If this church is properly encouraged, in my judgment, it will soon become the strongest church in Missouri, if not in the Middle West, These good brethren have been asking aid for some time to secure the church a permanent home, and they have been liberal in setting aside funds, contributing every Lord's day; but it is more than they can do, at the same rate, for a very long time. It would be a means of reaching more people, and in a quicker way, to have their own house of worship. Send a liberal contribution to W. W. Moody, 3667 Botanical Avenue, St. Lcuis, Mo."

I will just say that I had no reference whatever to the nonbeliever in the Bible study or Sunday school, but only intended to refer to the agitator and trouble maker. I think I voice the sentiment of this congregation when I say that every one, no matter of what faith or creed, would be more than welcome at all our services; but the agitator and trouble maker, those who stir up strife and division, would be invited kindly to 'move on' to other parts. Brother Tant says that we have eighteen different branches of 'loyal brethren' now. It is a sad state of affairs, it seems to me. It has all been brought about by brethren making laws where God has made none, legislating where God has not legislated. God says teach, and has told us what to teach; but as to the 'how,' the 'only method,' my Bible is silent on that especial way."

Matthew C. Cayce, Jackson, Miss., keeps busy in the Master's work in and around that city, and writes en-couragingly as follows: "Another good meeting was enjoyed here yesterday, held in the courthouse. Two new members met with us for the first time, having just moved here from Paris, Texas-Henry T. McGraw and wife. They did what all Christians ought to do on going to a new place—began to hunt for the church. Sister McGraw said she told her husband that if there was no loyal church here she was not willing to make Jackson her home. I am glad that one could be found, a thing that could not be done prior to my coming here. Last night I preached at Eureka Schoolhouse, at the end of the Capitol Street car line, just out of the city limits. I shall preach there every night this week. except Friday night (a school meeting of some kind had already been arranged for that night). Yesterday afternoon it rained, and about time for people to go to meeting last night it was raining hard, with thunder and lightning; but, in spite of the weather, fourteen persons gathered for services. I expect a good attendance to-night. Now I wish to correct a mistake which I made in my report two weeks ago. Old Union Church, where I preached one Lord's day recently, is in Carroll County, and not in Montgomery County, as stated. My address is 720 South Gallatin Street. Jackson, Miss.

John E. Dunn writes from Waxabachie, Texas, March 14: "I have been laboring with the church at Waxabachie since November 1. My work is pleasant, and the church is moving forward nicely. Only one thing hinders, and that is the low price of cotton, which makes money matters tight with us. A large amount of cotton has been turned under the ground because it was not worth the picking. Remember the Orphans at Home.

BY J. C. M'Q.

Some of the churches have been prompt and liberal in their donations to the starving children of Poland and Central Europe, which is commendable. The church of Christ at Dickson, Tenn., gave to the suffering children of Europe one Lord's-day's contribution, which was four hundred dollars. The Tacoma Street church of Christ, of Montgomery, Ala., gave three hundred and thirty dollars for the relief of the starving children. Such giving appeals to the heart of every Christian. More and more should God's children abound in feeding the hungry, in warming the cold, and in giving the thirsty drink. It is also true that those who do the most at home do the most in distant lands. "The brightest light at home shines the farthest away." We must not neglect to preach the gospel and to feed our orphans at home. The last words Christ spoke on the earth are these: "But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you: and ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." (Acts 1: 8.) Thus spoke Christ to his apostles, who had been with him for forty days after his resurrection, and through them gave the order to his church which was established at Jerusalem on the first Pentecost after his resurrection. Note the order in which they were to be his witnesses-Jerusalem, all Judea, Samaria, and the uttermost part of the earth. A man's first duty is at home and among his own people. A Christian must be a faithful husband, a considerate father, and a good neighbor. You can never depend on the man who is worthless at home to be any account away from home. God pity the trifling man who rushes away to the "uttermost part of the earth" in the vain expectation that he will do something great! The worthless evangelist at home is a worthless missionary in the foreign field. It is poor judgment and less Christianity to pick up one who cannot make a living at home and ship him to the foreign field.

A careful and intelligent study of the book of Acts of Apostles will reveal the fact that the apostles followed the order as given in Christ's last words. The first seven chapters of Acts are devoted to Jerusalem. Beginning with the eighth chapter, we learn that they went into all Judea and then Samaria. A great persecution arose against the church at Jerusalem. "They therefore that were scattered abroad went about ["everywhere"-Authorized Version] preaching the word." (Acts 8: 4.) This was probably everywhere in Judea. But as they were all scattered abroad throughout the regions of Judea and Samaria, except the apostles, we next learn: "And Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and proclaimed unto them the Christ." (Verse 5.) They must bury their hatred for the Samaritans and preach Christ unto them in the hope of leading them into the light of truth. Then we find Philip led by the Lord into Ethiopia. There he preaches Christ to the eunuch. Next we notice Paul going into Europe and Asia. The book of Acts closes leaving Paul at Rome. Here the book appears to abruptly end. But we have indicated enough to see how obedient were the apostles and how they began in Jerusalem, all Judea, Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth.

How great are the needs at home to-day! An orphan is your next-door neighbor who must be fed, clothed, and developed into a useful manhood or noble womanhood, Are you asleep as to your opportunity and duty, while the helpless orphan is running as a waif on the streets? God may have placed that orphan at your door for you to train for him. You should not satisfy your conscience by asking the matron of an orphanage to rear the child. You have a responsibility, and God expects you to meet it fearlessly and nobly. The orphan home cannot take the place of the ideal Christian home, neither can it assume your responsibility. If Christians would only give themselves fully to the Lord, it would be so easy to care for the helpless little children. The father or mother who is able to rear his or her own child, and yet will deliberately turn it over to the care of some orphan home, is terribly debased and deprayed. The orphan home is only for the maintenance and training of real orphans who have no one to feed, educate, and train them.

The Tennessee Orphan Home stands ready to take as many such children as it can comfortably shelter. It is the endeavor of those directing this institution to make it as near like the ideal home as possible. With this in view, a number of sisters have been requested to make suggestions to the board of directors. A number of useful and practical suggestions have been made which will be adopted as rapidly as the finances of the Home will

Our treasurer tells us that the receipts have been lighter for the last three months than heretofore in the same length of time. Some who have not been contributing to the Home have given assurances that they expect to do so in the future. We shall appreciate their fellowship and cooperation. The first Lord's day in April is the day for a contribution to the Home. It should not be necessary to urge any one to contribute to such a work. The heart that will not be touched by the suffering cry of an orphan is flintier than stone. "Let each man do according as he hath purposed in his heart; not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver." (2 Cor. 9: 7.) Send all contributions direct to the Tennessee Orphan Home, Columbia, Tenn.

Work. No. 2.

BY E. A. E.

GOD WORKS.

"My father worketh until now, and I work." (John 5: 17.) The work of this verse is not such work as we are considering in this article; at least, it embraces far more. Men cannot make an honest living and help others without the work of God in giving fruitful seasons, seedtime, and harvest. God is at work at all times, in all things, for the greatest good of the race—its daily bread, its health, its strength, its welfare on earth, and its eternal salvation. (See Ps. 65: 8-13.) God is the most practical being in the universe. He created all things, manages all things, holds all worlds in their places without a jar or discord, and will bring all things to a glorious end. All men should work for the purposes for which God and Jesus work.

JESUS WORKED AS A CARPENTER.

Instead of receiving Jesus as a prophet at Nazareth, his fellow townsmen rejected and tried to kill him, saying: "Is not this the carpenter, the son of Mary, and brother of James, and Joses, and Judas, and Simon? and are not his sisters here with us?" (Mark 6: 1-3.) Then Jesus was a carpenter. Why? His being a carpenter was not a mere incident in his life. He was not a carpenter by accident, but in obedience to God. God does not command every man to be a carpenter, but to have some useful employment and to eat no man's bread for naught. Jesus knew just what he was to become when he worked at the carpenter's trade. It should deeply impress all that Jesus, the Son of God, the Savior of the world, the Prince of Peace, the King of glory, learned the carpenter's trade. He never refused to work, either, because he was the Son of God and Savior of the world and was to become King. He, the very greatest Preacher of the world, who spoke as never man spoke, never shirked any duty, dodged any responsibility, or refused to assist Joseph and Mary in making an honest living. As a boy and young man, he was submissive to Joseph and Mary, and "advanced in wisdom and stature, and in favor with God and men." (Luke 2: 51, 52.) He was industrious, studious, and most exemplary. When his "public ministry" began, he had to give up his work as a carpenter. He then received support from others. So every useful preacher of to-day should be supported. "The laborer is worthy of his hire." But Jesus has dignified and ennobled labor by working with his own hands.

JUSTICE TO ALL,

While Jesus in obedience to God learned and worked at a useful trade and was industrious and helpful in the home life, and while he could not have grown in stature and wisdom and in favor with God and men without all this, yet it does not follow that the time would never come when he should give himself wholly to the great work of what is called his "public ministry"-his going about doing good in every way; his teaching in public and private, in the daytime and the nighttime; his sacrifice of body, blood, and life; his resurrection; his ascension; his intercession; his reign-all for the salvation of the world. While he was giving himself in suffering and sorrow for the relief and salvation of humanity, it was even more than just-it was a manifestation of gratitude and lovethat others should support him. Women washed his feet with their tears, wiped them with the hair of their head, anointed his body with costly and precious ointment, followed him ministering unto him, and were last at the cross and first at his grave. The boats of the apostles were his boats, Peter's home was his home, and others gratefully contributed to his daily needs and comforts. There was a treasury for that purpose. He was tenderly buried in the tomb of the rich, and is now "the ruler of the kings of the earth." (Rev. 1: 5.)

So God has ordained that they who preach the gospel shall live of the gospel-shall be made comfortable; raised above want; cared for in affliction, old age, and death; and then shall reign with Christ in glory. While the faithful preacher of the gospel does his duty in self-sacrifice and suffering, regardless of what others do, the salvation of congregations and individual Christians who allow him to go in want is very much in doubt. In fact, the question is: "Have such a promise of salvation?" To rob God in withholding his required offerings will lead to spiritual death and everlasting destruction. Certainly to withhold what is due from the faithful preacher can be no less sinful than making merchandise of the gospel. It is a sad fact that a few years ago, when the cost of living doubled and trebled, some good and heroic preachers received but little more in the way of support than before this was the case: and it is a sadder fact that since people have begun to economize and retrench, some have cut first the little the preacher does receive. They do not consider that the cost of his real living has not been much reduced and his traveling expenses cost more than before. Are Christians willing to have this? Yet, the true preacher preaches on. Cut out luxuries and fleshly indulgences, but do not cut down the preacher's support and come short of the blessing of real liberality. Let no church make merchandise of true and faithful preachers-that is, get as much service out of them as possible for as little support as possible.

No Working, No Eating,

While the laborer is worthy of his hire, God's law is: No labor, no wages. Returning to our subject, let us study 2 Thess, 3: 6-13, in which it is declared: "If any will not work, neither let him eat." It is as great a wrong to feed a man who can work, but will not, as it is to refuse to feed one who would work, but cannot. On all these duties the Bible is very plain. According to it, one must do one of four things, three of which for an able-bodied man of sound mind are wrong—(1) work, or (2) beg, or (3) steal, or (4) starve."

Verse 6 (margin) says: "In the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, . . . withdraw yourselves from every brother that walketh disorderly, and not after the traditions which they received of us." Paul planted this church, had taught it in person, had set it a good example, by working himself, and had also written to it in his first letter in regard to work. (1 Thess. 3: 4; 4: 11, 12; 2 Thess. 6: 10.) He says: "For we hear of some that walk among you disorderly, that work not at all, but are busybodies. Now them that are such we command and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread." He also declares: "For we behaved not ourselves disorderly among you; neither did we eat bread for naught at any man's hand, but in labor and travail, working night and day, that we might not burden any of you: not because we have not the right, but to make ourselves an ensample unto you, that ye should imitate us." The Thessalonians, with others of that time, looked down upon work, and some were idlers and tattlers and "meddlers in other men's matters." To refuse to work, to go about as busybodies, and to be a burden upon others for a living is to walk disorderly. This does not apply to the aged, infirm, and to any who would work, but cannot; rich provisions have been made for all such, and it is a Christian duty and sweet pleasure to care most tenderly for them. But idleness, tattling, gadding, meddling in the family affairs and business of others, heresy hunting, stirring up strife, etc., are disorderly conduct. All who engage in such work do untold harm and are clearly and strongly condemned by the Lord. For the church to withdraw themselves from such is an imperative duty—is the command of God.

For some reason elders, preachers, and other teachers have failed to impress upon churches that idleness, tattling, meddling in other men's matters, stirring up strife, etc., are disorderly conduct. Have we done our whole duty? For anything to be done "in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ" makes it very important and imperative; as, "He commanded them to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ."

Also, but little attention has been paid to God's command to "study to be quiet," to attend to one's own business, to "lead a tranquil and quiet life in all godliness and gravity."

On the other hand, some do nothing else but work. In selfishness they tug and toll and dig all their lives. Their hands are horny from work; their bodies are stiff and bent, but not with age. They have never learned the true motives and holy purposes of honest and useful employment and the blessing of serving the Lord in doing good in other ways.

A well-rounded, contented, consistent Christian life is the best and happiest.

A Visit to Abilene, Texas.

BY F. W. SMITH.

At the request of Jesse P. Sewell, president of Abilene Christian College, the writer attended the annual lectures on Bible themes which were given there the last week in February. I have been to Texas quite a number of times since I began to preach, and have held meetings in many of the cities and towns of that great State. In fact, I lived the greater part of one year in the city of Dallas when I was but a boy in my teens. At that time Dallas could boast of no greater population than six thousand; but where cornfields were then, there are business blocks now, and Dallas is a great business center. This time I traveled farther west than I had ever been, and it is the same story-viz., vast plains of untold wealth and beauty. Texas is truly a great country, and is yet in its infancy, so far as the development of its wonderful resources is concerned. Many Tennesseeans are among its "get-up-andget" population, and they will tell you of the glories of the West, what a wonderful country it is in which to live; but give them a little time, and they will soon be talking about the cool, refreshing, and pure springs that burst from the sides of old Tennessee's majestic hills. It makes the impression on one lately from the valleys, hills, and mountains of this "Dimple of the Universe" that these erstwhile Tennesseeans far away from the land of their nativity have a kind of longing for the hearthstone.

But what about Abilene, the college, and lecture week? Well, Abilene is a beautiful little city of about ten thousand, with as fine a climate as one could wish. The altitude is great, and the people are of the finest class, progressive in business enterprises, and do things on a large scale. Abilene Christian College is a most excellent institution of learning, second to no college in the State, not excepting the State University. It has an enrollment of something like five hundred students. Its course of instruction is equal to any college in the State and superior to many. The college is well equipped with a splendid corps of teachers, a faculty composed of men and women who not only know how to impart knowledge, but whose hearts are in the great work of Christian education, giving time to this work on salaries much smaller than could be had for the same work in other colleges. They are a body of self-sacrificing men and women banded together, not for the purpose of making money, but for the uplift of humanity, the building of Christian civilization, the development of boys and girls for the highest and best in this life and in the life which is to come. The scholarly George A. Klingman, who sat for years at the feet of McGarvey, Loos, and Grubbs, is among the faculty. Jesse P. Sewell, with the energy, push, and enthusiasm of a dozen men, is the "mouthpiece" for this institution; and if you do not want to part with any of your cash for this college, keep away from Jesse; but that will be a hard thing to do, for he will find you sooner or later. One of Brother Jesse's dreams has a golden lining of one and a half million, and no one need be surprised if it comes true. Bigger dreams than that have come true which emanated from smaller men (not physically) than Brother Jesse; and with such a work in such an empire as Texas, who will throw shadows of doubt across the pathway of Jesse in bringing to a happy realization this golden dream of his life-a dream the realization of which would mean so much, not only for the present, but future generations? With the facts as to what has already been accomplished by this college, it should not be considered beyond the range of possibility to procure that million and half dollars. There is not a tender babe nestling on the bosom of a mother in Texas that is not worth infinitely more than a million dollars-yea, millions of dollars.

As the list of preachers attending the lectures has already been given by Brother Batsell Baxter, one of the able teachers, I will omit it from this report. It was indeed an enjoyable occasion for the writer. The many helpful and suggestive things in the lectures and speeches were an inspiration to me. I so seldom hear any one else preach that it becomes a great treat to sit and listen to the fine things others have to say. The writer delivered a few lectures on the Holy Spirit, and they seemed to be well received.

The religious atmosphere and teaching of Abilene Christian College are, in so far as I could observe, pure and wholesome. So long as it remains thus, I can wish for its continuance and prosperity; but if Abilene Christian College, David Lipscomb College, or any other school or college with which the disciples are associated, shall ever permit destructive higher criticism, speculative teaching on unfulfilled prophecy or any other portion of the Bible, I could wish for their death the moment such teaching begins within their walls. I am glad to say assurances have been given that such things shall not be taught in Abilene Christian College, as well as in David Lipscomb College.

I was pleased to meet again my old friend, J. H. Mead, who is a faithful preacher of the gospel and also a successful business man. He was at one time a member of the South College Street church of Christ, of this city, and has always remained loyal to the truth. I had the pleasure of visiting him and his family in their home, at which time we talked about the good old times in Tennessee.

"He emptied himself." (1) Creation involves the incarnation. It implies a love which enables God to cast aside whatever was incompatible with a real humanity. (2) His assumption of humanity meant the assumption of servanthood, for man is dependent. (3) His was no phantom life. All that is essential to humanity, he took upon him. He knew no sin; but sin was no element in man's original constitution. (4) His obedience to death was real, because he laid down his life. He was obedient to the law, and took death as part of the experience of life, (5) He took the death of the cross, because he meant death to have no untasted bitterness; all its shame and hate were parts of that burden he came to bear. Even God's wrath against sin he would know, that he might stand in the sinner's place.—Dr. Samuel McComb.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Thomas H. Burton was in the office a few minutes on Saturday. He was returning from a Western trip, and on his way home to Union, S. C.

From H. W. Wrye, Pikeville, Tenn., March 17: "We had two additions last Sunday and seven at prayer meeting last night. Eight of them were by primary obedience."

From T. E. Tatum, Hallsville, Texas: "I have some time that is not engaged for protracted meetings. I want to keep busy in the evangelistic field. Write me at Hallsville,"

We were glad to have to visit us on Friday Dan Beasley, of Dickson, Tenn. He was on his way home from Biloxi, Miss., where he had been recuperating after his accident and long siege in the bospital. He seems to be in perfect health now and fully recovered.

From Ben West, Fort Worth, Texas, March 14: "House packed at the North Side on Sunday. Baptized a man sixty years old. Remodeling and enlarging the church house is progressing nicely. Six additional class rooms will help to care for the growing Sunday school."

From J. H. Hines, Montgomery, Ala., March 14: "Yesterday was a great day with the Highland Church. Two by relationship, one by restoration, and one by obedience. House packed and interest fine. We raised eighteen hundred dollars to build a new house of worship."

J. W. Brents called to see us on Friday. He reports the work doing well and prospects exceedingly good for the cause in Athens, Ala., his present place of labor. He has been there only a few months, but is much pleased with the situation and the developments since he went there.

From Leslie G. Thomas, Flint, Mich., March 14: "The debate between the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, represented by J. F. Curtis, and the church of Christ, represented by Early Arceneaux, continues. J. W. Shepherd, who is moderating for Arceneaux, preached yesterday."

Brother Johnson, of Clinton, Ark., came to see us last week. He left his home in October, and has been visiting churches in Missouri. Kentucky, and Tennessee. He is a member of the one body, and is anxious to get others to trust the Lord and go by his word. We may not agree in all points, but we work for the same cause.

Alexander Campbell (colored), who lives here in the city, will hold a meeting for the church of Christ meeting at the corner of Fourteenth Avenue, North, and Jackson Street, beginning on April 3 and continuing for fifteen days. He has an interesting list of subjects, and is considered one of the strongest preachers among his people. You should hear him,

From T. M. Carney, San Angelo, Texas, March 14: "Mrs. Carney has been very ill for the past twelve days, suffering with what the doctors say is 'acid intoxication,' with complications accompanying it. They say she is improving, but we are still anxious about her. The church here has been very good to us during our trials, assisting us in every possible way."

E. E. Bunner, Columbus, Ohio, writes: "I am preaching regularly for the church of Christ at Reynoldsburg, and expect to be with them through the coming year, and I want the Gospel Advocate well circulated among our members. The instruction given through the Advocate by Brethren McQuiddy, Kurfees, and other writers, I consider a great help to the cause of Christ."

Glenn W. Green, writing from McLoud, Okla., March 14, says: "At the present writing Philip P. Alexander is in a splendid meeting at Dale, Okla. Five confessions to date, two of whom were baptized last Sunday. W. H. George, of Wewoka, Okla., is in a good meeting with the Mount Zion church of Christ, four and one-half miles west of Shawnee. The brethren here have a nice building, recently completed."

John Hayes writes from Bradentown, Fla., March 15: "The writer is in the second week of a tent meeting at Manatee, Large audiences and splendid interest. One confession and one by membership. The meeting will continue over the fourth Lord's day. Brother Brumit will begin a tent meeting at Sarasota the first Lord's day in April. Then the writer will begin a tent meeting in Palmetto, to last over four Lord's days. From there we will go to Lakeland with the tent for a month's meeting."

Sister Gladys Hamilton writes: "The congregation at Gadsden, Ala., enjoyed a visit from M. C. Graves and wife last Sunday, and were much strengthened by the two splendid sermons delivered by Brother Graves at the morning and evening services. We congratulate ourselves on having Brother Staggers and family, from Birmingham, to locate in Gadsden, and believe they will be a great stimulus to the church here. I have never met a finer family anywhere."

Curtis Taylor writes from Mineral Wells, Texas, March 10: "The faithful who meet for worship at the 1, 0, 0, F. Hall are going forward in the work, and will press right on as true servants of the Lord, declaring the whole counsel of God. My time for the summer will be devoted to teaching singing schools for the church of Christ congregations and singing for protracted meetings. Preachers or congregations desiring my services should address me at Mineral Wells, Texas."

We publish the following note from J. M. Harrison, that all our readers may have his request put before them: "I want to get help in a mission meeting. A brother told me that he believed the churches in Nashville, Tenn., would send a good preacher and pay him. Clinton, Van Buren County, Ark., is the place where we want the meeting. It is a mission point. I think any time in July, August, or September will suit. We want a two-weeks' meeting, at least. Write me at Dabney, Ark."

"The Immortality of the Soul"—A Debate between G. C. Brewer and Dr. Stewart J. Spence. We have a few copies of this work in stock that we will sell at twenty-five cents the copy, net. It is an 8vo pamphlet of seventy-seven pages, from the press of F. L. Rowe, Cincinnati, Ohio, and contains a good lithograph picture of each of the disputants. The mechanical work is excellent and the paper very fine. Brother Brewer fully sustained his position in affirming the immortality of the soul. Order from the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

C. Petty writes from Pineapple, Ala., March 15: "I was with the brethren at Fatama last Sunday, and we had splendid services both morning and evening. I will be with them again next month, the Lord willing. Then I wish to begin holding mission meetings somewhere during the spring and summer, if I can get enough means to carry me from one mission meeting to another. I will go anywhere and hold meetings, if there is one disciple there, if arrangements for a place can be made. Brethren, let us go to every mission point that can be found this year. Write me at Pineapple."

J. H. Kirby writes from St. Augustine, Fla., Box 852, as follows: "I enjoy the Gospel Advocate very much, when I get to read it. We have two little blind sons who will never have teeth; and we left our Alabama home to come here to educate them. I wanted to visit the School for the Blind at Nashville, but have not done so yet. I am indeed sorry we have no house of worship here in the oldest city in the United States for the church of Christ. We have bought a home here by the Institute, and hope that through Providence my wife and little children can get a congregation started."

Mrs. J. A. Gray, Route 2, Ragland, Ala., under date of March 15, writes: "I can say, with others, Alabama is certainly in need of the gospel. There are a few disciples in and around Ragland, and, if it is the Lord's will, we hope to be able to have a few-days' meeting during the summer; and we would be glad if some church would help us, for it is certainly a destitute place. There are people here, no doubt, who have never heard the gospel in its simple form. We can get a preacher, but we are not able to support him in his work. Let those who are interested and who may want further information write me."

We learn from a card from J. C. Estes, 222 East Ninth Street, Davenport, Iowa, that he and his wife have both completed their chiropractic school work there, and have had conferred on them the D. C., Ph. C., and Spinograph (X Ray) degrees of that profession, and that they will soon be looking for a location where first they can do the most good in the name of "our Lord," while, as did Paul, they build tents—work with their hands at their profession. They wish to do this as a means of helping them to do all the more for the Lord's cause without being burdensome to any one, and at the same time they wish to help to relieve suffering humanity and to give all they can to the knowledge and love of the gespel and the salvation of souls. They ask the prayers of the faithful that God's guiding hand may lead them to a suitable location to this end.

Brother Hays, of Spring Hill, Tenn., visited us on Monday, and swapped jokes with Srygley for a while.

There were six confessions and baptisms at the David Lipscomb Colllege at their prayer meeting of March 16.

Brother Srygley preached fine sermons for the brethren at Belmont Avenue, this city, last Lord' day, morning and night. The attendance was reported as rather light.

Brother Scobey reports good services and attendance at Lawrence Avenue, this city, last Lord's day, when he preached for them. He will preach at Donelson next Lord's day.

A letter from H. Leo Boles of March 16 reports fine success in his Chattanooga meeting. There had been twenty-two baptisms at that time, and more were expected as the neeting continued.

J. T. Harris writes from Lawrenceburg, Tenn., March 15: "Last Lord's day I filled my regular appointment at Beech Grove, near Killen, Ala., and baptized a very intelligent young married lady."

B. C. Goodpasture was in the city the first of the week, from Atlanta, Ga., and honored this office with several calls. He reports the work going and much planned for the near future in that city. He was on his way to Overton County, Tenn., for a few days.

Philip P. Alexander, in a business letter from Dale, Okla., March 17, says: "I am here in a meeting now. We have had eleven confessions to date. This is somewhat of a mission point; but those who are here are starting to do something, and they want to start right."

E. S. Jelley, writing from Jwalapur, District Saharanpur, U. P., British India, January 25, says: "The following report was received from C. I. Kipp, M.D., Tilaunia Sanatorium, dated January 15: 'Mrs. Jelley has pulmonary tuberculosis, the middle lobe of the right lung being involved. With proper care, her chances for recovery are very favorable.' There were nineteen baptisms in Naur yesterday; also two on December 25 in addition to the nineteen previously reported for that month."

J. W. Grant preached at both services at Reid Avenue, this city, last Lord's day. There was an average attendance at the morning service, rather light at night. Those present manifested fine interest. This congregation has recently had two additions by baptism under the ministry of their elder, J. C. Lawson. One was at the morning service on the first Lord's day in February and the other at the prayer-meeting service on March 16. Each was baptized at the same service in which the confession was made.

James C. Moore, a very prominently connected business man and brother, of Smithville, Tenn., under date of March 14, writes: "Inclosed I hand you my check for five dollars to go into the Gospel Advocate sinking fund as suggested by Brother Hall in the Advocate of March 10. The Advocate was sent to me by a friend, and I can assure you that I certainly appreciate it, and I never expect for my subscription to expire. I heartily indorse the movement as set out by Brother Hall with reference to the sinking fund, and hope that you will receive enough money to send it to every loyal Christian who is not financially able to subscribe for it." We heartily thank Brother Moore. Who will be next?

From R. A. Craig, Louisville, Ky., March 15: "Last Sunday I was at Harrisonville and Shelbyville. I drove sixty-eight miles to make these points. We had good attendance at both places. I feel that through persistent effort we can establish the cause at Shelbyville. If any families wish to move to the blue-grass region of Kentucky, Shelby County would be an ideal place. Shelbyville is a thriving town of about six thousand inhabitants, situated thirty miles from Louisville and twenty-two miles from Frankfort, the capital of the State. Farm land sells from one hundred to two hundred dollars per acre. We need more Christians in Shelby County. Won't you come and join our working force?"

W. D. Black writes from Holdenville, Okla., March 14: "We had two good services at the church of Christ here yesterday, notwithstanding the inclemency of the weather. The crowd was small at night on account of the heavy rain in the afternoon and threatening weather about night. The church seems to be taking on new life. We recently purchased one hundred and fifty seats for the house—opera chairs, practically new—which help wonderfully in a material way. We also have a new communion set. Interest is fine in all lines of Bible study, both midweek and Sunday. J. W. Bryant, of Roff, Okla., was with us last night on his way to Seminole. We are looking forward to greater things in the future, working and praying to be led into fields for greater usefulness in the Lord's cause."

F. L. Paisley, Memphis, Tenn., March 14, sends the following: "I spent the first Sunday in March with the church at Paris, Tenn. This was the first time I had been with them in near five years. Then I worked with them monthly, and they met in the courthouse. They have made considerable progress, and are now meeting in an unused house, well located, which they have borrowed from some denomination not existing as a body there now. They now have preaching two Sundays a month, with bright prospects for the future. B. L. Douthitt preaches there. The McKellar Avenue Church here is beginning its third years work of my connection therewith. They seem to think we are making fair progress, all things considered; but I am sure we should do better. My time is all promised for this year and for part of next. Let all friends of the truth be busy; its enemies rest not."

From H. F. Pendergrass, Louisville, Ky., March 17: "I filled my regular appointment at Fairview on Saturday night and Sunday morning. We had large crowds at both services. In the afternoon and night I was with the Lone Ridge congregation, and spoke twice to good audiences. Many of their leading members have recently moved to other places, leaving them very weak in number; but they are trying, I think, to carry on the Lord's work as he has directed. I have been especially impressed with their liberality in supporting the truth. I am sure some of them have given beyond their power. How good it makes us feel to know that we have given to the extent of sacrifice! Just prove the words of the Lord Jesus that 'it is more blessed to give than to receive.' I feel there is no lesson we need to be taught more than the lesson of sacrifice. Now that spring has opened up, I hope to be able to get out and do much good in the field that is ripe and waiting for harvesting."

From U. G. Wilkinson, Comanche, Okla., March 16: "For more than three months I have been at Sulphur, Okla., and Hot Springs, Ark, trying to recover my health. sufficiently recovered to return home again, and I hope now, with a necessary spell of rest, to be able to do some work again in the fields that are so white to the harvest. No one who has not gone through with such an experience can realize what it means. Brethren from all parts of the country, as well as the Lord's people at Hot Springs and Sulphur, have assisted me. I sincerely thank them and the Lord for what they have done for me. But it has taken all to restore me to what I now am, and I shall not be able yet to do active work until I have rested a while. In fact. it will not do for me to undertake anything, as I think, for quite a while, except the easiest kind of work. It will be a long time yet until I can expect to 'make a hand' in any kind of work. I could not even promise to engage future work yet, further than to preach or lecture a few times. I still need the prayers and fellowship of the brethren."

S. W. Bell writes from Sedalia, Mo., March 16: "I filled my regular monthly appointment at Berea, near Slater, Mo., last Lord's day. We had one of the largest crowds that we last Lord's day. We had one of the largest crowds that have had there for some time, with extra good attention at both services. It seemed to me as though they showed both services. marked signs of aiming to do more this year than in the past years. There are some of the finest people there, the most liberal, and who seem to have the Lord's work more at heart, that are to be found anywhere. Pray with us that this may be the best year of our lives. The work in Sedalia still fights on against many odds. Mrs. Bell reports that there was a very nice little crowd at our house-tohouse meeting last Sunday, mostly women and children. Our boy had to take the lead. Remember that we are planning a month's campaign, with two competent men in It is now thought best to ask any and the lead, in June. all who have friends or acquaintances in St. Louis who are likely to be interested in the church to write to either W. W. Moody, 3667 Botanical Avenue, St. Louis, Mo., or to me, and we will gladly look them up and see if we can get them more interested and to come to the services."

The Red-Headed Boy.

"There's that awful red-headed boy in a fight!" The sharp voice belonged to the sharp-faced teacher of the fifth grade, who happened to be on duty at the noon recess. She hurried to the struggling boys and, with the assistance of another teacher, managed to pull them apart.

"Young man," she said, addressing the owner of the red hair, "this is not the first fight you've had on these grounds, but I certainly hope it will be the last." She marched the panting boys to the principal's office.

In the meantime a red head had appeared at an upstairs window. One glance from a pair of intelligent brown eyes took in the situation, and the head disappeared.

"Yes, I saw him, with my own eyes, rush at the other boy, grab him by the collar, and fling him down!" sharp voice was pitched so as to enter the principal's ear and penetrate to his rather kind heart, arousing it to execute a righteous judgment on the red-headed culprit.

"Be seated, boys. What grade are you in?"

The red-headed boy looked up.

"Indeed. I'm sorry to say he is still in mine!" sharp voice had emphasized "still."

"Did you attack this boy first?"

"With my hands-yes, sir."

"Why do you say 'with my hands?""

"Because he attacked me first with his tongue."

The principal looked at the other boy, who grinned and flushed.

There was a tap on the door. "Come in!" called the principal; and a tall young woman with red hair and brown eyes entered. She looked sympathetically into the eyes of both boys, causing them both to blush with shame.

The red-headed boy blushed because he remembered the fight he had the previous year, and how this red-headed teacher from another grade had walked all the way home with him, and how she had told him that God had made both their heads red; how he had numbered each of those red hairs; how that it did not just happen to be red, but that God bad permitted it to be that color; and that it was wrong to fight about it, because it was like reproaching his Heavenly Father for making it red.

"Have a seat, Miss McClain. I'm glad you have come. Now," to the black drooping head, "how did you attack him first with your tongue?'

Both boys' faces got redder. After an embarrassing silence, the red head was thrown back, and a pair of honest blue eyes looked at the principal.

"He don't want to tell you, because Miss McClain is here. Please, Miss McClain, go out! Then you can come back when we holler, 'Come.'"

The blue eyes looked beseechingly into the brown eyes. The principal raised his eyebrows; the thin lips of the sharp-faced teacher curled contemptuously; Miss McClain laughed merrily.

"Excuse me, Professor; but perhaps you don't understand. Why, it's something about red heads. You see, Pat is so sensitive on the subject that he can't realize that I'm not at all so. Don't mind me, Ernest, just speak the truth." But the boy only looked more ashamed of himself.

Miss McClain smiled knowingly at the principal, "He called him a red-headed, freckled-faced Irishman, I suspect. Was that it, Pat?"

"Ask him." Pat Dillon nodded his red head toward Ernest's black one.

his teacher's intellectual face, and the look in her eyes brought him to his feet.

"Professor," he stammered, "I-that's exactly what I said, only-that wasn't all. I said that his mother nearly whipped him last night because she saw a light through the transom and thought he was still reading after she had told him to put out his light and go to bed, but she found it was only the light from his head. I-I didn't know how low down it was, until-until Miss McClain came in."

Miss McClain's eyes regarded him. She was proud of her pupil.

Pat was on his feet before Ernest had finished.

"It was my fault! I promised Miss McClain last year that I would stop and spell 'God made it red' before I fought about it, and I forgot to-day; but it is the first redheaded fight I've had since I promised her." And they all believed it.

The principal rose and shook hands with the boys.

"Now shake hands with each other-that's right. Pat, my boy, I believe this is to be your last fight on account of your hair. Now, I want you to study your hardest, so 1 can promote you to Miss McClain's room. I think there you would soon learn to appreciate red hair."

Pat Dillon was promoted at Christmas, and from the day he entered Miss McClain's room-and looked into her eyes-he became a different boy. He was from the beginning her messenger, because, when she looked up to select some one, a pair of eager blue eyes begged to be of

The principal watched with interest the developing of the red-headed boy by the tactful, intelligent, red-headed teacher.

"Miss McClain has the best-behaved grade in school, I've taught it twice," declared one senior to another whom she met in the hall, on her way to fill Miss McClain's vacant seat.

"I'm certainly glad to hear it, for I'm awfully nervous about teaching boys and girls of from ten to thirteen; they are simply at an abominable age! I'm not surprised that she has these violent headaches come on suddenly."

"Don't you worry. If you want any information, just ask that red-headed boy; he's a treasure."

The nervous senior found the report to be true, and everything had gone on smoothly until the arithmetic class was called, and eight pupils were at the board, when suddenly the fire alarm rang.

"The fire drill!" exclaimed the senior, excitedly.

"Fire, fire, fire!" shouted a voice in the street below.

The senior sprang from her seat and rushed from the platform. Pat raced down the aisle, caught her in his arms and carried her back to Miss McClain's desk.

Interest in Pat's maneuvers had saved the grade from Holding the struggling, half-hysterical senior, Pat gave the necessary number of sharp, commanding taps. The grade responded mechanically; but when the little girl who led the line looked into the smoky hall and saw white-faced teachers struggling desperately to control themselves, and the crooked lines of crying girls and excited boys, she hesitated.

"Ernest, lead the line!" commanded Pat. "and every one hold on to the one in front!"

From the foot of the stairs the principal saw Miss Mc-Clain's grade holding their lawful place next the wall. A line too compact to be broken, they came on past him, and in their rear came a red-headed boy, dragging an unconscious senior.

In the morning papers was the principal's account of how Pat Dillon, in the absence of his teacher, had preserved the honor of the sixth grade. Miss McClain read it, Ernest raised his black eyes, full of tears of shame, to I and was proud of her red-headed boy.—Selected.

SPRING DEBILITY

Loss of Appetite, That Tired Feeling and Sometimes Eruptions.

Thousands take Hood's Sarsapa-

Thousands take Hood's Sarsaparilla as a spring medicine for that tired feeling, nervous weakness, impure blood and say it makes them feel better, eat and sleep better, and "makes food taste good."

Spring debility is a condition in which it is especially hard to combat disease germs, which invade the system here, there and everywhere. The white blood corpuscles, sometimes called "the little soldiers in the blood," because it is their duty to fight disease germs, are too weak to do good service.

Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens the "little soldiers" and enables them to repel germs of grip, influenza, fevers and other allments; relieves catarrh and rheumatism. It has given satisfaction to three generations. Get it today, and for a laxative take Heod's Pills.

Diotrenhes

Among the portraits sketched by inspiration, which have come down through the ages to us, is that of Diotrephes, drawn by the beloved disciple John in the third epistle. Where Diotrephes was born, or lived, or died, we are not informed. He has left neither works nor words behind as his memorial. No books embalm his thoughts, no traditions communicate the story of his good deeds. All we know of his story is embodied in these brief words: "I wrote unto the church: but Dietrephes, who leveth to have the preëminence among them, receiveth us not. Wherefore, if I come, I will remember his deeds which he doeth, prating against us with malicious words: and not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and forbiddeth them that would, and casteth them out of the church. Beloved, follow not that which is evil, but that which is good. He that doeth good is of God: but he that doeth evil hath not seen God."

Diotrephes was a church memberthat seems plain. How he got into the church is not known. He was a poor fisherman who caught such a fish. But he was in and was inclined to stay in, no matter who else might be shut out. He was probably an officer, perhaps an elder, in the church. How he obtained this position we do not know. We can only guess by comparing his career with that of others of similar character whom we have known. Somehow, perhaps by smooth talk, by apparent zeal, or profession of piety and humility, he got himself the job; and once in, he could be trusted to stay there. They could not choke him off. He magnified his office, and magnified himself as the proper man to fill it. He not only filled his own office, but he slopped over into others until he filled the whole church and controlled its every action. His predominating characteristic the apostle intimates when he describes him as one who loved "to have the preeminence" among them. And as John in his old age was revered and beloved for his labors and his worth, there was no place for even him in the church where Diotrephes ruled and reigned; and so the aged apostle could say, "He receiveth us not."

The epistle which John wrote was treated with contempt by this stiffnecked demagogue, whom the apostle describes as "prating against us with malicious words;" and not content with maligning and abusing the apostles of the Lord, he would not receive "the brethren," and forbade them that would, and cast them "out of the church."

Diotrephes loved "the preëminence" and attained it. He coveted power and usurped it. He evidently loved notoriety, and he has it. His likeness is framed and hung up in infamy before the gaze of all the ages. His exalted position only enhances his disgrace. Let his descendants and imitaters, who can be found in many churches, beware of such a doom as his. Let those who walk in the footsteps of this ancient demagogue take warning, lest in seeking to be famous they become infamous; lest in seeking honor they receive contempt, and not only bring upon themselves present disgrace, but the condemnation of the Lord in the judgment day.-George Gowen, in Shelbyville (Tenn.) Gazette.

Another Hobby Brought In.

BY WILL J. CULLUM.

The church of Christ is a divine institution, established upon divine principles and by divine authority. The Savior and the apostles left nothing undone in giving complete instruction in our work of love and labor in the vineyard of our Master. To follow the instructions given by divine authority is the only safe thing to do; and when we become dissatisfied with the plain teachings of God through his Son and the apostles, we are evidently getting on dangerous ground. He who speculates, and teaches his opinion, is a dangerous person, and very apt to lead astray the less informed, especially the babes in Christ.

Hobbies are hurtful and dangerous: and the preacher or teacher who spends his time in riding hobbies and pressing his private opinions upon his hearers is unfit for the work of the ministry, for he becomes a sower of discord among brethren. God hates a character of this kind, (See Prov. 6: 16-19.)

The hobbies that have been embraced by religious teachers are too numerous to consider now, but a few are here mentioned. Opposition to the following is raised, and in this opposition, in some cases, it has about assumed to make these issues a test of fellowship: (1) Sunday schools; (2) the use of literature; (3) baptizing in a pool; (4) building meetinghouses; (5) passing the basket for the contribution; (6) singing invitation songs; (7) extending the invitation: (8) taking the confession before reaching the water, ready for baptism; and teaching that there can be no elders and deacons at this day and time, the claim being made that these all passed out with the days of inspiration. The last-mentioned hobby is one that, to my mind, if permitted by the congregations to be taught, will result in more real harm to the church than all of the others combined. I am sure that a careful reading of 1 Tim. 3: 1-7 and Tit. 1: 6-9 will be sufficient to convince the mind of any one who will read without prejudice that this theory is erroneous, and, therefore, misleading and hurtful. Here the Holy Spirit expressly names the qualifications of a bishop, or elder. We see that he must be "apt to teach" and "able . . . to convince the gainsayers." Naming the qualifications would have been unnecessary had the Holy Spirit included only the inspired ones in the mention of elders; for, of a truth, inspiration would have provided all necessary qualifications. Many other scriptures might be mentioned which bear directly upon an uninspired eldership.

May God help us to be content to abide by his teaching and to devote our time to teaching those principles of truth that are necessary for us to know and heed, in order that we may meet with God's approval and live with him at last.

O Christ, I am helpless to live the true life. I now hand myself over to thee. Live thou in me; and living in me, win for me the complete victory every day.

Some Practices That Should Be Abandoned.

BY J. WILL HENLEY.

Many churches have adopted the practice of writing to two or three or more preachers at the same time, having, no doubt, first, second, and third choice, etc., asking for a "date"-or, rather, setting a date, and asking the preacher to come on that date. I do not answer such letters, if they tell me they have written other preachers, because I have learned by experience that such methods always misput some preacher. It might be me, but it will surely disappoint some one. If I get a letter asking me if I can come on a certain date, and I have that time unoccupied. I write that I can be with them, expecting, of course, to be with them. About that time some other brother requests my presence on that date. I tell him I cannot come, as I am expecting to be elsewhere at the time mentioned. But these brethren had also written others, and perhaps their first-choice man accepted the date offered; so I am left without an appointment, while they have secured their man at my disadvantage, and in most cases at my expense. Quit it, brethren. Write to the man you want. If you cannot get him, then write another.

Setting dates for meetings is wrong. No man can look into the future and know how long God wants him to stay at a certain place in a meeting, You may need to stay four days or forty days. Who knows? But if the preacher keeps the dates that the churches have made him make with them, he must close on a certain date or else disappoint the next community. I have never "set dates" but twice, and each time the business got me "in bad" with the next place. I will hold your meeting when I get there and close it when it is done. If you do not want it that way, get the "date setters;" their name is legion. If forty days is needed, stay with it; if only four days, leave then. Some meetings would be better if they were shorter; but in most cases the expression, "the meeting closed too soon," is very pertinent in the report of the meeting.

Many churches think they know that July or August is the accepted time for their meetings. I know it is not, and hundreds of preachers know it is not; but some brethren think the preacher is not supposed to know what is best, and so scour the woods to find a man who has the July and August fever, and will have their meeting then or never. The greatest meetings of my life have been held when folks were as busy as bees with their work. Want a meeting, sacrifice for a meeting, and God will help you have a meeting. Quit telling the Lord when you want him to put on a campaign for souls. Take the preacher when you can get him, work with him and not against him, and let all work with God, and men and women will come to Christ.

Sometimes churches arrange with a man to come, and right at the time of starting will "call off the meeting." Who made this contract, the church or the preacher? Did not both the church and the preacher make the contract? Has the church the sole right to cancel the contract without the knowledge or consent of the You know it has not. preacher? Last fall Oscar L. Hays was singing with me in a fine meeting. We needed him; our work was great, and song leaders were not to be had in the community. But Brother Hays had agreed with a church to be with them on a certain date. When the "date" came, I tried to get him to stay with me: but no, he must keep his word and not disappoint those good people; so he left me, and, of course, crippled the meeting to a great and sad extent. But when he reached his home, ready to depart on the morrow for his meeting, behold, they informed him that the meeting was "called off." Did they send him remuneration for his time that they had robbed him of? You know the answer-they did not. Perhaps they thought of him as one brother here told me-that is, they must keep the preacher poor; for if he had more than he needed to use now. he might try to make an investment, and the church would lose him if he was successful; and if he was not successful, the church would have to supply his losses.

Now, these things ought not so to be. May the Lord help us all to use our best judgment in all his work.

CURED HER FITS

Mrs. Paul Gram, who had suffered with fits or epilepsy for over fourteen years, reports that she was cured with a medicine she read about in the paper. She says that over ten years have passed and the attacks have not returned. Every one suffering from fits should write R. P. Lepso, 198 island Avenue, Milwaukee, Wis., who will send them a free bottle of the same kind of medicine Mrs. Gram says cured her. Send him your name to-day.

I was badly ruptured while lifting a trunk several years ago. Doctors said my only hope of cure was an operation. Trusses did me no good. "ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their cloquences, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase.

Was the Decalogue the Law in Eden, and Will It Be the Law in Heaven?

BY FLAVIL HALL.

I think the literature sent out by McHenry and Martin, "who concerning the truth have erred" in going to the Seventh-Day Adventists, has been fully answered by different brethren, except with reference to the foregoing questions; hence, to these alone I wish to give attention in one brief article.

On page 5 of their tract, "In the Roll of the Book It Is Written," the decalogue is represented as being the law in heaven; on page 6 they appropriate the expression, "The Eternal Ten;" and on pages 14, 15 they teach that the literal Sabbath will obtain in heaven-" was instituted in Eden and is as enduring as time and bridges eternity."

In a six-days' discussion with the writer at Jennings Lake, Fla., C. B. Stephenson, president of the Florida Conference of Seventh-Day Adventists, took the same position. In substance the following statement was made in reply to him, which is fully applicable to McHenry and Martin and all other Seventh-Day Adventists:

The Sabbath law ended at the cross (Col. 2: 14-17), and the new covenant was not in force till Christ died (Heb. 9: 15-17). By rejecting this Bible teaching and substituting human theology you make your theory monstrously absurd. No one com-mitted to heresy can speak without making his utterances ludierous enough for a comic almanac. He says the decalogue law was given to angels, to Adam in Eden, and will be the law in heaven. Thus he has the angels commanded not to commit adultery, not to covet another's wife or ox or ass, to labor six days and rest only on the seventh day; Adam commanded not to commit adultery and not to covet another's wife, when there was not another man and his wife or daughter in the world. And in heaven we will be commanded to labor six days and rest only on the seventh I thought there was undisturbed Sabbath rest awaiting the people of God (Heb. 4), but he is trying to blast my hope. According to his theory, we will have to plow a donkey and drive oxen for six days, and rest and give them and the other domestic animals rest on the seventh day. I fear he will fall from heaven with such experience. He tries to fasten the old covenant upon us, which had no better blood than that of bulls and of goats (Heb. 10: 1-4), and is trying to take us to a heaven of bulls and of goats. I hoped that when I should get to heaven the first voices greeting my ears would be the angels and re-deemed singing of salvation through the blood of the Lamb, and of his resurrection upon the first day of the week; but when he gets to his heaven, the first voices he hears may be the bleating of goats and the bellowing of bulls. If the Ten Commandments are e possible there, else we would not kill;" contrary to the teaching of Christ (Luke 20: 36), the marriage relation will obtain in heaven, else would not have the command, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbors's wife;" we will not be "beyond the power of evil," as we sing in joyful anticipation, else we would not have the commands, "Thou shalt not commit adultery," and, "Thou shalt not covet thy neighbor's ox, nor his ass." A chain is no stronger than the weakest link. Here is a link in your theory as big as an elephant, as conspicuous as a monkey's face, but no stronger than a spider's web.

Leave Mount Sinal and come with us "unto Mount Zion, and unto the Jerusalem, . . to Jesus heavenly the mediator of the new covenant," to the blood of the Messiah which gives eternal remission of sins and undisturbed Sabbath rest in the heavenly Canaan. Here you will find all the moral principles of the decalogue yea, a law of morals of the highest and holiest order. One would find these principles here if he had never heard of the Old Testament. But this does not mean that we are under the law of the decalogue. When the Colonies were freed from the yoke of England, some of the laws of England were embodied in the code of the new republic; but this cannot mean that they were still under the yoke from which they had been freed.

Brother Fuqua is printing my arguments in the above-mentioned discussion on the Sabbath and Lord's day; also, every argument of any weight made by Mr. Stephenson is quoted and refuted. Send to me at Trion. Ga., ten cents for a copy, or one dollar for one dozen.

Notes From West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

Last Lord's day (March 13) I went to Jones Chapel, in Lake County, for the first time since the first of last November. The faithful few were present; the unfaithful many were conspicuously absent. The membership at Jones Chapel is composed of cotton raisers, and they are badly hurt financially. One brother who has a good farm paid for, plenty to eat and wear, and who has good health, said he was broke. Another said: "We should discontinue preaching, as we are not able to pay for it." Others said: "Discontinue preaching? Never!" It is true that the decline in the price of cotton has hurt them, and hurt them badly, and many of them are in a strait financially and are greatly discouraged. I tried to cheer them up to look to God, who still lives and loves his own, and will never fail nor forsake the faithful. One thing now is very apparent to allthat is, that during the high prices for cotton too much money was spent for "that which is not bread." Instead of holding back a few dollars for hard times, it all went; and much of it went for things that could have been done without. I told them if they wanted preaching, and wanted me to do it, I would go and do my best, even if they could not pay one cent for it, as long as I could hold out at it. During the days of prosperity, high prices, etc., they were very liberal in the support of the gospel; and now in their adversity I cannot turn from them, if they want me to con-

Another very discouraging thing to the church in general, under present conditions, is the constant appeals for money through the papers and by circular letters sent out. I can say for the brethren in West Tennessee that they are not able to respond to all the calls for money. It seems that each religious body is trying to excel all others in raising money. I know of some who were very active in soliciting money from others, who gave nothing themselves. Brethren, let us be consistent. If the matter is not worthy of my support, financially, why should I urge upon others to

These are the times to try the faith of all, preachers included. Some congregations in West Tennessee are sounding the word in, and some are trying to sound it out. Some seem to forget Paul's indebtedness. The saved are indebted to the unsaved. What is thought of the man who can, yet will not, pay his debts? When one is converted, then that one becomes indebted to, obligated to, the unsaved. And I know of some individuals and some

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water. then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be fairly described as "a carbonated, flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea-1	cupful1.54	gr.
(hot)	(5 fl. oz.)

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity.

congregations that are not trying to pay their debts. If I owe money to an individual, and can, but do not, will not, pay it, I am called a dishonest man; and such I am. Then what am I if I do not meet my obligations as a child of God? Dishonest, of course. The hard times and the scarcity of money are causing some to fall away, to "walk with him no more;" while a few are more determined, doing all they can for God and for man. Brethren, stop complaining, fretting, and growling; it will harm you in many ways.

The fight against infidelity, in Hornbeak, is on. But our religious neighbors, from some cause, "did not wish to make an issue of it;" so I am doing what I can, backed, of course, by the congregation in Hornbeak. This one

The Gospel Needed in Wyoming.

BY S. W. HOLLOWAY.

Carbon County is located in the south central part of Wyoming, extending from the Colorado line on the south to the seventh standard parallel on the north, and lies east of Albany County and west of Sweetwater County. It is the fourth largest county in Wyoming, having an area of seven thousand six hundred and fifty square miles, being larger in extent than Rhode Island and Delaware combined, and larger than the State of Connecticut. It has a population of some fifteen thousand. Rawlins is the county seat of Carbon County. Rawlins is well supplied with churches, representing the Catholic, Episcopal, Methodist, Presbyterian, and Christian Science denominations; but there is not a church of Christ in the State that I know of. There is great need of mission work in Wyoming. If any of our brethren ever preached in Wyoming, I have not heard of it. In looking over the list of preachers of the churches of Christ, I find that Brother E. E. Berry is at Recluse. I do not know whether he is preaching or not. I have never seen a report from any brother in Wyoming. These people have never heard the gospel. Paul said: "How shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent?" Who is to send the preacher? Jesus said: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature." Wyoming is one part of the world in which Christ's command has not been carried out. It is nice to preach where we have good congregations, but to preach the gospel in Wyoming is to fight the real battle for the Master. Since coming to Wyoming I have preached in schoolhouses, private houses, and under the shade of treesanywhere I could get people to come together and hear the word of God. I have not held any meetings since coming here, because I could not get support. I had to work and support my family, and preach on Lord's days. I have rented the North Star Hall, in Rawlins, to preach in two Sundays in the month. It costs me two dollars and fifty cents for each service, and we have two services each day. If I was able to pay for the hall, I could be preaching every Lord's day. made announcement in the Rawlins paper that a member of the church of Christ would preach in the hall on Sunday, March 6, morning and night, Three sisters and two brothers saw the announcement and came to preaching. "The harvest truly is plenteous, but the laborers are few; pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest." Christ said: "Say not ye. There are yet four months, and then cometh harvest? behold, I say unto you, Lift up your eyes, and look on the fields: for they are white already to harvest." Many of these people will soon depart this life; and if they are not harvested into the fold. they will be lost. Who is responsible for their not hearing the gospel? "How shall they hear without a preacher? and how shall they preach, except they be sent?" If the churches of Christ want to do some missionary work in Wyoming, let them send contributions to Brother L. A. Wall, 221 East Pine Street, Rawlins, Wyoming.

From the Mississippi Field. BY M. C. CAYCE.

I am glad to report that we have secured the use of the courthouse in Jackson on Sundays for worship. Beginning on February 27, our faithful few met there, and until further notice we can be found there on every first day of the week. Bible study at 10: 15 A.M.; preaching and regular worship at 11 A.M. As we have the use of the courthouse only on Sundays, our midweek prayer meeting is held in the home of some one. I will be glad when we have a meetinghouse of our own. We need one so badly. I will begin a tent meeting here as soon as weather conditions are suitable, which we now hope will be in Mississippi ought to have many more true gospel preachers. The calls are strong and numerous. A sister writes me from Stover, Miss., as

We are a little band of weak Christians here, only six in number, and need so much to be taught. It is disheartening to try to keep them together. None of them attend the Lord's-day services, except two—husband and myself. But it is not all their fault; for they don't know any better, and they won't hear nor believe anything unless they can hear a preacher say it. There are so many places close around here, and so many people that have never heard the gospel preached. This county (Tallahatchie) is a great field with no laborers. I tell you, Brother Cayce, you just plant one or two down in a place like this, and they stand a small thing in the eyes of the people. Sometime soon, if you can, come and preach for us. I know of no place that needs the word of God worse than this country. We are eight miles north of Sumner, Miss. If you can come, let us know.

Appeals like this touch my heart, and I wish I could respond to all of them, and will respond to as many as possible. Every Christian should be a teacher. It is our business as Christians to educate the people in all things that pertain unto life and godliness. We fail to feel as we should the great responsibility that rests upon us.

"When I say unto the wicked, O wicked man, thou shalt surely die; if thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way, that wicked man shall die in his iniquity; but his blood will I require at thine hand." (Ezek. 33; 8.) "Whosoever shall call upon the name of the Lord shall be saved. How then shall they call on him in whom they have not believed? and how shall they believe in him of whom they have not heard? and how shall they hear without a preacher?" (Rom. 10: 13, 14.)

Thou canst give thy love to all of us, and all thy love to each of us.

Profits in Cotton?

The answeris found in less cost perbale, which means growing twice as much cotton per acre. This cuts out nearly one-half the man and team labor.

The right kind and amount of fertilizer has often more than doubled the yield. The Potash in the fertilizer counts.

It balances the food of the crop so that the well-fed plants resist the attacks of blight and other diseases, produce more bolls per plant, and hence more pounds per acre. Such plants do not shed their fruit badly. In this way

Adams.

On February 20, 1920, the death angel entered the home of Mr. and Mrs. R. I. Adams and took their darling baby, Isaiah. He was one year, one month, and thirteen days old. He was sick eight days. He always bad a smile for every one who came near him. He was a flower on earth for just a short while; but our loss is heaven's gain. He leaves a father, mother, and one sister. Let us all try to be faithful servants of our Maker. that we may enter into eternal rest.

ONE THAT LOVED HIM.

Southall.

Our sister, Mrs. Southall, of Tuscumbia, Ala., we are informed by her sister, died a tragic death. She was a reader of the Gospel Advocate for many years. She was born in Alls-boro, Ala., in 1846; was educated at Columbia, Tenn.; was married in the first year after the Civil War; was baptized, in Nashville, Tenn., at an early age; and was a member of the church of Christ for sixty years. She leaves a sister, Sallie Woodfin, to mourn her loss, and who was greatly pained at her death. Those who are left in sorrow grieve not as those who have no hope; for they look confidently to the meeting beyond, where there will be no death.

Wray.

Brother Benjamin B. Wray was born on December 1, 1890, and died on February 22, 1921. He was married to Miss Annie McNeal on June 28, 1914. His death was caused by a burn received the day before while attempting to start the fire at his school in Pilot Oak, near Wingo, Ky., with gasoline. He was well qualified to answer the higher calls of humanity both in the educational and religious world. He "lifted up" the Son of man in every deed. His life has shaped, and will continue to shape, the lives of many who knew him for Christ. Funeral services were held by Brethren Charlie Taylor and E. H. Smith, at Mount Pleasant, where his body was laid to rest. Our sympathies are extended to the bereaved ones, and especially to his dear Christian wife.

Criswell.

Thomas Abel Criswell was born, in Williamson County, Tenn., on May 4, 1839, and departed this life on February 20, 1921. He was married to Miss Cal Rebecca Mosley on August 20, 1866. For fifty-three years they lived a happy life together. Sister Criswell preceded him to the grave. December 2, 1919, at the age of eightyfour. Six children were born to this union, five of whom are now living. Many years ago Brother and Sister Criswell became members of the one body, the church of Christ, and, so far as earthly minds are capable of judging, lived faithful to the end. The writer conducted the funeral service at the Dorris Chapel meetinghouse, in the presence of a large crowd of sorrowing brethren and friends. "Be thou faithful until death, and I will give the a grown of life." give thee a crown of life.

FRED BLANCHARD.

King.

Sister Lucy King departed this life, at Lecanto, Fla., on February 18, 1921, aged seventy years. She was the wife of Brother Henry King, who died only four days before. She leaves five sons, besides a host of friends and relatives, to mourn her death. was a faithful member of the church of Christ. She was always found, with her husband, and at her place in the church, willing to do her part. On the day she went away to live with her companion, as we have hope, in the paradise of God, her two sons, who had lived for many years in sin, obeyed the gospel. Before they returned to her home from the water she had breathed her last. Her body was laid beside that of her husband in the Lecanto Cemetery. Funeral services were conducted by the writer in the presence of a host of friends.

R. E. L. TAYLOR.

Richardson.

Sister Lenice Hobbs was born on March 4, 1883; obeyed the gospel in early life; was married to Brother Hicks Richardson on July 2, 1915; and passed away, at St. Thomas Hospital, in Nashville, Tenn., on January 1921. She leaves a husband, one child (a little boy), two brothers and two sisters, to mourn their loss. Sister Richardson's death was very unexpected, and, therefore, a great shock to her many friends. The writer spent the night of January 2 in her home, when she spoke of being un-usually well. On the morning of January 4, at three o'clock, she awoke to find herself very sick, and lived just twenty-four hours. She was good in every sense that the word implies-a good neighbor, a good Christian, a good wife, and a good mother. She will be greatly missed by the church at Culleoka, Tenn., where she was a regular attendant, and by the commu-nity in which she lived, but most of all by her husband and little boy, to whom she was fondly devoted.

J. T. HARRIS.

Wortham.

On Friday, February 25, 1921, Sister Lexie Wortham was called by death. She has gone on to meet her beloved husband, who preceded her about four She leaves a mother, a father, five brothers, three sisters, besides two children, to mourn her death. Her father and two brothers are ministers of the gospel of Christ. Sister Wortham was twenty-eight years of She obeyed the commands of God at an early age and lived a devout Christian until death claimed her. She had been suffering for nearly a year, and expressed a desire to pass to the life beyond the grave. The writer tried to speak words of comfort and encouragement to the bereaved ones, that they might continue to "fight the good fight of faith," so that they could, in that great day, hear the welcome plaudit, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," and be reunited with the loved ones gone on before, in that home where there will be no death, no pain, no sorrow, no crying, for "the former things are passed away." May God bless and comfort those who have been left be-J. G. MANER.

Reed.

Sister Martha C. Reed died on January 7, 1921, at the City Infirmary, Huntsville, Ala. She was married to James T. Reed on August 3, 1881, and to this union two sons and six daughters were born. Her husband and seven children are left to mourn their loss. Mr. "Moody." Mrs. Reed's maiden name was She was born in Cannon Tenn., on July 6, 1855. In County, her girlhood days she heard the gospel preached by Jesse Sewell, and at the age of seventeen believed and was baptized, and ever afterwards lived a loving, faithful, dutiful child of God till called from earth. Sister Reed, with her husband, had been a member of the West Huntsville congregation for about eighteen years. She loved the church and attended the Lord's-day worship regularly. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord from henceforth: Yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow Funeral services were conducted by Brother C. M. Tribute to T. W. Thompson.

BY L. L. BRIGANCE.

T. W. Thompson, of Hazel, Ky., was born on July 8, 1850, and died on January 27, 1921, the years of his pilgrimage being seventy years, six months, and nineteen days. He became obedient to the faith at about the age of twenty-five years, and grew in grace and in the knowledge and practice of the Word until he reached the end of his journey. For more than thirty years he was an elder of the church at Green Plains, about three miles from Hazel. During this time the church grew strong in numbers and influence. He tended it as a shepherd should his flock, and watched over it as a good father would his family. The cause of Christ was his greatest interest in life. He was never placed under circumstances where he was ashamed of the simplicity that is in Christ, nor did he ever fail to defend the faith when it was assailed.

He was a great friend to preachers of the gospel. His home was always open to them; and when they needed help, he never turned them away empty. He took Brother Charley Taylor into his home when he was a little, homeless, orphan boy, and stood by him until he became an able preacher of the gospel. He loaned other young preachers money for long periods without interest, in order that they might go to school, and he seemed to take delight in having these young men just "starting out" to preach come to Green Plains and "practice" on the church there.

He is survived by only one child, Mrs. Eva Curd, who, with her husband and little boy, Edward, live at the old homestead and carry on the good work which he has laid down. May the Lord abundantly bless them as they go onward in their journey.

The writer, in the presence of a great throng of brethren and friends, conducted the funeral.

Shall We Lose the Property?

BY J. H. LAWSON,

Sometime ago the few faithful at Galveston, Texas, purchased a nice little place of worship, well located, on which they paid five hundred dollars, and agreed to pay one thousand dollars within six months and the remainder within eighteen months. number of churches and brethren came to their aid in the payment of the secend note and it was promptly met; and it had been hoped that the entire indebtedness would be wiped out, but such was not the case. While statements have been made to the brotherbood, yet but little has been done lately, and now the note is due and demand made for payment within fifteen days, and there is but six hundred dollars on hand to meet it. The churches of Houston have helped and are still helping in this work, but other help is badly needed. The church at the Heights sent one hundred dollars last week, and last evening at a gathering of the four churches more than one hundred dollars was raised to be applied on the note; but there must be raised at once at least four hundred dollars, or the property will be lost, and all that has been paid on it.

Those who hold the notes are not friends to plain New Testament Christianity, but no doubt would be glad if the work should fail. It must not fail; for the cause of Christ in that great city would be ruined and brought to shame, and the influence over the State would be bad. We must meet this at once, and heartily. We request those who read this to at once head a list of cheerful givers and present it at once to as many as they can see in one day, and send the amount thus collected to J. L. Dupre, 2920 Avenue H, Galveston, Texas, and then on the Lord's day following place the matter before the whole church and urge all to give, and to give liberally. There is no time to be lost in this matter, and what is done should be done quickly.

Brother Oscar Smith joins with me in this statement and appeal. We are personally acquainted with the needs and conditions at Galveston, and urgently request that the brotherhood come to the rescue.

The Captivity of Thought.

Paul uses this expression: "Bringing every thought into captivity to the obedience of Christ." This is suggestive of the highest degree of Christian growth and development. It represents the supreme excellence of Christian influence, the unreckonable power of Christian warfare, the sum total of Christian endeavor and achievement. It reveals the picture of a man spiritually perfect so far as one can be in this world. His thoughts and intents are centered upon one purpose and striving for one goal. That purpose is to become obedient unto Christ; that goal is to be saved in heaven.

Edifying as the Need May Be

BY A. B. LIPSCOMB

Pascal tells us: "Man is evidently made for thinking. This is the only excellence he can boast, the only one that differentiates him from the dumb brutes of earth. To think aright is the sum of human duty; and the true art of thinking is to begin with ourselves, our Author, and our end." And yet, "what is it," he asks, "that engrosses the thoughts of the world? Not any of these objects, but pleasure, wealth, honor, and esteem; in fine, the making of ourselves kings without reflecting what it is to be a king or a man."

Mental Carelessness in Religious Matters.

There is undoubtedly a great deal of mental carelessness in dealing with religious matters even among professed Christians. I had occasion once to speak to a friend, who had been immersed, about engaging in the work and worship of the congregation with which I was identified. In answer to my solicitous inquiry, he offered several objections. The chief criticism was that the congregation did not place enough emphasis upon the intellectual side of the Christian religion. It was a nice way of stating that we encourage ignorance among our members. This friend had reference to what he called "preinitiatory knowledge." By way of illustration he went on to say how much a person should know about Old Testament prophecies and figures and New Testament mysteries before he could be intelligently baptized into Christ and make the start in the Christian life. The brief outline of necessary knowledge he gave me was so broad in its scope and so intricate in its bearing that I told him frankly that such a condition would not only bar the children, but most grown-up people, from accepting the Savior. In reply, I tried to impress the fact upon his mind that, in the examples of conversion contained in the Acts of the Apostles, the rudiments of the great lesson of salvation were easily learned, and that many wayfaring men had confessed their belief in the Son of God, turned from their sins, and had entered through baptism into his spiritual kingdom.

Had this friend made the point that many who have been baptized do not appreciate the intellectual side of the religion of Christ; that many do not read and study the word of God with any degree of regularity, and on account of their intermittent efforts do not derive any great amount of pleasure from its perusal; and that many act as if they were afraid of Christian scholarship, many of us would be compelled to shamefacedly confess that his conclusions were correct. The neglect of learning more and more about Jesus Christ and his hely religion is not only unbecoming, but it is disastrous. An intelligent application of the teaching of God's word is necessary for our spiritual cleanliness. "Already ye are clean because of the word which I have spoken unto you." (John 15: 3.) It is necessary for our sanctification. "Sanctify them in the truth; thy word is truth." (John 17: 17.) It is necessary for the expression of our love. "For God is my witness, how I long after you all in the tender mercies of Christ Jesus. And this I pray, that your love may abound yet more and more in knowledge and all discernment; so that ye may approve the things that are excellent; that ye may be sincere and void of offense unto the day of Christ," (Phil. 1: 8-10.)

But let us not gainsay the fact that Christ does not expect us to take the postgraduate course first. Beginners are always welcome in the great Teacher's school.

The Ideas That Cling.

How frequently do we hear a man say that this or that idea "clung to me through life!" Ideas are powerful vehicles in the molding and developing of thought and character. Ideas implanted in the hearts of the young may rule for good or they may ruin. The idea of becoming very rich has caused many a young man to become rich at the cost of his soul. The idea of becoming a useful preacher of the gospel has often led to a life of glorious sacrifice and splendid service.

SisterAndrews, who was an efficient missionary worker in Japan, states that her going was the result of an idea first conceived when she was but a small girl of tender age. Our ideas are indissolubly associated with our plans. Should not these simple and well-attested facts stir the heart of every faithful teacher? You are not merely teaching the lesson; you are creating ideas that will make or hinder the success of those whom you teach.

Why the Bible Is the Greatest Book.

Some would say because it is the oldest book, but this is not the reason. Some would say because it is the most popular book, but this is not the reason. These things are important, but they do not confirm the greatness of the Bible. The best reason is contained in the answer that a slave gave to an infidel. The infidel asked him how it was that he considered the Bible such a wonderful book when he could neither read nor write. "Because it touches my heart," was the laconic answer. This is the reason for the greatness of the Bible. This explains why it is the most important study.

Christianity is important, but it cannot give the answer of a good conscience. Mathematics is important, but it cannot heal a broken heart. The sciences are important, but they cannot point the way to heaven. The languages are important, but they cannot make a man "thoroughly furnished unto all good works." In the study of the Bible you not only add to your intellect, but you find a foundation for your character. Read the Bible and you stand with Moses and partake of his meekness. Read the Bible and you stand with Paul and partake of his faith. Read the Bible and you stand with Christ and partake of his love.

An old Scotch preacher was called to a new charge. He explained his relationship to the congregation by saying: "I am the shepherd and you are the sheep. I shall put my mark upon you, and the Bible is the tar bottle." All Christians should have the mark of the Bible upon them. And thinking of the old Scotchman's figure, it is not enough to "smear it on;" we want this wonderful book to permeate every fiber of our being.

"Judge Ye What I Say."

BY JOHN TAYLOR.

Brother Kurfees says that I am mistaken and need to read the New Testament more,

In my article in the Gospel Advocate of January 6, 1921, I repeated what I said in the article which appeared in the Advocate of November 11, 1920; and I now give it again and note his reply.

I said: "If he join the denomination in the same act that Brother Kurfees says makes him a member of the church of God, then in that act he sins, and can such be obedience to God? No." In answer to this, Brother Kurfees says: "But 'Brother Kurfees' most assuredly does not believe and has nowhere taught that anybody 'joins the denomination in the same act that makes him a member of the church of God.' The New Testament does not teach such a doctrine,"

I know that the New Testament does not teach "such a doctrine;" but Brother Kurfees must teach "such a doctrine," since he teaches that children of God can be found in denominational churches. The only way a man can get into the Baptist Church is by submitting to what the Baptists call baptism. The only way one can get into the church of God is by submitting to what the Bible calls baptism. Then, if a person is a member of the Baptist denomination and the church of God at the same time, "the same act" (baptism) that made him a member of the one made him a member of the other. "If not, why not?"

But Brother Kurfees says: "That does not by any means follow. Our brother is simply mistaken, and could just as consistently say: 'If one is a member of a' business firm 'and the church of God at the same time, the same act that made him a member of the one made him a member of the other.' If not, why not?"

Listen, Brother Kurfees; A person does not have to be baptized in order to get into any business firm of which I have ever heard. But if baptism were necessary in order to get into a business firm, and since it is necessary in order to get into the church of God, if a man were a member of both at the same time, 'the same act' that made him a member of the business firm would have made him a member of the church of God. "If not, why not?"

Brother Kurfees makes a cry for some of the many people who are in the different denominational churches, which seems to be a cry for sympathy from his readers. He also says: "Away goes the plea of the Reformation of the nine-teenth century." If it were wrong, I say let it go. As you quoted Brother Paul: "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." (1 Thess. 5: 21.)

I asked him this question: "Would you baptize a person on the confession which a Baptist preacher demands?" His answer is: "That depends on what a Baptist preacher demands." Why did you not answer? Brother Kurfees, do you know what a Missionary Baptist preacher demands one to confess before baptism?

Another question was: "Would you receive into the fellowship of the church one from the Baptist denomination baptized upon the confession which a Baptist preacher demands?" His answer is: "I do not 'receive into the fellowship of the church' any 'one from the Baptist denomination,' nor from anywhere else. Brother Taylor should read the New Testament According to it, persons are baptized 'into the fellowship of the church."

Yes, the Bible teaches that we are baptized into the fellowship of the church. But "receive into the fellowship of the church" is as scriptural as "baptize into the fellowship of the church." Paul says: "Him that is weak in the faith 'receive' ye, but not to doubtful disputations." (Rom. 14: 1.) John, in speaking of some who were faithful, said: "We therefore ought to 'receive' such, that we might be fellow helpers to the truth." (3 John 8.)

Brother Kurfees, do you have fellowship with a person who is a member of the Baptist Church? If you do, you have fellowship with a person with whom Christ will not have fellowship; for John says: "Whosever transgresseth, and abideth not in the doctrine of Christ, hath not God." (2 John 9.) "If we say that we have fellowship with him, and walk in darkness, we lie, and do not the truth." (1 John 1: 6.)

Since Christ has no fellowship with people who are in darkness, and those who are in unscriptural Institutions are in darkness, it follows that while they are in such institutions we cannot, according to the Bible, have fellowship with them. Brother Kurfees, since you cannot have fellowship with a person in the Baptist Church, and when he comes from the Baptist Church you begin to have fellowship with him, is that not receiving him into your fellowship? If you have not been having fellowship with him in the Baptist Church, when he comes from them, you must receive him into the fellowship, for you do not baptize him. I do not know why you used so much space on this point, to the neglect of my main argument.

Brother Kurfees, in order for a man to be a child of God, must there not have been some time in his life when he was free from all sin, and, therefore, free from all religious entanglement in error, since entanglement in error is sin?

When in the life of a sectarian was he free from all sin? (1) Was it when he believed what the sectarian preacher taught him? No. For he was then believing a lie—and one that set aside a fundamental principle, at that. (2) Was he free from all sin and religious entanglement in error when he confessed that he believed that God had for Christ's sake pardoned his sins? No. For at that time he had not obeyed the gospel, and was confessing the lie which he had been taught, and which he had begun to believe, and was thus becoming entangled in error. (3) Was he free from all sin and religious entanglement in error at the time the Baptist preacher put him under the water and raised him therefrom? No. For at the instant he was raised from the water he was a member of a denomination, and Brother Kurfees has agreed that that is a sin.

Brother Kurfees may say that at that instant he was not a member of the denomination. Well, if he was not a member of the Baptist denomination at the instant the Baptist preacher did what he called baptizing him, he is never a member of it; for no man is a member of the Baptist Church until he submits to what they call baptism, and by that act he becomes a member, according to Baptist rules.

Brother Kurfees will say he became a member of the church of God and thus became a child of God, and was free from all sin, when he obeyed God, doing what God says do for that purpose. I agree. But must that not be an obedience which makes him free from all sin, and thus free from all religious entanglement in error? Indeed it must. Paul says: "But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness." (Rom. 6: 17.) Brother Kurfees says some become members of the church of God "notwithstanding their religious entanglement in error." Paul does not agree with him.

I agree that when a man does what God says do for that purpose he becomes a member of the church of Christ; but that must be an obedience which makes him free from all sin. An obedience which leaves a man entangled in error cannot make him a member of the church of God. After he has been made free from all sin, and thus free from all religious entanglement in error, he may go off and become entangled in error, as some of the people at Corinth did; but at the instant he becomes a member of the church of God he must be free from all sin.

"Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." (1 Thess. 5: 21.)

Movie Abuses "A National Calamity,"

(From the Literary Digest.)

"They changed the plot and made it a nasty sex thing," writes William Allen White to a woman who before the Kansas Legislature criticized one of his plays as the worst picture she had ever seen. Mr. White places the responsibility for the "sex stuff" on the producers, and his censure lends emphasis to the now widely supported charge that the "abuse of the motion-picture screen is becoming a national calamity." In this belief religious leaders, upheld by lay organizations, are planning to introduce censorship bills in forty-four State Legislatures meeting this year. The necessity for immediate and far-reaching action is based on the statement that one-fifth of our population attends the motion picture every day, and that the "gigantic business of the 'movies' is daily influencing the masses of our people to an extent not even approached by all our schools, our churches, and our ethical organizations combined." A censorship bill is now before the New York Legislature. In Chicago, where a large percentage of juvenile crime is said to be traceable to corruptive pictures, the Chief of Police has not waited for legislative action, but, on his own responsibility, has banned motion pictures which portray criminals at work. Complaints heard in Chicago and New York are familiar in every city in the country, and Protestant and Catholic are concerned to "rid the screen of the moral fifth which is perverting the minds of our young." There is in the motion pictures "much that is sweet, and more that is funny, and enough that is outre to overcome all that is sweet," says Dr. Alva W. Taylor, in The Christian Century (Disciples). "In playing the undying theme of love, they play all its discords and overtones and thrum it into salaciousness. The most fundamental of all human motives is analyzed into morbidity and emphasized into heetic passion. The art is fine, but its overdoing is a gluttony and an intoxication to the imagination that makes a caricature of its divinity." The reason for this, we are told, is not far to seek. Unlike the drama, the motion-picture industry was born of commercialism. It is still largely surrounded with the commercial spirit, it is charged, and therefore the responsibility for the present agitation is laid by the critics on the producers themselves. As the corner saloon invited, and finally compelled, prohibition, so, it is said, will the "perversity" of some of the producers finally compel a similar, if less drastic, form of self-defense. We are supposed to have a board of censors in the General Committee of the National Board of Review of Motion Pictures, but it is alleged by Frederick Boyd Stevenson in the Brooklyn Eagle that the committee is actually without authority, and, in fact, does not function except through executives paid by the industry. "The trouble with the movies, both from the business and artistic point of view," says Charles A. McMahon in the National Catholic Welfare Council Bulletin, "is that the industry was evolutionized so rapidly that it has never had time to stop, look, and listen and take a thorough accounting of itself." Yet more than twenty million persons "are daily being regularly and continuously influenced for good or for evil by the most powerful medium of expression and impression yet invented." And as to whether the morals of the young and impressionable are being improved by "the lurid scenes, the unwholesome sex appeals, and the debasing animations of crime and immorality to be found in so many of the widely exploited photoplays," the comments in the public press by "our leading editors, clergymen, educators, sociologists, judges, and other competent authorities, answer these questions in a thundering nega-

"We are forced, therefore, to conclude that the cinema cockle has long since outgrown the wheat, with the result that the film harvest of to-day is a failure when judged from every angle except that of the box office; and even from the angle of the box office the results are not always satisfactory to the motion-picture magnates, who, with a few honorable exceptions, have prestituted a noble, useful, and marvelous art before the money god of the films.

"Are the producers surrendering to a public demand for the kind of product now being put out by the motion-picture authorities? Those who seek to explain away their salacious features will say so; but this is not the case. Such apologists are deluding themselves in the belief that they can 'fool all the people all of the time.' The truth of the matter is that the public—the slow-to-action, let-the-other-fellow-do-it public; the public which does not rise pin angry protest until things get as bad as they possibly can—that public is dissatisfied with the present-day downward drift of the films; it is indignant that its long-cherished ideals of common decency and plain morality have been insolently flaunted by the motion-picture directors and it is determined to call a halt in the flagrant misuse of what should be the most entertaining, useful, and beneficial influence in our American social life."

It is conceded that some of the motion-picture producers are beginning to see the light, but, says The Christian Herald, "we are compelled to record the fact that there are occasional slips on their part which appear to us to be inexcusable." We must have a clear understanding of pledges given in some cases to purify the screen, and the producers as a body must be brought to realize that "nothing less than clean, wholesome, moral entertainment will be satisfactory to the American people, who, in the larger sense, are, we believe, in favor of law, order, and public decency. And the sooner all the film corporations recognize this fact, the better for all concerned." To the churchman, or the average citizen, imbued with high ideas, the history of the development of the screen has been a "disgraceful story," writes J. Ray Johnson, in The Christian Century: tury:

"The most sordid motives of mankind, sex stories of the most alluring type, the rewards of greed and avarice have been spread upon the screen for all the world to see-the young as well as the more mature. The vampire came into being and the thief in evening clothes was glorified. Thousands of young women copied the headdress, the manner-Isms, and the facial make-up of the most famous screen vampires, and hundreds of our young men, brought to a court of justice, traced their downfall to an attempt to copy the achievements of screen heroes of uncertain morals. Froducers attempted to outstrip each other in a perfect orgy of filth. During all this period groups of men and women representing the better elements of society protested vig-orously and tried by legislation and otherwise to control the screen; but the more sharply the protest was made, the more luridly the producers advertised their wares, and the greater the throngs that flocked to the picture palaces, became known that all that was necessary to insure great crowds was to obtain the condemnation of the newspapers and the clergymen and to have the picture publicly branded as immoral.

The screen, says The Western Christian Advocate (Methodist), must not be permitted to extend its appeal over the entire life of the people:

"There is not a field of essential value in human life that would not be disintegrated if the moving-picture business was not controlled by the community and guarded against in the personal life of the people. The solution of the problem lies in the effort to keep this new form of appeal to the pleasurable instincts in its right place. When it begins to encroach upon other interests of life, it must be watched and restricted with insight and forethought."

"Can the Church Do It?"

In a discussion not long since about the care of old preachers, the widow, and the orphan, the question was raised: "Can the church meet the needs of all such?" The point was made that oftentimes we have a small congregation struggling for existence, and that it turns out to be the home congregation of some preacher who has become too old and feeble to preach, or the husband is taken from some sister and she is left with a number of little children and no income, and that it looks at times that the local church is unable to meet the demands.

Now, in all seriousness, I admit that at times I have seen cases when it seemed that the local church was unable to care for its own; but I must insist that the question at the head of this article should be changed to read, "Will the church do it?" It is not so much a question of ability as it is a question of willingness on the part of the members to see to it that God is glorified in the church and that brotherly love be the outstanding characteristic. Christ uttered a statement that we should learn and never forget when he said; "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another." (John 13: 35.) As a rule, man does what he wants to do. Let us look at the question a bit further, therefore, that we may learn the secret of all our troubles.

1. We are members one of another. Paul says: " So we. who are many, are one body in Christ, and severally members one of another." (Rom. 12: 5.) The body or church of our Lord is spoken of as being "knit together through the joints and bands" and increasing " with the increase of God." (Col. 2: 19) We are taught to be "kind one to another, tender-hearted," not unkind and hard-hearted. (See Eph. 4: 32.) Each local church is duty-bound to be governed by "the wisdom that is from above," which is "first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without variance, without hypocrisy." (See James 3: 17.) There can be no question about these things. This is what the Holy Spirit will lead us to see, if we will let him do the leading; this is the way the Spirit will make us feel the one toward the other, if we will let him establish in our souls the Spirit of our Lord and Savior. And if this we will not do, we are simply a lot of hypocrites, pretending to be something that we are not. "But if any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." (Rom. 8: 9.) So, stop your talk about what you are or claim to be, and give us the proof. This is what the world is crying for. The world is to come to know we are God's children by the way we treat each other. This is what Christ says; and it is true, and will stand till the heavens fall.

2. If one member suffer, all the members suffer with it. Paul, in 1 Cor. 12: 25, 26, says: "That there should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another. And whether one member suffereth, all the members suffer with it; or one member is honored, all the members rejoice with it." Note the beauty of this description. And did you note the reason why the Holy Spirit says that there should be no "schisms," or "divisions," in the body? He says it is in order "that the members should have the same care one for another." When the schism comes, then each little party may love the ones in it, but hate intensely the brethren in the other faction or party. Let it be who it may, that man or set of men that brings schisms by his or their unauthorized doctrines is the greatest curse to the church of Christ to-day. It is this, more than any other one thing, that has destroyed brotherly love, the very thing by which the church is to be made known to the world. Do you wonder that all such men are placed with the six other hateful and abominable things named in Prov. 6: 16-19?

But I liked to have got off my subject. The Spirit declares that when one member of the body suffers, all the other members should suffer with it. Listen! When this is really done, I care not whether the local church be large or small, you will never find them saying, "We can't do it." Let the congregation number only eight or ten, if one of the members meets with an accident that renders him unable to follow his trade, and he has accumulated nothing, the other nine members will suffer each his part of the misfortune, if a Christian can have such a thing as a misfortune-a thing I doubt. I remember that once in a congregation with which I was laboring one of our good members was "put out of business," so far as his trade was concerned, because of a fire that destroyed the factory where he was working. He had no other trade that he could take hold of just then, hence had to wait for weeks for this business to rebuild and reopen. He was trying to pay for a little home, and had a wife and several small children. His grocery bills continued, his monthly payments on his place had to be met, and, due to sickness, a drug bill was increasing. He was meeting these things fairly well till he was rendered unable to follow his trade by the fire, I quoted this scripture: "Whether one member suffereth, all the members suffer with it." Said I: "Let each one of us suffer our part of the loss by assessing ourselves enough to keep our brother's weekly salary up till this business reopens or he finds other work to do. It required only ten cents a week on our part to do this; and this brother was not in the least rendered unable to meet his bills because of the factory's being destroyed by fire. This very thing can and should be done in all emergencies where one of the members of the local church has placed on his shoulders a burden be cannot well carry alone. A special effort should be made by all the other members to help him bear it. I do not like the idea of going to what is known as the "regular collection" for this. Each of us should purpose to give so much weekly for the work of the church. We make this purpose under normal circumstances, when all is going well with our members. This should be done without failure, in a regular, systematic way. But when emergencies come, each member should assess himself with an extra offering to meet it. Each member should be made to feel that he is suffering with his brother. It is claimed that when a member of our physical body is broken or bruised, a larger supply of blood is rushed to that member by the other members' doing with less blood than they have been accustomed to have. Just so must we do, as members of the church of our Lord. If we love, we will; and if we will, we can.

While the members of the local church should thus feel and act toward each other, it should be remembered that the local church must thus feel and act toward Christians in other communities. Paul's special instructions about collections for the poor saints in Jerusalem teach this. Read 1 Cor. 16: 1-3. In 2 Cor. 8: 13-15 he affirms the very principle for which I have contended: "For I say not this that others may be eased and ye distressed; but by equality: your abundance being a supply at this present time for their want, that their abundance also may become a supply for your want; that there may be equality: as it is written. He that gathered much had nothing over; and he that gathered little had no lack." It should be remembered that of the Jerusalem congregation, the one we take as the model, it is declared, "For neither was there among them any that lacked;" and, "Not one of them said that aught of the things which he possessed was his own." (See Acts 4: 32, 34.) And let it be said, in conclusion, that no local church can be called a faithful church of Christ that allows any one of its members to suffer alone. In the true church, if "one member suffereth, all the members suffer with it." When this is really done, our wants are met without an exception. Here is one of the things that it takes to make "a loyal church of Christ," an expression we often see in our papers.

Book Notices.

"Queries and Answers by Lipscomb and Sewell," edited and collated by M. C. Kurfees, is the latest book from the press of the McQuiddy Printing Company. The book is printed in large, clear type, and contains 768 large octavo pages. The subjects are arranged in alphabetical order, very much after the fashion of an encyclopedia. The book contains an index to every subject treated, and is substantially bound in black cloth and stamped in gold, both back and side. Mechanically, it has no superior. The very fact that the contents are composed of the joint life work for forty years of David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell is a sufficient guarantee as to its merits. We are selling the book at the exceedingly low price of $3 per copy, which is a prewar price. All who have seen the book are delighted with it and speak in most commendatory terms of it.

Those who have bought "Queries and Answers by David Lipscomb," edited by J. W. Shepherd, should have this as a companion book. Those who have not bought "Queries and Answers by David Lipscomb" should have both books. The price of "Queries and Answers by David Lipscomb" is $2. The book may be ordered in connection with "Queries and Answers by Lipscomb and Sewell," or, in other words, the books may be ordered from the McQuiddy Printing Company.

We have on hand a few copies of "Peloubet's Select Notes for 1921." The price of this book, by mail, postpaid, is $2.10. Those wishing a copy should order at once before our present supply is exhausted. This is a very helpful book to all who would study the International Sunday-school lessons.

We still have in stock "Sweeney's Sermons" (price, $1.50), one of the best books of sermons that has ever been published. It appears to the writer of these notices that John S. Sweeney packed more matter in a forceful way into a sermon than almost any other man.

Would you not like to read a copy of "Life and Sermons of Jesse L. Sawell," edited by David Lipscomb? It has been said that Jesse Sewell, in his discussion of a subject, was most complete and convincing. Extracts of this book have been used some in public schools on account of the simplicity and accuracy of its English. It would be well for any one to have a copy in his library. Price, $1.50, postpaid.

Any one desiring a good book on the subject of baptism would do well to send us $1.50 for a copy of "Handbook on Baptism," edited by J. W. Shepherd. This is undoubtedly the most complete book that has ever been published on the subject.

If you are needing a good abridged "Smith's Bible Dictionary," send us $2.50. This book, edited by Peloubet, is a very useful one to any one who studies the Bible.

We have recently published a new book, entitled "Old Limber; or, The Tale of the Taylors," by Delong Rice. This book is written in the forceful, happy style of the author, and holds the attention of the reader from the beginning to the end. Once you have begun to read this book, you will not be willing to stop until you have finished it, and then will wish you had more to read. The book is not political, but gives the history of the Taylors in a most attractive manner, and in a way that will be helpful to all who read it. Price, $1, postpaid.

"The Image and the Beast."

BY E. M. BORDEN.

In a recent issue of a paper published in Louisville, Ky., appeared an article under the above heading. It was written by a man who is trying to remain in line with the general position of the brethren on the question and yet hold to his view of the establishment of the kingdom, that is very much like the position of the Adventists and Christadelphians.

In speaking of the empires that went to make up the image that was seen by Nebuchadnezzar, he admits that there were four universal empires, and that the Roman world power was the last one. I had heard a great deal about the position of this brother, but did not fully understand, as some seemed to think that it was only jealousy that caused some brethren to oppose him. This article has convinced me that his views are very far from the general teaching of the brotherhood. Of course that does not make his view wrong, nor does it make the general view of the brethren scriptural and right. But it is well to understand the difference. While his views are much like the general view of the Adventists, yet he takes positions and makes admissions that I have never heard before.

"Rome is gone," he says, "but no stone loosed by superhuman agency smote her; no sudden catastrophe from on high overwhelmed her; she was not beaten to dust and the dust swept away. Rome came to her end in the natural and inevitable course of the law that governs the rise and fall of nations, and not in any unusual way at all."

The fact that "Rome is gone" settles the question. These four kingdoms in succession were called the image of gold, silver, brass, and iron. In the foot stage of the image appears the weakened condition, yet it contains the strength of the iron. Even the foot state of the image has passed away, for it was a part of the Roman power. If the "little stone" was to have struck the Image while it was in its head state, it would have struck it before Christ came, but the kingdom would have continued until it was completed to the feet and toes of the image. But the "little stone" struck the image while in its foot state, before the forming of the ten divisions known as the toes of the image. There is no use for me to argue that the Roman empire, with all of its fragments, has come to an end, for he admits it himself. The image has gone. The foot state of the image has ended. Did the "little stone" strike the image while in its foot state? Yes, for Daniel said it would. Not only that; it became a great mountain and filled the whole earth.

If the "little stone" is to begin at the second coming of Christ, out of what mountain will it be taken? Since this series of kingdoms has come and gone, how can a kingdom established in the future strike the image while upon its feet? If the kingdom or the "little stone" is to begin at the second coming of Christ, who will be in it? Will it be the redeemed of all ages up to that time? If so, how can it be a "little stone" at first and then become a great mountain?

This brother seems to think that Rome must come to an end in some "sudden catastrophe." Not necessarily. He seems to get the idea that the "little stone" strikes instantly and that Rome suddenly disappears. Nebuchadnezzar saw a perfect image, complete from head to the end of its toes. Suppose the "little stone" should have struck the image while in its leg state? Would that mean that it would pass away without any feet? Now, because it struck the image while it was in its foot state, does it mean that it suddenly ended without any toes? Certainly not. The kingdom of Christ began on Pentecost, but it came in contact with the image while in its foot state, yet the image went on until it was completed and passed away. Now, will he deny this? He may say the toes are a part of the feet. That is true. But remember that each thing came in succession of the other. The feet did exist for a while until the toes were formed. Then Daniel mentions the feet and the toes. While the "little stone" began before it struck the image, and after it struck each continued to exist for a period of time, when the fourth world power passed away: and the little stone still exists, but growing to become a great mountain and fill the whole earth. It is true that Daniel said that the image would be broken and become like the chaff of the summer threshing floor, and the wind would carry them away, and that no more place would be found for them; but this is highly figurative. In its strength it is compared to iron; but in its weakened state it is, in the above expression, compared to chaff. Does any man believe that the kingdom of Rome was reduced to literal dust? Who would think that the literal wind scattered the real dust of the Roman Empire?

But "Rome is gone." Even the clay part is gone. The head is gone; the breast and arms have gone; the belly and thighs have gone; and the legs, feet, and toes have gone. This brother admits it is true. Then the image was complete and passed away. What further proof do we need to show that the "little stone" is in existence now and is growing to become a great mountain?

Then Daniel said: "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." Notice, it was to be "in the days of these kings," not before or after. Each kingdom ruled over the earth, one following the other. This kingdom has been established: for these kingdoms have come and gone, as this brother admits. These kingdoms began with Nebuchadnezzar as head and ended with Rome in its strength and weakness some years after the first century of the Christian age.

The brother correctly states: "Four world powers, then the kingdom of God." Yes, that is true; but let us not get the idea that the fourth kingdom had to end before the kingdom of God began. The kingdom of God began while the fourth world power was in existence and the image was in its foot state, and aided in bringing it to its end. But even after the "little stone" struck it, the toes had to be formed, completed, and ended. We must not let figurative language cause us to take positions that contradict the plain statements of Scripture,

Another very strange thing is that the brother who wrote the article I mentioned above used Dan. 7: 13, 14 to prove that the kingdom of Dan, 2: 44 is not fulfilled. Let us have the quotation: "One like the Son of man came with the clouds of heaven, and came to the Ancient of days, and they brought him near before him. And there was given him dominicn, and glory, and a kingdom, that all people, nations, and languages, should serve him." It seems to me that this proves to the contrary of what the brother believes. The Son of man "came to," not "from," the Ancient of days. If it is to be fulfilled at the next coming of Christ, then it would have to read: "Came from the Ancient of days." He ascended, and a cloud received him out of their sight. Where did he go? He went to "the Ancient of days." To what other time could this have referred? Again, "there was given him dominion, glory, and a kingdom." Why? "That all people, nations, and languages, should serve him." This sounds very much like the incidents connected with the beginning of the Christian dispensation. Is it not a fact that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem? Did that take place? Is it true that we must wait until the second coming of Christ before "all people, nations, and languages, should serve him?" What nation is alienated from the gospel call to-day?

It seems to me that there are very strong proofs against the position that the kingdom of Dan. 2: 44 is yet to come. The head of gold, the breast and arms of silver, the belly and thighs of brass, the legs of iron, and the feet and toes of iron and clay compose the image that Nebuchadnezzar saw. The time has passed that embraced this image, and the kingdom is set up. There is no question about it, when we take the truth in its proper light. "Rome has gone." That is right, my brother. Then the image from the head to the end of the toes has existed and passed away. Now Daniel says: "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom." It has been done, for these kingdoms have passed away.

The "little stone" was not to strike the image while it was in the head state, but while it was in its foot state. The leg state of the image began about forty or fifty years before the advent of Christ. The "little stone" was cut out of the mountain after the death of Christ, and 't struck the image while in its foot state.

Now Dan. 7: 22-26 is introduced. This vision is clothed with figurative language that makes it more difficult; but since this brother makes it the parallel of Nebuchadnezzar's dream, it makes it easier. He says: "The fourth beast represents the Roman world power." Then, whatever else may be said about it, it has passed away. It could not be, then, that the kingdom of Christ is to be established at the second coming of Christ, for at that time the end will come. These highly figurative expressions cannot be interpreted to contradict some plain statement of Scripture.

Dan. 7: 21-27 does not say that the kingdom of Christ will be set up when Christ comes again. The position is a result of human interpretation and speculation. Now, what of positive statements? Hear Paul: "Afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God." (1 Cor. 15: 23, 24.) He had the kingdom before he came. Time ended when he had conquered his last enemy—death. There can be no speculation here. If the kingdom begins at the second advent of Christ, who will be in it? Remember, it begins as a "little stone." What passage tells us that the kingdom will be established at his second coming?

Near the close of this brother's article, no doubt realizing the strong proof against his position, he attempts to remove the difficulties of the statements of Daniel and others pertaining to the image and the establishing of the kingdom of Christ. He says: "The difficulty ought, however, to be faced. It consists in the fact that Rome, the fourth world power, is gone. There are not five world powers." He then says: "The kingdom of God comes with destructive impact upon the fourth and supersedes it. No such thing has happened, yet Rome is gone." Now what do you think of that? "The fourth world power is gone," but no kingdom. The gold, silver, brass, and iron are all gone, but he says the kingdom is not yet set up. He does not mean to contradict a plain statement of scripture, but did not Daniel say: "In the days of these kings shall the God of heaven set up a kingdom?" But he says: "No such thing has happened yet." What is he expecting? Is he expecting a great army of saints with carnal weapons to war with and conquer the great Roman government? If so, no wonder he is still expecting it to be; but he has the wrong conception of the kingdom of Christ. Rome existed as Daniel said. Rome ended as Daniel said. The kingdom of Christ began before it ended. The kingdom of Christ still exists, while the kingdom of Rome is no more.

But, after all that is said preceding this, he now says:
"It must be one of those four, and unmistakably it is the last one, the fourth. It comes to an end at the hands of the Son of God when he comes with his saints." How can it be? The image in all of its parts has passed away. How can the fourth or Roman power end when Christ comes? It cannot. It ended long ago. He admits that Rome is gone. The references he gave does not prove that the Roman Empire will come to an end when Christ comes. Let the brother give us some proof.

Now, to make harmony and yet hold to his position, he says: "Here, then, we see this same beast (for it can be no other) reappearing in the future, and meeting its own doom at the second coming of our Lord Jesus Christ, when he comes with ten thousand of his saints to execute vengeance upon the rebellious and assert his authority in the earth." Now, if that had been Scripture, I would stop right here; but it is not. It has to be that way to fit the position. Necessity, you know, is the mother of invention. If the fourth kingdom will reappear, will it be a continuation of world powers, one following the other and ending when Christ comes? Did Nebuchadnezzar see the fourth kingdom reappearing just before the second coming of Christ? He gives the passage, "The beast that thou sawest was, and is not, and is yet to come" (Rev. 17: 8), as proof that the Roman Empire will return. It does not prove anything. What connection would it have with the empire of the past? If it should be at the second coming of Christ, what connection would it have with the empire of the past? It could not be a part of Nebuchadnezzar's dream of the wonderful image. It is all in the past.

Again, he says: "All the world powers that were to be find their reëmbodiment in the final form which the fourth one will assume in the time of the end." Who said it? A speculative mind. What proof is given? Absolutely none. Then why take the position? The answer is, the theory demands it. But grant that it will appear in the future;

It does not prove the position; for the time indicated for the setting up of the kingdom of Christ was during the existence of the world powers, one of which was in existence when Daniel interpreted the dream. The last of the four world powers came to an end after Christ's kingdom had been established on the day of Pentecost. That is the image that Nebuchadnezzar saw. Nebuchadnezzar did not see this Roman world power reappearing in the latter days after being out of existence thousands of years. Nebuchadnezzar saw a series of world powers, one following the other until the fourth world power came and passed away. Daniel said: "In the days of these kings." What kings? In the days of the kings that were seen in Nebuchadnezzar's dream. That settles the question, then, that the kingdom of Christ has been set up, for Nebuchadnezzar did not dream of a return of the Roman world power in the latter

As a conclusion, this brother admits that "Christians are in the kingdom of God's dear Son now, and the kingdom in them," but he says "we wait for this promise." This is different from the general position of Adventists and others. Then there is a kingdom of God's dear Son now. At this point another question arises. Will Christ reign now until his second coming and then begin another reign of a different kind? If so, where is the proof? I have given you Paul's clear-cut statement that the end will be at his second coming. Where is the harmony in Paul's statement and the theory that at the coming of Christ he will begin another reign? If there is to be another reign after this one is ended, what kind will it be? He is reigning now in the midst of his enemies. (Ps. 110: 2.) Will he reign in the midst of his enemies then? His reign is spiritual now. (John 18: 36.) What will it be then? His reign is at the right hand of God now. (Heb. 1: 3.) Where will it be then? He must reign as he is now until he has put all enemies under his feet. (1 Cor. 15: 25.) What enemy will he subdue after the resurrection? What will he do then, when he has put all enemies under his feet? Here is the answer: "Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God, even the Father; when he shall have put down all rule and all authority and power." Does that sound like his greatest power will be at the time of his coming?

But some one is ready to say: "All the dead will not be raised at the time of his second coming." Where is the proof? Dan. 12: 2 speaks of a resurrection of both good and bad. When is that to be? In John 5: 28 Jesus speaks of a resurrection of the good and evil. Some will be raised to life and others to damnation. What resurrection is that? But listen to this; "For this we say unto you by the word of the Lord, that we which are alive and remain unto the coming of the Lord shall not prevent them which are asleep. For the Lord himself shall descend from heaven with a shout, with the voice of the archangel, and with the trump of God; and the dead in Christ shall rise first: then we which are alive and remain shall be caught up together with them in the clouds, to meet the Lord in the air." My! Wouldn't that have been a good place to have told about the establishing of that new kingdom and the destroying of that resurrected Roman world power? But Paul did not know about it when he wrote. The above passage does not prove two resurrections. It shows two transactions. Those who were alive at the second coming of Christ will not go before those who are dead. The dead in Christ shall rise first, and then both those who are alive when Christ comes and those who will be resurrected will be caught up together to meet the Lord in the air. Notice, this will be at his second coming. Notice. also, that this resurrection is at the sounding of a trumpet. Paul also calls it the "last trump." (1 Cor. 15: 52.) If the last trumpet sounds at the second coming of Christ, how can we expect another to sound at the end of another reign of Christ? Think on these things.

Brethren, don't let hard times keep you from trying to save souls.

Will W. Slater writes from Fort Smith, Ark., March 23, as follows: "I was with the brethren at Fayetteville the We had three splendid services. church at Fayetteville seems to be allve and to have a mind to work. It was indeed a pleasure to be with them. We had fine services at Park Hill Church on Sunday. I preached out in the country both morning and afternoon, but was with the home forces at night. Interest is fine indeed. At this writing I am engaged in a singing school at Atkins. We have very fine interest, with a class of more than one hundred. Brethren, get ready for your meetings this summer.'

From J. E. Wainwright, Texarkana, Ark., March 21: "The writer and H. D. Maxwell (Missionary Baptist) will engage in a four-days' discussion at Pollock, La., on June 7, 8, 9, and 10. Pollock is located on the Missouri Pacific Railway between Monroe and Alexandria-a place where the gospel should presper. Several years ago I preached some seventeen sermons there in a mission meeting. A clean-cut discussion, in godly fear, will no doubt prove beneficial. Pray for us, that the truth may presper joy ath may prosper.
Increased seating calocal work progresses splendidly. Increased seating pacity did not care for crowds the last two Sundays. additions yesterday; one baptism—a splendid young lady of twenty-five."

From J. C. Mosley, Mayflower, Ark.: "I have just closed my meeting at Mayflower. Baptized eight persons or Friday; then was arrested and taker to Little Rock and put in prison. I preached and sang with the prisoners. Two brethren, J. T. Shillings and William Still, made my bond. I came back to Mayflower. There was a great crowd rejoicing when I returned. I preached the next day and night. The house was packed, and fifty broke bread. Two confessions at the morning service and one at night. Baptizing to-day. Will have my trial in Little Rock to-morrow. Others are talking of obeying to-night. This act has been a wonderful victory for Christ. The brethren here are solid and will stand by me."

C. W. Sewell, son of the lamented Jesse Sewell, is now living at Corpus Christi, Texas. He labored in the church in Corpus Christi for a long time, but recently has discontinued preaching for that church and is now preaching for the churches at Bishop and Sinton. The churches where the churches at Bishop and Sinton. The churches where Brother Sewell has labored all hold him in very high esteem and have not forgotten him in his declining years, but are helping to support him in his work. This is as it should be. It is hardly right to use preachers during the vigorous, active years of their lives, and then, when they get old and are not capable of doing so much, turn them out to graze and die. Brother Sewell is a most excellent man, as well as a splendid preacher, and no one can associate with him without being impressed with the fact that he is sincere.

R. C. White is very much gratified with the work that Brother Elam is doing. He writes to him as follows: "You do not know how much I get from your articles.

I have long thought that we need a book of your writings similar to 'Salvation from Sin,' with other feafures. I, for one, should like to have a book of sermons, life sketch, etc. Would you agree to such? Some one might be found to edit it." E. C. Fuqua sometime ago wrote Brother Elam a letter in which he says: "I simply must stop everything and write you how I appreciate your efforts in the Gospel Advocate along the line of Christian unity. I am so thankful you gave us the article in the last Advocate from David Lipscomb on 'Unity in Christ.'

I am publishing this article in tract form, and will place a copy in each of ten thousand homes in Colorado. That will be a big job, but I see how I can do that, and that measures my duty as regards this matter."

Mrs. M. D. Stahl, Auburn, Ky., says: "We are trying to get a congregation started to worship Christ at Browning, Ky."

A teacher who is qualified by faith and training is wanted to take charge of Alabama Christian College, Berry, Ala. Write to J. C. Shepherd.

C. W. Holley, who is now located at Goldthwaite, Texas, requests us to state that he has time open for meetings for next summer to be held in Texas. Call him, brethren.

The Bible-study attendance at Charlotte Avenue broke the record on March 20, numbering two hundred and fifty-five. The highest number in attendance at any one time before that was two hundred and twenty-one. Let the good work go on and still grow.

S. C. Mason, Tracy City, Tenn., says, in a business letter to renew his subscription to the Gospel Advocate: "I like your paper fine, and I find many helpful truths within its pages. My papers have come regularly every week. I find no fault with your paper."

We have received from F. B. Shepherd a detailed report of the finances of the Forest Vale Mission from February 16 to March t5. The balance on hand February 16 was one cent; collections, $53.65; disbursement by draft, $53.50; balance on hand March 15, sixteen cents.

Prof. J. D. Patton, the music composer and teacher, of Bessemer Ala., was in our office last week. He expects to conduct a singing class of a month's duration in West End, Birmingham, soon, thus aiding the saints in that great city in the cultivation of their singing as a part of their worship.

If any reader knows of any one, Christian or otherwise, living in or around Baltimore, Md., that would be interested in New Testament Christianity, kindly send name and address to T. H. Walker, 2011 North Charles Street, Baltimore, Md., or to A. B. Comer, Wyoming Apartments, Washington, D. C.

George Graves preached at Millersburg, in Rutherford County, last Lord's day and at night. He reports the work doing fairly well there, but their house is in great need of repairs. He held a meeting for them last summer, and baptized eight young ladies. He expects to hold their meeting again next summer.

From C. H. Baker, Kirkmansville, Ky., March 26: "I was with the church of Christ at Kedron last Lord's day, and preached to a large audience at 11 A.M. At 4 P.M., in the home of Joe Shelton, I united in marriage Norman Shelton and Miss Lydia Rosser, a very promising young ccuple." The Gospel Advocate extends congratulations.

T. B. Clark, of Childress, Texas, will begin a meeting at Red Boiling Springs, Tenn., on the fifth Lord's day in August. He would like to hold several meetings in this section of the country, and any church needing a meeting the latter part of August and in September would do well to engage Brother Clark. He is a splendid gospel preacher, and will hold you a good meeting

Paul C. Young writes from 66 *endell Street, Cambridge, Mass., March 14: "If any reader of the Gospel Advocate knows of Christians now in Boston, Cambridge, or thereabouts, will be send me names and addresses, so that I may look them up? I am in Harvard six days in the week, going up to preach in Westbrook, Maine, on Sunday; but I am interested in seeing the work begun in Boston."

Flavil Hall, writing from Bell, Fla., March 24, says: "I am in a good meeting with the Midway congregation, near Bell, with splendid interest and eight baptized. This is the oldest congregation of several in a radius of ten miles in Alachua County. It was established in 1883, and has lived in peace and harmony. Recently they have been finding considerable satisfaction in the use of the lesson helps in Bible study published by the McQuiddy Printing Company,"

Sister Kate Killebrew writes from San Francisco, Cal., March 17: "The work at this place is moving along nicely, with that dear old soldier of the cross, Brother Larimore, to lead us. Thank God that we have the privilege of being under his influence! On Sunday, March 13, a committee was appointed to look after the business of buying the church lot, which looks as though it may be accomplished within the next few days. Some one will write an article later, telling of the whole situation."

A sister at Millville, Ark., Miss Lula Gammill, writes: "R. L. Colley, of Waldo, Ark., filled his regular appointment at this place on the second Sunday in March, with a large crowd out to hear him. W. E. Morgan was to have preached for us on the third Sunday, but did not get here, and many were very much disappointed. The brethren at Miliville esteem Brother Morgan very highly. I enjoy reading the Gespel Advocate so much, and I think it the best paper published by the brotherhood."

E. P. Watson, of Dickson, Tenn., came in to see us last Friday while he and family were waiting for a train connection. They were returning from Indiana, where they had been for two weeks, during which time they visited, and also buried, a loved one—his sister-in-law, I think. He told us that Dickson expects to have Brother Adamson, of Lewisburg, to assist them in a protracted meeting in June. He reports the Dickson work as grand, and glorious results are confidently looked for from the meeting.

R. G. Watson, of Friendship post office, West Tennessee, was in our office on last Thursday and again on Friday. He is certainly a "live wire," so far as the work of the Lord is concerned in his section. He has a good knowledge of churches and workers in West Tennessee, as well as a good knowledge of the work in general. He reports some churches as doing fine work, and others as apparently asleep, in that section, and the same to be true of individuals, and that many need an awakening.

Charles Holder writes from Bridgeport, Ala., March 19: "On last Tuesday I conducted funeral services over the remains of Sister Jennie Hughes, for sixty-five years a faithful member of the Rocky Springs congregation, near Bridgeport. Sister Hughes was one of the most highly respected and best-loved women of our county. I am not yet able to take up my work, but I am still improving. I preached once on the first Sunday in March, and twice on the second Sunday. I trust it will be the Lord's will for me to soon be entirely well and busy preaching the word."

From W. H. Sandy, Haynesville, La., March 21: "I spent the first Saturday and Sunday and Sunday night in this menth with the faithful band of disciples at Mount Vernon, Miss. Good crowds and good interest. I preached to a good crowd at Union Grove, La., on the second Sunday, I did some mission work at schoolhouses near Haynesville, La., the week following, and was well pleased with the crowds and interest. We had two splendid services at Haynesville yesterday. The church here is at peace and striving to enter in by the strait gate. Their influence for good is felt, I shall be with the church at home next Lord's day."

E. C. Philpot, in a business note from Nacogdoches, Texas, to the McQuiddy Printing Company, says: "My home is at Mount Juliet, Tenn., but I am now traveling in this territory, out of Houston. I find a small congregation at this place; and while they are few in number, they seem to be strong in the faith. I very much enjoyed meeting with them to-day." While we are very glad of the news in regard to the band at Nacogdoches, we rejoice the more that our young traveling brethren (Brother Philpot, at least) hunt up the bands where they stop over Lord's day and display the interest that this note indicates on the part of the sender. Do more of it, brethren.

A. S. Reynolds writes from Madill, Okla., March 26: "I left home on yesterday. I am here for a few days with my son, O. M. Reynolds, and will leave for Alabama the last of next week. I will go to Lowery, Geneva County, to begin a meeting on the first Lord's day in April. I will be in a number of meetings in South Alabama and Florida. The field, for the greater part, is a mission field. I am going there trusting in the Lord and the liberality of his people for a support. I labored years ago in South Alabama and built up a number of congregations. For some cause they have been neglected, except when some preacher from another State would hold them a meeting. May I ask the Lord's noble men and women: Will you have fellowship in this work? Will the strong help the weak, and not please themselves? I ask your prayers, with your fellowship. Those people must have the gospel. I know of no field where the people-need the gospel any worse than South Alabama and North Florida. I will try to report results of the work in the Gospel Advocate every week. Brethren, if any of you want to help preach the word to a lost people, send your remittance to Frank Whigham, Kinston, Ala., or J. B. F. Key, Enterprise, Ala. Let any one wanting a meeting write me at Kinston, Ala, care of Frank Whigham. I shall endeavor to follow Paul's example in my efforts to reach the people-preach 'publicly, and from house to house. The churches in Texas and Okla-homa are waking up to the importance of 'sounding out the word.' May the Lord bless every scriptural effort to bring the lost to Christ.'

WESTERN DEPARTMENT

By C. E. WOOLDRIDGE. 2018 Cullen Street, Dallas, Texas

Brother Horace Busby, of Fort Worth, Texas, will begin a meeting with the Oak Cliff church of Christ on the first Lord's day in April. Visitors to Dallas will find the meetinghouse by taking Boundary or Sunset street cars or Fort Worth and Dallas Interurban cars, getting off at Lewellen Street and going one block south. All are invited and will be welcomed. April 3 to 12—the date.

Brother Cled Wallace, of Temple, Texas, will begin a meeting with the church of Christ in McKinney on Monday, March 28, to continue two weeks. Brother C. E. Wooldridge will preach the opening sermon of the meeting on Lord's-day evening, March 27. The congregation at McKinney is growing in good ways and deserves encouragement. You are invited to attend these services—March 27 to April 10.

We had a splendid trip to Farmersville over the second Lord's day in March. Splendid audiences. One added to the congregation by relation. Work put on more business-like basis. We are expecting a great meeting, with Brother S H. Hall, this summer.

We give some paragraphs from the initial number of the Johnson County Evangelist, edited by C. A. Buchanan. This little four-page paper represents the continuation of the good work of the church at Cleburne which was begun while Brother G. Dallas Smith was with them. The following will be of interest to our readers:

During the past twelve months I [C. A. Buchanan] have preached two hundred and thirty sermons (an average of over nineteen a month) at seventeen different points. I have held twelve protracted meetings, besides visiting some points monthly. I have also preached some from house to house. I have brought to life a few churches that had ceased to meet, started the work at two new places, and helped several small, struggling churches. I have baptized fifteen. I am hoping to do more this year and reap more results.

Dr. Buckley in an editorial said: "The reason these people can build themselves up without a preacher every Sunday is that they erect a standard every Lord's day; they rally their members around the Lord's Supper." This may be one of the reasons Jesus gave this institution to his disciples.

Evangelist G. C. Brewer, of Austin, Texas, will begin a meeting at the Central church of Christ on the second Sunday in April. Services at 10 A.M. and 7:30 P.M. The church building is a block north of the post office.

BY F. W. SMITH.

"Is the Victorious Life Practical?" This leaflet, by Oliver Richard Heinze, has been sent to this department for notice. Of course a life "victorious" in the service of God is always and everywhere practical; but the question before us is, Does Mr. Heinze have the proper conception of such a life? Doubt is thrown upon the author's understanding of the matter in what he says in these words: "It is a common idea that a life of victory is in some way dependent upon human effort and struggle." We should by no means deem it strange that such an idea should obtain with all who correctly read and study the Holy Scriptures, for many passages contain the idea in all its fullness. Paul gave as a reason for the crown laid up for him the following: "I have fought a good fight, I have finished my course, I have kept the faith." (2 Tim. 4: 7.) He urged his son in the gospel after this fashion: "Fight the good fight of faith, lay hold on eternal life." (1 Tim. 6: 12.) He wrote the Philippians: "Work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." (Phil 2: 12.) Christ said those who would enter in must strive. (Luke 13: 24.)

These and many other passages show most conclusively that "a victorious life" does depend upon human effort and struggle-and a whole lot of it, too. But the author continues: "That such a notion is prevalent is not mysterious, when we consider the fact that much of the teaching that many have had has emphasized the merit of human effort to overcome sin and its power." Of course human effort has no merit within itself; but it takes the element of human effort to reach the blood of Christ, in which alone there is power to overcome sin and its power. No life can be "a victorious life" without faith in, and obedience to, the Son of God, and this requires human effort. In fact, no life can be classed as "victorious" that does not lead to eternal salvation, and the Son of God promises salvation to those only who obey him. "And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." (Heb. 5: 9.) Does not Mr. Heinze think that the obedience here on which is predicated eternal life is "dependent upon human effort and struggle?" It is almost tragic to witness the inconsistencies and ridiculous attitudes in which men plunge themselves in trying to escape the Bible teaching that baptism is one of the conditions of salvation. Listen to Mr. Heinze: "All who have been born again are agreed that salvation from the penalty of our sins is realized by faith, and not by works of law." It is the same old story-viz., the mistake of classing baptism, one of the commands of the gospel, with works of law, by which no one could be justified. Baptism is no more an act of man than is faith; and if one is a work of law, so is the other. In fact, when the author says "all who have been born again." he unconsciously refers to baptism, for "born of water" means or includes baptism. He thinks there is one passage which establishes his contention: "As ye have therefore received Christ Jesus the Lord, so walk ye in him." (Col. 2: 6.) Well, does not "so walk" indicate activity upon the part of man? Again, did not the Colossians do something in receiving the Lord Jesus? Such teaching as this three-page leaflet scattered broadcast over the land constitutes one of the great hindrances to people's learning the simple truth of the gospel. Why, O why is it that the church of Christ does not avail itself of the use of free literature to propagate the truth? We have surrendered this field to every sect and ism in the land. Let us wake up to our opportunities. Two cents per copy; Room 600 Perry Building, Philadelphia, Pa.

The crowded inn at Bethlehem is a symbol of the relation of the world in general to the approach of Christ. The world is filled up with its own petty lumber-its wares and its chattels, its dresses and its playthings, its luxuries and its theatrical paraphernalia-and there seems to be in it little room for new things, especially if they be unseen offerings and spiritual values. Where everything is in the way of everything else, where is the room for religion? Religion is obliged to fight its way in, or betake itself to a stable for shelter. But though Christianity originally entered a stable, it did not stay there; and the best values, even in a crowded world, will eventually beg-or beattheir way into notice and social recognition. Religion has ever had to meet competition, and sometimes we think it thrives on it. Christ will finally crowd out the crowds, or create out of them a congregation. God made the world, and he will sooner or later see to it that his Son rules over it.—Selected.

Worship in itself implies three things: (1) The existence of a personal God; (2) the human soul; (3) the activities of the human soul or its functioning in terms of bodily action toward its divine Objective—that is, the stretching out of the soul to meet its Creator in loving embrace.—Selected.

The Last Words of Jesus on Earth.

BY J. C. M'Q.

It is not difficult to know the last words spoken by Jesus while on the earth. That special interest attaches to these words will be freely conceded by all. I rejoice to know these last words, and note with distinct interest and pleasure the cheerful heed the apostles gave to them. A prompt and hearty obedience is the great need of the hour. Christ demands a cheerful obedience, an obedience that emanates from the love that wells up from the whole heart. But here are the words: "And he said unto them, It is not for you to know times or seasons, which the Father hath set within his own authority. But ye shall receive power, when the Holy Spirit is come upon you: and ye shall be my witnesses both in Jerusalem, and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." (Acts 1: 7, 8.) We learn that "when he had said these things, as they were looking, he was taken up; and a cloud received him out of their sight." (Verse 9.) It was not for the apostles, and it is not for Christians, "to know times or seasons, which the Father hath set within his own authority." While the Father has the authority to "know times or seasons," it does not say that he knows, but has the authority to know. Yet we have men who are setting the date for Christ to come, who claim to know that his coming is imminent and that he now stands with his hand on the doorknob ready to open the door. God is not a date fixer. We cannot tell when Christ is coming by looking in the almanac. God had Jonah preach to the Ninevites: "Yet forty days, and Nineveh shall be overthrown." But Nineveh repented and was not destroyed. God changes dates according to man's obedience or disobedience. "But when the righteous turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and doeth according to all the abominations that the wicked man doeth, shall he live? None of his righteous deeds that he hath done shall be remembered: in his trespass that he hath trespassed, and in his sin that he hath sinned, in them shall he die. . . . When the righteous man turneth away from his righteousness, and committeth iniquity, and dieth therein; in his iniquity that he hath done shall he die. Again, when the wicked man turneth away from his wickedness that he hath committed, and doeth that which is lawful and right, he shall save his soul alive. Because he considereth, and turneth away from all his transgressions that he hath committed, he shall surely live, he shall not die," (Ezek 18: 24-28.)

What a pity that all Christians do not watch and patiently wait for the coming of Christ! The Christian's attitude is one of patient waiting. When Jesus died upon the cross and was buried, the disciples gave up all as lost. They lost sight of the fact that Jesus always coupled the death on the cross with the resurrection. Jesus showed his disciples that he must "be killed, and the third day be raised up." (Matt. 16: 21.) Luke (18: 33) represents Christ as saying; "And they shall scourge and kill him; and the third day he shall rise again." The death on the cross is a tragedy without the resurrection. With the resurrection, it means the redemption of the world. It all appeared so dark and hopeless to the disciples. It is true that some of the women went early to the tomb to anoint his body, having no hope of finding an empty tomb and a risen Lord. When he walked and talked with the two who went to Emmaus, they said to him: "But we hoped that it was he who should redeem Israel" (Luke 24: 21.) They had lost hope, but not their faith and confidence. Like a desert without an oasis, a world without a sun, so the Christian who has no hope sinks down to despair and death. But the resurrection brought a new hope and light to the world.

These last words of Jesus in a measure sum up the great commission as recorded by the four evangelists-Matthew, Mark, Luke, and John. According to Matthew, when all authority in heaven and on earth had been given to Jesus, he commanded them to disciple all the nations; in Mark he commands them to go into all the (cosmos) world; Luke represents the Christ as viewing the human side, stating that, beginning in Jerusalem, the gospel should be preached among all the nations; and John represents the Christ as looking to the reason for their receiving the Holy Spirit, that they may remit and retain sins by giving men the law of pardon.

The apostles did begin in Jerusalem on the day of Pentecost, and the gospel was preached to many people, and about three thousand souls were added on that day. While all the apostles were at Jerusalem on that day, yet the book of Acts does not give us an account of the preaching of all the twelve apostles. We cannot believe that they were idle and not busy in preaching the gospel of Christ. We do not have much account, if any, of any of the preaching of the original twelve apostles, save Peter. It is true that the other eleven were with him in Jerusalem at the beginning, and John was with Peter when the lame man was healed "at the door of the temple which is called Beautiful." We also have an account of the beheading of James in the twelfth chapter of Acts. Beginning with the thirteenth chapter of Acts, Paul comes on the scene of action, and is the prominent and dominant figure throughout the book of Acts until he is delivered in Rome a prisoner, when the narrative closes. But there are glimpses of light that indicate that the other apostles were busy also, while we have no record of their individual and active labors. For instance, we learn from the ninth chapter of Acts that disciples had been made in Damascus, yet we are not told who did the preaching. Paul afterwards preached there, as we are plainly told. But Acts of Apostles does not propose to record all the acts of all the apostles, but only some of the acts of some of the apostles. A book containing all the acts of all the apostles would make a book entirely too large for the world to receive with profit, so the book of Acts is fragmentary; but fragmentary as it is, it is entirely sufficient, and I believe the fragments.

But note the order of the work recorded. The first seven chapters of Acts are devoted to Jerusalem. Beginning with the eighth chapter, we learn that the disciples, excepting the apostles, went everywhere in Judea. "They therefore that were scattered abroad went about preaching the word?" (Acts 8: 4.) But as much as they had hated the Samaritans and had refused to associate in any way with them, yet they must be witnesses to Samaria. It availed them nothing that in going from Galilee to Judea they had gone around Samaria, which is directly between the two. They must bury all racial hatred and witness to them also; so the fifth verse of the same chapter says: "And Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and proclaimed unto them the Christ." Then next we find him sent by Jehovah into Ethiopia to preach Jesus to the Ethiopian nobleman. Beginning with the thirteenth chapter of Acts, the center of activity changes from Jerusalem to Antioch in Syria and from Peter to Paul. Peter drops out of view, while Paul becomes the active apostle. Through Paul churches were established in Corinth, Ephesus, Philippi, and many other places. While we would like to know more of his work after he landed in Rome, yet here the curtain falls. So the Lord directed his apostles, and through them his church. to be witnesses first in Jerusalem, all Judea, Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth. So it should be with the church. Our first duty is at home. At home our most effective work must be done. We will not be interested in people we do not know, if we are not interested in the salvation of our own people. Next we should preach the gospel to the people of the United States; and then to those who may be our "Samaritans," whoever they be; and last, to the uttermost part of the earth. The apostles preached the gospel "in all creation under heaven" (Col. 1: 23), and "their sound went out into all the earth" (Rom. 10: 18,)

Nothing is more important than to be true witnesses for Christ. The word from which we have "witnesses" means martyrs for Christ. The loyal, true, and faithful Christian does not have to die to become a martyr. He dies for Christ because he is a martyr, because he will not misrepresent the truth. Christians witness for Christ by their lives. A man may not speak a word and yet be a witness for Christ. Another may speak many words and not be a witness of the Christ. Those who witness by their lives usually witness by their words also. Christians are Christ's epistles, known and read of all men. Christians should not only be interested in missions, but they should give themselves to the Lord, then they will sow the seed of the kingdom broadcast.

A manger at the beginning: a cross at the close; a carpenter's task in life; crucified with the implements and upon the materials of his toll. Well may the wooded mountains break forth into singing and all the trees of the field clap their hands! Well may all workers rejoice! They belong to the great union of Nazarene toilers with which Jesus is forever identified.—Selected.

Are There No Christians in the Denominations?

BY M. C. K.

On page 298 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate we publish another article from Brother John Taylor. However much Brother Taylor may differ from us, he uniformly writes in good spirit and with the courtesy and kindness which should always mark the course of Christians whether engaged in controversy or dealing with one another otherwise; and although his article is largely a repetition of what he has formerly written, we gladly give him this additional hearing in the present controversy.

But, according to his position, there is not now, and never was, a single Christian on earth in any denomination. Hence, according to him, going back to the Campbell and Stone movements of over one hundred years ago, which were the first prominent and general efforts ever made to get away from denominationalism after it came into existence, it was absolutely impossible for anybody to get into the church of God at that time at all; for there was nobody to baptize any one except those who were in denominations. and they, not being Christians, were not qualified to do it! But, if there was nobody qualified to baptize persons into God's church, then that church at that time did not and could not get started again at all, and therefore it is not in existence to-day, and so neither Brother Taylor nor myself nor anybody else now living is in the church of God, and there is not a solitary Christian on earth to-day! To be consistent, Brother Taylor must either accept this conclusion or change his views as to whether there are any Christians in the denominations; and I leave him to ponder over this reductio ad absurdum, as the logicians call it, with the dilemma in which he has placed himself. In the meantime I call attention to the following points:

1. Brother Taylor says: "The only way a man can get into the Baptist Church is by submitting to what the Baptists call baptism." This statement gives only a part of the truth, and therefore it is wrong and misleading. It is true that persons cannot "get into the Baptist Church" without "submitting to what the Baptists call baptism," but that does not prove that "what the Baptists call baptism" puts them into the Baptist Church. His whole argument here depends on an assumption which is not true. Neither "what the Baptists call baptism" nor what anvbody else calls baptism puts anybody "into the Baptist Church." If nothing were taught and practiced except " what the Baptists call baptism," there would be no "Baptist Church" outside of the New Testament, just as there is no "Baptist Church" in the New Testament. Brother Taylor seems not to know that it is not "what the Baptists call baptism," nor "what the Baptists call" the Lord's Supper, nor "what the Baptists call" anything else that is in the New Tetament, that constitutes "the Baptist Church;" but in the case of "the Baptist Church," just as in the case of every other denomination, it is the acceptance of human opinions unknown to the New Testament which constitutes the denomination. But in spite of these opinions, men can hear and obey the commandments of God at the hands of a member of a denomination and thus enter the church of God; and if they then, as is so often the case, make the mistake of accepting human opinions which ally them with "the Baptist Church" or with any other denomination, we should do all within our power to get them to turn away from such opinions and to be memhers of nothing in the way of a church but the church of God. "The only way a man can get into the Baptist Church," or into any other denomination, "is by submitting to" human opinions unknown to the New Testament. Nothing whatever that is taught by the Baptists or by any other denomination that is in the New Testament puts anybody into "the Baptist Church" or into any other denomination. The New Testament is against all denominations and all denominationalism of every form, and nobody can get into a denomination at all except by submitting to something that is not in the New Testament.

2. He says: "If baptism were necessary in order to get into a business firm, and since it is necessary in order to get into the church of God, if a man were a member of both at the same time, 'the same act' that made him a member of the business firm would have made him a member of the church of God." This by no means follows, except that baptism would be a condition of getting into both, but there might be other and very different conditions of getting into the one that were not conditions of getting into the other. The absurdity to which his position logically leads appears again at this point and may be seen in the following similar case of reasoning: A sheep is a quadruped; but a cow is a quadruped; therefore a cow is a sheep. Here both premises are strictly true, but the conclusion is false because of the false assumption that the one characteristic which the two possess in common is the only essential to their complete identification. Of course it does not follow that because being a quadruped is common to both a sheep and a cow, therefore what it takes to constitute the one animal it takes to constitute the other; and precisely on the same principle it would not follow, if a given act "were necessary in order to get into a business firm, and since it is necessary in order to get into the church of God," therefore "if a man were a member of both at the same time, the same act that made him a member of the business firm would have made him a member of the church of God." for the simple reason that, after that act had been performed, there might still be conditions of getting into the one that were not conditions of getting into the other. To put the same fact in another light, while baptism puts nobody into "the Baptist Church" nor into any other denomination, yet Baptists, I am glad to say, will not take anybody into "their church" or denomination who has not been baptized. But, as we have already seen, it is their opinions, and not baptism nor anything else in the New Testament, that puts them into the Baptist denomination.

3. Again, he says: "But 'receive into the fellowship of the church' is as scriptural as 'baptize into the fellowship of the church." Wrong, and radically wrong, again; and the passages he quotes do not teach it. "Him that is weak in the faith receive ye" (Rom. 14: 1); but the person to whom Paul refers was already in the fellowship of the church before the Roman Christians were to "receive" him. "We therefore ought to 'receive' such, that we might be fellow helpers to the truth." (3 John 8.) Of course we ought; but John did not tell us to "receive them into the fellowship of the church," for they were already in it, and had been ever since their baptism. There is not a passage in the New Testament that says persons are "received into the fellowship of the church" after they are baptized. We are to "receive" them as in, and worthy of, Christian fellowship.

4. No, it does not follow, when one "comes from the Baptist Church" and I "do not haptize him," that therefore I "receive him into the fellowship." I "receive him," not "into the fellowship of the church," but, as the New Testament uses the term, I receive him by recognizing him as already in, and worthy of, the fellowship of the church.

5. According to Brother Taylor's identification of "sin" and "error" and his use of these terms, it is difficult to see how it would be possible for fallible, erring man ever to become a Christian. At any rate, if "entanglement in error" in any and all forms and to any extent "is sin," and persons cannot become members of the church of God without being free from all error of every kind and to any extent, then I doubt if there is a member of the church of God on earth to-day. I do not know, and neither does Brother Taylor know, but that every fallen son and daughter of Adam that was ever baptized was, at that moment, in error on some things. He is simply speaking here where the Bible is silent; and that is why, unlike Brother

Taylor, I refuse to speak, except to state my ignorance of the situation. Hence, it is not "Brother Kurfees," but Brother Taylor and some others at this point with whom "Paul does not agree."

6. The reason "Brother Kurfees may say that at" the instant of baptism a man "is not" necessarily "a member of the Baptist denomination" is because baptism does not put persons into any denomination at all. It takes something else to put them into such institutions; and when Brother Taylor and the Baptists teach that baptism puts persons into the Baptist denomination, they are simply mistaken. Baptism puts persons into the church of God. Brother Taylor should not allow "Baptist rules" nor anything else to keep him from seeing the New Testament truth on this point.

7. Finally, it is injurious to the cause of truth and hinders its progress to talk about "Baptist baptism," "Baptist Lord's Supper," or "Baptist" anything else that is taught in the New Testament. There are Baptist errors about baptism and about other New Testament things, but these things themselves are no more "Baptist," nor "Methodist," nor "Presbyterian," nor any other denominational thing, than baptism "for the remission of sins," as taught in Acts 2: 38, is "Campbellite" because Campbell taught it. This point was made to stand out clearly while the American Bible Union translation of the New Testament, which was made by the Baptists, was in process of making. These translators had the courage to consistently and very properly translate the Greek word baptizo by the English "immerse;" but they saw that they could not consistently do this without also translating the word baptistees "Immerser" instead of "Baptist," thus making it "John the immerser" instead of "John the Baptist," They further saw that, if they maintained consistency at this point, they would lose their denominational name "Baptist," so far as their own translation of the New Testament was concerned; and Dr. John Waller, who was president of the Bible Union, said: "If a faithful and pure version of God's Holy Word takes from me my denominational name, then I say let it go! LET IT GO!! LET IT GO!!! - This was courageous and right, and we should encourage it. Hence, to any extent whatever that the Baptists or any other denomination may teach or practice what is in the New Testament, let us not speak of it as "Baptist" or in any other way characterize it as denominational; but let us speak of it as the New Testament speaks of it, and thus exalt and magnify the truth.

In sending contributions, be sure and state whether they are intended for the Home Orphans' Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Fund, or the Poland Fund. I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for orphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb, who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

Contending for the Faith.

BY F. W. SMITH.

J. B. Radford, one of the ablest contributors to the Christian Standard, has paid a splendid tribute to the memory of D. R. Dungan, who, perhaps, contributed in the form of books and otherwise as much to Christian literature as any man of his day among the disciples. Some of these works—"On the Rock; or, Truth Stranger Than Fiction," and "The Sabhath or Lord's Day—Which?"—have been a veritable mine of wealth to young preacher's and Bible students in general. In the life sketch of this man, the author refers to D. R. Dungan's contentions for the truth of the gospel as follows:

Dungan's prime was passed in those wholesome tonic days of discussion when men were not afraid to contend for their faith, whether political or religious. Honest and earnest discussion is necessary to the maintenance of truth The advocates and beneficiaries of error and wrong are always instinctively and hysterically afraid of it. Despots, civil or ecclesiastical, are always bitterly in-tolerant of the controversialist. In the times of papal om-nipotence, death was his reward. In the realm of our late slaveholders' oligarchy, discussion of its justice was a capi-tal offense. The liquor dealers used every means in their power to suppress discussion of their doings. If you find a man insistently decrying and forbidding religious or political discussion, you may be sure that he is the beneficiary of some religious or social condition which will not bear the light of discussion, or that he is the tool of such beneficiary. Jesus was the most persistent and uncompromising controversialist of all time. Because of this he incurred the murderous hatred of those who profited by ecclesiastical despotism; of those who enriched themselves by laying heavy burdens upon men's backs.

A minister of the gospel is never more Christlike than when he is attacking those who make the word of God of no effect by their traditions, or their philosophical speculations. He is never more heroically Paul-like than when he is opposing and exposing those who pervert the gospel of Christ, even in such slightly perceptible degree that it is not really "another gospel." A slightly corrupted gospel is more perilously deceiving and misleading than a grossly corrupted one, just as a counterfeit coin is more dangerously deceiving in proportion as it approaches the genuine in appearance. These counterfeit gospels have been current since Paul's day, deceiving some of the elect in every generation; and it is the duty of the expert, the one who has studied to learn how rightly to analyze the word of Gcd, to expose them and to denounce their propagators.

D. R. Dungan contended earnestly, masterfully, and successfully against all such propagators, as well as against those who were avowedly disbelievers in any gospel. He was engaged in thirty-seven formal public debates, and (as he put it) "more than a hundred running fights," with all sorts of these propagandists, and in every case he acquitted himself to the full satisfaction of those who were anxious for a successful defense of the gospel.

His power in debate lay in the complete mastery of his subject and his complete mastery of himself. Unlike the addle-brain who said,

"Once I knew I knew I knew,
But now I must confess,
The more I know I know I know,
I know I know the less,"

Dungan knew, and he knew he knew, some things which would make good his contention. He was fair and manly in debate, as only one who is conscious of his strength, and the strength of his position, can afford to be. He won the respect and even the admiration of his opponents in a remarkable degree. In most of his debates he and his opponents were better friends after the contest than before. He was so manly, so human, so evidently intent on coming at the truth of the matter, as much for his opponent's sake as for his own, that there was no cause for enmity. It is sometimes said of a man, "He had not an enemy in the world." This cannot be said of any good man; for he who insists on right and justice among men, and attacks wrong, will have enemies. He who makes no enemies is far from Christlike, but the Christlike man is he who is enemy to no one; who, like Ben Adhem, so "Joves his fellow men" that he would gladly help even his bitterest enemy when in distress. That was the spirit of D. R. Dungan. He was enemy to no man.

Besides a desire for our readers to know that a splendid paper relative to the going away of a man who fought many battles for the fundamentals of the gospel had been prepared by a competent pen, I wished also that they might see the strong emphasis Brother J. B. Radford lays upon the matter of contending for the truth. The Gospel Advocate is sometimes criticized for its efforts in defending the truth against the doctrines and speculations of men, and it is encouraging to read in other papers such words as we find in this tribute to D. R. Dungan,

Note this: "A minister of the gospel is never more Christlike than when he is attacking those who make the word of God of no effect by their traditions, or their philosophical speculations. He is never more heroically Paullike than when he is opposing and exposing those who pervert the gospel of Christ, even in such slightly perceptible degree that it is not really 'another gospel.'" To this I utter a most hearty amen, but am painfully aware of the fact that in so doing I run counter to many good, but misguided, members of the church. Many seem to think that it is anything else but the Christian spirit to engage in religious controversy, and that all such is "wrangling" just for the sake or fun of the thing. I say frankly that I have no patience with such a sentiment, and that if the compromising spirit of such objectors were followed the truth would perish from the earth. And what is more, error in any and every form, by any and every person, whether in the church of Christ or out of it, should be condemned and exposed. Simply because a man is a popular and favorite preacher with some members of the church, they seem to think he is immune from criticism; that he is too big, too intelligent, or too honest to be a subject of criticism. Bah! Paul did not esteem the apostle Peter too big, too intelligent, or too honest to be criticized, but wrote in God's Book that Peter acted the hypocrite.

Brother Radford says another fine thing-viz.: "A slightly corrupted gospel is more perilously deceiving and misleading than a grossly corrupted one, just as a counterfeit coin is more dangerously deceiving in proportion as it approaches the genuine in appearance." The more known and accepted truth put into a human theory, the more quickly will the theory find adherents. The New Testament has much to say on the coming of Christ; and when men have a theory about what Christ will do when he comes, not a word of which can be found in the Bible, they simply "coat the pill" of human speculation with many passages which speak of Christ's coming. We need not deceive ourselves with the idea that the day of a corrupt gospel is over and gone forever; for, as our brother says, "these counterfeit gospels have been current since Paul's day, deceiving some of the elect in every generation; and it is the duty of the expert, the one who has studied to learn how rightly to analyze the word of God, to expose them and to denounce their propagators."

There is this difficulty in carrying out the duty clearly stated in the above—viz., incurring the disfavor and often the hatred of church members, to say nothing of the misrepresentation of your course and the impugning of your motives. But let come what will, any man or woman who loves the truth and desires to see it maintained in its purity will let none of these things move him or her. We must answer to God and not to man, and this fact should be a great source of comfort to every one who is earnestly contending for the faith of the gospel.

Occasionally one who is fighting for the truth gets a crumb of encouragement, and I desire to thank Brother Mann for the following kind words:

Riverside, Tenn., February 19, 1921.—F. W. Smith.—Dear Brother: I enjoy all of your writings very much, and have just finished reading your discussion with Dr. Lofton a second time. I am glad to see you go after false doctrine in the good way you do. The time has come, it seems, when people do not want anything said about what they believe and teach. I enjoyed this week's article by you in the Gospel Advocate. People do twist the Scriptures and leave out so much. Where that fellow said, "Whosoever believeth in him shall receive remission of sins," amused me—leaving out "through his name" entirely. One reason it amused me was a Methodist here in front of my store one day said that, and a brother called him down on it, and he remarked to the crowd, exclaiming: "I will eat a Testament if it is not that way." The brother came into my store and asked me if it was true, and I said: "No, not in the words he said it," He said: "Hand me a Testament, where it is, and let me go and show him." I turned to the place, and handed it to him. He was gone a few minutes, and came back with the book, saying: "That man is some two hundred yards down the railroad, going home." I hope you may live long, and keep contending for "the faith."

Picture Shows.

BY J. C. M'Q.

On page 299 of this issue appears an article on "Movie Abuses a National Calamity." If the "picture shows" are what I am informed they are, they should be censored out of existence. The preacher, however, who has been a regular attendant at the moving-picture show is not in position to combat the growing evil. Until preachers shun the very appearance of evil they cannot consistently admonish others to do so. To look upon that which is evil excites evil passions and leads many to ruin. The Christian should not help people on the downward road. Let the promoters of "motion-picture theaters" make them what they should be, otherwise the public should frown upon them and cease to patronize them.

"Queries and Answers," by David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

It has been the conviction of the publisher for a number of years that just such a book should be in the hands of the reading public. As these men were so closely associated in life, it is eminently proper that they should be assoclated together in a book. The book would have been brought out earlier but for the fact that printing material and labor have been so high that it was delayed for a time in the hope that the cost of publication would decline. While the publisher was disappointed in this hope, yet he is selling the book, considering that it contains nearly eight hundred pages, at a prewar price. Greater importance and usefulness attach to the book because it covers a period of forty years of their joint labors. Another consideration that makes the book extremely valuable is that it treats of so many diversified subjects-subjects that are as much alive and of as much general interest to the reader as when the questions were asked. Furthermore, it is true, as is evident from the number of questions that are presented to the editor of the "Query Department" of this paper, that people to-day have a deep and abiding interest in the questions on religious subjects that were propounded to Lipscomb and Sewell for answer, which are published and answered in this book.

This book is substantially and handsomely bound, and will be an ornament to any library. No student of the Bible can afford to be without it. The small sum of three dollars, which is the purchase price of the book, should not deter any one from sending his order to the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn., for a copy of the book. Every preacher in the church of Christ should have a copy. Any one desiring to take an agency for the book should write to the publisher for terms. The book has met a warm reception and is having a good sale.

If you will let Him walk with you in your streets, and sit with you in your homes, and teach you in your churches, and abide with you as the living Presence in your hearts, you, too, shall know what freedom is, and while you do your duties, be above your duties; and while you own yourselves the sons of men, know you are the sons of God.—Phillips Brooks.

MISCELLANY

"The Immortality of the Soul"—A Debate between G. C. Brewer and Dr. Stewart J. Spence. We have a few copies of this work in stock that we will sell at twenty-five cents the copy, net. It is an 8vo pamphlet of seventy-seven pages, from the press of F. L. Rowe, Cincinnati, Ohio, and contains a good lithograph picture of each of the disputants. The mechanical work is excellent and the paper very fine. Brother Brewer fully sustained his position in affirming the immortality of the soul. Order from the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

A sister at Mansfield, Wash., Mrs. J. A. Johnson, writes: "My father, W. D. Craig, took the Gospei Advocate all his life. When I was married, he made me a present of a year's subscription. He is gone now, and I do not want to ever let my subscription run out. It is like a letter from home and a great comfort to me, as I am practically alone in the Christian life here. My husband is not a Christian, and there is no church of Christ near. There are a few who call themselves 'members,' but they do not meet for worship. They are 'A. R's; also mixed some with the 'church of God' people, I think. It is a sad thing to see how the Apostolic Review people are acting—a very sad sight, Some one is sending me the Apostolic Review; so I have read some of both sides. My husband not being a Christian, I asked him one day which paper he liked to have me read to him best. His answer was: 'The Gospel Advocate, of course. The Apostolic Review seems to be just a trouble maker and faultfinder.' I thought, how true! Please remember me in your prayers, that I may be strengthened to lead my husband and three baby boys into the Christian life."

J. Will Henley, Coleman, Okla., writes: "The meeting in Tynona was a great success. The strong hold the 'digres-Wynona was a great success. sives' held there was completely broken. There were two n.en and one woman there who we knew had not bowed to Baal. We found three more who had tried to worship with the society folks, but whose knowledge of God's word prevented, and yet they had not the courage to worship at home. They are acquainted with each other now, and have a place to meet, and arrangements have been made with Muskogee and Tulsa to have Brother Oliphant visit them twice a month until we can secure a good man to go into that country and take up the work. We left a band of forty-two souls who are contented with 'it is written. Stuart church and some individuals at Holdenville and Wewoka rendered valuable fellowship; Ada, Atwood, and Allen also helped. Leo Henley led the song service, I am in a meeting now in Henryetta, using the City Hall. is with ne, and has his part of the work well in hand. Wife and baby were at home when I left for this city. Dr. Nelson advised a rest for several days, thinking he could determine whether or not the treatments were producing permanent results."

E. W. Moon, Holland, Ga., in a note addressed to the editor of the Gospel Advocate, says: "Within the past few months I note you have managed in some way to draw and I congratulate you. He is a man of moods, very retiring in his nature, and is never inclined to 'rush into print.' He is not what is normally to the control of the con print.' He is not what is popularly known as a 'good mixer.' He is very kindly disposed and sociable, if you know him. He respects the opinions and convictions of others; while he has opinions of his own, and holds tena-ciously to them. He is a clear thinker, and has an original and pleasant way of expressing himself. A recent arilele, 'Thanking Brother George,' is a thoughtful contribution. I have read and re-read this article, and shall study it again: and I intend to preserve it with some other valuable contributions from the same source. I am not sure any one understands exactly the sphere of women 'in the church in the meetinghouse' or when assembled elsewhere. I have studied this question earnestly and honestly, first for my own benefit, and then for the help I might be to others. I had thought there was a safe side to it, yet just where to draw the line between what women may or may not do in 'the church in the meetinghouse' and 'the church in the home, or elsewhere, is rather a difficult thing for my undertaking. I know that the better plan would be to let the Lord draw the line; but if he has said anything very definite on the subject, then there certainly is something very deficient about my understanding. However, I shall continue my studies, and hope Erethren George and Perdue will continue to exchange their views on the subject. They have made a nice start, and I shall watch further developments with much interest."

J. J. Vanhoutin, Paris, III., in a letter of March 22, says: "After about three months' silence, with much cloudy weather, bad roads, and sickness, with a number of deaths through here, the springtime now appears. I have recently been called to conduct three funerals. Each trip and return was about thirty-five miles. The first was a good Christian brother of about fifty years; the second was a little child about three years old; the third was a good sister, aged eighty-one years. Church prospects through here are not very encouraging."

Tiee Elkins writes from Fort Worth, Texas, March 21: I am glad to say that the good work in this city is moving along well, and a large number of church members are developing into good workers. I have just read the report of T. B. Echols, of Fort Worth, in which he had many good things to say of the cause here, and how it had grown from two small congregations twelve years ago to eight at the present. Brother Echols did not tell it as 'big as it is;' for there are nine congregations here now, and every one of them is working hard. The Southside church of Christ will have Brother Elam for a meeting the last of May. This church is doing the best-work of its entire history.'

The following is from Lillie Cypert, missionary in Japan: "As I sum up my accounts for the past year, I am made to rejoice all over again to see the bounty with which the Lord has blessed even me. During 1920 I received through Sister Nellie Straiton, of Fort Worth, Texas, for personal use, $1,417.25; from others, $12; for furniture, $215.25. After meeting general living expenses for myself and two Japanese girls, helping in the hospital (a poor member with tuberculosis), expenses of Zoshigaya Sunday school, furniture and miscellaneous items, I have enough in hand to meet the expenses of January, 1921. Again I thank each one who has had part in this work, and always ask that God's blessings may be yours to the greatest extent possible."

H. D. Jeffcoat, Ackerman, Miss., writing under date of March 21, has this to say: "Mrs. J. J. Hannah, of Lamar, Miss., tells me that she and one brother are the only members at Lamar. I promised her a meeting in September. I was with the church at Reform last Lord's day. I will go to Kitchener next Lord's day, the Lord willing. I expect to preach at Burnside on Friday night as I go, and at Stella on Monday night as I come back. W. M. Ledbetter sends me five dollars a month to help in this work. Brethren in Mississippl, now is the time to work, while it is day. Let us put God's truth in every home in our State. Let all that can preach, preach; and those that cannot, help those that can. If you are behind with the Gospel Advocate, pay up, and get at least one of your neighbors to subscribe. Let's work while we can."

J. G. Allen. Muskozee, Okla., sends the following: "In the Gospel Advocate of March 17, under the title, 'Danger Ahead,' is an article by J. D. Tant that is worthy of more than a passing notice, and I hope the brotherhood will take heed to the warning said article contains. So many good men have been led away from the truth in such an innocent way that I have wondered why some one has not raised a cry against it before now. In the West we hear more about this than in any other section of the country. So many good brethren have been attending preachers' meetings until they have no patience with any one who opposes them. I notice that already some preachers are having 'young people's meetings' before the regular services at night, which is but a very short step to the 'Christian Endeavor' that is so common in sectarian churches. Yes, Brother Tant is right in saying that all that some of the so-called loyal churches lack of going all the way into societydom is just to bring in the organ. Bringing in an organ is not the only way to depart from the New Testament order."

R. D. Smith, writing under date of March 21, gives an interesting account of the progress of the work at Denton Texas. He says: "Interest in the work in Denton is better than at any time since my labors began with the church, and we will soon close the second year's work with this church. All meetings yesterday were well attended and the interest was specially good. The Lord's-day Bible study, under the efficient leadership of one of our elders H. C. Tallaferro, is far better than at any time within my knowledge, and is growing better all the time. The meetings each Lord's day, at both morning and evening hours, show better attendance than ever before. The prayer meetings are also well attended. In the beginning of the work with the church here we were not able to get enough interest in the work to get attendance upon the prayer meeting; and this was so for quite a time. However, it is now no trouble to have an attendance amounting to something like one hundred at these meetings. Since the beginning of the work with the church in Denton there have been, perhaps, more than fifty persons baptized into the body; and it is safe to say that at least this many have been added by letter, etc. We plan now to begin a protracted meeting about the last of May or the first of June. It is expected that the home preacher will do the preaching in this meeting; and that the meeting, as a whole, will be in the hands of home forces. The meeting last year, managed for the most part in this way, was pronounced one of the best the church had ever had; and it is believed, that we can have as good a one this year, if we will cooperate as we did last year."

Matthew C. Cayce writes from Jackson, Miss., March 21: "Our meeting here in Eureka Schoolhouse was well at-tended, and last night the house was filled. The people seem favorably impressed with the truth. The teaching is entirely new to those in that section; but I am being well received, and have announced preaching for to-night and to-morrow night, and may continue longer. On Saturday afternoon I preached in the Old Woman's Home here. The old ladies seemed to enjoy the service very much, and were cordial in the request that I come again, which I Yesterday morning I preached in Ridgeland, expect to do. and in the afternoon I preached to a representative audience in a schoolhouse at the edge of Canton. So far as 1 have been able to learn, none of them had ever heard the simple gospel, none of us having ever preached in Canton. Is it not distressing that so many people so close to Nashville are living so long without any one to obey for them the command of Jesus: 'Go, . . . preach the gospel to every creature.' I am afraid some of us will not be found guiltless. More men ought to be sent to such places. With so many congregations, so many preachers, and so many Christians in Nashville, it is almost inconceivable that thousands here have never had even the opportunity to hear what Jesus wants preached, and do not know it is possible to be simply a Christian without joining some one of the many denominations. Thanks to the Ford, I was enabled to drive back from Canton in time to preach here last night. Joe Ridley is proving a valuable factor in our work, and easily demonstrates that no instrument could improve our singing. He led the songs in all of yester-day's services. Roy Vaughn conducted services in the courthouse at the usual morning hour. Brethren, pray for 'grow not weary in well-doing.' My address is us that we 720 South Gallatin Street, Jackson, Miss.

From E. G. Burton, Columbia, Tenn.: "I heartily indorse the admonition of J. D. Tant to be careful, given in the Gospel Advocate of March 17; however, I would not direct it only to preachers and with regard to their meetings. There is no doubt in my mind but that in these meetings they might be able to revive the congregations and encourage them to work harder for the cause of Christ; however, they should be very careful not to plan any work except through the congregations and under the supervision of the elders, who are to superintend the work of the congregations, otherwise there would be no harmony either in the congregations or with God's plan for congre-Brethren, in this connection I would ask: gational work. From the qualifications elders must have to be perfect elders, as recorded by inspiration, and from all to be learned regarding elders, would you not believe their work is to superintend congregations, to build up the cause of Christ? And could you have any reason to believe they are to serve any other purpose? Then do you not think that a school to be conducted on Sundays would be a good work and an aid in the spreading of the gospel? Why not, then, appoint elders who will work, instead of allowing a school to appoint its own superintendent, and run by a separate treasury, and, therefore, a separate institution? If a man If a man is qualified for a certain work and fails to fulfill his duties, his qualifications will profit him nothing. Let the church do the work, that God may have the glory through Christ. As Brother Tant says, many of our people do not seem to realize that any work not in harmony with God's way is digression, but they are scared to death at instrumental music. Should we not look after the appointing of elders as often as once a year? It is no wonder to me that many of our people think they must put a clause in the deeds of our church homes to keep out sectarianism so long as we do not wake up to a sense of duty. I am anxious to see the churches progressive and not digressive.

Passing of Mrs. Edith Potter Allen.

BY J. PETTEY EZELL.

Hugh Potter, of Bowling Green, Ky., superintendent of the Potter Orphan Home and School, and Sallie E. Read were married on December 21, 1881. God blessed their home with a large, happy, and healthy family of nine boys and four girls. The oldest is now thirty-eight years of age; the youngest, fourteen.

In the providence of God the circle of this happy family remained unbroken till 4:40 A.M., Thursday, February 24, 1921, when Edith, the oldest daughter and the wife of Brother Willis H. Allen, of Jacksonville, Fla., was taken from us.

She was born in Warren County, Ky., near Bowling Green, on July 31, 1884. She was married to Brother Allen on September 22, 1909. There were born to them four children-Hugh Richard, Willis Haupt, Evelyn, and an infant daughter which sleeps with its mother.

Besides her parents, her husband and children, she is survived by nine brothers and three sisters, as follows: Ernest, of Toyah, Texas; Read and Carl, of Nashville, Tenn.: Hubert and Theo, who live near home; Fred, of Mount Hope, W. Va.; Garland, who is at home; Cecil, who is serving in the United States Navy in the Pacific: Edwin; Mrs. J. Pettey Ezell, of Albany, Ala.; Lola and Blanche, who are in school.

Two very comforting services were held, the first being conducted by Brother G. E. Claus, at the Grape Street church of Christ, at Jacksonville, Fla., with which church Brother Allen has lived and labored for the past five or six years. Brother Claus knew her as a student at Potter Bible College twenty years ago, and paid a high tribute to the beautiful life she had lived. The other was conducted on the following Sunday afternoon in the Potter Orphan Home Chapel, at Bowling Green, Ky., by Brother M. L. Moore, of Bowling Green, whose message was one of comfort to a multitude of aching hearts.

A touching scene at this service was that of six stalwart brothers, brokenhearted, bearing with their loving hands the form of her whom they had so tenderly loved and whom they so affectionately named "Sister."

Friends were never truer or sweeter to man than were the entire church at Jacksonville and at many other points to Brother Allen and to all the family on this sad occasion.

A more exemplary life I have never known than hers. God never gave to man a truer helpmeet or a more faithful companion. Little children never had a more devoted and affectionate mother; no parents, a more dutiful or

As a Christian, I should be at a loss, from all my acquaintance, to select one who would more nearly meet the demands and qualifications of a "Bible woman" than would she.

O, precious hope, anchor of our souls in this temptestuous time of storm, that leads beyond the veil into "the Beautiful Golden Sometime," where death shall have lost its sting and the grave its victory when the dead in Christ shall have first been raised and the living faithful caught up together with them in the clouds to meet the Lord in the air; when our vile bodies shall have been made like unto His glorious body; when we shall dwell together in the many mansions of our Father's house and walk together the golden streets of the supernal city, to drink of the river of life and to eat of the tree of life; where the Sun forever shines and no shadows ever fall. where no tempests rage or billows roll; where Eden's flowers forever bloom; where our Father shall wipe away all tears from our eyes, and where death shall be no more, nor sorrow, nor crying, nor pain.

Echoes From East Tennessee. BY GEORGE W. FARMER.

On the first Lord's day in this month we had fine attendance at all the services at Cleveland. One young lady made the confession, and was baptized at the prayer service on Wednesday evening following. Also two other sisters came into the fellowship of the congregation at the same service. In the afternoon, accompanied by a number of the brethren and sisters, I went to Calhoun, where we had a fine and interested audience. On the same Lord's day Brother Phillips preached twice to good and encouraging audiences at Athens, and Brother Rozar preached twice at Liberty.

On the third Lord's day we had good audiences at all the services of the Cleveland church, with a valuable acquisition in the form of two good members who took fellowship with the church at the evening services. I preached to a good audience at Union Grove in the afternoon. Brother Rozar preached to a large audience at Antioch in the forenoon. Brother Phillips is sick, and was not able to fill his appointment at Riceville.

One thing which we are pleased to comment upon is the interest that is being stimulated among our young people in Bible reading and active work in their meetings. Some of our boys who have been members only a short time will now get up and read a chapter and lead in prayer, and some of them are making splendid talks; some of the smaller girls and boys commit whole chapters to memory in a week's time.

One other thing of which we all are proud and over which we rejoice is that on March 7 we lifted the note and paid off our church debt. We "owe no man anything, but to love one another."

SOME EAST TENNESSEE WANTS.

More laborers for the harvest.

More money to support these laborers in their work.

More church houses.

More money to build these houses.

Some sleeping brethren awakened from their slumbers.

Some congregations genuinely converted and put to work.

Some brother or sister with the adaptability and means to build an orphan home.

More of our brethren and sisters reading some of our good church

More love for God.

More love for humanity.

More true consecration to Christ and his cause.

The Lord needs intelligent service quite as much as he does loyalty that will go to the stake. I have no doubt that Paul won as many by his tact as he did by preaching all night. He was able to do this because he had learned some things in the making and selling of tents that he could not learn at the feet of Gamaliel. Tact wins where great gifts without It would fail. It will help the preacher more to know how to rub the fur the right way than to know how many animals there were in the ark. Selected.

Meeting at Jerry City, Ohio.

BY A. A. BUNNER.

On the third Lord's day in February I began a meeting with the congregation of faithful ones at Jerry City. O., and continued it until the first Lord'sday night in March. I have not in many a day found a more devoted and faithful band of disciples of Christ than I found at Jerry City. They are true to the New Testament order in all matters pertaining to the work and worship of the church. The two elders, Brethren Meeker and Whitacre, are a host within themselves in the way of developing the talent of both young and old in teaching, exhortation, song, and prayer. All can take a part in some way in the worship, which makes the congregation a veritable light in a dark place. Their fourth Lord's-day collection is taken solely for mission work, and they aim to make it the most liberal of their Lord's-day collections. Dr. K. C. Ice and his noble wife are members of this congregation and are a great help to the work of the Lord there. Brother Ice is both a good doctor and an eloquent preacher of the word, and they are greatly loved by all the members of the church at that place. While in Jerry City I made my home mostly with Brethren Meeker and Ice, and good and kind homes they were, too. Time would fall me to tell of Brethren Boltz, Frederick, Ackleborger, and others whose names I cannot now recall, who are stalwart Christians of the primitive type, and whose influence for good is felt in the community. May the Lord ever help those brethren to keep themselves in the fear and love of God. My strength held up well in this meeting. One night I was not able to preach. Dr. Ice did the preaching. There were no additions, but we had the largest crowds of interested hearers throughout the meeting that they had had there for many a day, and much prejndice was removed from the minds of the people. May the good work continue, and we believe it will go on. The brethren there are well supplied with good song books; and with such men as Brethren Whitacre and Ackleborger as leaders in song, they know how to use them. My fighting days are now over, but my days of earnest contending for the truth are still on, and will continue as long as strength holds out. If any readers of the Gospel Advocate want to help me in doing mission work in Cleveland and adjoining places, let them send their offerings to me. My address is 1800 West Fifty-fourth Street, Cleveland, Ohio.

