith a prophet? View his prophecies in the light of history and you have the correct answer. Here is a clear-cut revelation concerning Independence, Mo., handed out in September, 1832:

Verily, this is the word of the Lord, that the city New Jerusalem shall be built by the gathering of the saints, beginning at this place, even the place of the temple, which temple shall be reared in this generation; for verily this generation shall not pass away until a house shall be built unto the Lord, and a cloud shall rest upon it, which cloud shall be even the glory of the Lord, which shall fill the house.

In Mormon parlance, Independence, Mo., is known as "New Jerusalem" or "Zion."

Speaking of the bitter fight between the "Josephites" and the "Hedrickites" for the temple lot at Independence, Elder C. A. Wicks, copying from the Kansas City Journal, says in The Return, page 16, January, 1896:

The property is valuable from a commercial standpoint, but doubly so to each side, for to both it is the greatest spot on earth, the site of the greatest temple even seen by man, to be creeted when the final gathering of the people of the peculiar faith is ordered at the place that to them is Zion.

Both factions of the church agree that the site was the one selected by Joseph Smith in 1832, by divine revelation, and designated as the place for the temple, and each faction claims to be the legitimate representative of the church.

Note that the one-day-old babe when this prophecy was made is now fourscore and eight years old. As the measurement of a "generation" is thirty years, about three generations have come and gone, and no sign of the building of his great temple at Independence. Not many, if any left, that were on earth when Joseph made this great prediction.

Admit that the term "generation" signifies "the life or age of a man," as a Mormon elder contended, the claim does not benefit him.

"The city of the New Jerusalem; which city shall be built, beginning at the temple lot, which is appointed by the finger of the Lord, in the western boundaries of the State of Missouri, and dedicated by the hand of Joseph Smith, Jr., and others with whom the Lord is well pleased."

The "city of New Jerusalem" which was to be built and the "big temple" to be erected both must soon be reared or this prediction will land Joseph in the vanguard of the hosts of false prophets and blight and blast forever the hopes of Mormondom.

It is now contended that both city and temple will come down from heaven ready built. That is the only solution. Even that time has passed. Listen: "Joseph, my son, if thou livest till thou art eighty-five years old, thou shalt see the face of the Son of man; therefore let this suffice, and trouble me no more in this matter."

Joseph was praying "very earnestly" to know the time of the coming of the Son of man, and he "heard a voice" saying what is given above.

As Jesus is to come when the temple is built and ready at Independence, and not before, this revelation teaches (?) that it was to be complete by 1890. Joseph was born in 1805, plus 85 would be 1890. Thirty years have come and gone; no city, no temple,

I hand out a quotation from "Booth's Bombs," page 7. It was written in September, 1831, soon after his "wildgoose chase" with Smith, Rigdon, Cowdery, and others, to Independence to "lay the foundation of the city of Zion and the corner stone of the temple of God." He is writing to a Methodist minister. He says:

You are not, it is probable, ignorant of the designs of my most singular and romantic undertaking. Sufficient to say, it was for the purpose of exploring the promised land, laying the foundation of the city of Zion, and placing the corner stone of the temple of God. A journey of one thousand miles to the West has taught me far more abundantly than I should have probably learned from any other source. It has taught me, quite beyond my knowledge, the imbecility of human nature, and especially my own weakness. It has unfolded in its proper character a delusion to which I had fallen a victim, and taught me the humiliating truth that I was exerting the powers of both my mind and body, and sacrificing my time and property, to build up a system of delusion almost unparalleled in the annals of the world.

Eighty-nine years, next September, will have passed since he penned the above words, and each one and all confirm his conclusion that Mormonism is a "system of delusion" and "unparalleled in the annals of the world."

I have a few extra copies of this tract of Booth that I will gladly send to any one desiring to read the whole account of the "laying of the foundation of the city and the corner stone of the temple" and how the pilgrimage "opened his eyes" to the fact that Smith was a false prophet and Mormonism a fake.

But back to the prediction. If Mormondom believed this cap-sheaf prophecy of its founder, not only the faces of all Mormons would be turned toward Independence, their Zion, but the feet of every man and woman and child would be taking them there to aid with willing hands to build this grand temple of earth to be the home of Jesus.

If Mormondom believed this prophecy, Independence would grow more rapidly than any place on this earth for the next few years.

Salt Lake City, Utah, and Lamoni, Iowa, would be given over to the moles and the bats and grass would grow in their streets.

How Mormondom can accept him as a prophet and practically reject his prophecy is a problem we refer to a Philadelphia lawyer.

We rest in the conclusion that Joseph Smith, Jr., was not a prophet of God. (1 Tim. 4: 1-3.)

Relief Fund.

"A Sister," Eagleville, Tenn $ Church at Coal City, Ind
Mary & D. Dowle and Mine Cools Habba Timerilla
Ala	2.40
Mrs. D. G. Smith's class, Stevenson, Ala
Martha Wooldridge, Martha, Okla	3.00

In sending contributions, be sure and state whether they are intended for the Home Orphans' Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Fund, or the Poland Fund. I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for orphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb, who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

A Breezy Letter From Canada.

D. Harry Jackson writes from Toronto, Canada, under date of June 16, to Brother A. B. Lipscomb. As Brother Lipscomb is out of the city, the liberty is taken of publishing this letter in his absence without his consent. Brother Jackson writes as follows:

My Dear Brother Lipscomb: Our "June meeting" closed on Monday night—a full house and two baptisms. W. D. Campbell was in fine form. He spoke to the young people, and, to my mind, it was his best.

It gives me pleasure to tell you how much the brethren enjoyed your addresses. Your sermons, though old (?), were well thought out and faultlessly delivered. Personally, you were an inspiration to me and my idea of a Christian minister. The program committee are congratulating themselves on their wise choice.

I know the meeting has strengthened us all in the faith and inspired us to nobler, purer, and better living. Be assured, Brother Lipscomb, you have a warm place in the hearts of the Ontario brethren and a hearty welcome awaits you here.

I know it is of no use asking you to return in the fall for a two-weeks' meeting at Fern Avenue. We need a strong man to help us reap our harvest. Whom would you suggest?

I wish you every success in your new work. I pray the college will always honor its founder and glorify and honor God. I want to put my children in the college in a year or two. Please send me a catalogue,

Many thanks for your inspiration.

Yours sincerely and fraternally,
D. Harry Jackson.

Heart Pictures.

BY R. P. CUFF.

(Alumni poem for David Lipscomb College.)

Each heart is lined with pictures, small
And large—they're either bright or wan—
With thoughts perhaps of Lindsay Hall,
Perhaps with smiles for Avalon.

Fond Mem'ry likes her portraits rare.

The landscape green, the beauteous vale,
The joys of home are pictured there,
Where comes no storm, where blows no gale.

And even in the life's decline,
Though stars may blink, the moon may fail,
The sun in splendor cease to shine,
No picture there will e'er grow pale.

The heart creates for man his world.

One views a sweetly smiling scene

Where'er he goes. To some is hurled

The woes of life, the world's cold mien.

It all depends upon the heart.

The burning lamp sends out the light Along its way, e'en from the start.

It nothing finds but radiance bright.

The cold firebrand encounters dark.

When on its search for lightened way,
It cannot find a place to park;
It sheds no light—all's night, not day.

The ills we meet, when walking on Smooth ground, where hills their shadows cast, So that we pant and climb, when gone Are hills we fancy must be passed.

As 'tis with hills, just so with ills:
They need be met by those who look
For them. To others sing the rills,
The stars, the trees, the birds, the brook.

People often say: "Religion will deprive me of all that has hitherto constituted the joy of my life." Yes, but the joy of your life will be changed; your appetites will be changed." Have you not known people in a severe illness to lose their taste for things of which they were previously fond? That is just what God does for the soul. He takes away the appetite for those things which had been their joy in their unconverted state, and gives them new joys, new tastes, new impulses, and new aims in life.—Australian Outlook.

Justified by Faith and Through Faith.

BY GEORGE W. BROWN.

Paul says in Rom. 3: 29, 30: "Is he the God of the Jews only? is he not also of the Gentiles? Yes, of the Gentiles also: seeing it is one God, which shall justify the circumcision by faith, and uncircumcision through faith." According to Paul's language, the circumcision and uncircumcision were not justified the same way.

Peter says: "And account that the long-suffering of our Lord is salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also according to the wisdom given unto him hath written unto you; as also in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things; in which are some things hard to be understood, which they that are unlearned and unstable wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction." (2 Pet. 3: 15, 16.)

Now I believe there are hundreds of thousands who have wrested the above scriptures to their own destruction—that is, they think they can be saved or justified by faith; or, as they say, believe and the work is done—that is, they are in a saved state.

I want to say that, according to the Scriptures, all before the death of Christ that were saved through his death and shedding of his blood when he opened up the fountain were saved by faith, and all since his death that have been saved have been saved through faith.

The first promise of Christ was made in Gen. 3: 15. God also renewed the promise in Gen. 17: 19: "I will establish my covenant with him for an everlasting covenant, and with his seed after him." God said in Zech, 13: 1: "In that day there shall be a fountain opened to the house of David and to the inhabitants of Jerusalem for sin and for uncleanness." Paul says in Gal. 3: 23-25: "But before faith came, we were kept under the law, shut up unto the faith which should afterwards be revealed. Wherefore the law was our schoolmaster to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith." Paul shows them that before faith came they were kept under the law, and the law was their schoolmaster to bring them unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith, not through faith. Paul means that all under the law before Christ came were to be justified by faith. In verse 25 he says: "But after that faith is come, we are no longer under a schoolmaster."

"Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." (Heb. 11: 1.) Before Christ came they lived under shadows and types of some substance: for when we see a shadow, there is some substance that produced the shadow. So when Christ came and suffered and died and shed his blood and opened that fountain above spoken of, it was the substance that produced the shadows and types that the people served God under until Christ came. When that fountain was opened, it flowed backward to Adam, and extends forward to the end of this world; and as they looked forward to Christ's coming to redeem them, all that they could do was to offer these sacrifices that they were commanded to offer, which could not take away sins, but only rolled them forward one year at a time as long as they lived, for there was a remembrance made of sin every year as long as they lived; and as these people could not live until Christ came, they went into the state of death. So we see that the fountain had to be opened in death where they were, in order that they might be cleansed. If it had been opened in life, then they would have had to be brought back to life in order to get into the fountain. But the fountain was opened in death where the dead were.

By Christ dying, and after he was dead, his side was pierced and there came forth water and blood, which is the fountain spoken of; and as it is the blood of Christ that cleanseth us from all sin, this fountain reaches back to Adam as well as to the end of this world, as you can see.

Now, as all that were saved, or justified, were saved by the death of Christ and the shedding of his blood, which he offered once for all, so since his death all that have been saved have been saved through faith-that is, all that have become responsible to God. (Gal. 3: 8.) "And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed." Eph. 2: 8: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God." Circumcision was binding on the Jews until the death of Christ; since that, circumcision or uncircumcision availeth nothing. In speaking of being justified by faith and through faith, we now come to the apostle Paul, who was not made an apostle as the twelve were made apostles, by submitting to John's preaching. They repented and submitted to John's baptism, and by believing on the name of Christ until Christ died and shed his blood, by that operation they were justified by faith. John came to prepare a people for the Lord, and the twelve apostles complied with that preparation and were ready to be justified by faith. But Paul did not prepare himself as the others did, so he could not be justified by faith, and after the death of Christ it was too late to be justified by faith, so we see him years afterwards justified through faith after the death of Christ. In 1 Cor. 15; 8 Paul said he was as one "born out of due time"-that is, he was not made an apostle when the twelve were. He did not see Christ when they did; but "last of all he was seen of me also, as one born out of due time." In verse 10 he says: "I labored more abundantly than they all: yet not I, but the grace of God which was with me." Gal. 2: 8: "For he that wrought effectually in Peter to the apostleship of the circumcision, the same was mighty in me toward the Gentiles." Gal. 3: 8: "And the scripture, foreseeing that God would justify the heathen through faith, preached before the gospel unto Abraham, saying, In thee shall all nations be blessed." Gal. 3: 14: "That the blessing of Abraham might come on the Gentiles through Jesus Christ; that we might receive the promise of the Spirit through faith." Not by faith, but through faith. Heb. 11: 1: "Now faith is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen." We will have to admit that Christ and his blood were that substance hoped for, for "the blood of Christ cleanseth us from all sin." Now, when Christ died, this fountain was opened in death so as to redeem them that were in death-that is, all them that had done what God had told them to do for their redemption; and when this fountain was opened, as I said before, it flowed back to Adam and extends forward to the end of the world.

We can see, then, by that operation-that is, the death. burial, and resurrection of Christ-that all before that time were justified by that operation, and all this side are saved through the faith of the operation of God. Col. 2: 12: "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him through the faith of the operation of God, who hath raised him from the dead." Rom, 6: 3-5: "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death? Therefore we are buried with him by baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised up from the dead by the glory of the Father, even so we also should walk in newness of life. For if we have been planted together in the likeness of his death, we shall be also in the likeness of his resurrection." In citing the reader to this scripture, I want to impress upon his or her mind the importance of being baptized into the death of Christ, where the fountain is open, where the blood of Christ is, which cleanses us from all sin. Dear reader, it is my heart's desire and prayer that we may all study Gcd's word and meditate upon it and take the safe side, that we may make our peace, calling, and election sure; for we have to stand before the judgment seat of Christ, to give an account of our stewardship here.

Query Department

By J. C. McQUIDDY

J. S. Westbrooks, of Christiana, Tenn., inquires to know if a wayward brother should make his own confession or if some one else should make it for him. He supposes a sister to have made a mistake, and wishes to know if she should get up and do her own talking. When men are able to do so intelligently, they should make their own confessions, and make them to the church. If they are not able to do this intelligently, then it will be acceptable for some one to make confession for them, and thus the erring brother makes his confession through another. This is often done. In the case of a sister, it would be well for an elder to make the confession for her in harmony with the facts in the case. In all such cases people should be controlled by expediency and decency. Where God has laid down no rule, we should not attempt to make one for him. If God has revealed any definite way on this subject, I have never seen it. 0 0 0

J. W. Burgan, of Sinai, Ky., is not satisfied with the answer I gave concerning partaking of the Lord's Supper more than one time upon each Lord's day. He quotes 1 Cor. 11: 25, 26, which says: "In like manner also the cup, after supper, saying, This cup is the new covenant in my blood: this do, as often as ye drink it, in remembrance of me. For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come." He places special stress on the word "often," and inquires if just once on the first day of the week or as often as the opportunity is offered is meant. The observance of the Lord's Supper emphasizes two great facts-the Lord's death, that he has died, and his second coming, that he is yet to come again. The observance of the Lord's Supper is to continue until he comes again. As we find the disciples meeting upon the first day of the week at least one time, and not frequently on the same day, I can see no authority in the Bible whatever for a man practicing breaking bread a number of times upon each first day of the week. If Christians will only be faithful and observe it as Christ commands upon each first day of the week, it will be well with them. The great neglect that is to be deplored is that so many do not meet at all for worship on the first day of the week.

* * *

A brother wishes an explanation of 1 John 3: 9. The passage reads: "Whosoever is begotten of God doeth no sin, because his seed abideth in him: and he cannot sin, because he is begotten of God." (1) He inquires to know if this passage teaches that it is impossible for a man to sin. (2) He wishes to know the difference of the anointing of Saul and David. He says a Missionary Baptist says that Saul was the people's king and that David was God's king; while he thinks both were chosen of God and both were anointed by Samuel, the man of God.

1. In answer to the first question, I quote the answer given by Brother David Lipscomb in "Queries and Answers," pages 67, 68: "It is a passage that there is always difficulty over. We answer it, on an average, every three months, I think. It cannot mean that it is impossible for a man to sin. That contradicts too many other passages of scripture. The greatest sin is to think a man cannot sin. That is the presumptuous sin. The best construction I can put on it is that so long as the word of God, which is the seed of the kingdom, remains in his heart, he cannot intentionally live in a course of sin. John, in this Epistle, has been discussing those who claim to have no sin, and so need not the blood of Christ to take away their sin, in contrast with those who are cleansed by his blood through walking in the light as Jesus is in the light. This contrast he keeps up here, and speaks of those who accept the word of God and cannot live in that course of sin that denies they need the blood of Christ to cleanse them from sin. God warns, 'Let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall' (1 Cor. 10: 12)—that is, when he becomes confident he cannot sin, he is in greatest danger of committing the presumptuous sin. Man in the flesh never gets above the weaknesses of mortality. To live free from sin of omission or commission is to be equal with Christ Jesus our Lord."

2. There is no doubt that Saul was chosen by God as well as David was chosen by him. Adam Clarke says Saul may have been anointed at Gilgal by the people the second time. Josephus states definitely that he was anointed the second time. While no one knows definitely, I hold the view that, as the anointing by Samuel at the beginning was not well known, it was announced at Gilgal so that all the people might know it and approve the selection. This seems necessary, but there is no apparent reason for the second anointing. As to this, however, I would not be positive. David was loved and approved by the people as much as, or possibly more than, Saul. We are told in 1 Sam. 18: 16: "But all Israel and Judah loved David; for he went out and came in before them." Saul could have been the people's king only in the sense that, after he grew proud and ceased to be humble as he was in the beginning of his kingdom, he labored more to please the people than he did to please God. David, it appears, always sought the approval of God more than the approval of men. When he greatly sinned, he humbly confessed his sin and turned away from it. I think it is a distinction without a difference when one tries to make Saul the people's king and David God's king. The throne under the rule of Saul and under the rule of David was God's throne, and God approved both of these men to be king. It is true that Saul was anointed with a vial and David was anointed with a horn; but I do not understand that the vial and the horn show that one was the people's king, while the other was God's king. People should cease to make such fine distinctions and confine themselves strictly to truths that are clearly revealed. There is sufficient truth clearly revealed to occupy the brightest minds until Gabriel blows his trumpet. Much strife and contention arises from making fine distinctions where God has not made them.

0 0 0

Brother B. Lee, of Quitman, Ga., inquires to know if it is scriptural for one member to confess to another and let that person confess to the church for him. He says: "I contend that it is not, for the reason the Bible says, 'Confess therefore your sins one to another, and pray one for another, that ye may be healed,' but does not say confess to one and let him confess to the church." The New Testament does not make one man a priest for another. Each Christian is a priest and a king unto God for himself. He must approach God for himself and must confess his faults to God. Christians should be ready to confess their sins to each other and should be ready to forgive one another. I am sure that God does not expect one man to establish a confessional for the church and have those who sin to come and make confession of their secret sins. God has never encouraged us to do this, and such action will not bring freedom from sin.

Training Little Children

Sharing a Playroom.

"Thumble Rajah" stood with his legs far apart and pronounced three-year-old judgment. "I like Jim," he declared, "because he always 'vides." That, after all, is the real basis for childish estimation of character as well as for mature standards. The child or grown-up who divides fairly is the likable, desirable member of society.

How, then, are we going to make sure of that fundamental quality in our children? We are all familiar with the usual possibilities for generosity found in the life of a small child: the division of some treat of sweetmeats, the sharing of playthings with brothers and sisters. These are good, but we need a basis for sharing larger than that offered by such opportunities. Sharing should be a continuous experience with the creative impulse behind it just as much as any other educative process. We must take sharing out of the immediate realm of home activities and, though keeping a home connection with it, make it a more social activity, so that it shall become a pleasure rather than a virtue.

The following experiment worked out in our own playroom with such success that it seems capable of much enlargement and offers at least some light on the question. Last winter the children had so many books that their father built a bookshelf running the entire length of one side of the playroom. It was low enough for the children to inspect with ease the titles and covers of the books; for they were arranged with their covers turned outward so as to meet the need of "Thumbie Rajah," to whom the cover, not the title, spells the name of a book. During the week following the erection of the bookshelf perhaps as many as eight children from other homes came into the playroom. Immediately the shelf of books held their attention. They drew about it, and much conversation as to the different books and their respective merits ensued. Ruth read eagerly to an absorbed group of younger children from a book, heretofore too difficult for her six-year-old knowledge, impelled by the desire to have them share the facinating detalls of the story. Before the week was over, children came daily to borrow from the bookshelf until a childish method of keeping account of the books loaned had to be devised. Then the significant thing occurred. Two children came with books to lend to the shelf, and gradually it grew until there was a constant exchange of books, with a system of regulations made by the children themselves.

Here was a veritable children's library, its value, as compared to the stacks devoted to children in our village institution, lying in the principle of sharing behind it. Here the children not only took books from the shelf, but brought them to it as well. The playroom became in a sense a community center. Home was the connecting link, and sharing was socialized to include a larger group than the immediate family, and became, in fact, a joy rather than a virtue in the sight of the children.

$ $ $ Short Sermons.

No enemy can come so near that God is not nearer .- Exchange. 0 0 0

As iron put into the fire loseth its rust and becometh clearly red-hot, so he that wholly turneth himself unto God puts off all slothfulness and is transformed into a new man,-Thomas à Kempis.

Who taught the raven in a drought to throw peobles into a hollow tree where she espied water, that the water might rise so as she might come to it? Who taught the bee to sail through such a vast sea of air, and to find the way from a flower in a field to her hive? Who taught the ant to bite every grain of corn that she buried in her hill, lest it should take root and grow?-Bacon.

Religion is the life of hope. It is the spirit in man which leads him to say: I believe there is something better for the world than the world has yet come to; I believe there is something better for me than I have yet come to. It is the spirit which says: I am discontented with all that I have accomplished yet, and all that I am as yet; but because I am discontent, I will press on to something higher and better.-Lyman Abbott.

We cannot possibly test our own holiness; others alone can do that. We cannot possibly gauge our own humility; we cannot pessibly register our own growth in grace. This all means looking within, which is a fatal mistake for any believer. But when I ask, "What is God to me now?" I am at once occupied with him rather than with myself, and in that occupation we find our perfect satisfaction. In his light "we see light," light on ourselves and our life; and joy in God, because it is the index of our appreciation of God, will be the surest test of our spiritual life and power.—W. H. Thomas.

If you were to hear some men's experience, you would think that they grow as the white pine grows, with straight grain, and easily split; for I notice that all that grow easy. split easy. But there are some that grow as the mahogany grows, with veneering knots, and all quirls and contortions of grain. That is the best timber of the forest which has the most knots. Everybody seeks it, because, being hard to grew, it is hard to wear out; and when knots have been sawn and polished, how beautiful they are! There are many who are content to grow straight, like weeds on a dunghill; but there are many others who want to be stalwart and strong like the monarchs of the forest, and yet, when God sends winds of adversity to sing a lullaby in their branches, they do not like to grow in that way. They dread the culture that is really giving toughness to their soul and strength to its fiber .- H. W. Beecher.

0 0 0

The Thought.

Chisel in hand steed a sculptor boy, With his marble block before him, And his face lit up with a smile of joy As an angel dream passed o'er him; He carved the dream on that shapeless stone, With many a sharp incision; With heaven's own light the sculptor shone-He had caught that angel vision.

Sculptors of life are we, as we stand With our souls uncarved before us; Waiting the hour when, at God's command, Our life dream passes o'er us. If we carve it then, on the yielding stone, With many a sharp incision, Its heavenly beauty shall be our own, Our lives that angel vision. -Selected.

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are say. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindiers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.

Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Is Division Always Bad?

BY J. C. M'Q.

In our issue of April 15, 1920, we published an article on "Division and Separation," by W. Halliday Trice, which contained many good things. There are some things, however, in the article that are calculated to mislead churches and to bring about results that are not in harmony with the word of God. Brother Trice is a most excellent Christian gentleman and preacher, and I am led to believe that he has stated some things without giving due consideration to them. For instance, he says in his article: "Division is always bad and should be deplored; but if separation is the only way to eliminate it, then let us not deplore the remedy." He also says in the same article: "For a number of years, perhaps four or five, there had been more or less friction in the little congregation worshiping on Nevada Avenue, Fresno, Cal., and the trouble 'grew nothing better,' but 'waxed worse and worse,' till a few months ago quite a number of the congregation, led by Sister Sallie Arterburn and her husband, Brother J. M. Arterburn, and Brother Sandy J. Whilte, ceased to meet with the little band on Nevada Avenue and rented a hall down in town and began worshiping there. I had no hand in the separatlon-in fact, did not know it was going to occur till it happened; but, knowing the situation as I do, I do not hesitate to say that the separation was the only remedy for the existing strife. I deplore the strife that necessitated the separation, but I am thankful that the separation occurred. There is perfect harmony at Nevada Avenue now, and I suppose the other band is at peace; hence, as harmony has taken the place of strife, I think all should rejoice and determine to do more for the cause of Christ. The saddest part of the matter is, the contention was not any doctrinal difference, but was of a personal nature, Some may claim a doctrinal difference; but if so, I have not heard the claim; and with my knowledge of the affair, I hesitate not to say the difference was purely personal." From the statement, "I am thankful that the separation occurred," it would appear that Brother Trice does not believe his former statement, "Division is always bad and should be deplored." I do not see how he can be thankful that the separation has occurred over purely personal matters if "division is always bad and should be deplored." I am firm in the conviction that division of churches over personal matters is not warranted by the word of God and should be discouraged and opposed.

It is not true that division is always bad in its relation to all parties. Christ, who came into this world to redeem fallen mankind, also came to create division. He did create division between virtue and vice, truth and falsehood, righteousness and wickedness. He says: "Think not that I came to send peace on the earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword. For I came to set a man at variance against his father, and the daughter against her mother, and the daughter-in-law against her mother-in-law: and a man's foes shall be they of his own household." (Matt. 10: 34-36.) It is not possible to harmonize God and the devil. There is an everlasting conflict between them. Such division is not "bad and should be deplored," but it should exist and be commended. The work of every Christian is to separate virtue from vice, to prevent a compromise of the good and the bad. Christ says: "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth." (Matt. 12: 30.) When God has legislated upon any subject, no man can righteously compromise the plain command of God in order to live in peace. Christ seeks to bring peace to his true followers, but it is peace in the truth and a righteous peace. In order to uphold and maintain such a peace, he admonishes Christians: "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned: and turn away from them." (Rom. 16: 17.) Thus we see that Paul forbids divisions or separation only when it is "contrary to the doctrine which ye learned." Also, in order to keep the line of demarcation between right and wrong distinct and clear, he wrote to the church at Thessalonica; Now we command you, brethren, in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the tradition which they received of us." (2 Thess. 3: 6.) No matter how much we may hate strife and division, no matter how much we may desire and appreciate peace, God does not permit us to form a truce with sin or to make peace with error. The greater the strife and the greater the opposition to sin, the more pleased is Jehovah. I have said so much for the division that is approved by Jehovah.

Division among God's people is condemned very clearly by the word of God. The position that Brother Trice seems to hold-that separation is the remedy for division-is absurd, if not foolish. The cases that he cites of Abram and Lot and of Paul and Barnabas are not parallel to numerous cases of division that now occur among some of the churches of Christ. Strife and contention over purely personal matters and preferences arise, and some members of the church pull out and start another local congregation when there is no doctrinal difference whatever. If men would only follow the teachings of the Bible, such divisions, when they do occur, would be healed. In order to cure just such division, the Holy Spirit admonishes: "Now I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfeeted together in the same mind and in the same judgment." (1 Cor. 1: 10.) Again, the Holy Spirit admonishes: "Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and railing, be put away from you, with all malice: and be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you." (Eph. 4: 31.) Christ, in his Sermon on the Mount, said: "If therefore thou art offering thy gift at the altar, and there rememberest that thy brother hath aught against thee, leave there thy gift before the altar, and go thy way, first be reconciled to thy brother, and then come and offer thy gift." (Matt. 5: 23.) Christ had just taught in the preceding verses that Christians should not cultivate anger, malice, or hatred, as the cultivation of these is liable to lead to killing. Christians should be compassionate, tender-hearted, and kind one to the other, and should refuse to harbor a revengeful spirit which damages the one who harbors such a spirit and leads him eventually to some terrible crime. Christians can have no hope of enjoying the approval of Jehovah or of being forgiven by him so long as they hate their brethren. If differences arise among members of the local congregation, Christ tells these members how to rectify such differences. By reference to Matt. 18: 15-18 it is seen that the brother who is sinned against shall go to the offender alone and show him his fault. If the offender hears the offended, then the offender is saved; but if he hears not, then the offended is to take with him one or two more; and if the offender does not hear these, he is then to be taken to the church. If he refuses to hear the church, then he is to be unto the offended as the Gentile and the publican. Instead of complying, however, with the law of God and cultivating a tender, forgiving spirit, and instead of going to the offender and trying to save him from his error, the offended peddles his trouble in the church, builds up a little faction, and then contends that he cannot live in the church, and pulls out and starts another congregation. Those who have respect for the word of God can look with no degree of allowance upon such action. The preacher who preaches for such factional congregations in a manner to uphold them is either ignorant or lacking in respect for God's word. Such differences should be harmonized by the word of God and Christians should live together, keeping "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." The example of Abram and Lot has reference to fleshly ties, and not to brethren in Christ or spiritual bonds. In such cases where the temporal is involved and ties of kindredship, it is better to separate than to strive. God gives us this example to teach us to avoid strife. Abram possessed much more wealth and had a much greater force, and was very "rich in eattle, in silver and in gold," and could have easily defeated Lot, who was not so strong. Instead of cultivating a spirit of superiority and taking advantage of the weaker man, he gave us an example of magnanimity, generosity, and piety that is scarcely, if ever, equaled today among Christians. He gave us an example of suffering loss in order to avoid strife. Such a spirit will overcome strife; but simply to separate from men who are gendering strife in the church of Christ will not heal the strife and will not accomplish any real good, but, instead, will add sin to sin. All Christians should emulate the example of Abram in this particular. The example of Paul and Barnabas separating over John Mark, who would not endure the hardships incident to their evangelistic work, is not parallel with members' pulling out from the church when no doctrine is involved. Evidently John Mark was related to Barnabas, and Barnabas hoped by forbearing with him to encourage hlm and overcome his weakness, which he eventually did; and Paul afterwards forgave John Mark, and he was a great help to Paul. The same spirit of forgiveness practiced among the members of the church to-day will prevent any separation of the local congregations. I wish to vigorously discourage and to vigorously oppose the tendency of a number of local congregations to separate and divide over purely personal matters and preferences when no doctrine of the Lord Jesus Christ is involved. The Bible from beginning to end discourages this; and even when the doctrine of Christ is involved, great forbearance should be exercised in the hope of leading all erring ones into the full light of the truth.

SELECTIONS BY THE EDITOR

What I kept, I have lost; what I gave away, I have .-

"Lied" is a rough phrase; say he fell from truth.-

Pin thy faith to no man's sleeve: hast thou not two eyes of thine own?-Carlyle.

Kindness-a language which the dumb can speak and the deaf can understand.-Bovee.

Can anything be sadder than work left unfinished? Yes, work never begun.-Christina Rossetti.

Reputation is what men and women think of us. Character is what God and angels know of us.-Thomas Paine.

Immortality will come to such as are fit for it; and he who would be a great soul in the future must be a great soul now .- Emerson.

> He who loves best his fellow man Is loving God the hollest way he can.

-Alice Cary.

Being all fashioned of the selfsame dust, Let us be merciful as well as just.

-Longfellow.

This above all: to thine own self be true, And it must follow, as the night the day, Thou canst not then be false to any man. -Shakespeare.

There is no unbelief; Whoever plants a seed beneath the sod, And waits to see it push away the clod, Trusts in God. -Bulwer-Lytton.

In life's small things be resolute and great To keep thy muscles trained. Knowest thou when Fate Thy measure takes, or when she'll say to thee: "I find thee worthy, do this thing for me?"

> Be what thou seemest; live thy creed; Hold up to earth the touch divine; Be what thou prayest to be made; Let the great Master's steps be thine.

A man who lives right, and is right, has more power in his silence than another has by his words. Character is like bells which ring out sweet music, and which, when touched accidentally even, resound with sweet music.-Phillips Brooks.

If any man can convince me and bring home to me that I do not think or act aright, gladly will I change; for I search after truth, by which man never yet was harmed. But he is harmed who abideth on still in his deception and ignorance.-Marcus Aurelius.

CURRENT THOUGHT

Dead Doctrines and Living Issues.

We have come to a new day. Dead doctrines lie all about us. But if we compare these with living principles, we find reasons for encouragement. I want to contrast some of these things about which all of us are thinking.

OLD

NEW

Kings rule by divine authority.

Might makes right.

Military preparedness means safety.

Armed force will insure peace.

Self-interest governs nations.

Treaties are scraps of paper.

Private virtue has no place in public life. Competition is the life of trade.

The world has outgrown religion.

The end of life is renown.

God is the name of an idea.

Christ is out of date.

The people are the ruler.

Right makes might.

Moral preparedness guarantees defense.

Peace will come as force disappears.

Righteousness exalteth a nation.

tion. A written treaty is a nation's bond. Public life rests on private virtue. Cooperation is the road to prosperity. Religion is the making force

Religion is the making force of civilization.

The end of life is service. Christ is the world's Supreme Leader.

God is over all and in all and through all.

-H. H. Peters, in Christian-Evangelist.

Accepting the above from H. H. Peters as correct, it is evident that the world is not growing worse, after all. While conditions are continually changing and while in some respects we may have gone from better to worse, yet, taking it as a whole, the people are growing nobler and better as the days pass. Not many decades ago the best people thought that slavery was all right. One does not have to go back a hundred years to reach the time when preachers and church members freely drank intoxicants. The man who does that to-day is ostracized by the best society. It appears that in the early church men were permitted to become members who had two or three living wives. While the early church did not approve and indorse it, such people were permitted to become members of the church. As the church grew purer, more perfect and more in harmony with the divine standard, such practices were not allowed at all. To-day those guilty of such conduct would not be permitted to become members of a local congregation. Christians should go forward, striving after a nobler and purer life, in the hope that some day the will of the Lord will be done on earth as it is in heaven. 0 0 0

Faith and Works.

There was a time when faith was overstressed. Practically every pulpit urged the people, in a vague way, to simply have faith. "Only believe" was the universal exhortation. Now the situation is reversed. Too little is said about faith, and the message from many a pulpit has a tendency to undermine the auditor's faith in God and Jesus Christ. "Works" is now the popular theme. Men are urged to give of their means and time and energy, and to rely upon these contributions to humanitarian causes for personal salvation.

However, the Living Oracles still remain to direct the frail footsteps of man. False teachers may overlook the word of God, or brush it out of the way temporarily, but they cannot destroy it. Nor will the people ever be driven permanently away from the sacred old Book. The Bible, like the sun, may be obscured by passing clouds for a time, but it will run its course in the heavens of God's redemp-tive system.

The Bible does not overstress either faith or works.

Nor is it probable that any devout, careful student of the Bible could decide which is most emphasized by the inspired pens—faith or works.

James places faith and works on the scales, and shows that they balance each other. He asks the question: "What doth it profit, my brethren, if a man say he hath faith, but have not works? Can that faith save him?" In his answer to his own question, he says: "Faith, if it have not works, is dead in itself." Commenting on Abraham's sacrifice of Isaac, he adds: "Thou seest that faith wrought with his works and by works was faith made perfect."

with his works, and by works was faith made perfect."

The cance operated with only one oar swings the circle; the cance operated with two oars goes straight across the river. An old illustration, but apt.—Christian Standard,

The above from the Christian Standard is correct and should be emphasized. Men without faith will not do what God commands them to do. "And without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that seek after him," (Heb. 11: 6.) So by faith a man who takes God at his word will do what God commands him to do. The faith that saves is the faith that comes out, speaks out, and obeys God. This journal has often emphasized that men who decline to be baptized need faith far more than they need baptism. Since Christ has said, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," the man of faith takes him at his word and is baptized at the first opportunity. Men of faith in the days of the apostles were baptized "the same hour of the night" that they were converted. Saul of Tarsus did not break his fast, refusing to eat for three days and nights, until he had been baptized. Faith and works are handmaidens and go together; they cannot be separated. Christians should be encouraged to magnify their agreements and to minimize their disagreements. While they should compromise no truth, they should endeavor to get as close to each other as possible. This fournal would encourage all to devote their time to talking about their agreements instead of finding fault with each other and magnifying their disagreements. Those who do this will render a distinct service to mankind just at this time.

0 0 0

Observing the Lord's Day.

The Lord's day is a sacred day. We should celebrate it as a day of joy. Do not spend it either in idleness, business, or social calling. Give it to the Lord's service. A boy saw seven sweet pears on a tree, and said to the farmer: "Can I have one of those pears?" The good farmer gave him six of the seven. The boy ran away without even a "Thank you," and ate the six pears, then slipped back into the yard and stole the last pear. He was a mean boy, but no meaner than the Christian who steals the Lord's day by visiting and pleasure seeking.

day by visiting and pleasure seeking.

"I could not attend last Lord's day. Company came," you say; and yet you would not let company interfere with a business engagement. When company comes to see you on the Lord's day, bring them to church. You would not miss a Fourth-of-July celebration, but you are willing for visitors to cheat you out of celebrating the resurrection of Jesus Christ from the dead.—J. V. Updlke.

Christians who appreciate what Christ has done for them delight to meet on the first day of the week in honor of his death and resurrection. It is remarkably strange that some professing to be followers of the meek and lowly Jesus will deliberately neglect to meet and break bread on the first day of the week. Christians should not wait to be exhorted, but they should go cheerfully to God's house upon the first day of the week and there engage in worshiping him.

0 0 0

Among the last letters of a distinguished preacher is one containing this testimony: "I know I have done many foolish things in life, but the most inexcusably foolish thing I have ever done has been to fear. Now that I have come within sight of the valley of shadow, I see what the psalmist meant when he said: "I will fear no evil; for thou art with me."—Selected.

W

AT HOME AND ABROAD

We enjoyed a visit last week from J. P. Tubb, of Sparta, Tenn.

- F. B. Srygley preached at South Harpeth church of Christ last Lord's day.
- I. B. Bradley, of Dickson, Tenn., preached in Montgomery, Ala., last Lord's day.
- G. C. Brewer is engaged in a tent meeting at Albany, Ala. We trust the meeting will result in great good.
- N. B. Hardeman was engaged last week in an interesting meeting at Florence, Ala. The meeting resulted in thirteen baptisms.

James E. Scobey preached last Sunday morning and evening at the church of Christ in Hopkinsville, Ky. Good crowds were present at both services.

B. C. Goodpasture recently held a meeting at Livingston, Tenn., with nine baptisms. He begins a meeting next Lord's day at Bellbuckle, Tenn.

From F. L. Young, Paris, Texas, June 24: "Our meeting conducted by Price Billingsley is fine. Three confessions to-day. I am to begin a meeting at Whitewright on July L."

Seventeen thousand dollars has been promised, and improvements on the building in Lebanon will be begun as soon as the elders and doacons think expedient. Four baptisms lately, with prospects for work excellent this year.

From Charles R. Brewer, Tullahoma, Tenn., June 24: "There were seven confessions during the first four days of the meeting at Tullahoma. I go from here to Fort Deposit, Ala., to begin a meeting on the first Lord's day in July."

H. Leo Boles writes: "I am in the midst of a very interesting meeting at Riverside, Tenn., with ten baptisms and two reclaimed so far. This is a very busy time with all the people of this community, yet the crowds are large and attentive."

Ten members of the church of Christ received their degrees at Vanderbilt and Peabody this year. The Founder's Medal in the Academic Department was taken in 1919 and 1920 by young ladies from the Belmont church of Christ, this city.

Miss Lillie Mae Colley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. O. Colley, of Dallas, Texas, was married, Saturday, June 5, at half past six o'clock, at the home of the bride's parents, to Mr. Robert Roy Hunley, of Dallas. The Gospel Advocate extends congratulations.

S. H. Profitt, of Chattanooga, Tenn., called to see us last Friday. He reports the church in East Chattanooga as progressing nicely. Next fall he expects to engage in school teaching at Hohenwald, Tenn. He will preach as the opportunity presents itself.

From Will M. Thompson, Ada, Okia., June 23: "This is to inform the brotherhood that all my needs have been supplied and that my condition is much improved. I hope to be in my work by July 4. May God bless every one that has helped in my hour of need."

Every preacher is specially requested to send reports of all meetings to this journal for publication. It is better not to make the reports long; simply state when the meeting began, who held it, and the number of additions. Such reports are read with much interest.

At the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. A. Morgan, of Covington, Ind., Mr. Charles P. Poole and Miss Virgia N. Morgan were united in marriage, Sunday, June 20, at 8 P.M., by William Ellmore. The Gospel Advocate wishes them a happy and useful life.

- E. O. Coffman, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., made us a pleasont visit last Monday. He expects to begin his evangelistic work for the year on the second Lord's day in July with a meeting at Oak Grove, Ala. He preached at the Locust Grove church of Christ last Lord's day.
- A. B. Lipscomb writes: "The meeting with the Harbert Avenue congregation in Memphis, Tenn., is very encouraging. Five persons were baptized the first week. C. Λ. Norred, the preacher for this congregation, is a hard worker and is loved by all the members."

- A. G. Freed, president of the Freed-Hardeman College, at Henderson, Tenn., was among our callers last week. He was looking after his catalogue, and reports the prospects fine for another year. He is booked to begin a meeting at Mayfield, Ky., the second Lord's day in July.
- O. O. Mabry, of Sparta, Tenn., Route 7, is anxious to secure the services of a good preacher in a meeting for a small congregation at O'Connors, in White County, sometime in July or August. Any one knowing of a preacher available for such work will please write to O. O. Mabry, Sparta, Tenn.
- J. Pettey Ezell, of Albany, Ala., writes that the church at Athens, Ala., is in good shape. The Bible school is doing well and growing in interest. John T. Lewis and J. Pettey Ezell have been recently engaged in a tent meeting at Hartselle, Ala., with a view of planting a church there. C. M. Pullias was there last week.
- F. B. Srygley has returned from a meeting at Anniston, Ala., which resulted in eight baptisms, one restoration, and one from the Baptists. He had large crowds throughout the meeting. He left last Monday for a few-days' meeting in Coal Hill, Ark.; from thence he goes to Valliant, Okla., to begin a meeting on July 7.
- R. A. Craig, 740 Chichester Avenue, Louisville, Ky., preached at Cincinnati, Ohio, on Sunday, June 20. The brethren in Cincinnati are anxious to secure the services of a faithful young minister of the gospel. They are able to pay about one hundred dollars per month. A single man is preferred. Address as above.
- A. B. Lipscomb was engaged last week, and also a part of this week, in an interesting meeting at Harbert Avenue Church, Memphis, Tenn. At last report there had been a number of additions. In his absence, Mitchell Pullias preached two good sermons, morning and evening, at the Russell Street church of Christ, this city.

From W. M. Oakley, Nashville, Tenn., June 24: "Our meeting at Sharon Grove, Ky., of ten days' duration, closed last night. Four persons were baptized and the church was much edified. I am on my way to Ivy Point, Robertson County, where I am to begin to-night. I am preaching the word, and the people are willing to hear."

As it requires too much space to give the amounts of individual contributions to any good work, the Gospel Advocate will in the future give only the entire amount contributed to each cause or person, and not individual names contributing the amounts. Those who are looking after such funds should send receipts for amounts received.

A noticed clipped from the Columbia Daily Herald informs us of another kind act of the good people of Columbia, Tenn. The Episcopal churches at Franklin and Columbia had a joint picnic, and many boxes of good food were left. These were thoughtfully sent to the children at the Tennessee Orphans' Home, who enjoyed a picnic of their own.

From William H. Beasley, Waldo, Ark., June 24: "Please announce in the Gospel Advocate that C. R. Nichol will conduct our summer meeting, from July 18 to August 1. Luther Fincher will lead the songs, and we will have a number of good singers with us. We invite our former members to come home during this time. All brethren are invited."

- E. R. Barnes, Mrs. Barnes, and Mrs. Bowling, of the Catoma Street Church, of Montgomery, Ala., made us a pleasant visit last Friday. Mrs. Barnes and Mrs. Bowling expect to spend the summer at Lebanon, Tenn. Brother Barnes is a school man, and will be engaged in teaching in the summer camp of Castle Heights Military Academy, at Lebanon.
- A letter has just come from E. C. Fuqua, of Fort Collins, Col., stating that his wife is certainly better, the change for the better occurring on Sunday afternoon, June 20. Earnest prayers have gone up for her recovery from brethern in different parts of the country. We certainly rejoice with Brother Fuqua in her improvement, and shall hope that she may soon be entirely well.
- R. C. White was announced to begin a meeting at Athens, Tenn., last Monday night. He has just closed an interesting meeting at Niota, Tenn. A few members at Athens have been meeting under a tree for three or four Lord's days. He hopes to cement them into a good, orderly, working congregation. Brother Rogers has been at work at Athens; also G. W. Farmer has been there.

From J. C. Mosley, Eastland, Tenn., June 25: "Our meeting is going on here seven more days, the Lord willing. I ran down to Cave and filled an appointment, baptizing three persons there. I will go back and hold a meeting for them shortly after the first Sunday in July. We have had forty baptisms at this place, and a number have confessed their faults and took their stand with the church."

Mrs. Warren Waite writes from Wartrace, Tenn., June 23: "E. L. Cambron recently held a tent meeting near New Market, Ala. There were no additions, except one reclaimed. Brother Cambron organized a congregation of twenty-nine members, Brother Hastings gave a lot, and about four hundred dollars was secured toward building a house to worship in. This meeting was supported by W. W. Gant, of Shelbyville, Tenn."

- R. A. Craig writes from Louisville, Ky., June 23: "I was at the Cincinnati mission on Sunday morning and at the Brumley (Ky.) mission Sunday night. I hope to return there again soon. Cincinnati is a city of over three hundred thousand people, a field ripe for the gospel of Christ, and yet the church of Christ has no building of their own, but is meeting in a rented hall. I shall try to go there in September to conduct a meeting."
- A. K. Ramsey writes from Forest Hill, La., June 24: "Several have been added to the one body here since our May meeting. One made the good confession last night. Five are to be baptized Sunday. Brother McQuiddy and I recently conducted two mission meetings at near-by points at our own charges. Not a member of the one body found at either place. We would like to have the addresses of Christians at Monroe, La., where we hope to hold a tent meeting in July."

From M. C. Cayce, 352 East Fortification Street, Jackson, Miss., June 25: "Our tent meeting here has been attended with interest. Yesterday a prominent business man and lifelong Methodist obeyed the gospel and will endeavor to meet regularly with the faithful few who will constitute the church of Christ in this city, there never having been a congregation here content to worship 'as it is written.' Naturally our growth must be slow, and patient, faithful work will be required."

We have a letter from W. S. Brown, of Paris, Tenn., Route 5, informing us that they would like to have a good preacher to hold a meeting in his community. They are anxious to get one who is able to present the gospel in simplicity and earnestness. There is certainly a great demand to-day for preachers who love the truth and are willing to make sacrifices in order to proclaim it. The churches should be as ready to make sacrifices in order to sustain the faithful ministers of the gospel.

We learn from the Sherman Daily Democrat, Sherman, Texas, June 25, that G. A. Dunn was engaged in a very interesting and successful meeting in that city. At that date the meeting had been in progress for about twelve days, and from all sources there had been seventy added to the local congregation. Many of the new members were heads of families. L. S. White preaches regularly for the Walnut Street Church, of Sherman. Brother Dunn began a meeting last Monday night in Oklahoma City, Okla.

- G. B. Lambright writes: "Our meeting at Cove, Texas, embracing three Lord's days, closed on June 20, with three baptisms and much good done otherwise. I am now visiting my daughter for a rest. I go near Maxey, July 9, for two weeks; thence to Annona the first of August. I have the last part of August and first of September not taken. I would like to hold a meeting somewhere in Georgia or Alabama on my return to Taft, Fla., my home. Any one wanting me at the above time can address me at Maxey, Texas, Route 2, Box 98."
- T. W. Phillips, of Fort Worth, Texas, began a meeting with the church of Christ at Troup, Texas, on June 23, and will continue until July 4. This is the thirteenth meeting that he has held for that church. He is not able to give satisfaction as some other preachers have done. In years gone by, F. D. Srygley frequently said to me, when I was called back for a second or third meeting with the same church, that I was a failure as an evangelist. Of himself he said: "I always give satisfaction the first time and never get a call to the second meeting."

As the Gospel Advocate is usually crowded for space, the editors must require those who write obituaries to confine themselves to not more than two hundred words. We have been allowing one hundred and fifty heretofore, but the rule has not been observed as it should have been.

We have increased the number to two hundred words, and shall see that all observe it alike. Any one writing an obituary that runs over two hundred words will send two cents per word for the additional words. This amount should accompany the obituary notice in order to insure publication. This limitation is necessary in order to give space to our contributors.

C. H. Smithson writes from Hatfield, Ark., June 25: "I have closed my monthly work and am in a fine meeting at Hatfield. I will close my meetings in Texas and Oklahoma in September, and aim to start to Tennessee on October 1. I am now arranging meetings for October and November anywhere east of the Mississippi River. As I have lived so long in Delta County, Texas, I aim to change locations, and want to put in at least half of my time at one place, or, if interest demands, would give all. For the last two years I have had four churches, but that keeps me away from home too much. Any one interested may write me at Ben Franklin, Texas."

Last Saturday the McQuiddy Printing Company gave a picnic at Kingston Springs for the entertainment of all its employees and members of their families. A special train was provided for the transportation of the large number of participants to and from the grounds, twenty-four miles from the city. Athletic contests, a baseball game, bathing, and various amusements furnished enjoyment for all. Lemonade and ice cream were dispensed throughout the day. At noon a basket dinner was served, and all were brought close together as they partook of the rich repast. The visitors were impressed with the spirit of friendship and good will existing between the employers and the workers and the most excellent deportment upon the part of all.

E. C. Fuqua, of Fort Collins, Col., writes concerning the serious sickness of his wife: "She is better in one or two respects, but her heart is growing weaker and her general strength seems to be giving way. We are doing all that human hands could do, I think, and I am hoping that she may fight it through; but it will be months before she en tirely recovers, if ever. . . . The brotherhood will never know in this world what a powerful missionary she has been in a modest, womanly way. Her equal in this respect would be hard to find." It is earnestly requested that the brethren remember Sister Fuqua in their prayers. We pray that she may recover, if it be in harmony with the will of the Lord.

From E. P. Watson, Browning, Mo., June 23: "I assisted the brethren at Sedalia, Mo., in a meeting, beginning on Thursday night before the first Lord's day in June and continuing eighteen days. S. W. Bell, who lives there, had everything ready for the meeting, two or three having already made the good confession when I arrived. In all, there were twelve additions, one from the Christian Church and the others by primary obedience. The church is located among poor people, but they are devoted to the truth and are doing as well as could be expected under the circumstances. We appreciate the support that came to us from other places. The brethren are not able to support the work, so Brother Bell is working as a day laborer to support his family and giving his services to the cause without remuneration"

Appointment for Tennessee Orphans' Home.

It has been considered best to have a number of good women connected with the Tennessee Orphans' Home act as an Advisory Committee to the directors and matrons of the institution. On June 19 the appointment was made, as will be seen from the following letter:

Mr. John W. Fry, Treasurer, Tennessee Orphans' Home, Columbia, Tenn.—Dear Sir: You are hereby requested to notify Mrs. F. O. Derryberry, Columbia; Mrs. J. H. Neeld, Celumbia; Miss Estelle Finley, Columbia; Mrs. Berl Baker, Nashville; and Mrs. G. D. Alexander, Hartsville, that, being vested with the authority as president of the Board of Directors of the Tennessee Orphans' Home and being instructed by the Board of Directors at the annual meeting held on June 8, 1920, I appoint them members of the Advisory Committee of the directors and officers of the Tennessee Orphans' Home, of Columbia, Tenn. It is the earnest desire of all that they enter upon their duties as soon as practicable. Respectfully, J. C. McQuidox, Fresident Board of Directors.

Our readers will please to remember the orphans on the first Lord's day in July. "Whose stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry, but shall not be heard."

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. Hall

"Too Much Wrangling in the Papers."

I think I have seen the statement at the heading of this paragraph somewhere and heard it a few times. We should look at both sides of this question—that is, we should consider it from the standpoint of the accuser and the accused.

There is "too much wrangling in the papers "-or out of them, for that matter-when there is any at all. This statement indicates that the accuser thinks there may be some wrangling, a thing I deny. "Wrangling" means to "dispute angrily, to brawl." We should have none of this at any time or place. But I have found those who make this statement, at times, to be simply those people who do not believe in any kind of controversy in the papers; when they say "too much wrangling," they merely mean too much debating or discussion. I doubt, seriously, whether we can have too much discussion. The apostles were in a discussion from start to finish, and I would like for some one to tell me how to get through the Christian's warfare without it. When we take a stand for the teaching of Christ, we then and there take a stand against anything Christ does not teach. The man who makes no opposition to the things Christ does not teach simply does not teach the doctrine of Christ, for this is the only way it can be avoided. Light always opposes darkness. Tell me how to turn on the light without having a bit of controversy with darkness. Righteousness always opposes iniquity. Tell me how to teach and enforce righteousness without doing battle against iniquity. Truth is ever opposed to error. Tell me how to wield the sledge hammer of God's truth without letting it fall on error. The fact is, this hammer of God's truth has no utility whatever except to crush error. We are not out "beating the air," but putting up a fight-a fight to a finish against all error, all sin, all false teachers. We are declared, while engaged, to be "fighting," "wrestling," "earnestly contending," and "stopping the mouths of some." (See Eph. 6: 12; 1 Tim, 6: 12; Jude 3; Tit. 1: 10.) There cannot be too much of this. Try to stop fighting, and you have surrendered to the devil. This is what he wants done, and much of the opposition to discussions is only Satan's way of stopping our opposition to error. Now, if we would just shut up, would he not have easy sailing? False teachers have ever been very much out with discussions. But they will never cease so long as there is one soul on earth who loves the truth and teaches it.

But I think I have seen things in our papers that could be called "wrangling," and that between brethren. The thing that makes me feel sad is that it seems that there are no two men in the church who can get into a discussion in the papers but that they let it drift into a wrangle, Hence, I would say to the papers that it would be well for them to examine themselves with carefulness and see if they have not given good reasons for the statement, "There is too much wrangling in our papers." I have ever believed that any two honest souls can see any practical question exactly alike, and that if they do differ and get into a discussion they will get together. I dislike to discuss anything with a brother unless the controlling motive in both his and my heart is to fulfill the wishes of our Lord that we be one, as he and his Father are one. We are commanded to speak the same things, to have no divisions among us, to be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment; and we can, if our hearts are right. But count the number of discussions, in the papers or out of them, where the disputants got together.

It Pays to "Prove Your Ownselves."

In 2 Cor. 13: 5 Paul says: "Try your own selves, whether ye are in the faith; prove your own selves." We need to do this continually.

Brotherly love is a fine theme, and we should preach on it much; but really loving the brethren is better than preaching on it with our tongues and pens. No one should preach or write on the subject without first trying and proving himself to see whether he is in the falth-that is, whether he knows exactly what Christ means by loving the brethren, and whether we have love as he knows love. It is possible for us to think we love when we do not. If we have got down to a dead-in-earnest effort to work out our own salvation, as we are commanded, I am sure we know a bit about "fear and trembling." (See Phil. 2: 12.) Some of us have not been sufficiently in earnest to get uneasy. If we ardently desire to be right in all things, there is ever a fear that we may go wrong. If you have not this fear, it is unmistakable evidence that your desire to be right, to please God, to help and never harm others, is not as strong as it should be.

Loyalty to Christ, letting him be "head over all things" to us, as individuals, and to the church, is a fine thing to preach. Much should be written and spoken on this fundamental subject. But actually letting him govern us in all we do is a better thing. It means much to let Christ's will prevail, not in just a few things, but in everything, and especially those things where the doing of Christ's will cuts through and through; for it is only such doing that puts the body to death and allows the better part of man to grow. Are you watching yourself at this point? It takes big men, strong men, made such by God's grace, to do some things-viz., to be loyal to Christ, to do his will when it hurts the flesh; and when we look about, we do not see enough such men. Preachers and college professors, as a rule, seem to be about as weak as others, and will let the old flesh dethrone Christ and set itself up as king just about as much as others do. I am not saying that preachers and college professors should be better than others-all should strive to be "strong in the Lord and in the strength of his might;" but when we see such a painful lack of strength in those who are our leaders, those to whom the young must look for guidance, it indicates that the "grievous times" spoken of in 2 Tim. 3 are drawing nigh. It behooves every one of us to try ourselves, prove ourselves, to see if we are in the faith-not our faith, our favorite ideas, but, indeed and in truth, in the very heart and bosom of those things Christ loves and wants us to do.

I have seen brethren terribly agitated over what they considered great faults, wrongs, and weaknesses in others. and yet they had not the grace, power, and strength to kindly let these very persons know that they had such ideas about them. If we are loyal to Christ, we must love, we must warn against danger, we must reprove and rebuke. Forever having evil thoughts of others and whispering around to a few the faults we think others have is not rebuking them. Such will be painful rebukes to ourselves when we face God in the judgment. "Brethren, be not children in mind [understanding]: yet in malice be ye babes, but in mind [understanding] be men." (1 Cor. 14: 20.) Did you get it? "In malice be ye babes." Instead of being babes in such, many of us are giants. O, saying that you have no malice in your heart goes for naught. Let your works prove this.

To be loyal to Christ, I think we must love our enemies, do good to them that try to do us evil. Christ says for us to do this, and we must be loyal here as well as at other points in his teaching. Do you say it is hard? Certainly it is. But I will tell you that loving your enemies and doing good to them does you a thousandfold more good than loving your friends and doing good to them.

ALL RUN DOWN AND WORN OUT

have not thoroughly Because you purified your blood, but have allowed to remain in it the accumulations of waste matter that cause weakness, loss of appetite, dull headache, broken sleep, backache, eruptions and humors and other troubles.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the medicine that renovates, strengthens, tones—it will build you up, make you feel better all over.

Hood's Pills help as a stomachtoning, digestive cathartic.

Ask Your Neighbor!

ALTON PARK, TENN.—"Dr. Pierce's medicines have been used a great deal in my family with the very best of results. I had a girl that had chronic bronchitis and I never found anything that would give her re-lief until I began giving her Doctor Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and it gave her more real help than all other medicines put together. Golden Medical I have taken Discovery' for stomach trouble and it was excellent for this ailment; it purifies one's blood and seems to act upon, and build up one's whole system in a good, healthy state. 'Golden Medical Discovery' is a splendid family medicine and I take pleasure in recommending it." Must pleasure in recommending it."—MRS. J. A. BEAN, 1500 Highland Avenue.

Few folks or families now living have not at sometime or other used Dr. Pierce's_Golden Medical Discovery for the stomach, liver or blood. Over twenty-four million bottles of this tonic and blood remedy have been sold by druggists in this country.

WEST FRANKFORT, KY.—"I can recommend Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets most highly for they have been used most highly for they have been used for many years past by my own people and by my husband's and later on by myself. I have never known such a mild and effective remedy for sluggish liver and constipation as Dr. Pierce's Pleasant Pellets."—Mns. Addin Harrod, No. 606 Polsgrove Street.

These little, sugar-coated pills are composed of Mayapple, leaves of aloe, root of jalap—things that Nature grows in the ground, and are sold by drug-gists everywhere.

ablets

A tonic laxative containing from in organic form for regulating the digestive organs and building robust health with pure, fron-strong red blood. 25c a box.

For eezema, liver splotches and other itching skin crupitions use "Skin Success" Soap and dintment in conjunction with tablets. A wonderful combination for good health and good looks. Ask your druggist, Samples on request, THE MORGAN DRUG CO., # 1521 Atlantic Ave. Brooklyn, New York City

The Master's Vineyard

Arkansas.

Tupelo, June 22.-I preached to a large congregation last Lord's day at Mount Zion. They have more than one hundred and fifty active members, who meet every Lord's day. They have had no preaching for some time. I promised to return on the third Lord's day in July. This is a large field for work, and but few laborers. The churches near would appreciate more visits from older brethren .- L. R. Wilson.

District of Columbia.

Washington, June 22.—I began a meeting at Hamlin, W. Va., Saturday night, June 5, and preached twice on Sunday and once each evening till last Sunday night. Six were baptized and one by immersion from the Meth-I am expecting to preach for odists. Brother Long next Lord's day.—Isaac C. Hoskins.

Florida.

Bradentown, June 19.—The meeting at Cortez closed with one baptized.
There are some at Cortez who truly love the cause. It was my pleasure to meet Brother Cameron while there.— John Hayes.

Micanopy, June 15 .- I filled my regular appointment at Ferguson on Saturday night and on Lord's day and Lord's-day night. Six made the good confession and one was restored. Among the number were my two boys. -C. C. Brown,

Kentucky.

Paducah, June 15 .- On June 5 I closed a meeting with the McKellar Avenue church of Christ, Memphis, Tenn., which resulted in eight addi-tions. There are some splendid brethren there. Brother F. Loren Paisley labors with them, and is a great asset to the work of the Lord in Memphis. Brother Paisley is to hold a meeting for the brethren here in August .-Charley Taylor.

Missouri.

Joplin, June 21.- The meeting at Leslie, Ark., was hindered some by rain, prejudice, and by the farmers being very busy saving their hay and small grain; but notwithstanding some there are digressive at heart, I never had better attention anywhere. We closed with a full house. I will begin at Alma, Ark., Thursday night. -J. A. Cullum.

Campbell, June 17.—I will give up the work with the church at this place, August 1, and will move to Morrillton, Ark. I want to put my children in the Arkansas Christian College, I will be in protracted-meeting work until October 1. I can arrange for other meetings or regular work after that date. Brethren desiring my services should write me at Box 484, Campbell, Mo.-R. H. Johnson.

THE MISERY OF BACKACHE

Removed by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Muskegon, Mich.—"For six years I was so weak in my back at times that I could hardly walk.
Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound was recommended to me and it made me good and it made me good and strong again so that I am able to do all my work. I highly recommend your medicine and tell everyone I meet what it did for me."

—Mrs. G. Schoon-Field, 240 Wood Ave, Muskegon, Mich.

Woman's Precious Gift

The one which she should most zealously guard is her health, but she often neglects to do so in season until some ailment peculiar to her sex has fastened aiment peculiar to her sex has lastened itself upon her. When so affected women may rely upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a remedy that has been wonderfully successful in restoring health to suffering women.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

TETTERINE

Ends Complexion Worries

Healing, Antiseptic, Soothing, Fragrant.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-

Martin College-Junior College

For girls and young women. Not sectarian, but positively Christian. Meets standard tests in all departments. Fifty years old. No experiment. Write for catalog.

> GEORGE A. MORGAN, President, Dept. A, Pulaski, Tenn.

THE CRACK O' DOOM FOR NASTY GALOMEL

Folks Abandoning Old Drug for "Dodson's Liver Tone," Here in South.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you lose a day.

Calomel is mercury! When it comes into contact with sour bile, it crashes into it, breaking it up. Then is when you feel that awful nausea and cramping. you are sluggish, if liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it describes the property of the control of the control

Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous, go back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying he sale of calomel because it can not sali-vate or make you sick.

GOOD TEACHERS IN DEMAND
AT BETTER SALARIES
The schools, colleges, seminaries, and universities throughout the South are begging for assistance in infuling teachers with proper qualifications, and better salaries are being offered. We are needing hundreds of teachers to supply the demand. Any well-prepared teacher would do well to write us.

FISK TEACHERS' AGENCY
R. A. Clayton, Mgr. Birmingham, Ala.

For the HAIR_

To make it soft, fluffy, and free from dan-druff, use

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

New York.

Rochester, June 10.—Contributions for the Rochester work, received dur-ing the month of May, amounted to one hundred and sixty-seven dollars and fifty cents. We thank the donors for their liberality. We have just closed a meeting which continued over three Sundays, with no visible results, but much good accomplished, I am sure.-Hugh H. Miller.

Oklahoma.

Shawnee, June 21.—Our first mission meeting with home forces closed last night. Three were baptized, one was reclaimed, and two took membership. All are feeling happy over results. B. U. Baldwin.

Checotah, June 16.—I have just closed a meeting at Sentinel, with two additions-one baptized and one restored. I have a number of meetings to hold, but have some time not promised in October and November,-Charles L. Speir.

Oklahoma City, June 21.—We enjoyed one of the best days here yesterday that we have had for a long time. There were two additions at the morning hour. Brother W. W. Freeman, of Abilene, Texas, delivered the evening sermon. It was rich with the real richness of a highly spiritual and in-spiring sermon. Preparations are nearly completed for our meeting which is to begin next Lord's day. Brother G. A. Dunn will do the preaching. We are putting on the most expensive campaign that the church here has ever put on for a meeting. Pray for our success .- J. A. Hudson.

Muskogee, June 21.—The church meeting in Odd Fellows' Temple, on West Okmulgee, this city, is progressing nicely. We had two splendid services yesterday at the temple and bap-tizing at Spaulding's Park after the morning service, with dinner at Brother C. L. Hannan's residence on East Broadway, with thirty-nine in attendance. This congregation is practically a mission point; yet we are doing mis-sion work at other places with home talent, as we have six or seven breth-ren that take the lead in the work. We have a mission at Georgetown Schoolhouse, near Fort Gibson, with preaching twice a month. When we get a tent, we hope to do more mission work about the city.-J. G. Allen.

Tennessee.

Livingston, Route 1, June 21 .- We had two glorious services yesterday. Brother Marion Harris did the preaching. There were three additions. The church here loves Brother Harris for his work's sake. We have had six additions this summer. Our meeting is to begin on the second Sunday in July. I was at Baxter on the second Lord's day in this month. My protracted-meeting work will begin on the third Sunday in July.-Willie Hunter.

Decherd, June 18.-It has been some time since I made a report of my work. My wife has been very ill, and I stayed at home with her for about three weeks; but she is much better now. I preached five days for the brethren at Lea's Station, in Bledsoe County. The church was built up spiritually and one was baptized. I preached one week at Daus Station, with the very best of interest, the house being packed at every service. Six were baptized. Among these were three Baptists and one Roman Catholic. I preached three times for the congregation at Liberty, with good attendance and interest, but with good attenuance and interest, but had to leave to begin a promised meeting at Fairview, in Franklin County. I go from Fairview to Finley, White County, the first Lord's day in July; from there to Prairie Plains, Coffee County, the third Lord's day in July; from there to England, Ark., for a two-weeks' meeting; then back to Tennessee for a number of meetings.-R. E. L. Taylor.

Texas.

Kaufman, June 18 .- At this writing I am preaching at this place, and will be here over Sunday. I preached for the brethren at Crandall last Sunday. I was at Muskogee, Okla., June 1-4, attending the preachers' meeting. The first Sunday in June I was with the church at Haskell, Okla., and had a very enjoyable day with the good brethren there.—D. S. Ligon.

Cove, June 15 .- Our meeting is ten days old. Three have obeyed the Lord in baptism. Large attendance and good interest. The meeting will continue one or two weeks longer. I go near Maxey, Texas, on July 15, for a meeting, then near Annona, the first of August, for a mission meeting. I can accept work for the last part of August or first part of September. Address me at Cove, Chambers County, Texas.-G. B. Lambright.

Denison, June 21.- I have been attending the meeting being conducted at this place by Brother J. B. Nelson, with W. D. Everidge as leader in the song service. Brother Nelson is ably presenting the Bible teaching, and the night audiences are large. The meeting will continue all the week. As there was no meeting this morning, we filled three cars and went over to Sherman, where Brother G. A. Dunn is in a grand meeting, with fifty-seven additions-forty-nine by baptism. This meeting also will continue throughout the week .- Andrew Perry.

Itasea, June 14.—Yesterday was a good day with the little church in Itasea. Four more placed their membership with us. Our attendance has doubled since the wet weather ceased. Brother Busby will begin our meeting on the third Sunday in July, and we are trying to be ready when he comes. I recently held a few-days' meeting with the church in Files Valley, trying to get ready for Brother Smith when he comes to begin their meeting on the second Lord's day in August. I will begin a meeting with the church in Covington the first Lord's day in July .- W. P. Skaggs.

Bonham, June 16 .- I came to Bonham on Monday, and have listened to three good sermons by Brother Norman, from near Austin. He is assist-ing his brother, J. E. Norman, who resides here. One was baptized on Monday. The loyal members and congregations in this county are taking steps to support a preacher in evangelistic work in this county, to work mainly among the weak congregations and new points, and it is thought that Brother J. E. Norman will be the man to do the work. The outlook is faverable for the accomplishing of this good work.—Andrew Perry.

Denison, June 15.—I am now at Denison in what promises to be a good meeting. I am assisted by Brother W. D. Evridge. He is leading the song service. This is where Brother Thomas E. Milholland labors. He has built up a fine church here. They have a beautiful new house. Brother Milholland is one of the best local workers I know of. I recently closed a good meeting at Fort Smith, Ark., with the Park Hill Church, where Brother W. W. Slater preaches. We had four baptisms before I left and four after I left. This church is making wonderful progress. Brother Slater is full of zeal and love for the cause.—J. B. Nelson.

Dallas, June 21.-On the first and second Sundays in July I am to be in a meeting with the church at Farmington, Ky., a congregation that I helped to "set in order" about nineteen years ago. I will spend the last two Sundays in July at Oak Grove, near Fulton, the place where I grew to manhood and where both wife and I obeyed the gospel. I go back every three years to hold a meeting for them. I extend an invitation to the neighboring churches to come to either or both of these meetings. From June 28 to July 13 correspondents should address me at Farmington, Ky., care of R. C. Butterworth; from July 13 to July 28, at Fulton, Ky., care of C. A. Colley .-A. O. Colley, Fort Worth, June 20.-Yesterday was a great day for labor with us here I preached three sermons at three different places, and conducted a special service for baptizing one young lady besides. The meeting in the Vanzandt Addition of this city is growing better. We are having large crowds and fine attention. Brother Jesse P. Sewell preached at Southside-Central Church two Lord's days ago, and all enjoyed his sermon. The congregation gave him a liberal amount toward building more room for Abilene College. preached a special sermon yesterday afternoon in connection with the choosing and appointing of elders and deacons in the new church of Christ in Lakeview Addition, this city. are starting off with a good member-ship and a great zeal and interest. Good work is being done at all the churches in the city.—Tice Elkins.

West Virginia.

Buffalo, June 21.—From March 1 to June 1 I received personal help in my work, from individuals and churches, $69. I also received contributions to our church building fund, $141.77. We are very thankful for this help, and we fondly hope that it may continue until we are safe here. We have not purchased the material for our house of worship yet. We have been waiting, dear brother or sister, for your contribution. If you will send it now, we will be at work on the house when you hear from me again. Please do not delay. Address F. P. Fonner, Box $1, Buffalo, W. Va. State what your offering is for—that is, whether it is for personal use or for the church house.—F. P. Fonner.

MASSEY MILITARY SCHOOL

PULASKI, TENN.

Junior R. O. T. C. On Preferred List of Colleges. Teachers, University Men. SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 8, 1920. Dept. A.

The Constant Emphasis.

The first sermon that Jesus preached when he began his public ministry was on repentance. "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand!" was his cry to the world.

It is not difficult to imagine a dozen different things he might have said. He might have denounced the unjust and military system under which he was born. He might have made a powerful cration against social injustice. There was plenty of it in his day. The earth was full of crueity and wrong, apparently caused by the unjust "system" which prevailed.

But he did not speak of these things as foremost. The one emphasis he insisted on was the need of repentance on the part of the individual. From Casar on his imperial throne in the palace, glutted with lust and pride, to the meanest slave sweating in the field to make possible more just and pride for Casar, the cry went from the heart of Jesus: "Repent!"

If Jesus were here to-day, speaking from any public or from any public platform, what do you think he would choose for his subject, and what text would he take to emphasize it?

It is very doubtful if Jesus would even mention the "issues of the day." It is, however, not difficult to imagine him saying from any pulpit or platform: "Repent!" He would use the same text he used two thousand years ago, because the need of that emphasis is still the same. Of what use is a League of Nations unless the people who make it and shape it are newborn men? What good will it do to get bigger wages and live in bigger houses and have more things, unless the heart loves God and one's neighbor? What kind of a President will this republic have, if all he can promise the people is the betterment of the railroads or the setlement of the labor question, unless he is a man of prayer and humble faith in a divine wisdom?

The Master is speaking to-day again. Let us go and hear him. The politicians are emphasizing the superficial. Jesus emphasized the eternal. Let us go and hear Jesus preach. Surely he will take for his text for this generation: "Repent!" For the world needs to do that more than anything else.—Charles M. Sheldon, in Christian Herald.

Christianity failing in America, it is irretrievably lost in Asia and Africa; Christianity puissant in America will conquer the world for Christ.—Selected.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

For Coated Tongue

Bad Breath, Sour Stomach, Bloating, Gas, Biliousness, Sick Headache, Indigestion, Constipation,—take the always reliable

FOLEY CATHARTIC TABLETS

They clear the bowels, sweeten the stomach and tone up the liver. Do not gripe.

J. E. Colver, 103 Labor Temple, Les Angeles, Cal.: "Atter 56 years' experience with all sorts and kinds of cathartic remedies, I got wise to Foley Cathartic Tablets, and they are the best I ever used."

TETTERINE Drives Away Pimples

and leaves your skin soft and spotless. 50c at your drugglet's or from the SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

FRECKLED GIRLS

At All Druggists

Try This to Make Freckles Fade Away

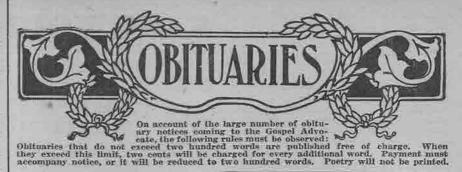

Just apply a little Kintho Beauty Cream every night and morning with the finger tips. After a few regular applications with this fragrant beauty cream—watch the freekles gradually fade away.

Girls who believed their freckles would never go away have been utterly amazed after using Kintho Beauty Cream to see the remarkable difference it made.

This is YOUR chance to get rid of those disfiguring freckles. When your friends ask you what made your complexion so clear—tell them Kintho Beauty Cream did it.

Kintho has been used for 15 years to remove stubborn, blotchy freekles. Any wellstocked drug or department store can supply you,

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Sanders.

Little Willie Randolph Sanders, only child of Ralph and Maud Sanders, left his father and mother, May 19, 1920, and went to abide with the Savior, who will care for him in his homeoff many mansions. He was a bright little boy, loved by all, and it is so sad to give him up. His little footsteps will be heard no more in the home on earth; but it is well with him, "for of such is the kingdom of heaven." I would say to his father and mother, they can go to him, if they will be faithful to the end of life; and they will find rest.

C. Petty.

Baker.

The subject of this sketch was born on November 19, 1850; was married, to S G. Baker, on January 2, 1868; obeyed the gospel in her early teens; and died on April 27, 1920. It is with joy and gladness, deep sorrow and sadness, I write of the life and death of this dear, good woman. Her life was indeed full of good works and almsdeeds. She was not only a worker in her own home, but found time to help others, and especially will the dear grandchildren miss her help and counsel. She was one of the sweetest, most affectionate women it has been my pleasure to know. She was especially kind to the poor. Her home was one in which hospitality reigned supreme. Reflecting on my girlhood days, some of the most cherished memories are the many happy days spent at dear 'Aunt B.'s." During her life she had her troubles and trials; but she never wanted to burden others with her sorrows. She numbered her friends by her acquaintance, and was a special favorite with all children. Her enemies surely must have been few. read the old Scriptures quite a deal, and it was interesting to hear her trace the history of God's dealing with the human race. She was sick only a few days with pneumonia. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." She leaves two sons, one daughter, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn for her, but not without hope of a glorious resurrection and a home at God's right hand prepared for the faithful.

MRS. W. R. THURMAN.

Moody.

Silas Campbell Moody died on April 21, 1920, after a short illness. He had been away from his work only four or five days at the time of his death. He had been a hard, steady worker all his life, and had raised a nice family of three boys and two girls. He had lived in Dickson nearly twenty years, and died surrounded by his family and friends. Brother Moody was born in Simpson County, Ky., on August 5, 1852, and lived there until he was twenty-one years old. Leaving there, he went to Missouri, where he remained twenty-five years, moving from there to Tennessee, and finally to Dickson. He was married, March 9, 1884, to Nannie E. Silver, who was his faithful and devoted companion for more than thirty-six years. She and the five children mourn their loss, but not as having no hope. In his early life Brother Moody became a Meth-edist; but after moving to Dickson, under the preaching of the writer, he learned "the way of the Lord more perfectly" and was baptized. He al-ways seemed to be so glad that he had obeyed the gospel and enjoyed the preaching of the gospel. He lived to see all his children obey the gospel, and all but one have "kept the faith" up to the present. He was the father of Brother Silas E. Moody, a very acceptable preacher of the gospel. After appropriate services held in the presence of his family and a large gathering of friends and acquaintances, his body was laid to rest in Union Cemetery. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." I. B. BRADLEY.

Daniel.

On May 4, 1920, the home of Brother W. T. Daniel, in Hohenwald, Tenn., was saddened by the death of his beloved and faithful wife. She had not been stout for several years and gave up the struggle and entered that bourne from whence no traveler has returned. She was married to W. T. Daniel on February 16, 1875, and was the mother of a large family of chil-dren, who were all with her when the end came. She had been a faithful and helpful wife, a kind and devoted mother, and a good and generous neighbor and friend. She was greatly respected and loved by all who knew her. She heard the truth and was baptized by the beloved and lamented E. A. Land, in Perry County, Tenn., in 1889, and had been in faithful service to the Master for nearly forty-one years. She loved the truth and was always interested in the work of the church. I have had the privilege of laboring with the Hohenwald church in two protracted meetings, and made my home with Brother and Sister Daniel. A preacher never had a more hearty welcome nor received more hospitable treatment than I received from them. It was a pleasure to be in her home. Their home was plain and humble, but inviting and pleasant, and they knew how to make their guests feel "at home." She leaves eight children and Brother Daniel to mourn her taking away. But they do not mourn "as others who have no hope." They have good reason to think that "it is well with her soul," and, therefore, that she is at rest "in the arms of Jesus." "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord, . . . that they may rest from their labors." They trust that she has fallen "asleep in Jesus," and that when he comes he will bring her with him. We trust they may meet her in the "beautiful home of the soul." Funeral services were held by Brother W. M. Morton, of Columbia, Tenn., and her body was laid to rest in the "silent city" until the resurrection. Peace to her ashes!

I. B. BRADLEY.

Massie.

On March 11, 1920, the Massie family, the church of Christ, and the community of Bohon, Ky., suffered a great loss in the death of Brother W. I. Massie. Brother Massie was born on July 21, 1853. He obeyed the gospel of Christ very early in life. As a Christian, he developed himself to such an extent that at his death it was truthfully said: "A great man has fallen." He was married to Lucy J. Ransdall on August 28, 1873. As Christians, they assumed the responsibility and began the great work of rearing a Godfearing family. For two years I knew Brother Massie, and was in his home many times. His home was truly a home of Bible study and prayer. He firmly believed that the word of God should be man's only rule of faith and practice in all matters of religion. For many years he was one of the leaders in the church at Bohon, and always stood for the New Testament order of work and worship. He would not be moved about by every wind of doctrine, and the departure of so many from the truth was a source of sorrow to him. While he contended earnestly for the faith, he said but little about those who opposed him. Brother Massie not only wore the name "Christian," but glorified God in this name. He used much of his time, money, and strength in the work of the church. He leaves behind him his lifelong and faithful companion; two sons, D. E. Massie and B. A. Massie; one daughter, Sister E. R. Burton; eleven grandchildren; and many other relatives and On March 13 I did my best friends. under the circumstances to speak words of comfort and encouragement to the well-filled house of people who, through sympathy, love, and respect, attended the funeral service. the service, his body was buried near the church house in which he had poured out his soul in prayer and praise so many times.

THOMAS D. ROSE.

McBroom.

My brother, Clark McBroom, of Readyville, Tenn., was born on September 13, 1896. He married Miss Jennie May Brag on May 30, 1915. To them were born three children. The whole family was seized with influenza. The father, mother, and baby developed pneumonia. The mother and baby recovered, but, in spite of all that could be done, the father passed into the spirit world on March 9, 1920. Thus occurred the first death in my father's home, and it truly broke our hearts. We have reason to weep over Clark's untimely death, but we have a strong hope for the eternal salvation of his soul, and we try to remember Paul's exhortation: "But we would not have you ignorant, brethren, concerning them that fall asleep; that ye sorrow not, even as the rest, who have no hope." Brother obeyed the gospel when he was fifteen years of age, under the preaching of Brother L. B. Jones. He, like the rest of us, was not perfect in his walk with God. As a young man, he made many mistakes, but committed no great sins or crimes -just the wrongs common to youth. In love and fidelity for his family he had few equals. He worked hard to provide for his family and meet his Trials and misfortunes obligations. confronted him often, but he continued honest, truthful, kind, and faithful through them all. He possessed the spirit of happiness and forgiveness in a great measure. He left this world joy, prayer, and song. Since his marriage, five years ago, he had been growing into a noble Christian character; but because of a weakly wife and three babies to care for, he was unable to attend church every Sunday. He loved the church and attended when he could. He leaves a father and mother (Mr. and Mrs. R. L. Mc-Broom), a wife and three babies, four sisters and two brothers, to mourn his loss and cherish his memory... The funeral was conducted by Dr. Curlee, and his body was laid to rest in Ward's Grove Cemetery to await the coming of the Lord. J. H. McBroom.

Duty is of far more importance than life. Life is a matter of very small account to any one in comparison with duty doing.—Selected.

Let not the blessings we receive daily from God make us not to value or not to praise him because they be common. What would not a blind man give to see the pleasant rivers and meadows and flowers and fountains that we have met with?—Izaak Walton.

Practice the art of letting go of unpleasant thoughts. If you pick up a hot poker, no argument is needed to induce you to drop it. There are hot thoughts that blister and burn and sear the soul, yet people only tighten their mental grip and refuse to let them go. The longer they are held, the deeper they burn.—F. H. Fox.

Sleeplessness, You can't sleep in the stillest night if your digestion is bad. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla—it strengthens the stomach and establishes that condition in which sleep regularly comes and is sweet and refreshing.

The next time you buy calomel ask for

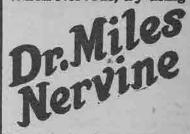

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are nausealess, safe and sure.

Medicinal virtues retained and improved. Sold only in sealed packages. Price 35c.

Driving the Brain often Affects the Nerves, causing Nervous Irritation and Nervous Headaches.

When Nervous, try using

The Standard Remedy for many years for disorders of the Nerves.

3 AT ALL DRUGGISTS

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism. Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few corts. Deposits also sell lets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Mono-aceticacidester of Salleylicacid.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make moneygtilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Pigeons No. 6." Carolina Pigeon Plant, Clinton, S. C.

CANCERS CURED AT KELLAM HOSPITAL.

1617 West Main Street, Richmond, Va.

It is known beyond a doubt and admitted by most of the leading physicians and surgeons that cancer cannot be cured with the knife. X-Ray, radium, or acids. Cancers are permanently cured at The Kellam Hospital, without the use of either.

Physicians and surgeons treated free at the hospital.

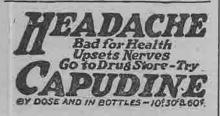

FRECKIES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freekles, as Offine—double strength—Is guaranteed to remove these bomely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Offine—double strength—from your druggist, and spply a little of it night and norning and you should seen see that even the worst freekles have bearn to disappear, white the lighter has have vanished entirely. It is self-our that more than one onnee is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double attength Offline as this is said under guarantee of money back if it falls to remove freekles.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Double-Tongued.

BY J. J. VANHOUTIN.

Paul, in giving the qualifications required in order for a man to be a deacon in the church, mentioned some things which would disqualify a man. The same in regard to an elder. Oncea man said to me that he had one qualification in order to be an elder, and that was the "desire." From the time he went into the church he desired the office, and he soon got the place, and said: "I am going to rule." There is no church there now; he had too many disqualifications. Did you ever hear a double-tongued man talk? I have, and I sometimes wonder which time he told the truth! No man can bridle another man's tongue, but he can control his own. The tongue is a great boaster; it runs wild when it slips the bridle, and without a bridle it is liable to become offensive. With the tongue men bless God, and sometimes the same man with the same tongue will curse men, so much so that "out of the same mouth proceedeth blessing and cursing," When the tongue becomes so doubled that it will give two kinds of talk, it reminds me of the modern progressive church playing a tune to their prayers, and the great organ bellows, soft and low, in their attempt to serenade the Almighty while praying. "Speak evil of no man" is as much of a command as "Lie not one to another." No man can pull a load downhill but what he gets below the load; so the man who sneers at and insinuates against the character of a man in order to leave a hint or impression that the fellow is a dangerous "critter," and unworthy, usually is below the load he is pulling down the hill. "If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body." (James 3: 2.) That means he can control his actions If his tongue is so bridled with a curb bit that under the most vile slander he can keep from saying anything bad. "Speak not evil one of another, brethren. He that speaketh evil of his brother, and judgeth his brother, speaketh evil of the law, and judgeth the law." (James 4: 11.) Have you ever known of the above law being violated? There is a word in the English language called "backbiting;" it is also in both Old and New Testaments; and what it implies is not very commendable, and is usually accomplished by a doubletongued man. The backbiter passes judgment upon the man and says things about him to others that he would not say to him; but sometimes a wretch will use very abusive language toward another when he knows there is no danger. I never hear a man use degrading language toward another but what I think of what a good, clever man, who was being abused by a vicious, loud-talking man, said He stood quiet and said: "Just say on; your tongue is no slander." This enraged the vicious man, who said: "I'll let you know my tongue is slander. Have you anything to say?" The quiet man said: "All you have said about me is exactly my opinion about you." Sometimes the least a man can say, the better. Once a man said of a speech: "The best part was the ending," Paul said: "Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer every man." (Col. 4: 6.) There is no authority for using "pepper" in either speaking or writing. If a tongue gets full of deadly poison, it is apt to "set the course of nature on fire." The tongue will have to give an account for every idle word; then, "don't talk till you have something to say."

Evangelistic Notes From Canada.

BY C. G. M'PHEE.

The last Lord's day in April brought my work with the church in Carman, Manitoba, to a close. For nearly three years I have labored under the direction of this congregation. The great Northwest is truly a wonderful field. The barvest is white, but the laborers are few. The Carman Church is in excellent condition. The brethren are at peace among themselves. They have also taken a great interest in sending the gospel to other fields by helping those who are preaching the glad tidings. During the past few weeks of my stay there ten were baptized and much interest was manifested among outsiders.

The church has been successful in obtaining the services of Brother L. J. Keffer, of Beamsville, Ontario. He is an excellent preacher, a good singer, and a diligent worker for the Lord, and the church ought to prosper under his work.

I am now engaged by the churches in Ontario to hold meetings for the summer. This is a very needy field. Many of the churches are weak and need building up.

On the second Sunday in May we commenced a meeting at Jordan. This is the home of Brother O. E. Tallman. The success of this meeting was largely the result of his labors. During the first two weeks of the meeting he led the singing; since then he has been away preaching in another part of this great field. The meeting closed with fifteen baptized. We pray that the seed sown may spring up and bear much fruit to the glory of God.

I hope to be in Tennessee sometime in August to start a meeting at White's Creek.

Do You Have Choir Practice? BY H. M. PHILLIPS.

This question is often asked the members of the church of Christ, and how to answer correctly is no little matter. If you say, "No," meaning you do not favor the select choir, you may be misquoted. If you say, "Yes," meaning the whole church is the choir. you will likely be misunderstood. In fact, the subject of singing is greatly misapplied, not only by outsiders, but by insiders as well. This is a neglected theme in many places. The song service is not what it could or should be in most congregations.

Generally the Idea of a choir is that it is to do all the singing and let the audience listen. A soloist especially seeks for the praise for self. The words are neither clearly understood por filled with teaching. The melody is so high but few are able to reach it. If you do appreciate it, as a rule, it is about like "soda-pop"-when all is over, you are worse than when started; when you get over the nervous strain, you feel like you would like to bear a song or two. Some solos may be fine and instructive, but generally the Lord is not praised as much as the soloist, and the sound is very uncertain to most people.

There is nothing wrong in having all who sing a certain part to sit in the same place, nor would it be out of order for the place to be near the front. People now are prone to be in or near the back row.

Every one ought to sing if it is possible for him to do so. If your voice is not as melodious as others, soften and lessen the volume, lest you cause others to go on a divided tune with you. If all would do as God wanted them, there would be more practice of singing and the whole church would be more spiritual thereby. Songs are powerful. A nation may be stirred by a song; souls may be moved and congregations may be aroused to new life by a general revival of singing. The custom of singing schools has faded fast for the last few wears. It seems out of date, a little countrylike, and but few take to the plan. Practice will help any congregation. People who do not seem to have music enough about them to carry a hymn book can be trained by constant practice to lead the songs of Zion, thereby gladdening the hearts of the saints.

There are but few in any congregation who are willing or able to lead the songs, and they often become discouraged. More fun is made of a man who tries his best to serve God in this capacity than almost any other. The first leader of songs I can remember was made fun of, and the last one I call to mind is no exception, and all between occupied the same ground.

Bobby and Betty Have a Picnic

Bobby and Betty are having a picnic, and don't you wish you were there? The big freezer full of ice cream costs only half the usual price, for it was made of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder and there never was better ice cream at any price.

All grocers and storekeepers sell Jell-O Ice Cream

Powder in four flavors and unflavored.

HERE IS A DESK THAT Stays Rigid

because the frame is of extra heavy semi-steel and the wood work is solidly dove-tailed to it. The seats have noiseless hinges and cannot toosen, and are extra wide. The frame has no scroll work to extendust and the high arch makes sweeping easy. The only desk made in the South. Send for our descriptive catalogue.

SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY, HICKORY, N. C.

In fact, I know of but few, if any, who are not made fun of. They are kicked and knocked on all sides, and the Lord knows that they need it sometimes; but if a few more helping hands were extended, they might get on top once in a while. Some seem to think their special work in the church is to knock the song leader. Many times the ones who do such know less about singing than any other theme and will not help bear the burden of a song leader. Brethren, we have tried knocking; let us try helping a while and see how that works.

Do you have choir practice? Well, not when the members sulk and stop to find fault. It is hard to have choir practice if the choir does not assemble or does not sing when assembled. Some girls who can sing for hours in the home, while others are courting and a few playing on different instruments, will rarely ever sing at church. A few, who can sing anything from a "rag" to a whole bolt of new cloth, seem fearful that some one might hear their voices in church. The true way to have choir practice is for some one to be the leader and the whole congregation join in and sing with melody in the heart. New songs can be learned, old ones sung better, and every soul be drawn nearer to God and one another. We need more time spent on singing, and the church should see that a course is given in singing each year, free for all who will come.

We believe in singing as God's way to worship in praise, yet how often we neglect to impress the importance of We are God's instruments for music. God invented or created the human voice, and he asks us to sing. He delights to listen to the praise in tones of melody as it is wafted from those who are made in his own image. Every soul ought to practice singing here so as to be ready to join the augelic choir in the sweetest melodies of redeemed souls around God's throne forever. O for a heart to praise my God!

"Diamond Dyes" - Take No Other

Don't Spoil or Streak Material in a Poor Dye

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" con-Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman car diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist has color card

has color card

How Shivar Mineral Water Relieves Rheumatism

According to the standard medical books, rheumatism is not a germ disease, but is the result of imperfect nutrition. The food is either imperfectly digested or imperfectly assimilated. Poisons accumulate, and these irritate and inflame the delicate linings of the joints, the heart, and other organs. To relieve rheumatism, it is, therefore, necessary to stop the formation of these poisons and get rid of those already formed.

The celebrated Shivar Mineral Water acts on the stomach and kidneys. It corrects the digestion and washes out the poisons through the kidneys. This is the opinion of physicians who prescribe it. If you suffer with rheumatism, dyspepsia, indigestion, disease of the kidneys, bladder, or liver, uric-acid poisoning, or any curable conditions due to impure blood, read the following letter, then sign it, inclose the amount, and mail it. Only two out of a hundred on the average report no benefit.

Shivar Spring, Box 21B, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your offer and inclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send; and if it fails to benefit my case, you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return within a month.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corna, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. blo. by mail or at Druggista. Hiscox Chemical Works, Fatchogue, N. Y.

We place White Teachers in Public, Private, and Normal Schools, Colleges, and Universities. The H. D. Yates Teachers' Bureau, Nashville, Tenn.

Sold for SO Years FOR MALARIA CHILLS AND FEVER.
Also a Fine General Strongthening Tonic. At All Drug Stores.

I Reared My Boy to Be a Soldier.

I reared my boy to be a soldier,
A conqueror with sword in hand,
To fight by faith the pow'rs of darkness,
And for the flag of Jesus stand.

I reared my boy to be a soldier, The cross of sacrifice to bear; To bravely face the foe advancing, And e'er Jehovah's armor wear.

I reared my boy to be a soldier, To vanquish wrong and trophies bring;

To bear aloft the trustful banner Of Jesus Christ, the conquering King.

I reared my boy to be a soldier,
To fight till sinks the sun of life;
To march to Prince Emmanuel's orders,

And thus to conquer in the strife.

I reared my boy to be a soldier, To firmly stand for truth and right; To fight all soul-destroying errors, And put the enemy to flight.

I reared my boy to be a soldier,
To overcome temptation's snares;
To watch and pray for strength and wisdom,
And ne'er be taken unawares.

I reared my boy to be a soldier, The hosts of Satan to defy; To stand with fortitude and courage, And thus to conquer, tho' he die.

I reared my boy to be a soldier,
To strive the crown of life to gain,
And volunteers enlist for Jesus.
That they may fight and with him reign.

I reared my boy to be a soldier; Not to bear the carnal sword, But to subdue the hearts of sinners With truth, the Spirit's sword—the word.

I reared my boy to be a soldier, But not the blood of men to shed, Nor widows make, nor orphan children,

Nor cause mourning for the dead.

I reared my boy to be a soldier, Not to acquire the world's applause In spreading death and desolation, But fearlessly to "own his cause."

I reared my boy to be a soldier, To live and die on Zion's walls; To fall in mercy's arms enfolded, When him to glory Jesus calls.

Old-Fashioned Yearly Meeting.

We have decided to hold an old-fashioned yearly meeting of the disciples of Christ at Naish Springs, in Pleasants County, West Virginia, beginning on August 26, 1920, to continue over Lord's day, and we kindly invite all loyal disciples of Christ, with their bishops, deacons, and evangelists, who can do so, to meet with us and assist us in this meeting, and we hope to have a good and profitable time in the work of the Lord. Naish Springs is three miles from Willow Island station on the Baltimore and Ohio Rallroad. All who wish to attend and want to be met at the railroad station with conveyances will please write to Noah Brothers, Willow, W. Va., Route 1. Box 31.

We want all of the preaching brethren present who can attend. We hope that Brother Fred L. Rowe will be present to preach the opening sermon and to lead the song service of the meeting. "The Gospel Message in Song" will be the song book used. We extend to all a hearty welcome.

R. R. Bunner, M.D. Noah Brothers, C. W. Evans, O. C. Childers,

About Minneapolis.

The congregation in Minneapolis, Minn., desires to make clear its relation to Brother C. S. Osterhus. Those who have been supporting this work know about this matter, but for the benefit of brethren everywhere we make the following statement:

Seeing nothing of his work and being told nothing about it, we do not pass judgment on what he is doing. It is only fair to say, though, that his work (whatever it is) and that of the mission here have no connection at all. It has been almost a year since he worshiped with us, and several months since any of his family have attended. As for his paper, The Bible Friend, we cannot indorse it, because it seems to be stressing one point to the exclusion of a great many necessary and clear Bible teachings.

Frank S. Taylor. W. S. Taylor. J. G. Main. Paul C. Young.

Meeting at Fort Worth, Texas.

BY GEORGE A. KLINGMAN.

On May 30 I began a meeting with the Central Church In Fort Worth and continued it until June 13. There was ene baptized, three restored, and two introduced as members of the one body. On the last day elders and deacons were appointed. The interest was good throughout. Brother John Straiton will preach on Lord's day during the summer months while Brother Moore is away, and Brother C. G. Brewer is to begin a meeting in November. All seem much encouraged and determined to do a greater work for God than ever, . The fellowship was delightful. My pleasant stay for one week each in the hospitable Christian homes of Brother and Sister Birchfield and Brother and Sister Lilly was much enjoyed. The prospect for the churches of Christ in Fort Worth is very bright.

The goal of human history is the redemption of the world.

Were They Part of the Law? BY WILLIAM J. MILLER.

Were the Ten Commandments, which are recorded in the twentieth chapter of Exodus, part of the law? Writers are not agreed on whether the Ten Commandments (called the "Decalogue") were part of the law. It has been stated that the sacred Scriptures do not speak of the Decalogue being law. Let us investigate the teachings of the Scriptures, and let it be better understood about whether Adventists are correct in speaking of the Decalogue as being law. The Scriptures say: "I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet." (Rom. 7: 7.) In the Ten Commandments (Decalogue) is the place where it is said, "Thou shalt not covet." (Ex. 20: 17.) According to the reference in Holman's Reference Bible, Ex. 20: 17 is the only passage in the Old Testament that says, "Thou shalt not covet." Therefore, according to evidence, the Ten Commandments, which are called the "Decalogue," are part of the law, though the third chapter of Second Corinthians shows that the Ten Commandments, which were commandments written on "tables of stone," are " done away."

Though Adventists are correct in their contention that the Decalogue is law, they are not correct in trying to make it appear that we are to do according to the commandments in the Decalogue. They were to be obeyed by the children of Israel, but were "done away" when Christ was nailed to the cross. The Ten Commandments were given on Mount Sinai. (See Ex. 19: 20-25.) The commandments were for the children of Israel to obey, and the commandments were called the "covenant," and are represented as a "bond woman," and as being an old "covenant," and were for the children of Israel. (See Gal. 4: 21-31.) "So then, brethren, we are not children of the bond woman, but of the free" (verse 31) that is, we are not children of the old covenant, but of the new covenant. "Stand fast therefore in the liberty wherewith Christ hath made us free, and be not entangled again with the yoke of bondage." (Gal. 5: 1.) Being freed from the old covenant, part of which consists in keeping the Sabbath, we, in our freedom, are not required to observe that seventh day of the week, to keep it holy, but are required to observe the first day of the week. (See Acts 20: 7; 1 Cor. 16: 1, 2; Heb. 10: 25.) The first day of the week is not the Sabbath, but is the "Lord's day." (Rev. 1: 10.) It is the day on which Jesus rose from the dead. (Mark 16: 9.)

The Scriptures speak of the church being married to Christ. "Wherefore, my brethren, ye also are become dead

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be very well described as "a carbonated fruit-flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea-1	cupful	1.54	ģr.
Green tea-1	glassful(8 fl. oz., exclusive of ice)	2.02	gr.
Coca-Cola-1	drink, 8 fl. oz.	.61	ģr.

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity, and also explains, in part, the wide popularity of Coca-Cola, whose refreshing principle is derived from the tea leaf.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

The Coca-Cola Co., Dept. J, Atlanta, Ga., U.S.A.

11

to the law by the body of Christ; that ye should be married to another, even to him who is raised from the dead, that we should bring forth fruit unto God." (Rom. 7: 4.) Begin at the first of the chapter and read to the fourth verse. God had said that he was a husband to the children of Israel. (Jer. 31: 32.) The church, being married to Christ, is married to the Son of God.

Though Christ's apostles preached on the Sabbath more frequently, probably, than on any other day, it was because the Jews were assembled, and, therefore, the apostles had an opportunity to have the people to hear the gospel of Christ, and not because they were observers of the Sabbath to obey the "law of Moses" instead of obeying the "law of Christ." (Gal. 6: 2.)

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Notice to the Churches.

Sedalia, Mo., May 29, 1920.—To All Whom it May Concern: We, the officers and members of the church of Christ worshiping at the corner of Twenty-sixth Street and Massachusetts Avenue, Lawndale, Sedalia, Mo., can say in regard to Brother S. W. Bell, who has been preaching for us about five years and still remains with us, that we know him as a faithful and working Christian and worthy of the esteem and support of all Christians. He is well thought of by the church and by the world in general in Sedalia.

I (the senior elder) am writing this by order of the church. I am and have been elder in the church for thirtyfive years. We are generally poor, but rich in grace. There is a membership of about forty. But some have moved away till there might be less than forty now.-B.] Two were baptized last Lord's day. We feel sure that Brother S. W. Bell, wherever be might go preaching, would proclaim the "whole counsel of God" to the utmost of his ability. We know there have been false reports circulated by two false brethren of another congregation about Brother Bell. We had to stop these two brethren from preaching for us at this place, for reasons we will not mention at this time.

We do feel that we are not doing our duty by not holding up our brother who has worked so faithfully and hard for about five years. Now, brethren in Christ, if you are not convinced, write to any member of the church at this place, whose names appear below.

[Signed] H. Franklin, Senior Elder; G. Paxton, Elder; J. E. Anderson, J. D. North, L. A. Spellmeyer, Deacons.

Trustees: J. D. North, J. E. Franklin, L. A. Spellmeyer.

A Letter From Washington, D. C., to the Brethren, Everywhere.

Dear Brethren and Sisters in Christ: No doubt you will be pleased to learn that we have purchased a well-constructed brick house of worship in the best section of this city. The house was constructed in 1914, and is far better than we could build at the present prices of material and labor.

The deed contains the restrictive clause, which makes it perfectly safe for all future time. The price of the property is forty thousand dollars, and the terms are fifteen thousand dollars cash and the remainder on time, with the privilege of paying it all off as soon as possible, which will stop the interest. This we hope to do before the end of this year, and we earnestly ask your prayers and fellowship. Donating to God's cause is only adding to your bank account in heaven.

You may have donated to this work last year, or you may never have, but we are asking you to give us an offering on July 4. To prove our willingness to sacrifice, our little band here gave nearly eight hundred dollars on May 30. What congregation passed that mark for any purpose? We believe you will give more freely for a good, substantial house than for a cheap one.

Please clip this out and read it to the church, stand nobly with us in the struggle, and give as the Lord has prospered you, and the work will be well done, and we will rejoice together to see the cause of Christ permanently planted in the national capital.

L. C. DRUM,
J. H. JOHNSON,
W. S. LONG,
Building Committee.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

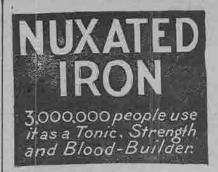

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

Comfort Your Skin With Cuticura Soap and Fragrant Talcum Soap, Olitment, Talcum, 25c, everywher, Somples, Free of United a Laboratoria, Dept. V. Malacom, Magazine Continues Laboratoria, Dept. V. M

REDU E YOUR SHOE BILLS

Allen's Foot—Ease, the antiseptic powder to be shaken into the shoes not only stops the pain of come and bunions and gives quick relief to sweating, callous, tired, aching, tender test, blisters, and sore spots, but Allen's Foot—Ease rests the feet, keeps them cool and comfortable all the time, saving the constant wear on shoes caused by nervousness of the feet. Shoes and stockings wear twice as long when you walk in comfort. Try Allen's Foot—Ease to-day.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freekle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orehard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yest It is harmless and never irritates.

A Rose's Heart

has the same lovely glow and smoothness that your skin will receive from

Try it and see results. 50c and $1 at your druggist's.

Medicated Soap, 25c.

PILES permanently disappear after using three jars of HAN-COCK'S PILE REMEDY, or we will refund your money. If your case is not severe, it is probable that one jar will relieve you. Fo. all kinds of piles. Price, 50 cents a jar. At your druggist's or direct from HANCOCK CHEMICAL COMPANY, Oxford, N. C Druggists, write for fiberal proposition.

"The Model Church," by G. C. Brewer, treats of live subjects, and is a book that should be distributed among the churches. This book has been almost universally commended and is being read with interest by many people. Price, $1.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Volume LXII. No. 28.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 8, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Edifying as the Need May Be	657
Our Contributors	658
Georgia and the Far Southern Field	662
A Line o' Cheer	663
At Home and Abroad	664
Editorial	666
Current Thought	667
Training Little Children	670
Query Department	671
The Master's Vineyard	672
Sin Against the Holy Ghost	673
"Baptists vs. Campbellites (No. 19)	674
Many Hands Make Light Work	675
Obituaries	676
Outlook for Harper College	677
Among the Colored Folks	678
The College Question	678
Report of a Recent Trip	679
Shall We Observe the First or the Seventh Day?	680

W

Edifying as the Need May Be

The Social Stomach.

Science teaches that in the earliest forms of animal life the first organ developed was the stomach only. In the lowest of human societies all energy is concentrated upon the one supreme function of nutrition or subsistence. It is said that such societies may be appropriately characterized as consisting exclusively of a social stomach. Inferior types of men, like animals, literally "eat to live" and "live to eat." Did you ever feed a hungry dog bits of meat and watch him swallow them? The interval between the time when the meat touches the animal's jaws till it is safely landed in the stomach is as short as the action of the organs can make it. It is so nearly instantaneous that the human eye can scarcely follow the wave that flits along the throat during the act of swallowing. It cannot be said that such an animal takes any pleasure in eating. The satisfaction is no doubt intense, but the pleasure is nil. Etymologists tell us that the Chinook Indians eat shellfish and other sea food that they gather along the shores of Alaska in very much the same way that the dogs devour their food. Professor Ward says that the length of time it requires for food to pass from the lips to the stomach is a measure of civilization.

0 0 0

The Hunger Force.

If, indeed, this is a measurable index, the question that people may do well to consider is, to what extent are we civilized in our relation to food? How great a factor in our thoughts and in our activities is the quest for food? Is it true that we have passed beyond the age of gluttony, or may it be said to our shame that the chief thing about society to-day is its ravenous maw? Let it be observed, in the first place, that hunger is the basis of nearly all migratory movements. There are races that can well endure the terrible cold of winter or the excessive heat of summer, but they flee before the blight of hunger. It is hunger which starts the boldened man of the North Sea region toward a warmer and more prolific clime. It is hunger which starts the scion of ancient Athenian stock, cradled beneath the Parthenon, to forsake the graves and groves of his fathers, toward the unknown land of the Stars and Stripes. It is hunger which fills with picturesque passengers the steerage of the zigzagging liners of the ocean and empties them at our ports. It is hunger that scatters the strange procession along the railroads like a sower scatters seed throughout the fertile areas of this country. The power of hunger as a social force can never be estimated. Raymond Robbins, the noted social worker of Chicago, says that after seeing human nature stripped of its veneer amid the stress and strain of life in the Alaskan gold fields and in the great centers of population in many cities, he is of the opinion that the average man, when deprived of food for three days, will lie in order to obtain it; in six days he will steal it if possible; while in nine days he will commit murder in order to preserve his life. So great is the power of hunger that we may safely say that one of the chief problems of civilization is to control and regulate it. How does the Bible help in the solution of this mighty problem?

0 0 0

Bible Teaching on Hunger.

The Bible recognizes the hunger force in all of its immensity and complex relations. The very first command that is given to created man has to do with food and subsistence. God said unto them: "Be fruitful, and multiply, and replenish the earth, and subdue it; and have dominion over the fish of the sea, and over the birds of the heavens, and over every living thing that moveth upon the earth. . . Behold, I have given you every herb yielding seed, which is upon the face of all the earth, and every tree, in which is the fruit of a tree yielding seed: to you it shall be for food: and to every beast of the earth, and to every bird of the heavens, and to everything that creepeth upon the earth, wherein there is life, I have given every green herb for food," (Gen. 1: 28-30.) When, through disobedience, the first pair were expelled from the garden of Eden, God said: "Cursed is the ground for thy sake; in toil shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; . . . in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground." (Gen. 3: 17-19.) The history of man from that fateful day till this has been largely a story of painful struggle for bread and meat. Flocks and herds were the chief possessions of the patriarchs. Joseph's most valuable contribution to his time had to do with the storing of grain and the conservation of the food supply. In the Mosaic laws we find statutes for the protection of fields and vineyards. The most precious legacy of the wilderness wanderings to Israel was the memory of the bread that fell from heaven. The driving power in their march to Canaan was the promise of a land that flowed with milk and honey. In the most beautiful romance of the Old Testament, Ruth is seen gleaning in the fields, befriended by Boaz. David declares: "The young lions do lack, and suffer hunger: but they that seek Jehovah shall not want any good thing." His hope is in Jehovah, "who giveth food to the hungry." When Isaiah breaks forth in prophetic strain to describe the glory of the coming Messiah, he clothes his most striking passage with the figures of hunger and thirst: "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not? hearken dlligently unto me, and eat ye that which is good, and let your soul delight itself in fatness." (Isa, 55: 1, 2.) Then we see how the Bible, in its history, in its laws, in its romance, in its poetry, and in its prophecy, supports the contention of the scientist that hunger is one of the chief mainsprings to human action.

I do not know of any literature that affords such vivid illustrations of the intensity of the hunger force as are found in the Bible. Where can you find a more striking example of how hunger overcomes the finer instincts of man's being than in the story of Esau, that profane person, who sold his birthright for a mess of pottage? Where can you find a situation fraught with more dramatic interest than the story of the siege of Samaria, where one woman said to another: "Give thy son, that we may eat him to-day, and we will eat my son to-morrow." (2 Kings 6: 28.) Where can you find a more heartbreaking appeal than that made by the widow of Zarephath to Elijah, the prophet? She said: "As Jehovah thy God liveth, I have not a cake, but a handful of meal in the jar, and a little oil in the cruse: and, behold, I am gathering two sticks, that I may go in and dress it for me and my son, that we may eat it, and die." (1 Kings 17: 12.)

Our Contributors

Gainsavers.

BY F. W. SMITH.

A "gainsayer" in the Bible meaning of the term is one who "speaks against the truth," whether in or out of the church. That such characters were in the church in New Testament times cannot be successfully denied, and neither would it be true to say that such characters are not in the church to-day. To be sure, such characters may disavow such intention as to "speak against the truth," and, what is more, they may very vehemently deny that they do any such thing. The following passage shows they were in the church during apostolic days: "Holding to the faithful word which is according to the teaching, that he may be able both to exhort in the sound doctrine, and to convict the gainsayers." (Tit. 1: 9.) This constitutes a part of the duties devolving upon that class of men in the church termed "elders," whose duty it is to take the oversight of the congregation and "feed the church of God" on spiritual food. They are to acquaint themselves with the word of God, fortify themselves in "the sound doctrine," in order to exhort the congregation to be diligent in every good work, and by the same "sound doctrine" convict the "gainsayer," or the one who "speaks against the truth."

The gainsayer may claim to be teaching the word of God, but by propagating his opinions and theories, founded on no higher authority than his own wisdom, he is as truly "speaking against the truth" as if he should flatly deny the plain declarations of holy writ. Unless "the sound doctrine" be clearly laid out in the sacred volume, how could any one know that the gainsayer had been convicted of teaching false doctrine? His teaching must be met and exposed before the church and the world; and if he himself is not converted from the error of his way, the bad influence of his pernicious doctrine will be counteracted or destroyed.

At the present time there are "all sorts of men teaching all sorts of doctrine" in the church, and it becomes the solemn duty of elders and evangelists to convict these men of false teaching before the church and the world. But when an elder or an evangelist, impressed with the weight of responsibility in this regard, lifts his voice or pen in discharge of this most sacred duty, protests begin to be heard and written like the following: "I am tired of this fussing among brethren;" "I don't like to see so much wrangling among members of the church." Those who speak and write after such a fashion certainly have not thought seriously of the consequences that would follow the course that would please them. In the first place, to give heed to such complaints would be downright disobedience to God, who positively commands that "gainsayers" must be convicted; and, in the second place, the religious world would become a perfect wilderness of human doctrines and traditions, the truth would perish from the earth, and the Bible would become as useless as an antiquated almanac.

Following the plan of the aforementioned complainers brought into existence the great apostasy, and refusing to follow their plan gave birth to Protestantism. Again, a disregard for their views gave to the world the great Restorative Movement inaugurated by the Campbells and their colaborers. But to follow their plan would mean to lapse into the same condition in which the Campbells found the religious world—viz., overgrown with the briers, thorns, and thistles of human speculations, doctrines, and traditions of men.

It does seem that any one could be able to see that error, false doctrine, and the speculations of men in the church are more dangerous than coming from those without the church. Give a man prestige and an ardent following in the church, and if he goes wrong in his teaching he will do more harm to the truth and the church of God than fifty men on the outside; and yet there are not a few members of the church who protest against any effort to combat the false teaching of such men in the church. A religious journal run by such people would, perhaps, make good wrapping paper, but as a contender "for the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints" it would not be worth the space it occupied in the homes of the people.

The greatest work the great man, David Lipscomb, did was in combating the false teaching and practice in the church of Christ. Had it not been for such work upon the part of Brethren Lipscomb and Sewell through their long years of editing the Gospel Advocate, there would be very few churches in this country worshiping as "it is written." Those men paid no attention to the complaints of some in the church against their exposing error in the church. They drove straight ahead, and their good work still lives. It will be a sad day for the Gospel Advocate if its managers and publishers give heed to those complaints and undertake to run the paper contrary to the policy of its founders. If those in charge should be weak enough to be influenced by such complaints, then I shall lay my pen down or find some other channel through which to write and contend for the truth. Of course error should be opposed in the right spirit, but let it be done with all the power and earnestness of God's word.

Church Organization.

BY F. B. SRYGLEY.

It is a fact known to all Bible readers that the word "organization" is not used in the New Testament in connection with the church; still, I believe the church is an organization. The church exists in two senses in the New Testament. It exists in a universal sense, as in Matt. 16: 18-"And I also say unto thee, that thou art Peter, and upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of Hades shall not prevail against it "-and in a local sense, as in Rom, 16: 16-"All the churches of Christ salute you." How could there be "churches of Christ" unless the church exists in a local sense as well as in a universal sense? The organization of the church in any sense and in every sense is divine and not human. This may account for the fact that no congregation of Christians is commanded to organize the church. To organize means to impart organs, and no man can impart organs to a divine body. When men undertake to organize the church, they usually take a human government as a pattern; but the Savior taught against that when he said: "Ye know that the rulers of the Gentiles lord it over them, and their great ones exercise authority over them. Not so shall it be among you: but whosoever would become great among you shall be your minister; and whosoever would be first among you shall be your servant: even as the Son of man came not to be ministered unto, but to minister, and to give his life a ransom for many." (Matt. 20: 25-28.)

The human body is frequently used in the New Testament to represent the church, and that cannot be organized by man. All the good physician would attempt to do, if called to the infant, would be to develop the organs which God has placed in its body. So in the development of the church. The organs are already in the body of Christ and only need development. This is done by teaching and practice. This may account for the fact that no one is commanded to organize the church.

Teachers, elders, and whatever workers are necessary are grown or developed and not made by appointment alone. It is perfectly proper and right to appoint, recognize, or "ordain," if you prefer that word, any or all of those who by their lives and effort may have developed the qualifications necessary to do the work. But it is sometimes argued that elders were inspired in apostolic days, and, therefore, passed away with the days of miracles and inspiration. But so were many of the teachers of those days inspired, or possessed miraculous gifts of the Spirit, and no one believes that all teaching had an end with the apostolic age. But teachers cannot be made alone by appointment any more than elders can. Still, when they develop the ability to teach, they, like the elders, should be appointed, recognized, or ordained. The right to be an elder or a teacher or anything else in the church is a birthright. No man can bestow a right on a child of God by appointment. If he has the right to a thing, it is a Godgiven right. The ability to do things is quite another question. Men get the ability to be teachers or elders by growth and development. Those who have the ability to do the work should be appointed, and the church that does not do it neglects a plain duty. The elder that rules well is the elder that rules by the word of God in his hands and in his life. The godly, faithful man who possesses the qualifications of an elder given by the apostle has great influence both among them that are within and them that are without.

It is perfectly proper and right to desire the office of a bishop, and he that desires the office desires a good work; but to desire it and try to obtain it alone by appointment is to make a mistake, and such an elder will soon find that his authority bestowed alone by appointment amounts to but little. Let every man in the church who desires the office of a bishop strive with all his might to possess the qualifications given by the apostles, and soon or some day, if he succeeds, he will find himself appointed as an elder over the congregation. But to desire it and try to get it by election or appointment alone, rather than by development and growth, is to try to get something for nothing and is contrary to the teaching of the Scriptures.

If God's children would try harder to grow in grace and a knowledge of the truth and otherwise develop themselves, and not make such an effort to organize, the churches would do better and there would be less disatisfaction among them.

The Refused Christ.

BY FREDERICK SOMMER,

A late author has written a book entitled "The Christ We Forget." We have not read the book, but the very announcement of its subject opens up a wide field for thought. However the author may handle the subject, our own minds handle it by viewing a vast world lying before us with multiform and multiplied relations, in all of which men are living their life and thinking of everything else but Jesus Christ.

And yet, if the Incarnation means anything, human life is not complete unless it is linked up with the divine. Jesus was indeed the Son of God; but it is by virtue of the fact that he was the Son of God that he was also the Son of man—the first true man, the first human being who ever truly and fully lived. And he told the Jews plainly that the thing they missed by not coming to him was life—"Ye refuse to come to me for life."

The world, in thought and action, is always striving along toward some higher goal. We desire to reach up to and attain the best—the best in childhood, in education, in occupation, in domestic life, in society, in politics, in religion. But do we not often overlook the fact that that which completes and crowns all our life is Jesus Christ? In our struggle for the best we leave out the best.

We have by modern methods discovered quite fully and defined quite accurately the characteristics of our human nature all along the path from childhood to maturity. These characteristics call for direction or cultivation or stimuli or expression or repression, as the case may be. We know also that character is caught, not taught, and that our deepest impressions come from the influence of personality. And we are trying to-day to tie knowledge to the world in which a person lives. We recognize that our natures have their wonder, trust, and curiosity period; their period of hero worship; their decision period; their period of problems of thought and conduct; and their practical period. And we try to take these natures where they are, and to satisfy and cultivate the instincts as they appear by that stimuli useful in the educational process. We buy wonder books for our little ones; we take advantage of their curiosity to impart useful knowledge; we are careful to place the right characters before our lovers of the heroic; we guide our adolescents in their decisions; we reason with our doubting Thomases, and try to convert truth into character and power for those of practical turn. We have a well-worked-out educational system calculated to use the nature of the child as it develops for the inculcation of knowledge. We tie knowledge to the world in which the child lives. But with it all, do we not forget the great thing? Religion has its very roots in the characteristics of human nature—in trust, euriosity, wonder, awe, fear, hero worship, decisions, problems, etc. And all these characteristics have their final development and final answer in religion. Shall we not tie God to the world in which the child lives? What is a wonder book without the story of Jesus? Who is a more worthy object of hero worship? And who is more needed and more satisfying in our decisions and in our problems of thought and conduct?

It is because we have refused Christ a place in our business and industrial relations that we are in such a furor to-day. The spirit of competition instead of the spirit of cooperation prevails; each is trying to get all he can out of the other instead of each considering what he can do in the interests of the other. The spirit of Christ, which is the spirit of service, is not there. I heard a public speaker say not long ago that any one who had a job worth while would have to give up the idea of an eight-hour day; that the men who were doing the worth-while things were working twice as many hours as that. I heard the Dominion of Canada Minister of Labor say that he worked twenty years to get an eight-hour day in the shop where he was employed, and in three months after he left that job for his present one, where he is working sixteen. He read us a speech which he said he wrote between midnight and three o'clock in the morning. I heard the Hon. J. Stitt Wilson tell a crowd of working men in a labor hall that they must "spiritualize" their labor; that "production for use" and not for profit alone was as needful a lesson for the worker with hands as for the worker with brains. Whether we practice law, or teach school, or practice medicine, or administer government, or plow, or dig, or sweep the streets, we must do all in the name (with reference to) the Lord Jesus Christ.

I do not know of anything that has been more far-reaching in its results than our refusal of Christ to a place in our modern home. Into how many presumably Christian homes you may go and find that Christ has no appointed place in the family life! There is no family reading of the Bible, no family prayer, no family conversation on divine things. And yet it is the family life that makes the largest contribution toward human character. The family is the very nursery of Christian thought and development. God began and nourished his revelation there for several thousand years. "If the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness!"

Germany refused Christ a place in her national policies, and the treaties of the nations have heretofore been made on other than Christian principles, which things precipitated the greatest war of history.

We talk much about the Bible. We expatiate upon its antiquity, its literature, its ethics, its profound philosophy, its extraordinary history. But do we not sometimes forget its Christ, its wonderful personality, who gives point and pith and life and reality and meaning to it all?

The Jews in Christ's time were so busy looking for the Christ in the Bible that they did not see the living Christ standing in their midst. Their very scriptures and traditions and creeds had obscured him. We may ourselves do something just like that. We do not think and speak too much about his teaching and his name. We do not know too much about the historical Christ. But we are in danger of not looking past the historical Christ, the Christ who lived and did things back there in Judea, and seeing the present Christ who is here in the world with his church to-day. We are too prone to live on the experiences other men had with him instead of having an experience of our own. Paul could say that the Lord had stood by him and strengthened him and delivered him and that he could do all things in his power. That experience of Paul may introduce us to the source of help and strength, but it will never suffice in itself for religion to us. We must have the experience, too. Have we ever really in a hard place where none could help but God placed our reliance upon the living Christ and trusted to him to carry us through? Have we ever, like men of old, risked our all on there being a living Christ in the world to-day? Most of us, I am afraid, live very tame lives for Christians. We never adventure anything, never undertake anything for God, except something that is altogether within our human power of accomplishment. We always take the safe, well-beaten paths, and never do any pioneering. We work so well within our own limits of power that we never leave anything for the living Christ to do. He stands here. with all power, waiting to be used, and we never use him. He stands on the outside of his own church knocking at the door. And we are so busy thinking of him back there in Judea and in the Bible and in the apostolic church that we forget about him being right here present with us today. We read him into every line of the history and of the lives long ago, but we do not read him into the history and the lives of our own times.

The Immediate Need of Abilene Christian College.

BY JESSE P. SEWELL,

Our pressing, immediate need is the room to take proper care of the school we have now.

We now have a standard A-plus college. A stronger, more efficient organization is not to be found. The equipment we have is good. We enrolled four hundred and twenty-eight students during the session just closed. Not an effort was made after the opening day to secure students, as we had every room of our own and all we could rent full from the start to the close. From one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and fifty additional students could have been secured easily. So we have to-day in Texas a Christian college with the highest official educational standing, with a normal attendance of five hundred students.

We could teach these extra students who desire to come, but cannot because of a lack of room, without any extra expense. From one hundred and twenty-five to one hundred and fifty more boys and girls would be under Christian teachers, in the midst of Christian influence, and regularly studying the Bible.

A PERSONAL QUESTION.

If in your home neighborhood one hundred and twenty-five people were coming to your meetinghouse each Lord's day asking to study the word of God with you, and you were having to turn them away week after week because your house was full—no more could get in—what would you do? If you had the money or could borrow it or induce your brethren elsewhere to give it to you, you would provide more room, and do so at once, would you not? If not, there is something seriously wrong with your Christianity.

At Abilene Christian College we have had about one hundred and fifty fine young people asking for admission, not to study the Bible once a week with us, but daily. We have turned them away, not because we have not the teachers, but because of a lack of room. What shall we do about it? We have the money. There is not any question about that. If these fine young people, turned away from here because we do not provide room for them, go into denominational or secular schools and are led into denominationalism or infidelity, what excuse will we offer when we stand before the judgment bar of God? Fine young people who were baptized here last year are now in secular schools being taught to sneer at Christ and his holy religion because they were a few days late in getting here this year and there was no room for them.

Some of you good people who read this, who have far more money than you will ever need for yourselves and your families, have been asked to invest some of this money in room for these boys and girls. You have not done so. Are you keeping that money to make more money to gratify your ambitions and pride? When you meet some of these precious souls, turned away from Christian influence and teaching into antichristian influence and teaching because of the fact that you failed to provide room for them, and they are lost as a result of it, then what about you? Do you think the fact that you piled up a fortune and left it behind you in this world will be much consolation? Do you think it will swell your pride then as it does now? Do you think it will save your soul?

We must have at least one large building by Christmas or turn away two hundred students this fall. Which shall it be? Each of you will answer this question to the extent of your ability, one way or the other. Which way shall it be in your case?

WHAT IS BEING DONE.

During the past two weeks, with very little time spent on it, we have raised $57,779. Only a few places have been visited. The brethren and sisters are investing in this work as never before. The money will be secured to provide properly for a standard college of five hundred students. We want you to have a part in it.

We have recently bought thirty-five acres of ground. This ground has on it one large, handsome brick home and two modern bungalows. This gives us room to grow. Forty-six thousand dollars was paid for this additional property. Buying this ground will make it possible for us to sell at a good price three and a half acres bought last winter which we will not now need. The two bungalows will sell for ten thousand dollars. We have three other frame cottages we can sell for a fair price when we have a new building provided. So you can see we have now a good start toward the new building we need so much for next year.

We are going to push the campaign with all of the vigor and speed possible. Do you not desire to assist in it? If so, give all you can. Talk for it. Pray for it. Send us the names and addresses of Christians who should be interested.

WHERE THE MONEY IS COMING FROM.

Members of our local congregation have given $33,663, and they are not through yet. This church numbers between one hundred and fifty and two hundred. Our treasurer's report submitted the first Sunday in April showed that the church had given in its regular Lord's-day offerings, with only one special collection of $1,200, during the preceding six months, a little more than $7,400. The Lord makes it possible for those who so desire to do great things in his service.

Brethren of Merkel have given $2,655; Clyde, $1,626; Winters, $1,200; two brethren of Eastland, $4,250; Rowden, $1,605; Baird, $255; Ranger, $810; Roscoe, $612; Loraine, $975; San Angelo, $379; Coleman, $1,505; Colorado, $220; Trent, $185; one brother at Mineral Wells, $1,500; one brother at Quanah, $2,250; one brother at Stephenville, $3,750; one brother at Tuscola, $500.

These gifts range from fifty cents to $3,750 each. Every one of them is deeply appreciated by all of those directly responsible for the work. Some of them represent real sacrifice. None of them come from very rich people.

There is one five-hundred-dollar gift from a young woman who receives her B.A. degree from Abilene Christian College this year. She began with us in the high school and worked in the kitchen for her expenses. She has earned her way and helped others all the way through. There has never been a more popular student in the school. She is turning down $150 a month in the public schools next year and teaching in Abilene Christian College for $100, and giving the school $500.

There is a five-hundred-dollar gift from a young man who has been in the school for seven years and has earned his way. He is teaching for from $50 to $100 a month less than he could get elsewhere,

The faculty is giving a unit of $3,750 in this campaign after teaching for far less than they are begged to accept elsewhere.

One sister has given a pretty diamond pin, a treasure left her by a departed sister.

One young woman, whose eyes prevent her going to school much, who works for $50 a month and her board, gives $50.

All the gifts reported herein come from students, teachers, trustees, patrons, and others in or near the school, who see and know its work. Most of them are not giving for the first time, but have been giving for years. They are glad and happy to do so.

WHAT ARE YOU GOING TO DO?

This institution is not built nor operated for profit. Sacrificing men or women who love the truth of God and who love boys and girls are building it for the good they can do. When all those who are now connected with It have passed on, it will stand as a source of continual blessing. We want you to invest some of that which God has given you in permanent equipment.

The subscriptions to this fund are being made in five payments—one cash payment and one payment the first of each December for the next four. We are going to see you personally during this campaign, if possible. But will you not just mail us a check for all the cash possible and four notes payable to W. H. Free, treasurer, Abilene Christian College, for an equal amount each, due December 1, 1920, 1921, 1922, and 1923? You will be glad to have done so, and what you invest here will bear interest in souls long after your other investments have failed.

Relief Fund.

Latham congregation, Dresden, Tenn$2	5.00
"A Sister" and her class at Fountain Creek, Tenn	1.05
H. H. West, Hopkinsville, Ky	4.00
Carroll Street congregation, Nashville, Tenn 2	5.00
Miss Maggie Young, Moulton, Ala,	5.00

In acknowledgment of our last remittance we have received the following letter from the Near East Relief Committee, with headquarters in New York City:

New York, June 30, 1920.—Dear Mr. Lipscomb: It gives me great pleasure to attach hereto official receipt for the one thousand dollars forwarded with your note of recent date, for which please accept our sincere thanks.

Kindly express to the readers of the Gospel Advocate our sincere thanks and appreciation for their kind assistance toward this worthy cause. I am sure they will be glad to know that this money is going to help alleviate the suffering in the Near East. Thanking you, I am,

Sincerely yours, John W. Mace, Assistant Field Secretary.

In sending contributions, be sure and state whether they are intended for the Home Orphans' Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Fund, or the Poland Fund. I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for orphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb, who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

When once we give way to temper, temper will claim a right of way, and come in easier every time. He that will be in a pet for any little thing will soon be out at elbows about nothing at all. A thunderstorm curdles the milk, and so does a passion sour the heart and spoil the character.—Spurgeon.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. Hall

The Work at McGregor, Ga.

The following letter from Sister Vina Hooper, dated June 14, is self-explanatory:

Brother Hall: Brother Prevatt closed a nine-days' meeting here last week. There were no additions, but we feel that this was one of the great meetings. It was held at the busiest times, but in spite of this each service was well attended. We were so glad to be in our own house, and feel so thankful that it is as nearly complete as it is.

We regret to have to make another call for help here, but it seems very necessary. There must be at least five hundred and fifty dollars raised at once to meet the bills now due. The carpenters' bill is four hundred dollars. The window and door frames, doors and windows, will be one hundred and fifty dollars, possibly more. The members here have made and are still making a great sacrifice in building the house. Nearly all live on rented land, and it seems that they cannot meet the expenses without some more help. I certainly trust that our brethren will not turn a deaf ear to this worthy call, but send large or small donations at once to Mr. Sidney Swann, McGregor, Ga.

Total contributions received since last report, $100.50. Vina Hooper.

It seems that five or six hundred dollars for the splendid work so well begun at McGregor should be easily obtained. Too many wait on others because they feel that enough will be obtained without their own help. I do most earnestly pray that every friend of the Georgia work who reads this will send a liberal donation to Brother Sidney Swann, as suggested by our good sister. Just think of the fact that less than ten months ago we had not a disciple at this place, and now we have a faithful little band worshiping there in their own house! Brethren, let us see that they get the amount our sister says they need, and that at once. We are asking Brother Swann to let us have the report of all donations received by the last week in July. Will you help us to make that report be what it should? We have begun the task; let us finish it.

"It Is a Fearful Thing."

There is one thing we should never forget-viz, God knows us; and it matters not how well we may fool the people, when it comes to God, we cannot "get by" with it. How we hate our own souls when we begin to practice deceit, strive to make people believe things we know to be untrue! On all questions, troubles, or whatever may come up, the unvarnished truth is what we should all speak, and we should do so in the spirit of our Lord and Savior. "A conscience void of offense toward God and men" (Acts 24: 16) is a thing we need and must have, if we are to be honest with ourselves. The thing we all should strive to our utmost to do is to see ourselves just as God sees us. for this is exactly what we are; we cannot possibly be more than this. If we were to see ourselves this way, our great need of improvement would be seen. No sermon should ever be delivered, no article prepared for a paper, without the speaker or writer searching his own heart for the motive that prompts him to speak or write. Is it a burning desire to honor God and help men? If so, the motive is right And one thing more should be considered -viz.: "Will what I am to say or write edify? Will it build up and strengthen?" If you have a doubt about this. keep your tongue and pen still. "Let all things be done unto edifying," declares Paul, and well would we do to heed this admonition. I think I have heard a few sermons and read more articles that caused me to wonder if the speaker or writer ever, in all his life, had a real heartfelt desire to build up and strengthen others. God knows our motives, and if they are wrong, he can never forget it till we repent and ask him to forgive us. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God." (Heb. 10: 31.) But fearful to whom? To hypocrites; to people whose sins are not forgiven; to those who have done their utmost to make others think that they love God and are loyal to his truth, when they have ever served and loved self, and that is the sum total of their love and sacrifice. A living consciousness of the God with whom we have to do is very essential to our living the Christian's life. How sorely we need to heed the command: "Try your own selves, whether ye are in the faith; prove your own selves!" (2 Cor. 3: 5.) Care but little what people may think of you or do toward you; the one thing of vital importance is that you see that your heart is right with God, that he holds nothing against you.

0 0 0

David Lipseomb College.

I have just received a bulletin of the David Lipscomb College, and that reminds me of a duty that every old student owes to himself and this splendid institution of learning. A. B. Lipscomb has been elected by the Board of Trustees to the presidency and H. S. Lipscomb to the office of dean. These are two great men, and the very best can be expected of this college so long as such men are at the helm. I love this institution of learning, and have known intimately every president that has been at its head, and love every one of them. It has meant much to Atlanta to have Brother J. A. Harding, its first president, with us in Atlanta. He is still with us, and though he is unable to work, it does us all good to look at his face that ever shines with love and hope. They have all been loyal to the Book, but no more so than the one who shall guide this great institution of learning in the future. So long as such men are at its head, militarism and higher criticism will have a hard time finding its way in. May the fathers and mothers who are thinking of sending their boys and girls off to school give this college their prayerful consideration. The best of influences should ever surround our boys and girls in their school life. Such you will find at the David Lipscomb College.

$ $ $

A Thing We Should Not Forget.

There seems to be a tendency on the part of some to want no combative preaching. While I am opposed to any man's being unkind in his preaching, I want some one to tell me how not to be. My rule is: (1) Let no man stick closer to the Book than I do; (2) let no man be kinder than I am in the presentation of the truth. But we must remember that when we take a stand for the teaching of our Lord, we then and there take a stand against anything our Lord does not teach. If not, why not? I am frank to confess that this is unpleasant to me. I have not yet gotten my body sufficiently dead or under subjection that it is easy for me to oppose the errors of others. I had rather not do it; but how am I to get around It and at the same time be true to my Lord? Indeed, those who have and love the truth on the subject of salvation are opposed, of necessity, to everything that man may advance on the subject that is opposed to the truth. The opposition should be exercised in the spirit of love and kindness and with a deep desire to save those in error, but it must be done. * * *

The church of the hundred and twenty waited for the great gift of the Holy Spirit; and it came, richer, more divine, more full of power from above than they could have imagined. So the church ever waited for fresh degrees of grace and glory; so apostles waited; and we, inheritors of the same sacred blessings, as many as desire to be perfect toward God, must also be thus minded.—Selected.

A LINE O' CHEER

BY MRS. J. U. YARBROUGH

Homeslek.

Sometimes, when the grind of the city beats on my heart Like a brazen hammer with terrible blows, I think of a lost garden I knew in my childhood, Filled with the scent of a rose,

And sometimes, when the clamor of life seems endless, And my soul is bowed with its weight of pain, I think of an old, still apple tree in blossom At the end of a hawthorn lane.

O, do not smile at such simple memories!

They keep us young, they keep the man-heart right.

And sometime we will all go back contented

To a Garden and a Tree in a place of light.

—Charles Hanson Towne.

0 0 0

The Ergograph.

An eminent Italian scientist, Prof. Angelo Mosso, has invented a remarkable little instrument, which he calls the "ergograph," and which is designated for the measurement of the growth of fatigue in a working member of the body. A remarkable instrument; but it is antedated many thousands of years by an instrument of similar purpose and far greater accuracy. Each of us is equipped with an ergograph, if I may borrow the title.

Technically, Professor Mosso's device is very simple, but, withal, it has led to some striking deductions relative to the causes and results of overfatigue. For example, by its means it has been conclusively proved that if a finger (using the finger as an example of what happens to the entire body under similar circumstances) has been used until it is completely tired out, it will require two full hours of rest to restore that finger to normal capacity for work. Furthermore, if the exhausted finger is forced to work after just one hour's rest, it will do, not one-half, but only one-fourth, its normal amount. Thereby hangs the tale: forced work is wasteful. Time spent in regaining dissipated strength, time spent in rest and in play, is time gained. Stated concisely, the proposition is this: One unfatigued man is to his work as four semifatigued men to the same work.

So much for the mechanical ergograph. Its findings are more reducible to formula than is possible with the human "instrument," but are none the more observable for that matter. The human ergograph we call "disposition," and it measures fatigue, and measures it accurately. Doubtless all of us who read are people accustomed to work with our hands. We recall the times when increasing-even redoubled-effort brought steadily decreasing results. This is natural; the inward resistance, fatigue, piles up barriers to be overcome before the work to be done can be attacked. In such a case four hours' work has the value of one hour of unfatigued effort; and it is in such a situation that the human ergograph begins to register its readings. It is a physiological fact that fatigue opens up all nerve paths, lessens resistance, and thus keeps impressions from entering the mind through correct channels. Rather, the impressions scatter, lose proportion, lose balance. Sounds, for example, do not enter the sound area of the brain, but scatter to various little jangling nerves all over the body. That is why they "set us on edge." Reading No. 1 for the ergograph: We fumble our work, each task gets harder, and we accomplish increasingly less for our effort. Reading No. 2: And so on and on. Each "reading" is a signal that we are driving our human machine too far and that stopping time is at hand. Here is where it is wise to recall Professor Mosso's law: One unfatigued man is to his work as four fatigued men are to the same work.

Now, a woman has the hardest job in the world to apply this lesson to. All the neat little maxims seem to fit any other job better than hers. For there is not one big job for her, but a succession of little jobs-big ones they seem to her. It is difficult to realize that the one or two more things to be done are adding to the burden of her fatigue, not their own weight, but three or four times their own weight; it is more difficut to realize that time taken for rest at the right time will more than repay in increased capacity; it is most difficult of all to realize that it is possible to put off the tasks at hand for a little time. know one man who has studied human nature largely who says that a woman's besetting sin is her sense of her own importance-rather, her poor judgment of the importance of the thing she has to do. She cannot tell the vital from the trivial, he maintains; that is the essential reason why she will not succeed in affairs that demand such judgment. And all affairs do, really. I do not know that he is right, but I do know that the mundane, "earthy" things have a way of looking mighty big to the most of us housekeepers. Perhaps that is why we sweep more than we read. I wonder if we are not prone to think too highly of all things, except our own feelings and our own appearance. And they are the two things we have in our control which, of all others, affect those around us most. Is it not something like turning the magnifying end of the telescope on the old hay mound close at hand, and the "little end" on the distant, snow-capped mountains?

I am aware as I write that some of those very near me are going to smile wisely as they read and wonder when I acquired such wisdom. I have not. That is the honest confession for the relief of my soul. But I am in process of acquiring. I have just recently heard of the little ergograph, and I have had to-night for the first time these thoughts concerning our own individual ergographs. I shall try to use mine more wisely. It is through "thinking on these things" that the benefit is obtained.

0 0 0

In praise of little children I will say,
God first made man, then found a better way
For woman; but his third way was the best,
For of all created things the loveliest
And most divine are children. Nothing here
Can be to us more gracious or more dear;
And though, when God saw all his works were good,
There was no rosy flower of babyhood,
Twas said of children in a later day
That none could enter heaven save such as they.

0 0 0

Safe in His Care.

O sing, little bird, on your low-hanging bough, And tell us your faith with your song; For what do you care if the wind sweeps the trees? You know that your wings are so strong.

And blossom, sweet flower, however so low Your roots may be hidden from sight, The sun will not leave you to fade and decay; Your heart is a cup for his light.

So, child of the Master, wherever your place,
You need not despair of his love;
For never a corner of earth is so small
'Tis hid from the Father above.—Selected.

0 0 0

Like tides on a crescent sea beach,
When the moon is new and thin,
Into our hearts high yearnings
Come welling and surging in;
Come from the mystic ocean,
Whose rim no foot has trod—
Some of us call it longing,
And others call it God.
—William Herbert Carruth.

W

AT HOME AND ABROAD

B. C. Goodpasture reports a very successful meeting at Livingston, Tenn.

Change of address: P. D. Copeland, from Antioch to Thomotosassa, Fla.

John T. Smithson, of Louisville, Ky., paid us a visit last week. He is now in a meeting at Daylight, Tenn.

Brother McQuiddy has been away from the office for several days in an effort to secure a much-needed rest.

Mr. J. M. Hankins and Mrs. Ellen Vantrease were married on Independence Day, A. B. Lipscomb officiating.

J. W. Hayter changes his address from New Glasgow, Prince Edward Island, Canada, to Milton, Nova Scotia, Canada.

The new catalogue of David Lipscomb College is now being distributed. If you wish a copy, write to A. B. Lipscomb, president, Nashville, Tenn.

The church at Waldo, Ark., contemplates a great meeting, beginning on July 18. C. R. Nichol will do the preaching and Luther Fincher will lead the song service.

Under date of July 2, Morgan H. Carter writes: "The revival at Macon, Ga., progresses with interest. I close Sunday, the Lord willing; then to Atlanta, then to Washington."

T. T. Pack reports a good meeting with the California Avenue congregation, in West Nashville. There were four restorations, four by letter, and one addition from the Baptists.

From R. N. Moody, Delrose, Tenn., July 5: "I began a meeting here yesterday with fairly good prospects. This is a new congregation and a hard place, but we hope to accomplish some good."

Charles R. Brewer closed a fine meeting at Tullahoma, Tenn., on July 4. Fifteen persons were baptized, two took membership with the congregation, and one returned from the Methodist Church.

E. L. Whitaker, of Henderson, Tenn., will begin the annual meeting at Millville, Ark., on July 30. J. E. Green will conduct the song service; R. L. Colley, the local preacher, will aid in the meeting.

Among the visiting preachers at the Harbert Avenue meeting in Memphis, Tenn., conducted by A. B. Lipscomb, were F. L. Paisley, Claude Hall, J. P. Lowrey, John T. Smith, W. T. Wilson, and W. M. White. We were greatly encouraged by these brethren.

From Guy Renfro, Montgomery, Ala., July 4: "We had a good service to-day at Highland Avenue. Last Sunday we had a large crowd at Liberty. I baptized two persons, Brother Haynes recently closed a good meeting at West Montgomery, with five added."

From A. J. Traylor: "I have just closed a good singing school at Vine, Tenn. The interest was great, though we had only a small schoolhouse to meet in, and it would have been much better had we had a house with plenty of room. The people at Vine are building a church house now, and they need help."

In last week's issue of the Gospel Advocate, under the heading "Faith and Works," in commenting on that subject, I said: "Men of faith in the days of the apostles were baptized the same hour of the night that they were converted." This was an oversight. It should have been "the same hour of the night that they believed."

From Charles Hardin, Springfield, Mo., July 1: "I led the song service for H. E. Winkler at West Point, Miss., in a meeting which resulted in the faithful being strengthened and a determination to do more work in that State. I enjoyed the time spent with Brother Winkler very much, and learned much from him. I will begin a meeting at Sparta, Mo., on July 3."

Clayton Gall, Wichita, Kan., writes: "Wife and I are to unite our full strength with the few brethren in Minneapolis, Minn., on July 11, in a meeting now planned to continue all summer. I suppose the heavy burden on the few there will be in buying the tent, and they are worthy of help, which should be sent to W. S. Taylor, 116 North Second Street, that city."

From S. L. Bradley, Morrillton, Ark.: "Please allow me to say to the brotherhood at large that we are building a Christian College here in Arkansas and would like to get in touch with all who are interested and would like to locate here. We have a good, healthy location, and the most accessible town in the State, with two big highways and good railroad facilities. Any further information will be gladly given."

In this week's Gospel Advocate we are inserting a renewal blank with the request that all our subscribers renew who are in arrears. The expense of maintaining the paper at the high cost of blank paper and of labor is so great that we need every dollar due, and we must ask our subscribers to remit promptly in order that we may take care of our bills. Your prompt attention and remittance will be appreciated.

The death of Sister Alex Perry, at her home near Nashville, on July 3, brought sadness to the hearts of hundreds of people. Many of these attended the funeral on Sunday afternoon. Brother Elam spoke very impressively and in a most comforting way, basing his remarks upon God's model of an excellent woman as portrayed in the Bible. R. V. Cawthon and the writer assisted in the service. Sister Perry will be sadly missed by her noble husband and her devoted children, grandchildren, and friends.

From Coleman Overby, Murray, Ky., July 2: "G. C. Brewer began a meeting here last Lord's day. He was taken sick Tuesday evening after services. He has a genuine case of 'flu.' Best medical aid and a trained nurse were obtained. I am glad to report that he is much better at this writing. Brethren, unite with us in prayer to God for his speedy recovery. Charley Taylor continued the meeting until Thursday night. In spite of disappointments, this was one of the best meetings in the history of this loyal band. Four were baptized and seven took membership."

From G. Dallas Smith, Cleburne, Texas, July 3: "I am leaving to-day for a two-weeks' meeting at Mount Calm, Texas. From there I go to West, Texas, for a two-weeks' siege. After this I go to Tennessee for two meetings—one at Alamo and one at Fayetteville. On my return from Tennessee I will spend two weeks with the church at Center Point, Ark. After this I will take up the regular work here in Cleburne for the fall and winter. In my absence Dr. Wood, of Dallas; Brother Buchanan, our county missionary; Brethren Self and Foster, two of our efficient elders, and probably others, will speak for the church here."

From P. B. Johnson, St. Louis, Mo.: "We are going to pay one thousand dollars on our lot and get an extension on the balance. The help we have received from congregations and gifts from individual brethren enable us to pay this amount. A large part has been contributed by the zealous little band here. We must do more, and, brethren, you must do more to help us. If any one has sent us a contribution and has not received an acknowledgment of the same, write us at once, so we may acknowledge it. We earnestly hope that many churches and brethren will heed our call. The work is urgent. You know our need, and we believe you are interested in our work. Why not respond to it at once?"

A. B. Lipscomb writes: "The meeting with the Harbert Avenue congregation at Memphis, Tenn., was a pronounced success. This congregation has been making some wonderful strides, largely due to the entiring efforts of C. E. Norred and his faithful wife. They are both aggressive and loyal. Brother Norred does his work in a systematic way, dividing the town into districts and keeping tab on the results of house-to-house visiting. He has the undivided support of a large and ever-growing membership. The visible results of our meeting were as follows: Eleven baptisms, two restorations, four additions by letter, and three who came from the 'digressives.' Brother Wilson led the song service during the meeting."

From R. A. Craig, Parksville, Ky.: "I was at Harrisonville, Ky., the fourth Sunday in June. The brethren there are few in numbers, but seem to want to push the work along. With the help of God, the work will grow and prosper. Last month I visited four churches and one mission point. I am now (July 6) in a meeting at Parksville, with good attendance. We had one hundred and five in our Bible classes Sunday morning. Everything looks bright for a good harvest of souls. I am expecting J. G. Malphurs to be with us for a few days. Brethren, we must work harder than ever; false doctrines are besetting the church on every side, and brethren who were once true have turned back. I have about eight meetings for this summer and fall. Address me at Parksville, Ky., for the next two weeks."

From W. H. Garrett, Route 1, Norene, Tenn.; "We are now trying to get enough money to finish the church house that we have just begun at Vine. Our church house was destroyed by fire about twenty-three years ago, and we never have been able to secure enough money to build another; and if we finish the house that is now being built, we will be compelled to ask other congregations to assist There are so many children here that need the Bible taught to them; but how can we teach them without some place to meet together to worship God in singing, praying, and studying the truths which are taught in the Book of of all books? We lack about twelve hundred dollars having enough to complete the house. If twelve congregations would give one hundred dollars each, that would finish the We are very grateful to the church at Franklin for one hundred dollars. We are hoping and praying that we may be enabled to complete the house. Send all contributions to me.'

Emmett Creacy, of Horse Cave, Ky., sends us the following: "Our tent meeting closed at Summer Shade on June One young lady obeyed the gospel of Christ and much good was done in other ways. The 'progressive' preachers have had charge of the church at Summer Shade for many years, and, as a result of their labors, the innovations have been used in the church. At the close of our meeting the brethren promised to meet regularly and worship 'as it is We have some good people at Summer Shade. They seemed to appreciate my humble efforts in preaching the word. The brethren are anxious to have another meeting this year. Herbert E. Winkler, of Nashville, Tenn., has promised to begin the meeting on October 3. We are now promised to begin the meeting on October 3. at Edmonton, Ky., with our tent. Prospects are favorable for a good meeting. Edmonton is the county seat of Metcalfe County. We have a few brethren here. The meeting four days old, with one added to the one body. Miller has charge of the song services, and is doing his part We go from this place to Bellview. Brethren, pray We are preaching in the destitute places of Southern Kentucky.

Thomas H. Burton writes from Union, S. C.: "I arrived in Union on June 24, after spending several weeks in Tennessee in the interest of our lot and building fund for our first house in the State of South Carolina. While on my trin I met with very good success, and we are now getting ready to begin building as soon as possible. Under the existing conditions we have about decided to build a frame structure, put up in sections, so that if we ever want a nicer house here we can move this one elsewhere. churches and individuals promised to pay their subscriptions on demand or when needed. So I take this opportunity of notifying them that we are now ready and will need all that we can get in the next few days. We pitched our tent and began a meeting last Sunday with a reasonably We pitched our good audience. This meeting will continue indefinitely. Brother Nix will begin in Spartanburg as soon as our other tent arrives. While on the road I was very fortunate in securing tents for our work. The brethren at Manchester contributed a good tent with about one hundred chairs, They also contributed liberally to our building also lamps. fund. The sisters in Lebanon took it upon themselves to furnish me a new tent. In this they succeeded. Only one brother contributed to this fund. We are very thankful and truly grateful for these tents and equipments, and will try to use them to the honor and glory of God. Pray for us. and remember that we are to a great extent responsible for our prayers being answered. Address all communications and make all checks and orders payable to Thomas H. Burton, Union, S. C.

Belle Haven Orphans' Home, Luling, Texas.

Over ten years ago Brother William J. Taylor, who loved the children of this Home, started my birthday memorial fund for the benefit of this institution. He has since passed over the river, and I am still here serving the Home to the very best of my ability. July 20 will remind me that another busy year has passed. We request your special offerings on that occasion for the purpose of purchasing one of the best Holstein cows that can be found. If a balance is left over, we desire to add some things needed in the way of equipment of the children's playground. They are so happy in their play, and it is our duty to add all innocent amusements possible for these lonely, motherless, little ones. As flowers wither and die without light, children will become old and dwarfed without physical activities in the open air. We trust that the response will be liberal.

Spoken at the Funeral of Mrs. Alex Perry.

BY A. B. L.

As I see the matter, Sister Perry's life is a fine example of the old-fashioned ideals of Christian womanhood as opposed to the modern movement among women. and read a great deal nowadays about the emancipation of woman. Some think that our grandfather's conception of the sphere to which women ought to be confined is no longer tenable; and even the ideas of ten or twenty years ago are already being consigned to the dust heap. Woman's political influence is now a factor to be reckoned with and her vote a thing to be courted. We are reminded that the work of women on public boards and committees, in appointments under local government authorities, in the organization of war charities and war work of all kinds has forever disposed of the old stupid idea that she is marked by mental inferiority or practical incapacity, John Waddell, the noted English preacher, tells us that "much water has flowed under the bridge since Southey wrote to Charlotte Bronté that 'literature cannot be the business of a woman's life and ought not to be.' What would the laureate of one hundred years ago have said could he have been conducted through one of our munition factories, or beheld women in uniform on trams and trains, women inspectors, women voters, and women members of Parlia-I am not concerned with what Southey would have said had he been acquainted with these modern departures, but I am sure that the apostle Paul would have repeated what he wrote nearly two thousand years ago: "Teach the young women to be sober, to love their husbands, to love their children, to be discreet, chaste, keepers at home, good, obedient to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed," And Peter would have reminded us again of the "ornament of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price."

Sister Perry did not belong to the "new woman" class. She never craved emancipation from her home duties. She was content to reign as queen in her husband's heart and to be the molder and protector of her children's lives. At the same time she did not overlook others outside of the family circle. Some of the happiest recollections of my childhood are connected with visits to her hospitable home and pleasant associations with her children. Some of the most encouraging words that I received as I grew to manhood were spoken by this good woman. There was something about her whole demeanor suggestive of hospitality and open-hearted kindness. She was not only sympathetic, but was gentle with her sympathy.

If you will study the New Testament carefully, you will find that a large share of the work that was done for the church in its early history was done by the women who possessed this "meek and quiet spirit." Again, if you will search the annals of church history since that time, you will find it to be one continuous record of their good deeds. God does not restrict her powers of usefulness when he requires the Christian woman to be a "keeper at home." He assigns to her the largest and most fertile field in all creation.

We must not forget, therefore, that no political or social emancipation can change the primal facts of womanhood, The life of a wife in so many homes seems to the outward view drab and uninteresting compared with the openings that await on every hand the girls and women of these modern days. Already not a few are tossing their heads and declaring that they prefer freedom to slavery. If that view becomes a common one, the outlook for the nation and the world is dark indeed; for any philosophy of life which lessens the dignity of wifehood and motherhood, or which tempts those women who have the opportunity of wise and Christian marriage to cast it from them in favor of other careers, however important in themselves, is assuredly a philosophy of the devil. Sometimes we make true progress by going backward. And my message to-day, based upon the inspiration of this good woman's life, is: Let us move forward by going backward to the glorious ideals of the New Testament. "Favor is deceitful, and beauty is vain; but a woman that feareth the Lord, she shall be praised.'

> "The dear Lord's best interpreters Are humble human souls; The gospel of a life like hers Is more than books or scrolls."

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

S2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Hemiltiances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order. The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the dup payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advecate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Cliaton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.

Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Religious Controversy.

BY M. C. K.

In the midst of life's various currents and countercurrents as they affect one's religious environment, it is difficult to keep one's self properly poised at all times in relation to religious controversy. On account of the antagonisms which it develops and the jagged thrusts between opponents which often attend It, good men sometimes differ in judgment touching its value at any time, and hence occupy opposite extremes, the one side favoring such controversy because of the evident fact that it is a very potent and efficient means of eliciting the truth, and the other side opposing all controversy at all times because of the equally evident fact that it is sometimes conducted in a way unbecoming to Christians and even disgusting to persons with proper feelings and a proper conception of the dignity of Christianity and the high plane of action to which It calls men.

It is frankly admitted here that there is some apparent ground for both of these positions, and hence it is maintained that the true position can only be found where men make the word of God on the matter of controversy their standard of judgment. In the present article it is proposed to measure religious controversy by this standard. This is the only fair and infallible test, and all rightthinking persons are willing that such controversy shall stand or fall according as it may or may not conform to this standard.

Let it be observed, first of all, that, no matter which of the two sides just mentioned men may occupy, they find themselves confronted with the stern fact that Jesus, the Founder of Christianity, and Paul, the greatest human representative and defender it has ever had, were constantly engaged in religious controversy throughout their whole religious career. Of course, this definitely settles the fact that controversy in and of itself cannot be wrong. Yea, more, it definitely settles the fact that controversy must, indeed, be of much value, or these two illustrious persons would not have engaged in it practically all their lives. Nothing is more conspicuous in the life of Jesus or that of Paul than the prominent part they both took in the matter of religious controversy with their contemporaries. Let us look a little more closely into the facts.

