The school is not designed to be a reform school. Only those students who desire to obey the regulations and to improve their time are encouraged to come; others are excluded. The Bible is the study of supreme importance. Every student is required to recite a lesson in it every day. The study and practice of these lessons yields an influence that can be obtained in no other way. The faculty, board of trustees, and student body have all acted in great harmony and good will.

The course of study has been much improved and standardized under its new president, H. S. Lipscomb. The college is a member of the Tennessee Association of Colleges. Its graduates receive full value of two years' college work in all other colleges. Those of our graduates who complete the courses offered in Education and Psychology receive high-school certificates to teach without examinations.

The Commencement address this year was delivered by Brother E. A. Elam, president of the Board of Trustees. This address was delivered at the formal commencement exercises, held on Tuesday, June 5. There were sixteen graduates in College and twenty-one in the High School Department.

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily occur from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if no change by that time, notify us at once.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrearages, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

A Loyal Christian and a Loyal Church.

BY M. C. K.

In religious newspaper parlance, as well as in religious conversation in general, the term "loyal" is given very great prominence. Assuredly it is not an improper term for the religious papers nor for religious conversation in general, but what does it mean as thus used? This question has been previously discussed at different times in these columns, but the radically erroneous and misleading application of the term makes it necessary, in this case, as in many others, to repeat the discussion and to present the facts at different times as may seem opportune and advantageous.

The term "loyal" does not occur in the New Testament, but the idea which it denotes—namely, conformity to law or government—is prominent in that volume. To speak in correct and general terms, one who conforms strictly to the law of the New Testament is a loyal Christian, and, on the same principle, a church which conforms strictly to that law is a loyal church. But in this case, as in many others, the tendency is to drift away from correct ideas in the use of terms and to adopt ideas wholly foreign to the New Testament. Hence, in order to present the matter in its true light, it will be well to give attention to the term as it appears in current usage and to view this, at the same time, in the light of the New Testament usage of such terms.

We hear much to-day of "loyal churches" and of churches that are not "loyal;" and from the same point of view, we hear of "loyal Christians" and of Christians who are not "loyal." We shall see that the confusion at this point is similar to that which grows out of a similar use of the term "church of Christ." The latter term in some localities merely means a church which refrains from the use of instrumental music in the worship and from human societies in doing missionary work. But are these the only differentiating marks of a church of Christ, or might not a church do some things which are wrong and still be a church of Christ—a church of Christ in error, to be sure, but a church of Christ, nevertheless? Does not the reader know that Inspiration called the Corinthian church "the church of God which is at Corinth," when, at the very same time, it pointed out and severely condemned certain wrong practices in that church? (See 1 Cor. 1: 2; 2 Cor. 1: 1.) In other words, the Corinthian church had so far digressed from the word of God that there were in it a denial of the resurrection of the dead, unlawful litigation among brethren, a perversion of the Lord's Supper, and still other grievous evils, and yet the inspired Paul calls it a "church of God." Was it not, then, a church of Christ? To ask this question, in such a connection, is to answer it in the affirmative.

Just at this point, while engaged in writing this article, a preacher from a distant city, whom I did not know till he presented a letter of introduction, called on me, addressing me in these words: "Is this Brother Kurfees of the church of Christ?" I received him cordially, but thought to myself, though I did not say it to him: "Yes, this is 'Brother Kurfees of the church of God' also." Why not? A mere superficial reader of the New Testament knows that, speaking as the word of God speaks, if I am of the "church of Christ," I am also of "the church of God;" in fact, following strictly the New Testament idea, I am or should be of that church revealed in the word of God and known by no one inspired designation to the exclusion of others.

Now, not in exactly the same way, but involving the same principle, the term "loyal" is misapplied. For example, in numerous instances when persons speak of a certain church as a "loyal church," what they mean and all they mean is that it is a church that does not use instrumental music and the societies. It may be that the same church is doing nothing in the line of missionary work—the great work of spreading abroad the word of God among the people and establishing other churches—and maybe it is even careless about meeting regularly on the Lord's day for the worship of God; yet it is listed as a "loyal church" because, forsooth, it does not use the organ and societies!

A few days ago a brother, referring to a certain town, asked the question: "Is there a loyal church there?" I knew exactly what he meant and what he did not mean. He meant to ask whether there was a church there that did not use the organ and societies; and that, of course, is what he should have asked. Why not? When nothing at all is meant except to ascertain whether there is a church at a given place that does not use the organ and societies, why not ask the question that way? Why ask if there is a "loyal church?" Does it not take more than refraining from organs and societies to constitute a loyal church? If nothing more is meant than to ascertain whether there is a church that does not use these things, let that question be asked, and let us stop using a term in a manner which violates New Testament usage. A church may refrain from these erroneous practices and still be a very disloyal church. I know of churches that do not use the organ nor work through the missionary society; but they are not loyal churches in other respects, for they are doing nothing at all on many other important lines. In fact, they are not doing much of anything on the positive side of Christian loyalty. Their lives are largely negative. Then, I know of other churches that use the organ and work through the societies. In these things they are not loyal to the New Testament order, but they are strictly loyal to it at least to the extent of making an effort to spread the gospel, and also in works of charity, benevolence, visiting the sick, feeding the hungry, and clothing the naked. Hence, speaking after the New Testament idea, when is a church a loyal church? I answer, when, in whatsoever, and to whatever extent it follows the New Testament. Some churches and some individual Christians are loyal on some lines and very disloyal on others. Let us encourage all churches and all individual Christians to follow the New Testament in all things, and let us teach them that to whatever extent they come short of this, to that extent they are not loyal.

The Feminist Preacher.

BY J. C. M'Q.

In the Pictorial Review for June appears a lengthy and well-written article by Mabel Potter Daggett on "Maude Royden Comes to America," who is announced as England's first and greatest preacher. She is represented as proclaiming a new era of humanized Christianity. I shall clip and comment on a few extracts from the article.

Women doctors and women lawyers have been going about for some time as regular people in perfectly good standing in the human race. Even the women judges, who began appearing about ten years ago, are at last accepted as no alarming abnormality in the development of the species. But now arrives a newer woman.

Miss A. Maude Royden, who came from England to address the National Young Women's Christian Association, assembled at Hot Springs, Ark., April 20-27, is a slender, quiet, most ladylike person. So that you might not suspect it at all. But she is a challenge to civilization and to Saint Paul.

She has broken the most ancient tabu and the silence of the centuries. She is speaking in the churches. Not as a Sunday-school assistant. Not in a small, obscure country parish. She is an outstanding figure of the times. And she stands in a pulpit, the first great English woman preacher to achieve a religious career that commands world-wide attention.

Throngs crowd her church in London. Of a Sunday when hundreds had been turned away the London Daily News next day reported: "The size of the congregation suggested that women may be the means of solving the problem, 'How to fill the churches?'" Further vouching for the success of her career is a book just off the New York press, "Some Living Masters of the Pulpit." And Maude Royden is one of those to whom a chapter is devoted.

So it would appear that not only has she done something unprecedented; she has done it so well that soon God may be calling women to the ministry elsewhere, not only to the little churches, but to the large ones. And the world is facing the fact that in the wake of that political equality to which most civilized lands have recently adjusted themselves, something else is about to occur.

Filling the churches with people who accept a humanized Christianity is an unfavorable omen. Mahomet humanized his religion so that multitudes accepted it.

But this feminist preacher, like Jehoiakim, seeks to destroy the word of God. She would destroy Paul because he taught things out of harmony with her self-arrogance and presumption. In blatant self-confidence and pride of scholasticism she would reduce the Bible to the level of other great books, as a mere piece of man-made literature with no more wisdom and authority than the uninspired books of men. She is ready to cut out all in the Bible that does not suit her. We need have no fears for the fate of the Bible, but we may well fear for the men and women who are striving to destroy the word of God. We may truly say in the language of Jeremiah, "The word of our God shall stand forever." When this woman with all of her kind are dead and forgotten, the word of God will still live to cheer, bless, and guide men and women unto life everlasting. In the words of William T. Ellis, let me say:

Our greatest alarm should be over the present tendency to argue about the Bible instead of practicing it, in an era which can be saved from shipwreck only by obedience to the clear teachings in the Scriptures.

But why does this feminist preacher challenge the teaching of the Holy Spirit through Paul? Simply because the Spirit's teaching does not conform to her ideas of humanized Christianity. With her penknife she would cut the following teaching out of the Bible: "Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but let them be in subjection, as also saith the law." (1 Cor. 14: 34.) "Let a woman learn in quietness with all subjection. But I permit not a woman to teach, nor to have dominion over a man, but to be in quietness. For Adam was first formed, then Eve; and Adam was not beguiled, but the woman being beguiled hath fallen into transgression: but she shall be saved through her child-bearing, if they continue in faith and love and sanctification with sobriety." (1 Tim. 2: 11-15.) Read again what Miss Royden is teaching:

Motherhood is an absorbing creative work not easily combined with other occupations. Those citizens who engage in it are performing the highest state service. You cannot indeed pay for all that motherhood means. But neither can you pay for a man to die. Yet soldiers are "endowed" by the State. Why not mothers? The old idea of marriage that made man and woman one, and that one the husband, is now as impossible as the feudal system. Through the higher values to-day set on sexual relationships we are on the threshold of a nobler conception of marriage based on knowledge and sincerity.

The same old story of disobedience. Mother Eve in the garden of Eden must have thought it impossible to obey God. Her disbelief of the truth led her into transgression. She does not like the idea of one woman for one man. "And the man said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of man. Therefore shall a man leave his father and mother, and shall cleave unto his wife; and they shall be one flesh." (Gen. 2: 23, 24.) As Eve disobeyed God's law when she "saw that the tree was good for food, and that it was a delight to the eyes, and that the tree was to be desired to make one wise, she took of the fruit thereof, and did eat; and she gave also unto her husband with her, and he did eat." (Gen. 3: 6.) Look at the predicament of Miss Royden! Realizing that a woman cannot be a wife and mother and at the same time a doctor, lawyer, or preacher, she would destroy marriage and the home and have the State "endow" motherhood as soldiers are "endowed." She would not obey God's command to multiply and replenish the earth," but she would destroy wifehood and the home and make the replenishing of the earth only a service to the State. As Christ said to the tempter, so I would say to her: "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." (Matt. 4: 10.) She knows that a mother cannot train her children and be a success in the pulpit, in the practice of medicine or the law; so she would make motherhood a "profession," thus denying all the God-fearing, obedient, and faithful women the real joy and pleasure of the conjugal relation and making them slaves to the State in their motherhood to save "a falling birth rate." It is such blatant infidelity as Miss Royden and other feminists are teaching that is responsible for this "falling birth rate." In obedience to God, the birth rate has always been right; in disobedience, always wrong. We should congratulate ourselves that there are millions of women who have not and will never accept this blasphemous teaching of the feminists. The neglected children of the feminists are enough to appall us all. How our compassion goes out to these babes as they are washed, dressed, and cared for by servants! Untidy, poorly fed, and sickly, they plainly show the lack of a mother's affection and care.

Men and women enjoy equality under Christ, but this equality must be enjoyed in their different spheres. The curse that was visited upon our foreparents assigned to man an outdoor life and to woman the home, or inside. A woman doing her work in the home is a thousand times nobler and better than the woman in law or politics. She has the child in the most plastic period of life. When tender and susceptible to training, God placed it in its mother's arms. God had Moses trained by his own mother. The wives and mothers who train the children rule the nation and under Christ control the church. The Christian home with a godly mother in it is the salt of the church. God knew what he was doing when he put woman in the home. Read the words of the Spirit: "But speak thou the things which befit the sound doctrine: . . . that aged women likewise be reverent in demeanor, not slanderers nor enslaved to much wine, teachers of that which is good; that they may train the young women to love their husbands, to love their children, to be sober-minded, chaste, workers at home, kind, being in subjection to their own husbands, that the word of God be not blasphemed." (Tit. 2: 1-5.) Yes, women are to be home makers and home workers. Men and women are equal in Christ, and, so far as privileges and promises are concerned, there is neither male nor female in Christ. But women must serve Christ in their God-given sphere, and so must the men. Man cannot change his real nature, neither can woman. I never read of feminists complaining of a lack of equality because they do not enter the coal mines and dig coal. They do not complain because they do not climb telephone poles and tunnel mountains. Woman's nature and her strength unfit her for such work. We need have no fear that men as a class will ever devote their time to needle and embroidery work. Women will always be neater and more attractive in dress than men. Man uncared for by women will go without the buttons on his clothes and will come strolling down the ages with one suspender over his shoulder. The word of God will abide forever.

Will There Be a Discussion on the Music Question?

BY F. B. S.

My last article on the Commission on Unity drew from Brother John B. Cowden the following letter, which we gladly give to our readers:

West Nashville, Tenn., June 7, 1922.—Dear Brother Srygley: Your reply and proposition through the Gospel Advocate to discuss the church-music question has been received and considered. As you doubtless know, those in Tennessee using instruments in the church have been averse to any joint public discussion of this question on the grounds of Tit. 3: 9, or at least they regard the question per se of not sufficient importance to discuss; but this question has become so involved with the question of fraternity, which we do regard worth contending for, that we are disposed to accept your proposition as a doubtful yet possible step toward the restoration of fraternity between those that use and those that do not use instruments in the church. We have tried everything else without bettering the situation; and, for my part, I am ready to try this. However, there are many that doubt the wisdom of any such discussions, who must be considered. I have shared this view in the past, but I am now inclined to think otherwise with respect to the church-music question. Of course, I can speak for no one except myself, and would not presume to act on my own views without advising with others interested. The State Convention of Tennessee churches meets this next week at Ovoca, so I shall bring your proposition up for consideration there; and I will do what I can to get them to accept your proposition; and I feel reasonably sure that it will be accepted, because there is a growing desire in the churches to see this thing threshed out that all may see the grains of truth on both sides. Although religious debates are often fratricidal in their nature and results, yet they are sometimes necessary to put an end to fratricidal warfare. They also help to clear the religious atmosphere, and this is needed in Tennessee. Whether this discussion will have these desired results, I know not; but I am willing to try it out, and will advise with the brethren at Ovoca to this end; and some concerted decision and action will be taken and forwarded to you. At any rate, "we shall see what we shall see." Fraternally, JOHN B. COWDEN.

Yes, I knew these brethren were averse to a joint public discussion of this question, but I did not know why they were averse to it. Brother Cowden says here that one reason is on the grounds of Tit. 3: 9. Well, I must say that if Tit. 3: 9 forbids such a discussion, it would not only be grounds for an aversion to it, but it would be the end of it with me. While I would like to hear such a discussion, I would not be willing to disobey the apostle Paul in order to hear it or be a party to any such disobedience.

But I have looked at the passage very closely, and I cannot see one word in the verse that forbids such a discussion. In fact, the apostle was not on that subject. The verse referred to here reads: "But shun foolish questionings, and genealogies, and strifes, and fightings about the law; for they are unprofitable and vain." If any one is fighting about the law, it is Brother Cowden in this case; but I do not see what the law has to do with it. "The law" here evidently refers to the law of Moses. I have known all the time that the only authority these brethren have for instrumental music in worship was in the law of Moses; but this is not the brother's point, as his letter shows. He says they "regard the question per se of not sufficient importance to discuss." I cannot understand how the brother can say that and continue to circulate O. E. Payne's book, for O. E. Payne says in this same book on page 172: "We must unite in agreeing that if we forego musical instruments we cannot conform to the divine injunction to psallein." And yet Brother Cowden says the question is not of sufficient importance to discuss. Then it is of little importance, according to Brother Cowden, for people to conform to a divine injunction. It is bad for any one to even feel that way about a divine injunction, much less express it in words. Brother F. W. Smith tells me that Brother Cowden told him he fully indorsed Payne's position in his book, and the fact that he circulates the book proves Brother Smith did not misunderstand him, and yet it is of little importance with Cowden and his coworkers.

But Brother Cowden says he has tried everything else but a debate without making it any better. Then I was right last week when I said his Commission on Unity was doing no good; for, according to his own statement, he has made it no better. I wonder now what these brethren who have sent Brother Cowden out think about continuing him, when by his own statement he is doing no good and is ready to come to my position. I have said all the time this is the way to do it. Let these brethren affirm their practice on the scripturalness of instrumental music in the worship and stand up like brave men and try to defend it.

But Brother Cowden and O. E. Payne are not alone in their contention that the Bible requires the use of the instrument in the worship; for the Christian Standard of June 3, speaking editorially in regard to O. E. Payne's book, "Instrumental Music in the Worship," says: "The author has made an exhaustive research of the meaning of the word 'psallo,' precisely as Campbell and others have made the same investigation in regard to 'baptizo.' The result is an overwhelming conviction that not only was instrumental music allowed in the worship of the primitive church, but that it was positively enjoined." How, then, brethren believing this can say it is a matter of little importance is more than I can understand.

I am glad Brother Cowden is to take this question to the convention and not decide it for himself alone; for while we are anxious to convert Brother Cowden and make a useful man out of him, yet we want the interest and attendance of others. Now, Brother Cowden, do all you can to get your brethren at Ovoca to defend their practice. We will wait with interest their decision. I have more interest in this coming convention than any that has been held by these erring brethren for a long time, for it is to decide whether we are to have a joint public discussion or not. If they decide to do so, write or wire me immediately.

The Epistle to the Church at Philippi.

BY F. W. SMITH.

"Paul and Timothy, servants of Christ Jesus, to all the saints in Christ Jesus that are at Philippi, with the bishops and deacons: Grace to you and peace from God our Father and the Lord Jesus Christ." (Phil. 1: 1, 2.) In these verses we have expressed New Testament church polity. The word "polity" means form or constitution of a government. Hence, there can be no such thing as a government, either civil or religious, without a form, or polity. In harmony with this well-established fact, all civilized governments have certain fundamental laws for their constitutions, and whatever may be proposed that is not in strict harmony with these fundamental laws is rejected on the ground of being "unconstitutional" and a violation of governmental polity. Now, the church of the New Testament has its polity, or form of government, which is found simply and solely in the local church or congregation. There is not a single law in the New Testament for the government or guidance of any other institution or organization in the worship and service of God.

THE SIMPLICITY OF NEW TESTAMENT CHURCH POLITY.

"But I fear, lest by any means, as the serpent beguiled Eve through his subtlety, so your minds should be corrupted from the simplicity that is in Christ." (2 Cor. 11: 3.) Now, this simplicity does not refer to any one item of the great plan of salvation to the exclusion of any other item, but includes not only the manner of life a Christian should live, but every item of the doctrine of Christ. This doctrine has as much to do with the organization of the church as with faith, repentance, and baptism, or any Christian duty. Furthermore, this simplicity is in vivid and marked contrast with the cumbersome machinery of human ecclesiasticisms with which the religious world of to-day is weighted down. There are wheels within wheels until a vast and complicated system is built up and people have become slaves to these institutions. Popes, bishops, archbishops, prelates, priests, presiding elders, councils, assemblies, conferences, and conventions are the order of the day. But from what seed do all these spring? Surely not the seed of the kingdom which is the word of God (Luke 8: 11), for there is not a vestige of anything of the kind in the New Testament.

THE NEW TESTAMENT ORGANIZATION.

When we turn to the New Testament, what do we find in the way of an organization? A congregation of saints—that, and that alone. What officials do we find in these congregations (if we may use the term "officials")? Bishops and deacons, that is all. Who are these bishops? Elders, overseers, or pastors. Where is their field of work, or over what are they overseers? The local church where they live and work. Have they no voice or authority outside of their respective congregations? None whatever other than advisory, which can be exercised by any member of the congregation. Where, then, do state, district, and county officials come from? The same place that the popes, bishops, cardinals, priests, etc., came from—viz., the wisdom of man and a corrupted church. Since there is no authority in the New Testament for any organization other than a local congregation with its elders and deacons, what is the inevitable conclusion to be drawn from the actions of those who originate these modern institutions? A repudiation of God's wisdom and power. It is a rejection of God himself under the pretense of helping to advance the cause of Christ. What should those who honor and respect God's word and the blood-bought institution of Jesus Christ do regarding these human institutions? Have absolutely nothing to do with them.

Still I thought I must set God's command above everything.—Plato.

More Testimonials on the Review of the Payne Book.

The following additional testimonials have just been received by the author:

R. A. Craig, Shelbyville, Ky.: "I have read with interest your review of the Payne book, and I must say that I believe you have rendered a great service to the church. If I were Brother Payne, knowing as I do that some day I will have to stand before the all-piercing eyes of the great Judge, I would call in my little book and announce to the brotherhood that I had strayed from the right path. May the Lord give you many years in his service, Brother Kurfes. Your great work will live when your pen and tongue are still."

John W. Kurfes, Germanton, N. C.: "I have read with much interest your review of O. E. Payne's book on the Greek verb 'psallo.' Your arguments from the standpoint of sound reason seem incontrovertible. Your exposure of his erroneous assertions and his misquotations of authors throughout his book must cause a great shock among the instrumental-music advocates who had approved his work. To my mind, one of the strongest features of your effort, and one which will be easily grasped by the average reader, is where you show conclusively, without the slightest chance of contradiction, that, according to Payne, the New Testament use of the Greek verb carries with it the command to accompany the singing with an instrument made with human hands. Thus he has, to the chagrin of many instrumental-music advocates, caused the pendulum to swing too far, because almost all of them, while contending that it is all right to have the instrument, say it is nevertheless acceptable to God to worship without it. They must repudiate Payne's contention regarding 'psallo,' or they must, to be consistent, request that all congregations introduce without delay the instrument in their worship. Which horn of the dilemma will they choose?"

P. W. Stonestreet, Chattanooga, Tenn.: "After reading O. E. Payne's book and your review of it, I feel that it is due you to say your work should settle the issue with all competent and honest persons who read both. You have exposed the illogical reasoning, misrepresentations, and erroneous conclusions contained in the book; and I am glad you seized the opportunity and did what I consider the ablest and most decisive work of your life on that subject. It is even more than was looked for in the way of exposing its illogical reasoning, and I want to thank you for this contribution to religious literature."

The moment we expect or demand gratitude, that moment we cease to deserve it. To give and then to claim because we have given is to miss the whole beauty of giving.—Selected.

SERMON OUTLINES

A Book of One Hundred and Fifty New Sermon Outlines

Just the book for preachers, elders, deacons, Bible-class teachers, and others that take public part in church services.

The book has one hundred and fifty sermon outlines and a helpful supplement containing funeral texts, marriage ceremonies, forms for church letters, and Hedge's "Rules" for debate.

A good book to use in your Lord's-day services, prayer meetings, and young people's meetings. Let the leader announce the subject, hand slips of paper containing different sections of the outline to the members who are to take part in the next meeting, requesting them to make a talk or read the scriptural references on that section of the outline. Or, let the leader put the outline on the blackboard, omitting the scriptural references, then ask the congregation to supply the correct scriptural references at the next meeting, and give reasons why they selected these references.

Price, $1, postpaid. Address McQuiddy Printing Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Home Reading

Not Yet.

I have not seen His face—
Not yet, not yet;
But oft beside mine own
His feet are set,
And I'll no strangeness feel,
No chill surprise,
That glad day when He bids
Me lift mine eyes.

If I have felt His touch,
I am not sure;
Yet when earth-sorrow grows
Past all earth's cure,
Comes there such sense of Him,
So close, so dear,
That mine own blood and breath
Seem not more near.

I have not heard His voice—
That, too, I wait;
Yet not so much I pray
Heaven's opening gate,
And all that sings or shouts
Dark Jordan past,
As but to hear Him speak
At home—at last!

—William Hervey Woods.

✱ ✱ ✱

Blackie.

Once upon a time there was an old mother hen who had twelve baby chicks. They were all fluffy and yellow except one, which was so black that he was called "Blackie."

Every morning the little girl who lived in the big farmhouse came out to feed the chicks.

"Cluck, cluck, cluck!" said the old mother hen, and "Peep, peep, peep!" cried the baby chicks, as if they were saying "Thank you" to the little girl for taking such good care of them.

"Peep, peep!" said Blackie. "Now that I have had my breakfast, I'm going to take a journey." And away he hopped from his mother and little brothers and sisters as fast as he could go.

By and by he came to a hole in the fence, and out he went. He found himself on the nice green lawn and very near a lovely big flower bed full of pretty red and yellow tulips.

"What a fine world this is!" thought Blackie. "I'm glad I ran away from the old chicken yard, for it was never so wonderful as this." With that he began scratching around the tulip bed to find something more to eat.

Just then a terrible noise sounded quite near him: "Bow, wow, wow!" It was the little girl's fat, brown puppy that was jumping about on his funny big feet, his tongue hanging out, in much excitement.

"What are you doing out of the hen yard?" he said. "Go right back, or I shall make you!"

"Peep, peep, peep!" cried frightened Blackie, and away he ran without looking at all to see where he was going.

Before he knew it he hopped right into the middle of a puddle of water. Little chicks do not like water at all, so poor Blackie was more frightened than ever. He fluttered his little wings, took a great hop, and up he jumped on to a smooth stone in the middle of the puddle.

"Peep, peep, peep! Mother, mother!" he cried. But the mother hen was far away in the hen yard and could not even hear him.

The old tabby cat was curled up in the sun on the steps of the farmhouse porch, not far away. The little girl had given her a good saucer of milk, and she was napping after her breakfast.

"Peep, peep, peep!" cried the baby chick from his stone in the puddle. "I want my mother!"

The old tabby cat heard him and came down to see if she could help. She put one paw into the water, but drew it out in a hurry and shook off the drops; then she sat down as if she were trying to think of some other way, for tabby cat did not like to wet her feet.

"Peep, peep, peep! I want my mother! I'm afraid I'm going to drown."

Bang! went the screen door, and down the porch steps ran the little girl. How she did laugh when she saw little Blackie and the trouble he was in!

"Never mind, Blackie, I'll take you back to your mother," she said; and, picking him up very carefully, she carried him back to the old mother hen.—Selected.

✱ ✱ ✱

Lord Roberts' Letter.

When Lord Roberts, field marshal of the British Army, died suddenly in France during his visit to the allied forces there, all England felt the shock of a great loss. Lord Roberts was an old man—he was long since beyond the age for active service—but he was of those who make the great moral bulwark of a country; the whole empire missed him.

At the session of the House of Lords when his fellow peers made public recognition of Lord Roberts' services to his country, many fine tributes were paid to his memory; but one of the most significant was actually in his own words—it was a part of the last letter that he himself had written to Lord Curzon, of Kedleston. What do you suppose was the theme of the letter? Military policies? Matters of state? The progress of the terrible world struggle? The proper terms on which peace might be made?

Here is an extract that Lord Curzon read in the House of Lords:

"We have had family prayers for fifty-five years. Our chief reason is that they bring the household together as nothing else can. It insures servants and others who may be in the house joining in prayers, which, for one reason or another, they may have omitted to say by themselves. Since the war began we usually read a prayer like the inclosed; and when anything important has occurred, I tell those present about it. In this way I have found that the servants take a great interest in what is going on in France. We have never given any orders about prayers. Attendance is quite optional, but, as a rule, all the servants, men and women, come regularly on hearing the bell ring."

We hear it said constantly in these days that there is no time for family prayers, yet this man, whose time was at least as fully occupied as that of any one who could be named, and who carried all his life burdens and responsibilities much greater than those of an ordinary man, found the time for family prayers regularly every day for fifty-five years. We may be very sure that there are other reasons than lack of time for our prayerless homes.—Selected.

✱ ✱ ✱

A Mother's Love.

"Now, there stood by the cross of Jesus his mother." The thieves are other women's sons; on this one is her Son. There is her post of duty, her watch of love. It is her flesh and blood that is suffering—dying. She cannot do more than stand there, and suffer most poignantly with him, but that she must do, that alone satisfies her now. Only dead or by sheer force can she be taken away. The sword is piercing her own soul, but she is his mother; to bear it is her duty, her privilege.

Thirty-three years before she travailed in Bethlehem's stall that her Son, according to the flesh, might begin his life in this world. Greater was her pain and anguish now, for it was wholly of the spirit. But she remained at the foot of the cross until "it is finished" broke from dying lips.—The Evangelical.

Query Department

BY J. C. McQUIDDY

J. G. Sandlin, of Hildreth, Fla., requests an explanation of the following scriptures: "Wherefore leaving the doctrine of the first principles of Christ, let us press on unto perfection; not laying again a foundation of repentance from dead works, and of faith toward God, of the teaching of baptisms, and of laying on of hands, and of resurrection of the dead, and of eternal judgment. And this will we do, if God permit. For as touching those who were once enlightened and tasted of the heavenly gift, and were made partakers of the Holy Spirit, and tasted the good word of God, and the powers of the age to come, and then fall away, it is impossible to renew them again unto repentance; seeing they crucify to themselves the Son of God afresh, and put him to an open shame." (Heb. 6: 1-6.) "Not forsaking our own assembling together, as the custom of some is, but exhorting one another; and so much the more, as ye see the day drawing nigh. For if we sin willfully after that we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more a sacrifice for sins." (Heb. 10: 25, 26.) "Lest there be any fornicator, or profane person, as Esau, who for one mess of meat sold his own birthright. For ye know that even when he afterwards desired to inherit the blessing, he was rejected; for he found no place for a change of mind in his father, though he sought it diligently with tears." (Heb. 12: 16, 17.) "If any man see his brother sinning a sin not unto death, he shall ask, and God will give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: not concerning this do I say that he should make request." (1 John 5: 16.) "Verily I say unto you, All their sins shall be forgiven unto the sons of men, and their blasphemies wherewith soever they shall blaspheme: but whosoever shall blaspheme against the Holy Spirit hath never forgiveness, but is guilty of an eternal sin." (Mark 3: 28, 29.)

In considering Heb. 6: 1-6, we should remember that the book of Hebrews is addressed to Jewish converts to Christianity. After their enthusiasm had subsided, they met the double persecution of the Gentiles and their own brethren. This discouraged and disheartened them and led them to consider giving up Christ and going back to Judaism. The Hebrew letter was written to show them the superiority of the law of Christ over the law of Moses and the ruin they would bring on themselves by giving up Christ and going back to Moses. The law of Moses had been superseded by the law of Christ. The law of Moses was the tutor to lead them to Christ. When Christ came, the law was done away. The Jewish law was the beginning of the doctrine of Christ; it could not make perfect. The Hebrews were admonished, therefore, to leave it and go on to perfection in the service of Christ. The practice of the Jewish law was the foundation that demanded repentance from the works of the Jewish law, which is dead and is no longer in force. When they turned from Judaism to Christ, the first things were faith in God, the teaching of baptisms, laying on of hands in the beginning to impart spiritual gifts, and resurrection from the dead, and of eternal judgment. The apostle shows them that if they reject Christ and turn again to Judaism, it would be impossible to renew them to repentance, seeing that they would crucify the Son of God afresh and put him to an open shame. There would be no more sacrifice for sin. So the man who rejects Christ, the last sacrifice, cannot hope for pardon. These passages have no reference to persons being renewed again to repentance who, while believing in Christ, through temptations, are overtaken in sin. This is too clearly taught in the Bible to be doubted. This speaks of those who give up Christ. Only through him is there an approach to God.

There is diversity of opinion as to what day reference is made in Heb. 10: 25. To me it appears to be the first day of the week, as immediately preceding they are commanded not to forsake the assembling of themselves together. This must be the assembling on the first day of the week. Some think that the day is that in which Jerusalem was destroyed. Christians were warned of the approach of that day. The early histories of the churches state that no Christian suffered in the destruction of Jerusalem. Heb. 10: 26 teaches that if we willfully refuse to appropriate the blood of Christ, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sin.

Heb. 12: 16, 17 warns against any one becoming a fornicator or profane, as was Esau, who sold his birthright for a mess of meat and afterwards was rejected, because he found no place for a change of mind in his father, Isaac, though he sought it with tears.

1 John 5: 16 is difficult to understand. The sin mentioned in Gal. 6: 1 is a sin not unto death. It may be forgiven. A deliberate, willful rejection of Christ and going back to Judaism would be a sin unto death. Any sin persisted in, unrepented of, may become a sin unto death. The blasphemy against the Holy Spirit spoken of in Mark 3: 28, 29 means to rail upon, reject, refuse, misrepresent, and pervert the work of the Holy Spirit. To do this in the face of the wonderful manifestations of spiritual power in the times of Christ appears to have been to blaspheme against the Holy Spirit.

A sister who wishes her signature omitted inquires for the authority for carrying the emblems to those who are sick. The authority for carrying the emblems to the sick is found in the same chapter and verse that it is found for carrying the emblems to the well. "And upon the first day of the week, when we were gathered together to break bread, Paul discoursed with them." (Acts 20: 7.) It does not tell where or how many were gathered together. Christ says: "For where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them." (Matt. 18: 20.) No method of getting the emblems to each other is revealed. God leaves such things to our common sense. In the first age of the church, when any of the members were known to be sick, so soon as the services were over at the place of the meeting, the deacons were sent with some bread and wine to wait upon the sick so all might partake. Mosheim furnishes this information. Well disciples should make it possible for sick disciples to remember their Lord on the first day of the week.

A brother who wishes his name withheld wishes to know if it is right for him to tell the officers where a distillery is located. He is opposed to whisky making and believes it to be his duty to destroy this evil. He understands Eph. 5: 11-13 to justify him in helping to destroy the "wildcat" distilleries. If he believes it to be his duty to help destroy the illicit distillery, he would not be honest if he did not do so. The Christian should give his influence against all manner of evil, but should do so in a Christlike spirit. The law is not a terror to good works, but to the evil. The passages referred to by the querist read: "And have no fellowship with the unfruitful works of darkness, but rather even reprove them; for the things which are done by them in secret it is a shame even to speak of. But all things when they are reprov'd are made manifest by the light: for everything that is made manifest is light." These passages do not justify a course of spite and vengeance. The Christian should reprove evildoers in a spirit of meekness and should endeavor to lead the evildoer into a nobler life.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

More About the Waxahachie (Texas) Meeting.

BY C. R. N.

In this department, April 27, appeared, by request of Brother John E. Dunn, a report of this meeting, and on May 4 appeared a personal letter to Brother Dunn and his partial reply. Following the letters were comments by me.

Re-read the aforementioned report and letters. From them you will learn: On College Street a body of disciples met for worship, known as the "College Street church of Christ." They arranged to engage in a series of meetings. As a coincident all the churches in the town had arranged to engage in meetings in their respective buildings, beginning on the same date, save the Main Street Christian Church failed to secure a minister for the revival meeting. Learning of this, Brother Dunn extended to the minister of the Christian Church an invitation to bring his congregation and attend our meeting." The invitation was presented to the Main Street Christian Church and they "unanimously accepted." "Committees were selected by both churches to meet and talk over plans to conduct the meeting." "When these committees met, it was decided that the meeting should be conducted just as we are accustomed to conduct our meetings and as we should have done had this not come up, but with these added features. Main Street Church has one song leader and College Street has two. These three men were to lead the singing, taking it turn about. They were to handle the song service. We should all partake of the Lord's Supper together. One elder from each of the churches and the ushers of both churches acting together should wait on the people. Collections should be taken on each Sunday morning, Sunday, Tuesday, and Friday nights, and go to the support of the meeting. Public announcement of this arrangement was to be made. Brother Sewell was to do the preaching, and be absolutely free to preach as he believed God wanted him to."

I am glad to give the following article by Brother Dunn, reviewing what I said about the union meeting engaged in by these two churches:

THE WAXAHACHIE MEETING AND MY CRITICS.

BY JOHN E. DUNN.

Brother C. R. Nichol, in his "Texas-Oklahoma Department" in the Gospel Advocate of May 4, pages 422 and 423, in his strictures on Brother John E. Dunn's report of the "Waxahachie (Texas) Meeting," makes two fundamental errors. By so doing he sets me before the public in a false light and also does New Testament teaching injury.

First, I shall set down what these errors are. They are false assumptions, and because of these assumptions Brother Nichol blunders. They are: (a) That I ignored the fact that division exists among the disciples of Christ in Waxahachie, and, ignoring this division, I went into a "union meeting" with a church other than the "church of Christ," and by so doing compromised the "church of Christ." (b) Speaking from the standpoint of New Testament teaching, Brother Nichol thinks there are two distinctly different churches in Waxahachie. One of these is the "Christian Church," and it is unknown to the New Testament, and, therefore, is a sectarian denomination. The other is the "church of Christ," and is the New Testament church in Waxahachie. This is a fatal error.

The first of these errors grows out of the second. I am of the opinion that a discussion of these two fundamental principles will make interesting reading matter. Likely other brethren besides Brother Nichol and I shall want to have something to say. Now let us lay aside all personalities and, for the sake of a clearer understanding of the truth, dig at these two principles in order that we may pursue the right course in our teaching and our methods of dealing with error.

For three generations the Nichol and Dunn families have been intimate friends. Charley Nichol is my friend and I am his. Our fathers were bosom companions. Charley Nichol's father, Captain Nichol, took charge of my father when he fell mortally wounded upon a bloody battle field in the "uncivil war" and nursed father and took him home when no other did. A sacred and tender relationship exists between us. But that does not change the fact, as it seems to me, that our conceptions of what is the New Testament church and our methods of dealing with erring brethren are different. What is the right conception of the New Testament church, and what is the best method of dealing with erring brethren?

I do not want to be placed in a false light before the public as regards the Waxahachie meeting. I believe my motive was good. My way of going at it may have been unwise. I believed then and believe now that I was acting wisely. I have nothing to cover up. I prefer my life and teaching to be an open book. I did think that since the two preachers and certain other members of the two congregations known as the "Main Street Christian Church" and the "College Street church of Christ" were talking among themselves both publicly and privately in the two congregations over the things that divide us, yet deploring the division, and about how to get together, that for the present it would be better if persons away from Waxahachie, since they could not understand the local situation, could stay out of our local affairs and allow us to, undisturbed by outsiders, see if we could get rid of the things that divide us and bring about a scriptural reconciliation. We anticipated that some from both sides of the house would say things that might mar the friendly exchange of views between us. We anticipated that it would get into the papers on both sides. I may have been wrong in my view as to confining these discussions for the present locally, but I was honest and sincere at heart.

I may have been wrong in my uses of the expressions, "union meeting," "plan," and "the relationship between the two congregations of disciples is fortunate." By relationship between the two congregations I only meant that we are friendly and a good spirit prevails. We are able to talk over our differences in all kindness. We deplore the division. The condition is lamentable. For the body of Christ to be rent in twain is an awful sin. It was never our intention to arrange an armistice and "plan a union meeting." Let me say just here that I feel that I should be betraying confidence if I should give to the public things that have been said in private conversations and in conference between the elders and deacons of the two congregations. I think that it is sufficient to say here that we have stated in our discussions the exact things over which we are divided—namely, instrumental music in the worship and societies other than the church for Christian activity. In one of our meetings at which Brother Stephens presided, he called on me to state the purpose of the meeting and outline the discussion. I did so, and aimed to do it clearly and tactfully.

I am willing to accept responsibility for a leading part in the whole affair. They said: "You conduct the meeting in your own way, and we will attend." I believed we could sing together, pray together, partake of the Supper together, and together hear Brother Sewell preach the gospel. They offered to help support the meeting. We agreed that collections should be taken at the meetings and anybody could put money into the collection plates that wanted to. After the meeting closed they offered to give a check. It was not accepted. The object of this coming together was to cultivate a friendly spirit and begin a consideration of the things that divide us. We thought we could conduct the meeting so that no principle would be sacrificed.

During a period of thirty years I have many times been asked by those called "digressives" (I do not call them "digressives" on my own authority), and sometimes Methodists, Baptists, and Presbyterians, to preach to them. I have regarded such invitations opportunities and have accepted them on only one condition, that I be free to preach what I believed I ought to preach. I have in several instances got the organ out of the church. I have got a good many to see how to do missionary work and brought peace and harmony where division existed. My method has been, first, to win the confidence and love of the people; second, to develop the underlying principles of loyalty, faith, and acceptable worship and service to God. Then I could approach the specific things over which we are divided. I believe in the policy of being "wise as serpents, and harmless as doves."

I think Brother Nichol is mistaken in his conception of the church of Christ in Waxahachie. In his article, more than a dozen times, Brother Nichol uses the expressions, "the Christian Church" and "the church of Christ" in Waxahachie. He says: "If those of the church of Christ are Christians and those of the Christian Church are Christians, there should be full and free fellowship." This does not follow. Christians may be in error and sin, and their errors and sins should not be approved. They should be told of their errors and sins and persuaded to quit them. What is the body of Christ in Waxahachie? It is composed of all Christians, all who have been baptized into Christ, in Waxahachie. "Are ye ignorant that all we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?" (Rom. 6: 3.) "For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ." (Gal. 3: 27.) "In one Spirit were we all baptized into one body." (1 Cor. 12: 12.) "Now ye are the body of Christ, and severally members thereof." (Verse 27.) The body of Christ is the church. (Eph. 1: 22, 23; Col. 1: 18: 24.) The body of Christ in Waxahachie is divided. Part of the Christians worship at one place and part at another. A good many of them are scattered about and worship nowhere regularly. Some of us are trying to set forth unto the public the New Testament church with her worship and service and bring all of us together and become one in Christ. I do not want to build up any faction of the church. Anything in the way of a religious body in Waxahachie that is smaller than the whole family of God in Waxahachie or larger than the whole family of God in the same place is either too small or too large. In speaking of the church there, any language that leaves out even one member or takes in one who has not been baptized into the body is sectarian. God help us to see clearly, act wisely and faithfully and in the Spirit of our Savior, so that we may become one in Christ and "keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace."

If Brother Dunn was anxious for "brethren away from here to let us alone," to keep down outside discussion, why did he rush into print with a report of what they were doing? Published statements are public property. He is withholding some things relative to the affair from the public. Why did he not keep it all? In a measure I feel responsible for the influence of the "Texas-Oklahoma Department," and I cannot, therefore, bring myself to let what I consider hurtful matter go through this department unnoticed.

Possibly I am wrong in holding the view that the church of Christ which meets on College Street for worship and the "Main Street Christian Church" are different churches. Between these two churches there was no fellowship. If members of the "Main Street Christian Church" wished to take membership with the College Street church of Christ, they were required to confess that they had been worshipping with an apostate body, engaged in unauthorized, divisive, and therefore sinful, practices. Brother Dunn says: "Brother Nichol thinks there are two distinctly different churches in Waxahachie. One of these is the 'Christian Church,' and is unknown to the New Testament, and, therefore, is a sectarian denomination. The other is the 'church of Christ,' and is the New Testament church in Waxahachie. This is a fatal error." Brother Dunn certainly represents me correctly in this statement. I am surprised to find him affirming otherwise relative to these two churches. He thinks I have sectarian views of the church. He is anxious to set me right on what the church is. Indeed, the more you know of the fundamentals of the New Testament, the more clearly it appears that the union meeting conducted by the two churches was a serious blunder.

The word "church" sometimes means all the saved in the world. Brother Dunn is mistaken in thinking this is the only use of the word. The word "church" more frequently refers to a body of disciples worshipping in one place. This is clearly stated in the following: Acts 11: 26; 13: 1; 14: 23; 18: 22; Rom. 16: 1, 5; 1 Cor. 1: 2, 4; 4: 17; 7: 17; 14: 4, 5, 23, 33, 34; 16: 1, 19; 2 Cor. 1: 1; 8: 1, 18, 19, 23, 24; 11: 8, 28; 1 Thess. 1: 1; 2: 14; Rev. 1: 7; and many other passages.

The church of Christ in Nashville, Tenn., and the Russell Street church of Christ are different conceptions. The church of Christ in Nashville, Tenn., includes all the children of God in Nashville; but the Russell Street church of Christ does not refer to the saved who live on that street only, but to the ones who meet regularly at the designated place for worship on that street.

I think it scriptural to refer to the church of Christ in Waxahachie, and by such contemplate only the children of God who live in Waxahachie; but the College Street church of Christ in Waxahachie includes only those who meet at that place for worship—members of that particular congregation. Though the College Street Church may not include all God's children in Waxahachie, it does include some who do not live within the limits of the city of Waxahachie. When correct reference is made to the church of Christ in Waxahachie, God's children within certain geographical limits are contemplated. In speaking of the College Street church of Christ, you make reference to worshipers who meet at a certain place for worship without reference to the geographical limits of their habitation.

Brother Dunn says: "Anything in the way of a religious body in Waxahachie that is smaller than the whole family of God in Waxahachie or larger than the whole family of God in the same place is either too small or too large." Such a contention is false, and by it Brother Dunn declares that the College Street church of Christ in Waxahachie is not a church of Christ; for, per his contention, some of the children of God in Waxahachie are not in the College Street Church. It is a "religious body in Waxahachie that is smaller than the whole family of God in Waxahachie." More, one of the elders of the College Street Church does not live in Waxahachie, but some two or three miles in the country. Brother Dunn says: "Anything in the way of a religious body in Waxahachie that is smaller than the whole family of God in Waxahachie or larger than the whole family of God in the same place is either too small or too large." The College Street Church is a "religious body in Waxahachie" which does not contain all the children of God in Waxahachie, Brother Dunn says; and more, it does contain some who do not live in Waxahachie. Per his contention, it is both too small and too large. He gets his religion and his geography mixed, or else he is fundamentally wrong in his conception of the church of Christ in Waxahachie. The membership of the College Street Church is not limited by geographical bounds. The New Testament calls a body of worshipers who meet in one place for worship a "church." Does Brother Dunn hold that because the College Street Church does not contain all the family of God in Waxahachie, it is, therefore, a sectarian body? He affirms that it is sectarian for me to call it the "church of Christ in Waxahachie," because it does not contain all the children of God in Waxahachie. I refer to the College Street Church as the church of Christ in Waxahachie, because it is the only body of worshipers in that city entitled to such designation. Perhaps Brother Dunn thinks otherwise and is ready to affirm that the "Main Street Christian Church" is as much entitled to be called the church of Christ as is the College Street Church. It may assist in clarifying our conception of his view of the church if he will tell us if he thinks the College Street Church should be called a church of Christ.

Brother Dunn tells us that division exists in the body. Who caused the division? Those who caused it and are perpetuating it are great sinners. Is it not a fact that the Main Street Christian Church are the guilty parties? "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine that ye learned: and turn away from them." (Rom. 16: 17.) Does this passage mean anything? Did Brother Dunn not go on record before the people as recog-

(Continued on page 573.)

Loss of Appetite— That Tired Feeling

Thousands take Hood's Sarsaparilla as their tonic medicine for that tired feeling, nervous weakness, impure blood, and testify that it makes them feel better, eat and sleep better.

Hood's Sarsaparilla has given entire satisfaction to three generations in the treatment of general debility. It restores the appetite, relieves that tired feeling, enables the system to resist infectious diseases.

Hood's Sarsaparilla aids digestion and makes food taste good. A good cathartic is Hood's Pills.

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Eucapine Salve

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection)(Relieves Pain)(Allays Inflammation)

is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

JACOBS & COMPANY

SPECIAL ADVERTISING
AGENTS

PRINTERS DESIGNERS PHOTO ENGRAVERS ELECTROTYPERS

Catalogues —
— a Specialty

HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S. C.

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

The Works of the Flesh.

BY J. H. DANIELS.

"Now the works of the flesh are manifest, which are these; Adultery, fornication, uncleanness, lasciviousness, idolatry, witchcraft, hatred, variance, emulations, wrath, strife, seditions, heresies, envyings, murders, drunkenness, revellings, and such like: of the which I tell you before, as I have also told you in time past, that they which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." (Gal. 5: 19-21.)

Here the apostle Paul makes mention of seventeen different things which he calls "the works of the flesh." No one will have to be guilty of doing them all before he is a non-inheritor of the kingdom of God. James (2: 10), says: "Whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet offend in one point, he is guilty of all."

The first thing Paul mentions is "adultery." This sin is said to be brought about by a man having two living wives, and true it is. But Jesus said: "Whosoever looketh on a woman to lust after her hath committed adultery with her already in his heart." (Matt. 5: 28.) So it is not only the man who has two living wives that commits adultery.

The next thing Paul mentions is "fornication," which is unlawful intercourse, which can be brought about in many different ways. The apostle Paul, in writing to the Corinthians about their fornication, says that one should not have his father's wife. (1 Cor. 5: 1.)

He also mentions "uncleanness," such as filthy, unholy, impure conversation. "Wherefore come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord, and touch not the unclean thing; and I will receive you." (2 Cor. 6: 17.)

"Lasciviousness" is spoken of as the lust of the flesh, also as one desiring the wrong thing in connection with the right. But Jesus said: "No man can serve two masters." (Matt. 6: 24.) "Ye cannot drink the cup of the Lord, and the cup of devils." (1 Cor. 10: 21.)

Next in order is "idolatry." Under Moses' law this sin was brought about by the Israelites worshipping an idol, an image; for instance, the golden calf which Aaron made while Moses tarried in the mount. (Ex. 32: 1-8.) But this is not altogether the way this sin is brought about. "And withal they learn to be idle, wandering about from house to house; and not only idle, but tattlers also and busybodies, speaking things which they ought not." (1 Tim. 5: 13.)

Then he speaks of "witchcrafts," which is sorcery. Some now claim

Dodson's Liver Tone

Killing Calomel Sale

Don't sicken or salivate yourself or paralyze your sensitive liver by taking calomel, which is quicksilver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it regulates the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel without making you sick. Fifteen million bottles sold.

Stop Itching Skins with Tetterine

60c. at your druggist's or from SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid
of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots. Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion. Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

LADIES EARN MONEY through control of Dr. Blair's Famous Toilet Articles. Big permanent business can be built in short time. Remarkable sample line and selling plan. Particulars on request. BLAIR LABORATORIES, Dept. R, Lynchburg, Va. References: Any bank or pastor in Lynchburg.

"A God-sent Blessing"

is what one mother writes of Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. Thousands of other mothers have found this safe, pleasant, effective remedy a boon when baby's little stomach is upset. For constipation, flatulency, colic and diarrhoea, there is nothing like

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator
It is especially good at teething time. Complete formula on every label. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients.

At all Druggists
Write for free booklet of letters from grateful mothers.
ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG CO.
215-217 Fulton St. New York

General Selling Agents:
Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Inc.
New York, Toronto, London, Sydney.

miraculous power, such as fortune-telling, divine healing, speaking with unknown tongues, etc. Such as these were practiced in the city of Samaria by Simon the sorcerer. The Scripture merely says that he "bewitched the people of Samaria, giving out that himself was some great one." But when Philip preached Christ to the people, they believed and were baptized, both men and women. (See Acts 8: 5-13.)

"Hatred" is dislike with ill will, talking evil about each other, unsympathizing. I have actually known church members that had that hatred existing between them so strong they would not even speak to each other. "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." (1 John 3: 15.)

Then he speaks of "variance," which is differences, disputes, disagreements; and this, too, is common among the churches to-day, where there should be unity and peace. "Again I say unto you, That if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father which is in heaven." (Matt. 18: 19.)

"Emulations," in the clearest meaning and fewest words, is competition, one trying to equal that of others. For instance, if one do me a wrong, I will do him a wrong in order to get even with him. "Ye have heard that it hath been said, An eye for an eye, and a tooth for a tooth: but I say unto you, That ye resist not evil: but whosoever shall smite thee on thy right cheek, turn to him the other also." (Matt. 5: 38, 39.)

The apostle next mentions "strife," which is contentions, quarrels, grudges, etc. "From whence come wars and fightings among you? come they not hence, even of your lusts that war in your members?" (James 4: 1.)

The next he calls "seditions." "Sedition" means treason, and "treason" means betrayal. Judas betrayed the Savior with a kiss. But we, as Christians, should not seek something to betray our fellow men in; neither should we judge the life and character of others. "Judge not, that ye be not judged." (Matt. 7: 1.)

The apostle next speaks of "heresies," which means divisions or split-ups; and a great many times this is caused by contrariness on the part of some one. "Now I beseech you, brethren, by the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you." (1 Cor. 1: 10.)

The next thing spoken of is "envy," which means to covet, or begrudging or desiring the wealth of others. "I

"A Hundred to the Good Already!"
"What a cinch it is to save once you get going. The big thing though, fellows, is to stick!"
ONE DOLLAR STARTS YOU HERE

THE AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK
 NASHVILLE

"A GREATER BANK"  "FOR GREATER NASHVILLE."

HARDEMAN'S TABERNACLE SERMONS

A series of evangelistic sermons preached by N. B. Hardeman during the Great Nashville Meeting, held in the Ryman Auditorium, March 28-April 16. These sermons ring true to the Old Book, and have a charm of style and freshness of illustration that put them in a class by themselves.

All the profits derived from the sale of these books will be used to create a fund to help poor boys and girls attend Freed-Hardeman College.

The book will contain about 350 pages, with pictures of Hardeman, Pullias, and the audience, a history of the meeting, about twenty sermons, and an address delivered by Brother Pullias before the Exchange Club.

Bound in cloth, stamped in gold. Price, $1.50.

Manuscript is all in hands of printer, and book will be ready for delivery about June 26.

Send all orders to N. B. HARDEMAN, Henderson, Tenn.

Send us a new subscriber to the Gospel Advocate

GIRLS! LEMONS

BLEACH SKIN WHITE

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents; shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day; then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

TETTERINE

for the COMPLEXION

60c at your druggist's or from
Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

OLD AT 30 OR YOUNG AT 60?

The choice is largely up to you. If your blood lacks red corpuscles, you're going to be fagged and dragged out, you're going to lack "pep," to look sallow and unhealthy, to grow old before your time.

DR. MILES' TONIC

actually increases the number of red corpuscles in the blood. It makes the cheeks plump and rosy, stimulates the digestive organs, creates a healthy appetite, and leads to increased vigor and vitality. First bottle guaranteed to help you or money refunded.

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

have coveted no man's silver, or gold, or apparel. Yea, ye yourselves know, that these hands have ministered unto my necessities, and to them that were with me." (Acts 20: 33, 34.) This was the language of the apostle Paul addressed to the elders of the church at Ephesus the last time he ever expected to behold their faces on earth.

The apostle next speaks of "murders." When some folks hear this word called, they cannot think of anything but killing, taking the life of another, manslaughter; and this is one kind of murder. But the beloved apostle John says: "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer: and ye know that no murderer hath eternal life abiding in him." (1 John 3: 15.) So the man who actually takes the life of his fellow man is not the only one that can be accounted as a murderer.

"Drunkenness" is next mentioned by the apostle. This means to be overcome by, or under the influence of, intoxicating liquors. This will cause one to talk and act in a way and manner which he would not talk or act otherwise. Solomon says: "Wine is a mocker, strong drink is raging: and whosoever is deceived thereby is not wise." (Prov. 20: 1.)

The next and last work of the flesh which the apostle makes manifest here is "revellings." The meaning of this is worldly entertainments, such as card parties, dances, moving-picture shows, as well as the secret organizations. In such society Christians should not find any pleasure. "Pure religion and undefiled before God and the Father is this, To visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction, and to keep himself unspotted from the world." (James 1: 27.)

Now, the apostle said: "They which do such things shall not inherit the kingdom of God." Christian men and women should not indulge in such works, and they must not. If we would live for Christ here and with Christ hereafter, we should ever strive to avoid the works of the flesh, and should look to and consider the consoling words of the apostle Paul in the last five verses of this chapter, in which he says: "But the fruit of the Spirit is love, joy, peace, long-suffering, gentleness, goodness, faith, meekness, temperance: against such there is no law. And they that are Christ's have crucified the flesh with the affections and lusts. If we live in the Spirit, let us also walk in the Spirit. Let us not be desirous of vainglory, provoking one another, envying one another." (Gal. 5: 22-26.)

Loss of Appetite is commonly gradual; one dish after another is set aside. It is one of the first indications that the system is running down, and there is nothing better for it than Hood's Sarsaparilla—a good tonic medicine.

School Desks

Opera Chairs.
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

POTATO PLANTS For immediate shipment. Plants grown from Seed Stock which took first premiums at the fairs. Porto Rico, $1.00; Early Triumph, $1.25; Shoer's Early, $2.00 per 1,000. Satisfaction guaranteed.

SHOER PLANT CO., Valdosta, Ga.

For Mental Depression

Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Refreshing tonic for that tired feeling—mental or physical. Soothes nerves, induces restful sleep. Invigorates, aids digestion. Delicious in fruit juices or water. All druggists.

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES
Write for Catalogue
BUDGE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

Shave, Bathe and Shampoo with one Soap.—Cuticura

Cuticura Soap is the favorite for safety razor shaving.

WATCH YOUR ADDRESS LABEL

Look at the address label that comes with each copy of the Gospel Advocate. If it bears a date that has passed, please send renewal of subscription—$2.00 a year.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE
Nashville, Tenn.

Rheumatic Pains Aches

are quickly relieved by CAPUDINE. It's liquid—agreeable to the stomach and produces satisfactory results. Standard for Headache and Grip also. 10c, 30, and 60c—TRY IT—LIKE IT.

Texas-Oklahoma Department.

(Continued from page 569.)

nizing the Main Street Christian Church as a body of worshipers on equal footing with the College Street church of Christ? Did he not give his approval of them by using them in the meeting, and does not such use of them veto the act of withdrawing from those who have introduced into the worship unauthorized things? Brother Dunn's son made the confession in the meeting, and by the request of Brother Dunn the minister of the Christian Church took his confession, even though Brother Sewell and Brother Dunn were both present. Can such be short of a declaration that he regards the minister of the Christian Church as equally approved with himself and Brother Sewell? Who can think that he would ask a man to do such, if he thought the man a rebel against Jehovah? I can account for his course on one ground only—viz., he must recognize the minister and members of the Main Street Christian Church as Christians, and though he cannot meet and worship with the use of the unauthorized things they use, yet the use of such things which caused and perpetuates the division in the body of Christ does not bring on these people disapproval of God to the extent that Brother Dunn disfellowships them, nor is their salvation in jeopardy.

The Lord commands that we "turn away from them" that cause divisions contrary to the doctrine of Christ. Are we to understand that Brother Dunn thinks inviting such folk to join him in a union meeting, using them in the prayer service, arranging for them to assist in directing the song service and to assist in the service of the Lord's table, is to "mark them"—that such procedure is to "turn away" from them? What meaneth this passage in the light of the course followed by Brother Dunn?

Brother Dunn concedes that the "Main Street Christian Church" corrupted the worship by the addition of unauthorized things. God says: "Who-soever goeth onward and abideth not in the teaching of Christ, hath not God." (2 John 9.) Has the Christian Church not refused to "abide in the teaching of Christ?" Still you invite them to join you in the meeting, and accord to them full and free fellowship.

Conferring with the Main Street Christian Church to perfect arrangements for the details of the meeting is a clear recognition of that church as a body equally as legitimate as the College Street church of Christ—this in the face of the fact that they introduced into the worship unauthorized things, thereby driving out children of God. The Lord says: "Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me." (Matt. 25: 40.) Still you invite such people to join you in a union meeting, and accord to them the fullest fellowship, when there is not the slightest indication, by word or act, that they have repented of their sins.

After the meeting closed the Christian Church "offered to give a check. It was not accepted." Why not? They were invited, and arrangement for their help, prayers, song service, co-operation, was perfected, agreeable to their wishes, and fellowship accorded them in the meeting. I am unable to see anything but inconsistency in refusing their financial aid, and am persuaded that they were led to believe that you would cheerfully accept their financial aid also.

I think a very serious mistake and incalculable harm has been done the cause of Christ by this union meeting.

I have not questioned the motives of any one connected with the Waxahachie meeting.

The desire to accomplish big things often blinds men.

In the desire to "help the Lord out," care should be exercised that we do not "drive the Lord out."

Read what Brother Sewell, the evangelist in the meeting, has to say:

Abilene, Texas, May 27, 1922.—Dear Brother Nichol: In addition to what I wrote you hurriedly at Wichita Falls, I desire to say, I am not committed to the plan of the Waxahachie meeting as a general practice. I say frankly I saw things all the way through that were objectionable; and the further away from it I get, the more I am convinced that such a meeting is not calculated to do more good than harm.

I think the Waxahachie church would not hold such meeting again; but they can speak for themselves.

I would not accept an invitation for another meeting under the same circumstances.

You are at liberty to quote this as you see proper for the good of the cause of Christ. I rather think it would be better for me to be doubted for a while and give them time to try out their plan thoroughly.

The above, however, expresses my real feelings briefly as I expressed them more fully to you at the Westbrook. The statement is in your possession to use as you think best, when you think best.

Sincerely and fraternally,
J. P. SEWELL.

Brother Sewell is president of Abilene Christian College, the largest school in Texas in which only Christians are used as teachers; a school whose directors must be faithful members in congregations of Christians which oppose the use of unauthorized things in the worship of the church of Christ. In this school are a number of young men who will become public preachers of the word—some of them are now preaching. I am glad to publish the disapproval of this union meeting. Though he was the evangelist in the meeting, he goes to record by saying: "I am convinced that such a meeting is not calculated to do more good than harm." "I would not accept an invitation for another meeting under the same circumstances."

Had I made the mistake of having become a party to the union meeting, I would have told the Main Street Christian Church, plainly, earnestly, where they stood, and urged them to repent of the awful sin of corrupting the worship and thereby causing division in the body of Christ, driving Christ and his brethren out. By such a course I might have saved some. No doubt some would have quit the meeting. Too, I have an idea the friendly conferences would have ceased.

SORES BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Roaches-Water Bugs"RED DEVIL DESTROYER"*CLEANS 'EM OUT*Send 50 Cents for Large Can*ST. LOUIS INSECT CO.,

127 Market Street,

St. Louis, Mo.

Castle Heights MILITARY ACADEMY

Things you look for in a school for your boy—sympathetic, intelligent leadership that understands boys. Opportunity for complete mental, physical and moral upbuilding. Academic and Commercial courses. Military Training and all acceptable athletics. Here a strong faculty of University-trained experts assures your boy proper development in all lines. Modern, complete equipment. Recognized by leading universities. For illustrated catalogue, address COL. C. M. MATHIS, A.M., L.L.B., Pres. Box R Lebanon, Tenn.

For the
Up-building
Of Manly Boys

Law SchoolCumberland University

The Course of Study, more than 10,000 pages, covers the entire field of American law. It is completed in ONE COLLEGE YEAR with degree LL.B. It is taught by daily assignments of textbook lessons with classroom recitations and MOOT COURT practice. For catalogue, address LAW SCHOOL, Box 272, Lebanon, Tennessee.

EVERYBODY ASKS FOR NEW KIND OF CALOMEL

Calotabs, the De-Nauseated Calomel Tablet, is in Great Demand Because of Its Freedom from Unpleasant and Dangerous Effects.

Have you tried the new calomel tablet that makes calomel taking a pleasure? If you have, you appreciate the wonderful virtues of calomel, when robbed of its unpleasant and nauseating effects.

Calotabs is the sensation of the drug trade. Pharmacists regard it as a practically perfect remedy for the liver. Its effect in biliousness, constipation, and indigestion is delightful.

The next time your liver needs a thorough cleansing, try Calotabs. One tablet at bedtime, with a swallow of water; that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping. Wake up in the morning feeling fine, with your system thoroughly cleansed and a hearty appetite. Eat what you please; no danger.

Beware of imitations! Genuine Calotabs are sold only in "checkerboard" (black and white) packages bearing the copyrighted trademark, "Calotabs." The large, family size sells for thirty-five cents; vest-pocket size, ten cents. All dealers are authorized to refund the price if you are not delighted with Calotabs.—Adv.

JELLO Ice Cream Powder

Even Dinah Has "Come To It"

IN the best homes served by good cooks it has been no easy matter to provide good ice cream for the family, and so the advent of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder has been welcomed on every hand. The cook, of course, is delighted with the ease and sureness of the new way. One package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder and one quart of rich milk make half a gallon of delicious ice cream.

All grocers sell Jell-O Ice Cream Powder, two packages for 25 cents.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N. Y.

Christian Motherhood.

BY F. P. FONNER.

Christian motherhood is a very delicate subject. It makes one tremble in approaching it. That we really do have some devoted Christian mothers cannot be doubted, and these must be held in the highest esteem by all Christians. On the other hand, there are many who vainly imagine that they are such, and these seem to have no adequate conceptions of God or his word. They are never seen with their children in the public assembly of the saints. They do not seem to know that the mother must ever be the chief teacher in the family. This teaching must be backed up by a devoted Christian life. Say, mother, you should be the best-informed person, religiously, in your family; and you can be, if you will study God's word with the idea of teaching your own children. By so doing you will enrich your own mind and save your own family from eternal destruction. The reason why the churches of Christ cannot be built up in many localities is because the lack of home training has produced a race of degenerates incapable of understanding the gospel. These degenerates are hard to reach. Every mother should want to see her own children become better Christians than she is herself. Each generation should rise higher in the scale of humanity than previous ones.

A notable result of home training is seen in the character of Timothy. "When I call to remembrance the unfeigned faith that is in thee, which dwelt first in thy grandmother Lois, and thy mother Eunice; and I am persuaded that in thee also." (2 Tim. 1: 5.) Grandmother, are you a Lois? Mother, are you a Eunice? If so, where are your trained Timothies? We need thousands of grandmothers like Lois and also thousands of mothers like Eunice. We need hosts of self-sacrificing Timothies who will declare the "whole counsel of God." Christian mothers, who among you will train a Timothy? Do you know that your own salvation and the final end of your children depend upon what you do now? Christian motherhood is one of the highest positions on earth. The nobility of this position is beyond our estimate. Mothers, please do not belittle this high position by neglecting the religious education of your own children. Begin it now, and keep it up until the children are safe in the bosom of the true church.

In order to a faithful performance of motherly duties, the mother must be rooted and grounded in divine love. This is common with all Christians. "That Christ may dwell in your hearts by faith; that ye, being rooted and grounded in love," etc. (See Eph. 3:

FIFTY YEARS AGO

A young man who practiced medicine in Pennsylvania became famous and was called in consultation in many towns and cities because of his success in the treatment of disease. This was Dr. Pierce, who finally made up his mind to place some of his medicines before the public, and moving to Buffalo, N. Y., put up what he called his "Favorite Prescription," and placed it with the druggists in every state.

Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has long been recognized as a tonic for diseases peculiar to womankind. After suffering pain, feeling nervous, dizzy, weak and dragged-down by weaknesses of her sex—a woman is quickly restored to health by its use. Thousands of women testify that Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription has entirely eradicated their distressing ailments.

More recently that wonderful discovery of Dr. Pierce's, called An-uric (for kidneys and backache), has been successfully used by many thousands who write Dr. Pierce of the benefits received—that their backache, rheumatism, and other symptoms of uric acid deposits in joints or muscles have been completely conquered by its use.

Send 10c to Dr. Pierce, Buffalo, N. Y., for trial pkg. of any of his remedies, or write for free medical advice.

To Reduce Fever Relieve Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

Use

Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely safe to use as it does not depress the heart even in extreme cases of debility or weak heart, neurasthenia or anaemia. Manufactured by a formula in use by leading physicians generally. 19 parts pure Aspirin, 1 part pure Caffeine, 4 parts excipient, in convenient tablet form. 35c per package at your druggists or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, inc., Clinton, S. C.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

17.) Please read the context. This verse and the context includes all Christians. Christian fathers, mothers, sons, and daughters are included in it. All must be rooted and grounded in love. Christian mothers should not seek to enter politics, because that is not God's order. The sacred duties and obligations of Christian motherhood must with all mothers outweigh every other consideration. The souls of our growing boys and girls weigh more in the estimation of every good mother than all material things. Give your boys and girls your best efforts.

A Letter to F. W. Smith.

Dear Brother Smith: Your article, "From the Shoulder Out," in the Gospel Advocate of June 1, as to Brother S. S. Lappin charging the managers of the missionary societies with dishonesty, is read with pleasure. This recalls to my mind some of the writings of W. K. Azbill a few years since—as, "The Menace of Centralization," "The Wrong Attitude in Boards," "The Beast in the Jungle," and "The Menace of a Ruling Body." My thoughts are not with these particular articles or the societies as much as they are with your statement: "And yet there are churches, or, at least, individuals who hold membership in churches, that do not affiliate with the societies who seem almost crazy to become identified with the thing that Brother Lappin so strongly arraigns for its corruption!" Brother Smith, those same people crave to do something to be seen of men, and I see it in some of my travels that that class are really the rulers in the church to the exclusion of consistent Christians. The minority rules in politics, it rules in man-made organizations, it rules in churches where there is disunion, and a tendency to set aside the word of God gives to the religious world a sense of pride to see them following in their steps. We cannot consistently fight against anything which we practice or desire to practice.

CARL BARNETTE.

Even should a man make it a rule to read nothing until he has a definite estimate of its merit, he will find in the end that he has lost little. For any purpose of the cultivation of the mind or the imagination the book which is good to read to-day is good to read to-morrow.—Arlo Bates.

He only is great who has the habits of greatness; who, after performing what none in ten thousand could accomplish, passes on, like Samson, and "tells neither father nor mother of it."—Lavater.

SAY "BAYER" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache	Rheumatism
Toothache	Neuralgia	Neuritis
Earache	Lumbago	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions. Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 15, 1910
HOLDS SHIRT DOWN
SOX UP
DON'T BIND LEGS

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good
WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY
WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by
Washington Manufacturing Company
Nashville, Tennessee

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 15, 1910
NO BULGING OF
SHIRT—NO MORE
VARICOSE VEINS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

COULD HARDLY EAT ANYTHING UNTIL HE USED PE-RU-NA

NEIGHBORS FOUND IT A WONDERFUL MEDICINE

"I was weak and tired and could hardly eat anything until I used Pe-ru-na. Soon my appetite was good and my strength returned. I told my neighbors and every one of them found it a wonderful medicine. You can always get a dose of Pe-ru-na at my house no matter what the war tax."

MR. T. N. WAGGONER,
Box 25, Bragg City, Mo.

Catarrh of the stomach and bowels is among the many forms of catarrhal diseases from which a large number of people needlessly suffer. Fifty years of usefulness is the guarantee behind

PE-RU-NA

Tablets or LiquidSold Everywhere

Now is the time to renew your subscription.

Field Reports

Gallatin, Tenn., June 5.—The first Sunday in June was a good day for the Gallatin congregation. There were three services, and all were well attended. Brother W. F. Ledlow, of Austin, Texas, came up from Nashville and delivered a very fine sermon at three o'clock. The brethren say it was one of the best. Brother Ledlow made a very fine impression on the Gallatin congregation. They would be pleased to have him at any time for a meeting or any work they may need. I was at Hartsville, Tenn., to deliver a memorial address and missed hearing him.—T. B. Clark.

Heber Springs, Ark., June 6.—The meetings which began here on May 28, with Brother L. R. Wilson doing the preaching and Brother E. R. Harper leading the singing, has already aroused the greatest interest of any meeting that has ever been in this town. We had it well advertised before they came, and we have found that it certainly pays. The house that we have been using was filled to overflowing from the beginning, and our crowds continued to increase till we asked for permission to use the courthouse, which was granted to us. Our Methodist friends then came and tendered us their house, and we accepted their offer. They told us it would seat about a thousand people. On Sunday night (the first night of our services in their house) it was filled to overflowing and about a hundred people were turned away. There were two confessions on Sunday, from the Baptists. The meeting will continue for two weeks yet. All classes of people are attending now.—J. D. Miller.

Plainview, Texas, June 3.—During the month of May I held a week's meeting at Bledsoe, with good interest and a man and wife restored. A large number of brethren from Lubbock and Plainview came in time for the fine dinner on Lord's day and remained over to hear Brother John T. Smith's truly great sermon in the afternoon on "Old-time Religion." The work in Plainview is doing well under the great leadership of Brother R. M. Peace, one of the best of elders, I think. One good sister was recently restored. While the little church at Kress has had some hindrances from brethren who oppose even a class for children on Lord's-day morning, yet there is a future for the church, and we expect a growth during the summer. I preached to them on Lord's day, and to a splendid audience near Kress in the afternoon, and began a meeting at Runningwater at night. This meeting has been hindered by rain, yet the interest is good, and there have been three confessions. The little city of Plainview is now completing a city auditorium in the heart of the city, which will seat twenty-five hundred people. The church has it engaged for our meeting the first half of September. Brother Foy E. Wallace, Jr., and one of the Todd singers will help us in this, the greatest effort ever put forth on the South Plains in the interest of New Testament Christianity. Many neighboring brethren and churches are to attend and help us in this meeting. Homes will be provided for those who will come and remain with us. Brethren, pray for us.—O. M. Reynolds.

Let thy discontents be thy secrets.—
Benjamin Franklin.

TETTERINE

Makes low necks and short sleeves possible. It clears the skin

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUT-
TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

FARMERS AND MERCHANTS BANK

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

OFFICERS

A. E. POTTER, President
JOE S. BOYD, Vice President	EDWARD POTTER, JR., Cashier
FRANK M. THONI, Assistant Cashier	GEORGE W. BATES, Assistant Cashier

DIRECTORS

O. W. Staley	Harris Solinsky	Leon B. McQuiddy
Jos. C. Scheffer	G. A. Harrington	W. J. Wallace
John P. Stumb	L. Kornman	Justin Potter
A. E. Potter	Chris. J. Power	Louis Huggins
H. Z. Lipscomb	Joe S. Boyd	Edward Potter, Jr.

FOUR PER CENT PAID ON SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

We Invite Your Banking Business

BEFORE BABY COMES

Watchful Care of Health Necessary

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a Marvelous Help

West Orange, N. J.—"I was very nervous and upset for six months before my baby was born. One of my friends told me to take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it for five months now. I have a big boy who weighed almost nine pounds at birth and I do all my housework and don't feel a bit nervous or upset any more. I still take your medicine and have told all my friends what good it has done me."—Mrs. MARGARET GREGORY, 440 Valley Road, West Orange, N. J.

West New York, N. J.—"The first two months I carried my baby I was in bed almost every day with sick headaches. I tried Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and the first bottle helped me. I took seven more and I know I couldn't feel better than I did. The headaches stopped and I was able to do my own work. I have a baby girl six months old who weighs twenty pounds and is the picture of health."—Mrs. J. McCoy, 207 20th St., West New York, N. J.

Nervous and Run-Down

Biloxi, Miss.—"Just a word of praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I took it with wonderful results before my baby was born. I was so nervous and run-down that I was a wreck of misery. I had pains in my sides and back so bad that I could not stay still or sleep nights. My husband was reading your 'ad.' in the paper and I decided to try your Vegetable Compound. After I had taken half a bottle I felt a change and was soon as well as ever. I took it the whole time and recommend it to every woman who is suffering as I was. People said that because I was so young I would never pull through and I praise your Vegetable Compound for my good health."—Mrs. ENOCH J. STEVENS, 889 Fayard St., Biloxi, Miss.

Chicago, Ill.—"I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for all prospective mothers. I suffered from weakness and faint spells and had to lie down twice a day for an hour or so before I could go on with my work. My cousin, who lives in Wisconsin, has used your Vegetable Compound for over five years and she came to us for a visit and she recommended it to me, saying she would pay for the bottle if it did not help me. I took that bottle and got more, as I found it gave me great relief. I recommend it to my friends and sisters and am willing for you to use these facts to help others."—Mrs. I. J. KUBINSKI, 1813 W. 17th St., Chicago, Illinois.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken by expectant mothers. It will assist them in keeping well and strong. This is necessary not only for their own comfort but for the future as well.

It helped these women. It has helped many others.

Gospel Advocate

GREENWOOD TENN.
MAY 1 23
JAMES WATERS

Volume LXIV. No. 25.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JUNE 22, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures.....	577
Death for Life.....	578
OUR CONTRIBUTORS.....	578
God Is a Jealous God (No. 2)—Getting Results—A Scripture on Giving: 1 Cor. 16: 2—The "Gospel Advo- cate Company"—Should They Know?—Obedience— Notes from West Tennessee—The Campbell-Owen Debate.....
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	584
Keep Busy Doing and Drop the "Don'ts".....	586
QUERY DEPARTMENT.....	587
AT HOME AND ABROAD.....	588
EDITORIAL.....	590
James A. Harding—A Friendly Criticism—Baptized for the Remission of Sins—The Annual Meeting.....
Field Notes.....	593
Are You Washed in the Blood?.....	594
The Power of Man and False Doctrine.....	595
Field Reports.....	596
John Marion Rountree—Church Work at Miami, Fla.....	597
Word from Brother Yohannan.....	598
Another Congregation in Florida.....	599
Statement to the Brotherhood—The Foundation of the Church—Sister Cybert Reaches Home.....	600

INSPIRATION OF THE HOLY SCRIPTURES.

BY H. LEO BOLES.

It is well to keep in mind the meaning of the terms of a proposition in the study and discussion of a question. If we do not know the exact meaning of the terms, we cannot know the truth of the affirmation. We should understand by the term "Holy Scriptures" that we mean the thirty-nine books of the Old Testament and the twenty-seven books of the New Testament. All mistakes (if there be any), all errors of transcription, all apocryphal portions, and all interpolations are excluded, forming no part of the "Holy Scriptures." If it can be shown that any part of the sixty-six books of the Bible is not a revelation from God to man, then that part is not to be included in the Holy Scriptures; and, therefore, that part is not affirmed to be inspired.

We should bear in mind that inspiration means a "divine and miraculous illumination and guidance of the human mind." As used and applied to the Holy Scriptures, it is used "to denote that divine and miraculous illumination and guidance which enabled their original writers to select from the storehouse of their knowledge the proper material and correctly to embody the same in human language." We are to understand that inspiration did not make a fact any more real, a truth any truer, or a principle any more veritable. That is not the purpose of inspiration. A fact is a fact before inspiration deals with it; a truth or principle is not affected by inspiration. The truths and principles which come from God are eternal, and their nature is not modified in the least by inspiration. Inspiration cannot add a degree to the truthfulness of a truth. He who looks for a truth to be truer because it came through a mind guided by the Spirit of God is looking for the wrong thing. He will be disappointed. There are facts and principles just as genuine that inspiration has not dealt with as are the facts and principles which have been given by inspiration. Inspiration guided the mind, tongue, and pen of the servant of God in saying just the things, and only the things, which pertain to the subject under consideration.

Referring again to the three disjunctions of the proposition, we have observed that none of the Holy Scriptures is inspired, or only a part of the Scriptures is inspired, or the whole of the Scriptures is inspired. In a former article we have dismissed the first member of this disjunction, and now direct attention to the second member. There are many difficulties which arise and must be met by the one who claims that only a part of the Scriptures is inspired.

If the Holy Scriptures are inspired only in part, which part is inspired? Who is able to select the word, sentence, verse, chapter, or book which is not inspired? Is there any part of the Holy Scriptures which does not claim inspiration? Has God designated a part of the Holy Scriptures as being inspired and marked the other part as unworthy of inspiration? Who has been able to find with a critical and microscopical inspection and with the closest analysis where God has designated that only a part of the Holy Scriptures is inspired? It seems to me that if God has not marked that part of the Scriptures which is not inspired, will it not take an inspired man to designate that which is not inspired? Since God has not marked that part and has not revealed such a mark unto man, it must take an inspired man or men or mind to select the inspired part and cull out the uninspired part. The line must be drawn between the inspired part and the uninspired part, or else the student of the Holy Scriptures will not be able to discriminate between the two parts. Indeed, if the divine and the human, "the food and the poison, are so mingled," is not the compound very dangerous? How unsettled and unstable must be the faith of the child of God! How shall we know whether our faith rests upon the word of God or the traditions of men if a clear and definite line is not drawn between the inspired and the uninspired?

An illustration will emphasize the argument presented here. I was once talking with a gentleman on the subject of baptism. We both agreed finally that baptism was a command of God. But said he: "Man does not have to obey it to be saved; it is a nonessential command." I then insisted that he tell me how he knew that it was "a nonessential command." I insisted that there were many commands in the New Testament, and that I did not know the difference between God's essential commands and his nonessential commands. I tried to get him to take a pencil and mark all of the nonessential commands so that I could know them. God had not marked them, and I was unable to discriminate between the essential commands and the nonessential commands.

The same is true with regard to the present proposition. We must know how to discriminate between the uninspired part and the inspired part—if, indeed, there be found in the Holy Scriptures such a mixture and conglomeration. It will not do to say that there are contradictions in the Bible, and that that proves that a part of the Scriptures is not inspired. It must first be proved that there are contradictions in the Holy Scriptures. This has not yet been done.

We are now prepared to affirm the third member of the disjunction. Before entering upon this task it is well to make a few observations. There are many theories of inspiration. Among these may be mentioned "the mechanical theory of inspiration," "the theory of natural inspiration," "the noematic theory of inspiration." We are not so much interested in these different theories as we are interested in the truth of the proposition. The "mechanical theory of inspiration" assumes that all of the writers of the Bible were mere passive agencies of the Holy Spirit; that the writers were only amanuenses of the Holy Spirit. The "theory of natural inspiration" assumes that there was no supernatural influence, but that the writers possessed only an inspiration common to all writers. They say that Moses, David, Isaiah, Daniel, Matthew, Paul, Peter, John, and James were inspired only as Homer, Plato, Aristotle, Cæsar, Cicero, Virgil, Shakespeare, and Milton. The "noematical theory of inspiration" attempts to take the middle ground between the two theories mentioned above. This theory insists that only the mind of the writer was guided, but that the writer was left free to choose his own words.

Publishers' Items.

Write us to-day for our list of good books. It will be sent free on request.

Send us a new subscriber to-day for the Gospel Advocate. Price, $2 a year, in advance.

Write us to-day for sample copies of The Young People for boys and girls. The price is in reach of all.

If you know of any congregation not now using our Bible Lesson Helps and will send us the address, we will gladly furnish them sample copies.

If you have friends who are not subscribers to the Gospel Advocate, kindly furnish us their names and addresses so that we may send them sample copies.

We call your attention to the advertisement of our song books on another page of this issue. We are prepared to fill your order for any of these song books on short notice.

Every church should know its membership. In order to keep informed as to the residence and membership of your church, you should have a church record. Our Church Record is the very thing you need. Price, $1.50.

"Questions Answered," by David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell, should have a place in every library. Those who have seen and examined it closely are highly pleased with it. Cloth bound; 700 pages. Price, $3, postpaid.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Miner's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

The second edition of "Travels in Bible Lands," by Andy T. Ritchie, is now ready. It is pronounced by all who have read it as being the best book ever written on travels in the Holy Land. It is illustrated and contains 335 pages. Cloth bound. Price, $1.50, postpaid, to any address. Send for your copy to-day.

Death for Life.

BY B. F. M. SOURS.

I yield the old self all to be Lost for pure immortality.
The man of sin must die the death
If I would breathe immortal breath.
O Christ, thou Life, be thou my God,
Lead me the path thyself hast trod.
Through death and darkness into bright
Eternal seas of Heaven's light.
I crave, I yield! take me to-day,
And cleanse all self and sin away,
That death may triumph in the strife
To bring the resurrection life.
And so, O joy! thou Life for aye,
I hail the everlasting day
To be with Thee who died for me—
Then help me live my life for thee!

Our Contributors

God Is a Jealous God. No. 2

BY F. L. PAISLEY.

In the former lesson on this subject it was emphasized that Jehovah lays first claim to our affections and service on the ground that he is Jehovah our God, and a jealous God, "whose name is Jealous." He could not be made to suspect rivalry in our affections if he did not demand our whole devotion. Of the same people to whom the Lord said, "Thou shalt have no other gods before me: for I Jehovah thy God am a jealous God," it was afterwards said: "They moved him to jealousy with strange gods [gods they knew not]. . . . They have moved me to jealousy with that which is not God." (Deut. 32: 16-21.) They made God jealous of them after he had assured them that he was already jealous. They made him to suspect rivalry in their devotion to him; and he had just reason for suspicion. As a matter of fact, the very people of whom the Lord claimed their all turned their affections from him and centered their hearts and worship upon "new gods," so new that their fathers had never known them. What an awful thing to make Jehovah jealous! As a retribution he said: "I will move them to jealousy with those that are not a people; I will provoke them to anger with a foolish nation." A mother calls her babe that is so delighted with other things that it refuses to heed her call. She then embraces a child not her own and says: "Then mother will love this baby." Who has not observed the rage and opposition with which the rebellious little tot now comes, refusing to allow its mother to so divide her devotion? The child is jealous in both ways, yet does not know the word. It demands exclusive devotion from its mother, and upon her action it is "moved to jealousy" and has good reason to suspect rivalry in her love.

Just so did Jehovah endeavor to get Israel to return to him; and seeing the division of their affections, he was "moved to jealousy" and said: "I will move them to jealousy with those that are not a people." No doubt a far-off fulfillment of this declaration is in Israel's rejection of the gospel of grace; for, "It was necessary that the word of God should first be spoken to you. Seeing ye thrust it from you, . . . lo, we turn to the Gentiles." (Acts 13: 46, 47.) It is true that just here Paul quoted from Isa. 49: 6 and called their action a fulfillment of that scripture; but in this the Lord did certainly turn to "those that are not a people" and provoked the Jews to anger with "a foolish nation." But to make it doubly sure, read Rom. 11: 11. Speaking of the Jews' rejection of the gospel, Paul says: "By their fall salvation is come unto the Gentiles, to provoke them [the Jews] to jealousy." Again: "I glorify my ministry; if by any means I may provoke them to jealousy that are my flesh." (Verses 13, 14.)

But does the Bible teach that we can make the Lord jealous of us? It will be admitted that he demands our exclusive devotion. Jesus said: "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy mind. This is the great and first commandment." (Matt. 22: 37, 38.) That God is a jealous God is not peculiar to Old Testament teaching. There is a principle in the charge to Israel that is true now. Note again Ex. 23: 32, 33; 34: 12. Spiritual Israel—the church of the Lord—is prohibited from going into covenant with the denominations. "It will surely be a snare unto thee." For example, if it is wrong for us to use instrumental music in our worship, then it must be wrong for us to assist others in their use of it in their worship—wrong to sing with them at such times as the instruments are used. This is denied by some, but I verily believe it true. I have in mind a congregation of very fine Christian people who never use instrumental music in their worship, for they believe it wrong; but I have heard them sing heartily when others were worshipping with the instrument. None of them believed it right to use instruments in our worship, but some defended the congregation's singing with those using it who do think it the right kind of worship. Many are those thus inconsistent. This is why it was said in the former article that we are prone to flirt with a religious evil in order to be courteous to those using it. It will surely "be a snare unto thee." Israel was to break into pieces the altars of false worship. The principle is yet true. We are to do it with the "sword of the Spirit." But we cannot do it by making love with it. We should be just as far from yielding to a false worship as Jehovah required of Israel, and just as positive in the destruction of their ways, only with the word of God instead of with hammer and physical power, as Israel was to do. To the church at Corinth Paul said: "Do we provoke the Lord to jealousy? are we stronger than he?" (1 Cor. 10: 22.) These Christians had been dividing their affections at the table of demons. This made the Lord become jealous, justly suspecting rivalry. It is not here granted that the only way to make the Lord jealous is to eat at demons' tables. Paul contended that an idol or the things offered to idols were no evil within themselves, but the evil was in the use made of those things. I do not believe that there is any evil in many of the things that take us from worship and service of the Lord. But when the hour of worship comes and we prefer a trip of pleasure or the association of "company" that has not been to see us for so long, or if we prefer to stay at home because we have worked all the week and have had no time to be with the family, can we be right sure that we do not make our Savior and his Father jealous of us? If companions would treat each other as we treat the Lord of glory, they would be jealous indeed. If when the husband's need and interest required wife's attention she should be found giving attention and affection to another, even in a way not wrong within itself, how hurt that husband would be! A second offense—yea, the first—would receive no uncertain reproof. Yet, over and over again, we, as members of the church, "the bride, the Lamb's wife," so often give our attention to the interest of other things and our own selfish pleasure at the very time the Lord's interest should be uppermost in our affections. What a dangerous thing to make heaven's King jealous of us! "Are we stronger than he?" Nay. Then what might be our fate?

Once more. To Christians Paul wrote: "I am jealous over you with a godly jealousy: for I espoused you to one husband, that I might present you as a pure virgin to Christ." (2 Cor. 11: 2.) A woman that is the wife of "one husband" has it in her power to make him jealous in many ways. She can unduly love another, but disown his name, wearing only the name of her husband. This does not satisfy her husband. He claims all her attention. She can claim to give her one husband all her attention (it would be only a claim), insisting that she is his lawful, devoted wife, and at the same time insist upon wearing the name of another not her husband. Either course will make any real husband jealous, and no true wife will do either. The moment she does she becomes untrue to her one husband. Many are the "brides" (?) of Christ who claim the latter course—claim to give him foremost attention, but freely wear others' names, not only in addition to his name, but, if asked who they are, will readily, unhesitatingly, and proudly give the other name first, if, indeed, they give Christ's name at all. Husbands, regardless of who you are, would you not blush and tremble if you should overhear your own wife asked who she is, and she should reply, giving a name not your own? Then how you would listen to hear her call your own name, which, if you heard at all, came second! Your jealousy would not be appeased by her insisting that there is nothing in a name. How sure you would be that you hold first place (?) in her affections! How sad the thought that hundreds of thousands who claim to be of the Lord's own bride are doing this very thing! Paul's desire was to present the church at Corinth "as a pure virgin to Christ," not untrue to him, wearing the name of any man. The church there could not have justly claimed to be a pure virgin, in a spiritual sense, if she wore the name of any other than God and Christ. Neither can it be so now.

Many wear only the name of the "one husband," but make him jealous and reject him by giving undue attention to other things and by robbing him of service due him. Others are, in some respects, apparently more free from this evil, but make Christ jealous and reject him by wearing the names of others in addition to, and instead of, the name of Christ. I do not know which class will be the first to hear, "Depart from me." "For I Jehovah thy God am a jealous God."

Getting Results.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

In a recent article called "An Open Door" I took the position that we are not getting results in proportion to the energy, money, and time spent in our evangelistic work. Let us study that subject again. If our preachers will take notice, I think they will find that nearly all of our additions are children of church members. No wonder, for scarcely any one else goes besides members and their children. This condition has prevailed for some time, and it is getting worse.

It is obvious that something must be done. Present methods are entirely unsatisfactory, if we are ever to reach the world or even the unconverted part of the United States. Many realize this, and various remedies have been suggested. A very common one is to select some good preacher and locate him with the church. But this will not work, because every denomination in the town is doing the same thing. If we think of building a nice meetinghouse as an attraction, we have but to look around us to see that that has already been run into the ground. Visiting from house to house is good, but there is every preacher in town doing the same thing.

There was a time when I thought advertising on a more businesslike basis would solve the problem, but now I think there is nothing I can do along that line that has not already been worked overtime. The big meeting in Nashville was advertised thoroughly. All the latest methods were used, such as billboards, banners, streamers, newspaper space, window cards, blotters, etc. The audiences were good, but the large majority were already Christians. After all, the persons who most needed that kind of preaching were not there.

One very obvious reason for that is that this method of getting a crowd is already in use by the denominations. We can only imitate them. We can never hope to excel them in this line. But unless we can do something to excel in some line, we will never succeed in reaching any very large numbers.

There are many who fail to see any reason for dissatisfaction, but I am afraid they are not observing. Take our big meeting again. Thirty-nine sermons by one of our best preachers; audiences ranging from three to six thousand; singing led by one of our best singers; backed up by the press of the city and by about forty congregations, besides visitors from distant States and near-by places; five thousand dollars and twenty days; and only about two hundred baptized! It does not look very big to me. I still insist that something else must be done to win the masses.

Some one raised the question as to which was the better—to have one big meeting, all the churches coöperating, or let every congregation begin a meeting simultaneously. The Methodists took the latter plan in Memphis, and ran twenty meetings at the same time we were running ours. I have not complete data, but the Commercial-Appeal, April 11, says: "Methodists gain five hundred and forty-seven new members; result of first week of simultaneous revival." Whether we would have done better or not may be a question, but I would like to see the other way tried once. This same paper of May 8 shows the Baptists in a "simultaneous" meeting in Memphis, and they report over six hundred additions up to that date. Team work evidently pays in any line.

It seems likely that several smaller meetings would allow for the influences of more personalities. Every man has a personality that touches and influences some people as no other person can. Every man soon reaches the limit of his personality. When he does that, his work is done there, as far as influencing people is concerned. It is obvious, then, that the more personalities we put to work, the greater will be the results obtained. This is one argument in favor of many smaller meetings rather than one large one.

However, I doubt that anything of this kind will bring us into contact with the unconverted portion of America. Whatever we may try—big meetings, big preachers, fine houses, big advertising—has been done already on an extensive scale. There is only one field uncultivated, and that is the one mentioned in a former article—viz., help the helpless. That is one place that is never crowded. "Ye have the poor with you always, and whensoever ye will ye may do them good." If enough hungry people could be fed and unfortunate children and old people cared for, it would give us advertising far superior to anything the newspapers can do for us.

Suppose a policeman or some other public man should find a person in need of help, would he send him to the church of Christ? No. Why? We are not advertised—that is, if we have ever done any of that kind of work, it is so little that he never heard of it. He will send him to the Salvation Army or to a Catholic institution. There is no good in blowing these other people for pushing themselves forward. We could do the same thing if we cared to put our time and money to that use. Every member of the church right to-day could help some one if he cared to. If all "who have tasted the good word of God" should begin right now to spend some time and money on helpless children, unfortunate old people, poor and struggling fathers and mothers of large families, and keep it up, we would never have to whistle for a crowd when we get ready to preach.

How can we expect the people to come to hear us preach? What have we to offer them? We have the gospel, it is true; but the untutored man does not know that. In his unregenerate state he will never understand the real beauty of hearing, believing, and obeying the exact truth. The only thing he can understand is our love for him, expressed not in words, but in our willingness to help him in his distress. This was Christ's method of advertising. He helped the poor and oppressed in some way and let them publish his greatness. We need that kind of advertising.

There is only one class that can be reached in this way—"the common people," "the publicans and the sinners." At least, the so-called "respectable element," not needing our help, will not be affected at first. But it is very probable that when we have built up a reputation for doing good to the poor, there will be many people attracted to us of the so-called "higher classes." This kind of work must begin with the class of people now rejected by the world and ignored by the church. I know this kind of work will bring results, because I have tried it.

Try to imagine the churches of Christ feeding or clothing some poor person or persons every day all over the country—all the year round. "A city set on a hill cannot be hid." It would be doing what Christ wants done, and it would advertise us and bring us into favor with the very people who need salvation. However, we are a church, a body, and we cannot act as individuals—that is, one doing this kind of work here and there will not bring the whole church into favor. The church must be educated to work as a unit.

A Scripture on Giving—1 Cor. 16: 2.

BY B. C. GOODPASTURE.

Jesus and the apostles taught much on giving. The present lack of apostolic liberality among some professed followers of Christ is not due to any absence of divine revelation on the matter. It may be traced, in some instances, to preachers who, in order to save their imagined popularity, have failed to declare the "counsel of God" on this subject. Doubtless the churches will give more when they are taught more. He who, willfully and for personal considerations, shuns to declare the will of God with reference to giving of one's means in the service of the Lord, betrays his sacred trust. He disobeys precept and disregards example. He may thus render himself not "pure from the blood of all men." (Acts 20: 26.)

The passage under consideration is plain and emphatic. "Upon the first day of the week let each one of you lay by him in store, as he may prosper, that no collections be made when I come." Paul here shows the Corinthians how to have their contribution ready when he comes. A collection was to be made "upon the first day of the week;" every one was to contribute; and the contributions were to be in proportion to the ability of the givers. These principles are fundamental and for all time. They demand our consideration.

1. The Time. The expression, "upon the first day of the week," may not represent the full force of the original—kata mian sabbatou. Many scholars think the phrase should be translated, "upon the first day of every week." They feel that the Greek requires the verbal expression of the emphasis that may be only implied in our accepted versions. A few quotations will be sufficient to show how some of the greatest scholars have committed themselves on the translation of the words in question. Charles Hodge, the Princeton professor, says: "The collection was to be made every Lord's day." (Comment on 1 Cor. 16: 2.) T. C. Edwards, principal of the University College, of Wales, says: "Every first day of the week." (Comment in loco.) J. R. Boise, one time professor in the University of Chicago, translates the phrase: "On every first day of the week." (Notes on the Epistles of Paul.) Marvin R. Vincent, a Union Theological Seminary professor, says: "Kata has a distributive force—every first day." (Word Studies in New Testament.) G. G. Finley says: "On every first (day) of the week." (Expositor's Greek Testament, in loco.) James Macknight, the great Presbyterian commentator, says: "On the first day of every week. . . . As kata polin signifies every city; and kata mena, every month; and, Acts 14: 23, kata ecclesian, in every church, so kata mian sabbatou signifies the first day of every week." (Apostolical Epistles.) A. Campbell quoted the substance of the foregoing, with his approval, in the "Christian System." H. A. W. Meyer, than whom, perhaps, no greater commentator on the Greek text ever lived, says: "On each first day of the week." (Comment in loco.) Edward Robinson, the author of a very fine Greek and English Lexicon of the New Testament, says: "Every first day of the week." (Comment under kata.) J. H. Thayer, the renowned author of the Greek-English Lexicon of the New Testament, the lexicon on the New Testament, says: "On the first day of every week." (Comment under kata.)

Space forbids further quotations. These are enough to indicate the exactness with which Paul wrote in telling the Corinthians when to "lay by in store." Of course their giving was not necessarily limited to the first day of the week. He had given the same orders to the churches of Galatia. He also instructed the Galatians to do good unto all men as they had opportunity. (Gal. 6: 10.) Thus it might be necessary to give on any day of the week, as the emergency might demand. But the text under investigation enjoins a regular and definite time to give, a time so clearly pointed out that there is no room for misunderstanding.

2. The Persons. The persons are mentioned no less clearly than the time. "Let each one of you lay by him in store." No one can feel that he has been overlooked or slighted in this matter, regardless of how much he may desire it. It is another case in which "each man shall bear his own burden." (Gal. 6: 5.) Religion is individual rather than congregational or national. We cannot serve God by proxy. Every man must "work out his own salvation with fear and trembling." (Phil. 2: 12.) Every man must contribute for himself. The father can no more contribute for the son than he can repent for him. "Let each man do according as he hath purposed in his heart: not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver." (2 Cor. 9: 7.) God never intended that a few faithful members should bear the financial burden of the congregation. This is frequently the case. It is wrong, and unjust to all concerned. Why should not every child of God be ready to give? He has been a good and liberal receiver. He has accepted and enjoyed the unmerited blessings of an all-wise Providence. He has been saved from his past sins through Him who gave his "life a ransom for many." (Matt. 20: 28.) How inconsistent and ungrateful his failure to give! It is a hideous sin of omission. "All unrighteousness is sin." (1 John 5: 17.) "To him therefore that knoweth to do good, and doeth it not, to him it is sin." (James 4: 17.) Let him who habitually and deliberately fails to give know that "whosoever shall keep the whole law, and yet stumble in one point, he is become guilty of all." (James 2: 10.) Such a person should be slow to criticize the fellow who thinks he is justified by faith only; he should not be swift to condemn the man who imagines baptism is a nonessential. In the light of his conduct, what does he think of the divine command to give?

3. The Amount. Paul says something about the amount—what a man is able to give. "Let each one of you lay by him in store, as he may prosper." This is absolutely just. It gives the rich and the poor, though they have unequal possessions, an equal opportunity to contribute in hope of an equal reward. (Mat. 25: 21, 23.) It is not enough merely to give something. It may ease the conscience and relieve the embarrassment occasioned by the passing of the dreaded contribution basket, but it certainly does not meet the requirements of the law. He who gives an old dime when he is able to give a new dollar has not given as "he may prosper." Frequently one man will measure the amount he intends to give by the contribution of another. This is not the New Testament way. Suppose a wealthy brother should determine the amount of his gift by the contribution of a brother of smaller means, he would not give enough. On the other hand, suppose a poor brother were compelled to give as much as the rich brother ought to give, he would give relatively too much. No one can fail to see the wisdom and justice in the inspired injunction. When it comes to contributing, the chief matter with us should be how much rather than how little. But such is not always the case. That servant who did not do as much as he was able to do was punished for his failure. (Matt. 25: 24-30.) The poor widow who "cast in two mites . . . cast in more than all they that were casting into the treasury: for they all did cast in of their superfluity; but she of her want did cast in all that she had, even her living." (Mark 12: 43, 44.) "He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully." (2 Cor. 9: 6.) It is a fearful thing to have so much and give so little. Finally, "remember the words of the Lord Jesus, that he himself said, It is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20: 35.) Do we believe it?

NEWS ITEMS.

One was restored at West End on June 11.

Hugh E. Garrett is in the second week of a good meeting at Chickamauga, Ga. Three baptisms to date. Fine interest. The tent will not seat the audiences.

The meeting at South Pryor Street began with two fine services last Sunday (June 11). The house was packed to its utmost capacity at the evening services. Brother Hall is delivering great sermons. The outlook is glorious.

The "Gospel Advocate Company."

BY J. C. M'Q.

If you expect to be a stockholder in the new company, you should act promptly. Since last week we have received a number of subscriptions to the stock, and others have expressed their purpose to subscribe.

In considering the purchase of stock, you should not be unmindful of the good you may do by becoming a stockholder in the company. With an efficient management, the company expects to accomplish much good by the circulation of religious periodicals, books, tracts, Bibles, and hymn books. Do you not want fellowship in such work? If so, we would be glad to receive your subscription for as many shares of the stock as you wish to take. One share is one hundred dollars. Ten shares sell for one thousand dollars. Send your subscription now, and you can send check later. Those who are the best acquainted with the business and the stock which is being sold to the Gospel Advocate Company subscribe the most readily for it. I would like to see the stock distributed throughout all the States where our publications circulate.

Brethren who have money and desire to use it to the honor and glory of God would do well to buy stock. With a live interest in the company and in the publication of a first-class paper and Bible Lesson Helps, there is no reason why the good we are doing may not be increased a hundredfold. In the work of the Lord, we should not be content to do little. We should purpose, plan, and work for great things. God demands the best service we can render. He wants the whole heart or none. It is useless to publish good books and periodicals, if they are not circulated and read. Christians should be enthusiastic and zealous in circulating Bibles and religious publications. Many Christians do not take a religious weekly, but take a secular weekly or daily. They are too poor to support the spiritual, but not the temporal. At the urgent request of brethren I have printed tracts and failed to sell enough to pay for the actual cost of printing. The Adventists circulate their tracts and periodicals. Christians should profit from their example.

We have a number of workers in the field. Among the number is W. D. Moorehead and a number of young brethren who are working with him. They are taking subscriptions to the Gospel Advocate and selling books, Bibles, and tracts. We bespeak for them the encouragement of the brotherhood. Earnest C. Love is still in the field. When he is not preaching, he is presenting the claims of the Gospel Advocate to the brethren.

We want an active worker in every church and at every post office. If you have not volunteered, will you not do so immediately? We want you, we need you to cooperate with us. Send a new subscriber to-day.

Should They Know?

BY W. H. CARTER.

Why should one not know and understand what the will of the Lord is concerning anything he undertakes to do in obedience or service to the Lord? If one does not know or understand, how can he have faith? If he has not faith, then whatsoever he does is sin. (Rom. 14: 23.) It was God's purpose that all should know. It is written: "For all shall know me, from the least to the greatest." (Heb. 8: 1.) "It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me." (John 6: 45.) Luke wrote to Theophilus that he might know the certainty of the things wherein he had been instructed. (Luke 1: 1-4.) John wrote that we might know that we have eternal life. (1 John 5: 13.) Paul says: "For we know that if our earthly house of this tabernacle were dissolved, we have a building of God, a house not made with hands, eternal in the heavens." (2 Cor 5: 1.)

All are to be taught of God. In order that one may come to Christ, he must be taught of God. There is a wide difference in being taught of God and being taught of men. When men preach the word, that which is written, and people hear and understand, they are taught of God. But when preachers preach their theories, based upon their opinion of what God means by what he says, those who accept it are taught of men. This does not apply alone to Bollism, but to all speculators on all other "isms." The people must hear; they must be taught. God knew this; so the disciples were sent to teach, and it is expected of the people that they understand what they are taught. Why should they not?

Not only must they understand, but they must believe. Believe what? Do you say they must believe that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God? I am sure they must believe that; but is that all? Are they not required to believe the gospel, and does this not include more than the fact that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God? Just here is where, it seems to me, a blunder is made. The word "gospel" means "good news" or "glad tidings." To learn that, of a truth, Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God, is good news; for if he is, then he is all he is represented to be. But, to stop here, where is there anything of special, personal good news to the sinner? This must be brought directly to every individual heart. This Paul did when he said: "Christ died for our sins." (1 Cor. 15: 1-6.) He is not only the Son of God, but he died for our sins, was buried, and rose again. But does the good news and the faith stop here? We all know it does not. If it did, then how could one know he might receive or has come into the enjoyment of the benefits of his death?

But let me ask here: Is it necessary that one understand and believe the gospel so far as we have gone? Here I am sure all will agree with me that it is. Then why is it not necessary that he should understand and believe the remaining part of the good news, especially since it is the part—the crowning part—that brings joy and peace to the soul? But what is that part? It is that part which promises and assures one of his redemption, pardon, salvation—to "repent, and be baptized . . . in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins," and have the hope of everlasting life. Is not this a part of the gospel—the good news—and should it not be believed the same as any other part of the gospel? Before one is a true believer in the gospel he must believe all of the gospel that is addressed to him.

We are to teach; but what are we to teach? Are we not a unit in saying: Teach the word—the gospel? If we find one who understands and believes a part of the gospel, but does not understand nor believe a part of it, should we teach them that they must understand and believe it, or is it scriptural and in keeping with apostolic example for us to tell them it is not necessary for them to understand and believe that part of the gospel which says baptism is for the remission of sins? Now, listen, brethren; in all kindness, listen. The sects put repentance before faith, and you say that is sin. That sets their repentance aside. But you take them on their faith that Jesus is the Son of God. They say they are baptized because their sins are pardoned, and you reject that; but you say: "We must take them." Take them on what? Their imperfect faith alone! That is not all. You say: "Baptist baptism is no account." Then, if we take them, we take them on a "no-account" baptism. If the baptism is not good, then why defend it in preaching and writing? This keeps up confusion and strife. It is destroying some congregations, and a fearful responsibility is resting upon some one.

But occasionally one comes claiming to have obeyed the gospel and is perfectly satisfied. Yet he said he believed his sins were pardoned before he was baptized and was baptized because his sins were pardoned. Here a knowledge of God's law and wisdom to be guided by it is needed. I can but believe it is wrong to encourage such a one in such belief by arguing that it is not necessary that he should understand that baptism is for the remission of sins, but teach him and try to lead him to an understanding of the law. Such arguing tends to strengthen those who oppose the truth, and is regarded as a surrender of the plea that baptism is for the remission of sins. It is or it is not. If it is for one, it is for all. A thing that need not be understood is of but little consequence.