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their cloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of clernal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Teunessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivairy of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of tast fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fex hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase.

Notes From West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

The fight against infidelity in and about Hornbeak is waxing warm. As stated before, the Baptist and Methodist congregations would not enter the fight with us; so the congregation of which I am a member, and for which I preach on the fourth Lord's day in each month, has buckled on the armor and gone forth to battle for the right against the wrong, for truth against error. Brother U. G. Wilkinson has issued a pamphlet, " Infidelity Against Itself," in which are to be found some "nuts for Christians to crack," or what the infidel says are contradictions of the Bible. A few of these so-called "contradictions" I have copied and numbered and handed them out to those who would not enter the fight with us, requesting them to harmonize these passages and return to me.

- 1. God is satisfied with his work. (Gen. 1: 31.) God not satisfied with Dis work. (Gen. 6; 6.)
- 2. God dwells in light. (1 Tim. 6: 16.) God dwells in darkness. (1 Kings 8; 12; Ps. 18; 11; Ps. 97; 2.)
- 3. God is tired and rests. (Ex. 31: (7.) God never tired and never rests, (Isa, 40: 28.)
- 4. God is all powerful. (Jer. 32: 17.) God is not all powerful. (Judg. 15 19.0
- 5. God unchangeable. (James 1: 17; Mal. 3; 6; Ezek. 24; 14; Num. 23: 19.) God is changeable. (Gen. 6: 6: Jon. 3: 10: 1 Sam. 2: 30, 31; 2 Kings 20: 1-6.)
- 6. God is not the author of evil. (Ps. 19: 7, 8; 1 Cor. 14: 30; Deut. 32: 1; James 1: 13.) God is the author of evil. (Jer. 18: 11; Isa. 45: 7; Ezek, 20; 25; Amos 3; 6.)
- 7. Baptism commanded. (Matt. 28: Baptism not commanded. (1 Cor. 1: 17.)
 - 8; Earth to be destroyed. (2 Pet.

- 3: 10; Heb. 1: 11; Rev. 20: 21,) Earth never to be destroyed. (Ps. 104: 5; Eccles. 1: 4.)
- 9. There is to be a resurrection of the dead. (1 Cor. 15: 52; Rev. 20: 12, 13; John 5; 28, 29.) There is to be no resurrection of the dead. (Job 7: 9; Eccles: 9; 5; Isa, 26: 14.)
- 10. The fruit of God's Spirit is love and gentleness. (Gal. 5: 22.) The fruit of God's Spirit is vengeance and fury. (Judg. 15: 14, 15: 1 Sam. 18: 10, 11.)

Please write out your explanation of these passages and return to me. A few have promised to do so. When these are returned, I have promised that I would read their explanations publicly, and also to give my explanation of these passages, showing they are not contradictory, but in harmony. I am doing all I can to enlist the people in the study of God's word; and unless this can be done, all, all is lost. No one can refute the claims of infidelity who is ignorant of the teaching of the Bible, but has to cower before them and their false, acrimonious charges.

The reason why we do not feel the power of evil is partly because we are not resisting it; we are sailing a good deal with the stream; and partly because it is like the pressure of the atmosphere: it presses equally in every direction; it is inside of us as well as outside, and the pressures seem to materialize one another.-Selected.

The parables of our Lord teach us the value of meditation. Too much of our knowledge of Christ comes through the medium of others instead of through the Spirit of God himself. "Thy word have I hid in mine heart, that I might not sin against thee." The hiding of truth in the heart means meditation. Selected.

BY A. ELLMORE.

The Christian blooms in this life, but the flower falls in death that his fruit may ripen in the next life.

It would be well for every one who sings in worship to pause and ask: "Am I singing to praise God, or just to please men?"

The good we may do, no mortal can

If we cease to do evil and learn to do

We may not present to Christ a perfect life, but we may present to him a life which has been perfected.

Let us so preach that when the eifects of the present entertainment have died away the facts of the glorious gospel will remain.

No man prays in full, loving trust until be becomes willing to allow Divine Wisdom to determine just when the answer should be given.

In these days of trashy literature, Christians should be careful as to the books they select and read. Often the dead are more profit than the living.

Seventy years ago there was not so much reading by the general public as now. Books then were few and costly and time was precious. Children were kept at home, in the fields, or in school. Cheap literature, indelicate clothing, and visiting are causes of loss to character now.

You say your troubles are greater than you can bear! Then what can you do about it? Will you throw them upon your brother? Perhaps he has all the troubles he can carry. Well. my brother, these are the very persons Christ is looking for. He will carry them all. If you are tired, he will give you rest. If we were carrying an unequal burden, and a man were anxious to share it, would we not be willing to have him do so? Riches become to their possessor a help or a hindrance. If obtained lawfully, and If they have been sanctified by the word of God and prayer, and we give a liberal per cent of them to the needy and bereft, there is no estimating the blessing of wealth. So doing, we send them over as treasures.

If a Christian should be called upon to administer to the destitute, he should not wait to ascertain if he is worthy before helping him. Assist him at once, then you have him under your influence. Give him first bread. then advice, and then words of encouragement.

of works of benevolence, that charity should begin at home. In some cases, yes. But suppose this home is a luxuriant one, where the inhabitants are blessed with health and plenty, and near it is a family in deep distress; in such a case, where should our acts of mercy begin?

One great need of the hour is men who can show us our financial mistakes and how to correct them. Once the important question was: "How can we make an honest living?" But the leading thought now seems to be as to how much we can make above a living. In my view, the law of necessity is the rule which will bring the needed reform. But while the spirit of profiteering continues to the extent that we must double our investment, and borrow money in order to do it. the people will be cramped and burdened. We can hardly say the present system is swindling, but we think it is extortion. The public could subsist bountifully upon one-half of what they now spend. Let us reform, retrench, and begin again to live honest lives.

Some Reasons for Doing Missionary Work.

BY LILLIE CYPERT.

- 1. Because, when we become Christians, we must obey our Master, our King, and that was one of his last commands. (Matt. 28: 19, 20.)
- 2. Because, if we value our own salvation, wish to follow the Golden Rule, and appreciate the fact that our own salvation came through the missionary efforts of others, we will want to pass the blessing on.
- 3. Because of the instinct of the heart to want to help any living creature, whether man or beast, in trouble or misery; and there is nothing better than "the touch of Christ" to lift fallen humanity out of the distresses that sin has brought upon the world and give man a happy home and finally a better government under which to live
- 4. Because we wish to follow the example of the early church; and they preached the gospel "to every creature under heaven" (Col. 1: 23), having such questions and facts in mind as are found in Rom, 10: 13-15.
- 5. Because there are millions in the world to-day, almost two thousand years after the great sacrifice was made, who are unsaved; and it is not the will of God that any should perish, but that all should come to repentance. Most of these do not even know of Christ. Who will teach them, if we do not?

Knowledge of a few of the vain practices of the heathen might help us to realize the need of more earnestness on our part. A few days ago I passed by a little temple that is near our house. There were several men at work in the yard. Some were at work on a little building in one corner of the yard; others were sweeping and cleaning among the rows of little stone images. Yesterday afternoon I passed by the place again; the little shrine was finished, the gods amply arranged, and already many written prayers had been stuck upon the front.

Yesterday afternoon as Ogawa San and Kiyo Chan were coming home from church, an old lady, noticing that Kiyo Chan's hand was tied up, asked the reason. On learning that it was chilblains, she recommended that she go to a near-by temple and very earnestly pray to the god. She said if she would, it would soon get well.

As Ogawa San and I were out walking one day, we saw a man coming who was dressed in the costume the Japanese wear on special occasions. Soon we saw him go into a shop. At the entrance was a woman who, as he entered, threw salt on his back. I asked why she did this, and was told that he had been to the home of a friend or relative who had died, and was unclean, and must be cleansed before entering any house. Very often one sees little piles of salt at the entrance to shops. These are also placed there for the purpose of cleans-

It is not the simple only that do these simple things, either; the learned are blinded as well. But, on the other hand, those who are considered dull can do some marvelous things in the kingdom of God when led to the true light. For instance, in the movince of Shantung, China, a man was baptized who could read but little. He was so dull that he was sent home from the special class where a few were being taught. He taught his daughter-in-law to read, and she taught others. She was poor and supported her family by weaving, and yet she taught her neighbors to read the Bible, and, as a result, twelve became Christians. Go ye, therefore, and teach others also.

Report From the Field.

On the first Lord's day in February I was with the church of Christ at Viola, Tenn., and I was glad to find them faithfully keeping house for the Lord under the leadership of Brethren Winton and McGeehee. This church is developing several prospective preachers. I have promised to conduct their meeting this year, which will be the fifth meeting that I have held for

On February 7-9 I was at McMinnville, Tenn., and, although it rained each day, the attendance was good. I have agreed to hold their meeting next fall. I have held seven meetings at that place, and am proud to labor with them.

On Thursday and Friday, February 10, 11, I was at Manchester, Tenn. All that attended the services seemed to be edified. I was glad to find the ones that obeyed the gospel while I was with them last fall holding out faithfully

On the second Lord's day in February I met with the White's Chapel congregation. One young lady confessed Christ and was baptized. I have promised to hold their meeting this summer. This will be my third season to labor with them.

I was with the White's Chapel congregation again on March 5-in a business meeting. In this meeting great good was accomplished. Brother Todd, a white brother, met with us, and his instructions were all for the betterment of the work among my people. He is anxious to see the cause grow among us, and he said the white people were willing to help us if we would live as Christians.

I am now (March 14) at Tuseumbia, Ala. I preached to a good congregation yesterday. One old lady, seventy-four years old, desired to be baptized for the remission of her sins. The members all met at the water this morning and saw this old servant buried with Christ. I will be in this section about a week.

I desire to commend Brother Elam's article in the Gospel Advocate of March 10, entitled, "Brother Srygley's Most Logical, Most Eloquent, and Most Powerful Sermon." It proves that we ean suffer for Christ, and sets such a wonderful example for the church today. We need this lesson. I wish this article could be read by every member of the church. I am glad to hear that Brother Srygley is able to return to his duties as teacher and preacher. May he and Brother Elam live long and continue to give us strong gospel lessons by pen and month! M. Grow your crops at less cost

Many farmers are making more profit from fifty acres properly fertilized than others are making from twice as many acres without fertilizer.

It costs no more for preparation of land, seed and seeding, ground and rental interest on an acre of land yielding 80 bushels of best corn or a bale of best grade cotton than for one yielding half as much of poor quality.

One sure way of growing crops at less cost is to secure more yield per acre and per man. This you can do by using Swift's Red Steer Fertilizers.

The extra bushels or pounds produced per acre by Swift's Red Steer Fertilizers are the ones that add greatly to your profit. Only the cost of fertilizer can be charged against this extra yield.

Edifying as the Need May Be Leaving Out the Conditions.

To make his message complete, every man who professes to be a teacher of the truth, a preacher of righteousness, a proclaimer of the gospel, should include in his story of God's love the conditions of acceptance. Many preachers are content with preaching only part of the gospel without telling poor dying sinners all that they must do in order to be saved. Consequently the message is not full. It is not complete because it does not explain the way into the spiritual kingdom of Jesus Christ. It is a noticable and lamentable fact that the condition which is most often omitted by the great evangelists of this country is that which Jesus Christ himself names as the very door to his kingdom. Dwight L. Moody is reported to have said in the very height of his career as a preacher: "I would rather lose my arm than preach on baptism." If that be true, God only knows how many thousands of people he led to the door of the kingdom and then left them to die. God only knows in how many minds he created the impression that this divine institution, ordained of Jesus Christ himself, was unimportant. One may read in the public prints of a great mine that is being developed and which is soon to be opened. In flaming headlines he may read of the great opportunity for the small investor, but because he has not enough money for a single share the announcement does him no good. Once I looked through a telescope at the stars, and instantly the thought came: "How wonderful, but how far away!" So is it with those who speak in eloquent tones of God's love and neglect to tell the New Testament conditions of salvation. It is pointing out a great mine to the alien sinner without furnishing the means for a single share. It is making Jesus Christ a hidden mystery where he ought to be a living reality. It is making his gospel an idle dream where it ought to be a glorious and tangible truth. The gift of teaching or preaching comes from God, and we ought to remember that genuine thankfulness proves itself by a grateful and righteous administration of the gift. Is the Giver forgotten in the enjoyment of the blessing? Is the Giver mocked by some merely formal expression of thanks, or is the Giver glorified by our sincere appreciation as expressed in our Christian conduct?

Ingratitude's Deadening Influence.

We cannot fail to notice the corresponding reflexive effects of gratitude, false or true, upon the beneficiary. The deadening influence of ingratitude is not described in the story of the nine ingrates, but in the letter to the Romans it is indicated as the path to heathenism. (See Rom, 1: 21.) The cheap formality of the Pharisee made his gifts the sacrament of unholy pride and vitiated his prayer; but the genuine gratitude of the Samaritan begot a faith in Jesus, which, in spite of racial differences, led a grateful alien to a knowledge of the gospel. Let us learn the lesson that God's gifts are not only revelations of his love, but every one of them is intended to be educational in developing the best possibilities that lie within us. The true use of them approves us before men as Christians more than anything else in the world. The grateful heart approaches the Giver through the exercise of its gift, and thereby makes possible that receptivity which is the chief condition for the bestowment of still greater blessings.

Gratitude Unrestrained.

When the Caliph Haroun had put to death his vizier Bermekee, he ordered that none should speak in praise of the latter under pain of death. But, despite the warning, one old Arab continued to declare the merits of the late minister. Summoned into the presence of the king and being asked why he dared to transgress, the old man replied: "I should have been a monster of ingratitude had I not," Then he related how the dead man had raised him from a condition of poverty and obscurity to position and influence. The king, struck with the fidelity and courage of the man and desiring to gain his confidence for himself by more splendid generosity, presented him with his golden scepter. "I take it," said the grateful but undaunted Arab; "but this also, Commander of the Faithful, is from Bermekee," Gratitude will endure much to express itself.

If Christian people would only remember that every good thing they receive in this world, whether from heaven direct or through the instrumentality of men, comes from the Father, "with whom there is no variableness, neither shadow of turning," their hearts would flow to him and their gratitude would be supreme. It would be greater and more enduring than Jacob's piñow, greater than Joshua's twelve stones at Gilgal, finer than Israel's pot of manna and Aaron's rod which budded, higher than the Ebenezer altar, and more precious than David's sword.

Our humble Christian service would then become the living monument of our gratitude, declaring the Father's love and shouting the Father's praise.

Bring the Good Old Bible.

BY FLAVIL HALL,

(Inspired by my wife's love for Bible reading with her loved ones and friends. Sing to the tune, "Marching Through Georgia," and forget the unpleasant memories the original words awaken in the hearts of many.)

Bring the good old Bible, dear, we'll read its pages fair— Read them with a will to know the message that they bear Of the Christ who died and rose to save us from despair And make us happy forever.

CHORUS:

O bring the Bible, guide for age and youth— The golden pages of eternal truth; 'Tis the light of life to those in Christ who walk by faith Till face to face they behold him,

Bring the Bible, children dear, and read it by my side—Read It in the morn of life, at noon and eventide;
By its teaching, live, and Jesus will with you abide Till sinks the sun in the evening.

Bring the good old Bible, boys, it is the Spirit's sword For defense and offense 'gainst Apollyon's darksome horde; With it in our hearts, the foe can't strike against the goad, In all attempts he'll be vanquished.

Bring the good old Bible, dear, we'll read its pages true— Read it prayerfully the Master's holy will to do, And the way to glory ever faithfully pursue, While o'er us beams heaven's sunlight.

Bring the dear old Bible, friends, its promises are sweet, Shedding sunlight in the trials dark with which we meet, Pointing to the sinless home where joys shall be complete, For we shall be with Jehovah.

In life's springtime, summer, autumn, and the winter gray, We the Living Oracles within our hearts shall lay,
That we may not sin and from the Rock of Ages stray,
But faithful be all our journey.

The Power of Meekness.

"Blessed are the meek; for they shall inherit the earth." Just that which they do not care to do; just that which they anxiously shun and sedulously forego; but they cannot help it. "Meekness" is power-power with men, and power from God. You all remember the description of the great lawgiver of Israel. "Now the man Moses was very meek, above all the men which were upon the face of the earth." Very meek; and yet who was ever so powerful? Who else ever wrote his work upon fifteen centuries with his will, and more than fifteen beyond without it? Who ever stamped the earth like him with the impress of his mission and of his legation? It is so still. The proud man may overbear some opposition, overawe some threatening, carry some weight, for a lifetime; yet the greatest works of all, the alone enduring works below, have been wrought by the meek, and they have been loved even while they conquered. In the end they only shall be remembered. Statesmen, generals, kings, are but for a lifetime; the men of selfdenial, of self-forgetfulness, of determined and absolute self-victory for the sake of others, they, they alone, are forever! They have walked in their Master's steps; they shall sit down with him in his throne. And this likeness to Christ can be acquired only by converse with him and by communion. "We shall be like him," John says, "for we shall see him as he is."-C. J. Vaughan.

Be Afraid, and Be Not Afraid.

BY W. H. CARTER.

Does the Bible teach us to fear God and, at the same time, to be not afraid of him? It certainly does; but it depends upon the standpoint from which we view the question or the relation we sustain to him. God is represented as being great and terrible, and then again as being a God of love, mercy, truth, justice, and full of compassion. When we behold him as a God of terrible vengeance, punishing the wicked and disobedient, he is, above all, to be feared, for he has the power to destroy both soul and body in hell. (Matt. 10: 28.) But when we look upon him as a kind, loving, and merciful Father, and ourselves as his obedient children, then, instead of being afraid, we may draw near in full assurance of faith, trusting him for protection in every time of need. There is no reason why the faithful, loving, obedient child of God should be afraid. Like David, they can say: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me." (Ps. 23: 4.) Are we not told that he will withhold no good thing from them that walk uprightly? Some years ago I knew an afflicted little girl. Every night she would call: "Mamma, are you asleep?" Her mother would answer: "No, Florence, I am not asleep." Then the little one would say: "Don't go to sleep; I am afraid." One beautiful Lord's-day morning her father came to me and said: "Florence wants to make the confession and be baptized to-day." That evening we went out to a beautiful pool, and she was baptized; and that night, after they had retired, she called her mother and said: "Mamma, you can go to sleep, for I am not afraid now." "There is no fear in love; but perfect love casteth out fear: because fear hath torment. He that feareth is not made perfect in love." (1 John 4: 18.)

Surely no harm can come to the faithful child of God. The thing for him to fear is that he may be led by Satan, through some pretended but seductive friend, to wander in disobedience to God, to grow weak in faith, careless in action, and indifferent in speech. While to the faithful he is full of loving sympathy and compassionate forbearance, to the unfaithful, untrue, and disobedient he is a consuming fire. When we are living and doing, sacrificing, pleading, praying, and trusting, there should be no fear in the heart. But those who "say and do not," those who neither pray nor sacrifice, those who "walk after the flesh" to gratify its lusts, while others are sacrificing and toiling for the glory of God-these are the ones who should be afraid; and, if they have been enlightened by the Spirit through his teaching, how can they help but fear? Listen: "But unto them that are contentious, and do not obey the truth, but obey unrighteousness, [he will render] indignation and wrath, tribulation and anguish, upon every soul of man that doeth evil, of the Jew first, and also of the Gentile." (Rom. 2: 8, 9.) Again hear the Lord as he speaks: "Therefore we ought to give the more earnest heed to the things which we have heard, lest at any time we should let them slip. For if the word spoken by angels was steadfast, and every transgression and disobedience received a just recompense of reward; how shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation?" (See Heb. 2: 1-4.)

Do you ever think of how neglectful we are? There are certain regular duties we are to perform. They come every week, and the Lord knows how faithful or unfaithful we are in attending to them. We are told not to forsake "the assembling of ourselves together, as the manner of some is." (Heb. 10: 25.) The disciples had a time of assembling, and were told not to forsake it. The disciples came together upon the first day of the week to break bread. (Acts 20: 7.) The question is not whether we can see the necessity for it or the good in it: but, do we "walk by faith," and obey the Lord by doing what he says? The one who reverently does this will get good out of it, and will be a blessing to others by showing that his faith is strong enough to lead him to be and do what he professes. The world is not blind. They know the true and false. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked; for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth to his flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth to the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap life everlasting." (Gal. 6: 7, 8.) Here are two classes in the church. Which class have you put yourself in? One of these classes need have no fear; but of the other Paul says there is "a certain fearful looking for of judgment and flery indignation. which shall devour the adversaries." (Heb. 10: 27.)

Here is another thing that sounds very plain to me. "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I have given order to the churches of Galatia, even so do ye. Upon the first day of the week let every one of you lay by him in store, as God hath prospered him, that there be no gatherings when I come." (1 Cor. 16: 1, 2,) How many of us do this? How many do not "lay by" at all? How many lay by "as God prospers" them? Is the way we do obedience or disobedience? What will be our reward in the end? But some will say: "I am not able," Why are you not able? "O," you say, "it costs so much to live now." Well, have you thought about cutting out unnecessary expenses and making some sacrifice for Christ? How much do you spend for gasoline to take pleasure rides? How much do you spend with picture shows, theaters, and such things? After having given your money to such things, and knowing you give little, if any, to Christ, have you no fear of the judgment? Don't try to console yourself by saying, "It is none of your business!" That is Satan's prompting. He wants to keep you from doing your duty. Yes, It is my business to warn you and try to save

Some are giving a great deal for charitable purposes; at least, they claim they are. But they are not doing as God says, and, therefore, are not acting in faith, and thus honoring and glorifying God. "Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages." (Eph. 3: 21.) "And whatsoever ye do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father by him." (Col. 3: 17.) The most ungrateful thing I have met is a man who gives nothing to the church, but does give to other institutions, and then praises them and condemns the church; yet he claims, or pretends, to be a Christian. "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God "-that is, it will be fearful to those of us who are not living as God directs. Brethren, sisters, there is much work to be done; will we arise and get at it? Don't be afraid to do God's will, but be afraid not to do it.

What the Cross Reveals.

BY FRANK L. COX.

The crucifixion was a manner of punishment inflicted on lawbreakers. It was used by the ancient Persians, Egyptians, Romans, and others. It is thought that the Jews never used this mode of punishment, except in the part they acted in the murder of our Lord. Because the cross was reserved for criminals it was looked upon with shame, and he who died upon it died a shameful death.

But, why was Jesus crucified? Was it because he had violated some law? Was it because he was an evildoer? He had violated no law, civil or religious. No man found fault with his life. Never was a man crucified for the same purpose. Firstly, he was crucified because it was a moral necessity. God had in mind the restoration of the human race, and, in order to bring this purpose about, it was necessary for Christ to die. (Luke 24: 46, 47; Heb. 9: 22) Jesus said: "This commandment [the commandment to lay down his life] have I received of my Father." Secondly, he was crucified in response to the demands of the Jews, who cried out in murderous tones: "Crucify him!" crucify him!" God's purpose was a righteous one, while that of the Jews was evil.

When viewed from every angle, the crucifizion of Christ reveals many truths. The following are some of those truths:

- 1. It reveals God's interest in man. He was so interested in our welfare that he made the sacrifice of his dearest possession. (John 3: 16.) The Father has proven himself far more interested in us than we are in ourselves. So very few of us are willing to sacrifice for our personal welfare.
- 2. It reveals the guilt of the world. The Bible tells us that "Christ died for our sins" and that "Christ died for the ungodly." Had we not been guilty, Christ would never have died for us. He died for each individual; hence, each individual must have been guilty. Every time we think of the blood of Christ shed on Calvary, we are led to think of the guilt of man.
- 3. It reveals the spirit or character of Christ. Character is best revealed in the time of extreme suffering. So, in the agony and death of our Savior we have, if possible, the clearest picture of his noble character. Here are some traits of his character manifested in his suffering: (a) The spirit of patience. A murmur was never heard from his lips. He wore a crown of thorns, carried a heavy cross, experienced the spikes in his hands and feet, and, possibly what hurt him more than all, felt the sting of an ungrateful world; yet "he opened not his mouth" in complaint. (b) His love for man. (Rom. 5: 7, 8.) To die for those who love you is great love. This the Savior did when he died for the disciples and the "beloved disciple" who many times reposed on his Master's breast. To die for those indifferent to you is greater love. More love is required for this. This Jesus did when he died for Pilate and thousands of others who did not and do not have the courage to confess him and face a critical world. But to die for those who hate you is the greatest love. This Jesus did when he died for the unthankful Judas who betrayed him with a kiss, the Jews who delivered him, and the Romans who pierced his side. (c) His willingness to obey. Many are willing to obey when no sacrifice is required; but when a sacrifice is demanded, the obedient ones are few. Jesus, with a willing heart, yielded up his life in obedience to God. "He became obedient unto death." This represents perfect obedience. (d) His humility. "He humbled himself, and became obedient unto death, even the death of the cross." The cross was covered with shame, yet he hesitated not to die upon it when he saw what such a death would mean to the world. (e) The spirit of forgiveness. While looking down from the cross upon those who had nailed him there, he lifted his eyes toward heaven and said: "Father, fergive them; for they know not what they do."
- 4. The cross reveals the spirit of the world, both during the earth-life of Christ and the present time. The following are some of the outstanding characteristics seen: (a) The spirit of pride. Had Jesus appeared unto the Jews with the pride and arrogance of a Casar, an Alexander, or a Napoleon, they would gladly have submitted unto his reign. But because he came in meekness, humility, and without show, they rejected him; and rather than have Jesus to be their King, they put him to death. Pride murdered him. Are you, dear reader, too proud to follow the plain teachings of Jesus? Remember that it was the spirit of pride that crucified our Lord. (b) The spirit of cowardice. Pilate, and many others, no doubt, desired to release him, but did not have the courage and strength to stand face to face with criticism and assert their power and influence for him. Are you, dear reader, ashamed to confess Christ before men? Are you afraid to follow him through life? That is the spirit which allowed our Savior to be nailed to the cross. (c) The spirit of murder. The Jews were bent on killing him. Nothing would satisfy their cruel hearts but murder. Do you, dear brother or sister, have hatred in your hearts? That is the spirit that brought forth the cry: "Crucify him! crucify him!" That was the spirit which pierced his hands, feet, and body. Had Christ delayed his coming to earth until the present time, I believe he would meet the same treatment at the hands of men. But why do I say this? Because the same spirit exists now that existed then. Because the spirit of pride, cowardice, and murder are in the world and are manifesting themselves on every hand.

5. The crucifixion of Jesus reveals the value of a soul, Humanly speaking, we judge the value of a thing by the price that is paid for it. The price is, or should be, proportionate to the value of an object. The greatest price to be imagined-namely, the life of the Son of God-was paid for our souls. God gave the dearest thing to his heart; yet he gave no more than souls are worth. I believe that if our souls could have been purchased for less, less would have been given for them. A soul is worth more than all earthly things combined. (Matt. 16: 26.) Jesus had a chance to die for wealth, but he passed that chance by; he had a chance to die for his country, but he passed that chance by; he had an opportunity to die for his enslaved people, thus relieving them of the yoke of bondage and bringing political liberty, but he passed that opportunity by. A soul was the only thing he saw fit to die for, and he chose to die for that. What an estimate heaven has placed on our souls! If you and I would place onehalf that estimate on our own souls, our moments would be spent with more care.

Salvation by Faith. No. 2.

BY W. L. BEEVES.

The Scriptures reveal God's will to man, in which will is made known a perfect law of liberty. (James 1: 25.) They testify of Christ, hence reveal the teachings of Christ. (John 5: 39.) Man must abide in the teachings of Christ; for if he does not, he hath not God. (2 John 1: 9-11.) If man takes from Christ's teachings, his part shall be taken out of the book of life, out of the holy city. (Rev. 22: 19.) From this it follows that man should be very careful not to leave out any requirements connected with salvation by faith; neither should he add to what is said on the subject. If he adds just the little word "alone," he does violence to the whole plan of salvation.

In the fifth chapter of Romans it is said, "Therefore being justified by faith;" but, notice, it does not say we are justified by "faith alone," nor by "faith only." But it certainly does mean that we are justified by all things that pertain unto faith. It includes the law of Christ, which is called "the law of faith." (Rom. 3: 27.) It includes the blood of Christ (Rom. 5: 9), and both the death and life of Christ (verse 10). And it includes grace; for Paul says, "For by grace are ye saved through faith" (Eph. 2: 8), thus connecting grace and faith, as he does every other item in the whole plan of salvation in these words: "For whatsoever is not of faith is sin" (Rom. 14: 23). "But without faith it is impossible to please him." (Heb. 11: 6.) All of these different things to which salvation is ascribed, and by each of which the Bible says we are justified, are things pertaining to, and are embraced in, the faith which justifies. Look at it this way: Obedience to Christ's commands is of faith. In fact, faith is dead without obedience. James (2: 20) says it is. It takes both the facts and commandments to constitute a living faith—a faith that justifies. Because this is true, James (2: 24) says: "Ye see then how that by works a man is justified, and not by faith only." When it is stated in the Scriptures that man is saved by faith, justified by faith, every other requirement that Christ and the apostles have mentioned in connection with and prior to salvation from alien sins is included in the expression, "justified by faith." If such were not the case, there is no way to reconcile or harmonize the sayings of the Bible; for if an alien is saved from sin at faith only, then repentance and confession are not necessary, and neither is baptism.

Paul said to the jailer: "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved, and thy house." (Acts 16: 31.) But to believe on Christ is to believe what he said. No man truly believes on Christ who does not believe what he said. The jailer was required to do this, for the very next verse says: "And they spake unto him the word of the Lord, and to all that were in his house." And the word of the Lord says: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.) After doing this the jailer "took them the same hour of the night, and washed their stripes; and was baptized, he and all his, straightway." (Acts 16: 33.) Thus it is clear that Paul told the jailer what Christ had said on baptism, and he gladly did it; and it certainly is true that he was baptized with a view to the promise Christ made, which is salvation from sin. Hence, the word of the Lord, when spoken to the jailer by Paul, brought to him what was involved in his question, "What must I do to be saved?" It brought salvation to him on the terms of the word of the Lord, which read thus: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.) Suppose the jailer had told Paul he did not believe these words; would his faith have been such as pleases God? It certainly would not; for "faith without works is dead." (James 2: 24.) If the expression, "Believe on the Lord Jesus Christ, and thou shalt be saved," excludes baptism because it is not mentioned, it also excludes repentance, for that is not mentioned. But some will say that repentance is plainly commanded elsewhere. Yes, that is true; and in the very same verse baptism is also commanded. Here it is: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you . . . for the remission of sins." (Acts 2: 38.) I now ask if there is a man who would say that Paul requires men to do less than Christ and Peter required? No; and to preach the whole counsel of God on justification by faith, or salvation by faith, every preacher should preach all that all of the apostles taught on that vital subject; then all, both preacher and the people, will vital subject: then all, both preacher and people, will be safe. There is no other safe way in this sacred matter.

Repentance.

BY HERBERT L. SHOOK,

Weep, my soul! What joy hast thou, Engulfed in seas of fears? Weep, aye, weep! Thy only hope Shall be in shedding tears.

Weep, O soul, for thou hast sinned, Hast been to God untrue; Weep, and yet again must thou, As heaven weepeth dew.

Weep, nor heed the comforts vain— Thou canst be reconciled; Weep, yea, weep! Thou must repent. Else thou art not God's child.

"Love of the Truth."

In 2 Thess. 2: 10, Paul speaks of those who "received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved." It would be well for each one who claims to be a disciple of Christ to search his own heart and learn of a certainty if he is really in love with the truth. David exclaims: "How sweet are thy words unto my taste! Yea, sweeter than honey to my mouth." Do you, my brother, have such an appreciation of God's truth? Again, David says: "I love thy commandments above gold, yea, above fine gold." Do we, each of us, kind reader, so prize and esteem Jehovah's word?

But it might be asked: "Why did David so love and esteem Jehovah's word?" He declares that it was because that through Jehovah's teaching he got understanding; he learned how to live and feel about things of importance to the welfare of his soul.

But the question often comes to me: Are we not oftentimes mistaken when we allow ourselves to think we are in love with the truth? Is there not such a thing as our naturally liking something that the truth teaches just because it is our nature to like it, and hence, is not the love we think we have for this truth, when truthfully spoken of, love for self and not love for the truth? That I may be better understood, may I now ask if the Bible does not teach us to be humble, to wear modest apparel, and to steer clear of what might be called the pride of this world? It seems to me it teaches this. But is there not such a thing as my naturally liking such teaching because of my inclination to be slovenly and untidy? Is there not danger, when this is my inclination, of deceiving myself into the idea that I am in love with God's truth on the subject of dress, when the fact is, I am only in love with self, and take all the scriptures on the subject of dress, etc., just because it suits me? Now I think I have seen preachers and other members of the church who had deceived themselves into the idea that they were in love with the truth on this and other subjects when they were not.

But some one asks: "Why do you so judge?" It would be well to state here that we must go slow when it comes to judging, and I try not to judge any soul. But it certainly is no wrong in me when I state that at times I am led to wonder about the sincerity of the claims of some men. If they do things that make me doubt their sincerity, most certainly I am not to be blamed for this. I am constrained, therefore, to ask a further question,

Who Really Loves the Truth?

I am sure that I am correct when I say that the man who really is in love with any part of God's truth is in love with all of it. This way some have of taking a part of the truth and, seemingly, loving it desperately, and at the same time trampling underfoot other truths just as plain and simple, makes a bad impression.

1. The Bible is very plain on the subject of brotherly love; and I think some have made themselves believe they are in love with the truth on this subject when such is not the case. Too often this brotherly love with them goes no further than to be exercised toward the members in the church whom they naturally like, when there are other members in the church whom they really hate. If we are indeed in love with the truth, our hearts gladly go anywhere and everywhere the truth leads. When I see any one laying claim to much brotherly love, I watch his conduct toward his enemies; for the same truth that teaches me to love a brother, teaches me also to love my enemies. And if I am in love with the truth, I will do the latter and more difficult thing for the truth's sake. (See Luke 6: 32-35.)

2. Some seem to be desperately in love with the truths taught in prophecy and on the second coming of Christ. I think I love them all, and would allow no man to hinder me in studying each and every word of God in prophecy and about the second coming of Christ; but the Bible says something about, "Thou shalt not bear false witness against thy neighbor." Hence, when I notice those who seem to be so desperately in love with the truths on unfulfilled prophecy and the teaching of the Bible on the second coming of Christ seemingly hopelessly incapable of stating the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth, about those with whom they differ on such subjects, I wonder if they really love the truth. And the same is true with both sides of this question, and of all other questions over which brethren may differ. I believe love for the truth compels us to respect it wherever found.

3. I think I have seen preachers who seemed to be desperately in love with the law of pardon to allens. It seemed that they would die rather than compromise one lota of it. But when I observe the little effort they make to teach it to the people, I wonder if they are not mistaken when they say they love God's law of pardon to allens.

Love for the Truth Rights All Wrongs.

Love for the truth would right all of our wrongs and settle all of our troubles. It absolutely forbids our becoming such monstrosities as seemingly have the very heart and soul of humility, modesty, and sacrifice and service, and at the same time tower high in egotism, self-will, and stubbornness. When love for the truth rules and reigns in our lives, we will cease to find the most outstanding examples of stubbornness in those who make the greatest claims to humility; we will cease to find giants in backbiting, scheming, and unbrotherly hatred in those who have the most to say about brotherly kindness and the law of love.

Study it as long and as much as you please, the man who really is in love with any part of the truth for the truth's sake is in love with all the truth on all questions. and will let the truth govern, rule, and reign in his life. He may not know all truth. But so soon as the truth is shown him, he at once accepts it, and lets it right him if he is wrong or out of harmony with it. Is this true? If it is-and who will say it is not?-then let us all pray for the members of the church of Christ everywhere to have established in their hearts a genuine love for God's truth. Soon our work will end, and before the judgment we will be called, and this very truth about which I have tried to write will be our judge. If we have really loved it, what have we to fear? If we have not loved it, we had better never been born. ***** * * *

Bits of News.

At this writing I am in the home of Brother E. M. Borden, of Riverside, Cal., helping him as best I can in a revival. Brother James Morgan, one of our song leaders, is with me, helping with the song service. It was my intention to be with him the first week of the revival; but the death of Sister Wilmeth in Los Angeles forbade this. The revival was one week old when I get here, and he had already baptized four, and twelve who had formerly been baptized had cast their lot with the local forces. There have been two more confessions and one by statement since I came. This congregation is taking on new life, and it is due to the untiring efforts of Brother Borden.

Last Lord's-day morning (March 20) was a great time for our Los Angeles forces. We had a full house, and nine more souls were added to our number. Two of these were from the Christian Church, one from the Nazarenes, and the others were members from other sections who have moved to our city. A campaign was also started to raise differen hundred or two thousand dollars to do some needed improvement on our house of worship. I did not learn the amount raised, as I had to hurry to my machine so soon as the services closed, for a sixty-mile run to Riverside for the three-o'clock service in the afternoon, which I made in two hours, having a few minutes' rest before the service began.

The Lord willing, Brother Riggs and I will start a hard pull for better and greater things at Downey next Lord'sday evening.

Think, Speak, and Live.

BY F. C. SOWELL.

THINK.

Men are responsible for their thoughts; therefore, too much care cannot be taken with the issues of the heart.

Every man should be subject to God's thoughts, or his life will be a failure. "My thoughts are not your thoughts, neither are your ways my ways, saith the Lord. For as the heavens are higher than the earth, so are my ways higher than your ways, and my thoughts than your thoughts." (Isa. 55: 8, 9.) If we meet the approbation of Jehovah and prove a benediction to the world, we must bow in humble submission to his ruling.

John the Baptist said to the Pharisees and Sadducees: "Think not to say within yourselves, We have Abraham to our father: for I say unto you, that God is able of these stones to raise up children unto Abraham."

"There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death," (Solomon,)

The heart should be a receptacle for the purities that flow from heaven, from the inexhaustible store of the goodness of Jelovah.

God loves pure men and women, and they are made pure by believing his word. "And he put no difference between them and us, purifying their hearts by faith."

When the thought is evil, God requires the person who is guilty to repent, as well as to repent of an overt act. He looks on the inward man of the heart, and his eye is open and naked unto the thoughts and acts of men.

When Simon thought he could purchase the gift of the Holy Spirit with money, Peter told him to repent of the thought of his heart, "and pray the Lord, if perhaps the thought of thy heart shall be forgiven thee."

In our living we should realize that God is ever watching us; and it is he whom we should fear, love, and serve.

"Finally brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." (Phil. 4: 8.)

SPEAK.

A Christian is expected to speak kindly and tenderly, and his speech to be seasoned with salt. Much has to do with our manner of speech. Rash, harsh, crabbed speaking drives away friendship and love. Man's disposition is prone to respond to kind and pleasant manners. "He that would love life, and see good days, let him refrain his tongue from evil, and his lips that they speak no guile; and let him turn away from evil, and do good."

Our aim should be to do all the good we can, and as little harm as possible. The heart is easily bruised; and if we do not use our speech with care, we may pierce it and give a deep wound.

"But let every man be swift to hear, slow to speak, slow to wrath: for the wrath of man worketh not the righteonsness of God." (James 1: 19.) God did not give man a tongue with which to curse his fellow man, but to speak to edification and to help humanity. "A word fitly spoken is like apples of gold in pictures of silver." A pleasant word from a warm heart of love has started many young men to the goal.

There should be a uniform speech among brethren. Those who dwell in Christ have his spirit.

"Now I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgment." (1 Cor. 1: 10.)

LIVE.

The Bible not only tells us how to think and speak, but also how to live. The world is watching us to see how we live: and it sees us when we are not aware of the fact.

Paul said: "Ye are our epistle, written in our hearts, known and read of all men."

Jesus is our perfect model; and to grow more and more like him, we must let him be our guiding star to lead us over the high and holy way into the immortal and perfected state.

The most beautiful life, and that which gives most happiness, can be had by heeding the following scriptures: "For the grace of God hath appeared, bringing salvation to all men, instructing us, to the intent that, denying ungodliness and worldly lusts, we should live soberly and right-eously and godly in this present world; looking for the blessed hope and appearing of the glory of our great God and Savior Jesus Christ." (Tit. 2: 11-13.)

Let us think righteously, speak kindly, live uprightly, do good unto all men, and give our best to the Lord. Such a life will give hope of eternal life.

What a happy thought when we all get home at last, when we can enjoy the mansions in our Father's home!

Contributors to Responsibility.

Responsibilities are the makers of men. A man is strong in proportion to the greatness of the responsibilities he has faithfully met. And responsibilities are great or small in keeping with the things of which they are made.

1. Knowledge contributes materially to one's responsibilities. "If I had not come and spoken unto them, they had not had sin; but now they have no excuse for their sin." (John 15: 22.) Jesus had spoken as man had never spoken before. He brought the Jews new light; and with the light came new obligations and responsibilities which they would not have had, if he had not come with his revelation. A man may do wrong ignorantly; but when he is told what is right, there can be no excuse for the repetition of the wrong. "To him therefore that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." (James 4: 17.) One may live as best he knows and yet sin (1 Cor. 4: 4); but he who fails to live up to the full measure of his knowledge certainly sins. Fearful are the responsibilities of him who knows the truth! "That servant, who knew his lord's will, and made not ready, nor did according to his will, shall be beaten with many stripes; but he that knew not, and did things worthy of stripes, shall be beaten with few stripes. And to whomsoever much is given, of him shall much be required: and to whom they commit much, of him will they ask the more." (Luke 12: 47, 48.) Our Lord is not putting a premium on ignorance, but, rather, is stressing the responsibilities of a superior knowledge. He does not encourage willful ignorance; he condemns it. (2 Pet, 3: 5.) Doubtless leniency will be shown him who "knew not"-not merely because he "knew not," but because he had no opportunity to know "his Lord's will." This, however, does not furnish us any comfort when we fail to do what we know is right; nor does it give us any incentive to neglect the study of God's word, if haply our responsibility may be diminished by our deliberate and studied ignorance.

With knowledge there comes also the obligation to teach, to impart that knowledge. "When I say unto the wicked. O wicked man, thou shalt surely die, and thou dost not speak to warn the wicked from his way; that wicked man shall die in his iniquity, but his blood will I require at thy hand. Nevertheless, if thou warn the wicked of his way to turn from it, and he turn not from his way; he shall die in his iniquity, but thou hast delivered thy soul." (Ezek. 33: 8, 9.) The heathen of this generation—at whose hands will their blood be required?

2. Opportunity precedes responsibility and contributes liberally to it. With every new opportunity comes an additional responsibility. The Jews, as a nation, were held accountable for more than the Gentiles, because they had greater privileges than the Gentiles. Theirs were "the adoption, and the glory, and the covenants, and the giving of the law, and the service of God, and the promises" (Rom. 9; 4); and "they were intrusted with the oracles of God" (Rom. 3: 2). Our Savier once sald to his countrymen: "And thou, Capernaum, shalt thou be exalted unto heaven? thou shalt go down unto Hades: for if the mighty works had been done in Sodom which were done in thee, it would have remained until this day. But I say unto you that it shall be more tolerable for the land of Sodom in the day of judgment, than for thee." (Matt. 11: 23, 24.) The people of Capernaum had bigger opportunities than those which, when rejected, doomed the inhabitants of Sodom. Christ dwelt in Capernaum, and that was a great privilege for its people; but they received him not, and his coming gave them the occasion to heap a greater condemnation upon themselves. But not only to Jews, but also to Gentiles, did Jesus bring the opportunity of all opportunities-salvation-which, if rejected, entails the responsibility of all responsibilities. It would be better for a man never to have been born than to have lived without receiving Christ.

Along with the opportunity of receiving Christ comes that of preaching Christ. God said to Abraham: "I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and be thou a blessing." (Gen. 12: 2.) Christ has illuminated his people, and they must let their lights shine. (Matt. 5: 14, 15.) The opportunities for proclaiming the gospel were never more glorious than now. The need is urgent. To the remote nooks and corners of our own country, to the far-away continents of the earth, and to the lonely isles of the sea, the beckoning hand and pleading voice of the Macedonian are calling us. Still we remain in comparative inactivity, or shall we respond in the words of the enrapt prophet: "Here am I; send me?" (Isa. 6: 8.)

Finally, this is not a desirable country, nor is it a desirable age, from which to be lost. The opportunities are too great. How awful the consequences, if lost!

Book Reviews.

"Twenty-five Best Sermons" is the title of a volume by Arthur Talmage Abernathy. The book contains three hundred and sixty-seven pages of matter divided into short chapters, in which the author treats each subject with an appropriate passage of scripture as a text or starting point. The author's language is vigorous, pointed, and abounds inapt Illustrations. He Informs the reader that he was at one time a Methodist: and as to what he is now religiously, I confess my inability to ascertain from his book of sermons. His use of the term "Christian" indicates a broader view than is warranted by the New Testament. There are plainly evidences of some fundamental errors of Methodism in the book. For instance, the author represents Paul as teaching that the human family was "by nature utterly depraved." This is the old doctrine of "inbred" or transmitted Adamic sin, not one word of which is taught in the Bible. When Paul said, "We all were by nature the children of wrath," he simply meant by the word "nature," practice. They became the children of wrath by the practice of sin, and not by the inheritance of sin. The learned Macknight says of Eph. 2: 2: "In the passage under consideration, nature is that second, corrupt, dead nature, which men form in themselves by habitually indulging vicious inclinations; for the apostle speaks of men's being 'by nature children of wrath' as the effect of having their conversation [manner of life.- En.] in the lusts of the flesh." Another such use of the word "nature" is found in this passage: "Doth not even nature itself teach you, that, if a man have long hair, it is a shame unto him?" (1 Cor. 11: 14.) The law of nature will cause a man's hair to become long; but custom, or practice, the meaning of nature here, should teach men it is a shame to have long hair. The author evidently fails to establish the "tithing system" as the law on Christian giving. says, "The olden tithe law was never revealed," and gives this as proof: "Christ plainly sanctioned it when he praised Zaccheus' 'gift of one-half of his goods,' and in the poor woman who 'gave all her living.'" Both of these cases go much beyond the tithe; but if they had plainly stated the tithe as the gift, it would not prove it to be the law for Christians; for all this occurred under the law of Moses, of which the tithing system was a part. The law had not yet been abolished in the death of Christ. At another place the author correctly states the law on the subject of Christian giving-viz.: "The scriptural plan makes plain what each church member is to subscribe to the work of the kingdom-'as God hath prospered him." Exactly so. That is the only law on the subject as to the amount a Christian should give, and men are simply wasting their time in trying to establish a fixed or specified amount one is to put into the treasury. These are a few of the features of the book which seem to me to be out of harmony with the Bible. Many others could be mentioned. But there are so many good things in the book-information both helpful and inspiring-that it will pay one to read and study it. Mr. Talmage has been an extensive reader and has visited many countries and places of interest, all of which he has coined into the printed page. His style is fascinating, original, and free from many of the objectionable features found in much of the presentday literature. The book is well bound, good print, and may be had by writing to the Standard Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio. Price, $2.

In true worship, the soul of man can have but one attitude toward material things, and that an unselfish and beneficent one growing out of a desire to gather up those material things in one grand, supreme oblation to God in worship.—Henry Lowndes Drew.

- W. T. Hines writes: "I am in a good meeting at Wynn Chapel, Oklahoma. Meeting one week old, and good interest to date. I will conduct meetings this summer and fall. If my service is wanted, write me at Braman, Okla."
- J. W. Grant was with the brethren at Eagleville, Tenn., last Lord's day, after an absence of more than two years. Some were missing, some were reported absent; but quite a number were in their places, and faithful to the work of the Lord.

A sister, renewing her subscription to the Gospel Advocate, and that of another sister at the same time, says: "I certainly do love the Advocate and all of its workers. I want to have it come into my home always, it does us all so much good."

- H. T. King writes from McMinnville, Tenn., April 3: "Church work fine in all departments. Sunday-school enrollment now three hundred and seven; my Bible class for men, one hundred and thirty. House full of folks to-day. Three additions."
- V. E. Gregory, our efficient mail-carrier preacher, was with the little newly started band at College Grove, Tenn., last Lord's day, and preached for them morning and afterneon. He reports the prospect of a growing and useful work at that place.

We have a card from Henderson, Tenn., saying that E. A. Elam, of Lebanon, Tenn., will begin a series of meetings with the church of Christ in that town on Sunday morning, April 10. Preaching each evening at half past seven o'clock All are invited to attend these services.

- Lee West writes from Batson, Ark., March 29, as follows: "W. A. Campbell has just closed a meeting at this place. It was grand, with six baptisms and two restorations. Brother Campbell is a very able preacher. He won many friends while here and accomplished much good."
- F. J. Berry, Corpus Christi, Texas, writes to Brother McQuiddy: "We had two fine services on Lord's day. I did my best, and the brethren expressed their appreciation. I have the month of July and the last Sunday in August open, and would like to engage meetings for that time."

We were very much pleased last week to have a visit from Jesse P. Sewell, president of the Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas. He was full of life and energy, as usual, and deserves credit for the work he is doing. He is now engaged in a meeting with the church in Washington, D. C.

- M. E. Brown, of Gibtown, Texas, announces that he is just out of the schoolroom and ready to answer calls for meetings. He desires from now on to give his entire time to preaching, if he can secure the work. He gives W. D. Black as reference, saying: "He has known me ever since I was baptized."
- B. F. Hart, Petersburg, Tenn., writes: "Inclosed find a check for five dollars for the Gospel Advocate sinking fund. I think the suggestion a good one. I have started several as regular subscribers by making them a present of the Advocate." Many thanks to Brother Hart. We appreciate his interest in the Advocate.
- E. D. Martin, writing from Eagle Lake, Fla, March 30, says: "I have been busily engaged in the Master's service here since October 15. The interest has been gradually increasing until the results are visible and encouraging. I solicit the prayers and fellowship of the entire brotherhood, that I may grow more useful as I grow older in this great work."

Married, at Glasgow, Ky., March 27, W. M. Totty and Sister Maye Johnson, R. C. White saying the ceremony that made them one. Brother Totty is an elder in the Glasgow church and county superintendent of schools, and has a home in the town, to which he took his bride. Sister Maye is the daughter of George Johnson, of Coral Hill, near by, and is one of the finest Christian women the writer knows. We offer cc1 gratulations.

- J. C. Estes and wife are now ready to leave Davenport, Iowa, where they have been for some time preparing them selves for the chiropractic work. She will go to Altus, Okla., and he will be in the field looking out a suitable situation. They report the little congregation in Davenport in good condition. They regret to leave it, but can't stay longer, and go with earnest prayers for its continued growth and success. We hope Brother and Sister Estes may soon find a suitable field in which to locate and continue their work for the Lord.
- J. W. Richardson, of Cookeville, Tenn., renewing his subscription for the Gospel Advocate, under date of March 30, writes as follows: "Wife was stricken with paralysis on February 24 and is still helpless. This makes about thirty-seven years of the Advocate for me, and I cannot afford to quit. The teaching of the paper has been a great help to me. Of course some things are said in the paper that might be left out and do as well, looking from my angle; but none are perfect, so it is all right. I like the dear old Advocate, and hope it will continue to live and preach the truth; for we understand that the truth shall make us free, and free indeed, if we accept its teaching and live as God directs. Brother Cawthon is with us this week in a meeting, but I have not had the pleasure of hearing him, on account of the illness of my wife."
- D. Pennington writes from Hollywood, Cal., under date of March 30: "I am truly thankful to S. H. Hall for having the Gospel Advocate sent to me. I regard the Advocate as the best and soundest paper, as it has always been. Many years ago I was a regular subscriber to it. David Lipscomb was clear-headed and always sound in the faith. I am eighty-three years old, and it has been sixty-one years since I commenced my feeble efforts to preach Christ. Now I am old and worn out, and can hardly see to write. I feel like I would like to write a brief article for the Advocate. I am going to Downey. It was more than forty years ago that we had a good, live church in Downey, and it sent me out to evangelize, and we did a good work. In those days we were bitterly hated by the sectarians, who had both reins in their hands. May God bless the Gospel Advocate and all the workers on its staff."

C. W. Helley has some time in June, July, and August open for meetings in Texas. Write him at 110 West Theo, San Antonio, Texas.

From A. E. Walker, Sabinal, Texas, March 25: "I am giving all my time to the church work here. Prospects seem bright for a good work,"

From John Hayes, Bradentown, Fla., March 28: "The tent meeting at Manatee is entering its fourth week. Six have been baptized, and the interest continues."

From J. H. Hines, Montgomery, Ala., March 28: "House packed, interest great, and two men made the good confession yesterday. Our meeting begins next Sunday. H. Leo Boles will assist us."

From Charles F. Hardin, Springfield, Mo., April 1: "I began a meeting here on March 20 and closed it last Lord's day, for the church meeting at the corner of Turner and Ramsey Streets. There was one addition. I solemnized the marriage of Phillip C. Bowman to Lola Tedrick on Sunday."

From E. S. Parrish, Montgomery, Ala., March 27: "I am glad to report that two young men confessed their Savior on Sunday and are to be baptized. We had a record attendance in the Bible classes Sunday morning. Our meeting at the Highland Park Church will begin next Sunday. H. Leo Boles will assist us."

J. H. Boren, of Norfolk, Va., was in our office last Saturday, on his way to Logan County, Ky., where he has spent most of his life. He has been in Norfolk less than a year. He reports that he is unable to find a loyal church in that great city, though he has made diligent inquiry for one. He wants some preaching done there.

Joe L. Netherland, Miami, Fla., March 29, says: "Many of the tourists are leaving here now, yet we are having an average of about seventy-five in our midweek Bible class. House filled on Sundays. One baptized at the evening service yesterday. We are greatly in need of a larger auditorium, which I think will be supplied in the near future."

In a business card of March 31, Brother Elam writes: "The wife of S. H. Pate, a most estimable Christian woman of Lebanon, Tenn., was buried here to-day. She was seventy-eight—a Christian more than fifty years. She had been married to Brother Pate about fifty-five years, and was the mother of two children. They and Brother Pate survive her."

Porter Norris writes from Lucy, Tenn., March 29: "I have just closed a ten-days' meeting at Lock, with good crowds and splendid interest. Last Lord's day three confessed their faults and were restored. I also preach for the church at Cordova monthly. They are a loyal and faithful band of Christians. I am preaching for the Parkway church of Christ, in Memphis, once each month. This church is moving along nicely. I am also preaching for the church at Detroit, in Tipton County. There are many good Christians in this church."

E. S. Jelley writes from Jwalapur, District Saharanpur, U. P., British India, February 6: "The other day I was called over to the post office to pay the customs duties of King George on two parcels, and a day or two later I was called over again. In all, I had to pay only about four dollars duty; so we are not seriously complaining about the tariff. The articles are extremely serviceable, many of which we should simply have been compelled to do without had they not arrived. I take this means of thanking each and all of the Nashville brethren who so kindly remembered us."

J. C. Pendergrass writes from Louisville, Ky., March 31: "I came here last Monday to visit my son, H. F. Pendergrass. I preached for the F Street congregation last night. Brother Smithson preaches for them every Lord's day, and is doing a good work. I met Brethren Craig and Curtis while here. I did not get to meet Brother Kurfees. I preached at Hopkinsville on the third and fourth Lord's days. Leo Boles preaches for them, and they seem to be in a prosperous condition. I aim to be at Philippi on the first and second Lord's days in April. I will go to Tennessee to work the remainder of the year. I want to do more this year than I did last. Success to the Advocate and its many readers."

W. S. Long writes from Washington, D. C., April 2: "How glad was all the church last Lord's day to see two persons come forward and make the good confession and be buried with Christ in baptism! Jesse P. Sewell and wife, of Abilene, Texas, arrived here to-day, and will be with us in a series of meetings, beginning to-morrow. Let those who have friends here who know Brother Sewell, or whom you may interest in hearing him, please write them of the meeting. The place of worship is at Fourteanth Street and Meridian Place, N. W. (3400 block.) Take any Fourteenth car and get off in front of the building. For further information, write W. S. Long, 1319 Harvard Street, N. W., or telephone Col. 6431."

From H. H. Turner, Altus, Okla., March 21: "I have been quite busy visiting and preaching to the poor, when able to be out. Have had some sickness. Have preached at Blair, Headrick, and Humphreys, recently. I have just returned from Tipton, where they had a preachers' meeting (I was invited), and where some of our great preachers met. We had a nice time, joyful in the main. Some things were said that we all did not agree on; but we all agreed that the word of God should be the man of our counsel, and that if we would stay with the word there would not be any divisions among us. May God help us to 'speak the same thing,' 'that there be no divisions among' us. Union is God's order."

From W. L. Oliphant, Muskogee, Okla., March 18: "Last Lord's day the home church sent me to Wynona, where Brother Henley recently succeeded in getting about forty-two disciples to leave off all unscriptural practices and worship according to the teaching of God's word. The little schoolhouse where they are worshiping at present was full at the morning service. At the time for the evening service the weather was very unfavorable, but quite a number were present. Some old congregations could profit by this example. The work at home is in splendid shape. I preached last night to a good crowd, and baptized two beys who had made the good confession Sunday night under the preaching of Brother Bain. We are hoping for a good meeting in May when J. Will Henley arrives."

Frank L. Cox, Hollis, Okla., March 28, sends the following report for publication: "Since my last report to the Gospel Advocate seven souls have been added to the church of Christ here and three have placed their membership with us. Of these, five were added and one placed membership during a splendid meeting conducted by F. S. Vance, of Nocona, Texas. Brother Vance preached the gospel with earnestness and effect. I know of no better recommendation for any preacher. C. C. Merritt, of Davis City, Iowa, was with us on Tuesday of last week, and with a great deal of force proclaimed to us our duty to a lost world. We had not met Brother Merritt before, but we feel sure that he is one of God's best men, and has the cause of the Master at heart. May the message he now delivers to the different churches enlighten us and compel us to fuifill our duty to the unsaved."

R. E. L. Taylor writes from Decherd, Tenn., March 21: "I was with the church at Sewanee yesterday, and preached morning and evening, with large audiences at both services. I preached at Tickbush in the afternoon. There is a faithful little band there that worships as the New Testament reads. I have been away from these two congregations about a year and a half. I certainly enjoyed the three services because of the interest that was manifested by both the brethren and the visitors that were present. I will preach for the Manchester congregation on Tuesday night, March 22; at Bean's Creek, Wednesday night, March 23; at Oak Grove, the fourth Lord's day in March. Any one wishing to correspond with me may address me at Decherd, Tenn. The brethren at Lecanto, Fla., write me that the church there is noving on well. Our prayer is that they may continue to press forward in the good work."

aT. J. Dunn writes from Clawson, Texas, March 24: "I have been led to reconsider the lesson taught in the parable of the wheat and tares. If to be in the kingdom is to be in the church, and to be in the church is to be in Christ, and if persons that enter Christ remain in Christ till the angels come to gather out of his kingdom all things that offend and do iniquity, then the apostate dies in the Lord and is "blessed." (Rev. 14: 13.) But God's family is a spiritual family, and those that die the spiritual death before they die the natural death die out of God's spiritual kingdom, and are no longer amenable to the laws of the great King, no longer spiritual children of our Heavenly Father, no longer heirs and joint heirs with Christ, no longer in Christ, and no longer have any promise of the blessing made those that die in the Lord. Therefore spiritually dead people are not in God's spiritual kingdom, and being already out of the spiritual kingdom, cannot be gathered out when the angels come. Therefore the kingdom referred to in the parable of the wheat and tares must include more than God's spiritual kingdom."

My Father.

I like to play close by my father's den,
Where's he's at work, and every now and then
Ask: "Father, are you there?" He answers back:
Yes, son." That time I broke my railroad track
All into bits, he stopped his work and came
And wiped my tears, and said: "Boy, boy! Be game!"
And I took both my arms and hugged him tight.

Once, when I'd asked him if he still was there, He called me in and rumpled up my hair, And said: "How much alike are you and I! When I feel just as boys feel when they cry, I call to our Big Father, to make sure That he is there, my childish fears to cure, And always, just as I to you, 'Yes, son,' Our Father calls, and all my fret is done!"

"A Builder of Good Foundations."

When Jack Carol finished the seventh grade he left school to get a job. He wanted to have money, for one thing, and he did not care much about school, for another. He wanted, more than anything else, to be a carpenter, and finally a contractor. Why should a carpenter study history and geography?

He was a strong boy, with great, broad shoulders and splendid muscles. He was sure he could do a man's work.

He applied first to the biggest contractor in town, for he was ambitious.

"How much education have you?" was the first question asked of him.

"Seventh grade."

"Not enough: a contractor needs to have a good foundation. The foundation is the most important thing in our business. You should go to school for at least seven more years. Good-day."

Jack was surprised, and greatly disappointed, but he was no quitter. He went from one to another until at last he found a man who would give him a chance. He learned, too, that his employer was to build the new Y. M. C. A. building. He knew some thought it strange that so unimportant a contractor had obtained the work, but he was radiantly happy over the prospect of helping to build it. The city had needed a new Y. M. C. A. building for a long time. Most of the citizens had contributed to it, and he, Jack, was to have the privilege of helping to build it.

"O, mother," he called, almost before he reached the door, "I have a job at last; I'll get somewhere now! I'll get a chance to lay real foundations. I am to work on the new Y. M. C. A. building. That's the sort of foundation to lay, not history and geography."

"If you are bound to work, son, I am glad you have a good position, and I hope you will always be a good workman."

"I will, mother; I want to work up. I want to be the biggest contractor in town, some day. Just think, my first job is on the Y. M. C. A.!"

The next day he started to work. He was given a spade, and told to dig. He found the ground hard and the sun hot. His back soon ached and his arms felt as though they would never move again. What was the use, he wondered, of digging the hard ground away, when all that would show would be above it, anyway? But he kept his thoughts to himself and worked on.

That night the foreman came to him. "You'll do," he said. "You're the first boy I ever helped break in that did not start whining about digging when he wanted to build."

Jack flushed. "I guess," he thought, "digging is a part of a good foundation."

After a few days the contractor came to look at the work. He stopped to talk to the foreman not far from where Jack was working.

"Now, Smith"—Jack could not help hearing his words—
"you know no one will know the difference if we do not dig the rest of it so deep. This is the only part any one will see, and it may go for years without doing any harm.
The kid will never know the difference. It will save me a cool eight hundred dollars. I can put part of that into the showy stuff on the upper part of the building if I have to, and keep the rest. The foundation doesn't show."

The rest of the conversation was lost to Jack, but his face was burning, partly in anger and partly with shame. He had been hired because he would not know how the work should be done! They were going to use his ignorance to cheat the men who had given the money for the building, and those who were building it!

He went home at noon, but somehow his dinner did not taste right. He went back to his work, but how he hated the sight of it! He was hurt, too, to think that Mr. Smith would help the contractor to work out his dirty scheme. He had thought he was honest! He took his spade and began to dig without saying anything to any one. He did not feel like talking.

The afternoon was long. His heart was heavy. He certainly was not feeling friendly when some one touched his shoulder just at quitting time. When he saw that it was Mr. Smith, he started to draw away, but the look on Smith's face stopped him.

"What's wrong?" he asked.

"I just wanted to tell you, kid, that I'm leaving. I can't work for that sort of a contractor. I believe in good foundations."

"Say, Mr. Smith," Jack's face was strangely glad, "I am through, too. I know; I heard what he said. I won't help build that sort of a building, either. This is a building that is meant to stand for manliness and strength, and I know it needs a whole lot of support under the ground, down where it doesn't show, where no one but the builders know it, but the building won't hold without it. The walls would settle and crack, the floors would be twisted and warped, and some day maybe people would be killed because they trusted us to put in good foundations. Isn't that the way?"

"Yes, boy, you know more about building than I thought for. You will be a builder, boy!" Then a shadow crossed his face as he added: "If you just get the foundations down right,"

"Smith," Jack's eyes were shifting, "I've learned my lesson. I am going to school, and I am going to learn all I can, whether it will show in my buildings or not. When I get through, I am going to build great buildings for many people, and the foundations will be good."

When Jack told his mother about it that night, there was a glad light in her eyes, but he wondered why she said, as if to herself: "Except the Lord shall build the house, they labor in vain who build it."

Fifteen years later the old Y. M. C. A. building was condemned. "Foundations improperly laid," the report said. The contract for a new building was given to Mr. Jack Carol, "Builder of Good Foundations," and on the corner stone he inscribed the words he had heard his mother say: "Except the Lord shall build the house, they labor in vain who build it." "Yes," he explained, "the Lord wants good foundations; he and I are partners."—Selected.

Truth at first-hand is better than truth at second-hand, and authority is not safe if it is pitted against inquiry, if it seeks to silence questions, or coerce the conscience.—
H. R. Haweis.

CURRENT THOUGHT

Influence.

Here is a little story which it would be well for you to pigeonhole in your mind and place in your scrapbook: "A little more than two hundred years ago an old Puritan doctor wrote a book and died without knowing whether his book had done any good. The name of the book was "The Bruised Reed." Richard Baxter was converted through reading "The Bruised Reed," and he wrote "A Call to the Unconverted." Philip Doddridge was converted through reading Baxter's book and wrote "The Rise and Progress of Religion in the Soul." William Wilberforce was converted through reading this book and wrote "A Practical View of Christianity." Thomas Chalmers read Wilberforce's book and was converted. A young minister by name of Leigh Richmond read Chalmers' book, and he was inspired to write "The Dairyman's Daughter," which has been the means for the conversion of tens of thousands." This true story shows how a book, sermon, poem, or article may form a link in the golden chain of influence which in God's providence grows longer and longer. But be it remembered that links in the golden chain are formed by kind words and good deeds. A smile to-day may be a sunburst of glory to men and women a century hence.—Christian Advocate.

When we have done our duty, we should learn not to worry as to what the result will be. God requires us to do our duty, while he takes care of the consequences. The Bible gives us many examples showing us that a man's influence lives after him. When one lives a righteous life, God can use his influence after his death as well as during his life. As a drop of water which drops into the ocean gives momentum to one wave, and that to another until it laves the distant shore of the great body of water, just so a man's influence continues to grow until it has its center everywhere and its circumference nowhere. Abel, though dead, still lives. When a dead man's bones touched the bones of Elisha, the dead man revived to life. Just so, when people come in contact with the influences that the righteous have left behind, these influences lead and elevate them to a noble, pure, and better life. The righteous should never grow discouraged even if the clouds are dark and lowering, because they know that God only demands fidelity of them and that he will bring good out of the noble influences that they leave behind.

The World's Bible.

Christ has no hands but our hands
To do his work to-day;
He has no feet but our feet
To lead men in his way;
He has no tongues but our tongues
To tell men how he died;
He has no help but our help
To bring them to his side.

We are the only Bible
The careless world will read;
We are the sinner's gospel;
We are the scoffer's creed;
We are the Lord's last message,
Given in deed and word:
What if the type is crooked?
What if the print is blurred?

What if our hands are busy
With other work than his?
What if our feet are walking
Where sin's allurement is?
What if our tongues are speaking
Of things his lips would spurn?
How can we hope to help him
And hasten his return?
Annie Johnson Flint, in Watchman Examiner.

Christians are Christ's letters, known and read by all men. Comparatively few men read and study the Bible prayerfully and seriously; but the very men who will not study the Bible seek to find the defects in the lives of Christians in order that they may scoff at Christianity. No man has ever been able to find any fault with Christ's life, but many find fault with the fruit that Christians bear. Christians are the sinner's gospel and the scoffer's creed. Every child of God should appreciate the calling wherewith he has been called, and with all lowliness and meckness and long-suffering should walk worthily of it. So much is at stake as we pass through this world that no one can afford to be careless and indifferent about his speech, his deeds, or his creed.

Battleships or Bread.

The leading nations of the world are in a race to sewhich can build the biggest navy. It is said that ours is increasing six times as rapidly as that of England. Before the wounds of millions hurt in the last war have been stanched there is a new and more fevered race in the creation of destructive armament. Are the nations mad? While we are spending millions on battleships all Middle Europe is starving as a result of the last war. We are all the parting of the ways. Do we want militarism and starvation or Christianity and bread? Shall we take the pagan or the Christian way?—Christian-Evangelist.

It seems that the leading nations of the world are developing the military spirit more than the spirit of Christ. The United States, England, and Japan seem to be vying with each other as to which can build the largest and most powerful navy. It does seem that the nations should have learned by this time that preparedness does not prevent war. The great preparation that Germany made led Germany into war. Our civilization needs to be Christianized. When we think of the starvation and the suffering which have resulted from the last terrible war, it does seem that the nations of the world would be willing to learn war no more. The United States is now spending millions on battleships and also spending millions in feeding the starving children of Eurpoe, which starvation was brought about by the terrible war. How much better it would be to send people the gospel of Christ! How much better to preach to them the gospel of peace instead of compelling boys and young men to study and learn militarism! No man who follows in the footsteps of Jesus, who has the spirit of the meek and lowly Christ, will encourage militarism, which leads to suffering and starvation. Let us not only profess Christianity, but let us practice the religion of Christ as taught in the New Testament.

Religious Transition in Spain.

Dr. J. B. Gambrell, a Southern Baptist, who recently visited Spain, has this to say about the Church of Rome in Spain: "The situation in Spain is unique. Here Romanism has simply relegated itself out of the place it once held. People do not think enough of it to hate it. With many it is regarded as a dead horse on the roadside of progress—a horse that was never worth its feed. The great middle classes are largely done with it. The aristocracy still patronize it, and it yet holds the ignorant to a considerable extent in the villages. The ten universities are wide open to liberal views. Free discussions abound. The law grants religious liberty to all, though Romanism is still the State religion. There are numerous strong advocates of entire separation of church and state in politics, and this is due to arrive before long." Dr. Gambrell says that Protestant missionaries are gladly heard and that Protestantism has a great opportunity just now in Spain.—Christian Advocate

Those who love the truth and are not ashamed of the gospel of Christ will keep busy preaching the gospel to every creature. Every Christian should be a true missionary and should go everywhere telling the glad news of salvation to a lost and ruined race. This does not mean that every Christian is a public proclaimer of the gospel, but it does mean that if a man really loves the Lord Jesus Christ with all of his heart he will tell others the glad news of salvation and cheerfully hold up to them the Christ who died to redeem sinners.

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

Levi Cochran, of Hackleburg, Ala., wishes to know if 2 Tim. 3: 15-17 forbids the use or reading of sacred literature. He adds by way of explanation, after asking the question, that some think that Christians should not read any other writings except the Bible alone. He wishes an answer through the "Query Department." The passages referred to do not warrant any such a view. The inspired Scriptures are not given to prove any doctrine, but the Scriptures are the doctrine. The position that Christians are not allowed to read anything but the Bible is so utterly ridiculous as to need no answer. If such a position be correct, we should not read an English grammar or study arithmetic.

H. L. Kirby, of Albany, Ala., requests an explanation of Isa. 65: 20, 25. Verse 20 reads: "There shall be no more thence an infant of days, nor an old man that hath not filled his days; for the child shall die a hundred years old, and the sinner being a hundred years old shall be accursed." We are not able at this office to give the meaning of this passage, but for the benefit of the querist I quote what C. J. Elliott gives in his "Bible Commentary for English Readers" as the meaning of the passage: "The prophet sees in the restored city not so much an eternal and a deathless life as the return of the traditional longevity of the prediluvian and patriarchal age. (Gen. 5: 11.) Life will not be prematurely cut off, as it had been, by pestilence and war. (Comp. Zech. 8: 4.) He who dies at the age of one hundred will be thought of as dying young; even the sinner, dying before his time as the penalty of his guilt, shall live out the measure of a century. The noticeable fact is that sin is thought of as not altogether extinct—as still appearing, though under altered conditions, even in the restored Jerusalem." (Verse 25 reads: "The wolf and the lamb shall feed together, and the lion shall eat straw like the ox; and dust shall be the serpent's food. They shall not hurt nor destroy in all my holy mountain, saith Jehovah." While I am not able to give the time when this reign of peace will be ushered in, evidently the meaning of this passage is that when it is, these things will come to pass. In the new heaven and the new earth of the prophet's vision there would be no such discord. The flesh-eating beasts should change their nature. The serpent, mentioned probably with special reference to Gen. 3 as the starting point of the discord, shall find food in the dust in which he crawls and shall be no longer a destroyer.

John A. Finch, of Fulton, Ky., seems to be worried on account of criticisms. He says: "I have been censured or judged as aiding and abetting an incorporated telephone company because I buy service of that company and pay quarterly or monthly as the need may be. If the Gospel Advocate is incorporated, am I aiding and abetting it if I send in the money for the yearly subscription? Am I aiding and abetting when I buy a milk cow from a sinner that is a neighbor? Are the recipients of the Armenian Fund and the various other funds that are sent out by the Gospel Advocate told that these funds are sent by the church of Christ, so that Christ's name may be exalted, or is it given them by government authorities and Christ's name not mentioned?" The telephone company gives you value for your money. It is simply a business proposition, and should not be considered as an act of obedience or disobedience to God. The Gospel Advocate gives value received to every subscriber. The truth is that the Gospel Advocate is not conducted for money, but in the hope of doing good. If you are not permitted to be a subscriber to a telephone company or a religious paper or to buy a milk cow from a sinner, then, of necessity, you must get out of the world. The money that has been contributed for the relief of the Armenians was contributed in the name of the churches of Christ. Christ was certainly honored and giorified by the gift. Whenever a child of God does the will of God in Christ's name, Christ gets the honor and glory.

W. B. Grable, of Cleveland, Miss., requests me to comment on foot washing through the "Query Department" of the Gospel Advocate. The querist says: "My point is, are we commanded to do this in the worship as we are to break bread and sip the wine, sing, pray, and contribute upon the first day of the week?" After the establishment of the church we find the disciples teaching, breaking bread, praying, singing, and continuing in the fellowship. We do not find them washing feet as any part of the worship. When foot washing is spoken of, it is spoken of as a private duty and not as a church ordinance. Speaking of widows that should be enrolled among the number to be supported by the church, the Holy Spirit says: "Let none be enrolled as a widow under threescore years old, having been the wife of one man, well reported of for good works: if she hath brought up children, if she hath used hospitality to strangers, if she hath washed the saints' feet, if she hath relieved the afflicted, if she hath diligently followed every good work." (1 Tim. 5: 9, 10.) This shows very clearly that foot washing is classed among private duties, such as rearing children, according hospitality to strangers, and any other good work. We nowhere find the early church practicing foot washing as an ordinance. When Christ, as an act of humility, washed the disciples' feet, it was because their feet needed washing. In those ways they wore sandals, they were in a dusty country, and their feet, becoming dusty, needed to be washed. From this example of humility we learn that Christians should be humble, helpful and hospitable to their brethren in the Lord. The man who is not willing to perform any lowly act, even as lowly as foot washing, for his brother, is not full of the Spirit of Christ. But it should be distinctly understood that Christians are nowhere commanded to wash the disciples' feet as an act connected with the worship of the public assembly.

J. D. Mitchell, of Spring Valley, Ala., says: "I notice one of the writers says in reference to the Lord's Supper: 'Drink ye all of it.' Does this mean drink all the cup, or contents, or does it mean for all to drink of it? I notice Luke 22: 17 reads: 'And he took the cup, and gave thanks. and said, Take this, and divide it among yourselves.' This seems to mean, drink it all. The question came up in our Sunday school, and we were divided on it." The meaning is evidently that all the disciples should drink of the contents of the cup. This destroys the Romish idea of the priests, and not the laity, drinking of the cup. All allke were to partake, not only of the bread, but also of the fruit of the vine. Luke 22: 17 does not refer to the cup used in the Lord's Supper, for that was taken after supper. Verse 20 reads: "And the cup in like manner after supper. saying, This cup is the new covenant in my blood, even that which is poured out for you." The cup referred to in verse 17 was the cup which was ordinarily taken before supper.

Humility.

BY J. C. M'Q.

It is easy to preach to others to be humble, but it is very difficult for one to practice his own preaching. But hard as it may be, we all should practice humility, and in positions of hopor should take the lower places, giving heed to the warning of Christ when he says: "Beware of the scribes, who desire to walk in long robes, and love salutations in the market places, and chief seats in the synagogues, and chief places at feasts; who devour widows' houses, and for a pretense make long prayers; these shall receive greater condemnation." (Luke 20: 46, 47.) When places of honor are offered, if we have Christ's spirit, we will take the lower seats and leave the higher for our brethren; and when a humble sacrifice must be made, we will cheerfully take the first place. Paul, in writing to the Roman brethren, says: "In love of the brethren be tenderly affectioned one to another; in honor preferring one another." (Rom. 12: 10.) This advice heeded by our preachers would often save the body, or church, from factionalism. Preachers sometimes, instead of practicing this teaching, exalt themselves and honor themselves above their brother preachers until a division is made in the body. Strange love for Christ that permits a church to wrangle over a preacher until two bitter factions are at war in the church! How much better for the preacher over whom the contention arises to drop entirely out of sight! He should plainly say to his admirers and friends: "You cannot create a faction over me." It is a fearful condition for one to be for Paul, one for Cephas, and another for Apollos. Such divisions over preachers brings carnality, and carnality brings death. Read what the Spirit says: "Nay, much rather, those members of the body which seem to be more feeble are necessary; and those parts of the body, which we think to be less honorable, upon these we bestow more abundant honor; and our uncomely parts have more abundant comeliness; whereas our comely parts have no heed; but God tempered the body together, giving more abundant honor to that part which lacked; that there should be no schism in the body; but that the members should have the same care one for another. And whether one member suffereth, all the members suffer with it; or one member is honored, all the members rejoice with it." (1 Cor. 12: 22-26.)

When this teaching is strictly and humbly obeyed, there will be no division and strife in the churches of Christ. But so long as some think of themselves more highly than they should, so long as there are selfish and lustful preachers ministering to the churches, we will find the churches more worldly and corrupt than spiritual. A spirit of levity, worldliness, and corruption is prevailing among the churches that should be east out. No godly preacher will compromise with such in order to make a living. I would rather break rock on the street and live on bread and water than to compromise with uncleanness of which many church members are guilty. But alas! Some preachers do not cry out against sin, because their own robes are tainted and smell unto heaven. When one learns of the divorced preachers who are living with their second wives and of the many preachers who frequent the moving-picture shows, he cannot but believe we are living in "perilous times." To all such the language of the Spirit is specially applicable: "Draw nigh to God, and he will draw nigh to you. Cleanse your hands, ye sinners; and purify your hearts, ye double-minded. Be afflicted, and mourn, and weep: let your laughter be turned to mourning, and your joy to heaviness. Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall exalt you." (James 4: 8-10.)

If we realize how weak we are, and how we cannot gain the victory over sin in our own strength, in our humility he will give us grace to resist and overcome the devil Those who have overconfidence in their own strength and ability rush into temptation, to be overcome by Satan, "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." (1 Cor. 10: 12.)

Christ is the one great example of humility. He rendered to the world the greatest possible service that a perfect Being could render. Enjoying all the glories of heaven and being in the form of God, he did not cling to the equality, but emptied himself, taking the form of a servant: "And being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, becoming obedient unto death, yea, the death of the cross." (Phil. 2: 8.) He led a life of self-denial and service for others. He healed the sick, cast out demons. forgave sins, fed the hungry, and restored sight to the blind. He came down from heaven to serve and to do the will of his Father who sent him. Those who are great walk in his steps. The man who serves most is greatest of all. Those who are greatest are forgiving, guileless, free from malice and pride. "Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven." (Matt. 18: 4.)

The Christian, instead of claiming to be superior to others and boasting of how much better he is than others, as did the Pharisee, knows his own weakness, and, like the publican, prays: "God, be thou merciful to me a sinner." Knowing our own imperfections and weaknesses, we should all "put on therefore, as God's elect, holy and beloved. a heart of compassion, kindness, lowliness, meekness, longsuffering: forbearing one another, and forgiving each other, if any man have a complaint against any; even as the Lord forgave you, so also do ye." (Col. 3: 12, 13.)

With a heart filled with pride and conceit, it is impossible to serve the Lord. The heart filled with gratitude for the blessings of God extends a helping hand and sheds a tear in sympathy for the unfortunate and fallen. While Paul was truly brilliant and great, he does not lose sight of his own weakness. Listen to him: "Serving the Lord with all lowliness of mind, and with tears, and with trials, which befell me by the plots of the Jews." (Acts 20: 19.)

In the trials, storms, and conflicts of this life, we should ever cling close to the Lord Jesus Christ. The best must fight sin from the cradle to the grave. If we have made good use of our time, we realize that we know but little and have nothing for which to be proud. In the strength that God gives us and with his guidance, we must subdue the animal nature until he says to us, "Well done." In his strength we must climb to the mountain top of a perfected and consecrated life. By his guidance we must climb higher and higher to where the snows of purity forever gleam in the glow of heaven. Suffer a closing word of exhortation from the Spirit: "All of you gird yourselves with humility, to serve one another; for God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble. Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time; casting all your anxiety upon him, because he careth for you." (1 Pet. 5; 5-7.)

Why Did Paul Work With His Own Hands?

BY E. A. ELAM.

Our study of the subject of work would be incomplete without considering the fact that Paul frequently worked at teutmaking while preaching, and, especially, why he did so. Did Paul work with his own hands simply because and only when he was out of money?

This subject should be more thoroughly studied. All the passages in the New Testament which mention Paul's working with his own hands and which give his reasons for doing so must be studied; his motives for doing this and the purposes to be accomplished by it must be learned, then his example under like circumstances should be followed. What are the facts in the case?

I. PAUL NEVER MADE MERCHANDSE OF THE GOSPEL.

Paul did not both work and preach in order to make money both ways-that is, both by working and preaching. He "coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel." (Acts 20: 33.) He said to the Corinthians: "I seek not yours, but you. . . . And I will most gladly spend and be spent for your souls." Here we see his motive and purpose. He took no advantage of the Corinthians, and Titus did not. (2 Cor. 12: 14-18.) He never used the gospel as "a cloak of covetousness" (1 Thess. 2: 5), and condemned all who did (2 Cor. 2: 17). The margin says, "making merchandise of the word of God." Compare 2 Pet. 2: 3: read also 1 Tim. 6: 5. Paul clearly and abundantly and strongly teaches that churches should support well the preacher of the gospel. (See 1 Cor. 9: 1-19; Gal. 6: 6; 1 Tim. 5: 17, 18.) Let this be well understood and taught now with all the force of the gospel. Yet Paul kept before all the truth that he did not so teach "that it may be so done in" his case (1 Cor. 9: 15), and not that he sought for the gift, but for the fruit that increased to their account, showing that their contributions to his support went up to God as "an odor of a sweet smell, a sacrifice acceptable, well pleasing unto God." (Phil. 4: 11, 17, 18.)

II. FOR THE SAKE OF ACCOMPLISHING GREATER GOOD.

When we conceive of one's waiving individual rights, sacrificing personal privileges, and suffering discomfort, hunger, and pain for others, we can begin to understand why Paul worked at times with his own hands; but not until then. For these reasons Paul and Barnabas waived their right to marry and at times to a support, preferring to make their own support for the time being by their own work. This, then, at these times, at least, was not because they were out of money. Paul could have married-that is, some sister would have gladly become his wife; but he did not exercise that right for the sake of accomplishing greater good. Paul's reason for not marrying was not because no sister would have him. So he could have asked a support of those whom he served in some places and could have received it; but he did not ask it, waiving that right also for the reasons which he gives. He declares that he and Barnabas had the right to "forbear working," which means to stop supporting themselves by their own work and to expect a support from the ones they served. Again, he says he "did not use to the full" his "right in the gospel," which means he could have used "to the full" this right. He did not do this because the Corinthians could not be induced to support him or because he was forced to do so by mere want. Were this the case, he could not have used the language he did. He gives his own reasons: (a) That he might "by all means save some;" (b) that he "might gain the more;" (c) "for the gospel's sake," that he might "be a joint partaker thereof" (see 1 Cor. 9: 19, 22, 23); (d) that he might cut off the occasion of false teachers who sought an occasion for obtaining a support or money from the Corinthians. He forced them to an equality with himself in doing "all things for the gospel's sake," and not for "filthy lucre's sake." If these false teachers sought the good of the church at Corinth, as Paul did, then they would waive, as he had done, their claim-not their right, indeed-to a money consideration for their preaching. This was a burning test, showing the difference between why Paul preached the gospel and why they preached what they dld. By this Paul demonstrated to the Corinthians that, as a father seeks the greatest good of his children, he sought their souls, and not their money. (See 2 Cor. 11: 11-13; 12: 14-18.) There was no church at Corinth when Paul went there. He went as a missionary. There was no "board of missions" or human society behind him, pledging him a support. He went in the fear of God and trusted God for support, for guidance, and for victory. Finding Aquila and Priscilla, he abode with them, because he and they were tentmakers by trade, and they worked together. Thus he made his own living and preached the gospel. (Acts 18: 1-4.) It is true, then, that he supported himself, and sometimes those who were with him (Acts 20: 34), while he taught these great lessons. Soon, however, a church was planted at Corinth; yet he did not exercise his right to demand a support of it, for after this he supported himself just as he did before, and that, too, when he had the right to demand a support from it, Other churches contributed to his support while he preached in Corinth. The brethren from Macedonia "supplied the measure" of his "want." But "in everything" he kept himself "from being burdensome" to the Corinthians. (2 Cor. 11: 7-12.) On the contrary, he did not "resign" or ask for "an increase in salary" (since he was receiving none), but remained there until the church was on a sure foundation. He "took no advantage of the church." He "made the gospel without charge" to these Corinthians, and declined "to use to the full" his "right in the gospel" for the sake of teaching these great and grand lessons. This shows that he could have used this "right" and have charged for his services. He left the Corinthians and all churches for all time without excuse for not supporting "to the full" all preachers of the gospel by his teaching in 1 Cor. 9: 1-14 and other portions of the New Testament and by his own example. He accepted most gladly and gratefully full support from other churches, and highly commended them for their "fellowship in furtherance of the gospel." (Phil. 1: 3-5.) He sent Tychicus from Rome to Ephesus and to Colosse for the very purpose of making known his "affairs" and "all things" that were done in Rome-his "state." (Eph. 6: 21, 22; Col. 4: 7-9.) Good and wise men think this included Paul's financial condition and other needs. This may be done, and should be done, to-day, when necessary. At Rome, Paul received "the things" which the church at Philippi sent by Epaphroditus, and said he had "all things" and "abounded" and was "filled." It is more than probable that when Paul wrote the Remans that he hoped to be brought on his way by them into Spain he meant the financial assistance necessary to place him in Spain. (Rom. 15: 24.) No church ever received more abundant instruction on the duty to support fully the true preachers of the gospel and the rights of the preachers to live of the gospel, to marry and to receive a support for their wives who were faithful sisters and true workers also, or fuller instruction on belping the poor, than the church at Corinth (2 Cor. 8, 9); and through this God likewise instructs all churches.

III. IN ORDER TO SET A GOOD EXAMPLE.

Paul worked with his own hands in order to set a good example. The Thessalonians looked down upon labor, and some were idlers and tattlers. The Cretans were accused of being "always liars, evil beasts, idle gluttons." (Tit. 1: 12.) Paul instructed Titus to teach them to "profess honest occupations" (Tit. 3: 8, 14-margin)-in other words, to go to work. Some have suggested that the Thessalonians had quit work because they thought Jesus would soon appear; but that did not make them meddlers in other men's matters, or busybodies, sponges, or parasites. Paul had to teach them much on the subject of work. When he was first in Thessalonica and started the church there, he taught on this subject and said then, "If any will not work, neither let him eat" (2 Thess. 3: 10); when he wrote his first letter to the church there, he impressed the same lessons of being quiet, working, attending to their own business, and setting a good example (1 Thess. 2: 1-12; 4: 9-12); and he taught the same in his second letter. He charged them again not to feed the ones who would not work. He declared that he himself did not walk disorderly or eat any man's bread for naught, but worked night and day in order to keep from being a burden upon any of them and to make himself "an ensample" unto them that they "might imitate" him-"not because" he had not "the right," for he had the right to expect a support from them; but because he wanted to show them the dignity, nobility, and the moral and spiritual strength of labor. When necessary, should not preachers do the same now? "Thou who sayest a man should work, dost thou work?" To give "an example" is one reason Paul gives for working at Ephesus-to show the church "that so laboring" they ought "to help the weak," (Acts 20: 35.)

In all our study of the Bible the one thing is to learn just what the will of God is that we may obey it.

Who or What Is Responsible?

BY F. W. SMITH.

Under subheads, the following is from the pen of J. C. Sharp, in the Christian Standard of March 5:

EAST TENNESSEE MAKES A DISCOVERY,

The brethren in East Tennessee discovered that they had a situation that demanded their immediate attention. They discovered that they had approximately sixty churches of Christ, approximately fifteen preachers, one preacher factory, and another near by. They discovered that they had able preachers as far as they went. They discovered that they had many able men among the members of their congregations who know the plea and are capable of telling it. They discovered that about thirty of the sixty churches are closed for lack of leadership.

A VISION.

The vision began as a wee small voice in the night, but it grew and grew and grew. The spirits of dead churches began to haunt some one, we do not know exactly whom. We never did set much store by haunts, or "hants;" but if they go into this kind of business, we are for them. Thirty one-time churches of Christ now closed and silent; thirty one-time soul-saving stations now closed; thirty communion tables, monuments to Christ, shut from public view; thirty pulpits that stood for the proclamation of the soul-saving message of our Lord now silent—would be enough to haunt one who knows and loves the old plea.

WHO IS TO BLAME?

As a matter of fact, we never heard this question raised. The brethren are too interested in changing the situation to try to locate the blame. They feel that it is more important to find the men to reopen these life-saving stations than to stop to locate the blame. In fact, the only suggestion we heard from the brethren most interested was that perhaps they themselves were the ones to blame. Lest some one should think that these good brethren are more to blame than some one else somewhere else, let us pause to say that this situation is not confined to Tennessee, The same situation prevails in scores and scores of places. The only difference that we could notice is that the brethren here have determined to expend their strength in finding the cure immediately.

This is a lamentable situation existing in that section of Tennessee where the society brethren have had full swing with their machinery for all these years. Thirty churches closed "for lack of leadership!" It may be proper to ask, what kind of leadership? The New Testament contemplates and provides for self-edifying churches-churches that can live, grow, and develop through mutual edification; but modern methods have changed God's order. For an efficient eldership the "one-man pastor" has been substituted, who is often but a boy fresh from the classroom, with little or no experience in teaching and guiding churches in the worship and work of the Lord, but clothed with the assumption of "taking charge" of the church, elders and all. Sometimes he does not happen to be a boy preacher, but a "pastor" with years of experience, who does all the visiting, praying, and teaching, leaving the socalled "elders" and other members to sit as lookers-on while he does the work. No wonder churches become helpless and as inefficient as babes under such an administration. Whenever a church learns to be dependent on a preacher as the leader of the church, it is paving the way for its spiritual death. It is not God's order, and nothing can survive either in nature or grace that does not conform to the law of its being. The society brethren have schooled and educated the churches that affiliate with the societies to depend too much on preachers, and this is, no doubt, one reason for those thirty churches in East Tennessee being closed. With all the faults of the antisociety churches, they manage to keep open shop; and many of them, with weak and inefficient public teachers, manage to keep the Lord's table spread every Lord's day. Few, if any, of them in Tennessee have closed their places of worship because of a "lack of leadership," but honor God with the best they have, which all must admit is better than to become quitters. One would judge from the claims put forth by the advocates of the society as to its great efficiency in spreading the gospel, planting and maintaining churches, its superiority over what we find in the New Testament, that no field would long remain destitute in which the society methods were adopted; but the report before us is a practical demonstration of its failure.

Our brother asserts: "The brethren are too interested in changing the situation to try to locate the blame." They should be careful; for the old saying, "The hair of the dog is good for the bite," will not apply in this case. To "change the situation," they must change their methods and go back to the New Testament order. Continue to educate those thirty churches to depend on the "one-man pastor," and when greener pastures beckon they will find themselves pastorless, with the feeling of helplessness which means to shut up shop and wait for another pastor with his bottle of condensed milk to dispense to babies, The writer of Hebrews rebukes such feeble saints as follows: "For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of strong meat." (Heb. 5: 12.) Those thirty dead churches, with the proper order operating from their beginning, would have been live wires surcharged with the dynamic force of spiritual power, electrifying the regions round about them. It is not even a grain of comfort for our brother to say: "This situation is not confined to Tennessee. The same situation prevails in scores and scores of places." If the New Testament order of teaching and practice had been observed, there would be no such situation anywhere. The paper read at the meeting in Abilene, Texas, written by Brother Malcomson, of Detroit, Mich., on church edification, should be in every Christian home. No church will ever close its doors that will follow the teaching of that paper, which sets forth New Testament doctrine on the subject in such clear and convincing style.

Bebe Boswell, in renewing his subscription to the Gospel Advocate, says: "The church here is weak, nearly dead, and digressive; but Mrs. Boswell and I have made up our minds to get into the work with them, and it may be that some day the cause of primitive Christianity will prevail. How would you go about it?" Work with them; but kindly, yet firmly, show them their errors, and try to persuade them to give them up. Be patient, and do not be discouraged if you do not see results right away.

J. Bedford Beck, Savannah, Ga., writes as follows: "I am sending a bit of news from our work here. We are gaining favor and getting much better acquainted among the people now, and are having much better crowds at all the services. The church is very much encouraged by getting into the new home of worship, and is working with a zeal that will win for Christ. All are very thankful to those who have made it possible for us to get a house here. We have another payment to make in six months, and will need all the help that the brethren can give us in this. Let us all strive to the end that a permanent church be established which can and will do the mission work needed to be done in this section of the country. Many of the congregations have already expressed themselves as anxious to help in this great work. The next payment will be three thousand dollars, and we do not have this amount subscribed yet. Let all the brethren who are helping in this kind of work remember us in their donations. We are going to take care of the remaining six thousand dollars. Let us all supply our part to this work now, that our souls may rejoice in the near future."

Horace W. Busby, Fort Worth, Texas, sends in the following cheerful message: "Austin Taylor and I spent the last two Lord's days in February at Ozona, Texas. In the southwestern part of the State, where all are engaged in ranching. It is a great pleasure to preach to these big-hearted ranchmen. They are as receptive to the truth as any people in the world, and know just how to make a preacher feel like he is among friends. We baptized ten, and seven or eight were reclaimed or identified. The church supported us well. They planned to begin building a stone church house by the first of June, and asked us to return for a meeting as soon as it is completed. The first two Lord's days in this month we were at Italy, Texas, in our third meeting with the church there, which resulted in ten baptisms and several restorations, also some by letter. We promised to return in March next year. All the pastors of the different churches attended throughout, with their members. I am now (March 21) at Waxahachie, in what promises to be the best meeting ever held here. There are six revivals in town this week, and all are talking religion, and we are sharing in the effect. John E. Dunn is working with the church here, and is loved by all. He will be with us most of the time. My next meeting will be with the Oak Cliff Church, in Dallas, embracing the first two Lord's days in April."

E. G. Burton, writing from Columbia, Tenn., March 23, ys: "I have just read the article written by C. E. Holt, published in the Gospel Advocate of March 17, in which he infers that it is very doubtful as to whether there be such a thing as 'the church of Christ.' However, he had previously stated in the article that inspiration informs us of a plurality of churches of Christ; so I would ask him, how is it possible for there to be a plurality and yet not Brother Holt knows, as well as all others who have made any study at all of the church, that it is referred to in the Bible as 'the church of God,' which includes all of the saved, to be sure. It is also referred to as Christ's body. The body of Christ, then, includes all of the saved; otherwise Christ's death would have been in vain, as it was purchased with his blood. However, the scattered churches or congregations were referred to as 'churches of Christ,' and that is what we mean when we speak of 'the Russell Street church of Christ,' in Nashville; we mean the one of the churches that is located on Russell Street. For one to deny Christ's church being 'the church of God,' it seems to me, would be to deny the Christ as God's mediator and his being the Savior of the world. Since Christ gave his He for the church, and since it is him we are to remember on the first day of the week, and as the church is referred to as his body, then why should we, as followers of him, not refer to our respective congregations as 'the church of Christ?' Or what other name could be used?"

Carl A. Gardner, Bardwell, Texas, writes: "I have declined the offer of superintendent of the Bardwell public school for the fourth year. I have been elected as superintendent of the Ferris school in this county. Ferris is on the Interurban near Dallas, and offers great opportunities for building up a splendid school system. The people intend to vote bonds for a new building soon, and we hope to see the work move on well there. I have never lived among finer people than at Bardwell. The brethren have ever sought to make our stay pleasant. It is with great reluctance that I leave these good people; but the opportunities for service appear greater at Ferris right now. brethren there plan to build a nice brick house of worship as soon as economic conditions permit. J. S. Dunn has done a great work there the past year toward kindling the spiritual fire. The brethren appreciate his services. church at Bardwell is active, and I never saw a congregation so harmonious. The young people have a very instructive program each Sunday evening, and many are being trained for the great work. Oscar Roach is the senior elder in the congregation, and he is one of the best. Instead of holding the congregation back, he is ever ready to see it go forward along all scriptural lines. I am proud of this congregation, and I shall always count it a great privilege to visit the people of the Bardwell community. It is a great and happy work to labor among the plain people of the rural and small-town belts, for they are the noblest of all the earth.'

The following, sent from Fort Smith, Ark., dated March 6, is self-explanatory: "We, the undersigned, elders and deacons of the Park Hill church of Christ, worshiping in this city, desire to state that Will W. Slater is now in the third year of his ministry for this church. His service has been very satisfactory, and he has played a worthy part in the development and growth of this congregation. He has a sunny temperament and a wonderful gift of making friends, and is held in high esteem, and loved and appre-ciated by every member of this church. He is a teacher and singer of rare ability, having had fourteen years' experience in the song field. He is an able minister of the gospel of Christ, a power in the pulpit; he is a strong, forceful speaker, and preaches what he believes to be the truth without fear or favor, regardless of what others might say or think; but he is kind and considerate to all. He is a successful evangelist, and we feel that any congregation will be fortunate who secures his services in that capacity. He has repeatedly said that he will not accept the work here for another year, for he feels that he is needed more in the field, but it is in the field; but if he refuses to accept this work, it will be over the protest and with the profound regrets of the entire congregation. We love him, and we heartily recom-mend him as being a Christian in all that that term means, May God bless him in all his efforts for good," as follows: W. B. Wood, G. A. Howell, John Gallaher, J. G. Maner, John W. Wilson, elders; H. F. Valentine, D. J. Lockridge, F. D. Whaley, E. Bridges, C. R. Berkley, deas cons; S. A. Lynch, clerk.

H. B. Young, Route 1, Soddy, Tenn., writes as follows: "I wish to call attention to an article in the Gospel Advocate of March 24, written by John R. Williams. I recommend that all give it a careful scrutiny, especially what he says in regard to the appeals being made through the It looks like many persons and congregations making appeals think that they are the only ones in hard shape and that the rest of the brethren have plenty that can be had for the asking. While it is right for God's people to help each other, it is also right for all to retrench and practice economy, self-denial, and sacrifice to the limit before rolling their burden onto others. Congregations that contemplate building should count the cost and build according to their ability, and not start building a large, fine house to be proud of, with the expectation of others carrying the larger part of the load. I have no sympathy nor money for people who build because the larger part of the load. nor money for people who build houses to be proud of. Of course the Lord is entitled to all that we can do for his glory; but I am sure that a humble, consecrated congregation, conspicuous for brotherly love, humility, and good works, brings more glory and is better pleasing to the Lord than a proud, worldly congregation in a fine house of wor-Established congregations should take care of their Where a new own indigent members, also their finances. field is invaded, no one or two should be allowed to bear the charges alone; but even in this, proper discretion should Where people are impervious to the plain story of the cross, time and money should not be wasted; but follow the instructions of Jesus to wipe the dust off as a testimony against them and go on to more promising fields?

Hugh H. Miller's Work in Rochester, N. Y.

BY E. A. E.

The following is Brother Miller's report, which is self-explanatory. Read it, and note what a good man is doing:

Rochester, N. V., January 20, 1921.—Dear Brother Elam: Various matters figured in preventing this matter coming to you at an earlier date.

I am inclosing hurriedly a statement of contributions received for the Rochester work during 1920. It may appear quite a lengthy list for publication, but I give it to you to do with as you deem proper. Our balance at the close of the year was some above the difference between our expenditures and the total received. The slight discrepancy doubtless is due to my failure either to enter some of our expenditures or to credit a contribution or two on the books, though all contributions were immediately acknowledged direct to the contributor.

I will go next week for about a two-weeks' stay with the little congregation at Hubbardsville, N. Y. They are taking advantage of my being out of work just now during the big lay-off in the industries to have me stay longer with them. I was with them once last fall, Possibly I told you at that time about the church at Hubbardsville. It was established some twenty or twenty-five years ago by Brethren George and John Kilngman.

My year's work with this small congregation has been very pleasant; and though severely handicapped by an undesirable place of worship where it is difficult to get an outside hearing, we happily continue our "work of faith and labor of love" in hope of greater things. I will remain with this Rochester work indefinitely, for I took up the work with the faithful few here with the determination to stay with them until something worth while was accomplished.

Beginning in August of last year, I worked with a Rochester firm, and accepted twenty-five dollars monthly for my services for the church; and beginning with 1921, I will accept nothing for my services unless conditions make it necessary. We have not words adequate to express our thanks to those who contributed so liberally to the work here during 1920.

Though relieved, I hope, of any responsibility to me during 1921, the brethren here will still be unable to carry on the work without help from the outside. We have at present, however, a balance of one hundred and seventy-five or two hundred dollars, and hope to retain this, if not more, for a more extensive evangelistic work during the summer. It is our present plan to have Brother Morgan H. Carter or some other wide-awake young man to assist us in tent work at that time. We hope, if the work moves along smoothly, to be in position to purchase the tent ourselves.

Brother Miller, as stated in his report, furnished a list of the contributors, with the amount contributed by each, which we cannot publish. The total amount received for the Rochester work for 1920 was $1,281.21.

It is self-sacrificing in Brother Miller to do this work in the way he does; but the churches should that much the more willingly contribute to his support and to the upbuilding of the cause of Christ in this great city. Let all congregations and individuals continue their contributions for 1921.

"Queries and Answers by Lipscomb and Sewell." BY T. W. PHILLIPS.

This wonderful book has just come to my desk, and after perusing its pages almost a day and a night I pronounce it the most valuable of any book in my library. This book has 767 pages of reading matter; and I find it indexed so the reader may readily find any query on any of the many hundred questions that involved the mind of these two brainy men for a period of more than forty years. I cannot recommend it too highly to my friends; and were I able to give all my friends a present by which they might remember me, I know of no book that would be of greater worth to them. The editor and the publisher are to be complimented in presenting to the reading brotherhood such a book as this. This book will not only perpetuate the memory of these two great men (Lipscomb and Sewell) in the hearts of the disciples of Christ, but it will aid in perpetuating the pure word of God and the true worship ordained of God on down the coming ages. Buy it, brethren, and scatter it all over the land.

Abide in Me.

The soul alone, like a neglected harp, Grows out of tune, and needs that Hand divine; Dwell thou within it, tune and touch the chords, Till every note and string shall answer thine.

Abide in me; there have been moments pure
When I have seen thy face and felt thy power;
Then evil lost its charm, and passion hushed,
Owned the divine enchantment of the hour.

These were but seasons beautiful and rare;
Abide in me, and they shall ever be.
I ask thee now fulfill my earnest prayer—
Come and abide in me, and I in thee.

-H. B. Stowe.

You are unable to explain the wonderful union of God and man in the nature of Christ; but are you more perfectly able to explain the wonderful union of matter and spirit in your own? Are you able to explain how it is that matter seems to be affected by the laws of spirit, so that the hands becken, the feet walk, and the lips have language in obedience to the determinations of the intellect and will; or how it is that the spirit seems to be affected by the laws of matter, so that an afflicted body will sometimes make a clouded soul? In both cases you must believe, not on the ground of your ability to explain the thing in question, but on the ground of its support by appropriate evidence.—Stanford.

PELOUBET'S NOTES FOR 1921.

"Peloubet's Notes" has been issued for forty-seven years with ever-increasing popularity and usefulness, which fact alone is a wonderful argument for its value and helpfulness. It is rich in material, comprehensive in its scope, and practical in its treatment. Every superintendent, teacher, and scholar will find in it his own personal requirements. The editor of The Outlook says: "We give first place to Peloubet's." Marion Lawrance, the noted Sundayschool worker, writes: "How this standard commentary has been able to maintain itself during all these years, growing annually stronger and richer, is a marvel to the Sunday-school world. Personally, I do not see how any Sunday-school teacher can hope to do his best without the rich, full helps found in these Notes.'

The Curtis-Arceneaux Debate.

BY LESTIE G. THOMAS.

The debate between the Reorganized Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-Day Saints, represented by "Apostle" J. F. Curtis, of Independence, Mo., and the church of Christ, represented by Brother Early Arceneaux, of Wichita Falls, Texas, was held in Flint, Mich., March 7-18. The church propositions were discussed, and each disputant atfirmed six nights. Curtis is a weak debater, and seemed afraid to take a position on any fundamental point under discussion. In his first negative speech Brother Arceneaux succeeded in putting Curtis on the defensive. Curtis' entire affirmative work on the first proposition could have been done in three speeches. Brother Arceneaux successfully exposed Mormonism and taught the truth to hundreds of people. It was reported that Brother Arceneaux was a lawyer and would defend any doctrine for the money. This was soon shown to be false, and he steadily grew in favor with the crowds until the very last. From six hundred to one thousand people attended every session. Some went two hours before time to begin, in order to get a seat. So far as we know, this was the first religious discussion ever conducted in this city. Elder William Fligg, of London, Ontario, Canada, moderated for "Apostle" Curtis; Brother J. W. Shepherd, of Detroit, Mich., moderated for Brother Arceneaux. Brother Shepherd thoroughly understands how to do this work; and we are convinced that if he had not been on the ground to see that the rules agreed upon were obeyed, the good would not have been accomplished that we are certain was accomplished. He demonstrated that debates can be conducted without mudslinging. Curtis tried all along to disregard the rules; but the audiences saw the advantage of obeying them, and seemed to indorse the course of Brethren Arceneaux and Shepherd in the conduct of the discussion.

At the conclusion of the debate Brother Arceneaux preached four times. Two took membership and three were baptized. One was a Roman Catholic. We are hoping that others will accept the truth as a resuit of the debate. We have only one small congregation in this thriving city of almost one hundred thousand souls

A Brand-New Book THE TALE OF THE TAYLORS DELONG RICE

PELONG RICE

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their eloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of ciernal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of Delong Rice, Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic stary of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore impublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political cumpnign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase.

Notes From San Antonio.

BY W. D. RILLS.

The churches in San Antonio, Texas, recently enjoyed a visit from Brother J. C. McQuiddy. While we did not send for him, nor did he ask us if he might come, yet we enjoyed having him with us. He was not on a preaching trip, and it took some persuasion to get him to preach; yet he finally consented, preaching once at Grove Avenue and once at Denver Heights. His lessons are plain, practical, and delivered in a way which shows the speaker to have "been with Jesus." It is a real delight to the churches of San Antonio to have such men as J. C. McQuiddy visit us. He was here on account of his health, but manifested his interest in the cause of Christ by helping us in every way he could. We love him and shall be glad for him to visit us again.

The workers in San Antonio, particularly Brother Phillips and myself, appreciate the good things Brother McQuiddy had to say of us in a recent issue of the Gospel Advocate, It helps much to make us feel that our efforts have not been entirely in vain in this city, and that the Lord is good and gracious and has lovingly blessed us all the way along. Without his guidance and care, we could not have succeeded.

Almost seven years ago I was invited to move to this great city and assist in building up the cause of New Testament Christianity. I found two small but determined congregations, poor in this world's goods, but willing to spend and be spent for the work of the Lord. We have never done anything very great, nor have we ever had any very great results, yet we do feel that our work has been constant and permanent. I spent more than six years with the Denver Heights congregation, and am now helping to build up another congregation in another part of the city. Our work starts with flattering prospects. We have almost one hundred members, and among them some of the strongest Christians I have ever known. There is no friction in the congregation, our attendance is good, the contributions are good, and the work is a genuine pleasure. But with such people as we have in this little congregation, it could not be otherwise. We have a splendid location on Grove Avenue. and hope to be able to give good reports of the work there all the way along. We were fortunate in securing Brother T. W. Phillips to take my place with the Denver Heights Church. Brother Phillips is a most excellent preacher and a wide-awake worker. He has done a most excellent work since he has been here, about thirty having been added to the congregation since he came, sixty days ago. In the near future we hope to be able to start other congregations.

Tenpenny.

Martha T. Tenpenny was born on July 13, 1870, and died on January 13, 1921. She was born into the family of God when she was about sixteen years old, and remained faithful until death. For months she suffered much, but bore her suffering with that degree of patience that is characteristic of God's children. "Though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil; for thou art with me; thy rod and thy staff, they comfort me." She has fallen asleep in Jesus, there to sweetly sleep till the resurrection morn. She leaves two brothers to mourn her death. May they live such lives that there may be a happy reunion in the beautiful land. Funeral services were conducted by the writer. J. P. Curlee.

Crews.

After a few days' suffering Sister Felicia Simms Crews departed this life, at her home in Lawrenceburg, Tenn., on March 17, 1921, aged seventy-three years. Sister Crews was preceded by her husband, Brother D. B. Crews, two years ago. She leaves four sons and one daughter—Billy, James T., John G., and Frank Crews, and Sister Thomas McArtor. Sister Crews was a most amiable Christian. This was touchingly manifested by the number that called at her home during her short illness. She was a true and devoted mother, always taking a deep interest in the welfare of her children. The interment was at Mount Ararat, preceded by services at the home, conducted by J. E. Thornberry and T. C. King, of the church of Christ. T. C. King.

MeAdams.

Sister McAdams, after an illness of several months, passed away, at her home in Lawrenceburg, Tenn., on March 4, 1921, at the age of sixty-nine years. She leaves her husband, two children, Mrs. T. B. Heyer and Miss Eula McAdams, six grandchildren, one great-grandchild, besides many good triends, to mourn her death. She had been a member of the church for thirty years; and being possessed of a meek and quiet spirit, her death was a just cause for grief. But we feel sure that her good life is not dead, but will live on in the hearts and lives of others while the ages come and go. The funeral took place on Sunday, March 6, conducted by the writer of this notice. Interment in the Mimosa cemetery. A large number of friends and loved ones attended the obsequies. The bereaved have our sincere condolence. T. C. King.

Hodges.

Sister Nora Hodges, wife of Brother J. H. Hodges, died at her home, near Lake City, Fla., on March 5, 1921, after a short season of intense suffering. She was laid to rest in the burial ground at the old church house at Huntsville, there to await the trump of God to call her forth to put on her crown of life and enter in through the gates into the beautiful city of God, where God "shall wipe away every tear from their eyes; and death shall be no more; neither shall there be mourning, nor crying, nor pain, any more: the first things are passed away." (Rev. 21: 4.) Sister Hodges was only nineteen years old at the time of her death. She was a lovable character in the community and a faithful Christian. She was baptized by the writer on April 14, 1920. While she rests from her labors, her works will follow her, and at the judgment souls may be ready to meet God as a result of her Christian influence. Let us meet her there. J. O. BARNES.

Allbritten.

G. W. Allbritten was born on February 14, 1846, and departed this life on December 31, 1920. He was married to Nannie E. Moore on August 17, 1871. To this union six children were born—two boys and four girls. Two of the girls preceded him to the spirit land. He obeyed the gospel when a young man, and ever lived a devoted Chris-tian life. Besides his aged and feeble wife, he leaves two sons, two daugh-ters, fourteen grandchildren, three great-grandchildren, and other rela-tives, as well as a host of friends, to mourn their loss. Brother Allbritten was a faithful husband, a good father, and a quiet Christian man. For a number of years be served as an elder of the Berea Church, in Johnson County, Ill., and was loved by all who knew him. He Berea cemetery. He was buried in the Funeral services were conducted by the writer. In the death of this godly man, not alone his family, but the church and the com-munity as well, have lost one of the best men I ever knew. May we all emulate his life, that we may meet him in the city of God. L. E. Jones.

Davis.

California Whig Kirk was born on June 29, 1848; was married to S. H. Davis in 1863; obeyed the gospel in 1866; and entered into rest on January 31, 1921. "Aunt Whig" is gone, her work on earth is over, but her memory will live always in the hearts of those who knew and loved her best. Her long life with her husband was so pleasant and happy, and we like to think that they will meet again in the better life. In his own words, he had "loved her since she was a little girl." They reared to manhood and womanhood three sons and three daughters. She was a faithful Christian, ever ready to defend the truth and help the needy. She was indeed "given to hospitality," and we never failed to leave her presence cheered and encouraged. When her body was racked with pain, she greeted all with her cheery smile. She was unselfish and considerate of others, and so appreciative of the kindness of her many friends. Through our tears we look up and thank God for his prom-Brother W. S. A Word of Warning.

BY T. W. PHILLIPS.

Preachers' meetings and lecture weeks have become quite popular of late in Texas, Arkansas, and Oklahoma, among "us loyal folk." I am wondering if quite a few of us will not get an invitation from "the sweet-spirited brethren" at an early date to come over to "one of the villages in the plain of Ono" for a conference. There seems to be such a little difference now between us, really no difference except in the name. They are "sweet-spirited," and we are "the loyal brethren." They have the machinery already organized and steam up, and Brother McPherson and L. D. Anderson could open the door, and we could all join now and have full fellowship with them without any real sacrifice. West of the big Mississippi River a great per cent of us have gone off after Russellism, Adventism, Bollism, Janes-McCalebism, or Bradleyism, or some other kind of "ism," until there are only a few of us left, anyway, to "contend for the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints;" and those of us left are seemingly weaklings or cowardly. while not a few of us have blackened our character in some way; and it might be a good thing to just surrender the work to the "digressives" and be done with it. But, O my God! How can we afford it? The judgment day is coming, and we will all have to give an account to Him for our stewardship. So, in view of these things, I beg to pronounce myself a soldier; and I am in the fight. I shall use only "the sword of the Spirit" as my weapon. But I have no time to meet with the enemy in the villages of Ono, Oklahoma, Texas, nor Arkansas, te compromise my Lord's will and way. Neither will I compromise with the isms above named, nor will I fellowship the promoters of those isms. The church as the Lord planted it, and the gospel as the apostles preached it, is my glory; and in this way only can I "go . . , into all the world, and preach the gospel."

A Trip to Alabama.

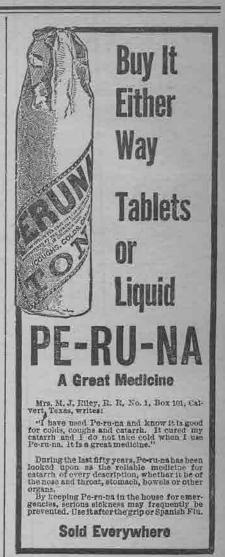

BY W. P. SIMS.

I preached twice last Lord's day (March 27) at Bell Factory, Ala. This is the home of Brother G. W. Moore. It has been about fifteen years since I was first there. Brother Moore's family is an exception; father, mother, and ten children-five boys and five girlsall Christians. Brother Moore runs a dairy farm, and everything runs like clockwork-no noise, no friction. Five of his children are married; some of the others are farming and some are teaching. All of them do what they do with determination. The youngest son, Howard, seventeen years old, read sixteen verses in Ps. 119 for me on Sunday night. He finished high school on Friday before. I advised him to take in David Lipscomb College, and then preach the gospel to the muchneglected people of Alabama. Would that we had more Moores like the Moores at Bell Factory! Brother E. L. Cambron did the first preaching there about twenty years ago. Then Brethren Thomas Shaw, Fount Dearing, J. D. Floyd, Ellett Boyd, Bryant, Bradley, Luther Jones, Joe Jones, and J. J. Horton, I have promised to be with them for a meeting this year, provided I continue to improve. In March of last year I had the influenza, and seemed to be tired all the year. It seems now that I will be able to preach some this year.

On the first day of July I will be seventy-five years old. The Lord has blessed me in so many ways. I feel nearer him every day that comes. I never let a day pass without reading the Bible and kneeling in prayer. I cannot explain how God answers prayer. So many things cannot be explained. He tells his children to pray. He says he will hear them, and I believe what he says. Unbelief is the besetting sin of the times. We must trust the Lord for all his prom-

"What is the greatest temptation of a busy, purposeful Christian? Is it not to take his life into his own hands and carve out a career of service for himself instead of being willing to search out God's plan for him and follow that? Especially when the work we want to do is good work, we find it hard to realize that our carefullythought-out plans may not coincide with God's purposes. But the only success for a Christian is to learn what God would have him do, and to do that up to the limit of his powers."

Notes From Fort Worth, Texas.

BY T. W. PHILLIPS.

I am just in from San Antonio, Texas, where I spent two months. February and March, in the work of the Lord. We held a meeting during the four Sundays in February, and after that we had Monday-night union services at the three different congregations-Grove Avenue, Denver Heights, and South Flores Street, Then on Wednesday night we had our respective prayer meetings. thirty odd members were added to the Denver Heights congregation during my two-months' work there.

To our happy surprise, the beloved J. C. McQuiddy, of Nashville, Tenn., paid us a visit while he was taking a needed rest; and he preached one time for Brother Bills at Grove Avenue, and once for me at Denver Heights. His solemn, earnest manifestation of humility and meekness, with his powerful presentation of practical lessons of Christian living and work, will not be soon forgotten. It was my personal pleasure to room with Brother McQuiddy while he stayed in San Antonio. Then I gladly helped him with the Gospel Advocate all I could, from the pulpit as well as privately.

Brother W. D. Bills is doing a wonderful work at Grove Avenue. Bills has more friends, to have worked there so long (seven years), than could hardly be expected. He is one of our strongest Texas preachers.

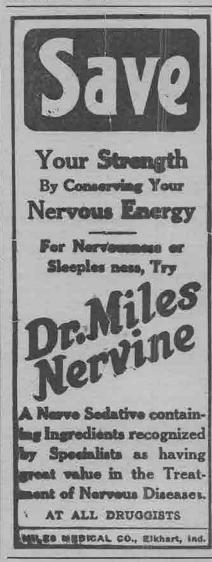

I will now be in my routine of protracted-meeting work for the spring and summer. Without looking at my diary, and as I recall from memory, I go to Osceola, Texas; Wewoka and Shawnee, Okla.; Centerville and Midway, Texas; Nashville, Ark.; and maybe to a place or two I do not now recall

My little son, Tom Wendell Phillips, may be had for a few meetings at weak places where they need help. He is not quite seventeen, but he can do the work all right. O. E. Phillips, my eldest son, has done a great work at Eastland, Texas. If I had forty boys, I would have them all make gospel preachers, if I could, provided they make good men.

The Situation in Tulare, Cal.

BY L. MEADE WILLIAMS.

If we had our house painted on the outside (and it is very much needed), we would have a house that would be an honor to any community. When we undertook the task of building a house of worship in Tulare, we asked the brotherhood to assist us, as we were only a handful of brethren and sisters, and none of us blessed with an abundance of this world's goods. Outside of our own congregation, we have received from different congregations and individuals, all told, $173.68. Of this amount, there was received from brethren and churches in California, $96.50; from Kentucky, $53.18; from Texas, $12; from Missouri, $10; from Oklahoma, $2. Our present indebtedness is a little over three thousand dollars. Had we not been assured by brethren to whom we talked concerning the matter that we would receive help, and had we not felt that it was much needed and that we would receive the cooperation of the brethren at large, we would not have undertaken the task. If any one would like to know about the situation here and the struggle we have made and are now making, we would refer you to J. W. Dunn, of Grand Prairie, Texas; C. A. Norred, Memphis, Tenn.; T. B. Larimore, Berkeley, Cal.; W. H. Trice, Fresno, Cal.; L. D. Perkins, Armona, Cal.; G. W. Riggs, Los Angeles, Cal.: E. M. Borden, Riverside, Cal.; or E. C. Love, Santa Rosa, Cal.

In making the deed, we tried to make it secure, so that those desiring to worship according to the New Testament plan may hold the house; hence the restrictive clause. Brethren, we are now making this last appeal for help; and if, after investigation, you feel that it would be money given that would be for the good of the Master's cause, we ask that you send a contribution at once, and it will be thankfully received and acknowledged. My address is 129 South D Street.

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be fairly described as "a carbonated, flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea-1 cupful._____1.54 gr. (hot) (5 fl. or.)

Green tea-1 glassful_____2.02 gr. (cold) (8 fl. oz., exclusive of ice)

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

prises, Inc., Montgomery, Ala.—Dear Sirs: I am returning herewith the complimentary pass tendered by you to me as a minister of the city. I am very grateful for any courtesies extended to me which In any way show appreciation of the work of a minister of the gospel. I thank you, therefore, for this act of kindness, for which you have a right to expect my appreciation.

I cannot conscientiously patronize the theaters nor encourage the same as they are run to-day, uncensored, also since the management operates on the Lord's day in violation of both divine and civil law. It therefore becomes the duty of the minister who loves character more than entertainment to exert himself to create sentiment against the unregulated shows, which, to my mind, is one of the greatest educators of evil extant. The following reasons are given for the above conclusion:

A survey was made of three hundred and eighty-eight pictures in the order in which they were presented in the theaters, and only thirty-five of this number were reported to be free from objectionable features. The remaining three hundred and fifty-three were found to show one or more of the following objectionable points: (1) Marriage intrigue; (2) divorce; (3) immodest. dress; (4) social or individual drinking; (5) indecent cabaret dancing; (6) interior of houses of ill fame, gambling halls, etc.; (7) undue freedom of contact between the sexes; (8) smoking by girls and women; (9) realistic struggle by girl or woman to defend honor; (10) tense nerve-racking situations.

When the films are so censored that most of the objectionable features referred to above are removed, a minister may encourage them by his presence, but until then it should be his pleasure to warn the public of the danger there is in such impressions made upon the plastic minds of the

I grant that some good, wholesome pictures are shown; but the majority are objectionable, and, therefore, are to be warned against.

May we hope for the day to come when men will love character more than money, and people will desire edification more than entertainment.

Again thanking you, I am, Yours truly, FRED M. LITTLE, Minister.

We heartily commend Brother Little's earnest and courageous stand for the right. He is right.

Indian Missionary Correspondence.

The following correspondence will be of interest, as it will throw some light upon the famine in India, also upon the methods employed by Brother Jelley and those of denominational missionaries:

American Marathi Mission, Ahmednagar, Decean, India, November 24, 1920. —E. S. Jelley, Kankhal, U. P.—Dear Sir: I have never yet had the pleasure of meeting you, but have only heard that you are actively interested in Christian work for Mangs. I am an Indian missionary of the American Marathl Mission, and now superintend its work in the Parner District, for-merly in charge of Dr. R. A. Hume. I also look after the church of the Lamb in Ahmednagar, in which we have some Mang Christians. These have been reduced to a miserable poverty, owing to famine and high prices. Be-cause this church is financially independent of the mission, I cannot ask for any solid help for these people from the mission. Any ordinary charity will be of little use to them in these days. What they need is a capital to carry on their rope trade, the proceeds of which can be used for their support and social betterment, under good supervision. I appeal to you for this help, if you can kindly give it. I do not think that the technical point of their membership in another denomination will interfere with your helping them in this age of missionary cooperation. The church will gratefully accept your gift and make a proper use of it. We could We could use Rs. 1000 profitably.

With Christian greetings to you, Yours sincerely, R. S. MODAK.

Kankhal, U. P., December 3, 1920.— Dear Mr. Modak: Your letter of November 24 received, and it has been receiving my consideration. I have never met either you or your late respected father, but I have often heard you both spoken of, and always well spoken of. I also heard that your father was interested in my work. As to your proposition, I have been much perplexed concerning it. As I understand it, you are seeking assistance for members of the congregation known as the 'church of the Lamb,' in which case I suppose you would probably refuse assistance to any baptized Christian not upon your rolls. This would put me in the position of personally refusing to interest myself in such a proposition for my own converts and baptized brethren, yet assisting the Mangs of the Congregational denomination. However, the principal trouble with me is this: I believe that famine relief work should be of a nonecclesiastical sort; and when funds have been sent me for famine relief, or funds which I felt justified in using for that purpose, I have used them without regard to whether the recipients were Christians or not. Of course I do not assume to criticize the work of others, but I do extremely regret the tendency among the heathen to seek baptism in order to secure assistance; and not wishing to be swamped with such people, I have, for my own part, found it necessary to avoid any assistance which could be construed as an indication that any one could better his financial condition by being baptized. Aside from the above considerations, I greatly appreciate your generous course toward our people; to show which appreciation I inclose Rs. 10 to be used by you in the relief work, providing it is not, as I have supposed, for members only. erwise kindly use it in the purchase of copies or portions of the word of God. Very sincerely yours,

E. S. JELLEY.

Word From Mississippi.

BY M. C. CAYCE,

On Sunday, March 27, morning and night, and on Saturday night before, I preached again at Old Union, in Carroll County. The attendance and interest were much better than on my former visit to them; and they had kept their promise and had not failed to meet every Lord's day for worship. and I believe they will continue to meet regularly. I have promised to hold a meeting for them, beginning on July 10. It is indeed sad that Christians will forget that in becoming such they obligate themselves not to forsake the assembling of themselves together and to "lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset," and to "run with patience the race that is set before" them. The only brother at Old Union who is supposed to lead was absent one Sunday, being sick; but that did not prevent these who did come from worshiping, as it had been doing in the past. Two brethren who had never led before said, "I will try," and of course they succeeded. "I will try" can accomplish wonders; "I can't" means failure.

Our faithful ones in Jackson met as usual in the courthouse. Brother Joe Ridley led the services acceptably and profitably. I think it will not be long until we can secure a permanent meeting place; I am now negotiating for one.

Macedonian calls continue to come in. One received this week says: "We are badly in need of help here. There are only a few lady members here, no men, and no church of Christ nearer than several mfles, and that is digressive. I would so much like to get a congregation started in this neighborhood. There are many around here who have never heard a true gospel sermon. Can't you come and hold a meeting here?" I wish it were possible to answer all these calls. I shall keep busy and do all that I can. Brethren, "pray ye the Lord of the harvest, that he will send forth laborers into his harvest."

Remember, I want the names and addresses of all in or near Jackson that I might visit and interest. Address me at 720 South Galistin Street.

Q.

Edifying as the Need May Be

The Need of Patience.

As we study the lesson of the "final perseverance of the saints," we should not fail to note how the element of patience is interwoven with it. Recalling for our example the heroes of faith, Paul writes: "Let us run with patience the race that is set before us." In writing to the Thessalonian church, he said, "We glory in you for your patience;" and in another passage he weaves the word into a benediction: "The Lord direct your hearts into the love of God, and into the patience of Christ." (2 Thess, 3: 5.)

We must exercise patience, not only when things are bright and cheerful and when it appears that we are making real progress, but we must also exercise patience in the face of seeming failure. It is hardest to be patient when we suffer. "Take for example of suffering and patience," says James, "the prophets who spoke in the name of the Lord." The context shows that this refers to the prophets of the Old Testament dispensation, and not to those of the apostolic age. And if we wish to know how patient they were in the face of suffering, turn again to the eleventh chapter of Hebrews, where Paul amplifies the subject. These prophets sang of the world's Redeemer, but they never saw him. They described in glowing language and in beautiful figure the establishment of his kingdom, but they never participated in it. They yearned for blessings in Christ which are as free as the air and water to us, but they never received them, "God having provided some better thing concerning us, that apart from us they should not be made perfect." They may have been disappointed, but they exercised a glorious patience. David expressed the spirit of them all when he wrote: "Wait for Jehovah: be strong, and let thy heart take courage; yea, wait thou for Jehovah."

The Lesson of the Leopard.

It is said that the leopard does not chase its prey as other animals, but pursues it by leaping. If with three or four jumps it cannot capture its prey, it gives up the chase in indignation. This reminds us of many would-be Christians. At the start they go forth with leaps and bounds; but if they fall to vanquish the enemy in a little while, they give up in despair. Every now and then they start up again, usually during protracted meetings. They resemble a comet that blazes out in the heaven for a moment and then sinks down into complete oblivion. They are, like a horse that is spurred, flery enough at first, but after a while jaded and exhausted.

The Ant That Went "Over the Top."

When Solomon would give us an encouraging lesson, a lesson of perseverance, from animal life, he did not select the leopard, but he selected a more lowly and less pretentious specimen. "The ants are a people not strong, yet they provide their food in the summer." (Prov. 30: 25.) Once I say an ant with a crumb in its mouth trying to get over a small wall. It was a small wall to me, but it must have seemed mountain-high to that ant with its large burden. It carried the load halfway to the top, and then, with strength exhausted, it fell. It took up its burden and ascended the wall, and again it fell. This it did the third time, the fourth time, the fifth time, the sixth time, but the seventh time that ant with its burden "went over the top."

Shall we not learn a lesson from one of the lowliest of God's creatures? And the lesson is: "Never give up the fight." If you have fallen down, get up and try again. Don't think too much of your load; think of your goal. It is heaven and eternal life. Don't allow Satan to drag you down, but let Jesus lift you up. Be brave, be steadfast, be unmovable, and "be patient therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord." In one word, "persevere," for he himself hath said: "He that endureth to the end shall be saved."

He who never connects God with his daily life knows nothing of the spiritual meanings and uses of life; nothing of the calm, strong patience with which Ills may be endured; of the gentle, tender comfort which the Father's love can minister; of the blessed rest to be realized in his forgiving love, his tender Fatherhood; of the deep, peaceful sense of the Infinite One ever near, a refuge and strength.—Farrar.

"New Digressives" - Who Are They, Anyway?
BY J. OSCAR PAISLEY.

There has been a considerable space of time passed out and forever gone since I have endeavored to write an article for publication, during which time to the present I have read a number of articles on the "college question" written by other brethren; and I see quite a lot written by some one or more in a ridiculous manner, calling somebody "new digressives" just because they differ on the "college question." Now let us see if we can find who they are. We know to "digress" is to go beyond that which is written, in addition, subtraction, modification, or speculation on the word of God.

I believe it is in perfect harmony with the will of God in Christ Jesus our Lord to teach the word of God at any time and place opportunity affords us; and I am not by myself, either. Paul said: "Prove all things; hold fast that which is good." (I Thess. 5: 21.) Therefore, I realize I am duty bound to prove what I shall say on this subject, which I will endeavor to do as I pass on, God being my helper.

Inasmuch as Paul said, "All scripture is given by inspiration of God" etc. (2 Tim. 3: 16, 17), and we believe it to be true, therefore we are all willing to take his testimony on the subject all the way through.

Now listen. Paul said in Phil. 4: 9: "Those things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do: and the God of peace shall be with you." What did Paul do, that we should follow his example? He said: "Be ye followers of me, even as I also am of Christ." (1 Cor. 11: 1.) We find him teaching the word of the Lord to a great multitude of people in the presence of King Agrippa. (Acts 26.) Then, if we do likewise, the God of peace will be with us, for we are told to do as he did. And In other places he taught the word of the Lord in like man ner; but this one place will prove this point, on which we all agree. Not only so, but we find him writing to churches and brethren, since he could not reach all of them at one time, telling them what and how to do, and saying to them: "The rest will I set in order when I come." (1 Cor. 11: 34.) Shall we do that? "Those things, which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do." Sure, we must write: Hence, literature, if you please. But some one says: "No, no: using literature is digression, and the wrath of God will be with you." But what saith the word of the Lord, if we do as Paul did? "The God of peace shall be with you." Again, we see him teaching in a private way the word of the Lord to a man and his family-the Philippian jailer. (Acts 16.) Therefore, when we teach privately the word to our fellow man. we follow his example, and the God of peace will be with us. Next we see him preaching to a congregation on Lord's day when the brethren met to break bread. (Acts 20: 1-12.) The God of peace will be with us if we do likewise, and do not forbid others doing the same. Brethren, let us not hinder the preaching of the gospel at any time.

"Well," says some one, "I am especially opposed to the Pible's being taught in schools or colleges—thus the 'Bible college'—in order to educate the young; for it takes the work from the church, and the glory must be given to God in the church. (Eph. 3: 21.)" Let us examine that a little. If we cannot glorify God only in the church assembly, we are deprived of giving him the glory in our homes; and should we meet with a man by the wayside badly in need of help, or a poor, destitute widow, we would have to walt to get into the church assembly to get the money out of the treasury in order to give God the glory "in the church." Why, can we not give the glory to God in everyday life, in the name of a child of God, that it may be done "in the church?" Sure. When Paul went down to Ephesus and baptized those twelve and laid his hands on them, "he went into the synaogue, and spoke boldly for the space of three months, disputing ["contending"-Webster] and persuading the things concerning the kingdom of God. He left there and entered "the school of one Tyrannus, and disputed, or contended, "daily." How long did he stay there-a week? "And this continued by the space of two years." What did he do-put the school out of commission? The result was, "all they which dwelt in Asia heard the word of the Lord Jesus, both Jews and Greeks." (Read Acts 19: 1-10.) Smith's Bible Dictionary says: "Tyrannus was a Greek, and a public teacher of philosophy and rhetorie; and Paul occupied a part of his schoolroom, and taught the gospel for two years." "Those things which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do: and the God of peace shall be with you." Brethren, I care not who owned the school, whether an individual, a company, or a brotherhood, or how many officers and teachers it took to run it, it was a school with a faculty of at least two, and Paul was one of them, and Tyrannus was the other; and Paul occupied the Bible department for two years, and taught the gospel to both Jews and Greeks, to the extent that all the dwellers in Asia "beard the word of the Lord." May God help us to ever be faithful to follow closely Paul's examples, that the God of peace may be with us.

"Well," says one, "if we follow every example of Paul, we will have to go into the temple and purify ourselves according to the law. (Acts 21: 17-24.)" All right; if you are a Jew, and will do that as a Jewish family duty, as Paul did, and not as an item of the New Testament order of worship, I have no objection; for such right was given to the Jews only, and not to the Gentiles. (Acts 21: 25.)

"Well," says another, "I am against the Bible schools from the fact that some of them have become so corrupted that I discard the whole business." 'Now let us see, 'The Bible school is one of the divine plans given by inspiration of God, according to Paul, by which the gospel light should shine into the hearts of men and women in bringing them to the knowledge of the truth. Since some schools have become corrupted, we will throw down the whole business! The church of Christ is a divine institution which God planned and which he brought into existence through the death of Jesus Christ our Lord, in which should reign truth and righteousness supreme, to the salvation of souls of the sons and daughters of men (Acts 2: 47); but since some congregations have become so ungodly and full of corruption, we will just throw the whole business down and have nothing to do with it! Again, the home is a divinely given institution in which unity, love, and peace should reign ever supreme among men and women (Matt. 19: 1-5); but since some homes have become so corrupted with idolatry, adultery, fornication, and all such ungodliness, to be consistent, let us forsake the idea of a home, turn the whole business down, and have no homes at all! Not only so, but literature (written lessons) is divinely authorized (1 Cor. 11: 34; Phil. 4: 9); but because so much corrupt teaching has been written, we will never write anything more on religious matters! Teaching orally is a divine plan for teaching the word of the Lord (Matt. 28; 18-20; Acts 2: 19: 9, 10); but because there is so much ungodly, dangerous doctrine put forth from the pulpit, we will quit the whole business and never do any more teaching or preaching. Again, studying the sacred Scriptures is divinely authorized (John 5; 39; 2 Tim. 2; 15); but since there is so much corruption in men manifested in reading the Bible for argument's sake and "perverse disputing of men of corrupt minds and destitute of the truth." we will cut out the whole business and never read the Bible any more, for such men suppose "that gain is godliness" (1 Tim. 6: 5)! The same can be said of professed Christianity, corrupted among men and women with vain worship, all over the land. But why pile up any more? Can we not see at a glance where such a conclusion, when run to seed, will drive us? Back into the darkest ages of blinded heathenism that ever cursed the human family since God created man.

Brethren, if we follow closely Paul's examples and admonitions as above stated, there is no "digression," no departing from the faith, is there? But those who will not so follow, and who hinder every one else from doing so if they can, what, in the name of high heaven and all that heaven means, have they done? Behold, "new digressives"—who are they, anyway? I will leave it with the readers to answer the question.

Beloved, when we came to such a conclusion, we make ourselves judges of God's business and claim that we know more about carrying out the divine plan of human redemption than God did when he made it. Question: "Who hath known the mind of the Lord, that he may instruct him?" (1 Cor. 2: 16.)

"Well," says one, "we will have to follow Paul in divers miracles and tongues, then; he did that, too." All right; if you live in the age of miracles and possess the power, as did Paul, I have no objection; but if not, I would not advise you to undertake it. Miracles and the miraculous age have served their purpose completely and passed out (1 Cor. 13), but the teaching of the word of the Lord has not passed out. So let us be ever faithful and heed Paul's examples and his admonition, that the God of peace may be with us to give us comfort in our labors while here," endeavoring to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace," that in the hearts of men and women God may be all in all, ever teaching his word at all times and places as opportunity comes to us. "To whom be glory and dominion forever and ever. Amen."

Explanation From Brother George.

Dear Brother: I hate to trespass on your patience and kindness again, and do so only to make some explanations concerning matters that we have been discussing, that I failed to do in my other communications.

I am glad to know that you do not agree with some that the local churches do not make up one world-wide church of God.

You and Brother Jackson object to my contention that there are no Christians in sectdom, or what I call "Babylon." I know of only two classes in the New Testament—the church of God (under several names) and the false religious represented by the dragon and beasts in Rev. 12, 12. These two embrace the population of the earth, and every man and woman is in one or the other, and no one in both at the same time.

Brother Jackson says: "Babylon is a synonym for confusion." That is true; it has been so from Babel down to this day; and I ask if this beast religion, in its various forms, is not "confusion confounded?" The dragon and the beasts have confronted the church from the beginning, on through the Dark Ages, and the conflict goes on yet.

Babylon murdered the Savior and millions of his followers, and took the Bible away from the people and left them in darkness for centuries, till Henry VIII., as grand a villain as ever lived, gave it back to his people.

Now the question, "What is a Christian?" I answer, a Christian is one who believes and obeys the gospel. Then one must have the gospel to believe and obey it. Next, were there any Christians through the Dark Ages and on down to the time of the Campbells. Stone, and others? It is possible that some may have retained enough of the gospel during this long reign of darkness, while the church was groping in the wilderness of ignorance and superstition, to enable them to become Christians. No one knows. But if there were any, they were not in, or a part of, Babylon; they were in the church. Whole-hearted belief of and obedlence to, the uncorrupted gospel makes one a Christian, and nothing else can do it; and no one but a Christian can be in the church. A mixture of truth and error, or error straight, can put one into Babylon, but only truth can put one into the church.

Any one in Babylon is not a Christian, nor in God's church; but a Babylonian can believe and obey the truth, and that will translate him out of Babylon into the church of God; but he is never in both at the same time. Now for an explanation. To say that one is not a Christian is not equivalent to saying that he will be lost, or damned. If it is, then I admit that all who have not obeyed the gospel will be lest; but I do not believe that, and will give my reasons. In Rom. 3: 19 we read: "Now we know that whatsoever the law saith, it saith to them who are under the law." Again, Rom. 2: 14, 15: "For when the Gentiles [heathen], which have not the law, do by nature the things contained in the law, these, having not the law, are a law unto themselves." Now, when the heathen, and many others who are not counted heathen, are born and brought up in ignorance and darkness, without opportunity to know the gospel, do the best they can according to their light, I believe they will be saved; but they are not Christians and not in the church of God. All, Christians or heathen, will be judged by the law they are under.

Campbell. Stone, Scott, and others were in Babylon, and were not Christians, nor in the church, till they found the truth, believed and obeyed it; and when they did that, it translated them out of Babylon into the church of God as Christians. They might have been saved while in Babylon, on account of their honesty and ignorance, the ignorance imposed upon them by Babylon. God knows all hearts; and when one does the best he can, as they seem to have done, God knows it, and that is all that he requires of any one.

I agree that every Christian is in the church, whether a local one or not; but no heathen, or Babylonian, is in it. anywhere; and no Christian is a heathen, or Babylonian, because his obedience to the gospel brings him out of those states into the church.

Now, Brother Kurfees, I send this in order to show you just how I understand these matters. Do with this as you think best. I have made it as brief as I could.

With sincere respect and regard, Your brother,

A. M. GEORGE.

P.S. I wish that all Christians would quit calling Babylonians 'brethren." They are no kin to us; but when they are called "brethren." it is a virtual acknowledgment that they are Christians. I regard it as a sin on our part and an injustice to them.

A Prayer.

Grant me, O Lord, a glad and spacious heart To hold the love thou dost impart.

With glowing soul help me to be Thy messenger of charity.

Give me those things that needful be, But help me higher things to see.

If poverty should be my lot, May I by thee be ne'er forgot.

If store of wealth should me surround, May I in higher joy abound.

May this my chiefest joy e'er be—
That I, in heaven, thy face shall see.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field By B. C. GOODPASTURE

Paul's Summary Charge.

The substance of the two Pauline letters to Timothy is condensed and concentrated in that farewell charge: "Preach the word; be urgent in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort, with all long-suffering and teaching." (2 Tim. 4: 2.) This charge is a fourfold command—that is, four leading features of a preacher's work are enjoined.

1. "Preach the word." This is too plain to be misunderstood. "Preach"-literally, proclaim, publish as a herald -"the word." The injunction does not involve the necessity of theorizing and speculating about "the word," It is exclusive of all such vagaries; otherwise it would contradict other statements from Paul. For example: "But foolish and ignorant questionings refuse, knowing that they gender strifes." (2 Tim. 2: 23.) The great apostle did not stop with telling Timothy to preach; he told him what to preach-"the word." By particularizing what is to be preached-"the word "-Paul forbids the preaching of anything else; just as God, by commanding specifically the use of gopher wood, forbade the use of any other kind of wood in the making of the ark. "The word" is synonymous with the gospel. Peter said: "This is the word which by the gospel is preached unto you." (I Pet. 1: 25.) Perhaps Paul is clearer: "Now I make known unto you, brethren, the gospel which I preached unto you, which also ye received, wherein also ye stand, by which also ye are saved, if ye hold fast the word which I preached unto you, except ye believed in vain. (1 Cor. 15: 1, 2.) Notice that what is called "the gospel" in verse 1 is called "the word" in verse 2. "The word" is the seed of the kingdom. It will produce Christians. It is God's power to save, (Rom, 1: 16.) If nothing but "the word" had been preached, nothing but Christians would be found in the religious world to-day. If nothing but the pure gospel of Christ had been proclaimed, we should not now be humiliated and hindered by the spectacle of a broken and belligerent brotherhood. "In season, out of season"-at all times-"preach the word."

2. "Reprove"-literally, test, convict, refute. This element of the charge demands that false teachers be exposed; it requires that pernicious doctrines be refuted. It neither encourages nor countenances that sickly and cowardly sentimentalism that refuses to defend and discuss the great doctrines of the faith. This maudlin sentimentalism indicates the prevalence of a dreadful malady, the softening of the moral spine. Jesus and Paul were continually refuting some baseless tradition or false doctrine. They lived in an atmosphere of controversy. Jesus silenced the Pharisees, Sadducees, and Herodians in the discussions in Jerusalem; and Paul met the Athenians in their favorite haunts and preached, as opposed to their many false gods, the one true and living God. Stephen, one of the seven, disputed with the Libertines, the Cyrenians, the Alexandrians, and "them of Cilicia and Asia," and "they were not able to withstand the wisdom and the Spirit by which he spoke." (Acts 6: 9, 10.) Concerning the qualification of elders Paul said: "Holding to the faithful word which is according to the teaching, that he may be able both to exhort in the sound doctrine, and to convict the gainsayers." (Tit. 1: 9.) That ability to refute, to "convict the gainsayers," may be esteemed as of little value by some; but it is, nevertheless, part of the work of both elder and preacher.

3. "Rebuke." Sin is to be condemned without respect of persons. "Them that sin [be they great or small] rebuke before all, that others may fear." (1 Tim. 5: 20.) It takes courage to do this; but he who loves the sinner, while at the same time hating his sins, must and will do it. John the Baptist furnishes us a fine illustration of what Paul meant by the command, "Rebuke." Herod Antipas was living in adultery with Herodias, his brother Philip's wife, and John said unto him: "It is not lawful for thee to have her." (Matt. 14: 4.) McGarvey has well commented on this passage. His words follow: "The singular impartiality and fearlessness of John are here exhibited. rebuking the sins of the common people, and of the Pharisees and Sadducees, who had no civil power in their hands, he might be considered entirely safe; but when Herod, who was living in adultery with his brother's wife, and who had the power of life and death in his hand, came to hear him, the inquiry would naturally occur to the people: 'Will he rebuke Herod, as he has rebuked us?' To their surprise, no doubt, he administered the rebuke. The consequence was to be expected-he lost his liberty, and eventually his life. The timeservers of his day may have thought that he recklessly sacrificed his life and his continued usefulness; but subsequent ages, however they may fail to imitate him, have ever admired the nobility of his conduct. No man is worthy to stand before the people and call them to repentance who can wink at sin in high places and show a truckling respect of persons." Such was the way of Elijah, of Daniel, of Paul, and of every true messenger of

4. "Exhort "-admonish, comfort. A certain Joseph was surnamed by the apostles "Barnabas," "which is, being interpreted, Son of exhortation." (Acts 4: 36.) Barnabas' distinguishing powers were those of exhortation. We need more men like Barnabas. A race of sin-cursed, sin-tempted, broken-hearted, sorrowing, suffering people needs the consolation and exhortation which the saved one alone can bring from his Savior. Christians frequently fight their battles in silence and sorrow. They, and all, can meet the issues of life easier and more successfully, if comforted by the loving, sympathetic admonition of a trusted fellow man and fellow servant in Christ. Barnabas and Paul "returned to Lystra, and to Iconium, and to Antioch, confirming the souls of the disciples, exhorting them to continue in the faith, and that through many tribulations we must enter into the kingdom of God." (Acts 14: 21, 22.) Paul and Barnabas left an example, and Paul a command, that should be observed now o o

News Items.

The meeting conducted by home forces at West End Avenue began yesterday (April 3). It starts off well. There was one confession last night. The South Pryor and East Point brethren are giving us a splendid support by their presence and interest.

Brother O. D. Bearden preached at Griffin on Sunday. He gives a fine report of the work being done by the little congregation there.

Last week Brother L. K. Harding passed through our city en route to Gainesville, Fla., where he is now in a meeting.

The continuance and frequent fits of anger produce an evil habit in the soul, called "wrathfulness," or a propensity to be angry; which ofttimes ends in choler, bitterness, and morosity; when the mind becomes ulcerated, peevish, and querulous, and, like a thin, weak plate of iron, receives impression, and is wounded by the least occurrence,—Plutarch.

There is no sort of wrong deed of which a man can bear the punishment alone. You cannot isolate yourself and say that the evil which is in you shall not spread. Men's lives are as thoroughly blended with each other as the air they breathe; evil spreads as necessarily as disease. Every sin causes suffering to others besides those who commit it.—George Eliot.

WESTERN DEPARTMENT

By C. E. WOOLDRIDGE. 2018 Cullen Street, Dallas, Texas.

Brother Horace Busby, of Fort Worth, has recently held a meeting with the church at Waxahachie. Brother John E. Dunn labors with this church, and will give us a full report.

The church in Oak Cliff, Dallas, will begin a protracted meeting on Friday night, April 1. The brethren have recently bought a supply of good song books and have been practicing regularly for some weeks in order to bring their singing up to a high standard. Brother Horace Busby will do the preaching.

There have been five added to the Handley church recently. Splendid interest is being shown in all the work.

Brother C. R. Nichol spent several hours with us in Dallas last Friday. He has been in California since January 1, and was on his way to Pocahontas, Ark., for a meeting. From Arkansas he goes to Tennessee for a meeting in Knoxville and two meetings in Nashville.

J. B. Nelson, of Dallas, Texas, in a note addressed to me on March 21, says: "On Friday before the first Lord's day in this month I was called to Bertram to hold a meeting for a few brethren that had borrowed the Christian church house in which to hold services in the afternoon of each Sunday. We started in high, and we never had to change gear during the entire time of ten days. The song service was conducted by Brethren Acuff and Evridge, and it was all that any one could ask. The attendance was good from the start, and the interest was rapt at every service. There were twelve baptisms and three restored. We drew from all the denominations. The digressive ranks were weakened. The church of Christ is expecting to build a house this year. I was at Celeste last Sunday, and had a good day. I heard good reports of your work at Farmersville. You have made good there, as you always do. Any man who preaches and lives the gospel as you do will make good anywhere"

W. P. Skaggs, Itasca, Texas, writes: "Yesterday (March 20) was a good day with the church of Christ in Itasca. One restoration and one confession. The work seems to be increasing in interest, and all seem more and more determined to do greater things for the Lord. The church in Grandview has its temporary house of worship under construction and will soon be meeting in its own home."

From R. H. Howard, Holdenville, Okla., March 24: "On the fourth Sunday in February, morning and night, I preached at Valley View, and on the first Sunday in March, morning and night, I was with the brethren at Yeager. I have been trying to help these two congregations to get ready for their summer meetings, to be held by Brother S. C. Garner, of Bakersfield, Mo. The second Sunday in March I preached to home folks at the Cedar Street church of Christ in Holdenville. It was the first time I had been at home on Sunday for some time. On last Sunday I was with the brethren at Lamar, These brethren are trying to build up a good congregation at that place."

Corpus Christi, Texas.

BY J. C. M'Q.

During my vacation I spent a short time in Corpus Christi, Texas. Most of the time that I was there I had the pleasure of stopping with C. W. Sewell, who is devoting his life to the work of preaching the gospel. He is a strong gospel preacher, and has done much to advance primitive Christianity. I stayed also in the home of Brother DeHaven. F. J. Berry preaches for the church in Corpus Christi. Any church desiring a good preacher to hold a protracted meeting would do well to write F. J.

Berry, Corpus Christi, Texas. I heard him preach two most excellent sermons. His chief ambition is to preach the truth; he presents it in a kind, though firm and positive manner. He should be encouraged in the work and kept busy. He prefers not to preach all the time in Corpus Christi, but to devote considerable time in destitute fields. The church at Corpus Christi should make arrangements so that he can spend at least two or three months every year in destitute fields preaching the gospel of Christ.

I was never more royally treated than I was at Corpus Christi. There are splendid farming lands in every direction from Corpus Christi. The farms about Taft are in a very high state of cultivation, as the owners of this property have the means to put it in first-class condition. My stay was so pleasant there that I really hated to say goodby and start for home; but still duties were calling me, and after staying for a month from home one desires to return. This should remind us of our eternal home. When we get tired of the duties and responsibilities of life, it is always sweet and pleasant to go home and rest. When one has fought the last battle and gained the last victory, how indescribably sweet it will be to go home at last and dwell with Jesus, the angels, and the pure of every country, age, and clime!

Book Notes.

Have you seen a copy of "Life and Sermons of Jesse L. Sewell?" We have a few copies on hand and should be glad to have your order at once for this book. Price, $1.50 per copy.

We still have on hand a few copies of "Peloubet's Select Notes for 1921." The price of this book is $2.10, postpaid. If you expect to get a copy, you should send us your order at once. After our present supply is exhausted, we will not be able to furnish the 1921 edition.

"Gospel Plan of Salvation," by T. W. Brents, is a book that wears well. The book is as popular as when first issued, and has enjoyed a large and steady sale. We are selling this book at the low price of $2 per copy. This is decidedly the best work of Dr. T. W. Brents.

"The Model Church," by G. C. Brewer, is a most excellent book, and has been very cordially received. If you wish to read about the elders of the church and their work, with their qualifications, you should by all means have a copy of this book. It is especially interesting just now. Price. $1.

If you are troubled with Adventism, if the Adventists are in your community stirring up strife and dissatisfaction, you should by all means send us $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible," This is one of the most complete books, if not the most complete, on the subject. If you will get a copy of this book and read it, you will have no difficulty in meeting the arguments of Adventism.

"Queries and Answers," by Lipscomb and Sewell, is having a splendid sale. Don't forget that this is a book of 767 large octavo pages, with back and sides gold stamped, bound in black cloth. We are selling the book at the exceedingly low price of $3 per copy. At the price we are selling the book, the first thousand copies will not pay the cost of manufacturing, but we are sure that there will be repeat editions on this book. If you have not sent in your order, you should do so at once.

"Old Limber; or, The Tale of the Taylors," by DeLong Rice, is a very attractive, readable book. We are receiving orders for this book daily, and it is hoped that in a very short time the first edition will be exhausted. If you want a copy, you should send $1 at once to the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn. Robert L. Taylor; Alfred A. Taylor, present Governor of Tennessee; Andrew Johnson, former President of the United States; Nathan Bedford Forrest, a Confederate general; and others play a conspicuous part in the book.

A Mother in Israel Has Gone Home.

On Thursday, March 17, 1921, the body of Sister Griffith Rutherford Wilmeth was placed in its final resting place, Rosedale Cemetery, of this city. She was born in Wilson County, Tenn., on October 4, 1850, and died at her home in Los Angeles on March 13, 1921, making her journey a few menths longer than the "threescore and ten" years. She was the youngest of the two daughters (the only children) of Griffith Rutherford and Irene Lambeth Rutherford, and was educated, with her sister, at Hope Institute, near Nashville, Tenn., under Sister Charlotte Fanning. At an early age she obeyed the gospel under the preaching of Tolbert Fanning, and in 1872 was married by him to C. M. Wilmeth (more familiarly known as "Mac" Wilmeth), of McKinney, Texas. Immediately after this union they went to Texas, where they took up their life's work together. Their home was blessed with six children-two sons and four daughters-all of whom survive her.

Many of our readers will remember the lamented "Mac" Wilmeth, who died as a missionary at Tampico, Mexico, on October 12, 1898, at the age of fifty, after having been one of our most successful ministers for twenty-one years, during which time he was considered one of our best educators and publishers. He was connected with Add-Ran Christian College, of Thorp Spring, Texas, for a number of years, then established Margaret University at Dallas, but later moved it to Corinth, Ark., where he continued its glorious work for eight years. In 1897 he moved his family, with a number of other families, to Tampico, Mexico, and established an American colony, for the purpose of giving the gospel of our Lord and Savier to as many of the Mexicans as possible. It was there this noble man of God died, leaving Sister Wilmeth to finish the work of rearing and training her six children.

Here I feel constrained to incorporate the obituary of Sister Wilmeth's mother, written by Brother Wilmeth in one of his "Mexico Letters" that appeared in the Gospel Advocate, October 20, 1898:

Mrs. Mary Irene Rutherford was born in Summer County. Tenn., October 17, 1824, and died at Bryan City, Mexico, September 9, 1898. She was the daughter of Warner Lambeth Turpin and Lucy Jordan Turpin, and their only child. excepting a son who died many years ago. cated at Abbey Institute, Lebanon, Tenn., where she was united in marriage to Griffith Rutherford, the grandson of Gen. Griffith Rutherford of Revolutionary fame. Her husband lived only a few years and left her a widow with two little daughters, Lucy Jordan and Mary Griffith, the latter Mrs. Rutherford being born after the death of her father. devoted much of her life to teaching in Middle Tennessee, educating her daughters at Hope Institute under Sister Charlotte Fanning. After the marriage of her youngest daughter to the writer, she moved to Texas, and made our house her home till the day of her death. Early in life she obeyed the gospel, and in those days enjoyed the preaching of such pioneers as A. Campbell, Tolbert Fanning, Sandy E. Jones, George W. Elley, B. F. Hall, Alexander Graham, Allen Kendrick, J. J. Trott, and Brother Eichbaum. She knew more of the New Testament than other women with whom I have been intimately acquainted, often quoting at our evening family worship whole chapters of the sacred Scriptures. She, as her father before ber, clung to the Bible in life and in death. Both of her children, and all of her grandchildren, and her only great-grandchild, were at her deathbed, and, with many tears, we tenderly laid her away on the banks of the beautiful Tamesl.'

This is perhaps the last writing of Brother Wilmeth. A son-in-law was also buried in that country, and finally the dreadful fever took Brother Wilmeth; and his widow, with her six children, grandchild, and only sister, moved to Dallas, Texas, where she lived till 1911, after which she moved to this city.

When you think of her early training and the fact that the pure word of God was that upon which she was fed most as she grew to womanhood, and upon which she continued to live, you will not think it strange when I say she was one of the sweetest mothers I have ever seen. I will ever be thankful that it fell to my lot to help comfort her the last months she spent on earth.

We thought the end would certainly come in December, 1920. Her undying love for her children was beautiful indeed. They were all with her, except Joe Brice, of Camden, N. J.; W. L., of Washington, D. C.; and Mrs. Moser, of Ballinger, Texas. Her one desire was to live to see them and talk with them before she went away. With this God blessed her and her children. She revived greatly after they came, and even gained sufficient strength to sit up in the bed some. But this could not continue. A change for the worse came, and soon she fell asleep in Jesus, and angels took her home.

I would hardly feel that I had done my duty if I were to close this without a word of praise for Sister Wilmeth's sons and daughters. I wish all mothers had such children. The influence of the only Book that develops in our souls that divine love and tenderness that only God can give was seen in the love and devotion of her children to her. They gave all that love could give. The Lord bless and keep them, and may may they never forget that if they will ever love those truths that this mother so dearly loved, and ever live as she has taught them, they some day will see her sweet face again, and can be with her forever.

The Riverside Meeting.

Brother E. M. Borden has recently closed a glorious meeting at Riverside, where he has been living for about two years. There were twenty-four added to their number, all told-eleven baptisms. I was with him the second week and delivered six addresses. He has had a hard fight at that place, due to the influence of those who feel that they must exercise "evangelistic authority;" but Brother Borden knows well how to handle such people, and to say that he is a thorn in their flesh expresses it mildly. A man would have no little trouble finding room to criticize him in the way he treats others. He sticks to the truth with all his being, and he makes it a point to do good for evil and to let the law of kindness govern him in his treatment of others. We are expecting the very best from the Riverside congregation; and I pray that the work may grow in every way, and that Satan may ever realize that in them he finds an enemy to be dreaded. Brother Witty and his splendid lot of backers helped much in the meeting by going down and boosting the work,

At this writing Brother Riggs and I are in a revival at Downey, which has started better than we expected. I see no reason why this revival should not put Downey fully on her feet. Brother Borden and family have been over two nights. A number of the members at Montebello, Pasadena, and Los Angeles are attending, helping with their presence and prayers. We are to have an all-day meeting next Lord's day, with dinner on the ground. This is one of the most helpful features connected with our revivals in this beautiful country.

There is nothing in what has befallen or befalls you which justifies impatience or peevishness. God is inscrutable, but not wrong. Remember if the cloud is over you that there is a bright light always on the other side; also, that the time is coming, either in this world or in the next, when that cloud will be swept away, and the fullness of God's light and wisdom poured around you. If your life is dark, then walk by faith; and God is pledged to keep you as safe as if you could understand everything.—Bushnell.

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

William Kennedy, of McEwen, Tenn., asks an explanation of Heb. 6: 4-6: "For as touching those who were once enlightened and tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Spirit, and tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the age to come, and then fell away, it is impossible to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame." Also, I John 1: 8: "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." Also, I John 5: 18: "We know that whosever is begotten of God sinneth not, but he that was begotten of God keepeth himself, and the evil one toucheth him not." He wishes to know if these scriptures harmonize, or if they are on different subjects.