To begin with, so flercely did the battle rage on one occasion between Jesus and the Jews that the latter, enraged at their manifest inability to meet him in argument, "took up stones therefore to cast at him; but Jesus hid himself, and went out of the temple." (John 8: 59.) The ugly spirit and equally ugly conduct on the part of the opponents of Jesus on this occasion are what often brings religious controversy into disrepute. Jesus condemned their spirit and their conduct, but did not allow this wrong on their part to drive him to the wrong extreme of condemning controversy itself. This is where men often err. Wrong conduct in controversy, no matter to what degree it may be carried nor on what scale it may be enacted, has nothing whatever to do with the merits of controversy itself. If it did, even preaching could be condemned on the same ground. Men sometimes show the wrong spirit and are guilty of wrong conduct in preaching the gospel; but surely such wrong in men is not against preaching itself, nor would right-thinking persons condemn preaching on this account. They would condemn the wrong spirit and the wrong conduct, but indorse and commend preach-

So it should be with religious controversy. The wrong manner in conducting it may and should be condemned; but no matter how ugly may be the spirit nor how ugly the conduct of men engaging in controversy, the latter should not be condemned on that account. If we had no other fact to plead in its justification, then the fact that we have a conspicuous example of the controversialist in Jesus himself would establish both its propriety and its value. Jesus was one of the greatest controversialists of his time, and Paul was not a whit behind him. In fact, the latter both began and ended his Christian career as a controversialist. From the day of his baptism at the hands of Ananias in the city of Damascus to the day his head fell from his body under the lictor's ax, his whole career was marked by stormy debate. In the synagogue, in the school of Tyrannus, in the market place, in the Areopagus, before Felix, before Festus, before Agrippa, and in his lodging in the imperial city, he powerfully wielded the sword of the Spirit in the arena of religious debate. No man can imitate Paul as he imitated Christ without engaging in religious controversy. Hence, Christians should be careful never to condemn, but always to be ready to encourage, religious controversy when there is a proper occasion for it.

Now, notwithstanding these manifest facts in the lives of Jesus and Paul, occasionally-in fact, it is sometimes quite frequent-we hear publishers of religious papers and preachers criticized for engaging in controversy with men. They send up the cry, "Too much controversy," or "Too much wrangling in the papers," or "In the pulpit;" "Quit your fighting and preach the gospel."

Now, with all due consideration for those who raise this ery, we respectfully remind them that the solemn orders delivered to us from heaven tell us to pursue the very opposite course. Like a trumpet blast or bugle call to battle, these orders say: "Fight the good fight of the faith" (1 Tim. 6: 12); and, "Contend earnestly for the faith" (Jude 3). Hence, the question confronts us: To whose orders shall we give heed-to those from men or to those from God? Contention and controversy are sometimes unpleasant, but God tells us to have them when truth comes into conflict with error; and shall we not obey his order? Some of the most profitable things in life for both body and soul are most unpleasant. The Christian should maintain the proper balance toward things whether they are pleasant or unpleasant and should be ready for either or both as the best interests of truth may demand.

Furthermore, we should carefully discriminate between controversy itself and the wrong manner of conducting it. The former we should always defend; the latter, never. Like preaching, controversy should be conducted in the proper way. It should be dignified, courteous, and kind, and conducted with the sole desire to elicit and propagate the truth. This does not mean that it should not be forcible and pointed. It should be both, and should make no compromise with error or with those advocating error. It should "temper the winds to the shorn lamb," but it must drive away or destroy the wolves of error. This, as in the case of the clash between Jesus and the Jews and in that between Paul and the Judaizers, sometimes leads to the fiercest and hottest controversy, but we must not shun it on that account. If we keep in line of duty, controversy is not only sometimes inevitable, but it is essential to the victory of truth. Great and good men have so regarded it in all the ages. John Milton, the immortal author of "Paradise Lost," said: "There is no learned man but will confess he hath much profited by reading controversies; his senses awakened, his judgment sharpened, and the truth which he holds more firmly established. In logic they teach that contraries laid together more evidently appear; and controversy being permitted, falsehood will appear more false and truth more true." And Dr. Robert Hall, the renowned English pulpit orator, said: "The evils of controversy are transitory, while its benefits are perma-

Hence, finally, let no Christian man or woman oppose controversy. As long as truth has to clash with error, controversy will be inevitable. Let us remember this when editors of religious journals and preachers in the pulpit have to engage in it. Let us not only withhold from them harsh criticism, but let us stand by them and uphold them while they are thus endeavoring to stand by and uphold the truth of God.

"Pray Ye the Lord to Send Forth Laborers." BY J. C. M'Q.

It is inconsistent to speak of a Christian's being an antimissionary. The Christian spirit is a missionary spirit. Christ himself was the greatest-missionary the world has ever known. He left heaven and came to this world to do the will of his Father. When all authority in heaven and on earth had been given unto him, he said to the eleven disciples: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matt. 28: 19, 20.) The apostles, in obedience to this command, preached the gospel to every creature under heaven.

The apostles were to wait in Jerusalem until the Holy Spirit was received, and with the coming of the Holy Spirit they would receive power. Christ said: "But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you: and ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." (Acts 1: 8.) Christ not only requires us to preach the gospel to every creature, but also demands that we use wisdom in the proclamation of the truth. The order as given to the apostles was first Jerusalem, Judea, Samaria, and then the whole world. As Christians earnestly desire the salvation of the world, so they should endeavor to be "wise as serpents, and harmless as doves," in all their dealings with their fellow creatures.

E. C. Fuqua suggests a season of prayer for our missionaries. Here is what he has to say:

Now for another application of the power of prayer. Jesus said: "The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest." (Matt. 9: 37, 38.)

Is this not the divine means, after all, of getting missionaries into the field? Have we ever "agreed" among ourselves to petition God for missionary laborers, as we agree to petition in case of severe sickness? Is not prayer as effectual in the accomplishment of the one as it is in the other?

I have strong convictions that if the faithful brethren everywhere, who are interested in mission work, would "agree" to earnestly and persistently petition God to send forth laborers into the mission fields, we would soon see a marked change in missionary conditions. This is a work, said Christ, that is distinctly God's work; and if God does not "send" the missionary, he will be worth very little when he goes. If God sends, he also selects, and this gives the missionary work a qualified man, a man divinely selected for the especial field he is to work. Of course he may, like Saul, refuse to carry out God's will at some later time after he reaches the field; but this will be due to wickedness, not to a lack of teaching or original qualification.

Then, each field demands its own peculiar missionary. The man eminently qualified for one field may be altogether disqualified for another. Where God does the selecting and sending, as is always done where his faithful people submit the work to him through prayer, the right man for the right field is sent, and the work of that especial field will be better done because the conditions peculiar to it will be fully met in the man whom God selects and sends to it.

To solve our missionary shortcomings, suppose we institute a season of earnest and united prayer to God to send missionaries to each field, the while we solemnly promise him that we will do our part in holding up their hands in the work to which they are thus led. What do you say to this, Brother McQuiddy? I have not a doubt that it will solve all difficulties and insure the work's being done that is now and must hereafter be left undone if present methods are to prevail. Give God a chance!

It is well to pray. The Holy Spirit teaches us to pray without ceasing. But when we pray the Lord of the harvest to send forth laborers into the harvest, we must work to fulfill our own prayers. If we pray for laborers, we must be laborers ourselves, and must be willing to send money to support other laborers. The Holy Spirit admonishes us: "But if any of you lacketh wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing doubting: for he that doubteth is like the surge of the sea driven by the wind and tossed." (James 1: 5, 6.) While the Lord selects missionaries to do his work, he does it through his church. "The things which thou hast heard from me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also." (2 Tim. 2: 2.) So Christians should give much thoughtful and prayerful consideration to the selection of those who are chosen to preach the gospel in destitute fields. Those who have been failures at home and who have never made a success in any of their undertakings should not be expected to go into the most difficult fields and accomplish great things in winning souls to Christ. A great mistake has been made in the past by selecting young men and young women who were so timid that they had not accomplished anything at home. In some instances persons have been selected who hardly knew what they believed and who were not sure as to just what is the plan of salvation as revealed in the New Testament. Instead of pursuing such a course as this, we should ask the Lord for wisdom and guidance in the selection of those who are sent as misstonaries. Men who have succeeded in honorable callings here; men who have stood firm and immovable for the right; men who have made great sacrifices for the truth and who are not afraid of the scoffs and frowns of the world; men who, above all, love the Lord Jesus Christ and the truth with all their hearts, should be selected and chosen for missionary fields. This applies to missionary work at home or abroad. The Lord never selects failures to send into the missionary field. Men may do this, but God never! When we pray the Lord of the harvest to send laborers into the field, we should help to answer our prayers by looking out for men of unimpeachable integrity, men who are well fitted and qualified for the work in every particular. As the crying need of the hour is for such men, it would be well to pray-to pray in faith and pray according to the word of God-that the Lord may send forth laborers into the harvest. It is far easier to find men who are ready to support his laborers who go to the fields than it is to find willing laborers to harvest the golden grain. We cannot select any one, lay hands on him and appoint him to the work of a missionary, and expect otherwise than failure. Failed we have, and fail we will so long as we pursue such methods.

While God sends the laborers into the field, he does it through his established law. We should not expect him to do it in some mysterious, incomprehensible way, and in a way that contravenes his established plan. God has ordained that men shall preach the gospel, and it is not his purpose to take this work out of the hands of men. While it is well to pray, and to pray earnestly, for the Lord to send forth laborers into the harvest, we should not neglect to use every means that God has ordained for securing such persons, for fitting and qualifying them for such work. Our petition must be in the name of Christ. "And whatsoever ye shall ask in my name, that will I do, that the Father may be glorified in the Son. If ye shall ask anything in my name, that will I do." (John 14: 13, 14.) While it is the will of God that we petition him, and petition in harmony with his holy will, it is also the will of God that we keep his commandments. No man is a disciple of Christ and really loves him who neglects to work in the way that God desires. "He that hath my commandments, and keepeth them, he it is that loveth me; and he that leveth me shall be leved of my Father, and I will leve him, and will manifest myself unto him. . . . Jesus answered and said unto him, If a man love me, he will keep my word: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." (John 14: 21-23.) Men of integrity, men of ability, and men of humility-men who are willing to endure hardness as good soldiers-are needed for the great work of preaching the gospel. If such men can be found, a support is assured. The world is greatly in need of the gospel, and greatly in need of men who are ready to make the necessary sacrifices. in order to proclaim it. It is always in order to pray, to pray earnestly and in harmony with the will of Jehovah. While we pray, let us work, and let us use due diligence and earnest consideration in seeking to find men who are ready to go into all the world in obedience to the command of Christ.

Patient waiting is often the highest way of doing God's will.—Collier.

SELECTIONS BY THE EDITOR

It is better to know less than to know much that ain't so.—Josh Billings.

0 0 0

The years write their records on men's hearts as they do on trees—inner circles of growth which no eye can see,
—Saxe Holm,

0 0 0

Cherish ideals as the traveler cherishes the north star, and keep the guiding light pure and bright and high above the horizon.—Newell Dwight Hillis.

0 0 0

I hold not with the pessimist that all things are ill, nor with the optimist that all things are well. All things are not well, but all things shall be well, because this is God's world.—Browning.

0 0 0

Our lives are songs; God writes the words, And we set them to music at leisure; And the song is sad, or the song is glad, As we choose to fashion the measure.

-Gibbon.

To-morrow, when you go into your business and find twenty thousand dollars that can easily be scooped up, and the law on your side—and the devil, too—look into the invisible and see the crown which angels have for him who shall say, "Get thee behind me, Satan."—Beecher.

0 0 0

$ $ $

God has not given us vast learning to solve all the problems, or unfailing wisdom to direct all the wanderings of our brothers' lives, but he has given to every one of us the power to be spiritual, and by our spirituality to lift and enlarge and enlighten the lives we touch.—Phillips Brooks

$ $ $

Without distinction, without calculation, without procrastination, love. Lavish it upon the poor, where it is very easy; especially upon the rich, who often need it most; most of all upon our equals, where it is very difficult, and for whom, perhaps, we each do least of all.— Drummond,

0 0 0

He is all truth in his words, and justice in his actions, and if the whole world should disbelieve his integrity, dispute his character, and question his happiness, he would neither take it ill in the least, nor turn aside from that path that leads to the aim of life, toward which he must move, pure, calm, well prepared, and with perfect resignation to his fate.—Marcus Aurelius.

$ $ $

We are often troubled because even faith cannot draw Jesus' features, nor imagine how he appeared in the flesh when he went in and out among men; but we shall be satisfied. We shall see what attracted the twelve, gave Peter his boldness, drew forth John's love, excited the faith of sufferers, encouraged the timid and brought sinners to his feet. We shall see Jesus and realize what he was, and is, and ever shall be—the Son of man.—J. A. Hodge.

CURRENT THOUGHT

Can We Have More Preachers?

Entirely too few preachers! Fewer every year!

This is threatening a great calamity, but it seems that it can be remedied. We have created a sentiment so much in favor of college-bred preachers that all others are discredited. A good man who had preached many years said to me: "I used to farm during the week and preach for the churches on Lord's days, but they do not want that kind of service now." Another champion of the gospel who has always lived on his little farm while "preaching around," in which work he has baptized more than the Pentecostal number, said: "I didn't have much schooling, but I knew the Bible. The churches think they want college-educated men now. Things are different."

Brethren, it is a fact. Things are different, but they, do not need to be. If the same old gospel is still the power of God unto salvation, why cannot a man who "knows the Book" teach it and be acceptable, as well as the man who must make a show of learning? It is the fault of the churches, and not of the undereducated preachers. It is because we have discouraged the foolish things of the world which God chose "that he might put to shame them that are wise."

If ever the small, unserved churches are corrected in this matter, and the man without a college degree made acceptable again, the preachers and the press must encourage anew such preaching of the Book. Our small churches would not be without ministers and evangelists if we would encourage more men who cannot get a college training to preach without it.

The Methodists put men into the field with only a reading course. If our men must learn something from books, it will be easy to select textbooks from our own publishing houses to form a basis for such study.

Let us fill a thousand empty pulpits with such men.-Everett G. Haley, in Christian Standard.

The Gospel Advocate has no inclination to discourage education; in fact, it would encourage and foster the right kind of an education. It does not believe, however, in teaching young men not to respect the plain commands of God. It would not encourage them to ignore the New Testament elder and to assume to do the work that God has ordained that the elders should do. College-educated preachers and home-educated preachers should all know the truth, love the truth, and have an unwavering respect for God's word, in order to be efficient ministers of the church of Christ. They should realize, as did Paul, that "woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel." Perhaps the most successful days of the church of Christ were when the pioneer preachers, without a college education, "went about preaching the word." They studied and knew the gospel, they loved it, and they were ready to endure hardships and to make any sacrifice in order to proclaim it. Just such men are the most acceptable and efficient ministers of the gospel to-day. The man who has these characteristics and, in addition, has a first-class education should be very effective indeed in declaring all the counsel of God. However, if a man is able to speak intelligently the English language, even though he lacks a college education, he should be able to proclaim the gospel in a way that will be edifying to all alike. The point that our colleges need to guard is the tendency to rely more on man's wisdom than on the wisdom and power of God. The most effective preachers that the world has ever known, such men as Paul and Spurgeon, were men who preached the word, who boldly and fearlessly declared all the counsel of God, regardless of the favor or disfavor of men.

o o o Baptism and Salvation.

We are glad baptism seems to be coming to the front again. It is a good sign, for it shows that personal religion is about to gain more attention than it has for some time. This is well, for it is especially needed in the present hour when all attention and energy are given to causes.

Our able and brilliant exchange, Western Christian Advocate, Cincinnati, has the following to say: "Absolute claims by religious leaders are absurd. Jews believed only Jews were saved; Catholics think the same of themselves; Mohammedans have a similar article of belief; so do Mormons; and even a few Protestants believe that only those immersed are slated for heaven. All of these cannot be right."

We have no turn for infallibility and deprecate the onetrack mind and the straitened heart. Also, we believe 't would be hard to find even "the few" mentioned who believe that "only those immersed are slated for heaven."

What immersionists, at least those known to us, do teach is that if a man repents of his sins and is baptized into the name of the Father, and the Son, and the Holy Spirit, he will be saved. Christ himself said: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." It was a positive statement, the one to be affirmed to-day. We are able to affirm what Christ taught. And is there one who will say that if a man repents and is baptized he will not be saved? We are content with the positive aspect, and trust we are never illogical enough to affirm a negative.

It cannot be a mistake to work from Christ's point of view. As for changing the form of baptism or allowing that others may legitimately do so, we believe it far better not to alter in any way the Great Seal of the kingdom of God. Keeping both letter and spirit cannot be displeasing to the Master who gave the glorious gospel for the salvation of the world.—Christian-Evangelist.

Men who have the proper respect and regard for the word of God will not argue about the plain command of the Lord Jesus Christ. If their faith is what it should be, they will take Christ at his word when he says, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." It certainly is not displeasing to Christ for a man to do what he commands him to do. There is no Christian who has any respect for the truth who will say that Christ does not command believers to be baptized. As this is the command of God and we propose to honor him, why not obey it? It is true that it is impossible to enjoy membership in any of the orthodox religious bodies without obedience to what that body calls baptism. It is also true that it will not be questioned by the great body of religious teachers that the man who comes unto the water, goes down into the water, is buried in baptism, and comes up out of the water is baptized according to the New Testament teaching. Then let us cease arguing, go forward, and do just what God commands.

Have a suspicion about that hard, crude, unromantic circumstance which seems to take joy and purpose and adventure out of your life. It is probably the Cross, and round its foot is spread the glorious garden of the Lord.

—Derwyn T. Gwen.

God never does things by halves. He is always a bountiful giver—"wont to give more than either we desire or deserve." When he feeds a famishing multitude with bread and fish, there remain of fragments twelve baskets full. "Open thy mouth wide," says he to the petitioner who draws nigh to his throne of grace—bring me a large void to fill, and a large expectation of its being filled—"and I will fill it."—E. M. Goulburn.

0 0 0

Faith as revealed to us in the Scriptures is of a twofold nature. There is the faith that asks and the faith that accepts; the faith that appeals and the faith that appropriates. This is probably the reason why prayer and thanksgiving are so often associated in the writings of Paul. They represent to us the two aspects of faith. Prayer is the faith that asks; thanksgiving is the faith that takes. We lose a good deal in our Christian life by failure to distinguish between these two aspects of faith. We keep on asking when we eight to commence accepting.—Selected.

Training Little Children

By CAROLYN SHERWIN BAILEY

The Bag of Marbles.

Once upon a time there was a Boy who wanted—O, very much he wanted—to buy a bag of new, smooth, colored marbles. So he went with ten cents to the toy shop, and, holding out his money, said: "Ten cents' worth of marbles, if you please."

But the Toy Man shook his head and said, sadly: "Twenty-five cents, if you please."

But the Boy had only ten cents, and he was very much surprised. "Why," he asked, "are ten-cent bags of marbles twenty-five cents?"

In a second the Toy Man could tell him. "The trains that bring the stone from the quarries are not running," he said. "I must charge more for what marbles I have."

Now the Boy wanted—O, very much he wanted—those marbles; so what did he do but go to the Engineer of the train and ask him why he was not running his engine.

In a second the Engineer could tell him. "There is no coal being mined," he said, "and how can I run a freight train without coal for my engine?"

But the Boy wanted—O, very much he wanted—a new bag of marbles; so he went to the Coal Miner and asked him why he was not at work.

At once the Coal Miner could tell him. "The Grocer asks so much for his eggs and flour," said the Coal Miner, "that I am going to give up mining and work at a trade in which I can earn more."

So the Boy saw his bag of marbles fade farther and farther away; but still he wanted it ever so much, because marbles and boys have been together for years and years. So what did the Boy do but go to the Farmer and ask him why his eggs and wheat cost so much.

In a few words the Farmer could tell. "I cannot get any one to help me," he said. So the Boy knew that work was what was lacking and making his marbles cost so much.

"Let me work for you," said the Boy.

He was a fine, strong boy, and he took off his coat and went to work feeding the hens and gathering eggs, packing them into crates and taking them to the Grocer. He helped with the grain harvesting, too; and soon the Grocer's shelves were so full that he needed to sell food, and he charged less for eggs and flour.

The Coal Miner really wanted to keep to his own trade; and now he could, with the Grocer's help, for food was cheaper, and he had all he needed. You could hear the ring of his pick all day long, and coal began to move to the freight yards. Then the freight trains began to move, loaded with all the necessary things of life, and things such as marbles for happiness and play.

So the Boy was able to buy his bag of marbles at last, and he also had saved some of the wages which he had received from the Farmer. He had found out a wonder, too: that the way to get a thing one wants is to work for it.

0 0 0

Short Sermons.

Do to-day thy nearest duty.-Gothe.

* * *

Genius is eternal patience.-Michael Angelo.

0 0 0

The men who stand straightest in the presence of sin bow lowest in the presence of God.—F. B. Meyer. Defer not charities till death; for certainly, if a man weigh it rightly, he that doeth so is rather liberal of another man's than his own,—Bacon.

* * *

Prosperity is the blessing of the Old Testament; adversity is the blessing of the New. Prosperity is not without many fears and distastes; and adversity is not without comforts and hopes.—Bacon.

0 0 0

Every flower is a hint of God's beauty; every grain of wheat, a token of his beneficence; every atom of dust, a revelation of his power. In and through all things he is attracting our regard.—Furness.

0 0

Think of living! Thy life, wert thou the pitifulest of all the sons of earth, is no idle dream, but a solemn reality It is thy own. It is all thou hast to front eternity with. Work then, even as He has done, and does, like a star, unhasting yet unresting.—Carlyle.

0 0 0

Men who are content to be mere negatives in a world of action sin against the light. . . . Men glory in difficulties that test their strength in the affairs of everyday work; why run away from like difficulties in work for God? It all resolves itself into the question whether a man is dead in earnest.—Charles Fiske.

0 0 0

Sometime there will dawn a joyous day, when the fragile body, reunited with the glorified spirit, will be triumphant over sickness and death. For one of the promises of the risen life is that there will be no more pain. But now, here upon earth, suffering is a stepping-stone in the upward march of the spirit.—Selected.

0 0 0

Fenelon says that "pure religion resides in the will alone." As the will is the governing power in the man's nature, if the will is set right, all the rest of the nature must come into harmony. By the will I do not mean the wish of the man, or even his purpose, but the deliberate choice, the deciding power, the King, to which all that is in man must yield obedience.—Selected.

0 0 0

How Is Christ "Unveiled" in Us?

What the Lord Jesus Christ would like, if he lived on earth to-day, the world should be able to tell by observing the everyday conduct of his followers. Would a description of our daily doings turn one's thought instantly to the Master? That was the effect upon some Christians recently when a friend who had worked in China with Hudson Taylor told some intimate stories of the great missionary, how he went to every length in caring thoughtfully for the needs of others, never considering self; and, with all his greatness, he was so simple that an old-time friend naturally ended his relation of these incidents with the word: "He was truly the servant of all." One of the listeners observed: "He just reminds you of the Lord Jesus; and if we should have the Master come in and talk with us now, I believe one of the most surprising things to us would be his simplicity and naturalness." Christ's living in us is not a figure of speech, but a literal reality!-Sunday School Times.

Query Department

By J. C. McQUIDDY

C. C. McQuiddy, of Forest Hill, La., wishes to know what is the meaning of Eph. 5: 4. He asks if this "jesting" forbids our passing pleasant, harmless jokes. The passage reads: "Nor filthiness, nor foolish talking, or jesting, which are not befitting: but rather giving of thanks." The verse should be taken in connection with verses three and four in order to get the full meaning. Thus we see that immoral jesting should not be mentioned among Christians. It is wit or humor of a doubtful character that is forbidden by the Bible. I do not understand that it means simply pleasantries that are not calculated to corrupt or poison the mind. As fornication and all uncleanliness or covetousness or foolish talking, so jesting which is not fitting is forbidden. "Jesting" in the sense of pleasantry or humor is not forbidden; but it is used in the bad sense, which means scurrility, ribaldry, low jesting, and it is in this sense that it is forbidden in this passage.

0 0 0

W. A. D. Norton wishes to know if when disciples have met on the first day of the week to break bread and have done so, do they have the scriptural right to work the balance of the day if they desire to do so? If Christians do their duty upon the first day of the week, they should meet, study the Scriptures, break bread, sing, pray, and contribute as God has prospered them. The day should be devoted to religious service. The early church met and spent the day in worship. Certainly it is not right for one to plow upon the first day of the week; for if we had no other reason for not doing so, the law of the land forbids it. The Christian is required to be subject to the law of the land. "Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers: for there is no power but of God; and the powers that be are ordained of God. Therefore he that resisteth the power, withstandeth the ordinance of God: and they that withstand shall receive to themselves judgment. For rulers are not a terror to the good work, but to the evil." (Rom. 13: 1-3.) It is also true that man's constitution demands that he have one day out of the seven to rest from his secular employment. Men who cease to work one day in the week accomplish more than do those who work every day in the week without cessation.

$ $ $

R. D. Baweum, of Holladay, Tenn., writes to know how the world will be destroyed. All I know upon this subject is what the Bible says about it. Peter declares: "But the day of the Lord will come as a thief; in the which the heavens shall pass away with a great noise, and the elements shall be dissolved with fervent heat, and the earth and the works that are therein shall be burned up." (2 Pet. 3: 10.) That the world shall come to an end appears to be written in its very constitution. A slight change in the constitution of the atmosphere or the decomposition of its water would wrap the earth in flames. According to the present ratio of increase, in two centuries the earth will be short of resources to feed its population. In a few hundred years our coal supply will be exhausted. Many things point to the dissolution of this world.

He also inquires to know if men will be saved without punishment. I am not sure that I get the meaning of the querist. If the querist means to ask if one can be saved without enduring chastisement or without passing through flery trials in this life, I say that one cannot. The Christian must endure hardness as a good soldier. Christians will be maligned and misrepresented and will suffer wrong as do others. All who live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution. Christ said to his followers: "In the world ye have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." (John 16: 33.)

He also inquires to know when will be the fullness of the Gentiles. I am sure that I am not able to tell just when the fullness of the Gentiles will be. Some seem to think that it will be when the greater part of the Gentiles has been converted. I am frank to say that I do not know.

0 0 0

W. F. Rhoten, of Gainesboro, Tenn., asks for an explanation of Matt. 24: 15, 19. The passages read: "When therefore ye see the abomination of desolation, which was spoken of through Daniel the prophet, standing in the holy place (let him that readeth understand)." "But wee unto them that are with child and to them that give suck in those days!" When Christians saw the sign spoken of in Dan. 9: 27, they should fiee from Jerusalem. Read also Dan. 11: 31; 12: 11. Luke 21: 20 says: "When ye shall see Jerusalem encompassed with armies." Thus we understand that for a city to be encompassed with armies was the abomination of desolation spoken of by Daniel. As during those days the siege and destruction would be terrible, wee was pronounced upon the woman with child. Great hardships must be endured during the flight from Jerusalem. The destruction during those days was something terrible and awful. Josephus, the Jewish historian who witnessed and recorded the war, in his narrative shows a complete fulfillment of the predictions of Christ. Women ate their own children from starvation; the Jews within the city fought each other as well as the Roman army. On August 10, A.D. 70, the city was stormed and thousands were killed or sold into slavery.

0 0 0

J. M. Noblitt, of Mulberry, Tenn., Route 1, wishes an explanation of 1 Cor. 15: 29-31. The passages read: "Else what shall they do that are baptized for the dead? If the dead are not raised at all, why then are they baptized for them? why do we also stand in jeopardy every hour? I protest by that glorying in you, brethren, which I have in Christ Jesus our Lord, I die daily." I can do no better than to give the answer given by David Lipscomb in explanation of this passage in "Queries and Answers," pages 49, 50, which reads: "To determine the meaning of a sentence, we must look at its connection, purpose, and scope. This is one of a number of arguments to prove the resurrection from the dead. After giving other arguments, he asks: 'Else [if the dead rise not] what shall they do which are baptized for [in view of their resurrection from] the dead, if the dead rise not?' He was giving reasons why they should believe in the resurrection. We are baptized and enter into Christ because we must die, and in order that we may be fitted to be raised in him and live with him forever. Why are ye baptized in order to death, if the dead rise not? If the dead rise not, what shall they do who are baptized in view of the resurrection from the dead? In view of their dying, they are baptized; so are baptized in order to their well-being after death. If they are not to be raised, why are they baptized to fit them for the resurrection? This is Paul's argument. Verse 30 is similar. Why do we stand in jeopardy of life every hour, if there be no resurrection and future judgment?"

A RECORD THAT SHOULD CONVINCE YOU

Of the merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla as the standard blood purifier, appetizer and tonic. Originated in a famous physician's prescription more than 50 years ago. Adopted as the regular family medicine in thousands of American homes. Has met the tests of a half-century with universal success. Made from the best known roots, herbs, barks and berries named in the Dispensatory. Will prove its merit to you if you will give it a trial. As a good cathartic, Hood's Pills.

The Master's Vineyard

Arkansas.

Tupelo, June 28.—I preached at Johnstown yesterday, to a large assembly. We have only a few members there, but a good interest is being manifested. I shall begin a meeting there on the fourth Lord's day in July.—L. R. Wilson.

Alma, June 28.—I began a meeting here yesterday, with a large and seemingly well-interested congregation. I will be here over three Lord's days. This is my third successive meeting here, and the interest is better than at the beginning of either of the former meetings.—J. A. Cullum.

Fort Smith, June 28.-I closed a good singing school for the church at Allen, Okla., Friday. I was with the Park Hill Church, Fort Smith, yester-day. We had a glorious day. Three We had a glorious day. additions at the morning servicetwo by membership and one baptized. There was one addition the Sunday I was away. The work is doing well here. We started in January, 1919, with thirty-three members; have built a house of worship; and our membership has increased to eighty-fivetwenty-three by baptism. The breth-ren have engaged me for another year's work, beginning on January 1. I reserve three months off through the summer for field evangelistic work. Yesterday was my last day here until October. Brother Leland H. Knight, a young minister, is here to take up the work in my absence. My first meeting begins Thursday at Scranton, Ark.— Will W. Slater.

Kansas.

Parsons, June 28.—We expect to begin a tent meeting at Bartlesville, Okla., on Lord's day, July 4, to continue through the month of July. We already have a little congregation of zealous disciples there and are anxious to locate all others in or near the city. Names and addresses of such will be greatly appreciated.—William J. Whaley.

Missouri.

Sedalia, June 26.—The best meeting ever held by the church of Christ in Sedalia closed last Lord's day at the water's edge. Brother E. P. Watson, of Browning, Mo., was the leader, and he could not easily be surpassed. Thirteen were baptized, one from the Christian Church. Fifty-six dollars was received as outside aid, and the brethren have stood by the work as best they could, so that the work was properly supported. The meeting continued for about eighteen days, and God abundantly blessed our efforts. Brethren, pray for us.—S. W. Bell.

Tennessee.

Riverside, June 28.—Our meeting closed at this place last night. Eleven were baptized and seven returned to their "first love." Brother H. Leo Boles did the preaching. Large attendance and good interest from the start.—H. N. Mann.

Texas.

Denton, June 29.—Our meeting with the home congregation is a little more than one week old, and there have been, so far, thirteen confessions. The interest is very good and the outlook for continued success is splendid.— R. D. Smith.

Whitewright, June 28.—Yesterday was a great day at Pilot Point. We had nine additions. Our meeting begins here Thursday night. Brother F. L. Young will do the preaching. I am to begin a meeting near Woodbury, Tenn., on July 18.—L. F. Mason.

Waxahachie, June 28,—We had fine services here yesterday. Brother White, of Ennis, spoke at the morning hour. A large number of children from the Orphans' Home were at the evening service, accompanied by the superintendent of the Home.—Ben West.

Fort Worth, June 28.—The mission meeting in the Vanzandt Addition of Fort Worth is good. Three have been baptized to date. Our new directory is finished and all our work is taking on new life. The ladies of the church meet each Tuesday morning and sew, making garments for the poor. They have a Bible lesson in the afternoon. We are having a steady growth. Brethren coming to Fort Worth are invited to worship with us.—Tice Elkins.

Counterfeits.

Did you ever see a counterfeit tendollar bill? Yes.

Why was it counterfeited? Because it was worth counterfeiting.

Was the ten-dollar bill to blame?

Do people counterfeit scraps of brown paper? No.

Why? Because they are not worth

Did you ever see a counterfeit Christian? Yes, lots.

Why was he counterfeited? Because he was worth counterfeiting.

Was he to blame? No.

Did you ever see a counterfeit infidel? No, never.

Why? The answer is obvious.— Selected.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Golden Thoughts Compiled.

Yielding graciously is a fine art.

How many simple ways there are to bless!

How loud the door bangs when some one else slams it!

There is no permanent breaking of bad habits without forming good ones.

Concentrate all your thoughts upon the work in hand. The sun's rays do not burn until brought to a focus.

If we carried out all our good intentions, a lot of people in this world would be made wonderfully happy.

Confession of our need and faith in Christ are the two hands that open the door into the kingdom of heaven.

When equally faithful, all members of the church of Christ rank alike, no matter whether they preach or do housework.—Exchange.

1 heard Him call,
"Come, follow"—that was all.
My gold grew dim,
My heart went after Him.
1 rose and followed—that was all.
Who would not follow
If he heard Him call?

This is to "pray without ceasing"—not that one is to be always saying his prayers, but he must never get so far from the Ark of the Covenant that the wings of its cherubim shall not overshadow him.

O, sometimes gleams upon our sight, Through present wrong, the Eternal Right!

And, step by step, since time began, We see the steady gain of man:

That all of good the past hath had Remains to make our own time glad, Our common daily life divine, And every land a Palestine.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a bedy-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

WHEN A WOMAN IS NERVOUS-WORRIED

Most women neglect their health, and for this they pay the penalty. Any woman will find that neglect does not pay. A little more attention to health would brighten up her life. If she asks her neighbors she finds that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription benefits a woman's whole system. It not only acts upon the troubles and weaknesses peculiar to women, but is an all-round tonic that braces the entire body, overcoming nervousness, sleeplessness, headaches, dizziness and a rundown condition.

All druggists. Liquid or tablet form. Send 10c, to Dr. Pierce's Invalide' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package.

in Buffalo, N. Y., for trial package.

ATHENS, TENN.—"I have been ailing with feminine troubles for 25 troubles for 25 ye ars, and thought I would never be well. I had five different doctors, and was confined to my bed at times. A friend told me to try a bottle of Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription, and I got a bottle and took it, and felt so much better that I have never been without it since."—MRS. BECKEY CAIN, R. F. D. 4.

DEATH RATTLE OF CALOMEL IN SOUTH

Dodson is Destroying Sale of Dangerous Drug with His "Liver Tone."

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's Dodson's guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it syour children any time. It can't salivate so let them eat anything afterwards.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

I Can and I Can't.

I Can, with face set toward the day, Sees but the goal he hopes to gain, And all obstructions in his way He fights with might and main. I Can is resolute, but still He makes no boasts, but forges on

With all his powers at work until The victory is won.

I Can't sits moping at his work.

His thoughts are just a crazy crew
Intent on shifty ways to shirk

The thing he needs to do. His only purpose is to see

How he can shuffle through his tasks. To find excuse by some false plea Is everything he asks.

I Can't hangs by a feeble grip; I Can holds on with forceful hand. I Can't lets all his chances slip;

I Can bends all to his command.
I Can't flings out his envious taunt;

I Can responds with gracious deed.
I Can't slinks down the Street of Want;
I Can relieves his need.—Selected.

Sin Against the Holy Ghost.

BY W. R. BAINS.

"All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men; but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men. And whosoever speaketh a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him: but whosoever speaketh against the Holy Ghost, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, neither in the world to come." (Matt. 12: 31, 32.) "Know ye not, that so many of us as were baptized into Jesus Christ were baptized into his death?" (Rom, 6: 3.) "If any man be in Christ, he is a new creature." (2 Cor. 5: 17.) "But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness. . . Ye have your fruit unto holiness, and the end everlasting life," (Rom. 6: 17-22,)

These scriptural assertions are directed to those who are in Christ, who are baptized into him; hence, if they sin and repent, they can ask the Father, through Christ, their Mediator, to forgive them, and thus they are drawn back by the Father, through Christ. Hence, Christ says: "No man can come to me, except the Father which hath sent me draw him." Now, these are people who have been baptized into Christ and have access to the Father through Christ, who is their Mediator, Advocate, and Interceder to the Father for the forgiveness of their sins, having obeyed the doctrine which put them into Christ, and can worship God, the Father, through Christ, the Son. Therefore, we cannot conclude from the teaching of the word of the Lord that any of these people spoken of here have sinned against the Holy Ghost; for "if we [Christians] confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins."

Christ said to his disciples: "Ye are not of the world." "If ye were of the world, the world would love his own," The word "world" here means sinners. Hence, Christ, when he had finished his work here and was ready to go back to the Father, said: "I pray not for the world [sinners], but for them [Christians] which thou hast given me." Here is language, it seems to me, to harmonize with the teaching: "Now we know that God heareth not sinners," Hence, we find no scriptures commanding the man of the world to pray for the remission of his sins, but he must obey the doctrine delivered him.

Now for more scripture. There is "a sin unto death," and there is "a sin which is not unto death." "If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, he shall ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death." It seems from the teaching of the Scriptures that the "sin which is not unto death" is a sin committed by one who is in Christ, and he is commanded to repent and ask forgiveness of the Father, through Christ. Thus he is forgiven, and it is not a sin unto death.

Now for a little more scripture. "There is a sin unto death: I do not say that he shall pray for it." Now, the Scriptures seem to teach here that this is a sin committed by one who is out of Christ, who has never "obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered," which would put him into Christ, where is remission of sins. Hence, if he continues a man of the world, in disobedience, and dies allenated from God and his promises, he has sinned a sin unto death (spiritual death), has sinned against the Holy Ghost, and has no promise of forgiveness, neither in this world nor in the world to come.

The fruits of religion in the home life are signs by which others measure its worth.—Selected.

Boils Vanish

and are gone for good when Gray's Ointment is applied. It enters the pores of the skin, cleanses the wound, soothes the pain, kills the germs, and immediately begins healing. The blood is permanently relieved of the disease. Just so with sores, bruises, cuts, burns, stings, eczema, and the many similar forms of skin eraption. Its constant use for a century has made it a family word in every household. You should have it on your medicine shelf for emergencies. Phone your druggist. If he cannot supply you, send his name to W. F. Gray & Co. $18 Gray Building, Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be sent you free.

FRECKIES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freekles, as Othine—double strongth—is guaranteed to remove these homely apots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggest, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should sion see that even the worst freekles have begun to disappoar, while the lighter slacs have vanished entirely. It is seld in that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear completely.

"Baptists vs. Campbellites." No. 19.

BY M. S. MASON.

On page 32, Mr. Bandy begins a discussion of the "proper administrator of baptism." He says the commission to baptize was given to the church, He says the apostles were directed (Matt. 28: 19, 20) to baptize in the capacity of a church. He says they could not have been spoken to as apostles, as from verse 20 he promises to be with them to the end of the world, and the apostles are dead, so he could not be with them to-day; but he could be with the church to-day, as the church exists. Also, he quotes 1 Cor. 11: 2; 1 Tim. 3; 15. Of course, this is all to prove that it is necessary to "lay hands on" and "ordain" administrators of baptism as preachers before they can perform valid baptism. Let us examine his proposition and find the truth. The commission was given to the apostles as individuals. They are addressed in Matt, 19: 28 as "sitting on twelve thrones," showing that they acted in an individual capacity. So far as Christ's language in Matt. 28: 20 is concerned, it is true of the apostles that they are still with us and will be to the end of the world. Their works still remain to offer us a pattern for the work that we do, and Christ is with us to bless. 1 Cor. 11: 2 refers to church ordinances. tism is not a church ordinance. Church ordinances recur regularly, Baptism is to be performed but once. 1 Tim. 3: 15 shows that the church sends out the preacher, but the commission is in the hands of the preacher. As he received it from apostles, he fulfills it. God adds to the church without any further transaction and blesses the work. It was not delivered to the church, as the church was not in existence when the commission was delivered. By having the commission delivered to them, the apostles were authorized to baptize by direct command. That commission comes to any faithful disciple to-day by the language of 2 Tim. 2: 2, upon receipt of which they can perform valid baptism. To prove it, Ananias, a certain disciple, baptized Saul. (Acts 9: 10.) What church authorized him to do it? Christ told him personally just as he tells us to-day through the word. The eunuch was baptized by Philip. Philip was never ordained as a preacher. Did he perform valid baptism, or was the eunuch deceived in his rejoicing? What church ordained Philip? In Rev. 22: 17 we read: "Let him that heareth say, Come." The whole truth is that the commission was given to the apostles, chosen men. They were to execute it, leaving precedents and examples for us to follow when they passed off the stage

TOO WEAK TO DO ANYTHING

A Serious Feminine Illness Remedied By Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Casco, Wis.-"After the birth of each of my children I had displacement and I found a book about Lydia E Pink-ham's Vegetable Compound so thought I would try it, and after taking it I soon felt bet-ter. That was fifteen years ago and I have felt well ever since except that I had a slight attack of the trouble some time ago and took some more of your Compound and was soon all right again. I always recom-mend your medicine and you may pub-lish my testimonial for the benefit of other women."—Mrs. JULES BERO, Jr., R. 1, Box 99, Casco, Wis. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Com-pound, made from native roots and herbs, contains no narcotic or harmful drugs, and today holds the record of being the most successful remedy for female ills most successful remedy for remaic his in this country, and thousands of voluntary testimonials prove this fact.

If you have the slightest doubt that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be exceed and anywered by a Lynn, Mass., for advice. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

ticura Soap The Safety Razor Cuticura Sonpshaves without mng. Everywher of action. It was transmitted automatically to those who were faithful and able and disposed to carry out its terms; and when those terms are carried out faithfully to-day by any disciple, their work is valid and brings about the salvation of those to whom they minister. Why spend so much time trying to establish some reason for something the Bible is entirely silent on?

On page 33 he discusses the "proper subject." He says the proper subject is a "penitent believer." He hits infant baptism a hard lick, which I appreciate, but, as usual, falls into error himself. There is no such thing in Baptist theology as a "penitent believer." The term "penitent" means "mourning for sin." The Baptist teaching is that a believer is saved or has his sins forgiven when he believes. Therefore, a Baptist believer could not be a penitent or a mourner for sin, for his sins are already forgiven. And since Mr. Bandy says that a penitent believer is the proper subject for baptism, and there is no place for such an individual in their system, they are absolutely excluded from the privilege of baptizing any one. And since there can be no Baptist Church without baptism, and the Baptists have never had proper subjects to baptize, there is not to-day, never was, and never will be, a Baptist Church. Thus, this wonderful thing called "The Missionary Baptist Church" is self-annihilated.

He offers one hundred dollars reward for a single case of infant baptism in the New Testament. Of course he will get to keep that; and now, if he could use another hundred, I will give him that to put these two Baptist principles together and ever find a fit subject for baptism: (1) "A believer is saved from all past sins." (2) "A penitent believer is the only proper subject for baptism."

Many Hands Make Light Work.

BY A. S. CROOM.

In the places which I have visited I have found a great many people waking up in regard to the advantages of educating their children in a favorable environment and a growing interest in Harper College. Eldorado Springs, Mo., is almost a mission point. The few brethren there have secured a church building at a cost almost equal to the price of the lot. This is a splendid building in a choice location in a town of some three thousand people. The brethren owe about six hundred dollars on this building and would appreciate some help in paying off the debt. But the pressing need just now is a new roof. It must be had at once, or this valuable property is sure to be damaged badly. A movement has been started which has for its purpose the keeping of an evangelist in this place for a full year. But the first thing to consider is the repairing of the building. Please do not overlook this, but send a contribution to J. L. Gundy, Eldorado Springs, Mo.

The Church of Christ at Marshall, Texas.

BY C. W. LA GRONE.

Brother H. L. Taylor, of Lubbock, Texas, preached last Lord's day at the City Hall at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M. Brother Taylor is an excellent preacher, and it was a treat to hear him. We had good crowds each service, and the singing was fine.

We are to begin on our new building this week. We have had a hard time raising enough money to get help from the bank, as we received very little outside help and are all poor in this

SOLD FOR 50 YEARS For MALARIA, CHILLS and

Also a Fine General Strengthening Tonic. SOLD BY ALL DRUG STORES-

world's goods. We must raise about six hundred dollars more to pay for seats. I believe the Lord is with us and that we can get it in some way.

I still maintain that this is one of the finest fields in Texas to do a great work for the advancement of God's cause and kingdom; and some of the wealthy elders that I wrote personally for help and who did not consider it seriously enough to even answer my letter are going to realize the great opportunity they missed for helping a good work.

Let all that are interested in Christ's kingdom pray earnestly that we may be strong and courageous, with a zeal according to knowledge, that we may push the work on to a glorious success at this place.

Tired Mothers, It's hard work to take care of children and to cook, sweep, wash, sew, and mend besides. Tired mothers should take Hood's Sarsaparilla-it refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, assures restful sleep, and helps in many ways.

"The Model Church," by G. C. Brewer, treats of live subjects, and is a book that should be distributed among the churches. This book has been almost universally commended and is being read with interest by many people. Price, $1.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try it! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freekles, sanburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

NO JOKE TO BE DEAF

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Tetterine

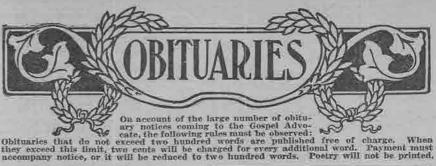

Is Applied. Fragrant and Soething. 60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make moneyatilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right. Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Figeons No. 6." Carolina Pigeon Plant, Clinton, S. C.

The goal of human history is the redemption of the world.

Robinson.

Brother G. H. Robinson "passed from death unto life" at the City Hospital, Lake City, Fla., on May 31, 1920, following an operation for tumor. Brother Robinson was thirty-six years old, and a member of the church of Christ at McKinley, near Lake City. He leaves a wife and two small children to battle with the world. He was an honest man who loved his family and the church, and we feel that God has in reserve for him a crown of life which he will give to him at the resurrection. To the bereaved widow and relatives I would say: Weep not as those who have no hope, but "pre-pare to meet thy God" at the judg-ment and spend eternity with Christ and loved ones gone on before, where separations are unknown. The writer was called upon to say the last words over his lifeless body, after which he was laid to rest in the cemetery at the Huntsville Methodist Church, eight miles away in the country.

J. O. BARNES.

Timmerman.

Miss Jessie L. Gibbons was born in Autauga County, Ala., on February 5, 1860; was married to C. E. O. Timmerman, November 14, 1878; was baptized into Christ by Brother J. M. Barnes, in September, 1882; passed to the bet-ter life on April 17, 1920; and was buried in Prattville, where she lived. An infant twin boy of two months preceded her by many years, and she leaves, besides a devoted husband, our Timmerman, Brother lawyer. preacher, and Christian gentleman, four daughters and three sons. are: Mrs. R. P. Chapman, of Pratt-ville; Mrs. P. D. Roy, of near Pratt-ville; Misses Dovie and Mary Timmerman; Prof. J. M. Timmerman, of Montgomery; S. F. Timmerman, living at Wadsworth; and H. E. Timmerman, living at Ensley. The living have the sympathy of all who have suffered the loss of a wife, a mother. She was a devoted disciple whose light was never dimmed. These Christian children and this Christian husband know in whom they put their trust, They lovingly yield to the divine will, belleving that some day they shall un-derstand. O. P. SPIEGEL.

Primm.

Mrs. Narcissus Allen Primm died at her home in Dickson, Tenn., on Tuesday, April 27, 1920, in the midst of her family and friends. She was born near Little Lot, Tenn., on July 7, 1849, one of a large family, the daughter of Brother and Sister W. T. the Allen. She was twice married, and had really been a mother to three sets of children, as both she and Mr. Primm had children when they married. Sister Primm was reared by Christian parents and gave her heart to the Lord at an early age, obeying the gospel when she was twelve years old. She was true to the faith and lived a consistent Christian life. She was patient and gentle and kind as a mother and wife, a good neighbor, and always tried to keep the Golden Rule. Her children loved her tenderly to the end, and were as gentle and thoughtful as children could well be all the She loved the truth and the church, was true to the faith for nearly sixty years, and died in strong hope of eternal life. Sister Primm had been in poor health for a long time, but was a patient sufferer and con-siderate of those who attended her wants, trying to be as little trouble as possible. Funeral services were conducted by the writer in the Christian meetinghouse, and attended by one of the largest audiences ever assembled there. Burial took place in Union I. B. BRADLEY. Cemetery.

McGlasson.

Sister Belle McGlasson was born February 13, 1866, and died February Very early in life-at the age of sixteen-she was born into the church of the living God, and from that time until death called her to lay aside her earthly cares and enter into the rest that remains for the people of God she was a Christian in all that the name implies. During the greater part of her life she was an invalid, suffering intensely at times, but during it all she was never known to murmur or complain. She fully appreciated the truth that this world could never give the happiness for which mortals sigh, and with a faith sublime she looked away from this world as a temporary abiding place to that "city which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God! Gentle, kind, pure, patient, and cheerful, she was an inspiration to all who knew her. I have never known a life in which all the Christian graces were developed to a higher degree than they were in her life. She will be sadly missed by the members of her immediate family and the friends who knew her. But she is dead—that is, she lives no more in the flesh; but the influence of a life like hers never dies. It lives on and on in the lives she has touched, cheered, and made better. Eternity alone will reveal the great power and influence of her life.

S. HOUSTON PROFFITT.

Robbins.

At the age of eighty-three years, five months, and twelve days, our dear brother, J. T. Robbins, of near Lynnville, Giles County, Tenn., only a short time ago passed over to his eternal I have known Brother Robreward. bins since 1884. He obeyed the gospel at Robertson Fork, in 1881, under the preaching of a Brother Frasier. Brother Robbins feil out of his barn loft on January 2, 1918, from which he sustained an injury, and was not able to walk but very little any more. He was a splendid student of the Bible. He also read the Gospel Advocate all his religious life, except one year. Being confined more than two years previous to his death afforded an opportunity for him to read much. He studied the "world war" in connection with some predictions in the Bible, and fully believed those prophecies were fulfilled in the war. I am sure that I never knew a more conscientious and sincere man. Brother Robbins was a very retired sort of a man-that is, he never put himself forward in anything, nor did he ever make himself conspicuous in anything, and hence but few of his friends really knew how well informed he was on most of the issues of the day. sure I never had a single brother in Christ who was at any and all times more ready to help me than was J. T. Robbins. He was right successful in making money on his farm and in other honest dealings with his fellow man, and was liberal in helping the worthy poor and in giving to the cause of Christ. Brother Robbins was never married. At the time I became acquainted with him, his aged mother was living with him, but a few years afterwards she passed away. A sister also (Miss Puss) lived there, and who still survives him. She, too, was never married. Though he had not been able to walk for about a year previous to his death, he was very active in rolling himself around in his invalid chair. His general health was good all the time. He kept up remarkably well with the war news. The Gospel Advocate was his choice paper. His nephew, Brother G. M. Knox, a fine man, spent about two years with him before his death. is still there with "Aunt Puss." Over a year ago I spent a day and night with Brother Robbins and Sister Puss after I had preached at Robertson Fork on Sunday before, and, with tears in his eyes, he expressed his sorrow to me over the loss of Brother David Lipscomb from the editorial staff of the Gospel Advocate. Though I was called to attend his funeral, I was unable at the time to go, and Brother H. N. Rutherford, of Lynnville, conducted the funeral services. May the Lord help us all to be "faithful till death" and to meet him in the "glory J. R. BRADLEY.

Outlook for Harper College.

This little bulletin has just been published by the Harper College and may be had free of charge by any one who will write for it. It will give you an idea of the prospects for the coming year and the future, which have never been so bright. Two new buildings are going up now-Thompson Hall, the new dormitory for boys, and the new Science Building. This gives us four buildings in all. Thompson Hall is thoroughly modern, has steam heat, electric lights, baths and toilets

Ferraline is a Natural Mineral, rich in Iron, Magnesium, Lithium and other health-giving minerals. It is made by the simple process of percolating distilled water thru Ferraline Mineral Earth, and it contains no drugs nor chemicals.

It has long been recognized as most effective in the treatment of Indigestion, Stomach Troubles and Rheumalism, and as a System-builder and Restorer it is of special value to those who suffer from Impoverished Blood.

Ferraline is sold by your druggist and endorsed by prominent ministers, business and pro-To secure an interesting booklet and the story of the "Sweetest thing without a Soul," write with hot and cold water at all hours, large rooms with closets, and is well furnished throughout. The new Science Building has laboratories for physics, chemistry, and biology-all furnished with full standard equipment. Much is being added this year. The school also has a large assembly hall seated with opera chairs, a beautiful library and reading room, a laboratory for manual arts, and fourteen good classrooms. Every classroom used by college or high-school classes will be equipped with standard lecture chairs and genuine slate blackboards. The library has book depository separated by glass partition from the reading room and is made easily usable by a complete card catalogue.

"FERRALINE," Dept. 5, DEMOPOLIS, ALABAMA.

Write for this bulletin to-day. Our new catalogue will soon be ready for L. C. SEARS, Dean. distribution.

The Enriching Years.

The poetry of all growing life consists in carrying an oldness into a newness, a past into a future always. So only can our days possibly be bound "each to each by natural piety." would not for the world think that twenty years hence I should have ceased to see the things which I see now and love them still. It would make life wearisome beyond expression if I thought that twenty years hence I should see them just as I see them now and love them with no deeper love because of other visions of their lovableness. And so there comes this deep and simple rule for any man as he crosses the line dividing one period of his life from another, the same rule which he may use also as he passes through any critical occurrence of his life: Make it a time in which you shall realize your faith, and also in which you shall expect of your faith new and greater things. Take what you believe and are and hold it in your hand with new firmness as you go forward, expecting to see it open into something greater and truer .-Phillips Brooks.

There are two good rules which ought to be written on every heart: Never believe anything bad about anybody unless you positively know it is true; never tell even that unless you feel that it is absolutely necessary, and that God is listening while you tell it .- Henry Van Dyke.

TETTERINE

Clears Baby's Skin

and drives off the rash and pimples. Harmless, Southing, Fragrant.

60c at your drugglat's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Sayannah, Ga,

Gives ease and comfort to feet that are tender and sore.

If shoes pinch or corns and bunions ache this Antiseptic, Healing Powder will give quick relief. Shakeitinyour Shoes, Sprinkle it in the Foot-bath. Sold everywhere.

No Risk With "Diamond Dyes"

Don't Streak your Material in Dyes that Fade or Run

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any womrains directions so simple that any wom-an can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind— then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have sever dyed before. Druggist as color card.

INVENTIVE GENIUS ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Doctors' Favorite Medicine Now Purified and Refined from All Objectionable Effects. "Calotabs"-the New Name.

What will human ingenuity do next? Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, horseless carriages, colorless iodine, tasteless quininc.—now comes nausealess calo-mel The new improvement called *Calotabs' is now on sale at drugstores

For biliousness, constination and indigestion the new calonel tablet is a practically perfect remedy, as evidenced by the fact that the manufacturers have authe fact that the manufacturers have authorized all druggists to refund the price if the customer is not—perfectly delighted" with Calotabs One tablet at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no saits By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite. Eat what you please—no danger—go about your business

Calotabs are not sold in bulk Get an original package, sealed. Price, thirty-five cents.—(adv.)

original package, sealed. five cents.—(adv.)

Among the Colored Folks

BROTHER KEEBLE'S REPORT.

During the month of May I visited several old congregations where I had labored in the past, and found them all doing well.

On the fourth Lord's day I was at Viola, Tenn. This was an annual day for the Old Baptists, and had been for over forty years; so we had a wonderful opportunity to sow the seed of the kingdom of Jesus Christ, and the church was greatly edified. Brother George Winton, one of the elders of this congregation, is faithfully feeding them with the bread of life.

On the fifth Lord's day I met with the brethren and sisters at Center Star, Hickman County. We had three services and an old-fashioned basket dinner. Two precious souls made the good confession and were baptized in the afternoon. This congregation had for some time been worried with division, but I was glad to find them endeavoring to remove everything that served to keep them divided. During their separation the old meetinghouse was destroyed by fire. One side attempted to build back on the old spot, but there was an objection by the others; so, to keep down any further trouble, they bought a piece of ground near the old location and built on this. Now they have all got together and agreed to stop the division. Brethren, this looks like the spirit of Christwilling to make any sacrifice, no matter how great, that the unity that Jesus prayed for may exist among God's children.

On the first Lord's day in June I met with the Harris Chapel congregation, in Wilson County, and we had a great day. It had been over a year since I met with them. Old Brother S. W. Womack established this congregation. They sent him a liberal contribution. Four made the good confession at night, and we had baptizing early Monday morning. I will return in August and hold a meeting for them, the Lord willing.

On the second Lord's day in June I began a meeting in Bellbuckle, Tenn. I will be here about two weeks. A large number of the brethren and sisters from Fosterville were with us in the beginning of the meeting. From here I will go to Sparta, Tenn., to begin a meeting.

Several weeks ago Brother A. B. Lipscomb and Brother A. M. Burton visited Brother S. W. Womack. They read the Scriptures to him and prayed with him, Although very feeble, he was highly lifted up by the visit of these good men. They left a liberal contribution to help to care for him in his last days among us. I must say that the white brethren and sisters are thoughtfully looking after the needs of this old servant, and the churches that he has established are remembering him greatly; so he is not suffering for attention or the needed comforts of this life, because the brethren and sisters, white and colored, are doing their duty toward him. In all of his suffering and pain he continues to say he is only waiting on the Lord. Brother Womack has been a subscriber for the Gospel Advocate for years, and although too feeble to read it himself, he has me to sit by his bed and read it over to him, and it seems to be a source of comfort to him yet, as it M. KEEBLE. has been in the past.

The College Question.

BY J. P. PAISLEY.

It is not my expectation to completely satisfy the minds of all the readers on this subject by writing this: but I want to say that I have been following closely the different writers expressing their views, and I am at a loss to see why men of broad minds and able reasoners on Bible and other subjects can so disagree as they do, and especially on this one.

Now I wish to ask every reader of the Gospel Advocate to read, and if necessary to re-read, Brother R. L. Whiteside's article on this subject, in the Gospel Advocate of June 10, page 565. In my honest judgment, it should forever settle all arguments on this matter; for, if I understand the brother, he means it is not a church affair, neither is it connected with the church in any way.

Preachers and teachers of the Bible have a perfect right to pave the way for edification of the young and rising generation in any way that will not conflict with the law of Christ. I do not understand the college to do that. Again, I do not understand the college to be sanctified to the worship of God as is the order of worship upon Lord's day. But the college, if managed by the proper faculty, which I presume is the intention of all, is the proper place to prepare young ministers for the work and to instruct all young people how to present themselves in the house of worship on Lord's day and for all other duties of life. As the brother said, "it is the parents' duty, so far as they are able, to provide all things needful for their children:" but it is not possible for all parents to fit and qualify their children with full education, neither in Bible nor in literature. Hence, they are duty bound to let them take such steps as will promote them to higher qualifications of life both morally and spiritually,

Then the college, or school, takes the place of parents to instruct them and to fit them for helpful positions of life, the same as in our common schools.

I think that I have a right to so speak, as I have a son now in the ministry, and I am sure of the fact that the college was greatly instrumental in bringing him to where he stands to-day. So let me conclude by saying: Long live the Bible college, or school, so long as it does not go beyond, but stays in harmony with, the great commission. (Matt. 28: 19, 20.)

Report of a Recent Trip.

BY W. DERBYBERRY.

On the second Lord's day in May, and on Saturday night before, it was my great pleasure to be with the Jackson Temple brethren, in Dickson County, Tenn., where I conducted a singing class about three years ago. This church is small as to members, but is one of the best-working bands I know of. It was established a few years since, mainly through the efforts of Oscar Parham, of Leiper's Fork. They remember him kindly for his untiring efforts there.

From there I went over to Dickson and preached for them on Lord's-day night and on Tuesday night following. I had been acquainted with this church for quite a while, as I conducted a singing class for them a number of years ago. We certainly have some kind-hearted brethren and sisters there. I had a pleasant visit with them, and shall remember it as such.

On our way to Dickson, Brother Needham Gaston and I stopped a few minutes at Burns, where I united in marriage Brother Homer Tidwell and Sister Lowe. Both are highly esteemed members of the church at

From Dickson I went down to Lyle on Monday morning, and preached to a good-sized audience that night. I surely enjoyed being with them. young Brother Lyle had died a short distance away, and by invitation I conducted the funeral services on the day following.

On Thursday night I was with the brethren at White Bluff in their prayer meeting, and conducted a short song service and talked for them.

On Friday I returned home to Lebanon after a very pleasant trip among the brethren.

Penitence has two faces. It looks toward the past and the future at the same time. There is not only a grief for sin, but a determination after a new obedience.-Exchange.

Lynching Record for the First Half of 1920.

Robert R. Moton, principal of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial Institute, of Alabama, which was founded by Booker T. Washington, furnishes us with information concerning lynchings for the first six months of this year. He says:

I find, according to the records kept by the Department of Records and Research of the Tuskegee Institute, Monroe N. Work in charge, that there have been in the first six months of 1920 twelve lynchings. This is seventeen less than the number (29) for the first six months of 1919, and thirty-three less than the number (45) for the first six months of 1918. All of those lynched were negroes. Eight of those put to death were charged with the crime of rape.

The States in which lynchings occurred and the number in each State are as follows: Alabama, 2: Florida, 1; Kansas, 1; Georgia, 2; Kentucky, 1; Minnesota, 3; South Carolina, Texas, 1.

Giving Entire Satisfaction.

There is a remarkably effective combination of blood-purifying, nervestrengthening, liver-stimulating remedies. It is Hood's Sarsaparilla for the blood, taken before eating; Peptiron for the nerves, taken after eating; and Hood's Pills for the liver, taken

It is giving entire satisfaction. Persons suffering from a combination of ailments, such as cause eruptions on the face or body, paleness, pallid lips, cheeks, and ears, and constipation, especially find it beneficial.

The treatment accomplishes so much that, although there are three medicines, it is the most economical. Each of these medicines is of superlative merit for the troubles for which it is especially recommended. Each is good alone; all are good together. Get any one, any two, or all three, of your druggist to-day.

Ousts Rheumatism.

Ousts Rheumatism.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system, by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expels the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial, and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price, 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

Jell-0

Ice Cream Powder

To make the finest ice cream, stir Jell-O Ice Cream Powder in milk and freeze it, without adding sugar, eggs or anything at all.

The old way of making ice cream has been dropped by most good housekeepers.

Vanilla. Strawberry, Lemon and Chocolate flavors and Unflavored. At grocers'.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY Le Roy, N. Y.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colfs and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoaceticaeidester of Salicylicacid.

VACCINATE YOUR HOGS.

BUY SERUM direct from the manu-Buy SERUM direct from the manufacturers and be assured of a fresh, reliable product. United States Veterinary License No. 114; long-distance phone, Main 2569, Nashville, Tenn. Write for 30-page Hog Book; it is FREE. WHITE SERUM COMPANY.

DEEP-SEATED

FRECKLES

Need attention NOW or may remain all summer. Use the old and time-tried treat-ment that has given satisfaction for over 15 years, and rid yourself of these homely spots.

Kintho Beauty Cream

At All Druggists and Department Stores.

Shall We Observe the First or the Seventh Day?

BY WILLIAM J. MILLER.

The law of Christ was all given after he came into the world. To obey that law is what is required of us.

In the transfiguration of Christ, in the presence of his apostles, the apostles saw Moses, the first lawgiver, with Jesus. When Moses was parted from him, there came a voice out of the clouds, saying: "This is my Son, my chosen: hear ye him," (Luke 9: 28-35.) People had been hearing Moses, as he was the lawgiver. After Jesus came, the people were to "hear him," as he is the Lawgiver.

The day that the law of Jesus Christ requires us to observe is the day to be observed. Jesus was of the tribe of Judah in the flesh. Jacob prophesied of Jesus, saying: "The scepter shall not depart from Judah, nor the ruler's staff from between his feet, until Shiloh come; and unto him shall the obedience of the peoples be," (Gen. 49: 10.) Jesus is the Lawgiver that Jacob called "Shiloh." According to Paul's statement (Heb. 7: 14), Jesus sprang out of Judah. Therefore, Jesus is the Lawgiver that is to be obeyed. While Moses was at the head of the children of Israel, journeying from Egypt to Canaan, they came to Mount Sinai, While they were there, Moses went up into the mountain and received the Ten Commandments on two tables of stone. In the commandments they were commanded: "Remember the Sabbath day, to keep it holy." (Ex. 20: 8.) Though people were then required to keep that day, people are not now required to keep it. The requirement on the tables of stone was a repetition of a requirement that had been given by Moses before there was any commandment given on the tables of stone. (Ex. 16: 29, 30.) Therefore, the requirement to keep the Sabbath was the law of Moses given in Ex. 16, and afterwards repeated in Ex. 20, as on the stones. It was first given, without being on the stones, and afterwards, as in Ex. 20, was given on the stones. We are not under the law of Moses. Therefore, we are not required to keep the seventh day. "For the priesthood being changed, there is made of necessity a change also of the law." (Heb. 7: 12.)

All the law given by Moses was the law of God. (See Luke 2: 24.) Luke speaks of "a pair of turtle doves" being mentioned in "the law of the Lord" that was given by Moses, mentioned in Lev. 12: 7, 8. Though it was "the law of the Lord," it was given by Moses, and they were not mentioned on the tables of stone. Not only was that part of "the law of the Lord" given by Moses and not written on tables of stone done away, but the commandments which were written on the stones were done away. (Read 2 Cor. 3.) This chapter shows that the Ten Commandments are abolished. An Adventist objects by saying that "the seventh verse of this chapter does not say that the Ten Commandments were done away." We are not contending that the seventh verse shows it. The eleventh verse shows that they are abolished. The seventh verse speaks of the "glory" being done away. The eleventh verse speaks of the "ministration" being done away. Therefore, not only the "glory," but also the "ministration," is done away. The "ministration" is the Ten Commandments. Therefore, as the "ministration" is done away, the Ten Commandments are done away.

Under the "law of Christ" (Gal. 6: 2), the Christians observed the first day of the week (1 Cor. 16: 1, 2; Acts 20: 7). Jesus rose from the dead on that day. "Now when he was risen early on the first day of the week, he appeared first to Mary Magdalene, from whom he had cast out seven demons." (Mark 16: 9.)

The Comforter.

The work of the Lord, the Spirit, is wide, extended, and extensive. He is emphatically the "Comforter;" this is his principal work. He comforts the soul, made conscious how little there is in himself to nourish and strengthen; stripped, in his sense, of his self-wisdom, self-power, self-importance, and self-complacency. He testifies of Jesus as having "all fullness" in him. He comforts the poor, tried, and harassed soul, in the midst of its trial, sorrow, and affliction, by unfolding the man of sympathy, the sympathy of the God-man and Mediator. He comforts the soul by revealing the character of God: in his gracious character: in his sin-forgiving character; in his tenderness, compassion, gentleness, and holiness. He comforts his saints as they pass through the change of a changing world, by revealing the covenant, "crdered in all things and sure." He unfolds the gracious promises of the God of grace. He is called "the Comforter" because it belongs to him especially to comfort the saints of the Most High.-Selected.

The church of the one hundred and twenty waited for the great gift of the Holy Spirit; and it came, richer, more divine, more full of power from above, than they could have imagined. So the church ever waited for fresh degrees of grace and glory; so apostles waited; and we, inheritors of the same sacred blessings, as many as desire to be perfect toward God, must also be thus minded.—Moberly.

TETTERINE

Makes hair beautiful, free from dandruff, and keeps the scalp healthy.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Volume LXII. No. 29.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 15, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Edifying as the Need May Be 681
Our Contributors 685
At Home and Abroad 688
Training Little Children 690
Editorial
Current Thought
Said in Paragraphs 693
Georgia and the Far Southern Field 696
Church News 697
Who Is to Blame? 698
The East Tennessee Work 699
Help the Marshall Church of Christ 700
Obituaries 703
Shall We Observe the First or the Seventh Day? 705
The Golden Windows of the Soul 703
From the Field 70

Edifying as the Need May Be

Science and the Bible.

But it is in the ethical teachings of the Bible that we note the chief corroborations of this scientific truth. So great and so far-reaching is its contribution that the scientist finds in this book his never-failing ally. It becomes an immediate and prolific reference book. Without the Bible, the scientist would be practically devoid of illustration, unless, perchance, he should fall back upon other books of mythological origin and of questionable ethics. The scientist teaches that hunger is an altruistic force. Because it has to do with the maintenance of life it is not to be belittled or despised. The most worthy and noble of all things are those that preserve and perpetuate the race. In such a view, hunger can never be regarded as low or coarse. If we readily acknowledge that God made our heads, eyes, hands, and feet, why not just as well acknowledge that God made our stomachs, and that he made them for a worthy purpose? Yet I know some people who never mention the stomach except in a whisper. But why should any man be ashamed of his stomach unless it be that his habits confirm the suspicion that he is all stomach? Did Jesus look upon hunger as an unworthy force? Did he consider the satisfaction of hunger to be an unrefined process? Certainly not. Among his greatest miracles we always make mention of the feeding of the five thousand. What was the purpose behind the miracle? Was it wrought in order to make demonstration of his infinite power? Matthew states the purpose plainly. He tells us how Jesus said: "I have compassion on the multitude, because they continue with me now three days and have nothing to eat." (Matt. 15: 32.) He himself had fasted for forty days and nights and knew better than any man what suffering is entailed by hunger. The kindness and compassion that stirred his own heart he would create in all men. Hence, he said in the Sermon on the Mount: "Or what man is there of you, who, if his son shall ask him for a loaf, will give him a stone; or if he shall ask for a fish, will give him a serpent?" (Matt. 7: 9, 10.) And again: "If thine enemy hunger, feed him."

0 0 0

The Problem of the Poor.

Science teaches that "reproduction and nutrition are inversely proportional." The poorest families have the largest number of children. Strangely enough, the underfed classes have the most mouths to feed. The Christian religion not only recognizes this scientific truth, but proposes the remedy. The very essence of this religion is "to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unspotted from the world." (James 1: 27.) Hence, it follows that the merely nominal Christian who has no serious regard for the hunger force of the sociologist in the world about him becomes a nonenity. "If a brother or sister be naked and in lack of daily food, and one of you say unto them, Go in peace, be ye warmed and filled; and yet ye give them not the things needful to the body; what doth it profit?" (James 2: 15.) Jesus said; The poor ye have with you always." This means a continual testing of our faith. We have read some strong indictments against the modern industrial system that keeps men, women, and children away from pure air in stuffy factories and at the same time dwarfs their bodies and stunts their mental growth, and oftentimes defrauds them of their rightful earnings; but there is nothing in any literature quite so strong and terrible in meaning as that which comes from the pages of the New Testament: "Come now, ye rich, weep and howl for your miseries that are coming upon you. Your riches are corrupted, and your garments are moth-eaten. Your gold and your silver are rusted: and their rust shall be for a testimony against you, and shall eat your flesh as fire. . . . Behold, the hire of the laborers . . . crieth out." (James 5: 14.)

Soul-Hunger. C C C

It is enough to say Jesus carries the hunger force into nearly all of his finest teachings. He does for this figure what no scientist can ever do for it. He enlarges and glorifies its meaning. To the extent that the divine transcends the human does his thoughts transcend the thought of the scientist. "He spake as never man spake." He recognized in this great human craving of the body an apt and fitting analogy to the hunger of the soul. Hence, we hear him say: "Blessed are they that hunger and thirst after righteousness: for they shall be filled." (Matt. 5: 6.)

"Bread is the staff of life." Jesus spiritualizes the idea of his own mission by saying: "I am the bread of life: he that cometh to me shall not hunger, and he that believeth in me shall never thirst." (John 6: 35.) On one occasion, when the disciples urged him to eat, the Master said: "I have meat to eat that ye know not." When they began to question among themselves as to what his words meant, he explained: "My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to accomplish his work." On the night before the crucifixion he instituted the Lord's Supper, and here again we find his recognition of the hunger force. Jesus hungered for their love, and he knew that in the trying days to come they would hunger for his love. Hence, he "took bread, and blessed, and brake it: and he gave to the disciples, and said, "Take, eat; this is my bedy." (Matt. 26: 26.) Not content with showing the importance of man's relationship to hunger in this life, he carries the figure with him in giving his prophetic picture of the judgment. "Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world." "Why are we to receive this great honor?" the righteous ask in grateful surprise, "For I was hungry, and ye gave me to cat." (See Matt. 25: 34, 35.) John, who heard Jesus speak these words, who leaned on his breast at supper, and who drank deeper at the well of his Master's teachings than did any of the other New Testament writers, shares with Paul the honor of being his chief interpreter. We are not surprised, then, to find that John, in describing to us the state of the glorified, should write the oft-quoted words: "They shall hunger no more," (Rev. 7: 16.)

Is it not a worthy picture of heaven that makes it a place where the hunger of man shall find complete and everlasting satisfaction in the bosom of his God?

Our Contributors

The Present Conditions, and Why.

BY JOHN T. SMITHSON.

Why is it that we do not have large congregations of serious and thoughtful people? In many congregations the spirit of reverence and godly fear are lacking. Older people have lost this spirit in many ways. The younger are not taught by the older to manifest it. Preachers to-day who "preach the word" receive very little encouragement. The older members sit seemingly lifeless to the truth. Not many even encourage the preacher by sanctioning the truth. Sometimes in prayer, like the Savior on that memorable night, the preacher prays alone, while all around him are people otherwise interested and engaged.

Older members of the church attend the morning service and worship as they have been accustomed, and when customary service has been rendered they go home and wait till the next morning service, which is a week off. The evening service is left to the preacher and the young people, who come not so much to the service, but as having a place to go. Under such conditions perhaps many preachers have preached, and thought that what they were teaching was as seed that fell by the wayside. Why is this? Reader, answer for yourself. Search your heart; read your mind; understand your thoughts; know yourself. Are you as faithful to the Lord and his word as you should be?

Christians should all the time be deeply interested in the gospel, the power of God to save. All who have been faithful to God and did his will through the past years of trouble and unrest are stronger in faith than ever before. While there may be many who have been faithful to God and have not yielded to the things of this present evil world, and who have kept their garments free from the blood stains of their fellow men, I know of but few; while, on the other hand, I know of many who have become faithless in what they once claimed the word of God taught. Religion has been disregarded by some of its ardent supporters.

There was a time when parents reverenced God and obeyed his word. They taught this to their children. Then we had good parents and noble children. These days were peaceful and the life was happy, and each felt the other's need. But now—well, what? Can it be truly said that parents love God and are submissive to his will? Do they teach their children to respect the teaching of the Bible? Let the fathers and mothers speak, and they will be heard.

It use to be considered a great pleasure by the people to have preachers visit their homes. Children use to have profound respect for preachers of the gospel, and they would listen eagerly to them tell of Jesus and his love, of God the Father and the home of many mansions. It would gratify a business man for a preacher to go to his place of business. He would take the time to talk with him about the great problems of life and the destiny of the soul. A stranger had a burning desire to form the acquaintance of the preacher. What can be said of the present time? Shall we speak, or shall we remain silent? As for me, I shall speak. If I do injustice to any, I stand ready to be corrected.

The preacher is not invited in many homes now. There is no room for him as a guest. If perchance he should call at a home, very likely he is kept standing at the front door till the cards are gathered up from the table and hid away. All the while he is there, in their heart remains the nevervanishing desire that he leave. That home feels the pressure of condemnation while the preacher is there; and the pressure is released only when he is followed to the door and bade farewell with these words, though they mean it not: "Come back sometime." When members of the church are such apostates as to substitute for the preacher in the home a card player and for the Bible on the table a deck of cards, no wonder the light of the world is burning low. How can children in such homes be brought up to reverence God and be faithful to his word? We can just as well expect light to come out of darkness and sweet to come out of bitter as to expect faithful children of God to come out of such homes. Degeneracy in all ages started in the home. To-day the chief reason we have no more young people consecrated to the Lord and his cause and with imposing strength contending earnestly for the faith which was once for all delivered to the saints is that we have not the right kind of homes in which to rear these young people. When we can get the homes free from worldliness in all forms, and let God rule, and not Satan, and convert the card table again into an altar around which consecrated parents and godly children gather to study the Bible and pray to God, the donor of every blessing, there will be seasons of refreshing for famishing souls and a restoration of the primitive order of pure religion.

If business men of every trade would put to death their lucrative desire which they have fed in the last few years to corpulency from the fruits of graft, profiteering, and downright stealing, the scale of justice would be on the counter and the measuring rod would be accurately applied to the goods. The tide of high cost of living would ebb to its proper bounds; dissatisfaction and discontentment, which destroy peace and credulity, would be driven back to their dark and hideous abode; the mantle of charity would be spread over our country; peace would be enthroned, with fidelity the scepter and justice the law. God speed the day when we can have homes where God abides and rules, and where children are taught to reverence and respect God and his word! Then we will experience a glad change, and approximately reach the time when there will be peace on the earth and good will toward all men, and God's will being done on earth as it is in heaven.

A Message to My Friends.

BY JOHN E. DUNN.

During the two years' time I was working with our boys in the United States Army in Camp Sevier and in France, I got out of touch with home life and with the churches. When I came home, I found it necessary to provide a living for my family. During the high cost of living—and it is climbing still higher—I have felt it necessary to look out for "the rainy day."

Since the first of last October I have been laboring with the church at Terrell, Texas, under an arrangement that permitted me to be at home one-half the time and at Terrell one-half the time. On Sunday afternoons I have gone to schoolhouses and vacated church houses in the regions around Terrell and preached. I have arranged to be in protracted meetings in July and August. I have so arranged that I can get away from home at any time to hold meetings. During my absence from Terrell, Brother J. E. Weems will be there in my place. He is a fine young preacher. The Terrell church, Brother Weems, and I expect to extend the helping hand to the lost. I expect to do a lot of evangelistic work. Brethren can be free to write me about meetings anywhere. If I do not get a support one way, I can get it another. I expect to preach the gospel all I can as long as I live. I feel an interest in all the churches and regret to see true religion declining. Especially is it sad to see the rural churches going down. In the rural communities many of them have guit all meetings. In the county where Terrell is located-Kaufmanall of the rural churches have ceased to meet. Poor support of preachers has driven many of them out of the work. The churches, many of them, are getting no preaching. I know of quite a number of churches that cannot get a preacher at all. This is sad. I think the war, too much money, and the love of pleasure has caused this situation. The American people are money-mad and pleasure-

John Ruskin said: "There are four periods in the history of every nation"-(a) "struggle for existence;" "conquering of the enemies;" (c) "development of resources, in which the nation grows rich;" (d) "revelry in sin, which brings about the downfall." Our country in her national existence is entering the fourth and last period. As to how long we exist as a nation will depend on how we treat God. No nation can exist long that forsakes God. God has brought down every nation in the past that forsook him. There is not one exception. I am confident Germany's sins wrought her downfall. France, Belgium, and other nations are writhing in agony as a result of their sins. Our great wealth and love of pleasure will eat out our vitals. "Righteousness exalteth a nation, but sin is a reproach to any people." We did not get our lesson during the war. A few suffered much. This lesson is good for the soul; but so many grew rich and richer and more worldly. The casual observer can readily see that the tendency of our people is away from God into the pleasures of this world.

Irving, Texas, Rural Route No. 2, Box 3.

A Reminiscent Sketch.

BY JAMES E. SCOBEY.

On the third Sunday in June I was with the Bethlehem Church, and preached to the congregation. This church is the oldest in Wilson County, maybe the oldest in the State. It had quite a unique beginning.

Barton Stone came into Tennessee in the latter twenties. Passing from Lebanon toward Rome, in Smith County, late one afternoon, he called at my grandfather's house, desiring to spend the night. He was welcomed. He had not made it known that he was a preacher up to the hour to retire for sleep.

My Grandfather Scobey was a devotedly religious man, being what was sometimes called a "bluestocking" Presbyterian. He regularly occupied a tent each year at the camp meetings of the church to extend a Christian hospitality to those who came from far or near to the meeting. "Before we go to bed," he said to his guest, "we generally read the Bible and pray, and would you join us?" The gentleman said that was also his custom, whereupon my grandfather requested him to lead in the service. After prayer, Stone began to talk about the plan of salvation, the terms and conditions, etc.; so that it was late, indeed, when they did retire to sleep.

Next morning my grandfather asked Stone to stay over and preach the coming night in his house, saying he would move all furniture out of the big room, would put in plank seats, and send runners through the country to announce the preaching. At night the house was full. That was the beginning of a meeting which lasted until Stone's preaching had turned many to an obedience of the gospel. Most of the Presbyterians, some Baptists, and others were baptized by him. My grandparents on both sides of the house were baptized by Barton W. Stone. My grandfather Sweatt became a preacher of the gospel. These were the charter members of Bethlehem Church. For ninety odd years few Lord's days have gone by that none of the faithful have met at Bethlehem Church to break bread to show the Lord's death till he come. It is a strong, well-taught congregation, living in peace, working and worshiping according to the word.

For five years before the Civil War I taught school in that neighborhood, and almost every boy and girl in the country round about came to the school. There was, the day I recently preached at Bethlehem, a good-sized audience, and in it there was only one person who had been a pupil at Union Academy. There were sons and daughters, old and gray-headed, of former pupils. There were many of their grandchildren present. I obeyed the gospel there under the preaching of Sandy E. Jones, seventy years ago. May that church hold out faithful to the end, and may they hear and heed what the Spirit saith to the churches.

A Wonderful Baptism.

BY A. M. GEORGE.

In Matt. 3: 13-17 and Mark 1: 9-11 we have an account of the baptism of the Son of God by John the Baptist in the river Jordan. It is strange that the sinless Son of God should have to submit to this baptism in water just like the common people whom John was baptizing. Being himself the very consummation of righteousness, one might suppose that there could be no necessity for him to be baptized, and especially if, as many suppose, the baptism was a mere nonessential symbol. Why was he required to be baptized? Not for the remission of his sins, for he had never committed any. Then why? Because he came to do his Father's will, and his Father willed that everybody should be baptized. Then it was a righteous thing to be baptized, and he was baptized "to fulfill all righteousness." He would have committed his first sin if he had concluded, as very many now do, that baptism was a nonessential and had declined it. He would have fallen from God's favor, or grace. Who can or will deny it? This gives baptism the appearance of being so exceedingly essential that even God's beloved Son could not have declined it without sin, or maybe forfeiture of his Sonship. His Father required him to be baptized to complete his righteousness, and he had to obey or fall. God likewise now commands men and women to be baptized, and, like his Son, they must obey or fall, unless he is more indulgent to us than he was to his Son, no matter whether baptism is for the remission of sins or not. It is always essential to obey God's commandments, for one is in sin as long as he remains in disobedience; and this, being true, proves that baptism is for the remission of sins.

Now we come to the really strange things connected with this baptism. It should be exceedingly strange to those millions of deluded people who hold baptism so lightly as to nickname it "a ducking," as I have known some to do. Now notice the following: Matthew and Mark say that as soon as Jesus was baptized, and while coming up out of the water, "lo, the heavens were opened, and he saw the Spirit of God descending like a dove, and lighting upon him: and lo a voice from heaven, saying, This is my beloved Son, in whom I am well pleased," Notice, here God sends his Spirit down on Jesus and proclaims him his beloved Son as soon as he is baptized, not before; as soon as he has fulfilled all righteousness in being baptized, not before. Now, if God withheld this acknowledgment and approval of Jesus as his Son until after his baptism, who can have the boldness to face these facts and the Author of them and say that God will approve and acknowledge men and women as his beloved children before they have been baptized, so fulfilling all righteousness, as his own Son did?

Are not men commanded to be baptized? Read Acts 2: 38 for answer. Here are about three thousand believers in Christ asking what they must do, and the Holy Spirit, speaking through Peter, says: "Repent, and be baptized, every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive [not "have received"] the gift of the Holy Ghost:" Who can think that the Spirit and that voice from the opened heavens would have been seen and heard if Christ had called baptism a nonessential and refused it? One acts with just as little reason who claims that God will approve and accept as a beloved Son or daughter one who so dishonors him now.

Who can be so befogged and befuddled by false teachers that he can honestly believe that God will be pleased with any man or woman and acknowledge them as Son or daughter who will stand before him and say that any one of his commandments is a "nonessential?" If these believers in "nonessential" commands are right, they will find these facts connected with the baptism of Christ a strange and perplexing matter. They will be under the necessity of setting aside the facts or their doctrines, one or the other. One is the opposite of the other, and they cannot room together. It will be a blind man or woman indeed who cannot see this. "If the blind lead the blind, both shall fall into the ditch," said Christ. Do not follow blind leaders.

The silent testimony is good; the spoken testimony is better, for it completes the circle of witnessing. The statements of the Samaritan woman blazed the trail for the work of the Lord. So many silent lips are blocking the way of some specific act of our Lord that we could but wish that some "coal off the altar" might release the restrained testimony and so make for Christ a pathway down which he might come to prove his ability to save to the uttermost.—The Daily Bible.

Protracted Meetings.

BY C. E. WOOLDRIDGE:

Many of the congregations, especially those in rural communities, arrange for special evangelistic efforts annually. These efforts are most popularly called "protracted meetings." July, August, and September are the most popular months for such meetings. We are, in many places, learning that such meetings can be successfully conducted at other seasons—in fact, at almost any time in the year—if proper effort is put forth. We hear the complaint that there is a lack of preachers available for service. Some splendid preachers are not kept in the work constantly because we—our congregations—only undertake work in a limited season each year. Why not the congregations take up the work and press it forward "in season, out of season?" (2 Tim. 4: 3.)

About the preacher. For the protracted meeting, the preacher is usually a stranger, or at least from some other community and congregation. Congregational affairs should be in harmonious and working condition before such preacher arrives. The congregation should adjust and have everything in readiness to "sound out the word"-to hold forth the word of life" to others. They should impress the fact of this readiness upon the preacher both by word and conduct and insist that his efforts be directed toward the alien and his conversion. I would suggest that the preacher can do no work which will be of greater value to a congregation than to teach in detail and with utmost care and pains the "first principles." These themes will carry men back to the time when they "received Christ"-to their "first love"-and stir emotions that in indifferent or wayward disciples have long lain dormant. In the everyday and every-week work and teaching of congregations, Old Testament characters, examples, and types will serve in a valuable way, but these are not enough in evangelistic effort unless they are revealed in the fullness of New Testament applications. The same kind of teaching is needed to maintain the congregations of to-day as was required in establishing them in pioneer days. The errors prevailing fifty or one hundred years ago are as strong and popular as ever. There is need that lessons be given on "The Proper Division of the Word;" "Establishment of the Church, or Kingdom;" "The Great Commission;" "The Beginning;" "Conversion;" "The New Birth;" "Acts of Apostles Analyzed and Conversion Illustrated;" "Faith;" "Repentance;" "Confession;" "Baptism-Action, Subjects, and Design;" "Moral and Positive Law;" "Justification by Faith;" and other such subjects. Such lessons will strengthen and build up the faith and character of church members, and only such themes will convert sinners. Do not be afraid to speak plainly for truth-definite, concisely stated truth; neither avoid pointing out, refuting, and exposing the dangers in error. Such work need not be made offensive. The diagnosis of physician and surgeon does this all the time, and because of their kindly and interested manner and practical course they are most popular citizens. Jesus and his early followers did this in the establishment of the church. The pioneers of a generation and more ago were plain, earnest teachers. When we thus engage our time and interest, we will find less time to raise unprofitable questions and will find a united and substantial interest aroused among disciples. Dear preacher brother, never fail in sermon and exhortation to set forth clearly the conditions of salvation-the steps unto and into Christ-in specific terms.

About the congregation. It is your work and your meeting. The preacher is to help you, not to "hold the meeting." Provide for his comfort and convenience, that he may keep in the best condition possible, both in mind and body. He will want to visit some in your homes, but can be overworked with much visiting and big dinners and long drives. Put your meetinghouse in the best possible condition. Take out stove, stovepipes, and other unsightly things. Clean up, brighten up everything. You have invited company—the whole community. I know one church with two small doors for entrance. For three years each door has been reached over stingy little ramshackle steps, a positively dangerous affair. Repair old song books and add new ones if needed. Get the singers to take interest, get together, support and encourage the leader. Let ushers be provided who will care for the people both in the house and on the grounds. Provide water and fans, too, if available. Let every member sidetrack other things and spend the time doing everything possible to secure the attendance and interest of others. Let neither indifference, pleasure, nor business interfere with duty. Do personal work earnestly and wisely. Provide and prepare well for baptizing, beforehand. In a word, make every needed preparation and maintain an active and thoughtful interest throughout the meeting. In my work with congregations, I have seen the shortcomings and neglect which have called forth these suggestions. Let preacher and congregation do their best, laboring for the Master's honor and the salvation of men. How interested and earnest we should be!

A Pleasure-Loving Age.

BY JOHN T. SMITHSON.

Just how long it is to the end of time, we do not know. There is one thing that we do know, in expressing which we fear no attack. We are living in a pleasure-loving age. Who is it that wishes to attack this statement? Surely all will agree to the truth of this. But whether this particular pleasure-loving age is the last days and near the end of time is more than any one can truthfully say, since no one knows when time shall end. It can safely be said, however, that these days are very fittingly described in the following quotation from the Bible: "But know this, that in the last days grievous times shall come. For men shall be lovers of self, lovers of money, boastful, haughty, railers, disobedient to parents, unthankful, unholy, without natural affection, implacable, slanderers, without self-control, fierce, no lovers of good, traitors, headstrong, puffed up, lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God; holding a form of godliness, but having denied the power thereof: from these also turn away." (2 Tim. 3: 1-5.) If this language of the apostle does not mean the present time, it must mean the past or the future. If it is the past, was it more grievous than the present? Has the truth of this passage been more completely fulfilled in the past than at the present time? If the language means future time, we may look for the black cloud to thicken, and the most destructive part of a cruel and wicked storm is yet to strike. Upon this hypothesis, we are forced to the conclusion that the people on the earth are growing more corrupt daily. This conclusion is not a phantom, for a careful investigation of the actions of mankind for the last few years will furnish an abundance of proof that the trend of the mind is toward evil. It is conceded by all that some of the evils that are mentioned in the above passage are practiced by many people to-day. To add strength to the concession, I will say that all of the sins that are spoken of in the passage are practiced by people to-day; but whether they are practiced by a sufficient number of people as to make these days the last days, I cannot say. I do know that the right thing for all Christians to do is to take the admonition the apostle gives: "From these also turn away." If we will do this, whether we are living in the last days or not, we will have no fear of evil. This passage does not only mean that we must not do these things ourselves, but that we must not in any way encourage others who are doing these things. It is not enough for us to turn away from the "traitors" and then go with those who are "lovers of pleasure rather than lovers of God." We must turn away from the pleasure lover with as much aversion for him as we would the traitor.

It seems to me that people, both in the church and out, are pleasure mad. Here is the time for us to ask ourselves whether we love pleasure rather than God. Will we do things for our own pleasure when we would not do that for God and the good of his cause? How many times have we failed to do what the Lord wanted us to do, and do the thing that would bring us pleasure? We spend more money for our own pleasure than we give to the work of the Lord. I fear that we have not thought as seriously over this matter of loving pleasure as we should. We can very easily deceive ourselves and think we are right when we are radically wrong. The word "pleasure" used in the above quotation is not used in a propitious sense. It is inimical to all that pleases God. James teaches us that wars and fightings among us come from our pleasures which war among our members. (See James 4: 1-4.) Pleasure in this sense is sensual gratification, amusement, self-indulgence, frivolous or dissipating enjoyment. It is opposed to labor, service, duty, and self-denial. The things that appeal to the pleasure of most of us are many. What are we profited by these things? They are all transitory.

If we were as eager to serve God as we are to indulge in pleasures, we would do more to elevate mankind than we have in the past. There would not be so many empty pews for the preacher to face. Brother, sister, do you go to picture shows and dances and other places of pleasure when you would not go to the worship of the Lord? If you would go to the places of hilarity under any kind of weather conditions, why let inclement weather keep you from going to church? Furthermore, if you would give as much money to the service of God as you spend upon your pleasures, there would not be so many calls for help and there would be adequate means for every need. Do you know that eliminating the people of the world, there are more church members who love pleasure more than they love God? Let us ask ourselves this question: "Do I love the pleasures of this life as much as I love my Heavenly Father?" We cannot equate the love of God and the pleasures of this life. We will have to surrender one or the other. If we hold to the pleasures, we must give up God; and vice versa. For us to love God, we must not conform to this world, but be transformed by the renewing of our mind, see that it dwells not on the sinful pleasures and transient treasures of this life. We must not be a friend of this world, or we will be an enemy of God. We must not love the world, neither the things of the world; if we do, the love of God is not in us. We must keep ourselves unspotted from the world, or our religion will not be pure and undefiled. This is enough to show that we cannot equalize the service of God and the pleasures of this world.

Sunset at Sea.

BY CLARA COX EPPERSON.

Pearl-gray the sky without a tint of rose, As we sailed slowly from the harbor bar, The white sails silhouettes against the sky In the luminous light of one bright star.

Awed was my heart as evening light grew dim We sailed out in the dark and rolling sea, To think of those who nevermore return, Who sailed so blithely, bravely out to sea.

Within every healing shadow is God himself; and so, though it seem to be a shadow of the sorest sorrow and pain, yet it will lift me upward and lead me into the light. Indeed, it cannot be a hurting shadow if God is in it. I care not how painful, perplexing, and dark—the very darkness will be light about me. If God is with me, I will fear no evil. All the shadows of God are divine!—Robert Collyer.

"The Interchurch World Movement."

Editor's Note: James H. Williams, of Hartford, Ky., sends us the following letter to H. W. Elliott, secretary of the Kentucky State Missionary Society of the Disciples of Christ, for publication in the Gospel Advocate. We are glad to note that all Christians who are opposed to denominationalism are opposed to joining in with denominations and thus seeking to build up a great denominational body. Presbyterians have had nothing to do with the Interchurch World Movement; the Methodists are not associated with it, and, as I understand, neither are the Baptists.

Hartford, Ky., February 23, 1920,—Mr. H. W. Elliott, Secretary, Sulphur, Ky.—My Dear Sir and Brother: Yours of the 19th to hand, and in reply will say that we are in the evangelistic campaign, and have had five baptisms from the Bible school.

The brotherhood is with you in prayers, sympathy, and finance for Kentucky missions, provided it is used to have the gospel preached, and not for the Interchurch Movement.

The rank and file of the brotherhood, preachers and all, are opposed to the Interchurch World Movement. It is clearly a denominational movement, and denominationalism is sinful. We need no survey, for all we have to do is to lift our eyes and we see ten thousand times more for us to do than we can do. I came to this town thirty years ago, a Christian only, and found nothing but denominations to which I might attach myself. I decided to suffer the hardships of a disciple of Christ rather than enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season. About fifteen years ago we organized a church of Christ and have made fairly good success. After these years of hard work and money spent, we are not going into a movement that means we are to be federated, open-membershiped, denominationalized, put out of business, or driven into a community church vidually, if you want to aid the Interchurch World Movement, no one can say you nay. But neither you nor any other secretary or officer of any of our missionary organiza-tions has the right to lead the brotherhood into the Inter-church Movement. You say that "it is proposed to pay the railroad fare of all such [active members] who attend." is our State Board going to meet this expense? If not, who is going to meet it? If a bunch of our preachers go up to Louisville in March, as you indicate, and decide to put our brotherhood in this movement whether we want to go or not, we have a right to know who is putting up this money.

The Interchurch Movement looks upon us as a denomination. If we are a denomination, or just a communion of the church of God, then we had better get out of business at once. If the Interchurch Movement is the church of God, as some of our brethren seem to think, why is the Roman Catholic Church excluded? While I have no time or patience with the Roman Catholic Church, they are just as good as any of these other fellows who deny the absolute authority of the word of God as given to us in the Bible. Our task is to rebuild the wall around the city of the new Jerusalem; and if they want to help, let them come up on the wall and go to work. We have no time to go down into the valley to parley.

I have before me an eight-page pamphlet from one of these interchurch, federating, open-membership fellows who wants to come before my congregation and open our eyes to the errors of the disciples. He says:

"First: To say that Jesus spoke falsehoods is to say he had an unclean spirit.

"Second: To preach that Jesus commands baptism is to say that he spoke falsehoods.

"Third: Therefore to say that Jesus commands us to baptize is to commit blasphemy."

He also says: "It is the province of eloquence to change the convictions of a lifetime in twenty minutes.' Truth is eloquence. But I am duller than twenty minutes. I need an hour, discussion or lecture, ought to have two evenings for the fifth error and for the Bible plan of union which may double your membership within a year, which can make the disciples five millions by 1930, lubricated by twenty-five dollars each evening. If I do not silence the enemy's artillery, I ask no compensation. But I shall lift the conception of God from the caricature in the swampy parts of the Acts to above the stars and sink the old Jerusalem gospel so deep in the contempt of every teachable, intelligent man that all Rome, all Russia, and all hell can never give it a resurrection in his mind." And: "If the Disciples in 1920 will ship our plea, which is the hub of Romanism, bag and baggage, back to the Tiber, they can begin to preach the true gospel, will stand automatically at the gate Beautiful of the Christ plan for union, will number five million by 1930, double that by 1960, double that by 1999."

As an elder, I propose to protect my congregation against such fellows as this even with my own life. Paul said to the elders of Ephesus: "Also of your own selves shall men arise, speaking perverse things, to draw away disciples after them." (Acts 20: 30.) Does our State Board em-(Acts 20: 30.) Does our State Board employ such fellows as the one quoted above? What do you and the members of our State Board think of such vital issues as "Theistic Evolution," "Federation," "Open Membership," and the "Interchurch World Movement?" Everybody wants to know, and no one seems to know. I am, therefore, sending a copy of this letter to the Christian Standard, Cincinnati, Ohio, for publication, if they will, and I ask that you mail them a copy of your reply for publication, that the brotherhood may have satisfaction thereby. I feel that all our State and National secretaries of all our missionary organizations should come right out in the open and say where they stand on these questions, that the brotherhood may have peace,

I assure you, my dear brother, that this is written in the spirit of the Master and in the fear of Almighty God.
I am yours in his name.

JAMES H. WILLIAMS.

A Letter From an Evangelist in Love With His Work to a Young Brother Thinking of Entering the Field.

My Dear Brother: I am more than pleased to be able to attempt an answer to your letter. By all means seek to carry out your good resolution. The brotherhood of churches of Christ is in desperate need of men. On every hand it is being admitted that the future of our churches depends upon the number of men who will answer the challenge of these wonderful days with the consecration of their lives exclusively to the service of Christ.

For this is the supreme hour for the churches of Christ in our land. We have a plea of which we need not be ashamed. Given enough men, capable of presenting New Testament truth in its beauty and strength, the coming days should mark a notable growth for our churches. There is something in the very simplicity of our position which makes its own appeal to this complex day, when men long for a clear road for their feet. I have been greatly cheered during recent months by the way I have found men and women respond to the claims of the church of Christ. And when they have not identified themselves with us, I have heard, not once, but a dozen times, the sentiment expressed: "Well, if ever I join any church, it will be the church of Christ."

May I, then, in view of the unique opportunities, which may never return, and knowing from personal experience the unbounded joy of the work of the Lord, urge that without hesitation you seek to equip yourself for this high and honorable calling? But apart altogether from the vast opportunity presented by what we love to call the "Dawn of the New Era," there is no work in all the world which offers such rich opportunities for the achievement of good. There is no work more permanent and far-reaching in its influences. The ruthless hand of time is laid heavily upon the work of most men's fingers. The artist and builder may make their contributions to the realm of art or of architecture, but the strongest colors will fade and the stoutest canvas rot, and even monumental works in brick and stone crumble before our very eyes. How different it is with work wrought in the realm of the human spirit! If we seek through the preaching of the word of God to fashion the soul of man into the image of the peerless Son of God, we work on material which will outlast the ages. And I believe there is no more practical work under the sun. More than most people realize, the heartfelt preaching of the gospel is establishing the moral standard and fixing the ideals of people whose influence counts in public and private life in rousing that conscience through which the mightiest reforms are brought about.

The evangelist works on the unseen and eternal in man, on that inner life which is the wellspring of action; and 't is because of this that he may expect such tremendous practical results to accrue from his labors. I know that the fruit of our efforts may not be so rapidly discernible as those of the farmer or gardener. For we may sow the seed of truth, the harvest of which may not even appear in our lifetime. And yet, when the sinful soul has sought and found the Savior of mankind, transformations of character have been wrought in a single night.

Is there any other sphere where you could invest your life to greater purpose? What opportunities would be yours for striking at oppression, tyranny, wrong, and at every enemy to the highest interests of men! For you would carry in your hand the weapon which is the only sufficient means of bringing deliverance to mankind. Then I rejoice beforehand in the joy that would be yours in the homes and hearts always thrown open to those who bear the message of salvation. But, perhaps, of all the service you may render, none will be greater than your actual ministry in the house of the Lord. This is the evangelist's richest opportunity, and every one of his gifts should be consecrated to his supreme work. Did you ever think how often the services of the Lord's house are the arena where God and self battle for the mastery? The atmosphere is there where anything may take place. And week by week you may have the message which is the challenging call to the hearts of men-the words which may decide destiny itself. Think of the responsibility and tremble! But when you have done that, think of the opportunity and rejoice. For into God's sanctuary men come to be braced for the stressful experiences of everyday living. Here comes the work-worn soul to seek repose. Here come men and women with burdened hearts and strained nerves seeking the word which shall enable them bravely to meet their temptations, labors, and sacrificial enterprises of another week; and such a word is the gift which God's preachers dispense to the needy sons and daughters of earth.

You may wonder if I am going to turn aside to show you some of the forbidding aspects of the life. I know of none worthy of mention. You will need a stout heart and a thick skin; wisdom of the serpent combined with the harmlessness of the dove. Perhaps some would seek to deter you on the ground that your financial position might be better in some other sphere. But think of the glorious compensations! I sometimes wonder whether God has granted to any of his children the joys which he distributes so bountifully to those who preclaim his message of deathless love? To some is given the ability to travel. Their eyes feast on sight and scene magnificent. To others there is the pleasure of listening to the great creations of musical genius. I, too, have seen great sights and listened to choice music. But, belive me, there is no sight or sound of earth comparable to that when human lips confess faith in the saving name of Jesus Christ. And this supreme joy

I know you might reply to my letter, reminding me that what I have said thus far might have its application to every man in our brotherhood who occupies the honorable position of a preacher of the gospel. I most gladly acknowledge this, I owe my own identification with the churches of Christ to men whose lives were largely occupied by their business obligations. But the exacting nature of business life to-day is making it more and more imperative that there should be men who will have more time to devote to the things of the Lord—to visitation and study—and whose opportunities for effective service will be proportionately increased.

Praying that God's guidance and blessing may direct you in your momentous decision.—W. Mander, in the Bible Advocate.

Facts Stated Concerning W. P. Reedy.

Editor's Note: The facts given in the subjoined article by L. D. Perkins will be of special interest to our readers. This shows something of the opposition that the loyal churches of Christ in the West are called upon to meet. It is just such heresy, division, and strife that John D. Evans and the faithful band of disciples at Denver, Col., are encountering. Some few of our readers have thought it unwise to expose such methods, but the editors of the Gospel Advocate feel that it is their duty to oppose error of all kinds. The Bible teaching is to mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine, and turn away from them. The man who fails to vigorously oppose such heresy is derelict in his duty and cannot expect the approval of Jehovah. It is a fearful thing to be too cowardly and timid to speak out for the right because so speaking is sometimes opposed by good people who are misguided as to the facts in the case. For the information of the uninformed, we gladly publish what Brother Perkins has to say:

In a recent issue of the Gospel Advocate mention was made in connection with the disturbance of the church at Denver of Brother W. P. Reedy-that he should be called to hold the meeting contemplated at Denver. I write that I may give a record of Brother Reedy in California, so that all may see the record of the man the Review men wanted to hold the meeting in Denver. As to his moral standing, I know nothing against that; but as to the doctrine held by the church of Christ, I do not consider him to be sound in the faith. It was but a short time after the church at Long Beach divided over woman's work in the church until Brother Reedy located at Long Beach, and he is still there, this being his sixth or seventh year. The part of the congregation that he preaches for is not recognized or fellowshiped by the other churches of Southern California, nor of the other part of the State, save a few scattering bands. At Long Beach, when they do not have preaching, the women make speeches and lead the public prayers the same Sister M. S. Rucker, the wife of Brother M. S. as the men. Rucker, told me in the presence of Brother Z. A. Taylor, at Riverside, Cal. that as many as twenty of the women did that, and then others who have been there at their meetings confirm what she told me. This is done in violation of 1 Cor. 14: 34, where Paul commands women not to make a speech when the whole church be come together. and Brother Daniel Sommer says it is wrong for her to do so. Brother Reedy is not fellowshiped by the following churches of California: First Church, Riverside; churches at Santa Ana, Los Angeles, Pasadena, Pomona, Ontario, Downey, Fresno, Madera, Dinuba, Tulare, Hanford, San Francisco, Forestville, Graton, Santa Rosa, Patterson, Colton, and some other places I do not think of just now; but when this is said, it comprises almost the entire brotherhood in California. When trouble came up at Riverside, Brother Reedy was called by the Review advocates and assisted in dividing the church at Riverside. He has been recently selected by what few Review bands exist in Arizona to act together with Brother A. E. Harper, Colorado Springs, in withdrawing from those they think should be withdrawn from. The idea is that elders have no authority to act in such cases, but that preachers from afar must be called in to act. This procedure is what we call "evangelistic assumption." I do not know who gave it this name, but it is about what it is, and Brother Reedy holds an office. He also teaches that it is wrong for our Bible schools to exist; but I believe his worst doctrine is favoring women's acting as public teachers in the churches. Since the division at Riverside, Brother Reedy has been there and preached for those who are guilty of dividing and they, too, favor women's making public speeches and leading public prayers. Brother G. W. Riggs, of Los Angeles; Brother E. C. Love, of Santa Rosa; and Brother W. Halliday Trice, of Fresno, will confirm what I have said. This will make known whether Brother J. C. McQuiddy and Brother John D. Evans are in the right or not regarding the Denver work.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Q

AT HOME AND ABROAD

John T. Smithson is preaching at Daylight, Tenn.

- H. Leo Boles has closed a good meeting at Farmington, Tenn.
- L. B. Jones is in a meeting at Dilton, near Murfreesboro, Tenn.
- G. W. Jarrett, of Woodlawn, Tenn., has some time open for meetings.
- R. D. Smith is now in his third meeting with the church at Lewisville, Texas.

Oury Harris, of the church at Dickson, Tenn., reports the church moving on very nicely.

- John E. Dunn thinks "Elkanah's" article was timely and to the point—exactly the right thing!
- O. D. Bearden, of Atlanta, Ga., made us a pleasant call last Friday. He reports the work as growing in interest in Atlanta.
- L. S. Sanford has changed his residence from Sweeney, Texas, to Park Place, Houston, Texas. He will give his entire time to evangelistic work.
- J. O. Blaine, of Portland, Tenn., made us a very pleasant call last week. He is active in the work of spreading the gospel in mission fields.
- A. B. Barret has closed a splendid meeting for the University church of Christ in Austin, Texas. There were twenty additions to the congregation.
- Jere Whitson, of Cookeville, Tenn., called to see us recently. He reports the church as moving on nicely in Cookeville. He is much interested in the work.
- M. C. Cayce began a protracted meeting at Shiloh, Tenn., six miles from McEwen, Humphreys County, last Lord's day. J. D. Derryberry is leading the song service.

We have a wire from Coleman Overby, of Murray, Ky., stating that G. C. Brewer has influenza complicated with bronchial trouble, and that he is improving slowly.

- J. W. Grant recently closed a meeting in Youngville, Robertson County, Tenn., with one addition. The church seemed very much encouraged and pleased with his preaching.
- E. C. Love, of Santa Rosa, Cal., came to see us last week. He is the editor of the Pacific Christian, a live journal which is especially devoted to the work on the Western Coast.
- T. D. Long, of Tupelo, Miss., writes us that G. C. Brewer will begin a tent meeting in that place on the second Sunday in July. E. Gaston Collins is expected to lead the song service.

Congregations in need of a good preacher for a meetingwould do well to get in touch with J. Clifford Murphy, of Pulaski, Tenn. He has some time not engaged for the summer and early fall.

E. P. Watson, of Browning, Mo., passed through the city last week en route to Wildersville, Tenn., where he began a meeting last Lord's day. He reports the work as progressing nicely in Browning.

We enjoyed a visit recently from H. W. Wrye, who has just returned from Roaring Springs, Texas, where he has been preaching for a number of years. He began a meeting at Old Jefferson last Lord's day.

J. T. Chappell, of Esom Hill, Ga., writes that the congregation at Shady Grove is very anxious to secure a preacher for a protracted meeting. Only two men are members of the church, but they meet falthfully every Sunday morning.

From Lee Garrett, Symrna, Tenn., July 10: "H. W. Wrye is conducting a splendid meeting at Old Jefferson. His sermons are forceful, scriptural, and logical. Large crowds are attending. Several baptisms to date. The meeting continues"

- G. E. Claus, of Valdosta, Ga., stopped in to see us en route home from St. Catherines and Pine Orchard, Canada. He held a meeting at each place, baptizing eight at the former and three at the latter. He speaks encouragingly of the work.
- G. W. Riggs is here from Los Angeles, Cal. While here he will conduct a number of protracted meetings. Those who wish him to hold meetings can secure his services after October. His friends can communicate with him at College Grove, Tenn.

From W. M. Oakley, Nashville, Tenn., July 12: "Our meeting of one week's duration at Kingston Springs closed last night, with one baptized and one reclaimed. I shall go to Ashland City, Route 5 (Petway), to begin a meeting next Lord's day."

- J. Pettey Ezell, of Albany, Ala., is now engaged in a meeting at Springfield, Tenn., and made us a pleasant call last week. He speaks encouragingly of the work recently done at Hartsell, Ala. He is planning to build a new house in which to worship there.
- J. O. Barnes, Lake City, Fla., writes: "We gratefully acknowledge contributions to the amount of three hundred and four dollars and sixty-nine cents from brethren and churches to help pay off the indebtedness on the church building at Lake City."
- F. J. Rogers is ready to make engagements to hold meetings, beginning the third Lord's day in July and running to and including the third Lord's day in August. Any one wishing to engage him for a meeting should write him at 236 Hatton Street, Jackson, Tenn.
- R. C. White preached last Lord's day and Lord's day night at Glasgow, Ky. On Monday night he began a meeting at Salmon, Ky., to continue for some time. Churches should see that preachers who are devoting their time to destitute fields are supported in the work.

George D. Boyd, of Tracy City, Tenn., informs us that the church at Tracy City wishes to engage a preacher to work with that church and in the surrounding community all the time. This is an inviting field, one in which a consecrated preacher could accomplish much good.

Carl A. Gardner writes from Las Vegas, N. M.: "If any one knows of any members of the church of Christ in Las Vegas, please write me or Claude Moores at this place. We desire to establish the ancient order of worship in this city. I shall be here until near the middle of August."

W. Edgar Miller, of Los Angeles, Cal., writes as follows: "About the first of September next we are expecting S. H. Hall to locate with us and take up the work in conjunction with Brother Riggs, and we are looking forward to building up a good, strong congregation at this place."

- J. D. Derryberry has from the fourth Lord's day in July to the second Lord's day in August that he can devote to leading the song service in protracted meetings. Any one needing the services of a good song leader should address him at 146 Second Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.
- W. M. Oakley writes: "I recently closed a very interesting meeting at Ivy Point, Davidson County, of one week's duration. Notwithstanding the people were all very busy in their crops, the meeting was well attended and grew in interest to the close. Two were added by obedience."

From R. N. Moody, Delrose, Tenn., July 10: "The meeting here continues, with increasing interest. Two baptisms to date. I shall continue over Sunday at least. I go from here to Acton, Tenn., for a meeting. My address while there will be Corinth, Miss., Route 5, care of Dr. J. J. Abernathy."

From Isaac C. Hoskins, Martin, Tenn., July 11: "I recently held an interesting meeting at Hamlin, W. Va., with six baptized, one from the Methodists, and one by relation. I then went to Washington, D. C., where I preached for Brother Long, morning and evening, and baptized my niece in the afternoon."

John T. Smithson, who preaches for the F Street Church, of Louisville, Ky., made us a pleasant visit recently. He reports the work as prospering in Louisville. He was en route to Warren County, where he is engaged to hold a number of protracted meetings. He loves the truth and vigorously defends it.

From F. B. Shepherd, Amarillo, Texas, June 28: "Yester-day was a great day for the church here. Fine services and good attendance, with nine additions. I preached at Panhandle in the afternoon. This is the livest little congregation in our section. The Amarillo church is growing rapidly into a veritable beehive."

From Mrs. T. J. McRae, San Francisco, Cal., July 4: "We had another good meeting to-day. A number of visitors were present. Brother Larimore's sermons are always very Interesting and instructive. We are glad to have visitors come and worship with us. We meet in Richmond Hall, corner Fourth Avenue and Clement Street."

A letter from John D. Evans, of the South Sherman Street church of Christ, Denver, Col., brings this information: "We had an all-day meeting at Boulder on Sunday, June 27, with representatives from all the congregations to discuss the Colorado work. Considerable enthusiasm was shown. We used the Chautauqua Auditorium."

Mrs. R. L. Crowell, of Brunswick, Ga., was among our callers recently. She and her husband are the only two members of the church of Christ in Brunswick. They are anxious for some good preacher to visit Brunswick and labor with them for the establishment of a congregation. Here is an opportunity to do some mission work.

We regret that our associate, E. A. Elam, has not been well during the last week. We also regret the necessity that is taking Sister Elam and her brother, Haynie Thompson, to Montana. We shall be gratified to learn that both have been greatly improved in health by the trip. They are expecting to remain in Montana about two months.

Here is what one of our aged subscribers has to say. Mrs. P. E. Meek, of Judsonia, Ark., writes: "I am ninety-two years of age, and don't feel like my age will permit me to renew the paper, but I love the cause and like to read the paper very much. I don't feel able to renew." Some one might make this aged woman happy by having the paper continued to her address for another year.

Wanted—One minister of the gospel for at least three months' work in and around Kittanning, Pa. Must have a tent, and I will bear all expense to have same shipped to and from shipping point. He must be a very able man, as this field has never heard the pure gospel and there is going to be an awful fight when once started. Address G. W. Colson, General Manager of Gracemont Coal Company, Kittanning, Pa.

John D. Evans, 12 Broadway, Denver, Col., reports having received the following contributions for the South Sherman Street church of Christ. From the church at Dickson, Tenn., $100; church at Franklin, Tenn., $25; church at Kettle Mills, Tenn., $24.10—a total of $149.10. For these contributions the church in Denver is exceedingly thankful, and the members are hopeful that sufficient funds will soon be received to cancel the indebtedness.

From U. G. Wilkinson, Sulphur, Okla., July 7: "I am here at Sulphur, a health resort, and am drinking the water and under treatment of doctors, trying to get well. I am still improving, and am preaching some at night for the brethren here. I hope to be able to meet all my engagements this summer yet, and, so far as I can now know, will do so. There is a splendid band of brethren here, and they are so good to me. The Lord will bless them and all his faithful servants. Remember me in your prayers."

From R. D. Smith, Denton, Texas, July 7: "The meeting at Denton closed on Sunday night. There were thirty-two baptisms; one was reclaimed, and six were added to the congregation by membership. Tillet S. Tedlie, of Alba, conducted the singing. A number of brethren assisted in a public way. Among the many were W. J. McConnell, J. S. Darnall, D. S. Ligon, R. L. Whiteside, and R. A. McCurry. With all this good help and with the membership assisting faithfully, the results are only such as should be expected."

C. R. Rice commends the Gospel Advocate for fighting the modern religious errors of the present time. He says: "In many ways it is my ideal of what a paper should be. It is not popular and pleasing to antagonize anything. Gentleness is a fine virtue, but editors of religious journals dare not be gentler than Christ. Editors and preachers whose 'lips are lined with velvet' please not Christ. With sincere congratulations for your conduct of the past and heartiest well-wishes for the future, I remain yours in the faith"

We have recently printed the catalogue for 1920-1921 for the Freed-Hardeman College. We are gratified to note the progress that this institution is making, and bespeak for it continued success. All interested persons should write to Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn., for a copy of the new catalogue. Both Freed and Hardeman are energetic, efficient teachers. The McQuiddy Printing Company has been favored with the printing of this catalogue for about thirty-five years—a longer time than we have printed the catalogue of any other institution.

From E. D. Shelton, Box 700 Omar Avenue, Houston, Texas: "If you have relatives, friends, or acquaintances who have recently come to Houston and who may need to be reminded of their duties to God, write to me at once and give me their complete addresses. We (the Central church of Christ) meet and worship in the Banquet Hall of the City Auditorium, and we are anxious for any and all visitors and sojourners to meet with us. Services as follows: Bible classes Sunday at 10 A.M.; preaching and Lord's Supper at 11 A.M.; preaching at 8 P.M."

S. W. Womack, our worthy colored preacher in Nashville, has been sick for several months. He writes as follows: "Thanks to Saint Marys Church, by Brother T. Q. Martin and the old colored brother; the church at Christian Chapel, by Brother Johnson; the church at Lebanon, by Sister Vantrease; the church at Harris Chapel, by the brethren; the church at Richmond, by Sister Bash Flap; the church at Sugar Grove, Ky., by Sister Estella Sweatt and Santa Sweatt; Sister Johns, of Murfreesboro; Brethren A. M. Burton and A. B. Lipscomb; and Brother Cotton and the Bible class of the Twelfth Avenue church of Christ. My improvement is very slow, but I am thankful it is no worse. I am still trusting in the Lord."

William P. Walker, Clarksville, Tenn., writes: "The Montgomery County work is in a most excellent condition. S. F. Morrow and the Belmont Avenue Church, of Nashville, are responsible for the success of this work. The elders of the Oakland congregation, near Clarksville, heaving charge of the tent and are directing the county evangelistic work. Recently we purchased a new tent. Below is the list of congregations that cooperated in buying the tent: Rose Hill, Oakland, Jordan Springs, Oakwood, Dotsonville, New Providence, Dyer's Creek, Clarksville, Bumpus Mills, Southside, S. F. Morrow. Seven of these congregations are in Montgomery County, the others are in Stewart County. I will conduct the first meeting with the new tent at Indian Mound, Stewart County, beginning the first Sunday in July. F. P. Taylor will lead the song service. We expect to be busy with the tent all summer, taking the gospel where it has never been preached before. Remember our work in your prayers."

From Flavil Hall, Live Oak, Fla., July 10: "I am in a meeting with the Mount Olive congregation, near Live Oak, with very good interest. On the evening of July 4 I closed a meeting with the Midway congregation, near Lake Butler, Fla., with twenty-four baptized, among whom was Aunt Manda Thomas (colored), who is at least ninety-eight years old. Some say she is a centenarian. Her obedience and the obedience of Rants Thomas and wife (white), who care for her in her decrepitude, is a primary heaven to her in which to pass to the sorrowless and deathless heaven. next meeting is to be a missionary effort with a tent at Tyner, Tenn., beginning on the fourth Lord's day in July. There is no brother there to lead the service. So the two sisters (Sisters Major and Harris) worship faithfully in Bible study, fellowship, breaking bread, and prayers. They are resolute upon establishing a permanent congregation and building a house of worship there. To accomplish this work, they will have to have liberal help from the congregations. Any amount sent to Mrs. W. W. Major, Tyner, Tenn., will be rightly appropriated."

T. F. Dunn, of Hazlehurst, Miss., writes concerning the work in South Mississippi: "On June 26 we drove to Jackson to be with M. C. Cayce at an afternoon service. was the third trip there to see him during the five-weeks' The audience was not large, yet those who tent meeting. came were appreciative of the instruction given, which was very plain, simple, gospel preaching. During this time he baptized three men. The prospects look good, considering the fact that neither these people nor their ancestors for generations back have ever heard the simple teaching of the Bible. People of this State are indifferent toward attending church services, likely due to the fact that they have been hearing sectarian theology instead of the Bible. We have obtained a tent and have borrowed some chairs from Brother Cayce and also bought a few—seventy-eight in all-and will be able to begin a tent meeting on July 10. If we should need more chairs, we hope to be able to get them and continue our tent work on until late in the fall. There are scattered ones in Southern Mississippi, sometimes two families to the county, who are loyal Christians. Our greatest obstacle to overcome is the 'progressive' brethren. They take it on themselves to throw every obstacle in the way they possibly can to hinder the cause; and if some of our compromising brethren were to come in contact with them here as we do, we feel sure they would see the necessity of being a little more firm and frank against the progressive element. We hope those brethren who are assisting Brother Cayce will not become discouraged at the apparent slow growth."

Training Little Children

BY HENRY TURNER BAILEY

(Suggestions by mothers who have been kindergartners. Issued by The United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., and The National Kindergarten Association, New York, N. Y.)

The Children's Birthright.

All children ought to be familiar with the open country. They should know the joy of playing in healthful mud, of paddling in clean water, of hearing roosters call up the sun and birds sing praises to God for the new day.

They should have the vision of pure skies enriched at dawn and sunset with unspeakable glory; of dew-drenched mornings flashing with priceless gems; of grain fields and woodlands yielding to the feet of the wind; of the vast night sky "all throbbing and panting with stars."

They should feel the joy of seedtime and harvest, of dazzling summer noons, and of creaking, glittering winter nights.

They should live with flowers and butterflies, with the wild things that have made possible the world of fable.

They should experience the thrill of going barefoot; of being out in the rain without umbrellas and rubber coats and buckled overshoes; of riding a white birch; of sliding down pine boughs; of climbing ledges and tall trees; of diving head first into a transparent pool.

They ought to know the smell of wet earth; of newmown hay; of the blossoming wild grape and eglantine; of an apple orchard in May and of a pine forest in July; of the crushed leaves of wax myrtle, sweet fern, mint, and fir; of the breath of cattle; and of fog blown inland from the sea.

They should hear the answer the trees make to the rain and to the wind; the sound of rippling and falling water; the muffled roar of the sea in a storm, and its lisping and laughing and clapping of hands in a stiff breeze.

They should know the sound of the bees in a plum tree in May; of frogs in a bog in April; of grasshoppers along the roadsides in June; of crickets out in the dark in September.

They should hear a leafless ash hum, a pine tree sigh, old trees grean in the forest, and the floating ice in a brook making its incomparable music beneath the frozen crystal roof of some flooded glade.

They should have a chance to chase butterflies, to catch fish, to ride on a load of hay, to camp out, to cook over an open fire, to tramp through new country, and to sleep under the open sky.

They should have the fun of driving a horse, paddling a canoe, and sailing a boat, and of discovering that nature will honor the humblest seed they plant.

Things that children can do in cities are not to be compared with such country activities. Out of the country and its experiences has come and always will come the most stimulating and healthful art of the world. One cannot appreciate and enjoy to the full nature books, novels, histories, poems, pictures, or even musical compositions, who has not had in his youth the blessed contact with the world of nature.

I do not forget what cities have done for us, and always must do; but one can get all the best a city has to yield by visiting it, whereas one cannot reap all the harvests of the country except by living there in childhood; and I feel somehow that such a life in the country is the birthright of every child. There is truth in Cowper's statement that God made the country and man made the town.

I believe that every child of God has a right to see the country—the house his Heavenly Father made for him—unobstructed by brick walls, unspoiled by filth, and undimmed by smoke; and one of these days, somehow, all children born into the world will be given a chance to enjoy to the full their inspiring patrimony.

Living in the country in childhood, "the voice of the Lord God, walking in the garden in the cool of the day," is more likely to be heard; and, being heard by all, that voice will be answered more universally and with warmer love.

0 0 0

There is no reason why the flight of time should mean the fight of happiness. Each changing period of life, like each changing season, holds its own peculiar joys and beauties. Though the years take much away, they also have much to give us. How many of our fearful outlooks would grow bright if only we realized what we profess to believe—that the God of the past is also the God of the future! "He will never leave nor forsake?" Trust him!—T. H. Ibbott.

* * *

One morning little Mary was reading with her mother in the New Testament, and this was one of the verses of the chapter: "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." Stopping for a moment in the reading, the mother asked: "Don't you think it is very wonderful?" The child, looking surprised, replied in the negative. The mother, somewhat puzzled, repeated the question, to which the little daughter replied: "Why, no, mamma. It would be wonderful if it were anybody else; but it's just like God."—Selected.

* * *

How the Fledgling Learned to Fly.

A fledgling blown from out a tree, Upon the chill wet roadside lay, A soft brown ball, Quite frail and small. With hardly any strength at all To spread its wings and fly away.

A big man passing saw it there—
That little bird half dead with fright,
Which cocked its eye
In manner shy,
And tried so very hard to fly;
But vain were all attempts at flight.

So then the giant—such he seemed—Raised that wee birdling in his hand, Whose wild distress 'Neath his caress Was soothed to peace and trustfulness; It seemed his love to understand.

"O little bird," the big man said,
"Now you are warm and strong again,
Just try your wings,
For though frail things,
They'll stronger grow with journeyings!"
But that scared waif chirped "No!" quite plain.

At that, the wise and friendly man
Just tossed the fledgling far and high,
Whereat it flew
Without ado
In one straight line across the blue—
And that is how it learned to fly!
—L. C. Poole, in Our Dumb Animals.

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

S2.50 a year, in advance: to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is malled regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, $17-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertises; who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.

Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

The Christian's Relation to Carnal Warfare. BY J. C. M'Q.

The following article of "Daniel Quilp" is proof positive that some of the critics of brethren during and since the war were either prompted by a decided case of prejudice or wrote their criticism without knowing what or whom they were condemning, one or the other. "Daniel Quilp" is none other than I myself, J. C. McQuiddy, and every line of the article was written by me and published in the Gospel Advocate during the great war. Because I not only with prudence and entire Christian propriety refrained from indiscriminate preaching against war at a time when such preaching would have done no good, but with equal prudence and Christian propriety stood by the government and did everything I could conscientiously do to help it and its soldiers, I have been accused of favoring war. Such a conclusion not only does not follow, but it is perfectly absurd. I felt sure that if my critics could see without my signature to it what I myself said about war during the war, as well as since the war, they would indorse it. The facts show that I was correct in this.

I placed in the hands of Brother Lipscomb all that I had written on the subject of war from the year 1914 to 1918, inclusive. From my writings on the subject he collated (but did not write anything) a composite article, which was sent to the Gospel Herald with a note requesting that if the editor indorsed the article, he publish it either with or without comment. The article was published in the Gospel Herald of May 6, 1920, in the position of the leading or first editorial, without any adverse criticism, which gives it the full indorsement of that journal, which had severely criticized the editorial management of the Gospel Advocate for the course it pursued during the war. J. M. McCaleb recently did the same thing. The same article was sent to E. A. Elam with the request that he publish it either with or without comment. provided he considered it worthy of publication. He sent it in for publication without any criticism, showing that he indorsed its sentiment. I knew very well, however, that Brother Elam would indorse the sentiment of the article. for I had never understood him to criticize the position that I had taken on the subject of war. While we had differed on the subject of expediency, we had not differed as to the teaching of the Bible on that subject.

That they indorse in "Daniel Quilp" the identical thing they condemned in J. C. McQuiddy emphasizes the fact that brethren ought to know what they are condemning before they condemn it. The truth of the matter is that, so far as refraining from indiscriminate preaching against war during the war is concerned, my course was exactly that which my critics finally seemed glad and anxious to adopt. Although they were loud in their indiscriminate and unwise antiwar talk at the beginning, still, as soon as the government put into operation its military machinery to curb all unnecessary, unguarded, and hurtful talk with its yawning prisons ready to receive all violators of such regulations, they suddenly hushed up their antiwar talk and were in meek and instant subjection to "the powers that be." My course differed from that of my critics in that I not only adopted with them the same sensible negative line of procedure, so far as indiscriminate preaching against war was concerned, but I did all on the positive side that I could conscientiously do to stand by the government and help its soldiers in all legitimate ways. To give such help to suffering humanity is always right, whether in time of war or in time of peace.

This article is published simply that the full truth may be known, and not for the purpose of reviving any unpleasant things that occurred during the great war. The discussion of the war that has passed will be discontinued in these columns. As the war is over, its agitation should cease and Christians should go forward in the work of the Lord. Here is the article;

It will hardly be questioned that the spirit and genius of the Christian religion is against carnal warfare. Bible is so clear upon this point that it is only necessary quote some of the scripture teaching bearing on the subject. In the Sermon on the Mount the Savior declares: Ye have heard that it was said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: but I say unto you, Resist not him that is evil: but whosoever smiteth thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also. And if any man would go to law with thee, and take away thy coat, let him have thy cloak also. And whosoever shall compel thee to go one mile, go with him two." (Matt. 5: 38-41.) He also says: "Ye have heard that it was said, Thou shalt love thy neighbor, and hate thine enemy: but I say unto you, Love and pray for them that persecute you." your enemies. (Verses 43, 44.)

When a Christian lays aside the sword of the Spirit and engages in carnal warfare, he cannot conscientiously claim to be following the meek and lowly Jesus. Christ suffered and died, resisting not evil, and thus left us an example that we should walk in his steps. "For this is acceptable, if for conscience toward God a man endureth griefs, suffering wrongfully. For what glory is it, if, when you sin, and are buffeted for it, ye shall take it patiently? but if, when ye do well, and suffer for it, ye shall take it patiently, this is acceptable with God. For hereunto were ye called: because Christ also suffered for you, leaving you an example, that ye should follow his steps; who did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth: who, when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously: who his own self bare our sins in his body upon the tree, that we, having died unto sins, might live unto righteousness; by whose stripes ye were healed." (1 Pet. 2: 19-24.)

It is not possible for a man to adopt two standards of morality, one for his church life and one for his political life. "No man can serve two masters: for either he will hate the one, and love the other; or else he will hold to one, and despise the other." (Matt. 6: 24.) As Christ's kingdom is not of this world, and as the faithful Christian devotes all his time and energies to the service of the Master, he has no time left for serving the kingdom of this world

It should go without saying that all Christians are unalterably opposed to war. The religion of Jesus Christ is one of peace and not of carnal warfare. Christians should love and pray for their enemies. They are to do good for evil and bless those who persecute them. They are to learn war no more. While God may bring good out of evil and may overrule wars for his own honor and glory, yet he does this while teaching Christians not to fight. The man who has imbibed this spirit of the Christ will never advocate bloody wars. He will not be a generator of strife, but will counsel peace.

War should be discouraged by all. The effect of war is most appalling. In war men learn to hate and defy even the authority of Jehovah. They come to glory in the destruction of their fellow beings. All the good suffer from war. The government, the family, and the church all suffer from it.

Christians should neither write nor do anything that will give encouragement to war. "Avenge not yourselves, beloved, but give place unto the wrath of God: for it is written, Vengeance belongeth unto me; I will recompense, saith the Lord. But if thine enemy hunger, feed him; if he thirst, give him to drink: for in so doing thou shalt heap coals of fire upon his head. Be not overcome of evil, but overcome evil with good." (Rom. 12: 19-21.)

In disarming Peter, Christ disarmed all his true and

In disarming Peter, Christ disarmed all his true and tried soldiers. But, deceived by Satan, world rulers chose to deluge the world in blood and tears, to send millions to a premature grave, to render millions more penniless and homeless, and to make unnumbered widows and orphans.

Stebbins says: "Give me the money that has been spent in war, and I will purchase every foot of land upon the globe. I will clothe every man, woman, and child in an attire of which kings and queens might be proud. I will build a schoolhouse on every hillside and in every valley over the earth. I will build an academy in every town and endow it, a college in every State and fill it with able professors. I will crown every hill with a place of worship, consecrated to the promulgation of the gospel of peace. I will support in every pulpit an able teacher of righteousness, so that on every Sunday morning the chimes on one hill should answer to the chimes on another around the earth's wide circumference, and the voice of prayer and the song of praise should ascend like a universal hosannah to heaven."

How fearful, awful, and rapid is the work of sin! We should watch and pray that Satan may not also beguile us and lead us into sin's deadly work.

The scriptures that teach us not to fight are as forceful against fighting a war of defense as fighting a war of offense. As Christians, we must rely upon God for protection, and not man, as "no man can serve two masters." Christian is to serve Christ rather than men. Christ teaches him not to resist evil, in no case can he fight, but must put his trust in Christ for protection, appreciating the promise that Christ has assured him: "I will be with you always, even unto the end of the world." The man who would fight against a foreigner invading our country is not conscientiously opposed to fighting. It goes without saying that a man may love his country, may be patriotic and ready to uphold the laws of his country in so far as he can conscientiously do so, without violation of any laws of God. It is also clearly evident that the truly conscientious man is ready to help in any way that he can to alleviate the terrible sufferings brought on the people by heartless and cruel war. He is ready to give his time. to give of his means, and to use his energies in helping to relieve the suffering. As he is in no way responsible for the war, he is ready to do all within his power to help feed the millions of people who are threatened with starvation on account of the war, and also to relieve the sufferings of those wounded in the war.—Daniel Quilp, Gainesboro, Tenn., in Gospel Herald.

A Challenge for Discussion.

BY F. W. SMITH.

The Christian Standard has issued a challenge to the "Constituent Boards of the United Society" to defend their course in the management of the matters intrusted to them. The Standard's challenge is couched in the following words:

The Standard offers equality of space to any champions societies may name to discuss openly and freely, in interest of general enlightment, policies which are opposed by a large number of brethren.

A very courteous, but plain and vigorous, letter is addressed to "each of the six constituent boards of the United Christian Missionary Society," setting forth reasons for the challenge issued. The propositions for discussion are thus formulated:

That the constituent boards of the United Christian Missionary Society were guilty of a gross imposition when they assumed ecclesiastical character to commit the independent churches of Christ to membership, as a body, in an association of denominations (sects) only.

That the constituent boards of the United Christian Missionary Society compromised the Restoration plea when they attempted to enroll churches of Christ in the Interchurch combination as a "denomination" (i. e., sect).

That the constituent boards of the United Christian Missionary Society betrayed the cause of primitive Christianity when they lent their resources and expended trust funds to further a movement intended to raise $324,000,000 for the promotion of sectarian creeds, and only $12,000,000 for "the creed that needs no revision."

That the constituent boards of the United Christian Missionary Society were false to their trust when they hazarded $600,000 of trust funds, and untold expenses, on the slender chance of obtaining the subscription of less than $1,500,000 in five installments from the non-Christian public.

That the constituent boards of the United Christian Missionary Society violated the plain dictates of business morality when they joined in soliciting ministers of the gospel to make secret reports on the financial standing of the church membership.

That the contributions of the membership to the funds of the constituent boards of the United Society cannot be used to liquidate the deficits of the Interchurch Movement without misappropriation of funds.

That, by their indorsement of the Association for the Promotion of Christian Unity, through its inclusion in the United Budget, the constituent boards of the United Christian Missionary Society have made themselves participants in the policy and misrepresentations of that association.

That, through the indorsement of the Board of Education, by the inclusion of said board in the United Budget, the constituent boards of the United Christian Missionary Society have lent encouragement to unscriptural and antiscriptural teaching in our colleges.

This is given to the readers of the Gospel Advocate that they may be informed as to what is going on within the circle of our "progressive" brethren, and also as a warning against departures from the simplicity of New Testament teaching. No one within the ranks of the society brethren thirty years ago, or even twenty years ago, would have dreamed that the time would ever come when the Christian Standard would issue such a challenge to society managers. But there were any number of brethren and not a few papers, the Gospel Advocate among the number, that freely predicted what has come to pass with those who organized a human institution that supplanted the divine. Those opposed to such an arrangement were termed "narrow," "old fogy," and "opposed to progress," and were even charged with being "opposed to missionary work." The society was acclaimed the very acme of wisdom, the embodiment of "sanctified common sense," that would result in taking the world for Christ. The state of affairs among the society brethren to-day almost beggars description. There are "all sorts of men teaching all sorts of doctrine," some advocating "open membership" (that is, receiving into fellowship people who have not been baptized), some denying the divine inspiration of the Bible, some eliminating all miracles from the Bible, some denying the divinity of Clrist, and many espousing the "Interchurch World Movenent." Now it comes to pass that those in control of the United Society are charged with betraying the churches and diverting large sums of money contributed by the churches into wrong channels. Colleges which have been under the control and patronage of society brethren lave become honeycombed with infidelity, and the end is no; yet.

The Christian Standard has for some time seen the great danger threatening "our cause" and has for some time been waging a vigorous fight against the oncoming foe. But, to my mind, it has been fighting a losing battle, for the simple reason that it is trying to reform a thing from which it should cut loose entirely and swing back to the New Testament platform. If the Campbells and their colaborers had attempted to reform the existing sects of their day, their own work would have resulted in another sect. They were wise enough to see the failure of Luther, Calvin, and Wesley in their efforts to get back to the Bible, because they undertook to reform the religious parties of their day, succeeding only in founding new sects. The Christian Standard can never reform the societies by offering something else not found in the word of God as a substitute. No matter what kind of an arrangement it may propose for the prepagation of religious truth, for the spread of the gospel, other than that found in the New Testament, it will degenerate into something like that which it is now fighting, or something worse, if possible. The Standard has a large constituency, is ably edited, and, in fact, has a number of the best writers of any paper that comes to this office. But it is struggling against the inevitable, and the only way to free itself from the octopus is to repudiate it outright, wash its hands of the whole thing, and return to the primitive order of things. This, of course, would be a little humiliating, but the repentance and reformation upon the part of the Standard would give it renewed strength and equip it for the greatest work of its life. There are in almost all the churches that have not cooperated with the societies men and women who "long for the fleshpots of Egypt," desiring to go the way of the society brethren, but they do not realize into what they would go; hence, to all such, a careful reading of the foregoing is requested.

The Proof of the Resurrection.

Merely to speculate about a future life seems a terrible trifling with human hearts. Those who feel their hearts bound up now as much as ever with the hearts of those who are entered into rest cannot argue about immortality. That is a frightful insult to a heart that bleeds at the thought of what it has lost. The church does not argue. To those who are hungry to know their dead again, she has no controversy, no syllogisms, no hair-drawn arguments, no finespun probabilities. She points to her Lord, who rose from the grave, appeared among his disciples, tarried with them forty days instructing them in the affairs of his kingdom, and then "while they beheld was taken up, and a cloud received him out of their sight." We need to be reasonably assured of the fact of Christ's resurrection, and we do believe that it is as certainly and undeniably established as any event ever recorded in history; but being sure of that, there are for us no more arguments. When we know this, we know all the rest.-Fiske.

All dreams have an important meaning. They prove that the soul is comparatively independent of the body. It is capable of proof that God does sometimes appear in our day in dreams to warn, to convert, to save men. All dreams that make you better are from God.—Talmage.

SELECTIONS BY THE EDITOR

Though we should be grateful for good houses, there is no house like God's out-of-doors.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

0 0 0

To smile at the jest which plants a thorn in another's breast is to become a principal in the mischief.—Sheridan.

0 0 0

The true use of a man's possessions is to help his work, and the best end of all his work is to show us what he is. The noblest workers of our world bequeath us nothing so great as the image of themselves.—James Martineau.

0 0 0

Be noble, and the nobleness that lies In other men, sleeping, but never dead, Will rise in majesty to meet thine own; Then shalt thou see it gleam in many eyes, Then will pure light about thy way be shed.

—Lowell.

You will find it less easy to uproot faults than to choke them by gaining virtues. Do not think of your faults; still less of others' faults. In every person who comes near you look for what is good and strong; honor that; rejoice in it; as you can, try to imitate it, and your faults will drop off, like dead leaves, when their time comes.—Ruskin.

0 0 0

Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul,
As the swift scasons roll!
Leave thy low-vaulted past!
Let each new temple, nobler than the last,
Shut thee from heaven with a dome more vast,
Till thou at length art free,
Leaving thine outgrown shell by life's unresting sea.
—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

$ $ $

The day returns and brings us the petty round of irritating concerns and duties. Help us to play the man; help us to perform them with laughter and kind faces; let cheerfulness abound with industry. Give us to go blithely on our business all this day, bring us to our resting beds weary and content and undishonored; and grant us in the end the gift of sleep. Amen.—Robert Louis Stevenson.

0 0 0

The power that could change Saul of Tarsus into Paul the apostle; that could plant and maintain flourishing Christian churches in such corrupt heathen cities as Corinth, Ephesus, and Rome; that could resurrect the Church of the Reformation from the grave of the Dark Ages and the corruptions of Rome; that is achieving such glorious conquests to-day, not simply in heathen lands, is equal to any emergency, any work.—J. M. Sherwood.

$ $ $

In a consecrated soul, meekness and quietness of spirit become in time the characteristics of the daily life. A submissive acceptance of the will of God, as it comes in the hourly events of each day, is manifested; pliability in the hands of God to do or to suffer all the good pleasure of his will; sweetness under provocation; calmness in the midst of turmoil and bustle; a yielding to the wishes of others and an insensibility to slights and affronts; absence of worry or anxiety; deliverance from care and fear—all these and many other similar graces are invariably found to be the natural outward development of that inward life which is hid with Christ in God.—Selected.

CURRENT THOUGHT

Premillennialism vs. Postmillennialism.

It is a premillennialism against postmillennialism. is the issue which Dr. Haldeman, of New York City, sees in the Interchurch World Movement. This he sets forth in a tract which he has issued since his sermon to which we referred last week, a copy of which Brother Boaz kindly sends us. His tract occupies fifty-three pages. Its substance may be stated in as many words. It is stated in the The Interchurch World Movement, first sentence above. The Interchurch World Movement, he says, is based on the absurd and antiscriptural theory that Christ's commission to go "into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature" can be carried out in this dispensation, before Christ's second coming, in his bodily presence, to go with them. The world is getting worse all the while, and cannot help itself, till Christ comes in bodily form, which he thinks is imminent. Mean-The world is getting while we can only watch and wait. The Doctor objects to the program of this modern movement on the ground that it proposes "to promote education with Christian ideals." "The church," our doctor says, "is not here to educate men in the wisdom, knowledge, and science of the world, seeking to get into this teaching the flavor of Christian sentiment and Ideals." It also charges this movement with denying the power and efficiency of the cross. He is bitter in his denunciation of all efforts to create a Christian civilization or to make a better society. That is no part of the mission of the church. This will suffice to show that, however sincere this brother may be, he is obsessed by certain premillennial theories that render his criticisms powerless with those who believe that the gospel is the power of God unto salvation now; because the Holy Spirit came after Christ's ascension to heaven, to help his disciples preach the gospel. By his guidance and power he represents Christ in the work of his church, which is to preach his gospel to the whole creation, till he come again in glory, without a sin offering, to receive and reward his true followers. Any theory that robs the church of its sense of responsibility to organize its forces for aggressive work in Christianizing the world now, in this age, is a calamity to be regretted and an error to be resisted .- J. H. Garrison, in Christian-Evangelist.

I most heartily agree with the editor emeritus of the Christian-Evangelist that the doctrine that robs the church of its power and of a sense of its responsibility should be resisted. This is no new doctrine, as it disturbed the first church into which it was introduced, the church at Thessalonica, and as Paul wrote his second letter to correct the erroneous impression that some of the Thessalonians had received from his first letter. Certainly this is not a personal matter with Editor Garrison; neither is it personal with any who are opposing it, only as their interest in maintaining the truth of Christ is personal. Every man who receives the truth is under obligation to contend for it, and at the judgment it will not be well with the man who has been too cowardly and timid to speak out for the truth when men have sought to belittle the work of the church of God. I am not set for the defense of the Interchurch World Movement, but that movement is right in advocating that the gospel should be preached to every creature in the present dispensation,

* * *

Preaching.

It is futile to say that preaching is futile. Only a scoffer could say that; only the ignorant and thoughtless believe it. As far back as history leads us we see that preaching has been the voice that aroused, the fire that cleansed, the torch that guided, the power that girded, the revelation that informed, the energy that renewed, the urge that impelled, and the manna that fed the people.

A million flaming tongues prove it every Lord's day. They kindle the fire that cannot be put out. They plead the cause of justice. They rebuke arrogant sin. They confuse tyrant and schemer. They keep the people alive intellectually. They foster the heart life of the nation. They feed the fire of liberty. They keep people conscious of their spiritual nature and cause them to strive to live forever.

Without preaching, the human race would die if insanity, or commit suicide on account its disappointment with life, or rot by the accumulated poison of stagiation. If you want to see pandemonium turned loose—ever more than it is—on earth to-day, stop the voice in the pulpit. Men would eat each other up like the savage of the cave or the monsters of the jungle.—Christian-Evangelist.

Christ would not have commanded his apostles to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature had preaching not been a very effective way of arcusing the people to a greater interest in that which is pure and good, H. Clay Trumbull says, in "Yale Lectures on the Sunday School" (page 67): "Every great reform, in the church or in nominally religious communities, since the days of John the Baptist and of Peter, has been brought about by preaching. Christians have been aroused from their sloth and sinners have been startled in and from their sins by the clarion voice of the herald-preacher. Preaching has been, is, and is to be, the preëminent agency for the warning and calling of sinners and for the exhorting and directing of the saints." It was by preaching that Luther rescued the Bible from its hiding place where it had been chained by Roman Catholicism as a felon to a post. It was by preaching that Peter, on the day of Pentecost, convicted thousands of their sins and led them to cry out: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" It was by preaching that Philip, in Samaria, convinced many men and women of the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. The need of the hour is men who are in love with the truth and who have sufficient integrity and courage to preclaim it in the face of a frowning world. "For seeing that in the wisdom of God the world through its wisdom knew not God, it was God's good pleasure through the foolishness of the preaching to save them that believe," (1 Cor. 1: 21.) We need men who are satisfied with the truth as it is, without addition or subtraction. Preachers must hold fast the pattern of sound words, must speak as the oracles of God speak, and must know only Christ, and him crucified. There is a demand for such preaching. On this subject the Christian-Evangelist speaks as follows:

If we only recognized it, the pulpit has the power to say, "Peace, be still," and hush into quiet all the carking unrest of the world. People are restless because they cannot have what their souls crave. One drop of heaven that reaches the heart satisfies and gives rest. The preacher alone has the magic word that can satisfy the human heart.

The thing preaching gives is what the heart of humanity hungers for, though not every one is able to tell why he hungers. Sometimes the plain, humble people of the world know. Mrs. H. B. Brown, in making a report on the Sheffield Social Service work of the Independence Boulevard Church, said at the Missouri State Convention that she told the poor people of the district they might have some kind of entertainment and asked them what they wanted. A woman replied: "Mrs. Brown, do you reckon we could have preaching?" Mrs. Brown added the comment: "That's what they're hungry for."

All the world is mirrored in that incident. "Do you reckon we could have preaching?" is its inarticulate voice, its unuttered cry, its dumb prayer.

If the preachers will preach, they can turn the world right side up, calm the people, and fill them with happiness.

Preaching is more worth while than anything else in the world to day.

000

Discontent may be an impulse of evil and may be a gift divine. Delve as you will in the muck of evil, search amid the amusement life of vulgar or refined art, or seek as you will in the love of the purest friend God ever gave, closest though this is to God and his life, yet not there may you stop; for never will that discontent God placed within you be answered or its demands fulfilled until God carries within you the fountain of life eternal.—Selected.

SAID IN PARAGRAPHS By JAMES A. ALLEN.

It is said that the reason a negro never has appendicitis is that he never has the money.

Little girls dancing around the parlor floor to the jazz of a victrola are making a bad start for a climb to glory.

Little girls dancing around the parlor floor to the twitteeti-dee of a victrola are making a bad start for a climb to glory.

It is said that Henry Clay, who was chosen chairman of the board of moderators of the Campbell and Rice debate, was immersed after hearing the debate.

When the celebrated Lyman Beecher asked Alexander Campbell how he possessed himself of such stores of methodized knowledge, he replied: "By studying sixteen hours per day."

The new reunion plan for "The United States of Methodism" calls for six regional conferences. Colored Methodism makes a seventh "region." The religious talk of today does not have a New Testament sound.

The man who is waiting to do some big thing that will dazzle the world, while refusing to do the little things in front of his door, of which the big things consist, forgets that little grains of dirt make all the land there is in two hemispheres.

There is already a growing suspicion that the "Interchurch" movement will take on so many duties and powers that it will become a "superchurch" and usurp denominational rights and liberties. There is plenty of room for such a suspicion.

It used to be a standing habit with John D. to spread the news of a big donation to some so-called "philanthropic institution" over the front page of the papers and then creep up a cent on the price of gas. A very handsome investment, and no bread on the waters, either.

Theodore Roosevelt said that he would consider it an everlasting disgrace if any of his sons failed to work hard in some honest occupation for a livellhood. His eldest son, after completing college, went to work in a mill, with blouse and tin dinner pall, just like any other workman, and later went out to sell carpets.

The "Men and Millions Movement" had barely died down before those professional promoters were on deck with a project for an "Interchurch World Movement." And some of our society brethren, like the Israelites who wanted a king to be like other people, have joined the "movement." One of their papers says: "The proposed budget of sixty million dollars for the Disciples of Christ and the twelve-million-dollar budget for this first year are conservative in comparison with the plans and budgets of other Protestant communions in America." This whole business may be "conservative in comparison" enough, but the fact remains that it is not the way the early Christians did.

When you hear a man express a doubt about anything found in the Bible, take a look at him and see if his ears don't sit close to the top of his head. Men of brains, both in the church and out of it, instinctively recognize divinity in the Bible and find a satisfying pleasure in reading it. Napoleon, the greatest intellectual giant modern politics ever produced, though disgusted with the mummeries of the Catholic Church, read the Sermon on the Mount over and over again and was utterly charmed with its sublimity. He said: "I know men, and I tell you that Jesus Christ was not a man." "Very well," said he to General Bertrand, "If you cannot see that Jesus Christ is God, then I did wrong to make you a general."

Sermons and Sermon Material.

(The titles appear under the authors' names

(The titles appear under the authors' names,)
AFERNETHY, ARTHUR TALMAGE. "Center Shots at Sin"$1.50
ADCOCK, ADAM K. "The Glorious Gospel"1.00
Book, W. H. "Columbus Tabernacle Sermons," two volumes; per Volume
BOTELER, MATTLE M. "Lights on Scripture Truths"
"Sermon Notes from the Ministry of Jesus" 1.25 Brandt John L.
"Soul-Saving Revival Sermons" 1.00 BROWN, WILL H.
"Illustrative Incidents for Public Speakers" 1.50 "Patriotic Illustrations for Public Speakers" 1.50 "Stories of the Great War for Public Speakers" 1.50 "Wit and Humor for Public Speakers" 1.50
COOMES, J. V. "The Christ of the Church"
Darsie, George. "Before the Throne"
DUTT, MEADE E. "Jesus Christ in Human Experience" 1.50
ERRETT, ISAAC. "Evenings with the Bible," three volumes; per volume 1.00 "Bible Readings," two volumes; per volume 1.50 "The Querists' Drawer" 1.50
FARIS, JOHN T. "How It Was Done in Harmony" 1.00
Lord, J. A. "On the Lord's Day"
McGarvey, J. W.
"Biblical Criticism"
"Sermons" 1.25 "New Commentary on Acts" 1.50 "Commentary on Matthew and Mark 1.50 McGarvey-Pendleton. "Commentary on Thessalonians, Corinthians, Galatians, and Romans
MEACHAM, EDGAR JONES, "Training to Teach"
MOFFETT, ROBERT. "Seeking the Old Paths"
PITTMAN, J. C. FERDINAND. "Bible Truths Illustrated"
RUTLEDGE, GEORGE F. "Pushing the World Along"
SWEENEY, Z. T. "The Spirit and the Word"
Updike's Sermons" 1.25
Wilson, Louis C. "Twentieth Century Sermons and Addresses" 1.50
Zollars, E. V. "Baccalaureate and Convocation Sermons" 1.75 "The Commission Executed" 1.25
Send all orders to the McQuiddy Printing Company, 317- 319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

"Guard me when I am off guard," prayed one the other day. It was a wise prayer; for it is not the danger against which we have fortified ourselves, the temptations which we know and are watching, which are so likely to compass a fall as some unthought-of point where no peril was suspected.—J. R. Miller.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. Hall

Great and Good Men.

Brethren J. N. Armstrong and L. K. Harding's recent stay in Atlanta greatly helped the work here. The four Lord's days they were with us they alternated in speaking, in the forenoon, at South Pryor Street and West End Avenue congregations. These addresses greatly strengthened and helped the faithful at these two places. One Lord's-day afternoon Brother Armstrong spoke at a union service at East Point. For nineteen nights he spoke at the tent in the Inman Park section of our city, where we had never before made an effort to conduct a meeting. Brother Harding led the singing, and it is needless to say it was well done. It was not my pleasure to be here much of the time during this revival, as my work in Alabama kept me away; but from what I heard and the reports of those who were at every service, great good was accomplished. Brother Armstrong stays with the Book and presents the unadulterated teaching of our Lord in a most effective way. The same can be said of L. K. Harding, who has developed into as great a preacher as he has ever been a leader of those who preach the word in song. These are great and good men who elevate and lift up the faithful wherever they go.

Brethren Armstrong and Harding's coming to this city was principally arranged by Dr. C. H. Paine, one of the elders of the South Pryor Street Church. He married the youngest daughter of Brother J. A. Harding, and Brother Armstrong married the oldest daughter; so along with the meeting was the family reunion. Brother Paine met practically all the expense of the meeting, and a greater gift he could not have made to the work in this city. Many heard the plea for the plain, simple teaching of our Lord who had never heard it before.

At this writing Brother Morgan H. Carter is in this city seeing his many friends. He has just closed a two-weeks' revival at Macon, with four baptized, one from the Baptists, and the church greatly strengthened. The leaders of the Hardie's Chapel congregation cheered him one night with their presence while he was at Macon. He labored at Macon for about three years, and it was out of his untiring efforts that the work there was so soon placed on a self-sustaining basis. Brother Carter is loved by all who really know him. His whole life is a plea for nothing but the teaching of our Lord from the pulpit, and this teaching lived out fully in our everyday life. We need more such men. He leaves us to-morrow (July 8) for New York, where he is to join Brother J. M. McKee and wife in an effort to plant the cause of Christ firmly in that great city. We greatly love Brother McKee and wife and their daughter, Artie, who is now married and also lives in New York and will help with the work. Brother McKee was once an elder of the South Pryor Street congregation, of this city. I remember with no little pleasure baptizing him, his wife, only daughter, and youngest son. The latter, we firmly believe, is now waiting for us "over there." Brother Carter makes a special request that the brethren remember him in their prayers.

Brother S. P. Pittman is in the last week of an interesting revival at East Point, with four additions to date (July 7). It was my pleasure to hear him last night in his plea for man's "turning and becoming as a little child" in order to enter the kingdom of heaven. It was a most timely lesson and well presented. I heartily appreciated the many fine things he said—first, because they were scriptural, and, second, because Pittman so well lives what he teaches.

Think About This.

In a letter recently received from a good brother, he has the following to say:

I wish you would read these two letters from Brother—. He is anxious for something to be done to insure the wealth of our brethren for the prosecution of the Lord's work after the testator is dead. This same situation has confronted me a number of times, and I believe a few of us should get together and try to devise some plan so that it may encourage brethren with means to leave their property for the benefit of the church.

Personally, I would not be adverse to the formation of a mission corporation of some kind, to be composed of three or five representative brethren, legally incorporated, with a self-perpetuating organization to take over these estates.