In conclusion, let me say this: If baptism is all right, good, and scriptural in one who did not understand the purpose of baptism, why is it not all right, good, and scriptural in one who does not understand the action? Do you say, "The Bible says we are buried in baptism?" Remember, the Bible also says: "Repent, and be baptized . . . for the remission of sins." Who has been inspired to tell us how much ignorance God will wink at? Paul said: "And the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent." (Acts 17: 30.) To me it is very inconsistent to say that one must understand that Jesus Christ is the Son of God and must understand that he must repent of his sins, but it is not necessary that he should understand that baptism is for the remission of sins. A position that drives to such contention must be erroneous. We need to preach the word and be silent where the word is silent. Then we may look for peace and harmony.

Obedience.

BY H. C. FLEMING.

It seems that men never will learn that effects are always produced by causes, and that penalties are the result of disobedience to law.

Obedience to law avoids penalties and produces good effects, both individually and collectively. Without law restraints, evil commotions and strife become rampant, with all sorts of evil deeds. Such as these none but evil men desire. Obedience to law prevents them. Therefore it is necessary for the well-being of man.

If what are called "laws of nature" are violated, evil effects follow; and if persisted in, death is the final result. This is true both with man's and God's laws. In the revealed will of God we find laws given to be obeyed and penalties for disobedience. If they were not to be obeyed, they would be useless. The penalties for disobedience of God's laws are more certain to follow than those of disobedience of man's laws. God's law given through Moses was in very plain terms, and the penalties for violation of it were equally plain. Every violation and transgression received a just recompense of reward without mercy.

(See Heb. 2: 2, 3.) Paul tells us that "all these things happened unto them for ensamples: and they are written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the world are come." (1 Cor. 10: 11.)

Since the new covenant is so much superior to that given through Moses, can we expect its promises to be given us without obedience? If we obey—do what is commanded—we have an assurance that we will receive the reward. There is a difference between the promises of the old covenant and of the new, also of the penalties. Under the old, both the promises and penalties were of a temporal nature; under the new, they are eternal.

"And being made perfect, he became the author of eternal salvation unto all them that obey him." (Heb. 5: 9.) The antithesis of this is that those who do not obey him (Christ) will not receive eternal salvation.

But some people seem to think that their feelings and their own thoughts will give them eternal life without obedience. Such will be fearfully disappointed at the day of judgment. Listen to what Paul says about it: "And to you who are troubled rest with us, when the Lord Jesus shall be revealed from heaven with his mighty angels, in flaming fire taking vengeance on them that know not God, and that obey not the gospel of our Lord Jesus Christ." (2 Thess. 1: 7, 8.)

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN B. WILLIAMS.

THE METHODIST PREACHER IN THE HORN RIDGE MEETING.

The Methodist preacher was not satisfied with his personal visits among his flock, so he attended the meeting to see and hear how things went. Somehow his appearance put new life in me—gave me more "pep" and determination and a greater desire to know and preach the gospel as preached by the apostles of old—just tell it like they did.

Reader, please don't forget the fact that while I was holding this meeting under such trying circumstances my poor wife and children were moving out of our first home into a rented house. I hope the congregation at Ridgely will not forget, when I tell them of these things I underwent, that they can meet in peace and worship God in the beautiful meetinghouse in which I have never preached. They do not know these things, for I have never given them to the public before. So, brethren, please remember the one who was first on the "firing line."

One night, the Methodist preacher being present, when the invitation was given, four or five who had "professed religion and joined the Methodist Church" about two weeks before this came forward. Only those who were present can know how he went up in the air. He assailed them, he assailed me. He was mad. While he was lambasting the "Campbellites" I had a job on my hands to keep cool and not act the fool. Thank God, I controlled myself. The hardest job I had was to hold Brother Bill Crafton down. The reason he was hard to hold down, he told me afterwards, was that, from the cool, deliberate manner in which I acted, he thought me too small a man for the job. He thought all would be lost unless he took the matter in hand.

The preacher had a great deal to say about people who changed so often, and what he said about proselyting was a plenty. Finally he said: "I know that everybody in Lake County can't be Methodists, and I thank God that I am not so narrow as to think all must go the same way." When he was through, I asked him to remain a few minutes, as I desired to ask him a few questions. "All right," said he. "Since you say that everybody in Lake County can't be Methodists, I ask, is it possible for everybody in Lake County to be Christians?" "Certainly it is possible," said he. "Well, then, since it is impossible for everybody in Lake County to be Methodists and is possible for everybody in Lake County to be Christians, it follows as an indisputable fact that the same thing that makes a Methodist does not make a Christian." I asked again: "Can a person be a Christian and not be a Methodist?" "Of course," said he. "Since one can be a Christian and not be a Methodist, can one be a Christian without faith?" "Surely no one can be a Christian without faith," said he. I said: "Since one can be a Christian and not be a Methodist, and one cannot be a Christian without faith, it follows that the faith that makes a Christian does not make a Methodist—does not run through the Methodist Church. Now, since one can be a Christian and not be a Methodist, will you tell these people why any one should be a Methodist?" His answer: "You make too much of baptism. What does Paul say baptism is not for?" I told him I could not recall what Paul said it was not for, but Peter said it is not for "the putting away of the filth of the flesh." "Well, maybe it was Peter instead of Paul." He then pointed his finger at me and said: "What have you done with my hat? I want to go home." I said: "I have not had your old hat, but will help you hunt for it." His hat was found; he left, to return no more. When he was gone, Brother Crafton said: "You fixed him better than I could have done."

Twenty-eight were baptized and a congregation put to work, but, being renters, and for lack of a good leader, soon scattered. But many of them still live and are "strong in the faith."

When I returned home, I found wife and children in their rented house; but I had about ten dollars in my pocket, which I received for the two-weeks' meeting, to gladden their hearts, fill their stomachs, and clothe their backs. While I live I shall never forget the Horn Ridge meeting, the Methodist preacher, and Brother Bill Crafton. I felt then, and do still, that I had done a good work for the Lord's cause in Lake County, and shall ever rejoice over the fact that I could do something for this wicked old world.

Next, "From a Brush Arbor to a Negro Shack."

The Campbell-Owen Debate.

BY D. B. CHENAULT.

As requested, I shall endeavor to state my impressions of this memorable debate, held in Cincinnati, Ohio, in April, 1829, nearly one hundred years ago.

If, at this late day, the printed page can almost miraculously chain the mind of the reader, what must have been the emotions of those audiences that sat spellbound for days, awaiting the outcome of the battle of intellectual giants, and conscious of the fact that Ultimate Destiny might well be looking on; when women almost fainted and men groaned and gnashed their teeth as merciless logic and valiant defense held sway. On the one hand, the sword of the Spirit and the rightly divided word; on the other, the skeptic and the scorner, whose attitude was wholly justified by the sectarianism and the false teaching that was now to lead to his undoing.

Widely heralded and advertised, the occasion was undoubtedly representative of the forces in conflict; and as it passed into history, it is recorded that three persons only in that vast concourse arose and gave verdict in favor of the champion of darkness and despair. The religion of all so-called and self-styled "Christians" had been nobly defended against the enemy of the ages, but scant now is the credit given to the champion of true faith and practice beginning with Pentecost. The infidel is a memory, but in his place has risen a greater menace—increased sectarianism, the parent of which is the false idea that "personal liberty is indicated throughout the Bible." Who will challenge and vanquish an infinitely greater evil than the skeptic? Is it proper that this be attempted? If not, why not?

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

The Value of a Soul.

BY FRANK L. COX.

Judging from the way some people live, they place very little value upon the soul. I feel sure that if man could see the worth of his own soul and its possibilities, he would not be so sinful. If the church could see the value of an individual as God sees it, there would be no lack of missionary spirit among us. Most of us are too materialistic in our views. That is why the world is so restless and so much misery prevails.

The real worth of the human soul can be seen from the following considerations:

1. It came from God. Man is the offspring of God. (Acts 17: 28.) The soul is one of the Father's gifts; and any gift from him is precious. "Every good and perfect gift is from above." In most cases the value of a gift is determined, largely, by the greatness of the giver. The soul is great because God gave it. And as we come to a better appreciation of the worth and greatness of God, we are going to come to a better appreciation of his gift, the soul. He who looks lightly upon the soul, or any individual, looks lightly upon God.

2. The soul was made in God's image. (Gen. 1: 26.) When the Scriptures tell us that man was made in the likeness of God, does that mean that man's body was made in God's image? I don't think that God has a corporeal body which he used as a pattern in making man's body. It seems more reasonable to me that man's soul was made in the image of God. God is holy, so man was created holy; God thinks, so man was given the ability to think; God is righteous, so man was made upright. (See Eph. 4: 24; Col. 3: 10.) The infant is free from sin of any kind. Jesus used the child as an example of humility, purity, and innocence. (Matt. 18: 4, 5; 19: 14.) And the fact that the soul was made in the likeness of God proves its worth. It would be hard for us to treat man with the proper consideration were it not for the belief that man bears some resemblance of God.

3. The value of the soul is revealed by the advent of Jesus. His mission in coming into the world was "to seek and save the lost." Before his advent he was with the Father. Heaven was the blissful abode. And whatever treasures heaven contained—and it contained a countless number—Jesus had access to all. But, by way of contrast, let us view the world as Jesus saw it. What do we see? Poverty, sorrow, corruption, and every misery known to man. What attraction did these things afford to the Prince of Glory? None. But he was attracted by souls. Jesus surrendered, for the time, his heavenly abode and made his abode with man, and as a suffering man, for the sole purpose of saving the lost. "Though he was rich, yet for your [our] sake he became poor, that ye [we] through his poverty might be rich." When we come to understand just what that condescension meant, then we can know the worth of the soul.

4. Without the inestimable value of the soul in mind, it is impossible to account for some of the Master's instructions. The following are some of his teachings along this line: (a) In Matt. 6: 25-32 Jesus tells us about the tender care God has for his children. The value of the man is the basis of this care. I do not mean that an individual is valuable for anything that he does, but because of what God has placed within that individual. (b) It is far better to lose the eyes, hands, feet, or any part of the body, than to lose the soul. (Matt. 5: 29, 30.) This exalts the value of the soul above any or all members of the physical body. (c) The world may have many treasures, but all treasures of the world combined are not worth as much as one soul. (Matt. 16: 26.) Our power of calculation fails us when we try to estimate the value of the world. Yet one soul is worth more than all material things. (d) The thought that man is able to destroy the body, but is not able to destroy the soul, shows that the soul is superior to the body. (Matt. 10: 28.) (e) The worth of an individual is revealed in the social teachings of Jesus. Man should forgive his brother, and that without limit. (Matt. 18: 21, 22.) The reason why a man should forgive his erring brother is because God, the Father, is willing to forgive even greater errors which are committed against him. (Verses 23-35.) It is better not to have lived in the world than to live and cause another to go wrong. (Verse 6.) Our judgments of others should be with great mercy. (Matt. 7: 1.) But, most of all, we are commanded to love our enemies. (Matt. 5: 43.) I cannot account for these, with many other social teachings of Jesus, were it not for the estimate that Jesus has placed on the individual.

5. The value of an individual is clearly seen in the tenderness with which Jesus viewed man. He made no distinctions; to him one soul was just as precious as another. The outcast, the rich, the poor—all received his attention. Let us notice some examples of his tenderness: (a) He came on a mission of mercy. This mission he stated near the beginning of his public ministry. On a Sabbath day, while at Nazareth, the home of his childhood, he entered into a synagogue, as was his custom, and stood up before the people to read the Scriptures. The book of Isaiah was handed him. He began with this scripture: "The Spirit of the Lord God is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the broken-hearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised." With a few more words from that wonderful prophecy, he closed the book and sat down. All eyes were turned toward him. Then these words fell from his lips: "This day is this scripture fulfilled in your ears." (Luke 4: 16-22.) (b) While passing along the Sea of Galilee, he beheld two men who were casting their nets into the sea. With a gentle voice he said unto them: "Come ye after me, and I will make you to become fishers of men." (Mark 1: 16, 17.) "Yes," he seems to say, "I have a greater work for you to do—something more precious for you to seek." (c) More than once do we hear this expression from the historians: "He was moved with compassion." Seeing the sad conditions of the multitudes about him, his great, big heart was stirred within him. (d) Mark 10: 17-22 gives us the story of the rich young ruler. It is familiar. When the young man turned from Jesus and his instructions, Jesus was "sorrowful," because "he loved him." (e) Luke 9: 51-56 tells us of a striking incident. The attitude of the people of Galilee had forced Jesus and his disciples to leave that country. They were on their way to Jerusalem. By necessity or convenience they passed through Samaria. The Samaritans of a certain village rejected the teachings and extended no hospitality. Jesus and his disciples thereupon departed from that village. "The sons of thunder," filled with indignation over what had happened, said to Jesus: "Lord, wilt thou that we command fire to come down from heaven, and consume them?" This brought forth a rebuke from the Master: "The Son of man is not come to destroy men's lives, but to save them." (f) And now at last, as they were drawing near Jerusalem, Jesus looked upon the city—the city of his heart—and wept. (Luke 19: 41.) Jerusalem was the place where the prophets had been slain. "O Jerusalem, Jerusalem, which killest the prophets, and stonest them that are sent unto thee; how often would I have gathered thy children together, as a hen doth gather her brood under her wings, and ye would not!" (Luke 13: 34.) Such was the tenderness with which Jesus viewed man. Many other incidents repeat to us the same story of his infinite love.

6. But through the crucifixion I can see the clearest picture of Jesus' estimate of the soul. Usually we judge the value of an object by the price that is paid for that object. The price is proportionate to the value of the object. The greatest possible price was paid for the soul—namely, the life and blood of Christ. Souls are just as precious in the sight of God as was the blood of the Son of God. Does that statement seem too broad? If so, it is all because we have placed the wrong estimate upon the soul. If the salvation of the lost could have been made possible for less, then less would have been given. Jesus had a chance to make a great sacrifice for his nation, thus relieving them of many burdens, but he passed that opportunity by; he had an opportunity to die for his country, thus bringing political liberty—so long dreamed of—to his people, but he did not choose to do that. The soul was the only thing he saw that was worth dying for, and he gladly gave his life for that. What an estimate God's Son has placed upon the soul of man! What a value Heaven has placed on the individual!

* * *

Types of Preachers.

BY R. L. WHITESIDE.

The different types of public speakers make an interesting study. Some move many people to action; others are not so effective. The profound scholar who delivers a carefully prepared speech sometimes does not move people so much as the superficial thinker. Why this difference? It does not seem satisfactory to say that the profound thinker "shoots over the heads of his auditors;" for the profound preacher or lecturer sometimes is very effective in stirring people to action, and sometimes the superficial thinker fails. Education or lack of education is not the key to the difference.

Preachers, as well as all other public speakers, may be divided into three types—namely, those who are interested in the subject under discussion, those who are interested in their reputation as speakers, and those who are interested in the people. However, one man may possess all these characteristics, though one characteristic or another usually predominates. If the speaker's interest in his theme predominates, he may become so absorbed in properly presenting his subject that he forgets his auditors. The people may become weary and cease to give attention; but he has a subject that must be discussed, and he means to discuss it. We have all heard that sort. The hearer who is hungering and thirsting for information and ideas that lift him higher will be greatly benefited by such a discussion, but it has little effect in enlisting the interest of the masses. But the preacher who is interested in making or maintaining a reputation is not worthy of serious consideration. He wants to impress the people with his greatness. Let us remember, however, that even such as he may preach enough gospel to benefit some one.

But the preacher, whether scholarly or not, who is interested in the people is the one who moves most people. People readily respond to the speaker who is interested in them. He may be logical or not logical, scholarly or not scholarly; but, if he is interested in his hearers, he reaches their hearts. But there are two ways of being interested in people. One may be interested in them for the use he can make of them in furthering his own ends and purposes, or he may be interested in doing them good. And so far as interesting and moving people is concerned, it makes little difference whether he is interested in using them or in helping them; for, if he seeks only to use them to further his own selfish purposes, he carefully keeps that hidden from view and pretends to be greatly concerned about their welfare and the prosperity of the church. It is sometimes hard to detect his real purpose. But there is an infallible test. Such a one has no use for the person whom he cannot use; but he will flatter, pet, and cajole those whom he can use. If he can use you, he will be sweet to you; if he cannot use you, he will abuse you or have nothing to do with you. That is the reason such a one develops such a strong partisan following. "He is so nice and kind," they say. Certainly; and the farmer is kind to his fattening hogs—and for pretty much the same reason. If the hogs could think, I suppose they would think their owner was such a good man. "Look," they would say, "how he works to feed us—how lean he makes himself working to make us fat and sleek. He comes, rain or shine." But the doomed hogs get satisfaction out of such good treatment simply because they do not think. Now, let us learn a lesson from the parable of the fattening hogs. And let us remember that it is easy for one to deceive himself and followers into believing he is developing active Christian characters when he is only developing a strong partisan spirit.

But it is a glorious thing to be interested in people for their good, to forget self in serving others, to spend and be spent for the advancement of God's kingdom. And if one is really interested in doing the people good, he will also be interested in learning and presenting the truth to them, for he knows that only the gospel of Christ can do them good. And he will want influence with the people, for without it he can do little good. Let us thank God that there are many good men in the world who are unselfishly devoted to the salvation of humanity.

* * *

Personal Notes.

E. S. Fitzgerald, Weatherford, Texas, closed a splendid meeting at Goldthwaite on the night of June 11, with seven baptisms. He says: "The Goldthwaite saints are among the best." J. G. McChish, of Smithwick, did efficient service as song leader.

Under date of June 16, T. W. Phillips writes: "I am going to-morrow for another meeting in the Beacon Hill section of the city of San Antonio, on the north side. This means the starting of a new church. I hope to have a good meeting."

Tice Elkins, Fort Worth, Texas, writes as follows: "There is a campaign on now for the purpose of raising a fund of one hundred thousand dollars for free literature. There are several men at work, more are going to work, and you will be called upon soon to do your part in the biggest and best undertaking the church of Christ has launched in fifty years. This is the best way open to us to sow down the United States in the seed of the kingdom. We can do it this way, by placing in the hands of men who know how the needed money to do the work. Full details of the plan will be given shortly."

From Ira Wommack, Sulphur, Okla.: "On Saturday morning, June 10, I was called to Ardmore to conduct a funeral service over the remains of Sister C. L. Shinn. Brother and Sister Shinn moved there from Russellville, Ark., last year, and have been valuable members of the Ardmore church, and we shall miss her very much. On Sunday morning I drove to Byars and preached at eleven o'clock. After services the members and their friends went to Lake Park to spread a dinner and enjoy a social feast together. After preaching in the afternoon, I returned home to preach at the evening service."

Cleburne McCaleb writes from Boswell, Okla., June 14: "I would like to spend all my time preaching the word. I have some time for meetings in July and August. I would like to spend part of August or September in Alabama or Mississippi, so that I might be able to visit my old home in Northern Alabama. We have a Holiness meeting going on in our town at present. When I see precious souls being led away by such teaching, it makes my heart ache, and I resolve to take new courage and do my best to lead sinners to 'the Lamb of God that taketh away the sin of the world.' Brethren, pray for me and help me to keep busy; for the harvest is ripe, but the laborers are few."

Keep Busy Doing and Drop the "Don'ts."

BY MRS. J. DUDLEY TAYLOR.

We have found the word "do" thirty-eight times in the Bible, and not one single time have we found "don't." "Don't" is a tiresome, uncomfortable word, anyway. Why use it? In Matt. 6: 1 we find, "Take heed that ye do not your alms before men," etc., and in the Old Testament we find "Thou shalt not" in the Ten Commandments.

To keep ourselves and our children busy doing good deeds and thinking pure thoughts is a splendid way to drop from our vocabulary that worrisome word "don't." Jesus did not say, "Don't hate your neighbor," and, "Don't bless them that curse you," and, "Don't do good to them that hate you." He tells us what to do. This is what he says: "Love thy neighbor as thyself." "Love your enemies, bless them that curse you, do good to them that hate you, and pray for them which despitefully use you, and persecute you." And in John 13: 9 we read: "Lord, not my feet only, but also my hands and my head." And F. R. Havergal says in her beautiful poem:

Take my hands and let them move
At the impulse of thy love;
Take my feet and let them be
Swift and beautiful for thee;
Take my intellect and use
Every power as thou shalt choose.

In so many places in the Bible, our great Guidebook, we find commands and entreaties to "keep busy," such as these: "Visit the fatherless and widows in their affliction." "Be ready to every good work." "Continue in prayer, and watch in the same with thanksgiving." "Watch ye, stand fast in the faith, quit you like men, be strong." "I must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work." Keep busy, get on the job, and stay till our life work is finished. We must "be about our Father's work" as long as he allows us to stay on this dear old earth, and while we are here let's not worry our loved ones with "don't." Listen to what some poet has said after hearing an energetic little boy express himself on "don'ts":

It's don't you make a bit of noise,
And don't go out of door,
And don't you spread your stock of toys
About the parlor floor;
And don't you dare play in the dust,
And don't you tease the cat,
And don't you get your clothing mussed,
And don't do this and that.

Enough "don'ts" to addle his little brain, and so much breath lost by the mother, too. If only she had given him a hatchet and some nails and some nice planks or shingles, he would have been so busy and so happy and not a "don't" would have been needed. I know a mother who, when her two boys were little, kept small goods boxes and lots of nails and a hammer each for the boys, and in winter or on rainy days the boys had such big times. Only three and five years old they were, too, but they learned to make big marks with chalk and nail the nails on the marks. Sometimes these marks would be letters O and M and T, and sometimes they said the marks were lions and tigers and bears, but—O!—how they did enjoy the noise of the hammer! Boys and girls who hunt, fish, swim, and ride horseback, or play games, are kept too busy to need the "don'ts;" and when healthful, pleasant exercise is allowed at home, they are not so anxious to be going away to "hunt some fun."

Once an old Scotch minister was called to a church trial of a beautiful young girl whom the elders had reported was guilty of a great wrong. At the trial the old minister stood up to question the girl. "And what hast thou been guilty of, my lassie?" asked the minister. The girl was so grief-stricken and mortified she could do nothing but cry. "She was dancing—dancing to music!" said one of the elders. Then the dear old minister went to the girl and asked: "My lassie, when thou wast dancing, of what wast thou thinking?" The girl raised her tear-stained face to the old man and said: "I was thinking nae evil of any one." "Any did ye, my brethren, hear that? She was 'thinking nae evil of any one!' Up, up, all of ye, and go to dancing!" We do not approve of the modern dance, but we do approve of healthy exercise. An idle body, as well as mind, is indeed "the devil's workshop." So much breath is lost by mothers and fathers, teachers and preachers. Listen: "Don't dance," "Don't play cards," "Don't drink," "Don't gamble," "Don't lie," etc.

Instead of so many "don'ts," suppose the Sunday-school teacher said to her class of little folks: "Let's see who can make some one happy this week, and tell me about it next Sunday." You would hear of many a sweet, kind deed, and enjoy the hearing; something like this they would say: "I set the table three times for mother." "I told my bad little brother a pretty story 'bout Jack the Giant Killer, and he stopped crying." "I carried Dad some water to the field." "I hugged and kissed my old granny 'cause I love her so, and she laughed and called me a manly little man, and I was afraid I'd been sissy."

Then suppose the big folks would take some of the pale-faced, sad-eyed children (and older people, too, who can't afford cars) on a joy ride. To see the roses come back to these pale faces (when they breathed the fine fresh air) and the sparkle to their sad eyes would be all the pay they needed.

The girls could find some nice old lady who is out of wool or cotton to knit, or scraps with which to finish her quilts. Go to her, fill her lap full of whatever she needs, and see how happy she will be. Let's look around among the sick, take them fruit and flowers, or whatever you think you would like if you were sick. They appreciate the thoughts as well as the gifts. I know, for so many good neighbors remembered me while I was sick, and for weeks I remembered the sweet thoughts that prompted the sending.

Keep busy. Maybe you have no fruit or flowers or "goodies" to take the sick; well, don't let's sit down and do nothing. Very often the sick need good eyes. Spare a little time once a week and read a while to them. They get mighty tired looking at the wall paper, the counterpane, or quilts.

We knew a very wealthy woman once, who seemed to have everything to make her happy, and yet, now and then, she wrote to a little mother who was blessed with nine sturdy children: "Please lend me one of your precious children for a few days. James [her husband] and I are hungry for a bright young face and a happy voice." You who are blessed with children, don't be stingy with them; lend them to the childless. Then, too, let's be generous with our smiles and kind words: give them now on all sides, make the road of life more cheerful for those around us. Listen:

"Love me now while I am living;
Do not wait 'till I am gone,
And then chisel it in marble,
Warm love-words on ice-cold stone."

Keep busy, and make life for those around us, as well as ourselves, "one grand sweet song."

The Chinese, on their new-built railways, have established a service which in its line is beyond anything we know in this country. It is free boiling water. At each important station there is a boiler under a queer-looking circular roof which looks like a huge umbrella. The traveler can help himself from one of several taps. Why boiling water? For making tea, of course. The traveler brings his teapot, or at least a cup, along with him; also some tea. He gets his favorite beverage fresh, just as it would be made at home.—Selected.

Query Department

BY J. C. McQUIDDY

John R. Webb, Hornbeak, Tenn., wants to know if it is right to belong to a secret order known as the United Farmers of America. There is no more wrong in belonging to a secret order than to an open order. It is certain that if all Christians were practicing the Golden Rule, there would be no necessity for secret or open orders. The Christian who is active in the service of Christ and who is striving to be an ideal Christian has no time to devote to such organizations. If a man is content to be an indifferent Christian, he may find time to be a member of human orders. God demands our best service, and we should not be satisfied without giving it to him. I do not say that men who belong to human orders may not be Christians, but I do say it is wise to be an earnest, active worker in the divine order, the church of Christ.

✱ ✱ ✱

W. D. N. wishes me to give the correct meaning of Rom. 8: 15, 23. These passages read: "For ye received not the spirit of bondage again unto fear; but ye received the spirit of adoption, whereby we cry, Abba, Father. . . . And not only so, but ourselves also, who have the first fruits of the Spirit, even we ourselves groan within ourselves, waiting for our adoption, to wit, the redemption of our body."

The time referred to is when the Romans were born again and entered the kingdom of God. They then became the adopted sons of God to enjoy the privileges of a son, and did not receive a spirit of bondage or slavery to sin. They should not obey the dictates of sin and thus be in fear of death. Christians groan and have tribulation in the flesh as well as the world. While Christians are already the adopted sons of God, yet they live in expectation rather than in realization. They have not received the inheritance, the full "revelation of the sons of God." When the full adoption comes, we will be redeemed from these frail, decaying bodies, subject to weakness, sinfulness, and death, and will enjoy spiritual bodies. "For in this we do groan, earnestly desiring to be clothed upon with our house which is from heaven." (2 Cor. 5: 2.)

✱ ✱ ✱

Miss Mae Vick, of Lynnville, Tenn., wishes to know (1) "If it is wrong to eat conies, which are so-called 'rabbits.'" She also inquires to know (2) the meaning "where it says in the New Testament that Christ went and preached to the spirits in prison."

1. To the Jew the cony was unclean. "And the cony, because he cheweth the cud but parteth not the hoof, he is unclean unto you. And the hare because she cheweth the cud but parteth not the hoof, she is unclean unto you. And the swine, because he parteth the hoof, and is cloven-footed, but cheweth not the cud, he is unclean unto you. Of their flesh ye shall not eat, and their carcasses ye shall not touch: they are unclean unto you." (Lev. 11: 5-8.) There is no law in the New Testament against eating swine or the rabbit. It is no more wrong to eat the rabbit than it is to eat the hog. The Spirit does admonish us: "That ye abstain from things sacrificed to idols, and from blood, and from things strangled, and from fornication; from which if ye keep yourselves, it shall be well with you." (Acts 15: 29.)

2. "Because Christ also suffered for sins once, the righteous for the unrighteous, that he might bring us to God; being put to death in the flesh, but made alive in the spirit: in which also he went and preached unto the spirits in prison, that aforetime were disobedient, when the long-suffering of God waited in the days of Noah, while the ark was a preparing, wherein few, that is, eight souls, were saved through water." (1 Pet. 3: 18-20.) The preaching was done by the Spirit and not by Christ in person. The Spirit of Christ dwelt in the prophets; "Concerning which salvation the prophets sought and searched diligently, who prophesied of the grace that should come unto you: searching what time or what manner of time the Spirit of Christ which was in them did point unto, when it testified beforehand the sufferings of Christ, and the glories that should follow them." (1 Pet. 1: 10, 11.) The preaching was done to the spirits in prison by the Spirit, through Noah, when they were disobedient, while the ark was preparing, and the result of that preaching was that eight souls were saved by water in the ark.

✱ ✱ ✱

Percy D. Wright, of Killen, Ala., requests an answer to the following questions: (1) What constitutes worship? (2) Who taught the early church? (3) Who should teach the church now? (4) Should one teach and baptize who is not an elder or deacon? (5) Who should teach and train the children? (6) Who organized the Sunday school, and when? (7) When did the church accept the Sunday school as a Christian work? (8) Do the Scriptures furnish unto every good work?"

Space will not permit extended answers to so many questions. I shall answer briefly.

1. Worship means adoration, respect, honor. We adore and venerate God. We respect and honor him by keeping his commandments. The items of worship are teaching, breaking bread, the fellowship, the prayers and singing. (Acts 2: 42; Eph. 5: 19; Col. 3: 16.)

2. Apostles, prophets, evangelists, pastors, and teachers instructed the early church.

3. Though the apostles and inspired prophets are dead, their teaching remains and is binding upon the church. The church now has evangelists, pastors, and teachers, as did the primitive church.

4. Any man who is a Christian has the same authority to baptize as does the elder or deacon. Priscilla and Aquila taught Apollos "the way of God more accurately." (Acts 18: 26.)

5. It is the duty of parents to teach and train their children. "And, ye fathers, provoke not your children to wrath: but nurture them in the chastening and admonition of the Lord." (Eph. 6: 4.) Christians should teach children and all others the word of God. "They therefore that were scattered abroad went about preaching the word." (Acts 8: 4.) Christians should not be less diligent in teaching the word of God to their children than were the Jews. (Deut. 6: 7.)

6. Robert Raikes with Thomas Stock organized the modern Sunday school in 1780. Teaching is an act of worship, and was practiced by the primitive church. (Acts 2: 42.) God commands us to teach, but reveals no method of teaching to the exclusion of other methods. Christians are obligated to use the most efficient method.

7. The primitive church abounded in teaching the word of God. Whenever the church fails to teach the word of God, it is dead. It is as much a duty to teach as it is to pray and break bread.

8. The word of God thoroughly furnishes unto every good work. "Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness: that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work." (2 Tim. 3: 16, 17.)

If we could read the secret history of our enemies we should find in each man's life sorrow and suffering enough to disarm all hostility.—Longfellow.

At Home and Abroad

Walter L. Brummett, Brownsville, Tenn., announces that G. A. Dunn, of Houston, Texas, will begin a meeting for them on June 20. All within reach are cordially invited to attend.

William F. Ethridge, whose address is Middleton, Tenn., is in a meeting at Lafayette, Ky. He reports large crowds at each service, despite the fact that it is an agricultural district. Two baptisms and others expected. He has yet some time in August and September for protracted-meeting work.

O. L. Carnahan, who has been preaching once a month for his home congregation at Moss, Tenn., for a number of years, reports two fine services on the second Lord's day in this month, with one baptism in the evening. The church is growing steadily. J. D. Smith will begin a protracted meeting for them on the first Lord's day in August.

C. H. Smithson writes from Hatfield, Ark., that he baptized two at Pittsburg, Kan., and left fifteen members there who promised to "keep house for the Lord." He was at Dierks, Ark., on the first Lord's day in June, and at Broken Bow, Okla., on the second Lord's day; then he goes to Bloomburg, Texas, for a meeting.

H. Leo Boles appreciates very much the many letters and oral expressions of sympathy which he has received in regard to the death of his son, Dr. Cleo C. Boles. They were all full of tender sympathy and hopeful encouragement. He does not have time to answer all the letters, but wants their authors to know that they were received and gratefully appreciated.

Here is a note from Jesse Beall, Chattanooga, Tenn.: "After about thirty-five years of constant reading of the Gospel Advocate, I still enjoy its weekly visits and can still say that there is none better. I want to say to all those at its helm: Stick to your posts as in the past, for we owe it to you that we were not drawn into digression, nor Adventism and Russellism, long ago."

B. W. Davis, Ashland City, Tenn., preached at Sycamore on the second Lord's day, morning and evening, also Saturday night and Monday night. He preached at Bear Wallow on Sunday afternoon. C. D. Crouch accompanied him and made a very excellent and inspiring talk on Saturday night. One baptism and one restoration reported. Brother Davis has received two dollars to apply on the tent.

H. K. Morton writes in regard to the work of the Lord in Cincinnati, Ohio. He states that they have called J. L. Hines, of Mount Juliet, Tenn., to preach for them at Covington, Ky., beginning on September 15. In all the city of Cincinnati and suburbs there is no house of worship, so they worship in private homes and rented halls. M. C. Kurfees, of Louisville, Ky., visited them recently and spoke words of comfort at the funeral of S. H. Young. Brother Kurfees encouraged them very much by his visit.

From C. W. Ing, Kaufman, Texas, June 6: "I am eleven miles from Kaufman in a meeting which promises to be a good one, although it is almost a mission point, and I am both the missionary and the society that sent me. I began here on Sunday, and at night (the second service) the house was filled to overflowing, and many could not get in. I go from here to Ivan, Texas, and will be in meetings continuously until September. If I am wanted for a meeting after that time, write me at 519 West Elm Street, Hillsboro, Texas."

From Abel Hale, Petersburg, Tenn., Route 5, June 5: "C. E. Holt, of Florence, Ala., preached two very interesting discourses at the church of Christ at Chestnut Ridge yesterday. At eleven o'clock he delivered a most interesting discourse on the second coming of Christ. At night he spoke on the three powers of salvation. Brother Holt is to hold a ten-days' singing school for us at Chestnut Ridge, beginning about the first of July. It is to be a community school. May he live many years yet to spread the knowledge of Christ."

From G. B. Lambricht, Pinetta, Fla., June 4: "We closed the meeting at Fellowship Schoolhouse, two and a half miles from Cecil, Ga., with two baptized and one restored. We were hindered by rain, but had good attendance. The meeting continued fifteen days. This was the first meeting the brethren ever held at that place. I hope to return some time and hold another meeting for them. I preached the funeral of a lady on Friday afternoon and closed the meeting at night. I arrived here at Pinetta yesterday, to begin a meeting with the church only a few miles out. May the Lord bless all the faithful."

William P. Walker writes from Dover, Tenn., June 15: "All the money for the Stewart County tent has been pledged, and most of it collected. We desire to have the tent and equipment in the field by the first Sunday in July. I would like to get in touch with a Bible-school student to assist in the evangelistic work and direct the song service. We desire his services throughout July and August. If any one is interested, write me immediately. Brother Prevatt, of Gainesville, Fla., and Brother Malphurs, of Clarksville, Tenn., are sounding out the good news in song and sermon at Indian Mound. We are praying that many souls may be saved during the meeting."

P. C. Breeden, Terrell, Texas, in sending his renewal to the Gospel Advocate, says: "I am one of your oldest readers, having read it when it was edited by T. Fanning and William Lipscomb. I have enjoyed reading it more than half a century, having passed my seventy-fifth milestone on life's journey. I used to enjoy J. M. Barnes' writing on the subject, 'Food for the Lambs,' and the writings of F. D. Srygley, who I thought could get more in fewer words than almost any one else. We believe the Advocate has been true to God's word, contending earnestly for 'the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints,' without addition or subtraction, having never run off after fads or new-fangled things in religion. It has been a source of pleasure, comfort, and edification to me, and I expect to read it as long as I live."

Mrs. P. M. Drane writes from Bakersfield, Cal., 2425 H Street, June 4: "A faithful few are still holding the fort at Bakersfield. L. D. Perkins, of Armona, preaches here on the second Lord's day in each month. It makes him a drive of one hundred and seventy miles, yet he never seems weary in well-doing. E. M. West, another faithful soldier, preaches on the fourth Lord's day. If any one has a relative or friend residing in or near Bakersfield, we would appreciate the addresses of such, that we might interest them in their duty toward our Savior. This is a nice country to live in and enjoy the temporal blessings, yet an easy place to forget God. C. R. Nichol will begin a series of meetings here on the first Lord's day in October and continue through the month. We would appreciate cooperation of the congregations over the State. Please remember the work here in your prayers."

H. C. Harris writes from West Point Miss., June 7: "On May 25 I spent two days with a Christian family at Berclair, in the Mississippi Delta. Like Cornelius, this brother invited his kinsmen and near friends, and we had preaching two nights. Only a few white families there, but nearly all attended, and seemed well pleased with the preaching. I was urgently requested to return some time this summer and preach several days, which I hope to do. On Saturday before the fourth Sunday in May I went to Holly Ridge, another place in the Delta. I preached on Saturday night, Sunday and Sunday night, and promised to return one month later for another meeting. We have several members here, and they are able to do a good work if only they will do their best. On Monday after the fourth Sunday I went over to Cleveland to preach a sermon or two and get acquainted with the brethren. After we had two sermons the brethren asked me to stay over till after Sunday, and promised me that we would have a good crowd out to hear. Although all were very busy in their crops, we had good crowds out almost every night. I was invited to come again in August and stay longer. Our place of meeting is out about three miles from Cleveland. We have several members here, and they seem to be in earnest. Brother Lemmons preached for them recently. He made a good impression. Also, Brother Jeffcoat has preached here. He is held in high esteem. Yesterday (June 6) I had a call from Houlika, Miss. In March of last year a call was made through the papers for some gospel preacher to go there for a meeting. I answered the call and held a meeting in September, with one addition. Others were almost persuaded, even confessed they were convinced. I hope to see good results from our last year's work. Only one family there, but they seem to have the respect and confidence of the people. It is much easier to build up where that is the case. I have promised several meetings for this year, but have some time yet. If you need a meeting, call me. If I can spare the time, I will go; and I have nothing to do but to preach. I want to be kept busy."

A. S. Landis preached at Fifth Street, this city, last Lord's day.

R. C. White changes his address from 322 Peachtree Street to 1403 Sweetbrier Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

W. P. Jones has changed his address to Holdenville, Okla., Route 4. He will be engaged in evangelistic work until the last of September.

Charley Taylor, Paducah, Ky., closed a meeting at Folsomdale, Ky., on June 11, with three baptisms. He goes next to Mossac, near Paducah.

O. C. Lambert preached at the State Prison at nine o'clock last Lord's day, and at Eleventh Street Church at eleven o'clock and at night, to good audiences.

W. O. Norton has changed his address from Woodbine Station, Route 9, Nashville, Tenn., to Albany, Ala., Route 3. Any one desiring his services should address him at the last-named place.

E. Gaston Collins closed a meeting at Algood, Tenn., on June 11. He reports good crowds throughout, with a packed house the last service. No additions, but otherwise much good was done.

H. Leo Boles is just home from a meeting at New Providence, near Clarksville, Tenn., and reports two baptisms and the church greatly strengthened. The song service was led by Thomas A. Nix.

W. T. Gunter, Route 1, Centerville, Tenn., has some time this fall and winter in which he could hold some meetings somewhere in the country. Any one wanting a meeting should write him early.

J. C. Mosley writes under date of June 13: "I am in a meeting at Glade Creek, near Pikeville, Tenn. The meeting is being held in a Baptist house, and one (a Baptist) has been baptized to date."

F. B. Srygley is conducting a meeting in Chicago, Ill. He says: "The meeting, I suppose, is doing very well, considering the fact that it is the first meeting the brethren have had in this part of the city."

A note from L. R. Wilson, Heber Springs, Ark., June 12, says that he was at that time in a meeting at Heber Springs. He reports large crowds, ten baptisms, with quite a number more who are "almost persuaded."

W. M. Oakley preached at Twelfth Avenue, one of the Nashville congregations, last Lord's day. He had a fine audience in the morning, and the rain did not seem to be an excuse for not coming in the evening.

J. S. Daugherty, Kirbyville, Texas, closed a meeting at Honey Island on the night of June 11. Though the audiences were large and attentive, there were no visible results. He began a meeting at Cravens, La., June 17.

J. Clifford Murphy writes from Columbus, Miss.: "I arrived here this afternoon. I preached at Hamilton twice to-day, with one baptism and one restoration. I will soon go to Pulaski, Tenn., for a short visit to my family and return."

Mrs. T. J. McRae, San Francisco, Cal., announces the arrival of Sister Lillie Cypert from Japan. Brother Trice preached for them on June 11, in the morning, to a good audience. Their meeting place is Richmond Hall, Fourth Avenue and Clement Street.

Porter Norris, Lucy, Tenn., June 15, reports large crowds and splendid interest at Solomon and Poplar Grove, in Tipton County. Two were to be baptized at the last-named place on the third Lord's day. He is to begin a discussion with R. H. Gray on Saturday, July 8. Mr. Gray affirms that baptism in water is not essential to salvation.

Thomas H. Burton, Union, S. C., sends in a very encouraging report of the work in Union. He says: "We have from six to eight services each week, and three have been baptized since my last report. The harvest is truly plentiful and the laborers are few. With my new Ford, my opportunities for doing good have been wonderfully increased, and I shall endeavor to make it pay great dividends to those who have invested."

Robert E. Wright and Samuel E. Witty, writing from Los Angeles, Cal., June 13, have this to say: "The Central church of Christ at 1720 South Flower Street continues to grow in numbers and interest. There was one more addition last Sunday and many new faces. Nearly thirty dollars was contributed to our building fund in May. If you have any friends who have not yet found our meeting place, please write us and we will look them up."

A. B. Barret, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., held a meeting at Covington, Tenn., which began on May 10, with C. A. Norred, of Memphis, Tenn., assisting by leading the singing. Money was subscribed at the close of the meeting for the purpose of employing a preacher all his time in and around Covington. The preacher has not been secured. Brother Barret is conducting a county meeting at Murray, Ky. The meeting began on June 16, to continue ten days.

On Thursday, June 15, at the home of Mrs. Allie Petrie, Tracy City, Tenn., James Albert Byrd and Betye Sims Petrie were united in matrimony, W. P. Sims pronouncing the ceremony. The groom was a soldier in the World War and is now postmaster at Tracy City. He is a young man of excellent character. The bride is a pure, Christian woman, and has been a teacher for a number of years. They have been sweethearts from childhood, and nothing but good is expected from this union. The Gospel Advocate extends many good wishes for their happiness. They will reside with the bride's mother.

T. G. Robertson, 626 Thirty-fourth Street, Cairo, Ill., gives a very encouraging report of the meeting held there recently by Charley Taylor and W. E. Morgan. They are meeting in a rented hall, but he failed to give the address. On the first Lord's day in June they began their work as a congregation, with thirty-two in the Sunday school and still more in the preaching service. He says: "We are only beginning, but we all have our shoulders to the wheel and are pushing forward, determined to succeed. Any brethren visiting the city will find a warm welcome. We desire the good wishes of all the Gospel Advocate readers."

S. W. Colson, of Ocala, Fla., acknowledges the receipt of contributions sent by individuals and congregations, for the Ocala meeting, amounting to eighty-five dollars and three cents. He says that brethren in Nashville furnished the tent, paying all freight charges. Voluntary contributions sent in to help pay for the house of worship amount to one hundred and fifteen dollars and twenty-five cents. Some help has also been received from people in Ocala. Brother Colson says: "We sincerely thank all for their fellowship, and we will work and pray for the church here, and trust that no one will ever have cause to feel that his money was spent in vain."

R. A. Craig writes from Monticello Ky., as follows: "The meeting starts here with good interest, and we hope to turn many sinners to Christ. The work at Shelbyville continues to move on in spite of stubborn resistance. I have put their needs before the churches time and again, hoping that they would give us some assistance, but no one has responded. Brethren, this is a destitute field, and we must have a building to worship in. If fifteen hundred brethren will send us a dollar each, we will begin our building at once. We have paid for our lot, which cost twelve hundred dollars, and we have about four hundred dollars on hand. Send all funds to me at Shelbyville, Ky."

From F. B. Srygley, 6625 Ingleside Avenue, Chicago, Ill., June 12: "I began preaching in a hall near the corner of Blackstone Avenue and Fifty-fifth Street yesterday. We had about fifty present at each service on the first day of the meeting. There were eight brethren and sisters that began to meet in this hall last fall. This is the first meeting they have tried to hold, and it will take several days for the people to learn where the meetings are being held. They have got together, in all, about thirty souls. Yesterday they felt encouraged to see so many strangers present. In this large city there are doubtless many that would stand with us if they knew we were here and they were able to get with us. Some came eighteen or twenty miles across the city to be with us yesterday, and it took over two hours for them to get to the hall. Those who made two trips to and from the meetings were traveling close to ten hours during the day. In a city the size of Chicago there ought to be a dozen meeting places, and then many would be far away. I think of the number of meetinghouses we have in the city of Nashville and the amount of the cost of these buildings, and then of the greater need in many places, and I wonder if we are not too selfish in our religion. I am to begin a discussion with O. H. Gast, of the Christian Church, on the music question, in Portsmouth, Ohio, on June 28, at 7:30 P.M. Brother Gast agrees to affirm his practice in this discussion: "Instrumental music is scriptural in worship." The length of time for this discussion has not been definitely settled. The brother writes to me under date of June 7: 'As to length of time, it is just a little hard to determine at this time, although I will say at least three or four nights.' I expect to give the brother all the time he may want to try to prove his proposition, and shall be as patient with him as I can."

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

The date on your tab shows the time to which your subscription is paid. When money is received, the date will be changed, which will answer for a receipt. Two weeks' time must ordinarily elapse from the time your remittance is sent before the tab on your paper is changed; if no change by that time, notify us at once.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrears paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing to advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS.
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

James A. Harding.

BY J. C. M'Q.

"By faith we understand that the worlds have been framed by the word of God, so that what is seen hath not been made out of things which appear. By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, through which he had witness borne to him that he was righteous, God bearing witness in respect of his gifts: and through it he being dead yet speaketh. By faith Enoch was translated that he should not see death; and he was not found, because God translated him: for he hath had witness borne to him that before his translation he had been well-pleasing unto God. . . . And what shall I more say? for the time will fail me if I tell of Gideon, Barak, Samson, Jephthah; of David and Samuel and the prophets: who through faith subdued kingdoms, wrought righteousness, obtained promises, stopped the mouths of lions, quenched the power of fire, escaped the edge of the sword, from weakness were made strong, waxed mighty in war, turned to flight armies of aliens." (Heb. 11: 3-34.)

When God called home James A. Harding, he took to himself a man of faith. Without any disparagement to the many virtues that he possessed, it may be truly said that his faith stood so preëminently above them all that our sight for them was dimmed in our admiration for his faith. Whatever may be said of his virtues and of his defects, it can never be truly said that he did not have unwavering faith in God.

Often have I heard him quote from the Sermon on the Mount: "Therefore I say unto you, Be not anxious for your life, what ye shall eat, or what ye shall drink; nor yet for your body, what ye shall put on. Is not the life more than the food, and the body than the raiment? Behold the birds of the heaven, that they sow not, neither do they reap, nor gather into barns; and your heavenly Father feedeth them. Are not ye of much more value than they? And which of you by being anxious can add one cubit unto the measure of his life? And why are ye anxious concerning raiment? Consider the lilies of the field, how they grow; they toil not, neither do they spin: yet I say unto you, that even Solomon in all his glory was not arrayed like one of these. But if God doth so clothe the grass of the field, which to-day is, and to-morrow is cast into the oven, shall he not much more clothe you, O ye of little faith? Be not therefore anxious, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? For after all these things do the Gentiles seek; for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first his kingdom, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." (Matt. 6: 25-33.)

His was not a dead faith. He proved his faith by his works. In obedience to the command of Christ to go, therefore, and teach all nations, he went and preached the gospel to the poor as well as the rich, not waiting for some church to assure him of a support, but relying on the promise of Christ: "And lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." With him, Christ's command to go and his promise to be with him always were sufficient. He would not wait for a church to send him.

Are you surprised that a man with so much trust in and reliance upon God rolled stones of difficulty out of the way? Such a faith overcomes the world. If all of God's people possessed such a faith, our difficulties would be fewer. The great preponderance of our trials and sorrows grow out of a lack of faith in God. I am aware that Christ said to his disciples: "In the world ye have tribulation." (John 16: 33.) I know that the innocent and virtuous Joseph was persecuted, maligned, and cast into prison, and that Jeremiah was cast into a dungeon; but I know also that God is greater than the devil and that he would not permit Satan to take the life of Job, neither would he allow Jeremiah to remain in the miry dungeon, but he put it into the heart of his servant, Ebed-melech, to tenderly draw him out of the dungeon with cords. Christ also said to his disciples: "Be of good cheer; I have overcome the world." (John 16: 33.) God is more powerful than the devil, and so is the man of faith and righteousness stronger than the works of darkness. "And be not afraid of them that kill the body, but are not able to kill the soul; but rather fear him who is able to destroy both soul and body in hell." (Matt. 10: 28.)

Brother Harding was a man of great activity. Probably his greatest work was in evangelizing. He held successful meetings in many States of this Union and in some of the provinces of Canada. Some of his most successful and enthusiastic meetings were held in the city of Nashville. Through his labors the South College Street church of Christ was greatly strengthened, and so was Foster Street church of Christ. As I now recall, his two tent meetings—one in South Nashville and one in North-east Nashville—resulted in almost three hundred additions to the church. His faith, zeal, and enthusiasm were felt in many parts of the city. The work that he did in those days of his vigorous manhood will live long after he has been forgotten. The worker dies, but his work lives. The memory of an active, devout life is so sweet and comforting to those left behind! "Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord from henceforth: yea, saith the Spirit, that they may rest from their labors; for their works follow with them." (Rev. 14: 13.)

He was at one time an associate editor of the Gospel Advocate. In his editorial work his trust in God was no less marked than in his preaching.

He was associated with David Lipscomb in the founding of the Nashville Bible School and was its first president. He was peculiarly fitted for arousing the young men to enthusiasm. He inspired in them a love for their work. He magnified the work of preaching the gospel. While he did this so admirably, it should not be concluded that his administration of the school was faultless. All in the flesh are weak and fallible. Not one lives an absolutely perfect life. He gave up his work in Nashville, went to Bowling Green, Ky., and began a similar work. This work resulted in much good, but for satisfactory reasons it was deemed best to convert the school into an Orphan Home.

Brother Harding conducted many public discussions. Two of his discussions were published in book form—the one with Wilkinson, a Methodist, and the one with J. B. Moody, Baptist, held in Nashville. Both debates are out of print. He considered his debate with Wilkinson the ablest and best that he ever conducted. I remember the discussion as very readable and instructive, free from bitter personalities.

He was strong physically, possessed a strong mind in a sound body; but such constant teaching, preaching, and writing wore out his strong mentality. While he still knew, he lost the power of concentration of thought. Through his preaching, writing, and teaching he had given his mind to the world. How much better to wear out in the service of the Lord than to rust out in idleness! But while he lived he was comparatively free from pain and sickness and was tenderly cared for by loving and obedient children. How sweet it must be for one who has so faithfully served the Lord to pass out of the shadows and trials of life into the heavenly home above!

I quote the following appropriate words by James Montgomery:

Servant of God, well done!
Rest from thy loved employ!
The battle fought, the victory won,
Enter thy Master's joy.

His spirit, with a bound,
Left its encumbering clay;
His tent, at sunrise, on the ground
A darkened ruin lay.

The pains of death are past,
Labor and sorrow cease,
And, life's long warfare closed at last,
His soul is found in peace.

A Friendly Criticism.

BY F. W. SMITH.

While the Gospel Advocate is not opposed to criticism even of the adverse kind, of which it receives its share, it does relish the milder form of opposition that comes its way now and then. Note the following, with names, dates, and places eliminated:

I have had the pleasure of reading the Gospel Advocate for one and one-half years. The editorials I enjoy immensely, but the criticisms are a detriment to the cause; for instance, the instrumental music. It seems there is so much time wasted and no one benefited. Each one of us must work out our own salvation with fear and trembling. If listening to wonderful music will send one's soul to torment, then I question why one's talent has been given him or her from our Heavenly Father. In my opinion, our dear Savior would like to have us use our talents as he has directed, and we should give the very best within us to our Lord and Master. I am glad mere trifles do not detract from the services I attend, and feel that God will not punish me, a poor sinner, for having to worship where there is a pipe organ and heavenly music is rendered.

No one could possibly regret the unfortunate circumstances which precipitated the discussion of the question of instrumental music in the worship of God under Christ more than I. Furthermore, no one could possibly desire or enjoy such music in connection with the worship more than I, for I am passionately fond of instrumental music; and when I worshiped with churches that used it, I, like the author of this criticism, thought it was "heavenly music," and argued for it with all my might. I think I am familiar with every argument that has been made in favor of such music in Christian worship; and when I think of myself making these arguments, I feel ashamed. Just why a thing that is so clearly forbidden in Christian worship cannot be seen by any ordinary mind is astonishing, and I wonder at myself, with the New Testament in my hand, that I ever favored such music, much less to contend for it.

But our critic is badly mistaken in the position that "criticisms are a detriment to the cause;" for, had it not been for the criticisms of Martin Luther against the Roman hierarchy, we would all have been, perhaps, in the Roman Church. Had it not been for the criticisms of Alexander Campbell and his continual controversies with the denominations of his day, there would have been no restoration of the New Testament church. I dare say that our critic would not object to the criticism of sprinkling and pouring for baptism or the practice of infant baptism. This journal regards the introduction of instrumental music in the worship as great a departure from New Testament teaching and practice as baptizing (?) babies or sprinkling for baptism, and is as ready to defend the truth against the practice of one as the other. Furthermore, it does not regard any more "time wasted" in the one case than there would be in the other.

Our critic regards such an addition as instrumental music to the worship as "mere trifles," but I am persuaded that if the principle involved were understood this same critic would regard the matter as one of very grave importance. Has our critic ever paused to consider what it means to add to, change, or modify the worship of God? (See Rev. 22: 18, 19.) What is involved in this matter, anyway? Simply the blood of Christ, that's all. Jesus Christ sealed with his blood the new covenant (Matt. 26: 28), just as the law and tabernacle and its vessels of ministry were sealed with the blood of animals (Heb. 9: 19-21). Man has never been able in any age of the world to approach God in worship or service without bringing blood, and the only way he could do this was to bring the commands and ordinances sealed with blood. Does our critic know why Nadab and Abihu were slain before the golden altar? (Lev. 10: 1, 2.) They offered "strange fire before Jehovah, which he had not commanded them." And what made it "strange fire?" It was not taken from the brazen altar that had blood on it. Christ sealed only one kind of music in his worship—viz., vocal music. That kind, and that only, has been sealed with his precious blood; and if to bring fire into the tabernacle service without the blood of an animal on it was "strange fire," why will not music in the worship of Christ that has no blood on it be strange music?

In speaking of the use of the talents God has given us, our critic says: "In my opinion, our dear Savior would like to have us use our talents as he has directed us, and we should give the very best within us to our Lord and Master." I heartily agree that we should use our talents for making music in the worship of Christ "as he has directed," and that is exactly the reason that I use mine to make vocal music and not instrumental. (Eph. 5: 19; Col. 3: 16.) Until our critic can find where our Savior "directed" the use of instrumental music in his worship it would be well to simply make the kind he has "directed." Doing things in the worship of God on the ground that such worship is pleasing to us is the very thing that got Cain into trouble. (Gen. 4: 3-8; Heb. 11: 4; 1 John 3: 11, 12.) God has given us talents for many things, but he has told us how to use these in his worship and service, and we are not at liberty to do things in his worship simply because we have the talent for doing this or that. We preach, sing, and pray about the blood of Christ, and then ignore it when we come to worship and serve him.

Now, if our critic considers the time wasted in this article because it is about instrumental music in the worship, let him or her know that he or she is responsible for it because of this criticism. It is said that a little boy who had a younger brother complained to his mother that his little brother cried every time he hit him on the head with a hatchet. Now, if people desire this controversy to cease, then let those who are clamoring for instrumental music in the churches cease it and stop criticizing those who oppose it. I do not like controversy, but never expect to cease from a contention for "the faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints."

Baptized for the Remission of Sins.

BY F. B. S.

The following letter from my friend and brother, David Parks, of Weatherford, Okla., is self-explanatory:

Dear Brother Srygley: A brother maintained in debate with a Baptist that A. Campbell was baptized for remission of sins, using "Christian Baptist," page 496, as proof. I doubt the person referred to being Campbell. The article is signed "Biblicus," and there is much in it that does not harmonize with the history of the Campbells. Please advise me.

DAVID PARKS.

After an examination of the passage here referred to in the "Christian Baptist," I am almost certain that the writer who signs himself "Biblicus" was not A. Campbell, but a contributor to the paper. Following this article by "Biblicus" is an article signed "Barnabas," and following that is a note by the editor. It seems to me very clear that the editor was different from either "Biblicus" or "Barnabas."

But what difference does it make to us, I ask in all sincerity, what A. Campbell believed about baptism when he was baptized, so we believed the right thing when we were baptized? If A. Campbell did not understand this subject when he was baptized, he must have learned very quickly afterwards, for along about the time this writing here referred to was done he had the subject well in hand. This, I believe, was in 1828. But suppose he had never learned or preached that baptism was for, or unto, the remission of sins; what difference would it make? Simon Peter preached it on the day of Pentecost, and that was a long time before A. Campbell was baptized. If Campbell did not learn that baptism is for, or unto, the remission of sins, he was a poor student of the New Testament or his mind was wonderfully beclouded by error, because it is plainly stated by Peter, as recorded in Acts 2: 38. Why should it take him or any one else over fifteen minutes to see that baptism is for, or unto, the remission of sins?

But again I ask: What has A. Campbell got to do with this, or where is our interest involved? Whether it is necessary for one to understand that baptism is unto the remission of sins in order to make his baptism acceptable to God is not the question that I am discussing now; but, is it necessary for A. Campbell to have understood it in order to make it true? The New Testament teaches it, and no man understands the New Testament fully on this question who does not know it. But what has A. Campbell to do with it? If A. Campbell had never lived, the truth would still be in the New Testament; but many of these would-be great debaters would not have half as much to talk about. Why not confine debates to the issue? "What saith the Scriptures?" Brethren, why not affirm,

"The Scriptures teach that baptism to a penitent believer is for, or unto, the remission of past sins," and let A. Campbell and all the other uninspired rest? If it could be proved by uninspired men, it would be worth nothing unless the Bible teaches it; and, on the other hand, it ought to be accepted if the Bible teaches it, even if no uninspired man ever believed or taught it.

The Annual Meeting.

BY J. C. M'Q.

The directors of the Tennessee Orphans' Home met on June 8, 1922, this being the regular annual meeting. A number of visitors were present from different sections of the State, notably a very large attendance from Nashville. The directors are not unmindful of the good work of the sisters of Nashville in making and furnishing garments for the children in the orphanage. Their work is highly appreciated, not only by the children, but by all connected with the institution. These sisters who have put their time, labor, and means into the clothing of the orphan children show their interest by visiting the children on the day of the annual meeting. It is always so. Those who put something into a work are correspondingly interested in it. Those who do nothing find fault with those who feed and clothe orphans, and indulge in carping criticism. People who are busy in the service of the Lord should not cease their work by halting to carp with the carpers.

The management of the Home and the large crowd present appreciated the thoughtfulness and labor of the good sisters of Columbia in providing such an appetizing and delightful dinner.

The report of the vice president and treasurer showed a slight improvement over last year. There is always room for improvement. Self-satisfaction with our efforts means stagnation and death. We should always be looking forward to the accomplishment of the highest good. With us it should be as it was with Paul: "Forgetting the things which are behind, and stretching forward to the things which are before, I press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." (Phil. 3: 13, 14.) We are far from perfection. While laboring, we are fallible and make mistakes. It is better to make some mistakes than never to try at all.

The report showed: Children in the Home at present, 68; total number of children cared for since November 1, 1917, 294; disbursements for 1922, $7,295.24, as against $8,575.97 for 1921; cash on hand, $317.47, with liabilities one thousand dollars borrowed and the current bills for May, 1922.

There are three more children in the Home than there were at this time last year. Children admitted from June 8, 1921, to June 8, 1922, 52; children placed in homes and returned to parents, 51.

The meeting was successful, all the directors, advisory committee, and visitors manifesting a deep interest in the orphan children.

Sister Lipscomb, widow of the lamented Granville Lipscomb, deemed it best to resign her position in the orphanage. She has been engaged in the work for a number of years. The directors have been pleased with the work she has done and with regret accepted her resignation. Sister Cochran, who comes highly recommended to the board, was chosen as supervisor of the Home. The directors are confident that her administration will be prudent, economical, and efficient. Her duties will be many, responsible, and arduous; so all concerned should hold up her hands and help her in every laudable way to carry forward the work. In this work, we should lose sight of self and look only to the glory of God.

The churches have responded liberally to the necessities of the institution, but it would be helpful if the contributions for the next year were larger, as it is the wish of the directors to pay off the present indebtedness and also make some needed improvements. To meet increased expenses, we must have increased receipts.

The churches are asked not to forget that the first Lord's day in July is the day they are solicited to make a liberal contribution to the support of the orphan children at Columbia, Tenn. Certainly all desire fellowship in this work. "Whoso stoppeth his ears at the cry of the poor, he also shall cry, but shall not be heard." (Prov. 21: 13.) "But this I say, He that soweth sparingly shall reap also sparingly; and he that soweth bountifully shall reap also bountifully. Let each man do according as he hath purposed in his heart: not grudgingly, or of necessity: for God loveth a cheerful giver." (2 Cor. 9: 6, 7.)

Send all contributions direct to the Tennessee Orphans' Home, Columbia, Tenn.

Field Notes.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

Last week I was at Lawrenceburg, Tenn., all the week in a short meeting. The first part of the meeting was not well attended, but one could not ask for anything better than the crowds toward the last of the meeting. There are some fine brethren in Lawrenceburg. There are several brethren there who are blessed (?) with a liberal share of this world's goods. I speak advisedly, for I am in doubt as to riches being a real blessing to the man who has them.

Brother J. H. Stribling has done and is still doing a great work in assisting the poor and helping poor boys to get an education. I was sorry not to make his acquaintance; but as he did not attend the meeting, I did not see him.

On Sunday morning I did not stay in Lawrenceburg, but went with my brother, M. C. Love, to Park Grove, a little country place. He told me if I would go and hear him, he would show me how to preach. Well, I can say he preached a fine sermon on "'Christ, the Wonderful,' in birth, life, teaching, wisdom, works, death, resurrection, claims, and influence." We went to Red Hill Schoolhouse in the afternoon, where a few brethren have lately begun meeting. I preached there to an audience of about eighty, fully half of which were not members of the church. That is more outsiders than we had at Lawrenceburg, although we closed with an audience of three or four hundred people.

These mission points are the places to do good. With our present method of doing things, no one can preach at these places unless he works through the week for his living. The brethren are willing to pay a man to preach to them from ten to fifty dollars a Sunday, whether he really needs it or not, but will not give very freely of their means to preachers in the outlying districts where it is needed worse and where it will really do more good. Bad system.

Just after the afternoon service we visited Mr. Harvey Pollock, an old neighbor of ours in Hickman County. He is paralyzed, like my father, only he can sit up. He is a Methodist, but he hugged and kissed me and asked me to read and pray with him. Several neighbors gathered in and we had a fine service. I guess these old men are broken down now because of too much hard labor in their youth and middle age. I wonder whether the present generation would ever fell the trees, burn up the logs, grub out the roots, and wrest a living from the virgin forests as these old men did. I doubt it.

As Lawrenceburg is only five or six miles from my brother's, where my father is now, I spent most of the week there. On Saturday, June 10, the neighbors gave my father a little birthday surprise party, which he enjoyed very much. He is now seventy-two.

On Thursday, June 8, I went to Columbia to attend the directors' meeting of the Tennessee Orphans' Home. It was a fine day. I "sat in" at one session of the meeting and heard the reports and recommendations. Brother J. C. McQuiddy, president of the board, recommended that no more children be put into other than Christian homes. I mention this because I have heard the Home criticized on that point. The reason for doing this is that the Home gets full and new applicants will have to be turned down unless some can be sent out. When no Christian homes can be found, the children are sometimes placed in other homes. This can be easily overcome by establishing more orphan homes. We ought to have a thousand where we have one. Besides, if some of our wealthy brethren don't spend some of their money that way, I believe they will "be cast into hell; where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched."

A fine lunch was prepared and about two hundred people were well fed. I saw many brethren from different parts of the State. Brother Sowell put the children through some Bible drills which showed that the children are being properly taught.

I got the Gospel Advocate into several new homes last week. I am sure I am doing any family a real service to get them to take this good paper. A man who has read the paper for thirty-five years said: "If it had not been for the Gospel Advocate, there might not have been any 'cause' of Christ in these parts." That may be so; for, take from Brethren Fanning, Lipscomb, Sewell, and others what they were able to do through the Gospel Advocate, and I don't know where we would be as a people. The printing press is a great power when it is made to turn out such a paper as the Advocate.

I leave to-day (June 12) for Northern Alabama.

Wheelbarrows Which Climb Stairs.

One of the interesting sights of the city of Changsha in China is the wheelbarrows which climb stairs. Some distance ahead of the regulation wheel there is another smaller one. In climbing over flagstone steps or bridges, the handles of the wheelbarrow are lowered until the auxiliary wheel rises above the next higher step. Then the wheelbarrow, which often carries three hundred or four hundred pounds, seesaws from wheel to wheel until the next level stretch of flagstones is reached.—Exchange.

SERMON OUTLINES

A Book of One Hundred and Fifty New Sermon Outlines

Just the book for preachers, elders, deacons, Bible-class teachers, and others that take public part in church services.

The book has one hundred and fifty sermon outlines and a helpful supplement containing funeral texts, marriage ceremonies, forms for church letters, and Hedge's "Rules" for debate.

A good book to use in your Lord's-day services, prayer meetings, and young people's meetings. Let the leader announce the subject, hand slips of paper containing different sections of the outline to the members who are to take part in the next meeting, requesting them to make a talk or read the scriptural references on that section of the outline. Or, let the leader put the outline on the blackboard, omitting the scriptural references, then ask the congregation to supply the correct scriptural references at the next meeting, and give reasons why they selected these references.

Price, $1, postpaid. Address McQuiddy Printing Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Relief from Rheumatic Pains

Rheumatism is a constitutional disease. It causes local aches and pains, inflamed joints and stiff muscles; but cannot be permanently relieved by local or external applications. It must have constitutional treatment.

Take the great blood-purifying and tonic medicine, Hood's Sarsaparilla, which corrects the acid condition of the blood on which rheumatism depends, and gives permanent relief. It combines the most effective agents in the treatment of this disease.

Castle Heights MILITARY ACADEMY

Things you look for in a school for your boy—sympathetic, intelligent leadership that understands boys. Opportunity for complete mental, physical and moral upbuilding. Academic and Commercial courses. Military Training and all acceptable athletics. Here a strong faculty of University-trained experts assures your boy proper development in all lines. Modern, complete equipment. Recognized by leading universities. For illustrated catalogue, address

COL. C. M. MATHIS, A.M., L.L.B., Pres.
Box R. Lebanon, Tenn.

For the
Up-building
Of Manly Boys

TETTERINE

Ends Complexion Worries

Healing, Antiseptic, Soothing, Fragrant

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-
CRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Salesmen Wanted

to sell Marble and Granite Monuments, the product of one of the largest plants in the country, located near the famous Georgia quarries. Liberal commissions. In a little spare time you can earn excellent profits. Write for full information.

ETOWAH MONUMENT CO.

ATLANTA, GA.

Everything About Cuticura Soap Suggests Efficiency

Soap, Ointment, Talcum, 25c. everywhere. For samples address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden, Mass.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid
of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Are You Washed in the Blood?

BY JOE COPELAND.

"And one of the elders answered, saying unto me, What are these which are arrayed in white robes? and whence came they? And I said unto him, Sir, thou knowest. And he said to me, These are they which came out of great tribulation, and have washed their robes, and made them white in the blood of the Lamb. Therefore are they before the throne of God, and serve him day and night in his temple: and he that sitteth on the throne shall dwell among them. They shall hunger no more, neither thirst any more; neither shall the sun light on them, nor any heat. For the Lamb which is in the midst of the throne shall feed them, and shall lead them unto living fountains of waters: and God shall wipe away all tears from their eyes." (Rev. 7: 13-17.)

Now, how do we come in contact with the blood of the Lamb? Jesus said: "Except ye eat the flesh of the Son of man, and drink his blood, ye have no life in you." (John 6: 53.) Jesus meant, of course, spiritual life. But, in order to enjoy the spiritual, we must observe the literal. When Christ instituted the last supper, he "took bread, and gave thanks, and brake it, and gave unto them, saying, This is my body which is given for you: this do in remembrance of me. Likewise also the cup after supper, saying, This cup is the new testament in my blood, which is shed for you." (Luke 22: 19, 20.) The apostles continued "in breaking of bread, and in prayers." (Acts 2: 42.) "And upon the first day of the week . . . the disciples came together to break bread." (Acts 20: 7.) God's children continued to come together to break bread and to "show the Lord's death till he come;" and each one was admonished to examine himself, that he might not partake of the Supper unworthily and that he might not "be guilty of the body and blood of the Lord." (See 1 Cor. 11: 18-34.) So that was the order of worship outlined by the disciples under the new covenant, and must hold good on down to the end.

But who are the worthy spoken of herein? They were those who had added, or were faithfully trying to add, all the Christian graces that we may find throughout this new covenant, principally found in the epistles of the apostles—inspired men, full of the Holy Ghost.

Peter sums up these attributes of Christian character in seven words. "And besides this, giving all diligence, add to your faith virtue"—a priceless gem; "and to virtue knowledge"—without which no man can know what the will of the Lord is; "and to knowledge temperance"—that we might know the law of self-control; "and to temperance patience"—that, having learned to control self, we might not be overcome with the cares of this life and be overmuch worried; "and to patience godliness"—being made in God's image, we must learn to be more like him in love, mercy, forgiveness; "and to godliness brotherly kindness"—kind one toward another, tender-hearted, ready to lift up the fallen, to minister; "and to brotherly kindness charity"—and charity never fails, is not puffed up, seeks not her own, is not easily provoked, thinks no evil, is kind, rejoices in the truth, bears all things, endures all things. Peter then says: "For if these things be in you, and abound, they make you that ye shall neither be barren nor unfruitful in the knowledge of our Lord Jesus Christ. . . . For if ye do these things, ye shall never fall." (2 Pet. 1: 5, 10.)

So, then, this service to God must be continuous throughout the week, in order that we might worship acceptably and that we might come in contact with the healing, cleansing, and purifying blood of the Lamb when we come together on the first day of the week to break bread, thereby strengthening and fitting us for the exercise of all those Christian attributes mentioned above. By doing these things we have eternal life, and Christ will raise us up at the last day. (John 6: 54.) John says: "But if we walk in the light, as he is in the light, we have fellowship one with another, and the blood of Jesus Christ his Son cleanseth us from all sin." (1 John 1: 7.) Is there any other acceptable worship? Is there any other way whereby we may get the soul-cleansing benefits of the blood of the Lamb? No, because Jesus said: "Do this in remembrance of me." Is that strong enough? Herein begins the newness of life.

Try Renwar for Rheumatism.

It is not necessary any longer for you to suffer those intense pains and aches of rheumatism. Renwar is a salts combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood and thereby cure rheumatism. Don't wait until those rheumatic pains return. Buy a bottle of Renwar and forget about that rheumatism. Renwar is an old, well-established remedy. It is prescribed by the best of physicians and has thousands of friends. President L. A. Bauman, of Varley & Bauman Company, Nashville, says: "Renwar entirely relieved me of my rheumatism." For sale by druggists; price, 50 cents. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. If your druggist doesn't carry Renwar in stock, tell him to order it for you from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

McShane Bell Foundry Co.
BALTIMORE, MD.
CHURCH, CHIME and PEAL
BELLS
Memorials
a Specialty

The Power of Man and False Doctrine.

BY W. R. RAINS.

There are people who believe and teach that men can and will be saved out of the church even as they will in it. This is a false doctrine and teaching that originated in the garden of Eden by the serpent when he deceived Eve by a falsehood, telling her that she would not die if she ate of the fruit of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil; and that lie has caused all of the false doctrine, division, and false teaching that is carried on by man in the world to-day. We are commanded by the Lord to be "wise as serpents, and harmless as doves." As all men know that they have to die, the serpent comes with a new falsehood, telling them that they can be saved out of the church. Was any one saved who was out of Noah's ark, which was a type of the church? Were any saved in it but the righteous? Were any but the wicked lost outside of the ark? Are any righteous before they believe, repent, confess Christ, and are baptized into him for remission of sins, thus putting themselves where the Lord adds them to the church as those that are to be saved? Is there any other body than that of Christ that we can be baptized into and be saved?

There are people who believe and teach that after the Lord has added one to the church, or kingdom of God, that if that one continues to indulge in the things which he engaged in before the Lord added him to the church, they can "turn him out." This is false teaching. The Lord has ordained that when man obeys the commands to believe, repent, confess him before men, and be baptized for the remission of sins, he thus places himself in the position that the Lord can add him to the church; and if he should sin after this, if he repent and ask forgiveness through Christ, our Advocate with the Father, he shall be forgiven and remain in the church, and, if faithful until death, will be saved in the end of the world. Both the faithful and unfaithful will grow up together in the church, or kingdom; and when the harvest (the end of the world) comes, the Lord will send his angels and take out the unfaithful from among the faithful.

I am not speaking here of withdrawing fellowship, for it is taught by the Lord and too plain for argument. I am simply speaking against the false teaching of man that he can turn one out of the church, where God put him in—that man has the power to undo that which God does. God put man in the garden of Eden, and God put him out; God put him in a good man, and God put him out an evil man. God turned man over to him whom the man obeyed in the garden, as he will those who obey him in the church, in the end of the world. The false doctrine of man to-day that men can put one out of the church, and the idea that man can be saved out of the church as well as he can in it, is the doctrine which came from the serpent in Eden to the antediluvians. They believed that they were as good outside of the ark as Noah and his family and his sons and their families, and that they would be saved out of the ark as well as Noah and these families would in the ark; but the truth of it is, they believed a false doctrine and were lost. This doctrine is as false to-day as it was the day that the flood came, and Noah and all that were to be saved were added to the ark and shut in by the Lord, and sailed safely to Mount Ararat and were saved in the ark, while all that were out of it were lost.

The Lord's commands give man the authority to teach man to do the things which will put man in the position where the Lord can add him to the church, and these commands tell man what to teach that men may be faithful in the church until death and be saved, but never give him authority to turn men out of the church, reserving this power and authority to himself, that he may in the end of the world send his angels and take them out, thus purifying his church, or kingdom.

The apostle Paul saw as plainly, the night he preached at Ephesus, that these false teachers and doctrines would come as the Lord saw that the day would come when he would have to make a new covenant with the house of Israel and the house of Judah. Hence, men to-day are teaching false doctrines that do not put men and women in the position that the Lord may add them to his church and thereby build up his kingdom on the earth in harmony with his will that all may be saved, and these teachers deprive themselves of saying the truth as Paul said to the church: "Be as I am, for I am as ye are."

BOILS

Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

For Brain Fatigue Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Especially effective in rebuilding impaired nerve force, and invigorating the nervous system. Aids digestion. A wholesome tonic. Buy a bottle. At all druggists.

QUEER FEELINGS AT MIDDLE AGE

Women Should Know How Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Helps at This Trying Period

Sheboygan, Wisconsin.—"I was run down, tired and nervous. I could not even do my own housework, could not sleep at night and all kinds of queer thoughts would come to me. Finally I gave up going to the doctor and a friend told me of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. After the first bottle I could sleep better and I have kept on improving ever since. I have taken seven bottles now and am so happy that I am all over these bad feelings."—Mrs. B. LANSER, 1639 N. 3rd St., Sheboygan, Wisconsin.

For the woman entering middle age Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound can be of much benefit. During this time of life certain changes take place which sometimes develop into serious trouble.

Melancholia, nervousness, irritability, headache and dizziness are some of the symptoms. Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a natural restorative, especially adapted to assist nature in carrying you safely past this time. Why not give it a fair trial?

For the HAIR—

To make it soft, fluffy, and free from dandruff, use

TETTERINE

50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

Sure Relief

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION

Let thy discontents be thy secrets.—Benjamin Franklin.

MRS. J. A. RUSSELL

HOW'S YOUR STOMACH?

Any Weakness or Distress?

Copperhill, Tenn.—“I suffered for 8 years from stomach trouble, and truthfully can say that Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery did more for me than all the doctors I ever tried. One of my neighbors said, ‘Why don't you try Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery?’ I sent and got a bottle and I can hardly tell how much that one bottle did for me, and when I had taken three bottles I was able to do my washing. I couldn't do all my housework before I began taking the medicine, and now I can do anything I want to and feel good. I praise Dr. Pierce's Golden Medical Discovery to everybody.”—Mrs. J. A. Russell.

Go at once to your neighborhood drug store and get the “Golden Medical Discovery” in tablets or liquid. Write Dr. Pierce's Invalids' Hotel in Buffalo, N. Y., for free medical advice.

Sore Feet?

Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Eucapine Salve

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection)(Relieves Pain)(Allays Inflammation)

is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

Rheumatic Pains Aches

are quickly relieved by CAPUDINE. It's liquid—agreeable to the stomach and produces satisfactory results. Standard for Headache and Grip also. 10c, 30, and 60c—TRY IT—LIKE IT.

Field Reports

Fair Hope, Ala., June 13.—Our meeting near Fair Hope continues with good interest. Two baptisms to date, a man and his wife. I began here on the first Lord's day in June, and have three more meetings. Any congregation wanting a meeting may address me at Fair Hope.—G. W. Jarrett.

Fort Worth, Texas, June 12.—We had a full house at Southside Church. Our work is good and will get better. We have every reason to believe there is a brighter future for Southside Church than ever before. We have had an increase of ninety-six pupils in Bible study in the last few months.—Tice Elkins.

Centerville, Tenn., June 10.—Brother A. B. Barret, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., closed a ten-days' meeting here on Tuesday night, June 6. Though there were no additions, he did some fine preaching, and left the church greatly strengthened. He contends earnestly for the faith. He shuns not to declare “the whole counsel” to saint and sinner. He does it in love and in the spirit of Christ. May we do greater things for the Lord this year than ever before.—Charles Tidwell.

Fort Smith, Ark., June 13.—The little band of eleven have had much to encourage them. On June 11 they held their Lord's-day services in the High School auditorium. On June 17 I expect to begin a meeting at Williams, Okla. Brother H. C. Collins established the church there. He is now seventy-nine years of age and in feeble health. He has baptized four thousand four hundred and ninety, and of that number fifty are preachers. Brother G. B. Harwell, of Pine Bluff, Ark., was with the Dodson Avenue Church in Fort Smith on the second Lord's day in June. He is a traveling salesman, as well as a preacher, and during the past three years has not failed to find Christians to worship with each Sunday.—R. L. Ludlam, Jr.

St. Joseph, Tenn., Route 1, June 14.—On Friday, May 19, I left home for my appointment at Shoal Bluff, Tenn. I preached at Center Hill, Ala., and had three confessions, and at the close of the service two stated they would meet me at the water for baptism. I went to Shoal Bluff and preached two sermons on Lord's day (we had dinner on the ground), and preached to an appreciative audience at Oxford Schoolhouse that night. On Monday I came back to Center Hill and baptized six, and on Monday night I preached again to a nice congregation. The Center Hill Church is the result of mission work done by Brother J. T. Harris and me. Brother Harris held a few meetings there in the Methodist meetinghouse; afterwards I held two tent meetings. We now have a nice little house of worship. Mr. John Richardson, though not a member, very generously gave an acre of land and a handsome sum of money and helped much otherwise. The brethren there appreciate this and all other help which they have received. My protracted-meeting work will begin on July 1, and I am booked with work till late in the fall.—William Behel.

St. Louis, Mo., June 12.—We had nine out-of-town visitors at our services yesterday—Brethren S. P. Pittman and C. C. Clements, from Nashville, Tenn.; Brother McClelland and wife, Brother Fix and wife, from Topeka, Kan.; Brother Horton and wife, from Martin, Tenn.; and Sister Garrett, from Brookport, Ill. Brother Pittman preached two excellent sermons. These visits from brethren passing through and visiting St. Louis always do us good, and we hope none will overlook the opportunity. The work on the building is well under way, and it will be ready for use about the first of July. We are all rejoiced over this, and cannot find words to adequately express our appreciation of the help that has come from other congregations and individuals, which has made it possible to build at this time. Loans of approximately four thousand dollars have been secured, and we hope to be able, ourselves, to reduce this to about twenty-five hundred dollars within the next year. Brother Sevedge is working hard and accomplishing much good. He will do the preaching in the meeting which will begin just as soon as the building is ready.—W. W. Moody.

Chattanooga, Tenn., June 12.—Yesterday was a great day for the Ridge-dale church. At the conclusion of an earnest sermon by Brother H. M. Phillips four persons responded to the invitation to become nothing but Christians—one from the Baptists, one from the Christian Church, and two from the world; and one took membership. The one from the Baptists and the two from the world were baptized at the evening service. There have been fourteen additions since the meeting began, two weeks ago. The meeting will continue throughout this week. Brother Phillips is supported in this meeting by the St. Elmo church of Christ. The Ridge-dale church is being wonderfully blessed and is enjoying the fruits of five years' patient work and sacrifice. By their undaunted courage and the help of other churches, they are now comfortably located in their new ten-thousand-dollar house, which is second to none in comfort and appearance. It is well located, and is protected by the restrictive clause in the deed. We still owe three thousand dollars on it, but that is not worrying us. Besides the good meeting we are now having, Brother G. C. Brewer, of Texas, is to be with us for a week's meeting, beginning on the first Sunday in August, and we are looking forward to another great feast of good things.—Jesse Beall.

The Hot-Weather Test makes people better acquainted with their resources of strength and endurance. Many find they need Hood's Sarsaparilla, which invigorates the blood, promotes refreshing sleep, and overcomes that tired feeling.

CANCERS CURED AT THE KELLAM HOSPITAL

The Kellam Hospital cures Cancers, Sores without the use Burns, and Chronic Tumors, Ulcers, X-Ray of the knife, X-Ray, Radium, Acids, or Serum, and we have cured over 90 per cent of the many hundreds of sufferers treated during the past twenty-three years. Ministers treated free.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, Inc.
1617 West Main St. Richmond Va.

John Marion Rountree.

BY S. P. PITTMAN.

In the death of Brother Rountree the church of Christ, locally speaking, sustains a loss of considerable moment. In almost every community there are a few men of pious disposition, with calm judgment and patient endurance. Brother "Johnnie" Rountree, as he was known, was one of that class. Other men younger and with less experience may be in the process of "making," but he was already rich in faith, ripe in experience, and established in character.

As an elder, he was not of the dictatorial type, but with a meek and quiet spirit he led the way. It is far better to lead and point men all the while to the Lamb of God that takes away the sin of the world than to attempt to drive them into paths of righteousness. As a peacemaker, he was by no means a failure. Such men as Brother Rountree loved peace, and it is but natural that they should put forth an effort to create a peaceful atmosphere.

John Marion Rountree was born on December 30, 1850. He obeyed the gospel under the preaching of Brother Jim Morton in 1868. On November 22, 1876, he was married to Melvin Francis Witherspoon. To this union five children were born, two of whom survive—Mrs. W. D. Locke, of Maury County, Tenn., and J. M. Rountree, Jr., of Nashville, Tenn.

He died at his home on Carter's Creek, Maury County, Tenn., on May 18, 1922, leaving behind his companion for over forty-five years. May the memory of this good man and his life be an inspiration to others.

Church Work in Miami, Fla.

BY J. O. BARNES.

Since coming here two weeks ago and casting our lot temporarily with the Miami church, we have had much pleasure in worshiping with this wide-awake and active congregation, and have been shown many courtesies by the church as a whole and as individuals. We were so glad to meet Brother Joe L. Netherland and his fine little family. Brother Netherland is a wide-awake and loyal young preacher (one of the best), and has labored with this church for the past three years as its regular minister, and his labor has borne much good fruit here which is clearly manifest; but he has closed his work here and goes into the evangelistic field again. It is a sad parting, but we pray that God's richest blessings may follow him and his family wherever they go, and that he may soon turn his face again toward the "Land of Flowers." Brother Aruna Clark, of Tennessee, has been engaged by the church here to serve us as regular minister in the city, beginning on July 1. We are waiting anxiously for his coming, and feel sure that the church will be greatly edified by his labors. We hope to have our tent located in the suburbs of the city soon and begin our mission work of preaching the gospel to dying souls of this city who do not attend the city churches. Brethren, pray for us and the work.

Temptation.

Temptation is surely an assault to be withstood, but at the same time it is an opportunity to be seized. Viewed in this light, life becomes inspiring, not in spite but because of its struggles, and we are able to greet the unseen with a cheer, counting it unmixed joy when we fall into the many temptations which, varied in form, dog our steps from the cradle to the grave. The soldier who is called to the front is stimulated, not depressed; the officer who is bidden by his general to a post of great responsibility, and so of hardship and peril, is thrilled with the joy of his task. An opportunity has been given him to prove himself worthy of great trust, which can be done only at the cost of great trouble. This is a true picture of temptation. And the result of it all is a nature invigorated and refined, a character made capable of close friendship with God, to say nothing of the unmeasured joy that is the attendant of nobility of soul and stalwart Christian manhood.—Bishop Brent.

There are some sorrows which, because they are lingering guests, I will entertain but moderately, knowing that the more they are made of, the longer they will stay.—Bishop Hall.

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN SKIN AND BLEACH FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day; then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specially designed gift for the bereaved. Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the deceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

WATCH YOUR ADDRESS LABEL

Look at the address label that comes with each copy of the Gospel Advocate. If it bears a date that has passed, please send renewal of subscription —$2.00 a year.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE
Nashville, Tenn.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debility and weak heart. Relieves headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains, and reduces fever. No depressing effects. Made by a formula which is in general use by leading physicians. 35c per package at your druggist's or by mail from the manufacturer, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

JACOBS & COMPANY
SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENTS
PRINTERS
DESIGNERS
PHOTO-ENGRAVERS
ELECTROTYPERS
Catalogues —
— a Specialty
HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S. C.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal
Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

Your Greatest Problem—That Boy of Yours

What kind of a man will he be ten, twenty, thirty years from now? You know—every parent knows—that it depends entirely upon the training he is getting right now, his associations, his ideals, his inspirations.

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, Principal of the Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., has been training boys for twenty-five years. He wants your boy. He recognizes in him one of the men who may some day manage big affairs, and he wants to train him for that end. His school has been built and equipped and his instructors chosen with the first and only consideration of giving the boy the mental and physical training, the associations with clean, high-minded men, the ideals of character, the inspirations to ambition, which the world expects. Robert K. Morgan is a Christian gentleman of strong, wholesome, inspiring personality, and his school is the material projection of that character. Write Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., to-day, and let him send you a catalogue and tell you what this school can do for your boy.

TETTERINE Drives Away Pimples

and leaves your skin soft and spotless 60c
at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE
Co., Savannah, Ga.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists, Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Word from Brother Yohannan.

BY J. W. GRANT.

I am glad to tell the Gospel Advocate readers that on June 9 I received a letter from Brother Yohannan, replying to the one I sent him on February 7, and acknowledging receipt of the forty dollars I sent him in that letter. It seems that he got the letter in about the usual time (his reply is dated March 22), but his answer was considerably delayed. A part of this was that it was held here in the Lakeland office ten days before it was delivered to me, ostensibly because it lacked my street address.

He speaks of the money reaching him in a time of great need, and is profuse in his thanks and expressions of gratitude for it. He says: "We were in great destitution and affliction, and you have remembered us in a needy time. I am thankful and thankful." He also mentions several times that he and his are continually praying for those of us who are helping him; and I am reminded of Paul's expression in 2 Cor. 9: 12-15. He does not mention in this letter the health of any member of his family; so I suppose all are in their usual health.

This receipt of my letter to him again demonstrates that registered letters to him are fairly certain to reach him; for I have never sent one to either him or his father in the nearly twenty-five years that I have been sending them that was not received after a proper length of time. And as our American money is now of as much market value to him as drafts on London, it simplifies the matter of sending to him, and any one can inclose bills in a letter to him by registered mail and feel reasonably sure that he will get it. His address is still as I gave it before: "Alexander Kh.B. Yohannan, care of Imperial Bank of Persia, Hamadan, Persia, Asia."

He said in his letter that he had learned that the money on the two lost drafts (fourteen pounds in all) was at the Bagdad bank; so I doubt not he has received it before this. It would be fifty or sixty dollars in our money. So, to sum up: Remittance of December 1, $20; remittance of February 7, $40 (he has receipted for both of these); the drafts, (about) $60; remittance of May 1, $40 (not time to hear from that yet); one church has sent him $10; and I have on hand for him about $200; and, besides, three parties that I know of have sent him clothing and goods. I will now send what I have for him in two letters, about a month apart, the first one right away. So his distress in respect to supplies will soon be entirely relieved for a while.

He is anxious to come to America with his family, and says: "Everything is so high it is very difficult to make a living in Persia. All our people who have money are coming to America. Those who have not have to remain in Persia. I have a desire to bring my family if a light will shine around us from some substantial brethren." I doubt the expediency of his coming.

Fishes Out for Fight.

It is the custom at Singapore to stock garden ponds with queer fishes, many of them of the fighting variety so dear to the hearts of the Orientals. These fish are so combative that it is only necessary to place two of them near each other and irritate them a little to bring on a lively conflict. They charge each other with fins erect, at the same time changing color in their excitement from the dulllest of gray-greens to brilliant reds and blues. Indeed, confinement in close quarters is not needed to arouse their combative propensities. Place two glass jars close together, with one of these fighting fish in each, and they will at once swim round and endeavor to charge each other through the interposed glass. Even a single fish, seeing itself reflected in a mirror, will dart at its own image, and, irritated all the more by its failure to reach the supposed enemy, will assume brilliant hues; seeing its reflected antagonist do the same, it will redouble its efforts.—Selected.

Cured Her Rheumatism

Knowing from terrible experience the suffering caused by rheumatism, Mrs. J. E. Hurst, who lives at 508 E. Olive St., B-439, Bloomington, Ill., is so thankful at having cured herself that out of pure gratitude she is anxious to tell all other sufferers just how to get rid of their torture by a simple way at home.

Mrs. Hurst has nothing to sell. Merely cut out this notice, mail it to her with your own name and address, and she will gladly send you this valuable information entirely free. Write her at once, before you forget.

LOOK! LOOK! LOOK! Special Offer Until July 15th

"Familiar Songs of the Gospel." We are making a special offer of our song books Familiar Songs of the Gospel, at a reduction of prices, in order to quickly introduce our new bound, Flat Stitched Combined Book. We are making this special offer until July 1, $10 per 100—No. 1 or No. 2 Song Book, less 10 per cent cash with order, $15 per 100—New Combined Song Book, less 10 per cent cash with order. Combined Book, old style, while they last, $14, regular price, $18. Order now and ask for our New Combined Book. Cash with order. We do not pay postage or express on quantities of 50 or more books. E. A. K. Hackett, Pub., Fort Wayne, Ind.

DAISY FLY KILLER PLACED ANYWHERE ATTRACTS AND KILLS

ALL FLIES. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient, cheap. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed effective. Sold by dealers, or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.

HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

Another Congregation in Florida.

BY ALONZO M'EWEN.

Early in the year 1921 Brother Joe L. Netherland and I made a trip from Miami to Homestead, thirty-two miles south of Miami, to spy out the land to see if it would not be a good point to establish a church of Christ. It rained almost all day and we did not make much headway. We called on the Baptist preacher and inquired of him to find if he knew of any members of the church of Christ. He directed us to some Pentecostal Holiness people. After making some calls upon them, we found, as is usually the case, the Baptist preacher did not know what he was saying. So the trip proved futile. As neither of us was satisfied in this attempt, we returned some few days afterwards, located some two or three members, and arranged to meet at a sister's house to break bread on the following Lord's-day afternoon. This marked the first assemblage there. This was in May, 1921. The disciples then secured the nice, spacious auditorium in the well-furnished public-school building. Then we began in real earnest. During Brother Netherland's vacation in Tennessee and Kentucky, Brother Stephens (one of the Miami elders) and I continued the work. The congregation then numbered some ten or eleven members, and frequently others of the denominations and outsiders met with us to study the Bible. When Brother Netherland returned, we began to study in Acts. When we had studied seven chapters, Brother Netherland superintended the pitching of the tent, belonging to the Miami congregation, which had arrived from the west coast, where it had been used in several places. This was November 1, and on account of the heavy rains we were of necessity forced to wait for better weather, and during this time the tent blew down and had to be raised again. Our meeting began on the first Lord's day in November. The councilmen of Homestead furnished seats and lights for our tent without charge. The meeting continued over four Lord's days, with good interest and good attention and order, and many were aroused to duty—some by restoration, two by baptism, and many who had obeyed elsewhere. Our membership now numbers twenty-six. The congregation was set in order on May 7, 1922, by Brother Netherland. The Sunday-school classes have now been organized and the work is progressing nicely, with midweek Bible studies organized. Business plans are being pushed for a new building very soon.

Homestead is a nice little town with two banks and numerous stores. Lying near and almost all around are the Everglades, which are so famous for growing tomatoes and other early vegetables, while the higher lands are adapted to grapefruit, oranges, guavas, avocados, etc. It is a town of fifteen hundred population, situated thirty-one miles south of Miami on the Florida East Coast Railroad, and lies two miles north of Florida City, which is the extreme southern point of land on the peninsula of Florida.

The chief secret of comfort lies in not suffering trifles to vex one and in prudently cultivating an undergrowth of small pleasures, since very few great ones are let on long leases.—Selected.

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Founded 1793

Superb location in world-famous climate. Wide area of patronage. Limited number. Boys live a simple, wholesome life, under the care of experienced teachers, and under Christian influences. Plenty of good, nourishing food. All forms of athletics. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officers. 129th year begins September 13. Send for handbook.

Col. R. Bingham, Supt. Emeritus.

Col. S. R. McKee, Supt.

Get a Good Night's Rest

Sleep is just as necessary to health as food. The ability to sleep depends on the condition of the nerves.

Dr. Miles' Nervine insures a good night's rest.

It will help any nervous condition from sleeplessness to epilepsy. Your money back if the first bottle fails to benefit you. You'll find Dr. Miles' Medicines in all drug stores.

Shir-Gar

PAT. FEB. 15, 1910

HOLDS SHIRT DOWN
SO UP
DON'T BIND LEGS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good
WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY

WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by

Washington Manufacturing Company
Nashville, Tennessee

Shir-Gar

PAT. FEB. 15, 1910

NO BUILDING OF
SHIRT NO MORE
LARGE VENTS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

$362.80 Commission On One Order

We offer a very attractive commission proposition to responsible men selling our line of guaranteed monuments, in Marble and Granite. On one deal our Mr. Fuller of North Carolina, made $362.50; Mr. Bryan of West Virginia, $206.25; Mr. Duncan, of Tennessee, $193.25; Mr. Willard, of Illinois, $131.25. These commissions have all been earned within the last 60 days. We have many other agents making from $200.00 to $400.00 per month.

Our monuments are well finished. No trouble to sell. Write for full particulars and confidential contract.

National Marble & Granite Corporation
Dept. A., BALL GROUND, GA.

In answering advertisements, please mention this paper.

Dodson's Liver Tone Instead of Calomel

Calomel is quicksilver. It attacks the bones and paralyzes the liver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it will regulate the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel, without sickening or salivating you. Fifteen million bottles sold.

Statement to the Brotherhood.

I have received twenty-six dollars from different sources to help me to get well and to assist in the Lord's work. Thanks to all who have so kindly helped me. The doctors have decided that I cannot stand an operation. There is positively no hope for me unless churches and individuals will make me a regular allowance for a time. This I really think is just and right after forty years of toil and sacrifice among the poor in our Southern States. The brethren here are not able to help me; and our church house is not yet finished. I do wish the brethren at large would help us finish up here. I must have personal help, or I can never get well; but if any of you think I am unworthy, you need not send me a penny. I can scarcely get to the place of meeting, a half mile away; but I have never missed a meeting. So if you can help me, please do so now. We have fine Lord's-day meetings here. Two returned to duty recently.

All communications should be addressed to me at Buffalo, W. Va., Box 81.
F. P. FONNER.

The Foundation of the Church.

BY A. H. SMITH.

From the days of Alexander Campbell to the present time leading men among the disciples of Christ have been teaching the people that the church is built upon the confession of the truth that Jesus is the Christ, the Son of God. An able writer in the Gospel Advocate of May 11, 1922, referring to Peter's answer to the question, "Who do ye say that I am?" says: "Jesus accepted this divinely revealed and divinely attested statement as the truth concerning himself and declared that he would build his church upon it."

Why not speak as the word of God speaks? Christ said: "Upon this rock I will build my church." What is "this rock?" The children of Israel in the wilderness drank of that Rock, "and that Rock was Christ." (1 Cor. 10: 4.) Of the foundation under the building of God, we read of "Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone;" and Paul says: "For other foundation can no man lay than that is laid, which is Jesus Christ." (1 Cor. 3: 11.) I think there is a distinction between the confession of the Christ and Jesus Christ himself. I plead for pure speech that cannot be condemned. So, in answering the question, "What is the church built upon?" let us give the answer in the words of the Bible.

Sister Lillie Cypert Reaches Home.

BY NELLIE STRAITON.

A generous response to my appeal made it possible for me to forward to Sister Lillie Cypert in Japan the entire five hundred dollars necessary to bring her home for a furlough. All contributions were acknowledged by letter or in person and the funds were duly forwarded to Sister Cypert.

I want to thank the Gospel Advocate for kindly publishing my articles from time to time, each of the contributors for their share in making up the amount, and, most of all, our Heavenly Father for his blessing on our efforts.

Sister Cypert's first arrangements were to sail on April 16, but conditions came up which made it impossible for her to leave Japan before May 25. While the delay must have been a disappointment, at the same time Sister Cypert wrote that it had given her more time in which to make satisfactory arrangements for that part of her work which will be carried on during her absence and to attend to many other necessary details. Then, too, on the very day on which she should have sailed three of her Sunday-school children were baptized, and that naturally made her very happy.

Sister Cypert has landed at San Francisco. She plans to visit several churches in California, then come to Fort Worth, and from here on to Arkansas, stopping at one or two places en route. I am sure it is the wish of all of us that she have a very pleasant summer visiting her loved ones.

In the meantime remember that I am always glad to receive and forward funds for the personal support of our missionaries or for any of the special needs. Don't forget the literature fund which Sister Cypert has in charge.

My address is 1030 South Lake Street, Fort Worth, Texas.

Shot making is one of the few industries that have hardly changed in more than one hundred years. Molten lead is still poured from the top of a shot tower. Small sizes require a drop of one hundred feet, the larger require a longer fall of nearly double that height.—Selected.

SCIENCE ROBS CALOMEL OF ITS NAUSEA AND DANGER

Sickening and Dangerous Qualities Removed—Medicinal Virtues Retained and Improved—Calotabs the New Name.

What will human ingenuity do next? Smokeless powder, wireless telegraphy, horseless carriages, colorless iodine, tasteless quinine. Now comes nausealess calomel. The new improvement called "Calotabs" is on sale at local drug stores and is the sensation of the drug trade.

For biliousness, constipation, and indigestion, Calotabs is a practically perfect remedy. One tablet at bedtime, with a swallow of water—that's all. No taste, no nausea, no griping. By morning your liver is thoroughly cleansed, and you are feeling fine, with a hearty appetite. Eat what you please; no danger. Go about your business.

Beware of imitations! Genuine Calotabs are sold only in "checkerboard" (black and white) packages bearing the copyrighted trade-mark, "Calotabs." The large, family size sells for thirty-five cents; vest-pocket size, ten cents. All dealers are authorized to refund the price if you are not delighted with Calotabs.—Adv.

JELLO Ice Cream Powder

HOME-MADE ICE CREAM

TWO packages of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder cost 25 cents and make one gallon of ice cream. One package of the powder and one quart of rich milk make two quarts of ice cream.

Stir the powder into the milk and freeze it. That is all there is to do and anybody can do it. All grocers sell it.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N.Y.

Gospel Advocate

Volume LXIV. No. 26.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JUNE 29, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Judas Iscariot, Archtraitor.....	501
OUR CONTRIBUTORS.....	502
Conscience—"Husbands"—Is Our Light Under a Bushel?—Field Notes—Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes—Notes from West Tennessee—Atlanta (Ga.) Notes.....
HOME READING.....	507
AT HOME AND ABROAD.....	508
QUERY DEPARTMENT.....	510
EDITORIAL.....	511
A Tribute to James A. Harding—Marrying Relatives—Some Strange Sayings—Encouraging Results.....
Dr. Cleo Boles—A Tribute.....	515
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	516
OBITUARIES.....	518
Taylor—Ashley—Roberts—Hopkins.....
To the Harvest.....	519
New York City Notes—A Home for Old Preachers.....	520
The Bible College at Berry, Ala.—"I Can't".....	521
FIELD REPORTS.....	522
"For if God Spared Not"—Thorp Spring Christian College.....	524

JUDAS ISCARIOT, ARCHTRAITOR.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

The case of Judas is the saddest of all those who came in contact with Jesus during his earthly ministry. Others sinned grievously, but Judas above them all. Simon Peter denied his Lord when caught in the toils of circumstance, but Judas sinned with deliberate and calculated treachery. Pilate sinned against Roman law and even-handed justice, according to his own confession, but he sought to palliate his crime by laying the blame upon the Sanhedrin. The Sanhedrin gleefully accepted their share of the guilt for the death of Jesus, while the populace enthusiastically exclaimed: "His blood be on us, and on our children." There was guilt enough for all.

But Judas Iscariot stands out above the rest as the supreme example of treachery for all time. His very name has become the synonym for all that is base and mean and infamous and treacherous. Benedict Arnold, would-be betrayer of the cause of American liberty, can only be called a second Judas. "The enormity of the sin of Judas consisted in its being against all bonds of discipleship and friendship; against light; against mercies, affection, trust, warnings; against his own promises and preaching." He betrayed his "own familiar friend," the matchless Teacher, the most wonderful Personality the world has known, and he did it willfully. There have been others whose infidelity has blackened the pages of history, but Judas heads the list of traitors. He is the archtraitor of all times. The enormity of his crime is suggested in the comment of Jesus: "The Son of man goeth, even as it is written of him: but woe unto that man through whom the Son of man is betrayed! good were it for that man if he had not been born!"

Some have sought to relieve Judas of blame on the ground that he was the chosen vessel to betray Jesus and merely acted the part in the great drama assigned him, speaking the words put in his mouth and doing the deeds appointed him. They urge that Christ's death was contingent upon his betrayal to the Sanhedrin, because of his power with the people; and, further, that since Jesus "knew from the beginning . . . who it was that should betray him," Judas was selected arbitrarily and acted under supernatural influences throughout. But this explanation handles in too light and easy a manner the whole problem of the origin of evil and of human responsibility. Any plea in behalf of Judas that sets aside his personal responsibility is false, for no soul has ever been influenced of God to sin against its own better impulses. We are not told just what was the condition of Judas' heart when he was chosen, but a year before the end Jesus said: "Did not I choose you the twelve, and one of you is a devil?" (John 6: 70.) This is far from saying that Judas was a devil from the beginning. Yet had he been a devil at the first and chosen because he was such, this would in no wise relieve him of culpability, unless he was led arbitrarily to do the crime. But, on the other hand, if Judas, granting that he possessed the dormant and embryonic elements of evil suited, when aroused and developed, to betray his Lord, had yielded to the benign and disciplinary influences of Jesus, he would have grown into a faithful witness instead of a traitor. But he yielded to infernal influence instead. It was not decreed that "Judas Iscariot, Simon's son," should betray the Christ.

Others argue that Judas was wholly evil, without any element of good, an Iago that delighted to do wickedness. They even go so far as to say that he sought out a place among the twelve in order that he might have an opportunity to betray Jesus. Of course this is an untenable position. Judas was not at the time of his selection wholly evil, neither was he wholly good. Beyond doubt he early fell into the power of the devil. It is stated that just before the betrayal, when he had taken the sop at the last supper, Satan entered into his heart; but, as we have seen, Jesus called him a devil a year prior to that. John observes that at the time of the supper Satan had "already" put the notion of betrayal into the heart of Judas. It seems, then, that Judas had for some time brooded over his dark project in secret communing with the devil. Probably at the first the suggestion was more or less unconscious, but finally he was fully aware of his own purpose and welcomed the periodic visits and impulses of Satan in his heart. Undoubtedly Judas played with temptation until finally he became the tool of the devil, who wrought his own will through him. In the last analysis that is the story of many a sordid life. The worst dope fiend became a degenerate by degrees. There was a time when resistance was possible.

There were doubtless more motives than one that influenced the career of Judas. The Bible does not analyze his character. We may put it down as certain that he did not consciously start out to be a traitor. He was doubtless drawn to Jesus, as were the other apostles, by the charm of his gracious words and the nobility of his character. Moreover, sharing the prevailing conception of a political Messiah, Judas likely was sanguine in the expectation that this Prophet of Nazareth would fulfill Israel's long-deferred hope and bring deliverance from Roman rule. As suggested above, the germs of the evil in his nature unfolded themselves gradually. It has been suggested that ambition, jealousy, and resentment, sooner or later, influenced him, and also that he was probably disappointed in Jesus and discouraged, as were others, because he did not "restore the kingdom to Israel." I think it probable that anger led him to bargain with the Sanhedrin at the particular time he resorted to them. His action immediately following the rebuke administered by Jesus at the house of Simon the leper (Matt. 26: 6-14) is susceptible of that interpretation. It will be recalled that Arnold was stung to the quick by the official reprimand of Washington. It is stated that all the disciples had indignation when they saw what appeared to them to be the waste of precious ointment, and Jesus doubtless intended his rebuke for the twelve. But Judas immediately "went unto the chief priests, and said, What are ye willing to give me, and I will deliver him unto you?" He acted as if in hot resentment.