1. The Scriptures, when rightly understood, always harmonize with themselves. It is best to interpret the Scriptures with the Scriptures. As Brother David Lipscomb, in "Queries and Answers," collated by J. W. Shepherd, states clearly the scriptural position, as I think, on Heb. 6: 1-6, I give it in full here for the benefit of the querist: "I do not think it difficult to understand, if we will consider to whom it is written. It was written to Jewish converts to Christianity. After the first glow of enthusiasm had subsided and the converts met with the double persecution from the Gentiles and their own brethren, they were discouraged, disheartened, and disposed to give up Christ and go back to Judaism; and this letter was written to show them the superiority of the law of Christ to that of Moses and the ruin they would bring on themselves by such a course. The letter must be studied with this thought. In chapters 1 and 2 Paul shows that the angels brought the one law; that the Son of God brought the other, and that be partook of the nature of man that he might be tempted in all things as man is. In chapter 3 he shows that Moses. a servant, was mediator and lawgiver of one: Jesus Christ, the Son of God, of the other. In chapter 4 he contrasts the rest in the earthly kingdom with the better rest that remains to the people of God in the heavenly Canaan, and tells that our great High Priest has entered before us into that heavenly rest. Chapter 5 is a contrast between our High Priest and the earthly high priests. I have often spoken of the meaning of chapter 6. The first three verses are the difficult ones: 'Wherefore leaving the doctrine of the first principles of Christ, let us press on unto perfection; not laying again a foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God.' To understand this passage, we must remember this letter was written to the Hebrews who had been converted from Judaism to Christianity. Judaism, or the law of Moses, had been superseded by the law of Christ. The law of Moses was the tutor to bring the Jews to Christ! when Christ came, the law was done away. The works of the Jewish law then became dead works. When the law was done away, the works of the law were no longer in force. This law could not make the comers thereunto perfect. 'For there is a disannulling of a foregoing commandment because of its weakness and unprofitableness (for the law made nothing perfect), and a bringing in thereupon of a better hope, through which we draw nigh unto God.' (Heb. 7: 18, 19.) The Jewish law was the beginning of the doctrine of Christ; it could not make perfect. Let us leave it, therefore, and go on to perfection in the service of Christ. The practice of the Jewish law was the foundation that demanded repentance from the works of the Jewish law, now no longer in force, so dead. When they turned from the Jewish law to Christ, the first things were faith in God, the teaching of baptisms, laying on of hands in the beginning to impart spiritual gifts, and resurrection from the dead, and of eternal judgment. The tendency of these Jews was to go back to Judaism and lay again the causes out of which the necessity of these things grows. Do not do this; but having passed out of Judaism by faith in Christ, go on unto perfection in him. The apostle says: 'This will we do, if God permit." (Verse 3.) A strong assertion that he and the faithful will do it. This much is difficult; the rest is plain. If you Jews who have become Christians and have been once enlightened by the gospel of Christ, have tasted of the blessings bestowed in Christ, have been the recipients of the miraculous gifts of the Holy Spirit, as these Jewish Christians had done, and tasted of the good word of God and the powers of the world to come (they had enjoyed all they had done) - now, if after these things you deliberately give up Christ as the sacrifice for your sins, in this you crucify him again to yourselves afresh and put him to open shame. Those who thus turn to Judaism after they have known Christ cannot be renewed to repentance. They reject Christ as their sacrifice, and there is no other sacrifice to save them. The same idea is presented in Heb. 16: 29. The man who rejects Christ as the Mediator and Savier has no other that can save. This is true. When he rejects Christ, it is impossible to renew him to repentance. But neither of these passages has the least reference to persons being renewed again to repentance who, while believing in Christ, fall through temptations into sin. This is too clearly taught in many places of the Scriptures for a moment to be doubted. This speaks of those who give up Christ. They have no other approach to God. I suppose the principle taught is applicable at all times and places. When a man has come to know the gospel, with its privileges, blessings, and hopes, and deliberately gives it up and turns back to another religion, or to no religion, he is guilty of the same crime and sin that those who gave no Christ and went back to Judaism were."

2. 1 John 5: 18 simply means that no one leads a sinless life. No one has ever lived, save the Lord Jesus Christ, who has been perfect and sinless. It is the essence of presumption and conceit for one to claim that he is absolutely sinless and perfect.

3. The meaning of 1 John 5: 18 is that the child of God does not live a life of sin. He will not persist in sin until death, although he may be overtaken in a fault. "Whosoever abideth in him sinneth not." (1 John 3: 9.) It is not consistent for him to sin; and while he may, through the lusts of the flesh, be led into sin, it is not consistent with the life of the Christian for him to continue in sin until death. Other passages in the word of God show this to be true. The passage already quoted (1 John 1: 8) clearly teaches this. This same thought is emphasized in 1 John 1: 9, 10, which reads: "If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness. If we say that we have not sinned, we make him a liar, and his word is not in us." It is inconsistent and thoroughly out of harmony with the life of the Christian to continue in sin until death, which is true of the rebellious and disobedient. The child of God may commit a sin, but he repents of it and turns away from it.

B. F. Tarpley, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., wishes to know who the living soul was referred to in Rev. 16: 3, which reads: "And the second poured out his bowl into the sea; and it became blood as of a dead man; and every living soul died, even the things that were in the sea." To whom this refers, I do not know. I might make a guess, but the guess of the querist would be just as good as mine.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

A. B. Lipscomb reports fine services at Russell Street Church, this city, with one confession, last Lord's day.

Brother Freeman, wife and daughter, and Brother Denny, of Gallatin, Tenn., visited our office on Saturday.

C. M. Pullias recently held a very successful meeting at Woodsfield. Ohio. There were about fifty baptisms, and more than sixty additions to the congregation.

From W. D. Bills, San Antonio, Texas, March 29: "We had two excellent services at Grove Avenue on Lord's day, interest and attendance good, with one addition from the 'digressives.'"

- E. E. Shoulders reports good services and very fine audiences at Franklin, Kŷ., last Lord's day, notwithstanding the cool weather and a Baptist protracted meeting in full blast in the town.
- C. R. Nichol, who has recently held an interesting meeting at Pocahontas, Ark., called to see us one day last week. He was en route to Knoxville, Tenn., where he is to hold his next meeting.
- J. E. Scobey preached at Portland, Tenn., last Lord's day, and will preach at Donelson Tenn., next Lord's day. Erother Scobey always says something good, and the brethren like to have him preach.
- J. Leonard Jackson reports a fine audience and excellent service last Lord's-day morning at the church he serves on Lindsley Avenue, this city. The service was good, but audience not so large, at night.
- Mrs. T. R. Neal, Arcola, Miss., in a business letter, says. "I want to say that this State is in great need of the gospel being preached, and especially this part. There is no church nearer than thirty or forty miles that we can find out."
- F. C. Sowell, of Columbia, Tenn., writes that he will begin a meeting at Boswell, Okla., on April 20, the meeting to continue fifteen days. He also says: "I hope to get back to South Harpeth for our annual May meeting on the second Lord's day in May."
- C. M. Pullias will preach at Trinity Lane next Sunday (April 17) at three o'clock in the afternoon. The congregation is building a new house, which will be completed by that time. All Christians in the community are invited to attend and bring some one.

Thornton Crews writes from Rogersville, Ala., under date of April 5: "I have decided to hold one meeting in June and one in July. Who wants the time? The work is deing well here. We are expecting another fine meeting in July, which will be conducted by Brother Boles."

Sister Mary Lee Daniel, writing from Dyersburg, Tenn., of her grandfather, J. F. Taylor, recently deceased, says: "He loved the Gospel Advocate so well. He read it almost from the beginning of its publication until he went blind, twelve years ago. Since then he took it and heard it read by his daughter."

We wish to have an agent in every town and post office for our new book, "Queries and Answers." We will allow a liberal discount when the books are bought in quantities of one hundred, and shall be pleased to have any one interested write for terms. Address the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

The Pullias meeting at Belmont Avenue, this city, reports this (Monday) morning five confessions and two restored to date, and such crowds in attendance that some, and sometimes many, have been turned away for lack of accommodation in the house. Brother Pullias will begin at Lawrence Avenue next Lord's day, if present plans materialize.

I. W. Grant preached on Twenty-second Avenue, North, this city, on Lord's day and at night to small but interested audiences. They seem to have a nucleus for a fine development there, with a large territory to cultivate and draw material from. They will have a meeting in May, conducted by N. W. Proffitt, of Paris, Texas. They are served once a month by S. Houston Proffitt, of Lawrence-burg, Tenn.

Frank Morrow writes from Orlando, Fla., April 9, as follows: "I have just closed a meeting near here without visible results. The brethren are divided. I endeavored to get them together, but failed. This field is great, laborers are few. The work at Lake City is on better terms; all at work, home forces at peace. I will be at Baton Rouge, La., later, for a month's meeting; mission meeting, partners needed. My home address is Lake City, Fla."

From R. A. Craig, Louisville, Ky., March 28: "Last Sunday I was at the Forks of Elkhorn in the merning and at Shelbyville in the afternoon. We had real good attendance at both places. Our meeting at Elkhorn will begin next Sunday night. We are very anxious to put the gospel work on a good footing at Shelbyville. We will probably buy a lot right soon, preparatory to putting up a good, substantial building. If any families would like to move to Shelbyville or Shelby County, let them write me."

By request we publish the following: "The church of Christ at Canadian, Texas, wants you to know about our orphan home located at this place. We want you to have fellowship with us in this good work by sending us an offering each month, and by sending us the children, too, who are in need of such a home. Send all donations to Panhandle Orphan Home, Canadian, Texas, care of W. L. Swinney." The card bears the names of J. W. A. Jackson, Homer Broadus, Sidney Luther, and Amos Buckner, elders.

Mrs. Charles L. Talley, Cookeville, Tenn., sends the following note, dated April 6: "Mr. Talley has been in bed with fever for three weeks, but is some better, and able to sit up a short while each day, and we hope he will be out soon. He asks those to whom he owes replies to letters to please wait patiently, and in due time they will receive attention." We had not been informed of Brother Talley's illness before this. We sympathize with him and his family, and rejoice to know that he is so far on the road to recovery. Hope he will soon be fully restored to health and work.

T. B. Larimore and wife expect to leave Berkeley, Cal., for Nashville about June 1 and return to California about November 1. We have been anticipating this visit from Brother and Sister Larimore for a long time, and certainly will be glad to have them with us again. Their address is Box 111, Berkeley, Cal. They live in Berkeley, but Brother Larimore preaches in San Francisco. They have many friends in Tennessee who will be glad to see and entertain them during their visit to the home country. Perhaps there is no preacher in the church of Christ now living who has preached as many sermons as T. B. Larimore.

From L. E. Pryor, St. Elme, Tenn., March 29: "H. Leo Boles has just closed a very successful meeting with the church here. There were thirty-two additions—twenty-six baptized, four restored, and two by membership. Most of those baptized are boys and girls of our Lord's-day Bible classes. The attendance was very encouraging from the beginning to the close. The different congregations of the city lent much encouragement by their attendance. Brother Boles did his work well. He has the gift of reducing his lessons to the uttermost simplicity; and, above all, he is loyal to the Bible, which is a great compliment to any preacher in this age. The church was well pleased with the meeting and very much edified by the preaching,"

From J. D. Clemens, Dixon Springs, Ill., April 5: "L. E. Jones, of Troy, Tenn., began a meeting for the church here on the second Lord's day in March and continued it about ten days, during which time he did some fine preaching. Eleven persons obeyed their Lord in baptism, several of the number being heads of families. This meeting began just at the close of a big four-weeks' revival by the Baptists, conducted by their State evangelist. This only served to show the contrast between sectarianism and the pure gospel. Truly the gospel "is the power of God unto salvation." The church is encouraged, and we love Brother Jones for his faithful efforts. He is to preach for us on the second Lord's day in each month."

We are glad to note that the interest in the Sinking Fund is increasing. Since Brother Hall started the appeal for the Sinking Fund we have received thirty-six dollars to send the paper to subscribers who are not able to pay for it. We have sent the paper to more than enough persons to consume the thirty-six dollars at the regular subscription rate. This is a good work, and we believe that the brethren will abound more and more in it. If you have not made any contribution to this fund, will you not at once do so? By so doing you may be influential in leading some soul to Christ or in edifying and strengthening some devout, consecrated Christian, Money spent in this way will bring you more happiness than money spent simply for the pleasures of this life, which soon fade away.

John A. Goodman, of Hohenwald, Tenn., was among our visitors last week.

T. B. Thompson has changed his address from Avon Park, Fla., to Huntsville, Ala.

Brother Elam's meeting at Henderson, Tenn., has been postponed one week, and will begin next Sunday (April 17).

E. A. Elam preached at Viola, Tenn., last Lord's day. He reports the congregation in fine condition, and the services very interesting and well attended.

From Joe L. Netherland, Miami, Fla., April 4: "Yesterday was a fine day with the church here. Fine audiences at all services. Two were baptized into the one body."

J. V. A. Traylor, Murfeesboro, Tenn., who is a good song leader, wishes to be employed in leading singing in meetings in the month of June. Call him if you need a leader for your meeting then.

Tent Wanted.—The church of Christ at Albany, Alà., desires to rent or buy a large tent. It must be in first class condition and a bargain. Give size, price, and all particulars. Write J. Pettey Ezell, 514 Johnston Street, Albany, Ala.

From F J. Berry, Corpus Christi, Texas, April 7: "Two good services again Sunday. Singing Wednesday night, Our Bible class meets on Friday night, We contemplate another meeting in the near future. Let us push the fight to victory."

E. P. Watson, Dickson, Tenn., says: "N. B. Hardeman preached for us here at the morning service yesterday (April 3). Large crowd and fine sermon. Two hundred and forty-three in Bible study. The church has bought a home for the preacher, so we will soon be moving again."

Sister G. D. Alexander, of Hartsville, Tenn., under date of April 5, sends two dollars for the "Gospel Advocate Fund." We thank the sister for thus remembering those who would like to read the Advocate, but are financially unable to do so. We hope to have many others manifest interest in the same by contributing to the fund.

J. E. Wainwright. Texarkana, Ark.. April 5, reports as follows: "T. L. Bentley, one of our elders, spoke at the morning hour on Sunday last, during which time I was in an interesting meeting at De Queen. The night services were dismissed, and quite a number enjoyed Brother Smithson's sermon at Dudley Avenue congregation."

V. A. Laquex, of Nashville, Ark., Route 3, is recommended as a fine singer and a lover of music, and wishes an opportunity to help preachers in their singing in meetings. He is spoken of as a loyal member of the church of Christ at Corinth, Ark., and a Christian gentleman. References: J. R. McClure, T. W. Shofner, Nashville, Ark., Route 3.

In our report of the congregation at Millersburg, Tenn., two weeks ago, we misunderstood Brother Graves about their house. They had for a while let their house stand very much in need of repairs; but they have built them a commodious, new house to take its place, and are now enjoying the advantages that this nice new house gives them. We gladly make the correction.

W. Clarence Cooke, Tracy City, Tenn., writes (April 3) in the following cheerful strain: "Our work here is moving ahead. R. E. L. Taylor, from Decherd, preached for us two nights last week. One young woman was restored. We had two good crowds to hear us to-day, with two additions at the night service, one young lady restored, and one from the Baptists." Keep the good work going forward.

From F. L. Paisley, Memphis, Tenn., April 5: "Last Lord's day was a splendid day with the work in Memphis. Brother Norred reports large attendance at Harbert Avenue. Notwithstanding the Baptists had a meeting in pregress in the vicinity of McKellar Avenue, we had perhaps our largest audience, with two splendid young ladies baptized at the morning service. We see new faces at almost every service."

T. B. Thompson writes from Huntsville, Ala., April 4: "We are now located in Huntsville, Ala. I have come here to stay three months with the church. I find a nice little city and a nice band of Christians. From what I have been able to observe in my less-than-a-week sojourn among the members of the church of Christ, it seems that the church here is capable of great accomplishments for the cause. I will be glad to make a more extended report of the work as we get better acquainted."

From E. S. Parrish, Montgomery, Ala., April 10: "The meeting at the Highland Avenue church of Christ will continue for another week, probably longer. The teaching that is being done deserves that the meeting should continue for a long time. Brethren and others who live in an hour's ride in a car over the good roads we have here should get the benefit of these wonderful lessons. Three made the confession to-day. The house was well filled at each service. H. Leo Boles is doing the preaching."

The Charlotte Avenue Church held their first service (prayer meeting) in their new tent on Wednesday night, April 6. One young brother confessed his faults and asked for full standing (under no reproach) in the congregation. The church has a beautiful new tent, of 40x60 feet dimensions, just made for them by our tentmaker. W. G. White. They will use it for all local services for several months, while their old house is being torn away (the "tearing" has already begun) and a new and more commodious one is being erected on the lot.

A. S Reynolds writes from Kinston, Ala., April 11: "I landed in South Alabama on March 31. I find many changes in this country since I left it, Many of the old brethren have died and some have moved away. There is but little effort being made to save the lost here. I preached at Lowery on Sunday and Sunday night. I will go from here to Esto, Fla., and preach next week and return to Lowrey for a meeting. Any church that has a dozen or more secondhand song books will confer a favor on me and help the work by sending them to me at Esto."

From S. W. Bell, Sedalia, Mo., April 6: "Last Sunday was a very happy Sunday for us in St. Louis. Four persons—three women and one man—came forward to identify themselves with the church. Only very recently W. W. Moody baptized three of the Sunday-school girls, and another came forward to identify herself with the church. This makes eight who have come into the work within less than a month. Let us help these good people pay for their lot, and then let us build a nice and comfortable church home. Brother Pruitt and Brother Moody both reported contributions last Sunday. There is no place to stop: the top is still in the advance."

William P. Walker, of Dinuba, Cal., again calls attention to the preachers' meeting to be held there, May 2-6, and gives a partial program. The preachers assigned on it are: T. B. Larimore, S. H. Hall, G. W. Riggs, E. M. Borden, E. C. Love, S. E. Witty, O. W. Gardner, L. D. Perkins, E. M. West, J. A. Craig, G. W. Dickson, and W. W. Wyatt. Brother Walker says: "Dinuba is an ideal location for camping. I would suggest to the preachers of the 'Golden State' that you invite all the members near you to bring their tents and camping outlits and enjoy the meeting. There will be preaching and room for all. Remember, the church will care for all the preachers that attend."

From Will W. Slater. Fort Smith, Ark., April 5: "The singing school at Atkins closed last Friday night. More than one hundred attended throughout. Several from the other churches in the town took part. Much prejudice was removed, and we feel that much and lasting good will be the result of the school. I was at home with the Park Hill Church on Sunday, and we had two splendid services. The brethren kindly consented to let me off the second Sunday, and as a result of their kindness I am at Obion, Tenn., and will begin a singing school for the church here to-night. It is my first trip to Tennessee, and I hope to accomplish some good while here. I will preach for the brethren here next Sunday. May God bless the faithful."

E. M. Borden writes of the meeting at Riverside, Cal., as follows: "Our meeting began on the second Lord's day in March and closed on the fourth Lord's day. On account of the financial condition of the congregation, the brethren decided to use local forces. But we prevailed on S. H. Hall. of Los Angeles, to come and be with us about four days the second week of the meeting. He preached some very able discourses, and they were appreciated by the brethren. Brother Hall is a very valuable addition to the forces on the Pacific Coast. We were sorry that he could not be with us longer, but he had to engage in a meeting at Downey. Cal.; so we had to submit. The brethren at Los Angeles are doing a great work under the ministry of Brother Hall Brother Riggs is also doing good work in the field around Los Angeles. He was with us one day during the meeting. Brother Witty, of Ontario, was with us several times. He is doing a good work in Ontario, which is only seventeen from us. The congregation at Riverside has miles away had a gradual growth since I began work here. The meeting closed with a full house, a great interest, and twenty four additions to the congregation. Eleven were baptized, and thirteen placed their membership with us."

EDITORIAL

Explanation From Brother George, With More on Christians in the Denominations.

BY M. C. K.

On page 347 of this issue we publish Brother A. M. George's closing article in the present controversy. However much we may differ from Brother George, it has been a pleasure to publish his articles and to have an exchange with him on vital matters connected with the church of God. He not only writes at all times with Christian courtesy and kindness, but uniformly with due consideration for his opponents, and such exchanges between brethren will always do good. In the effort now to point out what appear to me to be errors in his position, I hope, at least in some measure, to imitate his good example. Hence, asking for his article, first of all, a careful examination. I invite attention to the following points:

1. He says: "There are no Christians in sectdom, or what I call 'Babylon.'" Even at the best consistent view that can be taken of it, the world to-day seems to be in a deplorable condition; but if our brother's view, as here expressed, is true, then it would seem that Christianity Itself. so far as adherents are concerned, is almost blotted out of existence. However, without repeating the argument here, I ask the reader to please see the reply to Brother John Taylor on exactly the same point in our issue of March 31, where the subject is treated somewhat in detail. Moreover, the position then defended by the Gospel Advocate is partly confirmed by one statement and admission now from Brother George himself. Answering the question, "What is a Christian?" and referring to the religious people during the "Dark Ages and on down to the time of the Campbells, Stone, and others," he says: "It is possible that some may have retained enough of the gospel during this long reign of darkness, while the church was groping in the wilderness of ignorance and superstition, to enable them to become Christians." Exactly so, and I am glad our brother has both the heart and the good judgment to say this. It is much better than to deny unqualifiedly that those who obey God even in the midst of such confusion are Christians.

- 2. After stating that only "two classes" of people are recognized "in the New Testament," which he says are "the church of God and the false religions," he then adds that "every man and woman is in one or the other, and no one in both at the same time." How can our brother know. as he has already admitted concerning the "Dark Ages," but that "it is possible that some," even though to some extent entangled in "false religions" or false religious views, nevertheless "have retained enough of the gospel . . to enable them to become Christians?" Of course "a Christian is one who believes and obeys the gospel;" and if they could do this "through the Dark Ages and on down to the time of the Campbells, Stone, and others," as he has admitted, why may they not sometimes do it in spite of the Babylon of religious confusion in which they are placed to-day?
- 3. Of course "only the truth can put one into the church;" but is it necessary to add the statement that "any one in Babylon is not a Christian, ner in God's church?" Suppose some, in spite of the Babylonish errors about them, obey "the truth" which "puts them into the church," are they not then in the church? If not, why not?
- 4. Brother George says: "Campbell, Stone, Scott, and others were in Babylon, and were not Christians, nor in the church, till they found the truth, believed and obeyed it; and when they did that, it translated them out of Babylon into the church of God as Christians." If what our brother says here is true, then, according to my understanding of the history of the matter, many of the reformers themselves, who attempted to turn away from denominationalism to be simply Christians and who thought they did so, really never did become Christians at all, and lived and died out of the church of God! If what he says is true, then those of them who, notwithstanding they were in the midst of denominationalism, yet believed in the Lord, repented of their sins and were buried with the Lord by baptism, nevertheless did not become Christians, having been baptized by a denominationalist, and therefore lived and died without ever becoming members of the church of God!
- 5. Speaking of those in the denominations, Brother George says: "I wish that all Christians would quit calling Babylonians 'brethren.' They are no kin to us." But if some of them, in spite of the religious errors about them, have obeyed the truth and become "brethren" in the Lord, why not call these of them such? And I am wondering whom he means by "us" in that statement. One thing is certain: outside of that "us," there is not, in Brother George's estimation, a solitary Christian on earth. Even those who are in "the Christian Church," using the term in the denominational sense, are not Christians, because they, too, to all practical purposes, have become a denomination; and with him, as I understand him, there are no Christians in any denomination! And yet he admits that some may have been Christians who were involved in some of the errors of the Dark Ages, and Brother George, therefore, seems to be in confusion at this point with himself. Hence, to say the least of it. Brother George, it seems to me, will accomplish more good by teaching, as he and I and all others agree is taught in the Scriptures, that whoever believes and obeys the gospel thereby enters the church of God, and that this is true even of those who, in spite of being in a denominational environment, nevertheless believe and obey the same gospel. In substance, God says in his word that this makes men Christians, and he does not make any exception of those who do it under the teaching and at the hand of some one in a denomination.

- 6. Brother J. W. Beardain, of Enid. Miss., in a private communication, asks for light on the same line on some additional points in connection with his note published in our issue of February 3, 1921. Brother Beardain, too, not only writes in the spirit of brotherly love, but with the evident desire to know and teach nothing but the truth, and, regardless of the lack of entire agreement between us, I take pleasure in replying to his further inquiries, which are as follows:
- (1) Referring to his use of the word "wrangle" in his note in that issue, he says he used it merely "in the sense of too much discussion;" and that, when he asked what Christians would gain by leaving their denominations "with modern conveniences and music and suppers and other instruments," this last word should have been "amusements."
- (2) He says: "I am sure that some, being told they are Christians, feel that they are in a safe place, and fail to see the importance of leaving their denomination with all its power and wealth and identifying themselves with a few humble disciples of the Lord." This observation is correct, if, in the case of Christians in error anywhere at all, we tell them they are Christians in such a way as would lead them to conclude that they are not in danger on account of the said errors and do not, therefore, need to turn away from them. On the contrary, no matter where Christians may be involved in error, nor whether the error be denominational or otherwise, we should carefully warn them against all error, and urge upon them the serious and divinely imposed obligation to turn away from it, and that this course is absolutely necessary if they would certainly be "in a safe place."
- (3) He wishes to know "how far one could drift into error or denominationalism and remain a Christian, meaning a follower of the lowly Nazarene." The line at this point is not definitely drawn in the Bible, and neither I, nor Brother Beardain, nor anybody else, can know with absolute certainty exactly where it is. It would be vain, therefore, and might be fatally misleading, to undertake to say where such a point is. The only right and infallibly safe way is to warn people not to go in that direction any distance at all, and on such a point no teacher of the Bible should ever teach anything else.
- (4) He says he has "tried to profit by all the truth" he has "been taught, regardless of whether" he "learned it from a denominationalist or Christian only." This is the correct position to occupy, and in it Brother Beardain sets a worthy example which all of us should follow. Let us make no compromise with any denomination, and make none with any denominational error, nor with error in any other form; but, as the rosebud is open to receive sunshine and shower whenever they come, so let our hearts be ever open to receive the truth from any and all sources.

"Always With Grace, Seasoned With Salt."

BY E. A. ELAM.

Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt, that ye may know how ye ought to answer each one. (Col. 4: 6,)

Once upon a time our most worthy, beloved, and lamented brother, J. D. Floyd, in the ripeness of his age, experience, and great usefulness and in his deep love for the peace and general good of the cause of Christ, requested that public notice be made of the inconsistent course of his nephew, Brother George Gowen. This request was made with painful regret on Brother Floyd's part, as he so expressed himself. In the Gespel Advocate office I was requested to write the article. I did so with the same feelings expressed by Brother Floyd. I have always been a friend to Brother Gowen, was then, am now, and can never be anything else.

His family and I have always been personal friends. Nothing but what I thought was my duty to God and the church could have prompted that article.

But in the beginning of that article I said in substance that I hated to have to soil the pages of the Gospel Advocate with the name of George Gowen. Soon after that had been printed a good brother called my attention to it and said I should not have said that. Upon reflection I saw that I should not have said it, that my article would have been better and stronger without it, and since then I have regretted writing that sentence. Not only so, but I think it my duty to say thus publicly that I am sorry I used that expression. It gives me pleasure to say this. This was not gracious speech and was not "seasoned with salt." It was "salty," but in the wrong way. It was not helpful in any way to any one.

I have wanted to see Brother Gowen to say this much to him, but have never seen him since. I desire, too, to say this to his relatives.

I have no regret for opposing his course, and could not have done my duty without doing that in the strongest way possible. I have no regret for any firm opposition to any departure on the part of any one from the path of rectifude and the right way of the Lord at any time.

Not only do I say this to Brother Gowen, but I say I regret the use of any other expression in any other article I have ever written, or in any sermon I have ever preached, or in any private conversation I have ever had, that has not been in harmony with the will of God—any ungracious, unkind, unjust, cutting utterance.

Departure from the word of God in private life and public worship, either falling short of or going beyond the teaching of Christ (2 John 9), must be pointed out, reproved, or rebuked: those who sin must be reproved "in the sight of all, that the rest may be in fear" (1 Tim. 5: 20); some idle, gluttonous liars (on the island of Crete) must be reproved "sharply" (Tit. 1: 12, 13); but all this must be done in gentleness, forbearance, long-suffering, teaching, and, therefore, by the "all authority" of the word of God. (See now 2 Tim. 2: 23-26; 4: 2; Tit. 2: 15.) It can never be done with success in the self-righteous, holier-than-thou spirit.

There is nothing clearer in the Bible than that our speech, either in private conversation or public utterance, must be "such as is good for edifying as the need may be, that it may give grace to them that hear." (Eph. 4: 29.) Disobedience to God at this point is as much sin as disobedience at any other point, and will as surely lead to destruction.

Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and railing, be put away from you, with all malice: and be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you. (Eph. 4: 31, 32.)

If we made no mistakes, did no wrongs, had no faults, etc., there would be no occasion for forbearance, suffering long, taking no account of evil, forgiveness, etc., and no reason in God's giving such commandments. The all-important question with me is: Am I obeying God, or even trying to do so, in these particulars? If I do not, I must quit preaching them to others.

It is a most unbecoming and ungracious thing to become punctillous, censorious, dictatorial, critical, crabbed, exacting, and bitter as one grows old. It is beautiful to grow old gracefully; to become with age tenderer, more mellow, more gracious, more forbearing, fuller of sympathy; possessing and manifesting more and more the meek and quiet spirit, which is of great price in the sight of God; escaping more and more from the corruption that is in the world through lust, and becoming more and more partakers of the divine nature—ripe for eternity.

In all gentleness and kindness, forbearance and forgiveness, generosity and love, courage and faithfulness, firmness and steadfastness, unity and peace, sound speech and gracious words, in all holy living and godliness, older preachers should be examples to younger ones. Meek and mild, ripe and mellow, strong and bold, avoiding all untaught questions and vain speculations, free from all acrimonious speech and the use of offensive epithets, old preachers should lead others in the right and good way of the Lord.

"The Devil's Church." No. 1.

BY F. W. SMITH.

This is the title of a six-page leaflet by D. W. Haworth, It is written in dialogue style, and purports to be a conversation between the devil and demons as to the ways and means of increasing membership in the "devil's church." The leaflet abounds in misrepresentation, slander, and ignorance of the word of God. For the sake of fairness, and not because there is either truth or the slightest conception of the gospel plan of salvation in it, I will give the author's exact language:

Devil. Now, demons, our time is short, as we are in the last days of the church age. We must arrange to deceive the very elect, if possible, and in order to do this, I am going to organize another church.

Demons. How in the world can you accomplish anything by organizing a church? It seems to us that would be detrimental to our business.

Devil. No, I will tell you how we will do it, and you must obey orders, for we'll have to be very careful and get men to do our work that can turn and twist the Scriptures any way to suit the subject they want, for men in these last days love to be deceived and listen to teachers having Itching ears. I am going to organize a real easy way, so they won't have to get on their knees to pray and they won't have to repent and they won't have to quit sinning. Just cuss and fuss and drink whisky and sin every day and be members in good standing in my church. We will give this church as near a Bible name as we can, not to infringe on the real church of God, but we will take the nearest thing to it, and then we will teach everything in our church except the essentials that make Christians.

Demons. Whom will you get to organize these churches for you?

Devil: O, I have lots of men that are subject to demon powers: I can get them to do anything in the way of deceiving people. They are so void of the Spirit of God that they love to mislead people. I have men at my command that I can get to stand in the pulpit and make fun and laugh at poor men and women for crying to God to forgive their sins, which shows a godly sorrow for their sins: and this, with baptism, makes Christians; but we will have our church leave off repentance and heartfelt experience and make water baptism the essential thing, and we will have our victims that we catch to answer this question: "Do you believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God?" They will say "Yes," and we will baptize them and not teach them that repentance is a godly sorrow for sins, Demons. Well, won't this make them Christians? Devil. No, not by any means, "for devils believe and tremble" (James 2: 19), and Simon the sorcerer (Acts 8) believed and was baptized, yet Peter told him he had better go back and repent, for his heart was not right, and he was in the gall of bitterness and the bond of iniquity. did not repent, and really he was a worse man than before. and that is my object in getting them deceived. when we get heads of families deceived and blindfolded. it is an easy natter to train the brats up in ignorance of the spiritual operation on man, for this, of course, is the life of the Christian, and without the Spirit they are eligible to membership in my church.

This "holy roller" talks about others "turning and twisting the Scriptures," and yet the Bible in his hands becomes the most disjointed book in all the world. There is not one vestige of authority in the word of God for the very foundation of his wild, fanatical religion. It is based upon what is termed the "inbred or transmitted Adam'e sin;" and if his life depended upon it, he cannot show from the word of God any such doctrine. He must "twist" and "turn" the Scriptures out of their proper connection, placing upon them interpretations and meanings God never intended, in order to deceive the people and get them to join him in wild, frantic, and ridiculous scenes in an effort to get what is called "the second blessing" to remove root and branch the "inbred, Adamic sin." Of course it is wrong for one to "turn and twist" the Scriptures for any purpose, but it is exceedingly dangerous to do so on the vital theme of salvation. Peter says they do so to their own destruction. (2 Pet. 3: 16.) For one who poses as a religious teacher to do such a thing is bad indeed.

He represents the devil as saying: "I have men at my command that I can get to stand in the pulpit and make fun and laugh at poor men and women for crying to God to forgive their sins." It most certainly would be wrong to stand in the pulpit or anywhere else, as to that matter, and "laugh" or make "fun" of any one "crying to God to forgive" his or her sins, and those who do such things should be severely rebuked. People who simply ery to God to forgive their sins are to be pitied and should be taught "the way of the Lord more perfectly." They should do like Saul of Tarsus was taught to do-viz .: "And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins. calling on the name of the Lord." (Acts 22: 16.) Here was a man who had been crying unto God over his sins for three days and nights, and yet God did not forgive his sins until he obeyed the Lord Jesus Christ in baptism. Again, many on the day of Pentecost cried unto God over their sins, and yet they were told to repent and be baptized in the name of the Lord Jesus for the remission of their sins. (Acts 2: 37, 38.)

Now, this "holy roller" does not only reject this teaching of the Holy Spirit, but misrepresents and actually standers those who do. Hear him: "But we will have our church leave off repentance and heartfelt experience and make water baptism the essential thing." This man claims to have been baptized in the Holy Spirit and to be led by the same Spirit; but a spirit that will lead a man to thus misrepresent and slander other people is anything but a hoty spirit-is the spirit that emanates from the chief character in this wonderful dialogue.

But he adds sin to sin after this fashion: "And we will have our victims that we catch to answer this question: 'Do you believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God?' They will say 'Yes,' and we will baptize them and not teach them that repentance is a godly sorrow for sins." This man seems wholly ignorant of the fact that in part of what he here puts forth he is repudiating the word of God. "See, here is water; what doth hinder me to be baptized? And Philip said, If thou believest with all thine heart, thou mayest. And he auswered and said, I believe that Jesus Christ is the Son of God." On this confession the man was baptized. But, in addition to repudiating the word of God, he grossly, inexcusably, and wickedly misrepresents the people of God. Does he know of any one that does not teach those before baptism that they must repent of their sins in order to be fit subjects for baptism? Will he, can he, name one, unless it be a baby sprinkler? The lack of this man's information on the subject of repentance is shown in what he says -viz., "that repentance is a godly sorrow for sins." Indeed! And where did he learn so much as all that? The Bible teaches no such thing, but does teach that "godly sorrow worketh repentance." "For godly sorrow worketh repentance to salvation not to be repented of." (2 Cor.

He would do well to acquaint himself with the plain teaching of God's word before he assumes the rôle of a critic of what others teach. He misrepresents Simon the sorcerer (Acts 8) in that he denies Simon was ever a Christian. The Savior said: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved" (Mark 16: 16); and Luke says that Simon believed and was baptized. Which shall we accept, Luke or this "boly roller?" Simon committed a sin after he was baptized, for which he was told to repent.

"Take Heed to Thyself."

BY J. C. M'Q.

It is not enough for a man to know the truth. The man that is approved of God not only knows the truth, but lives in obedience to the truth. The Holy Spirit, in writing to the Thessalonians through Paul, speaks of "them that perish," "because they received not the love of the truth, that they might be saved." Many men know the truth, are able to point out the plan of salvation to others, and yet they never obey from the heart the gospel of Christ. Paul, in writing to Timothy, says: "Take heed to thyself, and to thy teaching." (1 Tim. 4: 16.) Again, in writing the elders at Ephesus, Paul says: "Take heed unto yourselves, and to all the flock, in which the Holy Spirit hath made you bishops, to feed the church of the Lord which he purchased with his own blood," (Acts 20: 28.) While fallible, frail human beings cannot be perfect, yet they can love the truth, and the fruit that they bear, in the main, will be good. There is a great difference between the apple tree that bears nearly all bad fruit and little good and one which bears nearly all good fruit and little bad. One's greatest effort should be to control himself. A man is his own greatest enemy. It is not what others may do to one, but what a man may do himself, that endangers his soul's salvation. No man is able to thoroughly control himself, Solomon says: "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city." (Prov. 16: 32.)

While God gives us perfect ideals for Christians and perfect ideals for elders or bishops, yet we cannot expect any man to be an absolutely perfect Christian or elder. On account of the imperfections of elders, there appears to be a disposition among many to ignore and disregard the oversight of elders altogether. But no man with proper respect for the word of God will do this. The word of God plainly commands obedience to those who rule over us. "Obey them that have the rule over you, and submit to them: for they watch in behalf of your souls, as they that shall give account; that they may do this with joy, and not with grief: for this were unprofitable for you." (Heb. 13: 17.) The word of God is also specific in giving us to understand that elders are overseers of the congregation and that it is their duty to tend the church of God. (Acts 20; 28.) The character of their rule is pointed out by Peter in 1 Pet. 5: 1-3, which reads: "The elders therefore among you I exhort, who am a fellow elder, and a witness of the sufferings of Christ, who am also a partaker of the glory that shall be revealed: Tend the flock of God which is among you, exercising the oversight, not of constraint, but willingly, according to the will of God; nor yet for filthy lucre, but of a ready mind; neither as lording it over the charge allotted to you, but making yourselves ensamples to the flock," The scriptural elder is an example to others. He is an elder not so much by virtue of his appointment, but by reason of the fact that he had the qualifications of an elder and was doing the work of an elder in a certain measure before his appointment. Elders who have the qualifications to do so should teach in word and doctrine. If the churches to-day do not have elders to teach in word and doctrine, it is largely due to the fact that elders have not been encouraged to do the work that God has ordained for them to do. They have been discouraged along this line, and preachers or evangelists have done the teaching. Every one who understands the Bible knows very well that it is the duty of the elders to feed, tend the flock, and teach the word of God to the congregation. "Let the elders that rule well be counted worthy of double honor, especially those who labor in the word and in teaching. For the scripture saith, Thou shalt not muzzle the ox when he treadeth out the corn. And, The laborer is worthy of his hire," (1 Tim, 5: 17, 18.) Elders who teach in word and doctrine are worthy of their hire. While churches have neglected to pay elders who devote their time to the work of teaching the local congregations, they cannot plead ignorance of the word of God for neglecting to do so. The Bible clearly teaches that such olders should be paid for their work. Preachers sometimes, instead of teaching the truth on this subject, discredit the eldership by stating that the eldership is so weak that it does not properly function. It is contended that it is so inefficient that no discipline is exercised in the churches. Elders should be encouraged to go forward, and should be supported when they do go forward as God directs. Proper encouragement and recognition have not been accorded to even faithful elders in the church of God. The word of God rings out clearly on this point. "But we beseech you, brethren, to know them that labor among you, and are over you in the Lord, and admonish you; and to esteem them exceeding highly in leve for their work's sake. Be at peace among yourselves." (1 Thess, 5: 12, 13.) In order that elders may be properly respected and held in the proper esteem, the Holy Spirit admonishes: "Against an elder receive not an accusation, except at the mouth of two or three witnesses." (1 Tim. 5: 19.) The man who does his duty as an elder and who is faithful to the word of God is sure to be censured by the disobedient and gainsayers. We should not demand perfection of elders any more than we should demand perfection of other Christians. When elders or Christians persist in doing wrong and live a life of unrighteousness, they should be discouraged and not upheld in their wrongdoing; but simply because a man makes a mistake is no reason why he should be ostracized and not encouraged in his efforts to do the will of the Lord.

For the instruction, benefit, and encouragement of our readers, I quote with approval a query and its answer from David Lipscomb which appears on pages 196-199 of "Queries and Answers," by Lipscomb and Sewell:

'Can a member of a congregation act as an elder except he possesses all of the qualifications that Paul speaks of to Timothy? It appears to my mind that if a man should assume the office of elder without the proper qualifications, as set forth by the apostle in 1 Tim. 3, he would be a selfconstituted elder, and that his actions as such would be While I am of this opinion, there are many good brethren who differ from me and say that if we have not the proper material we must do the best we can and appoint to the work the best material that we have, whether they possess all of the qualifications or not. (1) The first qualification, it seems to me, is that a man must desire the office; (2) he must be blameless; (3) the husband of one wife: (4) vigilant; (5) sober; (6) of good behavior; (7) given to hospitality; (8) apt to teach; (9) not given to wine. (10) no striker; (11) not greedy of filthy lucre; patient; (13) not a brawler; (14) not covetous; (15) one that ruleth his own house well; (16) grave; (17) not a novice: (18) moreover, he must have a good report of them which are without. Now, the apostle says that a bishop must possess these prerequisites. The question is: Can we place a man in the office, under any circumstances, who does not possess all of these qualifications; Please answer at length, as our congregation has dispensed with the eldership in consequence of not having men who possess all of the requirements."

Do you mean that your congregation has dispensed with the work that elders should do? That nobody instructs the congregation or looks after the weak members? That you have no rule or discipline in the church? Do you mean that nobody leads in the worship? Nobody asks another to give thanks at the table or to lead in prayer? Nobody urges other members to meet to worship God, or to live honestly, uprightly, deal justly and fairly in the world? If you have given up these things, you have given up being Christians.

A people cannot live Christians without doing all the work for one another and the community that God requires. They cannot do this without doing the work of elders and deacons in a community. You cannot live as Christians in a community without looking after the spiritual interests of the church and the public, without helping the poor and the needy, without teaching the ignorant and reproving the wrongdoers. When this is done, the work of elders is done; and it is much more important that the work of the elders than that the office of elders should be looked after. We often so pervert the religion of Christ that we esteem the office of more importance than the work. This is the world's creler of things. It is only in one sense that the word "office" is applicable to the work in the church it is not used in the church as it is in the government of the world. In this it means that when a man is inducted into office he is authorized to do certain things that it would be a crime for him to do if he were not in this office. Now, in the Scriptures it has no such meaning. The man's becoming an elder authorizes him to perform no act that he was not authorized to do before. It only makes it his tusiness especially to look after the work now. He is to be chosen because he has shown his fitness for the office by doing the work beforehand. This shows it is not an office in the sense of an office of a civil government. But it is a city imposed, growing out of a fitness developed for the work needed to be done. Any one who does this work of an elder is, in fact, an elder, whether he is appointed to it or not. The appointment gives him confidence and assurance in the work and makes him feel it especially his duty to do the work.

Sometimes men are elected that have no fitness for the work, and others do it who have a natural fitness for it, but are not elected. A church in this condition has two sets of officers—a man-made set and a God-made set. The man-made ones are always a curse and a hindrance to the church Better not select any if you will not select the God-made ones. These will do something of the work without appointment from men; and when the work is done, the office is filled.

But our brother says they have none fitted for the work. if so, there are no Christians there. A number cannot live the Christian life and not develop the characters needed to do Christian work. It is frequently said nobody fills this bill, when it is not true. You occasionally find a wicked man who says there is no Christian; and it is just about as hard to find a Christian, according to the faultfinder's standard, as it is to find one fitted for an elder. When the Holy Spirit requires qualifications, he specifies them as they develop themselves and exist among men, not as they exist among angels. The man who expects perfection among men is an impractical visionary. God does not expect it. When he says they must be blameless, he means they are blameless as weak human beings. Abraham was a mcdel of God's men. We form visionary ideas of Abra-ham's excellence; but when we come to solid facts, he was a weak, erring buman. Twice under fear of his life he lied. He occasionally went without God's direction. He and his family suffered for it. I have no doubt we have thousands of Christian men and women who are the equals of Abraham and Sarah in fidelity and trustworthiness befere God and man. Peter was not faultless. He prevaricated. I have no doubt our very exacting brethren, had they been in the days of Peter, would have said: "He is not fit open the doors of the kingdom; he denied the he is not fit to teach or be a leading apostle." When the Jews came to Antioch, Peter dissembled and refused to eat with the Gentiles, although Ged had taught him by a miracle that he must receive and treat them as Yet God accepted him as the leading apostle. God held him blameless as a man, with human weakness and infirmities, when as an angel he would have been blameworthy. It is not blameworthy for a human being to err sometimes; it is for him to persist in the wrong. I have no doubt we have thousands of men, probably some in that very church, who are or may be the equals of Peter in firmness and fidelity to the truth. Inspiration gave knowledge, but not moral strength. When we dispense with the elders, we dispense with the work of God; and many Christians are in moral character the equals of Peter or Paul or John or James or Abraham or Isaac or Jacob. faultfinding and depreciation of everybody else usually arises from undue exaltation of self. It is not a healthy state.

The old hypocritical sinner who stands off and carps at everybody in the church as wicked means to say he is very righteous and very perfect. He is usually a self-deceived hypocrite. The same spirit in the church belongs to the self-righteous. It is not healthy to be overmuch righteous nor to demand it of others.

Acknowledge your own and your fellow men's humanity, your liability to err; get clear of the foolish idea that men with faults and human weaknesses are unfitted for the service of God. He adapted his service to and for weak men liable to err. Be willing to confess your faults when you do err. I have noticed it in men, I have noticed it in papers. When one starts out to be over sweet-tempered, to keep out all humanity, he or it becomes one-sided, unfair, and the bitterest and most intolerant of men and papers. They do not show goodness in an honest, open, human, brave way. A paper that starts out to have no controversies, to be everly peaceable, is as sure to be filled with unjust insinuations and innuendoes as that to-morrow's sun will rise. You cannot crush the humanity out of men. Do not look for perfection in human beings nor dispense with the work of God while pretending to be Christians. When you do the work, you fill all the offices of his servants.

Book Reviews.

BY F. W. SMITH.

A Review of "Campbellite Questions and Baptist Answers," by G. C. Brewer, is a most excellent work of eighteen pages. The author, under the title, "A Christian's Remarks," completely exposes the fallacies and sophistries of H. B. Taylor, author of "Campbellite Questions and Baptist Answers," Brother Brewer has done his work well indeed, and the review should have a wide circulation. It is indeed gratifying to know there are men coming along able and willing to defend the truth against such attacks as Mr. Taylor and others are constantly making. Brother Brewer is not only willing to do such work, but is abundantly able to do it, and his labors should be appreciated by the church. The truth has always needed, and always will need, friends to stand up in its defense. Order this pamphlet from G. C. Brewer, Austin, Texas. The price is not stated, but I suppose it will sell for fifteen cents each, or one dollar per dozen.

The Promised Land.

"Forward!" it is the word of God;
"Forward!" no longer linger here;
Be not the slave of doubt or fear.
Why shouldst thou wait until the rod
Eoth drive thee forth to seek the land
Where thou on freedom's height shalt stand!

Dost thou then love the wilderness
As if it were thine own true home,
As if it were thy curse to roam
With ceaseless journeyings and distress,
When a day's journey lies the land
Where thou on freedom's height shalf stand:

God's purpose how canst thou fulfill,
If thou dost wait with timorous feet
Where paths of destiny do meet?
There is but one that is his will,
And that doth lead unto the land
Where thou on freedom's height shalt stand!

Be of good courage, gladly go

Where the light shines upon the way,
And ushers in the coming day,
Be brave! Strike the decisive blow

Which breaks the barrier to the land

Where thou on freedom's height shall stand!

PELOUBET'S NOTES FOR 1921.

"Peloubet's Notes" has been issued for forty-seven years with ever-increasing popularity and usefulness, which fact alone is a wonderful argument for its value and helpfulness. It is rich in material, comprehensive in its scope, and practical in its treatment. Every superintendent, teacher, and scholar will find in it his own personal requirements. The editor of The Outlook says: "We give first place to Peloubet's." Marion Lawrance, the noted Sundayschool worker, writes: "How this standard commentary has been able to maintain itself during all these years, growing annually stronger and richer, is a marvel to the Sunday-school world. Personally, I do not see how any Sunday-school teacher can hope to do his best without the rich, full helps found in these 'Notes."

A Tired Little Worm.

A tired little worm went to sleep one day in a soft little cradle of silken gray. And he said as he snugly curled up in his nest: "O, crawling was pleasant, but rest is the best." He slept through the winter, long and cold, All tightly up in his blankets rolled. And at last awoke on a warm spring day, To find that winter had gone away. He woke to find he had golden wings, And no longer need crawl over sticks and things. "O, the earth was nice," said the glad butterfly. "But heaven is best when we learn to fly."

A Friend for the Princess.

"Listen! Come listen to the strange thing I have heard!" Neil waved his red cap high and shouted till all the children in this part of the beautiful park came running to him.

Neil's father was one of the king's guards, and Neil sometimes brought news of a grand procession from the palace. Then the children would go skipping across the grass to watch it, for you must know that this park was a portion of the king's own grounds where every child in the city had permission to play upon the thick green grass under the old trees.

"Is it a procession, Neil? Should we go over to the other side of the park to watch for the soldiers to come riding down the avenue?"

Neil shook his head. He was so full of pride in the crowd he had drawn about him that it was a whole minute before he would tell them the wonderful news.

"Somebody from the ralace is coming to watch our play this morning; somebody who will choose one boy or girl to be the special playmate of the princess.

"Think what an honor that will be!" said Neil impressively. "The child who is chosen will have all sorts of lovely things to play with and to eat. Probably he'll have ice cream and candy and nuts every single day!"

"Ho, ho! You needn't think it will be any boy, Neil Tallant," scoffed Helen. "Of course, it will be a girl that the court messenger chooses—some girl that knows many games and that can sew and knit, for I'm sure the princess loves dressing dolls as well as any one else.

"How fortunate it is that I brought my doll, Rosalie, and my sewing bag to-day! I shall sit under this very tree and sing the old songs my granny taught me, while I make beautiful new clothes for my dolly."

The other children decided to play games as usual; but everybody kept thinking of the court messenger who was to watch them. More than one child wondered how he or she could please the strange grown-up visitor, for it would be a happy thirg to become the playmate of sweet Princess Margaret.

"Look, there he is! I know it must be that man in the fine blue and silver coat," whispered one child after another, as they caught sight of a tall, handsome man who had taken his place near by.

After that the children took special pains to play every game they knew, and to be very polite and graceful as they made their bows or circled about in the quaint old folk games that the king admired.

"See that strange little girl sitting alone under the large oak tree," whispered Esther, when they circled about for the last time in the prettiest game of all. "Don't you think she would like to play with us?" "O. I don't know," said Claire. "She isn't any child I ever saw before. Maybe she would; and Helen had better put a little stone on those doll clothes if she wants to leave them spread around so. Mr. Wind would love to send them flying far away."

"I'll tell her as I go by," said Esther. She showed Helen how to make her dainty things safe from mischievous Mr Wind, then she ran on to the shy-looking little stranger under the broad-limbed old oak.

"Don't you want to come and play with us?" she asked, with a friendly smile.

"O, yes, yes! Those are lovely games, and the children all play together so well. I never played with other children much, because I have been sick," said the child in a sweet, low voice.

They clasped hands and ran skipping across the grass to where the children were forming a circle for another game. The strange little girl's eyes were bright with delight and expectation. But the children did not want her to play with them.

"Don't you see it would spoil everything, Esther?" pouted Maud. "She doesn't know one of our games, and she'd be so awkward! Some other day we would not mind having her join the play, but this time it is important for us to have everything done beautifully."

"I'd almost as soon sit under this bigger tree and watch you," whispered the little stranger; but her lips quivered, and Esther knew that she was hurt to be left out.

"We can sit under that tree and play by ourselves." Esther put her warm little arm close around the stranger girl and drew her toward the friendly old tree. "I know lots of games that it needs only two to play. Just think, we haven't told each our names yet! Mine is 'Esther.'"

"Father calls me 'Meg,'" said the stranger girl, shyly. "Can't two play any of those games where you sing? I'd love to learn a singing game."

"We can play the very one they are starting now," said

They sat down facing one another and played the game over and over till the new girl had the words by heart.

"How pleased my father will be when I tell him I know It all!" she cried, clapping her thin hands joyously together.

"Are you not getting tired, your Highness? Shall we return now?" asked somebody near them.

Esther stared straight up into the face of the tall, handsome man in the blue and silver coat! He seemed to be speaking to Meg!

"Yes, I am ready now, if you will drive by Esther's house," she said. "I must ask her mother If Esther may be my playmate every single day. I am glad that my father allowed me to choose my own playmate. I couldn't love any of those children as I do Esther. She is so sweet and patient,"

"It's Princess Margaret! Esther discovered the princess! They will play together every day!" cried the children, who had all come trooping after the man in the blue and silver coat.

Princess Margaret put her arm around Esther's neck and drew her down to whisper something. "You are to call me 'Meg,'" she said, "because we're friends."—Little Folks.

Young Willie Wakswerk had not been to school for a whole week; hence the visit from the school officer, who demanded of Willie's mother the cause. "Well, If yer must know," she answered, "he's past his thirteenth year, an' me an' his father reckon's he's had schoolin' enough, sir," "Schooling enough?" echoed the officer. "Do you know, madam, I did not finish my education until I was twenty-three?" "Yer don't say!" said the mother in astonishment. "But then, yer see," she added, confidently, "that boy of ours has brains!"—Exchange.

CURRENT THOUGHT

Prayer.

Some seem to think that prayer is but the cry Of a lost wretch who pleads for mercy at The threne of Him who measures justice for The universe; while others limit it To intercessions of a mother for Her wayward boy, the supplications of The sick, the wronged, the stranger on a far, Wild shore, the weakling agonizing o'er His fears of baunted places out beyond The tomb. But to these thoughtless folk a prayer By those who prosper is a waste of time. They place the one who prays with him who needs And begs, and getting, cares to pray no more. Indeed, 'tis true such elemental prayer Invites us to the throne through suffering And teaches us with broken hopes the gain of ant communion with our God. The need Of apt communion with our God. Supplied, the lesson learned, we find that prayer Is greater than the gift, more priceless than The answer. In this fuller life we walk And talk with Him who knows and speaks to us: And so, what loss to him who limits prayer! God pity him! He sleeps in Eden's bowers And never meets the One who hovers there. Prayer is the life of life itself, the heart Of home, the heaven of earth, the aim and end Of conscious being, the consummation of All thought—a man in converse with his God. Prayer is the infant on her mother's breast, A mother in some pained vicarious hour, A soldier in his general's tent, a friend Upon a morning's path, a presence on The desert sands, a rift in blackening clouds; A touch of finite with the Infinite, Where words are vibrant with the power of light Or lips as speechless as a newborn love. S. E. Jenkins, in Christian Advocate.

A prayerless life is a godless life. Close communion with God in prayer is as essential to the spiritual life as is one's daily food to his physical life. The true Christian lives in an atmosphere of prayer. He appreciates the blessings that he enjoys, is grateful for every good and perfect gift, for he realizes that they all come down from the Father of lights. Christians should cultivate a prayerful life. I have often thought that many Christians were too ready to argue and contend with their brethren instead of praying more to God. Prayer brings us to a realization of our true condition. Too much debating may puff us up and make us think more highly of ourselves than we should. In our weakness we should come to God for strength, in our imperfection we should come to him for righteousness, and in our lack of ability to guide ourselves we should come to him for direction.

Counter Attraction.

The appetites of the flesh bring pleasure. It is a shame that we need to say so, but it is true. How, then, shall we be cured of the longing for these pleasures? Paul says that the lust of the flesh can be counteracted only by a longing of the spirit. How different are God's methods from ours? We are forever trying to heal badness by restriction. That is our method with our children. This is the legal and governmental method. We cannot keep a man from evil by tying his hands. The fruit of the tree is never so attractive as when the command rings out: "Thou shalt not eat."

It is a fearful thing when the unclean spirit has gone out and the clean spirit has not come in. Then indeed our house is left unto us desolate. What can remove the desolation? What shall lift us out of those dry places where we wander and where we protest against our bereavement and loss? Nothing can do it but new love—no pains, no claims, no threats, no prisons. Unless we have a new love, a counter attraction, restraint will be a torment, and the sins of commission will be replaced by the sins of imagination and longing. Before we shall cease to thirst for evil, some ministering spirit must bring us a draught of the water of life, whereof they that taste shall never thirst again. If we would quench the lusts of the flesh, we must walk in the Spirit,—Watchman-Examiner.

No man can live the Christian life unless the spirit of God dwells within him. "For out of the abundance of the heart the mouth speaketh. The good man out of his good treasure bringeth forth good things; and the evil man out of his evil treasure bringeth forth evil things." (Matt. 12: 34, 35.) It appears that men will be perverse. I have heard a story of an old man who had never been out of the city of London. Some mischievous boys decided they would have some fun at his expense, so told him that if he went out of the city before sundown they would give him a terrible whipping. At first he paid little attention to them; but the more he thought about it, the more determined he was that he would go out of the city, and go he did. When you say to a man, "Thou shalt not," on account of his perversity often he says, "I will!" It is not possible to legislate goodness into a man. While this is true. Christians should be careful not to put their influence on the side of evil. Offenses will come, but woe to that man by whom they come!

Supporting the Preacher.

All along we have had a suspicion we did wrong not to include adequate pastor's salary in the objects to be sought in our Seventy-five-Million Campaign. The campaign has helped salaries, but it would have helped them far more if we had given this long-neglected, shamefully neglected cause our open and avowed advocacy. The poor support of the ministry is the open, crying, everlasting shame of American evangelical Christianity. The open enemies of Christ are far less dangerous to vital Christianity than this narrow, stingy, "let-John-do-it" support which Christian churches generally accord to the official spokesmen of Jesus Christ and his churches. Pay your pastor his salary. If it is a beggarly pittance, not half worthy of your church and his needs, get down and ask God to forgive you for your smallness of spirit and faith. Then get up and double his salary. Thousands of churches ought to do that,—Western Recorder

Barring the expression, "pastor's salary," I wish to indorse the statement of the Western Recorder that preachers are not properly paid. While I realize that it would be a curse to the ministry for a preacher to preach for money and for any one to commercialize the gospel, yet preachers must live. Preachers with large families, a wife and six or seven children, find it difficult to support them on one hundred or one hundred and twenty-five dollars per month. Of course this is not much more now than fifty dollars was before the war. Our young men, who should hardly be expected to have the depth of consecration and piety as do those who have been living the Christian life for fifty years, are not likely to enter the ministry when it appears that they cannot get a decent support. The Bible is clear that "they who preach the gospel should live of the gospel." If we would have a faithful and efficient ministry, the church should see that they are properly supported. This does not mean, however, that the church should support the man who is preaching simply for money or who does not realize the necessity of his faithfully declaring all the counsel of God. The churches are wanting preachers to-day, and are finding it difficult to get them. Many who have preached heretofore have gone into secular callings because they did not get enough while preaching to support their families. Of course a preacher cannot live on the wind, cannot go in debt and maintain the respect and confidence of the people among whom he lives. If a preacher gets himself in this condition, even the members of the church that helped to bring him to it will condemn and censure him. A minister must be ready to make sacrifices, however, in order to preach the gospel of Christ.

U

- W. F. Lemmons writes from Somerville, Texas, March 29: "I filled my appointment on Lord's day at Beaumont, We had singing Friday night and preaching Saturday night, Sunday, and Sunday night, at South Park Church. We have some good brethren and sisters who worship with this congregation. All our services were interesting. The North Park Church, where Brother Fruza preaches, is about completed, and they held their first services in the new house Sunday. We had dinner in the park and singing and preaching in the afternoon, at which time I made a short talk for them at the baptizing in the new baptistery. The prospects in Beaumont are looking up, and we hope to see much good done in the future. I go next Sunday to Belton."
- J. C. Mosley, in his latest report (April 6) concerning his work at Mayflower, Ark, says: "I have one of the best-drilled crowds of 'children' here I ever talked to, I believe. The crowd last Lord's day was certainly fine. After all persecutions, I am going on. They are talking miles away about this meeting. I had an appointment in Dongola, Ill. The persecutors thought they would have me arrested and I would go on to Illinois; then they would slur the children by telling them I was in jail. I stayed in jail one night, then came back to Mayflower. There was a large crowd awaiting my return. There was smiling and hand-shaking here one time! It now looks like there is going to be one hundred to obey the gospel before I leave. The very thing they fell on to get me to leave caused me to stay with them. They have offered to build me a house if I will stay here."
- S. P. Hochstetler writes from Coal City, Ind., March 28: "L. K. Harding, of Henning, Tenn., began a protracted meeting for the church of Christ at this place on March 6 and closed it on Sunday night, March 27, with thirty-four additions, from the age of ten years up to seveniy-five years. We had large, attentive audiences at all the night services, with the exception of a few nights when it rained so hard the people could not get out. The house, which will hold over four hundred and fifty people, was packed full many times during the meeting. In addition to being a good preacher, he is the very best song leader I ever heard. Not only do I say this, but T. B. Larimore wrote this same statement in a letter to me years ago. Brother Harding led the song service at this place during two meetings held by Brother Larimore about eighteen years ago. The singing during this meeting was very fine."
- J. M. Ussery writes from Rush Springs, Okla., April 4: "I closed a good meeting at Wilson on Wednesday night, March 30. There were no additions, but the meeting was a success in every other way. Wilson is an oil town of about four thousand people, and we have a good house of worship and a membership of one hundred. About fifty of them are lay members—that is, lay-out members; while the others are true and active Christians, and are working bard to enlarge the borders of Zion. I enjoyed myself very much in this meeting, and they expressed a desire for my services through the month of September, and I hope to be with them at that time. I preached last Saturday night and Sunday at Alex. We have some good brethren there; but there are a few extreme loyalists that oppose the Sunday school and classes, the literature, and the woman teacher, and of course they will not accomplish much good as long as they have their way in the church."
- W. D. Black writes from Holdensville, Okla., April 5: "The work here is growing. We had two good services yesterday, with splendid crowds at each service. I preached at Spaulding in the afternoon to an appreciative audience. Lasi Wednesday night I closed a short meeting at Butner. We had a good hearing and fine interest. No additions, but the faithful few at Butner feel that the seed was sown and that good will result therefrom. I go to Roff next Sunday. I will be with them Saturday night, Sunday, and Sunday afternoon, coming home for the night service Sunday night to hear C. C. Merritt, of Iowa. He will be with the church here Saturday night, Sunday, and Sunday night. Brother Merritt comes to us highly recommended in his chosen work (mission work in general), and we feel that he will do us good. May God speed the day when all the churches of Christ will be aroused to a sense of duty in evangelizing the world!"
- W. H. Reynolds, Pansey, Ala., writing to "the brethren everywhere," says: "In the year 1914 I was here in this

- country, isolated from the cause of Christ; and, like Paul at Athens, seeing the need of the gospel, I was pressed in the spirit, and began to preach as best I could. The next year, 1915, W. T. Goalen came to my assistance. He held a series of meetings which continued two weeks, and baptized three persons into the one body. He was to come back the next year, but the Lord saw fit to take him to a better world. The people were interested and were anxious to see him come back. I am a poor land renter, and have not been able to get another preacher to come. Now my uncle, A. S. Reynolds, from Texas, is coming, and can hold a meeting in July. I truly believe he can build up the cause here, if we can meet the expenses of the meeting. Will the brethren please respond to this call and help build up the cause of the Master in this destitute place? Address me at Pansey, Ala."
- C. D. Crouch writes from Port Arthur, Texas, April 6: "Our work moves along very nicely here. We have splendid audiences almost every Sunday and Sunday night, and a very good attendance at our midweek Bible study and prayer meeting. One peculiar condition here is that we have just as large crowds on Sunday nights as we have on Sunday mornings; however, we have almost a different congregation entirely at night. I recently conducted a short meeting at Hallsville, Texas, where T. H. Etheridge preaches two Lord's days in each month. We had a very good meeting, with good interest on the part of those who attended; but the attendance was not large, due largely to the fact that it was in the midst of crop pitching, and the church had become accustomed to having only a 'summer meeting.' Brother Etheridge will assist us in a meeting here beginning about the middle of May. We are looking forward to a great meeting then. The church is in better condition than it has been in for a long time."
- J. Y. McQuigg, Abilene, Texas, sends the following in-cresting note: "Seeing in the Gospel Advocate the state teresting note: ment of the old soldier brother that he would like to continue his subscription, but was not able to pay for it, I decided that I would attend to it for him, but Brother Hail beat me to it. I am glad he did, for he did more suggested the idea of a 'sinking fund' to meet just such cases. I heartily approve of it, and herewith send five dollars, half of it to be placed to that fund, the other half to pay for the Advocate to go for a year to an Ingersoll man with whom I had a long talk while away. He brought up the subject himself, and stated that he had been reading the Pills. ing the Bible a good deal of late. I told him I was certainly glad; that the Bible is the Book of books, and reading it would do him no harm. During our conversation he defended his position by finding fault with God for his utter destruction of the nations that were driven out without giving any reason, etc. I told him that it was on account of their wickedness. I see in reading since that it was their idolatry. His mother and sisters were Christians, also his first wife. He is a man of a good mind. I pray that God's blessing may go with each number of the Advocate as it makes its weekly visits.'
- W. A. Schultz, in a private letter of March 24, says: "Brother Martines [the Mexican brother whom Brother Glenn has recommended for a "missionary" among the Mexicans] tells me that he was born in Lower California in September, 1860. He went to Sacramento when a boy and entered the city schools. When about twenty he was converted and joined the Baptist Church. He says that he was impressed of the Lord to preach the gospel to his people, and that the Baptist Foreign Missionary Board sent him to San Luis Potosi, Mexico, to assist a Baptist missionary by the name of 'Greene.' Here he labored several years. He came to El Paso twenty years ago. He worked with the Baptists at first, then with the Methodists, and then with the First Christian Church. He says that since 19- he has had no church connection, as he began working for the Mexican revolution under Madero, and other revolutions, and that when the United States entered the world war he preached patriotism among the Mexican people. His family belong to a fanatical religious body known as 'Holy Rollers.' He is now creaged in farming down the valley, fifteen miles from El Paso. He is a prosperous farmer. He is a man of far above average intelligence. Despite his checkered religious experience, he knows much about the Bible, and is an impressive, earnest talker. He has promised to meet with us and to assist me in my meetings this spring and summer in El Paso. Much good may come of all this yet.
 May the Lord grant it." We say, "Amen!" With Brother Glenn and Brother Schultz to work with him and direct his teaching, he may be a veritable Godsend to his people.

CHURCH NEWS

Alabama

Sheffield, April 3.—The cause is prospering in Sheffield. We have recently completed a two-thousand-dollar annex to the church building, including three Bible-school rooms, baptistery, and other improvements. The ladies' Bible class is supporting a missionary to sell Bibles in Japan. A congregation has been set in order in a suburb of the town. There have been several additions to the church lately. To-day the record, one hundred and fifty-three being present, the highest number in attendance in any previous year being one hundred and thirty-nine. I had a very full day-preached three sermons. drove twenty miles for an afternoon service, and baptized three persons.-John C. Graham:

Arkansas.

Blytheville, April 2.-Last Lord's day was a great day for the little church at Blytheville. At the regu-lar morning services Brother B. B. Goodman, of Memphis, Tenn., delivered a forceful sermon based on the sixth chapter of Remans. At the invitation one young lady came forward and made the good confession. She had for a number of months been a regular attendant in our young people's class taught by Sister O. C. Parrish. The Christian Church people very kindly loaned us their baptistery, and Brother A. B. Baxley buried the young lady with her Lord in baptism. This is our first addition by baptism.-II. L.

Mayflower, March 29.-We had a fine meeting last Lord's day at Washam, and about sixty broke bread. If all are baptized that say they are going to be Saturday, the number will be above seventy baptisms since I have been here. This has been a fine meeting. I hope the churches at Conway and Morrillton will look after these children and help them out. There were many persecutors here, but they are coming over and obeying the truth now. Brethren O. E. Billingsley, R. H. Johnson, William Still, and others were with me in Little Rock last Tuesday. We are now planning to build a church house here.—J. C. Mosley.

Florida.

Largo, April 2.—Some of the brethren have been complaining because I do not report my work more often. My only excuse is that I am too busy. Since the first of the year I have traveled thirteen hundred miles in the Ford and one hundred and fifty miles on the railroad. I have preached fif-ty-seven sermons and had nine additions. With one exception, my work has been in destitute places, trying to strengthen the weak points and save the work already begun. The outlook is hopeful, and we are encouraged to press on. We have had more Northern visitors this winter than ever before, which has made it proportion-ately harder on primitive Christianity. I am at home but very little, and when I am here I am so busy repairing Ford cars, building picture frames, fixing

A Brand-New Book

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their

"ALF and BOB TAXLOR, with their eloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of belong Blec. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romanife story of the two most wonderfol political campaigns of Tennessec—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brathers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the rith about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Gast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of cracking camp fires and the music of the chase. THE BOOK is beautifully printed and packed in a neat gift box, ready for mailing.

Bradentown, April 4.—The meeting in Manatee closed last night, after running over five Lord's days. From the first to the last night the audiences were good and the interest the very best. Nine persons con-tessed their faith in Christ and were buried with him in baptism. Among this number was a man seventy-two years of age, who had never before heard the gospel as taught by Christ and his apostles, and another man fifty-three years old, who was a Pres-byterian. This was our second meeting at Manatee since coming to Florida. Since the first meeting a faithful little band have met regularly for worship. We raised yesterday enough funds to buy a lot, and hope to have a neat little house of our own to worship in. The full results of this meet-ing will not be known until we stand before God at the last day. Much prejudice was removed, and many went away with a clearer understanding of the difference between the church of Christ and the denominational world. We had purchased a lot of tracts for the meeting, and they helped many to un-derstand the lessons. During our meeting the Methodists were in a meeting here, and the Chautauqua was here during the last week, yet our audiences were good all the time. We invited the preachers of Bradentown and Manatee to join us in this meeting and preach night about with us on vital questions in which the souls of our fellow men were involved, but not one of them would come. Our next tent meeting will be in Palmetto, just across the Manatee River from here.-John Hayes.

This is the home of Brethren Earl Mason and Bailey Brooks, both wideawake to their Christian duty. Brother Mason is preaching somewhere every Lord's day. Brother Brooks is not preaching all the time. He has to hammer hot from a part of the time in his blacksmith shop to keep the wolf away from the door. Brethren, this ought not to be, as he is an able gospel preacher. He ought to be kept busy all the time. There is a constant cry coming to preachers: "Come over and preach for us." Are the brethren going to let able preachers like Brother Brooks stay at home for lack of support? Brother Cook is located there with the brethren. Every one seems to love him. He is doing a good work there. I preached on the first Lord's day at Summitville to a splendid little band of zealous Christians. They are setting along well. I go to Dixie, Coffee County, the second Lord's day.—R. E. L. Taylor.

WHO HAD IT

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-Acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but auch relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally I found a treatment that cured me completely, and such a piliful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even bedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent. Simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, One Dollar; but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it, isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write to-day:

Fruit Bearing. BY BAVID THOMPSON.

Strictly speaking, all children of God bear fruit. There is no such thing as a neutral Christian. very fact that one tries to stand on neutral ground and serve neither God nor the devil places him on the devil's side of the conflict whether he realizes it or not. "He that is not with me is against me; and he that gathereth not with me scattereth." (Matt. 12; 30.) One bears good fruit or he bears evil fruit. The very negative condition that brings forth no good fruit is in itself the worst kind of evil fruit. "Even so every good tree bringeth forth good fruit; but the corrupt tree bringeth forth evil fruit. A good tree cannot bring forth evil fruit, neither can a corrupt tree bring forth good fruit." (Matt. 7: 17, 18.) This statement of the Savior places one clearly on one side or the other. Since we cannot escape the responsibility of bearing some kind of fruit, we should be exceedingly careful that we bear only good fruit, What is your condition, fellow Christian? Are you bearing good fruit or evil fruit? Is your influence on the side of Christ or on the side of the

The Bible very clearly shows in the following statements the condition and prospects of those who bear no good fruit. " Every branch in me that beareth not fruit, he taketh it away." (John 15: 2.) "And even now the ax lieth at the root of the trees: every tree therefore that bringeth not forth good fruit is hewn down, and cast into the fire." (Matt. 3: 10.) This is an awful prospect, but the only way that we can escape it is by bearing good fruit. He that would bear good fruit, however, must attain to something more than a mere negative purity of There must be positive, active virtues. We must boldly and persistently push the interests of God's cause and wage an unceasing warfare against sin and the devil. Negative purity of life, while beautiful to behold, is only a part of Christianity. and accomplishes its full measure of service only when coupled with aggressive spiritual warfare. It is a very serious thing for a Christian to fail to bear good fruit; and each of us would do well to examine ourselves closely along this line, lest we be found unfruitful branches and be east out.

While the fate of those branches not bearing good fruit is sad indeed, the future of those which do bear good fruit is greatly to be desired. The Savior says: "Every branch that beareth fruit [good fruit], he cleanseth H. that it may bear more fruit." (John 15: 2.) One is led to think of a careful husbandman as he prunes, sprays, and mulches a fruitful tree, lavishing upon it time, thought, and love, that it may bear more and more fruit. The Christian who bears good fruit is thrice blessed. He has the approval of his own conscience, which comes only to those who realize that they have done their duty; he has the love and favor of God, the greatest blessing that any one can enjoy; and he has the assurance that he will increase in fruit bearing, and consequently grow in God's love and favor. Is it not much better to bear good fruit, and enjoy these blessings which constitute that happiness which is happiness indeed, than not to bear good fruit, and be sentenced to the flames of hell forever and forever?

The true test of a Christian is found in the fruit he bears. "By their fruits ye shall know them." (Matt. 7: 16.) One may make high pretensions and speak very fairly with the lips; but if the life does not agree therewith, we may be sure that his pretensions are pretensions indeed and his speech mere lip service. When we have men and women assure us that they are very sorry for their sins and negligence and earpestly mean to forsake them and live right, and then we see these same people continue in the same old way without even making a real effort to their fruit unmistakably change. stamps the character of the tree, When we find others very strong for the truth when they are where the truth is strong, and very tolerant toward error when they are where error is in the ascendancy, the fruit is again an index to the tree. When we have brethren and sisters assure us that they are very "strong in the faith," and then see them habitually absent themselves from the worship of God when they have no good excuse, to say nothing of a reason for so doing, the fruit again tells the character of the tree. Rest assured that your true character is almost sure to sooner or later be known to man as it is always known to God; for your fruits make it known.

Small kindnesses, small courtesies, small considerations, habitually practiced in our social intercourse, give a greater charm to the character than the display of great talents and accomplishments.-Kelfy.

Pippin-Thurman Debate,

BY A. O. HUFF.

This debate was held at Medicine Mound, Texas, between Brother A. F. Thurman and Elder Edgar Pippin (Missionary Baptist). One night was given to the establishment of the church; two nights were given to apostasy, Pippin leading; and two nights were given to the design of baptism, Brother Thurman leading.

Pippin had debated with George Searcy and A. S. Bradley, but he acknowledged that Brother Thurman made the strongest argument on apostasy that he had heard. A Hardshell Eaptist preacher who was present said he had heard Nichol and others of our best men, and that Brother Thurman presented his arguments in the most convincing manner that he had ever heard. The brethren were all delighted with the way he did his work. His strength lies in his depending upon the word of God for defense and support of itself.

The debate was pleasant throughout, and all the people were delighted with the way it was conducted. Good feeling was apparent with all. I am sure much prejudice was removed and the way paved for great good to the cause of Christ in the future. One man (a Baptist) and his wife were baptized.

The Secret Girding of God.

There is a statement in the book of Isaiah which is full of consolation for the servants of God. To Cyrus, the pagan king, who was designated to deliver Israel from captivity, God said: "I gird thee, though thou hast not known me." A wonderful vista is opened up in that one word. It shows us God, the active worker, behind all the schemes of men. Cyrus knew nothing of the mysterious power that urged him on, and at one stage of his career he would flatly have denied the existence of any such power; but It was there, and operating all the same. There is nothing more strengthening than to be assured of this truth: that God is working out his own plans in his own way, and that in their accomplishment he often uses men who are in utter ignorance of the part that they play in the divine providence. We must look beyond Cyrus to the God who rules all things. Only as we do this can we be assured of perfect repose of mind and the quiet power which results from perfect confidence. -Selected.

Every human voice has its own accent; every human body has its own galt. Each one must do things in his own natural, peculiar, and most fitting way. To criticize another's work or method of work because it is not like ours is as foolish as to condemn a pear for differing in shape and taste from an apple. The thing to be desired and sought is that all may work harmoniously for the same ends, not that all shall work alike, Selected.

A man stands in the bow of the boat and draws upon a line attached to the shore. His move does not move the solld ground one hair breadth, but it does move the boat toward the land. So when I attach the line of my desire fast to the everlasting throne, faith does not expect to move the throne. but to draw me closer to it; and when I get more and more into harmony with God, I receive what my heart most desires. Finding my happiness in Christ, I am satisfied.—Bushnell.

Trying Times.

The reconstruction period after the great war is characterized by what may be called "high-pressure days," The demands of business, the wants of the family, the requirements of society, are more numerous now than ever before

The first effect of the praiseworthy effort to keep up with all these things is commonly seen in a weakened or debilitated condition of the nervous system, which results in dyspepsia, defective nutrition of both body and brain, and, in extreme cases, in complete nervous prostration.

It is clearly seen that what is needed is what will sustain the system, give vigor and tone to the nerves, and keep the digestive and assimilative functions healthy and active. Many persons from their own experience recommend Hood's Sarsaparilla for this purpose. It acts on the vital organs, builds up the system, and fits men and women for these trying times.

In case where there is biliousness or constipation, it is well to take Hood's Pills. They are a thorough cathartic. a gentle laxative.

Anxiety for the End.

BY L. T. BIGHTSELL.

When Daniel inquired of the heavonly messengers as to the issue of all worldly things, he was told: "Go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shalt rest, and stand in thy lot at the end of the days."

Man has a past and a future. remembers the past, and he will look forward to the future. Remembering the past is useful in that it helps to correct possible mistakes in the future, but it is harmful if it causes man to cherish vain regrets or to plan backwards and muse upon how he would do if he could live it over.

The future may possibly be ours, but it is the part of unwisdom to be filled with anxiety as to its Issues. The heavenly visitor told Daniel in no uncertain tone that the thing he should do was to go forward in the performance of duty. "The words are shut up and sealed till the time of the end."

Daniel belonged to the class of those who meditate upon righteousness, and sometimes get discouraged because righteousness does not seem to prevall. The other class think of wickedness, and try to strangle all thought of the future. There is no word addressed to this class; but to those who, like Daniel, sometimes get discouraged, there is an exhortation.

There will undoubtedly be an end. Everything we see is limited and bounded by the finite. But the fact that there is to be an end simply tells us of the perfection of God's plans. The fact that we cannot see and understand is no more strange than that we cannot always see and understand the hidden mechanism of machines made by men. We do not question the end of such machines, but accept it as a matter of course. That which we see is imperfect, but the end means perfection. Is anxiety justified?

Christians are often perplexedyes, even indignant-to see the evil sharing equal advantages with the good, or even triumphing over the good. Many a good man cries out: "How long, O Lord, how long?" Sometimes developments come about which clear up matters for them to a large extent; but this is not usually the case. Most of them must wait till "the time of the end."

There is a way for Christians to walk until the end, and that is revealed in the word of God. Let our searching of the word be accompanied by prayer and the guidance of the Holy Spirit. Daniel was helped thus, though he did not have the Bible.

You may say that Daniel had an advantage over you, that he had visions from God and the presence of heavenly messengers. But you may have the Spirit-filled life, if you will but accept it. God is perfectly willing that you shall have it; he offiers it to you and presses it upon you. He says to you just as clearly as he said to Daniel: "Go thou thy way till the end be: for thou shall rest, and stand in thy lot till the end of the days."

There is a class of weak ones, to whom God speaks in these words; and they are those who are always ready to listen to false prophets, to those who are saving: "Lo, here: and, Lo, there!" Fads attract them here and there, and finally they lose their faith in God's word and make shipwreck of their faith. Some say: "Take any way, and it will lead to heaven." Do not listen to them. They are either ignorant or maliciously deceitful. God's way alone will lead to the end.

Edifying as the Need May Be Selling the Birthright.

Esau is not accounted among the patriarchs. The best that we can say of him along this line is that he "might have been." Esau's failure to become a patriarch was not because his destiny was eternally and irrevocably fixed by the prophecy spoken at his birth, which reads: "And the elder shall serve the younger." We must distinguish between God's omniscience and God's will. It is true that God knew Esau would fall, but that is far from saying that God made him to fail. Why, then, did Esau not obtain his heritage? Why do we not find his name in the patriarchal succession with the names of Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob? The answer is plain enough when we read the Old Testament narrative. Because he sold his birthright.

Jacob and Esau were twins. Whether boys or girls or one of each sex, twins are always interesting. The twins I have known were very much alike both as to features and disposition. A boy once said that it was "awful good tun" to be so much like his twin brother that few people could tell them apart. Perhaps you have heard the story about the boy whose mother asked what he was laughing about, and he said he was laughing because she had washed him twice and had not washed his twin brother at all. But Jacob and Esau missed the "awful good fun" of being alike. They were not at all alike either in looks or ways.

Two Brothers Compared.

When we place the two brothers side by side in the days of their youth, Jacob suffers by the comparison. Esau was endowed at birth with almost every desirable quality; Jacob by nature was far less attractive. Esau was big and strong and rugged; Jacob was small and weak. Esau was devoted to manly pursuits. He leved the great out-of-doors and laughed at any kind of danger. Jacob found delight in prosaic occupations. He stayed at home and cooked and served. Esau was generous, warm-hearted, and forgiving; Jacob was mean and resentful and selfish. Esau was frank and open; Jacob was furtive and deceptive. One writer says Esau must have been a "prime favorite both with men, women, and children;" another says that Jacob was "probably unpopular, effeminate, and contemptible." Esau was "his father's pride;" Jacob was "mammy's lamb." Any one would have said at this period in their lives that Esau would be the one that men would remember gratefully and that Jacob when he died would quickly be forgotten. Why, then, with all of these superior advantages, did Esau turn out to be such a dismal failure? I repeat: Because he sold his birthright.

A Thing Despised.

Coming in from the field one day and being well-nigh exhausted with the chase, the big, reckless, jovial-hearted Esau found his apron-strings brother helping his mother in the kitchen. He was boiling pottage. "Esau said to Jacob, Feed me, I pray thee, with that same red pottage; for I am faint. . . . And Jacob said, Sell me first thy birthright. And Esau said, Behold, I am about to die: and what profit shall the birthright do to me? And Jacob said, Swear to me first; and he sware unto him; and he sold his birthright unto Jacob." We must not think that Esau was condemned because of the one fact that he sold his birthright. The full import and flagrancy of his misconduct are brought out at the end of the story where it is said. "Thus Esau despised his birthright," Nor must we condemn the young man because he made a quick decision. The world is so constituted that we are forced to act upon impulse a great deal of the time. Many of the real and many of the best decisions are speedily made. You can tell pretty nearly what a man will do under given circumstances, if you know the man. Esau despised his birthright when as a boy he failed to learn the worth of an honorable position in life. Alexander Whyte remarks: "Everybody knew that Esau's birthright was for sale, Isaac knew, Rebekah knew, Jacob knew, and Jacob had for a long time been eyeing his brother for a fit opportunity " to rob him. There is always some way for a fool to lose. and he can be depended upon to find it.

The Appetite That Ruins.

The thing that ruined Esau was his appetite. I would not convey the impression that the possession of a big appetite is sinful in itself or that one shall be lost because of it. If that were true, I am afraid that I am a "goner." An appetite under proper control is one of the finest assets in the world. We never know how to appreciate a good appetite until we lose it. I heard of a man once who got a reputation of always having "something to thank God for." One day he slipped and fell with some meat he was carrying home for dinner. Some dogs pounced on the meat and carried it off. A bystander sneeringly asked: "What is there to thank God for now?" The man of grateful habit answered: "Well, my dinner is gone, but thank God I have my appetite yet." Yes, appetite is something to be thankful for, and it is capable of more than one definition. Physically, it is hunger for food; mentally, it is that curiosity of mind that drives after knowledge; spiritually, it is a zest to know God and his ways. Let us be "giving thanks always for all things in the name of our Lord Jesus Christ."

It was not a healthful appetite fulfilling its rightful functions that injured Esau. It was an appetite unrestrained and uncontrolled. For one morsel he sold his birthright, forfeited the paternal and patriarchal blessing, renounced the headship of the house, and placed himself outside the chosen family and the lineage of blessing. Later, Paul tells us, "when he would have inherited the blessing, he was rejected" and "found no place for repentance." He stands as a permanent type of the folly and danger of those who sacrifice spiritual and future interests for the momentary and sensual delights of the present.

Catching Condors and Men.

The fact that Esau had so many admirable qualities to start with makes the story of his fall all the more impressive and should teach us what ravages are wrought by an uncontrolled appetite. Perhaps you have seen in some zoological garden that immense bird known as the South American condor. I used to wonder how he was ever captured, and recently I read the explanation. A native of Peru slays an animal for food. He leaves upon the skin some pieces of raw flesh and goes with it far up the mountain side of the rugged Andes. He finds a crevice in the rock, lies down in it and covers himself up with the skin, with the raw side exposed. The giant condor, seated on the cliff or soaring far above the clouds, scents the flesh. He drops upon the pelt and pulls the flesh off with his beak. But the native underneath seizes him by the feet, and, wrapping the skin around him, sells him at the nearest port, to decorate some city park a thousand miles away.

So many a promising man, capable of lofty flight, is caught and carried captive by his appetites. If there were no other reason why a man should embrace the Christian religion, the fact that it teaches self-control is reason enough. The inclusive rule of this religion is: "Whether therefore ye eat or drink, or whatsoever ye do, do all to the glory of God," There is no higher purpose, and any lower dishonors God and degrades the creature. Even the great apostle declares: "I keep under my body, and bring it into subjection: lest . . . I myself should be a castaway." This means that an uncontrolled appetite brings abject slavery. The rightful place of the body is as the submissive and obedient servant of the soul. It rules but to ruin. As Augustine put it: "Let thy spirit obey God, that thy flesh may obey thy spirit."

Society also has its times of testing, periods of war, times of social stress and discontent. Then we find out whether or not it is built upon the Rock. What does the Rock mean? Loyalty, discipline, faith, unswerving truth to the highest and best love for Jesus, the methods of the kingdom, the truths of the gospel. These are the only secure foundations for any of us. When do we begin to build upon the Rock? When we hear and do the sayings of Jesus. Those two words are so married as never to be divorced—to hear and to do. It is thus we build our foundations.—Selected.

Is It Wrong to Judge?

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

"Judge not, that ye be not judged," frequently is quoted to condemn all manner of judging. Abraham Lincoln, in his second inaugural address, after pointing out a palpable inconsistency in the attitude of the Southern slaveholder, said: "But let us judge not, that we be not judged." I think Lincoln, usually accurate in his interpretation of Scripture, gave this utterance of Jesus a rather doubtful meaning. In the tenderness of a heart that cherished "malice toward none, but charity for all," he quoted Jesus as proof of the almost universal sentiment that mortal man should not judge mortal man. There is, indeed, a pronounced sentiment against judging, especially when it has to do with the moral and religious acts of people, and whoever undertakes to point out error almost invariably is met with an ominous and emphatic warning: "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

It is urged by those opposed to judging that inasmuch as the Father has committed all judgment into the hands of the Son, who will exercise this authority, not in this day of grace, but in the last day when he shall separate the righteous from the wicked "as a shepherd separateth the sheep from the goats," any mortal here below who would judge for any cause is arrogating to himself the prerogative of the Judge and usurping the throne of the King. It is true enough that final judgment has been committed to Jesus, the Judge of the living and the dead: but even in that committal his church is to be associated with him (1 Cor. 6: 2), and the saints shall judge the world and angels. Paul seems to be teaching in the passage alluded to that because the saints are to judge the world and angels in the last day they ought to have a care to learn right judgment down here. Nor is this contradictory of teaching in the Sermon on the Mount: "Judge not, that ye be not judged." Jesus, in this utterance, condemns only unrighteous judgment; for in the same sermon the great Teacher admonishes us: "By their fruits ye shall know them."

I maintain that the Christian as an individual and the church as a body must judge—the former, in his private capacity; the latter, in its public capacity. This follows in the nature of the case. How shall the Christian assume a helpful and saving attitude toward his brother in Christ, if he is to be utterly blind to his brother's mistakes? To blink at sin in Christians is to grow callous and indifferent to their eternal interests—an attitude that is as stupid as it is false. The congregation which does not judge of the conduct and spiritual condition of its members is remiss in the great responsibility of discipline and follows in the path of the Laodicean church. I can think of no better illustration of worthless salt—salt that has lost its savor—than the church which deliberately refuses to exercise public judgments as a matter of discipline.

But there are certain judgments forbidden to Christians. No Christian, for example, has any right to condemn a sin in another which he himself habitually is committing. If guilty of the same offense, he condemns himself when he condemns his brother. A sense of self-respect should cause such a critic to maintain silence; but if he persists in his course, he will find in the last day that he is condemned by his own judgment. Paul had this type of critic in mind when he wrote: "Wherefore thou art without excuse, O man, whosoever thou art that judgest: for wherein thou judgest another, thou condemnest thyself; for thou that judgest dost practice the same things. . And reckonest thou this, O man, who judgest them that practice such things, and doest the same, that thou shalt escape the judgment of God?" (Rom. 2: 1-3.) David is an example of this type of judge. You remember the parable of Nathan the prophet. "There were two men in one city; the one rich, and the other poor. The rich man had exceeding many flocks and herds; but the poor man had nothing, save one little ewe lamb, which he had bought and nourished up: and it grew up together with him, and with his children; and it did eat of his own morsel, and drank of his own cup, and lay in his bosom, and was unto him as a daughter. And there came a traveler unto the rich man, and he spared to take of his own flock and of his own herd, to dress for the wayfaring man that was come unto him, but took the poor man's lamb and dressed it for the man that was come unto him. And David's anger was greatly kindled against the man; and he said to Nathan, As Jehovah liveth, the man that hath done this is worthy to die: and he shall restore the lamb fourfold. because he did this thing, and because he had no pity." (2 Sam. 12: 1-6.) Whereupon the prophet, perhaps pointing a scornful finger at the king, thundered this sententious condemnation into David's ears: "Thou art the man!" David had condemned David! The king had pictured this man as a great sinner, not noting that the shadowy profile revealed himself. The rich man was David, the king, and the poor man was Uriah, his servant, and David had committed the sin in taking Uriah's wife. Are there not such Davids to-day? Are there not those who condemn the church, yet who are no better and no more active than the average churchman? Do they not condemn themselves along with their congregation? Are there not those who blame organized society for the multifarious evils of the day, yet who are doing little to lift moral standards? I fear many cannot cast a stone, lest it demolish their own moral and spiritual hulk.

No Christian has any right to judge others when he himself is a greater sinner. "And why beholdest thou the mote that is in thy brother's eye, but considerest not the beam that is in thine own eye? Or how wilt thou say to thy brother, Let me cast out the mote out of thine eye; and lo, the beam is in thine own eye? Thou hypocrite, cast out first the beam out of thine own eye; and then shalt thou see clearly to cast out the mote out of thy brother's eye." (Matt. 7: 3-5.) We must not essay the microscopic removal of sawdust from another's eye before we have hoisted the sawlog out of our own. We put ourselves into an exceedingly awkward and ridiculous attitude when we go around as a busybody with a "rafter" in our own eye trying to discover a "splinter" in our brother's eye. If we do so, we are hypocrites, and shall be judged as such. The so-called "doubled-standard" of morals is founded upon this hypocrisy.

Again, Christians must not judge in the wrong spirit or with a wrong object in view. We must not approach our brother in the attitude of an enemy. "And if any man obeyeth not our word by this epistle, note that man, that ye have no company with him, to the end that he may be ashamed. And yet count him not as an enemy, but admonish him as a brother." (2 Thess. 3: 14, 15.) We must avoid a faultfinding, censorious, uncharitable spirit. The world and, to some extent, the church also are filled with this spirit of revenge, retaliation, a gloating spirit that delights in the humiliation of the more fortunate or successful. Envy and jealousy are constituent parts of this evil disposition. Doctors envy more successful doctors, lawyers grow envious of more successful lawyers, and there is such a thing as "preacher jealousy." We must love the sinner and hate his sins; we must not approach the erring as a judge who loathes him along with his loathsome deeds. Jesus was condemning just this sort of unrighteous judging when he said: "Judge not, that ye be not judged."

How, then, shall we judge the wrongdoer? How shall we approach our erring brother? Why, in the spirit of gentleness, with the sole object of restoring him to the divine favor. "Brethren, even if a man be overtaken in any trespass, ye who are spiritual, restore such a one in the spirit of gentleness; looking to thyself, lest thou also be tempted." (Gal. 6: 1.) Note well the apostle's language. The "spiritual" man is here designated as a proper judge-the Christian who is filled with and led by the Spirit. If we have not the Spirit of Christ, we are none of his, and least of all are fitted to approach the erring child of God. The object of the mission is to "restore" him, not to humiliate and drive him further into sin. Now, any one actuated by any other consideration than to "restore such a one" should be ashamed to essay this mission of reconciliation and restoration. Moreover, the whole procedure must be characterized with "the spirit of gentleness." No other spirit can restore those overtaken in a fault. But if the consecrated Christian approach the erring Christian with words imbued with gentleness, his mission cannot fail. On such an errand he cannot be other than a blessing, because the favor of God will attend him.

But the judge must look to himself on such a mission. Let him proceed with fear and trembling lest he also be tempted. Let him bear in mind that he himself also is fallible, that he may be overtaken by temptation and sin as the brother whom he desires to restore. He must turn the light inward as well as outward. Paul watched himself more closely than he watched others. "I buffet my body, and bring it into bondage: lest by any means, after that I have preached to others, I myself should be rejected." (1 Cor. 9: 27.) He warned others to exercise the same watchfulness. "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." (1 Cor. 10: 12.) It is indeed vitally important that we learn the virtue of judging ourselves. "But if we discerned ourselves, we should not be judged." (1 Cor. 11: 31.)

Finally, there are two other judgments that I do not think it is my business to make. I do not care to judge any mortal unworthy of eternal life while he is in the flesh—unworthy to come to the cleansing fountain filled with blood; nor shall I pass judgment upon his eternal destiny after he has quit the tabernacle of flesh. I shall not say when any mortal is past the redemption point—when he becomes an incorrigible sinner. I prefer to let him settle that for himself, and meanwhile I shall continue to admonish him. I shall turn away from him only after he has rejected the truth and judged himself unworthy of life eternal. "Seeing ye thrust it from you, and judge yourselves unworthy of eternal life, lo, we turn to the Gentiles." (Acts 13: 46.)

As for the dead, Christ becomes their Judge. He knows who are worthy to enter the eternal kingdom. It is his prerogative, and I would be afraid to usurp it if I could. "I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingdom." (2 Tim. 4: 1.) Would that all men would make it their aim in life to be well-pleasing unto the Judge of the living and the dead! "For we must all be made manifest before the judgment seat of Christ; that each one may receive the things done in the body, according to what he hath done, whether it be good or bad." (2 Cor. 5: 10.)

The greatest tribute to the necessity of religion is that it survives its out worn forms; the greatest proof of the essential truth of Christianity is that, in spite of the twaddle talked every Sunday in the name of Christ, Christianity is still alive.—H. R. Haweis.

"Let Us Reason Together."

"Come now, and let us reason together, saith Jehovah," is an admonition we need ever to remember. Just to keep cool and think while God is talking will ever lead us to see the good and right way, the wisdom of taking his advice and the folly of going in some other way. He declares: "If ye be willing and obedient, ye shall eat the good of the land; but if ye refuse and rebel, ye shall be devoured with the sword." If we will let reason have its way, it will lead us to take the course of the "willing and obedient." How sorely we all need to let God talk to us, and then let wisdom have her way!

In 1 Pet. 5: 8 we are commanded: "Be sober, be watchful: your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour." In 1 Pet. 4: 7 the same writer says: "Be ye therefore of a sound mind, and be sober unto prayer." This word "sober," it is correctly said, means "to rule both the passions of the mind and the appetites of the body with wisdom." We are often "dead drunk," mentally, and do not know it. It is bad to be intoxicated by putting into our stomachs things that should not go there. It is worse, however, to be intoxicated on malice, hatred, prejudice for or against questions, by putting into our hearts things that should not be allowed there. To be sober and let wisdom have her way is one of the most helpful things in the Christian's life.

It is fine for brethren to "reason together." But how often is this impossible because of the condition of the hearts of the ones who try to reason together! They are not sober, but are filled with that spirit of Satan that intoxicates the soul and renders them wholly incapable of reasoning. May God help us to let his Spirit ever dwell in us and keep us sober and capable of treating each other as brethren, and all men as we would have them treat us.

"Preachers' Meetings."

Something has been said of late for and against "preachers' meetings." I hope I may be able to say something that is sound and safe on this question.

1. That preachers have a right, if they so choose, and time and opportunity will allow, to meet together as brethren in Christ, to exchange thoughts and to be mutually helpful to each other, I presume, will be admitted by all thoughtful Christians. To say that preachers cannot do this without sinning seems to me a very extreme and hurtful statement. They have been doing this for years, without any prearrangements to this end-that is, a number of preachers often have the pleasure of meeting each other during some revival, and the good sisters often have them together for dinner, etc. Brother Riggs and I are associated in a very great work, and I presume no one will call in question that he and I have the right to have a preachers' meeting occasionally by his meeting me and my meeting him and talking over the work together. Then we have Brother Witty at Ontario. Brother Borden at Riverside, and Brother Nay at Pasadena, with others right in this section of the State, with our work overlapping and interlapping-that is, we are in contiguous territory, and the members are continually visiting and worshiping more or less at all the places. It seems that circumstances demand that the brethren named, with others in this section, occasionally meet for the purpose of talking over together the needs of this field and striving to be helpful to each other in having the greatest possible amount of work done. Just how preachers in the same section can love as brethren should and not have such meetings is not very clear to me. If we love each other and are unselfish, rejoicing in each other's successes and standing by and encouraging each other in our failures, it seems that such meetings we will have in spite of ourselves. I am heartily in favor of them. I think I see something more dangerous than a "preachers' meeting." It is that lack of brotherly love that some seem to manifest. It is that selfishness that makes some interested in their own work, with not a prayer to offer or word of encouragement to give or speak of the work of others. It is that "preacher jealousy and envy" that makes preachers' meetings very incompatible. If preachers' meetings will make preachers love each other more and have a deeper and a more abiding interest in each other's work, and put to death that deadly weed, selfishness, then let us have them.

2. But what is seeming to become a fad among us, called "preachers' meetings," should be guarded. I could not say that such are necessarily wrong, but preachers too often will allow their restlessness to cause them to inaugurate some movement that would be better left alone. But let us not go to the extreme position by taking a stand against preachers' meetings to talk over the work in which their whole hearts should be centered. Sin is a transgression of law; and just what law would be transgressed by preachers in contiguous territory meeting and praying together and talking together about problems that confront preachers and how to do better the work they are trying to do, I am not able just now to see. It all depends on the purpose of the meeting and what they actually do while together. They should be governed by the same rule while together that they are governed by when not together -viz., God's truth-and see that nothing is done that is a transgression of God's law. But if preachers will learn to work as the early preachers worked, they will not have time to have many meetings like the ones we are having these days; and when we do have a preachers' meeting, it will be conducted by preachers whose work overlaps, preachers working in contiguous territory, and, hence, a meeting that love for each other and a willingness to help each other demands. This way of having a "preachers' meeting" and sending miles away for "big guns" to come and see how loud they can shoot and then go back home, it would be better to just leave alone. When you send off for a preacher, and he comes and has his say and goes back, there is but little real help rendered the section in which the preachers' meeting is called.

3. Now remember that all I have said is what I humbly believe, and I hope it will do good. If you agree with the suggestions, I hope it is because you see some truth in God's word that makes you feel this way. If you disagree with me, I love you none the less for this. May God help us to be indeed "sober" and "watchful" in these evil days!

The Local Church.

The thing that will solve the most of our troubles and bring the greatest good to the cause of Christ is to have well-organized local churches. By "well-organized" I mean a church that has scriptural elders-elders who believe in seeing a church do things and believe in working themselves. Because of the "do-nothing" state into which the church has fallen, a few preachers have taken it upon themselves to become missionaries among the local churches-that is, they, of their own accord and uninvited. take spells of traveling from Dan to Beersheba, stirring up local churches to do mission work. I grant that many need to be stirred, but I have never yet been able to see by what authority preachers have a right to do this. I have a preacher in mind now that wasted many stamps writing me while I was in Atlanta, begging me to make him an appointment to visit the Atlanta churches and lecture on mission work. Local churches that do their duty, that have elders who are "live wires" and in love with the salvation of souls, do not need the time of such men. Understand me not to impugn the motives of some who do this. I cannot judge where I do not know. But just now I feel more like criticizing the elders who allow churches to become so dead that they need stirring up. Let all elders see that the local church fulfills its God-ordained mission—viz., "sounding out the word of the Lord." (See 1 Thess. 1: 8; Phil. 2: 16.)

Introducing societies through which to work is a digression from God's truth. But sitting with your hands folded and doing nothing is just as much a digression. Hence, we have at least two kinds of digressive churches— (1) those that do what God wants done, but go about it in the wrong way, and (2) those that let God's work go undone. Let us be neither, but let us do the work, and do it God's way.

"Understandest Thou What Thou Readest?" BY H. C. FLEMING.

"And Philip ran thither to him, and heard him read the prophet Esaias, and said, Understandest thou what thou readest? And he said, How can I, except some man should guide me?" (Acts 8: 30, 31.) Here was a man, who was either a Jew or a proselyte to the Jews religion, reading the plain declaration of the prophet in reference to Christ, but he did not understand it even after it had been fulfilled; but when Philip "preached unto him Jesus," all was made clear. (Verses 32-35.)

Jesus often spoke to his disciples about his suffering, death, and resurrection, which were plainly foretold in the prophecies, but they understood none of these things. (Luke 18: 31-34.) But why did they not understand such plain statements? Because they expected Jesus to establish an earthly kingdom to free them from the rule of Rome. (Luke 24: 21.) After his resurrection, Jesus "opened . . . their understanding, that they might understand the Scriptures." (Verse 45.)

In John 14: 29 Jesus said to the disciples, "I have told you before it come to pass, that, when it is come to pass, ye might believe," thereby showing that they would not understand until it had come to pass. Thus it is with a great deal of unfulfilled prophecy.

After all his teaching, he told them to tarry in Jerusalem until they were "endued with power from on high." (Luke 24: 49.) He had warned them about being deceived by false Christs and false prophets (teachers); therefore we ought to realize how careful he was that the things concerning him should be understood correctly. And after he was glorified, the disciples understood that these things were written of him. (John 12: 16.) Does any man think that if he had been in the place of the eunuch or the apostles, he would have understood better than they did?

Thinking of the things referred to above, is it wise in us to form theories and draw conclusions about prophecies yet unfulfilled? If in doing so we make mistakes, which we are very liable to do, and our theories do not transpire as we are expecting, the result must be the overthrow of the faith of many, and some will cry out: "Where is the promise of his coming? for since the fathers fell asleep, all things continue as they were from the beginning of the creation." (2 Pet. 3: 4.) The disappointment of the Jews at the first coming of Christ was so great that they had him crucified because he did not do what they expected him to do. If we are expecting him at his second coming to establish a kingdom on earth and reign from the old capital of Jerusalem, subduing all nations to him, are we not as liable to be mistaken as were the Jews at his first coming? And is it not possible that we may be found among the number referred to in Rev. 20: 7-10, 15? But if we have purified our souls by obeying the truth (1 Pet. 1: 22), all will be well with us in whatever manner the prophecies are fulfilled. God will attend to fulfilling the prophecies in his own time and in his own manner.

News From Japan.

BY SARAH ANDREWS.

Since reaching home I have had three letters from my native helper, a faithful and earnest handmaid of the Lord. Now that I am in the homeland, I can make only indirect reports of the work so dear to my heart; but I believe her reports can be relied upon as being true to facts.

Her first letter was dated January 18, just twelve days after I sailed from Japan. The following are some of the items given: "The kindergarten is getting on as usual. Children are talking about you every day. Yesterday we had a nice meeting. All the Christians were present at the worship, and Hayashi San came in the afternoon to study with Sugiura San, who is studying more earnestly now, and I think will be a Christian soon. I ordered the cards and picture roll for the Sunday school until June. They came, and the bill is 23 yen 22 sen ($11.61). I had a card from Tezuka San [a member of the Okitsu church who is now in Tokyo] last week. He went to Yokohama on the seventh, and when he learned you had sailed the day before he was so disappointed. I am busy every day. We went to the young women's meeting at Yatsu last Saturday and spent the day. Another meeting wants me to talk to them. If I can, I will go. I think you can read this piece of newspaper I inclose. [Clipping from two Japanese papers telling of my work in Okitsu and departure from Japan]. It was written up in almost all the papers, but I will send just two of them. Now it is nine. Regular class met this evening. So I must read and go to bed. Remember me in your prayers."

The second letter was dated February 14. She had received my letter mailed at Honolulu. The student who in the previous letter was studying earnestly, and who has been a member of the Sunday-afternoon Bible class for a long time, and who wanted to be baptized the day before I left, but was prevented by his parents, had overcome all persecution and had asked to be baptized. She had written Brother Fujimori, and he had promised to come as soon as possible. The Christians are all earnest. The Mondayevening class for little boys is fine, and the change in them for the better is great. These little boys were about the worst in town when we first got hold of them. They had had little or no home training, but had spent most of their time on the streets, with all that that may mean. "Please don't trouble about us and the work here, and get good rest. I will do my best, with God's help."

The last letter, received a few days ago, was dated March 1. The church is planning another Bible class, both for the edification of the church and for any inquirers who will come. Children are being enrolled for the new term of kindergarten. Some extra expenses have to be met for literature and for having the mats in the house renewed.

"As cold waters to a thirsty soul, so is good news from a far country." (Prov. 25: 25.)

"Queries and Answers" Commended.

Dear Brother McQuiddy: I have received the copy of "Queries and Answers," and wish to assure you that I pronounce it a most excellent work. The names of Brother Lipscomb and Brother Sewell are enough to recommend it as the best; and since examining it, that is just my opinion of it. It fills an important place in our religious literature, since it answers those many questions which have been asked over and over again by all students of the Word. Not only is it excellent as a ready reference, but there is no better help even when you have no special subject in mind. The mechanical work is first-class, and I believe the book to be worthy of a place in every Christian home. I hope your sales are such as to call for a second edition of this and a third volume of "Queries and Answers."

Yours in the Christ, W. D. BILLS

Between Extremes Concerning Baptism. BY H. W. JONES.

The truth of God, unmixed with errors of man, is never found, on any subject, in the extremes. And perhaps more extremes concerning baptism are extant than on any other Bible subject.

Those who say, "Water baptism is not in force now—Holy Ghost baptism is the only baptism worth a snap," are wild extremists. Why do I say so? Because such untenable position is not only unreasonable, but antiscriptural; and those who claim Holy Ghost baptism cannot, as a rule, speak well their mother tongue, let alone "speak with other tongues," as was the result of Holy Spirit baptism in the beginning. (Acts 2, 10.) And those who say, "Baptism is a mere form, a command to obey, but not essential in any way to salvation," are on the extreme and "do err, not knowing the scriptures, nor the power of God," because the Bible says we are "baptized into Christ," into his death," "into remission of sins:" "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," "baptism doth also now save us," etc. No extremes in these quotations.

But those who single out one certain purpose or design of baptism (remission of sins) and contend that all candidates for baptism must have that purpose or design of God in view when immersed, to make the act valid, are surely on the extreme. Why do I say so? Because the Scriptures do not so teach. The Bible does require whole-hearted belief-belief that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of the living God-and repentance as essential to valid baptism. No one denies this. That baptism (immersion), to all such, is for (unto) the remission of sins, I firmly believe; but I do not believe it takes one's believing, when immersed, that his immersion is for, or unto, the remission of sins to make it so. The Lord grants or gives remission of sins, pardon, etc., to every whole-hearted believer in Jesus as both Lord and Christ who sincerely repents of all his sins and is immersed, on Christ's authority, into the sacred names of Father, Son, and Holy Spirit. Less than this is taking from God's word, and more than this is adding a law to his word where he has made none-going to extremes on one divine purpose of baptism!

And if one should say it is not necessary to understand any scriptural purpose or design of immersion, he would be on the extreme. Why? Because all God's promises, blessings, and warnings tend to induce obedience and bring joy, happiness, and peace of mind to all; and because the Lord has so many different or varied designs of baptism that an honest-hearted person could hardly submit to immersion without some scriptural motive for so doing. I doubt whether very many were ever immersed without any scriptural motive at all for so doing. Then for puny man to pick out one certain purpose or design of baptism-"remission of sins"-and call it "the direct purpose," or, rather, "the leading purpose," is to go to the extreme. If "there is or should be one leading purpose in the heart of the one baptized," why say it is remission of sins? Why not to accept the counsel (advice) of God, in Christ, "the leading purpose?" (Luke 7: 30.) Or why not to be "saved," to get "into the names of Father and Son and Holy Spirit," to "enter the kingdom of God," to get "into Christ," to "put on Christ" or get "into his death," or to have "a good conscience toward God "-why not any one of these "the leading purpose?" To say that each of these is a leading purpose and none of them "the leading purpose" would be nearer "between extremes," wouldn't it?

But, "'Be baptized for the remission of sins," quoth they, "is the law to be obeyed." Now, that is another extreme. (1) The language as they quote it is not found in holy writ, because they leave out part of the sentence, as the Methodist preacher did when he pretended to quote the language of Jesus Christ in Matt. 28: 19, 20 by saying,

"Go teach all nations, teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you," thus leaving out baptism entirely, and thereby making the impression that it is "not essential;" and he even said to me, "It is not necessary," etc., when I asked him why he left baptism out. (2) The theory is not found in the language as they quote it, (a) for the simple reason that "remission of sins" is a promise or purpose of God-yes, the Lord's act or work in putting us into a change of state or relationship before him-hence on the divine side of man's salvation; and (b) for the reason that man cannot obey "remission of sins," a promise, but can obey commands regarding baptism, etc., and the Lord surely saves all them that obey him. (Mark 16: 16; Heb. 5: 9.) Hence, the faith-in-design theory is an extreme, and not essential to valid baptism. Now let us examine Acts 2: 38 and Acts 10: 48. The apostle Peter, who had the keys of the kingdom, said to those Jewish believers in the Christ, on the day of Pentecost: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins." Again: "And he [Peter] commanded them [Gentile believers] to be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ." Thus we see that both Jew and Gentile believers in the Christ are commanded to "be baptized in the name of Jesus Christ," which, as a matter of course, puts them both into "the remission of sins," "into Christ," etc. What, then, does the phrase, "in the name of Jesus Christ," mean? It means on, or upon, the authority of Jesus Christ (no human requirement)-that is, be baptized because Jesus Messiah, the High and Holy One, requires it. So we are commanded to be baptized on the ground, basis, or foundation of Jesus Messiah-or, in plain, simple terms, "be baptized to obey God," as Brother David Lipscomb so aptly put it. Baptism, then, rests for its authority, validity, efficacy, and power on Jesus Christ, the Son of the living God. Hence, "to obey God" is a good, plain meaning of the scriptural phrase, "in the name of Jesus Christ," and is, therefore, a good purpose, on the part of man, in being immersed, if not "the leading purpose." If not, why not? Surely man's purpose or "design" with reference to haptismand every other divine precept, as to that-should be 'to obey God" in Christ Jesus our Lord. This principle has ever been good; for, "behold, to obey is better than sacrifice, and to hearken than the fat of rams," (1 Sam. 15: 22.) And David says: "A good understanding have all they that do his [God's] commandments." Now, gentle reader, don't "fly to the extreme" and say I am on the extreme because I emphasize the importance of the muchneglected phrase, "in the name of Jesus Christ:" for I want to hold no religious theory that cannot be sustained by good, sound reason and divine revelation. "To obey" through love is the highest type of obedience taught in God's holy word. Hence, "do all in the name of the Lord Jesus." (Col. 3: 17.)

Now, as to immersed believers who "come out from Babylon" (confusion) of sectarianism and ask fellowship with us without another immersion, why not gladly receive them, since the Lord receives into his spiritual body, the church, all penitent believers who are immersed on Christ's authority? "If thou believest with all thine heart [that Jesus Christ is the Son of God], thou mayest [be baptized]"-this is the Bible test, and it should be ours, for surely they know more about themselves than we know. (See 1 Cor. 2: 11.) It seems to me, then, in the light of human reason and divine revelation, that if we require of them faith in one certain design or purpose of God in immersion, and then require them to be immersed again before we receive them, we are inconsistent, and would not only be adding a codicil to the will of Christ, but would make sectarians of ourselves in our efforts to proselyte them from sectarianism. If not, pray tell why

BY J. C. McOUIDDY.

Mrs. Sam Burton, of Mount Juliet, Tenn., says: "Please explain Matt. 9: 16 through the 'Query Department' of the Gospel Advocate." The passage reads: "And no man putteth a piece of undressed cloth upon an old garment; for that which should fill it up taketh from the garment, and a worse rent is made." The thought is that it would be foolish to seek to patch up the old, worn-out religion of Judaism. Two illustrations are used to show the absurdity of trying to patch up the old Jewish dispensation with the new dispensation. No one would patch old cloth with new cloth that had not been shrunk; for, when the new cloth shrunk, it would tear the old cloth and make a worse rent than before. Neither would a man put new or unfermented wine in old bottles of skin; he would put new wine in new bottles. So Christ came to make a new dispensation outright and to make no attempt to patch up the old Jewish dispensation.

W. E. Campbell, of Pyriton, Ala., asks for an explanation of 1 Cor. 3: 10-16, especially verse 15, which reads: "If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as by fire." He says: "I understand the wood, hay, stubble, etc., to mean error, Now, the point is, if a man builds wood, hay, and stubble, and his works burn, will he be saved?" The passage in this connection reads: "According to the grace of God which was given unto me, as a wise master builder I laid a foundation; and another buildeth thereon. But let each man take heed how he buildeth thereon. For other foundation can no man lay than that which is laid, which is Jesus Christ. But if any man buildeth on the foundation gold, silver, costly stones, wood, hay, stubble; each man's work shall be made manifest: for the day shall declare it, because it is revealed in fire; and the fire itself shall prove each man's work of what sort it is. If any man's work shall abide which he built thereon, he shall receive a reward. If any man's work shall be burned, he shall suffer loss: but he himself shall be saved; yet so as through fire. Know ye not that ye are a temple of God, and that the Spirit of God dwelleth in you?" This has always been a difficult passage. Some think the wood, hay, and stubble brought in are unworthy persons brought into the church; but no teacher is responsible for this if he declares the whole counsel of God. Paul is instructing teachers to be careful how they build on the one foundation, which is Jesus the Christ. The building on this foundation may be done with gold, silver, precious stones, or with wood, hay, stubble, as the material. But he says every man's work shall be tried with fire, and so its character will be revealed or made known. If the wood, bay, and stubble are tried by fire, they will be burned up. The gold, silver, and precious stones are purged of their dross by passing through the fire. It is probable that this represents the teaching of God's word. If a man's teachings stand the test, he will be rewarded for it. (Verse 14.) If they do not stand the test of fire, but are burned up, then he will suffer loss; but while he suffers loss, he will be saved, so as by fire. The teaching is this: that a man may honestly teach some error, and, while this work of teaching error is destroyed and he suffers loss, yet he is saved "so as by fire." It is very difficult for any preacher, no matter how sincere and honest in teaching a congregation, not to teach some error while he thinks he is teaching the whole truth. Such a man will be saved, while his teaching is destroyed. It is difficult to know just when the test will be made by fire. Some think it is made by the persecutions of this world; others, that it applies to the final judgment of God. It probably applies to both. Paul would impress upon the church at Corinth to know nothing but the truth—nothing but "Christ, and him crucified." He would warn them against teachers who would come in and teach that which would corrupt and defile the church of God.

K. H. Perdue, of Hoopeston, Ill., asks for an explanation of (1) John 9: 31; (2) 1 Pet. 3: 19. The first passage reads: "We know that God heareth not sinners: but if any man be a worshiper of God, and do his will, him he heareth." The latter passage is as follows: "In which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison."

1. In a sense all men are sinners. Christians are not perfect; they make mistakes. The sinner that God does not hear is the rebellious, disobedient sinner who does not heed or obey the law of God. Solomon tells us: "He that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer is an abomination." (Prov. 28: 9.) The man who worships God and does his will, God heareth and blesseth. "For the eyes of the Lord are upon the righteous, and his ears unto their supplication: but the face of the Lord is upon them that do evil." (1 Pet. 3: 12.)

2. In explaining this passage, several things should be noted. Christ did not personally preach to the spirits in prison, but the preaching was done in the days of Noah, and evidently by Noah, "while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved through water." We understand this to mean that Christ did not preach in his own person, but through the agency of the Spirit. He preached or testified in the person of Noah. The result of the preaching was the salvation of Noah and the destruction without excuse of the disobedient. There is no warrant in this passage for the fanciful idea sometimes drawn from it that Christ in person went to the spirits in Hades, and while he was separated from the body his personal spirit preached in the unseen world to the guilty spirits there. Had he gone to the unseen world, he doubtless would have preached to other spirits than those disobedient in the days of Noah. The preaching would not have been limited to them. The passage says "he went and preached unto the spirits in prison." Even if the Bible states that they were in prison when preached to, it would not necessarily mean that they were in the unseen world. When the preaching of Noah was done, they were under sentence of death from Jehovah. They were prisoners, as it were, in the hands of the Almighty, awaiting the execution of sentence against them. True to his character, Christ interposes, puts his Spirit in Noah, and sends a message of mercy, if they will repent and turn away from their wicked ways. The Bible, however, does not say that they were in prison when preached to. The spirits now in the prison house of Hades were preached to when they were disobedient in the days of Noah, "when the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved through water." (1 Pet. 3: 20.) It should be noted, however, that the passage nowhere says that the preaching was done in the unseen

The three greatest achievements of the war remain as permanent racial values: the steadily deepening conviction through the war, on the part of millions of men, of the supremacy of the intangible values; the unparalleled cooperation and companionship on the part of millions in an unselfish cause; and the demonstrated capacity of men for sacrifice. These not simply were, they are, proof of what is in man.—Christian Century.

- J. R. Kennamer, of Woodville, Ala., April 12, writes: "L. G. Kennamer, one of the teachers at the David Lipscomb College, delivered two forceful and impressive sermons to the church here. There was one addition to the church, from the Primitive Baptists."

J. O. Blaine, of Portland, Tenn., was in the city last week, attending a meeting of the Board of Trustees of the Fanning Orphan School, of which he is a member. He paid the Gospel Advocate office an appreciated visit while here. We are always glad to see this old "soldier of the cross."

Our "Gospel Advocate Fund" is just in receipt of ten dollars from H. F. Mustain, of Horse Cave, Ky., and two dollars and fifty cents from H. F. Pendergrass, of Louisville, Ky. We thank these brethren for their liberality in helping to furnish the Advocate to those who love it, but are unable to pay for it.

- J. S. Holland, Hanlin, Ga., in a business note, says: "I have been reading the Gospel Advocate for some time, and am always glad when it comes. I note under date of March 31 that page 301 carries 'The Image of the Beast.' by E. M. Borden, which, I must say, seems to me absolutely perfect, also undeniable by all."
- F. J. Berry writes from Corpus Christi, Texas, April 11: "I was at home yesterday. Brother Sewell was at Bishop. We had good interest at morning and evening services. Our meeting will begin on the first Sunday in May. Brother Lawson, of Houston, will do the preaching. Brother Lawson and I are exchanging meetings. I will go to Houston the same time Brother Lawson is here. I have the month of July still open for meetings. If you can use my time, let me know."

We get the following announcement in a large display "ad." (five by thirteen inches) on the front page of a local paper: "Congregations of the church of Christ in Bledsoe County will unite in a ten-days' home-force gospel meeting with the Pikeville church, beginning on Sunday, April 24, with three services and a basket dinner. Preaching by H. W. Wrye; Alfred Traylor, song director. The hearty coöperation of all is requested. Help 'throw out the life line; some one is sinking to-day."

W. L. Oliphant writes from Helena, Okla., April 11: "I was at the Elk City preachers' meeting, March 29, to April 1. We certainly had a feast of great things. The last day of the meeting was spent at Cordell, where we had some good speeches and a splendid dinner. Arrangements were made to reopen the Christian College there. I am now in a meeting with the Good Hope Church. We were hindered much by rain last week, but the weather is fair and interest good now. The house was full of people last night. We will run over next Lord's day."

D. S. Ligon writes from Denton, Texas, April 4: "I preached out near Woodward, Okla., on the fourth Lord's day in March. The church there is moving along in the regular work in a very effective way. I was glad to be with them, as I always like to meet with brethren who love the Lord and his cause. Last Lord's-day afternoon we met out Cooper Schoolhouse for worship, and I preached to a good hearing. This is a mission point I am trying to look after. Several of the brethren and sisters of Denton were present. I spoke to a large crowd at night also."

From M. S. Mason, Springfield, Mo., April 6: "Since writing I have filled regular appointments here. My audiences have increased all winter, and I regret to leave. However, I closed my work with last Sunday's service at Dale and Johnson Streets, and will take up my protracted-meeting work on April 9, at Lone Star, near Mount Grove. There was one addition at my last service at Turner and Ramsay Streets. The Lord willing, I shall be in the field now till December 1, with time all taken. My territory will be Missouri and Arkansas. I am now confined to my room as a result of an attack of the 'flu,' but think I can stem the tide, beginning next Saturday night."

Tim Walker writes from Berry, Ala., the following notes from the Alabama Christian College, located there: "It has been under the guidance of Hal P. McDonald for the past five years. He and his good wife have labored and tolled in the face of war, overflows, and pestilence, and yet the school has made progress. I do not know of any one that has sacrificed as has Brother McDonald to promote Christianity and Christian education. A number of boys and girls have prepared themselves to assist in the business world and to carry to the world the old message the apostles loved so well. I am now in the Alabama Christian College myself, where for the last five years I have longed to be."

L. L. Jones, whose address is Wetumpka, Ala., Box 177, writes as follows: "A little over a year ago twelve families from Tennessee located on the same plantation here, and organized a church consisting of twenty-four members. We are getting along nicely, and hope to do greater work in the future. We are eleven miles from Montgomery, the nearest congregation. There is a great field for labor here. My first meeting for the summer will be at Providence, Fort Deposit, Ala," We are glad to know of this "colony" church, and hope it will accomplish great good in that needy field. The "colony" church idea is an excellent one, it seems to us, for spreading the truth in new fields. Let's have more of them.

T. M. Hill, of the Smith Spring congregation, east of the city, called Saturday and got a supply of the Quarterlies.

From Leslie G. Thomas, Flint, Mich., April 10: "We had two good meetings here to-day. The Lord willing, we will begin in Akron next Lord's day."

From Cled E. Wallace, Temple, Texas, April 13: "The McKinney meeting resulted in four baptisms and five restorations. I begin at Floresville to-morrow."

W. F. Lemmons writes from Beaumont, Texas, April 15: "I preached at Belton on the first Lord's day. Baptized a man and wife at Beaumont on Monday. The lady was a Baptist. We had good crowds Sunday and at night. The work here is looking up."

From E. Gaston Collins, Algood, Tenn., April 15: "The work here and at Smyrna and Livingston moves on well, and is not altogether without some signs of encouragement. One restoration here recently. Our meeting here, the Lord willing, will begin on the first Sunday in June."

- J. W. Brents, Athens, Ala., says: "J. Pettey Ezell and A. S. Dixon will begin our meeting on the fourth Sunday in April. I am anxious for neighboring congregations to attend this meeting. Athens has long been neglected. We hope to make this meeting count. The work is doing well here."
- R. H. Johnson, Morrillton, Ark., says: "I am busy preaching the gospel, but do not report my work each week. Three baptisms at Blakemore at my last appointment. Two restored on the first Lord's day at Center Ridge. My time is promised for protracted-meeting work from July 2 to September 20."
- R. A. Craig writes from Forks of Elkhorn, Ky., April 12: "I am in a good meeting at this place. Three have been baptized to date, and we expect others to come. The church here is growing daily. We are having services each Sunday afternoon at Shelbyville. Last Sunday the attendance was good."
- R. E. Wright, Wartrace, Tenn., Route 1, in a note to the Gospel Advocate, says that he has time for a few more meetings. He also says: "Brother Kurfees keeps drawing the line of truth tighter and tighter around those objectors to his articles on 'Bible Things by Bible Names.' I have been greatly benefited by those articles."

Ben West, writing from Fort Worth, Texas, says: "Interest continues good at the Northside Church. Our enlarged auditorium and four classrooms are finished, and we can now seat six hundred people. Brother Busby will begin a revival with us on May 1. The attendance at the Bible classes is near two hundred every week."

From W. A. Schultz, El Paso, Texas, April 15: "We had one confession and baptism last Lord's day, and we expect some more next Lord's day. We shall begin our summer's evangelistic campaign in El Paso just as soon as the spring winds abate. We shall use a tent, and we aim to hold about a month at each place that we set it."

- W. T. Hines writes from Lamont, Okla., April 12, as follows: "I am in the fourth week of the meeting at Wynn Chapel. Two have been baptized into the one body. I expect to conduct a meeting in Fort Smith, Ark., next September. If any congregations near that point wish my services in August or October, let them write me at Braman, Okla."
- F. L. Young writes from Paris, Texas, April 11: "The work in the church here is doing well, with baptisms frequently. One man made the good confession last night; will be baptized at prayer meeting next Wednesday night. My first meeting away from home will be at Sherman, beginning on May 1. L. S. White will be with us in a meeting later. All my time for the summer is taken."

From Thomas H. Burton, Union, S. C., April 13: "The work is moving along nicely at this time, both on the building and in a spiritual way. We will about finish the carpentry work on the building this week. We will not stucco nor plaster at this time. It is so we can use it this summer, and we are using it every Sunday and at night. Our attendance is good. Brother Lambright, of Taft, Fla., will begin a meeting in Greenville next Sunday night."

Will W. Slater writes from Obion, Tenn., April 11: "I preached for the brethren at Obion yesterday. Large attendance at all the services. The church at Obion seems to be alive to the work of the Lord. Eight classes in Bible study. My singing school with them is progressing nicely. I shall close here Friday night and return to Fort Smith. Ark., to be with home forces Sunday. I have enjoyed my stay in Tennessee immensely, and hope to return again sometime in the future."

W. S. Long writes from Washington, D. C., April 16: "The meeting here (Fourteenth and Meridian Place, N. W., 3400 block) continues with increasing interest. Brother Sewell is preaching the best sermons of his life, the church is being strengthened, and God is being glorified. Those who may have it in mind to come this way soon, or who have friends or relatives here that desire to get in touch with the church, may address me at 1319 Harvard Street, N. W., Washington, D. C., or telephone Col. 6431."

Sister (Mrs.) R. L. Ludlam, Fort Smith, Ark., writes: "The Dodson Avenue congregation, of Fort Smith, is sustaining an evangelist, and, besides ministering to two parts of the city, is sending him to the needy places beyond the city. An effort is being made to establish the work near Ursula, Ark. One Lord's day each month will be given and a mission meeting held. There are two churches besides that will be aided in a meeting. This is as devoted a people as it has been our privilege to fellowship."

J. A. Craig, Patterson, Cal., writes: "The congregation here seems to be taking on new life. The young people are taking an interest, and all are making a united effort to get others to know the truth. We have enlarged our house, and hope that we will have to do so again or build another. The Gospel Advocate is excellent these days. I especially enjoy E. A. Elam's articles. 'Queries and Answers' of Lipscomb and Sewell should be in the library of every one who loves to study God's word. It is most helpful."

R. L. Colley writes from Waldo, Col., April 15: "I filled my regular appointment at Millville last Lord's day, with large crowds at each service. I went from there to Cotton Belt Camp, where I preached on Monday and Tuesday nights; and on Wednesday night I debated with a Holiness preacher on the Holy Spirit. He contended that the Holy Spirit operates to-day as it did on the apostles on the day of Pentecost, but soon left his proposition and used his time trying to prove the life of perfection and prayer for healing the sick. We will meet again, at Smead, Ark., next month."

A postal card sent from Madill, Okla., dated April 13, says: "John E. Dunn closed a meeting of fifteen days' duration with the church at Antlers, Okla., last Sunday. Brother Dunn says that, barring some hindrance by bad weather, the meeting was a signal success. The hearing was good, two young ladies were baptized, and the church received the teaching with whole-hearted appreciation. Meetings are not to be judged by the number of baptisms. If the gospel is preached and received with appreciation, good is bound to follow. Brother Dunn is now in an interesting meeting at Madill."

S. W. Bell writes from Sedalia, Mo., April 12: "With a cold, clear day facing us, and with Kansas City visitors, the general health conditions normal, we were greeted with an audience at Berea, near Slater, Mo., last Lord's day, some above the average; also at night. This church is not so large in numbers, nor is it extra old; but if we had a few more as liberal, we could easily carry out our plan: Two tents, properly equipped and manned with two competent leaders—'evangelists.' We plan to try to keep one going as nearly all of this summer as we can. Two good men already secured for June here in the city. We may move the tent to some other place in the city the first of July, and the young men and I see what we can do. May God's richest and tenderest blessings be with all true efforts for good!"

George W. Dickson sends the following words of appreciation of L. D. Perkins and his work in California: "Among the preachers of California there is not a better preacher than L. D. Perkins. He is one of the pioneers who blazed the trail, endured the hardships, and bore the pain, supported by God's word. Like Paul, he has never been burdensome to the churches, but has with his own hands labored to support himself and others. His home has ever been open for the entertainment of the brethren, especially the preachers. His work has been that of assisting weak churches. His stand against Sommerism is to be commended. The agents of the Apostolic Review came to California for the express purpose of casting out of the church all who would not actively oppose Bible schools and who would not bow the knee to the Indianapolis leader and his evangelists. L. D. Perkins was the first to raise his voice against this assumption and to oppose these designing men. Thanks be to God, the churches are now awake to this menace, and we are going onward in the work of the Lord. May the Lord of the harvest send forth more men into the field like Brother Perkins."

Christians' Relationship to Civil Governments.

BY E. A. E.

Handley, Texas, February 9, 1921.—Dear Brother Elam: In your notes on the Bible lesson for February 13. Advanced Gospel Quarterly, after saying that God takes vengeance on evildoers through civil government, you use the following language: "Christians cannot take the matter of vengeance and the manner of administering it out of God's hands. This is not their work, and God assures them that he will attend to it."

1. Now we believe the Bible plainly teaches this, but I confess that I am in doubt as to just how far I may go in my relation to civil government, and yet be guittless.

2. For instance: If I, a Christian, vote for a man whose duty it is to execute vengeance through "the powers that (civil government), am I not, to some extent at least, guilty of taking vengeance?

3. Again, suppose I accept office at the hands of "the powers that be," and thereby become a part of that system through which vengeance is executed, am I not guilty of "taking vengeance?" If so, do I not sin?

4. If I serve as a juror in either civil or criminal cases in the courts of "the powers that be," and through my verdict vengeance is executed upon the evildoer, do I not sin, since God only is to take vengeance?

5. Would not my testimony as a witness in a trial in the courts of the "powers that be" be considered as helpful in executing vengeance?

If yes to this last question, then I ask what steps should I take when I or some member of my family have been shamefully treated by some unbeliever? If I demanded the protection of the civil law, as did Paul, would I not have to appear as a witness?

I am writing this for one purpose only, and that for information; and since there are thousands of others who do not understand these things, will you not, if you think best, write an article for the Gospel Advocate in which you will declare the "whole counsel of God" touching upon these matters?

Let me say in conclusion that I greatly appreciate your efforts in teaching Christians that carnal warfare is sinful, and that, to avoid it, we must be children of love, peace, and quietness; and since, almost daily, we hear of "rumors of war," I pray that all Christians may be benefited by your efforts along those lines. Yours in Christ,

JOHN W. HUBBARD.

I trust our readers have studied the lesson referred to and will also study Lesson X., which is for June 5 of the present Quarterly. These lessons endeavor to show, so far as space allows, God's overruling purpose in civil governments and the relationship of Christians to them.

Brother Hubbard is right in thinking that a question so grave, so serious, and involving so much, is worthy of the most profound study. It cannot be a matter of indifference. Neither can it be settled by popular sentiment and worldly wisdom. In this, as in all things, the word of God is our only guide. Above all things, the will of God must be sought and must be done. Has God any will on the relationship of Christians to civil governments? If so, what is it?

Earnestly endeavoring to avoid all dogmatism, all effort to teach any conclusions-whether logical or illogical-of my own, never attempting to force my opinions and judgment upon any one, I prayerfully prefer to state (in so far, of course, as I am able to do so) all the teaching of God on a subject and leave it with people, in their love of the truth and ruling desire to do God's will, to see the conclusions for themselves. Then they know the firm foundation upon which they stand. After people have been taught and persuaded and warned, it must be left with them at last-whether in the church or out of it-to choose whom they will serve and what they will do-whether they will be swayed by prejudice and preconceived opinions, ruled by popularity and personal advantage, or will be governed by the love of truth and controlling desire to live in obedience to God. A well-defined strong purpose to do God's will regardless of consequences is essential to learning what that will is in all things. In a controversy with the shrewd and wicked Jews, Jesus showed them that their unwillingness to do God's will kept them back from seeing the truth. Without being willing-or first determining with all power of the mind-to do God's will at all cost, one cannot learn the whole truth. "The god of this world" so blinds "the minds of the unbelieving, that the light of the gospel of the glory of Christ, who is the image of God." cannot "dawn upon them." (2 Cor. 4: 4.) Jesus declares to these Jews asking for his authority to teach:

My teaching is not mine, but his that sent me. If any man willeth to do his will, he shall know of the teaching, whether it be of God, or whether I speak from myself. (John 7: 16, 17.)

All depends upon being willing-rather, upon willing to do God's will. If the will to do God's will is sufficiently strong, nothing can prevent one's learning what that will is. To seek to justify one's own worldly and popular course by wresting and perverting the Scriptures and handling the word of God deceitfully is transgression and death to the soul. With the lives of Jesus, of Paul, of the early Christians, and God's complete will before us, commanding us what to do and forbidding our doing other things, and with our own strong determination to do only God's will, we have the assurance from Christ that we can learn what that will is in regard to voting, holding office, serving as jurors, carnal warfare, and everything else.

Let me attempt, then, to answer these questions as follows:

1. Christians cannot go any further in their relationship to civil government than God requires them to go. They are entirely under his directions. They must stop where he says stop, or cannot follow where Christ does not lead. He plainly points out the relationship of Christians to civil governments. This relationship is one of submission, not one of aggression: "Be in subjection to the higher powers," "the powers that be;" "be in subjection to every ordinance of man for the Lord's sake;" "honor the king;" to make, first of all, "supplications, prayers, intercessions. thanksgivings, . . . for all men; for kings and all that are in high place; that we may lead a tranquil and quiet life in all godliness and gravity;" to pay "tribute," "custom "-duty or tariff-and all taxes of every kind; and to bestow honor and fear upon all to whom such are due. Christians can in no way disobey the laws of any government under which they may live, except only when that government requires them to disobey God. Then, as Peter and John declare, they must obey God rather than men. (Acts 4: 19; 5: 29.) Obeying God above men and at all hazards makes martyrs. The civil authorities imprisoned and put to death the early Christians and crucified Jesus. The life Christians live is one of quietness, peace, and godliness. There can be no better citizens of any government-law-abiding, peace-loving and peace-maintaining, honest, industrious, productive, and generally useful-than Christians. Christians are submissive. They are not anarchists; they never burn, tear down, blow up, and destroy property. They never rebel against any form of government; never seek to remove kings or to enthrone kings; never seek to change the form of government under which they live. As Brother S. P. Pittman has just suggested to me, no government has to imprison Christians in order to preserve law and order and to prevent any injury to the government. Christians are not agitators; they are not disturbing elements. They will go to jail for Christ's sake, but have never to be imprisoned as evildoers. If they are imprisoned for conscience's sake, they cheerfully submit to "the powers that be," take joyfully even the spoiling of their goods, and in jail pray and praise God, as Paul and Silas did. God draws a broad, deep line of demarcation between the church and the world, forbids Christians to love the world, but commands them to come out of it and to keep separate from it. The friendship of the world is enmity against God; he who is the friend of the world makes himself God's enemy. Christians who make themselves friends to the world break their marriage vow to God and become spiritual adulteresses. (James 4: 1-5.) Christians are forbidden to have lawsuits with one another. Paul reproved the Corinthian church for going to law with one another before unbelievers-men of the world-and not settling their differences before one another. (1 Cor. 6: 8.) Their "citizenship ["commonwealth "-margin] is in heaven" (Phil, 3; 20); they " are fellow citizens with the saints, and of the household of God" (Eph. 2: 19); they "have not here an abiding city" (Heb. 13: 14), but are "sojourners and pilgrims" (1 Pet. 2: 11); but they seek "for the city which hath the foundations, whose builder and maker is God" (Heb. 11: 10: 16; Heb. 10: 34). They are not of the world, even as Christ is not of the world. (John 17: 14-16.) They are not dominated by the world, have not the spirit of the world, do not reflect the character of the world, and the world hates them because they are not of the world, as Christ is not of the world. They have been called out of the world and are commanded to keep themselves unspotted from it. (James 1: 27.) As the church is filled with the Holy Spirit and is "a habitation of God in the Spirit" (Eph. 2: 22), the world has not the Spirit of God and cannot receive it, "for it beholdeth him not, neither knoweth him: ye know him; for he abideth with you, and shall be in you" (John 14: 16, 17). Satan is the prince of this world and has nothing in Jesus. (John 12: 31; 14: 30; 16: 11; 2 Cor. 4: 3, 4.) How far can Christians ge into a thing which has nothing in Jesus, is ruled by Jesus' adversary, cannot receive the Holy Spirit, hated and killed Jesus, and hates the church to-day, and will hate it always?

2, 3. One thing is certain-Christians are positively for-bidden to take vengeance. On the contrary, they are commanded to pray for their enemies, to feed them and give them drink, to give up the cloak as well as the coat, to go two miles instead of one, to turn the other cheek, to love their enemies, to salute the persons who refuse to salute them, to have the mind and spirit of Christ, to overcome evil with good, and to do all this that they may be the children of their Father in heaven. Without doing this they are not his children. They are forbidden to take an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, to do evil for evil in any way, and to engage in carnal warfare. This much is certain. That which God teaches on these points is as plain, as clear, as strong, as applicable, and as binding as anything else in the Sermon on the Mount and in the twelfth chapter of Romans, or in any other part of the New Testament. God never contradicts himself; hence, in his command to be in subjection to "the powers that be"that is, to civil governments (Rom, 13: 1-10; Tit. 3: 1, 2; 1 Pet. 2: 13-17), he does not mean that Christians must disobey him and take an eye for an eye, a tooth for a tooth, overcome evil with evil, and take vengeance through civil officers and in carnal warfare-devastation, carnage, and in making widows and orphans and helpless cripples. We can learn the relationship of Christians to civil government from the Bible only-not from our own impulses and fleshly feelings. It says nothing to Christians about its being their duty to vote, and it gives them no instructions about what and whom to vote for and about their conduct as civil officers. It teaches them what kind of citizens to be (submissive and law-abiding ones), and what kind of neighbors, husbands and wives, parents and children, etc., to be, but never how to vote and how to act as civil officers. It plainly tells civil officers what to do and Christians how to treat civil officers, but it never tells Christians how to act as civil officers. It forbids Christians' settling their own differences before civil officers. A Christian serving the government as policeman, sheriff, prosecuting attorney, or judge, or settling differences between brethren, etc., is acting as a civil officer for the government, and not as a Christian in the name of Christ and in the church. But God commands Christians to settle their differences in the church and not in civil courts. All this the Bible states clearly. With all this before them, I must allow Christians to settle this question of voting and of their responsibility when they do vote in the light of these truths and facts.

4. This question has an answer in answers to 2 and 3.

5. Since one purpose of civil governments is to restrain and even punish evildoers and to maintain right and order, and since Christians are law-abiding, it would be wrong and even shielding evildoers and lawlessness to refuse to testify in criminal cases, when properly called upon to do so. To tell what one knows when properly called upon by the government is in no way taking vengeance. On the other hand, some church members are meddlesome and stir up trouble. They try to act as detectives and report to civil officers brethren who differ from them, but have done no wrong. To go to a wrongdoer and try to persuade him to change his course is far better than to prosecute him. Christians are not prosecutors or persecutors or detectives Especially is it altogether contrary to the law of Christ for brethren to go about hunting cases against brethren in order to have them prosecuted. God's law is to go to the wrongdoer, to persuade him to repent and to do right.

6. Since Paul, guided by the Spirit of God, used the civil powers and appealed to them for protection. Christians can do so now. The law makes deeds and protects all homes. No man's logic is worth anything against Bible facts. Paul sought vindication when a prisoner at Philippi and obtained it as a Roman citizen. (See Acts 16: 35-40.) He protected himself against scourging at Jerusalem as a Roman citizen. (Acts 22: 23-29.) He accepted the protection of a large number of soldiers to save him from a mob. (Acts 23: 22-24.) He would not be delivered later to this mob, but appealed to Cæsar. (Acts 25: 3, 9-12.) But Paul never prosecuted the authorities or any one else for false imprisonment or any wrong he suffered.

Christ Died to Redeem Us From Iniquity. BY J. C. M'Q.

So long as men are in the flesh they will make mistakes. The Christian life is one of conflict between the flesh and the spirit. Even the great Paul was in constant warfare between the flesh and the spirit. "For the flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; for these are contrary the one to the other; that ye may not do the things that ye would." (Gal, 5: 17.) This conflict rages so in the life of every Christian that Paul says: "For the good which I would I do not: but the evil which I would not, that I practice." (Rom. 7: 19.) So fierce and so terrible was the warfare between the flesh and the spirit that Paul cried: "Wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me out of the body of this death?" (Verse 24.) But the clouds did not long gather in his life. Light came streaming down from heaven through the clouds of sin, and he saw that it was through Christ that he could gain his victory; so he says: "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Verse 25.) The beloved John teaches us that we are all guilty of sin. "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1: 8-10.) But there is a very great difference in the man who is overtaken in a fault and the one who lives a life of sin and open rebellion. There is also a very great difference in the man who falls into a very grievous wrong and thoroughly repents and turns away from it and the one who, when guilty of a wrong, never takes a back seat, but undertakes to pull motes out of the eyes of his brother while a beam is in his own eye. The man who was guilty of having his father's wife in the church at Corinth was guilty of a very great wrong. His sin was so terrible and so offensive that Paul was very firm in commanding that the church withdraw fellowship from him. After he had thoroughly repented and had shown beyond a doubt that he saw his mistake and loathed his sin, Paul was ready to forgive him. He says: "Sufficient to such a one is this punishment which was inflicted by the many; so that contrariwise ye should rather forgive him and comfort him, lest by any means such a one should be swallowed up with his overmuch sorrow." (2 Cor. 2: 6-8.) Transgressors often, instead of bringing forth fruits meet for repentance, take the lead in the church of Christ and magnify the shortcomings and mistakes of their brethren. Such conduct does not atone for or cover their sins. Instead of doing this, they should take a back seat in the church, should be humble and penitent for the wrongs they have done. This course should be persevered in until there cannot be a doubt of their penitence and abhorrence for their vicious conduct. Before undertaking to be leaders in the church and to correct the imagined mistakes of others, they should convince the church, as did the fornicator at Corinth convince Paul, that they have turned away from wrongdoing. When Peter had denied the Lord, he was not told to strengthen his brethren until he had turned again himself. Teachers, before seeking to be bright and shining lights to the world, should be sure that they are thoroughly established in the faith themselves. Christ said to Peter: "Simon, Simon, behold, Satan asked to have you, that he might sift you as wheat: but I made supplication for thee, that thy faith fail not; and do thou, when once thou hast turned again, establish thy brethren." (Luke 22: 31, 32.) Instead of doing the sensible and righteous thing, some seek to hide their sins, which are a stench in the nostrils of Jehovah, by assuming an undue prominence and leadership in the church.

If teachers and preachers expect to have an elevating, ennobling, and purifying influence over the church, they themselves must lead lives of self-denial, purity, and godliness. A godless, unclean ministry cannot lead the church to that state of perfection required of Christians. Hosea teaches us, "Like people, like priest;" so we do no violence to the Scriptures when we say, "Like priest, like people." The prophet assured them that God would punish them for their ways and requite them for their doings. So long as divorced preachers are ministering to the people, so long as a morally unclean ministry is laboring with the congregations, we cannot expect the churches to enjoy that state of purity and holiness which should characterize the people of God. Preachers who yield to the lusts of the flesh and who fail to lead that life of godliness and sobriety that is consistent with the highest type of Christian life can never expect to lead the people up to that state of purity and holiness that fits them for lives of usefulness in this world and prepares them for entering into life eternal. Preachers who are known to be morally unclean should not be encouraged or put forward by the churches. Do not misunderstand me. I do not mean to say that because a man has made a mistake, if he has turned away from his wrongdoing and has brought forth fruits meet for repentance and is living a life of purity and holiness, that he should not be encouraged in his work. Far from this! I believe that such teachers should be upheld and encouraged; but it is the brother who is living a life of open shame, who has never brought forth fruits meet for repentance, that should not be encouraged and upheld by the churches. Those who are influenced by such preachers and teachers will not attach the importance to a life of self-control and purity that they should. Paul gives us some very clear teaching on this point when he says: "Be not deceived: God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth unto his own flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth unto the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap eternal life." (Gal. 6: 7, 8.)

It appears that as the prophets were corrupt in the days of Jeremiah, so there are many corrupt teachers to-day. The prophets in the days of Jeremiah hid themselves in secret places as though Jehovah could not see them, but some of the preachers to-day are open in their divorces and their uncleanness. Until these men have brought forth fruit meet for repentance there can be no excuse for putting them forward as leaders in the church of Christ. The elders of the churches should rise up as one man and demand of them at least decency and moral cleanness before they are permitted to lead the people. We must be consistent in living the Christian life, as well as faithful in preaching the gospel in its purity. Read the charges of Jeremiah against the prophets: "And I have seen folly in the prophets of Samaria; they prophesied by Baal, and caused my people Israel to err. In the prophets of Jerusalem also I have seen a horrible thing: they commit adultery, and walk in lies; and they strengthen the hands of evildoers, so that none doth return from his wickedness: they are all of them become unto me as Sodom, and the inhabitants thereof as Gomorrah. Therefore thus saith Jehovah of hosts concerning the prophets: Behold, I will feed them with wormwood, and make them drink the water of gall; for from the prophets of Jerusalem is ungodliness gone forth into all the land." (Jer. 23: 13-15.) One can conceal himself between walls and get by with his meanness so far as the people are concerned, yet God knows his every thought and deed. His wickedness cries unto heaven for retribution. God sees and knows him just as he is.

I have no language to describe the folly of a double life. A true Christian, a true teacher or preacher, is the same everywhere. He knows that sin will eat out the vitals of his spirituality, will destroy his power and influence for good, and, if not repented of, will at last lead him down to hell. Men who love the truth and who are determined to fight the world, the flesh, and the devil until the very last, while they may sometimes err and make mistakes, will never be guilty of leading a double life, will never roll sin under their tongues as a sweet morsel, and will never refuse to turn away from and loathe the mistakes that they have made. A man may sin and yet not lead a life of open shame and rebellion against God. If preachers would exert a purifying influence over the people, they must first be filled with the Spirit of God, must know and leve the truth, and must be ready to practice the truth. The Holy Spirit, through Paul, says: "Thou therefore that teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest a man should not steal? dost thou steal? thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou rob temples? Thou who gloriest in the law, through thy transgression of the law dishonorest thou God?" (Rom. 2: 21-23.) Godly living on the part of Christians will be very helpful just now in advancing the cause of Christ in the world.

"The Devil's Church." No. 2.

BY F. W. SMITH.

The remainder of the leaflet with the above title is here given, with such words of comment as the case demands:

Demons. What is a heartfelt experience?

Devil. Well, I will tell you; but you must keep my church ignorant of this, for our work and success depends entirely upon their ignorance in these matters.

Repentance is a godly sorrow for sin already committed, and is not to merely turn around without repenting for sins they have committed and then sin more every day besides, but they must repent. "Except they repent, they shall perish." When their heart is all broken up under conviction and repentance and they remember Jesus said he would forgive the sins of the believer, and their faith reaches out and takes hold of God for pardon, then and there their burden rolls away and the heart or inner man is filled with joy and peace, and then they are fit subjects for baptism, and not until then can they bring forth fruit meet for repentance. Now this ignorance is the secret of success.

If we can make them believe this is excitement and that the nervous system is deranged, it will be all right. I have preachers up there that think they are real smart, that do not know any better than to think it is a critical breakdown in the nervous system and that those so affected should be sent to some health resort, but in the wind-up of the world we will tell our preachers better and they will not be so ignorant then; but don't tell them now, for I have some up there who are doing a great work for me.

I will have them to take the Lord's Supper every "Lord's day" to make them think they are getting along fine, and they will leave out the spiritual worship, for John 4: 23 says: "The true worshiper must worship in spirit and in truth."

Demons. Yes, Mr. Devil, you have sure got a good thing of it if you can get them to believe that religion is from the frog in the throat up and none in the heart, for we remember St. Mark said in his writings in the thirty-third verse of the twelfth chapter that "men must love God with their heart, soul, mind, or understanding, and their strength." We will have our people teach that it is all in the mind, but you see this speaks of four different parts—the heart, soul, mind, and strength. Now we are sure this affects them below the frog in the throat, but ignorance is what we want.

Devil. Yes, we must keep them hardened so they will laugh and make fun of the manifestations of the Spirit and heartfelt religion till they sin against the Holy Ghost, and then we will have them. (Matt. 12: 31, 32; Mark 3: 29, 30.)

We want to keep them believing that religion is neither heard nor felt, seen, tasted, or smelt, but that it is all in baptism (which is entirely worthless without the operations of the Spirit of God in the heart and a surrender of the man to God), and we will make them believe the heart is not in it at all.

Demons. Say, Mr. Devil, we need not fool our time away with those who have had a real heartfelt experience, for we cannot deceive them unless we can sometimes on a few of the little ones, make them believe it is a weakness in the pervous system.

Devil. Yes, there are lots of people who do not believe in sanctification, but yet many of them have been converted and had a heartfelt experience, and we can't very well deceive them, much less those Holiness people who have three definite experiences, and we are having a hard time to keep people from receiving the Holy Ghost here since the "Latter Rain" began to fall, and our only hope is that the price is too great for most of the people to pay. I hold the world out before them, and they must give up and sacrifice all I can offer them or the Holy Spirit one, and most of them cannot pay the price.

If any of those "Holy Rollers" should backslide and go

If any of those "Holy Rollers" should backslide and go to hell, we will never be able to get them to say there is not a heartfelt experience, but they will worry us day and night through the eternal ages testifying that there were three definite experiences of the Christian religion.

Demons. Say, Mr. Devil, how can you get people to believe that water alone can save them, when they have recorded in Acts 10: 44-47 such a great experience as Cornelius and his folks had? They all had a great experience and even spoke in tongues and magnified God before they were baptized.

Devil. Well, our preachers are so blind they can't see this, and the balance of our people will soon go blind, for they will not receive the "love of the truth;" and for this cause God will send them strong delusions that they should believe a lie, that they all might be damned who believe not the truth. (2 Thess. 2: 11, 12.)

The question of "a heartfelt experience" is propounded by the "Holy Roller" through Mr. Demon, and it is evident that Holy Roller's only assurance in religion is based upon his feelings. But what does God say about the one who trusts or relies upon the feelings or impulses of his heart? "He that trusteth in his own heart is a fool." (Prov. 28: 26.) With Holy Roller the divine record cuts no figure and is absolutely useless when it comes to the matter of acceptance with God. His feelings-"heartfelt experience"-has the right of way, and whatever runs counter to that must be sidetracked-the Bible must be laid on the shelf. Can this be proven? Beyond the shade of a shadow of a doubt. Hear him: "Jesus said he would forgive the sins of the believer, and their faith reaches out and takes hold of God for pardon-then and there their burden rolls away and the heart or inner man is filled with joy and peace, and then they are fit subjects for baptism, and not until then can they bring forth fruit meet for repentance." Why did not Holy Roller tell all that Jesus said on the subject of pardon? Why did he not give his readers the great commission Christ gave to his apostles, in which he states the conditions of pardonviz.: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved?" (Mark 16: 16.) The reason is found in the fact that he does not believe what Christ said. But the Bible tells us of some people "when their hearts were all broken up under conviction of sin." and they were told to "repent, and be baptized every one . . . in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins." (Acts 2: 37, 38.) Does Holy Roller ever tell any one "all broken up under conviction of sin" to repent and be baptized for the remission of sins? No. Why? Because he does not believe what the Holy Spirit said, and yet he talks so much about the Holy Spirit-claims to be baptized with the Holy Spirit! Is it not strange that one should claim to have been baptized with the Holy Spirit, and yet does not believe what the Spirit said, and refuses to do what the Spirit commands? No one doubts that Holy Roller has "a heartfelt experience;" but he should not charge his deception up to the Holy Spirit, for the Holy Spirit does not create within a heart the joys of salvation so long as that heart refuses to believe and obey what the Spirit commands. Holy Roller's evidence of pardon is not in the promise of God, but in his own deluded and deceived heart. He cannot point to the word of God as an evidence of pardon, but will offer his feelings as proof-a thing that cannot be found in connection with a single conversion recorded in the New Testament. The word of God plainly says "we walk by faith" (2 Cor. 5: 7); and if it be by faith, it cannot be by feelings, for feelings would be knowledge, and knowledge sets faith aside. This man has a religion that renders null and void the doctrine so clearly taught in the New Testamentviz.: "For we walk by faith, not by sight." (2 Cor. 5: 7.) He knows he is a child of God because he feels it. while New Testament Christian's believed they were the children of God because God said so.

Whether the "wild" and "fanatical" scenes enacted by the Holy Rollers are due to "a critical breakdown in the nervous system" or not, I am unable to say; but one thing is certain, they are not due to any influence put forth by the Lord. He is not the "author of confusion" (1 Cor. 14: 33), but says: "Come now, and let us reason together" (Isa. 1: 18).

O, no, my friend, it is not the devil that has people to "take the Lord's Supper every 'Lord's day.'" The Holy Spirit, about whom you have so much to say and whom you will not obey, teaches people to take the Lord's Supper every Lord's day. (Acts 20: 7.) Some agency—whether it be devil or man, I will not say—has succeeded in getting multiplied thousands to not take the Lord's Supper every Lord's day.

Holy Roller talks about a "religion which is from the frog in the throat up, and none in the heart." Well, now, there is just about as much sense or intelligence in the croaking of a frog as there is in the tongues in which Holy Rollers claim to speak. It is true they use their tongues very freely, but there is not the semblance of any language ever spoken or written by either God or man. It is a jumble of unintelligible sounds that convey not a single idea to the one who jumbles nor to the one who hears.

Holy Roller assigns a religion to some which is only "in the mind," or purely intellectual, with no heart in it at all. Well, whatever may be said about heart religion, there is one thing certain—viz.: If the heart be separate and distinct from the mind or understanding, the "heart" cannot be reached except through the mind or understanding. This passage settles that: "For this people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest at any time they should see with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and should understand with their heart, and should be converted, and I should heal them." (Matt. 13: 15.) In the light of the above, it is evident that Holy Roller has never experienced a real heartfelt religion, because he does not understand or know the gospel of Jesus Christ.

When people "laugh and make fun" of the antics of the Holy Rollers, it is true they do so at the manifestations of a spirit, but what spirit? Not the Holy Spirit, to be sure; for there is not a case on record in the Bible where the Holy Spirit ever gave such manifestations.

The charge that the religion of some is all in baptism must apply to the Holy Rollers, who put a little water on babies and call it "baptism." If in one of Holy Roller's meetings such a thing were to transpire as that at the house of Cornelius (Acts 10: 44-47), there would be none left to tell the tale. The author of this leaflet has not a single correct or scriptural idea of what, how, and why the things that are recorded in the tenth chapter of Acts occurred. It is a pity that time, space, and patience have to be utilized in exposing such false and wicked teaching as is found in the document reviewed; but when good brethren request it, we cannot say no.

PELOUBET'S NOTES FOR 1921.

"Peloubet's Notes" has been issued for forty-seven years with ever-increasing popularity and usefulness, which fact alone is a wonderful argument for its value and helpfulness. It is rich in material, comprehensive in its scope, and practical in its treatment. Every superintendent, teacher, and scholar will find in it his own personal requirements. The editor of The Outlook says: "We give first place to Peloubet's." Marion Lawrance, the noted Sundayschool worker, writes: "How this standard commentary has been able to maintain itself during all these years, growing annually stronger and richer, is a marvel to the Sunday-school world. Personally, I do not see how any Sunday-school teacher can hope to do his best without the rich, full helps found in these 'Notes.'"

Send for your copy to-day. Price, $2.10, postpaid. Address the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

"An Old Lane, An Old Gate."

An old lane, an old gate, an old house by a tree, A wild wood, a wild brook—they will not let me be: In boyhood I knew them, and still they call to me Down deep in my heart's core I hear them, and my eyes Through tear-mists behold them beneath the old-time skies, 'Mid beebalm and rose bloom and orchard lands arise.

I hear them; and heart sick with longing is my soul, To walk there, to dream there, beneath the sky's blue bowl; Around me, within me, the weary world made whole.

To talk with the wild brook of all the long ago; To whisper the wood wind of things we used to know When we were old companions, before my heart knew woe.

To walk with the morning and watch its rose unfold: To drowse with the noontide, lulled on its heart of gold; To lie with the night time and dream the dreams of old.

To tell to the old trees, and each listening leaf, The longing, the yearning, as in my boyhood brief, The old hope, the old love, would ease my heart of grief.

The old lane, the old gate, the old house by the tree,
The wild wood, the wild brook—they will not let me be:
In boyhood I knew them, and still they call to me.

Junior's Revolt.

Junior was ready for bed. It had been a busy day. He had helped mother water the flowers, trudging up and down the garden paths with his little red sprinkling pot. He had ridden to the corner with the ice man, perched high on the seat behind the big bay horses. He had helped little Mary next door make mud pies under the lilac bush in the garden. He had run races with old Bruno until both he and the dog were tired. Yes, Junior was quite ready for bed.

The windows were open, so that a little breeze stirred the white curtains. The smell of the lilacs drifted in. A robin chirped sleepily from the elm tree outside. Junior's clothes were spread neatly on a chair beside his bed, his little sandals standing at attention beside the chair. He had said his: "Now I Lay Me," and with a sleepy yawn had turned toward the little white bed, the side of which was invitingly open, when his mother spoke: "Run across to the bathroom, Sonnie-boy, and wash your hands. They're all sticky."

Junior looked at the darty little hands; then, without a word, kept on his way to the bed.

"Didn't you hear, Junior?" His mother's tone was surprised. "Go wash your hands."

Already one knee was in the side of the bed. Junior shook his head so hard that every little curl bobbed separately; then he opened his lips. "No," he said, firmly.

Just at that moment a step resounded on the stairs, and his father entered the room—big, merry father. He was quick to see that something was wrong. "What's the matter?" he asked. He looked from Junior to his mother.

"Junior has refused to obey me, Franklin. He will not wash his hands." The tone was sad.

The father looked at his small son gravely. "In this house, Junior, people have to mind your mother. What she says goes. People who don't do as she says don't belong here."

Junior hesitated. Slowly he drew down his knee from the little white bed; slowly he turned toward the door. His mother looked toward her husband with an expression of relief in her pretty gray eyes. But Junior did not go across the hall into the bathroom. Instead, he walked steadily down the stairs, through the big hall below, down the piazza steps, and out into the night.