I tried to get Brother Harding, when he was at Bowling Green, to think out and perfect such an arrangement, but his one objection to it was that it would be unscriptural. Technically, it would be unscriptural; but on the ground of Paul's admonition that "all things be done decently and in order," we might have room for proposing such a plan, so that our brethren may know that their property would be taken care of and administered according to their wills.

In reply to this, I submitted the following:

I hardly know how to help you, just now, in perfecting a plan such as you suggest. I feel as did Brother Harding, of whom you write—viz, it would be unscriptural.

I will gladly join you in the following:

1. Teach the brethren that it is their duty, during their lifetime, to spend what the Lord has given them for the furtherance of the cause of Christ. It is downright selfishness that causes them to want this put off till they are dead. They want to hold on to it so long as life is in them, and when they are dead and cannot possibly use this world's goods, then gladly they will give it all to the Lord. Why not do as our beloved D. Lipscomb did—viz., do this while living? Much teaching needs to be done along this line. I have my serious doubts about God's accepting gifts from people who wait till death to turn it loose.

2. Every member, as a rule, is supposed to be identified with some local congregation. Why not insist that brethren who have gifts that they wish to be handled after their death, have it attended to by their home church? This is what a good brother did at Los Angeles, Cal., some years ago, and I am sure it will be handled better than any other concern that we could organize would handle it. It is easy to stay on safe ground—easier than it is to become unscriptural, if we are trying hard enough to be right. The many false movements that have come into existence, come, as a rule, because we are not doing the things God would have us to do.

The above is given to our readers for their thoughtful consideration and to be used as the occasion of doing more of the teaching I think should be done. I would gladly give the brother's name who made the suggestion were it not for the fact that sometimes we have among us brethren who are void of the love of God, and if some one makes a suggestion that has the shadow of unsoundness about it, they make a mountain out of it and strive to make the impression that the brother is really dangerous. It is right to make suggestions and study them out.

But I am intensely interested in having the brethren everywhere taught the necessity of their using, while living, what they have of this world's goods. This is much better than leaving it with the elders of the home church to use. Just recently a good brother was telling me of a congregation which had some eight or ten thousand dollars left to it, to be used by it for the furtherance of the cause of Christ, and he said it had actually injured the cause. Not because it is wrong to so leave money, but because the sinful elders allowed the income from this fund to meet current expenses, and the church did practically nothing in the way of giving. But a brother who has much of this world's goods might be called away by death right in the midst of his righteously using what he has; hence the necessity of some arrangements being made for having his wishes carried out after death. Let the home church do this, and let brethren who leave such in the hands of the church so make their wills that it cannot be used in a way to encourage neglect of giving on the part of any one.

AT THIS SEASON LOSS OF APPETITE

Is very common. In many cases it is due to impure blood, which cannot give the digestive organs the stimulus necessary for the proper performance of their functions.

Thousands know by experience that Hood's Sarsaparilla restores appetite and would advise you to give it a trial this season. It originated in the successful prescription of a famous physician. Get it today.

a famous physician. Get it today. Take Hood's Pills if you happen to need a laxative—they don't gripe.

Stop Itching

Skins with Tetterine

60c. at your druggist's or from SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

CHURCH NEWS

Arkansas.

Alma, July 5.—We are here in the midst of a meeting which is being well attended, with splendid interest. There have been two additions to date. We will continue until next Sunday night.—J. A. Cullum.

Hatfield, July 5.—The meeting at Hatfield continues, with fine interest and large crowds. There have been five baptisms. I have time for some meetings in Tennessee in October. Address me at Ben Franklin, Texas.—C. H. Smithson.

Fort Smith, July 5.—I began my work with the Park Hill Church yesterday, preaching at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M. Our zeal for the cause is increasing, and all seem interested in the work. May Jehovah bless us in our efforts to serve him and extend his kingdom.—L. H. Knight.

District of Columbia.

Washington, June 30.—Brother I. C. Hoskins, of Martin, Tenn., was with us last Sunday, and preached two excellent sermons and baptized his niece. We shall always be glad to have Brother Hoskins. We are working and praying that God may bless the work in this city and firmly establish it. We need your prayers and substantial help to pay for and seat the house of worship. Let the churches everywhere set apart one day in July, and fast and pray, and send a liberal offering on that day. Let the day be the fourth Lord's day in July. Please announce it one week ahead, and pray for this work, and then give as you pray.—W. S. Long.

Mississippi.

Belmont, July 8.—It was my pleasure to visit and preach for the faithful at Bear Creek, Ala., last Lord's day. This is one of the oldest congregations in the State. It was planted more than forty years ago. This congregation supported me in a mission meeting at Hackleburg, Ala., several years ago, which resulted in a good congregation being established in one of the most prejudiced towns in Alabama, I am to do some mission work near Horse Cave, Ky., the first of September, and could give the whole month to work in that part or en route from my home to Kentucky.—Frank Baker.

Missouri.

Springfield, July 2.—I closed a meeting at Antioch, near Dunnegan, Cedar County, on June 5. Set a congregation to meeting that had been off duty for several years. I will work with them next winter. I began a meeting at Turner and Ramsey Streets, this city, on June 13, which I shall continue till next Sunday night. Seven additions to date. With Charles F. Hardin as song leader, I will begin a three-weeks' effort at Kennett on July 10. Through calling off a meeting at Sedalla, I have the last three weeks in November open, and would be glad to go where the brethren need me.—M. S. Mason.

North Carolina.

Newport, July 5.—At the earnest solicitation of two brothers and their wives, I left home (Largo, Fla.) last Thursday for a meeting at this place. The meeting began yesterday morning in a combination schoolhouse and meetinghouse. We had fine crowds morning and evening. The community is composed of Freewill and Primitive Baptists, with the Freewills predominating. I do not know how long the meeting will last. I am preacher, prayer, song leader, and janitor. My health is awfully poor, but I will stay with it as long as interest, health, and finances will permit.—W. A. Cameron.

Tennessee.

Indian Mound, July 6.—Brother F. P. Taylor and I began a tent meeting at this place last Sunday morning. Large audiences have attended the services and much interest is being aroused. This tent was purchased by the churches of Christ of Montgomery County for mission work.—William P. Walker.

Texas.

Nash, July 5.—Because of some little misunderstanding in arranging my meetings for the summer, I had no meeting for the first of July. So I am now at Nash, where I preached yesterday morning; but as the Methodists are in a meeting here. I went over to Eylau and preached last night to a good hearing. These two points are very weak in numbers. But when I have no engagement, I do not wait till some strong church calls me, but go to some weak church or mission point and help build up the cause as best I can at my own charges. I am to begin a meeting at Havana, Ark., on July 17.—D. S. Ligon.

Anybody can Make

ICE CREAM

There is a great deal of satisfaction in making your own ice cream and having it just as you want it. This has been almost impossible because of the difficulty and the high cost.

Now, by using Jell-O Ice Cream Powder, anybody can make ice cream easily and cheaply with perfect success. No eggs or sugar needed.

Five flavors of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder: Vanilla,
Strawberry,
Lemon,
Chocolate,
Unflavored.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY Le Roy, N. Y.

WOMEN OF MIDDLE AGE

May Pass the Critical Period Safely and Comfortably by Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

Summit, N. J.—'I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound during Change of Life and I think it is a good remedy in such a condition. I could not digest my food not digest my food and had much pain and burning in my stomach after meals. I could not sleep, had backache, and worst of all werethe hot flashes. I saw in the papers were the hot flashes. I saw in the papers a bout Vegetable Compound so I tried it. Now I feel all right and can work better. You have my permission to publish this letter."

—Victoria Koppl., 21 Oak Ridge Ave.,

- VICTORIA KOPPI, 21 Oak Ridge Ave., Summit, N. J.

If you have warning symptoms such as a sense of suffocation, hot flashes, headaches, backache, dread of impending evil, timidity, sounds in the ears, palpitation of the heart, sparks before the eyes, irregularities, constipation, variable appetite, weakness, inquietted, and digranges, and a bottle. inquietude, and dizziness, get a bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and begin taking the medicine at once. We know it will help you as it did Mrs. Koppl.

FRECK

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling asianned of your freedles, as Olitine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an onnee of Othine—double strength—from your drugglat, and apply a little of it night and morning said you should soon see that even the worst treches have beam to disappear, while the lighter mass have vanished entirely. It is selfound that more than one conce is needed to completely clear the situ and gain as beautiful clear completely clear the situ and gain as beautiful clear completely.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to zemove freekles.

"Diamond Dyes" Are Guaranteed

Colors never Streak, Run, Fade or have "Dyed" Look

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" con-Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist has color card.

has color card.

Who Is To Blame?

BY J. J. VANHOUTIN.

If a child in play does wrong toward its playmate, he will usually try to lay the blame upon some one, saying; "He made me do so." If a man gets into a racket with others, he will likely say: "Well, had it not been for him, there would not have been any trouble, and he is to blame for it." On this same theory about every wrongdoer tries to shield himself of any blame. Adam did avrong, and tried to shield himself by throwing the blame upon his wife; but he knew better, and he did the wrong willfully. Eve did wrong, and tried to place the blame upon her traducer. Eve was honestly deceived, but her honesty could not make her disobedience right; and here is where and how Satan became the author of death. He preached a falsehood, the falsehood was believed and obeyed, and you see and know the result. To counteract that, God has ordained that the truth should be preached by men. and the truth must be obeyed when believed, then sin will be remitted and life will be the result. Because the woman was deceived and first in the transgression, God ordained that a woman should never be a leader in preaching salvation to a lost world. But woman was embraced in the promise that God made to Abraham and was to be saved through the birth of a Messiah just the same as men. So do not blame Adam nor Eve for any sin that you commit.

The doubtful mind in dismal disbelief, The word of God in heart will not receive.

O faithless man, if you are brought to grief.

Then blame yourself, not God, who would retrieve.

Persons capable of being governed by law cannot by the right exercise of their mental faculties blame any one for their own acts. Because Adam sinned willfully by volating God's law is a very poor reason for accusing the human race of hereditary total depravity. The idea of the "fathers eating sour grapes and the children's teeth being set on edge" was a false proverb, and God declared it a false proverb, and said: "The son shall not bear the iniquity of the father, neither, shall the father bear the iniquity of the son." (Ezek, 18: 20.) Persons who claim to be hereditarily totally depraved should not judge others by themselves,

Permanent Muscular Strength cannot exist where there is not blood strength. Young men giving attention to muscular develop-ment should bear this in mind. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives blood strength and builds up the whole system. The next time you buy calomel ask for

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are nausealess, safe and sure.

Medicinal virtues retained and improved. Sold only in sealed packages. Price 35c.

fleart

Attacks come when least expected. Directly some ill feeling makes you aware that you have a Heart is the time to commence taking some treatment.

is a Tonic and Regulator recommended in Functional Heart Disorders.

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS

MALES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

The East Tennessee Work.

BY GEORGE W. FARMER.

Brother White closed a good meeting at Niota recently. Niota is a mission point. The attendance and attention were fine. Brother White did fine work there. The truth was presented in a simple way, yet with force and in the spirit of love. The tent was moved from Niota to Athens, and Brother White began a meeting there with bright prospects for a great meeting. Brother White will stay with it his time limit, after which Brother Little will continue as long as interest demands.

I have a leave of absence for three months from the work at Cleveland to engage in protracted-meeting work, beginning at Scurry, Texas, on the first Lord's day in July. I shall be in Texas about six weeks.

I have worked very hard and have made considerable sacrifice to round up things and to get our plans of work before the brethren. I have preached three times each Lord's day, attended the midweek prayer meeting, and the rest of the time have ridden the trains, automobiles, and buggies, and walked. getting from place to place to preach and talk up this work and urge upon the brethren the needs of this great field, for the last three or four months. Some churches and brethren do not seem to know that the world is lost, doomed to eternal destruction; at least, they are asleep, or listless, or just have a selfish or don't-care spirit. Which is it? They have a name to live, and yet they do not live. "Woe unto them that are at ease in Zion!"

The tent fund is accumulating slowly. We did want to get the tent in time for use this season, but fear now we will not be able to do so. To the congregations and the brethren and sisters who are having fellowship with us in this work, I wish to say: God bless you in your visions of duty and the willingness and courage to try to do the same.

Brother Rozar is proving himself to be very earnest, prayerful, and consecrated in the work, and is making a fine impression among the brethren.

During my absence from the field I shall keep my eyes on the work by keeping in touch with it by written correspondence. I shall gladly answer letters of inquiry and give any information possible concerning the work.

Our hands in His we place;
Our faith's strong, piercing eye
Looks up into His tender face
Who whispers: "It is I."
And dauntless, where the fires are lit,
And where death's sickles reap,
We move along, for it is writ:
"The Shepherd leads his sheep."

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be very well described as "a carbonated fruit-flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea—1 cupful 1.54 gr.

(bot) (5 ff. oz.)

Green tea—1 glassful 2.02 gr.

(cold) (8 ff. oz., exclusive of ice)

Coca-Cola—1 drink, 8 ff. oz. 61 gr.

(prepared with 1 ff. oz. of syrup)

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity, and also explains, in part, the wide popularity of Coca-Cola, whose refreshing principle is derived from the tea leaf.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

The Coca-Cola Co., Dept. J. Atlanta, Ga., U. S. A.

11

Piles Cured

Dr. A. Upham's valuable electuary or internal remedy for PILES. CURES all kinds of PILES, old or new cases. It eradicates the disease from the system. If your druggist cannot supply you, send $1.00 for trial freatment, 5 packages for $5.00. Guaranteed, if not satisfied money back. Thousands of satisfied patients all over the United States. References any Bank, Postmaster or City officials.

Why Suffer? Get CURED. J. G. & A. HALL, Oxford, N. C.

Remember that God always must approve of his own handiwork, and that, therefore, as our true sanctification can only be brought about by his indwelling presence and work, so when it is thus brought about he must needs stamp with his approval that which he himself has wrought. We need not despair of being approved unto God, if we are indeed "his workmanship, created anew unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them."

—W. Hay Altken,

DORSON WOULD STOP SALE OF CALOME

Bays Calomel is Mercury and Acts Like Dynamite on Your Liver.

Dodson is making a hard fight against calomel in the South. Every druggist has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason, Dodson's Liver Tone is faking its place. "Calomel is dangerous and people know it, while Dodson's Liver Tone is perfectly safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally graverseed by safe and gives better results," said a prominent local druggist. Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist. A large bottle costs but a few cents, and if it fails to give easy relief in every case of liver sluggishness and constipation, you have only to ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick headache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It stomach or constipated bowels. stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomel. Take a dose of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work! Take Dodson's Liver Tone instead and feel fine, full of vigor and ambition.

Help the Marshall Church of Christ.

BY T. W. PHILLIPS.

Some months ago a call was made over the signature of Brother Foy E. Wallace, Sr., and my own, asking the brethren to help the few poor saints at Marshall, Texas, to build a house of worship. Less than fifty dollars was sent to them as a result of that call. But the brethren were determined in heart, love, and zeal, and they have gone ahead and paid out their lot, and have arranged the finances to complete the building, which is at this time under actual construction. They are exceedingly anxious to build up the cause of primitive Christianity in Marshall; and, from my humble viewpoint, there is no greater mission field in Texas than the city of Marshall. I am personally acquainted with the leaders of the Marshall movement, and I know them to be every whit worthy of assistance. They have recently been in touch with me personally and by correspondence, and I am writing this earnest appeal to the churches, and especially the churches of East Texas in a radius of a hundred miles of Marshall.

The proposition is simply this: They want a month's meeting, and they want me and the Todd boys to help them hold it. They are not able to finance the meeting, and the preacher and singer of their choosing are not able to hold the meeting without good support. Hence, they and we are asking the churches to finance the meeting and thereby have fellowship in a grand and worthy work. Send all contributions to Brother C. W. Lagrone, who is one of the elders of the Marshall church, and say to him in your letter of instruction that the contribution is for the October meeting, and that if there is any left after properly paying the preacher and the singer, to apply the balance on their heavy church debt. Now, not for my sake, brethren, but for the sake of the cause of truth and the salvation of worthy souls in Marshall, Texas, do please fellowship this worthy work. I shall hold the meeting whether you help in it or not; but I am not able to do it at my own charges. What you do, do quickly.

They Softly Walk.

They are not gone who pass Beyond the clasp of hand, Out from the strong embrace; They are but come so close We need not grope with hands, Nor look to see, nor try To catch the sound of feet. They have put off their shoes To softly walk by day Within our thought, to tread At night our dream-led paths Of sleep.

They are not lost who find The sunset gate, the goal Of all the weary years. Not lost are they who reach The summit of their climb, The peak above the clouds And storms. They are no Who find the light of sun They are not lost And stars and God.

They are not dead who live In hearts they leave behind. In those whom they have blessed They live a life again, And shall live through the years Eternal life, and grow Each day more beautiful, As time declares their good, Forgets the rest, and proves Their immortality

-Hugh Robert Orr.

Cleopatra Struggled Along Without the Help of but there's no reason why you should be thus handicapped unless you are a dead one, too.

Keeps skin clear. 25 cents at your druggist's. Ointment, 50 cents and $1.

TETTERINE

Makes low necks and short sleeves possible. It clears the skin

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

GOOD TEACHERS IN DEMAND
AT BETTER SALARIES
The schools, colleges, seminaries, and universities throughout the South are begging for assistance in finding teachers with proper qualifications, and better salaries are being offered. We are needing hundreds of teachers to supply the demand. Any well-prepared teacher would do well to write us.

FISK TEACHERS' AGENCY
R. A. Clayton, Mgr. Birmingham, Ala.

Ferraline is a Natural Mineral, rich in Iron, Magnesium, Lithium and other health-giv-ing nduerals. It is made by the simple process of percolating distilled water thru Ferraline Mineral Earth, and it contains no drugs nor chemicals.

It has long been recognized as most effective in the treatment of indigestion, Stomach Troubles and Rheumatism, and as a System-builder and Restorer it is of special value to those who suffer from Impoverished Blood.

Perraline is sold by your druggist and endersed by prominent ministers, business and pro-

To secure an interesting booklet and the story of the "Sweetest thing without a Soul," write

"FERRALINE," Dept. 5, DEMOPOLIS, ALABAMA.

In answering advertisements, please mention this paper

Millions for a New Stomach

One of the greatest American millionaires said to his physician, "A million dollars, Doctor, spot cash and no grumbling, for a new stomach," and then the sick man grouned and turned away. All his wealth could not make him happy or contented, for happiness largely depends upon digestion. Without health where does happiness come in? After all the stomach plays a great part in everyday life. Without a healthy stomach and good digestion our blood is thin, watery and poor, our heart action is weak, our liver does not do its duty, and man is miserable and unhappy. Prevent disease by putting the house in order and strengthening the system against the germs of disease.

)Dr. Pierce, of the Invalida' Hotel and Surgical Institute, at Buffalo, N. Y., years ago understood diseases and their prevention, and he discovered certain roots and herbs which were nature's remedies, and succeeded in putting them up in a form that could be easily procured at the drug store (liquid or tablets). This he called Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery. This Discovery gives no false stimulation because it contains no alcohol or any narcotic. It helps digestion and the assimilation of such elements in the food as are required for the blood. It gives to the blood the food elements the tissues require. For over fifty years it has enjoyed the confidence of the American public. Try it now!

CANCERS CURED AT KELLAM HOSPITAL,

1617 West Main Street, Richmond, Va.

It is known beyond a doubt and admitted by most of the leading physicians and surgeons that cancer cannot be cured with the knife. X-Ray, radium, or acids. Cancers are permanently cured at The Kellam Hospital, without the use of either.

Physicians and surgeons treated free at the hospital.

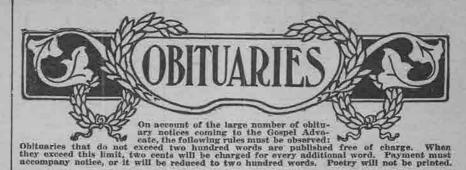

HANCOCK'S PILE REMEDY.

Three jars are guaranteed to cure the severest case of piles, or your money will be verest case of pites, or your money will be refunded. One jar often gives the desired results. For blind, bleeding, itching, pro-truding, or ulcerated piles. Price, 50 cents a jar. At your druggists's or by mail from HANCOCK CHEMICAL COMPANY,

Oxford, N. O. Druggists, write for liberal proposition.

We place White Teachers in Public. Private, and Normal Schools, Colleges, and Universities. The H. D. Yates Teachers' Bureau, Nashville, Tenn.

Mattie E. Miller was born in 1841 and died on May 26, 1920, at the home of her only surving child, H. D. Mathis. She was married in 1871 to T. H. Mathis, and to this union were born five children. She united with her Lord about twenty-five years ago, and has been a faithful Christian since. She was buried in the cemetery at Ennis, Texas, Brother T. E. Milholland conducting the funeral services. Sister Mathis was a beloved member of the church of Christ at Bardwell many years, and many mourn her departure from their midst. "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints."

CARL A. GARDNER.

Griswold.

Brother D. F. Griswold departed this life on June 2, 1920, aged fifty-two years and nineteen days. He leaves a wife and six children-two daughters and four sons—to mourn his departure. He was baptized about thirteen years ago by Brother James K. Hill, and lived and died in the faith. He was a good husband, a devoted father, a consecrated Christian, and his home was made happy by his presence. While his voice is stilled, his words will remain in the memory of his dear companion, his children, and his many friends. His body was laid to rest in the city of the dead in the cemetery at Tullahoma, Tenn., in the presence of a number of friends and The funeral services were relatives. conducted by the writer.

R. E. L. TAYLOR.

Robert.

Mary Augusta Robert, the widow of U. M. Robert, whose death occurred about two years ago, went to Richmond, Va., last September, to visit her only living sister, Mrs. C. E. Harrison, where she died. Her remains were brought back to Nashville and were buried, June 17, in Spring Hill Cemetery beside the grave of her husband. She was the daughter of James S. Harris, of Wilson County, where she was reared, six miles east of Lebanon She attended the school of that celebrated and much-beloved educator, Mrs. Charlotte Fanning. She was married to U. M. Robert on July 8, She was 1861. She became a Christian in her girlhood and maintained her loyalty till her death. For some years she was a member and a faithful attendant of the assembly of the saints at Highland Avenue church of Christ. had no children of her own, but her home was a haven for her orphaned sister's children, to the care of whom she devoted much of energy and life. Her life's work is worthy of emula-lation. James E. Scober.

McClellan.

Watt McClellan was born on April 4, 1842, and lacked only seven days of reaching seventy-eight years when he died. As of Abraham, it may be well said of him, that he gave up the said of him, that he gave up the ghost, and died in a good old age, an old man and full of years, and was gathered to his people. Truly, his life was full of love toward God and of activity to help save the world. ty-eight years ago he was baptized by M. Joiner. He lived a consistent Christian life all these years. He had a strong mind and always had the attention of the congregation when he spoke. He may be called a "pioneer" of the Reformation in this part of the State. He rode no hobbies, but was firm in the faith. Two Christian sisters, his wife, and a host of kindred survive him. He was an example to them that they will do well to follow, as he followed Christ, if they wish to meet him in heaven. He was laid to meet him in heaven. He was laid to rest in Pleasant Grove Cemetery. Truly, a noble man has gone to his CARL G. SMITH. reward.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

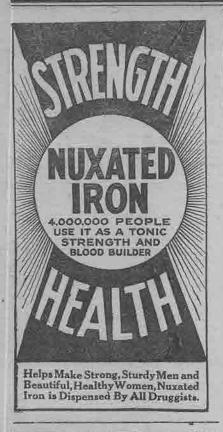

A pleasant, easy way to make moneyatilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigsons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few nairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Pigeons No. 6." Carolina Pigeon Plant, Clinton, S. C.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Mongaceticacidester of Salicylicacid. "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine

TETTERINE for the COMPLEXION

60c at your druggist's or from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

HEADACHE
Bad for Health
Upsets Nerves
Go to Drug Store-Try
CAPUDINE
BY DOSE AND IN BOTTLES - 10530'8 60°.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion besutifler, at very, very small cost.

Your greeer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orehard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.

Shall We Observe the First or the Seventh Day? No. 2.

BY WILLIAM J. MILLER.

In the former article there was some information about the contents of 2 Cor. 3, which was probably not made as plain as it should have been. Hence, I now quote part of that chapter: "But if the ministration of death, written, and engraven on stones, came with glory, so that the children of Israel could not look steadfastly upon the face of Moses for the glory of his face; which glory was passing away: how shall not rather the ministration of the spirit be with glory?" (Verses 7, 8.) Therefore, it was "the ministration of death" that "came with glory." According to verse 11, that "ministration of death" was to pass away. I quote: "For if that which passeth away was with glory, much more that which remaineth is in glory." (Verse 11.) The Ten Commandments (called "the decalogue") are the "ministration." Therefore, the Ten Commandments, which are the "ministration," are abolished.

The foregoing quotations are from the Revised Version. The Common Version says: "For if that [ministration] which is done away was glorious, much more that which remaineth is glorious." (2 Cor. 3; 11.)

Adventists make mention about Jesus admonishing his disciples to pray that their flight should not be on the Sabbath. They do that without adding that it should not be in the winter. Jesus said: "And pray ye that your flight be not in the winter. neither on the Sabbath." (Matt. 24: 20.) If the quotation shows that we are to observe the Sabbath, it also shows that we are to also observe the winter. It was not because the disciples were required to rest on that day that Jesus admonished them to pray thus. Nehemiah had commanded the gates of the city to be shut at dark before the Sabbath, to remain closed until after the Sabbath. (See Neh. 13: 19.) They could not flee on the Sabbath with the gates closed. Netther was it desired to be driven out in the winter, to be exposed to the cold weather while the Roman armies were besieging the city.

Any one who wants to know more about the unsoundness of the Adventist doctrine can get a splendid refutation of it by sending one dollar and twenty-five cents to the McQuiddy Printing Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn., for a copy of Monk's "Adventism and the Bible."

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

An Explanation.

BY W. R. RAINS.

Some weeks ago I noticed in the Gospel Advocate an article from Brother T. B. Larimore, in which he stated that he had seen so many questions asked through the Advocate lately that he concluded he would ask some; and if I remember correctly, after quoting 1 Cor. 9: 13, 14-" Do ye not know that they which minister about holy things live of the things of the temple? and they which wait at the altar are partakers with the altar? Even so hath the Lord ordained that they that proclaim the gospel should live of the gospel"-he told of a master who was a gospel preacher and also had an old servant that was one, and the servant asked his master to explain a certain passage of scripture to him, and after he explained it to him he said: "Now, Mose, do you understand it?" Mose said: "Well, no, sir; I did understand it before you explained it, but I don't understand it now." Brother Larimore said explanation in that case mystified instead of explained, and said he would leave the above scriptures as they are and would ask two questions: "Brother, if you preach the gospel, why do you live as you do? If you live thus, why do you preach the gospel? Explain."

I know Brother Larimore, and love him, and have faith in him as a true gospel preacher, and have watched in the Advocate hoping to see an explanation from a preacher of the gospel to his very important and valuable questions; and as I fail to see any, I have concluded to send him, through the Advocate, his desired explanation, hoping it may be true and satisfactory. Paul, a preacher of the gospel, in 1 Cor. 2: 20, says: "I am crucified with Christ: nevertheless I live; yet not I, but Christ liveth in me: and the life which I now live in the flesh I live by the faith of the Son of God, who loved me, and gave himself for me." Then the very fact that a preacher of the gospel is crucified with Christ and that Christ lives in him, and that the life he lives in the flesh he lives by the faith of the Son of God, who loved him, and gave himself for him, is the very reason why he should live as he does, and the fact that he lives thus is the very reason why he should preach the gospel.

May the Lord bless you, Brother Larimore.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Catiouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy, loc by mail or at Druggists, Hissoux Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. X.

The Golden Windows of the Soul.

Dr. Orison Sweet Marden, in one of his wonderfully inspiring books, tells the story of a poor little boy who lived in a little weather-worn cottage on the top of a hill. He was a dreamy boy, and every evening at sunset he would sit on the doorstep looking down toward the valley, fascinated by a beautiful house with wonderful golden windows shining a long way at the far end of the valley.

He was greatly dissatisfied with the poverty of his surroundings, and the sight of the house in the valley, Dr. Marden writes, made him very unhappy. "Ah," he would sigh, "what a poor, miserable home my hut is! If I could only live in that beautiful house with the golden windows, how happy I should be!"

One evening, when the golden windows, more wonderful than ever, seemed beckening him to come, the boy made up his mind he would go and visit the beautiful house. early next morning, he started out. The road was dusty and the sun was hot, but the little traveler trudged on and on. Toward sundown he found himself at the far side of the valley. But what had become of the beautiful house he had seen from his hilltop? What he stood looking at was only an old tumble-down barn. And the wonderful windows? Alas! They were not gold at all, but just ordinary glass, and dirty and broken, too.

Tired and thirsty, the little boy flung himself on the ground with his back to the deserted barn and sobbed bitterly. Then, slowly raising his head and looking up across the valley, through blinding tears he saw a shining blur—his own little cottage on the hilltop! And lo, its windows, in the light of the setting sun, were a sheet of blazing gold!

It is a beautiful little story, it seems to me, and one that carries its own moral. How many of us feel that the beauty of life is on the other hilltop; that others have all the joys and we have only the dregs! Just the other day I met a man who sees good in things that are far off. He has a good job, he has his health, he has a fine wife and children of whom he may well be proud, and yet all of his sweetness of life, judging by his mental attitude, is over on the hilltop owned by somebody else.

If there is one thing above all else in this world that I have to be thankful for, it is that I have never envied the other fellow. Personal charm in others I have admired; riches I have craved for the happiness I might bring to others with them; qualities that I do not possess I have prayed for and worked for; but, thank heaven, it so happens that my soul has never been

MASSEY MILITARY SCHOOL

Junior R. O. T. C. On Preferred List of Colleges. Teachers, University Men. SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 8, 1920. Dept. A.

WINTERSMITH'S W CHILL TONIC

FOR MALARIA, CHILLS and FEVER ALSO A FINE GENERAL STRENGTHEN-

embittered by the poison of envy. Whenever I have been tempted to make a wry face and gaze longingly in the direction of that cottage on the opposite hilltop, something has whispered that, if I would stop long enough to take an inventory of my own possessions, I would discover something to be grateful for.

And so, let us not envy the other fellow. Back of his seeming prosperity and happiness there may be more of failure and sorrow than we can know. Not every man who is successful in the eyes of the world is a success in his own eyes. The man who can be happy with what he has, be that little or much, is the man who is a real success. Let us try to create in our own minds an ideal of what we want to be and do, and then, in the face of discouragement and slip-ups and ingratitude and all of the negative things that would pull us back, let us stick unswervingly to the job that has been given us to do and do it.

Those golden windows shining a long way off are not a bit better than the windows through which you may look out on a happy world, if, first of all, you make sure that in your own life there is an honest desire to see the gold that is close at hand.—Jerome P. Fleisham.

The union of life and love is effected and maintained by faith. Trust is the link of connection with Christ. It is the eye of the soul that looks to him; it is the hand of the soul that takes him; it is the ear of the soul that listens to him; it is the mouth of the soul that appropriates him. Faith receives Christ; faith rests on Christ; faith realizes Christ; faith rejoices in Christ.—Selected.

FROM THE FIELD

Texas.

Cleburne, July 6.—The church at Cleburne is in a healthy condition. Our audiences this summer are hold-ing up much better than usual. In fact, we are unable to see any decrease in our attendance, although quite a number of our members are away on vacation. Our Sunday-morning Bible school has had an average attendance of more than two hundred for the past month. Besides this, we have a young people's Bible drill twice a at which the attendance was week. about one hundred. This is a special course of fourteen weeks for the children and young people during their vacation. Last year we took the children through the life story of Paul. This year they are studying the life of Jesus. While we have a membership of about six hundred, these members are all at peace with each other, so far as I am able to see and know. This church is more like one big, wellregulated family than any congrega-tion I have ever known. The Cleburne church has contributed, on an average, more than one hundred dol-lars a Sunday this year, so far. This lars a Sunday this year, so far. This is twice as much as was contributed last year or any previous year. Hence, the church is supporting two men instead of one. In addition, much other work is being done. This is the result of much teaching on giving and asking all the members to "purpose" in their hearts what they would give. The Lord's way will always work, if we will work it.-G. Dallas Smith.

West Virginia.

Buffale, July 7.-For the month of June I received personal help in my work to the amount of $37. I also received additions to our church building fund to the amount of $26.75. We are very thankful for this help. have receipted each donor personally. We had expected to order our building material next week; but contributions are coming in very slowly. We will order it just as soon as it is safe for us to do so. If each one who reads this note will send us something at once, we will have that house within a few weeks. Please do so. I am tired of being kicked about "from pillar to post" through sectarian influences. I am also tired of preaching under trees and in private houses, where it is impossible to hold a protracted meeting. I want a fair show in this sectarian country. Please give us that meetinghouse now as a base of operations, and we will plant the true cause of Christ at a number of mission points in this section. Shall I plead in vain? have too much confidence in my brethren to believe that. I am sure that I will hear from many of you within a few days. Please always state what your offering is for. Now, with deep sorrow I must tell you that Mrs. Fonner met with a bad accident last week while doing good to others. She fell and sustained a broken arm and a dislocated wrist and possibly some other injuries. We cannot expect a full re-covery for several weeks. This will hinder the work to some extent, as we have no help. Perhaps I can keep the meetings going near home until she is better. One thing I do know; and that is, I will need more personal help than I am getting now. Please re-member us in prayers and offerings. I have opened some new mission points. We expect an ingathering when we get our church house .- F. P. Fonner.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHIII TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHIII TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic prop-erties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

makes and keeps the complexion clear, white and soft and quickly vanishes sunburn, tan, freckles, plumples, blackheads, and ec-

If your druggist cannot supply you send for a free sample to

THE MORGAN DRUG CO., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

The Desk With a 25 Year GUARANTY

The desk that stands hard usage without becoming shaky. It is of extra strong construction throughout and has these exclusive points of excellence; Meavy Semi-Stee Frime, Patent Notselesa Hinges and Extre Wide Seats. The design, construction and funds its perfect in every deall. Our proven calm is still best desk regardless of price, The only desk made in the South.

SOUTHERN DESK COMPANY, HICKORY, N. C.

You Will Write a Letter Like This

I wish I knew which one of the thousands of letters I receive would have the most weight with you, my friend. I cannot quote all of them here, but I am going to ask you to read these carefully and then give me a chance to renew your health and make you write me one very much like them:

Mr. N F. Shivar, Shelton, B. C.

Dear Sir: I was suffering with indigestion, stomach and liver disorders, and all its rain of horrifying phenomens for several months. I had lived on milk, soft-boiled eggs, shredded wheat—a very insufficient diet for an active working man—and, of course, from disease and starvation was in a very low state of nervous vitality and general debility. I ordered ten gallons of your Mineral Water, which I used continuously, reordering when necessary, and in four months gained twenty-nine pounds, was strong and perfectly well, and have worked practically every day since. It acts as a general renovator of the system. I prescribe it in my practice, and it has in every listen the desired effects. It is essential to use this water in as large quantity as possible, for its properties are so happily blended and in such proportion that they will not disturb the most delicate system. It is purely Nature's remedy.

A. L. R. AVANT, M.D. Leeds, S. C.

Leeds, S. C.

I have tested your Spring Water in several cases of rheumatism, chronic indigestion, kidney and biadder troubles, and in pervous and sick headaches, and find it has acted nicely in each case; and I believe that if used continuously for a reasonable time it will give permanent rollef. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys, and bladder, alding them in throwing off sil poisonous matter.

C. A. CROSBY, M.D.

These are not selected cases, nor are the results unusual. I receive thousands like them from physicians, ministers, lawyers, merchants, farmers, manufacturers, and every conceivable profession. I want the satisfaction of receiving such a letter from you. No matter what your complaint may bedyspepsia, indigestion, nervous headache, rheumatism, kidney or liver disease, or any curable ailment that has not responded to drugs. I invite you to match your faith in the Spring against my pocketbook. If the water fails to benefit you, simply say so, return the empty demijohns, and I will promptly and willingly refund your money-every cent. Sign below.

Shivar Spring, Box 21C, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your offer and inclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons of Shivar Mineral Water. I agree to give it a fair trial, in accordance with instructions contained in booklet you will send; and if it fails to benefit my case, you agree to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return within a month.

Name.... Address..... Shipping Point..... (Please write distinctly.)

THE ONLY PLACE IN THE SOUTH

where you can get your hats cleaned when you want them and how you want them. Agents wanted everywhere. Send for illus-trated catalogue. Bennett's Hat Factory, 123 Broad Street, Jacksonville, Fig.

Volume LXII. No. 30.

S

my hem i to me and in its re

n-

10

đ.

1

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 22, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Edifying as the Need May Be	705
Our Contributors
Georgia and the Far Southern Field
At Home and Abroad	713
Editorial	714
Selections by the Editor	717
Current Thought	718
Training Little Children	719
Query Department	720
Thorp Spring Christian College
The Church of Christ at Duncan, Arizona
mt. Market Wilson J	700
The Master's Vineyard	722
Life Sketch of a Pioneer	726
Freed-Hardeman College	728

W

Edifying as the Need May Be

W

Tarde's Treatment of Crime.

Under this section I shall endeavor to show the value of the Bible in that important branch of sociology known as criminology. Having recently studied an exhaustive volume covering penal philosophy by Gabriel Tarde, I shall make liberal use of this author's conclusions concerning the causes of crime, the condition of responsibility, and the suggested remedies. In determining responsibility or irresponsibility for crime, this author applies a psychological standard. This standard, we are told, has two corner stones. "One is the identity of the self; the other is in the relation of social similarity between the self and surroundings of self." According to the first concept, we cannot hold one to be a criminal who, when he committed a wrong, was not identical with his self as habitually known. Thus a madman or an epileptic or any one suffering from profound physiological disturbances which break up the background of organic sensation, blot out the memories of the past, and shatter the ideals that have hitherto guided his actions, cannot be justly held accountable. According to the second concept, social environment is a vital factor in the determination of crime. For example, a South Sea Islander suddenly transplanted into a civilized community cannot be held responsible to the same degree that must be assumed by a man who had always been a citizen of that community. In the one case the punishment should be adjustment, in the other it should be readjustment, to society. Tarde's theories are in opposition to those of the positivist school, who make much of atavism, or reversion of type. We are at once impressed with the practicability of his suggestions. In their presentation he gives examples of criminals and criminal laws taken from all countries and from both ancient and modern times. We can but feel somewhat disappointed, however, that he did not make more frequent use of scriptural examples and quotation. As a source book on crime, the Bible is unequaled. It runs the gamut of wrongdoing from start to finish. It treats of 'individual crime, family crime, and national crime. It deals with the causes and the various shades of responsibility. In the Decalogue, in the Mosaic legislation, in the book of the covenant, in the prophecies, and in the New Testament Revelation it prescribes both commandments and remedies. It is difficult to understand how Tarde, who seems so well informed along other lines, could have overlooked this fruitful handbook.

0 0 0

Imitation, a Great Social Force.

Tarde's chief explanation is found in the workings of his great social force. Criminals become a professional type through imitation. People imitate one another in sin more than in anything else. We are at once reminded of the saying: "The fathers have eaten sour grapes, and the children's teeth are set on edge." (Jer. 31: 29.) There comes to our minds the story of Jeroboam, who sinned and taught Israel to sin. (1 Kings 15: 30.) The tragic side of life is not immune from the force of example. People kill because others have killed; people assassinate because others have assassinated; people fight duels because It is the custom. It is a well-known fact that suicide is contagious. Many years ago a Japanese emperor killed himself in a most unusual way-by disemboweling himself with a sharp knife. Soon afterwards other members of royalty did the same thing. To-day hara-kiri is the national custom in Japan. It is regarded as the one honorable way in which to take one's life. Likewise a Parisian actress, greatly admired by the populace, in a moment of jealous rage, threw vitriol in her lover's face. This crime soon became the fashion in France and later spread to America. During the reign of the Borgias people copied the court in poisoning to such an extent that a dead body floating down the Tiber did not cause a ripple of excitement. "Just another poison case" was the only comment heard.

Statistics show that the birth rate is to a large extent controlled by imitation. It is a well-known fact that large families are found chiefly in the country districts or among the poor classes in the city. Cannot this be explained by the fact that it is not the custom for the wealthy classes to have many children? But when people attempt to defend this custom, they will find themselves within the realm of criminology.

The Love of Distinction.

But imitation may be noted along other lines not usually accounted to be criminal. Preachers are to a large extent imitative, whether consciously or unconsciously. If a well-known evangelist is given to alliteration in his speech, there will be others among his admirers given to alliteration; if he makes certain kinds of gestures, they will make them; if he trills his r's, they will trill their r's. They can at least imitate in mannerisms, if not in thought and preparation.

Fashions prevail largely through imitation. Word has gone forth that the men will wear clothes made of the most fanciful hues during the coming season. How do they know it? Because the Prince of Wales and a few other fashion leaders have ordered their suits. One of the leaders of New York's "Four Hundred" had a noted artist paint a butterfly on her back. Now others are having their backs painted. It has come to such a pass that a bare back does not attract great attention on the ballroom floor. There are so many of them. But paint some kind of figure on your back and it will attract attention immediately. There are hundreds of shopgirls and waitresses in New York and Chicago who keep themselves poor even in these days of high wages by trying to imitate their favorite actress. It is both serious and amusing to what depth of folly imitation will lead some people. O love of distinction, how many crimes have been committed in thy name!

000

Aping "the Best Families."

But we do not need to go to New York and Chicago to find examples of foolish imitation. There are many in our own city who are guilty of the same thing. Their chief thought and interest in life is in imitating those whom they consider to be the recognized social leaders. They wear the same kind of clothes, build the same kind of houses, move to the same part of the city, ride in the same kind of an automobile. The pity of it is that many of these thoughtless imitators are nominal Christians. Yet they are taken up entirely with the things of the world. Boys and girls from Christian families have fallen in with the dance craze largely through imitation. The temptation is insidious and well-nigh irresistible. When reproached, we are suavely told that "all the best families countenance dancing." They must follow the recognized social leaders because others follow them. "We must imitate or lose caste" is the thought behind the deed. Instead of lifting the standard of society to the high plane of the New Testament, they would drag it down to the low plane of some recognized social leader who cares nothing for God, the Bible, or the church.

Idiots, like others, are given to imitation. The manifestation, however, is different in that an idiot imitates without any moral obstacle, without taking thought of the consequences. For example, an idiot took part in the slaughter of a pig. Soon afterwards he stuck a man with a sharp knife. Another idiot saw a man build a fire of logs in the field. He went away and stuck a match to a barn. Intelligent people are supposed to be influenced by an obstacle in their imitation. But when we imitate without this obstacle of moral thought, how nearly idiotic are we? It is significant that in the best-managed institutions for the insane they have dancing regularly for the patients.

Here, indeed, we might apply the New Testament illustration of Tarde's theory of responsibility in proportion to social similarity by quoting Jesus' words: "To whomsoever much is given, of him shall much be required." (Luke 12: 48.)

The New Testament Ideal.

The New Testament fully recognizes the imitative faculty. When a man comes into the church, he brings this faculty with him along with others. What does Christ do with it? He does not suppress it nor take it away from the man's nature. On the other hand, he would transform it and use it for noble ends. When we examine the scriptural teaching on this subject, two things stand out clearly. First, we should imitate Christ. We cannot be his disciples unless we take up the cross and follow him. Paul said: "Be ye imitators of me, even as I also am of Christ" He does not hold himself up to be a perfect ideal. We are to imitate Paul only to the extent that he imitated Christ But that "only" means nearly everything in the apostle's life. Only a faithful Christian can afford to give such an exhortation. The apostle does not claim for himself something that cannot be gained by others. In another passage he brings out the thought of joint imitation: "Brethren, be ye imitators together of me." To the shame of many it must be said that they never reach that point in Christian experience where they can say: "Brethren, be ye imitators of me, as I also am of Christ." They are always in that state described in the letter to the Hebrews: "For when by reason of the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need again that some one teach you the rudiments of the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of solid food."

To imitate Christ does not mean mere mimicry, as Tolstoy would have us believe in his application of the Sermon on the Mount. It means that we must have in all things the spirit of Christ. To imitate Jesus literally is not possible for any man, but to imitate his spirit is humanly and gloriously possible.

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine, or Uncle Mimor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney—one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?"
This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake.

To be glad of life because it gives you the chance to love and to work and to play and to look up at the stars; to be satisfied with your possessions, but not contented with yourself until you have made the best of them; to despise nothing in the world except falsehood and meanness, and to fear nothing except cowardice; to be governed by your admirations rather than by your disgusts; to covet nothing that is your neighbor's, except his kindness of heart and gentleness of manners; to think seldom of your enemies, often of your friends, and every day of Christ; and to spend as much time as you can with body and with spirit in God's out-of-doors—these are little guideposts on the footpath of peace.—Henry Van Dyke.

Our Contributors

The Spirit of Sommerism. No. 1.
BY JOHN D. EVANS.

Forasmuch as some others "have taken in hand to draw up a narration" concerning some recent "happenings" in the church of Christ in Denver, "it seemed good to me also, having traced the course of all things accurately from the very first," to write of them "in order," so that all who are interested may "know the certainty of the things" which have actually transpired.

Very seldom have I ever felt it my duty to give publicity to church troubles, and would not now if they were purely of local interest, or if it were merely a matter of making a personal defense of my own course in the matters referred to.

This "narration" is made necessary because of certain misleading statements from the pen of D. Austen Sommer, which were first published in the Apostolic Review and copied by the Gospel Advocate of recent date. The caption of the article containing said statements—"The Spirit of the New Digressives"—suggests the appropriateness of the heading of this article.

One has only to read the remarkable document from the pen of our critic and the leading editorials of his paper to get an idea of the real spirit of "Sommerism." From the editor in chief to the least of its "scribblers," there is a persistent effort to wreck "windmills" and demolish "men of straw" as the imaginary enemies of the cause of Christ. Obsessed with the delusion that a great host of gospel preachers and religious journals have "bound themselves together with an oath neither to eat nor sleep" till they have "made havoc of the churches" over which they are supposed to have jurisdiction, that paper has conducted for years a campaign of bitterness, proscribing all who refused to bow to its dictum, or swallow its peculiar views upon the scripturalness of such unholy (?) institutions as Bible schools and orphan homes.

I want just here to assert, unhesitatingly, that the persistent effort upon the part of said journal to "bind where God has not bound," even to the extent of making its opinions upon certain questions a "test of fellowship," has been the most fruitful source of dissension and division in the churches from Kansas to California.

The spirit fostered by that journal so permeats the minds of its readers wherever it is circulated that its ipse dixit becomes to them the standard of action. Its will is paramount. If "Simon" says "Up," it's hands up; if "Simon" says "Down," it's hands down; if "Simon" says "Wigwag," everybody wigwags. While ostensibly the "college" question is the "issue" that is causing trouble among the churches, the real issue here and elsewhere is the spirit and policy of that journal and its various sympathizers. In fact, I have on my desk a copy of a challenge of two years' standing, issued by a Dodge City (Kan.) brother, to debate this proposition: "Resolved, that the Apostolic Review, a paper published at Indianapolis, Ind., is unscriptural in spirit and doctrine." Some of its friends assumed the obligation to get a "taker" within six months, but at this date no one has signed up. The proposition, I am authorized to say, is still open. Don't all speak at once.

My reason for making the above criticism of a religious journal a part of this article will be obvious when the reader remembers that its junior editor, or "chief scribe," left his arduous duties at Indianapolis and came hundreds of miles at his own or somebody else's expense (deponent saith not) in order to arm himself with "facts at first-hand," that he might "tell the world" what an ungodly "bunch" of "backslidden" sinners or "new digressives" had been gathered together in Denver from the "four quarters of the globe" for the avowed purpose of wrecking the "old gospel ship." For more than thirty years the writer has taken some humble part in the work of the Master. During that time I have been associated with a great many gospel preachers, some of whom have done more to build up the cause of Christ in one State than all the preachers connected with the above-named journal have done in the United States. During my public ministry I have been associated actively with more than fifty congregations that were as true and loyal to the cause of Christ as any brethren that have ever enlisted in the service since the Restoration movement.

It remains for this young "wise man from the east" to make the first charge of what in effect amounts to a "conspiracy" with a band of Christian men and women, some of whom were true and devout Christians when he was in his "swaddling clothes," to disrupt the church of God. May the Lord lay not this sin to his charge.

It would seem that a paper, preacher, or "layman" that assumes to itself or himself the spiritual guardianship of the churches at large and censorship of the conduct of all its members should exemplify, above all things, the spirit of love and brotherly kindness, and be at all times the very "jewel of consistency" in the charges made against its "weaker brethren." Of course it is hardly to be expected that those of us who lay no claims to infallibility, who confess to an ordinary share, at least, of human weaknesses, may not sometimes deviate from the "narrow path." "To err is human." "Homer nodded." "There are spots on the sun." "In many things we stumble all of us." But as touching the Denver matter the unpardonable crime committed was that of less majesty in refusing to bow to the dictum of the self-imposed guardians of the "faith once for all delivered to the saints."

I trust the readers of the Advocate will indulge me while I call attention to the workings of "Sommerism" in Denver, and the sweet (?) spirit exhibited upon the part of its chief apostles here and elsewhere. According to the published statement in the article above referred to, the author traveled all the way from Indinanapolis to Denver-yea, from "Dan" even to the "Queen City of the West"-to get the "facts first-hand." This was indeed commendable, if he had been a little more careful in ascertaining the facts. In looking over his article, I find at least one statement that I heartily indorse. It is as follows: "Brother McQuiddy has rendered a valuable service to the cause of pure Christianity." Fine! In this connection I want to say that while the visit of Brother Mc-Quiddy to Denver was purely accidental, he was invited to be present at the public meeting held in Denver be cause he had, as the publisher of a religious paper, stood loyally by this work since its beginning, both financially and spiritually. In fact, he was more a member of this congregation, so far as constructive work is concerned. than either of the brethren who pose as his critics here, two of whom (the leading ones) were not formally identified with the congregation, and who, during the short time they had been associated with us, according to their own statements, refused to subscribe one dollar to our building fund because, as they expressed it, they were supporting mission work in other fields. In this connection I want to say that these brethren who aspired to dictate the policy of the church, and separated themselves from it because they could not do so, in a financial way contributed less than five per cent to the building fund, and all this was refunded when they refused to walk with us further. About one-half the funds which went into our new home were given by a brother who is one of the trustees of the David Lipscomb College; the balance, by brethren who pose not as defenders of any Bible colleges per se, but who maintain the scriptural right to preach or teach the word of the Lord wherever and whenever an opportunity presents itself. Not one dollar, so far as the records show, ever came to us through the influence of the defender of the "faithful" in Denver—the "oracle" of Indianapolis.

But about D. Austen's visit to Denver. Those of us who happen to live here are wondering where he found "twenty brethren who say McQuiddy was unjust in his ruling." Just here I am reminded of the fellow who thought he had so many frogs in his pond because of the noise they made. If his life depended on it, the brother could not find over half a dozen "brethren" who were competent to testify as "among those present." It is true there were a few "sisters;" but why create the impression that you had the testimony of "twenty brethren?" Then follows this statement: "There was a division in sentiment in Denver over the 'Bible College' question and the 'one-man pastor system' which had been in vogue here for many years." It would be difficult to make a more misleading statement. During the writer's twelve years' association with this congregation, he never preached a single sermon in defense of Bible schools. He never attempted to build one or ask any of these brethren to build one. He never was even a pupil in a Bible college. Knowing that some brethren in the congregation were regular readers of the religious journal whose "hobby" was to demolish, "root and branch," everything that had the semblance of a Bible school, I was scrupulously careful to avoid the agitation of this and any other division question. That all doubt as to the truthfulness of this statement may be removed, I call attention to the fact that, during the discussion at our public meeting preceding the "separation," I raised the question: "Is there one in this entire audience that will charge that I ever publicly or privately agitated this question until circumstances made it necessary during the few days immediately preceding the meeting?" Not one single voice was raised, and thus was I publicly acquitted of that "sin." If there was ever any division over the "oneman pastor system," it existed purely in the minds of our critics. As pioneer of the work in Denver, I naturally felt the weight of responsibility resting upon me, and I ceased not to "warn," "counsel," "feed," and "shepherd" the flock, "without money and without price." Before I was physically able to "labor with my own hands," I robbed other churches [in my home State], taking wages of them that I might not be chargeable" to the little flock here. After I was able to support myself, I refused to receive further personal support either from the church here or elsewhere. During all my service I freely advised with the members of the congregation, and never at any time was any effort made to dictate what the church should do. The entire congregation will indorse this statement, with the exception, of course, of the "faithful twenty." In fact, it is remarkable that a congregation of such a cosmopolitan nature should worship together for so long a time with hardly a single jar, especially remarkable when we think for a moment how many "new digressives" were included ir its membership. But this chronicler of "facts at firsthand" says that "the tactics used by these 'new digressives'-for we can call them nothing else when they indorse such departures from God's word-were the same as the 'old digressives,' when they introduced instrumental music many years ago. They gathered up all the old backsliders they could find, many of whom had been absent for many months and some of whom had been absent practically for years-yes, faithful brethren were outnumbered with all these backsliders." There you have it! These four or five "faithful brethren," two of whom were preachers and another a brother-in-law of a preacher, were "outnumbered" by the riffraff and "backslidden" element of the congregation, including the "political wirepuller" who "manipulated" things so as to get himself elected chairman, "Outnumbered"-ah, there was the trouble! The rank charges made at the very outset by their chief spokesman and the partisan program sponsored by them disclosed the "nigger in the woodpile" too early in the game. It was such a determined effort to get control of the congregation by the election of an unscriptural board of "managers" that a storm of protests went up from about four-fifths of the audience, and then these astute "defenders of the faith" suddenly got "cold feet" on the voting question. I have wondered many times how they expected to get the church's decision on their program formally presented in a set of carefully worded resolutions containing the nomination of "six brethren" to "manage the spiritual affairs of the church." A great deal depends in cases of this kind on which way the "vote" is going. Refusal to vote was the only way out when a fellow was unwilling to abide by the decision of the body. We might admit that there were a dozen or two "backsliders" present, which we do not, and then their overweening desire to "rule or ruin" would have been left ungratified. Such a reflection upon the character of the men and women who had the courage to stand up for their rights is unworthy of any man or set of men who profess to wear the name of Christ. It smacks of that "holier-than-thou spirit" that characterizes almost all the apostles of "Sommerism."

Disclaiming any desire to pose as spotless angels or the sole preservers of the "faith once for all delivered unto the saints," but on behalf of the brethren and sisters with whom I am associated, I challenge the author of the above indictment to produce among all the congregations in the circle of his acquaintance a more representative body of true, loyal, faithful, and consecrated Christian men and women than the ones who worship at 125 South Sherman Street, in Denver, and who constitute the church of Christ in Denver, so far as a scriptural organization is concerned.

But a word about the "bachelor elder." I shall not here discuss the scriptural phase of that question, as Brother McQuiddy has given that his attention so satisfactorily that it needs no comment from me. The thing to which I invite the reader's attention is the utter inconsistency of my critics in their opposition to such a proceeding. We might admit that their rule of interpretation of the Scriptures is correct, which we do not, but it could not possibly give them any comfort. They would be in the same boat with the rest of us. There is an old, old adage which discourages the throwing of stones by the fellow who "lives in a glass house." I hereby assert that the same rule of interpretation by which they seek to disqualify a "bachelor" for the eldership would disqualify every member they had slated for elders and deacons. Not a single one of them could have qualified for at least ten or twelve years, if ever. One of the number recommended by them was a widower, and, therefore, not "the husband of one wife." Another had a wife who was not a "believer." In fact, not a single one of the six "spiritual managers" who were later to be appointed elders and deacons had "believing children," and only one a believing child. But, O what a crime for a bunch of "new digressives" to get together and recommend the appointment of an unmarried man who had in reality occupied the position of elder de facto for a period of twelve years!

By what rule of logic or law of interpretation do our critics determine just how many scriptural qualifications may be lacking without disqualifying a "Sommerite" for the eldership or diaconate, and at the same time render ineligible a "new digressive" for the same position? In the light of the facts, you have adopted two entirely different rules of interpretation-one for yourselves and another for the other fellow. In your case you would select the best material at your disposal, but in our case you demand a literal construction of the Scriptures. To be fair, the same rule must apply in each case. In the final analysis the congregation is the highest earthly tribunal in determining what is the best material at its disposal, This congregation by an overwhelming voice rendered its decision. "Aye, there's the rub!" It selected the wrong erowd. Well, at any rate, it has not yet seen fit to reverse its decision. The work is growing more rapidly than at any period of its history. Our membership has increased almost fifty per cent and we are living at "peace among ourselves." At the very time our Indianapolis critic was here conducting a "Bible school" (I beg pardon-a Bible reading) and getting "facts from the faithful," we were busy night and day assisting Brother Clayton Gall in a series of revival meetings, trying to save souls. The gospel was being preached with great power, and "the Lord added to the church daily those that were being saved." But our dear brother was so busy gathering up the "facts at first-hand" that he never found time to attend one single service.

It is with feelings of sincere regret that we are forced to say: "Yes, Brother Sommer, you are another people." "Ephraim is joined to idols." You have elected to go your separate way. Well, the scriptural injunction to Christians is to "live peaceably with all men" as far as possible. The intimation is clear that when we find it impossible to "live in peace" with our brethren, then we must "live in peace" without them. We had sincerely hoped that the Mason and Dixon line had been obliterated forever, but it is a sad commentary on Christianity when a preacher's orthodoxy or heterodoxy must be determined by geographical lines. In our next we shall relate some history that will show the real source of the "trouble in Israel."

A Destitute Field.

BY I. B. BRADLEY.

In June, 1919, I received a call from a few brethren in West Point, Miss., to come to their assistance in an effort to get the gospel before the people of the town. They wrote me: "We are few in number and poor in this world's goods, but we will do the best we can to support you in the work." I answered them, giving them a date in October for the meeting. They secured a Presbyterian meetinghouse, right up in town, conveniently located, well lighted and ventilated-a nice house, with good, comfortable seats. I went and preached nearly two weeks. But the sects and "digressives" had an understanding and had done their work before the meeting began; so their people were conspicuous by their absence. They boycotted the meeting. There were, and I suppose still are, three digressive preachers in West Point. They not only did not attend the meeting, except about three services, which were attended by the active pastor of the Christian (?) Church, but one of them used his influence to keep people from attending. They have the people so blinded and completely under their influence that we had very small crowds throughout the meeting. The largest number present at any service was fifty-one. There were no additions during the meeting, but "the faithful few" were strengthened and expressed their purpose to stand by the truth and walk in the old paths in spite of the determined opposition of the enemies of truth and New Testament simplicity. They decided while I was there to have a month's tent meeting sometime this year, for which I promised them assistance in the sum of one hundred dollars, which the church at Dickson, Tenn., agreed to furnish; but later they concluded it would not be best and called Brother Herbert E. Winkler, of Nashville, Tenn., to hold a short meeting for them, the result of which I have not learned.

Brother H. D. Jeffcoat, of Ackerman, Miss., a farmerpreacher, a man of good appearance and irreproachable character, a man zealous for God's cause and true to New Testament ideals, was with me in the West Point meeting and led the song service-and he is no mean singer. He also is a fine worker outside the pulpit, and is worthy of the confidence and support of the faithful brethren everywhere. He preaches regularly for several weak congregations, and makes his living-yes, raises the preacher's salary-on his farm by the help of a faithful, godly wife. He said to me: "Brother Bradley, I am not opposed to foreign missions, but I am an earnest advocate of home missions; and the greatest field I know, and the most needy, is South Mississippi. Draw a line from West Point to the Mississippi River, and there are scarcely one hundred loyal Christians in all that vast territory, reaching to the Gulf of Mexico. There are, so far as I know, less than half a dozen weak, struggling bands of disciples in this part of the State. It is not because they have rejected the truth, but because they have never had it preached to them. They are ready to hear, and they will hear it gladly, if somebody will preach it to them. Cannot Tennessee, with all her strong churches and many strong preachers, help us teach them the truth and plant the cause of our Lord among them? Brother Bradley, put this matter before the Tennessee brethren and ask them to help us." So there it is. So far as he knew, there were not a half dozen men in all that country who were trying to preach the simple truth. I have since learned that there are a few men who are preaching as opportunity can be found. They, too, are men who are at work for their sustenancesuch men as Dr. Tom Dunn and A. B. Gunter, both formerly of Tennessee; and now, with headquarters in Jackson, Brother M. C. Cayce is devoting his entire time to general evangelistic work in Central and South Mississippi. These faithful men ought to be supported, so that all their time can be devoted to preaching "the word" and planting and nurturing churches. Brethren, they are dying for "the bread of life." Shall the churches of Christ break it to them, or shall they die for the lack of it, and because we will not send it to them?

There are quite a number of brethren all over the country who say: "I do not believe in sending our means away off to foreign countries to try and convert the heathen, when there are so many unconverted people in our own country. We ought to preach the gospel to them first." All right; here's your opportunity. Mississippi, right at your door, is stretching out her hands in mute, but earnest, appeal to you for help. Show your faith by your works. "What doth it profit, my brethren, if a man say he hath faith, but have not works?" "Prove your own selves, whether ye be in the faith." Will you help Mississippl, your Southern neighbor, and your unconverted fellow man? Let every man who believes in home missions arrange for regular, systematic support of this home mission work. Brethren, have you been sincere in your statements, or have you been hiding behind them? Come up like men and help this work.

Church Organized in New York City.

The following telegram was received just as we were ready to go to press:

A. B. Lipscomb, Nashville, Tenn.: Church organized Sunday with thirteen members. More expected. Excellent location. Praise our Father. Urge readers in this week's issue to send all names and addresses of members they know in New York or suburbs to me at 105 West Sixtyfourth Street.—Morgan H. Carter.

We commend Brother Carter's zeal and hope our readers will help him by sending the names requested.

Time.

BY MRS. T. L. POARCH.

Old Father Time still goes his rounds-Yes, hurries on by leaps and bounds; For soon the days of childhood meet Maturer years with flying feet; And swiftly, too, he seems to go To those whose steps are growing slow, And more swiftly seems to glide To those who reach life's shady side; And swifter still he onward goes To days of wintry frosts and snows, And still hurries on his round Till man is laid beneath the ground; Then hastens on, without alarm, Unto sweet children yet unborn, That he may row from day of birth Their frail lifeboat o'er ways of earth, And row it onward to that shore Where time and tide shall meet no more. Thus Time is ever busy kept, And since "time was" has never slept. But Father Time must sometime die, As surely as Christ reigns on high; For an angel shall on land and sea Declare that time shall no more be. And we that word can make no stronger Which says that time shall be no longer. Then where, O grave, is thy victory, When time gives place to eternity? And Death, where is thy heartless sting In that fair city of our King?

II.

And since Time ever hurries on, From dawn till night and night till dawn, And tarries not beside the way, Not e'en to rest for one short day, And gives us not a moment's time To add to your life or to mine, But doth ever onward roll, It behooves us now to save our soul— Yes, hear and heed the gospel call And give to Christ our life, our all, While we have time and strength and wealth, For we'll not always have sweet health, But may be cast upon a bed Of afflictions long before we're dead, And may, for aught that we can know, Meet Death along the way we go, For he is found both here and there; For Death, grim Death, is everywhere, And claims alike both old and young; For his song will never all be sung Until the dead, both great and small, Shall hear the holy angel call. But of this time we know not when, For this is wisdom not for men. Then let us give to Christ our heart Ere we from this vile world shall part, That we may have a great reward And from his kingdom be not barred When God's own work on earth is done And Time his own short race has run.

A Good Meeting.

BY L. S. WHITE.

The church of Christ in Sherman, Texas, has just closed a meeting which, it seems to me, deserves more than a passing notice.

Two years ago the church determined to build a new meetinghouse in a better location, and to have a larger and better house. This has been done at a great sacrifice to the whole church.

The contractors have been nearly a year late in finishing the building. The old property was sold, and for a long time we had "no certain dwelling place." The church, at my request, exchanged preachers with the church in Houston, Texas, for this meeting. I held the meeting in Houston a year ago, and Brother G. A. Dunn held the one in Sherman just closed. When the time came for our meeting to begin, the furnishings for the new church building had not come, and we could only use the basement. We also had to use the seats of the old church building, and secured two hundred extra chairs, and determined to go ahead.

Just before the meeting began the church purchased several hundred new song books and an addition to the communion set.

The Sunday-school teachers did much teaching to get their classes to obey the gospel. Committees were appointed by the elders and deacons to look after various features of the work. For two weeks we advertised in the daily paper, and large cards were kept in public windows announcing the order of the meeting.

The Sunday before the meeting began an entire sermon was preached on "How to Have a Good Meeting." One or two prayer meetings were held to pray for the meeting. The church also met to practice singing a few times. The whole church expected a good meeting, and talked, worked, and prayed for it. Reports of the meeting were furnished the daily paper every morning.

When the time came for the meeting to begin, Brother Dunn could not be here, and I preached three times before he could come. He had to leave for another meeting, and I preached the last three sermons of the meeting. There was not a small audience or a poor service. Many preachers visited the meeting, None of them enjoyed the meeting more than our venerable brother, E. H. Rogers, who is in very poor health at his home in Sherman.

I have never heard a better series of sermons than Brother G. A. Dunn preached in this meeting. They were full of the word of God and on a high plane. Not a joke was told. There was nothing sensational at any time. The home forces led the singing, and did it well. The second invitation hymn was not sung at any time.

The meeting began on Sunday morning, June 13, and closed on Sunday night, July 4, with two services daily.

There were additions at the first and last services, and at almost all the others. There was baptizing every night except two. Many of the additions were heads of families and many from the denominations. In all, there were one hundred and twenty-three additions to the congregation. Ninety-five of these were baptized, four were restored, and the others, having moved to Sherman, took fellowship.

We all thank God that Brother Dunn came among us. The whole church is rejoicing over the meeting, and is ascribing the praise to the Lord.

Releasing Power.

Every great Christian advance movement is the result of a fresh discovery of the secrets of releasing power. Prayer is the great human secret of initiative and originality. The reason for this is apparent. Prayer to the Christian leader is what original research is to the scientist. Original research takes the thinker back to the secret, hidden places. It is the method of discovery. It requires concentration and detachment of spirit; it takes time; it costs toil. So with prayer. It leads far beneath the surface. It penetrates to the presence of God. It is in fellowship with him that all the visions are born. It is there that old things pass away and all things become new. The pathfinders and prophets and pioneers go back to the sources for their vision and strength.

The release of God's power as described in Acts had its source in prayer. Jesus said: "I will pray the Father, that he may give you another Comforter." Then he said to his disciples: "Tarry until." For ten days they did the greatest thing any company of men can do, and then God's power was released through them and history was lifted to new levels. Here is the system of every great Christian achievement. It involves first-hand contact with the sources. Men pray their way through to new heights of vitality and victory.—William E. Doughty.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. Hall

What Kind of Colleges Should We Patronize?

The following letter is submitted for the thoughtful consideration of those interested in patronizing some college:

Brother Hall: I am writing you in regard to the Brenau College Conservatory for women and girls, at Gainesville, Ga. It is about fifty miles north of Atlanta. What do you know about it?

I saw its advertisement in the Cosmopolitan. It said they combine school, club, and home. Doesn't David Lipscomb College do that, too? They say they give you what they call "true culture." Doesn't David Lipscomb College do that, too? They give A.B. degrees. Do not the A.B's of David Lipscomb College stand as high? They teach physical culture. Do you know if that includes dancing? Physical culture can be had at David Lipscomb College minus the dancing.

Do you favor mixed schools or separate schools for the sexes like Brenau?

I am not criticizing Brenau, but I am not going to patronize it. I know numbers of our brethren who send their children away (sometimes allow them to go because the children want something high-sounding in keeping with the way they try to live) to these sectarian schools or where the Bible is not taught. Should we not patronize our own schools?

And is there a loyal church in Gainesville? Lots of our brethren never consider that question.

If I have suggested anything that would be good for the brethren to know in general, you write an article for the Gospel Advocate on it, stressing the points I suggested. If you do not do that, I would like to know what you know about Brenau. And isn't Ward-Belmont, Nashville, a similar school?

E. Gaston Collins.

In commenting on this, I will submit the following:

- 1. I know but little about Brenau College, hence cannot now commend or condemn it. I would gladly have investigated fully for our brother, but the Atlanta brethren have agreed to give me a year's leave of absence from the work, and it is taking every moment of my time trying to get things in such a condition that the work will be properly cared for in my absence.
 - 2. We have no loyal congregation at Gainesville.
- 3. Yes, I think our brethren can find everything that is worth having at David Lipscomb College, and I must earnestly insist that it is the duty of our fathers and mothers to patronize such a college when they send their sons and daughters from home to finish their education. I believe it is a sin to let the child get away from what the home life should be. If our homes are what they should be, the sons and daughters know something about prayer and Bible study in the home. It would be better if all education were begun, continued, and completed in the home, or sufficiently near to keep the child under the influence of the home life. When this cannot be done, then choose the college where the Bible study and prayer are among the leading exercises, that this fundamental characteristic of every Christian home may stay with our boys and girls. Of course, we find those who object to colleges where the Bible is taught. The Roman Catholic Church has ever objected to such colleges, and we have a few men who call themselves "loyal disciples" who object to such colleges. The fact is, fathers and mothers who have made their homes really Christian homes, who have had systematic Bible study in their homes with the children, and who have ever had the altar of prayer in their homes and have met their children daily at this altar, could hardly endure the idea of sending their sons and daughters to any other kind of college when it is possible for them to send them to a college where the Bible is taught and prayer is one of the outstanding characteristics.

The Money Craze.

I think I saw something in the Gospel Advocate some weeks ago on "the money craze." All that was said was well said, but there are some things that I believe could have been better said.

First, I see no reason for our objecting to other religious bodies raising large sums of money, if they want to. The thing that I most object to is what they do with it after it is raised. In fact, I would not know how to condemn any religious order for raising money just because of the amount's being gigantic. The following scripture clearly indicates that the Jerusalem church got together quite a sum of money: "For neither was there among them any that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold, and laid them at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto each, according as any one had need." (Acts 4: 34, 35.) When it comes to members of the church selling all they have and putting it together, we are liable to get together quite a sum, unless the members are very poor. I find nothing said for the purpose of restraining these givers, hence must conclude that the apostles were not afraid of getting too much money together.

Secondly, say what you please about "the money craze," I do not believe those people who call themselves "loyal disciples" are in any serious danger. The fact is, I do not believe we have "the money craze," unless some of us have gone crazy because we have lost a few thousand and others gone crazy trying to make all they can. Never mind the fact that among the disciples of Christ we find some of the most liberal givers on earth. I admit this. But I do say that we have not been in any danger of raising too much money. I think we need "the money craze" that is, we need to get busy and raise "lots" of it. Why does Brother Long have to beg himself almost to death to get money enough to have a forty-thousand-dollar house of worship in Washington? Why do we get such little results from the appeals that have been made for the David Lipscomb College? We have never taught on the money question as we should. I am sure you can find many disciples who have never been impressed with the fact that giving is essential to their salvation. This must be done, if the church of Christ is to be what God would have it be, and if it is to arise and give the world the gospel of Christ.

O O O News Items.

I am glad to report the meeting at Griffin, Ga., doing well. It seems that we are to have a congregation fully established there to the credit of our dear Brother Strickland and the untiring work of Brethren Beck and Hill. We are also expecting the meeting that Brethren Templeton and Horton are now conducting at Cedartown to result in establishing the cause firmly at that place.

Brother Rogers is in a meeting with the Union congregation, not far from Dasher, Ga., and the writer is at Baidwin. My next meeting will be at Fort Valley, where I shall join Brother Ijams in an effort to put a good congregation on the map at that place. Brother Ijams promises to furnish a home for any and all who desire to take their summer vacation at that time and place. Come and work and rejoice with us. The meeting will begin on the fourth Lord's day in this month. From Fort Valley I shall go to Dasher to begin their annual revival the second Lord's day in August.

Never in the history of the work has the outlook been brighter. The South Pryor Street congregation, under the untiring work of Brother R. H. Rogers and the backing of some of the best people we have in Atlanta, has grown greatly in every way. Their offerings last month went above two hundred and fifty dollars. East Point is doing well. They not only meet home expenses, but have always something on hand for almost every good work.

W

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Dan Gunn, of Sparta, Tenn., is in a meeting with the Trinity Lane congregation, this city.

John Allen Hudson, Jr., of Oklahoma City, Okla., weight seven pounds, joins the infant class.

William Etheridge is engaged in evangelistic work for the congregations in Hardeman County, Tenn.

For Exchange—"Robertson's Sermons" for some other good book. Address C. W. Holley, Blair, Okla.

Leslie G. Thomas reports an encouraging prospect at Flint, Mich., where some of the best automobiles are made.

We regret to learn of the death of A. D. Dies, Jr., and extend to Brother and Sister Dies an expression of Christian sympathy.

R. N. Moody is in a meeting at Acton, Tenn. His labors at Delrose resulted in two baptisms. The interest was good throughout.

Among our callers last Saturday was S. H. Hall, who has done, and is doing, efficient service for the Master in Georgia. He was en route home.

James A. Allen preached at Hill's Chapel, Davidson County, Tenn., last Lord's day. J. W. Grant began a protracted meeting there last Sunday night.

F. C. Sowell, of Columbia, Tenn., will spend the month of August in Texas holding meetings. He is now at Beasley's Chapel, in Williamson County.

Two persons, sixty-five years of age, obeyed the gospel during a six-days' meeting conducted by J. C. Hollis at Pine Branch Schoolhopse, near Ætna, Tenn.

Joe Ratcliffe, of Bardwell, Ky., closed a meeting at Cardwell, Mo., on July 13, in which there were seventeen additions, including eleven baptisms and five restorations.

M. C. Kurfees is engaged in a protracted meeting near Mocksville, N. C. He recently preached for a good and appreciative audience at St. Elmo Church, Chattanooga, Tenn

Total contributions for the house of worship in Washington, D. C., from June 1 to July 1, were $588.13. The brethren there are grateful. Let us finish this work and take up another.

From W. Curtis Porter, Evening Shade, Ark., July 12: "I began a meeting at Simstown, near Evening Shade, last Saturday. Large crowds and good attention. I shall go to King's Mills for a meeting next."

Charles F. Hardin reports a short meeting at Sparta, Mo., in which the seed was sown for a later harvest. He is now leading the song service at Kennett, where M. S. Mason is conducting a good meeting.

We enjoyed a visit from R. W. Jernigan, of Bridgeport, Ala., last Saturday. He has been busily engaged in protracted-meeting work, and was on his way to Hohenwald, Tenn., to begin a meeting on last Lord's day.

- C. M. Stubblefield made us a call last week. He had closed an interesting meeting at Paducah, Ky., his old home, and was en route to Montgomery, Ala., where he is now located. He is busy in the work of the Master.
- H. T. King, who is laboring so earnestly and successfully for the church in McMinnville, Tenn., spent some time in this city last week. We were very much pleased to have him call and talk over the work in the Master's vineyard.
- B. C. Goodpasture has just closed a very interesting meeting at Bellbuckle, Tenn., in which three persons were brought into the church of Christ. He was much pleased with the work there. His next meeting was announced to begin at Oakland, Tenn., on last Lord's day.

From Thornton Crews, Rogersville, Ala., July 17: "I closed a successful meeting at Pleasant Valley, near this place, last night. We had two additions by primary obedience. Our crowds were splendid and the interest was fine. I will begin a meeting at Romine Schoolhouse to-day."

From L. E. Carpenter, Abilene, Texas, July 11: "This has been an enjoyable day with us in Abilene. I have just closed a very interesting meeting with the North Side congregation here, in which eight were baptized and two restored. We also baptized two from the College Chapel congregation."

We were pleased to have a call from W. B. Young, of Manatee, Fla. He is working to get a house in which to worship in Manatee. He lacks about two hundred and fifty dollars of having sufficient funds to pay for the roof of the house. He preached at Huntsville, Ala., last Lord's day a week ago, and received a contribution for the work.

- T. B. Thompson writes that the establishment of the proposed Bible school for winter study at Avon Park, Fla., will be postponed one year. Responses were favorable, but on account of abnormal renting and building conditions it was thought best to wait. Brother Thompson reports the church at Avon Park to be in splendid condition.
- I. B. Bradley writes: "I have held meetings since the middle of April as follows: At St. Elmo, with twelve baptisms; at Beulah, Miss., one baptism; at Fairland, Okla., no additions, but a small congregation induced to drop the use of instrumental music and worship 'as it is written;' at Vanleer, Tenn., one baptism. I go next to West Kentucky to spend six weeks in protracted meetings."

Earnest C. Love recently closed a meeting in East Chattaneoga, Tenn., which resulted in three baptisms, while the church was strengthened in the faith and inspired to purer, nobler, and better living. All were much pleased with the sermons, which were forceful, scriptural, and faultlessly delivered. He is to hold several meetings in Middle Tennessee before returning to his home in Santa Rosa, Cal.

From William P. Walker, Indian Mound, Tenn., July 15: "Our tent meeting continues at this place. This is our second week here. We are unable to seat all the people who attend the services. Good singing and intense interest are some of the encouraging features of the meeting. One addition to date. You may expect a better report from us next week. We believe in remaining at a place until results are obtained."

John E. Dunn has closed a good meeting with the Sylvana Church, in Ellis County, Texas. He is now in the midst of a fine meeting at Prairie Hill, Texas. Brother Dunn will be engaged in protracted meetings in July and August. He will labor with the Terrell Church another year. He has his arrangements so made that he can hold meetings at any time. He is to begin a meeting at Corinth, Miss., on the first Sunday in October. Address him at Irving, Texas, Route 2.

The death of S. W. Womack in this city on July 13 removed from this world one of the most useful and one of the most highly esteemed colored preachers in this part of the country. His son-in-law, M. Keeble, has written a good sketch of his life, which will appear shortly in the Gospel Advocate. The funeral was largely attened. F. W. Smith and A. B. Lipscomb made brief talks in appreciation of Brother Womack's widespread Christian influence and irreproachable character.

From R. A. Craig, Parksville, Ky., July 14: "Our meeting here is now in the second week. The very best of interest and order prevail. Seven have been baptized to date, with one more to be baptized this afternoon. I have taught nothing but the gospel since coming here. Not long ago some of our so-called 'loyal preachers' tried to advance some of the theories here that have caused division at other places. Thanks be to the brethren, they would not stand for it. I am praying for loyal men to launch out into the Master's harvest. We need more preachers of the gospel."

We enjoyed a pleasant visit last week from C. E. Wooldridge, of Murfreesboro, Tenn. Brother Wooldridge is giving up his work at Murfreesboro and expects to return to the State of Texas. The Gospel Advocate congratulates itself upon securing his services for building up the circulation of the paper in the West and also for the contribution of articles on timely themes to appear in its columns. It is deeply regretted that so useful a worker as he has been in Tennessee has decided to return to the West, but as he is going, we are greatly rejoiced to have so useful an acquisition to our working force. We bespeak a cordial reception for him by the brotherhood of the West.

J. W. Grant recently closed a meeting at Ravenscroft, Tenn. The church was greatly edified by his work and pleased with his preaching. The few brethren there wish to locate a preacher to preach in the surrounding country for a while. The church will undertake to see that he is supported. Any faithful preacher of the gospel who can devote his time to the work for the next few months should write to Mrs. W. B. Hunter, Ravenscroft, Tenn. A few days ago Brother Grant called to us, and brought the sad information that his wife expected to undergo a very serious operation. We shall rejoice to know that she has passed through the operation successfully and is on the read to recovery.

From J. A. Hudson, Oklahoma City, Okla., July 16: "The series of meetings conducted at the Tenth and Francis Streets Church closed last night with twenty additions. G. A. Dunn stayed with us only a week. His program was cut in two in such a way that it seemed best to him not to stay longer. Five were-added during his stay. After he left, through the solicitation of the brethren I continued services, with fifteen more additions. We feel that we have had a good meting. The brethren here have agreed that I may hold two out-of-town meetings. The first one will be at Mountain View and the second one at El Reno. I shall begin at Mountain View on the second Sunday in August. The El Reno meeting will be held during the latter part of September."

From Hugh H. Miller, Rochester, N. Y.: "I recently held a two-weeks' meeting at Westbrook, Maine. The meeting grew in interest from beginning to end, but closed without visible results. The brethren at Westbrook, although weak in numbers, are strong in the faith, and will eventually do great things for the Lord. Any preaching brother having occasion to be in that part of the country would do well to communicate with H. F. Stultz, 51 Lamb Street, Westbrook Me., who will arrange to have you be with them. The brethren there are not rich in this world's goods, but they will guarantee your expenses, and show you the kindest hospitality while in their midst. I have received contributions to the Rochester work for the month of June amounting to ninety-six dollars."

Following is a statement received from the elders of the church at Washington, D. C.: "The elders of the church of Christ at Washington earnestly commend to the consideration of the brotherhood our dear brother, W. S. Long, who for the last twenty-ene months has served, and is now serving, this congregation as a minister. Brother Long will shortly visit Tennessee and other points in the interest of the campaign among the churches for aid in the purchase of the house of worship which this congregation has contracted for. The building will cost forty thousand dollars, and we are paying fifteen thousand dollars cash. The property is in character and keeping with what we believe the brethren would heartily approve as a place of worship in the capital of the nation. Brother Long can tell you about the local situation and our needs. We be-speak your liberal fellowship in this work. All checks and money orders should be made payable to our treasurer, E. L. Mills; and Brother Long is authorized to receive donations for this cause." Graham Egerton, John W. Gibson, William M. Locke, and Charles G. Truax are the elders of the church in Washington.

M. C. Cayce writes from Jackson, Miss.: "Our tent meeting here closed on Sunday night, June 27. The truth was presented 'as it is written' to many who had never heard it before, and a future reaping will surely result from the sowing, provided we follow up the work, which it is my purpose to do. Three were baptized and one was restored. We found three Christians who were not meeting for worship and did not know of each other nor of any place to meet. Hereafter those who are content to worship 'as it is written' will meet regularly for worship in the W. O. W. Hall every Lord's-day afternoon until such time as we can build a house of our own. Cottage prayer meetings will also be held weekly. I ask all who know of members in or near Jackson to let me have their names and addresses. On Wednesday, June 30, at high noon, in Senatobia, Miss., I performed the ceremony at the marriage of my sister's daughter, Marjorie Dinkins, to J. E. Robuck. They have gone to Jackson to live, and will help our little band in the work there. After the marriage Brother Dinkins, his wife and son, and I drove through the country in an automobile to Charleston, where I made a talk at the burial of Mrs. Dr. C. H. Tucker's baby boy, nineteen months old. Mrs. Tucker is my youngest sister.

W. H. Garrett, O. F. Underwood, W. E. Hackney, and J. T. Gywnn, Reception Committee, make the following announcement: "The congregation worshiping at Vine, Tenn., midway between Lebanon and Murfreesboro, thirty miles east of Nashville, will hold an old-fashioned community (camp) meeting, beginning on the first Sunday in August and continuing sixteen days. There will be three or more services each day during the meeting. H. W. Wrye, of Dallas, Texas, assisted by others, will do the preaching. Armstrong Taylor, of the David Lipscomb College, will direct the singing. The object of this meeting is to save souls and to bring together a large company of brethren and sisters in Christ that they may get acquainted and enjoy a refreshing feast of spiritual things from our Heavenly Father. Therefore, with pleasure we extend this invitation to you, hoping that you will attend and meet members of the church from various parts of the country. The best sulphur and freestone waters to be found are here in abundance. The people in the neighborhood here will supply camping parties daily with fresh fruit, vegetables, poultry and dairy products, at the lowest prices. Bring your tent and camp with us, and let us have a glorious meeting, in communion mingling our voices together in praise to our loving Father."

The interesting letter below, which was written to Brother and Sister McQuiddy, is given to our readers because both Brother and Sister Larimore have so many friends in this country who are readers of the Gospel Advocate. Many of the friends of Brother Larimore frequently inquire to know about his work. In order that all may know just how he is, we take the liberty of publishing this letter:

"My Beloved Brother and Sister: 'A stranger in a strange land,' far away from friends and loved ones of long ago, but with loved ones and new friends whom I appreciate, I am quietly celebrating the seventy-seventh anniversary of my birth by preparing to preach in San Francisco and Berkeley to-morrow (July 11) and night, respectively, as I try to do every first day of the week. It is good to be here, but I hope to spend next year in the field of my former labors, principally in Tennessee. I rarely write to any one now, but I love my friends none the less, and probably think of them more frequently because I write so rarely. A few days, or years at most, shall finish my career, and I hope to be ready to go when the call shall come.

"With love and best wishes to all, I am, as ever,
"Your friend and brother,
"T. B. LARIMORE."

RELIEF FUND

"Whose stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry, but shall not be heard."

"A Sister," Mount Juliet, Tenn,	5.00
L. M. Gray and family, Mayfield, Ky	15.00
Church at Charleston, Miss	10.00
Church at Pikeville, Tenn.	12.83
Church at Lavergne, Tenn	13.00
Mrs. E. L. Whitaker, Henderson, Tenn
D. A. Springer, Henderson, Tenn	1.00

We print this week an acknowledgment from the State Director of Near East Relief:

We have just received notice in the office of the Near East Relief headquarters that the readers of the Gospel Advocate have contributed to the Near East relief fund, through the national office in New York City, the sum of one thousand dollars. I wish personally to thank you for the interest which you have taken in this worthy cause, and would appreciate it if you would state through your columns to the readers that I personally thank each one of them on behalf of the national committee, the State committee, and especially on behalf of the little children in the Near East whose lives will be saved by the personal contribution of each individual who so graciously has contributed through your paper.

Hoping that we may have your continued cooperation and interest, and that I, in some way, may be of service to you in your work, I am,

WALTER A. SMITH,

State Director.

In sending contributions, be sure and state whether they are intended for the Home Orphans' Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Fund, or the Poland Fund. I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for orphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb, who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

S2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Hemittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter. Fublished weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

"Wrangling in the Papers."

BY M. C. K.

Following the recent article in these columns on "Religious Controversy" and the coincidental discussion of the same question by Brother S. H. Hall in his department in the Gospel Advocate, I think it proper and timely to say still more on the same subject. After carefully making the very proper discrimination between controversy or discussion itself and the wrong manner of conducting it, Brother Hall says:

But I think I have seen things in our papers that could be called "wrangling," and that between brethren. The thing that makes me feel sad is that it seems that there are no two men in the church who can get into a discussion in the paper but that they let it drift into a wrangle. Hence, I would say to the papers that it would be well for them to examine themselves with carefulness and see if they have not given good reasons for the statement, "There is too much wrangling in our papers." I have ever believed that any two honest souls can see any practical question exactly alike, and that if they do differ and our Lord that we may be one, as he and his Father are one. We are commanded to speak the same things, to have no divisions among us, to be perfectly joined together in the same mind and in the same judgment; and we can, if our hearts are right. But count the number of discussions in the papers or out of them, where the disputants got together.

These are timely words and well worth repeating. In so far as the writer of this editorial has taken part in religious controversy, it has been his constant and persistent aim in recent years to conduct his own part of it, not only in the spirit of the Master, but otherwise to elevate such exchanges between brethren to the high plane on which they should always be kept, and never, in either matter or manner, to indulge in anything below this plane. I am not only profoundly convinced that this is both right and imperatively demanded, but every moment's observation and reflection confirms me in the position.

In a few instances brethren who were possibly dominated more by the belligerent spirit than by the spirit of genuine investigation merely to elicit and defend the truth have charged me with being too lenient with an opponent in controversy. Some of this class seemed to think I was too forbearing and gentle in my exchange some years ago over the society issue with the Christian Standard; but with all due respect for those making the criticism, I respectfully challenge them or any one else to point out a single position assumed by me in those exchanges that is not in thorough harmony with the New Testament and with the time-honored position held by the Gospel Advocate throughout its history. Our lamented senior editor, while he was still able and delighted to converse on such themes, heartily commended my course in such discussion. But he was a rare man. He possessed the intellectual grasp and penetration which enabled him to look below the surface of things and to see and apprecrate a great principle. It is neither uncommon nor surprising for men, and especially young men who have not carefully studied the subject on all sides, to draw conclusions which the premises not only do not warrant, but which the premises positively condemn. They sometimes shy at things which, under a different form, they themselves do without knowing it.

It is here most freely and fully granted that we should never be gentle or lenient in discussion with any man or set of men at the expense of yielding where there is any principle of truth or righteousness involved. On the contrary, we should stand for such principle to the full extent of our ability, even if it has to be done at the sacrifice of the dearest friendships and most kindly feelings or even at the sacrifice of the respect of men. But surely it is proper to be courteous, considerate, and dignified in dealing with our opponents, to state their positions fairly and fully, and to concede to them all that we can honorably concede without sacrificing truth. Yea, within the limits of truth and fact, we should try to narrow the field of difference and to recognize the ground on which they and we are already agreed and united in principle. Candor and fairness should be conspicuous on both sides in all discussions between men, and especially between Christian men. They should not only state each other's positions fairly and fully, but they should maintain mutual respect and dignity. They do not have to be jagged in argument or unkind in spirit in order to maintain fidelity to the truth. Loyalty to the Lord is not evinced by "cutting and slashing." In the language of Jehovah, every Christian man's attitude toward an opponent in discussion should be: "Come now, and let us reason together." (Isa. 1: 18.) This was the attitude ever maintained by Jesus in argument. He put his arguments pointedly and strongly, and get Into a discussion they will get together. I dislike to discuss anything with a brother unless the controlling motive in both his and my heart is to fulfill the wishes of religious error, and fight it all the time and wherever there is an opportunity, but we should try to win and save men who have become entangled in error. Like some of the Jews of our Lord's time, they will sometimes prove to be stubborn and unyielding, even exhibiting the spirit that would "take up stones to cast at" men who come to them with the truth (John 8: 59); but when it is demonstrated that nothing can be done toward winning them to the truth, we can again imitate Jesus by turning away from them and leaving them alone.

Let us continue the good work of religious discussion—the more of it, the better—but let us carefully distinguish between discussion or controversy itself and mere wrangling. Let us encourage the former, but have none of the latter. Let us not furnish the enemies of religion a needless cause to speak lightly of religion. Whenever there is an opportunity, let us always and everywhere "contend earnestly for the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints" (Jude 3), but let us never anywhere or at any time "bite and devour one another" (Gal. 5: 15). Such conduct is disgusting even among politicians. Let us ever advocate and defend the truth, but let our advocacy ever be an exhibition of "speaking truth in love." (Eph. 4: 15.) This course is none other than to follow the example of Jesus.

Woman Suffrage.

BY J. C. M'Q.

R. G. Buchanan, of Lavergne, Tenn., sends the following question to Brother E. A. Elam to answer through the Gospel Advocate: "Is it right and according to the teaching of the Bible for Christian women to vote in the elections?" Brother Elam has turned over the question to me, with the suggestion that I answer it if I think best.

As I understand, the argument of the suffragist is that "God created all persons equal" and that "no human being can have any rights unless all have the same." These women argue that woman is man's equal in every particular and, therefore, should have equal rights. They contend that woman suffrage will purify politics. It is clear that those who make such statements are either ignorant of the teaching of the word of God or they do not have the respect for it that they should have. Everybody knows that man and woman are not equal in all respects. It is clear that in some things they are equal and like, but in other respects they are unequal and unlike. I do not believe that the good women of Tennessee want the ballot; but even if they did, the question which man must determine is not affected in the least. It is not a question of what women want, but what they ought to have. In the beginning it was Eve that wanted to eat the forbidden fruit, but because she wanted to do so did not make it right. Eve wanted her husband to eat as she had done, but this did not make it right for Adam to do so. He preferred to disobey God rather than to forsake the companionship of the woman. But after their disobedience it should be noted that God did not hold them equal in all respects. "Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy pain and thy conception; in pain thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee. And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in toil shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field; in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken; for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." (Gen. 3: 16-19.) Thus, just after the fall, we find that God placed woman in the home and made it her duty to bring forth children, with the understanding that "thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." If any are disposed to find fault with this position, they are disposed to complain of the will of God Almighty, and not of the will of man. Coming down to the New Testament, we again learn that the duties of man and woman are not the same. Paul admonishes Titus to teach the aged women, "that they may train the young women to love their husbands, to love their children, to be sober-minded, chaste, workers at home, kind, being in subjection to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed." (Tit. 2: 4, 5.)

As the modern woman is demanding not only suffrage, but also political equality, it is clear that she cannot hold office and perform the duties of politics and remain at home at the same time. Whenever woman abandons home, where God placed her as queen and ruler over her children and where she has more influence than any other person, she at once rejects the will of God and loses her influence and power for good. While it is to be regretted that conditions are sometimes such as to make it necessary for a woman to earn her own livelihood, and while, when such conditions arise, it is noble in her to bravely rise superior to such conditions and support herself, yet it is not the ordained will of Jehovah for the race. Of course certain individuals may have to do things, as individuals, that it is not best and proper to encourage the race to do. Dr. Kirch, in "The Sexual Life of Woman," stated the effects of woman's emancipation when he said: "The woman who spends the whole day at a desk, in the law courts, or in a house of assembly, may be a most honorable and most useful individual, but she is no longer a woman, she cannot be a wife, she cannot be a mother. In the conditions of our society the emancipation of women is in its very nature the negation of marriage." The experience of the human race has demonstrated the wisdom of God in ordaining that man should be the head of the woman, as Christ is the head of the church.

I quote from an address to the men of Tennessee on "Female Suffrage," by John J. Vertrees, a unanimous opinion delivered by Justice Brewer on this subject. The Court said:

That woman's physical structure and the performance of maternal functions place her at a disadvantage in the struggle for existence is obvious. This is especially true when the burdens of motherhood are upon her. Even when they are not, by abundant testimony of the medical fraternity, continuance for a long time on her feet at work, repeating this from day to day, tends to an injurious effect on the body; and as healthy mothers are essential to vigorous offspring, the physical well-being of women becomes an object of public interest and care in order to preserve the strength and vigor of the race.

Still again, history discloses the fact that woman has always been dependent upon man. He established control at the outset by superior physical strength, and this control in various forms with diminishing intensity has continued to the present. Even though all restrictions of political, personal, or contractual rights were taken away and she stood, so far as statutes are concerned, upon an absolutely equal plane with man, it would still be true that she is so constituted that she will rest upon and look to him for protection; that her physical structure and the proper discharge of her maternal functions—having in view not merely her own health, but the well-being of the -justify legislation to protect her from the greed as The two sexes differ well as the passion of men. in structure of body, in the functions to be performed by each, in the amount of physical strength, in the capacity for long-continued labor, particularly when done standing, the influence of vigorous health upon the future well-being the race, the self-reliance which enables one to assert full rights, and in the capacity to maintain the struggle subsistence. This difference justifies a difference in legislation and upholds that which is designed to compensate for some of the burdens which rest upon her,

When woman, as a class, reverses God's order to assume outside duties that belong to man, it will be a dark day for the world. It would indeed be detrimental to the race if the division of duties were changed so that women looked without and men within in the performance of their work. We can hardly think it best for women to tunnel mountains, work in coal mines, run steam engines, or climb telegraph poles. The work of man is in the field, and the work of woman is in the home. It is not possible for women to attend conventions and spend weeks away from their children and do the work that only a mother can do in rearing and training her children for heaven. It is not possible for a woman to spend her time in an office looking after the affairs of the government and at the same time perform the duties of wife and mother. The breaking down of God's order for the race only tends to destroy the family, which is the support of the State, the nation, and the church. As the church is the light of the world, so the family is the salt of the church. Men should marry women, treat them as their equals, love them as Christ loved the church and gave himself for it, in order that the race may reach the highest and best civilization possible. If woman in the home, where God placed her, cannot refine and ennoble humanity, she cannot do so by entering politics. The experience of those States which have joined the ranks of woman suffrage has proven that it is a failure and that it does not tend to uplift and purify politics. Woman fulfilling her God-given mission, submitting to her husband, living in her home in the manner that God has ordained, wields more influence for good than any other being, and more than she can wield in any other sphere.

In concluding this article, I quote what Mr. Brooks Adams said in an introductory address in Quincy, Mass,, which admirably expresses what every true man knows:

From the remotest antiquity women have formed the cement or core of society; for women have represented the constant, and men the variable, principle in human relations. The man has been a farmer, or a hunter, or a shepherd, or a fisher, or a sailor, or a soldier, and to win a livelihood he has been forced to wander far. But he has always returned, hoping to find his wife and children safe at home. Thus the woman, by the law of her being, has incarnated the essence of the family, and the family has been the corner stone of the state, the support of the church, and the standard of morality. And to achieve her destiny the woman has sacrificed herself, just as the man, in moments of peril, has always given his life for the woman.

But to perform her office, the woman has to divest herself of outside interests and to live at home. She could no more quit her family than the soldier could stray from his regiment, the sallor desert his ship, or the shepherd abandon his flock. For all obedience, all discipline, and all moral influence is rooted in unremitting personal supervision.

"Is It a Dead Letter or No?"

BY F. W. SMITH.

The following article from the Christian Standard, under the above heading, is given to our readers this week in order that they may be still further enlightened on the doings of the society managers and the vigorous protests of those who furnish the money for operating purposes:

At a mass meeting in October, 1919, at Cincinnati, a Constitution was submitted for "The United Christian Missionary Society," a proposed consolidation of six of our missionary and other agencies.

As thus presented, this Constitution provided for a selfperpetuating board, through a self-perpetuating committee, affording no opportunity for a change of administration at the will of the proposed society.

This strange omission was corrected by amendment, moved, if we remember rightly, by E. L. Powell, of Louisville, and unanimously adopted by vote of the assembly. This amendment runs as follows: "Nominations may be made from the floor of the Convention, in addition to those made by the Nominating Committee."

It seems manifestly the will of the society to reserve to itself the power to nominate and elect its own officers, without regard to self-perpetuating committees.

The necessity for this is apparent when we consider the fact that in the consolidation of these six societies into one, which was then effected, not a single change was made in the officiary. Every officer of every society was retained in this consolidation. The self-perpetuating feature could no further go.

Believing that this is not the will of the brethren who are entitled to a vote on this question, it has seemed good to the Christian Standard to discover, if possible, what the sentiment of the brotherhood is on this important point—whether the management is to remain forever in the hands of a select few, because the many have no opportunity to express themselves. In order to test this, it has occurred to us to take the largest obtainable vote on the most responsible office in the organization—namely, the office of president.

The membership of the United Society, as provided in the Constitution, is as follows: "Article V. The membership of this society shall be composed of all members of churches of Christ who are committed to the purpose of the society, and who support its work. Only such members may vote as are in attendance in person at the time the vote is taken."

According to this Constitution, only the vote cast in person will serve to elect; but a preferential vote will determine the sentiment of the brotherhood, and, for the first time in our history, a preferential vote is now proposed.

For many years each of the separate boards has been retained in the hands of a small group of individuals, entrenched in their positions through the exercise of the nominating privilege by the presiding officer; and now, united in one board, these several groups, without the loss of one individual, are found in position as officers of the United Society. The self-perpetuating system functions to admiration.

Under this system there has naturally developed a growing disregard of public sentiment. Responsible only to themselves, society officials have proceeded from great to greater disregard of that sentiment, and in their first year of power as a united body have seemingly cast all restraint to the winds, to trifle with the convictions and to speculate with the funds of the brotherhood in a way that indicates absolute independence of that sentiment. We need only specify the odious attempt to enroll us as a mere sect among sects in the Interchurch venture, and the hazarding and loss of $600,000 of missionary funds, with untold expenses, on the remote chance of reaping a golden harvest from the non-Christian and non-Protestant population.

It is, therefore, high time that something be done to determine whether this board is, or is not, responsible to the sentiment of the brethren, and whether the only provision in the Constitution that enforces such responsibility shall be a dead letter or no. A preferential ballot for president, such as we now propose, will go far to determine this point.

The present incumbent is conspicuously identified with the foregoing measures, and the policy of the board, and as an upright officer should welcome a test of their popularity.

The readiest and least expensive way to make a test would be for the Standard to name a candidate, and submit his name, with that of the present incumbent, for a preferential ballot; but this would not be much better than the prevailing system of self-nomination. The Standard candidate would justly be under suspicion of factional bias; nor would we be willing to name such a candidate. The one fair method is to have a preferential nomination, as well as a preferential ballot.

As the class best qualified by knowledge, both of our public interests and of our public men, the ministers are outstanding; and the ministry, as registered in the Yearbook of 1920, shall comprise the list to which we shall submit the naming of the candidates for the ballot, on the following plan:

Each minister will be supplied with a prepaid post card, by means of which he is requested to nominate the one man among us he regards as best fitted for president of the United Society for the coming year. The present incumbent will, of course, be eligible. Such cards will be received at Cincinnati not later than July 9. Nominations will close at that time. There should be prompt action. From the candidates thus named, the six who figure

From the candidates thus named, the six who figure highest in the count will be submitted in the same way to a general ballot of the entire brotherhood. That is, each number, whose name and address is obtainable, will receive a similar card, with the names of the six preferential candidates, with appropriate blanks for checking, and with a blank line for any other name which may be preferred, and he or she will be requested to mark the name which is preferred among the six, or to write independently the name of some one preferred to any or all of them, and to mail the same to us.

The balloting will continue until October 1, the Standard in the meantime furnishing prepaid post cards to all who may be entitled to vote, depending on the coöperation of all the brethren in furnishing the names. We shall send out not less than one hundred thousand names to begin with, and through them, especially through the ministers, we hope to secure at least one half-million votes. The vote is open absolutely to the entire membership.

The greater the vote, the less liability there will be of influencing any considerable part of it. The Standard is frankly against the present system, but each voter can only express his or her own personal choice. There can be no collusion.

All signatures, both in nominations and in ballots, will be held sacredly confidential. Only the number of votes for each candidate will be reported, and that will be done weekly until the ballot ends.

The candidate securing the largest number of votes on the ballot will be nominated from the floor of the Convention, in opposition to the candidate of the Nominating Committee, unless the committee anticipates us by nominating him first. If he declines the nomination, the next in order will be presented, and so on.

The importance of the vote, whether the voter agrees with the Standard or not, is obvious. No one should fail to record his convictions in regard to the administration of this agency.

It is an opportunity that will not soon recur. This is the greatest enterprise ever undertaken in our journalism. It will be enormously expensive. It is desirable that the scntiment of the whole brotherhood be known. Let us know it. We will be thankful for every assistance that will enable us to reach every intelligent soul in the brotherhood. Address all communications to the Christian Standard, Box 5, Station N, Cincinnati, Ohio.

Comment on the situation is scarcely necessary, for it seems that no sane person could fail to see the ends to which such a departure from the New Testament order leads. The society has gone from bad to worse until it has degenerated into a political wrangle upon the part of its managers and a large portion of its constituency. The balloting process is resorted to in the managing of the affairs of the kingdom of God, as if God had left such matters to the wisdom of men. The work of disseminating the gospel of the Son of God is essentially and supremely a part of the divine arrangement most clearly revealed in the holy oracles, and there is not the shadow or even the semblance of a shadow remotely favoring the arrangement adopted by the society brethren which has plunged them into this political wrangle. Man has no right whatever to vote on anything pertaining to the work and service of God involving a change or modification of what we find in the New Testament. The worship and service of God are matters prescribed by divine wisdom; and when man is told how to do a thing, the how is as binding as the thing to be done. There is not the slightest intimation in the New Testament of any organization for any purpose whatever other than the local congregations, which were independent of each other. The federating or binding these local churches into an organization known as "the United Christian Missionary Society" is a perversion of God's order and productive of the bitter fruit which now hangs upon the society tree. For quite four thousand years God tolerated man's efforts to try out his own wisdom of devising plans for himself in order that man should learn his inability to direct his steps. The kingdom of Israel is a notable example of this fact. God tolerated it, gave It to them in his anger and took it away in his wrath. (Hos. 13: 11.) God's order for ruling Israel was through judges, but this they despised and desired their own way, with a king. It proved a failure and brought them to ruin. The analogy between ancient Israel and our society brethren is painfully striking.

SELECTIONS BY THE EDITOR

Beware of despairing about yourself .- St. Augustine.

0 0 0

When a man has not a good reason for doing a thing, he has one reason for letting it alone.—Walter Scott.

0 0 4

We make provision for this life as if it were never to have an end, and for the other life as though it were never to have a beginning.—Addison.

***** * * *

We cannot live among men, suspicious of our own interest and fighting for our own hand, without doing dishonor and hurt to our own nature.—Blair.

$ $ $

Some men want to have religion like a dark lantern, and carry it in their pocket, where nobody but themselves can get any good from it.—Beecher.

D D D

What God is doing in this world is making men and women; and when he puts a child in the cradle, he says: "You may help me."—Lyman Abbott.

0 0 0

If you ever find happiness by hunting for it, you will find it as the old woman did her lost spectacles—safe on her own nose all the time.—Josh Billings.

$ $ $

We never know for what God is preparing us in his schools—for what work on earth, for what work in the hereafter. Our business is to do our work well in the present place, whatever that may be.—Lyman Abbott.

$ $ $

Christianity wants nothing so much in the world as sunny people, and the old are hungrier for love than for bread. The oil of joy is very cheap; and if you can help the poor with a garment of praise, it will be better for them than blankets.—Drummond.

0 0 0

He who helps a child helps humanity with a distinctness which no other help given to human creatures can possibly give. He who puts his influence into the fountain where the river comes out puts his influence in everywhere. No land it may not reach.—Phillips Brooks.

* * *

If thou workest at that which is before thee, following right reason seriously, vigorously, caimly, without allowing anything else to distract thee, but keeping thy divine part pure, if thou shouldest be bound to give it back immediately; if thou holdest to this, expecting nothing, fearing nothing, but satisfied with thy present activity according to nature, and with heroic truth in every word and sound which thou utterest, thou wilt live happy. And there is no man who is able to prevent this.—Marcus Aurelius.

One of the natural tendencies of the mortal mind is toward proselyting. The moment we believe something to be true we begin to try to convert others to our belief. We learn to say, with some degree of realization, "God worketh in me to will and to do of his good pleasure," but we quite forget that the same God is working equally in our brother "to will and to do." "I am the door," says the Christ within every man's own soul. Now you are trying to have your dear one enter in through your door. He must enter in through his own Christ, his own desire.—H. E. Cady.

Current Thought

Good Citizenship.

Our country is infinitely more than a domain affording to those who dwell upon it immense material advantages and opportunities. In such a country we live, to think of a glorious nation built upon the will of free men, set apart for the propagation and cultivation of humanity's best ideal of a free government, and made ready for the growth and fruitage of the highest aspirations of patriotism. This is the country that lives in us. I indulge in no mere figure of speech when I say that our nation, the immortal spirit of our domain, lives in us— in our hearts and minds and consciences. There it must in our hearts and minds and consciences. find its nutriment or die. This thought more than any other presents to our minds the impressiveness and responsibility of American citizenship. The land we live in seems to be strong and active. But how fares the land that lives in us? Are we sure that we are doing all we ought to keep it in vigor and health? Are we keeping its roots well surrounded by the fertile soil of loving allegiance, and are we furnishing them the invigorating moisture of unselfish fidelity? Are we as diligent as we ought to be to protect this precious growth against the poison that must arise from the decay of harmony and honesty and industry and frugality; and are we sufficiently watchand industry and ringality, and are we sumciently watch-ful against the deadly, burrowing pests of consuming greed and cankerous cupidity? Our answers to these questions make up the account of our stewardship as keepers of a sacred trust.—Grover Cleveland.

It should be our effort to make good citizens out of the young men and women of this country. It is far more important to teach them self-sacrifice, honor, and integrity than it is to teach them the contents of books. Self-interest and self-indulgence have recently asserted themselves. Our people are becoming so selfish that they do not look beyond the Atlantic or beyond the Pacific. To them the world is smaller than it was in 1918. Their disposition is to live to themselves. The best way to make good citizens is to teach men to love, respect, and obey the word of God. No man can know the truth and do the truth without making a good citizen. Our schools and our colleges should devote some time to the teaching of the word of God. It may be that the general laxity in morals of the present time is but a reflex of the great war. Our people cannot afford to continue in this condition. Continuation in this will not only be disastrous to good citizenship, but will also be destructive to our homes and our families. No man is really a good citizen who does not make the world better from his having passed through it. The purpose of every being should be to strive for that which is noblest, purest, and best.

0 0 0

The Summer Is the Best Time For a Meeting.

In this day of comparatively good roads and automobiles, good meetings can be held easier in the summer time than in any other time of year. Do not try to hold the meeting in a hot, stuffy building, but pitch a tent, and the people will get into their cars and flock in from miles around. After a day's work folks like to have a perfectly good excuse to take an exhilarating drive. Ten miles means but a very short drive in a car. By actual test, in both country and city, this plan works better than any yet tried. There are reasons for it.

The summer time is the only time in which we can successfully hold tent meetings. The above quotation from C. J. Sharp, in the Christian Standard, shows that Christians are beginning to realize the effectiveness of tent meetings. Churches in Nashville have been using the tent for many years, and, as I now recall, the most successful years of the evangelism of the church of Christ in the city of Nashville was when the tent was used very freely. A large tent meeting was held just back of where the building of the Foster Street church of Christ now stands. J. A. Harding conducted that meeting, and there were over one hundred additions. Tent meetings were also held in South Nashville, North Nashville, and other parts of the city. Joe McPherson held a tent meeting at Twelfth Avenue which resulted in the active congregation that we now have at that place. The growth of the church was much more rapid during that period than it has been since. I would like to encourage Christians all over the country to buy tents and also to stimulate our preachers to give some time to holding meetings in tents. Great good will be accomplished and new congregations will be established. Mr. Sharp continues as follows:

People have a natural dislike for packing into a building in hot weather, but, on the other hand, a tent has a kind of natural fascination for people. It does its own advertising. People will see it, come and hear you, whom you could not have gotten into a church building or a hall, winter or summer. The tent, being somewhat unconventional, serves notice that people may dress to keep cool and yet not be embarrassed. Serve ice water, fans, and even mosquito medicine, if necessary. Give the people a place to be comfortable and let them know you have a thought for their comfort, and you will not lack a hearing. Auto cars, curiosity, and coolness will thus be hitched up and working for a hearing of the gospel instead of against it. Get a group of men, or a group of churches, to buy or rent a tent and try it. The summer slump will be forgotten and the fall will come in like a victory march instead of a funeral march.

0 0 0

The Land of Golden Rule.

If I were asked what I believed, I could not help but say, The gentle and the simple creeds of boyhood's yesterday; The tender faith in Bible things, the truth, the way, the right,

The Golden Rule to live one's life according to the light; And everywhere the thought of God, that we are everywhere

The children of our Father's love and of his Heavenly care.

If I were asked what I believe, I'd have to say, as then, A simpler faith in God's commands, a manlier trust 'mong men.

A clear and more abiding course t'ward that which men might call

The straight-out-from-the-shoulder faith of Peter and of Paul;

The teachings, most of all, that came to us in Sunday school

Way back in little childhood's land, the Land of Golden Rule.

-Folger McKinsey.

A simple, childlike faith in God and the Bible should be cultivated. Every individual must live according to the light of truth, must live in harmony with the Golden Rule, in order to be useful, noble, and happy. Our Heavenly Father seeketh such to worship him. Men must be ready to take God at his word, to believe what he says, to obey his commands, and to lovingly trust him for the fulfillment of his promises.

0 0 0

The Never-Old.

They who can smile when others hate, Nor bind the heart with frosts of fate, Their feet will go with laughter bold The green roads of the Never-Old.

They who can let the spirit shine And keep the heart a lighted shrine, Their feet will glide with fire of gold The green roads of the Never-Old.

They who can put the self aside And in Love's saddle leap and ride, Their eyes will see the gates unfold To green roads of the Never-Old.

-Edwin Markham.

Training Little Children

(Suggestions by mothers who have been kindergartners. Issued by The United States Bureau of Education, Washington, D. C., and The National Kindergarten Association, New York, N. Y.)

Fatherhood, a Profession.

We hear a great deal of the sanctity of motherhood and of the sacred responsibilities of the mother; but who talks about the nobility of fatherhood and the wonderful privilege of being a father? One would almost suppose that children had but one parent, or that, beyond the obligation of support, a father owed nothing to his children.

As a matter of fact, just what does he owe them?

In the first place, he owes them the best possible inheritance of health and natural strength. If the fathers of the present generation had been taught, as schoolboys, that they owed their children a heritage of physical health, the present generation of children would be a far healthier, happier lot of youngsters.

And having given his children a healthy heritage, the father should share with the mother the oversight of their children's well-being. I know-as every one else doeshosts of fathers who not only fail to take any responsibility about the children's habits, but who actually, though unconsciously, work against the mother by giving surreptitious candy, by keeping the children up late to play with them, and thus make her work with them more difficult. The result is that father is very popular, while mother is considered "awfully fussy."

On the mental side, a child, as he grows older, looks more and more to his father. Wise is the father who takes an active interest in current events or allies himself on the side of local civic improvement, for through his example his children naturally acquire a love of good citizenship.

But on the moral and religious side, how often is father a mere figure head in his own family? Usually it is mother who represents the moral law, or, if father does take a hand, it is merely as the executor of her decreed punishment. "Walt till your father comes home!" is either an empty threat or, in rare cases, a phrase filled with terror for the small rebel.

Too often church attendance is left entirely to the women. The children see mother start off alone for church, while father remains at home to read his paper. The notion that church is a woman's affair is formed so naturally that, later in life, it seems an instinct.

How much children miss, how much fathers miss, by this one-sided parenthood! Happy the boy who looks up to his father as an ideal of bodily vigor, wisdom, and goodness; and this does not mean that father must stand on a pedestal. Far from it! Any one who has read the charming letters of Theodore Roosevelt to his children sees, as in a mirror, the picture of a father utterly devoted to his children, and utterly adored in turn. Whether he is leaping from haymow to haymow in a wild game of tag or reading aloud with his children gathered around him, he is always their chosen companion, their best friend, their greatest hero. And there are many devoted fathers! Francis E. Leupp gives us a charming picture of one in his little book, "A Day with Father."

Reversing a well-known quotation, we may say: "Happy is the father who knows his own child!" Happy because there is no more delightful study than that of the development of a child, as he progresses from infancy, through childhood to youth. Happy because of the inspiration that comes from the companionship of children. Happiest of all because, in the trying times of their youth and early maturity, he will be able to understand his children. He can guide and counsel them instead of standing helplessly byan outsider. If only American fathers would know their children, they would find them more interesting than any business in the world; and as for the children, who can measure their gain? 8 8 8

Good Measure.

It was a pleasant little house and garden in the suburbs of the small town, and its kindly mistress used to add to her modest income by selling what she had to spare of the products of her place. We children were often sent there on such errands, and we always liked to follow her about and chat with her. When we went to her for milk, the quart measure was filled to the brim and poured into our pail, and then a generous bit more added. bought berries or currants, the same process was repeated.

"What makes you always put in an extra handful" we asked, more curious than politic.

"O, just for good measure, child!" she laughed. "I like to give good measure."

She did it with her whole life and with everything she undertook, and the simple life was a cheerful and a hearty one. We did not understand it then, but afterwards we knew that she had learned the "gentle doctrines of the second mile"-all that duty requires, and then a little more for love's sake. The gospel of Jesus Christ is the gospel of good measure, and the sort of life it teaches is the life that not only strives to do its full duty, but likes also to brim the cup for love's sake. The world is full of people who are afraid of the extra handful. If their obligations are barely met, they are persuaded their full share is done. If the service they render fills the requirements ever so scantily, they are satisfied. "Whosoever shall compel thee to go one mile, go with him two," said our Lord in his Sermon on the Mount. Some petty official, wanting a load carried, might force the task upon one whom he met, but his tyranny would lose its sting if to the service demanded was added a free gift of help.

Many of life's drudgeries and hardships would change their aspect if their exactions were buried under the good measure of interest and kindness. A girl was telling of an advanced position she hoped to secure, and, fancying that the one with whom she was talking looked a little doubtful of her ability, she added: "O, I'm not trying to do my best work in a position like this one, of course. With the small salary I receive here, it wouldn't be worth while to do any more than I have to." If she could barely fill the measure, she had no desire to do any more. Whoever has that spirit not only blocks his own advance, but robs himself of the joy of his work.

Duties and obligations are everywhere, and no life can wholly shirk them; but they may be grudgingly and scantily filled and remain a perpetual tax and burden, or they may be accepted in the gospel spirit and become a blessing and a satisfaction. The good measure of love and loyalty to God and man will transform any service from hardship to enjoyment, and is partnership with the Master.

-Exchange. 0 0 0

In me there dwells No greatness, save it be some far-off touch Of greatness to know well I am not great. Tennyson.

Query Department

By J. C. McQUIDDY

T. J. Dunn, of Clawson, Texas, wishes an explanation of John 2: 20, and wants to know where to find proof that the temple was forty-six years in building. Proof is found in the passage itself, which says: "Forty and six years was this temple in building." "About 9 B.C., eight years from the commencement, the court and cloisters of the temple were finished, and the bridge between the south cloister and the upper city (demolished by Pompey) was doubtless now rebuilt with that massive masonry of which some remains still survive. (The work, however, was not entirely ended until 64 A.D., under Hered Agrippa II. So the statement in John 2: 20 is correct.-Schaff.)" This is quoted from Smith's Bible Dictionary, page 682. Of course, Christ referred to the temple of his body; if they destroyed that, he would raise it up again in three days. They had in mind the temple of Herod.

0 0 0

Mrs. T. L. Poarch, of Cornersville, Tenn., inquires to know if we have a "Campbellite Bible," having been so informed by a Methodist preacher. She also says that she finds in the "Dictionary of Facts," edited by Henry W. Ruoff, M.A., D.C.L., on page 415, the statement "that Alexander Campbell in 1826 published a translation of the New Testament in which the words 'baptism' and 'Baptist' gave place to 'immersion' and 'Immerser.'" "The Living Oracles," a translation of the New Testament, was translated from the original Greek by George Campbell, James Macknight, and Philip Doddridge, all Presbyterians, if I mistake not. Prefaces, various emendations, and an appendix were published with their translation by Alexander Campbell. It is simply a translation, and could hardly be called a "Campbellite Bible," as it was translated by Presbyterians. Mr. Campbell indorses the scholarship and efficient work of these eminent Presbyterians. In this translation, instead of "John the Baptist," it appears "John the Immerser," and "John came immersing" instead of "baptizing." It is generally known by scholars that the word "baptize" is an Anglicized word. It comes from the Greek "baptizo" and means to immerse. The meaning of the word is simply translated, and its meaning printed instead of printing the Anglicism.

0 0 0

O. S. Gomer inquires concerning a misunderstanding between two brethren in his home congregation. The two brethren settled their difference and had the settlement stated before the church. After the settlement and statement to the church, one of the brethren broke his promise, and thus all that had been accomplished was undone. One of the disagreeing brethren still meets each Lord's day. but the other refuses to meet until there is a satisfactory settlement made. I do not know from the statement of the querist which one of the brethren refuses to meet and worship God upon the first day of the week. Possibly it is the one who broke his agreement. I can see no reason for the brother who is willing to live up to his agreement and who did not break it refusing to meet upon the first day of the week. Neither do I think the one who did break his agreement is justified in remaining away from duty. The church should endeavor to get the man who refused to keep his agreement to change his course. He should not have made the agreement if he did not expect to live up to it. He is not only sinning against himself and his brother, but he is also sinning against the entire congregation and Christ by refusing to abide by his agreement. Honorable men of the world would not pursue such a course; much less should a Christian be guilty of such conduct. Such a sin, if persisted in, will lead a man to eternal ruin. This position is taken with the understanding that the proper adjustment of the difference was reached. In the event it should be contended that the proper adjustment was not reached, it is the duty of both disagreeing brethren to not rest until all wrongs are righted and justice is obtained. Men have not the spirit of Christ who cannot settle differences that may arise between them.

0 0 0

C. B. James, of Saltillo, Miss., inquires: "(1) What law was binding during the period from the death of Christ to the day of Pentecost? (2) Could the people have worshiped God acceptably under the law during that period?" During the interregnum from the death of Christ to Pentecost there was no revealed law binding on men. We have no record where the patriarchial law of obedience was ever abolished. While we learn that the law of Moses was taken out of the way and nailed to the cross, I have always been inclined to think that God was abundantly able to take care of any sincere, honest persons from the death of Christ until the day of Pentecost. Rom. 2: 14, 15 declares: "For when the Gentiles that have not the law do by nature the things of the law, these, not having the law, are the law unto themselves; in that they show the work of the law written in their hearts, their conscience bearing witness therewith, and their thoughts one with another accusing or else excusing them." People may be curious to know just what happened to those living at that time, but none should be seriously exercised over it, for God's word clearly teaches that those who are faithful and do the things that truth and right demand will be taken care of by Jehovah. 0 0 0

J. Thomas wishes to know, if a brother is guilty of drunkenness and gambling and his guilt is generally known in the community, and he confesses his guilt to two elders of the church, admitting he did very wrong and is resolved to do so no more, if such confession is acceptable and scriptural for so public an offense. He objects to the elders to whom he makes confession mentioning his guilt or confession to the church publicly. He asks: "Is such a private confession of a public wrong scriptural?" It would appear from the action of the guilty party that he has not really repented of his drunkenness and gambling, but is only sorry that he has been found guilty of drunkenness and gambling. His is a sorrow of the world which worketh death, and is not repentance at all. Whenever a man truly repents, he hates the sin of which he is guilty and is determined to undo it as far as possible. Whenever possible, repentance demands restitution. If the guilty party were truly repentant, he would not have been concerned so much about who found out about his guilt, but would have sought to nullify the evil he had done by making public confession of his wrong. If possible, the confession should be made as broad as the knowledge of guilt. The man who loves the truth, who loves the cause of Christ, and who hates and loathes his sin, is not afraid of public confession. The man who is afraid of it is simply sorry because his sin has been found out. Such characters think more of the approval of the world than they do of the approval of Jehovah.

SICK KIDNEYS MAKE LAME BACKS

Cause broken, unrefreshing sleep, and in many cases that tired feeling that makes it so hard to get up in the morning. They also cause loss of appetite, lack of ambition, and other troubles.

Hood's Sarsaparilla contains the medicinal herbs, barks, roots, etc., that strengthen and tone these organs, and relieve their ordinary ailments. Take it.

ments. Take it.

And if you need a laxative take Hood's Pills,—they work right.

Thorp Spring Christian College.

BY A. B. HOLTON.

Brethren, we feel that you ought to know about our work for next year. Every preparation possible is being made to serve you. A faculty of consecrated men and women has been secured. We have tried to secure teachers who not only have professional ability, but men and women who also love the cause of Christ. We believe we have done this. We invite investigation of any member of our faculty as to ability or character.

Thorp Spring has been wonderfully blessed in the wealth of its natural resources. We are located in a section of country made famous for its natural beauty and health-giving environment. Forty miles west of us is the world-famous city of Mineral Wells. Twenty miles south of us is the little city of Glen Rose, known to thousands of tourists for its sulphur water. We are anxious that the many boys and girls of Christian homes in the great Southwest shall have the advantage of Christian education in the midst of such a wonderful country as can be had only at Thorp Spring. It has been admitted by all who have seen our plant and country that we have no equal in all the country. We are adding year by year such equipment as is essential to our work. This year we intend to build a modern home for girls and install a heating plant adequate for all the buildings. This, with the new building for boys already completed, will give us a plant with all modern conveniences.

We intend that our work shall be known. We believe that boys and girls educated in a junior college in a quiet little school town have many opportunities for character building that never come to boys and girls in a city. Our leading educators in morals and religion are saying that the lack of moments of quiet and solitude is the one great evil of city life. We can give your boy or girl the strength of character represented by our everlasting hills.

Our rates are very reasonable considering the advantages we offer. Board and room can be had for twenty-five dollars per month; tuition, for an average of eight dollars per month.

Brother preacher, just a word with you. You want to better your condition, improve the talent God has given you. No worthier ambition can you have. We want to help you. Tuition here will cost you nothing. You will have the advantages that can come only from association of those who love the cause you represent. We feel that no school can offer you more opportunities to serve churches who are clamoring for preachers. Being in forty miles of Fort Worth, the gateway of the Southwest, you would have the opportunity of a lifetime to get an education while serving these churches. Any man with ordinary ability will have all the work he can do.

Brethren, let us know your needs: we are anxious to serve you. If you have a son or a daughter and their school work demands that they be sent away from home, write us your wishes in regard to them and investigate our school. Remember, we teach from the first grade to two years above high school.

A SLIP OF THE KNIFE

resulting in an injured finger, a stubbed toe, a splinter, or any other of the numberless petty injuries that are likely to happen any day, may not seem serious at first, but, when neglected and aided by the carcless touch of a dirty hand, may become infected and develop into an ugly sore and blood poison. Don't play with fate. Apply Gray's Cintment immediately and freely in all skin injuries. It gives immediate relief, soothes the pain, wards off blood poison, and immediately begins its healing effect. Its constant use for ninety-nine years has made it a family word in every household. Ask your druggist or write W. F. Gray & Co., 818 Gray Building, Nashville, Tenn., for sample.

The Church of Christ at Duncan, Arizona.

BY W. F. FOSTER.

We gladly and gratefully acknowledge the liberal contributions received from our brethren and friends to help us with the church house here. We will certainly be glad when we are able to get enough funds to build the house. We would be glad if all congregations who are able would investigate our needs; then we are sure that every one would send us a contribution. We give as reference the following preachers who know our circumstances: E. N. Glenn, 2310 Pittsburg Avenue, El Paso, Texas; J. M. Rice, Merkel, Texas: Bynum Black, McAlester, Okla.

ELDERS :

Here Is Something New For You

One Hundred Communion Talks and Prayers by 100 of our most prominent Preachers.

This neat little silk-bound book of over 200 pages fits the hand, the pocket, and the heart.

> Price, $1 50 Yours for Service

Public Speakers' Supply Or Box 124) RIDGWAY, PA.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

INVENTIVE GENIUS ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Doctors' Favorite Medicine Now Purified and Refined from All Objectionable Effects. "Calotabs"-the New Name.

What will human ingenuity do next? Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, horseless carriages, colorless iodine, tasta-less quinine,—now comes nausealess calo-mei. The new improvement called "Calo-less quinine,—now comes hauseness calomet. The new improvement called "Calotabs' is new on sale at drugstores.

For biliousness, constitution and indigestion the new calomet tablet us a practically perfect remedy, as evidenced by the fact that the manufacturers have authorized all druggists to refund the price of the customer is not perfectly delighted with Calotabs One tablet at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no salts. By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite. Eat what you please—no danger—go about your business.

Calotabs are not sold in bulk. Get an original package, sealed. Price, thirty-five cents.—(adv.)

THE ONLY PLACE IN THE SOUTH

where you can get your hats cleaned when you want them and how you want them. Agents wanted everywhere. Send for illustrated catalogue. Bennett's Hat Factory, 123 Broad Street, Jacksonville, Fin.

TETTERINE Drives Away Pimples

and leaves your skin soft and spotless. 60c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

A Treat for the Skin

A Treat for the Skin

Freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema, all can be easily and delightfully vanished with the use of Palmer's Skin Success Ointment. Used for over 80 years, t Rev. A. E. Ballard, D. D., President Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, Ocean Grove, N. J., writes: "Your Skin Success Ointment completely cured me of an irritative itching eczema and I cheerfally recommend it to all who may be similarly afflicted." It is not only delightfully antiseptic and cleansing, soothing and softening to the skin, but also immediately effective in bleaching the complexion and in vanishing blackheads, freckles and all skin eruptions. Ask your druggist or send for free sample to The Morgan Dang Co., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Providera Y.

The goal of human history is the redemption of the world.

CHURCH NEWS

Arkansas.

Fort Smith, July 12.—I closed a good two-weeks' meeting at Alma last night. We had nice crowds and splendid attention throughout, and six were added to the congregation. I am en route to Roff, Okla., for my next meeting .- J. A. Cullum.

Tupelo, July 12 .- I preached here at home yesterday and last night to the largest congregation we have had this year. This will be the last time I will get to preach here this year. My meetings will begin next Saturday, and will be as follows: At McFadden, July 17-24; Johnstown, July 24 to August 6; Steprock, August 7-20; Daw-son Schoolhouse, near Auvergne, August 21 to September 3: Bethesda, September 4-17. Then I want to get ready to enter college by the last of September.-L. R. Wilson

Fort Smith, July 12 .- The Lord continues to bless us in our efforts to serve him at the Park Hill church of Two services were held on Lord's day. The attendance was above the average, especially among the young people. Their interest is such that the future of the church looks promising. I preached at both services. "Prayer" and "The River Jordan" were the subjects presented. May the Lord help us to "press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."-L. H.

Atkins, July 14.—I closed a good meeting at Prairie View last Sunday night. We had good attendance throughout, with much interest mani-Two were baptized and much prejudice was removed. We have some folks at Prairie View who love the church, and they paid me well. I began a meeting at Atkins last night, with Brother Charlie Bradley, of Morrillton, leading the singing. Prospects are bright for a good meeting, notwithstanding the fact that the Methodists and Presbyterians had joined forces and sent to Kentucky for a man and are running a big union meeting which began three days ago.-Will W.

District of Columbia.

Washington, July 12.—The church here enjoyed a visit by Brother Mor-gan H. Carter, who delivered two splendid sermons at our place of worship on Lord's day. From here he goes to New York City to gather up the scattered members and, if possible, set in order a congregation of disciples to worship "as it is written." Those who know of members of the church of Christ in the city of New York should write Brother Carter at once, giving him their names and addresses. It is a great undertaking to work in a city like New York, and he needs your prayers. Address him at 105 West Sixty-fourth Street, New York City. Now, do not forget the York City. Now, do not forget the work in Washington. Send us a donation for the new house of worship; and if you know of members who have come here, write us .- W. S. Long.

To make Ice Cream

Stir a package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder in a quart of milk and freeze it, and you will have two quarts of fine ice cream. without adding sugar, eggs or anything else.

Figure up what you usually pay for ice cream and compare it with the low cost of this new way.

Vanilla. Strawberry. Lemon and Chocolate flavors and Unflavored. At any grocery or Chocolate general store.

THE CENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY Le Roy, N. Y.

NO JOKE TO BE DEAF

Kansas.

Eldorado, July 13.—We closed a meeting near Elmdale, Mont., the first Lord's day in July, with two additions—a man and his wife, who were foreigners and Lutherans. This was at a mission point—Rosan Schoolhouse. The church there is composed of three sisters and one brother, but they are faithful to God. Those I baptized thanked me very kindly for what I had done for them in leading them out of Lutheranism into the marvelous light of the gospel. We had a very large crowd from start to finish and much good was done. I am now in a meeting at Eldorado, Kan. I shall go from here to Silver, Texas, and then to Utica, Miss.—W. F. Lemmons.

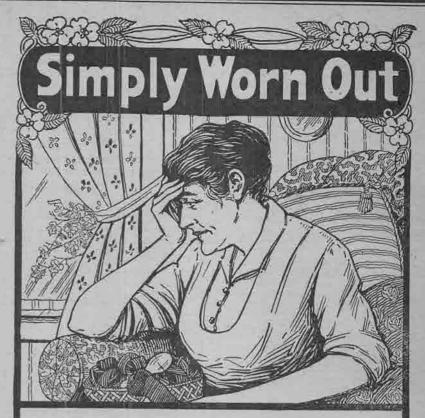

Louisiana.

Vienna, July 7 .- On Saturday, June 5, I began an eight-days' meeting at Oak Grove, near Independence, preaching at night only, except on Sundays. On Sunday night, June 13, I preached in Amite, in the hall where the church of Christ meets for regular services. and on Monday night following 1 preached in the home of Brother Ward Hayden. We had good crowds, good interest, and good attention both at Amite and Oak Grove. The brethren at Oak Grove invited me to come again and preach for them whenever I can do so. This is the field where Brother W. J. Johnson, of Amite, is doing a great work. He is having a hard struggle to get a church building completed in Amite, so that he can do a greater work. He needs the fellowship of all who have the interest of our blessed Redeemer at heart. I am booked to help Brother A. K. Ramsey. of Forest Hill, in a tent meeting about ten days, beginning about August 1, at Rayville, after which time I would be glad to labor for the Master for any of the loyal churches of Christ in either Tennessee, Texas, Alabama, Mississippi, Louisiana, or Arkansas. I can furnish satisfactory references. If any are looking for some one to preach something else than the Bible, I am not the one to get, as I only desire to know "Jesus Christ, and him crucified," and preach him only as a propitiation for our sins .- K, E, Ball.

Mississippi.

Tupelo, July 12.—Brother T. C. King and I recently held a ten-days' meeting at Oneonta, Ala. There were no additions, but we think some good was done. Brother Charles L. Talley and I held a meeting at Algood, Tenn., which closed on July 9. One was added by baptism. I am now at Tupelo with Brother C. A. Norred.—E. Gaston Collins.

Ackerman, Route 4, July 9.—The work in this section is moving along nicely. There were two baptisms at Nile on my last visit, both from the Baptists and both heads of families. The outlook there is fine. Brother H. C. Harris will be with me there in a two-weeks' meeting in August. I am to begin a meeting at Kitchener to-morrow night. We have no members there. I hope that God will use me in establishing a congregation there. I will be hard at work from now until the first of October. I have ten meetings already booked, and other calls

How Many Women Are Like This?

Can anything be more wearing for women than the ceaseless round of household duties? Oh! the monotony of it all—work and drudge; no time to be sick; tired, ailing, yet cannot stop. There comes a time when something "snaps" and they find themselves "simply worn out," and to make matters worse, have contracted serious feminine disorder which almost always follows the constant overtaxing of a woman's strength.

Then they should remember that there is no remedy like Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound—the experience of these two women establishes that fact.

Cedar Rapids, Ia.—"After the birth of my last child I had such painful spells that would unfit me entirely for my housework. I suffered for months and the doctor said that my trouble was organic ulcers and I would have to have an operation. That was an awful thing to me, with a young baby and four other children, so one day I thought of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and how it had helped me years before and I decided to try it again. I took five bottles of Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and since then I have been a well woman, able to take care of my house and family without any trouble or a day's pain. I am ready and thankful to swear by your medicine any time. I am forty-four years old and have not had a day's illness of any kind for three years."—Mrs. H. Koeknig, 617 Ellis Blvd, Cedar Rapids, Iowa.

Sandusky, Ohio.—"Afterthe birth of my baby I had organic trouble. My doctor said it was caused by too heavy lifting and I would have to have an operation. I would not consent to an operation and let it go for over a year, having my sister do my work for me as I was not able to walk. One day my aunt came to see me and told me about your medicine—said it ured her of the same thing. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vanative Wash and they have cured me. Now I do my own housework, washing and ironing and sewing for my family and also do sewing for my family and also do sewing for ther people. I still take a bottle of Vegetable Compound every spring for a tonic. I recommend your medicinato others who have troubles similar to mine and you can use my letter if you wish."—Mrs. Paul. Papenstuse, 1325 Stone St., Sandusky, Ohio.

All Worn Out Women Should Take

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO., LYNN, MASS.

A LEOPARD CANNOT CHANGE ITS SPOTS

Mr. Dedson, the "Liver Tone" Man, Tells the Treachery of Calomel.

Calomel loses you a day! You know what calomel is. It's mercury; quick-silver. Calomel is dangerous. It crashes into sour bile like dynamite, cramping and sickening you. Calomel attacks the bones and should never be put into your system.

When you feel bilious, sluggish, constipated and all knocked out and believe you need a dose of dangerous calomet join need a dose of dangerous cambles just remember that your druggist sells for a few cents 2 large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone, which is entirely vegetable and pleasant to take and is a perfect substitute for calomel. It is guaranteed to start your liver without stirring your without stirring your start your liver without stirring your up inside, and can not salivate.

Don't take calome!! It can not be trusted any more than a leopard or a wild-cat. Take Dodson's Liver Tone which straightens you right up and makes you feel fine. Give it to the children because it is perfectly harmless and doesn't grips.

TETTERINE

Ends Complexion Worries

Healing, Antiseptic, Soothing, Fragrant.

80c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

NR Tablets tone and strengthen organs of digestion and elimination, improve appetite, stop sick headaches, relieve biliousness, correct constipation. They act promptly, pleasantly, mildly, yet thoroughly.

PELLAGRA

and how it can be treated successfully at home. Sent in plain, scaled envelope. Write for yours today. Dept. F-29. Dr. W. J. McCrary. Inc., Carbon Hill, Ala.

are coming in that I cannot fill. need a good man to help me all the We need more men like M. C. Cayce in Mississippi. I will send the Gospel Advocate for one year as a gift. to the two men I baptized at Nile. I am poor, but I must spend and be spent in getting the truth before all the people I can in this neglected State.-H. D. Jeffcoat.

Oklahoma.

Muskogee, July 12.-Our work here is progressing in quite a satisfactory manner. Brother D. C. Williams, who has been attending David Lipscomb College, preached for us at both services Sunday. He has labored with us considerably in the past. He does not shun to declare "the whole counsel of God." and we are proud of his work, ability, and determination. Brother Oliphant, who has been doing our preaching since last December, is away for three months in evangelistic work. Brother J. W. Brents, of Lorenzo, Texas, will begin our fall meeting on September 5, the Lord willing.

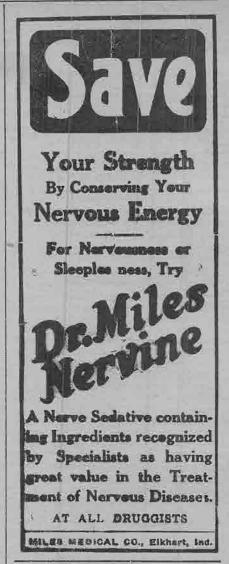

—T. S. Bain.

Holdenville, July 8.—Brother W. F. Ledlow closed the big tent meeting with the church at this place on the night of June 20. The attendance throughout the meeting was splendid. and a good impression was left upon the church and the people in general. the church and the people in general. Brother Leo Henley, of Atwood, conducted the song service, and did his work well. Brother Ledlow was unable to get here for the first few days of the meeting, and Brother W. H. George, of Wewoka, preached until he arrived. Brother J. Will Leplay standed over for a visit with until he arrived. Brother J. Will Henley stopped over for a visit with us and preached two or three excellent sermons. Other preachers present during this meeting were Brethren Elkins, Hayes, Thompson, George, Brown, Moore, Ewton, Stetson, and Cox. Brother W. D. Black, who labors with the congregation here, came in between meetings and rendered valuable assistance. He will soon be back home to take up the work. Brother W. W. Freeman, of Abilene, Texas, preached for us on Sunday, June 27, morning and night, and Brother A. S. Reynolds, of Lelia Lake, Texas, preached for us last Sunday night, having preached at Spaulding in the afternoon. Our regular attendance is splendid and a great interest is being manifested in the good work. The church has had some fiery trials during its years of struggle for the truth, but we thank God that to-day the church is doing the best work of its history. There has been an organized and working congregation at this place for some fifteen or sixteen years, perhaps longer, and we have grown from a mere handful to a splendid congregation. Peace, happiness and harmony prevail with us.—A. F. Hall.

Tennessee.

Lawrenceburg, July 15.—Beginning on July 4, I held a ten-days' meeting at Crewstown, ten miles west of here, with three baptized and one restored, -J. T. Harris.

Eastland, July 12.—I had a fine meeting at Cave, with fourteen bap-tisms. The people at Cave are splendid people. Much Bible reading is being done. I am now in a good meet-ing at Eastland. I will be at Whit-well on the fourth Sunday in July .-J. C. Moslev.

Lucy, July 13.—On Wednesday night of next week I shall begin a meeting at Elm Grove, to continue for ten days, and on the first Lord's day in August will begin at Solo. I shall be engaged in protracted-meeting work until October. Brethren, pray for these meetings. The interest in the cause of Christ is growing in this part of the State, but we need more loyal preachers.—Porter Norris.

Texas.

Temple, July 12 .- I baptized ten persons during the meeting at Salado. I am to begin at Rio Vista next Friday. -Cled E. Wallace.

Pilot Point, July 12.—We had two additions here yesterday. I am on my way to Woodbury, Tenn., for a meeting. There had been one addition in the Whitewright meeting when I left Saturday. Brother F. L. Young is doing the preaching.—L. F. Mason.

Fort Worth, July 6 .- I am just in home from the meeting at We had eleven additions in all-seven by baptism. My support in every way was grand, and I left under promise to return in 1922, if the Lord permits it. This was my thirteenth meeting in Troup.—T. W. Phillips.

Caldwell, July 5.-Yesterday was a great day with us at Mitchell Chapel. I preached morning, afternoon, and night, and there were four confessions and baptisms. The work is growing at this place. Twenty-six have been added to the church in the last few monthly meetings.—John T. Ramsey (colored).

Kirbyville, July 5.—The Jasper meeting closed at the water this morning. Four persons were baptized during the meeting. This was my fourth meeting with these good people. The Lord willing, I am to begin my fourth meeting with the saints at Burkeville, Newton County, next Friday night.—J. S. Daugherty.

San Angelo, July 5.—Our meeting here closed on the last Sunday in June. Brother Cled E. Wallace did the preaching, and Brother C. T. McCormack, of Dallas, led the singing. It was a great meeting. There were ten accessions to the church. Of these, four were baptized and six identified themselves with the congregation. The church was highly pleased with both these men.—T. M. Carney.

Maxey, Route 2, July 12.—Our meeting at the Georgia Schoolhouse began on Saturday night with a crowded house and fine attention. But there are some hindrances. The people are late with their crops, there is some indifference with the members, and, besides, this is a sectarian stronghold. I go to Clarksville, Route 5, on July 30, for two weeks. I am open for the last two weeks in August. Brethren, if you want me, address me at Clarksville, Texas, Route 5, care of E. H. Westmoreland.—G. B. Lambright.

Wills Point, July 13 .- Brother Ulrich R. Beeson and I recently conducted a meeting with the church at Bishop, which resulted in nineteen additions to the congregation-six by baptism, ten by restoration, and three by iden-This was our second protification. tracted effort at that place, and by far the best one. We have a splendid band of Christians in Bishop, and they are up and about the Master's business. Brother C. W. Sewell, of Corpus Christi, visited us during the meeting. We have just closed a mission meeting near Tatum, which resulted in four additions to the church. The sects said that we preached more truth than they had ever heard before. We hope to hold another meeting there next year. We are now in a meeting near Wills Point.—John W. Hedge.

West Virginia.

Buffalo, July 15 .- We had one more addition here last Lord's day. We are gaining here in spite of all opposition and lack of facilities for work. All our meetings are held in private dwellings and under trees. It is a wonder to me how we have ever accomplished so much in the midst of so many difficulties. Digression, sectism, and sin are deadly enemies of the truth in this country. The truth of God has been trampled underfoot in this section, but it will rise again if the brethren will help us now. The help must be li to accomplish our object here. The help must be liberal have established a new mission at Pliny. It is a most promising one. Brother T. H. Kirkman has established missions at Gallipolis, Ohio, and Henderson, W. Va. He must be sustained in that work. His address is Lock Box 222, Gallipolis, Ohio. Brother Kirkman is a real missionary man. I class him with Brother E. C. Fuqua and some other self-sacrificing men. Do you know these men? We hope to begin our church house as soon as Mrs. Founer is better. We need all the money we can get to put into that house and some for personal use; in fact, I need some extra help on account of our recent misfortune. Address me at Buffalo, W. Va., and state what your offering is for.—F. P. Fonner.

"I have been reading about holiness," said one to me the other day.
"I do wish I could find it." "Find it?"
I said. "You mean, find Him. Holiness is Jesus Christ,"—Mark Pearse.

One cannot keep in touch with God without being strong and efficient in service. The story of the pebble that accounted for its fragrance by the fact that it had lain by a rose tree is a parable of life.—D. J. Burrell.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make money—atilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right. Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Pigeons No. 6." Carolina Pigeon Plant. Clinton S. C.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

Your Greatest Problem—That Boy of Yours

What kind of a man will be beten, twenty, or thirty years from now? You know—every parent knows—that it depends entirely upon the training he is getting right now—his associations, his ideals, his inspirations.

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, Principal of the Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., has been training boys for twenty.

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, Principal of the Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., has been training boys for twenty-five years. He wants your boy. He recognizes in him one of the men who may some day manage big affairs, and he wants to train him for that end. His school has been built and equipped and his instructors chosen with the first and only consideration of giving the boy the mental and physical training, the associations with clean, high-minded men, the ideals of character, the inspirations to ambitton, which the world expects. Robert K. Morgan is a Christian gentleman of strong, wholesome, inspiring personality, and his school is the material projection of that character. Write Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., to-day, and let him send you a catalogue and tell you what this school can do for your boy.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe-by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an anbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Watch Your Blood When The Iron Runs Low You Are In Danger

The Same As When The Mercury Goes Down You Know There Will be a Frost

How To Make The Test That Tells

How To Make The Test That Tells

Actual blood tests show that a tremendous large number of people who are weak and ill lack iron in their blood and that they are ill for no other reason than lack of iron. Iron deficiency paralyzes healthy, forceful action, pulls down the whole organism and weakens the entire system. A pale face, a nervous irritable disposition, a lack of strength and endurance and the inshility to cope with the strong vigorous folks in the race of life—these are the sort of warning signals that Nature gives when the blood is getting thin, pale, watery and literally starving for want of iron. If you are not sure of your condition, go to your doctor and have him take your blood count and see where you stand or else make the following test yourself: See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming fired; next take two five-grain tablets of Naxated Iron three times per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see how much you have gained. By enriching the blood and creating new red blood cells Nuxated Iron strengthens the nerves, rebuilds the weakened tissues and lelps to instill renewed energy and power into the whole system.

Unlike the older inorganic iron products Nuxated Iron is easily assimilated, does not injure the teeth, make them black nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirely satisfactory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed by all good druggists.

NUXATED IRC

"Diamond Dyes" Tell You How

A Child can Follow Directions and get Perfect Results

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any wom-an can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind— then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist

has color card.

FRECKLE

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Ollime—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Ohine—double strength—rom your drogstst, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freekles have begun to disappear, while the lighter nees have vanished entirely. It is seldam that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it falls to remove freekles.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Life Sketch of a Pioneer.

BY W. T. BUFFALOE.

F. H. Varner was born in Southeast Missouri on September 6, 1841. Three years later his father, Dr. Varner, with his family, floated down the St. Francis River in search of a more desirable home. The selection was made on a lovely spot on the eastern bank of that stream. 'Here "Uncle France" purchased a few acres of cleared land. and here his remaining days of seventy-five years and six months were spent.

Indians and wild game were in abundance all around them. The bravery of such people may be illustrated by one act of the mother of the subject of this sketch. A panther attacked her cow in the barn lot late one afternoon, whereupon she rushed to the scene with her butcher knife and slew the ferocious cat. I have often heard "Uncle France" say that he wished it were possible for him to see, in one collection, all the bears, panthers, wildcats, deer, turkeys, etc., he had slain in his lifetime.

At the time when the Varners came, there were practically no white settlers here. However, within a short time a few white families had become their neighbors. Old Sister Varner had learned, somewhere, somehow, of the church of divine origin. Visiting to or from these parts was rare, since not even a wagon road led from the community. Rude ferryboats were used to advance farther. Yet this old "mother in Israel" did not say "can't," "no use," "impossible." She started a search for a gospel preacher, and one was induced to visit from somewhere, and services were held in the Varner home, a spacious house, built of hewn cypress logs, puncheon floors, and round-pole rafters. Then other preachers began to visit them, and much good was done. Out of these efforts this sister was blessed with seeing practically all of her children buried with their Lord in baptism, and one of them, Ned, preached the gospel also to others until he was called home many years gone by.

A log house was built on the Varner estate and used for church and school purposes. I am told that practically every one in the country for miles around attended services then, and there are men and women here now who state that their roads to the old log schoolhouse were mere trails, and often three to four miles long. The old log house was replaced many years ago by a frame building, which must soon be torn away because of its age. So long has the gospel been preached

"Uncle France" was baptized into the one body about fifty years ago, and it is generally conceded that no better a young man who practiced medicine in a rural district became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his suc-cess in the treatment of disease. This cess in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce who afterward moved to Buffalo, N. Y. He made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and he put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state in the Union. For fifty years Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has sold more largely throughout the United States than any other medicine of like character. It's the testimony of thousands of women that it has benefited or entirely eradicated such distressing all ments as women are prone to. It is ments as women are prone to. It is now sold by druggists in tablet form as well as liquid.

NEWBERRY, S. C.—"After using Doctor Pierce's Favorite Prescription I feel like a new woman. My friends all tell me I look so much better. I am more than pleased with the result. I know that I can't praise any one of Dr. Pierce's remedies too highly. I always keep them on hand in order to keep well."—Mas. Lema Sufer, Route 1 — Box 62.

For the HAIR.

To make it soft, fluffy, and free from dandruff, use

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

man has ever lived here. He, in some way, never learned to read or to write. But he was a man of good sense, quiet, optimistic, friendly, charitable, kind, and, of course, had his influence for good. Because of these admirable traits, he was for many years an elder of the congregation, and he did commendable service, too. He did not sing, pray, nor often speak, but he was always in his corner by the window, and could be induced to speak only when necessity demanded it. His life was a walking and living example of real, practical Christianity. Freachers and visitors were welcome in "Uncle France's" big two-story house, and a number of orphans found a place in his heart and his home.

"Uncle France" passed out of this life, Sunday night, May 16, almost without a struggle. On Tuesday following, one of the largest crowds of people ever congregated at a funeral here was present to pay the last respect to this old departed soldier of the cross. Funeral services were conducted at the church by Brethren F. M. Eldridge and W. Curtis Porter. His body was laid to rest near his old home.

"Uncle France" is survived by his third wife, a stepson, two daughters, one brother, and two sisters.

Christ on the Andes.

Chile and the Argentine, after quarreling for generations over their boundary line, submitted the question to arbitration and settled it in good feeling. As emblem of their peace and pledge of its permanence, the two republies united in the erection of an heroic statue of Christ on the highest Andean peak of the border line.

While this may be hailed as a good omen, at least for the preservation of peace between these countries, and while statues and images of Christ abound in these lands, it remains sadly true that the real Christ, with the saving power and simplicity of his gospel, is not lifted up before these Rome-ridden people. Hark! And soon we may hear a Macedonian cry! And may there be a responsive Paul—to lift up Christ in Chile and the Argentine.—Christian Monthly Review.

Golden Thoughts Compiled.

Walk in the light, and thou shalt find Thy heart made truly His Who dwells in cloudless light enshrined,

In whom no darkness is.

Đ.

O Triune God, with heart and voice adoring,

Praise we the goodness that doth crown our days;

Pray we, that thou wilt hear us, still imploring

Thy love and favor, kept to us always.

30

There are always two ways of judging anything. Sometimes there are twenty, but always there are two; and if you want to be happy, you will learn to judge in the most kindly and most merciful way. Since we cannot know in the last analysis the exact motive for any action, why not think the best instead of the worst?

O

The unfolding of God's plans—that is all that the Christian need ever to be concerned to know and to follow. God is sovereign, and God is allwise, and God is all-sufficient. His work never falls; and if we are ready to let our work be his work only, we have his personal pledge that he will glorify himself through the fruit bearing.

Ø

An alarming weakness among Christians is that we are producing Christian activities faster than we are producing Christian experience and Christian faith; that the discipline of our souls and the deepening of our acquaintance with God are not proving sufficiently thorough to enable us to meet the unprecedented expansion of opportunity and responsibility of our generation.

Loss of Vitality is loss of the principle of life, and is early indicated by falling appetite and diminishing strength and endurance. Hood's Sarsaparilla is the greatest vitalizer—it acts on all the organs and functions and builds up the whole system.

Blessing.

What ever lost by giving?
The sky pours down its rain,
Refreshing all things living,
While mists rise up again.

Go rob the sparkling fountain, And drain its basin dry; The barren-seeming mountain Will fill its chalice high.

Who ever lost by loving?
Though all our heart we pour,
Still other spirits moving,
To pay our love with more.

And was there ever blessing
That did not turn and rest,
A double power possessing,
The blesser being blessed?
—Selected.

WINTERSMITE'S WINTERSMITE'S WINTERSMITE'S

Seld for 50 Years FOR MALARIA, CHILLS AND FEVER. Also a Pine General Strengthening Tanic. At All Drug Stores.

Freed-Hardeman College.

BY L. L. BRIGANCE.

This school under the name of the National Teachers' Normal and Business College is well known throughout the South. For a number of years it was owned and operated as a private institution. But more than a year ago it was bought by some ten or twelve hundred brethren in the surrounding territory—Tennessee, Kentucky, Arkansas, Alabama, and Mississippi—and is now held in trust by a board of trustees, of which Dr. W. M. B. Cox, Baldwyn, Miss., is president, and J. G. Hardeman, Henderson, Tenn., is secretary-treasurer.

The school is now entirely under the control of the board of trustees. They employ every teacher from the president down, and fix their salaries, rates of tuition, board, etc. They have ordered the various courses of study to be rearranged and standardized so as to meet the requirements of the educational world. Heretofore the school has been independent in the arrangement of its curriculum, following its own ideas regardless of what was considered "orthodox" in educational matters. Its thousands of successful students in the various fields of activity are proof of the excellent work it has done. But as Emerson says: "For nonconformity the world whips you with its displeasure." Because the school did not "conform" to the standards of the colleges and universities in all respects, it did not receive the recognition its friends and patrons desired. Because of an insistent and widespread demand to that effect, and inasmuch as no principle of right or wrong was involved, the board decided in favor of "conformity," and, therefore, nothing is being left undone to meet all the requirements for recognition and affiliation. However, the school does not surrender its individuality. The great principles of school management and the methods of classroom instruction that have proven so successful in the past will be continued in the future.

Under the new management the Bible work will receive more attention and better work will be done in that department than ever before. Brother Hardeman has a splendid two-year course outlined in the catalogue that is especially fine for those preparing to "preach the word." Let it be further stated that the school at Henderson stands upon the "old Book" with both feet. It has no patience with religious fads or fancies. It is not blown about by every wind or any wind of doctrine not plainly taught in the New Testament. It is not in sympathy with religious theories, speculations, or modern religious movements. It does not believe the pulpit is the place to discuss social, civic, or community problems, nor to preach "colorless" sermons, The gospel of Christ is not a milk-andwater proposition. It is a strong, affirmative, direct message from the throne of God to the hearts of sinful men and women, and it should be preached unmixed with human philosophies and doctrines and with all boldness, in the fear of God and the love of man. We would be ashamed of any young preacher who would go out from this school and compromise with error or temporize with sin. It is a matter of great satisfaction to the school that, so far as is known, all of its students who are preaching today are "not ashamed of the gospel of Christ" and are not afraid to "declare all the counsel of God," regardless of whether it is popular or not. We deplore the tendency of some of our preachers and writers to leave off the preaching of the word and give themselves to the discussion of the "wisdom of this world "-nice, pleasing, colorless dissertations on social, industrial, and economic questions.