(To be continued.)

Publishers' Items.

Write us to-day for our list of good books. It will be sent free on request.

Send us a new subscriber to-day for the Gospel Advocate. Price, $2 a year, in advance.

Write us to-day for sample copies of The Young People for boys and girls. The price is in reach of all.

If you know of any congregation not now using our Bible Lesson Helps and will send us the address, we will gladly furnish them sample copies.

If you have friends who are not subscribers to the Gospel Advocate, kindly furnish us their names and addresses so that we may send them sample copies.

We call your attention to the advertisement of our song books on another page of this issue. We are prepared to fill your order for any of these song books on short notice.

Every church should know its membership. In order to keep informed as to the residence and membership of your church, you should have a church record. Our Church Record is the very thing you need. Price, $1.50.

"Questions Answered," by David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell, should have a place in every library. Those who have seen and examined it closely are highly pleased with it. Cloth bound; 700 pages. Price, $3, postpaid.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Miner's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

The second edition of "Travels in Bible Lands," by Andy T. Ritchie, is now ready. It is pronounced by all who have read it as being the best book ever written on travels in the Holy Land. It is illustrated and contains 335 pages. Cloth bound. Price, $1.50, postpaid, to any address. Send for your copy to-day.

The Ministry of Angels.

And is there care in heaven? And is there love

In heavenly spirits to these creatures base,

That may compassion of their evils move?

There is, else much more wretched were the case

Of men than beasts; but th' exceeding grace

Of highest God, that loves his creatures so,

And all his works with mercy doth embrace,

That blessed angels he sends to and fro,

To serve to wicked man, to serve his foe!

How oft do they their silver bowers leave

To come to succor us that succor want!

How oft do they with golden pinions cleave

The flitting skies, like flying pursuivants,

Against foul friends to aid us militant!

They for us fight, they watch and duly ward,

And their bright squadrons round about us plant;

And all for love, and nothing for reward.

O, why should heavenly God to men have such regard?

—Edmund Spenser.

Our Contributors

Conscience.

BY JAMES E. SCOBEY.

There is no thought more prevalent and widespread among religionists, as well as the people of the world, than the thought that conscience is the supreme arbiter of action to every person and the judge of what is right and what is wrong. To my mind, there is no thought fraught with greater peril to him who entertains and acts upon it, save one, and that is the thought that there is no God.

Men and women, young and old, rush forward seeking not only all legitimate pleasure, but with more avidity the sinful pleasures of the world, holding themselves guiltless of wrongdoing behind an approving conscience. They see no harm in their conduct.

Young people, and, as for that, older ones, when reproved for their indecorous frivolities and glaring improprieties of conduct, think it a sufficient answer to say: "My conscience does not condemn me." They really do not know what conscience is nor what its function is in the economy of man. They simply substitute their feelings and desires for their conscience.

Religionists are found all over the country who justify their unscriptural teachings and practices in the work and worship of the church by saying that their consciences bear them witness that, whatsoever expedients have a tendency to extend the kingdom of heaven among men or will enable them to worship in the best manner, though God has not specifically mentioned them, yet they will be well-pleasing to him. This is the old false doctrine that the end justifies the means.

Hence, religionists have modified the terms of the gospel to render them more convenient of observance. They have also made the worship more pleasing and acceptable to themselves, if not to their Master, by introducing into his worship the organ, the piano, the cornet, the violin, the bass viol, and the drum.

The only music the early Christians engaged in was that which is clearly and definitely set forth by the apostle Paul, who said: "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly; in all wisdom teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace in your hearts to the Lord." (Col. 3: 16.) The word of the Lord says "sing," and not a word such as "play" is used, or any mention made of a musical instrument in connection with the worship. The apostle also says: "Speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, making melody in your heart to the Lord." (Rom. 5: 19.) The word of the Lord does not say make melody on an organ, but in the heart. He who attempts to worship God by any other means than those which God has specifically authorized embraces a doctrine as old as Cain, who made an offering different from that which God had demanded; and thus he lost the respect of God, for the Book tells us: "The Lord had respect unto Abel and to his offering; but unto Cain and to his offspring he had not respect." Cain's judgment decided his action, and he was honest. Any one now who goes in the way of Cain, attempting to worship God according to his own plan, should fear lest he meet the fate of Cain.

These popular and widespread ideas with reference to the power and authority of conscience to determine right and wrong and to direct the course of conduct upon the part of man have become to be so fixed in the minds of many that it has been reduced to a principle, stated thus: "Whatever one conscientiously believes to be right is right to him, and he will be justified in following his convictions." There is no justification in doing what one thinks to be right, but for doing that which is right.

We are taught that conscience is a moral sense that distinguishes right from wrong; that it is the arbiter of action and guides aright. Now, I ask, are these views correct? Is conscience a moral sense endowed with an intuitive perception of the moral quality of actions, whose verdict must be accepted as the essence of truth, and that it never gives a wrong judgment? I answer emphatically, No! And I purpose now to show that it is endowed with no such prerogatives. It is time these erroneous conclusions in reference to the nature and the authority of conscience were put in the crucible of truth and subjected to the refiner's fire of the facts of man's constitution and his history.

1. Man's constitution. God is a trinity. Man made like God is a trinity—body, soul, and spirit. The body without the soul would reduce man to an animal of the forest or a beast of the field. The soul is all the man except the body and the spirit. It, indeed, is the true man. The soul, the inner man, is a trinity. Its constitution is intellect, sensibility, and will. Each of these constituting elements has certain functions which may not be assumed by any of the others. The intellect is the basic source or power in the soul that calls into action the sensibilities and the will. The soul is that, in man's economy, which thinks, remembers, reasons, feels, and wills. Whatever one element of the soul does, the soul is said to do. The Savior said in the garden of Gethsemane: "My soul is exceeding sorrowful even unto death." No element of the soul knows anything but the intellect, which is the knowing power. The conscience belongs to the sensibilities, like love, hate, joy, sorrow, hope, and despair. These faculties of the soul do no thinking, but they cause feeling. The body is the tabernacle of the soul. But you would know what the function of the spirit of man is. Well, the spirit gives life to the body and also to the soul. James says: "As the body without the spirit is dead, so faith without works is dead, being alone." The soul and the spirit are inseparably connected. Then the soul will never die.

2. Now, as to the history of man. If conscience really guides him to do the right thing, then man's actions in the past show the folly of the thought. Six hundred years after Christ, in Arabia, Mohammed propagated a religion, proclaiming himself a prophet of God. Soon most of the Arabians flocked to his standard. There never have been religionists who manifested more zeal. They thought that all peoples should become Moslems; and if they would not voluntarily espouse this religion, they should be forced to do so or put to death. With a large army, with fire and sword, they overran Northern Africa, Southern Europe (especially Spain), and all the countries east of Turkey, as far as India, took Jerusalem, and have held possession of it until the last great war. The Mosque of Omar still stands in the "holy city." Western Europe raised three large armies at different times, called "crusaders," to march into Palestine to retake Jerusalem from the Turk. They lamentably failed. The English now hold the country. Nothing more wicked and absolutely wrong was ever committed by any people than by followers of Mohammed; and yet they had an approving conscience. If conscience is considered a true guide, it contradicts itself. Paul, on his last visit to Jerusalem, when apprehended and carried before the council, said: "Men and brethren, I have lived in all good conscience before God until this day." If his conscience dictated to him to persecute Christians at one time and then at another that he become a Christian, then its decisions were contradictory and both could not be right.

The sensibilities, neither the one nor the others, have any power of thought. They form no opinions, they issue no judgments. The intellect is the tribunal where all judgments are rendered. The conscience is wholly emotional, and is manifested only when the intellect forms a judgment upon some moral question involving the right or wrong of some proposed action. Conscience is never called into action where the question of morality is not under consideration. The intellect decides what is right and what is wrong, and often is mistaken; but however it may decide, conscience is aroused to its function, and that is to influence the will, which is the arbiter of action, to do what the intellect decides to be right. It just as strongly urges him to do wrong, if the intellect decides wrong to be right. The will, however, is not influenced alone by conscience, but by the animal appetites and propensities, and may be swayed by them to do wrong.

The Book speaks of conscience being pure, good, evil, weak, and seared. Conscience is pure when the judgment is founded on the truth. It always influences a man, as a duty, to do what he perceives to be right, though it be wrong. It is weak when it fails to influence the will. It becomes seared when the will continuously rejects the influence. There are those who believe the statement, generally received, that whatever a man believes to be right is right to him, and he will be justified in his acts in accordance with that belief. A man, to be honest, must act in harmony with his determined judgments. To do otherwise, he would not be honest nor have a good conscience like Paul. Man's responsibility is to have a pure conscience, and that in religious duty comes through faith, and faith comes through the word of God. To be governed by conscientious prejudices is to dethrone God and make void his word and exalt man's ignorance to be his god. Our duty is to take God at his word, and his word is the truth. Jesus said to those Jews who believed on him: "If ye continue in my word, then are ye my disciples indeed; and ye shall know the truth, and the truth shall make you free." (John 8: 31, 32.) God holds us responsible for not knowing the truth; and every one may know the truth who wills to do so, if he seeks it of God and not of man.

"Husbands."

BY F. B. S.

A sister sends the following sermonette on "Husbands," by Eli Haggard, clipped from the Florence (Ala.) Times, and asks that it be published in the Gospel Advocate:

Brethren, it is the duty of a husband to be as courteous and constant and considerate after the fatal words are spoken as he was before. You did not hold up your right hand and swear that you would, but you held her by the right hand and made a vow that you would. Yes, more than that, you said that you would stand by her in sickness and in health, in poverty's vale or abounding in wealth, at home or abroad, on the land, on the sea, you would be just as true as true could be. Of course you did not say it just in those words, but you understood it to be a serious, solemn, sacred vow. Yes, more than that, you solemnly declared that you would forsake all others and not permit yourself to be vamped by any vamp so long as the Lord permitted you to live together. In the sight of the Almighty and those who witnessed that vow, have you stuck to it? You used to take her flowers, didn't you? Well, circumstances may not permit such offerings now; but I can tell you, and every wife in the Muscle Shoals district will agree with me, that there are gifts that they appreciate more than they would the most beautiful flowers that bloom, and those gifts are love and smiles and terms of endearment and acts of devotion. You used to take her boxes of candy, didn't you? And maybe the other fellow helped to eat it. The kind of candy you used to carry would probably come pretty high right now; but there are gifts that they will appreciate more than candy—a genuine old-fashioned kiss. You needn't smile. I'll bet there are fellows reading this little sermonette who have not kissed their wives since they got on the train about two years ago and left for a visit to their folks up in Tennessee or away down in South Alabama. You say you don't believe in such foolishness. You used to believe, didn't you? You are a backslider, a sinner, and you know it. [Amens from the women's side of the house.] You stand around on the streets and talk with the other fellows for hours at a time, and then go home and take up the paper, and if she asks you if you know anything you say no, and then you eat your supper and turn in and sleep and snore just as if you had a clear conscience and had met all the duties and obligations of a model husband. You used to sit up and talk to her until her daddy hit the parlor door with his shoe and shooed you out. Now you know, and I know, that every woman has got to be talked to. You cannot ignore them and retain their respect and confidence and love. You should discuss your business affairs with them, your difficulties and problems. There are lots o' men who have smart wives, but they don't know it. They want to share your sorrows as well as your joys. Don't you know that dishpans and dishes and skillets and brooms and dust rags grow mighty tiresome? If you had to exchange places with your wife, you would break up house-keeping the first day. The lodge meeting and business engagements down town after supper—how some fellows do appreciate such opportunities! Lodges are all right, if you don't join too many and if they don't have too many called meetings. Some men do not stay at home enough to get acquainted with their own children. You have heard of the drummer who slapped his little boy, and when he ran into the kitchen bawling and his mother asked him what was the matter, he said: "That man what stays here on Sundays slapped me." A lot of married fellows probably started to read this and became disgusted and threw the paper down. I would be the last man on earth to suggest a row, but your wife, armed with a rolling pin, should back you up in the corner and read this to you; and if you are guilty of sins of omission as well as commission, you should repent and renew your vows and ask her to forgive you, and try to bring all the joy and gladness and peace and melody and happiness possible into her life. [Applause from the wives.]

As a husband, I am willing to plead guilty to some of the charges here brought against husbands, but, in justice to both sides, I am constrained to believe that some wives are neglectful of their overworked husbands. Many a husband is made sour and crabbed because his wife cannot be satisfied with all that her husband can do for her. Please do not neglect the poor old husbands.

Is Our Light Under a Bushel?

BY O. C. LAMBERT.

Not long since, upon reading what I have no doubt was a correct statement concerning the growth of different religious bodies, as collected by the Census Bureau, I was shocked beyond measure to find that although we were a few generations ago the fastest growing of them all, we have dwindled until during the last decade we scarcely more than held our own. This is not the kind of statement that I like to see, and I am sure that it is unpleasant for all of us "to see ourselves as others see us." But I cannot see the wisdom in hiding that shameful fact. I feel that every Christian should know it, and I am sure that no one who really believes the statement can help but realize that something is terribly wrong. Let us get the beam out of our eyes. We must have an Achan in camp or a Jonah on board. Something is keeping God's power and blessings away from us. Our sins have separated between us and our God.

In the early days multitudes, both men and women, embraced the sweet story. A century ago the plea to return to the old landmarks spread like wildfire. The idea of speaking where the Bible speaks and being silent where it is silent was then the most compelling appeal ever made. Do we not contend for the same things to-day? How are we to account for the fact that it worked such wonders then, but is powerless now? How is it that, with our advantages over former ages in means of spreading the gospel, such as rapid travel, rapid communication, and improvements in the art of printing, we are falling so far short of the mark they set us?

Some, in commenting on this bit of information, give as the reason the division which has arisen in recent years among us over the societies and instrumental music. There is no doubting that this is one great cause, to the everlasting shame of those who have pushed in these unscriptural things at the expense of the peace and progress of Christianity.

I am sure there is another very fundamental reason why we are not making any impression. The world hears our boast that we are scriptural in origin, doctrine, and practice; but they read of the "stone cut out of the mountain without hands," which "becomes a great mountain and fills the whole earth;" they see how inconsistent it is with our lack of accomplishments and discount what they consider our extravagant claims.

You cannot blame the public. People who have never studied religious questions get sick and are cared for by some Catholic hospital free of charge. They receive so many kindnesses that they decide without any other evidence that the Catholic religion is good enough for them. Some poor man dies, leaving a large family of children. The parents had never embraced any sort of religion. The Catholics give the little ones a good home, and they grow up unchangeable Catholics. Some old men or women become too old and diseased to longer make their way in the world and are taken into some Catholic Home where all their wants are supplied. The world looks on, and is made to bless the Catholic Church, not knowing or caring whether it is a scriptural institution or not. Only an ignorant person will wonder why the Catholic Church is such a power, numbering more communicants than any other. They use the scriptural means of winning the hearts of men. Here is some more information that may not look good in print. I have it on good authority that several of our own sisters are being cared for by "The Little Sisters of the Poor," a Catholic Home in Nashville!

Most of us are about alike. Unless we are expert in the real estate business, when we hear two men, each boasting that his farm is better than the other's, we do not go to the trouble of analyzing the soil and otherwise scientifically appraising them, but we wait and draw our conclusions from the result of the harvest. That sort of easy reasoning may be all right for most practical purposes when applied to farms, but it does not always reach correct results, for the diligent possessor of a poor farm may outstrip his slothful neighbor though his soil be as rich as Egypt. The Lord knew that that was the way the world reasoned about things, so he commanded his children accordingly: "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." They judge the Catholics by their good works, give them a very high rating; but when they try to find our good works, they are disappointed in the search, for they find nothing to speak of.

The priest and Levite were representatives of the order of worship which the Lord set up. The Samaritan represented the corrupt religious system of Jeroboam and Jezebel. The good that they do is the thing that the people see; it is their light. The masses are to judge between their conflicting claims, and are going to base their judgment on their accomplishments. The priest and Levite had an opportunity to let their light shine. They had it in their power to glorify God in the heart of the man who had fallen among thieves, but they "passed by on the other side." They lost their opportunity. The Samaritan by his kindness made a convert to a false religion. And thus a false system is made to triumph over the true. Are we going to be the priest and Levite and allow the Catholics and other organizations to be the good Samaritan? We are scriptural in origin and doctrine, but woefully lacking in practice.

When Jesus said, "Ye are the light of the world," and, "Ye are the salt of the earth," he placed upon the shoulders of his disciples the weightiest responsibility which man ever did or ever can carry. And he emphasizes it by adding: "If the salt [Christians] have lost its savour [saving influence], wherewith shall it [the world] be salted?" In other words, how is the world to be saved, if Christians do not do what is expected of them in leavening and lifting the world? Are you saving anybody? Are you living so that your saving power is lost? Is your light under a bushel? Is it extinguished, or is it on a candlestick? I long to see the day when we will not have to find shelter for any unfortunate brother or sister in the county poorhouse, which thing I have had to do in the past. I am looking for the day when the world will not any longer point to us in scorn, but in wonder. I want to see lost sinners flocking to the Savior of mankind because of the glorious light of the church, his bride.

Finally, the best antidote for wrong is right, the greatest opponent of darkness is light, the greatest rival of evil is righteousness, and the best refutation of unscriptural means for carrying on the Lord's work is to do it in the right way. As long as we are failing to measure up to the specifications in this particular, there will continue to be those who want to "organize" something.

Field Notes.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

During the past week I have visited Florence, Sheffield, Town Creek, Albany, Athens, and Elkmont, all in Northern Alabama. At Florence I spent the night with Brother and Sister J. B. Gilmer. Brother Gilmer and I went to school together at "Forty Thickets" and at Shady Grove, Hickman County, Tenn. I certainly enjoyed talking over old times. I am sure the many friends of Brother and Sister Gilmer will rejoice to know that they are faithful and active workers in the church.

Brother B. F. Harding is the preacher there, and he is doing a fine work. He is faithful to the word and zealous and tender-hearted, just like his father, Brother J. A. Harding. I think he believes about as strong in special providence as his father did. I found him and several others willing and anxious to help me with the Gospel Advocate. I broke all records there in one line. I landed fourteen straight without missing one. I never did that before that I remember.

In the courthouse I found four wonders: a preacher's son who cares nothing for religious papers; the skin of a rattlesnake ten feet and ten inches long; a young man walking about with his neck broken; and a subscriber who had moved away from his post office without notifying the Advocate office and let the bill run up to about ten dollars, and then said: "It was my fault; I'll pay for it." This last is the greatest surprise to me; for I meet so many brethren who move off and leave their paper without writing the office, then repudiate the whole thing, and blame the paper for going on there after they are gone. But, anyway, I found four wonders in Florence; and when Henry Ford gets there (and I hope he will get to go), he will make five. If I had more time, I might have found the proverbial "seven."

I went across the river and preached one night in Sheffield. Brother John C. Graham, a former Bible-School boy, is the preacher there, and is well spoken of by the brethren. Brother Horton was in a tent meeting in East Florence.

This location has a historical interest to me. My grandfather was with Jackson in 1812 and 1813, when he and Coffee were driving the Indians out of Tennessee into Florida. He was one of those who starved nearly to death while waiting on the south bank of the Tennessee River for supplies to come by boat up the river from Nashville.

At Town Creek I found a small bunch of good brethren, who treated me kindly. There I met some of the Srygleys, relatives of Brother F. B. Srygley. I can see now where he got his love of jokes, or where they got theirs, whichever way it is. Brother Armstrong has an orphan boy he took from the Columbia Home, Brother Albert Pinkston. He is about grown now, and a fine worker in the church.

At Albany I struck it just right to hear Brother G. A. Dunn in a meeting. I heard him preach two splendid sermons. Also I met Brother Woodroof, who is located there, and Brother Kirby, a preacher who is a photographer, but preaches a great deal on the side.

At Athens I found a small congregation. The "digressives" have a large meetinghouse there. Our brethren bought their old house, which is located two doors from the new one. The town in some respects lives up to its name. The courthouse is modeled after the Greek temple built in honor of Pallas Athena, while the decorative columns are of the Corinthian style. But the brethren did not seem very enthusiastic; at least, not many of them. I was asked to preach the funeral sermon over a Brother Peek, who died while I was there. There I saw again Brother and Sister C. J. McKee, formerly of Maury County, Tenn., to whom I sold my mules when I went to Nashville to go to school.

I arrived in Elkmont early Sunday morning, June 18, and preached on Sunday and Sunday night. The congregation at that place is running down. They at one time had an instrument in the house and used it in the worship; but, through the influence of Brother Thornberry, they put it out. But some have moved away and some have died, and probably some have "died" and don't know it; so they are not progressing very fast. Brother Henry Dawson is the leader, but will soon move away; also Brother G. H. Clark, another faithful worker, will soon move away. But good work can be done there, if the right man gets in there.

Here is a point for preachers and church workers. Brother B. F. Harding said: "I want every family here to get the Gospel Advocate. Not that I am working especially for the publishers, for I am not; but I am interested in this congregation, and I believe the regular reading of this good paper will increase your efficiency as church workers." This he said the Sunday before I arrived. He was right. It will help any congregation to have this paper in the homes of the members.

Atlanta (Ga.) Notes.

BY B. C. GOODPASTURE.

C. C. McCampbell, of Rome, Ga., has just closed a fine meeting at Dalton, Ga. The meeting began on the first Sunday in June and continued two weeks. Fifteen were baptized. The brethren at Dalton are greatly encouraged. They say that this is the best meeting they have had within the past twenty years. Brother McCampbell is a live wire.

The meeting at Chickamauga, Ga., enters the third week with increasing interest. Brother Garrett is using the West End Avenue tent, but the tent will not accommodate the audiences. To date there have been four confessions. This meeting is causing many people in Chickamauga to investigate the Scriptures concerning the things that are being preached. We are expecting more visible results.

S. H. Hall is conducting a great meeting at South Pryor Street. Really, this is a union meeting—that is, the three congregations of the city are supporting the meeting by their presence, prayers, and labors. In fact, Brother Hall could not conduct any other kind of a meeting in Atlanta. His "work of faith, and labor of love, and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ," extended over a period of fourteen years in this city and in this State. His many friends, fellow-workers of former years, are glad once more to see him and assist him in the service of our Lord. The meeting is now in the midst of the second week. There have been six confessions and four restorations to date. The brethren are being strengthened and encouraged to do greater things in the service of the Christ.

Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes.

BY W. EDGAR MILLER.

Sunday was a good day for all who attended services at the Central church of Christ, 1720 South Flower Street, there being a well-filled house and two good sermons by Brother Witty.

As the vacation season approaches we occasionally miss some of our regulars on account of their being out of town for a few days, "vacating." Those of us who remain at home should bear this in mind and remember that our presence is needed more than ever at this time of the year to compensate for the absent ones. You know, in the business world, when an employee takes a vacation, the rest of the force often double up and take the extra load on themselves and the work goes on just the same. This should be the case in the Lord's work just as much as in the commercial world. Not many of us overwork ourselves nowadays, and work is a most excellent tonic for us all. I was talking with an acquaintance recently, and he made the remark that if he were financially fixed so that he need not work he would not be satisfied to just do nothing; "and," he added, "neither would you." He has the right idea. God ordained that man should work and eat bread in the sweat of his brow; and whenever we find any condition or requirement imposed upon man by the Lord, we will find that man is happiest when he meets these obligations in the way that God intended he should. And when it comes to the Lord's work, the happiest Christians are those who are doing most for him.

Oftentimes in the work of earning our daily bread it is necessary for us to exert ourselves to the extent of getting up a good sweat. We may not always like to do this, but in the end we are benefited by it. It stirs our blood, builds up our muscles, and hardens and makes us stronger, and we feel the glow of health through our veins. So, in the work of the church, there are tasks that we would rather avoid because they cost us effort, but by the doing of them we are made stronger Christians and are better able to perform greater tasks that present themselves for our doing. Sometimes in our daily work we find it convenient to take what we call a "vacation." Now, this does not often mean that we just quit work, go home, and lie down and rest for a week or two. We simply change our work and quit doing what we have been forced by circumstances to do and do something that we want to do. We often work harder taking a vacation than we do at our regular work. But in the Lord's work there is no place for a vacation. The harvest is white, and harvest time is not vacation time. Jesus said he must work the works of him that sent him while it was day; for the night was coming, in which no man could work. There is a vacation, a rest time, coming to all the faithful; but in order to rest, we must have worked until we are tired and weary, then will our rest be sweet.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

FROM A BRUSH ARBOR TO A NEGRO SHACK.

In a former article I made mention of Brother W. S. Robison, the senior elder of the Burrus Chapel congregation, also that I would have something more to say of him and his sainted wife, now dead, and their labor in building up the cause of Christ in No. 4 District of Lake County.

After our great meeting at Horn Ridge and the "spat" with the Methodist preacher, Brother Robison called me for a meeting in his neighborhood. Having no meeting-house, he prepared a large brush arbor at the end of the lane about one and a half miles south from his home. He arranged everything in good order—good seats and good lights. I went on time, expecting, of course, a grand, good meeting like the one at Horn Ridge. There I learned that preachers, as well as others, meet with disappointments in their expectations.

Brother and Sister Robison (with their children, all small) and two or three more were all that were out on Sunday, the first day of the meeting. I thought surely the people did not know the meeting was to begin that day. At night no larger crowd than we had at eleven o'clock. I shall never forget that small crowd—not a dozen—under that large arbor that night. The crowd looked lonesome, the preacher felt lonesome. A few songs, scripture lesson read, prayer, and I tried to preach. To this good day I cannot recall the subject preached on that night. The small crowd, the loneliness, the dark night, and how I felt can all be recalled.

For three or four nights we tried it under the arbor, and the crowd did not increase. Then some one suggested that we move the meeting nearer Brother Robison's residence so we would not have to walk so far. "Where will we go?" On the bank of a bayou, just a short distance north from Brother Robison, stood a shack in which negroes had lived, also used for a cotton house. When it was suggested to move the meeting to the shack, one old brother, now dead, stubbornly refused to attend the meeting if carried on in that old shack. I went to him to learn why he objected to the shack. His answer was: "The devil is in that old shack. Do you think I will go to the devil's headquarters to serve God? If you move the meeting, then I am done." The meeting was moved, and he was done, for he went no more. I told him if the devil was in that little shack, we had him in close quarters, and that now was the time to close in on him. The old brother did not propose to fight the devil in a negro shack. From what I learned of him afterwards, he did not have much against the devil, anyway, and perhaps did not want to incur his displeasure by taking the word of God into his den. The meeting continued in that negro shack for several nights, and before the meeting closed the shack was filled. The visible results of that meeting was the loss of the old brother who refused to attend because the meeting was moved to the "devil's headquarters." Long since the old brother has crossed the great divide, and God only knows whether he will stay away from the devil in eternity or not.

The next spring I was called back to preach a few more times in that old shack. On Sunday at eleven o'clock Brother John Forrester, now of Troy, and Dr. Norman (dead, I think) confessed faith in Christ and were baptized that evening. Then it was that Sister Forrester, being a Methodist at that time, informed me in language and manner that I could understand that "the Campbellites will never get me." The war fully began that Sunday and will not end while time goes on. Such remarks as were made about these brethren when they were baptized—"water salvation," "negro religion." If it was negro religion that got hold of Brother John Forrester, it has held him better than it does the negroes. This was the beginning of the congregation at Burrus Chapel.

Brother and Sister Robison said they intended to keep up the fight, and they did until a lot was bought and a house built in which to preach the gospel and worship God according to divine teaching. On January 14, 1919, Sister Robison was laid to rest in the lot upon which the meeting-house stands. God permitted her to live to see all of her children members of the church and a good, faithful congregation at work. I held the first meeting in the house and many since then. Some of my best tent meetings were at Burrus Chapel. Brother Robison and I are tied together by the "ups and downs"—the hard work, trials, joys, and bereavements of the past. I pray for the growth of the congregation that had its origin in a negro shack.

Next, "To Happy Hollow."

If God's favors were measured by our appreciation, some of us would get about twenty minutes of blessing per annum.—Exchange.

Home Reading

Fluff.

O little cat Fluff, how sweet you are—
All dressed in your tiger silk,
With your long black tail all marked in rings
And tipped as white as milk!

How bright are the eyes in the little cat head!
How soft is your rhythmic purr!
How sharp are the claws in the little cat paws!
And how warm is your coat of fur!

O little cat Fluff, with his tinkling bell
Hung on a ribbon red,
Is fast asleep on the kitchen lounge,
With his paws beneath his head.
—L. Myrtle Sours, in Our Dumb Animals.

A Door of Hope.

Human nature is a mixture of many ingredients, some of the earth earthy, some bordering on the angelic. We are a little lower than the angels in some things and in some moods, and only a little above the brutes that perish in some other things and under some circumstances.

The most hopeful thing about human nature is that the angelic is present in every one, though it may be rarely manifested. There is a gleam of it sometimes in the most unlikely places.

It is said of Michael Angelo that he could see in a block of marble the angel he wished to create, and that his sculptor's art was directed toward releasing the imprisoned angel. Blessed is he who can bring out the best that is in the men that he holds intercourse with! Perhaps there are more people in the world than we are aware of who are honestly desirous of doing good. But they fail to see the opportunities that lie in their path, or their modest and timid attempts to do good meet with little success, or are misunderstood and criticized, with the result that they shrink back into what seems to be indifference and lack of interest, but is really discouragement. They are like some plant which puts forth its tender leaves to greet the sun, and—lo!—a frost comes and chills them and cuts them back.

With a more genial climate, flowers of virtue and goodness would bud and blossom everywhere, and we should be surprised to find what we ourselves and others are capable of and could do to bless the world.

I remember once speaking in a city church about the mountain work. After the service no one said anything to me which would imply that any particular interest had been aroused. I felt that my effort had been a failure; but on my way to the house where I was staying, a young girl, who was also staying there, remarked: "I want to be a missionary." So I had, after all, awakened the angel in one individual, at any rate; but the final outcome I do not know.

The Order of the Thousandfold opens, however, a door of hope to every one, because it enables the soul to rise above the circumstances and conditions, no matter how depressing and discouraging, in which we are immersed. The circumstances in which we are placed may serve as a kind of bondage which enchains the soul and keeps us back from a life of angelic service. We should like to do good, but we do not know how or we do not seem to have the opportunity. To boldly claim a place among those who are rendering great service to the world, by earnestly praying to be made a thousandfold more useful, at once opens the way to greater things; for it links us up with the great tides of spiritual power and energy which God has placed at our disposal through our Lord Jesus Christ, and which will bear us onward and upward to greater things.

The feeling that God is responsible for the opening up of ways and means and channels by which our influence may reach out into the world and bless and enrich the lives of others strengthens our faith and gives us the inspiration of a great hope, because it opens up new vistas of possible usefulness which were not seen before. It enables us to realize our true greatness as the sons of God, and leads us out into that larger and more glorious liberty which is our portion and birthright, as joint heirs with Christ in the glory of his kingdom.—Frederick W. Neve.

The Call for the Heroic.

The carrying out of the program of Christianity to-day calls for heroic souls. This has always been true, but the world has never heard so loud and persistent a demand for real heroism on the part of the followers of Jesus Christ as is being made to-day. The reason: Because the burning, blazing word written across the sky is "Sacrifice."

Jesus laid down what seemed to be very hard conditions of discipleship; and it seems strange that when he wanted the kingdom advanced it should go forward under strict and severe regulations. He had much to say about crosses, swords, self-denials, sacrifices, sufferings, burdens, hardships, persecutions, tribulations; and he said nothing that encouraged ease, self-satisfaction, or self-indulgence. The soft life was not a part of his program. His outstanding word was "Sacrifice." He appealed to the heroic—never to the easy.

And the appeal was not an empty, perfunctory thing. It throbbed with life. It was based upon his own high and unfaltering example. He had laid aside lofty place—he was on an equality with God—and had become the Servant of man. He was a conspicuous and imperishable example of devotion to duty, and he made it clear that those who would enter into the kingdom would have to yield to the same noble consecration.

So it is that Christianity stands for strength, virility, ruggedness, uplifting influence, right character, conquest through struggle. It scorns the "soft-raiment" type of manhood and womanhood. It believes in the achieving soul, the soul through which God is able to will and to do of his good pleasure, because it has become conformable to the heroic ideals and example of his Son.—Selected.

Peculiarities of Camels.

Mongolian camels are superb beasts and much superior to the ugly, flea-bitten, one-humped Arabian variety, according to a writer in the National Geographic Magazine. They are pictures of stately dignity when they have their winter coats, but repulsive-looking when their hair falls off in chunks in the summer.

They are the only freight carriers on the desert, but will only carry small loads, and will lie down and squeal if an extra pound is added. Their feet wear down to the quick after some journeys in the desert, and the Mongolians actually half-sole them—much as a cobbler half-soles shoes. A patch of leather is attached to the bottom of the foot by thin thongs, which are drawn through adjacent callosities of the sole.

The breath of the Mongolian camel is so strong that it is said few camel drivers live long. Its kick will overturn a motor car, and its bite, followed by a twist of the lower teeth, generally induces blood poisoning. Particularly vicious males are marked with a piece of red cloth. Even a horseman is not safe from them, because they can outgallop a pony and have a nasty, effective trick of throwing beast and rider and then rolling on them.—Exchange.

At Home and Abroad

J. D. Tant recently held a meeting at Zolfo, Fla.

J. W. Dunn is very much pleased with the work of our field editor, E. C. Love.

From F. M. Karnes: "I have been reading the Gospel Advocate for fifty years, and I wish everybody on earth read it."

W. M. Oakley will begin a meeting at Pleasant View, Tenn., on the first Lord's day in July. J. D. Derryberry will do the singing.

J. G. Allen changes his address from 1412 Baltimore Avenue to 1027 Fondulac, Muskogee, Okla. This will be Brother Allen's address for the summer.

W. T. Hines recently held a meeting at Mount Hope, near Stillwater, Okla. He also speaks encouragingly of the work of the Lord at Blackwell, Okla.

H. Leo Boles preached at McMinnville, Tenn., June 18, to two large audiences. He preached at Foster Street, this city, last Lord's day. One confession.

From Rue Porter, Springfield, Mo., June 20: "I am engaged in an interesting meeting with the North Side congregation of this city. Interest is good and one addition to date."

Flavil Hall has recently been engaged in a nine-days' mission meeting at Doe Run, Ga. There were two accessions from the Baptists. The Moultrie congregation is supporting the work. Good interest is reported.

From H. M. Phillips, Estill Springs, Tenn., June 23: "The meeting closed at Ridgedale, Chattanooga, with sixteen additions. Prospects are good here for a meeting. Outsiders are attending well. There are only a few members here."

From E. Gaston Collins, Algood, Tenn., June 23: "Permit me to make a correction of the report which appeared in last week's Gospel Advocate. It was R. E. L. Taylor who held an eight-days' meeting at Algood, closing on June 11. I only assisted him."

H. M. Phillips, Chattanooga, Tenn., states in a communication of June 12 that he was in a very interesting meeting at Ridgedale, with fifteen additions at that time. He was to close on the following Friday night and begin a meeting at Estill Springs, Tenn., on June 20.

From Coleman Overby, Murray, Ky., June 16: "I am to engage E. C. Crawford, Mayfield, Ky., in a four-days' discussion, beginning on June 27. The place is two and one-half miles north of Murray. Two days will be given to each of the two propositions, baptism and apostasy."

R. N. Moody, Albertville, Ala., writes that he closed a meeting at Alabama City on the night of June 18. The meeting was held in a tent. Though the crowds were light, there was one baptism and a good impression made. He began a tent meeting at West Gadsden, Ala., on the night of June 21.

Charles F. Hardin writes from Jackson, Miss., June 21: "The meeting at Laurel, Miss., resulted in three baptisms and a congregation of twenty-nine members left to maintain the regular worship, having good leadership in their ranks. The efforts of Brethren Grant and Barnett there in past years worked to our advantage."

T. B. Clark will begin a mission meeting at Hot Springs, Ark., on July 9. The church at Gallatin, Tenn., will support him in this meeting. He wants to know if some congregation or individual will not support a singer for the meeting. If you can, you may correspond with Dr. E. W. Gossett, 508 Hobson Avenue, Hot Springs, Ark.

From C. Petty, Pineapple, Ala.: "Flavil Hall and wife came to Pineapple and sang the gospel, as well as preached it, for more than two weeks. Although it was a busy time of year, there was good attendance and good attention all the way through. There were five additions and the church was greatly encouraged. This is Sister Hall's childhood home."

From J. E. Thornberry, Bedford, Ind., June 19: "Our meeting began here yesterday with good interest, one taking membership. O. W. Scott, of Borden, Ind., preaches here two Sundays each month. The church loves him dearly, and not without cause, for the result of his work is wonderful. This is the home of A. F. Dalton, one of our strongest and truest preachers."

From A. G. Freed, Booneville, Miss., June 20: "The meeting with the church here continues with great interest. The audiences both day and night are large. Many are interested. Seven have been baptized. The church here has many faithful workers." A later note from Brother Freed informs us that the meeting resulted in twenty-two additions to the church.

J. C. Mosley, Whitwell, Tenn., June 21: "I am on a rural route from Pikeville. We were all made to rejoice last Lord's day when four of the best people of the neighborhood confessed Christ and were baptized. I will be here only a few days, then I return to some old fields in Calf Killer Valley, and then I go back to Illinois for three or four months. My health is normal again."

Brother McQuiddy received the following telegram from C. H. Payne, Atlanta, Ga., dated June 23: "Interest in meeting great. Impossible to close. Three confessions and two restored to-night, totaling twenty so far. Brother Hall asks you to see Lambert about preaching Sunday. This church assumes all responsibility for Brother Hall's staying over. He wanted and tried hard to leave."

J. L. Holland, Greenfield, Tenn.: "I am sending you a new subscriber in an effort to double the subscription list of the Gospel Advocate, which is by far the best paper of the brotherhood. I would not be without it for any reasonable sum. My father was a subscriber fifty years ago; hence, I had the privilege and pleasure of reading when I was but a boy. I wish it were going weekly into every Christian home."

We regret to learn that N. W. Proffitt, of Paris, Texas, will be unable to meet his appointments this year. All the churches who were expecting him to hold a meeting are requested to secure some one else. He has been in ill health ever since his visit to Tennessee last year. He is very grateful to those who have ministered to him in his illness. Those with whom he has labored should not forget him in his afflictions.

C. D. Crouch writes from Ashland City, Tenn., June 19: "We had a splendid service here yesterday, but no service at night on account of the rain. In the afternoon we went out to Marrowbone to hear an I. B. S. A. member (alias 'Russellite') lecture. I had the opportunity to review his lecture, and the brethren were delighted that I happened in. I had fine attention throughout my talk, an unusual thing at that place."

From William P. Walker, Dover, Tenn.: "The new tent for the churches of Christ of Stewart County was ordered last Tuesday from Nashville, Tenn. Jack Meyer, of the David Lipscomb College, and I will begin the county evangelistic campaign on the first Sunday in July, at Model. At the present there are only four or five members of the church there, but there is a bright prospect of establishing a congregation. I would like to see more of our counties take up this county tent work."

G. A. Dunn writes under date of June 20: "I closed my part of the meeting at Albany, Ala., yesterday, with thirty-four additions, of which thirty-one were baptisms. Claud Woodroof will continue the meeting. He is a fine singer, a fine preacher, and also a good man. Though we were hindered by two other meetings, besides the rain and the storm, the meeting was fine. I am to begin at Brownsville, Tenn., to-night. Brother Dunn is to conduct a meeting at Sparta, Tenn., about the last of September."

From A. A. Bunner, 7808 Hope Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, June 19: "On the third Lord's day in June I preached in the forenoon for the church at Fursley and in the evening at Sistersville, W. Va., to large audiences. They have zealous bands of disciples at both these places. Their singing is great. They have the rather uncommon trait of supporting the gospel liberally. Two of the leading men in the church at New Martinsville are county officials. J. F. Garrett is Tax Assessor and F. B. Smith is Circuit Court Clerk. They are both intelligent and zealous workers in the cause of the Master, and are laboring hard to build up the church there. Brother Garrett is a subscriber for the Gospel Advocate. The congregation numbers more than a hundred, and they are badly in need of a meeting place which they can call their own, and they are now putting forth every effort to build. I will not be in Cleveland for some time if I keep able to work, but extreme hot or cold weather has become very hard for me to endure."

W. M. Oakley preached at Mead's Chapel, near Nashville, last Lord's day.

A. B. Lipscomb began a meeting at Menlo, Ga., on the fourth Lord's day in June.

F. B. Srygley has been in a meeting in Chicago two weeks, and reports that the crowds have steadily increased throughout. There were two baptisms at last report.

An excursion was run on Monday night from Nashville to Dickson, Tenn., where N. B. Hardeman is holding a meeting. A large number of Christians went.

From C. A. Norred, Knoxville, Tenn., June 20: "I have begun work with the Broadway Church, this city. Two good services on Sunday, with two additions to the congregation."

F. B. Srygley began a discussion of the music question at Portsmouth, Ohio, on the night of June 28, which will continue three or four nights. The debate is being held in a theater building.

J. W. Dunn, of Dyersburg, Tenn., closed a good meeting at Marshall, Texas, recently, which resulted in seventeen baptisms. He is now in what promises to be a fine meeting at Hallsville, Texas.

We enjoyed a visit from N. B. Hardeman last Saturday. He is engaged in an interesting meeting at Dickson, Tenn., which has resulted in nine additions to date. Very large audiences have attended the meeting throughout.

J. E. Green, who spent last year in the Freed-Hardeman College, is now in Winston-Salem, N. C., to give all his time to evangelizing in that much-neglected field. He began a meeting in that city on June 18, and one was baptized on the first day.

R. C. White began a meeting at Jones Avenue (Joy's Flower Garden), this city, on June 17. The meeting started off well. He closed a meeting at Lenoir City, Tenn., on June 4, with good interest and a debate with the Adventists in prospect.

M. Keeble (colored), 2013 Jefferson Street, Nashville, Tenn., recently held a meeting at Birmingham, Ala., which was supported by the white congregations of that city. They had no congregation among the colored people of Birmingham two years ago, but, after having held two meetings there, they now have a membership of about seventy. This is a good example for other places.

From F. L. Young, Texarkana, Texas, June 24: "I am in a meeting here with the band of brethren who meet in Macabee Hall. We have a good, large tabernacle, but it is not well located. I have been here ten days and expect to continue one more week. Brother Westbrook, of the College Hill congregation, is our very efficient song leader. Our meeting at home (Paris) will begin on July 1. When through there, I shall go to Roxton."

Horace W. Busby, Dallas, Texas, writes: "On the evening of June 7, at the home of the bride's parents, Brother and Sister J. B. Nelson, the writer performed the ceremony uniting in marriage Miss Florence Nelson to Mr. Marvin Petty. Both are fine Christian characters, very popular among a large circle of friends. Immediately after the ceremony they left for a visit to Brother Petty's parents at Corpus Christi, Texas, after which they will be at home in Oak Cliff, Dallas, Texas."

O. F. Shearer writes from Monticello, Ky., June 22: "Our meeting, conducted by R. A. Craig, of Shelbyville, Ky., closed last night. The attendance throughout the meeting was fair, the interest good, and the preaching fine. The church had labored and prayed earnestly for the success of this meeting, nor did they cease when the meeting began. God blessed our efforts with twenty additions—two by membership, one from the Christian Church, one from the Baptists, and sixteen by confession and baptism. W. C. Ramsay, of Stop, Ky., led the song service, and his work was well done."

Earl C. Smith writes from Macon, Ga.: "I am here doing some graduate work in Mercer University, trying to prepare myself for better work as a teacher in the Dasher College and Bible School. We did a fine year's work last year, and expect to do better this year. We are trying to maintain the same high standards that our older schools have maintained. We can do the work at a lower cost than any school that I know of. Our catalogue is ready for mailing. If interested, write for one. Since Brother Cuff is gone, I am preaching for the church here. Brother Cuff has done a good work here and leaves many friends. We regret to lose him from this field. May the Lord bless him wherever he goes."

From D. S. Ligon, Burkburnett, Texas: "Beginning on July 10, there is to be a debate between the Adventists and the Christian people at Havana, Ark. The Adventists will be represented by L. H. Shelton; the church of Christ, by the writer. All are invited to hear it. There will be twelve days of it, and ten propositions will be discussed. There are two propositions out of the ordinary. Mr. Shelton will affirm that God is a material being, and the writer will affirm the deity of Christ. I never have known of any man in a public discussion affirming the first or denying the latter. Brethren, come and camp with us. Plenty of good water, and good brethren will welcome you. Pray for me. The debate will also be published in book form."

From S. W. Bell, Sedalia, Mo., June 22: "I filled my appointment with the church at Benjamin, Mo., last Sunday. We had two very interesting services. The few brethren who remain seem to be very much interested in the work. I believe that a great work could be done in the central part of this State if one had the proper support. It makes the burden fall very heavy on so few. Having been asked about our tent work, I will say that the financial depression has delayed us thus far; but if I can, I will hold one or two meetings yet. We need a young man who can either preach or lead the singing. If we could find the right kind, we might be able to use him for a few months and give him reasonably good support. If any one who is interested will let me know, I will take the matter up with him. The work is great in this part of the State, but I cannot do it without help, now that I am back at work."

From H. N. Wolfe, Dayton, Ohio, June 19: "Contributions received for the building fund since last report total two hundred and eighty-five dollars and seventeen cents. We certainly appreciate what the brethren are doing for us and for the Lord. Brother Fogle closed a two-weeks' tent meeting here last night, held on the lot where we expect to build. There were five baptisms, which causes us all to rejoice, and we are greatly encouraged over the prospects of building up a congregation in this particular community. We have nothing but praise for Brother Fogle in his labors while among us. We now have a membership of twenty-four, with no place to meet for worship except in our homes; so we must look to our brethren for a continuance of their liberality until sufficient funds are received to go forward with the building. All contributions will be gratefully acknowledged and used to the glory of God. Address H. N. Wolfe, 402 Edgewood Avenue, Dayton, Ohio."

L. L. McGill writes from Estevan, Saskatchewan, Canada, June 23: "I arrived in Estevan on June 10 with Brother Rogers. We began a meeting with the congregation here on Sunday, June 11. One was baptized into Christ. The members here are very much alive. Since April 15 they have built a concrete basement in which to meet. At any time the roof may be raised and a house built on the foundation. On Sunday afternoon, June 18, we began a meeting at Wood End School, seven miles south. There were not sufficient seats for all present. During the week both the attendance and attention have been good. The grain in these Western fields is ripe unto the harvest. 'Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest that he send forth laborers into his harvest.' Let us all work in harmony with our prayers. Brother Rogers is working at top speed all the time, both privately and publicly. He has calls to many different points to hold meetings, but at present is unable to attend to them. I plan to assist in this work all summer."

J. Roy Vaughn sends in the following encouraging notice of the work in Natchez, Miss.: "The little band of Christians composing the church at this place are now zealously coöperating with T. C. Fox in a tent meeting. We began last Sunday (June 4), and although it has rained every day we have not failed to meet every night. The interest is good, and we expect more people out as soon as the weather gets better. Brother Fox is doing a great work here. To say how glad we are that he is with us in Mississippi would be hard to express in words. Heretofore many efforts have been made to build up a loyal congregation here, but it seems the preacher merely preached two or three weeks, baptized a few people, and went away leaving them to die. One reason that our beloved Brother Cayce was so successful in this field was because he kept in touch with the churches after holding their meeting, lest his labors should prove in vain. We feel safe in saying the cause is founded in Natchez this time to stay, to grow, and to radiate the gospel over the surrounding territory. The Mississippi field is a big one. But we strongly believe in the power of the gospel and will courageously go forth, losing no time, not sparing any sacrifice nor compromising a single Bible truth, then God will take care of the results."

Query Department

BY J. C. McQUIDDY

Mrs. Mayo Brown, of Marvell, Ark., writes to know the difference between soul and spirit. She says: "I would like to know if there is any difference between soul and spirit. Both are mentioned in the following scriptures: 1 Thess. 5: 23; Heb. 4: 12. I have always thought that the soul and the spirit were the same, the immortal part of one."

I cannot do better than give the answer which Brother Lipscomb gave to a babe in Christ who inquired to know the difference between soul and spirit. He said: "You have a pretty tough and gristly piece of meat for a babe to masticate and digest if you undertake to define the difference between 'soul' and 'spirit.' 'Soul' is defined 'the internal spirit, but occasionally the animal life.' That is its use in the Bible. So 'soul' and 'spirit' are sometimes used interchangeably in the Bible, sometimes they are used as distinct; which means that the soul and the spirit in part are identical, in some points they differ. The difference between the two is not set forth in the Bible; so I conclude that, however much it might gratify our curiosity, the knowledge of the difference is not needful or even helpful to our salvation, else the difference would have been plainly set forth in the Bible. It falls under the head of untaught and doubtful questions, which minister strife and create division rather than godly edifying in Christ Jesus. I suggest, then, that we postpone the study of these nonessential, impractical, and hurtful questions until we become skilled in the knowledge and practice of the questions that are taught, that are practical and helpful. If we do this, we will lose interest in the speculation as to the difference between the soul and the spirit and will let them go over into the next world, where, it may be, they will be made plain and there will be nothing in them to argue over. I am satisfied that the best way is not to argue these untaught questions on the one side or the other, not to maintain whether the one position is true or not. They constitute no part of the gospel or the divine teaching, and so have no bearing on the salvation of the soul, save the discussion of them is calculated to turn men's minds from the truth that saves and so endanger their salvation." ("Queries and Answers," pages 393, 394.)

✱ ✱ ✱

Mrs. Ella Dye, of Hundred, W. Va., inquires to know where the altar of incense was placed. She writes: "I have a question which came up in our Bible study that I would like for you to answer—Heb. 9: 3, 4. Some contended that the golden altar of incense was in the holy place, and some in the holiest of all. They gave Ex. 26: 35; 30: 6."

The passages in question read: "And after the second veil, the tabernacle which is called the Holy of holies; having a golden altar of incense, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was a golden pot holding the manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant." (Heb. 9: 3, 4.) "And thou shalt set the table without the veil, and the candlestick over against the table on the side of the tabernacle toward the south: and thou shalt put the table on the north side." (Ex. 26: 35.) "And thou shalt put it before the veil that is by the ark of the testimony, before the mercy seat that is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee." (Ex. 30: 6.) The passages are not in conflict, but in perfect accord. The golden altar of incense was in the most holy place. In the holy place was the candlestick and a table on which were kept twelve loaves of bread, called "showbread." Heb. 9: 2; Ex. 25: 31-40; and Ex. 26: 35 describe the position of the candlestick and the table in the holy place. Ex. 30: 6 gives the position of the golden altar of incense in the most holy place. The first veil was over the door into the holy place. The second veil separated the holy place from the most holy place, the holiest place in the worship of Israel. The golden altar of incense stood against the veil of the most holy place.

✱ ✱ ✱

A sister inquires to know the difference between the Christian Church and the church of Christ. She states her trouble as follows: "I would like for you to answer this question for me. What is the difference in the Christian Church and the church of Christ? The church of which I am a member is called the 'Christian Church,' and we do not have the organ nor societies of any kind. I notice in the Gospel Advocate of members coming from the 'Christian Church' to the 'church of Christ.' I am often asked by members of other churches what the differences are, as our churches are called 'digressives,' 'progressives,' 'non-progressives,' 'Christian Church,' 'church of the saints,' and 'church of Christ,' and I am at a loss to know how to answer them. So 'they say' they call us 'Campbellites' to distinguish us."

Some conservative Christians speak of the church with which they are identified as the "church of Christ" or the "Christian Church." The "progressives" call themselves the "Christian Church," the "church of Christ," and the "Church of the Disciples of Christ." Most conservative brethren who do not use in the worship instrumental music and missionary societies prefer the name and call themselves the "church of Christ." The use of "Christian Church" is more prevalent among those known as "progressives."

Calling both conservatives and progressives "Campbellites" does not distinguish them. There is something radically wrong when Christians need to be distinguished one from the other. Conservatives insist on walking by faith in the worship, while progressives bring things into the worship for which there is no command in the word of God. There is no command for playing a musical instrument in the worship, yet they play it; there is no example or authority for a missionary society, yet they organize one which supplants and usurps the functions of the church. The principle adopted by them has led to open membership and other dangerous practices.

✱ ✱ ✱

G. C. Mayo, of Milan, Tenn., requests me to give the meaning of Eph. 3: 21, which reads: "Unto him be the glory in the church and in Christ Jesus unto all generations forever and ever. Amen." He wishes to know if this proves the perpetuity of the Baptist Church.

This has no reference to the Baptist Church, which is not mentioned in the New Testament. The church is to glorify Christ by its light through all time. The church could not glorify Christ before it had an existence, but after its establishment it should glorify Christ through the endless succession of ages.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN THE WORSHIP

By M. C. Kurfees

Cloth. 300 pages. Price, postpaid.....$1.50

This is the most comprehensive book on this important subject now before the public. In it the Greek verb "psallo" is philologically and historically examined, together with a full discussion of kindred matters relating to music in Christian worship. The book is the result of a lifetime of critical study and research, and has become the standard of information on the music question. It has been highly recommended by scholarly brethren in the church of Christ and in the religious world.

McQUIDDY PRINTING COMPANY
Nashville, Tenn.

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrearages, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, #17-#19 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing to advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

A Tribute to James A. Harding.

BY M. C. K.

Because of the value of such an example to others, as well as to give grateful expression to my estimate and appreciation of the worth of a good man, I write this tribute to the memory of Brother Harding. The last time I saw him was in Winchester, Ky., at the funeral of his greatly beloved and honored father, Elder James W. Harding. It is no part of my purpose, nor is it necessary, to be elaborate in what I have to say here, but rather to indicate, in a brief outline, my impression of his character and life, and I have not a doubt that the same impression was made upon thousands of others. In the attempt to convey a fair idea of his character and career as a servant of God, I invite attention to the following points:

1. His faith in God. Were I called upon to mention what I regard as the most prominent characteristic in the life of James A. Harding as a Christian and a preacher, I would mention without hesitation his faith in God. This characteristic was not only prominent as indicating the dominant trend of his life and clothing him with the indefatigable courage of a Spartan soldier, but the fire of his faith exhibited the glow of a steady light, burning with ever-increasing brightness and casting its radiance upon all around him. His faith was an ever-present and visible reality. It was simple, strong, serene, and sublime. It not only led him to an unflinching trust in the fact of an ever-present God, but by it, like Abraham of old, "he endured, as seeing him who is invisible." (Heb. 11: 27.) Not a doubt of the presence of this God in his life seemed ever to cross his pathway or to enter his mind. I sometimes thought he erred in judgment in the practical application of this principle of trust; but if he did, it was always in a way that complimented his heart. No young man or young woman could be long in his presence and not come under the power and sway of this beautiful and sublime trust in God; and how vivid and sad the contrast between that and their contact with the cold and godless intellectualism sometimes encountered in preachers to-day! His life was a daily sermon which said of his God in the beautiful words of John Greenleaf Whittier:

I know not where his islands lift
Their fronded palms in air;
I only know I cannot drift
Beyond his love and care.

2. His reverence for the word of God. Next to his faith in God, I place his marked reverence for the word of God. With him, it was an infallible document never to be questioned. He did not decry against the proper historic criticism of the Bible as of any other historic document, but he had no patience with much of the spirit of modern criticism which dares to sit in judgment on the word of the Infinite. He properly conceded that questions of the genuineness, integrity, and authenticity of Biblical documents had their proper place in critical research; but with him it was a settled fact that the Bible is the word of God, and from it there was to be no appeal. God be praised for his example in this stalwart adherence to the divine word.

3. His life of habitual prayer. At this point, it almost seems that we enter on hallowed ground. This trait in his character—this habit of constant prayer—was childlike and beautiful. No more naturally and spontaneously does a child go to a parent for what it wants than he went to the Heavenly Father for what he wanted, and he went with unwavering faith that he would get it if best for him to have it. The apostolic admonition, "Pray without ceasing" (1 Thess. 5: 17), found a ready and happy echo in his life. And when he prayed, he seemed indeed and not merely in theory to be talking to the Heavenly Father, and with the clear and unclouded faith that the Father would hear. This part of his example is of incalculable worth to the present generation.

4. His steady and unflagging industry. Whether as student, teacher, or preacher, indolence was foreign to his life, and he scarcely ever knew what it was to be idle. Brother Harding was educated in Bethany College, Bethany, W. Va., the college founded and presided over by Alexander Campbell; and, although possessed of a collegiate education and had taught for a brief period after his graduation, yet his life was peculiarly that of an evangelist, traveling from place to place and preaching without cessation at one time for seventeen years; and hence, later in life, when he was called upon by the beloved David Lipscomb to join the latter in the active work of teaching in the school at Nashville, he was of course "rusty" in the collegiate course and especially in the languages. It, therefore, required immediate and diligent application in review work that he might be able to meet all the exigencies of the classroom; but, by his indefatigable energy and unflagging industry, be it said to his credit, he was equal to the task. He once made known to me how "hours before daybreak" he would be up and diligently poring over the Greek grammar and vocabularies; and be it further said to his credit, though it had been so long a time since he had studied these things, he succeeded to such a marvelous degree of accuracy in teaching the languages that he soon had students so drilled that they could take this part of the work off his hands, being able themselves to begin and to prosecute the work of teaching.

5. His attainments and power as an evangelist. While Brother Harding did admirable work in the schoolroom both in the way of imparting knowledge and in impressing his pupils with correct ideas of life—a field, indeed, in which he accomplished incalculable good—yet his talents and power to stir and sway men were never seen to such great advantage nor did they shine with such brilliancy as when he stood before an audience proclaiming to it the gospel of Jesus Christ. He was preëminently a preacher of the gospel. No matter what else he could do, and do well, here was his forte, and his great work of seventeen consecutive and tireless years in the evangelistic field takes rank, on the score of apostolic evangelism, with that of Benjamin Franklin and Walter Scott. His active life as a preacher came in the second and third generations following the reformers of the nineteenth century, and he possessed many of the noble qualities which made them famous. From Lake Winnipeg in far-away Manitoba on the northwest to the Gulf of Mexico on the south, and in numerous States of the Union, was his vast field of labor, and thousands became obedient to the faith under his preaching. In 1897 he held a successful tent meeting for the Campbell Street Church, Louisville, Ky., which resulted in establishing a church in the Highlands. He was then already teaching in the Nashville Bible School, but did this work for us during the vacation. His inexhaustible energy, coupled with his fiery earnestness and enthusiasm in proclaiming the word, stirred and moved the hearts of men. Throughout his long evangelistic career, I suppose he could have truthfully said, with Richard Baxter, at the close of every sermon:

I preached as never sure to preach again,
And as a dying man to dying men.

Moreover, as a preacher of the gospel, he had the happy faculty—an essential thing in every successful preacher's life—of adapting himself to all circumstances. With the rich and the poor alike he was equally at home, and with the same sweet fellowship he gratefully shared in the things of both. But perhaps the most signal and telling element of success in his life as a preacher was his strong and ever-abiding conviction that God called him to the task—not by some mysterious sound or fancied apparition, but by the endowments with which God had blessed him and by the door of opportunity which he saw wide open for the work. Whittier's words, written of Charles Sumner concerning his powerful advocacy of another cause, apply directly to Brother Harding as a preacher:

No trumpet sounded in his ear,
He saw not Sinai's cloud and flame;
But never yet to Hebrew seer
A clearer voice of duty came.

6. His character as husband and father. In the domestic realm of modern life, the language of Lord Lyttleton, "The lover in the husband may be lost," is too often exemplified, but not so in the case of Brother Harding. I never spent a great deal of time in his home, but quite enough to know that with him "the lover" was not lost "in the husband." The two were combined in one, and wife and children were devoted to him. He was always a busy man, and during much of his active life he was greatly overworked, and it is quite probable that, had mind and body been less severely taxed, his active career would have been greatly extended. But the affliction that finally befell him kept him at home the closing years of his life, where, embosomed in the affection of a devoted wife and children, he was nursed and administered to with all the tenderness called for by a child. No doubt the memory of these ministrations will linger with them as the fragrance of flowers.

His body sleeps near those of his beloved children at Bowling Green, Ky. Thus he has himself entered upon that blessed abode to which he so long and so eloquently pointed others. A sainted father and mother with many other dear ones were awaiting him where the impressive words of Thomas Hood are exemplified:

Peace and rest at length have come,
All the day's long toil is past,
And each heart is whispering, "Home, Home at last!"

Marrying Relatives.

BY J. C. M'Q.

This subject is worthy of our most serious thought, as it has much to do with our weal or woe and our joy or sorrow. Anything that tends to destroy the sacredness and decency of marriage is vicious and should be discouraged. Marriage is ordained of God, is his oldest institution, and is designed for the elevation of society and the purity of the race. "And the man said, This is now bone of my bones, and flesh of my flesh: she shall be called Woman, because she was taken out of Man. Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife: and they shall be one flesh." (Gen. 2: 23, 24.) One woman was made for one man; and it is also clear that a son should not marry his mother or a daughter of her father, for it was decreed: "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife."

The destruction of the marriage relation means the destruction of the family, the church, and the state. Ignore the holiness of marriage, and soon will you destroy society. The husband who does not respect his duties and obligations as a husband is dangerous to the well-being and happiness of society. If society is to flourish, the state to stand, and the church to prosper and grow, a husband is to love his wife as Christ loved the church and gave himself for it, and the wife must reverence her husband.

The only law that God has given on the subject of marriages between relatives forbids such marriages. "None of you shall approach to any that are near of kin to him, to uncover their nakedness: I am Jehovah." (Lev. 18: 6.) Moses then proceeds to prohibit the uncovering of the nakedness of a father, a mother, a father's wife, a sister, a son's daughter, a daughter's daughter, a father's wife's daughter, etc. "Thou shalt not uncover the nakedness of thy father's brother, thou shalt not approach to his wife: she is thine aunt." (Verse 14.) So the marriage of a niece to an uncle or the marriage of an uncle to his niece or his own sister's daughter is forbidden by Jehovah. Without going further into detail, it is sufficient for the purposes of this article to say that Jehovah by Moses forbade the marriage of any "near of kin." After going at length into details, Moses says in the name of Jehovah: "Therefore shall ye keep my charge, that ye practice not any of these abominable customs, which were practiced before you, and that ye defile not yourselves therein: I am Jehovah your God." (Verse 30.) The practice of marrying close relatives was an abominable custom, even though it was "practiced before you"—before Moses gave the law. Thus it appears that the practice of marrying "near of kin" was an abominable custom whenever practiced. It is clear that God has permitted or tolerated some abominable customs which he did not approve.

But it may be said that there is no such command in the New Testament. This is true. There is no command in the New Testament in so many words forbidding a man to marry his mother or his sister. Is it therefore right and decent for a man to marry his mother or his sister? Such a thought is shocking! The marriage of "near of kin" is forbidden by the law given in the beginning: "Therefore shall a man leave his father and his mother, and shall cleave unto his wife." This law has never been repealed. Moses restated, amplified, and emphasized this law to the Jews. The marriage of "near of kin" was abominable when practiced before the time of the Jews and when practiced by them, and why is it not abominable now?

Such marriages now are forbidden by common decency. The man who to-day would marry a sister or niece would arouse the abhorrence and indignation of all right-thinking people against him. Such conduct would be vicious and dishonorable. But Paul describes the conduct of Christians when he says: "For we take thought for things honorable, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men." (2 Cor. 8: 22.) The Christian avoids violating the proprieties of life. He takes thought for that which is honorable and that which will lead to the approval of Jehovah and lead to a good report from men.

The law in most States forbids the marriage of near relatives. I am informed that a number of such marriages have been annulled in several States. Christians are required to be in obedience to the civil authorities, when such obedience is not in conflict with the law of God. "Let every soul be in subjection to the higher powers: for there is no power but of God; and the powers that be are ordained of God. Therefore he that resisteth the power, withstandeth the ordinance of God: and they that withstand shall receive to themselves judgment. For rulers are not a terror to the good work, but to the evil. And wouldest thou have no fear of the power? do that which is good, and thou shalt have praise from the same: for he is a minister of God to thee for good. But if thou do that which is evil, be afraid; for he beareth not the sword in vain: for he is a minister of God, an avenger for wrath to him that doeth evil." (Rom, 13: 1-4.)

With as many people as there are in the world, those who marry near relatives do so without reason or excuse. Evidently such marriages do not please God, for he stamps his disapproval upon them by afflicting the offspring that issues from such unions. How often are the children of near relatives blind, feeble-minded, or maimed! It appears to me that those who marry "near of kin" have neither any respect for God's law nor the welfare of their children. With the experience of those who have transgressed in such unions, it does seem that the man who now marries a close relative has no desire to honor God nor any concern for the children that may be born from the union.

"Some Strange Sayings."

BY F. W. SMITH.

Under the above subject, C. E. Elmore, in the Christian Standard of June 17, treats the readers of the Standard to the following:

The forty-seventh annual convention of disciples of Christ in Virginia was held in Richmond, May 15-18. On the second day of the convention the usual meeting of the Ministerial Association was held. At this session some strange and startling statements were made—statements that bring to our minds certain questions which should have prompt and satisfactory answers.

The president of the Virginia Christian Missionary Society submitted in this meeting certain "recommendations" of the State Board, to be presented to the convention later for adoption. These recommendations were brought before the ministerial meeting presumably that any objections might be considered here rather than on the floor of the convention. As is often the case, some of these recommendations were good and some were otherwise. It was during the discussion of one of these recommendations, No. 7, that the statements to which I refer were made. The recommendation follows:

Seventh. In order to place a definite objective before the churches, we recommend that the following standard of efficiency be adopted:

POINTS		Per Cent
1. Regular preaching.....	10	10
2. Weekly observance of the Lord's Supper.....	10	10
3. Church organized with regularly elected elders and deacons, and holding regular meetings of board of officers	10	10
If organized, but not holding regular meetings.....	5
4. Bible school (graded, full time).....	15	15
If graded, part time.....	10
If not graded.....	5
5. Missionary offerings to U. C. M. S., Lynchburg College, V. C. M. S., Association for Promotion of Christian Unity, Board of Temperance and Social Welfare.....	20	20
If any three of above.....	15
If any two of above.....	10
If any one of above.....	5
6. Missionary instruction, Missionary Society, Mission-study Class or regular missionary lessons in Bible school.....	5
7. Every-member canvass.....	10
8. Evangelistic meeting or organized evangelistic effort.....	5
9. Definite appeal made at least once a year to young people for life enlistment and preparation for Christian service in a Christian college.....	5
10. A church paper in at least 25 per cent of the homes of the congregation.....	10
Total.....	100

When, after the reading of this recommendation, the writer asked, "If a congregation contributes to Foreign Missions, Home Missions, State Missions, education, promotion of Christian unity, temperance and welfare, but not through the agencies mentioned in the above recommendation, will that congregation be given credit for these points of efficiency?" Mr. Hundley, of the Lynchburg College, said (in substance): "Any church in the Chesapeake area that does not contribute to the support of Lynchburg College has no right to expect to be classed among the loyal churches of the brotherhood and it cannot be recognized as an efficient church." This naturally raises the question: When, and by whose authority, support of the Lynchburg College, or any other human institution, was made a test of loyalty and a mark of efficiency? By whose authority has support of the United Society, Peter Ainslie's association for the promotion of denominationalism and certain colleges, been laid down as the one and only way by which churches may keep themselves in the good graces of the powers? When did failure to support these man-made organizations become the cause for black listing churches and preachers? There are hundreds of churches in the brotherhood that cannot lend their support to the organized work as it is now being conducted, churches that are giving as liberally to the cause of education and the spread of the gospel as they could give if they were sending their offerings to "headquarters," and yet they are classed as "anti," "soreheads," "disturbers of our Zion," etc., etc.

The discussion of this recommendation brought forth also a statement from J. O. Helsabeck, of the Third Church, this city, to the effect that "the time has come when the few churches and brethren not supporting our united work (meaning the agencies mentioned above) should pull off to themselves and have their own little work and stop hindering the progress of the kingdom of God." This was a sad and strange saying. It also brings up questions. Are we to understand that the brethren who are affiliating with the "organized work" think they alone represent the kingdom of God? Are those of us who are sacrificing as heroically and giving as liberally, but carrying on through other agencies, placed without the kingdom? When, and by whose authority, did these societies become the kingdom of God? If it comes to the point of division among us, who is to bear the blame for it? Who is causing the unrest among us? If one cannot go off with Peter Ainslie into the wilderness of doubt and denominationalism, is that one responsible for the separation? If churches cannot send their money to foster the denominational work of the United Society in foreign lands; if they cannot support the Board of Education, linked up with certain colleges whose theological smell is like unto that of a fertilizer factory, are they to assume responsibility for the separation? It may be that divisions must come, but the responsibility for them cannot be placed upon those on whom our "leaders" seek to load it. It would seem that our "officials" had been sufficiently amused with their experience in the late gigantic fizzle, the Interchurch World Movement, but evidently their appetite for authority has not been satisfied.

Our brother could have as truthfully said "some strange doings," as well as "strange sayings," for it was the process of doing strange things to the New Testament that paved the way and emboldened "our leaders" to say the strange things of which Brother Elmore complains. If Brother Elmore and those who occupy the distressed attitude that he does had been all these years following the New Testament instead of what he terms "our leaders," we would have no such doleful complaints as the Standard is constantly serving up to its readers. Can one ever be cured of a dog's bite while he continually lets the dog bite him? Why not kill the dog or else keep away from it? Brother Elmore and those who are with him in tears and grief over the "sayings" and "doings" of "our leaders" are comparable to one who fears an infectious disease and is constantly inoculating himself with the dangerous germs of the malady. I am giving Brother Elmore's wail to our readers as a danger signal, especially to those who are longing for the "fleshpots of Egypt."

It is the life desire of every Mohammedan to journey to the holy city of Mecca, and in preparation for this pilgrimage he spends many years making his own praying carpet. This carpet he eventually leaves behind in Mecca, which now contains millions of carpets left by pilgrims.—Selected.

Excessive Postal Rates.

Oppressive taxation on the nation's press is in itself an indirect form of censorship and a step backward toward the Dark Ages. The publishers of newspapers and magazines have appealed to Congress for fair play in order that the needs of the reading public may be met. A bill known as House Resolution 11965, introduced by Congressman M. Clyde Kelly, of Pennsylvania, is now pending in the Post Offices and Post Roads Committee of the House of Representatives. It provides for the reduction of the war taxes levied in the present high postal rates. The press of the country protests against the severity of the imposition which tends to jeopardize its freedom of expression.

Public integrity, political and social freedom depend upon the intelligence and character of our citizens. The majority of American citizens are dependent upon the press for intellectual inspiration. An enlightened press will make illiteracy, isolation, and superstition give way to progress and prosperity and thus strengthen the moral and social fiber of a people. To fulfill this mission, it is necessary that the channels of communication—the transportation of the mails—be kept open at reasonable rates for the newspapers and magazines.

Continuation of war-time taxes on the press of the country is a matter which concerns every citizen. At the time the tax was imposed it was generally conceded that increases in the postal rates on second-class matter were wholly without justification in economics or political equity. The increased rates were imposed simply as a war emergency measure, and such a tax cannot be defended three years after the cessation of hostilities. The mode of assessment clearly violates all equities of contribution. The war tax on second-class mail subject to zone rates was made in the form of four successive annual increases that constitute an increase from one hundred per cent for the initial zone to nine hundred per cent on the last zone, and this war tax has in no way been lessened. Of the taxes levied to defray the war expenses, experience proved certain impositions to be so unduly burdensome or unworkable that they were most aptly referred to as "nuisance taxes" whose repeal at the earliest possible moment was urgently demanded.

The contention that it is a tax that can be shifted to an advertiser is obviously unsound. It cannot be passed on to the advertiser for the very reason that it is levied on only a part of the advertising in newspapers and periodicals, and for the further reason that the advertising rate is determined, not according to the cost of delivering the publication to subscribers, but according to the number of subscribers and their potential buying power. This advertising rate is ever governed by competition with rates for advertising in nonmailed and therefore untaxed newspapers and periodicals, and the other untaxed means of advertising, such as billboards and posters, as well as the cost of alternative methods of promoting sales and publicity by additional sales agents, discounts to trade, prizes, window displays, sampling, etc. The conclusion that this tax in the form of an excess charge for the advertising portion of newspapers and periodicals distributed through the mails can be passed on to the advertiser whose announcements are thus carried is untenable. Based on value, or ability to pay, reflected in revenue, the tax would have to be gauged, not on weight or on distance, but on high or low advertising rate, and change constantly with changes in those rates.

It may be accepted as established by the practice of the post office in other countries as well as in the United States that efficient postal service adequate to the needs of the government in its own operations, and available to all who may care to share its benefits, is the first consideration. It also follows that, subject to the condition that sufficient means to carry on are requisite, postal revenue is a secondary object to be kept in view, the greatest net revenue being usually obtained through the most extensive patronage producing the largest possible volume of business, and that it is aggregate revenue that counts most rather than revenue from any particular item of service or from service rendered to a particular class of patrons.

The fact must not be overlooked that the revenue accruing to the Post Office from its operations need not be direct or paid in postage or in money to be measurable, and that the indirect returns are specially noteworthy in connection with the distribution of second-class mail matter.

There is an interrelation of postal traffic whereby one class of business leads to, or "produces," additional business. Second-class matter carried at low rate, being publications issued at stated intervals going to regular readers of newspapers and periodicals, "produces" large quantities of letter mail paying the highest rate of postage.

The report of the Penrose-Overstreet Commission (a congressional organization) refers to the fact that "second-class matter is itself the cause of a great volume of first-class matter upon which the department reaps a handsome profit."

It has been aptly said that while the freedom of the press remains "we cannot be enslaved; when it is impaired or diminished, we shall soon cease to be free." Let us then guard the liberty of the press as we do the freedom of speech and the rights of juries, for it is one of the main props of the Constitution.

Encouraging Results.

BY J. C. McQ.

I am gratified to be able to give to our workers and readers an encouraging report of B. D. Morehead and the young men who are working with him in Southwestern Kentucky. We are giving these young men as liberal a per cent as possible, who are working in order to secure funds to pay their way in David Lipscomb College during the next scholastic year. The first report from Brother Morehead states that they had sold about three hundred dollars' worth of Bibles and books, besides sending to us a large number of new subscribers to the Gospel Advocate. When it is known that these young brethren are doing this work to secure funds to pay their way through college, surely the brethren everywhere will cheerfully give them Christian support and encouragement. They expect to return to school in September. In circulating the Gospel Advocate, Bibles, and religious books, they are doing a good work. It is a great mistake to fail to extend a helping hand to so deserving workers.

The brethren are becoming more and more interested in the stock company. The stock has all been transferred from the McQuiddy Printing Company to the "Gospel Advocate Company," most of the stock in the company being held by a few individuals. This stock is for sale to those who wish to take stock in the new company and who believe that a distribution of the stock among the brotherhood will serve the cause of Christ. Those who have subscribed for stock and prefer not to pay at present will have all the time in which to pay they desire. Of course, no stock will be issued to them until payment is made. About the first of July I shall prepare a statement of what is sold. I have confidence in the stock, and would not offer it for sale if I were assured that I could be active in its management for twenty years yet to come.

I have just received a brotherly letter which I give to our readers:

Florence, Ala., June 20, 1922.—J. C. McQuiddy, Nashville, Tenn.—My Dear Brother McQuiddy: I have received your favor of the 16th inst., and have read with much interest your statement of facts and conditions relative to the present and future of the McQuiddy Printing Company, which, by your business acumen, assiduous and arduous labors, untiring energies, strict and honest adherence to truth and right and equity, has attained to a size and efficiency commensurate with, and in every respect worthy of, the value and importance of the cause for which it was established.

My eyes fill with tears at the thought of your retirement of which you speak. But from our nerveless grasp must, sooner or later, fall the "working tools" of the master workmen on the spiritual temple, the church of the living God. Yes, I had noticed your published statements with regard to the disposition of the business, and have had it in mind to write you about becoming a stockholder in the new company. I appreciate to the fullest extent your invitation to become a stockholder in the present organization. Now, I am not prepared to say, just at this time, how much of the stock I shall be able to take, but will take as many shares as I can purchase consistent with my obligations and duties in other matters. I am pleased to learn that your health has improved, and sincerely trust and earnestly pray that you may live many more years with the strength of mind that has characterized your life in years gone by. Assuring you of my Christian sympathy and of my hearty coöperation in the work, I am, with highest regards,

Your brother in Christ,

C. E. HOET.

The interest in our Bible Lesson Helps is increasing and many new orders are being received. The demand for supplies the last quarter was by far the largest we have had, and the next quarter promises another increase.

We greatly appreciate the coöperation of all, and shall endeavor to improve all our publications with the passing years.

Dr. Cleo C. Boles.

BY E. A. ELAM.

This worthy, good man was the son of H. Leo and Cynthia Boles. His mother died when he was a babe. Some years afterwards in the providence of God he was given another mother, who became to him all that a Christian mother could be to a child, manifesting no difference between him and his half brother. Being associated with Brother and Sister Boles and these two children in the Nashville Bible School and, later, in their home, it was impressive to note the mutual loving care bestowed upon these sons, the earnest desire for them to become useful Christian men, and after Cleo's marriage to see the tender devotion which existed and still exists between parents and their loving daughter-in-law. It has always been a pleasure to visit in this happy Christian home.

Cleo was born on July 14, 1895, and died of tuberculosis on May 22, 1922, aged twenty-six years, ten months, and eight days.

At twelve years of age he entered the Nashville Bible school, now David Lipscomb College, graduating on May 18, 1916. In the fall of the same year he entered the Dental College of Vanderbilt University, and graduated there in that profession in 1919. He was chosen at once to be teacher and demonstrator in the dental department of this university, which position he held until his death. When he found about a year ago that on account of failing health he must retire from his work, the authorities of the University, hoping for his recovery, assured him that his position would be in reservation for him so soon as he should return. He was held in high esteem by his associate professors and was loved by all the students. At his funeral services, Prof. P. M. Davis, of the same department of the University, spoke very tenderly and most complimentary of him as a teacher and an upright Christian man. Thus Professor Davis hung upon the walls of memory of loved ones a most pleasing and encouraging picture. Besides his work as teacher, Cleo kept office hours in the city, and did his work with proficiency. He was already a useful man thus early in life and was growing more so day by day.

Cleo was married on November 29, 1918, to Miss Lemma Peery, of Hohenwald, Tenn., an admirable Christian young lady, who was to him a most worthy, devoted, and beloved wife.

Sad indeed it was to see a loving father and mother and brother give up the son and brother; but sadder still to behold the grief-stricken and weeping young wife torn away from the strong arm upon which she had so securely leaned and the brave man to whom every tendril of her warm heart had so tightly clung.

Still more important than all, Cleo became a Christian just before he had reached the fourteenth milestone in his life's short journey. In his faith and trust in Christ and in his penitence he was baptized by the writer, and by the same person his funeral services were conducted. It was a very great pleasure and an abiding comfort to be able to say that we bury his body away not without hope, but in the joy and peace of the gospel of Christ, because by patient continuance in well-doing he had sought for glory and honor and immortality. He was faithful in his life duties as a husband and son, brother and neighbor, and dutiful in the worship of God, remembering Christ in the observance of the Lord's Supper even when confined in his sickness to his room. Having thus remembered his Master, how effectual must have been his prayer in sickness and death: "Dear Lord, remember me!"

How full of consolation and victory are the exceeding precious and great promises of God! How glorious to be a child of the Heavenly King! How grandly triumphant to look death in the face and ask where is his sting and victory, and then to rejoice in the fact that God has given the victory to his children! No one would think or say that Cleo made no mistakes, for we all make mistakes; but he grew in grace and the knowledge of our Lord and Savior and worshiped the Father in Spirit and truth.

His life was brief, but—

"We live in deeds, not years; in thoughts, not breaths;
In feelings, not in figures on a dial.
We should count time by heart throbs. He most lives
Who thinks most, feels the noblest, acts the best;
And he whose heart beats quickest lives the longest,
Lives in one hour more than in years do some
Whose fat blood sleeps as it slips along their veins.
Life is but a means unto an end; that end,
Beginning, mean, and end to all things—God.
The dead have all the glory of the world."

While Cleo, our friend and brother, sleeps in Jesus in undisturbed rest, we are glad to write these lines of comfort and consolation for the bereaved, to weep with them in their great loss, and to rejoice with them in the bright and precious hope of the resurrection and eternal life.

I should be glad were these lines equal to his tender and young life, his worthy and useful life; but words are too feeble to fully express sympathy or to describe the Christian's hope.

A Tribute.

BY A FRIEND.

In a village, on a hillside in Maury County, Tenn., within a short distance of where he was born, was reared, and lived almost his entire life, rests all that is mortal of Brother John M. Roundtree, one of Tennessee's truest, most honorable, and godliest men. The years may erode the granite, but cannot efface his memory from our hearts. So long as men revere the finer things of life will his memory and his ideals come in for their share. He lived as he died, carrying aloft the banner of Christ. "Though he were dead, yet shall he live," is the promise to which we cling when all earthly things are slipping from our grasp. Surely, this man who patterned his life after Jesus is living peacefully in the spirit world. May those who held him dearest find comfort in knowing that all is well.

When we look into the long avenue of the future and see the good there is for each one of us to do, we realize, after all, what a beautiful thing it is to work and to live and to be happy.—Stevenson.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

Professional Clergymen.

BY C. R. N.

That there are professional clergymen needs not to be affirmed and cannot be successfully denied. A proposition which is demonstrated is not debatable.

By "professional clergyman" I mean a man who is put to the necessity of earning a living; and of the avenues through which he can get sufficient money to meet the expense incident to living, he prefers that of the ministry—not that he loves the work of the ministry, but that he dislikes it less than any other work in which he can engage. He serves for the "loaves and fishes." He must eat, he wants to appear in the class of respectable folk, but desires to conserve all energies possible.

Professional clergymen are easily enticed to other fields of labor, provided you can convince them that they can attain a state of affluence with the expenditure of a small amount of energy. If, when such a one has ceased to be a minister and has made a try in some other line of work, he fails financially, he will soon "enter the ministry" again. Such men are professional ministers.

The professional clergyman is seldom found in the virgin field doing missionary work at his own charge; he seeks the fields where remuneration for his work is to be had. He would confine his efforts with the strong churches—assuredly.

I do not intend to convey the idea that a preacher of the gospel may not engage in any honorable labor. Paul labored, working with his hands. The consecrated men who labor with their hands, or hands and heads, are among God's noblemen. I know many of them; but I lament the fact that it is necessary for any consecrated preacher of the gospel to be put to the necessity of such labor. I know from experience that my most effective work in preaching is when I am not having to worry about financial obligations which I must discharge. I think I am no exception. I know some of our most effective preachers who are, by reason of financial conditions, laboring each day with their hands that they may meet the obligations falling on them, financially; who seek places to preach the gospel, going into places where there are no congregations of Christians, and doing their best to plant the cause of Christ. Recently a young preacher who teaches school, by which he makes his living, wrote me: "I will have my vacation from the school-room for protracted meetings. Do you know of a place where we do not have a congregation that I may go and hold a meeting?"

There are some preachers who earn their living by working at some of the trades, keeping books, clerking, teaching school through the week, and on Sunday run out to some congregation in easy reach of them and preach, accepting what the congregation may pay them for their services that day. Such men often do the congregation an incalculable injury. Such men, when they seek strong congregations with which to labor, are professional clergymen for one day of the week. They make their living by secular work. They are not put to the necessity of preaching where they must be paid for their labor, and thus they can and will preach for a congregation, accepting remuneration which would not be adequate to support a man who is devoting all his time to the work, even though the congregation may be able to pay such a man. In this way they indulge the congregation in stinginess. Such injures the congregation. If there is a death in the congregation and he is called for the funeral service, he replies: "I cannot leave my job. Get Brother —; he is at home, and devotes all his time to the work of preaching."

Brother A makes his living by working in the store. Brother B works in the same store with Brother A, but Brother B is not a preacher. On Sunday morning Brother A goes out to some congregation and preaches, and is paid for the same; Brother B attends his home congregation and contributes of his means to the support of the work. No, no, I am not opposed to Brother A's preaching; indeed, I think he should preach; but should he not seek some place to preach where they are not able to pay him, seeing that he, as does Brother B, makes his living by working in the store? Look about you, my brethren, and see who are the men who do the missionary work at their own charges these days.

Deliver us from the professional clergyman, whether he preaches one day in the week or seven days.

As a whole, I believe my preaching brethren are the most self-sacrificing body of men in all the world; but let it not be overlooked that there are some men who do not preach who sacrifice. I know a brother whose love for the work of the church is so great that he has placed a mortgage on his only house that he might save the church property. Is there any reason why he should be more self-sacrificing than the preachers?

I know preachers who give all their time to preaching and to the work of the Master, and give one-tenth of their income to the work, not measuring their income by time, but by money; they give one-tenth of all they receive in money to the work, and, in addition thereto, do missionary work. It is wonderful to be a gospel preacher, and I am thankful that I can be one of the number. I make mistakes, and am grateful when brethren point out to me my mistakes or failures in any line.

I know men who are preaching the gospel and who receive far less in money for such work than they are offered in other lines of work; but the man who preaches because he can make more money in that work than he can in any other work is clearly a professional clergyman.

But there are professional clergymen from another angle. The man who has an inordinate desire to be in the lime-light, to be recognized as a great man on the platform, and seeks to reach that place through the work of preaching, and who preaches solely as a means to that end, is as truly a professional clergyman as he who preaches solely for the money he receives. He who seeks to please the people at the sacrifice of truth, or by the suppression of the truth, or by studiously avoiding the presentation of the truth on any subject by which his audience will regard him with less favor is a professional clergyman.

Occasionally I am with my home congregation—there for the reason that I want to be home on that occasion. If it is the wish of the congregation that I preach, it is a pleasure for me to do so, and I never think of expecting them to pay me one cent for the contribution of my work to the advancement of the congregation. I do not preach for the money I am paid.

✻ ✻ ✻

Tribute to the Memory of James A. Harding.

BY JOHN E. DUNN.

During the last quarter of the nineteenth century no man among the disciples of Christ was more widely known, more universally loved, and more successful as a preacher of the primitive gospel than was Brother James A. Harding.

I first met Brother Harding when he was preaching at Winchester, Tenn., in the spring of 1892. I was introduced to him as a young preacher of the gospel. He greeted me with a warm handshake, a broad smile, and encouraging words that drew me close to him, and for thirty years I have been very intimate with him and have loved him as a father. Brother Harding never had a particle of envy and jealousy in him. Unconscious of his magnificent personality, his ripe scholarship, and his great ability as a public speaker, he was always ready with all of his resources to help forward young men and women. He gave me more encouragement in my struggling days than any other man.

I was a student of the Nashville Bible School from 1893 to 1896. Brother Harding was the president. He was my teacher of Greek and the Bible for three years. I saw hundreds of young men and young women come in and go out under his teaching and training, but I have never known one that did not love him. To know Brother Harding was to love him. The reason for this is that he was always cheerful and always helpful.

In the schoolroom his favorite subjects were the New Testament and the Greek. He loved the New Testament because it was the gospel of Christ, and he loved the Greek because it was the original language of the New Testament. He knew the English and Greek New Testaments as well as most men know the alphabet. Brother Harding did a work for the uplift of humanity, for the spread of the gospel of Christ and the salvation of souls, that will live as long as this world exists and go on into eternity. He was a remarkable man, a man with a charming personality, winning manners, ripe scholarship, a great soul; he was brave as a lion, meek as a lamb, gentle as a woman; he was a fine orator, a fluent speaker, and a ready writer, and withal a wonderful man. The fine thing about it all is that all of his rich gifts were consecrated to the service of God and the uplift of humanity.

If I may seem fulsome in my praise of him, just remember that it was he who fired my soul to its highest pitch and inspired my being to consecrate all of my powers to the one aim and end that was the ambition of his life. Brother Harding to some extent put into every one of his boys and girls the same unselfish spirit that inspired him, and the world has no better men and women than Brother Harding's boys and girls. He has left his family the rich heritage of a good name, which is rather to be chosen than great riches. The world was made richer by his having lived in it, and we doubt not that his spirit is at home with God.

I loved him as a father, and from the day when I first met him till now I have been happy to count him my friend and brother.

✱ ✱ ✱

James A. Harding As I Knew Him.

BY J. G. ALLEN.

I want to say a few things about Brother Harding that I could not say about many others. I knew him more intimately than any preacher among us. My acquaintance with him extended over a period of almost thirty years. When Green Street Church, in Nashville, Tenn., was first organized, Brother Harding, Brother J. H. Mead (now of Abilene, Texas), and I were chosen elders. Brother Harding was ever ready to promote the welfare of the congregation in any scriptural way. He contributed each week to the work. If he was away on Sunday, he would send his check regularly. He had a system of giving a certain per cent of his income, and the smallest check I remember his ever giving was two dollars and fifty cents—from that to as high as twenty dollars per week. He told me once that he had raised his per cent three different times. But not only about money matters, but on every other line of Christian duty he was just as responsive.

From the time he baptized me until the last time I saw him, I always felt free to ask him any question without the least fear of angering him. On one occasion I stated to him that I had some business I wanted to talk over with him, and his answer was: "Well, I consider you a privileged character; just proceed."

He was the most consistent man I ever heard preach. He literally practiced what he preached. It is an easy matter to preach the truth, but not so easy to practice it at times; but it seemed so easy for him that I have felt ashamed of myself many times in his presence at my own inconsistencies.

I never heard him use a word in private but what could be used in the most refined society.

Some brethren did not understand his belief in special providence. His belief was simply this: that when man goes to the limit of his ability, God will help him in ways unthought of by man. Now, what is there about that belief that is in conflict with the word of God? Sure, God helps those only who try to help themselves.

I know of no man among us that I could point his children to as a better example of Christian fortitude and fidelity to God than their own Father; and may God bless them all, also dear Sister Harding, in my humble prayer in Jesus' name.

I feel that I can truly say with many others that my association with Brother Harding has made a better man of me than I would have been if I had been deprived of his help.

✱ ✱ ✱

Personal Notes.

W. F. Lemmons is in a meeting at Blox, Texas.

D. F. Draper is in a good meeting at Wood Chapel, near Victoria, Texas.

W. L. Johnson reports four additions to the congregation in Burkburnett, Texas.

R. R. Brooks is in Texas, where he will be engaged in evangelistic work for about two months.

John E. Dunn, with Oscar Smith as his yokefellow, recently closed a good meeting at Houston Heights, Houston, Texas. Brethren Lawson and Starnes are good boosters, he says.

J. V. Armstrong Traylor closed a meeting at Shoat Springs, Hugo, Okla., on the night of June 16. The meeting continued thirteen days, with fine audiences and four baptisms. He began the following week at Hamden, Okla. He has engaged one more meeting before returning to Tennessee.

For the information of those who intend to go to Thorp Spring, Texas, for the encampment, July 29 to August 13, we will say that there will be gospel preaching, together with special addresses on topics of interest to Christians. There will be from two to four services each day, with free camping ground, dining room for those who wish to take meals, and board, if desired, at one dollar and twenty-five cents a day.

C. R. Nichol has just closed an interesting meeting in Bishop, Texas. This congregation owes its existence to the faithful and persistent work of that saint of the Lord, C. W. Sewell, whose life has been, and continues to be, a benediction to all who know him. The monuments he has builded in the souls of men will continue to be seen after his earthly activity has ceased. Brother Nichol is now in a meeting in Cooleedge, Texas, and will begin in Morilton, Ark., on July 23.

W. P. Skaggs, who labors with the church in Itasca, Texas, reports the work progressing nicely, with more in the Bible classes on Sunday than the total enrollment of the membership of the church. One baptism and one restored last week. Brother Skaggs will begin a meeting at Rogers, Texas, on the first Sunday in July. The summer he will spend in protracted meetings. He will be available for some church for the year beginning in September for all his time. Write him.

From E. S. Fitzgerald, Arlington, Texas, June 19: "The Arlington meeting is moving along nicely, with large crowds and good interest. It will continue another week, and I feel sure some will obey the gospel before it closes. I will begin on June 25 at Johnson's Station, near Arlington. This is a mission meeting, and I hope the brethren within reach will attend some. I will hold meetings at the following places: Trent, Parker, Nolanville, Nocano, Highland, and Birdville. Any congregation wishing my services in a meeting this fall may address me at Weatherford, Texas."

Women Need More and Better Blood

To be strong, well, equal to demands of home, society, office or shop.

It is a fact proven by thousands of grateful letters that Hood's Sarsaparilla is remarkably beneficial to young or older women.

The most common ailments of women drain and weaken the system and sometimes result in anemia, nervous weakness, general break-down.

Hood's Sarsaparilla gives the blood more vitality and better color, makes stronger nerves, and contributes to the length and enjoyment of life.

For Nervousness Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Half a teaspoonful in half a tumbler of water relieves nervous tension, brings peaceful rest. Refreshes and restores vitality to tired folks. All druggists.

CHARACTER

OR

THE MAKING OF THE MAN

SUPREMACY ELOQUENT

DELIGHTFULLY INSTRUCTIVE

By E. W. CARMACK

AGENTS WANTED

SHOULD BE READ
BY EVERYBODY

The verdict of the thousands who have read the book is: "No lecture extant is more interesting, charming, and philosophical. It is a classic and easily ranks with the best productions of modern authors. A million copies should be sold." Thousands of copies have been sold in a few days. It is beautifully bound in sheep-ooze, or library binding. Write at once to the publishers.

PRICE, $1.50 THE COPY

ADDRESS

McQUIDDY PRINTING CO.

Department

NASHVILLE - - - TENN.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Obituaries

Taylor.

On May 20, 1922, the death angel visited the home of N. M. Taylor and claimed for its victim his beloved wife, Edna Amerine Taylor. Her maiden name was "Gordon." She died with that dread disease, cancer. She leaves to mourn her loss a husband, two boys, and one girl. I would say to them: Weep not as for those that have no hope, for her loss is heaven's gain. In the presence of a large crowd of sorrowing friends, T. D. Willis spoke words of comfort to the bereaved and of warning to the lost. Her remains were laid to rest in the Taylor town cemetery. HER NIECE.

Dozier.

Miss Lela Belle Dozier, only daughter of Mrs. G. W. Dozier, of Ashland City, Tenn., died on June 15, 1922, at Dozier's Infirmary, in Nashville, Tenn., aged thirty-four years. She was a faithful member of the body of Christ for about eighteen years, having obeyed the gospel under the preaching of Dr. Moores. No doubt for her to depart was far better, as the end of her journey marked the end of a long period of affliction, extending over a period of eight years or more, which she bore patiently, thus manifesting the spirit of endurance by faith. She is survived by her mother and three brothers—Jerome, Shirley, and Hubert. Funeral services were conducted by Brother C. D. Crouch and me, after which her body was tenderly laid to rest in the family burying ground, there to await the resurrection.

B. W. DAVIS.

Ashley.

Sister Ada Sparkman Ashley was born on October 2, 1876; married J. H. Ashley on December 18, 1910; and died on May 20, 1922. Thus is told the brief story of a good sister in Christ. Truly, while dead she "yet speaketh." She obeyed the gospel under the preaching of Brother Brown Godwin at Fairfield, Tenn., in July, 1895, and, as far as mortals can tell, she was faithful unto death. She lingered long and suffered much, but through it all she was resigned to the will of Him who doeth all things well. There are many things that perplex us here. Why it is pain and suffering, toil and care, instead of ease and rest, for God's servants, we may know; but the Father knows, and he cares for us. We know then that "all things work together for good to them that love God." So we thank God and take courage. May we all so live as to be robed and ready when the summons comes.

C. M. PULLIAS.

Roberts.

Mrs. Mary Evaline Shelton was born on August 16, 1873. She was married to A. T. Roberts on July 6, 1892, near Dukedom, Tenn. To this union were born four children—two boys and two girls—all of whom are now living. Sister Roberts became a Christian in 1891, and lived an earnest and devoted

JELL-O Ice Cream Powder

ICE CREAM THAT MOTHER
MAKES GOES FAST

UP to very recent times home-made ice cream was not the real thing at all. Now when mother (or the maid or the cook) makes ice cream she uses one package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder and one quart of rich milk for half a gallon of ice cream—and she never fails to have "good luck."

Jell-O Ice Cream Powder is sold by all grocers, two packages for 25 cents.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N. Y.

Check that Cold and Get Rid of that Cough

It is dangerous to let them run. A tonic laxative of direct and positive action upon the mucous membrane is what you need.

PE-RU-NA
For Two Generations

Pe-ru-na has proved the reliable treatment for ridding the system of all catarrhal poisons. It aids digestion, stimulates the liver and bowel action, enriches the blood, tones up the nervous system and soothes the inflamed and congested mucous linings.

Honest and dependable is the verdict of thousands.

Sold Everywhere
Tablets or Liquid

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid
of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

member of the church of Christ until her death, June 1, 1922. She was a true and devoted wife and mother. Every one who knew her honored and respected her. I knew her from her infancy till her death almost as I know my own children. I never knew a better, purer, more upright, more faithful Christian than she was, I think. She knew every one till the last. I am sorry to say that some of her children are not Christians. I earnestly pray that they may soon realize their duty and do it. Funeral services were conducted by the writer, assisted by Brother E. L. Whitaker. Her remains were buried in Elmwood Cemetery. E. C. L. DENTON.

Hopkins.

Cattie Emily Bates came into this world on November 3, 1879. She so-journed in Ashley County, Ark., forty-two years, four months, and twenty-two days. Even then we were grieved to see her go. We were glad to have her here. She was so good and kind to every one that everybody loved her. We should rejoice that she went home. It is better for her. She has a far brighter and more beautiful home than we could give her here. We may see her in that beautiful home some day; in fact, we may share it with her. On January 5, 1902, she became the wife of Brother John Hopkins, also of Ashley County, Ark. Nine children were born to them—five sons and four daughters. Two died in infancy. The younger of the children are not old enough to appreciate the loss of a mother's love and care, but they sorely need it. Sister Hopkins was baptized by the writer during a meeting at Trafalgar, Ark., in August, 1911. She was a true Christian, and died in the triumphs of a living faith. The bereaved husband and motherless children have another tie to bind them to the eternal home. W. T. BREEDLOVE.

The Secret of Success.

"What is the secret of success?"
"Push," said the Button.
"Keep cool," said the Ice.
"Stick to it," said the Glue.
"Take pains," said the Window.
"Be up to date," said the Calendar.
"Make light of everything," said the Fire.
"Forge ahead," said the Blacksmith.
"Never lose your head," said the Barrel.
"Aspire to greater things," said the Nutmeg.
"Do a driving business," said the Hammer.
—Boston Post.

To the Harvest.

BY R. F. M. SOURS.

Will you give your life to Jesus?
Gave he not his for thee?
Will you go and harvest for him?
Let him all life's glory be.
Be his, firm every day:
Let skies be blue or gray,
Go thou to the field of labor,
He will give a happy day.

SAY "BAYER" when you buy Aspirin.

Unless you see name "Bayer" on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over 22 years and proved safe by millions for

- | | | |
|-----------|-----------|------------|
| Colds | Headache | Rheumatism |
| Toothache | Neuralgia | Neuritis |
| Earache | Lumbago | Pain, Pain |

Accept only "Bayer" package which contains proper directions. Handy "Bayer" boxes of 12 tablets—Also bottles of 24 and 100—Druggists. Aspirin is the trade mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

MORGAN SCHOOL PETERSBURG, TENN.

PROF. R. K. MORGAN, Principal

An institution of high ideals, built and equipped and instructors chosen with the first and only consideration of giving the boy mental and physical training, associations with clean, high-minded men, the ideals of character and inspiration to ambition. Write for catalogue.

L. I. MILLS, Secretary, Petersburg, Tenn.

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Founded 1793

Superb location in world-famous climate. Wide area of patronage. Limited number. Boys live a simple, wholesome life, under the care of experienced teachers, and under Christian influences. Plenty of good, nourishing food. All forms of athletics. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officers. 129th year begins September 13. Send for handbook.

Col. R. Bingham, Supt. Emeritus.

Col. S. R. McKee, Supt.

You'll feel better as soon as you swallow the first one. Two or three pills usually stop all the pain.
DR. MILES' ANTI-PAIN PILLS are absolutely free from all narcotics and habit-forming drugs. They relieve without danger and without bad after effects. Your druggist sells them.

MRS. HATFIELD SABINA, OHIO

In Pitiable Condition when she Began Taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Sabina, Ohio.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for weakness and irregularity. I was weak and nervous and could hardly stand on my feet long enough to cook a meal. I was this way for about a year and had tried several medicines and had a physician, but to no avail. My sister was taking your medicine and finally induced me to try it. I now feel fine and can do my housework without any trouble at all. You can use this letter for the sake of others if you wish."—Mrs. WELDON G. HATFIELD, R. R. 3, Sabina, Ohio.

Housewives make a great mistake in allowing themselves to become so weak and nervous that it is well-nigh impossible for them to attend to their necessary household duties.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound should be taken when you first notice such symptoms as nervousness, backache, weakness and irregularity. It will help you and prevent more serious trouble. Give it a fair trial. It surely helped Mrs. Hatfield, just as it has many, many other women.

TETTERINE

Makes hair beautiful, free from dandruff, and keeps the scalp healthy.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

BABIES LOVE
MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator
Pleasant to give—pleasant to take. Guaranteed purely vegetable and absolutely harmless. It quickly overcomes colic, diarrhoea, flatulency and other like disorders. The open published formula appears on every label.
At All Druggists

WINTERSMITH'S
CHILL TONIC

SOLD 50 YEARS
A FINE GENERAL TONIC

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

New York City Notes.

BY E. E. SHOULDERS.

I am still on the job, and the work keeps moving along very nicely. On Wednesday evening of this week (June 14) we began our open-air services on the street. We feel that there is a possibility of some good resulting from this kind of work. Pray for us in this new effort.

The following is a clipping from the Christian Leader of this week: "The largest Masonic temple in the world will be built in Detroit, where fifty thousand Masons chipped in five million dollars. The building will be two hundred and eight feet high and have a frontage of four hundred feet. The drill hall will be one hundred and five feet by one hundred and fifty-two feet." It seems that the foregoing should be a lesson to every Christian throughout the whole country. Think of it! Fifty thousand Masons chipping in five million dollars to build the largest Masonic Temple in the world. Ah, but when it comes to fifty thousand Christians chipping in five million dollars to have the gospel preached and build church houses in the mission fields, we are just not there. On the basis of three thousand dollars per year, out of five million dollars, at least sixteen hundred and sixty-six evangelists could be supported in all the different mission fields in the United States.

Brethren, why not wake up to this appalling situation, quit our quibbling about frivolous things, and get busy about our Father's business? Send a better support to the New York work, and at the same time load up some of those preachers down in Tennessee and Texas and send them to this field. I can scarcely make a scratch on the field in proportion to the work that is needing to be done. But I do not want any church or individual to ask a preacher to come to this field without some assurance of his support. This is too often done, and, speaking from both observation and experience, as a rule, no good results come from such.

Now the important point. The regular report of the treasurer at our last business meeting on Friday night, June 9, shows that the funds for this work are just about exhausted. So far only sixty dollars has been pledged from outside sources to the support of the New York work. The church here contributes on an average of about sixty dollars per month, which is considered very liberal for this congregation. The above is all we have any promise of, and is adequate for only about one-half of the necessary expenses of this work. If a better support is not raised, the church here will no longer be able to retain an evangelist in the field. Brethren, are you willing to see the work fail which seems to be so well begun? May God's blessings attend you in rallying to this call. Send all contributions to George M. McKee, Box 15, Station N, New York, N. Y.

A Home for Old Preachers.

BY W. F. LEMMONS.

I have just closed a short meeting in the Old Confederate Home at Sweet Home, Ark., three miles from Little Rock. This State institution represents many brands of religion and infidelity. At the start most of the inmates seemed indifferent, but soon fell in line and learned to appreciate the truth more, as I sought to simplify the gospel and brush aside the assumed mysteries that sectarianism has beclouded it with. Much good was done, I think, and they invited me back. I preached only five times, which was all the time I had at that time, but this was likely the longest meeting that has ever been held in the chapel of the Home. The chaplain would not give way on Lord's day, and I preached for the Twelfth and Thayer Streets Church in Little Rock at eleven o'clock and at night.

The Old Soldiers' Home is a beautifully located place and affords all the comforts necessary for the ex-soldiers and their wives. The whole State is behind them, and all their needs are looked after by efficient doctors, nurses, matrons, etc., and I heard but little complaint from any of the soldiers. They seem to appreciate what the State is doing for them; but, of course, no one can enter without taking a pauper's oath.

There are some four or five members of the church of Christ in this Home. Brother W. J. Harris, one of our pioneer preachers, who worked side by side with my grandfather and uncles, as well as Jenkins, Rose, Cone, Douglas, and others, is in the Home. This was our first meeting for some twenty-two years. He is now eighty-two years old, and is active, with a clear mind and healthful body, and is still capable of doing good work with opportunity and support.

It is a shame that such men are forced to live the rest of their days surrounded by all classes of people, and some of the most wicked type, on account of the failure of the church to do her known duty. For several years Brother Isaac E. Tackett, of Texas, has been trying to elicit support from the church to establish a Christian home for our old, retired preachers and their wives and other helpless members. He met with some encouragement, but faced quite a lot of opposition. Some of this opposition came from preachers who seemed to be afraid that they might do something unscriptural, presumably because Peter never established such a Home to be supported by Paul. Then, I think some objected because they did not know whether it would be scriptural to make the deed to trustees of the church of Christ as a by-product of the church, to elders of a local church, or how. Anyway, the Home has not been established.

Now, I do not believe in going one inch beyond the teaching of the Bible, nor stopping short of its precepts and examples, and there is utterly no compromise in me on religion; but I would like to know if it would not be a great deal more scriptural to build this Home and take care of these pioneers, where they could associate with God's people, hear praises and songs, and meet on every first day of the week, than to allow them to be supported by the State and forced to listen to curses and bitterness, infidelity and sectarianism, the remainder of their days. The need of such a Home supported by the church has never been emphasized, to my mind, so strongly as it was during this meeting. I have favored Brother Tackett's effort all the time. I am doubly in favor of it now. I hope and pray that this article will cause the church to sit up and think as it never has before on this question. Let us decide whether God has ordained that our old preachers and helpless old folks should be taken care of by the State or the church; whether it is right for them to take a pauper's oath in order to live the rest of their days, or whether or not we took an obligation when we became Christians to "bear one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ."