Out in the garden it was dark. Shadows were everywhere—queer, moving shadows—shadows where all sorts of strange wild beasts might be lurking, ready to spring out upon little boys—little boys who would not wash their hands. Junior trudged on. The gravel in the broad path hurt his feet, and once he stumbled over a big stick. A lump came into his throat. One dirty little fist went to his eyes. All of a sudden he heard stealthy, creeping footsteps behind him. His heart beat fast with terror. Then a cold, damp nose thrust itself into his hand. Trembling with fright, Junior looked down; then he gave a little cry of joy. It was Bruno—his dear old playmate, Bruno.

But what was Bruno doing? Steadily he tugged and pushed until he had pulled Junior around so that he faced the piazza steps. Then, Bruno still guiding, the two went up the garden path, Junior clinging with both hands to the dog's shaggy neck.

At the foot of the steps the mother was waiting with outstretched arms, and Junior walked straight into them. Two sticky little hands clasped her close.

"I will wash my hands, mother," he cried; "I will."— The Canadian Baptist. 👳 👨 🌣

The Little Crosses of Brittany.

A few weeks ago, in traveling about fair Brittany, I saw a new usage and learned a new lesson. Like all the devout peasants of France, it is the custom of these people to erect wayside crosses, with the figure of the Crucified upon them. In Brittany, however, they have a practice all their own; for at the base of the crosses by the roadside they have laid little wooden crosses, which represent their personal prayers and thanksgivings. It is common to see a cross, where roads meet, with dozens of simple little wooden crosses heaped about its foot.

That is the best thing to do with our little crosses—the cares and perplexities and burdens and sorrows and misunderstandings and bitternesses and defeats of life. Take them to the cross of Christ and leave them there. Into his great sacrifice all our little sacrifices may be merged. His cross is the refuge for our crosses. There is no care too small, as there is no sorrow too great, to be comprehended in the salvation wrought on Calvary's cross.—W. T. Ellis.

A Man's Duty.

The woman who stands beside her man to urge him on to victory over self and over the enemy is heroic in his eyes, and the memory of her courage, of her understanding and sympathy, will go with him even unto death.

A woman can make or break the man who loves her, and women are doing it all the time.

The men they make are the men who are encouraged and helped to do their duty as they see it.

The men they break are the men whose right to fulfill their duty is denied them or interfered with.

Just as the greatest pleasure in life is the satisfaction in duty well done, so there is no greater joy possible to a woman than the knowledge that she has helped the man she loves, in the supreme test, not to falter, but to do what he knows to be his duty.—George E. Cook.

Gems of Truth.

Humility means shelter in Christ.

The strength of empire is in religion.

To know God is to overcome the world.

When a man's eye is single, his sight is clear.

The call to the church to-day is: "Hold fast and carry on."

Every man needs to fear lest he should fear to do the right.

He that is mastered by Christ is the master of every circumstance.

If we are to lead others to penitence, we must ourselves be penitent.

CURRENT THOUGHT

My Guide.

There is no path in this desert waste, For the winds have swept the shifting sands; The trail is blind where the storms have raced, And a stranger, 1, in these fearsome lands: But I journey on with a lightsome tread: I do not falter nor turn aside; For I see His figure just ahead-He knows the way I take-my Guide.

There is no path in this trackless sea, No map is limned on the restless waves: The ocean snares are strange to me Where the unseen wind in its fury raves: But it matters naught; my sails are set. And my swift prow tosses the seas aside; For the changeless stars are steadfast yet,

There is no way in this starless night: There is naught but cloud in the lnky skies; The black night smothers me, left and right: I stare with a blind man's straining eyes: But my steps are firm, for I cannot stray; The path to my feet seems light and wide; For I hear His voice: "I am the Way!" And I sing as I follow Him on-my Guide. Robert J. Burdette.

And I sail by His star-blazed trail-my Guide.

The above from Robert J. Burdette is worthy of thoughtful, serious reading. Every Christian should realize as he makes the journey of life that Christ is the way, the truth, and the life. No one is able to direct his own steps without the guidance of the Almighty. How comforting it should be to us to know that the Lord cares for us and that he is a God who leads us so long as we put our trust in him. With a complete trust and confidence in our Savior, it does seem that we should not worry when we have accepted the guidance that Christ gives us. The only way to get rid of worries, the only way to be useful and happy in this life, is to be guided by Christ in the way. It matters not if the billows roll; it matters not if the clouds hang in fury over our heads and threaten to overwhelm us; we may know, if we are doing the will of God, if we are walking in the way he would have us go, that no evil will befall us. 0 0 0

An Editor's Confidence.

The cat is at last out of the editor's bag, and the mystery that to many has enshrouded his office is laid bare. Writers for the press have so often invented strange reasons to explain to themselves why they are "rejected this statement of the real reasons will enlighten many minds. Mr. Holbrook Jackson, of To-Day (London), calls the ignorance of the way an editor should be approached "invincible." For all that, he takes heart of grace and "invincible." For all that, he takes heart of grace and sets out to lighten "his own burden and that of his fellows of the craft." The observance of the fellows "would augment the amenities between literary aspirants for the honor of print and those who have the power of pronouncing yea or nay upon what is submitted to them." They begin tamely:

"1. Typewrite your copy or handwrite it clearly.

"2. Write your name and address clearly on the back of last page of typescript or manuscript.

3. Inclose not a loose stamp, but a stamped and addressed envelope.

4. Don't write a letter of explanation to the editor. But if you do write

5. Don't tell him your stuff is good; he won't take your word.

6. Don't tell him it is bad; bad writing needs no bush. "7. Dor't tell him that your friends like it; he doesn't care.
"8. Don't say that another editor advised you to send it

9. Don't say you want to earn money by writing; he is not out to help you, but to edit his paper and pay those who help him.

"10. Don't flatter him; editors are cynics.

"11. Don't tell him you know his old aunt; he may hate her. "12. Don't ask his opinion: he may not have one.

"13. Don't ask why he rejects your offer; he may not know.

One added caution seemed too important to condense into "Those about to try to become contributors to a particular magazine would be well advised to purchase or borrow a copy first, so as to form an opinion of what it is like. If this precaution is not taken, it is as well not to say any. thing about it. Above all, don't ask the editor to tell you what he wants; you are supposed to find that out for yourself,"—Literary Digest

We give the above from the Literary Digest to our readers in order that they may profit thereby. The editor does not desire to wound any one, but he should be a man that does that which is best for the truth and for his readers. He cannot afford to publish anything simply because some one wants it published. He must give it careful consideration: and if it does not stand the test, he should be big enough to turn it down.

The Price of Power.

The great need of which Christians everywhere are conscious is that of power. Wherever a number of believers gather together for prayer, this is usually the burden of their cry.

The need is so patent and so universal as not to require any insistence or emphasis, for it is on all hands attested fruitlessness of life and by barrenness of service.

The fact is that, despite the promises of God, the majority of his people are living lives which are so power-less and ineffective as to be a standing contradiction of the ideals and enduements of his Word. Why is this? Obviously the cause is not to be sought in him, but in ourselves; and if we will honestly set ourselves to discover the secrets of personal powerlessness, he will not only show them to us, but will also effectually deal with them as we submit our lives to his judgment. And the importance of this attitude upon our part cannot be overestimated, for while we are bewalling our powerlessness souls are dying and we are not reaching them; the world is misconceiving Christ and we are not offering a faithful representation of him; he is expecting glory in our lives and is being disappointed.

That this state of things may be brought to an end, it is our manifest duty to learn for ourselves how to secure the fullest measure of the power of God; in other words, to know what is the price of power.-J. Stuart Holden.

The lust for power is very prevalent. If men would seek power in the right way, it would not be so bad. A little man who knows and loves the truth and who faithfully presents it is much more powerful than a big manbig in the estimation of the world-who has no respect for the word of God. Many a man is regarded as great and powerful by the world who is regarded as very small and weak by the Lord Jesus Christ. The great need of the hour is the strength that comes from Christ. Men should be filled with the Spirit of God, and then use all of their abilities in bringing it to those who have it not. The only power that is worth having is that which comes from on high. The power that the world gives, like Jonah's gourd vine, fades away in the night, but the power that God gives will live and abide unto eternal life.

On this subject the Christian-Evangelist says:

One thing that proves the minister's power and worth to the community is the fact that he is always a shining mark for criticism and a "case" for study and appraisement. He is, or may be, the most powerful man in society. So much might be inferred from the answers to a questionnaire sent out by a Y. M. C. A. secretary. There were one hundred and eighteen replies received, and only one was unfavorable to the ministers. Most of the men one was unfavorable to the ministers. Most of the men who made replies—and they included nearly all callings and professions—had a minister as a close personal friend, and most believed the ministers' motives genuine and spiritual. The majority of the answers preferred ministers who were uncompromising in their beliefs and teachings and who held up high ideals. The majority also expressed preference for preachers who are conservative in personal habits and practices. The replies were fifty-fifty as to whether his work in er out of the pulpit is more important. Taken as a whole, the questionnaire reveals the fact that the preacher who is most prized by people generally is the one who lives up to Paul's delineation of "a good minister of Jesus Christ."

C. R. Nichol recently closed a good meeting at Pocahontas, Ark., with twelve baptisms. He began at Knoxville, Tenn., last Lord's day.

Brother Birdwell, from Jackson County, Tenn., while visiting our city last week, called on us at the Gospel Advocate office and renewed his subscription to the Advocate.

Our efficient editor, M. C. Kurfees, of Louisville, Ky., was in our office several times last week while visiting in the city for a few days. While here he conferred with our other editors in regard to the future welfare of the Gospel Advocate.

- D. L. Robinson, of Keltonburg, near Smithville, Tenn., was a welcome caller at our office last week, and reported the little band at Keltonburg as improving, specially in their singing. Brother Robinson renewed his subscription for the Gospel Advocate for another year.
- S. A. Harper, of Bethpage, Tenn., and H. L. Thurmond and J. W. March, of Adairville, Ky., were among the welcome visitors at our office last week. The latter two were on the lookout for a suitable preacher to hold a meeting at Adairville next fall, and probably secured F. B. Srygley for the work.
- Dr. S. T. Hardison, of Lewisburg, Tenn., and Dr. W. Boyd, of Donelson, Tenn., while attending a medical association meeting in our city last week, each visited our office for a short time. We are always glad to see these elderly brethren, who have been such stanch friends of the Gospel Advocate for so long a time.

Sister (Mrs.) Fannie Jetton, in a business letter from Halls, Tenn., April 11, writes: "I want to say that I am now in my seventy-second year, and have been taking the Gospel Advocate for a number of years. The truth of its pages has always been a great comfort to me. Each week I look forward with the greatest pleasure to its coming."

- A. L. Dixon, one of our singers, of Delrose, Tenn., was in to see us last week. He reports the church at Delrose as making good progress, specially in the study of the word. Brother Dixon and a son who lives with him are available as song leaders in meetings, beginning about May 15. Write them if you need that kind of work.
- J. Oscar Paisley writes that a good Christian family of the Mount Pleasant congregation gave him twenty-five dollars for the church of Christ at Metropolis, Ill., recently, and says: "The church takes this method of extending its deepest sincere thanks to them for their liberality. I preached for the same congregation yesterday (April 10), and had a splendid service. I found some very fine people there."

Matthew C. Cayce is in the city for a few days, preparatory to beginning his protracted-meeting work for the summer in Mississippi. His first meeting will be at Oakland, and will begin on May 2, at night. Brother Cayce wishes his correspondents to again address mail to him at 352 East Fortification Street. Jackson, Miss., instead of 720 South Gallatin Street. Note this, and it will greatly facilitate his getting the mail you send him.

Charles T. Powell, Woodbury, Tenn., writes: "I have always enjoyed reading the Gospel Advocate. I cannot speak too highly of it. I take delight in reading every article in it, but especially the articles that Brother Lipscomb and Brother Elam pen. When I say this, I do not mean to speak disrespectfully of any article, for they are all good. It seems to me that the paper gets better all the time. I would be glad if some more special numbers were published."

J. Y. McQuigg reports from Abilene, Texas: "Our meeting with two more services will be history. L. S. White, of Sherman, is doing the preaching, and to say he is doing it well does not half express it; for he knows how to tell the 'old, old story of Jesus and his love' humbly, lovingly, forcefully, and with telling effect. Nine came forward last night, eight to make the good confession and one to renew her allegiance to the Lord and Master, making, in all, fifteen so far added, and we are hoping and praying that many more will find it in their hearts to give themselves to Christ and his service all along the balance of the way, whether that be long or short. All honor and praise to Him who doeth all things well in his own good time and way."

A. J. Hogan and J. W. Hogan, elders of the church at Sedalia, Mo., send the following for publication: "As there is news coming from the South to us to the effect that the church of Christ worshiping at Fourteenth and Stewart Avenues is dead, we want to inform all who may read this that that is not the case. We had a house cleaning last fall and disposed of the bad rubbish, such as hobby riders, factionists, and evangelist-rule fellows, and started the first of the year cleaner and in better condition than the church has been in for several years; and we are having a steady growth by additions, and our attendance gets larger every Lord's day. By staying with the word of God as our guide, we hope to keep all offenders and false teachers out of this congregation in the future."

T. H. Etheridge writes from Marshall, Texas, April 12: "C. D. Crouch came to Hallsville for a meeting in the latter part of March and preached some fine sermons to fair and appreciative crowds. While there were no additions, yet seed was sown for the future. I shall pay him back, in part, the third and fourth Lord's days in May, when I go to Port Arthur for a meeting. He lives there, and I preach half time for Hallsville; hence these are exchange meetings. Crouch and I were classmates years ago under Freed and Hardeman, and these meetings are real to us. The work at Marshall goes forward, though unions' slowly. Our largest Bible school was in attendance last All the services are fairly well attended. L. Sunday. Gough, one of our pioneer preachers, preached for us the first Lord's-day night, on "Faith;" and a great sermon it was, too. We thank God and take courage.

F. P. Fonner, Buffalo, W. Va., writes under date of April 6: "Since January 1 we have received $60.50 to help out on our church house. This has been applied on our church debt, leaving a balance of $224 and some interest. This must be paid soon, or we may lose our house of wor-ship. This house cost us something over two thousand dollars. We also need some money for other purposes. I have put heart, soul, and all the means I had into this This is one reason why I need personal help. have but four heads of families in our congregation, and every one of them is a day laborer and has a large family Two of these men and I have literally robbed to support. ourselves in order to get a house. We now have at least fifty young persons in training for God and his church. People are coming to our meetings for six or seven miles around. Say, brethren, will you help us out on our house now? Please send to F. P. Fonner, treasurer, Box 81, Buffalo, W. Va. Always state what your offering is for. the last three months I have received personal support to the amount of $69.50. I am very thankful for this help. May God bless and prosper all the donors, including Brother McQuiddy and A. B. Lipscomb. The sooner we can pay out on our house of worship, the sooner we can help others, including our loyal papers. I think I have made matters plain to all.'

The elders of the church of Christ at Des Moines, New Mexico, send the following for publication: "We notice from time to time in the various papers that brethren change localities for the benefit of their health and some for betterment of living in general. We wish to say to such that Des Moines is located at the highest point between Fort Worth, Texas, and Denver, Col., on the Colorado and Southern Railway. The elevation is six thousand six hundred and sixty-six feet above sea level, which makes this a very desirable summer resort, and it has proven very healthful. Brethren who would like to go to places of elevation for their health would do well to come to Des Farming conditions here are very good. ductive land can be bought here for from eight to forty We are not in the real estate business, dollars per acre. but our heart's desire is to get brethren to come here that will assist in building up the cause of Christ. The congregation at this place has a membership of about thirty, most of them zealous. We have purchased a store building, and have it almost paid for, which we are using for a church building until we can sell this and erect a more commodious one. C. A. Trevillion, about three years ago, lives here. Trevillion, who began preaching He is agent for the Santa Fé Railway Company, and during the past two summers has done a great deal of evangelizing around over the He is doing effective work, but he cannot do it country. We earnestly invite other preaching brethren all alone. here to help do this great mission work while seeking to improve their health. We kindly ask churches that are doing mission work to remember us. Can we get one or two good meetings here this year? SPRING DEBILITY

ing and Sometimes Eruptions.

Thousands take Hood's Sarsaparilla as a spring medicine for that tired feeling, nervous weakness, impure blood and say it makes, them feel better, eat and sleep better, and "makes food taste good."

Spring debility is a condition in which it is especially hard to combat disease germs, which invade the system here, there and everywhere. The white blood corpuscles, sometimes called "the little soldiers in the blood," because it is their duty to fight disease germs, are too weak to do good service.

Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens the "little soldiers" and enables them to repel germs of grip, influenza, fevers and other aliments; relieves catarrh and rheumatism. It has given satisfaction to three generations. Get it today, and for a laxative take Hood's Pills.

NASHVILLE TENN. The Spirit of the Ancient Order. BY D. P. ORAIG.

After reading the fourteenth chapter of Romans and reflecting upon its import, one cannot refrain from noting the contrast of spirit manifested by the disciples of apostolic times and those of modern Christendom. So many confessed disciples have so long entertained envy and war in their hearts for some opinion or conviction to which a brother adheres that now they can hardly discern the spirit and temper of the New Testament, On account of my weakness I feel that I cannot do justice to the subject given in the heading of this article. though realizing its importance and how positively its significance should be stamped upon our hearts. The Spirit of Christ, in dealing with our own brethren and those of our own household, ought to be more clearly defined. It must be, if it be true that we are the true and obedient followers of Jesus the Christ. I can hardly read the portion of Scripture referred to above without giving an expression of surprise at some spirits that run to and fro in our brotherhood. In this article I desire to be clearly understood, and chiefest of all that not one false deduction may be made from my remarks. First, then, I approve of that spirit of inquiry, investigation, and rational, patient discussion among our brethren, when it is based upon well-authenticated evidence. Of course it ought to be founded upon irrefragable testimony, when run into anything like an argument, if we wish to appear sensible among the intelligent and approvable with that which is called 'sound doctrine." Discussion of the right kind is highly instructive, entertaining, edifying, and ought to be eacouraged in order that we all may grow in grace and knowledge, unto the measure and stature of a perfect man in Christ Jesus.

But a candid, fair, and deeply religious spirit among the brethren is growing to be a rarity indeed. 1 speak of that spirit in the preciseness of New Testament terms, exactly as the apostles taught it and as the early Christians were guided. Envy and jealousy are mainsprings upon which divisions and factions manipulate. We do not need to turn our attention for proof of this statement to our erring sectarian friends; for it exists among us, and is hindering our mission in bringing a lost world into meek submission to the will of Christ. Can we not tolerate some brother in our presence, although perchance he happens to have a different opinion from that we have formed on a subject not clearly revealed in the word of God? Above all things that should exist among the advocates of the one and true way is harmony and patience with those of different temperaments and capacities from us. Intolerance belongs to paganism. It ought to be permitted to lie in the past, with such characters as shamelessly mistreated and put to death our dear and blessed Lord and tormented so many Christians during the Dark Ages, when they were held and governed by pagan and papal Rome. There are some subjects expatiated upon which have no place among the themes of revealed truth, and which will certainly create more strife than good. Are we going to ruin ourselves with hobbies, opinions, hairsplitting discriminations based on vague and uncertain matters, and let the many doctors of divinity in denominationalism run to and fro and disseminate their false doctrines in the world? Unless we cease all these things, this soon can be truly said of us. We have known all the time that the human creeds and denominations are constructed upon some opinion, some uninspired reasonings, deductions, and conclusions, set up to be the teachings of the Holy Spirit and authorized by the Lord. And every other like opinion can be so classified, and its tendency is the same. In the United States the church of Christ once started out right, and for many years continued in this blissful accord with the Holy Scriptures. This happy period prevailed because opinions, parties, and personal prejudices had no place in revealed truth and were thrust into the background. If they were held, they were not permitted by a single individual who entertained them to be forced upon the faith and adherence of his brother. What a glorious age this was! The hills and dales rang with a clear, pure, and powerful story of the cross.

To-day the church of Christ would be standing in her purity, glory, and strength, if parties, opinions, hobbies, and man-created convictions of God's commandments had been smothered. plucked up and dug out by the roots. For some time we have had the very germ of division among us, and who can deny it? We say it has all been brought about by various causes. Only apparently so. Opinions and our own presumptions, departing from the teachings of the Bible, is the germ, the only germ, from which these corrupting influences sprang. We started out pleading for a full, complete, and whole-hearted return to the ancient order of things-to conform ourselves to the teachings of the apostles, willing to be guided in all things by whatsoever they enjoined, and for the sake of peace and unity to leave alone things unrevealed, things upon which the word of God is as silent as the grave. Truly the word of God is our I Gospel Advocate.

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their cloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippl River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase. THE BOOK is beautifully printed and bound, appropriately illustrated, and packed in a neat gift box, ready for mailing.

only guide; and every time we have left it and entered into philosophizing we have found ourselves drifting instrange waters, into the very whirlpool of ruin and everlasting destruction. Let us be patient with those brethren who seem to be erring, according to our opinions. Why not in all meekness instruct those whom we fully believe to oppose themselves, bear with one another, and not until we have exhausted every measure withdraw our fellowship? Let us be loyal, tender-hearted, merciful, forbearing, apt to teach, in all wisdom and goodness. When we grow bitter and uncompromising, how we need to turn to the divine Creed-the infallible standard-and there see reflected the character that God would have us bepossessing the Spirit and mind of Christ in all things! We can do this without any compromise of truth, any denial of the Lord, or any injustice to the brethren. It will bear out well in this subject as well as every other, to be guided strictly by the Bible, and be willing to let a "Thus saith the Lord" be the end of the matter. May the Lord breathe into us such a spirit that we will cement and bind ourselves into one joyful, obedient, and advancing brotherhood.

Berries From My Bush. No. 1. BY F. J. BERRY.

THE SHADOW OF CHRISTIANITY.

There is an all-pervading plan in nature that includes every atom, every organ, every function, every plant, every animal, every planet, each system, and, finally, the "cosmos." There is an all-pervading plan in the divine revelation of God that includes every ceremony, law, ordinance, sacrifice, incense, altar, censor, tabernacle, temple, and, finally, Christianity. Not one rite or ceremony of all the seemingly endless ceremonies of the Jewish law is without signification in Christianity.

No stronger evidence can be given of the Old Testament and its divine origin than the tracing of all its parts to their place in Christianity. In like manner the predestination and foreordination of so great a scheme of redemption must be evident from a study of the priestly code and the substance of which it was the shadow.

A shadow requires the existence of three things-viz.: a body (substance), light, and shadow. The body is always between the light and the shadow. The shadow is a resemblance of the body upon which the light A shadow is the pattern of body. It enables one to trace the outlines of the body. Whatever parts of the body are exposed to the light will be seen in the shadow. Hold your hand between a light and some background and it will show as many fingers in shadow as are upon the hand. They are of the same relative proportion in the shadow as in the substance. If one is missing on the hand, it is missing in the shadow; if an extra one is seen in the shadow, it is found upon the hand.

The good things which God in his economy had prepared for all nations were shadowed in the law God gave to Moses at Mount Sinai. "For the law having a shadow of good things to come, and not the very image of the things." (Heb. 10: 1.) These good things to come existed in the purpose and plan of God. The light of God, shining upon these good things, projected the shadow unto the Jewish people. The substance was a different kind—of sacrifice, priest, commandments, promises, and blessings-than the shadow. The shadow had animal sacrifice; the substance, spiritual: the shadow had a dead sacrifice, that of the substance must be living (Rom. 12); and all the comparisons that may be given are but repeated statements of the lesson of the apostle Paul to the effect that the law was the shadow of good things to come. I am sure that the identity of the covenants cannot be established when a complete analysis of the shadow and substance is given, any more than you could establish the identity of a tree and its shadow by giving a complete analysis of the two.

Giving Alms.
BY E. V. MILLS.

'The privilege of giving and receiving alms at home and abroad is largely misunderstood, and is, therefore, often misdirected.

Those in favor with God should make their requests known to God first (Phil. 4: 6); and "no good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly." (Ps. 84: 11.) What are "good things?" Fathers and mothers wish to give their children every "good things;" but they do not consider that every request of the child should be granted, because they do not always ask in wisdom.

When the poor ask for aid privately or publicly, it should be with welldirected thought, and should not reach the public till home aid, if any, has exhausted. Such an appeal should be presented first to the nearest of kin, friends, or brethren, and should go no further without the proper guarantee of its worthiness. Let the elders, preachers, or representative citizens examine the application and make recommendation to the public. As a rule, each vicinity is able and willing to take care of its poor who "walk uprightly." God promises no more, only in a general way-"sending rain on the just and on the unjust."

Who should give to these? "Give to him that asketh thee, and from him that would borrow of thee turn not thou away." (Matt. 5: 42.) This language from Christ is not without limitation. God "withholds no good thing;" neither should we when in our power to bestow it, doing good to all men as we have opportunity, but "especially unto them who are of the household of faith." (Gal. 6: 10.) "From them that walk uprightly" is another limitation. Here human judgment enters in as to the propriety of the request and the uprightness of the individual. "Let him that stole, steal no more: but rather let him labor, working with his hands the thing which is good, that he may have to give to him that needeth." (Eph. 4: Here we should labor to be 28.) "able" to give to those who "need," Who are they? Give to them that "ask thee," but see to it that they walk "uprightly" and "need" it. The fact that one is out of food and raiment does not necessarily furnish the only and true basis for almsgiving. Be "not slothful in business"that may be the cause of "need." God does not include that man in the words, "Give to him that asketh thee;" and "from him that would borrow of thee" is in the same category. A "gift" or "loan" to such persons would be a sin, in that it would uphold them and encourage thome in being slothful in business.

Let us address them like Peter and John at the gate of the temple: "Silver and gold have I none; but such as I have"—and such as you need—"give I thee." Go to work; and if you get sick, I will give you medicine, and then employ you.

Giving is often misdirected, and with many is not based on principle, but is a fad or a fancy. "The good Book" says give, and hence just shut your eyes and give indiscriminately, because some might think you are stingy or are giving grudgingly if you use any common-sense judgment about it! One of the best men I ever knew said: "I believe in giving the other fellow the benefit of the doubt." That will do as a last resort, but not "first-aid" service.

Brethren, let us wake up, and quit publishing applications of the socalled "needy" unless they make the proper effort at home and then furnish a home recommendation.

How Coca-Cola Resembles Tea

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be fairly described as "a carbonated, flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black	tea-1	cupful1.54	gr.
(hot)		(5 fl. oz.)

Green tea-1 glassful_____ _____2.02 gr. (8 fl. oz., exclusive of ice) (cold)

Coca-Cola-1 drink, 8 fl. oz.____ (prepared with I fl. oz. of syrup)

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

R. F. D. NO. 7, Lagrange, Indiana.

A letter like this brings hope and the promise of health to every sick and suffering woman. Jesus Knows.

Jesus knows how weak and sinful And how poor I am to-day; By the grace he gives me only Have I strength of heart to pray: Blessed Jesus, loving Savior, Keep me pure from day to day.

Jesus knows the heavy burdens I must bear, with sin around, And he knows my feet will falter Till his grace my heart has found; Blessed Jesus, precious Savior, In his strength my all is found.

Jesus knows the doubts and dangers That surround my heavenward way. And he sends his love to cheer me When with burdened heart I pray; Precious Jesus, Friend and Savior, Keep me in the narrow way.

Looking Backward.

BY JESSE S. BILLS

In Phil, 3: 13, 14 the apostle Paul uses the following language: "Brethren, I count not myself to have apprehended: but this one thing I do, forgetting those things which are behind, and reaching forth unto those things which are before, I press toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus."

Paul did not consider that he had reached a state of perfection, but he realized that he must forget those things which were behind him and reach forth unto those things which were before. Let us see what some of the things were that Paul had to forget. "Of the Jews five times received I forty stripes save one. Thrice was I beaten with rods, once was I stoned, thrice I suffered shipwreck, a night and a day I have been in the deep; in journeyings often, in perils of waters, in perils of robbers, in perils by mine own countrymen, in perils by the heathen, in perils in the city, in perils in the wilderness, in perils in the sea, in perils among false brethren: in weariness and painfulness, in watchings often, in hunger and thirst, in fastings often, in cold and nakedness. Beside those things that are without, that which cometh upon me daily, the care of all the churches." (2 Cor. 11: 24-28.) And after all of this he says: "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed in us." (Rom. 8: 18)

But we often see church members, those who claim to be marching under the blood-stained banner of Prince Immanuel, who claim to take the Bible as their creed, who are continually looking backward to some wrong that some brother or sister committed years ago, probably, or to some mistake that has been made. Probably we have suffered some mistreatment; but should we continue to look back to those things? Peter says: "But let none of you suffer as a murderer, or as a thief, or as an evildoer, or as a busybody in other men's matters. Yet if any man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God on this behalf." (1 Pet. 4: 15, 16.)

Then, if we should not look backward to the mistakes of the past, to what should we look? "Wherefore seeing we also are compassed about with so great a cloud of witnesses, let us lay aside every weight, and the sin which doth so easily beset us, and let us run with patience the race that is set before us, looking unto Jesus the author and finisher of our faith; who for the joy that was set before him endured the cross, despising the shame. and is set down at the right hand of the throne of God." (Heb. 12: 1, 2.) If Christ could endure the cross for the joy that was set before him, could we not, for the joy that is set before us, endure the "light afflictions" through which we are called upon to pass?

Selections.

The power that could change Saul of Tarsus into Paul the apostle; that could plant and maintain flourishing Christian churches in such corrupt heathen cities as Corinth, Ephesus, and Rome; that could resurrect the Church of the Reformation from the grave of the Dark Ages and the corruptions of Rome; that is achieving such glorious conquests to-day, not simply in heathen lands, is equal to any emergency, any work.

What is needed above all else in the present day is goodness, character, reality. The finest testimony that can be given to any man is that which was said of Barnabas: "He was a good man." A minister may be an indifferent preacher or an ineffective visitor; he may be lacking in genius and great capacity; but if he is a good man, this is the first and supreme factor of Christianity. "The fruit of the Spirit is . . goodness."

The Bible rings with one long demand for obedience. We must not question nor reply nor excuse ourselves. We must not think that obedience in one direction will compensate for disobedience in some other particular. God gives one command at a time; if we obey this, he will flood our souls with blessings and lead us forward into new paths and pastures. But if we refuse, we shall remain stagnant and water-logged, make no progress in Christian experience, and lack both power and joy.

A Warning—To feel tired before exertion is not laziness—it's a sign that the system lacks vitality and needs the tonic effect of rhood's Sarsaparilla. Sufferers should not delay. Get rid of that tired feeling by beginning to take Hood's Sarsaparilla to-day.

Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, which I did, and in a short time I felt better. I had all kinds of bad spells, but they all left me. Now when I feel weak and nervous I take the Vegetable Compound and it always does me good. I wish all women would try it during the Change of Life for I know it will do them good. If you think it will induce some one to try the Vegetable Compound you may publish this letter."—Mrs. A. Keller, Afton, Tenn.

Mrs. Mary Lister of Adrian, Mich., adds her testimony to the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to carry women safely through the Change of Life. She says:

"It is with pleasure that I write to you thanking you for what your wonderful medicine has done for me. I was passing through the Change of Life and had a displacement and weakness so that I could not stand on my feet and other annoying symptoms. A friend told me about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the first bottle helped me, so I got more. It cured me and I am now doing my housework. Your medicine is certainly woman's friend and you may use this testimonial as you choose."—Mrs. MARY LISTER, 608 Frank Street, Adrian, Mich.

It is said that middle age is the most trying period in a woman's life, and owing to modern methods of living not one woman in a thousand passes through this perfectly natural change without experiencing very annoying symptoms.

The asmothering spells, the dreadful hot flashes that send the blood rushing to the head until it seems as though it would burst, and the faint feeling that follows, as if the heart were going to stop, those sinking or dizzy spells are all symptoms of a nervous condition, and indicate the need for a special medicine.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a root and herb medicine especially adapted to act upon the feminine system. It acts in such a manner as to build up the weakened nervous system and enables a woman to pass this trying period with the least possible annoying symptoms.

Women everywhere should remember that most of the commoner ailments of women are not the surgical ones—they are not caused by serious displacements or growths, although the symptoms may be the same, and that is why so many apparently serious ailments readily yield to Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, as it acts as a natural restorative and often prevents serious troubles.

Papers, Preachers, and Pickers.

BY H. M. PHILLIPS.

There are many things that might be said to a great deal of profit on these subjects. I want to call attention to a few, and in doing so I hope some good may result from the effort. We all must admit that one man or a set of men cannot run a paper to please all who may read it. We often think we could improve on what others do, when, if we should try it, the result would likely be worse than what others have done. It is much casier to tell how it ought to be done than to do it.

There is so much picking at the papers and preachers that some almost come to the conclusion that all are trying to be pickers. There is a great need of a love feast; and if such should come in reality, there would be less of what some have called "wrangling" in the papers. I fear we do not bear and forbear enough with one another. A few letters of encouragement for those who are doing the best they can to spread the truth would fit in very well. I feel sure we can all find a chance to pick at all papers and preachers if we look for such. I have never read a religious paper that suited me in every particular. If I should edit one myself, it would not please me in all respects, I suppose; and if it did, I am not real sure it would be pleasing to God, and am certain it would not be acceptable to all my brethren.

There seems to be an oversupply of jealousy among preachers and writers. Jealousy is fine when turned in the way of the Lord, but it often causes strife when not so directed. From childhood to old age, picking at one another causes the wrong element of a human being to show itself. Often it causes one to misrepresent others. A little more private correspondence or talk would often cause fewer such articles in the papers. We often misconstrue the real meaning of our brother and give him a good lashing before we really get at what he means. Brethren, we cannot bring about our much-preached state of unity by practicing division and misstating the other's position. I believe we would be nearer unity if we were at one with God.

I fear there is a deep-seated reason for so much picking. Extremely hard sayings against a paper will do but little good. First get the truth into the hearer's mind why it ought not to be read, and then he will receive the talk better. One man said a certain paper was "not fit for a dog to read," yet he borrowed it and read it himself. Such pickers have but little good in their speech. It should be remembered that not one of us is perfeet; but in our picking, let us pick a little good as well as the bad. In fact, if there is a bad spot in the paper, pick it out and throw it away; but do not throw away the whole paper because of a little flaw in it. Just keep in mind that if any paper does not suit you in every detail, it may be that you have not let them know what you want, or that they are trying to please God more than any man. Think of others as well as your-

I am sure all who want to stick to the old Book like articles of love, and at the same time delight to see sin condemned in all the strength of the writer, coupled with fear in the sight of God. A soft, easy, sugar-coated paper would not meet the approval of Christ. He often spoke out harshly against sin. If an error is spoken against in the strongest terms, why should we pick at the paper unless we love sin or the sinner more than the right? Let us unite in fighting error and upholding righteousness.

The truth is the only thing that cannot be improved upon.-Selected.

Edifying as the Need May Be

Modern Esaus.

Oliver Wendell Holmes in one of his books refers to Dr. Samuel Johrson as "my dear and honored contemporary, who died a hundred years ago this day." We do not usually call that man a contemporary who died a hundred years before one's day. But Holmes only meant that Dr. Johnson was very much like himself in thought and temper and disposition. Just so we may speak of Esau as a contemporary with us. His great mistake was typical of the mistake that thousands are making to-day. The world is full of Esaus in that respect. Wherever you find a man who loves the things of this world more than he loves God, there you find an Esau. Keble said:

We barter life for pottage; sell true bliss
For wealth or power, for pleasures or renown!
Thus, Esaulike, our Father's blessing miss,
Then wash with fruitless tears our faded crown.

We are reminded of Ruskin's words: "Every hour of youth trembles with destiny." All young men need the lesson that I am trying to teach. They need to be forcibly reminded of their birthright. In Esau's case the birthright included the succession to the earthly inheritance in Canaan, the larger portion of the paternal estate, lordship over the rest of the family, the functions of the domestic priesthood, and the possession of the covenant blessing. It was a terrible loss to lose these things, and yet we know that the boy in a Christian land who misses his birthright loses infinitely more.

What Is Your Birthright?

A few passages will suffice to answer. Jesus says: "I came that they may have life, and may have it abundantly." (John 10: 10.) What is Jesus talking about? Your birthright. He says again: "I am the resurrection, and the life: he that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die." (John 11: 25.) What is he talking about? Your birthright. Simon Peter in his first epistle tells of an "inheritance incorruptible, and undefiled, and that fadeth not away, reserved in heaven for you." (1 Pet. 1: 4.) What is he writing about? Your birthright. The apostle Paul writes: "All are yours; and ye are Christ's; and Christ is God's." (1 Cor. 3: 22, 23.) What is he writing about? Your birthright. Again, he writes: "The Spirit himself beareth witness with our spirit, that we are children of God; and if children, then heirs; heirs of God, and joints heirs with Christ." (Rom. 8: 16, 17.) What is he writing about? Your birthright. In the closing chapter of the book of Revelation the beloved John says: "Blessed are they that wash their robes, that they may have the right to come to the tree of life, and may enter in by the gates into the city." (Rev. 22: 1.) What is he writing about? Your birthright. These things are coming to you, if you will but receive them. And these things which constitute your eternal birthright may be lost as Esau lost his through giving away to the lusts of the flesh.

A Profane Person.

Paul refers to Esau as a "profane person." The etymology of the word in this connection deserves consideration. Profane" means before the fane, or temple, and refers to the ground which was common and public, trod upon by the feet of every one. Esau was a profane person in that sense. It is possible that he did not swear, but his nature was open to every passing influence; nothing to him was sacred. Just so, boys, when you go away from home and home influences, to follow the ways of an alluring world, there will be the temptation to forget your fathers' counsel, your mothers' prayers, and the earnest solicitation of your Christian friends; and though there may be thrown around you every safeguard possible, you will meet a great many Esaus, who are fine fellows in a way, with spirit, generosity, and carelessness, but at the bottom "governed by animal impulses, and incapable of estimating any good which does not appeal to sense, and that at once." member that self-conquest is the prelude to victory. "Fight the good fight; lay hold on eternal life."

Where Are the Tares?

BY E. E. SEWELL.

The meaning of the parable of the tares has been confused, from two sources—the desire to harmonize a seeming contradiction and the tendency to strain a parable to bring in all possible points of comparison, instead of being satisfied with the plain, obvious meaning. Many commentators think we cannot accept the view that the tares are in the church without involving a conflict with the command to withdraw from those who walk disorderly, and have searched for some loophole of escape from that conclusion. But it seems to me that we ought always to accept the plain meaning of a passage even if it seems to involve a contradiction elsewhere.

But in this case there is not even a contradiction. In the parable, it was not the wheat that proposed to remove the tares, but the servants of the householder, or the reapers; and "the reapers are angels." Therefore, removing the tares is the work of angels, while withdrawal of fellowship is the work of men. The one involves the taking of men from the earth, as was done in the case of Ananias and Sapphira; the other is merely a separation, perhaps temporary, of men from one another. It would be impossible for men to carry out one command; for though they might take one another's lives, they cannot "cast men into the furnace of fire." It is possible for men to see and know when a fellow man is living such a disorderly life as to lead others into sin and bring reproach upon the church; and they can and should withdraw fellowship, after other means, tried in love, have failed. But it is not possible for men to know when a fellow man has reached such a condition of heart and life as to be beyond all hope of redemption and to justify his removal from the earth. In short, a command to angels to leave men alive on earth cannot conflict with a command to men to withdraw fellowship from one another. On the contrary, if men would always be faithful to the command to withdraw, they might save some fellow beings from the final doom of the tares.

Again, we should not allow any conclusion drawn from minor points of comparison to influence our minds in studying the parable. Jesus himself has given us an interpretation, and this we should accept as containing all that he meant to teach us, and we may safely reject all points of comparison not included in his interpretation. There are four or five of these, but it is necessary to consider only the two that are chiefly responsible for confusion. Wheat cannot change to tares, nor tares to wheat; therefore, the people represented by the wheat and the tares (although they are human beings like you and me) cannot change from good to bad nor from bad to good." A strange, mysterious kind of saints and sinners not heard of anywhere else in the Book! Here is another such erroneous point of comparison: Wheat and tares that are sowed in one field cannot get into another field; therefore, the people represented by the wheat and the tares (although they are human beings such as you and I) cannot change from the world into the church, nor from the church into the world. This is really the logical conclusion: but those who advocate it are inconsistent enough to apply the conclusion to the tares only, allowing the wheat the power to change from the world field into the church field, but denying that power to the tares. But even if these conclusions were not absurd and contradictory in themselves, yet Christ did not use them in his interpretation, and they have no more bearing on the teaching of this parable than the birds and branches have in the parable of the mustard seed.

Let us try to get at the truth taught in the parable. It is something connected with the kingdom of heaven, or church (I use these terms interchangeably in this paper), for Jesus begins by saying: "The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man that sowed good seed in his field." Does he mean to tell the fate of the wicked and the righteous, without reference to the church at all? Or does he teach that all those outside the kingdom are wicked and will be lost, while all who enter are righteous and will all be saved at last? Or does he teach us that in his kingdom there will be both righteous and wicked until the "end of the world," when all that is evil will be cast out? Now, we are not left to guess at the answer, for Jesus has answered plainly in his interpretation. There he first explained what the different things in the parable stand for: the sower of the good seed is the Son of man, etc. Then he gave the point of comparison, the lesson he meant to teach us, in the following words: "As therefore the tares are gathered up and burned with fire; so shall it be in the end of the world. The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of his kingdom all things that cause stumbling, and them that do iniquity, and shall east them into the furnace of fire: there shall be the weeping and the gnashing of teeth. Then shall the righteous shine forth as the sun in the kingdom of their Father. He that hath ears, let him hear." From these solemn and impressive words we learn, for one thing, that the kingdom is not likened to the sowing of the good seed only, as claimed by one of our commentators, and quoted in these pages a few weeks ago; but it is likened to the sower's whole experience, but especially the latter part, the gathering and disposal of the grain. Furthermore, understanding that "all things that cause stumbling, and them that do iniquity," corresponds to the tares, we learn that the tares were in the kingdom, or church, else they could not be gathered out of it. It is a divine kingdom. yet it is human also, being composed of human beings and marred by human imperfections. Like the field in which grew both wheat and tares; like the fisher's net, which drew in fish both good and bad; so the church draws in both "sons of the evil one" and "sons of the kingdom." These are to live side by side in the church, but there will come a time, "in the end of the world," when all that is evil will be "gathered out of his kingdom" and "cast into the furnace of fire."

This meaning is clear and plain, and there is no way of escaping this conclusion, except to throw doubt on the meaning of the word "kingdom." To throw doubt on the meaning is the most that can be done, for it is not possible to prove any other meaning here. Somewhere in the Old Testament the word "kingdom" means God's universal rule. But surely that furnishes no ground for doubting that Jesus meant the same kingdom in the interpretation that he meant in the parable itself! There is nothing whatever in the grammatical structure or context to indicate any change in meaning. The kingdom of heaven was the subject of Christ's teaching throughout his ministry, and nowhere else does any one question his meaning; why should any one question it here? God's universal rule includes the universe, and I hardly see how anything could be "gathered out of the kingdom" in this sense, for there can be nothing outside the universe; everything is inside. Besides, those who make this argument are inconsistent at this point. For, after assuming that "kingdom" in this passage means the universe, they further assume that the universe means the world, and say the passage means that the tares shall be gathered out of the world. But Jesus did not say that "the world is likened unto a man that sowed good seed," nor that "them that do iniquity shall be gathered out of the world." He said "kingdom, I see no reason for not believing he meant what he said.

But even if we admit that "kingdom" in this passage does not necessarily mean the church, but may mean the world, there still remains the possibility, at least, that it means the church; and this possibility becomes a strong probability when it is admitted that the wheat are in the church. For if the people represented by the wheat are in the church, though still in the world—that is, on the earth—then the people represented by the tares must also be in the church, though still in the world; for the wheat and the tares were in the same field, so close together that one could not be pulled out without uprooting the other. And this strong probability becomes almost a certainty when we consider that Jesus said "his kingdom" instead of saying "the world" or anything else he might just as easily have said, if he meant something else.

But why is all this effort made to show that the parable does not teach what it seems to teach? Has it not been done because some good brethren have sought in this way to avoid what they considered to be a conflict with the command to withdraw from the disorderly? And then, looking for some support for their views, they seized on the point that the tares could not be in the church, because they were sown in the world. Now, I have shown that there is no contradiction, and that even if there were, we should not pervert the plain meaning of one passage to make it harmonize with another. As for the tares not being in the church because sown in the world, I have shown that such a conclusion draws an unwarranted inference from an obscure point of comparison, is inconsistent in itself, and not even hinted at in Christ's interpretation. Certainly the seed, both good and bad, was sown in the world, in the hearts of the people of the world; and the tares get out of the world into the church in just the same way the wheat gets in-by obedience to the gospel. In "good and honest hearts" the good seed brings forth good fruit; in other hearts the good seed is choked out by the "cares of this world and the deceitfulness of riches," as well as by other things, and they become barren and unfruitful. Those who are led by the Spirit of Ged are sons of God, "sons of the kingdom;" while those who are led by the spirit of the evil one are sons of the evil one, whether in the church or out of it. Those outside the kingdom will receive the recompense of their error which is due. But this parable is concerned with the kingdom of heaven, as Jesus distinctly tells us. Now that I have shown that there is no cause for the doubt, let us throw away the doubt itself and accept the lesson in its obvious meaning: Just as the wheat and the tares were separated after growing together in the same field, so shall the sons of the kingdom and the sons of the evil one be separated at the last day after living side by side in the kingdom on earth.

In conclusion, we should take to heart the lesson taught us here, that the unfaithful shall be punished with an everlasting punishment, and merely entering the kingdom will not save any one; we must endure till the end. It is not enough to say, "Lord, Lord;" we must do the things that are written—seek first his kingdom and his righteousness, lay up treasures in heaven, resist not evil, do unto others as we would have others do unto us, visit the sick and in prison, clothe the naked, feed the hungry, visit the fatherless and widows in their afflictions, and keep ourselves unspotted from the world, etc. These things we must do; nothing should blind our eyes to that fact-no theory of life or doctrine, no perverted ideas of loyalty to a cause, no self-indulgence, or any such thing. We cannot do these things of our own strength, but can do "all things through Christ who strengtheneth us." We cannot do these things without a living, active faith; nor can we keep our faith alive and growing without striving to do these things and availing ourselves of the means of growth in grace provided in the church. If we neglect these, we drift away, and the fate of the tares will be ours.

The Downey Revival.

The revival at Downey, out about ten miles from this city, is now in full way, and to say it is an enjoyable work is expressing it mildly.

The church at Downey was established in the best days of Carroll Kendrick, who contributed to our many good books of sermons "Live Religious Issues." At first it flourished, but later fell into the hands of the "digressives." Their efforts, however, finally met a slow death, and the brethren who are opposed to all innovations got possession and have held it for a number of years. But about the best that can be said of the work, up to a few months ago, is that the property has been held and used to a small degree.

Brother James B. Ellmore has been living in the parsonage and taking care of the property, and also keeping the "faithful few" meeting for the regular worship. The first of the year it was decided that Brother Riggs should help them by preaching regularly until the work is put fully on its feet and a man is secured to move there and devote his whole time to that section. Brother Riggs' efforts have greatly revived the work, and I see no reason why Downey should not become one of the strongest churches in Southern California.

It was decided that I should help them in a revival, and a little more than two weeks ago it began, with preaching every night and three times on Sunday. Four souls have already been baptized into Christ, two who had wandered away have been led back to the fold, and seven others have put in their membership at that place. That many others will be added before we close seems a certainty. I wish to name a few of the very enjoyable features of the meeting.

- Brother Ellmore and wife are great lovers of music and are both good singers. I have so much enjoyed the singing, and it has had great influence in the work.
- 2. The three sermons on Sundays and basket dinner spread at 1 P.M. have been a great help to the meeting. Brethren from Riverside, Santa Ana, Montebello, and other places have joined us more or less in the work; and of course many from Altura and Sichel Streets in Los Angeles have helped, also from Pasadena. The interest now seems at its best, and really the meeting should continue indefinitely. We have another all-day meeting announced for next Lord's day.
- 3. Brother D. Pennington's presence has made the meeting a most happy one for me. He is past eighty-three, and has been preaching for sixty-one years. He realizes, of course, that his preaching days are a thing of the past, but he helps us with short talks occasionally. He is a bit hard of hearing, so he sits right in front of me each evening. He will never know how much his presence helps me. Brother D. Lipscomb labored in his prime some with Brother Pennington, and claimed that he was one of the clearest reasoners he had ever heard. I have got some most helpful points and suggestions from our brother, and will ever be glad that I came to this State, if for no other reason, because it was the occasion of my meeting this hero of the cross of our Lord and Savior.

I trust that we will all ever remember the tender feeling and respect we should have for our older members, and especially the old preachers who have worn themselves out preaching the word. Jehovah hath said: "Thou shalt rise up before the hoary head, and honor the face of the old man." (Lev. 19: 32.) Let us not forget to do this, and most especially those of the household of faith. Solomon says: "The beauty of old men is the hoary head." (Prov. 20: 29.) Paul says: "Rebuke not an elder, but intreat him as a father; . . . the elder women as mothers." (1 Tim. 5: 1, 2.) Let us do our best to make the last days of the aged soldiers in the army of our Lord their happiest and best days. It is true religion to do so; it is everything else but true religion not to do so.

"The Folly of Apostasy."

We give our readers the following excerpt from an article by Brother Hinds that recently appeared in the Firm Foundation, and ask that it be given a thoughtful reading:

While people can and do apostatize, in part or in full, yet it is a foolish thing to do. It implies that one does not take the matter as seriously as when he began. A loss of zeal is not complimentary, if the matter remains the same. If we were right in the beginning when we accepted the gospel, we will still be right if we hold it. To go away cannot be right. There is an absurdity about one's professing that Christianity is true and not abiding in the work of the church that we cannot afford to be guilty of.

Then any degree of apostasy is dangerous. We might not reform, or we might go on into skepticism. In either case it would be fatal. Such a risk is entirely too dangerous.

Then add to all this the fact that apostasy is contrary to New Testament teaching, and the seriousness of the case is apparent. Paul asked the Galatians why they were so toolish as to go back to the law of Moses after having accepted the gospel. Such falling away is a piece of folly. Anything which is foolish is a violation of the Scripture, and folly ought not to be practiced by sensible people.

We can apostatize, but we should not. The consequences are too great, both to the church and the abostate himself, to offer any excuse for it. Christians should know better and do better.

I find a great many "funny" Christians (?) in my rounds. Along with what Brother Hinds has to say about "the folly of apostasy," may I ask: What are we to think of those Christians who work by "spells," which spells do not last long? Wherever I go, I find a few who at first seem so deeply in earnest. They come to every class meeting for Bible study, and try, it seems, to have some one with them at church on Lord's day. And then they quit. When you see them, O how interested they are, and they are "going to" do better; they have been interested all the while, but this thing and that has interfered with their attending services. I do not know how other preachers feel, but I confess that this kind of church member is hard on my nerves. May God help us to see, with all our ability to see, "the folly of apostasy" even in the smallest degree.

Pride.

BY H. C. FLEMING.

The word "pride," like most other words, has more than one meaning. Two of the most important definitions are extreme self-esteem and noble self-esteem.

He who has too much of the first named is in danger of becoming a detriment to himself and others, especially so if puffed up by a carnal disposition. "The wicked in his pride doth persecute the poor." (Ps. 10: 2.) "The wicked, through the pride of his countenance, will not seek after God: God is not in all his thoughts." (Verse 4.) "Only by pride cometh contention: but with the well advised is wisdom." (Prov. 13: 10.) "Pride goeth before destruction, and a haughty spirit before a fall." (Prov. 16: 18.)

Noble self-esteem is commendable and of great value. He who has it will scorn to stoop to anything of a degrading nature. "For as he thinketh in his heart, so is he." (Prov. 23: 7.) He will not use low and vulgar language in opposition to those who, by their understanding or misunderstanding of things pertaining to life and godliness, do not agree with him. Nor will he, by insinuations and false teaching, try to injure another in any manner. This kind of pride elevates the one who has it in the estimation of others and of his Creator. Without it, he will be lacking in anything he attempts to perform. His work will be slovenly done in a slipshod manner and of but little value.

It is good to think well of ourselves, because if we do not we will not have the esteem of others. We all like the praise of others; therefore let us so act that we can respect ourselves, then others will respect us. But we should not think more highly of ourselves than we ought to think. (See Rom. 12: 3.) "For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world." (1 John 2: 16.) "For we dare not make ourselves of the number, or compare ourselves with some that commend themselves; but they measuring themselves by themselves, and comparing themselves among themselves, are not wise." (2 Cor. 10: 12.)

There is danger to the young, and sometimes to the old, of becoming puffed up with pride on account of something done, although it may have been a good work, and thereby "fall into the condemnation of the devil." (See 1 Tim. 3: 6.) Contrary to this, Christ's instructions are: "So likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants we have done that which was our duty to do." (Luke 17: 10.)

In summing up the teachings of the above references, what is the lesson? "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up," (James 4: 10.) "Humble yourselves therefore under the mighty hand of God, that he may exalt you in due time." (1 Pet. 5: 6.) No man should ever boast of himself in whatever good work he has done, but should give all the praise to God. "For not he that commendeth himself is approved, but whom the Lord commendeth." (2 Cor. 10: 18.)

China Famine Day-May 15.

GOVERNOR'S PROCLAMATION.

The reports which come to us from the famine-stricken districts of Northern China are such as to make an irresistible appeal to the heart that is human. Millions of our fellow beings must speedily starve to death unless they receive help. What more friendly act could the people of America show China to-day than to reach out a helping hand across the seas to feed the hunger of her famine-smitten people?

God has blessed us with abundant crops. Shall we not share our bread with the hungry?

As Governor of Tennessee, I direct that Sunday, May 15, be observed in this behalf. I ask that as far as possible our ministers present this cause from their pulpits and that offerings be taken in the churches for the China sufferers.

It would also be a fitting expression of our interest if the school children were given an opportunity to show their sympathy, and if in all our public gatherings, as well as in our private benefactions, we make a place for this hunger line of a friendly nation.

A. A. TAYLOR, Governor of Tennessee. Nashviile, Tenn., April 16, 1921.

Do you remember that old story of a young man with bent head standing on the border of a vast piece of ground which he had to cultivate, discouraged, and murmuring: "I can never do it; it is too large?" "My son," said his father, "you have not all this field to plow. Do you see the little corner marked by a slight ridge? That is all your task of to-day; only occupy yourself with that,"

What Two Baptist Preachers Said.

BY J. OSCAR PAISLEY.

Brethren Kurfees, Taylor, Holt, and North have all written some splendid and interesting articles on the general teaching of the Baptist people and where God's people are. I, too, believe firmly that the Baptist preachers teach enough truth, sometimes at least (in spite of all the error they teach), to put one into the kingdom of Christ who obeys it, although they be badly misled in other things of which they may be taught.

Brother C. E. Holt's statement in the Gospel Advocate of March 17, in regard to the Baptist preacher and his congregation for which he had preached so long, prompted me to write what I heard two Baptist preachers say last Sunday evening (March 13). The Baptist people held a very extensive meeting in Metropolis, Ill., which closed last Sunday night, after baptizing some ten or twelve persons that afternoon. I went to the baptizing. The "evangelist" who conducted the meeting read Matt. 3: 13-17; Acts 8: 35-39; Rom. 6: 1-4, and made a splendid argument on Jesus indicating the necessity of baptism by the distance he had walked to be baptized of John, and the comeliness of being baptized, in that it is to fulfill all righteousness. And then, of Philip and the Ethiopian eunuch, he preached with strong, telling force of Philip preaching Jesus to him, and the eunuch demanding baptism, and Philip teaching him the terms upon which he would baptize him; of the eunuch confessing that "Jesus Christ is the Son of God," after which they both went down into the water, and he baptized him; of the eunuch going on his way rejoicing, after being baptized. And of Rom. 6: 1-4, he made a fine argument on the "dead to sin," and buried, baptized into Christ's death, and resurrected to walk in newness of life. While their pastor did the baptizing, and he and two ladies were in the water, immediately after each of them came up out of the water enough to get their breath, they had a big round shouting, which caused a little laughter among the audience, at which time the evangelist, standing at the front of the water's edge, beckoned with his hand over the immense audience and said, "They have a right to rejoice," referring to the eunuch going on his way rejoicing after being baptized. He said, furthermore, with reference to essentials and nonessentials, he did not believe God gave one single commandment that was a nonessential, and that anything which his soul's eternal destiny was based on his doing it, he was going to do it. As the pastor led the last two out of the water, he called out with a loud voice: "Are there others who want to obey the Lord?" Not one word said about a Baptist church, or Baptists in any sense, but exhorting the people to obey the Lord.

I fell in conversation with one of the leading male members of the same Baptist church since that, and told him that man preached more real gospel there at the water than I ever heard uttered by a Baptist preacher at any time or place in my life before. He said that was just the way he had been preaching all through the meeting. What is that but gospel? Under such teaching persons can understand enough of the truth to be baptized into Christ, yet be in Babylon, in that they belong to a human organization not known in the New Testament, and very badly misled in many other things and subject to learning. Such are the ones that John, as God's humble mouthpiece, so tenderly and lovingly admonishes with such earnest, pleading tones to "come out of her [Babylon], my people. that ye be not partakers of her sins, and that ye receive not of her plagues." (Rev. 18: 1-4.) When one comes to us, brethren, telling us he has obeyed the Lord in first principles, but has learned since that he is in the wrong place, and desires to come out of Babylon so that he can stand in the liberty wherein Christ hath made him free, let us not question him in so much as to refuse him, and then call him a liar. For God truly has people in Babylon, and they are urged to "come out of her," that they "be not partakers of her sins." Those who come to us from the denominations may be of a truth his people in Babylon, and again they may not be; but who knows? They and God only. They can fool us, but they cannot fool God. Let us always preach the gospel in its fullness at all times with all the force that is in us, and act accordingly, that we be free from the blood of all men by refusing none and always declaring the whole counsel of God, calling men cut of the world, and God's people out of Babylon.

Wheat and Tares.

BY C. E. HOLT.

In the Gospel Advocate of March 3 there is a short article from Brother C. E. Jones, of Mount Rainier, Md., on the parable of the wheat and tares, found in the thirteenth chapter of Matthew's record. Brother Jones takes a position somewhat unique. But I shall not offer any criticism, except in a general way.

I have given very close attention to this parable, reading the many articles which have appeared in our papers covering a period of more than a quarter of a century, in which a number of different views have been set forth. The chief difficulty with all the brethren seems to be that they assume the phrase "kingdom of heaven" in the parable to be the church which began on Pentecost. assume that God's kingdom did not exist in any sense until the church was begun on Petecost as recorded in the second chapter of Acts of Apostes. In Matthew (chapter 13) we have a series of parables covering the entire period of God's dealings with the human family from the creation to the final consummation. This parable seems to cover that period. God's first message to man was in Eden. Man fell from his rightful position in which he was divinely placed, but God did not forsake him. While the divine record is brief, it is very clear that from the time of man's expulsion from Eden to the sacrificial ransom on Calvary, God gave laws to man and made revelations to him. In fact, there was never a time when God did not have a system of worship on earth. God's planbis original plan-was frustrated, but not defeated. The evil one began his work of sowing the seed of discord and rebellion in an early period. The kingdom of heaven, or God's reign on earth, was the chief subject and concern of God's servants from Abel to the Son of God, and Mary's Son-the woman's seed who bruised the serpent's head, or sensorium-the archenemy of man. God's word was formerly lodged with his chosen servants, the prophets. "God, who at sundry times and in divers manners spoke in times past unto the fathers by the prophets, hath in these last days spoken unto us by his Son." (Heb. 1: 1.) All along through the ages human kings and kingdoms came into existence. On the same planet, the earth, originally given to man for whom it was created, the devil sowed the seed from which sprang human institutions. God's people are, in a sense, so connected with the institutions of the world that if these institutions should suddenly collapse and die, God's people would, in a sense, suffer as a consequence. God's elect, the saved, are, in a large measure, dependent upon these things, so far as their Wicked men build railmaterial welfare is concerned. roads, and Christians benefit therefrom. Wicked men set up governments, make laws, and do many things by which God's people are benefited. It has been so from the beginning. God permits these things, and frequently uses these human governments to carry out his purposes. In praying for his people, the Savior said: "I pray not that thou shouldest take them from the world, but that thou shouldest keep them from the evil one." (John 17: 15.) So the church, God's people, are in the world, but are not of the world. "Let all grow together until the harvest."

Georgia and the Far Southern Field By B. C. GOODPASTURE

Peter's Honorable Mention of Paul.

Just before closing his last letter to "the elect . sojourners of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia" (1 Pet. 1: 1: 2 Pet. 3: 1), Peter, in his notice of Paul, said: "And account that the long-suffering of our Lord is salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given to him, wrote unto you; as also in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things; wherein are some things hard to be understood, which the ignorant and unsteadfast wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction." (2 Pet. 3: 15, 16.) Regardless of what Peter formerly thought of Paul, this is evidently his last estimate of him. Probably Paul had already suffered martyrdom in one of the Neronian persecutions, and Peter was soon to follow: for he said of himself, "knowing that the putting off of my tabernacle cometh swiftly, even as our Lord Jesus Christ signified unto me." (2 Pet. 1: 14.) Paul informs us in his letter to the "churches of Galatia" that he had sharply rebuked Peter "because he stood condemned." (Gal. 2: 11-14.) This took place before the writing of Peter's second epistle. Hence, Peter writes to the Galatians of the "beloved brother Paul" after Paul had written to them of his rebuking Peter. This makes the estimate the more interesting and instructive. We desire to look into it.

It may be observed in the outset that what Peter did say is very different from what he would have said, if he had been prompted by the spirit of retaliation which sometimes characterizes the words and actions of those who are chafing under a severe rebuke. He might have insisted that the rebuke was out of place, unjust, and wholly improper; that it was public, whereas it should have been private; that he was Paul's senior as a Christian, as an apostle, and as a man; that he had enjoyed the personal teachings of Jesus: that he had gone, along with James and John, to the death chamber of Jairus' daughter, the mount of transfiguration, and the garden of Gethsemane, with the Savior; that to him had been committed the "keys of the kingdom of heaven;" that he had preached first to the Jews and the Gentiles; that the dignity of his person, his unusual experiences, his peculiar privileges, and his apostleship had been outrageously insulted; but we hear nothing of the kind from Peter. On the other hand, it is quite clear that Peter recognized, and admitted either by his silence or his verbal confession, the fairness of Paul's reproof. This much is indicated in Paul's narration of the matter: "But when Cephas came to Antioch, I resisted him to the face, because he stood condemned. For before that certain came from James, he ate with the Gentiles; but when they came, he drew back and separated himself, fearing them that were of the circumcision. And the rest of the Jews dissembled likewise with him; insomuch that even Barnabas was carried away with their dissimulation. But when I saw that they walked not uprightly according to the truth of the gospel, I said unto Cephas before them all, If thou, being a Jew, livest as do the Gentiles, and not as do the Jews, how compellest thou the Gentiles to live as do the Jews?" (Gal. 2: 11-14.) Peter's improper and inconsistent conduct was too evidently out of harmony with what had been revealed to him at the conversion of Cornelius to admit the slightest quibble, even if Peter had desired to resort to such. He evidently took the rebuke in a manner worthy of an apostle. He could not fail to see Paul's unwavering convictions of what was right. Solomon said: "Reprove a wise man, and he will love thee." (Prov. 9: 8.) Such it was in this case. Peter "stood condemned." Paul had truly shown himself a friend and a brother. The passing years seem to have contributed to Peter's love for, and appreciation of, Paul. Hear him speak of Paul. It is not Paul, the persecutor; nor is it "Paul, the apostle;" but "our beloved brother Paul." (2 Pet. 3: 15.) What could surpass this in tenderness and brotherly love? Moreover, Peter declared Paul's inspiration when he said that he (Paul) wrote "according to the wisdom given to him;" he also spoke of the profound thought characteristic of the epistles of the apostle to the Gentiles.

Finally, in the words of Macknight, "the meekness and candor with which Peter behaved, when rebuked by his brother Paul, deserves great praise, and are highly worthy of the imitation of the ministers of the gospel, and of all Christians." The "meekness and candor" with which Paul reproved his brother Peter are likewise worthy of imitation and praise. "Let the righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness; and let him reprove me, it shall be as oil upon the head; let not my head refuse it." (Ps. 141: 5.) "As many as I love, I reprove and chasten." (Rev. 3: 19.) "He that rebuketh a man shall afterwards find more favor than he that flattereth with the tongue." (Prov. 28: 23.)

A Report From Savannah.

Brethren Beck and Copeland submit a report of contributions received for the meetinghouse in Savannah, giving the names of all contributors and the amount contributed by each, totaling $1,374.75. This report was made on April 11. The Savannah brethren will have to raise three thousand dollars more by the first of July. If the congregations elsewhere help them do this, they can take care of the remaining six thousand dollars. Remember that one payment of one thousand dollars has already been made out of the contributions named in this report. The work is growing in Savannah. We must not leave it until it is self-supporting. The West End Avenue congregation, of Atlanta, will give during this year five hundred dollars to the cause in Savannah. Thus far the brethren have responded liberally. The little congregation in Savannah is grateful beyond expression. Send all contributions to J. Bedford Beck, P. O. Box 1530, Savannah, Ga.

News Items.

I closed an eight-days' meeting at West End Avenue on Sunday night, April 10. There were six baptisms. Yesterday (April 17) we had two good audiences. Two more were baptized at the evening service. We are expecting others to obey the gospel next Lord's day. Brother Flavil Hall was with us three nights. He was en route home from Florida. We are always glad to see Brother Hall.

Brother Haynes, of Montgomery, Ala., preached a very interesting sermon at South Pryor Street last Wednesday night.

Life.

Life, like a house, has its foundations: and character, like a house, must be strong enough to stand against the storm. Every day is the day of judgment. We stand four square against every wind that blows, only as our lives are founded upon the Rock. We may go for a long time under sunny skies, and then, either from our own undisciplined nature or the challenge of circumstances, the time of testing comes. If we are wanting in principle, loyalty, faith, we go down all too easily, and the more easily as we are taken off our guard. Many of us are like posts of an old fence or the timbers of an old house. We seem to be doing something to keep the old fence up or the house secure, but we are really being held up ourselves, and when some weight is cast upon us we not only fall, but carry others down with us.

BY J. C. McQUIDDY

J. S. Westbrooks inquires about "the arguments that the sanctified folks make about living without sin." He says: "What do you think of the position which they take when they say that if a man can live without sin one day, he can live all the time without sin? Do you think that there is any human being that is accountable to God who lives without sin?" There is absolutely nothing in such an argument. You might as well contend that because a man can live a second without breathing he can live a lifetime without breathing, because a man can live for days without eating he can live a lifetime without eating, and because a man can live for months without getting sick he can live a hundred years without getting sick. The Bible plainly teaches that all men sin. "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1: 8-10.) The man is full of conceit and is presumptuous who claims that he does not sin. For a man to so contend is bordering on the sin against the Holy Spirit, for such a contention is a plain contradiction and setting aside of God's word. For a man to persist in refusing to accept the plain teaching of the word of God until death is a very grievous sin, for which he will not be forgiven. No man should claim perfection for himself, for Christ was the only absolutely perfect being that has ever lived in this world. 0 0 0

T. R. Allen, of Justin, Texas, sends the "Query Department" of the Gospel Advocate the following questions: "(1) Did Jesus and his disciples partake of the passover supper last before his crucifixion on the fourteenth day of the first menth in the Jewish year? (2) Is the feast of the passover and that of unleavened bread one and the same feast? (3) What does the feast of the unleavened bread celebrate? (4) Did Judas Iscariot partake of the Lord's Supper with the other eleven?"

1. Jesus and his disciples partook of the passover supper on the fourteenth day of the Jewish month Nisan. This was the last time he partook of it before his crucifixion. On this Adam Clarke says: "It is a common opinion that our Lord ate the passover some hours before the Jews ate it: for the Jews, according to custom, ate theirs at the end of the fourteenth day, but Christ ate his the preceding even, which was the beginning of the same sixth day, or Friday; the Jews begin their day at sunsetting, we at midnight. Thus Christ ate the passover on the same day with the Jews, but not on the same hour. Christ kept this passover the beginning of the fourteenth day, the precise day and hour in which the Jews had eaten their first passover in Egypt. (See Ex. 12: 6-12.) And in the same part of the same day in which the Jews had sacrificed their first paschal lamb-viz., between the two evenings, about the ninth hour, or three o'clock-Jesus Christ our passover was sacrificed for us, for it was at this hour that he yielded up his last breath; and then it was that, the sacrifice being completed, Jesus said, 'It is finished.'

2 From Lev. 23: 5, 6 we learn that the passover was on the fourteenth day of the month, while the feast of unleavened bread was on the fifteenth day of the month. The passage reads: "In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at even, is Jehovah's passover. And on the fifteenth day of the same month is the feast of unleavened bread unto Jehovah: seven days ye shall eat unleavened bread." While this is true, we find that the Jews began to eat unleavened bread on the fourteenth day of the month. "In the first month, on the fourteenth day of the month at even, ye shall eat unleavened bread, until the one and twentieth day of the month at even." (Ex. 12: 18.) Hence, this day was often termed "the first day of unleavened bread." The evangelists use it in this sense. and call even the paschal day by this name. "And on the first day of unleavened bread, when they sacrificed the passover, his disciples say unto him, Where wilt thou that we go and make ready that thou mayest eat the passover?" (Mark 14: 12.) "And the day of unleavened bread came, on which the passover must be sacrificed." The passover and feast of unleavened (Luke 22: 7.) bread are so intimately connected that it is difficult to separate them. Of course the passover celebrates the passing over of the house of Israel in the land of Egypt.

3. The feast of unleavened bread is intimately associated, as already stated, with the passover, and celebrates the same thought as does the passover. We may say, however, that, as they had to make their departure in haste, they did not take time to leaven the bread, but used unleavened bread. So when the sinner decides to escape from the bondage of sin, he should make haste and not delay.

4. It appears from John 13: 30 that Judas did not partake of the Lord's Supper. He ate the passover with Christ, and then, as Christ began to eat of the Lord's Supper, he went out. The passage reads: "He then having received the sop went out straightway: and it was night."

G. W. Bradley wishes information concerning whether or not Judas ate of the Lord's Supper. He says: "I notice in the explanatory notes on Lesson XI. of the Advanced Quarterly of 1921 that John 13: 30 is quoted to show that Judas was not present when the supper was instituted. The passage reads: 'He then having received the sop went out straightway: and it was night.' How can we harmonize this with Luke 22: 14-23?" This passage reads: "And when the hour was come, he sat down, and the apostles with him. And he said unto them, With desire I have desired to eat this passover with you before I suffer: for I say unto you, I shall not eat it, until it be fulfilled in the kingdom of God. And he received a cup, and when he had given thanks, he said. Take this, and divide it among yourselves: for I say unto you, I shall not drink from henceforth of the fruit of the vine, until the kingdom of God shall come. And he took bread, and when he had given thanks, he brake it, and gave to them, saying, This is my body which is given for you; this do in remembrance of me. And the cup in like manner after supper, saying, This cup is the new covenant in my blood, even that which is poured out for you. But behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table. For the Son of man indeed goeth, as it hath been determined: but woe unto that man through whom he is betrayed! And they began to question among themselves, which of them it was that should do this thing." The cup referred to in verse 17 was evidently not the one referred to in verse 20, which was used in the Lord's Supper. Judas was with them when the passover supper was eaten; but immediately afterwards, when Christ instituted the Lord's Supper, Judas "went out," as we are informed from John 13: 30.

The sum total of a life lived in union with God is realized when the highest aspirations of the soul take form in corporate and objective worship, and prayer becomes but the voice of one who has placed at the Feet of the Lord Jesus a soul consecrated to the service of the dear Master, and to the greater glory of his holy name.—Henry Lowndes Drew.

W

- A. G. Freed preached at Corinth, Miss., last Lord's day.
- T. Q. Martin is engaged in a meeting at Birmingham, Ala. From there he goes to Murray, Ky., for a meeting.

From F. J. Berry, Corpus Christi, Texas, April 18: "Two interesting services yesterday. One addition at the morning service."

Will J. Cullum was at Locust Grove, Logan County, Ky., last Lord's day and at night, with a splendid hearing at both services.

Sister Elizabeth McAdams, of Petersburg, Tenn., Route 1, sends two dollars and fifty cents for the Gospel Advocate sinking fund. We highly appreciate all gifts to that fund

A sister writes: "Will some one please give, through the Gospel Advocate, the address of the church of Christ nearest Metcalfe, Ga.? The information will be appreciated very much."

Dr. Gay Cullum, of Watkins, this county, was in to see us last week. He reports all fruit of every kind on his farm killed by the freezes we have had recently. The church at Watkins has not frozen out.

The meeting at Clyde, Texas, with Foy E. Wallace, Jr., preacher, and Tillit S. Teddlie, singer, resulted in twenty-one baptisms. They are now in a meeting at Plainview, Texas, with good prospects ahead.

Any church or community desiring to locate a minister or evangelist of large experience and good ability, and who is well and favorably known, can get into touch with such a one by communicating with the editor of this page.

The interest in the sinking fund is growing. We have now received $57.50 for this fund. We will send the paper to those who wish to read it, but are not able to pay the subscription, as rapidly as funds are provided for this purpose.

- E. A. Elam was called home from his meeting at Henderson, Tenn., on account of the death of his brother-in-law. He has returned, and is now continuing the meeting at Henderson. There have been a number of additions in the meeting.
- J. E. Trimble, of Carter's Creek, Tenn., came in to see us one day last week. While here he renewed his subscription, and also that of Brother Roundtree, to the "old reliable" Gospel Advocate. He says he does not want to miss a number.
- W. B. Norman writes from Cottage Grove, Tenn.: "I certainly enjoy reading the Gospel Advocate. It has been a pleasure to me to read, especially while I was confined to my room with a broken leg for sixteen weeks. I am out some now on crutches."

Charles F. Hardin, writes from Neosho, Mo., April 18: "Rue Porter and I did our best, sowing the seed at Bristow, Okla., without reaping. We closed there on Friday, and began here the next day with an encouraging outlook. Erother Porter is one of our best evangelists."

From A. N. Kennedy, Box 286, McKinney, Texas, April 18: "I am just home from Edgewood, where we had fine services. I have some time open for meetings anywhere the brethren bave not arranged for their meeting. Write me. I hope to do much for the Master this year."

- C. J. Hollerman, of Granville, Tenn., writes of the Gospel Advocate: "I do not want to be without it. It helps me so much in the discharge of my duty, and then I hand it to others who will read it and be benefited by it. I do not see how any one can live the Christian life apart from a church paper."
- C. R. Nichol will begin a meeting at the Foster Street Church, this city, next Lord's day. He held a successful meeting with this church last year. The church has recently added a balcony to the house, which is a very decided improvement and adds much to the seating capacity.

From W. T. Hines, Braman, Okla., April 19: "The Wynn Chapel meeting closed after four weeks' duration. Two were baptized, one came from the Christian Church, and the church was built up. We wait for results. I have some time not yet taken in June, July, and August. I am ready to serve those in want."

L. S. Lancaster writes from Jackson, Tenn., April 16: "I closed a very interesting meeting at Wingo, Ky., last night. The meeting was well attended throughout and closed at the highest point of interest. The congregation seems to be in a growing condition. Two were added to the church by baptism. I have been preaching for this church once a month for a little more than a year."

Willis G. Jernigan writes from Olathe, Col., April 18: "On April 10 I preached at Olathe. At the close of the morning service two young men confessed Christ, and were baptized that afternoon. Yesterday I was at Delta, morning and night. A young lady made the good confession at the night service. The baptism will take place this afternoon. The work seems to be growing at these two places."

From O. M. Reynolds, Madill, Okla., April 15: "We are nearing the close of a two-weeks' meeting here, with large attendance, fine interest, three confessions, and one by relation. Last week home forces had charge; but John E. Dunn began with us on Monday, and has, with his powerful gospel sermons, made sin heinous, and righteousness desirable. Great good is being done, and the end is not in sight."

From T. W. Phillips, Fort Worth, Texas, April 18: "I am just in home from Osceola, Hill County, Texas. We had the best meeting in the history of the church there. Twenty-one were added to the congregation, sixteen of them by confession and baptism. Four heads of families, and a bunch of very fine young people. The weather was cool and rainy much of the time, but the brethren had a mind to work. I go to Wewoka, Okla., for a meeting, to begin on April 24 and to continue over the second Sunday in May. On with the good work!"

From F. L. Paisley: "On April 16, at the home of the bride, Mr. Tulley Frost and Miss Lila Mitchell, both of Memphis, Tenn., were united in marriage by the writer, who also had the pleasure of baptizing the groom sometime ago. He was formerly from Savannah, Ga., and is a splendid young man of talent and power. The bride is a younger daughter of one of the best of families, an accomplished musician and an excellent Christian. A nicely furnished home awaited their immediate entrance. May the Lord bless them." The Gospel Advocate offers congratulations.

From William W. Still, Morrillton, Ark., April 20: "I am back home from a fine gospel meeting in Antioch, Ark. Eight were baptized, including four Baptists and one Methodist, and one reclaimed. We set in order a congregation to meet and break bread on Lord's days. J. C. Mosley and I have put four congregations to work in the Lord's vineyard—Mayflower, Jones Hill, Washam Schoolhouse, and Antioch. I will leave to-morrow for another mission meeting at Pickett's Gap, six miles east of Conway. Preaching brethren, go to the work; don't wait for the work to come to you. The harvest is ripe. The time is ready to gather it in."

R. L. Ludlam, Jr., writes from Fort Smith, Ark., April 21: "This is well on the fourth month since wife and I began working here with the church at Seventeenth and Dodson Avenues. The church has purchased property in the northern part of the city and is offering the message to a neglected district. Some gain has been made in membership. The church also sends its evangelist to the needy beyond the city limits. This church will fellowship two other churches in a meeting, and has also had fellowship with an evangelist who has set in order a church at Mountainburg, Ark. In all, more than one thousand dollars has been spent to extend the kingdom of the Lord."

Readers of the Gospel Advocate in this city will find the Art Exhibit at the East Branch Carnegie Library of special interest. This display is made up of pictures painted by Nashville artists, and has been arranged by Mrs. Ida Chandler Noble, chairman of art of the Woman's Club and teacher of art in the David Lipscomb College. Several of the paintings on exhibition are the work of Mrs. Noble, among the finest of these being "Honeysuckles," "Trumphet Vine." "December at Elbon," and an exquisite miniature in oils, "My Mother." Looking upon this picture, one is impressed with its perfection and the assurance that the subject lived in the light of God's pure love indeed, for the rare quality of innate tenderness is wonderfully portrayed in this beautiful presence. Mrs. Noble has added to her personal exhibit a collection of life and stillife paintings made by her class of children at David Lipscomb College. These paintings have been declared by an able critic to be equal to the work of professionals. The exhibit will continue till May 1, 9 P.M.

Elder James E. Scobey will preach at Huntland, Tenn., next Sunday.

- J. Leonard Jackson reports matters as about as usual with the Lindsley Avenue Church. The good work goes forward.
- E. E. Shoulders reports fine interest at Franklin, Ky., last Lord's day. He says there is a perceptible growth in the interest there along several lines.

Lytton Alley preached two excellent sermons for the Charlotte Avenue Church, this city, under their large, new tent last Lord's day. The attendance in the morning was almost a record one, and very fine at the night service. Their work is going forward constantly.

John M. Rice says: "Church work in Munday, Texas, is doing nicely. The meeting being held by the church at Gillespie, six miles west of Munday, is being well attended. One young lady made the confession last night. I shall begin protracted-neeting work the first of May, and have meetings booked till the first of December."

From A. J. Veteto, Box 494, Henderson, Tenn.: "Owing to some changes in vocal-music school work in Arkansas, I have from the fourth Lord's day in July till August 21 I can devote to leading the song service in meetings. I have some splendid leaders I can furnish for other dates."

W. W. Scott, 441 Edward Street, N. E., Calgary, Alberta, Canada, says: "The church in this city is eagerly desirous of obtaining the services of an evangelist to work here. Kindly mention us to some good brother, and give us his address." We call attention to this, as Calgary is a very fine city, and would be a delightful place to work in the cause.

W. P. Skaggs writes from Itasca, Texas, April 21: "Last Sunday was a good day with the church of Christ in Itasca. A large crowd heard the preaching, and one was restored to duty. G. C. Brewer is in a fine meeting with the church in Cleburne. There have been several baptisms, and the meeting continues. I was with them last Monday evening, and I feel safe in saying that at least one thousand people heard him."

C. M. Pullias was quite ill of acute tonsilitis from Monday night of last week, and was unable to continue the meeting at Lawrence Avenue Church, this city, again till Lord's day. The meeting did not suspend, however. F. W. Smith took hold, preaching day and night, and continued till Friday night, and having twelve confessions and baptisms in his part of the work. Brother Pullias resumed the work on Lord's day, there being no services on Saturday.

N. W. Copeland, Detroit, Mich., writes under date of April 18: "The work at Cameron Avenue, this city, is still moving along nicely. On Lord's-day morning my son, Ralph, eight years old, made the good enfession and requested that I baptize him. I asked him why he wanted to be baptized. He said: "To obey God." I baptized him at the night service. We often have additions from the Eible classes. God grant that the work may continue to grow."

Two of the most excellent sisters of Nashville were called to their reward last week—Sister Henrie Zellner Lipscomb, widow of the late Horace G. Lipscomb, about noon of Tuesday, and Sister Emma Dodd, wife of S. L. Dodd, Saturday night 'The former was the youngest daughter of Henry Zellner, deceased, long an elder in the Owen's Chapel congregation, and the latter was the only daughter of the venerable E. G. Sewell. A more extended notice of each will be published later.

J. B. Forrester writes from Cardwell, Mo., April 14: "W. E. Morgan, of Fort Worth, Texas, preached for us five nights. The church was edified by the instruction he gave on Christian duty. Brother Morgan is a power with the gospel, and should be kept busy in the good work. Roy Childress is now located with the church at this place. The church here and the church at Antioch are trying to keep him busy preaching the word. Our meeting will begin the first Lord's day in June. J. P. Lowrey, of Memphis, will do the preaching."

W. L. Oliphant writes from Muskogee, Okla., April 21: "I closed a meeting with the Good Hope Church, near Helena, Okla., Monday night. We were hindered much by rain, yet the neeting was far from being a failure. Nine precious souls confessed their faith in the Lord and were baptized into Christ. The following gospel preachers visited the meeting: J. W. Ballard, T. B. Wilkinson, and Clyde Williams. These are all faithful laborers in the Master's vineyard. Helena is the home of Brother Ballard. He is held in very high esteem by his home congregation. My wife and baby were with me during this meeting. We made our home with Brother and Sister A. W. Lecrone. We enjoyed our stay among these good people. They also supported me well for my work."

J. E. Wainwright writes from Texarkana, Ark., April 16: "The De Queen meeting was hindered greatly in many ways, but the time was well spent. Two additions, two families relieved of misunderstanding, and good seed sown in many honest hearts. I left a band of about thirty keeping house for the Lord in perfect unity. During our meeting a good sister visited us from Dierks, Ark. She asked me what I would charge to come over and help her with the cause, to which I gladly replied that I made no charges, but would be there to begin a meeting on Monday, April 26. If any reader is interested in this work, he may send fellowship to Sister Gus Hill, Dierks, Ark. We crave the prayers of all the faithful. The Central congregation in Texarkana thrives in every respect."

R. A. Craig writes from Forks of Elkhorn, Ky., April 23: "Our meeting here closes to-night, having continued three weeks. We rejoice in the Lord that our labors have been blessed. In all, twelve souls have been added to the working forces of Jehovah. I will preach at Shelbyville to-morrow afternoon. The work there is very encouraging. I feel that we will be able to go right ahead and soon have our building. We could do so much more easily if all the professed Christians there would lend a helping hand. I am willing to sacrifice all that I have to make this great work a success. I am sure that after we have borne the burden in the heat of the day, and finally succeeded in erecting our house of worship, and when there is no more heavy load to be lifted, then the brethren who are afraid to stand with us now will unite in this work. Brethren, pray for us. We must succeed in the work here."

A. H. Porterfield, writing from Imboden, Ark., April 20, says: "The meeting at Swifton closed last Sunday night, after running over two Lord's days. O. E. Billingsley, of Conway, did the preaching, and the writer conducted the song service. It was indeed a real treat to be with Brother Billingsley in this meeting. He is a great power. From the first to the last night the audiences were good and the interest was the very best. Two persons confessed their faith in Christ and were buried with him in baptism. The full results of this meeting cannot be known just now. Much prejudice was removed, and I am sure that the people in and around Swifton have a clearer conception of the word of God than heretofore. The congregation there is rather small, but is gradually growing under the able leadership of M. L. Bailey. I have been preaching there once a month, with good, attentive crowds. The Lord willing, I will preach here at home on the first Sunday in May. I have a little time in June and July for meetings or singing schools. May God bless the faithful."

John T. Hall, writing from Jackson, Tenn., says: "Recently we were made to feel very sad over the death of Sister J. R. Wilkerson, whose husband preceded her to the grave some four years. We seldom realize just how much we should appreciate our good and faithful loved ones until they are gone. Brother and Sister Wilkerson were among the oldest members of the church of our blessed Savior in Jackson. Judging them by their faithful, Christian walk for many years, we are consoled by the promises of the Author of the great Book of books, having hope that they are reaping their happy reward beyond this vale of tears." He further says: "The two congregations in Jackson and Bemis are cooperating in their Christian work. Brother Lancaster, one of our most earnest and able ministers, is preaching for the Bemis Church, and the faithful ones there seem to be proud of his work. He is working hard to get the indifferent and careless members up to what they ought to be, as well as to get sinners converted. Bemis is a fine little city of about two thousand inhabitants. A great number of the good people of this town make no pretensions to religion at all. If the efforts upon the part of the true members and their preacher to get people saved were as earnest and persistent as were the efforts of P. T. Barnum to influence people to attend his great shows, the church there would become strong and powerful for great good and usefulness. It is hard for most of us to realize how little we are doing and how much more we could do.'

For Fair Dealing.

BY J. C. M'Q.

J. L. Hines sent an article to the Apostolic Review on the eldership for publication. In the article he quotes the creed in full which D. Austen Sommer indorsed. In the article Brother Hines says:

I am frank to say that I would not notice Brother Sommer's article, if it were not that he does not treat Brother McQuiddy nor me fair. I wish it to be understood that I stand for fair discussion at all times and under all circumstances; but I have long since found that a man who is prejudiced and biased cannot treat his opponent with respect, but, on the other hand, resorts to sophistry, sarcasm, and ridicule. Such is not argument, but shows littleness of character, lack of culture and the Christian levelike spirit. People who profess to be Christians should manifest the spirit of love and use judgment at all times when reproving and rebuking another; for while we may not be guilty of the same fault, it is possible for us to be guilty of some other. The driving spirit never won a moral victory, but it has always been the gentle, loving, leading spirit that has conquered the foe and led men to the foot of the cross, where their souls were purged from sins and their lives made beautiful in a Christlike innocenev.

I believe with the whole heart that Brother McQuiddy is wrong on the "eldership" question, but I believe he is sincere in his belief and that he is no infidel, nor does he teach infidelity, but there is a fallacy in his reasoning. I know I said, after I had quoted scriptures bearing on the "eldership" question: "Set these scriptures aside, and you can by the same reasoning set aside every scripture." Logically that is true; but because a man teaches an untruth by an illogical exegesis of the text is no reason for calling such teaching infidelity. It can only be so classed by men who reason technically; and even then, religiously speaking, that is not true. Brother McQuiddy believes the Bible as much as Brother Sommer or I. Then why charge him with teaching infidelity?

I care nothing about what human authorities say about the "eldership" or any other biblical question, only so far as ascertaining the meaning of a biblical expression or word. No human being is authority in religion; then why should any of us appeal to such to substantiate a doctrine? Scholars speak as scholars, and theologians speak as theologians; but the apostles, as they were moved by the Holy Spirit.

Brother McQuiddy says: "Celibacy is commended in the New Testament, and is also represented as being productive of more consecrated service to God than is marriage." Cor. 7: 32-34.) Brother Sommer quotes 1 Tim. 5: 14, "I will therefore that younger women [widows] marry," and says, in substance: "McQuiddy makes Paul contradict himself, by his reasoning, in order to hold up his single-man eldership idea." Brother McQuiddy is right when he says: "Paul commended celibacy." Brother Sommer is right when he says: "Paul says, 'I will therefore that younger women [widows] marry.'" Neither argument has anything to do with the "eldership" pro or con. Brother Sommer says: "If Paul recommended celibacy in general. as McQuiddy's remarks indicate, then Paul contradicts himself." Well, Paul did commend celibacy. Let us read: "It is good for a man not to touch a woman." (1 Cor. 7: 1.) "I would that all men were even as I myself." (Verse "But I say to the unmarried and to the widows. It is good for them if they abide even as I. But if they have not continency, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn." (1 Cor. 7: 8, 9.) But Paul, in writing to Timothy concerning widows who were being taken care of by the church, after he had said, "And withal they learn also to be idle, going about from house to house; and not also to be ldie, going about from house to house; and not only idle, but tattlers also and busybodies, speaking things which they ought not," also said: "I desire therefore that the younger widows [women] marry," etc. But Paul did not contradict himself. The "distress" of 1 Cor. 7: 26 is the "tribulations" of verse 28. Read the entire chapters—1 Cor. 7; 1 Tim. 5. Celibacy is not a command of the Lord, but Paul commends it under certain conditions, and the married life under other conditions. the married life under other conditions.

But as my article on "That Creed Again" never saw the light in the Apostolic Review, so Brother Hines' article was refused and returned to him. It was the understanding between us that he would publish my articles in his paper and reply, and I would publish his in the Gospel Advocate and reply, which I did. He gave as a reason for not publishing that article that he had already published one on the subject from me, and he wished to discuss the question of teaching the Bible in schools. I could not consent for him to publish only such articles of mine as suited him and reject those which I considered my strongest articles. I had not agreed to carry on a one-sided discussion. While positively refusing to publish my article which he was in honor bound to do, he published that I had quit the discussion. That our readers may know the facts. I quote from a letter that I wrote him on September 3, 1920:

I certainly think you should publish my article in reply concerning the Denver matter. There are principles involved that I think need discussion. I am not contending with you about who shall close the discussion. I am not writing for victory, but simply to know the truth. Of course you will have the right to reply to my article relative to the appointment of elders in Denver. Fairness. however, demands that you do not introduce any new arguments; but you have a right to reply to what I say in that article. Yes, I have written a number of articles on teaching the Bible, and teaching it everywhere. You might as well go back to articles that I have written years ago on this same subject and quote them, thus contending that I began the discussion. I shall not fall out with you about your having the close in the matter. Can't we be Chris-tians enough and big enough men to do right and to contend earnestly for the truth as it is in Christ without quibbling with each other over these little matters? If you want to close, you certainly may, so far as I am concerned. As I wrote you sometime ago, just so soon as I am able I will be glad to publish your last article on the college question with my reply. I think it rather unbecoming in you to assume that I had quit until I had written you to that effect. I had only objected to your failure to notice the issue. If you will confine yourself to the issue and not bring in any irrelevant matters and the discussion can be conducted on an elevated, dignified plane, there is no reason why we should not continue it. If we have to wrangle over who gains the victory, then I think the discussion had better close. Such action is not akin to the spirit of Christ.

I wrote him several times, stating my willingness to continue the discussion, provided he would publish my articles. He refused to publish my article on the creed proposed in Denver and published that I had quit, when the truth is he had quit publishing my articles.

Again, on December 11, 1920, I wrote him:

When you publish my article on "That Creed Again," which was a reply to your attack on the work I had done in Denver, we can consider a continuation of our discussion of the subject, "Is It Right to Teach the Bible Everywhere?" I am perfectly satisfied with my efforts and what has been accomplished for the truth: but if you are not satisfied and wish to continue, I will consider accommodating you, provided you publish the article referred to above. I think that you should have told your readers that the reason I delayed answering your last letter was on account of physical disability; but, as I presume you have never had the hay fever, you do not really know how to sympathize with a man who has had it for over thirty years.

Because I would not discuss with him when shut out of his columns, I closed, he says, the discussion on a technicality! The reader who loves fairness, justice, and truth will readily see who closed the discussion.

"Prove All Things, Hold Fast That Which Is Good." BY M. C. K.

On page 397 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate we publish an article from Brother J. Oscar Paisley called out by the current discussion of "Bible Things by Bible Names." In addition to the matters which the Advocate has so far emphasized in the discussion, this article suggests several things of vital importance to which it seems proper to direct special attention, and I therefore ask the reader to please examine it carefully before reading these comments.

We may observe, first of all, that it has been one of the chief objects of Satan in all the ages to sow seeds of error wherever God's truth is planted and thereby to confuse and mislead men, if possible, and prevent their seeing and obeying the truth; but sometimes, in spite of his seed sowing and the resultant harvest of errors, men see what is the truth and obey it. Whenever this is so, surely we rejoice and try to confirm them in the truth as far as they have discovered it, and, at the same time, to help them, if possible, to see and turn away from any errors in which they have become unwittingly entangled. The rightcousness of this course may be illustrated by the concrete example presented by Brother Paisley. Hence, let us note some facts in connection with it which call for renewed emphasis.

1. The two Baptist preachers. In this case Brother Paisley has given what he saw and heard. While I rejoice that, according to his report, these two men faithfully preached and practiced the New Testament doctrine on becoming a Christian precisely as it is written in that inspired volume, yet I do not call further attention to it merely to emphasize this pleasing fact. Rather, I wish to further emphasize the additional pleasing fact that, in spite of the Baptist theory and the Baptist denomination with which they were allied, they had learned and were faithfully teaching the truth of the New Testament on the process of becoming a Christian. In fact, as reported by him, they were preaching and practicing it so fully and so faithfully that a stranger, who knew nothing of their denominational affiliation, would never have suspected that they belonged to either the Baptist or to any other denomination.

- 2. But suppose they had preached some Baptist error or some other kind of error, and yet, in spite of such errors, sinners had heard from their lips the New Testament truth also, and had believed it with all the heart end obeyed it—obeyed it precisely as it is taught in the New Testament—where could such a process of faith and obedience have put them, except into the church of God?
- 3. No matter in what errors men who preach may be involved, still, if they preach also the Lord Jesus Christ, and Lim crucified, as the Savior of the world, preach that he requires men to repent of their sins and to be buried with him in baptism—yea, actually read to them "Matt. 3: 13-17; Acts 8: 35-39; and Rom. 6: 1-4," and make "a splend'id argument on Jesus indicating the necessity of baptism by the distance he walked to be baptized of John" and on "the eunuch going on his way rejoicing after being baptized into Christ's death and resurrected to walk in newness of life"—if they do all of this and send obedient hearts on their way rejoicing in salvation from sin, why should it not be right and acceptable to the Lord?
- 4. Let the reader further note that, in spite of any errors in which this Baptist preacher who did the baptizing may have been entangled, yet, when thoughtless and irreverent persons attempted to create laughter at the rejoicing of the obedient over their salvation, he "beckoned with his hand over the immense audience and said, 'They have a right to rejoice,' referring to the eunuch going on his way rejoicing after being baptized." Can anybody improve on this?
- 5. Still more significant is the exposure made by this Baptist preacher of the false claim sometimes put forward about "essentials and nonessentials" when he actually said that "he did not believe God gave one single commandment that was a nonessential." Again, it is pertinent to ask, who can improve on this? It is the identical principle which hundreds of preachers who are not "Baptists," and who are trying to be nothing else that is denominational, have been trying to preach and inculcate all their lives. Why should they not encourage Baptist preachers or any other kind of preachers in doing the same thing? Yea, why not encourage the preachers of all denominations to do it? This principle, faithfully preached and properly applied everywhere in religion, would gradually disintegrate all denominations and result ultimately in restoring the one church of primitive times.
- 6. Finally, let it be distinctly understood and never forgotten, that it has not only been no part of my purpose and no wish of mine in this controversy to indorse or compromise with a single error taught by any denomination, but, on the contrary, it has been my studied and fixed purpose and my resolute determination, as far as in me lies, to oppose all error of every form, whether great or small, in any and all denominations. But, with righteous discrimination between truth and error, wherever and in whatsoever the truth is found, it has been and is my purpose to indorse and encourage it, and with equal diligence to discourage and to refuse to indorse error, wherever and with whomsoever found. With the New Testament as our guide, I know not what other course to pursue that will be well pleasing to our Heavenly Father. This principle is so simple that a child may understand it. Moreover, it is exactly what God tells us to do: "Prove all things, hold fast that which is good." (1 Thess. 5: 21.) If a Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, or anybody else teaches a New Testament truth on any subject whatever, let us accept it; but, on the other hand, if the most ardently loved and trusted preacher in all the church of God and a member of no denomination at all should teach an error, let us reject it. Why not? No living man can give a just reason for not doing so. Let us accept, honor, and magnify all truth, wherever and with whomsoever found, and oppose all error, no matter where nor by whom taught.

"Let Your Speech Be Always With Grace, Seasoned With Salt."

BY E. A. E.

INTRODUCTION.

It appears that there is great need for more teaching on this subject, and still greater need for practice. In this particular, as in regard to baptism, the Lord's Supper, feeding and clothing the poor, "faith apart from works is dead." Thou who bearest the name of a Christian, and restest upon the gospel, "and gloriest in God, and knowest his will, and approvest of the things that are excellent" (gracious and edifying speech both in private conversation and public address), being instructed out of the gospel, "and are confident that thou thyself art a guide to the blind, a light to them that are in darkness, a corrector of the foolish, a teacher of babes," having in the gospel the knowledge of God and "all things that pertain unto life and godliness" (compare Rom. 2: 17-20), dost thou give way to temper, seek retaliation, cherish malice, apply unchristian and even vile epithets, indulge in harsh and bitter speech, and employ invective?

I. "PROOF TEXTS."

Thou therefore that teachest another, teachest thou not thyself? thou that preachest a man should not steal, dost thou steal? thou that sayest a man should not commit adultery, dost thou commit adultery? thou that abhorrest idols, dost thou rob temples? thou who gloriest in the law, through thy transgression of the law dishonorest thou God? (Rom. 2: 21-23.)

Continuing in Rom. 2, do not the ones who profess to be teachers of babes, instructors of the foolish, guides to the blind, lights to those in darkness, preachers of the gentle Nazarene, and followers of the meek and lowly Jesus, but who indulge in the language described above, bring reproach upon the church of Christ and cause the name of God to be blasphemed by the world?

What an anomaly, reproach, and shame for preachers, elders, or other professed teachers of the gospel of Christ, preaching and teaching "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace" and that the body is one and "there should be no schisms in the body," to be leaders in unholy strife and heads of factions!

Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with sait, that ye may know how ye ought to answer each one. (Col. 4: 6.)

Let no corrupt speech proceed out of your mouth, but such as is good for edifying as the need may be, that it may give grace to them that hear. And grieve not the Holy Spirit of God, in whom ye were sealed unto the day of redemption. Let all bitterness, and wrath, and anger, and clamor, and railing, be put away from you, with all malice: and be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving each other, even as God also in Christ forgave you. (Eph. 4: 29-32.)

But if ye have bitter jealousy and faction in your heart, glory not and lie not against the truth. This wisdom is not a wisdom that cometh down from above, but is earthly, sensual, devilish. For where jealousy and faction are, there is confusion and every vile deed. But the wisdom that is from above is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without variance, without hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace for them that make peace. (James 3: 14-18.)

For whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet stumble in one point, he is become guilty of all. (James 2: 10.)

He who said, "Do not commit adultery," said also you shall not hate your brother, or say to him, "Raca," and "Thou fool;" furthermore, that no corrupt speech and bitterness and unsavory denunciation shall proceed out of your mouth, but only such as is good for edifying. Now, if you commit no adultery and never looked upon a woman to lust after her, or never violated the law of God in all other respects, yet if you fail to control your temper and tongue and pen, thoughts and feelings, you are guilty of transgressing the law of God. God says a man is happy who does not condemn himself in that which he puts to test, and Jesus says: "Judge not, that ye be not judged." King Saul, who deliberately and in rebellion against God changed God's order of things, was a greater sinner than David. David confessed his sins, and God forgave him.

II. WHAT IS OBEDIENCE TO GOD?

Since faith is shown by works, and "by their fruits ye shall know them," it appears that not a few religious people have not yet learned what obedience to God is. They may teach in general terms that not every one who says. "Lord, Lord," shall enter into the kingdom of heaven, but he who does the will of God who is in heaven, and that to hear and do the words of Jesus is to build on the rock; but in practice—in work and worship—they deny it.

But in vain do they worship me, teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men.

Doing something in religion which God has never commanded, while leaving undone much he has commanded, is not obedience to him. Hundreds of examples in the Bible show this. For instance, when God commanded Moses to sanctify him in the eyes of the people and to speak to the rock, it was not only not obedience to God to strike the rock and to fail to sanctify God here, but it was unbelief and rebellion. (Num. 20: 10-13, 24; 27: 12-14.) Since God now commands his children to sing, to sing "psalms and hymns and spiritual songs," thus to teach and admonish one another, "speaking one to another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs," and to sing these "with the spirit" and "with the understanding," making melody with their hearts to the Lord and with grace in their hearts unto God (1 Cor. 14: 15; Eph. 5: 19; Col. 3: 16), it is not obedience to God to sing in his worship national songs-"Dixie," "Yankee Doodle," "My Country 'Tis of Thee," etc.-or some jiggish something, without sentiment or sense, like "Pop Goes the Weasel." Neither is it obedience to God to play in his worship various musical instruments. All see this. Just so, since God commands preachers in their preaching and teaching and private conversation with all other Christians to use "sound speech, that cannot be condemned," it is disobedience to him to refuse or even to fail to do this. All should be just as careful and obedient to God to use the kind of speech which he commands as the kind of music which he commands, or as to obey him in being baptized, observing the Lord's Supper, etc.

It is obedience to God to bridle one's tongue; to control one's temper, thoughts, feelings, and pen; to put away anger, wrath, bitterness (all of it), and all malice and guile and hypocrisies (1 Pet. 2: 1), clamor and railing; it is to be kind, tender-hearted, long-suffering, forbearing, forgiving, and to take "not account of evil;" it is to study and pray so as to season one's speech with salt, to know how to answer every one, to know how to edify as the need requires, and to avoid grieving the Spirit of God. We must contend as earnestly and as faithfully for obedience to God in these particulars as in all others, first of all, setting a good example.

To grieve "the Holy Spirit of God" is a most serious wrong. This Christians do in failing to use such speech as God requires and for the purpose he gives. Many righteous men and not a few pious women are grieved over the harsh, ugly, and bitter language they hear from the pulpit and read in the papers. Then how much the more is the Holy Spirit grieved! All unholy strife, factions, earthly, sensual, devilish wisdom, is displeasing to God and is condemned by him. The wisdom which is from above and for which all should pray (James 1: 5, 6) "is first pure, then peaceable, gentle, easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without variance and hypocrisy. And the fruit of righteousness is sown in peace for them that make peace." The exercise of this wisdom is obedience to God. All hair splitting theories, such as tithing "mint and anise and cummin," and all neglect of justice, mercy, the Golden Rule, faith, and other weightier matters of the gospel, are as rank disobedience to God as ever grew in Satan's garden." "An enemy hath done this."

One comes in contact with as bitter, biting, blistering, and blighting bitterness in church troubles and factions as in the dirty, undermining politics of city slums. Springing from factions, I have been forced to see in anonymous letters some of the most shameful, vulgar, and disgraceful things! I would not mention such things but to show what strife and factions will lead professed Christians to say and do. James by the Spirit of God declares that "bitter jealousy and faction" lead parties affected by them into "confusion and every vile deed," into glorying against the truth and even lying against it.

Playing politics in the church-for instance, having men appointed as elders and deacons, not because of their scriptural qualifications and the need of the church, but because they favor certain measures (when the measures themselves may be unscriptural), in order to have a majority vote in "business meetings"-if doing such a thing by Christians is conceivable-no, not Christians, for Christians cannot be guilty of such practices-but professed Christians—is a crime against the church and Christ its Head. How men in their right minds, claiming to be Christians, to be governed by the word of God, to be teachers and guides and lights, and to seek and to teach "the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace,' can depart so far from the truth, become so destitute of the Spirit of Christ, and be so barren of the fruits of righteousness and love, is a most astounding thing and must be one of the greatest deceptions of sin.

It is obedience to God to preach and to teach "the gospel," "the word," "Christ, and him crucified," "the whole counsel of God," "all things that pertain unto life and godliness;" it is disobedience to him to preach and to teach anything which he commands to be avoided, and to do this willfully is rebellion. It is another shame and crime that good and true men without the slightest blemish on their characters, and without, as Brother Larimore says, "a shade of a shadow" of doubt about their faithfulness in the gospel and to Christ and his church, must not be allowed to preach in certain places because they cannot indorse certain theories and factions!

Another wrong and unscriptural course, should such a thing ever be attempted, is for a preacher of some faction to try to "name his successor" when he decides to leave a congregation for another field. Scriptural elders—do not misunderstand—I say scriptural elders—have been appointed by the Lord to have the scriptural oversight (not an unscriptural lording it over their charge) of the church, and must see that the whole truth is taught and that all teachers who teach things which they should not teach are stopped. (Tit. 1: 10, 11.) To turn away from God's order of things in the church is as much turning away from God and rejecting him as the turning away from his order and government by Israel of old in wanting and securing a king to govern them as the nations around them were governed. To turn away from God, to reject his rule, to knowingly and willfully disobey him in one point is to do so at all points, is to be guilty of all. "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." Whenever "the pastor," "the minister," "the evangelist," "the preacher, or the any other man, seeks to displace scriptural elders, with their scriptural qualifications and their scriptural work, he seeks to set aside God's appointments and order of government in the church and is to all intents and purposes a rebel against God. As when Saul of Tarsus persecuted the church, he may do this ignorantly and in unbelief, and God in his penitence may forgive him; but his ignorance and even conscientiousness do not destroy his sin. Ruling by majority vote comes in with the modern pastor, or modern "minister," or modern "evangelist," or "one-preacher" rule, and will eventually destroy the church wherever persisted in. It is not God's way. Why preach the New Testament church and order of things, while striving all the while to set this order

The Death of His Saints.

BY F. W. SMITH.

There are many things that are precious in the sight of the Lord, but it shall be my purpose at the present to call attention to but one of these and apply it to a noble woman who has gone to her eternal reward. The text says: "Precious in the sight of the Lord is the death of his saints." (Ps. 116: 15.) When the eyelids of Sister Mc-Alister, wife of W. J. McAlister, were kissed down in death, February 6, 1921, I firmly believe that all the riches of divine grace embodied in this soul-comforting passage from God's Book were applied to her. She was a faithful and devout servant of the Master for forty-three long years -a member of the Wells Hill congregation, in Lincoln County, Tenn. For forty years she prepared the loaf for the church at that place, and to her it was a real heart pleasure. I knew this good woman when she was a girl, before the words were spoken which united her to the man whose name she bore and to whom she was all that a good wife could be. Mary Tabitha Crawford, with her father and mother, lived near the home of my childhood, and I remember her as a sweet-faced, comely girl with a most amiable disposition. Her husband and I were "boys together;" and when I heard that this fine young woman had given her hand and heart to Billie McAlister, I felt a little uneasy about her future happiness, for Billie was not religiously inclined. I am happy to say that my fears never materialized, for Billie McAlister gave his heart to God, and heart to heart and hand in hand he traveled the highway of holiness with his faithful companion until God called her unto himself. How beautiful and blessed it is to witness husband and wife walking together with the Lord, each helping and encouraging the other in the rearing and training of their children for the higher and better things of life! On September 25, 1873, their love for each other was sealed by the marriage vows, and to this sacred union were born thirteen children, all of whom have passed away, save three-one son and two daughters. Sister McAlister was in her sixty-fourth year, and because of continued illness and great suffering she said: "I have been here long enough, and I want to sleep my last hour away." God graciously granted her wish; and when she awoke from that peaceful rest, it was to suffer no more forever. She had fought the battles of life clad in heaven's armor, and victory came in the gloom and shadows of death, so that she was enabled to say: "O death, where is thy sting? O grave, where is thy victory?'

The death of God's saints is precious in his sight because their lives have been precious in his sight. We need not be concerned about the death part, but intensely concerned about the living side of our being. From the moment of our birth into the kingdom of Christ, God watches every effort, though feeble it be, we make to walk with him; and when the weary journey over the rough and rugged pathway of life is ended and we lay us down to die, our departure is precious in his eyes. He takes us away from the sorrowing, suffering, heartaches and body aches of this sin-cursed earth, and welcomes us into a land against whose shores no wave of trouble, sorrow, or suffering will ever break-a land whose bewildering and unfading beauties shall claim our enraptured vision through endless ages. The death of his saints is precious in his sight because of the triumphs of redeeming grace over the powers and forces of sin and death-yea, because of the "golden fruit" gathered into the garner where no decay can come-fruit of righteousness springing from the incorruptible seed bedewed with the grace and blood of the Lamb without blemish. Their death is precious in his sight as he views them clothed in white raiment, with palms of victory in their immortalized hands, marching with joyous song around the great white throne.

In writing this tribute to the love and memory of a noble woman, I am borne away to my first home and the fields of my boyhood days, and as I write my tears are falling thick and fast. From where I sit, beneath the picture of my sainted mother, my heart aches as I recall the old home with its sweet and hallowed memories. But it is only a reverie: they are not there; they have all crossed to the other side, and I alone am left to dream of the long ago. It is a sad dream, because on awaking not a familiar voice is heard nor a loved face or form can be seen. May the Lord comfort Brother McAlister and his children in their great sorrow.

The Parable of the Tares.

BY J. C. M'Q.

We cheerfully publish an article from Brother Sewell on "Where Are the Tares?" on page 394. It is not my purpose to review the article, but I will make a few statements from the parable which will be helpful in exposing error and in revealing the truth. Christ says: "The kingdom of heaven is likened unto a man that sowed good seed in his field." The likeness is between the kingdom of heaven and the man that sowed good seed in his field. There is nothing in the parable that intimates that either the wheat or the tares were sown in the kingdom of heaven; but the parable teaches very clearly that neither was sown in the kingdom of heaven, but both in the field, or the world. It also teaches beyond a doubt that neither wheat nor tares get out of the field, or the world, until the harvest, which is the end of the world. The Son of man does the sowing of the good seed through the kingdom of heaven; so the kingdom of heaven is compared to a man that sowed good seed in his field. Thus in a sense the kingdom of heaven does the sowing, and sows the seed in the world instead of in the kingdom of heaven. This is in perfect accord with Christ's interpretation of the parable: "And he answered and said, He that soweth the good seed is the Son of man; and the field is the world; and the good seed, these are the sons of the kingdom; and the tares are the sons of the evil one; and the enemy that sowed them is the devil; and the harvest is the end of the world; and the reapers are the angels." Both the tares and the wheat remain in the world until the end of the world. Hence, to state that the wheat or the tares get out of the world into the church is to contradict the plain teaching of the word

Neither wheat nor tares are sown in the kingdom of heaven, but believers enter the kingdom of heaven by a birth of water and the Spirit. "Jesus answered, Verily, verily, I say unto thee, Except one be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God."

(John 3: 5.) It is not only reasonable, but also scriptural, that at the harvest the tares will be gathered out of the field, which is the world, in which they were sown. "The Son of man shall send forth his angels, and they shall gather out of the kingdom all things that cause stumbling, and them that do iniquity." They are sown in the world; they are gathered out of the world, or "the kingdom." "Jehovah hath established his throne in the heavens; and his kingdom ruleth over all." (Ps. 103: 19.) Those who by obedience are translated into the kingdom of Christ are not taken out of the world; for the kingdom of heaven itself, which is composed of obedient subjects, is in the world. God rules over the whole world, while all his creatures are not subject to him as are his faithful subjects who accept the truth as revealed through Christ Jesus.

As enough has been said on this subject, we deem it unnecessary to discuss it further at the present time.

Book Notes.

"Gospel Plan of Salvation," by T. W. Brents, is a book that wears well. The book is as popular as when first issued, and has enjoyed a large and steady sale. We are selling this book at the low price of $2 per copy. This is decidedly the best work of Dr. T. W. Brents.

We still have on hand a few copies of "Peloubet's Select Notes for 1921." The price of this book is $2.10, postpaid. If you expect to get a copy, you should send us your order at once. After our present supply is exhausted, we will not be able to furnish the 1921 edition.

"The Model Church," by G. C. Brewer, is a most excellent book, and has been very cordially received. If you wish to read about the elders of the church and their work, with their qualifications, you should by all means have a copy of this book. It is especially interesting just now. Price, $1.

If you want a first-class music book, you should by all means send your order to us. Our hymn books are all first-class and have had a wide circulation. Send for price list of our music books.

If you are troubled with Adventism, if the Adventists are in your community stirring up strife and dissatisfaction, you should by all means send us $1.25 for a copy of "Adventism and the Bible." This is one of the most complete books, if not the most complete, on the subject. If you will get a copy of this book and read it, you will have no difficulty in meeting the arguments of Adventism.

"Queries and Answers," by Lipscomb and Sewell, is having a splendid sale. Don't forget that this is a book of 767 large octavo pages, with back and sides gold stamped, bound in black cloth. We are selling the book at the exceedingly low price of $3 per copy. The City.

The city that we seek
Is not of gems and gold;
No citadel of light
Shall to our eyes unfold.

To-day we slowly rear
The city of God's own;
Within the hearts of men
We build it, stone on stone.

The streets are not of pearl Which thread that city fair; No walls of emerald Or amethyst are there.

With stones of loving deeds,
With walls of kindly thought,
We build that kingdom blest—
The city "God hath wrought,"

No man shall dwell therein Who labors but for pelf; No one shall tread its streets Who serves the god of self,

But each shall work for each, And greed shall be forgot, For love abides therein, And envy troubleth not.

The city that we seek
Is not of gems and gold;
No citadel of light
Shall to our eyes unfold.

To-day we slowly rear

The city of God's own;

Within the hearts of men

We build it, stone on stone.

How a Town Was Saved by a Clock.

In the old days, when every city had to be well guarded, the ancient town of Basel, in Switzerland, was surrounded by a high wall. There was only one gate. Beside it stood a tower with a clock in it, and at the foot of the tower lived the old man who was the keeper of the gate.

The old man did his duty so well that for years no harm came to the city, but inside of it were traitors who had long planned to turn it over to its enemies. The old guardian suspected that evil was hanging over the city, but there were no soldiers to help him; so he could do nothing but watch and listen.

One night, when all the lights of the town had been put out, the old man's keen eyes caught sight of shadows skulking near the tower. He knew it was the traitors, and that they were there for no good purpose.

It was then nearly midnight, and his sharp ears caught the whisper: "When the clock strikes twelve." That meant, of course, that the stroke of twelve had been agreed upon as the signal for the traitors to fling open the gate and deliver the town into the hands of its enemies.

The old man, listening in his little room, wondered what he should do. He had little strength himself, and there was no time to get help.

At last, when it lacked only five minutes of midnight, he thought of a plan. Climbing the stairs of the tower as fast as he could, he groped his way to the clock and opened its case with trembling hands.

A little later one long, clear note struck from the top of the tower. Only one, then silence. The old man, leaning from the window, heard excited whispers below.

"Why doesn't it go on striking?"

"Could we have slept while we waited?"

The sharpness of that one stroke on the silent air frightened the traiters. They crept away, sulky and fearful, in the darkness. Outside the gate the waiting enemy also heard the stroke, and after a time they went away, bewildered.

The next morning the mayor sent to the gate keeper to ask why the clock was an hour fast. When he heard what had happened, he ordered a great celebration in honor of the old man who had saved the town.

As for the clock itself, it never was set back. From that time on it remained an hour fast in memory of the time when its single stroke saved the town.—Olive A. Smith.

The Great Elm.

Of all the trees that Billy knew, the very tallest was the great elm in the meadow lot near the river. He heard that the spire of the new church at the village was more than a hundred feet tall, and he felt sure that his tree was taller than that.

One day Billy and his cousin Robert were playing in the meadow. They sat down to rest for a minute in the shade of the great elm.

"I wish that I could find out how tall this tree really is," said Billy.

"Why, that is easy enough," said Robert.

They ran into the barn, where Robert picked out a small pole from a pile of lumber. With a foot rule which Billy brought from the house they found that the pole measured almost exactly ten feet in length. Taking both the pole and the foot rule, they hurried back to the meadow. "Now you sit down and watch me," said Robert.

He stuck the pole in the ground not far from the elm, but outside the place where its great shadow fell. Then he carefully measured the shadow that was cast by the pole and with equal care measured the distance from the base of the tree to the end of the shadow cast by its topmost branches.

"Your elm is one hundred and twenty-eight feet tall," he said.

"How did you do it?" cried Billy.

"There could be nothing easier," said his cousin. "The pole is ten feet tall, and I found that its shadow is just five feet in length. Now that means that it takes two feet of pole, with the sun where it is now, to cast a foot of shadow. Of course it is the same with the tree. I found that the length of the tree's shadow is sixty-four feet. This means that the tree itself is twice sixty-four feet, or one hundred and twenty-eight feet high. Do you see? That is the way our teacher had us find out the height of our flagpole."

Billy was quick enough to understand, and before another day passed he had measured the height of a score of trees in the meadow.—The Lutheran.

What to Learn.

There are five things in life which we ought to learn. Here they are:

- 1. Learn to laugh. A good laugh is better than medicine.
- 2. Learn how to tell a helpful story. A well-told story is as welcome as a sunbeam in a sick room.
- Learn to keep your troubles to yourself. The world is too busy to linger over your ills and sorrows.
- 4. Learn to stop croaking. If you cannot see any good in this world, keep the bad to yourself.
- 5. Learn to greet your friends with a smile. They carry too many frowns in their own hearts to be bothered with any of yours.—Brooklyn Eagle.

Railroads Critically Sick.

Of the many troubles that the United States is facing, none are more serious than the railroad situation. the situation. The railroads are mighty sick, suffering from a complication of ailments that all but baffle the "doctors." While the wage and rate doubt if the public in general comprehends the gravity of going on, workers by the thousands are being laid off, and tonnage is falling off day by day, and deficits are piling up. Take this report regarding the Pennsylvania Rail-road as illustrative: "To-day more than ninety thousand freight cars stand empty and idle on its sidings and tracks, These are not, any of them, 'bad order cars' waiting on repair rails or 'rip tracks,' They are fit for service. Locomotives, sixteen hundred of them, are cold, idle, useless, set away to gather dust and cobwebs, in the dull, creeping paralysis that is spreading along the railway steel of the nation. More than eighty thousand men who had jobs on that railroad last September have been laid off. Wages are high, and rates are high. The men insisted on high wages and got them. The roads insisted on high rates to meet the high wages, and the high rates were authorized. But the pyramid was standing on its apex. The high wages are still being paid, but there are fewer workers on the payroll. High rates are still in effect, but the earnings are decreasing. Freight rates have paralyzed shipments. The ugly circle has completed itself. Men who were running locomotives on a regular 'run' a few months ago are back on the 'extra boards.' Men farther down the list have been 'laid off.' Trained personnel and technical staffs of the railways are melting away. Divisions are disappearing in reorganizations. 'Steel gangs' are becoming curiosities on many roads. Cobwebs are gathering in freight rooms. Rust is gnawing on siding steel One of the chief reasons for this conand car coupling." dition of affairs is the state of economic depression, which is not only country-wide, but world-wide. Traffic is de-This may be, and we hope it is, temporary, but railroad revenue must be increased by cutting down operating expenses in some way.-Christian Advocate.

This is not a time for agitation. There is an unrest among all classes of people that should be quieted. The men of means should be willing to make sacrifices in order to keep the wage earner at work. On the other hand, the wage earner should be willing to make concessions also. There must be a readjustment, and this readjustment should be approached in a spirit of fairness and justice by all parties concerned. Throwing people out of employment will not better the condition; demanding higher wages will only aggravate, instead of relieving, the trouble. All men should go to work to do a day's work for a day's pay. There should be no laboring class and no capitalistic class, but all should be laborers together, doing unto others as they wou'd have others do unto them.

"Protestant Invaders" in Europe.

A writer in a Catholic paper published in Paris says that Catholic leaders in general in Europe are aroused by the activities of the "Protestant invaders." We quote what he says about Protestant work in Italy: "Wesleyans, Baptists, and American Methodists are flooding Italy with Bibles, organizing missions and founding schools, and in fifty years of effort have succeeded in winning some eighty thousand souls. Besides their churches, the American Protestants have started in Italy a number of institutions which, in themselves praiseworthy, have become, under the cover of charity or social service, instruments of proselyting. There are three great theological schools. There are several colleges, industrial schools, and an international institute for Methodist young women, which prepare for government diplomas and are altogether too successful in attracting young Catholics from all over the peninsula. There are a number of organizations for young people, including the Y. M. C. A., which has a beautiful palace in Rome and more than three hundred members; there are orphan asylums, cooking schools, farm colonies, and visiting missionary organizations. The charitable effort is enormous, and it is powerfully seconded by a press abundantly provided with newspapers, magazines, and tracts."

This writer goes on to say: "In positive gain for Protestantism, almost nothing. Those affected by the propaganda do not become Protesiants, but they do cease to be Catholics." For all true followers of Jesus Christ we do not believe there is cause in the activities that have stirred Catholicism in Europe for alarm concerning the interests of His kingdom on earth. What this statement acknowledges to have been accomplished for righteousness by the Protestants seems to us to be a testimony to the success of the Protestants in rendering genuine Christian service in Rome.—Christian Advocate.

. Christians should be active always and everywhere in proclaiming the truth. The truth is powerful and will prevail. Our lives may be at fault, but the truth never. With consistent Christian lives and the truth presented in its simplicity and power, the world will be much more rapidly Christianized. Those who love the truth should not permit those who are in error to be more active in the propagation of error than they are in the propagation of turth.

Suffering and Anxiety.

These days are full of suffering and anxiety. They are beset with vexatious problems. We shall all have to learn to take a steady view of life and understand that the days of reckless joy riding are over. There are big wage disputes to settle, and the ugly business of profiteering must be stopped. The process may prove to be a long and troublesome one. In the meantime those who can should become employers, and we should all concern ourselves with the needs of the unemployed. Every one should consider himself an agent to bring together worker and employer. A minister in St. Louis on a recent Lord's day made an impassioned appeal embodying these points. The unemployed have never had, and never will have, better friends than the pastors.

Partisanship in politics and sectarianism in religion are twin curses of national life. Why is it not enough to be simply American citizens and Christians only?—Christian-Evangelist.

If all men would be Christians, being filled with the spirit of the Christ, we would not have the present vexatious problems to solve. If men would only realize and fully practice the religion of Jesus Christ, our troubles would fade away. Selfishness is the damning sin of the age. When any man sacrifices principle and right in order to gain money, he loves money too well, and brings discord and strife by his conduct. All men should love the Lord Jesus Christ and the truth more than money or the pleasures of this world. Judas wrought his own destruction be cause he loved a few paltry dollars more than he loved Christ. There are thousands doing the same thing to-day that Judas did Every man should now strive to bring about peace among men, for it is harder to win a victory in peace than to win a victory in war. The ministry should rise up as one man and preach the truth against all kinds of strife boldly and fearlessly.

The Christian-Evangelist, continuing on the same subject, very forcefully says:

The leaders of the government may well feel the gravity of the world situation. It is bleeding at every pore, and the red specter of war is steadily stalking the nations of the world. It is generally believed that the United States is the key nation. How forceful Emerson's words seem now: "As goes America, so goes the world!" Will we go on or turn back? The world awaits us, and we have been wrangling. O, shame! The Daily News, London, said recently: "Whether the present talk of reducing armament ends in moonshine or in a practical round-table conference of the principal powers will depend almost entirely upon America's readiness to consider the deal."

If pulpits of America will arouse themselves in concert of determined action and in accordance with the Master's words, they can wrench the nations away from the materialist and the militarist and put it completely under the leadership of Jesus Christ. But if the pulpit is worldly and militarist itself, it can do nothing. This is a critical period in the world's history, and the pulpit faces one of its greatest opportunities.

MISCELLANY

T. B. Clark writes from Childress, Texas: "For the information of brethren who contemplate a visit to Red Boiling Springs, Tenn., this summer, I will say that the church there has engaged my services for their annual meeting. The meeting is to begin on August 28. If you mean to visit the springs this year, make your visit during the meeting."

Carl Barnette sends the following: "Having received inquiries from brethren in Florida as to my standing with the church at Greenville, Ala., I cheerfully submit the following letter, signed by C. A. Buffington, minister, and twelve others, for publication: 'We, the undersigned members of the church of Christ at Greenville, Ala., hereby certify that Carl Barnette is in good standing and in full fellowship with the church at Greenville.'"

J. W. Burgan, Sinai, Ky., in renewing his subscription for the Gospel Advocate, writes: "I had decided to discontinue, but I feel like I can hardly do without the paper in my home. It is so encouraging and instructive that I cannot well do without it. I am getting old, past seventy-four, and seriously afflicted. I cannot read as much as I would like to, but it does me so much good in my old days. I would be glad if every one would read and study it."

We publish the following from Mrs. A. C. Wandell, Bradentown, Fla., regarding her subscription to the Gospel Advocate: "My paid subscription to the Gospel Advocate will expire in May. I am a widow, eighty years old, and have no way of making any money to renew my subscription. The paper was sent to me, and unless some one renews for me I will be compelled to give up the paper I love so much. Reading the Advocate is my greatest pleasure. My departed husband took the paper until his death."

A note from E. S. Jelley, sent from Vambori, District Ahmednagar, British India, March 8, says: "A week ago Lord's day I had the joy of baptizing little Martha Waghmare (which is by interpretation 'Tigerslay'). There have been nine baptisms since then. Three of our children are suffering from lung trouble. I have just returned from a trip to Jwalapur, thirteen hundred miles. The remedies and diet the doctor prescribed for Mrs. Jelley are being used, and she has gained in strength, and the symptoms of tuberculosis are much less in evidence. During my absence in North India she gave birth to a healthy girl. Both mother and child are doing well."

Mrs. J. D. Carter, Lawton, Okla., writes: "I wrote an appeal to the churches sometime ago for help to build a church in Lawton, and I will now tell of our progress with the building. The carpenters are beginning to build a plain, little house, twenty by forty feet, that will cost about twelve hundred dollars, and we who have been here so long will be very proud of it; but, brethren and sisters in Christ, we have not the means to complete this building, and we will be very glad to receive some help at this time. I will give a statement through the papers of what I receive. I have received up to date, from a sister at Coal Hill, Ark. (a widow seventy-two years old), one dollar. For this we are very thankful. My address is 611 E Avenue.

Sister (Mrs.) Mabel Kennamer writes from Paint Rock, Ala., as follows: "We meet with the Garth congregation almost every Sunday for Sunday school and the Lord's Supper. Frank Jenkins preaches for us every first Sunday, coming from Madison Cross Roads, usually the day before. Allen Phy, of Algood, Tenn., will hold a series of meetings for us, beginning on Saturday night before the second Sunday in August. We are looking forward to a good meeting. Our preacher repeated the Lord's prayer (Matt. 6) in his sermons, and recommended it for family worship. Also, I was called on by the 'pastor' of the Memorial Presbyterian Church in St. Augustine last spring, where I attended prayer meeting with my mother, for an account of the use we made of it in our church. I told him we did not repeat it, as the kingdom has already come. Was I right?" [We can pray for an increase of the kingdom.—Eb.]

A. A. Bunner writes from Cleveland, Ohio: "I wish to acknowledge the receipt of two dollars sent by a sister in Tennessee to assist me in doing mission work in and around Cleveland. I extend my heartfelt thanks to this dear sister in Christ for her fellowship in the gospel. The work is needed in Cleveland. It is a wonderful mission field, and now, as weather conditions are settling down, I intend, God willing, to go from house to house preaching the word and circulating tracts and papers. My street-car fare over the city and its suburbs will be quite an item, and I will be thankful for any further fellowship of the brethren." Another note from Brother Bunner, sent from Fairmont, W. Va., Route 1, a few days later, says: "I am here now under a doctor's care. To-day is the first I have been out of bed for a week; but I feel that I am improving slowly, and hope to be able to go to my home in Cleveland, Ohio, some time next week."

From W. F. Cox, Beamsville, Ontario, Canada, April 15: "On the first Lord's day in March I was with the brethren at Tintern. On the second Lord's day I had the pleasure of addressing a very attentive audience at Jordan. was my first opportunity of talking to the church at this place. O. E. Tallman is stationed here. I was with the brethren at Smithville on the third Lord's day, and assisted I was present in the services. According to appointment, and addressed two good meetings at Selkirk on the last Lord's day in March. I enjoyed myself very much at this place. Sister Ella McDavid writes to tell how she and a brother were disappointed in the Apostolic Review. They feel that they have been outraged. She says: "Since some one (I know not who) mailed me a copy of the Apostolic Review, please give me an opportunity to say a few things in regard to it. I was greatly impressed with that issue, but hesitated to send in my subscription; but I persuaded a brother to subscribe for it, which he did. So this brother read the third issue (date of March 29), and I read it; and he thought, and I thought, I was due to apologize to him for persuading him to subscribe for a paper that was fighting Christian education, which is so badly needed. This brother has children, all in sectarian schools, compelled to abide by the teaching their instructors give them. It does seem so weak to think that the world can erect institutions good enough to send our children to, and to think that it is wrong for disciples of Christ to erect an institution to send their children to, where the pure word of God can be taught them. Christians should not pick up the erring side of a few individuals and fault the Christian schools with them. We admit that the church is a divine institution; but Christians can and must do the work of the church in all places. A literary school is a fine place to teach what the work of the church is. Until we learn to live and practice the work of the church in our everyday life we will see 'college haunts.'"

E. Gaston Collins, Algood, Tenn., in a note addressed to Brother Elam, April 21, says: "Brother Elam, that is a masterful article on 'Christians' Relationship to Civil Governments,' appearing in the Gospel Advocate of April 21, It is masterful because it is scriptural. The Scriptures theroughly furnish us unto all good works. They are the perfect law of liberty. God has certainly furnished us his will on this subject. There are many good brethren who will not agree with the position held out in that arti-To all such I would say: Read the article again, and read the scripture references in connection with it. would be well for them to get a copy of Brother Lipscomb's 'Civil Government' and read it. The scriptures on this subject are evidently applicable to-day; otherwise they would not be the 'perfect law of liberty,' once for all delivered unto the saints.' There is just as much need for sound teaching to day, or this cubic to the for sound teaching to-day on this subject as there ever was. We are looking for another article soon on this same sub-ject. Some Christians say we should help make good laws under which to live; but God still 'ruleth in the kingdom of men, and giveth it to whomsoever he will, and we can do more good toward making good laws by praying fervently for our lawmakers. I think if we had strong enough faith on this subject, we would rest the matter with God, anyway; for he makes all things work together for good to them that love him. The Christian's strength is not manifested in a material way, but is manifested in a way which the world calls weakness. 26-29.) Israel of old was strong when the masses thought she was weak; and when Israel became strong as Brother the masses call strong, then she became weak. Elam, I just wanted to express my appreciation of your efforts; and may you live long to teach and preach the gospel."

Riley.

Mary Ruth Riley, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. John Riley, was bern on March 5, 1911, and departed this life on October 22, 1920. She was the joy of her home, and was loved by all who knew her, especially by her playmates. She loved the Sunday school, and always knew her lessons. She was kind and affectionate. She will be missed by all who knew her. She leaves a heartbroken mother, a sister, and a brother to mourn her death. Her fa-ther preceded her to the grave nine months. We weep, but not as those who have no hope. Funeral services were conducted by Brother John Buckley, and her body was laid by the side of her father in Bethany Cemetery. Our sympathies are extended to the W. B. NORMAN. bereaved ones.

Sherro.

Joe Sherro, of Dallas, Texas, was called to go over the silent river of death in March, 1921. He was young man, only twenty-one years old, and in every way that was visible to human eyes was a model young man. He was a member of the Pearl and Bryan Streets church of Christ, His mother is a widow, and though she has other children, Joe was her mainstay and counselor. Joe endured much suffering. About six months before his death he was struck by an automobile and his leg was broken. He had just got back in school and to work on Saturdays when he took typhoid fever, which in a few weeks did its destructive work. We laid the body to rest in Grove Hill Cemetery, this city, after such services and words of comfort to the family as the writer could give. We will all miss him very much, but none so much as his mother and sister. We extend to them our sympathy.

A. O. COLLEY.

Ross.

Mary L. Riddle was born on February 5, 1843, and died on December 15, 1920. In the summer of 1869 she was born into the family of God, being baptized by Brother E. G. Sewell, At the time she made the confession she met for the first time Frank Ross, who afterwards became her life companion, and who also made the good confession the same day. They were married on October 12, 1869. Four children were born to this union-two boys and two girls. All of the children are dead. Sister Ross was a faithful, consistent Christian. She was almost an invalid for several years before her death, yet she was cheerful, and always ready to encourage and help others. She was an inspiration to her husband. I never knew an old couple more attached to each other than these two.

She was the last member of a family of ten, and is survived only by her husband, Frank Ross, who is the last member of his family. Brother Ross is a member and an elder of the church of Christ at Smyrna, Tenn. Funeral services were conducted at the Smyrna church by Elder A. B. Barret.

LACY H. ELROD.

Matthews.

R. S. Matthews was born on January 20, 1839, and departed this life on February 6, 1921. He was married to Nannie L. Hart in January, 1866. this union twelve children were born. six of whom survive him-three boys and three girls. Five of them are members of the church of Christ. Brother Matthews was reared by Methodist parents and lived a consistent Methodist till late in life. He erected a family altar early in married life and had family prayers, morning and evening, for many years. He reared an eminently respectable and reliable family. He went through the Civil War; he was in all the important battles fought by Robert E. Lee, and received many wounds. He attributed the saving of his life in one battle to the fact that his Bible was in his breast pocket and received a ball that otherwise would have entered his body. About a year ago he became dissatisfied with his baptism and was immersed and joined the First Christian Church at Jackson, Tenn. died at the home of his devoted son, R. L. Matthews, after all had been done by tender hands and devoted hearts that could be done.

Taylor.

On Wednesday, March 23, 1921, another of our brave Confederate soldiers, my grandfather, J. F. Taylor, was called above. He leaves six children, besides a bost of grandchildren and friends, to mourn his death. He has gone on to meet his beloved wife, who preceded him about six years Grandfather was eighty-four years old. He obeyed the gospel some thirty-five years ago, and since had lived a devout Christian. He had been for twelve years, also had suffered with bronchial asthma for the past five years; but he bore these afflictions with cheerfulness, as becomes good Christians. I verily believe he fought the good fight of faith, and in that great day will hear, "Well done, thou good and faithful servant, enter thou into the joy of thy Lord," and be reunited with the loved ones gone on before, where there will be no death, no pain, no sorrow, no crying, for the former things are passed away." While we mourn his death, we mourn not as those without hope, as we feel that he was well qualified to answer the higher call. Funeral services were held by Brother Paisley, of Henderson, Tenn., at the church of Christ at Dyersburg, and his body was laid to rest beside that of his wife in Fair-view Cemetery. MARY LEE DANIEL.

I would rather live in a cabin with the servants of God than to dwell in a mansion with the wicked

One of the best articles I have read lately is from the pen of Brother Flavil Hall, upon the decalogue, published in the Gospel Advocate of March 24. It will bear reading several times.

When you hear of a church difficulty, you may be assured there is some humanity living in that community. The New Testament causes no trouble among people who believe and obey it. Troubles come of those who will not abide God's way, but who are determined to have some other way. And woe be unto that man by whom offenses come!

We may not be able to see the end of our way from the beginning, but we don't need to. One day only is sufficient Christians are slow to see that when a golden opportunity for doing good is placed before us, the Lord put it there.

The angel struck the chains from off the apostle Peter in the prison, but Peter had to gird on his garment and walk out.

When I was a boy, fashionable women tried to influence people by what they wore, The custom is changed. Now they influence the public by what they don't wear.

When the sweet little one is snatched from the cradle and mother's heart is breaking, after the first flow of tears have been wiped away, the following points considered will give much consolation: (1) The child having gone now has evaded a world of sorrow in this life. (2) It will certainly be saved in the next life. (3) Had it lived to maturity, it would have become a sinner, and, like thousands, it might have rejected the gospel and died without hope. (4) The parents being Christians, should they live faithfully until death, they will meet the dear one where sin and death are forever unknown.

Among the Colored Folks

An Encouraging Report.

On March 18 I met with the little band at Corinth, Miss., and found them faithfully keeping house for the Master. One night not long ago they "stormed" Brother J. Hannon, who lives there and also preaches for them, with lots of good things. He is loved by all. On the third Lord's day in March I met with the Oak Grove congregation, near Henderson, Tenn. After services they had an old-fashioned dinner on the ground. This is a fine set of brethren and sisters. On March 21 1 preached in Brother C. H. Clifford's house, near Miffin, Tenn, Interest was good. On March 22 I preached in a little schoolhouse at Miflin, where the pure gospel had never been preached. These people were hungry, it seemed, for the truth. On Friday night seven precious souls confessed their Savior, and on Saturday night seven more made the good confession, and at the water on Lord's day one more confessed. This was a happy time. This is in a Baptist settlement. They have been granted the use of the schoolhouse to worship in each Lord's day. We left several almost at the point of taking a stand for the truth. On March 30 I met with the brethren again at Corinth, Miss., and continued three days. Interest was good each night. On the first Lord's day in April I met with the congregation at Capleville, Tenn., and found them faithfully looking after the Lord's business. Several of the faithful little band at Neshoba were with us, and the service seemed to be enjoyed by all. I am now (April 6) at Newbern, Tenn., for a few nights. From the interest manifested last night, I may have some visible results to report from here next time. From here I go to Obion, Tenn., and leave on Monday for home, so I can be in the meeting now in progress at Jackson Street, conducted by that faithful soldier, Brother A. Campbell. I will be at home two weeks, and then my protracted-meeting work begins for this year at Tuscumbia, Ala.

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their cloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the polltical division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Monntains.

the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase. Berries From My Bush. No. 2.

BY F. J. BERRY.

MANY SHADOWS TO REPRESENT ONE Bony

One peculiar feature of a shadow is that it represents only a certain part of the body. The same body is made to present many different shadows by changing the body, or by exposing different parts of the body to the light. Hence, it took many sacrifices to represent the one great sacrifice that Jesus made for you and me. One could not represent all the good things found in the one offering. It took many ceremonies to represent the one great ceremony; many priests to represent the High Priest over God's people; many Sabbaths to represent the one great rest in reserve for God's people. Let us notice some of these more particularly.

SACRIFICES.

The first sacrifice which Moses commanded them to offer was the "passover" sacrifice, which was a lamb. Of this sacrifice three features are most prominent-(a) the application of blood would save the firstborn; (b) not a bone of it should be broken: (c) none of its flesh should see corruption. The outlines of this shadow gives us the fact that the application of Jesus' blood saves the new-born from death, and that his bones were not broken, and his flesh saw no corruption. (Ex. 12; John 19; 1 Cor. 5.)

Little did the Hebrews know why they should not break a bone, nor permit any of the flesh to see corruption. They were solemnly ordered to observe the commands of Moses concerning these things. We who can see the body of Jesus as it hangs suspended between heaven and earth can realize that the light of the foreknowledge of God shining upon the body produced the shadow for the first time in the land of Egypt, fifteen hundred years before the cross; can understand why the blood was applied and why the bones were not broken and the flesh saw no corruption. When the soldiers came to break the bones of Christ, they discovered that he was dead, and so passed him by. God saw and knew this centuries before. He looked at the end from the beginning. In like manner Jesus rose from the dead, his flesh saw no corruption, and this was seen as clearly as though it had happened already.

There were three kinds of animals and two kinds of fowls used for sacrifices according to the Levitical lawviz.: Of animals, sheep, cattle, and goats; and of the fowls, pigeons and turtle doves. These were sacrificed for different purposes. There were rules regulating the many offerings made. The offerings were the burnt offering, the meat (or meal) offering, the peace offering, the sin offering, and the guilt offering. Some were offered for the priest, others for the congregation. That applied to the golden altar, one for the ruler; and the one for the common people was applied to the brazen altar. This last without doubt would indicate that the offering of Christ atoned for all the people. (See Leviticus, chapters 1-7.)

Combinations of these sacrifices were given for special occasions, which were shadows of some part of the establishment of Christianity. In these instructions, if the command was to "offer a young bullock and two rams" for a "burnt offering," it must be killed at a certain place in a cer-

Search Your Attic For Fortunes in Old Confederate Envelopes

Among the old letters of many Southern families are hundreds of very rare stamps and envelopes. Many have been found and sold for small fortunes. Single envelopes have been sold for as high as $700.00. Many have brought upwards of $50.00 each. It sounds "fishy," but it's true. They are valuable because they are rare They are rare, not because there are only a few, for there are many of them, but simply because most of them are forgotten. being stored away in old trunks and closets.

The most valuable stamps and envelopes are found among those mailed throughout the South from April to November, 1861. Not all of these are especially rare, but many are of great rarity, and among the latter are those which were issued by postmasters in about fifty towns and villages. In April, 1861, just after the war was declared and before the Confederacy had time to make their regular issues of stamps, many local offices were allowed to make provisional issues. Some of these were guinned stamps, made similar to any stamp, except that they were not perforated but had to be separated with shears instead of torn apart. Others, instead of stamps, were franked envelopes, the "stamps" being printed on the envelopes, stamps. but nearly all of them bearing the name of the town and also that of the postmaster,

These local issues were discontinued in November, 1861, at which time all offices were supplied with the national issue of stamps bearing the portraits of Davis and Jefferson. Later others were issued bearing portraits of Washington, Jackson, and Calhoun. None of these 1861-1865 national issue are rare, although some of them command a fair price. The rare ones are local issues used from April to November, 1861.

Make a thorough search through your attic for these old war letters. Fortunes in rare stamps have been found in old safes which no one ever dreamed contained anything of value. Many an old trunk or chest contains letters that may bring the finder a profitable reward. Send these to Mr. Harold Brooks, Marshall, Mich., and he will immediately write you, stating whether they are of value, and, if so, will offer you full value for them. He is a private collector of rare stamps and envelopes, and will pay more for those he is seeking than a dealer.

The Advertising Manager of the Gospel Advocate has known Mr. Brooks for many years, and you may place fullest confidence in his integrity. He will advise you frankly, offering what he regards the envelopes as worth to him; and in case the envelopes are not satisfactory, they will be returned to the sender.

As so many stamps are similar in appearance, Mr. Brooks cannot quote values from written descriptions, but must see the envelopes. Furthermore, the condition of a stamp or envelope has an important bearing on its value.

If envelopes are sent in a bunch, they should be very carefully wrapped—if possible, between cardboard to protect them from becoming wrinkled or creased. Do not cut the stamps from the envelopes, but send the complete envelopes. Also take care not to tear the stamps or put pins through them Such damage greatly reduces the value of any stamp. If you have reason to believe your envelopes contain any of great value, send them by registered mail.

This notice will not be printed again; so make a thorough search now, before the address is lost or forgotten. We may not be able to place them in their order; but, like the stars and planets, they all have their place and purpose, and the perfection is seen in the harmony of the whole. And when we consider that when the sacrifice which remained until the third day should not be eaten, that it should be burned with fire at once that it might see no corruption, we are impressed that every sacrifice was a shadow of Jesus. the great Sacrifice for the world. (Lev. 7: 17.)

After the giving of the priest code in the regular form. Moses gave another sacrifice that is so distinct that it manifestly represents some feature of the work of Christ not shadowed in the other sacrifices. It was to be killed outside the camp; its blood was not to be applied to the altar, but to be sprinkled before the tabernacle as a whole; its ashes were to be used in the water of purification. (Num. 9: 1-10.) Jesus was killed outside the camp (Heb. 13: 12); yet his blood was for the atonement of the people who had transgressed under the first covenant (Heb. 9: 15), and his power of purification was for future genera-

Another animal was used to shadow the work of Jesus as a living Savior, one who not only died for a sin offering, a peace offering, a trespass offering, a burnt offering, and such like offerings as required the shedding of blood, but he was to bear our sins After all the sacrifices were away. made, the sins of Israel were confessed by the high priest, whose hands were placed upon a scapegoat, and this goat was led away into the wilderness, which was not inhabited. So Jesus bears away the sins of those forgiven. They are not transmitted, but remitted. (See Lev. 16: 20-28.)

Every feature of Jesus' great work was so foreshadowed in the law that the law for the priest is an unquestionable evidence of its divine origin. When Jesus said all things written of him in the law as well as in ti psalms must needs be fulfilled, he urged an evidence which is beyond all possibility of impeachment.

A consistent, prayerful investigation along this line will do much to expel the mist of higher criticism.

Handicapped.

BY S. R. DRAKE.

A Presbyterian minister, in announcing his Sunday services through the local paper, prefaces it with the following: "All men are handicapped in life with certain infirmities of spirit as well as body. A close study and following of Jesus Christ, the perfect Man, helps one to overcome these. Why not overcome the handicap? This church was organized to do this. Let us help you."

How adroitly he writes in order to uphold and advocate the necessity of the Presbyterian Church! But a close study of the teaching of Christ and the apostles in the New Testament will convince any intelligent person who is not biased and handicapped by wrong teaching that it was not at all necessary to have the existence of the Presbyterian Church. If his statement be true concerning the existence of his church, the church of Christ, together with Christ's teaching, is a failure. As long as men are handicapped by sin, the spirit and body will be unable to live a true Christian life. If Christ makes us free, we are free indeed. (John 8: 36.) The nearer one lives to Christ, the more freedom he has in spirit and body. All the two hundred different kinds of churches now in operation make the same claim, and they all differ more or less in church government and polity, and they differ also in doctrine; most of them teach "for doctrines the commandments of men." Jesus said of such that their worship is "vain." (Mark 7: 7.) Jesus said to those who believed on him: "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8: 31, 32.) Jesus is "the way, the truth, and the life." He is the very embodiment of truth and life.

How is the truth going to make us free? Listen: "Know ye not that to whom ye yield yourselves servants to obey, his servants ye are to whom ye obey; whether of sin unto death, or of obedience unto righteousness? But God be thanked, that ye were the servants of sin, but ye have obeyed from the heart that form of doctrine which was delivered you. Being then made free from sin, ye became the servants of righteousness." (Rom. 6: 16-18.) Right living requires obedience to Christ.

We cannot substitute, change, or ignore his teaching without incurring his displeasure and imperiling our own happiness and the happiness and eternal salvation of others. What is it, and why is it, that such a tide of evil is sweeping across the world today? Is it not because of the disrespect and the loose and false teaching of the religious people of our day, who seek to gain a following and adherents at the sacrifice of truth-the teaching of the Master and the New Testament? Does not the Holy Spirit, through the apostles, speak of perilous times in the last days? Men shall turn away from the truth, and shall be turned unto fables. For men will be lovers of self. lovers of money, treacherous and selfimportant, lovers of pleasure instead of lovers of God. They will keep up a make-believe piety, and yet live in defiance of God's law. (See 2 Tim. 2: 1-14: 4: 1-8.) Shall not the warning be sounded against false teachers, and all those who have a show of piety, but are influencing the world to disrespect the teaching of the Master?

The following clipping will give some idea of the trend of the times, as prominent men view it:

That there has been a greater re-trogression morally and religiously among the peoples of the world during the last ten years than during any other decade since the reformation period will be one of the chief points to be made by Dr. Albert Joseph Mc-Cartney when he gives his tenth anniversary sermon to-morrow at the Kenwood Evangelical Church, Forty-fourth Street and Greenwood Avenue. In outlining his sermon, Dr. McCartney said to-day: "There have been great changes in our politics, social relations, morality, and religion in the past decade. Especially have morality and religion retrograded. One indication of this is that men are no longer ashamed to play Sunday golf, allowing their wives, who bear the burdens of the home throughout the week, to look after the religion of their children entirely, while they disport them-selves on the links. Everywhere there is a growing disrespect for everything which stands for discipline. While I do not approve exactly of the proposed blue laws. I believe they are a step in the right direction."

We should take warning that the trend of our times is demoralizing to the youth of our land and that there is a growing tendency on the part of many ministers and churches to disregard the plain ethics and teaching of the Christ and the apostles.

I noticed this headline in a late issue of a widely circulated Des Moines daily: "Reforming Politics Is a Thankless Job." It is not only a thankless job, but it has become a dangerous job to many men who are trying it. If the lawless element cannot oust the reformer at the polls or by public opinion, some one will kill him, if a good opportunity is afforded. This is not only true of political reformers, but also of religious reformers. A great effort is being made to destroy the influence of the man who stands for the teaching of the Bible and reform measures in all lines, morally and religiously. There is still a cross to be borne by the man who seeks to save.

Notes From West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

The dear Lord has given us the Bible-a "lamp unto my [our] feet, and light unto my [our] path"-the book that points out all danger and directs us in the right way. So, if we do not go in the right way, it is because we are ignorant of the teaching of the Bible, or, knowing it, refuse to walk therein. The Bible is read, but not heeded, by many who claim to be governed by it.

At the present time it seems that the church is not doing the work God intended it should Members of the church are the only representatives God has on earth to-day-his only spokesmen. The dwelling place of God, Christ, and the Holy Spirit is in the hearts of Christian men and women, and they are the spokesmen. " If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is that darkness! (Matt. 6: 23.)

The evil influences that have crept into the church are doing a deadly work. Men who claim to be walking in the light will lend money at an illegal rate of interest, sell goods on the Lord's day, play cards, dance, swear, drink whisky (when they can get it)-in fact, do just any old thing they please to do; and if the preacher calls attention to their ungodly lives and tries to get them to do better, they get mad and say: "I won't hear him any more!" I find this class to be very touchy, ready to lay off the preacher and call another, if he should mention the sins of which they are guilty

Again, there are domestic troubles such as were not common when I was vounger. Old men become tired or ashamed of their wives-want to get rid of them and marry some young girl. Fornication is a very common sin in these days with both men and women. With many, the marriage vow is no longer sacred. Our civil law is at variance with God's law in the matter of divorcement. Still the diverce law was enacted by lawmakers who claimed to be followers of the Christ. Growing out of the divorce evil, the country is being filled with iliegitimate children. Judges of courts who claim to be Christians will put "asunder what God hath joined together." Some preachers will even join together in marriage parties who are divorced, but not for a scriptural cause. These conditions existing makes it hard on the "faithful few" who are trying to carry on the Lord's work as he has directed. From sad, sad experience, I can say it makes it hard on the preacher. That I make many mistakes, I freely confess; but God knows my heart. I want to do right, preach right, please God in all things; and just as sure as I do, and preach the things that please God, it displeases many members of the church. There Is one thing of which I am fully persuaded; and that is, if I please God, I please but few men and women. I am doing what I can in my field of labor to get the congregations into a higher plane, to "walk worthily of the calling wherewith they were called;" but much of the work seems to be in vain. Pray for us, that we may be faithful to the end.

Last week I preached at night at Rehoboth, and hope I did them some good. I preach every Lord's day, and then at night during the week when wanted.

While many are "walking with him no more," there are a few true and faithful ones, and this is encouraging. "Let us not grow weary in welldoing;" but let us labor on, pray on, and give on, and God will take care of the results

Pacific Christian Academy.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

Since last report the Pacific Christian Academy, of Santa Rosa, has been moved to Fresno, Cal. We are now located on our new lot of ten acres within the city limits of Fresno. The move was, of course, a very expensive one; but we think it was justified. We are now better situated for doing good than ever before. We are bending all our energies to get the land all planted to something before it is too late to plant for this year. We have not set up our printing machinery yet. but will begin in a few days. Our paper, the Pacific Christian, is now missing a few issues, but we hope that it will soon make its appearance again.

Our school was begun under a tent on April 11, to continue till grades are finished for this year. We have just thirteen pupils to begin with on our new place. We have not room enough to accommodate these at present; but the weather is mild, and we are all outside most of the time. As soon as lessons are over we begin work on the outside-hoeing, plowing, harrowing, planting seeds, setting out plants, etc.

We have about decided to change our name to "Pacific Christian Home and School," as that will better describe our work. We are giving about as much attention to providing a home for homeless children and old people as we are to the school. As soon as I finish this writing I am to go after six children who are being turned over to us by the courts for a while. We hope te do them good, and, if possible, touch their lives with the gospel fire.

"Why I Go to Church on Rainy Sundays."

The following was copied from ' How to Fill the Pews," with the exception of a few small changes:

- 1. I expect the minister to be there, and would think he had weak faith if he went only under favorable conditions.
- 2. My presence is more needed on iny Sundays, because there are rainv fewer there then.
- 3. If I stay away, others have the same right; and if they do as I do, there will be no services.
- 4. I go through rain or shine, cold or heat, to business or pleasure. Is the Lord's service of less importance than these?
- 5. I do not want a man who has a false religion to be more zealous for it than I am for the Lord's way. He serves regularly.
- 6. Though my excuse for staying away from services may satisfy my-self, still it must undergo God's scrutiny. It must be well grounded to stand that.
- 7. A special blessing is for those who meet in Jesus' name. 1 do not want folks to think that there is a greater blessing at home, in the park, In an auto ride, or at a picnic celebration, than at the service of the Lord and assembly of the saints.
- 8. My faith is to be shown by my devotion to God's cause, and not by the rise and fall of the thermometer or other weather changes.
- 9. It is embarrassing to see a visitor who is looking for the true way look around and miss those he knows should be there. He is impressed that they do not believe in the Christ, who said, "Follow me."
- 10. I do not know how many Lord's days I may be here, or just when my last one shall be. Then, if I slight the last one I enjoy on earth, it will be poor preparation for the first one in heaven.
- 11. I go to church each Lord's day because God cannot say "Well done" to me when I have not done well or tried to do well; for the Spirit says: It is impossible for God to lie."

What is your excuse for neglecting the assembly of the saints?

Edifying as the Need May Be

Our Dependence Upon God.

In order to emphasize an important point, I once asked a class of boys what they would do if they were suddenly transported to some foreign shore, set down in the midst of a lot of heathen people, and given the opportunity of speaking to them through an interpreter. One bright boy spoke up quickly and said he "would say good-by and run." But another boy, more thoughtful than the rest, said he "would like to explain the gospel to them, but would not know how to make a start." More than likely the same situation, real or imaginary, would puzzle most grown-up Christians. However earnestly they might desire to proclaim the unsearchable riches of Christ, they would not know how to make the start. The best way to begin under such circumstances would be to begin like Paul and Barnabas.

Learning in Iconium that Jews and Gentiles and Roman rulers had combined against them and were plotting to stone them to death, they had fled to Lystra. This was one of the cities of Lycaonia, which means "wolf land." Lycaon was a fabled character who was transformed into a wolf. The name of this country, we are told, was very befitting both the land and its people. They were a wild people, strangely crude and untaught, yet full of superstitious ideas. Ovid describes this country in mournful verse:

Where men once dwelt a marshy lake is seen, And coots and bitterns haunt the waters green.

This is the first time, too, that the gospel came into direct and immediate conflict with heathenism. And since no mention is made of a synagogue in Lystra, it is supposed that the preaching was done out of doors. Shortly after their arrival at Lystra a wonderful miracle was performed. "A certain man, impotent in his feet, a cripple from his mother's womb," was made to stand and walk. When the miracle had been wrought, the people were greatly stirred "They lifted up their voice, saying," in their native tongue, "The gods are come down to us in the likeness of men. And they called Barnabas, Jupiter; and Paul, Mercury, because he was the chief speaker." These heathen people believed in the incarnation of their deities. In Cowper's translation of Homer's "Odyssey" we read the lines:

The gods

Put on the form of strangers from afar, And walk over towns in many different shapes. To mark the good and evil deeds of men.

Ovid in "Metamorphoses" beautifully relates how Jupiter and Mercury visited this very Lycaonia. The inhospitable people thought them to be poor vagrants, refused to entertain them, ridiculed and maltreated them. At last they came to the hut of the poor peasants, Baucis and Philemon, who received them cordially and entertained them with the best they had. In return, the gods transformed their but into a glorious temple over which they were set as the chief ministers of worship, while the unfriendly neighbors were punished by a terrible flood which overwhelmed them, From such legends of paganism we can at least get one very helpful thought: What those heathen people thought their gods were doing, our Savior did. John said of him: "And the Word became flesh, and dwelt among us (and we beheld his glory, glory as of the only begotten from the Father), full of grace and truth." The spiritual parallel is more important still. Jupiter and Mercury are purely mythological characters, and the belief that they wandered up and down the Phrygian country was no more than a myth, but it is God's everlasting truth that his Son walketh in the midst of the churches "to mark the good and evil deeds of men." Having been duly warned of this august and scrutinizing Presence in our midst, should we not always be careful not to offend Him, but to do those things that are well pleasing in his sight? Dean Trench truly said: "The legends of paganism are unconscious prophecies-witnesses of the deep, unsatisfied longing to which the incarnation of Christ is the answer."

But how did Paul and Barnabas begin to unfold the gospel to these misguided folks? They first disillusionized the people concerning themselves, refusing to be worshiped and saying plainly, "We also are men of like passions with you," meaning, "We, too, are of human nature." A preacher who considers himself far above his audience will do them very little good. A "holier-than-thou" expression never attracts anybody, but it drives a great many away. Having dispelled the thought of their divinity, the two preachers begin to talk about the One who made heaven, and earth, and the sea, and all things that are therein; and then they speak of the rain, of fruitful seasons, of bread and meat. If they had been speaking to Jews, they would have had plenty of texts in the Old Testament; if they had been facing an Athenian audience, they might have opened the discourse with swift appeals to history and art, or, as Paul managed it later, they might have argued from man, the crown of creation, to God, man's Creator and Father. But to the Lycaonian peasants, totally unacquainted with the Old Testament Scriptures and knowing little or nothing of art or history, they talk in simpler phrase about the goodness of God, who "gave you from heaven rains and fruitful seasons, filling your hearts with food and gladness." The apostle Paul in his matchless letter to the Romans makes the point that even though the Gentiles had not received such a revelation from God in times past as that vouchsafed to the Jews, yet they were without excuse. "For the invisible things of him since the creation of the world are clearly seen, being perceived through the things that are made, even his everlasting power and divinity." And speaking in the lesson before us to the Lycaonians, a type of the most heathenish Gentiles then known to the world, he says: "And yet he [God] left not himself without witness."

His Witness Is Everywhere.

There are too few people, comparatively, who appreciate the beauty and strength of those evidences found in what men are pleased to term "natural theology." Strike out the Bible, destroy every line that has been written about God from time immemorial, and still he walks unchallenged upon the face of the earth and forces his way into the hearts of men. His witness is everywhere. Rays of light are refracted through drops of water, and the rainbow hangs in the sky. It is God's witness; he put it there. The trees of the orchard hang full of ripened fruit tinted with color combinations no hand can reproduce. It is God's witness. The fields of grain bow in golden waves fanned, by the summer breeze. It is God's witness. The storm king summons his forces and rushes with a fury and menace that strike fear to the heart of the unthinking. It is God's witness. For did not David say: "The voice of the Lord is upon the waters: the glory of God thundereth: the Lord is upon many waters?" (Ps. 29: 3.) Not only things upon the earth, but things above the earth and beneath the earth. "The heavens declare the glory of God; and the firmament showeth his bandiwork." Every thoughtful man who looks up to the starry sky is constrained to say: "It must have had a Maker." A party going through Manimoth Cave included a blatant infidel. Some of the lesser formations were the subject of his jest and ridicule; but when they came at last to the stately Mammoth Dome, some one pointed to its massive towering pillars and said to the unbeliever: "Can you tell me, please, who made these?" His silence was painful. Thus we see that things on the earth, above the earth, and beneath the earth, bear witness of God. And man himself is the most potent wit ness of all. "Nature could no more have made me than Fashion could have made the coat I wear."