The prospects for Freed-Hardeman College next session are very fine. The faculty has been strengthened by the addition of several new members. Some new equipment will be added and more room will be provided. The girls' home is being pushed on toward completion. It is a splendid structure—something to be proud of. It will have everything necessary for the comfort and convenience of the girls. Brother W. E. Morgan, a member of the faculty and one of our best preachers, and his wife will have charge of this home.

We appreciate all the help that has been given to the school and every sacrifice that has been made in its behalf. We want to assure all of our friends and brethren that members of the faculty are making greater sacrifices than any one else. In addition to making contributions in money, they are teaching for about half what they could get elsewhere, and are giving their very lives day and night to make the school a greater influence for good.

At their suggestion the board of trustees ordered that, if the income of the school should be more than sufficient to pay the moderate salaries of the teachers, the surplus would go to a general fund for the benefit of the school in the future.

The correspondence already indicates a fine attendance next year. Friends of the school can render it great assistance by sending us names of prospective students.

The catalogue is now ready and is being mailed out. If you are interested, write for one. Address Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn.

Try Renwar for Rheumatism.

It is not necessary any longer for you to suffer those intense pains and aches of rheumatism. Renwar is a salts combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood and thereby cure rheumatism. Don't walt until those rheumatism. Don't walt until those rheumatisms. Renwar and forget about that rheumatism. Renwar is an old, well-established remedy. It is prescribed by the best of physicians and has thousands of friends. President L. A. Bauman, of Varley & Bauman Company, Nashville, says: "Renwar entirely relieved me of my rheumatism." For sale by druggists; price, 50 cents. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. If your druggist doesn't carry Renwar in stock, tell him to order it for you from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try it! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freekied skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freekle, sunburn and tau lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and lands and see how quickly the freckles, suburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

TERRALINE "THE BLAMELESS PHYSICIAN" DEMONSTRATES The Healing Power of Nature"

Ferraline is a Natural Mineral, rich in Iron, Magnesium, Lithium and other health-giving minerals. It is made by the simple process of percolating distilled water thru Ferraline Mineral Earth, and it contains no drugs nor chemicals.

It has long been recognized as most effective in the treatment of indigestion, Stomach Troubles and Rheumatism, and as a System-builder and Restorer it is of special value to those who suffer from Impoverished Blood.

Ferraline is sold by your druggist and endorsed by prominent ministers, business and professional men.

To secure an interesting booklet and the story of the "Sweetest thing without a Soul," write

"FERRALINE," Dept. 5, DEMOPOLIS, ALABAMA.

Volume LXII. No. 31.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 29, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Edifying as the Need May Be	729
Our Contributors	730
At Home and Abroad	736
Editorial	738
Current Thought	740
David Lipscomb College Notes	741
Announcement	741
Home Reading	742
Query Department	743
A Great Man Gone	744
Oblinaries ,	746
The Curtailed Colorado Work	747
From the Field	748
Sketch of Samuel J. Fussell	749
Notes from the San Joaquin Valley, Cal	749
The Master's Vineyard	TEA

Edifying as the Need May Be

The Suggestive Value of the Bible.

In addition to the effectiveness of its illustrations, I wish to point out the helpfulness of the Bible in its relation to science along two other lines. First, I would call attention to its suggestive value. Scientists, as a rule, are not a hidebound set. They are open to suggestions from any and every legitimate source, provided it has to do with the object of their search. We know, for example, that science has made a critical study of society as affected by the marriage relationship. Some contend that the State should prevent all unions which endanger the physical vigor and efficiency of the coming generation. It is undoubtedly true that the government has a right to protect its people against actions which tend toward the deterioration of the race. To permit those to marry who are suffering from certain maladies of mind or body is to commit a grave crime against society. But care must be taken lest we unduly interfere with the deeper spiritual sympathies and affinities upon which a true union is founded. The promoters of eugenics are apt to exaggerate the materialistic side of marriage and overlook those qualities of heart and mind which are not less important for the well-being of the race. As I see the matter, science does a good thing in calling attention to the terrible results of marriage between two persons where one or both are diseased. This cannot be made too emphatic, but it goes too far in calling for perfect physical adaptation to marriage. On the other hand, numerous passages in the New Testament bring out several features that are indispensable to the ideal marriage. Here we may find prescribed, not only a union of equality, including the necessary physical qualifications, but also a union that implies permanency and spirituality, Eugenics, as prescribed by some agitators, is both unethical and impractical. But should the doctrine be supplemented by the plain New Testament teaching, it would doubtless be received with greater favor.

Not less potent is the suggestive value of the Bible to those who are giving their best thought and attention to the solution of those perplexing economic problems occasioned by the relationship of capital and labor. The failure to give the Bible its proper emphasis on this matter is more largely due to the neglect of the preacher than to that of the scientist. There is, however, a gradual awakening to the ethical importance of Bible teaching. The following statement from F. Ernest Johnson, a leading pastor of New York City, is refreshing:

The preacher's relation to industrial questions grows out of his responsibility for the life relations of all his people. The labor problem is but one phase of the human problem and as such it cannot be foreign to the Christian minister. The technical questions of industrial management are all secondary in importance to the ethical requirements of industrial relations. The status of the employee in an industry, the proportion of wages to profits, are ethical questions first, and technical, scientific questions afterwards. The theory is that this whole field is preëmpted by production experts and financiers—the theory crudely denoted by the expression, "Business is business"—is responsible for the unhappy separation of the minister from practical affairs. The tone of industry and business has suffered in consequence, while the sphere of the preacher's influence has been pitiably narrowed.

It is urged by the men engaged in it that industry is a highly technical matter, that it is a science, and, as such, is intelligible only to the expert. Even so, the expert is himself coming to realize that a large part of his task has to do with the science of human relations. This is the minister's own field. As a preacher and teacher of ethics, he is supposed to be the ethical "expert" in his immediate community. He cannot vacate a portion of his field merely because it is involved with sciences that are foreign to his knowledge. The elemental requirements of ethics are the same, no matter whether they relate to business or social intercourse, to work or play. A conscientious regard for personality, the recognition of others as ethical ends in themselves, not as a means to our own ends—in short, the maintenance of the ideal of a Christian brotherhood—these are ultimate demands of the Christian life. Christianity must stand or fall by them. As preachers of the gospel message, we must not concern ourselves too seriously with the consequences which these principles may have for certain established institutions or prevailing method. The position of the man who wholly repudiates Christianity as unworkable, and therefore wrong, is much more rational and more acceptable than that of the preacher who stands by his creed, but fails to follow its ethical implications.

To this we might add that Jesus never gave any limitations to the application of the Golden Rule. It belongs to both capital and labor.

Our Contributors

The Spirit of "Sommerism." No. 2.

There are some duties that are not pleasant. To me it is never pleasant to parade the faults of others; but the cause of truth and righteousness sometimes demands it. The surgeon's knife is often necessary to save the body. Cauterizing the wound will often save the patient. It sometimes becomes necessary to "reprove and rebuke" even our brethren. This is especially true when they become so wedded to a "hobby" that they wantonly proscribe all who dare to question their right to "bind where the word of God does not bind" or to become arbiters of the conduct of Christians at large.

It is not surprising that a religious journal which for years persistently and religiously left no stone unturned to prejudice its readers against men like David Lipscomb, whose loyalty, zeal, unswerving devotion to the truth, and powerful pen did so much to stay the tide of innovation in the South for half a century, should pursue the same policy in espousing the cause of its devoted, but misguided, brethren in Denver, Col.

The effort upon the part of our overzealous brother to impugn the motives of all those who refused to gratify the ambition of his followers in Denver to "rule or ruin" is truly characteristic of his usual policy. Ordinarily, in disturbances of any kind, some blame attaches to either side; but in this case all the blame rests upon the shoulders of those ungodly (?) fellows who dare to "build orphans' homes to rob the church of its glory!" "The king can do no wrong." Brethren in the West who suffered from the exercise of "evangelistic assumption" should congratulate themselves. "Journalistic assumption" is worse. We are aware of the fact that the desire to justify oneself is the most natural thing in the world. "Self-preservation is the first law of nature."

But in the light of the facts, the effort upon the part of our seceding brethren through their spokesman to absolve themselves from all blame is nothing short of ridiculous.

As a matter of fact, if the reader will note carefully the history of the case, he will find that every "overt act" that resulted in the final "separation" is traceable to their camp. Let us see.

Attention was called in a previous article to my attitude toward the brethren who were known to entertain extreme views upon what is called the "college" question. Public or private discussions of this or any division questions were always discouraged. As before stated, at the public meeting in which these matters were discussed I was given a clean "bill of sale" against such a charge. Just here 1 want to relate a little history that will give the reader the real "milk in the coconut," so far as contributing causes are concerned. About one year previous to the "defection" upon the part of our "exclusive" brethren, Brother George Pepperdine, who had frequently visited our congregation and who had large business interests here and in other Western cities, came to me on one of his visits to Denver and requested a conference of some brethren to discuss certain differences that were causing more or less trouble among the churches, with a view of bringing about an adjustment, if possible. I heartily indorsed such a move and agreed to a conference, stating at the same time that we were getting on pretty agreeably in Denver; that nobody was trying to bind his opinions upon anybody else, etc. At this conference Brother Pepperdine was asked to outline what he had in mind, and in substance he said: "There are a number of questions that have been given prominence in our various religious papers, such as the 'woman' question, the 'rebaptism' question, the 'prophecy' question, and the 'coilege' question, the latter affecting the interest of the churches in this field more especially." He said further that these papers that were supposed to stand sponsor for the views of each "party" could, if it were possible to find "common ground" on these division questions, get together and be a powerful factor in their settlement. To all of this I heartily agreed, and so did all present. It was then agreed that the matter should be taken up with the editors of our leading papers at the earliest practicable moment, he and I to act as a "committee of two" in conducting the correspondence. In view of the fact that the "college" question was of most vital interest to us in this field, I asked him to suggest a "common-ground" basis for the adjustment of this question, one which would meet the approval, in his judgment, of the Apostolic Review and its sympathizers among the preaching brethren. He agreed to do so, and suggested this proposition in substance: "If from this date the brethren who are supposed to be in favor of 'church schools' will agree to build, operate, and support Bible schools purely as individual Christians, and not as 'church' or 'brotherhood' schools, we, who are usually denominated 'anticollege' brethren, will not only cease our opposition to same, but will actually support or patronize them." I then asked him if he thought I could present that with "some degree of authority," and he said: "I cannot speak with absolute authority until I communicate with the Review and other brethren, but I feel pretty sure this will meet their approval." With that as a basis, it was then agreed that I should communicate with certain papers, and he would at once take it up with "Brother Sommer and certain other preachers" who were prominent in "anti-Bible college" circles. He agreed to write me just as soon as he could get in touch with these brethren whether such a proposition would meet their approval or not. We would then have a further conference and possibly request a general conference of the brethren at some central point. I waited for quite a while before communicating with the papers agreed upon, in order to find out if his "common-ground" agreement would be "O.K." at "headquarters." I waited in vain. Finally I proceeded. anyway, and engaged in a rather voluminous correspondence, hoping to have something definite to present at a later conference. The basis of union suggested by our brother met the approval of the brethren at large; in fact, it required no sacrifice upon their part to give their indorsement to such a proposition. Nobody was contending for the building or support of "church" or "brotherhood" schools to "turn out preachers." They were only exercising their right and privilege as individual Christians to teach and preach the word of the Lord wherever and whenever an opportunity presented itself, whether in the home, in the assembly, or in the school, disclaiming any desire to bind any specific method where God had bound none or restrict the teaching of the Bible to any particular time or place.

During our conference, our good brother, having some apprehensions, no doubt, as to the fate of his proposal at Indianapolis, asked me what would be the chance for a "local" agreement here if we could not get a "general" agreement. I said: "I do not know of any particular disagreement; at least, we are living at peace among ourselves, so far as I know." Then the real situation began to dawn upon me. "You know," he said, "you have not encouraged very much the cooperation in the Denver work of what are usually called 'anti-college' preachers. Will you give your consent to have them join in this work freely in the future?" In reply I said: "I always try to be frank in giving reasons for any course that I pursue, and I shall endeavor to do so in this matter. I am always in favor of a co-operation that co-operates, one that is absolutely mutual and that will work anywhere, at any time, and in any place." I said: "You are aware of the fact that there has been much confusion and lamentable divisions among the churches from here to the Pacific Coast, and that lines have been drawn so closely that many brethren are like the 'Jews and Samaritans' of old," He said: "Yes, I regret to say that as well as I know you and as close as I am to such brethren as Brother W. P. Reedy and other preaching brethren in California, I doubt if I could get them to let you or any other 'college' preacher preach a single discourse in their meetinghouse." (W. P. Reedy is the brother-in-law of one of the leaders in the Denver trouble, and is the one who was to be called at once to conduct a meeting here.) In further explanation of my attitude, I then related an actual experience at closer range-viz., in Colorado Springs, where J. E. Coleman, Bruce McCollum, E. C. Fuqua, and I had done considerable pioneer work. I had been frequently urged by some old friends to make them a visit. So upon a certain Lord's day I ran over, expecting to have a delightful visit, and did in some ways. At the morning service the usual program was carried out without reference to my presence. At the close of the service announcement was made that the usual program would be carried out at the evening service. Several brethren and sisters, including myself, were guests of one of the elders at lunch, and many expressions of regret were made because of the treatment accorded me. When we assembled in the evening, the brother whose guest I was came to me and said: "I want you to preach to-night." I asked if it would meet the approval of all, as I did not want to cause any confusion. He replied: "Well, there is some objection; but I have some authority here, and I shall ask you to preach," I did so to the best of my ability, and learned later that one of the elders got up and went home. At a later business meeting this same elder who extended me the invitation was asked to make a confession to the church for such "disorderly walk." According to brethren who were present and thoroughly familiar with all the proceedings of the congregation, the only reason assigned was that I was regarded as a "college" preacher and a contributor to the Gospel Advocate. (Enough to condemn any man!)

I then said to Brother Pepperdine: "Two or more of the preachers whom you would have me invite have been associated with this congregation for quite a while and are doubtless in sympathy with its policy. In the exercise of their 'judicial' function, commonly referred to as 'evangelistic assumption,' they withdrew from a brother of approved moral character, who refused to make one's opinion upon Bible schools a test of fellowship, without the formality of a 'church trial,' when an opportunity to defend himself against whatever charges were made might be given. The right to trial by jury is a constitutional privilege granted the most depraved criminal by the courts of the land." "Under such circumstances," I then said, "do you think I should be asked or required to invite preachers, whose extreme views upon these questions result in such conditions as that?" He said: "No, under the circumstances, we could not expect you to do so; and, furthermore, until we can get a general agreement that will work anywhere, we will not ask or expect you to invite these preachers to visit the congregation." Later I was shown a copy of a letter written by a brother here to one of these preachers, in which a statement was made of such an agreement. I lived up to it literally. I voluntarily said: "If one of your brethren, who has your indorsement, should incidentally visit us, I would extend to him every courtesy."

As time were on and the "common-ground" proposition met an untimely fate in the sanctum sanctorum of the "oracle at Indianapolis," some other move was found necessary to get a foothold without open violation of the above agreement. Our zealous Brother Pepperdine, from "without," found the "auto-accessory" business growing so rapidly that an "S. O. S." call for help became necessary to take care of it. Two or three additional families were added to his force, and in recognition of that scriptural injunction, "in honor preferring one another," the additional forces were members of the church, and, incidentally, one of them a preacher-Brother Peck. According to his own admission, he did not know so much about "auto batteries," but he was reported to have had considerable experience in "silencing the batteries" of these "college" preachers in other fields. His son-in-law, who was also an avowed enemy of every ungodly (?) "orphans' home" or "Bible college" that dared lift its head to "rob the church of its glory," was also one of the "auto-accessory" force, and in perfect accord with "the powers that be" at Indianapolis. Thus the "leaven" was working from without and within, as predicted by the apostle Paul in the case of the Ephesian brethren. Their forces began to increase. Brother Peck was extended every courtesy and preached alternately with the local ministers, including myself, although he never formally identified himself with the congregation. In one of his discourses shortly before their final separation from us, he was condemning the evils of division, and especially the culpability of the brother who "drove the entering wedge," etc. At the close of his remarks a young preacher who was present asked him what he had reference to-what he was driving at-and he replied, in substance: "I refer to this 'Bible-college' question. It has got to come to a 'showdown' here, and, I think, the sooner, the better." There you have it! Denver is a strategic point. The largest congregation in all Colorado worships here. It is under the control of the wrong set. Something must be done, and that quickly. These "college" fellows, led by an unscriptural "one-man pastor," have "mismanaged" the affairs of the church and condoned the "spirit of worldliness" until it is nothing short of a spiritual wreck, made up of all the "old backslidden" element that could be got together. Unless we, the chosen few, the only truly loyal, the paragons of perfection among the saints, the preservers of the faith, manage to oust this unspeakable, modern, "digressive" pastor from the leadership and call to our help such powerful defenders of the faith as W. P. Reedy and others and take the situation in hand, "all hope of saving the ship is lost." O, what a magnanimous (?) spirit and holy (?) It was simply one more exhibition of the ambition! "spirit of Sommerism" gone to seed. May the good Lord deliver us all from such a spirit!

But in the course of events the "showdown" came. But alas and alack for their plans! "The best-laid schemes o' mice an' men gang a-gley." When the meeting was called to order, without waiting for any suggestions from the chairman or "charter" members of the congregation as to the future policy of the church, these "eleventh-hour" brethren (I speak more especially of the leaders) rushed to the front with a carefully worded paper containing various charges to which reference has already been made, and proposing what was in effect a "board of managers" for the church, ignoring every "charter" member of the congregation, including the treasurer and minister. Thus another "overt act" contributed to the final separation. Be it said to the credit of one of their preachers present, that such an unscriptural proceeding did not meet his approval.

The congregation resented very strongly the charges contained in the formal paper presented and in a most convincing way refused to indorse such a partisan move to get control of the congregation and dictate its policy.

When they saw the sentiment of the congregation was overwhelmingly against such a high-handed proceeding, they did what most of us expected-refused to concur in the decision, withdrew into their little shell, unwilling to work unless in the lead, refusing to worship with the regularly organized body, and thus constituting themselves a "faction" in the truest scriptural sense of the term. Thus the charge of "rule or ruin" so often registered against these brethren was literally proven true. After repeated efforts upon our part to induce these brethren to continue their relationship with us and they refused, remembering that scriptural injunction to "reject a factionist" after the "first and second admonition," we have since refused either to indorse or encourage a course that divides the spiritual body of Christ. We gave them every assurance that if they continued with us in the work no difference whatever would be made in our relations, except in the matter of leadership. The church had decided that question, and we would respect its decision. In talking to one of the brethren, I said, "This would be a splendld opportunity to disprove the charge of 'rule or ruin' so often made;" but the opportunity was slighted.

In closing this article, I want to say that in all this 1 have no feeling of bitterness, unkindness, or malice toward any concerned in this trouble. I regret in all seriousness the unfortunate course taken by them, and would rejoice to know that they were willing to undo as far as possible the wrong done and be restored to the fellowship of the one body. The statement of facts in these articles was not prompted by any desire to magnify the faults of others, but because one of the chief sponsors of a "system" that binds its adherents "hand and foot" made it his special business to formulate a public statement, containing innuendo unwarranted by the facts, insinuations against the Christian character of as gedly and devoted a band of Christian men and women as may be found in all the land. On their behalf I cry out against a "system" that elevates and deposes men at will; a "system" that seeks to bind its opinions in regard to "Bible colleges" and other questions upon its victims and build "Chinese walls" between themselves and good brethren who refuse to bow to their dictum; a "system" that is dearer to its promoters than the fellowship of those who are unwilling to be bound by it; a "system" that ruthlessly disfellowships and ostracizes in the name of religion those who dare to question its assumption; a "system" that is the outgrowth of a studied and persistent effort upon the part of its chief apostle to impugn the motives of all who are not in accord with his "policies," even to the extent of refusing to publish a report of a gospel meeting in our own city because, no doubt, the particular preacher did not wear the proper "label" or the "reporter" not among the sacred circle of scribes.

I have no fight to make against brethren personally who may be under the spell of the leaders of such a "system," but I am against the "system," and I would fall far short of my duty if I did not sound a note of warning to all churches of Christ to beware of the first appearance of such a "system," I have on my desk letters from faithful gospel preachers throughout the West who will approve the wisdom of such a course.

God grant that the time may come when such conditions will be unknown, when members of the body of Christ will preserve in all things the "unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace,"

Music is the universal language of mankind.—Long-fellow.

Life Sketch of Dr. W. S. Vickrey.

BY J. A. CUNNINGHAM.

Dr. William Stuart Vickrey was born, in Wayne County, Ky., September 4, 1843; died, in Bowie, Texas, June 17, 1920.

He moved with his father, John W. Vickrey, and family, when but a child, from Kentucky to Guadalupe County, Texas. He was baptized into Christ at the age of fourteen years, in the beautiful San Marcos River, by Brother C. Kendrick.

He volunteered and fought in the Southern Army in the Civil War, but never liked to talk of his experience in the army—always said it was too sad.

He had very little school advantages until after he was grown. After the war he worked his way through common school and afterwards taught school, and later studied medicine in Louisville, Ky., and Cincinnati, Ohio, and became a practicing physician and dentist at about the age of thirty-five years.

He was married to Miss Pauline Kendrick, of Corinth, Miss., on November 23, 1882. To this union were born two children—one son and one daughter—Forrest and Mary. His companion was called to heaven, December 23, 1892, leaving him the care and responsibility of the two little children, then nine and six years of age.

Soon after the death of his wife, he, with his two children, moved to Salado, Texas, where, in company with his sister, Mrs. J. T. King, he cared for his aged mother until her death a few months later. In the year 1894 he moved to Bowie, Texas, where he spent the remaining years of his life.

He leaves his two children, Forrest and Mary (now Mrs. B. E. Watson); one brother, G. N. Vickrey, of Salado, Texas; two sisters, Mrs. J. T. King, of Wynnewcod, Okla., and Mrs. C. W. McCune, of Pedras Negras, Mexico.

The above records give a brief sketch of a good and useful life; but only these who were close to him can realize what the community, the church, and the home have lost in the death of Brother Vickrey. In all the relations of life he discharged his duties faithfully; in his business and social life and in his Christian life he lived above reproach. By his neighbors he was respected for his high-toned manhood and loved for his kindly care for their welfare.

By diligence in business he accumulated a competency for the necessities and comforts of old age; but he was thoughtful for the needs of others and gave liberally of his means to relieve the suffering ones or help in every good work.

He was senior elder of the congregation from the time of the division on account of innovations some twenty years ago. He was song leader, and led the last song at the close of the meeting not more than forty minutes before his death, which occurred soon after he arrived home from meeting on the evening of June 17, 1920.

Brother W. T. Kidwell was with us helping in a protracted meeting, and had spent the afternoon with Brother Vickrey in his home. The clouds were threatening, but they went to meeting. After a short service, Brother Vickrey returned home just a few minutes before the storm in its fury was on, and with Brother B. E. Watson was trying to support a window exposed most to the wind, when suddenly Brother Vickrey gave way and sank to the floor and gently fell asleep in Jesus. Unlike the elements, his going was quiet and, we believe, painless.

> "Softly, gently, came the summons Like the rose leaf's gentle fall; And he sweetly sank in slumber, Yielding to the heavenly call."

Brother Vickrey will be missed by our whole community, and will be missed by the congregation here, perhaps, more than any member that might have been taken. But the greatest cloud of sorrow hangs over the home, where his only daughter has lost the kind and comforting associations of a loving father.

It has been my privilege and great pleasure to have been intimately associated with the family since my residence in Bowie, dating from 1906, and I have no hesitancy in stating that I never knew a father and daughter more devoted or a home where more care for the pleasure of those visiting in their bome was manifested. But the silver cord is broken, earthly ties are severed, and loved ones are left to mourn their loss; but we "sorrow not, even as others which have no hope;" for we seek "a better country," "a building of God, a house not made with hands," where we hope to meet Brother Vickrey, together with all the loved ones who have gone to that blessed home.

Funeral services were conducted by Brother Matheson, our local preacher, in our church house, after which we laid the body of our beloved brother to rest in Elmwood Cemetery, there to await the call of our blessed Savior to come forth.

"Adventism and the Bible."

William J. Miller, Lometa, Texas.-My Dear Brother: I thank you very much, Brother Miller, for your good letter, and especially for your frank criticism of my position relative to the Ten Commandments and "the law." And 1 agree with you that a second edition of the book might be revised in such a way as to clear up whatever argument that might be made on Rom, 7: 7: "I had not known lust, except the law had said, Thou shalt not covet." Of course, as every biblical student knows, the statement, "Thou shalt not covet," is taken directly from the Ten Commandments. But notice this point, my brother: Dees Paul, in Rom. 7: 7, refer to this one command as "the law?" You will say: "No; he refers to the ten by means of this one." But bear this in mind, also: There were six hundred and forty commands in the legal system, of which the decalogue contained ten. You will note (page 79 of my book) that I catalogue twelve different items that can be found in "the law." Coveting is one of these twelve items. Eleven of these twelve cannot be found in the decalogue, yet they are all in "the law," "The law," then, as I have contended in the book, is something greater than the mere Ten Commandments. The truth of the matter is that the Ten Commandments constituted a part of the legal system; and it is the system that is called "the law," and not either one of its commands or its parts.

I am going to tell you something that might be of interest to you. Following the conference with the brethren referred to on pages 74, 75 of my book, my credentials were taken from me and I was denied the privilege of preaching for the Adventists. Elder McCutchen was very much concerned over my state of mind relative to "the law" question, and he made a trip all the way from Keene to Coleman, Texas, and for no other purpose than to prove to me that there is one text in the Bible that does refer to the Ten Commandments as "the law." And do you have any idea what text he offered in proof of this assertion? Rom. 7: 7. I said: "Elder McCutchen, does Paul, in Rom. 7: 7, call the command, 'Thou shalt not covet,' 'the law?'" He answered: "Certainly not, Brother Monk; he refers to the ten by means of this one." "Then," said I, "what hinders him from referring to the six hundred and forty by means of the ten?'

You get my point, do you not? The Ten Commandments, of course, constituted ten of the six hundred and forty commands in the legal system. If Paul had said, "How would I have known how much to give the Lord of my possessions had the law not said, Thou shalt give a tenth?" would you or I have argued that he referred to the law of tithing as "the law?" The idea is monstrous. The law of tithing was merely a part of "the law"—that is, the legal system. In the same way, then, you and I must understand that he refers to the system when he says "the law" says, "Thou shalt not covet." McCutchen was unable to see this very obvious point; and because I would not preach that Rom. 7: 7 calls the Ten Commandments only "the law," I was not allowed to hold credentials as an Adventist minister.

Relative to your other criticism-that it would be well to leave out of future editions of the book the chapter on "Revelation Revealed"-I have this to say: All Bible students have their views on the book of Revelation. I, along with the others, have mine; and the view I have expressed in the book is my view. No one is under obligation to accept this view. It is simply thrown in as an appendix, simply to feel the pulse of the public relative to such a view of the "book of mystery." The trouble underlying the reviews that have been offered is this: nearly all of these men have their own pet ideas as to the probable meaning of the various symbols of the book of Revelation, and, as Z. T. Sweeney says, these views may or may not be correct. That is all I care for any one to say regarding my view. My reviewers do not like my view because it contradicts their own views, or else because they themselves have never thought on the subject long enough and concentratedly enough to arrive at any original conclusion relative to the book. They have accepted Newton's or Prideaux's or some other prophetic student's conclusions and have kidded themselves into believing that the views of these men are their own.

Thanking you very much, Brother Miller, I am,
Yours truly, J. HENRY MONK.

"The Great Army of God," So Called.

BY A. M. GEORGE.

In the Fort Worth Star-Telegram of April 9, 1920, there was a remarkable picture of a warrior clad in armor, cap-a-pie, and mounted on an armor-clad war horse. The picture locked extremely warlike and invincible, and stands for the great "Interchurch World Movement," called by its friends "the great army of God."

This "great army of God" is just out of the great world war, and its hands are red with fratricidal blood. What a bloody-handed army to be called "the army of God!"

It is described as a great army of thirty divisions (denominations), each one under its own commander, planning its own movements, and equipping itself with money and power.

There seems to be entire ignorance of the fact that these thirty divisions, under their thirty commanders, each planning its own movements, are just so many sources of weakness.

As I have just said, they are just out of a great fratricidal war, for every nation engaged in that war was, as they all admit, a Christian nation, and consequently it was a civil war in Christendom—brother against brother; and they should remember that while they were fighting, each division under its own commander and planning its own movements, the enemy was in a very dangerously fair way to sweep them all off the field; and if they had not at that critical time decided to all unite under one commander and work together, according to his orders, it is exceedingly probable that all of them would soon have been bowing to the so-called "war lord." But they united under one commander, and the armistice soon followed.

It is a known fact that there is strength in union and weakness in division; at least, this is admitted of everything but Christianity, or religion; and this is the burning, crying shame and weakness of so-called "Christianity," or this so-called "great army of God." In their recent great war they tried their federation of divisions, each under its own commander, and failed. Why cannot they profit by their own experience?

While the war was on, they had this great conglomeration of divisions, each under its own commander, directing its own movements, and continuous confusion and defeat was the result; but victory came as soon as they all came together under one commander, so all working together toward a single object.

They all know this, and again I ask, why can they not profit by this well-remembered experience, and, instead of repeating their ruinous folly, all lay aside their denominational leaders and conflicting movements and move forward in one united body, under one Supreme Commander, to victory?

It does look like intelligent people, with such an experience, bought at the price of millions of lives and billions of treasure and a demoralized and debauched world, would not now be clamoring for a repetition of that policy in their boasted war against sin.

If there is any meaning in the Savior's prayer that all of his followers might be one, as he and his Father are one, then this great army of many divisions, all under different commanders, is the great sin of the world, and so it is sin against sin, and all of Satan. "If Satan cast out Satan, he is divided against himself; how shall then his kingdom stand?"

There are no divisions in Christ's army.

Should We Ask Denominational Preachers to Lead the Prayers or Take a Part in Our Services?

BY R. N. MOODY.

Occasionally this question is asked in the papers, which shows that some, at least, are interested in the subject and want to do the right thing about it. In regard to the matter I would submit the following:

We should treat all who attend our meetings with respect; and knowing that preachers of other churches do not believe what we teach and practice, we do not treat them with proper respect when we ask them to violate their conscientious convictions by praying for the success of something they do not believe. To thus treat a conscientious man places him in an embarrassing position. If he declines, he will not be understood—not by the public, at least. If he prays according to his convictions, he would be criticized.

I know that sometimes they and their friends take offense when we do not call on them, thinking that we do not respect them; but if they have any conscientious convictions, why should they want to be called on to take part in something they have no faith in? When they take offense when not called on to take part with us, they show that they are willing to disrespect their own convictions, if they have any, just for the sake of public recognition. Most assuredly a man who has no more respect for his conscience than that should not be called on for anything. One who is willing to thus surrender his convictions is no better than, if as good as, he that has no convictions, and the prayers of him that is without convictions would be but an empty sound.

The Golden Rule forbids my calling on them, for I would not want them to call on me to take part in their meetings and commit myself to something in which I have no faith. This is one thing that keeps me from attending their meetings. If I go, where I am known, they are almost sure to humiliate me by asking me to say or do something that will commit me to something I have no faith in. So I treat them as I would have them treat me.

So much for the other man's conscience. Now about our own.

I see in my audience a preacher. He is sanctimonions and dignified. He is very popular and has a large following. Shall I call on him? I pause to think, I am reminded that he has never obeyed the gospel of Christ, but, instead, was submitted to that farce called "Infant baptism" in infancy; that he practices the same himself, and thereby keeps others from obeying the gospel; that, Instead of scriptural immersion, he sprinkles a little water on the subject, except when under protest he has to immerse some one; and that, instead of a confession of faith in Christ, he has the candidate make the confession laid down in the "Discipline" and to pledge himself to the support of a church unknown in the word of Jehovah. And perhaps I know, by unpleasant experience, that he is a bitter enemy to the truth as I teach it, doing all he can to hinder its progress, and knowing, too, that he belongs to a class of that kind. I know, too, that he is treating with disrespect the prayer of Jesus for the unity of his people (John 17: 20, 21) by building up a religious faction, and thereby encouraging and perpetuating division instead of the unity for which Jesus prayed. Again, I remember that he ignores and sets aside the authority of God's word by substituting a creed fabricated by man, by which he does all that he does in the church, starting with his people at the cradle and ending at the grave.

What is here said of one may, in a general way, be said of all denominational preachers. Not one of them that recognizes the authority of God's word, but, instead, they use a human creed in all they do in a church capacity. While it is true that by word of mouth they admit and even contend for the authority of God's word, yet in their practice they ignore it altogether and do all they do by a human creed; and Solomon has said: "He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer is an abomination" (Prov. 28: 9.) Can we, then, in good faith and with a clear conscience, call on such to lead the prayers?

So I would say that we should not call on them, (1) out of respect for their conscientious convictions, (2) out of respect for our own conscientious convictions, and (3) last, but not least by any means, out of respect for God's authority as set forth in his word.

The Excuse of the Absentee.

BY R. P. CUFF.

1. Religion is worth while. Religion pure and undefiled must measure up to the standard God has set. James says: "Pure religion and undefiled before our God and Father is this, to visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep oneself unspotted from the world." The very fact that upon religion is laid the function of ministering to the necessities of earth's sufferers makes it worth while. The fact that the standard by which religion is measured is divine unmistakably indicates that it must be worth while. The thought that religious men spend their lives in the service of God elevates this thing we call "religion" to heights of sublimity where men may breathe the serene and solemn atmosphere of God's eternal truth, which holds out the gracious promise of life forever in habitations of peace and love.

2. Christianity is as Christians do. The commonplace statement that "beauty is as beauty does" has likely been impressive to most of us. The same principle applies to Christianity. It is claimed that an infidel once said: "There is one thing I cannot understand, and that is the tenacity with which my mother clings to religious life." What Christians do is the content of Christianity. Christian people are epistles of Christ, "known and read of all men." Men read the writing that these people do as they live through spaces of time, whether that writing of life's record "be faithless or true." Our Master, knowing that Christianity is as Christians do, gave instruction that preparation should be made for this reading: "Even so let your light shine before men; that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven." That is a beautiful thought of the apostle Paul: "For as often as ye eat this bread and drink the cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come." By Christian people's doing that, they are setting an object lesson before the world. Until he comes the world will have to make some kind of disposal of that object lesson.

3. An "all-together" pull. In union there is strength. "A long pull, a streng pull, and a pull all together" will jerk up the most deeply rooted stump in the "new ground." The heaviest resisting weight may be put in the desired place by such a pull. Christians are called upon to be "of the same mind and of the same judgment." They need to stand loyally by every work of God that error may be dispelled, that undying souls may be won to Jesus, and that they themselves may be saved in that eternal kingdom.

4. The unstable and double-minded man. The stigma that the apostle placed upon the doubter by saying of him that he is "a double-minded man, unstable in all his ways," could, perhaps, be applied with as much appropriateness to the habitual absentee from God's work and worship. That man whose ultimate aim is the grabbing of dollars and cents, whose highest goal is financial prosperity, yet who "dillydallies" with religion, is somewhat unstable as a religious quantity. I like the sentiment of that man who said: "Christianity is my business. Farming is a tool in the promotion of my business."

5. Sweet, spiritual substance given to life by worship. "God is a spirit; and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth." Such worship is essentially spiritual. It is as food to the spiritual man. It nourishes faith and helps it to grow. Jesus said: "Abide in me, and I in you." Again: "He that abideth in me, and I in him, the same beareth much fruit." We are to abide in him the same way that we entered him—by real, true faith, the faith that acts on conviction. We are to walk in him the same way that we received him. Men who thus walk and abide come to realize the joy of doing God's service. By introspection they see the growth of the spiritual man. Men who drink deep at the fountain of eternal truth will come to know the sweetness received through worship to God. "O taste and see that Jehovah is good!" (Ps. 34: 8.)

6. Custom's power over men. In every department of the social life of the world custom plays an important part. A great many of the wants of most people, perhaps of all, arise in answer to the demands of custom. Custom does not always demand the right thing. Custom is the result of habit, and whether it be right or wrong depends upon the forces that have wrought upon the individual to form the habit. The writer to the Hebrews says concerning the danger of absenting oneself from worship: "Not forsaking our own assembling together, as the custom of some is." (Heb. 10: 25.)

7. Man's tendency to drift into a manner of custom. A great many seem inclined to yield to custom's demands. It seems very easy for some to stay at home in answer to the call of well-formed habit. "forsaking the assembling together." It may be that greed for gain has brought on the habit. It may be that some are too lazy to give themselves that tidy appearance that decency demands. Whatever the cause, it is a degenerate custom that one enters when he habitually stays away from the Lord's service and worship. In one of his plays, Shakespeare asks: "Hath not old custom made this life more sweet?" It may be that it has. At the same time it is true that old custom has made this life more bitter. Whatever the excuse offered by the habitual absence, it may generally be boiled down into the idea that worldly ambitions or absence of spiritual aspirations have interfered with spiritual life,

8. God's answer to the excuse of the absentee. This article aims to stir to activity some who have lapsed into the lazy, "lolling" habit of staying at home on the Lord's day and letting the Lord's worship take care of itself. It wants to bring to mind the truths of religion as worth while; of the duty resting upon Christians to stand by it, proving their faith by their works, and to add to the strength of the worship by throwing all their resources into the work, no Individual leaving it to another man, but each pulling with the other, provoking one another unto love and good works, each holding his own in the work as a strengthener to his faith, that his faith waver not. The article desires to warn against lack of stability in letting other things take the affections away from God's work, to call attention to the sweetness derived from the worship which the absentees fail to get, and to warn against falling into evil custom's

To every absentee excuse maker God's answer is: "Not forsaking our own assembling together." (Heb. 10: 25.)

The Evils of Procrastination.

There probably never was an undertaking of any magnitude for which all things were completely ready. If all the great improvements of the age had been held back until all things were ready, they never would have been brought forward. They have had to fight their way. How many evils come of procrastination, especially to those who admit that what they put off must certainly be done! How it deadens the conscience by blinding the senses and blunting the sensibilities! This spirit of procrastination sets us in opposition to God's plan, which must be the best plan. God's time is now. There never will be a time for coming to Christ better than now. Your return to God, your acknowledgment of Christ, your new life must begin some now. O, for the sake of your peace and growth and everlasting joy, let it be this now.—C. F. Deems.

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine, or Uncle Minor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney—one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?"
This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

James E. Laird is in a good meeting at Cash, Ark. He goes to Egypt next.

Sim Jones is engaged in a meeting at Philippl, Maury County, Tenn., this week.

James E. Scobey will preach at Columbia, Tenn., the second Lord's day in August.

R. A. Craig reports nine additions at Parksville, Ky., and the meeting still in progress.

B. C. Goodpasture will preach for the West End congregation, in Atlanta, during Brother Hall's absence.

Under date of July 19, F. J. Berry writes us that he recently closed an interesting meeting at Swenson, Texas.

John T. Smithson is in a good meeting at Oak Grove, in Warren County, Tenn. Four young people have obeyed the gospel.

Willis G. Jernigan is now living at Olathe, Col. At present he is conducting a promising meeting at Walnut Grove, Texas.

J. W. Grant reports one addition at Hill's Chapel, with large crowds and good interest. The meeting is continuing at this writing.

Mrs. Lottie Johnson, one of the faithful workers for the St. Louis congregation, came to see us last week. She is visiting relatives at Belleview, Tenn.

Married, July 24, in the office of the Gospel Advocate, J. C. McQuiddy officiating, R. S. Dudley to Miss Ina Gore. The Gospel Advocate offers congratulations.

W. T. Hines wishes to dispose of his grocery at Braman, Okla. If some brother wishes to locate in the West where there is a good congregation, this is an opportunity.

I. B. Bradley closed a meeting for the Macedonia Church, near Mayfield, Ky., on July 24. Three were baptized and one restored during this meeting. He is now at Pottsville.

M. C. Kurfees writes us that interest is growing in the meeting that he is holding near Mocksville, N. C., and that there had been three additions at the time of this writing.

Price Billingsley was engaged last week in a meeting at Smyrna, Tenn. He was preaching to crowded houses. J. L. Jackson and H. W. Wrye were assisting in the meeting.

We appreciate the following commendation from J. K. P. South, a veteran soldier of the cross, who lives at Franklin, Ky.: "I am glad to know that you are contending for the faith."

We were pleased to have W. E. Warren, of Rives, Tenn., call to see us last week. He reports the church at Rives as in good condition. A. G. Freed preaches regularly for this church.

The editor of this page was a guest at the reunion of Squire John W. Vaughn's family, which was celebrated at Glendale Park on Friday, July 23. It was a very enjoyable occasion.

John Taylor, of Waverly, Tenn., is engaged in a protracted meeting at Paris, Tenn. The church is very much pleased with his preaching. We hope that great good may be accomplished.

We are glad to inform our readers that Sister J. W. Grant is much improved, and it is now thought by her physician that it will not be necessary for her to undergo the surgical operation.

From W. Curtis Porter, King Mills, Ark., July 20: "My meeting at Simstown closed on Sunday at noon. We had very good attendance and good attention, but no additions, I began here Sunday night."

G. W. Riggs closed a meeting last Sunday night at Bethel, Davidson County, Tenn., which resulted in three additions. There was good attendance, and interest was shown throughout the meeting.

A. L. Stewart, of Fountain Creek, Tenn., wishes to get in touch with congregations who may need his services in meetings next year. For the present he is working on the farm and preaching on Sundays.

A letter from J. C. Estes, of Davenport, Iowa, brings the information that the little congregation there is getting on very nicely. We are glad to note this, and trust the church will continue to grow in interest.

From Silas E. Templeton, Atlanta, Ga., July 20: "I leave for Morven, Ga., by way of Valdosta, to-night, for a ninedays' meeting. When I return, I hope to be able to send in a nice list of renewals and new subscribers."

J. B. Redd, who is pleasantly remembered by many of the Cospel Advocate readers, was married to Miss Dosa Harrison, at Recky Comfort, Mo., on June 9. Brother Redd Is laboring with the congregation at Rocky Comfort.

This office knows of one of our best preachers who, having served at his present post for several years, feels that he should now make a change. If any congregation needing a man will communicate with us, we will put it in touch with him.

C. E. Holt dropped in to see us last week while on his way to his home in Florence, Ala. He had preached a number of times at Summitville, Coffee County, Tenn. He is making arrangements to devote considerable time to protracted-meeting work.

R. N. Moody writes: "The meeting at Acton, Tenn., continues with immense crowds and good interest. Five baptisms to date. We will continue a part of next week. I go from here to New Hope, Ala., for a meeting, which will be my address after August 1."

J. D. Chambers, of the Philadelphia Church, in Wilson County, Tenn., made us a pleasant visit last Thursday. He reports the church as doing well, and informs us that W. L. Collins, of Portland, Tenn., is expected to hold the annual meeting during next August.

The sisters appointed as an advisory board of the Tennessee Orphans' Home are enthusiastic in their work. They called to see us on July 21, and manifested very great interest in the welfare of the Home. They were in the city visiting other similar institutions.

From L. E. Pryor, Melber, Ky., July 24: "I closed an eleven-days' meeting at Poplar Hill on Thursday, which resulted in five baptisms and two restorations. We had large crowds and good attention at night throughout the meetings. My next meeting will be at Sharp, Ky."

From L. S. White, Sherman, Texas, July 23: "On Monday night, July 5, I began a meeting at Savoy, fifteen miles east of Sherman, and continued it ten days, with two services daily. Fifteen were baptized, and much interest shown in other ways. The Savoy church is a good one and treated me guite well."

From Herbert E. Winkler, Hardyville, Ky., July 21: "My meeting at Needmore, below Clarksville, Tenn., continued fifteen days, with interest only medium. Jesse Barfield conducted the song service the last week of the meeting. There were no additions. I am now in a good meeting with the Fairview congregation, out from Hardyville,"

C. E. Wooldridge held a meeting last week at Bethlehem, three miles from Murfreesboro. When we last heard from the meeting, there had been two confessions. He preached at Foster Street, this city, last Sunday night. On Monday morning he left by automobile for Columbia, Tenn.; Florence, Ala.; Jackson, Miss.; and Shreveport, La., en route to Texas.

W. T. Mackie informs us that C. G. McPhee, of Toronto. Canada, will begin a meeting at Buford's Chapel, White's Creek, Tenn., the first Lord's day in August. He is a splendid evangelist, and might be prevailed upon to hold another meeting in this State before returning to Canada. Any church wishing the services of a good evangelist would do well to write him at White's Creek, Tenn.

J. H. Meade, of Abilene, Texas, called to see us last week. He was en route to Kedron, near Russellville, Ky., to begin a protracted meeting the first Sunday in August. He reports the work in Abilene as prospering. He has been instrumental in helping to establish a church in South Abilene. Counting the place of worship in the Abilene Christian College, there are now about three churches in Abilene.

From W. R. Cox, Remmel, Ark., July 20: "Joe H. Blue has just closed a series of meetings at this place. While we had no additions, we surely had some of as fine gospel preaching as it has been our privilege to hear for a long time. Brother Blue knows how to preach and has the courage to tell it like it is in God's word. The congregation was lifted up greatly, and we were disappointed that we could not get his services for another year."

J. A. Jenkins writes: "I began a meeting with the church at Liberty Hill, in Moore County, Tenn., on July 10, and continued it until the night of July 20, with five added to the congregation. The attendance was good all the time, with the exception of two days that it rained, and the interest was good throughout. My next meeting will be near Daylight, Tenn. I have time for one more meeting the last of August. Address me at West Huntsville, Ala."

From A. L. Dixon, Delrose, Tenn., July 24: "A meeting of much interest was that held at old Bethel, near Athens, Ala., with M. H. Northeross doing the preaching and the writer leading the song service. Although ripe in years, Brother Northeross still has a happy recollection of the gespel which is God's power to save the world and of which he is not ashamed. I go next to be in a meeting near Petersburg, Tenn., with T. C. Little, of Fayetteville."

We regret to say that the contribution for the Tennessee Orphans' Home on the first Lord's day in July was not so good as usual. The Home is running short of funds, so we should be glad to have Christians make a special contribution on any Sunday that they may think best. Christians could be very helpful to the Home by contributing a good book or books suited to the children, remembering that the children, in the main, are from three to twelve years of age.

Leslie G. Thomas, of 2410 Delmar Avenue, Flint, Mich., has been working for twelve months in that place for the upbuilding of the cause of Christ. With the aid of the brethren in Detroit, a new house of worship has been built and is now filled with a splendid congregation. The churches in Detroit, cooperating with the Flint Church, have decided to put Brother Thomas in the field all the time. His work will be in Flint and in the contiguous territory.

S. W. Lawrence, of Anson, Texas, commends the article which recently appeared in the Gospel Advocate on "The Christian's Relation to Carnal Warfare." He says it did him much good. He also states: "I heartily indorse every point you made, and wish I could help to put the truth of the article into the hearts of all our brethren, so that in the event of another war they would rise up as one and attempt to protect our young brethren from enforced combatant service."

W. C. Presley writes: "I note your advance in the price of the Gospel Advocate. I do not see how any one can object to the price, if he will consider the amount of good being done through its columns. Apropos with this, just last Friday night I was informed that an aged gentleman had been led to obey the gospel by reading the Advocate. His daughter also was brought by its teachings to a knowledge of the truth. This is the encouraging side of publishing a religious journal such as the Advocate.

We have a circular announcing that the congregation worshiping at Vine, Tenn., midway between Lebanon and Murfreesboro and thirty miles east of Nashville, will hold an old-fashioned community (camp) meeting, beginning the first Sunday in August and continuing sixteen days. There will be three or more services each day during the meeting. Evangelist H. W. Wrye, of Dallas, Texas, assisted by others, will do the preaching. Armstropg Tayler, from the David Lipscomb College, will lead the song service.

H. B. Young reports a rather unusual conversion at Soddy, Tenn., July 19. He writes: "It was my privilege to attend to a rather unusual baptism this morning. The unusual part was that a young man in the full vigor of life should demand baptism in the absence of a protracted meeting or any other meeting. While eating breakfast, a messenger knocked on my door, who bore the message that Brother Lawson wanted me to baptize his son. I responded, and in a short time we, the family, and some friends were standing on the banks of Opossum Creek, where, after a few appropriate remarks, I buried the young man with his Lord in baptism."

A letter from E. S. Jelley, written on June 9, informs us of his safe arrival in India. He found his children well. An extract from this letter reads: "Rupees have gone up in value to above two shillings sterling each and prices are high. This means that I must economize to the limit and that I shall have a very small margin to rely upon in case of delays from America. I have no complaint of any sort to make, but I simply explain the circumstances so that the brethren may know that I and my children are dependent for our daily bread upon their diligence. I assure you that I shall in the future, as in the past, try to faithfully teach the Word." Brother Jelley's address is Dehra Dun, U. P., British India.

From J. A. Cullum, Roff, Okla., July 16: "I am now in a good meeting here. Brother Bryant had been preaching for about a week when I arrived. The interest bids fair for a good meeting. I came here in 1918, finding only four faithful members. I held a twenty-days' meeting, at the close of which we set in order a nice little congregation which began to meet for worship in the home of S. T. Barnard. In 1919 I returned and held another meeting which resulted in twenty-nine additions, and they continued to meet in this home. Recently they have built and payed for a nice, concrete-block meetinghouse, in which we are now holding our meeting. Truly, the gospel is 'the power of God' when faithfully preached and practiced."

The second annual camp meeting held by the churches of Christ of Forestville, Graton, and Santa Rosa, Cal., will be held at Graton, this year, beginning on August 15 and continuing over three Lord's days. A small grove near the Graton church building has been secured. This place is of easy access to the three congregations, and at this time of year many campers are in for the fruit work. The day sessions will be dismissed occasionally for those who desire to visit the ocean and other points of interest. A number of preaching brethren, singers, and visitors have already planned to come. Let others come and join us in this spiritual feast. Write to some member of the congregations or to their committee: G. W. Winter, Forestville: George M. Scott. Graton; J. T. Wilburn, Santa Rosa.

The Tennessee Orphans' Home has never been equipped with fire escapes, which is very necessary for the proper protection of its inmates. It will take considerably over a thousand dollars to buy first-class fire escapes. A. M. Burton of this city, has already given his check for one hundred dollars for this fund. John W. Fry, treasurer, agrees to give another hundred. Brother Burton very aptly says: "I feel very keenly the responsibility that has been placed upon us to act promptly. It would be nothing short of a crime to have a fire there without fire escapes. If all the directors feel about this as I do, we will soon have the money in hand to do this work." I am publishing this with the hope that a number of brethren who read this notice will at once send check for one hundred dollars to John W. Fry, treasurer of the Tennessee Orphans' Home, Columbia, Tenn. Mr. Menzler, secretary of the State Board of Charities, some two years ago called attention to the fact that our building was not equipped with fire escapes and asked that it should be done. Prompt action is wise and is necessary to save us from inexcusable neglect.

We rejoice with the brethren at Jackson, Tenn., progress of the Lord's work as indicated by the following report by John T. Hall: "Trusting that it will be of interest and encouragement to congregations in other sections of the country to read of how the work is prospering in Jackson, I will submit just a few words. I always re-joice to read in this blessed paper of the work of the church and the ministry in other places. While we are church and the ministry in other places. not what we should be in a city of more than twenty thousand, yet we have a good, strong congregation of above one hundred and sixty members, of whom many are able in the blessed word. We have an excellent and well-organized Bible study every Lord's day at 10 A.M., the average attendance for the past three months being around the one-hundred mark, and we are hoping that this is only a beginning for a greater success in these parts for the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. For the past several years we have had three wide awake elders-A. M. Tucker, H. Saunders, and T. E. Tatum-who are ever looking out for the good of the work, and who assist and encourage our preachers in teaching the members with reference to their We all know that in our worldly affairs, if our bustness is to be a success, we must be prompt and stay with it. Now, how about the church we love, since it is of so much greater import? Should we not make the proper effort to regularly attend all the services and be careful to do, in the spirit of the Christ, what we can and all we can do in keeping with God's word, that every service may be just what it should be, that we may be well pleasing to our Lord?"

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipseomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is malied regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unlass you have paid all arrearag, if there are any. Do not ask your postmanter to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable businessmen who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospol Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, hotify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

Symptoms of Moral Laxity.

BY J. C. M'Q.

R. G. Buchanan requested Brother Elam to answer the questions given below according to the Bible teaching. The questions have been turned over to me for answer. Here they are: (1) "Is it right for women to ride astride of a horse like a man, and is it right for them to go in bathing with men in public places?" (2) "Can they keep up with the style of dress of the present time, such as highheeled shoes and hobble skirts? Is not indulgence in such dress in violation of the Bible teaching where it says, 'Let all things be done decently and in order?""

Instead of dealing with the symptoms, we should deal with the disease. A successful physician does not treat the symptoms of a disease, but treats the disease itself, and endeavors to destroy it root and branch. The things mentioned by our brother are clear evidences that about us there is a world of confusion and immorality and that under the spell of a general moral laxity we are groping our way in the darkness of self-indulgence and ease without a single ray of light. It is clear that women who adorn themselves as described by our brother do not dwell upon the teaching of the Holy Spirit as much as they should, which teaching says: "Whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." (Phil. 4: 8.) The Bible teaches that women should not depend on her outward dress for adorning, but that she should look to the hidden man of the heart and that her adornment should be a meek and quiet spirit. "Whose adorning let it not be the outward adorning of braiding the hair, and of wearing jewels of gold, or of putting on apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in the incorruptible apparel of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." (1 Pet. 3: 3, 4.) Paul, in writing to Timothy, also says: "In like manner, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefastness and sobriety; not with braided hair, and gold or pearls or costly raiment; but (which becometh women professing godliness) through good works." Tim. 2: 9, 10.) The Christian woman with a meek and quiet spirit will adorn herself with discreetness and sobriety. Her apparel will be modest and such as is not calculated to arouse the lust of the impure and vicious. She should adorn herself in a garment let down, and not in one cut off to her knees. While God created woman attractive and gentle, and while in these particulars she is tar superior to man, she should not depend on her outward adorning for this attraction, but should depend upon the adornment of a meek and quiet spirit. This is the plain teaching of the word of God; and whenever we as a race depart from it, we must suffer. Our women are indulging in such practices, and this shows clearly that we have departed from the simple teaching of the word of God.

President Hibben, of Princeton, very aptly says: "About us is a world of confusion and turmoil, and under the spell of a general moral laxity we are groping in the dark for the ray of light which we have not yet discovered. Selfinterest and self-indulgence have suddenly asserted themselves. The very world itself has grown smaller in our minds since the fall of 1918. We have become cowardly in the face of evident responsibility, and there are many who are quite ready to limit our national obligations to the shores of the Atlantic and the Pacific and selfishly to say to all the peoples of the world; 'Henceforth we are determined to live unto ourselves.' There is the danger of a lessening, if not a loss, of the old-time reverence for womanhood. There is no longer an aura of mystery about the young woman to-day, a mystery at once her defense and her glory; and whenever in the history of the race this divine prerogative of womanhood is lightly regarded or recklessly scorned, it has always proved a symptom of decadence far-reaching and disastrous. Every age of moral and spiritual progress in the history of any people has always been an age of chivalry, in which womanhood has not only been respected, but revered." Whenever woman loses her modesty, she loses her power and influence for good. Whenever a woman deliberately gives consent to dress in such a manner as to lay aside her shamefacedness and sobriety, she deliberately decides to part company with the highest and noblest attraction that God has given President Richmond, of Union College, writing along the same line and showing the evil effects of the late terrible war, says: "There is evidence enough to show that for the moment, at least, we have reacted to a lower level. The magnificent spirit called out by the demands for sacrifice and heroism has flattened out into a passion for self-indulgence and a mean competition of greed. It is a passing phase. We have too much faith in human nature to believe that we shall not recover. But we must not blind ourselves to the fact that the world over the mass of men and women are in the mood to barter their spiritual inheritance for a mess of pottage. If we think that the confusion into which this world has been thrown is to be straightened out by the devices of economists or by the manipulation of political experts, we are making a hideous mistake. It will be done, if it is done at all, as it was done in the beginning, when the Spirit of God brooded over the face of the deep and brought an ordered world out of chaos."

We can hardly charge to the late war all the evils of the present hour. Dean Jones, of Yale, admits that these symp toms may be after-war mania, but he insists that they began to show themselves before the war. "Such tenden cies are perhaps more easily observed in the young, and the change was at first more noticeable in young girls than in men, and I am convinced that it has come about gradually during the last ten years, and largely because of the influence of the dancing craze, the automobile, and the moving picture. The parents of the country were not courageous enough to take a definite stand against the increasing gayety, and hence the result. About eight or nine years ago the popular vogue of the 'new' dances commenced. Right then was the beginning of the lowering standards. At first the more conservative parents were obdurate, but gradually they acquiesced until not only do we have the dance craze developed to its nth degree, but we have various other evils in its train. Chief among these are the appearance and actions of the modern girl and the growing popularity of the 'public dance hall.' . . . The morals of the college man have, I think, been in the past well above the average. I believe this still to be true. That does not argue well for the morals of the rest of the country. We are approaching a moral crisis, nor do I think we can avoid it by educating. There was a time when I thought that we must teach in college first and foremost the learning of books. In these days I would bend every effort to the making of good citizens, and by a good citizen I think I mean 'a man who is master of himself, earns his own living, and as far as possible in doing it is of benefit to his fellow men,"

I am glad to see that both President Richmond and Dean Jones rely on a strict compliance with the word of God as a remedy for these evils. The more loyalty and reverence that one has for the word of God, the less disposed will that one be to engage in such disastrous practices. Socalled modern liberty between the sexes is fast approaching license. It appears at times that the very heart of our civilization and religion is at stake. People everywhere should be taught to have more respect for God's word, to love honor and integrity more than they do wealth and social position. Too many men and women to-day look lightly upon dishonest methods, upon moral decrepitude, and place too high an estimate upon social and financial success. Men and women should be taught to master themselves; they should rise superior to such practices. "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city." (Prov. 16: 32.)

"Do We Need Enlightenment?"

BY F. W. SMITH.

The Gospel Advocate desires to turn on more light relative to the ends to which the societies have brought those churches cooperating with them. Hence the following from C. E. Elmore, in the Christian Standard of June 3:

In the Christian Century, dated June 10, in a leading editorial on "The Strain Upon Interchurch Loyalty," the writer says: "At the Cleveland meeting of the General Committe, early in May, the subcommittee appointed in the forenoon to consider the report brought in by officers, found things more serious and dark than had been at first understood. When, a week later, the same gathering met again in New York, there was a very general disposition, certainly on the part of Baptist and Presbyterian representatives, as well as the Disciples and others, to pay the underwriters and withdraw. Complete reversal of this purpose was brought about by an explanation afforded by the attorney for the Interchurch, who pointed out that in all likelihood each underwriting board would be legally held, not alone for the amount named in its signed guarantee, but for its share of whatever deficit might remain after the specified underwritings were paid."

I am wondering if this is true. If it is, then there is absolutely no foreseeing in what our overzealous compromising brethren have involved us. The question arises, where are they to get the money with which to pay these obligations? Of course, the only answer is, they must use money given to other causes through the various boards affiliating in the United Society. Are the brethren going to submit to this? Has the time not arrived when churches should refuse longer to give their money to these boards to be thus wrongfully used? The way to bring these officials to their senses is to cut off the supply of cash. We have given our last cent through our "organized" boards until they come back to the sane and scriptural position they were called into existence to fill.

The Christian Century is one of the most ultra advocates of departures from the Bible order of all the papers published by those claiming to be disciples of Christ. It differs very radically from the policy of the Christian Standard in a number of things, and the swords of the two papers are frequently crossed with each other. We may conclude, therefore, that when the Century depicts an enterprise like the "Interchurch World Movement" as dark and gleomy, it is time for those who have not gone so far away from the truth to hesitate before proceding further, I am not sure that the Century has ever indersed the "Interchurch World Movement," but the policy of that paper is broad enough to encompass almost any kind of religious movement just so it does not tend in the direction of the New Testament.

But to the Standard contributor's question, "Do we need enlightenment?" Emphatically, yes. If the churches had been properly enlightened with reference to New Testament church polity, no such articles would appear in any paper published by Christians as the foregoing from the Century, and no such queries would be propounded as the one heading this article. The deplorable state of affairs among the society brethren would never have existed had the churches been kept informed on the teaching of the New Testament. The very day the society was born the "Restorative movement" started on its way back to sectdom-back to the very things from which it had emerged. The journeying was slow at first, but as the "fathers" fell asleep the strides became longer and more rapid until the procession has pulled up at the very gates of Rome: Their central head, the Board, has almost swept them within the gates of federated sectarianism, and now leaders among the churches thus entangled are frightened at the situation and wonder how such a fate could have befallen them. Well, it is the same old story repeated over and over in the history of man from Eden till now-viz., man's dissatisfaction with the ways of God. The history of Israel is replete with examples of apostasy, and they were recorded for instruction and warning to the church of Christ. The effort to restore the church of the New Testament was marvelous in its achievement so long as its advocates were content with the New Testament pattern, but the fatal hour came when they undertook to improve upon God's way, and now behold the state of those who have followed the wisdom of men! The central head of the 'Disciples" committed them to the "Interchurch World Movement "-became one of the "underwriters" of the staggering expense account of the enterprise to the amount of six hundred thousand dollars! All this was done without the consent of the churches; and since the board is the legalized representative of the "Disciples," because their society is legally incorporated, they find themselves bound for this six hundred thousand and no telling how much more. Verily "interchurch world movements" come high these days, and our society brethren may find themselves bankrupt because of this religious luxury. If this does not teach them a lesson, then their case is hopeless.

Current Thought

Victory.

Sometimes our most earnest prayers seem to be defeated. We ask, seek, knock—we agonize, wait, listen, expect—and the answer does not seem to come. On the face of it we have lost

It was that way with Jesus in Gethsemane. He prayed in an agony of bloody sweat, and was seized almost while he prayed. He left Gethsemane and passed—apparently forsaken and helpless—before Caiaphas, Pilate, and Herod, and on through the long rows of hissing, cursing people, down the streets of Jerusalem and out to the crucifixion generally meted to the worst of criminals. And then he went down into the grave. Surely it all looked black enough.

But his prayers were and are being answered. Seated on the right hand of God, he is guiding and shaping the destinies of mankind. He wears the victor's radiant grown.

Faith is not mistaken and love is not mocked. The answer to our prayers will be granted, and in a grander way than our best dreams promise.

An Old Testament seer could sing of one who loved life and prayed that its sparkling cup might not be taken away from him. What came to pass appeared to put his prayer among the vanities. But the seer divined the larger meaning and wrote, in triumphant tone: "He asked for life, and he gave him life forevermore." That was a sublime answer to a touching prayer. The answer was so great and satisfying that its dazzling light blinded the heart and paralyzed it into the feeling of defeat.

But out of the deep stillness, which sometimes comes when one first finds out that he cannot have his own way with the larger issues of things, came the jubilant, trumpet-like song of Life Forevermore. Morning came, and nothing that could ever happen afterwards could affect the soul. God whispered the explanation of a crushing experience to a sore and seemingly defeated heart, and it was enough: and it has been sufficient for millions of others of like experience through these long, strange human years on earth.

He asked for a rose; God gave him the garden. He asked for the sweetness of companionship, and God translated him into the midst of those who have been translated him into the midst of those who have been translated him into the midst of those who have been translated him into the midst of those who have been translated by the sacrament of death and glorified forever by the unveiled vision of the beautiful Christ. He asked for more hours on earth, and God gave him heaven's golden days without end. He wanted more existence; God gave him eternity. He hungered and thirsted for life, and God gave him Life Forevermore. Thus our prayers are answered in a way worthy of God and in a manner whose very lavishness overwhelms us when its full meaning is revealed in the House of Interpreter. Those who have learned that their defeats are victories may suffer for a little time, but they later learn to walk softly and humbly before God and a great peace steals into their hearts. It is the peace which Christ gives, and nothing can snatch it away from them.—Christian-Evangelist.

In seeming failure a Christian enjoys victory. When Christ was tempted by the archfiend of the human family and had resisted the strongest temptation that could be presented to humanity, at the time it was not possible to realize the full extent of his victory. But after the great trial and terrible conflict came the angel's visits. So after our night of sorrow comes the day of rejoicing. After life's great battles have been fought and the last victory won, the Christian goes to his eternal reward. The lives of such men as Moses, David, Joseph, Paul, and Peter cannot be a failure. Their influence lives after they are gone and lights and guides men to the throne of God. The earnest desire and constant prayer of every Christian should be to do the will of God, so that when his earthly pilgrimage closes his influence for good may extend through all eter-Death will have no power over the influence and victory of such lives. 0 0 0

There is nothing so strong or safe in an emergency of life as the simple truth.—Dickens.

Our Three-Minutes' Speech: "America First"

"America First." This is a good motto, provided that we make it mean the right thing. When we make it mean that America should receive the maximum and give the minimum, should assume no responsibilities which should give any other nation a needed uplift, should build around itself a wall and have as little to do as possible with other nations, then the motto stands for a policy of the meanest kind of selfishness, which will finally dry up all the currents of a nation's life.

Let us make "America First" our motto, but let us be sure that we give it the proper meaning. What does the motto mean to a red-blooded American who believes that he has come into this life as an American citizen to make life and the whole world sweeter and stronger?

America should be "first" in possessing that power which makes real men and women who have a world outlook a world sweeter.

look, a world sympathy.

America should be "first" in living out that ideal which makes the nation the great moral exemplar of all other nations and the most ready to throw the strong arm of protection around those smaller unfortunate nations which are the victims of international greed.

America should be "first" in matching material prosperity with moral and spiritual growth evidenced in the building of churches and schools, hospitals, and other institutions which make real democracy wholesome and lasting.

America should be "first" in enthroning Jesus Christ in her social, commercial, economic, and political life. The Supreme Court of this country has adjudged the American nation to be a Christian nation. To make Christ our leader—in other words, to make him "first"—is to make America first in those things which are worth living for and dying for.

If we make America "first" in these ways, we may be sure that our church, our town, our community, and our State will have that preëminence and power to which they are entitled. To make Christ "first" in the individual life is to make America first in the life of the world.

The above article from the Christian Advocate deserves serious consideration. It is well said and to the point. We should make America "first" for Christ. We should encourage the people and lead them to put into practice the language of Christ: "But seek ye first his kingdom, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." (Matt. 6: 33.) We cannot serve two masters. Christ must be "first" with us, and must be "first" with America, if America is to do the work that it should do. Our service to Christ must be whole-hearted, and not half-hearted. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart."

0 0 0

The Will to Serve.

Christianity, it needs to be said, is first of all a matter, not of the reason nor of the emotions, but of the will. We cannot make up our mind to believe something, but we can make up our mind to do something. We cannot resolve to think this or that about Christ, but we can highly resolve to follow him and give him our allegiance. Peter was devotedly serving Christ long before he understood the full truth about Christ. That day when Peter left all to follow the Master, attracted by the charm of his personality, he was not prepared to say: "Thou art the Christ, the Son of the living God." That recognition came at the end of his discipleship; it dawned upon him only in the progress of service. Christian theology is not to be disparaged, for Christianity is a rational system, and it is right and natural to think about it and formulate thoughts in creeds; but before Christian theology stands Christian service, and it is he "who doeth the will" that "shall know of the doctrine."-F. A. George.

Announcement.

Editor's Note: As has already been indicated, C. E. Wooldridge has become connected with the Gospel Advocate. He left a few days ago for Texas to permanently perfect his plans to engage actively in the work of extending the circulation of the Gospel Advocate. His territory will be Texas and Oklahoma. Brother Wooldridge is a preacher of ability, is energetic and forceful. Churches will do well to enlist his services whenever possible. He expects to call to his aid a number of the best preachers and workers in Texas. The following note from him will inform our readers as to his intentions. Any assistance rendered him in his work will be very greatly appreciated by all connected with the Gospel Advocate,

Fort Worth, Texas.-Dear Brother: After spending nearly seven years in the work in Tennessee, I have returned home to Texas. The publishers of the Gospel Advocate, desiring to extend its circulation and field of usefulness, have proposed a Texas-Oklahoma department, and have asked me to conduct this department and push the circulation in this field. To this end I am asking the preaching brethren to furnish me regularly with news items of their work and short articles for our space. We cannot expect large space, but by consistent "boiling dewn" we can fill what is given us with newsy and inter-"boiling esting matter which will be valuable to the cause. let me have news notes and articles right away, as we want to start this feature soon. Also give me list of dates and places of your future engagements for meetings. Let me have a personal word from you, assuring me of your interest in this and that I may depend on your cooperation to make the department all it should be; also that you will push subscriptions. The Advocate is now $2.50 per year. You will note that other papers in its class advanced long before it did. Address me at 350 Missouri Avenue until permanent address is given in the paper. Hoping that we may be mutually helpful and working together in this ac-Yours for service, complish much good, I am,

C. E. WOOLDRIDGE

To-Day.

BY MORGAN H. CARTER.

Brethren, the hour is at hand to work for Christ. Now is the time for us to show all men what the church of Christ, founded upon the truth of God, directed by his word, can do in bringing salvation through Christ unto all who will hear, believe, repent, and obey. We must bear witness for Christ because we love the Father and our fellow men, that men may be brought to Jesus through our Christlike lives and gospel teaching.

We have just established a congregation in New York We earnestly desire your prayers that God may strengthen us for his use. We must have the name and address of every Christian who has moved here from some loyal church or any other party whom we might interest in God's work. It is very necessary that we have these names immediately. So if you know of any one that has moved here, find his or her address to-day and write me, so that I may see them, for I am to be here only a few more days. The call is urgent; hasten, that the King's work may not be delayed. The salvation of some soul may come as an outgrowth of your interest and prompt action. When you are in New York, worship with the brethren and sisters at 239 West Sixty-ninth Street (just off of Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue). Take a West Side subway to Seventy-second Street, or a Sixth or Ninth Avenue elevated train to Sixty-sixth Street, or any upper Broadway surface car to Sixty-ninth Street, and walk a short distance to No. 239. You will find a real welcome and genuine fellowship. For any further information, write Brother G. M. McKee, 105 West Sixty-fourth Street, New York; or if in the city, call him at Columbus 1624. Please send the names to me to-day, at 105 West Sixtyfourth Street, New York, N. Y.

David Lipseomb College Notes.

BY V. B. L.

The prospect for a good fall opening on Tuesday, September 28, appears exceedingly bright. Many of the old students are coming back, and there will be some new faces in both dormitories.

Workmen have been engaged for two weeks in repairing and renovating the old Avalon Home. Most of the lower floor is being converted into a large community dining room which will accommodate all the boarding students.

Mrs. Will R. Smith, who will have charge of the community dining room, is taking a special summer course in Domestic Science at the George Peabody College for Teachers.

The new girls' dormitory is completed, and it only remains for the furniture to be installed to make it ready for the opening day. A woman's committee appointed by the Board of Trustees will put on the finishing touches.

Prof. S. P. Pittman has been busy in the evangelistic field ever since commencement day. During his meeting at Brownsville, Tenn., he visited relatives at Stanton, near where he was born.

J. E. Danks, who is now a member of the Senior Class, has started a promising young congregation at Independdence, W. Va.

Miss Ora Crabtree, who is the new teacher for the Department of Expression, writes an interesting letter from Asheville, N. C., where she is pursuing post graduate work. We quote a brief extract: "Dear Brother Lipscomb: I must tell you that I am receiving some valuable lessons in the teaching of expression and public speaking, and I am sure that I am coming back to Nashville worth much more to David Lipscomb College than I would have been without this wonderful instruction. I have great plans for my department, and it is my earnest desire to make it so valuable that every young man and woman in school will feel the necessity of taking the course."

It gives me sincere pleasure to announce that Brother W. Claude Hall, of Dyer, Tenn., will be a member of the faculty of David Lipscomb College for the coming session. As a teacher and preacher, he enjoys a wide acquaintance, and has been successful along both lines. He has had twelve years' experience as a high-school principal in four different high schools of West Tennessee. He is at present a teacher in the State Normal College at Memphis. Tenn. We believe that this acquisition to our faculty means an asset of strength and usefulness.

G. C. Brewer, the efficient head of our English Department, has closed a very successful meeting at Fort Deposit, Ala. He brought in several names of prospective students.

Golden Thoughts.

Perhaps the most valuable result of all education is the ability to make yourself do the thing you have to do when it ought to be done, whether you like it or not; it is the first lesson which ought to be learned; and however early a man's training begins, it is probably the last lesson he learns thoroughly.

All true work is sacred. In all true work, were it but true handwork, there is semething of divineness. Labor, wide as the earth, has its summit in heaven. To sit as a passive bucket and be pumped into can be exhilarating to no creature, how eloquent soever be the flood of utterance that is descending.

"These people get on my nerves," said a well-dressed woman to my friend, as they looked at the thousands of foreigners crowding the streets. She meant that she hated their ways, and resented their language. My friend quietly replied: "The way to get them off your nerves is to get them on your heart."

Spoiling a Child by Too Much Attention.

Frances is three years old, very pretty and winsome. There are in the family two older sisters and one brother. besides the father and mother and an aunt. All the members of the family have been much interested in the baby since her birth, and they have given her a good deal of attention. They are a social family and many friends call upon them, and they go frequently to visit their friends. Whoever comes to the house must say something to Frances and show how much they think of her by talking much to her, taking her in their arms, offering to do this or that for her, and so on. The members of the family like to have people notice the child, because she is such an attractive little thing. But she is causing some apprehension now, because whenever any one speaks to her she says, "No, no," in a petulant voice. If any question is asked or any advances made toward her, her one response will be, "No, no." The parents think she is developing a bad habit and should have some training to correct it.

One way to prevent Frances from forming an annoying habit and acquiring an irritable disposition is for the members of the family and all others to leave her alone more than they now do. She is being spoiled by overmuch attention. Her "No, no" is a kind of protection against the irritating actions of the people around her. She should be taken only very rarely to neighbors and friends for visits. When friends come to the house, she should be kept out of sight for the most part-in her sand pile, or playing with blocks or dolls alone. The brothers and sisters should leave her to her own devices more than they do. She must grow from within quietly. It will take some time for the family to learn that they should not make a plaything of their little girl. They have not done this purposely, of course; they think they have been doing the right thing in showing her off and making her the center of attention.

There are a great many children like Frances in American families who cause their parents trouble because of their irritability and lack of appreciation of what is being done for them. They would be more appreciative if they received less attention and were left to themselves most of the time without interference even by members of the family, and certainly by friends and neighbors.—Prof. M. V. O'Shea.

A Boy Who Was Really Brave.

There is more than one way of being brave, as this little story shows. "Elton Tilton is just the bravest boy you ever saw, mother," said Winifred. "One day a big dog came along with his tongue hanging out, and we thought it was mad, and scrambled over the fence; but Elton walked right along as calm as ever. He says he isn't afraid of bears, or tramps, or anything. I wish I was as brave as Elton; but I'm afraid I never will be."

"I heard a story about two boys the other day," said his mother, "and I thought one of them was very brave. They went to school together, and one day they thought it would be great fun to hide a frog in the teacher's desk. But the frog tipped over the ink bottle and spoiled a number of examination papers and other things, and the teacher was very angry. He asked the guilty boy to own his fault like a man and take the punishment he deserved. He put him upon his honor, you see. Well, the eldest boy, who found the frog and first thought of the joke, sat still in his seat without a blush; but the little boy, though he trembled with fear, went to the desk before the whole school and owned his fault. And he sat for an hour on the dunce's stool, a target for fifty pairs of eyes."

"O, mother," cried Winifred, "I was so ashamed! I'll never do anything so mean again as long as I live. How did you know?"

"I heard two little boys talking about it as I rode in the car. I was proud of my boy, Winifred; and I pitied Elton Tilton's mother, for I said to myself: "My boy was brave, but her boy was a coward."

"Why, I never thought that was being brave!" said Winifred,—Presbyterian Banner.

0 0 0

For Mothers.

Children need models more than criticism. To bring up a child in the way he should go, travel that way yourself. The sooner you get a boy to be a law unto himself, the sooner you will make a man of him. We can never check what is evil in the young unless we cherish what is good in them.

Stories first heard at a mother's knee are never wholly forgotten, a little spring that never dries up in our journey through scorching years.

Line upon line, precept upon precept, we must have in a home. But we must also have serenity, peace, and the absence of petty fault-finding, if home is to be a nursery fit for heaven's growing plants.

There are no men or women, however poor they may be, but have it in their power by the grace of God to leave behind them the grandest thing.—Selected.

0 0 0

A boy may picture the true, brave, pure life of the noblest, manifest boy that ever sought his Heavenly Father's house, or showed a loving will to bend to his mother's wishes. He may have before him that pattern of honor and high-mindedness, he may live with Christ beside him and be sure of his sympathy and help in all of his boyish duties, and in the thoughts of hope and awe that rise within him when he looks on to coming years.—T. B. Pollock.

Conditions to Avoid.

The dangerous moment in life comes when men begin to overvalue the past at the expense of the present. It is the moment of religious controversies, for ancestor worship, for narrowing in, for exalting one set of people and excluding another. When we reach it, it means that we are growing old. But we need never reach it,—Exchange.

* * *

My Voice in the Morning.

My voice shalt thou hear this morning,
For the shades have passed away,
And out from the dark like a joyous lark
My heart soars up with the day;
And its burden all is blessing,
And its accents all are song;
For thou hast refreshed its slumbers,
And thy strength hath made it strong.

My voice shalt thou hear this morning,
For the day is all unknown;
And I am afraid without thine aid
To travel its hours alone.
Give me thy light to lead me;
Give me thy hand to guide;
Give me thy living presence,
To journey side by side.

Star of eternal morning,
Sun that can ne'er decline,
Day that is bright with unfading light,
Ever above me shine.
For the night shall be noontide,
And the clouds shall vanish far,
When my path of life is gilded
By the Bright and Morning Star.
—George Matheson, in Exchange.

Query Department

By J. C. McQUIDDY

A reader of the Gospel Advocate residing in Dinuba, Cal., wants to know (1) what is the duty of the elders of a congregation toward a preacher who preaches error. It appears that the preacher taught that women had a scriptural right to preach publicly and that he sought to support his position with fifty syllogisms. He quoted 1 Tim, 5: 10, where it teaches that a woman should follow diligently every good work. He also said "as also saith the law" (1 Cor. 14: 34) was the Roman law. (2) He also wishes to know if it is right for a congregation to support said preacher to preach twice a week, Sunday and Sunday night. (3) He asks if it is right for the elders to use a communion set over the pretest of two or three members of the same congregation.

1. The duty of the elders toward a preacher in error is the same as it is toward any other person in error. The Bible makes no distinction in this respect. The elders are the overseers of the congregation, and they should be apt to teach and able to convince gainsayers. The elders should teach this preacher "the way of the Lord more perfeetly." It is a fact that the Lord did not send out a weman to be a public proclaimer of the gospel. 1 Cor. 14: 34 reads: "Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but let them be in subjection, as also saith the law." By reference to Gen. 3: 16 it will be found that "the law " referred to here is the law of God. When Adam and Eve had sinned, this condemnation was placed upon the woman: "Unto the woman he said. I will greatly multiply thy pain and thy conception: in pain thou shall bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee."

If the elders cannot influence the preacher to cease preaching error, then the congregation should not uphold him in his propagation of error. To do so makes them become partakers of his sin.

3. The elders should seek for harmony and unity in the congregation, and should do nothing that will produce division unless this must be done in order to uphold the word of God. In matters of expediency and opinion, Christians should always be ready to sacrifice their preferences for the good of the cause of Christ. A communion service should not be made a test of fellowship, as God has not made it such. The Holy Spirit nowhere tells us just what kind of communion service to use. Christians should seek to work together in love and in peace, doing everything decently and in order.

0 0 0

John E. Word, of Dinuba, Cal., is interested in the subject of posture in prayer. He says: "In the Gospel Advocate of April 29, in answer to Brother Sewell's query in regard to our position in prayer, you say that you 'know of no scripture that requires a specific position in prayer.' Neither do I know of any, and I can say as much in regard to our meeting upon the Lord's day to commemorate the Lord's death. But we have examples of the apostles and early Christians meeting on that day, and it has been the universal custom of those who take the Bible as their guide to thus do. Furthermore, we consider those who do not thus meet as not being loyal to God. I will ask a question: Is there a case, either in the Old Testament or the New Testament, where any one in taking a position in prayer ever stood on his feet while praying? If there is, please tell me where I can find it. I am not speaking of such cases as Paul and Silas, who were in jail and their feet fast in the stocks. . . . I know some of us say we cannot comfortably kneel in prayer. If we cannot, we can remain sitting. Doubtless Paul and Silas prayed in that position while in the stocks at the jail, and the Lord heard and answered their prayers. If there is no example of standing in prayer on record in God's word, and we have many examples of those who kneeled in prayer, are we not changing God's order to stand on our feet? I look upon an example from the Holy Spirit as being as sacred and binding as a command."

So far as the posture in prayer is concerned, I have always urged people to kneel in prayer. This prostrate posttion is characteristic of humility. When men pray, they should realize their dependence upon Jehovah and should be willing to earnestly beseech him to give them the needed blessings, as well as praise him for every good and perfect gift which comes from him. While I know that we have many examples of people kneeling in prayer and while I have always urged Christians in the public assembly to kneel in prayer unless it was not convenient to do so, still I have never felt that this position was actually essential to prayer itself. The Bible commands us to pray without ceasing. We cannot always be on our knees while praying, so we must obey this command to "pray without ceasing" without kneeling. We are commanded to pray everywhere and to pray always. Men cannot pray everywhere and always if the kneeling posture is actually essential and necessary to prayer. While I have no disposition to argue this question in the query department of the paper, there are examples in the Bible where people stood in prayer and the prayer was acceptable to God. I refer to 1 Sam. 1: 26, which reads: "And she said, O, my lord, as thy soul liveth, my lord, I am the woman that stood by thee here, praying unto Jehovah." Certainly it cannot be successfully contended that Hannah's prayer was not acceptable to Jehovah, and yet she stood while praying. Luke 18: 13 tells of an acceptable prayer that was offered while standing. The passage reads: "But the publican. standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote his breast, saying, God, he thou merciful to me a sinner." In Acts 3: 8 we read of the lame man who was healed and went on his way, leaping; and praising God. The passage reads: "And leaping up, he stood, and began to walk; and he entered with them into the temple, walking, and leaping, and praising God." This praising God, which is a form of prayer, certainly was acceptable. While I should be glad to see all Christians kneel in public assemblies and kneel whenever engaged in public worship, in the light of the Scriptures I am not able to take the position that posture in prayer is essential to acceptable prayer.

0 0 0

A sister from California, who wishes her name withheld, asks us to give our views in regard to Christians' holding life-insurance policies. I have never read anything in the Bible bearing on this subject, and have always thought that this was a matter that each individual Christian must decide for himself. It might be right for one person to take a policy and wrong for another, because one might be in position to carry it, while the other would not be. Some people who are not able to carry policies make a mistake in taking the policies and letting them lapse, thus losing all that they have paid on their policies.

GOOD MEDICINE FOR LOSS OF APPETITE

General debility and that fired feeling is Hood's Sarsaparilla. This concentrated, economical highly medicine is a great favorite in thousands of homes. It is peculiarly successful in purifying and revitalizing the blood, promoting digestion, restoring animation, and building up the whole system.

Get this dependable medicine today and begin taking it at once.
If you need a laxative take Hood's

Pills. You will surely like them.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

WHAT OF YOUR BOY?

His education and training and the development of his mind, body, and character depend on you, his parent. It is a grave responsibility, for there are so many antagonistic influences that come into play in a boy's life. As every boy looks back over his education and training, he can always point out some one influence, some one life that has had a more profound influence. To thousands of boys this influence. ence has been the guiding spirit, the personal association, and the inspiring character of Mr. Robert K. Morgan, principal of Morgan School for twentyfive years. He knows boy nature. The close personal associations which he has fostered between his boy students and himself, his carefully chosen faculty, his careful attention to the boy's work, his thoughts, his talents, and his special needs, have given great prominence to his school and have characterized the success that he has merited in successfully shaping the lives of thousands of youths at the shaping age.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school,

GOOD TEACHERS IN DEMAND
AT BETTER SALARIES
The schools, colleges, seminaries, and universities throughout the South are begging for assistance in finding teachers with proper qualifications, and better salaries are being offered. We are needing hundreds of teachers to supply the demand. Any well-prepared teacher would do well to write us.

FISK TEACHERS' AGENCY
R. A. Clayton, Mgr. Birmingham, Ala.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Lord, What Wilt Thou?

What wilt thou have me do? Say but the word, and I will toll

With patient feet In sin-swept heat

Of cities, rough, grief-furrowed soil: And feed the hungry, nurse the sick, Raising dead souls to life more quick.

This is thy part, O, eager heart-Upon my breast Lie still, and rest."

What wilt thou have me say? Give me a prophet's tongue of flame, A living coal,

And words will roll, A mighty wave, to spread thy Name; From stagnant drought of alien skies The glory of thy truth will rise.

To show my way, This only say: 'Not will of mine O God, but thine.""

What wilt thou have me bring? What gifts of lovely grace, Of art, or song,

To swell the throng That cluster round thy dwelling place? What first fruits, that all men will raise A louder echo of thy praise?

This only bring For offering-Love, joy, and peace, .. The soul's increase." -Mary Alethea Woodward.

A Great Man Gone.

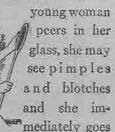

BY M. KEEBLE,

On July 13, 1920, Brother S. W. Womack departed this life. He had been sick for nearly two years, and had been confined to his room about ten months. His suffering was great at times, but he never once murmured, but was cheerful all the time. I was absent when he died. I was in a meeting at Latham, Tenn., and they wired me three or four messages, but I failed to get either one until it was too late for me to attend the funeral. It had been my desire to be present at this good man's funeral. Old Brother Clay, who had labored with him for years, spoke over the remains; also Brother Dowell, a young brother who is a product of Jackson Street Church, spoke encouraging words. Brother F. W. Smith and Brother A. B. Lipscomb were present and spoke words of comfort, and all who heard them were uplifted and edified. Brother A. M. Burton was also present. This Christian man never talks much in a public way, but his life tells what he is. These brethren were all interested in Brother Womack and his work, and during his life of over forty years in the ministry they greatly helped in supporting him in his work.

I have often heard Brother Womack say he had gone to places to preach where there was not a colored member of the church of Christ, and his own race would fail to aid or support him,

Rosy Cheeks

Because of her rosy cheeks and satin skin a woman attracts the admiration of all men. When the to the drug store for paint, powders and beauty creams, when she should go there for a blood medicine and stomach alterative known as "Golden Medical Discovery." This vegetable tonic and blood alterative clears the skin, beautifies it, increases the blood supply and the circulation, while pimples, boils and eruptions vanish quickly. Ask your nearest druggist for Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery in tablet or liquid form or send 10c. for trial package of tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

TETTERINE

Makes hair beautiful, free from dandruff, and keeps the scalp healthy.

50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

......

Say You Want "Diamond Dyes"

Don't Spoil or Streak your Material in a Poor Dye

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" con-Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist has color card.

has color card.

JUST MILK

Jell-0 Ice Cream Powder

without cooking and without adding anything else, make the finest Ice Cream.

Dissolve the powder in the milk and freeze it. That is all there is to do.

Five kinds:
Vanilla,
Strawberry,
Lemon,
Chocolate,
and Unflavored.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY
Le Roy, N. Y.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents-Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orehard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freekle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifier, at very, very small cost.

Your greeer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orchard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

and the white people would supply his needs; and I believe if there ever was a dollar safely invested, it was when given to this faithful preacher of the gospel of Jesus Christ.

I married in this family about twenty-five years ago, and I have been closely connected with him ever since, and I must say that I never heard him speak rashly or get angry. He seemed to keep a joyful spirit all the time. He has been a great help to me. He first got me to see that I was wrong while working with the "digressives," and I came out from them over twenty years ago, and from that on I tried to make my life like his; and though he is gone, I shall continue to try and imitate the Christian life he has left behind.

Last September he was with me at Sugar Grove, Ky., where I was holding a meeting. He established this congregation and was highly esteemed by them all. While there he was very feeble, and told them that he would never meet them on earth any more, but to live so they could meet on the other side of Jordan.

His funeral was conducted at the Jackson Street Church, where he worshiped when at home; and when he got so weak he had to walk with a stick, he would often preach to the congregation while sitting in a chair. He considered this congregation to be the cream of his labors; and although some time ago some trouble arose and caused division, he remained and endeavoyed to unite us again and stop the division, and we who remain are yet working and praying that unity may be brought about in the future. The Jackson Street Church never once neglected him in any way. They contributed regularly to him, and the members were always giving him something to comfort him in his sickness. Other churches would send donations to him often. The white brethren and sisters all over the South sent him comforting messages. Some of them would say they had never seen him, but they had read of his life in the Gospel Advocate.

It was Brother Womack's delight when he was in town to visit the Gospel Advocate office, because, he said, he was always made welcome by the whole staff. Whenever he got puzzled over any passage of scripture, he would always have a conference with old Brother David Lipscomb during his life time. After Brother Lipscomb died, he continued to go and talk with Brethren A. B. Lipscomb, J. C. McQuiddy, F. W. Smith, and others, and by this means he was always prepared to instruct his people. He always read his Bible daily.

Brother Womack leaves a faithful wife, two daughters, two grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn his departure.

"Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee a crown of life." (Rev. 2: 10.)

Every city is known to God. Every part of it is known to him, the rich and the poor parts. But beyond the infinite knowledge is this other thought: he cares. There is no sorrow that God does not feel. He has abandoned no part of what he himself created. All the physical disability has sympathy-the dwellings of the poor, the workshops of our men and women; all the mental sufferings; all the spiritual death-" the cursed mountain of sorrow lies heaviest on the divine heart." God has not forsaken the city; he is still sending his prophets. his messengers, his Son. No problem is too complex for his wisdom, no opposing force too mighty for his power, no darkness too dense for his light, no trifle too trivial for his notice .-G. C. Morgan.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

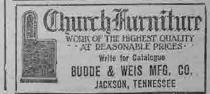

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

TETTERINE

Clears Baby's Skin

and drives off the rash and pimples. Harmless, Soothing, Fragrant.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Rheumatism and Indigestion

Practically all physicians and medi-cal writers are agreed that there is a close relationship between indigestion and rheumatism. This view is sub-stantiated by the fact that Shivar Spring Water, which is probably the best American mineral water for dyspepsia and indigestion, relieves rheumatism and the rheumatoid diseases, such as gout, sciatica, neuralgia, and nervous headache. All of these dis-eases are probably related and all are probably due, in whole or in part, to imperfect digestion or to imperfect assimilation of food. Physicians who have studied this water and who have observed its effects in their practice believe that it relieves these maladies by rendering the digestion complete and perfect and thereby preventing the formation of those poisons which inflame the joints and irritate the nerves, and also by eliminating, through the kidneys, such poisons as have already been formed.

The following letters are interesting in this connection:

The following letters are interesting in this connection:

Dr. Crosby, a South Carolina physician. writes: "I have tested your Spring Water Inseveral cases of rheumatism, chronic Indigestion, kidney and bladder troubles, and innervous and sick headaches, and find that it has acted nicely in each case, and I believe that, if used continuously for a reasonable time, it will give permanent relief. It will purify the blood, relieve debility, stimulate the action of the liver, kidneys, and bladder, aiding them in throwing off all poisonous matter."

Dr. Avant, of Savannah, writes: "I suffered for years with a most aggravating form of stomach disorder, and consulted a number of our best local physicians; went to Baitimore and consulted specialists there and still I was not benefited. I had about despaired of living, when I began to use Shivar Spring Water, and in a short time was entirely relieved."

Mr. Rhodes, of Virginia, writes: "Please send me ten gailons of Shivar Spring Water quickly. I want it for rheumatism. I know of several who were relieved of rheumatism with this water."

Editor Cunningham writes: "The water has done me more good than any medicine I have ever taken for rheumatism. I am entirely free from pain."

Mr. McClam, of South Carolina, writes: "My wife has been a sufferer from rheumatism, and, after drinking twenty gallons of your Mineral Water, was entirely relieved of the horrible disease."

Mr. Carter, of Virginia, writes: "Mrs. Carter has had enlarged Joints upon her hands, caused by rheumatism. Shivar Spring Water removed every trace of the enlargement. The water is simply excellent."

If you suffer from rheumatism or from any curable disease, accept the

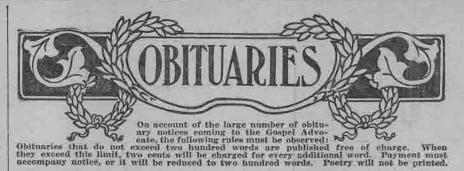

If you suffer from rheumatism or from any curable disease, accept the guarantee offer below by signing your name. Clip and mail to the Shivar Spring, Box 21D, Shelton, S. C.

Gentlemen: I accept your offer and inclose herewith three dollars for ten gallons (two five-gallon demijohns) of Shivar Spring Water. I agree to give the water a fair trial, in accordance with instructions which you will send; and If I report no benefit, you are to refund the price in full upon receipt of the two empty demijohns, which I agree to return promptly.

Name	į
Address
Shipping Point(Please write distinctly.)

Phelps.

Sarah Josephine Bivens, daughter of William Brady Bivens, was born on April 9, 1862, and died on June 3, 1920. She was married, May 25, 1882, to James A. Phelps, who preceded her to the great beyond, August 1, 1885, Sister Phelps was a faithful member of the church of Christ. When possible, she was always found at the place of worship on Lord's days: but, owing to afflictions, she had been denied the pleasure of meeting with the congregation for six or seven years. death seems a great calamity; but she did not seem to so consider it, but was willing and ready to go. Funeral services were conducted by Brother W. A. Record, of Paducah, Ky. She leaves two brothers, Oscar and Willie Bivens; one daughter, Mrs. D. C. Evans, of Omaha, Neb.; and one granddaughter, Mrs. James Aplin, of Paducah, Ky. J. D. CLEMENS.

Todd.

Brother R. E. Todd, of Eubank, Ky., was struck by a freight train at Eubank on June 2, 1920, and killed instantly. Brother Todd had been a faithful preacher in that part of Kentucky for a number of years, and he will be greatly missed. Three years ago I assisted him in some meetings in the hills of Kentucky about Eubank. While at his home one day, Brother A. K. Gooch told me that Brother Todd had spent a farm preaching the gospel. This faithful man gave his time and means to earry the message of our blessed Redeemer to the people who loved and respected him. His motive seemed to be to make the world better while he lived, that the Lord might have a prepared people when he comes. A very large crowd attended the funeral services and much feeling was expressed in his departure. May his wife and children who survive him be comforted with the thought of the reunion in the perfected state, "which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil." F. C. SOWELL.

Morrison.

It falls to me to chronicle the departure of Sister Morrison, the wife of James A. Morrison. Sister Morrison was born and married and buried her husband in Tennessee. Nine years after being left a widow, to care for her children, she came to Hunt County, Texas, in 1892. Since her last daughter married she had lived mainly with her two daughters. I wish all who are left could have such a home as she did. I feel safe in saying that her every want was supplied. She was seventy-nine years old when death relieved her of her sufferings that words fail to express, and which lasted nearly three years. On March 28, 1920, at Vansicle, where she had wor-shiped for a number of years, the funeral services were conducted by the writer. Four children are left to grieve—W. A. Morrison, C. B. Morrison, Mrs. A. S. Voss, and Mrs. G. A. Green; but they have all the promises of the gospel to cheer them. eternal salvation I have not one doubt. God promised to save those who obey him. She did this. Then why should we weep? She had filled her mission on earth in service to God and humanity; hence, there was nothing left for her to do but "pass over the river" and rest from her long life of toil. The writer, with her loved ones, expects to meet her again "over on the other side," not in that old body that suffered so much and so long, but in the new body, no more to be left sad and lonely, no more to suffer-no death there. R. T. Sisco.

Whitehurst.

On May 19, 1920, the noble soul of Hiram Delaney Whitehurst went home to God, having lived eighty years upon the earth. In the death of this good man the whole community suffered, for he was the friend of all-the humblest as well as those of high estate. Living in a community where the negro population predominated, his wise counsel was continually sought by the colored people; and their love for him was attested by their presence near his bedside during his last illness and the sincere tears of sorrow they shed when his body was given back to mother earth. Brother L. L. Brigance, of Henderson, Tenn., in most appropriate language, conducted the funeral services, and impressed upon the audience the Importance of emulating the life of Hiram D. Whitehurst and thus preparing for the eternity beyond the tomb. He was a man of peaceful inclinations, but strong convictions, ever contending for the right as God gave him light to see the right. His conception of right and his love of country led him to take up arms for his beloved Southland in the mighty conflict of 1861-1865, and during those four dark years of tears and bloodshed he gladly offered his life to his country; but when the issues of that bloody struggle were deter-mined by the arbitrament of arms, he sheathed his sword and returned to the peaceful pursuits of rural life, spending his remaining years in the home in which he was born. Shortly after the war he gave his heart to God, and with the same faithfulness he had served his country, he served his God to the close of life's evening, and died in the blessed assurance that the God in whom he had placed his trust so long would not forsake him as he passed through the portals of death into the great mystery beyond the grave. For many years he was an elder in the church of Christ at Bethel, near Brownsville, Tenn.; and when nearly all the members of this congregation had either moved away or had died, he transferred his membership to Brownsville, and gave liberally of his means to build and support the new church there; and although the infirmities of advanced years made it impossible for him to attend services as often as he would have liked to, nevertheless, his heart was centered there, and the greatest delight of his declining years was to know that the pure gospel of Christ was at last being preached in this long-neglected field. Foresight and frugality enabled him to leave his widow and four children plentifully supplied with material needs, but their most cherished her-itage is the good name he built up by Christian living. He has gone; but his dear ones will soon follow him to that sweet, fair land where sin's blighting hand will never again bring death, but where joy unalloyed will be the portion of the saved and blest throughout all the cycles of future ages. Loved one, good night; we shall meet again in the morning.

FRANK J. WHITEHURST.

The Curtailed Colorado Work.

BY E. C. FUOUA.

The long and serious illness of Mrs. Fuqua, which continues with little change, has greatly curtailed my summer's activities in the evangelistic field in Colorado, confining my labors to Fort Collins and near-by places in an effort to more fully work these. I baptized one young man last Sunday, at Bellvue, and I can see other promising fruits from my curtailed labors this summer. I hope yet to get in some good time in outlying fields ere the snow falls again.

An effort was made to get a place to preach at Waverly, ten miles north of here; but the Presbyterians have preaching there occasionally, and they plainly and vigorously told me that no one else should preach in that community unless such should first "get permission" from the State Board of Missions. I replied that I had "permission" from a higher Board than anything in Colorado, and under it 1 not only could, but I must, preach the gospel "to the whole creation." But 1 am denied both the schoolhouse and the "community church" building in that little town (the only places there now), and I simply cannot go there until I can get a tent. The tent I have been using is on the Western Slope. We need one over here, too, as it costs a good deal to ship one tent back and forth across the Rockies, But I am not waiting. We are arranging for some preaching in a private home in the community where I have been locked out. The lock-out was not effected by the people, but by the Presbyterian preacher alone, and this gives me a decided advantage there, as sympathy will largely be with me now. By a challenge published in the Fort. Collins papers, I have had this preacher "treed" for a year or more, and he is only trying to shield himself in that community from the exposure 'the truth is certain to effect. Only recently a fine young lady-a schoolteacher here—came to the church of Christ from the Presbyterian Church, and said preacher is still smarting under this, and fears the result to the rest of his flock if the pure word of God should get into that community.

Mrs. Fuqua must now undergo a serious operation-the removal of the right kidney-to save her life, and we desire the continued prayers of the godly in her behalf. This has been found the cause of her present illness, from which she is slowly recovering, but to forestall the recurrence of what may be a fatal attack the operation is imperative. We pray God it may be successful.

Loss of Appetite is commonly gradual; one dish after another is set aside. It is one of the first indications that the system is running down, and there is nothing else so good for it as Hood's Sarsaparilla—the best of all tonics.

HERE IS A DESK THAT Stays Rigid because the frame is of extra heavy semi-steel and the wood work is solidly doye tailed to it. The seats have noiseless hinges and cannot loosen and are extra wide. The frame has no scroll work to catch dust and the high arch makes sweeping easy. The only desk made in the South. Send for our descriptive catalogue.

JOUTHERN DESK COMPANY,

HICKORY, N. C.

Ferraline is a Natural Mineral, rich in Iron, Magnesium, Lithium and other health-giving minerals. It is made by the simple process of percolating distilled water thru Ferraline Mineral Earth, and it contains no drugs nor chemicals.

It has long been recognized as most effective in the treatment of indigestion, Stomach Troubles and Rheumatism, and as a System-builder and Restorer it is of special value to those who suffer from Impoverished Blood.

Ferraline is sold by your druggist and endorsed by prominent ministers, business and professional men. To secure an interesting bookiet and the story of the "Sweetest thing without a Soul," write

"FERRALINE," Dept. 5, DEMOPOLIS, ALABAMA.

DODSON TELLS THE HORROR OF CALOMEL

You Don't Need to Sicken, Gripe or Salivate Yourself to Start Liver.

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated You're billous, sluggish, consupated You feel headachy, your stomach may be sour, your breath bad, your skin sallow and you believe you need vile, dangerous calomel to start liver and bowels.

calomel to start liver and bowels.

Here's my guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling splendid. It is perfectly harmless, so give it to your shildren any time. It can't salivate.

and all other skin eruptions and injuries are Cleansed and Disinfected with Ka-Dene Soap. Then apply

It Soothes, Heals, Disinfects. 50c and $1 at your druggist's, HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Cas-lonses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy, the by mail or at Prog-glats. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogne, N. Y.

FROM THE FIELD

Tennessee.

Purvear, July 19 .- I closed an eightdays' meeting at this place on Sunday night. Seven made the good confes-sion and were buried with Christ in baptism. The church at this place is doing a great work for the cause of Christ. Brother J. R. Stockard, of Milan, conducted the song service. I begin a meeting to-night at Conversville.-B. L. Douthitt.

Whitleyville, July 19.—1 have just closed a meeting at the Birdwell Schoolhouse, below Gainesboro, in Schoolhouse, below Gamesbore, in Jackson County. The meeting began on Saturday night, July 10, and continued until the following Friday night, which ended my preaching. Brother Harris preached on Saturday night and Sunday and was to continue a night or so. There was one baptism. We had good crowds throughout.— Dillard A. Lynn.

Legate, July 21.—Our tent meeting at Indian Mound closed last Sunday night. This was the second meeting ever conducted in Indian Mound by the church of Christ. There were five additions. Two of these were from the Baptists and one from the Methodlst Church. They have secured a house of worship for the regular services. Brother Taylor and I are now at Legate in a tent meeting. This is the first meeting ever conducted here by the church of Christ.-William P. Walker.

Tayas

Scurry, July 19.—A great and good meeting has just closed at this place. Brother George W. Farmer, of Cleve-land, Tenn., did the preaching. Sixteen persons confessed their faith in Christ and were baptized, one erring brother came back to the fold, and twelve took membership with us. Brother T. B. Bownds, of Kaufman, had charge of the song service. The good singing added greatly to the success of the meeting. We feel that the cause was greatly benefited and that a bright future is in store for the church at this place.—Joe W. Mullins.

July 19.-The meeting closed at Scurry last Friday evening at the water, after running nine days, with sixteen discourses preached. Sixteen were baptized and fourteen came into the fellowship of the congregation there. The brethren and sisters were left rejoicing and glorify-ing God for the wonderful interest manifested and the great good accomplished. The audiences were very large every evening. The time was just too short. There are many good brethren and sisters at Schrry. Prospects are fine for the church work there. The meeting began here yesterday with good prospects. Brother White's meeting at Athens, Tenn., was brought to an abrupt close on account of having to give up the tent. We are working, praying, and hoping to raise money enough soon to buy a tent of our own.—George W. Farmer.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

tylish lohair

FREE! White Voile Waist

LEONARD-MORTON & CO., Dept. 6900, Chicago Send the Sicilian Mobair Shirt No. EX46773 and white voice waist. When they arrive I will pay $4.5: skirt; nothing for the white voile waist. If not satisf examination, I will return both and you will refund me Skirt Measurements;

Waist. ... in. Length in. Hip in. Color,

QUICKLY DISAPPEARS WHEN

Is Applied. Fragrant and Soothing. 50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

CANCERS CURED AT KELLAM HOSPITAL.

1617 West Main Street, Richmond, Va.

It is known beyond a doubt and admitted by most or the leading physicians and sur-geons that cancer cannot be cured with the knife. X-Ray, radium or acids. Cancars are permanently cured at The Kellam Hos-pital, without the use of either. Physicians and surgeons treated free at the hospital.

and how it can be treated successfully at home. Sent in plain, sealed envelope. Write for yours today. Dept. F-29. Dr. W. J. McGrary. Inc., Carbon Hill, Ala.

Sketch of Samuel J. Fussell. BY L. B. BRADLEY.

This aged and respected man lived and died in Dickson County, Tenn., near the county seat, Charlotte. He first saw the light of day in a small house on Jones' Creek, May 20, 1827, and passed away just a few miles further down the creek, March 20, 1920, being nearly ninety-three years old.

He married Miss Mary Donegan, of the same community, December 12, 1850. The issue of this union was nine children, thirty-nine grandchildren, and forty-seven great-grandchildren. Five of his children are still living, right in the same community where they were born and reared.

Brother Fussell obeyed the gospel under the preaching of Brother Frank Davis, of blessed memory, in 1880 or 1881, and worshiped at "old Rock Church" on Jones' Creek. He leaves to his family, as a heritage, the memory of an honest and industrious manhood and a faithful Christian life. He was of that sturdy, rugged stock that goes to make the bone and sinew of the country.

He had lived to see his country through four wars. During the "sixties" he followed the flag of the Southland, which he loved, to defeat, and gracefully returned to his farm to help rebuild his wounded and bleeding country.

He and his faithful wife lived together sixty-nine years and twentyfour days. She died on January 6, 1920. Sixty-three years they had lived in one house, where they both died.

After funeral services, conducted by the writer at the "old Rock Church," where he had worshiped for nearly forty years, attended by a very large crowd of his friends and brethren, he was buried in the cemetery near by to await the last call of God. He died in faith and in the hope of eternal life. Peace to his dust! "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord." "There remaineth therefore a rest to the people of God." Let us strive to meet all the redeemed "over there."

Notes From the San Joaquin Valley, California.

BY L. D. PERKINS.

I was with the congregation at Fresno on July 18, in the absence of Brother Trice, and spoke to an appreciative audience.

On the first Lord's day in July I was with a new band of disciples at Angiola. This place is on the Santa Fé Railroad, about forty miles south of Hanford. A splendid crowd of country people were out to hear. They propose to meet each Lord's day and carry on the work of the Lord, and I have agreed to be with them every first Lord's day for a while. There is much good land near Angiola, which can be bought at reasonable prices; and by putting in pumping plants and improving otherwise, one can do well. The land can be bought on easy payments. It is rich and level. Correspond with Nimrod Evans, Angiola, Cal.

On the second Lord's day I was with my home congregation at Hanford. We always have good services there. This church has made a splendid growth in the past four years. There have been a number of baptisms and several have moved in from East California. Hanford is in one of the richest belts in California.

I was at Tulare one Lord's day recently, and heard an excellent sermon by Brother E. M. West, of Earlimart. He preaches at Tulare twice each month. The congregation at Tulare bought some lots, and later bought a school building, and have moved it on the lots, and it needs considerable repairing. It will need plastering and shaping up so that it will be suitable to worship in, and so it will be such a building that the citizenship of that community will be willing to attend meetings. It will take more than a thousand dollars to put the building in the shape it should be put, and churches in the East should have fellowship in this work. I suggested in a former article that it would be a fine thing if some brother in the East would send a cheek for five thousand dollars and let the brethren at Tulare build the kind of a building that should go up. This is almost as much a missionary field as Japan; and while we would not discourage any work that is being done in Japan, yet we would like to encourage more in California. The building, when completed, will be one of the best and most commodious buildings in the State. The brethren are worthy, and help should be sent. Address L. M. Williams, 129 South D Street, Tulare. Send help now; don't put it off until you forget.

I was at Dinuba recently, and preached to a good audience, mostly from White and Warren counties. Tennessee, and had a fine day, and hope I may have the pleasure of returning soon.

It matters little at what hour of the

The righteous fall asleep, death cannot come

To him untimely, who is fit to-day.

The less of this dull world, the more of beaven.

of heaven;
The briefer life, the earlier immortality.

—Dean Milnar.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism. Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Mannfacture Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

PILE RELIEF.

No matter what kind of piles you may have, no matter how serious the case, if three jars of Hancock's Pile Remedy does not cure you, we will refund your money. Frice, 50 cents a jar. At your druggist's or by mail from

HANCOCK CHEMICAL COMPANY, Oxford, N. C. Druggists, write for liberal proposition.

Cuticura Soap Complexions Are Healthy Soap, Olithment, Talcum, 25c, everywhere, For samples address; Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden Main.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

The next time you buy calomel ask for

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are nausealess, safe and sure.

Medicinal virtues retained and improved. Sold only in sealed packages. Price 35c.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

They will head-off that Headache or any other

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

Ache or Pain.

The Master's Vineyard

Alabama.

New Castle, July 16,-Since my last report we have gone through a severe mental strain over the death of our son, A. D. Dies, Jr.; but we are still striving toward the goal where we shall meet again. Our work has been very pleasant with the Oakman and New Hope congregations for the past two years. These churches sent me to Townly in June, where we succeeded in establishing a congregation of disciples (thirty-five in number) and raised eight hundred and seventy raised eight hundred and seventy dollars toward erecting a building for the church. I will return in October and try to complete the building of the house. I am now at New Castle, with six baptisms to date and interest I go next to Whitehouse, near Haleyville, for my eighth annual meeting .- A. D. Dies.

Arkansas.

Prairie View, July 12.—We have just closed a good meeting at this place, which was conducted by Brother Will W. Slater, of Fort Smith. We consider it a great success. Large attendance throughout and much interest manifested. Two were baptized and much good done otherwise. We hope to have Brother Slater with us again sometime. May God bless the faithful everywhere.—P. M. Parks.

Atkins, July 20.—We are in the midst of our meeting at this place, with the best interest here that has been in years. One baptism to date. We are having large crowds, notwithstanding the union meeting that is running here. The "union" seems to be helping instead of hindering us. People are gladly hearing the word. The meeting will close on Sunday night. I will begin a meeting at Casa on Wednesday night.—Will W. Slater.

Hayana, July 19.—I am now at this place in a meeting. I began here Saturday night. We had large crowds last night, and the best of attention was given. I was here last summer and had a fine meeting, and we hope to do much good again this time. We certainly have a fine band of brethren here, and they love the cause of Christ. I closed out the short meeting at Eylou. Texas, on Thursday night. July 8, and came on to De Queen, Ark., and preached out in the country at eleven o'clock, Sunday, July 11, and in De Queen in the afternoon and also at night. This was a busy day for me. Tuesday night following I was at Smyrna, where we have a few who meet every Lord's day. O how badly the churches of Christ need to help sound out the word in that section of Arkansas! My next meeting will be at Ravia, Okla.—D. S. Ligon.

California.

Tulare, July 17.—The work at this place is moving along very nicely. We have good audiences each Lord's day. We often receive letters from different parts of the country asking about the work here. 'Any one desiring to locate in the great San Joaquin Valley should come to Tulare before locating permanently, as there are so many towns in the valley where the New Testament church is not known. Sister Love and daughter, of Santa Ross, were visiting in this part and spent Lord's day with us. We were much helped by their presence and words of encouragement while here. We are hoping to be located in our own place of worship by cold weather. We have bought a frame school building and moved it on our lots which we had previously bought. We are few in number, but we hope to be able to build a place of worship and in the near future see a strong congregation established in this place. This is a great mission field. If any one desir-ing information will write me, I will gladly answer. My address is 129 South D Street.—L. Meade Williams.

Kentucky.

Wingo, July 19.—I have just closed a meeting at Union Hill. Two were baptized, one was renewed to fellowship with the church, and a splendid interest manifested, which leads us to feel that greater results will be seen in due time. I am now engaged with the church at Enon. The work begins with good interest. Brother Wilford Heffin, of Viola, is directing our singing.—Alonzo Williams.

Sedalia, July 20.—On July 4 I closed a good meeting at Lexington, Tenn. This was a good meeting in many ways. It was well attended by the people of the town, and especially by our religious neighbors. A fine interest was manifested on the part of the brethren at that place. Four baptisms were the visible results. I went from Lexington to Hatler's Chapel, where I remained over two Lord's days. The congregation at Hatler's Chapel has not been established very many years, but they know how to set together and help to bring about results for the Master. Most of the brethren left off their work for the time being and attended the meeting. In addition to the other good that was done, we had nine additions to the church. I go to Bethany Church, near Cottage Grove, Tenn., for my next meeting.—I. A. Douthitt.

Mississippi.

Jacinto, July 21.—I began my meeting here Sunday with a large audience. Brother W. E. Penny, of New Site, is leading the singing. We will be here three weeks. Then I go from here to Refuge, Tenn., and from there to my work in Arkansas.—R. L. Colley.

Ackerman, July 19.—I began a meeting at Coldwater Schoolhouse, in Neshoba County, on Saturday night, with very good interest. I closed a meeting at Kitchener on Friday night with two baptisms and one from the Baptists who claimed scriptural baptism. One, a man fifty-five years old, said the reason he had never gone into any church was because he had not found a church like the one he could read about in the Bible. We had large crowds, good interest, and a number of people were "almost persuaded." am to go there the fourth Sunday in each month, beginning in September. This means that I will drop the work with my old home church. They pay with my old home church. They pay me well, but I must teach these babes in Christ more of the truth. I have eight other meetings after this one. I have more calls than I can fill. I need a helper all the time.—H. D. Jeffcoat.

Ohio.

Gallipolis, July 15.-In reading the Gospel Advocate, I noticed Brother F. P. Fonner's field report and appeal for financial aid in erecting the meet-inghouse at Buffalo, W. Va.; and knowing the surrounding conditions and the very great need of this work, I desire to urge the brotherhood to come to Brother Fonner's aid. I am engaged in mission work here in Gallipolis, also in Henderson, W. Va. brethren recently purchased a meet-inghouse already for use, except some repairs.-T. H. Kirkman.

Oklahoma.

Muskogee, July 17 .- The writer preached to a very good-sized audience at Porum last Sunday. The work there has been sadly neglected for some time. I will continue my efforts there twice each month for the present, at least. There are quite a number of members in that community, but until recently they had not been meeting regularly. The work on East Okmulgee Avenue, Muskogee, is pro-gressing satisfactorily. I had the pleasure of preaching Sunday night to one of the best audiences we have ever had. Our fall meeting will begin here on September 5, to be conducted by Brother J. W. Brents, of Lorenzo, Texas.—T. S. Bain.

South Carolina.

Union, July 14.—Our tent meeting continues with some interest. Some have been coming about long enough to learn the plan of salvation, so we are really expecting some visible results soon. Brother Nix visited the Woodruff brethren last Sunday and baptized one lady. He reports them getting along nicely. He will begin a tent meeting in Spartanburg next week, the Lord willing. Brother J. A. Hardison, of Greenville, visited us last Sunday. He is very anxious to get the work started there. We shall assist him as soon as possible. He says that there is a bright outlook there for the cause. I received this week a letter from Brother Inabinett, of Charleston. He says that the outlook there is some brighter. This brother was once a "digressive" preacher, but he is now as solid as a rock. He would appreciate a letter from some brethren, that he might realize that he is not in the work alone. His address is 579 King Street. Brethren, pray for the few faithful ones in this State .-Thomas H. Burton.

Tennessee.

Cottontown, July 19.—I closed a meeting with the Nazareth congregation, near Lebanon, which resulted in seven baptisms and one reclaimed.

Nuxated Iron Will Increase Strength of Delicate People In Two Weeks Time

In many instances says City Physician persons have suffered for years without know-ing what made them feel tired, listicss and run-down when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood—how to tell.

run-down when their real trouble was lack of iron in the blood—how to tell.

If you were to make an actual blood test on all people who are fil you would probably be greatly asforished at the exceedingly large number who lack from and who are fill for no other reason than the lack of iron. The moment iron is supplied a multitude of dangerous symptoms disappear. Without iron the blood at one loses the power to change food into living, tissue and therefore nothing you eat does you good, you don't get the strength out of it. Your food merely passes through your system like corn through a mill with the rollers so wide apart that the mill can't grind. As a result of this continuous blood and nerve starvation, people become generally weakened, nervous and air run down and frequently develop all sorts of conditions. One is too thin, another is burdened with unhealthy fat; some are so weak they can hardly walk; some think they have dysnepsia, kidney or liver trouble; some can't sleep at night, others are sleepy and tired all day, some fussy and irritable; some skinny and bloodless, but all lack physical power and endurance. In such cases, it is worse than foolishness to take stimulating inedicines or narcotic drugs, which only whip up your fagging vital powers for the moment, maybe at the expense of your life later on. No matter what any one tells you, if you are not strong and well you owe it to yourself to make the following test; See how long you can work or how far you can walk without becoming tired. Next take two five-grain tablets of ordinary Nuxated Iron three time per day after meals for two weeks. Then test your strength again and see for yourself how much you have gained. You can talk as you please about all the wonders wrought by new remedies, but when you come down to hard facts there is nothing like good old from to put color in your cheeks and good sound, healthy flesh on your bones. It is also a great nerve and stomach strengthener and one of the best blood builders in the world. The only trouble was that the old forms of inorganic from like tineture of iron, from accate, etc., often ruined people's teeth, upset heir stomachs and were not assimilated and for these reasons they frequently did more harm than good. But with the discovery of the newer forms of organic from all this has been overcome. Nuxated from for example, is pleasant to take, does not injure the teeth and is almost immediately beneficial.

Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is recommended abore is not a secret rementy taxt one Manufacturers' Note: Nuxated Iron which is recommended shore is not a secret remetly but one which is well known to druggists everywhere. Unlike the older horganic iron products it is easily assimilated, and does not thure the teeth, make them black, nor upset the stomach. The manufacturers guarantee successful and entirety satisfacory results to every purchaser or they will refund your money. It is dispensed in this city by all good druggists.

MASSEY MILITARY SCHOOL

PULASKI, TENN.

Junior R. O. T. C. On Preferred List of Colleges. Teachers, University Men. SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 8, 1920. Dept. A.

INTERSMITHS For MALARIA, CHILLS and HILL TONIC Also a Fine General Strengthening Tonic.

SOLD FOR SO YEARS

SOLD BY ALL DRUG STORES

am now in a meeting at Cottontown, with a splendid beginning.-Charlie Taylor

Decherd, July 16 .- I have just closed a ten-days' meeting at Finley, in White Four made the good confession and were baptized, while three confessed their wrongs. Prejudice has been very high in that neighborhood, and the first three days we had small crowds, but after that we succeeded in filling the house at almost every service. I made my home with Brother Vanderver and Brother Jeff Broils, and was with Brother Robert L. Gillen a part of the time. Several of the Sparta brethren attended the meeting, and their presence was very much appreciated. Brother Williams, of Sparta, led the song service. I go next to Prairie Plains, in Coffee County, thence to Arkansas for about a month. I have made my arrangements to spend the winter months in Florida. -R. E. L. Taylor.

McEwen, July 16 .- Brother Cayce began a meeting at Shiloh last Lord's day. A large crowd was present. A bountiful dinner was spread, which every one present seemed to en-In the afternoon the crowd assembled in the house again and enjoyed another gospel feast. The meeting has continued, with services each morning and night, with unusually good attendance and interest. There have been five baptisms to date. writer has led in the song service and assisted in any way he could in the meeting, which will come to a close to-night, Brother Cayce having promised to begin at Jackson's Temple next Lord's-day morning .- J. D. Derry-

Delrose, July 16.—We have just closed a very successful meeting at this place. Brother R. N. Moody did the preaching and the writer led the song service. There were three addi-tions—two by baptism and one by membership. I leave to-morrow for a five-weeks' campaign in the song field, both teaching and singing in pro-tracted meetings. My time for the last two weeks of August and the latter half of September has not been engaged as yet. Any congregation need-ing my services as vocal teacher or song leader should write me at Delrose, Tenn,—A. L. Dixon.

Lebanon, July 22.—Brother L. L. Yeagley, of Nashville, closed a meeting last night at Clearview, in Sumner County, with one baptized. The meeting began on the second Lord's day in July. The attendance was good at night, but small in the daytime on account of the busy season with farm-The preaching was of the plainest New Testament kind, such as is not too common in this age-first, as to how to become a Christian, and then how to finish up the good work begun with a well-rounded Christian life. It was my privilege, by invitation of the brethren, to assist them as best I could in the song service. The church at Clearylew surely knows how to treat kindly those who work with them. I have some time yet through the summer and fall to teach a singing class, lead the singing for a meeting, or hold a meeting. -W. Derryberry.

Cookeville, July 15.—My meeting at Algood began on June 27 and con-tinued until July 9, with two services daily. The interest and attention were very good, considering the fact that the "Hollness" people with a "woman preacher" were leading a meeting at the same time. The people, it seems, like to be drawn away from the truth and will follow the inclinations of the flesh rather than the word of God. As results of our meeting, one young man was baptized and the church encouraged to press on to greater works. E. Gaston Collins lives there and also labors for two other congregations. He was at home most of the time and led the song service. Last Lord's day I began at Antioch, in Jackson County, and have been preaching twice daily to large and interested crowds, with four baptisms to date. The services will continue for about two weeks. The outlook is good for a splendid meeting.-Charles L. Talley.

Texas.

Irving, July 17.—I closed a fine meeting at Cherokee on Thursday. Great crowds and interest, with several additions. eral additions. T begin at Bardwell to-morrow,—J. W. Dunn.

Florence, July 16 .- Last Sunday I began a meeting here. There have been twenty-four additions (twentytwo baptisms) to date. On July 21 I am to begin the eleventh annual camp meeting at Hallville,-G. A. Dunn.

Itasca, July 17 .- The meeting with the little band in Covington closed on Thursday with three restored to duty. Our meeting at home begins to-morwith Brother Busby doing the preaching. I shall begin a meeting at Maud, Okla., July 25; at Justin, Texas, August 15; and at Chalk, Texas. Sep-Then I return home to take tember 5. up the work with the Itasca church for another year.-W. P. Skaggs.

Mount Calm, July 17 .- Brother G. Dallas Smith on the first Lord's day in this month for the second time met with the church at this place and made a valiant fight against the emmissary of the souls of men, and for twelve days and nights presented the old story of Jesus and his love to those who favored him with their presence. As visible results of his effort, the saints were spiritually strengthened and three precious souls were inducted into the kingdom by compliance with the apostolic for-mula. Let us pray that the seed sown may result in many others being led into the door of God's blood-bought institution, the church, that opened at Pentecost to stand ajar until Christ comes again. By unani-mous request of the congregation. Brother Smith, who has endeared himself to us all, consented to return and assist in a renewed effort to lead the erring to Christ on the first Sunday in July, 1921.-C. A. Zachary.

Portland, July 17.—Brother J. B. Nelson, of Dallas, labored with the Armstrong Avenue church of Christ, in Denison, the last half of June. Brother Nelson did some fine, effective preaching. While but four confessed the Christ while he was with us, the writer baptized four the following Lord's day, and the harvest did not stop there. The next Wednesday night, after a short talk, an invitation was extended, and seven came from the Southside Christian Church, Including their minister and one elder. We trust that these good people will benceforth be content to worship "as it is written." Our meeting at Granger closed with nine baptisms and one restored. This is the home of Brother W. D. Everidge, one of Texas' sweetest singers. Brother J. W. Acuff, a former colaborer of Brother Everidge, led the songs. We enjoyed the work greatly, and especially the good home with Brother and Sister Everidge. I am now at Portland, near Bailey, in a meeting.—Thomas E. Milholland.

A toute layative containing from he organic form for regulating the directive organs and building rolust health with pure, from strong red blood. Eve a hox.

For extenna, fiver splotches and other fiching skin cruptions use "Skin Success" Soap and Olamont in conduction with tablets. A wonderful combination for good health and good looks. Ask your druggist. Samples on request.

THE MORGAN DRUG CO.,

52] Atlantic Ave. Breeklyn, New York City

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashumed of your freekles, as Othone-double strength-ls quaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply set an outnee of Othone-double strength-from your druggist, and apply a little of it hight and norming and you should som see that even the worst freekles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is sedden the most than one cause is needed to completely cless the skim and gain a beautiful clear completely cless the skim and gain a beautiful clear completely.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freekles.

NOW FREE FROM PAIN

Lvdia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Frees Another Woman From Suffering.

Bayonne, N. J.-" Before I was married I suffered a great deal with periodi-ried I suffered a great deal with periodi-cal pains. I had pains in my side and back and also headaches, and got so weak I could not do anything. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and soon felt better. Now I am married and have two little beys. Be-fore the first one came I was weak and nervous, could not eat and was dizzy. After I took the Vegetable Compound I could work and eat. Now I am strong and recommend your medicine to my friends."—Mrs. Anna Sleva, 25 East 17th Street, Bayonne, N. J.

Women who recover their health, naturally tell others what helped them. Some write and allow their names and photographs to be published with testi-Many more tell their friends. monials.

If you need a medicine for women's aliments, try that well known and successful remedy Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Write Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential) for anything you need to know about these troubles.

== ELDERS =

Here Is Something New For You

One Hundred Communion Talks and Prayers by 100 of our most prominent Preachers.

This neat little silk-bound book of over 200 pages fits the hand, the pocket, and the heart.

Price, $1 50

Yours for Service

Public Speakers' Supply (Or Box 124) RIDGWAY, PA.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make moneyatilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right Write for our FREE bookiet, "Profits in Pigeons No. 6." Carolina Pigeon Plant,

Volume LXII. No. 32.

NASHVILLE, TENN., AUGUST 5, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Edifying as the Need May Be	753
Our Contributors	754
David Lipscomb College Notes	757
Editorial	758
Book Notices	761
Selections by the Editor	761
Current Thought	762
Query Department	763
At Home and Abroad	764
Relief Fund	765
Home Reading	766
Georgia and the Far Southern Field	767
The Master's Vineyard	769
Church News	770
Our Work in Cuba	773
Obituaries	774
From the Field

Edifying As the Need May Be

BY A. B. LIPSCOMB

The Deterrent Influence of the Bible.

I have shown the positive side of the Bible along the line of suggestion. It remains for me to bring out the negative side. The Bible, if properly treated, exercises a deterrent influence where such an influence is most needed. As a book, it positively encourages true science, but negatively it discourages "science falsely so-called." We are fully alive to the fact that the motto of the scientist is "Nil admirari." In his tircless search for laws, all ethical considerations are forgotten. He cares not what the truth may mean, just so it is obtained. As Ward puts it: "Pure seciology has no concern with what society ought to be, or with any social ideals." To this we might add the observation of Auguste Comte: "Astronomers, physicists, chemists, and physiologists do not admire, neither do they blame, their respective phenomena; they observe them." All of this sounds good enough from the point of view of an unbiased judgment; but the fact remains true, nevertheless, that when a scientist in his work ignores common sense and some deep-rooted conviction of the human heart, the result of his search is more than likely to be fruitless and unprofitable. I will go a step further and state a belief which some scientific minds will not accept-namely, that when a scientist finds his theory to be contrary to the plain teachings of the Bible, he would do well to discard it. Let us consider, for example, the Lombrosian theory of crime which Tarde explains and exposes. As stated before, he is the chief apostle of atavism or the "reversion of type" theory. He would have us believe that the criminal does not belong to the age in which the crime is committed. In nature and disposition, he averts back to some ancestral age. It is plain to see that if this be the truth, no criminal is responsible. This theory arbitrarily does away with all punishment. The criminal may be a sick man, but he is not to be thought of as a guilty man. Thus we see how Lombroso and the members of his school, at tremendous effort, have built up a theory that is not only worthless, but actually dangerous to society. The Bible is fundamentally opposed to such a theory. Furthermore. common sense rejects it. People of all ages and countries have held the criminal to be responsible. It is a deep-rooted conviction that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall be also reap." (Gal. 6: 7.)

It is pertinent to observe that while Lombroso is regarded as the founder of criminology as a science, his theories have been rejected by more modern scientists. Tarde describes the life work of this Italian scholar as an effort "to dress up in the Darwinian and Spencerian manner the results furnished by the observation of lunatics in asylums, by the measurements of skulls or other parts of the body in the laboratories devoted to anthropology, and finally by the registrations of statisticians." This is gentle irony, but it is none the less the truth. We may put it down as a certainty that when a man's theories are fundamentally opposed to science in the true sense.

0 0 0

A Call From Linden, Ala.

I give space this week to an appeal from a good sister at Linden, Ala., who is struggling to get a loyal congregation in her locality. She writes as follows:

Linden, Ala., July 26, 1920.—Mr. A. B. Lipscomb, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Brother Lipscomb: Brother Dennis, of Gallatin, Tenn., is ready to come to take up the work here, which is so badly needed, if we can get support for him. You were so good to help in the meeting last year, I thought I would write to see if you could persuade some of the churches to send so much each month to help in this good work. I believe if they knew how badly the gospel is needed here they would not hesitate to send. There are four members here and four at Selma, fifty-one miles from here, all the members I know about in this part of the country. People here never heard one of our brethren until Brother Hayes preached here last year, and they liked him so much. Please do all you can to help us keep Brother Dennis.

MRS, D. C. SELBY.

I believe this Macedonian cry comes from an honest, true heart, and hope there may be a ready response.

Our Contributors

"Is Division Always Bad?"
BY W. HALLIDAY TRICE.

Under the above caption, in the Gospel Advocate of July 1, 1920, Brother J. C. McQuiddy has quite a severe criticism of an article I wrote on "Division and Separation," which appeared in the Advocate in April of this year. As I keenly realize my limitations and imperfections, I assure Brother McQuiddy I do not object to his criticism; but as he seems to have entirely misunderstood my article, I think I should make another effort to make myself clear. I shall now number the paragraphs used by Brother McQuiddy and endeavor to point out some of the mistakes he makes, as they occur to me. As to who gave "due consideration" to the subject, I will leave the readers to judge.

1. He says: "It would appear that Brother Trice does not believe his former statement, 'Division is always bad and should be deplored." Why? Because I said I was thankful for the separation. The heading of my article was "Division and Separation," not "Division or Separation;" and I did my level best to show the difference between the terms, and to show that separation may eliminate strife and contention. But Brother McQuiddy seems to think that I was using "separation" and "division" interchangeably, as he does when he says, "Paul forbids divisions or separations;" but I assure him that I was making an effort to show the difference between them, hence I think I may consistently deplore one and be thankful for the other. I frankly confess that possibly 1 should have used "strife" instead of "division;" but if Brother McQuiddy thought I was misusing the terms, why did he not criticize that instead of accusing me of disbelieving my own statements? However, it occurs to me that even the casual reader could see that I was making a distinction between the two terms; and I feel sure that If Brother McQuiddy had given "due consideration" to my article he would have seen the point, even though it was poorly put,

2. The second paragraph is entirely off the subject. He proceeds to prove that "division between virtue and vice, truth and falsehood," "should exist and be commended;" and, some way or somehow, he seems to think that such proof upsets my contention that division among Christians is always bad. But listen to Brother McQuiddy: "Division among God's children is condemned very clearly by the word of God." I agree with that most heartly. In writing on the division and separation that took place in a congregation of Christians in Fresno, Cal., I made the remark that "division is always bad and should be deplored;" but with all of Brother McQuiddy's "due consideration," he seems to get the impression that I might mean that the separation of vice and virtue is "bad and should be deplored." Now, lest he still misunderstand, allow me to state that I was not discussing the wrong or right between vice and virtue, but was simply stating my conviction that strife and contention among brethren was bad and should be deplored.

3. The second sentence in the third and last paragraph reads thus: "The position that Brother Trice seems to hold—that separation is the remedy for division—is absurd, if not foolish." I deny most emphatically that I now hold or ever did hold the position that separation is the remedy for division always and under all circumstances. Again, I suggest, if Brother McQuiddy had given "due consideration" to my article, he would have seen that I only commended separation as a last resort, or, rather, the least of two evils. Here are some statements in my former article which I fear Brother McQuiddy did not "duly consider:" "If brethren can so adjust themselves that they can work and worship together in harmony, that is unmistakably the thing to do; but if, after repeated efforts to eliminate strife and contention, they find 'the further they go, the worse it gets,' the only wise thing to do is to separate. It is both 'good and pleasant . . for brethren to dwell together in unity; but if there is turmoil and strife continually, they had better take Abram's advice and 'separate,' or do as Paul and Barnabas did-'depart asunder one from the other.'" I do not hold that separation is the best method of settling differences. I think every scriptural effort should be made to heal strife, and even then I would be very slow to advise separation; but I do think that if there is no possible way to agree and work in harmony, that it is better to separate than to continue to strive.

Brother McQuiddy says: "The cases that he cites of Abram and Lot and of Paul and Barnabas are not parallel to numerous cases of division that now occur among some of the churches of Christ." I will go further than that. They are not only "not parallel to numerous cases," but they are not parallel in every detail to any single case. However, that does not bar me from using them to Illustrate one point-separation eliminated strife in each case, I know perfectly well that Abram and Lot were not the church of Christ, and the case of Paul and Barnabas is not parallel with separations that often occur now; but will Brother McQuiddy deny for a moment that the "strife" between the herdsmen of Abram and Lot ended with the separation, or will he affirm that the "sharp contention" between Paul and Barnabas continued after they departed asunder one from the other?" The only reason I referred to these cases was to make one pointnamely, that strife may be healed by separation. Here is what I said when I introduced these two cases: "There are at least two striking examples in the Bible of where strife and contention were eliminated by separation." Again, I am forced to remark, surely Brother McQuiddy did not give "due consideration" to what I wrote or he would have gotten something I said right.

Brother McQuiddy gives some good advice about settling church troubles, and I thank him for it; but I must suggest that some of us knew the scriptures he cites before he cited them, and that some of us thought we did as the Bible directs in such cases in this case. If Brother Mc-Quiddy knew the situation here and just what efforts have been made to eliminate strife, I am sure he would not have written as he has. However, the admonition that men "should" do so and so and the fact that they do not are very different things. Brother McQuiddy says: "If men would only follow the teachings of the Bible, such divisions, when they do occur, would be healed." Sure! Better still: If all men and women would only follow the Bible perfectly, there would be no divisions to heal or separate about. Still better: If all men and women were faithful Christians, following the teaching of Christ "as they should," there would be no wars or other sins and this world would be a paradise. The question is not what men "should do," but what are they doing? We cannot have things in this old world as we think they should be: we must take them as they are and make an effort to improve them. Many of us think we know what should be done when trouble arises; but getting others to think as we do and do as we suggest is an entirely different matter

As to what Brother McQuiddy says about "the ignorance" or "lack of respect for the word of God" of the preacher who would preach for brethren who form a faction and start another congregation, I beg permission to inform him that some of the best preachers in California have preached for the brethren who left the Nevada Avenue congregation and started the work in the hall down town. Personally, I have no disposition to criticize or defend these brethren.

I am glad to have the above explanation from Brother Trice, and wish to assure him that I have no desire to criticize him severely. Neither do I wish to discuss this subject with him. I believe when we thoroughly understand each other that there is really no ground for a discussion. Brother Trice's article did not appear very clear to me, and I must confess that I do not see the distinction that he makes between "division" and "separation." Webster uses the words interchangeably, and I thought Brother Trice was doing the same thing; but as he impresses the point that he deplores strife and contention over personal matters, there is no difference between us here. I am sure Christians should not strive and contend over mere preferences; but when they are so far lacking in the spirit of Christ as to do so, I have never encouraged them to separate as a cure for the strife and contention. Separation is not a permissible method of settling any personal matter. A thousand separations could never settle a personal difference—that is not God's way to settle such things. Personal matters disturb and destroy Christian fellowship, and the mere matter of separation does not and cannot restore such fellowship. God has a method of settling such matters-namely, repentance and forgiveness. When Christians have done wrong, they should confess their wrongs, turn away from them, and ask forgiveness of those they have injured. Those who have been wronged should cheerfully forgive those who wronged them when they repent and ask forgiveness.

Brother Trice now explains: "Now, lest he still misunderstand, allow me to state that I was not discussing the wrong or right between vice and virtue, but was simply stating my conviction that strife and contention among brethren was bad and should be deplored." If he had said this in the beginning, there would have been no difference between us. When the truth of Christ Is involved, however, the position of this journal is that we must contend for the truth as it is in Christ, even if strife, division, and separation should result from such contention. My reason for writing was that I thought churches should be discouraged from striving and contending over personal matters where no doctrine of Christ is Involved. Churches are prone to do this. Men, instead of repenting and confessing their wrongs, stubbornly contend over their personal preferences, and, rather than do as God bids them do, they pull out and form a new congregation. This is being done throughout our country, and should be condemned in a most vigorous way. Preachers, instead of preaching to such factions in a way to uphold them, should mark them and have nothing to do with them. Not only preachers should do so, but so should Christians in general. Paul admonishes: "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned; and turn away from them." (Rom. 16: 17.) It is contrary to the doctrine of Christ for Christians to pull out from the church of Christ and form a factional congregation over mere personal preferences or differences. The preacher who is so afraid of losing his popularity or of offending such offenders thinks too much of their good will and too little of the approval of Jehovah. Such conduct is contrary to the doctrine of Christ and should be severely condemned.

There was no contention between Abram and Lot, and, in order that there should be none, when strife arose among their herdsmen over the personal interests of these two men, Abram magnanimously withdrew himself and his own selfish interests to prevent any contention between himself and his kinsman. If Christians would follow this example, there would never be any contention over personal matters. This is what God's word teaches them to do. Christians, however, cannot compromise the truth and give up the truth in order to live in peace with brethren or anybody else. Christ himself made division. Division over the truth is sometimes good and necessary. But I shall say no more on this subject at the present, as I believe Brother Trice and I agree that the truth should never be compromised and that strife and contention over personal matters among brethren are bad and should be deplored. J. C. McQ.

Rightly Dividing the Word of Truth.

BY H. LEO BOLES.

The pioneer preachers had much to say about this subject. It was a very popular theme with our brethren a half a century ago, but of recent years not so very much has been said or written on "handling aright the word of truth." It was so stressed that every church member thoroughly understood it; in fact, it was a teaching of this subject that helped greatly the church of God to stand out distinctly from the denominations of the country. The tendency of to-day is to neglect this subject. Many young preachers have never preached a sermon on it; many have never heard a sermon on it. I think that teachers of God's truth would do well to give it a thorough study at this time.

The truths of God are, like the facts of nature, scattered broadcast over the fields of revelation. In the museum of nature all kinds of minerals are thrown together in a seeming heap of rubbish; all species of plants grow in the same field; the stars are promiscuously sown in the heavens; yet there is order and system in nature. A very fertile source of human knowledge is the classification and arrangement of these facts of nature. Mental development is attained and exercised by a close study of the facts of nature. The seeming disorder and promiscuous arrangement, when studied, show a profound harmony and system in all the works of nature; even the stars are found to be arranged in mathematical order, "and all their motions exactly coordinated in place and time." So it is with the principles of revelation. Bible truths are not arranged in order of a code of law. Jesus of Nazareth did not write a systematic treatise on theology. He taught as the need and circumstances of the people suggested and required, and the inspired writers of the New Testament followed his example. History, prophecy, poetry, and moral teachings are found mingled in the same book; oftentimes they are found in the same chapter. To the one who is not a close student it would appear that the New Testament is a very unsystematic book; yet there are systematic arrangements to be found in the Bible; there is remarkable unity, and amidst the apparent confusion an orderly development in the whole plan of revelation. The greatest exercise and mental growth Is to be had in the study and classification of the principles of divine truth.

Much of the confusion and many of the errors to be found in the modern religious teachings are due to a lack of studying the word of truth and handling it aright. The Old Covenant and the New are blended together in one heap of confusion; the teachings of Moses and of Jesus are regarded as equally binding on people to-day; the temple service and the scriptural worship seem to have equal claims upon the average religious man. No distinction is made between fact and promise of the gospel, between miracle and ordinary experience; no difference is made between the teaching given to one in order to become a Christian and that given to live a Christian life. The wonder is that there is not greater confusion when such disregard is had for the word of truth.

There are two distinctive groups of facts, principles, commands, and promises of the gospel. These may be called the primary, or first, and secondary, or second, principles. The writer of the Hebrew letter says: "Wherefore leaving the doctrine of the first principles of Christ, let us press on unto perfection." (Heb. 6; 1.) Again, this writer says: "For when by reason of the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need again that some one teach you the rudiments of the first principles of the oracles of God." (Heb. 5: 12.) The two classes, or divisions, may be called the "elementary" and "perfective" principles, or the first and second principles. The Scripture nowhere speaks of the "second principles," but, as seen from the above quotations, the "first principles" are mentioned; and the "first" implies a second in order, rank, or importance. So we may speak of the two great classes as the "elementary" and the "perfective."

The first principles are not perfective of the Christian character, nor are the perfective principles to be confused with the first principles. The quotation above says: Leaving the doctrine of the first principles of Christ, let us press on unto perfection." This shows that in order to reach perfection we must leave the first principles; and the principles which develop perfection are to be found in another class, distinct from the first principles. Both classes of principles, or teaching, have their places, their uses, and their relative degrees of importance in the erection of a Christian character. Each class must be learned and practiced in the order that God has given in order to have the greatest blessing in our lives. The first principles are to be learned and practiced first; the perfective principles are to be learned and practiced next. No child of God can reach perfection merely by practicing only the first principles.

I think that many are making a blunder just at this point. They think that they have obeyed the gospel and have nothing else to do, when, in fact, they have obeyed only the first principles of the gospel. They must press on to perfection; they must learn and practice in their lives the perfective principles of the gospel. It is necessary and important for preachers to preach and practice the first principles, but it is also as important to preach and practice the perfective principles. In fact, the first principles are of no value without going on to perfection in practicing the perfective principles. Many of our preaching brethren learned only the first principles and just taught these, and this opened the way for a host of church members to conceive the idea that such was the whole of Christianity; and not a few preachers or petty proclaimers of the first principles wandered over the land, unacquainted with the perfective principles, knowing only "the musical trinity-faith, repentance, and baptism." Such a course not only ignored the perfective principles of the Christian life, but made the impression that faith, repentance, and baptism constituted complete obedience to the gospel and that these outweighed in importance all other teachings of the Bible. I would not be understood as saying that these are not important, for they are; there is no salvation without them; neither is there salvation with them, if one stops willfully with these first principles. However Important the foundation of a house may be, it is useless If the edifice is not completed; the portico or porch is of no value without the house or the door without the room.

The world, which is ever ready to find fault and criticize, has made the church of Christ a subject of their ridicule and charged us, with some show of justice, at least, with overlooking the great matters and principles of Christian living. If we had faithfully practiced the perfective principles and taught the babe in Christ that it must feed upon the sincere milk of the word that it may grow thereby unto salvation, the church would be a mightier influence In the world to-day. Let us not neglect the first principles, but let us put new emphasis on all the Christian graces, keeping "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." We should learn to add to our faith virtue, knowledge, selfcontrol, patience, godliness, brotherly kindness, and love. In pressing on to perfection, let us "put on therefore, as God's elect, holy and beloved, a heart of compassion, kindness, lowliness, meekness, long-suffering; forbearing one another, and forgiving each other, if any man have a complaint against any; even as the Lord forgave you, so also do ye; and above all these things put on love, which is the bond of perfectness." (Col. 3: 12-14.)

The Sarah Andrews' Mission.

BY 1. B. BRADLEY.

[Editor's Note: We ask our readers to duly consider the appeal here made for Sister Sarah Andrews by Brother I. B. Bradley. Sister Andrews is a worthy missionary, is standing for the truth, and should be furnished means to return home, as her health demands it. It seems that all that is necessary is to let the brethren know of her condition and of her work, and then sufficient funds for promptly caring for her and bringing her home will be promptly provided. Faithful servants of the Lord should be supported in whatever field they choose to labor.]

Nothing has been said in our church papers about this mission for several months. The reason for this silence is not that the work has ceased or the interest has waned, but that her support has been to the present supplied by a faithful, constant, and adequate number of contributors, and there seemed to be no need. The interest in our sister's work has been very gratifying and wholly satisfactory, and we are so glad that it has not been necessary to make frequent calls for support. There have been some regular, faithful, and liberal contributors, who, together with some who have sent occasionally, have "supplied all her needs" We thank God, give him all the glory, and take courage.

I have handled the funds for this work, from the time the money was raised for her passage to Japan until the present, by her request. I had had no experience in this kind of work and undertook to raise the money for her passage and support with many misgivings. Some wellmeaning brethren gave me advice very freely and gratuitously, but themselves were not able to profit by it. To my surprise and gratification, several weeks before she was ready to sail I had more than the required amount and quite a nice sum to apply on her first year's support. I kept the matter before the brotherhood for a year, and frequent notices for perhaps two more years. The work has been amply supplied with funds for all her needs, and she has also been able to assist two Japanese girls in school. One of these has finished and is now a very worthy and officient helper. The other is not yet through, and she will continue to assist her. She, too, will assist in the work of the mission. Besides this, she has had to meet a big hospital and surgical bill during this time, on account of an attack of appendicitis.

In July, 1919, she decided, after a season of prayer and after duly considering conditions and circumstances, that it would be wise to move to another field. She also had a desire to not "build on another's foundation." So she selected Okitsu, about one hundred and fifty miles from Tokyo, where Christ had never been named. She was received very favorably by the "chief" of the town, and he offered her the use of the town hall, and to prepare it to suit her needs, for her work. Everything has seemed to favor this selection and the work has succeeded far beyond our most sanguine hopes. Her Sunday school is so large that she and Oiki San, her helper, have to take it in two relays. She has several interesting Bible classes, attended by several young men and women from the high schools.

Although this work was begun only twelve months ago. it has been quite successful, proving the wisdom of such a move. No missionary had ever been there, and she is yet the only one there, and the only foreigner in this town of some ten thousand souls. With her Japanese helper, Oiki San, she has gone prayerfully and energetically about her work, and the success is very flattering. She is proving herself an excellent missionary. There have been a number of conversions (I think about one dozen have been baptized). She has had some of the native brethren to come to her assistance and preach and baptize those who have been sufficiently taught. Brother Fujimori, I think, has been to her assistance twice this year-up to May. Two of the young men recently baptized have decided to come to David Lipscomb College to pursue the study of the Bible and become better acquainted with Christian work and living, expecting to spend their lives in teaching Christianity to their own people.

Sister Andrews is one of God's noble women-godly. modest, faithful, and loyal to the truth "as it is written." I unhesitatingly recommend her as worthy of the liberal support and confidence of the loyal brethren and sisters everywhere. She is free from all dangerous and divisive teaching, loyal to "the old paths," having no connection with any of the isms that are troubling the cause of Christ to-day. With pardonable pride I point to the fact that Sister Andrews grew from childhood to womanhood under the teaching of Mrs. Bradley and myself, and went to the work in Japan from the church in Dickson, Tenn., having had no other training. I baptized her when a girl twelve or thirteen years old, and she grew up in the congregation at Dickson, for which I labored and preached during the next ten years of her life, and, therefore, gained her knowledge of the Bible "at home." That she is a wise and efficient missionary is apparent from the success of her present work. Brethren, I commend her to your liberal support and prayers.

She writes me that she must soon come home to rest and regain her strength. The climate there is hard on an American, and she is such an energetic, untiring worker that nearly five years of persistent effort has run her physical strength down until she is badly in need of rest. She had expected to return by the end of this year, but could not secure passage until February. She has reserved passage, and I have sent her seventy-five dollars earnest money to secure it. Now, the funds, brethren, for her trip home must be supplied out of your bounty, and I make this appeal to you to send me your contribution right away. It will cost nearly two times as much to bring her home as to send her to Japan. Missionary rates have been discontinued and she must pay full fare. It will take three hundred and seventy-five dollars for steamer fare and railway ticket from Tokyo to her home. She will need something to prepare for the trip and other incidentals. We ought to have five hundred dollars for this trip, besides the regular support the balance of this yearseventy-five dollars per month. Now, brethren, let us begin to prepare right away for this fund. Sit right down and write me your check, and say on margin: "For S. A.'s trip home." She has been our faithful, sacrificing worker. and has earned a rest. Let us give it to her, and let her come home and spend a year with "home folks" whom she has not seen for nearly five years. Send me a liberal contribution for this trip. Ask the editors of the Gospel Advocate about me.

David Lipscomb College Notes.

BY A. B. L.

Speak a good word for David Lipscomb College.

W. Claude Hall, a new member of the faculty, reports a good meeting in progress at Senath, Mo.

S. P. Pittman comes to see us between meetings, but pauses only long enough to open his mail.

The president of the college made a trip to Franklin, Tenn., last week. Several students are coming from this section

R. P. Cuff, a member of last year's faculty, closed a good meeting at Huntland, Tenn., on July 22. There were four baptisms.

California will have at least one representative in our student body. G. W. Riggs, of Los Angeles, has made reservation for young Gideon.

At Murfreesboro, Tenn., I found Jack Meyer to be the busy clerk at the Jordan Hotel. Jack knows how to extend the glad hand. Several spoke of his good work in leading the scng service for the Murfreesboro congregation. He will be with us during the coming session.

A. R. Holton writes: "School prospects are fine at Thorp Spring. It makes my heart ache to see so many boys and girls who want to go to school and are unable to go without help. I hope to live to see the day when any young man who wants to preach will be taken care of while in school."

I do not believe it would be best for any young man, even though he wishes to preach, to have all his expenses taken care of in school. Work and struggle and sacrifice constitute a large share of the true preacher's preparation. I have many applications from boys who are both willing and anxious to sweep floors, wash dishes, tend furnaces, in order to help meet their expenses. Our only fear is that there may not be enough work to give every applicant an opportunity. It would be a noble action for some prosperous Christian or a number of prosperous Christians to extend a helping hand to the boys who are disappointed in securing something to do. I will supply the deserving boy if you will supply the funds.

M. C. Kurfees writes from Louisville, Ky .: "The trustees and faculty of the David Lipscomb College and all others concerned are to be congratulated upon the election of A. B. Lipscomb to the presidency of the institution When I think of the faithful and godly men who have preceded him in the same position, and especially of presiding genius who founded it and so long gave it the benefit of his great energies, I rejoice alike over the splendid achievements which already mark its history and over the bright prospect still held out for its future. A. B. Lipscomb is a tried and true man, and as a Christian gentleman he excels in a high degree. Not only has he become a preacher of commanding ability and influence with the qualities which make him a fine model for young men aspiring to the same noble work, but his literary qualifications are of a high order, and he comes to the new position already well equipped for service. Moreover, he has by no means yet reached the zenith of his power. It has occurred to me that in this new and broader field of endeaver, the stream of his influence for good, as the years come and go, will deepen and widen in its flow and that a most brilliant and fruitful career is now before him. his inextinguishable faith in the Bible as the word of God, his unquestionable loyalty to its simplest commands. and his literary culture and refinement, coupled with the pronounced dignity and modesty which become Christians, fathers and mothers can safely place their sons and daughters in his hands; and this is saying much, with the dangerous and destructive skeptical tendencies which have found their way into so many institutions of learning in the present age. The cultivation of both head and heart in the right direction with the Christian faith unimpaired is essential to the highest form of manhood and womanhood, and I bespeak for the David Lipscomb College a continuation of its noble work in preparing boys and girls for the different fields of usefulness in life."

While, highly appreciative of the foregoing statement from Brother Kurfees, which he sent in for publication, I print it reluctantly and with the prayer that I may prove worthy of the confidence of my esteemed coworker. God help me to give my best and to walk humbly before him!

Conducted for a half century by D. Linscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order. In registered letter, or by draft payable to our order. The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is zent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmenter to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address tabel is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by piaces may not appear the first week. Credits for payment from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are sasily rectified if prempt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, $17-218 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

That Creed Again.

BY J. C. M'O.

The following in reply to my arraignment of Brother Sommer's effort at creed making is but the faint echo of a dying wail:

There is much I might say in response to this article, but I pass over such that the reader may not be lost in Incidental things. I shall not mention his thrust in calling an incidental paper my creed, using the same argument of the old digressives when they spoke of "the creed in the deed" when brethren (McQuiddy among them, no doubt) tried to keep them from stealing their meetinghouses. pass over such personal jabs as the statement that "it is his partisan zeal, his zeal and desire to rule a little sect, that leads him into such errors." I shall not notice his misrepresentation that I said men should be put "into the office before they are proved and in order to prove them," when I simply said, "It is well to have men do the work of elders and deacons before being permanently appointed to that position." No doubt Brother McQuiddy has done this many times himself when he started a new church—appointed some one to lead the church ("do work of elders and deacons") till elders and deacons were developed.

The point I started out to prove in my criticisms was that Brother McQuiddy indorsed voting for elders, and in appointing bachelors at that, and he has practically ad-mitted that in the article above—at least ite argues for both. He evasively calls his voting "getting a unanimous expression," as if one could tell that an expression could be unanimous before the voting. If you know it is unanimous before taking it, what is the purpose in taking it? He argues from the Greek that he should not oppose voting.

And his point is clear that he argues for old bachelors for elders, and thus defends his course at Denver. So I think my original points have been proven, and I now call your close attention to the reasoning on the "Bible college" question which is at the foundation of the Denver affair and much other trouble in this religious movement, and which will be continued in next week's Review .- D. Austen Sommer.

He says: "There is much that I might say in reply to this article, but I pass over such that the reader may not be lost in incidental things." No doubt our readers will agree with him on the point that much might have been said in response to my article, and they will also think that he should have attempted a defense of his creed or else confessed his wrong in indorsing the creed presented to the Denver church. But he disappoints them by classing it among "incidentals." No, sir, there was nothing incidental, accidental, or happen-so about that affair; but it was a deliberate, willful, prearranged and premeditated effort to bind on the church a creed not so much as mentioned among Protestant Christendom, but patterned after the Church of Rome. Here it is in all of its Romish attire: "Managers of the spiritual affairs" of the church. We find never a hint in the Sacred Volume of a soul's managing its own "spiritual affairs," much less a set of men managing the "spiritual affairs" of a church. "O Jehevah, I know that the way of man is not in himself; it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." (Jer. 10: 22.) "Managers of spiritual affairs" are nothing short of spiritual rulers-the Roman priesthood gone to seed! No wonder he would like to sidetrack his "creed" and cover it up with an incidental, but he has fathered it and tried to foist it on Christ's free men. Let him attempt to defend it or else repudiate the thing.