The Bible College at Berry, Ala.

BY J. D. TANT.

Quite a number are asking me about "our Bible college" at Berry, Ala. I will state that it is a thing of the past. At the time of my last meeting there, Brother Shepherd agreed to cancel his sixteen-thousand-dollar mortgage against the school property, provided the church there would build a dormitory. An outsider promised to give the lumber with which to build it, if the church would cut and haul the logs to the sawmill, but the church was not interested enough to do so. Brother Shepherd has sold the house to the town for a high-school building, which, I am sure, is the best he could do.

With a fine school building at Henderson, Tenn., and also one at Nashville, Tenn., with the best teachers and equipments, there was no need of a Bible college at Berry.

But Berry is not the only little town that has made the same sad mistake, and many brethren have lost all they had by breaking up and moving to the school. Lockney, Denton, Cleburne, and Sabinal, Texas; Odessa, Mo.; and Rector, Ark., can tell the same sad tale. Thousands of dollars were lost in building schoolhouses, and many went school crazy and worked harder to build up "our Bible college" than they did to build up the church of Christ.

In fact, I sometimes doubt if our so-called "Bible colleges" have ever been any benefit to the upbuilding of Christianity. A very large per cent of our finished-up preachers who come out of our Bible colleges come out as professionals, hunting to "take charge" of some church and set the eldership aside, and fill the place of a modern sectarian pastor.

If our Bible college is God's ordained institution, instead of the church, to make gospel preachers, why not start one to make scriptural elders? I am sure the greatest hindrance we have to-day is the inefficient eldership. Eight out of ten who act as elders have the work forced upon them by the church. They declare they do not want it, and Paul says they must desire the office. Many of them have neither time nor inclination to prepare the food to give to the church of God, as Paul instructed them in Acts 20: 28. They give out so many tin cans, raw bones, and so much spoiled meat that a goat would starve upon such feed. They claim they do not have time to do this work and must hire a pastor to do it; yet, if the eldership of the church of Christ carried a salary of five dollars a day, three-fourths of all men and two-thirds of all women who are added to the church would qualify themselves and want to be elders. Brethren, let us think seriously of the service we offer to God.

"I Can't."

BY W. T. HINES.

Ask a young lady to play the piano. "I can't," she says; but she goes along and plays. This worthless little sentence is in the vocabulary of too many Christians. Paul said: "I can do all things through Christ, who strengtheneth me." What good thing is there that Christians cannot do? They can give, work, read, teach, pray, love, and be kind. It is a habit—a bad habit—to always be thinking and saying, "I can't." Let us quit it and substitute in its stead: "I will, by the help of God."

Recuperation. There is not so much in the ordinary vacation as there is in a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which refreshes the tired blood, sharpens the dulled appetite, restores the lost courage. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla this summer.

Are You An Ailing Woman? Here Is Most Vital and Important Advice

Jonesboro, N. C.—"At one time I was greatly distressed and had to walk tiptoe for fear of jarring myself. The doctor said I had an organic trouble. He doctored me for that, and I received some relief from his medicine, enough so I could do a little work in the house, but for two years I suffered with that awful 'achy' pain. Finally a friend heard of my illness and told me what Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription had done for her, and I decided I would try it. The first few doses helped me, and by the time I had taken two bottles I began to feel all right again. I have great faith in Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription."—Mrs. Hannah McCain.

Get Favorite Prescription at once from your nearest druggist, in either liquid or tablet form.

DANDRUFF QUICKLY DISAPPEARS WHEN Tetterine

Is Applied. Fragrant and Soothing.
50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-
TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner
Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue.
Visiting brethren welcome.

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

*Eucapine
Salve*

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection)(Relieves Pain)(Allays Inflammation)

is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

Renew your subscription to the
Gospel Advocate.

Dodson's Liver ToneKilling Calomel Sale

Don't sicken or salivate yourself or paralyze your sensitive liver by taking calomel, which is quicksilver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it regulates the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel without making you sick. Fifteen million bottles sold and drives off the rash and pimples. Harmless, Soothing, Fragrant.

TETTERINEClears Baby's Skin

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, backaches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting CAPUDINE

JACOBS & COMPANY
SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENTS
PRINTERS
DESIGNERS
PHOTO ENGRAVERS
ELECTROTYPERS
Catalogues — a Specialty
HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S.C.

Let thy discontents be thy secrets.—
Benjamin Franklin.

Field Reports

Hardin, Ky., June 20.—I closed a short meeting near Big Sandy, Tenn., on the second Lord's day in this month. Three were baptized into the "one body." The brethren at Big Sandy are trying to build a house of worship, but they are few in number and must have some outside help in order to build.—J. S. White.

Clarksville, Tenn., June 22.—Splendid dedication service at Big Rock last Lord's day, Brother Morrow, Brother Allison, and Brother Walker being the principal speakers. Brother Prevatt and I are in a meeting at Indian Mound, a mission point, with good interest, three additions, and a lot bought and paid for, with the purpose of erecting a neat building in the near future.—J. G. Malphurs.

Nashville, Tenn., June 17.—Brother Andy T. Ritchie and I began a meeting at McEwen, Tenn., on the first Sunday in June. We met with very little encouragement when we arrived, but we are now having good interest, especially among outsiders. There have been no additions as yet, and the meeting will continue indefinitely. We go next to Old Woolworth, near Erin, Tenn.—J. D. Derryberry.

Fulton, Ky., June 20.—The meeting at the Central Street church of Christ began last Lord's day, with fine crowds at both morning and evening services. Brother C. C. Johnson, of Scott's Hill, Tenn., is conducting the song service; I am doing the preaching. The church at Fulton is composed of faithful and zealous members. They are to be commended for their rapid growth and their persistent efforts in spreading the gospel.—John B. Hardeman.

Charleston, Miss., June 19.—I am located here for an indefinite time, and will preach at Charleston, Oakland, and other places in this vicinity. The outlook is good here, although times are a little hard and many of our members have moved away in order to secure work. We had two good services yesterday. I think that, with hard work and faithful, prayerful, gospel teaching, strong congregations can be established here.—A. R. Hill.

McKinney, Texas, June 17.—Last Lord's day I preached at home to a small audience. We have a few faithful ones here, but some are "neither cold nor hot." I have time for a meeting beginning the last Lord's day in August and continuing to the first Lord's day in September. I might arrange some meetings in September and October. I want to be busy, and you have an opportunity to be partners with me.—A. N. Kennedy.

Monticello, Ky., June 20.—The meeting here continues, with good interest. We baptize every night. We are looking for many to obey the gospel before we close. I will go from here to Graves County for a couple of meetings. Brother Thomas D. Rose will hold the meeting at the Forks of Elkhorn, and we are looking for a great work to be done there. The work at Shelbyville moves along with fair interest. We are needing a meeting there badly, and we will arrange to hold one this fall if we can.—R. A. Craig.

Tuscumbia, Ala., June 16.—On the first Lord's day in June I preached three times at Cullman, Ala., to good crowds; twice at Christian Chapel, in Alabama, near the Mississippi line, on the second Lord's day, to large crowds, with dinner on the ground. I will be at Iuka, Miss., on the third Lord's day for two or three services, as I asked them to arrange for a mission point at least one service. I am busy every Lord's day, doing all the preaching that I can do, and hope at least to accomplish some good this year.—J. H. Morris.

Corpus Christi, Texas, June 19.—Yesterday marked the close of a two-weeks' meeting with the local congregation which resulted in six additions—two by primary obedience, others identified and restored to their "first love." The church was greatly edified. Brother Arthur Slater, local minister, is doing a great work in this city, and is esteemed highly by all that know him. It was a pleasure to associate with our venerable brother, C. W. Sewell, who was present at every service and rendered valuable aid. I will begin at Clegg to-night. Then to De Queen, Ark. I am receiving my mail at home address—702 Mary Street, Texarkana, Ark.—J. E. Wainwright.

Union, S. C., June 19.—I am glad to report the work moving along nicely. Several cottage services last week. Two good audiences yesterday, also two confessions and baptisms. We are expecting our new tent to arrive soon, and then I will be very busy the remainder of the summer. Brother J. A. Dennis, of Union City, Ga., was with us yesterday. He set an example yesterday worthy of mention, and it should be of great encouragement to those who let little excuses keep them from the Lord's-day worship. He traveled sixty-six miles to a place to worship and returned to his business in Columbia last night. We hope to have him with us again soon to preach. The brethren certainly appreciated having him with us.—Thomas H. Burton.

Hardyville, Ky., June 22.—Our tent meeting at Northtown closed last Lord's day. The good seed of the kingdom was sowed, and, as immediate results, two (husband and wife) were baptized into Christ. The people in the Northtown vicinity became very much interested in the plain teaching of the word of God, and we believe the way is now open for much good to be accomplished there. The Lord willing, we will return for another meeting in the fall. From Northtown we came to Center Point and began the battle for the truth last night. Prospects are very favorable here. We are greatly indebted to the faithful church at Green's Chapel for their encouragement and fellowship. These brethren certainly have the cause of Christ at heart. From here the tent will go to Bellview, near Edmonton.—Emmett G. Creacy.

Carman, Manitoba, Canada, June 17.—Brother L. L. McGill, of Carman, is assisting in the singing and preaching each night. We began here on Sunday morning. The church here is as full of life as ever. They began as soon as I left them (April 15) to build a

"For If God Spared Not."

BY F. L. PAISLEY.

Twice in the New Testament appears this unique and very significant statement. The first is from the pen of Paul in his wonderful arguments to the church at Rome, warning them by the example of the rejected Jews; and the second is from Peter's inspired hand, warning Christians scattered abroad by the examples of the fallen angels and the antediluvians. While these two times are the only uses of the exact expression, so far as I know, in the whole Bible, it is clearly seen that they are not the only cases where "God spared not."

The phrase "spared not" here means "not allowed to escape," "not held from punishment." A similar expression is found in Rom. 8: 32, referring to God's giving up his Son to be the Savior of men. "He that spared not his own Son, but delivered him up for us all." The apostle says that God allowed not Christ to escape death; not that Jesus was forced to the cross by his Father, for truly Jesus offered himself—"he gave himself a ransom for all"—but that God's love for him and his mercy did not cause him to withhold Jesus from the agonies of the cross. This throws some light on what it means for God to spare not.

It is a fearful thing to think that "God spared not" thousands in all ages past, that he spares not now, and that he will not spare many a one "that thinketh he standeth." Paul's way of argument in this connection is grand. Throughout Rom. 11 he says, "and if," "for if," "now if," "but if," etc. The word "for" introducing this caption is a strong concession of the possible happening of the following threat—namely, that "he also spare not thee." (Verse 21.) The word "if" does not indicate doubt or uncertainty, but an assurance that as truly as God did not spare certain characters, so will he not spare others in like rebellion. Let us get the connection. The Jews had sinned and had been cut off. In verse 1 Paul said that God had not "cast away his people"—that he had not cast away all Jews just because they were Jews. He refers to himself as proof. He was a Jew, in the flesh, not cast off; therefore not all fleshly Israel are "cast off." This scripture is often wonderfully and inexcusably misapplied by men who claim that, regardless of the obedience of one once saved, he is not cast away. This verse does not hint at such, but the whole context teaches the opposite. My conviction is that the "natural branches" which were "spared not" were Jews who became Christians, then became "high-minded" because they were natural branches, and "were broken off" "because of unbelief." Now, in verse 21 he says: "For if God spared not the natural branches, take heed lest he also spare not thee." The Revision makes it more emphatic by saying, "neither will he spare thee." Whether "natural branches" refers to national Israel, as some contend, or to Jews who became Christians and then became unfaithful, the lesson to the church at Rome and to us is just the same. Teachers of error say: "Sure, national Israel fell, and the angels fell, for they all stood on law. Not only is it possible for one to fall who stands on law, but he is sure to fall; but a child of grace cannot be 'cast away.' They miss the inspired argument. As they fell in unbelief, 'neither will God spare thee.' This was said to children of grace, and their fall was predicated on their being 'high-minded' and unfaithful.

Peter says: "For if God spared not the angels that sinned, but cast them down to hell, . . . and spared not the old world." The warning is a solemn one. God's love for his Son spared him not from death, not because of his own sins, but the sins of others. The same divine love for "his people whom he foreknew" "spared not" those of them that were unfaithful; that love for his creatures made in his image, but who believed not nor obeyed the message sent them through Noah, "spared not the old world;" that love for the celestial spirits that adorned the throne of heaven's King "spared not" them when they rebelled. God's love for man is wonderful. His grace is powerful. By them our redemption is secured, if we "continue not in unbelief." All the love and grace in heaven will not spare those who do not "continue in his goodness," but they "also shall be cut off." Let us ask ourselves the question: "Is my life and faithfulness to God such that he will spare me?"

Thorp Spring Christian College.

The Board of Regents of Thorp Spring Christian College, in session on June 15, approved the following faculty: A. R. Holton, President; B. W. Miller, Mathematics and Science; Oscar Wilks, History and Economics; Miss Jewel Watson, Latin and Spanish; Miss Mattie Ella Cravens, English; Miss Katherine A. Hooper, Matron; Miss Blanche Wiley, Home Economics; Miss Minnie Ruth Hammond, Expression; Mrs. O. B. Chambers, Piano; Miss Grace Pate, Voice.

The next session of school is to begin on September 20.

Prospects are bright for a good school year. A strong office force is taking care of the correspondence at the college.

There will be two features of our work this summer. On June 28 and 29

we will coöperate with the Agricultural and Mechanical College of Texas in giving a Farmers' Short Course for the farmers of our community. On July 29 to August 13 we will have our first annual encampment. Several congregations have written us that parties are being formed to attend this meeting in a body. Board and room can be had at very reasonable rates. Those coming prepared to camp will find the finest camping site, free of charge.

SATURDAY NIGHT NO LONGER FEARED; CALOTABS A JOY

Week-End Liver Cleansing and System Purifying without the Slightest Unpleasantness or Danger—New Calomel Tablet Called "Calotabs."

Everybody is looking better, feeling better, and doing better since Calotabs, the denatured calomel tablet, has come into general use. For biliousness, constipation, and indigestion, the new calomel tablet is a wonder—not the slightest unpleasantness, yet all of the liver-cleansing virtues of the old-style calomel.

Calotabs is the easiest and most pleasant of all medicines to take. One tablet on the tongue at bedtime, and a swallow of water; that's all. No taste, no nausea or unpleasantness. You wake up in the morning feeling fine and with a hearty appetite. Eat what you please; no danger.

Beware of imitations! Genuine Calotabs are sold only in "checkerboard" (black and white) packages bearing the copyrighted trade-mark, "Calotabs." The large, family size sells for thirty-five cents; vest-pocket size, ten cents. All dealers are authorized to refund the price if you are not delighted with Calotabs.—Adv.

To Reduce Fever Relieve Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

Use

Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely safe to use as it does not depress the heart even in extreme cases of debility or weak heart, neurasthenia or anaemia. Manufactured by a formula in use by leading physicians generally. 19 parts pure Aspirin, 1 part pure Caffeine, 4 parts excipient, in convenient tablet form. 35c per package at your druggists or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

cement basement and put a roof on it in preparation for our meeting. The basement is twenty-six by thirty feet, with an eight-foot wall—four and a half feet underground and three and a half feet above. At any time the roof can be taken off and the superstructure erected. We find that this is a fine way to have a place to worship and at the same time stay within our means. The building can be made longer than the basement if desired. It will be cool in summer and easily heated in winter. Macorie, Harptree, and several other places are waiting for meetings. I will advise that any one sending money and receiving no acknowledgment may know that I did not receive it, as I acknowledge every donation that is sent to me. If you sent your donation through some one else, you may not have received any acknowledgment.—H. A. Rogers.

Fort Smith, Ark., June 15.—The meeting closed at Beaumont, Texas, last Sunday night, with one baptized and two reclaimed. It was a good meeting in several respects, being the best in interest and the largest in attendance we have had there in several years. This meeting closed my work with the Beaumont church. I have had a pleasant work with them, and the elders said to me that not an objection of any kind had been offered by any member against my work in any way. They offered me a two-year contract if I would return and take up the work again this fall. This church has made greater sacrifices financially than any church I have ever labored with. I will have been with them six months at the close of this month (for they are supporting me in the mission meeting at Somerville), and during that time they have spent nearly twelve hundred dollars, and have only forty-four members, with only twelve male members, all poor, day laborers, wage earners, save one. May God bless them in every undertaking for good, for they are worthy of every confidence. I began the meeting at Somerville last night.—Will W. Slater.

Fort Worth, Texas, June 19.—The last two weeks in May I assisted in a meeting in Polytechnic, Fort Worth, Texas. The interest was as great as I ever saw in a Fort Worth meeting, and this was the eighteenth meeting for me in the city. There were about thirty who had not been identified anywhere in the city, about one hundred from the other congregations whose home is in Polytechnic, and a number baptized, making upward of one hundred and forty names gathered together into a new congregation. Two nice lots were purchased, a nice bungalow was erected on the inside lot (to be used later as a home for the preacher, but as a church home for the present), and a little later a nice modern meetinghouse is to be erected on the corner lot. This bids fair to be one of the leading churches of Fort Worth in a few years. When I began laboring in Fort Worth about twelve years ago, there were five congregations, all small. To-day we have ten lively congregations, all owning their property, several good buildings, and about two thousand members. Fort Worth is my home, and I am greatly interested in the growth of New Testament Christianity in the city. I am now in a fine meeting with the Pearl and Bryan Streets congregation, in Dallas. I recently closed a splendid meeting with the Oak Cliff Church. I have labored with the Dallas saints in about eight meetings, and find them zealous, earnest, and enthusiastic in the Master's work. Brother A. O. Colley, who labors with the Pearl and Bryan congregation, is in Tennessee for a meeting, but will be with us in a few days. Brother G. M. Pullias, the Oak Cliff minister, is still in St. Paul's Sanitarium, but is improving rapidly. We are hopeful that he and his good wife may soon be able to be at home. May God bless the faithful laborers everywhere.—Horace W. Busby.

SORES

BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Cuticura Talcum

Fascinatingly Fragrant

Always Healthful

Sample free of Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden, Mass. Everywhere 25c.

GIRLS! LEMONS

WHITEN SKIN AND

BLEACH FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day; then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specially designed gift for the bereaved. Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the deceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good
WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—
BUY
WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by
Washington Manufacturing Company
Nashville, Tennessee

HARDEMAN'S TABERNACLE SERMONS

A series of evangelistic sermons preached by N. B. Hardeman during the Great Nashville Meeting, held in the Ryman Auditorium, March 28-April 16. These sermons ring true to the Old Book, and have a charm of style and freshness of illustration that put them in a class by themselves.

All the profits derived from the sale of these books will be used to create a fund to help poor boys and girls attend
Freed-Hardeman College.

The book will contain about 350 pages, with pictures of Hardeman, Pullias, and the audience, a history of the meeting, about twenty sermons, and an address delivered by Brother Pullias before the Exchange Club.

Bound in cloth, stamped in gold. Price, $1.50.

Manuscript is all in hands of printer, and book will be ready for delivery about June 26.

Send all orders to N. B. HARDEMAN, Henderson, Tenn.

Gospel Advocate

*RCW
1403 Sweetbrier Ave
July 1 22

Volume LXIV. No. 27.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 6, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Judas Iscariot, Archtraitor.....	625
OUR CONTRIBUTORS.....	626
Things That Corrupt the Church—The J. A. Harding I Knew—The Work in Atlanta, Ga.—Field Notes— Ham-Ramsey Meeting in Florence, Ala.—Suggestions to Brethren H. W. Jones and T. J. Marrs—The Price of Life—A New Worker—Notes from West Tennessee —Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes—The Worth of the Soul— Atlanta (Ga.) Notes—Is the Confession Essential to Salvation?.....	634
QUERY DEPARTMENT.....	634
HOME READING.....	635
AT HOME AND ABROAD.....	636
EDITORIAL.....	638
Eternal Punishment—An Inconsistent Attitude.....	640
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	640
Fighting the "Movies".....	642
"Let Us Build This House".....	643
FIELD REPORTS.....	644
Preaching and Printing the Gospel.....	646
A Christian Life Speaks for Itself.....	647

JUDAS ISCARIOT, ARCHTRAITOR.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

(Continued from last week.)

But it was covetousness that compassed his ruin. Ambition, jealousy, disappointment, and resentment, at one time or another, may have contributed something to the development of his distorted character, but love of money led him astray. He bargained for silver. John notes that Judas was a thief. "But Judas Iscariot, one of his disciples, that should betray him, saith, Why was not this ointment sold for three hundred shillings, and given to the poor? Now this he said, not because he cared for the poor; but because he was a thief, and having the bag took away what was put therein." (John 12: 4-6.) He played the part of a hypocrite perfectly. As treasurer of the group, it would seem becoming in him to protest against the reckless and foolish extravagance of Mary in the waste of so much money on mere sentiment. Were there not the poor and unfortunate? So Judas could use fair speech, while at heart he was a thief and coveted the three hundred shillings. Many another penurious soul has excused his own stinginess with polite and sensible talk. The love of money is indeed a peril. It cheapens a man's whole nature, dulls all the finer sensibilities, blinds him to his own best interest, and, ultimately, may transform him into a thief fit to do crime. So it did in the case of Judas. No wonder Jesus warned: "Take heed, and keep yourselves from all covetousness."

So Judas at last came to have the heart of the hardened, calculating criminal. As a spy before the Sanhedrin, he is blunt and brutal. "What are ye willing to give me?" as though innocent blood were a cheap thing. Indeed, it is hard to believe that even a miser—a Shylock, for instance—could have come over to the enemy for so small a price as thirty pieces of silver which the chief priests weighed out to Judas in advance. It was the paltry price of a slave. But the traitor stuck to his nefarious bargain with deliberation and pertinacity. He had plenty of time to change his mind and return the money, but he even "sought opportunity" to deliver Jesus into the hands of his enemies. Note, too, how hard and abandoned he was at the last supper.

When Jesus pointedly said, "One of you shall betray me," the other disciples were sorrowful and looked on one another with amazement. When each asked, "Is it I?" Judas did the same thing brazenly. He would bluff it out as long as he could.

The shameful compact was carried through to the letter. Judas came back and took his accustomed place, and the eleven seem to have suspected nothing to the end. They even misinterpreted Christ's last words to Judas before he left on the awful mission, "What thou doest, do quickly," as a message about his duties as treasurer. They did not have eyes to see such treachery. The manner in which Judas returned brands him as a coward, like most criminals. He came to the place where he knew Jesus often resorted, the garden of Gethsemane across the brook Kidron, with "a great multitude" provided with lanterns and swords and staves, as if to arrest some desperate criminal. The traitor knew the Man of Sorrows and his disciples, that they were not armed, neither knew violence, yet he came with a mob. He advanced and kissed his Lord excessively (Mark 14: 45, marginal note), adding insult to injury. Then, just before the seizure, Jesus said to his fallen disciple: "Friend, do that for which thou art come." And the Son of God, betrayed by a traitor's kiss, was led away to a mock trial and a shameful death. Thus was fulfilled the prophecy:

"Yea, mine own familiar friend,
in whom I trusted,
Who did eat of my bread,
Hath lifted up his heel against me."

The remorse of Judas was in keeping with all the rest. After the actual condemnation of Jesus, Judas began to see himself in his true light, something of the enormity of his crime. Gloating satisfaction gave place to reviving conscience which whipped like a scorpion's sting. Smith's Bible Dictionary states that his "conscience bounded into fury." It is said that the traitor "repented himself." But it was only sorrow at the awful outcome, regret and agony because of an irreparable mistake. That has often happened with a murderer or rapist after the deed is done. So it was with Macbeth and Lady Macbeth after they had murdered the gentle Duncan. So Judas, in a frenzy born of despair, rushed to the chief priests and confessed his crime: "I have sinned in that I betrayed innocent blood." But they were not interested in that phase of the subject: "What is that to us? see thou to it." He flung the accursed money into the sanctuary and departed. Shortly afterwards he went out and hanged himself.

The greatest tragedy of the ages carried with it the treachery of Judas and the faltering of Simon Peter. Peter sincerely repented and came back and made good. But Judas went over the cliff. He went down with the Niagara flood. Peter (Acts 1: 25) says that he went to "his own place." That is to say, he went to the doom he had earned for himself. We are all caught in the web of circumstances, and at times we seem the victims of destiny that we are powerless to control. But our spiritual destiny we make for ourselves. Ultimately we go to our own place. So did Abraham. So did Diyes. Judas was moved by the "sorrow of the world" that "worketh death;" Peter was "sorry after a godly sort" that led to repentance and restoration. Peter became a rock, while Judas became a devil. Both were under the tutelage of Jesus. Both had the same privileges. Both were men of weakness and frailty. One fought the devil after momentary defeat; the other courted the devil habitually and listened to his blandishments. Martyrdom for Christ ended the life of the one; suicide because of betrayal of his Lord marked the end of the other.

Judas carries a perpetual warning to every preacher of Christ, and, indeed, to every Christian. Paul warns us not to give place to the devil. (Eph. 4: 27.) Herein was Judas' great mistake. Let us beware his footsteps. Of course, we cannot deliver up the person of Jesus, but we can betray his cause. We can tread under foot the Son of God, crucify him afresh, and put him to an open shame. If through weakness we fall into sin, let us repent like Peter and start over again. But if we follow in the path of Judas, it were better had we not been born.

Publishers' Items.

Write us to-day for our list of good books. It will be sent free on request.

Send us a new subscriber to-day for the Gospel Advocate. Price, $2 a year, in advance.

Write us to-day for sample copies of The Young People for boys and girls. The price is in reach of all.

If you know of any congregation not now using our Bible Lesson Helps and will send us the address, we will gladly furnish them sample copies.

If you have friends who are not subscribers to the Gospel Advocate, kindly furnish us their names and addresses so that we may send them sample copies.

We call your attention to the advertisement of our song books on another page of this issue. We are prepared to fill your order for any of these song books on short notice.

Every church should know its membership. In order to keep informed as to the residence and membership of your church, you should have a church record. Our Church Record is the very thing you need. Price, $1.50.

"Questions Answered," by David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell, should have a place in every library. Those who have seen and examined it closely are highly pleased with it. Cloth bound; 700 pages. Price, $3, postpaid.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Miner's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

The second edition of "Travels in Bible Lands," by Andy T. Ritchie, is now ready. It is pronounced by all who have read it as being the best book ever written on travels in the Holy Land. It is illustrated and contains 335 pages. Cloth bound. Price, $1.50, postpaid, to any address. Send for your copy to-day.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN THE WORSHIP

By M. C. Kurfees

Cloth. 300 pages. Price, postpaid.....$1.50

This is the most comprehensive book on this important subject now before the public. In it the Greek verb "psallo" is philologically and historically examined, together with a full discussion of kindred matters relating to music in Christian worship. The book is the result of a lifetime of critical study and research, and has become the standard of information on the music question. It has been highly recommended by scholarly brethren in the church of Christ and in the religious world.

McQUIDDY PRINTING COMPANY
Nashville, Tenn.

Our Contributors

Things That Corrupt the Church.

BY JAMES E. SCOREY.

The religious world of the professed followers of the Lord Jesus Christ, composed of its more than one hundred and sixty sects and denominations, is by no means agreed as to what one must do to be saved, nor as to church organization and church government. We may learn what they believe on these subjects by reading their confessions of faith, their catechisms, their disciplines, their prayer books, their rituals, and the current literature of their various publications. But the most available source of information to most of us is from their preachers.

There is one thing in which all are agreed, and that is that there is a God. But they differ in reference to what constitutes his being, one party affirming that God is a trinity, the other denying the proposition. Thus the one party is called "Trinitarians," the other "Unitarians." They are also agreed that Jesus lived, that he was put to death, was buried; but all do not believe that he rose from the dead, the one party believing him to be like Moses and the best of men, the other party believing in the immaculate conception and that he was born of a virgin.

There are other differences which we note. Some believe one is saved by his good works; others believe that one is saved by faith and repentance; while others teach that one is saved, made a child of God, by faith alone.

Now, I call the attention of the reader to the fact that these differences in the teachings of religious partisans, and other differences to which I might refer, did not have their origin in the word of God, but in the vain philosophies of men. The conglomeration of these different doctrines is confusion worse confounded. And if any one were to sift out of their written systems of religion all of the doctrines of men written in them or practiced by them, what would be left would fall far short of being the whole counsel of God. The confusion existing in the religious world has resulted from the teaching of men, not of God. "God is not the author of confusion, but of peace, as in all churches of the saints." (1 Cor. 14: 33.) The devil is the author of confusion; and the greater confusion he can stir up among those seeking to go to heaven, the more pleased he and his angels are, because his great ambition and purpose is to contravene the gracious will of God to save man from the condemnation of sin while he lives and from the consequences of sin in the world to come.

The fact is, man, in the past ages of his existence, has never been satisfied to be led of God. And the fact still remains that, in the present age, the great majority of the religious world is not satisfied with the plain, simple terms of the conditions of salvation provided by Jesus Christ and preached to all the world by his apostles and prophets. It seems by their preaching and practice they do not believe that God, through his Son, Jesus Christ, has revealed to us a perfect system or plan of salvation from past sins, as well as a guide by which, if followed, we may escape the consequences of sin in the world to come. Hence the necessity, upon their part, of revising the plan, making it harmonize with their views. They have not only modified and changed the conditions of entering the church, but have actually robbed Jesus, the head of the church, of the government of the institution he purchased with his own blood, and have assumed to themselves the authority of its government, and have lodged in their conventions, assemblies, conferences, associations, presbyteries, and colleges of bishops the authority to legislate in reference to what the activities of the church shall be, and to direct those activities. They have formed numerous societies, boards, and committees to do the work of the church. About all the great majority of the members have to do is to obey the rules and regulations enacted by their legislative bodies, go to meeting, hear the choir sing while the organ is being played, hear the preacher pray and preach, and pay the assessed tax to support these societies, their chief dignitaries, and their many officers and agents. All this machinery is the invention of men, and wholly unknown from any teachings of God's word. God's word makes known no provision for legislative bodies of any kind, whether they be councils, conventions, associations, colleges of bishops, etc. Their churches are no longer independent institutions owing their fealty only to Christ, but must submit to the government of these higher powers.

The order of worship as taught by the apostles and followed in the churches of Christ by the early Christians has been superseded by forms of worship of which the word of God knows nothing. They are the inventions of men, used to gratify those who are not satisfied with the plain, simple, authorized worship which the early apostolic churches observed. The one innovation in the worship of churches which, when first introduced years ago, was not popular among Protestants was instrumental music. I can remember when not a church in all this country used an instrument in the worship, save the Episcopal and Catholic churches. I remember, too, when the organ was first used in the Christian Church in St. Louis, the commotion it excited in all the churches of our country who professed to take the New Testament as their rule of faith and practice. Some older brethren at that time did not think it would become common in the churches. But many of them had gone into the convention and society business, and the organ appealed to them, and so it was used by them. The word of God says "sing," and they thought they could better sing with the organ. But they have not been satisfied with the organ alone, but have made instrumental music of various kinds one of the chief factors and attractions of their worship. The introduction of the instrument into the worship has almost invariably caused a division of the congregations of the church of Christ.

The great restoration movement introduced by the Campbells, Barton W. Stone, and others, was to worship God as "it is written;" that they would do nothing in work or worship for which they could find neither precept nor example in the New Testament Scriptures. Those who subscribe to that principle cannot favor or form societies, boards, and committees, with their chairmen, presidents, and secretaries, to direct and do the work of the churches. Hence the widespread division in the once united body of Christ. When once we take a departure from God's word in either the work or worship of the church, it becomes an easy matter for us to adopt any other which may suggest itself to us, or be suggested by others, that we think expedient.

Tolbert Fanning, president of Franklin College, when I was a student in that institution in the early fifties, delivered a lecture in the chapel on his return from Cincinnati, where he had gone to attend a convention of the Disciples to discuss the question of forming a missionary society. In the convention he delivered an address, taking a strong position against the formation of any society to do the work of the church. Many agreed with Fanning, and during the day speeches were made pro and con, but no decision of the question had been made. On the meeting of the convention the next morning, Mr. Fanning arose to continue the discussion. The chairman politely requested him to take his seat, as he had had his say. Mr. Fanning took up his hat and left for his home. The society was born, and they made Alexander Campbell its president.

Mr. Fanning, in the lecture to which I have just referred, stated not only the things I have written about the proceedings of the convention, but he said something which made a lasting impression on my mind. It was this: They have rejected God's counsel; they have departed from the faith; they are on the sea of speculation without chart, compass, or rudder; their bark carries a cargo of theories and opinions of men; they will float with any tide; they will take the course of any wind that blows; they will become one of the many denominations, already controlled by the doctrines and commandments of men. What a foresight, and what a prophecy, and how soon fulfilled!

If we believe Peter wrote the truth in his epistle when he said, "Grace and peace be multiplied unto you through the knowledge of God, and of Jesus our Lord, according as his divine power hath given unto us all things that pertain unto life and godliness, through the knowledge of him that hath called us to glory and virtue," has any man a right to add to or take from the things God has provided for us? We need neither modifications nor changes of God's word from man's viewpoints. If we discharge our duty toward God in this world, we will believe what God says, we will do what he requires, we will trust his promises, and will have a comforting hope of eternal life in the world to come. We should all strive to "keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace," think God's thoughts, and speak God's words; and this we will do, if we follow the oracles of God, and not the vain philosophies of men.

The J. A. Harding I Knew.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

It is too late now to say anything to cheer and encourage Brother Harding. But I am glad I said while he was living what I am about to say here. I am taking it for granted that our readers know something of our deceased brother. It is only a short time since his body was laid away at Bowling Green, Ky., where he did such a good work. But he has long been known to the brotherhood as a faithful, humble, powerful preacher and teacher.

Under him I memorized most of the New Testament, and heard him often in "chapel talks." He insisted upon the pupils memorizing the word of God. He spent very little time explaining what it meant. He said: "Go on, and learn more about what it says, and the chances are you will then know what it means." That method appeals to me yet as the best system for teaching the Bible. He insisted upon daily Bible reading for all Christians. He said that no matter how fast one would read the Bible, he would get something out of it. This was his illustration: "If you run down the road as fast as you can, you will still remember some things you saw."

He could come nearer making me feel like I had to preach Christ, at the cost of everything, even life itself, than any man I ever saw. Many times we went to our classes somewhat drowsily and took our seats, half nodding; but when he walked down the aisle, he "filled all the house where" we "were sitting." Every boy automatically stiffened his backbone and tensed his nerves and was ready to do just anything that would win a soul or advance the kingdom of Christ. Nearly every boy left his classes saying in his heart: "Something's got to be done." After all, that is the most important thing in life. Make a young man believe that a thing ought to be done, and he will do it. He'll find a way or make one.

Brother Harding stripped religion and the preaching of the gospel, especially, of all unnecessary trimming, and made it a matter between the preacher and his God. He taught every preacher, and every Christian, for that matter, to put his faith directly in God, as the giver of every good thing, and work where he could do most good, regardless of remuneration. He set no price upon his labor, and lived and died supported by freewill offerings.

There is no doubt in my mind now that this reducing religion to a commercial basis, "so much preach for so much money," is the greatest hindrance to the spread of the gospel. The country places and small towns are suffering to-day for the gospel, while our young preachers are striving frantically for jobs—yes, "jobs" is right—with the strong churches. There are not enough strong churches to go around, so the unlucky ones are taking secular employment. It scares me to think what's coming. It looks now as if country places, city places, preachers and all, are liable to go to the devil, and that, too, largely because every one is looking to the almighty dollar (or the man who has it) instead of Almighty God. But this sin cannot be laid to the charge of Brother Harding. He taught us better.

When I was in the Nashville Bible School, the question of the eldership was up for discussion. Four views were expressed and defended in the school. (1) All elders were formerly inspired, and so passed away with other inspired men; and so we have no elders now, and need none. (2) We need elders now, but they will gradually develop the qualifications and grow into the place without any appointing. (3) Elders will gradually develop the qualifications, and should then be appointed; but the only appointing necessary is for an evangelist or some one else to point at such and such a one and say: "We have decided to appoint Brother — elder." (4) Elders must have all the qualifications to a reasonable degree, and must be appointed by prayer and fasting and laying on of hands, by the congregation and one or more evangelists.

This last was Brother Harding's position, and it is mine, too. I have never helped to appoint elders, and do not care to, unless they are willing to be appointed in this way. The church cannot succeed with the present method of selecting and appointing elders. Our present practice is not founded upon either Scripture or good judgment, and we are suffering for it.

The great outstanding feature of Brother Harding's life was his implicit faith that God would take care of him, and all other of his children who will trust him implicitly. He wanted to run the Nashville Bible School on freewill offerings, and did for a number of years. It had been running ten years before it was incorporated. Many good brethren said that was not good business. But one thing I cannot help but notice is that there is a great falling off in the percentage of preachers among the students since the schools are run so "businesslike." Every observer can see that something has partially destroyed the spiritual atmosphere that could literally be felt in the earlier days.

Brother Harding's views were opposed by many good brethren. He was said to be visionary, and that his theory would not work. He said: "Don't I get plenty to eat and wear and a place to sleep?" They said: "Yes, but you are young and active now, and keep your work before the brotherhood. Wait till you get old, and you'll see. You will have to go to the poorhouse." But he still maintained: "No good thing will he withhold from them that walk uprightly."

Well, I used to wonder why the Lord allowed him to become utterly helpless to provide for himself and then leave him here for ten years. Could it be that God wanted to show the world that his children could and would be provided for; if only they would put their trust in him? Although, during the last ten years of life, he was unable to preach, teach, or write, or do any other kind of work, yet it was just as he said it would be. He was lovingly and tenderly cared for, and never needed for a thing that money could buy. I believe he never owned a foot of land, and never had but little money at a time, and he always divided that freely with any one who needed it as badly as he did.

The last talk I ever heard him make was in Brother F. W. Smith's tent meeting on the old Bible School grounds, May 8, 1899. He told how he came to quit using tobacco. He said a little girl came in one day, and he noticed she was barefooted. She was trying to sell something to get her a pair of shoes. He said to his wife: "I wish I had the money to buy that child some shoes." She replied: "That dollar you just spent for tobacco [he had just laid in a dollar's worth] would have bought her a pair." He said he never did like to be beaten in an argument by a woman, but he could not answer that to his own satisfaction, so he used no more tobacco. Harding's boys and girls are everywhere to-day, working to advance the cause of Christ; but I am afraid there is not another J. A. Harding on earth.

The Work in Atlanta, Ga.

BY S. H. HALL.

On June 8, Mrs. Hall, Philip, and I left Nashville for an auto trip to Atlanta, Ga., where I remained for fifteen days in a revival with the South Pryor Street congregation. Mrs. Hall and our son returning to Nashville after nine days' visiting old friends in Atlanta. It certainly was good to be there where we had toiled perseveringly for nearly fourteen years; and if souls ever tried to give us a good time, our Atlanta friends went the limit on this visit. Words could never express what this visit meant to us! We love the Atlanta brethren, and had no reason for believing our every sacrifice made during those nearly fourteen years to put the cause of primitive Christianity on a firm basis was not fully appreciated; but if there had been one, it could not linger with us after this trip.

I found the work in the finest condition. I do not believe that it was my efforts only that caused us to secure the services of Brother B. C. Goodpasture for the West End Avenue work. God's hand was in it. We might have found another who would have stood by the work with tireless effort, as he has done, but I doubt it. The West End work has grown onward and upward. They have the best Bible study in the history of the church, and just before we reached that city our brother had closed one of the best meetings in the history of West End Avenue, totaling thirty-four additions, all told. I felt perfectly certain, after the close of two weeks' work with Brother Goodpasture at Shelbyville, Tenn., a few years ago, that in him I had found one of our very best men. Subsequent observation and association with him place this beyond a doubt. He will never know how close he is to my heart for the way he has so earnestly stood by the Atlanta work. It means much to be sane; then, with this, to have the mind and Spirit of our Lord that compels us to "do justly," "love kindness," and "walk humbly with our Lord." Brother Goodpasture is blessed with all these, which means that he is a blessing to the cause of our Lord wherever he may go. With this, he was fortunate in securing for a partner in life one of our best women. All love and esteem her who know her. It would mean much to this old world, and especially to the cause of our Lord and Savior, if every preacher we have were another Goodpasture and every preacher's wife another Sister Goodpasture. They stood nobly by the South Pryor Street meeting.

But another thing made me happy. It was what I found at South Pryor Street. I had been away from Atlanta but a few months till Brother and Sister Vaughn, of Los Angeles, asked me if I knew Don Hockaday, of Granite, Okla. I told them that I did not. "Well," said they, "he is a fine man, and I notice he has gone to Atlanta, Ga., to work." Thanks to Brother Armstrong for putting the South Pryor Street congregation in communication with this good man. I have labored with many preachers, but I have yet to see the man who has made a better impression than Hockaday. He has been a blessing to the South Pryor Street work. The humility and meekness of our Lord he possesses to a marked degree, and he never tires in his effort to do something for the cause of Christ. The confidence the South Pryor Street members have in him is almost boundless. And he, too, is one of those men we can call "sane," in the fullest sense. He was not in Atlanta long till he discovered that he had left half of himself in the West when he left Granite for Atlanta. So he went back and got her, and now he stands complete in his great work. Sister Hockaday is a wonderful little woman. She knows how to get out and go from house to house and help her husband in his great work. The church loves and esteems her. It was my pleasure to be with her brother, Batsell Baxter, in the Nashville Bible School, who is now one of the teachers in Abilene (Texas) Christian College. May God bless these good people, and may he continue to bless me by throwing me with such souls.

Brother John Klingman is preaching for the East Point brethren on Lord's days. Of course, he cannot give the work the time that Hockaday and Goodpasture give to South Pryor and West End Avenue, as he works six days in the week for a living. But the East Point work steadily grows. Klingman is a good man, and no one will ever be harmed by following his gentle life of service in season and out of season.

One of the souls I missed most while in Atlanta was our dear Brother Harding. But, the Lord willing, I want to say a few things about him later. We have never had a greater man.

Field Notes.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

On Monday, June 19, I arrived in Pulaski, Tenn., and was met at the depot by Brethren J. T. Clark and J. C. Murphy. They showed me every courtesy and assisted me in seeing the brethren in the interest of the Gospel Advocate. Brother Murphy had to go away, but Brother Clark spent most of the day with me. Some thought best not to give out any preaching, for the Chautauqua was in town. I wonder if they were afraid I would take the crowd away and aggravate the Chautauqua people so they would not come back next year? Some were disappointed because no appointment was made.

Pulaski is the place where Sam Davis, the young Confederate scout, was hanged by the Federal forces. He was captured with certain papers in his shoes, which were discovered after a second search. He had secured them from some one in the Federal army, either a traitor or a Confederate spy. The authorities offered him his life if he would tell where he got the papers. He said he would die a thousand times before he would betray a friend, or words to that effect. I stayed all night near the spot where he was hanged. There is a monument to his memory in Pulaski.

While there I was told this story, which I repeat from memory. When J. T. McKissick, the digressive preacher, was operating around in Maury and Giles counties, he paid Pulaski a visit or two with the hope of "organizing" the church—that is, putting an organ into the house. He afterwards sent another of his kind of preachers there to preach one Sunday. But the brethren had not sent for him and did not want him; so they proceeded to conduct their worship without him. He told them he had come to preach. Old Brother Bennett, who had been exhorting the brethren for many years, got up and said he had some remarks to make. The intruder told him to make his remarks short, so they would not interfere with his preaching. Then one of Brother Bennett's sons got up and said: "Pa, you talk just as long as you want to. Do you hear? I'll see that you are not disturbed." The preacher waited a few minutes and then suggested that some one start a song, right while Brother Bennett was talking. Then this son rose up and said: "I came here to worship. I don't know what you came for; but whatever it is, you and I will have to settle the question as to who is to remain and finish what he came to do. For before I go on with the worship or you go on with your business, we must see who is the best man. One of us is going to leave here, and the best man can stay." Their new, uninvited preacher took that as a hint that he was not wanted and got his hat and left. There has been no further attempt to "organize" that congregation.

Now, while I simply cannot indorse fighting or violence of any kind, still my brethren do fight sometimes for far less justifiable causes. It seems to me that many houses might have been saved by brethren standing their ground just as the old brother did. Too often our brethren give up and quit and pull off when they should stay right there and ignore the instrument even after it is put in by the faction, and continue the worship as before. If we stand firm and conduct the worship in the usual way, every Sunday without a break, no court will give the house to some one else. It is our quitting that defeats us.

From Pulaski I went to Lynnvile. We had a nice audience, and I met some fine brethren there. Brother B. C. Goodpasture, of Atlanta, Ga., is to hold a meeting there in the near future. There I met a Brother Spivey, brother to the two Spiveys who used to live and preach in Giles and adjoining counties. Both have passed to their reward. The Brother Spivey I visited with can remember when Brethren Lipscomb and Sewell began preaching.

My next stop was at Culleoka. Brother H. R. Hobbs met me at the station and took me to his home. He and Sister Hobbs have no children of their own, but have taken two from the Orphans' Home in Columbia to bring up "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." We had a good crowd out to church there. There is no "digressivism" in the church, but I found several outsiders, perhaps members of the denominations, who wanted to argue for instrumental music in worship.

One big man came along and said to me: "Don't you believe in instruments in the church?" I said: "No." "Well, I do. I belonged to the Christian Church in Kentucky. We had about the smallest crowds in town; but when we put in an organ, our crowds picked up till we soon had the largest crowds in town." I said: "Do you think that proves it is scriptural?" "Well, no; but where is the harm?" My reply was: "The average man is not prepared to see the harm when it is shown to him. Let me ask you a question. Would you object to serving ice cream and cake on the Lord's table in connection with the emblems?" He said: "No. I can't see any harm in that, if that is somebody's belief." Then I said: "No wonder you can't see any harm in instrumental music. You know nothing about the Bible, and you have not enough Bible religion to save a jay bird." I don't suppose he believes that, but I do.

The last two days in the week I spent at Columbia, preaching once up town and once in South Columbia. Not very good crowd at either place. I found Brother Slayden and Brother Sowell both ready to leave for appointments elsewhere. I called at Brother Morton's home, and found he had just gone. I spent considerable time with Brother John W. Fry, treasurer of the Tennessee Orphans' Home. We found many things in common in regard to the work the church should be doing.

Saturday night and Sunday and Sunday night I spent with my father at Ethridge. I have a standing invitation to preach there every time I can. I found a fine audience waiting, and the crowd got better each service.

On the train to Nashville, Monday, June 26, I met Brother J. R. Bradley, of Elora, Tenn. He is seventy-nine years old, and has been a faithful preacher for many years. I certainly was glad to see him. He said: "I am glad you are working for the Advocate. I have been taking it for fifty years, and I appreciate it more now than ever."

Truth is our only armor in all passages of life and death.—Emerson.

Ham-Ramsey Meeting in Florence, Ala.

BY C. E. HOLT.

In April, Mr. M. F. Ham and Mr. W. J. Ramsey conducted a meeting in Florence, Ala., in which several of the churches of Florence participated. In fact, the meeting was held under the auspices of the churches which engaged therein, and by these churches the meeting was chiefly supported. All the churches in Florence, except the church of Christ, the Roman Catholic and the Episcopal churches, were engaged in the meeting and gave it their indorsement. This, of course, was called a "union meeting." Mr. Ham's preaching was, in many respects, different from that of the common class of "union evangelists." In many respects he is quite unique. His familiarity with the Bible as a whole, with the leading historical facts of the ancient, mediæval, and ancient governments of earth, and his experience and personal observations in Bible lands and in Europe, make him an interesting teacher to the student of the Bible and of history. One of the most marvelous and unlooked-for happenings of the meeting was the large number of people who were added to the church of Christ—the only church in Florence that stands for pure, undenominational Christianity. The Roman Catholic Church, of course, denies that it is a denomination and resents the idea of being classed with them; so for the present we will excuse them and write accordingly.

As a contributory cause, the meeting about which I am writing brought about eighty people into the church of Christ. I have learned that this was a great surprise to the leaders of the churches engaged in the meeting, and who naturally expected all the fruits of the meeting to be divided among their respective denominations. I was told by a man, a member of the church of Christ, who had a personal talk with Mr. Ham, that Mr. Ham said to him, if the church of Christ had gone into the meeting as the other churches did, it would have received more members as a result of the meeting than any of the other churches. Mr. Ham is quoted thus: "I am sorry that the church of Christ refused to coöperate with me." But such was the result, anyway, and many people are wondering why it turned out that way. To me it is no surprise. I would be surprised if it had resulted otherwise.

The first reason for this statement is that the people who obeyed the gospel during and immediately after the Ham-Ramsey meeting had previously been taught the truth, the majority having been reared by parents who were and are members of the church of Christ. The majority of them were connected with families which are and have been connected with the church of Christ for many years. They knew the true plan of salvation before they ever heard of the two evangelists by whom they were induced to make a final decision. The Bible says that we should render honor to whom honor is due, and I always try to do that. So I give Mr. Ham due credit for the work he did in convicting (not converting) and persuading the people to act upon the faith and knowledge they already had before they heard him preach.

But I wish now to briefly notice some things that made Mr. Ham's preaching so effective with those who stand for the true teaching of the Bible against all human theories in religion. Mr. Ham assumes and maintains in his teaching an air of complete independence of, and a full separation from, the schemes and claptrap methods of the modern union evangelists. He said many times in his sermons that he did not belong to, nor was he governed and controlled by, any ecclesiastical body or clique or organization. He said there is only one church that exists by divine authority, and the name of this church is the "church of God" or "church of Christ." This church, he said, began on the first Pentecost after the resurrection and ascension of Christ, an account of which is found in the second chapter of Acts of Apostles. He showed very plainly and very conclusively, in a sermon on the church, that the true church began in Jerusalem on the first Pentecost after Christ's ascension. Speaking of the Holy Spirit coming on that day, he said: "The promise of the Holy Spirit made by Jesus to his apostles before his death was on this day fulfilled, and I never pray for the Holy Spirit to come; for I tell you that the Spirit came on Pentecost, and he has been here ever since that wonderful occasion. We are in the dispensation of the Spirit, and the correct title of the book called Acts of Apostles would be 'Acts of the Holy Spirit.'"

He said that Christians should not marry sinners, or people who are not believers, nor should they form unholy alliances with human institutions. He introduced such an array of Bible proof in the way of plain, unequivocal statements, and of examples clear and conclusive and convincing, that the walls of human apologies for such things crumbled and fell before his audiences like the walls of Jericho fell before the victorious hosts of Israel.

Mr. Ham exalted the Bible above everything in religion. He said: "If you want divine knowledge, read the Bible. If you want more faith, read the Bible." On the evidence of pardon, he said: "You do not know you are saved by the way you feel, nor by your sincerity in what you believe, nor your devotion to the church of your choice, but by what the Bible tells you. If the word of God tells you that you are saved, then you should have no doubts about it. You should learn to doubt your doubts and to believe your faith." One of his greatest sermons was, "Why I Believe the Bible is the Word of God." His array of evidence in support of the divine authenticity of the Bible was nothing less than wonderful. When he had finished, one could almost hear the weeping and the wailing of the so-called "higher critics" in the lower regions. His sermon on "Sowing and Reaping" produced a wonderful effect on his audience.

Mr. Ham believes in a literal hell of literal fire, and his sermon on that subject was probably as powerful as anything that the famous Jonathan Edwards ever preached. His sermon on "retribution," based on Prov. 29: 1, was wonderful in moving people who had known the truth for years, but who were just "taking life easy," expecting, of course, to make everything right before death should overtake them.

While Mr. Ham understood that all the denominations engaged in the meeting would be strengthened by additions as a result of his efforts, he did not say that one church is as good as another. Neither did he say anything to refute this erroneous teaching. He knew that the people were thus impressed by former teaching and training, and he knew that he was being supported by people who were in perfect sympathy with that denominational error.

The modern dance, social games of cards, and other sinful and questionable practices of professed Christians received unusually severe treatment at the hands of the evangelist.

Now, I can almost hear some one asking: "If you have correctly represented Mr. Ham's teaching and practice, how can he consistently affiliate with the Baptists, the people with whom he is denominationally identified?" I cannot answer the question. I pass it on to Mr. Ham. I, too, would thank Mr. Ham for an explanation. In the meantime I shall rejoice in all the good he accomplishes, and earnestly pray that he may throw off all the coverings and badges of denominationalism and come out into the full-orbed light of God's eternal truth both in theory and practice.

By means of a photograph, made with a vibrating lens, a British scientist has calculated the time of a lightning flash. It comes out one-nineteenth of a second. The calculation is based upon the multiple image in the photographs and the rate of vibration of the lens. The time applies, of course, only to the particular flash that was photographed. —Exchange.

Suggestions to Brethren H. W. Jones and T. J. Marrs.

BY LEE JACKSON.

I see in the Gospel Advocate a discussion on the beginning of Christ's kingdom between the above-named brethren, and, as I am seeking information, I presume that it is not amiss to appeal to them for this desired and much-needed information. Both of them are using Daniel's interpretation of Nebuchadnezzar's dream as a basis for argument; and without taking any part one way or the other in the discussion, I am denying that the Roman empire was represented in the image as interpreted by Daniel. A verifying of their assumed premise can be made helpful to us readers.

1. Please show from the Scriptures that the fourth kingdom of the image was intended to represent the Roman empire.

2. Please show how it was that the image seen by Nebuchadnezzar, and which was intended to represent his Asiatic empire, could be designed to represent Rome, which was then wholly confined to Italy, in Europe, over which the sovereignty of Nebuchadnezzar never extended. Daniel said to Nebuchadnezzar: "Thou art this head of gold." Nebuchadnezzar was never at any time the head over any part of Europe. His empire was confined to Western Asia and to Egypt, in Africa. After Nebuchadnezzar another kingdom was to arise; this second kingdom was that of the Medes and Persians, which existed upon the territory formerly occupied by Nebuchadnezzar. Then came Alexander the Great, who overthrew the Asiatic empire of the Medes and Persians, and established his own rule over the old territory of Nebuchadnezzar. This reign of Alexander was the "third kingdom of brass." After the death of Alexander his empire was broken up and divided among his generals. This brought into existence the condition of affairs represented by the "iron mixed with miry clay," under which the old territory of Nebuchadnezzar's domain gave birth to the kingdom of the Seleucidae in Asia and the kingdom of the Ptolemys in Egypt. These kingdoms of the "iron and the clay," with other divisions that subsequently arose, were within the boundaries of Nebuchadnezzar's territory, just as represented in the image.

3. And last, if you make the prophecy refer to the kings of the Roman empire, how do you account for the long period of time between the fall of Alexander's empire and the birth of Christ, which occurred at the beginning of Rome's dominion in Palestine? The image represented the kingdoms as coming in immediate succession, each one coming upon the fall of its predecessor. The Medes and Persians, as represented by the "silver," succeeded the head of gold; the empire of Alexander, as represented by the "brass," followed the Medes and Persians; the Seleucidae of Asia and the Ptolemys of Egypt, in Africa, as represented by the "iron and the clay," coming immediately upon the fall of Alexander's short-lived empire. Beginning with Antiochus Seleucus, the rule of the Seleucidae continued for two hundred and sixty years in Asia, while that of the Ptolemys in Egypt continued for a period of two hundred and ninety-four years, or up to within thirty years of the birth of Christ. Other minor divisions, with their petty kings, that arose upon the breaking up of Nebuchadnezzar's old dominions, continued much longer. It was in the days of these "kings" upon the old territory of Nebuchadnezzar that "the God of heaven was to set up a kingdom that should never be destroyed." How, then, can the prophecy refer to the Romans?

In our attempts to interpret prophecy in the light of history, it is necessary for us to know history; and in reading the Scriptures, each one should think for himself, and not be content with adopting the ideas of others. For—

"One correct idea that you can command as all your own is worth a thousand gathered from fields that others have unwisely sown."

The Price of Life.

BY S. V. MCASLAND.

"That which thou thyself sowest is not quickened except it die." (1 Cor. 15: 36.)

The principle stated in these words is that life comes out of death. The grain of wheat planted in the soil must lose its own identity and merge itself with a new combination from the soil in order that it may germinate life and be reproduced in the harvest time. All of the boundless activities and processes of nature bear evidence to this same truth. The offspring of man and of beast takes in itself the beauty and strength of its parents and leaves them wasted bodies as the price of reproduction. The happy days of childhood must be left behind if one would be a man, and the body that God has given man in this life must be cast aside in preparation for the form of immortality.

This truth means that success in life must be preceded by a struggle and that everything that is of value must be paid for. The struggle must come before the victory; after the sorrow comes the joy. But there is no such thing as victory unless a battle has been fought, and there is no experience of joy to the heart that has not known sorrow. It is a false philosophy that teaches men that there is a way to escape the labor of life. Many institutions of learning have arisen during the past few decades that offer to the young a short process by which, it is claimed, they may escape the long hours of toil which all of the great men of the past have known; but it would be just as reasonable to expect to see the morning dawn without first going through the shades of night.

This same principle is one of the fundamental laws of the life in Christ. He said: "Whosoever will lose his life for my sake shall find it." It is a strange paradox that we can only find our lives by losing them; yet the truth of it is written in the records of all of the lives of the great host of men and women who have lived and died in the service of Christ and their fellow men. This is the solution of the world's most baffling problem of philosophy if it would but receive it. The men of all the ages have busied themselves in the quest of happiness; and with each passing generation new systems and solutions have arisen, only to be cast aside, sooner or later, as a useless heritage of the past; and all of the energy that has been spent in the formulation of theories contrary to this simple truth of Christ has not brought one more ray of light or dried the tears from a single eye or discovered another gleam of hope. "He that believeth on me, though he die, yet shall he live; and whosoever liveth and believeth on me shall never die." (John 11: 25, 26.)

Pain.

Pain is the bitter soil from which arise

Fast-fading blossoms, dewy with the tears
Of glad thanksgiving, eager sacrifice,

Trembling devotion, promises, and fears;
But, since for some it bears so grim a part,

O, may they sow and Pain at last mature
This larger growth which, in a failing heart,
May strengthen, cherish, bid it long endure!

A steadfast self-control, a constant grace

Of ready sympathy and patience rare;

Humility with courage, on each face

A smile for others, in each soul a prayer;

Abiding faith, abundant charity,

Renunciation, void of fret or bane—

Let such the overflowing harvest be,

No hour of suffering shall count as vain!

—Mary Coles Carrington.

A New Worker.

BY J. O. M'Q.

The "Gospel Advocate Company" congratulates itself in the acquisition of H. Leo Boles to its working force. Brother Boles is thoroughly competent to fill the position he now holds efficiently, and it is believed that he will add much life and strength to the new company.

He is an untiring worker, is full of energy, and, above all, loves the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. He will be an associate editor of the Gospel Advocate, will be active in extending its circulation, and will assist in the management of the "Gospel Advocate Company." Judging the future by his past record as a worker, we shall all be very much disappointed if he does not greatly increase the usefulness and influence of the Gospel Advocate and of the company.

He is very much opposed to schism, division, and factionalism in the body of Christ. In undertaking this work, he does so not for his own advancement, but for the advancement of the cause of Christ. He expects to be helpful in inducing brethren to work more for the honor of Christ and less for their own personal advancement. He hopes to see divisions among brethren cease. We certainly bid him Godspeed in laboring to bring about such an end.

Our readers already know him favorably as a writer, preacher, and teacher. His is a record of work. He does not despair when difficulties are in the way, but goes to work to remove them out of the way. We bespeak for him the hearty support and encouragement of our readers.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

HAPPY HOLLOW.

Between 1870 and 1880 Brother Isaac C. Sewell did some evangelistic work in Lake County. So far as I can learn, he was the first of our brethren to enter that field. He baptized several. Brother Sewell rode a beautiful iron-gray mare with wavy mane and tail. He was real proud of that beautiful animal. One night while he was preaching, telling the people the way of life and salvation, some wicked wretch or wretches shaved off the mane and tail of his mare. The dear old brother was greatly mortified over such wickedness. He never went back again.

Happy Hollow recalls many exciting incidents, religiously, to the older citizens of that part of Lake County. Happy Hollow is where the Methodist and Presbyterians both had a small congregation; hence, a rivalry between them as to which could do the most shouting during a meeting as evidence of the work of the Holy Spirit. Shout they did. From these happy meetings originated the name, "Happy Hollow." The Holy Spirit operated in various ways on the people, so they claimed, to fill them with joy to overflowing.

The few scattered "Christians only" wanted some one to go and hold a meeting, so I was called for the task. They asked for the use of the house, "Happy Hollow," which was granted. The time came, and I went. The house would not hold the people who came to hear a strange and dangerous doctrine. The question box was put up and the questions poured in, many of them silly and ridiculous. Quite a difference in then and now. Now a question box will hang during a meeting and not a single question be put in it.

On the second Lord's day of the meeting the Presbyterian preacher came at three o'clock in the evening. It was said: "Williams will not show up, but will hide out." But, to their great surprise, Williams was there, and on the front seat. I shall never forget how that congregation eyed me while that man was preaching. His subject was, "The Security of the Believer." He labored to convince those who had recently "got religion and joined the church" that they could not fall away and be lost, but were eternally saved. He warned them against false teaching and dangerous doctrine, and for them to hold fast the good, old-time Presbyterian religion. It had its effect on his members, and I had a job on my hands.

Our meeting continued for several days. The ranks of the Baptist Church were broken—one whole family came out. Several were baptized. The place for baptizing was where there was "much water"—the Mississippi River. A skiff was secured, and two men (one a Presbyterian) got in the skiff and pulled out to sound the bottom all the way to a proper depth of water to baptize. I am sure we had to go at least fifty yards to find the water deep enough. One was the wife (now dead) of Brother J. W. Parks. It showed great faith on the part of a lady to go such a distance in that broad expanse of water. When we reached the anchored skiff, I baptized the candidate. In using the ceremony, I said "Holy Spirit" instead of "Holy Ghost." That fixed it with that Presbyterian. "I have him caught now! I knew he was a perverter." Just as soon as the baptizing was over, he hastened to get out and go to Tip-tonville to report to his preacher the great sin of that "Campbellite" preacher. "What do you think? He said 'Holy Spirit,' when it is 'Holy Ghost.' Something must be done to stop him." His preacher told him that I was correct in the use of "Holy Spirit" and in that respect had not perverted God's word. This was an unexpected bomb to the membership of "Happy Hollow," for they all knew the Bible said "Holy Ghost" and not "Holy Spirit," and accused the preacher of being tinctured with "Campbellism." Out of this contention resulted the conversion of many of the Presbyterians later.

The year following I held a meeting at Darnall's Schoolhouse, as "Happy Hollow" was closed against "Campbellism." In this meeting the ranks of Presbyterianism were broken, and long, long since the congregation ceased to exist. The schoolhouse was too small to accommodate the crowds, so the next year I went with a tent. On Sunday I was preaching on the "Establishment of the Church," using a chart. A shower of rain came up and the preaching stopped for a few minutes. A Baptist brother came to the rostrum, very angry. "Brother Williams, will you affirm in debate what you preach?" "Certainly," I said. While we were talking I had my pointer in my hand. He said: "Brother Williams, you lay down that stick." I laid it down. Later I shall tell of the results of the labor in Lake County.

Next, "A Call to Troy."

Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes.

BY W. EDGAR MILLER.

The last two Lord's days were good days at the Central church of Christ, 1720 South Flower Street. Brother Witty preached last Lord's day and Brother Wright the one before. The usual good crowds were present and the services were enjoyed by all.

Our hearts were made sad by the sudden death last week of Brother S. H. Sale, one of the charter members of Central congregation. Brother Witty preached the funeral sermon and conducted the services, assisted by Brother Fuqua, after which the remains were laid to rest in Forest Lawn Cemetery, there to await the resurrection morning. Our hearts go out in sympathy to the bereaved ones in this, their hour of sorrow; but we, with them, believe and hope that we shall see our brother again in that better land where there is no more parting and where God shall wipe away all tears.

Last evening (June 21), instead of the regular prayer meeting, Brother Wright preached one of his best sermons, taking for his subject "Drifting." I wish every member of the church could have heard that sermon. Every one of us needs it. Some of the good points emphasized in it were: It is the easiest thing in the world to drift, for you don't have to do anything—just do nothing; we never drift up stream, but always down; as we drift along, we bump into others and give them a downward impulse; if we continue to drift, we go onward and downward, and finally are carried out into the great ocean of eternity and are lost, and that forever. These are thoughts that each and every one of us should give the most serious consideration, and we should look to ourselves and see whether we are drifting. If we find that we are, there is no need to ask, "Where are we drifting?" A man is rowing a boat on a river. A few miles below him is a great cataract. He gets tired and stops rowing, and before he realizes it he dozes off to sleep. Some one on the shore sees him and raises a shout. This awakens him, and he sees that he is drifting; but he wastes no time in asking, "Where am I drifting?" He knows beyond any question that he is going over the falls to destruction. There is only one thing he can do, and this he must do, if he would be saved; that is, work, work with all his might, and he must not stop until his bark has touched the shore. And this same condition prevails with every Christian. His only salvation is work, work, work! Christ said: "My Father worketh hitherto, and I work." (John 5: 17.) Just as sure as we, as Christians, cease working, we will drift, and we can never drift into heaven. The prophet Amos said: "Woe to them that are at ease in Zion!" (Amos 6: 1.) Why? Because they were drifting to destruction. Let us think on these things.

The Worth of the Soul.

BY J. C. M'Q.

We give so little thought and care to the soul that one would naturally conclude it is of very little worth, yet it is worth more than a thousand worlds like this. "For what is a man profited, if he gain the whole world, and lose or forfeit his own self?" (Luke 9: 25.) When one comes to die, his earthly treasure is worthless. Man brought nothing into this world, neither can he carry anything out. Christians, however, give so much more attention to things strictly temporal than to things spiritual that the young are not long in finding it out. Christian parents are often careless about the literature their children read. They read cheap novels and the sensational trash of the day. They read of murders, thefts, defalcations, and outrages. They appear to be hungry to devour such reading. Some known as Christian parents are not too poor to furnish such reading for themselves and their children, but they pretend to be too poor to buy a good religious book costing a few dollars or a religious paper costing four cents a week! Is it any wonder that their children are worldly and care little or nothing for the religion of Christ? If we want to bring the people back to sanity, we as Christians must show more interest in the circulation and distribution of Bibles and of good books. We are molded by our reading more than by any other one thing. Often one article in a religious journal inspires some one to a nobler life. It is true that there is too much sin in the world, but no one can tell how much more there would be were it not for the efforts of godly journalists and pious people. It is a good work to encourage those who are fighting for the right. The bravest hearts would sometime despair were it not for the encouragement they receive. In the midst of cruel misrepresentations and persecutions, how often do the bravest of the brave and the noblest of the noble grow weary of the conflict! The great Paul cried out: "Wretched man that I am!" I am truly afraid to "knock" a righteous man who is helping me fight the battles of life, but I often pray God to give me the wisdom and courage that I need to fight evil, regardless of where or in whom it is found.

We want workers—workers who are willing to lead the fight against sin. We have a brave, noble band of workers in the field. They are doing a great work in selling Bibles, books, the Gospel Advocate, and Bible Lesson Helps. B. D. Morehead and the young men working under his direction are distributing many Bibles, good books, and taking many subscribers to the Gospel Advocate. They expect to make enough to be able to return to David Lipscomb College next September. Now is the time to help and encourage them in the work. We should all be busy doing good, as we pass this way but one time.

E. C. Love, our field editor, is at work in Middle Tennessee. The churches should have him preach for them. He is an able preacher, loves the truth, and will do you good. Take time to assist him in the work.

Send us a number of new subscribers to-day.

Atlanta (Ga.) Notes.

BY E. C. GOODPASTURE.

R. P. Cuff, of Macon, Ga., began a meeting at Rockmart, Ga., yesterday (June 25).

One was restored at the morning service at West End Avenue last Sunday.

Hugh E. Garrett, our efficient field man, enters the fourth week of a successful meeting at Chickamauga, Ga. To date there have been fifteen confessions. The interest has been unusual. Brethren from Chattanooga have contributed to the success of the meeting by their presence and encouragement. Garrett goes next to South Georgia for a two-months' campaign.

S. H. Hall closed a fine meeting at South Pryor Street, this city, on Sunday night. The house would not accommodate the audience. The West End Avenue and East Point congregations dismissed their Sunday-evening services for the meeting. Of course, as would be expected, the South Pryor congregation has been greatly strengthened by this meeting, but the other congregations have been helped as well. As respects visible results, fifteen were baptized and eight were restored. Much good was done that cannot be mentioned in terms of visible results. We are all looking forward to the meeting we have asked Brother Hall to conduct at West End Avenue next spring.

Is the Confession Essential to Salvation?

BY J. C. HOLLIS.

From Rom. 10: 10 the reader can see that the confession is a step unto salvation. But some people seem to think that this step is made in the act of baptism. But just remember that Paul, the divine writer, says that it is made with the "mouth." I fear that we do not stress the importance of this command as much as we should. (Matt. 10: 32, 33.) If you will read the conversion of the eunuch (Acts 8: 26-40), you can see that the confession that Philip required him to make bears no similarity to the one that is required by our religious friends. Yet some of our twentieth-century preachers insist on people becoming identified with the people of God on such a confession. Now here is the confession that they require a candidate for baptism to make: "Do you believe that God for Christ's sake has pardoned your sins?" The answer is: "I do." Please compare the above with Acts 8: 37. Now, if God commands a candidate for baptism to make "the confession," then why should not we demand the same of him? But, on the other hand, if this step is not essential, then why should we go to this extra trouble?

Let the church be true to her charter—true to the ideals set forth by her divine Lord; let her lay aside the pretense of virtue and practice courageously that which she exists to show forth; and as it was with the Lord's teaching in ancient days, the common people will hear her gladly.—Shirley C. Hughson.

Query Department

BY J. C. McQUIDDY

W. H. West, Haydenburg, Tenn., asks these questions: "(1) Does 1 Cor. 7: 9 apply to both male and female? (2) If a young brother marries a woman who is not a Christian and who never becomes one, do the Scriptures teach that he will be lost?"

1. "But if they have not continency, let them marry: for it is better to marry than to burn." (1 Cor. 7: 9.) The passage applies to both male and female. If they cannot control their desires, it is best to marry.

2. A man shall account for himself to God. Marrying out of Christ will not damn a man. If he continues faithful to the end, he will be saved.

✻ ✻ ✻

Mrs. M. L. Brown, Rockwood, Tenn., asks an explanation of Mal. 4: 5; Matt. 18: 8, 9; Matt. 18: 24-35.

1. "Behold, I will send you Elijah the prophet before the great and terrible day of Jehovah come." (Mal. 4: 5.) This evidently refers to John the Baptist, who came in the spirit and power of Elijah. "And he shall go before his face in the spirit and power of Elijah, to turn the hearts of the fathers to the children, and the disobedient to walk in the wisdom of the just; to make ready for the Lord a people prepared for him." (Luke 1: 17.)

2. "And if thy hand or thy foot causeth thee to stumble, cut it off, and cast it from thee: it is good for thee to enter into life maimed or halt, rather than having two hands or two feet to be cast into the eternal fire. And if thine eye causeth thee to stumble, pluck it out, and cast it from thee: it is good for thee to enter into life with one eye, rather than having two eyes to be cast into the hell of fire." (Matt. 18: 8, 9.) The meaning is, if an object which is as dear to you as your hand or foot or your eye lead you into sin, you should part with it. It does not mean that a man has no better way to shun hell; but if he had no better, he should pluck out his eye, rather than to be cast into hell.

3. Matt. 18: 24-35. These passages teach an important lesson on forgiveness. A servant owed his lord an immense sum which he was unable to pay. His lord commanded him to be sold; but when the servant fell down and worshiped him, promising him that if he would be patient he would pay all, the lord forgave him the debt. This same servant went out and found a fellow servant who owed him a hundred pence. He took him by the throat and demanded of him to pay all, which was only about sixteen dollars. The fellow servant pleaded: "Have patience with me, and I will pay thee all." But the servant to whom so much had been forgiven would not forgive. It is even so now. Those who have been forgiven much by the Lord refuse to forgive their fellow beings little. We must forgive if we expect to be forgiven. "For if ye forgive men their trespasses, your heavenly Father will also forgive you. But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." (Matt. 6: 14, 15.)

✻ ✻ ✻

A. Floyd, Ada, Okla., sends in the following: "Is it wrong for girls to appear on a fixed program of girls and boys who meet at the church house once a week to study Bible topics? The programs consist of boys and girls who are not all Christians, and the only preference given is the leader. The selected leader is always a Christian boy, who opens the meeting by reading a chapter and prayer. The object of the meetings is to furnish wholesome work for our children in training them for more and better service. Are we, as fathers and mothers, Christians, and elders, doing any violence to God's work when we lend our indorsement and aid, at the same time emphasizing the fact that the girls are not to usurp authority, make elders or preachers?"

Simply meeting in the church house does not make this a church. In the church women are to keep silent. "Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak." (1 Cor. 14: 34.) I do not know how to make this plainer. There is a decided difference between a girl's reading or reciting a piece in a school entertainment and in teaching publicly in the church. There is nothing directly said in the New Testament as to what girls should do in schools or what they should not do, but Christians are required to bring up their children "in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." It is safe for parents and teachers to train girls in harmony with the New Testament. They should be careful not to encourage them to do things that later might lead them to do things that are forbidden in the word of God.

✻ ✻ ✻

John Bonds, Trenton, Tenn., writes of a brother who says the Bible does not condemn working on the Lord's day. He also asks an explanation of Heb. 4: 10 in regard to working on the Lord's day: "For he that is entered into his rest hath himself also rested from his works." This has no reference to resting on the Lord's day, but has reference to the final rest from all labor, struggles, and trials that remaineth to the people of God. When God rested from the creation, the type of the true rest, his works ceased. The law of the land condemns working on Sunday. The Bible requires us to obey "the powers that be." To resist, in a case of this kind, the powers ordained of God is to be in rebellion to God. When the civil authority conflicts with the law of God, then we are to obey God and not man. But when it comes to working on Sunday, there is no conflict; so we should obey the higher powers.

✻ ✻ ✻

I am requested to answer the following questions through the Gospel Advocate: "If a brother is appointed elder in the church with a believing wife and children, and after a time his wife or children turn from the faith, does that disqualify or make him lose his office as elder of the church of God? (See 1 Tim. 3: 11; Tit. 1: 6.)"

The scriptures referred to read: "Women in like manner must be grave, not slanderers, temperate, faithful in all things." (1 Tim. 3: 11.) "If any man is blameless, the husband of one wife, having children that believe, who are not accused of riot or unruly." (Tit. 1: 6.) Surely God does not stop his faithful servant from serving him because a wife or children apostatize and fall away. "So then each one of us shall give account of himself to God." (Rom. 14: 12.) God did not take Eli and Samuel out of the priesthood because they had had children. Should we demand that a faithful elder resign a duty because his wife and children die? Such action would not be supported by the Bible, common sense, or by custom. David Lipscomb correctly taught that it was not absolutely necessary for an elder to have a wife and children. He says: "We believe an unmarried or childless man, if otherwise qualified, may be a bishop or a deacon. I think where the Scripture says 'the husband of one wife,' it means he must have but one wife and be true to her. Then he speaks of his having children. It means, since the rule was to have children, if he has them, he must rule them well. But if a man knoweth not how to rule his own house, how shall he take care of the church of God?" (1 Tim. 3: 5.) This shows the end of the wife and children was disciplinary to teach and train the persons for the work of caring for the house of God. Now, if a man gets his training in some other way and shows his fitness of ruling, even though he has no family of his own, shall the church be deprived of his proved talent?" ("Queries and Answers," by Lipscomb and Sewell, page 204.)

Home Reading

Working for Christ.

BY BERT HUDDLESTON.

"See you later, boys," said Benny Cantrell as the group of boys with which he was walking down the street turned into a pool hall. He had said these very words and others similar many times, for he always held himself above the practices of lounging around such places.

"Come on in, Ben," invited one of the boys.

"Can't hear you, Ed; that's no place for me," Benny replied as he walked on down the street.

At the next corner he met two of his girl schoolmates.

"Have you seen Ed?" one of the girls asked.

"Yes, he is up at the pool hall now."

"O, is he? Do you play pool? I think it's such a fine game for boys. Teaches them skill and accuracy. I sure do wish I were a boy, so I could go with you and play every day," she continued delightedly.

"I'm afraid you'd have to play pool with some one besides me," said Benny.

"Why wouldn't you play with me the same as you would with any one else?" she asked.

"Perhaps I would," he returned, "if I played. But I don't play, because it is no more good for a boy than it is for a girl. Boys should be ashamed to do things like that in which the girls cannot partake."

"Do you shun the pool halls, really?" asked the other girl. "I'm so glad. If I were a boy, you would never see me there. And, Benny, you just keep on staying away from them, no matter what the other boys have to say about it. That's not the place for a boy who ever intends to be a man."

The girl who had spoken first now spoke again. Her lips slightly curled to a sneer as she said: "Well, I must be going. Got company for to-night. See you kids some other time."

By the time she had finished her speech she was quite a way up the street, and Benny was left standing on the corner with Etta Hurst, who, in his opinion and probably in the opinion of many others, was the prettiest girl he had ever seen. He had always complimented himself on the good luck that he and Etta both lived on the same street, and now they walked down this street talking in enlightened tones.

They were, indeed, a lovely couple—she, a very beautiful girl who knew right from wrong, and who attended Sunday school and church regularly; and he, a boy who shunned all practices of the bad habits so luring to a boy of his age. Benny also attended Sunday school and church, and, like Etta, had obeyed the gospel. Both had found it much easier to live their lives in Jesus Christ than to live a sinful life, or, to say the least, a careless life. Both were earnest church workers, and as they walked toward home they vowed to work together in the interests of the church.

"There are lots of boys and girls here who should be in the Sunday schools, and it is our duty as Christians to see that they attend," said Etta.

"I've been doing a great deal along this line, but I have not been doing nearly so much as I could," admitted Benny.

"Of course, we've both been working; but we can renew our efforts, and there will be quite a change if we work hard enough."

The next Sunday saw two or three additions to the Sunday-school class, and Benny made a talk, inspiring the members of the class to start a campaign to get more boys and girls interested in the church work. After the services, Etta and Benny were talking, when Etta said: "Before I start out to be a missionary, I suppose I'd better begin at home."

"Why?" Benny asked.

"Because that brother of mine won't come to church. I just begged him to come this morning, but he absolutely refused. I guess it's up to us to get him here before we spend too much time with the others."

"We'll have to get after him, all right. If he ever gets started, he will continue to attend, because we will build up a good class here—one that the boys and girls will be glad to call their own."

Three weeks later Etta and Benny went for a walk through the city park to listen to the chattering squirrels and the singing birds and to be enchanted by the fragrance of the sweet flowers. They talked of the beauties of nature—the graceful trees, the streaming sunlight, the grasses—everything seemed beautiful. Nothing troubled them except the one problem—how to get Etta's brother, James, interested in the work for Christ.

"James never associates with the rougher boys," said Etta. "He's always so nice to every one, and it's really a pity to see him out of the church."

"It's a pity to see any one out of the church, Etta, but thousands and thousands of people are doing exactly what your brother is doing. They're staying away from the Savior for some pretended reason—they know not what it is—but they stay away intending to come to Christ some day; yet the longer they hold themselves away, the harder it is to ever get them to see the light. Many wait too long. But James must be shown the right way, and we must show it to him."

"We'll have a talk with him to-night and see what we can do. About as good a plan as I know would be to—"

"Help! Help! Help!"

These cries came from the city lake at the edge of the park, and there was no mistaking them. Some one was in danger of drowning. Etta and Benny started toward the lake.

"Don't wait on me," Etta advised, and at once Benny was running as fast as he could. By the time Etta reached the lake Benny had thrown off his shoes and cap and was plunging into the lake. Out there in the water was a boy, struggling for life, bobbing up and down like a cork, and yelling in terrified tones all the time he could keep his head above the water.

Benny was a good swimmer, and soon the boy, who from the first had been recognized as James Hurst, was safely laid on the sandy shore. He was unconscious now, having kept up for quite a while in spite of a cramped leg.

"I thought James could swim," said Etta, as Benny worked with her brother.

"No one could swim with a cramp like that," Benny answered. "He's lucky to have stayed up at all."

James was breathing easier now, and stirred a little. As he became aware of himself, and before he opened his eyes, he heard his sister's voice.

"O, what if he'd drowned, and not a child of God! He must obey the gospel before something else happens to him."

James was feeling better now, and the few words of his sister impressed him deeply.

"I heard that," he said, opening his eyes, "and I promise you that I'll be prepared in case it ever happens again."

The next Sunday the angels of heaven had cause to rejoice. Another soul was saved.

✻ ✻ ✻

Among the Arabian tribes, when the master goes on a trip across the country on his camel, he has two goatskins filled with milk swung across the animal's back, and the contents are churned into butter by the rolling stride of the animal.—Exchange.

At Home and Abroad

Harry Hayes preached at Hornbeak, Tenn., on June 25.

E. C. Coffman writes from Knoxville, Tenn., June 29, that he closed a three-weeks' meeting at Rogersville, Tenn., with eighteen baptisms and eight restorations.

From Albert R. Hill, Charleston, Miss., June 26: "We had good attendance at all services yesterday. At the evening service one made the good confession."

From C. E. Holt, Florence, Ala., June 28: "We had a fine day at old Stony Point last Lord's day. Three entered the Master's vineyard. The congregation at Stony Point is in fine condition."

N. B. Hardeman closed the meeting at Dickson, Tenn., last Thursday night, with thirty-five baptisms. There was fine interest throughout the meeting. He is now engaged in a meeting at Conway, Ark.

The church at McKinney, Texas, is planning to build a house of worship in the central part of the city. They have an option on the lot, and they need fifteen hundred dollars together with their holdings in order to make the deal.

Miss Mamie Wall, a trained nurse and a woman of excellent reputation, offers her services to the brotherhood. If you want a good Christian for a nurse, write or call her, in care of T. J. Derryberry, 1023 Seventeenth Avenue, South, Nashville, Tenn.

From Leslie G. Thomas, Route 1, Melvin, Mich., June 26: "Great crowds attended both our services yesterday. Several from Flint were present at the morning services. Some of the churches are discontinuing their evening services for the summer. We are pressing the battle in Jesus' name."

From T. C. Fox, Natchez, Miss., June 19: "Several days ago I received a letter from a Mr. Miller at Hillsboro, asking me to hold a meeting there. The fourth Sunday in June was too early, so I will not be able to go until fall. I will do my best to go wherever I am called. I have arranged for several meetings during the summer and fall."

"Hardeman's Tabernacle Sermons" will be ready for delivery next week. Those who have sent in orders may call at the office and get theirs. If they do not, the book will be mailed to them. All know that this is an excellent book. If you desire one or more copies, we urge that you place your order at once before the present supply is exhausted.

From Allen Phy, Algood, Tenn., June 27: "I have just closed a good meeting at Linary, Cumberland County, Tenn., with large crowds and interest high throughout. The meeting continued nine days. Thirteen were baptized, fourteen were restored, and one brother from a congregation in Ohio took his stand with them. They had been meeting only twice a month, but will meet every Lord's day now."

From T. B. Clark, Gallatin, Tenn., June 26: "Our work in Gallatin is very good for such hot weather. The meeting at Hot Springs, Ark., will begin on the second Sunday in July. The congregation here has decided to make it partly its own. I need a singer for the meeting, and I am asking brethren who are interested in the meeting as a mission to help us out. You can write me in care of Dr. E. W. Gossett, 508 Hobson Avenue, Hot Springs, Ark."

From John B. Hardeman, Fulton, Ky.: "The Fulton meeting closed on June 27. Large crowds were in attendance during the meeting, and twelve were added to the church. The song service was in charge of C. C. Johnson, of Scott's Hill, Tenn. He is an efficient leader, and our churches should keep him busy. My next meeting will be at Cottage Grove. I am booked for meetings until September 1, at which time I enter the school work again."

From J. W. Howell, Columbus, Miss., June 25: "The day here has been filled with encouragement among us. We had a very interesting review of God's dealings with the children of Israel for the quarter just ended. At eleven o'clock we had a short sermon, at the close of which we were made to rejoice at seeing one precious soul turn unto Him who is able to save us from sin. The baptizing was attended to in the afternoon. Preaching again at night. All this by home forces."

C. H. Smithson, Hatfield, Ark., writes under date of June 27: "I am now in a fine meeting at Bloomburg, Texas. The crowds are large and interest fine. I hope to do much good while here. This is a Baptist stronghold, and they are of the most ignorant type. Still, many seem anxious to hear; but a preacher who lives here is trying to keep them from the truth. My next meeting will be at home (Hatfield), then Dierks and Ben Lomond, Ark. I have time for a meeting the last of August. If interested, write me at Hatfield, Ark."

R. L. Ludlam, Jr., writes from Fort Smith, Ark., June 19: "Wife and I worshiped at Williams, Okla., yesterday. The church had not met for worship for many months. We had a large audience, principally young people. There are only four members there who make any claim of faith. This makes seven places within a radius of twenty-five miles of Fort Smith which once had a congregation, but no longer meet for worship. The work can be revived by a meeting at each place. Can we have the fellowship of the churches and give ourselves to this work? We cannot do it without aid."

C. A. Lancaster, Pohenwald, Tenn., writes: "I am farming through the week and preaching on Saturday night and on Sunday at eleven and three o'clock. This is a mission field among the poor, and I have more calls than I can fill. On June 17 I preached on Swan Creek, in Lewis County. I enjoyed my visit very much, and promised to hold a meeting for them in September, if I can find the time. This is the old home of S. M. Spears. I preached to my old home congregation on the second Lord's day in June, to an unusually large crowd. They spread dinner on the ground, and we enjoyed ourselves together. I am glad the Lord is blessing me so that I can go to the destitute places."

J. Pettet Ezell, minister of the church of Christ at Cookeville, Tenn., writes as follows: "I am glad to report the work at Cookeville in a healthful condition. The interest along all lines has been one of steady growth. The indications are that a better day is dawning upon us. So far as I can discern, the church is at peace and in accord in its every endeavor. The attendance at all services has steadily increased. The Lord's-day contributions have more than trebled. In addition to this, a note of twenty-one hundred dollars against the preacher's home was liquidated and the note presented to the church yesterday. Two splendid young men were baptized on June 18. A number of young men are being trained to participate in various parts of the public worship. In my absence, on June 25, Prof. A. W. Smith preached at 11 A.M. and Prof. J. M. Hatfield at 8 P.M. On July 2, Prof. Q. M. Smith will preach at 11 A.M. and W. A. Hensley at 8 P.M. It has never been my privilege to live and labor with a more appreciative or a more responsive people. Surely the blessings of the Lord are upon us, and more and more the church of Christ will come into its designed influence in the community. Brother Larimore is to be with us for a month, beginning on the first Sunday in August, and we anticipate not only a feast of good things for the household of faith, but also an ingathering of many precious souls. At present (June 26) I am in the second day of my fourth meeting with the splendid little church at Springfield, Tenn., with Brother Elam Derryberry, of Portland, Tenn., assisting in the song service."

From Joe W. White, Fort Worth, Texas, June 21: "I have resigned the work at the Diamond Hill Church here, to take effect on September 1, and will go to a new field to labor. When I first came here, there were twenty-eight members of this congregation. We held a meeting and gained twenty-two more, the majority of them by baptism. Since that time seven others have been added, making a total of fifty-seven. Of course, some of them have not proved faithful. We have labored under the hardest sort of difficulties. I have never heard of a congregation as small as this trying to support a man for all of his time. The church is composed entirely of working people. During the last few months there has been a financial strain on the congregation and me, which seemed impossible to endure. By the help of God, we have managed in some way to survive. It has been a hard fight to overcome the prejudice and contempt of the sectarians. However, I now have a multitude of friends among them. This has not been accomplished by sacrificing any principle, but by preaching the truth in love, instead of hunting for some one to 'skin.' Our audiences have grown from a mere handful to a household. At a recent service we had more than six hundred people present. Our Bible classes have increased from an average attendance of thirty-seven in January to seventy-three in May. I regret having to leave here when prospects are so bright, but my financial sacrifices have made it impossible for me to remain. I want to express our appreciation of the brotherly fellowship of the Central and Glenwood churches of this city."

O. C. Lambert preached at Belmont Avenue Church, this city, last Sunday, morning and evening.

F. B. Srygley closed a meeting in Chicago, Ill., on June 25. On June 28 he began a debate on the music question with O. H. Gast, at Portsmouth, Ohio.

J. S. Daugherty writes from Kirbyville, Texas, June 26: "I closed at Cravens, La., June 25, with one baptism and the congregation greatly encouraged. I am to begin at Hevistown, Shelby County, Texas, on July 1. West Texas and Eastern Louisiana is indeed a great mission field. There is room there for a hundred gospel preachers."

From H. R. Daniel, Elkton, Ky., June 29: "I began a meeting at Millerstown on the third Lord's day in June and continued it ten days, resulting in six baptisms and many almost persuaded. We had good audiences at all the services, and the brethren think we had the best meeting they ever had at that place. The church was encouraged and a great deal of prejudice was removed. They certainly know how to entertain the preacher."

From J. C. Pendergrass, Livingston, Tenn., June 28: "I began a mission meeting at Elm Grove on the first Lord's day in June, which continued over three weeks, with services only at night. We were hindered much because of rain, as we had no shelter for our services. The farmers also were very busy. In spite of these things, we had large crowds, good attention, and the very best of order. Three were baptized, and I am sure that good was done otherwise. I go to Walnut Grove on July 1 for a week's meeting. I will be busy all the year."

From L. R. Wilson, Searcy, Ark., June 17: "The meeting at Heber Springs closed on June 16, with fifteen baptisms and a fine prospect for a great harvest later. I will return at the same date next year. Brother Harper will also return and lead the singing. He is one of the very finest singers among us. He appears well and makes a favorable impression wherever he goes. After we leave Hickory Ridge, he will join N. B. Hardeman for three meetings, but is not yet engaged from the fifth Sunday in July to the second Sunday in August. If you desire his services, address him—R. E. Harper, Enalia, Ark."

From A. T. Hamiter, Enterprise, Ala., June 27: "Our meeting here continues with fine interest day and night. The auditorium is filled each night. People of the denominations are attending well, many of whom never attended before. The brethren are visiting us from Dothan, Ozark, and Opp. I shall close here in time to begin at Christian Home on July 2. I would be glad to have a few more meetings in Alabama, Mississippi, Arkansas, or Tennessee before returning to my home at Avon Park, Fla. I could arrange for a meeting to begin on July 15 or later. Address me at Newton, Ala., care J. T. Rains, or Avon Park, Fla."

From Adair P. Chapman, Berlin, Ga., June 24: "Flavil Hall, of Trion, Ga., has been in a mission meeting at Jackson, near Moultrie, for the past two weeks. I was with him yesterday afternoon and last night. Brother Hall knows how to preach, and to know him is to love him. Up to last night four persons who had been living in the Baptist Church had accepted the gospel and desired to be Christians only. Some people are seeking the kingdom of God and will obey the truth when they know it; others seem to be satisfied with the doctrines and commandments of men. We are expecting Hugh E. Garrett and G. E. Claus to do some preaching in this section this summer."

E. E. Shoulders, New York City, writes, June 24: "Summer is here, and so are we. Though we cannot do her work, we are trying to do our own as best we can. On the past two Wednesday evenings we have proclaimed the good news on the street corners in the heart of the city. We spoke not in tongues, but to those of different tongues, as our hearers consisted of both white and black, Jew and Gentile. Every day I am impressed more and more that this is the greatest mission field in all the country. The work is started, and I can hardly see how we can afford to drop it. Only sixty-one dollars per month is coming in from outside sources. I earnestly hope that more churches and individuals will give the New York work their support."

R. H. Johnson, Morrilton, Ark., writes: "Sometime last year Brother York, a colored preacher, converted A. J. Gilmer, who before was a Baptist preacher. Brother Gilmer is now located at Morrilton, and desires to spend his time working among the colored people. He is a man of exceptional ability. As there are only two or three small congregations of Christians among the colored folks in this part of the State, if he does the work he contemplates, his support must come from some other source. I am asking the colored people to call Brother Gilmer for meetings and by this means keep him busy. I would be glad if the white brethren would fellowship him in his work. I have promised to receive all donations and acknowledge same. I believe this is mission work; and should we not help the colored people here in our midst as well as those in foreign lands?"

From W. T. Hines, Braman, Okla.: "I held a mission meeting a year ago in Blackwell, Okla., in a pavilion belonging to the city. We gathered together about thirty-five members. Since that time they have continued to worship in the pavilion; but there has arisen some persecution, and they are going to be compelled to give up their present place of meeting. This is a town of seven thousand population, and they want very much to purchase a lot and build in a central place. They are able to raise only five hundred dollars. Some lots a mile out of town can be bought for three hundred dollars, but the lot they want in town will cost four thousand dollars. Which shall they buy? We feel that they can accomplish something if centrally located, otherwise not. This is a worthy cause, but we must rally to its support or it will fail. One was added to their number last Lord's day."

W. F. Lemmons, Little Rock, Ark., writes under date of June 28: "I have just closed a very interesting meeting at Blox, Texas, with four additions, and established a congregation, and they will meet every Lord's day in the theater building. This is a new mill town of about one thousand population, and we have never had a congregation in the town. The few members are greatly encouraged and express determination to do their duty. We had much to hinder in the beginning. Rain the first three nights crippled the meeting, and then the picture show got in the way, as our arbor joined fast to the side of the theater building. We had permission to put the arbor there and to use the seats from the theater; but the opposite force tried to run it over us, and we gave way two nights and went to the school building. Finally the manager of the mill put the show to rest until we got through with the meeting. All in all, the meeting was considered a very successful one, and they want me back this fall."

From H. N. Mann, Riverside, Tenn., June 12: "On June 3 I conducted funeral services at the burial of Sister Tennie Whitehead, aged seventy-eight years, at Topsy, Tenn. On June 10 I conducted the funeral of Sister Ann Pope, aged one hundred and four years, at the same place. These sisters had been members of the church of Christ fifty-four years. They were baptized by E. A. Land, who departed this life some years ago. On June 8 I conducted funeral services at the burial of Sister Rachel D. Robnett, aged ninety-four years, lacking two and one-half months. This sister was buried at Walnut Grove, on Forty-Eight Creek. Some one has preached the gospel in this country in the long ago, if the laborers are so few now. I have been blessed so far this year to fill all appointments, and usually preach two sermons on Lord's day. When possible, I preach at some place of worship, and then go to some schoolhouse or new place for the evening service. May the good Lord help us to sow the seed of the kingdom while it is day; for the night cometh, when work will end. Then the reward will come."

Fred M. Little, Montgomery, Ala., writes as follows: "I spent five days (June 19-24) laboring with the little band of Christians at Columbus, Ga. About twenty members meet for worship in a small storehouse which they rented on North Highland Street. We hope to have some preacher to locate in that city who will spend all of his time in preaching publicly and from house to house, and in time, no doubt, the church will become strong enough to buy or build a house of worship. Columbus is a progressive Southern city with a population of more than forty thousand inhabitants, with all the modern conveniences of a much larger city. It is a manufacturing center, and has more than a dozen large cotton mills. In these mills thousands of men and women labor for their living. It appears to me that a great opportunity is open to go among these humble people and teach them the way of life. A home for a single man is assured, and others are willing to help toward the support of a preacher. I spent the few days I was there in preaching, visiting, distributing literature, and soliciting subscribers for our papers. Whoever does the work will be treated well, but will have to be content with the necessities of life till the church becomes stronger. R. W. Staggers, Box 933, Columbus, Ga., will be pleased to give any information desired concerning the work."

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you. This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrears paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 217-219 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate," and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

Eternal Punishment.

BY J. C. M'Q.

Whatever punishment God sees proper to inflict upon the wicked after death will be terrible enough, and all should conduct themselves through life so as to avoid any punishment after death. Instead of discussing the duration of punishment, it is far better to devote our time and talents to living a righteous life so that after death we will avoid all punishment. But it seems that many people prefer to deal with the impractical rather than with the practical. The following has been sent to me by Mrs. Mayo Brown, of Marvell, Ark., with the request that I give it some attention:

I have just read a book called "The Great Controversy Between Christ and Satan," written by Mrs. E. G. White, the thirty-third chapter of which teaches no eternal punishment, but punishment for a time according to deeds done in the body, then utter destruction. (Ps. 37: 10, 38; 91: 5; 145: 20.) She teaches that life or immortality comes only through obedience to God or Christ. (Ezek. 33: 11; Rom. 6: 23.) He that overcometh has access to the tree of life. (Rev. 2: 7.) There being a resurrection of the just and unjust (Acts 24: 15; John 5: 29), what is the second death spoken of in Rev. 20: 6 and Rev. 21: 8, unless it is eternal destruction of the wicked? Matt. 25: 46 and Rev. 14: 11 seem to teach everlasting punishment. Please reconcile other scriptures given with the two last mentioned, at your convenience, through the Gospel Advocate.

There is no difficulty in harmonizing Matt. 25: 46 and Rev. 14: 11 with the other scriptures mentioned. Not one of the scriptures referred to teaches anything clearly as to the duration of punishment after death. Ps. 37: 10 reads: "For yet a little while, and the wicked shall not be: yea, thou shalt diligently consider his place, and he shall not be." This is a prediction of the destruction of Babylon, which at the time was in its splendor. The captives lived to see it completely overthrown by Cyrus. Verse 38 of the same chapter teaches that the posterity of the wicked shall be cut off. God, in his mercy and goodness, sometimes cuts off evil in this life. Ps. 9: 5 says: "Thou hast rebuked the nations, thou hast destroyed the wicked; thou hast blotted out their name forever and ever." This probably refers to the Canaanitish nation, which God destroyed from off the face of the earth. The other passages referred to teach absolutely nothing as to the duration of punishment after death.

This world is the scene of conflict and probation. Here God presents and inflicts punishment on sin. He gives many sweet and precious promises to them that obey him. Terrible are his threatenings against the disobedient. He holds up to them the horrors of hell to warn them to flee the wrath to come. He presents the life and truth of his Son, the guidance of the Spirit, the work of the church, the warnings from the Spirit and that abound in his word, to woo men to righteousness and to wean them from evil. The providences of this life work to bring men to repentance. "Say unto them, As I live, saith the Lord Jehovah, I have no pleasure in the death of the wicked; but that the wicked turn from his way and live: turn ye, turn ye from your evil ways; for why will ye die, O house of Israel?" (Ezek. 33: 11.) If man rejects these, he passes into the future state where probation ceases, where the Holy Spirit does not dwell, where divine love no longer invites to repentance, and where dwell "the fearful, and unbelieving, and abominable, and murderers, and fornicators, and sorcerers, and idolaters, and all liars." Those who now resist all the holy and hallowed influences that God brings to bear upon them will go where no church exists, where are no good associations, where Christ the Savior never goes, and "their part shall be in the lake that burneth with fire and brimstone: which is the second death." If a man will not repent in this life, how can he repent in the life to come, surrounded only by evil and evil influences? So long as he is impenitent, he must suffer for his sins and impenitence. "He that is unrighteous, let him do unrighteousness still: and he that is filthy, let him be made filthy still: and he that is righteous, let him do righteousness still: and he that is holy, let him be made holy still." (Rev. 22: 11.) The man who will not repent during life will not repent throughout eternity; the man who is obedient through life will be holy throughout eternity. "And these shall go away into eternal punishment: but the righteous into eternal life." (Matt. 25: 46.) The punishment and reward terminate at exactly the same time. The same word in the Greek qualifies "punishment" and "life." The space that measures the life is the same that measures the punishment. The word translated "eternal" exhausts the time of the institution or period to which it refers. As examples: When it was said certain things should exist forever among the Jews, it meant they should exist to the end of the Jewish state; when it is said of an earthly kingdom that it shall exist forever, it means it shall last so long as the earthly state of man continues; when it was said a man should be a king forever, it meant he should be a king throughout his life. It exhausts the period to which reference is made. When anything of the future state is affirmed to be eternal, the duration of that thing must exhaust the future spiritual state. As that state has no end, that which is said to be eternal in it, whether punishment or life, joy or sorrow, must have no end, must continue forever. Whatever is eternal in that state must continue as long as God exists. When punishment after death is said to be eternal, it must continue forever. That punishment is eternal is clear from Rev. 14: 11: "And the smoke of their torment goeth up forever and ever; and they have no rest day and night, they that worship the beast and his image, and whoso receiveth the mark of his name."

In Matt. 3: 12 it is said of Christ that he "will burn up the chaff with unquenchable fire." Unquenchable fire is fire that cannot be quenched. This passage refers to the final punishment of the wicked and that their punishment will be unending. In Mark 9: 43, 48 we read: "And if thy hand cause thee to stumble, cut it off: it is good for thee to enter into life maimed, rather than having thy two hands to go into hell, into the unquenchable fire; . . . Where their worm dieth not, and the fire is not quenched." The word "hell" in verse 43 is from "Gehenna," representing the place of torment into which the wicked will be cast. The worm that dieth not in verse 48 represents the soul of the wicked, which will continue to be punished in the fire that will never be quenched. As long as "Gehenna" represents the place where the fires of torment will forever burn, so long will the wicked be punished.

Mrs. White and her followers may say that there is no eternal torment, but such teaching will not stand in the face of the plain teaching of the word of God on the subject of hell and eternal punishment. God's word will abide forever.

An Inconsistent Attitude.

BY E. W. SMITH.

The Western Recorder, one of the leading organs of Southern Baptists, in its issue of June 22, under the subject, "The Outgrown Christ," has the following:

The Christian Century, an undenominational journal of religion published in the city of Chicago, requested President Faunce of Brown University to write about the future of the Baptists from the Baptist point of view, and the following week Bishop McConnell of the Methodist Church was asked to treat the same subject from the point of view of the outsider.

The article of the learned and popular bishop appeared in the May 11 number and is interesting. To quote from his article: "I doubt if a church is altogether pure in its democracy when it exalts a mere rite as does the Baptist denomination in preaching immersion. I have been frequenting all manner of public church assemblies in the past thirty years, listening to all manner of ecclesiastical arguments. I have yet to hear a democratic argument for the requirement of immersion. Of course the stock contention is that immersion is the New Testament mode of baptism. Suppose it is? Does that give it any binding force on us to-day?"

We are coming into strange days when one of the leaders of religion in the second most important denomination in America can stand up and say that we have outgrown Christ. Yet such an assertion is clearly and boldly made. Still it is the source of a good deal of gratification that the leaders of these denominations will come out in the open. They used to stand behind flimsy pretexts and convince their followers that sprinkling was taught in the Bible. They used to lug out the Philippian jailer and "his family" to prove infant sprinkling by, but thank God they have gotten to a more honorable stage. The Greek of Jesus' time was as full as it is to-day. Jesus said: "Go and baptize [not rantize]." If he had been as broad as some of us desire our poor deluded Christ of the first century, but not near up-to-date enough for the twentieth, he would have said: "Go into all the world and preach the gospel, baptizing, and sprinkling those who do not want to be baptized." But Jesus did not want that. He said: "Immersion is my method of admission, and that is just what I want."

The foregoing furnishes grounds for very serious reflection, for it shows the limits to which men will exalt human wisdom. Assuming the Recorder has correctly represented this bishop of the Methodist Church, it can be seen at a glance that he cares precious little for the authority of Jesus Christ, because, after tacitly admitting that the New Testament enjoins immersion, he waves such authority aside with the astounding statement: "Does that give it any binding force on us to-day?" According to the principle involved in the Bishop's statement, it is well to ask: Is there anything taught in the New Testament binding on us to-day? If the religious world has "outgrown" the command to be immersed and something else can be substituted for that act, why will not the same be true of everything else that Christ taught or commanded? In fact, will not the same principle, carried to its logical conclusion, do away with the Christ himself and permit the substitution of some other leader as the whims of "advanced (?) thought" may demand? Well, that is exactly what many so-called "religious teachers" have done. They have stripped Christ of his divinity and fixed up a Christ after their own fashion, and are turning the earth upside down in their efforts to palm off on the world their man-made Savior.

The Christian Century, from which the Recorder quotes, is of very doubtful integrity when it comes to the divinity of Christ, the miracles of revelation, and the binding authority of Christ. At least, it does not seem to be in full fellowship with the Christian Standard along these lines; and since it is an avowed advocate of the "open membership" craze, it, too, regards not the authority of Christ. This bishop of the Methodist Church, by his revolutionary statement regarding one solemn command of the Lord Jesus Christ, has virtually repudiated the entire word of God and placed himself in a position where he cannot consistently insist upon the binding force of anything taught in the Bible from Genesis to Revelation. O, the tragedy of it all! Men becoming wise above that which is written, and exalting their wisdom until it becomes deified, and before which they and their deluded followers bow and worship.

But what about the Western Recorder? In the scathing criticism it pronounces on the utterance of this bishop of the Methodist Church, does it not assume the attitude of "the pot crying black to the kettle?" While the Bishop repudiates the binding authority of the New Testament regarding one feature of baptism and substitutes his own wisdom, does not the Recorder repudiate another feature of New Testament authority regarding the same ordinance and substitute a tradition of man instead? Let us see. The same Being that commanded immersion also expressed the purpose for which he commanded it. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." (Mark 16: 16.) "Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins." (Acts 2: 38.) "And now why tarriest thou? arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy sins, calling on his name." (Acts 22: 16.) "For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ." (Gal. 3: 27.) "Which also after a true likeness doth now save you, even baptism." (1 Pet. 3: 21.) These are only a few of the passages which clearly express the binding authority of baptism for the remission of sins; but the Recorder has set aside this divine authority and substituted therefore a human doctrine, making baptism a nonessential in so far as obedience to it has anything to do with the salvation of responsible beings. Hence, when it comes to the matter of setting aside divine authority or "outgrowing Christ," the Recorder should tread lightly, for it is running neck and neck with the Bishop.

Mother Love.

There is an endearing tenderness in the love of a mother to son that transcends all other affections of the heart. It is neither to be chilled by selfishness nor daunted by danger nor weakened by worthlessness nor stifled by ingratitude. She will sacrifice every comfort to his convenience; she will surrender every pleasure to his enjoyment; she will glory in his fame and exult in his prosperity; and if adversity overtake him, he will be the dearer to her by misfortune; and if disgrace settle upon his name, she will still love and cherish him; and if all the world besides cast him off, she will be all the world to him.—Washington Irving.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

Organizations.