An artist was watching his pupil's effort. He noticed that the young man was lingering on his sketching of a barn in the foreground while the sun was hastening to its setting. He said to him: "Young man, if you lose more time painting the shingles on that barn, you will not catch the sunset at all." This is just what many people do. They give all their time to fences and barn roofs and sheds, and meanwhile they miss the glorious sunsets.

O, How We Need Each Other!

One lesson that we are slow to learn is our dependence upon each other. Seneca said: "There is none made so great but he may both need the help and service and stand in fear of the power and unkindness even of the meanest of mortals." The European War has brought that needed lesson home to our hearts through the medium of our pocketbooks. There are certain commodities we used so long and so advantageously that we had forgotten their source of supply. But we have long since found out where they came from. We need Germany and France and Britain, and they need us, just as King Solomon needed King Hiram and King Hiram needed King Solomon. History shows how badly one nation needs another and how one people is enriched by the contributions of others. The pear, the peach, and the apricot came originally from Asia; the jessamine, from India; the lily and the tulip, from the Levant; the tuberose, from Java; the carnation and pink, from Italy; the dahlia, from the table-land of Mexico; the heliotrope, from Peru; the fuchsia, from Chili; shrubs, from Japan; blooms, from Siberia; flowers, from the Cape of Good Hope, from the forests of Brazil, and from the 'scrub" of Australia. And this is only a parable of more substantial gifts that other nations have contributed in a thousand ways to make us what we are. The Italians and French taught us silk weaving. The Venetians showed us how to make glass. A German erected our first paper mill. A Dutchman began our potteries. The Genoese taught us how to build ships. 0 0 0

O, How We Need God!

When we say that we need each other's commodities, it is just another way of saying that we need God; for everything can be traced back to Him "who made the heaven and the earth and the sea, and all that in them is." Back of the flour is the mill; back of the mill is the corn; back of the corn is the sower; back of the sower is the seed; and back of the seed is God. The lesson for the Lycaonians is a lesson for us all:

"God comes down in the rain, And the stalks grow tall: This is the simple faith, And the best of all."

Dr. McConnell, who has made a minute study of economic problems, writes: "Taking the world altogether, it never has more than about three months' provision of grain in its garner. The failure of a single harvest all over the world would depopulate the earth. It has never enough laid up at any one time to keep it from starving during the ensuing four months. O, how much we need each other! O, how much we need God! abla

"I Never Knew His Name."

In conclusion, listen to this simple story: Helen Keller, blind, deaf, and dumb, by wonderfully patient teaching, is taught to communicate with others. The imprisoned soul has come into possession of many new and precious thoughts, but no suggestion of God has ever been made to it. Phillips Brooks is sent from Boston to her Alabama home to reveal to her the Father. Through her teacher as interpreter, he tells her of the glory of the heavens, the color and perfume of the flowers, the melody of the birds, the splendor of mountain, sky, and sea, and then with a prayer for God's help, he says gently: "Helen, the great and gracious Being who made all this is called 'God." Instantly a heavenly radiance glowed upon the child's face as she quickly spelled with her fingers her answer: "O, I have known him all the time, but I never knew his name."

Nature's Revelations Incomplete.

Nature's revelation of God is wonderful, but it is imperfect in that it does not reveal Jesus Christ as our Savior. Away with that species of sophistry and hypocrisy that talks about worshiping God in nature and paying no attention to the commands of the Bible! If nature's book had been enough, we would have had no need of the Bible. You can look upon created things and wonder, and admire, and sing praises, and be happy; but to be happiest of all, you must open the other Book and learn of the Lamb, without spot and without blemish, who taketh away the sins of the world. And when you have found your Savior and obeyed him, you will be ready to say:

Thy precious name, Lord Jesus Christ, is better far to me, Than all the wealth that can be found in earth, or air, or sea,

E. N. George.

BY W. A. SCHULTZ.

Another great hero has fallen on the battle field in the shadow of the cross and has been garnered home to glory. We mourn his going, but he was a ripe sheaf for the harvest. He went down to the grave full of years and rich in good works.

He was born and bred in the mountains of Tennessee, and he seemed to have inherited the severe and simple tastes and habits of that region. He was reared under sectarian influences; but when a young man he heard the simple story of the cross proclaimed by that prince of gospel preachers, Jesse L. Sewell, and lent a listening ear to the voice of God. Having ears to hear, he did hear the commandments of the Lord; and, like the Corinthians of old, hearing he believed, and believing he repented and was baptized. Soon thereafter, fired with a holy zeal to bring others to the Savior whom he had found, he began preaching. This work he continued with whole-hearted earnestness, inflexible faithfulness, sleepless energy, and tireless patience for more than forty years.

Soon after he began to preach he settled in Izard County, Ark., among a primitive, backwoods people. But he was one of us, one with us. Since that time his life has run like a thread of gold through the religious history of North Arkansas. The influence of his genius, character, conduct, and wonderful preaching is a potent and far-reaching influence in the land. "Though dead he yet speaketh." was a pillar of cloud by day and of fire by night. He was a prophet that taught and warned, a poet that stirred the noblest impulses, and a preacher that turned people "from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God," by preaching "the unsearchable riches of Christ," He was "a voice crying in the wilderness," calling upon people to repent or perish. Thousands heeded the call, confessed their faith in the Lord, and were baptized by him. While his life was spent in a small territory, no man that I have known or read of among us has done a greater work.

He had a marvelous influence over people, especially the young. Of those he taught and baptized, more than a score made preachers of the gospel. Some of them have turned thousands to righteousness. Among them might be mentioned W. W. Young, S. C. Garner, W. G. Cypert, Z. J. Cypert, J. Will Henley, J. H. Lawson, W. M. Thompson, W. A. Schultz, William Deatherage, Joe Deatherage, and his own son, W. H. George, and many others. What a wave of influence he set in motion! To hear him preach was an immediate personal call to go preach the word yourself. He was a light in the darkness, and how many fires he kindled!

During the long, useful years of his life he was almost an invalid. He would often get out of a sick bed too weak to stand, sit on a chair, and preach a wonderful, soul-stirring sermon that would melt all eyes to tears, bring sinners to repentance, and stir the brethren to holier zeal and greater consecration to the Lord. It was like hearing a warning from the grave. Who could resist it?

I have heard many of the greatest preachers among us, but in many respects he was the greatest preacher I ever heard. He had the Bible at his tongue's end. He had a simplicity of style and a directness of address that went to the hearts of his hearers. He chose to "strive not about words to no profit," shunned "profane and vain babblings," and avoided "foolish and unlearned questions." He fully obeyed the command: "Preach the word; be instant in season, out of season; reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine." He declared the eternal truths of the gospel with an intense earnestness, as though his hearers would never have another opportunity of learning the way of life, and that he himself would be damned if he did not make the way so plain that his hearers could not misunderstand it. He would pour the words of salvation like clouds filled with water. His message was too important to be smothered with gaudy verbiage and diluted with empty talk. He was faithful to God, and faithful to those that heard him. He was as true to the truths of the gospel as "the needle to the pole."

His preaching was not all done in the pulpit. I have heard him preach some of his greatest sermons at the fire-side, to the family with which we were stopping for the night. I have known him to urge the necessity of immediate obedience so earnestly that persons would confess the Lord and be baptized "the same bour of the night." He was the most incessant preacher I ever knew, He had wonderful powers of conversation, and a sweet, melodious, well-modulated voice, and a profound earnestness of manner that would take no denial and that consumed opposition in the very intensity of his convictions. He was always courteous and kind and self-possessed, and his moral life was entirely above reproach.

Of the faults and failings of his character, whatever they may have been, I shall not speak. He was so great a man that I forget that he had a fault. I would write, if I could, his virtues "on brass for man's example," but I would scribble his faults on water. God teaches us by "examples;" and the noble, self-sacrificing life of our dear brother sweetened and brightened and blessed all who came in touch with him by raising them upon a higher plane of thinking and living and being.

Of course he had weaknesses and frailties in common with all of us; but the love and sympathy and forbearance he had for us poor, weak, struggling young preachers, shown by the material aid he gave us, and his wise counsels, gentle and sometimes caustic rebukes, found a response in our hearts and endeared him to us in a rare and sacred way. He could scourge as with a "whip of scorpions" wrongdoers, both in the church and out, and then again he could in the meekest and most patient way instruct the erring. He would not tolerate the pollution of the temple of God with idols. For him the church held the ark of the covenant. To him it was the gate of heaven, Many a self-appointed regulator who was endeavoring to set something to rights was squelched by him. Largely on account of his influence, the churches in that section have been afflicted but little with senseless wrangles over hairsplitting questions that gender strife and division among brethren.

He leaves to us the rich legacy of a pure, spotless, godly, devoted, Christian life, beautifully and faithfully lived. What a legacy is the memory of such a life! While earth is sadder, lonelier, and drearier to us by his departure, heaven is brought the nearer and made the dearer to us. While he leaves a vacant place on earth, he fills a vacancy in heaven, the mansion of bliss that was prepared for him. He has entered into the joys of the Lord, and has received a crown of splendor and beauty by the side of which the richest diadems of earth pale and fade into utter insignificance and eternal nothingness; a crown as glorious as the light of immortality, yielding the fullness of joy as God is full of love, and as enduring as the compass of His years who inhabits eternity and lives forever and forever. Then into our sadness and sorrow there beams the fullorbed gleam of happy hope that we shall again blend our voices with his in praise of Him who shall wipe "away all tears from our eyes."

No Night in the Holy City.

BY R. P. CUFF.

"For there shall be no night there." (Rev. 21: 25.) These words are spoken of that "holy city" "having the glory of God" and needing no lamplight, starlight, moonlight, nor sunlight, for the Lamb is its light. The Lord God gives it light forever and ever. If the expression, "no night there," refers primarily to the physical resplendence of that city, we know that the idea of the words is equally applicable to its spiritual effulgence and glory. The Bible uses the word "light" to represent joyous life, happiness, truth, goodness, and God. Set in contrast with this is "darkness," which is made to impersonate chaos, sin, superstition, idolatry, gloom, death, and hell itself. All those who serve God truly here will take up their abode hereafter in that city, lighted by the glory of God into an everlasting day of celestial radiance. The devil's servants will find their ultimate place in hell, darkened by the presence of the great adversary into continuous gloom, desolation, and despair.

Let us make an application somewhat at length of the Scripture, "for there shall be no night there," to the spiritual aspect of the future soul-home for righteous people.

- 1. The mistakeless world. In that city the darkness of error will have passed away. Full and complete vision will be given to man. Ignorance of spiritual beauties and sublimities will be at an end. Light will no longer be absent from any nook or cranny. Darkness will no longer exist. There will be no danger of wandering from firm footing and losing our way at the peril of life from lack of light. In the present world we must reckon with the deceiving and perverting influences of error. From error there are no exceptions. Any one is liable to fall. Error works sin and evil in the lives of many Christians. In that city no seeds of wrongs and of mistakes will be left lurking in the soul. Perfect light will permeate the "Beulah Land."
- 2. The eradication of sin, the enthronement of purity. Not only is night typical of error, but of all sin. In this world which we now know, oftentimes the darkness of sin is upon the soul. That darkness serves as a kind of prelude to that "outer darkness" into which the wicked souls must at last withdraw. Here in our world even the child of God feels something of the effects of sin. It may be that he will enter into some sinful act and later shed penttential tears. He may gain somewhat of a mastery over sin, but he does not succeed in eradicating it. He may be striving to be perfect, but, alas, how far he fails! No sin will enter that city, however. It will be eradicated there. Purity will be enthroned. The heart will be pure. The reflection of purity may be seen anywhere within the confines of the holy city.
- 3. Weakness and weariness unknown. The body of man is imperfect and weak. He has not the power to continue working long until he is tired and exhausted. The natural night which God has provided affords the tired man an opportunity to recuperate, to renew his strength and arise in the morning refreshed and vigorous. But no night will be needed in that city. There will be no fainting, no paling, no wearying, but tireless activity will characterize that unending day.
- 4. Complete, everlasting safety in the holy city. The night of peril will be passed. When the darkness draws on, the wicked of the present world, the thieves, the robbers, the murderers, the danger-bringers of every class, put in good time at their dastardly deeds. The night is especially a time of danger. Every time the sun sinks to terminate the light of day, property, life, innocence, and virtue are imperiled. Job said: "The eye also of the adulterer waiteth for the twilight." But God be praised that in heaven danger will be markedly absent. The fears which are now felt instinctively with the approach of night will be extinguished. There will be no one to molest or make afraid. There will be no night of danger there.

- 5. "All sorrow will be ended." Sometimes we would fain cry out plaintively with the poet and say of our earthly career:
- "It is a weary way, and I am faint;
 - I pant for purer air and fresher springs;
 - O Father! take me home; there is a taint, A shadow on earth's purest, brightest things.
 - This world is but a wilderness to me;

There is no rest, my God, no peace apart from thee."

In that city "he shall wipe away every tear from their eyes." Neither shall there be mourning nor crying " "anymore." Brightness and joy—not sorrow—will fill the soul perpetually.

6. "No dying there." Night is a profound mystery to man. So is death. Our Savior spoke of death as a sleep. Indeed, so far as we can know, there seems to be a rather close kinship between the sleep of the night and the sleep of death.

A pleasing thought to us is that in that city there will be no funerals, no graves, no mourning habiliments. Christ Jesus has robbed the grave of its victory. There will be neither tears, sickness, nor dying there. "For there shall be no night there." Instead there will be an everlasting day of deliverance, triumph, blessedness, and life.

Salvation by Faith. No. 3.

BY W. L. REEVES.

Salvation, sanctification, justification, redemption, and such like states of being which are designated in the Scriptures, and all meaning the same in general, are attributed to several different things, but not conditioned upon any one thing alone. As to the divine side, it is said that God saves us, Christ saves us, his blood saves us, and that we are saved by his life, saved by grace. Every true teacher will teach that every one of the above must be accepted by man as necessary to his salvation. If this is not true, can any one tell why? On the other hand-that is, on the human side of salvation—there are several things for a human being to do in order to be saved, and no man can show that he can be saved in obedience to any one of them alone. Remember that man's feelings will not be accepted in this investigation as proof that he is saved. Feelings are man's testimony, and John says: "If we receive the witness of men, the witness of God is greater: for this [this which John is writing] is the witness of God which he [God] hath testified of his Son." (1 John 5: 9.) So we resort to the Scriptures to prove what we teach, remembering that man's feelings are always the result of the witness, and not the witness at all, as to salvation.

The Scriptures say that faith saves us, that repentance is unto life, and that confession is unto salvation; and Peter said: "Baptism doth also now save us." (1 Pet. 3: 21.) Every one of these is required, else salvation would not be predicated upon each of them. To willfully reject one of them is to reject all of them, for they are all in the divine plan. They are all certainly embraced in that system of faith by which we must be saved.

In the first list above, if man rejects God, he cannot be saved; if he rejects the grace of God, he cannot be saved; etc. So it is in the second list. If he will not confess Christ, he cannot be saved; if he will not repent, he shall perish; if he rejects baptism, he rejects the counsel of God against himself, not being baptized. (Luke 7: 30.) Now, who wants to accept all of the first list above and reject one item in the second? The truth of the matter is, man is taking from God's word when he takes baptism out of the plan of salvation. There is no use for a man to say that the New Testament leaves out baptism in many passages, and yet in the same passages promises salvation upon faith, and mentions nothing but faith, and to quote a number such as this: "He that believeth on me hath everlasting life." (John 6: 47.) If this passage sets forth the complete plan of salvation, then it proves that man is saved without repentance and without love, for neither is mentioned in it. But just such as claim these passages to prove salvation by faith alone contend, when pressed, that love, prayer, confession, and repentance are all included in the faith here meant. By this admission, why do they not reach a little further and include baptism? It is taught as a commandment in the plan of salvation in the following scriptures and many other passages of scripture. To the unsaved world Christ sent the gospel and said: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 15, 16.) "There is none other name given under heaven among men, whereby we must be saved." (Acts 4: 10-12.) Christ said: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost." (Matt. 28: 19.) Under this commission Peter commanded the people to "repent, and be baptized . . . for the remission of sins." (Acts 2: 38.) A man sent of God said to Paul: "Arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on the name of the Lord." (Acts 22: 16.) Christ sanctifies and cleanses the material placed in the church with the washing of water by the word: "Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it; that he might sanctify and cleanse it with the washing of water by the word." (Eph. 5: 25, 26.) In speaking of those saved by water in the ark, Peter said; "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us." (1 Pet, 3: 21.) These passages seem sufficient to prove to any mind that the Holy Spirit attaches quite a bit of importance to baptism. Salvation is promised in one passage above on conditions, and baptism is one of them. I do not see how it is possible for any one to deny this fact. There is no dispute about faith and repentance being necessary to salvation from alien sins. But in dealing with anything so important as the salvation of the soul from eternal punishment, there should be left no room for any doubt whatever as to whether we are on the absolutely safe side; so close attention is directed to what follows. We meet a man who has heard the gospel, believed it, and has repented of his sins; he has also made a public declaration that he does believe; but he has never been baptized, although he knows the Bible says, "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved," and that Peter commanded the people to both "repent, and be baptized . . . for the remission of sins." He also knows that Paul says that "as many of you as have been baptized into Christ have put on Christ." (Gal. 3: 27.) Yet he claims that he heard several smart men preach that when a man is once saved, there is no possible way for him to be lost; and these same smart men taught that man is saved at faith, So he says: "I am aware that it is not necessary for me to do any more than just enough to be eternally saved; so I will not be baptized. Besides, these same smart men teach that baptism is a nonessential, or not necessary to salvation; and I can see no use in doing the nonessentials." Here is another case: This man has heard, believed, repented, confessed Christ (not his feelings), and has been baptized just as the Bible teaches one to do, and for the same purpose for which the above passages tell him to be baptized. Ask any of these smart men if this last man has the remission of his sins, and they will say that he has. No dispute here. The doubt always lies in the case which refuses to be baptized, and all the dispute is over his case, and never over the one which has gone on and done everything upon which salvation is predicated in the Scriptures. All know that this is the only safe way.

Self-indulgence deprives a man of everything that might make him great.—Fenelon.

The Woman.

Back from the world, storm-tossed and wrecked.

She crept her wounds to hide where few might see,
Seeking that peace she careless threw aside,
Who fled from Nazareth of Galilee.

Distaff in hand and spindle briskly twirled, Beneath the ancient olive Mary sat, And from the golden flax spun finest thread, And while she spun she sang "Magnificat."

The Child with shining hair played at her feet.

He made a little mound of pebbles bright,

And on it laid a spray of piercing thorns,

And then with ruddy flowers hid it quite.

And she who had returned to Nazareth
Passed veiled upon her way, with lagging feet;
But Mary called and bid her come and rest,
And took her hand and led her to the seat,

Where she unbound the heavy, shrouding veil,
And brought the stranger wine to drink and food,
And gently asked of her necessities,
As one who'd succor, yet would not intrude.

The little One arose and left his play,
And looked upon the piteous, sin-stained face,
And raised his little arms and leaned to her
That she might take him up in her embrace.

He laid his hand upon her troubled heart,
His beauteous head upon her weary breast;
The past receded like an evil dream,
And all her ills were soothed to peace and rest.

But ere the wondrous Child turned to his play
She kissed the tiny hand that set her free;
The Hand that later many multitudes should heal,
And on the cross at last should nailed be.

Near East Relief Clothing Campaign.

Last year America sent seven hundred and fifty tons of clothing to the Near East, but this supply is exhausted and the clothing worn out. A tremendous need for clothing now exists, as is shown by such recent cablegrams as the following:

Erivan: "Urgent need for food and clothing." Constantinople: "Refugees arriving from Caucasus, escaping persecution, naked, destitute." Beirut: "Aintab still ravaged by battle, cold, and lack of supplies. Aleppo refugee problem growing worse. Cargo old clothing welcome for refugees. New tragedies along Turkish frontier. Probable American relief only hope for thousands."

During a three-inch snowfall in Kars on October 30, 1920, fifty thousand Armenian men were stripped of everything by the invading army, to be driven into the plain unclad. Edward Fox, district manager of Near East Relief, had no clothing to give the men. He did have in his warehouse twenty thousand empty flour sacks. These he distributed as far as they would go, and the men were driven off to the wintry plain with only these for covering. Americans have but to think of those heroes whose marching feet left blood stains in the snow at Valley Forge to realize the even more heroic endurance of the patient hosts of little children, girls, mothers, and grown men in the Caucasus who are now so much more destitute, and will next winter be so much more in need of protection from the snow and biting cold.

The clothing cast aside by our people here in America would provide comfortable covering for every unclad one in the Near East, and would be an untold blessing to thousands who have been stripped of all their possessions.

It is such a little thing to dig those cast-off garments out of the clothes box and send them down to the Bundle Station; but to at least one, and perhaps to several human beings in that far-off land, it may mean the difference between life, hope, strength, and almost certain death.

On June 1 Near East Relief Bundle Stations will be opened, for one day only, in all the larger cities. Please leave your bundle at the station, or send by parcel post to Near East Relief Warehouse, 549 West Thirty-ninth Street, New York City, N. Y.

Sound Advice and a Stubborn Fact.

Brother D. Lipscomb said: "The old hypocritical sinner who stands off and carps at everybody in the church as wicked means to say he is very righteous and very perfect. He is usually a self-deceived hypocrite. The same spirit in the church belongs to the self-righteous. It is not healthy to be overmuch righteous nor to demand it of others. Acknowledge your own and your fellow men's humanity, your liability to err; get clear of the foolish idea that men with faults and human weaknesses are unfitted for the service of God. He adapted his service to and for weak men liable to err. Be willing to confess your faults when you do err. I have noticed it in men: I have noticed it in papers. When one starts out to be over-sweet-tempered, to keep out all humanity, he or it becomes one-sided, unfair, and the bitterest and most intolerant of men and papers. They do not show goodness in an honest, open, human, brave way. A paper that starts out to have no controversies, to be overly peaceable, is as sure to be filled with unjust insinuations and innuendoes as that to-morrow's sun will rise."

The foregoing is so true that I hardly know how to go about making comments, but submit the following:

1. A consciousness of our own weakness and imperfections is absolutely essential to our being what God would have us be. In the sisters' Bible class, recently, the question was raised: "How are we to learn to have pity and compassion for those whom sin has made hateful?" And certain it is that sin does this in many people. Tit, 3: 1-3 was suggested as a reading on this point, and here is what it says: "Put them in mind . . . to speak evil of no man, not to be contentious, to be gentle, showing all meekness toward all men. For we also once were foolish, disobedient, deceived, serving divers lusts and pleasures, living in malice and envy, hateful, hating one another." We need to ever be conscious of the fact that none of us is perfect, and that if we will look back over our lives we will, if we will look the record squarely in the face, find much that is just as bad as we see in others. While we must never condone and encourage sin, yet we must let that mercy, that consciousness that we are human which enables us to have pity, be ever with us.

2. And who has not observed just what our venerable Brother Lipscomb observed in papers and men that start out to "be over-sweet-tempered," "to be overly peaceable," "to have no controversies"—viz., that they are the very papers and men that indulge most in "unjust insinuations and innuendoes" and turn out to be the stubbornest of men—men almost, if not wholly, incapable of seeing their own mistakes and correcting them, their own wrongs and righting them? Let us, then, "show goodness in an honest, open, human, brave way," and eliminate everything that tends to hypocrisy from our course in life.

Are You Letting Your Light Shine?

Christ says the light is put on the candle stand that it may shine unto all in the house. "Even so," says he, "let your light shine before men; that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father who is in heaven." (Matt. 5: 15, 16.) On this I submit the following:

1. Why some lights do not shine. I have an idea that, in some cases, it is because they have no light to shine. Jesus, in Matt. 6: 23, says: "If therefore the light that is in thee be darkness, how great is the darkness!" And in the very same verse he says: "But if thine eye be evil, thy whole body is full of darkness." If you will study carefully the whole chapter, you will observe that our eye is evil so long as we are not making Christ's "kingdom and his righteousness" the chief aim of our lives. And this is the case with many who claim to be Christians. So very many other things come first with them; hence their lives are a pretense. Such are not lights to shine, for they are filled with darkness.

2. The real Christian ever shines. Pleasing God comes first with him. His very meat and drink is do God's will and help mankind. Just now I have in my mind one of the most unpretentious members in this city. He is a poor man who makes his living pushing his lawn mower, etc., from yard to yard, and making a reasonable charge for his services. It is a known fact, too, that he gives a tenth of his income to the cause of Christ. Some months ago I was asked to visit a woman who is an invalid. She has to be helped from her bed daily to her rolling chair, and, after growing tired of sitting up, helped back to bed. She needed some man to do this, as the nurse was not strong enough. I saw this brother and had him go and talk with her. So arrangements were made for him to visit the home daily and do this bit of service.

But he was not content to let his light be hidden even in part. His kindness, his willingness, his gentleness, his tenderness, so apparent as he would assist her, has been the outshining of the Christ in his soul. But his light must shine more and more; so this led to his reading the Scriptures to her and talking to her about the simple and pure teaching of our Lord. This led her to desire to be baptized into Christ, and, the Lord willing, this will be done at the meeting of our sisters' class this afternoon. And even the nurse has come to see that she has not been baptized. She has been sprinkled. But this brother has shown her that this is purely the teaching of men. Hence, she, too, has expressed a desire to be baptized into her Lord.

I am thinking just now of how very many that claim to be Christians, who, instead of letting their lights shine as they wait upon the sick, show the sick that their claim to be Christians is a living lie. So much impatience manifested! They tire of their task! They fret and murmur! The first nurse I saw in this home was just such.

In conclusion, let me insist, first, that we see to it that there is light in us to shine; and, second, that it is not put under a bushel, but on the candle stand, that it may be seen by all with whom we walk. And remember, our words go for naught, if not backed with conduct in perfect accord with our claims. Remember, it says: "Even so let your light shine before men; that they may see your good works." It is works through which the light shines! Some of us would be better off if we did more and said less.

The Downey Revival.

Since something was said about the Downey revival last week, I will take time to say it has closed, with nineteen more names added to the faithful at that place—eight baptized, two reclaimed, and nine by statement. I have never enjoyed a meeting more, and it was a bit hard to close, but it seemed that I had to take it more easily for a few days. The money is all raised, and the new dress for the house, inside and out, is being put on this week. The same kind of work is being done at Sichel and Altura Streets. The revival spirit is on in this glorious country, and the saints are happy.

The blessing of sonship is for those who, quickened by God's Spirit, help to realize on earth that inward brother-hood of which he has given the foundation and the pledge.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field By B. C. GOODPASTURE

The Universality of Christian Suffering.

The people of God have many things in common. Jude, in his brief epistle, writes concerning "our common salvation" (Jude 3); Paul addresses Titus as his "true child after a common faith" (Tit. 1: 3), and exhorts the brethren in Rome to "be of the same mind" (Rom. 12: 15), and reminds them that they, whether Jew or Gentile, are subject to "the same Lord" (Rom. 10: 12); and Peter writes to "the elect who are sojourners of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadoela, Asia, and Bithynia," with a note of warning and encouragement, as follows: "Be sober, be watchful: your adversary the devil, as a roaring lion, walketh about, seeking whom he may devour: whom withstand steadfast in your faith, knowing that the same sufferings are accomplished in your brethren who are in the (1 Pet. 1: 1; 5: 8, 9.) Peter would have the brethren of the "Dispersion" to know that the same sufferings which had come upon them were common to the brotherhood throughout the world.

In the outset Peter mentions the common enemy, "your adversary the devil," "the deceiver of the whole world" (Rev. 12: 9), the sower of tares (Matt. 13: 39), "the prince of the power of the air" (Eph. 2: 2), "the prince of this world" (John 14: 30), and the Satan who robbed heaven of angels (Rev. 12: 9; 2 Pet. 2: 4) and wrecked Eden. Whether he goes forth in his cunning wiles as a hissing serpent (Gen. 3: 1-8), "an angel of light" (2 Cor. 11: 14). or a "roaring lion" (1 Pet. 5: 8), he is, nevertheless, the archenemy of man. Being the "prince of this world," he is in a position to marshal the forces of the world against the saints of the Most High. This very thing he does, Jesus gave his disciples to understand that they might expect opposition, persecution, and death at the hands of the world. "In the world ye have tribulation: but be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." (John 16: 33.) "If the world hateth you, ye know that it hath hated me before it hated you." (John 15: 18.) John also said: "Marvel not, brethren, if the world hateth you." (1 John 3: 13.) The kingdoms of this world, being a part of it, are, in some sense, under the authority of the devil (Luke 4: 6), and he arrays them against the church (Acts 4: 1-4; 19). Satan is also the father and promoter of false religions, and they are frequently enlisted by him in open warfare against the hosts of Zion. (Acts 19: 23-41.) With every means his diabolical wisdom can devise, the tempter opposes those who are doing right and that which is good.

The apostle would not have the brethren conclude in despondency that they were suffering and about to suffer more than others of their time "for the word of God and the testimony of Jesus." They were not the special and only objects of the devil's awful opposition. It is true they were in great distress; their baptism of suffering, at the immediate hands of the Roman government, was at hand; the lion was roaring for his prey (1 Pet. 5: 8). Hear the apostle: "Beloved, think it not strange concerning the flery trial among you, which cometh upon you to prove you, as though a strange thing had happened unto you." (1 Pet. 4: 12.) He further exhorts them to "withstand steadfast in your faith, knowing that the same sufferings are accomplished in your brethren who are in the world." (1 Pet. 5: 9.) Why speak to them of their "fiery trial?" To let them know, in the language of Paul, that "all that would live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." (2 Tim. 3: 12.) Why remind them of their suffering brethren in the world? To encourage them to resist the evil one, in view of the fact that they had brethren, comrades in the greatest of all conflicts, over all the world, who, with them, were suffering the same things, doing battle with the common foe. Moreover, they must bear in mind that they are soldiers in a battle line reaching round the world; that their good fight will give strength and aid to brethren, fellow soldiers on other parts of the field, distant quarters of the world; that their surrender would involve an additional effort, and possible defeat, for their comrades. This community of suffering should contribute to the unity of God's people.

Finally, "this is the victory that overcometh the world, even our faith." (1 John 5: 4.) "Fear not the things which thou art about to suffer: behold, the devil is about to cast some of you into prison, that ye may be tried; and ye shall have tribulation ten days. Be thou faithful unto death, and I will give thee the crown of life." (Rev. 2: 10.) "These that are arrayed in the white robes, who are they, and whence came they? . . . These are they that come out of the great tribulation, and they washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb." (Rev. 7: 13, 14.)

Phantom Visions.

BY NELLIE ELNORA SINGLETON.

When the twilight shadows deepen, And across time's silent sea Memory's phantom ships are floating-Ah! how sweet is reverie!

Over mountain, plain, and seas wide, When the twilight shadows fall, Where's the heart that will not hearken To sweet memory's silent call?

Scenes of childhood rise before us Of some dear home far away. Where the feet may never linger, But the soul is wont to stay,

Ah! they're only phantom visions Rising from the misty past, But they hold a charm which lingers In the heart-unto the last

In sending contributions, be sure and state whether they are intended for the Home Orphans' Fund, the Armenian and Syrian Fund, or the Poland Fund. I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for orphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb, who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

J. R. Kennamer writes from Woodville, Ala., April 25: "Charles Holder delivered three very instructive discourses to large and appreciative audiences here yesterday."

From B. W. Boyd, Pikeville, Tenn., April 25: "Our homeforce meeting at Pikeville, led by Brethren Wrye and Traylor, starts with a rush. Three large crowds yesterday, with ten additions by primary obedience."

- J. D. Tant, of Regers, Ark., was visiting in this city two days last week, and paid this office a nice call. He preached in the Green Street meetinghouse on Thursday evening, and talked at the David Lipscomb College chapel service on Friday morning. He was on his way to North Carolina to help along the Lord's work in that needy field.
- D. Pennington writes: "I am now at Downey, Cal., where I was preacher for the church for two years, forty years ago. The church here has just closed a three-weeks' meeting, with thirty-two added to their number. The Gospel Advocate is a great paper, and I feel that I can't be without its instructive pages. May its editors enjoy God's richest blessings."

W. M. Brumit writes from Bradentown, Fla., April 25, as follows: "Vesterday was a great day with our forces. Brother Hayes was at Plant City. I was at Bradentown both morning and night One was added to the one body at the morning service. I spoke to the faithful ones at Cortez in the afternoon. The new congregation at Manatee had one addition at the morning service."

We have received the following announcement on a large poster with pictures on it of the evangelist and the meetinghouse: "Annual revival services, conducted by Evangelist H. W. Wrye, at Eleventh Street church of Christ, near Shelby Avenue, Nashville, Tenn., two weeks, May 8-22. Two services daily—2:30 and 7:45 P.M. Good old hymns, inspiring singing. Come, and tell your friends. A genuine welcome"

W. S. Moody preached for the Twelfth Avenue congregation, this city, last Lord's day, morning and night. There was one restoration. The Bible-study classes were all large. Out of an enrollment of three hundred and sixtyseven, there were three hundred and thirty in attendance. The elders have signified their intention of enlarging the building in the near future, in order to accommodate the growing crowds.

From W. T. Hines, Braman, Okla.: "There were three additions at Wynn Chapel. The meeting continued over five Lord's days. The work at Stillwater was a success. We had large crowds and the best interest. The work starts April 28 at Blackwell, a hard field; but the devil has had it long enough, and now the Lord must have a few. We need prayers and money from God's children to help us 'over the top.'"

John Taylor, an efficient preacher, of Waverly, Tenn., was in to see us last Thursday, and renewed his subscription to the Gospel Advocate. He reports harmony and peace in the church and a marked growth in attendance and interest. An overflow congregation met on Lord'sday evening recently to hear him reply to a sermon that had lately been preached in the town by a Methodist preacher on the subject of baptism. The brethren and the public generally were much pleased with his reply.

From Fred Thomas, Clayton, New Mexico, Box 453, April 25: "R. J. Smith, of Temple, Texas, recently held two meetings—one at Burnett, eight miles south of Clayton, and the other at Antioch, twelve miles west of Clayton, both destitute places. There were no visible results, but we think much good was done. Brother Smith is one of the most heart-touching gospel preachers that we have heard. The Bethel congregation, near Athens, Ala, contributed in helping our meeting here, which was appreciated very much."

G. B. Lambright, of Taft, Fla., who is in a meeting at Greenville, S. C., writes, April 24: "Our meeting is four days old, with good crowds and fine interest. This is a sectarian stronghold. There are only three loyal members here, so far as I know, and only one congregation in the State. That one is at Union, fifty miles away. T. H. Burton is living and laboring with them. Brother Burton brought us a tent and helped to raise it, and also worked faithfully to help us advertise the meeting. We will continue indefinitely. Brethren, we need your fellowship in this work. Send us one Lord's-day's contribution."

From R. E. L. Taylor, Decherd, Tenn., April 28: "I was with the Dixie congregation on the second Lord's day in April. The brethren had made arrangements with the Methodist preacher at that place for a union meeting. On the first day of our meeting he preached at the morning service and I preached in the afternoon. We had a large crowd at each service. Every one seemed to enjoy both services. He promised to be with me all the week, but I did not see or hear of him any more. I continued the meeting over the third Lord's day. In spite of the cold, rainy weather, we had a very good hearing. While there were no additions, we feel like the church was strengthened. This is the home of Joe Davis, who has made a great sacrifice to build a meetinghouse. He and a few other brethren have built and paid for a nice, little, frame building to worship the Lord in."

O. M. Reynolds writes from Madill, Okla., April 23: Our home congregation closed an eighteen-days' meeting on Wednesday. I preached the first eight days, and John E. Dunn the remainder. The rains hindered somewhat, but, all in all, the attendance was extra good and the interest was fine. Judging from a scriptural standard, we had a great meeting. I mean by this, most churches call a meeting practically a failure if there are not a number of baptisms-to my mind, a very lopsided way of judging. I believe I am safe in saying that fully seventy-five per cent of the baptized folks need badly the strong gospel truths as given by Brother Dunn and others, and that developing and spiritualizing the masses of the church members is the crying need of the day. While four were baptized and three took fellowship, yet the most magnificent work done by the genuine gospel sermons of Brother Dunn was causing sinners to see the terribleness of sin, and saints to see and realize as never before the importance and beauty of living for God and his kingdom, churches should keep Brother Dunn busy every day that he can work.

Earnest C. Love, Fresno, Cal., writes: "At a meeting of trustees and friends, April 21, we definitely decided to call our school 'The Fresno Home and School,' Plans are under way to begin the erection of a building thirty-four by fifty feet, to be used as a kitchen and dining room, as this is our most pressing need at present. The school is progressing nicely, and prospects are very bright for a great work along this line. We will certainly have to keep busy with the building in order to have accommodations for all who wish to come by September. The Fresno Street congregation, where the school attends, is in a flourishing condition. There were six baptized after the evening services on April 24. Four of these were pupils of our school, and three of them have come to the home since we came to Fresno. There was also one reclaimed. A lot has been secured by this congregation, on the corner of Palm and Dennette Avenues, and the initial payment made, on which we hope to be able to build a meetinghouse in the near future. We cannot use the hall where we are now meeting for our midweek service, and have been meeting at the homes, but our crowds are getting to be so large that we will have to make different arrangements soon." We are heartily glad of the selection of the new soon." We are heartily glad of the selection of the new name for the work, and think it a very appropriate one.

R. C. Hammons, whose address is 20 East Twenty-sixth Street, Covington, Ky., writes as follows: "We are pleased to announce the establishment of a new congregation of loyal believers in the city of Covington, just across the river from Cincinnati, Ohio, and some of the members of the Covington congregation have been worshiping with the Cincinnati mission. The new congregation is composed entirely of members formerly residing in the Southern States, and the following old congregations are represented: Florence, Ala.; Columbia, Tenn.; Lewisburg, Tenn.; Winchester, Ky. (Fairfax Street); Bowling Green, Ky.; Nashville, Tenn.; and High Bridge, Ky. We are meeting in a hall until more permanent arrangements can be made. We have reason to believe that much good will result from the effort being put forth here, and that the attendance of eighteen at the first meeting will be increased soon. are anxious to get in communication with a young minister who could locate among us and 'make tents' for a part of his support until the work is more firmly established. There will perhaps be openings here this year for high-school teachers. We meet at Fifth Street and Madi-son Avenue at 10:30 A.M. each Lord's day for Cible study, worship, and communion. We request members stopping over or passing through to look us up, and those contemplating a permanent change of location to communicate with us."

- J. W. Grant preached at Eagleville, Tenn., last Lord's day. The attendance and interest were fair.
- J. L. Jackson reports a fine service and one addition at the Lindsley Avenue church of Christ, this city, last Lord's day.

We learn just before going to press that Ross Alexander, of Williamson County, has been dangerously ill of pneumonia. We are glad to announce that he was reported very much better.

C. M. Pullias closed the meeting with the Lawrence Avenue church of Christ, this city, last Lord's-day night, with twenty-seven baptisms. The meeting closed with good interest.

The following telegram was sent by C. A. Buchanan from Cleburne, Texas, Monday night, May 2: "G. C. Brewer's meeting here in the fourth week. One hundred and thirty-two additions; eighty-two baptisms."

T. H. Etheridge recommends Elvin Bost, of Frederick, Okla., as a fine and competent preacher and singer, and says he will be in Tennessee in June and July for one or two meetings. If you need him, write him.

From Ben West, Fort Worth, Texas, April 25: "We had the house packed at both services at North Side yesterday, and four added, with baptismal service at night. Brother Busby is to begin a revival with us on April 29."

From F. J. Berry, Corpus Christi, Texas, April 25: "Fine services Sunday. Large crowd Sunday morning. We are practicing singing this week and cleaning up around the church house, getting ready for the meeting to begin Sunday."

Mrs. Pierson Cosby writes: "The Gospel Advocate is a wonderful paper. I can learn so much from it. I always try to pass it to a neighbor. We have no church of Christ in Selma, but we are planning and working to have a meeting during the summer."

J. H. Hines, Montgomery, Ala., April 25, writes: "Yesterday was another big day with the Highland Park church of Christ There were one hundred and twenty-two at the Eible school, and the house was filled at the regular worship. Three made the good confession."

Cled E. Wallace writes from Temple, Texas, April 25: "The Floresville meeting resulted in nine baptisms. Harvey Scott is doing excellent work in that community, supported by a small but very active congregation. I go to Rock Springs next Friday for a meeting."

George F. Martin, Rankin, Okla., writes: "W. L. Swinney, of Canadian, Texas, preached eight days at Midway Schoolhouse, between Rankin and Durham, Okla., and baptized seven grown folks; and one was restored. I have been preaching for them for ten or twelve years, and will be with them this year."

W. H. Nelson writes: "Please say through the Gospel Advocate that there is a good opening for a physician at Mount Calm, Texas, a town of from six to eight hundred inhabitants, twenty-one miles from Waco, on the Cotton Belt Railroad. We would like to see a Christian locate here and will gladly answer all inquiries."

T. B. Clark writes from Childress, Texas, April 25, as follows: "We have restored two and baptized three during April. Our crowds are large and enthusiastic at all services. Our annual meeting is to begin on the fifth Sunday in May. W. D. Bills will do the preaching. We invite brethren to visit this meeting."

We enjoyed a visit from A. G. Freed last week. He reports the school at Henderson as doing well. He expects to devote much time in the field in the interest of the school and in holding protracted meetings. Brother Freed is a strong gospel preacher, is a most excellent teacher, and will do great good in any field in which he may labor.

Mrs. R. R. Davis, Springfield, Tenn., writes as follows: "While I am not able to be a subscriber to the Gospel Advocate right now, still I am blessed with the opportunity of reading almost every copy, and I do appreciate it. It is a grand message to the dying world and a comfort to the brotherhood." Moral: Let some one else read your Advocate and enjoy it.

Andrew Perry writes from Baldwin, Miss., April 30: "I have preached for the congregation at Baldwyn two nights. The first night a bad-looking cloud just at meeting time kept several away, but we had more out last night. I will be with them in Bible study and worship to-morrow. Then on Monday I go to Ackerman to assist Brother Jeffcoat in the Master's work."

R. V. Cawthon is now engaged in a meeting at Greeu Street Church, this city. There have been sixteen additions to date. Interest fine. The meeting will continue indefinitely. Preaching at three o'clock in the afternoon and seven-forty-five at night. He recently closed a meeting at Cookeville, Tenn., which resulted in twenty-four baptisms. The meeting was splendid throughout.

J. W. Dunn says: "Our third mission meeting came to a close at the water last Friday (April 22). Nine additions at Little Motor Car Company, between Dallas and Fort Worth, Texas. Two members to start with. Another congregation for Dallas County. In all places this year the people have shown great anxiety to hear, and the outlook is very encouraging. I am now at Charlie, Texas."

From J. D. Matthews, Maysville, Okla., April 27: "I preached at Alex last Saturday night and on Sunday and Sunday night. Sunday was a joyful day to us. A man and his wife who had been Baptists confessed their Savior at the eleven-o'clock service, and in the afternoon were buried with their Lord in baptism. We have a faithful little band at Alex. I agreed to preach for them again on the fourth Sunday in next month."

The following is quoted from a letter to S. F. Morrow from Mrs. Fannie Harrison Cave, of Dallas, Texas: "I enjoy the many good things the Gospel Advocate brings to me each week, and I do not want to miss a copy." Brother Morrow's rejoinder is as follows: "We are glad Sister Cave enjoys the Advocate. Pass it on to others. Sister Cave knows what a good thing is." We say "amen" to all that is here said by both of the above friends of the Advocate.

From Fred M. Little, Montgomery, Ala., April 29: "Three made the confession at the evening service on April 24, and will be baptized on Sunday at the Catoma Street Church. W. L. Haynes held a meeting at West End, this city, of nine days' duration, with one reclaimed. Brother Haynes had to go to another meeting. I will continue the meeting indefinitely. The three congregations of Montgomery will cooperate in sounding out the word in this section."

R. L. Colley writes from Camden, Ark., April 30: "I am now laboring with the church two and one-half miles west of Camden, where I held a meeting last October and baptized a goodly number. These people are proving their faith by their works. They are preparing to build a meetinghouse. They have the deed with the restrictive clause to one acre in a nice grove, and most of the lumber on the ground to build. They need some help in this work, and they are worthy. Send all contributions to J. N. Hudiburgh, Camden, Ark., Route 1."

J. E. Wainwright, Texarkana, Ark., April 26, says: "At the suggestion of my opponent the debate booked for June at Pollock has been called off for the present. We hope to meet at some time in the fall or winter. Our meeting scheduled for the last part of June under canvas here has been postponed. Realizing the importance of pushing our building plans in order to accommodate our crowds and offer greater opportunity to reach others, it was deemed wise to concentrate all efforts and means in consummating our original purpose. We have had about thirty additions in our five months of work."

W. S. Long writes from Washington, D. C., April 27: "It gives me pleasure to tell our readers that we have just closed the first series of meetings in the new house of worship in Washington. The earnest preaching done by Jesse P. Sewell did much good in strengthening the membership and encouraging all to push forward in the work. H. P. Lucas, of Florence, Ala., has just sent his best wishes to the church, with his individual check for one hundred dollars to help us on the debt. If we had many more such willing hearts, we would soon be out of debt, and would then be able to start missions in Baltimore, Annapolis, Alexandria, and other destitute fields."

L. S. White writes from Sherman, Texas, April 28: "I recently preached eleven days for the church in Abilene, with two services daily. The interest was good all the time, and the audiences were fine. Seventeen were baptized and eight took membership. George A. Klingman is doing a great work as the minister of that church, and was a great help in the recent meeting. He ran over to Sherman and preached one Sunday, and made a fine impression. The Abilene church is doing a fine work. They recently sent J. P. Sewell to Washington, D. C., for a meeting, bearing all the expenses, including the trip for Sister Sewell also. Brother Sewell, with his able faculty, is doing a great work in Abilene Christian College. Our meeting in Sherman begins next Sunday, with F. L. Young doing the preaching."

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

Peace.

BY J. C. M'Q.

It will not be denied that Christ gave up the glories of heaven, came to this world of sin and died the death of the cross, in order that he might bring salvation to a lost and ruined race. The prophet Isaiah prophesies concerning his reign. He says: "For unto us a child is born, unto us a son is given; and the government shall be upon his shoulder: and his name shall be called Wonderful, Counselor, Mighty God, Everlasting Father, Prince of Peace. Of the increase of his government and of peace there shall be no end, upon the throne of David, and upon his kingdom, to establish it, and to uphold it with justice and with righteousness from henceforth even forever. The zeal of Jehovah of hosts will perform this." (Isa. 9: 6, 7.) Of him the angels sang when he was born in Bethlehem of Judea: "And suddenly there was with the angel a multitude of the heavenly host praising God, and saying, Glory to God in the highest, and on earth peace among men in whom he is well pleased." (Luke 2: 13, 14.)

But while he is the great Prince of Peace and came to establish his kingdom, he did not establish his kingdom without justice and without righteousness. Christ, who is the only sinless, perfect Being, and the only perfect Prince of Peace, never for one moment sacrificed the principle of justice and righteousness in order to have peace with error. Only cowards sacrifice the truth in order to have peace with error. There is a ceaseless conflict between truth and error, and no man who loves the truth will sacrifice it in order to unite with and make peace with error. It is far better to live in conflict with error than it is to make peace with it. So long as people are in error and are out of harmony with the truth, it will be better for them to be separated rather than united. When the people were in error and had departed from God's rule in the days of Rehoboam, the son of Solomon, God did not want them united in their error and rebellion. Union in error gives strength, as well as union in the truth. When Rehoboam had determined to go up and fight against Jeroboam and the tribes under his rule, the Lord very plainly told him not to do so, giving him to understand that the division, or rending of the kingdom, was of himself. "Thus saith Jehovah, Ye shall not go up, nor fight against your brethren the children of Israel: return every man to his house: for this thing is of me. So they hearkened unto the word of Jehovah, and returned and went their way, according to the word of Jehovah." (1 Kings 12: 24.)

So long as religionists are in error, it is better for them to be divided than united. Christ never came to this world to bring peace by ceasing to contend for the truth. In all of his teaching he nowhere intimates that we should sacrifice the truth in order to bring about an unrighteous peace. If the multitudes love sin and practice error, those who love the truth must be at variance with them. It is vicious, it is senseless, and the very essence of folly, to cry, "Peace, peace," when there can be no peace between virtue and sin, truth and error, righteousness and unrighteousness. Christ did not sacrifice the truth for peace, neither would he have his followers do so. While he is the great Prince of Peace, he very plainly says of himself: "Think not that I came to send peace on the earth: I came not to send peace, but a sword." (Matt. 10: 34.) When men were in error and opposed the truth, he did not sacrifice right in order to be at peace with them. In condemning sin and unrighteousness he used the most scathing terms, and failed not to fearlessly rebuke sin. Not only did Christ do this, but his followers in the early church followed his example. Note how Paul reproved Elymas, the sorcerer. "But Saul, who is also called Paul, filled with the Holy Spirit, fastened his eyes on him, and said, O full of all guile and all villainy, thou son of the devil, thou enemy of all righteousness, wilt thou not cease to pervert the right ways of the Lord? And now, behold, the hand of the Lord is upon thee, and thou shalt be blind, not seeing the sun for a season. And immediately there fell on him a mist and a darkness; and he went about seeking some to lead him by the hand. Then the proconsul, when he saw what was done, believed, being astonished at the teaching of the Lord." (Acts 13: 9-12.)

It is true that no one is infallible to-day, as was Christ, and no one is inspired, as was Paul and the other apostles; but still, having a plain revelation, all should be able to understand and to distinguish truth from error. The apostles were not given to the use of soft words. Instead of being cowardly and timid, they often created strife, contention, and reproach among the people. The man who contends for truth and righteousness will find it necessary often to contend against sin in high places. Whenever such is the case, every Christian should have the strength of character to stand for that which he knows to be right, even if he does create division and strife. The Holy Spirit says of Paul and Silas: "And when they found them not. they dragged Jason and certain brethren before the rulers of the city, crying, These that have turned the world upside down are come hither also." (Acts 17: 6.) The man who loves the truth as did Paul and Silas will set father against son, daughter against mother, and brother against sister, and will create conflict between truth and error.

Men should not contend for their opinions. They should not be hobby riders and contend for theories that are not taught in the word of God. Men who love the truth will not contend over unrevealed things; but when God has spoken and legislated, they will contend for the truth as it is in Christ Jesus, even though it may offend their dearest friends. Men who have the spirit of Christ will "refuse profane and old wives' fables" and will not exalt their opinions to the position of the inspired word of God. God wants his subjects to stand against sin, even if opposition does bring division.

God would not approve the union of all denominations into one great body so long as they teach and practice error. It would be pleasant to every Christian to live in perfect unity and accord with all who teach the truth. There is perfect agreement and accord among all who hold the truth. There can be no harmony and unity so long as people hold divergent doctrines; hence the Holy Spirit admonishes: "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned; and turn away from them." (Rom. 16: 17.) Christians are to turn away from those who are causing divisions contrary to the doctrine of Christ. As there can be no union between truth and error, virtue and vice, holiness and unholiness, so people must be united in the truth in order to walk together. Instead of condemning those who boldly and fearlessly stand up for God's way, we should encourage them to continue to stand firm for the right, regardless of the scoffs and frowns of the multitude. Paul, in writing to the Philippians, admonishes: "Only let your manner of life be worthy of the gospel of Christ: that, whether I come and see you or be absent, I may hear of your state, that ye stand fast in one spirit, with one soul striving for the faith of the gospel." (Phil. 1: 27.) United on the truth, we can have one mind; otherwise, we will have strife and contentions among ourselves.

I will close this article by admonishing all to refrain from promulgating their opinions, from advocating and teaching things that are not essential to salvation, as such opinions should not be exalted to the position of essentials. But when it comes to the fundamentals of salvation, we should heed the language of the Holy Spirit as recorded in Jude 3: "Behold, while I was giving all diligence to write unto you of our common salvation, I was constrained to write unto you exhorting you to contend earnestly for the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints." Such a course followed will make us useful in this life and lead us to everlasting peace in the world to come.

"A Defense of Baptist Doctrine."

BY F. W. SMITH.

Under the above title L. R. Burress, our Baptist friend, centinues his friendly exchange with the Gospel Advocate on some vital matters. Read him carefully as he thus proceeds:

Thanks to Brother Smith for kind words of March 3 in the Gospel Advocate. I am not defending Baptists nor their doctrine, only showing the orthodoxy on some points.

A PROVINCIAL OR LARGER CHURCH THAN A LOCAL BODY.

The last text referred to by Brother Smith to prove this larger body, from Acts 9: 31, A. R. V.: "So the church throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria had peace," etc. In reply, notice that the only church which was in Jerusalem had recently been persecuted, and its members went everywhere in the field mentioned. As they went they preached, and many converts were added, new churches were formed, and, as reported of the same field afterwards, "churches of Judea." (Gal. 1: 22; 1 Thess.

2: 14.) Three other passages: Eph. 1: 22, 23; Heb. 12: 22-24; Eph. 5: 25-27. These will be composed of the saved in heaven. "The general assembly, the church of the firstborn," "when all things are put under his feet," "a glorious church without wrinkle." Any use of the word "church" that precludes an assembly is open to criticism. "Ecclesia" stands for the called out and called together. "A Baptist church" and "the Christian Church" are names not found in the Bible; yet an assembly of persons believing the Book and obeying its teachings, called by any other name, would be a church of Christian worshipers. To know the truth and to obey from the heart that form of doctrine which was enjoined by Christ characterizes "the church of the living God, the ground and pillar of the truth."

Our friend still insists that the term "church" must always and everywhere refer to a local assembly. In fact, he says: "Any use of the word 'church' that precludes an assembly is open to criticism." To prove this he says: "'Ecclesia' stands for the called out and called together." If he means by "called together" that there is no "ecclesia" when the saints are not assembled in some local place, then he argues against the facts in the case. The church of Christ, the ecclesia, refers to all those who have obeyed the gospel, who have been called out of the world into the body (singular) of Christ, which is made up of individuals, regardless of where they are, whether in a local assembly or traveling the highway, dwelling at home, in the field, in the shop, or anywhere else not mentioned. I have shown that the word "church" is applied to the saints in a given territory without any intimation of a local assembly at all. and that should have settled it with Brother Burress. Once more I call his attention to it: "So the church [not churches] throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria had peace, being edified," etc. (Acts 9: 31.)

He insists that Heb. 12: 22-24 refers to the saved in heaven, and not to the saints on earth. I am puzzled to see how he can get that idea from the passage, which says: "But ye are come unto Mount Zion, and unto the city of the living God, the heavenly Jerusalem, and to innumerable hosts of angels, to the general assembly and church of the first-born who are enrolled in heaven, and to God the Judge of all, and to the spirits of just men made perfect, and to Jesus the mediator of a new covenant, and to the blood of sprinkling that speaketh better than that of Abel." Note the fact that he is telling the Hebrew Christians to what they had already come, and not to what they would come. They had come to a "general assembly," and the writer calls this general assembly the "church of the first-born."

Notwithstanding the fact that Brother Burress is so wide of the mark on the word "church," I must congratulate and thank him for the following: "'A Baptist church' and 'the Christian church' are names not found in the Bible; yet an assembly of persons believing the Book and obeying its teaching, called by any other name, would be a church of Christian worshipers." Well, now, since the names "Baptist Church" and "Christian Church" are not found in the Bible, are Brother Burress and those who designate the church by the names "Baptist church" and "Christian Church" obeying the teaching of the Bible in so doing? According to his own admission, he is not, and ought, therefore, to cease calling the church revealed in the New Testament the or a Baptist church.

He utters an absolute truth when he says: "To know the truth and to obey from the heart that form of doctrine which was enjoined by Christ characterizes the church of the living God, the ground and pillar of the truth." In the light of the foregoing, it is proper to remark that Brother Burress, and all others who have "obeyed that form of doctrine enjoined by Christ," should steer clear of denominations and denominational names and be content to be members of the "church of the living God, the ground and pillar of the truth." Furthermore, all those who have "obeyed that form of doctrine enjoined by Christ," thus becoming members of the "church of the living God," but, in addition to this, have united with some denomination, as the Baptist Church, should come out of it and stop where they were when they "obeyed that form of doctrine enjoined by Christ." The body of Christ includes every child of God on the earth; but, unfortunately, under erroneous teaching, many of them have joined some denomination in addition to the body of Christ. The great work of the Restoration movement inaugurated by the Campbells and their colaborers is to call these children of God out of the denominations.

I will give the remainder of our friend's argument and my reply in another issue.

It is an 8vo pamphlet of seventy-seven pages, from the press of F. L. Rowe, Cincinnati, Ohio, and contains a good lithograph picture of each of the disputants. Order from the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

Power from on high can be trusted to few men. pray for it who covet a large expression of their lives. But power hath within it a great snare. Parade crouches at its door; without an abundant grace of God it finally succumbs to its traducer. Power grasps at greatness, eschews the fashion of a servant, demands privileges, holds the restraints of duty in disdain, and refuses to suffer itself to be reproved. Power in a servant of the Lord dedicated to a ministry of self-sacrifice may become the ruin of the soul. God can only trust it to the man in whom the Spirit of Christ dwells. If it is heaven-born power, it will purify itself and be pledged by tears and crucifixions to the honor of God and the service of man. It will be emptied of presumption, fraught with prayer, separated from evil, and identified with all things of Christ.-Western Christian Advocate.

Any individual or any institution that could take the Bible to every home in this country would do more for the country than all the armies from the beginning of our country to the present time.—Chief Justice Brewer.

PELOUBET'S NOTES FOR 1921.

"Peloubet's Notes" has been issued for forty-seven years with ever-increasing popularity and usefulness, which fact alone is a wonderful argument for its value and helpfulness. It is rich in material, comprehensive in its scope, and practical in its treatment. Every superintendent, teacher, and scholar will find in it his own personal requirements. The editor of The Outlook says: "We give first place to Peloubet's." Marion Lawrance, the noted Sundayschool worker, writes: "How this standard commentary has been able to maintain itself during all these years, growing annually stronger and richer, is a marvel to the Sunday-school world. Personally, I do not see how any Sunday-school teacher can hope to do his best without the rich, full helps found in these Notes."

MISCELLANY

T. A. White conducted the services at Rothschild Avenue, this city, on the fourth Lord's day in April, and had two confessions and baptisms.

C. L. Purdom writes from Paragould, Ark., April 25: "I received ten dollars from Horse Cave, Ky., in response to the call that was put in the paper sometime ago by Brother Laird for the mission work that is to be conducted in Southeast Missouri and Northeast Arkansas. It took seven dollars and fifty cents for song books; that leaves two dollars and fifty cents to pay the preachers that intend to carry on this work. We have bought the tent, and it will be ready for the field by not later than May 15. Let any congregation wanting to have fellowship in this work send the money to me at Paragould, and it will be turned over to the proper persons at the time that it is needed. Address me at 824 West Vine Street."

Andrew Perry writes from Corinth, Miss., April 27: "I left home on this trip, and for the purpose of three or four months' steady work for the Master, one week ago last Saturday. On Lord's day we had a fine meeting for worship at Bismarck. Then in the first part of last week I met with brethren in their homes in Danville, Ill.; Clinton and Sullivan, Ind.; and got to Morganfield, Ky., on Wednesday. Brother Curd, our noble young preacher who is laboring in that part of Kentucky, took me out to John Clark's, where I remained that night. On Thursday and Friday nights I preached to a few at Boxville. Then on Saturday night and on Lord's-day morning and at night I had good and very attentive audiences at Walnut Grove. On Monday I went to Mayfield, where I stopped with a family of the faithful. I came from there yesterday to this place, and I have met a number of the members of the church of Christ. I am here expecting to join my labor with that of Brother Cayce, of Jackson, and Brother Jeffcoat, of Ackerman, in the great work in our Master's vine-

S. R. Drake, writing from Columbus Junction, Iowa, April 26, says: "If the Gospel Advocate has any subscribers in Davenport, Muscatine, or Burlington, Iowa, who would like to become associated with me in Christian work, I think I could be of service along Bible-study lines, with my addresses on 'Why We Should Study the Bible,'
"The Interpretation of the Bible,' 'The Making of a Man,' and kindred themes. I aim to do constructive work and avoid all destructive work in the way of dividing churches and causing trouble among brethren. I believe in preaching the gospel without fear or favor. The people of God The people of God should stand together and show a spirit of helpfulness toward each other. If any of us should have anything personal against a man, there is a time and place to settle all such difficulties among ourselves without publicity. am opposed to State and district bosses who dictate to a man his territory of activity or work. I do not think there is any harm in occasional meetings for consultation and to talk over the work in different localities. that feared the Lord spoke often one to another: and the Lord hearkened, and heard it, and a book of remembrance was written before him for them that feared the Lord, and that thought upon his name." (Mal. 3: 16; see Mal. 4: 2; Ps. 66: 16; Heb. 3: 13.)

J. M. Dennis, Franklin, Ky., gives an interesting account f a trip to Missourl. He says: "On Thursday afternoon, of a trip to Missouri. He says: "On Thursday afternoon, March 31, I boarded the train at Franklin, Ky., ran down to Nashville, Tenn., and left that night for Browning, Mo., by way of St. Louis, Hannibal, Brookfield, Laclede, Linneus, Purdin, and then on to Browning. I traveled over the Louisville and Nashville Railroad to St. Louis, and from there to Browning over the 'Burlington Route,' and reached Browning on Saturday, April 2. On Lord's-day morning I began a meeting at Browning, and closed it on Friday evening following. The meeting was very well at-tended throughout, but there were no additions. Each Lord's day, beginning at ten o'clock A.M., the members of the congregation at Browning engage in Bible study, superintended by the elders. They use no 'helps'-just the Bible. On Saturday evening, April 9, I began a meeting at Purdin, and closed it on the third Lord's day. ciples there have Bible study for one hour each Lord's-day As at Browning, they use no 'helps'-only the There were no additions at Purdin. The brethren had arranged for me to go to Shelby and preach a few times, but the cold and stormy weather hindered us from going. I left Purdin on Monday, April 18, for home, and am now back at Franklin. Browning and Purdin are both in Linn County, Mo., about two hundred and twenty-five miles northwest from St. Louis. Linn County is a fine farming and blue-grass section. I enjoyed the visit to that part of Missouri, and the brethren at both Browning and Purdin treated me nicely and expressed their desire that I return some time, which I hope to do."

Thomas H. Burton, minister of the church of Christ at Union, S. C., sends the following under date of April 25: Last Wednesday I loaded my tent (the one the Lebanon congregation gave the work last year) on a truck and went to Greenville and helped Brother Lambright, of Taft, Fla., pitch it in a good neighborhood, and also helped to advertise the meeting, and stayed for the first service. had forty-two out to hear the first sermon, and the best of attention was given. I talked to several who were very much interested and very anxious to hear the gospel. This is the home of Brother and Sister Finnell, who are the only loyal members we have been able to locate in that We are expecting much good to be done there, and want all the brethren who read this to make special mention in their prayers for them. Brother Lambright started off well, and we hope for some visible results. Interest is growing in this town, and we are expecting much good to be done this summer. We realize that we are growing in favor with the people. I am delighted to report our approaching meeting. H. M. Phillips, of Tuseumbia, Ala., will be with us on May 16 for a three-weeks' meeting. meeting. We earnestly request every member of the church to pray for the success of our work in this State, and also to ask God to 'send forth laborers' into the destitute fields of our land. Let every brother who leads a public prayer make mention of our work during the season from May 16 to June 1. Who knows what wonderful things God will do if we only do our part? I will go this afternoon to Asheville, N. C., to spend a few days with the faithful few there. There are three loyal families in that city. We had two good services here yesterday in our unfinished house. Brother Henderson, the first to be bap-tized by me in this State, carried the emblems out to some sick members in the afternoon. I was visiting in another part of the town. I am training the brethren to do anything that their hands find to do in the work. Our Saturday-night prayer meeting was well attended. Brethren, do not forget us."

From I. B. Bradley, Avon Park, Fla., April 25: "Although I have written nothing for the papers for several months, I have not been idle. Coming to this place the first of December of last year, I found Charlie Taylor, of Paducah, Ky., here in a meeting. He continued the meeting fifteen days. I then took it up and continued it two weeks longer. Eight days of this time were spent in a review of the teachings of the Seventh-Day Adventists, after a failure to get them to debate their teachings. Beginning on the first Lord's day in this year, I have been engaged regularly with the church here, preaching every Lord's day, except for an absence of three weeks in a meeting with the church of Christ in Miami, Fla. I have done some of the hardest work in my twenty-five years' experience as a preacher, necessitated by the conditions existing here. From conditions as I found them, I feel sure this congregation has not had a great deal of teaching on practical, everyday Christian living. I have been giving them some plain. practical lessons, and trying to ground them in some of the plain realities of the Scriptures, and have not given them very much of 'first principles.' Some have complained that the lessons were too hard, the life too ideal, the standard too high, etc. This gave me fuller conviction that these were the lessons the church needed, and I have continued to feed them on this meat, striving always to make the lessons plain and easy to comprehend. In two more weeks I leave for my usual summer evangelistic campaign. I leave the results in the hands of the Lord. On May 15, the Lord willing, I will begin a meeting with the church of Christ in Rome, Ga., to continue eight days or longer as the interest may seem to demand. Then we (Mrs. Bradley, Miss Sarah Andrews, and I) go by 'the Ford route' to Moulton, Ala., for a few-days' visit; then to Dickson, Tenn., and other points in that State. According to agreement, I am to be with the New Hope church of Christ, Davidson County, Tenn., for a meeting, beginning on the third Lord's day in June. After this I will spend four weeks in Mississippi and Alabama in meetings, and then back to Tennessee (Sumner, Rutherford, and Franklin counties) and back to Franklin County, Ala., closing out the first of October. Forward, march! A solid front all along the line! Let's charge the ramparts of sin with unfaltering faith, and victory is assured. The fight is on, O Christian soldier!'

BY J. C. McQUIDDY.

Mrs. Cela Nickels asks an explanation of Acts 15: 20, on which a diversity of opinion as to its meaning has developed in her congregation.

The passage reads: "But that we write unto them, that they abstain from the pollutions of idols, and from fornication, and from what is strangled, and from blood." God has always forbidden people to eat blood. It was not permitted in the patriarchal and Jewish dispensations, and lastly it is forbidden in the Christian dispensation. The blood remained in things strangled, so things strangled must not be eaten. It is rebellion against God to eat blood in any way; and whenever one eats blood pudding, he violates a positive command of God. To eat blood or things strangled is to mock God, and those who mock God shall perish.

B. Canida inquires: "(1) What was the fruit the Pharisees and Sadducees who came to John's baptism were required to bring forth? (2) Christ was 'the Word.' Was he the same 'word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God' by which man liveth?"

1. Matt. 3: 7, 8 declares: "But when he saw many of the Pharisees and Sadducees coming to his baptism, he said unto them, Ye offspring of vipers, who warned you to flee from the wrath to come? Bring forth therefore fruit worthy of repentance." They were to bring forth a changed life. A changed life is proof of the change of heart. Without reformation or a change of life, there is no repentance. "By their fruits ye shall know them."

2. Words are the expression of ideas. The Word which was the prenatal Christ was the expression of God. Christ is the way, the truth, and the life. Christ came from God. All light and truth come from God. God is light, and in him is no darkness at all." Christ is the representative of God, and, therefore, represents all truth and light; but he is not literally the same as every word which proceeds out of the mouth of God, but is in perfect accord and harmony with every word of God.

C. T. Cope, Trenton, Tenn., sends this: "We have been taught that Christ was crueified on Friday. If so, please explain Matt. 12: 39, 40." I have answered this question a number of times; so I will quote with approval the answer given by David Lipscomb to the same question, which appears in "Queries and Answers," by Lipscomb and Sewell, on pages 100, 101:

Suppose we say he was buried on Thursday and raised Thursday is one day, Friday is two, Saturday on Sunday. is three, and Sunday is four. That would make his resur-But the Bible says, a dozen on the fourth day. times times over, that he was raised on the third day. Take the account given by Luke (23: 53-56; 24: 1). Joseph "took it [the body] down, and wrapped it in a linen cloth, and laid him in a tomb that was hewn in stone, where never man had yet lain. And it was the day of the Preparation, and the Sabbath drew on. And the women, who had come with him out of Galilee, followed after, and beheld the tomb, and how his body was laid. And they returned, and prepared spices and ointments. And on the Sabbath they rested according to the commandment. But on the first day of the week, at early dawn, they came unto the tomb," and found the Savior risen. This is an account of what was done, day by day. The women prepared the spices and ointment and waited till the Sabbath had passed. Two Sabbaths together had never been heard of then. knowledge of such a wonderful thing is a latter-day revelation. When the Sabbath had passed, at early dawn Jesus had risen. The account in Mark (15: 42-47; 16: 1, 2) agrees with this, leaving no room for doubt. The same is true of Matthew's account (27: 59-61; 28: 1). give similar accounts. He was buried the day of the Preparation. He lay in the grave the Sabbath and was raised on Sunday morning. This is called "after three days." 'After eight days" (John 20: 26) means on the eighth day. after eight days has come. Language is the sign of ideas. God speaks to men in language they can understand. Jews were in the habit of using this language and of making the expression of a day and night mean a day, and God used the language of the Jews. There is nothing in the question to affect a man's well-being. The world, the whole religious world, brought the truth down from the days of the Savior. It will not affect any man's happiness in this world or the next. To write about it till you are as old as Methuselah may show you think God could not tell a straight tale on an insignificant matter, for the day-byday account of the death, crucifixion, and resurrection of Jesus Christ by each of the lives of Jesus does not allow any room for another day. I write this to settle a squabble over an unimportant matter after I had said: "I have said all I have to say." It seems that kind of a question inter ests more people than a practical one.

Carl Barnette, of Greenville, Ala., wishes two questions answered for a brother who wishes his name withheld. (1) "What was the 'thorn in the fiesh' given to Paul, mentioned in 2 Cor. 12: 7?" (2) Who were those in the Dispersion spoken of in 1 Pet. 1: 1? Were they Christian Jews only, or were they of the Jews who were driven from Jerusalem by the authority of Rome?" He says the brother is not satisfied with any explanation given to him.

1. 2 Cor. 12: 7 says: "And by reason of the exceeding greatness of the revelation, that I should not be exalted overmuch, there was given to me a thorn in the flesh, a messenger of Satan to buffet me, that I should not be exalted overmuch." Why it was given him is clear, but what it was is not revealed; so I do not know what it was.

2. 1 Pet. 1: 1 reads: "Peter, an apostle of Jesus Christ, to the elect who are sojourners of the Dispersion in Pontus, Galatia, Cappadocia, Asia, and Bithynia." The first epistle of Peter is not addressed to Jews generally, but primarily to Jewish Christians, though in portions of the letter he appears to embrace Gentile Christians also. The "Dispersion" evidently means the Jewish race outside of Judea. The letter is directed to the churches in five provinces of the Roman empire which Paul had evangelized, all lying in a group south of the Euxine Sea.

Subject One to Another.

In the life of equals a man enters upon a vast field of relations in which his humility and his generosity pass through an ordeal of special and peculiar severity-severity far greater than that which attaches to any trial of them in the relationship to inferiors-for the simple reason that a man is in competition with his equals, and he is not in competition with his inferiors. To a superficial person it might appear that the great act of humility was condescension, and that, therefore, the condescending life was necessarily a more humble one than the life with equals; but this is not the true view of the case. The hardest trial of humility must be not toward a person to whom you are superior and who acknowledges that superiority, but toward a person with whom you are on equal footing of competition . . . The relations to equals are thus the more real trial to humility than the relations to inferiors; and if persons will examine into their state of mind, they will, I think, find that their own feelings and sensations will verify this comparison. The sense of defeat, the pangs of wounded pride, the mortification of aims and aspirations—these witness to the sharp ordeals which the life of equals produces; while certainly, if these are borne well, they constitute a safer guarantee to a real humility of character than any condescension to inferiors in the nature of the case can be.-J. B. Mozley.

The Turkey's Nest.

One day an old turkey hen went out to find a place to make her nest. She went a long way and took a long time, but when at last she found what she liked, she said to herself:

> "They may go to the east, and go to the west, But they'll never be able to find my nest."

And she was so proud of herself that she walked all the way home to the barnyard with her head in the air.

Her friends, the Gray Goose, the White Duck, and the Brown Hen, were waiting for her, and when they saw her coming they called out: "Where in the world did you make your nest?"

"Guess," said the turkey hen.

"Well," said the Gray Goose, "when I make my nest, I always try to get near the water, for there is nothing so good for my health as water, so I'll guess the goose pond."

"Right," cried the Duck; "the pond is the place."

"I don't think so," said the Brown Hen. "There is nothing better than hay for one's health; so I'll guess the haystack."

"But though they did their very best, They never could guess where she'd made her nest."

And the turkey grew prouder and prouder as she walked about the barnyard.

One day Grandfather Hunt said: "That old turkey hen has made herself a nest somewhere."

"I think I can find it," said Gertrude.

"I am sure I can find it," said Paul.

"No, I'll find it," said Fred. "She can't hide her nest from me."

So they all started out to find the nest.

Gertrude ran down to the meadow and looked among the tall grasses and bushes.

"But though she did her very best, She couldn't find the turkey's nest."

Paul went over the hill to the flour mill; then round by the goose pond, where he found the Gray Goose and the White Duck taking a swim,

> "But though he did his very best, He couldn't find the turkey's nest."

Fred began at home to look. First he peeped under the barn, and then back of the woodpile and haystack.

"But though he did his very best, He couldn't find the turkey's nest."

The next day Aunt Mary said she guessed she could find the nest; so she went out into the garden and sat down under a tree, just as quiet as she could be.

By and by the turkey hen came along.

She saw Aunt Mary, and Aunt Mary saw her, but neither of them said a word.

The turkey walked round and round in the garden, just as if she weren't thinking about anything at all; but at last she went through the gate into the road.

Then Aunt Mary followed her as still as a mouse, and the turkey

"Went up the hill and down the hill,
And through the fields and by the mill,
And down across the meadow brook,
By many a turn and many a crook.
She went to the east and she went to the west,
But she never went near the hidden nest."

"I'll give up," said Aunt Mary; and the old turkey hen was prouder than ever.

"Now I guess it is my turn," said grandfather; so early one morning he started out to look for the nest.

Grandfather was gone so long and the children grew so tired of waiting that at last they ran down the road to meet him. And when he saw them he called out:

> "I tell you I have done my best, But I can't find that turkey's nest."

And the turkey hen grew prouder and prouder.

She stayed at her nest, wherever it was, nearly all the time now, and only came to the barnyard when she wanted something to eat.

The Gray Goose and the White Duck and the Brown Hen said they wouldn't be surprised at anything she did.

But they were surprised, and so were the children, when one morning she walked into the yard with twelve little turkeys, as fine as you please.

"Just look at my children," she said. "I hatched them all out in my nest down in the corner of the old rail fence." And she whispered to herself:

"I tell you what, I did my best When I found that place to make my nest."

A Woman, a Garden, and a Little Boy.

A woman planted a garden—but she worried about it. She watched it and watered it, and the seeds grew—but she worried about it.

From early till late she worked, uproofing the weedsbut she worried about it.

And when the harvest came, although the seeds of her garden yielded fruit in abundance—still she worried about it.

You see, she planted her garden to win premiums at the Grange Fair—and that is why she worried about it.

This woman had one little boy—but she didn't worry about him.

She clothed him and fed him, and he grew-but she didn't worry about him.

From early till late he played in the streets—but she didn't worry about him.

And when harvest time came, although the seeds of lying, smoking, and swearing, planted in her boy's heart, yielded fruit in abundance—still she didn't worry about it.

You see, there were no premiums at the Grange Fair offered for little boys—and that is why she didn't worry about him.

While there are mothers legion and little boys legion, there is only one harvest time—the end of the world—coming.

There gardens—heart gardens—will be judged and rewards—eternal life, eternal death—given.

Then, O, the joy of the mother who has faithfully cultivated the soul garden of her boy's heart and receives from the hand of the Judge, the righteous Judge, life, eternal life!

And, O, the heart anguish of the mother who has been so busy with the cares of this life that she has neglected the cultivation of the soul garden of her boy's heart and receives from the hand of the Judge, the righteous Judge, death, eternal death!

O, mothers—mothers of little boys and mothers of little girls—to you who at times get so discouraged as you work in your heart gardens uprooting the seeds of evil, the Judge, the righteous Judge, has sent a wonderful message. It reads: "I will contend with him that contendeth with thee, and I will save thy children."

So as you cultivate, pray. And as you pray, have faith: and God "will save thy children."—The Watchman.

CURRENT THOUGHT

The Goal and the Victory of Life.

Let the Christian business man set here not to make a living, but to make a life. The thing here not to make a living, but to make a life. Therefore, Let the Christian business man get the idea that he is he is doing is either making or unmaking him. Therefore, the man who so attends to his business that it unfits him for the worthier occupations of life is a very poor kind of a Christian. He who so grinds at his business that he has no leisure for home companionships, for prayer services, for good reading, is an unworthy Christian. The man who is too tired to go to church on Sunday is the victim of an unchristian way of doing business. We go further and say that he who permits his business to so absorb him that he cannot give his children right example and oversight is not honest with his Lord and his own household. To-day thousands of so-called Christian homes are without Christian incentive or motive power. Children and young people are being thrust into a social environment so insidious that Christian ideals wither and die in a passing night. spiritual decline so apparent in so many homes of the American people is the product of an irresoluteness and waning parental influence.

Let the Christian business man know that he must give, give, give! This is his stewardship in life; this means his salvation. Many a man of wealth found it easier to give when he was earning five thousand dollars a year than when he was earning ten thousand dollars a year. It has been proven in the "survey" of wealthy men that they get stingler as a class as they move upward in wealth. They say it is "give, give, give!" Yes, but has it not been receive, receive, receive, all the time? Haven't you more than ten years ago? Do you want the Lord to stop giving to you? Then you ought to give back to him. Can you not recall the first furniture, the first home, the first automobile, the first sum in the bank? You have grown since then. Life has widened its circles, loved children have come, many treasures are yours, and you have prospered. God has honored you. Have you honored him? The man who does not honor God dies, dies, dies, just as fast as he refuses, until he is too little for either earth or heaven, and he goes out into outer darkness with the cast-off rubbish of his riches, having missed the goal of opportunity and laying up riches in heaven.

The burial of Emperor Charlemagne was most remarkable. He sat in a chair in which kings had been crowned. Upon him were imperial robes, in his hand was a Bible, his cold, dead finger pointing out the words of Jesus: "What shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" Money looks cheap in the light of such a statement! Let us purchase from Christ those things that make us rich in the things of God. This is the goal, and this is the victory of life.—From "The Glory of Going On."

No man should live with no higher purpose than to make money. A noble life is dominated by a purpose to lift others up to a purer and better life. While men must live in order to accomplish their mission in the world, yet the object of their living is not simply to make a living. Paul says: "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." (Phil. 1: 21.) He was constantly looking out for a nobler life. His one ambition was to win the prize at the end of the race. "Not that I have already obtained, or am already made perfect: but I press on, if so be that I may lay hold on that for which also I was laid hold on by Christ Jesus. Brethren, I count not myself yet to have laid hold: but one thing I do, forgetting the things which are behind, and stretching forward to the things which are before, I press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." (Phil. 3: 12-14.) In this life we are training for eternal life. This world is the training ground in which we develop men for immortal glory. The life that is dominated by right ideals cannot be a failure here nor a failure in the world to come.

Teaching Religion to Children.

"And thou shalt teach them [the commandments of the Lord] diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up." How exacting it all is; how wide and urgent

Everything is to be the minister of sugis the counsel! gestion; everything is to be made a kind of vehicle to convey these precious commandments to the minds and hearts of the children. All this has a very modern significance it is really an anticipation of the latest teaching of the most modern psychology; it is the exercise and practice of suggestion even before the theory of suggestion was evolved. Our merchant princes to-day have learned the secret, and they apply it as a principle of action to their businesses. A man wants to sell his wares; he wants to constrain the public to buy them; and, therefore, he makes everything suggest them—the railway train, the station, the tube, the sweet bit of meadow, the hillside, the sky line; everything is made the vehicle of suggestion, in the hope that one day necessity and memory may meet, and necessity may challenge memory to produce her treasures, and memory will ransack her wealth, and bring out the business man's suggestion and offer it to necessity, and she will be constrained to go and purchase the wares.

Precisely in that way, only in the way of anticipation is it with the early scriptural counsel concerning the commandments of the Lord. The common things are to be endowed with uncommon significance, and the little things are to speak about the great things. Familiar things are to speak about unfamiliar things—the home, the road, the outer gate, the house door; everything is to suggest the commandment of the Lord, until the Holy Law shall emerge everywhere; the commandment of the Almighty is to be so engraven on the souls of the children that the soul of every child shall be like a die, and it shall stamp an image upon everything, and the image shall be the image and superscription of God.

an image upon everything, and the image shall be the image and superscription of God.

What is it all about? It is about the moral law, the holy counsels of the Lord; it is about the early Scriptures. It was a very tiny Bible they had in those days, but all these suggestions are given that those commandments of God might be so written upon the mind and heart of the child as to fashion and color its destiny, and to adjust all that is vital in the child to accord with the divine will.—J. H. Jowett, in The Sunday School Chronicle.

Parents should teach the word of God to their children. Every father who understands the Bible would do well to assemble his children in the evening and teach them a chapter from Acts of the Apostles or some other part of the Bible. When children are young, they take hold of the truth much more readily than after their minds are more mature and are filled with worldly things and ambitions. The Bereans were commended for their nobility because they searched the Scriptures daily. No man can know the truth without studying it for himself. When men know the truth, they should love the truth, and then walk in the light of the truth. The man who wishes to make a good farmer should study the Bible; if a man wishes to be a successful, honorable merchant, he should study the Bible; if a man would be a successful banker, let him shape his life by the word of God. The Bible is the book that should be studied to teach us usefulness, success, and happiness in all the walks of life; and yet, sad to say, there is a disposition to neglect to study the word of God. Instead of having the Bible read and studied in the home every evening, people read the daily newspapers, read sensational trash, read of the crimes of the day and other things which are calculated to make a man vicious and not religious. It is not enough to have the Bible in our homes, but the Bible should be read and studied and practiced. May God speed the day when we will have more Bible study and reading among the people.

God will never relinquish his right to the existence, love, reverence, and service of souls. Indeed, Christ tells us that his children are still in his Father's hand, and the least saints shall not perish. "No man shall pluck them out of my Father's hand."—D. Thomas.

We never pray alone, but encircled by those whose wants are dear to us, and our prayers are buoyed up by the wants and aspirations of those who mingle in them.—C. T. Collins.

"Where I Record My Name."

BY S. WHITFIELD.

"An altar of earth thou shalt make unto me, and shalt sacrifice thereon thy burnt offerings, and thy peace offerings, thy sheep, and thine oxen: in all places where I record my name I will come unto thee, and I will bless thee." (Ex. 20: 24.) God had certain places where he promised to meet his people. Here we find that God recorded his name at the altar, and that he promised to meet man at it and bless him.

"But unto the place which the Lord your God shall choose out of all your tribes, to put his name there, even unto his habitation shall ye seek, and thither shalt thou come; and thither ye shall bring your burnt offerings, and your sacrifices, and your tithes, and heave offerings of your hand, and your vows, and your freewill offerings, and the firstlings of your herds and of your flocks; and there ye shall eat before the Lord your God, and ye shall rejoice in all that ye put your hand unto, ye and your households, wherein the Lord thy God hath blessed thee." (Deut. 12: 5-7.) God said he would choose a place where he would put his name, and to this place they were to bring their offerings.

"Take heed to thyself that thou offer not thy burnt offerings in every place that thou seest: but in the place which the Lord shall choose in one of thy tribes, there thou shalt offer thy burnt offerings, and there thou shalt do all that I command thee." (Deut, 12: 13, 14.) There is a very general impression in the religious world that God will meet, hear, bless, and save man anywhere, but such is not the teaching of the Bible. The altar was placed at the tabernacle, and there God recorded his name and met the people; and later the altar was taken to Jerusalem, the temple was builded, and at it God met them. The worship was set up at these places, and God met them in and through the worship that he had authorized.

"For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." (Matt. 18: 20.) To gather together in the name of Christ is to come together by his authority and to do his will.

Jesus has established his church, into which people enter to be saved, and through it we work to carry on all the Lord's work. Jesus has recorded his name in the church, and there he meets us and blesses us. By the same system by which a person becomes a Christian or a saved person he is made a member of the church. To be a saved person is to be a member of the church. It is one and the same thing.

Jesus has recorded his name in the church, and there he meets people, saves and blesses them through obedience to his commands and appointments. In all ages of the world God has recorded his name in his commands, appointments, and worship, and in obedience to these he has met his people.

People say that the church does not save us, and therefore a man can be a Christian without being a member of the church. They might as well say that Noah could have been saved out of the ark and that people can be saved out of Christ. To be in Christ is to be in the church, and to be out of the church is to be out of Christ.

All that we do and say as Christians should be in the name of Christ. That which we cannot do in the name of Christ we had better leave undone. "Unto him be glory in the church by Christ Jesus throughout all ages, world without end. Amen." (Eph. 3: 21.)

The church which is not a missionary church will be a missing church during the next fifty years.

"ALF and BOB TAXLOR, with their cloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of Delong Rice. Into one bour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox bound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippl River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase.

News From the Palmetto State

BY THOMAS H. BURTON

The disciples in Union were made to rejoice on the third Lord's day in April, when we met for the first time in our main auditorium, Although the building is not finished, we are exceedingly thankful that we have it so we can use it. The carpentry work is about finished, but we have neither stuccoed nor plastered yet. We had a very good audience at the morning service and six new ones at the evening service, which we thought was real good, considering the cool weather, We are very much enthused over the prospects in this State, and especially in this town. We have reason to believe that we are growing in favor with the people of this town; and with the house complete and a lot of hard work, we hope to accomplish much for the Lord this year. The house is giving all the members new courage and creating a determination that will certainly put to flight the evil one to some extent. We have begun a wide circulation of good tracts, which we feel is going to reach hundreds, even thousands, that we would never reach otherwise. I will distribute them throughout the town in the homes, in the places of business, on the trains, and everywhere I go, and will have the few brethren with whom I am in touch in the different parts of the State to use them in their neighborhoods. Our self-sacrificing, untiring, and determined brother, E. C. Fuqua, of Colorado, has made this work with the tracts possible. May God richly bless his labors. Brethren, we need hundreds of good men with Brother Fugua's determination and faith to help carry the gospel to the destitute fields. If five hundred of our preachers would do the work he has done, how many thousand who have never heard the simple gospel would be better taught? We are made to believe that millions of souls will stand up in judgment against us, to whom God has intrusted his will, and cry out against us that we never told the story to them. Brother, it is an awful thing to come face to face with our God, if we have nothing but leaves and rusted talents to lay at his feet. Somebody has well said: "Nothing but leaves! The Spirit grieves over years of a wasted life."

Prospects are good for locating a few good preachers in this State, if we had support for them. On my recent trip among some of the congregations there was promised for our building about fifteen hundred dollars; and as we are about this much in debt at this time, we would very much appreciate it if these who have promised, and also the ones who have contemplated sending us a contribution, would send

Belle Haven Orphan Home,

BY JENNIE CLARKE.

The health record is excellent. We are seldom sick in this delightful retreat, fanned by the breezes of South Texas, unless contagion is introduced. We have received one more little child into the Home, and have promised to accept four more in the near future.

The years are gliding by, and the responsibilities and relationships are increasing. Our children are marrying, some go to seek employment, and others to enter advanced schools; and we are now beginning to realize more forcibly the good which has been accomplished during the twenty-two years of our labor here, and how we have touched and influenced life, not only in Texas, but in other States, through marriages, our schools, preaching, and Bible study. Haven now has a large number of grandchildren in Texas and several other States.

I am pleased to announce that two of our girls will graduate from High School the twenty-seventh day of May -Annie Peters and Vera Holland. Many of the readers of the Gospel Advocate will remember that Annie Peters has been reared in this institu tion; she has now grown into a selfreliant Christian girl. She has recently won first honors in the literary contest in the University Interscholastic League held in Caldwell County. She has served as secretary of the Home, and pursued her studies at the same time, for several years; and I think it would be a fitting tribute of appreciation for her faithful service if the churches and individuals would send some gifts, and most especially cash, for the purpose of being held in trust by the superintendent of this Home, to be used for her benefit as needed. This would be a most practical way to aid a deserving girl whose father and mother died early in her life, leaving her without any money or estate. As I can give only my labor to help my big family, I trust that the brethren and sisters will render special aid to them. It is

If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be fairly described as "a carbonated, flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea—1 cupful______1.54 gr.
(hot) (5 fl. oz.)

Green tea—1 glassful_____2.02 gr. (cold) (8 fl. oz., exclusive of ice)

Coca-Cola-1 drink, 8 fl. oz.____.61 gr. (prepared with 1 fl. oz. of syrup)

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

"Preachers vs. Bandits."

BY J. B. NELSON.

Under the above heading, the following clipping appeared in the Dallas (Texas) Morning News of recent date:

"A Paris preacher, returning from a point in Oklahoma, where he had held a week's revival, was robbed of nine dollars, being the entire amount found on or about his person. We are wondering if that constituted his entire compensation for the week's labor in that portion of the Lord's vineyard? If it was, he had better confine his activities on this side of the line," (Denison Herald.)

may have been the kind of preacher who does not worry over his There are such cash compensation. preachers. There are preachers, a plenty of them, who count it a suc-cessful meeting if they have done good, even though they may not have been paid a dollar for their work. And the robbers who took the nine dollars away from the Paris preacher were just like all the other thugs, bandits, murderers, and thieves. They had no more consideration for a poor man with nine dollars than they would have had for a nabob with a million in the bank. Some moist sentimentalists are always ready to find excuses for thugs and thieves by saying it is "society's fault," or something else equally silly. Another type of pro-fessional sobber, the sort who make a practice of abusing those who own property, frequently palliate the bandit's crimes by saying he only took from those who could "afford it." Even if that were true, it would be nothing to mention; but it isn't true. A bandit is a thief and a thug who would attack a pauper as readily as a capitalist, and perhaps brain the former for having no more than a nickel or two. The professional hijacker would not only take candy away from a baby, but kick the baby if it offered resistance. The disposition in many quarters to belittle the efforts of the preachers is, as a matter of cold fact, playing into the hands of the bandits. We are having a reign of banditry largely because the work of the church is less effective than it should be; and it is less effective because the people who ought to back up the church are, in large part, selfish and sordid and cynical and, at the least, indiffer-If the world should by any chance revert to paganism, it will not be the fault of the preachers. It will be the fault of those citizens who failed to stand by the church when it was trying to stand by civilization,

The preacher that was held up or robbed as stated was our beloved brother, D. T. Carlton, of Paris, Texas, a former student of the Nashville Bible School (David Lipscomb College). Brother Carlton is one of those preachers that would go and preach, pay or no pay. He has done much free work in the Master's vineyard in Texas and Oklahoma. I have known him to give to the church treasury in Paris when I knew that he needed money for his own personal use. Brother Carlton loves the cause of Christ and is ever ready to sacrifice for it. He is a good man, but no better than the apostle Paul; and he fell among thieves and robbers, and thanked God that he could suffer for Christ and his cause. If that robber does not repent, he will have to face the judgment with his sins. Brother Carlton prays and trusts the Lord, yet he was robbed. The fault was neither his nor God's, but the devil's and his agent's. Sin is abroad in the land; so let us face it and condemn it with God's power, the gospel of Jesus Christ. Preach it and live it!

Without the resurrection we are groping, helpless, futile dreamers whose every labor is doomed to destruction, whose every hope is fated to wither to dust; with the Resurrection we are glad children of a loving Father, and our faces are set toward Home. No honest toil shall be fruitless, no vision of faith fail of fruition: for our life here is but the seedtime, and the eternal harvest lies before.-Exchange.

Pacific Christian Academy, Graton, Cal.

BY O. W. GARDNER.

During the seven months our school has been in session we have had but little to say in the papers regarding our school work. Ours is a school of action rather than words. Words fail to convey an adequate idea of the work that is being done in this community in the school line. Besides the beautiful harmony existing in the immediate school activities, there is also a remarkable cooperative spirit among the friends and patrons. So far as I have been able to learn, there has not been an occasion for even a harsh rebuke, and absolutely no occasion for discipline, during the whole seven months. A caution, a reminder, or a request brings the desired results.

The conduct of our pupils everywhere is highly commendable. At home they are more thoughtful, better contented, and more respectful; in church, more attentive; on the highway, less boisterous; and a general upward tendency seems evident. Furthermore, the whole community has caught the spirit of team work, clearly manifested in all our public meetings. The Friday-evening students' meetings are fine, and the Saturdayevening literary programs cannot be surpassed. Our large assembly room is crowded to overflowing each Saturday evening. The audiences at the church meetings are large, and are growing in numbers and interest.

With these favorable factors and with teachers whose hearts are wrapped up in the well-being of every pupil, we expect to grow. Graton is a small place, only a wide place in the road; but we have enough convenlences-electric lights all over the country and electric cars every hour-to make living in our midst comfortable. We have no wind, electric, or dust storms, and no freezes-flowers in the open all the winter.

Brethren interested in a good school or church community on the Pacific Coast may write for information.

Happiness.

" Happiness," according to the original use of the term, is that which happens or comes to one by a hap-that is, by an outward befalling or favorable condition. Some good is conceived, out of the soul, which comes to it as a happy visitation, stirring in the receiver a pleasant excitement. It is what money yields or will buydress, equipage, fashion, luxuries of the table; or it is settlement in lifeindependence, love, applause, admiration, honor, glory, or the more conventional and public benefits of rank, political standing, victory, power. All these stir a delight in the soul which is not of the soul or its qualities, but from without. Hence they are looked upon as happening to the soul, and in that sense create happiness. But joy differs from that as being of the soul itself, originating in its quality; and this appears in the original form of the word, which, instead of suggesting a hap, literally denotes a leap or spring. The Latin has "exult," which literally means a leaping forth. The radical idea, then, of joy is this: that the soul is in such order and beautiful harmony, has such springs of life opened in its own blessed virtues, that it pours forth a sovereignty from within. The motion is outward, not toward, as we conceive it to be in happiness. It is not the bliss of condition, but of character. The soul has a light in its own luminous center, where God is, which gilds the darkest night of external adversity-a music charming all the stormy discords of outward injury and pain into beats of rhythm and melodies of peace,-H. Bushnell.

It is almost as presumptuous to think you can do nothing as to think you can do everything. The latter folly supposes that God exhausted himself when he made you, but the former supposes that he made a hopeless blunder when he made you, which is quite as impious for you to think. -Selected.

Old Baptists.

BY ALFRED ELLMORE.

I have received three letters from an editor who wishes me to make a club for his paper, "The Old Baptist." But this editor evidently does not know that I belong to a church which is fully revealed in the New Testament, and that I am pledged to its Author to give to it my undivided support in divine things.

But I kindly write for information, which, no doubt, this editor can give. (1) What is a Baptist? In New Testamen lore, he is a baptizer, and, strictly speaking, no one is a Baptist except he baptize. (2) Would old baptizers be more efficient in administering the rite than young baptizers? (3) Are all the members of his church baptizers? Likely some of them are women, and do they baptize? (4) But why be so solicitous about a rite that a whole church is required to administer it, which is neither for the remission of sins nor to make more sure the entrance into eternal life? (5) Perhaps he might reply: "It is the initiatory rite into our church." But why be so anxious about getting people into "his church," when they can be saved without entering into his church, or, for that matter, without going into any other church which is unknown in the New Testament?

I am sorry that it becomes necessary to give correction to a people who have so many good qualities, and my only reason for this is that they are depending for eternal life on an institution which has a foreign name, a doubtful baptism, communion and fellowship which were not known for more than one thousand years after the ascension of Christ.

Echoes From East Tennessee.

BY G. W. FARMER.

The services for every Lord's day in April have been good with the Cleveland church. Barring the fact that we have had quite a good deal of sickness in some families which has deprived them of attending, we had a good attendance, and the interest continues to grow. We have had two baptisms and one added by commendation recently. Other good prospects yet. I believe there will be several to obey the gospel soon, and hope they will before I have to go to my protracted-meeting work the first of July.

Brother W. C. Phillips and Brother Rozar have filled all of their appointments, with good and interesting audiences at all of the services.

On the first Lord's day in this month Brother Rozar was with the church at Rome, Ga. He reported good services, with one baptism.

Let me say here, if we have brethren and sisters who would like to seek homes in a good country where they can make a good living, and make it easily, where there are good schools and good opportunities for employment, come this way. We have a great fruit and berry-growing country. Strawberries are now coming into the cannery, and they will be shipping north by carload lots in a few days. By the first of June they will be shipping peaches by carload lots. This is a good country for people to get good homes; and if we can get more families who are members of the church up in this country, it will give us strength and enable us to spread the gospel much faster. I shall be glad to give any information I can leading to a conclusion.

The Facts of the Telephone Situation in Tennessee

By J. EPPS BROWN, President

CUMBERLAND TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CO.

(Incorporated)

The telephone industry in Tennessee faces a crisis unparalleled during its entire history—the cumulative effect of conditions during the past four years—conditions which the Company was powerless to influence or control. The only cure for this condition is such increase in the charges for telephone service as will produce a revenue sufficient to pay the costs involved in rendering this service and leave such a margin of profit as will equal a reasonable return upon the value of its property within the State devoted to public use, and as will restore the Company's credit to the point where it may obtain the large sums of additional new capital which must be raised if the public is to be supplied with adequate facilities and service.

The following figures show the results of its operations in Tennessee during the past five years:

Investment	$11,812,347.48	$12,381,482.12	$13,048,580.31	$13,885,118.35	$15,683,301.41
Gross revenue	3,018,782.90	3,234,753.60	3,439,007,52	4,248,996.97	4,944,567.49
Total expenses	2,524,715.65	2,702,172.90	3,104,565,78	3,798,695.27	4,638,783.09
Net revenue	494,067.25	532,580,70	334,441.74	450,301.70	305,784.40
Per cent of net earnings to investment	4.19%	4.30%	2.59%	3.04%	1.95%

This Company has never earned a profit equal to the legal rate of interest in the State of Tennessee, so there were no excess earnings in the past. These figures show the actual operations in this State.

There is no question of stocks or bonds or capitalization of any kind involved. These figures represent the original cost of the actual physical property of the Company used by the public of Tennessee, the actual expenses incurred in operating that property, and the gross and net revenue received—nothing more and nothing less.

It is obvious to any business man that the revenue is not sufficient to properly operate the business, and that the present rates are confiscatory.

My Birthday.

"So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom."

In the spirit of a little child I am going to take you into my confidence and tell you that to-day (May 1) is my birthday. Never mind about the age; that is merely incidental. I have no mercenary motive in giving you this bit of unimportant information, but mention it to lead up to some lessons that are suggested by a birthday-my birthday, your birthday, anybody's birthday. Seriously, I have always approached this day with the fervent wish and prayer that it might be the beginning of a more useful life. As I see the matter, birthdays should not only be regarded as mile stones along the journey of life, but as possible turning points. Life is full of turning points, from bad to good or from good to bad, from bad to worse or from good to better. To a busy man a birthday does not mean a day of rest or a place to stop, but a plunge into the activities of another year.

"Are there not, dear Michael,
Two points in the adventure of the diver?
One, when a beggar, he prepares to plunge?
One, when a prince, he rises with his pearl?
Festus, I plunge,"

Turning Points.

We should bear in mind that other people besides ourselves have to do with our turning points. It has been said that "a friend is one of life's best blessings. To be a friend is to be lifted a little way toward heaven each day." But much depends upon the kind of friend you are. It is a fine thing to have a friend from whom you will not only take words of encouragement, but words of rebuke when necessary. Solomon said: "Reprove a wise man, and he will love thee." The force and significance of Proverbs are more clearly seen when they are studied in the light of scripture examples. David is a fine example of a man wise enough to take reproof. And it seemed that he never could have reached the turning point from sin to sorrow without the help of a friend. Left to himself, we find him living in sin, arrogant and self-complaisant in his passionate love for Bath-sheba. But when Nathan, the best friend he ever had, crosses his pathway, he brings the great king of Israel to a knowlede of his sin by relating a simple parable and fearlessly puts the blame where it belongs: "Thou art the man." It is useless to ponder on what David might have said in reply. He might have told Nathan to attend to his own business, or he might have struck him in the mouth. But he did neither; he accepted the reproof like a man and turned from his sin in an agony of grief and sorrow. And later on he set up the prophet Nathan in the place of honor. He never turned his back upon the man who dared to tell him the truth. No one of the disciples was ever reproved so severely as Simon Peter, yet this disciple loved his Lord ever afterwards with a rich and rare devotion

Shortly after the resurrection two disciples were walking on the way to Emmaus, a little town about eight miles from Jerusalem. "And it came to pass, that, while they communed together and reasoned, Jesus himself drew near, and went with them." But they did not recognize Jesus. During the course of their conversation he rebuked them sharply, saying: "O fools, and slow of heart to believe all that the prophets have spoken." They must have taken that rebuke in the right spirit; for as they drew near to the village and Jesus would have gone further, they constrained him to stop and sup with them. "Reprove a man, and he will love thee." Thank God for the men and women who have stood with us in the crises of our lives and have dared to tell us the truth!

Looking Backward.

On our birthdays our minds easily revert to the days of childhood. Like Timothy, I was fortunate in having a godly mother and grandmother, and a father who was both exemplar and friend. They all tried to bring me up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." Many times I have been conscious of failure on my own part, but for their work and influence there has never been a single regret. In this connection I recall the words of F. M. Dowling, in which he described the first time he came up close to a really great man. He said: "There was to be a great political meeting. James A. Garfield was to be the speaker. I knew for some days that he was to be a guest in our home. How proud I was! I think I mentioned it to some of the boys. The day came, and with it the great man. I kept as near him as I dared. I was wonderfully impressed when he gave thanks at the dinner table. I followed his carriage in the procession to keep my eyes on the great man.

I elbowed my way through the immense crowd in the courthouse yard and got right up to the speaker's stand. It seemed to me that the gods had come down to dwell among men. I must have been his most attentive listener that day. The spell cast over me in that day long ago was not broken-nor was it then, nor is it now." Friends, what name would you give to the crime, if James A. Garfield had been neglected when a boy, or if his life had been turned in the wrong direction? Let me say to mothers and fathers and teachers and all that bear any responsibility toward childhood, whoever lays his hand on a young life to mar or misdirect it, or fails to lay his hand to give it right direction, is guilty of the highest treason against society. against every good institution, against humanity, against God. During one of our Savior's last appearances upon the earth he said to Simon Peter: "Simon, son of Jonas, lovest thou me more than these?" Simon Peter had been wonderfully changed. Before the crucifixion he had boasted greatly. Others might basely desert the Lord, but he would follow him to prison and to death. But he had failed at the crucial test; in the zero hour he had shown the white feather. Now his attitude is one of meekness and submission. "Yea, Lord, thou knowest that I love thee." Jesus' answer is very significant. "Feed my lambs." Whoever loves the Lord and feeds his lambs has the true marks of apostolic succession.

"If You Let Go, I Will."

There is the story of a clergyman who with his wife and son ventured on an unsafe bridge, so that all their lives were greatly imperiled. The father reached the shore, but saw with anguish that he could give no help to his loved ones without other assistance. He went in search of it, and in the meantime the mother and son clung to some pieces of timber lodged in the midst of the cold, fast-flowing current. It was their only hope of safety. After a while the mother's hands grew numb, and her slight frame wearied out with the effort of holding on. She felt that the struggle of life could go on but a little longer. Her boy was young and vigorous. He might hold out till help came. With a mother's loving tenderness she spoke her words of farewell and gave such counsel as only a mother can give when she looks into eternity. But she was not prepared for the response: "Mother, if you let go, I will." That was a new anguish. She felt that she held his destiny in her hands. She must live and struggle on for his sake. This same thing is true of thousands of other mothers. And the pity of it is that so many of them are letting go of the very essentials of true happiness. They are letting go of God and the Bible and the church, which is the pillar and ground of the truth. They are filling young hearts with vanity and worldliness and love of pleasure, which drown all serious thought. The souls of our children are being lost because of our unfaithfulness. Perhaps we have given proper emphasis to the commandment, "Children, obey your parents;" but we have forgotten to emphasize our own duty expressed by the words, "Parents, love your children." The time has come when picture shows and theaters and clubs are a greater menace to grown folks than they are to children. The yielding to these appeals is undermining the greatest of our social institutions, the American home. We shudder at the thought of some act of ours involving the loss of the soul of our child, and yet at the very time we are performing such an act. God have mercy on a mother who so forgets the sacred boon and bond of motherhood that she does not throw all the power of her influence and life for the good of her child and the safety of its soul! We need to hear again the Master's solemn warning: "Whose shall offend one of these little ones which believe in me, it were better for him that a millstone were hanged about his neck, and that he were drowned in the depths of the sea."

"Whatever Comes."

Yes, it is my birthday. Will I have another one year hence? I do not know. Sometimes I become so discouraged that I am almost tempted to say, "I do not care." The road will be rough and hard, but there will surely be some flowers along the way. What I do, I must do quickly; "for the night cometh, when no man can work." comes to me at this hour a fragrant recollection of a beautiful passage: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." (Prov. 3: 5, 6.) I find abundant verification of this promise in the Bible. There came out against good King Asa and his army Zerah, the Ethiopian, with a million men and three hundred chariots. The two armies are drawn up in battle array. But good King Asa does not depend upon his army. He turns his face toward heaven and prays: "Lord, it is nothing with thee to help, whether with many, or with them that have no power: help us, O Lord our God; for we rest on thee, and in thy name we go against this multitude." (2 Chron. 14: 11.) There can be but one sequel to such a prayer: "The Lord smote the Ethiopians before Asa, and before Judah; and the Ethiopians fled." What was the secret of the great victory? You will find it in Asa's prayer, in his trust. What was the secret of Hezekiah's victory? His trust in God. What is the keynote of every good man's success? His trust in God. Whether you read the annals of the just in Psalms, in Proverbs, in Chronicles, or in Kings, the lesson is always the same: "Trust in the Lord with all thine heart; and lean not unto thine own understanding. In all thy ways acknowledge him, and he shall direct thy paths." Whether you read it in the life of Nathaniel or Cornelius or Paul, "the path of the righteous is as the shining light," and "the memory of the just is blessed," Whether we read it in the life of Ahab or Balaam or Jezebel, "The way of the wicked is as darkness," and "the prosperity of fools shall destroy them."

So near together are the sources of success and failure that we launch upon one or the other without knowing that we have taken any decisive step. The decisive act may not be recognized as such until long afterwards; and because we do not know which step will be greatest in its results, our only safety is in making every step in the right direction. "So teach us to number our days, that we may apply our hearts unto wisdom." Help us to lay hold upon the promise: "The eternal God is our refuge, and underneath thee are the everlasting arms." We cannot afford to take a single step without Jesus. If we have kept him out of our lives, we should hasten to let him in; for there can never be true happiness without him.

- "I want that Christ should be near me, Whatever comes, whatever comes; I want his presence to cheer me,
 - Whatever comes, whatever comes."

No love is so high as that which prefers the real interests of its object before his present comfort, which aims at permanent good rather than momentary satisfaction. We often seek to gratify another's feelings rather than to promote his good. But Christ is not a parent who gives his children everything they cry for, but everything that is best for them. He withholds a lower mercy that he may impart a greater. Instead of raising Lazarus from a bed of sickness, he raised him from the grave.—A. Roberts.

Satan will seldom come to a Christian with a gross temptation. A green log and a candle may be safely left together; but bring a few shavings, then some small sticks, and then larger, and you may soon bring the green log to ashes.—Selected.

What Does It Mean?

BY JOHN T. LEWIS.

"Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned: and turn away from them." (Rom. 16: 17.)

More than two years ago I asked Brother Kurfees if he thought this language of Paul would have any reference to the instrumental-music and society folks, but he returned my article unanswered.

I suppose nothing has done more to alienate brethren and to divide the body of Christ—I mean that part of the church which is not "among Baptists, Catholics, the Christian Church, Congregationalists, Dunkards, Episcopalians, Lutherans, Methodists, and Presbyterians"—than the introduction of societies and instrumental music into the work and worship of the Lord. Either the ones who introduce these things cause the divisions, or the ones who object to the use of them. If the ones who introduce them cause the trouble, we must mark them and turn away from them; but if we cause the divisions and confusion by objecting to these things, then they must turn away from us. There must be some turning away done.

I have always believed that the instrumental-music and society folks were the "troublers in Israel;" so, wanting to do my duty as I understood it, I have turned away from them. But it seems now from what Brother Kurfees says that I have been following the wrong course all these years.

But since Brother Kurfees speaks of the "patient" and "brotherly" dealing of "all the editors of the Gospel Advocate" with "Brother Lewis and others," I venture to unbosom my troubles to him once more, and ask him to help me over the hill. Now, without speaking of dreams and visions, I will come to facts, that Brother Kurfees may have my trouble clearly before him; and I hope he will deal with it in that "patient" and "brotherly" spirit of which he speaks in the Gospel Advocate of February 17, 1921.

More than a year ago Brother Z. T. Sweeney, a man of no mean ability and a bold defender of instrumental music in the worship, came to Nashville, Tenn., and delivered four sermons in the "Vine Street Christian Church." Four of our "loyal" preachers were called on and led in prayer in these meetings. Afterwards, thinking, of course, if it was not wrong for them to lead the prayers, it could not be wrong to speak of it, and that they would not be ashamed of it. I made mention of the fact in a public way, and one of the editors of the Gospel Advocate replied to me with considerable feeling and said: "I am loyal to the truth, Brother Lewis, but I also know what common courtesy is." Brother Kurfees, speaking of having the "Christian Church folks" to "conduct the song service and lead in prayer" in his protracted meetings, says: "The refusal to do so is in perfect harmony with the general tendency of the little sect of modern times which, to the exclusion of others who are Christians, calls itself 'the church of Christ.' "

Just think! For nearly twenty years, when I verily thought I was doing God's service, my course was showing to the world that I did not know what "common courtesy is" and was inevitably consigning me to "the little sect of modern times which, to the exclusion of others who are Christians, calls itself 'the church of Christ." And, worse still, I have not seen the light yet. If Brother Kurfees will show me that Rom. 16: 17 has no reference to one dealing with the instrumental-music and society folks, then the way is clear to me. One editor of the Gospel Advocate gave as his reason for leading in prayer for a champion of instrumental music: "I know what common courtesy is." Another editor, giving his reason for having the "Christian Church folks" "to conduct the song service and lead in prayer" in his protracted meetings, says: "While we should never join with them in doing wrong, it is certainly not improper to have them join with us in doing right." Now, I am not trying to show the inconsistency of these editors of the Gospel Advocate, as Brother Kurfees said I was trying to do in the issue of February 17. I am after the truth, and that is what Brother Kurfees says "all the editors of the Gospel Advocate are trying" to teach.

I have never claimed to be, and certainly never wanted to be, a member of anything but "the church of Christ." In my article of February 17 I said: "When I use the term 'church of Christ' in preaching or making announcements, I speak of the church which Jesus Christ said he would build, or a body of baptized believers who meet together on the 'first day of the week to break bread.'"

If Brother Kurfees will show me what I will have to leave out or put into the above statement to make it scriptural, and at the same time get me out of that "little sect of modern times," I will appreciate it.

Brother Kurfees, explaining in his "recent series of articles" why he did not use the term "church of Christ" in his announcements, said: "The fact is, in the denominational environment of to-day, with its greatly confused and misleading parlance, it is impracticable to describe and differentiate a New Testament church without a circumlocution." The truth will make us free; let us have it.

Home Again.

BY SARAH ANDREWS.

Several weeks of much-needed rest and recuperation have passed since my arrival home. I was pretty well used up before leaving Japan, and the added strain of the rough voyage and trip across the continent left me mentally and physically tired; hence this long delay in getting anything ready for the papers. I regret the delay and ask forgiveness of all who may be interested. To all who helped make possible this trip to the homeland I offer my sincere thanks and appreciation. I am gaining strength, and hope as soon as expedient to return to service among the Japanese.

It was with a feeling of sadness mingled with joy that I said good-by to the many friends in Japan-of sorrow, because I love them; of joy, because I could leave some of them, at least, happy in the Lord who bought them. The parting words of appreciation from the people, the trunk full of gifts, the three hundred or more people who came to the station in Okitsu to see me off, and the many who were standing on either side of the street who could not leave their work, but came out to make their parting bow as I passed, the farewell meetings, etc., are a few of the things that cause me to thank the Lord and take courage. More than the concourse of people that greeted me at the station, more than the costliest gift received, may I say, I appreciate the fact that both at the prayer meeting in my home the morning I left Okitsu and at the farewell meeting given in Tokyo the thirteenth chapter of First Corinthians was selected as a Bible reading. If the service the Lord has permitted me to render has been taken by those to whom I have ministered as prompted by love for the Master and love for human souls, I rejoice.

The work at Okitsu continued encouraging to the extent that I considered staying on the field six months longer. Several were earnestly studying, and I was sorry to leave before they were baptized. I did my best to teach them, and, to our great joy, on Christmas Day, after a lesson in church history, one of the two who were most interested came and privately asked to be baptized. The other wished to be, but his parents would not let him come. I wrote Brother Fujimori, and he very kindly came, and the young man was baptized on January 4, the day before I left Okitsu. This was the son of the city school principal, and had been an earnest member of the Sunday-afternoon Bible class for some time; and being quite a Bible student, I trust he will prove to be a great help in the work. He graduates at Normal this spring.

My boat, the Steamship Columbia, sailed from Yokohama on January 6, and we landed at San Francisco on January 26 after a record-breaking rough voyage. Upon the announcement of land after such a voyage as this, one can but sing: "Praise God, from whom all blessings flow!" I hold in fond memory and appreciation the kindnesses shown me at Honolulu by the Bowmans and Pennells, the day spent in the Paradise of the Pacific, and the hospitality and love shown me at San Francisco and Los Angeles. O, the joy unspeakable when I reached my home and loved ones here on February 4! I have been holding pretty tight to that famous apron string since that day.

Flesh and Spirit.

BY C. E. HOLT.

Here is a text we might study with profit, and especially should Christians give it serious thought: "For the mind of the flesh is death; but the mind of the Spirit is life and peace: because the mind of the flesh is enmity against God; for it is not subject to the law of God, neither indeed can it be." (Rom. 8: 6, 7.) Here flesh and Spirit are antithetically considered. By the term "flesh" the entire human body and mind are included. The word "nature" is used when both are meant. This is a strong term when thus used.

Salvation from sin, in a strictly spiritual sense, means a constitutional change. The gospel remedy is not a mere treatment of the symptoms of sin as a disease, but it strikes right at the very heart of the malady. Hence, an impulsive response to the gospel call, which is so common to-day in the special efforts called "protracted meetings," does not meet the gospel requirements. The churches are filled with people who are not genuinely convicted nor truly converted, and by large numbers who are temporarily brought under the magnetic power of the preacher. Why are more people converted under the preaching of some men than of others? This question is asked upon the assumption that the preachers under consideration preach the gospel in its fullness, in its entirety. You are bound to admit that there is a difference. What makes the difference? Is it the human element that enters into the work?

Paul preached the gospel in Ephesus. There were many converted. He afterwards wrote them thus: "And you did he make alive, when ye were dead through your trespasses and sins, wherein ye once walked according to the course of this world, according to the prince of the powers of the air, of the spirit that now worketh in the sons of disobedience; among whom we also all once lived in the lusts of our flesh, doing the desires of the flesh and of the mind, and were by nature children of wrath, even as the rest." (Eph. 2: 1-3.) They were by "nature" children of wrath. Their nature, then, must be changed. Their evil practices grew out of their evil nature, and did not make the evil nature. It was the evil nature that must be destroyed. Here we should make a discrimination. The flesh-the physical man-before and after conversion has its legitimate desires. Here we might, if space permitted, enumerate a long list of things which belong peculiarly to the flesh, and which are perfectly right and proper. Eating food, drinking water, the propagation of the race in the divinely appointed way, making homes, loving and providing for our offspring, serving our fellow man and being in turn served by him, love of country, love of art, love of the beautiful in nature and a desire to beautify our homes and make them places of pleasure, love of music, and many other things which go to make up human life and human happiness—all these, of course, belong to the fleshly man, and yet are to be encouraged and cultivated and approved. But to use any or all of these things in a way that will damage ourselves and others constitutes sin. It is perfectly legitimate to make money—that is, to make it in honorable ways; but the desire to get money dishonestly, by trickery or fraud, is evidence of a sinful nature.

Here we have a list made out to order and which serves our purpose here. I transcribe it. "Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these: fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, sorcery, enmities, strife, jealousies, wraths, factions, divisions, parties, envyings, drunkenness, revelings, and such like." (Gal. 5: 19-21.) The doing of the above things emanates from the heart; therefore, to effect a cure, the heart must be changed. means a change of nature. What effects the change? This change is the most marvelous of all the marvelous things in the world. God furnishes the remedy. It is a Spiritrevealed remedy and a Spirit-applied remedy. The Spirit uses a sharp, double-edged instrument with which to pierce the sinful heart of man. This language, of course, is, in a sense, figurative; but the figure is readily understood. This instrument is called "the word of God." Here is the definition: "For the word of God is living, and active, and sharper than any two-edged sword, and piercing even to the dividing of soul and spirit, of both joints and marrow, and quick to discern the thoughts and intents of the heart." (Heb. 4: 12.)

On Pentecost, when the Holy Spirit came in his worldconvicting power, it is said: "Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, Brethren, what shall we do?" (Acts 2: 37.) Then it was the proper time and the proper place to give the information needed and sought by those whose hearts were pierced by the divine word preached by men armed therewith. And here is the answer sought: "And Peter said unto them, Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." (Acts 2: 38.) This means that the Holy Spirit himself is the gift promised. God gives the Holy Spirit unto all who obey him. (Acts 5: 32.) "If any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." (Rom. 8: 9.) That means one must have the Holy Spirit or he cannot belong to Christ-cannot be a part of his spiritual body. "And because ye are sons, God hath sent forth the Spirit of his Son into your hearts, crying, Abba, Father." (Gal. 4: 6.) It is impossible to have spiritual life without the Holy Spirit -just as impossible as it is to have natural life without the "pneuma," or spirit. James (2: 26) says: "The body apart from the spirit is dead." Even so in the Christian. A Christian without the Holy Spirit is dead. "It is the Spirit that giveth life; the flesh profiteth nothing: the words that I have spoken unto you are spirit, and are life." (John 6: 63.) The words used by Jesus in his teaching constitute the vehicle or channel through which the power and influence of the Spirit affect and control the heart and life of his followers. But the words are not the Spirit any more than the bread and the fruit of the vine were the real body and blood of Christ, when Jesus said of the bread, "Take, eat, this is my body;" and of the cup: "Drink ye all of it; for this is my blood of the covenant, which is poured out for many unto remission of sins." (Matt. 26: 26-28.) Jesus here speaks by way of metonymy, as we would say a man sets a good table, meaning that the table is supplied with good food.

God's people partake of the divine nature as the nature of the parent is seen in the child. Now we have Paul's explanation in regard to the evidence of the indwelling Spirit. He is not treating the subject as regards the miraculous working of the Spirit, but as to its unmistakable presence in individuals. He calls it "fruit." This is a fine name for it, and we notice the statement. "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, kindness, goodness, faithfulness, meekness, self-control; against such there is no law." (Gal. 5: 22, 23.) Such fruit cannot be borne by men and women while in the flesh, or while the fleshly nature is dominant and unsubdued. There is a spirit that works in the children of disobedience. (See Eph. 2: 2.) In vain may men and women try to bear such fruit without the Holy Spirit.

A Visit to Nashville, Tenn.

BY J. D. TANT.

On my trip to North Carolina, I was glad to spend two days in Nashville, Tenn. In the long ago I held thirteen meetings in and around Nashville. It had been fourteen years since my last meeting there, and many have been the changes during that time. I found that David Lipscomb, Joe McPherson, and many other noted soldiers of the cross had crossed the great divide: yet I found many I had known in the past still on the firing line and pushing the work along all lines. I also found that the brethren had built up some new congregations and had struck some wonderful bargains in buying sectarian church houses at less than half cost. But the desire to build church houses costing fifty and eighty thousand dollars, to appeal to the pride of the flesh, to be like the sects around them, has not yet taken root in Nashville like it has in Texas. I was also glad to talk to Brethren McQuiddy (who is much overworked), Grant, Srygley, and Smith, and to learn that the Gospel Advocate is still following the old landmarks marked out and followed by Lipscomb so long, is advocating no special hobby, and even believes the gospel strong enough to criticize and condemn even its best friends who would go off into materialism and future kingdom foolishness. I also found them teaching that morality and a clean life and honest debt-paying are all essential to a gospel minister. I have always liked the Advocate on all things, except on sect baptism; but I have never been debarred from its pages on that account, and even debated that proposition with Harding in the Advocate in the long ago. More, I never found one of those brethren so silly as to demand my indorsement by the brethren on the other side before they could debate the proposition with me. After all, I consider the Advocate one of our greatest papers, and would be glad to see it in the homes of many more thousands of members of the church of Christ.

While in Nashville I had opportunity, through Brother Cawthon, who was holding a meeting at the Green Street Church, to preach one sermon for him; and I met many old-timers that I had met in the good meetings I had held there long ago. I also visited the David Lipscomb College, and found many boys and girls there studying for higher positions in life. I learned that the students had a college dog that was worthless and that they had voted to give it to the biggest fool who spoke there this year; and they not only gave me the dog, but begged me to take it home with me. But as Srygley and Smith had both spoken there and C. R. Nichol was soon to follow me, I felt like it would be an imposition on them to take the dog; so I left it for some man who doesn't live in Arkansas.

All in all, I had a fine time, and hope to meet those brethren again in coming years.

I am now preaching the gospel in the mountains of North Carolina, and hope all will read my next article about this country.

Bits of Verse.

ARRANGED BY CLARA COX EPPERSON.

Ah, Christ, that it were possible
For one short hour to see
The souls we loved, that they might tell us
What and where they be. —Alfred Tennyson.

MEMORY.

I have a room whereinto no one enters Save I myself, alone: There sits a blessed memory on a throne, Where my life centers;

While winter comes and goes—0, tedious comer!—And while its nip-wind blows;
While blcom the bloodless lily and warm rose Of lavish summer.

If any should force entrance, he might see there One buried, yet not dear,
Before whose face I no more bow my head
Or bend my knee there;

But often in my worn life's autumn weather I watch there with clear eyes,
And think how it will be in Paradise
When we're together. —Christina Rossetti.

ECHOES AND MEMORIES.

Music, when soft voices die, Vibrates in the memory; Odors, when sweet violets sicken, Live within the sense they qicken.

Rose leaves, when the rose is dead,
Are heaped for the beloved's bed;
And so thy thoughts when thou art gone,
Love itself shall slumber on. —F. B. Shelley.

DEAD ROSES.

It is said when one dies
The flowers he loved and tended so tenderly
Will not live, but droop their sorrowing heads and die
With longing for the gentle touch of vanished hand,
And for the daily presence of the one they loved.

Your roses thus have died,
Alone, deserted in the garden that you loved;
One by one they mutely drooped their lovely heads,
Refusing their fragrants greetings to passers-by;
Perhaps, Dear Heart, they perfume Paradise for you.
—Clara Cox Epperson.

Loneliness.

There are moments when the soul feels itself to be alone in the universe. The neighbor across the way and the faintest star in the sky seem equally remote, equally uncomprehending. Every great inward crisis reveals the eternal separateness of the individual. We are a part of all that we have met, indeed, but we are also strangely aloof from all other created things. It is when this sense of the soul's separateness presses hard that we cry out for a Savior who can recover us from loneliness. Loneliness and temptation often come together. Indeed, loneliness is in itself a temptation to discouragement, despair, and the loosening of all sense of obligation. "Who knows?" and "Who cares?" are dangerous questions for the soul to ask.

It is at such times that we learn the meaning of the great withdrawal of Calvary. Theology has tried to explain away the loneliness of the Master, as it has tried to explain away the other elements of his divine humanness. But it is to the solitary Figure of the Cross that we must go when the need of the soul is most profound. It is He who trod the wine press alone of whose sympathy we are sure when we pass through experiences which those about us cannot be expected to understand. It is the loneliest One, looking from a careless world to a darkened heaven and finding no evidence of companionship, to whom we cry out in life's hardest hour. To him, in some supreme experience, every believing soul must say: "But for thy cry, 'My God, my God, why hast thou forsaken me?" thou couldst not be my Savior now!"—Christian Century.

LOS ANGELES NOTES

2669 North Sichel Street.

House of worship, corner Altura and North Sichel Streets. Take North Broadway car to Sichel, then one block to left.

The Work Moves Gloriously Onward.

Good reports come from all the places of worship in this section. Brother Riggs had a good day at Downey last Lord's day (April 24); two were added by statement at Pasadena; and Witty reports the largest crowd he has ever had at Ontario for Sunday-morning services, with one added from the Christian Church. The work here at North Sichel and Altura was at its best, with collections going above one hundred and four dollars, a large crowd, good singing, everybody happy, and eight more souls added to our number—three confessions and five by statement. The sisters' Bible class that meets every Thursday afternoon continues to grow. There were more than forty present at the last meeting, and there was one confession and baptism. It seems certain that others will follow.

A Scripture We Should Keep Continually Before Us.

Beginning with the nineteenth verse of the sixth chapter of Matthew and reading to the close, we have a lesson of vital importance to our joy and peace here, comfort in death, and confidence when we go before God in the judgment. We sometimes (not as often as we should) preach on "First Things First." I think I have heard of preachers using such a subject and wondering if they themselves come within a thousand miles of practicing what they advise others to do. This scripture contains some very timely admonitions.

1. "Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon the earth, where moth and rust consume, and where thieves break through and steal: but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth consume, and where thieves do not break through nor steal; for where thy treasure is, there will thy heart be also." We should settle well the question as to our real motive in what we do. It takes money to live and meet our honest obligations; hence it is right for one to give thought to obtaining money honorably. But when a preacher finds only time to preach for the large congregations that pay well and has no time to do mission work among the poor and the weak, he is badly deceived, if he thinks his standing before God is just what it should be. Paul put it well when he said: "But they that are minded to be rich fall into a temptation and a snare and many foolish and hurtful lusts, such as drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil: which some reaching after have been led astray from the faith, and have pierced themselves through with many sorrows." Tim. 6: 9, 10.) Is it not possible that some of our most devoted preachers and other members of the church are in the very condition Paul here describes and do not know it? Just because you keep busy answering calls where you are well supported and kindly treated, brother, is no proof of your loyalty and love to God. How long would you continue to preach if you had only mission points at which to work? Settle this question as you go along. I seriously doubt the propriety of preachers' keeping themselves so busy with strong churches that they can never find time to hold a mission meeting. It looks bad when some strong preacher is so well engaged with strong churches that he cannot find time to hold a mission meeting even with the support guaranteed. It is much easier to work where others have planted. It is hard work to build from the ground up; but all preachers should do more or less of this kind of work to keep themselves humble before their God.

2. "No man can serve two masters." Many of us, doubtless, try to serve two. We want to go to heaven, all right; hence, want enough religion to take us through. But along with this desire comes also the desire with many to take as much of the world along as they possibly can. Some are overanxious to get rich, to be so fixed that they can live at ease, hence are "minded to be rich." Such show their desire for money, and allow themselves to do things that are questionable to get money. Too, they sometimes do things, that more money they may have, that do not look just to others concerned. The Lord knows our hearts, and our every act is recorded in his well-kept book. Why not let our "eye be single "-immovably fixed on pleasing God, doing justly to all, and letting nothing come between us and our duty to God? Christ says: "If thine eye be evil, thy whole body shall be full of darkness." Your eye is evil if you are trying to serve God and mammon at the same time. The things of this life we must have to meet our daily needs, but they must never come first.

3. "But seek ye first his kingdom, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." How sensible it is to surrender to our Lord's teaching! How foolish to do otherwise! What can ill-gotten gain bring to us? And what can earthly goods wrongfully used bring? The thought of such will be bitter in death and a stubborn fact that will bar the gate to the New Jerusalem in the judgment. We are here for too short a while to do otherwise than let the one aim of our lives be to please God and ever keep our hearts right before him.

The Work in New York.

I have just received a letter from Brother J. M. McKee, 105 West Fifty-fourth Street, New York. He tells me they are trying to raise money enough to have Brother John E. Dunn join them in their efforts to build up a strong church in that great city. Let me here bid them Godspeed in the effort. Brother Dunn could not do better than go to that city and spend the remaining days of his life. It is estimated that more than seven million souls live within twenty miles of the City Hall. There are about thirty loyal-hearted souls who are doing what they can to make that work a glorious success. Let any individual or congregation who wants a part in that great work write to Brother McKee and let him know how much he can depend on your giving monthly. I know Brother McKee and his family. It was my pleasure to baptize him and his wife, his only daughter, and his youngest son. Whatever is put into his hands for that work will be used for the purpose intended. I pray that the Lord may bless him and his associates in that great work. "The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few." Then, let each of us do as Christ commands: "Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest.'

Observance of Days.

BY JAMES E, SCOBEY,

In every dispensation of God's providence since man's fall in the garden, God has ordained the time when, the place where, and the manner or means by which man could approach him and find favor in his sight.

In the fourth chapter of Genesis we read: "And in process of time ["at the end of days" (margin)—that is, at a certain time] it came to pass, that Cain brought of the fruit of the ground an offering unto the Lord. And Abel, he also brought of the firstlings of his flock and of the fat thereof. And the Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering; but unto Cain and to his offering he had not respect." These two went to the proper place (to the altar) at the proper time. One—Abel—did what the Lord had appointed to be done; the other-Cain-did what he honestly thought would do as well. He wanted to worship God, but in his own way. Cain was a tiller of the ground, while Abel was a keeper of sheep. Cain reasoned with himself and came to the conclusion that God would accept his offering. It was much more convenient for him to take the fruit of the ground, the result of his own labor and toil, than to go to his brother and purchase a lamb. So, in his attempt to worship God according to his own will, he committed the sin of presumption. Paul says: "By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, through which he had witness borne to him that he was righteous, God bearing witness in respect of his gifts: and through it he being dead yet speaketh." Abel was righteous because he did right, and he did right because he did what God required.

In no age of the world has God delegated to man the authority to choose the time when, the place where, and the manner of keeping his ordinances and engaging in his worship. Yet there are many professed followers of Jesus Christ at the present time who suppose-indeed, who honestly believe-that they may modify and change God's ordinances. "Woe unto them! for they have gone in the way of Cain, and ran greedily after the error of Balaam for reward." (Jude 11.) No man can now engage in any religious exercise-and I mean anything appointed of God, that will honor God and glorify his name-except through or by faith; for without faith it is impossible to please God. "Whatsoever you do in word or deed, do all in the name of the Lord Jesus, giving thanks to God the Father by (Col. 3: 17.) him."

To speak or to do anything in the name of Jesus is to speak or to do it by his authority; and his authority is not found outside of the written word. When, therefore, something is proposed in the work and worship for which we cannot find either precept or example, it will not proceed from God, but from man. "What has God, through Jesus Christ, said?" is the question we should ask. If God has said nothing about plans, movements, societies, associations, etc., for the furtherance of the gospel, then, if we believe the Scriptures, the word of God, we must conclude that they all are the product of man's thoughts and of man's ways, and, therefore, have not God's approval. Neither in their use is God honored and his name glorified; and if God be not glorified, man is not blessed.

Men have thought to change times and seasons. They have appointed special days of festivity and of rejoicing, as Christmas and Easter-the former to celebrate the birth of Christ, the latter to celebrate his resurrection. Now, as a matter of fact, no man knows the day of the birth of Christ. The day-the twenty-fifth of December-was appointed by the Catholic Church as a church festival, and is observed by Catholic churches in most pompous style. It has been adopted generally by all Protestant churches; and the festivities and observance of the day are anything but honoring to God and Christ. As to Easter, we know there is no such word in the Scriptures. The Catholic Church kept the Pascha, which was the day of the Jewish passover; but later the church thought it was too much honor bestowed on the Jews to have the celebration of the resurrection of Christ on the passover day of the Jews. They, therefore, sought to change the day, and did change it. But the Eastern and Western Churches could not agree upon any particular month and day of the month, and finally it was agreed that it should be made a movable feast, the day to be determined by the moon. It was ordained by the Catholic Church that the Pascha should be observed on the first Sunday after the first full moon on or after the time of the vernal equinox, which is usually on March 21, but is occasionally on March 22. So Easter may occur at any day, in the course of time, from March 21 to April 25.

The old Saxons of England worshiped the goddess of spring, which they called "Eastre," with many festivities and much rejoicing, dancing, eating and drinking, etc. They also built huge bonfires at night to protract the festival. The Roman Catholic Church sent missionaries into England and converted many of the people to Catholicism, but the converts were not willing to give up their accustomed celebration of spring. The Catholic Pascha came on in their churches about the same time; so they combined the two celebrations, and had the festivities in the churches instead of out in the open air. Flowers in abundance were provided, and many candles upon the altar supplied the bonfire; and they named the celebration "Easter," after the goddess Eastre of the ancient Britons. From then till now we have had the Easter celebration in all Catholic and Episcopal churches, and many of the more recent churches are following suit.

Now we see in the celebration of Easter a combination of Judaism, paganism, and idolatry, with a small tincture of Christianity. Whatever may be the purpose of those who engage in the Easter celebration, it cannot be truly said to be done in and by the churches in the name of the Lord Jesus Christ. Nowhere in the New Testament can be found any precept or example of any Easter celebration. Therefore, it is wholly a man-made ordinance, and for that reason it should not be observed by Christians as a religious service or duty. Jesus said: "Howbeit in vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." (Mark 7: 7.) Christian people should heed the exhortation of the apostle John: "Little children, keep yourselves from idols." (1 John 5: 21.) Many religious people rejoice greatly, it seems, twice a year-at Christmas and Easter; but the truly intelligent Christian rejoices every day. Paul said: "Rejoice in the Lord always: and again I say, Rejoice." (Phil. 4: 4.) Again, he says: "Rejoice evermore." (1 Thess. 5: 16.)

There is a day appointed of God to celebrate a great event, and it is the first day of every week. God has ordained this day for the assembling of the saints, that they may worship him in offering spiritual sacrifices of thanksgiving, praise, and adoration, prayer and supplication, through Jesus Christ, our great High Priest. The first day of the week is not only appointed for what is usually called "public worship," but especially to celebrate the Lord's death till he come. For Paul says: "For as often as ye eat this bread, and drink this cup, ye proclaim the Lord's death till he come." (1 Cor. 11: 26.)

So important were the observance and duties of the assembly of the saints upon the first day of the week that Paul exhorted them, saying: "Let us consider one another to provoke unto love and good works; not forsaking the assembling of ourselves together, as the custom of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day drawing nigh." (Heb. 10: 24, 25.) There are spiritual blessings which cannot be enjoyed and services which cannot be acceptably rendered on any other day but the first day of the week, and in the assembly of the saints.

The Lord's Supper is the feast of the Christian's passover: "For even Christ our passover is sacrificed for us; therefore let us keep the feast," etc. (1 Cor. 5: 7, 8.) In keeping this feast we will be reminded of the paschal Lamb whose blood cleanseth us from all sin—of his death, his resurrection, his ascension; and it gives us hope of his coming again to take his faithful soldiers of the cross to his eternal home.

"Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree." Thank God for some of the uncompromising statements in the Bible. "Instead of" means "instead of," and nothing else. If we have a bad temper, it does not mean that we shall trim it down into a kind of respectable moroseness. Instead of the thorn shall come up the fir tree.—W. C. Poole.

- S. P. Pittman preached at both services of the Russell Street congregation, this city, last Lord's day. There was one confession and baptism.
- E. A. Elam will begin a meeting with the Central Church, Fort Worth, Texas, next Lord's day. He will follow this meeting with one for another one of the Fort Worth congregations.
- F. W. Smith, preacher of the church of Christ at Franklin, Tenn., reports very fine attendance and services at that church on last Lord's day. A young man was baptized there the Lord's-day night before.
- A. B. Lipscomb preached the commencement sermon for the Sumner County High School, at Portland, Tenn., last Lord's day. He will preach a commencement sermon at Hohenwald next Lord's day. A. B. seems to be handy at such work.
- Will J. Cullum preached to a large audience at Reid Avenue, this city, last Lord's-day morning, and to a fair one at night. He will preach at Twelfth Avenue, North, next Lord's day, morning and night, and at Bull Run in the afternoon.
- Dr. J. S. Ward preached at both services of the Charlotte Avenue congregation, at their tent, last Lord's-day, morning and night. C. R. Nichol preached at the tent in the afternoon to a large audience, made up from several of the city congregations.
- E. F. Watson, Hartsville, Tenn., in renewing his subscription to the Gospel Advocate, says: "Please continue the dear old Advocate, as I do not want to be without it in my home. It is spiritual food and a very welcome visitor each week."

Last Lord's day was the day for the annual Felix Sowell meeting with the South Harpeth Church, in Williamson County. It was largely attended, with two fine services, and a very enjoyable time for all who were there. The attendance represented several counties.

M. W. Thompson, Saulsbury, Tenn., writes: "I am always glad to read your paper. It makes me feel like I am nearer my own people. There is no church of Christ in this town, so I feel lonely away from our brethren. I get much inspiration from your columns. Give it to us straight."

Harvey Scott writes from Floresville, Texas, April 28: "Cled E. Wallace closed Sunday one of the best meetings ever held in this town. We increased the membership twenty-five per cent; nine additions by baptism. The church worked as never before. Everything was ready when he arrived."

We are still receiving some contributions for the sinking fund. We have received to date fifty-nine dollars and fifty cents, and are sending the Gospel Advocate to people who are not able to pay for it and desire to read it. This is a good work, and we hope that others will follow the good example of those who have led in the work.

- F. B. Srygley preached at both services of the Lawrence Avenue Church, this city, last Lord's day. Very fine services are reported, and three accessions to the membership of the congregation—one confession and baptism that day, one baptized who had made the confession before, and one received by letter. There was a large crowd at each service.
- F. J. Berry writes: "I am at this date in a meeting at Houston, Texas, with the Summer and Johnson Streets church of Christ. The interest is increasing with every service. I am expecting a good meeting. I will be here over the third Sunday. J. S. Dunn and Oscar Smith are assisting me. Brother Lawson, who is their preacher, is at Corpus Christi, my home, in a meeting."
- J. G. Allen, of Muskogee, Okla., but for many years a resident of this city, is here for a few weeks, recuperating after an operation for appendicitis. He did much good work while here, preaching the word, chiefly at Green Street. He now has regular employment as preacher for one of the two congregations of his adopted city. He reports the work as prospering in both congregations.

The meeting at Foster Street, this city, conducted by C. R. Nichol as evangelist, is having fine success. The house is crowded at every meeting, and there had been twenty-six baptisms up to Monday morning. The meeting will continue throughout this week, with services every evening at seven forty-five o'clock. When through the work of the meeting at Foster Street, Brother Nichol will begin a meeting with the congregation at Lindsley Avenue.

Omitting the name of place and person, we give the following to our readers: "In reply to your card of a few days past, am sorry to say I cannot see any chance to take the 'dear old Advocate.' For the time being I am not situated in finances so that I can get up any extra money to send in for the paper. I do love the paper and read it, always anxious to get it, but I am compelled to leave it off for a while until we can get better situated. With best wishes for its success and the brethren who are laboring to make it what it is, I am, your sister in Christ." We are drawing on the sinking fund for the subscription of this sister, so will continue the paper to her address for another year.

H. D. Jeffcoat writes from Ackerman, Miss., as follows: "Andrew Perry, of Watseka, Ill., will be here by the first of May to do what he can to get Christ's truth before the people of our State. Brethren of Mississippi, if you are in need of a good gospel preacher to help you carry out the command of Christ, 'Preach the gospel to every creature,' write us. With M. C. Cayce at Jackson, H. C. Harris at Tupelo, Brother Perry and myself here at Ackerman, and some other good preachers in the State, we hope to do more than ever before in this State. We need the prayers of all God's children that we may open our mouths boldly to make known the gospel, which is God's power to save (Rom. 1: 16), and that doors may be opened unto us. Write us. We will try to help you."

Fred M. Little writes from Montgomery, Ala., May 7: "The meeting at the West End suburban church continues, with increased attendance. J. H. Hines, of Highland Park, is preaching this week. Beginning on Monday, May 9, I will preach each evening for a week or more as long as the interest demands. Most meetings are 'contracted,' but the West End meeting is to be 'protracted.' There is to be a union evangelistic meeting, in this city, conducted by Bob Jones, beginning on May 22. The 'digressives' are cooperating, but none of the churches of Christ. Mr. Jones is a Methodist who conducts meetings on the Billy Sunday style. The gospel will not be preached, nor will people be led to Christ as a result of said campaigning. Therefore we do not encourage such meetings. We will keep busy preaching the word."

U. G. Wilkinson writes from Childress, Texas, May 2: "I have just closed a ten-days' meeting at Northfield, with two baptized and one restored. I preached on the first Sunday in May at Clarendon, the home of Thomas E. Milholand. He was away in meeting at Chickasha, Okla. I have been in the Texas Panhandle preaching since March 26, but will return to Oklahoma for a few-days' rest. T. B. Clark, here at Childress, baptized three persons on the last Sunday in April. Yesterday four were restored and two placed membership. The church at Childress is rapidly gaining under his work. My health is still improving, and, the Lord willing, I will shortly be able to do full-time work. May God bless all who have assisted me and enabled me to go through the trying time that I have experienced. Write me at Comanche, Okla., if you need my services. I could arrange for some meetings in the late summer and fall."

Harvey Scott writes from Floresville, Texas, April 29: "We have just closed the best meeting that we ever had in this town. I began one month beforehand and had everything ready when Cled Wallace got here. We have a very small congregation here, but they are workers. During the meeting they would not only bring their families, but would sometimes bring them to the church and then go get another load. If we could not get folks to come any other way, we went and got them. As a result of this, we increased our membership twenty-five per cent. We mailed every family in town one of the invitations that I am sending you. I will be at Maynard, Ark., the month of August, and I might, as I am that near, come over and pay the Gospel Advocate office a visit. I have longed to meet the Advocate force. I feel that if I could do so I could appreciate more the good things that I read from it, if it is possible for one to do this." We would be pleased to have Brother Scott call on us, and a cordial invitation is extended him.

Sister Mary Summits, renewing her subscription to the Gospel Advocate from Henderson, Tenn., says: "I do not want to be without it."

We enjoyed a visit last week from H. T. King, of Mc-Minnville, Tenn. He reports the church doing well and that it expects to enlarge its house of worship soon.

R. L. Ludlam, Jr., writes from Coal Hill, Ark., as follows: "The church here is working for the growth of the kingdom of the Lord, O. E. Billingsley, of Conway, Ark., will begin a meeting on May 7."

Jarratt L. Smith, Louisville, Ky., says: "One lady was baptized at Parkland church of Christ three weeks ago, and a brother and his wife placed their membership with the congregation on Lord's day, May 1."

Sister E. T. Austelle, Reddick, Fla., writes as follows: "I feel like I could do without something else in order to have the Gospel Advocate, as there are such good sermons in it, especially those from Brethren Elam and McQuiddy."

P. O. Breeden, of Terrell, Texas, sends two dollars and fifty cents to send the Gospel Advocate to Sister A. C. Wandell, of Bradentown, Fla., the widow (eighty years old) whose note we published week before last. Many thanks to Brother Breeden.

Sister A. E. Gale, of Ralls, Texas, says in renewing her subscription: "I cannot do without the Gospel Advocate. It comes as a letter from dear friends each week. I have been taking it since the seventies, and hope to continue as long as I can see to read it. I am now seventy-four years of age and very deaf; therefore I must have my paper."

M. H. Northcross, of Ocala, Fia., but for many years of this State, has recently moved to Franklin, Tenn., Route 1, and is arranging for an active evangelistic service, in this State especially, as soon as possible, but also elsewhere as the demand for his work may call him. We all know him as a 'wheel horse' in the gospel service. Call him if you need him.

E. M. Tackett, Dallas, Texas, Route 8, Box 216, says: "My affairs are now in such shape that I can give my time to evangelizing this summer. I have been teaching and preaching in Dallas for about three years. I will preach for the Oak Cliff Church on Sunday, May 15. They say there is a dearth of preachers. If this be so, I am anxious to help, and should have my time all placed shortly."

Mrs. J. R. Davis, Shelbyville, Tenn., Route 9, in renewing her subscription to the Gospel Advocate, says: "I love the Advocate next to the Bible, and just cannot afford to do without it. I do wish that everybody loved it as I do, and would take it; for it is worth so much to any one that will read it. May God bless all its editors, and may they all live long to continue the good work they are doing."

From J. L. Hines, Monticello, Ky., May 1: "O. F. Shearer is in a good tent meeting at Sumpter, this county (Wayne). I preached three sermons. There have been five confessions to date, two of which were Baptists. A congregation of ten or fifteen can be gathered together. They contemplate building a house of worship at once. I am in a meeting at Mullintown at present. Crowds large and attention fine"

The next annual meeting of the Board of Directors of the Tennessee Orphan Home will be held on June 2. Many important matters are to be discussed at that meeting, so it is requested that each member of the board be present. A number of visitors are expected on that occasion. Many needed improvements have been suggested for the Home, and consideration will be given to these suggestions at the meeting.

Mrs. R. C. Underwood, Rosedale, Miss., sends two dollars and fifty cents for the Gospel Advocate fund, and says: "I do hope that we may be able to put the Advocate into the hands of every brother and sister who is unable to pay for it. I consider the Advocate as one of my greatest helps in these trying times. It sets forth our duty so clearly under all circumstances. Long may its editors live to carry on the good work!"

From R. J. Hastings, New Market, Ala., Route 1: "The brethren of the church of Christ at New Market cannot pay cut of debt for building their meetinghouse, on account of the prices of our crops falling. We are in debt near three hundred dollars, and are having calls for the building material often, and are not able to pay them. We are now begging for help. I often think of Prov. 21: 13. Help from anywhere will be greatly appreciated."

Andrew Perry writes from Ackerman, Miss., May 5: "I came to this place on Monday from Baldwyn, and was met at the train and carried out to Cork Schoolhouse, some four miles from Ackerman, by H. D. Jeffcoat. I have been preaching here three nights. Our audiences and interest are growing. Unseasonably cold and blustering weather has kept some away, but to-day is fine and I look for several more to-night. I will preach here two nights longer, and then go with Brother Jeffcoat to his next appointment. I look for some good results in this part of Mississippi."

W. L. Oliphant writes from Muskogee, Okla., May 5: "Last Lord's day was a good day with the church worshiping on East Okmulgee Avenue and K Streets, this city. Our morning audience was the largest I remember having preached to in Muskogee. In the afternoon about seven 'car loads' of us went to a schoolhouse a few miles out in the country, sang with the folks out there, and invited them to attend our protracted meeting, which will begin on May 10. J. Will Henley will do the preaching. We are hoping and praying for a great meeting. My next meeting will be with the Thirty-third and South Benton Streets congregation, Kansas City, Mo."

T. Park Burt writes from Claude, Texas, May 4: "It has been a long time since I reported my work through the Gospel Advocate, but I have been busy in the work of the We moved to the north plains of Texas last November and took up the work with the church of Christ at Claude and Panhandle City, and have been very busy every day since that time. The congregations at these places are not very strong, but in the main they are faithful to the Lord. I expect to begin a meeting with the home forces the last of this month. I will be in protractedmeeting work during July and August, as usual, and have some time during these months which I have not promised. What congregation would like to have me for a meeting, vocal training, or to conduct the songs in meetings? I do all of this kind of work."

Earnest C. Love writes from Fresno, Cal.: "There were two more good services held by the Fresno Street Church. Sunday, May 1. In the afternoon a number of us went to Madera to hear Brother Larimore, who has been spending a few days in Fresno. He preached three good sermons Sunday, and we were glad to have the opportunity to hear We had about sixty at our mid week prayer meeting at the home of L. D. Davis, who has lately come from Ken-Five hundred dollars has been raised and paid on tucky. the church lot on the corner of Palm and Dennett Avenues. We are planning to put our tent on the lot and begin a meeting on May 9, to continue indefinitely. We are hoping for a great meeting. Considerable enthusiasm is being manifested in behalf of the Fresno Home and School, and plans are being made for buildings and enlarging the grounds. Many brethren have expressed themselves as believing this to be the greatest opportunity for doing good that has ever been presented to the church of Christ in this State. I refer to the fact that the officials here have proposed to board their dependent children with us, which they are already doing. Eight new pupils have been added to the school since we came to Fresno, and the work grows more interesting day by day."

From M. C. Cayce, Oakland, Miss., May 5: "After a very enjoyable visit at home, during which it was my pleasure to hear Brother Pullias preach several times, and during his illness to hear F. W. Smith, both of whom are able ministers, and also to assist Brother Pullias by doing the baptizing the first week of the meeting at Lawrence Avenue, thus being privileged to baptize two of my own nieces. I left Nashville on Saturday, April 23, and arrived in Jackson the next morning in time to preach at the first services held in our new meetinghouse bought from the Presbyterians. It is a neat, substantial, frame house, with slate roof, on a nice corner lot in the residence section. The attendance and attention were good at both morning and night services, also at our Wednesday-night prayer meeting. Meeting for the first time in our permanent location filled our little band with enthusiasm and renewed hope and Last Monday night I began a meeting in the new house in Oakland, preaching morning and night, except The attendance has steadily inthat yesterday morning, on account of a funeral here, we did not have preaching. The attendance has steadily increased, and last night the house was nearly filled. We hope for a good meeting. The church in Jackson assemble, every Lord's day, morning and night, and every Wednesday night for prayer meeting. To find the place, take the latin street car, and get off at Silas Brown Street. To find the place, take the Gal-The house is two blocks west of Gallatin Street. Any mail addressed to me at 352 East Fortification Street will be forwarded to me while I am in meetings."

Forgiveness.

BY J. C. M'O.

All responsible beings have sinned and come far short of the glory of God. The best men are sinful and make many mistakes. Only those who are in the cemetery are free from sin. "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1: 8, 9.) The Word was the prenatal Christ, who gave up the glories of heaven, came to this world, was born in a manger, and became so poor that he had not where to lay his head, in order that he might forgive us and redeem us from all iniquity. He is the only absolutely sinless being that has ever lived on this earth. He has gone back to heaven, and he invites us to live a life of purity in order that we may dwell with him in that house of many mansions where hearts ache no more, where eyes are never dimned by tears, and where there is no sin to be forgiven. While in this world he left us an example that we should walk in his steps. He is the one great example of humility. "Have this mind in you, which was also in Christ Jesus: who, existing in the form of God, counted not the being on an equality with God a thing to be grasped, but emptied himself, taking the form of a servant, being made in the likeness of men; and being found in fashion as a man, he humbled himself, becoming obedient even unto death, yea, the death of the cross. Wherefore also God highly exalted him, and gave unto him the name which is above every name; that in the name of Jesus every knee should bow, of things in heaven and things on earth and things under the earth, and that every tongue should confess that Jesus Christ is Lord, to the glory of God the Father." (Phil. 2: 5-11.) So long as one is full of conceit and thinks more highly of himself than he should, he cannot be a follower of the Lord Jesus Christ. Christ came to this world to blot out our sins and to remember them against us no more forever. He teaches us in language that is easy to be understood that in order to be forgiven we must forgive those who trespass against us. "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." (Matt. 6: 14, 15.) Not only must we forgive those who sin against us, in order to be forgiven, but we must also avoid harboring hatred and resentment in our hearts, that our lives be not soured and the very vitals of our spirituality be destroyed. The resentment that we hold in our hearts against others reacts on our own lives and destroys our usefulness. Even if Christ did not require us to forgive those who trespass against us, our own usefulness and happiness demand that as we have been freely forgiven, we should also forgive others. The hatred that we bear to others is reflected in our whole life.

It is said that the German picture shows are a reflex of the disappointment that they suffered in the great war. Everything in their shows is serious and full of disappointment. We are told that many of them commit suicide. Even so will it be with the professed followers of Christ, if they permit their lives to be clouded by a refusal to forgive others. Only those who place too high an estimate upon themselves and who value the praise of men more than the approval of God will cultivate a spirit of malice and revenge. When David had committed a terrible crime and it was pointed out to him, he did not refuse to humble himself, but with all his heart he said: "I have sinned." We do not find, however, that David continued to practice this sin in order that he might glory in confessing it, but he turned away from it and loathed it all the days of his life. Suffering never departed from him on account of his sin. Too frequent confession for the same sin shows a lack of thorough penitence and tends to make sin less offensive to others. I have often thought that it is a great mistake for the daily press to report with such avidity the atrocious crimes that are perpetrated throughout the country. Making public these sins suggests similar evils to others. It is to be hoped that Christians will not so far lose self-control as to live in the continual practice of sin. and therefore find it necessary to make frequent confession of the same sin. The man who had his father's wife in the church at Corinth, before he was forgiven and comforted by the church, had shown his penitence for the terrible sin. As in the case of David, so in the case of this man. For men who have been guilty of adultery for a quarter of a century to rush into print and spread their present-day scandals before the world is not calculated to purify and elevate the human family. Confession of sin carries with it a turning away from that sin. While we cheerfully forgive those who have sinned, considering ourselves lest we also be tempted and fall, yet we should say to those who have sinned, as did the Savior: "Go, and sin no more." This continual sinning and continual confessing of the same sin looks too much like glorying in the sin and in our weakness. It is true that we should forgive a brother who sins against us seventy times seven, meaning an indefinite number of times. The confession itself is not repulsive, but the zest and jubilation with which it is made. But it is reasonable to conclude that forgiving "seventy times seven" refers to different sins, as men are fallible and sin in thought, word, and deed. Every avenue of our being is open to sin; therefore, it is absolutely necessary to be watchful and prayerful, lest we fall into temptation and sin.

If we would only give ourselves a close introspection and view our sins in their true light, we would be much more ready to forgive those who sin against us. The king had compassion on that servant who was not able to pay. When the servant, therefore, fell down and worshiped him, saying, "Lord, have compassion on me, and I will pay thee all," the lord of that servant, being moved with compassion, released him and forgave him the debt. But when that wicked servant found a fellow servant that was owing him, he took him by the throat and demanded him to pay all that he owed. He would not have compassion on him and did not forgive him the debt. His lord was wroth, and delivered him to the tormentors till he should pay all that was due. "So shall also my heavenly Father do unto you, if ye forgive not every one his brother from your hearts." (Matt. 18: 35.)

One great mistake that we are prone to make is to look for evil and not the good that others do. I have been very much grieved to note a disposition on the part of some to cavil, criticize, and find fault, when no good is to be accomplished by such conduct. Some will contend for things that are not fundamentals of salvation and exalt them into the position of essentials. They continue to so act until they can see no good in the man who does not agree with them in such things. This is sad. Instead of doing this, all should remember that love "thinketh no evil" and is ready to forgive those who make mistakes, provided they ask forgiveness and turn away from their sins. It is well to exercise more charity for the sins of others so long as we are sinners ourselves. Instead of pointing out to our brother his errors and his failings, we should look well to our own spiritual condition, and in a prayer of humility should cry to the Lord: "Be thou merciful unto me a sin-Every child of God must be ready to yield his own opinions for the sake of peace and harmony. While it is his duty to stand immovably for the plain fundamentals of the word of God, the Bible nowhere requires that he shall strive with his brethren even to division over things that are not revealed and which are not necessary unto salvation.

I write to encourage our readers to put away bickering and strife and to cease to contend for nonessentials. Like Paul, be firm in the proclamation of truth, live the Christ life to the very best of your ability, and leave the results with the Lord Jesus Christ. In this age of stress and storm all Christians should keep busy in the service of the Lord and should cheerfully forgive those who sin against them.

"Mark Them . . . and Turn Away From Them." BY M. C. K.

The reader will find, on page 443 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate, another article from Brother John T. Lewis which reached our office in March. On its receipt, as the next proper step to be taken, I wrote him a private letter and said: "Before continuing the discussion with you, which we will gladly do within reasonable limits, it is proper to call your attention again to the fact that the insinuation in your article which appeared in the Gospel Advocate of February 17, 1921, would, as then stated, have caused its return without publication, except for the reason given in the editorial comments;" and he was kindly asked to explain what he had intended by the language. I am glad to say that he promptly replied, assuring me that he merely meant, as he viewed my opponents and myself in the present controversy, that I felt "above them in 'ordinary logical acumen;" that this "was all" he "meant by the language;" and that, with "no animosity in" his "heart," he was "for respect and fair dealing with each other."

While I did not unconditionally feel as he says, but only in case my opponents proved themselves unable to see what was so evident to me, yet there is nothing disrespectful in what he explains as his intention, and, so far as removing the barrier to further discussion with him was concerned, it was entirely satisfactory, and I wrote him to that effect at once, promising to publish his article as soon as others ahead of it in the discussion were published. Hence, we now publish Brother Lewis' article, and I gladly reply to the points of his criticism directed at me.

1. He says: "More than two years ago I asked Brother Kurfees if he thought this language of Paul would have any reference to the instrumental-music and society folks, but he returned my article unanswered." As a matter of fact, I have not the slightest recollection of ever receiving from him or from anybody else any such question, which, if submitted upon its own merits, was "returned unanswered," and I do not believe I did it in this case. As the occurrence was "more than two years ago," and his question, as he admits, was sandwiched somewhere in an "article," it may have been in one on war, or in one which otherwise contained something which it was inexpedient or unwise to publish at the time; and if so, justice required that our brother give the fact as the reason for the return of the article. I remember that, "more than two years ago," we declined to publish a number of articles, not because we did not indorse every word in them, nor because of any wish to swerve one iota from the principles and policy which have marked the Advocate throughout its history, but merely for the reason here stated; and, in spite of the rash opinions of misguided and mistaken critics, we feel profoundly assured that, in a sincere effort on our part to be true to God's word in an ordeal when it was imperative and sometimes difficult for public men in the church to act with proper wisdom and prudence, we had no stronger sympathy and support from any source than we would have had, in all essential points, in the late illustrious editor of the Gospel Advocate if he had been here. But whatever may have caused the return of the article, it is not my custom to refuse to answer such questions at any time when submitted on their own merits.

2. Referring to the introduction of instrumental music and the societies, he says: "Either the ones who introduce these things cause the divisions, or the ones who object to the use of them." I think Brother Lewis has not properly studied the question in all of its bearings. At any rate, no such alternative as he here states necessarily exists at all. As a matter of fact, in the case to which he refers, it does not exist, for both sides "cause the divisions;" but one side is justified in causing them, and would do wrong, under the circumstances, not to cause them. He evidently thinks it is necessarily sinful to "cause division," but in this he is radically mistaken. It is sometimes sinful not to cause division. Even Jesus Christ said of himself: "Think ye that I am come to give peace in the earth? I tell you, Nay; but rather division: for there shall be from henceforth five in one house divided, three against two, and two against three. They shall be divided, father against son, and son against father; mother against daughter, and daughter against her mother; mother-in-law against her daughter-in-law, and daughter-in-law against her mother-inlaw." (Luke 12: 51-53.) Hence, it depends altogether on how or with what division is "caused" as to whether it is sinful or not.

3. He seems also to be laboring under the impression that Paul tells Christians to "mark" and "turn away from" those who "cause division," but here again he is mistaken. Paul has nowhere said any such thing. If he had thus taught, he would have squarely contradicted Jesus; but Paul does say, "Mark them . . . and turn away from them" when they cause division "contrary to the doctrine which ye learned." Let us not fail to consider all that the New Testament says on a subject. While "the ones who introduce" instrumental music and the societies and "the ones who object to the use of them" both "cause division," yet the former cause it "contrary to the doctrine," and the latter cause it by adhering to the doctrine; and hence the guilt involved in the case attaches to the former, but not to the latter. It is as much our duty sometimes to "cause division" according to "the doctrine" of God as it is to "mark" and "turn away from" those who cause division "contrary to the doctrine." For example, if teaching that sinners should be baptized and that Christians should eat the Lord's Supper should cause division in a church, then we should not hesitate to cause it, and we would be untrue to God's word if we did hesitate; but if teaching a human opinion on unfulfilled prophecy or on anything else, or doing anything which God does not require, should cause division, such teaching and such practice should at once cease.