His attempt in drawing a parallel between his "creed" and the restrictive clause in the deed to church property cannot avail him. One is a creed and the other is not. If he does not agree with that paper, one item of which says that "the management of the spiritual affairs of the church for the present be placed in the hands of six of the brethren," he should not have indersed it as a rule of faith and practice for the church in Denver-a rule to guide them in religious worship and werk. If he does not indorse it as such, I ask him what object did he have in view. He set himself up as a legislator in the church of Christ, creating an office-"spiritual managers"-and filling it with men whom he himself terms "novices" because they had not been proved. There is no question between us as to proving men before they are assigned to certain work in the church, but as to his practice of assigning men to an office unknown to the New Testament in order to prove them. His action would have been bad enough had he assigned the six men to a work recognized by the Scriptures in order to prove them for the very work he assigned them; but when he creates an office-or, rather, borrows one from the church of Rome-and fills it with novices, it shows how unsafe he is as a religious teacher. I suggest that before our brother undertakes to convert Bible school brethren from what he conceives to be the error of their way, that he divorce himself from the church of Rome.

He demurs at my position of voting for elders. The difference at this point between us is that I believe in letting the congregation have a voice in the selection of those who are to be their elders in the work and worship of the church, while he arbitrarily appoints or votes with a single vote, and that his own, six men "to manage the spiritual affairs of the church." I have already shown that my course is scriptural, while his is unscriptural.

He says that I argue for old bachelors for elders. What are the facts in this case? Simply these: John D. Evans, a godly man, at much sacrifice, began at the ground and through years of hard labor and toil built up a congregation in Denver, nursing and nurturing it from the beginning as a father nurtures his children, having the oversight of this work from the beginning. Because I would not advise kicking this man out of his own work and turning it over to a faction headed by those in sympathy with Brother Sommer, he tries to make it appear that I would change one of God's laws. This comes in bad grace from a man so nearly related to the Church of Rome with his office of "spiritual managers" over the spiritual affairs of the church.

He says the Bible-college question is at the foundation of the Denver affair, and in this statement he is correct. But who, I ask, made it the foundation of the trouble there? Most certainly the church in Denver did not, for it has no Bible college, and, I suspect, is not financially able to contribute to one. Who, then, laid the foundation for that trouble? Those under the influence and teaching of D. Austen Sommer, who went there when the church was in peace and made the Bible-college hobby a test of fellowship. Our brother, in order to bring the church under the control of the Bible-college hobbyists, formulates a "creed" born of Roman Catholicism, by which he sought to place six men in power-managers of the "spiritual affairs" of the church—to whip the church into the line of opposition to Bible colleges and into the support of his paper. I intend that his "creed" shall hang like a nightmare about his couch unless he repents and repudiates such presumption as an ambition to become a legislator in matters religious. He can take his choice, but I hope to see him discontinue his effort at creed making.

But he argues that the Scriptures teach that a man must be a married man in order to be an elder in the church. This I have denied. The Bible nowhere says that a man must be a married man in order to be an elder. It is true that the Scriptures say he "must be the husband of one wife." The word "mia," meaning the same as "eis," a cardinal numeral, one, is used thus as defined by Thayer: "first, universally, (a) in opposition to many." One, as used in this connection, means if a man is married, he must have one wife, and not many. If the Holy Spirit had meant that a man must be a married man, then he would have said so. But he did say that a man could not have more than one wife at the same time.

Matthew Henry, in his "Commentary," says on this passage: "Not that ministers must be married; this is not meant; but the husband of one wife may be either not having divorced his wife and married another (as was too common among those of the circumcision, even for slight causes) or the husband of one wife-that is, at one and the same time, no bigamist; not that he might not be married to more than one wife successively, but, being married, he must have but one wife at once, not two or more according to the too common, sinful practice of those times, by a perverse imitation of the patriarchs, from which evil custom our Lord brought a reformation. Polygamy is scandalous in any, as also having a harlot or concubine with his lawful wife; such sin, or any wanton libidinous demeanor, must be very remote from such as would enter into so sacred a function," As the patriarchs practiced polygamy and as it was prevalent among the Jews and In Rome, it is very probable that the early churches did not at first expel the polygamists from the church. When they found such people in the church, they bore with them and tolerated the practice for a time until they could finally lead them out of their sin. God has never approved and Indorsed polygamy. He permitted it on account of the hardness of their hearts. The same is true of war and slavery.

Macknight says of this verse: "The apostle's meaning, therefore, in these canons is, that such persons only are to be intrusted with sacred offices, who in their married state have contented themselves with one wife, and with one husband, at a time; because thereby they have shewed themselves temperate in the use of sensual pleasures. As the Asiatic nations universally practiced polygamy, from an immoderate love of the pleasures of the flesh, the apostle, to bring mankind back to use marriage according to the primitive institution, which enjoined one man to be united to one woman only, at a time, ordered by inspiration that none should be made bishops but those who, by avoiding polygamy, had shewed themselves temperate in the use of sensual pleasures."

Conybeare & Howson thus give the meaning of this passage: "The true interpretation seems to us to be as follows: In the corrupt facility of divorce allowed both by the Greek and Roman law, it was very common for man and wife to separate, and marry other parties, during the life of one another. Thus a man might have three or four living wives, or, rather, women who had all successively been his wives. An example of the operation of a similar code is unhappily to be found in our own colony, Mauritius: there the French Revolutionary law of divorce has been suffered by the English government to remain unrepealed; and it is not uncommon to meet in society three or four women who have all been the wives of the same man, and three or four men who have all been the husbands of the same woman. We believe it is this kind of successive polygamy, rather than simultaneous polygamy, which is here spoken of."

Ellicott thus gives the meaning of this passage after holding that polygamy was prevalent and after stating that women reckoned their years by their husbands rather than by the consuls, and after impressing the thought that the Christ was raquiring chastity and purity in his followers: "This direction, which requires that those to be selected to fill holy offices should be known for their purity in their family relations, of course does not exclude—should any such offer themselves—those men who, while contracting no marriage ties, still were known to lead upright, moral lives."

All authorities that I have examined oppose the idea that a man must be married in order to be a bishop. If such were the Bible teaching, Paul would not have advised that it was better not to marry, unless he made an exception of those who had the qualifications for Christian elders; for if an elder must be a married man, to advise him not to marry would be to advise him not to engage in a good work. I have no apology to make, neither am I ashamed of the position that "the husband of one wife" does not mean "a man must be married," provided he has the scriptural qualifications, in order to be a Christian elder.

Breaking Bread in the Lord's Supper and at Home. BY M. C. K.

Brother Daniel I. Hiler, of Trio Town, Texas, sends the following queries with the request that they be answered in the columns of the Gospel Advocate:

Does breaking bread in verses 42 and 46 of Acts 2 mean the same? Does the phrase "day by day" in the latter verse modify the expression "breaking bread" as well as "continuing in the temple?"

In 1 Cor 16: 2, what is meant by the phrase "by him?" What is the purpose of the last clause of the verse?

The proper way to deal with all such queries is to see, first of all, exactly what is said in the different passages. The point of difficulty, in such inquiries, is sometimes largely met and explained by the different contexts of the passages with the difference in phraseology that may be noted in them. Following this plan, let us consider the passages and facts which they state.

- 1. What the two passages say on breaking bread. Verse 42 reads: "And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' teaching and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and the prayers." Verse 46 of the same chapter reads: "And day by day, continuing steadfastly with one accord in the temple, and breaking bread at home, they took their food with gladness and singleness of heart."
- 2. The context in each passage. The term "break" or "breaking" throws no light on the question before us, because it is applied indifferently both to breaking bread in the Lord's Supper and to breaking bread in an ordinary meal at home. The reader can verify this by comparing Matt. 26: 26; Acts 20: 7; and 1 Cor. 11: 24, in all of which it clearly refers to the Lord's Supper; and Matt. 14: 19; 15: 36; and Acts 27: 35, in all of which, with equal clearness, it refers to a common meal; but the term "break," both in the original and the translation, though differing in grammatical form, is the same in all six of the passages. But the context is not the same. In verse 42 "the breaking of bread" is immediately preceded by "the apostles' teaching and fellowship" and immediately followed by "the prayers," and it would be incongruous to thus associate it with other acts of worship if it were not one itself; whereas in verse 46 the breaking of bread is not only said to be "at home," but it is distinctly specified as "their food." On verse 46, Professor McGarvey's "New Commentary on Acts" has this pointed note; "The breaking of bread mentioned here is not the same as that mentioned above at verse 42; for here the reference is to bread for food, as is seen in the qualifying clause, 'they did take their food with gladness and singleness of heart."
- 3. Yes, the two participial clauses, "continuing stead-fastly with one accord in the temple and breaking bread at home," being tied together by the conjunction "and," are both modified by the expression "day by day," That is, this expression indicates the time when the two things were done.
- 4. The phrase "by him" is a literal rendering of a phrase which ordinarily expressed what is understood by the phrase "at home." On the original phrase, Thayer has this note: "Para heantoo, by him—i. e., at his home (1 Cor. 16: 2)." It is used in classic Greek to convey the same idea.
- 5. As to the phrase "in store," which immediately follows, it is a free rendering of a participle (thaurizoon) which means "treasuring up" or "putting it into the treasury;" and no matter whether the treasury thus implied be a private treasury at home or the public treasury common to the whole church, the teaching is precisely the same-viz., that the money needed on that occasion might all be gotten together before the apostle's arrival, "that no collections" might have to be made after he came. It merely denotes that, if the apostle's instructions were properly followed, the needed money would all be collected by the time of his arrival. Even if it be granted that the treasuring or storing up was "at his home," in the first place, and not at the public meeting of the church, still we can know, as the language necessarily implies, that the money in some way was all to be brought together into one fund by the time of the apostle's arrival; for he distinctly informs them that the purpose of his orders to them, as in the case of "the churches of Galatia," was "that no collections be made when I come." Thus he contemplated having the money already collected into one fund when he should arrive.

This passage stamps with divine authority the weekly contribution among Christians, and its wisdom is always illustrated wherever churches faithfully follow the instructions. It not only provides for the needed money on a given occasion, but it forestalls the haphazard and claptrap methods to which human wisdom sometimes resorts. The latter not only frequently fail to get the money, but they have a tendency to lower the standard of dignity and scriousness which should always govern in the conduct of churches. Giving in the cause of God is not to be made a matter of fun and frolic, but a matter of serious and devout service to God.

Questions and Answers. No. 1.

BY F. W. SMITH.

One Baptist brother by the name of J. H. Pennock, in the Baptist Flag of July 20, propounded the following questions to another Baptist brother by the name of Fry:

- 1. Did Christ establish a church while upon earth?
- 2. Was that church a visible or an invisible organiza-
 - 3. Is that church still in existence?
- 4. Did Christ commission his church to preach the gospel and baptize believers? If not, to whom did he give a commission; or, did he commission any one at all?
- 5. Is that commission still binding? If so, upon whom is it binding-Methodists, Presbyterians, Mormons, and Holy Rollers?

Thus it will be seen that the Baptist brethren have their differences and contentions over vital and fundamental matters in religion as well as others. The article from which the above questions are copied seems to indicate that Brother Pennock is a little suspicious of Brother Fry's theology. He seems to regard Brother Fry's teaching and practice somewhat irregular for a Baptist-too latitudinarian in its tendency. Hence, to sound the brother out on certain points in order to be sure of the ground on which he stands, Brother Pennock draws the issue clearly on the questions propounded. Brother Fry's leaning toward the "Interchurch World Movement" and his liking for so-called "union meetings" are the things that have aroused Brother Pennock's suspicions regarding his brother's soundness in the Baptist faith and practice. This is perfectly permissible upon the part of Brother Pennock, and no Baptist brother or sister has any right to call in question his action in the matter. Those claiming to be the children of God are exhorted to admonish each other. and this applies to one's teaching and practice doctrinally as well as morally. I do not know, of course, whether or not Brother Fry will answer Brother Pennock's questions according to the Baptist view of such matters; but it seems that if he is disposed in the direction of the New Testament, he will have no difficulty in answering in harmony with that book.

1. Christ said: "Upon this rock I will build my church." (Matt. 16: 18.) The Baptist brethren, if I mistake not, claim that the church here referred to is the "Baptist Church," but I have never discovered the time nor place in the holy oracles when it ceased to be Christ's church ("my church") and resolved itself into the "Baptist Church." Now, if Brother Fry will simply quote the language of Christ in answer to question No. 1, he will satisfy Brother Pennock on the point that Christ premised to establish a church; but as to its name and time of establishment, he may fail to please his brother. The passage quoted puts the establishment of the church in the future ("I will build") from the time the promise was made: and if the church was established while Christ was "upon the earth" in person, the scripture has never been produced that so teaches. The first mention of the church of Christ as an existing institution into which men and women were called is found in Acts 2: 47: "And the Lord added to them day by day those that were saved." This collection of disciples in Jerusalem is thereafter referred to as the "church in Jerusalem:" "And there arose on that day a great persecution against the church which was in Jerusalem." (Acts 8: 1.) Now, no such language was ever applied to any of John's disciples, nor to those who followed Christ during his personal ministry. The church was referred to prophetically in Matt. 18: 17-"And if he refuse to hear them, tell it unto the church;" but Christ was only laying down the law to govern in the church when it should be established, just as he gave directions concerning the Supper which was to be observed after his death when he instituted the memorial: "This is my body, which is for you: this do in remembrance of me." (1 Cor. 11: 24.) Although they were told to do this, there is no mention of his disciples having observed the Supper until after his death. The observance of this sacred institution upon the part of his disciples began immediately after the establishment of the church-viz., on the first Pentecost after the resurrection of Christ: "And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' teaching and the fellowship, in the breaking of bread and the prayers." The Supper or memorials of the sufferings of Christ are inseparably connected with his church, intended by its divine Founder to begin and end with the church on earth. The church in its glorified state will no longer be looking for the coming of Christ; hence, the institution which now points to that glorious event will cease. Material was prepared and brought together on the day of Pentecost for the building or establishment of the church; and when it was done, the Supper was placed in the church as the furniture of the tabernacle was placed within it when finished. I see no way by which our Baptist friends can separate the Supper from the church; and if this cannot be done, and no proof of its observance before Pentecost can be found, it seems to me that their claim of the church being fully and completely established during Christ's personal ministry is without foundation in the word of God. Near the close of his ministry he said, "Upon this rock I will build my church;" hence, if he did this before his death, there would certainly be some mention made of the fact. I have witnessed the efforts of many learned Baptists to establish that proposition, but they have all most signally failed to do so.

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine, or Uncle Minor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney—one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?" This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake.

SELECTIONS BY THE EDITOR

Conscience is nothing else but the echo of God's voice within the soul .- E. B. Hall.

0 0 0

If a man is unhappy, this must be his own fault; for God made all men to be happy.—Epictetus.

0 0 0

Believe me, every man has his secret sorrows, which the world knows not; and oftentimes we call a man cold when he is only sad,—Longfellow.

0 0 0

We all have need of that prayer of the British mariner: "Save us, O God, thine ocean is so large and our little boat so small."—Canon Farrar.

0 0 0

Would you throw away a diamond because it pricked you? One good friend is not to be weighed against the jewels of all the earth.—Robert Smith.

0 0 0

The world is a school, and the business of its occupants is the pursuit of an education fitting them to graduate into the invisible university of God,—W. R. Alger.

0 0 0

Do not let your head run upon that which is none of your own, but pick out some of the best of your circumstances and consider how eagerly you would wish for them were they not in your possession.—Marcus Aurelius.

0 0 0

It seems as if heroes had done almost all for the world that they can do, and not much more can come until common men awake and take their common tasks. I believe the common man's task is the hardest.—Phillips Brooks.

0 0 0

God, who registers the cup
Of mere cold water for his sake
To a disciple rendered up,
Disdains not his own thirst to slake
At the poorest love that ever was offered.
And because my heart I profered
With true love trembling at the brim,
He sufferers me to follow him.
—Browning.

0 0 0

I received a letter from a lad asking me for an easy berth. To this I replied: "You cannot be an editor; do not try the law; do not think of the ministry; let alone all ships and merchandise; abhor politics; don't practice medicine; be not a farmer or a soldier or a sailor; don't study, don't think. None of these are easy. O, my son, you have come into a hard world! I know of only one easy place in it, and that is the grave."—Beecher.

O O O Mother and I.

Sometimes in the hush of the evening hour, When the shadows creep from the West, I think of the old-time songs you sang, And the boy you lulled to rest—
The wee little boy with the tousled head,

That so long ago was thine—
I wonder if sometimes you long for that boy.
O little mother of mine!

And now he has come to man's estate,
Grown stalwart in body and strong,
And you'd hardly know that he was the lad
Whom you luiled with your slumber song;
The years have altered the form and the life,
But his heart is unchanged by time,
And still he is only your boy, as of old,
O little mother of mine!
—Selected.

Current Thought

More Gospel and Less Sensation.

Sermonic sensationalism coupled with the lack of a definite theology not only exhibits a spiritual weakling in the pulpit, but renders many church people "the victims of all manner of religious fads and vagaries which always flourish in the atmosphere of emotional faith and theological indifference." For, adds Prof. David H. Bauslin, dean of the Hamma Divinity School, in an address to the graduating class of the Philadelphia Seminary published in The Lutheran, it is no more possible to conceive of a strong and robust and properly proportioned Christianity without theology included in pulpit ministration than to conceive of our bodies without bones. The Bible is more than a mere book of biography; it is a revelation of God, and we must be taught in a popular way in pulpit ministration the character of God, for the knowledge of God lies at the basis of right character in man. We cannot build a true humanity on a false theology. Yet-

"In the sphere of religion there is an appalling indifference to the claims of worship, and the extraordinary assumption that a specific profession of religion is something entirely superfluous. The vast public ignorance of Christian dectrine and history is one of the most deplorable and ominous dangers among us. In consequence largely of our sociological interest, many people have fallen into a mere humanistic and naturalistic way of estimating our Lord and Savior. Much of religion in some circles among us has been smitten with a barren rationalism or has degenerated into a one-sided mysticism. If the situation we are confronting makes dectrinal preaching more difficult, possibly, than at any time since the Reformation, it renders it all the more necessary. It is an absolute mental and spiritual necessity if men are to be led out of the mists of religious uncertainty and ambiguity."

Preachers are exhorted against the sensational note, which indicates "a mental sterility not creditable to supposedly trained and qualified men." Many are turning aside from the everlasting interesting questions of religion to subjects and literature handed out from propagandist sources, and if this continues we are destined to have among us a considerable group of clerical weaklings and to be confronted with a serious loss of pulpit power." Men need to hear from the pulpit that which is preëminently spiritual and not secular, that which has to do with the soul and with God, and—

"If these things do not constitute the dominant note in our preaching, we will never be able to lift men above the clamorous voices of the secular market place. There will be no development of faith through a well-instructed mind or of works through a well-trained life. Our congregations will be neither taught nor led, because teaching and leadership are impossible when the voice in the pulpit moves week by week from one suggested topic to another and the preacher is transformed into an agent for an organization or movement that may be worthy in its ends and of advocacy at proper places and under right conditions. And all this that I have adverted to is far removed in dignity and, indeed, usefulness, from what has been indulged in by pulpit charlatans, who have exploited all sorts of homiletical degeneracy, about 'love, courtship, and mar-riage,' 'the value of football,' 'the automobile as a social and religious force in the community,' 'thought powerits control and culture, 'break the news to mother, 'the extraordinary power of veneer in modern society -all subjects recently announced in city papers and heralded as being full of resistless attractions."

Recognizing that the problems of the modern pulpit are perplexing and that, perhaps, the times are full of dangers, this advocate of theological preaching asks:

"But when have the times not been out of joint? Never in the late centuries has man felt the need of true peace of heart as to-day; never has there been an open door of spiritual effort more inviting than to-day; never has the brave, unholding courage of the preacher been more of a boon than to-day; and never has there been greater appreciation of true manhood in the preacher than to-day."—Literary Digest.

The secular press is insistent that preachers should preach the gospel, which is God's power unto salvation.

It insists that the time-honored method of announcing texts of scripture and boldly and fearlessly proclaiming the gospel has given way to a variety of movements and programs. Preachers who should declare all the counsel of God have ceased to contend earnestly for the faith once for all delivered to the saints. Movements to bring the denominations into a great working body and thus build up denominationalism instead of the church of Christ have failed. There have been some preachers going up and down the country telling the people that the returned soldiers from overseas would not countenance the old-time method of preaching the gospel and that, therefore, the church was confronted by a situation which required a speedy and radical change. But this has all failed, as all such movements are destined to fail, and the cry now is. "Back to the gospel!" Just a few days ago a worthy young preacher told me that he had just closed a meeting for one of the churches of Christ in this State. He said in that church there were members who could not intelligently answer the question, "What must I do to be saved?" He also informed me that some of the leading members told him that they had not heard a sermon for fifteen years plainly declaring the fundamentals of the doctrine of Christ. Preachers have preached to entertain and to please rather than boldly and fearlessly declare all the counsel of God. It is also stated that the church of Christ is rapidly on the decline and that in one hundred years it will cease to be, if it continues to decline as it has been declining during the last ten years. Preachers of the gospel need to believe, love, and have confidence in the truth. God never told them to preach to please the world. The command of Christ is to go and preach the gospel to every creature. This reads: "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." (Mark 16: 15, 16.) The preacher must be fearless enough to quote John 3: 5 without apology. No preacher is responsible for what God says. God is able to take care of the conditions of salvation-man has nothing to do with fixing them. Preachers should boldly preach that there is a hell and that the disobedient will be punished. "And these shall go away into eternal punishment: but the righteous into eternal life." (Matt. 25: 46.) It is the duty of the minister of the gospel, instead of making people believe that they can be saved in their sins, to teach them that "the wages of sin is death," and that there is and can be no rest for the wicked. The word of God is clear upon this point: "And to you that are afflicted rest with us, at the revelation of the Lord Jesus from heaven with the angels of his power in flaming fire, rendering vengeance to them that know not God, and to them that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus: who shall suffer punishment, even eternal destruction from the face of the Lord and from the glory of his might," (2 Thess. 1: 7-9.) The preacher who dares to change, modify, or alter in any particular the word of God stands condemned and will be lost unless he repents. "But though we, or an angel from heaven, should preach unto you any gospel other than that which we preached unto you, let him be anathema. As we have said before, so say I now again, If any man preacheth unto you any gospel other than that which ye received, let him be anathema." (Gal. 1: 8, 9.) The need of the hour is for preachers who know the truth, who love it, and who have the courage of their convictions. No cowardly man is fitted to preach the gospel of Christ.

Query Department

By J. C. McQUIDDY -

A sister who wishes to remain nameless, so far as the public is concerned, writes to know what is the meaning of 1 Pet, 1: 23. She asks to know, when it says "being born of the word of God," it "the word" means Christ. In the Revision we have "begotten" instead of "born." The Revision reads: "Having been begotten again, not of corruptible seed, but of incorruptible, through the word of God, which liveth and abideth." It is true that the word as referred to in the first chapter of the gospel of John means the prenatal Christ, but the word in this passage means the spoken or written word of God. It is in obedience to Christ, to God, and to the Holy Spirit that one is begotten of the truth. We find the same thought in James 1, where Christians are admonished to put away all filthiness and overflowing of wickedness and receive with meekness the implanted word, which is able to save their souls. "Implanted" here means "inborn" word.

* * *

J. A. Taylor, of Paragould, Ark., wants to know how elders should be appointed. He asks: "Should they be ordained through prayer, fasting, and the laying on of hands? If so, what is there to be gained by the imposition of hands?' No one should be appointed to the work of an elder who has not proved himself capable of doing the work. Elders cannot be made by any form of ceremony unless they have by inheritance or attainment the characteristics and qualifications necessary for doing the work of an elder. Many grievous blunders have been made by appointing men to the position of elders who were wholly disqualified for the work. Men who have the qualifications and who are doing the work of elders should be recognized as such by the congregation. It is contended by some that in all cases in the appointment of elders, the appointment ceremony consists of fasting, prayer, and the laying on of hands. This was the position of Alexander Campbell, Dr. T. W. Brents, J. A. Harding, and others. Some other good brethren contend that in all cases where hands were laid on in the days of the apostles, that it was for the imposition of the Holy Spirit. I have never been sure that any special ceremony of ordaining elders has been laid down in the New Testament. This being true, any method that the church may adopt that is sensible and in order may be used. I can see no objection to fasting and praying and even the laying on of hands, with the distinct understanding that the laying on of hands is not for the imposition of the Holy Spirit. It is evidently true that the hands were laid on in the days of the apostles for such purposes; and as it cannot be done now, we should be very careful to have it so understood.

0 0 0

E. R. Wright, of Memphis, Tenn., is concerned about knowing the time and frequency of the observance of the Lord's Supper. He says: "As one of the elders, I do not know just what to do, as we are divided on the above question. Some think it is all right to have the Supper at night as well as in the morning, and others think we should have it only in the morning."

From the teaching of the Scriptures it is clear that the meeting on the first day of the week was not only for breaking bread, but was for teaching, singing, fellowship, and the prayers also. Matt. 26: 30 says: "And when they had sung a hymn, they went out into the mount of Olives."

Acts 2: 42 reads: "And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' teaching and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and the prayers." In the original institution of the Lord's Supper, nothing was said as to the frequency with which it was to be observed. At the time of the institution the Lord said: "This do, as oft as ye drink it, in remembrance of me," (1 Cor. 11: 25.) Had nothing more been said, every congregation of disciples would have been left to its own judgment as to the frequency of observance; but in the observance of the Lord's Supper the apostles were guided by the Holy Spirit, as in other matters left indefinite by the Lord's personal teaching, and their example is authority for our doing likewise. Little is said as to the frequency of its observance, but that little is decisively in favor of a weekly observance of the ordinance. The Holy Spirit declares: "And upon the first day of the week, when we were gathered together to break bread, Paul discoursed with them, intending to depart on the morrow; and prolonged his speech until midnight." (Acts 20: 7.) In 1 Cor, 11: 20, 21 we read: "When therefore ye assemble yourselves together, it is not possible to eat the Lord's Supper: for in your eating each one taketh before other his own supper; and one is hungry, and another is drunken." Acts 20: 7, taken in connection with the practice of the church in the second century and for a long period afterwards, has been sufficient to win universal agreement among biblical scholars that the apostolic custom was to observe the Lord's Supper on the first day of the week. The action of the apostles, guided by the Holy Spirit, shows plainly the will of the Lord; so our custom should be the same—that is, we should observe the Lord's Supper at least one time on every first day of the week. As we commemorate weekly the fact that Christ arose again for our justification, why should we not as frequently commemorate the fact that he died for our sins? Of course, parties may observe the Lord's Supper in the morning of the first day of the week, or they may observe it in the evening of the first day of the week. It may be possible that some cannot conveniently attend the morning observance, and these can observe it in the evening; but I know of no authority that encourages the custom of the same person's observing it both morning and evening of the same day. The fact that the word "deipnon" is translated "supper" does not necessarily mean that it must be observed in the evening. This word means "the chief meal of the day," and we find in other cases the plural form is rendered "feasis." Matt. 23: 6 and Mark 12: 39 show clearly that the Lord's Supper can be eaten at any time on the first day of the week. "And love the chief place at feasts, and the chief seats in the synagogues." (Matt. 23: 6.) "And chief seats in the synagogues, and chief places at feasts." (Mark 12: 39.) Christians should not differ over the time, as the Lord has not legislated just what time of day it shall be observed. It is a sin to contend over opinions and preferences. It is a shame that local congregations will differ over such matters. Christians should be content to obey the clearly revealed will of the Lord. When Christians observe the Lord's Supper upon the first day of the week, God is obeyed and honored. Let us lay aside opinions and walk by faith in the service of the Lord.

This world's no blot for us

Nor blank; it means intensely, and means good;

To find its meaning is my meat and drink.

—Browning.

皿

AT HOME AND ABROAD

J. W. Grant preached at Greenbrier, Tenn., last Lord's day.

John M. Rice has moved from Altus, Okla., to Merkel, Texas.

J. A. Cullum is requested to write to F. S. Vance, Nocona, Texas, at once.

There were four confessions in the meeting at Hendrix Chapel, near Parsons, Tenn. D. D. Swor was the evangelist.

- J. W. Dunn closed a meeting at Bardwell, Texas, on July 28. Eight persons were baptized. He is now at Charlie, Texas.
- C. W. Holly would like to locate with brethren where there is an affiliated high school. Address him at Coalbloom, W. Va.

Earnest C. Love, of Santa Rosa, Cal., is preaching at his boyhood home near Ætna, Tenn. He will preach in Nashville on August 15.

S. M. Jones, of Beamsville, Ontario, Canada, will begin a meeting for the Dunlap congregation, at Duck River, Tenn., next Sunday.

Porter Norris reports a good meeting at Elm Grove, in Tipton County, Tenn., resulting in three restorations and one baptism. He is now at Solo.

R. P. Cuff will begin a meeting for the church at Estill Springs, Tenn., on August 23. The church is small, and near-by congregations are urged to attend.

Charles Taylor has just closed a meeting at Cottoniown, Tenn., with nine additions. He began a meeting at Almaville, Rutherford County, last Lord's day.

Andy Largen, of Lincoln County, Tenn., with John W. Hooten, of Lewisburg, Tenn., was engaged last week in a meeting at Chapel Hill, Tenn. The interest was good.

- R. N. Moody writes: "The meeting at Acton, Tenn., closed last night. The attendance and interest were good throughout the meeting. There were eleven baptisms."
- T. C. Fox has just closed a meeting at Coopertown, Tenn., which was well attended throughout and which resulted in four baptisms. He is now in a meeting at White's Bend.
- H. J. Phillips, of Ridgetop, Tenn., was among our visitors last week. He is anxious to secure some good preacher to hold a meeting for the church at Greenbrier, Tenn.
- R. A. Craig, 1740 Chichester Avenue, Louisville, Ky., sends this: "Wanted—A good physician to locate at Parksville, Ky. This is an ideal location, with good church and school."
- H. H. Adamson at this writing is engaged in a meeting at Cornersville, Tenn. He is having large and attentive congregations. Brother Bills, of Ostella, Tenn., is leading the song service.
- J. G. Stinson, of Lewisburg, Tenn. called to see us last week. He reports the church there as in a flourishing condition and well pleased with H. H. Adamson, who ministers to the church.

The Fanning Orphan School for Girls will open for the reception of pupils on September 9, 1920. For further information, address David Lipscomb, superintendent, Route 1, Nashville, Tenn.

Our Home in Cuba.—I am now settling two hundred American families in Cuba. I think we can offer the most wonderful inducements to American farmers on earth. Write J. D. Tant, Rogers, Ark., for literature.

- M. C. Kurfees has just sent the news that the meeting which he was conducting near Mocksville, N. C., continued through last Sunday There had been sixteen additions when he last wrote (July 31), and great interest was being manifested.
- D. F. Draper writes from San Francisco, Cal., under date of July 27: "On my westward trip I have preached at El Paso, baptized one; at Los Angeles, baptized two; also preached at Pasadena and met W. D. Nay; also preached at Pomona onee."

- H. Leo Boles closed a meeting, Sunday, July 25, at Arlington, Tenn., which resulted in one baptism. Good interest was manifested throughout. He began a meeting last Sunday at Rogersville, Ala., to continue as long as interest demands.
- L. E. Carpeuter has closed a short meeting with the church at Gober, Texas, during which one person was baptized and two took membership. These brethren would like to get in touch with some preacher who can be with them once a month.

We enjoyed a visit from C. E. Coleman, of Macon, Ga., last Thursday. He has recently preached at Tampa, Fla., and reports that church saving so much money each month for the purpose of building a larger and more commodious house in which to worship.

In passing through, E. P. Watson dropped in to see us last Monday. He had just closed a good meeting at Wildersville, Tenn., with ten additions, and another at Christian Chapel, with four additions. He reports interest good throughout both meetings.

From W. D. Bills, Klondike, Texas, July 31: "I have just closed an excellent meeting at Valliant, Okla., with five baptisms and one restored. I began here last night with splendid prospects. When through here I shall return to my regular work at San Antonio."

- J. W. Parman came to see us last Thursday and renewed his paper for another year. He worships with the Berry Chapel congregation, Williamson County, Tenn., and reports that Andrew T. Ritchie is to hold a meeting for this church, beginning the third Sunday in August.
- From J. A. Cullum, Roff, Okla., July 29: "We closed here last night with large crowds and splendid interest. Twenty-five were added to the congregation. I am booked to return for the last three weeks in July, 1921. Brother Bryant, the local minister, was present and assisted much."
- G. A. Dunn writes from Hallsville, Texas, July 24: "On July 19 I closed a nine-days' meeting at Florence, Texas, with forty-one additions—twenty-nine baptisms. On July 21 I began a camp meeting at Hallsville. On August 3 I will begin a meeting at Tuscumbia, Ala., August 14, at Haleyville, Ala."

Last Saturday C. G. McPhee delighted us by calling at the office. He reports that he recently closed a meeting at Tintern, Ontario, Canada, which resulted in two baptisms. On July 25 he preached at Meaford, Ontario, Canada. He expects to be engaged in protracted-meeting work in Tennessee for a while.

J. H. Murrell, 621 West Chestnut Street, Rogers, Ark., writes: "I have devoted nearly all of my time to the work with the church in Rogers this year, but recently decided to go back into general evangelistic work, and am now ready to make engagements for meetings for the remainder of this year or next."

William P. Walker writes from Indian Mound, Tenn. July 29: "Our tent meeting at Legate continues with large audiences and good interest. We are sowing the seed of the kingdom. Brother Taylor is doing his work with pleasure and satisfaction. The meeting will continue as long as interest demands."

J. A. Jenkins, Huntsville, Ala., writes: "I have been a reader of the Gospel Advocate for more than twenty years, and I think it one of the best papers in the world. I feel lost when I fail to get it (and that only when I am away from home). I hope that it will continue the spread of the gospel many years."

From L. F. Mason, Morrison, Tenn., July 27: "I have just closed a meeting near Woodbury, with two baptisms. I will begin a meeting at Shady Grove on July 30; at Red Hill, August 10; and at Flat Rock, near Lebanon, on August 22. I will return to Whitewright, Texas, to preach on the first Sunday in September."

E. A. Elam was engaged in a meeting last week at Sellersburg, Ind. We are not informed as to results. The people of Sellersburg can congratulate themselves on the fact, however, that they had the pure gospel preached unto them. He was announced to begin a meeting at Bethlehem, Wilson County, Tenn., last Lord's day.

From B. L. Douthitt, Mayfield, Ky., July 29: "The meeting at Conversville, Tenn., closed last Sunday with four additions. The interest was good throughout the meeting.

This was my second meeting at that place. My next meeting will begin next Sunday at Spring Creek, Ky. I am now hearing some fine sermons by I. B. Bradley at Pottsville."

A Tent Wanted.—The churches of Christ in Memphis want to do mission work in the city and Shelby County, and I thought perhaps I might find some one with a tent for sale. Would not object to a used one if in good condition. Please give size, how long used, equipment, and price. Address E. V. Wilson, 191 South Main Street, Memphis, Tenn.

From Willie Hunter, Route 1, Livingston, Tenn., July 30: "Our meeting at Holly Springs, came to a close on July 20, after ten days' duration. The meeting was conducted by John Knight and D. H. Knight, of Lafayette. There were seventeen additions in all. The attendance and interest were good throughout the meeting. One more came back to the fold last Sunday."

From Thornton Crews, Rogersville, Ala., July 31: "Our meeting at Remine Schoolhouse closed last Saturday at the water, with eighteen additions. We then went to Mount Carmel and began a meeting last Sunday. We had to close this morning. There were seventeen additions. These meetings were too short, a mistake that brethren often make when arranging for a meeting."

B. C. Goodpasture left Nashville last Thursday for his new field of labor in Atlanta, Ga. He will sell books published by this company and will take subscriptions to the Gospel Advocate. He is a good preacher, and we are sorry to lose him from Tennessee, but we commend him to the brethren of Georgia in the belief that he will accomplish a good work there. His new address is 98 South Ashby Street.

W. M. Oakley writes under date of July 29: "Our meeting of ten days' duration at Petway, a few miles from Ashland City, Tenn., closed to-day at the water. This was a glorious meeting. Two were baptized and eleven others who had wandered away came back and confessed their sins. The church takes on new life. I go next to a point near Palmyra, Montgomery County, where I begin next Lord's day."

Sister Jennie Clarke, superintendent of the Belle Haven Orphans' Home, of Luling, Texas, recently made an appeal in the Gospel Advocate for money with which to buy a Holstein cow for the Home. She now writes that the funds are being provided, and extends thanks to all who have contributed or may yet contribute for this purpose. She asks that some one tell her where she can buy a first-class Holstein cow.

We enjoyed a visit last week from R. W. Jernigan, of Bridgeport, Ala. He had just closed a meeting at Hohenwald, Tenn. The meeting was interesting, with good attendance throughout, and resulted in two baptisms. His next meeting, which was announced to begin last Lord's day, is at Grand Saline, Texas. After this meeting he will return to Tennessee and devote his time until about the first of October to evangelizing in Warren, Dekalb, and Cannon counties.

From D. D. Woody, Rives, Tenn., July 30: "I have just finished my annual meeting between Jackson and Beech Bluff. We have no house there and the brethren have never begun meeting on Lord's day for worship. However, they have been aroused by the gospel, and plans have been formed for the construction of a house this fall. This will be the third congregation in Madison County. Brethren, I have made a sacrifice to do this work; but it is our duty to preach the gospel to every creature, no matter where he lives."

John D. Evans, of Denver, Col., writes us that en July 25 the church at Denver had an all-day meeting, with lunch on the grounds. The program was essentially missionary. Brother Speck; M. H. Moon, of Fort Worth, Texas; E. C. Fuqua, of Fort Collins, Col.; E. E. Shoulders and John D. Evans, of Denver, were the speakers. Much enthusiasm was aroused, and it has been thought that much good was accomplished. Brother and Sister Perry, of this city, and their daughter and son-in-law, from Colorado Springs, attended the meeting.

From Emmett G. Creacy, Edmonton, Ky., July 29: "The meeting at Edmonton closed with one baptism. There are only four or five members of the church of Christ here. I shall visit them and preach in the courthouse every opportunity I have. We are now at Bellview with our tent.

Large crowds and good order. We have a few brethren here who keep house for the Lord every Lord's day. They meet in the schoolhouse. Prospects are favorable for a strong congregation here. I set this little church in order three years ago. They are zealous and true to the word."

From J. P. Lowrey, Memphis, Tenn., July 29: "I spent last week with the church at Paragould, Ark., preaching every night. There were seven additions to the church. Three of them came from the Baptists. I have never seen a congregation more in earnest than the church at Paragould. Soon after reaching home on Monday, I was called to Rosedale, Miss., to conduct a funeral. Sam Gardner, whose parents live at Rosedale, died in Texas, and his body was brought to Rosedale for burial. I am to begin a meeting next Sunday at Hickory Flat, Miss., and from there I go to Ruleville, Miss."

H. T. King, who is preaching for the church at McMinnville, Tenn., is busily engaged in holding meetings in Warren County. The churches are manifesting unusual interest, and all appear determined to go forward more vigorously in preaching the gospel of Christ. When H. Leo Boles was last in that county, there were five meetings in progress at the same time. John T. Smithson was at Oak Grove; Brother Jenkins, of Huntsville, Ala., was at Ivy Bluff; H. T. King was at Mount Leo; J. P. Watson was at Bluff Springs; and J. M. Radeliffe was at Bonner. All were having interesting meetings.

From E. L. Whitaker, Corinth, Miss., July 29: "On the fourth Lord's day in June I began a meeting at Water Valley, Ky., and closed it on the first Lord's day in July, with four baptisms. We used the Presbyterian meeting-house, and had to give up the building when the interest demanded more time. As was said of Nehemiah of old, they have 'a mind to work.' On the following Lord's day I began a meeting at Zion Hill, near Palmersville, Tenn., and continued it eight days. R. L. Colley was with me part of the time and led the singing. There were six baptisms and two restorations. They certainly do not send a preacher away empty-handed. I am to be with both congregations next year, the Lord willing."

Last week we made a note that W. B. Young was working to secure sufficient funds to pay for the roof of the church house at Manatee, Fla. He assured us that he was opposed to the use of the organ in the worship and that he did not work with the missionary societies. Information comes, however, from D. A. Van, C. M. Keen, Frank Estes, and M. L. Pratt, of Manatee, Fla.; W. A. Cameron, of Largo, Fla.; John Hayes, A. A. Pickard, Lloyd Hicks, and H. F. Brooker, of Bradentown, Fla.; and D. B. Whittle, of Palmetto, Fla., that W. B. Young is not working for the church at Manatee, Fla.; that he is not in sympathy with those who are contending for the primitive worship of Christ, and that he deceived the Bradentown congregation for a while. W. M. Brummitt sends the letter and refers to the above-mentioned persons as witnesses. In justice to the brotherhood we are making this statement, and would advise W. B. Young to show that these brethren have misrepresented him or cease to pose as a loyal disciple of Christ.

RELIEF FUND

"Whose stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry, but shall not be heard."

WASTE CONTROL OF STREET PRODUCTION OF STREET	- 1 50
Miss Fanita Watkins, Fosterville, Tenn.
"A Sister" and her Sunday-school class, Fountain Creek, Tenn.	31.18
Mrs. S. C. Merritt's class, Mayfield, Ky.
A. D. Thompson, Murray, Ky	2.00
L. S. Ivy, Nabors, Texas	3.00
"A Friend," Cookeville, Tenn,	10.00
Mrs. M. D. Holmes and children, Nashville, Tenn	2.50

In sending contributions, be sure and state whether they are intended for the Home Orphans' Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Fund, or the Poland Fund. I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for orphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb, who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

A Brave Fireman.

Nancy Bryant's father was a fireman. He could never stay at home long with mother and Nancy, because he had to spend so much time at the fire station. But one cold winter night he was able to get away, and after supper Nancy said: "O, father, let's play parchesi to-night!"

"All right, I'd like to," father replied, "if mother will play, too." So Nancy ran for her parchesi board, and soon father, mother, and Nancy were having a fine game. All at once they heard a loud "clang!"

It was the big bell in the living room, which always rang when there was a fire. Father jumped up and hurried for his coat and hat.

"O, I'm so sorry that you have to go out again this cold night!" said mother.

"Isn't it too bad," cried Nancy, "when we were having such a good time!"

"Yes," father replied, "I'm sorry, too; but some one needs me."

Then he opened the door quickly and ran down the street to the fire station as fast as he could go.

Nancy jumped up and hurried over to the window,

'Clang, clang, clang!" There was the hose cart.

"Clang, clang, clang!" The hook and ladder went whizzing by. Then came the flying sparks of the big engine. Father was on the back, and Nancy peered through the darkness to see him, because she knew he always waved his hand as he passed.

When the firemen reached the fire, they found that a house was burning. Grabbing their hatchets, they leaped from the wagons, connected the hose, and got to work.

A crowd soon gathered, and some one cried, "There's a little girl upstairs!" Father Bryant called out: "I will get her!"

The firemen quickly raised a ladder to the window, and up went father Bryant. In the house the smoke was so thick he could not see; so he dropped on his hands and knees, because the smoke is never quite so thick near the floor. Feeling his way as best he could, he crept along from room to room until at last he heard a little girl crying.

"Don't cry, little girl," he said; "I'll take you out all right." Then he wrapped a big blanket around her so that she was safe from the flames and carried her in his arms back to the window. When the crowd that had gathered saw him bringing his little burden down the ladder, they cheered and cheered.

The little girl's father rushed forward and caught her in his arms, and after he had hugged her close, turned to father Bryant and said: "How can I ever thank you enough?"

"That's all right," replied father Bryant, "I have a little girl of my own at home."—Adelaide A. Wheeler.

0 0 0

To live content with small means; to seek elegance rather than luxury, and refinement rather than fashion; to be worthy, not respectable, and wealthy, not rich; to study hard, think quietly, talk gently, act frankly; to listen to stars and birds, babes and sages, with open heart; to bear all cheerfully, do all bravely, await occasions, never hurry; in a word, let the spiritual, unbidden and unconscious, grow up through the common—this is to be my symphony.—Channing.

The Tale of a Tunnel.

The suburban train had just entered the tunnel through which it came into the city every morning, and as the lights were not bright enough for further reading, the patient commuter laid aside his newspaper with resignation. "These tunnels are an awful nuisance," he said to his neighbor.

"I used to think so," the neighbor agreed.

"You don't mean to say they are getting any better, do you?" was the surprised rejoinder of the first commuter.

"Hardly that," replied his friend; "but I think I have learned how to use them. For twelve years I have been commuting to the city every day. Every morning there has been the tunnel with its interruption of darkness for a minute or two. For a long time I considered it a daily nuisance, but lately I've made a discovery. I've discovered that it is the finest time that ever comes to meter pray."

His friend looked at him with amazement.

"I know it seems a strange thing to say," he continued; "but I've tried it now for several years. It is the moment just before the train enters the station. Before me in just a few moments will be the city with its hurry and crowds and the day's work. But for the moment I am alone in the dark, and I have found that the one minute is long enough for a real prayer that brings me strength and purpose for the whole day. Somehow I don't seem to get away from it, and the tunnel has meant a lot to me the last few years. Try it sometime."

This tunnel philosophy is just as good for other places. It brings us a suggestive reminder that the most real and helpful prayers in the lives of many people are not those made when all the conditions seem most favorable, but the earnest petitions offered at odd times and in unusual locations.—Selected.

No church now mourns an absent Lord. When faith looks for him, it sees him; when loves yearns for him, it feels him near. Only when these are feeble do we seem to be forsaken and alone. We have then one friend to whose memory no tablet will ever be erected and no tear shed; for the strong arm will never cease to hold us securely, and the loying heart will not fail to keep alive our affection with the fire of its abiding love.—H. B. Robinson.

0 0 0

Hope.

Joy looks upward, peace looks inward, hope looks forward. The Christian hope is fixed on the coming of our Lord, and this is a very prominent element of New Testament teaching. It does not obtain great prominence in much of present-day Christianity. Most people look forward, not to the coming of the Lord, but to death; yet the one object of expectation set before us in the New Testament is the coming of our Lord. Nowadays the general thought is that death will come and the Lord may come; but Scripture reverses this and says: "Death may come, but the Lord will come."—W. H. G. Thomas.

0 0 0

The Little Streets.

"To-morrow I'll do it," says Bennie;
"I will, by and by," says Seth;
"Not now—pretty soon," says Jennie;
"In a minute," says little Beth.

O, dear little people, remember
That, true as the stars in the sky.
The little streets of To-morrow.
Pretty soon, and By-and-by.
Lead one and all.
As straight they say,
As the King's highway,
To fhe city of Not-at-All.
—Christian Register.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. Hall

A Sad-Glad Day.

Without any kind of doubt, Sunday, July 25, was one of the most glorious days that I have ever experienced, yet one of the saddest. Our auditorium at West End Avenue was more than filled, quite a number having to stand in the vestibule. A brother from whom fellowship had to be withdrawn, some years ago, came back whole-heartedly to his "first love" and confessed his sins. Three others made their confessions of neglect and indifference and reconsecrated themselves to God. The regular collections went above ninety-three dollars, and special collections for the work at Griffin and other places amounted to sixty-nine dollars. At night we had another great service, with a number from East Point and South Pryor Street to help us. One soul confessed her faith in Christ and one came from the Baptists.

At the close of the morning service, Brother J. T. Farmer asked permission to say a few things, and at the close of his speech he presented me with a twenty-three-jewel Hamilton watch as a token of West End's love and appreciation of my nearly fourteen years' labor with them in an effort to let Atlanta and Georgia know something of that religion that gives a jey that is "unspeakable." The good sisters of this congregation, just a few days before (July 19), had surprised the sweetest woman on earth to me by placing under her plate at breakfast a purse of seventy-five dollars as a birthday gift, which was considerably augmented with smaller gifts later. The East Point brethren had just presented me with a Corona typewriter to be used on my trips and dispense with the burden of carrying the heavier machine that I have been using. These things, with the consciousness that in that congregation, and also at East Point and South Pryor Street, I have friends whose love is as strong as death and who can never forget to pray for me, made a heaven on earth for me. "The Lord bless them" is the prayer of one who will never forget.

But the day was sad, because it was my last day with them for a year, at least. The elders have kindly tendered me a year's leave of absence, which time, after two short meetings are concluded, is to be spent with the faithful in Los Angeles, Cal., the Lord willing. The stay there will be for a threefold purpose-to improve our son's health, inaugurate an aggressive campaign in that great city, and at the same time get a rest, by way of diversion, from the strenuous work in which I have been buried ever since landing in Georgia. Those two sermons that I tried to preach on this last day I was to be in Atlanta, for a while, were the hardest undertakings of my life. God bless every child he has in those three congregations, as well as the many other congregations we have established and helped! You cannot know, brethren and sisters, how I love you, and I shall take you in my heart wherever I go. Here I must be specific and name the places where my heart is now resting: Macon, Hardie's Chapel, Liberty Hill, Austell, Buchanan, Rockmart, Rome, Lyerly, Trion, Hall's Valley, Pleasant Grove, Menio, Morven, Welcome Hill, Savannah, Morgan's Chapel, Ingleside, Constitution, Griffin, Albany, New Hope, Dasher, Baldwin, Dalton, Tunnel Hill the church which is in Brother Beck's house near Bowden, Wilson's Mill, McGregor, and the many scattered disciples at too many other places in this State to name. I want all of you to know that I love you and remember you just as much as the good people in Atlanta who sent me to you time and again. "The Tie that Binds" will never be sung without thoughts of you. And well shall I remember singing these words with many of you. These words chord only on the heartstrings of the kind and grateful, those whose hearts have been quickened, mellowed, and tuned by the glorious gospel of the Son of God. With my whole heart do I believe this tie binds us forever together. Let us ever appreciate it and hold it fast.

He who is omniscient and infilnite in goodness has seen fit to illustrate this tie by various earthly ties.

First—He would call it the tie of friendship. "Ye are my friends," says he. And again: "I have called you friends, and not servants." Truly selfish and debased is that man who does not appreciate the sacred cord of friendship. By virtue of this tie, we can grasp hands, eye light eye, and great hearts expand and become one in the sense of this world's life. "Here we have the mysterious cement of the souls of men, the sweetener of life and solder of society, to which we are all indebted, and from which we have all derived far more than we can ever repay."

Second-He illustrates it with the tie of holy wedlock. We are declared to be married to Christ; hence, the righteous look forward with pleasure to the time when they will be awakened from the sleep of death by the voice of Him whose shadow is the universe, in pursuance of whose call they will arise, clad in robes of righteousness, and be escorted by angels into that eternal home and participate in the wedding feast of the Lamb of God. How beautiful is the tie of true wedlock! How sad to think that it is so little appreciated by the many who have entered into this holy union! "Here the hearts of the happy twain bound in one can soar high in the liquid air of the honeyed spring on pinions of purity, where their fevered brows can be cooled in the gentle breeze of affection." In this union we can ever live in an atmosphere of love, a light from heaven, a spark of immortal fire. It has been truthfully said:

Devotion wafts the mind above, But heaven itself descends in love, A feeling from the Godhead caught, To lift from earth each sordid thought.

Third—He also illustrates it by the tie that exists between the mother and the smiling cherub with its dimpled cheeks and flaxen hair. Christians are called "sons and daughters" of Him who rules the countless worlds unknown to man, and who could, in a moment's time, dash this globe on which we live into oblivion with one stroke of his mighty hand. Nothing on this earth is stronger and more unchanging than a mother's love; hence, we should ever be anxious to do anything within our power to show that this love is fully appreciated.

But just as Solomon's temple, with all its glory, and towering Sinai, that lifts its head above the mist into the golden sunlight, are but shadows that were to fade, and dld fade, in the radiant light of the Sun of Righteousness in his heavenly kingdom, so all these ties to which reference has been made are but shadows that recede from our view in the presence of that tie that Satan is powerless to sever. It is true that these ties are sufficiently strong to bind us together in our weary pilgrimage here; but when once touched by the tcy scepter of the "grim monster," they are forever broken. Then it is that we will be able to see, as we have never seen before, the reality of that tie that binds; that is real beyond all other realities, purchased and dedicated by the crimson stream that flowed from Emmanuel's veins, and called "true religion." Truly did Burns sing:

Tis this, my friend, that streaks our morning bright; Tis this that gilds the horror of the night! When wealth forsakes us, and when friends are few; When friends are faithless and foes pursue, Disarms affliction or repels the dart; Within the breast bids purest raptures rise, Bids smiling conscience spread her cloudless skies. Tis this that wards the blow or stills the smart,

In that awful hour when this old world shall reel and rock, yea, and quiver like an aspen leaf, vainly would we pluck the gems that adorn the blue arch of night and gladly give them for that tie which anchors us to that home of eternal bliss and happiness. All other ties become as frag-He as the cords that bound the brawny arm of the ill-fated Samson. Ah, it is this tie that brings comfort into the sorrow-shrouded home where the faithful husband or wife gently presses the hand of the loving companion now cold and speechless in death, or when the weeping mother looks for the last time into the face of her darling child, knowing that she cannot call him back, but, by virtue of this tie. can go to him. 'Tis this, and only this, that can solace give, when I think of each of you with whom I have labored in the State of Georgia, and say, "Good-bye," which may be forever, so far as this world is concerned. I have enjoyed the days we spent together, and can truthfully say that I love you all, and shall ever look back with pleasure to the days we have spent together in trying to lead souls to Christ. Though the cruel hand of fate may scatter us like seared leaves before the Ice King, and though we may drift far apart on life's stormy sea, yet let us, as soldiers of the cross, wield our armor in the great battle of life so that as our material nature withers in age and decrepitude, the immaterial, guided by the lessons we have studied, learned. and taught together, will gradually cement themselves until the union is fully consummated in that meeting that some day will begin, but never end, and where we will ever remain bound together by the tie that binds. The grace of our Lord Jesus Christ keep us unto that good day!

Man, What a Chance!

This exclamation of Ralph Connor (Charles W. Gordon) in his great sermon on the call of Jesus to the rich young ruler may well be repeated to every young man of our day who in any way becomes aware of God's challenge to his soul. The need is so vast and so imminent that the war situation is repeated. Something like universal divine conscription of both young men and young women must be recognized. One who will not answer the call must prove his exemption or forever stand among those who failed their hour.

The call of God used to be the exception. "There were many widows in Israel, but to only one was Elijah sent." There were many cobblers in England, but only one William Carey; many weavers in Scotland, but only one David Livingstone; many West Point graduates, but only one Charles E. Garst; many penniless foreign boys landing in America, but only one Sam Higginbottom; many Japanese schoolboys thirty years ago, but only one Paul Kanamori.

The young man or young woman of good mind and physique who is not taking up definite Christian service as a like work must answer to his own soul, as well as to the Lord of the harvest, with something more than an excuse.

God's call cannot be put aside lightly; cannot be put aside at all, except to add another to the list of eternal tragedies in which the rich young ruler stands hard by Judas Iscariot. What if Moses had chosen to enjoy the pleasures of sin rather than to share ill treatment with the people of God? What if Saul of Tarsus had been disobedient to the heavenly vision? What if Florence Nightingale had offered any one of fifty excuses that were at hand? What if Frances E. Willard had chosen enjoyment rather than service? What if William E. Macklin had rejected God's calling to Nanking? Such conjectures are simply impossible. To reverse the course of Martin Luther is as inconceivable as to obliterate the sun.

But my life is just as important to me as Alexander Campbell's was to him. I can no more afford to miss going where God wants me than Mr. Campbell could afford to stay away from America or from Bethany. His success, his joy, his eternal destiny were there.

We cannot imagine what disaster, starvation, and defeat might have followed if Herbert Hoover had not been where God had appointed him to be. But the Christian transformation of India, or of China, or of Africa, will save more lives, because it will go on forever. It involves also, not merely the relief of physical hunger and suffering, and that in the wholesome and permanent way of teaching the people to help themselves, but of vastly more importance, the moral and religious redemption of the people.

Behold the joy of Dr. Shelton in witnessing thirty baptisms on the border of Tibet, and hear God calling you to the three million Tibetans that wait beyond.

See the Scudder mission in India receiving more members last year than the entire Reformed Church of America that sent out the missionaries; hear Sherwood Eddy tell of preaching to thirty thousand eager hearers in one audience; witness the tragic loneliness of our own scattered missionaries, Dr. Mary Longdon's narrow escape from death, G. L. Wharton dying at his post, and conclude that God is assuredly calling you to come over and help in the harvest of milions, the deliverance of a race.

When the crisis in Africa constrains Dr. Jaggard to return to the Congo though he has buried his wife in the homeland; when our missionaries as captains of twenties and hundreds of native evangelists are successfully withstanding the Mohammedan advance, but seeing the lines break beyond their reach; when the Eldreds counted not their own lives dear unto themselves; how can you ignore the zero hour of God's largest continent, but one of the needlest and readlest of all?

Hear Inman testify that all of Latin America spends less on education than New York City alone; see Taylor's photographs of thousands of Mexican children eagerly accepting the teaching of American Christians whenever they have the chance, and realize that not by war, nor by diplomacy, nor by commerce, but by Christian education, Mexico and all Latin America may be transfigured into a very garden of God; and answer, why not through you?

Mark the glorious success of our Christian institutes for the physical, mental, moral, and religious training of the American negro; read the fascinating story of Jennie Porter proving in Cincinnati's blackest belt that "black is just as good a color as white, and brown is a perfectly beautiful shade," and then calculate, if you can, how many thousand chances there are for you among these eleven million of your fellow citizens to win the same sort of victories for God and humanity!

Ray Manley and C. Jaroshevich, Frank Butchart, and Basil Keusseff have demonstrated that our foreigners—and there are fifteen million of them—will accept Christ as readily as they will go after Lenine, if given a fair chance. Here is your chance at once to save them and to safeguard your own country.

If none of these calls "find" you, review the American babies on daily parade along Riverside Drive in New York, Green Street in Augusta, or a thousand other places, count the millions of their older brothers and sisters in our non-religious public schools, and claim the glorious privilege of somehow bringing Christ into their lives. If God permits you to serve here, as minister or as teacher, you have no time to be president of a bank, a railroad, or a nation!—World Call.

The more a man knows, the clearer becomes his consciousness of ignorance. The greater his virtues, the more keenly sensible is he of his defects. The nearer he approaches to perfection, the more strongly does he feel that his aspirations can only be fully realized in the great hereafter.—Exchange.

GET A GOOD GRIP ON HEALTH

Look out for the unnatural weakness that indicates thinning of the blood and lack of power. It means that your bodily organs are starving for want of good nourishment; that the red corpuscles are fewer, unequal to demands of health. Hood's Sarsaparilla increases strength of the delicate and nervous, restores red corpuscles, makes the blood carry health to every part, creates an appetite.

If you need a good cathartic medicine, Hood's Pills will satisfy.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

Not Equipment but the Man Makes the Difference

Every great school; college, or university has been built around the personality of some one man. The educated men of Amer-ica who have accomplished great things ica who have accomplished great things and who stand well in professions look back on their college training and attribute much of their accomplishments to the dominating personality of the school in which they were educated. The dominating personality of Morgan School is that of Prof. R. K. Morgan. His influence for good and better things does much toward the molding of morals and stimulating of broader ideals in the students who are so fortunate as to attend Morgan School. Mr. Morgan has devoted his life to the training Morgan has devoted his life to the training boys. The thoughtful, considerate parent feels of boys.

The thoughtful, considerate parent feels that the school to which he sends his son must be equipped and its faculty chosen with the primary end of training the boy to become a man—to teach true Christian faith, to develop manly independence and self-confidence, to inspire high theals of life and service, to strengthen and develop mind and body affec.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, and body alke.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, which has been built up around the Christian character and wholesome, inspiring personality of Robert R. Morgan, who has been principal for twenty-six years.

A postal card to Mr. L. J. Mills Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information shout this school.

The Master's Vineyard

Arkansas.

Fort Smith, July 27.-The past Lord's day was another enjoyed by the congregation of the Park Hill church of Christ. Love and zeal for the Lord's cause were manifested by the large attendance and growing in-The little people seem to enjoy terest. the work despite the sultry July weather. My brother, Paul S. Knight, from Booneville, was with us on Lord's day and enjoyed the worship and hospitality of the good people of Fort Smith. May the Lord bless the church at this place in our efforts for good, since we have learned that we shall reap in due time if we faint pot.-Leland H. Knight.

Oklahoma.

Comanche, July 27 .- I am at home resting a day or two, after my debate with Elder I. P. Whitaker, ite," at Peabody Schoolhouse, near Saint Jo, Texas. The debate lasted four days. Four propositions were discussed-the state of the dead, punishment of the wicked, future probation, and the design of baptism. brethren seemed more than pleased with the result, and I am sure that the debate will result in much good. I will hold some meetings in that country next year, the Lord willing. Brother Frank Chism, of Valley View, Texas, a fine young preacher, was with me all through the discussion and acted as moderator. He should be kept busy preaching all the time. Brother T. H. Matheson, of Bowie, Texas, also was present a part of the time. He is doing much good work in that country. Though not yet at myself physically, I am still slowly improving, and was able to conduct the discussion successfully to the end and preach for them on Sunday night following. I go to McGirk, Texas, to begin a meeting next Friday night. hope to be able to continue busy. will be in Arkansas again soon.-U.G. Wilkinson:

South Carolina.

Union, July 29.—Our meetings continue in this town, with some interest We are having a reasonamanifested. bly good hearing of regular attendants. Brother Nix will begin in Spartanburg just as soon as arrangements can be made. We have been badly handicapped in this work this season. Brother Nix needs a singer for about two months. Brother Briggs now lives in Spartanburg, and will be of great assistance to the work there. Brethren, remember this work in your prayers This is a hard field, and it takes lots of courage to stick to it with all the disadvantages which we are compelled to meet with. Write Brother Nix a letter of encouragement, and he will certainly appreciate it. I sometimes think if all the brethren could be scattered abroad in a destitute field for about six months, that they would look at praying, sacrificing, long-suffering, brotherly love, and encouraging one another in a different light. I believe we would appreciate more being "members one of another." received a letter yesterday from Brother J. A. Hardison, who is now located in Greenville, stating that the prospects there are good for the work: I am planning to be with him for several days in the near future. I re-cently visited Brother Inabinett in Charleston. I found him still determined to stick to that city until the cause is established there. He is as true as steel and his faith grows stronger daily. We met in his home with three other brethren and his three children. If you visit that city, call to see him. If you know any loyal disciples there, send their ad-dresses to Arthur W. Inabinett, 579 King Street, and he will be glad to look them up and have them meet with the little band. We are getting along nicely with our building fund, but are still some short; and if you want an interest in our first meetinghouse in this State, now is a good time to send in your offering. We are planning to build a "fabricated house." This, I find, will be about the cheapest substantial house that we can get. It will cost us, complete, about four thousand dollars. Breth-ren, help us do this now. Send all communications, checks, and orders to me. If you know of any loyal member in this State, send me his or her address at once. Pray for us:-Thomas H. Burton.

Tennessee.

Mount Pleasant, July 29.—The second week in this month I preached three nights at Oak Grove Church, in Lawrence County. Five persons were baptized and one was reclaimed. began a meeting in Giles County on the third Saturday night in this month and closed it on the following Friday night, with two haptized and three reclaimed. I am now in a meet-ing near Mount Pleasant, with two confessions and one reclaimed thus far.-J. C. Hollis.

Dickson, Route 2, July 29.—Our meeting at Jackson's Temple, near Burns, closed on Sunday night. The attendance and interest were good throughout. This is a small congregation, but very much alive. The sing-ing, led by Brother Monce Carter, was fine. Brother Carter is an excellent leader, and they all joined in heartily as though they were singing unto the I am now in a meet-Lord in truth. ing at Rock Church. After this meeting I shall return to Mississippi for three or four meetings that are greatly needed .- M. C. Cayce.

Rheumatism Relieved

Renwar is guaranteed to relieve rheumatism by money-back offer. This remedy will positively neutralize the urle acid in the blood, which causes rhenmatism. amount of Renwar required to effect relief depends on the case which is being treated. Very often one bottle will produce the desired result. If you suffer with rheumatism, you should by all means try Renwar. It is harmless, even to the most delicate constitutions, and thousands will testify to its effectiveness in relieving rheumatism. Sold by druggists (price, 50 cents) or by mail from Warner Drug Company, Nashville, Tenn.

Women Who Suffer

Should find relief from their sufferings by taking the woman's temperance Tonic and Nervine, which has helped so many women, some of them right in your neighborhood. When the household cares and the worries of everyday life have dragged you down, made you unhappy, and there is nothing in life but headache, backache and worry, turn to the right prescription, one gotten up by Dr. Pierce fifty years ago, which has helped many thousands of women in this country. It is called Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and can be had in every drug store in the land, in tablet or liquid form.

FRANKFORT, KY .- "After motherhood I had such miserable health for two, years that I could not get around to do my own housework, most of the time I had to keep to my bed. My back ached and my nerves were in a terrible state. I terrible state. I doctored and took every medicine that was recommended to me, but it was not until I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription that I located the right medicine, and it very promptly relieved every symptom of feminine trouble, and eventually restored me to perfect health." MRS. DRUZY MERRIWETHER, No. 868 Wilkerson Street.

We place White Teachers in Public, Private, and Normal Schools, Colleges, and Universities. The H. D. Yates Teachers' Bureau, Nashville, Tenn.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages," Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Alabama.

Berry, July 22.-Last Lord's day 1 filled my regular appointment at Erness Chapel, three miles south of Oakman. We had a good crowd and the best of attention. This congrega-tion is small, but it stands for apos-This congregatolic doctrine. At this place Fletcher Douglass Srygley, of blessed memory, held his third protracted meeting. In Fayette and Walker counties, as I go from place to place, I meet scores of people that he baptized and find a number of congregations that he planted. (See Rev. 14: 13.) I go next first Lord's day to Bankston, five miles west of Berry, the home of Brother Ned Smith, who has been in the army of the Lord for a number of His health is failing him, but he still contends for the faith once for all delivered unto the saints. Tim Walker.

Arkansas.

Havana, July 23.—I am so glad to tell the readers that the meeting here is fine. The people come and give the best of attention to the preaching of the word. Five have made the confession to date. I am to begin some day next week at Ravia, Okla.—D. S. Ligon.

Fayetteville, July 26.—I closed a meeting at Lenna, Okla., on July 14, with two additions and much good done otherwise. More people attended this meeting than ever attended a meeting of any kind there before, and the interest was fine. I am now in a meeting with the church at Fayetteville. The meeting is one week old. There has been one baptism to date. The interest is good. I go next to Lamar, Okla. Pray for me.—W. L. Oliphant.

Fort Smith, July 26.—We closed the Atkins meeting at the water this morning. We had a great meeting, one of the most successful in the history of this church, with fourteen baptisms and much good done otherwise. Several who had "fallen by the way" renewed their promises and obligations to the church. Brother Charlie Bradley, of Morrillton, led the singing, and it was well done. It was a pleasure to be associated with him in this meeting. I will begin at Casa on Wednesday.—Will W. Slater.

Johnstown, July 26.—I began a meeting here last Saturday, with a fine interest. Brother Alvis Jackson, who had just closed his singing school here, is leading the singing. We had a number from Newport, Remmel, and other places over the county yesterday, and a number of good preachers and singers have promised to be with us this week. The meeting at McFadden closed last Thursday night with the best interest that has ever been at that place, but no visible results. The people there are anxious for another meeting this year.—L. R. Wilson.

Marvell, July 27.-The meeting at Cypert, six miles out from here, is now a matter of history. The writer did the preaching. During the first week Brother P. D. Lawson led the song service and did the baptizing. , The meeting closed yesterday at the water's edge, where we baptized seven persons, two of whom made the good confession there. Eighteen were added by confession and baptism, one by statement, and two reclaimed, and several others confessed their faults. The interest grew from the first service to the close. The brethren are rejoicing and are encouraged to undertake greater things for God .- J. W. Dollison.

Kentucky.

Hickman, July 26.—The meeting at Mount Hermon is one week old. Interest increasing. The song service is being led by Brother A. B. Reavis, of Dresden, Tenn. The meeting will continue till the last of this week.—Fred M. Little.

Wingo, July 28.—On the third Lord's day in this month I closed an interesting meeting with the Green Plains congregation, south of Murray, with the additions. Of these, one came from the Baptists and one from the Methodists. On the fourth Lord's day I concluded a meeting with the Union Grove brethren, northwest of Murray. Six became obedient to "the faith." This is where I submitted my life, my all, to my Master.—Coleman Overbey.

Wingo, July 27.—I closed the meeting at Enon, near Fulton, Saturday night, with one baptism and one restored to fellowship. Others who had been taught the word were "almost persuaded," but allowed the meeting to close without obeying the gospel, willing to enjoy the pleasures of sin rather than live for God. Brother Wilford Heffin, of Boaz, led the sons service. He is able to also "preach the word." If you need his services in either respect, call upon him.—Alonzo Williams.

Louisville, July 28.—I began a meeting at Parksville on the first Sunday in July and continued it until Friday after the third Sunday. This was indeed a glorious meeting. The very best of interest and order prevailed throughout. Ten were baptized, two took membership, one came from the Baptist Church, and one confessed wrong. We were blessed in the meeting by having Brethren H. S. Jones and J. G. Malphurs with us. Brother Malphurs led our singing for a few nights, and Brother Jones gave us two fine lessons at the morning services. The church property at Parksville had never been protected against the innovations of men, but we have now put in the deed a clause that will protect it in the future. I go next to Bohon, near Harrodsburg. Let us work and pray.—R. A. Craig.

Michigan.

Flint, July 26.—We had two good meetings here yesterday. The Lord willing, our meeting will begin next Lord's day. We would like to have the names of any who might be living here who would like to attend our worship. Address me at 2410 Delmar Avenue.—Leslie G. Thomas.

Oklahoma.

Oklahoma City, July 23.—We had two good services at the Tenth and Francis Streets Church last Sunday. There were three additions at the morning service by identification. At the conclusion of the evening service three were buried with their Lord in baptism. We rejoice greatly. In the afternoon I conducted funeral services over the body of Sister Sarah Ann Olds, at her home, 1617 East Tenth Street. We laid her body to rest in the Fairlawns Mausoleum.—J. W. Hudson.

Tennessee.

Murfreesboro, July 28.—My meeting at Dilton closed with one addition. I am now at Sharpesville, near Murfreesboro, in a good meeting.—L. B. Jones.

Gassaway, July 26.—I closed a meeting at Antioch Church, in Coffee County, on July 19, with nine baptisms. I am now in a meeting at Gassaway, in Cannon County, with good interest.—C. M. Gleaves.

Morrison, Route 5, July 26.—I began a meeting at Trousdale yesterday, and everything points to a good meeting. I am still open for a few more meetings. Those desiring my services should write me at Wartrace, Tenn.—R. E. Wright.

Livingston, July 27.—I closed an eight days meeting at Bethlehem, in Putnam County, last Sunday night. Nine were baptized and two others confessed their sins. The attendance and interest were fine throughout. I go next to Jackson County for two meetings during the month of August.—Willie Hunter.

Algood, July 27.—On July 11 Brother C. A. Norred, of Memphis, and I began a two-weeks' meeting at Tupelo, Miss. There were no additions, but we think some good otherwise was done. Brother G. C. Brewer was to have held this meeting, but contracted an illness which prevented his doing so. Tupelo is the home of Brother H. C. Harris, who works at the carpenter's trade and preaches, too. Brother Norred did some acceptable preaching.—E. Gaston Collins.

Algood, July 27.—I held a short meeting during the week beginning July 18, at Netherland, about six miles from Algood. The services were well attended and interest seemed good. One person was baptized. This is a mission point. We have only four members there, but more are to move there soon. I hope to get them started to meeting regularly. I intend to hold another meeting there this summer. I have preached this year at the following places in Kentucky: Tyree's Chapel, Yokley's Grove, and Bethel, in Simpson County; Rich Pond, in War-

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be very well described as "a carbonated fruit-flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea-1	cupful	1.54	ģr,
Green tea-1	glassful(8 fl. oz., exclusive of ice)	2.02	ģr.
Coca-Cola-1	drink, 8 fl. oz.	.61	gr.

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity, and also explains, in part, the wide popularity of Coca-Cola, whose refreshing principle is derived from the tea leaf.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

The Coca-Cola Co., Dept. J. Atlanta, Ga., U. S. A.

77

Ferraline is a Natural Mineral, rich in Iron, Magnestum, Lithium and other health-giving uninerals. It is made by the simple process of percolating distilled water thru Ferraline bineral Earth, and it contains no drugs nor chemicals.

It has long been recognized as most effective in the treatment of Indigestion, Stomach troubles and Rhoumatism, and as a System-builder and Restorer it is of special value to those who suffer from Impoverished Blood.

Ferraline is sold by your druggist and endorsed by prominent ministers, business and professional men.

To secure an interesting booklet and the story of the "Sweetest thing without a Sout," write

"FERRALINE," Dept. 5, DEMOPOLIS, ALABAMA.

Send us a new subscriber to the Gospel Advocate

INVENTIVE GENIUS ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Doctors' Favorite Medicine Now Purified and Refined from All Objectionable Effects. tabs"-the New Name.

What will human ingenuity do next? Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, herseless carriages, colorless fodine, tasteless quintue,—now comes nausealess calomel The new improvement called "Calotabs" is now on sale at drugstores.

For biliousness, constitution and indigestion the new calomel tablet is a practically perfect remedy, as evidenced by the fact that the manufacturers have authorized all druggists to refund the price of the customer is not "perfectly delighted" with Calotabs One tablet at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no saits. By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite flat what you please—no danger—go about your business ren County; and Little River, in Brother W Christian County. Karnes preaches regular for the Little River, Rich Pond, and Bethel churches. Brother E. Gaston Collins is now located at Algood and preaches for the church here,-Allen Phy.

Calotabs are not sold in bulk. Get an original package, sealed. Price, thirty-five cents.—(adv.)

Texas.

Temple, July 26,—The meeting at Rio Vista resulted in two baptisms. Brother Fred Todd, of Tyler, led the song service. We begin at Baird on August 1—Cled E. Wallace.

Luling, July 23.-The meeting being conducted by Brother George W. Farmer, of Lebanon, Tenn., is progressing most satisfactorily. His sermons are logical, forceful, and full of gospel truths. Eight have confessed the Savior. Seven of the number are inmates of the Home. We rejoice over this glorious triumph of the gospel.-Jennie Clarke.

McKinney, July 23.—The meeting with the Cold Springs congregation closed on Sunday night. Six were baptized, one restored. Large crowds attended all the services. The brethren seemed well pleased with the meeting and have taken on new life. I leave to-morrow for a meeting at Fort Spunky. I have the last half of September and all of October open for meetings anywhere 1 am needed.— A. N. Kennedy.

Fort Worth, July 26.-I have just closed a year's service in Waxahachie and will labor with the North Side church, Fort Worth. There are no better brethren than those at Waxahachie. They love God, are loyal to the truth, and are peaceable, with perfect fellowship. They were ever mindful of the minister and his wife, and our needs were all supplied. God bless them and preserve them wholly for his service.—Ben West.

Trumbull, July 24.—I did the preaching in two meetings of ten days each at Sylvana and Prairie Hill churches. There were ten additions to these churches, seven the last night at Pralrie Hill. Brother McCormick, of Dallas, led the singing. He is a fine song leader and a good Christian. He is a fine worker in a meeting. I am now preaching to large audiences at Trumbull, with fine interest, day and night. This is my fourth meeting with the Trumbull church .- J. E. Dunn.

Forestburg, July 26.—The meeting held in the progressives' house at Stroud, Okla, during the first of the month was a strong the first of the month, was, we think, a grand suc-cess. Brother Virgil O. Teddlie, of Alba, Texas, was truly a good yokefellow in this meeting. He is a good man, an excellent singer, and a great help to a meeting. I am now at Forestburg, battling against odds, but we are having large crowds. I go to Dye Mound next, and then to Guymon, Okla., for a month.—T. H. Matheson.

Paris, July 27 .- Our meeting at the Georgia Schoolhouse, in Lamar County, began on Friday night before the second Sunday in July and closed on the fourth Sunday. Rain, sickness, and other things hindered, but we had large crowds all the time. A congregation was set in order with twenty members and much good done otherwise. They will have preaching once

"Diamond Dyes" Don't Spot, Run

Don't Risk Material in Poor Dyes that Fade or Streak

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any womtains directions so simple that any wom-an can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

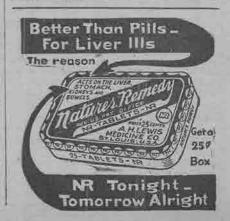

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind— then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist, line color card has color card.

Stop Itching

Skins with Tetterine

60c. at your druggist's or from NIMUPTHSE CO., Savannah, Ga.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is abso-An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debility and weak heart. Relieves headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains and reduces fever. No depressing effects, Made by a formula which is in general use by leading physicians. 35c per package at your druggists or by mall from the manufacturers, Paidmont Laboratories. In Clinia S. C. Piedmont Laboratories. Inc., Clinton, S. C.

DIPPEACHES

Impurities from your body as you would dirt from your home.

Constipation is the cause of much disease.

Keep your system clean by using

Safe-Mild-Sura

Highly recommended for Torpid Liver, Biliousness, Constipation and Indiges-

SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

I go next Friday to each month. Clarksville, Route 5, for fifteen days. I can hold one more meeting in Texas. Address me at Clarksville, Texas.-G. B. Lambright.

Denton, July 22.—The meeting at Lewisville closed last night after continuing eleven days. It was my third meeting with the church, and In many ways a very good meeting indeed. Many people who were not in the habit of hearing us attended quite a good deal, and we believe much good was accomplished. Two young ladies were baptized. The church was especially nice to the preacher, as usual. A splendid home was provided, with all comforts and conveniences. Whoever goes to Lewisville will be treated well and will want to go again .- R. D. Smith.

Riverside, July 26.—The meeting in Van Zandt Addition, Fort Worth. closed with four baptisms and a deep interest. I began a meeting in Riverside last Monday night, and there have been about a dozen additions from all sources. The meeting still continues, but will close this week. I have baptized one Lutheran, two Methodists, two Baptists, and some others who had never belonged to anything. We will establish a new congregation in Riverside, and the brethren will begin soon to prepare a home for themselves. After the close of this meeting I will preach a few nights for the Highland Park congregation, in Fort This is a new congregation started by Brother Busby. The work with the Southside-Central Church is fine and getting better each week. The sisters meet each Tuesday to sew and make garments for the poor and the destitute; they also have a Bible class in the afternoon.-Tice Elkins.

Our Work in Cuba.

BY J. D. TANT.

It has been some ten years since I wrote anything for the Gospel Advocate or read much of what its editors had to say; but during those years I have remained on the firing line continually, preaching the gospel as in days of yore. I hope the Advocate has continued in the war as it did in the long ago, having neither time nor inclination to turn aside after the many human devices and speculative theories that many have embraced in these latter times.

During August I am to hold two meetings in West Tennessee-al Friendship and Clover Port. I hope to meet many I knew in the long ago.

I beg to state that my work this year has called me twice to the island of Cuba, and now I am under agreement to colonize two hundred American families there this fall. Knowing the restless disposition of humanity. the desire to sell out and move, and many times thinking more of worldly gain than of religious environment. I am anxious to get fifteen or twenty Christian families to join our colony to help build up Bible Christianity in that neighboring country. I learned while preaching there that the Baptists and Methodists had about five thousand members each, and not a Christian could I hear of on the island. Cuba has recently come out from under the bondage of Catholicism and the people are now ready to hear the truth, and a few Christian families in each colony who will work for the Lord can do much good there. The island is somewhat larger than the State of Tennessee, and offers the most wonderful opportunities and inducements for American farmers I ever saw. Any man can go there with twenty-five hundred dollars and work and in five years be out of debt and worth at least ten thousand dollars. I can show you satisfied Americans who have cleared five thousand dollars a year for the past five years on forty acres of land in Cuba. The climate is healthful and delightful. No winter snow nor cold rains. Any one desiring to go there and get a cheap home and help us in the fight for Bible churches, is requested to write me, at Rogers, Ark., and I will send literature about that wonderful country.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILI TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHILI TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. the favorite tonic in thousands or nomes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a bedy-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle. 60c per bottle.

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's in longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freekles, as Othine—double strength-is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ourse of Othine—double strength-from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worse freekles have begun to disappear, while the lighter uses have vanished entirely it is seldon that more has fine vanished entirely it is seldon that more hand gain as beautiful clear completion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine ar this is said under guarantee of money back if it falls to remove freekles.

DO ALL MY HOUSEWORK

Before I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I could hardly stand, says Mrs. Kwarcinski.

Chicago, Ill .- "I suffered with displacement and irregularities and I did not know what to do.
My mother advised

My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vege-table Compound and use the Sanative Wash so I took her advice and used these remedies and a dvice and used these remedies and cured myself. I feel fine and do all my housework which I could not do before, as I could hardly dren. You can use this letter if you wish, for your remedy is certainly wonderful for sick, run down women."—

Mrs. A. Kwarcinski, 3627 W. Oakdaka Ave., Chicago, Ill.

For forty years Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has been making women strong and well, relieving backache, nervousness, ulceration, and inflammation, weakness, displacements, irregularities and periodic pains. It has also proved invaluable in preparing for childbirth and the Change of Life.

Women who suffer are invited to write for free and helpful advice to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. It is free and always helpful.

TETTERINE for the COMPLEXION

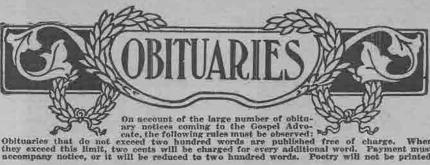

60c at your druggist's or from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try hl Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whiteaer, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few Massage this sweetly fragrant cents. lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freekles, sanburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

of charge. When ord. Payment must will not be printed.

Pomerov.

Mrs. Dovie Pomeroy, wife of Sam Pomeroy, passed from this life to the immortal life on June 27, 1920, aged thirty-nine years. She was a blessing to all that came in contact with her while she lived. Sister Pomeroy was born on February 6, 1881, and was married at the age of seventeen. She is survived by her husband and seven children. She obeyed her Master and was baptized into Christ by Brother G. L. Cullum. The day before she died she said that she was ready to go, but that she regretted to leave her Testament by her side all the time. May her husband and children and friends follow in the way she has led -the paths of righteousness; and may we all meet in the beautiful home "over there," where we can dwell in peace forever. Thomas T. Pack. peace forever.

Yates,

On July 8, 1920, I was called to Jumpertown, Miss., to conduct the funeral of Sister Callie Yates, wife of Jim Yates. She leaves a husband and five children. Her death is a great loss to the family. Sister Yates obeyed the gospel when quite a young girl. At the time of her death she was thirty-two years, two months, and ten days of age. She had many good traits of character. She was the daughter of Brother Ses Eaton, who lived at Morton's Chapel. He died last March. Her mother, two sisters, and four brothers survive her. We have reason to believe that Sister Yates' spirit has winged its flight to the Elysian fields of the paradise of God, there to await the great resurrection morning, when all who are in the graves shall hear his voice and come P. G. WRIGHT.

Siseo.

J. A. Sisco was born on April 21, 1881, near Farmer's Valley, in Perry County, Tenn., and died on May 13, 1920. He was a son of John T. Sisco, who, with two brothers, W. A. and Henry, survives him. He also leaves a wife, a son, and a little daughter to mourn his loss. He obeyed the gospel onder the preaching of his brother, W. A. Sisco, Wie was a gosposystical W. A. Sisco. His was a conservative, reserved, rather a retiring nature. His soul was no harbor of evil. He was a clean, honest, uncomplaining, upright man-the greatest of God's creation. No man ever came in touch with him without being made a better man and a truer friend. Personally, I owe much of the joys of life to him. He taught me to see many things in life I had overlooked. A more Christlike man, a more devoted Christian, a better friend, and a more noble son it has never been my pleasure to meet. To those who were dear to his heart I want to say? Prepare yourselves for heaven, and I know, as fully as is possible for human to know, he will be there to welcome you home.

D. M. DELK.

Lyle.

Brother James Oliver Lyle, son of Brother and Sister Lyle, of Lyle, Tenn., died on May 10, 1920. He had lived in this world since March 5, 1893. He was in the United States camps twenty-one months during the late war, and came home in very feeble health. Brother Lyle was baptized about six years ago by Brother Charles Tidwell. He was a member of Rocky Point congregation, of Hickman County. The large assembly at the funeral services and the mingling of tears told how he was esteemed in the minds and hearts of his people. He was a good man, or his neighbors and friends were wonderfully mistaken. He enjoyed the services of the church, and after he became too weak to go to the meetinghouse he often asked the brethren to meet with him at home on Lord's day and take the Lord's Supper. He was one of twelve children-five boys and seven girls. He was married on October 17, 1919, to Sister Eliza J. Clark. To his wife, left without his companionship and help, and to his father and mother, brothers and sisters, I would say, "Weep not, as others who have no hope," but let us all try to meet him in "the better land."

W. DERRYBERRY.

Nix.

Mrs. Mary E. Nix, wife of R. N. Nix, of Cornersville, Tenn., was born on June 25, 1838, and died on June 27, 1920. She was a daughter of Green Davis. She was married to R. N. Nix on January 7, 1864. Brother Nix died on December 25, 1919. She united with the church of Christ soon after her marriage to Brother Nix, coming from the Baptists. Brother and Sister Nix were blessed with five children— John, Dora, David, Andrew, and James. Andrew died when a boy, and David died the same day as his father -December 25, 1919. The others are living near Cornersville, with families of their own. No greater friends did I ever have than Brother and Sister Nix. Their children are all Christians and strong in "in the faith," It was my privilege, in conjunction with Brother W. B. London, to conduct the funeral services, in the church at Cornersville, a large audience of sympathizing friends being present. Brother London is an elder in the Cornersville church, and was very attentive to Brother and Sister Nix during their feebleness. May the dear Lord help us all to be faithful and to emulate the good deeds of this dear old sister in J. R. BRADLEY.

Fugua.

After an extended period of ill health, Brother E. N. Fuqua, of Lebanon, Tenn., passed quietly and se-renely to rest from his labors, entering into a complete fruition of that "peace that passeth all understanding." Brother Fuqua was near forty-eight years of age and had been a member of the church twenty-one years. He had been manager for the telephone company twenty-three years, and the eulogies from his employees testify to the fact that he was held in highest esteem by them. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." In his home life is where he shed the light of his true and noble manhood and proved to the fullest extent his Christian virtues. He was a husband and father in every sense of the word. "By their fruits ye shall know them." The fruits of love and kindness borne by him were characteristic of his kind and gentle nature. He is survived by his loving and devoted wife, three boys, two stepchildren, and one sister. May God help and comfort his loved ones, and may they ever strive to meet him in the heavenly home. A FRIEND.

Riley.

Brother John Riley was born on March 1. 1874, and departed this life on January 20, 1920. In 1900 he married Athley Coleman. At an early age he accepted the doctrine of the Baptist Church. In 1902 he heard the gespel preached by Brother Joe Ratcliffe, and since has been worshiping with the church of Christ at Bathana with the church of Christ at Bethany, Henry County, Tenn. He was kind and gentle toward all. He was indus-trious and contributed freely to the cause of Christ. He is missed at the Lord's-day service, as well as at home Lord seday service, as well as at home and among his friends. A loss to the church, his home, and his community is sustained in his death. His wife and three shildren, Gay, Clovis, and Mary Ruth, survive him; but they sorrow not as those who have no hope, but rather are comforted by the Mas-ter's words: "Blessed are they that wash their robes, that they may have the right to come to the tree of life, and may enter in by the gates into the city." Words of comfort were spoken by W. E. Morgan. The re-mains were interred at the Bethany Cemetery. We sympathize with the bereaved in their loss, which we believe to be his gain. W. B. NORMAN.

The year's at the spring, And day's at the morn; Morning's at seven; The hillside's dew-pearled; The lark's on the wing; The snail's on the thorn; God's in his heaven-All's right with the world. -Browning.

Tortured and Pain Racked for Fifteen Years with Rheumatism

We can hardly imagine the feeling of joy and thankfulness which would possess one who, after suf-fering fifteen years the excruciations of rheumatism.

finally gains relief.

This was the experience of Mr. W. H. Edgars, of 49 Cooper Street, Atlanta, Ga., who tells of his recov-

49 Cooper Street, Atlanta, Ga., who tells of his recovery as follows:

"I suffered fifteen years with rheumatism.
PE-RU-NA cured me and I think it is the best all around medicine ever made. I hope you publish my letter for the benefit of others."

Simple words, but they tell a big story in a honest way.

W. H. Edgars

straightforward, honest way.

Rheumatism is only one of the many troubles due to catarrh. Coughs, colds, indigestion, constipation, sour stomach, belching, bloating, pains in the back, side and loins, are a few of them that may be traced to a catarrhal condition. In the prevention of grip and Spanish Flu, which are of a catarrhal nature, and to hasten recovery after an attack, the value of PE-RU-NA is undisputed. The safe way is to keep PE-RU-NA in the house all the time for emergencies.

You can buy PE-RU-NA anywhere in either tablet or liquid form.

TIME WILL TELL

Regardless of circumstances no statements concerning the merits of an article can be so adequately proren as by time itself. An article without merit will die. An article with merit will be crefustingly on demand. Just so with the crefusting of the state of the merit will be to refuse the state of the merit as today; that it is healing and antiseptic, the very best and in cases of boils, burns, scalds, bruises, cuts and sorce of all kinds. Nintey-nine years have proved its merits. If your druggist hasn't it write w. F. GRAY & CO., 818 Gray Bidg., Nashville, Tenn., for a free sample.

SOLD FOR 50 YEARS.

FOR MALARIA, CHILLS and FEVER ALSO A FINE GENERAL STRENGTHEN-

Did You Ever

It used to be an awful task to make ice cream. Did you ever try it?

Now you will find it easy enough if you use

Jell-0 Ice Cream Powder

Stir one package into a quart of milk and freeze it—there is absolutely nothing else to do -and you have two quarts of delicious ice cream at a cost of about two cents a dish.

Five kinds:
Vanilla,
Strawberry
Lemon,
Chocolate, Unflavored

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY
Le Roy, N. Y.

= ELDERS =

Here Is Something New For You

One Hundred Communion Talks and Prayers by 100 of our most prominent Preachers.

This neat little silk-bound book of over 200 pages fits the hand, the pocket, and the heart.

Price, $1 50

Yours for Service

Public Speakers' Supply (Or Box 124) RIDGWAY, PA.

MENTALINI

Makes low necks and short sleeves possible. It clears the skin

10c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

FROM THE FIELD

Tennessee.

Decherd, July 30 .- I have just closed a ten-days' meeting at Prairie Plains, in Coffee County. Ten were baptized and three confessed their wrongs. The house was packed at every night service, and the attendance was good at the day services. We succeeded in breaking down much prejudice at this place, and the people came throughout the meeting regardless of their religious faith. Among those baptized were three Baptists. Brother Sam Henly led the song service. I am to begin a meeting at Bean's Creek on the first Lord's day in September. The first day of the meeting there will be a reunion of the friends and associates of the old Bean's Creek neighborhood, regardless of their religious faith. There will be two services during the day, with dinner on the ground. One service will probably be conducted by the Separate Bap-tist preacher. The object of this meeting is to revive this old congregation and build it up again and save souls. Brother Sam Henly will lead the singing.—R. E. L. Taylor.

Texas.

Denison, July 28.-Sometimes 1 think some of us preachers try to excuse ourselves from going to small places or mission points because we fear we cannot have big resultsafraid of the pay, maybe. Well, sometimes it may be so, but not always. I have just closed one of the best little meetings of my life at Portland, with just a few really good Christian workers. Nine were baptized and five were reclaimed. The meeting was held under a Methodist shed. Fine crowds and pay. I will go back next year, if I do as they desire. I shall begin at Wagoner on Friday.—Thomas E. Milhelland.

Dallas, July 29 .- I closed a meeting at Lott last Sunday night, with six baptisms and one restored. We had great interest during the meeting, with an overflow crowd the last night Brother J. W. Acuff led the songs. We are to begin at Bartlett to-morrow night. I am to begin at Danville, Ark., on August 10. Last night, at the prayer-meeting service, I had the pleasure of baptizing my son, Lloyd, Both of my children are now in Christ. for which I am so thankful. My meeting at Denison in June resulted in about fifteen baptisms and seven from the Christian Church, among the number the pastor of the Southside Christian Church. The meeting was concluded by Brother Thomas E. Mil-holland, and several of the number came when he preached, J. B. Nelson

The Hot Weather Test makes people better acquainted with their resources of strength and endurance. Many find they used Hood's Sarsaparilla, which invigorates the blood, promotes refreshing sleep, and overcomes that three feeling.

The goal of human history is the redemption of the world.

SOUTH IS TURNING AGAINST CALOMEL

Mr. Dodson, the "Liver Tone" Man, Responsible for Change for the Better.

Every druggist in town has noticed a great falling off in the sale of calomel. They all give the same reason. Dodson's Liver Tone is taking its place.

"Calomel is dangerous and people know it." Dodson's Liver Tone is personally guaranteed by every druggist who sells it. A large bottle doesn't cost very much but if it fails to give easy relief in every ease of liver sluggishness and constinabut if it fails to give easy relief in every ease of liver sluggishness and constipation, just ask for your money back.

Dodson's Liver Tone is a pleasant-tasting, purely vegetable remedy, harmless to both children and adults. Take a spoonful at night and wake up feeling fine; no biliousness, sick hesdache, acid stomach or constipated bowels. It doesn't gripe or cause inconvenience all the next day like violent calomal. Take a does of calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak, sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day. Don't lose a day.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make moneyatilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeone are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right. Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Figoons No. 6." Carolina Pigeon Plans, Clinton, S. C.

Cuticura Soap ithout Cutieura Soap is the favorite foreafety ranor share

FREE Booklet explaining cause of this disease and how it can be treated successfully at home. Sent in plain, sealed envelope. Write for yours today. Dept. F-29. Dr. W. J. McCrary, toc., Carbon Hill, Aia.

Short Sermons.

Sin puts disorder in the universe.

Numbers weighed nothing with Christ. His concern was for the individual

There is nothing like telling good news for imparting a pleasant tone to

The task of Paul and the others was rethinking everything in terms of the resurrection.

Volume LXII. No. 33.

NASHVILLE, TENN., AUGUST 12, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Edifying as the Need May Be	777
Our Contributors	778
	783
At Home and Abroad	784
Editorial	786
Current Thought	790
	791
	792
Western Department	792
	794
The "Two Evils"	795
Need of the Gospel in South Carolina	798
East Tennessee Notes	798
Missionary Report
	800

Edifying as the Need May Be

Sir Oliver Lodge and Spiritualism.

At the present time the most interesting development along scientific lines is that which is popularly called "spiritualism." There is nothing new, of course, about occult teaching and practices, but we are witnessing a revival of an old belief under the more dignified nomenclature of "science,"

The lectures of Sir Oliver Lodge in several cities of the United States have turned the attention of many people anew to the question of existence after death. Doubtless the war and loss of loved ones has had something to do with the large audiences which have filled the most prominent auditoriums, with admission at the highest prices. Sir Oliver's reputation as one of the greatest scientific men of England has secured attention when speaking on this subject that could not have been gained by another. He has, indeed, a double reputation-as a recognized master of advanced science, with a wonderfully clear manner of stating and popularizing scientific facts and theories, and also as one who for many years has been attempting to study certain obscure phenomena connected with the claims of spiritism. And there is no doubt that he, with his associates, has brought to this study the scientific spirit and trained habits of observation.

The Society for Psychological Research, with which Sir Oliver works, is not to be confused with the spiritism of fifty years ago or with the many fakes of the present. Its work has been, partly, the exposure of fakes. It has run down hundreds of impostors by scientific methods. Probably its experts would take stories of spirit manifestations which puzzle us and tear them to pieces in a few moments. The experts of this society know all that is to be known about the mechanical tricks of exhibitors and the abnormal mental condition of both honest and dishonest mediums. But with all their exposures, they claim that there are cases which cannot be explained by natural or known methods. The late Dr. Funk, of the Funk & Wagnalls Publishing Company, devoted some years to such investigations, and believed that he talked with departed spirits which identified themselves to him. Investigators have taken seemingly honest mediums into their offices and worked with them for years, excluding opportunities for fraud if it had been attempted. Some members of this society claim that they have demonstrated the fact of the existence of the soul after death. Of this number is Sir Oliver Lodge.

If it could be proved beyond doubt that men talk with people long since dead, not once but many times, and with many different persons, it would be a proof of the possibility of future existence. But even if no explanation of the phenomena can be offered, the fact that the alleged communications really come from the dead seems impossible to prove. Sir Oliver himself says that it took him twenty years to satisfy himself that the communications were from departed spirits, and not due to telepathy, in which he also believes.

0 0 0

When Science Becomes an Abomination.

Spiritualism, as treated in the Bible, comes under two heads. It is used in a good sense (from the Christian view) to mean that which is opposed to materialism. On the other hand, it is used in a bad sense to denote telepathy in a highly developed form. The practice of the occult can be traced to the most ancient period. Therefore we find that nearly every passage in the Old Testament bearing upon such practices is either a warning or a rebuke. They all lead to one and the same conclusion—that spiritualism in the bad sense, whether work of a magician, wizard, witch, necromancer, or medium, is an abomination unto Jehovah. For illustration, see such passages as Ex. 22: 18: Lev. 19: 31; 20: 6, 27; Deut. 18: 10-12; 2 Chron. 33: 6; Isa. 8: 19, 20.

Should Sir Oliver Lodge and his associates be disposed, they might easily find in the Bible corroboration of their theory that it is entirely possible to communicate with the spirits of the dead. Clean, clear-cut examples might be cited. But they would also be struck with the fact that such efforts are positively forbidden.

We may seriously inquire if the deterrent influence of the Bible along this line of scientific investigation is not in accord with that great regulator of human thought and conduct that we call "common sense." It may be contended that the present agitation is profitable in that we may expect the commencement of a new revelation. This amounts to nothing from the Christian viewpoint, since the believer finds that the doctrine of a future life is very clearly taught in the New Testament. His faith rests upon the firm foundation of the word of God.

No Communication Desired.

But outside of the religious realm, it may be safely asserted that communication with the spirits of the dead is not desired. While such a pastime might enthuse the scientist or interest the curious or console the sorrowing, It would not appeal to the masses of the people. Public sentiment in regard to this possibly is aptly portrayed by the remark once made by an old Scotch mother. When her son, who was thought to be dying, said he would come back after death to visit her, the old lady exclaimed: "Na, na, my lad; keep to your own side." Anent Sir Oliver's contention that we may talk with our dead, the most of us would be perplexed by the question which Samuel Minturn Peck proposes: "What are we going to say?

There is a psychological objection that cannot be ignored. Some one has said that more people are seeing "spooks" than ever before. Spiritualism, we observe, is vitally connected with nervous disorders. We are told that one hundred and fifty thousand persons in England have become insane in their anxiety over spirits. William J. Hickson, psychopathic expert for the city of Chicago, is authority for the statement that hundreds are losing their rationality because of the ouija board and the "spook" craze. Even though there were no Bible teaching against it, such startling facts as these should convince the world that, whatever science may claim, this kind of investigation is not only profitless, but harmful and deserving of restrictive measures.

It is frequently remarked that modern science is "polsoning the minds of the people." But the main purpose of these articles has been to demonstrate that there is a science without the poison, and with it the Bible is in hearty and happy accord.

* * *

Dr. Baker's Observations.

It gives me great pleasure to present to our readers a letter from Dr. R. H. Baker, of Watertown, Tenn., bearing upon science in its relation to the Bible. The wholesome teaching contained in this letter is much needed.

Watertown, Tenn., August 4, 1920.—A. B. Lipscomb.— My Dear Friend and Brother: Your article on the first page of the Gospei Advocate of July 29, under the heading, "The Suggestive Value of the Bible," suggests to me a few scientific principles, which I wish to submit to you for your ion. The point I wish to make is in relation to This term embraces more than the physical consideration. man. Civilized peoples in all progressive countries make application of this principle in all domestic and commercial animals and the vegetable kingdom with marked success. Man, being the capsheaf of the animal kingdom, has been neglected in this particular. Were this scientific principle put into operation in the human subject, the re-Were this scientific sults would be more astonishing than that which characterizes other organic beings. Man would respond as readily as the principle has in the field where it has been tried with amazing results. Applied science has fully demonstrated the truth and sure results of this fact thousands of times with unerring benefits. By selecting the best and inbreeding the same, the highest type has been attained. No truth has ever been more certainly proved. Were the same principles put into operation in man, the same results would follow. He would thus develop into a stronger man physically, mentally, and morally.

In the study and practice of the principles enunciated, the fact must be understood and kept in mind that heredas a result of the loose and unscientific custom of selection and marriage, is impairing the human race men-tally, morally, and physically. The stigmata of inherited tally, morally, and physically. The stigmata of inherited physical, moral, and mental diseases, which are capable of being transmitted to the third and occasionally to the fourth generation, can be eliminated by the same care and practice which obtains in the animal and vegetable kingdom. Abnormalities are innerited from historical tors. They were inbred and can be outbred. The same law tors. They were inbred and can be outbred. The same law tors. that operates in the two kingdoms brings good or harm according to the way it is used. If all peoples at all times had lived in strict harmony with the teachings of the Book of God, all mankind would be happy, healthy, and prosper-ous. Had these conditions always prevailed, there would have been no need of passes, and erring as we have them to-day.

ROBERT H. BAKER, SR. have been no need of public institutions for the diseased

Spiritualism.

BY GEORGE A. KLINGMAN.

On account of a recent widespread interest in "spirit manifestations," it may be well to consider what the Bible teaches on this subject.

The word "spiritualism" is used in at least two senses -(1) in a good sense, as opposed to the doctrine or philosophy of "materialism," and (2) in a bad sense, as denoting communion with the dead through mediums or socalled "telepathy" in a highly developed form. With the multitude of passages in the Scriptures where the word is used in the former sense, we shall not deal in this article; we shall confine our discussion to the present popular use of the term, Immanuel Swedenborg (1688-1772) was possibly the first to give the idea of "spirit communication" to this word, although we should not accuse him of justifying many of the later developments connected with this doctrine. The claim that we may communicate with the spirits of the dead was popularized by the Fox sisters, Margaret and Katherine (1836-1893). They were born in Canada, but moved to Rochester, N. Y., and created quite an excitement, not only in this country, but in England. Margaret was induced by Doctor Kane to abandon the practice of medium and to confess that the table rappings were caused by physical conditions. Mr. Hagaman, whom I have met personally and who for twenty-five years traveled all over the world in the interests of spiritualism, not only confesses that it is a "farce," but challenges any witch, wizard, magician, necromancer, or medium, to give a performance that he cannot duplicate and explain in the light of natural means and causes. In the auditorium of the old Bowles Building, in Detroit, Mich., Mr. Hagaman asked all who believed Jesus to be the Christ, the Son of God, to stand up. I was the only one on my side of the house that stood up; the spiritualists and spirit mediums all around me scoffed and sneered. Dr. T. L. Nichols, in his Monthly Magazine of Social Science and Progressive Literature (November, 1854, page 66), says: "Spiritualism meets, neutralizes, and destroys Christianity. A spiritualist is no longer a Christian in any popular sense of the term. Advanced spirits do not teach . . . the atonement of Christ; nothing of the kind." They teach that "God is man;" that marriage is not necessary. A popular woman medium said that all men are her husbands and that she felt free to choose any man to become the father of her child, and to have a different father for each child, if she wished. This statement was made at a convention in the presence of a large audience.

But let us turn to the Scriptures. "To the law and to the testimony." Ex. 22: 18: "Thou shalt not suffer a sorceress [witch] to live." Deut. 18: 10-12: "There shall not be found with thee any one that maketh his son or his daughter to pass through the fire, one that useth divination, one that practiceth augury, or an enchanter, or a sorcerer [witch], or a charmer, or a consulter with a familiar spirit, or a wizard, or a necromancer. For whosoever doeth these things is an abomination unto Jehovah." 2 Chron, 33: 6: "And he [Manasseh] practiced augury, and used enchantments, and practiced sorcery, and dealt with them that had familiar spirits, and with wizards; he wrought much evil in the sight of Jehovah, to provoke him to anger." Lev. 19: 31: "Turn ye not unto them that have familiar spirits, nor unto the wizards; seek them not out, to be defiled by them: I am Jehovah your God." Lev. 20:

6: "And the soul that turneth unto them that have familiar spirits, and unto the wizards, to play the harlot after them, I will even set my face against that soul, and will cut him off from among his people." Lev. 20: 27: "A man also or a woman that hath a familiar spirit, or that is a wizard, shall surely be put to death: they shall stone him with stones; their blood shall be upon them." Isa. 8: 19: "And when they shall say unto you, Seek unto them that have familiar spirits and unto the wizards, that chirp and that mutter: should not a people seek unto their God? on behalf of the living should they seek unto the dead? To the law and to the testimony!" 1 Sam, 28: 7-14: "Then said Saul unto his servants, Seek me a woman that hath a familiar spirit, that I may go to her, and inquire of her. And his servants said to him, Behold, there is a woman that hath a familiar spirit at En-dor. And Saul disguised himself, and put on other raiment, and went, he and two men with him, and they came to the woman by night: and he said, Divine unto me, I pray thee, by the familiar spirit, and bring me up whomsoever I shall name unto thee. And the woman said unto him, Behold, thou knowest what Saul hath done, how he hath cut off those that have familiar spirits, and the wizards, out of the land: wherefore then layest thou a snare for my life, to cause me to die? And Saul sware to her by Jehovah, saying, As Jehovah liveth, there shall no punishment happen to thee for this thing. Then said the woman, Whom shall I bring up unto thee? And he said, Bring me up Samuel. And when the woman saw Samuel, she cried with a loud voice; and the woman spake to Saul, saying, Why hast thou deceived me? for thou art Saul. And the king said unto her, Be not afraid: for what seest thou? And the woman said unto Saul, I see a god coming up out of the earth. And he said unto her, What form is he of? And she said, An old man cometh up; and he is covered with a robe. And Saul perceived that it was Samuel, and he bowed with his face to the ground, and did obeisance."

From these scriptures we learn definitely that spirit mediums are an abomination unto Jehovah. Those who justify calling up the spirits of the dead must deny the Scriptures; and that is exactly what spiritualists do. They have no use for the Bible as the word of God; they do not regard it as an inspired record. One of their number told me that he could "write a better book than the Bible" himself. "But," says one, "the witch of En-dor called up Samuel." Yes, Samuel came up and frightened that witch so that she screamed. That was a case where the Lord permitted Samuel to appear, not only to frighten the witch, but to deliver a message to Saul.

When Moses and Aaron appeared before Pharaoh, and Aaron cast down his rod and it became a serpent, "the magicians of Egypt did in like manner with their enchantments," "but Aaron's rod swallowed up their rods;" they also turned water into blood "with their enchantments," and also caused frogs to come up, but they could go no further. They themselves confessed, saying: "This is the finger of God." (See Ex. 7: 10-12, 22; 8: 7, 19.) Let us also recall the fact just here that the magicians could not interpret Pharaoh's dreams which were interpreted by Joseph (Gen. 41: 8, 24); that Daniel and his three companions were "ten times better than all the magicians and enchanters that were in his realm" (Dan. 1: 20); the magicians failed to interpret the king's dreams (Dan. 2: 2, 10, 27), but Daniel made known the dream and its interpretation (verse 28).

Let us now turn to Deut, 18: 20-22 and read: "But the prophet, that shall speak a word presumptuously in my name, which I have not commanded him to speak, or that shall speak in the name of other gods, that same prophet shall die. And if thou say in thy heart, How shall we know the word which Jehovah hath not spoken? when a prophet speaketh in the name of Jehovah, if the thing follow not, nor come to pass, that is the thing which Jehovah hath not spoken: the prophet hath spoken it presumptuously, thou shalt not be afraid of him." I was told by one who professed to have a message from Jehovah that three cities would be destroyed within forty days, and I was selected to give them three days' warning as Jonah gave the Ninevites. That was about twenty-four years ago, and the cities are still standing. I did not give the warning, paid no attention to the message: the "sign" did not come to pass, and I knew it was not of Jehovah. But turn now to Deut. 13: 1-5 and read: "If there arise in the midst of thee a prophet, or a dreamer of dreams, and he give thee a sign or a wonder, and the sign or the wonder come to pass, whereof he spake unto thee, saying, Let us go after other gods, which thou hast not known, and let us serve them; thou shalt not hearken unto the words of that prophet, or unto that dreamer of dreams: for Jehovah your God proveth you, to know whether ye love Jehovah your God with all your heart and with all your soul. Ye shall walk after Jehovah your God, and fear him, and keep his commandments, and obey his voice, and ye shall serve him, and cleave unto him. And that prophet, or that dreamer of dreams, shall be put to death, because he hath spoken rebellion against Jehovah your God, who brought you out of the land of Egypt, and redeemed thee out of the house of bondage, to draw thee aside out of the way which Jehovah thy God commanded thee to walk in. So shalt thou put away the evil from the midst of thee." Here we have the case of a false prophet working a wonder "that comes to pass," but he asks the people to do something which was not commanded of Jehovah. God permits such things to happen to prove our love for him. We have testimony to the same effect in the New Testament. In Matt. 24: 24 and Mark 13: 22 we learn that "there shall arise false Christs, and false prophets, and shall show great signs and wonders: so as to lead astray, if possible, even the elect." In the days of the Savior there seems to have been a special manifestation of demon possession; but they were afraid of him; they confessed him to be the Son of the Most High and acknowledged that there would come a time when they would be tormented. (See Matt. 8: 29 and other passages.) In Acts 16: 16 we read of a maid who had a spirit of divination; in verses 17, 18 we read that she "cried out, saying. These men are servants of the Most High God, who proclaim unto you the way of salvation;" and we read that after many days Paul cast the spirit out of her in the name of Jesus Christ. In Eph. 6: 10-20 we are told to "put on the whole armor of God," that we "may be able to stand" in the evil day "against the wiles of the devil. For our wrestling is not against flesh and blood, but against the principalities, against the powers, against the world rulers of this darkness, against the spiritual hosts of wickedness in the heavenly places." Think of it! Hosts of wicked spirits in the airy places! Just here let us read 2 Thess. 2: 8-12: "And then shall be revealed the lawless one, whom the Lord Jesus shall slay with the breath of his mouth, and bring to naught by the manifestation of his coming; even he, whose coming is according to the working of Satan with all power and signs and lying wonders, and with all deceit of unrighteousness for them that perish; because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved. And for this cause God sendeth them a working of error, that they should believe a lie: that they all might be judged who believed not the truth, but had pleasure in unrighteousness." And in Rev. 12: 9-12 we read: "And the great dragon was cast down, the old serpent, he that is called the Devil and Satan, the deceiver of the whole world; he was cast down to the earth, and his angels were cast down with him. . . . Therefore rejoice, O heavens, and ye that dwell in them. Woe for the earth and for the sea: because the devil is gone down unto you, having great wrath, knowing that he hath but a short time."

In the light of all this teaching, we appreciate the exhortation in 1 John 4: 1-3: "Beloved, believe not every spirit, but prove the spirits, whether they are of God; because many false prophets are gone out into the world. Hereby know ye the Spirit of God: every spirit that confesseth that Jesus Christ is come in the flesh is of God: and every spirit that confesseth not Jesus is not of God: and this is the spirit of the antichrist, whereof ye have heard that it cometh; and now it is in the world already."

Brethren, it is our great and glorious privilege to have the same gospel to-day that was preached by Paul in Ephesus, when "not a few of them that practiced magical arts brought their books together and burned them in the sight of all; and they counted the price of them, and found it fifty thousand pieces of silver. So mightily grew the word of the Lord and prevailed."

"How firm a foundation, ye saints of the Lord, Is laid for your faith in his excellent word!"

Nebuchadnezzar's Dream. (Dan. 2: 36-47.)

BY LEE JACKSON.

Nebuchadnezzar's dream, as interpreted by Daniel, has been a stumblingblock in the way of many persons who have sought to understand the New Testament teaching relative to Messiah's kingdom.

Before giving attention to the thoughts that I am going to present in this article regarding Nebuchadnezzar's dream and Daniel's interpretation of it, I want to enter a caution against using any accepted interpretation of any prophecy as a premise for reasoning to a conclusion as to the meaning of New Testament teaching. The things of the gospel that are essential to man's salvation are so clearly stated that there is no reason for misunderstanding, except when especial glosses are thrown around them through processes of false reasoning; and any plain teaching of the New Testament can be distorted when viewed in the false light of some misunderstood prophecy. It is claimed that prophecies can be understood in the light of their fulfillment in the recorded events of history. This might be accepted as true if all of the transpiring events of time were correctly and impartially recorded, granting as a condition that we were thoroughly acquainted with this written history and had a thorough acquaintance with the meaning of the language in which prophetic ideas are clothed. But so long as the major portion of human history remains unrecorded, and inasmuch as we are all deficient in the necessary qualifications of knowing history and understanding prophetic language, it is extremely hazardous to risk vital conclusions upon an understanding of the meaning of a prophecy in the light of its historical fulfillment. When a prophecy is definitely specific in its reference, as in the predictions concerning Israel's captivity, the downfall of Nineveh, the utter destruction of Babylon and of Jerusalem, and other similar instances, we are certain to recognize the fulfillment in the historical event in which it is accomplished, but even in these instances we cannot be certain of our footing when we attempt to trace the fulfillment of the prophecy in its minor details. And when prophecies are general in the scope of their application, grouping many events that may be seen in the prophetic vision as widely separated through successive periods of time, it is impossible to know just when and how the prophecy in its details has been, or is to be, completely fulfilled. A safe rule to follow is never to assume to understand the meaning of any difficult prophecy, and never use any doubtful prophecy as a premise upon which to base any important line of reasoning.

It has been claimed that the fourth kingdom or national power represented in Nebuchadnezzar's dream, as interpreted by Daniel, was the Roman empire of Europe, while the preceding powers represented in the vision belonged to Asia Minor. (Dan. 2: 36-47.) As represented to Nebuchadnezzar, the fourth kingdom, though having the strength of iron, was to be eventually broken, or "divided," and it is claimed that this prophecy was fulfilled in the breaking up of the Roman empire into the leading European monarchies. Under this assumption the claim has been made that the kingdom to be set up by the God of heaven could have no real existence until some time subsequent to the beginning of the kingdoms that grew out of the downfall of the empire of Rome. In this way the prophecy of Daniel is used to sustain all sorts of theories about a beginning for Messiah's kingdom future to the time when he really did begin his reign in and over the mediatorial kingdom of truth and grace. Even at this present time many theorists are quoting this prophecy of Daniel, and other prophecies similar to it, in support of a fanciful claim that Messiah's reign on earth will begin as soon as the existing European governments are overthrown. Of course there are those who give a broader scope to their application of the prophecy and include the Turkish dominions as among the great powers to be destroyed before the kingdom of heaven begins.

In seeking to understand the meaning of Nebuchadnezzar's dream, it is to be remembered that the king's vision was the form of one great image, and as standing before the king this great image was in the form of a man. Daniel told the king that the head of this image was Nebuchadnezzar, as head of the Babylonian empire. "Thou art this head of gold." This clearly fixes the application as to Babylonia being the first government in the series, with Babylon as its capital. The next in the series is represented in the body of the Image, meaning the Medo-Persian empire, which was founded upon the ruins of the empire of Babylon, B.C. 538. The founding of this Medo-Persian empire was through the conquest of Babylon by Cyrus, king of Persia. The supremacy of the Medo-Persians continued for two hundred and eight years, until Alexander of Macedon came upon the stage of action. Alexander is the only great character represented in the vision whose place of birth was in Europe, but the scene of his activities is represented as upon the territory of Nebuchadnezzar's ancient rule, which was in Asia and not in Europe. After bringing the Greek race in subjection to his own rule, Alexander invaded Asia Minor and conquered the Medo-Persians, extending his empire over the very same dominions once occupied by the empire of Babylon. This fulfilled the third scene in Nebuchadnezzar's dream. After the death of Alexander, his empire was divided among his generals. Seleucus securing the sovereignty over the Asiatic possessions, while Soter, as Ptolemy I., raised himself to the throne of Egypt, on the African side, B.C. 323. Seleucus, ascending the throne as ruler over Syria, became the founder of the dynasty of Syrian rulers known in history as the Seleucidæ. Thus, outside of Europe, and on the territory over which Nebnehadnezzar ruled supreme at the time of his famous dream, the empire of Alexander was divided; the Selencidæ of Syria held supremacy over the Asiatic division, while the Ptolemies ruled over Egypt. The wide expanse of the ancient world so long held together under the scepter of mighty rulers had become divided. In his interpretation Daniel said that this division and weakness should come. (Dan. 2: 41-43.) In this was fulfilled the fourth scenic description of the dream. It was his despotic rule over these dominions that caused Nebuchadnezzar's heart to become lifted up in pride, causing him to say: "Is not this great Babylon, that I have built for the house of the kingdom by the might of my power, and for the honor of my majesty?" At the date of Nebuchadnezzar's dream Rome was a separate European power, confined exclusively to the Italian peninsula. and, not being a part of Nebuchadnezzar's dominions, had no place in the divisions represented in the image which he saw.

The Seleucidæ continued their rule in Syria and the Ptolemies in Egypt for more than two hundred and fifty years, up to the middle of the century in which Christ was born: and even to a much later date petty rulers in the provinces of the ancient Assyrian and Babylonian empires continued to exercise an authority under an assumed title that answered to the prophetic idea of "king." While the dynasty of the Seleucidæ came to an end a few decades before the birth of the Christ, yet the political divisions of the territory over which the Seleucidæ ruled continued the same until after the close of the century in which he was born, and during that period he offered himself in death upon the cross, and his mediatorial reign began. "And in the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom, which shall never be destroyed." The fifth scene in Nebuchadnezzar's dream was the "stone cut out of the mountain without hands." At the time of his dream Nebuchadnezzar had just added the land of Judea to his great dominions. In an obscure corner of his vast empire was the little village of Bethlehem. The event that fulfilled what was foreshadowed by the "stone cut out of the mountain" was the birth of Jesus in this obscure village. For two thousand years the Semitic race had struggled as an empire builder in that famous part of the Asiatic world. Chaldea, Assyria, and Babylonia had successively risen to power and glory. Nebuchadnezzar was the greatest of all. After him came Cyrus, and he founded the Medo-Persian empire; and this became the prey of Alexander the Great, a conqueror of the Aryan race. By him the empire territory of this Semitic race stood united for the last time, At his death the division came, which meant the overthrow of its power and prestige. Like a towering mountain, a great empire had reached a zenith of power that overshadowed the Eastern world, and Nebuchadnezzar was at the head of this great power. In his vision he saw its glory depart. He saw the "stone cut out of the mountain." The greatest event in all the history of the world occurred when the Christ was born. And the kingdom which he came to establish had its beginning in the period of time when this power was passing from the Eastern to the Western world, not later, as the prophecy shows.

The Denver (Col.) All-Day Meeting. BY E. C. FUQUA.

I have just returned from Denver, where I attended a second most enjoyable meeting of brethren from almost the entire eastern portion of Colorado. The first of these meetings was called at Boulder a few weeks ago, and we mean to have other like meetings in the near future.

The purpose of these meetings is to more thoroughly teach and stir up our own "forces" along the line of missionary work in Colorado. Many of the members here are comparatively new, and need to be taught their duty along this line, and those who have been in the church for years are not any too well taught on this subject. We endeavor, in these meetings, to call together at one place practically all of the members from the various congregations for a study of this question, arranging several speeches from different brethren, and taking the entire day for our study. Some members being unable to attend any one meeting, we have arranged to have one of these meetings with each congregation, that all may hear the subject discussed.

The Denver meeting was well attended, except by the Boulder brethren. After the regular Lord's-day Bible study and several songs, the writer preached the morning discourse on the theme, "The Needs of the Colorado Mission Field." The Lord's Supper was then observed, after which we were dismissed. Planks were then neatly laid across the tops of the benches, and in a few minutes a fine dinner was tempting the appetites of all of us. There was an abundance for everybody and considerable "fragments" left over. This was the nicest arrangement for dinner in a meetinghouse that I ever saw.

An intermission of an hour for general conversation was enjoyed by all, after which we were again called together by the singing. Brother Evans, acting as chairman, called upon several brethren for speeches upon the subject, which were exceptionally well delivered and served to make excellent impressions.

The first talk was made by Brother Moore, of Fort Worth, Texas, who is attending summer school at the State Normal College at Greeley. His talk was pointed and earnest and full of inspiration to all. He was followed by Brother Shoulders, of Denver, who not only made a splendid talk, but who confessed that he was aroused to the point where he could no longer refrain from giving his entire time to mission work in Colorado. I responded to this by showing the congregation how easy they alone could provide for the support of Brother Shoulders and at the same time keep their own "living expenses" under good management. Brother Pendleton, of Loveland, added inspiration to Brother Shoulders' earnest offer to give his entire time to preaching by agreeing to support him for one month, or one-twelfth of the year. Brother Speck, of Denver, next made us a nice talk, encouraging those who were actively engaged in preaching, and intimating that he, too, felt that he should be one of them at an early day. The fact is, almost everybody wanted to preach after this meeting, so important was the work as presented by the speakers.

The final talk was made by Brother John D. Evans, of Denver, who splendidly set forth the New Testament teaching on mission work and pointedly showed how easy it would be for the entire State of Colorado to be evangelized, largely by our own "home forces," if the New Testament plan were put into practice at once.

It was regretted that our time would not allow of more speeches; but a number of brethren had driven seventy-five miles to attend, and had to return that evening. Denver is halfway between Fort Collins and Colorado Springs, being seventy-five miles from each place; and a number from Colorado Springs were present, and about fifteen from Fort Collins, and these were anxious to return home. We, therefore, dismissed at four o'clock, hoping to have another meeting of like significance at Fort Collins in the near future.

These meetings are purely educational along the line of New Testament missionary work. Nothing of an "ecclestastical" nature will be tolerated, nor will there be any form of authoritative appointment or commissioning of "committees" or "boards" or any such. We meet merely as brethren interested in one cause, to talk over what our Guide demands of us as the servants of Christ, and to encourage one another to zealously meet those demands. As to law, we have all we need; and as to organization for this work, we have all God wants us to have—the local congregations under the divinely created boards of elders. But to train all our forces in this our common work so as to fully meet the demands of our Master to "preach the gospel to the whole creation," we need closer cooperation and a more systematic study of this one phase of our work, that each congregation, under its own board of scriptural elders. may better seatter the "seed" in its own territory, and may to better advantage join in with other congregations in doing the same work in a community or communities where there are no congregations. We mean to educate and employ our own forces in Colorado. We have several young men who promise to make fine workers in the "vineyard," and these we seek to train and encourage for this work, the while we encourage the congregations to feel the responsibility of supporting these forces, since "God has ordained that they who preach the gospel should live of the gospel." We are highly encouraged over the prospects already developed and mean to "keep on keeping on" until we have a lively missionary work in full blast in Colorado.

Why Not a Library in Every Church House? BY H. LEO BOLES.

God has ordained that Christian parents "train up a child in the way he should go" (Prov. 22: 6) and that the children be nurtured "in the chastening and admonition of the Lord." One of the greatest responsibilities of life upon parents is the proper education of their children, and they need all the help and encouragement that can be given to meet this great task and discharge faithfully this weighty obligation.

I have thought for some years that our church houses are not being used to the greatest advantage. Thousands upon thousands of dollars are invested in church houses which are used but once a week for an hour or two in many localities. It seems to me that this property should be used to a greater advantage to the membership, as well as to the community. One of the ways by which it could be used is for a library. I suggest that every church invest some of its money in a good library.

The young people of a congregation need to be encouraged in reading good literature, and especially do they need encouragement in reading good books of a scriptural and entertaining character. Children are taught in the public schools to read, and are encouraged to read the classics, yet oftentimes they look upon this reading as a task assigned to them and do not get the greatest good from the reading. Young people need to be instructed as to what is best for them to read. If each church would select the best books adapted to the age and experience of young people, it would be a great help to the church.

This suggestion may not be needed in many of our towns and cities where our people have access to our public libraries, but I know that it would prove a blessing to many rural churches. The young people could meet at the church house on Saturday afternoon or Sunday afternoon and spend a few hours in reading, and arrangements could be made for the books to be taken home and read and then returned to the library. The objection may be raised that our schools have libraries, but I insist that our schools do not have the kind of literature that should or would take the place of the church libraries. I should be glad to hear from others who are interested in the proper education of young people.

Commendatory of Articles.

BY JOHN D. EVANS.

I want to heartily commend two articles in the Gospel Advocate of July 8-one from the pen of our good brother and able writer, M. C. Kurfees, on "Religious Controversy," and one from our fearless and always interesting brother. F. W. Smith, on "Gainsayers." They were both timely and wholly scriptural. There is too much of the spirit of what may be called "namby-pambyism" among our writers and speakers. I am ever and always an advocate of peace among brethren when "possible," but not an advocate of "peace at any price." It has been often demonstrated in carnal warfare that the only and quickest way to have permanent peace is to fight out the issue in the open. The same is true when truth and error are in conflict. When Peter dissembled, Paul " withstood him to his face." the great apostle of infidelity, Robert Owen, defied the "armies of the living God," Alexander Campbell with invincible courage met him in the arena and crushed with sledge-hammer blows the greatest foe of Christianity. As suggested by one of the writers, the service performed by the lamented David Lipscomb for the cause of truth cannot be estimated. He was the "Stonewall" Jackson of the spiritual army, "standing like a stone wall" against the tides of innovation. Neither God nor man has any respect for a man who has not the courage of his convictions, who in the contest between truth and error surrenders before a shot is fired. Sometimes a storm is necessary to purify the atmosphere. Oil is all right in its place, but sometimes the only way to safeguard the crew is to "sand the track." Napoleon once said: "The only way to have a conquering army is to have one that is always fighting." There is only one great essential: let your cause be just, the warfare a holy one.

Almost every day we can see the fruits of our failure to "cry aloud and spare not" when the enemy is encroaching upon our rights. It is the old story of the Arab and the camel. Sooner or later the camel will walk in and tell us to "move out." There can be no compromise between truth and error, right and wrong. No man can "keep the faith without fighting for it when necessary. I can see no reason for the apostolic injunction to "put on the whole armor of God," if there is no fighting to be done. What are armors for? If there is a lack of courage upon the part of those who stand at the forefront of the battle, what shall the effect be upon those who are "in the trenches?" One cowardly commander demoralizes the whole army, A timely admonition to-day is, "Be strong and of good courage." One great need of the church to-day is men who in the defense of truth are unafraid. "God give us men. A time like this demands strong men!"

Some Day I'll Know.

BY CHARLES R, BREWER.

Some day I'll know where our frail barks go, Across life's mystic sea: The tides I'll know, their ebb and flow, When the golden port I see.

Where the wrecked ships lie, why the waves beat high, All this I'll understand, And the storm's fierce note, where the lost lives float, When I reach the distant strand.

Why some sailed on and some went down,
Their bonny cruise cut short—
This and all the rest I'll know was best,
When my own ship reaches port.

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Minor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney—one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?" This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake.

Home Reading

Respect for the Child's Possessions.

It is no wonder that during infancy and early childhood life's lessons are so difficult for the small beginner, when the laws which govern them must seem to him just or unjust, consistent or inconsistent, according to the knowledge or the caprice of the adult administering them.

One of the first lessons which the little child should learn is the proper care of his own possessions and respect for those of others, and a mother has the first opportunity to inculcate this important life lesson.

Since one of the strongest instincts of the child is to imitate, there seems no more logical way to teach this lesson than by example. If a mother teaches her child not to touch the articles on her desk or dressing table without her permission, then has she the right to dispose of his toys without his permission?

The writer recalls an instance where a mother secretly put away a doll which had been given to her little girl, and, for no reason except that the child already had a number of dolls and this particular one was "too beautifully dressed to be played with until the child was older."

Another common way of disregarding children's rights is to force them to give up some new or much-prized possession. For example, a little girl of six, who was delighted with the gift of a doll's fan, was obliged by her mother to hand it to her screaming baby in order to quiet him. In his excitement he soon crushed the flny toy, his screams increased, and his little sister was broken-hearted! Nor had the unjust and short-sighted mother "saved the scene" which she had hoped to avert.

In each of these cases the child should have been consulted and her permission given before the mother disposed of the plaything. In this way the mother could have explained the reasons for her own action, and the child, in her turn, would have had an opportunity of expressing herself, a habit which should be encouraged. Then, too, personal responsibility for her possessions and the recognition of the right of ownership would have emphasized the difference between "mine" and "thine."

There is no better way to create habits of orderliness and a sense of responsibility than by giving the child a place for keeping his playthings and then allowing him full control of these possessions.

Show him how to use his books, how to take care of his toys, how to protect his pets, and then see to it that he has a shelf or a small bookcase for his books, a play corner for his toys, and an appropriate home for his pets.

After playtime require him to put away whatever he has been using, and let him understand the necessity for regular attention to his pets. Such training will of necessity react upon his character, since possession entails responsibility. Ownership also teaches generosity; for, without possessions, how can a child learn to share?

It may not be out of place in advising parents to respect their children's possessions to add a warning on behalf of the children. Do not surround them with numberless readymade toys. Give them blocks, boards, nails, a few tools, hammers, saws, planes, spools, scissors, thread, cloth, dolls, paper, crayons, clay, sand, and books. They will get more happiness from these possessions of constructive possibilities than from all the finished toys of the biggest toy shops in the land.

"Childhood has its own way of seeing, thinking, and feeling, and nothing is more foolish than to try to substitute our own for them,"

Respect your child's right to his possessions, and he will learn to respect the rights of others, and, with such recognition, there will be no fear for the outcome of his place in society.—Helena Wilson.

A Beautiful Answer.

One day a little girl in a white frock and with a great bunch of flowers passed by a boy who was playing in the dusty street. Somehow the sight of that dainty figure stirred the spirit of mischief in the boy's heart, and suddenly he threw a handful of dirt which struck the edge of the white dress and fell in a shower upon the kid shoes.

The girl stood still. Her face flushed pink. Her lips trembled as if she would cry; but, instead, a smile broke over her face, and, taking a flower from her bunch, she tossed it to the boy, who stood waiting to see what she was going to do.

A more surprised boy no one ever saw, nor one more heartily ashamed. He hung his head and his cheeks reddened under their tan and freckles. His unkind fun was quite spolled, just because in return for a handful of dirt some one had thrown him a flower.

What a changed world this would be if everybody, big and little, were as wise as this six-year-old maid! How quarrels would go out of fashion if for angry words we threw back gentle answers!—Selected.

* * *

Taking Wings.

Two little birds had a nest in the bushes in the back of the garden. Amy found the nest. It had four speckled eggs in it. One day, after she had been away for some time, she ran into the garden to take a peep at the speckled eggs. Instead of the beautiful eggs, there were only broken, empty shells. "O," she said, picking out the pieces, "the beautiful eggs are all spoiled and broken!" "No, Amy," said her brother, "they are not spoiled; the best part of them has taken wings and flown away." So it is in death; the body left behind is only an empty shell, while the soul, the better part, has taken wings and flown away."—New Church Messenger.

0 0 0

Let your sleep be necessary and healthful, not idle and expensive of time, beyond the needs and conveniences of nature; and sometimes be curious to see the preparation which the sun makes when he is coming forth from his chambers of the east.—Jeremy Taylor.

o o o Fulfillment.

BY IRBY HARRISON SIMMONS.

What are life's realities? The tinsel things that charm the eye? The daily toil, the sordid grind, That irks the body, tires the mind?

What, then, are life's realities?
'Tis hard to say, hedged in so close
By uncouth objects, labor gross,
To wrest from earth the best and most.

Yet not in this our souls feel pride; We seek for wealth which may abide, Real, eternal, whate'er betide. No power may change nor time destroy.

Then reaching out with higher hope. Loying virtue, with hearts that grope, For truth in human minds to find, Seeking long, till life shall end;

Still finding nought so freely sought. In self or others, in works they wrought, That nears perfection in deed or thought, Despairingly we turn away.

Then upward look to heights undreamed, 'Tis here the Godhead reigns supreme, And from this moil of half-done deeds, Of noble effort, gathers the best, Makes them complete, the work is blest.

贝

AT HOME AND ABROAD

L. R. Wilson, of Tupelo, Ark., has time for a meeting the first part of September.

Our esteemed coworker, M. C. Kurfees, of Louisville, Ky., paid this office a visit this week.

R. N. Moody reports a meeting "six days old" at New Hope, Ala., with one confession.

We are informed that A. G. Freed expects to hold a protracted meeting at Sparta, Tenn., this fall.

Flavil Hall reports a fine interest in the meeting with the Pleasant Knoll congregation, near Morrison, Tenn.

John W. Hedge reports twenty additions during the meeting at Boone Prairie, Texas. Brother Beeson helped Earnest C. Leve, of Santa Rosa, Cal., will preach at Russell Street Church, in Nashville, the fourth Sunday in August

There were two fine services at Russell Street Church, in Nashville, Sunday. A baptism followed the evening service.

At this writing James A. Allen is holding a meeting at Fairview, Davidson County, Tenn. Good interest is being manifested.

We enjoyed a visit last Saturday from W. P. Walker, of Clarksville, Tenn., who was en route to Lebanon, Tenn., to hold a meeting.

- J. Clifford Murphy, of Pulaski, Tenn., preached eight days for a congregation twelve miles north of Fayetteville, Tenn. There were three baptisms.
- T. Q. Martin, of St. Marys, Va., has been engaged to hold the meeting for the Russell Street Church, in Nashville. It will begin on the first Sunday in October.
- G. Dallas Smith will begin a meeting for the church at Alamo, Tenn., next Sunday. From thence he will go to Fayetteville, where he labored for several years.
- J. T. Stokes and wife, two faithful souls, who live at Nova, N. M., wish to locate with some loyal congregation in North Arkansas near the Ozark Mountains. Write him if you are interested.

The Fanning Orphan School for Girls will open for the reception of pupils on September 9, 1920. For further information, address David Lipscomb, superintendent, Route 1, Nashville, Tenn.

We enjoyed a visit last week from J. S. Willis, of Fresno, Cal. Halliday Trice preaches for this congregation. He reports the work there as in better condition than it has been for some time.

Thomas H. Burton writes us that he has about three thousand dollars in sight for the first meetinghouse of loyal disciples in South Carolina. When completed, the building will cost six thousand dollars.

Our Home in Cuba.—I am now settling two hundred American families in Cuba. I think we can offer the most wonderful inducements to American farmers on earth. Write J. D. Tant, Rogers, Ark., for literature.

E. O. Coffman, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., is in a meeting with the brethren at Mars' Hill, Ala. He reports results in other meetings as follows: Oak Grove, nine additions; New Hope, one addition; Killen, eight additions.

William H. Beasley writes us that the fine meeting conducted by C. R. Nichol at Waldo, Ark., came to a close on August 2, with nine baptisms. He considers it to be one of the best meetings in the history of the congregation.

Leslie G. Thomas is conducting a meeting for his home congregation at Flint, Mich. On next Sunday he will begin another meeting at Akron, Mich. We are glad to note the progress of the work in this great and growing State.

T. C. Cox closed an eight-days' meeting at White's Bend last Sunday night, with light baptisms. The attendance and interest were good throughout. He began a meeting at Parmer's Chapel, near White House, on Monday night.

George W. Graves, of Nashville, Tenn., is in a good meeting with the Liberty congregation, in Jackson County, Tenn. He reports four baptisms and one restoration during an eight-days' meeting at Cotham's Chapel, in Decatur County,

We enjoyed a visit from R. P. Cuff, who had just closed a meeting at Fairfield, Bedford County, Tenn. The interest was good throughout, and the meeting resulted in ten additions to the church. He began a meeting last Lord's day at Silver Point, Tenn.

Clara Fowler writes: "On July 18 E. L. Whitaker, of Corinth, Miss., closed a very successful meeting at Zion's Hill, near Palmersville, Tenn. There were six conversions. We feel that the church and community have been greatly benefited by his stay with us."

For the benefit of correspondents interested in the South African mission work, we wish to advise that F. B. Shepherd's address is 1409-a Jackson, Amarilio, Texas. He is now in an interesting meeting at Alvord, Texas. Next to Lacy's Chapel, at Hollis, Okla.

- C. D. Crouch, evangelist, of Wellington, Texas, expects to spend the greater part of the summer and fall of 1921 in Tennessee. Churches wishing his services as an evangelist should address him as above, as he is now ready to make arrangements for meetings for 1921.
- A young Christian woman, of Batesville, Ark., desires a position as teacher in a school supported by our brethren. She has had normal training and several years' successful experience as principal of public schools. Address "Teacher," Box 255, Batesville, Ark.

From Porter Norris, Lucy, Tenn., August 7: "Last night I closed a meeting at Solo, in Tipton County, which resulted in six being baptized into the one body. We had very large crowds and good attention. The brethren supported me well. I go next to Giltage."

We have just heard from Brother Wooldridge. Under date of August 2 he writes from Fort Worth, Texas: "Reached here at 5 P.M. Saturday—a little over a thousand miles. All well—no car trouble. Some bad roads, but didn't have to be pulled out of any place."

We enjoyed a visit last week from Mrs. Alexander, of Hartsville, Tenn. She says the church there is taking on new life. Work is now being done remodeling and enlarging the church house. C. R. Nichol is expected to hold a meeting there, beginning early in October.

From F. L. Paisley, Halls, Tenn., Route 2, August 7: "Our meeting at Antioch Church continues, with increasing interest. The house was filled last night when we arrived. One young man and one young lady confessed the name of Christ and are to be baptized this afternoon."

James E. Scobey is announced to preach at Antioch, Maury County, Tenn., the third Lord's day in this month, and at Lewisburg on the fourth Lord's day. He is devoting some time to preaching on "False Teachers," and is presenting with force the scriptural teaching on that subject.

From Coleman Overby, Murray, Ky., August 6: "I have just closed a meeting at Mount Pleasant, near Wingo. Seventeen were baptized into Christ. Part of these came from Methodist and Baptist families. This was my third consecutive meeting there. I go next to Pilot Oak."

- E. C. Fuqua, our very useful missionary in Colorado, informs us that his wife is in a hospital getting ready for a very serious operation. Let all the faithful remember this family before the throne of grace. Brother Fuqua's temperary address is in care of Boulder Sanitarium, Boulder, Colorado.
- A. B. Lipscomb performed the marriage ceremony for Mr. Lonnie Miller and Miss Etta Gafford at the Russell Street Church. Sunday, August 8, at 6 P.M. The groom had been gassed and shell-shocked in the great war and was totally deaf, but he read the preacher's lips and made the right response at the right time.

A letter from M. C. Kurfees announces that the meeting at Jericho Church, near Mocksville, N. C., surpassed all expectations. "With the exception of two nights, when the meeting was practically rained out, great crowds and increasing interest marked its progress from the very beginning. There were twenty additions in all."

F. B. Srygley has just returned from the West. While gone, he held a meeting at Coal Hill, Ark., with good interest and one addition. He also conducted a meeting at Valliant, Okla., which resulted in six additions; another at Granite, Okla., resulted in one baptism. He was booked to begin a meeting at Leiper's Fork last Lord's day.

From H. M. Phillips, Tuscumbia, Ala., August 5: "I have just closed a short meeting at Brush Creek, Tenn., with one baptism. The meeting was cut short on account of wife's operation. She is still in the Lucy Brinkley Hospital, at Memphis. She has done wonderfully well, and we are now hopeful for her recovery. The meeting here, conducted by G. A. Dunn, starts off well."

From William Etheridge, Middleton, Tenn., August 4: "I was called to Wynne, Ark., to baptize J. C. Harrell. Sister Harrell, one of the Lord's noble women, was overjoyed over the conversion of her husband. Miss Ruth Etheridge was badly shocked by lightning Sunday afternoon, but Is out of danger now. The meeting at Gilbertsville, Ky., ran over three Lord's days and closed with one addition by primary obedience."

J. C. Pendergrass, a native of Flat Creek, Tenn., writes us that he has just completed a successful meeting at that place. Seven were baptized, one coming from the Methodist Church, and much good was done. After closing this meeting he preached two nights at Hillsboro, then began a meeting at Walnut Grove. From that place he will go to Fairview, Jackson County, Tenn. He intends to remain in this part of the country during the fall.

Mrs. R. L. Crowell, of Brunswick, Ga., writes us that she has found two sisters in that town. They now have four members, and these sisters inform her that there are others in Brunswick. They hope to make the work interesting. G. E. Claus, of Valdosta, Ga., has promised to hold a meeting in Brunswick. If he cannot do the work, some other good evangelist should help these struggling sisters establish the cause of Christ permanently in Brunswick.

A. K. Ramsey writes from Dibrell, Tenn., August 5: "I am sojourning in the hills for a few days. I closed a meeting last Surday night, at Monroe, La., where a small band of disciples were left to keep house for the Lord. The City Hall was secured for Sunday-morning meetings. It is the hope of the little band to locate an evangelist on the ground by September, if some financial assistance can be had. Monthly contributions are desired. Will you help? Write H. H. Scott, 1904 Jackson Street, Monroe, La."

From Leland H. Knight, Fort Smith, Ark., August 3: "I recently had the pleasure of uniting in marriage Mr. Garland Duncan and Miss Leola Warlick, both of this city. These are excellent young people, and the church joins with me in wishing them success and happiness. The church work here is moving on grandly. We are striving to avoid formalism, the besetting sin of Israel. Our purpose is to proclaim to fallen humanity the promises of the resurrected Savior to those who will obey him. May the Lord always bless us in our efforts."

Vina Hooper writes from Dickson, Tenn., August 4: "Matthew C. Cayce, of Nashville, Tenn., closed a nine-days' meeting at Rock Church on Monday. Four were baptized, one was restored, and much good was done otherwise. After a short visit at his home, Brother Cayce is to go back to Mississippl for more mission meetings. We had the pleasure of having him make our home his home again while here. We believe him to be one of the best of men, and any congregation will do well to get him to preach. He preaches the truth, and the whole truth."

F. L. Palsley, of Memphis, Tenn., wishes to say "amen" to every word on the "Current Thought" page of last week. He says: "We ought to rejoice that a magazine of the standing and backing of the Literary Digest will take such a bold stand for a return to the 'old paths.' It should be a stern rebuke to every 'minister' of whatever faith who resorts to popular themes instead of the time-tried and soulsaving power—the gospel. It should fill our hearts with a determination to preach all the truth, and only the truth, and never 'guess' while God reveals so much known truth."

From R. A. Craig, Bohon, Ky., August 5: "Our meeting here is moving along with fine interest. We are expecting the Lord to bless us. Thomas D. Rose preaches here once each month. The brethren seem to love him, and I believe his influence is being felt. I find that a number of churches are made weak by brethren who use their influence in lodges, or fraternal organizations. I am giving my life to the cause of Christ, and it grieves me to see so many falling away. My brother, can you glorify God in these temporal institutions? Remember, Christ shed his blood that we should glorify his name in the church."

From T. S. Bain, Muskogee, Okla., August 3: "The church here is at work and encouraged to do greater things for God. Last Sunday a man sixty-five years old made the good confession and was baptized by Brother Gawf. He had been a Presbyterian. Brother Foster preached at night. I again visited the church at Porum Sunday morning. One brother came forward and confessed his faults. Interest in the work there is increasing slowly, but surely. I find some good people there. Neighboring loyal congregations are requested to cooperate with us in our meeting here, which will begin on September 5."

Beginning on August 24, James E. Laird will meet W. C. Wright in a four-days' debate at Piggott, Ark. The following propositions will be discussed: (1) "The Scriptures teach that man is wholly mortal and is unconscious from death till the resurrection." (2) "The Scriptures teach that the unbeliever will be judged at the day of judgment." (3) "The Scriptures authorize the use of instrumental music in the worship of the church of Christ." (4) "The Scriptures teach that the incorrigibly wicked will suffer eternal punishment in a lake of fire." Wright will affirm the first and third propositions; Brother Laird, the second and fourth.

From Oscar Parham, Route 3, Franklin, Tenn., August 6: "Beginning on the second Sunday in July, I held a short meeting at Pond Schoolhouse, three miles from Leiper's Fork, with fairly good attendance and interest. One was restored. On the fourth Sunday in July I began at New Bethel, Hickman County, closing on Friday night following. We had good attendance and interest, with four baptized and one restored. I promised to return next year. On the first Sunday in August I began at Hilltown, in Maury County, and continued till Tuesday night. I hope to go there on the fifth Sunday in this month for a few days more."

From M. S. Mason, Springfield, Mo., August 5: "I closed the meeting at Turner and Ramsey Streets, in Springfield, on July 4, with seven additions. I closed at Kennett on July 30, with twenty-eight additions. This was the best meeting of my life. I was ably assisted there in several ways by Charles F. Hardin, who acted primarily in the capacity of song leader. He is certainly a true yokefellow. He can preach or sing. I began at Rector, Ark., on August 1. There have been two confessions to date. I go to Greenway, Ark., on August 15. The brethren are treating me royally at all places. Brother Hardin and I will probably be at Kennett again in 1921. I am booking my time rapidly for 1921."

Occasionally a subscriber discontinues the Gospel Advocate, giving as his reason that there is too much argument in the paper. Of course any one has the right to discontinue the paper who sees proper to do so; but when one appeals to us to discontinue contending for "the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints" in order to retain his patronage, the appeal has absolutely no effect. We have never published the Gospel Advocate to make money; and if we were not assured that we were doing some good by its publication, we would discontinue it immediately. As true men, we must publish the paper, absolutely refusing to be influenced by monetary considerations. The publication of religious journals is not a money-making business.

E. J. Johnson, Lee Jackson, and W. A. Burford make an appeal for the church at Oakland, Miss., as follows: "In the Gospel Advocate of June 17 there appeared an article, written by J. P. Lowrey, about the work at Oakland, in which he stated that a nice lot had been secured. We want to add that the restrictive clause is in the deed. Since that time we have raised some money and added to the amount on hand. We lack about one thousand dollars having enough to finish paying for material to complete the house. Five carpenters are now ready to begin work. They have promised to build the house if we will raise the money to buy the lumber. Now, with the carpenters ready to go work, will you please help us raise the amount asked for? All donations will be acknowledged by receipt. Send all donations to W. A. Burford, clerk, or Bank of Oakland, Oakland, Miss."

Herbert E. Winkler was greatly pleased with R. N. Moody's article on "Denominational Preachers," Here is what he says: "Brother Moody's article in the Gospel Advocate of July 29, regarding calling on preachers of the denominations to lead the prayers and take part in our services, is, to my mind, a most timely one. His boldness and his sound reasoning should be enough to put to shame those of us that are so afraid we will insult such preachers by not calling on them to pray when they come to our meetings. We need more backbone. What priest in the tabernacle or temple service would have dared to call on some Gentile idol worshiper to assist him in the service of the Lord therein? Let us all get on a consistent basis and do the Lord's work in his own way without fear of making other people mad, and then we will have courage equal to our convictions."

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This expression was a superior to all expections until definite pre-

Is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-219 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Things to Think About. BY J. C. M'Q.

Beginning July 1, the management of the Gospel Advocate found it absolutely necessary to advance the price of the paper from two dollars to two dollars and fifty cents per year, in advance. I was very loath to do this, so held the advance back much longer than should have been done. I am glad to announce to our readers that very few people have complained on account of the advance of fifty cents. It was necessary to make more decided advances on our Bible-school literature, but so far no one has complained. Christians are thoughtful and have realized the great The Mcadvances that have been made in everything. Quiddy Printing Company, which has been financing the Gospel Advocate, finds itself unable to continue to do this without making the increases in publications that have been recently made. The advanced price on the literature does not take effect until October 1 of this year. At the price we have been charging since the decided advance in paper and labor have gone into effect, it has been necessary to go to the banks and get money to pay for paper. This is so evident, to suggest it to a thoughtful man is all that is necessary. Some papers have been costing us twice as much, others three or four times as much, and some even five times as much as the same paper cost us three years ago. At prewar prices it was not necessary to borrow money in order to successfully handle the business; but during war prices, when everything is so abnormally high, it has been impossible for large publishers to finance their business without making heavy loans,

The management of the publishing business has been very difficult from the fact that paper is scarce and is hard to buy at any price. As I am informed, about sixty per cent of the wood pulp from which our papers have been made has in the past been received from Canada. Since the war Canada has put a heavy embargo on its wood pulp, so this country has not been able to get it. With this condition existing, it has been necessary for publishers to carry large stocks of paper in order to insure the publication of their regular periodicals and to take care of work that they were doing for customers. Jobbers in paper have declined to carry this stock and have forced the publishers to do so. I have been compelled to buy paper as far as twelve months ahead in order to get it in time to take care of publications and of customers. Even after placing orders thus far ahead subject to the market price, occasionally I have received the paper just in time to bring out the publication when due. I am deeply grateful, however, that I have been able to bring out all publications and to keep all large customers satisfied, without any disappointment so far. As to what the future will bring forth, I cannot say. It is becoming more difficult every day to get paper at any price, and the price is still soaring. Nothing will be left undone to see that the readers of the Gospel Advocate receive proper protection and that the paper in the future will make its regular visits to our subscribers as in the past. These things are stated plainly to our readers because I think they should be taken into our confidence and that they should know the conditions as they now existconditions over which we have no control whatever.

The loyal support of all our readers is duly appreciated, and the fact that they do not expect us to do the impossible by holding the paper down to the old price is very gratifying. It is true that occasionally some one complains, but I am sure this is because such persons do not know the facts in the case.

We are expecting greater support and encouragement in the future for the paper than we have had in the past. In the midst of the turmoil, dissatisfaction, and unrest that now exist among the people, the Advocate is more needed and more in demand than it has ever been. Those who have favored missionary societies and who have exalted them above the local church of Christ are now beginning to see that it is not safe to depart from the word of Ged even in doing missionary work. Of those who have claimed to be loyal to the truth, it may be said that they are learning that it is not safe to select just any one and send him into the missionary field. Those who go must be men who love the truth, who are willing to endure hardness as a good soldier, and who will not be swerved from the right in order to become popular as a missionary. The gospel is just as powerful and just as forceful to-day as it has ever been, but we are sadly in need of laborers to faithfully proclaim it to the perishing. If the right men can be secured, the support for them will be forthcoming.

Our government has recently given railroad employees a six-hundred-million-dollar increase annually. Of course the people must pay this. There is a disposition on the part of all to complain about the high cost of living, but little disposition, it seems, to do the work that is actually necessary to bring down the high cost of living. Shortening the hours of labor and paying high wages is largely responsible for the high cost of living. More work will produce more goods and will bring down the high price of living. A dogged determination on the part of the people to buy less, to live economically and sensibly, will have much to do with lowering the high cost of living. So long as our government continues to increase wages, thus enabling a man to live while working only a few hours each day, we should not expect the cost of living to be lowered. I have no sympathy with the idea that labor should simply be used as a commodity. The employer should treat his employees as he would like to be treated himself; he should manifest a deep interest in the welfare of his employees and should do all within his power to advance the interests of those who work for him. On the other hand, the employee should not watch the clock, seek to get away from his work on the shortest possible hours, giving his employer the least service that he can for the pay that he receives. The clock watcher and the person who thinks more of his hours than he does of the service rendered is not valuable to any concern or to any employer. The interests of the employer should be the interests of the employee, and so should the interests of the employee be the interests of the employer. They should work together, and should be guided and directed by the Christian religion. Religion should be applied in business. The religion of Jesus Christ faithfully practiced by both employer and employee will bring about a better understanding between them and will lead to the dawn of a brighter day for both labor and capital. Whenever the employee shortens his hours of labor, this leads others to do likewise. All classes should alike go to work and work diligently in order to bring down the high cost of living.

Another thing we should consider is the danger of letting ourselves be influenced by our environments. During the period of immorality that is sweeping over our country while people are reckless and indifferent as to the best interests of humanity, if we are not watchful, we may become like others and do something that will lead us down to misery and death. Christians should let their light shine so that others may be led into the light of truth. They should be vigilant and diligent in attending to their own business, and should not suffer themselves to be meddlers in other men's affairs. When the whole world appears to be upside down, it is so easy to make mistakes. it is so easy to drift with the current, that, if we do not master our own spirits and do that which we know to be right, we are in great danger of doing something that we will regret the remainder of our lives. "If ye are reproached for the name of Christ, blessed are ye; because the Spirit of glory and the Spirit of God resteth upon you. For let none of you suffer as a murderer, or a thief, or an evildoer, or as a meddler in other men's matters: but if a man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God in this name." (1 Pet. 4: 14-16.) Christians should not be carried away by every wind of doctrine, but in the midst of all the turmoil and confusion and misunderstanding should stand firm as a rock, immovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord.

Questions and Answers. No. 2.

BY F. W. SMITH.

Question No. 2 propounded to Brother Fry by Brother Pennock runs as follows: "Was that church a visible or an invisible organization?"

Just how Brother Fry will answer this question we do not, of course, know; but a scriptural answer would depend upon the angle from which one views the church. No such expressions as "visible" and "invisible" churches or kingdoms are found in the New Testament. These so-called institutions are the inventions of men designed to lessen the force of baptism in the economy of grace, making it a "nonessential" to salvation from past sins or a condition of entering the kingdom of Christ. Some of our religious friends contend that baptism only initiates one into the "visible" church or kingdom, while Holy Spirit baptism inducts the subject into the "invisible" church or kingdom. Thus it may be seen they have two churches or kingdoms, whereas the New Testament speaks of the church or kingdom in the singular number. I suspect our Baptist friends hold to the "invisible" theory, from the fact that in theory, at least, they discount baptism to the extent of classing it among the so-called nonessentials to salvation. While baptism is absolutely essential to entrance into the Baptist Church, it is not, with our Baptist friends, essential to entrance into the kingdom of Christ. This, of course, according to their own logic, draws a clear distinction between the Baptist Church and the kingdom of Christ. But no such distinction is drawn between the church of Christ or the kingdom of Christ as revealed in the New Testament. Hence, we are forced to the conclusion that the Baptist Church is itself a nonessential, or no part of the kingdom or church of Christ. Our Baptist friends will, no doubt, demur to this statement of the case; but how they can escape the conclusion from their own premises is not clear to my mind. Jesus said: "Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except one be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." (John 3: 5.) No translator or commentator among the scholars of the religious world in so far as known to me, with the exception of John Calvin, has ever contended that "water" in John 3: 5 meant anything else than baptism. J. R. Graves, one of the most noted Baptist scholars of the South, boldly contended that "born of water" meant bap-

But to the matter of Brother Pennock's query, "Was that church a visible or an invisible organization?" We must first determine of what the membership of the church or citizenship of the kingdom is composed before an intelligent answer can be given to our friend's question. Christ is said to have purchased the church. "Take heed unto yourselves, and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit hath made you bishops, to feed the church of the Lord which he purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20: 28.) Now, if the bodies of the saints are ineluded in this purchase, it follows conclusively that the church is comprised of all there is of the saints-viz., body, spirit, and soul. The following passages seem to teach that the whole man is involved in the purchase: "Or know ye not that your body is a temple of the Holy Spirit which is in you, which ye have from God? and ye are not your own; for ye were bought with a price: glorify God therefore in your body." (1 Cor. 6; 19, 20.) This teaches most clearly that the "body" as well as the "soul" belongs to the Lord by virtue of having been bought with the price of his blood; and since it was the church thus bought, the church must be composed of the whole man-body, soul, and spirit. Again: "Let not sin therefore reign in your mortal body, that ye should obey the lusts thereof: neither present your members unto sin as instruments of unrighteousness; but present yourselves unto God, as alive from the dead, and your members as instruments of righteousness unto God." (Rom. 6: 12, 13.) The term "members" in this passage refers, of course, to the members of the body, which are simply the instruments through and by which the soul, or inner man, expresses himself or herself. From all the premises in the case, it seems pretty clear that the church or kingdom of Christ, as to its membership or citizenship, is both "visible" and "invisible," because it is composed of both the bodies and souls of the saints. While the soul or inner man is "invisible," the body, or instrument through and by which it works and expresses itself, is certainly "visible." Faith is in the heart, the "hidden man," but its fruit as expressed through the "outer man" most certainly is seen. Show me thy faith apart from thy works, and I by my works will show thee my faith." (James 2: 18.) The socalled "invisible" theory of the church or kingdom has the soul of man in the church or kingdom of Christ, while the body is in the world or devil's kingdom; hence all the good works wrought by the soul through the body are wrought in the devil's kingdom! Who is prepared for such an issue? Not I, most assuredly It is not clear to my mind how one can glorify God in his body, as he is commanded to do, with that body in the kingdom of Satan, which would have to be true if the common and popular theory on the matter were true.