By C. R. N.

From a preacher of the gospel I have the following: "Would it be scriptural for the several congregations in a city or county to select the elders of the different congregations, or other members of the respective congregations, and let them be a committee to have in charge the missionary work in the city or county?"

We live in an age of organizations. Long has the world had the slogan: "In union there is strength." By pooling the strength of many, and for the aggregation to give the full measure of its strength, things can be accomplished which cannot be accomplished by the individual acting independently.

In the great war through which we have just passed, the allied forces, with the defeating of the central powers in view, were making slow progress, the desired end was not being rapidly attained; but when the allied forces were articulated and directed by one man, Marshal Foch, the routing of the central powers came quickly.

Men with wealth form an association and finance a great work in the development of the country, and in a remarkably short time results are accomplished which could not have been brought about by the individual acting independently.

Philanthropic institutions, many of them, exist because of the righteous impulses of many being manifested through coöperation.

It should not be overlooked, though, that all aggregations and coöperations are not for the good of the masses, and what is not good for the masses is not good for the individual. When coöperation is had for the purpose of exploiting the people and amassing wealth in an attempt to satiate the craving of the individual member of the association, it becomes a curse, and our State proposes to "out-law" such, for they are a "trust." By their united financial strength they undertake to control the products of the world to reach their desired ends, even if they must charge exorbitant prices for the necessities of life, thereby bringing suffering to the people.

When we soberly consider how largely the human element predominates in each, we are forced to say that there is danger in the centralization of power.

In the religious world there are organizations galore, each with the avowed purpose of blessing the world. What should be our attitude toward such organizations?

The church of Christ exists by the authority of heaven, and was brought into existence by the wisdom of Jehovah. To say that the church is not able, that it is not sufficient as an institution to accomplish the work designed by the Lord for it to accomplish, is to tacitly affirm that the Lord did not possess sufficient wisdom or power to build the needed institution. To contend that the church was quite adequate to accomplish the work under the conditions existing when it was built, but is not sufficient for the needed work in this electric age, is to affirm that He who built the church was no more than human, and built only as a human, for the present need only, or with only the human conception of what the future would bring. The church is the expression of divine wisdom in an institution for the accomplishment of all work he would have done. To this end he decreed that there should be glory to the Father throughout all ages in the church. (Eph. 3: 25.)

What should be the attitude of the Christian toward organizations of a religious character which are not, and do not even profess to be, the church of Christ, but are proposing to do, and are doing, good work for humanity? That such organizations exist is freely admitted. One can be a member of the church and not a member of the societies.

The good these societies do is the result of the individual coöperating and causing the human institution to function. The society is given credit for the work done. Its members advertise and talk about the society, not about the church. I am glad to see the good the society may do, and wish to be understood as indorsing the good which any individual or association of individuals may do; but I am unable to bring myself to indorse the efforts of God's children to do through human organizations the work which it is their duty to perform as members of the church of Christ. There is not a good work which the societies propose to do which should not be done by the church, as such.

I am unable to understand how one who is informed and whose heart is filled with reverence can think that the people of God can do more or better work through the human society than they can through the church, the divine institution. They must think they can, else they would not be so zealous in the society and inactive in the church.

Among some members of the church the organization craze seems to have found lodgment. Good brethren have been aroused to needed work and to bring into existence an organization, which the church should function.

Any organization which is larger than a local congregation of Christians is too large, and is unknown to the Scriptures; and any organization which is smaller than a local congregation is too small, and has no right to exist, if it has in view the doing of the work of the church.

The pope of the Roman Catholic Church is the result of delegated authority. Conferences and synods are the result of delegated authority, and exist as governing bodies, making laws, changing laws, and the creed of the church they represent.

A congregation of Christians may send a messenger to a meeting, but it should be remembered that the messenger simply has a message to deliver and is in no sense a legislator; he has no authority to bind on the church, and can represent the church only in the particular message intrusted to him and on the occasion which may be named. It should be remembered, too, that the messenger represents only the congregation sending him. It is not within the scriptural province of a congregation of Christians to delegate to any man or set of men authority to bind on them. The elders and deacons are the overseers of the congregations—overseers of the particular congregations of which they are members. They have no authority in other congregations. It is not theirs to even make laws to govern the congregations of which they are members.

To appoint committees from ten different congregations, and these committees to form themselves into a central committee to take in hand the work the church should do, is to delegate to them authority to do work, and to bind on the represented congregations the plans and obligations they may assume. If they have not this authority, they are mere figureheads; if they have this authority, they become a legislative as well as an executive body. If the central committee agrees on something, and the churches, the ten churches, are bound by the agreement, then nine of the ten men are bound in congregations of which they are not members. Thus they invade the rights of others, be that invasion friendly or otherwise. If such a committee can be had for the city, the county, then why not for the State, then for all the States? Surely the work will be so great when thus extended that all the time of the committee will be demanded, and we must then needs pay them for their services. Of course some will have to preside in the committee, then the necessity of the secretary and treasurer, and let all the churches of the country function through the central committee. If we may have such committee as you suggest for the city, then why not for the county, the States, the nation? Why not? What should the committee be called? You might well call it a "missionary society" as by any other name. The name by which it is called will not change its earmarks. It will not be the church, nor will it be messengers from the churches. It will be an unauthorized ecclesiastical body; and if allowed to function for long, I predict that it will be making demands on the churches that they comply with their every demand.

If in your city there is a section which needs to be evangelized, let your congregation make a survey of the field, learning the demands and conditions for the work to be successfully carried forward. If your congregation is not able to finance the work, let there be messengers sent to other congregations in the city, asking their cooperation and fellowship in the work. The sister congregation can take the matter under advisement and, after conference, advise your congregation if they can cooperate with your congregation in the work, and to what extent they will be able to assist. This will be scriptural cooperation.

You should remember that the Lord is wiser than we. The local congregation is the unit through which we should work. A committee such as you suggest may on the surface appear harmless; but the best men, when authority is delegated, become dictatorial. Be content to let the Lord direct the church, function. The Lord knows best.

✻ ✻ ✻

A Life Sketch of Benjamin Cicero King.

BY JOHN E. DUNN.

"Lives of great men all remind us,
We can make our lives sublime,
And, departing, leave behind us
Footprints on the sands of time."

Who is the great man? The world would say some famous general, some great statesman, some noted author, some world-renowned clergyman. When one of "our" prominent preachers passes away, space and prominence in "our" papers are given to the story of his life. When Mary anointed the feet of Jesus and wiped them with her hair, a humble and insignificant act performed by a modest woman, the Savior said: "Whosoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, that also which this woman hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her." May we not, then, be permitted occasionally to present to the reading public sketches of the lives of modest, unassuming workers in the vineyard of the Lord? Without this great army of silent workers, we could have no churches, no schools, no homes, no public enterprises, and, in fact, nothing.

Recently my own brother's life was given well-deserved notice in the papers. He did a great work in the world for God and humanity. But what could he have done without the backing of such men as B. C. King?

Brother King lived for a purpose, and the world was made better by his life. He came to Texas when a young man, more than half a century ago, when the State was undeveloped. He helped to make his country a desirable place to live. He took an interest in building good homes, not only for himself, but for others also. He was unselfish. He was endowed with a strong mind, a robust body, and an abundance of energy. He made a good deal of money. He used his money to do good. He was always in favor of good roads, good streets, good schools, and a beautiful city. He never objected to his property being taxed to educate the poor. He contributed liberally of his money and gave time to have the gospel preached and build church houses. He contributed to the cause of Christian education. He was ever ready to help the poor. He lived a clean, simple, and industrious life. It was commonly remarked when he died that Waxahachie had lost one of her foremost citizens.

Benjamin Cicero King was born at Palmetto, Ga., in 1848, and came to Texas just after the close of the Civil War; was married to Miss Mary Harris, near Waxahachie, Texas, on April 6, 1871; and died on February 26, 1922. Sister King survives him, though at an advanced age, in delicate health, and almost blind. She was born in Wilson County, Tenn. Her ancestors were disciples of Christ. Some of them were pioneer preachers of the Restoration movement for New Testament Christianity. Her uncle, George Sweat, of Kentucky, made her a visit soon after her marriage. She had taught her husband the gospel of Christ. On this visit she had the joy of seeing her uncle baptize her husband into Christ. They reared eight children—four sons and four daughters—to manhood and womanhood. They are all living and are among the leading citizens of their country.

On April 6, 1921, Brother and Sister King celebrated their golden wedding. There were so many friends from all walks of life who wanted to pay their respects to this grand old couple that the celebration took place in the city park. Brother King made a feast, and paid all the expense of this celebration, to which were invited all of his friends, both rich and poor, high and low.

Brother King was a man of decided convictions, and was free to express them whenever he thought it necessary. He was one of those stalwart private citizens of the great common people who go to make our country what it is that is noble and great. He left to his children the rich heritage of a good name, which is "rather to be chosen than great riches." The world was richer by his living in it, and made poorer when he went away.

"Blessed are the dead who die in the Lord," who have "walked not after the flesh, but after the Spirit."

✻ ✻ ✻

Multum in Parvo.

BY R. L. WHITESIDE.

Some preachers manipulate the people; others teach them.

Some preachers tell the people something; others just preach.

Brass is a poor substitute for brains, but, if polished, it is more shiny.

A big per cent of the people will follow any man who will pet, cajole, and flatter them.

"Some people get so smart they ain't got no sense" is better philosophy than English.

Darwinism teaches the survival of the fit; the gospel teaches the revival of the unfit.

If there are forty-nine ways of talking without saying anything, some people know all of them.

The great question, "If a man die, shall he live again?" has no interest for the infidel—nor the ox.

The noise of escaping gas does not interest me, whether it be from a leaky pipe or a man's mouth.

Some men use the church to further their own interests; others use themselves for the glory of the church.

It is evident from the actions of some men that the Lord did not take the bone out of man's head to make woman.

We may become so busy trying to build up the Lord's church that we forget he has any right or authority in it.

Extremes meet. As strange as it may seem, it is a fact that the farthest point on earth from where you are is right where you are.

A sermon should be well proportioned; its length should correspond with its width and breadth. Some sermons are long at fifteen minutes.

If You Are Too Tired to Eat

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla. A well-known Justice of the Peace in Indiana says Hood's Sarsaparilla makes "food taste good." After taking three bottles he eats 3 hearty meals a day, works hard and sleeps well.

A grateful woman writes: "I earnestly recommend all women who wish to be made new, or who are troubled with that tired feeling, to take Hood's Sarsaparilla. It wonderfully relieved me of sour stomach, distress and belching."

Get Hood's, and only Hood's.

JACOBS
&
COMPANY

SPECIAL ADVERTISING
AGENTS

PRINTERS
DESIGNERS
PHOTO-ENGRAVERS
ELECTROTYPERS

Catalogues
— a Specialty —

HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S.C.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, back-aches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting CAPUDINE

Cuticura Soap AND OINTMENT Clear the Skin

Soap, Ointment, Talcum, 25c. everywhere. For samples address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden, Mass.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid
of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these loathsome spots. Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Fighting the "Movies."

BY J. O. BARNES.

I have received some encouragement in the warfare I am waging against a very popular, but virtue-destroying evil—the "movie." I use the term "virtue" in its broadest sense, applying to both male and female. This pernicious evil, as a deadly serpent, is slowly but surely tightening its slimy coil around the hearts of our tender youth, and is ready to strike the deadly blow and fasten its poisonous fangs in the souls of our boys and girls, thus robbing our boys of manly courage, which alone is their safeguard from sin and ruin, and our girls of their chastity, which, when once lost, can never be regained. Goldsmith said: "I believe the girl has virtue; and if she has, I should be the last man in the world to attempt to corrupt it." O that this sentiment were the sentiment of every man, and that it could find an echo in every heart! Then our girls would be safe from this danger and our boys would be better boys and make greater men.

But this is not all. This deceitful device of old Satan is now trying to rob the virgin bride of Christ (the church) of her virtue, even eternal life, by snaring her into its toils and causing her to fall from its state of virginity and to wallow in the filthy quagmires of sin.

Yes, we know that there are some scenes placed upon the canvas that are both educational and uplifting, which are worth both time and money to look upon, and which would not even taint with sin the mind of the weakest Christian, provided they could be separated from those scenes which arouse the passions and the carnal lust of the worldly-minded, many of whom are in the church, and who, separated from glaring evils, could be educated and trained to serve God aright, but who, by coming in contact with such evils, and sometimes encouraged by older and stronger Christians, will easily follow in the broad trail of the serpent and say: "I do not see any harm in going to the 'movies.'" My dear, weak brother, there was one who was wiser than you, who said: "There is a way which seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death." (Prov. 14: 12.) The "movie" is one of "the ways of death"—eternal separation from God.

Now, Jesus said: "Enter ye in by the strait gate: for wide is the gate, and broad is the way, that leadeth to destruction, and many are they that enter in thereby. For narrow is the gate, and straitened the way, that leadeth unto life, and few are they that find it." (Matt. 7: 13, 14.) Sinner out of Christ and brother in

CHANGE OF LIFE WOMAN'S TRIAL

Proof That Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is of Great Help at This Period

Metropolis, Illinois.—"I have taken Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and it is all it claims to be and has benefited me wonderfully. I had been sick for eight months with a trouble which confined me to my bed and was only able to be up part of the time, when I was advised by a friend, Mrs. Smith, to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and Liver Pills. I was so much benefited by the use of these medicines that I was able to be up and about in two weeks. I was at the Change of Life when I began taking the medicines and I passed over that time without any trouble. Now I am hale and hearty, do all my housework, washing, ironing, scrubbing, and cooking, all there is to do about a house, and can walk two or three miles without getting too tired. I know of several of my neighbors who have been helped by your medicines."—Mrs. EMMA CULVER, 705 E. 7th St., Metropolis, Illinois.

Depend upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Nervousness, irritability, heat flashes, headache and dizziness, are relieved by this splendid medicine.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debility and weak heart. Relieves headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains, and reduces fever. No depressing effects. Made by a formula which is in general use by leading physicians. 35c per package at your druggist's or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specially designed gift for the bereaved. Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the deceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

Christ, examine yourselves, decide which way is the best, and follow that way and avoid the paths of sin which lead to death.

Paul, the inspired apostle, in writing to the church at Thessalonica, said: "Abstain from every form of evil." To be the most charitable, we must of a truth say that the "movie" has some appearance of evil, which is clearly manifest in their advertising pictures on the outside, representing murder, robbery, lewdness, and other demoralizing forms of evil and wickedness.

"Let Us Build This House."

BY W. F. LEMMONS.

The Jews said, "Arise, and let us build this house;" and they built the greatest house in the world. The church of Christ does not own a church house in the State of Montana, and I want you to read every word of this twice.

The poor saints at Mona, Mont., have pledged themselves to give about four hundred dollars to build at that place—secure the land, put the restrictive clause in the deed, and do the principal part of the work necessary to build. I know them, and that is almost like sacrificing the "widow's mite." I promised to cooperate with them, when they got everything in shape to build, in raising funds that might be lacking. That time has come. They are following my suggestions in the matter. A building committee has been selected, as follows: Asa Hall, Mona; Elza Woods, Mona; J. O. Golphenee, Elmdale. They are all good men.

Brethren, do you desire fellowship in this good work? Do you want to put a few shingles on the roof of this house that will bear the inscription over the door, "The First Church of Christ in Montana?" In the future when you read reports of work in Montana, you will point with pride to the fact that you assisted in building the first church of Christ in that State. Am I going to help with cash? Yes, sir, with all my heart. I know the field, and I know its needs. Besides, I know the brethren who are struggling to build this house and to keep the work moving. They are the genuine article—self-sacrificing saints. They don't ask for help when they can help themselves. I have urged the building of this house, which is very essential to success. The Mormons are invading the territory. The church of Christ is big enough and liberal enough to do this work, or any other good work, when convinced that it is necessary. The fact that we have no house of worship in the State is enough to convince any one. Montana is in a cold climate, ranging from forty to sixty below zero in winter, and they need a comfortable house after having driven in a sled from three to ten miles to meet upon the first day of the week. They do that in the dead of winter. Now, brethren, decide what your duty is. Put it up to your congregation at once, and send a contribution to any member of the above committee. If more is contributed than is necessary to build, it can be used by Brother Golphenee in the mission work there.

BOILS

Old Sores, Outs and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Let thy discontents be thy secrets.—
Benjamin Franklin.

Facts About the Olive.

It is doubtful if there are many fruits that have been known to man longer than the olive. Records show it was cultivated by the Egyptians more than four thousand years ago, and olives and the olive tree are mentioned often in the Bible and all ancient writings. Asia Minor is supposed to have been the original home of the olive. The trees often reach a great height and a very old age, some of them in parts of Southern France being nearly two thousand years old.—Selected.

For Dyspepsia Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Agreeable to the most delicate stomachs. Taken before meals, tones the stomach, promotes appetite, and prevents distress. Quiets nerves, induces restful sleep. All druggists.

PRICES OF OUR HYMN BOOKS.

PRAISE HIM.

Music Edition—Boards.

Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	4 80
Per fifty.....	17 00
Per hundred.....	32 50

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

Music Edition—Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 60
Per dozen.....	5 00
Per fifty.....	22 50
Per hundred.....	43 00

CHRISTIAN HYMNS.

Music Edition—Boards.

Single copy.....	$ 55
Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	23 00
Per hundred.....	45 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

Music Edition—Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 65
Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	55 00

WORDS OF TRUTH.

Music Edition—Boards.

Single copy.....	$ 45
Per dozen.....	4 80
Per fifty.....	18 00
Per hundred.....	35 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

Music Edition—Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	23 00
Per hundred.....	45 00

VOICE OF PRAISE.

Music Edition—Boards.

Single copy.....	$ 35
Per dozen.....	4 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

Per fifty.....	$16 00
Per hundred.....	30 00

CHRISTIAN HYMNS AND WORDS OF TRUTH, COMBINED— CHRISTIAN HYMNS AND VOICE OF PRAISE, COMBINED.

Music Edition—Boards.

Single copy.....	$ 70
Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	55 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

Music Edition—Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 75
Per dozen.....	8 75
Per fifty.....	30 00
Per hundred.....	70 00

GOSPEL PRAISE.

Music Edition—Boards.

Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	23 00
Per hundred.....	45 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

Music Edition—Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 60
Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	55 00

SEVENTY-SEVEN SWEET SONGS.

Flexible Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 25
Per dozen.....	2 50

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

Per fifty.....	$ 7 50
Per hundred.....	14 00

NEW CHRISTIAN HYMN BOOK.

Music Edition—Boards.

Single copy.....	$ 40
Per dozen.....	4 80
Per fifty.....	16 50
Per hundred.....	32 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

Music Edition—Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	5 60
Per fifty.....	22 00
Per hundred.....	42 00

McQUIDDY PRINTING COMPANY,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

HARDEMAN'S TABERNACLE SERMONS

A series of evangelistic sermons preached by N. B. Harde-
man during the Great Nashville Meeting, held in the Ryman Auditorium, March 28-April 16. These sermons ring true to the Old Book, and have a charm of style and freshness of illustration that put them in a class by themselves.

All the profits derived from the sale of these books will be used to create a fund to help poor boys and girls attend
Freed-Hardeman College.

The book will contain about 350 pages, with pictures of Hardeman, Pullias, and the audience, a history of the meeting, about twenty sermons, and an address delivered by Brother Pullias before the Exchange Club.

Bound in cloth, stamped in gold. Price, $1.50.

Book now being mailed to advanced subscribers.

Send all orders to N. B. HARDEMAN, Henderson, Tenn.

Field Reports

Huntsville, Texas, June 27.—The meeting at Huntsville is three days old, and the interest is increasing with each service. Seven have made the good confession. We need a good church at this place. One of our State schools is here. Our brethren have made but little effort to do anything here for years. We have a few members here, but they are not able to carry on the work. The churches of Christ should see to it that a congregation is established at this place.
The digressive church is composed largely of members of the church who have moved here for school advantages, and, not being taught, they have gone to the organ party.—F. J. Berry.

Fort Smith, Ark., June 27.—We are all hopeful concerning the growth of the work at this place. Some things have been hindering us which Satan has cast in the way to make the way difficult. We ask the prayers of all the faithful that we may be able to withstand the fiery darts of Satan and be delivered through the power of God. Our attendance is good, considering all circumstances. A week ago last Lord's day another young lady obeyed the gospel. Our prayer meeting work is not doing so well, though we have as yet a very good interest. We shall begin on Wednesday night a study of New Testament Palestine and the life of Christ.—
Leland H. Knight.

Natchez, Miss., June 19.—I held a good meeting in Natchez, beginning on the first Lord's day in June and continuing until last night. The meeting was held under an old, worn tent, and the rain and mosquitoes hindered much; however, the attendance was very good and the interest splendid.
I did the preaching, except at the last two services, when Brother J. Roy Vaughan, of Jackson, Miss., our song leader for the meeting, preached two discourses which were much enjoyed by all. Brother Vaughan should be kept busy preaching the gospel in this field. He is a splendid young man.
Five persons were baptized, one was restored, and much other good was done. Pray for the work here.—
T. C. Fox.

Greenville, S. C., June 26.—The work in Greenville is picking up some of late; the last two Sunday nights, in my home, we had record crowds—thirty and twenty-four, respectively.
Yesterday we had eleven members present, which is the greatest number at one time. Our contributions average better than five dollars per week.
Every one seems eager to advance the cause. On June 23 we began a series of meetings in a tent. The crowds thus far have been increasing and seem interested. Last night we had more than the tent would hold. We thank God for the opportunity thus afforded of proclaiming the word of life. We dare not prophesy, but hope

Fifty Against Two. It is not reasonable to expect two weeks of outing to overcome the effects of fifty weeks of confinement.
Take Hood's Sarsaparilla along with you.
It refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, makes sleep easy and restful.

TETTERINE for the COMPLEXION

60c at your druggist's or from
Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

ECZEMA PSORIASIS—ITCH

RU-BON Will Remove Every Spot.

Ask Your Druggist.

SPURLOCK-NEAL COMPANY,
Wholesale Distributors.

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry.
Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

*Eucapine
Salve*

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic

(Prevents Infection)(Relieves Pain)(Allays Inflammation)

Is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the nasal passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner
Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue.
Visiting brethren welcome.

"I'll be all right in the morning"

"When I feel like this—dizzy, black spots before my eyes, bad taste in my mouth, stupid and lazy—I know what's the matter. I'm bilious,
I just take a couple of
DR. MILES' LIVER PILLS

They fix me up in short order.
Why don't YOU try these little wonder workers? You'll find them easy to take and mild but effective in operation.

Your Druggist sells Dr. Miles' Preparations.

GIRLS! LEMONS

BLEACH SKIN WHITE

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents; shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day; then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

CANCERS CURED AT THE KELLAM HOSPITAL

The Kellam Hospital cures Cancers, Sores without the use of Burns, and Chronic Tumors, Ulcers, X-Ray of the knife, X-Ray, Radium, Acids, or Serum, and we have cured over 90 per cent of the many hundreds of sufferers treated during the past twenty-three years. Ministers treated free.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, Inc.
1617 West Main St. Richmond Va.

Stop Itching

Skins with Tetterine

60c. at your druggist's or from
SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

Cured Her Rheumatism

Knowing from terrible experience the suffering caused by rheumatism, Mrs. J. E. Hurst, who lives at 508 E. Olive St., B-439, Bloomington, Ill., is so thankful at having cured herself that out of pure gratitude she is anxious to tell all other sufferers just how to get rid of their torture by a simple way at home.

Mrs. Hurst has nothing to sell. Merely cut out this notice, mail it to her with your own name and address, and she will gladly send you this valuable information entirely free. Write her at once, before you forget.

Kill All Flies!

THEY SPREAD DISEASE
Placed anywhere, DAISY FLY KILLER attracts and kills all flies. Neat, clean, ornamental, convenient and safe. Lasts all season. Made of metal, can't spill or tip over; will not soil or injure anything. Guaranteed.

DAISY FLY KILLER
at your dealer or 5 by EXPRESS, prepaid, $1.25.
HAROLD SOMERS, 150 De Kalb Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

Renew your subscription to the
Gospel Advocate.

for great results for God. Our literature funds are increasing also, being contributed to by the Leoma, Long Branch, and Center Point churches, of Lawrence County, Tenn.; Brethren North, of Ethridge, Tenn.; church at Sellersburg, Ind.; and Brother Shannon, now of this city. We have purchased a small press and have had printed more than five thousand tracts. We hope to do much more. The press works well, but we are in need of some few more supplies. Brother Burton is reporting encouraging results at Union. We desire the prayers and coöperation of every Christian.—G. F. Gibbs.

Rheumatism Relieved

Renwar is guaranteed to relieve rheumatism by money-back offer. This remedy will positively neutralize the uric acid in the blood, which causes rheumatism. The amount of Renwar required to effect relief depends on the case which is being treated. Very often one bottle will produce the desired result. If you suffer with rheumatism, you should by all means try Renwar. It is harmless, even to the most delicate constitutions, and thousands will testify to its effectiveness in relieving rheumatism. Sold by druggists (price, 50 cents) or by mail from Warner Drug Company, Nashville, Tenn.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal
Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

WHAT OF YOUR BOY?

His education and training and the development of his mind, body, and character depend on you, his parent. It is a grave responsibility, for there are so many antagonistic influences that come into play in a boy's life. As every boy looks back over his education and training, he can always point out some one influence, some one life, that has had a more profound influence. To thousands of boys this influence has been the guiding spirit, the personal association, and the inspiring character of Mr. Robert K. Morgan, principal of Morgan School for twenty-five years. He knows boy nature. The close personal associations which he has fostered between his boy students and himself, his carefully chosen faculty, his careful attention to the boy's work, his thoughts, his talents, and his special needs, have given great prominence to his school and have characterized the success that he has merited in successfully shaping the lives of thousands of youths at the shaping age.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school.

JELLO
Ice Cream Powder

THE LADIES MADE IT

THE delicious ice cream served at lawn fetes and church suppers is often made by the ladies in charge since the use of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder has lessened the cost of ice cream and simplified the making of it. One package of the powder and one quart of rich milk make two quarts of ice cream. All grocers sell Jell-O Ice Cream Powder at two packages for 25 cents, a dozen for $1.50. A dozen packages make six gallons of ice cream.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N. Y.

Renew your health
by purifying your system with

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are free from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c and 35c packages, bearing above trade-mark.

Precious to us, O Lord, is the death of thy saints, which make us heirs of so great a wealth: which leaves us furnished with so great variety of examples, that every want is abundantly supplied.—John Austin.

Dodson's Liver Tone

Instead of Calomel

Calomel is quicksilver. It attacks the bones and paralyzes the liver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it will regulate the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel, without sickening or salivating you. Fifteen million bottles sold.

FREE TO ASTHMA AND HAY FEVER SUFFERERS

A Trial Treatment of "HIMALYA"

We don't care who you are or where you are—a man or woman, young or old, or whether you have had Asthma for fifteen years or fifteen months—all we want is your name and address, so that we can send you, free of charge, a trial treatment of "Himalya," our simple, convenient and reliable home remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever.

We want to show you, at our expense, and prove to you beyond any shadow of doubt, and to your entire satisfaction that Himalya will stop all difficult breathing, wheezing, choking spells, and all smothering sensations and painful paroxysms once and for good. We want to demonstrate to you conclusively, that, regardless of what climate you live in, your age or occupation, that this splendid remedy will do for you exactly what it has done for thousands of other sufferers in past years. We want you to know how different Himalya is from other treatments—inhalers, douches, opium preparations, fumes, smokes, etc.—how it purifies the blood and rejuvenates the whole system, eradicating the disease by removing the cause.

Don't Delay. Don't wait until another attack comes, but start the treatment at once. Send no money, simply mail the coupon below.

Just Sign and Mail This COUPON

The Himalya Company,
427 Warren Avenue, West,
Detroit, Mich.

Please send postpaid, and at once, free trial of Himalya to:

Name

Town

State..... R. F. D.....

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling—
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Drugists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Cal-
louses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Preaching and Printing the Gospel.

BY E. C. FUQUA.

Aside from my regular preaching on Lord's days for the church of Christ at Sichel and Altura Streets, Brother G. W. Riggs and I are engaged in tent-meeting work through the week nights; then I am kept busy through the daytime printing free literature to help get the truth before the people. The oral preaching is, of course, purely local, but the literature work is reaching almost around the world. Through this combination of means I believe great good is being done. The literature work is a continuation, on a larger scale, of that work I was doing in Colorado. When I saw I had to leave Colorado and come to California, I sold the machinery we had there so I could secure another press and equipment here. Here a new building was erected especially for this literature work, and a new press was bought—a modern automatic press, self-feeding, with a rate of sixty tracts per minute. For this equipment we paid $4,923.69. After paying expenses of moving to this State the unsold materials we had in the plant in Colorado and settling some bills against it there, I had left, on reaching California, $840.96, which I turned into the new plant here. I am happy to say our new plant is entirely paid for.

The new building for the press was erected through donated labor by a number of brethren in the name of their home congregations. Cash donations from a few churches, added to the amount I had on hand, were sufficient to purchase the equipment. No "begging" or "drumming" of any character was needed to raise this splendid sum. The brethren "had a mind to work," and it was done with ease.

To protect the equipment, or rather the brotherhood's interest in it, and secure to the latter the use of the plant forever, I deeded it to the brotherhood, naming as trustees the elders of the church at Sichel and Altura Streets, Los Angeles, who are to protect it against misuse at my death. They do not own it; they are merely to safeguard the brotherhood's interests and see that at my death the plant is placed in proper hands. It is owned by the brotherhood according to the will; and it is further provided that the plant shall never be used by any man or any number of men not strictly loyal to the New Testament teaching in all things; that under no circumstances can it be used to advocate any hobby, theory, or speculation, but must be used to publish such matter as we call "first principles"—matter designed to open the eyes of the people to the pure New Testament teaching as to how to become and remain Christians, etc.

I hold no legal claim to the plant, save the free use of it in conducting the same character of work as I have been doing in latter years. The work of producing the tracts is my own personal donation to the work. I am glad to give this much.

Now it is up to the brethren everywhere, who want to see the truth scattered in every direction, to supply the paper and ink. A great task is before us, and we are ready for it. Pray for the success of it, brethren.

A Brand-New Book

"OLD LIMBER" or THE TALE OF THE TAYLORS by DELONG RICE

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their eloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters" extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound, the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase. THE BOOK is beautifully printed and bound, appropriately illustrated, and packed in a neat gift box, ready for mailing.

PRICE, $1.00 THE COPY,
POSTPAID TO ANY ADDRESS.

Correspondence with Bookstores and News Agencies is invited.

Special club rates to Fox Hunters' Associations, if ordered in sufficient numbers.

Where we have no Bookstore customer, we will offer an attractive proposition to any energetic woman or man who may desire to handle the book.

Write to us to-day.

McQUIDDY PRINTING CO.,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

A Christian Life Speaks for Itself.

BY S. WHITFIELD.

The life of the child of God has an influence for good over the lives of others. The influence of good deeds cannot be destroyed. It is true that some are blundering over the actions of professed Christians, and because such Christians do not live right they excuse themselves because their conduct is not good. We should all be very careful about the example that we are setting before others. The name of God was blasphemed by the Gentiles through the wickedness of the Jews. Judas became a dangerous character; but his wicked example did not, and still does not, destroy the good influence of the other apostles. Their lives are speaking to us now, and will speak on until the end of time. The lives of such noble, great, and true men are reminding us of the secret of true greatness. The stone that is set in motion through the godliness of great men and women will roll on until God says that time shall be no more.

"So shall my word be that goeth forth out of my mouth: it shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereto I sent it." (Isa. 55: 11.)

"And there was much murmuring among the multitudes concerning him: some said, He is a good man; others said, Not so, but he leadeth the multitude astray." (John 7: 12.)

Even the life of Jesus did not lead all to follow God. But some—those who were willing to give Jesus credit for his good actions—said that he was a good man. Just think of the good that the life of Jesus has done in the world, and is still doing! His life has been speaking for itself, and will continue to speak as long as the world lasts.

Let us not forget the heroes and heroines of Old Testament times, who fought the battles of God so bravely. Their lives are molding and shaping the lives of others, and are making them more like God. Think of Noah, Abel, Abraham, Joseph, Daniel, and all the rest, whose first and great object in life was to do the Lord's will. All of these bring before us an argument in favor of Christianity that no man successfully can gainsay.

"Likewise, ye wives, be in subjection to your husbands; that, if any obey not the word, they also may without the word be won by the conversation of the wives." (1 Pet. 3: 1.)

This passage shows that some may be won to Christ by the godly lives of others when the preaching of the gospel has not led them to Christ. This emphasizes, in a very strong way, the result and influence of a godly life. No child of God should

"Baby improved wonderfully in health" on recommend the excell

Thessalon, Ont.
Box 95
March 29, 1920

Anglo-American Drug Co.,
New York, N. Y.
Gentlemen:—

In regard to Mrs. Winslow's Syrup: My baby suffered greatly with colic, and a friend told me of this Syrup and after I used it, baby improved wonderfully in health.
I can recommend this medicine to be excellent.

Yours truly,
(Name on request)

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP
The Infants' and Children's Regulator quickly relieves diarrhoea, colic, flatulency and constipation, and regulates the bowels. Non-narcotic, non-alcoholic. Formula on every label.

At All Druggists.
Write for free booklet containing letters from grateful mothers.

ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG CO., 215-217 Fulton St., New York
General Selling Agents: Harold P. Ritchie & Co., Inc.,
New York, Toronto, London, Sydney

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Founded 1793

Superb location in world-famous climate. Wide area of patronage. Limited number. Boys live a simple, wholesome life, under the care of experienced teachers, and under Christian influences. Plenty of good, nourishing food. All forms of athletics. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officers. 129th year begins September 13. Send for handbook.

Col. R. Bingham, Supt. Emeritus.

Col. S. R. McKee, Supt.

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good
WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY
WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by
Washington Manufacturing Company
Nashville, Tennessee

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

be discouraged, for every true and faithful life counts. No real effort for God falls to the ground without bearing fruit, some time and somewhere.

Being a Christian does not unfit a person for any honorable work or position in life, but it fits and recommends him for such. There are lots of good positions open and ready for those who can be trusted. The principles of Christianity are the things that will best prepare a person to be trusted. There is lots of room up at the top for those that have such qualities as are found in true Christians.

"Therefore all things whatsoever ye would that men should do to you, do ye even so to them: for this is the law and the prophets." (Matt. 7: 12.)

This is the best of all rules, and Christians are the very people that should be governed by it. Thinking of the interests, rights, and welfare of others, and treating them as we would like them to treat us, surely will have a good influence and will make our lives great in the sight of God and men.

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven." (Matt. 5: 16.)

We can let our light shine by our teaching, and also by our lives. We can be used of God to save people by

PATRONIZE YOUR OWN COLLEGE!

INVESTIGATE

ABILENE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

JESSE P. SEWELL, President

DEDICATED TO THE SPREAD OF TRUTH

Have you thought just how intimately the lives of students and faculty members are interwoven? "Who is to teach my child?" "Who is to discipline me?" are questions of vital importance in choosing a college.

Here are the men and women who constitute this important factor of Abilene Christian College:

COLLEGE OF ARTS AND SCIENCES

H. E. Speck, M.A., Dean, Mathematics; George A. Klingman, M.A., Ph.D., Bible; Howard L. Schug, M.A., Modern Languages; W. W. Freeman, B.A., Th.D. (on leave of absence in Yale University); Grover C. Morlan, M.A., Psychology and Religious Education; R. C. Bell, M.A., English; James F. Cox, M.A., Ph.D. (except thesis), Education and Philosophy; Benj. F. Rhodes, M.A., Social Sciences; David L. Cooper, B.A., Th.D., Ancient Languages; S. V. McCasland, B.A., Th.B. (on leave of absence); Walter W. Sikes, B.A., English and Bible; Miss Lillian Grace Arledge, B.A., Home Economics; M. V. Showalter, B.A., Mathematics and Latin; Russell A. Lewis, B.A., Spanish; W. Earl Brown, B.A., English; Paul C. Witt, B.A., Physical Sciences; Miss Willie Bentley, B.A., Education.

COLLEGE OF FINE ARTS

Mrs. J. P. Sewell, B.S., Director, Art; Miss Pat Malone, Piano; Miss Myrtle Dunn, Voice; Miss Bernice Compere, B.Mus., Violin; Miss Frances Cato, B.A., Expression.

ACADEMY

Miss Elizabeth Nelson, B.A., Principal, Mathematics; Hosea H. Lewis, B.A., Science; Mrs. J. P. Sewell, B.S., Bible; William C. Sikes, B.A., History and Mathematics; Miss Nanabel Estes, B.A., Latin and English; Mrs. Hosea H. Lewis, B.A., English; Benjamin F. Holland, B.A., Spanish.

TRAINING SCHOOL (First Seven Grades)

James F. Cox, M.A., Ph.D., Director; Miss Willie Bentley, B.A., Supervisor; Miss Essie Rambo, B.A., Critic Teacher; Miss Willie Pritchett, B.A., Critic Teacher.

Summer School Now in Session—Annual Catalog Ready to Mail

Address Inquiries to Office of the President

ABILENE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

ABILENE, TEXAS

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

SOLD
50
YEARS

If not sold by your druggist, write Wintersmith Chemical Co., Louisville, Ky.

McShane Bell Foundry Co.
BALTIMORE, MD.
CHURCH, CHIME and PEAL
BELLS
Memorials
a Specialty

TETTERINE

Makes low necks and short sleeves possible. It clears the skin

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Salesmen Wanted

to sell Marble and Granite Monuments, the product of one of the largest plants in the country, located near the famous Georgia quarries. Liberal commissions. In a little spare time you can earn excellent profits. Write for full information.

ETOWAH MONUMENT CO.
ATLANTA, GA.

teaching the gospel and by the influence of a godly life. When both of these powers are at work, good is sure to be done.

"Take heed unto thyself, and unto the doctrine; continue in them: for in doing this thou shalt both save thyself, and them that hear thee." (1 Tim. 4: 16.)

These were the two great things that Timothy was to watch so that he might save himself as well as the souls of others. All preachers of the gospel, and all Christians, will do well to watch these two very important things.

"By faith Abel offered unto God a more excellent sacrifice than Cain, by which he obtained witness that he was righteous, God testifying of his gifts: and by it he being dead yet speaketh." (Heb. 11: 4.)

Abel offered the sacrifice that God required, which showed that he was righteous, and his obedience and righteousness are still speaking to us. Since it took such exact obedience on the part of Abel to make him righteous before God, it shows that there are only a few righteous people. The great majority of religious people think that anything will do. Let us not forget that Abel's faith in God, which led to such exact obedience to God's will, is speaking for itself.

Now in this is the excellency of a man, that he is made capable of a communion with his Maker, and, because capable of it, is unsatisfied without it. —Exchange.

Law School

Cumberland University

The Course of Study, more than 10,000 pages, covers the entire field of American law. It is completed in ONE COLLEGE YEAR with degree LL.B. It is taught by daily assignments of textbook lessons with classroom recitations and MOOT COURT practice. For catalogue, address LAW SCHOOL, Box 272, Lebanon, Tennessee.

Sure Relief

6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION

Gospel Advocate

1403 Sweetbrier Ave
Nashville, Tenn.
July 1, 1922

Volume LXIV. No. 28.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 13, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

The Hire of the Laborers.....	649
OUR CONTRIBUTORS.....	651
First Principles—If It Is Not Commanded, Is It Safe?
Field Notes—Notes from West Tennessee—The Mission of the Gospel Advocate—The Leaven of the Pharisees.....
QUERY DEPARTMENT.....	655
EDITORIAL.....	656
A Friendly Criticism—Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures—An Answer to Brother J. B. Briney's Question
—Adding to and Taking from the Word of God—
Good News from Ovoca.....
HOME READING.....	662
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	663
AT HOME AND ABROAD.....	664
Morals of the Moving-Picture Show.....	666
A Call from Flint, Mich.....	667
FIELD NOTES.....	668, 669, 672
Arkansas Christian College.....	669
How Long Forbear?.....	670
Among the Colored Folks.....	671

THE HIRE OF THE LABORERS.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

"And when even was come, the lord of the vineyard saith unto his steward, Call the laborers, and pay them their hire, beginning from the last unto the first." (Read Matt. 20: 1-16.)

The hire of the laborers seems to be the most significant thing in the parable of the vineyard. I think that we ought to emphasize the main point of the parables, and, since I am convinced that in this case the reward of the laborers is the central lesson, I shall confine myself in this article to a discussion of this portion of the passage. It is important to note, at the outset, that the number of hours the workers toiled is disregarded in the wages that were paid. Labor unions clamor nowadays for shorter hours and increased pay for overtime, but time was not such an important item with the householder. It seems that he deliberately overlooked it. Those laborers who entered the vineyard at the eleventh hour were made equal to those who went in early in the morning (presumably at six o'clock) and bore "the burden of the day and the scorching heat." The third-hour, sixth-hour, and ninth-hour men were offered employment, but "went their way"—that is, refused to hire. The rest received "every man a shilling." The eleventh-hour workers were paid first, the full-day workers were paid last—the last first, the first last. Those who had toiled through the long, sultry day were disappointed, because "they supposed that they should receive more."

I submit that, as a commercial transaction, this equality of wages seems to be unfair. It would brew trouble in our day of labor disputes. The laborers that had toiled twelve full hours under a summer sun thought that they were being unjustly discriminated against. "They murmured against the householder, saying, These last have spent but one hour, and thou hast made them equal unto us, who have borne the burden of the day and the scorching heat." But was there just cause for this complaint? Not if we take into consideration the stipulated agreement. "And when he had agreed with the laborers for a shilling a day, he sent them into his vineyard." So they did not receive less than they bargained for, and the wages that were paid the other laborers should not have been a matter of concern to them.

But they made it a part of their business, and they murmured because the wages were equal. They wanted more than the eleventh-hour men received. And in this complaint we read something of the character of the disappointed workers. They were selfish, reward-loving, envious, fault-finding men. Moreover, the householder's rebuke throws light upon the point at issue between himself and the complaining workers. "Friend," said he, addressing one of the murmurers, "I do thee no wrong: didst not thou agree with me for a shilling? Take up that which is thine, and go thy way; it is my will to give unto this last, even as unto thee. Is it not lawful for me to do what I will with mine own? or is thine eye evil, because I am good?" He urges that he has carried out his part of the contract and insists upon his inherent right to do as he wishes with his own means. He intimates that it was an evil disposition that inspired the murmuring and maintains his own integrity and uprightness of purpose. His logic leaves the complainers without answer, because they were without excuse.

It is conceded, then, that the householder was clearly within his legal right and that the complainers had no adequate ground for criticism. Yet the procedure on the part of the householder appears unusual. Indeed, it would be difficult to find a parallel nowadays. It seems to me that there is purposely a sharp departure from the ordinary course. It certainly is strange that the householder should pay a shilling for twelve hours' work and also a shilling for only one hour's work and thus overpay or underpay some of his employees. Under normal conditions men would not do as the householder did—that is, shrewd business men would not. It would not be considered good business nor good policy. The pay for laborers of the same class and skill would be uniform, by the hour or by the day of so many hours. But the householder had not designed to reward the workers in proportion to the number of hours spent in the vineyard nor in proportion to the amount of work accomplished. It was not a contract based upon the principle of so much pay for so much work, a "fair wage for an honest day's work." The householder said: "It is my will to give unto this last even as unto thee." But why did he will to do this thing? What actuated him in thus rewarding the laborers equally? I think that it was appreciation. It was a gracious turn. He gave them a shilling, not because they had done so much work, but because of their readiness to hire, willingness to labor, and faithfulness to the close of the day. He was pleased with their spirit and their conduct. They were constant, diligent, obedient servants. Out of his appreciation of these qualities, the householder graciously granted each one a shilling. Had they murmured while in the vineyard instead of laboring, the result might have been different. But the householder's shilling at eventide was his way of saying, "Well done, good and faithful servant."

Jesus knew how to present an illustration that would exactly fit what the great Householder would do at the last judgment. The hire of the laborers represents salvation. It signifies that all who come into the church at the first opportunity and labor faithfully till the close of life, be it long or short, will receive eternal life. The labor in the vineyard is typical of the Christian's life of service and the shilling is typical of the final reward. We have seen that the pay was not in consideration of the amount of work done, but grew out of the appreciation or grace of the householder; that it was the reward of constancy and fidelity. So with redemption in Christ. It cannot be merited. It is not a commercial commodity that it may be earned. It is far too precious to be bought with silver or gold or meritorious labor. We cannot work out our salvation by sheer abundance of righteous deeds; we cannot buy heaven with good works. If redemption were a mere matter of merit to be earned by men, there would have been no need of our Savior's suffering, for meritorious men lived on the earth before his coming. The cross would seem to us now to have been an artificial burden, for men could have been saved without the shedding of his blood. But salvation is the gift of God. "By grace have ye been saved." It was the goodness of God that made a way for our escape. "But when the kindness of God our Savior, and his love toward man, appeared, not by works done in righteousness, which we did ourselves, but according to his mercy he saved us, through the washing of regeneration and renewing of the Holy Spirit." Redemption, then, came of the kindness and love and mercy of God. And it is free. "No human merit can acquire it, but any human need can obtain it. It is for the richest and the poorest, for the best and for the worst. As God makes his rain to fall on the evil and the good, on the just and the unjust, in like manner he dispenses salvation through Jesus Christ." "Whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

Salvation is "not of works, that no man should glory." Such good works as are appointed for us (and there are many) are appropriate rather than meritorious, and, hence, leave us no excuse for boasting. I am glad that glorying in human excellence is excluded. The vain have no encouragement to trumpet their achievements. The conceited cannot parade their great deeds and belittle the works of others, with hope of effecting anything at the judgment. No arrogant Pharisee need stand up and pray with himself, "God, I thank thee that I am not as the rest of men," with contempt in his heart for the humble publican. His catalogue of virtuous deeds will be set at naught because he lacks the grace of humility. We have access to the throne of grace only by the door of humility; "for God resisteth the proud, but giveth grace to the humble." Our works of righteousness do not profit Christ our Redeemer nor enrich heaven, but profit and enrich our own souls. No boasting is in place, then, for we have nothing to boast of. We need to glory in the cross, in Jesus who died for us. After we have done all the things commanded us in unswerving fidelity to God, we are but "unprofitable servants; we have done that which it was our duty to do." We have not placed God under obligation to us. Instead of being lifted up in the vanity of our fleshly minds, let us know once and for all that we must work out our salvation "with fear and trembling."

If redemption were of works and not of grace, those of fine capabilities might win heaven, while those having but the one talent might lose it. Longevity would be an advantage, and short life perilous. But every one may be saved. Nor age, nor race, nor color, nor untoward condition can bar the sincere soul that comes seeking eternal life. Yes, God is merciful; he meets the prodigal afar off and presses him to a Father's heart, and forgives, and puts new robes on him. And tottering old age—so pathetic, so near the grave—he receives with the same welcome embrace. For he is "not willing that any should perish," but is marvelous in his long-suffering toward sinners. A poor, illiterate mountaineer moved from the Cumberland into the basin of Middle Tennessee late in life. It seems that he had hardly heard of the gospel in his cove; but coming into a community boasting a church of Christ, he accepted the first call to become a Christian. His was an uphill pull. His exterior life seemed as rough as his gulch limestone.

But his heart rang true as steel. With set determination he started in to do his utmost. He began to discover things in his New Testament, and he would tell me of his discoveries. Faithful to every duty as he learned it, constant in attendance, happy in the service, he made rapid progress in the new life. But his service was cut short; five months he labored and rejoiced, and then came his summons hence. His stewardship had been brief; he had no long list of imposing deeds to his credit; entering the vineyard late, he had not borne the burden of the day. But he had accepted the first call of the householder; he had done what he could; he had been faithful until even. He came into the vineyard at the eleventh hour, but he was constant and loyal and diligent and even enthusiastic, and I firmly believe that when the laborers are called he will receive his shilling. For to such as he, Christ will say: "Well done, good and faithful servant: thou hast been faithful over a few things, I will set thee over many things; enter thou into the joy of thy Lord."

Let it not be once thought that this parable encourages procrastination. The opposite is true. It emphasizes the imperative duty of accepting Christ at the first opportunity. Redemption is not a matter to be deferred to a "convenient season." The peril of death and condemnation abides with those who, standing all the day idle, when invited into the Master's vineyard, "go their way." The eleventh-hour men, when asked why they were idle, answered: "Because no man hath hired us." They were not shirking. They accepted the first proffer of work. Men to-day who spurn Christ's gracious invitation have no parallel in the men who entered the vineyard at the eleventh hour. They are like those who willfully refused to hire. A man cannot be an eleventh-hour worker from purpose and deliberation. Such a man is like the trembling Felix, who deferred to a "convenient season," only (legend tells us) to perish in the destruction of Pompeii. God reserves no favorable opportunities for sinners to trifle away. To reject the first call of the gospel may mean damnation at last. To go one's own way in willfulness may mean that such a one will ultimately, like Judas, go "to his own place."

Many reasons may be assigned for entering the vineyard early in life. There is need for long service. Each man's character, when he enters the church, is merely a gross bulk. It is a huge block of granite, to shape which into form, line, symmetry, and beauty requires many tedious years of painstaking labor. To fit oneself for heaven is the task of a lifetime. To get acquainted with God, we, like Enoch, must walk with him daily and for a long period of time. Heaven will be only the richer for him who has thus enriched his life by service. Moreover, Christians should desire long life in which to advance the cause of Christ in the earth. Laborers can become more effective workers by beginning early. Note the men in your congregation who entered the church late in life; few of them can do much in a public way. Few will attempt to teach, or exhort, or lead in prayer or song. They got started too late. So they cannot be as useful as they might have been had they entered the church early in life. They are handicapped, and it is a personal misfortune, and the church is made to suffer; but such laborers will not be debarred from heaven, if they do the best they can. There is need for them.

I wish more young people would become Christians. Let them enter the vineyard early in the morning and bear the burden of the day and the scorching heat. The rest at eventide will be only the sweeter. Heaven has a full reward. We gain by entering early. We have much to lose if we enter later. We may lose all if we reject the first call, and we are certain to lose our souls if we habitually spurn the pleadings of mercy.

You can't make a preacher any more than you can make a tree—both grow under proper conditions.

Our Contributors

First Principles.

BY W. H. CARTER.

When I closed my series on the above subject, I had no thought of writing more—not because I thought these things had been thoroughly or perfectly discussed, but that enough had been said to get the readers to consider the importance of preaching these things. I had put faith, repentance, confession, and baptism down as “first principles,” not suspecting that any one would call this in question. But Brother G. C. Brewer, on the first page of the Gospel Advocate of March 30, says: “But these are really not first principles at all. They are ‘first steps’—the first steps that a sinner must take toward God; steps he must take in order to be saved.”

I am aware that it is quite common for preachers to speak of these as steps to be taken by the sinner, but are there no principles in them? If they have no principles in them, they could neither be regarded as “first principles” nor “second principles” nor “last principles.” If they are “first steps,” and these steps have principles in them, then they are “first principles.”

In Heb. 6: 1, 2, Paul speaks of the “principles of the doctrine of Christ,” and in them he mentions faith, repentance, and baptism. The Revision says “first principles.” In Heb. 11: 6 Paul says: “But without faith it is impossible to please him: for he that cometh to God must believe that he is, and that he is a rewarder of them that diligently seek him.” Faith comes by hearing the word. (Rom. 10: 17; Acts 15: 7; 1 Cor. 3: 5.) The word of God and faith in God are inseparable, for without the preaching of the word there can be no faith. (Rom. 10: 14.)

Without faith one cannot please God, and without hearing the gospel one cannot believe. Therefore, when we preach the necessity of faith, this includes the preaching of that which is necessary to produce faith. As stated above, they are inseparable; and if one belongs to the first principles, so does the other. In my articles I tried to impress the necessity and need of preaching that part of the gospel which is addressed to the unconverted.

To the Hebrews Paul said: “For when for the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need that one teach you again which be the first principles of the oracles of God.” (Heb. 5: 12.) These were not heathens. As Jews, they believed in God. They had believed the gospel and had obeyed it. This hearing, believing, and obeying, which includes the preaching, all belonged to the “first principles.”

But faith is not a “first principle,” but a “first step.” Is there not more in faith than a mere “step?” Paul says it “is the substance of things hoped for, the evidence of things not seen.” (Heb. 11: 1.) Figuratively we speak of it as a “step” to be taken by the sinner; but he is not to stop, but keep on stepping—walking in the steps of the faith of father Abraham. (Rom. 4: 12.) Faith has steps—not a “step,” but “steps.” Is there anything demanded of either saint or sinner that includes more—has greater principles in it—than faith? While it may be regarded as a “first step,” it is also one of the “first principles of the oracles of God.”

Now, I do not know that what Brother Brewer wrote was in reply to what I had said, for he may not have seen my articles; so I wish not that this be understood in that light.

Paul was a true missionary, and was supernaturally guided by the Holy Spirit. No one has ever found a people more deeply dyed in heathenism than he found at Athens. Paul was sent to teach the Gentiles, and he begins this work on Mars' Hill by saying: “Ye men of Athens, I perceive that in all things ye are too superstitious.” Why? “For as I passed by, and beheld your devotions, I found an altar with this inscription, TO THE UNKNOWN GOD. Whom therefore ye ignorantly worship, him declare I unto you.” He preaches to them the “God that made the world and all things therein;” that “in him we live, and move, and have our being;” and that we are his “offspring,” and should not “think the Godhead is like unto gold, or silver, or stone, graven by art and man’s device.” He tells that “the times of this ignorance God winked at; but now commandeth all men everywhere to repent.”

He teaches them of the true God, condemns their idolatry, and preaches the necessity of repentance. Now think. Is there a principle in repentance? Does it not have much to do with the preparation of man for citizenship in the kingdom of God? Did not Paul preach it as a principle to be accepted and complied with by all men? Count it as a step, if you wish, but do not lose sight of the great principle involved in it. Here Paul preached it as being one of the first things necessary in coming back to God. Note that Paul showed the necessity of believing in God, and pointed them to the day that “he hath appointed,” “in the which he will judge the world in righteousness by that man whom he hath ordained; whereof he hath given assurance unto all men, in that he hath raised him from the dead.” (See Acts 17.)

In this example of Paul’s mission work, he began with these people where he found them, in ignorance and unbelief, and the first thing he did was to preach to them the “unknown God” whom they did “ignorantly worship.” Why do this? Because “he that cometh to God must believe that he is,” and “faith cometh by hearing” God’s word. Were these things preached by Paul first principles? If so, we have faith in God and in Christ included, repentance and the resurrection of the dead preached by Paul as “first principles.” Calling them “first steps” does not take them out of the class of “first principles.” When one understandingly talks of “first principles” as set forth in the gospel, he does not exclude the necessity of teaching. Teaching is for the preacher to do. He is to teach them before they are baptized and teach them after they are baptized. But the first thing with the sinner is to hear, believe, repent, confess the Christ, and be baptized. Hence the necessity of preaching the gospel plainly.

If It Is Not Commanded, Is It Safe?

BY O. C. LAMBERT.

The following paragraph appeared in the June issue of the Tennessee Christian, from the pen of S. R. Hawkins, secretary of the Tennessee Christian Missionary Society and editor of the Tennessee Christian:

George Lewallen, of Glen Mary, taught singing twenty days during the winter, and, as a consequence, they now have the best singing in all that section. I would that every church in the brotherhood could have an old-fashioned singing school in their midst. It is all right to use instruments of music as aids, so long as they are aids to the doing of what God commands, which is to “sing, make melody in your hearts,” but it is all wrong to substitute instrumental music for that which God has commanded. We need more singing and more singers in most of our churches, more “making melody in the heart.”

The reader will see how he emphasizes the fact that vocal music and instrumental music are two separate and distinct acts—the one commanded, the other not commanded; and with this I heartily agree. The wonder of it all is, how he can think so lightly of doing that for which we have no divine authority. Has he never read the story of Cain? Cain knew what Jehovah required, but he, like our brother, thought nothing of doing what he liked instead. Cain was rejected. What better fate can his followers expect?

I want to be very careful to attribute no meaning to the words of our brother which he did not intend. I would not do such a thing. But I can imagine but two constructions to place upon his language. He either means that instrumental music, which is not commanded, renders the service more pleasing to men, or that it enables us to make our service more acceptable to God. Paul said: "If I seek to please men, I cannot be the servant of Christ." So I cannot think it is the former; for few men will plead guilty to deliberately attempting to please men in the things which they practice as worship to God. I am forced to the conclusion that Brother Hawkins meant to say that our service is more pleasing to God with such an addition. If this is true, is it not strange that it is left entirely out of the New Testament? "Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness: that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work." If this is true (and I have never doubted it), there is not a single good work not found therein. Will he say that Paul was mistaken? Paul was so certain that he had a complete revelation that he said: "Though we, or an angel from heaven, preach any other gospel unto you than that which we have preached unto you, let him be accursed." If Paul or an angel could not preach anything not taught by inspiration, I am sure I cannot, and I would be afraid to follow Brother Hawkins or any other man who does. "There is a way that seemeth right unto a man, but the end thereof are the ways of death."

Paul teaches us very plainly that our religious practice was circumscribed by, and limited to, that which is written. "Where the Bible is silent, we are silent," is a good motto and in perfect accord with the teaching of Paul. Those who claim as aids things not commanded represent the Heavenly Father in the attitude of neglecting or forgetting to put in something that is very pleasing to him. In other words, he commands singing, but likes instrumental music better. If this is not true, how can it be an aid? What is this but presumption? "Keep back thy servant also from presumptuous sins; let them not have dominion over me: then shall I be upright, and I shall be innocent from the great transgression."

If, as he says, it is not a commandment of God, it necessarily follows that it is a commandment of men. "In vain they do worship me, teaching for doctrines the commandments of men." There is too much for me to do for me to waste my time doing things which make my worship vain.

"Faith cometh by hearing, and hearing by the word of God." Instrumental music, because it is not commanded, cannot be of faith, and "whatsoever is not of faith is sin."

"Whosoever goeth onward and abideth not in the teaching of Christ, hath not God: he that abideth in the teaching, the same hath both the Father and the Son." Shall we be content with the teaching of Christ and sing, or shall we refuse to abide in his teaching and use instruments as aids?

I shall heed the warning given us in the very last lines in the New Testament: "I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto them, God shall add unto him the plagues which are written in this book."

Field Notes.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

Leaving Nashville on Monday, June 26, I visited Murfreesboro, Manchester, Morrison, McMinnville, and Sparta, in the order named.

At Murfreesboro I found the meetinghouse undergoing repairs, and, of course, no appointment for preaching. We have a large congregation there. Brother C. M. Pullias is the regular preacher, but Brethren A. B. Barret and L. B. Jones live there. All the preachers were at home, and I got to see them all, for a wonder. Brother Pullias was not very well. I spent several hours visiting with him and had dinner at his house.

I was very favorably impressed with some of Brother Pullias' ideas on spiritual matters. He is secretary and treasurer of the David Lipscomb College. He says he would like to see the school more like it was when Brother Harding ran it—a more spiritual atmosphere pervading the whole institution, teachers and students and directors.

I could not get at many of the brethren, but I hired a "taxi" and found a few, and did good work as far as I went.

At Manchester I was met by Brother Warren Thomas, whom I had known in California. An appointment had been made, and we had meeting at night, but not a very large attendance. Brother Thomas drove me about in his car and I did some good work. This was a very pleasant visit to me—to meet with those with whom I had labored and prayed so long ago.

At Morrison they seemed not to get my card announcing my coming. They have a nice meetinghouse, built of concrete brick.

No appointment had been made at McMinnville. I found several of the brethren, though, and talked with them. I saw the father and brother of Brother H. Leo Boles. From what I could learn, the membership of that church owns a considerable amount of this world's goods, but I could not learn of much good they were doing with it.

At Sparta no appointment was made for preaching, but Brother Martin Young sent his son to meet me at the train. He said his mother told him to find out if I had had dinner, and, if not, to come right on to the house and eat. I had had dinner at the hotel in McMinnville, but I will not soon forget her kind thoughtfulness.

I met several good brethren there. "Uncle Billie" Young looks after the interests of the Gospel Advocate there, and he keeps the list up in fine shape. Brother R. R. Brooks preaches there, but was away in Texas, holding some meetings. Brother J. D. Gunn, one of our good preachers, who has lived in Sparta for many years, was at home. In fact, he does not preach much now. He is mayor of the city and has a secular business. He said he had spent twenty-three years in the Cumberland Mountains, preaching the gospel; and now that the needs of his growing family have become more imperative, he is compelled to work to supply their wants. This will not encourage young men to make preachers, but, somehow, I cannot blame Brother Gunn. The church of Christ must wake up. Every member must preach or help somebody else to do it.

The churches of Christ in Tennessee have been built up largely by the sacrifice of the preachers. I mean those that work all the week and preach on Sunday and come back home with from seventy-five cents to two dollars for driving fifteen miles and preaching two or three sermons, besides losing a part of Saturday and Monday. There are hundreds of them doing that yet. I know whereof I speak. May God bless them and their wives and children at home.

At Sparta I closed my campaign for the Advocate for the present. I will still do my best for this good paper as I have opportunity; and if opportunity is afforded, I will be glad to go on the road for it again. I still believe the Advocate is one of the greatest forces for good there is among us to-day. I hope every one of its friends will push its claims wherever they go.

Yesterday (July 2) I began a meeting at Quebeck, about fifteen miles from Sparta. I am preaching in a schoolhouse. We have no congregation here, but I find several brethren living near here. The crowds are encouraging.

Any strictness which sours our temper, which makes us dislike our fellow-creatures, which shuts us up in ourselves; or again, any which interferes with our duties and oppresses us with little fidgety difficulties, instead of carrying us along in obeying the laws of our state of life, is almost certain to be a morbid strictness.—William Temple.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

A CALL TO TROY.

Troy is the oldest town in Obion County, and for many years was the county seat. By many Troy was considered to be rather aristocratic. For a long, long time the Associate Reformed Presbyterians, Cumberland Presbyterians, and Methodists had such a firm grip on the citizens of Troy that other religious people were not heard. Until this day the Baptists have no congregation at that place, although several attempts have been made at different times. In days gone by, but not forgotten by a few and not known by the many, there was a man by the name of "Collinsworth," who, like Apollos of old, was "an eloquent man, and mighty in the scriptures," and who for some reason (many said it was for the price paid) renounced "the faith" and joined the Presbyterians and at once began a cruel warfare on the people with whom he was once identified. His effort was to destroy "Campbellism." So he was in demand at every place where there was a possibility of "Campbellism" taking root.

Old Brother James B. Walker, of sainted memory, lived in Troy in those days. The influence of that godly man and family was keenly felt by the denominations at Troy; so Collinsworth was called to destroy this influence and scatter its ashes to "the four winds." An appointment was made and widely circulated. About that time Brother Isaac C. Sewell came to West Tennessee as an evangelist after the New Testament order. On the night for the appointment for Collinsworth, Brother Sewell stopped at Brother Walker's, and they went forth to the slaughter pen. A large crowd had assembled. They waited and waited, but no Collinsworth came. Some one arose and said: "For some reason Brother Collinsworth has failed to get here, which we regret very much; but I suggest that we dismiss and go home." Brother Walker spoke to some of the leading men and told them a preacher was present and, by consent, would be glad to preach. Finally consent was given. By many it was said that Brother Sewell preached the sermon of his life when filling the disappointment of the "Campbellite killer." One good old shouting sister, not knowing but what it was Collinsworth that preached, became very happy and shouted loud and long, thanking God for a "religion of the heart and not of the head." The congregation was dismissed and all started for home. The shouting sister was a little in advance of Brethren Sewell and Walker. Every one had something to say of the sermon. Finally some one asked: "What do you think about the sermon of that Campbellite?" The shouting sister heard the question. "What did you say? Was that a Campbellite preacher? I thought it was Brother Collinsworth." What of that for a heart religion? An exercise of the head would have saved the poor old soul from that mistake. "No, sister, that was not Brother Collinsworth, but a full-blooded Campbellite." "Well, if I had known that was a Campbellite preacher, I would not have shouted to save his life." Surely that was a curious heart religion.

When the vote was taken to remove the county seat from Troy to Union City, and Union City won, the citizens of Troy at once imbibed a spirit of enterprise to build and hold the town. "When we could, we didn't; now that we can't, we must."

Brother John D. Ott, now of Avon Park, Fla., who had obeyed the gospel at Hornbeak, was a brick mason and bricklayer by trade. He was prevailed on to move to Troy to make and lay brick. Wherever Brother Ott has gone, he has spent his time and means in building up the church of God; always a liberal giver and an incessant worker. Brother Ott said: "We must have a meeting in Troy." Of course, he wanted me for the meeting. The denominations seemed to be interested in the matter. "If you folks hold a meeting here, why don't you call one of your strongest men?"

Why call a man from Reelfoot Lake to Troy? We have already lost the county seat; and if Williams, the lakeite preacher, comes to Troy, we have lost all. Troy will no longer be on the map." I was snubbed, turned down, and Brother Godwin was called. Brother Godwin was a good man, a good preacher, and did some good work which will never die. He baptized two. Brother Ott and a few others still wanted me to try my hand on old Troy, notwithstanding many said: "The bullet is too small for the gun. Troy is too big a gun for such a small bullet; therefore, get your biggest bullet." Sometimes a small bullet discharged from a large gun has a deadly effect. You can't always tell. Sometimes a little preacher in a big place does as much good as a big preacher in a little place.

Next, "A Call to Troy" (continued).

The Mission of the Gospel Advocate.

BY H. LEO B.

The Gospel Advocate is now filling its sixty-fourth volume. There is no need of stating again the policy and mission of the paper. These have been stated time and again, and they are of so long standing and so firmly established that the name "Gospel Advocate" has been a synonym of loyalty to God's word, fidelity to the church of which our Lord is the head, and a humble defender of the simple worship of the New Testament order for more than half a century in the southern part of our country and many other countries of the world.

It may have made mistakes in its long and checkered career, or rather its editors and managers may have been unfaithful to its high and holy mission—who would claim perfection or inerrancy for them? But, correcting and "forgetting the things which are behind, and stretching forward to the things which are before," the paper is now determined as never before to "press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." (Phil. 3: 13, 14.) Its mission looks forward to the future with a spirit of hope that there is yet very much work for it to do.

So long as the paper remains true to this mission, it is entitled to the encouragement and unstinted support of all the people of God. Its mission should not be hampered nor perverted by selfish or sordid motives of any man or set of men; its mission should not be commercialized nor exploited by the spirit of retaliation; neither is it the work of the paper to "broadcast" to the world or its readers the petty personal grievances between brethren or the unholy quarrels and ungodly strife in the church. These should not be advertised to the world, but kept, at least, in their own locality. The mission of the paper must not be traduced by the spirit of contention.

The paper, to fulfill its mission, must do constructive work. Its editors and contributors must seek to please God. "Let all things be done unto edifying." (1 Cor. 14: 26.) The truth of God and the humility of Christ should be clearly seen in every article published in these columns. The mind of Christ must guide all the writers, if the mission of the paper is fulfilled. The columns of the Advocate should be the channel for the great constructive work of edifying and building up the church. Let all who seek expression through these columns keep these simple truths in mind.

We should like to increase the circulation of the Advocate, and ask for a full and free coöperation of all our readers. Surely you can lend encouragement to such a work. The paper will be a help to you in living the Christian life and teaching others to honor the will of our Lord. Will you not reciprocate by speaking a good word for the Gospel Advocate, by renewing your own subscription and by sending in the subscriptions of others? All that you may find it in heart to do will be greatly appreciated.

The Leaven of the Pharisees.

BY S. H. HALL.

There is nothing that means more to us than taking the pure words of our Lord, looking them squarely in the face, and drinking them in. They are the very essence of simplicity; and that the soundness of the teaching, advice, and admonition they bring us is the very best that can be had is one of the most outstanding things with which man has to do. Let us study one of his statements for a little while.

"And when he was come out from hence, the scribes and the Pharisees began to press upon him vehemently, and to provoke him to speak of many things; laying wait for him, to catch something out of his mouth. In the meantime, when the many thousands of the multitude were gathered together, insomuch that they trod one upon another, he began to say unto his disciples first of all, Beware ye of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy. But there is nothing covered up, that shall not be revealed; and hid, that shall not be known." (Luke 11: 53, 54; 12: 1, 2.)

If you will read the eleventh chapter, verses 29 to 52, you can better appreciate this scripture. Christ had just been talking directly to the Pharisees and lawyers. He had said some plain things to them about themselves, and especially the evil and deceit of their way. Note the following words to the Pharisees: "Now ye the Pharisees cleanse the outside of the cup and of the platter; but your inward part is full of extortion and wickedness." Listen to him also as he addresses the lawyers: "Woe unto you lawyers! for ye took away the key of knowledge: ye entered not in yourselves, and them that were entering in ye hindered."

With all of this blatant hypocrisy before his eyes, how could he well speak on some other subject when he turns to teach his disciples? His eyes had been beholding it. He could look into the innermost recesses of their hearts and see every impure motive, every wicked desire and plot against himself. He had witnessed what was called an act of hospitality which was done for the purpose of trying to find in him some fault. Note the following: "Now as he spake, a Pharisee asked him to dine with him: and he went in, and sat down to meat. And when the Pharisee saw it, he marvelled that he had not first bathed himself before dinner." I say, with all this before our Lord and on his heart, do you wonder that he began his address to his disciples by saying: "Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy?"

It requires but little thinking for any sane being to see the absolute ugliness and unreasonableness of a hypocrite. It is bad for a man to be a murderer, an outlaw, a man of no religious pretensions whatever, and who readily admits he has no respect for law and order. I say this is bad. But let him be as hard and rough as pig iron, he can be no worse than the hypocrite, and of the two evils the former is preferable.

The kingdom of heaven is a great thing; but it must be remembered that in it grows two crops, and one of them is a crop of hypocrites, the results of the sowing of the evil one. (See Matt. 13: 24-30, 36-42.)

Paul says to Christians: "Let love be without hypocrisy." (See Rom. 12: 9.) Is there such a thing as true love with hypocrisy? Is it not true that the love we claim to have for the brethren when hypocrisy exists is nothing else but hatred—the real devilish thing itself—covered with hypocrisy? If true love can exist when hypocrisy exists, then what is it that is covered and kept hidden with the mantle of hypocrisy? Is it not true that the hypocrite hates his brother? And John says: "Whosoever hateth his brother is a murderer." (1 John 3: 15.)

What is the sense of deceiving people? Why not kindly let people know what our thoughts toward them are? We may have thoughts that do them an injustice. Tell them, and give them a chance to let themselves be seen in a better light. Then, when you let them know how they look to you, it is possible that they will give themselves enough consideration to discover their ugliness and change for the better. I think it is universally true that "every way of man is right in his own eyes." (Prov. 21: 2.) Self-justification is the first thing we think of when accused of wrongdoing. Is it not so? Watch yourselves now and see. I frankly admit that the very first impulse when any one calls in question anything I say or do is to find grounds for justification. This is the carnal nature that we have, and God will never condemn us for this inclination; but he will condemn us if we do not keep it under and let the spirit of justice to all be the controlling principle of our lives.

But it occurs to me that there is another sore evil among us that really is responsible for some being a bit hypocritical. It is this: Criticize some just once, and you have made an enemy for life. No soul is fit to fill our pulpits, teach our young, and play the rôle of leader in our congregations that will not gladly consider every criticism offered. When criticism is resented, nine times out of ten it is the carnal nature that does the resenting. Solomon says: "He that hateth reproof shall die." (Prov. 10: 15.) He also says: "Whoso loveth correction loveth knowledge; but he that hateth reproof is brutish." (Prov. 12: 1.) It is the brute nature that does not like to be corrected. It is also declared that the wise will love us for our rebuking them, but to rebuke the foolish means that we get hatred and a blot. (Prov. 9: 7, 8.) And it seems that the Bible clearly teaches that when people are known to be foolish and unappreciative of our efforts to correct that we had better leave correction off. Certainly such should be told that we see in them that which makes us believe correction is useless. May God help us all to sing with David: "Let the righteous smite me, it shall be a kindness; and let him reprove me, it shall be as oil upon the head." (Ps. 141: 5.) But you say: "Exactly so, Brother Hall; I have no objection to the righteous reproving me, but it is the hypocrite that I object to." I presume we all feel that way. But is it not true that we sometimes misjudge others as being hypocrites because of the hypocrisy that is in us? Paul says: "Try your own selves; prove your own selves." Keep busy at this, and there is but little danger of misjudging others. Never dare correct others unless you are willing to be corrected.

"Beware of the leaven of the Pharisees, which is hypocrisy."

Publishers' Items.

Write us to-day for our list of good books. It will be sent free on request.

Send us a new subscriber to-day for the Gospel Advocate. Price, $2 a year, in advance.

Write us to-day for sample copies of The Young People for boys and girls. The price is in reach of all.

If you know of any congregation not now using our Bible Lesson Helps and will send us the address, we will gladly furnish them sample copies.

If you have friends who are not subscribers to the Gospel Advocate, kindly furnish us their names and addresses so that we may send them sample copies.

"Questions Answered," by David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell, should have a place in every library. Those who have seen and examined it closely are highly pleased with it. Cloth bound; 700 pages. Price, $3, postpaid.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Miner's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories. Price, $1.50.

Query Department

BY J. C. McQUIDDY

R. H. Hilsman, Bradentown, Fla., asks two questions: (1) Who was king of Nineveh at the time of Jonah's preaching in that city? (2) What were the names of the father and mother of Mary, Martha, and Lazarus?"

(1) Pul is supposed to have been king of Nineveh when Jonah preached to the city, about 750 B.C. (2) No one knows, as God did not see proper to reveal their names.

✱ ✱ ✱

"Mrs. Ella Dye, of Hundred, W. Va., inquires to know where the altar of incense was placed. She writes: 'I have a question which came up in our Bible study that I would like for you to answer—Heb. 9: 3, 4. Some contended that the golden altar of incense was in the holy place, and some in the holiest of all. They gave Ex. 26: 35; 30: 6.'

"The passages in question read: 'And after the second veil, the tabernacle which is called the Holy of holies; having a golden altar of incense, and the ark of the covenant overlaid round about with gold, wherein was a golden pot holding the manna, and Aaron's rod that budded, and the tables of the covenant.' (Heb. 9: 3, 4.) 'And thou shalt set the table without the veil, and the candlestick over against the table on the side of the tabernacle toward the south; and thou shalt put the table on the north side.' (Ex. 26: 35.) 'And thou shalt put it before the veil that is by the ark of the testimony, before the mercy seat that is over the testimony, where I will meet with thee.' (Ex. 30: 6.)"

A sister calls my attention to the fact that my answer to this question was not clear. On re-reading my answer, I have decided that she is correct. The confusion evidently arises out of the fact that "a golden altar of incense," which in the King James Version is rendered "golden censer," is thought to refer to the "altar of incense." The "golden censer," or "golden altar of incense," is not the same as the "altar of incense." In the golden censer was burned incense in the most holy place when the high priest entered it once a year. "And he shall take a censer full of coals of fire from off the altar before Jehovah, and his hands full of sweet incense beaten small, and bring it within the veil." (Lev. 16: 12.) "And Aaron shall make atonement upon the horns of it once in the year; with the blood of the sin offering of atonement once in the year shall he make atonement for it throughout your generations: it is most holy unto Jehovah." (Ex. 30: 10.) The holy place contained three objects—the altar of incense in the center so as to be directly in front of the ark of the covenant, the table of showbread on the right or north side, and the golden candlestick on the left or south side." (Ex. 26: 35; 30: 6.) Because the incense arising from this altar reached God in the most holy place, it is sometimes spoken of as though it belonged to the most holy place. It was placed in the holy place before the veil that enters the most holy place, that the incense might, like the prayers of the saints, pass through the veil to the presence of God.

✱ ✱ ✱

J. E. Word, Dinuba, Cal., sends the following query: "In our Bible class to-day we did not agree in regard to what was meant in Paul's statement in 2 Cor. 12: 16, where Paul says: 'Being crafty, I caught you with guile.' Information is wanted on 'caught you.' Did the apostle have reference to their obedience to the gospel, or did he refer to having caught them in sin after they had obeyed the gospel?"

The passage is a difficult one. I do not believe that Paul resorted to deceit, treachery, or a trick, in order to catch the Corinthians. The verse in its context does not bear out this interpretation. He had freely preached the gospel at Corinth, and without charge. He did not burden the Corinthians, and he tells them: "For I seek not yours, but you: for the children ought not to lay up for the parents, but the parents for the children." It appears that they had questioned his right to the apostleship and had intimated that he should not be supported in preaching the gospel." (1 Cor. 9.) But while he did not burden them, and says, "Forgive me this wrong," yet they had made the impression on him that they thought he had made up for this lack of support. "But be it so," you say, "I did not myself burden you; but, being crafty, I caught you with guile." While he himself had not done it, he had burdened them through the collection or through others. He proceeds to show he did none of these things. He asks: "Did I take advantage of you by any one of them whom I have sent unto you?" He sent Titus and another brother, but they took no gain. Thus he refuted the charge that, even if he did not burden them, there was guile about it and in some other way he would secure their substance. He had not profited by them in any respect temporally, even though they had charged him with being crafty and catching them with guile.

✱ ✱ ✱

T. W. Phillips, Fort Worth, Texas, inquires for my version of 1 Cor. 7: 15: "The brother or sister is not under bondage in such cases." He says: "I want your exegesis of this in connection with what the Savior said in Matt. 19: 9, and with what Paul says in 1 Cor. 7: 39."

1 Cor. 7: 15 considers only the departure of a husband or wife from a companion. Matt. 19: 9 and 1 Cor. 7: 39 consider both separation and remarriage. If any husband have an unbelieving wife, and she is content to dwell with him, let him not leave her. And the believing wife that hath an unbelieving husband, and he is content to dwell with her, let her not leave her husband. But if the unbelieving is not willing to live with the believing because a Christian, and departeth, let him depart in peace: "the brother or the sister is not under bondage in such cases: but God hath called us in peace." One should live in separation from a husband or wife, rather than forsake Christ to please the other. It is right to actually leave them only when they will not live with you because you are faithful to Christ. Live the Christian, then leave results with them and God. If they leave you, be content to live in separation and without remarriage.

✱ ✱ ✱

Joe Boswell, Knoxville, Tenn., inquires to "know the meaning of John 5: 18." The passage reads: "For this cause therefore the Jews sought the more to kill him, because he not only broke the Sabbath, but also called God his own Father, making himself equal with God." (Matt. 5: 18.) While Christ did not really break the Sabbath, the Pharisees were horrified because he did not keep the Sabbath according to their ideas of keeping it. They thought it blasphemous for him to claim God as his Father, making himself equal with God. "And he said unto them, The Sabbath was made for man, and not man for the Sabbath: so that the Son of man is lord even of the Sabbath." (Mark 2: 27, 28.)

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN THE WORSHIP

By M. C. Kurfess

Cloth. 300 pages. Price, postpaid.....$1.50

This is the most comprehensive book on this important subject now before the public. In it the Greek verb "psallo" is philologically and historically examined, together with a full discussion of kindred matters relating to music in Christian worship. The book is the result of a lifetime of critical study and research, and has become the standard of information on the music question. It has been highly recommended by scholarly brethren in the church of Christ and in the religious world.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY
Nashville, Tenn.

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, #17-#19 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing to advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

A Friendly Criticism.

BY J. O. M'Q.

Brother Turner's article carries me back to our pleasant association of the long ago. I remember well when I spoke to him and the benches, and I can truly say that in all the intervening years I have never had a more appreciative and attentive hearer than was he. His words of encouragement were indeed helpful and have remained with me to help me over the rough places in life.

I do not remember any special position that we took on the tenth chapter of John, but I do recall that Brother Larimore did repeatedly warn us against the danger of pressing analogies in the parables too far. It is safe to take Christ's interpretation of his parables and similes; but when he has given none, it is not safe to take our own. I have never known any one to stick more closely to the Bible than T. B. Larimore.

Read Brother Turner's exegesis of John 10: 1-18:

Brother McQuiddy: In the Gospel Advocate of March 2, page 206, a sister inquires for information on John 10: 3, 9, and is answered by you. Said answer is not satisfactory to another good sister that I taught and baptized years ago. And others want more light on the porter, door, and fold, and "shall go in and go out, and find pasture," in verse 9. You and I sat at the feet of the great, pious, and much-beloved T. B. Larimore, at Mars' Hill, Ala., years ago. How sweet it is to reflect back over those years! I remember that this lesson and scripture came up in our work for investigation. Many people "do err, not knowing the scriptures" (Matt. 22: 29; James 5: 19), and become confused in this lesson, because they fail to notice that there are two parables; and both are parables of sheepfolds, but different folds represented. The first parable is given in John 10: 1-6; the second, in verses 7-18. Many people try to bend the second parable into an interpretation of the first, and confusion and misunderstanding are the result.

In the Scriptures we have not less than three folds and two doors referred to. The first was the Jewish, or Israel. (Ezek. 36: 38.) The second was the called-out or preparatory fold, and John the Baptist evidently was the "porter" referred to in John 10: 3, and the "door" here is the door of prophecy. John's work was to make ready, prepare for, and introduce Christ to Israel. (Read Isa. 40: 3; Mal. 3: 1; Matt. 3: 1-3; Luke 3: 2-18; John 1: 19-27.) This was the preparatory work carried on for better than three years by John, Christ, and the apostles, previous to the crucifixion of Christ. Christ being introduced by the "porter," John the Baptist, became the door into the third sheepfold. Therefore: "Other sheep I have, which are not of this fold" (this preparatory fold). The "other sheep" were the Gentiles referred to in verse 16. Then "the way," Christ (John 14: 6; Isa. 35: 8); "new and living way" (Heb. 10: 18-22); being the way for all nations, beginning at Jerusalem A.D. 33 (Acts 2: 1-38; 10: 1-48). Now, verse 9 is where people make many blunders—"shall go in and go out." John's and Christ's disciples went into the preparatory, then out of it into the complete. This is where they find pasture—in the third fold, or church. Then there is one fold and one Shepherd. Christ led them out, found pasture. The same thought is plainly expressed by Paul in the following: "For he is our peace, who made both one, and broke down the middle wall of partition, . . . that he might create [make anew] in himself of the two one new man, so making peace; and might reconcile them both in one body unto God through the cross." (Eph. 2: 14-16; 1: 22.) This third fold, which is the church of Christ, is made up from all people; Christ is the head and good Shepherd of the fold. And here is where we find pasture, eternal life, and complete in Christ. (Col. 2: 10; 4: 12.)

By a close study of the Scriptures, Old and New Testaments, we find the church of Christ, first, in purpose; second, in promise; third, in prophecy; fourth, in preparation; fifth, complete in Christ—the way, door, foundation, the life; and here is where we find pasture, and not in the old, imperfect, or preparatory. Here is where we find the bread of life and water of life, being led to Christ through the door of prophecy, introduced by the porter, John the Baptist. (John 10: 3.) Now we have free invitation into the one way, door, Christ. (Matt. 11: 28-30; John 6: 44, 45; 14: 6.) Let us hear from you again. H. H. TURNER.

I do not agree that there are two parables, the first ending with verse 6 and the second ending with verse 18. The Greek word rendered "parable" in verse 6 is not so rendered elsewhere. It is rather a simile. The marginal note in the American Revised Version is "proverb." "This proverb [or, simile] spake Jesus unto them: but they understood not what things they were which he spake unto them." Because they "understood not what things they were," "Jesus therefore said unto them again, Verily, verily, I say unto you, I am the door of the sheep."

The sheepfolds of the East are large inclosures, open to the sky, but walled around with stone, brick, or reeds, in order to furnish protection against thieves, robbers, wolves, and other beasts of prey. There is a large door by which both the shepherd and sheep enter. The sheepfold represents the church, the door into which is Christ. The shepherd and the sheep enter by the door, while those who get in any other way are robbers who seek to prey upon the sheep.

The gatekeeper, whose business it is to guard the entrance, called by Christ the "porter," is furnished with arms to fight off intruders, but he would let in the shepherd of the sheep. Just what spiritual thing Christ intended to represent, if any, by the porter is not certain. If intended to represent any one, it must be God, who has decided who shall enter through the door. The porter could not represent John the Baptist, for he has made no such decision.

The sheep in the East follow their shepherd, and are not driven as in this country. They have names, just as we name our horses and dogs. The sheep in the East are so tame and gentle that they follow their shepherd with the utmost docility. B. W. Johnson relates: "'Passing by a flock of sheep,' says Mr. Hartley, 'I asked the shepherd to call one of his sheep. He instantly did so, and it left its pasturage and its companions and ran to the shepherd with a promptitude and signs of pleasure that I never witnessed before!"

The sheep hear and heed the voice of their keeper, for they know his voice, but strangers they will not follow. It is related that a man disguised himself in the dress of the shepherd, but the sheep still followed the disguised shepherd's voice, but refused to follow the voice of a stranger in the garb of their keeper.

Christ is the door of the sheep. He is the one door for all. There is no other way to enter; for "neither is there any other name under heaven, that is given among men, wherein we must be saved." He is "the way, and the truth, and the life." (John 14: 6.) Christ had sheep among the Gentiles. These would hear his voice, enter through the door into the same fold as the Jewish Christians, so that there would be "one fold, and one shepherd." Christ says nothing of three sheepfolds, but teaches that the Gentiles as well as the Jews should enter through him into the one church. Ezek. 36: 38 refers to a flock of holy things for sacrifice. It is safe to talk of Jew and Gentile, and "other sheep I have, which are not of this fold;" but it is not speaking as does the Bible to say there are three folds and two doors. I fear Brother Turner has departed from his training! Christ is the door into the church to the Gentile as well as to the Jew. Verse 9 says: "I am the door; by me if any man enter in, he shall be saved, and shall go in and go out, and shall find pasture." This is as true of Gentile as Jew. By me if any man enter in, enter the church, he shall be saved; and as the sheep go in and go out of the sheepfold and find pasture, so his sheep should go out of the kingdom of darkness and into the kingdom of Christ and find pasture. Here we live in expectation. The sweetest treasures and joys are in store for us. We shall find pastures that never fail when we pass out of this world of sorrow and death.

Inspiration of the Holy Scriptures.

BY H. LEO B.

In discussing the proposition that the Holy Scriptures are inspired, we are led to consider the cognate proposition of revelation. If, indeed, God has made a revelation to man, if he hath spoken unto man, we are led to expect him to use inspiration. It seems that the proof of the proposition of the inspiration of the Scriptures involves the question of revelation; and if a revelation had been made, it is reasonable to expect that provision would be made for a preservation of that revelation in some way that would be authoritative and instructive. If no permanent and instructive record is kept of the revelation, the revelation would be lost and accomplish no good to future man.

The fact that God exists, as a living God, with all the attributes of reason and intelligence, with love and mercy, and with goodness and power, is sufficient evidence that he can express or reveal his mind and wisdom, if he so chooses. Since he has created man with intelligence, understanding, and volition; since he has created man in his own image and endowed him with the faculties of mind and soul, it is reasonable to expect Jehovah to reveal at least some of his attributes to man and a part of his will and wisdom unto his intelligent creatures. Man is so close akin to God that we reasonably expect God to communicate unto him. Man was created to know God. "This is life eternal, that they should know thee the only true God, and him whom thou didst send, even Jesus Christ." (John 17: 3.) It is life eternal to know God in the full relationship in which we were created to know him. Since man was created to know God, it is reasonable to expect that God should reveal himself unto his creatures. How can man know God, if he does not have a revelation of him? The infinite power, love, wisdom, and goodness of God can be learned only through a revelation of God. The wisdom of God's will and his salvation of man must be revealed unto man before it can be appreciated. Surely God would not make creatures capable of understanding and appreciating much, at least, of the way, will, and wisdom of God, and still keep himself an eternal secret to his intelligent creatures.

A revelation of the love, mercy, and salvation of God to man implies or involves a speaking God. He hath chosen to reveal his attributes, his wonderful love and redemptive mercy, by speaking a revelation. Man is so limited in his finite attributes that he must learn of God, love, and salvation through a revelation. I am not here limiting the ways by which Jehovah may express himself unto man. He may express his will in dreams, visions, or by angels; he may reveal himself with an audible voice or through a personality. "God, having of old times spoken unto the fathers in the prophets by divers portions and in divers manners, hath at the end of these days spoken unto us in his Son." (Heb. 1: 1, 2.) Our God is not a dumb, silent God, but an ever-vocal God; he hath made the very heavens echo with the voice of his love and the mountains tremble with the power of his revelation.

Since God hath spoken unto man, since he hath revealed his will unto his creatures, he must use language. The fact that God hath spoken to man implies the use of language. We cannot think of speaking to intelligent creatures and making them understand without using language which they can understand. Hence, Jehovah must use human language in addressing man, or else he must take man from man's earthly realm—take him "up even to the third heaven" and let him hear "unspeakable words, which it is not lawful for a man to utter." So long as man remains in his natural realm and God in his heaven, God must use human language in making himself known unto man. Man's limitations and finiteness impel Jehovah to use human speech. Man cannot understand the dialect of angels. Even that dialect must be translated into human speech before it can be understood by man.

One of the highest and greatest gifts that God has bestowed upon his creatures is the gift of speech and the capacity or ability to understand speech. There is nothing which marks man as being superior to all other creatures so much as the power of speech. It is reasonable to infer that, since God has so endowed man with speech and the ability to understand speech, he will address man through speech. I suppose that Jehovah uses the dialect of angels in communicating his will to the hosts of heaven. We do know that when he speaks unto mortal man he uses the instrument of human speech in conveying his ideas and thoughts unto the human heart. When God thus reveals himself and speaks unto man, using human speech to express his will unto man, this is inspiration. God uses human speech in translating his will unto intelligent man; and this is inspiration. The inspiration of the Holy Scriptures affirms that the Bible is a record of God's speaking through men unto men. He hath guided and illuminated the minds of some men in expressing in human speech and language unto man. This is inspiration. Revelation, then, is so closely connected with inspiration that it is impossible to separate them in this discussion.

When God ceases to reveal his will unto man, then inspiration ceases; or when inspiration ceases, God ceases to reveal his will unto man. If we can tell when God stopped revealing his will unto man, then we may be able to point to the time when he stopped inspiring men; or if we can tell when God stopped illuminating and guiding the mind of man by the Holy Spirit, then we can tell when revelation ceased. Inspiration belongs to the person and to the book only as it is the product of the inspired person. Of course, no one claims that inspiration inheres literally in the pen, ink, and paper that the inspired person used; neither is there inspiration in the type or copy of the letter or book which the inspired writer wrote. There is no inspiration in the mere literal copies of the Bible to-day which prevents its being mutilated or destroyed.

Every scripture that is inspired of God has its origin in the mind of God, and is given to make men wise unto salvation; it becomes the body of writings which are revealed unto man for his salvation and perfection. God, in revealing by inspiration, is cooperating with man in expressing his will to human intelligence. In this way the Scriptures may be said to form divine-human work.

An Answer to Brother J. B. Briney's Question.

BY F. W. SMITH.

A statement in my article on "A Friendly Criticism" has called forth the following query by our aged Brother Briney:

Holden, Mo., June 26, 1922.—My Dear Brother Smith: I always read whatever your name is attached to in the Gospel Advocate, and generally with approval; but a statement in your article, entitled "A Friendly Criticism," in the issue of June 22, surprised me quite much. I was astonished that the passage or passages in the Scriptures, in which the use of an instrument in worship is "clearly forbidden," had escaped my notice through all the years that I have been studying the Bible; and as I am anxious to refrain from everything that is "clearly forbidden," I am kindly asking you to refer me to the Scripture that "clearly forbids" it. Please do not refer me to passages from which you infer that it is forbidden, but kindly give me the chapter and verse that "clearly forbids" it, and I will consider it a special favor and regard you as my benefactor.

Most cordially yours,

J. B. BRINEY.

It is with much pleasure that I undertake to answer Brother Briney's question, for it affords me an opportunity of doing what I have desired for a long time—viz., getting some light from him on what seems to me to be a most important matter. Let no one think that because he and I differ on the question of instrumental music in Christian worship that we are possessed of the slightest unkind feelings toward each other. Brother Briney has done and is still doing a work along certain lines that should be appreciated by every lover of the Bible, and for which he should be most heartily commended. He has helped me much through the years that have passed, and I shall not wait for him to die before saying so.

But to his question. I have concluded to answer our brother's question, in part, by his own writings, which are copied from the Apostolic Times of June 10 and 17, 1869, pages 69 and 73. He then had the following to say:

THE DOCTRINE OF EXPEDIENCY. (No 1.)

It was a glorious day for the cause of the truth when the pious and venerable Thomas Campbell conceived and set forth the principle contained in the following language: "Where the Scriptures speak, we speak; where the Scriptures are silent, we are silent." This declaration contains the germ and pith of the present Reformation. It was the guiding star of such men as the Campbells, Scott, Stone, and Creath, in their march back to the apostolic ground. It was the watchword of those noble, grand old veterans as, weak in numbers, but strong in faith, they bared their bosoms to the darts of popery and rushed forward to rescue the ordinances of Jesus Christ from oblivion's embrace. This was the banner that gave them possession of many a hotly contested field and led them on to glorious victory. Under it they fought, under it they conquered, and, dying, they bequeathed it to us, that under it we might at least hold what they gained. So long as we adhere to this principle may we march forward with heads erect and banners streaming. But the moment we abandon this we will be at sea, without compass or rudder, and our ship will be driven by the merciless blasts of the head winds of sectarianism in the direction of the port of Rome, and in this state of case we may well haul down our colors and seek recognition in "courts ecclesiastic." We will need the sympathy of such courts then.

It is no matter of astonishment that, when the foregoing principle was enunciated, such a thoughtful man as Andrew Munro should make the following statement: "If we adopt that as a basis, then there is an end of infant baptism."

I beg leave to make the following respectful suggestion to Brother J. S. Lamar: If we adhere to that as a basis, then there is an end of instrumental music in the worship. But we must adhere to that, or else the "reformation is a failure." This brings us to the main point had in view in the preceding essays. That singing as worship is a divine appointment is abundantly clear, from the following scriptures: "What is it, then? I will pray with the spirit, and I will pray with the understanding also: I will sing with the spirit, and I will sing with the understanding also." (1 Cor. 14: 15.) "And be not drunk with wine, wherein is excess; but be filled with the Spirit: speaking to yourselves in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing and making melody in your heart to the Lord." (Eph. 5: 18, 19.) "By him therefore let us offer the sacrifice of praise to God continually, that is, the fruit of our lips giving thanks to his name." (Heb. 13: 15.)

Singing is worship only as it consists in prayer and praise. It is not the sound simply, the mere music, that renders it acceptable to God, but the sentiments of devotion. From the first of the above quotations we learn that in these sentiments of prayer and praise the spirit and the understanding unite. In the third quotation these sentiments are called the "sacrifice of praise," and are defined to be the "fruit of our lips." It follows, then, with the clearness of a sunbeam, that the instruments to be used in offering this sacrifice are the vocal organs with which God has endowed his creature, man. Here, then, is a divine ordinance consisting in the offering of prayer and praise to the Lord with our lips—this latter term being used generically to denote all the vocal organs.

Now, I affirm that an "instrumental accompaniment" is an addition to this ordinance, and affects its character, and is therefore an infringement of the divine prerogative.

That singing as worship is a divine ordinance will not be questioned in the face of the Scripture cited above. That the "instrumental accompaniment" is an addition is simply certain from the historical facts in the case, it having been born five hundred years out of time. Therefore, whatever men may think of its expediency, it effects the character of the divine appointment and cannot be tolerated for a moment.

There is no room here for expediency, or man's wisdom. It is not the prerogative of expediency to say in what manner an ordinance shall consist. Inspiration has ordained that the sacrifice of praise shall be offered with the human voice. Then let expediency neither add nor subtract. Expediency may regulate my voice—that is, it may determine whether I shall sing with a base, tenor, or alto voice; but beyond this, and the like, it must not go. It must not say with what I shall praise, for it would then be determined in what an ordinance shall consist, which, as we have already seen, must not be allowed.

From the foregoing it seems to follow, both logically and scripturally, that the "instrumental accompaniment" nullifies the ordinance! Now, at this somebody may get "scared, feel his hair standing on end, start to run, find somebody else sitting by the camp fires nodding," etc. Be it so. I could only wish that this fright were real. I should think that a man might well afford to become frightened when he sees himself tampering with an ordinance of the Almighty! But when I see a man affecting fright to try to excite mirth at the expense of a brother who is earnestly contending for the faith, my heart sinks within me. The "accompaniment" is expedient, we are told. Expedient, forsooth! Infant baptism is expedient, say Stewart and Beecher. Now, the New Testament Scriptures are just as silent upon the "accompaniment" as upon infant baptism. If, therefore, expediency may introduce that, why not this?

But in what respect is the "accompaniment" expedient? If it is expedient, it is because it gives some good result which would not be obtained without it. But if this be true, the Savior either failed in his wisdom or his benevolence, for he never ordained the "accompaniment."

Expediency, stay thy impious hand! That the instrument in the worship gives a good result which would not otherwise be realized is an assumption which never has been and never will be proved. And just here is the point at which the argument for the instrument must forever break down.

Am I told that it is expedient because "it attracts the world?" I beg leave to state that the worship of the Lord's house was not ordained for the world. Is the church of the Lord Jesus Christ to be brought down to the standard of the world? Is this the program of expediency? If the caprice of the world is to be regarded in these matters, the very same emergency that demands the organ will demand the very best skill in its use, and, therefore, the beer-bloated Dutchman from the theater of Saturday night will be in demand in the sanctuary of God on the Lord's day!

We are told that the organ need not affect the worship of the individual; that those who are opposed to the instrument may worship in spite of it. This I might do. I might worship, but it would only be in the silent breathings of my spirit. I cannot engage in singing as an act of worship where there is an "instrumental accompaniment," for this would nullify the ordinance. Now, some one may say that in this I am so straight that I lean back a little. Be it so. If I lean back, it is but to rest upon the word of God; and resting upon this, I dread not the fall.

Call to mind the illustration of the Supper. The bread and wine are on the table. But the congregation, from considerations of "propriety and expediency," have determined to add water. Do you observe the Lord's Supper when you sit down with those brethren and partake of the bread and wine, though you reject the water? You do not. Neither do I worship God when I sit down and sing with brethren who add an "accompaniment."

Yet once more.

J. B. B.

THE DOCTRINE OF EXPEDIENCY. (No. 2.)

In the discussion of the question relating to the use of instrumental music in the worship, some very obvious and shallow fallacies have been used, a sample of which follows: "Instruments were used in the Jewish kingdom. Instruments will be used in the everlasting kingdom. Therefore, instruments may be used in the present kingdom." I will submit a parallel case—viz.: Infants were in the Jewish kingdom. Infants will be in the everlasting kingdom. Therefore, infants may be in the present kingdom. Whoever sees the fallacy in this will detect it in that. That which proves too much, proves nothing.

It is becoming quite apparent that certain persons are getting a little sore under these comparisons. (See Harbinger, current volume, page 266.) If people do not like to be pressed with the consequences of dangerous and unscriptural positions, they ought not to occupy them. Now, I beg leave to state that if there is an offense in the consequences of the doctrine of expediency, we of the opposition are not responsible for it.

The first object of these articles was introduced with an extract from Professor Stewart, to show that the ablest defenders of infant baptism base their defense upon "propriety and expediency"—the same ground upon which the attempt is made to defend the "accompaniment;" and as they both relate to things about which the Holy Spirit has legislated, whatever argument supports the one will, to the same extent, support the other.

It is no uncommon thing for a man, when he sees no other way to evade the force of the arguments and comparisons of an opponent, to declare them to be inapposite. All that a pedobaptist has to do to convince a pedobaptist audience that the sixth chapter of Romans does not teach immersion is to wave his hand majestically, assume a knowing look, and pronounce it all figurative. The work is then done, to his own satisfaction and that of his auditory. But, thank the Lord, our brethren are a reading and thinking people, and will decide these matters for themselves.

In the preceding article it was shown that the instrument in the worship is an addition to a divine ordinance, and effects its character, and, therefore, must not be allowed.

The Holy Spirit has provided for the use of singing in another capacity aside from the worship proper: "Let the word of Christ dwell in you richly in all wisdom; teaching and admonishing one another in psalms and hymns and spiritual songs, singing with grace [gratitude] in your hearts to the Lord." (Col. 3: 16.) Singing, then, may be used in teaching and admonishing. Can this be done with an instrument? Let the Spirit answer: "And even things without life giving sounds, whether pipe or harp, except they give a distinction in the sounds, how shall it be known what is piped or harped?" (1 Cor. 14: 7.) Evidently, there is neither teaching nor admonition in inarticulate sounds. The instrument does not give the necessary distinction in the sounds. This being the case, there is no place in the assembly of the saints for the organ, and they who introduce it do so at their peril.

We are gravely told that the instrument tranquilizes the troubled mind, soothes the disquieted spirit, and fills the soul with solemnity. Grant it. Does it necessarily follow that this is worship? If this is devotion, then the lion may be as devotional as man! Why does the ferocious wild beast lose its ferocity for the moment under the influence of the soft strains of music? Is it because its soul is filled with devotion? True devotion consists in sentiments, not feelings nor sounds. An instrument cannot beget sentiments, and therefore cannot aid us in our devotions.

Having seen that the "instrumental accompaniment" is sinful per se, I wish to put it upon another footing. In his first letter to the Corinthians, Paul teaches that when an enlightened Christian eats meat which has been sacrificed to an idol, his act is not sinful per se; but, as he clearly teaches, there may be circumstances under which such an act would be exceedingly sinful. If there were those who were not so fully enlightened upon this point, and whose consciences were therefore weak, this weakness was to be the rule of action in the case. And of violating this rule the apostle says: "But when ye sin so against the brethren, and wound their weak conscience, ye sin against Christ." Now, in this music affair, I am willing to be called a weak brother, if thereby the cause of my Savior can be served. Indeed, I like that weakness which fears to leave the channels designated by the word of God, to try the trackless and shoreless sea of expediency. My conscience will not allow me to engage in singing as an act of worship, where there is an "instrumental accompaniment." A weak conscience, you say? Be it so, I demand that my weak conscience shall be respected. Remember that when you introduce an organ into the worship, and thus wound my conscience, however weak it may be, you sin against Christ, and he will call you to an account for it in the great day.

Let the plain truth be told. The introduction of the organ is no mere impropriety; it is a gross insult to the Lord Jesus Christ, and a sin against the God of heaven. The observance of this Pauline principle will keep the instrument out while time lasts.

I do not believe that the congregation can be found among us, which uses an organ, that did not introduce it over the consciences of some of the brethren. True, the rector of the "parish" of Syracuse says that it has caused no trouble in his "parish," but perhaps he has not investigated the matter thoroughly. Let New York City and St. Louis answer for themselves. The congregation that has introduced an organ into its worship over one protesting conscience has sinned against Christ, and stands in need of repentance before God.

The same principle that protects the minority in a congregation will protect the minority in the entire kingdom. Are the brethren in Australia in the kingdom? So am I. If, therefore, they introduce anything into the kingdom that wounds my conscience, they sin against Christ. Thus has the Holy Spirit so hedged the kingdom of the Master about that there is absolutely no door of entrance for the instrument, and he who brings it in must break down barriers interposed by infinite wisdom.

Thus have we viewed the "accompaniment" from two standpoints, and found it to be sinful in both cases. It is sinful per se, and it is sinful per accidens. It is not said that instrumental music is sinful per se, for such is not the case. But it is contended, and, as I believe, proved, that the "accompaniment" in singing, as an act of worship, is sinful per se. Sprinkling is not sinful per se. A lady very innocently sprinkles her clothes preparatory to ironing them; but when a priest sprinkles water upon a person and calls it "baptism," his act is sinful per se. So with the "accompaniment." Each interferes with a divine appointment.

But of what is instrumental music in the house of worship an accompaniment? Is it an accompaniment of the worship of those who are poor in spirit? Never. But it is an accompaniment of pride, and of fashion, and vanity, and of dancing, and theatergoing, and the like. For the truth of this statement, I appeal to its history.

The field extends before me, but I must desist for the present. Respectfully and fraternally, J. B. B.

In the light of the foregoing it is most clearly evident that Brother Briney's memory is treacherous when he says in his query to me: "I was astonished that the passage or passages in the Scriptures, in which the use of an instrument in worship is 'clearly forbidden,' had escaped my notice through all the years that I have been studying the Bible." When he wrote, as quoted from the Apostolic Times, he evidently saw an abundance of Scripture clearly forbidding the use of instrumental music in Christian worship. In fact, he saw these passages with such clearness of vision as to say, "Having seen that the 'instrumental accompaniment' is sinful per se," and, "It is sinful per accidens." Again: "My conscience will not allow me to engage in singing as an act of worship, where there is an 'instrumental accompaniment.'"

Our brother saw another thing in the New Testament Scriptures—"with the clearness of a sunbeam"—viz., that the only kind of music to be offered in the "sacrifice of praise" to God is vocal music. Hear him: "It follows, then, with the clearness of a sunbeam, that the instruments to be used in offering this sacrifice are the vocal organs with which God has endowed his creature, man. . . . Now, I affirm that an instrumental accompaniment is an addition to this ordinance, and affects its character, and is therefore an infringement of the divine prerogative." Arguing against musical instruments as an expedient to worship, he says: "From the foregoing it seems to follow, both logically and scripturally, that the 'instrumental accompaniment' nullifies the ordinance!" Once more: "Now, the New Testament Scriptures are just as silent upon the 'accompaniment' as upon infant baptism. If, therefore, expediency may introduce that, why not this?"