4. Again, he says: "If the ones who introduce" instrumental music and the societies "cause the trouble, we must mark them and turn away from them; but if we cause the divisions and confusion by objecting to these things, then they must turn away from us." No, no, we are not to "turn away from them" because they "cause the trouble" at all, but, as we have already seen, because they cause it "contrary to the doctrine" of God. Hence, it is not true that "they must turn away from us," even "if we cause the divisions and confusion by objecting to these things," unless our objecting to them can be shown to be "contrary to the doctrine." Hence, in the controversy over instrumental music and the societies, and in the case of all other things over which division is caused, the guilt involved attaches, in all cases, to those who cause division "contrary to the doctrine" of God.

5. He says he has "always believed that the instrumental-music and society folks were the 'troublers in Israel'" and that he has "turned away from them." Doubtless he has often done right when he "turned away from them," but he may sometimes have done wrong. It all depends on the facts in the case. He and everybody else, who wishes to follow the New Testament, should always and everywhere "turn away from them," so far as joining with them in any wrong practice is concerned; but if by "instrumental-music and society folks" he merely means Christians who have unwittingly become entangled in error about "instrumental music and the societies," or about anything else, for that matter, but who, nevertheless, are as far as Brother Lewis and myself from being "such" as "serve not our Lord Christ, but their own belly, and by their smooth and fair speech they beguile the hearts of the innocent "-this is the class which Paul in the very next verse distinctly says he meant-then, if Brother Lewis "turned away from them" in the sense that he would not have them join with him in worshiping God according to the New Testament, I unhesitatingly say he did wrong. We certainly should not refuse to let a Christian man worship with us merely because he is in error on some things. There are some "instrumental-music and society folks" whom we should "mark" and "turn away from" in the sense of having no fellowship with them at all, simply because they fill the description given by Paul, and "Brother Kurfees" would not have them to "conduct the song service and lead in prayer in his protracted meetings;" but there are other "instrumental-music and society folks" who do not fill that description, and I am always glad to encourage them to worship with us according to the New Testament. Moreover, there are persons who are not "instrumental-music and society folks" at all, but who, nevertheless, "by their smooth and fair speech" and other traits named by Paul, cause divisions "contrary to the doctrine" of God, whom it is our duty to "mark" and "turn away from," and I would be just as careful not to have them "conduct the song service and lead in prayer in" my "protracted meetings" as if they had perpetrated their high crime over "Instrumental music and the societies." Paul did not specify "instrumental music and the societies," but he did specify a certain character of conduct; and no matter what the particular thing may be over which men become guilty of that conduct, whether "instrumental music and the societies" or anything else, we should "mark" them and "turn away from them." Our brother should not confine himself to an isolated statement of Paul, but should take Paul's complete statement as to those whom we are to "mark" and "turn away from."

6. As to the "editor of the Gospel Advocate" who led "in prayer for a champion of instrumental music," whose conduct Brother Lewis criticizes, I know nothing of the facts; but whichever editor on our staff is meant, if he thinks the matter calls for a reply, he is amply able to speak for himself.

7. Finally, he says when he uses "the term 'church of Christ' in preaching or making announcements," he speaks "of the church which Jesus Christ said he would build." But that is not the point at issue, and it does not even touch the point. On the contrary, it is a clear case of changing the point in dispute and dodging the real issue. I do not need to show him anything "to leave out or put into the above statement to make it scriptural," for it is scriptural already, and nobody in this discussion has ever objected to it; but I did and do now strongly object to his use of this "scriptural" term in an unscriptural sense. This is the point, and the only point, at issue here. When he uses the term "church of Christ" so as not to include all Christians in the territory to which it is applied, as when he refers to two congregations in Birmingham as "the church of Christ in Birmingham," he either uses the term in a purely sectarian sense or holds that there are no Christians or people of God in Birmingham outside of those two congregations, one or the other. In fact, this latter is the position which he actually assumed in theory in the Gospel Advocate of January 10, 1918; but when he receives immersed persons from the denominations without reimmersing them, he squarely contradicts that position in his practice and admits that immersed persons in Birmingham who are not in either of those congregations and whom he would thus receive are, nevertheless, in and a part of "the church of Christ in Birmingham." It is impossible for me or any one else to get him "out of that 'little sect of modern times'" until he quits upholding it in theory and making himself a part of it. Brother Lewis should be willing to admit in theory as well as in practice that the immersed persons in the denominations, whom he receives without reimmersion, are in and a part of the church of Christ before he receives them.

Other matters are calling for attention in our columns and the present controversy must come to a close. As to Brother Lewis' part in it, the Gospel Advocate has already given him a fair hearing; but as there is one more article from him already in hand, we will yet publish it in the discussion.

Oftentimes the hindrances that lie in the path of duty may be compared to the tollgates upon our turnpike roads: they are kept shut till we are just upon them and then fly open, as it were, of themselves; and that is time enough. If they had been open a week beforehand, we could but have gone through at last.—John Newton.

"A Defense of Baptist Doctrine." No. 2.

BY F. W. SMITH.

We give this week another installment of L. R. Burress' reply to the Gospel Advocate's criticism of his positions on certain religious matters:

To keep such a church better than any of "the seven churches of Asia," discipline in teaching and conduct must be observed. (See Matt. 18: 15-18; 1 Cor. 5: 2: 2 Thess. 3: 6; Tit. 3: 10, 11; Rom. 16: 17.) Discipline protects the church against the contrary individual.

Those applying for baptism and membership tell no set or legislated experience. It is not impossible that similarity may be manifest, but the formal patent has not been procured; but the essentials in a Christian experience are the same—viz., forgiveness of sins, love for God and willing obedience to do his will, love for the brotherhood, all through Christ who bore the sins of the penitent believer on the cross. "Repentance toward God and faith toward the Lord Jesus Christ" is the experience of every penitent believer, and such are saved, and when baptized become nembers of the local Baptist Church before which application for membership is made. This answer is the direct question of Brother Smith: "When does one become a member?"

Brother Smith says: "I baptize people 'into the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Spirit,' and at the same time and by the same act baptize them into the church or body of Christ. That is the way the apostle Paul got in, and the way the Corinthians got in. For by one Spirit are we all baptized into one body.' (1 Cor. 12: 13.)" "By one Spirit," the one administrator of baptism; or if, as the Revised Version renders, "For in one Spirit," then Spirit is the element, and not water. John the Baptist said: "I indeed baptize you in water unto repentance; but he that cometh after me ... will baptize you in the Holy Spirit and fire." Miraculous power was bestowed on some of these Corinthians, and this divine attestation was needed. "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Spirit hath come upon you." Such power is not needed to accredit the gospel now, though this is the Spirit's dispensation.

What our friend says on the subject of church discipline is passed with a hearty indorsement.

He says those applying for baptism and membership in a Baptist church "tell no set or legislated experience." They may not tell any "set" experience—that is, all use the same form of speech; but they do claim that God has forgiven or pardoned their sins, which is a requirement of the Baptist Church as a prerequisite to baptism and church membership, and this is legislation upon the part of the Baptist Church. If not, why does our friend not bring forward either an example or precept from the Bible to sustain his contention? He should do one of two thingsviz., show us Bible authority for requiring candidates to relate any sort of experience save that of faith with all the heart that Jesus is the Christ before baptism, or else should quit the practice of demanding them to say they are pardoned before they are allowed to be baptized. He, like many others, puts the "cart before the horse" in the order of faith and repentance. He persists in placing repentance before faith, and says such "is the experience of every penitent believer." I do not believe one word of it, for "without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him." (Heb. 11: 6.) Again: "And whatsoever is not of faith is sin." (Rom. 14: 23.) Our brother has a sinner repenting over sins without believing that God is and without believing that Jesus Christ died for the sins of the world. We read of some of whom it is said: "Nevertheless among the chief rulers also many believed on him; but because of the Pharisees they did not confess him, lest they should be put out of the synagogue: for they loved the praise of men more than the praise of God." (John 12: 42, 43.) Will Brother Burress claim that those Jews were penitent? I hardly think so; and yet it is said they believed on Christ, which completely upsets his theory of repentance before faith.

If he wishes to contend that there is a degree of faith which follows repentance, I will go still further and say there are many degrees of faith which follow repentance, because faith is a principle of growth and continues so long as we live. "We are bound to thank God always for you, brethren, as it is meet, because that your faith groweth exceedingly," etc. (2 Thess. 1: 3.) Repentance is a fruit of faith, and so is baptism and every other act of obedience to God. If the faith of those Jews (John 12: 42, 43) who believed on Christ had been strong enough, it would have led them to repentance and baptism, and then, still growing, it would have developed within their lives the Christian graces. (2 Pet. 1: 5-9.)

I am glad to see our friend admit that he baptizes persons into the local Baptist church. He says of penitent believers: "Such are saved, and when baptized become members of the local Baptist church before which application for membership is made." It follows, then, that without baptism there is not, nor can there be, such a thing as a Baptist church. New, this is doing one of two thingsviz., laying great stress on water in religion, or else stamping the Baptist Church as a nonessential. The matter becomes still more serious when we consider that our friend contends that Baptist churches are the only true churches of Christ. Hence, the matter resolves itself into this: The churches which Jesus Christ shed his heart's blood to establish are nonessentials in so far as salvation is concerned. "Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Spirit hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath pur chased with his own blood." (Acts 20: 28.) If our friend's theory does not set aside the blood of Christ, then I am very much mistaken. Brother Burress has two baptisms, whereas the Scriptures say there is one. There is "one Lord, one faith, one baptism." (Eph. 4: 5.) He contends that the baptism by which we all enter the same body (1 Cor. 12: 13) is Spirit baptism, and yet he baptizes in water! Has he turned Methodist, with a visible and an invisible church or kingdom, having the subject baptized into the invisible church by Spirit baptism and into the visible church by water baptism? He refers to what John the immerser said to prove his point, but he should know that John had reference to the apostles and that the promise was fulfilled on Pentecost. (Acts 2: 1-4.) If any miraculous power was bestowed on the Corinthian saints. it was done by the imposition of apostolic hands, and not by a baptism in the Spirit. (See Acts 8: 14-19.)

P. T. Clark, of Haydenburg, Tenn., says: "I see your answer to Brother T. Smith, of Tupelo, Miss., in the Gospel Advocate of February 3, in which you say a man can certainly not become a member of a human organization in the name, or by the authority, of Christ. I understand your position is right on that. Now, should the church withdraw from members when they join these organizations? If not, why not?"

If the church should withdraw fellowship from every one who makes a mistake, no one would escape. Some men think they do right in joining human organizations. It is not wrong to be a member of an organization that is not prohibited by a command of God, if the organization does nothing wrong and in no way usurps the functions of the church of Christ. God leaves men free to do or not to do some things which are not sinful within themselves.

A sister from Kanima, Okla., asks for an explanation of 2 Cor. 6: 14. She says: "Does it and 1 Cor. 7: 10-16 have reference to the same? Is an unbeliever an infidel or alien sinner? Would a Christian that married an unbeliever commit a sin?

2 Cor. 6: 14 reads: "Be not unequally yoked with unbelievers: for what fellowship have righteousness and iniquity? or what communion hath light with darkness?" 1 Cor. 7: 13 says: "And the woman that hath an unbelieving husband, and he is content to dwell with her, let her not leave her husband." The connection shows that "unbeliever" is used in the sense of an idolatrous worshiper in 2 Cor. 6: 14. In this passage the word has the force of denying the Christ. The word "unbeliever" in 1 Cor. 7: 12, 13 does not mean a pagan idolater, but one who has never obeyed the gospel, though not denying outright that Jesus is the Christ. If it be a sin for a Christian to marry such a person, God would not indorse the sin by permitting the Christian and the unbeliever to continue in the relation. While the Bible does not give specific directions as to whom one should marry, yet a Christian should by all means marry a Christian. Christians should work with Christians, patronize Christians, and marry Christians. A Christian will live more congenially with a Christian than with an unbeliever. But when Christians marry unbelievers, they should live with them and try to convert them to Christ.

H. A. Lashly, of Jasper, Fla., asks for information concerning Judas. He says: "There is a Baptist preacher here who says Judas Iscariot was not at the table when Christ instituted the Lord's Supper. I contend that he was. Am I right? If not, show me."

It appears from Matthew, Mark, and John that Judas was not present when Christ instituted the Lord's Supper. He was present at the passover supper, which was eaten before the Lord's Supper. The disciples made ready the passover. "Now when even was come, he was sitting at meat with the twelve disciples; and as they were eating, he said, Verily I say unto you, that one of you shall betray me. And they were exceeding sorrowful, and began to say unto him every one, Is it I, Lord? And he answered and said, He that dipped his hand with me in the dish, the same shall betray me. . . . And Judas, who betrayed him, answered and said, Is it I, Rabbi? He saith unto him, Thou hast said." (Matt. 26: 20-25.) The foregoing refers to the passover, at which Judas dipped his hand with Jesus in the dish and when John tells us Judas received the sop. At this juncture, as they were eating, Judas having received the morsel or sop, went immediately out, as we learn from John 13: 30, and "Jesus took bread, and blessed, and brake it." As Judas had gone out, he was not present when Jesus broke bread and gave to the disciples. Luke 22: 21 appears to indicate that Judas was present at the Lord's Supper. The passage reads: "But behold, the hand of him that betrayeth me is with me on the table." The preponderance of the evidence indicates that he was not present at the Lord's Supper, but no man's destiny depends on whether he was or was not. Our concern should be about what is our duty and as to what the Lord expects us to do.

Dant Dempsey, of Senath, Mo., asks the "Query Department" to harmonize the following scriptures: Gen. 15: 13-16; Ex. 12: 40; Gal. 3: 17. He is anxious for this to be answered promptly.

The passages read: "And he said unto Abram, Know of a surety that thy seed shall be sojourners in a land that is not theirs, and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years; and also that nation, whom they shall serve, will I judge: and afterwards shall they come out with great substance. But thou shalt go to thy fathers in peace; thou shalt be buried in a good old age. And in the fourth generation they shall come hither again: for the iniquity of the Amorite is not yet full." (Gen. 15: 13-16.) "Now the time that the children of Israel dwelt in Egypt was four hundred and thirty years." (Ex. 12: 40.) "Now this I say: A covenant confirmed beforehand by God, the law, which came four hundred and thirty years after, doth not disannul, so as to make the promise of none effect." (Gal. 3: 17.) It is difficult to harmonize Ex. 12: 40 and Gal. 3: 17 with Gen. 15: 13-16. "It is clear that the descendants of Israel did not dwell four hundred and thirty years in Egypt." I cannot do better than to give Kennicott's description of the Hebrew text as quoted by Adam Clarke: "'Now the sojourning of the children of Israel, and of their fathers, which they sojourned in the land of Canaan and in the land of Egypt, was four hundred and thirty years.' This same sum is given by St. Paul (Gal. 3: 17), who reckons from the promise made to Abraham, when God commanded him to go to Canaan, to the giving of the law, which soon followed the departure from Egypt; and this chronology of the apostle is concordant with the Samaritan Pentateuch, which, by preserving the two passages, 'they and their fathers' and 'in the land of Canaan,' which are lost out of the present copies of the Hebrew text, has rescued this passage from all obscurity and contradiction. It may be necessary to observe that the Alexandrian copy of the Septuagint has the same reading as that in the Samaritan. The Samaritan Pentateuch is allowed by many learned men to exhibit the most correct copy of the five books of Moses; and the Alexandrian copy of the Septuagint must also be allowed to be one of the most authentic as well as most ancient copies of this version which we possess. As to St. Paul, no man will dispute the authenticity of his statement; and thus in the mouth of these three most respectable witnesses the whole account is indubitably established. That these three witnesses have the truth, the chronology itself proves: for from Abraham's entry into Canaan to the birth of Isaac was twenty-five years (Gen. 12: 4; 17: 1-21); Isaac was sixty years old at the birth of Jacob (Gen. 25: 26); and Jacob was one hundred and thirty at his going down into Egypt (Gen. 47: 9); which three sums make two hundred and fifteen years. And then Jacob and his children having continued in Egypt two hundred and fifteen years more, the whole sum of four hundred and thirty years is regularly completed."

Going Calling.

My dolly is so dear,
I take her every day
To call upon our neighbors;
Fine folk they are, I play.

The nearest one is Tabby,
She has four kittens new.
I say: "Good morning, Mrs. Puss."
And she replies: "Miew, miew!"

I ask her: "How are your babies?
They're looking well to-day,
Especially the smallest,
Her coat's so soft and gray."

"They're very well," says Tabby;
"But take a seat, I pray."
She doesn't really say it,
I make believe in play.

But soon we must be going,
We've other calls to make;
And so I bow to Tabby,
Her right paw p'litely shake.

Then up I put my su-nshade, It's pink and ruffled, too; And dolly dear and I Make another call or two.

Why Billy Was a Favorite.

One day Billy was a stranger; at the end of a week he was as much at home as any boy on the street.

"We are glad he came," Teddy Farr said; "we like him." And the other boys said pretty much the same thing.

"Why is this Billy such a favorite?" Mr. Farr asked Mrs. Farr.

"I don't know yet," said Mrs. Farr. "I'm watching to find out."

When three more weeks had passed, she thought she knew.

A group of boys were out in front of her gate one afternoon, and she heard one of them say: "Pshaw! What can we play? I wish the snow hadn't all gone into mud."

"We had just finished our fort," said another, "and we were ready to begin, but it washed down in the night."

"Anyway, we had fun making it," said Billy. "Let's not waste the whole afternoon. Let's start and play something that doesn't need snow."

When Mrs. Farr looked again, they were sailing ships down the gutter and discovered the Mississippi with great excitement. Another time Teddy had to go on an errand and asked the others to keep him company.

"O, we can't," objected somebody. "We've got it all planned to walk out in the other direction and see the place where the fire was last night."

"Why wouldn't it do," said Billy, "to go with Teddy first? We needn't come all the way back, need we? There ought to be some short cuts, I should think."

Well, when they had put their heads together, they remembered that there were.

Then there was a day when Joe had lost his arithmetic. Joe and Billy were the best in the school in arithmetic. Joe hated to miss any of his lessons.

"Never mind," said Billy. "My book will do for both until yours turns up. We are pretty quick at it, you know. We can manage."

One afternoon, when they were having a game of ball in the school yard, Billy broke a cellar window. After a crash there was a pause of dismay.

"We must have kept getting nearer to the house without noticing it," said Billy.

"How would it do," said Joe, "to be quiet until we are asked about it? Maybe Mr. Nevil will think that other boys did it. They broke one."

"It wouldn't do at all," said Billy, quickly. "It wouldn't be fair."

He told Mr. Nevil and paid for the pane. After that he was short of money for some time, for Billy was poor.

After the three weeks, Mrs. Farr said to Mr. Farr: "I think I know why the boys like Billy."

" Why?"

"Because he has the delightful habit of getting the best for himself and his friends out of what he has at hand. He makes things 'do,' except the things that won't do at all. I like Billy myself."—Child's Hour.

Aunt Mina's Rocking-Chair.

For as many years as Judith and Ruth and John could remember Aunt Mina's rocking-chair had been a byword in the Vinton family. Some one was always saying: "Remember Aunt Mina's rocking-chair."

Aunt Mina lived alone until she was seventy-eight years old in the same house that her parents had lived in before her, with the same furniture in the same place, and she spent the greater part of her solitary day in the same rocking-chair by the same window. As she grew older she felt the cold more, and people said she ought to have a furnace put into the house. Other houses round hers had long since had furnaces installed; but Aunt Mina would not listen to the arguments for a furnace. It could not be set up, she said, because the register in her sitting room would have to come up where the rocking-chair stood, and she could not bear to move the chair. It had always been where her mother used to have it, and it must always stay right there.

So Aunt Mina endured the cold and enjoyed the rockingchair for many years; but at last common sense yielded to sentiment. She moved the rocking-chair and put in the furnace and enjoyed life more than ever. "How foolish I've been all these years! Why didn't I move that rocking-chair before?" she exclaimed. And one of her final comments on life was: "If a thing's in your way, I've learned you've got to move it."

That is why Aunt Mina's rocking-chair became a family institution in the Vinton family. When Judith wailed that she never could speak her first piece before the whole school, her mother told her the story of Aunt Mina's rocking-chair. "Let's pretend," mother said, "that instead of the rocking-chair that was in the way of the furnace register there is fear in a little girl's mind that won't let the piece come out. Aunt Mina moved the rocking-chair out of the way. Can't the little girl push fear out of the way?" The next day every one spoke of how well Judith Vinton spoke her piece.

It was a long time ago that Judith first heard about Aunt Mina's rocking-chair, and she and Ruth and John have heard about it many times since. When John, the youngest, was ready to follow his sisters to college, there were unexpected reverses that did not leave the means to send him. Must be give up his ambition of getting a college education? He thought of Aunt Mina's rocking-chair and resolved to move the financial obstacle out of the way. He would work hard for a year, then enter college and work his way through. John always said it was Aunt Mina's rocking-chair that made a man of him.—Selected,

No man thinks the better of a religious teacher for being worldly. This is a great though a common error. The last man whom worldly men, princes or peasants, will seek in their soul's extremity is the physician who is half of this world; no cottage and no hovel is too mean for them, if they may but find in it a man who lives only for eternity.—C. J. Vaughan.

CURRENT THOUGHT

The Need for Preachers.

One of the pressing needs of the church to-day is more preachers. Preachers have been very poorly supported, so much so that few young men are entering the ministry. While no one should preach for the sake of money, it is necessary for the minister to receive sufficient funds on which to live. Failure of the church members to pay the ministers is having its effect. It seems hardly consistent for the church to talk much about industrial injustice while it treats its own employees with so much neglect. It is said that the preacher must live on less than half of what the government has established as a living wage. It is not possible for the preacher to save up for old age. He must live in poverty and look forward to charity. Of course this is not true of the favored few in the ministry. It is stated that one-third of the "pensioners" receive less than one hundred dollars a year and that three-fifths receive less than two hundred dollars a year. Among all religionists there is a scarcity of ministers. I quote the following on the subject:

Do You Make Preachers?

Did any young man in your church decide during the past year to devote his life to the work of the ministry of the gospel? Did you ask any boy or young man in your church to do so? Do you know that the church is facing one of the most serious problems of its history because of the shortage of ministers and missionary workers? Jesus said, when the same problem of scarcity of laborers presented itself to the early church, "Pray!" Have you ever prayed that God will thrust forth more laborers into his harvest, perhaps your own son?—Exchange.

INFORMATIVE RATHER THAN INSTRUCTIVE.

A book reviewer says of a recent book that "the volume may be described as more informative than instructive." There is a distinction here that is not always observed. Information is not necessarily instruction. The handing out of any number of facts is not always an educative process. We have heard sermons that might be described in the same manner that this book is. Masses of information more or less important and more or less interestingly presented, but in such a way as to teach no lesson, make no appeal, and give no inspiration. After listening to such a sermon, one is tempted to ask, "Cui bono?"—Watchman-Examiner.

A PLEA FOR BETTER PREACHING.

Speaking as one who hears himself preach nearly every Sunday in the year, the writer would plead that the preachers make this our slogan: "A Revival of Better Preaching." Brethren, with all our hearts we believe that one of the greatest needs of the world to-day is more real preaching, better preaching; the kind that brings the very word of God to bear on the hearts and minds and consciences of the people. We are a poor lot! The Lord have mercy on us! We ought to do better. We can do better. The man in the pew ought to feel every time he goes to church that he has heard God speaking to his soul. And he will, if you and I will really study God's word and strive by God's help to apply it to our people's need. Now I think I hear a chorus of "amens" from the pews.—Baptist Record.

PREACHERS NEED TO HEAR PREACHING.

Every so often the preacher ought to get away from his church and sit in a pew. He should not content himself with a visit to some church of the same capacity as his own, where he will inevitably take notes and make comparisons. Neither should he go to hear a preacher of the same caliber as himself, in which case he is sure to get little out of the service or the sermon beyond the mechanics of both. He must go, as a worshiper, into a church equipped and manned so excellently that he will forget everything but his own soul under the inspiration of the hour. His congregation at home should open the way for him to do this not less than twice a year. They should not expect him to come back and report, either, on what he heard. He should do this for the sake of his own spiritual culture. Incidentally, the restoration of the joy of his own salvation will inevitably affect his preaching.—Christian Century.

OUR GREATEST NEED.

. What is the greatest need of the church to-day? The answer is preachers. We do not mean to say that our preachers are inferior to those of the good old days. We are not making comparisons. We merely say that to-day's greatest need is preaching. The preacher should preach Nothing will take the place of preaching. Education will not, neither will organization or social service. Preaching is the one essential to church success. The man who is called to preach should learn to preach. He should pray for God's guidance; he should study; he should live in a godly atmosphere. Preaching is the dynamo of the church. Without it, finance, social service, organization—all become numb and motionless. Let us have preachers who can instruct the people, who can inspire the people, who can warm their hearts—preachers who strike terror to the transgressor and who lead the sinner to repentance.—Christian Recorder.

"MINISTERS' LIVINGS."

Referring to the compensation of ministers, we like the word "living" better than salary, pay, or any other of the more commercial terms. As to the ways and means of securing the livings, we are convinced that we must return to the Savior's plan. According to this plan, the minister of the Word is to be relieved from his worldly care. This is not in order to make life more easy for him, but in order to maintain spirituality. Such are the limits and weaknesses of our human nature that the record shows that where the church or her ministry becomes involved in big financial schemes, secularism, spiritual dry rot is likely to follow. Our Savior lived a life free from this worldly tendency. He had no earthly possessions, not even "where to lay his head." When he sent out his disciples, he forbade all commercial incumbrances and bade them depend upon the church, and he announced the principle that the laborer was worthy of his meat and his hire. The method of raising this support, as set forth in the Scriptures, is systematic and constant. In the Old Testament the tithe was specified: In the New Testament the measure is: "As the Lord has prospered."—The Presbyterian.

With Him.

I started to walk with Jesus;
Very soon I lost the road;
I found it was not an easy task
To follow the Son of God.
I found I must walk where he walks,
If I would walk with him.

I started to talk for Jesus,
But I found my lips were dumb;
Fine words I wanted to speak for him
To my lips refused to come.
I found I must talk as he talks,
If I would talk with him.

I started to work for Jesus, Great deeds to do in his name; All my effort was a failure, Conditions remained the same. I found I must work as he works, If I would work for him.

I started to live for Jesus,
Everlasting life to win;
My selfish struggle was in vain,
Self-interest was my sin.
I found I must live as he lives,
If I would live with him.

-Gertrude Barton, in the Herald and Presbyter.

The above lines from Gertrude Barton bring to our mind the fact that we are all weak and that no man has the strength to stand alone without the help of God. "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take heed lest he fall." (1 Cor. 10: 12.) The man who has great confidence in his own strength and ability to overcome the world, the flesh, and the devil, is in great danger and almost sure to fall. Christians should go nowhere that Jesus does not lead them. The child of God who attempts to visit billiard halls, theaters, and gambling hells has entirely too much confidence in his own strength and underestimates the strength of Satan. No man can win the fight in his own strength. Upon God he must rely for help and guidance. If we would overcome sin and gain the victory at last, we must fight the battle in the strength that God gives us.

Mrs. Pierson Cosby, Selma, Ala., writes: "The Gospel Advocate is a wonderful paper. I can learn so much from it. I always try to pass it to a neighbor. We have no church of Christ in Selma, but we are planning and working to have a meeting during the summer. Pray for us, that we faint not in doing the will of the Lord."

W. G. Black writes from Anson, Texas, May 2: "My school closes on Friday. The school work in many respects has been very pleasant. I hope to spend the summer in school in Abilene Christian College, and expect to preach on each Lord's day during the summer. The prospects for the cause of Christ in and near Abilene are encouraging in many respects. I wish the Gospel Advocate the best success."

Mrs. Flora Ramsey Forrest, Box 89, Niota, McMinn County, Tenn., addresses the following to the brotherhood: "Will each member of the church of Christ please help me to raise money to build a church house here. In all, we have three hundred and two dollars on our building fund. Of this amount, I have put over one hundred dollars in the bank, and am doing all I possibly can. This is a mission point with only a few members. We have a well-located corner lot paid for, with the restrictive clause in the deed. I sincerely thank all the sisters that have sent me a dollar, and will try to thank each with a personal letter as soon as I possibly can. If each would send me a check for the church of Christ at Niota, it would be safer. I was born and reared in Middle Tennessee, and hope every member that sees this will gladly help to build a house of worship here."

S. W. Bell, Sedalia, Mo., says: "We have the promise of Will W. Slater and Roy H. Lanier to help us in our missionary effort under our tent in this city, to begin about June 8 and continue as the interest may demand. Both of these brethren can sing, both can preach. Brother Slater is well known as an author, song writer and publisher, and also as a song leader and preacher. Brother Lanier comes well recommended. We are not in a position to give these good brethren the financial help they are justly due. We want every one who reads this, and who can, to send us a little contribution to aid us in advertising, equipping our tent, and maintaining the great work of the Lord in this city till we can get it more nearly on its feet. Some of the best people to be found anywhere have been aiding us greatly, but not enough. Remember us in your prayers."

A sister, writing from Doerun, Colquitt County, Ga., says: "My husband and I want a gospel preacher to come into our midst and hold a meeting. There is not a church of Christ in thirty miles of this place that I know of. I do so wish for the people here in this community to hear These are good people, but not a one I have the gospel. spoken to about it has ever heard a gospel preacher. Any preacher that will come, I am sure, will be treated nicely, and his board and laundry bill will be given him at our home. My husband has never obeyed the gospel, nor any of my children, and I feel like it would be a help in my own family as well as other families. I obeyed the gospel four years ago, and have tried to the best of my ability to live right ever since; though the road seems rugged sometimes, and I almost faint by the wayside. I want you all to pray for me, that I may hold out to the end. Will you give me information where I can write for help? We need something done before it is forever too late. This place is four miles west of Doerun." This is certainly a touching appeal. I have sent her the addresses of preachers at Valdosta and Dasher, Ga., and Lake City, Fla. (two at each of the last two places, and five in all), and hope some one will go to her assistance.

George H. Long, writes from Weatherford, Texas, May 3: "Last Sunday was a great day for those who attended services here. In addition to listening to two splendid sermons by Tom Walker and hearing one precious soul make 'the good confession' and seeing her buried with the Lord in baptism, the newly appointed elders and deacons were installed. T. A. Wythe, one of our most active elders, in his pleasant and thoughtful manner, made a few remarks concerning the work which had been done by this congregation, and admonished the incoming elders and deacons, referring briefly to the life work of T. C. Hart for an example of faithfulness and loyalty to the church. Brother Hart has been an elder of this congregation for forty years or more, and up to a few years ago was one of our most active members; but due to his advanced age (he is past ninety years) he is not as active as he once was. Brother Hart also made a short talk which was very touching, telling of the time in his younger life when he attended Bethany College while Alexander Campbell was president of that school. How many congregations are blessed with the presence of a faithful 'war horse' who received personal instruction from such a man as Alexander Campbell? Although nearing the century mark, Brother Hart attends services almost every Lord's-day morning."

Thomas H. Burton, minister of the church of Christ at Union, S. C., sends the following from Asheville, N "I came to this city in response to a call from N to this city in response to a call from Whitt Sparks, who moved here from Haleyville, Ala. We have six members here who are willing to meet and worship 'as it is written.' These few have met five times, and a more determined band I have never seen. This is the home of Sister Harriet Taylor, who is one of the most re-markable women I have ever met. Brother and Sister Compton, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., also live here. I preached three times in the courthouse to only a few, but we believe much good was accomplished. I believe this is one of the most successful trips I have ever made, from several standpoints. We are planning to begin a meeting here about the first of July. If any one knows of a loyal member who is either living or visiting here, or who is contemplating moving here, such a one should get in touch with Brother Whitt Sparks, 114 Westwood Place, West Asheville, or Sister Harriet Taylor, 1 Austin Avenue. Brethren, do not neglect this, as they are liable to fall into the hands of the 'digressives.' The Eastern States offer us one of the greatest opportunities that we have. pray God to send more laborers into this great field to help gather the golden grain. Just think of two States with only five preachers, four in North Carolina and one in Scuth Carolina! Pray for us."

James E. Scobey, 859 Bradford Avenue, Nashville, Tenn., writes as follows: "The first Sunday in this month I visited the congregation at Huntland, Franklin County, Tenn. I had been there and preached just one year ago. On this trip I preached to larger congregations than last year. J. O. Blaine accompanied me last year, and expected to return this May; but indisposition, in consequence of a severe cold, prevented. I left an appointment for the first Sunday in May, 1922. If I maintain health and strength, the Lord willing, I shall be with them again. This is the home of the venerable H. R. Moore, whom I have known for sixty-eight years. He. Blaine, and I were students at the same time at Franklin College, during the years of 1853-4-5. We formed friendships there which the passing years have neither weakened nor destroyed. Brother Moore has reasonably good health, and, as usual, teaches his Bible class in the church with clearness and force. At dinner, Sunday, Sister Moore had seated at her table three old Franklin College students—John Lipscomb, her husband, and myself. Last May Brother Blaine was present. Sister Moore was a student of Mrs. Fanning's school at the time Brother Moore was in Franklin College. There was one other at the table, a daughter of theirs, whose attention and care for her aged parents is worthy of all commendation. I shall preach next Sunday, May 15, at Lawrence Avenue, in Nashville, my home congregation."

G. B. Lambright, whose home is at Taft, Fla., but who was in a meeting at Greenville, S. C., at the time of writing (April 28), says: "This is my first trip to this State. Greenville is a city of twenty thousand people, and not a church of Christ in it, and there is only one in the State. It is at Union, fifty miles from here, and has Thomas H. Burton laboring for them. He is doing a good work there, and is loved by all who know him. This is a destitute place. There are all kinds of sects here. H. J. Fennel and wife are the only loyal disciples there. I am now making their house my home during the meeting. It was Brother and Sister Fennell who asked me to come here and hold a meeting. We were refused the use of all public buildings. Thomas H. Burton came over from Union and brought a tent, helped us to raise it and to start the meeting, and helped otherwise. Then he returned home. Our meeting is eight days old, with some interest. Rain and sickness hinder some. We want to continue three or four weeks. I would stay here five or six months if I could be supported. Brethren, we need your help in this great work. Pray for us, and send us some means to help plant the cause of the Master here. We would welcome more gospel preachers here. There is plenty of room; only one gospel preacher living in the State. Hear the Macedonian cry, 'Come over and help us.' Send your offering to H. J. Fennell, Perry Road, Greenville, S. C., or to me at Taft, Fla.''

Report of Funds for Last Quarter, 1920.

BY SARAH S. ANDREWS.

October-Church at Belzoni, Miss., $5.10; Sister Laura Bowman, $15; through Brother Bradley, $75; David Lipscomb College Church, $30.

November-Church at Rayville, La., for home-coming, $7; church at Belzoni, Miss., for home-coming fund, $20.

December-Through Brother Bradley, home-coming, $500; church at Bellbuckle, Tenn., $11; church at Belzoni, Miss., $5.81.

The receipts for the work during 1920, not including the liberal and highly appreciated contribution for my home-coming, were $1,342.56. This amount, being a little more than one hundred dollars per month, was expended for the following: House rent, food, fuel, and other expenses connected with housekeeping; expenses of two native helpers over and above what the kindergarten failed to meet, kindergarten equipment, literature for the Sunday school of from one hundred to one hundred and fifty children, Bibles, tracts, railroad fare and hotel bills for preachers to come to do baptizing and help evangelize four times last year from two to five days each time, and various other expenses connected with the work and efforts to reach the people of that town. There was one baptism in February, three in April, one in July, five in August, and one in January.

Amidst the very busy time in December, I managed to get quite a bit of mail sent to the homeland, including acknowledgments, letters, greetings, etc., some of which, and perhaps all, failed to reach the destinations. I make the above statement that any church or individual having failed to receive acknowledgment for funds sent may understand.

More About Elders.

BY R. C. WHITE.

1 have read with pleasure and profit Brother Will J. Cullum's article on "Another Hobby Brought In," in the Gospel Advocate of March 24. I desire to commend this, and to add a few thoughts in addition. I am sorry to know there is such a thing as a hobby among my brethren. All such things are hurtful to the one cause we should love above all else

I do not know whether Brother Cullum is correct in saying that teaching the belief in no elders to-day is to "result in more real harm to the church than all the others [hobbies] combined," but I do believe there is all proof necessary that we are to have elders and deacons now. Would that we were all one and would "all speak the same things;" and we could and would, if we would only "speak as the oracles of God."

The Holy Spirit has laid down certain qualifications for elders and deacons. These qualifications would not be necessary if inspiration had not ceased. The word of God is "profitable for teaching" on this as well as all other points. Hence, I am anxious to learn why we have congregations that set aside these plain qualifications. Without inspiration and without the qualifications, what can we do? How will it be done? We must be hard pressed to set aside any one qualification on this point. I know of congregations that have men-good, Christian men, whose lives are good as to daily walk and influence-placed over them as elders and deacons with very few scriptural qualifications. Why is this? They have men who are not the "husband of one wife," for they are bachelors; men who have not "children that believe," for their children are too young or they have none at all; men who never lead in public prayer; men who cannot give thanks in connection with the Lord's Supper: hence, men who are not "apt to teach" and "able . . . to convict the gainsayers," as so well and forcibly quoted by Brother Cullum. If we regard the Bible as "profitable for teaching" on one point, why not on all points?

Now, I would as soon undertake to prove that when Christ told Saul to go to Damascus and there it should be told him what he "must do," that baptism was not required, as to try to maintain that "must" in the matter of qualifications of elders does not have to remain. If one can set aside one "must," why cannot another set aside another? We must have men with a full quota of qualifications laid down in the Bible, or else set aside all in the matter. We must meet the approval of God; and no word of God is void.

Paul wrote the qualifications by the Holy Spirit. He was not an elder, but he was inspired; hence, he could do by inspiration what he told others to do by virtue of qualifications laid down after "that which is perfect" came. Men who are single can teach and help in many ways; but elders must be husbands, have children that believe, etc.

James tells us things along the line helpful in this connection. "For he that said, Do not commit adultery, said also, Do not kill. Now if thou dost not commit adultery, but killest, thou art become a transgressor of the law." (James 2: 11.) We might as properly say that he that is not the "husband of one wife" and has not "children that believe," but is baptized, is also a transgressor of the "law of the Spirit of life in Christ Jesus."

Harmony and peace, as well as our own salvation, demand that we all "speak as the oracles of God." This will bring all elders in with a full list of qualifications. Let us not leave this thought of "must" in regard to all qualifications. "Follow things that make for peace."

An Unusual Meeting.

BY L. L. BRIGANCE.

Sometime ago arrangements were made with Brother Elam to conduct a series of meetings for the church at Henderson, Tenn., beginning second Sunday in April. A card announcing the meeting was sent out to the people of the town and surrounding country. A few days before the meeting was to begin a letter from Brother Elam stated that he could not be here until a week later. Of course this was a disappointment, inasmuch as we had already announced the meeting to begin on the above-mentioned date. However, he arrived a week later, and began preaching to large and interested audiences. After preaching four sermons he was suddenly called home on Wednesday on account of sickness in his family. He thought he could be back the following Sunday. One young lady had made the confession and was to be baptized the night following his departure. We met to attend to that and to acquaint the people with the fact that Brother Elam had been called away. Brother Hardeman made a talk and gave an invitation, to which two more responded. It was then thought best to try to hold the crowds together until Brother Elam returned. So Brother Hardeman preached on till Friday night, with additions every night. About this time Brother Elam put off his return till perhaps the following Tuesday instead of Sunday. It was then arranged for Brother Freed to preach on Saturday night, and Brother L. R. Wilson (a young preacher here in school) to preach on Sunday, morning and night. On Monday a letter from Brother Elam stated that he could not be back at all. But the crowds were so large and the interest was so great that it was thought best to continue the meeting. So it continued until the following Sunday night-fifteen nights and three Sundays altogether. There were thirty-two baptized, ranging in age from about ten years to sixty. Twenty-five of them were students in Freed-Hardeman College. Six different ones had a part in the preaching. Brother Elam preached four sermons; Hardeman, eight; Freed, one; L. R. Wilson, two; W. W. Heflin, one; and the writer, two.

We were sorely disappointed because Brother Elam could not remain with us. He is a great preacher and a lovable man. He is as true to the Book as the needle to the pole. He "knows nothing but Christ, and him crucified." He preaches the gospel of Christ unmixed with the philosophies of men or the wisdom of this world.

His series of sermons and his chapel talks to the students of Freed-Hardeman College were to have been reported and published in a book; but the stenographer was sick just as the meeting was to begin, and so this plan and purpose also came to naught.

[Sickness and a death in Brother Elam's family, that of his wife's brother, was the cause of his inability to attend the meeting.—EDITOR.]

Exploitation.

If you put a man to base labor, if you bind his thoughts, if you blind his eyes, if you blunt his hopes, if you steal his joys, if you stunt his body and blast his soul and at last leave him not so much strength as to reap the poor fruit of his degradation, but gather that for yourself and dismiss him to the grave, when you have done with him"—that is exploitation.— Selected.

CHURCH NEWS

Arkansas.

Sayre, May 3 .- I have just returned home from Saratoga, where I have been assisting the brethren in a series of meetings. There were thirty-seven additions to the body there—twentytwo by baptism and fifteen by restoration. We hope much lasting good will be the result. Those good brethren know how to see after the minister in these tight times, and they treated me royally indeed. May God bless them in their work.—W. W. Starnes.

California.

El Centro, April 25.-Evangelist E. M. Borden, of Riverside, has just closed a very pleasant and profitable meeting here. Brother Borden is a very spiritual man, and is capable of commanding a large hearing and doing much good in God's kingdom wherever he goes. He has a message that grips the hearts and lives of those who hear him, and we trust his opportunities to spread the gospel will be many. There were three additions by baptism; and one of these being my son, my heart was made to rejoice more than ever. Praise the Lord for the story that never grows old to those who are living Christ and seeking him! We trust that we may be able to have Brother Borden with us again next year, and feel that God will surely bless him by strengthening his power to do good.—Mrs. Dosia Kirkham.

Missouri.

Sedalia, May 4.—Our hearts were made to rejoice last Lord's day, when, in St. Louis, a girl came forward and made the good confession. She is to be baptized by Brother Moody. But we are sorrry to lose Brother Laster, wife and children, who return to Flint, Mich., after their sojourn in St. Louis with the disciples. It was my privilege to visit Dr. and Sister J. W. Pruitt, 459 Dover Place, Sunday. He is one of the elders of the church in that great city. I was informed that the church had unanimously decided to hold a tent meeting this year. When the financial question came up, they were very quick and liberal in agreeing to support it. One brother said: "You need not be surprised if. as soon as material comes down some, we put up a church building." forget to help.-S. W. Bell.

Oklahoma,

Oklahoma City, May 2.-The work grows here apace. We are to do greater things in the future. We are now receiving sealed bids for the construction of our new church home. These bids will be opened on May 10. There were five additions at the morning hour yesterday. The audience was exceptionally good. The new paper we are now publishing in this city is a success in its infancy. We hope it will be a greater success after it has grown more. We have it substantially endowed in the sum of approximately fifty thousand dollars now. We do not mean for it to be welcomed unto the fight for life. It must live, for it fills a unique place.—J. A. Hudson.

Tennessee.

Knoxville, May 2.—Our meeting closed last evening with four additions -three by primary obedience and one by statement. Brother C. R. Nichol, of Clifton, Texas, did the preaching. We advertised him as a "great preacher with a great message." That describes the man and his work accu-We regret that the meeting could not continue longer. Brother Nichol preaches the truth in love. He made our home his while here, and my wife and I can say that he is as fine in the home as in the pulpit. We want Brother Nichol again in a meeting.-C. G. Vincent.

East Lake, May 2.-Yesterday was a fine day for the various congregations in Chattanooga. All report good at-tendance and interest. There was one confession at Rossville at the eleveno'clock service, with baptism at four The roll-call meeting at the o'clock Cowart Street Church in the afternoon was full of inspiration. Brother R. W. Jernigan, of Bridgeport, Ala., is laboring for a while with the Cowart Street brethren, and his work is bringing good results. The Ridgedale members are now at work on the foundation of their new meetinghouse, and they are anticipating great things for the Lord in that section. The series of meetings with the Rossville congregation closed last night. Three were baptized. Brother Jernigan did the most of the preaching.—Aruna Tracy City, May 5.—Brother D. E. Mason, of this place, closed a week's meeting on Sunday night at Anderson, which resulted in nineteen baptisms, six reclaimed, and one from the Presbyterians. These people were hungry for the old Jerusalem gospel. A lot was secured and plans laid for a house in which to worship on the New Testa-ment order. Brother Mason is a forceful gospel preacher, and is very careful to handle aright the "word of truth." I was with the Sewanee congregation on Saturday night and on Sunday and Sunday night, with a good crowd at each service. I also preached at Long's Chapel (Tickbush) in the afternoon, with a good hearing. Brother Mason has been preaching for these two congregations the past year, and they all speak highly of him as a gospel preacher. The work here is progressing nicely. We are making arrangements now for Brother Cawthon's meeting, which is to begin on June 19.—W. Clarence Cook.

Texas.

Terrell, May 5.-The cause of our Master is growing in this town. I am starting my fourth month here. I am well pleased with our progress. The Texas people believe in pressing forward. We are making preparations for a glorious meeting, beginning on the first Sunday in June, with Brother C. E. Wooldridge doing the preaching. I am expecting this meeting to be one of the best in the history of the church in this town. I would like very much to see all my friends in Tennessee, Georgia, and Alabama this summer, but I think now that I will be unable to leave this field .- R. H. Rogers.

Rheumatism

REMARKABLE HOME TREATMENT GIVEN BY ONE WHO HAD IT

In the year of 1893 I was attacked by Muscular and Sub-Acute Rheumatism. I suffered as only those who are thus afflicted know for over three years. I tried remedy after remedy, but such relief as I obtained was only temporary. Finally I found a treatment that cured me completely, and such a pitiful condition has never returned. I have given it to a number who were terribly afflicted, even hedridden, some of them seventy to eighty years old, and the results were the same as in my own case.

I want every sufferer from any, form of muscular and sub-acute (swelling at the joints) rheumatism to try the great value of my improved "Home Treatment" for its remarkable healing power. Don't send a cent. Simply mail your name and address, and I will send it free to try. After you have used it and it has proven itself to be that long-looked-for means of getting rid of such forms of rheumatism, you may send the price of it, one Dollar; but, understand, I do not want your money unless you are perfectly satisfied to send it. Isn't that fair? Why suffer any longer, when relief is thus offered you free? Don't delay. Write to-day.

Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

The Home and School Proposition.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

Most of our brethren have heard of our move from Santa Rosa to Fresno. While in Santa Rosa we began a school under the name of "The Pacific Christian Academy." Recently we have moved everything to Fresnoprint shop, school, and all.

Not long after beginning our school we began to find that there was a great need for a home for dependent children, those who are orphans or half orphans or where father and mother are separated and the home broken up. This phase of the work has more and more interested us. It will not be boasting to say we have so far made a success of that kind of work. It is a great work, and there is a great need for it. God will certainly bless us if we try to do this

But I started to tell you the latest thing that has presented itself to us. In a recent report I mentioned that the officers were about to turn some children over to us. Well, since that time the officers from the Juvenile Court have been to see us. We were much embarrassed to have them come, as nothing was in shape for inspection. Our machinery is all lying just where we unloaded it from the car. We have beds set up temporarily for all our "family," twenty-six in all, but many things are not unpacked. We have windows cut out, but no sashes in, and the boys are sleeping in the big tent. But in spite of all this, we never got so much encouragement from any one. They were highly pleased, or said so, at least.

As nearly as I can remember, I will repeat what they said:

"Fresno County has no home for dependent children. We have a home for delinquent children, but not for those dependent upon the county or State. We are now paying twenty-five thousand dollars a year for board and keep for our dependent children, and it all goes out of the county. Besides paying out this money for board, we raise several thousand dollars a year by private subscription and send it to support such homes. The people of the town had, ten to one, rather give it to help support a home in their own neighborhood.

"How much land have you here? Ten acres is hardly enough. See if you can get a price on the land joining you north and south. Put the matter up to your people and see if they are willing to undertake the establishment of a home and school here that will meet the needs of this city and county, and I assure you that you will not want for children to fill the home or backing from the local people. We pay twenty-two dollars and fifty cents a month for all children we have charge of. Of this twenty-five thousand dollars being paid out now, about twelve or fifteen thousand dollars will be turned to this school.

"We have tried to get the Salvation Army and some other institutions to establish a home here. It is hard to get any one to take hold of it. What we have been wanting is just what we see here—men and women who will take hold of the proposition. If we can have the men and women willing to labor with the children, the money backing will be forthcoming.

"Of course, you understand that the establishment would have to pass inspection with regard to sanitation, and the teachers in the school would have to be up to the standard of the California schools."

"Now put this up to your people, and let me know what you decide. Keep me posted as to your plans for the immediate future."

Since beginning this article a letter has been received from a local attorney, and here are a few things he says: "I saw Judge McCormick last evening, and had a talk with him about the situation of the --- children. He advises that you see the probation officer [the man has already been to see me], and it is very probable that he will recommend your Home and School as a place where these and other children may be sent in the future. He also suggested that you get in touch with the Welfare Commission, so you would have their O.K. in matters of this kind. I don't know that you care to go so far, but it will certainly help you financially in developing your home and school, which I feel is a very worthy institution."

Now, brethren, I have put this matter before you. It has come to us rather suddenly, but there is no doubt a great opportunity lying before us. Is the church of Christ big enough for the job, or will we have to leave it to the Catholics, Adventists, Salvation Army, or the "Holy Rollers?" We have always complained that the authorities have favored the Catholics and other sects in preference to ourselves, but it is certainly not so in this case. The people of this city. with over fifty thousand population, will no doubt give us the same moral and financial backing that they would give to any one else.

Remember, we are to remain free to teach the Bible just as we have always done. Their sanitary requirements are not unreasonable; and in regard to teachers, we can easily meet all the demands.

I would like to have a letter of advice for or against this proposition from every one interested. Write me at 925 Thorne Avenue, Fresno, Cal. "An Ounce of Prevention Is Worth a Pound of Cure."

A disturbance of the even balance of health, which often occurs in these trying days of reconstruction, may cause serious trouble. Nobody can be too careful to keep this balance up.

When people begin to lose appetite or to get tired easily, the least imprudence brings on sickness, weakness, or debility. The system needs a tonic, craves it, and should not be denied it; and the best tonic that many people recommend is Hood's Sarsaparilla. What this medicine has done in keeping healthy people healthy, in keeping up the even balance of health, gives it the same distinction as a preventive that it enjoys as a cure. Its early "se has illustrated the wisdom of the old saying that "a stitch in time saves nine."

Preventive treatment now and then calls for the use of a good cathartic or laxative, like Hood's Pills, which are purely vegetable and act quickly and thoroughly.

The Facts of the Telephone Situation in Tennessee

By J. EPPS BROWN, President

CUMBERLAND TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CO.

(Incorporated)

Since 1916 the cost of labor, material, and all other expenses of operation have substantially increased.

Operating costs have increased at a higher ratio than the gross revenue.

The margin of safety between expenses and income, essential for successful operation, has entirely disappeared. The danger line has been reached.

In 1916 the Company's investment, used by the public, in the State of Tennessee, was	$11,812,347.48
In 1920 the Company's investment, used by the public in Tennessee, was	4,944,567.49
With an investment increased	$ 3,870,953.93 1,925,784.59

All of these figures are actual operating figures. They represent only physical property and cash received and expended in furnishing telephone service. They have no relation whatever to stocks, bonds, or other forms of capitalization, franchises, or "intangibles."

The Company's net earnings from its operations within the State of Tennessee during the year 1920 were not equal to and not sufficient to pay its interest charge and dividend of 6% due and payable during that period.

The Company earned 1.95% upon its investment in Tennessee during 1920.

Since January 1, 1921, the Company's net earnings have continued to be less than and not sufficient to pay its interest charges.

The Company did not earn and did not pay any dividend for the first quarter of 1921.

The difference between this meager profit and a fair and just profit is what our business contributed to your business last year.

We hope that you will study these figures.

They are your figures as much as they are ours.

They are as vital to you as they are to us.

You could not conduct your business without our business.

Our business cannot continue to serve your business unless these figures are speedily changed.

No one could. The United States Government tried it, and failed.

You must help us change these figures if you want us to serve you.

Edifying as the Need May Be

Redemption Not a Commercial Commodity.

Most of us understand that redemption is not a commercial commodity. We cannot buy heaven with good works any more than we can buy good works with money. Salvation, we understand, is not earned. It is not a matter of merit. If such were the case, there would have been no need of our Savior's sufferings, for meritorious men lived on the earth before his coming. There would have been no need for his tremendous sacrifice, for men could have been saved without it. The cross would seem to us now to have been an artificial burden and Calvary would seem superfluous. Let us acknowledge, then, that it is the gift of God; that no human merit can acquire it, but any human need can obtain it. Salvation is free. It is for the richest and the poorest, for the best and the worst. As God makes his rain to fall on the evil and the good, on the just and the unjust, in like manner he dispenses salvation through Jesus Christ, his Son. Over and over again the Bible fact is repeated in history, in psalmody, in prophecy, in the gospel narratives, in the apostolic letters, and in the Apocalypse, that "the just shall live by faith."

Once in a great while the United States government throws open a new section of land, and all the settler needs to do is to enter his claim and live on his land. There is always, in such cases, a mad scramble for the free land, and many are disappointed, for there are more settlers than homes. But not so with the territory of redemption, not so with heaven. All who will may go up and possess the land. "Whoseever will, let him take the water of life freely."

True Relation of Works to Faith.

There are some who regard the gospel of a free salvation as dangerous, because, they say, it discourages work. "Get that thought into people's heads," says the critic, "and they will leave you. They only enter the church because they are trying to accumulate a little merit for eternity. Teach them that they are not saved by works and they will lose interest. They will stop praying and working and going to church. You will lose your constituency." have no constituency, and we would hardly know what to do with one if we had it. But there is no reason why a live, fruit-bearing tree should stop bearing fruit simply because it has been ascertained that the fruit is not the cause, but the product, of its life. Nor is there any reason why an active, energetic Christian should quit work when he learns that his works are not the cause, but the fruits, of his salvation. Paul was a most earnest advocate of justification by faith and not by works, yet he could truthfully say: "In labors more abundant." James also teaches us that true faith cannot be divorced from works. His challenge is: "Show me thy faith without thy works, and I will show thee my faith by my works." As air is essential to life, although it is not life, so he teaches that while good works do not constitute salvation, at the same time they are essential to it.

The Evidence of Genuine Faith.

One's good works are evidence. They prove that his faith is genuine. If a man's face be turned toward the world of darkness and sin, and if he seems to be following his face, you will find it hard to believe that he is on the road to heaven, whatever he may say about it. If, standing beside a locomotive, you should lay your head on the boiler and find it cold: if you should open the fire door and find only gray ashes and black cinders, all the engineer's protestations could not possibly make you believe that the engine was in a condition to pull the train, for the evidence would be lacking. A financial institution might claim to be perfectly sound and solvent; but if, when you searched for collateral, you found only a desk, some chairs, a water cooler, and some stationery, that evidence would hardly corroborate its claim.

If we claim to be Christians, God in heaven wants some reliable evidence of our sincerity. The world vehemently demands the proof of our religious assertions. Dubious men and women are everywhere exercising the "show-me" spirit of the human mind. "Show me your faith by your works," they say. "Let your works validate your faith; let them authenticate it; let them certify to its genuineness." It was this crucial test that the Savior had in mind when he said in that wonderful Sermon on the Mount: "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works and glorify your Father which is in heaven." It was this underlying principle which inspired the admonition of the apostle Paul to the young man,

Titus: "In all things showing thyself an example of good works; in thy doctrine showing uncorruptness, gravity, sound speech, that cannot be condemned; that he that is of the contrary part may be ashamed, having no evil thing to say of us." (Tit. 2: 7, 8.)

Getting Aequainted With God.

Good works help us to get acquainted with our God. "The only real communion," it has been truthfully said, " is the communion of work. Dogmas and rituals are dead wires. Good deeds are living lines of rapid transit." If we will search the annals of Bible history, and particularly that part which tells of the patriarchs and prophets, we will find that those who were closest to God were those who worked the hardest for him. Hence, Enoch "walked with God," Abraham was his "servant" and David his "friend." It is just as true to-day. Those who maintain the most appreciable nearness to God are those most ardently engaged in his work. We cannot argue our way into an acquaintance with the Father. We cannot get close to him by simply theorizing about deity or mastering the various systems of theology. What most of us need is not more argument, but more experience; "not creeds, but deeds." If, when we enter the church of Christ, we will work assiduously and devotedly, our doubts will vanish like the dews of morning and our difficulties will be easily overcome. God only knows how much we can learn and how much better we may become if we remain "a peculiar people, zealous of good works."

How to Develop the Soul.

Good works develop a greater soul capacity. The Bible teaches us that there are big and little souls-souls that expand and souls that contract. We have not rendered full obedience until we have fulfilled the first and great requirement God makes of us: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind." (Matt. 22: 37.) The expression, "with all thy soul," shows there is a love which is not complete because the soul is not full. The foolish rich man described by the Master in Luke 12 had room in his soul only for his barns and his grain. That was his soul's capacity. In the foolishness of his heart he thought that his soul was big enough, for we hear him say: "Soul, thou hast much goods laid up for many years; take thine ease, eat, drink, be merry." We cannot be any bigger than our souls, but, by the grace of God, we can make our souls bigger. By doing the work that God demands of him, a man can soon change from a listless, half-hearted disposition to one of manly, whole-souled effort. As his work increases, his interest will grow and his soul's enjoyment will be proportionate to its capacity. With the poet he can always say: "Build thee more stately mansions, O my soul!"

But, as a final thought, let me say that a Christian must not think of himself only in his works. It is an old saying, but it is always true, and it is so helpful that it can never become trite: "Good works bless the world." That is their chief value. Those of us who try will always have the poor to succor, the sick to heal, the homeless to shelter, the tempted to sustain, the discouraged to cheer, and the wronged to defend. We cannot work miracles; we cannot open the eyes of the blind; we cannot unstop the ears of the deaf; we cannot cause the lame to leap and run; but in many other ways we can imitate the Master, who went about everywhere doing good. We can give to the world some tangible evidence that our faith is more than talk and that our souls are bigger than our bodies. We can show the true relation of works to faith, and glorify that religion which has for its chief attraction the ever-increasing goodness of its people.

This teaching inspired those beautiful lines of Susan Coolidge:

Souls are built as temples are,
Based on truth's eternal law,
Sure and steadfast, without flaw.
Through the sunshine, through the snow,
Up and on the building goes;
Every fair thing finds its place,
Every hard thing lends a grace.
Every hand may make or mar.

"The Kingly Rights of Jesus."

BY E. M. BORDEN.

The above is the title of article No. 3 on the subject of "The Kingdom of Christ," in the Word and Work, published at Louisville, Ky. The reader will remember that not long ago I gave a review of article No. 2, under the title, "The Image and the Beast." The writer of this series of articles, though a Christian preacher, or preacher of the church of Christ, is very far from the position of the brethren in general on the question of the kingdom. He is nearer with the Adventists and Christadelphians on this question than he is with us. His effort to prove that the kingdom mentioned in Dan. 2: 44 has not yet been fulfilled must be stamped with failure. There is no proof in favor of it.

It is true that this brother and those associated with him have a right to believe and preach whatever doctrine they please; but we have the same right not to believe it, and refuse to indorse those who teach it. I have never met this brother, and I have not known much of his work; but there is one thing I do know: if he is right in saying that the kingdom mentioned in Dan. 2: 44 is to be set up at the second coming of Christ, I have done wrong in debating against the Adventists and others who held the same views.

In article No. 3, "The Kingly Rights of Jesus," I find what I would call speculation. Many passages are used as favoring the idea of a future reign of Christ, beginning after his second advent, when there is not the slightest intimation of such in any of them. He must either read between the lines or give a false interpretation of the passages in order to make out a case. I know from my own experience that positions like that will cause trouble. Many of those passages that our brethren have used to prove that the church or kingdom was established on the day of Pentecost, he uses to prove that the kingdom will be established at the second coming of Christ.

In this article he refers to God's promise to Abraham as is recorded in Gen. 12: 1-7; 13: 14-17; 15: 17: 1-9; and 22: 15-18. Turn and read all of these passages, and you will not find the least intimation that Christ's kingdom will be established after he comes again. Paul contradicts the theory that Christ will establish his kingdom when he comes again by saying: "Afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God." I cannot see how the Lord should allow the Holy Spirit to make such an awful blunder as to say that Christ's kingdom will end at his second coming, when it would not be even established until that time. Was there a misunderstanding in heavenly circles as to when Christ's kingdom would be set up?

But what is there in God's promise to Abraham to lead this brother to think that the kingdom of Christ will be established at his second coming? God promised the land of Canaan to Abraham and to his seed. That has been fulfilled, as I will show in this article. The promise concerning Christ, "In thy seed shall all families of the earth be blessed," had reference to the beginning of the gospel age. Then there is the promise of a better country. It is believed by the Christadelphians and some others that God's promise of the land of Canaan has never been fulfilled. If there is anything clear to my mind, it is that the land promise has been fulfilled. Abraham was directed to a land that God would show him. Later he is a stranger in that land. "Unto thy seed will I give this land." (Gen. 12: 7.) In Gen. 15: 13-16 we read: "Know of a surety that thy seed shall be a stranger in a land that is not theirs and shall serve them; and they shall afflict them four hundred years. . . . But in the fourth generation they shall come hither again." God's promise that he would give them the land for an everlasting possession and his statement that they would dwell in a land not their own until the fourth generation before entering this land cannot be denied. Who can say that this has not been fulfilled? This promise was to Abraham and his seed, and not to aliens. If the expression of Paul, that he should be "heir of the world," refers to a future reign of Christ, how can it be that his reign will be confined to Israel? But possibly he holds the theory of some others that Christ will reign through Israel to the extent of the whole earth. Will the Israelites have the preëminence? Where is the proof? It is a fanciful idea without the least item of proof. The kingdom of Christ is not the kingdom of Israel. That is clear. If the passages referring to the land of Canaan are yet to be fulfilled, and that Christ is to reign over them in that land, how can it be said that he is to reign over all the earth? Joshua was told to go over Jordan unto the land that God had given them. (Josh, 1: 2.) Again, we read: "Every place that the sole of your foot shall tread upon, that have I given unto you, as I said unto Moses." (Josh. 1: 3.) "Unto this people shalt thou divide for an inheritance the land, which I sware unto their fathers to give them." (Verse 6.) Does that sound like the land promise is yet to be fulfilled? Not to me. When did God "swear unto their fathers?" Was it not when the land of Canaan was promised to Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, and their descendants? God's promise of the land of Canaan to Israel and Paul's reference that he should be "heir of the world" are two different things. If the Israelite inheritance was the land of Canaan, then it is not the whole earth. Is the whole earth the land of Canaan?

But he refers to the expression: "Thy seed shall possess the gate of his enemies." (Gen. 22: 17.) What is there in that to prove that the kingdom of Christ is yet to be established? What is there in that to prove that the land promise has not yet been fulfilled? Not one thing. His seed did "possess the gate of his enemies." After Christ comes again, his enemies will be sent to hell. How could they be in the way, so that it would be necessary to "possess the gate of his enemies?" Again, after the resurrection there will be no Jews according to the flesh, for all resurrected beings will be of the spirit and not of the flesh. There is not the slightest intimation that Christ will conduct an earthly reign over Israel as David did.

After Israel had remained in Egypt the allotted time and had returned to the land of Canaan as a nation, then was God's promise to Abraham with reference to the land of Canaan fulfilled. Listen to this statement: "Not one thing hath failed of all the good things which the Lord your God spake concerning you; all are come to pass unto you, and not one thing hath failed thereof." (Josh. 23: 14.) Does that sound like it is yet to be fulfilled? But let us read again: "And the Lord gave unto Israel all the land which he sware to give unto their fathers; and they possessed it. and dwelt therein." (Josh. 21: 43.) But let us read again: "There failed not aught of any good thing which the Lord had spoken unto the house of Israel; all came to pass." (Verse 45.) Can language be made plainer than the abovementioned statements? The land promise has been fulfilled. Really, are the Israelites expecting to enter the land of Canaan as a fulfillment of God's promise to Abraham and his seed? Hear Paul on this question: "These all died in faith, not having received the promises, but having seen them afar off, and were persuaded of them, and embraced them, and confessed that they were strangers and pilgrims on the earth. For they that say such things declare plainly that they seek a country. And truly, if they had been mindful of that country from whence they came out, they might have had opportunity to have returned. But now they desire a better country, that is, an heavenly: wherefore God is not ashamed to be called their God: for he hath prepared for them a city." If there had been any thought in heavenly circles of the Jews reëntering the land of Canaan, just think what a good place this would have been to have mentioned the matter. But instead of that he refers to a "better country." If the future-kingdom theory has to depend on proving that the Israelites will enter the land of Canaan after the next resurrection, it will have to fall of its own weight, for the theory cannot be proved. In the twenty-first chapter of Revelation we are told that there will be a new heaven and a new earth, wherein will dwell righteousness. That will be our heaven. This will be in eternity. This order of things will be after the next resurrection. But there is no mention made of a reign of Christ over literal Israel after the next resurrection. It is absolutely without foundation. Go to every place where the resurrection is mentioned, and there is no intimation that Christ will begin any kind of a reign after the coming resurrection. But possibly the brother will say there are two resurrections yet to come. Let him prove it if he can.

The brother also uses 2 Sam. 7: 9-16 to prove that Christ will reign over Israel after a future resurrection. Turn and read it, brother. Now, do you see anything in it to show that Christ is to reign over Israel at the future resurrection? Notice. The promise was to be fulfilled while David was dead and before he was raised from the dead. If it is to be fulfilled after the resurrection of all saints, how can it be fulfilled while David is dead? Will David be left in the grave in order that this promise be fulfilled after the next resurrection? Certainly not, for Jesus said: "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." (John 5: 28, 29.) Then Paul tells us that when the dead are raised at Christ's second advent, he will give up his reign. "Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God." (1 Cor. 15: 24.) To suit the theory, this would have to read: "Then cometh a universal reign of Christ over the Jews, and from them to the whole earth."

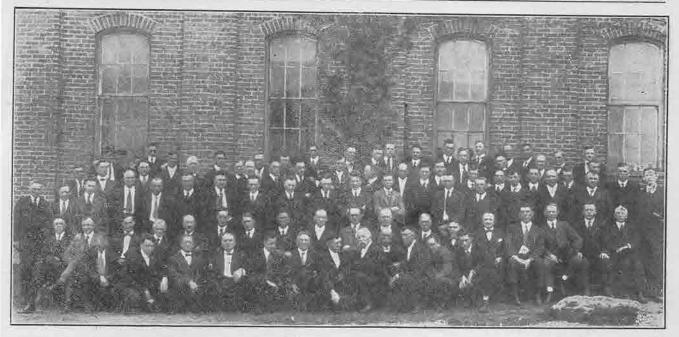

But listen. Christ is to reign until "he hath put all enemies under his feet;" and the last enemy is death. He is reigning now, and will continue until the resurrection, when death, the last enemy, shall have been conquered. The next resurrection will be general. How can it be said that death is swallowed up in victory, if David is left in the grave? It would have to be that way if that promise is not to be fulfilled until after the next resurrection, for it was to be done while David was dead. His seed was to be raised up to sit on his throne while he slept or while he was dead, and not after the general resurrection.

On the day of Pentecost Peter mentions this promise: "Men and brethren, let me freely speak unto you of the patriarch David, that he is both dead and buried, and his sepulcher is with us unto this day." (Acts 2: 29.) Note the reminder that David is still dead. There had been a resurrection of saints before that, but David was not in the number, for he was still dead. But read again: "Therefore being a prophet, and knowing that God hath sworn with an oath to him, that of the fruit of his loins, according to the flesh, he would raise up Christ to sit on his throne." (Verse 30.) This is positive and conclusive. This was the time of the fulfillment of that promise. Peter also says: "This Jesus hath God raised up." (Verse 32.) But he continues: "For David is not ascended into the heavens; but he saith himself, The Lord said unto my Lord, Sit thou on my right hand, until I make thy foes thy footstool. Therefore let all the house of Israel know assuredly, that God hath made that same Jesus, whom ye have crucified, both Lord and Christ." (Verses 34-36.) This shows that he was lifted up to reign until all his enemies were put under his feet. Here we find the beginning of the reign of Christ. He is reigning now and will continue until after the next resurrection.

But this brether tells us that it is "a promise of a permanent national home for the people of Israel, and their freedom from oppression and affliction at the hands of their Talk about fanciful ideas! This is the limit. Think of it! A national home for Israel after the next resurrection' How can it be? But, to cap it all off, he tells us it is to be through Christ. But in Christ we are neither Jew nor Greek. How can it be, then, that the Jews will have a special place? How can "in thee and thy seed shall all families be blessed" refer to a literal reign over the house of Israel? If Christ's reign is to be a reign over literal Israel after the next resurrection, how can it be that "glorious world-wide reign" that he also mentions? If, during the reign of Christ over literal Israel, the enemies will be in a separate place, how can it be that his reign will extend over all the earth? In fact, after the resurrection, who will be enemies to the Jews? Christ is to reign in the midst of his enemies. In Matt. 25: 31-46 we have a picture of Christ's second coming and the judgment. "Before him shall be gathered all nations: and he shall separate them one from another, as a shepherd divideth his sheep from the goats." At the close of this picture we find that the enemies are cast into punishment and the righteous go into life eternal. When is this to be? At his second coming. If the wicked are cast into punishment, where will there be enemies to be conquered? How can he reign in the midst of his enemies, if there are no enemies? The fact is, he is reigning now in the midst of his enemies, and will continue to do so until the resurrection, when the last enemy will be put under him. There is not the least intimation that Christ will begin his reign when he comes again.

What will Christ do when he comes again? This question should bring out the truth. If the Bible says that he is coming to establish his kingdom, I will submit. I have already shown that Christ will sever the good from among the evil when he comes again. In 1 Thess, 4: 13-18 Paul tells us that the dead will be raised and that the righteous will be caught up to meet the Lord in the air. When is this to be? At his second coming. Does this sound like Christ is going to reign over literal Israel when he comes again? In 1 Cor. 15: 52 we read that at the sounding of the trumpet the dead will be raised. "The dead" does not mean a part of the dead. All must come forth at the sounding of this trumpet, for this is the last trump to sound. Jesus, in referring to that time, says: "All that are in the graves shall hear his voice, and shall come forth." Notice that all are to come forth at the next resurrection. None will be left. Some will come forth to life eternal and some to punishment. In Dan. 12: 2 we read a similar statement. How will they come forth? Why did he not say that they will come forth to a reign of Christ over literal Israel? Because it is not true. In Col. 3: 4 Paul tells us that "when Christ, who is our life, shall appear, then shall ye also appear with him in glory." In Matt. 13: 41 we learn that Christ will gather out of his kingdom all things that offend and commit iniquity. When will he do this? When he comes again. Does this sound like the beginning of a kingdom of Christ? Again, Paul tells us that Christ will take vengeance on the wicked when he is revealed from heaven. After reading all these passages showing what Christ will do when he comes again, how can we think that when Christ comes again it will be the beginning of another age in which Christ will reign over the house of Israel? But I will close by reminding you of Paul's statement that at the time of Christ's coming the end will come. "But every man in his own order: Christ the first fruits, afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh the end, when he shall have delivered up the kingdom to God." (1 Cor. 15: 23, 24.) When will he do this? At his coming. According to the theory. this should read: "Afterwards they that are Christ's at his coming. Then cometh another age, in which Christ will reign over literal Israel." Who will say it should read that way? Let us not speculate Men's Bible Class of the Church of Christ, at McMinnville, Tenn.

More than sixty years ago the simple gospel story was proclaimed in McMinnville, Tenn. The plain gospel made an effective appeal among these mountain folk, and "many hearing believed, and were baptized." Thus the work was begun by the pioneers of the faith in this State, and in the succeeding years others have carried on the work, and now the town and county are fairly well evangelized, and there are many who rejoice to be called "Christians" and to "suffer for His name."

The McMinnville church has for many years been recognized as one of the strong churches of Middle Tennessee. For many years now it has claimed among its membership some of the leading men and women of the community, who by their unfaltering faith have kept the light of the truth burning for the salvation of their fellow men and the glory of Christ.

Following in the wake of quite a number of truly great men in the gospel, H. T. King came to McMinnville, December 1, 1919, and has labored in word and doctrine with the church since then. One of the things that has been stressed during these months has been the study of the Word. This emphasis has met a responsive chord in the congregation, and now the great majority of the church membership are systematically studying the Bible.

Some six months after coming to McMinnville, Brother King began to teach a Bible class for men on Sundays in connection with the regular Bible study, or Sunday-school work. Interest in this work grew perceptibly through the succeeding months. The first Sunday in January of the present year a member of this Bible class addressed the other men of the class and suggested that the attendance should be boosted to one hundred. This suggestion met with a hearty response, and many men expressed themselves as being willing to do all they could to help to interest others and have them come to the study of the truth. The goal was set for one hundred men enrolled by the end of the year 1921. It was soon seen that success would crown this effort, and before the first quarter of the year had gone the enrollment had gone above the one-hundred mark and the attendance was running near one hundred each Sunday.

The plan of study is the simplest. Hebrews was studied first. Then followed the general Epistles. After that a study of the Gospels was begun, and now the class is listening each Sunday morning to a discussion and an exposition of the Gospels recorded by Mark. The simple Bible truth plus interest and enthusiasm will win the men in any place. The triumph is full compensation for the effort.

Rachel Francis Elam.

BY I. B. BRADLEY.

"A mother in Israel" has fallen. Sister Elam fell asleep in Jesus on January 8, 1921. She had been in bad health for a long time, an invalid part of the time during the last six or seven years, but had been in the home and under the care of her daughter, Sallie, than whom there is none more dutiful, and had lacked for no attention or kindness. Her son-in-law, Mr. E. De Ramus, was very tender and kind to her during the last two or three years, for it was in his home she died.

Sister Elam's maiden name was "McCrory." She was married to Thomas H. Elam on January 11, 1852, and became the mother of nine children, three boys and six girls, all deceased but two—Mrs. B. F. Moody and Mrs. Sallie De Ramus.

She was baptized by Brother E. G. Sewell in 1865, and was a faithful, zealous Christian during the remainder of her active life. She loved the truth and the church, and was a helper of many. It was my privilege to be in her home a number of times, and I found her always interested in the cause of Christ. There was an atmosphere of true Christianity there that is to be found in few homes, although professedly Christian homes. I always felt the better and nearer to God after having been in her presence and talking with her. She was a truly godly woman. She abhorred hypocrisy and opposed any additions to the simple worship of God as revealed in apostolic teaching and practice. She believed the church was the greatest institution in the world, and fully capacitated to do all God intended for it to do without aids of any kind.

Born on January 25, 1835, and dying on January 8, 1921, she lived nearly eighty-six years. God gave her long life and many good days here, and we are assured of the sweet hope of a place in the paradise of God for her. "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord: . . . that they may rest from their labors; and their works do follow them." She is dead, but her influence still lives, and for good.

He is happy whose circumstances suit his temper; but he is more excellent who can suit his temper to any circumstances.—Hume.

The Sin of Ananias and Sapphira.

Beginning with verse 36 of Acts 4 and reading into chapter 5, we have these words: "And Joseph, who by the apostles was surnamed Barnabas (which is, being interpreted, Son of exhortation), a Levite, a man of Cyprus by race, having a field, sold it, and brought the money and laid it at the apostles' feet. But a certain man named Ananias, with Sapphira his wife, sold a possession, and kept back part of the price, his wife also being privy to it, and brought a certain part, and laid it at the apostles' feet." The little word "but" with which the fifth chapter begins puts the conduct of Ananias and Sapphira over against that of Barnabas.

Now, I hardly think we get the point by simply recognizing the fact that Barnabas brought all he received for the field, and Ananias and Sapphira brought only a part of what they received for theirs. The language of Peter. "While it remained, did it not remain thine own? and after it was sold, was it not in thy power?" clearly indicates that they had a right to bring a part or all, as they liked, and lay it at the apostles' feet. The point is seen in the fact that they brought only a part, but wanted the apostles to think they had brought all; and thus they lied about the matter. Just what words they used when they laid the part at the apostles' feet, we do not know. They may have only said, "We have sold a field, too, as well as Barnabas," and then placed a bag of money at the apostles' feet with the desire in their hearts that the apostles think the bag contained all the field brought. Anyway, they lied, and for this lie God slew them. The fact that the apostles were filled with the Holy Spirit, as Ananias and Sapphira had abundant reasons for knowing, and that they should not have regarded them as ordinary men, may have aggravated the case; but the fact stands out as plain as day that they wanted the impression made that they had given all, when they had given only a part. I am wondering how many in the church would now die if God should miraculously slay every one who has tried to make the impression that he is as liberal or as good as some one else, when it is not so?

Then there are other ways of lying and other things about which to lie. Is it not true that, oftentimes, when we suggest that certain things be done, we lie by introducing something as a mere pretext and failing to give the real cause? I have known of churches wanting to get rid of preachers and of some brother's introducing financial inability to support him as the cause, when financial inability had nothing to do with it. They were tired of the preacher and wanted to get rid of him, and used this as a pretext. It is also true that sometimes the resignation of an elder or deacon is asked for, and the reason assigned is the width of the heavens from the real cause lying at the bottom of the matter. Just how far God will exercise his mercy with such lying, I am not able to say, or whether he will do so at all. It is said in Acts 5: 11 that after God had thus disposed of Ananias and Sapphira "great fear came upon the whole church, and upon all that heard these things." I have an idea that if God should now speak from the skies to the whole church on earth and declare that before sundown he would kill every man on earth who had in any way lied to or about his brethren if they did not manage to get to those whom they had wronged and confess their sins, there would be a lot of scared people in the church and some moving about. Let us think and pray over the following truths that shall face us in the judgment: "Wherefore, putting away falsehood, speak ye truth each one with his neighbor: for we are members one of anether." (Eph. 4: 25.) "Lie not one to another." (Col. 3: 9.) Will we not remember that "there is no creature that is not manifest in his sight: but all things are naked and laid open before the eyes of him with whom we have to do?" (Heb. 4: 13.) How many a dollar has been made by a little lying in our business transactions! How many dollars do you have, my brother, that, in justice, belong to others? Are we conscious of any sins along this line? If so, does not true justice to self cry long and loud that we right all these wrongs before we face the judgment? Will God forget these things? Or is Paul speaking in vain when he says, "It is a fearful thing to fall into the hands of the living God?" (Heb. 10: 31.) This can apply only to those who have knowingly allowed wrongs to go without righting them, or lies they have told about others or to others to go not repented of and recalled.

The Love of Money.

The love of money had something to do with Ananias and Sapphira's sin, did it not? Did they not love it better than they loved the truth? Should they not have gladly let it all go, rather than to have lied about a part of it? Most certainly we can get to heaven without money, but it locks hopeless for the man that goes before God with a lie that he has kept hidden in his heart from his fellows.

Here it would be well to call attention to one more way of lying. It is in making others believe you love them, when it is not true. It is in making others believe you are their very best friends, when you would be glad to see or hear of their doing something wrong that you could use against them. It is this deceitfulness that is entirely too much practiced by those who claim to be Christians. Solomon says: "He that hideth hatred is of lying lips." (Prov. 10: 18.) Do you go before your brethren, kind reader, with hatred in your heart, but keep it back and make them believe you love them, when you would gladly do them an injury if you had a chance? God knows all such, and will haver forget it, unless we repent, with godly sorrow in our souls, and ask him to forgive, and right all of our wrongs against others as far as we are able.

Love is the chief thing in our conduct the one toward the other. But our Father, knowing the human heart, admonishes us: "Let love be without hypocrisy." Had we better not live with the inside out always, since, in the judgment, the inside will be exposed, and it will be shown that God knows us perfectly? "For we must all be made manifest before the judgment seat of Christ; that each one may receive the things done in the body, according to what he hath done, whether it be good or bad."

ooo oo "Perfect Love."

"Perfect love" has never harmed a soul, but has, indeed, blessed the one who exercised it. "There is no fear in love," says John; "but perfect love casteth out fear, because fear hath punishment [torment]; and he that feareth is not made perfect in love. We love, because he first loved us. If a man say, I love God, and hateth his brother, he is a liar: for he that loveth not his brother whom he hath seen, cannot love God whom he hath not seen. And this commanment have we from him, that he who loveth God lova his brother also." (1 John 4: 18-21.) Doubtless there are many who claim to be Christians who would be afraid for their own brethren to know the thoughts of their hearts. If they have a heart that makes them afraid of poor, frail humanity, how will it be with them when they face God?

How much we stand in need of a Paul or an Isaiah, who will declare unto us anything that is profitable; who will declare the whole counsel of God on every point in practical religion; who will "cry aloud," and "spare not;" who will lift up their voice like a trumpet and declare unto those who claim to represent the religion of Christ their transgressions and their sins! (See Isa. 58: 1; Acts 20: 20, 27.) The world is crying for a people who, indeed, declare all the eternal truths of the gospel to the people, and back their declarations with lives that enemies scrutinize in vain, hoping to find some evil thing to say of them. If Christ were to speak to us to-day, would we not hear: "Woe unto you, hypocrites! for ye are sticklers for what you call 'our plea,' and the weightier matters of my gospel ye have left undone, justice, mercy, and faith, and that love that casteth out all fear and establishes in the soul the peace that passeth all understanding and that joy that is unspeakable?" May our Father help us to think and pray over these things, remembering that the journey here will soon end and the realities of the judgment will be before us.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field By B. C. GOODPASTURE

Waiting for the Precious Fruit.

"Be patient therefore, brethren, until the coming of the Lord. Behold, the husbandman waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, being patient over it, until it receive the early and latter rain." (James 5: 7.) The brethren of "the Dispersion" (James 1: 1) were becoming somewhat impatient under the pressure of persecution and the oppression of the rich: they could see no present, adequate remuneration for their toil and suffering; they were not satisfied with the realized results, if we are to consider the epistle of James a true index to their condition. The reference to the husbandman would naturally remind them that they must sow before reaping; that there was an interval of patient, hopeful waiting between the sowing and the reaping time; that they were going through the trying period of that interval; and that they would receive the "precious fruit" of their labors at "the coming of the Lord." "Behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to render to each man according as his work is." (Rev. 22: 12.) There is instruction for us in this admonition of James.

The husbandman does not sow simply for the mere pleasure of the sowing; he does not expect his reward in the act of sowing; he looks beyond the sowing and the waiting to the harvest. They who sow "wild oats" do so for the pleasures of the sowing: they consider not the reaping of what they sow. It was the eating of the pottage, and not the loss of his birthright, that Esau enjoyed; it was the gold and silver and mantle of Jericho, and not the atoning and burning in the valley of Achor, that brought the covetous Achan joy. Not so with the Christian. He must sow in view of the harvest. If there were no harvest, perhaps the sower of "wild oats" would get along well; but without a harvest the Christian would fare miserably. "If we have only hoped in Christ in this life, we are of all men most pitiable." (1 Cor. 15: 19.) James endeavored to fix the attention of the brethren upon the harvest, the reward at the "coming of the Lord." It would lighten the burdens of sowing and the trials of waiting. "Moses, when he was grown up, refused to be called the son of Pharaoh's daughter; choosing rather to share ill treatment with the people of God, than to enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season; accounting the reproach of Christ greater riches than the treasures of Egypt." (Heb. 11: 24-26.) How could Moses turn from the wealth, the pomp, and the pleasure at Pharaoh's court to the privations and sufferings of the Israelites? He sought his ultimate happiness in the harvest, rather than in the sowing-"he looked unto the recompense of reward." (Heb. 11: 26.) Likewise, Paul found relief and consolation in contemplating the fruits of his labors and afflictions. "For I reckon that the sufferings of this present time are not worthy to be compared with the glory which shall be revealed to us-ward." (Rom. 8: 18.) There can be no suffering connected with sowing "unto the Spirit" worthy to be compared with the reaping of eternal life. "They that sow in tears shall reap in joy. He that goeth forth and weepeth, bearing seed for sowing, shall doubtless come again with joy, bringing his sheaves with him." (Ps. 126: 5, 6.)

Delay is not denial. The fact that what we do and suffer in the service of the Lord may not produce any immediate, temporal, visible good, so far as we can see, is no conclusive evidence that nothing worth while is being accomplished and that our efforts will be wholly unrewarded. The trouble is with our patience, not with the Lord. "The husbandman," said Jesus, "waiteth for the precious fruit of the earth, and hath long patience for it," (Authorized Version.) If men in matters of agriculture can exercise this "long patience," why should we not in matters of religion? If we do the right kind of work and enough of it in the vineyard of the Lord, we need not worry over the reward. "The Lord is not slack concerning his promise." (2 Pet. 3: 9.) "Wherefore, my beloved brethren, be ye steadfast, unmovable, always abounding in the work of the Lord, forasmuch as ye know that your labor is not vain in the Lord." (1 Cor. 15: 58.)

A Report From McGregor, Ga.

Since the last report of contributions made to the work at McGregor was published, sixty-four dollars and fifty cents has been contributed for the purpose of paying the indebtedness on the meetinghouse. The West End Avenue congregation, of this city, gave sixty dollars of the amount. The balance due on the house is one hundred and thirty-six dollars. This is not much; but it is due, and the little band at McGregor needs help. Send all contributions to Mrs. L. V. Mitchell, McGregor, Ga.

O O O Local News.

One more was baptized at West End Avenue last Sunday night (May 8). Our Sunday-school attendance broke all previous records again.

I should be glad if more of the contributions were designated for use in providing for orphans in this country, since there are constant appeals from destitute families close to us. Make all checks and money orders payable to A. B. Lipscomb. who will forward them to the proper commissioners.

Logicians may reason about abstractions, but the great mass of mankind never feel an interest in them. They must have images. God, the uncreated, the incomprehensible, the invisible, attracted few worshipers; a philosopher might adore so noble a conception, but the crowd turned away in disgust from words which presented no image to their minds. It was before deity, embodied in a human form, walking among men, partaking of their infirmities, leaning on their bosoms, weeping over their graves, slumbering in the manger, bleeding on the cross, that the prejudices of the synagogue, and the doubts of the academy, and the pride of the portico, and the forces of the lictors, and the swords of thirty legions were humbled in the dust.—Macaulay.

The Flood-Its Causes.

BY H. LEO BOLES.

Dr. Marcus Dods says: "The first great event which indelibly impressed itself on the memory of the primeval world was the flood." The Bible account of the flood is very brief and concise. There is no elaborate description of the flood, neither is there a long catalogue of causes assigned to it. The flood is frequently called "the deluge," and it is frequently mentioned in the New Testament Scriptures to impress a lesson.

The time assigned to the flood has been variously set by chronologists. According to the Hebrew text, it took place 1656 years after the creation; according to the Septuagint, it occurred 2,442; according to the Samaritan, it occurred 1,307 years after the creation. Noah was six hundred years old when the flood of waters came upon the earth. The ages of Adam and Methuselah measure the extent of the time from the creation to the flood, with an overlapping of about two hundred and forty years. Thus the time from the creation to the flood is spanned by the lives of two patriarchs. However, the time was sufficient for the wickedness of the children of men to become exceedingly great. Sixteen hundred years is a long time for people to commit sin and multiply the ways of sinning.

Two great causes may be assigned for the flood; and growing out of these two causes may be mentioned other remote and direct causes, subordinate, however, to the two chief causes. Sin on the part of man is the first cause, and mercy and justice on the part of Jehovah may be assigned as the second cause. The writer of Genesis does not give a long catalogue of sins. The record briefly states: "And it came to pass, when men began to multiply on the face of the ground, and daughters were born unto them, that the sons of God saw the daughters of men that they were fair; and they took them wives of all that they chose. And Jehovah said, My Spirit shall not strive with man forever, for that he also is flesh: yet shall his days be a hundred and twenty years. Nephilim were in the earth in those days, and also after that, when the sons of God came in unto the daughters of men, and they bare children to them; the same were the mighty men that were of old, the men of renown. And Jehovah saw that the wickedness of man was great in the earth, and that every imagination of the thoughts of his heart was only evil continually. And it repented Jehovah that he had made man on the earth, and it grieved him at his heart. And Jehovah said, I will destroy man whom I have created from the face of the ground; both man, and beast, and creeping things, and birds of the heavens; for it repenteth me that I have made them." (Gen. 6: 1-7,) Again, the record states: "And the earth was corrupt before God, and the earth was filled with violence. And God saw the earth, and, behold, it was corrupt; for all flesh had corrupted their way upon the earth." (Verses 11, 12.) We should remember that inspiration never overestimates, never uses exaggeration, in describing a thing; the description is never worse than the reality. The abnormal wickedness of the antediluvians is described in the strongest language and the demoralized condition of society is clearly depicted in Bible phraseology. "God saw that the wickedness of man was great," and that "every imagination of the thought of his heart was only evil continually." There was no mixture of good, no relentings, no repentances, no hesitations in evil, no remorses of conscience; it was a world of men and women fierce and energetic in wickedness, violent and lawless in unrestrained sin; six generations guilty of the deepest crimes. Truly the earth was ripe for destruction. "All the imaginations of their thoughts were evil;" the very first embryo of every ideal, "the figment of every thought. the very materials out of which perception, conception, and ideas were formed, were all evil;" the fountain which produced these, with all the thought, purpose, wish, desire, and motive, was an abomination in the sight of Jehovah. How great the sin must have been to provoke a compassionate God to destroy the world! The vindication of Jehovah and the glory of God demand that justice be meted out. In vain did the plous Noah beseech them to repent, and warned them of the threatened judgments of heaven; yet their course in crime was onward, and their thirst for sensual pleasure unquenchable. "The earth was filled with violence, and all flesh had corrupted its ways;" the restraints to evil had been removed; the reins of human passion had been broken; the voice of conscience was disregarded; God was not in any of their thoughts. No warning voice was heeded.

The love of sensual gratification had caused them to overleap the bounds prescribed by the laws of nature, and, regardless of the penalties, with appalling rapidity they hastened on to destruction. The imaginations of their hearts were evil, and only evil, continually. In the rank and file of the common people a storm of passion raged; tribe warred with tribe, man strove with man; universal wickedness in every shape and form prevailed. There is no need of a long catalogue of sins when we have such a description of the heart. The pen of inspiration goes to the fountain of sin, and briefly describes the heart, the source; and when it is only evil continually, nothing but evil can continually flow from it. We are told that there were giants in that age-giants physically and giants in wickedness. The emphasis is put upon the giants in sin; they were mighty in sin. It seems that the people were increasing and becoming stronger and mightier in their sins. Sin seemed to be increasing by leaps and bounds, including the whole teeming millions of earth, until every one, except the preacher of righteousness, is brought under its power and influence.

The sin of polygamy is assigned as a subordinate cause: "the sons of God took unto themselves the daughters of men." With an evil heart, this is to be expected. Lust and lasciviousness have cursed the human race in all ages, and the licentiousness of the sexes has brought ruin to every generation that fell under its influence. Some think that "the sons of God" has reference to the descendants of Adam through Seth, and that "the daughters of men" were the descendants of Cain, so that the union of these two great lines produced the giants in sin and wickedness. Others think that "the sons of God" were only those who were recognized as worshipers of Jehovah, while "the daughters of men" were those who did not worship Jehovah. It matters but little with us as to which position is correct. The thought that we gather is that a union of the two helped to encourage the wickedness in the land. These two great lines were blended in the licentious practices of that age and helped to corrupt the race before God. Some one has said that ninety per cent of the wickedness of earth is brought about by the violation of the law of purity and chastity and illegitimate association of the sexes.

Missionary Work in Japan.

BY NELLIE STRAITON.

If you are one of those who have contributed to Sister Lillie Cypert, you will be interested in learning something of the wonderful work she was enabled to do during the past year.

When she first took charge of the Zoshigaya Sunday school in 1919, her knowledge of the Japanese language was limited, the Sunday school was in a badly unorganized condition, and the teachers they were able to secure were very inexperienced. However, under her careful guidance and financial assistance, and with the cooperation of the teachers, the school has been able to do a splendid work. Of course there have been discouragements as well as encouragements in this work. At one time one teacher died, another married and moved away, and others who were students gave up the work at examination time. But in spite of it all, the school kept growing, and in a recent letter Sister Cypert said: "The Sunday school is increasing in numbers—almost doubled in the last month. We have had to increase our teaching force. Pray with us that we may do this work as God would have us do it among these little untrained olive plants."

English and Bible classes have also done much good. At one time she wrote: "I have two Bible classes in Japanese, will soon have an English class, have a Sunday-school teachers' meeting every week, and attend four other meetings each week." At another time: "I have a new Bible class for the time being. It is a real joy to try to give to hungry souls the thing they seem to so much desire. The young man that I am teaching is a very earnest one. He has been a Christian for a number of years, but knows very little about the Bible. He wishes to be a true, strong Christian, but because he does not know the Bible, he is a very weak one. He says: "Sensei [teacher], please strengthen my faith." And again: "I had an English class this afternoon, and they requested that we study the Bible instead of English. Of course I was delighted to make the change. We had a very interesting lesson. They want to study several times a week instead of one, and all of it Bible."

It seems to me, though, that Sister Cypert's personal work, especially among the young girls of Japan, is the best of all. At various times during 1920 she had with her a Japanese girl who was taking a kindergarten course, at the completion of which she planned to go to Okitsu to help Sister Sarah Andrews in her work there; a girl, a Christian, who was a student in a dental school, and who, by living with Sister Cypert, not only could attend the dental school, and Sunday school and church, which were near by, but also had the privilege of her influence and teaching; and a young boy, not a Christian, who had been working in a heathen temple in order to make his way through school, but who had become so disgusted with the bad habits of the priest that he wished to get away. To him, too, Sister Cypert lent a helping hand, helping him to get work, to attend public school, Sunday school, and church. To all of these she gave English and Bible training and teaching and that personal help which is worth so much.

Those already mentioned were only temporary, but there are two others who have shared the privileges of Sister Cypert's home and who are still with her. Ogawa San, a girl of sixteen, had learned some things not at all for her good and had been expelled from school. She was an orphan, and Sister Cypert found her living with an old grandmother who did not seem to be able to give her the mother's care and counsel which she so much needed. However, Sister Cypert's patience, wisdom, and prayers overcame all obstacles, and early in January, 1920, she wrote me that Ogawa San had been studying hard, had been a very good girl, that she had been allowed to reënter school, and, best of all, that she had become a Christian. Since that time she has had nothing but praise and commendation for this girl, who, but for her kind-hearted assistance, might have led a very different life, and might never have heard the sweet story of Jesus. Ogawa San helps in the housework and the care of the other little girl about whom I am going to tell you, teaches in the Zoshigaya Sunday school, and is at present taking an English course at school so that she can help Sister Cypert with translation work later.

Kiy-Chan is the other little girl, seven years old, and the daughter of a poor widow who was finding it very difficult to support herself and the two children. She is a Christian, and is very anxious that her little girl not only be supplied with the necessary food and clothing, but that she also have the advantages of Christian training and teaching; so she gave her to Sister Cypert to adopt and to care for as she saw best. The child is now in her second year in school, and is doing very good work. She is a bright little girl and learns fast both at home and at school. Sister Cypert hopes that some day she will grow up to be a true Christian and be useful in the Master's work among her own people.

All this good work takes money. Out of her personal funds, which amounted to one hundred dollars each month during the past year, she met all her own expenses (with the exception of her furniture), paid a native helper during part of the time, cared for these last two girls (one of them during the entire year and the other for the past several months), and contributed to the Zoshigaya Sunday school and other mission work in Japan; and now she is anxious to start a school for girls, which, however, will require additional funds. If you want to learn of the great need for this school and Sister Cypert's desire to have it, read "Do Japanese Girls Need Christian Teaching?" a copy of which I will be glad to send you on request.

Many individual Christians, classes, and churches contributed to her support during the past year, most of them having learned of her work through the kindness of our religious papers in publishing reports, news items, and missionary articles. To all of these I wish to express my appreciation of their cooperation and to pass on to them the following message from Sister Cypert: "I am more thankful to you than I can tell for the big, fat check for my regular expenses and my furniture, and, of course, to all those who had a part in it, and for your special part in it, too; and it goes without saying that I am thankful to our kind Heavenly Father, who so bountifully supplies all of our needs, even down to unworthy me, and gives us so many kind friends that are such an encouragement to press on and do even more and to have a desire to do more still, not only for their sakes, however, but for the Lord's sake, who deviseth all things."

The amounts I forwarded during 1920 to Sister Cypert and others aggregated $1,549.04.

Statement of Position.

BY J. C. M'Q.

It is due our readers to understand the aims and purposes of the Gospel Advocate. As it is necessary to frequently restate the truth, giving line upon line and precept upon precept, so also it becomes necessary to restate our position in order that there may be no confusion of thought and ac-

The Gospel Advocate has always boldly contended for individual action as opposed to centralization. It stands for the autonomy of the churches and has opposed ecclesiasticism. The local church is the only organization known to the New Testament. It is the duty of the elders to oversee, tend, and teach the church. This arrangement and appointment of God should be respected and honored by all. Any influence that takes authority from those to whom God has given it is destructive of the divine order. This journal has never encouraged any one to belittle the influence and scriptural authority of the elders, but has discouraged and discountenanced any attempt to do so. The Gospel Advocate is neither a confessional nor a judge. As it is not a board of elders, but simply individual Christians publishing a religious journal, it encourages sinners to confess their sins to the elders of the congregation where they worship. It is not its purpose nor mission in the world to sit in judgment on the difficulties that may arise in the local congregations. The discipline of unruly members in the different congregations is the work of the elders in those respective congregations, and the Gospel Advocate means to encourage the elders to do their work faithfully. It is not so inconsistent as to undertake to do this work itself.

Some of our readers seem to think that the editor indorses everything that appears in the Gospel Advocate. This is a mistake. So long as we have individual thought and individual action there will be some diversity of opinion. The Gospel Advocate contends for unity in essentials and freedom in opinions so long as one does not force bis own opinions upon others. It stoutly and vigorowsly contends that opinions should be held as private property. For one to attempt to force his opinions upon others means disruption of the churches. No one can have too much respect for the plain, revealed will of God; and when God has clearly spoken, that should be an end to all controversy. Men should meekly bow in humble submission to God's authority. There is enough clearly revealed in the word of God to occupy the brightest minds until Gabriel blows his trumpet. All men may be greatly edified by dwelling upon the fundamentals of salvation. No human mind is great enough to fully comprehend and exhaust the plainest things revealed in the plan of salvation. The Gospel Advocate has not only not sought to bind its opinions upon others, but it has contended that it is a sin to do so, and with all of its strength has discouraged any man from making his opinion a test of fellowship. It should be distinctly understood, however, that the publication of an item of news is not to be considered as an indorsement of the one who furnishes said item. Neither should it be considered a condemnation of those who differ from him. It is not the province of a religious journal to pass upon such questions. Its province is to teach the truth as it is in Christ Jesus and seek to lead men to accept and practice the truth. It is not possible for any journal to know the facts concerning difficulties between brethren that may arise thousands of miles away. Of course, if a journal knows a man to be a vicious man, then that journal should not encourage the man in his evil course. It should not bid him Godspeed and thus become a partaker of his sins. On the other hand, it is one's duty to boldly and fearlessly condemn the man in his evil course, seek to lead him to repentance and restore him in a spirit of meekness.

An editor often publishes an article that is not vicious and that is not calculated to do evil, when he does not agree with everything contained in the article. An editor should not seek to put every contributor into his individual mold. Such a course is entirely too autocratic. He must stimulate freedom of thought and freedom of action. Neither should it be expected that every editor of a paper will agree with everything that every associate or contributing editor may publish. I have never felt responsible for everything that every editor has published in the Gospel Advocate. Neither have I expected every editor to indorse everything that I have published. I must account for myself to God; so I must be free to act as I think God demands of me. Neither can any one who is seeking to grow in grace and the knowledge of the truth agree to publish precisely the same thing ten years hence that he is publishing now. Many of us have discovered some mistakes that we have made in the past. Honest men make mistakes. An editor, in making up his paper, should make it up for the readers and not for the contributors. He should consider an article simply on its merits, and not be influenced by his likes and dislikes for the author of the article. It is not wise to publish an article that will do no good and may do harm simply to please the contributor. He should publish those things which will be helpful to the public.

We hope our readers will fully understand that when we publish items of news from congregations where there are disturbances in the church, that such publication does not mean an indorsement or condemnation of any one. usually publish such items without any knowledge of local differences. The sole purpose of every journal and of every Christian should be to honor and to glorify God. All should seek to advance God's kingdom in the world, and should give themselves wholly and unreservedly to the work, doing their full duty, leaving the results in the hands of Him who doeth all things well.

"A Defense of Baptist Doctrine." No. 3. BY F. W. SMITH.

Under what Brother Burress calls "The Climax" he gives us the following:

THE CLIMAY.

"Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saves us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Ghost; which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ our Savior." (Tit. 3: 5, 6.)

Brother Smith's interpretation of this marvelous passage, to my mind, is a boomerang. He says: "The 'washing' of regeneration here mentioned refers to baptism, as all scholars and commentators of note agree, and is placed over against the works of 'righteousness' by which no one is The apostle says while we are not saved by works saved. of righteousness-that is, the kind of works here mentioned we are saved by baptism, which shows that baptism does not belong to that class of works by which we cannot be saved."

He admits, not saved by works of righteousness, then says "we are saved by baptism." The distinction of "works of righteousness" into classes, one by which we cannot be saved, another (baptism) by which we are saved, is not made in the text.

When the Savior asked baptism of John, he said, "Thus it becometh us to fulfill all righteousness," regarding baptism as such. Not that he would "thus" become the Son of God, or become any more divine. of God, or become any more divine. John, speaking of Jesus, said: "And I knew him not: but that he should be made manifest to Israel, therefore am I come baptizing with water." Baptism declares, does not procure.

Wonderful works claimed to have been done in the name of the Lord did not win salvation. (Matt. 7: 21-23.)

Paul gives a clear exposition of Tit. 3: 5 in Eph. 2: 8-10: "For by grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God: not of works, lest any man should boast. For we are his workmanship, created in Christ Jesus unto good works, which God hath before ordained that we should walk in them." Salvation is a gift. Gifts are received and not won. "The gift of God is eternal life through Jesus Christ our Lord." (Rom. 6: 23.)
"By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God." "Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteous (Rom. 4: 4, 5.)

Thus it may be seen that our friend thinks I have placed myself in an inconsistent attitude by admitting we are not saved by "works of righteousness which we have done," but that we are saved by baptism. "The like figure whereunto even baptism doth also now save us" (1 Pet. 3: 21) is the language of holy writ; and can it be possible that Brother Burress will deny what the apostle Peter affirms?

But he supposes my mistake in the matter consists in making a distinction between "works of righteousness" not made in the text (Tit. 3: 5). Well, now, his quarrel on this point must be made with the apostle Paul, and not with me. That inspired man wrote plainly in these words: "Not by works of righteousness which we have done, but according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing of regeneration, and renewing of the Holy Spirit." The Holy Spirit himself made a very broad distinction between "works of righteousness" and obedience to God in baptism, and I regret very much that our friend is unable to see this clear distinction. He refers to the baptism of our Savior as proof that baptism belongs to the works of righteousness by which none could be saved, but in this he is very much mistaken. The "works of righteousness" by which no one could be saved required and demanded absolute perfection from the moment of accountability to the moment of death, and knew neither grace nor mercy, while baptism is associated with the mercy of God-viz.: "But according to his mercy he saved us, by the washing [baptism] of regeneration," etc. The very fact of one's submitting to baptism for the remission of sins is a confession of sins and a knocking at the door of God's mercy and pardon. John says: "Little children, let no man deceive you: he that doeth righteousness is righteous, even as he is righteous."

(1 John 3; 7.) Does our friend think the righteousness here referred to belongs to works of righteousness by which none can be saved? Again: "Whosoever doeth not righteousness is not of God," etc. (1 John 3: 10.) Will he contend that the righteousness here mentioned is the same as the works of righteousness by which no one could be saved? Once more: "Wherefore, my beloved, as ye have always obeyed, not as in my presence only, but now much more in my absence, work out your own salvation with fear and trembling." (Phil. 2: 12.) Here the terms "obedience" and "works" are used interchangeably, and salvation is associated with obedience or works. Now, will Brother Burress say that no distinction is made between works by which men are saved and those by which they cannot be

He says: "Baptism declares, does not procure." Of course baptism does not procure the remission of sins-the blood of Christ does that; but will our friend contend that the blood of Christ procures salvation for any one apart from faith and repentance? I know he will not; and since faith and repentance are acts of the creature, why relegate baptism to "works of righteousness" by which no one could be saved, in the face of Peter's answer to believing, penitent sinners-viz.: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name [by the authority] of Jesus Christ for the remission of your sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." (Acts 2: 38.) In trying to get sinners saved without acts of obedience, our friend quotes a passage which is most fatal to his theory-viz .: "By grace are ye saved through faith; and that not of yourselves: it is the gift of God." (Eph. 2: 8.) The passage teaches that salvation by the grace of God is appropriated through faith. and here our friend runs up against an act of obedience standing between him and salvation by grace. I might have said, and do now say, that "through faith" includes repentance and baptism before the salvation by grace is reached. Of course eternal life is the gift of God, but not without faith and obedience. "But we are not of them who draw back unto perdition; but of them that believe to the saving of the soul." (Heb. 10: 39.) Again: "And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." (Heb. 5: 9.) brother himself, though unconsciously, makes the distinction between "works of righteousness" by which no one could be saved and acts of obedience looking to salvation. Hear him: "Now to him that worketh is the reward not reckoned of grace, but of debt. But to him that worketh not, but believeth on him that justifieth the ungodly, his faith is counted for righteousness." (Rom. 4: 4, 5.) Unfortunately for his theory which sets baptism aside as a work of righteousness by which none could be saved, he contends for a work which men must do to be savedviz., faith. Christ said faith was a work. (See John 6: 28, 29.) The failure to properly divide and apply the word of God (see 2 Tim. 2: 15) is the trouble with Brother Burress and multiplied thousands of others.

We are in need of help. The Bible recommends faith in God. We are not in position to know God; we cannot even by severe reason tell if he exist. We may guess at it from certain things we are sure of in nature and from the power of the human mind; but there is a hiatus between knowledge and the superior intuition known as faith, "trusting where we cannot prove," as Tennyson says. That gap can never be filled, seeing that we must have infinite intelligence ere we can know God. Hence, we have got to trust; we must capture the sweet reliance on the gracious love of God that shone even in the Lord's face.-J. H. Dunham.

By admiration of what is beautiful and sublime we can mount up a few steps toward the likeness of what we admire.-J. S. Blackie.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

- N. W. Proffitt, of Paris, Texas, is in a meeting at Sixth Avenue, North, and Buchanan Street, this city.
- J. D. Tant writes from Statesville, N. C., May 9: "Our meeting continues with great interest. Three baptized to date"
- J. W. Grant preached to fair audiences at Reid Avenue Church, this city, last Lord's day. The attendance there is not as regular and the interest as good as it should be.

Some brethren and churches of the city have taken an option on a nice brick meetinghouse on the Granny White road, at twenty-nine hundred dollars. The Baptists are selling it.

Married, on Wednesday, May 11, Fred Bowers to Minnie Winchester, J. C. McQuiddy officiating. The couple will reside in New York. We all congratulate them and wish them a useful and happy life.

- R. C. White preached at Ashland City, Tenn., last Lord's day, and will preach next Lord's day at Glasgow, Ky. Beginning on the fifth Sunday in this month, he will hold two meetings in East Tennessee.
- S. C. McCasland changes his address from 102 New York Hall, Louisville, Ky., to Winters, Texas, Box 285. He expects to return to the Southern Baptist Seminary in Louisville sometime in September next.
- W. T. Hines writes from Blackwell, Okla., May 9: "The Blackwell mission meeting is moving off nicely. We have thirty-five or forty members who will keep house for the Lord. I will stay here a week longer."

We enjoyed a visit from W. B. Hillman, of Waverly, Tenn. From him we learn that L. L. Brigance, of Henderson, Tenn., will hold a meeting for the church at Waverly, beginning on the second Lord's day in June.

Leslie G. Thomas writes from Pontiac, Mich., May 9: "On May 1 we closed a two-weeks' meeting in Akron. 1 began here yesterday. My next place will be Speaker. Brother Hastings, of Detroit, labors with this congregation."

Foy E. Wallace, Jr., Vernon, Texas, says: "We baptized twenty-four in the Lockney meeting; eight at Plainview. Both churches are in good condition. T. S. Teddlie conducted the song service in both meetings. We begin at San Saba on May 15."

The meeting at Foster Street Church, this city, conducted by C. R. Nichol, closed on last Lord's-day night with fortyeight baptisms and three restored. He began a meeting at Lindsley Avenue on Monday night. Services will be held at 2:45 P.M. and 7:45 P.M. each day.

Flavii Hall writes from Birmingham, Ala., May 12: "I am in a good meeting with the Newcastle congregation, ten miles north of Birmingham. The visible results have been twelve baptisms, two from the Baptists, and one restored to the fellowship. Others are expected."

J. G. Allen preached for his old congregation at Green Street, this city, last Lord's day. He had in years gone by probably preached for this church more than any other man, and it was a great pleasure to him to preach for them again after several years' absence in the West.

The meeting conducted by R. V. Cawthon at Green Street, this city, recently closed with twenty-two additions. Good interest prevailed throughout the meeting. He is now in a meeting at Grandview Heights, having begun there on last Lord's-day afternoon. He will preach every day at 3 P.M. and 7:45 P.M.

Cled E. Wallace writes from Rock Springs, Texas, May 9: "We baptized twelve in a good meeting here. Theron Cottle is doing good work as local preacher. John S. Durst, of Junction, visited us a few days, and helped much in the meeting. His presence is an inspiration. I shall begin at Ranger on May 15."

Charles F. Hardin, Springfield, Mo., May 9, says: "We were at Neosho, Mo., seventeen days with the church, and the meeting resulted in twenty-one additions. Rue Porter is one of the best evangelists I ever saw. My next effort will be song leading for M. C. Cayce at Columbus, Miss., beginning next Sunday."

Will J. Cullum preached for the Twelfth Avenue congregation, this city, last Sunday, morning and evening, to very large audiences. The interest and attendance in the Bible study continues to grow. Last Sunday's attendance was the largest in the history of the church, there being three hundred and forty-four present.

N. E. Hicks writes: "Oscar E. Billingsley closed a very successful meeting at Knobel, Ark., on May 5. We had sixteen additions to the one body during the eight-days' meeting. We have increased our membership this year more than one hundred per cent, and there are still other pentent believers who we hope will soon obey."

James A. Allen preached two fine sermons to the Charlotte Avenue Church, this city, last Lord's day at their tent. The attendance was representative, and demonstrates that they can keep up their interest in church work even if their house is only in process of construction and in no way available for present use.

From F. L. Young, Sherman, Texas, May 7: "I am in a fine meeting here. A number have been baptized and several restored. This is a fine church, and Brother White is doing a great work here. I continue one more week. Our meeting in Paris will begin on June 19, with L. S. White doing the preaching. We are expecting great things."

- J. C. Mosley recently held a good meeting at Dongola, III., which resulted in a number of baptisms. In a note received from Brother Mosley while the meeting was yet in progress, he says: "I have a call to go to Alberta, Canada, over a thousand miles north of here. I guess I will work in Tennessee a while now. I will consider the Canada trip."
- T. W. Phillips, writing under date of May 9, says: "I am just in home from Wewoka, Okla. Had a fine meeting. Baptized eleven splendid people and restored one." At this writing he is in a meeting at Junction City, Texas, which is the home of our esteemed brother, John S. Durst. He says that Brother Elam's meeting starts off well in Fort Worth.

Among our callers last week were T. Q. Martin and wife. They had made a visit to his wife's people at Franklin and were en route to Murray, Ky., to hold a protracted meeting. Brother Martin had just closed an interesting meeting in Birmingham, Ala., with three additions. He is a very earnest gospel preacher, and does much good in proclaiming the gospel of Christ.

A card bearing the following announcement comes to us: "Tent meeting, conducted by the church of Christ, two weeks, May 15-29, post-office lot, Columbus, Miss. Preaching by Evangelist M. C. Cayce, of Jackson, Miss., 10:30 A.M. and 7: 45 P.M. every day. Song service conducted by Charles F. Hardin, of Springfield, Mo. These services will interest and help you. Come!"

C. W. Sewell writes from Corpus Christi, Texas, May 8: "Two were immersed at Sinton on the third Sunday in April. I preached a week at Raymondville, down at the edge of the Rio Grande Valley, embracing the first and second Sundays in May. No conversions. J. H. Lawson, of Houston, is in a two-weeks' meeting for us at Corpus Christi, and F. J. Berry is preaching at Houston."

John W. Hedge, writing from Ryan, Okla., May 11, says: "The meeting here began on May 1, with D. C. Williams and myself doing the preaching. Our crowds have been good, so I am told, for this place. One has been baptized to date. On May 18 I am to begin an eight-days' debate at Snow Hill, near Blanchard, with G. F. Slape, Paptist. The general church questions will be discussed. On May 27 I am to begin a meeting at Caddo."

From J. S. Daugherty, Kirbyville, Texas, May 9: "I preached twice for the scattered-abroad faithful in Wiergate, Newton County, yesterday. These members have never met regularly for worship. I am to return on May 28 and lead them in a ten-days' meeting, at which time we hope to perfect a permanent organized body. This will be my first meeting for the season, but I will be busy in meetings the remainder of the year."

Andrew Perry writes from Kosciusko, Miss., May 9: "Last week I preached at Cork Schoolhouse, near Ackerman, Miss., H. D. Jeffcoat's home. I began on Monday night and preached each night until Friday night. We had growing and attentive audiences. On Saturday Brother Jeffcoat and I went to Nial Schoolhouse, ten miles south of Kosciusko, where we each preached twice to fine and attentive audiences. I will return to that point on Saturday night before the second Lord's day in June, and will probably preach each night during the following week. There are several there who seem to be persuaded, and I look for several additions."

The meeting at Lindsley Avenue had an excellent beginting Monday night.

Brother Wrye's meeting at Eleventh Street, this city, is reported doing fine, with twenty additions to Tuesday morning.

John B. Peden, of Avon Park, Fla., recently held a very successful mission meeting of ten days' duration at a point where there was not a member when he began the work. He baptized ten during the meeting.

J. L. Barfield is open for engagements as song leader for protracted meetings for the coming summer. He is a fine song leader. Call him, and you will not be disappointed. His address is 131 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn., care of the Bethel House.

George W. Graves reports a nice visit to the church at Millersburg, Rutherford County, Tenn., last Lord's day He had fine audiences at both morning and night services, and says the church is manifesting good and hearty interest in the Lord's work.

Vernon Rozar writes that he has suffered a breakdown in health and that he and his wife will go to his father's home next week to stay until his protracted-meeting work begins, hoping to regain his strength. Address him at Fayetteville, Tenn., Route 6, Box 66.

Brother Thurmond, of Adairsville, Ky., was in our office last Monday. He reports the congregation at his home town as not making the progress in Christian growth that they ought to make, though they keep up the weekly meetings on the Lord's day. Dr. Ward preaches for them monthly.

From O. M. Reynolds, Madill, Okla., May 11: "I closed a fifteen-days' meeting on Monday at the water, at Lebanon. We had exceptionally good attendance and interest throughout the meeting. Most people 'heard gladly.' The little church was greatly strengthened, twelve were restored, and ten were baptized. Eighteen of the number were matured, married people. I left forty happy souls working and worshiping in orderly manner. My home church had fellowship in conducting the meeting."

T. B. Clark sends the following from Childress, Texas, May 9: "On the second Sunday in May there were four more additions to the congregation here—three restorations and one baptism. The one baptized is a young man who stands high in Childress. Much interest is manifested in all the services, We are all looking forward with special interest to our protracted meeting, to begin on the fifth Sunday in May, with W. D. Bills doing the preaching and Dr. S. A. Pittman conducting the song service."

J. C. Pendergrass writes from Whitleyville, Tenn., May 9: "I am back in Tennessee for another summer's work. I preached at Walnut Grove on the first Sunday in this month, and at Flat Creek at night. I was with the faithful in Big Bottom yesterday. We had the largest crowds I ever saw at that place. I aim to be at Brimstone next Lord's day, at Pine Hill on the fourth Lord's day, and at Sugar Creek on the fifth Lord's day at eleven o'clock and at Hurricane in the afternoon. I aim to be busy all the year."

In a few months A. Ellmore will be eighty-three years old. Considering his age, he is quite active. He says: "For nine years I have preached five times per week, written many letters, and have written for from two to four papers. In addition to this, I have done some chores." He feels that this is his duty, provided he always does the right things. Like all men of his age, he is grieved to see any departures from the apostolic faith and practice. May he be spared long to advocate the pure and simple gospel of Jesus Christ.

Will W. Slater writes from Bates, Ark., May 11: "Sunday was a good day with us at Park Hill Church. We now have seven classes in the Bible study. Our meeting is to begin on the fifth Sunday in May, with J. Will Henley as minister. I am here in a meeting which began last evening with a good attendance. The home church sent me here to assist the few we have here. We are using the Methodist church house. M. S. Gabbard, of Delaney, Ark., is preparing to devote all his time to evangelistic work. He is a good preacher and one of the best of men. Brethren, if you will call him, he will go you good."

John E. Dunn, of Irving, Texas, with J. W. Acuff as leader in song, has had a very fine meeting at Hillsboro, Texas. There were thirty-one additions to the congregation, with twenty-five baptisms and three restored. A local evening paper says: "The church is greatly encouraged over the success of the meeting. The church of Christ in our city has in the last few years grown from a mere handful of members into several hundred. This church has become a mighty power and influence for good in our community. In the disciples of Christ we have an earnest, godly, and enthusiastic body of people who have a great future before them."

Tice Elkins writes from Fort Worth, Texas, May 9: "Yesterday was another glad day for the Southside church of Christ, this city. Two more precious souls were baptized into Christ. Large crowds in spite of rainy weather. Brother Elam is at the Central Church, preaching his good, old-fashioned sermons. He will begin for Southside when the Central meeting is over. I will begin the Southside meeting on the fourth Lord's-day morning in May and go on until Brother Elam can take hold, if he does not close at Central before that time. Brother Busby is still carrying the fight on at the Northside Church, where more than thirty have been added to the fold, and will go on this week."

H. N. Mann writes from Riverside, Tenn., May 9: "Yesterday was a busy day, of sorrow and joy, with us. We lost one of our best members in the death of Hollis Nutt, who was buried at three o'clock. N. W. Proffitt, of Paris. Texas, conducted the funeral services, with the largest number of people attending we have seen at a burial here. I conducted services out three miles from home at eleven o'clock, and we had six confessions and two sisters to come back to their 'first love.' I came home to attend the funeral, then returned to attend to the baptizing. Our work moves along with good interest and growing prospects. At three places I visited in March the people brought dinner, and we had two services in place of one. I am having two and three services each Lord's day, and need more helpers to meet the calls."

S. W. Bell writes from Sedalia, Mo., May 11: "In the midst of mud and a continuous rain almost all day, some of the faithful came to church at the Berea meetinghouse last Sunday. Let all imitate their zeal. How I wish the whole State were filled with as good people as these! I have just learned that W. W. Slater cannot get to us before June 14, instead of earlier, as we had hoped. We are starting into this great summer's fight walking by faith, trusting that God's children will help us in it. These brethren have been 'turning down' other calls to come to us, and we want them to have the right kind of support. If you can only aid us a dollar or so per month for the summer, and others will do the same thing, we can keep this tent going. This immediate field needs two or three tents. We want to get two to going as soon as possible. 'Who is on the Lord's side?'"

Earnest C. Love, Fresno, Cal., writes: "The attendance at the Fresno Street Church is steadily increasing. Two interesting services were held yesterday (May 8), the evening service being held in the tent, which has been erected on the lot recently purchased by this congregation. L. D. Davis delivered an interesting discourse, and our meeting, which is to continue indefinitely, started with an encouraging attendance and much interest manifested. We are hoping to do much good. I preached at Madera yesterday, morning and evening. We are progressing nicely at the Fresno Home and School. To-day Brethren Riggs, Perkins, Walker, Borden, and Hayes visited us, and made interesting talks at our chapel service. We are always glad to have our friends visit us, and appreciate any interest the brethren may show in the work."

E. M. Borden, Riverside, Cal., writes: "The preachers' meeting at Dinuba was well attended and was a success in every way. The brethren at Dinuba referred to it as 'a feast of good things.' Among the subjects discussed by the various preachers were these: 'The Church of Christ—What Is It?' 'The Work of an Evangelist,' 'Church Music,' 'Unity,' 'Church Discipline,' 'Church Finances,' 'A Model Church,' 'Church History,' 'Coöperation.' I am not sure that I can give the names of all the preachers who were present, but I will do the best I can: William P. Walker, L. D. Perkins, E. C. Love, W. H. Trice, G. W. Riggs, A. J. Craig, Brother Badger, O. W. Gardner, S. E. Witty, Brother Dickson, Brother Scott, Brother Wyatt, Brother Pace, Paul Hays, Fred Hays, Brother Cargile, and the writer. I believe this meeting will result in much good. We are now in the midst of a revival meeting which began on Sunday after the preachers' meeting. Large audiences, but no additions to date. The cause of Christ is on the upward way in California."

W. T. Champion asks an explanation of John 13: 1-7. The point on which he wishes information is whether the foot washing was after the passover or after the Lord's Supper, or at the Bethany supper.

The foot washing referred to in John 13 was after the passover supper and not after the Lord's Supper. We have no account of the institution of the Lord's Supper in this chapter. As we learn from Matthew and Mark, Judas at the passover supper dipped in the dish with Christ, and then went out before the institution of the Lord's Supper. We learn from John 13: 30: "He then having received the sop went out straightway: and it was night." This refers to Judas, and was before the Lord's Supper. The supper at Bethany was six days before the passover. We learn from Matt. 26: 17 that on the first day of unleavened bread the disciples came to Jesus, saying: "Where wilt thou that we make ready for thee to eat the passover?" This shows conclusively that the foot washing was not at the supper at Bethany. 0 0 0

- J. M. Dennis, of Franklin, Ky., sends the following questions for answer in this department: "(1) Is the Greek preposition 'eis' ever translated in the Bible 'because of?' (2) Is 'eis' ever translated 'in order to?' (3) How many times in the Bible is 'eis' translated? (4) Is the Bible account of creation the oldest in the world to-day? (5) Is there now in existence any testimony of uninspired men who question the inspiration of the Bible that is supposed to antedate the Bible?
- 1, "Eis" is never correctly translated "because of." See Thayer's Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament.
 - 2. "Eis" is correctly rendered "unto" or "in order to."
- 3. I do not know just how many times "eis" occurs in the Bible, hence do not know how many times it is trans-
- 4. The Bible account of creation is the only account of creation we have.
- 5. There is no history that gives an account of creation that antedates the Bible.

Brother Dennis also asks that I explain Isa. 28: 14, 15, 18. He desires to know who are the "scornful men" and with whom or with what did they make this covenant and agreement. The "scornful men" were those that Isaiah warned to turn away from their sins and who scoffed at and scorned his warning. Isaiah refers to the scoffers who ruled the people of Jerusalem, and who had said, "We have made a covenant with death, and with Sheol are we at agreement," and that they would be free from death and the grave when the overflowing scourge should pass through, because it would not find them.

He asks for an explanation of Isa. 28: 16. He wishes to know if the "tried stone" refers to Jesus, and if "Zion" is Mount Zion—Jerusalem. The "tried stone" undoubtedly refers to Jesus; for when Jesus so applied it in the New Testament, the Jews did not question it. "Zion" refers to Mount Zion, which was connected with Mount Moriah.

He also inquires for an explanation of Isa. 2: 2, 3. He wishes to know what is meant by "the mountain of the Lord's house" in verse 2 and "the mountain of the Lord" in verse 3. "The mountain of Jehovah's house" in verse 2 refers to Mount Moriah, on which the temple was built. It is probable that "the mountain of Jehovah" in verse 3 also refers to Mount Moriah. I suppose that the "hills" were hills, as mountains are above the hills. The mountain mentioned in Mark 3: 13 is entirely different from Mount Moriah spoken of in Isa. 2: 2, 3.

The following is from J. S. Westbrooks, Christiana, Tenn.: "In the year 1913 I was in a cyclone. I did not get killed, but I got a pretty good scare. So, after it was over, I had me a storm cellar built; and when the storm signs get good, I and wife go in. Some of the folks poke fun at us and call it a weak faith and running from God. Now, as to what they say, that is all right. Of course I do not use it in place of faith or prayer, but in connection with both. Am I right or wrong? What do you say?"

In order that the reader may fully understand the situation, I give Brother Westbrooks' language in full. It is not wrong for a man not to unnecessarily expose himself to danger. In fact, it is foolhardy to do so. When the devil would have Christ throw himself down from the pinnacle of the temple and thus fulfill the prophecy that the angels would bear him up lest he dash his foot against a stone, he replied by saying: "Thou shalt not tempt the Lord thy God." It is not a lack of faith, but a display of judgment, for a man to make proper provisions to care for himself. Some Christians foolhardily go into temptation, fall, never get up, and at last sink down to hell.

- J. A. Usrey, of Hedley, Texas, sends some questions to be answered. (1) He says that some loyal Christians practice giving thanks for the bread and wine at the same time, and then states that this is not in accord with the divine record, which is correct. (2) He mentions the fact that the divine record speaks of using only one cup, and then asks, if it is necessary to give thanks for the bread and then give thanks for the wine, why is it not necessary to follow the example of using one cup? (3) He quotes Matt. 28: 1, "Now late on the Sabbath day, as it began to dawn toward the first day of the week, came Mary Magdalene," etc., and asks: "Why is it that the apostle wrote like the end of the Sabbath was just before daylight, while in reality the Sabbath ended nearly twelve hours before?"
- 1. If we follow the divine record, we certainly will give thanks for the bread and also give thanks for the wine. Christ first took the bread and gave thanks, or blessed it, and then took the wine and gave thanks, or blessed it. It is always safe to follow inspired example.
- 2. The "cup" referred to means the contents of the cup, as shown in the Greek, and not the cup itself. If it had meant the cup itself, then it would have been necessary to use the same cup that Christ and the apostles used.
- 3. This passage is rather difficult. The Jewish Sabbath began at sundown on Friday evening and ended at sundown on Saturday evening. The same word in the Hebrew signifies both evening and night. "And God called the light Day, and the darkness he called Night." (Gen. 1: 5.) Matthew has used the word in this sense, pointing out the latter part of the Jewish night, "that which immediately precedes the rising sun, and not the first part, which we call the evening." The transaction mentioned here evidently took place early on the morning of the third day after our Lord's crucifixion-what is called our "Sunday morning," or the first day of the next week. The artificial day of the Jews began at the rising of the sun and ended at the setting of the sun. All the rest of the time, from the setting to the rising of the sun, they termed "night." It was this that Matthew had in mind when he said "in the end of the Sabbath, as it began to dawn toward the end of the week." 0 0 0

Clifford Lumley, Beamsville, Ontario, Canada, wishes the query editor to explain Acts 2: 41, which reads: "They then that received his word were baptized: and there were added unto them in that day about three thousand souls." He asks: "How many were added on that day by baptism?" All "that received his word were baptized;" but the Spirit does not say that the three thousand who were added on that day were all baptized on that day. Probably they were, but we cannot certainly know they were.

My Nest.

Some nights, when I lie down to rest, I think about the bluebird's nest That just outside my window pane Is tossing in the wind and rain.

And then I cuddle snug and warm To shut away the night and storm, And make believe I'm in a nest Against the mother bluebird's breast.

And presently, beneath her wing, Into the dark I seem to swing Far to and fro, until it seems I swing into the land of dreams.

"I Never Thought of My Mother."

One of the largest bank robberies on record occurred some weeks ago in Chicago. A young employee of a trust company, less than seventeen years old, absconded with Liberty Bonds valued at seven hundred and seventy-two thousand dollars. He was arrested in the little town of Hayworth within a few days and was returned with practically the whole of his plunder to Chicago, where he was indicted by the grand jury. So far as is known, he was an exemplary youth and was guiltless of the small vices of his age. His mother was a godly woman, and he had been brought up under Christian environment.

When his sister, on seeing him for the first time after his arrest, reminded him of his mother, he is said to have exclaimed: "Through this whole thing I never thought of my mother. That is what I regret." He never thought of his mother, and that omission brought the first tears to his eyes. What a lesson for mothers and sons alike!

A great French economist has said: "We may forget our fathers, but we never get away from the early teachings and principles of our mothers." How true the words! In the whirl of our present-day life, fathers, even Christian fathers, give little time to their children. They leave home early in the morning and usually return late at night, worn with the day's work and usually too tired to be troubled with household matters or the training of their children. It has been said that we take our talents from our fathers, our characters from our mothers. The Roman Catholic Church fully understands this principle when it lays down the maxim: "Give us the child until he is seven years old, and then you can have him." It is the home training that counts. The old Romans used to say: "A vessel long retains the odor wherewith it has been imbued when new."

The first awakening of conscience took place when this young bank robber, led astray for a moment by the glitter of the thousands which had been committed to his care "to count them over," obeyed an insane impulse and absconded with all this wealth. Fortunate is the boy who can weep at the memory of his mother; there is still hope for him. Home training in almost every case is mother training. The memory of a prayer made at mother's knee cannot be effaced; the tears in mother's eyes when we have committed some youthful offense will never be forgotten.

We would imprint this little bit of contemporaneous history on the hearts of all Christian mothers. Grip your children with hooks of steel; keep them close to you; let them never get away from you! Whatever your children may do or may become later in life, see to it that your memory ever stands between them and whatever sin may allure or tempt. God only knows how many sons have been kept straight in an hour of great temptation by that memory, by a godly mother's tears and prayers and admonitions. If that boy had only remembered his mother when the temptation came! But "ifs" do not avail when we are in the grip of some terrible catastrophe.

To all young men reared in Christian homes we would say: In every instance, when you are at the parting of the ways, remember "mother," and, above all, remember your mother's God. Our unhappy, riven, tortured, misguided world needs God and Christian mothers and their potent influence for good as never before. The warning lesson of William Dalton should be engraved on the hearts and memories of Christian mothers and in indelible letters.—Christian Observer.

The Bag of Marbles.

Once upon a time there was a boy who wanted—O, very much he wanted—to buy a bag of new, smooth, colored marbles. So he went with ten cents to the toy shop and, holding out his money, said: "Ten cents' worth of marbles, if you please."

But the toy man shook his head sadly and said: "Twenty-five cents, if you please."

But the boy had only ten cents, and he was very much surprised. "Why," he asked, "are ten-cent bags of marbles twenty-five cents?"

In a second the toy man could tell him. "The trains that bring the stone from the quarries are not running," he said. "I must charge more for what marbles I have."

Now the boy wanted—0, very much he wanted—those marbles; so what did he do but go to the engineer of the train and ask him why he was not running his engine?

In a second the engineer could tell him. "There is no coal being mined," he said, "and how can I run a freight train without coal for my engine?"

But the boy wanted—O, very much he wanted—a new bag of marbles; so he went to the coal miner and asked him why he was not at work.

At once the coal miner could tell him. "The grocer asks so much for his eggs and flour," said the coal miner, "that I am going to give up mining and work at a trade in which I can earn more."

So the boy saw his bag of marbles fade farther and farther away; but still he wanted it ever so much, because marbles and boys have been together for years and years. So what did the boy do but go to the farmer and ask him why his eggs and wheat cost so much?

In a few words the farmer could tell. "I cannot get any one to help me," he said. So the boy knew that work was what was lacking and making his marbles cost so much.

"Let me work for you," said the boy.

He was a fine, strong boy, and he took off his coat and went to work feeding the hens and gathering eggs, packing them in crates and taking them to the grocer. He helped with the grain harvesting, too; and soon the grocer's shelves were so full that he needed to sell food, and he charged less for eggs and flour.

The coal miner really wanted to keep to his own trade, and now he could, with the grocer's help, for food was cheaper, and he had all he needed. You could hear the ring of his pick all day long, and coal began to move to the freight yards. Then the freight trains began to move, loaded with all necessary things of life, and things such as marbles for happiness and play.

So the boy was able to buy his bag of marbles at last, and he also had saved some of the wages which he had received from the farmer. He had found out a wonder, too—that the way to get a thing one wants is to work for it.—Carolyn Sherwin Bailey.

That ever adorable marvel of Providence is that in the spiritual creation God does not accomplish his will by his power, but through the wills of us his children.—Thom.

CURRENT THOUGHT

Why This Condition?

That there is a shortage in the ministry all will admit. It is revealed in all available statistics. Young men are not entering the ministry as they did a generation ago, and the future of the church, so far as its ministerial supply is concerned, looks gloomy.

Even at the present time hundreds of churches are looking for ministers, and they frequently write to newspaper offices that they are not able to get into touch with available men for their pulpits. The Standard office is in constant receipt of such communications.

Yet there are always hundreds of our ministers who are looking for pulpits, and many are leaving the ministry because they cannot secure churches that will support their families. We have before us a letter from an honored, capable minister who informs us that he has been trying for months to locate with a church, and that he desires to spend his remaining years preaching the gospel; but he adds: "Unless I receive a call soon, I shall have to enter secular service."

There is practically a universal tendency upon the part of preacherless churches to look for ministers who are located; and there is, on the surface, a good reason for this tendency—the suspicion prevails that the preacher who "is out of a job" is not successful. The fact remains, however, that, owing to illness or other misfortune (sometimes the misfortune is a lack of appreciation upon the part of churches), many consecrated, able ministers are not preaching regularly—they are just drifting. And the "drifting" in the ministry is not an encouragement to either the unemployed preachers or young men who ought to enter the ministry.

The problem of bringing preacherless churches and churchless preachers together is an old one, and many have been the attempts to solve it. We are not hoping for a movement that will solve this problem. Boards and committees and swivel chairs have never been able to manage the public, especially in church life.

When there is no wholesale or clean-sweep way out of a difficulty, there is always a possibility of something being done in a smaller way. Hence, we suggest that officers of churches who see the wisdom of conservation in church activities, when in quest of ministers, look near at home first, and that they refrain from overlooking capable preachers who do not happen to be located.—Christian Standard.

It is undoubtedly true that there is a dearth of preachers. We find many preacherless churches and a number of churchless preachers. We cannot hope to remedy this difficulty, either in whole or by piecemeal, only by following the guidance of the word of God. Christians having departed from the truth must suffer the consequences. It is generally conceded and understood that it is the duty of the bishops, or elders, of the churches to feed, tend, and oversee the churches. It appears that there were elders who labored in word and doctrine and who were supported in this work. Why not return to the divine order and encourage elders to labor in word and doctrine, and support them while they are so doing? Preachers should be kept busy as evangelists, and in preaching the gospel in destitute fields where there is work for them to do, and in establishing new congregations. The Bible clearly teaches: "Even so did the Lord ordain that they that proclaim the gospel should live of the gospel." (1 Cor. 9: 14.) The preacher must live while he preaches the gospel, and it is not God's will that he should live in such poverty that he cannot successfully preach the gospel of Christ. Neither should the churches be too hard to please in seeking preachers to hold meetings. Churches should look to the character and to the ability of the preacher to faithfully proclaim the gospel. Any preacher who loves the truth more than he loves the world and who can earnestly tell men and women just what the Bible requires them to do to be saved from their past sins and then point out to them their duty as Christians should be encouraged and upheld in preaching the truth. A man may possess great ability and yet not love the truth, and be a detriment to the spread of the gospel of Jesus Christ. The preacher who would simply commercialize the gospel is a curse to the ministry. Such men should not be encouraged to enter the ministry. The ministry is in need of men who, like Paul, feel that "woe is unto me, if I preach not the gospel," The man who is in the ministry should be there because he believes he can do more good in the ministry than in any other field of labor. He should be willing to make sacrifices for the truth. The churches should cheerfully uphold the hands of such ministers. To cripple the influence and to neglect to support such ministers cannot be too severely condemned. Churches should not wait to be begged to support such preachers.

Quality.

In a recent interview Herbert Hoover is quoted as saying: "Simplify things, but not at the sacrifice of quality. Standardize qualities. The foreign trade tendency is to refuse goods from the United States, and the quibble is usually based on quality."

Then attention is called to the fact that Americans have a reputation for being enterprising, ingenious, good advertisers, good salesmen, for delivering the goods in attractive packages, while too frequently resting under suspicion as to the quality and finish of those goods.

The shoe trade is offered as an example. Fifteen years ago we captured the British shoe trade by brilliant busiago we captured the British shoe trade by brilliant business acumen and dazzling advertisements. Our shoes were smarter, more stylish.

But it was soon discovered that our shoes were not as good as they looked. They had the style, but not the quality. We lost the trade. Now we are in an uphill pull to overcome this reputation which smart, but shoddy, shoes had won for us.

shoes had won for us.

Says Hoover: "In the long view, nothing will so militate against our international commercial success as this oversight in the matter of quality. Style and cute packages and bright advertising can win us the trade, but only quality can keep it."

Which is a parable. The clever advertising of the "new religion"—the religion without much Christ in it—is winning some recognition. The shrewd propagandists are "delivering the goods" in some quarters. This is the way of our poor mortal flesh. The novel and the cute attract attention. There are always with us minor fellows who crave distinction. Into their hearts high yearnings come welling and rushing in—yearnings for place and circumstance. The ingratiating call of the "more worthful men" reaches this class: "Come with us, and we will give you prominence, leadership among the intellectuals; and you will be numbered among the forward-looking men, the men who really do things."

It is smart advertising, cute camouflage.

However, once a real man gets on the inside and makes an honest and intelligent examination of "the goods," he is soon disenchanted. He discovers that the package was done up artistically, while the contents are empty hulls.

It all looked good from the pit. The stage effect, the make-up, the scenario—all this was fetching. But once behind the scenes!

In the long view, to use one of Mr. Hoover's favorites, "the intelligence and honesty of the people assert themselves, and shoddiness, self-inflation, pretense, the counterfeit, are trampled upon with contempt,"

And so quality comes into its own, in the long run. The old gospel, with its plain graces and sterling virtues—brethren, we need not fear for it. It stands upon well-tried merit. Give it to the people. It wins.—Christian Standard.

The above editorial from the Christian Standard impresses a truth that needs to be emphasized. Fads and fancies of men may succeed for a time, but finally they will fail. The word of God is powerful and will prevail. The Holy Spirit says: "For the word of God is living, and active, and sharper than any two-edged sword, and piercing even to the dividing of soul and spirit, of both joints and marrow, and quick to discern the thoughts and intents of the heart." (Heb. 4: 12.) A failure to present the truth just as it is will bring disastrous results. A beautiful exterior with a rotten interior is severely condemned by the Savior. Only a pure gospel will win. The world needs to learn this lesson.

MISCELLANY

W. W. Still writes from Woodrow, Ark. (the post office is Vilonia), under date of April 30, as follows: "I will begin a meeting here in Woodrow to-night, to continue for a week or two. On my way here I passed through Pickle's Gap and preached twice. The brethren want me to hold a meeting for them some time in the future. I am putting in all my time, from place to place, holding meetings and training little children. Any congregation needing my preaching service may write me at Morrillton, Ark."

The following information comes from E. C. Fuqua, of Fort Collins, Col.: "With two new houses—one at Colorado Springs and one at Boulder—nearing completion, we feel that our work in Colorado is prospering more than ever. My own work for this summer now appears to be the greatest since I came to this State. The brethren in variour parts of the State are to meet at Fort Collins on Sunday, May 15, in an all-day meeting, for mutual encouragement in regard to our missionary work. 'Dinner on the ground' will be a feature that will give excellent opportunity for getting acquainted and for a 'social chat' that will do all good. Several brethren will make short talks on the subject of mission work."

Blaine Speer, writing from Buckhorn, N. M., April 29, says: "There are a few Christians in this part of the county, but we are not doing very much. I think the Gospel Advocate is the ablest paper published. I noticed an account of C. R. Nichol. I would like to meet him once more. He is one man that can deliver the message. I was baptized by him, in Dickens County, Texas. My wife was baptized by Foy E. Wallace, Jr. We are young people, and have three little boys. We would like to rear them right. When we cannot go to church (and very often we cannot) we have a lesson in the Bible and the communion service at home. I think I will sell out here and move close to some good congregation."

William P. Walker writes from Dinuba, Cal.: "I have resigned my work with the Dinuba congregation that I may take Sister Walker back to Tennessee, where she can be under the care of her sisters. I came here with her last fall, thinking perhaps this climate would be helpful to her, but my hopes have been futile. I expect to reach Nashville about June 1. Inasmuch as I have resigned my work in Dinuba, I will be in a position to do evangelistic work in Tennessee and near-by States. Brethren, if I canceled your meeting for this year or 1922, I will now be in a position to conduct it, if you have not made other arrangements. I will write more about the Dinuba work later. Address me at Burns, Tenn., care of Mr. Jim Young."

J. G. Colley, Acorn, Mo., Route 1, says: "We are a little band of Christians worshiping at Count View. We have a house with a note of one hundred and fifty dollars against it, and there are only five male members to pay this debt. But there is a sinner that lives in this county that offers to board a preacher, if he will come and hold a meeting (he said he would board him a year if he would preach that long). There is not any preacher here that we can get to hold a meeting where this sinner wants the meeting held. Will some good preacher come here and preach at two points, ten or fifteen days at each? One point is a mission point, and the other one will just about halfway support a preacher. We would like to have him in July or August."

Matthew C. Cayce writes from Columbus, Miss., May 12: "Tuesday night I was met in Ackerman by Brother Jeffcoat, and went with him to Cork Schoolhouse, where it was my pleasure to meet Andrew Perry and hear him preach a strong, scriptural sermon. Then Brother Perry and I spent the night in the home of Brother Jeffcoat. I think Mississippi fortunate in having Brother Perry come and spend this summer in preaching here. We welcome him. Wednesday I came to Columbus, and have been busy all day, Mr. Seal assisting me in putting out advertisements. To-morrow we will erect the tent, which arrived to-day, and I will keep busy in getting ready to begin our meeting Sunday morning. Charles F. Hardin, of Springfield, Mo., is to be here to lead the singing."

Sister M. J. Edwards, Hardyville, Ky., Route 1, writes as follows: "I think the Gospel Advocate the best paper in the brotherhood. My husband took it as long as he lived. He has been dead twenty-one years, and I have taken the paper ever since he died. It helps me to live a better Christian life, and admonishes me to speak no harsh words and to be kind-hearted to all. I have fifteen children, and all belong to the church of Christ. Most of us worship at Fairview, and Emmett Creacy is our preacher. He is a good one, although just a boy. One of my sons is our leader in the Bible school and in breaking bread and prayer, and is a noble man. I love the good old Advocate; it is so much company to me in my old days. I expect to be a reader of it as long as I can see to read anything. Best wishes to all who love the paper and to those who go on in the work of publishing it."

A. S. Reynolds writes from Geneva, Ala.: "I have been over some of this country and learned much in regard to the church of Christ. I never saw a country where gospel preachers were needed any worse. I left this field in 1901. Several preachers have been in this field-Brethren Bradley, Flavil Hall, a Brother Sears, Jesse Love, and othersand a number have been baptized by them. I find that only a few are meeting on the first day of the week. Not a Bible school nor communion service on Lord's day in some of the churches; one protracted meeting, in July or August, is held by some preacher who lives out of the State. I have undertaken the restoration of the dead churches here and will hold some mission meetings. A. T. Hamiter. of Mulat, Fla., is doing some mission work here and in Florida. We may be able to arrange to work together some. Brother Hamiter is well spoken of by the brethren, and he I cannot stay long in the should be supported in the work. work here, unless I get some assistance outside of this field. Brother Bradley has labored here much, and has made a sacrifice to do so. I feel as did the old prophet when he saw the walls of Jerusalem torn down. I have shed tears over the desolation of Zion. Will you come to our rescue in the day of battle, brethren? efforts in this important work." May the Lord bless our

T. B. Thompson writes from Huntsville, Ala., May 11: "The work here moves along, with some signs of improve-ment. I am confident that, with the right kind of effort, great things can be accomplished for the Master. It is generally believed that the church here is in better condition than for years to accomplish a good work. As has already been stated, I came to Huntsville to stay only three months. I may stay that long, or I may stay a little longer, or I possibly might stay much longer. I tell them I shall try to accept what shall seem to me to be Jehovah's leading in the matter. Many among the 'unofficial' have said I must stay; but, officially, nothing has been suggested We are to have J. Pettey Ezell in a meeting between Sundays, beginning on May 23, Jehovah willing. Brethren Brents and Ezell are in a great meeting at Athens. These are great fellow workers, and it is a great pleasure to be near them. Brother Pullias is expected to be with the church here in July. R. E. L. Taylor will be with the West Huntsville Church in a meeting, beginning next Lord's day. Brother Largen will be with the church in Dallas, beginning the second Lord's day in June. have not heard as yet who will hold the Merrimack meet-ing. All told, there will be two and one-half months' evangelistic efforts in Huntsville this year."

F. E. Exum, Houston, Texas, writes as follows: "There are in and near Livingston, Texas, fourteen members of the church, about half of whom are Tennesseans, who earnestly desire to build a house to meet in and establish a strong congregation. The leading members are Sister Claude Mc-Clanahan, formerly of Nashville, Tenn., and D. D. Moore and W. L. Bailey, formerly of Gainesboro, Tenn. Mrs. McClanahan was before her marriage Miss Effie Anderson. and is well known to most of the faculty of the David Lipscomb College. She is a determined and faithful Christian, and is largely responsible for the work being done in Livingston. Livingston has many denominational churches, but no loyal church of Christ. We plan to build a house by fall, which we estimate will cost twenty-five hundred dollars complete with seats. We can do this, if some of the churches and individuals in Tennessee will render us some financial cooperation. We have services now in a schoolhouse and a private home. When we meet in the schoolhouse, we have about one hundred in attendance, approximately eighty-five per cent of whom are not members of the church. They give an attentive ear to the gospel, and we are expecting quite a number to be baptized during our meeting to be held during the summer. ren, it would be hard for a congregation or an individual to find a place to make a donation where it would do more good than here. We trust that you will not turn a deaf ear to this appeal. Send your donation to Mrs. Claude Mc-Clanahan, Livingston, Texas, and the Lord will bless you for your good deed."

ing and Sometimes Eruptions.

Thousands take Hood's Sarsaparilla as a spring medicine for that tired feeling, nervous weakness, impure blood and say it makes them feel better, eat and sleep better, and "makes food taste good."

Spring debility is a condition in which it is especially hard to combat disease germs, which invade the system here, there and everywhere, The white blood corpuscles, sometimes called "the little soldiers in the blood," because it is their duty to fight disease gewms, are too weak to do good service.

Hood's Sarsaparilla strengthens the "little soldiers" and enables them to repel germs of grip, influenza, fevers and other allments; relieves catarrh and rheumatism. It has given satisfaction to three generations. Get it today, and for a laxative take Hood's Pills.

Pineapple, May 10.—Leaving home on April 15. I went to Bay Minette, where I spent a few days with the brethren. It was a pleasure to talk with Sister Edna Mashburn, who is quite feeble, but strong in faith, and ready for the summons to bid her come There have been a few disciples at Bay Minette for a good many years, and the writer has held meetings for them. A few years ago Broth-Kirby bought the Baptist house there, and they have been keeping the work going ever since. Brother Bales preaches for them now, and they are a faithful band. Some day a strong church will be there. From Bay Minette I went to Blacksher and held a short meeting. Every member took an interest by attending every service. When the meeting closed, they asked me to come back and be with them again this year in a meeting. From Blacksher I went to Fannie, where I preached a few times. There are a few brethren there, but they have grown cold and do not meet at all. next went to a mission point four miles south of Flomaton and preached a few days. Here the interest and crowds both increased while I stayed, and a man and his wife renewed their allegiance and said they were going to live a better life. I left there with a promise to return this summer and hold another meeting. From this meeting I came home and spent a few days, then went to Fatama, and had a very fine day Sunday, with one addition from the Baptists. There is a great deal of mission work called for now, and I will be busy this year, the Lord willing, in meetings. If I have time to spare, I will also go to Mississippi or East Tennessee and hold a mission meeting, if they should need me.—C. Petty.

Louisville, May 9 .- I was at Swallowfield and Shelbyville on the first Sunday in this month. Last Sunday I was at Harrisonville and Shelbyville. We had good, attentive crowds at both places. The work in Louisville is moving along with good interest. Brother John T. Smithson reports the work at F Street as being prosperous. Brother Rainey comes to East Highland twice each month. Brother Kurfees has been delivering some excellent sermons at Campbell Street Church against dancing and gambling. feel that his messages are indeed time-We pray that Jehovah will give him many years yet to fight the sin that seems to be getting a hold on our young people. The work at Van Buren is moving right along. I will probably move to Shelbyville to look after the work there.-R. A. Craig.

Mississippi.

Oakland, May 10 .- The little congregation of Christians here in Oakland has been greatly strengthened and encouraged by a series of sermons preached by Brother Matthew Cayce. Brother Cayce preached day and night for eight days, and during that time he presented our plea for a return to New Testament teaching and practice in a manner that commanded the re-spectful attention of all who heard him; and his audiences were made up of the intelligent, thinking people of our little town. The preaching was done in our new meetinghouse; and while only one addition was the immediate result, yet Brother Cayce's pleasant and forcible manner of presenting the truth has so impressed our townspeople that good results are sure to follow in the near future, if no mistake is made.—Lee Jackson.

Springfield, May 5 .- As I was prevented from entering my protractedmeeting work on time, I filled regular appointments in Springfield during the first part of April-on the last Sunday at Johnson and Dale Streets, and on the second Sunday at Turner and Ramsey Streets. The brethren seemed to appreciate my efforts, as they do more and more the longer I work with them. I hope to be with them again next winter. I closed at Lone Star, near Mount Grove, with one baptism and a congregation set to work. There are good prospects for development. I had a pleasant visit home, and am now at Bernie in an interesting meeting. I will go to Fay-etteville, Ark., for a three-weeks' effort on May 15. The brethren are treating me nicely.—M. S. Mason.

Stratford, May 10 .- I am very glad that I moved to this neglected field. Think of a progressive territory with only one gospel preacher, and this territory much larger than West Tennessee! I am "pressed in the spirit" and rejoicing in the work. I am now out at this place to spend a few days with Brother C. F. Rees, who is a preacher, in a short meeting. I baptized four at home (Guymon, Okla.) yesterday morning before I left. It was one of the happiest occasions of my life. My oldest daughter, Katherine, who will be twelve years old in June, was among the number.—T. H. Matheson.

Fort Worth, May 2.—Yesterday was a good day for the Southside Church. One took membership, two were baptized, and two confessed the Savior (they will be baptized next Lord's-day evening). Good, substantial men and women are casting their lot with us from time to time. The church has increased one hundred or thereabout since I came here. There are hardships connected with this work, yet it is delightful to labor here. Brother E. A. Elam will begin a meeting for us the last of May.—Tice Elkins.

Marshall, May 9.—I have closed my work with the Marshall church, and shall begin my protracted-meeting work at Port Arthur, assisting Brother C. D. Crouch there. I have time for two more meetings on these dates: the last Sunday in June and first in July, and the third and fourth Lord's days in August. Churches desiring my services should write me here, as Marshall will remain my post office until July 1. On the first of September I shall assume my new duties as principal of the Gunter Bible College, Gunter, Texas. My leaving Marshall is a regret to me and, I think, to the whole congregation. The work has grown since I came, and the interest has been good. One added by membership yesterday.—T. H. Etheridge.

I am now able to preach some on Sundays. I again call attention to the mission work at Niles, Mich. I am to go there in June for a month's work and to start a church. The Sin of Tattling.

BY J. S. WESTBROOKS.

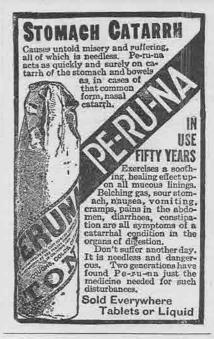

I have never yet been acquainted with a community that did not have a few tattlers, and they are always a disturbing element. I have never been very well acquainted with a congregation but that had a few of them. They are, as a rule, the main cause why church troubles are so hard to settle. A tattler armed with a little envy can make molehills look like mountains. "Even so the tongue is a little member, and boasteth great things. Behold, how great a matter a little fire kindleth! And the tongue is a fire, a world of iniquity: so is the tongue among our members, that it defileth the whole body, and setteth on fire the course of nature; and it is set on fire (James 3: 5, 6.) A few unof hell." controlled tongues can soon fire a whole neighborhood. Sometimes the women get into the tattling business, as well as some men. "And withal they learn to be idle, wandering about from house to house; and not only idle, but tattlers also and busybodies, speaking things which they ought not." (1 Tim. 5: 13.) It was forbidden in the olden times. "Thou shalt not go up and down as a talebearer among thy people." (Lev. 19: 16.) Solomon had much experience with such people. Hear him: "A talebearer revealeth secrets: but he that is of a faithful spirit concealeth the matter." (Prov. 11: 13.) Again, he says: "The words of a talebearer are as wounds." (Prov. 18: 8.) How some do love them! Again, he says: "Where no wood is, there the fire goeth out: so where there is no talebearer, the strife ceaseth." (Prov. 26: 20.) A whisperer, or talebearer, will take the advantage of your confidence and then betray you. Let us remember: "If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man." (James 3: 2.) O, how cunning a skillful tattler is! He will come in the guise of a friend, in the rôle of a confidant, and say a great deal in order to get you to say a little; then he will go and color it to suit himself, and be careful to omit what he said to cause you to say what you

Notes From West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

Last Lord's day I was with the congregation at Obion, it being the twenty-sixth anniversary of the congregation in the present building. There were brethren present from three or four counties, and all seemed to enjoy themselves, which I am sure every one did, under the big tent, when such a splendid dinner was spread. Young Brother Woody preached in the Methodist meetinghouse to a large crowd, while I preached in our meetinghouse. After dinner I preached again to a large and attentive audience. I have an invitation for life to be with the congregation at Obion the second Lord's day in May of each year, which I have accepted. At the evening service Brother I A. Douthitt was present, also Brethren Woody and Dean. These two young brethren were reared here in Obion County, and are nice, clean, able young men, worthy of the confidence and support of the brethren here and elsewhere. Brother Harry Hayes, of Hornbeak, is also a worthy young preacher, one the brethren should not pass by when needing a preacher. He is married, and I think he is satisfied with his wife, willing to forsake all others for her. Such should be the case with all preachers and all other members of the church. I know some preachers who became dissatisfied with their wives, fell in love with other women, and thus destroyed the happiness of their homes and broke the hearts of the mothers of their children.

There is another class of "preachers" that bob up occasionally in West Tennessee-dirty tramps. Brethren, when a man comes into your home claiming to be a preacher, and at the same time is too filthy to sleep with I

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their cloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of cternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase. THE BOOK is beautifully printed and bound, appropriately illustrated, and packed in a neat gift box, ready for mailing.

the hogs, in God's name, don't put that fellow up to preach. The congregations are hurt by these tramps, calling themselves "preachers." For a long time I have made it a rule to turn no one from my door-feed them if hungry and lodge them if tired; but when a filthy, scaly, greasy, long-haired fellow comes along claiming to be a preacher, claiming to be from everywhere and going everywhere, with a recommendation from no congregation, I pass him up. Brethren, don't recognize such men as preachers, but as base impostors, beating their way through the world.

Preachers cannot be too careful of their conduct, especially with the women. But when a preacher will sit up half the night playing cards, you need not be surprised to see him turn his back on his wife and children and become very attentive to some good sister.

"Elihu Root, addressing the American Society of International Law, declared that the world's greatest need at the present time is a revival of respect for law." Many of our present laws are knowingly and willfully violated by church members. The man who claims to be a follower of Christ, and at the same time violates some of the laws of the State, is a dangerous character in the congregation, from the fact the outsiders have no confidence in him, and, instead of leading sinful men to obey the gospel, he is driving them from it. I hope, however, that in West Tennessee we are not "sinners above all men," but I can say that we are not as good as we should be.

Tindall.

Lula Marie Tindall, infant daughter of J. B. and Ruby Tindall, was born on March 29, 1921, and died on April 22, 1921. The remains of this dear little jewel were laid to rest in the family graveyard near Triune, Tenn., while the spirit took its flight back to God who gave it, there to await the coming of loved ones who may soon follow her. Funeral services were conducted by D. B. McCanless, in the home of her grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Coleman.

Bates.

W. E. Bates was born on December 25, 1852, and died on April 30, 1921. Brother Bates obeyed the gospel some forty years ago, and lived from that time forward a devoted Christian life. He was a man of noble character, and was noted for his cool, calm judgment in all the circumstances of life. When in the grip of death and his loved ones became alarmed, he admonished them not to get excited. Thus passed one of the purest and most faithful servants of God to his reward. He leaves, to mourn his death, his wife; two brothers, M. B. Bates, of Hohenwald. Tenn., and Tom Bates, of Pleasantville, Tenn.; one son, W. W. Bates, of Nash-ville, Tenn., an able preacher of the gospel; and a host of friends. But we mourn not as those that have no hope, for we expect to meet him and be greeted by him when Jesus comes. Cobb.

Sister Melissa Cobb was born on January 27, 1854, and died on April 7, 1921. Those who knew Sister Cobb were not backward in speaking well of her. One remark that went the rounds after her spirit had departed was that she did not participate in the gossip of the neighborhood. How worthy of emulation that trait! On September 14, 1901, Sister Cobb was buried with her Lord in baptism by Brother W. A. Cameren. For about twenty years, it appears, she was a faithful member of the Hardie's Chapel church of Christ, near Gordon, Ga. She was the mother of ten children. Four sons and four daughters still Sister Cobb also leaves behind two sisters and three brothers, and many friends besides. Her remains were interred at the Hardie's Chapel cemetery. A DAUGHTER.

Murdock.

Mrs. George Ann Murdock, aged sixty-seven years, died on Tuesday morning, April 26, 1921, at her home in Rossville, Ga. She was married on December 31, 1880, to J. P. Murdock. To this union three children were born, two sons and one daughter. She is survived by her husband, her three children, six grandchildren, one great-grandchild, and two sisters. She was baptized into Christ about twelve years ago, during a meeting that was being conducted by Brother J. W. Maddox in Rossville. She was faithful to her Christian duty. I have known but few women who possessed as gentle and amiable a disposition as did this good sister. She has gone, and we will miss her, but her influence will still linger with us as an inspiration to more faithful and loyal service in the vineyard of the Master. May God comfort the hearts who are bruised and sad because of the departure of wife, mother, and sister, and may he sanc-tify this their loss to their good and to his glory. Funeral services were held at the church of Christ in Rossville, in the presence of a very large assembly of friends of the deceased. Words of comfort were spoken by Brethren R. N. Moody, R. W. Jernigan, and the writer. Interment was in Forest Hill Cemetery.

ARUNA CLARK.

Jackson.

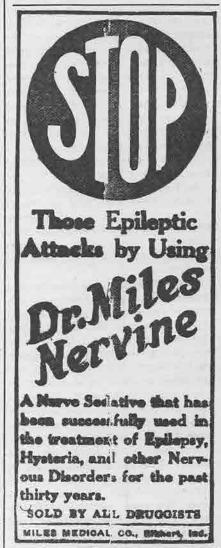

Barclay Foote Jackson was born on November 25, 1879; was "born again" in September, 1896; and died on April 7, 1921. Brother Jackson had lived practically all his life on the farm where he died, near Marvell, Ark. He was one of those rare Christian characters who leave their impress on the entire community in which they reside. He was a great force for good, not only in his family and among his brethren in the congregation where he worshiped, but in a wide circle of acquaintances among whom his earth-life was spent. For the past few years he had been a constant sufferer from asthma and kindred attendant ills, but the immediate cause of his death was congestion. Through his illness he was ever cheerful, hopeful, and seemed to think, all the while he was suffering, only of the comfort and welfare of those with whom he associated. Probably no one who has passed away from that community in years will be missed more than be. He leaves a wife and four dear children, a dear old mother, two brothers with their families, a large number of other relatives, and a host of friends, to deplore his taking away. The writer was called from Paragould to attend and conduct the funeral, and tried to speak words of comfort to the be-reaved ones. The floral offerings were profuse, a silent tribute of the esteem in which he was held; but the greatest tribute there was the precious influ-ence of a splendid Christian character, left by him as a rich legacy to all. He veritably fulfilled the admonition of the revelator: "Be thou faithful until death, and I will give thee the crown of Brother P., D. Lawson was present and ably assisted in the services, leading the song service, which was well rendered. There are many other things I would like to say about this godly life, but I cannot at this time. The Montana Mission.