Mrs. Catt and Woman-Suffrage Leaders Repudiate the Bible.

J. C. McQuiddy, in Nashville Banner, August 8.)

Both the Federal and State Constitutions represent the sovereign will of the people. The government is "of the people, by the people, and for the people." Our State Constitution declares the legislature of Tennessee shall not act on any amendment to the Federal Constitution unless the amendment is submitted before the election of the State legislature by the people. The wisdom and fairness of this provision are self-evident. The Federal amendment provides for ratification by representative institutions representing the will of the people. The amendment to the Federal Constitution was enacted after the present General Assembly was elected; so, if the present General Assembly should ratify the amendment, the voice and will of the people of Tennessee would be completely ignored. Such action would lead to the downfall of the republic. The Federal Constitution does not say when the State legislature shall ratify. If the legislature which is to be elected in November, and which will represent the will of the people of the State on the woman-suffrage question, ratifies in next January, there can be no conflict in the Federal Constitution and the State Constitution, but, on the contrary, perfect accord. Why this undue haste to make a conflict? The courts have ruled that such action must be deliberate. No legislator of the present General Assembly who votes to ratify the woman-suffrage amendment can be CERTAIN that he is not violating the Federal Constitution; he knows he is violating the State Constitution.

The Bible is very much in the way of woman-suffrage leaders. In order to nullify the following scriptures and other similar passages, they repudiate the Bible: "Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy pain and thy conception; in pain thou shalt bring forth children: and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." (Gen. 3: 16.) "Let a woman learn in quietness with all subjection. But I permit not a woman to teach, nor to have dominion over a man, but to be in quietness. For Adam was first formed, then Eve; and Adam was not beguiled, but the woman being beguiled hath fallen into transgression: but she shall be saved through her childbearing, if they continue in faith and love and sanctification with sobriety." (1 Tim. 2: 11-15.) "That they may train the young women to love their husbands, to love their children, to be sober-minded, chaste, workers at home, kind, being in subjection to their own husbands. that the word of God be not blasphemed." (Tit. 2: 4, 5.) To destroy the Bible and its influence, Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton published "The Woman's Bible" in 1895. Mrs. Carrie Chapman Catt, who is the president of the National Woman Suffrage League, and who is now seeking to get the present legislature to ratify the woman-suffrage amendment, was a member of the revising committee of the "Woman's Bible;" so also was Mrs. Robert G. Ingersoll. Whatever we find in this Bible, therefore, has the indorsement of Mrs. Catt. Mrs. Elizabeth Cady Stanton, in her Introduction, on page 10, says: "Whatever your views may be as to the importance of the proposed work, your political and social degradation are but an outgrowth of your status in the Bible." She also says on page 11: "Again, there are some who write us that our work is a useless expenditure of force over a book that has lost its hold on the human mind. Most intelligent women, they say, regard it simply as the history of a rude people in a barbarous age, and have no more reverence for the Scriptures than any other work." In commenting on Gen. 3: 1-24, she calls the whole affair an "allegory," and says on page 24 of the "Woman's Bible:" "As out of this allegory grows the doctrines of original sin, the fall of man, and woman the author of all our woes, and the curses on the serpent, the woman, and the man: the Darwinian theory of the gradual growth of the race from a lower to a higher type of animal life is more hopeful and encouraging." In commenting on Gen. 24: 37-67, on page 47 of the "Woman's Bible," she says: "With our ideal of the great first cause, a God of justice, wisdom, and truth, the Jewish Lord, guiding and directing that people in all their devious ways, and sanctioning their petty immoralities, seems strangely out of place; a very contradictory character, unworthy our love and admiration. The ancient Jewish ideal of Jehovah was not an exalted one." But the entire "Woman's Bible" is so filled with biasphemy and a complete rejection of the word of God that it is entirely unnecessary to multiply quotations of this character. This is but a repetition of what took place thousands of years ago in the garden of Eden. "And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was a delight to the eyes, and that the tree was to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat: and she gave also unto her husband with her, and he did eat," (Gen. 3: 6.) As the conduct of our foreparents was downright rebellion against God, so is the action of these women now. The "Woman's Bible" is so blasphemous and sacrilegious, and such a complete rejection of the word of God, that it has never received serious consideration from any one who has any respect for God and his word. Now, this same Elizabeth Cady Stanton said on June 25, 1895: "Progress is the victory of a new thought over an old superstition." "Rev." Anna Shaw, for ten years president of the National Suffrage Association, said: "I would like to make motherhood a governmental institution. I would pension all mothers and have them provided for first to last by the State. I believe that motherhood should be independent of any man." (March, 1913.) She also said: "I have this much to say, and that is that the marriage ceremony should be cut out. It is useless, and has served its day." Our people should remember that wherever the Bible has gone woman has been elevated and, in the true sense of the word, has enjoyed equal rights and privileges with men. It is where the Bible is not obeyed that women have been made slaves. It is time for the ministers to rise up and warn the people to stand by the word of God. The cry should be: "Back to the Bible!" Whenever we depart from it and ignore its sacred teachings and principles, we are sure to degenerate and have a most disastrous downfall. The Bible has done more for woman than anything else in this wide, wide world, and she is the last being who should reject it. The men who uphold this rejection of the Bible. like Adam, become partakers of sin with the women. Every one who believes that the word of God is divinely inspired, who desires to see his State Constitution not violated, and who believes in the purity of the family and the sanctity of marriage and would keep women out of politics, should write at once to his Representative in the Tennessee legislature and ask him to use his vote and influence against the ratification of woman suffrage by the present legislature.

I close with these impressive lines:

"O, what is woman, what her smile,
Her lip of love, her eye of light?
What is she, if her lips revile
The lowly Jesus? Love may write
His name upon her marble brow.
Or linger in her curls of jet;
The bright spring flowers may scarcely bow
Beneath her step; and yet—and yet,
Without that meeker grace, she'll be
A lighter thing than vanity."

Should the Present Legislature Ratify?

Nashville, Tenn., August 3, 1920.-To the Editor of the Gospel Advocate: With reference to the right of the present legislature to act upon the proposed woman-suffrage amendment, one of the assistants to the Attorney-General, Mr. Frierson, an excellent Tennessee lawyer, concludes his discussion of the question thus: "I am, therefore, confident that if the Tennessee legislature is called in session it will have the clear power to ratify the amendment, notwithstanding any provision of the Tennessee Constitution." This opinion may be correct; but the power of the present legislature to act on the amendment is not the question. The question is as to the propriety, rightfulness, and morality of the present legislature taking such action, the members having been elected under the State Constitution, which inhibits them from doing so, and which they have sworn to obey. It is not a very encouraging indication that the entrance of women into the arena of politics will raise the standard of public morals and honor when they urge the Governor to call a special session of the legislature for the purpose of violating a plain provision of the Constitution and their oath of office.

It is argued that the said provision in the State Constitution is in conflict with the Federal Constitution, and, therefore, in view of the fact that the members of the legislature were sworn to support both Constitutions, and the Federal Constitution is supreme, the obligation to support the State Constitution is nullified, the oath not binding. This would be true if there were any such antagonism or conflict between the two Constitutions; but is there such conflict? There is not. The Federal Constitution does not make it obligatory upon the present legislature to act upon the proposed amendment-although it may have the power to do so. The present legislature is perfectly free, without violating the Federal Constitution, to obey the reasonable and wise provision of our State Constitution, the object of which is to give the people an opportunity to hear the arguments, pro and con, on the subject and to choose Representatives with reference thereto.

The following sentence occurs in Assistant Attorney-General Frierson's opinion: "If the people of the State, through their Constitution, can delay action on an amendment until after one election, there is no reason why they cannot delay it until two elections, or five elections, or until the elapse of any period of time they may see fit, and thus practically nullify the article of the Federal Constitution providing for amendments." In reply, it is enough to say that the argument of reductio ad absurdum is of very little force in many cases. The framers of the Tennessee Constitution by the provision under discussion did not proceed to any such absurd end-did not unreasonably delay action on the amendment. The provision is a reasonable and wise one and should be complied with by the present legislature. When some State Constitution seeks to prevent or unreasonably postpone action on an amendment will be the time to deal with that problem. There is no such problem now. Besides, as has been forcibly said, if the present Tennessee legislature should ratify the amendment and its becoming a valid amendment should happen to depend on such action, and the next Presidential election should be close and doubtful, a very dangerous condition might arise, similar to the Hayes-Tilden controversy, which it is thought came near involving us in civil war. If the women of Tennessee are lovers of peace, they can afford to wait and let the next legislature act on the amendment: they have the right to vote, regardless of the proposed amendment.

It is a kind of fanaticism—this impatience to have the present legislature act upon the amendment, even at the risk of bringing about litigation and controversy that may issue in civil strife in case the Presidential election should happen to turn upon the legality of the action of the Tennessee legislature. Surely the women who are pressing this movement are not demonstrating their temperamental fitness for participation in government. Why do they wish to force this thing on sister States of the South who do not wish it? I have always been in favor of letting each State determine this question for itself.

This is not a purely political question, else I should not ask a hearing in the Gospel Advocate. It is also a moral question, if not, indeed, a religious one.

Respectfully, G. N. TILLMAN.

SELECTIONS BY THE EDITOR

Religion is the best armor in the world, but the worst cloak.—Bunyan.

Where love for God and man stops growing, backsliding begins.—Exchange.

All I have seen teaches me to trust the Creator for all I have not seen.—Emerson.

It is a good deal easier to regulate the world than it is to set your own house straight.—Exchange.

Some people are always grumbling because roses have thorns. I am thankful that thorns have roses.—Alphonse Karr

That which is past is gone and irrevocable, and wise men have enough to do with things present and to come.

—Bacon.

Blessed are the happiness makers. Blessed are they who know how to shine on one's gloom with their cheer.—
Reecher.

Science keeps down the weed of superstition, not by logic, but by rendering the mental soil unfit for its cultivation.—Tyndall.

The pleasantest things in the world are pleasant thoughts, and the great art in life is to have as many of them as possible.

True politeness is perfect ease and freedom. It simply consists in treating others just as you love to be treated yourself.—Chesterfield.

If we esteem our progress in religious life to consist only in some exterior observances, our devotions will be quickly at an end.—Thomas à Kempis.

Grace is the virtue of Christ's all-perfect humanity operating within you, the one that roots, grows, and opens in us every excellence and charm of spirit and character.—

T. Pulsford

The great temptation to which we are more or less exposed is that of losing sight of God in the ordinary actions of the day. It is hard to feel that every action of every day is capable of being so done as to advance or hinder our growth in grace.—Golden Sands.

It is a sad weakness in us, after all, that the thought of a man's death hallows him anew to us; as if life were not sacred, too—as if it were comparatively a light thing to fail in love and reverence to the brother who has to climb the whole toilsome steep with us, and all our tears and tenderness were due to the one who is spared that hard journey.—George Eliot.

When in the world to-day we see the disastrous results which have followed the rule of those who count themselves "wise and strong," we should pray that we may become wise with the wisdom of God, and realize that there is laid upon us as representatives of his church a solemn and sacred duty to minister to a diseased and disorganized world the saving truth of his blessed gospel of peace, that cometh only through righteousness and unselfishness.—F. F. Reese.

Current Thought

Remeay for the Moral Breakdown.

Moral breakdowns are not new in the history of the world, and the chief novelty of the present decline in standards of conduct is its far-reaching extent. servers would question, for example, that the fashionable young womanhood of America is weaker in its moral fiber and easier in its moral restraints because of the war, thinks The Continent (Presbyterian). In the newspapers frequently appear stories of the breakdown of marriage morality, "for which women are blamable as often as men, and in which the most contemptuous disregard of the rights of other women is displayed by women who want their own pleasure at any cost." There is much immorality in the manipulation of profits so as to deceive the incometax inspector. There is moral decline in the exploitation for inflated profits. And this "is cruel to helpless people; is ruinous to human brotherhood; it is unchristian. But arguments fall on dull ears. Profiteers are able to "get away with' the oppression—why should they not do it?" Through the industrial agitation runs a selfish streak. it?" Through the industrial agitation runs a selfish streak. Rural restlessness has set young people into bad relations, relaxing their moral restraints. They read in the daily press wild stories of what money can do, of the low estimate placed on decency and merality in "high society," and "every imitative instinct urges the acceptance of the new ways." What, then, is the remedy?

"Everybody needs to stiffen up, to trifle less with morality, to be steadier at critical points of conduct. The ethical note needs to get into school life again. If we are not to use the Bible to stimulate moral idealism in our "Everybody needs to stiffen up, to trifle less with morality, to be steadier at critical points of conduct. The ethical note needs to get into school life again. If we are not to use the Bible to stimulate moral idealism in our public schools, then the truths which the Bible presents must be used anyway. The ethical note should recur in sermons and public addresses. Thoughtful men are coming to be concerned, as much recent quotation has revealed. They are calling for the churches to become more active, even when they are not churchmen themselves. Some are wanting a revival of old-time religion, accenting God and human obligation to him. Very well; then such men ought to realize their own personal responsibility for helping to bring that about. They cannot go on with loose morals in life and tight morals in theory. The way to be moral is to be moral, each for himself first of all. That will never be enough, of course, but nothing will be enough without it. The breakdown of morals must be met first by building up morals in a multitude of personal lives.

"Then, further, there must be a reassertion of morals in public lines. Civil law does not make men moral, but its honest enforcement tends to keep alive in men's minds the consciousness of right and wrong. Punishment of offenders does not to-day greatly deter other offenders, mainly because it is so capriciously administered. Whenever penalty comes directly and inevitably, it does deter offenders. Nobody but a fool experiments with a circular saw in motion to see if there is not some pleasure in touching it with a finger. Its penalty comes with too unfailing regularity. But a police court? Has any one any good reason for being seriously afraid of it as things actually go? Or even some grades of higher courts; they are not held to their tasks, and men know it. Officials talk bombast which takes the edge off the words of really honest men; nothing can swerve them from their duty, they say; while their truculence is notorious. There is no hope for recovery in morals until the agents of morality regain conscience and integrity. Plenty of men with such traits exist; the need is to put them in the places where their traits will serve the public good.

"But the old ways of establishing morality still remain as the abiding ways. The claim of religion, rightly understood and interpreted, is still the claim to urge. Nothing can take the place of it; nothing ought to be asked to replace it."—Literary Digest.

The above is worthy of serious consideration. There is no need for pessimism, but there is need for reformation. This reformation must first begin in the homes. Instead of having decks of cards on center tables, people should have the Bible there, and should read and study it and practice its precepts daily. The fathers and mothers do not read and study the word of God with their children as they should. Children from their earliest infancy should be taught to know, to love and respect the Bible. When God is put out of the home, we also put him out of the church, the State, and the government. God enthroned and exalted in the home will be enthroned and exalted in social life and also in business. Men who love money so well that they are ready to sacrifice right and principle to get it also love money well enough to damn their souls. The man who would profiteer at the expense of the poor and helpless is far on the road that leads to hell and, without repentance, has no prospect of entering through the pearly gates into the city of God.

Parents must vigorously oppose practices that are now tolerated among the young. Too many fathers and mothers look upon the dance with favor instead of condemning it and using their influence to destroy it. The liberty between the sexes is license to do things that lead to misery and ruin. There is nothing good in a boy's or girl's dancing until three or four o'clock in the morning and then returning home and sleeping the greater part of the next day. If there were nothing else against dancing, the very fact that it unfits and disqualifies for the duties of life shows that it should be condemned and that there is nothing good in it. Too many people look upon the plain teaching of the word of God as a dead letter and not only fail to teach it to their children, but show by their every act that they do not have the love and reverence for the word of God that should characterize all Christians. The Bible should be read and studied in the home, in the school-in fact, everywhere. It is time that our churches, our fathers and mothers, and our people in general should wake up on this subject and inculcate and practice chastity and virtue everywhere and in all relations of life. As surely as this nation departs from Bible teaching, ignores and fails to practice the teaching of God's word, just that surely will it have a downfall. Human nature is the same the world over, and in order to be useful, intelligent, and happy, we must allow the word of God to dwell in our hearts, for the word of God is light and will guide us clear of the pitfalls of destruction.

* * *

"Children of Light." (1 Thess. 5: 5-11.)

Can we think of a more beautiful figure than this—"children of light?" As I write these words I look out upon a building, every window of which is ablaze with light, every room the home of attractive brightness. And my life is to be like that! And I look again, and I see a lighthouse sending out its strong, pure, friendly beams to guide the mariner as he seeks his "desired haven." And my life is to be like that! And I look once more, and I see a common road lamp, sending its useful light upon the busy street, helping the wayfarer as he goes from place to place. And my life is to be like that!

And if my soul is all lit up in friendly radiance for others, the light will be my own defense. Light always scares away the vermin. Lift up a stone in the meadow, let in the light, and see how a hundred secret things will scurry away. And light in the soul scares away "the unfruitful works of darkness;" they cannot dwell with the light. Light repels the evil one; it acts upon him like burning flame. Yes, we are well protected when we are clothed in "the armor of light."

But how can we become "children of light," holy homes of protective and saving radiance? Happily, it is not our lot to provide the light, it is ours to provide the lamp. If we offer the lamp, the Lord will give the flame.—John Henry Jowett.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. Hall

B. C. Goodpasture Comes to Georgia.

The West End Avenue brethren, of Atlanta, are to be congratulated on securing the services of Brother B. C. Goodpasture for twelve months, beginning the first Lord's day in August. Brother Goodpasture, without any doubt, is one of the best preachers the church of Christ has. He is a graduate of the David Lipscomb College, and, though a young man, has had a number of years' experience in the work since his graduation. It was my pleasure to assist him in a revival in the fall of last year while he was at Shelbyville, Tenn. I found the people there devoted to him, and every indication that he is a man who keeps himself fully alive to every need of the work. His loyalty to our Lord and devotion to God's truth stands unquestioned, and we are expecting the very best for the work because of his able assistance. In the West End membership he will find some most congenial colaborers, and I am expecting the best year in the history of the work. I pray that the Lord may graciously grant them every needed blessing and that the glorious gospel of Christ may be sounded out as never before. 0 0 0

The Work at Griffin, Ga.

Sometime ago I had something to say on this page about a brother who lived in a town where we have no congregation and who proposed to give fifty dollars and the preacher a home if we would send a man to his place. We thought it better to send two men to a place like that; hence, Brethren A. R. Hill and J. Bedford Beck were selected. After some trouble in getting a tent for the meeting, it was begun, and these two splendid young preachers did honor unto themselves in the way they handled the truth. All told, fifteen souls were won for the pure, simple teaching of our Lord, and a worshiping body was put to work. Brother Beck was with them yesterday (August 1), and we are expecting to hear of more additions as a result of his visit.

The brother referred to above is A. M. Strickland, of Griffin, and he gave the fifty dollars and more to the work, Brother Gus Richmond, of the West End Avenue congregation, falling in with fifty dollars, and the West End Avenue treasurer supplying the balance. We are all so happy over this good meeting, and now we are anxious to see the good work started at another place. At this writing Brother Hill is in a meeting at Trion, Ga., and Brother Beck is helping Brother E. H. Ijams and me at Fort Valley.

0 0 0

No Greater Joy.

John, in writing to Gains, says: "Greater joy have I none than this, to hear of my children walking in the truth." (3 John 4.) I believe, if the reader will pardon me for the reference, that I can take this statement and make it wholly mine. And this statement being true, it is just as true to say that greater sorrow have I none than to hear of those whom I have led to Christ turning aside after error. Incident to my leaving this field for a while, and in connection with what was said on this page last week, I hope it is not amiss to give the following words from Brother W. C. Graves, who now lives at Birmingham, Ala., addressed to me on July 5:

I have been told that you have made your plans to leave the Atlanta work and go to California. I was told this sometime ago, but thought you would have had something to say about it in the Gcspel Advocate before now, and that is the reason I have not written you about it sooner. Your new field being so far from the present one makes me feel that we may never see each other again. For this reason I want to take this occasion to express my appreciation for the light you have given me concerning the kingdom of God and for the personal help you have given me in helping me to develop myself so as to be able to preach the gospel of Christ to others; and let me say that your labor of love has not been in vain, for I am still preaching it, and stronger than ever. I hope that I may so live that you will have the right to rejoice when thinking of me.

I want to say to Brother Graves that I so much appreciate what he says and shall never worry one moment about him. He knows the truth and loves it, and so long as he lives I am expecting to hear of his teaching it to others. Brother R. L. Harwell, one of our elders, worshiped at West End, Birmingham, in the forenoon of the fourth Lord's day in July, and had some fine things to say about Brother Graves' preaching in a short talk that he made to us at West End, Atlanta, that night. He is proud, and so are all of us, of his splendid growth and development. Brother Graves obeyed the gospel in our second meeting at East Point, Ga., with some thirty-five others. He married, a few years ago, one of our best girls, and she has been, and will continue to be, a great help to him. May the Lord continue to bless them.

0 0 0

The Work in New York.

I very much rejoice over the work that has been started in New York. A fine letter from Brother J. M. McKee thrills me. His many friends in Atlanta are so glad to know that he and his will not put their light under a bushel while away from Atlanta in that big city, where they have not the encouragement of the many believers with whom they associated while in Atlanta. tried to teach all the members that whenever they move to a place where there is no congregation they should get busy and establish one. This we must do if we allow God's purpose in us to be fullled. Paul says that we have been joined "to him who was raised from the dead, that we might bring forth fruit unto God." (Rom. 7: 4.) See that you hear fruit, if you would be ultimately saved. Christ says: "Every branch in me that beareth not fruit, he taketh it away: and every branch that beareth fruit, he cleanseth it, that it may bear more fruit." (John 15: 2.) Please let every one who knows of any disciple who has moved to New York send the name and address to J. M. McKee, 105 West Sixty-fourth Street, New York, and he will look them up. Furthermore, let those of us who do not live there see that no stone is left unturned to put one of the best preachers we have in that city for all of his time.

0 0 0

News Items.

Brother Cuff, some weeks ago, conducted a good meeting at Dalton, baptizing four, if my memory serves me right, and greatly strengthening the work with his able preaching. He will move to Macon next month. We are delighted to have him make Georgia his home.

Brother Templeton has recently conducted meetings at Cedartown and at Morven. Much good was done at each place. He is now at Pleasant Grove, not far from Trion.

By the time this reaches our readers Brother J. B. Beck will have entered the work at Savannah. I presume his address will be 109 East President Street. Anyway, so address him till further notice. His coming to this State to live, with that of Brethren Goodpasture and Cuff, gives us three more men for the State. We sorely need that many more, at least. We have work for two single men and a place where we could use a man with a small family. We could also use a married man who can teach as far as the eleventh grade and can preach the gospel. Address me at 275 Oak Street, Atlanta, Ga.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT

Conducted by C. E. WOOLDRIDGE

350 Missouri Avenue

Fort Worth, Texas

Activities at Fort Worth, Texas, August 1.

South Side-Central-Tice Elkins preached at morning and evening hours, doing baptizing at evening services.

Central—John Straiton preached morning and evening. Glenwood—T. W. Phillips, Jr., preached at morning service.

Brooklyn Heights-J. Fred Killian preached at the morning hour.

Lakeview—Tice Elkins preached at 3 P.M. and Fred Killian at 8 P.M. Services each evening this week, Tice Elkins preaching.

North Side—Ben West began his regular work with the church here, preaching at both services.

Diamond Hill-J. E. Wainright, of Texarkana, recently closed a splendid meeting here.

T. W. Phillips, of Fort Worth, is in a good meeting at Era, Texas.

Ben West, from Waxahachie, Texas, and C. E. Wooldridge from Murfreesboro, Tenn., moved to Fort Worth last week to make their homes here for some time.

* * *

Texas and Oklahoma Church News.

Prairie Hill, Texas—John E. Dunn held a good meeting, with two baptisms reported.

Bynum, Texas—J. S. Dunn reports eight baptisms before the close of the meeting there.

Jesse, Texas—F. L. Young began a meeting on August 1 Bailey, Texas—Thomas E. Milholland reports "fine interest, large crowds, good singing, good preaching, and four baptisms to date."

J. W. Chism, of Hillsboro, Texas, is in a meeting at Ferris, Texas. He will begin at West Mountain, Texas, on August 20.

R. H. Howard, of Holdenville, Okla., will begin the annual meeting at Corley, Ark., on August 12.

Corsicana, Texas—M. C. Cuthbertson conducting mission meeting near the city. Good audience and interest.

Maud, Okla.—W. P. Skaggs in a good meeting, with eleven baptisms the first week. He begins at Justin, Texas, on August 15, and at Chalk, Texas, the first Lord's day in September.

David Lipscomb College Notes.

BY A. B. L.

We are glad to learn of several students who are coming from Canada.

In response to a suggestion made in a former issue, a good friend of the school proposes to be one of nine persons to support a worthy young man who is unable to pay his way through college. Where are the eight?

We have received many expressions of approval for our action in adding Brother F. B. Srygley to our corps of Bible teachers.

W. Claude Hall, a new member of our faculty, closed a meeting at Senath, Mo., with a house full of interested people. He is now at Dorris' Chapel, west of Trenton, Tenn.

Now is the psychological time for the friends of the College to speak a word in behalf of the College to prospective students. Many parents are deciding for the weal or woe of their children.

A new bulletin is being printed. It will contain some fine views of the College buildings and pictures of some of the faculty. Give us your name and address for the mailing list.

Two additional tennis courts will be built for the young ladies

Nearly all of the Junior Class have made reservations for the coming session. This insures a large graduating class if they make the grades.

The president of the school attended sessions of a new association of colleges and normal schools that was organized last week at the George Peabody College for Teachers. Prominent educators were present from all parts of the country.

The College office was christened with a wedding last week, the president performing the ceremony. The happy couple were Mr. T. L. Jones and Miss Willie Jones. Long life to the Joneses!

And on the next day Brother Jones, of Engleville, Tetta, entered three of his children. Again we say, "long life to the Joneses!"

We are glad to announce an arrangement with George Peabody College for Teachers whereby our high-school graduates may pursue courses in domestle science, industrial arts, and other special branches in this splendid educational institution in conjunction with their work at David Lipscomb College. This means they will have the privilege of expensive laboratories, libraries, symnasium, and swimming pool at a very small additional cost.

We appreciate a note of friendly encouragement from Coleman Overby, of Murray, Ky. He writes as follows: "Allow me to rejoice with you over the prospects of the opening of David Lipscomb College. It lives me genuine pleasure to think of the great good this a good has accomplished and of its future, which seems so flattering. And, too, I am glad you are giving notes of interest in the Gospel Advocate of this work. I believe it will create an interest and love for the school that heretofore has not existed."

Short Sermons.

Let all the intervals or void space of time be employed in prayers, reading, meditating, works of nature, recreation, charity, friendliness and neighborhood, and means of spiritual and corporal health. Never walk with any man, or undertake any triding employment, merely to pass the time away.—Jeremy Taylor,

It is an easy yet idle pastime to echo the phrases which characterize the present period, its unrest and uncertainty, its splendid resolves and instant reactions. It were no less easy to sit in the seat of the scornful and to pass mocking judgments upon the false hopes and disappointed ideals which the whole world is contemplating, but for the sure faith that grips the heart of all mankind and leaves the cynic dumb. The Christian can view without dismay an earth that appears once more without form and void while darkness covers the deep, because he finds the same creative energy at work as when "the Spirit of God was brooding upon the face of the waters."—Selected.

If there were no future—no judgment—nothing but this earthly life, and sheer extinction at the end of it, prayer might still be prompted by a sort of faith in a ruler of life—in a dispenser of its blessings; praise might now and then be suggested by occasional gratitude; but the greatest of all motives for worship, public and private, would not exist. As it is, we Christians adore our God, the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit—if intelligently—we adore him with a view of that vast eternity which is certainly before us, and compared with which the claims and occupations of all here are infinitely little. We try to learn in worship, as by God's grace we may, to tone the manners, the occupations, the mental and moral bearing, which will engage us in the countless ages of life to come.—H. P. Liddon.

BUILD YOURSELF UP SO AS TO FEEL BETTER

Eat and sleep better, as well as look better, by taking Hood's Sarsapa-It is an all-the-year-round medicine, good in all seasons.

It purifies, enriches and revitalizes the blood, creates an appetite, aids digestion, assists assimilation of the food you eat, and wonderfully builds up the whole system. In many cases succeeds where other medicines fail to do any good.

If you need a mild effective athartic, get Hood's Pills.

"Diamond Dyes" No Risk Then!

Don't Spoil or Streak Material in Dyes that Fade or Run

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any womtams directions so simple that any wom-an can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, drape-ies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind— then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist

has color card

TETTERINE

Ends Complexion Worries

Healing, Antiseptic, Soothing, Fragrant.

66c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

To Reduce Fever Relieve Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely safe to use as it does not depress the heart even in extreme cases of debžity or weak beart, neurasthenia or anaemia. Manufactured by a formula in use by leading physicians senerally. 19 parts pure Aspirin, 1 part pure Caffeine, 4 parts excipient, in convenient tablet form. 35c per package at your druggists or by mail from the manufacturers, Recomment Laboratories. In Children. Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Alabama.

Coxey, August 3.-A meeting began at Mount Carmel on the fourth Lord's day in July and closed on Saturday following at the water. Brother Thornton Crews, of Rogersville, did the preaching. Brother Crews is a the preaching. very able young man and won many friends while here. There were eight additions by primary obedience and eight restorations, and the church was greatly strengthened .- P. W. Ball.

Arkansas.

Egypt, August 2 .- The meeting at Cash closed at the water yesterday. Eight were baptized, ten were re-stored, and the church was greatly They supported me well. built up. began a meeting at Egypt last night. James E. Laird.

Texarkana, August 2.—Since last report I have been very busy in the Lord's work. My evangelistic work has been confined to small congregations in several States, who seem to be just as zealous and energetic about the Father's business as possible. local work is at its best. Many have been baptized since last report, with quite a number of additions to the congregation from other sources and over fourteen hundred dollars sub-scribed to the Arkansas Christian College. Our prospect at mission points grows brighter daily. Brother L. O. Stark is preaching regularly at one mission point, and we hope to have others before many months. We are cooperating with our efficient corps of elders to make College Hill a really New Testament church. Visitors are always welcome.-J. E. Wainwright.

Kentucky.

Leslie, August 2.—My meeting with the Fairview congregation, near Hardyville, was well attended. Interest was good throughout. Three "became obedient to the faith." I promised them a month's meeting in 1921. began a meeting here yesterday. I will preach in this section until Au-gust 22.—Herbert E. Winkler.

Melber, August 4.--I closed a meeting at Sharp last Sunday, which resulted in seven additions by baptism. The church there is in much better condition than it once was. I will go from here to Chattanooga, where will take up regular work with the St. Elmo congregation. I will begin there on the third Sunday in this month, the Lord willing .- L. E. Pryor.

Wingo, August 2.-The meeting at Hickory Grove, near Almo, closed yes-The results were fourteen baptisms and one restoration. We are expecting to see greater accomplishments later. Of those baptized, two were from the Baptists and two from the Presbyterians. The church is making splendid progress. The singing was led by Brother Wilford United ing was led by Brother Wilford Heflin, of Boaz, who is also a preacher of the word .- Alonzo Williams.

Mississippi.

Jacinto, August 4.—The greatest meeting ever held at this place has just closed. Brother R. L. Colley, of Millyille Ark., did the preaching. The Millville, Ark., did the preaching. attendance was large throughout and much interest was manifested. There were seventeen baptized and two reinstated. Brother Colley preaches with power and in the spirit of love. We hope to have him with us again. May hope to have him with us again. God's blessings rest upon his children everywhere.-Mrs. J. I. Lamb.

Oklahoma.

Checotah, August 3.—I have just closed a meeting at Mellette, with seventeen additions-eight baptized and nine restored. The deacon of the Baytist Church was baptized. I put a congregation of thirty-seven members to work for the Lord. The community is stirred as never before. The Baptists are talking of having a debate. I am to begin at Webber Falls to-morrow night.-Charles L. Speir.

Ravia, August 1.—The meeting at Havia, August 1.—The meeting at Havana, Ark., closed last Sunday night. There were nine baptisms. This little church is a good one. They know how to make a preacher know his work is appreciated, which goes a long way in helping a preacher keep courage enough to keep up the fight. I am now at this place in a meeting, and the outlook is good for a good meeting. I shall go from here to Hobart, Ark, for my next meeting.— D. S. Ligon.

Tennessee.

Etna, August 2.—I recently held three short meetings—one at South Point, one at Kettle Mills, and one at Greenfield Bend, all in Maury County. I was born in sight of the Kettle Mills meetinghouse, and taught my meetinghouse, and taught my first school in Greenfield Bend twenty-three years ago; and South Point is on Love's Branch, which was named for father's people. So I was considerably at home. We had good attendance. At South Point there was one baptized and one restored; at Kettle Mills tized and one restored; at Kettle Mills, three baptized and four restored; at Greenfield Bend, one baptized,-Earnest C. Love.

Paris, August 3.—Brother John Taylor, of Waverly, began a meeting for us on the first Lord's day in July and continued it till the third Lord's day. He preached the pure and simple gos-pel of the Lord Jesus Christ to large and attentive audiences, and we feel that much and lasting good will result from the meeting. Eleven obeyed their Lord in baptism and two were restored to fellowship. The Episcopal Church building has been kindly offered us, and we are now meeting there. There were seventy-three present at our regular Lord's-day service last Sunday. Brethren, pray for us that we may still grow, and that we may hold out faithful to the end.—Mrs. James A. Patterson.

END OF EIGHT YEARS MISERY

Used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Recovered.

Newark, N. J.—"The doctor said I had an organic trouble and treated me for several weeks.

At times I could not walk at all and I walk at all and I suffered with my back and limbs so I often had to stay in bed. I suffered off and on for eight y e ars. Finally I beard that Lydia E. Pinkham's V e g e-table Compound was a good medicine and tried it with splendid effect. I can now do my house-work and my washing. I have recom-mended your Vegetable Compound and your Blood Medicine and three of my friends are taking them to advantage. You can use my name for a testimonial.''

— Mrs. THERESA COVENTRY, 75 Burnett St., Newark, N. J.

You are invited to write for free advice

No other medicine has been so successful in relieving woman's suffering as has Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Women may receive free and helpful advice by writing the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Mass. Such letters are received and answered by women only and held in strict confidence. confidence.

Comfortable, Healthful Nights for Baby follow the use of the safe, pleasant, purely vegetable, guaranteed non-alcoholic, non-narcotic preparation

MRS. WINSLOW'S

The Infants' and Children's Regulator

Medical skill has never devised a safer or more satisfactory remedy for over-coming colic, diarrhoea, flatulency, constipation and similar disorders. Thousands of parents owe baby abounding health to Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. They find it never fails to bring quick and gratifying results. Pleasant to take, pleasant to take, pleasant to give. Open published formula appears on every label.

At All Druggists

Our Sabbath Day. BY J. J. VANHOUTIN.

The two greatest days of the old Jewish covenant given by Moses were the seventh-day Sabbath and the yearly Sabbath which followed the passover, and every seven years these two Sabbaths came together upon the same day; then that day was called "a high day," or double Sabbath. (John 19: 31.) The seventh-day Sabbath was a rest day for the body, a rest from daily manual labor. I have always maintained that it was a type of our day of salvation and spiritual rest which Jesus gives to the weary and heavy-laden souls who come to him and take his yoke (law of pardon) upon them. (Matt. 19: 31.) find rest to the soul, while the law of Moses only gave rest to the body. My friend, which rest do you prefer? Our Sabbath day of rest, day of salvation, began on the day of Pentecost. Our Sabbath-day rest for the soul is "Behold, now is the going on now. accepted time; behold, now is the day of salvation." (2 Cor. 6: 2.) "For we which have believed do enter into rest." (Heb. 4: 3.) There is another rest that the resting man will enter into after he shall have finished the work of the Lord which he began when he entered into the rest to the soul by obeying the gospel. They will rest from their labors. Rev. 14: 13 explains this better than I can. Joshua had given the people rest, then the land of Canaan would have been the only heaven for man, and no other day would have been mentioned. But the gospel day is established and remains here as a "rest to the people of God." And while we are enjoying that Sabbath-day rest to the soul, Paul says: "Let us labor therefore to enter into that rest, lest any man fall after the same example of unbelief." Christians may fall by their unbelief and fail to enter into the future rest which the yearly Sabbath represented, which was the next day after the passover. Christ is our Passover. "For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us: therefore let us keep the feast." (1 Cor. 5: 7, 8.) It will take us our lifetime to observe our Passover (Christ), and then we will enter into the great Sabbath of rest shown unto us by the yearly Sabbath which followed the Jewish passover. The seventh-day Sabbath was removed, and the gospel day with remission of sins and rest to the soul was given in its place. The yearly passover and Sabbath have been removed, and Christ for our Passover, with heaven beyond the veil of death, was given in their place.

The law which controlled the observance of the two great national Sabbaths was honored by our Lord and taken away, and Jesus rested in the tomb and observed the rest part of both of the God-given Sabbaths, and has given us a new and better covenant sealed with better blood, better promises, and a better home than a lot in old Jerusalem. Their Sabbaths began at sunset at the dividing line between day and night, and no nation ever had such a law. As I do not aim to be speculative, I will ask: As the night part of the Sabbath came first, did that night part represent the darkness of sin, in which kingdom of darkness the gospel found the nations of people? And did not the light part of that seventh-day Sabbath represent the light of the gospel which shines in the heart and brings the person out of darkness into the light of God's truth, where they can walk in the light? And did not the first half of the yearly Sabbath, being darkness, represent the conscious state of the righteous dead between death and the resurrection? And did not the day part of that hely convocation day of praise and thanksgiving represent the redemption of the righteons beyond the resurrection after observing their Passover, which is Christ? Here rests my hope.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHIII TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic prop-erties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

GOOD TEACHERS IN DEMAND
AT BETTER SALARIES
The schools, colleges, seminaries, and universities throughout the South are begging for assistance in inding teachers with proper qualifications, and better salaries are being offered. We are needing hundreds of teachers to supply the demand. Any well-prepared teacher would do well to write us.

FISH TEACHERS' AGENCY
R. A. Clayton, Mgr. Birmingham, Ala.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freekle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifler, at very, very small cost.

Your greeer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orehard white for a few cents, Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freckles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless and never irritates.

The strain of modern business life is too much for the nerves. You need a nerve sedative. Try

A Nerve Sedative that is recommended for Nervous-ness, Sleeplessness, Epilepsy, Hysteria, Chronic Headache, Nervous Irritation, and for use by those addicted to the Alcoholic or Drug Habit.

SOLS BY ALL DRUGGISTS

MILES MEDICAL DO., Elkhart, Ind.

HEADACHE
Bad for Health
Upsets Nerves
CAPUDINE

The "Two Evils."
BY H. W. JONES.

"Hath a nation changed its gods, which yet are no gods? but my people have changed their glory for that which doth not profit. Be astonished, O ye heavens, at this, and be horribly afraid, be ye very desolate, saith Jehovah. For my people have committed two evils: they have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." (Jer. 2: 11-13.)

This is God's message, by the mouth of Jeremiah, concerning the apostasy of Israel, in the days of Josiah, king of Judah. It was bad and sad indeed for God's own people, Israel, to forsake the true and living God who had done so much for them; but it was still worse and another evil in the sight of God and man for the people to turn to idol worship from the living God. Yes, "they, Israel, have forsaken me, the fountain of living waters, and hewed them out cisterns, broken cisterns, that can hold no water." Forsaking the true and living God and bowing to man-made gods, "which are yet no gods," is yet like leaving a pure fountain of living waters and hewing out broken cisterns that can hold no water. Then how thirsty, how parched, and how desolate people would become in so doing! And how unreasonable, how astonishing, how desolate, and how dangerous for people to forsake the Lord Christ to-day and turn to the doctrines and commandments of men! But with all this, they are doing that very thing all round us. It is one evil for God's people to forsake the Lord; and when they begin to set up gods of their own choosing, "my people have committed two evils," saith the Lord.

But how are people to-day committing these "two evils" condemned by the prophet of old? I answer: By turning away, forsaking, the plain teaching of Christ and the apostles as revealed in the Bible and then espousing Russellism, Mormonism, Adventism, or any other "ism," false doctrine, theory, or speculation gotten up by puny man. It seems to-day so many Christians become restless and tired of walking in the old paths our fathers have trod that many easily "take hold" of "something new" in religion, forgetting the while that anything in religion that is younger than one thousand nine hundred years old is too "new" to be true. We must be faithful "as it is written." Let us try to get closer and closer to the truth revealed in God's word as the days come and go. Let us resolve that we will not be guilty of the "two evils" of (1) forsaking the true way and then (2) setting up a way of our own, "broken disterns that can hold no water."

Lord, keep us, and help us by the counsel of thy holy word to be humble, faithful, and true to the end, in Jesus' name, we pray!

The next time you buy calomel ask for

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are nausealess, safe and sure.

Medicinal virtues retained and improved. Sold only in sealed packages, Price 35c,

ELDERS =

Here Is Something New For You

One Hundred Communion Talks and Prayers by 100 of our most prominent Preachers.

This neat little silk-bound book of over 200 pages fits the hand, the pocket, and the heart.

Price, $1.50

Yours for Service

Public Speakers' Supply

Or Box 124)

RIDGWAY, PA.

MR. DODSON WARNS USERS OF CALOMEL

Bays Drug Acts Like Dynamite on Liver and You Lose a _____ Day's Work.

There's no reason why a person should take sickening, salivating calomel when a few cents buys a large bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone—a perfect substitute for calomel.

It is a pleasant, vegetable liquid which will start your liver just as surely as calomel, but it doesn't make you sick and can not salivate.

Children and grown folks can take Dodson's Liver Tone, because it is perfectly harmless.

fectly harmless.

Calomel is a dangerous drug. It is mercury and attacks your bones. Take a dose of nasty calomel today and you will feel weak, sick and nauseated tomorrow. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of Dodson's Liver Tone instead and you will wake up feeling great. No more biliousness, constipation, sluggishness, headache, coated tongue or sour stomach. Your druggist says if you don't find Dodson's Liver Tone acts better than horrible calomel your money is waiting for you.

TETTERINE Drives Away Pimples

and leaves your skin soft and spotless. 50c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Gs.

Grandma Was Ignorant

But she used the best remedies she knew. You haven't her excuse for not knowing that is the modern skin remedy. 50 cents and $1; at your druggist's Medicated

Ointment

Soap, 25 cents,

PELLAGRA

FREE Booklet explaining cause of this disease and how it can be treated successfully at home. Sent in plain, scaled envelope. Write for yours rodey. Dept. F-29. Dr. W. J. McGrary, Inc., Carbon Hill, Ala.

NO JOKE TO BE DEAF

CHURCH NEWS

Tennessee.

Franklin, Route 3, August 1,—Brother H. M. Phillips, of Tuscumbia, Ala., recently held a ten-days' meeting at Berea, with one baptism and the church much revived. Brother Phillips is now in a meeting at Tuscumbia. Brother F. C. Sowell closed a week's meeting at Beasley's Chapel on July 25, with one baptism. He now goes to Texas for several meetings.—W. H. Bizwell.

Halls, Route 2, August 2.—I recently closed a meeting at Pryorsburg, Ky., with no additions. Several who knew the truth were too indifferent to obey it. The church there has no house. They meet in the town schoolhouse. Regardless of this fact, they supported the meeting well. I began at Antioch, near here, yesterday, to continue day and night till August 15. I go from here to Paducah for a tent meeting, beginning on August 16.—F. L. Paisley.

Riverside, August 2.—Beginning on Sunday night, July 25, I conducted a meeting at one of my mission points, Seibers Chapel, at night only, for one week, with eight baptisms and the best interest and attendance we have had at that point. The spirit of carnal war is passing away and the people are hungering for the gospel everywhere I go, and the outlook for the cause of the Christ is bright, if we will work, Brethren, "preach the word," in season and out of season, in the spirit of the Master.—H. N. Mann.

Lewisburg, August 1.—On July 22 I closed an eleven-days' meeting at Oak Valley, near Benton, Ky., with two additions. One of these is a boy of fourteen years who now earnestly contends with his schoolmates for the faith, and he declares his determination to "preach the word." Brethren, if we would encourage more boys to enter the ministry, we would hear less about the dearth of preachers. My meeting at Bluff Springs, near this place, is progressing nicely, but no additions to date. I go from here to Pieasant View.—Robert Alexander.

Cookeville, August 3.—Our meeting at Antioch, in Jackson County, continued for eight days, with splendid altendance and interest. Eight persons were added by confession and baptism. The church was well pleased with our efforts and is rejoicing over the meeting, calling it one of the best ever held there. On the last Lord's day in July we began a meeting at Antioch, in Putnam County, and continued it nine days, with splendid interest and attendance. Seven grown men and women confessed Christ and were baptized. This, too, was a very fine meeting, quite satisfactory to those concerned. On next Lord's day Brother Adamson will begin a meeting in Cookeville, to continue for two weeks. Brother Murphy will lead the singing. We look forward to a good meeting on August 15 I will begin a meeting at McBroom's Chapel.—Charles L. Talley.

Legate, August 5.—Brother F. P. Taylor and I have labored for the cause of primitive Christianity five weeks in this section of Stewart County. We spent three weeks at Indian Mound and two weeks here. The Indian Mound meeting was maintained by the Belmont Avenue congregation, of Nashville. The meeting here was supported by the ladies' Bible class of the Oakland congregation. Three adults have obeyed the gospei since we began the meeting here. Indeed, the harvest is ripe in this section of the county. We cannot answer all the calls for tent meetings. From now on we will use two tents. Montgomery County is now supporting two evangelists and two tents in mission work. This should be an example to other counties and to other congregations. My preaching brethren, get the congregations of your county interested in this work. Perhaps they will do more of this work when they are taught more.—William P. Walker.

Texas.

Fort Worth, August 2.—The meeting at Riverside closed last Friday. Four were baptized, several were restored,

Figure it Out

A quart of milk and a package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder make

Two Quarts of Ice Cream

There is nothing else to put into it and nothing to do but stir the powder into the milk and freeze it.

Five kinds: Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon, Chocolate, and Unflavored.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY Le Roy, N. Y.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make money—
itilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are ciamoring for squabs. A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondainss will start you right. Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Figeons No. 5." Carolina Pigeon Plant. Hinton S. C.

Let Cuticura Be Your Beauty Doctor and several took membership, with the result that they have a new con-gregation there now, which met for the first time yesterday evening at the schoolhouse in Riverside. They reported a fine service. Two more were baptized last night at the Southside-Central Church, in Fort Worth. preach several nights for the Highland Park Church, in the Lakeview Addition, another new congregation, and keep up my regular work also with the Southside Church. Our work is fine and getting better. The ladies of the church meet each Tuesday at the church and sew, and they have on hand a good supply of garments for the poor. Several sewing machines and tables have been donated. These deed of this kind makes the claims of Lord stand out clearer .- Tice Elkins

Mount Pleasant, August 1.-Several months ago I had a statement in the Gospel Advocate concerning a call to this work. There were only three members of the church of Christ at this point, and, being very poor, they were not able to support a preacher in a financial way. Several brethren and sisters scattered about the country contributed about fifteen dollars to this work. Then one brother at Gunter made a monthly contribution of five dollars to the work, which enabled me to continue the work. the second Lord's day in July I began a protracted meeting with this small band and continued it ten days. infidelity and sectism of all kinds to contend with, but gave them the "word only." During the meeting I baptized eleven and two took member-shlp, which, with four others who were baptized during my monthly visits before the meeting and the original three, brings the number up to twenty. Of this number, only five are under thirty-five years of age, and Of this number, only five are others baptized ranged up to seventy. Brethren, if the near-by churches could only realize their duty and the good that even a small contribution to this work would do, they surely would not hesitate to make it. I am going to stay with this work, if it is the Lord's will, until the cause is firmly established in this ungodly region, if I have to walk to the appointments. I go now to hold the annual meeting for the Gunter Bible College congregation at Gunter. Pray for me.-Ed. S. Dun-

Milford, August 1 .- We closed a tenmeeting at Luling on Friday ng. Twelve discourses were hed. Notwithstanding the facts evening. preached. that some were sick and did not get to attend but little and political speakings were on hand for several different evenings, yet we had a good attendance from some of the best people in the town, and a deep interest was manifested in every service. Nine manifested in every service. Nine young people were baptized upon their confession of faith in Christ, and one sister took membership in the congre-The meeting was held in the Bell Haven Chapel, a neat and beautiful structure of concrete and brick, built upon the English plan, and one of the best church structures in that My home while there was in county. the Rest Cottage of the Bell Haven Orphans' Home, and it was a great pleasure and a real source of inspiration to be associated with them in the Home. This is a Home of which the brotherhood should be proud; and they are proud of it, and it is being well supported by them. Sister Jennie Clarke has between fifty-five and sixty boys and girls there, and she is doing a wonderful part by them. They are as fine a set of boys and girls as I ever saw, and they seem to love Sister Clarke as they would their own mother; in fact, some of them know nothing about any other mother. one of the best-managed Homes of which I know anything. I shall begin a meeting at Garrett next Lord's day. After this I return to Tennessee for work.-George W. Farmer.

West Virginia.

Buffalo, August 3.-I have received $42 for personal use in the Lord's work and $38.50 to be added to our church building fund. I send personal re-ceipts to all donors. May God bless and prosper every one who has helped us in any way, and this includes the Gospel Advocate force. I believe the Advocate management is in sympathy with every really meritorious work. This will secure to them the blessings of God. Since Mrs. Fonner was hurt we have had a hard time of it, as we have had no one to help us to do the work, save as our neighbors helped us some, We are not able to hire a regular attendant. This has caused me to lose some time from the work, but I hope to make up for that when we are in better shape. I am now personally disabled from a severe attack of my old complaint. This adattack of my old complaint. monishes me to put this work in shape, so that the brethren can care for it when I leave the shores of time. cannot do this unless the brethren will help out on the meetinghouse now. Please set aside a part of your offering for the house. We are receiving bids for the material. Address me at Buffalo, W. Va., Box 81.—F. P. Fonner.

A Real Iron Tonic.

It is good to know that there is today a truly effective preparation for the relief of those that suffer from nervousness, weakness, the effects of overwork, of care, anxiety, and worry.

It is called "Peptiron," and has many advantages as a preparation of iron in that it does not cause constipation, nor disturb the stomach, nor ininre the teeth.

It is a real iron tonic, combining iron so as to secure the best effects of this great strengthener, with nux, celery, pepsin, and other equally approved tonics and digestives. There is no extravagance, no overstatement in the claims that are made for it. There is no flamboyancy in its advertising. It is a product of the long-established and widely known C. I. Hood Company, and this fact is a guarantee of its superior worth. Peptiron is sold by all druggists.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

Your Greatest Problem-That Boy of Yours

What kind of a man will he be ten, twenty, or thirty years from now? You know-every parent knows-that it depends entirely upon the training he is getting right nowhis associations, his ideals, his inspirations.

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, Principal of the Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., has been training boys for twenty-five years. He wants your boy. He recognizes in him one of the men who may some day manage big affairs, and he wants to train him for that end. His school has been built and equipped and his instructors chosen with the first and only consideration of giving the boy the mental and physical training, the associations with clean, highminded men, the ideals of character. the inspirations to ambition, which the world expects. Robert K. Morgan is a Christian gentleman of strong, wholesome, inspiring personality, and wholesome, inspiring personancy, and his school is the material projection of that character. Write Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., to-day, and let him send you a catalogue and tell you what this school can do for your boy.

CANCERS CURED AT KELLAM HOSPITAL.

1617 West Main Street, Richmond, Va.

It is known beyond a doubt and admitted by most of the leading physicians and surgeons that cancer cannot be cured with the kulle, X-Ray, radium or acids. Cancers are permanently cured at The Kellam flospital, without the use of either.

Physicians and surgeons treated free at the hospital.

For the HAIR-

To make it soft, fluffy, and free from dan-

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-IRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

IN YE OLDEN TIME

Hoop skirts were worn by those who first asked the druggist for, and insisted on having, the genuine Golden Medical Discovery put up by fifty years

Dr. Pierce over fifty years ago. Dress has changed very much since then! But Dr. Pierce's medicines contain the same dependable ingredients. They are standard today just as they were fifty years ago.

Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery for the stomach and blood cannot be surpassed by any remedy today.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription for weak women has never been equalled for the distressing complaints incident to womanhood. What others say:

COVINGTON, KY.—"I have taken five bottles of Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery and am proud of my good health. Every winter I would have three or four spells of La Grippe and I used to get such weak spells, but I am stronger now than I ever was in my life."— MRS. IDA HILES, 1532 Banklick Street.

Need of the Gospel in South Carolina.

BY JAMES A. HARDISON.

I have been a resident of Greenville, S. C., for the past six months. We have no congregation here yet, but hope to have one within a few more months. We hope to have a meeting here sometime this year. Brother Burton is considering moving here from Union about the first of the year, after he gets the church house built there and the congregation can take care of itself.

There are several members here who have been accustomed to the organ in the worship. They meet once each month at Antioch, eight miles from Greenville. As yet I have not met with the people at Antioch. I have been to Union twice, and at Spartanburg with, Brother and Sister L. R. Briggs several times.

We met here in a private home one Lord's day, and Brother S. T. Nix visited us that day. I would like very much for us to meet every Lord's day, even in a private home. The people do not seem to be very much interested in this kind of worship, but perhaps they would be regular in attendance if the work were started. It is my intention to try to get them to meet this way and see how the work will come out.

We need laborers in this vineyard; and we must have them, if the cause of Christ is to prosper in South Carolina. There is now a mere scattering of disciples in this State. There is no large congregation in the State, Brother R. L. Ludlam, Jr., of Carnesville, Ga., is considering coming here for a meeting, and I sincerely trust that elther he or some other preacher will come in the near future and sow the seed of the kingdom where it will bring forth fruit to the honor and glory of God. There is so much good to be accomplished in mission fields like this, where people are hungering and thirsting for the bread of life.

Ext Tennessee Notes. BY VERNON ROZAR.

I left my father's home in Middle Tennessee on May 14 and came to Cleveland, Bradley County. I am now located in Athens, McMinn County. During the nine weeks that I have been engaged in this work I have preached only twenty-four discourses, but have been busy in visiting the brethren in their homes and getting acquainted with them. During this time I have visited seven different congregations.

Here in Athens we have a population of about four thousand people.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

PILES permanently disappear after using three jars of HAN-COCK'S PILE REMEDLY, or we will refund your money. If your case is not severe, it is probable that one jar will relieve you. Fo. all kinds of piles. Price, 50 cents a jar. At your druggist's or direct from

HANCOCK CHEMICAL COMPANY, Oxford, N. C Druggists, write for liberal proposition

HINDERCORNS Hemoves Corns, Calouses, etc., stope all pain, cuacres comfort to the teet, makes waiking easy. Isc. by mail or at Bruggists. Hiscox Chemital Works, Fatchingue, N. Y.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate, This town is one of the oldest towns in East Tennessee, the county seat of McMinn County, but has no house in which to worship God "as it is written." A brother has bought a lot at a cost of four hundred and fifty dollars, and is going to deed this to the church. Now we are going to build at ence, but we must have means to build with. We are going to do all that we can, and all help from without will be appreciated very much. Brethren, we must push this work here in East Tennessee.

I have been informed by reliable persons that there is not a loyal congregation in Meigs County and only one in Polk County. In McMinn we have six congregations that are taking God's word as it speaks, but here we have not a house. We have been meeting under shade trees since I came over, until last Lord's day, when we met under a tent that I have bought with my own means. The brethren had not met in about ten months until I came.

I am located here for the next year, and any brother or sister wishing to communicate with me about this or other work may address me at 315 Ohio Street, Athens, Tenn. I am here to help and encourage all I can, and any encouragement from the brethren abroad to those here will be appreciated. I see the need of encouraging words to the few here in East Tennessee. Some are almost discouraged and the work is falling behind. Let us awake to our duty and work as we have never worked before.

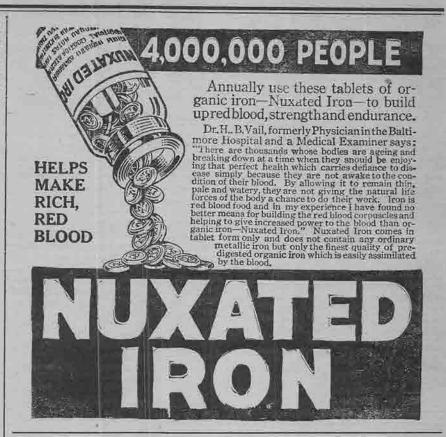

Missionary Report.

BY LILLIE OYPERT.

Contributions received during the second quarter of 1920 were as follows:

April—From Sister Straiton, for general expenses, $100; for furniture, $8. May—From Sister Straiton, for general expenses, $100; for furniture, $50. June—From Sister Straiton, for general expenses, $100. Total, $358.

I do not understand why the Lord is so good to one so unworthy as I am. Even my thanks and gratitude seem to come far short when I count my blessings. The above shows bountiful support from the dear brethren and sisters whom the Lord has given me, I sometimes have a feeling as the "man without a country," because I know so few of the brethren that I just count this as one of the things mentioned in Rom. 8: 28. Sometimes it is beyond us to see the truth in this passage and we must take it by faith, but in this case I think I get a glimpse of the truth of it. If I knew many of the brethren, I might sometimes think

MASSEY MILITARY SCHOOL

Junior R. O. T. C. On Preferred List of Colleges. Teachers, University Men. SCHOOL OPENS SEPTEMBER 8, 1920. Dopt. A.

Ferraline is a Natural Mineral, rich in Iron, Magnesium, Lithium and other health-giving minerals. It is made by the simple process of percolating distilled water thru Ferraline Mineral Earth, and it contains no drugs nor chemicals.

It has long been recognized as most effective in the treatment of Indigestion, Stomach Troubles and Rheumatism, and as a System-builder and Restorer it is of special value to those who suffer from Impoverished Blood.

Perraline is sold by your druggist and endorsed by prominent ministers, business and pro-

To secure an interesting booklet and the story of the "Sweetest thing without a Soul," write

"FERRALINE," Dept. 5, DEMOPOLIS, ALABAMA.

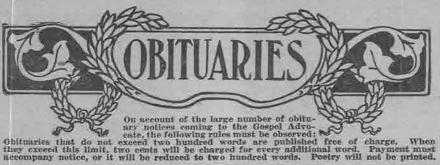

the personal acquaintance had a greater part in influencing them in my behalf, for it does always count to an extent even with the meanest of us; but as it is, I can consider every gift as one from the Master through his "peculiar people."

My furniture is all paid for, and, with all my bills paid up to date, I have a balance of about one hundred dollars. May God abundantly bless and prosper each one who has a part in the above. Pray for me that I may be more worthy.

The work continues to progress slowly. The Zoshigaya Sunday-school has almost doubled in teachers, students, and interest in the last month. Pray with us that it may continue to prosper,

Recuperation. There is not so much in the ordinary vacation as there is in a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which refreshes the tired blood, sharpens the dulied appetite, restores the lost courage. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla this summer.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Warren.

One that had been faithful to the gospel of the Lord and labored in the cause of Christ to save men, A. W. Warren, of Oxford, Ohio, departed this life on July 17, 1920. He was born on June 28, 1848. He fought a good fight, he kept the faith, and now he has finished his course, and awaits the promise given to all who are faithful to the end. He taught and preached the unadulterated facts of God's word forty-five years of his life.

L. B. WARREN.

Brown.

Ida B. Brown was born on October 7, 1881, in Wilson County, Tenn. At the early age of fifteen she obeyed the gespel under the preaching of Brother Will Logan, in Cheatham County, and became a member of the Sam's Creek congregation. She lived the Christian life for twenty-three years. She had a good influence in her community, we believe the world was made better by her having lived in it. On May 26, 1920, she died, leaving a husband and the abildren to mourn her loss. The good influence in her community, and writer spoke words of comfort to the bereaved, and her body was laid away to await the great resurrection morn. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." GEORGE W. GRAVES.

Phelps.

On July 31, 1920, God, in his mercy, saw fit to visit the home of our friend and brother, J. B. Phelps, and take his beloved companion in life. She was a noble Christian wife, mother, and woman—one of the few who could say in her agonles and lingering afflic-tion: "I do not ask Thee to lighten my burdens, but give me strength with which to bear them. Wreathe my face with smiles, that none but Thee may see my tears." Besides her husband, she leaves seven children to mourn in her absence. They are: Mrs. J. H. Condra, of Sequatchie, Tenn.; Roscoe, Landa, and Emma, of Dunlap, Tenn.; Mrs. Sydney Boss and Maud, of Chattanooga, Tenn.; and Mrs. John Tatum, of Atlanta, Ga. Prof. W. V. Freiley conducted the funeral services, after which she was laid to rest in Rankin Cemetery, Dunlap, Tenn.

MRS. C. E. BURROW.

March.

Sister Emily March was born on November 1, 1868, and passed to her reward on February 17, 1920. When thirteen years old she put on Christ in baptism, and lived faithful unto death. Her maiden name was "Emily Crocker," and she was married to John W. March on December 25, 1884.

She is survived by the husband, three many other relatives and friends. Sister March was adorned "in the incorruptible apparel of a more children, four grandchildren. ruptible apparel of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." The Antioch congrega-tion at Schochoh, Ky., lost in her death one of its best members. Enneral services were conducted over her remains by the writer of this, after which she was laid away in the Whippoorwill burying ground at Schechoh. She rests from her labors, and her works follow her.

HEBBERT E. WINKLER.

Pyle.

Brother Arkly Pyle departed this life on July 20, 1920, being fifty-nine years, four months, and three days old. He leaves a wife, one son, and two brothers to mourn his departure. He leaves a wife, one son, and He obeyed the gospel in the year 1878, under the preaching of Brother Sew ell, and lived a Christian life and died in the triumph of a living faith. He was married, October 7, 1903, to Miss Maud Kimsey, who watched at his bedside and did all she could in administering to his every want. She was kind and loving to him. I would com-fort her with the thought that he is now resting from his labors. He "is not dead, but sleepeth." He was always ready to defend the truth, and was always at the Lord's house on the Lord's day to worship him. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, after which his body was laid to rest in the Hillsboro cemetery, R. E. L. TAYLOR.

Winkler.

Carrie Alice Lassiter was born near Goodlettsville, Tenn., on February 2, 1851, and, being left an orphan, saw a hard time during the Civil War. On October 24, 1859, she and my fa-ther, P. H. Winkler, were married. Father was survived by her from De-cember 3, 1917, to September 29, 1919. They both are survived by eight of the twelve children born to them, four dying in infancy. She was indeed a mother to her children. She was baptized into Christ about 1897, having formerly been a Methodist. She was loved by all who knew her. During her married life she prayed that she and father might live to see all the children married and settled down: which thing they saw, and were glad. During the last two years of her life she was formented with a miserable disease, yet she did not complain. Brethren L. M. Jackson and J. E. Acuff conducted funeral services at the Charlotte Avenue church of Christ, In Nashville, Tenn. As when father died, her six sons served as pallbearers, and she was laid away by the side of father at Mount Olivet Ceme-HERBERT E. WINKLER.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer he shightest beed of feeling ashamed of your freekles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ource of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it hight and morning and you should soon see that even the worst resches have begun to disappear, while the lighter most have vanished cuttled, it is self-druc that more than one onne is freeded to completely clear the sion and gain as leastful clear complexity.

Be sure to ask for the double strength (minne as this is soft under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freekles.

Try This For Sore Throa

On retiring fill your nostrils with Eucapine Salve. Sniff the salve back into the air passages of the head and throat until it reaches the tonsits and urula and you taste the salve. This is best done lying down, fallow under back, head thrown back that the melting salve may reach the head cavities. Also turn the head down and forward and to right and left; to flow the salve over the inflamed surfaces in the cavities of the head. In the inorming the pain and soreness will be gone. To make sure place Eucapine Salve on the back of the tongue with your finger. Same treatment for colds, nose sores, catarrho if headaches, catarrho fie head, nose and throat. If you swallow a little it won't hurt you. You'll soon learn to think that one of your very best friends is Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic (Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Infianmation) 50c the jar at your druggist's or by mail from

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,

INTERSMITE

Sold for SO Years FOR MALARIA CHILLS AND FEVER Also a Pine General Strengthening Tonic. At All Irang Stores.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Volume LXII. No. 34.

NASHVILLE, TENN., AUGUST 19, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Edifying as the Need May Be	861
Our Contributors	802
Book Notices	806
Hame Reading	807
At Home and Abroad	808
Editorial	810
Current Thought
Western Department	813
Queries	814
Georgia and the Far Southern Field	833
Objection and the par Southern Pierd	815
Obituaries	820
Church News 818	-821
A Destitute Field	822
A 1719 to Alabama	822
Conditions, Needs, and Progress in South Carolina
The Church House at Corpus Christi, Texas	822

Edifying as the Need May Be

Teachers and Dancing.

I do not know of another thing that needs to be more closely guarded by the overseers of God's flock than to see to it that the teachers of the Bible classes in the church are men and women of good moral character. It is not enough to ask whether such and such an applicant is a member of the church, but it should be known that he or she is a member above reproach. We should remember that the example of teachers counts for more than their words. One may be proficient along other lines; but if the example is bad, proficiency will not atone for the lack of character. In this age, when dancing is becoming more and more popular, it is not unusual to find a teacher who winks at this popular craze. I have known of a few cases where the teacher was heard to say to the class members; "I see no harm in it." Thus the young people in the class who are hesitating about accepting invitations to dance are led to believe that it is so mild a thing as not to receive the condemnation of a leading church member.

Surely it was in rebuke of such a worldly-minded spirit that Jesus said: "Whose shall cause one of these little ones that believe on me to stumble, it is profitable for him that a great millstone should be hanged about his neck, and that he should be sunk in the depth of the sea. We unto the world because of occasions of stumbling!"

0 0 0

Can See the Harm if You Look For It.

Despite the opinion of many light-hearted people, there is harm in dancing, and the most thoughtless Christian can be made to see that harm if the matter is brought home in the right way. The editor of the Herald of Christian Liberty has given some pertinent and timely remarks along this line that are worthy of reproduction. He says:

No dancer ought to hold the place of a teacher in the I know there are some who differ from Sunday school, me as to this fact, but answer me one question: Is thereany reason in having a teacher take charge of a Sundayschool class on Sunday, seeking to teach the pupils the way of life, and then go out from the Sunday school during the week and kill by dancing the work she tried to do on Sunday? That is just what will happen. There is not only no sense in doing that sort of thing, but it is a course unworthy of the Christian life, and should not be tolerated in any Christian Sunday school. There are few bigger in any Christian Sunday school. There are few bigger stumblingstones in the church of Christ to-day than dancing church members. Occasionally I hear one asking: "What harm is there in dancing?" It is the pathway to cing church members. ruin. If you do not know what that means, ask some ripe and experienced Christian to tell you what it means, you cannot get such a friend to show you wherein it is the way to ruin, then send to some bookstore and buy and read a little book called "From the Ballroom to Hell." That will make the danger plain. I once met a young man who was a great lover of the dance. I condemned it in his presence. He declared there was no harm in it. said: "I can convince you [and he was a dancer] in three minutes." He said: "O, no, you can't!" I said: "Let me try." I then asked him this question: "Would you be willing to see your sisters go on the floor and dance with any young man?" He had three beautiful sisters. He looked at me hesitatingly, and then said: "No, I would not be willing to see them dance with any one." Exactly! A dancer, a man who knows from actual practice what evil there is in the dance, was unwilling to see any man dance with his sister. Why? O, because he knew the evil in it. He was not willing to see his sisters exposed to that evil. but he was willing to induce some other man's sister to so expose herself. The dance has no place in the life of any faithful Christian. Keep your Sunday-school teachers out of it, by all means, both for their own good and for the good of the children under their instruction, and also for the good of the church.

To overseers and teachers alike the advice of Paul is superlatively important: "Be thou an ensample to them that believe, in word, in manner of life, in love, in faith, in purity." No one can be an example in purity who encourages dancing. And here is a case where a little leaven of the evil sort will leaven the whole lump.

0 0 0

Don't Lose Faith in the Class.

Do you ever become discouraged at the prospect of making something good and great out of the rough boys or the apparently thoughtless girls in your class? If so, you will find a very strengthening thought in Paul's definition of faith. You should not lose faith in your class material so long as you have the faith which is the "assurance of things hoped for." Miss Tarbell truly says: "It is teachers who have had such assurance and conviction, who have seen in their pupils more than was evident to most beholders, and looking beyond the carelessness and thoughtlessness, and even, it may be, the actual evil in their lives, have seen the noble characters into which they might grow.

who have persevered and won. Never lose faith in your pupils; never falter in your belief that their souls are adapted to the seed you are trying to sow."

Really, dear teacher, you can test your own faith to-day by analyzing your feelings toward your class. How strong is that faith? Let it be strong enough to see a Timothy or a Titus in the making, and never an unhappy Demas.

0 0 0

Leading Them to Christ.

A good teacher will usually lead pupils to Christ. I have noted that when I preach at places where there are live, consecrated teachers, we invariably have confessions. Time and again I have heard them say through tears of joy and thanksgiving: "Brother Lipscomb, that one is a member of my class." Have you been the Philip to take God's message to each member of your class? S. D. Gordon tells of a friend who attended the funeral of a young woman. Meeting the preacher of the church where she attended, he asked: "Was Mary a Christian?" To his surprise, a pained look came into the man's face as he replied: "Three weeks ago I had a strong impulse to speak to her; but I did not, and I do not know." A moment later he met the girl's Sunday-school teacher, and asked her the same question. Quickly the tears came as she said: "Two weeks ago a voice seemed to say to me, 'Speak to Mary;' and I knew what it meant, and I intended to; but I did not, and I do not know."

Jesus always knows, and he will hold us personally responsible for our negligence.

Our Contributors

Salvation From Sin.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

The angel of the Lord said to Joseph with reference to the Christ child: "Thou shalt call his name Jesus; for it is he that shall save his people from their sins." John the Baptist, standing on the brink of the Jordan, asked this question of the Pharisees and Sadducees: "O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?"

Christ saves us from our sins when, and only when, we perform the part assigned us—work out our own salvation "with fear and trembling." We flee from the wrath to come when, and only when, the Lord Jesus, the Captain of our salvation, directs that fleeing. Jesus must direct and lead, and we must heed his voice and follow his steps to obtain salvation.

We are saved from our sins. Salvation is a process of removing us from sin—body, soul, and mind. We cannot be saved while hedging about sins, willing to quit some, loath to give up others. From its very inception, salvation is a saving from temptation and iniquity. Every step toward heaven is a pace that removes us from evil. I would stress this process and this principle.

John the Baptist, the herald of the Savior, came preaching in the wilderness of Judea, proclaiming the principle upon which sinners could prepare for the coming Messiah. John the Baptist was no ordinary man and he brought no ordinary message. He was not "a reed shaken with the wind." Christ said of him: "Among them that are born of women there hath not risen a greater than John the Baptist." He was a man worthy the message, the message was worthy the man—an extraordinary man and an extraordinary message. He declared repentance—a turning away from sin—an essential thing: "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." He urged Pharisees and Sadducees to make their paths straight. He taught a salvation from sin.

Then came the guileless One. He took up the cry of his forerunner and repeated it with renewed and inimitable solemnity and earnestness: "Repent, for the kingdom of heaven is at hand." Every time he went down to the seaside and called to fishermen, "Follow me;" every time he came to a place of custom and called to tax collector, "Follow me," he was emphasizing heaven's message of salvation from sin. No one could follow Jesus during his personal ministry and walk in habitual sin. No one can follow him to-day and sin habitually.

Simon Peter was designated to speak with authority for Christ on Pentecost. To the slayers of the Christ came the command of the apostle: "Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." Faith and its fruits—repentance and baptism—brought those Pentecostians to the blood of the Lamb, where their sins were washed away in the crimson flow. The message of John, of Christ, and of Peter must go sounding down the ages. It is worthy a strong man to-day.

God has never been satisfied with halfway separation from evil in any age of the world. His stamp of approval has not rested upon partial, but complete, separation. There are numerous instances when he demanded the utter putting away of the accursed thing. Two examples of God's approved way of saving people in former dispensations will suffice.

The race had grown unspeakably corrupt. "And Jehovah saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually." He determined to destroy man and to repeople the earth in purity. Noah, a righteous man in his generation, was instructed to build an ark. The vessel was completed and the remnant of the human race with other designated creatures were gathered within, and the door was shut. Jehovah sent the deluge. All flesh perished. Sin was destroyed when sinners were destroyed. The ark landed on Mount Ararat with the assuaging of the waters, and an epoch was marked. The race had been saved in God's own way. Noah was let down, as it were, into a new world, a new atmosphere, a new environment, a new age. He was free from the contamination of the antediluvians. As a billow, sweeping the ocean beach, obliterates every trace of human tracks, leaving the clean, pebbly sand, so the flood of waters destroyed the last vestige of man's evil devices and cleansed the earth for the race to begin anew. Iniquity was on the other side of the deluge; Noah and his family were on this side. This is a figure of our salvation. The "long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved by water. The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us," etc.

Israel groaned in cruel bondage in Egypt. So oppressive were the Egyptians that Hebrew parents "cast out their babes to the end they might not live" in such abject slavery. God heard their groans and remembered his promise. He sent Moses to bring deliverance to the children of Israel. Under the leadership of Moses the chosen race escaped out of Egypt through the Red Sea. "God saved them that day" when they fled out of the house of bondage in obedience to his voice. God had never purposed to save his people in some province of Egypt, as Goshen; but his way of saving them is emphasized by their removal from Egyptian environment, Egyptian idolatry, and Egyptian iniquity, placing the Red Sea between the Hebrews and their f cmer taskmasters. This is a type of our salvation. "For I would not, brethren, have you ignorant, that our fathers were all under the cloud, and all passed through the sea; and were all baptized unto Moses in the cloud and in the sea; and did all eat the same spiritual food; and did all drink the same spiritual drink: for they drank of a spiritual rock that followed them: and the rock was Christ."

Once in the church of God, we are his called-out people, ekklesia. We have escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust. But the flight has just begun in good earnest. Israel, on the farther shore from Egypt where they sang the song of deliverance, yet had the wilderness to traverse before they should pass into the land flowing with milk and honey. Many of them fell in the wilderness; many turned back in their hearts to the fleshpots of Egypt; many slackened their pace when they should have quickened it. In the church of God is security if we flee from recurring temptation and sin. Safety lies in facing the Promised Land with back toward the iniquities of the world.

John the Baptist urged the evil generation coming to his baptism to "bring forth fruits worthy of repentance." They must not dally with temptation if they wish to succeed in the new life. They must go forward. Sin would yet abound and beset their path. Simon Peter warned the Pentecostians: "Save yourselves from this crooked generation." Escape from the follies of that generation in elemental obedience to the gospel of Christ must be daily supplemented by an eternal vigilance if they were to keep themselves saved from their evil surroundings. That generation did not embrace Christianity en masse. Satan and sin and temptation would continue to entice and ensnare the Indifferent disciple. They must walk circumspectly. They must keep themselves unspotted from the world.

The divine rule to govern the children of God with respect to temptation is this: "Abstain from all appearance of evil." It is the soul's heaven-appointed safeguard from the jeopardy of sin. If we heed it, we shall never fall. If we repudiate or forget it, we are sure to stumble. No one is so strong or wise but that "when he thinketh he standeth" he should "take heed lest he fall."

Paul warned young Timothy: "Flee youthful lusts." This is an application of the divine rule, "Abstain from all appearance of evil." Let the young man remember that nothing but remorse results from sowing wild oats. It is said of Benjamin Franklin that in youth "his private life was far from spotless," and that "he sowed a regrettable measure of wild oats." In old age, when he came to write his autobiography, he reflected with comparative satisfaction over his long life of usefulness and accomplishment. There was but one regret, the regret that sprang up with those wild oats. If he were privileged to live his life over, he declared he would follow the same course, "requesting only the advantage authors have of correcting in a second edition the faults of the first." In his epitaph he expressed the hope that "the work" (the book of his life) would "appear once more, in a new and more beautiful edition, corrected and amended by the author."

Let us profit by Franklin's mistake. Let us remember that the smallest handful of wild oats constitutes a "regrettable measure." Let us remember that the fruitage is sorrow and anguish, ill health, and death, physical and eternal.

In eternity we shall have no privilege of "correcting a second edition." The book of our mortal life is finished with our expiring breath, in the feeble, faint accents of the last prayer. We have done with it. We must trust to the Author of life to "correct and amend it." We have assurance that it will "appear once more, in a new and more beautiful edition," if it has passed through the cleansing blood of Christ. The blood must remove the stains.

Inconsistency.

BY B. N. MOODY.

The Old Testament was written mainly in Hebrew and the New Testament in Greek. There was presumably but one copy of the several divisions of the Old and New Testaments that was written by inspired men, and it is known that there is not an original manuscript in existence today. So all the manuscripts in existence today are but copies of copies of the original and have all passed through the hands of uninspired men. Likewise the many translations of the Scriptures, with the multiplied millions of printed Bibles in the many languages of the earth, have come to us through uninspired hands.

The Scriptures as a whole, or as a compiled collection, was called by the Greeks "biblos" which means "book," from which our word "Bible" comes. So the title "Bible" that is so dear to every Christian is of uninspired origin.

The Old Testament was first translated into Greek in the second century before Christ, in Alexandria, Egypt. This version was called the "Septuagint," which signifies seventy, because it was thought that it was translated by seventy-two scholars in seventy-two days. It was also called the "Alexandrian" because it was translated in Alexandria.

England's first Bible was a Latin translation of the Septuagint version of the Old Testament and the original Greek of the New Testament, which was revised by Jerome in the fourth century and is the version still used by the Catholic Church. It is called the "Vulgate," from the Latin word "vulgata," which signifies "to make common or public,"

The first translation into English, of any note, was Wycliffe's translation from the Vulgate in 1360-1382. This was before the days of the printing press, when it took ten months to make one copy of manuscript of the Bible, which cost as much as two hundred dollars in our money, a very small amount for the labor expended.

In 1525 the first printed copy of the New Testament was brought out by William Tyndale, and in 1536 Miles Coverdale printed the whole Bible in English.

The version known as "Matthew's Bible" was issued by John Rogers; and two years later Miles Coverdale and others brought out a version known as "Cranmer's Bible," of which, when Henry VIII. saw it, he said: "In God's name let it go forth among our people." This was the first officially authorized version of the Bible. Because of its size this Bible was called the "Great Bible;" and it was also called the "Chained Bible" because it was chained to the pulpit for safe-keeping.

The first Protestant Bible was the "Geneva Bible," so called because it was published by the reformers in Geneva. It was called the "Breeches Bible" because Gen. 3: 7 was rendered: "They sewed fig-tree leaves together and made themselves breeches." It was the first Bible to use italics to indicate words not in the original language. It was the first Bible divided into verses. The Bible was first divided into chapters in 1250 by Cardinal Hugo, and was divided into verses in 1551 to 1560, which makes it easy to find any passage.

The King James Bible, or Authorized Version, was issued in 1611, the Revised Version completed in 1885, and the American Revised Version in 1901.

Besides these different translations, many books that help much in the study of the Bible have been issued. Josephus, the Jewish historian, in his writings follows closely the Bible account of things and supplements it with facts of history that cast light on the Bible narrative. Then we have commentaries, Bible histories, Bible dictionaries, Bible geographies, Bible maps, Bible concordances, and many other helps that make it easy for us to study the Bible, enabling us to find any word in the Bible and to locate any important place mentioned in it, besides many other things I shall not undertake to mention.

This brief survey of the field shows that an untold amount of labor and money have been expended by uninspired men to give us the sacred writings in our own tongue and to furnish helps that make it easy and profitable for us to study the Scriptures. There is no estimating the debt of gratitude we owe to the hosts of men who have spent so much time, labor, and money that the world might have easy access to the word of God.

Be it remembered that the men who have thus labored and sacrificed were what we call "sectarians," and we would be loath to have fellowship with them; yet we must acknowledge our indebtedness to them, and that every day of our life we are dependent on the fruits of their labors for light on the word of God. Take from the world the light of God's word that comes to us through the labors of uninspired men, and great would be the darkness.

You say you see nothing inconsistent in all that? Indeed not. But listen: A brother in his zeal for the cause decides to enter the field of literature as a means of increasing his opportunities for doing good. He supplies himself with a printing outfit and an ample stock of material. He launches a weekly journal under the title of "The Gospel Expositor" or some other suitable name indicating that its mission is to further the gospel of Christ and thus enlarge the borders of his kingdom. Perhaps before he entered the journalistic field he was a preacher and debater, and to this end had supplied himself with commentaries, Bible dictionaries, lexicons, and all manner of denominational writings sufficient to put to flight an army of sectarian debaters, and many a scalp of vanquished foes dangles from his belt. With this experience he enters the field of journalism, and, with his Bible and with all manner of helps from denominational scholars, he is ready to invade wider fields and to show up the errors and inconsistency of the sectarian world, not only by the Bible, but by their own writings. With his "sectarian" concordance he can find any passage of scripture he desires, being aided by chapters and verses supplied by uninspired hands. At once his printing press pours forth literature condemning every shade of error. He quotes authors ancient and modern, and woe unto him who comes within the range of his guns! All goes well until some brother, maybe a competitor in the publishing business, dares to issue a few comments on a scripture lesson selected for study in the congregation on Sunday. He then feels called on to issue more literature to condemn the use of literature in the study of God's word. A few strong articles in his paper calls forth others of like mind, and soon his literary sheet becomes an organ of destruction of all the brethren who would dare to write or use literature in the study of the Bible. As a result of the literary onslaught on literature, discord and contention among the brethren arises, congregations are divided, and the cause is crippled.

"Happy is he that condemneth not himself in the thing which he alloweth."

Old Testament Characters-Noah.

RY H. LEO BOLES.

One of the most fruitful studies of the Old Testament Scriptures is the study of Old Testament characters. The Old Testament has been compared to a great gallery where may be found the portraits of men and women whom God has commended and blessed and condemned and cursed. These portraits are correct, for God by the pen of inspiration has painted them, and his delineation of the traits of character are correct; hence we may profit by the study of them. These portraits are profitable to us because, like the word of God, they are universal.

The proper interpretation of these Old Testament characters helps us to understand the will of God-just what God commends or what he condemns in the men of all ages. We have not studied the whole counsel of God when we have neglected these characters. We are taught not to "go beyond that which is written;" to go beyond is speculation, theory, opinion, out of which grow the doctrines and commandments of men, the creeds and confessions of the churches.

We should study the following scriptures: Gen. 5: 30, 32; 6: 8-10; 13: 22; 7: 1-15, 23: 8: 9: 16: 1, 32; 1 Chron. 1: 4: Isa. 54. 9: Ezek. 14: 14, 20; Matt. 24: 37, 38; Luke 3: 36; 17; 26, 27; Heb. II: 7: 1 Pet. 3: 20, 21; 2 Pet. 2: 5.

"Noah" means "rest." Old Testament names have a significant meaning. Our proper names do not mean very much. "Nashville" does not mean much. It derived its names from Colonel Nash, and was first called "Nashboro," then "Nash-Village," then "Nashville;" but it has no further significance. Much may be learned by studying the proper names in the Bible. The name may not always be a characteristic of the person bearing the name; it may be an insight into the hopes, desires, aspirations, and attitude of the father or mother who named the child in the promises of God. We can look at the given names of families to-day and tell very much the trend of thought that the parent had when the child was named. When President Cleveland was before the public, many children were named "Cleveland;" look at the "W. J. Bryans," the "Mc-Kinleys," the "Roosevelts," and the "Woodrow Wilsons." You can tell that the old Sewell family was a pious family. Notice the names given the children-"Isaac," "Caleb," "Jesse," "Elisha."

Lamech was the father of Noah. He was one hundred and eighty-two years old when Noah was born. He was a tiller of the soil; and the soil had been cursed on account of Cain's sin, which made it difficult for a tiller of the soil to support himself and family. It was hard work for him to produce his living from the soil. Hence, when his son was born, he said: "I will now have rest; the boy will work for me, and I will get a rest." Hence the name "Noah," meaning "rest."

There are some interesting facts connected with the early life of Noah which we may gather from the chronology of his time. Noah was born about 2948 B.C. and died 1998 B.C. He lived to be nine hundred and fifty years old. Noah was the tenth from Adam through the line of Seth. The genealogy is: Adam, Seth, Enosh, Kenan, Mahalalel, Jared, Enoch, Methuselah, Lamech, and Noah. He was born forty-six years after Adam's death, fourteen years after Seth's death. He was contemporary with Enosh, the third from Adam, sixteen years, and contemporary with Terah one hundred and twenty-eight years, and contemporary with Abraham about fifty years; so when Noah died, Abraham was fifty years old. I do not know that he ever saw Abrabam. He may have seen him and talked with him about the flood; they were in the same line of genealogy and close kin. This makes the study of Noah a very interest-The death of the first man, Adam, was fresh in the mind of that generation; the murder of Abel by the hand of his brother had not faded from the memory of man, and the terror of Cain's life in exile, perhaps, was still talked about; Enoch's translation was still a favorite theme of the pious. These are some of the impressions that Noah could have received in his early life, while the violence and the wickedness of the human race were increasing.

Lamech saw the increasing wickedness and violence in the world, and may have struggled somewhat against the increase in wickedness. When his first son was born, "he called his name Noah, saying, This same shall comfort us in our work and in the toil of our hands, which cometh because of the ground which Jehovah hath cursed." (Gen. 5: 29.) It is probable that Lamech expected rest, or comfort, in more ways than from the toil of his hands. Noah was to be a comforting helper; he would help them in cultivating the soil and also in resisting the rapidly increasing violence of society of that age. His parents expected him to give them rest and comfort. They may have had intimation from Jehovah that his spirit would not strive always with man. Lamech may have felt that his life was a failure in struggling with the stubborn soil and working with the wicked of his age, and now expects his son to win where he has lost and succeed where he has failed. Such hope would have caused him to give his son a training that would fit him for the great work of realizing his heart's desire. It would cause him to warn his son of the wicked ways of the family of Cain and encourage him with the righteousness of Abel and the faithful walk of Enoch. He said this son "shall comfort us," which means that he had a vision of faith in the mission and life of Noah. In his own failures and defeats, he has the hope that God will bring rest to him and others through the life mission of his son, which would cause him to put greater emphasis upon the training of his son. We know that Noah's life blessed the world, and we are persuaded that God used his parents in preparing him for the blessing.

The Gospel Advocate's Course Commended.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

Before I had had time to study religion for myself, being born in Maury County, Tenn., and reared in that county and Hickman, I was under the influence of the Gospel Advocate. Thus it might be said that I was early prejudiced in favor of that paper.

However, circumstances arose that lifted me out from under that influence, and I think I can truthfully say that for many years I studied the Scriptures entirely independently of any paper or any other group of men.

At one time I held some ideas that brought me into conflict with the Advocate, and I held some resentment toward it and all the other papers in the brotherhood, as well as our schools. I am not proud of that part of my history, but I mention this to show that what I am about to say is not the result of early childhood teaching.

Well, in passing among the brethren, I find some little criticism of the good old paper, and I want to take this opportunity to heartily commend its editors and the general policy of the paper. This is not to say that I regard them as infallible, but I do not hesitate to say that I think the Advocate the greatest influence for apostolic teaching outside the New Testament itself.

Just now Brethren McQuiddy and Kurfees are being criticized for their fight against "Sommerism" and Brother Boll's new ideas on prophecy. All I have to say is that those of us on the Coast are prepared to sympathize with Brother Evans, of Colorado, and any others who are troubled with "Sommerism." What Brethren Evans and McQuiddy have published in regard to the work of these misguided brethren in Colorado has been duplicated in many places on the Pacific Slope. The only fault I find is, the Advocate waited too long to begin the fight, and I am afraid they will quit too soon.

As to Brother Boll's ideas on the restoration of the Jews, the personal reign of Christ in "flesh and bones" (but no blood) on this earth, the imminence of Christ's coming, the future setting up of the kingdom of Christ—why, there is nothing new about them. They are just old Adventist ideas. Adventists had been affirming those things and I had been denying them in debates for years before Brother Boll began to teach them. I cannot help but think that Brother Boll's having taught these Adventist ideas to Mc-Henry and Martin is the thing that disposed them so favorably toward Adventism as to cause them to heed its fatal call.

What the brethren now should do is stand by the paper and its editors and help them hold up the banner of truth and present a bold front to every form of error.

How An Interest in Foreign Missions Helps the Work at Home.

Mrs. Jellaby, with her dreamy eyes fixed on the heathen in far-away Borioboolagah, oblivious to the needs of her own household and of the hungry and naked in her own neighborhood, is a caricature, much overdrawn, of the foreign-mission enthusiast. An intelligent interest in foreign missions should never produce a Mrs. Jellaby. On the contrary, experience teaches that a true concern for the work of the Lord abroad tends to create a revival of interest in the work at home.

The study of foreign missions gives a broader outlook and saves from narrow and parochial views. We are all liable to be engrossed in the concerns of our own limited community. We become "cribbed, cabined, and confined." Even our prayers grow small and selfish. We develop intolerance and place the emphasis on the wrong things. Details loom large and great principles recede from our view. We lose the sense of relationship and proportion and fail to coordinate the facts of life. We become egotistical and boastful. We fail to influence others, and at last dwindle to negligible nonentities.

An intelligent interest in foreign missions tends to change all this. We begin to think in continents instead of parishes. We read of other races, and are introduced to strange manners and customs and ways of thought. We gradually realize the brotherhood of mankind. Our petty patriotism broadens into world-wide benevolence. The kingdom of God assumes its true proportions, including all races and tongues. The church is seen as the home of humanity, and the Savior as the Redeemer of the world. The glory of the Master is enhanced as we observe the applicability of his gospel to all kinds and conditions of men. Our sympathies broaden out divinely. The love of God is "shed abroad" in our hearts.

This breadth of vision immediately reacts upon the work at home. The greater includes the less. Indifference to the well-being of our neighbors gives place to a keen desire for the salvation of every man, woman, and child in our street, our parish, our city, our country. The selfish, narrow Christian, whose chief concern hitherto has been for the welfare of himself and his relations, begins to pray for the unsaved of his own neighborhood and to seek to bring them under the sound of the gospel. Capture the Imagination of an idle, self-centered brother by interesting him in foreign missions, and he will soon begin to work for Christ in connection with his home church. The work at home will gain in power and depth and intensity from the enthusiasm engendered by the wider view.

The first century of the Christian era was preëminently characterized by foreign-missionary activity, and it was also marked by an unresting effort in the home fields and local assemblies. The apostle Paul was the ideal foreign missionary. He was also the ideal home missionary and philanthropist, organizing a collection for the poor at Jerusalem, zealous for the growth and purity of the local congregation. The past century has been a century of foreign missions. It has also been the century of revivals in the home fields. In America, the churches of Christ have made their greatest progress since the establishment of their foreign-mission work. Among the Baptists, Congregationalists, Methodists, Presbyterians, Anglicans, and others, the teaching of history is that foreign-missionary activity is the direct cause of revival in the work at home.

Some denominations have been actually saved from decay and dissolution by their foreign-mission enterprise,

An interest in foreign missions encourages the habit of liberal giving. It is often said that the more we give, the more we can give. This is true for two reasons. First, the Lord rewards a liberal giver by giving him more, so that he can be more liberal. Second, few of us have ever given as much as we are really able to give; and as giving becomes habit, it becomes a pleasure. As the habit grows, all departments of the Lord's work profit by its development. Christians need to be taught and trained in liberality, and every good work which calls forth the gifts of God's people indirectly benefits all the other departments of activity. It is a near-sighted policy which frets at liberality in other channels for fear that those in which we are specially interested may suffer.

We all need to catch a glimpse of the working of the big heart which could write these words: "God is able to bless you with ample means, so that you may always have quite enough for any emergency of your own and ample besides for any kind act to others. He who furnishes the sower with seed and with bread to eat will supply seed for you and multiply it; he will increase the crop of your charities -you will be enriched on all hands, so that you can be generous on all occasions, and your generosity, of which I am the agent, will make men give thanks to God; for the service rendered by this fund does more than supply the wants of the saints-it overflows with many a cry of thanks to God. This service shows what you are; it makes men praise God for the way you have come under the gospel which you confess and for the generosity of your contributions to themselves and to all; they are drawn to you and pray for you, on account of the surpassing grace which God has shown to you. Thanks be to God for his unspeakable gift." (2 Cor. 9: 8-15, Moffat's translation.)

An interest in foreign missions helps to cultivate the habit of prayer. All missionaries and workers in the cause realize the supreme importance of prayer for the true success of the work. The Student Volunteer Movement has as one of its principal planks the daily quiet hour. In deputation work, the appeal for prayer is ever to the front. None will deny that more and more of the spirit of believing prayer is a prime requisite of the work at home. Every cause, therefore, which helps to develop the habit of intercession is helpful to all other departments of the work of the Lord.

An interest in foreign missions will develop a spirit of gratitude. As we learn of the physical, intellectual, and spiritual destitution in less-favored lands, we must surely feel a sense of gratitude for our abounding mercies in the home lands. This, if it is allowed free play, will lead us to a deeper interest in the work of the Lord among our own people and in our own land.

An interest in foreign missions will stimulate us to activity in the work at home in emulation and holy rivalry of the efforts of the Lord's servants abroad. As we hear of native evangelists, teachers, Bible women, and humble converts newly won from heathendom earnestly engaging in the work of the gospel among their own people and giving of their limited means for the spread of the truth, we shall be ashamed to sit idle or to withhold our gifts for the progress of the work at home.

Obedience always brings a blessing. The foreign-missionary enterprise is an act of obedience to God. It is the will of God that all men, of every race, should have the opportunity of embracing the good news of salvation. As we take part in this work, either directly or indirectly, either as missionaries or as rope holders, we receive the reward of obedience. God gives us more of his grace, more of his spirit, more of his love and joy and peace. He blesses us in the affairs of the life that now is and that which is to come. He prospers our undertakings and uses us for his glory. And this fullness of blessing in its fertilizing overflow enriches every department of the work at home.

Paul Singh, preaching one day at Dudhi in the Hindi language to the native church, said: "You sometimes say we must preach the gospel in order to save others. I tell you that you must preach the gospel to save yourselves. 'Woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel!'"

There is a sense in which we may say the same of the churches at home. We must preach to the heathen in order to save ourselves. The nonmissionary church will wither and die. The missionary church will have life, and have it more abundantly,—G. P. Pittman (one of the British missionaries to India), in The Bible Advocate.

"Hear Ye Him."

BY LOULA MARIE ADKISSON.

In grand majesty, in supernal glory,
On the mount they stand—Leader, Seer, and King.
Radiant their faces with the light of other lands;
Glistening their raiment, as an angel's wing;
Falling their words in whispers, awed and grave.
Face downward, in affright, fall the chosen three;
One, half conscious, mumbling low in terror,
"Lord, let us build three tabernacles for these and thee."

Then, as floats the feathery snowdrift cloud
Near where the summer's waning moon doth rest,
There drifts a cloud whose myriad waves of light
Circle around the sacred mountain's crest,
From out the depths etheral there comes
A voice whose bourne is beyond the heaven's rim—
The voice of God Almighty—" Hear ye Him!"

O'er a sin-strewn earth, adown the ages dim, The mighty voice of God reëchoes still— Reëchoes till eternity—" Hear ye Him!"

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Minor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney—one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?" This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake.

Because a man has shop to mind
In time and place, since flesh must live,
Needs spirit lack all life behind,
All stray thoughts, fancies fugitive,
All loves except what trade can give?

Home Reading

Early Art Training in the Home for Our Children.

Art has been called "the handmaiden of religion;" so why should we not bring into child life all the riches which art has to offer? Every parent knows the child's interest in all things pictorial. If a father can draw, even crudely, some common object of our daily life, he will have pienty of opportunity to exercise whatever talent be may possess along this line.

All children love to draw and paint; it is an instinctive form of self-expression, and not enough attention is given to the appeal which art makes to little people.

No one of us forgets the pictures which hung on the walls of our father's home, and no one can calculate the influence which such pictures have exercised over us. Let us place before our children the lovely reproductions of the great masters, which we may now obtain at small cost and many of which are so childlike as to appeal immediately to all children.

In these times it is not difficult to use the pictorial, for many magazines and newspapers contain some good pictures. Every child's thoughts and ideals should be formed on what is beautiful and worth while in art, music, and literature.

While a certain amount of attention is given to the value of pictorial art in the schools, the parent can supplement this by commencing to collect from the newspapers and magazines much that would appeal to the child, and, with the aid of a scrapbook, considerable general information can be instilled with little effort.

A child never tires of a story, and every picture has in itself the germ of one. The child's interest is easily aroused, and he absorbs far more than we realize. Long before the time arrives for reading, writing, and arithmetic, he may acquire a liberal education through pictures and the stories which "daddy" has woven about them.

Much enjoyment of the great works we see in our art museums is taken from us because we are unable to appreciate art, for the reason that in our earliest and most impressionable years no attention was given to our natural interest in the pictured world, and one cannot plunge into the atmosphere of real art at a bound.

Why do parents exhibit with pride little John's first crude attempt at picture making and let it go at that?

It should be a guidepost for their own attitude toward the child and lead them to cultivate this perfectly natural form of expression. Every parent is able to open up a new world to his child by careful and judicious use of the material which comes easiest to his hand.

The following list of books may be helpful to parents: "Teaching Children How to Draw," by Walter Sargent; "Fine and Industrial Arts," by Walter Sargent; "First Step in the Enjoyment of Pictures," by Maude I. G. Ollver (published by Henry Holt & Co.); "Play Life in the First Eight Years," by Luella Palmer.—Walter Gilman Page.

* * *

Abide in Him.

Let your will be one with God's will, and be glad to be disposed of by him. He will order all things for you. What can cross your will, when it is one with his will, on which all creation hangs, round which all things revolve? Keep your hearts clear of evil thoughts; for as evil choices estrange the will from his will, so evil thoughts cloud the soul and hide him from us. Whatever sets us in opposition to him makes our will an intolerable torment. So long as we will one thing and he another, we go on piercing ourselves through and through with a perpetual wound; and his will advances, moving on in sancity and majesty, crushing ours into the dust.—H. E. Manning.

Mabel's New Nurse.

It was not "a very-sick," but just a "sick-enough-to-have-to-stay-in-bed," that was the matter with her, Mabel said. It was rather nice when it came time for cream toast, and while mother read to her; but it was hard to lie still when mother had to go away and when Mabel could hear the other children playing without her.

By and by Bridget looked in at the door. "The washer-woman's little boy has hurt his foot, ma'am, and wants to know will you come down?"

"O, dear!" said Mabel. "Everybody wants you. Who'll take care of me while you're gone?"

Mother thought a minute. "I know some one who can help you to be the best kind of a little invalid, if she will," she said. "I'll write her name on this slip of paper, and you can open it after I'm gone, and see if you want her."

Mabel waited only long enough to hear mother's steps pass out of the hall before she opened the paper and read: "Mabel Gray."

"Why, that's just me!" she said. "I thought it was going to be somebody."

At first her lips pouted; but then, at the thought of being her own nurse, funny little dimples and smiles began to come. She told herself to be good. "Lie still, dear, and try to sleep now." And soon she laughed outright. Then she began to tell herself stories, and by and by she was sound asleep. She did not hear when mother came in; but when she awoke, the dear face was smiling down at her.

"Well, how did the new nurse get along?" mother asked.

"Pretty well," answered Mabel. "She asked me wasn't I 'shamed of myself to be so selfish, when I had you all the time and that poor boy only wanted you for a little while. And then she said I must be good and keep still; she didn't tell me to; she made me do it."

"I thought she would," laughed mother. "Little girlle, I am glad you have learned that, for it is true you are sick."—Exchange. α

Lee's Kindness.

A humble countryman was driving a loaded wagon over a muddy road in Virginia. His team was light and progress was slow and difficult. At last his wagon sank in a deep rut and the struggling horses stopped. He had "stalled," hard and fast. Nothing he could do—yelling at his horses, whipping them, prying at his wagon wheels would extricate him.

Meantime there were passers by train in plenty; but it was war time, and most of them had on hand difficulties of their own. Underlying officers pushed ahead of the luckless wagoner, cavalrymen rode by without apparent concern, and even privates on foot were too much engrossed to lend a hand.

But just then rode up an elderly man of soldierly bearing and kindly face. At once he saw the difficulty, and at once he dismounted, gave some suggestions, put his shoulder to the muddy wheels and helped the driver out to solid earth and sent him on his way.

Not until later did the grateful beneficiary learn that he had been aided by no less a personage than the commander in chief of the Confederate Army.—Kind Words.

0 0 0

By all means use sometimes to be alone.

Salute thyself; see what thy soul doth wear.

Dare to look in thy chest—for 'tis thine own—

And tumble up and down what thou findest there.

Who cannot rest till he good fellows find,

He breaks up house, turns out of doors his mind.

—George Herbert.

W |

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Q

George A. Klingman reports a fine interest in the tent meeting at Crawfordsville, Ind.

Leslie G. Thomas changes his address from 2410 Delmar Avenue to 615 West Fifth Street, Flint, Mich.

Under date of August 12, L. B. Jones writes us that he is engaged in a meeting at Antioch, Tenn., and that two have been baptized.

- A. B. Lipscomb reports two splendid services at Russell Street Church, this city, Sunday. There were three confessions at the evening service.
- J. H. McBroom, of Shelbyville, Tenn., would like to hear from a Christian young man who can teach and lead vocal music and who needs help to attend school.

Jarratt L. Smith has been preaching some recently in Cannon, Rutherford and Smith counties, in this State, resulting in four baptisms and one restoration.

- C. G. McPhee closed an interesting meeting at White's Creek, Tenn., last Friday night. He was announced to begin a meeting at Dyersburg, Tenn., last Lord's day.
- R. E. Wright is in a fine meeting at Brushy Ridge, near Livingston, Tenn. His meeting at Trousdale resulted in seven additions, most of which were heads of families.

From Emmeti Creacy, Hardyville, Ky., August 12: "The meeting at Bellview closed with four baptized into Christ. We are now at Center Point with our tent. Pray for us."

Parties desiring meetings on the Pacific Slope should write D. F. Draper, General Delivery, Seattle, Wash, Brother Draper has baptized three while on his Westward journey.

Sam P. Pittman called to see us last week. He had just returned from holding seven meetings in Alabama, Oklahoma, Georgia, and Tennessee. A number of people were baptized.

The Fanning Orphan School for Girls will open for the reception of pupils on September 9. For further information, address David Lipscomb, superintendent, Route 1, Nashville, Tenn.

Henry T. King was among our callers last week. He was getting ready to hold a protracted meeting in Warren County, Tenn. He reports the work as moving on nicely in McMinnville

The editors of the Gospel Advocate extend their sympathy to Brother and Sister H. W. Jones, of Hardin, Ky., who have suffered the loss of their little boy, Harvey Wilson Jones, Jr.

Thomas C. King writes from Florence, August 12: "Our meeting at Pleasant Valley closed on August 6. It was a very pleasant meeting. Five were baptized. I am now in a meeting in East Florence."

Will W. Slater writes from Spaulding, Okla., August 14: "The Spaulding meeting has been in progress four days, with the greatest interest ever manifested here. There have been eight baptisms to date."

A. Y. Howell, who moderated for J. P. Lowrey, of Memphis, Tenn., in his discussion with D. S. Duck, a Seventh-Day Adventist, reports a great victory for the truth. The debate was held at Ruleville, Miss.

Brother and Sister V. M. Whitesell, of Columbia, Ala., wish to know the nearest church to that place, as they desire to worship with that congregation. They will heartly appreciate information upon this subject.

Charles R. Brewer called to see us last week. He had just closed an interesting meeting at Jake Prairie, Mo. Attention was fine and good crowds were present throughout the meeting. There were two additions.

Our Home in Cuba.—I am now settling two hundred American families in Cuba. I think we can offer the most wonderful inducements to American farmers on earth, Write J. D. Tant, Rogers, Ark., for literature.

C. M. Sweatt, of Buchanan, Tenn., writes us that the brethren were greatly pleased with Brother Freed's meeting for the Blood River congregation, which continued for a week. Six were baptized and two were restored.

From Leslie G. Thomas, Flint, Mich., August 14: "The Flint meeting closed last night. Five were baptized, one of them coming out of the Roman Catholic Church. I am on my way to Akron to begin a meeting to-morrow."

The church at Pikeville, Tenn., is seeking to get an evangelist to hold a meeting at that place. If any preacher sees this who is not employed and wishes to undertake the meeting there, he should write to B. W. Boyd, Pikeville, Tenn.

O. F. Shearer writes us that he has just closed a tent meeting at Oil Valley, a missionary point in Kentucky. There were nine additions to the church—eight by baptism and one from the Missionary Baptists. The interest was very marked throughout the meeting.

John T. Hinds writes, under date of August 10: "I recently closed a twelve-days' meeting with the church at Collinsville, Texas, with five baptisms. I am now in a meeting with the church at Ballinger, Texas. The next will be with the church at Konawa, Okla."

G. W. Graves recently held two interesting meetings one with the Liberty congregation, Jackson County, which continued eight days and resulted in three baptisms, and one with the Fairview congregation, Putnam County, which continued eight days and resulted in five baptisms.

Among our callers last week were W. D. Fox and wife, of Lewisburg, Tenn. They had been on a visit to Michigan and were returning home. We learned from Brother Fox that Brother Adamson was in a meeting at Cookeville, Tenn., last week. We are not informed as to results.

From T. F. Davison, Silver Point, Tenn., Route 4: "I have just returned from Union, Jackson County, visiting a good meeting. Sam Leonard did the preaching. Eight precious young souls obeyed their Lord in baptism. The congregation at Union is a young one. We hope for greater things in the future."

J. W. Grant has received a letter from Alexander Yohannan. He reports that he and his family are well. They are now living at Hamadan, which is four hundred miles distant from Urumiah, their original home. Brother Yohannan mertions a congregation of one dozen men and half as many women.

A. H. Ellett writes: "J. J. Horton, of Elora, Tenn., recently held a ten-days' meeting at Owen's Cross Roads, in Madison County, Ala. The meeting began on August 1 and closed on August 10. There were thirty additions—twenty-two baptisms. Interest was good both day and night, with the tent overflowing at night."

John T Smithson writes: "I have just closed a good meeting at Mount Ararat, in Cannon County, Tenn., and will begin at Hall's Valley, Ga., next. The Mount Ararat meeting was an unusually good one. While only five persons were bi-ptized, the whole congregation was stirred to action in a fuller obedience to God."

We were pleased last Saturday to have George B. Hoover call to see us. He is now living in Tampa, Fla., but came back to his native State to hold some protracted meetings. He has recently held three interesting meetings in Warren and Grundy counties, this State, which resulted in eighteen additions. The interest was good throughout.

H. Leo Boles writes from Gainesboro, Tenn., August 16:
"My meering closed at Rogersville, Ala., after twelve days' duration, with fine interest. The church there is in good working order. Peace and perfect harmony prevail. Thornton Crews works for this church, and is appreciated by the whole church. I began a meeting here yesterday."

From J. L. Glover, Corinth, Miss., Route 5, August 14: "We have just closed a ten-days' meeting at Union, near Augusta. Ark. We had large crowds, splendid attention, and nine baptisms. The brethren seemed very much built up in 'the most holy faith.' My time is not taken up, and I would like to correspond with brethren desiring my services."

E. C. Fuqua has been preaching during the last week at Boulder, Col. There had been two additions when we last heard from him. He expects to continue indefinitely even after Sister Fuqua goes home, if it is thought advisable to so continue. He reports Sister Fuqua as doing nicely since her operation. He hopes she will be able to return home soon.

Clayton Gall observes: "'The Spirit of Sommerism,' by John D. Evans, has not been overstated. The church everywhere needs fearless guardians, able in the gospel with pen and tongue, to look after such matters, unselfish men of pure minds and manners, men who fear God and love peace among his people. John D. is such a character. The church at Denver loves him."

M. C. Cayce called to see us last week. His son, Brice, had undergone a very serious operation, but is better at the present writing, and it is thought he is on the road to recovery. Brother Cayce closed a meeting at Rock Church, in Dickson County, Tenn., with four baptized and one restored. He was announced to begin a meeting last Lord's day at Antioch, near Coldwater, Miss.

From B. W. Davis, Ashland City, Tenn., August 16: "Our meeting of fifteen days' duration, conducted by G. W. Riggs, of Los Angeles, Cal., closed last night, with six additions to the church—five baptisms. The church was greatly benefited and strengthened during this series of meetings. Every one was highly pleased with the manner and spirit in which Brother Riggs presented the truth."

We notice in the Nashville Banner of August 15 that Miss Lynn Walker, eldest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Will E. Walker, of Winchester, Tenn., and Mr. B. Spence Holden, of Murfreesboro, were united in marriage last Saturday afternoon, Price Billingsley, of McMinnville, officiating. The entire force of the Gospel Advocate offers congratulations and wishes for the couple a long, useful, and happy life.

From William P. Walker, Clarksville, Tenn.: "Our meeting in the schoolhouse at Skeen's Corner closed to-night. There were three baptisms during the meeting. The song service was conducted by Will Jones, one of the members. The congregation met this evening to appoint elders and deacons. Three brethren were chosen to serve as elders and three to serve as deacons. A more zealous people 1 have never met. We are now in Stewart County, at Dyer's Creek."

The entire force of the Gospel Advocate rejoices in the information that the following from Mrs. Duley brings us. In a letter to J. C. McQuiddy, she says: "I am writing to let you know that 'Captain' Duley made the confession and was baptized by Brother Clark yesterday. I knew you would rejoice with me." We certainly rejoice with our sister, and are glad to know that this faithful employee of the McQuiddy Printing Company has taken this most important of all steps.

W. E. Jackson, of Marvell, Ark., wishes to secure two teachers for the school at Cypert, Ark. He writes as follows: "We need two teachers for our school—man and wife, brother and sister, or father and daughter. We have a teachers' house near the school for them to keep house, as board is hard to get. Will pay good salary to right kind of teachers. Two lady teachers would do, if they had some one to stay with them at night," Address W. E. Jackson, Marvell, Ark., Route 3.

From S. C. Garner, Bakersfield, Mo., Angust 13: "I am now in a meeting at Seminole, Okla. The meeting has been going on nearly two weeks. One has been restored. I held a meeting the first two weeks in July at Valley View Schoolhouse, near Wetumka, Okla. Twenty-nine were baptized and two were restored. The last two weeks in July were given to a meeting at Sunnydale Schoolhouse, near Wetumka. Nine were baptized and two were restored. My time is taken until January."

Alonzo Williams, of Wingo, Ky., sends the following request: "Please announce through the Gospel Advocate that the church of Christ at Wingo wishes to secure a sound and sober gospel preacher with the ability and determination to work a part of his time with congregations around the town. Wingo is a splendid school town. For the past six or seven years we have had a Bible class doing work at the church each week. This year a greater effort is being made to offer a better course of study, and the church wants a man able to take care of the situation."

From W. M. Oakley, 326 Grace Avenue, Nashville, Tenn., August 13: "The meeting of twelve days' duration at Dotsonville, in Montgomery County, closed last night. Notwithstanding this meeting was greatly hindered by rain and an opposition meeting by the Baptists in the same neighborhood, we had a good hearing and much interest manifested. Two were baptized (one of these from the Baptists), one who had left the church and gone with the Baptists returned to her first love, and one took membership with the congregation. I go next to Commerce, in Wilson County, to begin on August 22."

From T. E. Milholland, Denison, Texas, August 12: "The meeting at Wagoner was held under somewhat discouraging circumstances—rain, mud, and sickness; notwithstanding all this, we sowed the good seed in many hearts. Five were baptized and one restored. This is one of the best rural congregations in Texas. It is the home of that old veteran and soldier of the cross, T. M. Butler. The whole flock loves him like a father. Though feeble in health, he is strong in faith. I pray that he may, like Elijah, drop his mantle upon some young Elisha. The liberality toward me was the greatest I have found in all of Texas. May the Lord bless them all."

From Emmett G. Creacy, Cave Ridge, Ky., August 7: "The meeting at Bellview continues. There was one confession last night. The meeting will close to-morrow night. I begin my next meeting Wednesday night at Center Point, a Presbyterian stronghold. Our meeting at Coral Hill, with D. H. Friend, closed with twenty additions; at Fairview, with Herbert E. Winkler, three additions; at Center. with J. G. Malphurs, no additions, but much good done. Remember the debate near Glasgow Junction, Ky., on August 24-27. The debate will be held with the Baptists in a Baptist stronghold, under a large tent. Write me at Horse Cave, Ky., if you are interested."

A few of the charter pupils of the Fanning Orphan School had a reunion at Centennial Park on August 8. They had a short time only to find the scattered ones. most enjoyable day was spent in talking over old experiences at that dear old place, during the years of 1834-85, with dear "Aunt Charlotte" and Miss Emma Page at the helm. Time has wrought many changes with the group. The rosy-cheeked, care-free girls are now gray-haired maids and matrons. The changes that have been made by thirtyfive years seem almost unbelievable. Those present were: Miss Maggie Turbeville, 1105 Eighth Avenue, South, Nashville, Tenn.; Mrs. Ada Maultsby Tyler, Mrs. Blanche Kinnie Miles, Belleview, Tenn.; Miss Jennie Lou Anderson, Lavergne, Tenn.; Mrs. Lottie Johnson, St. Louis, Mo. Mrs. W. P. Sutton and daughter, Miss Mary, of Lavergne, Tenn., and Miss Nina Kinnie, of Belleview, Tenn., were guests.

In Memory of Roy Champion Smith.

The death of Roy Smith occasioned great sorrow, not only to his family, but to a wide circle of friends who knew of the many trials he had suffered. Brother F. W. Smith, who is well known and generally loved by the readers of the Gospel Advocate, loved this boy with rare and deep devection, and the other members of the family lavished their affections upon him. It is a comfort to know that our Savior loved him most intensely. The funeral was conducted on Friday, August 13, at the residence on Belmont Boulevard. A. B. Lipscomb and J. C. McQuiddy bespoke the sympathy of the many triends present. F. B. Srygley, a lifelong friend of the family, joined them at Maplewood Cemetery, where the body was tenderly laid away. The following tribute was written by Brother F. W. Smith:

"Roy Champion Smith was born on November 2, 1898, and died on August 12, 1920; consequently he was twenty-one years, nine months, and ten days of age. He was afflicted from infancy and never had good use of his limbs, and was keenly sensitive as to his condition. He sometimes showed despondency over his physical misfortune. Naturally he was of a kind, genial disposition, and generous to almost a fault. He readily made friends of the young and old, both white and colored. He was one of the most self-denying children in the world, and thought more of the comfort and convenience of others than of his own. his serious illness he was constantly concerned about the welfare of others. Time and again in the midst of his greatest suffering he would insist on his loved ones going home for rest and something to eat. He seemed to realize from the first attack of the disease which took him away that he could not recover, and said to his father a number of times: 'Papa, I will never get home again.' Not a murmur of complaint escaped his fevered lips even one time during all his illness, and his nurses said that he was one of the best and most patient persons they had ever known. In some ways Roy was but a child, and was so regarded by all the members of his family. He was kind, affectionate, and industrious, having a great ambition do things in life as other young men, but realizing that he was greatly handicapped by his affliction caused him at times to be filled with sorrow. He was baptized into Christ in his sixteenth year."

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and lorenge advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order. In registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite or the paper is changed.

rom the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that affect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tail us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, ster paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but michanged within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but stakes on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments were from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gespel Advocate, 317-318 Fifth Avenus, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subacribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the sebis of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter. Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

Slackers.

BY J, C, M'Q.

No one admires a quitter. Even the man who is so cowardly that he will not contend for that which he believes is right will not undertake to defend his cowardice. Until men have convictions and ideals and are ready to make sacrifices in order to maintain and uphold such ideals, the world will never reach that state of perfection for which Christ died. No man is capable of leading others to a nobler life until he is ready to fight for the truth regardless of consequences. Joshua manifested the spirit that every noble man will manifest when he said: "And if it seem evil unto you to serve Jehovah, choose you this day whom ye will serve; whether the gods which your fathers served that were beyond the River, or the gods of the Amorites, in whose land ye dwell: but as for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah." (Josh. 24: 15.) No man who lives up to his convictions and who does what he conscientiously believes to be right is a slacker. The true man will not do anything else. The Holy Spirit, through Paul, says: "I know, and am persuaded in the Lord Jesus. that nothing is unclean of itself; save that to him who accounteth anything to be unclean, to him it is unclean." (Rom. 14: 14.) This shows very clearly that a man is not to do a thing that he believes is wrong. That thing may not be wrong per se; but if he considers it wrong, then it is wrong to him. It does not follow that because a man does what he does conscientiously, that therefore he is right and cannot make a mistake. Men's consciences must be educated and guided by the word of God. A man may be sincerely wrong, but never insincerely right. No justification can be offered for the man who manufactures a conscience for the occasion. The man who conscientiously objects to war should not be conscripted and forced to violate his conscience. The man who stands up for his convictions is to be commended, but the man who develops a conscience overnight and who has really never shown any conviction against war is not worthy of respect if he claims to be a conscientious objector. There are many fathers in this country who have been opposed to war all their lives, and who have stoutly opposed it, but who have sons that have not been so opposed to war, and their lives have shown that they did not oppose it. Such fathers should not attempt to assign their consciences to such sons. The son must stand or fall upon his own merit or demerit.

It is not my purpose now to write on the great war that has passed. It is over, and we should now go forward in reconstruction and in endeavoring to lead the world up to a higher civilization and to a more perfect practice of the Christian religion. Nothing is to be gained by dwelling on the past and thus stirring up strife and animosity over things that should be buried. We should deal with the living present, for it has problems of its own which should be met fearlessly and courageously. The Holy Spirit admonishes: "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." (1 Cor. 16: 13.) Just yesterday I heard of a prominent man-a man of much ability and whom I have always regarded as having great strength of character-saying that he had ceased to fight when he knew that the battle was lost. I do not think that such a statement should be applied to moral issues. When a man knows that he is right, he should say: "I never fight a battle expecting to lose it." "Truth crushed to earth will rise again." If Belgium had acted on the principle of this gentleman, she certainly would have been crushed to the earth never to rise again. While she fought a losing battle temporarily, finally she won gloriously and triumphantly. If Luther had acted on the principle of this man, the religious world would be in the shackles of Roman Catholicism to-day. Because the truth was unpopular, Paul did not cease to prudently teach it in the face of a frowning world, and in the face of the bitterest opposition he fearlessly declared "all the counsel of God." Regardless of the battle's being lost, so far as misguided people were concerned, when in Corinth he knew nothing but Christ. and him crucified. Even in view of the executioner's ax, which was ready to sever his head from his body, he did not give up the battle as lost. Even in seeming defeat he won the greatest victories. When he came to die, he triumphantly said: "But I am already being offered, and the time of my departure is come. I have fought the good fight, I have finished the course, I have kept the faith: henceforth there is laid up for me the crown of righteousness, which the Lord, the righteous judge, shall give to him at that day; and not to me only, but also to all them that have loved his appearing." (2 Tim. 4: 6-8.) If a thing is right, a man should do it; if it is wrong, he should let it alone. No man should set his sail to catch the popular breezes. If a thing is right, he should give his manhood to its defense; if it is wrong, he should give his whole strength to its condemnation.

Since the war is over we have many slackers who appear to be determined to work no more. This applies to no particular class, but to all alike. We are complaining of the high cost of living without giving attention to our extravagant expenditures. Low production is sure to bring high cost of living. Men should not be slackers in work, slackers in the church, slackers in business or anywhere else. Even Christian parents are too prone to acquiesce in their sons and daughters' dissipation-in their remaining out until the late hours of the night and remaining in bed until the late hours of the morning instead of devoting their time to work that is honorable and to such work as will bring down the high cost of living. Many who went to the war have come home and have shown a disposition not to work. They seem to think that they are not called upon to work, but that others should do what little work is being done. This is not God's order; and whenever we get away from God's way of doing things, we should know that we must pay the penalty. When man had sinned in the garden of Eden, God placed the curse upon Adam and Eve, and "unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy pain and thy conception; in pain thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee. And unto Adam he said, Because thou hast hearkened unto the voice of thy wife, and hast eaten of the tree, of which I commanded thee, saying, Thou shalt not eat of it: cursed is the ground for thy sake; in toil shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life; thorns also and thistles shall it bring forth to thee; and thou shalt eat the herb of the field; in the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shall thou return." (Gen. 3: 16-19.) Toil is honorable. It is God's order that in the sweat of his face man shall eat bread. God has decreed that he that will not work, neither shall he eat. It is necessary, helpful, and honorable for a man to work; and whenever our sons and daughters fail to do so, the world must pay the debt. There is a self-respect and a compensation that comes from faithful toil that no man should permit himself to lose. The man that labors rests; the man that works enjoys an exhilaration of feeling and enjoys health such as is unknown to the idler. Shame on our civilization and upon our manhood! The greater the turmoil, the greater the moral laxity, the greater the intemperance and lack of self-control that are now abroad in the land, so much the greater is the necessity for our leaders and teachers to boldly and fearlessly condemn sin in every form. It is no time for slackers! It is a time for men who are not cowardly to cry out and spare not! Men should be encouraged to practice self-control, to lead lives of self-denial, to live godly in Christ Jesus. The man who draws back is unfit for the kingdom of God. Such characters will never hear the welcome plaudit, "Well done!" We must fight the fight of faith; we must exalt righteousness; we must stand for the efficiency and completeness of the church of Christ, if we would see the world brought to a higher civilization and a purer Christianity.

Bible Things by Bible Names.

It is pertinent, first of all, to ask the question: Is it possible, at all times and under all circumstances, to call Bible things by Bible names? Or, to ask the same question in a different form, is it possible, at all times and under all circumstances, to speak as the Bible speaks? If not, why not? If a thing is mentioned in the Bible at all and is therein called by some name, it would seem to be a strange position indeed to say that we may have that thing to-day, but cannot call it by the name by which it is there called.

The truth of the matter is that, in the midst of the denominationalism of our time with its greatly confused and misleading parlance, it is exceedingly difficult, though by no means impossible, to speak of some Bible things in the language of the Bible. This is because the things in question are more or less entangled with error or things not in the Bible, which condition of things is liable to influence one's use of Bible names and to make one include in them sometimes more and sometimes less than is included in them in the Bible.

In our discussion of this principle, it is the purpose in the present article to confine the investigation to the Biblical usage of the term "church" as applied to the religious institution so-called. What is the thing denoted by this term, and by what other differentiating name or names is it called in the Bible? If we would be accurate in our thought and speech, we must not overlook the fact that it is quite possible to apply a Biblical name to an unbiblical thing and, vice versa, to apply an unbiblical name to a Biblical thing. We may have the right name and the wrong thing, or a wrong name and a right thing; but, of course, speech that is strictly in accordance with Biblical usage will have both the right thing and the right name. Good and even thoughtful men and women are sometimes in confusion here, and we should deal with them gently while trying to show them, as James would express it. "the error of their way." (James 5: 20.)

The Lord said: "Upon this rock I will build my church." (Matt. 16: 18.) Further on in the New Testament we learn that by this term he meant those persons who accepted his teaching and who, under his authority and in obedience to his command, are buried with him by baptism "into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit," "into one body," "into Christ," and (See Matt. 28: 19; Rom. 6: 3; 1 Cor. "into his death." 12: 13; Gal. 3: 27.) In Biblical usage, such persons, living at a given place, were referred to as "the church" at that place. Read carefully the following passages: Acts 8: 1: 9: 31; 13: 1; 1 Cor. 1: 2; 2 Cor. 1: 1; 1 Thess. 1: 1; 2 Thess. 1: 1. From these passages we learn, among other things, two significant facts bearing directly on the present investigation-(1) that such persons in a given locality were called "the church" in that locality; (2) that the term always, without exception, included all such persons in the locality to which it was applied. If we will let these two facts become clearly and firmly fixed in our minds, they will aid us in our effort to avoid confusion and to call Bible things by Bible names. The fact is, the fallure to thus remember and respect these facts is the cause of much of the confusion that now exists.

Accordingly, when Paul spoke of "the church of God which is at Corinth" (1 Cor. 1: 2), "the church" at Philippi (Phil. 4: 15), "the church" at Thessalonica (1 Thess. 1: 1), or "the church" at Ephesus (Acts 20: 17), he included all the Christians at Corinth, at Philippi, at Thessalonica, and at Ephesus; and of course it follows that, when we refer to "the church" at some place in modern times, if we would speak as the Bible speaks, we must also include all Christians at that place. Moreover, just as "the church" at Corinth, at Ephesus, at Thessalonica, or at any other place, included, in Biblical usage, all Christians at the places named, so, in the general sense, "the church throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria," mentioned in Acts 9: 31, included, in the same usage, all Christians in Judea, Galilee, and Samaria; and of course "the church at Nashville," "at Louisville," or at any other place, must include all Christians at the places named, and in the general sense, "the church in Tennessee," "the church in Kentucky," or "the church" in any other territory, however large or small, if the term be used as it is used in the Bible, must include all Christians or children of God in the territory to which it is applied. The reader can, therefore, clearly see that unless our present-day use of the term "church" includes all the children of God in the territory to which it is applied, we are plainly and unquestionably using it in a sectarian sense, and hence are not, in such instances, calling Bible things by Bible names.

We leave the reader to think over these things until they can be followed with a still further consideration of the subject.

Current Thought

Bishop Candler on Interchurch Movement.

Bishop Warren A. Candler, of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, enjoys the distinction of being in the rather limited class of preachers whose utterances on great issues are always snatched at by the public press. And there's a reason—he is a keen observer and a forceful writer.
From the extended interview the reporter had with him, and which was printed in the Atlanta (Ga.) Journal, issue July 11, we shall here reproduce the following terse statements:

"The movement was never in any true sense an 'interchurch movement,' but rather an 'interboard or intersecretary movement.' It was organized without authority from any church or board. To use the language printed in its own organ, it 'constituted itself the umpire and adviser' of the churches which it assumed to represent.

"A few men, denominated 'leaders,' met in New York a year or two ago and organized the scheme. These few men were self-approved and self-appointed. They made their own organization, elected their own officers, fixed their salaries, arranged their own plans, and then sought the indorsement and support of the evangelical churches. In so far as I can recall, no church formally indersed the movement, although it was published far and wide that thirty of the leading denominations were participating in it. Certain boards of missions, notably those of the Northern Baptists and Northern Presbyterians, did involve their churches financially for large sums. The way in which the Northern Presbyterian Church became involved is typical of the methods by which some others were involved. The matter was brought to the General Assembly, and it was referred to their executive commission, with certain powers and limitations, and the commission indorsed the movement and pledged the church for $1,000,000 to support it.

The Northern Baptists became responsible for $2,500,000.

"The leaders of the Interchurch Movement, in order to carry out its colossal plans, borrowed a very large sum of money from banks in New York, relying upon its collec-tions to repay the loan and securing these church boards as 'underwriters,' or indorsers, of the obligation. Now the ' underwriters' have to make good their indorsement, inasmuch as the collections have not been secured in sufficient amounts to meet the huge and wasteful expenses of the movement. For the millions spent during the brief life of the movement the churches have little to show.

'A valuable lesson taught by the failure of the Interchurch World Movement is that the world cannot be saved by any program of hurrah and publicity and money. The kingdom of heaven operates among men as leaven in meal until the whole is leavened. When the church of God mimics the methods of 'big business' in doing its work, it inevitably falls into the sins of the big business. That was a most humiliating confession made by Mr. Robert Spear before the General Assembly of the Northern Presby-terian Church, when he said of the Interchurch World Movement: 'Radical changes must be made in the Interchurch World Movement. Its leadership has been more promotional than constructive. Its expenditures have been colossal—impossible. It has separated itself from the boards and agencies with which it was designed to work in unison. It has duplicated organizations and appeals. Its publicity has frequently been false and appeals. Its publicity has frequently been false, and nearly always governed by wrong motives—self-laudatory instead of exalting the Head of the church.' It is a thousand pities that Mr. Spear did not see all this sooner. He was one of the He was one of the beginning. Why did 'leaders' of the movement from its beginning. he allow such things?

Christianity is not discredited by the failure of the Interchurch Movement; only a group of 'self-constituted leaders' are discredited. Nor are the Protestant churches discredited. The number of churches which gave any sort of indorsement to the movement was not thirty, although the publicity agents of the movement published that num-ber constantly. A few mission boards gave an indorsement to the movement, and the churches they represent are now muleted for the blundering of the secretaries of these boards; but the churches are paying the millions required to discharge a debt of doubtful character, and thus they are scrupulously maintaining their honor.

"The Interchurch Movement has claimed credit for large sums that these churches have raised by their own agents and from their own members, and which they would have raised if there had never been an Interchurch World Movement. These churches come out of the movement poorer by reason of the unwisdom of some of their officials, but without a stain of discredit or dishonor.

"They are learning costly, but valuable, lessons." Thoughtful men are now looking back upon the Interchurch flash and capitalizing its spectacular career into valuable ressons for the future of the Christian religion, and the world is laughing at the colossal Interchurch failure. Yet the interchurch leaders are still planning drives!
And "our denomination" is still in the interchurch
Movement, helping—to pay the expenses.—Christian

Standard

It now appears that the Interchurch World Movement is a failure. If Christians all over the world would profit by this failure, the money would be well spent. It does seem that all should realize that the church is the light of the world, the sait of the earth, and that to it we must look for the evangelization of the world. It is time we were turning away from missionary societies and looking to the church, as it is God's only missionary society. With the churches alive and aglow with love for the truth, the gospel would be preached to all nations and many thousands would be led into the light of truth. Instead of forming societies, movements, and making new programs, let us give the church of Christ and the gospel of Christ a chance; let us brush aside the rubbish that is interfering with the advancement of the truth and boldly and fearlessly preach the gospel of Christ.

Young People Neglect Church.

There are several young men and women in the Central Church whose faces are not seen in any church service. Some of them manage to get to the Bible school, and do not even know the subject of the lesson. Many have not read it through once. One does not need to be a prophet to know the sort of a home such will establish. No amount of work, however commendable, in a lodge, club, Bible school, or charitable institution, can take the place of it, or atone for neglect in church attendance. It is a badge of nobility, and an evidence of a sincere desire to perpetuate the When strangers or friends of church members attend the services and do not find the membership present, they naturally decide that they do not consider the church as being of much account. Most of the strangers attend the evening service. It is the church's opportunity to meet them and make them so welcome that they will wish to return .- Upward.

Many young people neglect the church because they are not given the proper home training. If parents would give more attention to training their children and would teach them to read and study the Bible more and to lead prayerful lives, the young people would attend church much more readily than they do at the present time. The fault begins in the home. The way to have a larger church attendance is to remedy this neglect at home. The family is the salt of the church, as the church is "the salt of the earth."

0 0 0

Life's Common Things.

The things of every day are all so sweet-The morning meadows wet with dew The dance of daisies in the noon; the blue Of far-off hills where twilight shadows lie: The night, with all its tender mystery of sound And silence, and God's starry sky! O, life—the whole of life—is far too fleet. The things of every day are all so sweet. The common things of life are all so dear-The waking in the warm half-gloom To find again the old familiar room; The scents and sighs and sounds that never tire: The homely work, the plans, the lift of baby's laugh; The crackle of the open fire; The waiting, then the footsteps coming near: The opening door, your handclasp—and your kiss— Is Heaven not, after all, the Now and Here? The common things of life are all so dear. -Alice E. Allen.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT

Conducted by C. E. WOOLDRIDGE

350 Missouri Avenue

Fort Worth, Texas

Texas Notes.

Austin, August 12.—I have just closed a good meeting at Pritchett. There were twelve baptisms. The people came in great crowds and listened well. The church supported me well, treated me royally, and engaged me for the meeting next year. I am now in a short meeting at Gilmer. I go to Sentinel, Okla., next week.—W. F. Ledlow.

Bowle, August 10.—I am just home from the Dye Mound meeting. One young man obeyed the gospel and much good was done otherwise. After a few days' rest 1 go to Guyman, Okla., for a long meeting. Who wants a meeting in Colorado, Mexico, Oklahoma, or North Texas during September? Write me at Guymon, Okla.—T. H. Matheson.

Itasca, August 11.—Our meeting at Maud, Okla., continued sixteen days and resulted in twenty-nine additions—twenty-six baptisms. Three of these were from the Baptists. One was a grandmother, sixty-four years of age, and so crippled with sciatica that she could not walk; so we carried her down into the water in a chair and baptized her. The brethren declare it the best meeting ever held in Maud. The last Sunday of the meeting members from Shawnee, Ada, Kotnawa, and Wewoka were with us. I shall begin a meeting at Justin, Texas, next Sunday.—W. P. Skaggs.

Grand Saline, August 9.—The meeting at this place is now in the second week. Large crowds are in attendance and the interest is fine. Brother R. W. Jernigan, of Bridgeport, Ala., is doing the preaching. The truth is being preached in love and humility, and we are expecting visible results. The meeting will close on Thursday night. Brother Jernigan will go from here to his promised field of labor in Middle Tennessee. I am conducting the song service here, and will go next to Lelia Lake, Texas, to assist Brother Foy E. Wallace, Jr., in a meeting at that place.—Eulys C. McKenzie.

Dallas, August 11.—I have just returned to my usual work with Pearl and Bryan Streets Church, this city, after my "vacation." as it is commonly called. I was gone one month, visiting and preaching among my kinspeople in Tennessee and Kentucky. I held two meetings, doing all the preaching, and visited three others during the month I was gone. There were, in all, forty accessions to these congregations under my preaching. The work here is moving on nicely. While I was gone, the church engaged me for another year. There have been three to come into our fellowship since my return. We pray for a great year's work.—A. O. Colley.

Clarksville, Route 5, August 10.—Our meeting at Russell's Chapel closed at the water on Sunday afternoon. A congregation was set in order with thirty-two members, nine were baptized, and there are three more to be baptizing as soon. Brother R. W. Welborn assisted me in baptizing and aided much in the meeting. The brethren treated me well. The brethren at Annona assisted in singing and otherwise. The meeting continued eleven days. I began at Weaver, four miles from Annona, last night. This is a Holiness stronghold. When I close here, I want to go home to Taft, Fla. I am open for meetings in September or October. Write me at this place.—G. B. Lambright.

Purdon, August 10.—Since the first of May I have been quite busy "doing the work of an evangelist." I have just closed one of the best meetings of my life at Dawson—not from the standpoint of additions, but from the general interest manifested. There were fourteen additions. We baptized the mayor of the town, together with his wife and daughter, among other prominent people. Brother C. T. McCormack, of Dallas, led the song service. He is among the best of the Lord's own. I am now at Persley, a large country church near Corsicana. From here I shall go to Mississippi, thence to Missouri, and shall begin at Muskogee, Okla., on September 5.—J. W. Brents.

Colorado, August 9.—I closed a meeting at Silver last night, with seven baptisms and five restorations. We had fine interest from the beginning, and the crowd increased from start to finish. There were visiting people for two hundred miles, and all the towns for twenty-five miles around were represented. The sectarians were deeply interested. The visiting preachers were Brother Brown, of Robert Lee, and Brother Selman; and two Baptist preachers attended and were deeply interested in the preaching. I am to begin a meeting at Marietta, Miss., Route 1, on August 14, and one at Utica, Miss., on August 28. I have time for two neetings in September and the first of October,—W. F. Lemmons.

Fort Worth, August 9.—Yesterday was a great day for us at the Southside-Central church of Christ. In the afternoon eight automobiles full of children started from the church house and traveled to the City-County Hospital, down town, every child with a load of flowers, which they distributed among the sufferers in the institution. The joy of those poor, (some) homeless, sick, and sorrowing ones was a sight to behold, and those that carried the flowers were the happiest I ever saw. We will go to the two other hospitals next Sunday. My people here are learning what it means to serve, and they like it. I am in a meeting with the Highland Park Church, and going on next week.—Tice Elkins.

Irving, August 12.—We closed the meeting at Charlie last night. This is one of the best congregations known to me. They are at perfect peace, love one another, and have utmost confidence in their elders, Brethren Tucker and Luttrell. This congregation owes its existence largely to Brother H. Tucker. When he moved there years ago, he went to work at once to plant Christianity in what promised to be his future home. By patience and persistence he has succeeded and raised some noble children. He is a Tennesseean by birth, converted under the preaching of Brother D. Lipscomb, and quotes his writings frequently. His home was mine while there, and a good one. He is growing old now, and has an excellent band of Christians to spend his last days with. They will continue to grow. I premised to return in 1921. I begin at Garden Valley to-morrow.—J. W. Dunn.

Era, August 4.-I am now in a meeting at Era, with prospects good for a fine meeting. There were twenty additions to the congregation at Quanah in the recent meeting I thank the Gospel Advocate for publishing my re quest in behalf of the church at Marshall. That is one of the most important missions in Texas, and has been shamefully neglected by the preachers and churches in this State. I am going there the first of October to begin a real effort to establish the cause, and I will have to carry a good singer. The few brethren there are worthy people, and they have gone their limit in the struggle to fit themselves up for work. They join me in asking the congrega-tions to fellowship the meeting to the end that the preacher and singer may have a living support for their work. I know the field, and confidently believe that the Lord has many souls there; and I am going, support or no support. Send offerings to Brother C. W. Lagrone or Reuben F. Hall, who are faithful men of God, and say that the offerings are for the October meeting; and should more be sent than is necessary, they can apply it on their church debt,-T. W. Phillips.

Oklahoma Notes.

Lamar, August 5.—I closed a two-weeks' meeting with the Cemetery Street church of Christ at Fayetteville, Ark., on Sunday night. We had large crowds all through the meeting Thirteen were baptized and two came from the "digressives." I began at Lamar last night.—W. L. Oliphant.

Muskogee, August 9.—One made the good confession at the Wednesday-evening prayer-meeting service at the church on East Oklahoma Avenue and was buried with her Lord in baptism: one restored at the Sunday-morning service. Twenty-six have been added to the congregation since January 1.—T. S. Bain.

Ravia, August 9.—The meeting here is a good one in point of attendance, but no confessions to date. The meeting will close to-night. Some of our preachers report their meetings a "failure" when no one accepts the truth. I feel that this is a mistake. If the people come and listen and the gospel is preached, I feel sure good is done. I held a meeting once near Waco, Texas, and some nine years afterwards a gentleman who made the confession and was baptized told the brethren that I taught him the gospel nine years before. I go to Hobart, Ark., to begin a meeting next Sunday.—D. S. Ligon.

Query Department

By J. C. McQUIDDY

J. M. Noblitt, of Mulberry, Tenn., asks this question:
"Was the James that was with Jesus when he raised Jairus' daughter the one that wrote the book of James?"

James, the brother of John, is the one that was present when Jesus raised the daughter of Jairus. Mark 5: 37 states: "And he suffered no man to follow him, save Peter, and James, and John the brother of James." Acts 12: 2 tells us that Herod killed James the brother of John. The passage reads: "And he killed James the brother of John with his sword." It is probable that the one who wrote the Epistle of James was James the brother of the Lord. The authorship must be ascribed either to him or to James the son of Alpheus. To my mind, the facts all point to James the brother of the Lord as being the author of the book. He was a permanent resident of Jerusalem and had great influence in the church. He appears to have been the chief figure in the "council of Jerusalem" described in the fifteenth chapter of Acts. He was one of the pillars of the church. (Gal. 2: 9.) Hence, he could speak with authority to the Jewish Christians scattered abroad.

0 0 0

H. Owen sends the following questions for answer: (1)
"Does the word 'psalms' in Col. 3: 16 refer to instruments of music?" (2) "What authority from the New Testament has the church for using individual cups any more than an organ in the worship?" (3) "Is Rom. 13: 1-4 sufficient authority for Christians to take up arms?"

1. Col. 3: 16 refers to the Psalms and not to instruments of music. This is clear from the passage itself, as well as from Eph. 5: 19; Luke 24: 44; Luke 20: 42; Acts 1: 20. These passages read: "Speaking one to another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody with your heart to the Lord." (Eph. 5: 19.) "And he said unto them, These are my words which I spake unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must needs be fulfilled, which are written in the law of Moses, and the prophets, and the psalms, concerning me." (Luke 24: 44.) "For David himself saith in the book of Psalms, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand." (Luke 20: 42.) "For it is written in the book of Psaims, Let his habitation be made desolate, and let no man dwell therein: and, His office let another take." (Acts 1: 20.) It would be as reasonable to conclude that the law of Moses and the prophets were instrumental music as to conclude that the Psalms are instrumental music. David did not say things in instruments of music, but in the book of Psalms. What was written in the book of Psalms could not possibly be written in instruments of music.

2. The Bible nowhere tells us the special kind of communion service to be used in the observance of the Lord's Supper. Until the Lord definitely tells us just the character of communion service to be used, no one has the right to bind any specific kind of service. The Bible does not tell us how many cups shall be used in the observance of the Lord's Supper. While I am not in sympathy with the idea that we must use the individual cup in the communion service in order to be sanitary, and while it appears to me that to contend for individual cups is not approved by the Holy Spirit, yet I could not say that we must have so many cups and no more. The reason for this is that the Lord has not legislated as to the number of cups that shall be used. When it comes to the organ in the worship, we do not find in the New Testament church where an organ was ever used in the worship. We do learn that Christians did sing with the spirit and with the understanding. As God has given us an example of the character of music that is to be used in the worship (singing), if we walk by faith, we must sing and not play an instrument in the worship. If God had said, "Play on instruments," then we might select any number of instruments that we thought best and play on them; but as we must "walk by faith, not by sight," in the worship, we should not play on an instrument at all in the worship.

3. Rom. 13: 1-4 is authority for submitting to "the powers that be." This is authority for being loyal to the government under which we are living, and is authority for supporting it in every and any way that does not violate the law of God. I do not understand that it is authority for Christians' taking up arms and fighting, as it says nothing on this subject. Other scriptures show that Christians should not do this. Christians should do what the government requires, unless in the doing of it they are required to violate the law of God. God's law must have preference over the civil authorities with Christians. Whenever there is a conflict between the two, we must obey God rather than men.

0 0 0

A sister from Guin, Ala., asks the following questions:

(1) "Is it right for a woman to preach publicly?" (2)

"What is the meaning of 1 Cor. 14: 34, which reads: 'Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but let them be in subjection, as also saith the law.' What is the meaning of 1 Tim.
2: 11, 12, which reads: 'Let a woman learn in quietness with all subjection. But I permit not a woman to teach, nor to have dominion over a man, but to be in quietness?'"
She also says: "It seems to appear from this latter passage that it would not be right for a woman to even teach a class in the Bible school."

The speaking that is forbidden is evidently the public proclamation of the word. Conybeare and Howson, in "The Life and Epistles of Paul," render the verse thus: "In your congregation, as in all the congregations of Christ's people, the women must keep silence, for they are not permitted to speak in public, but to show submission, as it is said also in the book of the law." The passage clearly does not mean absolute silence; for, if so, women would not be allowed to whisper, sing, or make any noise whatever in the congregation. Woman is required to be modest, unassuming, and not to act in any way that assumes dominion or authority over the man. This thought is brought out in the law referred to, which is Gen. 3: 16. This reads: "Unto the woman he said, I will greatly multiply thy pain and thy conception; in pain thou shalt bring forth children; and thy desire shall be to thy husband, and he shall rule over thee." 1 Tim. 2: 13 tells us that Adam was first formed, then Eve, and that Adam was not beguiled, but that the woman, being beguiled, hath fallen into transgression. The thought is that woman should be modest and quiet and should do nothing unbecoming her position. A woman is not to take the lead in the Bible school; but when she takes a class off in one corner and teaches the word of God, she is not teaching in a public capacity. This is private teaching. If partitions were to divide the classes and each were in a separate room, no one would consider it public teaching. When a woman has a class of her own and teaches a class of boys and girls, she certainly is not engaged in the public proclamation of the

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

BY S. H. HALL and B. C. GOODPASTURE

McGregor, Ga.

The following from G. D. Mitchell, builder of the church house at McGregor, Ga., deserves due consideration: "Dear Sir: Any help you can render in getting the money for building the church at McGregor, for me, will be highly appreciated, as circumstances make it necessary for me to have it at the earliest possible date. Please make another effort toward it."

The above needs no comment. There is but one sensible thing to do, and that is to raise the money at once and eliminate the debt. In our call for help before, I stated that we needed about five hundred dollars to eliminate all indebtedness. Brother Swann reports sixty-eight dollars and ninety-five cents received since that call. We need more than four hundred dollars. The congregation at Dickson, Tenn., gave fifty dollars of the above amount. They had already given one hundred dollars. Let all who have given give more, and let those who have not given send their donations, without delay, to S. B. Swann, McGregor, Ga. The Atlanta congregations, with Dasher, Valdosta, and others, are to make a special donation next Lord's day (August 15). Let others follow this with donations on August 22 and finish the job. There are a few churches in Georgia that have been helped much, but I have not heard of their helping toward this debt. Give, brethren, if you want to act like our Lord and Savior and be of real service in the kingdom of God. Do not be afraid of giving too much. If more is sent than is needed, it will be forwarded to Savannah, Ga., the next place where we want a church house and must have it.

* * *

News Items.

I spent ten days at Fort Valley recently, in the home of E. H. Ijams and wife, during which time preaching was done in their home on the farm and at the Congregational meetinghouse in town. This was a most enjoyable stay. They had invited a number of their friends to spend their vacation with them and attend the meeting. Brother J. H. Harden and wife, of Gadsden, Ala., were there for five or six days, and their presence added much to the real worth of the meeting; W. S. Stroud and family, of Atlanta, were with us for two of the services; and quite a number of Macon's best attended quite regularly and added greatly to its success. One soul confessed his faith in Christ and was baptized. The meeting was begun and closed by Brother Ijams and Brother J. B. Beck, the latter conducting the song service throughout the meeting. While this meeting was not attended by as large crowds as we would have liked, it was one of the most uplifting to me that I have been in for a long while. Sterling character counts, and you cannot come in contact with it and not be helped Ijams and his wife are of our very best. The same can be said of J. H. Harden and wife and the others who helped us.

Fort Valley is one of Georgia's best small towns, and is surrounded with the best farming and peach-growing section in the State. Brother Ijams married, a few years ago, Mr. Frank Hartly's daughter, and he is now superintending the Hartly farm. The farm contains above thirteen hundred acres, and I could stand on the second floor of the hotel and see about eighty-five thousand peach trees. It is a beautiful sight indeed.

R. C. White, of Nashville, Tenn., was in a meeting at Buchanan, Ga., when I last heard from him, with good crowds, two confessions, and others expected.

J. Bedford Beck began his work in Savannah, Ga., the second Lord's day in this month. His permanent address will be 109 East President Street. J. N. Copeland, who will be associated with Brother Beck in the work, is helping me at his writing in a meeting at Dasher, Ga., his home church

The members of the West End Avenue Church are delighted with B. C. Goodpasture and wife, and they are equally delighted with West End Avenue. We are so thankful for having secured the services of these good people, and I pray that the Lord may keep them in this state.

Brother Hall's Work in Georgia,

No one who has not been intimately connected with the work in Georgia can appreciate what Brother Hall has done for the Master in this great Southern field. Nothing except untiring energy and effort, fired with an abiding love for truth and souls, could have accomplished what has been done. In tents and schoolhouses, in private homes and public places, in quiet conversations and stormy controversies, he has faithfully proclaimed and defended the gospel of the Son of God. As a result of his labors in this section of the country, about thirty congregations have been either reclaimed or established. In fact, it is impossible for us to sum up, in terms of human experience, the ultimate results of his sojourn and sacrifices in this State. Eternity alone can do that. Long after he shall have passed to his reward his influence will linger here, and through it he, like the man of old, "being dead," will yet speak. The churches in Atlanta and elsewhere in Georgia, as well as the scattered disciples throughout the far South, will remember him in their hearts and prayers and wish and bespeak for his work in the distant West the same success that crowned his efforts here. The prophet-king has well expressed our sentiments at this particular juncture: "Jehovah will keep thee from all evil; he will keep thy soul. Jehovah will keep thy going out and thy coming in from this time forth and for evermore." (Ps. 121: 7, 8.)

0 0 0

A Dry Shower.

It was a dry shower only in the sense that there was no rain. When we came to our rooms, we found the kitchen presenting unmistakable evidences of culinary abundance. The good people of the West End Avenue Church had expressed their hospitality and Christian love in a very substantial manner. The abundant supply of all kinds of groceries which greeted us on our arrival has, at least, for some time yet to come, banished from our minds all fear of the "high cost of living" These manifestations of esteem and regard seem to be normal characteristics of this congregation. We are sincerely grateful and thankful for this very acceptable and genteel remembrance. On account of this, we are constrained to do as Paul did when the brethren from Rome met him at the Three Taverns—"thank God and take courage." (Acts 28: 15.)

0 0 0

Bits of News.

Although it was a rainy day yesterday, we had two good services at West End Avenue. This is a living, working congregation. It is our purpose to "abound more and more" unto every good work.

Brother A. R. Hill closed a fourteen-days' meeting at Trion, Ga., last night. The crowds and interest were good throughout the meeting. There were three baptisms.

throughout the meeting. There were three baptisms.

At Pleasant Grove, Ga., Brother Silas E. Templeton closed an eight-days' meeting last night. The attendance and attention were fine. One was baptized and one restored.

Inasmuch as I am beginning my work with the West End Avenue Church, I should be glad for all who have relatives or friends that have recently come to this city, or are planning to come in the near future, to let me know, if I can serve them. Although my work, primarily, is to be with one congregation, yet I shall be glad to do all I can for the church anywhere within my reach. My address is 98 South Ashby Street, Atlanta, Ga.

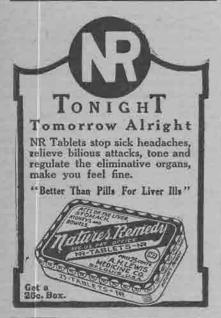

Teach me to do the best I can
To help and cheer our fellow man;
Teach me to lose my selfish need
And glory in the larger deed
Which smooths the road and lights the day
For all who chance to come my way.

—Edgar A. Guest.

MEDICINAL ROOTS, HERBS, BARKS AND BERRIES

And other alteratives, tonics and health-giving ingredients that are recommended in the best medical books, are combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla. It builds up the blood, improves the appetite, invigorates the digestion, tones the stomach and gives nerve strength so as to promote permanent good health. Has merited and held the praise of three generations. You should give it a trial.

As a gentle thorough cathartic many recommend Hood's Pills.

VACCINATE YOUR HOGS.

BUY SERUM direct from the manufacturers and be assured of a fresh, reliable product. United States Veter-inary License No. 114; long-distance phone, Main 2569, Nashville, Tenn Writs for 96-page Hog Book; it is PREE. WHITE SERUM COMPANY.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debitivy and weak heart. Relieves head rehas, neuralgia and rheumatic pains and reduces fever. No depressing effects, Made by a formula which is in general use by teading physicians. 35c per package at your druggists or by mall from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, inc., Clinton, S. C.

CHURCH NEWS

Tennessee.

Etna, August 8.—Our meeting at this place continues, with good interest and attendance. Four additions to date. I will close, the Lord willing, next Friday evening.—Earnest C. Love.

Pleasant View, August 9.—I closed my meeting at Bluff Springs, in Marshall County, last Thursday, with four baptisms. I will remain at Pleasant View until the latter part of next week,—Robert Alexander.

Huntingdon, August 9.—I closed an eight-days' meeting at Pleasant Hill, four miles east of Trenton, yesterday, with six additions to the "one body." I am new in a brush-arbor meeting seven miles west of Huntingdon. I go from here to Alamo to sing through a meeting for Brother G. Dallas Smith.—J. R. Stockard.

Middleton, August 12.—Brother T. M. Carney, of San Angelo, Texas, held a meeting at New Hope, in Hardeman County, beginning on August 1 and closing on August 11, with eleven baptized. This was Brother Carney's fourth meeting here. Brother William Etheridge, who is located at Middleton and is doing the work of an evangelist in our county, is now at Pocahontas, and we hope to report good results soon.—C. W. Thompson.

Minor Hill, August 9.—On last Saturday morning, at the water, I closed a very interesting and well-attended meeting at Appleton, which resulted in ten precious souls obeying the gospel and one uniting from the Baptists. I have held quite a number of meetings at Appleton, but, taking everything into consideration, this was the best one in the history of the congregation. I am now at Minor Hill preaching to large and attentive congregations. We are expecting a good meeting.—J. T. Harris.

Cottage Grove, August 10.—Our annual meeting at the Bethany church of Christ began on August 1 and continued eight days. There were eighteen additions to the church, including one from the Primitive Baptists, two from the Methodists, and three from the Latter-Day Saints. Brother I. A. Douthitt did the preaching. Brother Douthitt is a true minister of the gospel, one who does not compromise any of God's teaching to please man. Would that we had many more preachers like him! Brother A. B. Reavis conducted the song service. Brother W. E. Morgan has served as minister of this congregation for the past nine years.—W. B. Norman.

Columbia, August 9.—I have preached at Lone Cedar and Kilburn Schoolhouses this summer, a few nights at each place. There were no confessions, but I was told that much good was done along the line of teaching the church. Brother J. M. Hutten, of Waterloo, Ala., was with me at the latter place and preached some forcible sermons. On July 25 1 began a week's meeting with the congregation at Bunker Hill, Ala., which resulted in six baptisms. On August 1 I began a week's meeting with the church at Shoal Bluff, Tenn. Except two days, we had two sermons every day, with

TETTERINE

Makes hair beautiful, free from dandruff, and keeps the scalp healthy.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-

R. K. MORGAN, Principal Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

WHAT OF YOUR BOY?

His education and training and the development of his mind, body, and character depend on you, his parent. It is a grave responsibility, for there are so many antagonistic influences that come into play in a boy's life. As every boy looks back over his education and training, he can always point out some one influence, some one life that has had a more profound influence. To thousands of boys this influence has been the guiding spirit, the personal association, and the inspiring character of Mr. Robert K. Morgan, principal of Morgan School for twentyfive years. He knows boy nature. The close personal associations which he has fostered between his boy students and himself, his carefully chosen faculty, his careful attention to the boy's work, his thoughts, his talents, and his special needs, have given great prominence to his school and have characterized the success that he has merited in successfully shaping the lives of thousands of youths at the shaping age.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school.

dinner on the ground, and preaching every night. Four were baptized and two were restored. There were some hindering causes, but, with a hard pull, we had a grand meeting. I am now on my way to Long Branch to begin a meeting to-morrow.—William Behel.