Now, I would be pleased to have Brother Briney enlighten me on the following points: First, what has become of all those scriptures which shone "with the clearness of a sunbeam" upon the mind of Brother Briney, convincing him that "instrumental accompaniment" in Christian worship was "sinful per se?" Second, since his vision has undergone such a radical change as to permit him to see "with the clearness of a sunbeam" scriptural authority in the New Testament for "instrumental accompaniment" in Christian worship, will he "kindly give me the chapter and verse that clearly" authorizes it? If he will do this, "I will consider it a special favor and regard him as my benefactor." I did not mean "forbidden" in so many words, such as, "Thou shalt not use instrumental music," but I meant "forbidden" in precisely the same way that a cow was "forbidden" to be offered by the Jews in sacrifice when they were commanded to offer a sheep, that infant baptism is "forbidden" by the command to baptize somebody else, and that burning incense is "forbidden" by the appointment of a worship that does not include it. How does our brother prove that infant baptism is forbidden by the Scriptures? With an expressed, "Thou shalt not baptize an infant?" When he tells me how infant baptism is clearly forbidden, he will, by the same rule or principle of interpretation, see how instrumental music is clearly forbidden. If my brother dissents from this, will he kindly answer the following? (1) When God commanded the Jew to offer a sheep, did that forbid the offering of a cow? (2) Is the burning of incense forbidden in Christian worship? If so, how? (3) Is not everything not specifically included in Christian worship forbidden by the law of exclusion? Will Brother Briney let his readers of the Standard see this?

Adding to and Taking from the Word of God.

BY M. C. K.

Next to the oft-repeated and direct command to obey the word of God, two of the most prominent things in the Bible, though expressly given in but few passages, are the two cases of adding to and taking from that word. The solemn emphasis placed upon both is sufficient to show the vital and exalted place they hold in the divine mind, and, hence, how they should be held and regarded by fallible man. There is scarcely ever a time when the teaching of the Bible on both these lines is not opportune; but I am persuaded that, at this particular time, it is not only opportune, but that there is a most serious and crying demand for it. I shall, therefore, devote this article to such a discussion of the question as it is hoped will show the serious importance of the lesson it contains.

To make the discussion more intelligible and appreciable to the reader, I shall, first of all, present the Biblical passages treating directly of the matter, and then follow this presentation with a discussion of their import.

1. Biblical passages on adding to and taking from the word of God. Our readers will please not only carefully read all of these passages, but let them note particularly the serious and solemn ring pervading them all. Here they are in the exact words of God and of God's inspired servants: "Ye shall not add unto the word which I command you, neither shall ye diminish from it, that ye may keep the commandments of Jehovah your God which I command you." (Deut. 4: 2.) Again: "What thing soever I command you, that shall ye observe to do; thou shalt not add thereto, nor diminish from it." (Deut. 12: 32.) Then hear the following plain and pointed passage: "Every word of God is tried; he is a shield unto them that take refuge in him. Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar." (Prov. 30: 5, 6.) Then, through the prophet Jeremiah, there is delivered this solemn message: "Thou therefore gird up thy loins, and arise, and speak unto them all that I command thee; be not dismayed at them, lest I dismay thee before them." (Jer. 1: 17.) And this: "Thus saith Jehovah: Stand in the court of Jehovah's house, and speak unto all the cities of Judah, which come to worship in Jehovah's house, all the words that I command thee to speak unto them; diminish not a word." (Jer. 26: 2.) And through Ezekiel there comes a similar warning in these words: "Son of man, I have made thee a watchman unto the house of Israel: therefore hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me." (Ezek. 3: 17.) And, finally, in the closing chapter of divine revelation, and clothed with the solemnity of death and the judgment, there is recorded this final warning to preachers and other religious teachers of all the ages: "I testify unto every man that heareth the words of the prophecy of this book, If any man shall add unto them, God shall add unto him the plagues which are written in this book: and if any man shall take away from the words of the book of this prophecy, God shall take away his part from the tree of life, and out of the holy city, which are written in this book." (Rev. 22: 18, 19.)

2. The divine import of these warnings. What do all of these carefully recorded admonitions mean? It seems to me the best possible comment on them is to call attention to the exact things which they say in so many words and to emphasize the importance of hearing them. All of them make it clear and solemnly emphasize the fact that not one jot or tittle must be added to or taken from the word of God, but that it must be delivered to the people in its entirety and completeness precisely as it came from the pens of inspired men of God. This, of course, assumes that the word of God, as thus spoken on any subject, is all needed, and that nothing else is needed for the proper guidance and welfare of men.

But why should it not be thus with the word of God, since it comes from the infallible source of infinite wisdom and goodness? Why should fallible man undertake to add to it, take from it, or in any way modify or tamper with it? Why should he not humbly and reverently speak it precisely as Jehovah spoke it and leave the result with him? That is exactly what Jehovah requires. Listen to the Ezekiel passage: "Hear the word at my mouth, and give them warning from me." Could anything be plainer than that Jehovah requires that his word shall be delivered precisely as he spoke it, without even the hint of man's opinion on any subject treated? Where is the room or the occasion for any such opinion? Not only does he tell us through Ezekiel that we must hear the word at his mouth and warn the people from him, but he tells us through Jeremiah that we must speak "all the words" which he commands and that we must "diminish not a word;" and through Moses and John he tells us we must "not add unto the word which" he commands nor "diminish from it"—that we must neither "add unto" nor "take away from" it.

Finally, in the light of this brilliant array of divine utterances, clear and solemn as the oracles which thundered from the fiery summit of Mount Sinai, I deny that any mortal man, though he be as wise as all the sages of earth combined, has the right to teach his opinion on any part of God's message to man. God did not commission men to tell what they think of his message to man, but to deliver that message. Neither did he commission them to explain his message to man, save by giving all of its parts with such explanation as the message thus carries for itself. Assuredly God is capable of expressing himself exactly as he wishes to be understood, and it is but the part of becoming reverence in man to presume this and to deliver the message unmodified as it was spoken by God himself. In making the revelation to man which is recorded in the Bible, God has mentioned numerous things which he did not himself stop to explain. Why should man undertake the task? The fact that God said no more than he did say is proof that no more was needed, and all preachers and teachers of the divine word are under the most solemn obligation to stop where God stopped and to leave the subject precisely as God himself left it. If not, why not? Why should the preacher stop to give his views of this, that, or the other? Why not give God's views as expressed by God himself and let it go at that? In all such speculations, the rule is that no two men will always have the same views, but each of the conflicting views will find adherents who are soon arrayed against each other, and thus strife and division are the result—the very thing on which the divine condemnation rests. It is not sinful for men to entertain even conflicting views about things which God has not revealed, but let them keep them as private property to themselves and never preach them. "Add thou not unto his words, lest he reprove thee, and thou be found a liar." All of this is in harmony with the preacher's inspired and sacred charge in the New Testament given through Paul to Timothy: "I charge thee in the sight of God, and of Christ Jesus, who shall judge the living and the dead, and by his appearing and his kingdom: preach the word." (2 Tim. 4: 1, 2.) Yes, at all times and under all circumstances, whenever and wherever men preach, let them, without addition, without subtraction, and without modification, "preach the word."

Good News from Ovoca.

BY F. B. S.

It will be remembered that Brother John B. Cowden, in a letter to me of June 7, promised to submit to the convention which was to meet in Ovoca the question as to whether they would indorse a debate on the instrumental-music question in the worship of God. It seems from the following letter that they have agreed to indorse and encourage such a discussion, and there appears to be nothing to do now but arrange the preliminaries. But here is his letter, with my reply:

West Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Brother Srygley: After advising with the brethren in convention at Ovoca and others interested, the Commission on Unity accepts your challenge and proposition to discuss the church-music question on two essential conditions—namely, that the discussion be in every way fraternal and becoming Christians, and that it be thorough and carried into every community where either party thinks it wise to have it, the choice of place to alternate, until the field has been covered, or both parties are satisfied to close the discussion. A committee from the Commission on Unity is ready to meet a like committee from you to arrange details.

Yours fraternally,

JOHN B. COWDEN,

Secretary of the Commission on Unity.

Nashville, Tenn., July 5, 1922.—Mr. John B. Cowden, West Nashville, City.—Dear Brother: Your letter was forwarded to me at Chicago, but I had left there before its arrival, and it has been returned to me to-day. I am glad that your brethren are willing to discuss their practice on the instrumental-music question; and while I am not able to select a like committee, I have selected the following brethren: S. H. Hall, H. Leo Boles, and F. W. Smith.

You can easily get in touch with these brethren at any time by calling at the Gospel Advocate office. At any time you wish a meeting between these brethren and your committee, please advise with any one of them and a meeting can be easily arranged. If you could have a meeting of your committee with these brethren any time between now and Saturday noon, I could also be present in the meeting; but as I will be out of the city much of the time holding meetings for the next few months, I am glad to leave the matter in the hands of these brethren, and I feel that they are so well known by all brethren through this part of the country that there will be no objections to any arrangement they may make. It might be well to have also a written discussion between one of your brethren and one of ours who oppose the instrument in worship, provided such a discussion could be published in one of your papers as well as in one of ours. Since you suggest "that it be thorough and carried into every community," a written discussion would help to do that.

Please give this matter your immediate attention and have your committee meet with our brethren at the earliest date possible. I can assure you that many of my brethren will be glad to hear such a discussion. As you insist, let there be nothing done or said in the discussion that is not becoming to Christians. Let us hear from the committee at once as to what it proposes to do. I am certainly glad that there is a prospect of an honest, fair discussion of the real difference between those who use instrumental music and those who do not. I shall always be glad of the part that I have taken in this matter, and I sincerely hope that it will result in many learning the truth on the subject of how to worship God.

Please communicate with the brethren herein named.

I am, very truly yours,

F. B. SRYGLEY.

From this letter of Brother Cowden we have a right to expect that these brethren will discuss their practice in using instrumental music in the worship on its merits, and we are all fortunate in having the privilege of hearing their proof in the presence of an opponent who will have the opportunity to examine it, and let us see if their conclusions follow from a fair and impartial interpretation of the word. All great questions that have been settled right have been settled by discussion. There is no reason why there should be any prejudice against honorable controversy conducted in the spirit of the Master. I am glad that these brethren have decided to stand up like brave men and defend their practice in an open, fair discussion of the question before the public. If I have done anything to bring about this condition, I am proud of it, and I pray that we may all learn the truth and practice it. We shall keep the readers of the Gospel Advocate informed as to the outcome of this matter.

Day by Day.

I heard a voice at evening softly say:

"Bear not thy yesterday into to-morrow,
Nor load this week with last week's load of sorrow;
Lift all thy burdens as they come, nor try
To weigh the present with the by and by.
One step and then another, take thy way—
Live day by day.

Live day by day.

Though the autumn leaves are withering round thy way,
Walk in the sunshine. It is all for thee.
Push straight ahead as long as thou canst see.
Dread not the winter where thou mayest go;
But when it comes, be thankful for the snow.
Onward and upward look and smile and pray—
Live day by day.

Live day by day.

The path before thee doth not lead astray.
Do the next duty. It must surely be
The Christ is in the one that's close to thee.
Onward, still onward, with a sunny smile,
Till step by step shall end in mile by mile.
'I'll do my best,' unto conscience say—
Live day by day.

Live day by day.

Why art thou bending toward the backward way?
One summit and another thou shalt mount.
Why stop at every round the pace to count
The past mistakes if thou must still remember?
Watch not the ashes of the dying ember.
Kindle thy hope. Put all thy fears away—
Live day by day." —Atlantic Monthly.

Home Reading

The Winner.

Close by the side of a little brook that came tumbling from the green hillside sat a very discontented Indian boy. He was whittling a stick and talking to himself as he whittled.

"I wish I knew how to get one. All the boys have them at the school. Jim earned his in football, and George earned his by getting the best marks. Even Red Feather has a pin that the teacher gave him. I want a pin to wear, and I want a brother, but I don't see how I am going to get either of them."

Lonely Cloud tapped his knife sharply against a near-by stone. He had been at the mission school for a whole year, and now he was beginning to think that soon he should go back again for another year. This time he was to have a suit of clothes like the rest of the boys, and he was so glad, but he did want a pin to wear on the lapel of the new coat.

"Every boy ought to have a brother," said Lonely Cloud again. "Fun can't be good fun here at home when there isn't any one to share it with you. At school I can get along, but—O dear!—I do want a brother, and I want a pin."

It was getting warmer; so he slipped nearer to the stream, put his feet into the water, and, pulling a paper from his pocket, began to read. The story was interesting, and for a few minutes he read steadily. Then suddenly he looked at his feet.

"Why," he gasped—"why, how can that be? When I sat down here, the water came only to my ankles, and now it is much higher. How can that be?"

He looked about him, but there was no one to answer the question, for the men had gone to help a sick man near by. Then a vague fear began to develop in his mind. Dropping his paper and knife, he ran quickly to the path and began to climb. Up and up he went. Then he came to the big dam on the hillside.

Creeping down by the lower wall, he slid stealthily along until he came to the place where the sluiceway was to be found. Then he gave a cry of fear. The dam was giving way. One stone was loosened and others were showing signs of weakening. Behind that dam was a vast amount of water. How long would it hold back? What could he do to help?

Creeping as fast as he could on the slippery moss, he came to the roadway again. Then he fairly flew to the house by the side of the dam where the keeper lived.

"The sluiceway is breaking! Hurry, hurry!" he called.

Then he ran down the steep hillside. The vines tripped him and he fell. A bit of sharp stone cut into his feet; but on he ran, calling at every house: "The dam is giving way! Hurry, hurry! Run for your lives!"

Once he stopped to look at the stream, and he saw that it was deeper than before, and still there were others to warn. If only the men were there to help him! His head ached and his breath came very fast. But on he ran. Finally he had told them all and a messenger had gone on horseback to the next town.

Dazed in mind, he sat down for a moment to rest before starting across the plain to the Indian encampment. As he looked, he was sure that he saw something move on the opposite bank. Then a figure rose from the ground, and from behind a tree a cow appeared. It was old Granny Bose and her cow.

O, yes, he knew her. All the boys did, for she was always telling tales on them and getting them into trouble. She was very old and very deaf. If he crossed to get her, he might not be able to get back. The dam might break at any moment. Perhaps one of the men would come soon, and then he could go after her.

He shaded his eyes and looked across. She was going further away. Every minute added to her danger. The boy clenched his fists as he tried to think it through. Why should he go after her? She had never done anything for him. The water would be to his waist by now.

But wasn't he being the kind of a coward that the missionary had told about if he stayed there on the bank? An old lady needed help even when there was no danger. He put his feet into the stream and then drew them out again. He looked this way and that for some one else to go. He tried to call her, but it was of no use. Once more he put his feet into the stream and hesitated.

Then he tossed the black hair back from his forehead as he said sturdily: "If she were my mother, I would want some one to go for her. I guess I had better hurry along. An Indian is no coward."

Into the swelling brook he went. A shadow crossed his face as he saw how much it had risen, but he pushed his way across. Then he hurried to the hillside where the old lady sat. Taking the halter of the cow in one hand and helping Granny Bose with the other, he started for the brook. But it was very slow work, for she could not understand why she should go home in the middle of the day. As they neared the bank he could hear the brook rushing by, and he wondered how he was ever to get the two across. His boyish heart almost failed him as he tried to steady her through the current.

Part of the way across she stumbled and fell, and he struggled to raise her to her feet. Then the cow pulled away, and he tried in vain to get her again. Granny Bose, seeing the cow move away, insisted on going after her. O, how tired he was! His head seemed dizzy, and he longed to run away.

Then, just as he felt as if he just could not get her across, he heard a shout. A wagon containing a man and a boy had stopped on the opposite bank. Quickly the man sprang into the water, carried Granny Bose the short remaining distance, and Lonely Cloud followed behind.

First Granny was taken to a neighbor's, and then the brave Indian boy was carried to his home. Only two hours later the great dam gave way and the water covered the little valley, carrying everything before it. But the people all were safe on the higher ground, thanks to the warning Lonely Cloud had given them.

It was many, many weeks before the boy was strong and well again, and his face was still pale when he went back to school. But what did he care? On his new coat he wore something of which he was very proud. Was it a pin? Indeed, it was not. It was much larger than a pin, for it was a bronze medal given him by the State for saving the lives of so many people.

And he had more than the medal, for in his pocket he had a letter which he had read over and over and over. It was from that white boy who had come in the carriage with his father and helped to save Granny Bose. And would you believe it, the letter began: "My Dear Indian Brother."—From "Around the Camp Fire with the Older Boys," by Margaret W. Eggleston. ❖ ❖ ❖

Do not clean the goldfish globe oftener than once a week. Better take out a dipper of water and add a dipper of fresh water one week and clean the globe the next week. When changing the water have the fresh water as near the same temperature as that in the globe as possible. Give to each fish a piece of food one-quarter inch square daily. Always keep water plant and pebbles in the globe. Do not put the globe where the sun will strike it, and do not keep it in too warm a place.—Exchange.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

The "Sin Unto Death"—What Is It?

BY A. M. GEORGE.

There seems to be difficulty in the way of understanding what this "sin unto death" is. I think that the Scriptures (Matt. 12: 31; Mark 3: 28; Heb. 10: 16; 1 John 5: 16) make it plain. I suppose that we all understand that any unpardonable sin is a "sin unto death." In Matt. 12: 31 the Savior said: "Wherefore I say unto you, All manner of sin and blasphemy shall be forgiven unto men: but the blasphemy against the Holy Ghost shall not be forgiven unto men." Then this sin against the Holy Ghost is a "sin unto death," as it shall never be forgiven; and it is the only sin unto death, because the Savior said every other sin should be forgiven but the sin against the Holy Spirit. This limits the "sin unto death" to the one sin against the Holy Spirit. In Heb. 10: 26 Paul said: "If we sin willfully after we have received the knowledge of the truth, there remaineth no more sacrifice for sins." Then this is a "sin unto death," as there is no forgiveness for it, "but a certain fearful looking for of judgment and fiery indignation." It is a sin against the Holy Spirit. To sin willfully is to sin willingly, of your own accord. The Holy Spirit says: "Do it not." You say willingly, "I will do it," and you do it. In 1 John 5: 16, John said: "If any man see his brother sin a sin which is not unto death, he shall ask, and he shall give him life for them that sin not unto death. There is a sin unto death: I do not say that he shall pray for it." As the Savior said (Matt. 12: 31; Mark 3: 28, 29) there is only one sin unto death, this is that sin—the sin against the Holy Spirit. It seems to me that this should settle this matter, as the Savior surely made no mistake when he said that every sin or blasphemy but the blasphemy against the Holy Spirit should be forgiven. This leaves but one sin only unto death.

✻ ✻ ✻

"He Brought Him Unto Jesus."

BY K. C. MOSER.

There is nothing selfish about Christianity. Christ died for all, and all are invited to come to him, "Whosoever will, let him come." Furthermore, all who are possessed of the spirit of Christianity begin at once to invite people to Christ. When Andrew, Peter's brother, found the Lord, he went at once to search for Peter; and having found him, "he brought him unto Jesus." Andrew's conduct on this occasion was but the natural result of knowing Jesus and his mission to bless the world. His bringing Peter to Christ was informal and unprofessional. It was easier to be done than not to be done. Again, Andrew's work was not in consideration of his peculiar ability, intellectual or social. Compared with Peter, he had but one talent. The work of Peter eclipses that of Andrew. The whole process was spontaneous. It was but an expression of "the abundance of the heart." He had found the Christ, and wanted others to know him, too. Christianity strikes no one dumb.

The same missionary spirit is seen in the woman to whom Christ preached at Jacob's well. She had found the Messiah, and in her anxiety to tell others she forgot her mission to the well and hurried home without her waterpot. Too many think more of their "waterpot" than they think of Christ, and, unlike the Samaritan woman, forget him in their anxiety about frivolous things. Because of the woman's word many believed on Christ. The price of our silence is a soul.

The Jerusalem church, when scattered by persecution, "went everywhere preaching the word." They did it because they could not remain silent. A silent Christian is a misnomer.

When Jesus said, "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature," he breathed the very spirit of Christianity. That is just what every true child of God wishes most of all to do. No one who has "tasted that the Lord is gracious" will keep silence. In his proper sphere he will speak of him.

Brother, are you making an effort to lead people to know the Lord? Churches, what are you doing? If nothing, then you have no excuse for your existence. Once after the commission was given did the apostles keep silent, and that was by commandment. "Tarry ye in the city [Jerusalem] until ye be clothed with power from on high." When the Spirit came, they began to preach, and from henceforth nothing but death could silence them again. "Arise, let us go hence"—from Jerusalem unto the uttermost parts of the earth. The church that is failing to carry out that part of the commission that says "Go" is no more apostolic than one that denies the part that reads: "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved." To "go" is the one great mission of the church.

"And the Spirit and the bride [church] say, Come. And let him that heareth say, Come. And let him that is athirst come. And whosoever will, let him take the water of life freely."

✻ ✻ ✻

Personal Notes.

C. W. Ing reports an interesting meeting in Red Oak, Texas, but no additions to the congregation.

W. T. Hines reports two additions at Wynn, Okla., and that the work in Blackwell, Okla., is advancing.

J. W. Dunn closed a meeting in Marshall, Texas, with seventeen baptisms—a great meeting for that place.

The meeting in Burkburnett, Texas, D. S. Ligon doing the preaching, closed with thirty-two additions to the congregation—twenty-six baptisms.

John Straiton, preacher and traveling salesman, is ever busy. Recently he preached for the Central congregation, Fort Worth; Quanah, Texas; and Humphrey, Okla.

S. E. Templeton, who labors with the church in Altus, Okla., reports two baptisms. S. H. Hall will be with them for a meeting, beginning the first Sunday in August.

T. W. Phillips reports twenty-two additions to the congregation in Brownwood, Texas, and that the work of Brother Findley is much appreciated by the people in that town.

T. H. Etheridge closed a meeting in Stephenville, Texas, with seven baptisms. He will locate with the church in Stephenville on September 10 for a year of work. You may secure him for a meeting the last of August.

J. I. Reagan, of Dallas, Texas, closed in Chowchilla, Cal., with eleven added and a congregation set in order. In Fresno, Cal., he closed with twelve baptisms. He reports a pleasant stay in California, with a promise to return to that State for more work.

J. B. Nelson closed in Merlin, Texas, with seven baptisms and eight others placing membership with the congregation.

G. A. Dunn, Jr., is laboring with the church in Gainesville, Texas, and reports one baptism, with interest good in the work. The late J. S. Dunn, uncle, and G. A. Dunn, Sr., father of this young brother, have labored much with the Gainesville church.

John E. Dunn, who has been with the church of Christ in Waxahachie, Texas, has left the work there, and now resides at 219 South Mont Clair Avenue, Dallas, Texas. The move to Dallas is occasioned by the delicate health of Sister Dunn's mother, who lives in Dallas, and the desire that her only daughter be near her all the while. Brother Dunn enters the evangelistic field.

From J. E. Wainwright: "There were fourteen additions at Clegg, Texas. T. A. Holland lives and labors among the saints there. He is a fine old soldier of the cross. Among the number added, ten were baptized—men and women who had been active workers among the denominations. Virgil Teddlie and I will begin at Cason, Texas, on Thursday, July 13, for ten days. I go then to Boyd, Ark."

Evangelistic Notes

L. B. Jones, Murfreesboro, Tenn., was a pleasant caller at this office last week.

H. Leo Boles preached at Twelfth Avenue, this city, to large audiences last Sunday.

O. C. Lambert preached at Reid Avenue, this city, last Sunday. This was home-coming day.

E. O. Coffman, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., is conducting a meeting at Owen's Chapel, near Brentwood, Tenn.

Earl C. Smith, Valdosta, Ga., July 4: "I have read several copies of The Young People. I think it is full of good reading matter for children."

If any of our readers know of members of the church of Christ at or near Bryan, Texas, let them write Mrs. B. H. Moore, Winchester, Tenn., at once.

E. A. Elam closed a very successful meeting at Sulphur College on Sunday night, July 9. The church was greatly encouraged by Brother Elam's fine lessons.

J. A. Craig's address is now 382 East Ninth Street, Riverside, Cal. He will be pleased to correspond with any Christian desiring to locate in California.

R. P. Cuff writes from Rockmart, Ga.: "My meeting here is one week old. There have been two additions to date, and interest is increasing. I shall probably be here about two weeks longer."

From J. Clifford Murphy, Pulaski, Tenn., June 19: "I preached on Lord's day at Minor Hill, Tenn. One was baptized. I am at home with my family, but will return to Mississippi in a few days."

A. K. Ramsey, Forest Hill, La., July 6: "In one of the most successful meetings ever held in Louisiana, Brother Chambers did the preaching. There were sixty-one additions, of whom about fifteen were men."

B. L. Douthitt, Martin, Tenn., writes that he closed a tent meeting at Viola, Ky., on June 27. Three were baptized. Wilford Heflin, of Viola, led the singing. Brother Douthitt is now in a meeting at Hatler's Chapel, near Martin.

W. W. Freeman is in a mission meeting in the open air at Lafayette, Tenn. He says: "If not hindered too much by rain, we will have a good meeting." He further says: "The Gospel Advocate is fine so far in 1922, and I hope it may continue to prosper."

Charles Holder, Bridgeport, Ala., closed a meeting, July 6, with fourteen baptized and three restored. All the additions were grown people, most of them men and women with families. He is beginning a month's campaign in Bradley and McMinn counties in East Tennessee.

D. S. Ligon, Burkburnett, Texas, is in Braswell Sanitarium, in Dallas, Texas, having undergone a serious operation. On account of his illness he has had to postpone some of his work, including a debate with an Adventist at Havana, Ark. Due announcement will be made later.

W. N. Carter, Mart, Texas, July 7: "I am at Ben Hur in a meeting four days old, with nine baptisms to date. People say that we are having the largest crowds ever known there. I had sixty-one additions at Durant, Okla., nearly all baptisms. I go to Ola, Texas, for my twenty-third protracted meeting."

J. W. Brents writes from Springfield, Mo., July 5: "The work with the Broadway and Madison Church here continues fine. We plan to hold several tent meetings in the city. Our first meeting will begin next Sunday night. I plan to be in Tennessee the last of August and first of September in two meetings. Best wishes to all."

W. S. Long, Washington, D. C., July 6: "Brother and Sister Larimore have been with us since June 25. His sermons get better every day, and the meeting is fine. Every sermon is full of the spirit of Christ, and God is sure to bless the results. There has been one baptism, and we shall look for many others to obey Christ. Pray for us."

Gilbert F. Gibbs, Greenville, S. C., July 5: "Have been engaged in a fine meeting the past few days. Our crowds have been constant, interested, and appreciative. Three baptisms. Last Lord's day was our banner service. We had fifteen members present and nine children. We hope that these will stay and that others will follow. Pray for us."

Leslie G. Thomas, Melvin, Mich., Route 1, July 3: "Yesterday was a good day for the church in Speaker. Good crowds at both services. In the afternoon we took the communion to a family living in Crosswell. From Crosswell we drove to the shore of Lake Huron at Lexington. To the believer that wonderful lake reveals the handiwork of God."

F. L. Young, Paris, Texas, July 4: "The meeting in Texarkana closed on Thursday night. During the meeting the Lord did not add a member to the family. They have been meeting in Maccabee Hall. They have bought a lot and will build soon. The meeting here began yesterday. There were four confessions the first day. I go next to Roxton."

H. D. Jeffcoat, Ackerman, Miss., writes from Bay Springs, Miss., under date of July 8: "I am waiting for the train to go to Kitchener to help T. C. Fox in what we expect to be a great meeting. I closed at Lake Como on July 7. Three were baptized—a man and his wife and an old man seventy-five years of age. I go back for another meeting in October."

W. A. Meadow, Dickson, Tenn., June 30: "I am directed by the elders of the church at this place to extend to you their sincere thanks for the coöperation which you gave us in the Hardeman meeting just closed. The meeting was a grand success from every viewpoint, and we feel that it is due, to a great extent, to the splendid spirit manifested by all who were interested in the meeting."

J. G. Malphurs, Clarksville, Tenn., called at this office last week, and reported that the new church house at Clarksville is progressing nicely. He is now traveling among the churches in the interest of evangelism. Any churches contributing to this work will be remembered by our Father. He states that the church he has visited has turned him down, and he has come forward with liberal contributions.

J. V. Armstrong Traylor writes under date of July 6: "I began a meeting at Bearden, Tenn., near Hugo, Okla., last Lord's day, to continue two weeks. After the first sermon the invitation was extended, and one came forward to be buried with her Lord in baptism. The interest is growing rapidly. The meeting I held at Union Hill, near Hamden, Okla., resulted in eighteen additions—fifteen baptisms and three restorations."

H. N. Mann, Riverside, Tenn., July 1: "E. O. Coffman, of Lawrenceburg, Tenn., came for our meeting, beginning on June 25 and continuing six days, instead of N. W. Proffitt, who was unable to come on account of sickness. The meeting resulted in four additions and one restoration. The preaching was fine and the audiences good both day and night. There was great interest in the meeting. We hope to have this good brother again."

Charles R. Brewer, Nashville, Tenn., July 7: "The meeting at Dunlap, Tenn., continued over three Sundays, closing on July 2. Jack Meyer led the singing for us, and all seemed pleased with his work. He also preached once during the meeting, and his sermon was scriptural and sincere. I preached at Pikeville on Monday night, July 3. I begin at Smyrna, Tenn., July 9, and from there I go to Greenfield for a meeting. Success to the Gospel Advocate Company."

J. A. Jenkins, 13 Main Street, Huntsville, Ala., July 5: "Beginning on the third Lord's day in June, R. E. L. Taylor held a fifteen-days' meeting in West Huntsville, which resulted in a number of additions. Charles Holder is in a meeting at Dallas Mills, with several additions to date. I intend to enter the evangelistic field soon. Any congregation wishing my services may write me. I can arrange for a meeting to begin on the third Lord's day in July and one the latter part of August."

B. W. Davis, Ashland City, Tenn., July 3: "I closed an interesting meeting of six days' duration at Scottsville, Ky., last night, with two confessions and baptisms and much good done otherwise. In this meeting we had demonstrated the good results to be derived from personal work in the homes, in which I was assisted by some of the faithful sisters. R. F. McKenzie used his car to a great advantage in bringing people to church, who otherwise would not have attended, and also in the work of visiting. This enabled us to see many more than we could have done otherwise. I will hold the regular meeting for them the first of September, the Lord willing."

A. T. Hamiter is in a meeting at Newton, Ala.

S. H. Hall's address is 920 Russell Street, Nashville, Tenn.

H. N. Mann, of Riverside, Tenn., called at this office last week.

F. B. Srygley has returned from Illinois and Ohio, and reports a very pleasant trip.

J. Pettet Ezell, Cookeville, Tenn., made the Gospel Advocate a pleasant call. He had just closed a meeting at Springfield, Tenn.

J. W. Howell, 902 South Third Street, Columbus, Miss., wants to know of the name and address of some interested Christian in or near Winona, Miss.

John Hayes, Route 8, Athens, Ala., preached at Athens on Sunday, July 2. He will begin a meeting at Jennings Chapel on the fifth Lord's day in July.

W. P. Skaggs changes his address from Itasca, Texas, to Sunset Heights, Texas. He is now in a meeting at Rogers, Texas, with good crowds and close attention.

T. B. Potter, Albany, Ala., writes, under date of July 1, that Gus Dunn and Claud Woodroof had just closed a meeting there with over forty additions, the writer being one of the number.

J. C. Hollis, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., closed a six-days' meeting at old Mount Zion, near Florence, Ala., July 7, with sixteen baptisms and four restorations. He goes next to St. Joseph, Tenn.

J. C. Mosley, Dunlap, Tenn., closed a meeting at Mount Eunice with nineteen confessions and the church aroused to their duty. He is now at Dunlap with Charles Brewer and Jack Meyer.

J. D. Tant, Quinlan, reports that the church trouble is settled at Avon. He is always glad to hear such good news. He is engaged until fall in protracted.

William P. Walker, a tent meeting at Model, Tenn., on July 3. Millard Whitby, a student at Freed-Hardeman College, led the singing. He reports good singing, large audiences, and fine attention.

"Hardeman's Table Sermons" is now ready for delivery. If you have placed your order for one, you can get it quicker by calling at the Gospel Advocate office, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

J. L. Jackson is leaving Lindsley Avenue, Nashville, Tenn., for a two-months' revival campaign, and will resume his work with that congregation on September 1. He reports two good audiences last Lord's day. The head of a family was baptized.

T. B. Larimore is to begin a meeting at Cookeville, Tenn., on the first Sunday in August. The church is making great preparation for the meeting, and is expecting many visitors from other congregations. The song service will be led by J. E. Derryberry, of Portland, Tenn.

B. E. Seal, P. O. Box 1431, Dallas, Texas: "Please announce to the readers of the Gospel Advocate, to those who have been contributing to the building fund at Columbus, Miss., that they send contributions to Fred F. Belue, treasurer, P. O. Box 45, Columbus, Miss. This is necessitated by my moving to Dallas."

G. B. Lambright, Adel, Ga., July 6: "I closed a ten-days' meeting at Adel on July 2, which was my fourth meeting in this part of the State; Cross Roads, fifteen days; Fellowship, fifteen days; Cecil, fifteen days. All these places within ten miles of Adel. Two baptized and one restored. I am on my way to Alabama for two meetings."

W. R. Hassell, Trenton, Tenn., Route 3, writes from Hohenwald, Tenn., July 8: "I began a meeting three miles east of Hohenwald on the first Lord's day in July, which continued until the following Friday night, with good crowds from the beginning. Six were baptized and four restored. This was a mission meeting partly supported by the church at Hohenwald."

A. D. Dies, Oakman, Ala., July 5: "Since my last report I have held two mission meetings—one at Quinton and one at Speigner, both in Alabama. At Quinton we were rained out part of the time and had no additions. At Speigner we had one from the Baptists. I go next to Corinth, in Wilson County, Tenn., July 9. My wife and only son are still very sick. Pray for us."

R. N. Gardner, Nashville, Tenn., July 5: "W. L. Karnes, of Portland, Tenn., began a series of meetings at Meade's Chapel on July 9. This small congregation would appreciate the presence and encouragement of the brethren in the city and near-by churches. Go out the Nolensville pike to the Antioch pike, then go out the Antioch pike three miles to the church house."

E. C. Fuqua, Santa Ana, Cal., July 1: "At this writing I am in the midst of a fine tent meeting in Santa Ana, assisted by G. W. Riggs, of Los Angeles. I have never enjoyed better interest in a meeting. We have a large tent well located and conveniently arranged, and feel equipped for a long and effective siege. Two have been baptized and others are expected to follow. The meeting will continue indefinitely."

R. A. Craig, Shelbyville, Ky., July 3: "Yesterday M. C. Kurpees preached at Shelbyville to a good-sized audience. We were glad to have Brother Kurpees with us. His message was inspiring, and we feel that we are going forward to discharge our duty with more zeal. Thomas D. Rose is in a meeting at the Forks of Elkhorn. O. F. Shearer will begin a meeting at Harrisonville next Sunday. We feel that much good will be done at both places."

H. D. Jeffcoat, Ackerman, Miss., July 3: "I am in a very good meeting at Lake Como. There is not a Christian only in fifty miles of this place that I know of. We are having good crowds and interest. I preached here four times in March, which was the first time our brethren had ever preached here. It is a fine neighborhood, filled with good, moral people. I am stopping with a Baptist. They tell me that they are starving for the bread of life."

R. E. L. Taylor, Decherd, Tenn., recently closed a meeting at West Huntsville, Ala., with thirty additions, seventeen of which were baptisms. Reagan Coop led the singing. On account of the illness of his son, he closed the meeting earlier than he thought best, as there were five confessions at the last service. He goes next to Summitville, Tenn. He recommends Charles B. Dowdey, who has decided to preach, as very worthy, and asks the brotherhood to use him.

A. H. Porterfield, Imboden, Ark., June 30, writes that he had interesting meetings at Jonesboro and Lake City. There were sixteen additions at Jonesboro and two at Lake City. He is to go to Jonesboro for one month next year. He recently taught a very interesting music class at Coal Hill, Ark. He preached four times while there. He promised to return for a meeting in the near future. He is now in a meeting at Imboden, which started off well. From Imboden he goes to Noland, Ark.

We are sorry that the following communication was delayed: "On June 14, in the city of Hamilton, Ontario, Canada, in the presence of immediate relatives, Sister Grace Tallman was united in marriage with C. Gordon McPhee, of Meaford, Ontario. Dr. O. H. Tallman, of Owen Sound, Ontario, officiated. Immediately after dinner they left for a month's holiday in Detroit, Sainte Marie, and among the beautiful Thousand Islands of the Georgian Bay. They will reside in Meaford, where Brother McPhee is the much-beloved servant of the church."

From John E. Dunn: "At this writing (July 7) I am preaching in the town of Wheeler, Miss., in the Missionary Baptist meetinghouse, to good-sized audiences, with splendid interest and the best of attention. This people are badly mixed up in religion. There is no organized congregation of disciples after the New Testament pattern. Our music is a conglomeration. I am trying to get before this people the New Testament church, with her work, worship, and service. The opportunity here is great, but it will take a lot of faithful, patient, and plain teaching to get them out of Babylon."

Andrew Perry, Belington, W. Va., June 3: "Since my last report I have held three meetings of a little more than a week each. At Antioch, near Belington, I found quite a number of good members, though badly scattered and handicapped by bad roads. The church house is on a good road. There were no additions. I next spent one week with the struggling congregation in Belington, where we had several attentive hearers outside of the membership. Several were left almost persuaded. The audience filled the house only three times while I was there. I am assured that a great deal of good was done during my stay. I next came to Ware Chapel. I find an unfinished house and a congregation of about twelve or fourteen. Labor troubles have interfered, as this is in the coal fields. Part of the time I have had good audiences. I have some other meetings in West Virginia."

Roots Herbs

Barks Berries

Such as physicians prescribe for ailments of the blood, stomach, liver and kidneys are combined in Hood's Sarsaparilla,—

Sarsaparilla	Mandrake
Yellow Dock	Dandelion
Uva Ursi	Stillingia
Blue Flag	Pipsissewa
Guaiac	Juniper Berries
Gentian	Wild Cherry

and other excellent tonics, thus making one of the most successful of all medicines. Get only Hood's.

JACOBS & COMPANY

SPECIAL ADVERTISING
AGENTS

PRINTERS DESIGNERS PHOTO-ENGRAVERS ELECTROTYPERS

Catalogues
— a Specialty —

HOME OFFICE
CLINTON, S.C.

TETTERINE

Ends Complexion Worries

Healing, Antiseptic, Soothing, Fragrant

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-
FRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

The Plum Street Church of

Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner
Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue.
Visiting brethren welcome.

Renew your subscription to the
Gospel Advocate.

Morals of the Moving Picture Show.

BY FRED M. LITTLE.

I read with much appreciation the article of Brother C. E. Holt under the title, "The 'Movies'—Are They Harmful?" in the Gospel Advocate of March 30, also the splendid article by Brother Kurfrees on the subject, "The 'Movie' World and Spirituality in the Churches," in the Advocate of April 20. I am glad these able writers are turning the light on concerning this present-day evil. I do not expect to improve upon what they have said, but I submit the following to indorse and emphasize what they have appropriately written.

The devil has so completely succeeded in getting the good and bad mixed in the modern picture show, and in getting almost the entire population into it, preachers along with the rest, many of them at least, that the moral consciousness of those who have indorsed shows and have formed the habit of attending them is so weak that it is very difficult to show such people the moral evil resulting from them.

By what standard should we test the "movies" or anything else to determine whether it is good or bad? You answer: "The Bible, of course." There would be utter chaos in the moral world if every one should adopt a standard of his own. The Bible stands alone and unapproached among the civilized people as the standard by which to judge the right or wrong, good or bad actions and conditions. Any belief or conviction we may have which conflicts with the Bible is wrong. Now, let us test the ordinary moving-picture show by the Bible standard of morals and see whether or not the morals of the average show are good or bad.

In 1 Pet. 2: 14 certain people were spoken of as "having eyes full of adultery, and that cannot cease from sin; enticing unsteadfast souls; having a heart exercised in covetousness; children of cursing." In Prov. 4: 14, 15 we read: "Enter not into the path of the wicked, and walk not in the way of evil men. Avoid it, pass not by it; turn from it, and pass on." Paul says: "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." (Phil. 4: 8.)

Now, keep the above passages of Scripture in mind, and think of what you see and laugh at in the picture show. The drunkard and all sorts of silly, irreverent, and immodest dancers and fun-makers are made to furnish amusement. There are domestic quar-

Dodson's Liver Tone

Killing Calomel Sale

Don't sicken or salivate yourself or paralyze your sensitive liver by taking calomel, which is quicksilver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it regulates the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel without making you sick. Fifteen million bottles sold

To Reduce Fever Relieve Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

Use

Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely safe to use as it does not depress the heart even in extreme cases of debility or weak heart, neurasthenia or anaemia. Manufactured by a formula in use by leading physicians generally. 19 parts pure Aspirin, 1 part pure Caffeine, 4 parts excipient, in convenient tablet form. 35c per package at your druggist or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

rels, midnight bedroom scenes, divorce with all its disgraceful causes, elopements, and almost everything suggestive of improper relations between the sexes, that the law and the general public will permit. The billboards on the outside show that the censorship has failed, if it has the correct standard by which to censor the films. As we pass the show houses, we see children standing for long periods of time to view hideous faces back of pistols, and fights and murder scenes are exhibited on every hand. On the inside you may see Indian butcheries and bullfights. Men and women are shown plotting and carrying out revenge; they gamble, fight, stab, and shoot each other while you look on. Criminals are made to be heroes, or crime is shown in all its horrors, purporting to teach great moral lessons; but the results, in fact, are that the young who witness these things repeatedly fail to get the right impressions.

The picture show and the theater do not encourage sober, religious thought, but they unfit a person for serious inward reflection. Of course, a Christian may go anywhere, if he can take and keep Christianity with him. Paul shows us that we may transact business with fornicators, but all such associations must be without the least indorsement or compromise with evil. To frequent places of amusement that breed unholy and unrighteous thoughts and deeds, excusing ourselves for so doing with the statement that we must have recreation, is wrong; for we can get the recreation in ways that are not sinful. I can remember that our parents and preachers used to tell us young men that we should not read the little yellow-back novels, because they were "trashy" literature. It was insisted that to read the lives of such men as the James boys was a very bad thing for the young men to do. But the modern picture show removes the difficulty of reading such "trash," for the young and old delight in seeing such heinous deeds enacted. How Christian parents can hope to rear their children to be reverent, sober, and pious Christian men and women is more than I can understand. A Christian mother who knows of my uncompromising attitude toward the "rotten" shows suggested to me that she knew a very able preacher who strenuously opposed all forms of dancing, and yet every daughter of that preacher danced. So the sister thought I might be too strenuous in my opposition and would do well to be more tolerant. All the reply I have to make is, if that good brother used all of his influence against the evils of dancing and then his daughters should go wrong, they cannot say that their father encouraged this conduct. The brother's skirts are clear. He did his duty. So Christians to-day will do well to stay away from the moving-picture show, for it is one of the greatest educators for evil extant. The question is not what the picture show could be, but what it is. I admit that they put on some good pictures, but that is in order to catch all classes of people. Then, when I think of some Christians who will actually take the Lord's day to attend such places of amusement in towns and cities where they are wicked enough to allow them to run on Sunday, it just causes me to wonder to what purpose we read our Bibles. Then, too, think of the money that should be used in the church for the salvation of souls and that Christians are throwing into the coffers of these sinful promoters. May the God of heaven have mercy upon us till we get our eyes open and repent and turn away from such practices.

Sleeplessness. You can't sleep in the still-est night if your digestion is bad. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla—it strengthens the stomach and establishes that condition in which sleep regularly comes and is sweet and refreshing.

AFTER BABY WAS BORN

Many Mothers Left in Weakened Condition

Many, many letters similar to the following recommend the Vegetable Compound as a wonderful medicine for bringing the mother back to normal health and strength.

It is an excellent restorative, contains no harmful drugs and can be taken in safety by a nursing mother.

Thousands of mothers who have regained their strength by taking it are its best recommendation. Very likely you know some. Why not take it yourself?

Will Gladly Answer Questions

Olney, Ill. — "For over a year after my boy was born I was troubled with weakness of the female organs. Also my stomach would bloat up and I had heartburn, headache, backache, and simply could not do anything. I saw your 'ad.' in the papers and read what your Vegetable Compound did for others, so gave it a trial. After the first few doses I could tell a change. (Some might think this impossible, but it is true.) I took two bottles of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and felt so fine that I neglected to take any more for about a year. This last winter I had pains again so I have been taking it to relieve them. I tell everyone I hear complaining of female troubles that it is grand. If any woman asks me questions about the medicine I will gladly tell her what I know."—Mrs. CHARLES VAUGHN, Olney, Ill.

Baltimore, Md. — "I first used Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for general weakness following the birth of my first child. Later on the advice of my mother I used it for a dull pain in the small of my back and for a bearing-down feeling. These pains had an effect on me to such an extent that very often I was unable to stand on my feet to do my housework, and at times I was compelled to lie down for short periods. I found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very helpful and recommend it highly."—Mrs. LORETTA B. SIMONS, 645 S. Belnord Ave., Baltimore, Md.

"Cannot Thank You Enough"

Allentown, Pa. — "After my last baby was born I lost weight and was in a very run-down condition. After taking the second bottle of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound I began to gain strength and flesh. In the past four months I have done all my own housework and do an extra wash besides. I do not feel at all like I used to and I cannot thank you enough for my health. My friends ask me what I am doing and I recommend your medicine."—Mrs. WM. STECKEL, 241 Elliger St., Allentown, Pa.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Private Text-Book upon "Ailments Peculiar to Women" will be sent you free upon request. Write to the Lydia E. Pinkham Medicine Co., Lynn, Massachusetts. This book contains valuable information.

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 13, 1910
HOLDS SHIRT DOWN
SOX UP
DON'T BIND LEGS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

STYLE A

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good
WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY

WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by
Washington Manufacturing Company
Nashville, Tennessee

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 13, 1910
NO BULGING OF
SHIRT—NO MORE
HANGING VENTS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

STYLE B

A Call from Flint, Mich.

We are sorry to be compelled to make this call. But this congregation of only sixty members had a house built two years ago, costing five thousand dollars. There is a mortgage on the building, due in sixty days. We cannot raise this, and the house will be sold for the debt. We have gone to every bank in Flint to get them to carry this for us, but times have been so hard here they will not. This town is composed principally of Catholics and German Lutherans. We feel that it would be a terrible blow to Christianity here if the house should be sold. We are praying that the brethren will come to our rescue. Send contributions to J. L. Newman, 715 McClellan Street, or W. W. Laster, 218 Monroe Street, Flint, Mich.

SORES BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with
Gray's Ointment
Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

ASPIRIN

Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package, which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

This Is Worth Twenty-Five Cents

I WANT all the names I can get of people who use tobacco. I want to tell them about GOLDEN STAR, the wonderful remedy that will kill the tobacco habit. Send me the names and addresses of ten persons who use tobacco, together with seventy-five cents and this slip, and I will send you a $1.00 box of GOLDEN STAR, postpaid. Your own name will not be revealed to them. One box will often stop the tobacco habit. Address

L. O. HINTON,

Box 96.

SPENCER, IND.

SALESMEN Wanted Immediately

Spare or Full Time—Big Money
Writing Orders—Liberal Commissions.

Not just an "ordinary" selling offer—this is an OPPORTUNITY such as big, successful men are quick to see and grasp.

Take orders for beautiful memorials by simply showing handsome catalogs—no hard selling necessary—every family desires a memorial—all you do is to help them select the best—you will be welcome in every house—make $40 a WEEK and UP in SPARE time.

Don't hesitate if you have never sold before. We send you full instructions—and the memorials practically sell themselves.

A little spare time is one qualification—the desire to make money the other. If you have both, write and tell us so, and we'll rush to you the details of this money-making offer. But don't delay—send your inquiry TO-DAY.

COGGINS MARBLE COMPANY,
21 Main Street, Canton, Ga.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specially designed gift for the bereaved. Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the deceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McClellan Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

Field Reports

Algood, Tenn., July 5.—Last Lord's day I closed an eight-days' meeting at Alticrest, in Fentress County. This is a lumber camp, owned by Brother J. P. Pearson, at whose solicitation I went, and who was the only member we knew of there. We found one cold sister and several leaners. I baptized one man. We had good crowds and the best order and attention they had ever had there. I believe the seed sown will result in good. East Tennessee is a great field for missionary work. Our stronger congregations should have several men in that part of the State. I shall begin at Lafayette, Ga., next Sunday.—E. Gaston Collins.

Fort Smith, Ark., June 27.—The meeting at Somerville, Texas, was a complete failure, so far as I could tell. The largest hearing I had while there at any time was seven, our own faithful few and a few "Christian Church" folks not included. Yet we feel that some good was accomplished, as we had two baptisms; but they were those who had "known the holy scriptures from their youth up." I am convinced that Somerville is the hardest place against the truth in Texas or anywhere else. The only hopes I can see for that town is for the churches to become interested in the services of Brother Thomas E. Milholland and Brother Austin Taylor, send them there with a tent and keep them there a month. If there is a man in Texas who can reach those folks, it is Milholland, and everybody knows that Austin Taylor can come as near singing the gospel right into the hearts of the people as any man in the South. Brethren, let us send Milholland and Taylor to Somerville. There are some fine people there, and we have two families of as faithful workers as can be found anywhere. The Beaumont church will help. Who will be next? I had the pleasure of hearing Brother Price Billingsley last evening. He is in a meeting at Temple, with fourteen baptisms to date. I am to begin at Belton to-night, the Lord willing. May God bless his faithful everywhere.—Will W. Slater.

Montgomery, Ala., July 6.—Brother W. T. Grider, evangelist for the co-operating churches of South Alabama, closed a series of meetings at Selma to-day. The meeting continued seven-teen days and was well attended. One was baptized, and one lady took her stand with the little band of Christians who worship without any innovations. Selma is where we purchased a good house of worship of the Presbyterians about a year ago. The house is in the heart of the city, on the same block that the "Christian Church" is. The little band goes right on in the face of heavy odds, and some day we will have a strong church in Selma. Consecration and loyalty to God's word will win. We hope to be able to get a coöperative arrangement with other churches and individuals whereby we can locate a man at Selma to work the field thoroughly. I am informed that Brother L. L. Jones, of Wetumpka, is to have regular monthly appointments at Speigner, where

Renew your health
by purifying your system with

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are free from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c and 35c packages, bearing above trade-mark.

When Tired and Depressed Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Delightful tonic drink that refreshes and brightens the brain, soothes the nerves, aids digestion. Good for young and old. All druggists.

Brother Dies recently held a mission meeting. So the good work moves on. But we are not doing a tithe of what needs to be done. We need more men, and we need to support the men we have better. The more liberal Christians are, the more the Lord blesses them. How many believe that? Read the ninth chapter of the second Corinthian letter and see what it says on the subject of giving and being blessed. What we need is more faith.—Fred M. Little.

Cleveland, Ohio, July 1.—On last Lord's day I preached for the church of Christ in Marietta, Ohio, both morning and evening, and had one confession and baptism, and one young man announced his intention to be baptized next Lord's day. I also spoke for the brethren there on Wednesday evening before. We have a large congregation in Marietta, with much talent and lots of wealth, and abundantly able to accomplish much good in the way of supporting the gospel of Christ both at home and abroad. I would be glad if the brethren everywhere would fellowship me in the work here. I need tracts to circulate among all classes here, both religious and irreligious. I want immediately, at the least calculation, fifty copies of Brother M. C. Kurfees' review of O. E. Payne's book on instrumental music in the worship, to circulate. I do not mean to stop at all with fifty copies, but I want that many to begin with. I want to circulate it among all religious classes who use instrumental music in their worship, both among those who were once in line with the gospel and have departed from the faith and those religionists who have never been in line with the full gospel of Christ. Now, brethren in Christ, I need your financial aid and encouragement in this work in this great and wicked city. Brethren, I am no hobbyist nor hobby rider. I belong to no organization larger than the family and a local congregation of disciples of Christ. I am a member of nothing but the institutions ordained by my Father—the family and the church—and have neither time nor money for any other institutions.—A. A. Bunner.

Conway, Ark., July 5.—I have been very busy in gospel meetings since March. I have conducted meetings at Coal Hill, Jonesboro, Newport, Knobel, and Pocahontas. We had good meetings at all these places. We had the greatest number of additions (twenty-five) at Knobel, mostly due to Brother N. E. Hicks. There were additions at every place—in all, about eighty, counting all reclaimed. I am now in a very interesting meeting at Imboden, Ark. This is where Brother A. H. Porterfield lives. He helped me in some of the meetings mentioned above, conducting the song service. He is a real revivalist. He seems to be at his best now. He sings with ease and grace and has good judgment—knows what to do and how to do it. Brother Frank Grammar was in a music normal at Pocahontas while I was there. He is a power in his work. The brethren employed him to conduct the song service for the meeting. I had the pleasure of being with Brother Raymond Henley while there—the first time I had seen him since he was the youngest preacher in the States. He has been doing a great work in Texas and Oklahoma, but is much disturbed now by the serious illness of his wife, and is giving all his time to her now. While at Pocahontas I made my home with E. E. Pace and family, formerly of Kentucky. Pocahontas is fortunate in having gained this family. My stay in Pocahontas was a most pleasant visit, though saddened by the development of appendicitis on the part of Sister Pace during the meeting. How she did hate to give up the meeting! She means so much to the church at Pocahontas. It is gratifying to see how much good one woman can do. O, if we could only have some like her in every town and community in Arkansas!—O. E. Billingsley.

The Library Pest.

You get a book out of the library and notice that some other reader has improved on the author by underscoring the printed text or penciled notes in the margin. Occasionally these show intense interest and deep thought. But librarians say most of the "improvements" are changes in punctuation. Some folks are so busy looking for other people's mistakes that they have no time for their own.—Selected.

EXTRA MONEY

Your Spare Time

Sell each of your friends a supply of Primo Cleanser for personal and home use. Cleanses thoroughly. Far superior to soap. Send 25c for Salesman's Outfit, including a one-pound can of Primo, literature, and full particulars.

THE PRIMO CO.,

2617 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

Arkansas Christian College.

Arkansas Christian College, Morrilton, Ark., will open in September with a well-trained faculty of Christian men and women. The new college building is being completed at a rapid rate. This costly building will be modern throughout and entirely adequate for the work of the school. It is intended that the educational standing of the school shall be that of a fully accredited junior college. An attractive feature is the maintenance of a modern business school in connection with the regular literary work of the college. Young people who desire a business education will be interested in obtaining it in the wholesome environment of a Christian college. Write for catalogue.

A. S. Croom President.

Will Prevent Much Sickness.

These enervating days are fraught with danger to people whose systems are poorly sustained. This leads the makers of Hood's Sarsaparilla to say, in the interest of the less robust, that the full effect of this good old family medicine justifies calling it, not only a blood purifier, but also a tonic. It is sustaining; it gives strength, aids digestion, promotes refreshing sleep, and will prevent much sickness at this time of year.

Hood's Pills, which are gentle and thorough, may be taken with it, in cases where there is need of a cathartic or laxative.

Heres Relief

Why suffer from nervousness, insomnia, hysteria, nervous dyspepsia, nervous prostration or any ailment due to a disordered condition of the nerves?

DR. MILES NERVINE

will give you prompt and lasting relief.

It produces refreshing sleep, builds up the shattered nerves and promotes a normal distribution of nerve force.

Your Druggist Sells It, Ask Him.

Nuga-Tone

Don't Send Any Money

Just fill in the coupon below and get a 20 Days' Trial Treatment of the wonderful nerve, blood and health builder—Nuga-Tone. It invigorates, tones up and stimulates all the vital organs and bodily functions—helps them do their work as Nature intended they should. That is the only safe and sane method to get quick and permanent relief. Nuga-Tone is rich in Iron which makes Rich, Red Blood and Phosphorus the greatest known remedy for building strong, steady Nerves. In addition to Iron and Phosphorus, Nuga-Tone contains six other valuable remedies. These life-giving, health-giving ingredients are used the world over by the best doctors to build strong, healthy vigorous manhood and womanhood.

Nuga-Tone stimulates the liver, invigorates and regulates the bowels so they move regularly, thereby overcoming constipation. It tones up the stomach, aids digestion, prevents bloating and gas on the stomach and bowels. It sweetens the breath and removes the coat from the tongue. Nuga-Tone relieves sick headaches, biliousness, and a sallow, muddy complexion will soon become clear and rosy; gives you more ambition, pep and a new lease on life. For thin, weak, nervous, run-down, sickly men and women there is nothing as good as Nuga-Tone to put them on their feet again. Take it a few days and you will be more cheerful, happy and feel like life is worth living.

ACT TODAY! Fill in and mail us the Free Coupon NOW. Delays are sometimes costly. Try this great revitalizer at our expense. It has done wonders for thousands of others—now let it do the same for you. If Nuga-Tone wasn't such a good medicine we could not afford to let you try it 20 days absolutely free of cost. Use the coupon now before it slips your mind. Nuga-Tone is also sold by druggists and is absolutely guaranteed to give you entire satisfaction or money refunded—see guarantee on each package.

30 DAYS' TRIAL COUPON

NATIONAL LABORATORY, 472 - 1018 S. Wabash Ave., Chicago

GENTLEMEN: Please send me FREE OF ALL COST, POSTAGE PREPAID, a 30 days' trial treatment of Nuga-Tone with the understanding I will take it 20 days and if benefited pay you $1.00. If not benefited, I will return the remainder of the package and I owe you nothing.

Name.....
St. & No. or R. F. D.....
City..... State.....

GIRLS! LEMONS BLEACH FRECKLES AND WHITEN SKIN

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan bleach and complexion whitener.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day, and see how freckles and blemishes bleach out, and how clear, soft, and rosy-white the skin becomes.

For the HAIR—

To make it soft, fluffy, and free from dandruff, use

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Reliable Agents Wanted

We offer a very attractive commission proposition to responsible men selling our line of guaranteed monuments in Marble and Granite. Write for full particulars and confidential contract.

National Marble & Granite Co.
Dept. "A." Call Ground, Ga.

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Eucapine Salve

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Inflammation)

Is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

How Long Forbear?

BY H. M. PHILLIPS.

This question I am asking in regard to the erring Christian. If it can be answered, I am sure much good will be done; and if not correctly answered, harm will result. If answered as the Book teaches and not obeyed, it is all the worse.

Church discipline is not exercised very frequently now. It may be because of a lack of knowing what the Scriptures teach or a failure to stand firm for the teaching. I feel sure many souls would be saved that are on the road to destruction if the leaders would do their duty in this matter. But it is harder to get them to act than it is to say it ought to be done. Evidently something is wrong somewhere.

God did not forbear very long with Ananias and Sapphira as recorded in Acts 5. Nor did Paul forbear long with the fornicator mentioned in 1 Cor. 5. And Paul is very plain in telling what to do with the disorderly. (2 Thess. 3: 6.) Peter soon got Simon to see his duty and told him straight to the face the real condition he was in. Now, do you wonder if they did right? But you say they were guided by the Holy Spirit. Well, do we not have the example and command of the Holy Spirit? What more do we want? But some one may say that we do not know who is disorderly. If so, we do not know who is orderly, and, therefore, we know nothing. "By their fruits ye shall know them," and the Bible is the tester of the fruits.

So few are willing to follow the Book in living or in withdrawing that it is a hard matter to get such carried out. Often the leaders will make a great start, but will soon cool off and quit. The church is lowered in influence and the spiritual condition is worse. Why is it that the careless are not looked after more?

Some fear they will lose the erring if discipline is administered. Paul said that was the way to save the erring and also the body. (1 Cor. 5.) Others fear outsiders will not accept if you make the way so straight. It caused fear and additions in Bible times. (Acts 5: 14.) Not a few fear the church will be offended, but in Acts 5 and 1 Cor. 5 we learn that fear and unity prevailed.

How long forbear? I do not know for certain; but when nothing is ever done, I know that is too long. I fully realize that the erring ought to be talked with and kindly admonished and given some time to carefully consider; but if it goes on too long, it will cause one to be hardened, like the disobedient child who has no discipline applied. He will soon be away from the home, when he could have

JELLO Ice Cream Powder

"Did You Make this Ice Cream?"

"INDEED, I did make it. I am making wonderful ice cream, using a package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder and a quart of milk for half a gallon. I know how to make 'home-made' ice cream. Anybody can make it." Sugar, flavoring, and everything except the milk are contained in Jell-O Ice Cream Powder. Nothing to do but dissolve the powder in the milk and freeze it. Sold by all grocers, 2 packages for 25 cents.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N.Y.

FRECKLES Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it at night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

been kept there, if restraint had been thrown around him in time. We all are to teach and admonish one another.

The one great curse of the church now is a lack of well-cared-for members. We all have our influence, and evil ones seem to get results from theirs first. The church is to be separate and apart from the world, and how could it be true to its Head when the worldly are retained? Christ wants the church free from spots and blemishes. It is not so bad for a spot to be found as it is to make no effort to get rid of the spot. Brethren, what is being done where you worship to keep the church free from spots? Sometimes forbearance in some things might mean destruction. Think on these things seriously, and let us have a clean church, as Christ requires.

Among the Colored Folks

"As Workers Together With Him."

BY M. KEEBLE.

On June 16 I closed a three-weeks' meeting at Birmingham, Ala. Interest was good throughout the meeting. The West End Church (white) is still manifesting a great interest in mission work among my people, and I am glad to see my people anxious to hear and obey the pure gospel. In this meeting ten precious souls were baptized for the remission of sins. The white brethren would not attend this time like they did last year, because their meeting was going on at the same time, but some of them were with us in every service. This work is only one year old, and there are about seventy-five members now, and they are holding out well. It seems a pleasure for Brethren Graves and Davis (white) to train these new members in Christ, because they were young and needed help to keep the enemy back until they could grow strong enough. While in Birmingham I had the pleasure of hearing Brother T. B. Thompson preach in the afternoons at West End. He is a powerful preacher, and it was a help to me to hear him. Brother Bradley also encouraged me much while there. The colored brethren and sisters did all they could to make my stay among them a pleasant one, for which I am very thankful. The white brethren are still arranging to purchase a lot on which to build a house, so the colored brethren and sisters will have a place to worship. They are now renting a hall, and it is not large enough. I am very thankful to the white brethren and sisters for their coöperation.

On the third Lord's day in June I preached at eleven o'clock at White's Chapel, Fosterville, Tenn. We had a fine service, and all seemed glad to be present. There was a feeling of sadness during the service on account of one of the oldest members being sick, not expected to live. I have been preaching here for four or five years, and had never missed seeing Sister Easter Frazier at her post of duty, and I hope that she may recover if it is the Lord's will.

On the last Lord's-day night in June I preached at the Jefferson Street church of Christ, in Nashville. This church is a split from the Jackson Street Church, and I made an effort to get them to come together again in unity. On Tuesday night I preached at Jackson Street, with a good many present, and all seemed to enjoy the lesson. I was greatly encouraged at the interest manifested, and I pray that the work may continue to grow. It seems that the Hardeman-Pullias meeting gave new life to the Jackson Street Church.

In March the church house at Corinth, Miss., was blown away, and they are trying to build again. They are poor and few in number, but they are rich in faith. Any brother who can send them a donation will certainly help a worthy cause. Brother J. Hanon lives there and preaches for them, and he is respected by both white and colored. Please send your gifts to him.

I am now (June 23) at Martin, Tenn., in a big tent meeting. Interest is fine. The white church has me here preaching to my people, and the future looks bright.

Castle Heights MILITARY ACADEMY

Things you look for in a school for your boy—sympathetic, intelligent leadership that understands boys. Opportunity for complete mental, physical and moral upbuilding. Academic and Commercial courses. Military Training and all acceptable athletics. Here a strong faculty of University-trained experts assures your boy proper development in all lines. Modern, complete equipment. Recognized by leading universities. For illustrated catalogue, address COL. C. M. MATHIS, A.M., L.L.B., Pres. Box R Lebanon, Tenn.

For the Up-building Of Manly Boys

Unless the church is growing, it is dying.—Charles K. Brown.

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Founded 1793

Superb location in world-famous climate. Wide area of patronage. Limited number. Boys live a simple, wholesome life, under the care of experienced teachers, and under Christian influences. Plenty of good, nourishing food. All forms of athletics. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officers. 129th year begins September 13. Send for handbook.

Col. R. Bingham, Supt. Emeritus.

Col. S. R. McKee, Supt.

MORGAN SCHOOL PETERSBURG, TENN.

An institution for boys which broadens the vision and builds character. Headed by that eminent educator, Prof. R. K. Morgan, whose personality and influence for better things does much toward the molding of morals and stimulating of broader ideals in students who are so fortunate as to attend Morgan School. Able faculty. Personal attention to each student. Write for catalogue. L. I. MILLS, Secretary, Petersburg, Tenn.

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE HENDERSON, TENNESSEE

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING AND GIRLS' DORMITORY

A standard junior college maintaining the following departments: Grammar School, High School, Collegiate, Bible, Business, Shorthand, Typewriting, Instrumental Music, Voice, Vocal Music, Expression, etc. New $75,000.00 Girls' Home. Strong Faculty. Christian atmosphere. Reasonable rates. Write for catalog.

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE HENDERSON, TENNESSEE

Field Reports

Shelbyville, Ky., June 27.—Our meeting at Monticello, Ky., closed last Wednesday night, after continuing ten days. There were twenty additions—sixteen baptized, one from the Baptists, one from the "digressives," and two by membership. There are many good brethren at Monticello who give the cause of Christ first place in their hearts. I predict a steady growth for the work there. I am off for a few weeks now with partial paralysis of the face, but I hope to be back in the work soon.—R. A. Craig.

Ackerman, Miss., June 26.—It has been some time since I made a report; but I have been busy, working on the farm during the week and preaching on Lord's day. I was at Sturgis yesterday. They are alive to duty, and good will surely follow. My protracted-meeting work will begin on the first Lord's day in July. I will go to Jasper County and preach in a Baptist community. So far as I know, there is not a "Christian only" in fifty miles of that place. I will be busy until the middle of October. Pray for me, that I may preach the truth in love and simplicity. Brother H. C. Harris will labor again in this destitute field, and Brother J. R. Vaughan will assist. Brother J. C. Murphy has helped much, and will continue to assist as long as it is possible for him to do so. These brethren have all promised to help me answer the many calls that are coming from this part of the State. We thank God for their help.—H. D. Jeffcoat.

Wichita Falls, Texas, June 26.—Notwithstanding the very hot weather we have had of late, yesterday was a good day for the church in Wichita Falls. A number of our people are out of the city on vacations, but others who are here on visits to some extent make up for the absence of the regular members. Our Bible classes, while off a little on account of the above-mentioned fact, are being quite well attended and the interest is good. There were more than one hundred and eighty in attendance at yesterday's classes. Also, the services both morning and evening were very good, and one young lady was received by membership at the morning hour. It is a pleasure to see our younger members taking active part in our work, and it undoubtedly bespeaks a splendid future for the work, since this will prepare material to fill the places of responsibility when the older ones are able to serve no more. At last Wednesday's prayer-meeting hour a number of the young men responded with suitable remarks on the subject for the lesson. It is our purpose to encourage this and thus to develop these for service. Beginning within about three weeks, I shall be away from the work here for a while, the church having allowed me a vacation of one month. This time is expected to be spent first in holding a meeting at Huckabay, Texas, and at any other point I may be asked to go, or in a little rest which I am in great need of at this time. The brethren at home are expecting to take care of the work while I am away. There are brethren in the congregation who are able to teach the public assembly; and while these do not make a practice of preaching, they will fill the pulpit in my absence. We ask the prayers of the brethren everywhere in behalf of our work.—R. D. Smith.

Comfort Your Skin With Cuticura Soap and Fragrant Talcum

Soap, Ointment, Talcum, 25c. everywhere. Samples free of Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden, Mass.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, back-aches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the Liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting CAPUDINE

TETTERINE Drives Away Pimples

and leaves your skin soft and spotless. 60c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

RECEIVED GREAT BENEFITS PE-RU-NA FROM THE USE OF

Mr. J. O. Sexton, R. F. D. No. 2, Grassy Creek, North Carolina: "I have used Pe-ru-na for the last two years and received great benefits from it. Pe-ru-na is fine for colds, grip and flu. I can recommend it most highly."

FINE FOR COLDS, GRIP
AND FLU

For coughs, colds, catarrh, the results of grip and Spanish Flu, stomach and bowel disorders and all other Catarrhal diseases, PE-RU-NA is recommended by a half century of usefulness.

TABLETS OR LIQUID
SOLD EVERYWHERE

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

SOLD 50 YEARS — A FINE GENERAL TONIC

If not sold by your druggist, write Wintersmith Chemical Co., Louisville, Ky.

HARDEMAN'S TABERNACLE SERMONS

A series of evangelistic sermons preached by N. B. Harde- man during the Great Nashville Meeting, held in the Ryman Auditorium, March 28-April 16. These sermons ring true to the Old Book, and have a charm of style and freshness of illustration that put them in a class by themselves.

All the profits derived from the sale of these books will be used to create a fund to help poor boys and girls attend Freed-Hardeman College.

The book will contain about 350 pages, with pictures of Harde- man, Pullias, and the audience, a history of the meet- ing, about twenty sermons, and an address delivered by Brother Pullias before the Exchange Club.

Bound in cloth, stamped in gold. Price, $1.50.

Book now being mailed to advanced subscribers.

Send all orders to N. B. HARDEMAN, Henderson, Tenn.

Gospel Advocate

MISSISSAUGA
GREENWOOD TOWN
Mar 1 23

Volume LXIV. No. 29.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 20, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Congregational Worship.....	678
OUR CONTRIBUTORS.....	674
Notes from West Tennessee—"Getting Results"—Just Common Sense—"Covington Will Be the Center of the Drive"—Field Notes—Atlanta (Ga.) Notes.....
QUERY DEPARTMENT.....	678
HOME READING.....	679
AT HOME AND ABROAD.....	680
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	682
EDITORIAL.....	684
Evangelize the World—Inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures—A Confusion of Terms—Will Their Courage Fail?—The Gospel Advocate Company—"New Testament Evangelism."
Elephant-Snape Debate—Notes from Kentucky—Mission Work in Miami, Fla.....	689
From East Tennessee.....	690
A Call from Idaho.....	691
Meeting at Bakersfield, Cal.—Report from Canada.....	692
AMONG THE COLORED FOLKS.....	693
A Call from the Palmetto State—Changes in Progress at Harper, Kan.....	694
Report of Norris-Gray Debate—Discussion with the Adventists.....	695
FIELD REPORTS.....	696

CONGREGATIONAL WORSHIP.

[There will appear on the front page of the Gospel Advocate for a few weeks timely articles from such men as A. Campbell, Benjamin Franklin, Isaac Errett, T. Fanning, D. Lipscomb, J. A. Harding, E. G. Sewell, etc. This week we reprint an article from the pen of D. Lipscomb, published by the Gospel Advocate in June, 1866. At this time T. Fanning and D. Lipscomb were editing the Gospel Advocate. The truths and principles presented in the following article are needed to-day as badly as they were fifty-six years ago. They are commended to all earnest, prayerful readers.—H. Leo B.]

There seems to be, with our brethren, a most fatal mistake with reference to the object of the congregational worship on the Lord's day. There is an idea that seems almost ineradicable that meetings of the congregation on Lord's day are for the purpose of affecting, by personal influence, the world. Hence, unless brethren can get the world to attend their meetings for worship, they become discouraged and give up the weekly assembling of the saints. Hence, too, when a few of the world come, the object of the assembling is perverted by men who have no capacity for such work delivering lengthy disquisitions on motley points of theology, and corrupting the simplicity of prayer by endeavoring to preach to the world through the form of prayer to God. Now, while we would be far from repulsing those of the world who are disposed to attend upon the congregational worship, we doubt exceedingly whether the true objects of Christian worship have ever been promoted by the presence of the world.

The true and proper object of the weekly meeting is, as the family of God, to meet him in his special and chosen appointments where he has promised to meet us through these appointments—prayer, praise, thanksgiving, observance of the memorials of the broken body and shed blood of our Savior and Elder Brother, and devout and prayerful study of his word, together with the observance of the fellowship and the kindly word of encouragement and brotherly love to our brethren and sisters. These objects, then, are solely communion with God our Father, and with our brethren and sisters. Now, will these ends be advanced by the presence of strangers? Are we more apt to be earnest, sincere, forgetful of all else in the presence of our Maker, with stranger eyes and ears present, than without them?

Are we not somewhat inclined to do what we do with a thought as to how it appears to those hearing and beholding, rather than how it appears to God our Father? Does, then, the presence of strangers not tend to distract our thoughts and interrupt the free current of our religious feelings? We know this is the effect. Again, in these family gatherings of the Lord, the least, humblest members should feel free, and should have the circumstances most favorable to make them to give a full and unrestrained expression to their wants and conditions; in a word, those circumstances should be sought that will promote the freest and fullest expression of intercommunion and sympathy between the different members of the family. Now, brethren, is the presence of strangers calculated to have this effect? In your domestic family circles, does the presence of the stranger promote the exchange of expressions of love and sympathy? Does it tend to encourage the little, shrinking, timid ones of the household to freedom and confidence of expression and thought? We have always felt sorry for the family circle that never had private, social hours of its own, when the family feelings and family affections might find expression and development free from the obtrusive presence of strangers. So we think and feel with reference to the gatherings of our Father's family. If we could only enter heartily into the spirit of these meetings as our Father intended we should, realizing that we are brethren and sisters, met together to cultivate and strengthen the family ties, that we should in these meetings draw nearer and nearer to God our Father, and to our mother, the church, and that the bond of parental affection should be more closely drawn around brethren and sisters, we would, I am sure, never, never regret the absence of strangers. We find the primitive Christians met in private rooms with the doors locked, in upper chambers, and in places of solitude, it is true, for fear of their enemies, in part, and yet, we think, in good degree, to have an hour of communion sacred to themselves. Will the brethren and sisters then learn that the virtue and efficacy of the weekly meeting is in no degree dependent upon the world's being present, and that the object is to affect and benefit themselves? The unbelievers may be benefited by being present, therefore we would not repulse them; but the true interests of the church in those meetings are never promoted by their presence. Let us learn that the true object is to meet and commune with God and one another, and not with the world. "Where two or three are gathered together in my name, there am I in the midst of them."

God and Man.

God has the right to rule and direct all persons and all things for his own ends and purposes; all must serve him or be brought to ruin. He is able to direct and control them so as to bring about his desires and purposes. None need gainsay or oppose; none in heaven or on earth "can stay his hand, or say unto him, What doest thou?" (Dan. 4: 35.) "For he is the living God, and steadfast forever, and his kingdom that which shall not be destroyed; and his dominion shall be even unto the end." (Dan. 6: 26.) "His kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and all dominions shall serve and obey him." (Dan. 7: 27.) Whosoever sets himself against God must be brought to ruin.—D. L.

Our Contributors

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN E. WILLIAMS.

A CALL FROM TROY (Continued).

Brother Ott and a few others still contended that I should go to Troy for a meeting. The Methodists consented for us to have the use of their meetinghouse, but changed their mind and called for the house on Wednesday night after the meeting started on Sunday. On Sunday at eleven o'clock the meeting opened up with a full house. Brethren and sisters came for miles from every direction to assist in the meeting in every way they could. But "them days is gone."

The Methodist people were just closing Sunday school when I went in. They came to me and said: "Now, Brother Williams, we are glad you are here in our town to hold a meeting, and we desire to assist you in every way possible. Here is our organ, organist, and choir, ready to make music for you." Brethren, this was a trying ordeal for me. Conscious of the fact that the people of Troy thought no good thing could come from Reelfoot Lake, and certainly he won't refuse our offer. All who have had a similar experience know how I felt at that time. I thanked them for their kind offer, but told them I did not want to preach or practice anything for which I could not find authority in the New Testament; and as I could not find authority in the New Testament for the use of instrumental music in the worship of God, I was forced to decline their offer for the use of the organ. I told them that all could sing without the use of the organ. At this juncture old Brother Barrett, of Union City, came forward and said, "Yes, we can sing God's praise without the organ," and called out a number to sing—"All Hail the Power of Jesus' Name!" Every brother and sister present that could sing did sing, and did not have to be invited; all joined in, and such singing as was done is scarcely heard these days.

At that time there lived in Troy an old colored woman, "Aunt Jane Hogue." She attended the day services by taking the back seat. One day when the services were closed she waited by the door to speak to the sisters as they were passing out. She said to them: "Do you s'pose dat white man would speak to dis po'r ol' nigger?" "Certainly he will. You stand here until he comes to the door." She reached out that poor, old, wrinkled, bony black hand, and I grasped it, giving her as good a shake of the hand as I could. She held on to my hand, looking up at me with tears rolling down her furrowed cheeks, and said: "God bless you! God bless you! It does my ol' soul good to hear you preach. You puts de fodder down so's dis po'r ol' nigger can git it. God bless you!" Of all the compliments I have ever received, brethren, here is the jewel. It hangs at the top of the string. Long ago "Aunt Jane" passed away, but that grasp of the hand, those tears, that look, and what she said have often come to my relief when all seemed to be against me. She is gone, but not forgotten. While God spares me to live, I shall ever cherish the memory of that poor old colored woman, and here and now give her full credit for the encouragement she gave me. One other compliment prized very highly; hence, a pair. A lady of education, culture, and refinement, hearing me preach, said: "Brother Williams believes he is preaching just like the apostles did." At that time she was not a member of the "one body," but to-day is an active, energetic worker in the church.

On Wednesday night the Methodists had a use for their house and called for it. Discouraged, but not beaten at all, we fixed up the old courthouse and continued the meeting in it. Early in the meeting people began to confess Christ. I am rather of the opinion now, and was then, that that was the cause of the Methodists calling for their house.

The baptizing was all done at night in Mill Creek, about one mile from Troy. Sister Turner, a Methodist, confessed Christ and demanded baptism "the same hour of the night." Her husband bitterly opposed her in this and intimated that something serious to him might happen if she went on. She went; nothing serious happened to him. She told him it was an individual duty, one she owed to God and not to man, and no one could prevent her obedience to God.

Next, "A Call to Troy" (continued).

"Getting Results."

BY C. E. HOLT.

This heading was used by Brother Earnest C. Love in the Gospel Advocate of June 23, current volume, and the points made by Brother Love are very pointed and pertinent to the subject treated. The facts to which attention is directed in said article are plainly and distressingly true, and a remedy for the trouble is within reach; but will we reach out and get the remedy and use it? I fear that we will not. That the reader may have something tangible before the mind, I shall give here an excerpt from Brother Love:

In a recent article called "An Open Door" I took the position that we are not getting results in proportion to the energy, money, and time spent in our evangelistic work. Let us study that subject again. If our preachers will take notice, I think they will find that nearly all of our additions are children of church members. No wonder, for scarcely any one else goes besides members and their children. This condition has prevailed for some time, and it is getting worse.

Of course we are getting more and more like the denominations against which we have so loudly declaimed and which we have so severely censured. We have become stereotyped. We have "crystallized" around the "pastor" and the big evangelist. We call the "pastor" our "evangelist." We do this because the word "pastor" has an Ashdodic sound to our people. But we must have some one to look after the local interests, and that is all right; but why should we make such an ado about the word "pastor," when we insist on having a preacher who does "pastoral" work? But some one says the word "pastors" (plural) in Eph. 4: 11 should be translated "shepherds." All right; just call a preacher whose work is limited to one congregation a "shepherd." I do not care what you call him; it is an indisputable fact that the preacher who locates and lives and works with one congregation does just exactly the kind of work that the Methodists and Baptists and other denominations do. You may call him "our minister," "our evangelist," or by whatever name you please, but he is a "pastor." Why do I say this? Because of the nature of the work he does. What does the "located" preacher do? He preaches twice on Lord's days, attends the midweek prayer meeting, preaches funerals, performs marriage ceremonies, visits some during the week, preaches "sermonettes" during hot weather, takes "vacations," attends ministers' unions, etc. Now, do preachers of "other denominations" do these things? If doing these things makes other preachers, or preachers of other churches, "pastors," how does it happen that they make our preachers "evangelists?" Of all the curious things in this world, none are more curious than some things that churches do. What our people do is "orthodox;" what the other fellow does is "heterodox." In other words, "orthodoxy" is my "doxy," and "heterodoxy" is your "doxy." If we do it, it is all right; but it will, if done by the other folks, send them to hell.

But are we getting results? Yes—of a kind. We have our "big guns" to hold our "big meetings," and feel that we are taking the world for Christ when the noise of the "big guns" is heard for a few days. How long will it take to evangelize the world after this fashion?

But let us hear Brother Love again:

It is obvious that something must be done. Present methods are entirely unsatisfactory, if we are ever to reach the world or even the unconverted part of the United States. Many realize this, and various remedies have been suggested. A very common one is to select some good preacher and locate him with the church. But this will not work, because every denomination in the town is doing the same thing. If we think of building a nice meeting-house as an attraction, we have but to look around us to see that that has already been run into the ground. Visiting from house to house is good, but there is every preacher in town doing the same thing.

The gospel order is to go into all the world—preach the gospel to the whole creation. Have we changed the commission to read, "Go to the best-paying congregations and hold protracted meetings," preach a series of sermons on "setting up the kingdom" and on the "law of pardon" to the alien? In former years the best gospel preachers were found in the hedges and byways making the old Jerusalem gospel ring in the ears and hearts of the people. But in the language of the humorist, "them days is gone forever." At least, it so appears. It has reached the point that about all the difference between "us" and other religious bodies is that between the words tweedledee and tweedledum.

But Brother Love continues:

There was a time when I thought advertising on a more businesslike basis would solve the problem, but now I think there is nothing I can do along that line that has not already been worked overtime. The big meeting in Nashville was advertised thoroughly. All the latest methods were used, such as billboards, banners, streamers, newspaper space, window cards, blotters, etc. The audiences were good, but the large majority were already Christians. After all, the persons who most needed that kind of preaching were not there.

The Nashville churches took the initiative in doing things on a big scale. Anything is great only by comparison. A small pile of dirt and stone attracts no attention; a large pile of the same material—a mountain—is wonderful. A small lake is unnoticed; a sea or large body of water is great, in our estimation. One hundred men excites no one; a million men excites and awes and pleases. So it is about meetings. A big preacher, a big audience, and big money should produce big results. Well, those things do attract and excite and please, and make us feel that we have laid aside our swaddling clothes.

We have outgrown David's sling and his five smooth stones of the brook, and are now panoplied in the armor of a king. At last we have become like other folks. Of course, we do not use organs and fiddles and horns, but we have all the other things of modern inventions; and these musical instruments are getting to be "back numbers," anyway. The "sects" have overworked them. They have been weighed and found wanting, the denominations themselves being judges. It has been more than one hundred years since Alexander Campbell and his coadjutors called the world's attention to God's eternal truth in his word revealed as the panacea for all the troubles in Zion. In theory we stand with those illustrious men to-day, but in practice we have, in many respects, grievously departed from the divine pattern. It is a fact, as history attests, that there has never been a reformation that did not, in a few years, need to be reformed. The remedy is ours to use, but will we use it? Listen to God's prophet: "Not by might, nor by power, but by my Spirit, saith the Lord." (Zech. 4: 6.) We need, to-day, Spirit-filled men—men of consecration, men whose hearts are aflame with the desire to save the lost. We need men who know the Bible; men who read the Bible and not sermon books; men that pray and preach and persuade; men that believe (not just simply quote it) the gospel is the power of God unto salvation; men who love the souls of men and women more than they love money and praise and flattery; men who are willing and ready to suffer hardship for Jesus' sake; men of pure lives, holy desires, and lofty ideals in things spiritual. We need men who are not afraid to go, trusting the Lord for spiritual strength and material support. I firmly believe we have more than seven thousand men who have not bowed to the image of Baal.

Just Common Sense.

BY FRED M. LITTLE.

A brother who lives in Nashville, Tenn., and who is not a preacher, asked me to prepare an article for our religious papers setting forth the importance of the churches supporting our preachers decently. I agreed to do so, because I, for one, realize that if our brethren do not wake up to the fact that if men cannot get a support by preaching the gospel, that soon all the men will be driven from the field. Some as able men as we have are forced to resort to secular work in order to get a livelihood. I know a good preacher in Arkansas that ought to be preaching the gospel all the time, but for the lack of support he cannot. We also have an able man in Florida that ought to be proclaiming the word of the Lord twelve months of each year. And just scores of good men are ready to enter the field, but the churches are neglecting to do their duty, and I am sure God is going to hold them responsible for a failure to do their part in this great work. Too many seem to think that when they very meagerly support a preacher to hold a "protracted meeting" they have done enough. I tell you right now the church that has been established for several years and does no more than preach a little to itself is a dead church already. Any man that holds a meeting for ten days ought not to have less than one hundred and fifty dollars. Remember, there are weeks that he cannot hold protracted meetings, and his expense goes on just the same. What encouragement do our young men have to enter the ministry, when they see well-qualified men actually in need for some of the necessities of life? I am not trying to leave the impression that they should be made to think they are to go out for the money there is in it. What I am saying is, they cannot go unless they are sent, which means supported, and the churches have got it to do.

I am not one who is "sour" on the church because I have not been supported, for I happen to be among brethren who believe it a part of religion to look after the temporal needs of the man who is in their midst preaching; but I am thinking of that brother that is laboring and striving to live to lead souls to Christ, and hundreds of congregations doing absolutely nothing, only calling a preacher to hold them an annual meeting, and pay him about half what he should receive for that. I have not quoted a single passage of Scripture; I did not intend to. You know them already. I say wake up, use common sense, and go to supporting God's messengers decently, and see if you do not feel better. Do it now.

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN THE WORSHIP

By M. C. Kurfess

Cloth. 300 pages. Price, postpaid-----$1.50

This is the most comprehensive book on this important subject now before the public. In it the Greek verb "psallo" is philologically and historically examined, together with a full discussion of kindred matters relating to music in Christian worship. The book is the result of a lifetime of critical study and research, and has become the standard of information on the music question. It has been highly recommended by scholarly brethren in the church of Christ and in the religious world.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY
Nashville, Tenn.

"Covington Will Be the Center of the Drive."

BY A. B. BARRET.

The following clipping was taken from the Nashville Banner of June 27, 1922, and I find it is a very interesting communication, as it contains several things worth noticing just at this time:

Memphis, Tenn., June 27.—(Special.)—The Rev. M. B. Cook, of Dyersburg, was elected Monday to head the West Tennessee Christian Pastors' Association, about twenty-five congregations in this end of the State being represented at the meeting held at the Linden Avenue Church here.

Plans were made for an evangelistic campaign of West Tennessee, and Covington will be the center of the drive. More than eleven hundred dollars was raised at the meeting to finance the effort. The campaign will start as soon as the team can be recruited and plans perfected. It was also decided to employ an evangelist to work in the rural communities.

To my certain knowledge, Covington, Tenn., my old home, has been the center of just such a "drive" as is contemplated—a drive for evangelizing that section of the country, I suppose—for thirty years. It is true that this drive has never, perhaps, been "driven" as it should have been, as the congregation there has not always pressed the fight as it should; and, too, much of the world and a bit of digression have crept in from time to time; but, somehow, the old lines have been kept defined, and many souls throughout the county have been saved through the efforts of various ones in preaching the gospel, with Covington as the "center." And following my meeting at Covington in May the congregation subscribed ample funds to engage the services of an evangelist for all of his time. The church is just now corresponding with one or two men with a view to engaging one of them to do this work. Besides, there are other efforts being put forth by other congregations in the county in evangelistic work. And this is true of practically every county in West Tennessee. Indeed, some of those counties have done even more than has been done in Tipton County.

And it is certain knowledge on my part that this wonderful "drive" that is now to be put on in West Tennessee, with Covington as the center, is coming rather late in the history of evangelistic work to impress any one with any earnest desire to save souls as its primary motive. I know that practically no such effort has been made heretofore to help build up the Lord's work in that section of the country. Linden Street has been in Memphis for a long time, together with other such churches at a few scattering points in West Tennessee, but this is the first that I have heard of the society getting them to evangelize this territory. I wonder why? I believe Mason Depot is the only point in Tipton County where the "digressives" have been able to get a foothold. Perhaps this would be a better place for these deceivers to adopt as a center. It would at least seem more decent of them if they would adopt a place where they have a congregation as the "center" of their "drive." It is possible that these dividers of churches have learned that there are a few would-be "digressives" in Covington, and that they may, therefore, hope to make some headway in an effort to build up digressionism there and to tear down the work that has been going on there for all these years. This is at least their method, according to my observations. Why not begin such work out on the firing line—out where no one has gone? This was Paul's way, "lest he should build upon another man's foundation."

And now I wish to know what those "twenty-five congregations" have to offer the churches in West Tennessee that will make them more like Christ wants them to be and that will enable them to do the work more scripturally than they are now doing it. They preach less of the gospel than any of the churches of Christ already in that field; they have a "Pastors' Association," with one of their number "honored" with the distinction of "heading" the association; they have "reverend" gentlemen as their members; they have human societies to supplant the churches; they have instrumental music to corrupt the worship of the Lord; they have delegate conventions to legislate for the brethren; they have the pious unimmersed as substitutes for the scripturally baptized; they sometimes dedicate babies, thereby opening the way further back to Rome; they have every phase of infidelity, from higher criticism to atheism, and many other marks of Babylon and Rome. But who would claim that these are elements of Christian strength that the churches of Christ in West Tennessee have missed? I confess that I have misunderstood the New Testament all these years if such things are necessary to Christianity. This movement stands identified with those who are headed in the direction of all such departures from the "faith which was once for all delivered unto the saints," and those who press this "campaign" must bear the odium of seeking to foster such corruptions upon their brethren in Christ. Of course, there will go up a howl to the effect that I have misrepresented these preachers; but I stand ready to go to Covington as the "center" and tell it all over the county, with any man of their choosing to expose me.

Let me say to the congregations of West Tennessee, and in every place, that the "digressives" have made up their minds that they must hustle or sink, and they are organizing for a "hustle." So you must bestir yourselves, for this is the way to meet it—just "fight the good fight of the faith." This "Pastors' Association" has discovered that the societies will not do the work; hence, they have a new organization to do it. But what luck will these city pastors have preaching to the folks of West Tennessee? No more than they have had in the past. Payne, Briney, Lappin, Cowden, and their followers have taken their last stand on the scripturalness of instrumental music, claiming that the word Paul used means to accompany the singing with an instrument; so they must play and blow as they sing, else they will not do what they have discovered, after all these years, the Lord has wanted them to do. This means they will use the organ, or the like, right in the beginning of each "campaign." When they ridiculed us for opposing them, claiming the organ was only an "aid," an "expedient," on a par with the tuning fork, the song book, meetinghouses, etc., they deceived some folks into believing them; but the "masses" will not be so easily duped by their last stand on this issue; hence, they will not make such headway, which has been meager enough at best. When the "digressives" finally learn that we must not only worship God in truth, but in spirit as well, they will wake up, let us hope, to the fact that the worship is not expressed in external playing, but by making melody in the heart. Then there will be some chance of unity between us. But since Payne's wonderful discovery they have planted themselves upon the contention that instrumental music is commanded, just as immersion is commanded. So "the die has been cast," and the "digressives" have cast it; and we must fight them on their own ground. As for number one, I propose to fight in love and kindness; but it is going to be a thorough fight wherever and whenever I can make it.

I wish every preacher among us would make it a point to expose digressionism in our own congregations and abroad, condemn worldliness in the members, exhort them to a stricter loyalty to the Lord, and encourage them to do more for Christ than ever before. If hiring this "rural" evangelist will cause the brethren of West Tennessee to wake up and do more in evangelizing their counties, I shall be glad the "Pastors' Association" decided to save the people of West Tennessee.

In conclusion, let me call upon Harding, Dunn, Copeland, Williams, Freed, Hardeman, Brigance, Howell, Gunter, Taylor, and all others concerned, to meet the challenge halfway; and I ask that we join hands in breaking up the "center," which is to be at Covington. I feel strongly about this business of Satan having his "synagogue" right where the fight has been made for so long. My mother's father and mother fought and fell there; my sainted mother wore her life away there for Christ; many, many others equally as faithful have gone to their reward from that battle ground; and their memories cheer us to fight onward and upward. I shall regret to see the work for which so much has been sacrificed disrupted by such men, and I propose to do what I can to prevent it. I wish every preacher who can would plan to spend as much time as possible in the territory where these disturbers of the peace of Zion may go, and do what he can to whip them out. I think the church at Covington ought to take the lead in this fight, and that she ought to call upon her sister churches of West Tennessee to assist them in Covington, as that is to be the "center." I hereby pledge you, my dear home brethren, my heart and hand for the fight. Call me if you need me. I wish this church would arrange with a number of preachers to hold a series of meetings there, to continue for many weeks. Already we have talked about this. I have held six meetings for my home church, and prefer that some one else do the work, but I stand ready to answer any call to help that I may be able.

Christianity is not a social stunt, merely for pastime, but a fight from first to last. I find that some brethren want the soft pedal, and a preacher makes himself quite unpopular with them if he preaches the truth as Paul and all such preachers told the story. I am headed in on the home stretch and have no compromise to make. I have been preaching the truth in a plain way for twenty-five years, and I have never had it to fail me yet. I have tried it out in sermons, in debate on the rostrum and in the papers, and in my daily life, and it has always proven to be the thing to tie to in every contest. Therefore, I am in the fight to the finish.

Field Notes.

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

Quebeck, the place where I began preaching July 1, is a small station in White County, about eleven miles from Sparta, Tenn., in the foothills of Cumberland Mountains. Raccoon John Smith has preached in these parts. An old house has been pointed out here as one in which he lodged one time in passing through. Also, our aged brother, E. C. L. Denton, now of Memphis, and his brother, J. W., have both lived and preached here, if I have been correctly informed. There is an old church, called "Jericho," a mile or so from town. I would have been afraid to name a congregation "Jericho," but there are some fine brethren meeting there, most of whom are attending the meeting. The people are kind and hospitable, unless something arouses their anger. They are good to attend religious services, rather better than the average. Our meeting is being held in a large school building, which seats about two hundred and fifty people, and it is packed full almost every night. The people come to church principally in two-horse wagons, but nearly always drawn by mules. This is more satisfactory than automobiles or buggies, an account of bad roads. I have tried all methods.

Brother Tolbert Denton, brother to E. C. L. Denton, keeps the post office here. Brother Charles Holder, of Bridgeport, Ala., formerly lived here.

There have been three confessions to date (July 10). Some think there is a possibility of starting regular worship here.

I am trying to get the brethren to read the Gospel Advocate, as I feel sure it will be a great help to the fathers and mothers in bringing up their children, and also a source of strength to themselves. Brethren, as a rule, do not read enough; and many who read do not read enough religious literature. The Gospel Advocate is safe and solid reading.

Atlanta (Ga.) Notes.

BY B. C. GOODPASTURE.

J. B. Beck, who labors with the McGregor, Brunswick, and Summit congregations, reports the work as moving along nicely at these three places. These congregations, with whatever assistance they can get from the outside, are planning to buy a tent for mission work in South Georgia.

Hugh E. Garrett is in the midst of a good meeting near Valdosta, Ga. He recently closed a short meeting at Moultrie, Ga. One was baptized.

Earl C. Smith, one of the teachers in the Dasher Bible College, is preaching for the Macon (Ga.) congregation during the summer months. He is attending the summer School of Mercer University.

Don Hockaday began a tent meeting in Lakewood Heights last Sunday night (July 9). The meeting starts off with fine interest. Brother Hockaday reports one restoration on the first Sunday in this month and one by statement yesterday at South Pryor Street.

Yesterday was a great day at West End Avenue. Besides having a fine audience, three were restored and one was baptized. Our Bible-school attendance has grown until we do not have sufficient room for our classes.

On the third Sunday in this month I am booked to begin a meeting at Lynnville, Tenn.

Good Themes for Prayer Meeting.

The following themes made the midweek meetings at Grace Church, Sioux City, Iowa, unusually interesting. The main subject was: "Things Pertaining to the Kingdom."

"Things Hard to Be Understood." (2 Pet. 3: 16.) A study of the kingdom mysteries.

"Things Which Cannot Be Shaken." (Heb. 12: 27.) A study of the fundamentals.

"Things Lawful, But Not Expedient." (1 Cor. 6: 12.) A study of the power of example.

"Things Which Are New; Things Which Are Old." (Matt. 13: 52.) A study of the charms of the Bible.

"Things Which Accompany Salvation." (Heb. 6: 9.) A study of the riches of Christian experience.

"Things Which Are Impossible." (Luke 18: 27.) A study of human limitations.

TRACTS AND BOOKLETS.

The following tracts and booklets can be had from the Gospel Advocate Company:

The Establishment of the Kingdom (L. R. Sewell)05
Modern Geology Rebuked (I. N. Jones)05
Faith that Qualifies for Baptism (Durst-McQuiddy)10
Instrumental Music in the Service of God (D. Lipscomb)	Free
Theological Grub Ax (W. L. Butler)10
Church Organization (E. G. Sewell)	Free
Walking by Faith (Kurfees)05
Sincerity Seeking the Way to Heaven (B. Franklin)05
Review of John B. Cowden's Tract on Instrumental Music in the Church (Kurfees)	Free
Searching the Scriptures (T. Fanning)10
Christian Eldership (Scobey)10
Is Salvation Conditional? (Dalton-Burnett)15
Doctrine of Sanctification (Carr)10
Bible Doctrine of Sanctification (Elam)10
Stark-Warlick Debate50
Theological Debate (Bretns-Herod)25
Out of Darkness into Light (Z. T. Winfree)05
Philip Worthy (Debet)25

Many other tracts are in the office for distribution. They are good for use in protracted meetings. Address Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Query Department

John D. Coleman wishes to know if a church should have a treasurer, and, if so, by whom should he be appointed. If a church has a treasury, it must have a treasurer. David Lipscomb gave this subject a very thorough examination, which I am copying from "Queries and Answers," pages 85-88, for the benefit of our readers:

It is singular to me how a doubt about this can arise in the mind of any sane man. God's people always had a treasury. Its fullness and use were always the tests of fidelity to God. Among the Jews the first fruits, the tenth, the freewill offerings and the thank offerings, and all the devoted things taken in war went into the treasury. (Read Lev. 27: 30-32; Num. 18: 26; Deut. 14: 22-24; 1 Chron. 29: 8; Ez. 2: 69; Neh. 7: 70; etc. Then in Mal. 3: 8-11 God charged them with robbing him in withholding the tithes from his treasury. "Jesus sat over against the treasury," and saw the rich cast in their much and the poor widow cast in her all. (Mark 12: 41-44.) It was not lawful to put the blood money of Judas into the treasury. (Matt. 27: 6.) Jesus and the disciples had a treasury out of which they paid for things needed in the worship of God and gave to the poor. (John 13: 27-29.) Then in the first church at Jerusalem they "had all things common." (Acts 2: 44.) "Neither was there any among them that lacked: for as many as were possessors of lands or houses sold them, and brought the prices of the things that were sold, and laid them down at the apostles' feet: and distribution was made unto every man according as he had need." (Acts 4: 34, 35.) This means a common treasury from which the poor were helped under the direction of the apostles. The apostles could not give needed attention to the distribution of the treasury, so they appointed seven persons to do this. (Acts 6: 1-6.) The first fruit of an earnest church was a full treasury, and these men were appointed to distribute it. These are generally supposed to be deacons, and without a treasury there is no work for deacons in a church.

"And the disciples, every man according to his ability, determined to send relief unto the brethren that dwelt in Judea: which also they did, sending it to the elders by the hand of Barnabas and Saul." (Acts 11: 29, 30.) It does not say it was first gathered into the church treasury, but it was sent to the elders of the churches and constituted a treasury under the elders of the churches in Judea until it was distributed to the poor. From proceedings in similar cases, we may know it was first collected into the treasury of the churches before sent by Barnabas and Saul. Afterwards there was widespread famine throughout Judea. "Now concerning the collection for the saints, as I gave order to the churches of Galatia, so also do ye." (1 Cor. 16: 1.) The order had been given to the churches of Galatia, and is now given to the church at Corinth and throughout Achaia, to raise contributions. These contributions were cast into the treasury, that no collections should be made when Paul came. Then the churches were to choose those they desired to carry their bounty to the church at Jerusalem. "Moreover, brethren, we make known to you the grace of God which hath been given in the churches of Macedonia." (2 Cor. 8: 1.) He tells this grace of these churches were the contributions they gave of their own accord to help the poor. The churches were doing this. "And we have sent together with him the brother whose praise in the gospel is spread through all the churches: and not only so, but who was also appointed by the churches to travel with us in the matter of this grace, which is ministered by us." (Verses 18, 19.) Those who were sent out to gather up and carry this collection—they "are the messengers of the churches, they are the glory of Christ." (Verse 23.) This collection was made by and in the churches by putting it into the treasury. The churches chose those who carried it to the needy, called "the messengers of the churches." None of this could be done unless the churches had treasuries to receive and dispense.

Paul says: "I robbed other churches, taking wages of them." (2 Cor. 11: 8.) Churches could not pay wages unless they had a treasury out of which to pay them. He says the church at Corinth was "inferior to other churches," in that he had not been chargeable to them; other churches had supported him. (See 2 Cor. 12: 13.) "When I departed from Macedonia, no church had fellowship with me in the matter of giving and receiving but ye only; for even in Thessalonica ye sent once and again unto my need."

(Phil. 4: 15, 16.) The churches sent to him to relieve his necessities. Churches could do these things only through church treasuries. Paul says: "Let none be enrolled as a widow [to be supported by the church] under threescore years old." (1 Tim. 5: 9.) "If any woman that believeth hath widows, let her relieve them, and let not the church be burdened; that it may relieve them that are widows indeed." (Verse 16.) All these, as plain as words and deeds can, show these churches not only had treasuries, but they cannot do any of the real work of a church of God without a treasury. A church that has no treasury is not a church of God.

I have been careful to note these statements and facts because I believe the calling in question these things that are so plainly taught and that enter into the whole work of a church of God indicates a morbid state of mind and hinders instead of helps the church. The agitation of this and kindred questions diverts the mind from the vital work of churches of God, and will destroy churches that encourage such questions. Paul says: "But him that is weak in faith receive ye, but not to doubtful disputations." (Rom. 14: 1.) He shows the doubtful disputations are over untaught questions, such as eating herbs or meat. It means that men who have trouble on these questions are weak in the faith, and in receiving them they are to be prohibited from troubling the church with the discussion of these questions. The discussion of such questions diverts the mind from the true work of the church, and, if kept up, will destroy any church. Men who call in question plainly revealed truths and facts, as the treasury in the church, are perverted in faith; and the agitation of such questions, if kept up, will ruin any church in the world, and the man who does it makes himself a factionist that ought to be checked or avoided.

The treasurer should be chosen by the church. Those selected to handle or distribute the funds of the church are usually deacons, as in Acts 6: 1-6.

✱ ✱ ✱

A brother who requests that his name be not given to the public says: "My wife and I cannot get along together, so separate. After separation I commit fornication; does that destroy the union? Can I marry another woman without committing adultery? My wife dies; can I marry again without committing adultery?"

If husband and wife cannot live together in peace, they may live in separation without sin. "But unto the married I give charge, yea not I, but the Lord, That the wife depart not from her husband (but should she depart, let her remain unmarried, or else be reconciled to her husband); and that the husband leave not his wife." (1 Cor. 7: 10, 11.) Though living in separation, when the man committed fornication, he broke the marriage vow and gave his wife the scriptural right to marry again. (See Matt. 19: 9; Rom. 7: 3.) You have already committed adultery, but would be committing it the second time to marry another woman, and would cause her to commit adultery. The death of the wife gives freedom from the law of marriage. "For the woman that hath a husband is bound by law to the husband while he liveth; but if the husband die, she is discharged from the law of the husband." (Rom. 7: 2.)

Publishers' Items.

Send us a new subscriber to-day for the Gospel Advocate. Price, $2 a year, in advance.

Write us to-day for sample copies of The Young People for boys and girls. The price is in reach of all.

If you know of any congregation not now using our Bible Lesson Helps and will send us the address, we will gladly furnish them sample copies.

If you have friends who are not subscribers to the Gospel Advocate, kindly furnish us their names and addresses so that we may send them sample copies.

"Questions Answered," by David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell, should have a place in every library. Those who have seen and examined it closely are highly pleased with it. Cloth bound; 700 pages. Price, $3, postpaid.

Home Reading

What Did You Do?

Did you give him a lift? He's a brother of man,
And bearing about all the burden he can.
Did you give him a smile? He was downcast and blue,
And the smile would have helped him to battle it through.
Did you give him your hand? He was slipping downhill,
And the world, so I fancied, was using him ill.
Did you give him a word? Did you show him the road,
Or did you just let him go on with his load?

Did you help him along? He's a man just like you,
But the grasp of your hand might have carried him through.

Did you bid him good cheer? Just a word and a smile
Were what he most needed that last weary mile.
Do you know what he bore in that burden of cares
That is every brother's load and that sympathy shares?
Did you try to find out what he needed from you,
Or did you just leave him to battle it through?

Do you know what it means to be losing the fight,
When a lift just in time might set everything right?
Do you know what it means—just the clasp of a hand,
When a man's borne about all a man ought to stand?
Did you ask what it was—why the quivering lip
And the glistening tears down the pale cheek that slip?
Were you brother of his when the time came to be?
Did you offer to help him, or didn't you see?

Don't you know it's the part of a brother of man
To find where grief is and help when you can?
Did you stop when he asked you to give him a lift,
Or were you so busy you left him to shift?
O, I know what you meant—what you say may be true;
But the test of your manhood is, What did you do?
Did you reach out a hand? Did you find him the road,
Or did you just let him go by with his load?

—Selected.

✱ ✱ ✱

He Needs You.

It would be a great thing if every father might have the awakening which came to a great banker in one of our leading cities. He was the father of an only son on whom he spent money with a lavish hand, but to whom he gave little of his time and attention because of the pressure of business. One day his secretary surprised him by informing him that his son was waiting outside his office to see him. When the boy came into the wonderfully furnished room in which big business was daily transacted, the father had a quick and pleasurable vision of his possible successor in business. Involuntarily his hand reached for the drawer of his desk in which he kept his check book, and he smilingly inquired: "How much do you want, son?" But his smile was quickly changed to tears of remorse and regret as the boy with heart indicated in his eyes and voice stepped up close and, with his arm thrown over his father's shoulder, said: "Dad, I don't need anything but you! I do need you."

Millions of boys in our land need similar help. And some of the cases are getting desperate. Here is a chance for every man to render Christlike service with the boy in his own household or with the lad who does not have a father as a possible source of help in his own home.—Selected.

✱ ✱ ✱

"The Quitter."