BY W. F. LEMMONS

In 1919-20 I held meetings at Elmdale, Montana, which is a new country. At that time there was but one church and one loyal preacher in the State. Through the efforts and sacrifices of a few of us, there are now three churches and two preachers. Brother J. O. Golphenee, the lone preacher, has converted a Baptist preacher, who is now preaching the truth. The people are poor, having had three crop failures in succession. The work is not self-sustaining. These men must have help.

As I am better acquainted with the situation there than any one else, I felt that it was my duty to make an effort to secure a support for this work through the press, which is the only way that I know to get it before the brotherhood.

To-day I have a letter from Brother Golphenee, in which he refers to calls that he cannot reach, as he has only about five dollars left, and he states that he will be forced to resort to some secular occupation for a support for his family. This the church cannot afford to allow, on account of the loss it will be to the cause. Home missions are just as important as foreign missions. I believe in foreign missions, but I also believe we ought to do some cleaning up around our own doors, where the possibilities are so flattering for a great work.

I would be glad to go back there again this year (and they want me back) and help in that field as I did the past two years, but I am not financially able. Railway rates are much higher than last year, and Montana is a long way from Texas. So this is my method this year in helping out the work,

The three congregations are weak in numbers and weaker in finance. They depend upon raising wheat and flax for a living; when that fails, there is no other source from which they can draw. A letter from a brother recently stated that he knew people who did not have over a week's rations ahead and did not know where the

> If you could take about one-third of a glass of tea, add two-thirds glass of carbonated water, then remove the tea flavor and add a little lemon juice, phosphoric acid, sugar, caramel and certain flavors in the correct proportion, you would have an almost perfect glass of Coca-Cola.

In fact, Coca-Cola may be fairly described as "a carbonated, flavored counterpart of tea, of approximately one-third the stimulating strength of the average cup of tea."

The following analyses, made and confirmed by the leading chemists throughout America, show the comparative stimulating strength of tea and Coca-Cola stated in terms of the quantity of caffein contained in each:

Black tea—1 cupful_____1.54 gr.

Green tea—1 glassful._____2.02 gr. (cold) (8 fl. oz., exclusive of ice)

Of all the plants which Nature has provided for man's use and enjoyment, none surpasses tea in its refreshing, wholesome and helpful qualities. This explains its almost universal popularity.

The Coca-Cola Company has issued a booklet giving detailed analysis of its recipe. A copy will be mailed free on request to anyone who is interested. Address:

next supply would come from. This gives an idea of their economic condition.

I doubt if the Macedonian call was more important than this Montana call. Will you hear it and answer it with the cash, or will you answer it with covetousness? The dying souls of men and women hang trembling in the balance. Their eternal salvation depends upon how you decide. Shall Brother Golphenee and Brother Wood continue this work? This is not intended for those who are not able to help; but if you are able, send your fellowship direct to Brother J. O. Golphenee, Elmdale, Montana. We ought to raise two hundred dollars a month to keep these two brethren in the field preaching the gospel and seeing after the poor and needy.

Edifying as the Need May Be

The Hidden Life.

Paul writes in Col. 3: 3: "For ye died, and your life is hid with Christ in God." This saying is not addressed to the world at large; and if it were addressed to the worldly people, they could never understand it. The audience who will grasp and appreciate the meaning of this passage is limited. I would not have you think that the meaning of the text is obscure or that it belongs to an age far removed from ours. It is simply a matter of experience. We often remark that no one knows how to sympathize with the orphan so deeply or so well as one who has been orphaned; that no mother can feel the utter loneliness of another woman's bereavement who has not lost a child of her own. These are the sad emotions which can only be felt by those who have walked in the vale of sorrow and death. But Paul is speaking of a joyful emotion. He takes it for granted that we have passed through a great experience, and that this experience has brought us into a new world where old things are passed away and all things are become new. This verse touches the very center of the Christian life. It tells the open secret of discipleship and lays its finger on the heart of true religion. But notice the simplicity with which this great truth is expressed. When men get hold of a great idea or an idea that seems to be great, they first try to express it in grandiloquent language, and then the next thought is to copyright it. Then they fret and fume over it, raising such a dust and commotion over it as if the like of the new theory had never been heard. But there is nothing loquacious or boastful in the apostle's attitude. There is, on the other hand, a calm and deep tranquillity. The message they brought was not a message of their own. The gospel was not their happy discovery. It was the truth of God, and their business was to make it known in the confidence that it would do its own work and bear its own witness. In such a tone of quiet, sure restraint Paul says to Christians: "Your life is hid," He is so certain of it that he needs no appeal or argument. For him the Christian's hidden life is a thing so real and so substantial that proof may be dispensed with. Like the rays of the sunlight, like the beauty of the flowers, like the flow of the river, like the freshness of the morning, it is not an inference at all, but an undeniable fact. It is the great immovable rock on which we take our stand and look out with settled faith over the changing vistas of the world and up to the glory that is to be revealed.

The gospel of Jesus Christ had wrought a powerful change in certain people at Colosse. Once their life had no hidden depths at all. It had all been shallow, specious, concerned with the surface only, busy about things that counted for little, occupied with trifles, running to waste over poor and passing aims. But the grace of God had called them, as it calls every man who hears, into a new life. In that old, barren experience wells had been sunk, and now fountains of living water were springing up. In what had seemed unprofitable land mines of infinite wealth had been opened up, and the precious stones of faith and hope and love were being yielded.

Believers are to leave the old life behind them. Paul says: "Ye died." One man says the passage of a soul into the kingdom of God is like the flight of a bird in its swiftness. Another man related his own experience by saying: "Within ten paces, as I walked, life was transformed to me." "We lie down some night our old selves, and ere we sleep again the great disclosure has broken on the soul." Certain persons speak of a certain experience in their lives as they would speak of being struck by lightning. So there are those who would conceive of newness of life on the Christian's part as something not definitely understood. They would throw around the beginner a feeling of awful suspense. Men die swiftly, they say, and they die slowly. It matters nothing when they have wakened on the immortal side of death. When the ship comes to the equator, no visible line is there which all see as they cross over: yet, in point of fact, the crossing is made: they pass silently, imperceptibly, from one hemisphere to another. And that is just the way one passes from death to life in the spiritual sense. We never know just when the great transition takes place.

But the Bible does not leave us in ignorance as to the time of our entrance into the spiritual kingdom of Christ. Our entrée is not veiled in vague uncertainty. It tells us just when and where the new life begins. One passage is sufficient: "We were buried therefore with him through baptism into death: that like as Christ was raised from the dead through the glory of the Father, so we also might walk in newness of life." (Rom. 6: 4.) The newness of life is contemporary with our raising from the waters of baptism. There is where it should begin, if a Christian is honest and sincere; if he is not—if baptism is not an act of obedience, but just a mockery—then that is another matter.

Your life is hid with Christ. There is something in every true disciple, even the meekest and plainest, which the wisest citizen of the world cannot understand. You cannot explain the Christian character by anything that shows upon the surface. To find its secrets, you must go down into the buried depths beneath a man's common words and thoughts. Travelers tell us that when they cross the highland moors of Scotland they frequently come upon a bright streak of green winding in and out among the heather, its pure and shining verdure in strange relief against the dull brown of its surroundings. What can it be? How came it there? Whence does it receive its nourishment? If you dig deep enough, you will find a spring below-a well of pure water flowing down there out of sight, only hinting its presence by the greenness and beauty above. So the springs of Christian life are hidden -hidden with Christ in God.

They are hidden from unbelievers. Something mysterious and inscrutable must always appear to a man of the world in those who live by faith in the Son of God. Sometimes he wonders at the mystery; sometimes he resents it; but he is always conscious of its presence. He is usually ready to offer any explanation except the right one. He says it is nothing but fear, self-interest, tradition, superstition, weak delusion, and all those theories by which outsiders have sought to explain the Christian faith, and by the explanation rob it of its power. When John the Baptist came, they said: "He hath a devil." When Jesus appeared, they whispered to one another, "He is beside himself;" or, "He is a winebibber and a glutton." And when the fire of Pentecost was throbbing in the veins of the apostles, they deemed it enough to say, "These men are full of new wine "-as the court reporters would express it, "just a plain case of drunk." All that the Christian can plead-and how much it is!-of aid sent him in temptation, or light that breaks upon his darkness, or consolations that soften sorrow and take away the sting of death, the fact that all things work together for his good, the assurance and the glory of the resurrectionwhat are all these to the unbeliever but an idle tale? The existence of all that deep life is unperceived. The Christian's secret is a secret from the world. Jesus knew it was going to be, for he said in one of his prayers: "I thank thee, Father, that thou hast hidden." Paul knew it was true, for he said: "The wisdom of the world is foolishness with God."

"Gospel Plan of Salvation," by T. W. Brents, is a book that wears well. The book is as popular as when first issued, and has enjoyed a large and steady sale. We are selling this book at the low price of $2 per copy. This is decidedly the best work of Dr. T. W. Brents.

If you are troubled with Adventists, you should by all means have a copy of "Adventism and the Bible," by J. Henry Monk. This is a most excellent book, and thoroughly exposes the errors of Adventists. All Christians Are in "the House of God."

BY JOHN T, LEWIS.

In this week's Gospel Advocate (March 17) Brother C. E. Holt asked three questions, as follows: "Christians—where found?" "Where are God's children?" or, "Where are the saved?"

According to the New Testament, "Christians," "God's children," and "the saved" are all the same; so I have answered Brother Holt's questions in the heading of this article. I will now try to show Brother Holt that my answer is what the Bible says. "But if a man suffer as a Christian, let him not be ashamed; but let him glorify God in this name. For the time is come for judgment to begin at the house of God: and if it begin first at us, what shall be the end of them that obey not the gospel of God?" (1 Pet. 4: 16, 17.) This shows that every one who obeys "the gospel of God" is included in the terms "Christians," "us," and is in "the house of God." But what is "the house of God?" "These things write I unto thee, hoping to come unto thee shortly; but if I tarry long, that thou mayest know how men ought to behave themselves in the house of God, which is the church of the living God, the pillar and ground of the truth." (1 Tim. 3: 15.) There is not a Christian on earth to-day, was not before "Alexander Campbell was born," and never will be one, outside "the church of God." Do you understand this now. Brother Holt? You could have found this answer yourself, Brother Holt, if you had gone to the New Testament instead of wandering through a wilderness of sectarian phraseology, using a lot of meaningless phrases.

Take this sentence: "Among them we find [who are "we?"-J. T. L.] what is sometimes termed 'rebaptizers,' or those who insist that no one is scripturally baptized who did not fully understand when he or she was baptized that baptism was 'for the remission of sins' in a procurative sense, or in a sense of cause and effect-that baptism stands related to remission of sins psychologically." "That baptism stands related to remission of sins psychologically," I know nothing about; but that "baptism stands related to remission of sins" in the same sense that the shedding of Christ's blood "stands related to remission of sins" is scriptural, and I suppose is in a procurative sense, isn't it, Brother Holt? Jesus Christ says: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." (Mark 16: 16.) The Holy Spirit, through Peter, giving a spiritual explanation of the commission, 'Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins." (Acts 2: 38.) This is what I preach on this subject.

If Brethren Holt and Karfees want to put in their time preaching and writing to show the sectarians that they don't have to understand that baptism is "for the remission of sins," that is their business, not mine. But "let the readers seriously ponder" the fact that when Brother Holt gives "a concrete example" of his teaching on this subject, he comes to Lauderdale County, Ala., for the "example" instead of going to the Bible for one.

Brother Holt says some funny things about "us." For "example:" "It is not always clear as to just who are included in the term 'us.' The people we often call 'us' have a great habit of 'turning each other out of the synagogue.' Many of 'us' will not recognize nor fellowship the rest of 'us.' No, I do not ask the Baptists nor others to come to 'us.'" Now, will the "readers seriously ponder" what Peter says about "us?" "For the time is come for judgment to begin at the house of God: and if it begin first at us, what shall be the end of them that obey not the gospel of God?" "Us" will be "clear" to Brother Holt, if he ever gets out of the "wilderness."

Brother Holt says: "There are approximately one and a half million people included in what is sometimes styled the restoration movement inaugurated by the Campbells, Walter Scott, Barton W. Stone," etc. "Only" "about one hundred and fifty thousand who reject instrumental music in connection with vocal music." This leaves one million three hundred and fifty thousand who use these things. Brother Kurfees, commenting on this, says: "Let the reader seriously ponder both facts and figures in Brother Holt's communication."

I know Brother Holt says some nice things about Brother Kurfees and his articles, and I am not surprised at Brother Kurfees wanting to reciprocate, but I think he is a little premature in asking the "readers to seriously ponder both facts and figures in Brother Holt's communication" before the "figures" are shown to be "facts." I have never heard the "digressives" themselves make such extravagant claims. If, however, Brother Holt's "figures" are "facts," I would like to know it as a matter of information. Will Brethren Holt and Kurfees tell me where I can verify the "figures?"

Brother Holt says: "I would place Brethren Lewis and George and some others," etc. I "object" to Brother Holt putting me anywhere. He has my articles to Brother Kurfees; let him quote from them to show where I belong.

Again, Brother Holt says: "If there are no Christians among the denominations, then we should not receive anything they have done, religiously." I will let Brother Kurfees answer Brother Holt in this. After showing that all our translations of the Bible were made by members of denominations, Brother Kurfees "correctly" says: "But with thoughtful people it does not follow that we should reject these translations because those who made them taught and did some things that were wrong." All I would add to what Brether Kurfees says here is, I don't think any of Brother Holt's article shows much thought. The whole article is just a revamp of the old and groundless charges which I have been hearing sectarian preachers make against gospel preachers all my life.

Take for "a concrete example:" "But many of our modern 'lights' have discovered that they have a 'copyright' on the plan of salvation, free from error or from any of the imperfections of humanity, and every one else is to be anathematized. 'Pronounce our shibboleth or die' is the order now." I submit this from Brother Holt without argument.

Jesus Christ promised the Holy Spirit to the apostles to guide them "into all the truth." Brother Holt says: "The apostles themselves were not entirely free from error on some points at all times during their ministry." Christ said they should be; Brother Holt says "they were not."

Finally, if Brethren Holt and Kurfees want to sing the praises and extol the virtues of the denominations and digressives, while John Cowden plays the accompaniment on O. E. Payne's Italian harp, they may do it; "but as for me and my house, we will serve Jehovah."

Nothing but an aroused public opinion will ever obtain proper reforms, the rights of the people, and the enforcement of the law. The open violation of the prohibition law, the prevalence of gambling and prostitution, all of which are often connived at by public officials, the laxness of divorce procedure, are against the rights of the people to live in decent communities and to bring up their families under proper conditions, to say nothing of the peace and dignity of the State. Jesus Christ is the greatest radical of history; and if his second coming is soon, I think he will find few with which to fraternize. He not only denounced divorce, but such other social sins as the oppression of labor, profiteering, usury, and such individual sins as adultery, lying, hypocrisy, and weak knees.-Hunting.

Constancy.

BY E. C. FUQUA.

Constancy is one of man's rarest virtues. We are so apt to neglect any good undertaking. We make noble resolves, but we soon forget and discard them, little thinking that we are thereby undermining the foundation of character, which will ultimately make us distrust even ourselves. But it is true. The man who so often makes noble resolves, and as often breaks or violates them, comes to distrust himself; and if we cannot trust ourselves, should we expect others to trust us?

As respects missionary work, few virtues appear as important as constancy. The missionary himself, espousing the work on a certain field, is best qualified to execute that work if he remains with it constantly, studying its needs and striving to adapt himself to those needs. He grows up with and into his work; its interest becomes essentially his interest, and he easily becomes "all things to all men" within the limits of his chosen field of activity. Brethren naturally feel more confident in standing by a work whose worker is constantly in touch with one certain field of activity. This is not true of the worker who is always shifting from "post to pillar" and never thoroughly identified with any one place or field of labor.

Paul, as a missionary, while largely traveling through many lands and cities, nevertheless always remained in each place sufficiently long to fully evangelize that place; and he could be depended upon, while there, to look after the best interests of the work. Brethren could and did communicate with him with the utmost confidence that he knew the needs of that especial field and would apply their means in the interest of the work for which said means was contributed. And when his work called him on to other fields, the "care of all the churches" where he had labored was ever present in his mind (2 Cor. 11: 28); and when opportunity so favored, he gladly returned to these churches to encourage and edify them (Acts 14: 21-28; 15: 36). He was, therefore, thoroughly identified with the churches where he labored, so that throughout them all he could testify: "Who is weak, and I am not weak? who is caused to stumble, and I burn not?" (2 Cor. 11: 29.)

But constancy shows its value from another angle-that of the "support" of the missionary. The regularity and constancy of a donation or donations means much to a missionary. Better a small "support," and that regularly and constantly sent, than large amounts sent irregularly. That has been my experience, and I am sure it would hold good anywhere. If I know I am to receive only a certain small amount each month, it enables me to curtail expenses until I am well within that limit, provided it is possible at all for me to live within said limit; while if I have no idea what to expect, I hazard much, and generally pay dearly for the hazard. I do not think the Lord provides unwisely and irrespective of order and system where he has congregations that are taught to observe these things in the support of his cause. He works through his churches, and the method employed cannot be more or less than that used by said churches. If they are slow, careless, unbusinesslike, and spasmodic in their giving, his cause will suffer accordingly.

Just here I am contrained to speak of certain congregations with which I have had intimate relations for fifteen years or so. I say this without their "knowledge or consent." I believe it will edify others. So far as I knew, not one word has ever been printed about the good work of some of those of which I now speak, but I will speak of them here as illustrating the power of constancy.

About fifteen years ago, while I was laboring as a lone missionary in Rome, Ga., I received a donation from the congregation at Lavergne, Tenn. It was my first missionary gift, if I remember correctly. I immediately acknowledged the donation and thanked God for such brethren. During the fifteen years that have elapsed Lavergne has not failed to send me a monthly donation, except once, and then not without first writing me not to expect one that month, giving good reasons therefor. There was a while in my missionary activities that "no other church" had fellowship with me; but Lavergne never flagged, and has never, to my knowledge, complained of the burden. At times I have been doubtful of other churches, but I could not possibly doubt Lavergne, for its constancy has been proven even under circumstances that tried the faith of nearly all the rest.

The church at Glass, Tenn., while not knowing me as long as Lavergne by a few years, has never once failed in its monthly donation to my work. Glass and Lavergne are the oldest supporters of this work. Then Green's Chapel, Ky., one of the comparatively recent donors to this work, since taking up this work has not once failed in its monthly contribution. Allensville, Ky., is another, having assisted a little longer than Green's Chapel. The constancy of these churches through the years that have passed and under all conditions that have confronted us all is really responsible for the success of the work. Not that these churches are all that have helped this work, for there are others as noble as they; but I mention these because of their long and constant service without one complaint or discouragement. The donations sent by Lavergne and Allensville amount each month to whatever happens to be contributed on a certain Lord's day in the month for my work. For example, the Lavergne contribution has varied from three dollars to thirty dollars. I never know what amount will be sent, but I always know that one will come from Lavergne. Last month it was seven dollars and forty cents. It may be double this next month, or smaller than this; but its certainty is assured, and upon this I can always "bank" to a reasonable extent. So with the other constant contributors. Aside from Allensville and Lavergne, the other regular contributors to my work send each a definite amount each month, the total of all of which last month was one hundred and four dollars and forty cents. For four or five months all donations for all causes, it appears from reports, have fallen off. I am receiving almost fifty dollars less per month now than I did last fall, one church having entirely withdrawn its support because of local demands upon it. and two others sending only occasionally.

Rothschild Avenue, Nashville, Tenn., after discontinuing its donation some years ago, recently (I believe three years back) began again to help us, and since then has not once failed. Pilcher Avenue, Nashville, has likewise helped this work, and, I fear, beyond its ability; but I had rather see a church undertake too much and fail to fully reach its standard than to undertake nothing out of fear of failure.

The congregation at the Bible School, Nashville, is another that is constant and unfailing under all conditions. It is strong in encouragement of this work, for the letters of Brother King each month show a holy interest in all I am trying to do here. These letters from the churches do me as much good as the donations; in a manner they hold me up as the bare donations could never do. I read the letter before I ever look at the check.

Now, I depend equally upon all the contributors to this humble work. Let no one think that because I have here spoken of the constancy of the older contributors I have lost concern in the others. I only meant to impress the virtue of constancy and show that even in this shifting and flippant age there are brethren and churches that are in the business of serving their Lord and that they may be depended upon to keep up the fight under all conditions. Let us profit by their example.

"Thy Speech Bewrayeth Thee,"

O, that my tongue might so possess. The accent of His tenderness, That every word I breathed should bless!

For those who mourn, a word of cheer: A word of hope for those who fear: And love to all men, far or near.

O, that it might be said of me.
"Surely thy speech bewrayeth thee
As friend of Christ of Galilee!"

The Regular Meetings Each Lord's Day.

It would be a bit difficult, I think, for any Christian to have whole-hearted appreciation for any duty the truth imposes, who enters into it for the truth's sake, and at the same time not to love all other known truths and duties. Hence, it is well for us at times to try ourselves out thoroughly by some known truth or duty, and see exactly how we feel and act toward it.

The regular meetings of the church on "the first day of the week" "to break bread" (Acts 20: 7) in memory of Christ's death (1 Cor. 11: 23-26), to lay by in store as we are prospered (1 Cor. 16: 1, 2), and to call in our minds from the things pertaining to this life and enjoy wholeheartedly worshiping the God upon whom we must depend each day for things we need, and doing this in the name of Him who died that our souls might forever be free from sin, is a duty that cannot be too highly appreciated; and, as a rule, the ones who do this regularly never drift far from the way of life and salvation. All that has ever been accomplished by the church for the good of poor fallen man has been due to those members in the local church that neglect not this duty. Just what conception some have who claim to be Christians is a bit hard for me to imagine: for certain it is that if every member of the church would do as some do, the church would assemble only occasionally, and then not for the God-ordained purpose. Those members of the church whose course in life, if all other members should imitate it, would cause our church-house doors to remain closed on Lord's day are undoubtedly in a bad way; and if they are not brought to repentance, they will be lost,

The following is a bit of the food we send out weekly to nearly four hundred homes in this section. What is good for our workers here is good for all the readers of the Gospel Advocate; and we want all to think seriously of this matter.

The last two Lord's days have been so very, very good that I am coming to believe that in Altura and North Sichel we have a congregation of which we have reasons to hope that each member will soon be doing his or her best. The house came very nearly being packed full last Lord's day, and the regular offerings went above one hundred and four dollars, and the collection for the free-literature fund was seven dollars and fifty cents. The Sunday before the regular offerings went above one hundred and seven dollars and free literature sixteen dollars. No big checks went in, either, showing that we are all helping to make things as they should be. But please think seriously over the question raised last week—viz.: "If each member should do his or her best, what would Altura and Sichel be?" I would love to know that this were done just once, to say the least, that all might see and feel the difference.

The regular meetings each Lord's day. I wonder if we do really appreciate the day Christ called his day? "Your father Abraham rejoiced to see my day," said he. (John 8: 56.) "I was in the Spirit on the Lord's day," declared John. (Rev. 1: 10.) "This is the day which Jehovah hath made; we will rejoice and be glad in it," said David. (Ps. 118: 24.) Now, will you, my brother, my sister, let it be his day, too, by so using it by meeting in memory of his death and resurrection? Let nothing detract your mind from the glorious significance of this day.

Here I am tempted to let one who is dead, but still lives, speak—viz., the lamented David Lipscomb, at whose feet I sat and studied our Lord's teaching for years. In answering the questions, "Are we Christians?" "Are we the church of Christ?" he says:

"A church that does not meet on the first day of the week to attend to the worship of God and to teach and build up its members in the most holy faith, that they may grow strong in the Lord, is not worthy to be called a church of Christ. A member of the church that does not find pleasure in meeting with his brethren and sisters to help and be helped in growing in grace and the knowledge of the truth is not worthy to be called a Christian or a child of God. He who is careless and indifferent in this service deceives himself in thinking he is a Christian and has the promise of heaven.

It is equally true that the church that does nothing to spread the word of God abroad, to convert their fellow men to the way of life, is not a church of our Lord Jesus Christ. He established his church, and before it was opened he commissioned it: 'Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature.' 'Go, . . . teach all nations.' It was formed for this work. Unless it does this, it fails in its chiefest work. A church that does nothing in this work is not God's church. It is equally true that the member of the church that does nothing toward teaching others the way of life, toward pointing men and women to 'the Lamb of God that taketh away the sins of the world, is no true child of God, is no genuine Christian. 'Teaching them [the baptized] to observe all things whatsoever I comn.anded you.' The requirement that every one baptized should teach others is stamped as a fundamental principle on the church from its birth. A person deceives himself who does nothing in these fundamental duties of Christian work, yet thinks himself a Christian. 'He that doeth righteousness is righteous,' and no one else is. Only he who does the will of God is a child of God. Let every church and every Christian do the work God called them to do."

In connection with what Brother Lipscomb has said, may I ask that you turn—each one of you—and read Heb. 10: 25. Do you obey or disobey this command? It is as natural as breathing for the real Christian to look forward to the Lord's day, and exhort others to do so, and to forsake not to assemble. Will each of our members do this? This message is to every member at Sichel and Altura, Downey, Ontario, Pomona, and at all other places where the Friendly Visitor goes. God help us to be his children indeed! And as to the importance of our trying to lead others to Christ, study closely Ezek. 3: 18-21. Is it possible, my brother, that some soul will be lost because of your neglect to try to teach him or have him where he may be taught? Read, also, 1 Tim. 4: 16.

Bits of News.

I cannot see how the work could do better than it is in this section of California. We have some of the best people in the world right here, and to say that they want to see this State taken for Christ expresses their desire mildly. The North Sichel and Altura congregation is doing just fine. We are now finishing some needed improvements on our house of worship, and this makes things look better along with our better feelings.

Brother Witty reported the largest forenoon audience on Lord's day that they had ever had at Ontario, with one added from the Christian Church.

I have just received a stirring letter from L. D. Perkins, and he makes good reports from his section. We have some fine men with whom to work on the coast, and I am enjoying it to the fullest.

By the time this gets to our readers we will be in the midst of a big drive at Pomona. Brethren Witty and Borden, with their congregations at Ontario and Riverside, respectively, are to do some strong backing in the Pomona meeting. None of the work in this city will be neglected during this revival, as they are expecting me to preach only at night.

We are continually meeting with those we knew and loved from back East. Last Lord's day we were delighted to have with us Brother Arch Jordon and son, of Smyrna. Tenn. Yesterday (May 11) one of my son's chums dropped in from Atlanta. We are hoping to soon see others.

Personal Evidences.

There are the internal and external evidences of the Christian religion; and there are the internal and external evidences of Christian character. By the internal evidences of Christian character we mean the evidences which every individual Christian has that he is born of God—that he is a Christian in deed and in fact. By the external evidences of Christian character, we mean those fruits of the Christian faith which distinguish the "Israelite indeed" from one of the nominal Israel of God, in the judgment of all competent and impartial witnesses. But we now speak of the internal evidences of Christian character; and who is the best author on this subject? We answer, John the apostle. "Christian experience" is best examined in the light of this luminous author on the internal evidences. Of these the following are chief:

PERSONAL INTERNAL EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIAN CHARACTER.

- 1. "We know that we have passed away from death to life, because we love the brethren. He that loves not his brethren abides in death." On this evidence this question arises—viz.: How do we know that we love the brethren? The same author settles this question. "By this we know that we love the children of God: when we love God and keep his commandments." (1 John 5: 2.)
- 2. "By this we know that we have known God, if we keep his commandments;" and, "Whosoever keeps his word, truly in this man the love of God is perfected." By this we know that we are in him. "Now he who keeps his commandments abides in him, and he in him; and by this we know that he abides in us, even by the Spirit which he has given to us."

These two witnesses in us are sufficient. Love to the brethren is distinguished from natural affection and common benevolence by the most unequivocal criteria. It is a love active and operative by the Lord Messiah's sake, terminating upon a person because he is Christ's. The keeping of all the commandments, or that spirit of universal obedience, exciting and stirring up a person to do all that the Lord commands, because he commands it, is as distinct from the lashings of conscience and that servile attention to orders, from a sense of duty, as the affectionate regard of a child to its parents is distinguishable from the unwilling and partial obedience of a slave.

These two witnesses are more credible and responsible than the longest experience ever told, which substitutes anything else as evidence of Christian character, than what is found written in their testimony by the beloved apostle.

EXTERNAL EVIDENCES OF CHRISTIAN CHARACTER.

- 1. "By this shall all men know that you are my disciples, if you love one another." (John 13: 35.)
- 2. "If you know that the Lord is righteous, you know that every one who works righteousness has been begotten by him." (1 John 2: 29.)

INTERNAL EVIDENCES THAT A PERSON IS A CHILD OF THE DEVIL.

- 1. "Whosoever hates his brother, is a murderer; and, like Cain, is of the wicked one. And no one that hates his brother has eternal life abiding in him." (1 John 3: 12.15)
 - 2. "He that works sin is of the devil." (1 John 3: 8.)

EXTERNAL EVIDENCES THAT A PERSON IS A CHILD OF THE DEVIL.

"In this the children of the devil are manifest; whosoever works not righteousness is not of God; neither he who loves not his brother." (1 John 3: 10.) INFALLIBLE EVIDENCES OF SELF-DECEPTION.

- 1." If we say that we have fellowship with him and walk in darkness, we lie." (1 John 1: 6.)
- 2. "If we say we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." (1 John 1: 8.)
- 3. "If a man say, I know him, and keep not his commandments, he is a liar, and the truth is not in him." (1 John 2: 4.)
- 4. "He that says he is in the light, and hates his brother, is in darkness even till now." (1 John 2: 9.)
- 5. "If a man say, I love God, and hate his brother, he is a liar." (1 John 4: 20.)

Such are the personal evidences laid down by the infallible pen of the distinguished apostle of Christ. He who is inquisitive to ascertain whether his heart and life be right in the sight of the Sovereign Judge of all, or whether he be a child of God or the devil, a hypocrite or self-deceived, needs no other treatise than the Epistle of John.

The question of personal interest in the salvation of God is incomparably the most interesting of all questions. Were a person master of the eloquence of men and angels; could he, in the lofty strains of David and Isaiah, in the glowing and seraphic strains of heaven-taught prophets, set forth the glory and excellency of the salvation of God; could be describe, with supernatural power and beauty, all the glories which the new heavens and the new earth will unfold-the eternity of bliss, the exceeding and eternal weight of glory which awaits all the righteous-what is it to you or me, candid reader, if we cannot feel that we have a personal interest in it-if we cannot be assured that our individual selves will be partakers of the glory to be revealed? Let us, then, give all heed to make our calling and election certain.-A. Campbell, in Millennial Harbinger. 0 0 0

Dreading Death.

BY MRS. J. DUDLEY TAYLOR.

Our dread of death is surely caused by our knowing so little about it. We cannot see behind the curtain; we know not what is there. To learn, we must study our Bible. It is much comfort to read in this great Guidebook of ours: "Yea, though I walk through the valley of the shadow of death, I will fear no evil: for thou art with me." When David wrote this, death was still our enemy, still the "jailer of the grave." Now that Jesus has come and suffered and died and rose again that we might live, can we not say, "O death, where is thy sting?" and think of death only as the "doorkeeper of heaven?" Jesus himself tells us: "Lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." With such protection, why do we fear?

Maybe we fear like the little boy—because we are bad. "Daddy will shut the door!" said this little boy. However, he loved his daddy so much he did not care to go anywhere else, and the sun was going down, and he was beginning to grow afraid; so this little boy started home, and, as he came in sight of his home, the bright home light shone away out in the dark near him, and he could see his way more clearly. Nearer and nearer home his little feet traveled. In the doorway he sees his father; the door is wide open, too; he quickens his steps; he actually runs straight into those strong, gentle arms; and he knows his little wrongs are all forgiven and that he is safe. Our Heavenly Father is just as forgiving, just as gentle, and so much stronger than our earthly father; and if we will only trust him as a little child, he will care for us and take away all our fear.

We all enjoy taking a trip, seeing the beautiful sights of this world of ours, but very few of us would enjoy traveling or visiting always. We want to go home with our loved ones. We want rest and peace and joy, and we go home to find it. Our travels are like our journey through this world; our longings and thoughts of home are but a very simple picture of the Christian's home in heaven. "Eye hath not seen, nor ear heard, neither have entered into the heart of man, the things which God hath prepared for them that love him." (1 Cor. 2: 9.) A good, Christian neighbor of ours lay dying once, and his heartbroken wife leaned over him and asked: "Will, do you mind going?" And W. H. Killebrew looked up and shook his head and smiled, saying, "Peace, peace;" and we all thought, from his happy expression, he must have been in sight of home.

My oldest sister was taken from us, and the comfort she left our mother was: "Out of the shadow into the light!" Over and over she said it, and seemed happy. This world must have been the shadow, and her eternal home the "light." A brother was snatched away from us so quickly with pneumonia; and when the doctor told father to tell him he could not live, my father leaned over his bed and said: "Ben, do you know?" Before he finished the question. Ben said: "Yes, papa, I'll be waiting." We supposed he was going to say he would be waiting for papa, and his words lessened our sorrow, and we realized that death was not so bad.

Peter Ainslie says: "Nothing in all my earthly vision is so beautiful as the close of the day, or must I say 'that tint of the morning light?' In autumn the leaves of the forest are painted with the glory of death in shades of gold and crimson, and a gentle breeze lowers them to their grave. It is the time of ripeness. And all my experiences of trials, service, disappointments, successes, sorrows, and joys tend to ripen me for God's autumnal harvest. Green fruit falls heavily, but when ripe it drops easily. All things that ripen are commentaries on death; and God will make my going as easy as the tides go out or the sun goes down."

If we are ripe with the ripeness of good deeds and loving service for others, the going will be easy, death will come like a "gentle breeze," and we will realize even before we go that there is no death. "What seems so is transition."

"And when at last I mount the far-off crag,
I know that on the happy wind-blown crest.
The wished-for hand shall flash the long-sought light,
And in the splendor I shall rest."

Are You Making a Success of Your Life? BY D. D. WOODY.

Many of us are always talking about making our lives successful, yet we do not even realize what it takes to constitute a successful life. Teachers and lecturers go into the classrooms and public assemblies and talk for hours to boys and girls about making successes of their young lives, yet in a majority of such instances they hold up before these ambitious young minds no higher ideals than wealth or worldly honor.

Among those who have the wrong conception of a successful life there are two classes. Some hold up the wrong standard; others hold up the right standard only in part. It is possible for one to be successful and realize it; it is also possible for one to think that he is successful, and to be so considered by his acquaintances, when he is an absolute failure. Solomon said: "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man; but the end thereof are the ways of death." (Prov. 14: 12; 16: 25.) Generally, when we want to talk to boys and girls about great men, we tell them of kings and presidents. We talk of the power they had and the wealth which they accumulated. The fact is that a majority of these sovereigns are, or were, in the true sense, absolute failures. Some of them were just as wicked as human beings could be; yet their real characters are hidden from us because our eyes are blinded by the dazzling worldly glories of the places which they occupied.

There is only one way to be truly successful, and to be so considered by our Heavenly Father. To do this, one must be a humble servant of the Master, and not like the haughty skeptics of the present day. Christ said: "Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven." (Matt. 18: 4.) Again, he said: "And whosoever will be chief among you, let him be your servant." (Matt. 20: 27.)

We should never measure one's success by his wealth, nor by the worldly position which he occupies. Some of the greatest men who have ever lived were neither kings, presidents, nor soldiers. Suppose that a rich man of a certain city die, not even being a child of God. The papers publish in bold headlines: "One of the city's most successful men has died." The story is told of how he rose from poverty and obscurity into wealth and prominence. That is what they call "success." But ponder for just a moment over his condition in death. His wealth and glory are left behind, and he goes unprepared to meet his God. Who can now say that he is a success? He has gained worldly possessions, but lost his own soul. Another man in that same city dies. He is a poor man, who has spent his time and possessions in the Master's service, and is now laid in a pauper's grave. The newspapers make no mention of him; and he is buried by the city authorities, unwept by those whom he has served. They all proclaim him a miserable failure. But is he? No! He is a wonderful success; for he has won a home where sorrows never invade. I tell you, friends, a majority of the world are wrong on this question, as they are on almost every moral question, and as Christ said they would be,

I recall that grand conclusion: "I had rather be right than President." If Washington, Lincoln, Wilson, and others were truly great, it was not because they were presidents, but because they were servants of the Most High God and his Son, Jesus Christ. If Rockefeller, Vanderbilt, Carnegie, and others are considered as great men, it is not because they have been possessors of vast fortunes, but because they have been servants of the Master.

I would rather be a humble Christian, living in poverty and obscurity, than to be the ruler of the world, living in the pleasures of sin. "For what is a man profited, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul? or what shall a man give in exchange for his soul?" (Matt. 16: 26.)

"Blessed" is the most expansive word in the New Testament. Its reach is to the end of human need, because its motive is the limitless purpose of Jesus Christ.—Exchange.

To be a liar is like being dumb; it destroys the use of speech. If people won't tell the truth, they might as well be animals—just able to bark, and squeak, and whine. Their speech means nothing. They are throwing away and destroying one of the greatest of God's gifts—the gift of language.—Selected.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

Sister Aurelia Bond, of Brownsville, Tenn., in a business letter, says: "I have read your good paper for fifteen years, and I like it fire."

The services at the Twelfth Avenue Church last Lord's day were conducted by George S. Davis, morning and evening. There was one confession and baptism. Interest in the Bible study is growing and the attendance is steadily increasing, there being three hundred and forty-nine present last Sunday.

F. P. Fonner, writes from Buffalo, W. Va., May 19: "Our protracted meeting here closed on May 8, with two baptisms. Ira C. Moore did the preaching, and he did it well. As we have entirely exhausted our resources in building our church house, we are obliged to ask the brethren to help us out on the remaining indebtedness. This is something over two hundred and twenty-four dollars. Please state what your offering is for."

Mrs. G. H. Dye writes from Englewood, Tenn., Route 1, May 18: "I want to thank the ones that have made up my subscription. If it be the Lord's will, I hope to repay this in the near future. I love to read the Gospel Advocate. It is very interesting. I always look for it every Saturday, and it never fails to come. I am trying to live a Christian life, but the road seems dark and steep. I want the prayers of all Christians that I may continue in the Lord."

We had a nice visit on Saturday from Sister R. L. Crowell, of Brunswick, Ga. She presents the great need for gospel preaching in her town and surrounding country. There are six of the faithful keeping house for the Lord there, but others there do not know of the teaching. It is a remarkably healthy place, on the ocean coast, with fine opportunities for secular employment, and she hopes that some good leader of the worship will settle there and aid them to build up.

R. L. Ludlam, Jr., writes from Coal Hill, Ark., May 18: "The meeting closed to-day at the water with seven confessions, thirty-nine baptized, and two restored. O. E. Billingsley taught the people only 'what is written.' Those who heard believed, and those believing obeyed. I am to begin at Denning on Friday night, with J. E. Gunter assisting. The Denning work has the fellowship of the Dodson Avenue Church at Fort Smith. Some church should have fellowship with Altus and send J. E. Laird to hold a meeting in August."

Thomas H. Burton writes from Union, S. C., May 20: "The work on our building had to be suspended on account of no funds. We owe on open accounts for mill work and other things about fifteen hundred dollars, which is due and should by all means be paid at once. We have had promised enough to pay this off, and it would certainly be very encouraging if those who have promised, and also those who have been contemplating sending a contribution, would send it in as soon as convenient. If you will help pay off this debt, I will try again to borrow enough to complete the house this summer. To finish it means a great success for the cause in this town. Will you help in this way to win some souls? We have the restrictive clause in the deed. Send all communications and donations to the writer."

In a note from Vernon Rozar a few days ago, he says: "I have been busy preaching every Lord's day this spring, and working in concrete during the week days. The work has been too heavy for me, so now I am at home, the result of a general breakdown. I have been sick near three weeks; have failed to get to my last two appointments. I am hoping to fill other appointments up to the first of the month, when wife and I are going to father's, in Middle Tennessee, until my meeting work begins, which will be the fourth Lord's day in July. I will be in this work until about November. If I improve as I hope to, I can hold meetings beginning about the second Lord's day in June and on to July 21. We will break up housekeeping next week. Any one writing me should address me at Fayetteville, Tenn., Route 6, Box 66."

John T. Hall writes from Jackson, Tenn., May 10, as follows: "F. J. Rogers, who for several weeks or months served the church at South Pittsburg, Tenn., is now spending a few days with his good family here. On last Lord's day he preached both morning and afternoon for the church in Bemis. Brother Rogers is a splendid speaker, comparatively a young man, a good mixer, makes friends wherever he goes, and can do a great deal of good in helping to spread the glad tidings. Our stationed preacher, F. O. Howell, lately closed a glorious meeting at the Highland church of Christ, with several additions to the congregation. Brother Howell is an excellent speaker, intelligent and energetic, and his audiences were large. He is well equipped, has a fine tent, rides in a nice car, is in good financial condition, is well supported by the churches, and is able in every way to do a great mission work. The church here has made an arrangement with our beloved brother, E. V. Wood, of Dallas, Texas, to conduct a pre-tracted meeting for them in the near future."

L. S. White writes from Sherman, Texas, May 16: "The protracted meeting in Sherman began on May I and continued fifteen days, with two services daily. F. L. Young, of Paris, did the preaching. The singing was led by home forces, and was fine. Every feature of the meeting was on a high plane. The church was ready for the meeting and started with a fine interest, which increased to the close. At the last service many were turned away who could not even get inside the house. The venerable E. H. Rogers, though quite feeble, attended much of the time, and was very helpful to all of us. There were fifty-nine additions. There were four hundred and thirty present in the Sunday-school classes yesterday. The whole church is happy over the results. This church has had more than two hundred and fifty additions during the past year, and now has more than seven hundred members. I have worked with Brother Young through five meetings, and he did the best preaching this time I have ever heard him do. He is one of God's noblemen and is doing a great work."

W. L. Reeves, Winston-Salem, N. C., writes to the "dear brethren of the Gospel Advocate force" as follows: "I wish to congratulate you all for all the good service you are rendering to your many readers through the Advocate. May each editor continue to drive opinions. which are never of faith, from the hearts of men by giving them a "Thus saith the Lord" instead. I am convinced that a Christian has no scriptural right to hold human opinions, even in his own heart, relative to the Christian religion. They are not of faith, and 'whatsoever is not of faith is sin' (Rom. 14: 23)." He further says: "Our work in He further says: "Our work in North Carolina is improving. Three have been baptized recently in Winston-Salem. One of them had been a very zealous teacher in the Methodist Episcopal Church. She taught in Sunday school, led in prayer, and even preached some; but I am sure she is thoroughly converted to the true Our work with the country churches is doing well. We have arranged to have J. E. Green, now in school at Henderson, Tenn., spend his vacation among us. He is to teach vocal music some and hold some meetings. May God's will be done by us all.'

H. D. Jeffcoat, Ackerman, Miss., Route 4, Box 10, writes: "Andrew Perry arrived here on May 2 and preached for us here at Cork Schoolhouse each night until Saturday. He went with me to my appointment at Nile, and preached on Saturday night and Sunday morning; then back home and preached until Friday night. Saturday we went to Reform, and Brother Perry did all of the preaching, and he did it well. On Sunday he preached three times. We had dinner well. On Sunday he preached three times. on the ground. He is there with the faithful few this week. He will go to Shady Grove next Saturday for two weeks. I do not believe that a better man could be found for this He preaches the truth in love to the world and to the church. We have calls for meetings at twelve places where we have no members to pay railroad fare. We have only three congregations in this field. They will do all they can, but the work is too great for them to do it all. Perry, Cayce, Harris, and I will do this work, if we have to work with our hands during the day and preach at night. The preaching must be done or the people will not hear: and if they do not hear, they will not believe; and if they do not believe, they will not be saved. (See Rom. 10: 8-15.) Calls are coming almost daily for meetings. I never saw a time when preaching was wanted as bad. Brethren, we must answer these calls or not be held guiltless. want to help do this work, send an offering to Andrew Perry, Route 4, Box 10, Ackerman, Miss., or to M. C. Cayce, or to me. We will acknowledge all fellowship through the Gospel Advocate. If you are in Mississippi and are not able to get a preacher to help you preach Christ's gospel to the people of your community, write us; we will help you Brethren, there is not a greater mission field if we can in Japan than this one. Why not send to this one a small gift each month until the work here is self-sustaining? May our God help us to do our duty."

James A. Allen preached at Foster Street Church last Lord's day, with fine interest at both services.

- F. B. Srygley preached at Lawrence Avenue last Lord's day. He reports fine attendance and interest.
- J. H. Curtis, 408 Pearl Street, New Albany, Ind., says: "I find the Gospel Advocate true to the cause of Christ, and would not be without it."
- C. A. Norred writes from Memphis, Tenn., May 16: "I closed a short meeting with the Highland Heights Church, this city, with six baptisms."

Mrs. Nannie Matt Wallace, in a private letter, says. "A. B. Lipscomb's writings alone are many times worth the subscription price of your great paper,"

James A, Allen is soliciting means to buy a tent to be used in preaching the gospel in and around Muskogee, Okla. No doubt it is a fine mission field.

- L. S. Lancaster, of Jackson, Tenn., has time for a meeting in July and one in August, and asks to be written to at 111 East Orleans Street, if you need him.
- C. R. Nichol preached to a packed house at both services at Lindsley Avenue last Lord's day, and had three confessions. The meeting goes on with unabated interest.
- Will J. Cullum was with the church at Locust Grove, in Simpson County, Ky., last Lord's day. He will preach for the church at Sam's Creek next Lord's day, and at Lillymay in the afternoon.

Lytton Alley preached two good sermons at the tent on Charlotte Avenue last Lord's day. Charles R. Nichol preached at the same tent in the afternoon. He preached a very forceful sermon to a large and interested audience.

Sister Lottie Hutchison, of Dow, Okla., sends a contribution for the Gospel Advocate fund. We are glad there are some who are willing to help others to read the Advocate who are not financially able to provide it for themselves.

The little band of loyal disciples at Moultrie, Ga., invite all near-by Christians to meet and worship with them. This in response to the notice given from the sister near Doerun, Ga. Their invitation is signed by G. A. Shaver.

- J. W. Grant preached last Lord's day at Russell Street Church, this city, with an average hearing and good interest. He will preach next Lord's day, morning and night, at Twelfth Avenue, North, and at Bull Run in the afternoon.
- J. W. Prewit, of Decatur, Ala., sends two and a half dollars to go to the Gospel Advocate fund. We appreciate this, and would be glad for many others to contribute to it, as there are more worthy calls than the fund will supply at present.

A debate will be held at Williamson, W. Va., beginning on July 11 and continuing six days. The church proposition will be affirmed by each disputant for three days. The debaters are Jesse F. Love, for the church of Christ, and Joe Hall, for the Regular Baptist Church.

J. G. Allen preached again at the Green Street Church last Lord's day, and started for his home in Muskogee, Okla., that night. He says he enjoyed his visit to his old home city immensely, and that he thinks he is fully restored to health from his severe operation for appendicitis.

From W. F. Lemmons, Beaumont, Texas, May 16: "We had good crowds and interest at South Park Church last Sunday and the Sunday before. I expect to begin a meeting at Rockdale on the fifth Lord's day, and will be in the field after June. We hope to make this a good year in the Lord's work."

From G. W. Farmer, Cleveland, Tenn., May 18: "R. C. White, of Nashville, with J. D. Derryberry to lead the singing, will begin a meeting at Lenoir City on the fifth Lord's day in this month. This is a mission point. All who would like to have fellowship with us should forward to me at Cleveland, Tenn."

H. Leo Boles recently closed a meeting at Red Boiling Springs, Tenn., which developed great interest and encouraged the church very much. He goes in a few days to a meeting to be held at New Providence, near Clarksville, Tenn., and later to one to be held near Sulphur Well Academy, in West Tennessee.

B. W. Boyd writes from Pikeville, Tenn., May 15: "The ten-days' home-force meeting, led by H. W. Wrye and Alfred Traylor, was one of the best meetings ever held in Pikeville, with large and interested audiences throughout. The meeting resulted in fifteen additions and one reclaimed. The church here is actively engaged in living Christianity."

A series of gospel meetings will begin at the New Shops church of Christ (Torbett and Twenty-seventh Avenues) North) next Lord's day. Preaching on Sundays at 3 P.M. and 7:45 P.M., and each day through the week at 7:45 P.M. H. E. Winkler, of the Charlotte Avenue Church, will do the preaching, and the song service will be led by George S. Davis, of the Twelfth Avenue Church. All are invited to attend these services.

L. S. Lancaster writes from Jackson, Tenn., May 17: "Last Lord's day was a fine day for the little congregation at Bemis. I preached to a good congregation at 11 A.M., and we had Prof. A. J. Veteto and his quartette boys from Henderson with us in the afternoon. The house was filled to overflowing. I am to begin a meeting with them on the third Lord's day in next month, and we are hoping and praying for a great meeting in the Master's name."

From John M. Rice, Merkel, Texas: "The meeting at Munday, Texas, closed with nineteen accessions, some placing their fellowship and some returning to their 'first love.' Twelve of them were baptized. One of those who returned to his 'first love' was J. E. L. Harrison, a good preacher and singer, who for a while followed off a faction; but he saw his mistake, and is now in full fellowship. I shall return to Munday in May, 1922, if the Lord wills, and conduct a month's meeting."

- W. E. Williams writes from Huntsville, Ark., May 18: "I closed my meeting last Sunday night with the church of Christ at Centralia, Okla. The interest was good throughout the entire meeting. Twenty-two were baptized, one was restored, and one came from the Baptists and three from the Methodists. The brethren were well pleased with my work and asked me to come again. I have never labored with a more faithful band of brethren than the Centralia brethren. They have a mind to do things for the Lord."
- E. L. Pearson was in our office on Friday, on his way to New York City, to take up the work of the church there till Brother Carter can go to it. His address while there will be 140 West Sixty-fourth Street. He urges all who have relatives or friends in or near the city who might be interested in the church there to write to him and give him their names and addresses, and also to write them and tell them of his work and of the meeting place, which is at 239 West Sixty-ninth Street, near Broadway, on the first floor of the hall located there.
- H. W. Wrye closed the meeting at Eleventh Street last Lord's-day night, with an immense audience in attendance. The meeting resulted in thirty-eight additions, three or four of which were restored, the others being baptized. He goes to a meeting at Bridgeport, Ala., now in progress, and will take it in hand on Tuesday. He expects to begin a nieeting at Jacksonville (the Powder Plant, near this city) on the fourth Lord's day in June. This will be strictly a mission meeting, and he asks the attendance and cooperation of all brethren in reach, as it is considered a very important point.
- W. L. Oliphant writes from Kansas City, Mo.: "I am now in a meeting with the church of Christ at Thirty-third and South Benton Streets, in this city. The meeting is progressing nicely. The following preachers are members of this congregation: D. L. Hilton, Ben Henthorn, W. P. Gray, Julius Clark, and Roy Clark. Brethren Hilton, Henthorn, and Gray are at home, and they are assisting much in the song and prayer service. We are hoping for a good meeting. My wife arrived yesterday from home (Muskogee, Okla.). She reports that eight souls have been added to the flock there since Brother Henley's meeting began."
- From J. G. Malphurs, Clarksville, Tenn., May 17: "Last Lord's day I began work with the churches in Montgomery County, with a sermon to a splendid audience in Clarksville, and also at Oakland at night. Both of the churches have a mind to work, and we shall expect great things from them. We expect to have a church of the New Testament order in every community. To this end the churches of this county have purchased a tent to be used in this county in particular and in some other near-by places. We expect to make our work thorough by keeping up the work begun with the tent with regular teaching during the winter. Much free literature is to be used in the work. If there is a destitute place in Montgomery County that wants a meeting, arrangements can be made for the gospel to be preached there by addressing me at Clarksville."

Worship and Praise.

BY J. C. M'Q.

I have been requested to write an article showing the difference between worship and praise, provided there is any difference.

"Worship" in the noun form is defined by Webster as "(1) Courtesy or reverence paid to merit or follows: worth; hence, civil deference; honor; respect. (2) A title of honor, used in addresses to certain magistrates and others of rank or station. (3) Act of paying divine honors to a deity; religious reverence and homage; adoration, or reverence paid to God; a being viewed as God, or something held as sacred from a reputed connection with God. 'The worship of God is an eminent part of religion, and prayer is a chief part of religious worship.' (4) Obsequious or submissive respect or devotion; extravagant admiration; adoration. (5) An object of worship."

"Worship" in the verb form is defined by Webster as follows: "(1) To pay divine honors to; to reverence with supreme respect and veneration; to perform religious exercises in honor of; to adore; venerate. (2) To honor with extravagent love and extreme submission, as a lover; to adore; idolize. (3) To perform acts of homage or adoration; especially, to perform religious service."

"Praise" in the noun form is defined by Webster as follows: "(1) Act of praising, or state of being praised; commendation for worth or excellence; approval expressed; honor rendered because of excellence or worth; laudation. (2) Specifically: The act of glorifying or extolling God or a god; worship, especially worship by song, in distinction from prayer and other acts; as, a service of praise."

Thus it will be seen that "worship" is a broader term than "praise." Praise is one element of worship, and it appears that in sincere worship it is always present. Praise is often expressed in song, and, as an act of worship, is to be distinguished from prayer and other acts of worship. Prayer always plays a prominent part in religious worship. The same distinction is made in the Greek text that we find in Webster. From Webster's definition of the two words, praise is spoken of as a laudatory discourse, as is evident from Matt. 21: 16, which reads: "And said unto him, Hearest thou what these are saying? And Jesus saith unto them, Yea: did ye never read, Out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?" Also we find the same thought in Luke 18: 43: "And immediately he received his sight, and followed him, glorifying God: and all the people, when they saw it, gave praise unto God." Praise is spoken of as the fruit of our lips. "Through him then let us offer up a sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of lips which make confession to his name." (Heb. 13: 15.) A sincere, devout child of God delights to praise God in worshiping him, and we may be assured, if there is not a spirit of gratitude and praise in our hearts, that our worship will not be acceptable unto Jehovah. Men who truly worship God become oblivious to their surroundings and do not leve the praise of men more than the approval of Jehovah. "But he is a Jew who is one inwardly; and circumcision is that of the heart, in the spirit, not in the letter; whose praise is not of men, but of God." (Rom. 2: 29.) Such worshipers may not get their full praise from Jehovah in this life, but they will receive it in the life to come, as is evident from 1 Cor. 4: 5: "Wherefore judge nothing before the time, until the Lord come, who will both bring to light the hidden things of darkness, and make manifest the counsels of the hearts; and then shall each man have his praise from God." The true worshiper, while teaching, praying, breaking bread, and contributing as God has prospered him, hymns his praises to God. While Paul and Silas were confined in a dungeon with their backs all bleeding and lacerated, their minds soared away with characteristic freedom to the throne of God, and, nestling there, they sung hymns of praise unto Jehovah. "But about midnight Paul and Silas were praying and singing hymns unto God, and the prisoners were listening to them." (Acts 16: 25.) Every true worshiper finds much delight in retiring from the rushing, feverish scenes of life to the public assembly of the saints upon the first day of the week to sing praises unto God, from whom all blessings flow. Hence, the Holy Spirit, through Paul, quotes David as saying: "I will declare thy name unto my brethren: in the midst of the assembly will I praise thee." When we sincerely and reverently contemplate the goodness of God to the children of men, spontaneously the praise of our hearts should well up through our lips in hymning praises unto our God, who hath done so much for our redemption. In our every service and in every act of worship we should praise God, from whom every good and perfect gift cometh. In all false worship and in all vain worship, men leave out God, and there is no element of praise in it; but in the worship that emanates from the heart and which is acceptable and well pleasing to God there is always an element of praise, an element of thanksgiving, and an element of trust and devotion. While it is sweet to draw near to God in the sacred hour of prayer and thus worship him in prayer, yet in such moments we always feel grateful to him and do not neglect to praise him for his great flow of love to the children of men.

Changing the Point of Dispute. BY M. C. K.

On page 490 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate we publish another communication from Brother John T. Lewis, which, as stated two weeks ago, is his closing article in the present discussion. We ask our readers to give it a careful examination, and they will be prepared to appreciate the following observations in reply:

1. The most conspicuous thing in his present article is his changing the point in dispute and springing an entirely new issue. This course is sometimes adroitly adopted by men who find themselves unable to sustain a certain position in debate; but it is not the course, it seems to me, for Christian men to adopt. Neither Brother Holt nor myself has said or even intimated in the remotest way that "all Christians are" not "in the house of God." On the contrary, that is the very identical position on which we both joined issue with Brother Lewis and others. It was he and they, and not Brother Holt and myself, who used the term "church of Christ," which is the house of God, in a sense that does not include "all Christians" in the territory to which it is applied; and this is the issue which has been kept before him throughout the discussion, and is still before him. When Brother Holt confronted him with the question, "Where are God's children?" and, "Where are the saved?" thus implying that he believed some of them were not included in the little sect to which Brother Lewis and others restricted the term, if he had answered consistently with the position he started out in this discussion to defend, he would have frankly admitted that some Christians are not included in what he sometimes calls "the church of Christ." When he speaks of two congregations in Birmingham as "the church of Christ in Birmingham," he uses the term in a purely sectarian sense, because by his practice he admits, at the same time, that there are Christians in Birmingham whom he does not include. But when he is brought face to face with the utter groundlessness of this position, and its direct antagonism to New Testament facts, instead of surrendering it and frankly acknowledging it to be untenable, he suddenly drops it and comes with a flourish of trumpets, not only affirming and attempting to prove what nobody in this discussion has denied, but the very identical thing for which his opponents have been contending throughout the discussion! Bravo!

2. He says: "If Brethren Holt and Kurfees want to put in their time preaching and writing to show the sectarians that they don't have to understand that baptism is 'for the remission of sins,' that is their business, not mine." If there is any point in his statement here, he intended to imply that we do thus put in time. But, as a matter of fact, "Brethren Kurfees and Holt" do not put in any time at all "to show the sectarians that they don't have to understand that baptism is 'for the remission of sins,'" except in the identically same way that Brother Lewis docs the same thing, if it is done at all, when he receives "sectarians" on their baptism without rebaptizing them. "If Brother Lewis wants to put in his time" trying "to show the sectarians" by his practice in indorsing their baptism that they don't have to understand that baptism is 'for the remission of sins,' that is his business, not ours." Our brother should remember one of George Herbert's selected proverbs: "Those who live in glass houses should not throw stones."

3. No, no, Brother Holt did not "come to Lauderdale County, Ala., for" an example "of his teaching on this subject" of baptism for remission of sins, as Brother Lewis incorrectly says; but he went there for an example of a church which, discovering itself entangled in the errors of denominationalism, said: "We are wrong in wearing a sectarian name, and we have some things that we call 'Baptist usage' which do us no good, but, so far as they serve as barriers between ourselves and other Christians, are evidently hurtful. Let us, then, shuck and silk ourselves of everything that we do not find in the New Testament, and let us just be Christians only." That is the "example" for which Brother Holt went "to Lauderdale County, Ala.;" and he went there for it "instead of going to the Bible" because it was in "Lauderdale County, Ala.," and not in the Bible, although the conduct which it exemplifies is clearly taught in the Bible and distinctly enjoined upon all who would stand right with God. Of course the same praiseworthy conduct should be encouraged among all who are in any way entangled in error now; but possibly it is too much to expect that even so beautiful an example of turning away from sectarianism should be commended by Brother Lewis until he ceases himself to use New Testament designations of the church in a sectarian sense.

4. When Brother Holt said "it is not always clear as to just who are included in the term 'us,'" he referred to the sectarian use of the term when it includes only a part of the people of God. An example of it is seen when the terms "we as a people" or "us as a people" are used by a Methodist, a Baptist, a Presbyterian, or a representative of "the little sect of modern times," who usually include, in such terms, none of the people of God outside of their own parties thus designated.

5. See how Brother Lewis again changes the point in dispute when, evading that made by Brother Holt on the approximate number of persons constituting "the restoration movement," he suddenly raises the issue as to whether Brother Holt is correct in the number given. As if the exact number in such a case were essential to the point made! Brother Holt not only did not pretend to give the exact number, but specifically said he gave it "approximately." But fortunately for the point intended in this case, since Brother Lewis himself is sufficiently informed to know that Brother Holt's figures are "extravagant," there is no need "to verify them" any further than Brother Lewis' own statement verifies them, because the point hinged on the smallness of the number, even as it was given, in comparison with the great multitudes in the denominations; but if, as Brother Lewis says, Brother Holt's figures are "extravagant," then there are not even that many people on earth to-day who are Christians or in "the church of Christ!" We could easily "tell" Brother Lewis "where" he "can verify the figures," but he has made it unnecessary.

6. He says: "I object to Brother Holt putting me anywhere." He is mistaken again. Brother Holt did not propose to "put" him anywhere, except in the sense of merely stating what he understood to be Brother Lewis position. In the other sense, Brother Lewis has put himself somewhere. Moreover, he has located himself with such definiteness that we can always come in one of telling where he is. That is, according to his own testimony, we can know that he is either in one or the other of two positions according as we contemplate his theory or his practice. In theory, he says there are no Christians in the denominations; in practice, he admits there are Christians in them.

7. Commenting on Brother Holt's statement that "the apostles themselves were not entirely free from error," be says: "Christ said they should be; Brother Holt says they were not" I respectfully reply that our brother is mistaken as to what Christ says on this point, and Brother Holt's statement is clearly sustained by the specific words of the New Testament. It is true that "Jesus Christ promised the Holy Spirit to the apostles to guide them 'into all the truth'"—that is, when they spoke or wrote the word of God, the Spirit guided them so that, in their utterances, they were indeed "entirely free from error;" but this does not mean that they could not, at other times and in other things, make mistakes and become involved in error; and we have a positive example of it in Peter, which was so gross that Paul "resisted him to the face," and says he did it "because he stood condemned." (Gal. 2: 11-16.) Of course, if Peter was in error and "stood condemned," he could and did make mistakes. He was in error, but he was a Christian in error.

8. Why should not "Brethren Holt and Kurfees want to sing the praises and extol the virtues of the denominations and digressives," if they have any "virtues" worthy of praise? We deeply regret that Brother Lewis does not join us in this. Surely he will yet come to see that he ought to commend them for all they preach and practice that is in the word of God.

9. As seen in the quotation just made, Brother Lewis speaks of "the denominations and digressives." Exactly; and this is another instance of using terms in a sectarian sense. Of course those who conform to the New Testament style of speech never speak of "the denominations and digressives," for they know that "the denominations" are just as much "digressives" as those in "the restoration movement" who "use instrumental music and the societies;" yet Brother Lewis speaks of "the denominations and digressives" as if the denominations were not digressives, too. A similar use of sectarian parlance is sometimes seen when some brethren speak of "the loyal churches." It is all right and proper to speak of loyal churches and of disloyal churches when we use such terms after the New Testament style of speech; but in the case just mentioned, a "loyal church" is merely one in "the restoration movement" that does not "use instrumental music and the societies." It may be doing no missionary work and possibly not much of anything at all, but it opposes "instrumental music and the societies," and, therefore, is called a "loyal church;" whereas, with those who thus speak, another church which reaches the full measure of its obligations in missionary work and benevolence, but uses "instrumental music and the societies," is said to be "disloyal." And it is disloyal on these two points, and should be so designated according to New Testament teaching, but it is a "loyal church" otherwise; whereas, the church which opposes "instrumental music and the societies," but does nothing otherwise, is, nevertheless, a disloyal church. Hence, to classify such persons as "the denominations and digressives" is, in the matter of classification, exactly equivalent to speaking of "Chinamen and human beings;" for it is no more true that Chinamen are human beings than it is that the denominations are "digressives." I am thoroughly convinced that, upon further reflection, Brother Lewis will see and indorse the principle here involved.

10. Finally, I note with much pleasure and satisfaction that the series of articles on "Bible things by Bible names" has created widespread interest and investigation. This is very gratifying, and it is none the less so because a few of the criticisms have been adverse; for these, as well as the favorable, have been both welcome and helpful. Many expressions from private sources in letters and otherwise have reached me with generous and enthusiastic indorsement of the series, and many have emphasized its timeliness as well as its importance. For all criticisms of both kinds I feel grateful, and I believe that still further good will result from the investigation. Assuredly it is safe to call Bible things by Bible names, and I wish in this final note to give fresh emphasis to the clear and well-grounded conviction that it is not only, in a general way, a principle of the greatest importance, but that, if everywhere adhered to and faithfully followed by preachers and teachers of the word of God, it will be a powerful factor in the effort to restore the primitive order of things; and I am happy in believing that all who have engaged in this discussion are a unit in desiring this praiseworthy end.

"Why Callest Thou Me Good?"

BY E. A. E.

I have been asked what Jesus means by this question and by his declaration: "None is good save one, even God."

It may do us good to study the case of the rich young ruler, in which Jesus used these expressions.

And as he was going forth into the way, there ran one to him, and kneeled to him, and asked him, Good Teacher, what shall I do that I may inherit eternal life? And Jesus said unto him, Why callest thou me good? none is good save one, even God. Thou knowest the commandments, Do not kill, Do not commit adultery, Do not steal, Do not bear false witness, Do not defraud, Honor thy father and mother. And he said unto him, Teacher, all these things have I observed from my youth. And Jesus looking upon him loved him, and said unto him, One thing thou lackest: go, sell whatsoever thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven: and come, follow me. But his countenance fell at the saying, and he went away sorrowful: for he was one that had great possessions, (Mark 10: 17-22.)

This is recorded by Matthew (19: 16-30) and by Luke (18: 18-30), as well as by Mark. By studying the three records only can we learn all that passed between Jesus and this rich young ruler and the very important lesson which Jesus teaches from this case. It is the truth only which we desire to learn and to teach.

WAS THIS YOUNG MAN HONEST?

Jesus was on his death march from Galilee to Jerusalem. At this time he was "beyond the Jordan," teaching the multitudes as they came together. He had just explained to his disciples more fully concerning marriage and divorce and had blessed the little children which had been brought to him, when, "as he was going forth"doubtless out of the house where he had been teaching-"into the way toward Jerusalem," "there ran one to (Mark 10: 1-17.) This one was a "young man" him." (Matt. 19: 20): "he was very rich," and was also a 'ruler" (Luke 18: 18, 23). He occupied a position of honor. That he "ran" to Jesus shows that he was in earnest, sincere honest, and realized the importance of his business. Having reached Jesus, he "kneeled to him"--worshiped him-and addressed him as "Good Teacher." This shows both his humility and his faith in the divinity of Jesus. He was in advance of the Pharisees about him. So were Nicodemus and Joseph of Arimathea. (John 19: 38-41.) This young man was anxious to know what to do to be saved.

Compared to all others, this is the one and great question of life. How to inherit eternal life should be the great concern of all.

This young man evidently believed that Jesus could answer correctly his question and would teach him also something different from the law of Moses. He was led to think this from Jesus' own teaching. Doubtless he had heard Jesus' teaching on the questions of marriage and divorce, and probably such teaching as the Sermon on the Mount, where Jesus centrasts his teaching with much which the people had heard; hence, he expected in answer to his question something different from the law. In Matt. 19: 16 the question is put thus: "What good thing shall I do, that I may have eternal life?" It is doubtful if he meant some one deed of heroism that would merit eternal life, but rather as the question is put by Mark, "What shall I do that I may inherit eternal life?" or by Luke, "What shall I do to inherit eternal life?"

This young man knew two things: (1) that he must do something to be saved; (2) that eternal life is inherited. And Jesus did not tell him there was nothing he could do, but finally told him to do something which he refused to do.

When the lawyer in Luke 10: 25-37 asked Jesus this same question, tempting him, Jesus referred him also to the law of Moses, as he did this young man. But the motives of the two were quite different.

To further show that this young man was in earnest, when Jesus referred him to the commandments, he replied: "All these things have I observed from my youth." He was not a hypocrite, pretending to have done what he had not done. "Jesus looking upon him loved him." Jesus could not have loved him had he been a hypocrite. Jesus knew his difficulty. That he had "observed" all these things from his youth up means that he had made them the rule of his life, and not that he had kept them in sinless perfection. He was a splendid, moral young man, candid and honest, and for this reason Jesus loved him. At this point in the conversation, as Matthew (19: 21) states, he asked the question: "What lack I yet?" He was not yet satisfied or fully assured that he was an heir of eternal life, and he had confidence in Jesus to tell him. He lacked a most important thing-namely, the love for God and men which would move him to fully perform all that God requires.

Whether or not we now do as Jesus directs, we know be teaches the truth; his "sayings" are right. But this will not suffice; we must obey. To hear and to do not is to build upon the sand. To say and do not is pharisaical.

THE MEANING OF THE DECLARATION, "NONE IS GOOD SAVE ONE, EVEN GOD."

Jesus replied first to this young man's question as Matthew (19: 17) states: "Why askest thou me concerning that which is good? One there is who is good;" and, next, as Luke (18: 19) and as Mark (10: 18) state: "Why callest thou me good? none is good save one, even God." Jesus asked both questions. Jesus was "in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin" (Heb. 4: 15); he "did no sin, neither was guile found in his mouth;" and "when he was reviled, reviled not again; when he suffered, threatened not; but committed himself to him that judgeth righteously" (1 Pet. 2: 22, 23). He "condemned sin in the flesh." But he was "born of a woman, born under the law" (Gal. 4: 4), "became flesh and dwelt among us," came "in the likeness of sinful flesh" (Rom. 8: 3), and called himself "the Son of man" (Matt. 8; 20 and other places). Feeling the environments of the flesh-its mighty temptations, the power of suffering and death-and praying God if possible to remove the cup, although arising in strength and glory to the sublime height of saying not his will, but God's will, be done, he says none in the absolute is good except God. Jesus became hungry, sleepy, exhausted; he felt all the force of the temptations of Satan through fleshly appetites, pride and vanity, worldly wealth and glory, sorrow and suffering, but, thanks to God, without sin. Thus with fleshly appetites and passions and various temptations gnawing at his vitals continually, he declared that God alone is good. Furthermore, God alone is the origin of good, the only source of divine instruction, "of that which is good." Jesus was not the source of good; his teaching did not originate with him-" My teaching is not mine, but his that sent me." (John 7: 16; see, also, John 8: 26-30; 12: 49, 50; 14: 24,) Hence, he referred this young inquirer to God, and told him to keep God's commandments. Jesus taught nothing contrary to God's law; his teaching was from God. The law was "good"-"so that the law is holy, and the commandment holy, and righteous, and good" (Rom. 7: 12); and "he that doeth them shall live by them" (Gal. 3: 12). Hence, Jesus said to this young man. "If thou wouldest enter into life, keep the commandments" (Matt. 19: 17); or, "Thou knowest the commandments" (Mark 10: 19). Jesus said virtually: "God's teaching is good; do that, and thou shalt live,"

All who were obedient to God under the law of Moses were ready to follow Jesus and to receive all the blessings of his sacrifice for sin.

When Jesus said this, the young man said: "Which?" (Matt. 19: 18.) Evidently he thought Jesus did not mean the ones with which he was familiar. Then Jesus referred him to the ten commandments, passing over the first four, specifying the rest, but substituting for "Thou shalt not covet" its equivalent, as stated, "Do not defraud" (Mark 10: 19), and as Matthew (19: 19) says, "Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself."

"ONE THING THOU LACKEST."

This was the test. Matthew (19: 21) says: "If thou wouldest be perfect [complete, lacking nothing], go, sell that which thou hast, and give to the poor, and thou shalt have treasure in heaven; and come, follow me." Mark (10: 21) adds, "take up the cross," or suffer persecution for Jesus' sake. Had this young ruler kept the law as he should have done, he would have been ready for Christ. He must accept Christ, and, like Christ's disciples, forsake all and follow him. Jesus meant for this man to go along with him through the country as well as to do his bidding and to partake of his spirit of self-sacrifice.

To follow Jesus now is to have the mind of Christ (Phil. 2: 5-11) and to do God's will as Jesus did. To give to the poor now in Christ's name is to "have treasure in heaven." We are not required to sell all we have at once, but we are required to hold it for God and to use it in his service. Willingness to give up all for Jesus was the test then; it is the test now. Will we do it?

This young man was unwilling to do this. "His countenance fell at the saying, and he went away sorrowful: for he . . . had great possessions." He desired eternal life, and went away reluctantly, but went away without the blessing he sought.

This has been called "the great refusal;" but it is the same refusal that thousands make to-day.

THE MISUSE OF MONEY.

The frequency with which Jesus taught against the misuse of money is remarkable and should impress all most seriously. He gives three very prominent examples of men condemned, not for obtaining wealth through unjust, unlawful, or any dishonorable means, but because of their abuse and misuse of it—namely, the rich fool (Luke 12: 13-23), the rich man at whose gate Lazarus lay (Luke 16: 19-31), and this rich young ruler.

Not to use cheerfully and freely the means with which God has blessed one as God directs is robbing God (Mal. 3: 7-12), and is as much sin as to obtain money in any fraudulent and dishonest way. Let no one be led astray and lost by "the deceitfulness of riches."

Paul states that "godliness with contentment is great gain," and clearly points out the snares, dangers, and destruction into which the love of money leads. (1 Tim. 6: 6-10.) The love of money is that productive and obnoxious root from which all kinds of evil spring. Paul as solemnly warns against this as he does against all other lusts and passions (1 Tim. 6: 10, 17-19), and Jesus shows how hard it is "for those who trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God" (Mark 10: 24).

Get people to believe that it is indeed more blessed to give than to receive, and the church entertainment will die a sudden death.—Selected.

When thou a fast wouldst keep,
Make not thy homage cheap
By publishing its signs to every eye;
But let it be between
Thyself and the Unseen,
So shall it gain acceptance from on high.

"A Defense of Baptist Doctrine." No. 4. BY F. W. SMITH.

This is the last installment of L. R. Burress' reply, with such comments as is deemed necessary. He concludes by saying:

"And if by grace, then is it no more of works: otherwise grace is no more grace. But if it be of works, then is it no more grace: otherwise work is no more work." (Rom.

Faith, through which grace gives salvation, is a work. "This is the work of God, that ye believe on him whom he hath sent." (John 6: 29.) "For God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3: 16: see, also, John 5: 24.) "For him hath God the Father sealed" (John 6: 27)—at his baptism (Matt. 3: 17) and the mount of transfiguration (Matt. 17: 1-5). Difference: Faith as a work is within, and is spiritual and receptive. Baptism is without, and is expressive of that faith which commits its salvation to the Son.

Salvation by the washing of regeneration is according to mercy: "The blood of Jesus Christ cleanseth from all sin." The renewing of the Holy Ghost is making anew within the man: "For God, who commanded the light to shine out of darkness, hath shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ" (2 Cor. 4: 6), which he shed on us abundantly through Jesus Christ, our Savior. Where is baptism? It remains a good work, which God hath before ordained that we his workmanship should walk in.

I could give the names of humble, devout, and learned men who do not believe that "the washing of regeneration" means baptism. Some highly esteemed Baptists give the phrase a metaphorical meaning for baptism. The Protestant and State churches have almost universally taught that "the washing is baptism, which he shed (poured) on you, and therefore baptism by "pouring" and baptism of infants. Such teaching is absolutely equal to saying, "Except ye are baptized, ye cannot enter into heaven."

Brother Burress and I are fully agreed that salvation is a matter of grace upon the part of God. Our difference consists in when the grace of God saves one from past sins. He insists that it is before and without baptism, while I contend that salvation comes after baptism, and submit as proof of the proposition the very words of the Savior of men—viz.: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.) Thus our friend's quarrel is not with me, but with his Savior; and unless he can get the words quoted out of the Bible, he can never sustain his doctrine. He quotes quite a number of scriptures, and I believe every one of them, but dissent from some of the applications he makes of them.

In drawing a distinction between faith as a work and baptism as a work, he says one is within and the other is without. Well, now, since he says, "Baptism is without, and is expressive of that faith which commits its salvation [the salvation of the soul, I suppose he means .--Smith] to the Son," does he not make baptism a part of the "work of faith?" How, then, can he class baptism with the works of law, by which no one could be saved? It seems to me that our friend has surrendered his whole contention on this point. Of course baptism is expressive of the faith within, and it is in this act of faith that the soul is committed to Christ. He did well at this point if he had let it stand, but he spoils it all by the following: "Where is baptism? It remains a good work, which God hath before ordained that we his workmanship should walk in." Thus he would place baptism as one of the good works that Christians should perform instead of one of the conditions of becoming a Christian. Now, since all the good works that Christians are to do or can do look to and terminate on their fellow beings, who becomes the recipient of the "good work" of baptism? No, baptism begins and terminates with the one baptized, and whatever blessing is connected with it is received and enjoyed by the person baptized.

No doubt our friend can do what he says-viz., give the names of humble, devout, and learned men who do not believe that "the washing of regeneration" means baptism, and he could find such men who do not believe that immersion only is baptism. Such learned men as the great Baptist, Alvah Hovey, should have much weight with Brother Burress, and he tells us it means baptism. So does John Calvin, John Wesley, Adam Clarke, James Macknight, and, in fact, all the leading commentators and translators of the Bible. But our friend refuses this interpretation of Tit. 3: 5, because, as he says, "such teaching is absolutely equal to saying, "Except ye are baptized, ye cannot enter into heaven." Well, if God says that, why should our friend object to it? Jesus said: "Except a man be born of water and of the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." (John 3: 5.) Will Brother Burress try to get people into heaven some other way?

I have enjoyed these exchanges with our Baptist friend, and sincerely trust that we both may study God's word for the purpose of learning the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth.

The Race.

We had a race at recess to-day; I raced with one of the boys.
The course was long
And he was strong,
And O, the shouting and noise!
I thought it was play
As we started away,
I was happy and light on my feet;
But he was strong
And the course was long,
And it ended in my defeat.

And when we went home and the others told How I had raced with a boy,
The world turned empty of every joy.
The color rose to my burning cheek;
I longed to cry, and I could not speak,
And I knew the folks would scold.

But grandfather drew me up close, instead;
He patted my drooping, uncrowned head;
And what do you think were the words he said?
"I do not call it defeat,
I do not see in it a bit of disgrace,
I am glad she held on to the end of the race.
Don't you know, he would not have run so strong,
Nor ever have held to the course so long,
If he had not had her to beat?".

♥ ♥ ♥ Vincent's Neighbor.

The man on the platform talked a good deal about being a good neighbor. Vincent could not understand all he said, because he talked so fast, and the words he used were not the words of a little boy. But he did understand enough to want very much to be a good neighbor.

In the summer hotel with Vincent and his father and mother were other grown people. He did not see how he could be a neighbor to them.

Of course he could run errands for his mother; and, of course, he would mind quickly when she spoke to him. But that was not being neighborly, not when she was his own mother. A neighbor was some one outside the family, Vincent was sure.

While he was thinking about it, he went down to the beach to play with his new sailboat. The sailboat was a very wonderful gift from his Uncle Vincent, which he found waiting for him when he reached the Assembly Park with his father and mother.

It was named "The Clipper," and was painted yellow and black, with snow-white sails. Vincent could wade out in the shallow water for a long way; and by fastening a cord to the boat, so it could not get away, it would sail almost as well as the big boats on the lake.

Vincent had sailed his boat up and down the heach for quite a while and forgotten all about being neighborly, when he chanced to look toward the shore. A little Chinese boy, the son of the laundryman, sat there watching him.

Now, Vincent did not know just how Chinese boys felt about sailboats. If it had been an American boy, he would have known at once that he ought to ask him to come on out and have some fun. But this little boy looked so different that Vincent thought he might feel different. So he played by himself, while the brown eyes of the little dark-skinned boy followed him.

"Don't you want to sail her?" Vincent asked at last. "You have to hang on tight, so she won't get away."

The dark eyes danced, and the little fellow jumped up and took the cord from Vincent. He splashed out into the water, and "The Clipper" spread her white sails proudly as she floated off. The Chinese boy shouted and laughed, just as Vincent had the first time he sailed her.

"Here! I got some more string," he said to Vincent, "Let's tie that on. Then we can both sail her."

The two boys played very happily together, until Vincent's mother came down to tell him it was almost time for dinner. Then he remembered the question he had been wondering about in the afternoon, how to be a good neighbor. He wendered whether letting the little Chinese boy play with his sailboat would be counted neighborly. He hadn't really done anything; he had only helped him to have a good time. He decided to ask his mother.

What do you think she said about it?-The Mayflower.

I "Can't" and I "Will."

Webster's Dictionary defines "ambition" as "a steadfast purpose to achieve something commendable or right."

Webster was right. The young man who has ambition will try to improve himself; he will strive to do something worth while, always pushing onward until he has achieved success.

"What isn't worth going after isn't worth having" is an old adage, but it is very true.

The ambitious try to improve themselves every day. The unambitious drift along, not caring one way or another about anything; drift through their work, their pleasure, and past all opportunities without ever seeing them. They have no object in life; they know not the happinese of striving for anything.

In these days it requires the hardest kind of hustling of some sort to accomplish even a little. It is always a question how to make your hustling count for the most and do the greatest amount of best work—work applied in the right direction, productive as well as constructive.

The trouble with a great many boys and young men seems to be they go off looking for an opportunity when one is at their very elbow. They do not see the thousand and one avenues opened to them to make good. It is one of the paradoxes of civilization that the more opportunities are utilized, the more new ones are thereby created. Some cry, "I can't," and thus fail; but the fact is, as Thomas Coyle once said: "Let 'can't' cease, at all risks and costs; till 'can't' ceases, nothing can begin,"

You may often see a man who makes a success of business where other men have failed. Here we find concrete evidence that it is the man. Others will plod along in a slipshod way. When put to the test, they say, "I can't," instead of "I will."

No better illustration of the "can" spirit, instead of the "can't" wail, can be given than the following from the life of General Grant: When he was eight years of age, he found the word "can't" in his lessons. He did not exactly understand the meaning of it, so he consulted the dictionary, but to no purpose. The word was not there. In alarm lest a mistake had been made, he consulted his teacher, who informed him the word "can't" was, indeed, not in the dictionary.

It is both interesting and helpful to draw analogies between Bible characters and our great men of modern times. In this way we can often fix facts and incidents about the lives of such men in our minds so that we draw nearer to both the ancient and the modern hero by having a clearer vision of him and the services that he rendered to God and man in our memories.—Selected.

CURRENT THOUGHT

"Boycotting" the Ministry.

Mixing business with holy orders is causing a serious letdown in standards of high devotion, industry, self-sacrifice, and efficiency among the ministry, said Bishop William Lawrence recently in his annual address to the Massachusetts Diocesan Convention of the Episcopal Church. Bishop Lawrence deplored the fact that more and more clergymen are taking up outside work to eke out their living, and suggested that they give up these activities or leave the pulpit altogether, because when a man attempts to combine the two he is "claiming the privileges of both the business man and of the clergyman." But what else are ministers to do, if they are to save themselves from absolute poverty and if the pulpit is not to be abandoned altogether? spite of numerous campaigns and appeals in their behalf. the question is as pertinent as ever. How serious the situation has become is evidenced by the Rev. E. Guy Talbott, who writes in The Christian Work (undenominational) that the largest denomination in the United States to-day has one-fourth of all its pulpits manned by "supplies men who are not regular ministers. Another denomination, he reports, has 2,000 pulpits vacant; a third had more than 3,300 of its churches without pastoral care last year, and in still another there are 1,000 fewer ministers to-day than in 1914. In one denomination the number of "supply preachers" last year was 1,500 above the number of supply preachers last year was 1,500 above the number in use ten years ago. A principal reason for the lack in the pulpit, says Mr. Talbott, is the lack of graduates from the theological seminaries. One denomination, he reports, needs a thousand new ministers each year to fill the gaps. In another denomination having about 1,000 ministers, less than cochoil devote their full time to ministers, less than cochoil devote their full time to ministers, less than cochoil devote their full time to ministers, less than cochoil devote their full time to ministers. than one-half devote their full time to ministerial work. An investigation of 3,500 ministers in a third showed that only half of them had a college education, and that only only half of them had a conege education, and that only one-fourth had both college and seminary training. What he terms an "economic boycott" is also largely responsible for these conditions, declares the writer. It has been especially effective the past five years. "Prices have risen from fifty to one hundred per cent, yet the average salary of the minister is little larger than before the war, average salary paid to ministers, including the rental value of the house he lives in, a few years ago was about $700; last year it was said by the Interchurch Movement to be During the war the National War Labor Board fixed upon $1,700 as a minimum wage for a family of five. Later, in October, 1919, the Bureau of Statistics of the Department of Labor made another investigation and decided upon $2,262 as the minimum requirement for a family of five.

An analysis of the income-tax returns from ministers is most interesting, and sheds added light on the subject. The income return reported, says the writer in The Christian Work, includes total income, both salary and any money from other sources. In the report for 1918 we discover that only 1,671 ministers, or less than one per cent of the 170,000 active pastors in the United States, came within the tax limit of $3,000. The following table shows the incomes of the small group of highly paid ministers:

438	ministers	with	total	Income	fron	3,$3,000	to	$4,000
404	.00	.0	94	44	W.C.	1,000		5,000

200	200	81	11	- 11	(4.0)	7 000		222

According to Mr. Talbott, the minister has two chances in a hundred of receiving a salary of $3,000. "Out of every hundred ministers, only one receives over $4,000, two receive $3,000 or more, seven receive $2,000 or more, sixteen receive $1,500 or more, and eighty-four receive less than $1,000, while thirteen receive less than $500." The following table shows what the young aspirant for church service may reasonably expect in the way of financial support when he becomes a minister. It is not an alluring prospect:

Tti.	per	cent	of	ministers	receiv	e	1.75	$4,000	or	more
1.4		316	10.01		38			3,000	to	$4,000

12.7	4.1	"11		32-	395			500	or	less

Not only are the ministers boycotted by the refusal of the church members to pay adequate salaries; they must look forward to the boycott being continued after they retire from the active ministry. No denomination, says the writer, pays an adequate pension to its retired or disabled ministers, as the following revised table of 1919 shows:

4,152	beneficiaries	received	less than$100
3,658		(4.4)	from 100 to $200
2,653		000	0 200 0 300

37	à à i	(44)
-8		(55)
5		300	" 800 " 900

These figures, we are informed, were taken from the reports of seventeen denominations. Analysis, says the writer, shows that—

"One third of the pensioners received less than $100 a year, and three-fifths received less than $200. It seems hardly appropriate for the church to talk much about industrial injustice when it treats its own employees in this shameful way. The preacher must live on less than half of what the government has established as a living wage. He cannot save up for old age. He must live in poverty and look forward to charity.

"This is not a picture very alluring to young men. The boycott of the church members against the ministry is having its effect. If this unchristian boycott is not soon lifted, the Christian church will lose that prestige that has been hers in the past."—Literary Digest,

We give the above from the Literary Digest to our readers. Let us hope that the picture is too dark as drawn in the Digest. That a general awakening on the subject of the ministry is needed cannot be doubted. Many preachers are going into secular callings in order to make a living. Just who is responsible for this is hard to say. Doubtless both churches and preachers have made mistakes. If the churches can be brought to sacrifice as they should and if preachers will manifest the same spirit of devotion, this trouble will in a measure, to say the least be remedied.

Hurtfulness of Retaliation.

The attempt to restore peace on the basis of retaliation will not only fail, but it will turn again and rend the nations with war fiercer and more merciless than ever. Lord Bacon said in one of his essays: "Revenge is a kind of wild justice which the more a man's nature runs to, the more the law ought to weed it out. For as for the first wrong, it doth but offend the law; but the revenge of that wrong putteth the law out of office." That is, revenge leads to anarchy. It disorganizes society by making the individual prosecutor, jury, judge, and executioner all in one. Any of these functions is enough to make the soul which must exercise them tremble, while all put together creates a task so colossal that its very weight would crush the one who tries to carry it.—Christian-Evangelist.

Christians should cultivate peace. They should endeavor to lead peaceable, godly lives. A greater than Bacon has said: "Vengeance is mine; I will repay, saith the Lord." To lead a life of revenge destroys one's happiness. Christians should put away malice, anger, and all evil speakings. They should do the will of our Heavenly Father and leave the results with him. The child of God should endeavor to see some good in his brethren, and not devote his time to nagging and finding fault with everybody. If some were just as earnest in living the Christian life as they are in condemning and criticizing their brethren, they would certainly be bright and shining lights in the church of God. While Christians are not faultless and while they stumble and fall, to magnify their shortcomings does not lessen or decrease our own sins. A careful introspection would be helpful to us, and would lead us not to condemn so harshly our brethren who make mistakes.

MISCELLANY

T. E. Tatum writes: "I am booked to begin a meeting at Bryant, Ark., on the fourth Lord's day in July. I would like to hold a meeting in Arkansas embracing the second and third Lord's days in July. If you want me for a meeting at that time, please write me at Hallsville, Texas."

Paul G. Millen, Box 85, Palatka, Fla., writes as follows: "We need a preacher to come to Palatka and locate. We have a good all-year-round little city. The Master's work here is receiving less attention than anything of note. Since our meeting held last July by Willis H. Allen, of Jacksonville, we have been holding our own. We have not failed to meet on a single Lord's day, and only one midweek service left off, and that by mutual consent. At present we are worshiping in a little schoolhouse, two miles in the country; but we intend beginning our worship in town, tco, soon. We have secured a small building, and are getting it ready for a meeting. We have sixteen members in all, twelve of them truly faithful; other small children attend. We are all very anxious to have some good preacher come here and locate with us. Who will it be? The Jacksonville church furnishes us with a preacher on the third Lord's day in each month, which, of course, is appreciated very much. Write me for further information.

The church in Little Rock, Ark., sends the following: "The church of Christ in Little Rock requests brethren who have friends or relatives living in Little Rock, that are members of the church of Christ, to write them immediately and request them to attend our meetings; and if any have sons or daughters in the city who are not members of the church, invite them also, and send their names and addresses to us, and we will make an effort to see them at We are meeting now at Twelfth and Valmar Streets, but expect to get into our new house about the fourth Sunday in May. It is located at Twelfth and Thayer Take either the Highland or South Highland car, get off at Thirteenth and Rice Streets, walk one block north and one-half block west. We will begin our worship in our new house with a protracted meeting, which will be held by Z. D. Barber, of Morrillton, Ark. We want this meeting to be our best. All are cordially invited to attend every service. Street." Write to R. F. Ellis, 2021 West Tenth

Mrs. John Childress and Mrs. Gillie Brown, Morrillton. Ark., address the following words to the sisters of the church of Christ: "J. C. Dawson has asked us to act as managers for the summer campaign we are putting on for the Arkansas Christian College, and we beg to submit our plan to you and ask your cooperation. We have over thirty thousand dollars' worth of material on the ground, and have it paid for, and work has begun on the building: realizing the financial condition over the State and elsewhere, and in our effort to help the brethren and the school. we have decided to start this dollar campaign and to ask that each sister in the State, and out of the State also, who can and will, give one dollar, and to accept as many donations from the brethren as they will give. Do you want some fellowship in this great work? If so, please take this up with the members of your congregation and see what you can do, and make report to us. We assure you that fellowship in this work will bring great results. We are asking you to mail us a list of congregations in your part of the State. Help us to get in touch with the members."

Albert Seitz, M.D., McMinnville, Tenn., sends in a renewal subscription to the Gospel Advocate, and then says: "As life advances toward its earthly close, the way for us grows harder and more rugged. There is but small cause for wishing to remain long in the present state of existence. But when I think that in one drop of water there are approximately five sextillion electrons, each a perfect magnet with its positive and its negative pole, and think of the Power who created all the drops in earth's rivers, lakes, and oceans, and when I view the starry heavens at night and see the light of innumerable suns, one of which would be sufficient to make twenty-seven millions of suns the size our own, and remember that the Creator who made, holds, directs, and governs all these countless bodies throughout endless space is so conscious of me and so attentive to me each moment that he even keeps count of the hairs of my head, and that he has created a spiritual universe incomparably more grand, glorious, and magnificent than the physical one we now see a small portion of, and has made me an heir to an immeasurable share in all this forever, if only I will be faithful to Him, I feel rich. What though we have little of this world's goods, and what if we remain here but a few days, when the vast universe is ours to enjoy and eternity the measure of that ecstatic life? God bless you all in all efforts for Him."

Sister Maud Wright, Athens, Ga., Route 4, sends in the following: "I am writing to tell you how much improved, to my mind, the Advanced Gospel Quarterly is over any I have ever observed, the lessons in this quarter being more practical, it seems to me. In the lesson on 'Bible Teaching About Health (April 10) the comments say, 'orderly, neat, clean home.' Had it ever occurred to you that very few people understand the meaning of the word (order) used in this connection? It seems to me an orderly home is one where things have a place, and every member of the family keeping them in place and in good condition, etc. derly, clean, and neat understand what you mean, but those otherwise minded do not, is my observation. Now, what do you think about that? It seems to me these little (?) things should be explained so that even those who cannot read well could understand exactly what to do that they may begin to practice them. I venture to say that the majority of people do not know that their wearing apparel should not be dashed helter-skelter over the house, usually on the floor. I have noticed, too, that disorder cleanliness are companions. Now, I was just thinking along this line, and thought to mention it. It seems to me God's people should be the cleanest, neatest, most orderly and systematic people in the world. What do you think? Anyway, our public teachers do not stress such subjects in a way that offenders may understand just what is meant. Now, have I said too much? Pardon me, but if these things are important, public teachers might be able to teach a few of us. Now, please do not point your finger at me-I do my very best; but my idea is that if public teachers would pounce down upon the subject, I could do more good.'

C. A. Buchanan sends the following cheering report of a meeting held at Cleburne, Texas: "The meeting at Cleburne, with G. C. Brewer as preacher, began on April 10 and closed on May 9. This was a most remarkable meeting in many respects. We expected a great meeting, because we had Brother Brewer last year and knew what he could do with the right kind of backing. But the meeting went beyond our expectations, even though we had been planning, working, and praying for it for months. We had prepared to seat about one thousand people. The house over-flowed the first night, however, and other chairs were provided until every available space was occupied, both on the lower floor and in the balcony. By some sitting on the rostrum and in windows, the ushers seated from twelve to fifteen hundred some nights. Several nights many were turned away. The last night of the meeting all children under ten years of age were entertained in the basement The meeting resulted in to give room for grown people. one hundred and fifty-nine additions. There were ninetytwo baptisms, and the others were restored or placed membership. Most of these additions were grown people, about equally divided between men and women. Only two were under twelve years of age. A large number of sectarians were baptized. Brother Brewer preached the truth with-out compromise. He set forth the plan of salvation in the clearest and most positive manner, not shunning a single point, but in every utterance his love for the souls of men and his sympathy for humanity were manifest. He emphasized the fact that he wanted to convert people to Christ, and not to a party; that the doctrine he taught was Christ's, and not his. In some of the day services he warned the church against becoming partisan and sectarian even while contending for the truth. Brother Brewer gives much credit to the church here for the success of the meeting. Good men have preached here, such as W. K. Rose, F. L. Young, and the late lamented G. Dallas Smith. The training Brother Smith gave this church will never The elders here are loved by all, and they be forgotten. are qualified. This is a praying and working church. Reform, Miss., May 16 .- I preached here on Saturday night, also three sermons on yesterday. We had fine services yesterday, and the people had a fine basket dinner. I shall preach here four more sermons on this visit. Andrew Perry.

Bradentown, Fla., May 16.—The tent meeting at Palmetto is one week old. While the audiences are small, we are having a good interest. Next month I am to take my tent to Lakeland for a month's meeting. We asked the digressive brethren for the use of their house, and we were refused. Some of them are not satisfied, and we hope to do much good there.-John Haves.

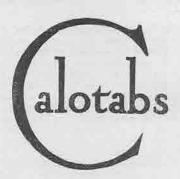

Trion, Ga., May 17,-Last Friday night I closed a twenty-days' meeting with the Newcastle congregation, Birmingham, Ala., Route 6, with seven-teen additions—fourteen baptized, two from the Baptists, and one restored to the fellowship. Among the baptized was a former policeman and deputy sheriff, to whose vigilance the peacea-ble conditions of his community are largely to be attributed. May he be as faithful in Christian duty as he was in civil duty.-Flavil Hall.

Statesville, N. C., May 15.—I have just closed my first meeting in North Carolina, near Statesville, with twelve baptized and the church aroused to more and better Bible work. Brother Miles Foster, an old-time gospel preacher, started the cause here. He helped me in all the meetings, and is doing all he can to advance the Master's cause in this State. We need many young men to come into this State and teach these people that the gospel, and not the wisdom of men, is God's power unto salvation. A great work can be done here, if we can find young men willing to work .- J. D.

Athens, Ala., May 14.—The meeting which began here on the first Sunday in May was closed last night. Brother J. Pettey Ezell did the preaching. It is to be remembered that the Athens church is only about two years old, but the membership now borders on to one hundred. This meeting resulted in twenty-one additions from all sources. The church has been strengthened in every way. The Al-bany church made it possible for this splendid meeting to be held. Quite a number of preachers attended this meeting, and assisted much by their prayers and presence. Brother Hubert Dixon, of Delrose, Tenn., led the song service in a very creditable manner. He has some time for singing, and should be used. He is among the best I know. It was my great pleasure to preach twice for the Lewisburg church on the second Sunday. Brother Adamson came to Albany and took Brother Ezell's place. I shall, the Lord willing, begin a meeting in Rogersville, Mo., on the fourth Sunday in May. From there I go to Springfield for a two-weeks' siege.—J. W. Brents.

Union, S. C., May 18.—Our meeting began last night with a good hearing. Brother H. M. Phillips is doing the preaching, and Brother T. A. Nicks is conducting the song service. I know those who have assisted us in the building of our house will rejoice with us that we are able to conduct a meeting in it, though it is far from being complete; yet we are so thankful that we can invite our friends and the public out to a comfortable place to hear the gospel. Brethren, do not forget to remember us in prayer at this time. Several were out last night who have never heard us before. One very fine and well-educated old lady was astonished at the preaching; she said she had never heard anything like it. The congregation at Tuscumbia, Ala., is supporting Brother Phillips, and when he left home they told him that he need not rush back if we needed him. We need some help in the sup-port of Brother Hicks and for other expenses. We do not want any one to think that we are not doing what we can; but we have so much upon us, and all are poor, working people, and we cannot do everything. We are hoping that this congregation will soon be self-sustaining, but until then we must consider it a mission field,-Thomas H Burton.

THE TRIALS OF A HOUSEWIFE

How They Have Been Endured and How Overcome by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Experience of a Providence Woman

Providence, R. I.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a female trouble and backache. It began just after my baby was born, and I did the best I could about getting my work done, but I had awful bearing down pains so I could not stand on my feet. I read in the papers about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the good it was doing other women, and I have got dandy results from it and will always recommend it. You can use these facts as a testimonial if you wish."—Mrs. HERBERT L. CASSEN, 18 Meni Court, Providence, R. I. It began just after my baby was born, Fayette, O.—"For about three years I was very nervous and had backache, sideache, dragging-down pains, could not sleep at night, and had no appeted octor but it did not help me. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised in a newspaper and took it with good results, and am now able to do my housework. I recommend your medicine to my friends and you may publish my testimonial."—Mrs. CHESTER A. BALL, R. 15, Fayette, Ohio.

An Illinois woman relates her experience:

Bloomington, Ill.—"I was never very strong and female trouble kept me so weak I had no interest in my housework. I had such a backache I could not cook a meal or sweep a room without raging with pain. Rubbing my back with alcohol sometimes eased the pain for a few hours, but did not stop it. I heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and six bottles of it have made me as strong and healthy as any woman; and I give my thanks to it for my health."—Mrs. J.A. McQuitty, 610 W. Walnut St., Bloomington, Ill.

The conditions described by Mrs. Cassen, Mrs. Ball, and Mrs. McQuitty will appeal to many women who struggle on with their daily tasks in just such conditions—in fact, it is said that the tragedy in the lives of some women is almost beyond belief. Dayin and day out they slave in their homes for their families—and beside the daily routine of housework, often make clothes for themselves and for their children, or work in their gardens, all the while suffering from those awful bearing-down pains, backache, headaches, nervousness, the blues, and troubles which sap the very foundation of life until there comes a time when nature gives out and an operation seems inevitable. If such women would only profit by the experience of these three women, and remember that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is the natural restorative for such conditions it may save them years of suffering and unhappiness.

Wheat and Chaff.

BY A. ELLMORE.

If the Lord has some important duty for you to perform, be not surprised that he has some severe trials for you to undergo first.

Many church members are going to heaven upon what they have not done. They say: "I have not done much harm."

Heaven sends Christians misfortunes as a moral tonic. Let us take our medicine.

Most of the time and money spent in visiting is worse than thrown away. Sometimes visitors throw away their own time and means and hinder others.

Forsake not the church. It is the golden chariot conducting the people of God from the paradise of the past to the Paradise of the future.

Christians should send their treasures on before them, leave their cares behind them, and carry their Christianity along with them.

Some sleepy Christians who belong to the meetinghouse go into a lodge, some go into several lodges, and, sure enough, there they lodge.

Talents are only loaned, not given to man, and in the final settlement every one will have to be accounted for; and each will have proven a help or a hindrance.

The greatest and the most useful Christians are those who are the most humble and faithful. Heart power is more to be desired than brain power.

Man is not consulted as to the place of his birth, nor as to the date of his death, but he is consulted as to the state of his welfare in the next life: he may have heaven if he wills, or hell if he doesn't

There are three things which we may regret in death: (1) that we have done so little good; (2) that we have done some evil; (3) that though we might be forgiven, yet we cannot put out the evil. Do not these probable regrets admonish us to cease to do evil and begin to do good, much good, more good?

We can think of no greater incompatibility than that Christ in his humanity should have been a religious loafer! In such case, all his pious followers would have had just grounds for being ashamed of him. But being the very highest type of manhood, we love him as a man; and then to know him as being more than man, we adore and worship him as the Messiah.

When you hear of a man's being severely persecuted, you may be assured that he has been doing something very bad or something extraordinarily good. And since by the flying reports only you might draw a false conclusion, it is better to keep quiet for a time that his true character may be made known. It is not always portentous of evil when bad things are said of a good man.

If we are wiser and better than others, the Lord may demand more of us than of some others. Many times I have heard it said by people out of the church: "I am better than some of your members." That might be true and neither be fit for heaven. But I am sure no one ever heard me make such a comparison. Christ, and not man, is our example.

Two men meet upon a walk in the city. One is well dressed, the other is clothed in vile raiment, And would this gentleman feel honored to be recognized by this poor man? And would we not wonder that the favored man would stop to notice this poor man? But soon he took the poor man into a restaurant and bought him a dinner. And in their conversation the good man was overheard to ask about the poor man's mother and his youngest sister. And finally he asks the poor man to go with him home! The people are amazed, and wonder if there is relation existing between them. But all the while it is noticed that the poor man seeks to withdraw from the company of the other, but the kind man is loath to give him up. Could it be that the good man is a preacher and the other is a common sinner? But it turns out that they are sons of the same parents. One has fallen low into sin, while the other is a worthy Christian. He thinks of the happy days of their childhood when their humble home was a paradise, made such chiefly by the sacred influences of a loving mother; but she has gone across the dark stream, and this boy. being the youngest, when the home was broken up, fell into bad company and drifted into the highways of sin. and the good brother is both pleased and pained to meet with his fallen brother. This is their first meeting for several years, and the good man cannot give up his brother. Well, my friend, there is One above us who is wiser and better than man, and he desires that all men, even the very worst, leave the broad way and go with him. But would that blessed One stop upon the highway to talk with me? Yes, he stopped to talk with the polluted woman at Jacob's well. He wants all to go with him. He will lead us, and feed us, and save us.

Money-Hunting Preachers.

BY T. B. THOMPSON.

Among other things submitted in a recent report of work by one of our preachers appeared the following: "We need more men who are not afraid to get out among the people. We have plenty of the self-righteous, moneyhunting type." Now, this statement can be pressed and reëmphasized without the fear of having said too much along the line. I suppose all admit there has been a great lack upon the part of preachers, and of all other Christians, of getting out among the people. It is too generally the custom of all Christians to do little visiting among people in the interests of the religion of Christ. A social visit may be made an occasion of dropping a word in the interests of the church. Being now in a city of sixteen thousand people or more, I realize more than ever before the absolute necessity of going from house to house in the interests of the church. My wife makes a splendid helper in this work, and we often have some other sister go with us. There is constantly some one to look up who is not regularly attending the meetings of the church: and often at our meetings I can look over the audience and see some one whom I visited the week before, and I feel that my work is bearing fruit. But the whole church must get the babit of looking up and manifesting an interest in delinquent Christians and strangers. So I would add to the above statement that we need, not only more men, but more women as well, who are not afraid to get out among the people.

As this matter applies to preachers going out into different sections of the country in general evangelistic labors, I will say that here, too, there is a deficiency. A preacher, once, in conversation with me about a Bible school and about sending young preachers out to preach in adjoining districts, discouraged the idea, because he thought a young preacher just beginning to preach would likely do more harm than good. Now, of course, our young preachers have got to begin somewhere; and if all felt toward their efforts as did this preacher, we soon would have no one to "get out among the people." Then, too, it was a fact well known to me that it would be hard for any young preacher to do more real harm in a community than this preacher himself. Though he boasts of being among that number who go out among the people, yet very few were the congregations established by him; and when you found one, it had no conception of its duty, meeting, for the most part, only when the preacher came once a month, or less frequently, possibly. As a result of such teaching, it is hard to decide whether or not the work had better never have been done. All this loose manner of teaching accounts for the further fact that this preacher is often invited by sectarians to preach. In all that number of splendid young men who have gone out in recent years to preach the gospel, I know of none whose work has not borne more fruit, with more enduring qualities. than that of this preacher who would discourage sending young men into new fields to work. So merely getting out among the people is not the only thing; but we should also be careful to properly teach and educate the people as to their responsibility in keeping house for the Lord.

As to having "plenty of the selfrighteous, money-hunting type" of preachers, I will say if there is one such to be found-and there may be many-there is one too many. As a rule, I do not believe there will be found as many money hunters among preachers, according to number, as among other Christians. But is it worse for a preacher to be a money hunter than for any other Christian to be? Is it not as legitimate for a preacher to have a home and a bank account as for any other Christian to have it? As a general rule, preachers use what the Lord intrusts to them more righteously than any other class of Christians. I know numbers who give a tenth of their income, even making gifts over and above that, and all this in addition to going out among the people at times and rendering their services with prospects of little or no support at all. So I had rather say we have too many Christians of the "self-righteous, moneyhunting type," and there are just exactly as many of them as there are Christians of such character. Brethren, as our income grows, let us make sure that our gifts to the Lord's work grow in proportion.

When I promised to hold this meeting, so far as known to me, there was just one member here—a lady; and now she is rejoiced that her husband obeyed the Lord. Since being here we have found a dozen members in Columbus, and others in the county, near by, who were scattered as sheep without a shepherd, not having learned of each other, and each one supposing that he was alone in his faith. We are going to secure a place in which to meet and start them to keeping house for the Lord before leaving here. Brother Charles F. Hardin, of Springfield, Mo., is leading our song service. He is as fine a leader as one could wish, and, being a Christian gentleman of high type, is a great help in this mission field. The Church at Wewoka, Okla.

BY T. W. PHILLIPS.

This is one of the best congregations I ever labored with in my life. There is not a drone in the entire membership, and perfect love prevails among all the members. Brother W. H. George and his most excellent wife live there and labor with the church, and have for the past three years. I closed my third meeting with this congregation on Sunday night, May 8, after preaching the old, primitive gospel for fifteen days and nights. Nearly every man, woman, and child in and around Wewoka heard the sweet story of Jesus and his love, and I pronounce this one of the best meetings that I ever held. Brother Virgil Teddlie had charge of the song service, and he did his work well. His excellent wife was with him, and was loved by the entire congregation. The elders and deacons of the Wewoka church have a vision that but few elders and deacons among our people seem to have. There were twelve additions to the church, and several copies of the Gospel Advocate will now visit Wewoka once a week; besides, several copies of "Questions Answered," by Lipscomb and Sewell, have gone to live with those splendid people. The church has a splendid house of worship, well located, well seated and lighted, together with class rooms and a baptistery. They resemble the church at Philippi in zeal and good works. God bless them all! On with the glorious work!

Home-Coming at Abilene.

BY BATSELL BAXTER.

One of the greatest events in the history of Abilene Christian College, Abilene, Texas, is to be the home-coming and reunion of old students to take place this year during commencement week. In fact, it is the outcome of earnest requests from old students that such a get-together meeting be held this year. There will be hundreds of old students here. Many of those who enrolled in the first session fifteen years ago have already announced their intention of coming.

The growth of the school has been little short of marvelous. Starting fifteen years ago with a small number of students and one small building, it has grown into an "A-plus" Senior College with an enrollment of more than five hundred students. It will gladden the hearts of those who were here in the years of hard uphill struggle to see the progress that has been made. It will be one of the happiest privileges of many years to meet former classmates and talk of old times.

Former student, write that you are coming to stay the whole time and enjoy everything from the great speeches down to the barbecue. The program will appear in a few days. Monday, June 6, will be reunion day, but the whole week is yours.

The Facts of the Telephone

Situation in Tennessee

By J. EPPS BROWN, President

CUMBERLAND TELEPHONE AND TELEGRAPH CO.

(Incorporated)

To furnish the telephone service which will be needed in the State of Tennessee during 1921, additional facilities must be constructed.

To build these facilities will cost $1,207,000.00.

The Company has no money with which to construct these facilities.

All new construction must be paid for out of the capital account of the Company; all of the Company's present capital is invested in the plant and facilities now used by you.

This money can be had in only one way; it must be invested in the Company's business.

This money can be had from only one source—from the investing public, people who have surplus money to invest.

Part of the investing public of this country live in Tennessee.

These facilities are needed to serve the people of Tennessee.

Will the investing public of Tennessee put their money in a business which is now earning less than two per cent upon the investment?

Every dollar the public of Tennessee will invest in the Company will be used to construct plant facilities in the State of Tennessee for the use of the people of Tennessee.

If the investing public living in Tennessee will not invest their surplus money in the Company's business, the Company must get the money needed to serve you from the investing public in other States—from strangers.

Can you expect strangers to invest their money in a business located in Tennessee in which the people of Tennessee will not invest their money?

Can you ask or expect them to furnish more money for your use in Tennessee under present conditions?

The owners of this property cannot be required, or expected, to make additional investments in Tennessee at the present rate of return.

Neither the present owners nor prospective owners will put more money into the telephone business in Tennessee until the money already invested is receiving a fair return.

When the Company is legally authorized to charge a rate which will yield a fair and just profit over and above the cost of furnishing you service in the State of Tennessee, it can secure the money needed to furnish service to the State of Tennessee.

The Company must have this right before it can get the money.

The people of Tennessee must act first.

To have telephone service, you must either invest your own money in the Company's business or permit the Company to earn such a profit upon its present and future investment as will induce strangers to invest their money in the State of Tennessee to serve you.

Edifying as the Need May Be

Through Bitterness and Tears.

Some things we learn by precept and by preaching. Other things are wrought into finespun theories. But the deepest lessons are those we learn through bitterness and tears.

There is so much of sickness and suffering and sin in the world that some speak of it as a "vale of tears." Our bodies are subject to pain and accident and disease; our minds are subject to distress and anguish; our hearts are subject to wounds and disappointments. Sometimes it appears that we are born only to suffer, and perhaps it were better not to be born at all. With some, "consciousness" and "misery" are equivalent terms.

Without paying any serious attention to this one-sided and highly exaggerated view of human existence, it is enough to say that suffering is so universal and so intense that it casts a dark, broad shadow over human lives. It behooves us to search for certain wellsprings of comfort as these of whom the psalmist writes: "Passing through the valley of Baca, they make it a place of springs." What may we find to brighten the dark and gloomy way that often seems to lie before us? The world has worked out various philosophies concerning suffering. There are those who say it is inevitable, it must come; therefore, it must be expected and endured, "Kismet!" the Orientals exclaim. It is our destiny, and we must meet it bravely. Another school of thinkers rise a step higher and teach that suffering serves a useful purpose; it makes life richer, grander, nobler. Therefore, it must not only be passively borne, but must be welcomed and courted. Such philosophers are good enough in a way, but, after all things are considered, they are unsatisfactory. It cannot be said that they are able "To find in any loss some gain to match, And stretch through time a hand to catch The far-off interest of tears."

But the Christian is not dependent on such theories. He has other wellsprings of comfort the world knows not of. Let it first be noted that he finds comfort, whenever he needs it, in the heart of his God. We do not always seek to be near to God, but he would always be near to us. "Draw nigh to God," writes James, "and he will draw nigh to you." When everything goes well with us, we are apt to become proud and haughty and depend too much upon ourselves. But when there is pain and suffering, there is more apt to be penitence and confession of sin. Only a broken sinful heart can know the wonderful tenderness of the promise: "A broken and a contrite heart thou wilt not despise." And sometimes a great fall and consequent disgrace helps us to appreciate more than ever the assurance that we shall not be tempted beyond that we are able to bear. Does not our own sinful weakness often serve to accentuate the prevailing strength of our God?

There is a wellspring of comfort that we may find in our own hearts in times of anguish and sorrow. True enough, suffering withers some souls. It makes them cold and narrow and selfish. But this is never the effect wrought in the Christian's life. With him, suffering serves to increase and expand his sympathies. It makes him kinder and more thoughtful toward his neighbors. Surely he who has suffered the pangs of deep regret and has through humble penitence and prayer found forgiveness for his own sin will not be so hypercritical toward others. Rather will he be enabled to say: "Blessed be God, even the Father of our Lord Jesus Christ, the Father of mercies, and the God of all comfort; who comforteth us in all our tribulation, that we may be able to comfort them which are in any trouble, by the comfort wherewith we ourselves are comforted of God."

We may find great comfort during the crises of life in the hearts of our friends. It would be worth all the pain and suffering for some doubtful and disconsolate souls to be brought low on the bed of sickness and disease just to learn how many true friends they have. It is a terrible thing to sin, and there is never any excuse for it. But it is one of the compensations of suffering for sin to know that not every one will point the finger of scorn or gloat over our humiliation and distress. But some—yea, many—true Christian souls will stop long enough, as did the good Samaritan, to lift us up and pour oil upon our wounds. "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness."

More About the First Day.

BY JAMES E. SCOREY.

In a former article, in speaking of the advantages the Christian should derive from attendance at the meeting of the saints upon the first day of the week, I said it would inspire us with the hope of the coming of the Lord. It will also help us to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ. No young Christian—and, as for that, no older Christian—can grow and become strong in the Lord and the power of his might, if he neglect the duties and the obligations the first day of the week imposes.

The soldier of the cross, the Christian, if he does his duty, will "put on the whole armor of God, that he may be able to stand against the wiles of the devil." (Eph. 6: 10.) And now, Christian men and women, have you really and truly consecrated yourselves to the service of God? Or are you satisfied to have your names enrolled on the church register. and then run with the world in sinful pleasure, gratifying the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and seeking the vainglory of the world? The apostle John says: "Love not the world, neither the things that are in the world. If any man love the world, the love of the Father is not in him. For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh, and the lust of the eyes, and the pride of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world. And the world passeth away, and the lust thereof; but he that doeth the will of God abideth forever." (1 John 2: 15-17.) Have you, professed Christian, laid aside your armor? Have you gone to sleep on the post of duty? If so, "awake thou that sleepest, and arise from the dead, and Christ shall give thee light. See then that ye walk circumspectly, not as fools, but as wise, redeeming the time, because the days are evil." (Eph. 5: 14-16.)

The church is the school of the soldier of the cross. It imposes upon him no discipline nor duty but that in which he should rejoice. "For though we walk in the flesh, we do not war after the flesh: (for the weapons of our warfare are not earnal, but mighty through God to the pulling down of strongholds); casting down imaginations, and every high thing that exalteth itself against the knowledge of God, and bringing into captivity every thought to the obedience of Christ." (2 Cor. 10: 4, 5.) The sword of the Spirit, which is God's word, is that which shall enable the Christian to overcome evil.

The assembly of the saints on the first day of the week is a means of grace in more ways than one. It is a day of worship, and a day of rest from the ordinary labors of life. It offers also the opportunity to every one of giving to the Lord and of receiving from him. We give to him gratitude, thanksgiving, praise, and adoration, and at our request he bestows the spiritual blessings of the gospel of Jesus Christ. It is right in our service to expect something from the Lord, but, perhaps, that should not be our highest aim or purpose. The highest aim of the Christian should be the glorification of God by doing his will, and a willingness upon his part to spend and to be spent in the service of God. Until we recognize the fact that we and all we have are the Lord's, we are not prepared fully to render him the service he demands. We must have a proper conception of God's grace and long-suffering to usward, and a readiness to honor and obey him, if we may hope for eternal life. The object on the part of a disciple in going to the assembly of the saints on the Lord's day-or, as for that, at any other meeting-should not be simply entertainment But he should joyfully go to heartily engage in all the work and worship of the church. If we go to get and not to give, no wonder we become weary, dissatisfied, and abandon the service. It becomes a burden. But if we go to the house of God resolved to give our hearts and our best efforts to his service, that we may honor and glorify his name, we will then rejoice when our work is done.

Sometimes there are those who go to church, and failing to be entertained or to get what they desired, they refer the failure to the elders or the preacher or to something else. They complain and criticize the work and worship of the congregation: the services were too long or too short; too much singing or too little; songs pitched too high or too low; prayers too monotonous or too varied; the sermon always too long, and either too abstruse or too plain, too learned or too simple; something always unsatisfactory. Now, these complaints are made, and they may be fair or unfair, just or unjust, right or wrong. Nevertheless, they are made, and they are symptoms of dissatisfaction. But these who thus complain should remember that they are not the only ones to be pleased, and that that which is not pleasing to them may be well pleasing to others. Pavi says: "We then that are strong ought to bear the infirmities of the weak, and not to please ourselves. . . . For even Christ pleased not himself." (Rom. 15: 1-3.)

Christians should have knowledge; and Peter says: "Add to your knowledge self-control, and to self-control patience." etc. (See 2 Pet. 1: 6.) Christians should be unselfish, and should be patient toward all men, and especially toward their brethren. "Let patience have her perfect work." You will pretty often need to exercise patience with the preacher. He sometimes bores pretty deep; but you can stand it, provided he does not bore through your patience. Jesus came to minister and not to be ministered to, and this is the true Christian spirit. (Gal. 6: 9, 10.)

Christians, in giving service to God on the first day of the week, must give of their substance, and remember to have fellowship in the furtherance of the gospel. Sometimes we hear it said: "We have little to give." pleased when you cheerfully give what little you can. But the misfortune is that many of us, if not all, underrate our means or ability to give to the Lord. There are men who think more of money than they do of service to God; covetous, close-fisted, stingy, miserly, uncharitable, and selfish; who, when contributing, think of the widow's mite, and satisfy themselves with giving that. They do not think of their prosperity. But there are more spendthrifts than misers. They spend money in many ways which are foolish and bring no good. Of course this class has little or nothing for a Lord's-day contribution. "Wherefore do ye spend money for that which is not bread? and your labor for that which satisfieth not?" (Isa. 55: 2.)

Whatever we may think of the first day of the week, it is ordained of God for his special worship and for special service, the duties of which Christians cannot safety ignore. It is a dangerous thing to go away from God's ordinances at any time and in any way, either in work or worship.

Many good men, professing to be disciples of Jesus Christ, and who claim to take the word of God as their only rule of faith and practice, have adopted in the worship of the congregations methods of worship which prevail among their religious neighbors, for which there cannot be found in the word of God either precept or example. God is neither obeyed nor honored, nor his name glorified, in any methods of worship ordained of man. The Scriptures teach everything that pertains to life and godliness; and if any man teach more or less for the work and worship of the saints, he simply corrupts the word and commits the sin of presumption. Worship which proceeds according to the commands of men is vain worship. Jesus says: "In vain do they worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." (Matt. 15: 9.)

Brother Hall's Article on an Old People's Home. BY ISAAC E. TACKETT.

An article has appeared in the papers over the signature of Brother S. H. Hall, of Los Angeles, Cal., on the subject, "Is There a Real Need for an Old People's Home?" In the course of the article Brother Hall admits that there is a need for such a Home, principally for those who are not Christians, as well as for some that are Christians. But Brother Hall gives us a kind of sympathetic appeal for the old, dependent Christians in urging that they should be kept the remainder of their days in their old surroundings, where they can see the same old trees and rocks and associate with the same old-time friends. All he says is true from an idealistic viewpoint, and it looks well on paper and sounds well to the ear; but when we come to work these things out in practical life—well, there comes the rub.

To be sure, every church should take care of its own dependents. But is a church at Fort Worth taking care of its dependents the less when it sends them to a convenient place prepared for this purpose at Weatherford, and cares for them there by furnishing the means with which to sustain them? Is a church in Nashville doing its duty the less when it furnishes the means to support a worthy old brother and his wife in Memphis, at a place where arrangements have been made to take care of these old people more conveniently and more economically than it could be done at Nashville, each church acting alone? Is the mere matter of geographical proximity essential in a church's doing its duty in this respect? The Cleburne church is helping care for an old brother and his wife at Roswell. Is the Cleburne church doing its duty the less because these old people are at Roswell? Is it necessary for the Cleburne church to bring these old people to Cleburne in order to do its duty? Some brethren talk as though the church cannot do its duty in this respect unless it keeps its dependents right around under its own shelter. What difference does it make where these persons are cared for, just so a church does its duty in providing the means to furnish the care?

To be sure, the Home is not needed for those that have homes or have children to care for them; but there are many who have neither homes nor children to care for them. I have a number of letters right now from such individuals, who are anxious to do the very thing that Brother Hall says the church should not permit—that is, they want to leave their old surroundings and old friends and look at new buildings and trees and rocks where they can have better care than they are getting. The mere fact that many of these have already indicated this desire refutes the sympathetic appeal that Brother Hall puts forth. Quite likely Brother Hall's father and mother do not need the care of such a Home. Neither do my father and moth-They have plenty to live on the balance of their days. But it does not follow that all old people are thus situated. Say, Brother Hall (and anybody else that has Brother Hall's idea), if the church at Los Angeles should have some dependent old people to care for unexpectedly, would you take them into your own home and furnish them food and shelter, and thus, perhaps, almost break up your own home? Or would you want some other brother to do this? Or would you want the brethren to get together and rent a house somewhere and furnish it for them? Maybe a house could not be found to rent. What harm would there be in the Los Angeles church building a little house on a tract of land where a hundred other churches were doing the same thing, where these dependent persons could be cared for carefully and well, and have the Los Angeles church furnish the means to do the caring for them? Would that church be doing its duty the less for pursuing this course?

One of the most sensible letters I have received comes from Brother U. G. Wilkinson. It is so much to the point just here I insert a part of it: "For some time I have thought of writing on the subject of the Old People's Home, which has been agitated for some time. I think we really need such an institution. Not for old people that have homes, but for those who have none; not to drive them from a home of love and pleasant associations, which some may now have, but for those who do not have such; not to provide for such as are now or may be hereafter provided for by local congregations, but for those who are not thus fortunate. All these suggestions have been arged against such an institution, either publicly or privately, all without merit. From whatever angle you may present the matter, there will always be with us in plenty the poor, the friendless, the destitute, the unprovided for; and these are they that we need the Old People's Home to provide for, just like we need the Orphans' Home for the unprovided orphans. Why not have a home for them as we do for the orphans? The move must be a righteous one, and I was surprised when it was sidetracked by some of the brethren as it was. And every objection urged by them might be urged with equal force against the Orphans' Home, the college, and the religious paper. We need such a Home, where old people can find a home and a welcome, and where generous and philanthropic brethren can use some of their surplus means to provide for them. I am heartily in favor of it. I do not know how soon I may need such myself, which I pray God I may never; but if I never should, still let us have one, and do business like business men, and business men will help us. But this will no doubt have to be done, after all, by some, while others object and pour cold water. This has ever been the case with every good work. So go on, brethren, with the work begun."

But there is another class of old people that most of us fail to see just here. There are many old couples, or old individual Christians, who have plenty to sustain them the balance of their days, but whose surroundings are not as pleasant as they should be for them and not convenient for their spending their last days in Christian peace, who want to come to such a Home and build one of the small cottages, live in it for the remainder of their days, and leave it with what else they have to the Home at their death. I have had applications from several such individuals already. I stopped at an East Texas town recently to see a fine old brother that wants to do this very thing. What would be better for an old brother and his wife of small means than to build one of these small cottages close to fifty more just like it, where they can spend their remaining days associated with other old Christians, close to worship and Bible study, easily accessible to good medical attention when needed, and where they may feel an assurance that they will be cared for if their means should all become exhausted before they die? It seems that some brethren cannot see anything but the "poor-farm" for a bunch of indigents. The mere fact that more than fifty old people have already indicated their desire to come to this Home when ready proves Brother Hall's article far more sentimental than practical.

Persecution.

BY J. V. ARMSTRONG TRAYLOR.

There are many temptations and persecutions that befall us in our daily walks of life, especially when we are living according to the teaching of Christ. However, the persecutions of to-day are not so heavy as they were in the beginning of the church.

Let us go back to the first century of our era and notice the persecutions that the church had in making its way through the world. Certainly the members of the church must have been strong in the faith, and surely they were very courageous; because it mattered not how they were persecuted, they put their hands to the plow, desiring not to look back and participate in the worldly affairs of that day. Like Daniel of old, when he "purposed in his heart that he would not defile himself with the portion of the king's meat," we may, when persecutions stare us in the face, have the courage to live through them; and by them we should grow stronger in the Lord Jesus, just as the church grew rapidly during its persecutions. We have learned that the world was Roman in the beginning of the Christian era, and it was one of the strongest world empires that ever existed; however, it was nothing when compared with the stone that was cut out of the mountain without hands, which broke to pieces the great image.

We learn that Rome was pagan; but we can easily see that the gods that were worshiped by the Romans were dethroned, though the temples of Jupiter and Apollo were still standing. The faith has gone that they once taught in them. The Romans finally turned from the gods of Homer to philosophy, which was to them a schoolmaster to bring the pagan to Christ, just as the Old Testament was to the Jew. But very soon there arose a worship of monotheism in the heathen world, desiring to rule the Roman empire. However, the monotheism that ancient philosophers offered was powerless to displace polytheism or to win popularity for itself.

It seems that this philosophy longed for the divine, but doubted in its heart the existence of the thing for which it longed. Though mankind is full of eagerness to discover the kingdom which is from above, the Latin and Hellenic spirits created among the Romans a great desire to meet the Savior of the world. Not only did the church have Roman paganism to deal with, but it had many other great persecutions, as stoicism and polytheism; hence, they had much to do to overcome all these mighty powers. Just so we, as travelers to eternity, have many difficulties to overcome, if we reach that home of blessing and happiness. The whole happiness of man is to fear God and keep his commandments,

Persecutions should make us stronger in Christ Jesus; and the stronger the persecutions, the stronger we have to be to overcome them. Surely we must feed upon the sincere milk of the word, that we may grow thereby. The persecutions and temptations are not so strong that we cannot overcome them. Hear Paul: "There hath no temptation taken you but such as man can bear: but God is faithful, who will not suffer you to be tempted above that ye are able; but will with the temptation make also the way of escape, that ye may be able to endure it." (1 Cor. 10: 13.)

A few Christian communities were scattered here and there over the Roman empire, but not so much as to be noticed very much. Moreover, the new faith going forth from Jerusalem spread very rapidly. About the middle of the first century it had reached Rome and Alexandria, and it was not long until it had reached Greece, Macedonia, Asia Minor, and Syria, and for the most part propagated by the apostle Paul in the fifties. How fast we can see Christianity spreading! The salt surely had its savor; the light was on top of the stand, and not under the bushel. We can picture very vividly the "light of the world" spreading over the communities. The church had her lamps full of oil, wicks trimmed and burning brightly.

In those days the church was persecuted so heavily that many suffered martyrdom; still they had the courage to press on "toward the mark for the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." Stephen was the first on record that suffered martyrdom—about A.D. 34. This leads one to think of the words Christ uttered in Matt. 5: 10: "Blessed are they that have been persecuted for righteousness' sake: for theirs is the kingdom of heaven." There are many members of the church who do not suffer much persecution—those who are so entangled with the affairs of this life that it is difficult for one to tell whether they are members of the church or not. The Greek word for "church" (ekkleesia) means "called out"—called out of the world—and "sanctified," which means "set apart." They who are true members of the church shall suffer persecution. Hear Paul: "Yea, and all that would live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." (2 Tim, 3: 12.)

Notice, if you please, that the members in the first century were largely Greek slaves and freedmen, but those of Jewish nationality formed a prominent part. There were not many rich, not many learned, but many of the common people-handicraftsmen, soldiers, petty traders, fishermen, and publicans-the poor and despised of this world. The Roman world at that time was overspread with religious societies. There was no longer any fixed religion, but there were religions in plenty-worship of local deities, divine honors paid to men, together with divers religious customs. There were none, especially among the lower classes of the people, who did not belong to some cult. As destitute as the church was of all worldly resources, it contained a power which overcame the world of the Roman empire; but where are the other countless cults which the great need of the masses once called into being in the Roman empire? Where are they now? The wind of history has swept them away, and many centuries ago not a trace of them was left. Of all those religious societies of the Roman empire, only two are living to this day-the Jewish synagogue and the church. The Jewish synagogue endures mainly by the living power of the Jewish nationality; but the church, which rested on no exclusive nationality, endures solely in consequence of the living power of its reli-

We learn that the members of the church in the first century let nothing separate them from the love of Christ, and we to-day must follow the same example. We must be molded in the same mold as they were; must follow the same copy and be cut out by the same pattern. Hear Paul: "Hold the pattern of sound words which thou hast heard from me, in faith and love which is in Christ Jesus." (2 Tim. 1: 13.) The early Christians put God first in everything. Moreover, they even sold their goods and possessions, and parted them to all, according as any man had need. They were not like Elisha when he was called to be a prophet, who first wanted to kiss his father and mother before going to work in the service of God. They were not like the two men who told Christ that they would follow him, one of whom wanted to bury his father first, while the other wanted to tell his people good-by before following

Paul exhorts us to-day not to let anything separate us from God. Hear him: "Who shall separate us from the love of Christ? Shall tribulation, or anguish, or persecution, or famine, or nakedness, or peril, or sword?" (Rom. 8: 35.) Christ told his apostles that they would be persecuted and treated cruelly; and he also told them to be "wise as serpents, and harmless as doves." They were delivered up to councils and were scourged. "And brother shall deliver up brother to death, and the father his child: the children shall rise up against parents, and cause them to be put to death. And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that endureth to the end, the same shall be saved." (Matt. 10: 21, 22.) May we, when persecutions are heaped upon us, think of the apostles and the early Christians, how they were stoned, cast into prison, and beheaded! May we look into "the perfect law of liberty," and continue therein, that we may be able to endure all temptations and overcome all persecutions that befall us. May we, as Christians, always have our lamps full of oil, the wicks trimmed and burning brightly, to show to the world that there is something in Christianity! "To him that overcometh. God giveth a crown."

Christ saw good in all the people. Yes, and he found good. Ah, he brought out the good in them by loving them. And—lo!—they were good all the time and became better, because the best Man of all had loved them, and believed in them.—Selected.

Georgia and the Far Southern Field By B. O. GOODPASTURE

We Ought Always to Pray.

Many generations ago Jesus taught his disciples "to the end that they ought always to pray, and not to faint." (Luke 18: 1.) Prayer was no new thing recently enjoined by Christ, for in the distant days of Seth and Enosh "began men to call upon the name of Jehovah" (Gen. 4: 26); neither was it a matter commanded by Moses, to cease with the passing away of the law. It abides. So frequently did Jesus pray that no one can follow in his steps without prayer. He prayed at his baptism, and a "voice came out of heaven, Thou art my beloved Son; in thee I am well pleased." (Luke 3: 21, 22.) After he had taught, fed, and dismissed the five thousand, "he went up into the mountain apart to pray" (Matt. 14: 23), and in the fourth watch of the night he brought a great calm of sea and soul to his storm-tossed disciples. Again, we read: "And it came to pass in these days, that he went out into the mountain to pray; and he continued all night in prayer to God. And when it was day, he called his disciples; and he chose from them twelve, whom also he named apostles." (Luke 6: 12, 13.) At another time he "went up into the mountain to pray. And as he was praying, the fashion of his countenance was altered, and his raiment became white and dazzling. And behold, there talked with him two men, who The closing were Moses and Elijah." (Luke 9: 28-30.) scenes of his life were characterized by fervent prayers. In the garden of Gethsemane the suffering Savior uttered the most sublimely submissive prayer that ever passed from earth to heaven, and the cross with its atoning blood was made more significant with its interceding prayer. (Luke 22: 42; 23: 34.) Finally, the risen Lord, the ascending King, pronounced a prayerful benediction (Luke 24: 51), which fell, like an Elijah's mantle, upon his disciples. Thus it has been seen that the great Teacher began his publie ministry among men with a prayer and closed it with

The apostles taught much concerning prayer. From Paul we hear such injunctions as the following: "In nothing be anxious; but in everything by prayer and supplication with thanksgiving let your requests be made known unto God." (Phil. 4: 6.) He exhorts the Ephesians to "take up the whole armor of God: . . with all prayer and supplication praying at all seasons in the Spirit." (Eph. 6: 13-18.) "Pray without ceasing." (1 Thess. 5: 17.) Peter also has his say: "Be ye therefore of sound mind, and be sober unto prayer." (1 Pet. 4: 7.) James declares: "The supplication of a righteous man availeth much in its working." (James 5: 16.) John, in the Revelation, gives us some fine passages: "And when he had taken the book, the four living creatures and the four and twenty elders fell down before the Lamb, having each one a harp, and golden bowls full of incense, which are the prayers of the saints." (Rev. 5: 8.) It is a fact worthy of notice at this juncture that the last book of the Bible closes with a benediction and a prayer for the coming of the glorified Lord. These scriptures suffice to show the imperative and indispensable duty of prayer. No one can have the Spirit of Christ who fails to pray; and "if any man hath not the Spirit of Christ, he is none of his." (Rom. 8: 9.) As well had one expect to live without breathing as to expect to grow spiritually without praying. "We walk by faith" (2 Cor. 5: 7); and prayer is the voice of faith.

A Striking Incident.

BY ALFRED ELLMORE.

Nearly one hundred years ago—I haven't the exact date—there occurred at Cane Ridge, Ky., one of the greatest religious awakenings known in that day. The chief speaker was B. W. Stone, one of the greatest and best men of his time, assisted by many other great preachers; and so great became the crowds that they erected seven pulpits in the woods, in which as many preachers could talk at the same time. One great feature of the meeting was its unanimity. The spirit of the people was a kind of ethereal enthusiasm which seemed to be contagious. Preachers would carry their audiences into a heavenly ectasy; they would sing, pray, and exhort; and some, I believe, would shout. They had not yet learned the art of "full jewels and half dress." On going into the worshiping assembly, it was not a vanity chill, but an internal flow of soul. But to the incident.

A pair of young married people who lived six miles distant, upon hearing of the great revival, became interested, and the husband said to his wife: "If you will remain and keep the baby. I will go and take in the sights and bring the news." And she said: "Go." Now, they were poor and had no conveyance, and he walked and trotted the six miles, along the winding paths, over hills and through valleys; and-lo!-when he had seen and heard and enjoyed the meeting, he hastened home and told his wife that "the half had not been told!" And so eager they became that they quickly improvised a plan for the tour at night. Said she: "You make two torches, and drop one at halfway, for light as we return; and I will carry the baby." And think of the faith and fortitude of this woman who would undertake a trip of twelve miles in the night over the hills, and must cross a stream upon a high, round foot log, and carry the darling babe! How few women now would make such a tour in order to hear the gospel! No; but if furnished a nice automobile, upon a smooth pike, and a jolly crowd of guests, a few might venture to make the tour. When they arrived home, it was midnight; and though the flesh was weary, the spirit was light and free and happy.

O, how the pious, praying Christians would enjoy such a revival now! How I would like to attend such a gospel feast before I go home!

The numbers saved during that meeting will not be known until the great book is opened on the other side.

Growth.

Please note the following words of Paul to Timothy concerning the work of a deacon when it is well done: "For they that have served well as deacons gain to themselves a good standing, and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus." (1 Tim. 3: 13.) Whenever we do well any work God puts into our hands, it lifts us up and better prepares us for greater work. This is universal in the kingdom of our Lord. Hence, elders should become better elders, deacons should become better deacons, and grow and expand into larger fields of usefulness until the latter can leave their places to be filled by others who need the development. Preachers should become better preachers. It is sad to know that a man can preach no better now than he did twenty years ago, that an elder is no better qualified now than when first appointed. The law of growth is the bed-rock principle upon which the Christian's life is lived, if rightly lived. "Grow up into him in all things," says Paul. (Eph. 4: 15.) Paul was happy and thankful because he could say of the brethren at Thessalonica: "Your faith groweth exceedingly, and the love of each one of you all toward one another aboundeth." (2 Thess. 1: 3.) Is it not true that many, after being in the church for half a lifetime, have no more faith and love than when they first began? Paul was glad to say of the Thessalonians: "So that we ourselves glory in you in the churches of God for your patience and faith." (Verse 4.) The one reason we should desire the sincere milk of the word is that we may grow. (1 Pet. 2: 2.) "Grow in the grace and the knowledge of our Lord "-that is the way Peter puts it. (2 Pet. 3: 18.) Have you studied the prayer of Jabez in 1 Chron. 4: 10? Here it is: "O that thou wouldest bless me indeed, and enlarge my border, and that thy hand might be with me, and that thou wouldest keep me from evil, that it be not to my sorrow!" God blesses such a soul. Hence it is said: "And God granted him that which he requested." May he help us to have the same desire, to pray the same prayer, to be dissatisfied with present attainments and long for higher and higher ground. Mark what I say: "The day you stop growing, you begin to sink. Are you growing, my brother, my sister? If you will not grow, see to it that you do not envy the ones who do grow.

Certain it is that many who claim to be members of the church—and among this many we find preachers, elders, and deacons, to whom the church has been taught to look for the right kind of advice and for some inspiration—are not studying as they should, not praying as they should, and not continually taking that interest in the cause of Christ that they should. If they were, growth would be a matter of course, and all of us would be continually becoming more and more attractive as workers in the vineyard of our Lord. As a rule, the most of the envy in Christians is to be found in those that are not growing. Those who grow are in good health, spiritually, and the Spirit of our Lord governs them, and not the flesh. Those who grow not are controlled by the flesh.

Brother Riggs recently visited Fillmore and preached a few nights and on one Lord's day. He found the work much improved, and he feels hopeful for the cause there. One was added from the Methodists.

Brother Dial reports the work at Downey as doing well. Brother Riggs has been away for two Lord's days, and they have not had what we call a "regular preacher;" but they have had good crowds, and the talks by the different brethren have been uplifting and helpful. D. R. Dial is a good preacher himself.

The work here in the city continues to grow, and is becoming more and more a source of joy to us all. We have some great people in this congregation, and the number grows. Two have been added by statement since last report.

My Year at Burritt College.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

As the school year of 1920-21 closes at Burritt College, I feel no disposition to rush into print to inform the public that I have been one of the teachers these ten months. I do not feel that I need render an account of my stewardship to the public, nor yet to the trustees and president of the school, so much as to God. I am sensible of the fact that in everything I do. in Burritt College or elsewhere, God requires of me as his steward in trust that I be found faithful. Hence, while this article for the most part deals with my year at Spencer, it is designed to encourage Christians by acquainting them with the Burritt work and Burritt's possibilities, rather than to draw attention to myself.

I cannot say what Providence had to do with my coming to Spencer, but it is certainly a fact that two of God's noblemen are directly responsible for my connection with the school. I refer to Brother Henry T. King, of McMinnville, and Brother H. Leo Boles, of Nashville. Brother King took the initiative and recommended me for the place, while Brother Boles urged me to accept the proposition. The former was acquainted with the work being done by the school in recent years, and the latter is one of Burritt's graduates, having received his degree in 1900. Both were agreed that a Christian teacher could accomplish more for the cause of true education in Burritt College than in the public schools. They convinced me that the Burritt work was an enlarged sphere of usefulness. Duty seemed to call. To follow Christ, who "went about doing good," I could not turn a deaf ear to this Burritt call. I had no option.

Then, too, there was the call of the mountains, a voice far more persuasive to me than that of the city. God's great out-of-doors always appealed strongly to me; and after a year in the busy thoroughfare of "hasting feet," the matchless call of the Cumberlands was irresistible. I think that normal folks have something of the mountains within them. and that, therefore, the appeal of the wild is as voice calling unto voice. In my experience I have found that the hills and mountains are vocal with the best sentiments of the soul. Do not mountains stand for quiet and calm? We come to them from the fret and hurry and trifling of modern life, and in a few days we feel these things slipping off from us and giving place to an invading restfulness. Do not mountains stand for silence and reflection? The long, tranguil valleys and the hushed mysterious pines subdue chatter and enforce meditation. But, most of all, do not mountains stand for permanence? The profile of their immense round shoulders, indifferent to cloud, indifferent to storm, indifferent to the flight of centuries, brings home to us more powerfully than anything else in nature the brevity and insignificance of human life. Such is the Godgiven message of the Cumberlands.

Some years ago I heard Brother Elam so use the names "Burritt" and "Spencer" that I was led to think that they were almost synonymous terms. Recalling his school days, he would speak of going to Burritt and of going to Spencer. Well, they are almost identical. Spencer is the quaint mountain town, and Burritt is the school; but Spencer's chief business is Burritt College. The other enterprises, for the most part, are adjuncts to the school. Bee-busy Burritt, humming ten months in the year, is the livest thing in the town, and might be considered an interloper were it not actually responsible for the life of the village. Without Burritt, Spencer might suspend animation, or, at least, lapse into a semisomnolent state. But being the quiet town it is, a burg surrounded by variegated and picturesque scenery, it all accrues to the interest of Burritt. Indeed, Spencer is an ideal school town. If mountain air is health-giving; if isolation means anything to study; and if pure associations count in character forming, Spencer, the county seat of Van Buren County, is a vantage point for a school. Far from the "madding crowd," the distractions and temptations of the city, it is easy for one to be busy and to be good at Burritt College.

I wish to speak briefly of the Bible work. There are three daily classes-the children's class, the intermediate, and the advanced. These classes are taught, respectively, by Brother John Templeton, Professor Bonner, and myself. The total enrollment of the three classes for the year approximates seventy-five. To stimulate interest, monthly examinations are given, and the grades entered on the record cards. Supplementing the daily Bible study are the prayer meeting and the Sunday school. All students are required to attend Sunday school as well as Lord's-day services. Burritt pupils also are required to take quarterly examinations in the Sunday-school literature, and their grades are entered on the cards and averaged with their other studies. In other words, the pupils are supposed to know as much about the Sunday-school literature as of the secular literature or the profane history they study and recite. The daily Bible study, the Sunday school, and the prayer meeting work hand in hand and to one end-the inculcation of the principles of God's word in the hearts of the pupils.

Pupils in the advanced class are encouraged to do research work, and are supplied with maps and Bible helps; but they are urged to study first and most of all the Bible itself. They are taught the Bible and history and literature in the same recitation room by the same teacher, and, generally speaking, by the same methods. I think this is fine; because the pupils can see for themselves that one can understand the simple truths of the Bible if he is as diligent in his study of God's textbook as he is in his study of Shakespeare. God wrote for the common people-"the common people heard him [Christ] gladly;" and Shakespeare wrote for the "groundlings," as well as for the "judicious." In the study of Shakespeare the pupils are taught to accept the obvious meaning of words and phrases, and in the study of the Bible the same simple rule of interpretation is emphasized. And I repeat that I think something is to be gained in teaching the same pupils Bible and history and literature in the same way.

In this connection I desire to thank in this public way those who have manifested an interest in the Bible work in the school. Many letters of friendly interest have been received, and special acknowledgment is due those who have contributed Bible atlases and religious books. The Bible classes now have a useful collection of helps—dictionaries, commentaries, church histories, and sermons. On the tables of the reading room are all the leading papers of the brotherhood, besides such useful periodicals as the Christian Herald and Sunday School Times. Other volumes and maps will be added next year.

Originally the Bible was not taught in Burritt College, but it was read daily in chapel. I trust and believe the Bible feature has come to stay. I do not believe that the school can dispense with the Bible work without disastrous results. I believe the Bible gives the school its moral prestige, and that God has blessed the institution specially because of its attitude toward Christianity. I believe that the Bible study exerts a steadying influence over the entire student body, even over those most inclined to be flippant and unruly, and that, therefore, the word of God is the school's chief asset in the splendid discipline of the institution. No pupil can study prayerfully God's sacred word day by day and go far wrong; no conscientious teacher can teach it daily and lapse into indifference. I can speak for myself. The daily study of the lessons has been to me as daily manna and living water. I have profited, perhaps, more than my pupils.

Burritt College is as needful to the Cumberland plateau as David Lipscomb College is to the basin of Middle Tennessee. The denominations and the "digressives" have schools at vantage points in the Cumberlands and in the mountains of East Tennessee. Burritt alone stands boldly for the cause of primitive Christianity, and from its mountain height holds aloft the torch of the gospel. The school has a history, and its prestige has long been felt. Especially is it the school of the Cumberlands. Pupils from every plateau county of Tennessee are enrolled, and they come from Kentucky on the north and from Alabama on the South. Burritt's solemn duty is to teach them the religion of Christ. Let Christians pray that this may be done.

AT HOME AND ABROAD

One confession and one united by membership at Russell Street church of Christ on last Lord's day.

Brother and Sister Lamb, of the Midway Church, in Rutherford County, Tenn., paid us a visit on Thursday of last week. They were looking for tracts to distribute.

S. M. Spears preached on last Lord's day for the church in South Columbia, Tenn. He reports good attendance and interest and the work seemingly in good condition there.

Ben West writes from North Fort Worth, Texas, May 23: "Large crowds at the Northside Church yesterday, and two additions. Brother Elam is at Southside, and having large crowds."

- J. W. Brents writes from Rogersville, Mo., May 25: "I am in a fine meeting here. Large crowds. Seven additions to date. I go from here to one of the churches in Springfield for a meeting."
- F. B. Shepherd's financial report of the Forest Vale (African) mission for the month of April shows balance and receipts, $54.63; forwarded to Brother Sherriff, $54.50; carried forward to May, thirteen cents.
- B. W. Davis preached at Scottsville, Ky., on last Lord's day. Good interest. He is expected to preach on the second Lord's day in June at Petersburg, Tenn. He will return to Scottsville on the first Lord's day in July.

William Oakley preached at Commerce, Tenn., on last Lord's day. He reports a good meeting, and says conditions are good there, and that the church is working along nicely, after a long, hard struggle to get a start.

- J. V. Armstrong Traylor writes: "H. Leo Boles and I are in a good meeting at New Providence, Tenn. Large, attentive crowds at each service, and forceful sermons are being preached; however, no additions up to this time."
- N. W. Proffitt continues his meeting at Sixth Avenue, North, and Buchanan Street. There have been two additions. He will begin on Twenty-second Avenue, North, next Lord's day, for a three-weeks' siege in that section of the city.

Herbert E. Winkler began on last Lord's-day afternoon a meeting with the New Shops congregation. He will preach each week night at 8:45 o'clock, while superintending the construction of the Charlotte Avenue building in daytime.

There was one confession for baptism and one to confess an erring life at the meeting of the Twelfth Avenue Church on Sunday night. J. W. Grant preached at both the morning and the evening service for them, and at Bull Run in the afternoon.

The meeting of the Flat Rock congregation, this city, conducted by R. V. Cawthon, had resulted, up to Monday morning, in ninety-two additions to the congregation and was to continue. Eight came forward at the invitation on Sunday night.

There was fine attendance at the Charlotte Avenue tent on Lord's-day morning, and an excellent sermon by J. Leonard Jackson. The stone foundation of their new house is now completed, and the brick work will be well under way by the time this reaches the readers.

Mrs. Alice Grable, Henry, Tenn., in a letter of recent date, says: "I wish I was able to have the Gospel Advocate sent to every home in the country. I feel like I could not get along without it. I once gave up all other papers in order to keep up my subscription to the Advocate."

R. F. Ellis writes from Little Rock, Ark.: "We are trying to do more this year in the Master's cause in the way of preaching the gospel and assisting the poor than ever before. We are always glad to welcome visiting brethren or brethren who happen to be passing through the city."

William Etheridge, Middleton, Tenn., writes, May 26: "The work in Hardeman County is taking on new life. Brother Rowland, of Tiplersville, Miss., baptized three last Saturday, and I baptized one at my appointment on Lord's day. The Toone congregation had one addition by primary obedience."

The meeting conducted by C. R. Nichol at Lindsley Avenue closed on last Lord's-day night. There was excellent preaching and fine attendance throughout, and four baptisms—one from the Methodists. Brother Nichol left for Houston, Texas, where he was to enter a meeting on Tuesday night.

- J. M. Dennis writes: "On the first Lord's day in June we are to begin a meeting at Ravenscroft, Tenn. When through at Ravenscroft, we are to go to Bon Air to hold a meeting, then to another mining town. All the meetings will be held at coal-mining towns. We will be up there all the month of June."
- T. W. Phillips has just closed a good meeting at Junction City, Texas, with seventeen baptisms. Brother Phillips is our authorized agent for "Questions Answered," by Lipscomb and Sewell, and also for the Gospel Advocate. We ask the brethren everywhere to receive him as such and to give him all needed support in the work.

W. N. Carter writes from McGregor, Texas, May 26: "I am here in my tenth protracted meeting with this congregation. Large and attentive audiences gather each evening to hear. There are several congregations around whose members are attending. There have been several additions. Let us all do our best to preach and live the gospel."

The Board of Directors of the Tennessee Orphan Homewill meet in the Home on Thursday, June 2. A number of visitors are expected on that occasion. A number of improvements are needed in the Home, so it is expected that the Board of Directors will have a busy day. We are glad to report the Home in fine condition and doing a good work.

B. W. Davis, of Ashland City, Tenn., went to Scottsville, Ky., last Friday to stay over till Monday and preach for them. He reports that Brethren White and Winkler, who have both been preaching (on different Lord's days) monthly at Ashland City during the winter and spring, have taught and exhorted that people into a good condition for work.

Mrs. M. E. Johns, Murfreesboro, Tenn., Route 3, in sending in her renewal to the Gospel Advocate, says: "I will soon be seventy-five years of age, and have been taking the Advocate for a number of years. I am deaf and cannot hear preaching. This is the only source I have of hearing from the churches. It is a great pleasure to me, being next to the Bible."

A brother just returned from Birmingham, Ala., reports conditions seemingly very fine in that city. T. Q. Martin's meeting at West End left that church in fine condition. Hugh A. Price preached there on the fourth Lord's-day in May. C. M. Pullias, their regular preacher, is in a very fine meeting in North Birmingham. The people down there have "a mind to work."

From Lee Warren, Wills Foint, Texas, May 16: "W. A. Bentley is to assist us in a meeting, beginning on the fifth Lord's day in July. We are working and praying for a great meeting and a spiritual uplift that will strengthen and encourage us in the work of our Lord. Our labor of leve among these brethren is pleasant, and we hope to accomplish good in the Master's name."

- R. L. Whiteside writes from Denton, Texas, May 24: "Last fall I held several meetings in Alabama, Kentucky, and Tennessee. I am to return this fall to some of the same places and others for meetings. I have time for some other meetings between now and the winter season. If you have secured no one for your meeting, perhaps we could arrange a date. You may address me at Denton, Texas."
- J. I. Reagan writes from Dallas, Texas, May 23: "Under the auspices of the Pearl and Bryan Streets Church, of this city, I began a mission meeting under the big tent at Lancaster yesterday, and last night we could not accommodate the crowd. Prospects are very flattering. Practically every congregation in Dallas was represented there yesterday. We are going to do more mission work. I go next to South Texas."

From A. J. Thompson, Ladonia, Texas: "C. J. Robinson, of Fort Worth, has just closed a week's meeting at Ladonia. He preached in the Christian church house; and while the instruments were there, they were not used in the services. Brother Robinson failed not to declare 'the whole counsel of God.' We feel sure much good was done, though there were no visible results. Good crowds and good attention. Brother Robinson will be with us again this fall, the Lord willing."

The cause of Christ is moving forward in this city. There have been a number of meetings, all of which have resulted in many additions to the church. The house of worship owned by the Baptists has recently been bought on the Granny White pike. It is expected to begin worship in this place at an early date. Churches should never be satisfied with what they have accomplished, but, like Paul, they should be continually pressing forward until the goal is reached.

W. D. Bills, San Antonio, Texas, May 18, writes: "I returned home Sunday morning from Homer, La., where I assisted in a meeting. We had a good meeting, regardless of the fact that we were greatly hindered by rain. Two persons were baptized. A church house is soon to be built, and the worship will be regularly observed. I met some fine people at Homer. J. I. Reagan, of Dallas, led the songs, and did his work well. I go to Childress, Texas, for my next meeting."

T. B. Larimore, Box 111, Berkeley, Cal., writes the following, which will be of much interest to our readers: "We are preparing to fulfill our promise to return to Tennessee this year. We expect to leave Berkeley for Nashville, Monday morning, May 30, and the agent here tells us we should reach our destination not later than Saturday morning, June 4. I do not know how long we may remain in Tennessee, but not longer, we think, than about the first of November."

J. C. Hamilton writes from Haskell, Okla., May 25: "My school work for the year has closed and I am again at home, ready for work in my Lord's vineyard. The work here moves along nicely. Our membership has reached around the hundred mark. That prince of preachers, A. M. Fester, recently closed a very successful meeting here. He had eighteen additions during the meeting, and every Lord's day since we have had from two to three under my feeble preaching."

From R. D. Smith, Denton, Texas: "It was announced sometime ago that the home preacher would do the preaching in the coming meeting. However, upon the suggestion and request of the home preacher, the congregation has secured the services of F. B. Shepherd, of Amarillo. We are very proud of having secured him, and are expecting a fine meeting with his assistance. It has been decided to begin the meeting on the first Sunday in June instead of the last Sunday in May."

Joe C. Martin writes from Palmer, Tenn., May 22, as follows: "We have just closed a good meeting with nine additions. Earl Mason did the preaching. He had just closed a meeting at Anderson, Tenn., before coming here, with nineteen additions, six restored, one from the sects. He is a good preacher, although he has been preaching only two years. In our meeting here John Turner gave to each of twenty-nine interested children a new song book by way of encouraging them.

From Tice Elkins, Fort Worth, Texas, May 23: "Yesterday was another fine day for the Southside Church. Brother Elam did not get to us to begin the meeting; but I began it, and baptized another convert. It has been a long time since there was a Sunday without a baptism, and on many of them there are more than one. In fact the Southside Church is enjoying the best season of prosperity it has had for years. Brother Elam will begin to-night and continue two weeks. We are working hard to have a good meeting."

Thomas H. Burton writes from Union, S. C., May 23: "Yesterday was a good day for the church in this place. We had three nice audiences. Last night the main auditorium was almost filled. We are very much encouraged as the meeting progresses, as the attendance is steadily increasing. Many are coming out who have never heard us before. Brother Phillips is doing some fine preaching, and Brother Nicks is doing his part of the singing well. Bretheren, pray for us. We hope to have visible results to report next week."

From W. P. Skaggs, Itasca, Texas, May 23: "The work in Itasca is growing nicely. Two were added to the number on the third Lord's day, and two more yesterday. Our attendance is always much larger than our enrollment, and the interest seems to grow nicely. I will visit the church in Waxahachie next Sunday. Beginning the first of July, I expect to devote three months to evangelistic work. I rejoice in the reports of excellent meetings being held in the various places, and pray God to bless the work and the workers everywhere."

Thomas E. Milholland writes from Tioga, Texas, May 21: "I know of no church in Texas that has made a greater sacrifice to build up the cause of the Master than the little band at Tioga, led by the faithful, impetuous, untiring worker, Willis Kreager, assisted by Brethren Cox, Young, Prater, and others. I helped them last year under a tent; this year in the splendid new house, made possible by their great sacrifices, with the help of several others, for which we are thankful. We are now in a fine meeting, V. O. Teddlie leading the songs. May the Lord bless the work everywhere."

J. C. Mosley writes from Rossville, Ga., May 18: "I have been preaching from one to two times at several places, from Crossville, Tenn., to Rossville. I will preach to-morrow night at College Station, thence to Old Cumberland, thence to Bethlehem. I was successful in getting several good men to quit using tobacco on my trip through Arkansas and Illinois. We should all work more this year for the Master than we did last, give more, read more, study more, teach more, pray more. Wake up! Time is short, souls are perishing, Christ is coming! Are you ready?"

Elsewhere in this issue will be seen a notice of the Testament that we are giving for two new subscribers and one renewal to the Gospel Advocate, accompanied by $7.50. We have in stock only a limited number of these Testaments. This Testament is the very best made for home use. Has very large type and is convenient for all. It is handsomely bound, and will be appreciated by all who get it. We are making an exceedingly liberal offer on this, which is good only to June 15 or until our present supply is exhausted. We would be glad to have you send us the subscribers at once with your renewal, if you want to get a copy of this book, which embraces the Psalms.

From J. M. Dennis, Franklin, Ky., May 27: "Our two meetings at Indianapolis, Ind., which began on the first Lord's day in May and closed on Tuesday evening after the third Lord's day, resulted in four baptisms—two middle aged men, both heads of families, and an old man and his wife. Let us pray for all who start out to live the Christian life, that they may let their light so shine that others may be constrained to glorify our Father who is in heaven. The first meeting was on Raymond Street, in the southeastern part of the city; the other on Blaine Avenue, in West Indianapolis. The good people of Indianapolis treated me with great kindness in their homes, and failed not to remember me in a substantial way when I was ready to leave them. I will return at some future time."

James E. Scobey, of this city, says: "On the fourth Sunday in May I filled my annual appointment at the Seminary Church, near Smyrna, Tenn. For eight years past I have preached in May and September for them. It is a good congregation of most worthy disciples. It is significant of good training to find the young brethren able to lead in the service. I hope they may continue to grow in grace and in the knowledge of our Lord and Sayior Jesus Christ; that they may grow to the stature of men and women in Christ Jesus and become strong in the Lord, in his power and might. My appointment for the fifth Sunday is Columbia, Tenn. On the first Sunday in June I go to Hopkinsville, Ky. In my preaching I am trying to strengthen the faith of the disciples; to put no trust in any religious teaching, saye what God teaches, both in work and worship."

From Earnest C. Love, Fresno, Cal., May 16: "The tent meeting, conducted by the Fresno Street church of Christ continues with a reasonable amount of interest and good attendance. Two good services were held yesterday. The morning service was at the A. O. U. W. Hall, where there is a noticeable increase in the attendance each Lord's day; the evening service was at the tent, where our meeting will continue as long as the interest demands. The Fresno Home and School continues with much interest. We have enjoyable chapel services each day in the shade of the trees. We are preparing a nice program for the close of school, June 10, and we hope all our friends who can possibly come will visit us at this time. Our crop is suffering for want of moisture, but we are glad to state that we are having a well put down, and will be able to irrigate soon, we hope."

C. D. Crouch writes from Port Arthur, Texas, May 28: "We closed a good meeting here last Tuesday night without any additions. T. H. Etheridge, of Marshall, Texas, did the preaching. He preached some splendid discourses, and the church was well pleased with his work. Some of the oldest members here say we had the best interest the congregation has ever had in a meeting here. However, I was disappointed in the attendance. We labored hard to create an interest, and succeeded in a measure, yet the interest was not as good as I had hoped for. I could possibly arrange to hold one or two meetings in the summer. If any congregation needs my services in such capacity, I may be addressed at Port Arthur, P. O. Box 645. My present plans call for a two-weeks' stay in Tennessee in the summer, and I should like to arrange for a meeting over that way, or between here and there."