Tharpe, August 10.—I recently closed a good meeting near Dover. The brethren there are building a house in which to worship. I am at present with the Poplar Spring brethren, who are making a hard fight. Brother Robinson is at Azotus and Brother Record is at Blue Springs. I go to Mount Zion for my next meeting. These four churches have a mind to work as never before, for they realize souls are perishing all around them. They want to carry the gospel to the dying and rescue their souls from sin. To this end, they have agreed to coöperate in the great work and locate a man in this field. If you are interested, write to Brother D. D. Jones, Model, Tenn., or Brother John Allen, Tharpe, Tenn. Who will answer the call?—J. H. Hines.

Nashville, August 12.—On the first Lord's day in August I began a meeting with the Shady Grove congregation, in Alabama, about seventy-five miles from Atlanta, Ga., just across the Georgia-Alabama line. One soul confessed his faith in Christ and two returned to the fold. While only three were saved during the meeting, I am sure this is not the extent of the good done. I certainly labored hard to sow the seed, and am confident much good will yet come from it. It was a great pleasure to me to labor at this place, because they seemed to enjoy it so much. They have only seven members, who are certainly making an uphill fight. I believe these seven are sufficiently grounded in the faith to stand. The spirit of digression is trying desperately to make its way in, but I endeavored to show them the difference between truth and error.—J. Porter Sanders.

Henry, August 5.—I have just closed a meeting at Mount Olive, Calloway County, Ky., which resulted in fourteen additions by baptism and a general strengthening of the brotherhood. Four of those haptized came from the Baptists and two or three from the Methodists. This is a splendid little congregation, and is rapidly developing under the able teaching of Brother David Thompson. Previous to this I conducted a series of meetings in the new meetinghouse at Hyco, Henry County, Tenn. This house was built after much labor and sacrifice, but the brethren feel amply rewarded in that there were twelve accessions to the church and that much interest was aroused in the Lord's-day services and the general work of the church. Brother W. E. Morgan is ably and faithfully teaching this congregation, I began a meeting last night at Keif (Burris Chapel), Lake County, Tenn. A fine crowd, splendid interest, and the best of singing encourage us, and we anticipate good results.—Fred W. Chunn.

There is no knowledge of God possible, except to a personal experience. We must haste and see that the Lord is good.—Selected.

Short Sermons.

To love abundantly is to live abundantly,

Rules are useful until principles are understood.

Men who want to be Spirit-filled must be self-emptied.

Those who live with us have the greatest power to lift us.

You know what a man is when you know what he will oppose.

God knows his servants by their souls and not by their salaries.

Never think that you can make yourself great by making others less.

They that bow their heads before God may hold them erect before the world.

Any bond that attaches us to another human creature attaches us also to the Son of man.

We cannot define God, but our lives can be the mirror of his life; and that is the very purpose of our being.

The beatitudes give the divine ideal of a Christian character that has yet to be realized, save in the Master.

The unknown, unheraided folk are equal, often, to the old-time heroes and martyrs—their "glory is to save,"

The thought without the act is vain, As seed that yields no harvest grain; The act without the thought is dead, As cinders whence the flame is fled.

Jesus is always uncovering the spiritual meaning in the common actions of life. To him, the giving of a cupof cold water was a sacrament of humanity.

Cuts and Bruises.

burns, stings, sores, boils, and the numerous other mishaps, amount to little. If left alone, however, and if aided by the careless touch of a dirty hand, an ugly sore will result, and frequently blood poison. It is dangerous. Don't trifle. Apply Gray's Cintment immediately. It will instantly soothe the wound, cleanse the sore, kill the germs, and put it on a steady road to recovery. Keep it on your shelf for every emergency. Its constant use for a hundred years has made it a family word in every household. Ask your druggist. If he can't supply you, send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 218 Gray Bullding, Nashville, Tenn., and you will receive a liberal sample free.

ECZEMA

IS CURABLE. Write me to-day, and I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing guaranteed treatment that will prove it Stops the itching and heals permanently. DR CANNADAY, 1226 Park Square, Sedalia, Mo.

DANDRUFF

Tetterine

Is Applied. Fragrant and Scothing. 60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Gs.

A woman's fondest hope is to stay young. She often resorts to paints, powders and cosmetics to hide her years. Some women pay large sums to so-called "Beauty Doctors" in the belief that money will buy youth. Others wear girlish dresses, thinking they can fool the world about their age. But no one is deceived. The more you try to hide your age, the more it shows.

There is but one thing that holds old age back, and that is health. Sickness and weakness bring old age early in life. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription is a building-up medicine for women. It make hem healthy and strong when they suffer from women's troubles. It keeps them looking young by keeping them well. It is a woman's tonic for the frail, the delicate and those who are nervous, dizzy and who have backache and dragging pains, Pavorite Prescription is altogether vegetable and without a particle of alcohol. It is safe to take. Try it now. In tablet or liquid form at all druggists, or send 10c for trial package of the tablets to Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y.

== ELDERS =

Here Is Something New For You

One Hundred Communion Talks and Prayers by 100 of our most prominent Preachers.

This neat Httle silk-bound book of over 200 pages fits the hand, the pocket, and the heart.

Price, $1.50 Yours for Service

Public Speakers' Supply

Or Box 124)

RIDGWAY, PA.

We place White Teachers in Public, Private, and Normal Schools, Colleges, and Universities. The H. D. Yates Teachers' Bureau, Nashville, Tenn.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

INVENTIVE GENIUS ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Doctors' Favorite Medicine Now Purified and Refined from All Objectionable Effects. "Calotabs"-the New Name.

What will human ingenuity do next? Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, horseless carriages, colorless iodine, tasteless quinine,—now comes nausealess calome! The new improvement called "Calotabs" is now on sale at drugstores.

For biliousness, constitution and indigestion the new calome! tablet is a practically negfect remedy, as evidenced by gestion the new calomel tablet is a practically perfect remedy, as evidenced by the fact that the manufacturers have authorized all druggists to refund the price of the customer is not—perfectly delighted" with Calotabs. One tablet at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no salts By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed and you are feeling fine, with a bearty appetite. Eat what you please—no danger—go about your business.

Calotabs are not sold in bulk. Get an original package, sealed. Price, thirty-five cents.—(adv.)

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Alahama.

Moulton, August 10 .- We have just closed our eighth annual meeting at White House, in which we had forty-four additions. We had fine crowds from first to last. This is a working church. If the Lord wills, I will assist them in another meeting next year. I am now in a meeting at Fairfield, near Moulton, with fine interest. I go next to College Grove, and from there to Mount Juliet, Tenn.-A. D.

Arkansas.

Huntsville, August 10.—1 closed my meeting on Sunday night at Cross Roads, in Texas. Eight were baptized and four were restored. The brethren there have a mind to do things for the Lord. They have just completed their meetinghouse. The spirit of love prevails among them.-W. E. Williams.

Fort Smith, August 9.-Yesterday was another great day with the Park Hill church of Christ, at this place. Brother Slater, who had been engaged in a meeting at Casa, was back with I preached at the morning service and Brother Slater preached at night. One sister placed her membership with us.-Leland H. Knight.

Danville, August 11.—With Brother J. W. Acuff leading the songs, I began a meeting here last night. On last Sunday night I closed at Bartlett, Texas, with four baptisms. The rains hindered much. Brethren J. W. Acuff and W. D. Evridge led the songs at Bartlett. I am to begin at Floyd, Texas, on the fourth Sunday in August.-J. B. Nelson.

Tupelo, August 5 .- I recently held a successful meeting at Johnstown.

The meeting closed at the water. There were thirty-five additions—twenty-three by baptism and twelve by restoration. Most of those baptized were heads of families. Some of them came from the Holiness, the Baptist, and other denominations. had two splendid song leaders and an excellent class. I go to Steprock to-morrow for a two-weeks' meeting.— L. R. Wilson.

Morrillton, August 9.—We closed the Linker Mountain meeting on the first Sunday in August. Results: three baptized, the church built up spiritually, others almost persuaded to be-come Christians. I am now at Forcome Christians. I am now at Formosa. The meeting starts off well—large crowds and good attention. This is my third meeting at this place in three years. My time is promised until October 1. I can then arrange for meetings or appointments. -R. H. Johnson.

Fort Smith, August 9.—I closed the meeting at Casa last Thursday night and came home on account of scarlet fever in my family. If I accomplished any good at Casa, I could not tell it. We have a good house there, with about seventy-five members, but the most of them seemingly are "dead." However, we have a few godly men and women there-Brethren Bostick, Green, Coats, and their families, with a few others-who are always at their post of duty and are doing all they can for the church. One of the elders stated that he thought the lessons I gave were the best and would accomplish more good than any meeting they had had for years. The work here is doing well under the leader-ship of Brother Knight. I begin at Spaulding, Okla., to-morrow.-Will W.

Millville, August 7.—Brother E. L. Whitaker began a meeting at Eaglette on July 21 and closed it on July 30, with one baptism. A young lady wanted to obey the gospel, but her father prevented. Much good was accomplished in other ways. The writer conducted the song service. The interest was fine throughout. The congregation consists of three men and three women, and this is the only congregation in Dallas County. We need at least two preachers with tents in this county. Loyal preachers passing this county. Loyar preacters passing through this county are requested to stop and preach for the brethren at Eaglette. Since I have been trying to preach the gospel I have been to some destitute places in Tennessee and Mississippi, and have had calls to be with three congregations—that is, a few brethren in destitute fields. Brethren, encourage the young men about you to prepare themselves for this muchneeded work, and there will be sufficient laborers in the future.-J. Green.

Florida.

Bell, August 9.- I began a meeting at Bethel, near here, yesterday, to continue as long as interest may demand. On account of sickness and death, I have been hindered in my work and reporting my last meeting. My wife's father died in Alabama last month, and we were called there. I wish to make mention of a week's meeting at Oneco, Fla. At this place we have a small band of the most consecrated children of God it has been my pleasure to know in a long time. They are not rich in this world's goods, but truly they are rich in good works. They do not believe so much in sounding the word at home, as they are competent to do this, but their liberality in sending the gospel out shows them to be a church after the Bible order. Brother Collins, their elder, is a lovable man, and it was an inspiration to me to be in the home of this godly man. From here I go to a place where there is but one member of the church for a three-weeks' mission meeting. The Baptist people have kindly offered us their house to preach in, on the condition that we preach nothing but the word of God free from any man's opinions. I will reach home—Bradentown, Fla,-the middle of September. There was one confession yesterday .-John Hayes.

Georgia.

Trion. Route 1, August 8.—The meeting at Pleasant Grove closed to-night, having begun last Lord's-day morning. We had two services each day, with fine interest. There were two additions, one from the Baptists, and one baptism .- Silas E. Templeton.

Lafayette, August 12 .- Our meeting here continues with interest. Rain has interfered some with the attendance, but we are expecting better attendance next week .- Aruna Clark.

Buchanan, Route 2, August 10.— Brother R. C. White closed his meeting here Sunday night. He baptized four souls—two young men and two young ladies. We consider Brother White one of God's faithful servants who handles aright the word of truth. Much of his preaching while with us was to the church, and we feel that the church has been made stronger. May the Lord bless him and all of us in all we do in accord with his will,-E. H. Pate.

Kentucky.

Wingo, August 11.—I closed the meeting at Cliff Creek, Tenn., Monday night. Four were "added to the church." I will spend a few days at home, then go to Cairo, Tenn.—Alonzo Williams.

Hazel, August 9.- I have just closed a good meeting at Poplar Springs, near Yuma, Tenn., with four baptisms— one, my wife, who had been a Methodist. I go for my next meeting to Coxburg, Tenn.-D. D. Swor.

Bardwell, August 10.-Last Sunday I closed an eight-days' meeting with the Bethany church of Christ, near Trenton, Tenn., which resulted in eleven additions—ten by baptism and one by membership. Brother L. T. Holland, of Greenfield, Tenn., led the singing to the satisfaction of all.— Joe Ratcliffe.

Emberton, August 7 .- I am now in a fine meeting at old Freewill, with one baptized to date. The meeting will continue another week. I held a five-nights' meeting at Fennell, Okla., in July. Two were baptized. I go to Williams' Cross Roads from here. After that, I am ready for two meet. ings in Nashville, Tenn.; then back to Kentucky for five more meetings. May God bless our work.—N. W. Proffitt.

Hardin. August 8.—Brother John Hale, who lives with his daughter, in Nashville, Tenn., preached a few sermons in a grove near here while on a visit to see his relatives and friends The attendance was in these parts. small on account of sickness and other things more interesting than the gospel of Christ. I am arranging for an oral debate with a "come-outer" on water baptism and Holy-Spirit baptism. I am also being pressed to hold mission meetings where I did last year .- H. W. Jones.

Kirkmansville, August 6 .- On last Friday night I closed a meeting of six duration with the church at Mount Vernon, which resulted in two baptisms. I then went to Cherry Grove, where I preached on Saturday night, Sunday, and Sunday night. We had large crowds at both places. I go next Sunday to my regular appointment at Fruit's Chapel, where I preach Sunday and Sunday night, and then to Pleasant Grove for a series of meetings. I have some spare time in Sep-tember that I should be glad to devote to protracted meetings. Churches desiring my assistance should write me at Kirkmansville, Ky.-C. H. Baker.

Michigan.

Flint, August 9.—Our meeting with the home congregation continues, with very good interest. Two have been baptized to date. The Lord willing, we will continue throughout the week. -Leslie G. Thomas.

Mississippi.

Amory, August 7 .- I had the pleasure of attending part of the debate between Brother J. D. Tant and C. H. Cayce (Primitive Baptist), near Win-field, Ala., recently. I met the following preaching brethren, most of whom In had never met before: Hal. P. McDonald, A. D. Dies, J. M. Norwood,
Charley Nichols, Gurganus, Tipton,
Gray, Walker, Oden, and Plyler. I began a meeting at Christian Chapel, near Amory, last Thursday.—W. Curtis Porter.

Belmont, August 8 .- I am just home from Rock Creek, Ala., where I la-bored as best I could for one week. This is one of the oldest congregations in Alabama. This is also the old home of the Srygleys, and their ashes yet speak. No better people live upon the globe than those at Rock Creek. I enjoyed my work with them in full measure. Our hearing was all we could ask for from first to last, but we closed without visible results,-Frank Baker.

North Carolina.

Statesville, Route 4, August 11.-Brother M. A. Foster began a meeting at Galax, Va., last Lord's day and will continue over next Lord's day, after which he will come to Abilene, six miles from Statesville, and begin a meeting on the fourth Lord's day.— John Q. Carter.

South Carolina.

Union, August 7 .- Our tent meetings are moving along as well as could be expected under the circumstances. The last report from Brother Nix in Spartanburg shows a substantial increase nightly in his audiences. He is badly in need of a singer for the re-mainder of August and September. Who will help to support one for this specified time? Write me immediately what you will do. Brother Nix says "it takes grit, grace, and greenback to run mission tent meetings," and I readily agree with him. The meeting in this town has turned into its third We are very much encouraged, week. We are very much encouraged, as we have practically the same hearers at every service. Several have expressed themselves as being convinced.-Thomas H. Burton.

Fifty Against Two. It is not reasonable to expect two weeks of outing to overcome the effects of fifty weeks of confinement. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla along with you. It refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, makes sleep easy and restful,

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

BACK HURT ALL THE TIME

Mrs. Hill Says Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Removed The Cause.

Knoxville, Tenn. - "My back hurt me all the time, I was all run down, could not eat and my head bothered me, all caused by female trouble. I was three years with these troubles and doctors did me no good. Your meddoctors did me no good. Your medicine helped my sister so she advised me to take it. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the Liver Pills and used Lydia E. Pinkham's Sanative Wash and now I am well, can eat heartily and work. I give you my thanks for your great medicines. You may publish my letter and I will tell everyone what your medicines did for me."—Mrs. PEARL HILL, 418 Jacksboro me. "—Mrs. PEARL HILL, 418 Jacksboro St., Knoxville, Tennessee.

Hundreds of such letters expressing gratitude for the good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound has accomplished are constantly being received, proving the reliability of this grand old

If you are ill do not drag along and continue to suffer day in and day out but at once take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, a woman's remedy for woman's ills.

Dye It Right! "Diamond Dyes"

Don't Risk Material in Poor Dyes that Fade or Run

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" con-Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Drugglst has color card.

has color card.

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully, Rub thoroughly with Emeaning Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a hampy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic

(Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Inflammation)

is a great comfort in cases of inflamed condi-tions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz, jar, at your drug-gist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manu-facturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

A Treat for the Skin

A Treat for the Skin

Freckles, tan, sunburn, pimples, eczema, all can be easily and delightfully vanished with the use of Palmer's Skin Success Ointment. Used for over 80 years & Rev. A. E. Ballard, D. D., President Ocean Grove Camp Meeting Association, Ocean Grove, N. J., writes: "Your Skin Success Ointment completely cured me of an irritative fiching eczema and I cheerfully recommend it to all who may be similarly afflicted." It is not only delightfully antiseptic and cleansing, soothing and softening to the skin, but also immediately effective in bleaching the complexion and in vanishing blackheads, freckles and all skin eruptions. Ask your druggist or send for free sample to The Morgan Drug Co., 1521 Atlantic Ave., Brooklyn V

TETTERINE

Clears Baby's Skin

and drives off the rash and pimples. Harmless, Soothing, Fragrant.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

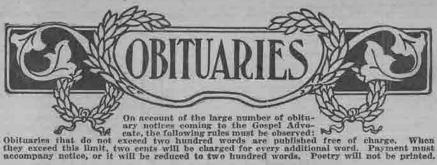

PRINTER AND LINOTYPE OPERATOR WANTED.

An all-round printer and Linotype operator is wanted in Gospel Herald office. faithful Christian preferred. Good salary and permanent position for right party. Give complete reference in first letter.

N. O. Ray, Business Manager, Harper, Kan.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

On March 17, 1920, death entered the home of Brother and Sister Walter Bruce, of Lunenburg, Ark., and took from them their little daughter, Zelda Rhea, aged four years and ten months. Little Rhea was a sweet child and loved by all who knew her. She leaves a father, mother, one brother, and two sisters to mourn their loss. They sorrow not as those who have no hope, realizing that the Father doeth all things well. "Suffer little children, and forbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." A FRIEND.

Powell.

The grim destroyer, Death, has again come into my home and claimed for his victim my precious wife, Florence. She was born in William-Florence. She was born in Williamson County, Tenn., on June 26, 1873; was married to the writer on January 6, 1897; and was called to her heavenly home on June 23, 1920. She died of that dread disease, cancer. During the last three months of her life she suffered intensely. She was a consistent member of the church of Christ for a number of years. She loved to go to church; and when she could no longer attend the services, she would have the writer sit by her bedside and read to her the old story of Jesus and his love, Besides her husband, she leaves three children and one sister to mourn her loss. I pray that we may all so live that we can meet her again, some sweet day, where there will be no more sad separations. Funeral services were conducted by Brother Cawthon, after which she was laid to rest in the Suggs Creek ceme-tery. "Blessed are the dead who die tery. "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; for their works fol-low with them." J. W. POWELL.

Jones.

Little Harvey Wilson Jones, Jr., Little Harvey Wilson Jones, Jr., died of follicular tonsilitis, or diphitheria, on July 31, 1920, and his little body was laid to rest in the Perry graveyard, near home. Harvey was a bright, growing, lovable little fellow of five years, nine months, and twenty-one days' sojourn in this world of sin, sorrow, disease, and death. He was sick only five days, and never complained. We tried to bring him up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and he often asked us such questions as: "How does God talk to questions as: "How does God talk to people?" "How do we get to God?" If I am good, will God take me to neaven?" We are sure he is safe in heaven?" the loving arms of Jesus, but his sad departure leaves a grief-stricken father and mother, an aged grandmother, two little sisters (one seven and the other three years of age), besides other sorrowing relatives and friends. All was done for him that doctors and leving hearts knew to do, but we had to give him up. O, how sad, how lonely, we are without him! He was never sick before, and surely "he was a goodly child and well favored." But the Lord knows best. Lord, have mercy upon us in our sorrow!

H. W. JONES.

Timmerman.

After an illness of only a few hours, Mrs. C. E. O. Timmerman passed to her reward on Saturday morning, April 17, 1920. Gentle, patient, sweet, morning, none knew her but to love her. she walked with God; and she was not, for God took her. She was born on February 5, 1860, and before her marriage was Miss Jessie Lelia Gib-bons. She married Mr. C. E. O. Tim-merman at the age of eighteen. Soon after her marriage she united with the church of Christ, being baptized by J. Mack Barnes, now deceased. Four sons and four daughters were born to Mr. and Mrs. Timmerman-the eldest, J. M. Timmerman, a member of the faculty of the Barnes High School, of Montgomery; S. F. Timmerman, a planter in Autauga County; Frank, who died in infancy; H. E. Timmerman, of Ensley; Mrs. R. P. Chapman, of Prattville; Mrs. P. D. Roy, near Prattville; Miss. Mary Timmerman, a tankley in the Clarest Gramman, a teacher in the Clanton Grammar School; and Miss Dovie Timmerman, who remained in the home with her parents. At four o'clock on Sunday afternoon the funeral services were conducted at the saddened home by J. W. Ray, of the church of Christ, as-sisted by Mr. James, pastor of the Methodist Church in Prattville. She was buried in the Prattville cemetery, and many beautiful flowers covered her resting place. Her life was a beau-tiful peem read and appreciated by all who knew her. To the needy, sick, and distressed she was a ministering angel, giving freely of herself and her No frown ever rested on her brow and no unpleasant words ever fell from her lips. Hers was the rich, full life of the true Christian, and the falling asleep on earth was the abundant entrance into heaven. X.

Ellett.

Joseph E. Ellett was born on December 13, 1835, and died on August 3, 1920. He was married to Emma D. Owen on April 29, 1860. He was born in Madison County, Ala., and came to New Hope (same county) when a young man, and, except four years in the Confederate Army, spent the rest of his life here. He lived with his wife sixty years, and in the house in which he died fifty-one years. Until he had passed the meridian of life he was a member of the Methodist. Church; but, at a time when his community was characterized by bitter prejudice against the truth as taught in the New Testament, and a wave of public sentiment was sweeping against conferred not with flesh and it, he "conferred not with flesh and blood," but severed former religious ties, and, above all, that of his companion and children, and became 'obedient to the faith, and was faithful until death. He had the pleasure of seeing all of his family, except one son and one daughter, become Christians, one son developing into an efficient leader of the congregation. He is survived by his wife, three sons, and three daughters. The high esteem in which he was held was shown by the large crowd attending his fu-neral. Dr. J. J. Horton and I conducted the funeral services, after which his remains were laid to rest, under beautiful floral offerings, in the Hayden graveyard, to await the resur-R. N. Moody.

Select Thoughts.

Worry gives the 'doctor half his

The only thing God wills to destroy

Half the foes without are born of fears within.

Paying the debt of nature does not pay the debt of sin.

We are saved by hope-saved from the paralysis of despair.

Selfishness seals the soul against the good that might come in.

Spiritual growth stops when publicity and popularity are desired. The man who cannot preach without a pulpit was never born to preach

Humanity lives in a world of impossibilities when God is left out of the reckoning

Christian comfort is not the hiding of our grief, but the looking through it into His face.

Life estimated by discontent may be a desert; life measured by gratitude may be a garden.

Your world will be wide or narrow according as you build your fences, shutting other lives out or in.

Neutralizes Uric Acid.

Neutralizes Uric Acid.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be dured of rheumatism, it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a scientific combination of salts prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless, but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a Godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "I must say that Renwar far surpassed my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief. Too much cannot be spoken in behalf of Renwar for rheumatism." Sold by druggists (price, 50 cents) or by mail from WARNER DRUG COM-PANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

Piles Cured

Piles Cured

Dr. A. Upham's valuable electuary or internal remedy for PILES. CURES all kinds of PILES, old or new cases. It gradicates the disease from the system. If your druggist cannot supply you, send $1.00 for trial treatment, 6 packages for $5.00. Guaranteed, if not satisfied money back. Thousands of satisfied patients all over the United States. References any Bank, Postmaster or City officials.

Why Suffer? Get CURED. J. G. & A. HALL, Oxford, N. C.

NTERSMITHS For MALARIA, CHILLS and HILL TONIC Also a Fine General Strengthening Tonic.

SOLD FOR 50 YEARS

SOLD BY ALL DRUG STORES-

CHURCH NEWS

Tennessee.

Hampshire, August 9.-We are in what seems to be a good meeting in northwestern part of Maury County. The meeting began yester-day with large crowds.-J. Clifford Rives, August 9.—Our meeting at Polk, in this county, closed last night with interest that was highly encour-We had splendid crowds throughout. One brother confessed his neglect of duty and was restored.— D. D. Woody.

Livingston, Route 1, August 10 .-Our meeting at Big Branch, in Jackson County, came to a close last Sunday, after eight days' duration. Five were added by baptism and five confessed their sins. This was my third meeting there. Brother Brewington meeting there. Brother Brewington was with me in the meeting. I leave this week for Zion, Putnam County.— Willie Hunter.

Paris, August 1.-I have just closed a good meeting at Stidham, Okla. Attendance was fine throughout the meeting. Nine made the confession. Of this number, three were Baptists. I promised to hold another meeting for them the first half of October. I am now in a meeting at Cross Roads. We have a fine band of brethren at this place.-W. E. Williams.

Crafton, August 2.—I began a meet-ing here last Thursday night, which ing here last Thursday night, which is still in progress. One has been baptized and others are expected. I have held three meetings since leaving home the last of June—one at Bridge Creek, without visible results; one near Hugo, Okla., with twelve baptisms and three restored; and one at a Nakk in Hapking Court, with three Nelta, in Hopkins County, with three baptisms. I will holdstwo more meetings and then take up the work at Miami again.-Lee Sanders.

Clarksville, Route 5, August 3.—Our meeting is five days old, with ten confessions to date. We are having very large crowds and fine interest. This is a mission point. Rain and sickness have hindered some. We hope to establish a congregation here. I have two weeks more that I can give to Texas, then I shall go back home to Taft, Fla. I would like to spend the month of October in Florida. Any one wishing my time should address me as above. I will go to mission points or any place.—G. B. Lambright.

n

YOU WOULDN'T TRY TO TAME A WILD-GAT

Mr. Dodson Warns Against Use of Treacherous, Dangerous Calomel

salivates! It's mercury. Calomel Calomel acts like dynamite on a slug-gish liver. When calomel comes into gish liver. When calomel comes into contact with sour bile it crashes into it, causing cramping and nausea.

If you feel bilious, headachy, constipated and all knocked out, just go to your druggist and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents which is a harmless vegetable substitute for dangerous calomel. Take a arrenful and dangerous calomel. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't start your liver and straighten you up better and quicker than nasty calomel and without making you sick, you just go back and get your money.

If you take calomel today you'll be If you take calonici today you'll be sick and nauseated tomorrow; besides, it may salivate you, while if you take Dodson's Liver Tone you will wake up feeling great, full of ambition and ready for work or play. It's harmless, pleasant and safe to give to children; they

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try It! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freekles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freekles, as Othine—double strength—lis guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—rom your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst recklete have begun to disappear, while the lighter sness have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beaufulful clear completion.

Single is not one of the double strength Othine as this is sold on the double strength Othine as this is sold on the double strength Othine as this is sold on the double strength Othine as this is sold on the double strength Othine as the same of the strength of the strength of the same of the same

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

A Destitute Field.

BY HERBERT E. WINKLER.

In the Gospel Advocate of July 22, under the above caption, Brother I. B. Bradley laid before its readers a striking description of the cause at West Point, Miss.

Brother Charles F. Hardin, of Springfield, Mo., and I began a meeting there on June 13, in the city hall, and for almost a week, with from eight to twelve persons present, faced the odds that were against us. This is the first meeting in which I have been absolutely boycotted. The three "digressive" preachers mentioned by Brother Bradley are still there, and not one of them came out.

I think the cause can be established there by the use of a tent. There are many there that are not blinded by the pernicious ways of the sects and who are not interested enough to go up town to hear the word. By placing a tent out in the resident section of the town, many of those whose eyes are not blinded can be induced to come out. Brother M. C. Cayce has experienced this same condition in Jackson, Miss., this year. What congregation will see that a tent meeting is conducted there in 1921? I am sure we will have no trouble in securing a tent.

Brethren, why not send Brother Bradley there with a good singer and let him preach a month under conditions that will induce the people to come out? Or, if he cannot go, Brother Hardin promised to meet me there in a tent meeting next year, if some one can be found to support the work. Brethren, we all have families and cannot make the whole sacrifice ourselves; and shall we be able to hear from those who desire to cooperate with us in this work? (Rom. 10: 13-15)

A Trip to Alabama.

BY LEE JACKSON.

I am back home from a visit to Colbert County, Ala. I spent six days with the zealous little congregation at Maude, near the mouth of Rock Creek. about twenty miles from the boyhood home of the Srygley brothers. My visit among these brethren was in every respect a very pleasant one. The brethren treated me with much kindness, and apparently they enjoyed my preaching. As a young man, my own father came from Augusta County, Va., and spent two years with an older brother who had settled on the Tennessee River, near the town of Florence. This was in 1835-37. Many have been the changes that have taken place since that time. After leaving Virginia, one of my father's uncles, James Boyles, located in Colbert County, spending the remainder of his life there.

On my way to Alabama, I spent three hours in Corinth, Miss. Corinth calls to mind the fact that on October 3, 4, 1862, a great battle was fought there between the Confederate armies, under Generals Van Dorn and Price, and the Federal army of occupation. under General Rosencrans. The scene of the last struggle of this battle, just west of the older town, and where the brave Colonel Rogers fell, is now laid out in beautiful streets that are lined with pretty homes of peaceful citizens.

_ You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHIII TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS CHIII TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrap. So pleasant even children like it. blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same to dear and you can get it from any dright day, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

Conditions, Needs, and Progress in South Carolina.

BY THOMAS H. BURTON.

I suppose the brotherhood realizes that this State of about one million five hundred thousand inhabitants is absolutely a destitute field, so far as the pure gospel teaching is concerned. except what I have done in the last eighteen menths and what Brother S. T. Nix has done in the past few months. I had a letter from Brother J. L. Kirkpatrick, whose home is in Nashville, but who has been located in South Carolina for some time, and he says: "This is a good field for missionary work. I doubt very much if there are a half dozen persons here that have ever heard a true, loval man." This city has about forty thousand inhabitants, and not a representative there to teach the plain gospel in its purity. What a great opportunity is afforded to a good man who would like to spend his life in such work. Charleston is the largest city in the State, one of the oldest in the United States. We have one brother in this city who is very anxious to get the cause started here. Greenville is a town of about twentyfive thousand and only one brother. A better field for the gospel is not to be found. Spartanburg, about thirty miles from Greenville, with a population of about two thousand less, has only three disciples in it, so far as we know. This is the place where Brother Nix is striving to get the cause started. There are many other towns in the State ranging up to twenty thousand in population, and all the country from North Carolina to Florida and from Georgia to the Atlantic, and only two preachers giving their time in the work. There are many people here who would accept the gospel if they had the opportunity. We have only two congregations in the State, and these were established last year. We are striving now to build a meetinghouse in Union, on the lot which we have paid for, and we have the restrictive clause in the deed. The house which we are planning to build will be a frame structure, and will cost, complete, about fifty-five hundred dollars. We now have sixteen hundred dollars, with about twelve hundred promised. For the good of the cause and the honor of God, for the salvation of souls and the spread of the gospel, this house is badly needed. We want to begin building by the first of September in order to have a place to meet this winter. Send all contributions and communications to me.

Despondency is the devil's triumph in the human mind. God is not the author of hopelessness.

The Church House at Corpus Christi, Texas.

BY C. W. SEWELL.

The churches and individuals who contributed to help us rebuild our church after the great storm have a right to know what we have done. have waited to try to find out the exact cost of the house, but cannot yet tell just exactly what the cost has been. We did not build by contract, but by day labor. I was not on the building committee, and it would be a considerable task for me to hunt up and add up every bill paid; so I will only account as best I can for the money raised.

From all sources there came into my hand $3,580.24. Of this amount, we used $45 in relief work, and used $300 in paying off a debt against the property. The balance, $3,235.24, I turned over to the treasurer of the building committee. Others collected, I guess, between $300 and $400 that did not pass through my hands. We raised here at home $1,250. All this went into the building, and we have a debt of over $3,500. Possibly all the bills have not yet come in. Thus it appears the building has cost something over $8,000. The building is nice, substantial, durable. It is built of hollow tiles and brick on a good, concrete foundation. In addition to the main auditorium, we have two classrooms and a baptistery with dressing rooms. We were not able to buy new furniture at this time. Our old seats are good and comfortable, but need some paint and varnish. We held the first service in the house on the first Lord's day in May. At the request of the church, I preached the first sermon. Brother J. F. Berry, who is our regular preacher, preached at night and followed with a twoweeks' meeting in which four were baptized and some were reclaimed and some identified themselves with us. I have baptized one since.

I answered all who sent donations, except some who did not sign their names. I reported the names of most of those who contributed, but will not report the names of others unless it is requested. If it is necessary, I can yet make a full report.

We again extend thanks to all who so kindly contributed to our necessities. We hope to be able to care for the debt we owe without asking for further aid.

ICE CREAM

When you make ice cream don't try the old way, but use

Jell-0 Ice Cream Powder

Stir the powder in a quart of milk, without adding anything else at all, and then freeze it, and you will have nearly two quarts of delicious ice cream, at a very low cost.

No eggs or sugar needed, but only the Jell-O Ice Cream Pow-der and the milk. That's the way to make ice cream. Vanilla. Strawberry Lemon and Chocolate flavors and Unflavored.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY
Le Roy, N. Y.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make moneyatilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right. Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Pigeons No. 6." Carolina Pigeon Plant, Clinton, S. C.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and pre-scribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper direcpackage" which contains proper direc-tions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism, Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets costyfew cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoacoticacidester of Salicylicacid.

and how it can be treated successfully at home Sent in plain, sealed envelope. Write for your today. Dept. F-29. Dr. W. J. McCrary. Inc. Carbon Hill, Ala.

The Newspaper Habit.

Wherever you go in this country, at least, you see people reading newspapers. The newspaper habit is as common and universal as the breakfast habit, "It belongs to me," as the Cornishman says. It is a habit established by custom and fixed by constant practice.

The interest that the average man has in the affairs of the world is the first reason for this newspaper habit. The daily paper brings to the reader accounts of world-wide and local happenings. The press is a powerful instrument, reaching out long arms for information, and bringing to the humblest reader news of events far beyond lifs limited means to acquire.

But with all its value and necessity, the newspaper habit may become a nulsance and a hindrance to other forms of self-development. Newspaper readers to the number of thousands neglect every other form of reading. It goes without saying that more newspapers are read than Bibles. And if the preacher on Sunday morning had as big an audience for his half-hour message as the readers of the morning paper have given to the Press (including his own church members), all the churches in America would have to build auditoriums as large as Carnegie Hall to accommodate the crowd.

There is also another risk which the newspaper habit brings to the reader, and that is the temptation to think that the daily paper contains all the news of the world that is worth knowing. It is a real misfortune when any man or woman acquires any habit which dulls observation or a critical and just judgment of history or events. Thousands of newspaper readers get all their political and other opinions from the one daily that they read every day; and most dailies are remarkably empty of some of the most valuable and real things that make history, especially in giving the reader accounts of the progress of Christian missions and triumphs of the Cross.

If we have the newspaper habit, it is well to have the Bible habit and the missionary habit and the Christian world news habit, as well,—Christian Herald.

It is not my forgiving some one else that makes my salvation; Christ's life and death did all that; and my forgiving others is because the stream of love pushes me on to do just that, among much else.

In answering advertisements, please tention the Gospel Advocate,

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be very well described as "a carbonated fruit-flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity, and also explains, in part, the wide popularity of Coca-Cola, whose refreshing principle is derived from the tea leaf.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

The Coca-Cola Co., Dept. J, Atlanta, Ga., U. S. A.

71

THE BLAMELESS PHYSICIAN" DEMONSTRATES The Healing Power of Nature"

Ferraline is a Natural Mineral, rich in Iron, Magnesium, Lithium and other health-giving minerals. It is made by the simple process of percolating distilled water thru Ferraline Mineral Earth, and it contains no drugs nor chemicals.

It has long been recognized as most effective in the treatment of Indigestion, Stomach Troubles and Rheumatism, and as a System-builder and Restorer it is of special value to those who suffer from Impoverished Blood.

Ferraline is sold by your druggist and endorsed by prominent ministers, business and professional men.

To secure an interesting booklet and the story of the "Sweetest thing without a Soul," write

"FERRALINE," Dept. 5, DEMOPOLIS, ALABAMA.

Send us a new subscriber to the Gospel Advocate

Volume LXII. No. 35.

NASHVILLE, TENN., AUGUST 26, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

EDIFYING AS THE NEED MAY BE 8:	25
	26
GEORGIA AND THE FAR SOUTHERN FIELD 8	31
AT HOME AND ABROAD.	32
EDITORIAL 8	84
DAVID LIPSCOME COLLEGE NOTES	37
RELIEF FUND 8	37
BOOK NOTICES	37
BOOK NOTICES 8 CURRENT THOUGHT 8	38
HOME READING. 8 WESTERN DEPARTMENT. 8	98
WESTERN DEPARTMENT 8	10
WHAT OTHERS SAY 8 "DO YOU KNOW?" 8	11
"DO YOU KNOW?" 8	11
CHURCH NEWS 8	12
	64
THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN TULARE, CAL 8	45
AMONG THE COLORED FOLKS	15
ARE THERE DIRECTIONS FOR DISTINCTIONS? 8
OLD-FASHIONED YEARLY MEETING 8	27
THE EVIDENCE OF PARDON 8	18

Edifying as the Need May Be

Lightening the Ship.

It has been said that "the ship is safe in the water so long as the water is not in the ship." So the Christian is safe in the world if the world is not in the Christian. In the journey of life it is often necessary to lighten the ship; for our wealth, our cares, our treasures, may become burdens and sink us. Paul, the master seaman, urged Christians to "lay aside every weight and the sin which doth so easily beset us."

Can we not learn a fruitful lesson from the fact that when the danger was imminent they threw the freight overboard? There are a multitude of things, of value in themselves, which are, nevertheless, a handicap in life's voyage, and to the one whom they burden it is not always plain that they should be thrown out. It requires insight to see what is of vital importance and what may be profitably neglected. What not to do is often of as great importance as what to do. "The art of life is to attend to the things which matter and to neglect the rest." This is a wise saying. A study of Martha's way and Mary's way will help. Likewise the following passages will show some things that should be dispensed with: "Casting all your anxiety upon him, because he careth for you." Pet. 5: 7.) "Lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us." (Heb. 12: 1.)

0 0 0

When We Need an Anchor.

Paul was the safe leader on this voyage because he had prepared himself for leadership. His prayer prevailed because he had fulfilled the conditions of profitable prayer. He was full of courage and good cheer because he had lived a life of trust in God. How are you preparing for emergencies in your life and in the lives of others?

When the waves of trouble threaten our destruction, we need an anchor. When we are solicited to go into sin, we need an anchor. When we are tempted to drift with the tide of worldliness, we need an anchor. Paul says: "Which hope we have as an anchor of the soul, both sure and steadfast, and which entereth into that within the veil." (Heb. 6: 19.) But there are times when we need to raise the anchors and to hoist the mainsail. When God says, "Speak unto the children of Israel, that they go forward," one sail is worth more than four anchors.

0 0 0

How Paul Came to Rome.

Paul had long hoped and prayed that he might preach the gospel in Rome, but the way had not opened for him. At last, after a long imprisonment at Cesarea and a long and perilous sea journey, he reached Rome a prisoner. This was not the way he himself had planned to come, but It proved a far better way for his great object of making known the gospel. Had he come to Rome a free man, he never could have reached the Roman legions and Cæsar's household. (Phil. 4: 22.) In Phil. 1: 12, 13 he recognizes this fact: "Now I would have you know, brethren, that the things which happened unto me have fallen out rather unto the progress of the gospel; so that my bonds became manifest in Christ throughout the whole prætorian guard, and to all the rest." And this reminds us of the blessed fact that "God cannot always be traced, but he can always be trusted."

While Paul was pressed in spirit, his soul filled with a sense of loneliness, the trying events through which he had passed in the last two years resting a depressing burden upon him, like a sudden sunburst from behind the clouds came the unexpected meeting of friends at the Appli Forum. The horse will enjoy his feed while his mate is dying in the next stall. But a man can weep with those that weep and rejoice with those that rejoice, and in so doing be a benediction. "A word in due season, how good is it!" (Prov. 15: 23.)

The Answer of a Good Conscience.

Dr. Schaff defines "conscience" thus: "Conscience is the inborn sense of right and wrong, the moral law written on our hearts, which judges of the moral character of our motives and actions, and approves or censures, condemns or justifies us accordingly." The Scriptures teach that one's conscience may be weakened (1 Cor. 8: 12); wounded (1 Cor. 8: 12); made evil (Heb. 10: 22); become a source of joy (2 Cor. 1: 12); defiled (Tit. 1: 15); seared (1 Tim. 4: 2); become a witness for us (Rom. 9: 1) or a witness against us (John 8: 9); made good (1 Pet. 3: 16).

In the matter of conscience, it was Felix before Paul, rather than Paul before Felix; for Felix trembled, while Faul's conduct was one of perfect repose, the pose of a man with a conscience void of offense toward God and toward man. Agrippa, Bernice, and Festus went their way, little realizing that they had been at the parting of the roads which meant destiny for them. Felix had said, "Go thy way:" Agrippa had said, "Almost thou persuadest me to be a Christian;" Festus had said, "Thou art mad." Each one decided against Christ. None of these gave the answer of a good conscience.

Sometimes a man's conscience does not trouble him because it is hardened. The story is told of how a minister had just finished his sermon and the air still quivered with his burning words. But the people sat erect, disturbed, embarrassed. "Is there one here," the preacher asked, "in whose breast these words strike like a barbed arrow for the truth that is in them?" And he sat down. "That was hard on John," said old James; "but he deserves it every word." "A blow from the shoulder for James," said old John; "time he got one, too." But the little saint hurried home and knelt by her little bed and cried aloud in her anguish: "My God, have mercy upon me!" And the troubled conscience of the little saint was the only good fruit of the sermon

A Little Homily on Sacrifice.

Sacrifices are of two kinds—propitiatory and thank offering, atonement and acknowledgment. Christ has made the first; we are to make the second.

Mary broke her alabaster box of very precious ointment and poured it on the Master's head. What is your alabaster box? Is it time, money, talent, intellect, service, love? Let us remember that Christ deserves the best we have.

The Psalmist said: "The sacrifices of God are a broken spirit: a broken and a contrite heart, O God, thou wilt not despise."

The person who insists on making an entire dedication of himself to God is likely to meet opposition. But let him remember whom he hath chosen and take courage, "If God he for us, who can be against us?"

It is said that Cæsar had his courtiers repeat in his presence: "Remember that thou art Cæsar." Thus Paul exhorts: "Walk worthy of the vocation wherewith ye are called."

To arrive at a just estimate of ourselves, the estimate must be accompanied with the consciousness that all is God's gift. Gratitude will keep down conceit.

Our Contributors

Religious Efficiency.

BY JOHN T. HINDS.

This is an age when almost every means or method is measured by its efficiency. If it fails to produce results, the matter is looked into and changes are made, if possible, or the method is abandoned. We are not at liberty in the Lord's work to change his law or plans for doing things, but we can justly call in question our efforts if we fail to accomplish reasonable results. If we have the right plan and method and we are not succeeding, then we are falling to work the plan as we should. There is no work in which the church engages where we need more earnest thought along the line of efficiency than the matter of doing mission work. The ordinary congregation is able to look after the home work in a fairly successful way, if they half try; but when it comes to doing work abroad, we often make a conspicuous failure. Any congregation that is satisfied with doing only the home work is half dead. Are not lost souls in other communities just as worthy of salvation as those near our door? If no one ever makes the effort, how can the kingdom spread? If the gospel ever reaches such places, somebody must take it: If such individuals are not able to take it at their own charges, somebody must send them and send to them, This burden falls on one congregation or individual with the same force as another. In short, it is just as much my business to plant the truth in new fields as any other Christian. If I cannot go, then I must send. There is no possible escape from this obligation. This truth is usually admitted, if we do fall to act according to it.

It is no trouble to send the means if we have it raised and ready and are willing. But why are our efforts in this work so inefficient? Why so hard to do the little we undertake, and why do we undertake so little? I answer, first, because of a lack of system. I do not mean by this that God has given no system for the work, but that we do not use God's system. In fact, we do not use anybody's system very extensively. Some congregations, maybe, are living up to the measure of their ability by systematic endeavor, but my notion is that most of them are spasmodic in their efforts—just "wait for the spirit to move them," as it were. Many do nothing whatever till the urgent call comes, and then half-heartedly send something with a sigh of relief to the effect that "that disagreeable matter is off our hands." Then we relapse into indifference till another call wakes us up, perhaps to make us complain because we are receiving so many calls for help. Such efforts at mission work is not going to get us very far or accomplish much. Such loose methods of looking after our business affairs would make us all fail. Regular, systematic work, persistently done, is the price of success. Any one who is not willing to pay the price is a failure. Why should we expect to succeed in the Lord's work by a plan that will not succeed anywhere else?

There is no use to wait for a call to come for help. We know the needy, struggling places that are worthy of help are far in excess of all we can do by our best efforts. If we should succeed in helping sufficiently every place where a few brethren are striving against fearful odds, there are millions where the gospel has never been preached. Unlimited opportunities are before us. Even in our good United States, not one-half the field has ever had a chance to hear the unadulterated truth. When we think of the Eastern States and the little effort we have made to send the gospel to the millions there, we should blush with shame at our meager efforts.

Unless we adopt some systematic method in giving, we will never do much. There is no plan better than the Lord's as given by Paul. When funds were needed for the "poor saints," the Corinthians were told to lay by in store upon the first day of the week as they had been prospered. No better method has yet been devised to raise funds for the Lord's work. It has the merit of being a regular method. Regularity is always better than being spasmodic. But we might be regular in our laying by in store and spasmodic in our giving to the needy. This will be largely a fallure. These brethren in laying by in store had a definite work in mind. Why not we know what we are doing when we put money into the treasury? We may have something definite before us by either of the following methods. (1) Have some particular work to which we are giving regularly. (2) Give one or two Lord's-day's contributions each month to any needy place that calls or we can find. (3) Give a certain per cent of all contributions regularly to some chosen work or to any needy place we find. The point is this: Let each congregation decide on some definite work and support it regularly, or else decide on some definite per cent to be given regularly for any worthy work. If this plan would be adopted generally, I am sure the church would accomplish three times as much as we ever will by the spasmodic, hit-and-miss method. The Lord's work deserves something better than patchwork. Brother, take this matter up and agitate it till your congregation systematically undertakes something worth while. It will soon become highly efficient.

A lack of concentration in our efforts results in a great loss to the cause of truth. It is far better to plant ten acres and cultivate it so it will produce than to plant forty, half cultivate, and produce nothing. Many missionary meetings have been failures because they were never followed by others till the cause was established. If a congregation undertakes to plant the truth in a new place, the effort should be concentrated at that point till the work goes. A little effort made at a dozen places and none succeed is a failure of all. "Stick to your bush" till you get the fruit picked is the way to succeed.

The same is true where it takes many contributions to do a work. If the brotherhood had just concentrated their efforts for one day on the work in Washington, D. C., and had half tried, the work would have been done. Why should a great brotherhood be months or years in trying to get a house in some city? It is a poor commentary on our faith or our liberality that we cannot raise at once enough funds to pay for one church house. If every congregation was giving a certain per cent of its contributions to mission work and had funds in its treasury, as it would have by such a plan, when a time was suggested to start the work in any city, it could easily be done by one single effort. We should, and could if we would, finish the work in Washington in one month, the work in St. Louis the next month, and that in Rochester, N. Y., the next. In fact, by regular, systematic giving, and doing one thing at a time, the brotherhood could easily give enough money to build a chapel in some city every month in the year. Twelve in a year would be far ahead of what we do. Why don't we do it? We are not paupers. Are we stingy? Are we unconcerned? Or is it only a lack of some definite, systematic way of going at the work?

It is a crying shame that a few brethren and sisters must face the thousands in such cities as Washington, St. Louis, Rochester, and other cities with no place to meet, and a great brotherhood do little or nothing to help them. Why not decide on some one thing and finish it? What think ye?

What About the Picture Shows?

BY JOHN T. SMITHSON.

Just a short time past a movement was made by the Ministers' Association of Louisville, Ky., to close the moving-picture shows on Sunday. This movement was inaugurated after Dr. R. E. Akin, pastor of the First Unitarian Church, of Louisville, had, as he claimed, made an investigation of church attendance on Sunday night. He reported that out of eighteen Protestant churches, fifteen had less than seventy in attendance, while "the movingpicture houses had waiting lines out on the sidewalk." After this investigation he announced that he would use "movies" in his church on Sunday nights, giving for his reason that "young people liked the movies." At his announcement some of the pastors in the city raised an objection to having picture shows in the church, declaring that such lowered the sublime dignity and the message of the church. So far, so good. It is conceded that picture shows appeal to people-church members, too. what way do the shows appeal to them? Do they appeal to them after the flesh or after the spirit? Without hesitation and without fear of contradiction. It can be said they appeal to the flesh. He who goes to the picture shows walks by the flesh and fulfills the lust thereof. If any one is disposed to deny this, let him state in plain terms the whys and the wherefores of his going to the picture shows. Those who go to the picture shows occasionally will have a hard time proving that the Spirit of God led them there. Habitual picture-show attendants can never prove they are led there by the Spirit of God. Those who go to the picture shows the most go to church the least. These are contrary one to the other, just as the flesh and the spirit are. Mr. Akin furnished the proof of this when he put the "movies" in his church. His church attendance at night was small before the show was installed. The first night of the show the house was filled beyond its seating capacity—not with worshipers of God, but lovers of shows; for if they were worshipers of God, the house would have been full without the show.

Why did some of the city pastors object to Mr. Akin putting on a show in his church? Did they do it on the grounds that it was an innovation? No. They would have to relinquish some of their own things as innovations before they could consistently condemn Mr. Akin's show on that ground. Did they object to it because it is a sin to have picture shows? No. They say picture shows are not sinful. Like the members of Mr. Akin's church, the members of the churches of these objecting pastors-and quite likely the pastors themselves-go to the picture shows that are operated as a lucrative business by men who are irreligious. They objected because they thought it lowered the sublime dignity and the message of the Man of Galilee. Cannot the sublime dignity and the message of the Man of Galilee be lowered by the instruments of music, church suppers, festivals, entertainments, and the like being put in the church, as well as by the picture show? Cannot the message of the church be lowered by its members going to the picture shows that are run daily regardless of Christ and the church? To my mind, it can and has been done. Here is where the evil lies. The picture shows are sinful. It is, therefore, a sin for Christians to go to them. Before the city pasters can consistently condemn Mr. Akin for having shows in his church, they must condemn their own members for going to the shows, or else sooner or later they will be compelled, as was Mr. Akin, to put the show in their churches in order to have a crowd and to satisfy the pleasure-loving hearts of their members. Mr. Akin's action is the logical conclusion deduced from his pictureshow-going membership.

These objecting pastors, with some others in an organization called the "Ministers' Association," undertook the Herculean task to have the picture shows closed on Sunday. They called for an enforcement of the Sunday law. But it was pointed out that the Sunday law would also close up the cold-drink stands and automobile garages and oil stations, together with other places of pleasure, if it were enforced. They were now met with a strong opposition, and for the lack of courage they yielded instead of contending earnestly for the enforcement of the law, with a willingness to abide the consequences, or else have the law expurged.

Now, to relieve the embarrassing situation, these pastors offered as a subterfuge a free show on Sunday afternoons in the United States Armory. They are now so implicated that they cannot extricate themselves without further embarrassment; for they have objected to the pay show and to the free show also, and yet offer a show of their own. If they will take this suggestion, it will help them in the future to keep out of such embarrassing things: Let them preach earnestly and faithfully against the picture-show evil, together with all forms of worldliness, and let them and their members cease going to the shows; then the shows will close within themselves, not only on Sunday, but every other day of the week.

I object to these picture shows with either free or paid admission. Many people have drunk from these cups of deluding pleasure until they are staggeringly drunk on foolishness. It is hard for some of them to have a sober thought. The influence of the picture shows is degrading and demoralizing. They, sirenlike, have lured many innocent boys and girls to places of ruin. The same kind of fruit will grow from the seed that is sown. There is no way of telling the effect a suggestion has on the mind. Murders of all kinds, thefts, bank robberies, divorces, evil of love affairs, inordinate affections, and many other evils too numerous to mention, are the fruits of evil minds. When these sins are committed, were we able to get hold of the thread that led to the deed, I suspect in the majority of instances we could follow it to the picture show where the seed was planted and the suggestion was received. As long as the picture shows are operated and are attended by both old and young people as they are to-day, we may expect a continual decrease in church attendance and a proffigate race of people.

An Open Letter.

BY SENEX.

To the Churches of Christ in Middle Tennessee.- Dear Brethren: Will you permit me to invite your attention briefly to the fact that Fanning Orphan School is every way worthy of your hearty support and encouragement? For almost a quarter of a century Brother David Lipscomb and his faithful wife have dedicated their lives to the noble work of training helpless girls for the manifold duties of life. Through all these years they have tenderly and carefully watched over every girl that has been committed to their care. An old man who has spent the best half of his life in the schoolroom does not hesitate to say they have thus built up a school for girls that is second to no school of the kind in the State. All the important branches of education, such as correct spelling, reading, arithmetic, algebra, English grammar, history, geography, plane geometery, Latin, etc., are carefully taught here. The Bible is also a textbook and is made a part of the daily study of every girl that enters the school. This is as it should be. No school from which the Bible has been excluded is a fit place for either boys or girls. "Feed my lambs" is an injunction from the lips of the world's only Redeemer. Its holy mandate is as much binding now as when given to Peter by the Sea of Galllee two thousand years ago. I know of no way by which the churches of Christ can more effectively comply with this heavenly admonition than by opening the door of opportunity to every orphan girl within the bounds of their activity.

In Middle Tennessee alone there are, perhaps, fifty or more churches of Christ who are, each, abundantly able to keep one, two, perhaps three, orphan girls in this school without feeling that even the semblance of a sacrifice has been made. Within almost a stone's cast of the door of many of these churches are helpless girls who yearn for the blessed privilege of attending some Christian school where they can prepare themselves for the holy mission God has called every woman to fill. Brethren, shall we not hear the silent call of these worthy girls? Shall we not call down the blessing of our Father upon our heads with a response that will fill every vacant room at Fanning School with these helpless girls? The time has passed when any success worthy the name can be attained without previous careful training. The head, the hand, the heart of every girl must be carefully, skillfully trained before she is prepared for the Heaven-ordained mission before her. Then, will not every congregation within the section of country named above select some worthy helpless girl and have her ready to answer when the roll of the school is called on the ninth day of September? The girl you may select is perhaps now in ignorance and faded rags. She may know little or nothing of the religion of Jesus Christ. The forces for evil, always busy, may already have her marked for a life of shame. Would it not be cruel beyoud expression to leave her to her fate? In the splendid atmosphere of Fanning Orphan School her starved nature will expand like a flower. With her astonishment at your goodness in sending her to such a beautiful home will come a better understanding, a deeper love, a more tender appreciation of the love of God, and your poor, ignorant orphan girl will soon bloom into that sweetest thing on earth—a tender, Christian woman. Remember, dear brethren, I am not asking you for the crumbs that daily fall from your table. These things are now not considered good enough for aristocratic cats or pedigreed dogs. I am asking you for the very best you have to give. Will you not respond in a way that will bring an overflow of precious girls to the school when it opens in September?

Through the sacrificial love of Tolbert Fanning and other noble-hearted brethren, some of whom have already gone to their reward, we have one of the most beautiful homes in Tennessee for our girls. The building, with everything about it, has been kept with such perfect care that it looks as new as when the contractors turned it over to the trustees of the school. I doubt if we could duplicate it now for less than many times what it cost to build it. In front of this splendid building is a twelve or fourteenacre lawn, every acre of which is covered with a sod of beautiful grass. Scattered over this lawn are hundreds of beautiful trees that fill us with the thought that Nature did her best in the selection of a place for each tree. Immediately in the rear of the building is a noble spring of purest water that comes out from beneath a ledge of great rocks and passes down through a valley whose sides are studded with venerable oaks and other fine old trees. The water from this spring, like Tennyson's brook, would doubtless go on forever, had not Professor Lipscomb and other members of the board of trustee built a dam across the valley, thus forming a lake six or seven feet deep and covering about an acre of ground. In this lake are hundreds of fine trout almost as large as the "whopper" the president of the Sporting Club "landed" the last time he tried his luck. At times many of these fine fellows can be seen swimming about in the water with a grace that has never been surpassed by anything in the water or out of the water. Amid such beautiful environments, such tender care for each girl, can any one doubt that Fanning Orphan School is an ideal home for girls?

My Visit to Nashville, Tenn.

BY MRS. LOTTIE JOHNSON.

In September, 1879, I went from my home in Mississippi to live with my aunt, Mrs. Charlotte Fanning, and to be taught by her. I remained thus with her, as her pupil and companion, until 1882. I then went home, remained, and taught school until September, 1884. I returned and entered the Fanning Orphan School as a charter pupil. I remained there until January, 1886. I had seen the dear old place once since then during Aunt Charlotte's lifetime, but not until August 7, 1920, had I seen the new building and the many improvements that have been made there. In looking over the premises, there is scarcely a vestige of anything to revive my memory of days gone by, and this fact cannot help but produce sadness, and the more when I tried to find traces of the dear old "circle" in which the whitened tomb of my most beloved and idolized aunt and uncle stands. The grounds, the buildings, and everything connected with the school are beautiful, substantial, and so well arranged to give comfort, knowledge, and a most excellent home to those dear girls who are so fortunate as to be admitted to its halls. Brother and Sister David Lipscomb, Jr., have grown gray with the school. Girls have gone out from under their care fitted for almost every calling in life allotted to woman, and filling their positions with honor and credit everywhere they have gone. though sad to my memory of days gone by, yet it was indeed a great joy to me to be permitted to walk over the grounds, take pictures here and there, and to feel of a surety that the school erected to the name and memory of my dear aunt is being so well cared for and her wishes so built into menuments for good over this land and country.

From there we went to David Lipscomb College. We first went to see "Aunt Mag," as I learned to call her while at school. Although she had not seen me since I was eighteen years old (I am now fifty-five) and was not expecting me, she took me by the hand, looked me in the face, and said, "This is Lottie"-remarkable, indeed, for one seventy-two years of age. She is another grand woman "in Israel." We were then shown over the grounds and buildings, which are beautiful, comfortable, and convenient. The new girls' dormitory is equal to any, and far surpasses many, that I know, of more pretentious reputation. The new dining room for the entire school and faculty, the boys' dormitory, study and recitation halls, which are being equipped, are a credit indeed to those brethren who are at the head of and promoting the work. To my mind, Brother A. B. Lipscomb, who is president of the college, cannot be surpassed anywhere in the capacity in which he is to serve the school. Many changes of discipline and arrangement in general are to be made, I understand, which, from the viewpoint of a teacher of long standing, I consider very helpful and beneficial in every way. Let me say to the brethren everywhere, you cannot do better than place your sons and daughters in this school. If any one wishes to ask any questions relative to the school that he or she may think I can be helpful in answering, I shall be only too glad to do so.

May the directors and teachers of both these schools live long and be spared to instill into the minds and hearts of young men and women the many good principles for which they were established.

2842 Lafayette Avenue, St. Louis, Mo.

Tried by Fire.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

One of my earliest memories is that of loitering, on my way to district school, about an abandoned potter's kiln—a bat-infested, viper-haunted dungeon made of rough stones. In this kiln crockery, or various types of crude earthenware, was baked and glazed and tempered for use. I have seen many relics of this primitive earthenware, some perfect in shape, others marred in the white heat of the kiln.

There are two kinds of kilns in use to-day, the intermittent kiln and the continous-tunnel kiln, the former now rapidly giving way to the latter. The intermittent kiln is fired and allowed to cool. In such a kiln the ware often becomes too hot and sinks down into misshapen vessels. The modern tunnel kiln, consisting of a canal over two hundred feet long, has its main fire zone in the middle—that is, equally distant from each end—of the tunnel. The earthen vessels are drawn slowly along the canal in cars and are thus gradually heated and gradually cooled. The danger of melting is not so great as it was formerly.

In our Christian experience we pass through life's kiln of sore trial, of bitter disappointment. The fire zones are stationed all along the way and the white heat flares up intermittently. We are thus "tried by fire." If we "faint not." we shall become "vessels unto honor, meet for the Master's use, prepared unto every good work." If we yield to temptation, we shall develop distorted characters not suited for the divine service, become "vessels of dishonor, fitted unto destruction." Glory, honor, immortality, await those who pass through life's focal fire unscathed.

"To-morrow the hot furnace flame
Will search the heart and try the frame,
And stamp with honor or with shame
The vessels made of clay,"

Noah-A Man of Faith.

BY H. LEO BOLES.

The sacred record tells us that "Noah found favor in the eyes of Jehovah." (Gen. 6; 8.) This is a wonderful statement and means much. Noah found favor with God. This is put in contrast with all the rest of the human family at that time. There were but two classes of Noah's time—the one class pleasing Jehovah and finding favor with him; the other class disobedient and displeasing to Jehovah, with a threatened destruction and calamity about to befall it. The first class was very small, only Noah and probably his family constituting this class; all the teeming millions of earth at that time composed the second class. Quite a contrast in the numerical strength in the two classes! This may suggest a comparison of the two classes of the present day. Noah found favor with the Lord and was to be saved, or preserved; while the second class was doomed to be destroyed-utterly destroyed from the face of the earth.

"Noah was a righteous man, and perfect in his generations." (Gen. 6: 9.) This is God's verdict concerning his character, that he "was a righteous man." Righteousness consists in doing right. "He that doeth righteousness is righteous." (1 John 3: 7.) When God calls Noah "a righteous man." we are to understand that Noah was a doer of righteousness. Righteousness pertains to our relationship to our fellow man. Noah, then, was just and honest, fair and upright, in his dealings and associations with his fellow men. Not one of them could bring aught against him. Noah is the first man that we find in Genesis who is called "righteous." The New Testament speaks of "righteous Abel," but Genesis does not give this title to him.

Noah was not only a righteous man, but he also is an heir to the righteousness of God which is through faith "By faith Noah, being warned of God concerning things not seen as yet, moved with godly fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house; through which he condemned the world, and became heir of the righteousness which is according to faith." (Heb. 11: 7.) This places Neah on God's honor roll, and his name is catalogued with the faithful heroes of God. Noah was surrounded by a godless population which disregarded the commandments of God. "Impiety, impurity, and lawlessness were the order of the day." We are told that "every imagination of the thoughts of his [man's] heart was only evil continually." (Gen. 6; 5.) Wickedness and corruption were universal. Many a man, surrounded with such an atmosphere of moral evil, would have lost his moral sight and yielded to the powerful influence of the custom and fashion of the age. Noah's life was a strong and stubborn protest and resistance against the mighty influence of this universal corruption and wicked social atmosphere.

We are told that Noah was "perfect in his generations." He was the best man living at that time. He stood out in his righteousness and perfection, towering far above his fellow men, elevated to his lofty position by his unwavering faith in Jehovah. Faith in God always marks one and elevates him above his fellows. We are not to understand that Noah was sinless, that he never did any wrong. but that when compared to his generation he was perfect. His ambitions and purposes, his hopes and aspirations, were perfect compared to those around him at that time. He should be an example to us who profess to follow the sinless Son of God. We should live so that it can be truthfully said of us that wherever we go we stand among our fellow men as perfect when compared with our generation. Not that we have become perfect, but that our efforts and hopes are to attain perfection in Christ.

Noah's faith was a practical principle and upheld him under the great resistance and difficulties of his time. He had to begin his work and live his life without any encouragement or sympathy from the public; and nothing but his strong faith could have sustained him in the face of hostile public opinion and fierce opposition. Noah believed God and was moved with godly fear. This is the fear of pious regard, of religious awe, of reverence for God's way and words. "According to all that God commanded him, so did he." This fear, born of his great faith, moved him to do all that God commanded. This faith enabled him to direct the whole conduct of his life for more than a hundred years, to follow implicitly the commands of God. His reverence, born of the same faith, gave him a dread of going against Jehovah's will and enabled him in humble submission to follow unhesitatingly all the commands of God.

"Noah walked with God." This is the second man to whom this is applied. Enoch walked with God. It was by his faith that he walked with God. There are three phrases which it will be well to notice-" walk with God," "walk after God," and "walk before God." Moses commanded the children of Israel that they should "walk after Jehovah your God." (Deut. 13: 4.) This means that they are to obey all the commandments of God, and in obeying these commandments they are walking after God. Abraham is commanded to "walk before God." (Gen. 17: 1.) This means that in his life he was ever to be conscious of the presence of God and to remember that Jehovah sees him in all the affairs of life. To "walk with God" means that one is not only to follow all of God's commands and ever be conscious of his presence, but also to be in his company, at his side. The figure conveys the idea of a little closer union than to be obeying God. There seems to be a closer union implied and a climax reached with the three phrases-walking after God, a closer union in walking before God, and still a closer union in walking with God. Noah enjoyed the holy companionship and association with God. It implies that he entered into a communion with him, taking a journey with him, and progressing along in the blessed union and fellowship toward the same end. Noah, like Enoch, is enjoying the greatest blessing growing out of one's relationship with God. Noah's faith brought him into this communion and companionship with God; it also separated him from the wicked world and helped to classify him with those who had been found pleasing unto God. We do not find this phrase, "walking with God," applied to any other Old Testament character except Enoch. A general statement is found teaching us that others may enter into such close relationship. "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doeth Jehovah require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Mic. 6: 8.) This implies that God requires all to enter into this holy and sacred association and companionship with him. He hath showed us by the example of Enoch and Noah what it is to walk humbly with him; and if we have the faith of these men, we may enter into this relationship.

More About Bethlehem Church.

BY JAMES E. SCOREY.

"Every scribe which is instructed unto the kingdom of heaven is like unto a man that is a householder, which bringeth forth out of his treasure things new and old." (Matt. 13: 52.)

Having written a short statement in reference to the establishment of old Bethlehem Church, in Wilson County, Tenn., and being encouraged to write more, I shall attempt to give a little further history of this congregation and some of my experiences and observations which I made and have clearly remembered concerning their work and worship.

The first meeting I remember ever to have been at, and the first preaching I am conscious of having heard, was in the old church house which stood hard by the great shelter used for a preaching place during the camp meetings which occurred annually when a majority of the members were Presbyterians. Barton Stone had converted almost the entire membership from Calvinistic Presbyterianism to be members simply of the body of Christ. They agreed to reject all creeds and confessions of faith and to take the New Testament, and it alone, as their rule of faith and practice. They manifested much zeal in the contention for the truth which they had embraced, and were willing and anxious to discuss mooted questions and differences of teaching with their neighbors and friends.

I heard my grandfather relate an incident that occurred in a talk he had with one of his personal friends and neighbors. They were discussing what to do to become a Christian. Uncle Jimmie Hearn, being a stanch Methodist, was strenuously contending that faith alone was the essential requisite. My grandfather read to him about what Peter told the Pentecostians to do, as recorded in Acts 2: 38. He, with excited speech, said: "Ah, Jimmy Scobey, you can't rely on what Peter says. He denied his Lord."

The old meetinghouse to which I have referred was a large structure built of large poplar logs bewn on two sides, notched closely at the corners. The spaces between them were not chinked and pointed, but, instead, the cracks had boards nailed over them. It was seated with slabs of poplar logs split in half, the flat side smoothed off with an ax or an adz; holes were bored, legs inserted, forming a long stool.

I remember the name of the preacher whom I first heard there. His name was "Bomar." He had stayed at my grandfather's house the night before. He was an elderly gentleman, kindly disposed, and made much of us children, of which there were six of us-a widowed aunt of mine with four, a boy without father or mother, and I without a mother. "Uncle Bomar" excited my admiration. I really liked him. I do not know whether my widowed aunt did or not. I think he liked her. We all went to meeting, except the two youngest of my aunt's children, which were left with "black mammy," as I have a faint remembrance. I was not more than four years old. During the sermon, while Brother Bomar was pegging away, I was admiring him as he stood behind the book board, and, gazing steadily at him, I cried out: "You are my preacher!" My grandmother, by whose side I was sitting, shook me into silence. The people all laughed, and that was a source of mortification to her. I do not know whether the incident disconcerted the preacher or not.

The people who attended meeting in those days either walked or rode horses, or whole families rode in wagons drawn by horses or carts drawn by oxen. I had never seen a buggy or pleasure carriage up to that time. I have no remembrance of ever having been among so many people. I noticed how they were dressed. Most of the women wore bonnets of the form and shape of that of my grandmother. The shape was very much that of a modern coal scuttle. The girls, if they wore any bonnet, were the oldfashioned sunbonnet, made at home of calico, muslin, or white linen, and it did not cost from ten to twenty-five dollars; and the girls and young women then looked just as pretty as, and were, perhaps, more attractive to the young men than, the present generation of silk-gowned, fur belowed, finger-ringed, painted-cheeked, and fancyhatted girls that we see every day promenading the streets and crowding into the department stores, rushing forward to the bargain counters where they may buy something for half price, or less than cost, because the merchant has a clearance sale or some other kind of a sale, which occurs about every day in the week.

I think it might be both entertaining and instructive to write more in reference to the work and worship of this, the pioneer church of all the churches of this part of Tennessee. I should be pleased to tell something of the pioneer preachers I have heard at old Bethlehem—their methods, their successes and partial failures; and this I may do, if I could be assured it were desired upon the part of the readers and editors of this journal.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. HALL

By B. C. GOODPASTURE

South Georgia.

The work in South Georgia is prospering as never before. Beginning on the second Sunday in this month and continuing till the third Lord's day, I was with the Dasher congregation, the oldest in that section, preaching twice each day. There were four confessions and baptisms, with the best of interest from the beginning. On Lord's days the crowds were not all seated. It seemed to me that there were, at least, two hundred who stood for communion the last Lord's day. The collections for this day were good, with a special collection for the McGregor church house of fifty-one dollars. Some of the best people in the State are in the Dasher congregation. They are waking up to the great need of more mission work being done, and have just recently closed a fine meeting at Pinetta, Fla., with Brother Prevatt doing the preaching, which resulted in eighteen additions, with a fine prospect for many more when he returns this fall to that place. It was my pleasure to speak at Pinetta three times while in the Dasher meeting. The Dasher Bible school has done much good and is destined to do more.

A number of Morven's best were in attendance on Lord's days. The Scruggs brothers, of that place, are wide awake to the needs of that section, and they have pledged fifteen hundred dollars toward the support of Brother Templeton to move there and give his whole time to the work. Many of the brethren from Union, Black's Schoolhouse, and Welcome Hill attended, and all seemed to be delighted with the new life this section of the State has taken on. Brethren Prevatt and Colson conducted a short meeting at the latter place recently, which resulted in a number of additions.

While at Dasher, I met quite a number of the brethren from Valdosta. This is one of the most capable congregations in the State. They are to use Brother Claus more in mission work than formerly. He has just closed a short meeting near Berlin, Ga., with one addition and quite an interest created for more work in that section. He is to return soon. He also is to help the "faithful few" at Brunswick soon.

0 0 0

Griffin, Georgia.

The work at Griffin continues to grow. Brethren Garrett and Ritchie recently visited them, and are delighted with the zeal of this young congregation. Brother Hill was with them one night recently and baptized two more. The Atlanta brethren are to keep in touch with this work and see that it is watered and kept growing. We hope to have another revival there this fall.

0 0 0

Miscellaneous Items.

Brother Garrett's recent visit to Baldwin, Ga., was very successful, notwithstanding much rain hindered the attendance. He is to go there regularly once a month. They have asked for half of his time, and he will give this much time if arrangements can be made. It speaks well for the East Point brethren to be thus interested in encouraging him in this good work. He is now in a revival at Wilson's Mill, near Kingston, Ga.

Brother Aruna Clerk recently conducted a meeting at Lafayette, and Brother W. C. Graves, of Birmingham, also conducted a meeting near that place, but I have not heard the results.

Brother John T. Smithson will be in a meeting at Hall's Valley and Brother Silas E. Templeton at Lyerly when this reaches our readers.

Brother R. C. White's meeting at Buchanan resulted in four baptisms and much good done otherwise.

Brother Rogers is in a tent meeting at Lakewood Heights, Atlanta, and will continue as long as interest demands. This meeting will be followed by one conducted by Brother Goodpasture in another section of the city. When this reaches our readers, he will be helping in a meeting at Liberty Hill.

What Timothy Knew From a Child.

That which Timothy knew from childhood is frequently unknown even in old age; and what he possessed as a lifelong blessing, many never in this life obtain—a knowledge of the "sacred writings." (2 Tim. 3: 15.) Doubtless it were better for a child never to have lived than to have lived without learning the will of God. Timothy may not have known the science and the philosophy, the history and the literature, current in his country and generation, but he knew something infinitely more worth while-the but he knew something infinitely more worth while—the inspired history and literature of his mother's God. This knowledge of a temporal, secular nature has its value in its place; but it will not, cannot, make one "wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." (2 Tim. 3: 15.) It is rather probable that, as a child, this great preacher of the apostolic church was not a son of wealth and position, but the son of a godly mother. In fact, it seems that almost all of God's great men have had great mothers. One can scarcely, if at all, doubt that Timothy's early familiarity with the Scriptures was the result of his mother's tender and loving care, since Paul said: Having been reminded of the unfeigned faith that is in thee; which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and, I am persuaded, in thee also." (2 Tim. 1: 5.) Notwithstanding the facts that her husband was a Greek (Acts 16: 1), and possibly hostile to her religion, and that they lived in a Gentile city far from the land of her nativity and the temple of her God and in the midst of corrupting and idolatrous influences, Eunice did not fail to instruct her little son in the law of his mother's God. When we have more grandmothers and mothers like Lois and Eunice, respectively, we shall have more men like Timothy

0 0 0

Beginning in Time.

Eunice did not wait until the mind of Timothy was filled with the ever-present contaminating things of the world before she began to train him in the way of righteousness. From "a babe" he knew the "sacred writings." Timothy well illustrates and confirms the wisdom and truth of the oft-quoted passage: "Train up a child in the way he should go, and even when he is old he will not depart from it." (Prov. 22: 6.) The difficult problem of getting the young people interested in the Bible and the church can best be solved in the home. It is true that the church can be would much—more than it is doing—for the young generation, but it can never supplant the mission of a Christian home, as such. More attention must be given to this matter, both in the home and in the church, if we are to disciple every creature. To neglect the young people of the present is to neglect the church of the future. We must either use or lose them.

0 0 0

Bits of News.

There were two good services at West End Avenue on Sunday, August 15. One from the First Christian Church took membership with us at the morning service.

Brother A. R. Hill recently preached one night at Griffin, where he and Brother J. B. Beck held a tent meeting a few weeks ago, and baptized two. He will begin a meeting at Barney on the first Lord's day in September.

0 0 0

Life! we've been long together
Through pleasant and through cloudy weather.
Tis hard to part when friends are dear—
Perhaps 'twill cost a sigh, a tear;
Then steal away, give little warning.
Choose thine own time;
Say not Good Night, but in some brighter clime Bid me Good Morning.
—A. L. Barbauid

AT HOME AND ABROAD

- J. W. Grant closed a meeting at Sycamore Landing last Sunday night. There were seven baptisms.
- R. V. Cawthon closed an Interesting meeting at Cedar Grove, near this city, Sunday night. There was one baptism.
- R. P. Cuff closed an interesting meeting at Silver Point, Tenn., on August 18, with nine additions. He is now at Estill Springs.
- A. T. Ritchie is in a meeting at Berry Chapel, Williamson County, Tenn. The last report was that several had been baptized, and the meeting was still in progress.
- R. E. Wright stopped in to see us last week. He had just closed an interesting meeting at Brush Ridge, Tenn., which resulted in six baptisms and two reclaimed.

Earnest C. Love preached two impressive sermons at Russell Street Church, in Nashville, last Sunday. At the close of the evening services three grown women were baptized.

We were pleased to have W. T. Tracey, of Pensacola, Fla., call to see us last Thursday. He preaches for the West Hill congregation in Pensacola, and reports the church in good condition.

The Fanning Orphan School for Girls will open for the reception of pupils on September 9. For further information, address David Lipscomb, Superintendent, Route 1, Nashville, Tenn.

We enjoyed a visit last week from L. H. Elrod, of Smyrna, Tenn. He reports the church at Smyrna as taking on new life and getting ready to build a new house in which to worship.

T. H. Burton was in the city last Saturday en route to Grissam Point, near Lebanon, Tenn., to begin a meeting last Lord's day. He expects to return to South Carolina in about ten days.

We are very much grieved to learn that 1. C. Hoskins, the faithful evangelist at Martin, Tenn., has broken down completely in health. Brethren, remember Brother Hoskins in your prayers,

- R. A. Craig reports a fine meeting in progress at Swallowfield, Ky. Two Baptists came forward desiring to wear the name "Christian." J. K. P. South, of Frankfort, Ky., Is assisting in the meeting.
- J. H. Mead recently closed a good meeting at Kedron, near Russellville, Ky. There were thirteen baptisms and six reclaimed. He began a meeting at Pleasant Hill, Davidson County, last Lord's day.

Position Wanted—At present I am engineer of a small ice plant. Have had eight years' experience. Would consider almost any kind of a job. Will furnish reference.—J. D. F., Box 383, Lenoir City, Tenn.

- F. B. Srygley closed a meeting on the night of August 18, at Hillsboro, Tenn., which resulted in fourteen additions—twelve by baptism and two reclaimed. He began a meeting at Willette, Tenn., last Sunday.
- From G. W. Jarrett, Coffeeville, Ala., August 23: "I preached yesterday at 11 A.M. and 8 P.M., near Amory, Miss., to fine audiences. I aim to begin a meeting in Hardin County, Tenn., to-morrow night."
- A. G. Freed is engaged in a meeting at Sparta, Tenn. In a letter written on August 23, he says: "Our meeting is starting off nicely; fine audiences yesterday and at night. Services every day at 3 P.M. and 7:30 P.M.
- W. M. Rutherford, of Franklin, Ky., made us a call last Friday. He reports the congregation in Franklin as doing nicely, and also states that Brother Allen is to begin a meeting there on the fifth Sunday in August.
- A. D. Gardner, of Paragould, Ark., sends in the following: "Croft College requires the services of a teacher for the session beginning on November 1. House furnished and fair wages. Write A. D. Gardner, Box 444, Paragould, Ark."

From H. M. Phillips, Tuscumbia, Ala., August 23: "I have just closed a very interesting meeting at Barton, Ala. There were seven restorations and eight baptisms. I shall begin a meeting at Commerce, Tenn., near Watertown, to-night."

From Coleman Overby, Murray, Ky., August 20: "My meeting at Pilot Oak, in Graves County, closed last Tuesday evening. Good interest was manifested. There were seven baptisms and two restorations, and two took membership."

- L. F. Mason writes, under date of August 20: "The meeting at Shady Grove resulted in four additions. I closed a meeting at Red Hill with ten additions. I will begin a meeting at Flat Rock Church, near Lebanon, Tenn., next Sunday."
- H. W. Wrye was among our visitors last Friday, and states that he closed a meeting at Vine on Sunday night, August 15, with twenty-seven additions—twenty-three by baptism. He began a meeting last Sunday at Spring Hill, Maury County, Tenn.
- Willis G. Jernigan sends in a detailed report of funds received for the Southwestern Colorado mission field for the months of April, May, and June. The monthly totals are as follows: April, $70.53; May, $27; June, $52. Total for the quarter, $149.53.
- J. S. Trotter, of this city, closed a meeting at Beech Valley, of eight days' duration, on Sunday night, August 15. Three were baptized and one was reclaimed. He was announced to begin a meeting next Sunday at New Liberty Church, near Jingo, Tenn.

William P. Walker writes from Dover, Tenn., August 19: "Our meeting on Dyer's Creek, near Dover, in Stewart County, began last Lord's day. The prospect is encouraging for a successful series of meetings. Brother Hall is directing the song services."

- J. Clifford Murphy reports that he closed a week's meeting in the northwestern part of Maury County on August 13, with three baptized and five reclaimed. This was a mission meeting and was supported by three congregations—Isom, South Point, and Kettle Mills.
- John D. Evans informs us that recently he spent two or three days with Brother Fuqua at Boulder, Coi. E. E. Shoulders and Brother Speck also spent some time in Boulder, assisting Brother Fuqua in the meeting which he is holding there. Interest in the meeting was fairly good.
- A. K. Ramsey writes from Chattanooga, Tenn., under date of August 18: "I am on my way home after a fifteen-days' rest in the mountains. I preached a few times at Spencer and once at Dibrell while in the State. I expect to put in the rest of the year in the Louisiana mission field."
- F. W. Smith wishes to take this method of expressing for himself and his family "sincere, heartfelt thanks for the many letters from friends all over the country expressing their sympathy for us in this dark hour of our bereavement. May the Lord bless each one of them is my sincere prayer."

Burritt College is doing a fine work for the mountain people. James E. Chessor, who is teaching the Bible there, wishes to get a number of good maps of the Bible land, and would also be glad to have any one contribute good books, such as Smith's Bible Dictionary and commentaries, for the institution.

From T. E. Tatum, Hallsville, Texas: "I have a good proposition to make to a young married Christian man who would work for wages through the next fall and winter and then farm with me next year. I will pay a good price for labor until time to make a crop. Write me at Hallsville, Texas."

The opening of the Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson. Tenn., September 28, promises to be all that could be expected. The work on the ladies' new home is being pushed. The building is to be ready at the opening of the session. Catalogue will be sent to any one for the asking. We are pleased to note the encouraging prospects of this institution.

S. H. Hall, who has given up the work in Atlanta, Ga., for a time, at least, stopped over to see us last week en route to California, where he will engage in the work of preaching the gospel. Our readers are too well acquainted with him and know so much of the efficient work that he has been doing for him to need any commendation or recommendation from us.

From J. M. Gainer, Fayetteville, Tenn., August 20: "I have just returned from a trip to Texas. I preached at Dallas, Pilot Point, and Stony. There were three baptisms.

I closed a good meeting at Malino, near Fayetteville, last night. I shall begin a meeting next Sunday at Philadelphia, Maury County, Tenn. G. Dallas Smith is to begin here on the fifth Sunday in August."

From W. R. Sparkman, Theta, Tenn., August 23: "We have just closed a good meeting at this place, which was conducted by E. L. Cambron, of Wartrace, Tenn. We consider it a great success. Large attendance throughout and much interest manifested. One was baptized and much good done otherwise. We hope to have Brother Cambron with us again next year. May God bless the faithful everywhere."

From Olera Craig, Custer, Wash.: "At the church of Christ, corner of Alabama and Yew Streets, Bellingham, Wash., on Sunday, September 5, there is to be a united meeting of several of the congregations in this part of the State. If any one in his travels can arrange to be with vs at that time, he will be most welcome. One may write to W. O. New, Ferndale, Wash., or to me, if desiring to stop with us."

From Lee Jackson, Sardis, Tenn., August 20: "I am now at Sardis, in Henderson County, Tenn. I have been preaching here in the College Chapel since last Lord's day. Our audiences have been large—perhaps a little too large to make it possible for a man of my temperament to get close to the hearts of the people with the truth—yet the attention and interest are good. I go from this place to Hillsboro, in Coffee County."

From G. W. Grayson, Dunmor, Ky., August 21: "W. L. Karnes, of Portland, Tenn., will assist the church of Christ at Dunmor in a protracted meeting, beginning on Saturday night before the third Lord's day in October. All brethren within reach are invited to attend. J. P. Kimbrell preached a few discourses for us, beginning on July 30 and ending on August 1. J. E. Barbee, of Yost, Ky., preaches for us every fourth Lord's day."

E. C. Fuqua writes us that his wife is much improved since her last operation and hopes to be able to return home in a very short time. Brother Fuqua has our sympathy in the serious sickness of his wife, and we rejoice with him that she is much improved. Doubtless the churches will be glad to remember him in this sore trial. The meeting at Boulder when we last heard from him was still continuing. There had been two additions to the church. He is expecting to begin a meeting east of Denver in a schoolhouse located in a strong sectarian community.

Willis G. Jernigan was among our visitors last week. He has been preaching for some time in Western and Southwestern Colorado. This is a mission field in which there is only one well-established congregation, the nearest coworker being E. C. Fuqua, at Fort Collins. The work in this section is growing, three small mission points having been established in the last seven months and several members added to the church. Any one desiring further information in regard to the work should write to A. W. Arnold, Dolores, Col., or to Willis G. Jernigan, Olathe, Col.

James E. Scobey will preach at Columbia, Tenn., next Sunday; at his home church, Lawrence Avenue, this city, on the first Sunday in September; at Antioch Church, Rutherford County, on the second Sunday; and at the Seminary Church, in Rutherford County, on the third Sunday. He is teaching the word and enforcing, as far as possible, the exhortations of the apostle Paul to the members of the body of Christ to be steadfast, always abounding in the work of the Lord. Any one wishing the services of Brother Scobey should write him at once at $59 Bradford Avenue, this city.

From R. L. Colley, Millyille, Ark., August 20: "I have just returned from Tennessee and Mississippl, where I spent a very enjoyable time during three meetings. I held a two-weeks' meeting at Jacinto, Miss., which resulted in seventeen baptisms and two restorations. I closed there on the fourth Sunday in July and began at Leedy that night, closing there on the following Friday morning, at the water, with eleven baptisms. From there I went to Refuge, Tenn., where I began a meeting on the second Sunday morning in August and closed on Friday following, at the water, with five baptisms. I will begin a meeting at Whitefield, Ark., next Lord's day."

A letter from Morgan H. Carter, 105 West Sixty-fourth Street, New York City, brings us the following encouraging items: "We now have twenty-one members here and some excellent prospects whom we are not sure of yet. Then we have several children for the Bible study on Sunday. God has greatly blessed us. Unite with us in praising him and in asking a continuation of his blessings upon the work for Christ. We are favored with a very neat, well-located chapel at a reasonable rental for regular services. The location is No. 239 West Sixty-ninth Street, near Broadway and Amsterdam Avenue. If you are in New York on Sunday, be sure to worship with the church."

E. P. Smith, Martin, Tenn., writes: "Beginning on the second Sunday in June, I preached ten days for my home congregation in Martin. Three were baptized. I then held a meeting at Fulton, beginning on the fourth Sunday in June, with seventeen additions. A. O. Colley preached four discourses in this meeting. I have held other meetings, as follows: At Troy, beginning on the second Sunday in July, with one baptism; at Bethel, beginning on Thursday before the fourth Sunday in July, with four baptisms; at Williams Chapel, in Carroll County, beginning on the second Sunday in August, with one baptism. I am now in a mission meeting at Sidon, with one baptism to date."

From I. A. Douthitt, Sedalia, Ky., August 20: "On the first Sunday in August I began a meeting at Bethany, Tenn. I was there just six days. The meeting was well attended both day and night. I do not think I ever saw better interest in a meeting. We had sixteen additions to the church, and the interest was such that they called W. E. Morgan to continue the meeting for a few days, and there were two more confessions after I left. Among this numer were two from the Methodists, two from the Baptists, and three from the Latter-Day Saints. My next meeting was in a tent near Murray, Ky. I was there eight days. We had large crowds and three additions to the church. I go to Hampshire, Tenn., to begin a meeting next Lord's day."

Annie C. Tuggle, colored, who has done some very efficient work among the members of her race, writes: "After being absent for something over two months from Nashville, I found it quite pleasant on my return. I am very much elated over the progress of the churches of Christ in this city—namely, Jackson Street, Jefferson Street, and Kayne Avenue. I hope some day these congregations will cause their lights to shine on the distant shores of Africa, as well as in the 'land of the free.' Brethren Benjamin Vincent, Tom Harris, and A. Duvall are the leaders of these congregations, and may the Lord ever be with them in their great work. I hope the cause of Christ will be advanced more than ever before, because the need of this movement is felt in every phase of life."

W. S. Long writes from Washington, D. C.: "The cause of pure Christianity is growing in Washington and the church is encouraged. We have bought a good, well-constructed building in the best section of the city. It is a fine field in which to labor. Almost half of the money to pay for and seat the house has been raised. The rest we should raise this year. Every dollar we pay will stop that much interest. Now is the time to help. If a letter comes to you, please do not east it into the wastebasket, but give the church a chance to help us. We must have help to seat this new church home now. I am at present out of the city doing some mission work and cannot give a report of what has been sent in during August. Brother Mills is our treasurer and will make a report. Send all donations and letters to E. L. Mills, Box 1650, Washington, D. C."

From W. Claude Hall, Dyer, Tenn., August 21: "I have just closed a very successful meeting with the church at Dorris Chapel, near Eaton, Tenn. Some old, chronic church troubles, that had been a hindrance to the cause for years, were completely cleared away, and the parties to both factions came back to the church determined to live right and work in the Master's vineyard. We had nine others to confess their sins and return to the congregation. One was baptized. I go now to Blytheville, Ark., where an effort is being made by B. B. Goodman, of Memphis, Tenn., in conjunction with the small band of Christians at Blytheville, to establish the cause there permanently. N. B. Hardeman has been preaching there now for two weeks. I will follow him for two weeks; then Brother Norred, of Memphis, will take up the work. Any good brother who desires to bave fellowship with this work may send his contribution to O. D. Grimes or to me, at Blytheville, Ark. All the support for the meeting will have to be raised by outside donations, as the little band there will not be able to finance the meeting because of the heavy expense to them for the tent and lot which were supposed to have been used, also for a building in the heart of the city which they afterwards decided was better for the meeting. This is a good work and should be encouraged by the congregations. I will teach in the David Lipscomb College, beginning on September 28."

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order. The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is malled regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by irustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, B. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as sacond-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

"Can a Christian Be Perfect?"

BY J. C. M'Q.

I have been requested to write an article on this subject. A preacher, in discussing Heb. 6, where it speaks of "going on unto perfection," took the position that while in the flesh we are not perfect, neither can we attain unto perfection. He said that Jesus, who is our example, had lived a perfect life, and that we must strive for the perfect life, and that in so doing we come nearer the mark. For this teaching he was severely reprimanded by a preacher who had been preaching much longer than he. The older preacher said that when one renders obedience unto the gospel, he is perfect before God and his obedience is perfect; also that when we meet on the Lord's day and worship "as it is written," our service is perfect before God.

Jesus was not perfect until he was made so through suffering. When the young man came to him inquiring, "What good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" Jesus answered and said unto him: "Why askest thou me concerning that which is good? One there is who is good:

bin if thou wouldest enter into life, keep the commandments." So long as the impulses of the flesh raged in Jesus, he would not permit himself to be called "good." The dross of humanity must be purged out through suffering, and that suffering in the case of Jesus led to death. For the same reason, as I understand it, the dross of humanity must be purged out of the infant through death and suffering before it can enter heaven. Jesus was not crowned until he had suffered. "But we behold him who hath been made a little lower than the angels, even Jesus, because of the suffering of death crowned with glory and honor, that by the grace of God he should taste of death for every man. For it became him, for whom are all things, in bringing many sons unto glory, to make the author of their salvation perfect through sufferings." (Heb. 2: 9, 10.) Jesus rendered a perfect obedience, even though this obedience led him unto the death of the cross. Though he was a Son, yet learned obedience by the things which he suffered; and having been made perfect, he became unto all them that obey him the author of eternal salvation." (Heb. 5: 8, 9.)

Paul teaches us that no good thing dwells in the flesh. So long as he was in the flesh, he could not please God, There is a perpetual conflict between the flesh and the spirit. Paul says: "For we know that the law is spiritual: but I am carnal, sold under sin. For that which I do I know not; for not what I would, that do I practice; but what I hate, that I do. But if what I would not, that I do, I consent unto the law that it is good." (Rom. 7: 14-16.) It appears that men who claim to be perfect rely too much upon their own strength and even border on presumption. In the face of the teaching of the word of God, for a man who is in the flesh and who has not suffered unto death as did Christ to claim that he is perfect is presumptuous indeed. It cannot be doubted that the apostle Paul purposed to do good, that it was his constant ambition to glorify God in both body and in spirit: yet this great man of God tells us that he did the thing that he hated and left undere the thing that was good and which he willed to do.

John, the beloved disciple, tells us: "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrightcousness." (1 John 1: 8, 9.) When we sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, even Jesus the righteous, and by turning from our sins and confessing them we can arrive at that state that we will stand approved and forgiven in the sight of God.

James (3: 1, 2) declares: "Be not many of you teachers, my brethren, knowing that we shall receive heavier judgment. For in many things we all stumble." While we may purpose good, study good, and, in the main, practice good, in many things we all stumble and make grievous mistakes. The same writer also says: "For every kind of beasts and birds, of creeping things and things in the sea, is tamed, and bath been tamed by mankind: but the tongue can no man tame; it is a vestless evil, it is full of deadly poison." (Verses 7, 8.) This scripture, with others that could be given, shows that man cannot live a perfect life while in the flesh. For one to contend that he can is to contend that he can do with a fleshly, human rature what Christ did with the divine nature. No person has ever reached that state of perfection that he does not sin in thought, word, or deed, either by omission or commission. It is a constant fight from the cradle to the

But while it is true that we will not reach perfection in this life, still it is our duty to strive to be perfect. " Ye therefore shall be perfect, as your heavenly Father is perfect," (Matt. 5: 48.) "Whom we proclaim, admonishing every man and teaching every man in all wisdom, that we may present every man perfect in Christ." (Col. 1: 28.)

The meaning of these scriptures and others of the same character is that we should continually strive to overcome the world, the flesh, and the devil. In seeking to be like Christ, we will copy only that which is perfect and never copy any mistakes. God gives us a perfect example to follow; he gives us a perfect model for the eldership; he gives us a perfect example for the Christian. All God's works are perfect; so we should seek to be perfect through suffering, as was our Master, and continue to strive until we are called into the Father's presence.

Seventy-Seven!

BY T. B. LARIMORE.

In historic, picturesque East Tennessee, sublime in scenery and wonderful in resources; where rugged, rockribbed mountains kiss the stars; where fertile fields and flowery vales smile in luxuriant beauty, peace, and plenty; where babbling brooks abound and sparkling fountains flow, seventy-seven years ago to-day—July 10, 1843—1 first saw the light of day and the smile of as sweet a little mother as ever rocked a cradle or loved a baby.

Why she named me "Theophilus," I do not know; but she named me "Brown" because she liked the initials, "T. B. L.," and because of my blood relationship to the Browns of Tennessee, three of whom—Neil S., Aaron V., and John C.—were governors of the Volunteer State. I claim no glory on that ground, however, or on any other ground.

My mother lived nearly ninety years; and, as I remember her, she seemed to literally live simply and solely for the good that she could do as the days of her life were going by. I am sure she never had a dollar she was not willing to divide, never a blessing she did not wish others to enjoy. She did all she could for me; hence, if I have been a failure, it was not her fault.

Her word was as good as her oath—her promise, as good as her bond, regardless of her financial condition. She was careful to never promise what she could not pay or perform. Anxious to educate me, she subscribed, "One scholar, five months, $10," to a school a young man claiming to be from New York City was "getting up" in Sequatchie Valley, Tenn., about sixty-seven years ago. The schoolhouse was only about three miles from where we lived, and my prospects seemed to be exceedingly bright and promising.

I attended that school three days, and then had to return to the plow. The pay for my plowing was only four dollars a month-as much as the work was worth-but the difference between receiving four dollars a month and paying two dollars a month meant so much to us that I had to plow instead of being a pupil in school. My brave little mother never murmured against the apparent cruelty of fate; but, deeming it her duty to pay the amount she had promised, notwithstanding I could not get the benefit of the school, she cheerfully made shirts for the teacher, to pay the ten dollars, and I took them to him, one by one, as they were finished and neatly prepared for transportation to him three miles from our humble home. Once, I remember, she sat up and sewed all night, that the work might be completed and delivered to him on time. Her promise must be fulfilled, sleep or no sleep. Those were happy days-but they are passed and gone.

She was my safest and sweetest and best teacher. Many were the proverbs she taught me. Often she said to me: "Always praise the bridge that carries you over safe, my son;" "Never be surety on any man's note or bond;" and many other good things I can never forget—nor would I forget them, if I could.

Friends have, financially and otherwise, manifested to me their sympathy, gratitude, appreciation, and affection to-day, all of which I greatly appreciate. Of course I have not the vim, vigor, and vitality that characterized my ministerial labors nearly threescore years, as I "went everywhere preaching the word;" but I am still able to preach the word to patient people who bear with my weakness and listen to what I say. I promise them nothing, they promise me nothing; but I give them the best I have, and they give me fifty dollars a month—all they are able to give, and as much as my work is worth.

Of course I cannot, even in the estimation of my nearest and dearest friends, preach acceptably many more years or . months, and then cometh the end-the end of my labors. and end of my body, but not the end of my soul. Cremstion is common in California, and I have long deemed that the most decent and desirable way of disposing of the dead. I hope my body may be cremated as promptly as possible and practicable after I leave it. Why not? Twenty-two hours after the death of Mrs. Hayes, the last of the children of Jefferson Davis, only President of the Southern Confederacy, her body was simply a handful of dust and ashes, notwithstanding it was cremated seventy miles from where she died. To me, that seems best. I think I should like for my body to be cremated at Roeding Park, the geographical center of California, many miles from here, where thousands of bodies are cremated, and throngs of people weep.

But this is neither a pleasant nor a profitable train of thought; hence I shall turn to something not so sorrowful or doleful—a subject not so sad.

One of the songs we sing begins this way:

"The mistakes of my life have been many.

The sins of my heart have been more."

That applies to me in part only. The mistakes of my life have been many, but I believe the sins of my heart have been few. I believe I have always wished to do the right and wanted to avoid the wrong—what I believed to be right and what I believed to be wrong. But my mistakes seem to me to have been

"Numberless as the sands of the seashore."

I have but little of this world's goods; but why should I worry?

"Man needs but little here below,
Nor needs that little long."

My address is Box 111, Berkeley, California. I live at 2115-B Durant Avenue, Berkeley; but I preach in Richmond Hall, Fourth Avenue and Clement Street, San Francisco, at 11 A.M., each Sunday, and in the Y. M. C. A. Building, Berkeley, at 7:30 P.M. At noon, each Sunday, we walk to "The Dimple," a beautiful little grassy dimple in the emerald cheek of Golden Gate Park, where we always have dinner and a delightful little love feast. Everybody is invited, everybody is welcome, and everybody seems to be happy.

Whensoever you may spend a Sunday in San Francisco, come to Richmond Hall, where our work begins at 10:30. When we leave the hall, follow the crowd, and you'll make no mistake. We are planning and preparing to build a meetinghouse near "The Dimple." Then there'll be, as the passing throng may express it, "a church of Christ by the Golden Gate." How do you like that name—"church of Christ by the Golden Gate?"

To this end it has been suggested that to-morrow—July 11—all of us voluntarily contribute whatsoever we may wish to contribute—cash, checks, or promises to pay—to secure that greatly needed site and building.

About fifty-seven years ago I received a call to come to California, to accept a position in a mercantile establishment in San Francisco, to begin on a salary of eighty-five dollars a month; and it was stated that the salary would be paid in gold. That seemed to me then almost as a call from another world; here am I now, in San Francisco, so near to the Pacific Ocean that I cannot walk westward many minutes without wetting my feet in its placid waters.

In childhood and youth I sometimes imagined I might sometime see Kentucky and even Arkansas. Arkansas was the limit. To my childish mind, then, Arkansas was as wonderful a place as its present governor seems to think it is now. I heard him say publicly, in the great Auditorium, at the National Convention, a few days ago: "Yes, I'm a delegate from the great State of Arkansas, the only State mentioned in the Bible. The Bible says Noah looked out of the ark an' saw!" Of course I have seen Kentucky and Arkansas; but I have also been from Maine to Mexico, from Canada to Cuba, from California to the Carolinas, and am now at the Golden Gate, a strip of water one mile wide and five miles long, connecting the Pacific Ocean with the Bay of San Francisco, said to be the finest bay and the best harbor in the world. I shall probably spend most of my time here till I pass away.

Not all of my time is to be spent here, however; for I expect to evangelize in Tennessee and elsewhere the major part of next year—1921. Why should an evangelist be worn out and be forced from the field by infirmities when he is only seventy-seven? I cannot walk forty miles in one day now, as I could do and did do in the days of my youth and early manhood—which was no wonderful feat for an East Tennessee mountaineer—but I can walk twenty miles a day, and, so far as I know, my health is absolutely perfect. Then why should I worry or quit?

P.S. July 12.—I shall usurp, this time, the privilege conceded to women—the use of the postscript—to tell you the result of our voluntary contribution yesterday toward securing that "church of Christ by the Golden Gate."

No speech was made, no hat was "passed," no begging was done, no one was asked for a dime or a dollar, no one knew what another was giving or pledging. Beginning after the benediction, in less time than we usually spend in the hall after the audience is dismissed, we had, in cash, checks, and promises to pay, $2,265—every check and every promise as good as gold. This was supplemented that evening by a fifty-dollar contribution by a brother who was not present at the morning service, making the contribution for that day $2,315.

What do you think of that as a spontaneous, almost instantaneous, contribution by a congregation of the Lord's poor numbering less than forty, not one of whom, I think, owns even a home free from debt? As we already had to the credit of the building fund $350, we now have, all told, nearly $2,700 toward the site and building by the Golden Gate.

We are not going to ask you to give the balance needed, or any part of it. But, if you wish to have part and lot in that "church of Christ by the Golden Gate," we shall be very glad indeed to receive your contribution, of course—indeed and in truth, we shall need it—but the "church of Christ by the Golden Gate" is not to be built by begging. We know not what the site or the building may cost; but, "the Lord willing," the site shall be secured and paid for, and the building shall be built, at as early a date as practicable—not in the far-away future.

S. H. Hall.

BY T. B. LARIMORE.

From the Gospel Advocate of August 5 I have just now learned that our beloved brother, S. H. Hall, long of Atlanta, Ga., is to reach Los Angeles in a few days, to spend a year there; hence I hasten to assure him that, so far as the church of Christ is concerned, the door of the Bay Cities is wide open to him, and he will find no latch on it. By the "Bay Cities" I mean the cities on San Francisco Bay—San Francisco, Alameda, Oakland, Berkeley, and Richmond—with an aggregate population of approximately one million. I do not claim to be the Bishop of the Bay Cities, but I am doing the work of a bishop to the best of my ability.

Brother Hall could not have found a better place for a home for himself and loved ones, I am sure, than Los Angeles. It is true that Los Angeles is slightly shaky sometimes, but the same is true of the entire California Coast. Serious damage is rarely done by these occasional quakes and shakes, however, and the City of the Angele continues to grow and grow and grow, despite them.

The church of Christ there is decidedly, numerically and financially, the strongest on the Pacific Coast, I think; and better people are few and far between.

Brother Hall has wrought wonders in Atlanta, and I believe he will accomplish greater things in the wonderful California city that waits to warmly welcome him and his. May the highest hopes and happiest anticipations of all concerned be more than fully realized.

New Dormitory for Women.

BY J. C. M'Q.

I am glad to announce that the new dormitory for young ladies at David Lipscomb College is now practically complete, excepting the furnishings. While we are improving, it is necessary to make other improvements in the way of a community dining room and repairs on the boys' dormitory; so we are yet needing ten thousand dollars to furnish the girls' dormitory and make the repairs. Our readers have been so generous and have responded so cheerfully to all calls that we are loath to make this call; but all know that it is harder to raise the last ten thousand dollars than the forty thousand dollars that has already been raised. Everthing is so high that the improvements have cost us more than the trustees originally planned. While the building has been erected at a much lower price than building can now be done, yet the cost has been very great; but all are very much gratified with the work that has been done and with the character of building that has been erected. The prospects for next year are flattering. Many young ladies and young gentlemen have already reserved rooms and made arrangements for entering during the latter part of September, when the school opens. president and all connected with the school promise to give a faithful administration and to conduct the institution in harmony with the plan of the founder, David Lipscomb. It is certainly worth something to Christians to have their children taught by men who are Christians and who love the gospel in its simplicity and are determined to give their lives to the propagation of a pure gospel. This is doubly true when we remember that so many institutions are now teaching skepticism and that many of their graduates come out complete infidels, with their faith in the Bible utterly destroyed. It is the wish of all connected with the institution that Bible teaching be made prominent and that people be encouraged to follow and obey it, The management is determined not to know anything but Christ, and him crucified, when it comes to teaching the plan of salvation. While thus remaining true to the Bible, they also desire to make progress in teaching mathematics, phllosophy, and all the branches connected with a university education. The Bible is the book of all books, and should not be neglected in any institution of learning No man is truly educated who is ignorant of its sacred teachings. I would encourage all men who would be good bookkeepers, good farmers, good business men, good physicians, or good in any calling of life, to study, know, and love the Bible. It is the book that teaches us whence we came, what we are, and whither we go; it is the book that teaches us how to live, and, in teaching us how to live, teaches us how to die triumphantly; it is the one book that illuminates eternity past and eternity future; it is the one book that lights and guides us through this life to the eternal city of God, where all sorrow shall be unknown and where tears shall be wiped away forever,

I cannot think for one moment that all our readers are not interested in building up just such an institution. We should not expect to succeed in doing this work without great effort and without meeting with adverse criticism and without passing through trials and tribulations. No man ever does anything worth while without some little souls raising objection and putting all obstacles possible in the way. Our blessed Savior did not travel a road paved with roses and flowers; he met the greatest opposition, conquered it, and finally triumphed gloriously.

There are numbers of people who read the Gospel Advocate who could easily give one thousand dollars to this institution and be benefited by the gift; there are others who could give five hundred dollars and bring themselves nearer heaven; there are still others who could give one hundred dollars or fifty dollars, and so on down to the smallest gift, and in so doing enjoy the smiles and approbation of our Heavenly Father. I know that men are not perverse and wicked because they do not give to this institution, and I would not intimate such a thing; but I do say that the closer to God we live, the more will we delight to do such work as we are encouraging all our readers to do. It does seem that we might raise this amount immediately and thus announce that the institution is out of debt. Why not give the new management an institution free of debt, so that they may develop it and go forward in doing a great work? If we start the men handicapped and embarrassed by a debt, such impediments will greatly hinder the progress and development of the Institution. Our president, dean, and their assistant teachers should be left free to do their very best in making the institution just what it should be. When we see how readily men have contributed large sums of money to other works. how these sums have run into the millions, it does seem that without any effort we might now raise the small sum of ten thousand dollars. It is not my wish to keep this before the readers of the Gospel Advocate. We appeal to the noblest impulses of every reader; we appeal to every man who is interested in teaching the truth and to every one who is interested in making the world better and bringing about an education in the word of God to respond at once to this appeal for help. All who are interested in such work and who bid us Godspeed in our efforts will please remit at once sums, large or small, to A. B. Lipscomb, President, David Lipscomb College, Nashville, Tenn.

David Lipscomb College Notes.

BY A. B. D.

Prof. S. P. Pittman is in a meeting at Monticello, Ky.

E. P. Watson extends best wishes for the College. We appreciate his words: "May God bless you in the work."

E. L. Cambron, of Wartrace, Tenn,, will make a special effort to secure the support of a poor boy who is anxious to secure an education.

Prof. W. Claude Hall is preaching at Dorris' Chapel, west of Trenton, Tenn. He has sent us the names of several prospective students.

One of our efficient teachers writes: "I enjoy the 'David Lipscomb College Notes,' and read them as often as I get the Gospel Advocate."

Prof. Charles R. Brewer is in a fine meeting at Morrison, Tenn. This is the home of Clarence Darnell, one of our students, who expects to return this fall.

S. E. Templeton has the interests of the College at heart. He has sent us the names of several prospective students. Brother Templeton is conducting a meeting at Lyerly, Ga.

In a letter to one of her teachers, Miss Kathleen Greer, of Pikeville, Tenn., reports herself as being busy "pealing peaches, preserving apples, pears, and grapes, and acting as general housekeeper." In other words, Miss Kathleen is taking a summer course in real, old-fashioned "domestic science." We are glad to have this busy young lady enrolled for the fall term.

From Morgan H. Carter, 105 West Sixty-fourth Street, New York, August 17: "The 'David Lipscomb College Notes' are interesting and helpful, I believe they will prove beneficial to the readers and will increase the interest in that noble institution. Teachers are the chief and foremost factors in any educational institution. I hope those whom you have selected will by their life and message point the boys and girls who come to Christ Jesus as the one and only perfect example of God's ideal. We should all assist by prayer and enthusiastic cooperation in making this the banner year. I note with thanksgiving that four splendid young people in whom I am deeply interested and for whom I am praying have registered. I hope they will make excellent students.'

RELIEF FUND

"Whose stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry, but shall not be heard."

"A Friend," Oakman, Ala. Mary W., Roe, and Annie Hiler, Frio Town, Texas ... Maggie Young, Moulton, Ala. Mr. and Mrs. James F. Cox, Nashville, Tenn. 5.00

We are printing this week a letter of appreciation from Walter A. Smith, State Director for Tennessee for Near East Rellef:

Dear Mr. Lipscomb: I have just returned from a conference of State directors and national leaders, where I was able to lay the report for Near East Relief from our State with pride beside the work of other commonwealths during the past year. In this effor In this effort to relieve suffering

I wish very much you could have heard from some of our returned personnel the life-saving message made possible through the united efforts of the American people.

Our 229 Near East Relief orphanages, housing 54,600 orphans and aiding over 56,039 others; our 63 hospitals and 128 clinics; and our 11 homes, sheltering and protecting girls, rescued from Moslem harems, bear eloquent tribute to the work that you have done.

Sincerely yours,
WALTER A. SMITH, State Director.

In sending contributions, be sure and state whether they are intended for the Home Orphans' Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Fund, or the Poland Fund. I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for orphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb, who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Minor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney-one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Current Thought

Winning Souls Is a Costly Business.

A metropolitan editor compared the number of converts in a "Billy" Sunday meeting with the number of dollars received by the evangelist, and wrote a facetious editorial on the high cost of saving sinners.

Winning souls, building the church, advancing the kingdom—all this costs money. Somebody has to pay, in dollars and cents. But money is the smallest item of expense. A group of Galilean women, in self-denial, supplied funds for Jesus and his apostles; but in this immortal company were a few mothers who had given their sons to the great adventure. Philippi sent once and again to Paul's need; but who will say that money represented all, or the major part, of what Paul's ministry cost that distinguished church.

Christian evangelism is a costly enterprise. A season of soul winning in a local congregation is expensive, but the high cost is a matter of life, not dollars. The results depend upon the investment.

We glibly talk of "winning souls for Jesus." The speech is as sounding brass or a clanging cymbal, unless we are willing to pay the price.

Church members are accustomed to look upon the undertaking as merely the setting apart of a special period wherein the preacher will deliver a series of sermons, when good music will be provided, and when the brethren will drop in occasionally upon the services and pay the bills.

No such deep indifference will count with God or man. All this easy luxury of faith, all this religious softness, may be gathered up from the four corners of the globe, and there will not be found within it sufficient grace or truth or power to turn a single wayward man back to the foundations of salvation.

No, brethren, if we bring men into captivity to Jesus, the crucified, we must pay the price, and the currency is the hearts of consecrated Christians, and the superscription is ad tincturam—dyed in the blood.

Prayer, knowledge of God's word, direct personal effort, the devotion of time and energy, taking much pains, seeking, spending one's self—saving the lost involves nothing less. What true soul winner does not go after that which is lost "until he find it?"—Christian Standard.

Dollars are not to be put in the balance against souls. No man can estimate the value of one soul. This is evident to any one, especially if that soul be one's own soul or the soul of one's son or daughter. If a man can just be sure that he has really been instrumental in the salvation of one soul, he should comfort himself with the thought that his life has been a success and not a failure. Of course, no man can definitely know just the extent of his influence and work for Christ; but every one does know that he should work cheerfully, vigorously, and uncomplainingly for the winning of souls to Jesus Christ. The good work that a man does lives after him; God in his mercy cuts off the evil; so let us sow the good seed of the kingdom, patiently waiting for God to give the harvest.

0 0 0

A New Call to Arms.

Here in America there seems to be a disposition in many quarters to let the war question drop with a provision of some kind for the soldiers, both those hart and unhurt. There is a curious cry to get back to the conditions that existed before the war, as if such a thing were possible. The lessons of the war are being forgotten and few leaders seem dead in carnest to prevent such a catastrophe. In England it is far different, especially with the church leaders. Dr. W. F. Adeney, who is principal of Mansfield College, has issued a "call to arms" in an effort to enlist "a million recruits in an army of peace for its defense and advance." He urges that instant steps be taken by the churches to enroll this number, or a much larger one, from their own ranks, to insist upon the ideals of the League of Nations being carried out.

This, says The Christian, London, is necessary to organize the popular feeling upon the matter. The people have been aroused by an utterance of Sir Henry Wilson on "the need of preparing for other wars." The same paper says that the "present Minister of War continues to rattle his sword."

Against this spirit Dr. Adeney would array the sentiment of the Christian people of England.

The churches of the United States also need to take steps to arouse the people against the war spirit. No task of the present hour is more urgent or more challenging. And when it is undertaken in earnest and aggressively, it will be found that many in this land of peace have been poisoned by the virus of the war spirit. We agree with the London Christian in its further statement that this is a people's question, and not one for professional politicians. It is the people who, every time, are wounded by wars. Are they to have no voice in declaring peace, or must they be forever bound to the chariot wheels of militarist diplomats?

Why should not the churches on this side of the ocean issue a call for an army of peace to fight against the recurrence of war and join hands with our brethren beyond the sea for the prosecution of this preëminently Christian war against war? We were glad to march with England against an autocracy that threatened the world. It would be equally sublime and commanding to join in a peace army which would so direct, educate, and civilize mankind that war would be an impossibility because of the high state of development reached by the people.—Christian-Evangelist.

Now is the time to educate the world against war and for a righteous peace. People are seeing the terrible influences and evils that follow war. The militarism of the hour is wrong and should be discouraged. Christians should be active in teaching the whole truth on the subject of war. Is it possible that people who want peace and pray for peace are to have no voice or influence whatever in bringing about peace? Are we to be dominated and controlled by those who viciously bring on wars? Every Christian must war a good warfare against carnal wars. Christians must not yield acquiescence in the evils of the hour: they must not yield acquiescence to the modern dance or modern dance hall. They must condemn the liberty now practiced among the sexes, which approaches a license. Christians should stand firm against the vices that are now sweeping over our country. Every father and every mother should arm himself or herself to make a valiant fight for purity, honor, and integrity. Christian parents must stay the tide of immorality that is now sweeping over the country; for, if not, marriage will be destroyed and there will soon be no more peaceful and happy homes. Let every Christian war a good warfare against all manner of evil. Christian fathers and mothers should be far more interested in their sons and daughters being men and women of integrity and honor rather than men and women of social influence and financial success. Too many fathers place too high an estimate upon money and social position and too low an estimate on purity and integrity.

0 0 0

Be of good cheer, brave spirit; steadfastly serve that low whisper thou hast served; for know, God hath a select family of sons now scattered wide through earth, and each alone, who are thy spiritual kindred, and each one by constant service to that inward law is weaving the sublime proportions of a true monarch's soul. Beauty and strength, the riches of a spotless memory, the eloquence of truth, the wisdom got by searching of a clear and loving eye that seeth as God seeth—these are their gifts, and Time, who keeps God's word, brings on the day to seal the marriage of these minds with thine, thine everlasting lovers. Ye shall be the salt of all the elements, world of the world.— Emerson.

Home Reading

Planting a Tea Set.

More than fifty years ago a small girl lived on a large farm in the State of Michigan. Her only dishes were the broken parts of a little china tea set. The sugar bowl had lost its cover, the teapot spout had been broken off, and the cream pitcher had no handle. The teacup was very friendly with the cream pitcher, for it, too, was without a handle; and the small girl played there were two saucers, as one was in two parts. These tiny dishes were decorated with very pink flowers and delicate sprays of green leaves. Every little piece was well washed and dried whenever the small girl and her smaller doll had a tea party.

One day when the farmer was planting acres of potatoes, the small girl watched the careful cutting of the seed potatoes before they were put in the ground.

Feeling sure that she had mastered the lesson about potato eyes and the fall crop, she hurried to look at the parts of her beloved tea set. She had a plot of her very own in the flower garden, and for once she was glad that her dishes were already broken, for she decided to plant them. Every part was put into its little hole, and covered with a shapely hill of good earth. Her garden was hoed, weeded, and watered with diligence; and when others were digging potatoes, she dug for tea sets. She was a brave child; and when she found only the pieces she had planted, she washed and dried them, saying to herself, "Good thing the seeds didn't rot;" and nobody knew of her thwarted attempt to grow the tea sets until she was a grown woman, with a little boy who loved to hear her tell about the long ago when she was a little girl. Then one day she told him the secret.

Not long afterwards she had a birthday, and one of her presents was a lovely little tea set with pink flowers and sprays of green leaves. The little boy had saved his pennles until he had enough to buy the gift of which nobody but his mamma guessed the secret when he said that it was for the little girl whose tea set never grew. She took her boy in her arms and laughingly said: "But it has grown, it has grown, my precious boy; and it is more beautiful to me than any tea set ever made."—Sara E. Wiltse.

0 0 0

Righteous Wrath.

There are many kinds of hate, as many kinds of fire; And some are fierce and fatal with murderous desire; And some are mean and craven, revengeful, selfish, low— They hurt the man that holds them more than they hurt his foe.

And yet there is a hatred that purifies the heart, The anger of the better against the baser part, Against the false and wicked, against the tyrant's sword. Against the enemies of Love, and all that hate the Lord.

O cleansing indignation, O flame of righteous wrath, Give me a soul to see Thee and follow in thy path! Save me from selfish virtue, arm me for fearless fight, And give me strength to carry on, a soldier of the right!

—Henry Van Dyke.

0 0 0

All sin is the effect of unbelief. Every act of departure from the Lord is the fruit of it, let it be mental or let it be open and manifest. Backsliders need great encouragement, even from the Lord himself, to return to him. He is pleased to give it to them. The interest the Lord God hath in his people can never be broken in upon, neither can their interest in him ever be impaired or cease. It is always the same on both sides. The intercourse between the Lord and his people may be interrupted, but God is immutable in his love and mercy.—S. E. Pierce.

Who Is My Neighbor?

Alas, we ordinary Christians are a very poor lot, indeed! We have preached Christ for centuries—

> Until at last men learn to scoff, So few seem any better off.

And some may, like the sneering lawyer, interposing an excuse, ask: "Who is my neighbor?" The answer is the same as that which Christ gave in the parable of the good Samaritan All men are our neighbors; all who sin, all who suffer, all who lie murdered like Abel, sick and wounded like the poor traveler-where they have been left by the world's thieves and murderers, where they lie neglected by the frosty-hearted priest and the unscrupulously sacrificing Levite on the hot and dusty wayside of the world. Yes, all men are our neighbors; and when we injure them by lies which cut like a sharp razor, by sneers, by innuendoes, by intrigues, by slander and calumny, by hatred, malice, and all uncharitableness, by want of thought or by want of heart, by the lust of gain, by neglect, by absorbing selfishness, we are inheritors of the spirit of the first murder,-Farrar. 0 0 0

Short Sermons.

Christian experience and Christian doctrine lie, as it were, in a sort of divine circle; not the flat and victous circle of continuous failure and repentance—there are too many of us that live in such a circle as this, passing from failure to repentance, from repentance to resolution, and from resolution to failure again, and so round and round and round in an everlasting routine of disappointment and spiritual discomfiture—not in such a circle as this, but in God's own grand spiral, a wondrous circle in which, as with an eagle's flight, we rise higher and higher toward the Sun of righteousness. He is himself the center of our orbit, but the measure of our revolution is from his cross to his open grave, and from his open grave back to his cross again.—W. Hay Aitkin.

0 0 0

We should not be discouraged if our thoughts do now and then go wandering in one direction and another, instead of staying where we want them. God, who made us, knows all about that difficulty. He knows that we need to train ourselves, with his help. He is endlessly ready to pardon us, when our thoughts do stray away to other things, provided we sincerely try (and continue trying) to keep them where they belong, and to call them back whenever they have wandered.—Exchange.

0 0 0

Spiritual assurance is an achievement, rather than a gift. Spiritual verities are no exception to the rule that everything has its purchase price. No one need expect the fruits of the Spirit, "love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control," to ripen in the garden of his soul without patient propagation. The infinite Spirit must daily energize our spirits, renewing our love for God and men.—Selected.

0 0 0

Did you tackle that trouble that came your way
With a resolute heart and cheerful?
Or hide your face from the light of day
With a craven soul and fearful?
O, a trouble's a ton, or a trouble's an ounce,
Or a trouble is what you make it;
And it isn't the fact that you're hurt that counts,
But only how did you take it? —Edmund Vance Cook.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT

Conducted by C. E. WOOLDRIDGE

350 Missouri Avenue

Fort Worth, Texas

Church Purity.

BY CLED E. WALLACE.

"For I am jealous over you with a godly jealousy: for I espoused you to one husband, that I might present you as a pure virgin to Christ." (2 Cor. 11: 2.)

The New Testament church was catholic in that it included all the redeemed. The enemies of God among both Jews and Gentiles were required to accept Christ "that he might create in himself of the two one new man, so makmight create in nimself of the two one new man, so making peace; and might reconcile them both in one body unto God through the cross, having slain the enmity thereby. (Eph. 2: 15, 16.) Some of these were formerly fornicators, idolaters, adulterers, effeminate, thieves, covetous, drunkards, revilers, extortioners; but as members of the New Testament church they are washed, sanctified, and "justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and in the Spirit of our God." (See 1 Cor. 6: 9-11.) The peremptory demand of Christlanity was that they put away "the old man" and put on "the new man." The "old man" was darkness and sin and a manner of life "corrupt after the lusts of deceit." The "new man" is "in righteousness and holiness of truth." (See Eph. 4:

But Paul exercised a "godly jealousy" over the church, lest the "minds" of some of the redeemed "should be corrupted from the simplicity and purity that is toward Christ." (2 Cor. 11: 3.) The danger is always imminent that some who have put away the old man and put on the new may again reverse themselves-put off the new and again clothe themselves in the rags of the old. who wear the old and have never clothed themselves in the new are unworthy of membership in a New Testament church, being among the unsaved, then it follows that those who lay aside the new and clothe themselves again in the old garments of sin and rebellion against God's law are likewise unworthy of membership in a New Testament church, being among the unsaved.

The names of God's faithful "are written in heaven." (Luke 10: 20; Rev. 20: 15.) The Scriptures clearly teach that God will blot names from his "book" because of unfaithfulness and sin. (Ex. 32: 32, 33.) The overseers of the churches are charged of God to watch in behalf of the souls of the disciples under their care, to teach and admonish them, and to protect them from false teachers. They should see to it that the church is kept pure. If a man's name is not on God's book, he is unworthy of fellow-ship in a New Testament church; his name should not be found on the local church register. If his name is both on God's book and the local register and he conducts himself in such a manner that God blots the name from his book up in heaven, the name should be scratched off the local church register. Why not? No one should have fellowship in a church of Christ whom God would be unwilling to receive up in heaven. "Or know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived: nei-ther fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with men, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God." Neither should they be fellowshiped by congregations of disciples. Nothing unclean can enter into the city of God and should not be allowed to remain in the church of God. The church should earnestly endeavor to bring wayward members to repentance. If all efforts fail, withdrawal of fellowship is a sacred duty. "Put away the wicked man from among yourselves." (1 Cor. 5: 13.)

$ $

Texas Notes.

Austin, August 17.—I closed a meeting this week at Lake Victor, with eleven added. Ten were baptized. I begin next at Frederick, Okla.-W. E. Morgan.

Jacksonville, August 17 .- The meeting at Myrtle Spring, conducted by Brother John W. Hedge and the writer, closed last night. Five were baptized and one was restored. I last night. Five were baptized and one was restored. I go next to Alabama for meetings; Brother Hedge, to Oklahoma.-D. C. Williams.

Kerrville, August 13.-I held a few-nights' meeting near Cooper, with one restored. I have just closed a meeting at Barksdale, with fifty-one added-forty-two baptized. I am at Kerrville to assist in a mission meeting, and hope to get a church planted here. Brother Elvin Bost is here to help. We expect others to assist.—T. H. Etheridge.

Venus, August 17.-Since July 1 I have held meetings as follows: At Glen Rose, with one baptism; Burleson, one baptism; Plainview Church, in Erath County, four baptisms. I am now at a point near Venus. My work is under the Cleburne church as county missionary. There is much more to do than I will ever get done,—C. A. Buchanan.

Granbury, August 18.-I have just closed a fine meeting at Cottonwood, with large crowds and fine interest. Two were reclaimed and eighteen were baptized. I have been preaching for this church more than eight years, and they are certainly fine. I am to begin a meeting at Neri to-night, and hope for a good one. I am engaged till October 1, and am open for local work after that time, as I do not aim to stay at Ben Franklin the coming winter. So if any one should desire my presence and influence for a year or so, just address me at Ben Franklin, Texas, and write to the elders there for reference.-C. H. Smithson.

Sunset, August 15 .- Brother McDonald, from Oklahoma, held a ten-days' meeting at this place, beginning on Friday night before the first Lord's day in August. There were nine additions. Brother McDonald is a good preacher. It seems that some years people are less inclined to receive the truth than others. A few scattered brethren got a good young preacher to preach ten days at Park Springs, in Wise County. The truth was well presented and good was done, but no additions. Eternity alone will reveal the good the Gospel Advocate has done. Congregations do not die down and quit meeting on Lord's day where the members take it. When I was young, Brother Tolbert Fanning was my ideal of a great preacher. Now I hear so many good ones, I hardly know which is best.—M, E. Burnett.

Fort Worth, August 17.-In September, 1913, I began work with the Glenwood congregation, this city. seven years there have been four hundred and twenty-five added to the congregation from all sources; and we grown from a tabernacle to a nice brick-veneered building, clear of debt. I have never had a more pleasant work anywhere since I have been preaching. There have never been any troubles to mar the beauty of the work at any time. The elders have always been behind me in all I did, with their prayerful support, and this is promised on indefinitely. But several of our best leaders who formerly car-ried on the work when I was away have gone out into the field as preachers, while others have gone to carry on the work of a new congregation which we established this spring at Highland Park; so the elders think it advisable to have a preacher all the time and have offered me a substantial support to continue the work. But my calls for meetings are so many and the opportunities so great to accomplish good in this open field that I cannot con-scientiously withdraw myself from this class of work to devote all my time to any one congregation; so I have given up my regular work with the Glenwood Church, though I will do all I can for its growth and will lend my support in every way to any good man whom we may secure to take up this work. Brother Austin Taylor and I have arranged the greater part of next year together and shall spend some time this winter in the coast country in We have labored together for the past five meetings. years and have baptized about one thousand believers, besides my work in Fort Worth.-Horace W. Busby.

0 0 0 Oklahoma Notes.

Checotah, August 17.—I have just closed a splendid meeting at Webber Falls, with one added by confession and baptism. I shall begin at Fame to-morrow night.— Charles L. Speir.

Nida, August 16.-I closed my fourth annual meeting at this place last night. There were thirteen additions. promised to return for a meeting in 1921. I am leaving here this morning for my next meeting at Willow, where we hope to have a good series of services.- J. A. Cullum, Muskogee, August 16.—The work with the East Okmul-gee Avenue congregation is going forward in a satisfactory manner. Brother Foster preached at both services yester-day. One made the good confession—a sweet little girl who has had the training of a Christian mother. tized her before the evening service. We are expecting a great meeting, beginning on September 5, to be conducted by Brother J. W. Brents, of Lorenzo, Texas. Brother Foster will leave this week for New Mexico, where he goes to conduct some meetings.—T. S. Bain.

ALL RUN DOWN AND WORN OUT

Because you have not thoroughly purified your blood, but have allowed to remain in it the accumulations of waste matter that cause weakness, loss of appetite, dull headache, broken sleep, backache, eruptions and humors and other troubles.

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla, the medicine that renovates, strengthens, tones—it will build you up, make you feel better all over.

Hood's Pills help as a stomachtoning, digestive cathartic.

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rheumatism. Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

To Reduce Fever Relieve Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

Safety Spitone First

Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely safe to use as it does not depress the heart even in extreme cases of debžity or weak-heart, neurasthenia or anaemia. Manufactured by a formula in use by leading physicians renerally. Is parts pure Aspirin, I part pure Caffeine, 4 parts exciplent, in convenient tablet form. 35c per package at your druggists or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

"Do You Know?"

BY NELLIE STRAITON.

Some interesting facts are given in the following questions clipped from the Fort Worth (Texas) Tribune:

Do you know that one out of every four men in the world is born in China and a heathen?

Do you know that India with its millions is divided between eight non-Christian religions, one hundred and forty languages, and two thousand castes, but yet is crying for the gospel of Christ?

Do you know that there are territories in South America bigger than Texas without a single missionary, school, or Christian doctor?

Do you know that more money is spent on secular education in New York City each year than for Christian purposes in all the twenty South American countries?

Do you know that only one out of five people in Mexico can read the Bible?

Do you know that there are more than one hundred and eleven million Mohammedans in the world?

I wish to ask the question: Do you know that out of the sixty million people in Japan about forty million have never even heard of Christ, and that we have less than fifteen American missionaries in that great country, and that even these few are hampered because of lack of funds?

One more question: Do you know that a regular contribution from you will help remedy at least one of these conditions?

I will be glad to forward it for you. Address Miss Nellie Straiton, 1030 South Lake Street, Fort Worth, Texas.

What Others Say.

BY THOMAS H. BURTON.

Our building fund continues to grow. I here give what some are saying concerning the conditions and work in this State.

A brother writes from Tennessee: "I feel a little better over that work than any other that I am having fellowship in."

"It seems to me that you have done well to raise the amount you have and pay for the lot, too. I frust nothing will hinder you from finishing the building in the near future. Inclosed you will find check for $—— to be applied on the church fund." This brother lives in North Carolina and is sending about twenty dollars per month to this fund. He has visited us and sees things as they really are.

A sister writes from Tennessee: "I am sending $—— for building fund. I am interested in our first meetinghouse in that dear old State.

I was born there sixty-four years ago, left there at the age of eleven, and obeyed the gospel in 1885."

A brother writes from Oklahoma: "I am a native of the county in which you are. I was born there eighty years ago. I left there in 1868 and came to Texas, where I first heard the gospel and obeyed it in 1886. I knew nothing of the church of Christ there. May God bless you in your noble efforts for the cause of Christ in that needy and 'vain gospel' State."

Another sister writes from Tennessee: "I think we should not let this opportunity pass-no, indeed not; for we must let our lights so shine before the world, that others may see our good works; and it would not have a good impression on the people of the world if we could not pay for a house in which to worship. And when our Heavenly Father blesses us with health and strength and seasons to make a good crop, we should be very thankful, and show our thankfulness by giving a part of our money to spread the gospel over the world. I know we need a house there, and believe the brotherhood will answer this worthy call. What I have, the Lord gave me, and I will give a part of it to help carry the gospel to the world." This came from a widow, and she has a little tot to care for; and in order to give something to the cause which means so much to her, and to have a living, she has cultivated three and one-half acres of cotton. Brother, what do you think about that? Suppose every member of the church had a mind to do as expressed in this poor woman's letter, what could we not do in spreading the glorious gospel over

A brother in Alabama writes: "I am glad to learn that you are at work in the much-neglected State of South Carolina. That is my home, although I have been away for twenty years. May God bless you in your efforts to build up the cause of Christ in South Carolina."

A Texas sister writes: "To sow the seed of the kingdom in the quickest way should be our aim. Please find draft for $ — inclosed."

Brethren, now is the time to do this work; "for the night cometh, when no man can work." Send a contribution to-day to help build our first house in this State. We must build before cold weather, the Lord willing. What do you say?

I slept, and dreamed that life was Beauty;

-E. S. Hooper.

I woke, and found that life was Duty. Was thy dream then a shadowy lie? Toil on, sad heart, courageously, And thou shalt find the dream to be A noonday light and truth to thee.

The next time you buy calomel ask for

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are nausealess, safe and sure.

Medicinal virtues retained and improved. Sold only in sealed packages. Price 35c.

......

"Diamond Dyes" Take No Other

Don't Spoil or Streak Material in a Poor Dye

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" con-Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman car diamond-dye a new rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggist has color card

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Tuscumbia, August 18.-The meeting at Tuscumbia closed at the water on Sunday night. There were thirtyone additions-twenty-eight by baptism, two by restoration, and one by membership. Brother G. A. Dunn was with us from Wednesday, August 4, till Saturday night of the following week. He did some excellent work. In spite of the rain, the house was well filled.—H. M. Phillips.

Kennedy, August 17.—Our six-days' meeting with the church of Christ at Liberty, which resulted in fourteen baptisms, closed last Friday at the water's edge. Brother Gus Nichols did the preaching. We had two services each day, with dinner on the ground. Good crowds attended. Every one seemed to rejoice at the success. The church was strengthened in other ways.—C. C. Tomlin.

Haleyville, August 17.—Last Satur-day I closed an eleven-days' meeting at Tuscumbia, with thirty additions-twenty-seven baptisms. Though there was much rain, the crowds were good: at times the house did not seat them, even with extra chairs and some sitting on the rostrum steps. About ten years ago, at the request of some sisters, I started this work, and held their first meeting in the courthouse, and helped them to buy a lot, and later held the first meeting in their rew brick house. Brother H. M. Phillips greatly helps them now.-G. A. Dunn.

G. A. Dunn.

Hanceville, August 17—Beginning the first Lord's day in August, Brother J. H. Horton conducted a very successful meeting for the church of Christ at Hanceville. Eight were baptized into Christ, and three others who were satisfied with their baptism "came out from among them" and declared that they were satisfied with that "name which is above every that "name which is above every name." Brother Horton is an excellent man and a good preacher. After the meeting closed, Brother Horton went to Albany; Brother Creel went to South Alabama to hold a series of meetings; and I went to Brushy Creek, in this county, where I preached ten discourses and baptized three noble souls into the one body. I found the church there in bad condition, not meeting on the first day of the week, and some of them showing strong symptoms of sectism. But they now desire to do the Lord's will and meet on the Lord's day around his table. Much of my preaching was along the line of Christian duty, which seems to be a neglected subject with many .- Pride E, Hinton.

Bridgeport, August 16.—Since my last report I have been in a number of meetings. On April 18 I began a meeting at Delta, Col. Delta is a mis-sion point in the Southwestern part of the State. This meeting continued a few days over three weeks and re-sulted in eighteen additions to the congregation. Among this number were a number of "digressives." I am to return to Delta for another meeting in November. On May 16 I began a three-weeks' meeting at Leb-anon, Col., another mission point. One was baptized and one came from the "digressives." On June 6 1 began a tent meeting at Dolores, Col. There was one baptism and a small congregation was organized. I also preached at Olathe, Col., seven nights, begin-ning on June 24. From Olathe I went to Walnut Grove, Texas, for a meeting that I had promised in 1919. meeting resulted in two additions to the church. From Walnut Grove I went to Jackson, Texas, where we had two baptisms. From Jackson I went to Sand Flat, Texas, where six were added to the church. I am now in Bridgeport, Ala., with my mother. I go from here to Florala, Ala., for a mission meeting. The Lord willing, I will be in Olathe, Col., September 5, to take up the work once more in Southwestern Colorado. Brethren, pray for us, and do not forget the Colorado field.—Willis G. Jernigan.

Arkansas.

England, August 16.-I am in a good tent meeting in Jefferson County, near England. I have been here one week, with large audiences at every service. I have baptized twenty-eight. and three have confessed their wrongs. R. E. L. Taylor.

Tupelo, August 17.—I closed the meeting at Step Rock last night. There were three baptisms. Despite the threatening weather, we had good at-tendance. The brethren are planning to build a meetinghouse. My next meeting will begin next Saturday, near Auvergne,-L. R. Wilson.

Fort Smith, August 16.—Large crowds were present at both services at the Park Hill Church yesterday, including many visitors, who are always welcome to come among us. It seems that each service is enjoyed more than the preceding one, and the atmosphere of love and kindness which is always prevalent is evidence that we love each other with a pure heart fer vently.-Leland H. Knight.

Hobart, August 15.—The meeting at Ravia, Okla., closed out too soon, but I had to meet my promise to the church here. I had agreed to preach church here. I had agreed to preach on Monday night, but there came up a rain—or, rather, a blowout—and I did not breach. I did not like to close the meeting, as so many were becoming interested. I began a meeting here last night, and hope to do good here. I go to Blaine next.—D. S. Ligon. Ligon.

Florida.

Bell, August 15.-My meeting at Bell enters the second week, with two baptized and good interest.-John

Kentucky.

Chaplin, August 14.—The meeting at Fairview closed last night with thirteen baptisms, twenty-three additions from all sources. Brother J. P. Prevatt did the preaching. The next siege will be at Fairmount .- J. G. Malphurs.

Louisville, August 16.—Our meeting at Bohon closed last Friday evening. Six were baptized and one took membership. Of these, three were Baptists and one a Methodist. Every night we had good crowds and exceptionally good order. I go next to Swallowfield, near Frankfort.-R. A. Craig.

Persimon, August 14.—Brother E A Lowrey is conducting a meeting here now. He began last Lord's day. On account of so much rain, the attendance is only fairly good. There has been only one addition so far, but we expect great good to be accomplished in many ways. The meeting will in many ways. The meeting will likely continue till the fourth Lord's day.—Mrs. Gertrude Palmore.

Louisiana.

Vienna, August 17 .- On Saturday night before the first Lord's day in August I began a meeting about twelve miles northeast of Rayville, out in Boeuff River swamps. There were only two lady members at work there. A few had been baptized there, but were not at work. We labored for them until the third Lord's-day night, and, as a result, twelve were restored and nine were added by baptism. We appointed a committee to build a house of worship, and all of the mem-bers and many of the outsiders promised to assist in the work of building. I am going to try to be with them once a month and hold another meeting for them during Christmas week .- K. E.

Mississippi.

Dossville, August 16.—Brother H. C. Harris and I are in a good meeting at Nile. Eleven additions to date, and others almost persuaded. Nile is a mission point. We are having large crowds and good interest. I go next Saturday to Holly Ridge for a week's meeting. There are only two members there. Brother Harris goes next to Reform. If there are any Christians in Pine Bluff, Ark., they will please look up Mrs. Callie Wallace, 1807 West Tenth Street,—H. D. Jeffcoat.

Tennessee.

Petersburg, August 16 .- The meeting at New Hope, Ala., closed with two additions. Rain hindered much. I began a meeting at Friendship, in Lincoln County, yesterday. We had one addition.—R. N. Moody.

August 16.—The meeting here at Dorris Chapel is one week old, with two reclaimed. The crowds have been large both day and night, except two rainy nights. The meeting will two rainy nights. The meeting will continue for several days yet,—W. Claude Hall.

Fayetteville, August 18.—On the second Sunday in this month I began an eight-days' meeting at Garth, four miles from Paint Rock, Ala. Six were baptized, and we trust that other good was done. We had good crowds when the weather permitted. This was my fourth annual meeting there. I shall preach to-night at Petersburg, in this county, and begin to-morrow at Center Ridge.-E. Gaston Collins.

Fill Your Blood With Iron If You Want To Be Strong WITH PLENTY OF ENERGY AND POWER

Says Physician—Explains How Organic Iron Like Nuxated Iron Often Increases the Strength of Weak, Nervous, Run-down People In Two Weeks' Time.

You cannot expect to forge ahead in life with plenty of energy and power if your blood is thin and watery any more than you can hope to run an automobile on water instead of gasolene. It takes pure, red blood—rich in iron—to keep the human machine working right. Without iron your every action lacks power, your red blood corpuscles die by millions, the strength goes from your body and you drop among the weaklings and failures.

"But when such men and women supply the right kind of iron to their blood, a most surprising change often takes place," any Dr. John J. Van Horne, formerly Medical Inspector and Clinical Physician on the Board of Health of New York City. "The weak, colorless blood which had been moving sluggishly in the veins becomes rich and red and courses through the body, building healthy tissue, giving renewed force and increased strength. Without this rich, red blood with plenty of fron in it, there can be no physical perfection or force to carry on one's work. Yet to take the wrong kind of iron may prove worse than useless just as the wrong sort of food will often fail to give the proper nourishment. Organic iron—Nuxated Iron—by enriching the blood and body-builders, the best ton the ferenward force and red blood corpuscles. To supply the right kind of iron to their blood, a making blood examinations of their weak, an amenic, tun-down parients. Thousands of persons go on year after year suffering the iron deficiency and to help build strong, healthier men and women, better able physician of the best tonic and red blood builders would increased strength. Without this rich, red hold the proper nourishment. Organic iron—Nuxated Iron—by enriching the blood and proper nourishment. Organic iron was the work of the proper nourishment. Organic iron—was a the work of the proper nourishment. Organic iron was the work of the proper nourishment. Organic iron was the wor

Ferraline is a Natural Mineral, rich in Iron, Magnesium, Lithium and other health-giving minerals. It is made by the simple process of percolating distilled water thru Ferraline Mineral Earth, and it contains no drugs nor chemicals.

It has long been recognized as most effective in the treatment of Indigestion, Stomach Troubles and Rheumatism, and as a System-builder and Restorer it is of special value to those who suffer from Impoverished Blood.

Ferraline is sold by your druggist and endorsed by prominent ministers, business and pro-To secure an interesting booklet and the story of the "Sweetest thing without a Soul," write

"FERRALINE," Dept. 5. DEMOPOLIS, ALABAMA.

TERSMITHS

Sold for 50 years for Malaria and as a General Tonic. Helps build you up.

If Not Sold by Your Druggist, Write ARTHUR PETER & CO., Louisville, Ky.

HERE IS A DESK THAT Stays Rigid

because the frame is of extra heavy semi-steel and the wood work is solidly dove-tailed to it. The seats have noiseless hinges and cannot loosen, and are extra wide. The frame has no scroll work to catch dust and the high arch makes sweeping easy. The only desk made in the South. Send for our descriptive catalogue.

JOUTHERN DESK COMPANY. HICKORY. N. C.

DEPENDED UPON IT 20 YEARS

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Has Been This Woman's Safeguard All That Time.

Omaha, Neb.— "I have used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound forover twenty years for fe-male troubles and it has helped me very much. I have also used Lydia E. Pink-Sanative ham's Wash with good re-sults. I always have a bottle of Vegetable Compound in the house as it is a good nouse as it is a good remedy in time of need. You ean publish my testimole is perfectly true."—Mrs. J. O. ELMQUIST, 2424 S. 20th Street, Omaha, Nebraska Nebraska.

Women who suffer from those dis-tressing ills peculiar to their sex should be convinced by the many genuine and truthful testimonials we are constantly truthful testimonals we are constantly publishing in the newspapers of the ability of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to restore their health.

To know whether Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound will help you, try it! For advice write to Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co. (confidential), Lynn, Mass. Your letter will be opened, read and answered by a woman, and held in and answered by a woman, and held in strict confidence.

TETTER INE

Makes low necks and short sleeves possible. It clears the skin

50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

HANCOCK'S PILE REMEDY.

Three jars are guaranteed to cure the severest case of piles, or your money will be refunded. One jar often gives the desired results. For blind, bleeding, itching, pro-truding, or ulcerated piles. Price, 50 cents Jar. At your druggists's or by mail from HANCOCK CHEMICAL COMPANY,
Oxford, N. C.
Druggists, write for liberal proposition.

A Lesson on Worlds.

BY J. J. VANHOUTIN.

Sometimes the word "world" means the material universe; sometimes it means a dispensation; it is also used to denote the inhabitants of this material world here on this earth; and one time especially it means regular order or arrangement. Read Eph. 1: 4, 5, the first part of which reads: "According as he hath chosen us in him before the foundation of the world," Greenfield, in giving the meaning of that word "world," finally adds, "regular order or arrangement." Please try reading it that way: "According as he hath chosen us in him before the regular order or arrangement." That choosing was done by Jesus himself before his death and before he gave the commission which contains the regular order or arrangement by which persons are adopted into the family of God and become the children of God by adoption. The word "us" in verse 4 refers only to the apostles who were ordained into that office, rank, or position, which position was established when Jesus ordained the apostleship, the record of which is in John 15: 1-16. Then he adds: "Ye have not chosen me, but I have chosen you, and ordained you." Verse 16 shows plainly that the position of apostleship was then established. Paul was chosen to the same position which was established before the regular order or arrangement for obeying the gospel was given. After the establishment of the apostleship, Christ was finally crucified in the ending of the Jewish dispensation, age, or "world." Then, about fifty days after his resurrection, a new world, dispensation, or age, was founded at Jerusalem on the day of "Pentecost," at which time the regular order or arrangement for obedience to the gospel was established. There is too much mixing of the meaning of these worlds mentioned in the Bible, and some apply to themselves that which is only applicable to the apostles, and some people have no more regard for what the Scriptures teach than Diotrephes had for the apostle John; and it appears like many try to shield the world (the wicked people) from all responsibility. Here is the leading theme of the entire sectarian world given by a big union revivalist preacher here, October 13, 1913: "Sinners cannot be won to Christ by reading the Bible, for they cannot understand or interpret the hidden meaning it contains. The Bible is essentially the Christian's book, and can be understood only by Christians who have experienced the baptism of the Holy Chost. We must wait for the outpouring of the Holy Spirit in order to successfully cope with the I forces of sin and iniquity." According to this, who is to blame if the Holy Spirit is not poured out upon every unbelieving sinner? When did the Lord command the sinner to wait until he got ready to pour out his Spirit upon him? It appears to me that Jesus dld say something about a spirit that would follow the preached word. Please read Luke 8: 12. It explains what a spirit can do to prevent salvation. How much longer will the Lord bear with our nation, which is now accusing him of permitting all of the wickedness in the world because he does not pour out his Spirit and convert them? Such is the greatest iniquity of the world. One world perished at the time of the flood, and then the world in which we live was established; it is to be destroyed by fire and may become the lake of fire; but beyond this world will be to us what we now call "the unseen world," into which we go at death.

THE CRACK O' DOOM FOR NASTY CALOMEL

Folks Abandoning Old Drug for "Dodson's Liver Tone," Here in South.

Ugh! Calomel makes you sick. It's horrible! Take a dose of the dangerous drug tonight and tomorrow you lose a day.

Calomel is mercury! When it comes into contact with sour bile, it crashes into it, breaking it up. Then is when you the breaking it up. Then is when you have and cramping. If you are sluggish, if liver is torpid and bowels constipated or you have headache.

owers constructed or you have headache, dizziness, coated tongue, if breath is bad or stomach sour, just try a spoonful of harmless Dodson's Liver Tone tonight.

Here's my guarantee—Go to any drug store and get a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone for a few cents. Take a spoonful and if it doesn't straighten you right up and make you feel fine and vigorous, go back to the store and get your maney. back to the store and get your money. Dodson's Liver Tone is destroying the sale of calomel because it can not salivate or make you sick.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic

(Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Inflammation)

R

Oil Eucalyptus Globulus Oil Peppermint Oil Pinus Silvestris Oil Wintergreen Menthol Gum Camphor

Thoroughly mixed in proper ratio and sequence and at proper temperature, with refined Petrolatum base.

with refined Petrolatum base.

Eucapine Salve is rapidly becoming a household necessity. It is in constant use as a preventative of diseases of the air passages, and as a dependable curative agent in ordinary inflammatory conditions. Try it for nose sores, catarrh, catarrhal headaches, cuts, sores, burns, bruises. Splendid for sore feet. Will not blister. Full sized jar free to physicians with quantitative formula if desired. 50c the 2 oz. jar. Ask your druggist; or by mail from

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

A pleasant, easy way to make money—atilize an otherwise worthless part of yeur back yard and turn it into profit. Pigeons are essily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carneaux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right Write for our FREE bookiet, "Profits in Figeons No. 5." Carolina Pigeon Plans, Clinton, S. C.

Stop Itching

Skins with Tetterine

60c. at your druggist's or from SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

PELLAGRA

FREE Booklet explaining cause of this disease and how it can be treated successfully at home, Sent in plain, scaled envelope. Write for yours today. Dept. F-29. Dr. W. J. McGrary, Inc., Carbon Hill, Ala.

Among the Colored Folks

Cookeville, August 16 .- On July 27-30 I was with Brother T. H. Busby in a meeting at Silver Point. Seven made the good confession and were baptized into Christ. One was restored. The people said it was one of the best meetings they had witnessed for ten years. On the first Lord's day in August I began a meeting at Vervila. which closed on Friday night following, with one baptized and one restored. The interest was fine. Brother Busby spent three days with us in the meeting. On the second Lord's day I was at McMinnville, and will go there again to begin a meeting on the second Lord's day in September, the Lord willing. Immediately following this I spent two days with Brother Busby at Christiana. I am now at home, enjoying the privilege of hearing Brother H. H. Adamson, who is holding a meeting for the white church at Cookeville,-G. A. Johnson.

Christiana, August 9.-I closed a very interesting meeting at Henderson, Tenn., on August 4. Eighteen were added to the church and the brethren and sisters were much edified. This was my fourth-meeting for them, and I have promised to be with them next year. When I first went there, four years ago, there were but four colored members in that section, but now there are about one hundred and sixty. If we had not received the fellowship of the white brethren and sisters, we could not have accomplished such a great work. These white brethren and sisters have been faithful in attending the services, and many of them say they learned the truth through my preaching. While in Henderson I had the pleasure of meeting Brother N. B. Hardeman. He has never failed to do all he could to encourage us in the work. Yesterday I began my second meeting at a point about five miles from Christiana; and although it rained all day, the crowd was large, and two made the good confession. The brethren had borrowed a tent from Brother White, and we were nicely sheltered during the rain,-M. Keeble.

Little sins shut out the vision of heaven and of God. A tourist tells how in Scotland one day he raised his glass to get a better view of Ben Lomond, and to his surprise did not see the mountain at all, but only an expanse of green; a leaf on the branch of a tree was between his glass and the mountain. A little leaf shut out the great monarch of the hills.—Selected.

The Church of Christ in Tulare, Cal.

BY L. MEADE WILLIAMS.

We have purchased a frame school building and moved it on our lots, which we had purchased over one year ago. The deed to the lots contains all the necessary restrictive clauses. We have received on our building fund, outside our own congregation, only one hundred and seventy dollars. All donations have been acknowledged by individual letters. If any one should wish any further information concerning the work here. I refer you to L. D. Perkins, Armona, Cal.; W. H. Trice, Fresno, Cal.; E. M. Borden, 360 West Eleventh Street, Riverside, Cal.; T. B. Larimore, Berkley, Cal.; or C. A. Norred, Memphis, Tenn. These brethren can tell you the struggle we have made to establish the cause of Christ in this part of the great West. We are few in number, and the donations from those away from here are very much appreciated.

As soon as we can complete the house we would like to have a meeting. October or November will be a good time to hold the meeting; but if we cannot complete the house, we will defer the meeting for the present. Any one desiring fellowship in the work here may send donations to me, 129 South D Street, Tulare; A. J. Phillips, North M Street, Tulare; or J. W. Dingman, South Pratt Street, Tulare, Cal., and all will be received and accounted for.

Do to-day's duty, fight to-day's temptation, and do not weaken and distract yourself by looking forward to things which you cannot see, and could not understand if you saw them.—Charles Kingsley.

LEMON JUICE FOR FRECKLES

Girls! Make beauty lotion for a few cents—Try It!

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of orchard white, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan lotion, and complexion beautifler, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of orehard white for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day and see how freekles and blemishes disappear and how clear, soft and rosy-white the skin becomes. Yest It is harmless and never irritates.

Jell-0 Ice Cream Powder

Makes Ice Cream for two cents a plate

Stir the powder in a quart of milk and freeze. That is all, Everything is in the package. Makes two quarts of delicious ice cream.

Vanilla, Strawberry, Lemon and Chocolate flavors, and Unflavored.

THE GENESEE PURE FOOD COMPANY Le Roy, N. Y.

Work-shop Strains result in Heart Trouble when you feast expect it.

is a Tonic and Regulater for the Weakened Heart. SOLD BY ALL DRUGGISTS

MILES MEDICAL CO., Elkhart, Ind.

CHURCH NEWS

Arkansas.

Piggott, August 18.—The meeting at Egypt closed at the water last Monday. There were seventeen baptisms and nine restorations.—J. E. Laird.

Missouri.

Springfield, August 18.—I have just closed a meeting with the church at Edwards Chapel, near Marshfield. There was one baptism, a woman from the Methodists. I have the last three weeks in November open for preaching or leading the songs.—Charles F. Hardin.

Tennessee.

Dyersburg, August 17.—The meeting at Buford's Chapel closed last Friday night. Interest and attendance were good throughout. Eight were baptized and three were restored. I am now at Mount Zion, eight miles from Dyersburg. I will begin a meeting at Glass on the last Sunday in August. Following this I will return to Ontario, Canada, where several meetings are waiting for me.—C. G. McPhee.

Chattanooga, August 17.—I began my regular work with the St. Elmo congregation on Sunday. One young man was baptized Sunday night, This church has a number of noble disciples in it. We have regular services on Sunday and Sunday night and prayer meeting on Thursday night. Any brother passing through this city has a cordial invitation to visit us. Take a St. Elmo car and get off at Forty-eighth Street.—L. E. Pryor.

Memphis, August 16.—On the first Sunday in August I closed a few-days' meeting at Hickory Flat, Miss., with seven additions. From there I went to Ruleville, where I engaged D. S. Duck, a Second Adventist, in a four-days' debate. I followed up the debate with three discourses, which resulted in eight additions, one of them a promi-nent member of the Baptist Church at Ruleville. There is so much to be done in Mississippi, and so few to do it. Brother A. Y. Howell, who moderated for me in this discussion, is doing a splendid work in his field, and he has all the room he wants. are no preachers jealous of him and trying to supplant him in his work. That is one trouble preachers do not have in Mississippi.-J. P. Lowrey Ethridge, August 18 .- Our ten-days' meeting, conducted by Brother H. N. Mann, of Riverside, closed last night. The rainy weather was a great drawback to the meeting. There was one baptism, and we feel sure that our brother's noble and forcible presentation of the glorious truths of the plan of salvation will be a permanent benefit to the church and to each one who heard the preaching that has a desire to know the truth. Brother Mann is full of earnestness, and feels deeply the infinite importance of the gospel message. We feel that those who heard the discourses he preached here are left without excuse. While Brother Mann has not held many protracted meetings, he preaches regularly, is wholly devoted to the cause, and his influence is felt as far as be is known. -Lucas North.