It's easy to cry when you're beaten and die,
It's easy to crawl and crawl;
But to fight and fight when hope's out of sight—
Why, that's the best game of them all.
And though you come out of each grueling bout
All broken and beaten and scarred—
Just have one more try. It's dead easy to die;
It's the keeping on living that's hard.

—Selected.

Native Handles in Missionary Axes.

One day when a missionary was preaching in the city of Benares to a crowd that was civil and attentive, a Sepoy Brahmin began to talk to the people.

"Look at those men," he said, pointing to the missionaries, "and see what they are doing."

"They are preaching to us," the people replied.

"True; what has the sahib in his hand?"

"A New Testament."

"Yes, the New Testament. But what is that? I will tell you. It is the gospel ax into which a European handle has been put. There are many of them. If you come to-day, you will find them cutting; if you come to-morrow, you will find them doing the same thing. At what are they cutting? At our noble tree, Hinduism—at our religion. It has taken thousands of years for the tree to take root in the soil of Hindustan; its branches spread all over India; it is a noble, glorious tree. But the missionaries come daily with the gospel ax in their hands. They look at the tree, and the tree looks at them. But it is helpless. The gospel ax is applied, and the tree is large and strong, but it must give way at last."

"True," replied the missionary. "But many a poor handle gets worn out and many a one breaks; and it takes a long time before a new handle is obtained from Europe, and still longer before that handle is prepared and shaped."

"Ah," he answered, "if that were all, it would be well, and the tree would have respite. But what is the real case? No sooner does a handle find that it can no longer swing the ax than it says: 'What am I to do now? I am getting worn out; I can no longer swing the ax; am I to give up cutting? No.' Up goes the ax, down comes the branch; it is soon shaped into a new handle: the European handle is taken out and the native handle fitted in and the swinging commences afresh. At last the tree will be cut down by handles made from its own branches."—From an old scrapbook.

✱ ✱ ✱

The Scriptures.

If there be balm
For the wounded spirit in Gilead, it is there!
Dew in the nighttime of my bitter trouble
Will there be found—"dew sweeter far than that Which hangs like chains of pearl on Hermon hill."
—Edgar Allan Poe.

✱ ✱ ✱

Interest.

In 1897 George Jones borrowed one hundred dollars from Henry R. Stuart. He agreed to pay ten per cent interest a month.

Stuart sues for the principal of the loan, along with accrued interest. He gets a judgment in court at San Jose, Cal., for nearly three hundred and five trillion dollars.

There isn't enough money in the world to pay it.

It's an important incident, though, illustrating the power of compound interest to bring wealth to the thrifty.

Compound interest is the only universal road to financial independence.—Exchange.

✱ ✱ ✱

Success.

I hold that man alone succeeds
Whose life is crowned by noble deeds;
Who feels not dwarfed by nature's show,
But deep within himself doth know
That conscious man is greater far
Than ocean, land, or distant star;
Who does not count his wealth by gold,
His worth by office he may hold;
Who battling 'gainst each seeming wrong,
Can meet disaster with a song,
Feel sure of victory in defeat,
And rise refreshed the foe to meet.
Who only lives the world to bless,
Can never fail—he is success.

—Selected.

Evangelistic Notes

E. A. Elam is in a mission meeting at Ranger, Ga.

B. M. Hall recently held a week's meeting at Ursula, Ark.

Emmett G. Creacy recently held a meeting at Center Point, Ky.

T. C. King began a meeting at Ashland City, Tenn., last Lord's day.

R. L. Ludlam, Fort Smith, Ark., is in a meeting at Hedrick, Iowa.

Thomas H. Burton is planning to begin work with a tent in his territory soon.

B. C. Goodpasture, Atlanta, Ga., began a meeting at Lynnville, Tenn., last Lord's day.

J. V. Armstrong Traylor recently held three meetings in Hamden, Okla., and vicinity.

Ira Womack closed an interesting meeting at Elmore City, Okla., with nineteen baptized.

R. L. Ludlam, 1811 South V Street, Fort Smith, Ark., is in a meeting at Ottumwa, Iowa.

G. A. Dunn, 823 West Tenth Street, Dallas, Texas, is in a fine meeting at Kaufman, Texas.

W. L. Denton, Yuma, Tenn., gave us a pleasant call, and reports the work in Carroll County as doing well.

Charles L. Talley, Hopkinsville, Ky., paid this office a visit on his way to McBroom's Chapel, Putnam County, Tenn.

C. Roy Bixler recently held a meeting at Kansas City, Mo., with nineteen additions, of which four were baptisms.

J. C. Coffman closed a meeting at Pleasant Valley, Ala., July 14, with good crowds, one addition, and one restoration.

G. W. Jarrett has changed his address from Coffeerville, Ala., to Fair Hope, Ala. He began near Fair Hope on last Lord's day.

Flavil Hall, Trion, Ga., recently closed a mission meeting at Moultrie, Ga. They are now worshipping in the City Hall, but are planning to build.

W. T. Hines, Braman, Okla., July 11: "There was another added to the Lord at Blackwell, Okla. The work there is growing rapidly."

B. F. Stivers, Portsmouth, Ohio, will change his residence to Odessa, Mo., about the middle of August. He will go anywhere for a meeting. Keep him busy.

L. R. Wilson recently closed a meeting at Hickory Ridge, Ark., with six baptisms. He is in a meeting at Bethesda, Ark. E. R. Harper has been leading the singing.

R. P. Cuff and Noel B. Cuff paid this office a pleasant call. R. P. began a meeting at Fairfield, Tenn., last Lord's day; while Noel B. began a meeting near Baxter, Tenn., on that day.

W. D. Bills, Quanah, Texas, closed a meeting at Childress, Texas, on July 10, with twenty-nine added—twenty-seven by baptism. Three were Catholics. He is now in a meeting at Quanah.

A. R. Hill, Charleston, Miss., preached at Central Academy on the second Lord's day in July, both morning and evening, also Saturday night before. He reports one baptism and the outlook bright.

H. D. Jeffcoat reports a meeting at Kitchener, Miss., T. C. Fox preaching. He says: "We pray God's blessings on the Christians of Nashville for sending us such a tireless worker. I go to Hamilton for a meeting."

C. D. Crouch, Ashland City, Tenn., was in a good meeting at Bull Run, Davidson County, Tenn., when last heard from. He is to begin a meeting at Clarksburg, Tenn., on July 23, and one at Marrowbone on August 3.

Noel B. Cuff and Stevie L. Colley were united in matrimony at the home of the bride's parents. R. P. Cuff performed the ceremony. The Gospel Advocate extends its congratulations and wishes of much happiness.

Will J. Cullum, Rockwood, Tenn., recently closed a meeting of fifteen nights, with no baptisms, but fine interest.

He is now at old Union, near Carrollton, Miss. Later he is to assist George W. Farmer at Reid Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

Charles Holder, Bridgeport, Ala., recently conducted a successful meeting at Chattanooga, Tenn. There were twenty-three baptisms and fourteen restorations. Also, he held a meeting at his home church, with eight baptized and one restored.

G. A. Dunn, Jr., Gainesville, Texas, July 10: "For the past three Sundays I have had baptizing after the night services. The crowds for the regular services have become so large that an overflow service has been arranged for this coming Thursday night."

Allen Phy, Algood, Tenn., made us a pleasant call. He is busy preaching, largely in destitute places. He recently set in order a congregation in Cumberland County, Tenn. We need more men like Brother Phy, who are willing to go into virgin fields.

Mrs. W. J. Leverett, Baird, Texas: "I think the Gospel Advocate is the best paper I have read. It comes next to the Bible with me. I have taken the paper for a long time, and cannot find a religious paper that compares with it. It should be in every home."

Tom Nix, Nashville, Tenn., is leading the song service in the meeting at Fairfield. Brother Nix will take subscriptions for the Gospel Advocate and handle the books from this office. Any encouragement given him will be appreciated by the Gospel Advocate Company.

Joe Ratcliffe, Bardwell, Ky.: "I will begin a meeting at State Line, Ky., on the third Lord's day, to continue one week. On account of two of my meetings being cancelled, I have the third and fourth Sundays in August and the third and fourth Sundays in September open for meetings."

R. L. Colley, Fulton, Ky., closed an eight-days' meeting at McConnell on the second Lord's day in July, with an overflowing house. Seven were baptized. He is now in a mission meeting at Bethel Springs, Tenn. He is engaged for meetings through July and August. On September 1 he is to begin work with the church at Paragould, Ark., for another year. Address him at present at Fulton, Ky., Route 2.

David Bryant, Bradford, Tenn., July 4: "H. M. Phillips' meeting at Estill Springs, Tenn., closed on June 30, with the largest crowd in years in attendance. A great number from the denominations came almost every service. The attendance at the day services grew to be almost as large as at night. The gospel was preached in a forceful and intelligent way that will not cause offense. There were three additions."

The new catalogue of Freed-Hardeman College for 1922-1923 is just off the press of the McQuiddy Printing Company. We have printed the catalogue for this institution for many years. The school has done great good in the past and promises great things for the future. This school has been established to promote Christian education. Boys and girls wishing to fit themselves for usefulness would do well to investigate the merits of this college. See advertisement in this paper.

J. E. Wainwright, Texarkana, Ark.: "One week at De Queen, Ark., resulted in five additions—three by primary obedience; all married and good material. The little band, now numbering twenty-five, meets regularly in the Cumberland Presbyterian building. They have undergone much persecution within and without in the past year or two, but their devotion is achieving success. I shall begin at Boyd, Ark., July 25. I shall be in an open-air meeting the first twelve days in September with the Central congregation at this place."

A. S. Landis writes: "L. L. Yeagley began a meeting with the Allen's Chapel (Needmore) church of Christ, June 25, and closed on July 5. This meeting was greatly hindered on account of the weather. One night we were rained out, not one being able to get to the meetinghouse. Many times threatening clouds came up just at the time people should be starting to the meeting place. Seasons had been such that the farmers were unusually busy; and, too, there was some sickness among the most regular attendants. Brother Yeagley preached the gospel without fear or favor, which I am sure is characteristic of him, but they seemed to get interested rather than offended. He has a unique way of sending these shots in a spirit of love. Our interest grew from the start, and Brother Yeagley endeared himself to those that heard him. The congregation will be glad to have him back sometime. Two were baptized."

F. W. Smith began a meeting at Gamaliel, Ky., last Lord's day.

J. C. Mosley reports the work at Cave, Tenn., as progressing nicely.

Harvey W. Riggs is in a meeting at Mount Gilead, near Tompkinsville, Ky.

Charles R. Brewer is in a meeting at Smyrna, Tenn., with two baptisms to date.

D. F. Draper closed a good meeting at Wood Chapel, near Victoria, Texas, with nine added.

Those desiring a song leader between July 23 and August 20 should write Hubert A. Dixon, Dellrose, Tenn.

R. V. Cawthon recently conducted a twelve-days' meeting at Manchester, Tenn. Twelve baptisms are reported.

H. M. Phillips, Chattanooga, Tenn., is in a good meeting at Tyner, Tenn. He will begin at Mount Juliet on July 18.

J. H. Hines has just closed a meeting at Ozark, Ala. Six were baptized. He goes next to Ramer, near Greenville, Ala.

J. O. Barnes is busy evangelizing Miami, Fla., and its suburbs. He should be encouraged, for this sort of work counts.

Harvey W. Riggs, Tompkinsville, Ky., writes that the meeting at Mount Gilead closed because of sickness and weather.

Leslie G. Thomas, Route 1, Melvin, Mich., reports two fine services at the Speaker church on the second Lord's day in this month.

J. V. Armstrong Traylor has just closed his last meeting in Oklahoma at Bearden Springs, near Hugo, Okla., resulting in five additions.

H. A. Rogers, Pumichy, Saskatchewan, Canada, closed a meeting at Wood End, July 9, with one baptism. Good interest throughout.

W. M. Oakley has just closed a meeting at Pleasant View, Tenn. He is now in a meeting at Bethel, near Joelton, in Robertson County, Tenn.

Isaac D. Womack, Huntsville, Ala., tells us that in three meetings in Huntsville, in recent months, they have had one hundred and seven additions.

"Peloubet's Select Notes" on the Sunday-school lessons includes all the lessons for 1922. Have you a copy? The price has been reduced from $2 to $1.25.

Allen Phy recently held two short meetings in Cumberland County, Tenn.—one at Newton, with one baptism, and one at Flynn's Cove, with three baptisms.

"Hardeman's Tabernacle Sermons" are being mailed to those out of the city who have paid for them. Let all who have not please mail check, and they will be sent.

A. B. Gunter recently closed a six-days' meeting on Forty-eight Creek, Wayne County, Tenn., with one baptism. He commends the work of H. N. Mann in his vicinity.

Aruna Clark, Miami, Fla., July 10: "I began work with the church here yesterday, with two fine services and the outlook good. J. O. Barnes is in a good tent meeting here."

C. H. Smithson, Hatfield, Ark., recently held a meeting at Bloomburg, Texas. It is a hard place, and no additions are reported. He is now in a meeting at his home. He goes next to Dierks, Ark.

M. S. Mason, Springfield, Mo., closed a meeting at Hoyt, Mo., recently, with six additions. He was at Shiloh, near Dexter, Mo., when last heard from. He is now at Rector, Ark., for two weeks.

T. J. Berry, Connor, Texas: "Harvey Scott has just closed a meeting at my home. I closed at Huntsville, Texas, with thirteen baptized. I am here in a meeting now, with three baptisms to date. I go next to Elkhart."

L. E. Pryor, St. Elmo, Tenn., is to begin a meeting at Poplar Hill, Ky., on the fourth Lord's day in July. Brother Pryor is a faithful gospel preacher, and we are sure the church at Poplar Hill will be pleased with him.

J. J. Vanhoutin, Paris, Ill., who has passed his eightieth birthday and who has been an active Christian for fifty-seven years, commends The Young People and states that he appreciates the visits of the Gospel Advocate each week.

A. T. Hamiter, Dothan, Ala., closed a meeting at Jellico last Lord's day and began at Pryorsburg, Ky., on July 18. He has time for a meeting in Kentucky before returning to Florida. Address him at Wingo, Ky., care of T. F. Bullock.

Vernon Rozar, Watertown, Tenn., reports that the churches where he goes are growing and doing something besides meeting on the first day of the week. He began a meeting at Grant on July 16, and asks the cooperation of near-by churches.

H. H. Adamson, Lewisburg, Tenn., July 12: "The work here moves on harmoniously. We are expecting C. R. Nichol to be with us in a meeting the first half of September. I leave next week for two meetings in Virginia—at Christiansburg and New Salem."

J. O. Barnes, 402 Northeast Thirty-fourth Street, Miami, Fla.: "Miss Eunice Logan and Mr. Nikola Winkelman were married at the home of the bride's mother at Miami, surrounded by many friends. The ceremony was performed by the writer. Both are fine young people."

Will W. Slater, Fort Smith, Ark., July 10: "The meeting at Belton, Texas, closed last night, with thirteen baptized and two restored. I shall long remember my stay with them. My next meeting will be at Emerson, Ark.; next, at Tenaha, Texas; and then to Floyd."

R. C. White closed a meeting at Bethany, Robertson County, Tenn., July 13, with fine attendance and interest, resulting in two baptisms. He reports one confession at Reid Avenue, this city, last Lord's day. He will begin at Hornbeak on July 21, closing on August 1.

C. H. Smithson, Hatfield, Ark., July 11: "Our meeting is in progress here at home, with W. O. Jones as song director. I have been preaching here for three years, and this is the best meeting of all. Outsiders are attending. We have had two confessions, one of them my daughter."

R. N. Moody, Albertville, Ala., author of "Eunice Loyd," closed a five-weeks' evangelistic campaign in Gadsden, Ala. The work embraced two tent meetings. There were not many additions, but how can we judge as to results? Brother Moody emphasizes the utility of a tent in evangelizing cities.

Walter L. Brummett, Brownsville, Tenn., July 10: "G. A. Dunn, of Houston, Texas, closed a two-weeks' meeting at this place on July 2, with seven baptisms. We have very strong opposition here, but we feel that great good was accomplished. J. A. Dickey, of Sherman, Texas, led the singing, and did it well."

J. H. Morris, Tuscumbia, Ala.: "A two-weeks' meeting here, conducted by J. H. Horton, assisted by J. C. Graham, of Sheffield, and B. F. Harding, of Florence, has just closed. The attendance was large and the interest was good. Three young ladies were baptized 'the same hour of the night.' We are doing some real mission work in this section. Brother Horton is in a fine meeting at Russellville, Ala."

A note from A. B. Lipscomb reports that he is in a meeting this week at McHenry, Ky. His meeting at Menlo, Ga., closed on July 9, with three baptisms and a good interest throughout. He also reports that, due to the fact that this meeting was supported as a mission meeting, the brethren will be enabled to complete their house. During the Menlo meeting a special sermon was preached to the convicts at the prison camp; about two hundred visitors were present. This was in accord with the Master's teaching.

W. M. Mann, Mount Vernon, Texas, July 10: "I am at Rock Hill in a good meeting. I will be here until July 16. I spent the month of June in Oklahoma. I am to begin at Algeria on July 22. I got a congregation together last year. We are doing fine at home (Holland, Texas). We bought the Woodmen's house, and are trying to get enough help to build a little house to worship in. Please help us. Send to Z. O. Ponder, Holland, Texas. I have time for one more meeting."

E. P. Watson, Dickson, Tenn., July 4: "Our meeting closed on June 23, with thirty-six additions. This is said by the congregation to have been the best meeting in the history of the church. Practically all the additions were heads of families. The house was filled every night, with the largest crowds we have ever had for the day services. I believe every member tried to do his best. Brother Hardeman was at his best. While we are all rejoicing over the meeting, we are made sad by having to give up one of the very best families to be found anywhere—Oury Harris (one of the elders) and his family, who are moving to Nashville. Brother Harris is a most excellent man and can preach a splendid sermon. I wish to commend this most excellent family to the Christians in Nashville."

We are very glad to have Brother Harris come to our city, and hope to become better acquainted.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

The Waxahachie Meeting et al.

BY JOHN E. DUNN.

I wish to exonerate Brother Jesse P. Sewell from all responsibility for the Waxahachie meeting except his preaching. I think it is unjust to hold him to account for anything of or connected with the meeting except his teaching. I think he had one of the very finest opportunities to set forth the principles of New Testament Christianity. As to how well he did it, only those who heard him can judge. I have expressed my opinion of his series of sermons.

I hold that wherever there is common ground on which any number of disciples can conscientiously stand and work together, it is right for them thus to work together. Moreover, whenever one of my brethren, whom I believe in error on some points, yet on many others he is scriptural, does the very things I do, I permit him to do these things I am doing with me. I encourage him to do the scriptural things that I do. I think it the better course to see how nearly we can get together instead of how far apart we can get. I believe it the part of wisdom to cultivate the good and the true. I am not an iconoclast. Yes, I call on men who are disciples to do what I do and what they also do that we both believe the Lord teaches us to do. I mean such things as sing, pray, partake of the Lord's Supper, offer thanks for the emblems, take a confession, baptize, and maybe some other things. Why not? It did not make any difference with me who asked my son if he believed Jesus Christ was the Son of God. The point I was interested in was that he believed it. Where is the man who never calls on any one to pray and never prays with anybody but his own peculiar brand? If this is not sectarianism gone to seed, I don't know what sectarianism is. In reality it is Phariseeism. Every preacher known to me under some circumstances prays with and calls on others than his own brand. Very recently one preacher in an article quoted Rom. 16: 17: "Mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned: and turn away from them." He made the same application of it that Brother Nichol does, and Brother Nichol thinks I disobeyed it in the Waxahachie meeting. I sat in the audience of this same preacher since Christmas and saw and heard him call on an unimmersed Presbyterian preacher to lead parts of his services. At the close of his sermon, this being the last night of the meeting, he publicly thanked and praised the Presbyterian preacher for his support and encouragement in this meeting. The Presbyterian preacher returned the compliment. I am told that Brother Nichol sometimes prays with sectarians, and they sometimes lead parts of services in which Brother Nichol participates. "Consistency, thou art a jewel." I am not trying to be consistent. I am trying to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth. I am deeply interested in the unity of all God's people, in truth and righteousness, and in preaching the gospel all over the world. My only purpose in the Waxahachie meeting was to do what I could toward the unity of the disciples of Christ into one body and the salvation of souls. I thought I saw an opportunity. I pursued the course that has been my policy for years. That is, first, to cultivate a friendly spirit; second, to put before the people the foundation principles governing loyalty to God and acceptable worship and service; third, to take up specifically and definitely the things that divide us. I have done this in the past at other places in numerous instances with fine effect. But I never had the fight made on me that I have here in Waxahachie. However, "I am going to fight this thing out, if it takes all summer to do it."

Concerning what Brother Nichol has to say about my "partial reply," union meeting, why did he rush into print, withholding some things, consistency, serious mistake, incalculable harm has been done, desire to help the Lord out, drive the Lord out, desire to accomplish big things often blinds man, et cetera, of this nature, I do not care to comment.

As I before wrote, so write I again: "Let us lay aside all personalities and, for the sake of a clearer understanding of the truth, dig at these two vital principles in order that we may pursue the right course in our teaching and in our methods of dealing with error." These two principles are: "What is the New Testament church? and methods of dealing with error and erring brethren." I believe Brother Nichol is conscientious. I know I am. There are two vital principles which I have named underlying the courses of action of both Brother Nichol and me. I have known for some time that my conception of the New Testament church differed from Brother Nichol's conception, and that my conception of what should be my relationship and duty toward those whom Brother Nichol calls "digressives" was different from Brother Nichol's conception. All of our disagreement grows out of our different conceptions of these two fundamental principles. Our courses of action are governed by these conceptions. Herein lies the crux of the whole affair. Our conceptions of how we should deal with error and erring brethren depend very largely on our conceptions of what is the New Testament church and who are our brethren? I shall defer having anything more to say on methods of dealing with error and erring brethren until later in another article.

I am no more interested in Brother Nichol personally than I am in all others who may read this discussion. My mind is not specially centered on "setting him right." Instead of my anxiety being centered on him, I am deeply interested in the unity of all Christians. I am anxious that we "keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." "There is one body." I am not worrying about my reputation. I am interested in truth and righteousness and the extension of the kingdom of God from the rivers to the ends of the earth.

In the early part of the nineteenth century a movement was set on foot to "restore primitive (New Testament) Christianity." That movement gained momentum. Thousands gave up their creeds, laid down their unscriptural practices and human names. Many thousands more embraced Christianity, pure and simple. This movement moved gloriously on until Satan got in his deadly work, divided and scattered the disciples of Christ into warring factions. Now let me say with emphasis, I believe I see a little coterie of disciples in this twentieth century crystallizing themselves into an intolerant sect under the label, The church of Christ. Some of us in a mad rush back to Jerusalem run headlong into Jericho.

No, "Brother Dunn did not go on record before the people as recognizing the Main Street Christian Church as a body of worshippers on an equal footing with the College Street church of Christ." Neither "did he give his approval of them." "Brother Dunn" has more than once from the pulpit told the disciples worshipping at College Street that they were not the church of Christ. Neither are the disciples of the "Main Street Christian Church" either a church of Christ or the church of Christ. There is no one congregation of disciples in Waxahachie that is the church of Christ in Waxahachie.

Several years ago a movement was started to restore the New Testament church in Waxahachie. Disciples were gathered together and others were converted. Fairly good progress was made in the right direction until some preachers came along who introduced and persuaded the brethren to use the organ and societies. A few quit and for several years had no certain meeting place. There was no "withdrawal or turning out of the church." Some fifteen years ago J. S. Dunn and G. A. Dunn came to Waxahachie with a tent, conducted a meeting, baptized some, called together all the disciples they could, and started another movement to restore primitive Christianity.

For two years I have been working with these disciples of Christ, preaching and teaching publicly and from house to house. I have done everything I could conscientiously do to reach those disciples in and about the city who do not worship with "us." I have tried to reach those of the "Main Street Christian Church," and even Methodists and Presbyterians and other folks. I have tried to set forth unto the people the New Testament church, with her work, worship, and service. I have made many mistakes, and my efforts are poor, but I believe I am headed in the right direction. Talking to a group of preachers one time, Brother F. B. Srygley said: "John Dunn and Will Blank neither one preaches the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. I believe John Dunn tries; but Will Blank does not try to preach the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth." That thought has done me a lot of good.

One of my greatest difficulties in Waxahachie is that some of the disciples of "the College Street Church" believe they are the church of Christ in Waxahachie. One of "our" leaders in a public speech a few days ago said, "We know we are it," meaning the church of Christ. Such a conception of the Lord's church and the Lord's work makes people sectarians, selfish and intolerant. Brother Tant and Brother Nichol come along and whoop them up.

I wish to ask Brother Nichol three questions. Are all the members of the "Main Street Christian Church" a church of Christ in Waxahachie? Are they the church of Christ in Waxahachie? Are they or any of them in the church of Christ in Waxahachie? Brother Nichol says: "I [C. R. Nichol] refer to the College Street Church as the church of Christ in Waxahachie." Let Brother Nichol quote one passage from the New Testament and give chapter and verse that teaches this. Brother Nichol labors through more than a column in the Gospel Advocate to establish this use of the phrase, the church of Christ, but he cannot cite one passage to prove it. I am talking about the church of Christ in a given city, as, for an instance, Brother Nichol's use of the phrase, "the church of Christ in Waxahachie."

Yes, sir, "Brother Dunn" says that the College Street church of Christ in Waxahachie is not "the church of Christ in Waxahachie." I repeat: "The body of Christ in Waxahachie is divided. Part of the Christians worship at one place and part at another. A good many of them are scattered about and worship nowhere regularly. Some of us are trying to set forth unto the public the New Testament church with her worship and service and bring all of us together and become one in Christ," laying aside all doctrines and practices of men. In the midst of such Babylonian confusion, Brother Nichol is making it mighty hard for us by helping a little coterie of the disciples to crystallize themselves into an intolerant sect under the label, "church of Christ." They think they have it down pat and say, "We know we are it." We have a lamentable condition in Waxahachie. The body of Christ is torn into shreds and left bleeding at every pore. Such a state of affairs makes heaven mourn, makes angels weep, makes Christ hang his head in grief, and it makes my soul sick.

Yes, "Brother Dunn" says, anything in the way of a religious body in Waxahachie that is smaller than the whole family of God in Waxahachie or larger than the whole family of God in the same place is either too small or too large," and Brother Nichol sets down chapters and verses of twenty-eight passages in the New Testament that prove it. In every instance in the New Testament where the church in the named city is mentioned, "church" includes all the saved in that city. Cite one passage, Brother Nichol, where the church in the city named is either smaller or larger than the whole family of God in that city. Now let us quote Brother Nichol's passages that prove what I am teaching. "Now there were at Antioch, in the church that was there." (Acts 13: 1.) "Were gathered with the church; . . . and the disciples were called Christians first in Antioch." (Acts 11: 26.) "Appointed for them elders in every church" in the cities of Derbe, Lystra, Iconium, and Antioch. (Acts 14: 23.) "When he had landed at Cesarea, he went up and saluted the church." (Acts 18: 22.) It is not necessary to quote further. The reader may read every passage in the New Testament that mentions the church in a city, and he will find that the word "church" in that city includes the whole family of God in that city, no more and no less. Brother Nichol's trouble is that he thinks that only those who believe and practice as he does are in the church. Hear him: "I [C. R. Nichol] refer to the College Street Church as the church of Christ in Waxahachie."

That all who read these may know what I teach on this subject, I here quote what I wrote in my article in the Gospel Advocate of June 15, page 569, column one, paragraph one: "What is the body of Christ in Waxahachie? It is composed of all Christians, all who have been baptized into Christ, in Waxahachie. 'Are ye ignorant that all we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?' (Rom. 6: 3.) 'For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ.' (Gal. 3: 27.) 'In one Spirit were we all baptized into one body.' (1 Cor. 12: 13.) 'Now ye are the body of Christ, and severally members thereof.' (Verse 27.) 'For as the body is one, and hath many members, and all the members of the body, being many, are one body; so also is Christ.' (Verse 12.) The body of Christ is the church. (Eph. 1: 22, 23; Col. 1: 18, 24.) The body of Christ in Waxahachie is divided. Part of the Christians worship at one place and part at another. A good many of them are scattered about and worship nowhere regularly. . . . Anything in the way of a religious body in Waxahachie that is smaller than the whole family of God in Waxahachie or larger than the whole family of God in the same place is either too small or too large. In speaking of the church there, any language that leaves out even one member or takes in one who has not been baptized into the body is sectarian. God help us to see clearly, act wisely and faithfully and in the Spirit of our Savior, so that we may become one in Christ and 'keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace.'"

[Space forbids Brother Nichol's reply following Brother Dunn's article. Brother Nichol's reply will appear next week.—H. Leo B.]

✻ ✻ ✻

Personal Notes.

Lee P. Mansfield closed in Mill Creek, Okla., with one baptism and one restored.

T. W. Phillips closed a meeting in Leona, Texas, with three baptized and three restored.

C. W. Ing closed near Madisonville, Texas, with twenty-four additions to the congregation.

C. G. Vincent, who labors with the church in Corsicana, Texas, reports that the meeting at that place with home folk resulted in six baptisms and two others added to the congregation.

John I. Reagan, 108 East Ninth Street, closed a meeting with the church in Ben Franklin, Texas, with a very fine interest. There were ten baptisms, two of the number from the Baptist Church. Brother Reagan may be had for a meeting, if he is engaged at once.

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 217-219 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

Evangelize the World.

BY J. O. M'Q.

Our time in which to work the works of God is short. Christ says: "We must work the works of him that sent me, while it is day: the night cometh, when no man can work." (John 9: 4.) When the divine philanthropy had accomplished its work and all authority in heaven and on earth had been given unto Christ, he said: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you; and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matt. 28: 19, 20.) In obedience to this command, the apostles preached the gospel to every creature under heaven. "Yea, verily, their sound went out into all the earth, and their words unto the ends of the world." (Rom. 10: 18.) Christ died "to present you holy and without blemish and unreprouvable before him: if so be that ye continue in the faith, grounded and steadfast, and not moved away from the hope of the gospel which ye heard, which was preached in all creation under heaven; whereof I Paul was made a minister." (Col. 1: 22, 23.) The apostles did not preach the gospel to every creature on the habitable earth at that time by contending with each other over the order of worship or a method of teaching, but they devoted themselves to vigorously preaching the gospel which is God's power unto salvation. When we see brethren contending over teaching a class, or teaching literature, or passing around the contribution basket, or the order of worship, or keeping a record of membership, or about a woman modestly and quietly teaching the word of God, one would naturally conclude that these things are the gospel of Christ! The brethren, instead of proclaiming the gospel, are destroying one another! When they get through fighting and devouring one another, they have no strength left to fight the devil. Verily, the language of Christ applies to them: "Woe unto you, scribes and Pharisees, hypocrites! for ye tithe mint and anise and cummin, and have left undone the weightier matters of the law, justice, and mercy, and faith: but these ye ought to have done, and not to have left the other undone." (Matt. 23: 23.) Preachers, instead of devoting the best that is in them to the great work of preaching the gospel, are surmising evil of their brethren, talking and writing about things of which they are wholly uninformed. We may say of such a person, he "teacheth a different doctrine, and consenteth not to sound words, even the words of our Lord Jesus Christ, and to the doctrine which is according to godliness; he is puffed up, knowing nothing, but doting about questionings and disputes of words, whereof cometh envy, strife, railings, evil surmisings, wranglings of men corrupted in mind and bereft of the truth, supposing that godliness is a way of gain." (1 Tim. 6: 3-5.) Some men advise old men who have a record of positive work for the Lord to abandon the work and turn it over to another! But none of these things move the faithful. Such evil praters lived in the day of the beloved John. He says: "I wrote somewhat unto the church: but Diotrephes, who loveth to have the preëminence among them, receiveth us not. Therefore, if I come, I will bring to remembrance his works which he doeth, prating against us with wicked words: and not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and them that would he forbiddeth and casteth them out of the church." (3 John 9, 10.) Lust for preëminence has ruined many a man! Humility leads to usefulness and happiness.

But it is unpleasant to dwell on this dark picture! Let us turn to something more cheerful and refreshing.

The Savior warned and admonished his disciples: "Behold, I send you forth as sheep in the midst of wolves: be ye therefore wise as serpents, and harmless as doves." (Matt. 10: 16.) Christ would have us wise and inoffensive disciples. The wise man is he who hears and does the sayings of Christ. The wise virgins were those who carried oil in their vessels along with their lamps.

Let us use wisdom in the location and structure of our meetinghouses. Christians often display no wisdom in selecting a site for a meetinghouse. Often they select a spot in an obscure and undesirable part of the city or town. A poorly ventilated house which is not adapted to the needs of the congregation is erected on the site. Such a lack of wisdom may set back the cause of Christ for fifty years in any place!

Let us cease to speak against each other and to argue over nonessentials, and put on an aggressive campaign for Christ. Souls are perishing for the bread of life. Alabama, Mississippi, and Georgia are all splendid mission fields. Every preacher should decide right now to hold as many mission meetings as possible during the next twelve months. Go out among the people who have never heard the gospel. The audiences may not be so large as when you are preaching to the churches, but you will preach to more outsiders and will have a splendid opportunity to convert people to the truth. The churches of Christ should resolve to sow the seed of the kingdom broadcast. The seed should not all be sown in one spot. The churches are drifting more and more to the "pastor system" and not heeding the command to go into all the world. The church is the light of the world, the salt of the earth, and the pillar and ground of the truth. Every church should endeavor to preach the gospel to more people. It should not wait for the people to come to it, but should go to them. Let the churches and preachers go out into the highways and hedges and constrain them to come in, that the church of God may be full. Give us an active, aggressive campaign for Christ.

Carry the gospel to more people. Back to the apostolic method! We would be glad to have a number of our writers stress the importance of more positive and aggressive work. "Then saith he unto his disciples, The harvest indeed is plenteous, but the laborers are few. Pray ye therefore the Lord of the harvest, that he send forth laborers into his harvest." (Matt. 9: 37, 38.)

Inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures.

BY H. LEO B.

Those who are familiar with the Old Testament Scriptures know that they claim to be inspired. A few observations along this line will be in order. It will help in the study of this question to know the nature of the claim to inspiration and just what weight may be given to the claim. It should be observed that no claim in the Old Testament Scriptures for their inspiration is made covering the whole of the thirty-nine books, for the simple reason that the Old Testament was not bound in one complete volume at the time that the writers of the Old Testament were speaking; but the individual books of the Old Testament Scriptures do make a claim to inspiration. The New Testament Scriptures make the claim for the whole of the Old Testament Scriptures.

The inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures may be determined, in part, at least, from the character of the material found therein. The law of Moses claims to have divine authority; in fact, the very nature of the law bears evidence of divine authority. Aside from the revisions that it has undergone, its codifications, and the different editings of it, still there is enough in the very nature of the law and the subject-matter with which it deals to bear strong evidence of its inspiration. Again, the prophetic literature of the Old Testament claims to come by inspiration; in fact, the prophets are the inspired men, par excellence, of the Old Testament. In addition to the future to which they point, they are very reliable historians. No history can compare with sacred history in truthfulness, accuracy, and authority. There are facts recorded and events narrated which could have been given only by inspiration.

The testimony of the writers of the Old Testament Scriptures have much weight. Moses, the accredited writer of the Pentateuch, says: "I will raise them up a prophet from among their brethren, like unto thee; and I will put my words in his mouth, and he shall speak unto them all that I shall command him. And it shall come to pass, that whosoever will not hearken unto my words which he shall speak in my name, I will require it of him." (Deut. 18: 18, 19.) Again, Joshua bears this testimony: "And Joshua said unto all the people, Thus saith Jehovah, the God of Israel, Your fathers dwelt of old time beyond the river." (Josh. 24: 2.) Here Joshua declares that Jehovah is speaking through him. David gives this testimony: "Now these are the last words of David. David the son of Jesse saith, And the man who was raised on high saith, The anointed of the God of Jacob, and the sweet psalmist of Israel: the Spirit of Jehovah spake by me, and his word was upon my tongue." (2 Sam. 23: 1, 2.) All of the prophets claim to speak the word of God. Nearly all of them introduce their messages with such expressions as: "Thus saith the Lord God;" "For the Lord hath spoken;" "Hear ye the word of the Lord;" "The word of the Lord came unto Jonah;" "Thus saith the Lord of hosts;" "Remember ye the law of Moses my servant, which I commanded unto him in Horeb;" and, "The word of the Lord which came unto Hosea." The accumulative evidence of all the writers of the Old Testament Scriptures clearly and emphatically lay claim to inspiration. Were their claims true? Have they been successfully denied?

The New Testament speaks of the Old Testament as the "scriptures." There are more than fifty distinct references to the Old Testament Scriptures made in the New Testament, in addition to the direct quotations from the Old Testament made in the New Testament. Every mention of "the scriptures" in the New Testament, with possibly one exception (2 Pet. 3: 16), has reference to the Old Testament Scriptures. All of these references made in the New Testament to the Old Testament Scriptures bear testimony to the inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures. The Old Testament Scriptures are spoken of in the New Testament as "the scriptures," the "holy scriptures," "the sacred writings," "the oracles of God," and "the word of God."

The "scriptures" as used in the New Testament Scriptures have reference, not only to the Old Testament Scriptures, but to the Old Testament Scriptures as we have them to-day, to the thirty-nine books of the Old Testament as are catalogued in our Bible. The Old Testament Scriptures were written in the Hebrew language, with possibly a small portion in the Chaldee. The Old Testament Scriptures were gathered into one large volume of thirty-nine books several centuries before the New Testament era began. They were translated from the Hebrew language into the Greek language about 200 B.C., into what is called the Septuagint Version. In this Version the books of the Old Testament Scriptures are catalogued as we now have them. The thirty-nine books of the Old Testament Scriptures as we now have them are identical with the Septuagint Version. It was the Septuagint Version which was used in all the synagogues of the Jews during the personal ministry of Christ and the early Christians. The Hebrew text may have been used by the Jews occasionally, but the most common text was the Septuagint Version. Now, when the speakers and writers of the New Testament Scriptures speak of "the scriptures," they have reference to the Septuagint Version, or the original text from which the Septuagint was translated. Therefore, the New Testament gives full indorsement to the claim of inspiration made by the Old Testament Scriptures.

Another important point to remember is that the New Testament abundantly and freely quotes from the Old Testament. Truly, "the Old Testament is the New Testament concealed, and the New Testament is the Old Testament revealed." Of the thirty-nine books of the Old Testament, twenty-seven of these books are quoted from in the New Testament. Only twelve of the Old Testament books are not quoted in the New Testament, and some of these books which are not quoted in the New Testament are referred to in the New Testament. Again, of the twenty-seven books of the New Testament, seventeen of these books contain quotations from the Old Testament. Only ten books of the New Testament contain no quotation from the Old Testament, and four of these ten are short books, containing only one chapter. There are eight writers of the New Testament Scriptures, and seven of these eight writers make quotations from the Old Testament. Jude is the only writer that does not give any direct quotation from the Old Testament Scriptures, and yet he makes a quotation from Enoch as a prophet which is not found in the Old Testament. Enoch is mentioned in the Old Testament, but his prophecy is not.

A Confusion of Terms.

BY F. W. SMITH.

It is quite common to hear both preachers and "laymen" (?) among the religious denominations use terms interchangeably which express entirely different meanings. They speak of "salvation" as a thing that takes place within them, and, hence, a thing sinners are taught to seek by prayer, with the expectation of receiving it by a direct operation of the Holy Spirit. The truth is, conversion, which takes place within man, and salvation or pardon, which takes place in the mind of God, are entirely different things. Internal feelings are an evidence of conversion, but are not, and neither can they be, an evidence of salvation, for the simple reason that one's feelings can never be an evidence of what takes place in the mind of another. "For who among men knoweth the things of a man, save the spirit of the man, which is in him? Even so the things of God none knoweth, save the Spirit of God." (1 Cor. 2: 11.)

Man is conscious of what takes place within himself, but he cannot know what takes place in the mind or heart of another, and whatever action he may take toward the mind of another must be based upon either faith or unbelief. Now, since the matter of salvation is one of the things of God, and since no one knows the things (mind) of God, save the Spirit of God, what is the character of evidence one may possess that he or she is saved? Unless God in some way reveals the fact that the salvation of a soul has taken place in his mind, no one can have the slightest evidence or assurance that such a thing has taken place, and, hence, no solid ground for rejoicing.

How, then, does God reveal that such a thing has occurred as the salvation of a soul? God does not speak face to face or directly to man as he did to Adam in the garden of Eden, but he reveals his mind to man by his Spirit, termed in the Scriptures the "Holy Spirit," who is as distinct a personality as God or Christ. Hence, the apostle continues: "But we [the apostles] received, not the spirit of the world, but the spirit which is from God; that we might know the things that were freely given to us of God. Which things also we speak, not in words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Spirit teacheth; combining spiritual things with spiritual words." (1 Cor. 2: 12, 13.) Here we have a clear insight into the method employed by the Spirit to reveal or make known the things or mind of God, which none save the Spirit knows—viz., by the method of teaching, and teaching in words, at that. The "things of God" are, of course, spiritual, and these spiritual things are combined or conveyed through spiritual words—that is, words uttered by the Holy Spirit. We are, then, shut up to what the Holy Spirit has revealed upon the subject of salvation as to what takes place in the mind of God regarding the salvation of a soul. Now, if the Holy Spirit revealed through the apostles that certain feelings are an evidence of what takes place in the mind of God on the subject, they failed to record it in the holy Scriptures. I presume that the Unitarian who denies the divinity of Christ has the same kind of feelings on the matter of salvation as does the so-called "orthodox" man; and if feelings prove it in one case, why not in the other?

The writer not long since heard a denominational preacher make the claim that he was baptized with the Holy Spirit and with fire. The only evidence he offered that his statement was true were his feelings; but just how his feelings could be an evidence of such a thing, even to himself, was not then, and neither is it now, very clear to me. My reasons for this are these:

1. No one was ever baptized with or in the Holy Spirit to make him a Christian, nor as an evidence that he was a Christian. True enough, the baptism of the Holy Spirit was a witness, but not to the one thus baptized. "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great a salvation? which having at the first been spoken through the Lord, was confirmed unto us by them that heard; God also bearing witness with them, both by signs and wonders, and by manifold powers, and by gifts of the Holy Spirit according to his own will." (Heb. 2: 3, 4.) This bearing witness to the ministry of the apostles under the reign of Christ began on the day of Pentecost by a baptism in the Holy Spirit. (Acts 2: 1-4.) "And suddenly there came from heaven a sound as of the rushing of a mighty wind, and it filled all the house where they were sitting. And there appeared unto them tongues parting asunder, like as of fire; and it sat upon each of them. And they were all filled with the Holy Spirit, and began to speak with other tongues, as the Spirit gave them utterance." We know this was a baptism of the Holy Spirit, because it was referred to as such beforehand in Acts 1: 5: "For John indeed baptized with water, but ye shall be baptized in the Holy Spirit not many days hence." This promise made by John the Baptist (Matt. 3: 11) was not fulfilled until the day of Pentecost, and then none save the apostles were thus baptized in the Spirit. The baptism of fire is quite different from the baptism of the Holy Spirit, and I sincerely trust the preacher referred to may never experience the baptism of fire. (See Rev. 20: 14, 15.)

2. Since the preacher alluded to cannot produce the outward miraculous demonstrations accompanying the baptism of the Holy Spirit, he has no evidence that what he feels is such a baptism.

3. Since he cannot know how the apostles felt when they were baptized in the Holy Spirit, he has no assurance that his feelings are an evidence of such a baptism.

Finally, all that God proposes to do or not to do in the matter of saving souls has been revealed by his Spirit; and since his Spirit teaches the mind of God in words, and these words are recorded in the Bible, we must rely upon what the Spirit has said on the subject of salvation. What, then, has the Spirit said? "Let all the house of Israel therefore know assuredly, that God hath made him both Lord and Christ, this Jesus whom ye crucified. Now when they heard this, they were pricked in their heart, and said unto Peter and the rest of the apostles, Brethren, what shall we do? And Peter said unto them, Repent ye, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ unto the remission of your sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Spirit." (Acts 2: 36-38.) Remission of sins and salvation are equivalent terms, and the Spirit here reveals the things or mind of God on the subject, and the feelings of love which do not correspond with what the Spirit here reveals are deceptive and prove nothing, save that a soul has no witness of the Holy Spirit that it is saved.

Will Their Courage Fail?

BY F. B. S.

In last week's issue of the Gospel Advocate I gave the readers the benefit of Brother John B. Cowden's letter in which he asked for a committee to meet his Commission on Unity to arrange the preliminaries for a public discussion on the question of instrumental music in the worship. Brother Cowden asked that the two committees meet on Saturday morning at the study of the Vine Street Christian Church. I was present in that meeting, but was disappointed when I saw that the courage of the Commission on Unity had oozed out and they were not willing to affirm that the New Testament commands the use of instruments in the worship of God. Brother Cowden was the spokesman for his committee, and we saw that his bravery was gone and he was back in his old rut that the instrument is a nonessential. He opened the meeting by telling us that the Commission on Unity had been insisting on unity on essentials, but excluding nonessentials. We saw at once that he was back on his old cry of "nothing in the instrument." We asked him for a proposition for discussion, and he presented this: "Instrumental music is scripturally permissible in the church." We could all see that this proposition was the old joke of the instrument as an aid to the singing, but no part of the worship. We very promptly gave the Commission on Unity to understand that this was no longer the issue, but that since O. E. Payne had written his book and had tried to prove that "psallo" meant to sing accompanied with an instrument, and John B. Cowden, J. B. Briney, and the rest of the debaters had indorsed the book, they must prove that the New Testament requires the instrument in worship or repudiate their commendation of the Payne book.

I have before me a folder advertising O. E. Payne's book, "Instrumental Music Is Scriptural," in which John B. Cowden is quoted as saying: "Your book on the church-music question is the most exhaustive, thorough, and convincing treatise of the subject, or, indeed of any other subject, that I have ever seen. In my investigation I had but touched the hem of the garment, not dreaming that the confirming facts were so many and convincing. What Alexander Campbell did for the baptism question, you have done for the music question—settled it. The pity is that some one did not make this research and publish the facts while the people were open to conviction." I wonder if Brother John thinks that Alexander Campbell settled the baptism question by proving it is "scripturally permissible?" Mr. Campbell proved that baptism is commanded in the New Testament; and if Mr. Payne has settled the instrumental-music question as Campbell did the baptism question, he has proved that the New Testament commands the use of instruments in the worship. I really believe that when Brother Cowden wrote that, he thought Payne had proved it; but now it looks like he has fallen back to the "hem of the garment" again.

Mr. Payne also quotes from Brother J. B. Briney, of whom he says: "In all the world, no man is regarded as more competent to speak on this question than J. B. Briney. As editor, logician, and debater, he has no living peer." This man without a "living peer" says of O. E. Payne's book: "The author aims to prove that instrumental music in Christian worship is scriptural; and when I say that his effort is a complete success, I state the case conservatively. Mr. Payne builds his argument almost exclusively upon the meaning of the Greek word 'psallo,' which occurs in some form five times in the New Testament, and hence the Scripture sanctions the doing of whatever this word meant when the New Testament was written. The author first points out how the meaning of the Greek word 'baptizo' (baptize) is ascertained, and by the same method he demonstrates (I use the term advisedly) that when the New Testament was written 'psallo' carried with it the idea of the use of the instrument of music. This he does, first, by such an array of Greek lexicons as I have never seen assembled in the support of the meaning of any other word."

Now you have it, according to the great debater, J. B. Briney, "demonstrated." More evidence brought to its support than to that of any other subject, not even baptism itself excepted. I suppose, after this demonstration and all this evidence, Brother Briney would be ashamed to ask us to affirm that the use of instrumental music in the worship is sinful. Is that the way he debates baptism? Does he wait until some one will affirm it is a sin to be baptized, or does he go forward like a man and prove his proposition that the New Testament commands it? Why not do likewise in the discussion of the instrumental-music question, which has "been demonstrated," and when it has far more proof in its favor?

Brother Payne also quotes from S. S. Lappin, a former editor of the Christian Standard, the following: "'Instrumental Music Is Scriptural' is by far the best treatment of the subject I have ever seen. It takes the dilemma by both horns, beards the beast in his lair and tells him to begone. It puts the other fellow on the defensive." Very well, we are perfectly willing to be on the defensive; but Brother Cowden is evidently afraid that Payne's hold on the beast will slip, and so he is not willing to risk it by signing a proposition that sets forth O. E. Payne's position.

Mr. Payne in his book says: "In the previous chapters it has been demonstrated that, to him who correctly understands the New Testament, God has not carelessly left any room for doubt or uncertainty. Just as there was no occasion for disagreement as to the meaning of the Greek verb 'baptizo,' I shall now as completely demonstrate that neither is there the slightest ground for misgiving as to the meaning of the Greek verb 'psallo' as it came from the inspired writers." I wonder if Mr. Payne and Brother Cowden are still going over the country affirming that baptism is "scripturally permissible," or are they, like true men, preaching that baptism is commanded in the New Testament? Why not do the same thing about instrumental music, since Payne says he has "demonstrated" it, and that the evidence "is stronger" for the instrument than it is for baptism?

Now, Brother Cowden, since you have over your own signature indorsed O. E. Payne's book and your Commission on Unity has circulated it, come up like a man and affirm his teaching. We will not ask you to prove that Payne "demonstrated" its use in the New Testament, but you ought to affirm that the New Testament commands instrumental music in the worship of God. They all raised a shout of rejoicing over Payne's book when it first appeared. It was the last word on the subject, beyond even Brother Cowden's dreams. Payne's book proved that the New Testament taught instrumental music clearer than it did immersion. We had a right to expect that these brethren would throw down their former contention that the instrument is only an aid to the singing, but no part of the worship. Now Brother Cowden says that a few of his brethren will accept O. E. Payne's contention, but the large majority will not. One of his committee said right out that he would not. It is only an aid, or permissible, with him. It seems that a majority of them are afraid "the beast will not begone." He is bearded all right, but they are afraid the beard will pull out. Will some one help Brother Payne turn the beast loose? Brother Cowden is evidently afraid to fool with him, with the hold Brother Payne has on him. Come on now, brethren, and debate the issue that you yourselves have made by indorsing and circulating O. E. Payne's book—the New Testament commands the use of instrumental music in the worship of God. You know this is Payne's position in his book, "Instrumental Music Is Scriptural."

In justice to Brother Cowden, I will say that in the meeting of these committees he said he was willing for the proposition to read, "Instrumental music is scriptural," but he would not add "in the worship of God." Of course, this would only give grounds for quibbling. What we want is the instrumental-music question in worship affirmed; and since Brother Payne has "demonstrated" the use of the instrument in the New Testament worship by the meaning of the word "psallo," we must insist that they meet this issue or repudiate O. E. Payne and his erroneous contention. We have Payne's position, brethren, in black and white, and your own indorsement of it over your own signature. You must not allow your courage to evaporate, but come like brave men and defend the issue.

O. E. Payne in his book further says: "Since it seems probable that he pursued the study far enough to make sure that there was pay dirt if he would but delve deeper, it is a cause for regret that J. Carroll Stark failed to go to the bottom of the question. He sought a debate years ago with R. B. Neal in which he would affirm, 'The New Testament authorizes the use of instruments.' Long afterwards he concluded his handsome book, 'The King and His Kingdom,' thus: "V. That in the distinction made by Paul between hymns and psalms he authorized the use of instrumental music in the worship of the church. . . . VI. That it is positively commanded by the apostle and authorized by the Holy Spirit under the gospel dispensation. This should end the controversy. Where God speaks, we will speak." (O. E. Payne's book, pages 25, 26.) From this quotation it seems that J. Carroll Stark was braver when he had just begun to feel that he had struck "pay dirt" than these brethren are when they get to the bottom of the mine. What is the matter with the hole, brethren, that you have lost your courage? If the New Testament has spoken on this subject as you say it has, why not embody it in your proposition and affirm that the New Testament teaches the use of instrumental music in the worship of God? I am sorry for you, brethren; but you have put yourselves in this predicament by indorsing and circulating O. E. Payne's book.

Is it possible that what they heralded abroad as their success will prove their greatest handicap? Let us stand, brethren, on our rights, and let these erring brethren worry with the difficulty into which O. E. Payne has placed them. He says instruments of music are commanded in the New Testament in the very meaning of the word "psallo," and they have indorsed his book; now let them wriggle. Why should we worry?

The Gospel Advocate Company.

BY H. LEO B.

The Gospel Advocate Company publishes the Gospel Advocate, song books, Bible Lesson Helps, including Advanced Quarterly, Intermediate, Primary, Little Jewels, The Young People, Lesson Leaves, sets of Lesson Picture Cards, Lesson Picture Charts, Class Books, Sunday-school Records, etc. Anything needed for Bible-school work can be had from the Gospel Advocate Company.

"Select Notes on the International Sunday School Lessons" can be had from this office now at $1.25; the former cost was $2. Every teacher should have one.

All kinds of Bibles and Testaments are handled by this company. Each member of the family ought to have a Bible. There is personal responsibility on each member of the family; each must study God's word for himself. Each member owning his own Bible is like each one owning his own clothes—it develops individuality.

This company publishes a number of good song books. The "Christian Hymns" both new and old is a standard. Other song books are compared to it and their merits rated by the "Christian Hymns." Every congregation should have enough song books to give each member one, and especially each visitor one. It increases interest in the song service. Try it, and watch the results.

Many splendid books are published and handled at this office. Good, religious books should be kept in each home. They have a refining influence on the young; their educational value cannot be overestimated. The Gospel Advocate Company should like to help you educate your family by introducing good books to your library. "Evenings with the Bible" is a fine book to develop piety and spirituality, as well as very instructive. "The People's New Testament with Notes" is very helpful to Bible students. Here is a list that should be in every home. How many of them have you?

"Gospel Sermons," by T. W. Brents.

"Sermons," by J. W. McGarvey.

"A New Commentary on Acts of the Apostles," by McGarvey.

"Cruden's Concordance" (complete).

"Lands of the Bible," by McGarvey.

"Eunice Loyd," by R. N. Moody.

"Salvation from Sin," by D. Lipscomb.

"Letters and Sermons of T. B. Larimore."

"Travels in Bible Lands," by A. T. Ritchie.

"Seventy Years in Dixie," by F. D. Srygley.

"Larimore and His Boys," by Srygley.

"The Gospel Preacher," by B. Franklin.

"Bible Reading," by Isaac Errett.

"The Querist's Drawer," by Errett.

"The Glorious Gospel," by Adcock.

"Patriotic Illustrations for Public Speakers," by Brown.

Many others too numerous to mention can be had by writing the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

"New Testament Evangelism."

BY H. LEO B.

This is a new book just from the press. It is a development from a series of lectures delivered "before the faculty and students of the Eugene Bible University" and "before the faculty and students of the College of the Bible at Lexington, Ky.," by Jesse R. Kellems. The scope of the book is very broad, covering the entire subject of preaching "the gospel to the whole creation," with particular emphasis placed on the revival services of this age.

The need of New Testament evangelism is clearly set forth by the author in pointing out the evident failures of all substitutes for preaching the gospel, the present condition of the world, and the sore need of the gospel as God's power to save. The author in one chapter stresses in a very practical way the "Qualifications of the New Testament Evangelist." His suggestions on "The Art of Eating" could be read with much profit by all preachers. "No preacher can eat a Sunday dinner each day and live very long to be an efficient servant of the Lord," says the author. A broad, liberal culture; the highest type of Christian character; a strong, magnetic personality; deep convictions, unwavering faith in God's word, willing to work long and arduously, the humility born of a desire to please God, and the power to move men to action are mentioned among the qualifications of the New Testament evangelist.

The book offers some very practical lessons to preachers while holding the revival services. The kind of preaching that should be done is set forth by the New Testament. A logical arrangement of subjects is presented in an instructive way. The great fundamentals of the New Testament teaching should be preached with power. No apology should be made for preaching any truth or principle revealed in the New Testament. "If any preacher feels that he must apologize for preaching anything taught by our Lord, he had better do something else," says the author. All truths and subjects of the Bible should be preached with kindness. The art of presenting the truth in such a way as to beget a love for the truth should be coveted by every preacher. This book helps the preacher to cultivate that art.

The book and New Testament evangelism are marred by the encouragement of instrumental music in the worship. It seems strange that the author would stress so emphatically the New Testament teaching and the loyalty of the evangelist to the New Testament, and yet commend instrumental music as a part of New Testament evangelism. The author does this without attempting to give any New Testament authority for the use of instruments in the worship. He stresses following the New Testament in the preaching of the gospel and also the New Testament qualifications of the evangelist. The author follows very closely the spirit and teaching of the New Testament until he comes to the subject of music, and then he makes a wide and sinful departure from the New Testament.

There is much good in the book to be commended, and any preacher of the gospel will find it rich in helpful suggestions. It is published by the Standard Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio. It may be had from the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn. The price is $2.

Valuable People.

The value of a single man or woman of open mind, independent judgment, and moral courage, who requires to be convinced and refuses to be cajoled, is only concerned to be right and not afraid to be singular, deferring to reason but not to rank, true to his or her own self, and, therefore, not false to any man—the value of such a man or woman, I say, is priceless; a nation of such would leaven and regenerate the world.—Prof. James Ward.

Is Your Blood Good or Thin and Watery?

You can tell by the way you feel. You need Hood's Sarsaparilla to make your blood rich, red and pure, tingling with health for every organ.

You need it if weak and tired day in and day out, if your appetite is poor, sleep unrefreshing, — for humors, boils, eruptions, scrofula, rheumatism, headaches, nervous prostration. It is simply wonderful to give strength to your whole body.

It is agreeable, pleasant and convenient to take, and embodies a long-tried and found-true formula.

Oliphant-Slape Debate.

BY LLOYD C. VANDEMER.

This debate was held at Snow Hill, near Blanchard, Okla. Brother W. L. Oliphant, of Cordell, Okla., represented the church of Christ; the Missionary Baptists were represented by Elder G. F. Slape, of Duke, Okla. The debate lasted six days, four hours each day being devoted to the discussion. Church identity, establishment of the church, total depravity, the design of baptism, faith alone, and the possibility of apostasy were the subjects discussed. Brother U. R. Beeson moderated for Brother Oliphant; Elder Mincey was Slape's moderator.

Brother Oliphant won a great victory for truth in this discussion, and did it in a clean, gentlemanly way. He met his opponent at every turn and completely routed him.

Slape made many admissions that were detrimental to his cause. While discussing the depravity question, Slape contended that sin was the cause of every death. Infants die; hence, they are sinful. Brother Oliphant asked him if he meant to say that no one except sinners die. To this, Slape, Mincey, and A. Nunnery (editor of the Baptist Worker, Chickasha, Okla.) replied that such was their position. Brother Oliphant then showed that, according to their position, Jesus was a sinner, because he died. Elder Mincey replied that such was their contention and that they were not ashamed of it. In his next speech Elder Slape attempted to prove that Jesus was a sinner, using 2 Cor. 5: 21 as his proof text, but later denied having taken this position.

All the way through the debate it was easy to see that the people were learning the truth, but this was evidenced still more after the close of the debate. Brother Oliphant preached one sermon and gave an invitation. Ten accepted the invitation. At the baptizing, the next day, five more came forward, making fifteen additions—twelve baptisms and three restorations. Among those baptized was an old lady sixty-seven years old, who had been a Methodist since childhood. These additions to the Lord's fighting force were very much appreciated, as we had only ten or twelve members at this place who were regular in attendance. The Baptists had a much larger membership.

Any congregation desiring the truth defended in a gentlemanly way will make no mistake in calling Brother Oliphant.

We had visitors from Blanchard, Tuttle, Washington, Oklahoma City, Norman, Lexington, and Chickasha. Among the visiting gospel preachers were Brother Waller, Brother E. M. Borden, and Brother Sam L. Shultz.

Notes from Kentucky.

BY E. D. MOREHEAD.

Two of my classmates and I came to Mayfield, June 8, to spend four weeks of our vacation soliciting new subscribers for the Gospel Advocate and selling books printed by the McQuiddy Printing Company, to raise funds to further our schooling in David Lipscomb College. We are meeting with success in our business, having secured a large number of new subscribers. We have labored among seventeen congregations of Graves County and adjoining counties. We expect to go to Jackson, Tenn., to spend the remainder of the summer.

I spent one week in Murray, Ky., while Brother A. B. Barret was conducting a coöperative meeting for eight congregations of Calloway County. Throughout the meeting the sermons were very forceful and well presented. It was profitable to me to be present at the business meeting when twelve hundred dollars was raised to support a county missionary with a tent to preach where there are no church houses.

The brethren with me are A. B. Senseny, of Clarksville, Tenn., and Robert Williams, of Lebanon, Tenn.

Mission Work in Miami, Fla.

BY J. O. BARNES.

I have been in Miami for several weeks, working and worshiping with the church here. I am glad to say that the church is doing good work. We have been delayed some in getting our mission work under headway in the suburbs of the city on account of the tent which belongs to the church here being away; but it is on the ground now, seated and lighted, and we began the work on the first Lord's day in July and will push it forward in the name of Christ. Brethren, pray for me and for the work, that much may be accomplished for the good of souls and to the glory of God. I also ask the prayers of the church as a whole for the restoration of the health of my wife, if it is God's will.

YOUNG MOTHER NOW STRONG

Her Mother's Faith in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Led Her To Try It

Kenosha, Wisconsin.—"I cannot say enough in praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. My mother had great faith in it as she had taken so much of it and when I had trouble after my baby was born she gave it to me. It helped me so much more than anything else had done that I advise all women with female trouble to give it a fair trial and I am sure they will feel as I do about it.—Mrs. FRED. P. HANSEN, 562 Symmonds St., Kenosha, Wisconsin.

A medicine that has been in use nearly fifty years and that receives the praise and commendation of mothers and grandmothers is worth your consideration.

If you are suffering from troubles that sometimes follow child-birth bear in mind that Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is especially adapted to correct such troubles.

The letters we publish ought to convince you; ask some of your women friends or neighbors—they know its worth. You will, too, if you give it a fair trial.

For Nervous Debility and Exhaustion

Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Soothing to "ragged nerves," invigorating to the nervous system. A brain-refreshing, wholesome tonic that aids digestion and restores physical vigor. At all druggists.

TETTERINE

Makes hair beautiful, free from dandruff, and keeps the scalp healthy.

50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

SOLD 50 YEARS
A FINE GENERAL TONIC

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling—Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair—50c and $1.00 at Druggists. Hiseox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDER CORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiseox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

JELLO Ice Cream Powder

Even Dinah Has "Come To It"

IN the best homes served by good cooks it has been no easy matter to provide good ice cream for the family, and so the advent of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder has been welcomed on every hand. The cook, of course, is delighted with the ease and sureness of the new way. One package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder and one quart of rich milk make half a gallon of delicious ice cream.

All grocers sell Jell-O Ice Cream Powder, two packages for 25 cents.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N. Y.

TETTERINE

Clears Baby's Skin

and drives off the rash and pimples. Harmless, Soothing, Fragrant.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debility and weak heart. Relieves headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains, and reduces fever. No depressing effects. Made by a formula which is in general use by leading physicians. 35c per package at your druggist's or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

From East Tennessee.

BY GEORGE W. FARMER.

I began a meeting with the few brethren at Niota on the third Sunday in June and continued it twelve days, with three services on Lord's days and two services each day through the week, except the days I had to run down to Cleveland to get treatment for my throat. My son, Paul, led the singing, and wife assisted in the singing and did the cooking.

Conditions at this place are such that the preacher and singer have to either board or else do their own housekeeping. Boarding being expensive, it is deemed best to fit up a little cottage for the preacher and singer to do their own housekeeping. Sister Flora Forest has set apart one of her little cottages, and mainly through her efforts it has been very well equipped so the preacher and singer can be very comfortably and pleasantly situated.

There were no additions, but we all think much good was accomplished.

One year ago two young ladies obeyed the gospel at this place, and since that time there has been one of the most intolerant and persecuting spirits manifested by some few people against the cause that we ever have seen in this country. Everything that would tend to intimidate and hinder the cause there has been plied, but it has seemed to strengthen the faith and determination of the few members there.

During our meeting much opposition was broken down, and it was heard quite often on the outside: "If you want to hear the gospel preached, go to the tent." There are only eight members there, and all but two are sisters. We still expect to keep up the Lord's-day meetings in the old school building as long as we can get its use. But, brethren, this has gone into the hands of private individuals, and it is only a question of a short time when we will be shut out from its use. We must have a house. Remember our appeals for help made through the church papers recently, and send us a contribution, let it be much or little, on the house fund. Brethren and sisters, I do believe if you but knew the true conditions at this place, you would help us to get a house. The denominations are subscribing and putting up their millions as a challenge to the world as to their financial strength and to forward their causes; and shall we, who stand for the noblest cause committed to mortal man, be less jealous, more penurious and stingy, less willing to make sacrifices? Shame on the cause! Just send what you will spend for tobacco, snuff, chewing gum, and picture shows for one month, and we will build a meetinghouse at Niota. Send contributions to G. W. Farmer, Cleveland, Tenn., and same will be promptly acknowledged and sent to the Niota bank till we get a sufficient amount together to go to building.

I shall begin a meeting at Crandall, Texas, on the third Lord's day in July.

Brother E. C. Coffman recently closed a fine meeting with the little church at Rogersville, with eighteen baptisms and eight restorations.

Brother Will J. Cullum recently held a meeting with the church at Dayton. He is now in a meeting at Graysville.

Brother W. C. Phillips is now out on his vacation and is ready to take the field. He is a good preacher and should be kept busy. Brethren, call him and give him work.

Neutralizes Uric Acid.

Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood. In order to be cured of rheumatism, it is necessary to neutralize this acid. RENWAR is a scientific combination of salts prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood. There is nothing in Renwar to injure the stomach or affect the heart. It acts solely upon uric acid, completely eliminating it from the blood and thereby relieving your rheumatism. It is harmless, but effective. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. It is a Godsend to sufferers from rheumatism. Renwar also corrects constipation. Mr. J. M. Willis, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "I must say that Renwar far surpassed my expectations, for it gave me almost immediate relief. Too much cannot be spoken in behalf of Renwar for rheumatism." Sold by druggists (price, 50 cents) or by mail from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

JACOBS & COMPANY

SPECIAL ADVERTISING
AGENTS

PRINTERS DESIGNERS PHOTO-ENGRAVERS ELECTROTYPERS

Catalogues
— a Specialty —

HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S. C.

Cuticura Soap —The Safety Razor— Shaving Soap

Cuticura Soap shaves without mug. Everywhere 25c.

A Call from Idaho.

BY T. A. PHILLIPS.

I want to tell the readers of the Gospel Advocate something about the field here in this country, its opportunities and its needs.

The little congregation here at Lewiston Orchards is the only congregation of "conservative" disciples I know of in this part of the State, with the exception of one or two congregations under the influence of the "anti-Bible College" people; while I have heard of one congregation in South Idaho. There are several of the "progressive" churches in this county.

This is certainly a great mission field and presents a tremendous challenge to the churches of Christ. While it would be more pleasant for me, personally, to live and labor where there are more churches, where I could enjoy the association and fellowship of more of my brethren, yet I think it would be selfish in me to leave this great mission field, where the harvest is so great and the laborers are so few, and go where there are more churches and preachers. So I am determined to stay in this country and devote my time and efforts chiefly in presenting to the people the simple gospel of Christ. But if I do this, the work must be supported. The congregation here will help. But if there is much done toward evangelizing this vast untouched territory, we must have outside help.

We are near the line between Idaho and Washington. The State of Washington seems to be as destitute of "our plea," as Idaho, which seems to be true of all the States in this section. I do not know of a greater need for the primitive gospel anywhere.

I realize that there are many appeals for assistance in our papers, and for this reason I hesitate to ask for help. But, brethren, before you refuse to respond to this call, I earnestly beseech you to seriously consider the question as to how long we are going to allow the people of whole States in our own nation to live and die without ever hearing the simple plea of the churches of Christ, unless it should be taken to them by those whom we call "digressives." This, to say nothing of the millions beyond the seas who are perishing for the bread of life.

We make great claims to being a Bible people, which I think we are, at least in theory. A people who make such claims should be the first in mission work, as well as in all other good works; and yet I suspect it would be hard to find another body of people with our numbers and wealth who are doing as little as we are, especially in mission work. How many new fields like Idaho are being entered by our people and any systematic and sustained effort being made toward their evangelization? We strongly condemn all unscriptural methods and organizations for doing the work of the church, but the most effective argument we can make against the wrong way of doing things is to do them in the right way. If we ever take our message to the people of such fields as this, it must be done by individual Christians and churches as such.

Brethren, the great commission which we love to quote so well when we want to show the "sectarians" that we are right on baptism says: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature" (Mark 16: 15, 16); and Idaho is as much a part of the world as Tennessee, Texas, or Kentucky.

How many individuals or congregations will agree to contribute regularly to the support of the gospel in this country? Whether little or much, your contributions will be appreciated and used for the right purpose. Address C. L. Fallwell or T. A. Phillips, Lewiston, Idaho, Route 2.

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specially designed gift for the bereaved. Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the deceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

*Eucapine
Salve*

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic

(Prevents Infection)(Relieves Pain)(Allays Inflammation)

is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

Dodson's Liver Tone

Instead of Calomel

Calomel is quicksilver. It attacks the bones and paralyzes the liver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it will regulate the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel, without sickening or salivating you. Fifteen million bottles sold.

SUFFERING?

Most of the pain we suffer is unnecessary. Why continue to endure it—to sacrifice your youth, beauty, and enjoyment to it?

The combination of simple harmless medicines found in Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills is especially effective in relieving pain without bad after-effects.

For more than thirty-five years sufferers from headache, neuralgia, backache, toothache, sciatica and pains from other causes have found relief by taking these pills.

Why don't you try them?

ASK YOUR DRUGGIST

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid
of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

McShane Bell Foundry Co.
BALTIMORE, MD.
CHURCH, CHIME and PEAL
BELLS Memorials
a Specialty

GIRLS! LEMONS
BLEACH FRECKLES
AND WHITEN SKIN

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan bleach and complexion whitener.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day, and see how freckles and blemishes bleach out, and how clear, soft, and rosy-white the skin becomes.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal
Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

Not Equipment But the Man Makes the Difference

Every great school, college, or university has been built around the personality of some one man. The educated men of America who have accomplished great things and who stand well in professions look back on their college training and attribute much of their accomplishments to the dominating personality of the school in which they were educated. The dominating personality of Morgan School is that of Prof. R. K. Morgan. His influence for good and better things does much toward the molding of morals and stimulating of broader ideals in the students who are so fortunate as to attend Morgan School. Mr. Morgan has devoted his life to the training of boys.

The thoughtful, considerate parent feels that the school to which he sends his son must be equipped and its faculty chosen with the primary end of training the boy to become a man—to teach true Christian faith, to develop manly independence and self-confidence, to inspire high ideals of life and service, to strengthen and develop mind and body alike.

Such an institution is the Morgan School, which has been built up around the Christian character and wholesome, inspiring personality of Robert K. Morgan, who has been principal for twenty-six years.

A postal card to Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., will bring you a catalogue and full information about this school.

Meeting at Bakersfield, Cal.

BY L. D. PERKINS.

I want to keep before the churches of California the meeting to be held at Bakersfield. This meeting is to begin on the first Lord's day in October. Brother C. R. Nichol has been engaged to do the preaching. The meeting is to continue through the month of October. It will be a mission meeting, and I believe the churches should get behind the work. No church is a true church of Christ that does not engage in missionary work, and I know churches in California that are practically dead because they have never given a penny for preaching except at their own location. Let's make a camp meeting of the month in Bakersfield. I want to ask all preachers to make announcement each Lord's day of the intended meeting, and I certainly feel that every preacher who can should be there. Let's flood the city with good literature. Send literature to Sister P. M. Drane, 2425 H Street. Send it now. Don't wait. Don't put off the Lord's work! Plan to go and camp for all or part of the month. Take your car, and engage people to go, and haul them there and back.

An effort is on foot by the Review people of Long Beach to keep Brother Nichol from holding a meeting there later in the winter. May the Lord overrule the efforts of these people, and may he hold a meeting there and establish a loyal congregation.

Let every congregation in the State send a contribution to Bakersfield. Send as a congregational gift.

Report from Canada.

BY H. A. ROGERS.

Brother L. L. McGill, of Carman, Manitoba, has been with me since June 17, and we have been holding meetings in Estevan and Wood End Schoolhouse each night and three times on Sundays since that date. Brother McGill is a good singer and is making fine progress as a preacher, and will soon be able to conduct a series of meetings alone.

The meetings in Estevan and Wood End have been a grand success. One has been baptized in Estevan this time.

The Wood End meeting began on June 18, and we are now in the third week. Wood End is eight miles south of Estevan. Yesterday the house was crowded. The seats of the large school were packed and the rest stood. The subject was, "What Must I Do to Be Saved?" The Wood End people were nearly all Lutherans, and the preaching has been a sudden change to them. A man and his wife made the confession yesterday, and we went to the river, about thirty rods away, and these two were baptized in the

Renew your health
by purifying your system with

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are free
from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel
and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c
and 35c packages, bearing
above trade-mark.

presence of all the congregations. We feel sure that many more of these people will surrender to the Christ soon.

If we only had more preachers to help do the work that is ahead of us, some of which we cannot get done, we could put in the whole summer in this part. People south of Wood End are anxious for us to cross the boundary into North Dakota, and I feel sure that a grand work could be done. Thousands of souls are starving for the gospel of the Son of God.

Brethren, the great missionary fields right at home are ripe for harvesting. May God put it into the hearts of his people to realize the opportunities at our hands.

Regina, Macrorie, Harptree, and other places are waiting for meetings.

The Co-Operative Meeting at Murray, Ky.

BY COLEMAN OVERBY.

This meeting began on June 16 and continued over June 25. Preparations for the meeting consisted in members of various congregations visiting each separate congregation on Lord's days, in the afternoon, for song practice, until all the churches were visited; prayers offered for the success of the work; and extensive advertising, posters, cards, circulars, and telephoning.

A. B. Barret, of Murfreesboro, Tenn., did the preaching, and A. B. Reavis led the gospel singing. The preaching was one hundred per cent gospel. Brother Barret proclaims the "old story" without fear or favor of man. The line of preaching was adapted to the situation—first principles, Christian living, instrumental music, evils of societies, and Christian education. It is not advisable to have A. B. Barrett to preach unless the full gospel is wanted. A. B. Reavis is a good gospel singer, a genuine Christian, and a great listener who does not mind saying "Amen." He listens with joy mingled with tears.

Nine churches were brought into closer fellowship, learned coöperation and each other's joys and sorrows. The greatest work of the meeting was the missionary spirit that was created among the churches. Something like fifteen hundred dollars was raised to support a man full time in destitute places. The churches of the county have a new tent, with chairs and lights, to carry on the great work. The work, if possible, is to be started at once.

Visitors from adjoining counties were present—viz.: Henry County, Tenn.; and Graves, Marshall, and McCracken counties, Ky. Many preaching brethren were present, including Brethren Brown, Curd, Etheridge, Douthitt, Thompson, Brandon, Williams, Morehead, and White.

This is believed to have been the greatest move for the cause of Christ in Calloway County since the birth of the various churches in the county. It demonstrates the fact that churches can coöperate with sister congregations without a missionary society or any organization save the local congregation. This is truly New Testament coöperation and evangelism.

If We Knew.

Could we but draw back the curtains
That surround each other's lives,
See the naked heart and spirit,
Know what spur the action gives,
Often we would find it better,
Purer than we judge we would;
We would love each other better,
If we only understood.

Could we judge all deeds by motives,
See the good and bad within,
Often we would love the sinner
All the while we loathed the sin.
All the while we loathed the sin.
Could we know the powers working
To overthrow integrity,
We would judge each other's errors
With more patient charity.

If we knew the cares and trials,
Knew the efforts all in vain,
And the bitter disappointment,
Understood the loss and gain,
Would the grim external roughness
Seem, I wonder, just the same?
Would we help where now we hinder?
Would we pity where we blame?

Ah, we judge each other harshly,
Knowing not life's hidden force,
Knowing not the fount of action
Is less turbid at its source;
Seeing not amid the evil
All the gains of golden good.
O we'd love each other better,
If we only understood. —Selected.

Unless the church is growing, it is dying.—Charles K. Brown.

Among the Colored Folks

Report of Alonzo Jones.

On May 16 I began a tent meeting in Mount Pleasant, Tenn. The attendance was good, but no additions. I found about fifteen disciples scattered about Mount Pleasant, and succeeded in getting them together. The Masonic Hall has been rented and they are now keeping house for the Lord, with Brother J. N. Worley as leader. Brother Worley's home was mine while in Mount Pleasant. The white congregation of Mount Pleasant gave me a liberal contribution, which was highly appreciated.

On the first Lord's day in June I was with the Pleasant Union congregation, in Maury County, with one confession.

On June 11 I began an eight-days' meeting in Bellbuckle, Tenn., in the public school building. The attendance was fine. There were five additions. The meeting was supported principally by the white disciples of Bellbuckle; Brother Lynch and Brother Mingle (white) manifested a great interest in the meeting. Their minister was present in one service and spoke words of encouragement. I am to hold a tent meeting in Bellbuckle this fall.

On the fourth Lord's day in June I was with the congregation in Centerville, Tenn. Large crowds at both services. They are putting on new life. The white brethren of Centerville have the work among my people at heart. They give an offering each month to my support, for which they have my hearty thanks. I hope to be able to continue my work in destitute places and with broken-down congregations.

I am now (June 30) in a meeting at Franklin, Tenn. Conditions are not so favorable, yet I am willing to suffer hardships in the Master's cause.

My next meeting will be in Tullahoma, Tenn. ALONZO JONES.

Cured Her Rheumatism

Knowing from terrible experience the suffering caused by rheumatism, Mrs. J. E. Hurst, who lives at 508 E. Olive St., B-439, Bloomington, Ill., is so thankful at having cured herself that out of pure gratitude she is anxious to tell all other sufferers just how to get rid of their torture by a simple way at home.

Mrs. Hurst has nothing to sell. Merely cut out this notice, mail it to her with your own name and address, and she will gladly send you this valuable information entirely free. Write her at once, before you forget.

CANCERS CURED AT THE KELLAM HOSPITAL

The Kellam Hospital cures Cancers, Sores without the use Burns, and Chronic Tumors, Ulcers, X-Ray of the knife, X-Ray, Radium, Acids, or Serum, and we have cured over 90 per cent of the many hundreds of sufferers treated during the past twenty-three years. Ministers treated free.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, Inc.
1617 West Main St. Richmond Va.

BIBLE QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS—S. P. Pittman and Morgan H. Carter. Twenty-seven-page booklet, containing 306 questions and answers and other valuable material. Just the thing for supplementary work in young people's and adults' Sunday Bible classes. One hundred copies, $10.00; fifty copies, $5.00. Order from M. H. Carter, Box 76, Lebanon, Tenn.

CANCER HOSPITAL. Intra-venous treatment for cancer. Operation, Radium and X-Ray unnecessary. Booklet giving full information upon request. Box 2127, ATLANTA, GA.

WATCH YOUR ADDRESS LABEL

Look at the address label that comes with each copy of the Gospel Advocate. If it bears a date that has passed, please send renewal of subscription —$2.00 a year.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE
Nashville, Tenn.

FARMERS AND MERCHANTS BANK NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

OFFICERS

A. E. POTTER, President
JOE S. BOYD, Vice President
FRANK M. THONI, Assistant Cashier
EDWARD POTTER, JR., Cashier
GEORGE W. BATES, Assistant Cashier

DIRECTORS

O. W. Staley
Jos. C. Scheffer
John P. Stumb
A. E. Potter
H. Z. Lipsecomb
Harris Solinsky
G. A. Harrington
L. Kornman
Chris. J. Power
Joe S. Boyd
Leon B. McQuiddy
W. J. Wallace
Justin Potter
Louis Huggins
Edward Potter, Jr.

FOUR PER CENT PAID ON SAVINGS ACCOUNTS
We Invite Your Banking Business

ASPIRIN

Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package, which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

MAKE POCKET MONEY For Vacation

Many of our agents make $5 to $10 per day selling Primo, the wonder cleanser, in their localities. It cleanses almost anything. Especially good for personal and general household use. Send 25c for Salesman's Outfit, including a one-pound can of Primo, literature, and full particulars.

THE PRIMO CO.,
2617 Olive Street, St. Louis, Mo.

DANDRUFF

QUICKLY DISAPPEARS WHEN

Tetterine

Is Applied. Fragrant and Soothing.
50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards,

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

A Call from the Palmetto State.

BY THOMAS H. BURTON.

Knowing that the brotherhood is interested in the sowing of "the seed of the kingdom" in this fertile though destitute State, I am taking the liberty to call attention to our immediate needs at this place.

The brotherhood has been very liberal toward this work, for which we are very thankful, and the results are that we now have a good, comfortable, well-located house finished (not including pews); but we owe one thousand dollars, and our creditors are needing and wanting their money.

I have tried in vain many times to borrow this amount, and could have got it one time, but I would have had to pay a very high rate of interest, and I did not think that advisable. The little band here would gladly pay every penny of it, but we are not able, as we are all poor in this world's goods. Only two members own their little homes. Our contribution to the building fund has been from twenty-five to fifty dollars per month, but we are now having to pay that on our new tent.

Now, in order to raise the necessary amount to pay this indebtedness, we are asking for the fifth Sunday's (July 30) contribution. This will not be a great burden to any, but it will help raise a heavy burden off of us. Won't you please do this much to help pay our first house in this State out of debt? Please decide in the affirmative. We need it very badly.

Address all communications and make all checks payable to me.

Changes in Progress at Harper, Kansas.

Harper College closed on May 25 the very best session in its history. Contrary to the conditions prevalent in nearly all schools of the country, the enrollment through the year exceeded that of the year before. The very greatest interest and loyalty was manifested by the students throughout the session. We have never had a body of students in which more nearly every one accepted fully the spirit of the school. A large number of baptisms occurred among the students, and before the close of the session every young lady in the girls' home, save one, was a member of the church of Jesus Christ.

Fine as this year has been in the size of the student body, their enthusiasm for the work, and the splendid spirit manifested, we are planning even a greater session for 1922-23. Many changes are taking place, both in the buildings and grounds and in the organization, which will add greatly to the work. A gardener is caring for the grounds through the summer, and flowers, trees, shrubbery, and grass have been put out. The grounds around the men's home have been carefully graded and set to grass. The aquarium and lily pond has been finished and the leaves of the water lilies are covering the water. The buildings, halls, classrooms, laboratories, and library are being rendered more attractive and comfortable. The faculty for the coming year has been enlarged until the school has the strongest body of teachers it has ever assembled. No appreciable changes, however, have taken place in the rates, and the tuition, board, room rent, and fees will remain as low as they have been. A large body of endowers are doing a noble work in keeping the expenses at Harper College within reach of every one.

The catalogue is ready for mailing, and we should be glad to send a copy to any address. L. C. SEARS, Dean.

Tired Mothers. It's hard work to take care of children and to cook, sweep, wash, sew, and mend besides. Tired mothers should take Hood's Sarsaparilla—it refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, assures restful sleep, and helps in many ways.

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

New York City Church of Christ

239 West Sixty-Ninth Street

Services: 2:30 P.M., Bible Study; 3:15 P.M., Preaching and Communion.

E. E. Shoulders, Evangelist, 699 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Phone, Flatbush 6857.

Salesmen Wanted

to sell Marble and Granite Monuments, the product of one of the largest plants in the country, located near the famous Georgia quarries. Liberal commissions. In a little spare time you can earn excellent profits. Write for full information.

ETOWAH MONUMENT CO.

ATLANTA, GA.

Keep Stomach and Bowels Right

By giving baby the harmless, purely vegetable, infants' and children's regulator.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

brings astonishing, gratifying results in making baby's stomach digest food and bowels move as they should at teething time. Guaranteed free from narcotics, opiates, alcohol and all harmful ingredients. Safe and satisfactory.

At All
Druggists

Report of Norris-Gray Debate.

BY E. E. WRIGHT.

I had the pleasure of moderating for Brother Porter Norris in a debate with R. H. Gray (Holiness), at Gilt Edge, Tenn., about eight miles south of Covington, on July 9. Mr. Gray affirmed that water baptism is not essential to present salvation, and Brother Norris denied. Mr. Gray also affirmed that believers in Christ receive the same spiritual baptism now as they did on the day of Pentecost, with signs following: Brother Norris denied. Mr. Gray made a very good and gentlemanly defense for his side, when it is taken into consideration that anybody who will talk as long as a half hour or more trying to defend this sort of erroneous position will most certainly entangle himself and meet himself coming back. For instance, he claimed, after thanking God that his sins were pardoned, that persons who did not or could not perform miracles are eternally damned; but when asked if he had this power, he said, "No." One can readily see that he preached his own funeral. Brother Norris defended the cause in an admirable manner and had very little trouble in handling his opponent.

This was one of the cleanest debates that the writer has ever listened to. Each man seemed to have the utmost respect for his opponent, and the audience was very attentive and orderly, and everybody parted with very best wishes to one another. It is a pity that all religious debates cannot proceed in the same manner.

Brother Norris is doing more work for the cause in West Tennessee and getting less financial support for his efforts than any man I know of. He makes a trip nearly every Sunday from fifty to one hundred miles over dirt roads and preaches an average of four sermons, with not enough support from the different congregations to pay for his gasoline. I hope that the congregations who depend upon his services will see this and wake up to the realization of their duty to Brother Norris.

Those of us from Memphis and Locke who accompanied Brother Norris were entertained royally by the brethren. I look forward with pleasure to the time when I will be fortunate enough to visit them again.

Discussion with the Adventists.

BY C. A. RUCHANAN.

Brother G. C. Brewer met the Adventists in a four-days' discussion at Parker, Texas, near Cleburne, in June. Elder T. W. Field began the discussion, but became sick after two days and substituted Elder McCutcheon to finish up the discussion with Brother Brewer. Both Field and McCutcheon are debaters of experience, having met our strongest men. Elder Field led out the first two nights on the Sabbath question, and Brother Brewer led the last two sessions on why we worship on the first day of the week, or Lord's day. Brother Brewer showed himself master of the situation at all times. He has met more than a dozen Adventists in debate, several of whom were presidents of Adventist conferences, and he knows all their arguments and tricks.

The Adventists are aggressive and are great propagandists. They have seen the value of the printed page in sowing the world over with their doctrines. By "scrambling" the Scriptures they deceive many people.

We seldom get a debate with the Adventists now, for they have learned that debating their doctrine is not a healthful exercise for them. They will take many positions in preaching which they will not take in debate with an able opponent. We should never let an opportunity slip of showing up their errors before honest and thinking people.

Their Southwestern Junior College is located at Keene, about five miles from Cleburne, Texas, and Brother Brewer has challenged McCutcheon for a full discussion of all the issues between us before the student body at Keene.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, backaches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting CAPUDINE

Church Furniture
WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES
Write for Catalogue
BUDDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 15, 1910
HOLDS SHIRT DOWN
SOX UP
DON'T BIND LEGS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good

WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY
WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by
Washington Manufacturing Company
Nashville, Tennessee

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 15, 1910
NO BULGING OF
SHIRT NO MORE
VARICOSE VEINS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

HARDEMAN'S TABERNACLE SERMONS

A series of evangelistic sermons preached by N. B. Harde-
man during the Great Nashville Meeting, held in the Ryman Auditorium, March 28-April 16. These sermons ring true to the Old Book, and have a charm of style and freshness of illustration that put them in a class by themselves.

All the profits derived from the sale of these books will be used to create a fund to help poor boys and girls attend
Freed-Hardeman College.

The book will contain about 350 pages, with pictures of Hardeman, Pullias, and the audience, a history of the meeting, about twenty sermons, and an address delivered by Brother Pullias before the Exchange Club.

Bound in cloth, stamped in gold. Price, $1.50.

Book now being mailed to advanced subscribers.

Send all orders to N. B. HARDEMAN, Henderson, Tenn.

Field Reports

Livingston, Tenn., Route 1, July 4.—On the fourth Sunday in June I preached twice at Baxter to very good crowds, which they told me was the last service in their house, as they had planned to tear the old house away the next week and erect a new one at the cost of about four thousand dollars. The Baxter church seems to be growing stronger all the time. Last Sunday I preached twice at Willow Grove, and at St. John in the afternoon. St. John is out from Willow Grove some two miles. A number of the Willow Grove brethren went in their cars with me out there. We had very good services at both places. I told them all publicly that they should subscribe for the Gospel Advocate.—Willie Hunter.

Snowdown, Ala., July 3.—I was at my appointment near Brundidge yesterday, where I baptized one, and one put aside his sectarian name. We have additions at this point nearly every month. I think I notice a growing disposition to decry the practice of going to country congregations and preaching for little remuneration. When I think over the membership of the congregations in Montgomery, I observe that a great per cent come from country congregations that would have never existed if some preacher had not given his time for nearly nothing. The principal reason for their contributing more liberally since going to the city is that they have more money than when in the country.—Guy Renfro.

Franklin, Ky., July 4.—I am to assist in tent work in Barren and Metcalfe counties, Ky., with the new tent (now being used by Brother Emmett Creacy), beginning on the third Lord's day in July and continuing till the last of August. I will then give up the tent and hold the following meetings: At Corinth, Sumner County, Tenn., on the first Lord's day in September; South Tunnel, Tenn., the third Lord's day in September; Shady Grove, near Cave City, Ky., the first Lord's day in October; Emberton, Monroe County, Ky., the third Sunday in October; Reed's Chapel, four miles north of Glasgow, Ky., which will be the closing meeting for me for the year 1922, so far as I now know. May the Lord bless his children everywhere, and especially those of them whose business it is to preach "the gospel." Pray for me.—J. M. Dennis.

Olathe, Col., July 6.—The meeting at Fairview closed on the night of June 18. There were five baptisms and two restorations. This was strictly a mission meeting. I am in the second week of another mission meeting at Coal Creek, eight miles south of Olathe. Two have confessed Christ at this writing, and we hope to interest more in the way of life before the meeting closes. From here I go to Lebanon, in Montezuma County, Col. This is a mission field indeed. Only one man west of the Great Divide in this State preaching the gospel of the kingdom. The Glenwood church of Christ, Fort Worth, Texas, is acting as receiving agent for this work. All donations should be sent to Brother H. W. Busby, 1705 College Avenue,

Fort Worth, Texas. Brother Busby is a member of the Glenwood congregation. Several congregations have promised a monthly donation of five dollars, while the Glenwood church sends ten dollars, and the church at Alba, Texas, eight dollars and thirty-five cents per month.—Willis G. Jernigan.

Castle Heights MILITARY ACADEMY

Things you look for in a school for your boy—sympathetic, intelligent leadership that understands boys. Opportunity for complete mental, physical and moral upbuilding. Academic and Commercial courses. Military Training and all acceptable athletics. Here a strong faculty of University-trained experts assures your boy proper development in all lines. Modern, complete equipment. Recognized by leading universities. For illustrated catalogue, address COL. C. M. MATHIS, A.M., L.L.B., Pres., Box R, Lebanon, Tenn.

For the Up-building Of Many Boys

Law School

Cumberland University

The Course of Study, more than 10,000 pages, covers the entire field of American law. It is completed in ONE COLLEGE YEAR with degree LL.B. It is taught by daily assignments of textbook lessons with classroom recitations and MOOT COURT practice. For catalogue, address LAW SCHOOL, Box 272, Lebanon, Tennessee.

YOU ARE WANTED for a GOOD POSITION at a BIG SALARY

All that you need is training. Draughon's Practical Business College will train you, at your home, within only a few months. This is the College that has trained more than 300,000 men and women for good positions. Ask for big book, "Guide to Business Success." It's FREE. Address DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE, Dept. GA, Nashville, Tenn.

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Founded 1793

Superb location in world-famous climate. Wide area of patronage. Limited number. Boys live a simple, wholesome life, under the care of experienced teachers, and under Christian influences. Plenty of good, nourishing food. All forms of athletics. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officers. 129th year begins September 13. Send for handbook.

Col. R. Bingham, Supt. Emeritus.

Col. S. R. McKee, Supt.

EDUCATION!

WHAT IS IT? WHERE DO YOU FIND IT?

If a college education is calculated to equip one for the highest and best living, is it not sensible to seek this training where the things that contribute to this end are to be had?

WEIGH WELL THESE STATEMENTS

They May Assist You in Choosing a College to Attend or to Which to Send Your Child

The more we know, the more we need God.—Dr. Henry Van Dyke, former United States Minister to the Netherlands.

The history of thought shows that few great thinkers have been able to dispense with God. There is not a great philosopher in the world to-day, so far as we know, who undertakes to explain the world without God.—John J. Tigert, United States Commissioner of Education.

No nation can prosper, no nation can survive, if it ever forgets Almighty God. . . . If I were to utter a prayer to-night, it would be to consecrate us in religious devotion and make us abidingly a God-fearing, God-loving people.—Warren G. Harding, President of the United States.

The mind of man will never outgrow religion. It has just begun to grow into it.—James J. Davis, United States Secretary of Labor.

Religion ministers to every essential need of man; it furnishes ideals of life; it makes ethics workable, and translates moral codes into conduct and character; but, deeper still, certain religious truths constitute the reserves of the human soul. There are experiences that stampede reason, put philosophical theses to flight, and throw the soul upon the things of faith.—R. A. Haynes, Federal Prohibition Commissioner.

That which is needed to-day is a quality of heart, and not a quality of mind. . . . Being in harmony with Him has made more nobleness in human nature than all the intellectual codes of all the world put together.—James S. Montgomery, Chaplain of United States House of Representatives.

I cannot too greatly emphasize the importance and value of Bible study—more important than ever before in these days of uncertainties, when men and women are apt to decide questions from the standpoint of expediency, rather than upon the eternal principles laid down by God himself.—John Wanamaker, President of the Wanamaker Chain Stores.

I enter a most earnest plea that in our hurried and rather bustling life of to-day we do not lose the hold our forefathers had on the Bible. . . . I wish to see Bible study as much a matter of course in the secular college as in the seminary. . . . No educated man can afford to be ignorant of the Bible, and no uneducated man can afford to be ignorant of the Bible.—Theodore Roosevelt, former President of the United States.

Wherever the moral standard is being lifted up, wherever life is becoming larger in the vision that directs it and richer in its fruitage, the improvement is traceable to the Bible and to the influence of the God and Christ of whom the Bible tells.—W. J. Bryan, former United States Secretary of State.

Education adds power, but motive decides where the power shall be applied. . . . The right motive can be imparted only by the school which recognizes that its mission co-ordinates the mission of the Great Teacher.—Dr. F. G. Coffin, of Albany, N. Y.

The nation that endures is the nation that teaches its children the word of God.—Woodrow Wilson, ex-President of the United States.

Abilene Christian College is maintained solely for the purpose of teaching the Bible as the word of God. Every student of Abilene Christian College studies the Bible. Every teacher in Abilene Christian College believes the Bible. Write for literature.

ABILENE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE,

Office of the President,

ABILENE, TEXAS.

Gospel Advocate

Mar 1 22
June 1 22

Volume LXIV. No. 30.

NASHVILLE, TENN., JULY 27, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Love to God.....	697
Conscience	698
OUR CONTRIBUTORS	698
When the Lord Was King—To the Friends of the Gospel Advocate—Infidelity in Our Schools—The Gos- pel Advocate Company—Commending the Young Peo- ple—"The Kingdom Come"—Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes —"Information" Forthcoming.
EVANGELISTIC NOTES	704
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	706
EDITORIAL	708
Honesty—"In the Interest of Fair Play"—Inspiration of the Old Testament as Witnessed in the New Testament—The Church at Thessalonica.
Gast and Strygley Debate.....	712
HOME READING	713
Offenses	714
Can the Lord Depend on Me?.....	715
FIELD REPORTS	716
Freed-Hardeman College	717
India Missionary Statistics.....	718
The Cause at Marshall, Texas.....	719

LOVE TO GOD.

[The following article is reprinted from "The Christian Review," edited by T. Fanning and Jesse B. Ferguson. This was a monthly journal published in Nashville. The readers are here given a vigorous article from the pen of T. Fanning, written in 1845.—H. Leo B.]

To love the Lord our God with all the heart, soul, mind, and strength, and our neighbor as ourselves, is the whole Christian religion. The subject naturally divides itself into two heads—love to God and love to men. Christian writers and Christian preachers too seldom present forcibly the love of God. This point may fitly be subdivided.

1. God's love to man is the foundation of man's love to his Maker. "God so loved the world, that he gave his only begotten Son, that whosoever believeth in him should not perish, but have everlasting life." The Father of the creation beheld our loss, pitied our poverty, and in his great condescension gave the darling of the skies to die for his enemies. The birth, life, death, and resurrection of Christ all strongly evince his love to the world. The life and immortality brought to light in the gospel and the rich grace in the kingdom all loudly proclaim the Almighty's deep affection for our race.

2. Our love to God is no adequate payment for his kindness to us. In what consists our love to our Creator? It is not an impulse of the soul, nor a wild, ungovernable passion; but it is pure affection to God, arising from a knowledge of his matchless kindness to us. The apostle asserted, "it is the love of God that we keep his commandments, and his commandments are not grievous." Paul said, "the love of God is shed abroad in our hearts by the Holy Spirit." This is but another expression for the "divine nature," or the mind of Christ. The Christian spirit, or temper, "is pure, peaceable, gentle, and easy to be entreated, full of mercy and good fruits, without partiality, and without hypocrisy." The proof that we love God consists in keeping his commandments; for "he that says he loves God, and keeps not his commandments, is a liar, and the truth is not in him."

The true Christian loves God on account of his exceeding mercy, and he delights to contemplate him in all his marvellous works. With the Christian, truly God

"Warms in the sun, refreshes in the breeze, Glow in the stars, and blossoms in the trees."

He indeed fully realizes the declaration that in God we live, move, and have our being. It is sweet to Christians to sit together in heavenly places, to sing the Almighty's high praises and bow in humble prayer. Piety is not a merely imaginary jewel, but its reward is sure and ample. Christians in this life have a reward of "a hundredfold, and in the world to come, eternal life" will be the reward. Great will be the reward of the saints in the kingdom of heaven when the Son delivers it up to the Father, that God may be all in all.

3. What is the love of the brethren?

Perhaps on no subject has the human heart been driven to greater extremes than what is generally termed "the love of the brethren." The boundaries of each faction are usually the limits of the love of the respective denominations, while the deep and abiding hatred of most religionists is limited only by the universe. Romanists love their own; Calvinists love Calvinists; Arminians love not all Arminians, but each Arminian sect rejoices in itself alone. Deep-rooted party prejudice is the "love of God" in party religions. Baptists feel in their souls that they love Baptists, and hence fancy that this prejudice is the love of the brethren, and indubitable evidence of a passage from death to life.

In thousands of instances, young people take their amours—lusts—for the love of the brethren. They feel, and they love, but not a few of the excited youths of the country feel and love as the beasts that perish.

With my own eyes I have seen scores of youths (males and females, of course) smiling and caressing each other most affectionately, and praising God for their "feeling and heartfelt religion." It is highly probable the ignorant are not hypocritical in putting merely animal attachment for the love of the brethren. Observers can see very easily that the healthful and handsome young love most, such as themselves, but of the opposite sex. In the religions of excitement, few are disposed to manifest very warm affection for the poor, the old and time-worn servants of the Most High.

All this is only negative truth. Some of the young—a small minority—are humble, God-loving Christians. But to the definition. The love of the brethren is a warm and constant affection for Christians, on account of their many good qualities. The mind truly makes the man, but virtuous qualities, in an eminent degree, constitute the Christian. Christians anciently manifested their love to each other by bestowing their goods to feed the hungry and clothe the naked, and it was no rare occurrence for saints to lay down their lives for each other. The earthly possessions of the saints were assuredly the borrowed goods of the Lord, and he will require sure interest of all we have. Brethren, we should be tender-hearted and affectionate to one another. Has Christianity lost its influence with us? The enemies of olden times, with astonishment said: "See how these Christians love one another!" If all professors of this age were really Christians of one soul and heart, the world would soon confess Jesus to be the Son of God.

Christians, moreover, manifest their love by their care one for another; by esteeming others better than themselves, and by a humble submission to the "authorities that be" in the congregations of the Lord. The united, humble, loving Christians are "the salt of the earth" and "the light of the world." Dear brethren in the Lord, will you receive these well-intended admonitions? Will we love as brethren? Will we be pitiful and kind? Will the saints cease to speak evil of each other? O, shall we not rather admonish one another of faults, and pray for the salvation of God's children? If those who hate their brethren are "murderers," broad is the road of murderers, and many there be who go in thereat; while narrow is the way of the saints, and few there be who walk therein.

In conclusion, suffer me, O ye people of God, to remind you of your high calling, and of the great truth that all the law and the prophets hang upon the two commandments—love to God and love to the brethren.

Conscience.

BY O. C. LAMBERT.

It would be folly to conclude that because a man carried a watch he had reliable time. It is no more reasonable to think that because a man has a conscience he has an infallible guide. A watch may be set wrong, regulated wrong, neglected, disregarded, or dropped and otherwise roughly handled, and it cannot be relied upon. A watch within itself may run too fast or too slow. Therefore, within itself it is no timepiece. They must get the time with the sun; and when they vary from the sun for any reason, they are wrong. The sun is the guide, but the watch is not. The engineer is always supposed to govern his actions by his watch. We would not have him do otherwise. But he may believe he has correct time when he has not. The results are equally disastrous as if he had willfully gone wrong. A great many of life's disasters are caused in the same way. People sometimes follow their conscience when it is wrong. As the watch must be set by and kept with the sun to be a guide, so our conscience must be regulated at all times by the word of the Lord before we can follow it in safety.

Since the law of gravitation is universal, why does not some "smart Aleck" try to prove that a monkey is a degenerate man?

TRACTS AND BOOKLETS.

The following tracts and booklets can be had from the Gospel Advocate Company:

The Establishment of the Kingdom (L. R. Sewell)05
Modern Geology Rebuked (I. N. Jones)05
Faith that Qualifies for Baptism (Durst-McQuiddy)10
Instrumental Music in the Service of God (D. Lipscomb)	Free
Theological Grub Ax (W. L. Butler)10
Church Organization (E. G. Sewell)	Free
Walking by Faith (Kurfees)05
Sincerity Seeking the Way to Heaven (B. Franklin)05
Review of John B. Cowden's Tract on Instrumental Music in the Church (Kurfees)	Free
Searching the Scriptures (T. Fanning)10
Christian Eldership (Scobey)10
Is Salvation Conditional? (Dalton-Burnett)15
Doctrine of Sanctification (Carr)10
Bible Doctrine of Sanctification (Elam)10
Stark-Warlick Debate50
Theological Debate (Bretners-Herod)25
Out of Darkness into Light (Z. T. Winfree)05
Philip Worthy (Debet)25

Many other tracts are in the office for distribution. They are good for use in protracted meetings.

Address Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Our Contributors

When the Lord Was King

BY F. L. PAISLEY.

As a law, the New Testament is the one by which we are to be governed instead of the Old Testament; but some of the finest lessons and most sublime principles, that are as eternal as heaven itself, are found in the Old Testament. They "were written for our admonition" (1 Cor. 10: 11); they were written for our learning" (Rom. 15: 4); and dull is the student of the Book who cannot be admonished or taught from those lessons. Unfortunate is the church that does not study them and teach them diligently to its members. Let me drift from my subject just here enough to say that the church or individual not following the International Sunday-school Lessons, now in the Old Testament, as presented by Brother Smith, is missing a treat indeed.

No doubt every sin that Christians commit to-day was committed by God's people of old, and every principle of faithfulness to God is outlined in the things "written aforetime."

The history of Israel and God's dealings with them is flooded with warnings and admonitions which, if followed in principle to-day, would save Christians and churches from wreck and ruin. Every gospel preacher reverts to it frequently, and the apostles warned by it continually. After destroying seven nations in Canaan, the Lord gave Israel judges to oversee their national affairs. Government by judges was a system that worked well, for it was God's order. But he never forces people to keep his way when they become displeased with it and are determined to reject it. However, he seldom gives another system or way in its stead; but this time he granted the desired change, with the assurance, as always the case, that they must suffer the consequences. For about "four hundred and fifty years" these judges ruled as earthly leaders. (Acts 13: 20.) Nations around Israel had kings—kings who were visible to the eye; who were mortal, erring, sinful men. Israel had a king, too, but they could not see him. The Lord was their king. Their fathers in Egypt had been environed by people who had gods they could see. So, accustomed to that, they demanded that their god be one they could see. The golden calf at Sinai's foot was the result. Now, "a king that we can see" became the popular demand. It was granted. As "no man can serve two masters," neither can a people have two kings. So long as the Lord was their king, no other one could be. Samuel, the last of the judges, was deposed and Saul was chosen the first visible king. Samuel as judge and the Lord as king were deposed and dethroned at the same time. Samuel had been a very fair and faithful judge. He called upon them to name the unfair thing that he had done. They were unable to do so, and so admitted. This shows that they did not oppose him, but the system. It was God's system; so, in rejecting it, they rejected not the judge, but the king. (1 Sam. 8: 7.) After the change, Samuel told Israel that all this happened "when the Lord your God was your king." (1 Sam. 12: 12.) Then, when Samuel said this, the Lord was not their king. They had rejected God for a man! What a change in kings! What an unwise trade! How sad that that has been done so many times since by people not Jews! It was an age of prosperity and happiness when the Lord was truly king. Sadness, sorrow, wreck, and ruin filled the time when he was not their king.

The principle has not changed with the ages. When the Lord is king, no man can be. When man becomes king, it can only be said that the Lord was king. Man becomes the king of any people when his way supplants the Lord's. Only a glance shows that the Lord is not king in many places where they "call me Lord, Lord, and do not the things which I say."

But there might be another lesson in this rejection of the Lord and the choice of a man in his stead. It was said above that the system of judges was God's system. It will have to be admitted that, finally, the system actually failed, which was a cause, in part, of the demand for a king. Then, did God's way fail? Yes, it did. It is not admitted that the fault was in the system or wisdom of its Author. It is firmly denied that such was the case. God inaugurated the system with man to operate it. The failure was in the operation. Because of his own advanced age, Samuel made his sons judges in his stead. But "they walked not in his ways," "but turned aside after lucre, and took bribes, and perverted judgment." (1 Sam. 8: 1-3.) We should not place all the blame on those who demanded a change in the way of government. A large portion of the responsibility rests on those who turned aside and made acceptable operation fail. Both parties are to blame and must suffer the wrath of a dethroned King. God's system sometimes fails now. His way of government of the church is the Christ as King ruling through elders in the congregation. Too often elders "turn aside" and "walk not in his [God's] way." The system fails. The fault is not in the system, but in the operation. The King's method of preaching the gospel to the lost is for a church or churches to send out a man or men; and when souls are turned "from darkness to light, and from the power of Satan unto God," then "unto him be glory in the church" (Eph. 3: 21), because "the manifold wisdom of God" has been made "known by the church" (verse 10). This system often fails. The failure is not in the weakness of the system or method, but in the operation—rather, lack of operation. If some in the church who are not willing to do nothing then organize a system not the Lord's, thus dethroning him as King, those in the church who would not operate the divine plan should not put all the blame on those who "called for a king." Both parties will have to suffer the wrath of a dethroned King.

The same could be said about the worship. God's plan is that worshipers should "sing." When this plan fails, the fault is not in the system (for every one knows it works well), but in those who fail to operate it. Many congregations do not really try to sing, it seems. Those who want "good music" call for a change. Often, not always, they are those not trying much to make the divine plan a success. The change often comes without much regard for the divine system. In all these cases the Lord would say to those who, like Samuel, really want God's way retained: "They have not rejected thee, but they have rejected me." In whatever it be, if God's way is rejected, he is dethroned, and then it can only be said that "the Lord was your king." Finally, let me quote from Brother Smith in the lesson of June 18: "No matter which route a nation, church, or individual takes in departing from God's law and system of rule for man, the same end is inevitably reached—viz., destruction."

To the Friends of the Gospel Advocate.

BY S. H. HALL.

That the Gospel Advocate has friends by the thousands goes without argument, and that these many friends want the paper to grow and improve in every way is a matter of course. This paper has withstood the storms of more than sixty-three years. Its name has been made almost immortal because of the faith and loyalty of such men as the sainted Tolbert Fanning, David Lipscomb, William Lipscomb, Granville Lipscomb, F. D. Srygley, J. A. Harding, and others, who, though dead, still live in the hearts of those who knew them and have read the Gospel Advocate. Then E. G. Sewell should be named, who, though still with us in body, is with those grand old characters gone before in spirit in a larger measure than with us. And to name a few more of the older ones who are yet able to do active service that have had to do in making the name of the Gospel Advocate great, I would give M. C. Kurfees, J. W. Shepherd, T. B. Larimore, E. A. Elam, F. W. Smith, F. B. Srygley, J. E. Scobey, John R. Williams, and last, but not least, J. C. McQuiddy, who, perhaps, is responsible for the success of the Advocate in a financial way as no other man could have been. These men just named will soon be with the others who have joined Abraham, Isaac, and Jacob, Paul and Peter, and the millions of others "over there." Fifteen years from to-day not one of these men will be able to help fight the battles before us.

There are many others who have run through my mind while thinking of the ones named above, those who are not so old as the last-named list, but the number is too great to be given here.

There is just a word I want to say to those who are younger and upon whose shoulders soon will rest a responsibility greater than we are now appreciating. "The Gospel Advocate Company" has been fully organized and an effort is being made to put the paper on a higher plane of usefulness than ever before. To this end, the company has secured the services of Brother H. Leo Boles, who is to give the best there is in him in helping to make the Advocate a paper that will continually uplift and help us all. Brother Boles does not claim perfection, nor was he secured because any one thought he had attained it. I do believe, however, that the look would have been long and in vain had they tried to have found a man who will take criticism more kindly, strive harder to improve, and be governed continually by Jehovah's command to "do justly," "love kindness," and "walk humbly with" his "God." Just where we could have gone to have found a man better fitted for the work, I do not know.

Will not every friend of the Advocate, every soul that desires an onward march for greater victories, give Brother Boles a helping hand? Let him know that your prayers are with him. Make suggestions for his consideration. Let us all, to a man, be helpers indeed! Watch the pages of the Advocate for the many good things that will weekly appear. There will be some criticism seen now and then on its pages, but it will be only such as duty demands to be made public. Needless controversy will not be seen on its pages, but that which is essential to the purity of the church and to save it from "wolves in sheep's clothing" will be seen when necessary, and this you certainly should expect. What would have been the results had D. Lipscomb, F. D. Srygley, and E. G. Sewell closed the pages of the Advocate against exposing those who digressed from primitive practice by introducing the organ and societies in the worship and work of the church? This fight will continue, but it will be wisely waged. Differences between preachers, local church troubles, and all other troubles that pertain not to the welfare of the church at large will be settled elsewhere, and not in the columns of the Gospel Advocate.

In conclusion, let me insist that every reader consider himself and herself as a part of the company. Your words of encouragement are needed; and along with such words, let us have your suggestions and criticisms when you think they are needed. See that the Advocate goes into as many homes as possible in your community.

A FREE-LITERATURE FUND.

I have just learned that one hundred dollars will put Kurfees' review of Payne on the free-literature list. We want this amount in as soon as possible. Then, in addition to this, we want to create a fund that will enable us to cover this whole country with carefully selected literature for free distribution. My brother, have you not a few thousand that you can give toward an endowment fund for such purposes?

Calls for such literature are continually coming from those men who are out doing mission work. Shall these calls continue to go unanswered? Here is a work that has been sorely neglected. We are determined that it shall be neglected no longer. Make your checks payable to Gospel Advocate Company, and be certain to state that it is for free-literature purposes.

A More Aggressive Fight.

BY F. B. SRYGLEY.

It seems that our society and organ brethren have determined to go after us with "shovel and tongs." They have been, as it were, using soft words, but now they seem determined to see "what virtue there is in stones." At their last convention, held at Ovoca, the Committee on Recommendations made the following report:

1. That the action of the convention taken some years ago whereby it was decided not to enter into any field for the purpose of planting a church, which being already occupied by our conservative brethren, be and is hereby rescinded, and that the State Board be instructed to enter any and all fields where there is an opportunity of establishing a church or churches that will represent and interpret to the community and the world the idea and principles of the Restoration Movement.

This sounds like there is to be something doing in these parts. They are now at liberty to enter any community where there is a church at peace, worshiping God as the early Christians did without the organ or the society, and stir up trouble over that which Brother Cowden has always treated as a nonessential. Now, brethren, as you are determined to agitate these things, we shall make the best of it. We hate to see you change. You have been very goody-goody, and now, with your spurs on, you will look like yourself. They want to establish "a church or churches that will represent and interpret to the community and the world the idea and principles of the Restoration Movement." What restoration movement? Not the one begun and carried on by such men as A. Campbell, Ben Franklin, Dr. Christopher, or J. W. McGarvey. A. Campbell said of the instrument in worship: "To the really spiritually minded it would be like a cowbell in a concert." B. Franklin said: "There is no provision for the use of instruments in the divine law prescribing the worship. This is not denied by any one. . . . It is simply not in the new covenant. The first account of its use is from the Pope, and not from the Lord; from Rome, and not from Jerusalem; from man, and not from heaven." Dr. Christopher said: "I cannot see in all my horizon one fact, argument, reason, or plea that can justify us in using musical instruments in the worship of the church. It is an innovation on apostolic practice. This cannot be controverted." J. W. McGarvey said: "No scholar has ever taken the position that the singing of psalms requires the use of a musical instrument. It would be as easy to show that the Greek word for baptism requires sprinkling. A few men among us have so argued, but they are not sustained by the real scholars." It will be remembered that J. W. McGarvey came later, and so in his day there were a few overzealous ones arguing for the instrument, but none in the beginning. Are not these brethren really trying to advocate a movement which seems to be headed by O. E. Payne and a few other overzealous ones? I am sure this is not the movement inaugurated by the Campbells, Barton W. Stone, and others, who said: "Where the Bible speaks, we will speak; and where it is silent, we will be silent."

In the Report of the Committee on Recommendations, I give the readers of the Gospel Advocate another stout recommendation as follows:

6. That every preacher of every church in Tennessee be requested to speak out plainly, but kindly, on the issues between ourselves and our conservative brethren, informing the churches and the public generally as to these issues and differences; that the policy of silence be abandoned and a program of education be adopted.

I am glad that these brethren are going to speak plainly. I always did dislike "a snake in the grass." This is an admission, though, that these brethren have not been perfectly frank and sincere heretofore. Some of us feared this all the time. But now they are coming out in the open. We will perhaps lose a few in several of our congregations, but we may gain strength by the loss. An enemy in the camp can do more harm than one outside. "Woe unto the world because of occasions of stumbling! for it must needs be that the occasions come; but woe to that man through whom the occasion cometh!" (Matt. 18: 7.) "For there must also be factions among you, that they that are approved may be made manifest among you." (1 Cor. 11: 19.) These brethren are taking a fearful responsibility upon themselves; but these things, like fire, will separate the dross from the true metal, and the truth will be the stronger. So come on, brethren, with your outspoken campaign of education. And this reminds me that one of the Vine Street brethren went to a good man here in the city and asked for a contribution, saying they had undertaken to raise forty thousand dollars as an educational fund to be used in educating the churches and people in this part of the country. This will be a fine sum, and I have no doubt they can find men who will undertake the job at so much per. This good brother very promptly turned the proposition down.

After this very plain announcement from our society brethren, it seems to me that a few of our brethren could afford to throw away their soft soap, whet up their old Jerusalem blade, and at least make their effort at educating the churches interesting to them. Brethren, stop your croaking and get into line. Don't conclude that the battle is over because you have learned the truth. If you can't help in this conflict, don't try to hinder the men that are making the fight for the truth. While these erring brethren are making their open fight in favor of the instruments of music in the worship of God and missionary societies, let us try our hands in educating against these things. Suppose there is no trouble in your congregation over these things, let us not wait to teach on these questions till it is too late. "There is no use to lock the stable door after the horse has been stolen." I think the worst members we have are those who claim to know and believe the truth, but who are always criticizing those who preach it and who are willing to bare their breasts to the opposition. But with some it has not been popular to contend for the faith. Now it seems that we have got to fight or perish. Let the faint-hearted take notice. Let others do as they will; "but as for me and my house, we will serve the Lord."

Brother Cowden and his Commission on Unity are not living up to the recommendations of the society, for they turned down our proposition to discuss the issue which they themselves have made by indorsing and circulating O. E. Payne's book, "Instrumental Music Is Scriptural." Now, brethren, if you want to educate on this subject, here is a chance which you should by all means avail yourselves of. The society has taken the halter off; now why not use your freedom in a fair, honest discussion of this question before an audience? Payne has given you the proposition: "The New Testament teaches the use of instruments of music in the worship of God." You know this is his position, and you have circulated his book which teaches this. You certainly are not trying to get others to believe a thing you do not believe yourselves. But some one will reach this conclusion if you refuse now to discuss this proposition. I hate to worry you, brethren; but you put yourselves in this predicament, and if it causes your death, it will be a clear case of suicide. I am unable to see how you can evade this issue and still go on with your campaign of education. But we will wait and see which way the wind blows. The reward for educational purposes, it seems, will be made up; but how can you claim any right to any part of it, if you will not do your duty and educate us? We are now willing to be educated; will the teacher come across with his lesson? Is there not a brave man among you? We will adopt the plan of "watchful waiting." In the meantime, if anything turns up, I shall very promptly notify the readers of the Gospel Advocate.

Infidelity in Our Schools.

BY T. F. DUNN.

In an article written by Brother F. W. Smith and published in the Gospel Advocate of May 11, 1922, in reviewing the Cole lectures at Vanderbilt University, delivered by Mr. Fosdick, he makes quite a number of statements that, to my way of thinking, are quite to the point. We have arrived at that stage in university education in which practically all of the professors will accept as well as teach the same ideas advanced by Mr. Fosdick. I am glad to note that some one is willing to speak a word for the Bible and against this growing evil. There has been quite a discussion on this particular subject both pro and con. And, to our astonishment as well as to their spiritual detriment, the theological schools and textbooks readily agree with Mr. Fosdick. I am sorry indeed to note that one of the leading schools (possibly the most popularly known one) among the loyal disciples of Christ at one time had occasion to use some textbooks that were written by professors of theology at some of the various schools which not only adhere to this modern evolution of Christianity, but the authors of these books themselves indorse and teach this so-called "higher education" of religious subjects. These books under a certain branch of the school's curriculum were taught as textbooks, then dropped for a while, but I understand that they are to be introduced again in this particular school. And now, if we who are the children of God by faith in Christ Jesus are to stand by and condone such teaching, we need not expect anything else but in the course of years for our own brethren to have such lectures as the Cole lectures delivered to our schools and that our children will sooner or later take up the ideas and notions taught by Mr. Fosdick.

To sum it up in one sentence, this is skepticism and infidelity in its initial stage, and there is no way of condemning such too severely. The fact is clear that the Bible, both the Old Testament and the New Testament, is as modern on scientific subjects as the idea of any of these modern critics could ever hope to be. For instance, the laws of modern scientific medicine are more clearly set forth in the law of Moses than has ever been in any medical book written by any man or set of men. The sanitary laws of Jerusalem were perfect in controlling contagious diseases, etc. There is not a city in the world today that has anything like as good laws as the city of Jerusalem had. And God understood perfectly, and so taught the Jews, the science of preventive medicine. No other branch of science that man may choose to follow can advance beyond the science that is intimated or taught in the Scriptures. And it is unnecessary to say that every emergency in private or public life, spiritual or otherwise, is met perfectly by the teachings of the Holy Spirit. Any so called "improvement" is only self-destruction.

I had hoped that the occasion would not arrive to speak of the introduction of the modern theology in our own schools, owned and controlled by the faithful followers of Christ; yet necessity compels me to call attention to this subject.

The Gospel Advocate Company.

BY H. LEO B.

We should like for our readers to become familiar with the publication list of the Gospel Advocate Company, hence we print a partial list of books from time to time. We are persuaded that if the readers of the Gospel Advocate knew the many good books on sale at the Advocate office, they would place an order for some of them.

Have you a copy of "Salvation from Sin?" This book is composed of many select editorials of David Lipscomb; it contains many of the profound thoughts of Brother Lipscomb. It is well worth the money. You will find the following subjects discussed in the book: "The Bible," "God," "Christ," "Mission of the Holy Spirit," "The Kingdom of God," "Can We Understand the Bible Alike?" "Faith and Works," etc. Pages, 440. Price, $1.50.

"Cruden's Concordance" (complete). Here is another book that should be in every home. How often you think of a passage of scripture and would like to read it again to refresh your own mind and sometimes to teach your own family or neighbor! But you cannot find it; you look and look and look, but still fail to find it. Your friend or neighbor goes away, and you lose the opportunity to teach him. Why not have a copy of this book which enables you to find any scripture in a few moments? The price is only $2.25.

"The People's New Testament with Notes." This is a very comprehensive commentary of the entire New Testament. There are two volumes. Volume I. comprises the four Gospels and Acts; Volume II. includes the Epistles and Revelation. These volumes will help you to understand any part of the New Testament. The price is $2.50 per volume.

"Teacher's Testament." The "Teacher's Testament" contains notes and comments on the most difficult parts of the New Testament. The notes and helps were prepared by a joint editorial board of the foremost Biblical scholars in every denomination. The text is that of the American Standard Version. The proper names are marked for pronunciation and the words of Christ are emphasized in heavy type. The price is $1.10.

"Sunshine; or, Uncle Minor's Stories." Here is a book for you to laugh and cry over with the children. Each story is rich with gentle sympathy and contains a fine moral lesson. Have you read it? No? Then send now and get a copy. 256 pages. Price, $1.50.

Commending the Young People.

Hazel, Ky., Route 2, July 17.—The Young People, a weekly paper for boys and girls, is very ably edited, and the stories carry a good moral lesson which is wholesome food for the young mind and an inspiration to a greater and more noble effort. Its leading thoughts are cleverly illustrated, which helps the mind to both understand and retain the gems of thought which sparkle with truth and simplicity.—R. L. Hart.

Menlo, Ga., July 11.—I have examined The Young People with some care, and I think it a fine little paper. It behooves the parents to provide their children clean, attractive reading matter. In my opinion, this is the way to keep them at home, away from the 'movies' and other questionable amusements. I do not feel capable of suggesting any improvements in it. It is about as good as could be, unless there were more of it.—Mrs. W. J. Hogg.

The social nature of man makes it needful that, if the redemptive work of Christ is to be made effective for all, it must be done by the creation of a Christian society enveloping the individual like the air he breathes, and leaving no part of him untouched by this atmosphere.—Fliggis.

"The Kingdom Come."

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

Under the heading, "Moodyism," I recently called attention to the tactics of the Moody preachers. They are strong on condemning sin, and also sure that the Jews will go back to Jerusalem. They get the name of preaching more Bible than the regular sectarian preacher. But they have no position of their own. The only thing they contend for is that bad is not good and that everybody ought to be good.

They can well afford to denounce the errors of any denomination, as they do not claim to belong to any one in particular; yet they give practical indorsement to every sect, for they recognize all of them as being on equal terms in their union meetings. They condemn instrumental music, and then always use all the instruments they can get, including horns and fiddles. All this has recently been done by one Ham in Florence, Ala., and Lawrenceburg, Tenn. Ham is a regular Moody preacher.

But one thing of which they are very positive is that the kingdom of Christ has not been set up, but will be at his second advent. There is no doubt that they are really pressing these things in every Moody meeting. One has but to observe closely any union meeting held by a Moody man, and he will hear the future-kingdom idea preached. I mention this because many of our brethren are infatuated when they first hear a Moody man. But don't be carried away, brethren, for he is just a common sectarian, trying to get our attendance at the meeting and our contribution to its support.

Some don't know that the Moody people are publishing weekly comments on the International Sunday-school Lessons. These comments are written by Dr. P. B. Fitzwater, of the Moody Bible Institute, Chicago. In Lawrenceburg, recently, I picked up the Lawrence Democrat, and saw the lesson for May 7, "Isaiah's Remedy for a World at Strife." Those beautiful but highly figurative verses in Isa. 2: 2-4 and 11: 1-9 have never been fulfilled at all, according to Dr. Fitzwater. The lion has never eaten straw as an ox, literally; so there is no fulfillment. It would be as reasonable to say that Dan. 7: 6 has never been fulfilled, because no one has ever seen a leopard with four wings and four heads.

These "prophetic" interpreters would have us believe that these things were all spoken with direct regard to wolves and lions. Once Moses said: "Thou shalt not muzzle the ox that treadeth out the grain." (Deut. 25: 4.) But Paul said: "Yea, for our sake it was written." (1 Cor. 9: 10.) Yea, and so was Isa. 9: 1-8. Evidently, when Japanese and Chinese, Roumanians and Bulgarians, Hindus and Syrians, Mohammedans and Catholics, Democrats and monarchists, Bolsheviks and anarchists, negroes and Indians, Americans and Swedes, Dutchmen and Irishmen, saints and sinners, all dwell in the same town, with no disposition on the part of any one to do the others violence, it is a condition well worthy of prophetic notice. Especially is this remarkable, since originally this was not so, but there was perpetual warfare between the different nations and between the different tribes of the same nation. Things are bad enough as they are, but they are so far ahead of what they were at one time that it is easy to see a reasonable fulfillment of Isaiah's prophecy.

To make the contrast clearer between the present days and the past ages, read the experience of Lot when the angels were at his house for the night; also the case in Judg. 19. It was necessary to pass special laws to protect strangers who might pass through any city of Israel. (Ex. 22: 21; Lev. 19: 33.) Too many take the present-day blessings as a matter of course, as if they had always been enjoyed by the world. To get a proper estimate of present-day blessings, one must not contrast them with ideally perfect conditions, but with conditions as they were before the coming of Christ, and as they would be now without the direct or indirect influence of the teaching of Christ.

This is one point overlooked by "future kingdom" people. They are looking for ideal conditions under the reign of Christ. Some of these things they look for will be realized in the next age, but it will be after the reign of Christ is finished. The kingdom is an everlasting kingdom, and it will never end, but at the coming of Christ the Ruler will be changed from the Son back to the Father. (1 Cor. 15: 24.)

The main objection to "future kingdom" teaching is that it robs Christ of the glory he should have now, with a view to honoring him in a coming age. But those who do not worship Christ as King now will never do so at all. When they think they will be ready to begin worshiping him as King, then he will be ready to cease reigning as King and deliver up the kingdom to the Father. To fail to worship Christ as King now is a mistake that can never be corrected.

However, there are certain passages of scripture that are often quoted to prove that Christ's kingdom will be perpetual and universal in this earth. A favorite one is Rev. 11: 15. But look at that verse carefully. "The kingdom [not kingdoms] of the world is become the kingdom of our Lord and of his Christ: and he shall reign forever and ever." "He shall reign." Who is "he?" It is not Christ at all, but the Father. The succeeding verses show it to be the beginning of the reign of "the Lord God, the Almighty," and that is after the reign of Christ is finished. Luke 21: 31 and context puts the drawing nigh of the kingdom at the close of this age. But Luke calls it the kingdom of God, and not of Christ. Zech. 14 is often referred to as proof that the kingdom is to be set up in the future with Christ as King. But verse 9 says: "And Jehovah shall be King over all the earth." A clear reference to the kingdom after Christ gives it up to the Father. This is true of any passage regarding the kingdom not already fulfilled—it finds its fulfillment in the kingdom of God, and not in the kingdom of Christ.

Of course, there is a sense in which the Father and Son are one, but in this sense of reigning they are separate and distinct persons.

In the study of this subject, due allowance should always be made for figurative language, and the kingdom of God and of Christ should not be confused. No two passages should be forced to contradict each other, and difficult or figurative language should be interpreted by that which is evidently plain. Peter says: "The earth and the works that are therein shall be burned up." (2 Pet. 3: 10.) So neither Christ nor the Father is to literally reign upon this earth perpetually, for it will not be here. (Rev. 21: 1.)

Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes.

BY W. EDGAR MILLER.

A man's worth or strength of character is not judged altogether by the common events of his daily life. He may live a good, moral life from day to day under ordinary circumstances; but when a severe trial or temptation befalls him, he may yield and fall, or he may overcome the temptation and thus prove his worth under fire. It is the same with a congregation. It may run along and prosper and seem strong and substantial under ordinary circumstances; but when a test comes, it may fail, or it may endure and come out victor. If the right spirit is in the hearts of its members, it will withstand the trials and tribulations that may befall it.

We have every reason to believe that the Central congregation, at 1720 South Flower Street, is going to prove to be the kind that will overcome its trials and temptations and stand on the solid Rock of Ages through them all. It has met every emergency so far, and with a most excellent spirit, and the struggle has not been altogether unattended by difficulties. Recently our treasury has been running very close, and last Sunday an appeal was made to relieve this situation, with the result that within a few minutes more than one hundred dollars was raised—this in addition to the regular contribution of over sixty dollars. Also, the day saw one of the best crowds we have had at Central. These facts mean much to those who are in close touch with the situation, for they bespeak a brotherly love and fellowship that it is good to see. We pray that this condition may not only continue to exist, but that it may grow stronger as the days come and go, and that this congregation may become a tower of strength and set an example that others may be constrained to follow, if they are not already doing so.

We were made glad when, at the close of the evening services, a bright and promising young man came forward and made the good confession. "Remember now thy Creator in the days of thy youth, while the evil days come not, nor the years draw nigh, when thou shalt say, I have no pleasure in them." (Eccles. 12: 1.) Mankind is running to and fro throughout the earth seeking for pleasure and happiness, not knowing that the happy man is he who takes God's advice and heeds his counsel. And right here I want to pay tribute to the young people of Central congregation. We have a most excellent crowd of young folks, and I will venture that one will look far and wide before he will discover a band of more earnest young Christians. They are always in their places at all the services and are interested in the work of the Lord. I know that I speak for the congregation as a whole when I say that we are proud of them.

"Let us hear the conclusion of the whole matter: Fear God, and keep his commandments: for this is the whole duty of man. For God shall bring every work into judgment, with every secret thing, whether it be good, or whether it be evil." (Eccles. 12: 13, 14.)

"Information" Forthcoming.

BY H. W. JONES.

As Brother Lee Jackson "denies that the Roman empire was represented in the image as interpreted by Daniel" and "appeals" to us (T. J. Marrs and me) "for information verifying their assumed premise," I will try to "inform" him, as I "assumed" nothing in our debate.

1. I believe "the fourth kingdom of the image was the Roman empire," because (a) the Scriptures plainly indicate that each of these kingdoms "shall bear rule over all the earth" (Dan. 2: 39), as the Roman empire did for the first and last time after the fall of the "third kingdom of brass;" and (b) because the "fourth kingdom" was to "subdue all things"—"break in pieces and crush"—which was exactly what the Roman empire did and the kingdom of Seleucidæ and the kingdom of the Ptolemies did not; and (c) because it was to be the "fourth kingdom" (singular number), not kingdoms (plural), as Brother Jackson has it. Hence, the "fourth kingdom" could be none other than the Roman empire, or kingdom, as none like it, fulfilling prophetic requirements, rose from the ruins of the Grecian empire. Yes, Brother Jackson, "then came Alexander the Great" from Macedon, Europe, not Asia, and conquered the Medo-Persian empire in Asia, and thus extended the "third kingdom" westward into Europe. See? Macedon and Greece not "within boundaries of Nebuchadnezzar's territory"—sure!

2. Rome, in turn, conquered the remains of Alexander's divided kingdom and thus "ruled all the earth." So it is easy to see how Rome grew to govern all the world, 30 B.C., when the reign of the Ptolemies in Egypt ended and that country became a Roman province. Syria was conquered thirty-five years before this by Pompey, a Roman general, and thus became a Roman province. So "Rome was" not "wholly confined to Italy" (nor Europe, as to that) when this prophecy concerning the "fourth kingdom" was fulfilled. So that is "how it was." See? Nothing in Daniel's interpretation to indicate continental limitations or boundaries of kingdoms!

3. When I "make the prophecy refer to the kings of the Roman empire," I do not have to "account for the long period of time between the fall of Alexander's empire and the birth of Christ" (which occurred sixty-five years after the beginning of Roman dominion in Palestine). Why? Because (1) nothing is said in the Scriptures concerning the length of any "period of time" between the fall of one kingdom, or world power, and the rise of another upon its ruins; and (2) Alexander's empire was divided at his death, B.C. 323, hence did not really end till these main divisions—Egypt, Syria, Macedonia, and Greece—were conquered by the Romans. Nothing intimated, in Daniel's interpretation, that these four world powers, "kingdoms," were to be over the same "old territory of Nebuchadnezzar," and perhaps many of us would never have heard of such an idea had Brother Jackson not presented it in his "suggestions." And, Brother Jackson, permit me to say that I have tried hard to "know history" by carefully reading many volumes of general history; and, too, Jones always tries to "think for himself and not be content with adopting ideas of others" (not well-founded, not scriptural). Hence, I cannot "adopt" Brother Jackson's "ideas" on the "fourth kingdom" as set forth in his "Suggestions to H. W. Jones and T. J. Marrs." He makes the "fourth kingdom" mean "the kingdom of Seleucidæ in Asia and the kingdom of the Ptolemies in Egypt." But I cannot understand how one kingdom ("fourth kingdom") was two kingdoms any better than I can understand how "one is two!" And, worse for his "ideas," the kingdom of the Seleucidæ and the Ptolemies had fallen to the Roman empire nearly a century before Christ's kingdom was set up on earth! So it could not possibly be in the days of those kings, as they did not exist! Christ's government—kingdom—arose in and under the Roman government, or kingdom, Judea, at the birth of Christ, being a Roman province, and the Roman empire being full-grown and at the zenith of its imperial splendor, military glory, legislative authority, and literary eminence at the time! "The fourth kingdom shall devour, tread down, and break in pieces, the whole earth," says Daniel (7: 23). Rome did that. The Ptolemies, nor Seleucidæ, did nothing like it. Therefore, everything points to the Roman empire as the "fourth kingdom," and nothing to the little kingdoms of Egypt and Syria as such.

[Space forbids further discussion of this subject in the Gospel Advocate at present, and this will close the discussion.—J. C. McQ.]

SPECIAL OFFER.

We are trying to increase the circulation of the Gospel Advocate, knowing that as we increase its circulation we are broadening its field of usefulness and thereby doing more good for our Master. Will you coöperate with us in this good work? The subscription list of the Gospel Advocate is growing daily, and we want you to help us do even greater things for the Lord through its columns. Here is our Special Offer: If you will send us two new subscribers for a year, we will send you a copy of Peloubet's "Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons." This book includes all the Sunday-school lessons for the year 1922. It formerly sold for $2. The price of the Gospel Advocate is $2 per year. Send to the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Evangelistic Notes

J. V. Armstrong Traylor is in a meeting at Hilham, Tenn.

Ira Wommack preached at Ardmore, Okla., on July 16. One baptism.

C. B. Douthitt preached one week at Stop, Ky., following the Wooldridge-Hines debate.

J. H. Horton has just closed a meeting at Russellville, Ala., with twenty-eight baptisms.

T. B. Potter, Hillsboro, Ala., preached on the third Lord's day in July at College Grove, Tenn.

A. G. Freed recently held a meeting at Sedalia, Ky., with nine additions. Harry Hayes led the singing.

J. C. Hollis, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., closed his third meeting at St. Joseph, Tenn., on July 14. One was baptized.

G. E. Claus, Valdosta, Ga., would like to hold two meetings during the month of August. Let us keep him busy.

A. R. Hill, Charleston, Miss., reports two good services at Enid on July 16. He began a meeting at Central Academy on July 23.

E. O. Coffman, Lawrenceburg, Tenn., closed an interesting meeting at Owen's Chapel on July 13. Seven were baptized and one restored.

Thomas C. King closed a meeting at Southside, near Ashland City, Tenn., with seven baptisms. He is now in a meeting in Ashland City.

H. C. Chester, Kirksey, Ky.: "Charley Taylor recently conducted a good meeting at Brewers, Ky. Brother Taylor is now at Cottontown, Tenn."

C. H. Smithson, Hatfield, Ark., reports a good meeting in progress at that place, with five additions to date. He goes to Treanor, Ky., in September.

F. O. Howell, Jackson, Tenn., reports that they are enjoying an era of peace and harmony. They recently added eight classrooms to their building.

R. V. Cawthon began at Tracy City, Tenn., on June 25 and closed on the night of July 6. The meeting resulted in six baptisms and one restoration.

L. R. Wilson closed his third annual meeting at Bethesda, Ark., with five baptized and one restored. He is now at Friendship, near Searcy, Ark.

H. Leo Boles will preach at Reid Avenue, this city, next Sunday. B. H. Murphy conducts the singing. George W. Farmer will begin a meeting there on August 20.

J. T. Harris held a meeting at Mount Hope Church, near Waynesboro, Tenn., in which two were baptized. He is now in an interesting meeting at Belmont, Miss.

L. P. Whaley began a meeting at Union, twelve miles east of Hartselle, Morgan County, Ala. He speaks very encouragingly of the work in that part of the State.

Charles Young and Virginia Tilford were united in matrimony by L. B. Jones at his home in Murfreesboro, Tenn. We pray God's blessings upon this new home.

Mrs. Grace Barber, Talladega, Ala., Route 1, asks for a meeting in her neighborhood. It is purely a mission point, with only two members. Will some congregation help them?

H. M. Phillips has just closed a good meeting at Tyner, Tenn., with two baptisms. He is now at Mount Juliet, Tenn. He says: "I am glad to see the Gospel Advocate improve."

W. Clarence Cooke, of Tracy City, Tenn., began a meeting last Lord's day near Ashland City, Tenn. He will take up work with the church at Covington, Tenn., about November 1.

E. L. Whitaker, Memphis, Tenn., recently closed a meeting at Steele, Mo., with twelve additions. They have no house, but plan to cultivate ten acres in cotton some years, to be applied to that purpose.

Will W. Slater, Fort Smith, Ark., closed a good meeting at Belton, Texas. Thirteen were baptized, one was restored, and one came from the Christian Church. He began at Emerson, Ark., on July 18.

D. P. Craig has changed his address from Walnut, Miss., to 278 Greenlaw Avenue, Memphis, Tenn. He teaches in Draughton's Business College and preaches on Sunday. Those near Memphis should keep him busy.

Austin Matheny, Recluse, Wyoming: "J. O. Golphenee has just closed a short meeting at this place. There is not a single church house belonging to 'Christians only' in his entire State (Montana). He needs our help."

Willie Hunter, Livingston, Tenn., closed a meeting at Samaria, Putnam County, Tenn., on July 15, with five baptisms and two restorations. Last week he held a meeting at Bethlehem, and is now at Zion, Jackson County.

Earnest C. Love writes from Quebeck, Tenn., under date of July 17: "I closed at Quebeck, White County, yesterday, with fifteen baptized and one reclaimed, and began at Antioch, in Van Buren County, yesterday afternoon."

C. A. Norred, Knoxville, Tenn., writes commending the Gospel Advocate, and says: "I have been immeasurably helped by what I interpreted to be a settled determination to contend earnestly, and with dignity, for the faith."

L. E. Jones, of Metropolis, Ill., began a meeting at Benton, Ill., and continued it one week, when W. F. Mathis took hold to continue it longer. Five have been baptized and ten have placed membership. David Flatt is leading the songs.

A. G. Freed recently closed a good meeting at Sedalia, Ky., in which eight were baptized and one restored. Harry Hayes led the singing. Brother Hayes could sing for a meeting from July 26 to August 12. His address is Hornbeak, Tenn.

A. H. Porterfield, Imboden, Ark.: "O. E. Billingsley recently closed a fine meeting here. Three were baptized. The writer did the singing. We will be with the church here for a three-weeks' meeting in August. I go from here to Noland, Ark."

J. H. Morris, Tuscumbia, Ala., preached at Morning Star Schoolhouse, near Tuscumbia, Ala., on Saturday night, July 15, with encouraging results. Next day he preached at Iuka, Miss., morning and evening, to good audiences. One was baptized.

J. D. Jones, Wells Avenue, Huntsville, Ala., closed a short meeting at Short Mountain, near Woodbury, Tenn., with five baptized and one reclaimed. He will hold four other meetings in the vicinity of Morrison, Tenn., and is at present at Ivy Bluff.

Tim Walker preached on July 16 at Barn Creek, twelve miles west of Haleyville, Ala. Two were restored. He preached at Wiley's Branch in the afternoon to an attentive audience. This congregation has been established two years and is very zealous.

E. L. Whitaker, Memphis, Tenn.: "The work at McKellar Avenue is growing. On the first Lord's day in July three were baptized and last Lord's day another. Our midweek Bible class is also thriving. James Wright preaches at Walker Avenue mission each Lord's day."

We sympathize greatly with J. H. Murrell, McEwen, Tenn. His wife has been in ill health for a long time and is now confined at the Central Hospital for the mentally infirm. His children are at McEwen. Those who would like to lighten his burden may communicate with him or with J. E. Fanning, cashier of the McEwen bank.

J. L. Hines, Montgomery, Ala.: "We have plans drawn for our new church house. It will cost ten thousand dollars, and we must raise half of that amount before work starts. We have three thousand dollars promised, but only five hundred in the bank. If our friends will give us a lift, we can raise the five thousand. I began at Ozark, Ala., last Lord's day."

F. L. Paisley, Martin, Tenn., has begun his evangelistic work for the summer. He says: "The church here has Brother Keeble under its new tent with the colored folks. He is doing fine work. I will use the tent next at a mission point. C. M. Stubblefield will do the preaching in our meeting here in August. Armstrong Traylor will lead the singing. Churches in Crockett County have all my time for next year to 'do the work of an evangelist.' We hope to do much good in such coöperation of churches. On page 624 of the Gospel Advocate of June 29, in the first column, tenth line from the bottom, the word 'obedience' should be 'disobedience.'"

Vernon Rozar is in a meeting at Grant, Tenn.

L. B. Jones is in a meeting at Rock Springs, Tenn.

Andrew Perry is in a meeting at Mammoth, W. Va.

J. Clifford Murphy is in a meeting at Lineville, Ala.

Eph Smith is in a good meeting near Murfreesboro, Tenn.

O. T. Shearer recently closed a meeting at Harrisonville, Ky.

R. L. Colley will begin a meeting at Millville, Ark., on August 5.

Thomas D. Rose recently closed a meeting at Forks of Elkhorn, Ky.

M. C. Kurfees is in a meeting at Jericho, his old home, near Asheville, N. C.

J. L. Hines is in a meeting at Coopertown, Tenn., with five baptisms to date.

B. C. Goodpasture is in a meeting at Lynnville, Tenn., with one baptism to date.

Joe L. Netherland has just closed at Miller's Chapel, Dyer County, Tenn., with nine baptisms.

C. H. Baker has just closed a meeting at Dothan, Tenn., with ten baptisms. He is now at Sharp.

Have you ordered your copy of "Hardeman's Tabernacle Sermons?" We urge you to do so at once.

F. L. Archie, Box 545, Truman, Ark., wants to buy, rent, or borrow a tent for August or September.

G. A. Dunn's meeting at Brownsville, Tenn., resulted in eight additions, with good interest and good crowds.

S. Houston Proffitt, of Chattanooga, Tenn., will preach at Twenty-second Avenue, this city, next Lord's day.

C. M. Gleaves closed a meeting at Holly Springs, Tenn., on July 20. Six were baptized and two reclaimed.

Two good audiences at Russell Street, this city, last Sunday. Two additions from Vine Street Christian Church.

H. L. Olmstead recently conducted a meeting at Westmoreland, Tenn., with six baptisms. They have a new house.

J. H. McBroom is in a meeting at Hilham, Tenn. He has just closed at Kingwood, in Rutherford County, with one baptism.

V. E. Gregory preached at Twelfth Avenue, North, this city last Lord's day. James A. Allen will preach next Lord's day.

M. B. Newsom (colored), Manchester, Tenn., preached at Murfreesboro, Tenn., the first Lord's day in July. One baptism reported.

Charley Taylor has just closed a good meeting at Cotton-town, Tenn. Four were baptized. He began at Lascassas, Tenn., on July 23.

R. B. Henry has just closed a meeting at Dry Creek, near Waverly. Seven baptized, three reclaimed. He is now in Johnsonville, Tenn.

M. C. Kurfees will hold a meeting at Shelbyville, Ky., in September. They want a good song leader. Write R. A. Craig, at that place.

Alonzo Williams recently held a mission meeting at Spring Hill, Ky.; since that time, at Fairview, with eight additions. He is now at Sparrow.

D. D. Woody closed a meeting at Kenton, Tenn., with seven baptisms. He is now at Christian Chapel. He changes his address to Gadsden, Tenn., Route 1.

William F. Etheridge's meeting at Dexter, Ky., resulted in two baptisms and one restoration. He goes to Hickory Grove, near Murray, Ky., then to Hohenwald, Tenn.

Joe Ratcliffe and Harry Hayes are in a meeting at State Line, Ky. Brother Hayes can sing for meetings from July 25 to August 12. His address is Hornbeak, Tenn.

W. F. Lemmons recently held a meeting in North Little Rock, Ark. He is now at Casa. He will be at Ellbright, Tenn., on August 19. He can spare some time in September.

L. L. Yeagley closed on July 18 at Palmer's Chapel, in Sumner County, Tenn. Two confessions and two baptisms.

He then began at Bell's Branch, near Graham, Hickman County, Tenn.

Willis G. Jernigan, Olathe, Col., closed a meeting at Coal Creek on July 13. Seventeen were baptized and a congregation established. This is the second congregation he has got together since January 1.

Any one knowing of Christians in Helena or West Helena, Ark., will please communicate with Miss Jennie Cook Vineyard, stenographer at McRae Wholesale Company there. She is hoping that a church may be established.

E. E. Shoulders, New York City, reports the Sunday services and street services as very encouraging, but they are still in great need of financial assistance there. Address George M. McKee, Box 15, Station N, New York.

Every teacher should have a copy of "Peloubet's Select Notes on the Sunday-school Lessons." It can be had for one dollar and twenty-five cents from the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

G. F. Gibbs, Greenville, S. C.: "The work here moves along nicely. The meeting recently closed resulted in three baptisms. Sixteen members were present at communion last Lord's day. We have planned another meeting for next week."

J. G. Malphurs closed at Legate, Tenn., with fourteen baptisms, all married except two. He goes to Adams, in Robertson County, next. If there are any Christians there or near, write him. Brother Prevatt's meeting at Oakwood resulted in ten additions from all sources.

H. V. Hood, Brownsville, Tenn., Route 5, makes an appeal in behalf of a mission meeting in that destitute place, to be held by W. L. Reeves, of North Carolina. There have been only two sermons preached there, and the people are anxious to hear. Send your contributions to him.

H. C. Harris, Vernon, Ala., is in his third annual meeting at that place. He recently closed a meeting at Walnut Grove, near Sallito, Miss., resulting in one baptism. They had used the organ for an all-day singing and allowed it to remain in the worship. After his teaching they laid it aside. He goes there for a meeting next year.

We have just received a notice of the passing of our good brother, N. W. Proffitt, of Paris, Texas. He had been ill for nearly a year, and his condition was reported as hopeless sometime ago. We deeply sympathize with the bereaved ones, and we also rejoice that our brother has fought the good fight, has finished his course, and has kept the faith. We shall expect some one to prepare a more extended notice for our columns.

There will be a reunion on August 3, at Centennial Park, Nashville, Tenn., of all girl students of David Lipscomb College during the administration of Miss Effie Anderson and her mother. Each girl is expected to bring a basket in preparation for the picnic dinner to be served at one o'clock. A committee will remain at the Broad Street entrance from ten to one o'clock. Come early and spend the day. A great many are coming, and are anticipating a day of pleasure. Each one reading this announcement will please inform as many as possible of the arrangements.

W. N. Abernathy submitted the following propositions to A. U. Nunnery, editor of the "Tennessee Department" in the Baptist Worker, and has been awaiting some time for an acceptance: (1) "A man may become a Christian, live the Christian life, and be saved in heaven without becoming a member of any church, and the Scriptures so teach." (2) "The church of which Jesus Christ is the head and founder includes all Christians, and the same process that makes a man a Christian makes him a member of that church, and the Scriptures so teach." Nunnery is asked to affirm the first proposition, while Brother Abernathy will affirm the other. We hope to hear more of the matter later.

R. A. Craig, of Shelbyville, Ky.: "I have been at Martinsville, Ind., for a few days, trying to recuperate. While returning from the Monticello meeting, I had a stroke of paralysis which affected the right side of my face. This trouble, I think, was due to my run-down condition. I have been working too hard for the past two years, and have not looked after my health as I should. I am much better now, thanks to Jehovah, and I will be on the firing line again soon. The work in Shelbyville moves along with good interest. Brother Kurfees will conduct our meeting this fall. We want to get in touch with a good song leader, one who can make this meeting a glorious success in song. Write me at Shelbyville, Ky."

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL.

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

Reply to Brother Dunn.

BY C. R. N.

Brother Dunn thinks we can afford to disregard any points of difference and work together on common ground of agreement. But how are we to follow this principle and follow Rom. 16: 17: "Now I beseech you, brethren, mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned: and turn away from them?" Must a man give up every principle of New Testament teaching before we are warranted in obeying this? Must he renounce every principle of virtue and honesty before we are commanded to turn away from him? Is the Main Street Christian Church responsible for the division in Waxahachie? Is the College Street Church responsible? Let the blame for the division be properly placed, and then the duty of the Christian is plain. Certainly it is well at all times to see how nearly we agree, but let us not ignore the fact that division exists and thereby disobey Paul.

Brother Dunn exhorts: "Let us lay aside all personalities." What does he mean? Personalities need not be offensive; but it is hard to keep personalities out of a discussion in which "I" is so prominent as in last week's article from Brother Dunn. Count the times he uses "I," "my," "me"—at least eighty times. Besides, Brother Dunn assumes the responsibility for that meeting. How can we leave him and his course out of the discussion? But I do not want to be offensive and have not been disrespectful. But I could not carry on this discussion to please Brother Dunn without indorsing him and his course. Is one his enemy because he tells him the truth?

But for his sake and the sake of others, I must protest against his course and against some of his teachings. His course and the possible results of it to him and the cause of Christ fill me with anxiety. Many of his friends feel the same way.

Brother Dunn says the Restoration "movement moved gloriously on until Satan got in his deadly work, divided and scattered the disciples of Christ into warring factions." Surely Brother Dunn did not fully weigh that statement. Does he mean to say that those who introduced innovations constitute a faction, and that those who opposed such departures are also a faction? Does every church on both sides of a controversy belong to a faction? Is every one who favors innovations a factionist, and every one opposing innovations a factionist? How, then, can a body of disciples keep from being a faction? How can a Christian keep from being a factionist? It seems that Brother Dunn thinks that if a man divides the body of Christ, he is factitious; and if another avoids such—has no fellowship with such—as Paul directs, he is also factitious. Is Brother Dunn the only one who is free from the factitious spirit? He can hold meetings for congregations who use instrumental music or do not use it, just as the congregations may please. He can, does, invite those who divided the church to come join with him in a series of meetings. Is this the course one must follow to avoid a factitious spirit?

The Pharisees and Sadducees were Jewish sects—factions among the Jews. Jesus taught his disciples to beware of these factions. Was he developing a factitious spirit among his followers? When Paul exhorted the disciples to mark the dividers of Christ's body and turn away from them, was he cultivating a factitious spirit? Again I ask Brother Dunn: What does Rom. 16: 17 mean to you? Do you know of any class of men from whom we should turn away?

In answering my point on this, Brother Dunn refers to another writer "who made the same application of it that Brother Nichol does," and yet this other scribe called on a Presbyterian to lead parts of the service. Personally, I know nothing of this. But suppose he had turned the entire service over to the Presbyterian preacher, would that circumstance give us any light on what use Brother Dunn has for Rom. 16: 17? When asked plainly what use he has for Rom. 16: 17, why indulge in a lot of talk about the supposed inconsistencies of others, and then give us no light on his own use for that passage? "I am told," says Brother Dunn, "that Brother Nichol sometimes prays with sectarians," etc. Who told you? Did you try to ascertain the truthfulness of such statements? And yet you want to leave off personalities! Well, leave off such false reports, such unpleasant personalities, and I will refrain from saying what I feel would be justifiable under such circumstances.

Brother Dunn thinks our differences over his course at Waxahachie grow out of the fact that our conceptions of the church are different. I am not so sure of this. But what are the scriptural uses of the word "church" and its plural, "churches?" The word "church" sometimes includes all the saved in the world; and sometimes it includes the saved in a given territory, as the church in Jerusalem, Corinth, etc. But another use is frequently overlooked. The church of God in Judea, the church in Galatia, the church in Macedonia, etc., would include all the saved in the territory named. But it so happened that in each of these territories there were numerous bodies of worshipers banded into communities with their elders and deacons. Each such body was called a church of Christ; hence, we read of the churches in Galatia (1 Cor. 16: 1), the churches of Macedonia (2 Cor. 8: 1), churches in Judea (Gal. 1: 22). Neither of the churches in the territory named included all the saved in that territory; if so, there could have been only one such body in either territory. If reference is made to the church of God in its broadest sense, it includes all the saved in the world. The church of Christ in Tennessee includes the saved in Tennessee; but if reference is made to the churches of Christ in Tennessee, one refers to these bodies of worshipers scattered over the State. And all these churches in the aggregate do not include all the saved in Tennessee, for there are some scattered children of God throughout the State who are not members of any of these bodies of worshipers. The church of God in Nashville includes all the children of God in Nashville, and it is scriptural to speak of the church in Nashville, but it is also scriptural to speak of the churches of Christ in Nashville. These local bodies of worshipers, in the aggregate, may not include all the children of God in Nashville, and may have as members some who do not live within the city. It is true that the church of God in Waxahachie includes all the children of God in Waxahachie; but there is a body of Christians which meets on College Street, which does not include all the children of God in Waxahachie, but does have in its membership some who do not live in Waxahachie. It is scriptural to call that body a church of Christ; and as it is the only such body in Waxahachie, it is scriptural to refer to it as the church of Christ in Waxahachie, or the church of Christ worshiping on College Street. This use of the word "church" so frequently found in the New Testament has no reference to geographical bounds or limitations, but only to a body of disciples worshiping at a given place. This point, for some reason, Brother Dunn fails to notice. Brother Dunn, is the body of disciples worshiping on College Street, Waxahachie, a church of Christ?

Brother Dunn wishes that I answer some questions. The Main Street Christian Church has rejected the authority of Christ and refuses to be governed by him, and by their innovations have driven brethren out of their membership, and have thereby driven Christ out. Such a body cannot be a church of Christ. The church of Christ sometimes includes all the saved in a given territory. In that sense all the children of God in Waxahachie are members. But the word "church" more generally refers to a local congregation. In this sense, only those who meet with the College Street Church are members of the church in Waxahachie.

Brother Dunn insists that to "mark them that are causing the divisions and occasions of stumbling, contrary to the doctrine which ye learned: and turn away from them" (Rom. 16: 17), and to speak of the body of disciples which meets on College Street as the church of Christ in Waxahachie, is to build up a little coterie and to crystallize into an intolerant sect. Every man, then, throughout the country who refuses to fellowship these murderers of Christ's body is helping to build up this intolerant sect. If Brother Dunn has succeeded in instilling that spirit into all the members of the College Street church of Christ, the church is in a lamentable condition.

I pray God that Brother Dunn may be saved from what his present course seems to be leading to.

✱ ✱ ✱

Is Man an Animal?

BY D. S. LIGON.

Some unknown writer to me has been writing upon the subject of "Christian Education," and he says many good things that demand the attention of all thinking men and women. There is, however, one thing he says that I feel demands special attention. Right in the first line of one article, under the caption of "Christian Education," he says: "Man is a social animal." It is to this statement I wish to call the reader's attention, and request a patient hearing of this friendly criticism.

"Man is an animal," says this unknown writer. Now, I denounce this statement as not being in keeping with "Christian education;" but, instead, it is in direct opposition to the teaching of the Bible, our only guide in Christian education.

I grant that I may not understand the compass of the writer's caption, "Christian Education;" but surely he does not extend its boundary lines far enough to take in the sciences of men. If he does, then I challenge his authority for making the boundary of Christian education so inclusive.

I do not question that man is a man, and am confident that God made man to be a social being; but I do deny that man is an animal, and file a protest against any theory that teaches that man is an animal, for the simple reason that our only guide in Christian education does not give one hundredth part of the idea wrapped up in the statement.

But some one may say: "Science teaches us that man is an animal." This I freely concede. But science, so called, also teaches that man evolved from the ape, and that all life began or came from one single cell; and when scientists, who know a "lot" about this so-called "science" and nothing about the Bible, begin to try to account for this single cell from which all life evolved, then they, though they are "intellectual giants," are forced by their scientific findings (?) to get out among the common herd of infidels and flatly deny the statement of Moses in Genesis about the beginning of all life. I am not saying the writer of the article referred to is one who denies Genesis, but will say that I had as soon my child would be taught that "man is an animal" in the public schools or the University of Texas as by a teacher of "Christian education." Yea, I had much rather my children be taught things contrary to the Bible by the State than by the church (teacher of Christian education).

Let us now turn to the book of beginnings and see what we can learn from this guide to all Christian education. We read: "In the beginning God created the heaven and the earth." Mark you, in this first chapter, from the first to the fifth day, inclusive, Moses tells us that God created every living thing each after his kind—great whales after their kind, winged fowl after his kind, the beast of the earth after his kind, together with everything that creepeth upon the earth after his kind; and by his own fiat decreed that all life from that day till this should multiply and bring forth after its kind. After Moses tells us that God had created the beasts that roam upon the earth, the fishes that swim in the waters, and the fowls that fly in the air, he then says: "And God said, Let us make man in our image, after our likeness. . . . So God created man [not an animal] in his image, in the image of God created he him; male and female created he them." And then Moses tells us that God gave this "man" (not one of the animals) dominion "over every living thing that moveth upon the earth." And Paul tells us (Heb. 2: 6-8), as he quotes from David (Ps. 8: 4-6), that God made man (not an animal) a little lower than the angels, and then asserts, as did Moses, that this "man" (not an animal or a higher order of animals) should have dominion over all the works of the Almighty hand.

Let us learn to divide aright the word of truth. God created the animal family, so did he create the human family; but man is not a higher order of animals, neither is the animal a lower order of man. There is not one passage in all the Bible that teaches that man is an animal. Teachers and writers should not get "Christian education" mixed up with the wisdom of men. Man, created in the image of God, is a social being, but not a social animal.

✱ ✱ ✱

Personal Notes.

Horace Busby, Fort Worth, Texas, recently held his third meeting at Mineral Wells, Texas, with sixteen baptisms.

J. W. Dunn and Virgil Teddlie have just closed a good meeting at Gladewater, Texas, with six baptisms and one restoration.

R. A. McCurry, Denton, Texas, recently held a meeting at Cooper Creek Schoolhouse, and baptized an entire family of seven, also two others. He can be had for meetings in August.

Tice Elkins recently held a meeting at Riverside (suburb of Dallas, Texas), with eighteen additions, eight of which were baptisms. He is in a mission meeting at East Side, Dallas.

Lee Sanders has just closed a good meeting at Holy, Texas, with three baptisms—persons from sixty to seventy-six years of age. He began at Frina, near Franklin, Texas, on July 15.

U. G. Wilkinson, Comanche, Okla., a faithful soldier of the cross, who has been in feeble health for three years, will celebrate his fifty-ninth birthday and his thirty-first wedding anniversary on July 30. The churches where he has labored will do a good deed to remember him in a substantial way.

O. M. Reynolds, Plainview, Texas, sends in a splendid report. Besides good meetings at Hart Schoolhouse, Kress, and Hale Center, Texas, the church at Tahoka, which has been divided four years, is united again. He is now at Lubbock, and will go next to Abernathy. He is planning to be at home with Wallace and Teddlie on the first Lord's day in September.

C. A. Buchanan, who does evangelistic work under the direction of the church in Cleburne, Texas, reports five baptisms in a recent meeting near Parker, Texas. The Cleburne church does not confine the labors of Brother Buchanan to Johnson County. If there is a mission point in your section, take the matter up with them, and you may secure him for a meeting.

W. F. Ledlow, Austin, Texas, July 20: "Since the Nashville meeting I have been very busy at Alvarado, Texas. A fine meeting. Four baptisms and church trouble settled. At Mart, fourteen baptisms and some membership; at Snyder, fourteen baptized and two restored. I am now at Anson. We have the largest crowds in the history of the church here. Three confessions and splendid interest. I go to Baird, Texas, next."

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50, in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 217-219 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

Honesty.

BY J. C. M'Q.

While a man may not be a Christian simply because he is honest, yet honesty is a good foundation on which to build Christianity. Paul was honest in his disobedience. So, in speaking of his sinful course, he says: "Though I was before a blasphemer, and a persecutor, and injurious: howbeit I obtained mercy, because I did it ignorantly in unbelief." (1 Tim. 1: 13.) Honest ignorance renders it possible for one to find forgiveness when he learns the law of God and obeys it. If it does more for man, the Bible fails to tell what it is. A dishonest course may prevent this. The man who honestly does wrong in ignorance is less guilty than is the man who does wrong knowingly. The Savior meant this when he prayed for his crucifiers: "Forgive them; for they know what they do." He did not ask forgiveness in their sins, but when they should be brought to realize their sins and repent. He asked forgiveness for them because they did it not knowing they were crucifying their Lord and Savior. The intimation is clear that if they had crucified him knowing he was the Christ, they could not have been forgiven. On the day of Pentecost this prayer was answered, when they were convinced that he was the Son of God and asked for terms of mercy, which were given, and those who crucified him not knowing what they did received mercy. They did not receive it in their ignorance, but when they learned and obeyed the truth. Forgiveness was possible to them because they crucified him in ignorance and unbelief. God took them in their ignorance and unbelief and made Christians out of them. For the same reason mercy was possible to Paul.

But, on the other hand, God never took a dishonest man and made a Christian out of him. Honesty is not Christianity, but it is very close akin to it. There can be no Christianity without honesty. The banker tells us that honesty will not pay debts, but it is the foundation of debt paying. The honest man does not usually make debts that he does not eventually pay.

When the word of God, which is the seed of the kingdom, falls into a dishonest heart, it falls into barren soil which brings forth no fruit to perfection. Without honest hearts, there can be no Christians. We find this thought in the parable of the sower. "And that in the good ground, these are such as in an honest and good heart, having heard the word, hold it fast, and bring forth fruit with patience." (Luke 8: 15.) The same seed in dishonest hearts, barren soil, brought forth no fruit to perfection. A preacher may go into a field and sow the seed of the kingdom without any visible results. He may go into another field and do the same preaching with great visible results. The difference is not in the word, but in the soil. God himself does not expect to make saints out of dishonest people.

When men were to be chosen to look after the temporal affairs of the church, they must be men of honest (good) report. "And the twelve called the multitude of the disciples unto them, and said, It is not fit that we should forsake the word of God, and serve tables. Look ye out therefore, brethren, from among you seven men of good [honest] report, full of the Spirit and of wisdom, whom we may appoint over this business." (Acts 6: 2, 3.) A dishonest man is a misfit in the church. He cannot be trusted to serve at tables. He is not a safe man to look after the finances of the church. The man who is honest obeys the admonition of Paul when he says: "Render to no man evil for evil. Take thought for things honorable in the sight of all men." (Rom. 12: 17.) The honorable, Christian gentleman is as prudent and godly away from home as he is at home. He is truthful, righteous, and temperate everywhere. All such can truly say: "For we take thought for things honorable, not only in the sight of the Lord, but also in the sight of men." (2 Cor. 8: 21.) It is a strange Christian that does not endeavor to lead a life that is godly and that is above reproach. The apostle Paul also says: "Now we pray to God that ye do no evil; not that we may appear approved, but that ye may do that which is honorable, though we be as reprobate." (2 Cor. 13: 7.)

Christians should live holy, unblamable lives. They should dwell on the good and pure. They should be honest and should lead unrepachable lives. "Finally, brethren, whatsoever things are true, whatsoever things are honorable, whatsoever things are just, whatsoever things are pure, whatsoever things are lovely, whatsoever things are of good report; if there be any virtue, and if there be any praise, think on these things." (Phil. 4: 8.)

If a man is honest, he will pay his just debts. He will not decline to pay it just because his creditor does not compel him to pay it. If he knows he owes it, he will pay it though his creditor does not know he owes it. He will pay his street-car or his railroad fare as cheerfully as he pays his grocery bill. He will even pay his subscription to a religious journal! When a man reads a paper for years without paying the subscription, it is a debt just the same as is the grocery bill. And yet, when a publisher sends courteous statement after statement without receiving any reply and finally turns over the account to a collecting agency to collect, the delinquent subscriber becomes terribly offended. What right has he to be offended? Is it wrong for him to pay his debts? The publisher is receiving statements every day; and if he does not pay them, he will soon be in the hands of a receiver. Men should be honest enough to pay for what they receive. If they are not able to pay, then let them say so, and I am sure most publishers will forgive them the debt. Let us be honest with each other and honest all around. If God will not save us in ignorance, neither will he save us in dishonesty. "All things therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them: for this is the law and the prophets." (Matt. 7: 12.)

"In the Interest of Fair Play."

BY M. C. K.

In the Christian Standard of July 8, 1922, on "An Open Letter to A. O. Colley" from O. E. Payne, appears the following editorial comment:

We publish O. E. Payne's open letter to A. O. Colley (page 8) in the interest of fair play. The senselessness of debate where champions and auditors are not manifestly open-minded seekers after truth is self-evident. Ever since the appearance of O. E. Payne's "Instrumental Music Is Scriptural," the papers of our conservative brethren have attacked it bitterly, but without giving their readers and opportunity of seeing for themselves the facts and arguments Brother Payne presents. We admire our conservative brethren because of their unshaken loyalty to the Scriptures. We regard them, as we regard all who have followed out the gospel plan of salvation, putting on Christ and accepting no rule of faith or practice except the word of God, as in truth our brethren, our collaborators in restoring the New Testament order. In all good conscience can they continue to call us "digressives" and practically disfellowship us so long as they are unwilling to seize upon every opportunity to prove to us that instrumental music is unscriptural, and, in turn, to examine fairly any evidence that we may offer even that it is as permissible an expedient as the Gospel Advocate itself, let alone that it has the authority of God's word?

We wish it distinctly understood, first of all, that, until he makes proper amends for his uncivil conduct, we shall give O. E. Payne no personal recognition either in these columns or anywhere else, and the only reason for noticing this extract so vitally connected with him is because it is the statement of the Christian Standard. But from the public exposure which has been made of this man's conduct and of his unreliability as an author, it is surprising that a religious journal of the Christian Standard's high character would make such a statement about such an author and such a book, and we cannot account for it except on the ground that the Standard editor has not acquainted himself with the facts. It would be difficult to believe that he would consciously uphold such a book merely because it champions his side of the music controversy. At any rate, so far as I am concerned, I wish it distinctly understood that if any opponent of instrumental music writes a book in opposition to the practice and resorts to the style and methods of this man, such a book, no matter what may be its merits otherwise, will receive no commendation from me. Hence, for the Standard's special benefit, as well as for that of the general public, I shall now present some facts which will throw light on its "open letter" episode.

1. As our own readers already know, on account of its author's uncivil treatment of his opponents, I would never have paid any attention to the Payne book had it not been for numerous letters from intelligent people urging me to review it; and when I finally yielded, I was careful to make it known in the introductory chapter of my review that the author of the book had rendered himself persona non grata with us, and that, unless he should make proper amends, we would respectfully decline to give him any personal recognition whatever.

2. As early as November 15, 1921, as shown by a letter from him, he had already learned of our positive refusal to recognize him and our carefully explained reason for it, and yet he had the face to propose, on that date, an arbitration committee to sit in judgment on the case between us, when a part of his objectionable conduct was charging me with willful falsehood! Referring to this ridiculous proposal, I appended to Chapter IV. of my review of his book the following note:

After making a public attack upon my honor and veracity in his book, and the Gospel Advocate management declined to open its columns to him for a possible repetition of such discourtesies, this man has shown no higher appreciation of the principle involved than to write the management proposing that he and I submit such a thing to the decision of a private committee chosen by him and me! As a matter of editorial courtesy, our office sent his letter to me, and I promptly wrote the following reply to the management: "For a man to have so little regard for honor among Christians as to publish in a book that I state what I know is false when I make statements, and then to have the face to suggest that I 'agree to refer the matter to' a private committee for settlement, or to any other kind of a committee, public or private, to decide whether he has done wrong, is simply disgusting as well as ridiculous. He himself selected the public as the audience before which to take the case, and I have gone to that audience."

3. Concerning his desire to make a rejoinder to my review, our office, on October 27, 1921, knowing nothing about his ugly conduct, and in harmony with our universal rule to let both sides of an issue be heard, kindly wrote him as follows: "If you are to have a hearing in the Gospel Advocate, he should have a hearing in the Christian Standard or Christian-Evangelist." With the proof in his possession that our office would never have made such a statement to him if it had known of his conduct, he managed, for effect or for some other reason, to obtain from the Christian Standard the following statement: "If Brother McQuiddy will grant you equal space in the Gospel Advocate for your discussion with Brother Kurfees, we shall be glad to extend to him and to you the same facilities for expression in the Christian Standard." Brother McQuiddy, manager of the Gospel Advocate, promptly wrote him the following reply:

Replying to yours of December 27, it is proper now to say that, when I suggested to you that, if there were to be any discussion between you and Brother Kurfees, it should appear in the Christian Standard or the Christian-Evangelist also, I knew nothing whatever of your ugly charges and reflections upon Brother Kurfees and others, or, of course, I should never have made any such suggestion. It is astonishing that you would charge men with deliberate falsehood and publish it to the world in a book and then expect them to recognize you as their opponent in debate. On the score of what is honorable among Christians, with the courtesy and respect due between them in all their dealings with each other, you have shown yourself disqualified to conduct a discussion properly with brethren from whom you differ, and neither Brother Kurfees nor any one else connected with the Gospel Advocate will have any discussion with you either in its columns or anywhere else. I now respectfully decline to have any further correspondence with you about it.

4. To make it appear to the Standard readers that, on reading his book, we were so stumped and dumfounded with its arguments that we no longer dared to offer space in the Advocate for both sides, this man says of his book and of us in his open letter to Brother Colley:

Before he had read it, Brother Kurfees freely tendered to me all the space I wished in the Gospel Advocate, conditioned only that either the Christian Standard or Christian-Evangelist would also carry the discussion. . . . Eight months ago, before he had read the book, Brother McQuiddy, publisher of the Gospel Advocate, again made the same offer, with only the same condition. I promptly gained consent of the Standard, and so notified Brother Quiddy, asking for his pleasure as to opening the discussion. I can only assume that his musical editor, who had read the book, vetoed the agreement, for he ruthlessly broke his covenant.

In view of the facts, that is a shameful statement. He is trying to make the impression that I was willing to offer and did offer him space in the Advocate until I saw his argument and saw that I could not meet it, and that then and for that reason I withdrew my offer and refused him the proffered space! I am not at all surprised at such a representation coming from his pen, but it is passing strange that the Christian Standard will uphold such a thing. Let the reader now note, side by side with his representation, the following facts:

(1) Back in the winter of 1917 and 1918, before his ugly conduct was known to us, it is a fact that "Brother Kurfees freely tendered to" him the columns of the Advocate "conditioned only" as he says; but why did he not tell the rest of it? Why did he not tell the Standard readers that he did not use any of the proffered space in the Advocate, and why did he not tell them the reason why he did not use it? "Ay, there's the rub!"

(2) Why did he not state the fact that, after his conference with me in Louisville when I tendered to him Advocate space, he went on to Cincinnati to ascertain the Standard's wish in the case, and that the Standard's refusal to let the discussion appear in its columns is the reason why there was no discussion?

(3) Is it not a shame that the Christian Standard is here guilty of the gross inconsistency of condemning the Advocate for not opening its columns to both sides of a certain question, when that is the identical thing which the Standard itself did on that identical question? There must be a reason for this radical change of front on the part of the Standard. I make no charges as to its motives, but I hesitate not to say that its willingness now, at this particular juncture, to let the Advocate editor into its columns, provided the Advocate will let O. E. Payne into its columns—the very exchange which the Standard before so positively refused to allow—wears the appearance of being mainly an effort to rehabilitate its psalmo "champion" whose dishonorable methods in his book have put him under the ban and practically killed him with right-thinking people. Much as we would like to get the facts of the music question before Standard readers, we cannot consent to do so at so heavy a cost. Nothing short of the Bible way of penitence and confession of wrong on the part of its psalmo protegee touching his dishonorable dealings with opponents and authors will ever rehabilitate him with right-thinking people.

(4) Is it not a still greater shame that the Christian Standard, through its indorsement of this unreliable man, becomes guilty itself of charging the Advocate with unwillingness to let this man be heard in its columns because it has read and cannot answer his arguments, when, as the facts distinctly show, this is not only not the case, but that our only reason for declining any exchange with him is his uncivil conduct? Will the Christian Standard, "in the interest of fair play," let its readers see these facts?

5. We say amen to the Standard's pointed statement that "the senselessness of debate where champions and auditors are not manifestly open-minded seekers after truth is self-evident," and that is exactly what we thought when its present "champion" of the instrumental-music cause was tendered space for a discussion of it in the Gospel Advocate and the Standard was so far from being "open-minded" that it refused to let the discussion appear in its columns.

6. Again, will the Christian Standard, "in the interest of fair play," let its readers know that this "champion" whom it indorses, in order to make it appear to the readers of his book that his contention is supported by Thayer's great lexicon, suppressed a part of its definition? that, in dealing with the great lexicon of the Roman and Byzantine periods by Sophocles, he cut out the word "classical" and the words "chanter, church singer," and thus concealed from his readers the vital fact that Sophocles makes a broad distinction between the classical and New Testament meanings of psalmo? that, in order to make it appear that Justin Martyr's writings favor instrumental music in the worship, he added words which Justin Martyr does not use? that he misleads the English reader by representing Clement of Alexandria as using psalmo in a number of cases where Clement never used it? and that, in quoting from Hastings' great work, entitled "Encyclopedia of Religion and Ethics," he cut out the sentence, "Justin Martyr argues against it," and thus concealed from his readers the fact that that great work is against his position on Justin Martyr? These are some of the instances showing how the Standard's "champion" deals with authorities, and I respectfully challenge the Standard to deny it.

7. Finally, our Cincinnati contemporary forgets its logic. Nobody is under obligation to prove "that instrumental music is unscriptural," but somebody is under obligation to prove that it is scriptural. Nobody is under obligation to prove that either sprinkling for baptism, infant baptism, burning incense in the worship of God, the holy dance, or anything else in the long list of human devices in the service of God "is unscriptural," but somebody is under obligation to prove that they are scriptural, and that is anybody who claims the right to practice them. Hence, instead of anybody assuming the awkward and illogical attitude of affirming a negative—that is, "that instrumental music is unscriptural"—somebody is under logical obligation to prove that instrumental music is scriptural. By the way, that proposition is the exact title of the book—"Instrumental Music Is Scriptural"—which the Standard indorses and whose author it undertakes to defend. Our neighbor has shouldered a heavy burden in undertaking to uphold either the author or his book in this case, for, in our humble judgment, both have already been thoroughly demonstrated before the public to be unreliable; but, nevertheless, the Standard has undertaken the task, and we insist that it be consistent and stand by the title of the book. With all his failures otherwise, that is one redeeming trait of the author—namely, he consistently follows out his own logic to its legitimate end and openly takes the position that in psalmo God commands instrumental music to be used in divine worship, and therefore it follows that churches which do not use it are in rebellion against God. Hence, after indorsing this book and undertaking to uphold its author, it is too late for the Christian Standard to talk about instrumental music in the worship as "an expedient." When God commands a thing to be done, it is taken wholly out of the realm of expediency and is not a thing which may or may not be done with impunity. If instrumental music is in psalmo, as the book and its author indorsed by the Standard contend, then there is no escape from the conclusion that "unshaken loyalty to the Scriptures" demands of the Standard and of everybody else that it be used in the worship. If the Christian Standard rejects this conclusion, then will it kindly tell us, "in the interest of fair play," just how and where it gets out of it when it indorses the Payne book?

Inspiration of the Old Testament as Witnessed in the New Testament.

BY H. LEO B.

One of the first impressions received as we begin the study of the New Testament is that it bears witness to the inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures. The New Testament teaches us that "whatsoever things were written aforetime were written for our learning, that through patience and through comfort of the scriptures we might have hope" (Rom. 15: 4), and that they speak to us of the general course of historical events recorded in the Old Testament as being guided by the Holy Spirit for our benefit. "Now these things happened unto them by way of example; and they were written for our admonition." (1 Cor. 10: 11.) As the history occurred, it now bears a message to us; and was guided by the Spirit, that it might bring a true message to us.

Christ frequently bears testimony to the inspiration of the Old Scriptures. He says: "Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets: I came not to destroy, but to fulfill. . . . Till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass away from the law, till all things be accomplished." (Matt. 5: 17, 18.) It is clear that Christ includes the entire Old Testament Scriptures in "the law or the prophets." Again, he says: "For all the prophets and the law prophesied until John." (Matt. 11: 13.) It is evident here that he includes the Old Testament Scriptures in "the prophets and the law," and that they constituted the only divine authority until the coming of John the Baptist. Again, Luke (1: 67-70) declares that "Zacharias was filled with the Holy Spirit, and prophesied, saying, Blessed be the Lord, the God of Israel; for he hath . . . raised up a horn of salvation for us in the house of his servant David (as he spake by the mouth of his holy prophets that have been from of old)." And again: "They have Moses and the prophets; let them hear them." (Luke 16: 29.) It is clear that "Moses and the prophets" is used to denote the Old Testament Scriptures. Again, Christ says: "All things must needs be fulfilled, which are written in the law of Moses, and the prophets, and the psalms, concerning me." (Luke 24: 44.) Here we have Christ recognizing and indorsing the threefold division that was commonly made of the Old Testament Scriptures at that time. "The law of Moses," "the prophets," and "the psalms" include all of the Old Testament Scriptures. Christ thus gives indorsement to the inspiration of "the law of Moses," "the prophets," and "the psalms." He reaffirms that all that this threefold division of the Old Testament Scriptures speaks concerning him must be fulfilled. Again, Christ, in conversation with the Pharisees concerning David, said: "He saith unto them, How then doth David in the Spirit call him Lord?" (Matt. 22: 43.) He then quotes from David, stating emphatically that David spoke in the Spirit. In other words, Christ says that David was inspired of God and spoke God's will unto men, and that the record of what David said was the inspired will of God. Again, Christ says: "If he called them gods, unto whom the word of God came (and the scripture cannot be broken)," etc. (John 10: 35.) Here Christ refers to the Scriptures—the Old Testament Scriptures—as "the word of God." The evidence is weighty and cumulative in regard to Christ's indorsing the Old Testament Scriptures as being inspired of God. Again, we have this laconic statement: "The testimony of Jesus is the spirit of prophecy." (Rev. 19: 10.) This declares that the burden of all the prophets was to bear testimony of Jesus Christ; that Christ fills the law, types, promises, and prophecies of the Old Testament Scriptures. Jesus gives indorsement to the Scriptures of the Old Testament, rather than to the mere writers of the Scriptures.

Jesus put his apostles in the class of prophets and promised them the Holy Spirit, or, rather, that the Holy Spirit should speak through them. He said: "For it is not ye that speak, but the Spirit of your Father that speaketh in you." (Matt. 10: 20.) The Holy Spirit should bring to their remembrance whatsoever things he had taught them. (See John 14: 26; 15: 26, 27; 16: 13, 14.) Whatever indorsement we may find that the apostles make concerning the Old Testament Scriptures will be an indorsement and testimony of the Holy Spirit, and, therefore, evidence as to the inspiration of the Old Testament. Peter bears this testimony: "Knowing this first, that no prophecy of scripture is of private interpretation. For no prophecy ever came by the will of man; but men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit." (2 Pet. 1: 20, 21.) Peter assures all that what had been made known to them of Christ came through the testimony of the Scriptures. He means the Old Testament Scriptures are included in the evidence given concerning the Lord Jesus Christ. This evidence was spoken by men; but the men "spoke from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit." Therefore, what they said was the message of God and came by inspiration. He declares here that "no prophecy of scripture is of private interpretation," that "no prophecy ever came by the will of man." Peter includes the Old Testament Scriptures, and bears clear and emphatic testimony to their inspiration. Peter adds his testimony, which "we ourselves heard borne out of heaven, when we were with him in the holy mount," to "the word of prophecy made more sure."

Again, Paul has borne witness to the inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures with the following language: "Every scripture inspired of God is also profitable for teaching, for reproof, for correction, for instruction which is in righteousness: that the man of God may be complete, furnished completely unto every good work." (2 Tim. 3: 16, 17.) Here Paul has reference to the Old Testament Scriptures. In verse 15 he says concerning Timothy: "That from a babe thou hast known the sacred writings which are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." Here he may not include that portion of the New Testament Scriptures which had been written up to this time; but evidently he did include the Old Testament Scriptures, for he said that Timothy had been familiar with them from his childhood. They were able to make Timothy wise unto salvation because they pointed to Jesus Christ and their fulfillment in him. Paul declares that they were "God-inspired." He also declares that "every scripture" or "all scripture" is given by inspiration of God; that they are the product of the inspiration of God, having divine origin, and, therefore, are supreme in value for all holy purposes. Paul does not stop to mention any particular book or books, but includes the whole collection of "sacred writings," and places the emphasis upon the supreme value of the Scriptures and their divine origin.

The Church at Thessalonica.

BY F. W. SMITH.

The original name of this city was "Therma;" but Cas-sander, son of Antipater, rebuilt and enlarged Therma and named it after his wife, Thessalonica, the sister of Alexander the Great. Under the name of "Saloniki," it is still the most important city of European Turkey, next to Constantinople. These historic facts are given in Smith's Bible Dictionary; but the readers of the New Testament should be more concerned about the church in that city and the lessons taught by Paul in his two epistles addressed to its members. From the first chapter of Paul's first epistle to the Thessalonians, verses 1-5, we have the following: "Paul, and Silvanus, and Timothy, unto the church of the Thessalonians in God the Father and the Lord Jesus Christ: Grace to you and peace. We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers; remembering without ceasing your work of faith and labor of love and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, before our God and Father; knowing, brethren beloved of God, your election, how that our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Spirit, and in much assurance; even as ye know what manner of men we showed ourselves toward you for your sake."

It was during Paul's first great missionary journey that he established a church in Thessalonica, which became a great radiating center from which the light of the gospel went out in all directions. This we learn from verse 8 of this chapter; and since in verse 7 Paul tells us that the church there became an example, every church in the land should do likewise.

THANKSGIVING AND PRAYER.

The body of this epistle begins thus: "We give thanks to God always for you all, making mention of you in our prayers." This shows it to have been a deserving church, full of zeal and good works, for which Paul thanked God, and he made the church a special object of his prayers. The knowledge of the estimate in which the apostle held the church and the fact that he and his collaborators were praying for them must have rejoiced the hearts of the saints in Thessalonica, and caused them to resolve upon a still greater service for the Master. Paul did not hold these things a secret, but acquainted the church with his estimate of them and his interest in them. This is what every preacher should do to every worthy church.

GROUNDS FOR COMMENDATION.

These are stated as follows: "Remembering without ceasing your work of faith and labor of love and patience of hope in our Lord Jesus Christ, before our God and Father." Note that he does not simply commend them for their faith, but their "work of faith." A faith that does not work, James tells us, is dead. (James 2: 26.) Hence, there is quite a difference between simply faith and faith that works. "For in Christ Jesus neither circumcision availeth anything, nor uncircumcision; but faith working through love." (Gal. 5: 6.) Again, Paul talks about their "labor of love," making love qualify their labor. Now, this is the only kind of labor that counts in the service of God. A labor of compulsion, unless it be the compulsion of love, is merely perfunctory in its spirit and design, and cannot be pleasing and acceptable to God. It must be a whole-hearted service or none at all with God. To serve God partially and indifferently is to serve Satan, for you cannot serve two masters at the same time. (Matt. 6: 24, 25.)

THE PATIENCE OF HOPE.

These saints had a well-grounded hope, and it was united with a patience that gave to them that poise and calmness of spirit amid the trials and difficulties of life so essential to the enjoyment of Christianity. Many of us lose the very cream of our religion and the consoling joy of hope because we lack the grace of patience to give us the proper balance. Patience is the great balance wheel that makes life's machinery run smoothly and pull the load easily. With the "patience of hope" growing out of tribulations, we are enabled to say with Paul: "And not only so, but we glory in tribulations also: knowing that tribulation worketh patience; and patience, experience; and experience, hope." (Rom. 5: 3, 4.)

SEED THOUGHTS.

In the light of Paul's record of the church at Thessalonica, we may conclude: (1) That it was imbued with an unselfish spirit, which was the secret of its great success, making it the evangelistic center it was. (2) Any church, therefore, that is not missionary in both spirit and work is not following the example of that great church. (3) That when a church fails or refuses to put forth an effort to save others, it will die, spiritually.

Gast and Srygley Debate.

BY B. F. STIVERS.

The debate at Portsmouth, Ohio, between G. O. Gast, of the Christian Church, and F. B. Srygley, of Nashville, Tenn., is past, with a great victory for the truth. G. O. Gast affirmed that instrumental music in worship is scriptural. Brother Srygley denied. The debate began at 7:30 on the night of June 28 and continued four nights, each one having thirty minutes in each speech and two speeches each in succession.

Gast tried to prove his proposition with Rotherham's translation and O. E. Payne's book on "psallo." But after he had pounded away with all his might for two nights on Rotherham's translation of the Bible, and said it was the best translation we had, and then failed to prove his point that instrumental music is scriptural in worship, Brother Srygley let him down with all force by showing the audience that Rotherham was unknown to all the scholarship of the world; that his name is not found in any of the cyclopedias; and that if his translation is correct, all other versions are wrong. Brother Srygley pressed it on Gast so hard that all could plainly see where Gast had placed himself—that he had denied the Bible that the whole world has accepted as correct. Then Brother Srygley showed that O. E. Payne's book had been exposed and that the way Payne had translated was Payne's own way and not the scholarship of the world. Finally Gast acknowledged that it was not commanded, but was just sanctioned. Brother Srygley defined the word "sanction" and showed it means a solemn ratification, to confirm, and wanted him to show where God, Christ, or any inspired man ever ratified it or confirmed it, and of course Gast could not do that. Then Gast said it was given by precept; and Brother Srygley showed that "precept" means command, and that every act of worship was given by precept and example, and wanted Gast to show one example where instrumental music was used in the worship, and he had Gast tangled up like a fly in a spider web. Gast worked very hard to prove that there is instrumental music in the church by Revelation, but he was shown that was to be in heaven and not in the church here on earth, and that there would be infants in heaven, and many other things that we do not have in the church. Gast got up and said, in his next speech, that they had infants in the church, and pointed to the babies in the audience that were in their mothers' arms; but Brother Srygley let him drop again by showing that the meetinghouse is not the church, and asked him if he did not know the difference. I do not think that Gast will ever try to prove such a proposition again. Both speakers conducted themselves in a gentlemanly and Christian manner, and it was a great victory for the truth.

Brother Srygley made many warm friends while here with us, and we believe he has done a great work for the cause here at Portsmouth.

One man who has been playing an instrument in the Methodist Church here was heard to say that he never would again. He attended the debate, and it was made so plain that he could see it was not commanded and the harm it is doing in dividing the churches everywhere.

I believe that this discussion will be a great help to the cause of Christ here in Portsmouth in many ways. May God's blessings rest on Brother Srygley and all of God's faithful ones everywhere.

Lay not up for yourselves treasures upon earth, where moth and rust doth corrupt, and where thieves break through and steal; but lay up for yourselves treasures in heaven, where neither moth nor rust doth corrupt, and where thieves do not break through nor steal: for where your treasure is, there will your heart be also.—Matt. 6: 19-21.

SERMON OUTLINES

A Book of One Hundred and Fifty New Sermon Outlines

Just the book for preachers, elders, deacons, Bible-class teachers, and others that take public part in church services.

The book has one hundred and fifty sermon outlines and a helpful supplement containing funeral texts, marriage ceremonies, forms for church letters, and Hedge's "Rules" for debate.

A good book to use in your Lord's-day services, prayer meetings, and young people's meetings. Let the leader announce the subject, hand slips of paper containing different sections of the outline to the members who are to take part in the next meeting, requesting them to make a talk or read the scriptural references on that section of the outline. Or, let the leader put the outline on the blackboard, omitting the scriptural references, then ask the congregation to supply the correct scriptural references at the next meeting, and give reasons why they selected these references.

Price, $1, postpaid. Address the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Home Reading

The Mother Watch.

She never closed her eyes in sleep till we were all in bed.
On party nights till we came home she often sat and read.
We little thought about it then, when we were young and gay,
How much the mother worried when we children were away.

We only knew she never slept when we were out at night,
And that she waited just to know that we'd come home all right.

Why, sometimes when we'd stayed away till one or two or three,
It seemed to us that mother heard the turning of the key;
For always when we stepped inside she'd call, and we'd reply.
But we were all too young back then to understand just why,
Until the last one had returned she always kept a light,
For mother couldn't sleep until she'd kissed us all good night.

She had to know that we were safe before she went to rest;
She seemed to fear the world might harm the ones she loved the best.
And once she said: "When you are grown to women and to men,
Perhaps I'll sleep the whole night through; I may be different then."
And so it seemed that night and day we knew a mother's care,
That always when we got back home we'd find her waiting there.

Then came the night that we were called to gather round her bed.
"The children all are with you now," the kindly doctor said,
And in her eyes there gleamed again the old-time tender light
That told that she had been waiting just to know we were all right.
She smiled the old, familiar smile, and prayed to God to keep Us safe from harm throughout the years, and then she went to sleep.

—Selected.

✻ ✻ ✻

The Overworked Mother.

It is a mother's constant temptation to serve her children in lesser deeds that rob her life of its most important property—to forget herself and waste her soul in the routine demands made by her children. But let every mother know that the best way to serve her children is to keep alive in her breast the importance of her own personality. Let her know that the time will come when these little ones will need more than the sacrifices of the nursery. Some day they will need her companionship. They will need her to be large-minded, up-to-date, so that they may share their men's and women's problems with her. Happy is that mother who grows with her children! Happy she who keeps to herself in their childhood sacred hours for her own self-culture, renewing ever the oil in her lamp, that to them her supreme gift may be a constant and increasing light!

—Christian Century.

✻ ✻ ✻

Mother.

Long before we came into the world we had a friend who labored long hours making the little clothes that we were to wear and who fondled each garment tenderly in anticipation of our arrival. That was mother.

Through the years of babyhood, through days of peevishness and nights of illness, we were guarded jealously and carefully by a friend. That was mother.

There was one who taught us to walk, who taught us to talk, and who taught us to pray at her knee. That was mother.

Through childhood's happy days we carried our tales of joy and woe to one who understood, to one who joined with us in our pleasures and soothed us with caresses when we were hurt. That was mother.

And on through school days there was one who helped us with our lessons, who made excuses for us if we failed to do the mark, who privately admonished us for our pranks and publicly extolled us for our virtues. That was mother.

Into the classroom at college or into the countingroom of business there was one who followed us in spirit and eagerly awaited our return at night. That was mother.

Away from home there was one who always thought of us, whose nightly prayer was for our safety, whose daily hope was for our return. That was mother.

At home there was one who waited up for us, who fended us from unseen dangers, who suffered for us when we did wrong. That was mother.

Always at the end of the long journey, in good health or bad, in prosperity or adversity, there was one to meet us and take us to her bosom. That was mother.—Selected.

✻ ✻ ✻

A Mother's Love.

A mother's love—how sweet the name!
What is a mother's love?
A noble, pure, and tender flame
Enkindled from above,
To bless a heart of earthly mold;
The warmest love that can grow cold—
This is a mother's love.

To bring a helpless babe to light,
Then, while it lies forlorn,
To gaze upon that dearest sight
And feel herself newborn,
In its existence lose her own,
And live and breathe in it alone—
This is a mother's love.

To mark its growth from day to day,
Its opening charms admire,
Catch from its eye the earliest ray
Of intellectual fire;
To smile and listen while it talks,
And lend a finger when it walks—
This is a mother's love.

—James Montgomery.

✻ ✻ ✻

Mother Mine.

I love each furrow in thy face,
The silver in thy hair;
There's naught but beauty I can trace,
There's none that's half so fair.
The love shines out from those dear eyes,
How well I know the sign
Of kindness, sweetness—all that's good—
Dear mother—mother mine!

You nursed me through my infant years,
You loved me as a child;
You shared with me my hopes and fears,
With counsel good and mild.
And when my erring footsteps strayed,
How sad that heart of thine!
You loved me better than before,
Dear mother—mother mine!

And now, when those dear eyes grow dim,
And pain clouds that dear face,
The love that you still have for him
Who oftentimes fell from grace
Will yet bear fruit a hundredfold
In love, dear heart, like thine,
More precious far than virgin gold,
Dear mother—mother mine!

—Iowa Christian Journal.

✻ ✻ ✻

The American Bible Society reports the biggest year of Bible circulation since the high levels of the war period.
The total number of Bibles circulated last year was 4,855,464.
—Exchange.

The Economy of Hood's Sarsaparilla

Appeals to every family in these days. From no other medicine can you get so much real medicinal effect as from this. It is a highly concentrated extract of several valuable medicinal ingredients, pure and wholesome. The dose is small, only a teaspoonful three times a day.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is a wonderful tonic medicine for the blood, stomach, liver and kidneys, prompt in giving relief. It is pleasant to take, agreeable to the stomach, gives a thrill of new life. Why not try it?

HOW TO RAISE THE MONEY For Your Society

Get each member busy calling on their friends and selling them a can of Primo Cleanser for personal and general household use. Fifty per cent commission. Many have cleared $10 per day with it. Send 25c for salesman's outfit, including a one-pound can of Primo, literature, and full particulars. THE PRIMO CO., 2617 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

Stop Itching

Skins with Tetterine

60c. at your druggist's or from
SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

"Cutting teeth is made easy" MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator
At all druggists
Non-Narcotic, Non-Alcoholic

Oakland, Nebr., Feb. 28, 1920
Anglo-American Drug Co.,
Gentlemen:

I am more than glad to tell you of the experience and result obtained from your wonderful Baby Medicine. Our second baby is now seven months old and has never given us a moment's trouble. The first and only thing she has ever taken was Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. She has four teeth and is always smiling and playing. Cutting teeth is made easy by the use of Mrs. Winslow's Syrup. Most sincerely,

(Name on request)

ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG CO.
215-217 Fulton Street, New York

Gen. Selling Agents: Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Inc.
New York, Toronto, London, Sydney

For Mental Depression Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Refreshing tonic for that tired feeling—mental or physical. Soothes nerves, induces restful sleep. Invigorates, aids digestion. Delicious in fruit juices or water. All druggists.

CANCER

HOSPITAL. Intra-venous treatment for cancer. Operation, Radium and X-Ray unnecessary. Booklet giving full information upon request. Box 2127, ATLANTA, GA.

Offenses.

BY LELAND H. KNIGHT.

What is wrong to-day with the congregations? Have not many of them ceased in their duty of holding forth the word of life? The present condition shows a lack of interest, and few united efforts can be had. Brethren, it can be traced to one thing.

No congregation can exist long without discipline; discipline cannot be had unless the congregation is strong spiritually; and no congregation can be strong spiritually when there are factions and dissenters. Factions and contentions come because of offenses. So, reasoning from effect to cause, offenses seem to be at the bottom of these evils.

An offense is anything that may serve as a stumblingblock in a brother's way. Jesus said: "Woe unto the world because of offenses! for it must needs be that offenses come; but woe to that man by whom the offense cometh!" James (3: 2) says: "For in many things we offend all. If any man offend not in word, the same is a perfect man, and able also to bridle the whole body." Solomon said: "A brother offended is harder to be won than a strong city; and their contentions are like the bars of a castle." Jesus said: "If thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother." (Matt. 18: 15.) If Satan is tempting and pride enters into his heart, there will be contention. (Prov. 13: 10.) Some habitually justify themselves, and we are all prone to do so.

Every man's way is right in his own eyes; but we ought to be as were the Israelites when God had delivered the people of Judah into their hands. They were bringing thousands to Samaria to make bondmen of them, when Oded, the prophet of God, warned them, saying: "Are there not with you, even with you, sins against the Lord your God?" Then they realized that they were not without sin; and after admitting it by saying, "Our trespass is great," they carried the captives back to Jericho. (2 Chron. 28: 13.) When a brother shows us our wrong and we are slow to admit it, we ought to remember that in many things we offend all, and admit it before, as in the case of Saul, it be too late. Some professed followers of the Lord have never learned what it means to say: "I have wronged you, brother, and in so doing have sinned against Christ." The stubborn and self-righteous are those who put a stumblingblock in their brother's way and seek not to remove it. But what saith the scriptures? "It were better for him that a mill-

COULD HARDLY STAND AT TIMES

Hips, Back and Legs Would Have That Tired Ache

Everett, Washington.—"For several years I have had trouble with the lowest part of my back and my hips and my legs would ache with that tired ache. I could hardly stand on my feet at times. I was always able to do my work although I did not feel good. I saw Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound advertised and having heard several praise it I decided to try it. I feel first-rate at the present time. It has done wonders for me and I keep it in the house right along. I always recommend it to others who are sick and ailing."—Mrs. J. M. SIBBERT, 4032 High St., Everett, Washington.

To do any kind of work, or to play for that matter, is next to impossible if you are suffering from some form of female trouble. It may cause your back or your legs to ache, it may make you nervous and irritable. You may be able to keep up and around, but you do not feel good.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a medicine for women. It is especially adapted to relieve the cause of the trouble and then these annoying pains, aches and "no good" feelings disappear.

It has done this for many, many women; why not give it a fair trial—now.

To Reduce Fever Relieve Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

Use

Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely safe to use as it does not depress the heart even in extreme cases of debility or weak heart, neurasthenia or anaemia. Manufactured by a formula in use by leading physicians generally. 19 parts pure Aspirin, 1 part pure Caffeine, 4 parts excipient, in convenient tablet form. 35c per package at your druggists or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

Girls! Girls!! Clear Your Skin With Cuticura

Sample each (Soap, Ointment, Talcum) of Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden, Mass. Sold everywhere.

stone were hanged about his neck, and he cast into the sea, than that he should offend one of these little ones." (Luke 17: 2.)

"Except ye repent, ye shall all likewise perish" (Luke 13: 3), is just as applicable here as to the alien sinner. Suppose in such a case somebody says: "I forgive, but I cannot forget." There seems to be a spirit manifest that would cause disturbance if opportunity afforded. Listen: "Ye are they which justify yourselves before men; but God knoweth your hearts." (Luke 16: 15.)

If a brother offends and comes asking forgiveness, you should forgive, not only seven times, but seventy times seven, if he repents and asks as often. (Matt. 18: 22.) Otherwise no such person need pray for forgiveness. Jesus taught: "After this manner therefore pray ye. . . . Forgive us our debts as we forgive our debtors." "But if ye forgive not men their trespasses, neither will your Father forgive your trespasses." Therefore, enmity in the heart toward a brother is an impediment in the approach to the throne of grace.

Brethren, "be ye kind one to another, tender-hearted, forgiving one another, even as God for Christ's sake hath forgiven you." (Eph. 4: 32.) By this means the brother will be gained. No cause will be found for contention, strife, or factions, and the church will be spiritually strong. With such a condition existing, the disorderly can be dealt with scripturally, and the discipline which God demands will reign in the churches.

When a congregation has so conducted itself that all are guilty, the strong eldership has lost its power of watching the flock of God. (Acts 20: 28; Heb. 13: 7, 17.) In such case all must repent and do their first works, else God will remove their candlestick out of its place. Such perilous conditions exist in these latter days. It is only when offenses are peaceably settled that a congregation can grow.

No power from without can destroy the body of Christ. Offenses bring contention and will wreck the strongest congregation. Settle them scripturally, brethren, and fulfill your mission. "Ye are the salt of the earth: but if the salt have lost his savor, wherewith shall it be salted?" "Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works, and glorify your Father which is in heaven."

Permanent Muscular Strength cannot exist where there is not blood strength. Young men giving attention to muscular development should bear this in mind. Hood's Sarsaparilla gives blood strength and builds up the whole system.

Unless the church is growing, it is dying.—Charles K. Brown.

Can the Lord Depend on Me?

BY E. E. SHOULDERS.

The allurements of the world are so numerous and treacherous that we cannot tell what a day will bring forth; hence, this question should burn deeply in every Christian's heart: Can the Lord depend on me? "Teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." Am I doing everything he would have me do? Am I breaking faith with him?

Sunday morning comes. "It's hot. I'm sleepy, lazy, and have a light touch of the headache; and if I go to church to-day and sit in a crowded house, my head will just burst. Believe I'll sleep a while longer, get up and have an early dinner, and drive around for a while this afternoon and get cooled off." Is this acceptable service? "O ye of little faith!"

Do I say on Saturday evening: "I will get up early in the morning and get everything 'done up' and go over to my son John's for the day?" Is that where Christians are taught to assemble on the first day of the week—in the home of their children or parents?

When the hot, sultry days are upon me, do I find myself all ready and off to "the springs" for comfort and rest, leaving my pew vacant, leaving the Lord's work for others to do, but not leaving my purse? "Soul, . . . take thine ease, eat, drink, and be merry. But God said unto him, Thou fool."

"My husband is of the world, or a member of some denomination, and he can't understand why I must go to church every Sunday. He says because I leave him on Sunday, the only day we can be together, that I am not faithful to him, and I yield to his entreaties to spend the day in worldly pleasure that I may please my husband." Know ye not that ye (the church) are the bride of Christ, bought with his own blood?

Many are the excuses which Satan puts into the hearts of Christians to offer for their unfaithfulness; but will not God deal with us for yielding to the tempter, as he did in the beginning? It follows without doubt that when we obey the gospel of Christ we pledge ourselves through Jesus Christ to God, to serve, honor, and magnify his name among men. Can the Lord depend on us?

SORES BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Renew your health
by purifying your
system with

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are free from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c and 35c packages, bearing above trade-mark.

TETTERINE

Makes low necks and short sleeves possible. It clears the skin

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, back-aches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting CAPUDINE

Sore Feet?
Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection)(Relieves Pain)(Allays Inflammation)

Is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

GIRLS! LEMONS

BLEACH SKIN WHITE

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents; shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day; then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

CHARACTER

OR

THE MAKING OF THE MAN

SUPREMELY
ELOQUENTDELIGHTFULLY INSTRUCTIVE

By E. W. CARMACK

AGENTS
WANTEDSHOULD BE READ
BY EVERYBODY

The verdict of the thousands who have read the book is: "No lecture extant is more interesting, charming, and philosophical. It is a classic and easily ranks with the best productions of modern authors. A million copies should be sold." Thousands of copies have been sold in a few days. It is beautifully bound in sheep ooze, or library binding. Write at once to the publishers.

PRICE, $1.50 THE COPY

ADDRESS

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY

Department

NASHVILLE - - - TENN.

Let thy discontents be thy secrets.—
Benjamin Franklin.

Field Reports

Dayton, Tenn., July 20.—Last Lord's day I was at Rockwood, with two good audiences, and one took membership with the congregation. The Bible class last night was very interesting, seventy-five being present. I predict a good future for that congregation, as all seem interested, and love, peace, and harmony prevail. I will preach at Dayton next Lord's day. There are some of the most earnest disciples in this congregation, who are willing to make any reasonable sacrifice for the cause of Christ. On the fifth Lord's day in July I shall begin a meeting at Old Union, near Carrollton, Miss.—Will J. Cullum.

Hot Springs, Ark., July 12.—The church in this city is almost invisible. Few members are to be found who are interested. There is a small "progressive" church in the extreme Southern part of town—a little more than a mile out. They are doing nothing but "fuss." The preacher is giving almost all of his time to the Lions and Elks of the city and State. Nothing is being done for New Testament Christianity. Brother A. J. Veteto is doing the singing, and doing it well. We think we are doing some good. Several outsiders have heard and are still hearing and manifesting some interest.—T. B. Clark.

Springfield, Tenn., July 17.—I closed a very successful meeting at Rumsey, Ky., on June 18. This was my third meeting with that church, and the best. My next preaching was at Blanchester and Milford, Ohio, and Lancaster, Ky. On July 4 I began a debate with J. E. Wooldridge at Stop, Ky., which continued four days. I found Mr. Wooldridge a nice man in debate, though he was reckless with his statements. Our meeting at Coopertown began yesterday at 11 A.M., with a crowded house and fine attention. Brother W. E. Derryberry has charge of the song service.—J. L. Hines.

Texarkana, Ark., July 18.—Virgil O. Teddlie and I will engage in a ten-days' mission meeting at Daingerfield, Texas, beginning on September 25. This place is the county seat of Morris County, with a population of about one thousand. A fertile field exists in East Texas, but on account of poverty able preachers are not encouraged to enter the field. The work must be done; a sacrifice must be made. We are in the battle. Should any individual or congregation wish to fellowship this great move, we will appreciate it; if not, we will do the work, anyway. Address me at my home address, 702 Mary Street, Texarkana, Ark.—J. E. Wainwright.

Jackson, Miss., July 18.—On July 6 J. P. Lowrey began a meeting with the church at Vicksburg, Miss. Having no house at this place, a tent was pitched on a well-located lot. For ten days Brother Lowrey proclaimed the gospel. The attendance was excellent: large crowds at every service. Four were baptized. Many others seemed to be almost persuaded. We are glad that this noble old soldier, who has labored so many years in the northern part

A Brand-New Book

"OLD LIMBER"
or
THE TALE OF THE TAYLORS
by
DELONG RICE

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their eloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the life-long rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters" extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound, the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase. THE BOOK is beautifully printed and bound, appropriately illustrated, and packed in a neat gift box, ready for mailing.

PRICE, $1.00 THE COPY.
POSTPAID TO ANY ADDRESS.

Correspondence with Bookstores and News Agencies is invited.
Special club rates to Fox Hunters' Associations, if ordered in sufficient numbers.

Where we have no Bookstore customer, we will offer an attractive proposition to any energetic woman or man who may desire to handle the book.

Write to us to-day.

McQUIDDY PRINTING CO.,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

of the State, is working among us again. The little band of faithful workers at Vicksburg need a meeting-house. They have purchased a lot, located in the best part of the city, and are now trying to raise enough money to build. A donation, small or large, will be greatly appreciated. The progress of the church is much hindered because they have no house. Write W. F. Hanes, 1201 First North Street, Vicksburg, Miss.—Roy Vaughan.

Natchez, Miss., July 18.—I have just closed a splendid meeting at Kitchen, Miss. Brother Jeffcoat was with me in this meeting until Thursday of the first week. He has been preaching some at this place for the past two years and has done much preparatory to the success of this meeting. I did the preaching throughout this meeting, and Brother Jeffcoat led the singing and did the baptizing while he was with me. He is a noble worker. Seventeen were baptized, and almost all of them came either from the Baptists, Methodists, or Presbyterians. Besides the seventeen baptized, four came from the Baptists who are at present satisfied with their baptism. There were ten members here when the meeting began, meeting for worship only on the Sundays when they could have preaching. I left thirty-one members, with arrangements for them to meet every Sunday for worship. May the Lord richly bless them. I will begin a meeting at Carpenter on Saturday night.—T. C. Fox.

Nashville, Tenn., July 22.—Brother Andy T. Ritchie and I began a meeting at Woolworth, Houston County, and continued it sixteen nights, closing on Thursday night, July 6, with fine interest throughout. We found members of the church who said they had not heard a gospel sermon in five or six years. The hall that was used for a place of worship was built by Dr. Lewis, a fine citizen, but not a member of the church. The house was burned several years ago, and the brethren have not met for worship since. They are talking of building a house soon, and want another meeting next summer. Four ladies were baptized, three of whom were married and one elderly lady not married—all good, influential women. We began next at Glenwood on Sunday, July 9, and continued day and night the first week, and only at night the second week on account of school. We had fine crowds and interest throughout. Two were baptized. Here, as at Woolworth, there was once a good congregation, but they have not met for worship in two years or more. We go next to Elysian Grove for a two-weeks' meeting, beginning on July 23.—J. D. Derryberry.

Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn.

BY A. G. FREED.

After being in the field for nearly two years, at the earnest request of the Board of Trustees and friends of the school, I will reënter the active work in the classes as of old. It is our purpose to lead the school into larger fields of usefulness. Its past has been glorious, but we are planning for the future to be more so.

We have secured an exceptionally strong faculty, and will give thorough courses of study in all departments, including Junior College fully accredited.

The departments sustained are Primary, Intermediate, Grammar School, High School, Collegiate, Business, Shorthand, Typewriting, Music, Expression, and Bible.

The accommodations for our boys and girls are first-class and the environments ideal. The expenses are the least, considering good service.

The coming session will be great. Never before have we seen a better interest. All connected with the school are determined to give their best.

Parents, do you realize the importance of your children being in such a school, having the advantage of the highest literary training under the influence of the Bible exalted as the living word of God? We would be pleased to send you the Catalogue and the Announcement of the coming session. Write for them.

Castle Heights MILITARY ACADEMY

Things you look for in a school for your boy—sympathetic, intelligent leadership that understands boys. Opportunity for complete mental, physical and moral upbuilding. Academic and Commercial courses. Military Training and all acceptable athletics. Here a strong faculty of University-trained experts assures your boy proper development in all lines. Modern, complete equipment. Recognized by leading universities. For illustrated catalogue, address
COL. C. M. MATHIS, A.M., L.L.B., Pres.
Box R Lebanon, Tenn.

For the Up-building Of Manly Boys

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

BINGHAM MILITARY SCHOOL

ASHEVILLE, N. C.

Founded 1793

Superb location in world-famous climate. Wide area of patronage. Limited number. Boys live a simple, wholesome life, under the care of experienced teachers, and under Christian influences. Plenty of good, nourishing food. All forms of athletics. R. O. T. C. Unit under U. S. Army officers. 129th year begins September 13. Send for handbook.

Col. R. Bingham, Supt. Emeritus.

Col. S. R. McKee, Supt.

MORGAN SCHOOL PETERSBURG, TENN.

A school which inspires in boys an ambition for better and higher things. The close personal association of Prof. R. K. Morgan, Principal, and his well-chosen faculty with the students of Morgan School gives opportunity for quicker advancement, broadens the vision, and molds character. Twenty-eight years of efficient service. Write for catalogue.

L. I. MILLS, Secretary, Petersburg, Tenn.

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

SOLD
50
YEARS

If not sold by your druggist, write Wintersmith Chemical Co., Louisville, Ky.

$362.50 Commission On One Order

We offer a very attractive commission proposition to responsible men selling our line of guaranteed monuments, in Marble and Granite. On one deal our Mr. Fuller of North Carolina, made $362.50; Mr. Bryan of West Virginia, $206.25; Mr. Duncan, of Tennessee, $193.25; Mr. Willard, of Illinois, $131.25. These commissions have all been earned within the last 60 days. We have many other agents making from $200.00 to $400.00 per month.

Our monuments are well finished. No trouble to sell. Write for full particulars and confidential contract.

National Marble & Granite Corporation
Dept. A., BALL GROUND, GA.

Send us a new subscriber to the Gospel Advocate

ASPIRIN

Insist on Bayer Package

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package, which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

TETTERINE

for the COMPLEXION

60c at your druggist's or from
Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

LITTLE PAPPAS CAFE

Rooms, Bakery, Lunch. Open all hours.
Frank Tant, Manager of Men's Service Station Barber Shop. Private booths for self-shaving. Showers and Tub Baths in the basement. 212 Fourth Avenue, North.

JACOBS & COMPANY

SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENTS

PRINTERS

DESIGNERS

PHOTO ENGRAVERS

ELECTROTYPERS

Catalogues — a Specialty

HOME OFFICE — CLINTON, S. C.

Suggestions to Churchgoers.

Fill your place; none other can do it. Always do your best—sing, pray, and give.

Invite your neighbor to sing; two can do it better than one.

Think on holy things; your work will go easier to-morrow.

Help the weak in faith; he may prove to be a legion.

Find the discouraged; he needs you.

Unite in every reasonable effort; you count one.

Next to you is a stranger; find him.

Engage in every part of the service; you will get more out of it.

Sing in your soul as vigorously as with your lips; this is worship.

Smile, and you will make others glad.—Selected.

India Missionary