Work to Restore Normal Conditions.

BY J. C. M'O.

That the people are restless, discontented, and reckless will not be denied. The unrest and dissatisfaction of Europe and of America is greater now than ever before. In the last few years all classes of people have made and spent more money than in any other period of the world in the same length of time. This of itself should show us that money alone will not bring peace and satisfaction to the human family. Money brings with it a responsibility. Every man who has been blessed by Jehovah and who has accumulated considerable of this world's goods is under deep and lasting obligations to use his means for the betterment and uplifting of the human family. It is not always easy to know just how this may be done.

With our country disturbed as never before, all thoughtful and right-thinking people would rejoice to see the country put en a safe and sane basis. The victory of peace is more difficult than the victory of war. So long as values are out of joint we can hardly hope for a condition of peace and safety to prevail. Just what is the panacea for our ills is hard to point out, but we may be assured of one thingthat the world cannot come back to a normal condition so long as people are spending so much time in idleness and refusing to work. Vice President Coolidge said in an address sometime ago that the one thing needful for the American people is to go to work. The Vice President spoke a potent truth, and one that the people would do well to heed.

Such teaching is in harmony with the word of God. When man had sinned and fallen, God did not tell him to spend the remainder of his days in idleness or in as little work as he could do, but said to him: "In the sweat of thy face shalt thou eat bread, till thou return unto the ground; for out of it wast thou taken: for dust thou art, and unto dust shalt thou return." (Gen. 3: 19.) God never cursed labor, but he cursed the ground so that it brought forth thorns and thistles. God did not say "in idleness," but he said "in toil shalt thou eat of it all the days of thy life." Whenever we reverse God's order, we bring untold misery and suffering upon ourselves. In the bowels of the earth are hidden great treasures, but we must rip and tear up the earth in order to enjoy them. We must sow the seed and cultivate the soil in order to reap the abundant harvest and treasures that the earth has in store for us. No man should be content to live in idleness and permit another to enjoy the exhilaration, freshness, and joy that come to one from work. In idleness one suffers the loss of his appetite, often loses his health, and is unable to sleep. He doesn't really enjoy rest. He knows nothing of the satisfaction that rest is to one who is really weary after the labor of the day. He grows to be a dyspeptic, fails to assimilate his food, and thereby becomes cross and sour. He is willing to spend all that he has in order to regain his health. If he had worked as God intended, if he had devoted his time to active labor as God directs a man to do, he would have been useful and happy. Instead of being a leech upon society, he would have been helpful and a benefit to all around him. Throughout our beautiful land there are thou sands of acres of fertile soil which are not cultivated, and hence are not producing the crops that they would if properly worked. The wheat in the field must be harvested. garnered, ground, and made into dough, cooked, and put on the table and eaten before it will satisfy our hunger. The country is abounding in springs giving out water almost as clear as crystal to quench our thirst; but we must go after it and drink it, otherwise it is worthless to us. Just so the great blessings the Father has in store for us in this life. If we expect to enjoy the best that the land affords, if we expect to be happy and useful as God has intended that we should be, we must devote our time to his active service. We must work as he has intended that we should. Every Christian should not only be active himself, but he should encourage others to work, and should do his very best in order that he may please God and be helpful to his neighbors.

Jesus Christ gave up the glories of heaven and came to this world, was born in a manger, led a life of poverty, and devoted his life to work, in order that we might live. He says of himself: "My Father worketh even until new, and I work." (John 5: 17.) Jesus has given us an example that we should walk in his steps. If the blessed Lamb of God found it necessary to redeem the world to keep busy, to be about his Father's business, to come down from heaven to do his will, is it not doubly essential that we also devote all the time possible to work in order to honor and glorify God? Christ says: "We must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work." Glory, honor, and peace come to every man that worketh good. He is a careless observer who has not noted that, with the people doing less work and receiving more money than ever before, they are discontented and dissatisfied. This world cannot give the blessings for which we sigh. Paul, the great apostle, worked with his own hands. We should be willing, like Paul, to work with our hands, to use our brains, and to give our entire manhood to work and to the service of God. God has demanded work in all ages of the world. Paul, in writing to the church at Thessalonica, says: "And that ye study to be quiet, and work with your hands, even as we charged you." (1 Thess. 4: 11.) We learn that Paul vigorously devoted himself to work in order that he might not be a burden to the Thessalonians. He says: "Neither did we eat bread for naught at any man's hand, but in labor and travail, working night and day, that we might not burden any of you," (2 Thess. 3: 8.) Paul, knowing that those who spend their time in idleness would in all probability be a nuisance, would be busybodies, and would get in the way of those who really desired to work, wrote unto the Thessalonians: "For even when we were with you, this we commanded you, If any will not work, neither let him eat. For we hear of some that walk among you disorderly, that work not at all, but are busybodies. Now them that are such we command and exhort in the Lord Jesus Christ, that with quietness they work, and eat their own bread." (2 Thess. 3: 10-12.)

I wish to exhort every Christian in the land to work vigorously; and not only to work, but to encourage every other man to do likewise. An idle man tempts the devil. Idleness is not confined to any class to the exclusion of other classes. Our people are working less to-day than ever before and demanding more for what they do. If we would bring about normal conditions, if we would destroy Bolshevism, we must work, and work as God directs us to work. If we will do this in the fear of God, we cannot fail. God will take care of his own, will bless us in every good work, and lead us until he brings us to that perfect rest and peace which he has in store for his people. What I say to one I say to all: Work, and work in a way that will be pleasing to Jehovah.

"How Hardly Shall They That Have Riches Enter Into the Kingdom of God!"

BY E. A. E.

Continuing our study of the great refusal of the rich young ruler, we should be profoundly impressed with the fact that Jesus himself applies the lesson. Let us read the following application:

And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God! And the disciples were amazed at his words. But Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God! It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into And they were astonished exceedthe kingdom of God. ingly, saying unto him, Then who can be saved? Jesus looking upon them saith, With men it is impossible, but not with God: for all things are possible with God. Peter began to say unto him, Lo, we have left all, and have followed thee. Jesus said, Verily I say unto you, There is no man that hath left house, or brethren, or sisters, or mother, or father, or children, or lands, for my sake, and for the gospel's sake, but he shall receive a hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren, and sisters, and mothers, children, and lands, with persecutions; and in the world to come eternal life. But many that are first shall be last; and the last first. (Mark 10: 23-31.)

This is better writing than any one on earth can do. Why not read it and heed it?

I may be a wayfaring man, yea, a fool, and I may be lost for not obeying God, but I cannot be lost because the gospel is not sufficiently plain for me to understand and to obey. Many will be lost because they hear and do not.

When the rich young ruler's countenance fell at the teaching of Jesus and he turned away in rejection of eternal life, because he had great possessions, "Jesus looked round about" upon his disciples to observe what effect this had upon them, and, also, to gain their attention for the statement he was about to make. "How hardly," or with what difficulty, "shall they that have riches enter into the kingdem of God!" It is so difficult because riches get such a hold upon men and require so much attention and so much time that they do not seek first God's kingdom and his righteousness. Their heart is absorbed in looking after their possessions.

But they that are minded to be rich fall into a temptation and a snare and many foolish and hurtful lusts, such as drown men in destruction and perdition. For the love of money is a root of all kinds of evil: which some reaching after have been led astray from the faith, and have pierced themselves through with many sorrows. (1 Tim, 6: 9, 10.)

These temptations, snares, and lusts are numerous and various. Those who set their hearts on growing rich, whether they ever accomplish their purpose or not, become deceived and ensnared, yield to temptations to make money in violation of the principles of Christianity, and fall into "many foolish and hurtful lusts," most especially when they succeed in making a little money. Church members who desire to become rich sometimes from business and social relationships which are incompatible with Christianity, but which they will not break for Christ's sake—that is, for the sake of being saved.

The consequences of the love of money and the woes which God pronounces against it are as fearful as the consequences of strong drink and the woes pronounced against it. There can be nothing worse than "many foolish and hurtful lusts," no greater sin than to be "led astray from the faith," no consequences more fearful than to "have pierced themselves through with many sorrows," and no punishment more terrible than to be drowned "in destruction and perdition." God has allowed us to hear a lamentable cry, a bitter wail, from one who loved money-"that he may dip the tip of his finger in water, and cool my tongue; for I am in anguish in this flame!" Since "the wrath to come" should move people to turn from sin, or since the woes of the drunkard should steel all hearts against indulgence in strong drink, the fearful condemnation of those who love money should deter all from doing anything contrary to the will of God for the sake of it. Honesty, integrity, right, character, truth, and the salvation of the soul are worth more than worlds of money!

His disciples were amazed at these declarations of Jesus. He then explained. Addressing them kindly and tenderly, he said: "Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God!" To "trust in riches" is to depend upon them for one's greatest good: to look to them for position, honor, and happiness. One can make no greater and more miserable mistake. And one may commit this sin without ever accumulating a dime.

Charge them that are rich in this present world, that they be not high-minded, nor have their hope set on the uncertainty of riches, but on God, who giveth us richly all things to enjoy; that they do good, that they be rich in good works, that they be ready to distribute, willing to communicate; laying up in store for themselves a good foundation against the time to come, that they may lay hold on the life which is life indeed. (1 Tim, 6: 17-19.)

Riches are uncertain, and one's hope for happiness and the greatest good cannot be set upon them.

Making the truth that it is impossible for those who trust in riches to be saved still stronger, Jesus said to his disciples: "It is easier for a camel to go through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God." It is simply impossible. It is understood now that the small gate of the city was not called the "needle's eye" in the days of Jesus; hence, he did not mean that. I heard that explanation when I was a boy. The camel was one of the largest animals known to the Jews, and the "needle's eye" was the eye of a sewing needle, not a small gate of a city; hence this was a very forcible way of stating an impossibility.

This still more astonished the disciples—they were "astonished exceedingly," and asked: "Who then can be saved?" Did they think, as some seem to think now, that the rich are more favored of God and could be saved on easier terms than the poor? If any think that now, they should read James 2: 1-12, especially verse 5: "Hearken, my beloved brethren; did not God choose them that are poor as to the world to be rich in faith?" And concerning all who have gotten rich by fraud, James 5: 1-6 should be studied. But the apostles understood this to apply, not only to those who had gained riches by oppression and fraud, but to all who sought riches, and, by Peter's declaration in Mark 10: 28 and his question in Matt. 19: 27-30, to themselves also, for some of them owned a little property. However, they had shown the great difference between the rich young ruler and themselves in that they had forsaken all for Jesus. They were demonstrating their faith in Jesus to teach and to guide them into eternal life by what they were doing. They were taking the teaching of Jesus home to themselves. Let us do the same.

WHY IMPOSSIBLE WITH MEN, BUT NOT WITH GOD?

To men influenced by the world this teaching seems unwise and the salvation of those who trust in riches as impossible as for a camel to go through a "needle's eye." Worldly motives and principles cannot induce people to cease to trust in riches. This is impossible. Influences cannot lift men higher than their source. We should keenly and deeply realize this in all things. "The way of man is not in himself; it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps." (Jer. 10: 23.) The wisdom of the world and the way of the world and the influence of the world is to love money and to lay up treasures on earth. Then, something more and something higher and something stronger than the wisdom and the influences of the world is necessary to lift people above the love of the world and the power of money. The inducements of the world cannot do this high and wonderful thing. "With men it is impossible:" "with God" it is not impossible. By the motives and incentives which he places before men in the gospel and his grace and love he induces thousands to trust, not in riches, but in himself-in his wisdom and goodness and power-for the greatest good and happiness both here and hereafter. By his goodness in leading men to repentance, constraining men by the love of Christ, God makes it possible for them to renounce Satan and sin and to set their affections on things above. (Col. 3: 1, 2.) Hence, "all things are possible with God." Let us praise God for these high and holy inducements and motives and purposes.

How Must Riches be Used in Order that Their Possessors May Inherit Eternal Life?

Some rich men in Paul's time were Christians. Some are now. They must "be not high-minded;" they must not "have their hope set on the uncertainty of riches;" they must set their hope "on God," and remember that he "giveth us all things richly to enjoy;" they must "do good;" they must "be rich in good works;" they must "be ready to distribute" their riches among the needy; and they must be "willing to communicate" "to the necessity of the saints," In thus obeying God, they will lay up "for themselves a good foundation against the time to come" and lay hold on eternal life. (See quotation, 1 Tim. 6: 17-19, above.) The rich young ruler refused to do this. Many now refuse to do it. All must do so much of this, too, as to be "rich in good works." Treasures must be laid up in heaven by all, as they have ability, until they are rich in heavenly possessions-"rich toward God." This is the way to be saved. Do we really desire and pray and work to be saved?

WHAT SHALL THEY HAVE WHO HAVE LEFT ALL?

Peter, with the rest of the apostles, feeling the force of Jesus' teaching, "began to say unto him, "Lo, we have left all, and have followed thee." Matthew (19: 21) adds: "What then shall we have?" Luke (18: 28) says: "We have left our own." This was literally true; the apostles had left their homes and all business interests and had devoted all their time and powers to the work Jesus had for them. (See Matt. 4: 20-22.)

In answer to Peter's question, Jesus encouraged the aposties and all his disciples for all time by declaring what every man who leaves "houses, or brethren, or sisters, or father, or mother, or children, or lands." for his sake and "for the gospel's sake," shall receive. Leaving these must be for Christ's sake and "the gospel's sake" before one can enjoy the promises. Such "receive a hundredfold now in this time, houses, and brethren; and sisters, and mothers, and children, and lands, with persecutions." They do not receive a hundred deeds to a hundred homes or a hundred farms, and they cannot have a hundred fathers, mothers, brothers, and sisters in the flesh; but a hundred homes with all their comforts are open to them, and a hundred people are ready to do the part of father and mother, brother and sister. This was true in the days of the apostles, it is true now, and it will always be true. But with all these blessings there will be persecution. Jesus does not want his disciples to think they will have no trials and persecutions. "Yea, all that would live godly in Christ Jesus shall suffer persecution." (2 Tim. 3: 12.) There is no escape from persecution if one lives godly. Try it, gentle reader, and you will see. Do not shirk from declaring the whole counsel of God and from practicing the whole truth; do not shirk; do not trim; do not hide behind the camouflage of "expediency" and "prudence" when you should speak out.

All the above blessings will be enjoyed in this life, "with persecutions," "and in the end eternal life." Eternal life was the question under consideration. As Jesus had taught the rich young ruler the only way to obtain it, he now teaches all, and encourages all to pursue that course. The blessings are sure. "Godliness is profitable for all things, having promise of the life which now is, and of that which is to come." (1 Tim. 4: 8.)

THE FIRST LAST AND THE LAST FIRST.

In the kingdom of God matters are frequently reversed. "Many that are first shall be last; and the last first." The rich on earth become poor and miserable hereafter, and the poor become inexpressibly rich; the self-exalted are abased, and the humble and lowly are exalted; those whose opportunities for becoming Christians are most favorable despise these privileges, while those whose opportunities are bad learn the truth and accept Christ. Not many of the world's noble, wise, rich, or great ever become Christians. (See 1 Cor. 1: 26-29.)

Has the Day for Religious Discussion Passed? BY F. W. SMITH.

Now and then one is heard to say in substance, "I do not like discussion in our papers;" while others are heard to say, "Cut out all discussion." With such a position I have neither patience nor respect, for the simple reason that such people are the enemies of the truth and the church which Jesus Christ died to establish, whether they intend to be or not. Through ignorance the apostle Paul was at one time the enemy of the church and persecuted it to the death. (1 Tim. 1: 13.) Cease religious discussion, or, as we are commanded, a contention for the faith (Jude 3), and very soon the world would become a howling wilderness of religious errors. As it is, the church in its purity is a very small affair in comparison with the institutions of men, and the uncorrupted gospel is heard from precious few pulpits throughout the land. The church of the living God was born in the midst of controversy, and had to fight its way through a storm of discussion during the whole apostolic period, and when none like Paul was left to defend it. the church apostatized, culminating in the Roman Catholic hierarchy. Had not a Luther arisen, there would have been no Protestantism; and had not a Campbell arisen, there would have been no return to New Testament teaching in all its purity. Do away with religious discussion! Those who claim to be members of the church and talk that way slap the Bible in the face, criticize the Lord Jesus Christ, and repudiate the spirit and teaching of the apostles.

Those who are clamoring for religious discussion to be shut out of the Gospel Advocate offer an insult to the memory of David Lipscomb, who was in a discussion, contending for the truth, nearly all of his life. Had David Lipscomb not continually fought for the truth against the inventions of men, there would not have been a New Testament church in all this country to-day. The mission of the Advocate under his control was to defend the faith against every form of false teaching and practice, and the very day it departs from its original design it will cease to live for the purpose he intended it. The writer made David Lipscomb the solemn promise that he would stand by and help to maintain the policies of the Gospel Advocate as upheld by its original editors, Lipscomb and Sewell. This I intend to do to the extent of my ability without the fear or favor of any man or woman on this earth. If David Lipscomb were living and able to write, no one that knew him would doubt for one moment the course his mighty pen would pursue. Sectarianism is the same to-day that it has ever been, and the necessity for opposing it is as great now as ever. False teaching creeps into the church to-day as it did even in apostolic times, and needs to be opposed and rooted out. Of course, there is no one on the Advocate who can contend for the truth like David Lipscomb did; and if any one connected with the Advocate is silly enough (but I know of none) to imagine that David Lipscomb's mantle has fallen on him, he is to be pitied. But in their feeble way they can do the best they can in maintaining the policies the paper was founded to propagate. As for myself, if the management should ever see proper to "cut out all discussion," then I shall wash my hands of it and seek some channel through which to contend for the faith against false teaching both in and out of the church. To have a paper composed of "milk and cider" may suit the fancy and taste of some people, but I have no appetite for such insipid diet. The element contending for a discussionless paper will soon be, if not already, contending for a discussionless pulpit. Then, to be consistent, they must insist upon a discussionless Bible; and where will they get it? Surely the one we have will no longer suit their taste, and I suppose they will have one made to order. Take all the controversy out of the Bible, and you would considerably diminish its contents. If any one desires to have our discussions conducted in the right spirit, free from bitterness and harsh words, I say amen and amen.

Out of the East.

Out of the East the Wise Men came, Over the road that lay Between the night of the world's old wrongs And the dawn of God's new day.

Out of the East they slowly came, Treading an unknown road— Out of the dark that oppressed their hearts Like the weight of a heavy load.

Out of the East, as they journeyed on, Who knows what trials were theirs? Kings of the dawn, they fought for light To leave to their royal heirs.

Out of the East those ancient men, Seeking the end of night, Followed the truth and love that led To the birth of the world's true Light,

Heirs of their light and their wisdom all
Who go on their star-led quest
Over the sacred way that leads To the King of East and West. —J. H. Yates.

Offitimes the hindrances that lie in the path of duty may be compared to the tollgates upon our turnpike roads: they keep shut till we are just upon them and then fly open, as it were, of themselves, and that is time enough. The Mothers of Men.

The bravest battle that ever was fought!
Shall I tell you where, and when?
On the maps of the world you will find it not—
'Twas fought by the mothers of men.

Nay, not with the cannon or battle shot, With a sword or nobler pen; Nay, not with eloquent words or thought From mouths of wonderful men!

But deep in the walled-up woman's heart—
Of a woman that would not yield;
But bravely, silently, bore her part—
Lo, there is the battle field!

No marshaling troop, no bivouac song, No banner to gleam and wave; But—0!—these battles they last so long— From babyhood to the grave.

Yet faithful still as a bridge of stars, She fights in her walled-up town— Fights on and on in the endless wars, Then silent, unseen, goes down.

O, ye with banners and battle shot,
And soldiers to shout and praise,
! tell you the kingliest victories fought
Were fought in the silent ways.

O, spotless woman in a world of shame,
With splendid and silent scorn,
Go back to God as white as you came,
The kingliest warrior born.

Polly's Day of "Fun."

Polly Ann Smith was plainly in a bad temper. Her forehead was puckered into ugly frowns, and her eyes looked out from beneath with a cold, unloving gleam. To begin with, Polly did not like her name, and as to-day was the first day of school, she had just been obliged to tell it to the new teacher. Moreover, Annabel Moore sat right across the aisle, and the teacher had called Annabel "dear." Polly thought "Annabel" the prettiest name in all the world and "Polly" the homeliest.

When recess came, Polly marched off by herself into a corner; from there she sulkily watched her friends playing tag. Pretty soon a pair of flying little feet dashed by her and a smart tap tingled on her arm.

"Tag! You're it!" exclaimed Annabel Moore, breathlessly.

"I ain't, neither—I ain't playing!" said Polly, sourly.

Annabel laughed good-naturedly.

"O, come, Polly," she coaxed. "Don't be so grumpy. Come—be good and play."

"I don't want to be good! Good folks are stupid!" declared Polly, crossly.

"Why, Polly Smith, what an idea!" exclaimed Annabel in a shocked voice

"Well, what is being good?" demanded Polly, quickly.

The sudden question surprised Annabel not a little, but she began her answer bravely enough, though she faltered after the first two words.

"Why, it's—it's—being good, of course; doing things for folks to make 'em happy. You—you won't be happy yourself, either, if you aren't good!" she added with sudden dignity, trying to speak like mamma.

Polly shrugged her shoulders and turned away. A few minutes later, recess being over, Polly sat in her seat, list-lessly turning the leaves of her reader. Suddenly she started, and looked fixedly at a few words near the top of one of the pages. "The easiest way to be happy one's self is to make some one else happy," she read, and shut the book with a bang, causing the teacher to look down sharply at her.

Hard as she tried, Polly could not drive this new idea from her thoughts, and it made her restless all the afternoon. By night she had suddenly decided to "try it and see what 'twas good for, anyhow!" She made up her mind that she would begin the next morning and see if she could find any one to make happy.

The next day she jumped out of bed and ran happily to the window, but a frown quickly appeared on her forehead—it was raining, and Polly particularly disliked rain. Her face was the picture of woe when she sat down to the breakfast table. She had forgotten all about what she was going to try to do that day until she saw her grandmother hunting everywhere for her glasses.

"O dear," thought Polly, impatiently, "I wonder if that is the kind of things that makes folks happy! Have I got to hunt up those tiresome glasses?"

But in another moment she was searching in what she knew were the favorite hiding places of those frequently lost glasses, and it was not long before she found them and carried them with sheepish smile to her grandmother.

"Why, thank you-er-dear," murmured the old lady in some surprise.

Polly turned quickly and ran out of the room. There was a queer little feeling in her throat; she wondered what it was. Then she put on her hat and coat, and catching up her books and her lunch basket, opened her umbrella, and started for school.

Just ahead of her she spied the familiar red hair belonging to Nellie Jones, and involuntarily her steps shortened. Polly did not like Nellie Jones; in fact, none of the girls did, and the poor child was left forlorn on all occasions.

"Dear me!" said Polly to herself with a despairing sigh.
"I s'pose 'twould make her happy, now, if I let her walk to school with me. Well, then, I expect I'll have to do it; but I don't see as there is anything so very happyfying to me in this sort of doings!" And she hastened her steps until she reached Nellie's side.

"Do you want to walk under my umbrella?" asked Polly a trifle ungraciously.

The supreme delight that showed at once on Nellie's plain little face sent that same queer feeling again to Polly's throat. By the time the schoolhouse was reached the two girls were chatting quite happily together; Nellie was telling Polly of a brand-new place to find blackberries.

The morning passed quietly. Polly began to take a strange interest in looking for chances to loan her pet pencils and the big, soft sponge that the other girls so admired. She was wonderfully gracious with her smiles all the morning, too.

By afternoon Polly had forgotten all about her "game," as she called it; for her studies and recitations kept her very busy.

When school was dismissed, she joined a little group of girls outside the schoolhouse and helped to make joyous plans for the picnic that was to come off Saturday afternoon. As she turned to go home a little later, she found the new teacher at her side.

"Well, my dear, you seem to be wearing a very smiling face. I think you must be happy over something,"

Polly skipped joyously. She was thinking of the picnic.

"I am—and I've had lots of fun to-day, too!" she exclaimed. Then she suddenly remembered, and stopped short, looking up into the teacher's face in astonishment. "Why, Miss Adams—it did work, didn't it?"

"What 'worked,' my dear? I haven't the least idea what you mean," replied Miss Adams, in mild surprise.

Polly laughed, and colored a rosy red,

"O, nothing much; but—I—I guess I'll try it again, sometime!"—Congregationalist.

CURRENT THOUGHT

Buddhists to Oppose Salvation Army in Japan.

A Buddhist "Salvation Army" has been organized in Japan to oppose the Christian Salvation Army. Already several clashes have occurred. The leaders of the Christian Salvation Army declare that they have the better class of people on their side and have no fear of being destroyed by the new organization. It seems, however, that the more radical class of Japanese is giving support to the new organization. This means, of course, as is always true of radicals, unfair and extreme measures and tactics. Such competition is hard to meet, but in the end may, and we hope will, contribute to the strengthening of the "Christian" Salvation Army and the enlargement of its influence for good.—Christian Advocate.

It appears that Buddhists and Mohammedans are making a determined effort to convert Christians to their respective faiths. Christians should not allow these religionists to be more active in spreading error than they are in advancing the kingdom of Jesus Christ. The value of a soul is so great, the truth is so helpful to all alike, that it does seem that Christians would be ready to make great sacrifices in order to sow the seed of the kingdom. We cannot sit down with folded hands and expect at last to hear God's approval, "Well done." If we expect to enter at last through the pearly gates into the city of our God, we must toil and labor and make great sacrifices in order to be crowned victors.

Church Councils Join in Appeal for Disarmament.

A nation-wide appeal for an international conference on the reduction of armament has been made by four of the largest religious organizations in the country—the Federal Council of the Churches of Christ in America, the National Catholic Welfare Council, the Central Conference of American Rabbis, and the United Synagogues of America. significant that these religious organizations should join as one in making this request. A press report says this means that "more than one hundred thousand clergymen of all these sects have been asked to make an appeal from their pulpits on June 5 for such a conference. The request also asks that the members of the congregations prepare and send resolutions to their Congressmen and Senators urging the "imperative necessity of reduction in armament." This united request resulted from an appeal made by Gen. Tasker H. Bliss, formerly chief of staff of the United States Army, in which he said: "The responsibility for another war rests entirely upon the professing Christians in the ted States." The sentiment for reduction in armament undoubtedly nation-wide—yes, world-wide.—Christian United States." Advocate

In the times of peace Christians should be exceedingly active in discouraging war. Far more can be accomplished now than can be accomplished when nations are warring one with the other. As it is futile to argue with a drunken man, so nothing will be accomplished by arguing with a man against war after his passions are inflamed and he is already engaged in fighting others. Now is the time for Christians to encourage the disarmament of all nations. It will be difficult to get one nation to disarm until others enter into such an arrangement. Christ teaches his children not to fight. If a man is not armed and does not have a pistol in his pocket, he is not so apt to have a quarrel with his neighbor or to engage in a fight with him. To disarm is to discourage war. Every Christian in the land should speak out against war now. It is the duty of the church of Christ to show that the New Testament condemns war and that it encourages Christians to be peaceable. Christ has taught us that if his kingdom were of this world his subjects would fight for him. When Peter cut off the ear of the servant of the high priest, Jesus told him to put up his sword. Fighting does not settle the right or wrong of any question. While it is undoubtedly true that more can be accomplished by writing against war now than can be accomplished after people are engaged in war, yet it by no means follows that in time of war we should write in a way that encourages it.

Each in His Own Place.

Franklin Pierce's critics said of him: "He was a great Governor of New Hampshire; but when he became President of the United States, he was like a small piece of butter spread over a large slice of bread." We were not observing things back in Pierce's day, but we have read its history, and it is our opinion that President Pierce was a man of dimensions.

Be this as it may, the fact remains that the criticism upon Mr. Pierce applies quite extensively in our day, and especially in church life.

Within the past year we sat in a men's Bible class and wondered why the good man who taught it had been "put front." He certainly was not "apt to teach." During the hesitating lecture, if lecture it could be called, the men were restless, and the gentleman who sat next to us was especially restless. Once he turned to us and in a whisper groaned: "O, why don't they give us a man that can teach the lesson?" The teacher was a good man, and could, doubtless, have been useful in some other capacity; but before a class he was an absolute failure.

We once knew an ideal deacon who was made an elder-against his own will. Some months afterwards a member of the church—an outspoken fellow—said: "They took the cream of the deacons and made a skim-milk elder of him." Not very elegant and not courteous, but the criticism hit center.

Not only in the congregation, but in the ministry also, men sometimes get out of their logical places. And a minister in a place he does not fit is the most pathetic of all misfits.

There are two major temptations that constantly confront the ministry. The minister is frequently tempted to discuss political and other issues with which he is only partially acquainted, and to thus undertake the regulation of things in general; and when he fails in his attempt, as he usually does, he and his brethren are embarrassed. Again, some ministers—not all, or even the majority—are tempted to discuss from the pulpit the deep questions with which the scholarship of the world wrestles. A minister may "get across" with a sermon or two, or perhaps half a dozen, on the "deep themes," and these sermons may start the report going that he is a widely-read man and a wenderful thinker; but unless he is one of the few—the very few—exceptions, he cannot maintain his reputation as a scholar.

Plodding, continuous, accurate investigation of scientific and allied questions does not go hand in hand with the ministry. The minister's training, to begin with, is not that of a scientist or a philosopher; and, again, his busy calling precludes the possibility of scholarly investigations upon his part. Every minister should, of course, keep in touch with the thought of the world as much as possible, and his reading and observation should be drawn upon, when practicable, to drive home to the hearts of his audience the great life lessons he is teaching. However, the minister is not an authority upon the questions that vex the scientists and philosophers, nor do the people expect him to be.

The great servant of God, whether he be minister, elder, deacon, teacher, or just a plain member of the congregation, is the man who finds his place and is content to fill it.

The foregoing article states an important truth. The one thing essential for every preacher to know is the word of God. Being able to speak the English language correctly and having a good knowledge of and great love for the truth, any preacher will be able to accomplish great good in his field of labor. While Paul was a talented, educated man, he gloried only in the cross of the Lord Jesus Christ. Read what he says when he went to Corinth: "And I, brethren, when I came unto you, came not with excellency of speech or of wisdom, proclaiming to you the testimony of God. For I determined not to know anything among you, save Jesus Christ, and him crucified. And I was with you in weakness, and in fear, and in much trembling. And my speech and my preaching were not in persuasive words of wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." (1 Cor. 2: 1-5.) A greater knowledge of the truth and more loyalty for it would be helpful in bringing about more spirituality among the churches.

MISCELLANY

W. H. Owen, of Henderson, Tenn., paid our office a pleasant visit last week. While here he renewed his subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

W. S. Long, Washington, D. C., writes: "We are glad to have brethren throughout the country write and give us the names of relatives and friends who are here, or of some one who may be coming to Washington. Do not forget to do this, for it may be the means of saving some precious soul. One young lady of Kansas City, Mo., sent me a name recently. If you think it better to write direct to the friends, do so at once. Tell them the church is located at Fourteenth and Meridian Place, N. W. (3400 Block, Fourteenth Street), and to take car marked Fourteenth and Colorado, or Fourteenth and Decatur, and get off at Newton Street, in front of the door. It is our desire to lift the debt on the church property here, so that we may turn our attention wholly to mission work needed so much all around us So we are asking each church who can to give us one Lord's-day's contribution in June. Please do this, and send to E. L. Mills, 2121 F Street, N. W., or W. S. Long, 1319 Harvard Street, N. W., Washington, D. C."

The Favorite, Grenada, Miss., has this to say of one of our latest bcoks: "We have received a copy of 'Old Limber; or, The Tale of the Taylors,' by DeLong Rice, formerly lecture manager for Robert L. Taylor. In the Preface the publishers say of the book: 'Into one hour of reading the author has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wenderful political campaigns of Tennessee, the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of Alf and Bob Taylor.' In the Dedication Mr. Rice says: 'This strange tale of truth, drawn from the extraordinary and romantic careers of real characters, is dedicated to the Spirit of Sentiment, whose home is the human heart.' It is indeed a wonderful book and should have a place in every library. This article is not an advertisement, but is the honest expression of The Favorite's editor, who is a native of Tennessee and who was a personal admirer of the Taylors. 'Old Limber' is published by the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn., and will be sent to any address for the price of one dollar."

In a private business letter to Brother Grant, Brother Elam, writing from Fort Worth, Texas, last week, says: "It grieves me that in many places the rule is not to forbear, forgive, and 'endeavor to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace,' but to divide, to condemn, to try to make out a case against somebody, even if he is a good man, and publish it and condemn that somebody, or to uphold somebody else, or both. Eugene L. Pearson writes from New York City, May 23, as follows: "I reached New York on Sunday morning. We had two splendid services. Two young people gave their lives to Jesus last week and were baptized by William I do not think I ever found a more loyal, faith-Johnson: ful band of workers in my life than the brethren and sisters here in New York. They are so gracious to me that I can hardly realize I am north of the Mason and Dixon There is so much work to be done in this great city. Jesus tells us to make disciples of all the nations, and there are representatives here from every nation under Why have we so long neglected this great opportunity? We want to urge the brethren abroad to send us the name of any one whom you know that has moved to New York whom we might reach with the gospel. told that there are a number of business men who moved here some years ago, and who are now worshiping with the 'digressives' because our brethren had provided no place of worship. He said: 'Father, if you and all the preachers who had stopped voting, who stood with David Lipscomb, E. G. Sewell, J. A. Harding, Brother Douglass, Brother Miller, and many others, on the civil-government question, had only preached on the question once or twice in every protracted meeting you had ever held, drawing the line fully, from the garden of Eden up to the present time, between God's people and the world, between the plants God had planted and the plants that man and the devil had planted, showing, as the Bible so fully shows, that our Heavenly Father had planted only three plants-(1) the family, (2) the Hebrew or Israelitish people, and (3) the church or kingdom of heaven-and that every other plant, while at different times God overruled and made them of use to him, had a different planter and hence will be rooted up; if all had showed plainly that Christian citizenship was in the kingdom of Christ, and not in any of the fragments of Rome, then our boys would have been respected and protected by the government at Washington as conscientious objectors to fighting, and we would have been given noncombatant service, just as fully as the Quakers were, Their history for years, in the time the colonies were in Indian wars and up to the present, was well known; and the Bible teaching on warfare should be just as well known.' I replied: 'Willie, while it is true that I have never preached on this question more than once or twice, and then by special request, I have talked it in house-tohouse work in about all the fields of my labors, and I do not know how many copies of Lipscomb's book I have been the means of circulating.' I am rejoiced to be able to say that neither one of my boys who crossed the seas ever had to fire a gun at any man. Brethren, let us in meekness and love teach the Bible on these points just as much as We will have some conflicts with the on first principles. 'war digressives;' and this, by the way, was the first digressive movement that led to the Dark Ages. To true gressive movement that led to the Dark Ages. Christians, infidelity to the Bible is a deadly, digressive spirit to-day. Remember, before the kingdom of heaven, which has been in the world ever since the first day of Pentecost after the resurrection of Jesus from the tomb, can fill all the world, every other rule of faith or life must be removed. In view of this, let us put on the whole armor of God and fight the good fight of a perfect faith in God's word.

The Efficient Bible School.

BY MRS. B. W. BOYD.

The efficiency expert is the man of the day. We find him in office, store, and factory. He is becoming an important factor in religious work. In secular work he is always the man of largest salary.

We are living in an age when we are all rushed to death in being efficient, so much so that we sometimes forget to be kind. So, if we would keep pace with the times, we must make our Bible schools efficient.

In order to have an efficient school, we must first have a vision; "for where there is no vision, the people perish." Many a Bible school is losing ground for want of a vision. We must set our standard high, remembering that the Bible school is the teaching service of the church, to win souls to Christ and train them in Christian service.

Another great essential to efficiency in Bible-school work is loyalty, without which all others would be weakened. Loyalty to truth, loyalty to the task at hand, and loyalty to Godthese are fundamental principles of success in the great work of teaching the young and training their minds for eternity.

What shall we teach in our Bible schools to these eager, wondering Shall we teach them the great abstract truths that mature minds can scarcely comprehend? It has been said that a child learns nine times as much by what he works out with his hands as by what he hears. Only object lessons can be understood by the child. When Jesus wanted to teach his disciples about the Father's care, he pointed to the lilies blooming at his feet and said: "Consider the lilies of the field." He did not say, "Suppose we had a flower here;" but he pointed directly to these wonderful creations of the Heavenly Father and taught them an object lesson then and there.

Let us remember in Jesus' teaching the good side came first, and only after he had made that beautiful and real did he present the dangers of the forbidden path. The more good impulses our boys and girls put into action, the fewer bad impulses they will have. So our great task is to keep them busy with things that are appealing and worth while.

These things have a vital bearing on the efficient Bible school. What we say to children is not half so important as what we get them to work out intelligently, and the most carefully prepared lesson that has no work for them has missed its deepest impression. It might be handwork, drawing sketches, pasting pictures, or making maps or charts. These are the things that bring out the keenest response from our growing boys and girls. Not only do they possess an eager hand, but an active brain as well. How important, then, that we use this opportunity to fill their minds with beautiful thoughts and passages of scripture that shall abide with them through the changing years!

Again, the efficient school is the working school, with proper organization and equipment. When Nehemiah rebuilded the walls of Jerusalem, the record says, the walls went up because "the people had a mind to work." Perhaps no other department of the church can so well organize its members for service. Here every one should be given something definite to do. I believe heartily in organization and efficiency, but it must ever be kept secondary to the " power of the Spirit."

The portraits of Christians in the Bible are faithful likenesses. They show us saints just as they are.-Ryle.

Contentment, unalloyed happiness, and perfect peace is in the end the never-failing legacy of a strict obedience to the voice of conscience.

BY J. D. TANT.

I am now twelve hundred miles east of home, preaching the gospel to large and attentive crowds, both morning and night, in the mountains of North Carolina.

The first three years of my life as a gospel minister were spent altogether in mission work. My fourth year I was paid nine dollars and seventy-five cents for gospel preaching. The fifth year I was paid ninety-two dollars. I have walked to many appointments, and have had to swim as many as seven times to reach my appointments. I have held from one to four mission meetings each year since that time. Yet in all my life I have never found mission work so badly needed as here, nor a place where I thought it would do more good and be appreciated more than among these Brother Miles Foster, who has gone beyond the sixtieth milepost in life, is a grand man and a godly preacher. He is well spoken of by all, and is doing all he can to give these people the gospel. I hear that Brother W. L. Reeves is doing the same. Yet our records show eight preachers and less than twenty small congregations in all this State. It was greatly through Brother Foster's influence that I came here for three meetings; and whether or not these people will be able to pay me more than railroad fare, I am not yet able to say. I am glad, however, I came to see and learn their needs.

When I call to memory that we have more than a thousand loyal preachers in Tennessee, Texas, and Arkansas, with more than two thousand congregations who hear the gospel preached each Lord's day, and then hear the Son of God say, "Go," I can only hope and pray that something may come up to scatter the churches in Tennessee, Arkansas, and Texas, that they may go everywhere preaching the gospel, as they did from Jerusalem. I do not object to sending missionaries to Japan and China and to supporting them from two to four years before they can learn the language sufficiently to preach one intelligent sermon to those people. But these are Englishspeaking people in North Carolina; they are good, honest people, yet do not know any more about the gospel plan of salvation than the people in Japan. Will we not hear their cry? The sects are so ignorant here about the gospel and our people that they have not created the prejudice that is found farther west. People are willing and anxious to hear. We have more than one hundred preachers in Texas who are supported well to preach the gospel in the churches, instead of sounding it out, each Lord'sday. If these churches and preachers could only get a vision of the great work here and could persuade themselves to go back to Bible grounds and let the Holy Ghost appoint elders to feed the churches as God has taught them to do, and each church send its preacher into this country for one month, I am confident that from ten thousand to twenty thousand people could be baptized and one hundred churches started, and thereby set in motion a work of which in eternity alone could we see the end.

In this connection I might say these good people are starving for the gospel, and a man does not have to have a Bible-college education before he can teach it to them. I fear that today many of our churches and preachers have caught the "big-preacher" or "college-preacher" fever and are trying to gain the world for Christ through the wisdom of men.

I note from recent reports that Brother Mosley, of Tennessee, and Brother Still, of Arkansas, two young men whom the world looks upon as ignorant country boys, but who are earnest gospel preachers, since December have gone out into regions beyond and preached the gospel, and have baptized more than one hundred people and set to work four congregations.

Brethren, we need more scriptural elders to feed the church of God, more preachers to do mission work, and more Bible teaching along that line.

Remember, the gospel is God's only saving power, as taught by Paul. (Rom. 1: 16.) Why not become aroused to more gospel mission work, and why can we not get from twenty to fifty churches to send their preachers for meetings in this State this year and next? May God help us to think and act on these things.

I will be in this State in mission work for six weeks, and hope to tell you more of our needs later.

Berries From My Bush. No. 3.

BY F. J. BERRY,

THE SHADOW OF CHRISTIANITY.

The Jewish law set forth a system of Sabbaths or rests. These rests began with the seventh day, then the seventh year for seven Sabbath years, and then followed the great jubilee. (Lev. 25.) Christianity was foreshadowed in these Sabbath days and years. On the seventh day they rested from their daily routine of labor of the six days past, and rested with God. On the seventh year they not only rested from their labor, but rested from all obligations to their brethren. All debts were outlawed; all bond service expired.

As God had given every family in Israel an inheritance, it was so arranged that upon each jubilee year it would revert to the original heirs. This would, of course, occasion no little rejoicing and great consolation.

Though Joshua gave them the seventh-day rest, the seventh-year rest, and the fiftieth-year rest, these were but shadows of the real rest that Jesus gained for us through his blood when he suffered upon the cross and rested from his work. In this final rest we shall rest from all our labor, as God did from his. All our obligations ended, as is represented by the seventh-year Sabbath; all tasks will be completed, all cares and all trials past; all the associations of earth will have been closed, our time here expired; and as Israel, in making the journey from Egypt to Canaan, had to cross the Jordan, so we must cross over the river of death. Then we sympathize with David as he looked into the dark shadows of the coming night and said: "The Lord is my shepherd." As we journey to that rest, the Lord will lead us beside the still waters. Then it is that death becomes a rest from our pilgrimage here. Then we will sing, "In the sweet by and by." As God gave the human race the right to the tree of life, a home in the presence of God, an inheritance for every son and daughter, and as our forefathers lost the inheritance, we for the present have lost our right. Yet we look forward to the year of jubilee, when we, through Christ, shall receive what we lost through Adam. It seems we can know the anxiety of the Hebrew who was so unfortunate as to have sold his inheritance and cast his family out into the world as slaves, while they waited anxiously for the fiftieth year, when the old God-given homestead should be given to them again; so we are anxiously awaiting our inheritance which is waiting in heaven for us.

This great rest is shown by the writer of the Hebrew letter to be more than what Joshua gave them or what they enjoyed in David's time, and more than the Christians enjoyed at the time the Hebrew letter was written, since he urges them to faithfulness, lest they should "fail to enter into his rest." (Heb. 4.)

This shadow becomes the more clearly seen when we go back and study closely the history of that people that Moses led out of Egypt into the wilderness and God's dealing with them there. In Paul's letter to the Corinthian church we learn of their weaknesses: "But with many of them God was not well pleased: for they were overthrown in the wilderness." They murmured, lusted after evil things, tempted Christ, committed fornication, and as a result many thousands of them fell in one day. To them the word was preached, and it did not profit them, being not mixed with faith. Of these it is said that God swore, "They shall not enter into my rest." "Wherefore let him that thinketh he standeth take beed lest he fall."

"Know ye not that they which run in a race run all, but one receiveth the prize? So run that ye may obtain."

A Stranger in a Strange Land.

BY NELLIE STRAITON.

Mrs. Owens, the teacher of the kindergarten class in our Sunday school, has been working in a store down town. One day a Japanese boy of about fifteen or sixteen came in, pointed to what he wanted, laid down his money, and, when he had received his package, walked out. Owens smiled to him and said: "Good morning." The boy smiled back, but did not return the greeting. It was evident that he could not speak English.

A day or two later he came again, and seemed pleased when Sister Owens recognized him, smiled, and said: "Good morning." And so he kept coming two or three times a week; and Sister Owens taught him the English words for some of the articles on sale, and taught him how to say "Good morning."

One Sunday morning she said to me: "Sister Nellie, I wish we could invite him to Sunday school and have him in your class." We discussed ways and means. Sister Sarah Andrews is now in America on a furlough, and we could get a letter to her and a reply within a few days. Perhaps she would write in Japanese an invitation to attend Sunday school and church, and we could give it to the boy. But immediately we asked ourselves what we would do with him after he came to Sunday school and church. He could not speak more than half a dozen words of English,

About that time Sister Owens received from Sister Lillie Cypert, in Japan, a package of Sunday-school cards such as we use in our primary classes here, except that the lesson story was written on the back in Japand we could not speak one single word of Japanese.

The High Castes in India.

BY E. S. JELLEY.

It is a well-known fact that the membership of the different missions in all except the far south consists of outcasts (aborigines), generally people following disgusting occupations, such as scavengers, removers of dead animals, tanners of putrid hides, and eaters of carrion. Efforts have been made to add to these some of the criminal classes, but without very good success.

No one tries to disguise the reason for this. It is easier to win a man who has nothing to lose, no social standing, and who is susceptible to the allurement of presents or famine assistance, especially when his caste does not ostracize converts, than to win those of the higher castes. This is something which, with regard to true conversion to Christ, I have never admitted. The gospel is the power of God unto salvation, and can save the high as well as the low. But I have, on the one hand, been busy among the neglected Mangs; and, on the other hand, I have never found an open door for work among the "high" castes. However, a year ago I announced my intention to begin work among the "high" castes, and now the opportunity has come. The other day, when the municipal secretary of this village of five thousand inhabitants called upon me, he did more than to mention a distorted report of the action of the allies in Germany. He not only requested, but urged, me to open a school for the "high" castes in Vambori, and promised his assistance in every possible respect. Not only this, but people of the "high" castes have been asking us when we are going to set up that school so they can send their children. Vambori has one or two municipal schools and a mission school or two (the latter, however, are for "low" caste children); but he promised me that even if I opened an ordinary vernacular school, without taking up English, I should have half a hundred pupils. In my own opinion, we can get many more; and if we teach English, we can get much larger numbers. I asked him what the expense would be, and he said: "One hundred rupees per month." Of course a schoolhouse will be needed; but we can rent one, or we can buy one for two hundred dollars.

Brethren, here is the opportunity of a lifetime. If it were offered to the Methodists, for instance, they would not grudge five thousand dollars per year for such an opportunity to drive an entering wedge into the heart of the Brahminist strongholds. But five thousand dollars is not required; just about thirty dollars per month will, with your prayers and the blessings of God, do the work. What six churches will give five dollars each per month to introduce the gospel of the Son of God daily into the homes of the "high" caste masses of India? Pray over this matter, and, if necessary, deny yourselves; but give the word of God to these lost ones for whom Christ died. Give me a chance at the children, and I will guarantee that the elders will themselves knock at the gate.

Remember, I have had an extraordinary success among the Mangs—twenty-two hundred in ten years—compared with the record of the Congregational mission—seven thousand five hundred, or thereabouts, after one hundred years, with (at present) about thirty American missionaries and five hundred native employees (whose family members, no doubt, compose the bulk of their membership).

If you commission me to introduce Christ to the "high" castes, I shall do a thorough work. If the church takes up this opportunity, I shall publish regular reports of the school and furnish photographs.

Remember, thirty dollars per month is required regularly. Odd sums will not help much, except toward buying a schoolhouse. It would be a dreadful thing to start up the school and then have to stop after six months. Five dollars each from six congregations, or one dollar each from thirty disciples, ought not to be beyond the power of the true church of Christ in America, when some denominations are giving as high as seven dollars per head to missions.

"Sound Doctrine."

"I have carefully examined 'Sound Doctrine,' Volume I. In my judgment, it is the best book for the purpose intended that has appeared among our publications. I am much pleased with it, and hope to see the church with which I labor use it. It is clear in statement of facts, and its arrangement is such that any class should be able to make rapid progress by its use. It is what its name indicates, 'Sound Doctrine,' and may its tribe increase until the course is completed. It is a great help in Bible study, will be appreciated and largely used in class work. I have read and re-read the book and heartily indorse it."—Evangelist, J. H. Lawson, Houston, Texas.

"I have given 'Sound Doctrine,' Volume I., a careful examination. I will teach four Bible classes this winter, and use 'Sound Doctrine' in two of them."—Evangelist J. S. Dunn. Dallas, Texas.

"'Sound Doctrine' is the best course of Bible helps I have seen for Sundaymorning class work. I like it because it is full of sound doctrine—Bible doctrine—the very thing our people need in this compromising age."—Evangelist Foy E. Wallace, Jr.

"I have been teaching the Bible for thirty years, and have had access to some valuable helps. I have felt keenly the need of helps on the fundamental principles of Christianity. 'Sound Doctrine' is the only book I have seen which meets the needs. It is free from speculation and teaches the truth. Those who study these lessons will have no trouble in detecting the difference between Christianity and sectarianism. The book will be generally used in our Sunday-school classes. Send me twenty-four."—Evangelist Lee P. Mansfield.

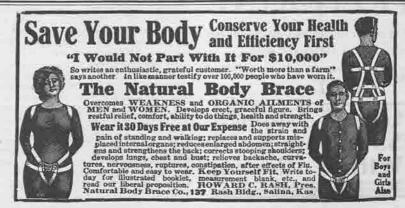

"Sound Doctrine,' Volume I., commends itself for class work in an eminent manner. In subject-matter it comprehends the most vital themes of Divine Revelation. The lessons are discussed in a manner so able as to make them thoroughly edifying, and in a style that makes them interesting to the point of fascination. The spirit of reverence for God and respect for his word is bound to reflect on the student. It is a valuable book."—Evangelist Cled E. Wallace.

"A stimulating series of Bible studies, full of clear-cut truths. It is a valuable aid to Bible studies. Send me twelve."—Evangelist Oscar Smith.

Try "Sound Doctrine" at our expense. Order a supply for your class, use them one month; if not satisfied, return them in good condition, and there will be no charge. Single copy, $1: $9.60 a dozen; in larger quantities. 75 cents a copy.

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their eloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Ricc. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessec—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending

FIELD REPORTS

Paris, Texas, May 20 .- The Sherman meeting closed last Sunday night. It was a great meeting with a great church. More than sixty were added to their fellowship. They were well prepared for the meeting. A zeal for souls seemed to characterize every service. The week-day audiences were the wonder of all. They averaged more than two hundred. White will assist us in a meeting beginning on June 19. We are hoping for a good meeting.—F. L. Young.

Weatherford, Texas, May 23.—I filled my appointment at Oklaunion yesterday. I preached three times—morning, afternoon, and night—to good crowds. Brother Claud Mc-Clung, of Fort Worth, has just closed a very successful meeting with us here at Weatherford, with good interest, good crowds, and a number of additions. Brother McClung is a very earnest gospel preacher. His exhortations are very strong and full of interest. We have been greatly benefited by his good preaching.—E. S. Fitzgerald.

Trion, Ga., May 24.—The meeting with the Trion congregation of fifteen days' duration, with preaching by Brother Aruna Clark, of East Lake, Tenn., was one of the best they have ever had in attendance and interest. Ten were baptized and three were restored to the fellowship. A song drill by Brother Alvin Reavis was very conducive to the success of the meeting. Last Lord's day, at Brother L. H. Reavis' regular appointment with the Hall Valley congregation, five young ladies came forward for baptism. Among them was my daughter. -Flavil Hall.

Ackerman, Miss., May 21.—I closed my work for this month at Reform on Thursday night. I delivered eight sermons in the meeting; besides this, I did considerable teaching in house-to-house Bible reading and teaching. While we had no additions, I am confident much good was done and that results will show later. I preached to good audiences at Shady Grove on Saturday night and on Sunday afternoon. I will continue several nights. This is an old congregation. I do not know their present working strength, but fear it is not as great as it ought to be. I hope and pray for good results from our labors.—Andrew Perry.

Fort Smith, Ark., May 23.—The meeting at Bates was a good one, all things considered. We had large crowds, and very attentive. We used the Methodist meetinghouse, and had all the space filled at most of the services. There are only four that meet regularly for worship there, but they are faithful ones. The people they are faithful ones. The people were busy at work, yet they came to hear us. The world will hear us at hear us. The world will hear us at any time of the year; but it seems that the brethren, as a rule, cannot sacrifice the time to attend meeting except through July and August. Good services at home yesterday. Brother Henley is to be here Thursday to begin one meeting. We are day to begin our meeting. We expecting great things.—Will Slater. We are Childress, Texas, May 23.—We had six more additions to the congregation here yesterday—four by baptism and two by reclamation. Our interest is great. Brother W. C. They are interested in the church, and never try to undermine a preacher or put anything in his way. May God bless them! Our meeting, which is to begin next Sunday, has the brightest prospects in the history of the congregation to accomplish big results. Brethren are invited to visit our meeting and hear W. D. Bills preach some old-time gospel sermons.

Muskogee, Okla., May 16.—We are in the midst of a great meeting here at East Okmulgee and K Streets. I am glad I came. There are some of the finest spirits in this church I have ever seen anywhere. Four splendid characters have been added to date. I am just doing my best, which is lit-tle enough, and God is blessing and leading the way. The house is far too small for this wonderful band of willing workers. Brother Oliphant willing workers. Brother Oliphant leaves us to-night for his meeting in leaves us to-night for his meeting in Kansas City. I go to Fort Smith from here. My heart almost faints when I think of giving up my meetings for the other work. I have preached so long, and God has so abundantly blessed my feeble efforts in evangelistic work, that I sometimes think he wants me to stay with times think he wants me to stay with it until death shall end it all here. Pray for me,—J. Will Henley.

East Lake, Tenn., May 24.—The meeting at Trion, Ga., closed on Sunday night, with a crowded house. Interest was fine throughout. Ten were baptized and four reclaimed. Brother Alvin Reavis, of Dresden, Tenn., was teaching a class in vocal music when the meeting began, and he led the song service a greater part of the time. He is a fine singer, and his work in Trion was very much appreciated by all. Brother Flavil Hall was with us one evening, and his son, Gardner, also attended and helped in Gardner, also attended and helped in the song service. Brother L. H. Reavis, of Summerville, who preaches for several of the congregations in that section, assisted much in making the meeting a success. Brethren from Lafayette, Hall Valley, Pleasant Grove, Summerville, and Guild gave the Trion members much encourage-ment by their presence.—Aruna Clark ment by their presence.-Aruna Clark.

Pulaski, Tenn., May 23.—On the second Lord's day in April I began a meeting with the Big Springs congremeeting with the Big Springs congregation, in White County, Tenn., and closed it on Monday night following the third Lord's day. This meeting, to me, was very like a visit to home folks, or a family reunion. Beginning in 1913, I held meetings there in the month of October for five consecutive years. Many were the precious souls added to the Lord during those meetings. Brother John T. Smith and Brother H. Leo Boles have held successful meetings there in recent years. Both of these brethren are held in very high esteem and Christian love by the congregation. Brother Boles is booked for another meeting there sometime next fall. So far as additions are concerned, there were only two restorations during our were only two restorations during our recent meeting. Our efforts were di-rected mainly along lines of church development and awakening to greater activity. Letters from there, reporting the greatest interest and largest attendance at the regular Lord'sest attendance at the regular Lord's day worship in the history of the congregation, prove the wisdom of that course. I am now in my eighth year's work with the Pulaski and surrounding congregations. I preach three times nearly every Lord's day and teach a Bible class on Wednesday nights. I preach at Pulaski on the second and fourth Sundays, at New Zion on the third Sunday, and at Ephesus, in Alabama, on the first Sunday. I also visit Providence and Ephesus, both near Pulaski, in afternoons. On the third Sunday in this month we had the largest crowd I have ever seen at New Zion. We had two sermons, with dinner on the ground. I baptized one lady following the afternoon service. The cause is prospering there under the efficient leadership of some splendid brethren whose hearts are in the work. At the conclusion of the morning service two married ladies of prominent families came forward. One, who had been trying to play Methodist with her husband several years, returned to her "first love;" the other, also a Methodist, made the good confession and was baptized "the same hour" of the day. We are expecting Brother N. B. Hardeman for a meeting in August.—J. T. Clark.

OBITUARIES

Harris.

Sister Rucker Harris was born on August 9, 1856, and died on May 8, 1921. She obeyed the gospel, under Brother Rufus Hoover's preaching, in 1886. Sister Harris was a person of strong convictions, clinging tenaciously to what she believed to be right, never wavering from the faith in her Lord and Master. She was always mindful of the poor and needy, and contributed freely of her means to help them in their distress. She had her share of this world's heartaches, but bore them patiently, which would the better prepare her to enjoy the bliss over there. J. K. FREEMAN.

Nutt.

Brother Hollis Ervin Nutt was born on March 14, 1893, and departed this life on May 7, 1921, at Riverside, Tenn. Hollis was a man of clean moral character, and a devoted, conscientious Christian, who believed in doing the religion of Jesus Christ. He leaves a brother and three sisters, with a host of friends, relatives, and brethren, to mourn their loss. But what is their loss is his eternal gain; for it is a blessed thought, and full of consolation, that when they "rest from their labors," "their works do follow them." It is my admonition to those who knew Hollis and his life to follow him as he followed Christ.

LEONARD GRAVES.

Florence.

Sister Laura Florence, the youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. C. P. Florence (deceased), was born four miles from Madill, Okla., March 26, 1897, and was reared here, received her schooling here, and was baptized by Brother Milholland at the age of sixteen. She was one of God's true children, having by nature a gentle and reserved spirit and by grace a faithful heart to the Lord even unto death. Her death occurred at Phenix, Ariz., on Sunday, April 24, 1921, being brought on by the dreaded tuberculosis. The remains were shipped here, and at the home of one of her brothers a host of relatives and friends attended the funeral services, conducted by the writer, after which the remains were buried in the local cemetery, to await the glorious resurrection of the righteous, after which there will be a reunion in "the city that hath foundations." "Blessed are the dead which die in the Lord."

O. M. REYNOLDS.

Davis.

A dark cloud of sorrow was cast over the town of Fort Deposit, Ala., when the sad news was sent abroad that Mrs. Georgia Davis had gone to her final reward. Sister Davis was of great sweetness of character. There was no cottage so humble nor mansion so grand that in time of trouble she would not enter and minister service and comfort. She was a woman of excellent personality and universally beleved. Her remains were carried by loving hands, in a beautiful, flower-covered casket, to their last resting place in the Fort Deposit Cemetery. C. A. Buffington spoke words of comfort to her sorrowing loved ones, and held up in beautiful language the life work of this consecrated woman as an example to others. Her body was placed beside that of her husband, who had preceded her to the grave by several years. May all those who admired and loved her make the right preparation, that they may meet her in the glorious city of God. X.

Askew.

In the passing of Brother Thomas V. Askew, at Marietta, Okla., on April 26, 1921, the community lost a valuable citizen; the family, a faithful husband and father; and the church of Christ throughout Love County, one of its most important supporters. In his earlier life, I am told, he was rather rough; but when he became a Christian, several years ago, he understood that he had given all to the Lord. I had known Brother Askew since the summer of 1913, and I found him interested in the cause of Christ more than all other things combined. He loved the pure gospel and the Lord's own church, and proved it by his conversation and by giving freely of his money and time for them. His home was always the preacher's home. He and Brother F. S. Vance were responsible largely for the establishment of the splendid congregation and the erection of the meetinghouse at Marietta. The writer was assisted in the funeral by Brother Vance, and before an overflow house we tried to warn the people and comfort the immediate families. A host of brethren and friends, a wife, seven children, and many other relatives, mourn his departure.

HEART CLEANING

The Psalmist prayed: "Create in me a clean heart, O God; and renew a right spirit within me. Cast me not away from thy presence; and take not thy holy Spirit from me."

There are few things that a home woman delights in more than a clean house. No wonder. It's her realm. She is queen there. The average man may raise a fuss or crack a joke about the hubbub of house cleaning, but he, too, appreciates the finished task.

Let us think more seriously of the greatest home in the world—the human heart. Our real life is lived there. From it come the issues of life and of death. Our minds may carry us far—into mysteries and wonders that thrill and delight. But it's our hearts that take the love of the world into themselves and make us feel comfortable and happy. Again, it's our hearts that are often filled with hate and malice and evil imaginations. You can see, can't you, that our hearts ought to be very clean places?

Every morning and every evening we should clean out our hearts. There must be a place where we can think right thoughts. Heart cleaning should be as regular a task as washing your face. The sun, as it streams into your sleeping room in the morning, should be allowed to enter your heart. When you walk out into the busy workaday world, there is something that unconsciously makes you feel good. And that's the way you should approach the lives of those with whom you come in contact as you go out each day with a clean heart.
There is something that people should feel in you that they can't explain, but which makes them glad to have you around.

When the evening draws near, it should find us softened and tolerant and justminded, with no wraths to cobweb the serenity of our spirits.

"There is no new sorrow," says Henry Drummond. We are not called upon to bear anything which some one else has not borne before, or, perhaps, is bearing now. The heart of each of us must bear its own sufficient pain, and through its refinement we shall grow better and stronger.

And when the heart cleaning is attended to, what next?

"Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee."

CURRENT THOUGHT

Zeal Without Knowledge.

Referring, in his letter to the Romans, to his Jewish brethren, Paul said: "I bear them witness that they have a zeal for God, but not according to knowledge." This sweeping indictment was not groundless, nor was Paul content to simply make it and pass on to a discussion of other things. He explained it by adding: "For being ignorant of God's righteousness, and seeking to establish their own, they did not subject themselves to the righteousness of God."

The Jews were not atheists, nor were they the worst sinners in the world. They believed in God and accepted the Old Testament as his word to them; moreover, they attended the synagogue meetings, and many, perhaps the majority, of them were devout—they prayed and fasted and gave alms and otherwise proclaimed their religion to the world. They had "a zeal for God."

However, they lacked knowledge—they had not informed themselves concerning the Christ and the plan of redemption he had submitted to the world. They were conversant with the Old Testament Scriptures—that is, they knew the text—but they had not grasped the prophecies relating to the Son of God and the Savior of the world. They were "ignorant of God's righteousness," and sought to "establish their own."

The same may be said of the Jews to-day. They, especially their leaders, know the Old Testament, and they accept it as God's word to them; but they fail to grasp the great, often-repeated truth therein contained respecting the Christ. And, being ignorant of God's righteousness, referred to again and again in the Old Testament and made plain in the New Testament, they seek to "establish their own."

Is there zeal for God that is not according to knowledge among people other than Jews to-day? This is a question worth pondering.

Reference to Mohammedanism and the Greek Church is not necessary. We can consider the question adequately if we confine our observations to what we term Romanism and Protestantism.

Roman Catholics are zealous, very zealous, and their zeal is in the name of God; but if their zeal is according to knowledge, all Protestantism is based on ignorance—just as the "Holy See" declares it is. It is not necessary to point out to Protestants the fallacious teaching of the Roman Church.

That Protestants are zealous, in a way, must be admitted—though they are not as zealous as are the Catholics. And their zeal is in the name of God. However, it would be preposterous to assert that all Protestant zeal is according to knowledge. In round figures, there are two hundred Protestant denominations, many of them proclaiming doctrines that are as opposite as the poles. As a result, the bewildered world is correctly pictured in the familiar verses:

"Like wandering sheep o'er mountains cold, Since all have gone astray, To life and peace within the fold, How may I know the way?

"Be wildered oft with doubt and care,
To God I feign would go;
While many say, 'Lo, here! Lo, there!'
The truth how may I know?"

"No matter what one believes, just so he is a Christian." This is the common saying with which we seek to excuse our divisions; but all know, down in their hearts, that it is a "get-by" statement—it will not bear close inspection or discussion, or even prolonged consideration. According to the New Testament, it matters—matters much—what one believes.

Protestantism, like Romanism, has sought to establish its own righteousness, and unless the opposing Protestant doctrines are all true (an impossibility), it may be said even of Protestants that they are "ignorant of God's righteousness."

Much is being said about "quick union" and hasty evangelism. The day of union should be deferred until union can be accomplished according to knowledge—or in God's way. Better, by far, that the world should be evangelized slowly and evangelized right, "according to knowledge," than that it should be evangelized in haste and in "ignorance of God's righteousness."

The remedy for the ills of Protestantism is not in federation conferences and denominational alliances; it is suggested by the slogan, "Back to the word of God." Every preacher is exhorted to "preach the word"—he is not sent forth to preach anything else. And the church universal should be urged to study the Word. The Lord said, long ago: "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge." And it is evident on every hand that the Lord's work today is hindered because his people lack knowledge.

Let there be zeal for God, but let it be "according to knowledge."—Christian Standard.

Christians should add knowledge to their faith. It is not enough to be zealous, but one's zeal should be tempered by knowledge. Men may be religious partisans and yet stand condemned at the judgment. Christ says in the Sermon on the Mount: "Many will say to me in that day, Lord, Lord, did we not prophesy by thy name, and by thy name cast out demons, and by thy name do many mighty works? And then will I profess unto them, I never knew you: depart from me, ye that work iniquity." (Matt. 7: 22, 23.) Jeroboam advanced the thought that it makes no difference how you worship, just so you worship. But men, in order to be accepted and approved by Jehovah, must worship as God directs. "Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father who is in heaven.' (Matt. 7: 21.) The man who is acepted of Jehovah obeys God. Without obedience to him, there is no promise of life everlasting.

Memorial Day and Disarmament.

In a few days the nation will pause to heap flowers upon the graves of its dead—especially those who fell in the great civil struggle of the sixties. The long lines of Blue and Gray have grown weak and thin and the few survivors hobble out of Homes and homes, leaning on staffs as they take the last few steps to the end. Long, long have their comrades been sleeping but their children and their children's children have not forgotten, nor will ever forget, though neither anger, revenge, nor bitterness seethes in their hearts, nor gleams in their faces. "All that is past." We administer the great, sweet sacrament of forgiveness and love with the roses and lilies we scatter on the still, weather-beaten graves. It makes the life of the nation better as it bends to perform such a service and rises with the tears of tenderness and the pathos of wistful memories.

> "Under the sod and the dew, Waiting the judgment day;"

But this day has far more than wistful memories of stalwart and heroic figures fading out in the mists of a fast and far receding past. It reminds us that love is stronger than hate and, in the endless march of the race down the long road of time, that the fierce passions that contended and reddened with wounds and filled with death have been changed into respect—yea, even into the noble sense of brotherhood. Nor North nor South do we any more meet fierce men who wave the "bloody shirt" with boast, defiance, menace, or threat, to keep alive vindictive strife over issues settled forever.—Christian-Evangelist.

While pausing for Memorial Day and Disarmament, the Christians of our nation should not lose the opportunity to urge "peace on earth and good will to men." They should impress on our rulers that "nations should learn war no more," and that all peoples, in so far as possible, should lead quiet, peaceable, and godly lives. If in the past the nations had been full of the Spirit of the meek and lowly Nazarene, we would not now be called upon to mourn over our dead. It is a good time to impress upon all that we should devote more money, labor, and thought to preaching the gospel to the nations, and less thought and money to the building of battleships.

Who Shall Say About It? No. 1.

BY W. H. CARTER.

Sometime ago I wrote an article which I headed "Between the Extremes." My purpose then was, and now is, to get brethren away from extremes and to come together on medium ground. Somehow, in arguing our positions, it seems natural for us to go to extremes and say things that are hurtful to the church so far as our influence extends, and often farther. We do not see it at the time, possibly never do, but others do see the injury done.

I want to relate an instance that is real, that I am familiar with. Some brethren subscribed for a paper that opposed receiving any one into the fellowship of the church on their "sectarian baptism." They fell in line with the teaching, and contended with the brethren for the teaching of the paper. Finally a minority (it is claimed) passed a resolution that the church would not receive any more into its fellowship on their "sectarian baptism." After this, at the close of a sermon, a lady presented herself for membership on her baptism. The preacher turned her case over to the church and took his seat. After some confusion, the matter was deferred. The lady went and united with another congregation. Since then that congregation has been divided, and several of them refuse to assemble on the first day of the week.

Here, in my judgment, are extremes at work which need to be overcome. But how is it to be done? By leaving the extreme and accepting the medium ground. We all understand that baptism is for the remission of sins. None of us deny that. When people are correctly taught, they will understand it, too. Now, if one comes claiming to have been baptized understandingly and believing he has complied with all the requirements of the gospel, and has a satisfied and good conscience, why should we not receive him into our fellowship? There are two parties to this contract; God is one, and the party seeking membership is the other. I insist that I am not able to say that God has not received them. God has not made me a judge in such matters, only for myself. Acting in this capacity, I am not willing to risk my chances on such faith and baptism. If they are, that is their business, and I leave it with them and the Lord. My business is to teach, not to make laws, nor to sit in judgment as to whether parties have obeyed or not. I teach just what the Book says-"be baptized for the remission of sins." I am confident that, after one has cut loose from sectarianism and is free from its arbitrary rules, he is then in a better state of mind to hear, understand, and receive the truth, and to decide whether or not he has obeyed the gospel. I believe it is extreme, too extreme, to say we will not fellowship them until they are baptized for the remission of sins. Let us notice:

- 1. If one says he is satisfied that he obeyed the gospel in baptism, and does not believe God demands that he be baptized again, but, in order to become a member, he agrees to be baptized, what is his faith? For what is he baptized? Is it to please God or to please men? Is the latter baptism any more scriptural than the former?
- 2. If we adopt a rule to receive all on their baptism who come from the denominations, how much do we lack of being as far away on the opposite extreme?
- 3. What do you mean by fellowship? Do you understand its meaning? If it just means membership, have you not in your membership characters who were "baptized for the remission of sins" that are as bad as, if not worse than, those whom you would reject? Does not fellowship mean more than membership? Does not it mean a full, whole-hearted copartnership? Now, have we not in our membership several who are not copartners with us at all? They do not attend the meetings, nor do they give anything to help defray expenses or to have the gospel preached.

We have all had our experience. In my work I have had little trouble along this line. I have tried to preach the word. I have tried to avoid saying anything that would encourage any one to rely on an unscriptural baptism. Many have come from the denominations. Some were satisfied with their baptism, and some were not. Some who were satisfied, after learning more truth, demanded baptism. On one occasion a lady met me at the water's edge where I was baptizing, and said: "Brother Carter, I was baptized ence to make me a Baptist; I want you to baptize me to make me a Christian." I took her confession and baptized her. She had learned the truth.

Let us avoid extremes, preach the word, quit arguing, and this question will take care of itself. I verily believe that more harm than good is being done. My conviction is that it should be cut out of the papers, out of the pulpit, and out of the private conversation. Some who do not attend the Lord's-day meeting at all, and who add nothing to the church treasury, are constantly harping on this question, which foments strife. If we could see the truth, it is possible that the one who relies on his "sectarian baptism" is in no worse condition than the agitator who neglects the Lord's-day meetings.

But who shall say about it? Shall the editor, the preacher, the elders, or all of us? A scriptural answer will do good. Can we find it? Paul left Titus in Crete to "set in order the things that are wanting." (Tit. 1: 5.) Timothy was told to "reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine" (teaching). But how are they to do this, if not through teaching? Where is the scripture that authorizes the evangelists, preachers, to form a court, or tribunal of any kind, to settle church troubles? They may teach and help, but not form courts to decide.

Well, are there any others who may say? Paul told the Ephesian elders "to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20: 28.) Peter says: "Feed the flock of God which is among you, taking the oversight thereof." (1 Pet. 5: 2.) Paul says they watch for our souls. (Heb. 13: 17.) An elder must be "apt to teach." (1 Tim. 3: 2; Tit. 1: 9.)

Now, what do we get out of the above? (1) The elders are to "take the oversight." (2) The elders are to "feed." (3) They watch for the good of our souls. In doing this, they are to see that the church is fed on good, wholesome food. (4) They are to watch "as they that must give account." If the elders are held responsible for the souls of the members of the church, who has the right to override, overpower, or crush them out? Upon whom else is such responsibility placed?

But what saith the law to us who are not elders? Listen, ye evangelists, members, all of us: "Obey them that have the rule over you." (Heb. 13: 7, 17.) That does not excuse any of us, does it? Does it not include us all? But you say: "I am ruled only by Christ through the New Testament." Certainly, that is the way we should all be ruled; but if Christ, in the New Testament, tells us to "obey" and "submit" to the elders, and we refuse, are we being ruled by Christ? Are we not, rather, rebelling against him?

The true test of a man's greatness among men is that he has advanced above the greatness of men of his day; and yet a man may rise above his competitors, excel them in point of native abilities, in education, and in general influence, and not be a Christian at all. God's ways are above the ways of men.—Wheat and Chaff.

God's Care for the Poor.

The Book says something about our becoming "partakers of the divine nature;" therefore, we who claim to be Christians should see to it that God's nature we have, that we grow into it daily. The more of his nature we have, the more we will feel as he feels, think as he thinks, and care for those things in which he is interested. The Book says, somewhere: "For it is God who worketh in you both to will and to work, for his good pleasure." If this scripture is fulfilled and exemplified in us, I am sure the world will see, by observing us, how God feels toward the poor, and toward every one else, for that matter. church is spoken of as "a habitation of God in the Spirit." (Eph. 2: 21.) The church is spoken of as being "the temple of the living God;" hence, it should be the most vitally living thing on earth, if, indeed, the living God dwells in it. It should have more life, more power, and should be felt more for good than a human organization "teaching as their doctrines the precepts of men," whose worship is vain, and, hence, a body of people in whom the living God lives and walks not. (See Matt. 15: 9, 14.) But God has assured those who will be faithful that he "will dwell in them, and walk in them." (2 Cor. 6: 16.) Am I correct when I say, if, indeed, we are such a people, that there should be seen a difference between us and vain worshipers in whom God does not live and among whom he does not walk? If, indeed, we are God's people, we correctly represent God to the people, for there will be an outshining of God's nature through us.

Just here I want to call special attention to God's care for the poor—not merely the aged who are poor in this world's goods, but any and all who stand in need of a helping hand. I think I have seen people not very old who were poor, very poor, but physically unable to make a living for themselves. Let our thoughts for the poor go as far as God's thoughts and God's feelings go, and we have it about right. David, in speaking of Jehovah, says: "The helpless committeth himself unto thee; thou hast been the helper of the fatherless." (Ps. 10: 14.) There are those who cannot pray loud enough for Jehovah to hear. Let the Book tell us who they are: "Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry, but shall not be heard." (Prov. 21: 13.) This certainly shows the deep and abiding interest our God has in the poor.

And just here let us look for a moment how the church of Christ felt about the poor in the very beginning of its existence on the earth. "And all that believed were together, and had all things common; and they sold their possessions and goods, and parted them to all, according as any man had need." (Acts 2: 44, 45.) No poor suffered in the first congregation our Lord had on the earth. And in Acts 4: 34 it says: "For neither was there among them any that lacked." In Acts 6 we find this "business" (see verse 3) of caring for the widows demanding the appointing of more men to assist in the matter, and seven most excellent men put over this work. Let us take this first church as the model, which, indeed, it is, and see that our poor have a place in our hearts and in the local church.

There is a statement in Paul's report of his conference with the leaders in Jerusalem that is full of significance, and here I ask the reader to give it some attention. "And when they perceived the grace that was given unto me, James and Cephas and John, they who were reputed to be pillars, gave to me and Barnabas the right hands of fellowship, that we should go unto the Gentiles, and they unto the circumcision; only they would that we should remember the poor; which very thing I was also zealous to do." (See Gal. 2: 9, 10.) Have you given thought as to why these leaders called special attention to the poor? Does this not give some insight into the deep and abiding interest the early churches and preachers took in the poor? And was it not due to God's presence in them and their letting his nature govern and control them? That congregation is not, indeed, the church of Christ, I care not what it has written over its door, nor how long and loudly they exclaim, "We are the church of Christ," if the poor of their own number are neglected.

Some weeks ago I gave an answer to the question: "Do we need a home for old people?" My answer was that in every truly scripturally organized local church we have a home for old people, whenever any of our old need help) The one question now to settle is: Am I right in the answer? At Santa Ana, Cal., the church of Christ has four cottages built on their lot, and four widows are now living in these homes. About two years ago, when I visited them, I found an old brother and his wife in one of these cottages. Should not every local church build such nomes when they are needed? I understand that in the local church there is a body of men known as deacons. (See Phil, 1: 1.) Am I correct in thinking that one of the special duties of deacons is to see that widows, the poor of the congregation who are being supported by the church, are properly supplied with the things they need? Will some one tell me if this is not the special work of the deacons? If it is not, what is it? If we are to have a home for our poor built in some State, and gather up all the aged who need alms and ship them to this place, pray tell me, what need will the local churches that fall in line with this work have of deacons? Then I think the members of each local congregation need to exercise the grace of visiting the poor and coming into personal contact with them. If we are to segregate our poor, then what?

In conclusion, therefore, let me insist that each local church strive to make itself, indeed, a church of Christ. Let them know their number, and the condition of each member; and when one of the members suffer, let all suffer with it. I do not want it understood that I take the position that we cannot have a home for old people or for the poor, built especially for them in some community. But when such is done, let it be done by a group of churches in some section where the members of the local churches can have the pleasure and profit of coming into personal contact with its work. Local congregations certainly can cooperate in such work where congregations are small, and by joint effort can do the work more effectively. But it would be a mistake to build a home in one State to care for all the aged and poor of that State. O, what a change we would see in this old world if every local church would come to the front and be, indeed, what it claims to be! The people in the very community where the local church exists need to see its good works. If the local church will do it, it will be seen by them. If they ship their poor to other quarters, the local church loses in that community. God's ways are best; and that church is the most powerful and effective for good that stays most nearly with the divine pattern. 0 0 0

BY LEE JACKSON.

I want to write a word of commendation in behalf of what Brother S. H. Hall has recently suggested in regard to "preachers' meetings." First, Brother Hall says: "That preachers have a right, if they so choose, and time and opportunity will allow, to meet together as brethren in Christ, to exchange thoughts and to be mutually helpful to each other, I presume, will be admitted by all thoughtful Christians. To say that preachers cannot do this without sinning seems to me a very extreme and hurtful statement." Again, Brother Hall says: "If we love each other and are unselfish, rejoicing in each other's successes and standing by and encouraging each other in our failures. it seems that such meetings we will have in spite of ourselves. I am heartily in favor of them. I think I see something more dangerous than a "preachers' meeting? It is that lack of love that some seem to manifest. It is that selfishness that makes some interested in their own work, with not a prayer to offer or word of encouragement to give or speak of the work of others. It is that 'preacher jealously and envy' that makes preachers' meetings very incompatible. If preachers' meetings will make preachers love each other more and have a deeper and a more abiding interest in each other's work, and put to death that deadly weed, selfishness, then let us have them." [Italies are mine - Jackson 1

Not only do I wish to commend these words of Brother Hall as being well said and to the point in the matter of wholesome teaching, but I want to also emphasize them as expressing a spirit of interest in behalf of the cause of Christ which should find an abiding place in the hearts of all who claim for themselves the noblest of all honorsthat of walking in the footsteps of the Christ. Why should any one oppose a meeting of preachers, when they come together for mutual instruction and edification? When they come together only for an exchange of ideas, for the purpose of helping one another to a better understanding of the Scriptures, and to aid one another in the solution of difficult problems that have to do with their work as preachers of the gospel, what harm can result from such meetings? As I view the matter, harm has resulted from the lack of such meetings as a means for mutual helpfulness. My own limited experience has been such that I do not remember to have ever met a preaching brother with whom I could talk over and discuss points of Scripture teaching without receiving benefit from him. In that way a great portion of my little store of information has been gained. And while this may be a personal weakness of mine, I have always felt suspicious of the preacher who feels so certain of his own knowledge and of the correctness of his own teaching that he wants to learn nothing from his brethern

In the beginning of the last century we announced to the world our plea for unity in faith and in teaching and practice. It was inscribed upon our banner in letters large that the Bible, and the Bible alone, is the only authoritative source of instruction for bringing about and maintaining that unity for which Jesus prayed. If our fathers were correct in the principles of this claim-and no one among us has yet had the hardihood to deny that they were correct-then evidently there are to-day many among us who need to sit at the feet of somebody and learn some lessons that they have not yet learned. In all sections of our country there are men claiming to represent the plea of Campbell, of Stone, of Scott, of Lard, of Milligan, and of Tolbert Fanning and David Lipscomb, whose theories and abstract vagaries would not be recognized by these former worthies as being any part of their plea. Those to whom we refer taught that the gospel in its purity, without addition or subtraction, should be preached; but instead of preaching the gospel in its simplicity, many of our present teachers are preaching theories of the gospel and theories about the gospel, and, in addition, are preaching other theories for which they as zealously contend as if these theories were a part of the gospel which saves. And some of these theorists seem not to know the difference between the word "believe" as a transitive verb and a leaning fence post. For just as they would prop up the leaning post with any object that they thought proper to put in front of it, so they put their theories before the word "believe" as being proper objects of gospel faith; and then, to cap their climax, they condemn others who do not accept these theories as being unsound in faith, and as being unworthy of Christian fellowship.

Maybe an occasional "preachers' meeting," with men of the "old guard" as leaders and directors of studies and deliberations, would help toward an elimination of factionalism over "hobbies" and unlearned questions. And perhaps such gatherings would also lead to a more general agreement as to the meaning of things that are really essential to a right understanding of the Scriptures, and, therefore, essential to that harmony among ourselves which is so very necessary if we are to convince the outside world that we mean what we say when we talk about the importance of unity. Above all, as Brother Hall suggests, if these meetings will assist in correcting the evils of "preacher jealousies" and envyings and "preacher egotisms" and self-laudations, which are to the injury of the cause of Christ, then we need the meetings and should arrange to have them.

How We Ought to Pray.

The Lord not only taught men to pray, but he also taught them how to pray. If a prayer is to obtain the results desired, the desire and the prayer must be in harmony with God's will. Although it is written, "Ask, and it shall be given you; seek, and ye shall find; knock, and it shall be opened unto you" (Matt. 7: 7), we must not conclude that the blessings here promised are to be given regardless of other conditions mentioned elsewhere in the Bible. To be sure "asking" is a condition of receiving, but it is not the only one; for James said: "Ye ask, and receive not, because ye ask amiss, that ye may spend it in your pleasures." (James 4: 3.) The trouble with those to whom Jesus wrote was not that they did not ask, but that they did not ask in the proper manner-with the proper motive. We should be sure that we have no selfish purposes or pleasures in view when we pray. One's manner of life has to do with the answering of his prayers. Peter indicated this fact when he wrote: "Ye husbands, in like manner, dwell with your wives according to knowledge, giving honor unto the woman, as unto the weaker vessel, as being also joint heirs of the grace of life; to the end that your prayers be not hindered." (1 Pet. 3; 7.) The inference is clear that he who fails to live, with respect to his wife, according to the commandment just quoted, hinders his prayers. These scriptures show that the mere act of asking in prayer, irrespective of qualifications and conditions, is not sufficient.

1. To whom should we pray? To the Virgin Mary, the pope, or the audience? Have we not heard prayers addressed to the audience, prayers that were mechanical and strained efforts toward pulpit eloquence? Have we not heard announcements made to the effect that "Dr." A or "Dr." B would "address the audience in prayer?" All such utterances are in the "speech of Ashdod;" and all such practices are after the manner of the pharisaical hypocrites of old. In answer to the request, "Lord, teach us to pray," Jesus taught his disciples to say: "Father, Hallowed be thy name." (Luke 11: 1, 2.) Our prayers are to be addressed to our Father—to God. In one of his epistles Paul wrote: "Now we pray to God that ye do no evil." (2 Cor. 13: 7.)

2. We should ask in faith. By general principles we are taught that our prayers must be in faith. "We walk by faith, not by sight." (2 Cor. 5: 7.) "Whatsoever is not of faith is sin." (Rom. 14: 23.) "Without faith it is impossible to be well-pleasing unto him; for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that seek after him." (Heb. 11: 6.) It is particularly pointed out that we must ask in faith. "Let him ask in faith, nothing doubting: for he that doubteth is like the surge of the sea driven by the wind and tossed." (James 1: 6.) "And all things, whatsoever ye shall ask in prayer, believing, ye shall receive." (Mait. 21: 22.)

3. Prayers should be in spirit as well as in truth. "God is a spirit; and they that worship him must worship in spirit and truth." (John 4: 24.) Paul said; "I will pray with the spirit, and I will pray with the understanding also." (1 Cor. 14: 15.) The biblical idea of prayer involves more than a mere lip performance. We should pray from the heart earnestly, sincerely, and fervently. Elijah "prayed fervently." (James 5: 17.) "The effectual fervent prayer of a righteous man availeth much." (James 5: 16.)

Finally, the "beloved disciple" has summed up all conditions of acceptable prayer in one: "If we ask anything according to his will, he heareth us." (1 John 5; 14.)

This statement is not unlike an utterance of Jesus; "If ye shall ask anything in my name, that will I do." (John 14: 14.) Many are the conditions involved in prayer.

The Flood-Its Causes.

BY H. LEO BOLES.

"The earth was filled with violence." What an awful statement! This was Jehovah's solemn verdict after viewing the exceedingly wicked state of man. Briefly, the Bible assigns the following causes: The general corruption of man's heart and the unrestrained vice of the times; polygamy and licentiousness; men were mighty in crime; the earth filled with violence. The only way to save the race was to destroy nearly all of it. God's purpose was to destroy the worst portion of it and save the best.

I think that God's attitude toward the wicked world may be assigned as one great cause of the flood. God destroyed the evil as a condemnation for wickedness and a warning against sin. The destruction of the wicked gives opportunity for the good to develop and have its saving influence on the children of men. When the wicked are removed, the good have an opportunity for exercising greater influence. When one class is so numerous that it overpowers the other, it is an encouragement to the good for the numerous wicked to be destroyed. Noah and his family were struggling to assert God's righteousness upon the earth, while the teeming multitudes of earth were trying to destroy his righteousness. It seems that God steps in and with his mercy removes the wicked and encourages the righteous.

I think that the mercy of God is shown in the justice of God. Jehovah has many attributes, and they are all in activity in all of Jehovah's works. God is not merciful at one time and just at another and loving at another; he is all of these at the same time, and his works partake of his nature. God is always good, and everything that he does is good. Everything that God has done for the human family has grown out of his love and mercy for man. Even the very wrath of God has its root in the mercy of God. His wrath and vengeance manifested in the punishment of the wicked is for the good of that class. The chastisement of God is hard, or seemingly hard, at the time, yet it worketh for us the peaceable fruits of right-eousness.

Everything that our God has done is good; hence, the great catastrophe of the Flood was good for the human race. If Jehovah had not destroyed the race of man with the Flood, the inhabitants of earth would have perished by moral gangrene and would have been destroyed by the fire of licentiousness, if not by the fire from heaven. What would have been the condition of the earth to-day, had not God's mercy stepped in and stopped the wickedness with the Flood! Evil works carry their own seeds of destruction and will in process of time destroy themselves. In the destruction of the wicked, Jehovah saved the good and righteous. He takes the little plant of righteousness, founded in Noah and his family, and cultivates it. At the same time he wipes out all the wickedness of that generation. He changes entirely the environment of Noah and gives him a new start in a fresh world, purged of all the corruption and sin that cursed the earth at that time, Oftentimes it is difficult for us to see the goodness of God in the destruction of the wicked. It seemed hard for Adam and Eve to be driven from the garden of Eden, yet it proved ultimately and finally a blessing to the human family. They were taken away from the tree of life and were not permitted to eat of it. Had they eaten of it after their sin, they would have been perpetual and eternal sinners. It seems that the tree of life was transplanted from the Paradise on earth to the Paradise in heaven. Man has been directed and instructed how he may have access again to the tree of life. As the gates of the garden of Eden were closed, the door to repentance was opened. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth on him might not perish, but have everlasting life." (John 3: 16.) That was not a new principle in the heart of Jehovah when spoken by John. It is an eternal characteristic of the nature of Jehovah. He loved the world even when he destroyed it, and for that reason he brought the Deluge upon the earth. By the Flood he cleanses and purifies the race of man and leaves the earth in its primitive state of perfectness again. His mercy was shown in giving them one hundred and twenty years in which to repent. For more than a century Jehovah delayed his judgments, kept back the thunders of his wrath, kept closed the windows of heaven, and chained the ocean to its bed, that the guilty race might have opportunity to repent.

"And God said unto Noah, The end of all flesh is come before me; for the earth is filled with violence through them; and, behold, I will destroy them with the earth." (Gen. 6: 13.) What a terrible sentence! A fearful doom! To hear the sentence of death pronounced upon a single individual is an appalling thing, but here is a sentence passed upon the six generations then living. "A world of culprits doomed to die." Not only the human race was to be destroyed, but also all beasts and creeping things and fowls of the air. The fearful sentence is passed upon all terrestrial animals. In the goodness of God the old order of things is to be destroyed by the Deluge, and new life and a new order of things are to be given to the earth.

In the mercies of God the race of man is to be taught to recognize God as the sovereign and eternal Ruler of the universe. His majesty must be maintained if men would worship him. Man must learn that wickedness must not be allowed to go unchecked until its dimensions assume such proportions as to involve the human family. Jehovah chooses to impress this lesson by the Deluge. This important truth is emphasized by the Psalmist when he says: "Jehovah sat as King at the Flood; yea, Jehovah sitteth as King forever." (Ps. 29: 10.) The power, majesty, wisdom, and love of Jehovah must be seen in his works. The ground was cursed for the offense of one, and deluged for the offenses of many; by one man sin entered the world, and by the sin of many the Deluge was brought upon the earth; and by the Deluge the wickedness of the earth was destroyed and the righteousness of man encouraged. The earth was blessed by the Flood. the goodness and the severity of God!

The justice and long-suffering of God are manifested in this great and solemn catastrophe; his justice is seen in the punishment and destruction of the irredeemable wicked; his mercy is shown in the warning by the preacher of righteousness, and also in his waiting one hundred and twenty years before the Flood came.

A believer must have on the sea of life, Patience for his tackling, Hope for his anchor, Faith for his helm, the Bible for his chart, Christ for his Captain, and the breath of the Spirit to fill his canvas.—J. Trapp.

ANTHER STREET,

No love is so high as that which prefers the real interests of its object before his present comfort, which aims at permanent good rather than momentary satisfaction. We often seek to gratify another's feelings rather than to promote his good. But Christ is not a parent who gives his children everything they cry for, but everything that is best for them. He withholds a lower mercy that he may impart a greater. Instead of raising Lazarus from a bed of sickness, he raised him from the grave.—A. Roberts.

From Cled E. Wallace, Temple, Texas. May 30: "Ten baptized and six restored in the Ranger meeting. J. W. McKinney is the efficient home preacher; N. W. Allphin, song leader. I begin at San Angelo on June 1."

The meeting at the New Shops Church, this city, continues this week, with Herbert E. Winkler doing the preaching and George S. Davis leading the song service. One baptism to date. The attendance and interest are good.

We are pleased to hear from Thomas H. Burton, of Union, S. C., that the meeting continues with good preaching,

It was dear old John Hay who said:

"I think that saving a little child, And bringing him to his own, Is a great deal better business Than loafing round the throne."

It is almost as presumptuous to think you can do nothing as to think you can do everything. The latter folly supposes that God exhausted himself when he made you, but the former supposes that he made a hopeless blunder when he made you, which is quite as impious for you to think

From John W. Hedge, Caddo, Okla., June 2: "My debate with Evangelist Slape (Baptist), near Blanchard, Okla., was a grand success. Over eight hundred people were regular in attendance. I think I got our plea before the people in such a way that much good will result from the debate in the future."

From Foy E. Wallace, Jr., Vernon, Texas: "Thirty-four persons confessed Christ in the meeting at San Saba, which continued only twelve days. A total of fifty-four additions, including those reclaimed and identified. Tillit S. Teddlie conducted the song service. We begin at Vernon with home forces the first of June."

To be out of harmony with the things, acts, and events which God in his providence has seen fit to array around us—that is, not to meet them in a humble, believing, and thankful spirit—is to turn from God; and, on the other hand, to see in them the developments of God's presence and of the divine will, and to accept that will, is to turn in the opposite direction and to be in union with him.

F. M. Little, Montgomery, Ala., writes: "Good attendance at all services of the Catoma Street Church on May 29. Eight baptisms at the evening services. The big union revival cuts no figure with our attendance or results. I find that we do not have to flirt with denominational error in order to reach results with the gospel. Our digressive friends are very faithful supporters of the union meeting."

"O be not the first to discover
A flaw in the fame of a friend,
A fault in the faith of a brother
Whose heart may be true to the end.
For we none of us know one another
And oft into error may fall,
Then let us speak well of each other;
When we can't, let us not speak at all."

From E. W. Moon, Holland, Ga., May 26: "J. A. Perdue, of Athens, Ga., has been in this vicinity for a month, and has preached a number of instructive sermons. His discourses are noted for the tenacity with which he adheres to scriptural thought. One is impressed with the fact that his conception of the Spirit's mind, as expressed by inspiration, is unusually clear. He preached once to the colored folks in Texas Valley, and a Methodist preacher who is above average ability confessed his faith and was baptized last Lord's day."

From Andrew Perry, Ackerman, Miss., June 2: "I was at Shady Grove, some eighteen or twenty miles west of here, over the last two Lord's days. I preached twelve sermons. Part of the time I had fairly good audiences, and I have hopes that some good was done; but a number that ought to be at work are neglecting duty, hence the work there is not flourishing. Dry, hot weather, some sickness, and presure of work kept some away who ought to have attended. I will go to Berwick for a few days; then to Nial, near Kosclusko, Miss., for my next work. I have received five dollars from the church at Thyatira to help in the work."

From T. B. Clark, Childress, Texas, May 30: "Our meeting began on the fifth Sunday in May, with eight confessions at the first service. All eight were young men. Brother Bills falled to reach us the first day, but came in on Monday to take charge of the meeting. Largest crowds in the history of the church here attended the first two services of the meeting. We hope for great things in this meeting."

The editor has received an interesting letter from C. A. Lancaster, who is located in Wayne County, Tenn. Brother Lancaster is a self-sacrificing man who spends his time farming and preaching. He conducts a meeting two or three times each week, and always with a good hearing. He plans to devote all his time to the ministry after this year. Brother Lancaster commends very highly the labor of love being performed by H. N. Mann, of Riverside, Tenn.

From J. C. Mosley, Gillentine, Tenn.. May 31: "I am having a fine meeting here. Had a fine meeting at Old Cumberland, and baptized some fine people there. I baptized a Baptist girl, and her sweetheart confessed his faults. I solemnized the rights of matrimony. They are a promising young couple of young babes for the Master. My next address will be Doyle, Tenn. I am near Spencer now, teaching day and night, with good interest. I will give Dongola, Ill., my time, the Lord willing, during September, October, and November."

Former Vice President Marshall recently delivered an address in Abilene, Texas, in which he said: "How many of you send your children to Sunday school in the morning and then stay at home yourselves and read 'Jeff and Mutt?' Well, the child soon begins to wonder how long it will be before he can stay at home and read 'Mutt and Jeff." In other words, you are teaching your child that the "funny paper" is more to be desired than God's word, while David taught that God's word was "more to be desired than gold, yea, than much fine gold: sweeter also than honey and the honeycomb." You had better come to church with your child and "taste and see that the Lord is good."

From Jim Stubblefield, Route 6, Morrison, Tenn., May 19: "C. M. Gleaves has just closed our meeting at Viola. The meeting began on the second Sunday and continued ten days. There were four baptisms. Though it was a busy time, the meeting was well attended, and the interest was good to the close. Brother Gleaves certainly handles the word aright, and declares the whole counsel of God without fear or favor from men, yet in such a spirit as to hold the attention of those who differ from him. His able and timely lessons are calculated to build up and strengthen the church. We shall hope to see a great harvest as the result of the seed sown by him. Brother Gleaves possesses in a large measure the spirit of meekness and humility which should characterize a servant of God. He endeared himself to the hearts of all, and we trust it will be our pleasure to have him with us again."

William Walker writes: "The congregation at Dinuba, Cal., instead of accepting my resignation, granted me a leave of absence for ten months. I trust that I may be permitted to return and resume my work with those noble people of God. I believe the Dinuba church is one of the best in the world. The congregation is fortunate in having such men as J. E. Word, Sam Jordan, and J. A. Randolph for elders. During my seven-months' stay with the congregation we distributed literature in all the homes of the town; seven souls were added to our membership, which now numbers forty-seven, including boys and girls; and about two thousand dollars passed through the treasury into the Lord's work. How many congregations in Tennessee with no more than forty-seven members have given two thousand dollars to the cause during the last seven months? At this writing Sister Walker is no better. My address at the present is Burns, Tenn."

The annual meeting of the Directors of the Tennessee Orphan Home on last Thursday was decidedly the most harmonious and best meeting the Home has ever had. The Home is doing more work year by year, is caring for more children, and is gradually getting into a good financial condition. Our readers are asked to remember that the first Lord's day in July is the day for a regular contribution. As the amount of cash on hand was not large at the last report, it is to be hoped that a liberal contribution will be made on the first Sunday in July. It was decided by the directors to make a number of needed improvements and to improve the system and method of running the Home. It is to be hoped that by doing this we will obtain better results and cut down our expense account. Of course it will require money to make the needed improvements. The directors of the Home have felt very much encouraged at the liberal support accorded the Home by the churches of Christ.

From Earnest C. Love, Fresno, Cal., May 30: "Three interesting services were held by the Fresno Street Church on May 29. There was one confession at the morning service, with baptism at six o'clock. A profitable and enjoyable afternoon was spent by the whole congregation at Roeding Park, where we had basket dinner and preaching. Many who were attracted by the singing came near and listened throughout the discourse. This program will be repeated on June 5, the Lord willing. The evening service was at the tent. One interesting feature of our tent meeting during the past week was that one evening the crowd was so large we could not seat them, something that has not happened before at a regular service during my preaching experience in California. A number of Armenians, some of them refugees, have become interested in our school and About ten or twelve of the children come to the meeting. tent early in the evening, even missing their dinner, to hear the Bible stories and learn to sing the songs that our girls teach them. Some of these children spend most of their time with us, and say they are coming to our school next term.'

Acknowledgment of Funds.

Our last remittance for the Chinese Relief Fund amounted to $305.33, and was sent to Mr. Vance J. Alexander, the State treasurer for this fund.

We have received acknowledgment from the Near East Relief Committee as follows:

New York, June 4, 1921.—Dear Mr. Lipscomb: Your very generous contribution of $312.60 sent in with yours of May 31 is hereby acknowledged, and we wish to express our appreciation to the readers of the Gospel Advocate for their interest and support.

A cable just received from Constantinople advises that all the Kars orphans—seven thousand five hundred—have been moved to Alexandropol, and that there are now in that center eighteen thousand orphans, which is probably the largest number of orphans that ever assembled in one place. Inasmuch as the supplies were very low, they were on half rations during the month of April, and after May 1 there would be nothing. A later cablegram advises that they succeeded in getting a trial food ship through to Batoum, where they found only ten bags of flour left.

Thanking you for your interest and help, we are, Sincerely yours, J. W. MACE.

In addition, we have received the following letter from the Paderewski Fund for Poland:

New York, June 3, 1921.—Dear Mr. Lipscomb: I beg to acknowledge receipt of your check for $143.80, and hasten to express to you my very sincere thanks for your generosity.

Since your letter mentioned that the check was destined for the Polish Victims' Relief Fund, I took the liberty of transferring it directly to the Polish White Cross, which in the past years has acted as intermediary in distributing our money in Poland. The Paderewski Fund for Poland, of which I was the secretary, has been closed, and all funds which we possessed were transferred to the Polish White Cross. This latter organization has no overhead expenses, and therefore I am able to assure you that a hundred cents out of every dollar will be used solely for relief purposes. It is a Polish government agency founded by my mother, Mrs. Paderewski, and she is the president of it.

I hope that this transaction will meet with your approval. I avail myself of this opportunity to thank you once more for your great kindness toward us and for your stanch support of our endeavors.

With very best regards, I beg to remain,

Most gratefully yours, W. O. Gorski.

While the management of the Gospel Advocate is more than willing to forward contributions for relief of sufferers in foreign countries, we advise that it will save time and postage if they are sent direct to the duly authorized forwarding committees. For Armenian and Syrian Relief, send to Cleveland H. Dodge, treasurer, Near East Relief, I Madison Avenue, New York City; for Polish Relief, send to W. O. Gorski, Secretary, 33 West Forty-second Street, New York City; for Chinese Relief, send to China Famine Relief, Bible House, New York City.

David Lipscomb on the Question of Christians in the Denominations.

BY M. C. K.

As a fitting sequel to the recent discussion in these columns called out by the series of articles on "Bible Things by Bible Names," and involving the question whether there are Christians in the denominations, we reprint a part of an editorial written and published years ago by our lamented editor in chief, the venerable and God-fearing David Lipscomb. From personal contact and conversation with him, I knew throughout the discussion that he occupied, in every detail, the identical position on this subject for which I contended, but I did not recall that he had been so specific and elaborate on it in his editorial writings. During the discussion, as our readers will remember, f had occasion to say, "In the denominational environment of to-day, with its greatly confused and misleading parlance, it is impracticable to describe and differentiate a New Testament church without a circumlocution," and that "it is exceedingly difficult, as is here freely granted, for even the best and most thoughtful of men to live and move constantly in the midst of such an environment and not be influenced by it."

Now, I have a twofold purpose in republishing this extract from one of Brother Lipscomb's great editorials.

First, I want those brethren who seem to think-and I feel sure they are sincere in it-that I have departed from the former position of the Gospel Advocate on where Christians are to be found and where the complete church of Christ exists to-day to see that I have simply been contending for the very identical position which was held by the beloved Lipscomb himself, and which he strongly advocated on the editorial pages of the Gospel Advocate. Secondly, I want them also to see that in even as great and profound a student of the Bible as he was is illustrated the very difficulty pointed out in my statement just quoted. As we shall see, a slight lapsus calami (slip of the pen), as the Romans expressed it, occurred even with him in the very editorial here quoted. The following question had been propounded:

When we receive persons from other churches on their baptism, do we not admit that they are Christians? If so, then there are Christians in other denominations also. Please give your views on the subject through the Gospel Advocate

The following is taken from his reply:

When people were born and circumcized among the ten tribes that seceded from the house of David and then wished to unite with the Jews faithful to the Lord, they were not rejected by the Jews for fear in receiving them they would own there were servants of God among the ten tribes. Whatever had been done among the ten tribes in accordance with God's will was accepted; what was not according to his will was left off; what God required that they had not done was added on. These things were types of divisions that would occur in the spiritual kingdom. Whole bodies of the followers of Christ would fall away from fidelity to the practices required by God. I do not know any better way than God's way. Retain what has been done in accordance with the will of God; drop what they have practiced not required by him; add on what God requires that they have done, so they will conform to the perfect will of God.

There are Christians in many places that I think they ought not to be. They are in politics, in the various societies of the age; they are in the missionary societies. I think a Christian should belong to but one society, that the church of the living God. He cannot serve two masters. But if he has become a Christian and gone wrong, I will not ask him to repudiate what he has rightly done to make a Christian, but to turn from the wrong steps he has taken. A Methodist or Presbyterian may believe Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. After believing, he has taken a wrong step in becoming a Methodist or Presbyterian. When teaching him what is right for him to do, I would not ask him to disbelleve or deny faith in Christ for fear I would own people believe in Christ among Methodists or Presbyterians, for they do. If a man believed in Christ and repented of his sins among Methodists, I would not ask him to turn from his repentance and go to sinning again because he had come to believe in Christ and repent among If he had learned to believe, repent, and be these people. baptized for the remission of sins, or to put on Christ or for the answer of a good conscience toward God or to fulfill all righteousness among Methodists, Presbyterians, or Baptists (they can learn all these things among them), I would not ask him to undo or repudiate his faith in Jesus or his repentance toward God or his baptism or any part of the will of God he had learned and performed among these people; but I would ask him to cling to all he held or practiced in obedience to the will of God, and to turn from things in these churches not according to the will of God. and to add whatever the word of God requires that he has not done; and I am just as sure that I would have the approval of God in this as I am that the Bible is the will of God, for the Bible teaches that God dealt with men in this way. This rule would draw every Christian out of these sects as it drew Alexander Campbell, B. W. Stone, the Creaths, and others from these sects to the church of Christ. There is just a little danger that we get a little more righteous and strict than God. Then, people must act on their own faith, not mine or yours. If, after they are taught the will of God, they have a good conscience that in doing the things God commanded they obeyed God, none can gainsay I am glad for all these sects to preach just as much of the truth of God as they can; and, when they do so, we should acknowledge and encourage them in all the truth they teach and help them into more truth. I would like to own and fellowship every truth that every human being teaches, if I could do this without indorsing his errors.

When he quits his errors and clings only to his truth, I can do this gladly by accepting him in his truth and helping him to more truth. I know this is 60d's way of dealing with the ignorant and the erring. It is a presumptuous, "holier-than-thou" spirit that says repudiate what truth you have and accept all truth I have, or you are rejected. None of us understand the full truth of God and will not comprehend it all until we know as we are known in the glorified state. Let us help, not kick back, those struggling to gain truth. (See "Questions Answered," by Lipscomb and Sewell, pages 176-178.)

Now, assuredly that answer gives no uncertain sound; and I wish now to say:

1. I have never written a paragraph that more emphatically taught that there are Christians in the denominations than does this pointed statement; but if so, of course they are in the church of Christ in spite of their denominational entanglement. Brother Lipscomb does not say that all who are in the denominations are Christians. Far from this. Some who are in them are not Christians, and hence are not in the church of Christ. I myself repeatedly made this point in the discussion. Only those who do what God requires for membership in his church are in it. But be does say of such a man in the denominations: "If he had learned to believe, repent, and be baptized for remission of sins or to put on Christ or for the answer of a good conscience toward God or to fulfill all righteousness among Methodists, Presbyterians, or Baptists (they can learn all these things among them), I would not ask him to undo or repudiate his faith in Jesus or his repentance toward God or his baptism or any part of the will of God he had learned and performed among these people; but I would ask him to cling to all he held or practiced in obedience to the will of God, and to turn from things in these churches not according to the will of God, and to add whatever the word of God requires that he has not done." These are the three things definitely pointed out in my articles on which we should all insist in dealing with persons in the denominations.

2. But now let the reader also note the slip of our venerable brother's pen. Notwithstanding he had already conceded in the same editorial that they were in the church of Christ among the sects, he said: "It drew Alexander Campbell, B. W. Stone, the Creaths, and others from these sects to the church of Christ." Hence, as thoughtful readers can see, to have said what the context clearly shows he meant, he should have added some such expression as "apart from sects," thus: "It drew Alexander Campbell, B, W. Stone, the Creaths, and others from these sects to the church of Christ apart from sects." That, in this particular case, or some such statement, is the "circumlocution" made necessary by the present religious environment; and, had his attention been directed to it, no one would have been readier than he to admit it and to make the correction. It would not be improper to say of the number of Christians to-day or at any other time, whether many or few, who simply follow the New Testament in faith and practice, that they are "the church of Christ apart from sects;" but to say of them that they are "the church of Christ" without such qualification, when some of that church are not included in the expression, does not state what is the fact.

Finally, no one who knew David Lipscomb would suspect him of attempting to curry favor with the sects or with anybody else at the expense of sacrificing any New Testament truth; but, nevertheless, be urged in public and in private that we accept and encourage anything they teach that is in the New Testament, and hence his pointed caution: "There is just a little danger that we get a little more righteous and strict than God." As stated in our ssue of April 28, 1921: "If a Baptist, Methodist, Presbyterian, Episcopalian, or anybody else teaches a New Testament truth on any subject whatever, let us accept it; but, on the other hand, if the most ardently loved and trusted preacher in all the church of God and a member of no denomination at all should teach an error, let us reject it." And I add, with the sainted Lipscomb, without hesitation: "I am just as sure that I have the approval of God in this as I am that the Bible is the will of God."

Sin and Disobedience.

BY J. C. M'Q.

All manner of sin is conceived in the heart. No man commits murder until after he has conceived and meditated murder in his heart. James (1: 13-15) tells us: "Let no man say when he is tempted, I am tempted of God; for God cannot be tempted with evil, and he himself tempteth no man: but each man is tempted, when he is drawn away by his own lust, and enticed. Then the lust, when it hath conceived, beareth sin: and the sin, when it is full-grown, bringeth forth death." When sin is conceived in the heart, it breaks out in the life in disobedience. Men must repent of their sins or they shall surely die. When a man repents of his sin, he thoroughly hates. loathes, and turns away from it. Nothing short of this is genuine repentance; and without genuine repentance there is no salvation. The prophet Ezekiel says: "The soul that sinneth, it shall die," (Ezek. 18: 20.) Few of us realize how terrible and how awful are the effects of sin. Could we know the aches, pains, and sorrows of all peoples that have ever lived or ever will live on the face of the earth; could we behold the pale-faced dead from the very beginning until time shall be no more, and could we hear the cries and feel the pains of all the doomed in torment, we would then have but a faint conception of the terrible work of sin.

When we think of sin in its awful work, we are almost ready to conclude that we will never be guilty of it. When, however, we think of the sins of Abraham, of Lot, of Jacob, of David, of Peter, and of others, we are disillusioned. The beloved John tells us: "If we say that we have no sin, we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us. If we confess our sins, he is faithful and righteous to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." (1 John 1: 8, 9.) People who do not have very much respect for the word of God sometimes contend that if they had been in the position of Adam and Eve they would not have been guilty of disobedience. Yet, when we analyze the temptation of Adam and Eve, we find that the tempter presented to them the very strongest temptation that can be presented to any man. Adam and Eve were living in happiness in the garden of Eden. They were commanded not to eat of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil, with the solemn warning that in the day they ate thereof they should surely die. But the serpent beguiled the woman, and said to her: "Ye shall not surely die: for God doth know that in the day ye eat thereof, then your eyes shall be opened, and ye shall be as God, knowing good and evil." "And when the woman saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was a delight to the eyes, and that the tree was to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat; and she gave also unto her husband with her, and he did eat." (See Gen. 3: 3-6.) Now let us note the strength of this temptation. Before the woman listened to the seductive voice of the tempter she saw that the tree was good for food, that it was a delight to the eyes, and that it was to be desired to make one wise. Here we have the lust of the flesh, the lust of the eyes, and the vainglory of life. This is all of the world, as we learn from John. No temptation can embrace more and bestronger than was this temptation. "For all that is in the world, the lust of the flesh and the lust of the eyes and the vainglory of life, is not of the Father, but is of the world." (1 John 2: 16.)

No matter how severe our temptations are and how hard they are to bear, we should remember that no one is called upon to pass through a greater temptation than was Eve; but in the midst of all of our temptations, in the midst of the darkest hours that we are called upon to pass through, we should remember that God will not permit us to be tempted above that which we are able to bear. But we must fight sin in the power of Jehovah and with the help of the Lord Jesus Christ, and not in our own strength. When Paul was given a thorn in the flesh, the messenger of Satan to buffet him, that he should not be exalted overmuch, the Lord said to him: "My grace is sufficient for thee: for my power is made perfect in weakness." So Paul says: "Most gladly therefore will I rather glory in my weaknesses, fnat the power of Christ may rest upon me." (2 Cor. 12: g.) Again, we are assured: "But where sin abounded, grace did abound more exceedingly." (Rem. 5: 20.) What we lost in the first Adam, we gained in the second-the Lord Jesus Christ. No cloud is so dark that it does not have a silver lining. Sin with its terrible effects has blighted the lives of millions, but the grace of God has nullified its terrible effects and offers more than is lost by sin. God's grace has overcome the terrible effects of sin. If we will only draw nigh to God in hours of gloom and despair, he will draw nigh to us. No man has ever fallen so low that the grace of God is not able to lift him up. It is not so bad to fall, if a man realizes how terrible and how awful is his sin and gets up with his eyes on the cross of the Lord Jesus Christ. The person who has been stricken down by sin may be exalted by the grace of God, provided he trusts in the Lord Jesus Christ. No sooner had Adam sinned than did God determine to reach down a helping hand and lift him up from a world of sin, sorrow, and despair. In order to overcome the terrible ruin which sin had wrought, God sent his own dearly beloved Son, who gave his life to purify, redeem, and save sinners. Wonderful redemption did Christ bring to a lost and ruined world! how terrible or how awful our sins, if we truly repent of them and confess them, God will forgive us. He assures us that our sins and our iniquities he will remember no more. "Come now, and let us reason together, saith Jehovah: though your sins be as scarlet, they shall be as white as snow; though they be red like crimson, they shall be as wool." (Isa. 1: 18.) If it were not for the great love of God and for his boundless forgiveness, we would all sink down to a hopeless grave. The great trouble with sinners is that, when they sin, they are not humbled by their sins, and do not hate and loathe them. God is more ready to forgive and lift up sinners than they are to repent,

And Christians should forgive the truly penitent, should consider their own weaknesses and seek to restore such in a spirit of meekness. "Brethren, even if a man be overtaken in any trespass, ye who are spiritual, restore such a one in a spirit of gentleness; looking to thyself, lest thou also be tempted." (Gal. 6: 1.) If God did not forgive us, how terrible would be our state! This world would be a world to us without a sun, a night without a star, and a desert without an easis. How terrible are our own shortcomings when compared with the perfection of the Lord Jesus Christ! Christ, in all of his perfection, in all of his goodness, gently said to the woman who sinned: "Go, and sin no more." So we should encourage the penitent sinner, the one who has confessed his wrongs and turned away from them, to take a firmer hold upon the Lord Jesus Christ and by a life of devotion and humility to do more in his service, to lift up the fallen, to guide the erring, and to point all to the Lamb of God, who taketh away the sin of the world. "For we have not a high priest that cannot be touched with the feeling of our infirmities; but one that hath been in all points tempted like as we are, yet without sin. Let us therefore draw near with boldness unto the throne of grace, that we may receive mercy, and may find grace to help us in time of need." (Heb. 4: 15, 16.)

"A Convincing Argument."

BY F. W. SMITH.

Reference was made last week to the lifelong work of David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell in contending for the truth, or their work of religious discussions. In scanning the pages of the Gospel Advocate for the year 1866, page 365, I note the following:

The Western Recorder, of Louisville, Ky., has been very virulent in its opposition to the union of the Disciples of It has given Christ and Baptists in one scriptural body. the points of difference, and endeavored to show wherein the Baptists were right and the Disciples wrong. the differences was that the Disciples did not believe in "total depravity." In an article in the number of May 12, involving some of the differences, the following are made: "God knows and men know that (1) conviction, (2) repentance, (3) the effects of repentance, (4) time, space for repentance, and (5) joy, gladness, these things have no place in the so-called Reformation. By the advocates of that system, these things are ignored, denounced as unscriptural and absurd. Reformers require no evidence that these realities ever existed with those who join their churches. In proof of which, sinners are received for baptism by said advocates while their hearts are enmity to Gcd. Their lips never moved in a single prayer. Their tongues, as it were, black with cursing, and daring audacity written on their very foreheads against the Heaven-born principles of vital godliness. Sinners, with their mouths unwashed from the test oaths, without con-viction, without repentance, or any of its effects, and without an hour of time for the exercise of these things, such persons are urged by reformers to baptism, an external physical act, in order to the remission of sins. Of all the graceless absurdities, from Mohammed to Joe Smith, is not this unconditionally the climax?

Now, we ask, where is the man that doubts any longer the existence of total depravity? He that doubts, after that statement by a man—a religious man, and a Paptist religious man—is slow of belief, indeed. Not only the statement, but an attempt to dragoon the God of heaven into the witness of the truth of such a statement. Now, friend Recorder, give us evidence that that man's heart was as depraved at birth as when he penned the foregoing statement, and we are a firm believer evermore in the existence of total depravity from birth, and that his parents were as depraved in heart as he, and we are henceforth unshaken believers in the existence of total hereditary depravity.

Thus with a few strokes of his mighty pen David Lipscomb cut to the very heart and laid bare the true inwardness of a spirit posing as servant of the meek and lowly Christ, but which in reality was steeped in the wickedness of misrepresentation and vile scandal. The venerable senior editor of the Gospel Advocate never permitted such flagrant insults to the God of heaven and his holy word to go unchallenged. He was as quick to defend the truth against the false teaching and practice of those in the church as he was that of those without. Well do I remember the great battle he fought against the destructive higher critics Langan and Procter, as well as many others. It was a long and hard fight; but when the smoke of battle cleared away, the Bible was held aloft by the hand of David Lipscomb, and its foes were seen fleeing from the contest. When it seemed that innovations would engulf the churches of Christ from one end of the country to the other, he unsheathed his sword and carved these innovations to mincemeat, thus saving the cause in many places from its enemies. No false teacher ever reared his head in the church that David Lipscomb did not shoot at it, and no sectarian ever undertook to abuse or misrepresent the church of Christ without feeling the weight of his pen. Was he abused, maligned, and misrepresented? Yes, by those in and out of the church; but, like Paul, he permitted none of those things to move him.

We have often heard the little child cry to go home. We have heard the youth, the young men and middle-aged say: "I must go home." And are we all from home? O, precious promise of a home in heaven!—Selected.

A. A. Bunner, 1800 West Fifty-fourth Street, Cleveland, Ohlo, sends in a list of persons and one congregation from whom he has received contributions totaling sixty-one dollars and twenty-five cents, and says: "For all of these donations I not only feel profoundly thankful to the donors, but especially to a kind and merciful Father in heaven. My hope and prayer is that I may yet be saved from a surgical operation."

From I. B. Bradley, Moulton, Ala., June 1: "I closed an eight-days' meeting with the church in Rome, Ga., May 23. We had small crowds, except on Lord's days. The church there is weak from several standpoints, and needs a good, strong man to devote all his time to the work. They need teaching—0, so much! One was baptized. Prejudice is strong and determined. It will take a man of prudence, experience, and ability to accomplish anything there. But they are not able to support a man if he could be found, for the work. I am in a meeting with the church at Moulton this week. Small crowds and interest low. Farmers all busy. The church is weak, but is trying to do something. They have a building fund started for a new house. I shall leave for Dickson, Tenn., next week."

J. D. Tant sends us the following evangelistic report: "I have just closed my second meeting in North Carolina, at Warner's Chapel, with nine baptized and the church pulled out of the anti-Bible-study channel, with a good Sunday school started with four classes to be taught the Bible each Sunday, with scriptural literature to help them in their Bible studies. I look for much good to result from this meeting. For a long time this church has had an idea that it is wrong to teach the Bible to our children on Sunday, for such would be a Sunday school; so they, by neglect to teach the young the Bible, had allowed them to drift off into the sectarian churches. But after teaching those good people that the Sunday school is not an organization nor society, but only a church work in which the word of God is taught to all classes, they at once saw their mistake in their past failure and went to work to remedy the same."

Building material is somewhat cheaper than it has been, and by paying cash for everything and doing most of the work ourselves we hope to reduce the cost to a minimum. Miss Nellie Straiton, Fort Worth, Texas, says that during the first quarter of this year she received and forwarded to Sister Lillie Cypert, in Japan, $300; to others, $49. She then says: "The work in Japan is growing, and our missionaries are ready for greater and still greater work, but the contributions have not been increasing in proportion. Dear reader, your gift is needed, and without it the progress of the spread of the gospel will be hampered to that extent. A great many more regular monthly contributions are needed. Wen't several churches, Sunday-school classes, and scattered individual Christians respond to this call? And if there are those who cannot send every month, let them send an occasional gift, for these occasional gifts coming from many sources are a wonderful help in the work. If you want a copy of my 'Missionary Statement for 1920' or 'Do Japanese Girls Need Christian Teaching?' address Miss Nellie Straiton, 1030 South Lake Street, Fort Worth, Texas."

James E. Chessor, Centerville, Tenn., writes: "W. W. Bates, the drummer-preacher, of Nashville, Tenn., delivered five sermons in his native county of Hickman on May 28, 29. On Friday evening, May 27, he preached in Hohenwald, Lewis County. Coming into Hickman County on Saturday, he spoke to a great assemblage of people at a graveyard decoration on Sulphur Creek, and again at night at the church in the same community. On Sunday he preached in the morning on Sulphur Creek, and in the afternoon and at night at Coble, large and appreciative audiences being present at all the services. He visited for the first time in twenty years the scenes of his childhood and drank from the boyhood spring. Recently he buried his father in West Tennessee, and is now the only surviving member of the family, a younger brother and his mother having died many years ago. He referred to this feelingly in his address at the cemetery, and promised to return again next year."

Carl A. Gardner writes from Bardwell, Texas: "George Klingman preached for the brethren at Bardwell on Sunday, May 22. I am in the public-school work, but I am certain there is not a greater field for Christian service than in the education of the young people under Christian surroundings and influence. While other religious bodies go forward in unity for the advancement of their schools, we fuss about methods and policies. As individuals we can do anything under the sun that is right, and the best method we can find is the one to use.'

E. C. Fuqua writes of the work in Colorado: "We are building a new house at Colorado Springs, another at Boulder; our gospel tent has just cost us ninety-five dollars to get in readiness for the summer's campaign; we are pressed to meet payments on the house here at Fort Collius; and other matters of this nature take up all our means really more rapidly than we can supply them." Concerning his publication work he says: "As to my 'paper,' I am only printing tracts—one irregularly, in newspaper form, for free distribution; and I am fully convinced that ten times more people are being reached with the truthas I would preach it—than would be possible without this means. Aside from the purchase of the equipment (which is all fully paid for) this work costs little, as I put in my I am putting out about ten thousand spare time this way. tracts a month, and I know of great good being accom-plished through this means. Never will any help be asked for this phase of the work, since I mean to do only what I am enabled to do through volunteer donations.

Relative to a good brother's illness J. Will Henley writes: "Perhaps there are but a very few live, wide-awake Christians who do not know, or have not heard of, R. W. Arrington, of Stephens, Ark. I here suggest that the brethren be not unmindful of this sick brother, but that they supply his every need, and that they do it now. Let us make a deposit here in heaven's bank that will return unto us interest compounded many times. Jesus may be visited on the sick bed in this case. As for me, I have sent to him my prayers and my offering. Let others do likewise. Write him good, cheery letters. Call and see him when passing his way.

W. J. Matheson, of Mercer, Tenn., wishes to know whether it was the man or the unclean spirit which was in him speaking as recorded in Mark 5: 7-10, which reads: "And crying out with a loud voice, he saith, What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the Most High God? I adjure thee by God, torment me not. For he said unto him, Come forth, thou unclean spirit, out of the man. And he asked him, What is thy name? And he saith unto him, My name is Legion; for we are many. And he besought him much that he would not send them away out of the country." While the man evidently did the speaking, he was moved to do so by the evil spirit which was in him and which spoke through him. This is evident from the language of verse 7, which says: "And crying out with a loud voice, he saith. What have I to do with thee, Jesus, thou Son of the Most High God? I adjure thee by God, forment me not." Jesus said in verse 8: "Come forth, thou unclean spirit, out of the man." And Jesus asked him: "What is thy name?" The evil spirit said unto Jesus: "My name is Legion; for we are many."

W. A. Sisco, Lyles, Tenn., asks: "(1) What is the office duty of deacons? Should deacons take care of the funds of the church and use the means as the church directs? (2) Should the Lord's-day contributions be used for the support of preaching? Should preachers have any support for preaching on Lord's day only?"

1. The word "deacon" means a servant, a helper. It is frequently used in the Scriptures, and always means a servant, a minister, one that works for or in behalf of another. (Matt. 20: 26.) The word translated "deacon" is frequently rendered "minister." The seven appointed to attend to the Grecian widows at Jerusalem are usually regarded as deacons, though they are not so called in the Bible. The work of the deacon is gathered from the work the seven were appointed to do. The work of the seven was temporary, and some of the number were found preaching in the Dispersion. If these be the typical deacons of the church, the work of looking after the poor of the church and of seeing that their wants are supplied is clearly their duty. In 1 Tim, 3: 8-13 some of the qualifications are given. The passages are: "Deacons in like manner must be grave, not double-tongued, not given to much wine, not greedy of filthy lucre; holding the mystery of the faith in a pure conscience. And let these also first be proved; then let them serve as deacons, if they be blameless. Women in like manner must be grave, not slanderers, temperate, faithful in all things. Let deacons be husbands of one wife, ruling their children and their own houses well. For they that have served well as deacons gain to themselves a good standing, and great boldness in the faith which is in Christ Jesus." Some hold that this means that the deacon, as well as the elder, must be a married man, David Lipscomb, in reply to the question, "Must a deacon be a married man?" answered: "We do not think that language intended to require they should be married and have children; but as that was the common state of man, directions were given as to what kind of wives and children they should have. If it was prohibitory, Paul was unfit for a deacon; and he recommended that those who could restrain their passions should refrain from marriage that they might devote themselves exclusively to the service of God. The deacon is a servant of God and the church, That construction would present the case that Paul (1 Cor. 7: 30-35) recommended them to pursue a course to fit them for service of God; yet the course that he recommended prohibited their doing the service in some most important functions and positions."

2. I see no reason why the contributions made on the first day of the week should not be devoted to the support of preachers. "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I gave order to the churches of Galatia, so also do ye. Upon the first day of the week let each one of you lay by him in store, as he may prosper, that no collections be made when I come," (1 Cor. 16: 1, 2.) If it be right to contribute for the support of the saints on the first day of the week, it is certainly scriptural and right to contribute for any other good work on that day. They that preach the gospel should live of the gospel. "Even so did the Lord ordain that they that proclaim the gospel should live of the gospel." (1 Cor. 9: 14.) The preacher who labors during the week should not spoil the churches by preaching for them for nothing. He should be supported in the work and then dispense his own gifts. Both he and the church should give as the Lord has prospered them. A rich brother insisted that a preacher be secured to preach for a church who preached without any remuneration and also made a liberal contribution to the church.

W. T. Buffaloe, of Black Oak, Ark., asks the "Query Department" for an explanation of Acts 2: 38 in connection with Acts 3: 19. (1) He asks: "Does the expression, 'seasons of refreshing,' mean the forgiveness of one's past sins at the time of the baptizing or special blessings?" (2) He also wishes to know the meaning of John 4: 2, and asks: "Does the expression in parentheses mean that Christ baptized only his disciples and no others, or that he baptized no one at all, but his disciples did the baptizing?"

1. Acts 2: 38 reads as follows: "And Peter said unto them, Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins; and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." Acts 3: 19 reads: "Repent ye therefore, and turn again, that your sins may be blotted out, that so there may come seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord." Believers are required to repent and be baptized unto the remission of sins. In Acts 3: 19 believers were required to repent and turn again—that is, be baptized in order that their sins be blotted out. This is the same as Acts 2: 38, the blotting out of sins meaning remission of sins. Then follows "seasons of refreshing from the presence of the Lord," which evidently means the same as receiving the gift of the Holy Spirit.

2. John 4: 2 declares: "Although Jesus himself baptized not, but his disciples." The meaning of this is that Jesus did not baptize any one, only as he did it through his disciples. The statement of the Bible is so clear on this point that it is wholly unnecessary to elaborate upon it.

T. B. Lawrence, Anson, Texas, wishes to know if 1 Cor. 14: 34 applies to the churches to-day. The passage reads: "Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but let them be in subjection, as also saith the law." I see no reason why any one should say that this language does not apply to the church of the present time. The Bible was written for peoples of all ages. We find Paul teaching the same truth in 1 Tim. 2: 11-14, which reads: "Let a woman learn in quietness with all subjection. But I permit not a woman to teach, nor to have dominion over a man, but to be in quietness. For Adam was first formed, then Eve, and Adam was not beguiled, but the woman being beguiled hath fallen into transgression." I do not see how to make this any plainer, and would not for one moment undertake to say that such scriptures do not apply to the churches now as well as to the New Testament churches. It appears to me to be a species of infidelity to say that the language is not applicable to the churches of the present time.

Old Mothers.

I love the old mothers-mothers with white hair And kindly eyes and lips grown softly sweet With murmured blessing over sleeping babes. There is something in their quiet grace That speaks of the calm of Sabbath afternoons; A knowledge in their deep, unfaltering eyes That far outstretches all philosophy. Time with its caressing touch about them weaves The silver-threaded fairy shawl of age, While all the echoes of forgotten songs Seem joined to lend a sweetness to their speech. Old mothers! as they pace with slow-timed step, Their trembling hands cling gently to youth's strength; Sweet mothers! as they pass, one sees again Old garden walks, old roses, and old loves. -Exchange.

Would You Have Answered?

You would not be in a Japanese house long without noticing their extreme politeness, and that this politeness was especially shown by children toward their parents. The one thing that Japanese children must learn is perfect obedience. A child would as soon think of refusing to do a thing altogether, when told, as to ask why he must do it.

A little American girl, the child of a missionary, was playing in the street with some Japanese children.

"Mary," called her father from the house, "come in."

As she paid no attention, the others thought she had not heard, and began to say to her: "Your august father is calling you," "Your honorable parent is beckoning to you," and so on.

"I don't care," said Mary.

The children stopped playing and looked at her in astonishment. Her father called again. This time she answered crossly: "I don't want to come in. What for?"

At this the children picked up their playthings and hurried home, talking excitedly all the way. "Rude little foreigner!" "Bad little girl!" they said. And it was a long time before Mary saw anything of her friends again.—Lutheran.

Which Would Be Worse?

If a friend came by and said to you, "Let me have Janle for the afternoon. I'll take her down to the café and feed her some mince pie and some hot coffee, and "—

But you wouldn't let her get to the end of that grown-up menu before you would say a peremptory "No," for you are far too careful of your young daughter's physical health to want to see her stomach loaded with such a diet. Mince ple and coffee and so forth may have their own peculiar place in the dietary of a grown person, but you don't have to think twice to see that they have no place in the food catalogue of a little child.

But suppose the friend had said instead, "Let me have Janie for the afternoon. I want to take her to the picture show," would you have been thoughtful enough to ask what sort of a picture was being shown, or would you have put Janie's little bonnet on her and let her run along to have presented to her eyes some sort of deprayed hash of spiritual ideals and have said not a word about it? Maybe you say that your friend would not care for a deprayed or seductive picture, and so you would feel safe, after all.

My dear little mother, a great many grown-up people have not thought seriously about the diet of a child; and if you give over the feeding of your child into their hands, you will most likely have a sick child or an undernourished

one. But the wrong food in your child's stomach is easier to get rid of by the course of offended nature than is the subtle poison of a picture never meant for the heavenly eyes of childhood to see. Some people will tell you: "O. the children don't understand it, and so they either pay no attention to it or else go right out and forget it." That is not true. The plastic little brain stores it all away, and memory and imagination take it out and convert it into the most seductive poison when the time comes. My dear mother, do please be careful what sort of "picture food" you give the minds of your precious little folks. They have no business seeing any picture play in the world that you do not know personally to be the sort of spirit suggestion you want them to receive. The picture may be all right for grown people and yet be wholly unsuited for a child. Think of this when some one asks to take your child to a picture show .- Frances McKinnon Morton.

Where Was Mother?

Mr. Smith, hearing music at his neighbor's house, decided he would drop in and see how they were. Mr. Jones welcomed him and ushered him into the parlor, where his daughter was playing the piano and his son singing. Mr. Smith begged them to continue. They consented. The first song they selected was "Mother." They sang this very feelingly, and then father joined in the chorus. This was followed by "Mother Machree" and others of like sentiment. Then they stopped for a while, and Mr. Jones commented on songs about mother—how true they were, how dear, and how they leved to sing them. Then, as Mrs. Jones hadn't appeared yet, Mr. Smith inquired about her state of health. "O," said Mr. Jones, "she's well enough. She's in the kitchen doing the dishes, but after she has finished and taken in the wood she'll join us."—Exchange.

Ask Yourselves.

I want you to ask yourselves whether you make it fruitful in your lives, as you must answer to God at the judgment day. If you joy in an inward peace; if your private prayers are more a delight and less a task; if your communions are far more frequent, with a better preparation for each and a real thanksgiving after; if your family find you more loving, and your business associates note your work done more faithfully; if God is in all your thoughts, and you rejoice in being a fellow citizen with the saints: if you are readier to offer services and dues of every sort to God's holy church; if your Bible is growing more familiar, your speech kinder, your smile brighter-then praise God for the good seed sown, which is springing up in the garden of your heart, and resolve to tend that garden carefully. If not, then God grant you a fresh opportunity for receiving his word aright. May he have mercy on us all and bless us, not as we deserve, but out of the abundance of his grace,-William H. An Overdose of School.

There is only one set of children in the Hawaiian Islands, according to Everyland, who are not radiantly happy. These are the Japanese. Required by law to attend the American schools, they are required by their own people to attend also the Japanese schools held in connection with the Buddhist temples. So, for an hour or more before the American school bell rings, and again at three, when the American school "lets out," the little brown folk are at work in these Buddhist schools, studying aloud in that curious way that the Chinese also have. Doesn't it seem as if that were a little too much of a good thing?—Exchange.

Life Comes Through Obedience to God's Commands.

God has given us physical life, and he has provided means by which it is sustained. It is sustained by taking into the body the food that God has provided for it, fresh air, exercise, and whatever else God has given for the good of the body. God has adapted these things to the body and the body to them. There is no other way of keeping up our existence here. By taking into the body these things that God has given us and doing what he requires, we live; failing or refusing to do these things, we die.

God gave our first parents life at the beginning, but they lost it through transgression of his command. All responsible people have sinned and have come short of the glory of God. So all such have lost life, and it can be received again only through God's institutions, ordinances, and commands—through obedience to these.

At the beginning God required people to offer sacrifices at the altar; he recorded his name at the altar; and he promised to meet them there. This was God's means at this time by which they did his will. Later the Ten Commandments, with the other laws that grew out of them, were given; and all of these God gave them to observe. Then they had the tabernacle, with all of its service, ordinances, and commands. The temple at Jerusalem followed the tabernacle and took its place.

God met the children of Israel in obedience to all these laws, and blessed them as they did his will. He met them and blessed them through his laws, or ordinances, and service.

Through these alone no life could be received, but all of these pointed to the Christ; so through obedience to these they will receive life through Christ, who died for the sins of the whole world,

"But he answered and said, It is written, Man shall not live by bread alone, but by every word that proceedeth out of the mouth of God." (Matt. 4: 4.) So Jesus taught, as the Old Testament does, that life comes through the word of God. As people hear, learn, and obey the word of God, they enter into life; and it is sustained as we keep on doing God's will.

"Jesus saith unto them, My meat is to do the will of him that sent me, and to finish his work." (John 4: 34.) When we are doing the will of God, we are eating of spiritual food that will give us spiritual life. We should see from this the importance of obeying the commands of God, whatever they are.

"And this is life eternal, that they might know thee the only true God, and Jesus Christ, whom thou hast sent." (John 17: 3.) Jesus knew the Father, pleased his Father, and honored his Father by doing his will. We can only know God and Jesus Christ, and please them, by learning and obeying their commands; and we have life as we do this, and by doing this through life we enter into eternal life at last.

In the great commission, given by Jesus to the apostles for the whole world, we have the commands in obedience to which the sinner is brought into Christ, or into life. Baptism is the last of these, and even it must be obeyed before the sinner can receive remission of his sins, and receive life through the death and blood of Christ.

Then we have the worship, work of the church, and all the Christian duties that are to be observed by the children of God; and in doing all of these we have life day by day. So that we receive life and sustain it through God's laws, institutions, and commands. Apart from these, no life can be received. Hence the importance of always respecting what God says, trembling at his word, and never adding to it, taking from it, or changing it, but always letting the truth of Jehovah settle all disputes and questions.

It takes life to produce and sustain life. We owe our existence to God. In all the food that we eat, that sustains our physical life, life has been given. That which has had no life in it is not food for as. Jesus gave his life that we might live. "I am come that they might have life, and that they might have it more abundantly." (John 10: 10.) We receive life through him by doing what he says. He is "the way, the truth, and the life." "And why call ye me, Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say?" (Luke 6: 46.) "Blessed are they that do his commandments, that they may have right to the tree of life, and may enter in through the gates into the city." (Rev. 22: 14.)

Warning Quotations.

BY H. C. FLEMING.

In view of the present condition of the world, it may be well to call the attention of the reader to the following quotations, without comment, hoping that some will read all in connection therewith and be warned in time to draw near to God that he may draw near to them.

"Noah, being warned of God of things not seen as yet, moved with fear, prepared an ark to the saving of his house." (Heb. 11: 7.)

"Whom we preach, warning every man, and teaching every man in all wisdom; that we may present every man perfect in Christ Jesus." (Col. 1: 28.)

"To whom shall I speak, and give warning, that they may hear? behold, their ear is uncircumcised, and they cannot hearken: behold, the word of the Lord is unto them a reproach; they have no delight in it." (Jer. 6: 10.)

"Therefore watch, and remember, that by the space of three years I ceased not to warn every one night and day with tears." (Acts 20: 31.)

"I write not these things to shame you, but as my beloved sons I warn you." (1 Cor. 4: 14.)

"Then said he to the multitude that came forth to be baptized of him, O generation of vipers, who hath warned you to flee from the wrath to come?" (Luke 3: 7.)

"And he said, Take heed that ye be not deceived: for many shall come in my name, saying, I am Christ; and the time draweth near: go ye not therefore after them." (Luke 21: 8.)

"But evil men and seducers shall wax worse and worse, deceiving and being deceived." (2 Tim. 3: 13.)

"For as Jonas was a sign unto the Ninevites, so shall also the Son of man be to this generation." (Luke 11: 30.)

"Take heed therefore unto yourselves, and to all the flock, over the which the Holy Ghost hath made you overseers, to feed the church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20: 28.)

"And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be." (Rev. 22: 12.)

"And these shall go away into everlasting punishment: but the righteous into life eternal." (Matt. 25: 46.)

"For I say, through the grace given unto me, to every man that is among you, not to think of himself more highly than he ought to think; but to think soberly, according as God hath dealt to every man the measure of faith." (Rom. 12: 3.)

"Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall be also reap." (Gal. 6: 7.)

"Likewise ye, when ye shall have done all those things which are commanded you, say, We are unprofitable servants: we have done that which was our duty to do." (Luke 17: 10.)

"Whereby are given unto us exceeding great and precious promises: that by these ye might be partakers of the divine nature, having escaped the corruption that is in the world through lust." (2 Pet. 1: 4.)

"Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven." (Matt. 7: 21.)

"And ye shall be hated of all men for my name's sake: but he that endureth to the end shall be saved." (Matt. 10: 22.)

The Work at Tyner, Tenn.

BY FLAVIL HALL.

Last Lord's day (May 29) I spoke morning and evening for the faithful ones at Tyner, Tenn. We met in the home of Sister Harris. No. 55 was called for, and with delight we sang about the announcement of the glorious Lord's-day morning by the rising of the sun; about singing and praying together, reading "the dear old Book by which Jehovah's love and blessed will we see," eating and drinking "the supper set by Him who has gone before," contributing, thinking of the absent ones, "of faithful ones who've gone to live with Jesus o'er the deep blue sea," the Father's love, his help, our desire to do his will and to please him, our confidence that he will safely bring us through all the trials of our earthly pilgrimage "till we reach the land of promise" by and by; and about the blessedness of obeying the words of Him who died for us.

The worship according to the New Testament was started at Tyner by three sisters. Now from twelve to seventeen meet with them regularly, and a Christian boy of fifteen, Albert Robinson, leads the worship. They have started them a neat house of worship, and need at least eight hundred dollars with which to finish it, and this surely should be forthcoming. If courage, resoluteness, zeal, and loyalty under difficulties do not appeal to the sympathies of Christians and stir them to give support to a few, in whom such qualities are eminent, it is because they have not been rightly educated. The determination and stability of a few under trials is the strongest evidence possible of the future success and permanence of the work.

Brother Charles Holder, of Bridgeport, Ala., told me last Lord's-day morning that the efforts of the faithful few at Tyner could not fail, and that Tyner was one of the best localities for a true church that he knew of, since a high school of eminence is there; and let it be remembered that Sister Daisy
Chambers Major, from Wilson County,

Tenn, is the wife of the principal, and is leading in the effort to establish a true church permanently at Tyner. The restrictive clause is in the deed, and so no one need have any fears along that line.

Of the starting of the South College Street Church, in Nashville, Brother F. D. Srygley wrote as follows: "He started the work which resulted in the establishment of the church on South College Street, Nashville, of which he is now senior elder and in which there are over five hundred members, by preaching the first sermon in that part of town to an audience of three, all of whom were women, in an upper room over the firemen's hall." It was the lamented David Lipscomb who did that. His second sermon there was to an audience of six, and thus the work steadily grew. Cast away perverted ideas about immediate growth in numbers and send donations to Mrs. W. W. Major, Tyner, Tenn. Were it not for her activities, Christians who now are worshiping faithfully would be worshiping nowhere, and that boy, Albert Robinson, would not be under the influence of the true church,

A little too late is a lot too late.

Pure doctrine is the lifeblood of the church.

Character is determined by what we emphasize.

All the light of hope is the reflection on our hearts of the light of God.

They alone are able to enjoy this world who begin with the world unseen.

Patient waiting for an answer to prayer is a clear proof of faith in our Lord.

The darkest word is "sin;" the meanest word is "hypocrisy;" the shortest word is "time;" the longest word is "eternity."

How wonderfully beautiful is the delineation of the characters of the three patriarchs in Genesis! To be sure, if ever man could, without impropriety, be called, or supposed to be, "the friend of God," Abraham was that man. We are not surprised that Abimelech and Ephron seem to reverence him so profoundly. He was peaceful, because of his conscious relation to God.

Paragraphs.

BY JOHN T. HALL.

In all congregations of Christians that we know there are a great many careless, indifferent members, who claim to be Christians and on their way to a better world. Some of them are acting and living out Christlike lives (morally), but do not attend church. We know that going to church on Lord's day is not all of the duty of a church member. Many of the above-mentioned ones are more upright in their lives than some who would almost risk all to get to church regularly. It is a great pity all cannot be brought to understand that the work of the church is a coöperative work, and that no one on this earth can prosper spiritually unless he does his part in the cooperation. "No man liveth unto himself."

If you believe that there are members of the church who are guilty of wrongs that you would be ashamed to commit, join in with the better element and help to make all what they should be. If you have not the confidence in yourself that you can help others to live right and be happy, just turn a new leaf and go in that direction yourself. It will not be very long until you will feel that you are indeed a new creature in Christ Jesus.

Do not always be talking or speaking of the faults of others, and you will have more friends and a greater influence for good. The great Webster said: "He that is constantly caviling over the little imperfections of his fellow beings will soon find mankind united against him." We often blame others for something we are guilty of ourselves. James said: "Keep yourself unspotted from the world." When you fail to be governed by the divine law, you are going in the wrong direction and your life is not what it ought to be.

No parents who fail to unite with the Christian world in the effort to convert the world to Christ need expect to wield an influence for good over their children. If you want the congregation with which you stand identified to be a benefit, a blessing. and a light in the community in which you live, get out of that state of indifference and "put on the whole armor of God." Let your light for good shine for the betterment of the church and God's cause in every way. Be a worker for the right in every way, and by so living you will have for company as you pass on the One that Solomon spoke of as a "friend that sticketh closer than a brother," and you will be saved at last.

When we all get busy in the right way, good results will come. One of the sons of the great John D. Rockefeller was traveling through and stopped off in some city. He was

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their eloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niehe of eteraal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivairy of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox kound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase.

asked to make a speech and to tell when he thought times would change for the better. His reply was: "When we all follow in the footsteps of the lowly Nazarene."

In this fast age of the twentieth century it is no easy matter to avoid too much effort to make money, engaging in worldliness, etc. The old adage is appropriate: "Get right: time is precious." A dying poet prayed for just one more day, and then for just one more hour, that he might get nearer into the right way. If you will get a move on yourself, attend more to little things, talk more in the right way, and live out your pretensions, somebody will listen to you, some one will follow in your footsteps. Going in this direction, you will be a benefactor, a blessing, and a shining light.

A Point Overlooked.

BY R. L. WHITESIDE.

A great lamentation is heard concerning the scarcity of preachers. The call is for more preachers. We have overlooked one point-namely, there is a greater need for more preaching. There are nice speeches in plenty, but we have drifted away from solid gospel preaching. We deal much in words, illustrations, word painting, catchy sayings, but not much in gospel facts. It has been my happy privilege to hear such masters as Lipscomb, Sewell, Brents, Kurfees, Taylor, Sutton, and other great preachers. What I hear now is painfully different. If all who really profess to be preachers of the gospel would cease their efforts to please and entertain, and preach the solid gospel of Jesus Christ, it would, in a measure, meet the demands for more preachers, and might result in enlisting others to help in the great work. If you wish to stir up in a boy a desire to preach, preach the gospel to him. When I listen to some men perform in the pulpit, I am reminded of Hamlet's answer when asked what he was reading-"Words, words, words," said he.

If there were no valley, there would be no aspiration for the heights.

RENWAR VS. RHEUMATISM.

RENWAR VS. RHEUMATISM.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the latense pains of rheumatism when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood; and in order to effect a complete cure, it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve, or your money refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50c bottle has done me more good than all sanatorium treatments; and what it did for me, why should it not do the same for others? Should any one doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of ouring this malady, refer them to me." FIELD REPORTS

Denton, Texas, May 31.-I am now at Baird in a meeting, but I can hardly tell how things are as to the prospect for a successful meeting. was asked to come here and preach what they call the "baccalaureate sermon" for the High School on May 22, and I spoke to a packed house, and all seemed to enjoy my talk; but I tell you it is anything in the way of excuses these days to stay away from religious and church services. I spoke Sunday night to a large hearing in the school auditorium on "The Crime Wave, and Its Cause and Cure," and all seemed to realize the gravity of the situation; but to get people to take the remedy and effect a cure for this awful malady which is to-day covering the whole earth is a task not so easy to do. We are to have a meeting down town on the streets to-day, and hope to do some good. I will remain here, I judge, over the second Sunday in June, then I am asked to hold a mission meeting at Coppell, where we have no church and but two or three members. I have been there a time or two already, and I tell you, brethren, I never have seen a more receptive people. O, how badly we need mission work in our homeland!-D. S. Ligon.

Decherd, Tenn., May 31.—I recently closed a good meeting at Coalmont. The interest was good throughout the meeting, and large crowds attended the services. Two confessed their wrongs. Brother Bailey Brooks was with me most of the time. I being sick at the beginning of the meeting, he conducted the meeting until I was able to preach. He also led the song service. Brother Brooks is a good preacher and a good man, and ought to be kept busy preaching all of the time. I have just closed a good meeting in (West) Huntsville, Ala. I believe this to have been the most interesting meeting that I ever conducted. Fourteen were baptized and eighteen confessed their wrongs. He is an active elder of the church, together with Brethren Reed and Anderson, both good and zealous elders. The brethren here have one of the best Lord'sday Bible schools I have ever visited. I made my home with Brother and Sister Welch, who know how to make a preacher feel at home. Brother J. R. Coop led the song service for the meeting.-R. E. L. Taylor.

Albertville, Ala., June 1.—On Saturday before the third Sunday in May I went to Anniston, Ala., to continue a meeting begun by Brother Woodroof the Sunday before. I found a band of zealous Christians there, who, under the leadership of C. H. Woodroof, are doing much to advance the cause in and around Anniston. I stayed with them a week, and I never spent a week more pleasantly. The cooperation of the brethren was all that I could have desired, and Brother Woodroof knows just how to give a fellow preacher that unselfish cooperation that is so helpful in a meeting. He is an untiring worker, and has done a great work in Anniston, and all the brethren and sisters speak in the highest terms of his faithfulness. There were four baptisms during the meeting, and I think the members were greatly strengthened. My home while there was with Dr. Jere Watson and family, and a better preacher's home would be hard to find. From Anniston I went to Childersburg and preached on the fourth Sunday. It is always a pleasure to me to go there-not because I have a big crowd to preach to, for they surely have us boycotted in that town, but because of one brother and a few sisters who, in spite of the opposition, are courageously and faithfully fighting the good fight of faith. This work was started some years ago by Brother John T. Lewis; and although it has met with bitter opposition from the start, much good has grown out of the work there, and as sure as Jehovah's promises are true much more good will come of it, for a more faithful lit-tle band is not found every day. It is encouraging and inspiring to visit them and witness their faith and zeal. -R. N. Moody.

The Day of Christ.

No man rightly desires Christ's coming but he that hath assurance of benefit at his coming. To him the Day of Christ is as the day of harvest to the husbandman; as the day of deliverance to the prisoner; as the day of coronation to the king; the day of wedlock to the bride; a day of triumph and exultation, a day of freedom and consolation, a day of rest and satisfaction. To him the Lord Jesus is all sweetness, as wine to the palate, ointment to the nostrils, honey to the mouth; music to the ear, and a jubilee in the heart. Get assurance of Christ's coming, as a ransomer to redeem you, as a conqueror to subdue all your enemies under you, as a friend to comfort you, as a bridegroom to marry you, and then shall you, with boldness and confidence, with joy and gladness, with vehement and holy longing, say: "Come, Lord Jesus."-Grosse.

Making Progress in Mississippi.

BY M. C. CAYCE.

Our meeting here is attended with interest. Three have been baptized, and others seem to be "almost persuaded." We have purchased from the Cumberland Presbyterians a good, centrally located meetinghouse with a seating capacity of three to four hun-This house is just what is needed, is located in the right place, and was bought for the moderate sum of two thousand one hundred and thirty-seven dollars and fifty cents. Business men here in position to know say the lot, if vacant, would bring the price. Of course this house is yet to be paid for. This is the county seat of Lowndes County, a town of colleges and schools. The Mississippi State College, for girls, with a student body of about one thousand, is located here. This school is supported by the State, and preparations are now being made to enlarge materially the present capacity. Girls coming here to school are allowed to attend the church of their choice; but those girls who are members of the one body, and who are content with the simple New Testament worship, have had no choice but to attend some of the popular denominations, among which is the "progressive" church, which uses instruments of music and societies. This important place we have overlooked too long. I find that our brethren are always ready to lend a helping hand where needed. In Jackson, the capital of this State, we have purchased a house from the Presbyterians; and without mentioning the matter through the papers or making any appeal for help. I simply wrote a few personal letters, and on my visit home in April a few of our Nashville congregations cheerfully and promptly subscribed enough, with what the letters brought in, to pay for this house. Now, isn't that fine, and doesn't it prove conclusively that societies of men are unnecessary to do the Lord's work, and that we need no means of raising funds other than that taught us by God-namely, cheerful freewill offerings? People who think that the church of Christ is not missionary tust simply do not know. They do not

The Church in Washington, D. C. BY J. P. SEWELL.

The church in Washington is of more than usual interest for several

It is in our capital city, and furnishes a church home for those who gather there from all of the States for government work, and a place of worship for those who are called there on various kinds of official business.

Washington is necessarily a center of influence, and the church there should become a radiating center of spiritual truth and power. It has a wonderful opportunity so to do. It is making an excellent start in that direction. With just a reasonable amount of additional assistance from the brethren at large, it will be in a position to put on a strong program of expansion. I sincerely believe it may be depended on to do so. The missionary spirit is very strong; in fact, it is difficult for the leaders to hold it in check until other necessary things are finished. The congregation possesses the spiritual strength, knowledge of and love for the truth, the intelligence and zeal, making possible and highly probable a great missionary church just as soon as their present financial obligations are met and they are thus made free to proceed. The field about them is large and very inviting. I desire to urge that every congregation and individual disciple in the country who has had fellowship in this work send another gift at once, as much as possible, that the remaining eleven thousand dollars, or thereabout, due on their property may be paid. This will make them free to put on the missionary program they are so anxious and able to put on.

This church is of more than usual interest because of the further fact that hundreds of disciples from every section of the country have had fellowship in it and are thus personally interested.

Sister Sewell and I recently enjoyed the pleasure of two weeks with them. I am glad to make this report to all who are interested. We have much more, both in material and spiritual equipment, than I expected to find. Brethren, if each of you could make a thorough personal inspection of the work as I did, I believe you would feel just as I do, and would be exceedingly happy that you have had part in it.

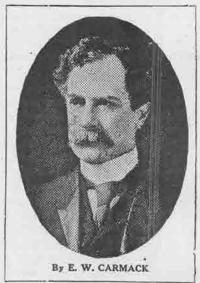

The congregation has grown very rapidly since moving into their permanent home and is much larger in number than I expected. It is even now stronger than the average church in spiritual knowledge and strength and intellectual equipment. They are sane, conservative, and safe. They know well and are devoted to the plea I for the restoration of the faith and practice of the New Testament In my twenty-five years' preaching I have never preached for a church that stood more loyally by the plain, uncompromising preaching of the whole truth. I thought the circumstances called for it, and I preached the old-time gospel just as plainly and aggressively as possible. Not one of them "flinched" or said "be careful," so far as I heard.

The elders and deacons are good men, intelligent and well trained, loyal to Christ, and free from hobbies. An unusually large per cent of the members take part efficiently in the worship and service. This much for the spiritual side of the work.

Their location is ideal. I doubt if a better one could be selected in Washington. The lot has a long frontage and is beautifully terraced. The house is a fireproof structure, nearly new, modern in design and structure. It contains a good auditorium and a number of well-arranged classrooms. It sits well back from the noise and publicity of the street. In their appeals for assistance they certainly have not exaggerated the desirability or value of the property.

It would not be right to close this report without expressing my appreciation of Brother and Sister W. S. Long. I think I have never seen a man more completely "wrapped up" in his work. It seems that nothing else gets into his mind, heart, or life. Everything he sees or hears promptly reminds him of something connected with that work. He is out early and late hunting up and interesting and teaching the people. He moves faster, covers more ground, and sees more people than any man I have ever been with. Sister Long is a delicate little woman; but, in order that Brother Long may give his entire time to the work of an evangelist in that great city and the church be able to pay its part on their debt, she does eight hours' hard work each day in a government department.

I am glad I went to Washington; I am glad I can make this report. I sincerely say, after two weeks of careful study of the situation, that I consider every penny given to the Washington work well invested. You have real cause for rejoicing in the stock that you own in that service; and if you have none, you should secure as much as you can afford before it is all gone. I believe it will pay dividends permanently.

To-night there is a hush abroad; It is as though all winds were awed Before the present face of God; A hush on earth from plains to peaks, And yet we know to him who seeks Divinity in silence speaks.

Is Idaho a Part of the World?

BY T. S. FLYNN.

"And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," (Mark 16: 15.) Now, does this include Southern Idaho? If so, how long will the preachers be finding it out? This must be a part of the world; and there are many creatures here that have not had the gospel preached to them. There is a Christian Church at Twin Falls and one at Buhl, but at present neither of them has a preacher; and there is no church of Christ or preacher of that kind in all this great country. They go to California, Oregon, Washington, and even up into Canada; but they continue to leave us to the tender mercies of the world, the denominations, and the devil. Now, something must be wrong. I know some preachers that will preach two discourses on the first day of the week and take it easy the remainder of the week. I do not wish to judge our preaching brethren wrongfully or harshly; for Christ said: "Judge not, that ye be not judged." But the same Christ said in the same chapter: "By their fruits ye shall know them."

This is a great farming country. Now, brother, we will suppose you are farming here. You employ a man to work for you, and he comes on Monday and works well for two hours, then goes home and spends the remainder of the week, reads up on agriculture, and returns next Monday and works a couple of hours. What kind of a crop do you think you would make?

"And there were in the same country shepherds abiding in the field, keeping watch over their flock by night." (Luke 2: 8.) This is also a fine sheep country. A flock or band consists of from fifteen hundred to two thousand. In early spring the shepherd takes his flock to the mountains, from fifty to one hundred miles away, where there is nice grass and water for the sheep. Also there are many wolves and other wild animals, including the mountain lion. But he spends the summer with his sheep, so that he can watch over them day and night, and brings them back in the fall. This seems a little Faul-like. Now, suppose he takes his sheep to the mountains and gives them a good lick of salt, and returns home and spends the week; then goes back with another lick of salt on the next Monday, and continues this method the summer through. What condition would his flock be in at the time of bringing them home? "The hireling fleeth, because he is a hireling, and careth not for the sheep," (John 10: 13) I fear too many are afraid of the wolf. Really, don't you think if every one that is preaching the gospel would put the energy and effort into it that Paul did, the world would see things in a different light?

Now, this is not to offend any one, and it will not offend any one that is doing his best to spread the gospel of Christ. But this is a much-neglected country. Any one interested will please write T. S. Flynn, Castleford, Idaho.

Deficient Vitality a Great Misfortune.

Persons that can rarely or never say that they feel full of life are really among the most unfortunate. They do not live, but merely exist; for to live implies more than to be. To live is to be well and strong—to arise feeling equal to the ordinary duties of the day, and to retire not overcome by them—to feel life bounding in the veins.

A medicine that has made thousands of people, men and women, well and strong, has accomplished a great work, bestowing the richest blessings. Such a medicine is Hood's Sarsaparilla. The weak, run-down, or debilitated, from any cause, should not fail to take it. It builds up the whole system, changes existence into life, and makes life more abounding. It is simple justice to say these words in its fayor.

Hood's Pills very effectively supplement it in cases where a cathartic or laxative is needed.

God has not left himself without witness. The light of the great imperative is in every soul.—Selected.

A Personal Statement.

BY A. B. L.

During my public ministry I have often had occasion to call attention to the troubles and temptations and sorrows of others, but in this article I ask the privilege of calling attention to my personal weakness and sin. For let me say, first of all, without equivocation or any attempt to excuse myself or to have others share the blame, that I have sinned grievously against God and man, for which I have been and am still deeply penitent. My conscience and a knowledge of duty under the circumstances have prompted a voluntary and complete confession of wrongdoing, with a plea for mercy and pardon. James exhorts: "Humble yourselves in the sight of the Lord, and he shall lift you up." "If we say that we have no writes John, "we deceive ourselves, and the truth is not in us." If we confess our sins, he is faithful and just to forgive us our sins, and to cleanse us from all unrighteousness." I have taken these and other passages bearing upon the subject at their face value, and have acted in full accord with their teaching.

With a consciousness of having received from God the forgiveness for which I pleaded, I feel that the attitude of all true children of God toward me should be that of our Heavenly Father. "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." One of the compensations for my suffering has been the appreciable number of expressions of love and confidence that have come from warm, true-hearted friends at one place and another who had heard of my trouble and desired to speak a message of comfort and good cheer. That they were thoughtful of me in such a crisis shall never be forgotten. Their kindness has given me a new and deeper impression of "the tie that binds" and the value of "a word fitly spoken." I find, too, that the confession I made to the church has been given undue publicity, due, perhaps, to my prominence heretofore along various lines. Some who liked to gossip and were indifferent to the consequences, being unacquainted with the facts in the case and lacking details, have supplied them to suit themselves. This was to my hurt, but I accept it without resentment. The chief reason for this personal statement is that all may know that Christ has given me the grace and courage to do under these trying circumstances just what I have urged others to do, and that I am trying to walk humbly before my God. There were some close friends who thought it the part of wisdom for me not to make so public a confession, the circumstances not demanding it, but to confess it to the elders of the church; but my own conscience suggested the course I have pursued, and I stand ready to abide by the consequences, holding on to the promise that all things will work together for my good if I but love and trust my Savior. "For I am persuaded that neither death, nor life, nor angels, nor principalities, nor powers, nor things present, nor things to come, nor height, nor depth, nor any other creature, shall be able to separate us from the love of God, which is in Christ Jesus our Lord."

For several months I have, contrary to the advice of physician, relatives, and friends, undertaken to do too many things. I realize now how serious was the mistake, for the excessive load has brought on physical weakness, and that, too, at a time when I needed strength to resist, and causing me to do some things that I hate. I mention this as a circumstance, but not as an excuse for my offense, for there is no excuse for sin. Moreover, the bitter experience has, as never before, shown to me "the exceeding sinfulness of sin" and its awful effect upon the heart and life of man. Truly has the apostle said: "The flesh lusteth against the Spirit, and the Spirit against the flesh; and these are contrary the one to the other: so that ye cannot do the things that ye would."