East Chatanooga, August 18 .-Sunday, July 4, I preached for the congregation at Moore's Springs, Texas, and in the afternoon I began a series of meetings at Sylvan. meeting was under the direction of the Moore's Springs Church. It continued until the following Sunday night. There were three confessions and baptisms, and a few faithful Christians, led by Brother J. A. Scarborough, promised to meet regularly for church services. There was once a congregation at Sylvan, but the church building was burned several years ago, and the main leader, Broth-Scarborough, was stricken with sickness and was confined to his room for a number of years. In the meantime a number of the members moved away and the church ceased to meet for worship. I do hope and pray that Brother Scarborough and the faithful members will succeed in firmly establishing the cause at Sylvan. Wednesday evening, July 21, I began a meeting with the church at Finley, Okla., and continued it until Sunday evening, August 1. There were no additions to the church, but all agreed that the meeting had been a success. One immediate result was, a better church organization was perfected. Brother B. M. Tucker was the only elder of the congregation, while there were no deacons. A business meeting was held, and Brother L. S. Todd was selected to serve as elder with Brother Tucker, and Brethren W. D. Miller, C. D. Allen, and W. G. Rowan were selected as deacons. The church at Finley now has an opportunity to accomplish much good for the cause of Christ .- S. Houston Proffitt.

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, neryousness and sickness.

nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

Old-Fashioned Yearly Meeting.

We have decided to held an old-fashioned yearly meeting of the disciples of Christ at Naish Springs, in Pleasants County, West Virginia, beginning on August 26, 1920, to continue over Lord's day, and we kindly invite all loyal disciples of Christ, with their bishops, deacons, and evangelists, who can do so, to meet with us and assist us in this meeting, and we hope to have a good and profitable time in the work of the Lord. Naish Springs is three miles from Willow Island station on the Baltimore and Ohio Railroad. All who wish to attend and want to be met at the railroad station with conveyances will please write to Noah Brothers, Willow, W. Va., Route 1. Box 31.

We want all of the preaching brethren present who can attend. We hope that Brother Fred L. Rowe will be present to preach the opening sermon and to lead the song service of the meeting. "The Gospel Message in Song " will be the song book used. We extend to all a hearty welcome.

> R. R. BUNNER, M.D. NOAH BROTHERS. C. W. EVANS.

O. C. CHILDERS.

Are There Directions for Distinctions?

BY WILLIAM J. MILLER.

Are there directions in the sacred Scriptures for distinctions between kinds of meat that are to be eaten and not to be eaten? There are directions in the "law of Moses." Where can they be found in the "law of Christ?" "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." (Gal. 6: 2.) In the "law of Moses" the children of Israel were informed what kinds of meat they were permitted to eat. They were commanded not to eat certain kinds. (See Lev. 11: 1-31; Deut. 14: 4-20.) It was not that certain kinds of meat were clean and other kinds were unclean, in the sense that people usually speak of a thing being clean or unclean. It was that they were permitted to cat certain kinds and were commanded not to eat the other kinds, and to eat the latter kinds would have been disobedience. and, therefore, it would have been a sin. They were unclean in the sense that it was a sin to eat of these kinds and thus disobey the commandment. Bear in mind that these distinctions were for the children of Israel, who were under the law of Moses, which is a law that we are not under. (Rom. 6: 14.) Paul, under the "law of Christ," said: "But the Spirit saith expressly, that In later times some shall fall away from the faith, giving heed to seducing spirits and doctrines of demons, through the hypocrisy of men that speak lies, branded in their own conscience as with a hot iron; forbidding to marry, and commanding to abstain from meats, which God created to be received with thanksgiving by them that believe and know the truth. For nothing is to be rejected, if it be received with thanksgiving; for it is sanctified through the word of God and prayer." (1 Tim. 4: 1-5.) Though the Catholics are evidently the people that were prophesied of. I have evidence that the Adventists also abstain from meats in like manner.

I do not know how long it is going to take, but I do know, if the world is going to be reformed, it is going to be reformed by the men who-either by doing it personally or by hiring somebody to help them-have first reformed themselves .- Selected,

The wonder of the life of Jesus is this-and you will find it so, and you have found it so if you have taken your New Testament and tried to make it the rule of your daily life-that there is not a single action that you are called upon to do of which you need be, of which you will be, in any serious doubt for ten minutes as to what Jesus Christ, if he were here, Jesus Christ being here, would have you do under those circumstances and with the material upon which you are called to act.-Phillips Brooks.

Sleeplessness. You can't sleep in the stillest night if your digestion is bad. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla—It strengthens the stomach and establishes that condition in which sleep regularly comes and is sweet and refreshing.

A tonic laxative containing iron in organic form for regulating the digestive organs and building robust health with pure, iron-strong red blood. 25e a box.

For eczema, liver splotches and other itching skin cruptions use "Skin Success" Soap and Olithment in conjunction with tablets. A wonderful combination for good health and good looks, Ask your druggist. Samples on request.

THE MORGAN DRUG CO...

THE MORGAN DRUG CO., Brooklyn, New York City 521 Atlantic Ave.

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your frecktes, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckies have began to disappear, while the lighter sides have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one onnec is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it falls to remove treekles.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

Not Equipment but the Man Makes the Difference

Every great school, college, or university has been built around the personality of some one man. The educated men of America who have accomplished great things and who stand well in professions look back on their college training and attribute much of their accomplishments to the dominating personality of the school in which they were educated. The dominating personality of Morgan School is that of Prof. R. K. Morgan. His influence for good and better things does much toward the melding of morals and stimulating of troader ideals in the students who are so fortunate as to attend Morgan School. Mr. Morgan has devoted his life to the training of boys. of boys.

The thoughtful, considerate parent feels that the school to which he sends his son must be equipped and its faculty chosen must be equipped and its faculty chosen with the primary end of training the boy to become a man—to teach true Christian faith, to develop manly independence and self-confidence, to inspire high ideals of life and service, to strengthen and develop mind and body alike.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, which has been pullet up account the Christian in the Morgan School, which has been pullet up account the Christian in the Morgan School.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, which has been built up around the Christian character and wholesome, inspiring personality of Robert K. Morgan, who has been principal for twenty-six years.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

The Evidence of Pardon.

HY J. W. ATKISSON.

In the apostolic age men and women took the revealed promises of God as the evidence of pardon. But I am asked: "Why should men and women be baptized?" Simply because the Lord commanded it. (Matt. 28: 19; Mark 16; 16; Acts 2: 38; 10; 48; 22; 16.) When a certain boy was baptized, his father said to him: "My son, why were you baptized?" "Because Jesus told me to be," was the quick reply; and all the schools of theology cannot improve on that answer. A father once said to his little girl: "My daughter, what is faith?" She replied: "It is doing what God tells us to do and asking no questions." This is a splendid definition. He who would question God's authority or quibble over one of his commands or promises should pray: "Lord, increase my faith, and help thou my unbelief."

"But do you and your people believe that water literally washes away sins?" We are as far from such a faith as the heavens are from the earth. Christ alone can wash away sins in his own precious blood; but we must come to him in his divinely appointed way, that we may appropriate and enjoy the cleansing efficacy of his blood. (Read Mark 16: 16; Luke 7: 30; John 3: 5; Acts 2: 38; 22: 16; Rom. 6: 3.)

A poor woman came to Jesus to be healed. He was surrounded by a great throng. She could not speak to him. "Now," thought she, "if I can only touch the hem of his garment, it will be enough." She pressed through the crowd. At last she touched the garment's hem and immediately was healed. Where was the healing virtue? In what the woman did? Surely not. Was it in the Savior's garment? It could not be. Again we ask, where was it? Luke says that Jesus perceived that virtue had gone out of him. The virtue was in Jesus: but the woman obtained it, not by faith alone, but by faith that acted. "Seest thou how faith wrought with his [her] works, and by works was faith made perfect?" (James 2: 22.)

Jesus is the great Physician of souls; man is sin-sick. Jesus provided a remedy in his blood. But he commands man to believe, to repent, to confess him before men with all the heart, to be baptized, to pray, and to strive to lead a holy life. I observe all these things, but I trust in him for salvation. I render all praise and power and glory and dominion to God and to the Lamb who has redeemed me and washed me in his own precious blood. This I teach, and all our brethren likewise. Is not that plain?

Select Thoughts.

Henry Martyn wrote in his diary, two days after beginning his ministry in North India: "I have hitherto lived to little purpose-more like a clod than God's servant; now let me burn up for God."-Selected.

Do not try and fight too much even against fatigue or irritability if that comes, or pain or weakness, either; we are not stoics, are we? But Christians. We do not think we were put here to overcome the world, but we are to be of good cheer because He has overcome it.-Collins.

You want to be true, and you are trying to be. Learn these two things: Never be discouraged because good things get on slowly here, and never fail daily to do that good which lies next your hand. Do not be in a hurry, but be diligent. Enter into that sublime patience of the Lord, conquering patience.-George MacDonald.

RUP Cured HIS

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. Finally I got hold of some-thing that quickly and completely cured me. Years have passed and the rupture has never Years have passed and the rupture has never returned, atthough I am doing hard work as a carpenter. There was no operation, no lost time, no trouble. I have nothing to sell: but will give full information about how you may find a complete cure without operation, if you write to me, Eugene M. Pullen, Carpenter, 354 G Marcellus Avenue, Manasquan, N. J. Better cut out this notice and show it to any others who are ruptured—you may save a life, or at least atop the misery of rupture and the worry and danger of an operation. of an operation

A Fairy Godmother

couldn't do more for your skin than

Ointment

Keeps skin clear. 25 cents at your druggist. Ointment, 50 cents and $1.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy, bc. by mall or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogae, N. X.

Clear Baby's Skin With Cuticura Soap and Talcum Soap, Cintment, Talcum, 25c, everywhere, Forsamples address: Cutleura Laboratories, Dept. V. Maidan, Mass.

A HOME CURE GIVEN BY ONE WHO HAD IT

In the spring of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Inflammatory Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who have it know, for over three years, I tried remedy after remedy and doctor after doctor, but such relief as I received was only temporary. Finally I found a remedy that cured me completely, and it has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted and even bedridden with Rheumatism, some of them from seventy to eighty years old, and results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of rheumatic trouble to try this marvelous healing power. Don't send a cent; simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of your Rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one dellar; but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Ism't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay, Write to-day, MARK H. JACKSON, No. 827G Durston Bidg., Syracuse, N. Y. Mr. Jackson Is responsible. Above statement true.

NO JOKE TO BE DEAF

TETTERIN for the COMPLEXION

60c at your druggist's or from Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

VACCINATE YOUR HOGS.

BUY SERUM direct from the manufacturers and be assured of a fresh, reliable product. United States Veter-inary License No. 114; long-distance phone, Main 2562, Nashville, Tenn. Write for 90-page Hog Book; it is FREE, WHITE SERUM COMPANY.

CANCERS CURED AT KELLAM HOSPITAL,

1617 West Main Street, Richmond, Va. It is known beyond a doubt and admitted by most of the leading physicians and sur-geons that cancer cannot be cured with the knife, X-Ray, radium, or acids. Cancers are permanently cured at The Kellam Hos-pital, without the use of either. Physicians and surgeons treated free at the hospital.

GOOD TEACHERS IN DEMAND

GOOD TEACHERS IN DEMAND
AT BETTER SALARIES
The schools, colleges, seminaries, and universities throughout the South are begging for assistance in finding teachers with proper qualifications, and better salaries are being offered. We are needing hundreds of teachers to supply the demand. Any well-prepared teacher would do well to write us.

FISK TEACHERS' AGENCY
R. A. Clayton, Mgr. Birmingham, Ala,

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Volume LXII. No. 36.

NASHVILLE, TENN., SEPTEMBER 2, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Edifying as the Need May Be	84
Our Contributors	85
Training Little Children	85
At Home and Abroad	85
Query Department	85
Georgia and the Far Southern Field	85
David Lipscomb College Notes	86
Editorial	86
Current Thought	86
Church News 864, 865, 868,	87
Control of the contro	86
Japan News Items	86
Sift Out the Brau	86
A Debate Between Robert G. Ingersoll and a Christian.	87
21 Dobate Delween House & Higgson and a Christian.	01

Edifying as the Need May Be

The Value of an Intimate Glimpse.

Balzac and De Maupassant are accounted to be unusually forceful and original writers because, instead of writing down the regular annals of the French court as preserved by its historians, they tell the inner secrets of the court as revealed by chambermaids, ladies in waiting, butlers, and other attaches. It is often the hardest task in historical research to get such an intimate glimpse. We know the outer life of societies, of families, of dynasties; we see them in their external form and symmetry: we behold them in their company dress and in their public appearances; but till we get to know and realize their common everyday life, how they ate, drank, and slept, we fail to grasp the most important side of their existence. That is why the sixth chapter of Acts is so important. It gives us a useful glimpse into the inner life of the primitive church. This church is often spoken of as if its social and spiritual fabric were wholly unlike our own; as if sin and infirmity were entirely absent and perfect holiness prevailed. But this chapter disillusionizes that thought. When the disciples were increasing by the thousands and the hearts of the apostles were all aglow with the success of their labors, "there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews." This shows us that the presence of supernatural gifts, the power of working miracles and speaking with other tongues, did not raise the spiritual level of some of the believers above that in the church of the present day.

0 0 0

The Happiest Days.

The cause of the appointment of the seven helpers is shown in these words: "Now in these days, when the number of the disciples was multiplying, there arose a murmuring of the Grecian Jews against the Hebrews, because their widows were neglected in the daily ministration." The appointment sprang out of the multiplying, and the multiplying begot a murmuring among the disciples. Let us learn from this that increase of numbers does not always mean increase of happiness, increase of devotion, increase of spiritual life, but has often brought increase of trouble and discontent. A very rich man said not long ago that he would give a million dollars just to be able to drink a glass of milk with the same zest and enjoyment he felt when he was yet a poor boy. He is clothed in fine linen now and rides in a limousine, but the happiest days in his long, eventful career were the days when he used to "wade in the branch and stub his toe and get stung by bumblebees." The same is true of the life of a congregation. Disciples may be happy in the possession of a brand-new, substantial, up-to-date house of worship, but the most of them will tell you that they are not quite so happy as when they met every Lord's day in the little shanty just behind the new structure. It might be a good idea to let the little shanty stand for years to come to keep them humble and poor in spirit and to serve as a constant reminder of the happiest days. Some of our members at Russell Street can remember when this congregation was a handful and met in a small rented room, and I have no doubt but what the memory of these days of struggle and sacrifice will always be among the most pleasant of their lives.

Somehow, God has made all things double one against another; and when he bestows such notable increase as he granted to the apostolic church, he adds thereto some counterbalancing disadvantage to keep his people poor in spirit. Undiluted joy, unmitigated success, is not to be the portion of God's people while tabernaching here below. There is always the bitter with the sweet. Peloubet says: "There are two ways of multiplying a church. One is to multiply the numbers on the principle that ten times one is ten; the other way is to multiply the quality of the members so that each one counts for more. Ten times a thread makes a small cord, but ten times a rope woven of a thousand such strands is a vastly greater power."

0 0 0

The New Testament Deacon.

Our word "deacon" comes from a Greek word which means "to serve." In the opening verse of the letter to the Philippians, Paul salutes the deacons of the church in connection with the bishops. Their qualifications are stated in the third chapter of First Timothy. The office of the deacon has been permanently retained by most of the modern churches, but with different functions in different denominations. The Methodist Church has deaconesses. In the Roman Catholic Church the deacon is an assistant to the bishop; in the Episcopal Church he assists in the administration of the communion and is a teacher of the Scriptures; in the Congregational Church the deacons are nominally the dispensers of the charities of the church, really the pastor's spiritual advisers; in the Presbyterian Church the deacons have entire charge of the money affairs of the church. I like the New Testament idea better than any of these. It does not prescribe or limit the duties of the deacon. It makes him a servant, or minister, and it does not matter whom or what he serves, just so it is honorable and good. The fact is, no one is given an official designation in the New Testament. "Apostle" is not an official title, but simply means "one sent;" and it might be applied to any one sent, regardless of the mission. The same is true of elders, bishops, and deacons. These names designated the work they did or the qualities they possessed. The New Testament glorifies the work to be done, rather than the title. The seven men mentioned in this chapter were appointed especially to look after the needs of the neglected Greeian widows, but their duties were by no means confined to this particular service of serving tables. Two of them, Stephen and Philip, developed into the most useful preachers mentioned in the book of Acts. Stephen headed the roll of the martyrs.

0 0 0

The Standard of Qualifications.

The standard of qualifications required of the seven is very significant and timely. They must be seven men "of good report, full of the Spirit and of wisdom." The modern method is to fill the official board with men who have money and influence. Is there a banker in town? Put him on the official board. Is there a capitalist who is an occasional visitor to the church services? Make him a member of the board of stewards. Is there a business man who is noted for his keen executive ability? Secure him by all means. It makes no difference as to piety; business is first, and the church needs their money and influence. There is no doubt but what a real Christian who is a good business man, capitalist, or banker makes a good elder or a good deacon. God expects a man to use the qualities which have made his business success in promoting the success of the church. System and spirituality are not opposites. The efficient organization of the church itself as one body is an important factor. But let us never forget that the apostolic order is piety, then wisdom. The church was to furnish the money; these men were to distribute it.

0 0 0

"I Serve" Is the Greatest Slogan.

The fact that these men were chosen to serve tables teaches us that the commonest duties of life demand the highest qualities, and they can be fulfilled perfectly when the soul is at its best. Some gardeners, it is said, can grow orchids better than wall flowers; and society abounds in social climbers who court "great places" and things, despising the homelier posts and callings. But I must remember that when princes like Stephen and Philip are made stewards of carnal things, appointed to wait on tables, that even the most homely duty is sovereign and the utmost saintliness and wisdom are necessary for the ordinary routine of life. I must never belittle the work of a servant, because I find that the apostles preferred that appellation over all others; and when one of them would exalt his Lord in the presence of the cruel men who put him to death, he tells them: "The God of Abraham, and of Isaac, and of Jacob, the God of our fathers, hath glorified his Servant Jesus." When it comes to pleasing God, the two greatest words in the English language are the words "I serve." An ancient prince had them engraved upon his crest. Write them not upon your crest, but write them upon the tablets of your heart; and write, too, the simple couplet:

> "The heart can only live in loving, And by serving love will grow."

The Blessed Pushers.

The joy that comes from service is unique. It is a joy that cannot be realized in any other way. You cannot buy it and you cannot borrow it. You do not receive it by having others serve you; you yourself must serve to get it. A little orphan girl who was almost sightless and who "belonged to the State," as she quaintly expressed her dependence, was placed in a suburban home where they were willing to receive her. It happened one summer evening that she was on the sidewalk with a group of children who were new acquaintances. They had a little wagon in which they were riding by turns and were generously ready to give their handicapped little guest even more than her share of rides; but she would have none of it. "I want to push." she sald; "I like to get tired." She couldn't pull, but she could push, and she insisted upon doing it. "I like to get tired," she insisted, with a radiant face.

A remark like that should make the onlooker thoughtful. We who so often complain of our weariness forget the blessedness of having a part in all the activities that bring it. Perhaps I could not express my wish for the deacons of the churches everywhere in a simpler or more forceful way than just to say: "I wish that they may all become efficient pushers, and that all the members of the congregation may push with them, "looking unto Jesus the author and perfecter of our faith, who for the glory that was set before him endured the cross, despising shame, and hath sat down at the right hand of the throne of God."

Book Notices.

If you are in need of a good abridged Bible dictionary, send us $2 for a copy of Smith's Peloubet Edition. This is one of the best dictionaries of the Bible that I have examined.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Minor's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Send us $1.25 for a copy of "Sweeney's Sermons." This is a book of sermons by John S. Sweeney—one of the best books of sermons published. Sweeney carries conviction with the statement of his position. He is noted for brevity, clearness, and force of statement. Every young preacher should have a copy of this book of sermons.

Have you seen a copy of "Adventism and the Bible?" This is one of the very best books for you to buy at the present time. Adventism is a live subject. Adventists are active and are propagating their doctrines. If you want to be thoroughly prepared to meet them and to expose the errors of Adventism, you should send us at once $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible."

We have on hand a few copies of "Biographies and Sermons," edited by F. D. Srygley. This is a book of sermons by a number of our best-known preachers. It is well worth a careful perusal. A brief history of the life of each preacher accompanies his sermon. A picture of the preacher also is given with each sketch. Price, $1.50. If you want this book, you should order at once, as we have just a few copies that have been left over through mistake.

An old saint lived such a life of purity and serenity that his younger companions marveled. They came one day and said: "Father, we are harassed with so many temptations, which give us no rest. You seem to be untroubled with doubt or struggle, and we would learn the secret. Do they never come knocking at the door of your heart?" The old man listened and smiled and said: "My children. I do know temptations and doubt. But when they knock at the door of my heart, I answer; 'This place is occupied."—T. F. Lockyer.

What About Elders? No. 1.

BY W. H. CARTER.

When we view this subject from one standpoint, it would seem that enough has been said; and yet, from the divergent opinions set forth by different writers, it seems that more needs to be said, or, rather, a repetition of what may have been said in the past. So, at the risk of being placed by some on their "hobby" list, I have decided to write this one more time: "For precept must be upon precept, precept upon precept; line upon line, line upon line; here a little, and there a little." (Isa. 28: 10.) If I remember correctly, Brother Lipscomb once said that F. D. Srygley's success on a certain important matter was in his continued writing about it, and quoted the above scripture in justification of his course. So, if we repeat, we stand in good company with the indorsement of a great man.

In establishing churches throughout the country, in the days of the personal ministry of the apostles, they ordained them elders in every church. (Acts 14: 23.) This was done by the direction of the Holy Spirit according to the wisdom of God. It was a matter of great importance then. Is it not a matter of importance now? If not, why not? I am sure that the churches of to-day do not regard this as they should. Even some preachers who have been strenuous in their contention that we stick to what the Book says on other matters venture too much on opinion in regard to the eldership. It is a great thing for us to be consistent. "Hast thou faith? have it to thyself before God. Happy is he that condemneth not himself in that thing which he alloweth." (Rom. 14: 22.) Speculative opinion is just as wrong and sinful when it comes to the eldership as it is in regard to unfulfilled prophecy or anything else, and I am not sure but it is much more hurtful to the church.

In the beginning the "young converts"-the "babes in Christ"-needed nurturing, to be guided and led, governed and controlled, watched after and fed. In his charge to the elders at Ephesus, Paul said: "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Spirit hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20: 28.) "The elders which are among you I exhort, who am also an elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, and also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed: feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof, not by constraint, but willingly; not for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; neither as being lords over God's heritage, but being ensamples to the flock. when the chief Shepherd shall appear, ye shall receive a crown of glory that fadeth not away." (1 Pet. 5: 1-4.)

From the above quotations we can learn that certain duties or services are enjoined and blessings promised. When one accepts the position, or work, he places himself under obligation to God and the church to perform these duties. To neglect to do this is a violation of the law of God to the elders, and is, therefore, sin. He must feed, take the oversight of, and watch for the souls of those who place themselves under him when they have him appointed to do the work. He must be qualified for the work; for, as the work is of such great importance, so also are the qualifications important. Of these qualifications the church selecting him must be the judge; not of the necessity for them, for God has done judged that, in that he has specified that he must possess them, but as to whether or not he does possess them. Failure on the part of churches to observe this has brought much trouble by placing over this work unqualified men, because through slack teaching they have failed to develop among themselves such characters as God requires. Not because they could not, but because they would not. Some teach on this like some do on baptism, if you have not got men that fill the divine requirements, take the one that comes nearest to it. What we need is to become deeply impressed with the importance, necessity, and solemnity of this work.

Furthermore, the qualifications of elders are plainly and specifically laid down, so that there should be no misunderstanding in regard to them. Paul says: "This is a true saying. If a man desire the office of a bishop, he desireth a good work. A bishop then must be blameless, the husband of one wife, vigilant, sober, of good behavior, given to hospitality, apt to teach; not given to wine, no striker, not greedy of filthy lucre; but patient, not a brawler, not covetous: one that ruleth well his own house; having his children in subjection with all gravity: (for if a man know not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?) Not a novice, lest being lifted up with pride he fall into the condemnation of the devil. More over he must have a good report of them which are without; lest he fall into reproach and the snare of the devil." (1 Tim. 3: 1-7.) Of these qualifications there is no evasion. God says a bishop must possess them. No one has the right to change them. When God says he must be the "husband of one wife," it is a sin, an alteration of God's law, to say that an unmarried man is eligible. God says he must be the "husband of one wife." If one has the right to change this so as to take in an unmarried man, why not another the right to change "not given to wine" to one who is given to wine, or "apt to teach" to one who is not apt to teach, or "not greedy of filthy lucre" to one who is greedy of filthy lucre? If God had not meant what he said, he would not have said it. God does not say one thing when he means another. Right here, in my judgment, is where the greatest cause of the lack of efficient elders lies. Men in whom the brethren have confidence have dealt out to them speculative theories, notions, and opinions instead of the "Thus saith the Lord." The result is a careless indifference in regard to the eldership.

A Letter From Calgary, Alberta, Canada.

To the Editor of the Gospel Advocate: For approximately the last fifteen years this church has had at heart the thorough evangelization of the great Northwest—that is to say, the three large prairie provinces of Canadanamely, Alberta, Saskatchewan, and Manitoba—also the Coast province, British Columbia, and the northwestern portion of the United States.

When we consider how vast is this expanse of territory, how large and quickly increasing its population, how few and small the congregations of Christians faithful to New. Testament teaching, and the central situation of this city, affording great convenience for evangelical efforts throughout the whole of this region, we are impressed exceedingly by the opportunities that surround us, and we are fired with enthusiasm and ambition to win this great field for Christ. Still this city of some seventy thousand souls seems to demand that we concentrate our efforts right here rather than dissipate them in an attempt to reach the many cities, towns, and villages around us.

Other loyal churches in this region, as well as we, have been doing their best to reach the people; but, viewing the situation to-day, we are deeply dissatisfied with it, for it is perfectly obvious that our efforts must be multiplied if we are to accomplish any great and permanent results. Not so much that our efforts have lacked energy, but rather that the task has proven so much beyond our strength.

We realize that while the years have been slipping away, many thousands of souls have passed into eternity without having had the pure, primitive gospel presented to them. We, therefore, feel that we cannot dare to further face the future without sending out an urgent appeal to the faithful churches of Christ throughout the whole continent to assist us in every scriptural manner to spread the truth—to sow the seed in these fields that are indeed "white unto harvest."

Recently published statistics show that in this corner of the Lord's vineyard there are large areas that are never visited by even a sectarian preacher; that families are giving their whole time and attention to the things of this world, and that in consequence children are growing up to maturity without even hearing the name of God, except in blasphemy.

While we do not wish to appear boastful, we must also be careful not to give the false impression that we have done but little. Indeed, we are very thankful for what we have, by the Lord's help, managed to accomplish in the face of adverse circumstances toward keeping "the glorious banner waving" and the resultant salvation of souls.

We do urge, however, that more must be done, and we are confident that much more will be done when our brethren in various parts of America learn of the need and opportunities of this region. Doubtless there are many able brethren who are eager to do missionary work in the cause of Christ, but who do not care to go abroad or to learn a foreign language, and who would recognize this as the very opportunity they have been seeking, when it has been brought properly to their notice, provided arrangements could be made for their support. Undoubtedly, also, there are many brethren who are blessed with sufficient of this world's goods to be able to gratify their longing to help in just such a cause as this.

Of course much can be accomplished by the distribution of free literature and devoted brethren settling in various parts and speaking to their neighbors, and quite a lot of good work has been done and still is being done through such methods. Still—it is perhaps superfluous to say it—the great need is for zealous men, mighty in the Scriptures, who are willing and physically able, if necessary, to stand a certain amount of hardship in order to preach the word. Naturally those who are enabled to devote their whole time and talents to the work can reach many more people, and reach them oftener, than can those who must earn their own living.

Those who undertake this work should especially be good visitors. They should, therefore, possess considerable refinement of manner, so as to be welcome in the best households; but they should also be prepared to mix with the coarser element without being ostentatiously superior. But, above all, it is desirable that they should be men whose life is hid with Christ in God.

Our reason for addressing you personally on this subject is that we desire to enlist your personal and continued active sympathy in this work, leaving you to deal with the matter in your paper promptly and persistently in such a manner as seems, according to your own discretion, most probable to produce results.

Thanking you in anticipation and assuring you of our cagerness to furnish any further information you may desire in this connection, also of our whole-hearted cooperation in prayer and perseverance for the extension of Christ's kingdom and the hastening of his return, we are,

Sincerely, Your brethren in the Master's service,

THE CHURCH OF CHRIST IN CALGARY.

Per W. W. Scott, Secretary.

The above is worthy of serious consideration. Men selected for missionaries should be well rooted and grounded in the faith, should love the truth and be willing to endure hardness as a good soldier. Missionary conditions will not be improved by sending missionaries who hardly know what they believe.—Editors.

Wisdom, Knowledge, Understanding.

BY C. C. CLARK.

The children of God are the children of the kingdom. The children of the kingdom are children of wisdom. The children of wisdom are children of the church, from the fact that the church is "the manifold wisdom of God," "the pillar and ground of the truth."

"Church" and "kingdom" are words that have a mixture and a mingling of ideas.

"Wisdom," "knowledge," and "understanding" have a mixture and mingling of ideas. But "wisdom is the principal thing; therefore get wisdom: and with all thy getting get understanding." (Prov. 4: 7.) "Happy is the man that findeth wisdom, and the man that getteth understanding. For the merchandise of it is better than the merchandise of silver, and the gain thereof than fine gold. She is more precious than rubies: and all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her. Length of days is in her right hand; and in her left hand riches and honor. Her ways are ways of pleasantness, and all her paths are peace. She is a tree of life to them that lay hold upon her: and happy is every one that retaineth her." (Prov. 3: 13-18.) God said unto man: "Behold the fear of the Lord, that is wisdom; and to depart from evil is understanding." (Job 28: 28.)

"But if any of you lacketh wisdom, let him ask of God, who giveth to all liberally and upbraideth not; and it shall be given him. But let him ask in faith, nothing doubting: for he that doubteth is like the surge of the sea driven by the wind and tossed. For let not that man think that he shall receive anything of the Lord; a double-minded man, unstable in all his ways." (James 1: 5-8.) To "ask in faith, nothing doubting," is to believe that God will be as good as his word and give liberally. It also is to believe that "the fear of the Lord" is wisdom, and that "wisdom is the principal thing," "more precious than rubies," and that "all the things thou canst desire are not to be compared unto her." If this is the measure of your faith, you should be happy; you can ask for wisdom, believing God will give you liberally that which is more precious than rubies."

Wisdom is like every other thing of a high value; it is not easy to obtain. You must ask, seek, and search diligently for it. "If thou seek her as silver, and search for her as for hid treasures: then shalt thou understand the fear of Jehovah, and find the knowledge of God." (Prov. 2: 4, 5.)

Then, after all, where is wisdom to be found, and what is the wisdom and the virtue in the fear of the Lord so pleasing to God as to be the means of personal acceptance with him? "The fear of the Lord is clean, enduring forever." (Ps. 19: 9.) "In the fear of the Lord is strong confidence." (Prov. 14: 26.) "The fear of the Lord is to hate evil: pride, and arrogancy, and the evil way, and the froward mouth, do I hate." (Prov. 8: 13.) "Of a truth I perceive that God is no respecter of persons: but in every nation he that feareth him, and worketh righteousness, is accepted with him." (Acts 10: 34, 35.)

James says: "Be not many of you teachers, my brethren, knowing that we shall receive heavier judgment." (James 3: 1.) The man that essays to teach should have his head filled with wisdom in order to speak as the oracles of God and be free from the heavier judgment. When the fear of the Lord grows weaker and weaker, confidence in self grows stronger and stronger; and just in proportion as self-confidence grows stronger, trusting in your own wisdom is the result. The way to fill the head with wisdom is to study. "Study to show thyself approved unto God, a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, rightly dividing the word of truth." (2 Tim. 2: 15.) Being not ashamed is not the best evidence of being approved of God, for it may be a much better evidence of a bad case of ego, or conceit. It is rather a bad case of ego, or conceit, for a workman to think he is approved of God and thoroughly furnished unto every good work, when at the same time he has never studied all the Scriptures inspired of God. "For whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that we through patience and comfort of the scriptures might have hope." There is a multiplicity of intelligent men that care little for learning or the hope that is beyond the grave; but there is no intelligent man but cares for comfort, for that is just what we are all longing and sighing for, and it is to be found in the things written aforetime.

Preachers who ignore the fear of the Lord in the pulpit ignore the greatest means to persuade and arouse the conscience to consider the works of God and flee from the wrath to come. The commission that bids the preacher to go "into all the world, and preach the gospel"—good news, glad tidings—also bids him to proclaim the "severity" of God; "for our God is a consuming fire," (Heb. 12: 29.) The same gospel that promises rest to the godly also promises that there shall be no rest day or night for the unrepentant and ungodly.

Paul said: "Knowing the terror of the Lord, I persuade men." The teacher that ignores the wrath of God in the pulpit is a poor imitator of Paul.

The Choice of Moses.

BY F. E. EXUM.

"By faith Moses, when he was come to years, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to suffer affliction with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season." (Heb. 11: 24, 25.)

Undoubtedly this choice made by Moses while in his youth has had a more far-reaching influence for good over the lives of young men and young women than any other choice ever made by a single person. His choice was difficult to make, because the pleasures he could have had in the royal household of Pharaoh were right at hand, while the heavenly country to which he aspired he could see afar off only with an eye of faith. Moses had, according to the old proverb, "a bird in the hand," but he was far-sighted in making his choice. He sought that everlasting city "which hath foundations, whose builder and maker is God." He fully understood that he would have trouble and suffer reproach with the people of God, but he took account of the reward that he would receive from the hand of God. On the one hand there was the glory of the house of Pharaon, which, like the flower of the grass, would soon wither and fade away, and on the other hand there was everlasting glory in the city of God. He realized, as did David, that in God's presence there is fullness of joy, at his right hand there are pleasures for evermore.

Moses lived one hundred and twenty years, which might be divided into three periods of forty years each-viz.: forty years in Egypt, where he received his early training; forty years in Midian as a shepherd, where he also married; and forty years wandering in the wilderness with the children of Israel whom he had led from under the power of King Pharaoh. The last forty years of his life were filled with trouble. The children of Israel were contentious and rebellious, even desiring at times to turn back again into Egypt. As a climax to this troublesome period. Moses, because of one transgression, was not allowed to enter with his people into the promised land of Canaan. He was permitted only to climb to Mount Pisgah's summit and view the promised land. He died there. God buried him, and no one has ever known where. This was the end of Moses' life in the flesh; but was this the end of Moses? How about the choice he made in his youth? it a good one? Let us see. About fifteen hundred years after that time our Lord Jesus Christ, together with Peter, James, and John, ascended what is now called the "mount of transfiguration," and there on its summit appeared Moses and Elijah in their glorified state, who talked with Jesus concerning his decease which he should accomplish at Jerusalem. Then, some sixty years later, John in his revelation on the isle of Patmos heard the saints singing the song of Moses and the Lamb. Which was better—Moses the son of Pharach's daughter for a little while, or Moses with God for evermore?

The Lone Way.

The crucial battles of life are alone with God; the heaviest burdens of life are borne alone, save for God. It is written, "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ;" and we have tasted of such precious fellowship in pain. But it is also written, "Every man shall bear his own burden," and no man can deny or controvert the fact.

"Every man shall [must] bear his own burden." Not lack of love or sympathy, but lack of possibility, shuts out all helpers. We do not wonder at the fact or rall against it at the time. We simply know it is so—could not be otherwise. The Cyrenian could bear the cross with Christ up to to a certain point. Beyond that it was an impossibility. Even so, friendship—the truest and closest—can only go a certain distance with us along some roads. The rest of the way we must walk alone. No human foot may follow.

Does this seem hard? It is beneficial. So only can fiber of will and faith be toughened, patience be made strong, and desire be changed to resolute persistency. It is in such crises that men are made and saints crowned, in such crises mortals come face to face with God and learn to know him; learn, too, that "the kingdom of heaven suffereth violence," and that "nothing shall be impossible to him that believeth." There weak men take on strength and Jacobs become Israels.

Alone with our burden and our God! Self-revelation and God-revelation follow, and all the pain and humiliation of the one experience is worth—well worth the other; for once to know God is always to trust him; is to find a Friend Eternal and eternally satisfying; is to be enriched with a love and a joy in their outflow and overflow.

These are marked days—days when, in the solitariness of a great sorrow or a great need, we pressed our way into the presence of God. He seemed hidden from us. We could not get at him; something hindered. His word assured us he was near, yet hands groped vainly after him through weary hours while all our soul and flesh cried out: "When shall I come and appear before God?" He was our supreme need—we could not live without him.

Then, suddenly, he was beside us. Light smote us through—heart and brain. We saw the truth so long dim to our understanding, appraised the length and breadth and depth and height of redemption, and knew we were redeemed, forever saved and safe. We learned that not a heart throb of ours but was answered by one of his; not a blow descended on us that did not first smite him. He proved richer than we had guessed and stronger than we had dreamed, and, wonder of wonders, all he had and was, we found he had and was for us. We abode with him a while and went out from him with the keys of the celestial city at our girdle, vested with the rights of citizenship. We might hereafter go in and out at will and everywhere find him.—Selected.

Many mean things are done in the family for which moods are put forward as an excuse, when the moods themselves are the most inexcusable things of all. A man or woman in tolerable health has no moral right to indulge in an unpleasant mood.—J. G. Holland.

The Beauties of Nature, the God Above Nature, and Immortality.

I. If we pause a while as travelers on earth to contemplate the universe in which we dwell and the glory of Him who created it, what scenes of wonders meet our view! And if beheld in an adoring attitude of the soul, what a temple for the worship of the Almighty! When the earth is spread out before us, reposing amid the desolation of winter, or clad in the verdure of spring, or smiling in the beauty of summer, or loaded with autumnal fruit, opening to an endless variety of beings the storehouse of their Creator, showing his boundless goodness, in ministering substance and comfort to every creature that lives. While also the heavens declare the glory of God and the firmaments show his handiwork; while the sun comes forth from his chambers to scatter shades of night, inviting us to renew our labors and adorning the face of nature as he advances to his meridian brightness, cherishing every herb and every flower upon the bosom of Mother Earth. Nor when the sun retires from our view does he leave the Creator without a witness, since he only hides his own splendor for a while to disclose a more glorious scene, the immensity of space filled with worlds unnumbered, that our imagination may wander without limit as we behold the vast creation of God! What a field is here opened for the exercise of every pious emotion! And how irresistibly do such contemplations as these awaken the sensibility of the soul! Here is infinite power to fill our souls with awe! Here is infinite wisdom to fill our souls with admiration! Here is infinite goodness to call forth our gratitude and love! The correspondence between these great objects and the affections of the human heart is established by nature herself, and they need only to be placed before us that every religious feeling may be excited, and these religious feelings are more actively awakened in the souls of the redeemed.

II. When we contemplate the great scenes of nature, we are accustomed to connect them with the perfections of God, reasoning from design to Designer. So all vast and unmeasurable objects are fitted to impress the soul with awe! Such as the mountain which rises above the neighboring hills and bathes its head in the clouds; the sounding, unfathomed and boundless deep, ever surging, heaving, and rolling on the bosom of the mighty ocean; the deep expanse of heaven, where, above and around, no limit obstructs the wondering eye. All of these objects fill and elevate the mind and produce a solemn frame of the spirit within us which accords with the highest sentiment of religion. From the contemplation of what is great and magnificent in nature, the soul rises to the Author of it all. We may think of the time which preceded the birth of the universe, when the adorable Trinity dwelt as God alone. Then arise unnumbered systems in perfect order before us, all created by his power, arranged by his wisdom, and filled with his presence, so that Paul declared by these his eternal power and Godhead were known. (Rom. 1: 20.) While nature reveals God, God is above nature, separated and apart from nature, existing before nature, therefore the author of natural law. He dwells on the earth and in the sea and with all that they contain, yet all that they contain are but the work of his finger compared with the immensity of his works. He sitteth on the circle of the earth, he rideth on the wings of the wind, "which alone spreadeth out the heavens and treadeth upon the waves of the sea, which maketh Arcturus, Orion, and Pleiades, and the chambers of the south." Job exalts God as the complete master of nature and natural law.

The face of nature is sometimes clothed with terror! The tempest overturns the stately cedars of Lebanon and discloses the secrets of the mighty deep. Pestilence wastes; the lightning consumes, and the voice of the thunder is heard on high. But let these appearances be connected with the power of God as the awful ministers of his kingdom! The Lord reigneth, let the people tremble! Who would not fear thee, O King of nations! For by the greatness of thy power shall thy enemies be compelled to bow. "That at the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven, and things in earth, and things under the earth; and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." (Phil. 2: 10, 11.)

III. The idea of another and better world seems to be congenial to the human mind. It has been generally entertained in all ages and stages of civilization. The philosophers of ancient times, who had nothing to guide them but the dim light of nature, cherished the ennobling notion of an immortal existence. And the untutored savage, who understood little of nature, unaided by revelation, flattered himself with the pleasing prospect of being one day transported into happier and more fruitful regions and anticipated the pleasures which he would there enjoy in the company of his fathers.

Both the wise and unwise felt within themselves the pleasing hope, the fond desire for immortality. But though nature has given some conceptions of immortality, still her information is incomplete and unsatisfactory. Hence we find the most eminent sages of the heathen world, even while desiring and hoping for such state, confessing themselves unable to demonstrate its existence-so all of their prospects were doubtful and insecure. With longing eyes bent on futurity, a thick cloud, impenetrable by unassisted reason, intercepted their view. But from this state of painful anxiety we, in these gospel days, are happily relieved, since Jesus has demonstrated immortality by his resurrection from the dead. "Who hath abolished death, and hath brought life and immortality to light through the gospel." (2 Tim. 1: 10.) So to us immortality is clearly revealed, even more clearly than to those ancient worthies to whom God graciously revealed himself.

Here we are as a city set upon a hill that cannot be hidden; we are the light of the world; but this is not worthy to be compared with the glory that shall be revealed in us when we shall "shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of our Father." There sin, pain, disappointment, and death shall never enter, for all things will be made new. Our happiness and enjoyment there shall have everything to increase them and nothing to diminish them. Our happiness shall be full and satisfactory; in its duration it shall be as lasting as the eternity of God himself. Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." (2 Pet. 1: 4.)

"There is a land of pure delight,
Where saints immortal reign;
Eternal day excludes the night,
And pleasures banish pain,
There everlasting spring abides,
And never withering flowers;
Death, like a narrow stream, divides
That heavenly land from ours."

-Isaiah Watson, in Western Recorder.

The Self-Imposed Task.

Surely God would have his children at their best physically as well as spiritually, in order to serve him best. He would have them "do more by doing less," which is a hard lesson for many a child of God to learn. "May God keep us." writes a consecrated man to a friend, "from assuming burdens and responsibilities not of him, for every such burden or responsibility supplants one or more of his own. It is better to do one thing well, assigned by God, than to add to this one thing four or five other imaginary duties, and fail in all.—Sunday School Times.

Home Reading

Teach Children to Love Plants and Animals.

Every child should have something upon which to lavish his affections, otherwise they will weaken; for affections, like other traits, must live and grow by exercise. Notice the little girl with her doll or the boy with his hobby-horse. While inanimate objects represent life and hence hold the attention of children, living things are far more interesting to them and offer greater possibilities for teaching sane and wholesome lessons. A certain small boy, who had several pet hens, gladly brought their little chickens into the house and cared for them by the open fire during an untimely spring snowstorm. Another small boy habitually spent his Saturday mornings caring for his guinea pigs, while his brothers and friends were playing. With the toy the child expresses what he already knows and is, but with the living thing he discovers himself and the life about him.

The ignorance of children, and adults, too, of the simplest, most ordinary facts of nature about them, is unnecessary and deplorable. We have been taught to memorize facts from books rather than to discover and appreciate them.

Give to the child some living thing that is his own to know, to love, and to care for. Some will find greatest delight in animals, such as ponies, pigs. dogs, cats, chickens, rabbits, fish, etc. Plant life, however, will interest many children more than we suspect, if they are allowed to plant and cultivate their own gardens. The lessons to be learned from either plant or animal life are so varied and important that every parent should take advantage of the opportunity and give to each child some living thing to care for, study, and love.—Dr. J. H. Francis.

* * *

Three Things.

Three things to love—courage, gentleness, affection; three things to admire—intellect, dignity, and gracefulness; three things to hate—cruelty, arrogance, and ingratitude; three things to delight in—beauty, frankness, and freedom; three things to like—cordiality, good humor, and cheefulness; three things to avoid—idleness, loquacity, and flippant jesting; three things to cultivate—good books, good friends, and good humor; three things to contend for—honor, country, and friends; three things to govern—temper, tongue, and conduct. Two things to think of—death and eternity.—Henry van Dyke.

* * *

I think the first virtue is to restrain the tongue. He is nearest to the gods who knows how to be silent even though he is in the right.—Cato.

$ $ $

Horace Mann, the great educator, would not allow a person of poor character to graduate from Antioch College, of which he was president, however fine a scholar the person might be. Mr. Mann held that an educated rascal was just so much the worse rascal, and he would not help to inflict such a peril upon the community.—Selected.

0 0 0

It is only a poor sort of happiness that could ever come by caring very much about our own narrow pleasures. We can only have the highest happiness by having wide thoughts, and much feeling for the rest of the world, as well as ourselves; and this sort of happiness often brings so much pain with it that we can only tell it from pain by its being what we would choose before everything else, because our souls see it is good.—George Eliot.

A Little Pink Rose.

"Dear me," sighed a little pink rose to the mother rosebush one cloudy day, "I wish I were that little bluebird up there in the tree. I would fly all over the world singing and making people glad."

"But there are only a few people, after all, who hear the bird's song," said Mother Rosebush. "It nearly always sings on a topmost bough, and often its song is lost in space; while you, little Rose, give pleasure to all who come in the garden or look this way in passing—and they rarely pass by without looking, because of the fragrance you send out on each little breeze."

"But that doesn't make people glad," persisted the little rose.

"O, yes, it does," said the mother. "You are such a bright spot in a dark day like this."

The little rose glowed with happiness at her mother's praise, and presently a pretty girl walking in the garden exclaimed: "O, what a lovely rose! I shall take it up to little Grace." And she snipped the stem on which the little pink rose bloomed and bore it away.

In a darkened room lay a little girl, talking in feverish, fretful tones. "I'm so tired, so tired, mamma! I want to get out in the open air—I want to run and play with little brother."

"You will, darling," said mother, soothingly, "by and by, when you are well and strong."

"But I want to go now, mamma," cried the tired child.
"I want to go into the garden and gather flowers—and soon the roses will be in bloom—O. I want to see them!"

"You shall, dear," said mamma, gently. "Just walt a little while."

At that moment the door opened and the girl who had gathered the little pink rose came in, holding the lovely flower up to the child.

"O, give it to me, please, nurse," cried the little sick girl. "I was just wanting to go into the garden—and you have brought me the sweetest flower that grows there." She held out a thin hand, and taking the little pink rose from the nurse's fingers, looked at it long and lovingly. "I am so glad to see you, little Rose," she said. Then she laid it close to her cheek on the snowy pillow and dropped sound asleep.

And the mother said to the nurse: "Did you ever see anything quiet her like that one little rose?"—Selected.

* * *

For my own part, I believe in the immortality of the soul, not in the sense in which I accept the demonstrable truths of science, but as a supreme act of faith in the reasonableness of God's work.—John Fiske.

Ø Ø Ø

The Sandman's Mistake.

One night dear mother said to me:
"The Sandman's coming soon for you,
And then it's hurry off to bed
For sleep the long night through."

I waited for the Sandman then, Although I did so want to play; But well I know when Sandman comes It's time to slip away.

But—O!—a little after that, I saw my mother rub her eyes, And then she dropped right off to sleep, So much to my surprise.

I watched her, and I laughed right out;
It was a funny thing to me:
The Sandman went to mother dear,
And not to me, you see!
—Selected.

Q

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Brother McQuiddy is taking a brief vacation.

James A, Allen preached at Dickson, Tenn., last Sunday.

- J. W. Grant began a meeting at Albany, Ala., last Lord's day.
- R. A. Craig closed his meeting at Bohon, Ky., with seven additions.
- I. B. Bradley is in a meeting at New Hope, in Cannon County, Tenn.

Robert Alexander has closed a meeting at Pleasant View, Tenn., with one baptism 3, D. Derryberry led the song

Joe Ratcliffe began a meeting at Stayton, Tenn., on Friday, August 27, to continue until the first Sunday in September.

- F. J. Rogers has closed a two-weeks' tent meeting at Mitchellyille, Tenn. Four were baptized and one gave up the Baptist name.
- C. A. Norred, the busy evangelist for the Harbert Avenue congregation, in Memphis, Tenn., reports fifteen baptisms in a meeting at Macon, Tenn.
- N. W. Proffitt, of Paris, Texas, began a meeting at the mission on Twenty-second Avenue, North, last Sunday, which will continue throughout the week.
- L. F. Mason has just closed a meeting at Flat Rock Church, near Lebanon, Tenn., with six baptisms. He expects to be at Whitewright, Texas, next Lord's day.
- A brief message from G. A. Klingman, written from Crawfordsville, Ind., on August 28, says: "Close here to-morrow night; seven added so far; others persuaded and may yet obey."

The Fanning Orphan School for Girls will open for the reception of pupils on September 9. For further information, address David Lipscomb, superintendent, Route 1, Nashville, Tenn.

Sister T. R. Hicks, of Bradentown, Fla., rejoices with others in the knowledge that S. H. Hall is to locate at Los Angeles, Cal She is visiting her daughter, Mrs. H. R. Curtis, in that city.

The following telegram was received from S. H. Hall, at Farmersville, Texas, on August 30: "Meeting eight days old, with forty-six conversions to date." We rejoice with Brother Hall and the Farmersville church.

J. Clifford Murphy, of Pulaski, Tenn., writes that he closed a good meeting five miles northwest of Athens, Ala., with three baptized and one reclaimed. The people seemed to be interested in the meeting all the way through and asked him to return.

From W. S. Greer, Antioch, Tenn., August 27: "The Hill's Chapel congregation is composed of a very few members. We have just closed a meeting, and the burden fell on the few. However, I will be glad to put the matter before the congregation for action."

B. L. Douthitt writes from Marmaduke, Ark., August 26: "I closed a nine-days' meeting at Spring Creek, Ky., on August 9. Five were baptized into Christ. This was my third meeting at that place. I am now in a good meeting at this place, with two confessions to date."

From R. A. Craig, Louisville, Ky.: "Our meeting at Swallowfield, Ky., closed with fifteen additions. Twelve were baptized and three came from the Baptists. J. K. P. South was with nte during the meeting, and I appreciated his company. I go next to High Bridge, Ky."

Wanted—A young man to lead or teach singing in school. We have a first-class high school that carries all modern courses. If you want to go to school and want to help pay or pay expenses, and can lead or teach singing, write W. L. Denton, principal, Clarksburg High School, Yuma, Tenn.

From John W. Hedge, Russellville, Ala., August 28: D. C. Williams and I are in a meeting at Isbell, near this place, with increasing crowds and interest. We go next to Hodges, Ala., for a meeting. On the second Lord's day in September I am to be with the church at Boone Prairie.

From Silas E. Templeton, Lyerly, Ga., August 24: "1 closed a meeting at Borden Springs, Ala., last Lord's-day morning. Three precious souls were baptized into Christ and much interest was manifested. I am now in a meeting at this place, with good interest manifested for the beginning."

From J. Ridley Stroop, Murfreesboro, Tenn., August 28: "I closed an eight-days' meeting last Sunday night at Owl Hollow, a small congregation about five miles from Winchester. There were six baptisms, with very good interest. Brother James Reynolds led the songs and preached on the last Sunday afternoon."

Sister Sarah Andrews, missionary in Japan, expects to start on her return trip on January 7, 1921. Contributions for her home-coming expenses should be sent without delay. Send them to I. B. Bradley, at Dickson, Tenn. Let us not forget this worthy sister, nor be unmindful of the sacrifice she has made.

Fred E. Exum, who is pleasantly remembered by Nashville Christians, has moved to Houston, Texas. He writes that "the city seems to have about the same population as Nashville, but has only four congregations. The citizenship is excellent, and the preachers of the church of Christ seem to be well received."

G. Dallas Smith, of Cleburne, Texas, recently passed through Nashville on his way to Fayetteville, Tenn. He had just closed a meeting at Alamo, Tenn., with two additions. He was to begin a meeting at Fayetteville last Sunday, where he expects to stay about two weeks. He reports that the work in Texas is moving on spiendidly.

From D. S. Ligon, Hobart, Ark., August 24: "It looks like I cannot get away from this place. Great Interest is being shown by many of the community. Seven more have been haptized. I will not get even a day's rest between this meeting and the meeting at Baline. I will close here Wednesday night and begin at Baline on Thursday night."

John W. Beasley conducted a very inspiring meeting of two weeks' duration for the Jones Avenue congregation, this city, which closed on Monday evening, August 23. Splendid interest was manifested throughout the meeting and the church is in excellent condition. There were nineteen additions—seventeen by baptism and two by restoration.

From T. S. Bain, Muskogee, Okia., August 23: "The work is progressing nicely with the East Okmulgee Avenue congregation. One young lady made the good confession and was baptized on Sunday. We have recently located several members who have moved to Muskogee the past few weeks. The date of our fall meeting has been advanced to September 3."

From S. H. Hall, Farmersville, Texas, August 23: "The meeting at Farmersville began yesterday with good crowds. Our house was run over last night, and there was one confession and one by statement. I will close here next Sunday night, then run up to Ada, Okla., to see Mrs. Hall's people, and on to Los Angeles the last of next week, the Lord willing."

From R. C. White, Finley, Tenn., August 27: "I closed a meeting of eleven days' duration at Wardell, Mo., Wednesday night. Fine interest and four baptisms. I began here last night, with a fine audience, for a week's work. This is another small band—only nine, I believe. I go from here by home to Kentucky for a meeting near Glasgow the first of September."

From N. W. Proffitt, Route 4, Lafayette, Tenn. August 25: "Our meeting at Old Freewill Church, Emberton, Ky. resulted in four baptisms. The meeting at this place is in full blast, with fine interest, but no additions yet. I will begin a meeting in Nashville, on Twenty-second Avenue, North, next Sunday, and at Sixth Avenue, North, on the second Sunday in September."

T. C. Fox recently held a well-attended meeting at Palmer's Chapel, during which four were baptized and two restored. He closed a meeting at Cub Creek, Davidson County, on Sunday, August 22. The attendance and interest were good and two were baptized. Sunday, August 29, he will begin a meeting near McMinnville, Tenn., to continue from ten to fifteen days.

From R. N. Gardner, Nashville, Tenn.: "J. H. Meade, of Abilene, Texas, will begin a series of meetings at Meade's Chapel, three miles on the Antioch pike, on the second Sunday in September. Brother Meade helped to establish this congregation twenty-five years ago. His friends are especially invited to attend this meeting. Preaching each evening at half past seven o'clock."

R. W. Jernigan writes: "The meeting at Grand Saline, Texas, closed on August 12. There were four baptisms, and much good in other ways was accomplished. I began a meeting at Curlee's, in Cannon County, Tenn., on the third Sunday in August and closed it on the following Saturday. Seven were baptized and four renewed their obligations. I began yesterday (the fourth Sunday) at Earlyville, in Warren County."

From Charlie Taylor, McKenzie, Tenn., August 26: "I recently closed a meeting at Almaville, in Rutherford County, which resulted in four baptisms. I am now at Friendship, near McKenzie. F. L. Paisley, of Memphis, is in the midst of a splendid meeting with the brethren leaducab, Ky., with six additions to date. Brother Paisley is a clear and forceful gospel preacher. We pray that much and lasting good may be accomplished."

Thomas E. Milholland writes from Madill, Okla., August 23: "Our meeting in Madill is in the second week, with eleven baptized and two placing their membership with us. The crowds are large, and the singing, led by Brother Antwine, is good. Many of our religious neighbors are attending; and knowing the terror of the Lord, we are persuading men. My next meeting will be at Teague, Texas, through the untiring efforts of that old hero, E. H. Rogers."

James J. Darnell writes from Morrison, Tenn., August 26: "Last night Charles R. Brewer closed a very interesting meeting here, with seven baptized and one restored, Brother Brewer impressed us as a good man, qualified to preach the whole truth, and his lessons were full of spiritual food, very impressive and instructive. We all enjoyed having him in our homes, and hope that his life may be long on the earth and that he may continue to reveal the unsearchable riches, for he is about his Father's business."

J. Will Henley writes from Coleman, Okla., under date of August 23: "I have just closed a meeting at Atwood, Okla., with thirty-one added. We had the best interest I have ever seen among the church members in that town. Leo Henley led the songs, and it was well done. This was my fourth meeting at Atwood; and although I have baptized many more in other meetings, I consider this the best meeting of the four. I will begin our home meeting to morrow night. I am not well and am worked down, but the work is too great to rest long."

William P. Walker writes: "Our meeting on Dyer Creek, near Dover, Stewart County, Tenn., closed last night. The Interest was the best that I have ever seen manifested in a series of meetings. E. P. Hall, one of the members, directed the song service. During the meeting three fathers, two mothers, and one daughter were baptized. One night during the meeting a business meeting was called. Three elders, three deacons, and a treasurer were chosen. F. P. Taylor, the other county evangelist, is now at Somerville in an interesting tent meeting."

From M. C. Cayce, Senatobia, Miss., August 28: "The meeting at Antioch, near Coldwater, closed last Friday night. Five were baptized and one restored. The attendance and interest were good throughout. I am now in an interesting meeting at Crockett, which began last Sunday and will continue until to-morrow night. Eight have been baptized and more are expected. From here I go direct to Jackson. I want to begin a tent meeting in Ridgeland, ten miles north of Jackson, on the first Sunday in September, Address me at 352 East Fortification Street, Jackson, Miss."

From J. W. Brents, Hollywood, Mo., August 24: "I have recently held two very fine meetings in Texas. At Dawson there were fourteen additions; at Pursley, a large country church near Corsicana, fourteen were added. I am now in a fine meeting here. Eight have already come; we look for more. Brethren whom I knew in former days are attending from Senath, Cardwell, Kennett, and other places. I have been instrumental in influencing a few families to move to Henderson to school, and also dozens have gone from here to the school there. My next meeting will be at Muskogee, Okla."

From R. D. Smith, Denton, Texas, August 23: "The meeting at Lubbock closed on Sunday night, August 15, with twenty-six baptized and several restored. The success of the meeting must be attributed to the faithful work of the church, together with the splendid assistance of my two brothers, Fred D. Smith, who is spending some time there trying to regain his health, and John T. Smith, who labors for the church. These last two assisted the church greatly in the way of the song service and otherwise. I am now back at home with the work at Denton, and find all things doing fine. Our improvements are being pushed to get all things ready for the time when the schools begin, so we can take care of the work properly."

Lee Jackson, the well-known Mississippi evangelist, writes us an interesting letter from Pelham, Tenn., where he is engaged in a meeting. He writes: "This is a small village in Grundy County, hidden in the western shadow of the Cumberland Mountain range. We have a good meetinghouse here, situated in a pretty locality, but in this immediate local neighborhood 'Christians only' are few in number. Polk Sims, one of our pioneer preachers, has his home near this place. This is also the home of W. P. Willis, a former student of the Nashville Bible School. These brethren are zealous and diligent in their work and worship. From this place I am expecting to visit Monteagle, which is only seven miles south of me. In the years gone by Granville Lipscomb preached to these brethren, and they yet love to talk of him."

John T. Smith writes from Lubbock, Texas, August 26: "Our meeting here began on August 1 and continued fifteen days. R. D. Smith, of Denton, did the preaching, and did it very effectively. Fred D. Smith and the writer directed the song service and assisted otherwise as they were able. The meeting was a great success from a number of standpoints. There were thirty additions to the congregation—twenty-four by baptism, five by restoration, and one by membership. The meeting was well attended from first to last and great interest was manifested by the whole church. I believe it was said that our day services were better attended than ever before in the church here. The church is in fine condition and is planning great things for the future. On the last Lord's day of the meeting we raised eighteen thousand dollars for our new church building. Our lot, which cost five thousand dollars, has been paid for, and we expect to begin work on the new church building soon. I am to begin a mission meeting at Littlefield, Texas, next Lord's-day night. Truly this is a great field, and laborers are rather scarce."

From F. P. Fonner, Buffalo, W. Va., Box 81, August 27: "I spoke to the people at home last Lord's day for the first time in three weeks. During that time I was totally disabled, and I am not out of danger yet. When Mrs. Fonner hurt herself, in my anxiety and distress I overdid myself, and this caused acute inflammation of certain internal organs, from which persons seldom recover. I am thankful, however, that I am a little better, and with proper treatment I hope for a full recovery. I am asking my brethren to help me financially, to enable me to secure proper treatment. This I believe they will do willingly and cheerfully. Please let every one send me some extra help now, without delay. I can use checks. But, regardless of our condition, kindly name a part of your offering to help out on our church house. We are looking for the material for the house at any time, and we lack two hundred and forty-seven dollars of having money enough to pay for it. This order does not include brick, seats, or paint. Kindly send us an offering now. When the house is finished, we will make a full statement."

Flavil Hall writes from Tyner, Tenn., August 27: "We are trying to do something at Tyner, Tenn., for the cause of New Testament religion. For many months the two faithful sisters with homes here—Mrs. W. W. Major and Mrs. Effic Harris-have been meeting in the former's home for the New Testament worship and conducting it them-Some other ladies have become interested and meet with them. They have purchased a lot with the restrictive clause in the deed and are resolute upon building a house of worship thereon soon. They will have to have help in this undertaking, and their zeal and courage should be incentive enough to stir the hearts of faithful disciples everywhere and cause them to send a donation than the work. She Mrs. W. W. Major, Tyner, Tenn., to help in the work. She is the wife of Prof. W. W. Major, principal of the High School here for twelve years. It is impracticable for these sisters to go to Chattanooga or Ooltewah for worship; but if they could go, it would be superlatively commendable for them to use their energies in an effort to establish apostolic faith and practice permanently here. I have been preaching here in the Methodist meetinghouse for Only one has been baptized, but the present eleven days. and future efforts cannot fail of success if we press onward with the work and worship, and this the faithful are re-solved to do. Will the Chattanooga and Ooltewah Christians longer neglect to send somebody here each Lord's day to encourage the work and to lead the worship with these sisters? My engagements will not let me return before December."

Query Department

By J. C. McQUIDDY

A brother who signs his name "X" asks an explanation of several passages. (1) He wants to know if one guilty of the sins mentioned in 1 Cor. 6: 9, 10 can comply with the law of pardon and be saved, or if these sins are unpardonable sins. (2) He wants to know, if it alienates the body from Christ, is there any chance for him to make his return to God, who is in Christ reconciling the world unto himself, though he from the heart complies with the law of pardon to the Christian? (3) He wants to know what sinning against the Holy Spirit is. (4) He asks: "If all manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men (Matt. 12: 31, 32), how can we harmonize this position with 1 John 5: 16, 17?"

1. The first passage inquired about (1 Cor. 6: 9-11) reads: "Or know ye not that the unrighteous shall not inherit the kingdom of God? Be not deceived; neither fornicators, nor idolaters, nor adulterers, nor effeminate, nor abusers of themselves with men, nor thieves, nor covetous, nor drunkards, nor revilers, nor extortioners, shall inherit the kingdom of God. And such were some of you; but ye were washed, but'ye were sanctified, but ye were justified in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and in the Spirit of our God." All of these sins may be confessed, repented of, and forgiven. Verse 11 shows this to be true, for the Corinfhians had been guilty of these sins, and had been washed, sanctified, and justified "in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ, and in the spirit of our God." If any of the sins mentioned were unpardonable, then many people could never be pardoned and saved.

2. This question is not clear as to its meaning. All sin places the sinner in a state of transgression and disobedience. Men must confess and turn away from all sin in order to stand justified in the sight of God.

3. As to what the sin against the Holy Spirit is, there has always been diversity of opinion. I quote here the answer of Brother Lipscomb given in "Queries and Answers." on pages 386, 387: "Many hold that those who charged Jesus with casting out devils by Beelzebub committed the sin against the Holy Spirit. The connection will bear that interpretation. Still, it will bear another construction. These persons sinned against Jesus in making this charge. He warns them: 'You may sin now against me, and find opportunities to repent; but the Holy Spirit will come, and if you reject him as you now do me, there will be no forgiveness, neither here nor hereafter.' The Holy Spirit was not the lawgiving and directing power at this time; it was not giving the law, so could not be sinned against. After he came as the lawgiver and ruler, then to reject his teaching would be to sin against him. Until Jesus came as the ruler and representative of God, men could not sin against or blaspheme him. They knew nothing of him: so until the Holy Spirit came as the guide and ruler and gave laws, none could sin against the Holy Spirit. Then, until the Holy Spirit came, none could sin against him. This is contrary to the generally received idea, but it is the only interpretation that I can harmonize with the other scriptures. Those who maligned, persecuted, and murdered Jesus did find forgiveness when brought by the Holy Spirit to repentance. The facts seem to be about this: Jesus came and performed his mission. Many rejected him. After he returned to his Father's throne, the Holy Spirit came to confirm the truth he taught and to add to his testimony; but when the Holy Spirit had performed his work, borne his testimony, there would be no further testimony or witness, and he who rejected his testimony then would be left to his own fate without further efforts to save. In other words, the Spirit would complete the testimony and would exhaust the provision that God had made for saving man. If man rejects these, there is nothing more to reach him. There would be no more sacrifice for sin or provision for mercy. According to this, the rejection of the teaching of the Holy Spirit and the refusal to be led by these teachings is the sin against the Holy Spirit. It is true that, after stating it, he said: 'Because they said, He hath an unclean spirit.' (Mark 3: 30.) Many conclude that he meant charging him with having an unclean spirit was this sin against the Holy Spirit. I think this is not what is meant. They made this charge of acting by the power of the devil against him, and he warns them that they might do this now to him and find forgiveness; but if they so rejected and treated the Spirit when he came, there would be no forgiveness. The sin can be committed now, and it seems a persistent refusal to obey the laws of the Spirit constitutes this sin. Any disobedience persisted in will be a sin against the Spirit."

4. We are told that all sin shall be forgiven, except the sin against the Holy Spirit. "Therefore I say unto you, Every sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men; but the blasphemy against the Spirit shall not be forgiven. And whosoever shall speak a word against the Son of man, it shall be forgiven him; but whosoever shall speak against the Holy Spirit, it shall not be forgiven him, neither in this world, nor in that which is to come." (Matt. 12: 31, 32.) The sin unto death, mentioned in 1 John 5: 16, 17, is a willful sin persisted in until death. This then would become the sin against the Holy Spirit, since any willful sin, persisted in until death, can never be forgiven. To divide sin into mortal and venial sin is to misunderstand the whole argument of the epistle and to seduce the conscience. The apostle only means that though prayer can do much for an erring brother, there is a wilifulness against which it would be powerless, for even prayer is not stronger than free will. The sin described in Heb. 6: 4-6, which is a willful sin, is a rejection of the Christ and can never be forgiven. For such a sin prayer should not be offered. The sin mentioned in Gal. 6: 1 is not unto death, Sinners in this case can be restored, and we may pray for them with the assurance that they will be. It is declared that the apostle wrote unto his children in order to lead them not to sin. "My little children, these things write I unto you that ye may not sin. And if any man sin, we have an Advocate with the Father, Jesus Christ the righteous: and he is the propitiation for our sins; and not for ours only, but also for the whole world." (1 John 2: 1, 2.) It is easy for God to forgive all sins save the sin against the Holy Spirit. "Wherefore also he is able to save to the uttermost them that draw near unto God through him, seeing he ever liveth to make intercession for them." (Heb. 7: 25.)

Choosing a Good Book.

Whether it be biography, introducing us to some humble life made great by duty done, or history, opening visias into the movements and destinies of nations that have passed away, or poetry, making music of all the common things around us and filling the fields and the skies and the work of the city and the cottage with eternal meanings—whether it be these or storybooks or religious books or science, no one can become the friend even of one good book without being made wiser and better.—Henry Drummond

Georgia and the Far Southern Field

By S. H. HALL

By B. C. GOODPASTURE

"Jesus Christ Is in You."

There is nothing that could mean more to us than to severely examine ourselves. "Severely" may not be the best word to use here, but it suits me better just now than any other word that I can call to mind. Being right with Gcd means too much to us not to be exceedingly careful in seeing that we are right with him, and daily remain so. It is so easy to think we are when we are not; hence the need of that kind of self-examination that never fails to reveal to us just what we are. The day is coming when we will wish, to our eternal regret, that we had more severely examined ourselves, if we are not careful. We need to know ourselves daily lest Satan lead us into that state of deception that means our eternal ruin. Paul certainly gave us most timely advice when he said: "Try your own selves, whether ye are in the faith; prove your own selves. Or know ye not as to your own selves, that Jesus Christ is in you? unless indeed ye be reprobate." (2 Cor. 13: 5.) Let us study these words carefully.

1. "Try your own selves." "Prove your own selves." I

1. "Try your own selves." "Frove your own selves." I hardly know why he says "your own selves," unless he knew so well our proneness to try and prove the other fellow. If we tried as hard to know our own selves as we sometimes do to prove the other fellow is wrong, that he is not what he caims to be, doubtless we would know more about ourselves. Not that it is not our duty, at times, to expose "wolves in sheep's clothing" and stop the mouths of "vain talkers and deceivers" (Tit. 1: 10, 11); but the point I want to make is that we should use more time in proving our own selves. There is not enough of this done. We cannot do too much of this, but we might do too much of this eternally being on the other fellow. There is danger of our losing sight of our own standing with God because of our having our mind, pen, and tongue too continually on some one else. The question of paramount importance to me is: How stands S. H. Hall in the sight of God? How does God see me and know me to be? What others may think is of little importance when compared to what God thinks. It is well that others think well of us, that we stand high in their love and esteem. God despises not this; he would have us be careful to have "a good report of them that are without." (1 Tim. 3: 7.) That man certainly has drifted far from a correct under standing of God's will who cares not what those with whom he associates think of him. He must desire most earnestly their undoubting confidence, and must be careful to let his conduct be above reproach of all reasonable people. But this love and esteem he may have, and it may lead him to believe that he stands as well with God, when the facts are the reverse.

the facts are the reverse.

2. "Know ye not as to your own selves, that Jesus Christ is in you? unless indeed ye be reprobate." Christ is in you! Well, is he? This is the vital question with every one of us. He is not in us unless his will is in us and we are making it the controlling rule of life. Are we doing this, first, in our homes; second, in all of our work and worship in the church; third, in all our dealings with our fellow man? It is not hard to learn exactly what his will is in these three fields of our thoughts and actions. Do we want his will to be done? Are we exceedingly anxious to let him rule us absolutely, so far as we are capable of surrendering to him and being ever clothed in his own thoughts and guided by his own mind? Christ cannot dwell in us in any other way. He ever goes and abide. "If a man love me, he will keep my word: and my Father will love him, and we will come unto him, and make our abode with him." (John 14: 23.) "He that abideth in the teaching, the same hath both the Father and the Son." (2 John 9.) Faith, repentance, and baptism most certainly is his teaching to aliens. In this we must abide when teaching them the way of life. But "let brotherly love continue," love your enemies, do unto others as you would have them do to you, be fruitful in every good work, give, read, work, and pray—these are all in his teaching also. Is this teaching dwelling in us richly? Do we love it, and is our meat and drink found in the doing of these things? To try and prove ourselves here will give us our standing with God.

New Testament Evangelism.

At this time a great deal is being said throughout the religious world concerning "evangelism." The appeal of the benighted millions in heathenism is sufficient to engage the attention and challenge the missionary zeal of Christendom. But when men seek to convert the world through their own plans, systems, and organizations, they inevitably fail. Some recent "movements" have all but come to naught; for example, the "Interchurch World Movement." It seems that we are soon to witness its tragic flasco. The evangelization of the world is the supreme problem of the church. (1 Tim. 3: 15; Matt. 28: 30.) It is the mission of the church. But it can be done only according to God's plan, "according to the pattern that was showed in the mount." (Heb. 8: 5.) Evangelism, or the preaching of the gospel, is "New Testament evangelism" when all its elements are in complete accord with the teachings of the New Testament.

* * *

The Evangelist.

In modern parlance, the preacher who compasses the whole country from "Dan to Beersheba," draws large crowds by the arts of the entertainer, and lengthens the church roll for mere numbers' sake, is styled and heralded as an "evangelist." He may do all these, and yet in no essential respect be a New Testament evangelist. Literally, an evangelist is "one who proclaims good tidings," or "a herald of glad tidings." The gospel is glad tidings. The word "evangelist" occurs three times in the New Testament (Acts 21: 8; Eph. 4: 11; 2 Tim. 4: 5), and every time it is used with reference to the proclamation of the gospel. "Philip the evangelist, who was one of the seven" (Acts 21: 8), well illustrates the primary use of the term. It will be remembered that immediately following the martyrdom of Stephen he "went down to the city of Samaria, and proclaimed unto them the Christ," and that "when they believed Philip preaching good tidings [literally evangelizing] concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus, they were baptized;" that he went into the desert to preach unto the cunuch, and later "preached the gospel to [literally evangelized] all the cities" from Azotus to Cesarea. (Acts 8: 5, 12, 35, 40.) Paul, writing to Timothy, said, "Preach the word," concluding his charge with the command: "Do the work of an evangelist, fulfill thy ministry." (2 Tim. 4: 2-5.) Again: "He gave some to be apostles; and some, prophets; and some, evangelists; and some, pastors and teachers: for the perfecting of the saints, unto the work of ministering, unto the building up of the body of Christ." (Eph. 4: 11, 12.) Let it be observed that Philip, the first-mentioned evangelist, was thoroughly missionary, preaching in places where the gospel had never gone; that evangelists were given "for the perfecting of the saints, unto the work of ministering, unto the building up of the body of Christ," their function or work; that every time the term "evangelist" is used the fact of preaching "glad tidings," or the gospel, is emphasized both in t

8 8 8

News Items.

- O. D. Bearden was at East Point on Sunday morning. Splendid audiences attended both services at West End Avenue yesterday (August 22).
- A. R. Hill preached twice at Griffin on Sunday. One came from the Baptists. He is now in a meeting at Liberty Hill.
- R. H. Rogers is in a good tent meeting at Lakewood Heights. He preached at South Pryor Street at the morning service.

Noah-A Man of Faith.

BY H. LEO ROLES.

As has been seen, Noah's faith brought him into close union with God, and this gave him great influence with Jehovah. Jehovah always respects his companions. Jehovah, in speaking of the destruction of a country and people, said: "Though these three men, Noah, Daniel, and Job, were in it, they should deliver but their own souls by their righteousness." (Ezek. 14: 14.) This shows that Jehovah would respect the request of Noah, Daniel, and Job, as he did the request of Abraham concerning Sodom; but the wickedness of that country was so great that only these three heroes of faith would be saved, and that by their righteousness. Jehovah respects the close association and walk with him. When one has entered into such a relationship, let him ask what he will, and it shall be, done unto him. It use to be customary to compliment a preacher who was fluent and eloquent in prayer as being powerful in prayer. The one who lives so close to God is the one who is powerful in prayer. Nothing is said about Noah's praying; but the very fact that he walked with God and was a man of faith implies his communion with God, and that means his heart went out in prayer to God. Walking with Jehovah, communing with bim, may be called a life of prayer.

Next let us notice the power of Noah's faith. By faith Noah was warned of things which were to come, things not seen as yet, things that were in the future. (Heb. 11: 7.) Probably Noah first learned that the flood was coming upon the earth a long time—one hundred and twenty years—before it came. When Jehovah told him that such a great calamity was coming, Noah believed it and began to regulate his own life in harmony with that prediction of Jehovah; also he began to persuade and teach his fellow citizens that it was coming and to be ready for it. Noah, by faith, did just what God commanded him to do in building the ark. The prophecies of the Bible are always amouncements of what must be if things remain as they Noah's faith was so strong that it enabled him to see in the future the destruction of the world. He understood that, unless conditions changed, the world was as good as destroyed when Jehovah said it. Hence, he went about trying to change the conditions by preaching righteousness. The things which Ged said would be were as real to him as if they were actually existing at the time. His faith enabled him to make the "things not seen as yet" real. The whole conduct of Noah was controlled for a hundred years by "things not seen as yet;" this is why he was moved with godly fear. He learned exactly what God wanted done, and did "according to all that God commanded him." It was this life of trust and power of faith that insured the ark.

His faith was a practical principle and sustained him under the most adverse circumstances. He began his work, continued it, and completed it without any support or sympathy from man, but with the tremendous opposition of public opinion and hostile forces. His faith enabled him to do this great work, and his faith becomes a condemnation to the unbelieving. Through the building of the ark, through his whole righteous life, through his faith, he condemns the world and becomes the heir of righteousness which is according to faith. The faithfulness with which he follows God's instruction rebukes the other class for not following it; his pleasing God condemns all who are displeasing to him; his obedience to God anathematizes all the disobedient of that age. Such is true to-day.

When one obeys God, that is a condemnation of all who are in rebellion against him. We see the influence of this manifested in the old antagonism and warfare between good and evil, righteousness and unrighteousness, obedience and disobedience, faithfulness and unfaithfulness, which began at the altars of Cain and Abel. The obedience to the gospel of Christ to-day is a condemnation of all who have the same opportunity, but do not obey it. When one lives the Christian life to-day in the presence of his fellow men, his very life is a condemnation of all wickedness and sin. How sinful it is in us, as the people of God, to become a party to encourage sin!

Our attitude toward sin must, like that of faithful Noah, be a condemnation of sin. Noah condemned the world by his faithful ebedience to God. Christ's faithfulness to God condemned the world. "For what the law could not do, in that it was weak through the flesh, God, sending his own Son in the likeness of sinful flesh and for sin, condemned sin in the flesh." (Rom, 8; 3.) The whole life of Christ as he lived upon earth was God's rebuke and condemnation of all ungodliness for all time. The Savier said: "The men of Nineveh shall stand up in judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for they repented at the preaching of Jonah; and behold, a greater than Jonah is here. The queen of the south shall rise up in the judgment with this generation, and shall condemn it: for she came from the ends of the earth to hear the wisdom of Solomon; and behold, a greater than Solomon is here." (Matt. 12: 41, 42.) So the faithfulness of Noah arises in judgment against all of the antedfluvian world.

As the smaller streams flow into the greater and as the rivers empty themselves into the ocean and are lost, so the whole course of events as recorded in the Bible, from the creation of the world, flows toward one grand era called in the Scriptures "the fullness of time;" this is the "manifestation of the Son of man in the flesh." The dignity of the patriarchs, the foreknowledge of the prophets, the sancitity of the priesthood, and the regal majesty of the kings all point toward Him who is "the everlasting Father," "the Prophet who should arise," the "Apostle and High Priest of our confession," the "Prince of the kings of the earth." Noah, a man of faith, a life of trust, obedience in building the ark, doing the will of Jehovah in saving others, becomes a type in many points of the Lord Jesus Christ.

David Lipseomb College Notes.

BY A. B. L.

Miss Irma Lee Batey, of Lewisburg, Tenn., will begin teaching at Woodbury, Tenn., on September 6. Arrangements have been made for a course in shorthand

Arrangements have been made for a course in shorthand and typewriting. Brother Joe Priestly, of Garfield, Tenn., will conduct it, Registration of students at David Lipscomb College begins on September 28. The formal opening exercises for the public will be held at 10 A.M. on October 1.

Miss Grace Hooper, our efficient primary teacher, who lives at Ashland City, Tenn., says: "I am going to do everything I can to remove the debt before school opens."

Rooms in both dormitories are being rapidly reserved. In order to avoid disappointment, prospective students should send five dollars for reservation of room at once.

Barney Morehead writes from Hurlock, Md.: "We boys from David Lipscomb College have done very well selling books." And the College is proud of these hustling boys.

The president of the College and his wife visited Lebanon, Tenn., last Friday. Several students are coming from that section. While in Lebanon we were very hospitably entertained by Miss Lillian Barry, a member of the class of 1920.

Miss Dorothy Pittman, a member of the 1920 class, is visiting Miss Lillian Barry, at Lebanon, Tenn. Miss Pittnan will teach music at Harper Christian College, Harper, Kan. Miss Barry will do postgraduate work at George Peabody College for Teachers.

E. G. Burton, of Columbia, Tenn., congratulates the College on securing the services of W. Claude Hall as teacher. Brother Burton writes: "I note in the Gospel Advocate that W. Claude Hall is to be with you in the David Lipscemb College, and wish to say that you are very fortunate in securing him, as I know him to be not only a good man and a good preacher, but one with fine ability to teach. Mr. Hall is also to be congratulated for having secured work in an institution doing the great work this school has done."

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION.

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in

$2.50 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $3.00, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order. In registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription to paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tah on your paper is changed; if not changed by that time, notify us at once.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 217-

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS, Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.

Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

EDITORIAL

Faith.

BY J. C. M'Q.

In the plan of salvation there is the God side and the man side. God has done much in providing the plan of salvation. So soon as man sinned in the garden of Eden, Omnipotence reached down a helping hand to lift him up from his fallen state. The love of God prompted him to give his own dearly beloved Son for the redemption of mankind. "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whoseever believeth on him should not perish, but have eternal life." (John 3: 16.) The preparatory work of the patriarchal and Jewish dispensations, the ministry of John the Baptist, and the personal ministry of our Lord all served the purpose of leading men to accept the mission of Christ to the world.

But it is not the purpose of this article to consider what God has done or what Christ has done or what the apostles and the Holy Spirit have done in the scheme of redemption, but to consider the man side of salvation-that is, what man himself must do in the acceptance of the proffered salvation. "For what if some were without faith? shall their want of faith make of none effect the faithfulness of God? God forbid: yea, let God be found true, but every man a liar; as it is written, That thou mightest be justified in thy words, and mightest prevail when thou comest into judgment. But if our unrighteousness commendeth the righteousness of God, what shall we say? Is God unrighteous who visiteth with wrath? (I speak after the manner of men.)" (Rom. 3: 3-5.) This was not written for Abraham alone, but it was written for our sake also: "Now it was not written for his sake alone, that it was reckoned unto him; but for our sake also, unto whom it shall be reckoned, who believe on him that raised Jesus our Lord from the dead." (Rom. 4: 23-25.) Thus it is clear that Christ gave himself freely for our trespasses and was raised for our justification. It does not follow, however, that Christ brings to us an unconditional salvation. for we learn from Heb. 5: 8, 9: "Though he was a Son, yet learned obedience by the things which he suffered; and having been made perfect, he became unto all them that obey him the author of eternal salvation." When the divine philanthropy had perfected the plan of salvation, Christ said to the eleven apostles: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matt. 28: 19, 20.) The same commission as recorded in Mark 16: 15, 16 reads: "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved: but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." The apostles were inspired, commissioned, and commanded to go into all the world and preach the gospel to every creature in order that men might believe in Christ and accept the proffered salvation. The apostles were obedient to this; so "their sound went out into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world." We learn also from Col. 1: 23 that the gospel of Christ was preached in all creation under heaven. In harmony with the appointment of Jehovah, we find that the gospel was preached so that men might believe it, accept it, and obey it, and rejoice in the hope of everlasting life. This thought is forcibly expressed in Rom. 10: 14-17, which reads: "How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent? even as it is written. How beautiful are the feet of them that bring glad tidings of good things! But they did not all hearken to the glad tidings. For Isaiah saith, Lord, who hath believed our report? So belief cometh of hearing, and hearing by the word of Christ."

The entire orthodox religious world is agreed that there is no promise of salvation from sin without faith. Right here it should be stated that there is a present salvation. which is deliverance from past sin, and there is an eternal salvation. The salvation that is to be considered in this article in connection with faith is salvation from past sins. While it is true that some of the passages may refer to both salvations, yet it is the intention of the writer to emphasize the conditions that must be complied with in order to enjoy the remission of sins. Attention to conditions essential to the enjoyment of eternal salvation will be considered hereafter. Let it be clearly understood that these conditions of salvation are not classed with the works of the law of Moses. When people take the position that a man can be saved without works, they should tell the public whether they mean the works that belong to the law of Moses or if they call the conditions of salvation laid down by Christ "works." They should tell us whether they cut out the "good works" referred to in Eph. 2: 10, which God has ordained that we should walk in them in order to the enjoyment of eternal salvation. Much confusion arises because men do not discriminate between man's works and God's works. No one contends that man can work his way to heaven and that he can be saved by meritorious work, but there are many who believe and teach that it is absolutely essential for a man to comply with the conditions of salvation as taught by Christ before he can enjoy the favor of God. By consulting the Bible we learn that even faith itself is called a "Jesus answered and said unto them, This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." (John 6: 29.) This being true of faith, it is also true of repentance, baptism, confession, prayer, and any other act of obedience that God has ordained. No man can enjoy the promise of salvation without faith. "And without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that seek after him." (Heb. 11: 6.) "But he that doubteth is condemned if he eat, because he eateth not of faith: and whatsoever is not of faith is sin." (Rom. 14: 23.) There is no promise of salvation without faith. A man could as easily blot the sun from existence as enjoy the remission of his past sins without exercising faith in God and the Lord Jesus Christ. Again, we learn that faith is a condition of salvation, and not the only condition, from Mark 16: 16: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." It is undoubtedly true that the faith that justifies is a faith that comes out in action-a faith that speaks out, acts out, and does just what God says do. While justification is by faith, it is not the mere assent of the mind-that is dead and works not. Every example of faith that we have in the Bible where we find that men were blessed and approved by God is a faith that came out in obedience. The eleventh chapter of Hebrews very clearly demonstrates this truth. Abel had the faith that led him to make the offering as directed by Jehovah. Enoch had the faith that led him to walk with God. Noah had the faith that prompted him to build the ark just as God commanded him to do. Abraham had the faith that staggered not at God's command; but when God told him to go to Mount Moriah and offer his son as a burnt offering, he went, and called it "worship." This is true of all the faithful patriarchs of whom we read. No man has ever been blessed and approved by Jehovah who did not have sufficient faith to obey the command of God.

Bible Things by Bible Names Further Considered. BY M. C. K.

It would be difficult to exaggerate the vital bearing and Importance of the two facts with which our recent article on this theme closed. Let us refresh our minds with a substantial restatement of them. (1) The term "church," as used in the religious sense in the New Testament, means Christians or the children of God under the leadership of Christ. (2) As thus used in that volume, it always, without exception, includes all Christians or children of God in the locality or territory to which it is applied. The reader may safely rest on these two facts, for there is not a solitary exception to either one of them in all the word of God.

But we of to-day are in the midst of denominationalism, which means that the people of God in this period of their history are unfortunately divided into clashing and conflicting parties precisely as they were divided in the city of Corinth in Paul's day, only the divisions of modern times are on a much larger scale, with the chances for confusion in the use of Biblical language greatly increased. Without stopping here to discuss in detail the steps which, according to the New Testament, are essential to entrance into the church, we may observe that, while many persons in at least some of the denominations have not complied with all the terms of admission and hence are not in the church, nevertheless, many others in the different denominations have complied with them and are, therefore, in spite of their erroneous practices otherwise, in, and are a part of, the church. The members constituting the different divisions or parties in the church at Corinth were, nevertheless, all in the church in spite of their erroneous teachings and practices, and in writing to them Paul addressed them all as "the church of God which is at Corinth." (1 Cor. 1: 2; 2 Cor. 1: 1.) Among them there were Paulites, Cephasites, Apollosites, and those who were simply Christians, or who held to the name of Christ alone; yet Paul recognizes them all as being in, and a part of, the church of God at that place.

Moreover, let it be distinctly observed just here that even those among them who rejected the names of Paul, Cephas, and Apollos, and consistently held to the name of Christ alone, he did not address as "the church of God which is at Corinth," for the simple reason that they were not "the church," but only a part of the church. The fact that they were not involved in error as were the others did not make them exclusively the church. The others, who were egregiously involved in error on some things and were sinning in being broken up into conflicting parties and divisions, were, nevertheless, in spite of their erroneous practices, a part of the church of God at Corinth; and hence, all of them of all the parties were addressed by the apostle as "the church of God which is at Corinth."

In precisely the same way to-day, when persons do what God has commanded them to do for that purpose, they enter into, and become a part of, His church, and their unfortunate denominational entanglement in error on other points in no wise affects this fact. This does not mean, nor does it imply, that persons among them who have not done what God has commanded for that purpose, but have merely complied with a substitute for it, are also in the church. No one can properly claim that persons are in the church of God unless they have complied with the terms which God himself has stipulated for that purpose, and not merely a substitute for them. But when they have complied with the identical terms stipulated by God for the purpose, they enter into, and become a part of, His church in spite of the fact that they may be involved in error and make mistakes on other points; and hence, in any attempt to consider or speak of the church of God in such a situation and environment, we are compelled, if we would speak as the Bible speaks, to recognize these facts in our speech. To refuse to recognize persons as being in the church of God, when they have complied with God's own terms of admission, merely because they make mistakes on other points, would make it proper to deny that any of us, who make mistakes in any way whatever, are in His church.

In another article it is the purpose to deal directly with the matter of correct speech in referring to the church.

SELECTIONS BY THE EDITOR

Intend honestly and leave the event to God.—Æsop.

It is a much shallower and more ignoble occupation to detect faults than to discover beauties.—Carlyle.

What men want is not talent, it is purpose; not the power to achieve, but the will to labor.—Bulwer-Lytton.

A home without books is like a hearth without a fire, a purse without money, a life without love, a world without a sun.—Selected.

Let us not concern ourselves about how other men will do their duties, but concern ourselves about how we shall do ours.—Lyman Abbott.

Reverence the highest, have patience with the lowest. Are the stars too distant? Pick up the pebble that lies at thy feet.—Margaret Fuller.

It is not written, "Blessed is he that feedeth the poor," but he that "considereth the poor." A little thought and a little kindness are often worth more than a great deal of money.—Ruskin.

Current Thought

Is Preaching Necessary?

I learn from the Literary Digest that the question is being seriously debated both in England and in this country whether the sermon is now a necessary part of the church service. It appears that in the Lambeth Conference of the Anglican Bishops the abolition of the sermon as a requirement is being considered. The question as to the value of preaching has been the subject of sharp dispute since John Spargo's indictment of it as "the weak spot in the church of to-day-its Achilles tendon." A small army of lay and clerical writers rushed to the pulpit's defense. While teaching is a necessary part of the worship of God, I would not say that the regular sermon is necessary in order to the growth and development of the local congregation. God has placed bishops in the church, whose duty it is to oversee, teach, and feed the flock. But that preaching is a work in the church of Christ, no one will dispute who has any regard for the word of God. When all authority and all power in heaven and on earth had been given unto Christ, he commanded the eleven disciples: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matt. 28: 19, 20.) We learn also from the commission as recorded by Mark that he commanded the apostles: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." (Mark 16: 15, 16.) Acting under this commission for the first time, we learn that on the day of Pentecost, Peter, standing up with the eleven, preached Jesus the Christ to the multitude, and about three thousand obeyed the gospel of Christ. At Solomon's portico, when the gospel was preached, the number grew to be about five thousand. We also learn that Philip, the evangelist, preached the gospel in the city of Samaria, and great numbers obeyed the truth. "But when they believed Philip preaching good tidings concerning the kingdom of God and the name of Jesus Christ, they were baptized, both men and women." (Acts 8: 12.) Also, Peter, the great apostle to the Gentiles, shunned not to declare all the counsel of God. In writing to the Corinthians, he says: "And I, brethren, when I came unto you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, proclaiming to you the testimony of God. For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling. And my speech and my preaching were not in persuasive words of wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power." (1 Cor. 2: 1-4.) We find that the apostles preached the gospel unto every creature under heaven and that their sound went into all the earth. It is certainly no little job to earnestly, faithfully, and efficiently proclaim the gospel of Christ. Not only so, but we know that everywhere this is done men are led out of darkness into light. The cause of failure to-day is that men have ceased to preach the gospel in its fullness-that they have ceased to labor to please God rather than men and have turned aside to preaching the wisdom of men instead of the wisdom of God. Preachers of the gospel should go everywhere publicly proclaiming the word; they should heed the admonition of Paul to Timothy, "Preach the word." They should realize that "woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel" of Christ. They should declare the whole counsel of God. When they have done this, and have done it in the same spirit that Paul preached the gospel to thousands, many will be led to obey the Christ. As did the early church, they should establish churches and appoint elders in every city. These elders, or pastors, should teach, develop, and guide the churches. It should not be necessary to call a preacher to do this work. Preachers should be ealled in when churches grow cold and need exhortation and arousing to a greater activity in the work of winning souls to Christ. A weak man with the gospel story is strong.

0 0 0

Why Is the House of the Lord Forsaken?

Why is the house of the Lord forsaken? About seven thousand of our preachers are asking the same old question which Nchemiah asked many years ago. Why don't the brethren go to church? Why do three-fourths of our members stay away from evening service? And the answer is not in church "movies" nor fine music, but the answer is in the Book. The stewardship of life begins with the stewardship of money—a proportion of a man's money brought to the Lord's house as the acknowledgment of divine ownership of all. Because Nehemiah's folks had withheld their tithes, the preachers had jumped their jobs—fied to their own fields, or were selling life insurance—and so the Lord's house was forsaken. I'll take off my hat to Nehemiah. He found out why!

Jesus says where a man's treasure is, there his heart will be—and, naturally, his legs also, and the whole man sitting there on the front row in the meetinghouse.

Treasure! Say, fellows, all the treasure you and the deacons and the ladies' aid have been able unscripturally to extract from the average one of us is not even one-tenth, but a little, mean, covetous one-fortieth of our income! And that unwilling one-fortieth is hardly big enough to draw the heart of a tin lizard to church on a hot Sunday morning. I know of a little country church of forty-three members which showed, last year, a church attendance of the membership of eighty-five per cent, with an influenza epidemic, and in a cheap frame building, and without a regular minister, too! Why? Well, their hearts' interest just followed their tithes of three thousand one hundred and fifty dollars and their offerings of four hundred dollars more up to the Lord's house—that's all.

How you preachers have suffered for having robbed us fellows of the joy of faithful stewardship, and how we have suffered because we have robbed God's cause and the preachers every year of tens of millions of needed dollars! Why is the house of the Lord forsaken? How long, O Lord, before we wake up, read the Book, and show that we have some honest-to-goodness Bible horse sense?—Arthur A. Everts, in Christian Standard.

The above is worthy of very serious consideration. The great reason why people do not attend church is because their hearts are not in the service of the Lord. People who have the spirit of Christ delight to wait upon the Lord in his appointments. They do not wait to be coaxed and urged, but voluntarily and cheerfully go to the house of the Lord. Men who know the truth and love the truth are ready to sacrifice their means in order to spread the gospel of the Lord Jesus Christ. The man who is truly interested in advancing the kingdom of Jesus Christ is not seeking to see how little he can do and go to heaven, but his purpose and one ambition in life is to do all that he can to the honor and glory of God.

0 0 0

Let the day begin without hurry and without indolence, with just such ordering of the time as shall allow a restful and untroubled beginning. If the birds are singing, listen to them. Commence the day with the Bible and with prayer. Tell the other members of the family how you love them. Talk a bit at the breakfast table about the blessings of God and his goodness. Let the day begin with mellow good feeling and kindliness.—Selected.

A RECORD THAT SHOULD CONVINCE YOU

Of the merits of Hood's Sarsaparilla as the standard blood purifier, appetizer and tonic. Originated in a famous physician's prescription more than 50 years ago. Adopted as the regular family medicine in thousands of American homes. Has met the tests of a half-century with universal success. Made from the best known roots, herbs, barks and berries named in the Dispensatory. Will prove its merit to you if you will give it a trial. As a good cathartic, Hood's Pills.

CHURCH NEWS

Arkansas.

Glenwood, August 22.—I am here at Glenwood in a meeting that will close to-night. There are some good brethren here, and we hope to do much good with the meeting. I shall go from here and spend a few days at Hot Springs for my health, as I am just barely able to keep my work going and have some hard stretches of work yet ahead of me before the summer is over. I go to Nola, Ark, for my next meeting, beginning on August 28. Pray for me. I trust, by the help of God and the prayers of the saints, and other kind help from them, to yet be restored to my old-time health and vigor. I need your prayers and other assistance. Always address me at Comanche, Okia.—U. G. Wilkinson.

Kentucky.

Bardwell, August 24.—I closed an eight-days' meeting with the Antioch Church, near Dresden, Tenn., last Sunday. Three were baptized, one took membership, and two were restored.—Joe Ratcliffe.

Wingo, August 25.—1 closed the meeting at Cairo, Tenn., last Sunday, with five added to the church. One came from the Methodists, one from the Baptists. I will hold their meeting next year, the Lord willing.— Alonzo Williams.

Michigan.

Akron, August 23.—The meeting here still continues. Our crowds have been increasing. There have been no additions to date. We mean to remain here over next Lord's day and then return to Flint for some more work.—Leslie G. Thomas.

Mississippi.

Ackerman, August 23.—The meeting at Nile closed last Thursday night with fourteen additions. I am now at Holly Ridge in a good meeting. I knew of only two members here when I came here, but I find others that say they are willing to worship as God directs. This is a fine country. Pray for this work.—H. D. Jeffcoat.

Tennessee.

Petersburg, August 26.—The meeting at Friendship, in this (Linceln) county, closed last night. There was one addition from the Methodists.—R. N. Moody.

Rives, August 23.—Our meeting at Englewood, in this county, closed last night. We consider it a successful one. Three were baptized, and every one seemed to be interested.—D. D. Woody.

Livingston, August 23.—Our meeting at Zion, in Jackson County, came to a close yesterday, after eight days' duration. Two were added by baptism. Attention and interest were very good. Brother Brewington was with me in this meeting. I go next to Clay County.—Willie Hunter.

Buchanan, August 24.—I began a meeting with the Mount Zion congregation on the second Lord's day in August, which closed on the following Friday night. Interest was good throughout. The meeting resulted in seventeen additions, two of whom were from the Baptists. Thirteen were baptized, two were restored, and two took membership.—Charles Sweatt.

Trezevant, August 24.—Brother W. E. Morgan has just closed a meeting here with nine baptisms. The interest was good throughout the meeting. Brother Reavis, of Dresden, conducted the song service. We feel that the congregation was strengthened in the most holy faith by having Brother Morgan with us. May God's richest blessings ever abide with him and all the faithful.—J. E. Green.

Fort Henry, August 24.—The meeting at the Blue Springs church of Christ began on the first Sunday in August and continued eleven days. Brother W. A. Record, of Paducah, Ky., did the preaching. There were cleven additions—ten baptized and one from the Baptists. The church was well pleased with the meeting and plans to do more work for the Lord than ever before.—T. W. Wallace.

Bethel Springs, Route 2, August 23.—The meeting at Refuge, conducted by Brother R. L. Colley, began on August 8 and continued six days. Although it rained every day—one service was entirely rained out—the crowds were good and manifested interest. Five were added to the church. Brother Colley presents the truth in a manner that leaves no room for doubt or disputation.—D. M. Archer

Lucy, August 19.—The meeting at Giltage closed on August 14. There were eight additions. We had very large crowds and splendid interest. This is a mission point. The brethren have bought a lot and are going to build a meetinghouse right away. They had the restrictive clause put in the deed. My next meeting will be at Lock, the home congregation, and will continue until August 29.—Porter Norris.

Cookeville, August 25.—I closed a splendid meeting last night at Mc-Broom's Chapel. The meeting continued for ten days with large crowds and fine interest. The results were fourteen additions—twelve baptisms. This was my second meeting at this place. Last year we had the same rumber added. I was asked to return again next year, and will try and do so. This is a splendid country congregation.—Charles L. Talley.

Nashville, August 23.—My meeting at O'Conner, in White County, was well attended. There were two baptisms, and some returned to their place in the church and confessed their sins. Others said they had learned their duty and intended to become Christians soon. Brother A. G. Freed is now in a meeting in Sparta, and it is hoped that they may hear him and obey before it is too late. I shall begin a meeting at Bethel, near Friendship, next Sunday.—W. S. Long.

Lyles, August 24.—Brother E. L. Cambron began a meeting at Parham's Chapel on the third Sunday in July and closed it on Friday night following with three additions. He came from there to my home and began a tent meeting on the fourth Sunday, closing on the following Friday night with one baptism. This is our fourth tent meeting here during the past

You Do More Work,

You are more ambitious and you get more enjoyment out of everything when your blood is in good condition. Impurities in the blood have a very depressing effect on the system, causing weakness, laziness, nervousness and sickness.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC restores Energy and Vitality by Purifying and Enriching the Blood. When you feel its strengthening, invigorating effect, see how it brings color to the cheeks and how it improves the appetite, you will then appreciate its true tonic value.

GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC is not a patent medicine, it is simply IRON and QUININE suspended in Syrup. So pleasant even children like it. The blood needs Quinine to Purify it and IRON to Enrich it. These reliable tonic properties never fail to drive out impurities in the blood.

The Strength-Creating Power of GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC has made it the favorite tonic in thousands of homes. More than thirty-five years ago, folks would ride a long distance to get GROVE'S TASTELESS Chill TONIC when a member of their family had Malaria or needed a body-building, strength-giving tonic. The formula is just the same today, and you can get it from any drug store. 60c per bottle.

GIRLS! USE LEMONS FOR SUNBURN, TAN

Try it! Make this lemon lotion to whiten your tanned or freckled skin.

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle, sunburn and tan lotion, and complexion whitener, at very, very small cost.

Your grocer has the lemons and any drug store or toilet counter will supply three ounces of Orchard White for a few cents. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands and see how quickly the freckles, sunburn, windburn and tan disappear and how clear, soft and white the skin becomes. Yes! It is harmless.

four years, with large crowds, but only three additions. Brother Cam-bron went from here to New Antioch, where he began a meeting on the first Sunday in August, closing on Friday night with three baptized and the church much strengthened. I have been hearing Brother Cambron four years, and I firmly believe he is one of the most earnest teachers I ever heard. I wish to say that I have about recovered from a recent nervous breakdown and am anxious to tell "the old, old story" again. Any brother or congregation wanting my services should address me at Lyles, Tenn. Route 2. Remember, I am not hunting for the place that pays the most money, but I want to meet peo-ple who are hungering for the "bread of life."-W. A. Sisco.

Lebanon, August 25.—The meeting at Garrett, Texas, began on the first Lord's day in August and continued twelve days. Rainy, threatening weather hindered the progress of the meeting very much, yet we had a great meeting. Eleven people were great meeting. Eleven people were baptized into Christ. Garrett is one of my old stamping grounds, and I enjoyed the work with the people there very much. There are so many good, faithful brethren and sisters there. Brother Ira Winterrowd and wife were with us, and he led the singing and rendered much valuable help and encouragement otherwise. He is making himself felt as a preacher of the gospel. Brother Jesse P. Sewell, president of Abilene Christian College, was with us on the second Lord's day of the meeting, and in the afternoon made a great and stirring speech on "Christian Education." Brother Davis, from Austin, and who will locate at Ennis soon to work with the church there, and Brother Boley, who has been elected superintendent of the Garrett school, were with us on the last evening of the meeting. Texas is a great State and has some great people and some great institutions in it. The church of Christ is about one hundred and fifty thousand strong in Texas, and they are building up and supporting some great institutions. Abilene Christian College, Thorp Spring Christian College, the Chair of the Bible at the University at Austin, and Bell Haven Orphans' Home at Luling deserve mention. On August 13, at 6:35 A.M., I boarded the train at Ennis for home; at 1:30 P.M. I was joined at Commerce, Texas, by was joined at Commerce, Texas, by wife and Paul; and we arrived at Lebanon, August 14, at 11 P.M. After getting only a few hours of sleep and rest, I arose the next morning and was ready to leave by ten o'clock for my meeting at Taylorville, seven miles out from Lebanon. I closed an eight-days' meeting there last Lord'seight-days' meeting there last Lord's-day evening, Brother Wilburn Derryberry led the singing and rendered valuable help otherwise. Three young men were baptized and the church was sreatly encouraged. The church at this place is weak numerically, but there are some good, dependable people in it who will continue to "contend for the faith." I begin a meeting at Rans, in Bedford County, next Lord's day.—George W. Farmer.

Tired Mothers. It's hard work to take care of children and to cook, sweep, wash, sew, and mend besides. Tired mothers should take Hood's Sarsaparilla—it refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, assures restful sleep, and helps in many ways.

Bobby and Betty Have a Picnic

Bobby and Betty are having a picnic, and don't you wish you were there? The big freezer full of ice cream costs only half the usual price, for it was made of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder and there never was better ice cream at any price.

All grocers and storekeepers sell Jell-O Ice Cream

Powder in four flavors and unflavored.

Use

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic (Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Inflammation)

A dependable preventative of diseases of the air passages and an excellent curative agent for inflammatory conditions of the skin and mucous membranes. Does not injure delicate skin. Fine for baby. There's a wonderful amount of comfort, health and protection in a 2 oz. jar. 50c at your druggist's or by mail from Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

No Risk With "Diamond Dyes"

Don't Streak your Material in Dyes that Fade or Run

Each package of "Diamond Dyes" con-Each package of "Diamond Dyes" contains directions so simple that any woman can diamond-dye a new, rich, fadeless color into worn, shabby garments, draperies, coverings, whether wool, silk, linen, cotton or mixed goods.

Buy "Diamond Dyes"—no other kind—then perfect results are guaranteed even if you have never dyed before. Druggiet if you have never dyed before. Druggist as color card.

VICTOR PORTABLE STEREOPTICONS

AND

VICTOR PATENTED

AND

FEATHERWEIGHT STANDARD SLIDES

ARE

giving absolute satisfaction to thousands of clergymen: Attendance Attendance at church and Sunday school may be rapidly increased by Visual Prasentation of Bible Subjects.

Special Trial Terms to Clergymen.

Catalogues mailed upon request.

VICTOR ANIMATOGRAPH CO.

(Incorporated)

Victor Building, Davenport, Iowa.

TETTERINE

Ends Complexion Worries

Healing, Antiseptic, Soothing, Fragrant.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Respect for others increases as our insight increases into human life and destiny.

A Christian is helpless if alone, but we might almost say he is almighty if God uses him.

Weakness in the Christian life is the measure of independence as contrasted with surrender to the will of God.

INVENTIVE GENIUS ROBS CALOMEL OF NAUSEA AND DANGER

Doctors' Favorite Medicine Now Purified and Refined from All Objectionable Effects. "Calotabs''-the New Name.

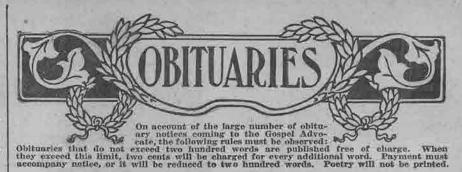

What will human ingenuity do next? Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, horseless carriages, colorless todine, tasteless quininc,—now comes nausealess calome! The new improvement called "Calotabs" is now on sale at drugstores.

For biliousness, constipation and indigestion the new calome! tablet is a practically perfect remedy, as evidenced by the fact that the manufacturers have authorized all drugsists to refund the price if the customer is not—perfectly delighted with Calotabs One tablet at bedtime with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping, no salts By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite Eat what you please—no danger—go about your business.

Calotabs are not sold in bulk Get an outginal package, sealed. Price, thirty-five cents.—(adv.)

Miller.

Sister Mary Ann Miller, wife of Brother J. D. Miller, died at their home, Conway, Ark., on July 6, 1920, and was buried in Spring Hill Ceme-tery, near her old home, where a large number of her friends had gathered to pay their last respects and to express their esteem of her. Sister Miller was born on February 27, 1847, and she and Brother Miller had been married almost fifty years. She obeyed the gospel under my preaching a number of years ago when the congregation here was holding a mission meeting out from town, and she and Brother Miller were both baptized in the Arkansas River. She leaves Brother Miller alone, but with full assurance of faith that on the resurrection morning she will receive that welcome plaudit: "Well done, thou good and faithful servant." J. C. Dawson.

Lucas.

Charles F. Lucas was born in Saint Joseph, Mo. After a lingering illness of tumor on the brain, he died on June 29, 1920, aged fifty-seven years. He moved from Saint Joseph to Kentucky when two years of age. reared on a farm near Paducah, at Florence Station. He had lived in Florence Station. He had lived Paragould, Ark., fifteen years. was baptized into Christ in early manhood, and was a member of the church of Christ at his death. He leaves, to mourn his death, a faithful and loving wife; two daughters-Mrs. Marie Hurd and Miss Ethel Lucas; an aged moth-er; one sister—Mrs. Adamson; two brothers—Ed Lucas, of Saint Francis, and A. J. Lucas, of Paris, Ky.; but we mourn not as those who have no We feel assured we will meet our loved one beyond this veil of tears, where we will take no more the parting hand. HIS MOTHER.

Dedmon.

Johnnie Dedmon was born on August 6, 1868, near Hickman, Tenn., and departed this life on April 13, 1920. He was married to Miss Nellie Mason, of Sykes, Tenn., on January 16, 1910. He obeyed the gospel in July, 1918, at Sykes, being baptized by Brother G. W. Farmer, under whose teachings he was made to realize his duty toward God. His death was due to pneumonia, and came as a great shock to his many friends and loved ones. He has gone to take his place with the many precious ones who have gone on before "to an inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled," in that "house not made with hands," among whom he shines with a luster not of earth, but reflected alone from the Heavenly Father's face. He is survived by a wife, five children, an aged father, and four brothers, who mourn his death. Funeral services were conducted by Brother G. W. Farmer, in the presence of a large number of sorrowing friends and loved ones, after which his body was tenderly laid to rest in the Union Hill Cemetery, to await the resurrec-ALTA TITTSWORTH. tion morn.

Murphy.

On January 22, 1920, God in his infinite wisdom saw fit to take the soul of our little daughter, Etheleene Mur-phy, home to be with Jesus. She was born on October 12, 1918. She leaves a father, mother, grandfather, grandmother, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her death. It was hard indeed for us to give her up; for she was a winsome, sweet little darling, a little sunbeam sent to shine in our home. She was stricken with infantile paralysis, and lived only two weeks after taking sick. Just a little flower that bloomed only a short while, "Little Etheleene" was known far and near. She was such a beautiful child, too sweet and good to live in this troublesome world. While we are sad, yet we have such consolation as had David of old: She cannot come back to us, but we can go to her. Our little darling has gone to be an angel, where there will be no more sad partings; for Jesus said: "Suffer little children, and ferbid them not, to come unto me: for of such is the kingdom of heaven." VIOLET LEE MURPHY.

Tenpenny.

Brother Hurrin Lafayette Tenpenny. son of Brother and Sister Tenpenny, son of Brother and Sister Tenpenny, of Woodbury, Tenn., died on February 2, 1920. He had lived in this world since June 21, 1894. Brother Tenpenny was baptized about eight years ago, and lived a faithful life. He enjoyed the services of the church, and after he became too weak to go to the meetinghouse he often spoke of it, and would have them take him in the buggy, sit there by the window, to be present on Lord's day. "A good name is rather to be chosen than great riches, and loving favor rather than silver and gold." In his Father's house is where he shed the light of his true and noble boyhood and proved his Christian virtue. "By their fruits ye shall know them." He is survived by his father, mother, two sisters, and three brothers. To these I would say: Weep not, as others who have no hope, but let us all try to meet him in the better land. Funeral services were conducted by the writer.

J. P. CUELEE.

The mental faculties cannot do the work that belongs to the spiritual, and therefore we cannot think our way into faith.—Exchange,

Japan News Items.

BY NELLIE STRAITON.

Here are some interesting news items from Sister Lillie Cypert's let-

I visited Sister Andrews a few days st week. Brother Fujimori was sere preaching for a few days. There last week. there preaching for a few days. There were three baptisms. It was a beautiful sight to see them buried with Jesus, in the waves of the sea, between ten and eleven one evening, by the light of candles, and the dashing of the waves lending a solemnity befit-ting the occasion. One of them was an old lady, about sixty-two, who had been a member of the Baptist Church for many years. She is the mother of Sister Andrews' helper. One was the girl whom Sister Andrews has been sending to the Kindergarten Training School to prepare her to help in the work. The other was a boy about sixteen. He is the son of a railroad man. The other was a boy about six-He says he wants to be a preacher. Both he and the kindergarten teacher will help in the Sunday school there.

On Friday evening of last week there were four baptisms at the Ot-suka church. All the places of labor seem generally alive and growing.

Our best teacher at the Zoshigaya Sunday school, who recently married and moved away, came back to us the first of June, and we expect to build up the work again. She helped in the school free while in school; but now that she has graduated and her husband gone to America for study, she will give her entire time to the work, and, therefore, will have to be supported while so doing. As she is to be my helper, I am to assume this re-sponsibility. By being economical, I think I can do it all right.

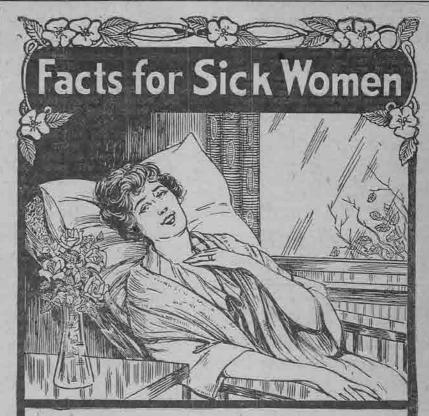

I am more thankful to you than I can tell for the big, fat check for my regular expenses and the furniture, and, of course, to all those who had a part in it; and and it goes without saying that I am thankful to our kind Heavenly Father who so bountifully supplies all of our needs and gives us so many kind friends that are such an encouragement to press on and do even more, and to have a desire to do more still, not only for their sakes, but for the Lord's sake, who deviseth all things. The furniture fund is now complete.

You remember the young man whose death I told you about, of course. Just a few days ago one of his best friends was baptized—the one that studied with him when he was getting his knowledge of the plan of salvation and how to become a Chris-He is now helping in the Sunday school. We are all so happy over He is such a fine young man.

The Sunday school is increasing in number—almost doubled in the last month. We have had to increase our teaching force. Pray with us that we may do this work as Christ would have us do it among these little untrained olive plants.

If you are interested in this work and can help, write Miss Nellie Straiton, 1030 South Lake Street, Fort Worth, Texas.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Reliable Information

All American women know of the great success of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in restoring to health women who suffered from ailments peculiar to their sex, yet there are some who are skeptical and do not realize that all that is claimed for it is absolutely true—if they did, our laboratory would not be half large enough to supply the demand, though today it is the largest in the country used for the manufacture of one particular medicine.

The Facts contained in the following two letters should prove of benefit to many women:

prove of benefit to Buffalo, N. Y.—"I suffered with organic inflammation and displacement. When lifting I had such pain and bearing down that I was not able to stand up, and it hurt me to walk or go up or down stairs. I was going td a doctor without any results and he said the safest thing would be to have an operation. I met a lady who told me she had three operations and was not well until she took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

I felt relief after taking two bottles of Vegetable Compound and I kept on with it until I was cured. I always use Lydia E. Pinkham's Liver Pills and they are fine. Everything used to turn sour on my stomach and the Liver Pills refleved that."—Mrs. A. Rogers, 593 Fargo Avenue, Buffalo, N. Y.

The fact is, the Best M.

Sacramento, Carif,—"I had organic trouble and had such terrible pain and swelling in the lower part of my side that I could not stand on my feet or even let the bed clothes touch my side. I gave up my work thinking I would not be able to go back for months. My mother advised me to take Lydia E. Pinkham,' Vegetable Compound as it had saved her life at one time, and it put me in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks, so I can keep on working. in a wonderful condition in a couple of weeks, so I can keep on working. I work in a department store and have to stand on my feet all day and I do not have any more pains. I surely recommend your Vegetable Compound to all my friends and you may use these facts as a testimonial."—BERTHA J. PARKER, 3320 M. St., Sagramento, Calif. St. Sacramento, Calif.

The fact is, the Best Medicine for Women is

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

LYDIA E. PINKHAM MEDICINE CO., LYNN, MAST.

HER FITS STOPPED

Mrs. Della Martin, a resident of Wurtsboro, N. Y., writes that she stopped her fits with a free bottle of medicine, which she read about in the paper. She says she has not had a fit since she took the first dose, and that she wants every sufferer to know about this wonderful medicine and what it did for her. If you have a friend or relative who suffers from these dreadful attacks, you are advised to send name and address at once to R. P. N. Lepse, 198 Island Ave, Milwaukse, Wis., who is generously offering to send a bottle of the same kind of medicine he gave Mrs. Martin, free, to any sufferer who writes him.

For the HAIR

To make it soft, fluffy, and free from dandruff, use

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

BREGARK

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashumed of your freckles, as Oftine—double strengthis guaranteed to remove these homely spots.
Simply set an onnee of Oftine—double strengthfrom your druggist, and apply a little of it night and murring and you should some see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter, sizes have varished entirely: It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear completion.

By sure to tak for the double strength Othine as file is sold index guarantee of money back H it falls to remove freekles.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is abso-An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debility and weak heart. Relieves head-aches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains and reduces fever. No depressing effects, Made by a formula which is in general use by loading physicians. 35c per package at your druggists or by mail from the manufacturers, Pledmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

Rely on Cuticura To Clear Away Skin Troubles Scap to cleanse, Cintment to soothe, Talcum to pow-dar, 25c. Samples of Catleurs, Dept. V. Melden, Mars.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

CHURCH NEWS

Alabama.

Moulton, August 23.—Our meeting with the Fairfield congregation re-August 23 .- Our meeting sulted in twelve being baptized into the one body; also, we raised money to enlarge the building. raised the had large crowds, so much present building would not hold them. The Lord willing, I will assist them in their meeting next year. This is the home of Brother Emmett Byars, a faithful preacher, who is doing a good work. I am now in a meeting at Col-lege Grove, with interest fine. I go next to Mount Juliet, Tenn. "The Lord is guiding; victory is sure."-A. D. Dies.

Oneonta, August 23.-I have just closed my thirteenth year's work with the churches in North Florida and South Alabama. I spent seven and one-half weeks in that country, and held short meetings as follows: At Esto, Fla., with two additions; Gum Head, Fla., five additions; Elton, Ala., one addition; Curtis, Ala., one addition; Liberty, Ala., one addition; and Christian Home, Ala., three addi-I have promised a few meettions. ings in that country for next year. Brother Ben F. Harding, of Florence, Ala., began a meeting with the congregation at Mount Hope, Ala., on the second Sunday in August and con-tinued it until the following Saturday morning, closing his work at the water. I baptized one after he left. This was a great meeting. The church was well pleased with Brother Harding's work and pronounced him a great preacher. There were twenty-seven baptisms, and much good was done otherwise. I shall begin my new year's work with this church with renewed courage. I am now in a meeting with the Snead congregation, in Blount County, Ala. Interest is growing.-Van A. Bradley.

Arkansas.

Hobart, August 20.—The meeting here continues, with much interest being shown by many who are not members. I am telling the same "old story" we all love so well. There have been eight confessions and bap-tisms to date. We had a large hear-ing last night. I am to begin at Blaine next Thursday night.—D. S. Ligon.

Fort Smith, August 23.—The Park Hill church of Christ at this place continues to grow in numbers and faith-fulness. At the evening service on Lord's day one was restored from the paths of waywardness. Many visitors were with us at both services. May the Lord continue to bless us in our to serve him.-Leland H. efforts Knight.

Morrillton, August 23.—We closed at Formosa on the third Sunday in August. Two obeyed the gospel during the meeting. We had large crowds from beginning to end. I am now in a meeting near Hazen. The meeting began on Friday night and will continue till next Sunday. We are having the best crowds and attention we have ever had at this place, the brethren tell me. There are only a few brethren here, but they seem to have a will to work. I will begin a meeting at a point near England next Sunday night. I can arrange for other meetings after October 1.-R. H. Johnson.

Fort Smith, August 23 .- The meeting at Spaulding, Okla., closed last night, with baptism at "the same hour of the night." It was, I think, the best meeting of my life. There were forty-six additions, thirty-nine by baptism. The success of this meeting was largely due to the efficient teaching of the elders for the past year; then, too, the entire church got behind the meeting and helped. was a great meeting In every way, The school board would not employ one of our brethren to teach; they wanted nothing but sectarians. I succeeded in converting and baptizing two of the teachers in the school.— Will W. Slater.

Renwar vs. Rheumatism.

Renwar vs. Rheumatism.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism, when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood, and in order to effect a complete cure it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve, or your money is refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50-cent bottle has done me more good than all sanatorium treatments, and what it did for me—why should it not do the same for others? Should any one doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." For sale by druggists (price, 50 cents) or by mall on receipt of price from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

Select Thoughts.

Love God and do what thou wilt,

Our one need is the faith of a little child.

God be thanked for books! They make us heirs of the spiritual life of all the ages.

The way to live rightly is not so much to spend time in the repression of the evil in us, as to spend all our time in the expression of the good .-Selected.

Hens Lay While Moulting

While Moulting

First to lay is first to pay. "I used 'More Eggs' Tonic, and for the first time my hems hid through the moulting season," writes Mrs. C. Luginbuilt, of Norwood, Ohio. E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, has discovered as selentific product that hastens the moult and revitalizes the organs of the hen and puts her in fine laying condition. Letters from many users tell how they actually got eggs during moulting! You, too, can make you hems moult fast, get eggs sooner, and more eggs all fall and winter. This scientific tonic has been fried, tested, and proven by over 400,000 chicken raisers. Try Reefer's "More Eggs" on his brontand, money-back guarantee of satisfaction.

If you wish to try this great profit maker, simply write a post card or letter to E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, $259 Reefer Ruilding, Kansas City, Mo., and ask for his special free-package $1.00 offer. Don't send any money. Mr. Reefer will send you two $1.00 packages of "More Eggs." You pay the postman upon delivery only $1.00, the price of just one puckage, the other package being free. The Millon-Dollar Merchants Bank of Kansas City, Mo., and ask for package being free. The Millon-Dollar Merchants Bank of Kansas City, Mo., and ask for package of more package, the other package being free. The Millon-Dollar Merchants Bank of Kansas City, Mo., and and the foliar will be returned at any time within 30 days on request. So there is no risk. Write today for this special free-package offer. Profit by the experience of a man who has made a fortune out of poultry.

Sift Out the Bran.

BY W. R. RAINS.

" If ye abide in me, and my words abide in you, ye shall ask what ye will, and it shall be done unto you," (John 15: 7.) To abide in Christ is to stay or remain in him, and the same is true as to his words abiding in us. What we will is what we want; hence, as God knows all things, knowing what we need before we ask, and as we know only in part, we may ask for that which he knows we do not need, and hence do not receive it because we ask amiss, in harmony with his teaching: "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss." One has to be in Christ to have access to the Father, and it is as unreasonable to believe that one will be saved from sin out of Christ as to believe that Noah would have been saved from drowning out of the ark. This makes it narrow, but this is where He put it -"strait and narrow." Paul told Timothy to "endure hardness, as a good soldier of Jesus Christ." He also said to him: "Them that sin rebuke before all, that others also may fear." Fear whom? Listen: "Fear not them which kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul: but rather fear him which is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." And this is where I stand. Can I get others to stand with me? He that is not for us is against us; he that gathereth not with us scattereth. Christ does not want us to live in this life in a way that we will fear one another, but commands us to love one another; hence, if we fear one another, then we are liable to hate one another, and thus we become worldly-minded sinners. Therefore he says: "There is no fear in love." Hence when we abide in him, we walk in love with one another

Now, if one wants to abide in Christ, he must first get into him. "As many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." Now, if we want to abide in him and his words to abide in us, let us simply do what he commands us to do and leave undone the things we ought not to do. There are some people who claim to be in Christ who have not been baptized into him. This seems to be impossible from the foregoing language of the inspired apostle. "What shall they do which are baptized for the dead, if the dead rise not at all? why are they then baptized for the dead?' This certainly shows that baptism is a figure of a death, a burial, and a resurrection.

While most people are honest as pertains to Christianity, yet there are many who do not study the wordsenough to understand its true teaching. Let us not fall out with others

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be very well described as "a carbonated fruit-flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea-1	Cupful(5 fl. oz.)	1.54 g	r.
Green tea-1	glassful(8 fl. oz., exclusive of ice)	2.02 g	r.
Coca-Cola-1	drink, 8 fl. oz. (prepared with I fl. oz. of syrup)	.61 g	r.

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity, and also explains, in part, the wide popularity of Coca-Cola, whose refreshing principle is derived from the tea leaf.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

The Coca-Cola Co., Dept. J, Atlanta, Ga., U. S. A.

J1

if they present to us a false doctrine, but let us simply reject the doctrine; neither should others fall out with us if we present to them a true doctrine. If we want to eat good bread, let us first sift the bran out of the meal.

Compiled Thoughts.

It is a good blade that bends well.

The life of faith is the life of free-dom.

To share a gift is the best gratitude for it.

In giving, a man receives more than he gives.

We who are Christians must rebuild the world.

Laws are but the record of God's faithfulness.

Liberty is not a donation; it is an achievement,

The need of the day is not reformers, but performers.

We should believe that our best moments are our truest.

We stereotype feeling into intellect, and then into statutes, and finally into national character.

Mother's Ally.

There is always one good remedy on the family medicine shelf that mother can use in all accidents and mishaps to the members of the family. Burns, bruises, cuts, stings, boils, sores, and various forms of skin eruption are quickly soothed and steadily healed with Gray's Ointment. Its constant use for a hundred years has made if a family word in every household. You should keep a box of it on your shelf for emergencies. If your druggist cannot sypply you, send his name to W. F. Gray & Co., 818 Gray Building, Nashville, Tenn., and a liberal sample will be immediately sent you free.

DEATH RATTLE OF GALOMEL IN SOUTH

Dodson is Destroying Sale of Dangerous Drug with His "Liver Tone."

You're bilious, sluggish, constipated and believe you need vile, dangerous cal-omel to start your liver and clean your bowels.

Here's Dodson's guarantee! Ask your druggist for a bottle of Dodson's Liver Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it Tone and take a spoonful tonight. If it doesn't start your liver and straighten you right up better than calomel and without griping or making you sick I want you to go back to the store and get your money.

Take calomel today and tomorrow you will feel weak and sick and nauseated. Don't lose a day's work. Take a spoonful of harmless, vegetable Dodson's Liver Tone tonight and wake up feeling great. It's perfectly harmless, so give it It's perfectly harmless, so give it 3 your children any time. It can't sali-vate so let them eat anything afterwards.

the treatment of Epilepsy, Hysteria, and other Nervous Disorders for the past thirty years.

SOLD BY ALL DEUGGISTS

MILES MEDICAL CO., ERWARS, INC.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

A Dialogue Between Robert G. Ingersoll and a Christian.

BY FLAVIL HALL.

In a pamphlet which came into my hands is the following depiction: "A very affecting scene was witnessed at the funeral of Ebon C. Ingersoll, in Washington, June 2, 1879. His brother. Robert, had prepared an address to be read on the occasion; but when the large company of friends had gathered and the time came, the feelings of the man overcame him. He began to read his elequent characterization of the dead man, but his eves at once filled with tears. He tried to hide them behind eyeglasses, but he could not do it, and finally bowed his head upon the man's coffin in uncontrollable grief. It was only after some delay and the greatest efforts at self-mastery that Robert was able to finish reading his address."

In that address were the following words: "In the night of death hope sees a star and listening love can hear the rustle of a wing."

In the following dialogue I have quoted Ingersoll verbatim from a poem, "The Declaration of the Free." And since his part of the dialogue was written while he was living, I have written the reply as though he were vet living:

Ingersoll:

We have no falsehoods to defend-We want the facts: Our force, our thought, we do not spend In vain attacks.

And we will never meanly try To save some fair and pleasing lie.

Christian:

Ah, but you do falsehood defend, You spurn the facts; Your force of talent you do spend In vain attacks

Upon the truths (which cannot die) To perpetrate a darksome lie.

Ingersoll:

The simple truth is what we ask, Not the ideal; We've set ourselves the task

To find the real. If all there is is naught but dross, We want to know and bear our loss.

Ohristian:

About the future you did ask, When bowed with grief,
And set yourself unto the task
Of sweet relief
In faith that sees "a star of hope"

In death beyond our mortal vision's

Ingersell:

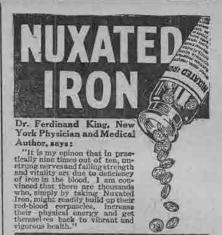

We will not willingly be fooled, By fables nursed; Our hearts by earnest thoughts are schooled To bear the worst. And we can stand erect and dare

All things, all facts that really are. Christian:

You did not stand erect and dare In that sad hour, When in your wailings of despair

You did cower, And on your brother's coffin fell, Happy (?) to be an infidel.

PROFITS IN PIGEONS

DO NOT ACCEPT SUBSTITUTES

A pleasant, easy way to make moneyutilize an otherwise worthless part of your back yard and turn it into profit. Pigsons are easily raised, prolific, and clean. The markets are clamoring for squabs. A few pairs of our beautiful Red Carnesux and White Swiss Mondaines will start you right. Write for our FREE booklet, "Profits in Pigeons No. 5." Carolina Pigeon Plant, Clinton, S. C.

TETTERINE Drives Away Pimples

and leaves your skin soft and spotless. 60c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

IS CURABLE. Write me to-day, and I will send you a free trial of my mild, soothing guaranteed treatment that will prove it. Stops the itching and besis permanently. DR. CANNADAY, 1225 Park Square, Sedalia, Mo.

VACCINATE YOUR HOGS.

BUY SERUM direct from the manufacturers and be assured of a fresh, reliable product. United States Veter-inary License No. 114; long-distance phone, Main 2569, Nashville, Tenn. Write for 90-page Hog Book; it is FREE, WHITE SERUM COMPANY,

SOLD FOR 50 YEARS FOR MALARIA, CHILLS AND FEVER. Also a Fine General Strengthening Tonic. Arthur Peter & Co. Louisville, Ky.

Ingersotl:

We have no God to serve or fear, No hell to shun; No devil with malicious leer; When life is done, An endless sleep may close our eyes, A sleep with neither dreams nor sighs.

Who says the worlds no maker had, That 'twas by chance? The fool whose reason has gone mad With arrogance.

If, sir, by chance your watch exists, Then maybe thus a world exists, Unto the great Creator, God, Father unseen. Accountable while here they've trod The wise have been; The law of reaping for sin Has eminent ever been.

Ingersoll:

We have no master on the land-No king in air-Without a manacle we stand. Without a prayer, Without a fear of coming night: We seek the truth, we love the light.

Freedom we have through Christ our King,

Who conquered death And unto him our hearts shall cling Till the last breath Shall leave our bodies still and cold, And future scenes to us unfold,

His witnesses we have believed, For they are true; We well know they were not deceived, Their Lord they knew; They by their testimony stood, And bravely sealed it with their blood.

He rose, their testimony stands. Tis genuine: The light is spreading o'er all lands, And bright will shine Above the dark agnostics' din When you forgotten shall have been.

The gospel books are quoted oft Back to the morn Of apostolic days and stand aloft, Though you may scorn; Attributed are they alone Unto the authors by them borne.

And you "no master have" on earth? 'No king in air?' Blest as the buzzard was your birth, Naught for you cares; Jehovah's rulership and care

The wise believe 'tis best to share.

Ingersoll:

The jeweled cup of love we drain, And friendship's wine Now swiftly flows in every vein With warmth divine. And so we love and hope and dream That in death's sky there is a gleam.

We walk according to our light, Pursue the path That leads to honor's stainless height, Careless of wrath Or curse of God or priestly spite, Longing to know and do the right.

Christian:

You spurn the only ground of hope-Our risen Lord; And so in darkest night you grope, Out of accord

With Heaven's shining light and truth, The faultless guide for age and youth.

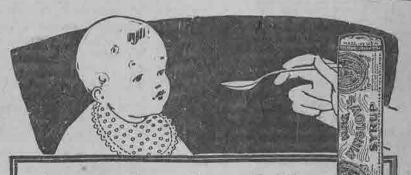

DID YOU KNOW

- THAT Abilene Christian College is a full college of the highest rank, conferring standard degrees and giving work upon which the State Department issues both temporary and permanent teachers' certificates?
- THAT there is here a faculty of more than thirty Christian men and women of extraordinary ability and splendid training?
- THAT the college plant consists of a campus of more than forty acres, on which stand four good brick buildings and a number of temporary buildings awaiting replacement by permanent buildings?
- THAT at present a campaign for a quarter million dollars for the improvement of this plant is meeting hearty response all over the State and outside the State?
- THAT we are to erect in the near future at least three or four good buildings and equip them with the very best and most serviceable equipment?
- THAT we enrolled four hundred and twenty-eight students last session, not counting the enrollment in the summer school, and would enroll at least six hundred this year if our room was not limited to caring for a few more than four hundred?
- THAT we want to send you our catalogue, that you may know many other things concerning us and our work that you have not known before?
- THAT we will take a special pleasure in answering your inquiries and furnishing you information?

THAT you should reserve a room at once?

ABILENE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

ABILENE, TEXAS

Pleasant To Give — Pleasant To Take

Thoughtful parents are having most gratifying and astonishing results by using this safe, agreeable preparation which quickly stimulates baby's digestion and regulates bowel movements. It is a fact that babies and children like to take

The Infants' and Children's Regulator

A few drops, depending on age, added to each feeding keeps baby's howels regular. This finest combination of vegetable ingredients promptly overcomes diarrhoea, relieves wind colls, flatalency, constipation and other disorders—especially good at teething time.

The open published formula appears on every label—always know what you give your baby. Mrs. Winslow s Syrup costs more to make—yet costs you no more than ordinary baby laxatives.

At All Draggists

ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG CO., 215-217 Fulton St., New York General Selling Agents: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Inc., New York-London-Toronto Ingersoll:

We love our fellow man, our kind, Wife, child, and friend.

To phantoms we are deaf and blind;

But we extend The helping hand to the distressed; By lifting others we are blest. Christian:

What has agnosticism done,

Sir, for your kind, Your wife, your daughter, or your son?

I you remind Of lands where Christ they do not know Of their barbarity and woe,

Of woman's wretchedness for aye-A hapless slave From youth through all life's weary day

Unto the grave; Who there the belping hand extends To her, and the distressed befriends. Ingersoll:

We do not pray, or weep; or wail; We have no dread,

No fear to pass beyond the veil That hides the dead. And yet we question, dream, and guess;

But knowledge we do not possess. Christian: We pray to God, but do not wail:

We have no dread, No fear to pass beyond the veil That hides the dead; The testimony we believe

Of Jesus Christ, whom we receive. Ingersoll:

Is there beyond the silent night An endless day?

Is death a door that leads to light? We cannot say

The tongueless secret locked in fate We do not know. We hope and wait, Obristian:

You spurn the only source of light— Our risen King—

And so you grope in dismal night:

Naught can you bring A gleam beyond the "night of death" But faith in what the gospel saith. Your scoffings, of mischievous birth,

At faith in God, Will surely perish from the earth, And 'neath the sod

The form of Ingersoll will lie, Remembered not e'en by your lie. But on the swelling waves of time, Steadfast and sure,

The gospel ship with sails sublime, And hope secure,

Shall victory forever know And land in peace despite the foe.

In the words above, "the gospel books are quoted oft back to the morn of apostolic days," the writer had in his mind Augustine and Eusebius, the latter of the last and the former of the first, of the fourth century; Origen, Julius, Africanus, and others, of the third century; Clement (of Alexandria), Tertullian, Irenæus, Justin Martyr, and others, of the second century; and Clement (of Rome), Barnabas, Hermes, Ignatius, and Polycarp, of the first century, all of whose writings have partially come down to us.

Night and Morning. Have Strong, Healthy Eyes. If they Tire, Itch, Smart or Burn, if Sore, Irritated, Inflamed or Granulated, use Murine often. Soothes, Refreshes. Safe for Infant or Adult. At all Druggists. Write for Free Eye Book. Murine Eye Remedy Co., Chicago

Tennessee.

Dickson, August 23 .- I have just returned from a six-weeks' campaign in Western Kentucky, having engaged in three meetings, with good results at While there was not a all places. large ingathering at either place, there was a general awakening of the churches, and I feel sure much good was done. There were three baptisms and one restoration at Macedonia, four baptisms and one restoration at Pottsville, and two baptisms and one restoration at Hebron. I preached here at Dickson at both the morning and evening services yesterday and at Vanleer in the afternoon. At this place there were three accessionsone by primary obedience and a man and wife who had been for a number of years affiliated with the United Brethren, who were baptized in early life by a Christian preacher, and "for the remission of sins." The man, S. L. Patterson, has preached some for the United Brethren; but having heard the gospel preached by Brother W. P. Walker, Brother F. P. Taylor, and others, he said he found himself in line with them and us, and decided to cast his lot with us. We trust that the church may be able to use him for the advancement of the cause of our I expect to go next week to Lord. New Hope, near Readyville, Cannon County, Tenn., and thence to North I shall Alabama for other meetings. close my present engagements with the church in Cleveland, Tenn., in a meeting to begin on October 17, the Then as soon thereaf-Lord willing. ter as we can make the arrangements we expect to move to Avon Park, Fla., to make our permanent location, but returning next summer for some protracted meetings .- I. B. Bradley.

The church has risen in power with every real emphasis on Christ Jesus.

Nothing has been deemed by our God too small to bear the impress of his love; let nothing be thought too little to become a fresh expression of our adoring gratitude and love to him. -Selected.

50 Eggs a Day

"More Eggs Tonic is a Godsend," writes Mrs. Myrtle Ice, of Boston, Ky. She adds: "I was only gotling 12 egges a day, and now I get 50." Give YOUR hens a few cents worth of "More Eggs," the wonderful egg producer, and you will be amazed and delighted with results.

Eggs While Moulting

White moulting, your hens will need "More Eggs" to hasten the moult, revitalize their organs, and put them in fine laying condition. Letters from many users tell how they actually got eggs while moulting.

If you wish to try this great profit maker, simply write a post card or letter to E. J. Reefer, the poultry expert, 7259 Reefer Building, Kansas City, Mc., and ask for his special free-package $1.90 offer. Don't send any money. Mr. Reefer will send you two $1.90 packages of "More Eggs." You pay the postman upon delivery only $1.00, the price of just one package, the other package being free. The Million-Dollar Merchants' Bank of Kansas City, Mo., guarantees if you are not absolutely satisfied your dollar will be returned at any time within 30 days on request. So there is no risk. Write today for this special free-package offer.

Edwards Ready Made Buildings
Send for the Edwards Catalog of "Superior" RendyMade Buildings, showing a complete line of houses, bungalows, barns, wood garages, poultry houses, etc., all at money-suving factory prices. These brildings are not merely "ready-out" but are not merely "ready-out" but READY MADE

Be Sure to State Which Books You Want -Roofing and Free Samples; Ready-Made Buildings; or Metal Garages. Fostal or letter brings one or more of them FREE.

Get our wonderfully low prices and free samples. Weselidirect to you and save you all in-between roofing profits. Ask for Book No.2380

Free Rooting Book

LOW PRICED GARAGES Lowest prices on Rendy-Made Fire-Proof Steel Garages. Set up any place. Send postal for Garage Book showing styles. FREE Samples & THE EDWARDS MFG. CO., 2330-2380 Pike St. Cincinnati, 0. Roofing Book

ASPIRIN

Name "Bayer" on Genuine

"Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine "Bayer Tablets of Aspirin" is genuine Aspirin proved safe by millions and prescribed by physicians for over twenty years. Accept only an unbroken "Bayer package" which contains proper directions to relieve Headache, Toothache, Earache, Neuralgia, Rhenmatism, Colds and Pain. Handy tin boxes of 12 tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell larger "Bayer packages." Aspirin is trade mark Bayer Manufacture Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Volume LXII. No. 37.

NASHVILLE, TENN., SEPTEMBER 9, 1920.

$2.50 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

EDIFYING AS THE NEED MAY BE	872
OUR CONTRIBUTORS What About Elders (No. 2)—Unity or Discord—When is a Man Old?—The Sinfulness of Sin—Intercession—Relief Fund—The Traveling Carnival Curse;	874
HOME READING	879
AT HOME AND ABROAD	8.80
QUERY DEPARTMENT	882
GEORGIA AND THE FAR SOUTHERN FIELD	883
Blessed Prodigals	884
Cheerful Messages for David Lipscomb College	884
EDITORIAL, Faith: Its Object and has Strength.	885
SELECTIONS BY THE EDITOR	886
CURRENT THOUGHT Churches as Candidates for Ministers— Perilous Times — A Useful Baby	887
"For When I Am Weak, Then Am I Strong "	888
Opportunity at Vardaman, Miss.—The Upper Chamber-To Will	889
CHURCH NEWS	894
The Double Nature of Man (No. 6)	893
Notes from West Tennessee Select Thoughts	892
More Colorado Work	895:
"Baptists vs. Campbellites" (No. 20)	896

Edifying as the Need May Be

Faith and Hope Compared.

In the letters of the apostle Paul the leading word is "faith," but in the letters of the apostle Peter the leading word is "hope," The latter has been called the "Apostle of Hope" because in five chapters he makes no less than ten allusions to the future. If one asks concerning the difference in meaning between the two words "faith" and "hope," the truth is, there is no essential disagreement. They are related to each other in the sense that each is trust in God. They differ in that faith looks back to that act of divine love which made the gospel plan of salvation possible and looks forward to the consummation of the Christian life in the world to come. Hope, on the contrary, looks only to the future. It is dependent upon faith. It is truly one of the most permanent fruits of faith.

We cannot experience what Peter calls a "living hope" without the expression of a living and active faith. Our hope is obtained by the resurrection of Jesus from the dead. In his wonderful argument upon this subject in the fifteenth chapter of First Corinthians, Paul reasons thus: "If Christ hath not been raised, your faith is vain; ye are yet in your sins. Then they also that are fallen asleep in Christ have perished. If we have only hoped in Christ in this life, we are of all men most pitiable." The apostle here teaches that there is a hope which is not dependent upon faith. He is emphasizing the lesson that unless a person really and truly believes the fact of the resurrection certified to by unimpeachable witnesses and indisputable proofs, all preaching, so far as he is concerned, is vain and his religion is vain. He is in a miserable state himself, and his dead have perished without salvation and without the "living hope;" for if Christ had not risen from the dead, no hope of immortality would have dawned over this world's perpetual night.

8 8 8

Acknowledgment Not Enough.

But our belief in the resurrection must not stop with a mere acknowledgment of this glorious fact. If this is all it does, it is not a living faith and cannot produce a living hope. The apostle Paul not only taught the doctrine of the resurrection, but he also taught an obedience to the form of that doctrine. Writing to the Romans, he said: "But thanks be to God, that, whereas ye were servants of sin, ye became obedient from the heart to that form of teaching whereunto ye were delivered." They had become dead to sin, they had been buried with Jesus Christ in baptism, and they had risen to walk in "newness of life," and now they had in their hearts what Peter calls the "living hope;" and for all of this, thank God!

Now, if you will turn again to Simon Peter's letter and examine the salutation, you will find that it is addressed to men and women who had passed through the same familiar process of induction into the church—Christians who had obeyed from the heart the same form of doctrine—and, as a trial of their faith, were now solourners of the dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia.

0 0 0

Must Not Compromise the Gospel.

We ought to emphasize the teaching of these passages because there is a compromising spirit in the religious world to-day which accepts almost any kind of faith in Jesus Christ as an active and saving faith, just so one acknowledges the fact of the resurrection. Such a person may have a certain kind of faith and hope; but acknowledgment is not enough. The whole plan of salvation must be kept in view. Its conditions must be obeyed and the additions of the Christian graces must be made. Churches are springing up all round us which do not insist upon the fundamental principles taught by our Savior and his apostles. Preachers are coming into the limelight who rarely mention the holy ordinance of baptism and the Lord's Supper, but are confining themselves wholly to the discussion of faith and love and philanthropy and other themes which they say have to do with the betterment of our social fabric. But the true gospel preacher should see a great deal further than the evils of to-day. He should constantly bear in mind the judgment to come. "Knowing the terror of the Lord," he should seek to persuade men. He should teach them plainly the conditions of salvation, leaving out nothing that the Savior has told them to do, and impressing the lesson over and over again that the way to "lay hold of the hope set before us" (Heb. 6: 18) is to obey the Savior's commandments.

0 0 0

A Stable and Certain Quantity.

The Christian's living hope is something stable and certain. We know of some people whose hope increases and decreases in very much the same ratio of stocks and bonds. You ask them how goes the Christian life and if they are attaining any growth in the Christian graces, and they give you a cheerful affirmative answer. But let the day be leaden and gray; let their business be failing; let them be the least bit "out of sorts," and there is a great slump in their religion. Evidently such persons do not possess much of the living hope mentioned by the apostle Peter. If they had it once, they lost it because their faith was weak. The living hope is not affected by the weather nor one's bodily ailments. It is not peculiar to the sunshine. It is the tenant, not of a heart that was never broken, but of a heart that has been broken and healed again. Like a pure, bright star fixed high in the heavens, it reaches with its rays the uplifted eye of the weary pilgrim. But the "stars shine not in the day; darkness brings them out." Here is the kind of hope we need-the kind that sustains us in the dark. When our homes are smitten with disease and death, it is the hope that answers: "Lead me, Heavenly Father, lead me." When temptations crowd around us thick and fast, or when we are called upon to make some great sacrifice for the Master's sake, it is the hope that places our hands in his and inspires us to say: "I'll go with him all the way." o

The Living Hope and the Calamity Howler.

The living hope is a persevering hope. There is no burden it cannot bear; there is no sorrow it cannot break; there is no fear it cannot overcome. There is a character which we meet almost every day and which we would like to change if we could. It is that person commonly known among business men as a "calamity howler." He never sees the bright side of things. In his mind a panic is always imminent. The country's safety and credit are always on the verge of disaster. If we believe his story, all of us are continually walking on eggs, with nothing solid to anticipate, and nothing soft to catch us if we fall.

If there is no room for this kind of a person in the commercial realm, surely there is no place for him in the kingdom of God. Nevertheless, it is no uncommon thing to hear a church member complain. It frequently happens that one who has taken upon his lips the name of Christ, and in whose heart there should be instilled the living hope of the gospel, becomes morose and distrustful of his brethren and sisters. Nine times out of ten the trouble does not lie with the church. It is not the lack of friendship and brotherly love. It is because the man himself did not continue in the faith, grounded and steadfast, but was moved away from the hope of the gospel by neglect of the teachings of God's holy word. As the apostle Paul taught the Romans, it is only through patience and through the comfort of the Scriptures that we keep this asset in our lives.

The reason for a man's failing in a conspicuous emergency is often found in a long series of earlier failures at inconspicuous points of his. Evidently telling the exact truth under all circumstances had not become an instinct of Peter's nature; and Judas was accustomed to small pilferings from the common treasury before he sold his Lord.—Selected.

What About Elders? No. 2. BY W. H. CARTER.

Let not the reader grow weary while I try, by the grace of God, to call attention to a few more thoughts. Do you regard this as a matter of great importance? If not, why not? Is a well-taught, a well-developed, a well-trained, and a live, working church a thing greatly to be desired in a community? An earnest study of this question will convince us that God ordained that there should be a plurality of elders in every church for the accomplishment of this very thing. People are molded according to their teaching and thoughts. If they are not taught, they grow up in ignorance and are liable to drift into almost anything. If they are taught error, they drift into error; if taught the truth, they drift into that which is in harmony with the will of God. Hence the command to "preach the word" (2 Tim. 4: 1, 2), to "speak as the oracles of God" (1 Pet. 4: 11). An elder must be "apt to teach" (1 Tim. 3: 2), "holding fast the faithful word as he hath been taught, that he may be able by sound teaching both to exhort and to convince the gainsayers" (Tit. 1: 9). The word "apt" means "suitable; pertinent; appropriate; liable; inclined; ready; expert; quick of apprehension." The word "teach" means "to impart knowledge to; instruct; inform; cause to learn or acquire skill in; to give instruction." This, as regards this one qualification, is the kind of man God specifies to be appointed an elder. Have you got him? If not, why not? There is a cause, possibly more than one. Were I to single out the cause that has wrought this evil more than any other, I would say, it is the lack of scriptural teaching on the part of some one.

There has been too many opinions, too much speculation, and not enough faith. Brethren who were honest in their conclusions became so partisan and blinded that they became indifferent, and their preaching and writing caused others to treat this subject with such indifference as to not study it nor teach it, so that the people came to regard an elder as a small character and the eldership as a thing only in name. If men are selected for elders, it is more a matter of form than faith, and the traditions of men are followed rather than the word of the Lord. The result today is the cry of inefficiency in the eldership coming from all parts of the country. Can this be remedied? If so, how? I am sure it will not be done if we continue to speculate, for that has been the prime cause of present conditions. When all agree to cast aside their notions and opinions and to learn and teach only that which is written, then we may look for more scriptural elders, better churches, more faithful work, and better spiritual times.

To "set in order the things that are wanting" in the churches and "ordain elders in every city" (congregation) is a great work. Nothing is of greater importance, provided the divine instruction is followed. Nothing is calculated to result in greater injury if we follow the traditions of men. Notice carefully the restrictions. Paul says "lf." If, if, if, if what? "If any be blameless, the husband of one wife, having faithful children not accessed of riot or unruly." Read Tit. 1: 5-10, carefully, and then ask yourself how it would do to appoint one who is not "blameless" and another who is not the "husband of one wife" and has no children to be "faithful."

To remove an evil, we must first find and remove the cause. People are, as a rule, such as they are educated to be. God's way of leading the people into the right way is through teaching. In the great commission Jesus says: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, . . . teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." (Matt. 28: 19, 20.) "And the things that thou hast heard of me among many witnesses, the same commit thou to faithful men, who shall be able to teach others also." (2 Tim. 2: 2.) "And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me." (John 6: 45.) Is this not enough to show us God's will and way? As error comes through erroneous teaching, even so truth and right come through teaching the truth. I know of no way to correct the error but by teaching the truth. If elders are incorrectly taught, they will teach the error, if they teach at all—a thing that few are able to do these days.

But who is to teach the elders? Who is to "set in order the things that are wanting?" Who is it that goes into the destitute places, preaches, baptizes, and "organizes" churches? Is it not the evangelist? Then, can you not see why it is I conclude that so much depends upon the faithfulness of the evangelist? I believe there has been too much leoseness in teaching and action along this line—too much speculation, acting upon opinion, following men, and not enough following the Christ. Is it not important that we all walk by the same rule, and that we make God's word the rule? It is speculative theories and notions and opinions that cause division. Preaching the word brings unity.

is a man an elder before he is selected and appointed? Some seem to think so. If so, then why select and appoint him? If he is already an elder, what is he selected and appointed to be? Why select and appoint one to be that which he already is? There is a cause for such inconsistent teaching. I do not understand God's word to teach any such. The possession of the qualifications does not make one an elder. If so, the lack of any one qualification would show that one is not an elder. Is one a sheriff because he has the qualifications? Is a man President of the United States because he has the qualifications? Men are elected to become Presidents, sheriffs, etc., not because they are such already, but to make them such. Even so with elders. We elect sheriffs, we appoint elders. Men are not sheriffs before election, neither are men elders before appointment. Notice this carefully: "For this cause left I thee in Crete, that thou shouldest set in order the things that are wanting, and ordain [appoint] elders in every city, as I had appointed thee: If any be blameless, the husband of one wife," etc. (Tit. 1: 5-11.) Study this closely until our next installment appears.

Unity or Discord-Our Choice.

BY W. L. REEVES.

God created mankind with power to choose that which is good when set before him, or to reject it and choose that which is evil. (Deut. 30: 19, 20.) If such were not true, no man is to be blamed for the awful crimes committed in the world every day. It is not sane and sound thinking to think that men are not free moral agents.

The New Testament is replete with requirements that the servants of God "endeavor to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." (Eph. 4: 1-6.) I remark that every man sees what the Bible says just like every other man sees it, if they all see just what it says. I also remark that every preacher can know that he does know that he is preaching just what is written in the Scriptures on vital subjects, and that every man who can read can know just what the New Testament commands men to do to be sayed from sin-

Look now at some things that every one who reads is certain the New Testament says. "Christ is the head of the body, the church." (Col. 1: 18.) The church is called "the church of God" (1 Cor. 1: 1, 2), "the church of the firstborn" (Heb. 12: 23), "the church of Christ" (Rom. 16: 16). This is one point upon which all are united; but the cause of division here is the many humanly given names for the church—names given by people who are not satisfied with the word of God.

All are certain Christ built the church. (Matt. 16: 18.) No division here. But all do not agree that John the Baptist or some one else built it. All readers agree that "the Lord added to the church dally such as should be saved." (Acts 2: 47.) All should know (all preachers & know) that the Bible positively does not tell people to "join some church or denomination of your choice." Such is a dangerous doctrine, because it is doctrine which divides people; and the Bible says the man who sows discord among brethren is an abomination unto God and that God hates the man who does it. (Prov. 6: 16-19; Rom. 16: 17, 18.)

All men see that the Bible says that "by works a man is justified, and not by faith only." (James 2: 24.) All men could unite on this were it not for the various creeds of men which teach differently. Every one can know that the Bible says: "But without faith it is impossible to please him [God]." (Heb. 11: 6.) The majority of religious people agree that faith is necessary to salvation.

By reading Acts 17: 30, all can and will see it alike that that verse says that "God now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." All preachers should preach just what it says, too.

In preaching and practicing baptism, every man on earth will preach and practice the same that all other men do, if he and all the rest will preach exactly what is written in the New Testament, and practice the exact thing written there.

All men see that the Bible clearly says: "Buried with him in baptism, wherein also ye are risen with him." (Col. 2: 12.) Again: "Let us draw near with a true heart in full assurance of faith, having our hearts sprinkled from an evil conscience, and our bodies washed with pure water." (Heb. 10: 22.)

There is no dispute between the learned men of any denomination about immersion being scriptural. They agree that the Bible teaches that a burial is baptism. They are forced to agree by such passages as those given above. The dispute is about whether pouring or sprinkling will do as well. There is just one safe way in this important act, for it is a specific act—a burial and a resurrection—and that safe way is to do just what the Bible says.

I am certain that all do see that the Bible says: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.) All preachers know that the Bible says: "Then Peter said unto them, Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." (Acts 2: 38.) And all these same preachers know that this answer was given to the question asked by sinners who had heard the sermon Peter preached. 'The question is this: "Men and brethren, what shall we do?" (Read Acts 2: 37, 38.) They were sinners, for they had not repented; and so Peter told them to "repent, and be baptized . . . for the remission of sins." Such a statement cannot be explained so as to make it any plainer. If it does not mean what it says, how could any one say it so it would mean what it says (for it says that)?

All men see that the Bible teaches that baptism is a commandment. "And he commanded them to be bactized in the name of the Lord." (Acts 10: 48.) And Christ is the "author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." (Heb. 5: 8, 9.) Our preaching brethren preach just what the above passages say wherever they preach in the world, and by so doing they are in unity on the subjects they teach. There is no other way for men to be in unity. Different creeds of men taught is the only cause of discord. For unity, speak where the Bible speaks, and be silent where the Bible is silent. (1 Pet. 4: 11.) By doing

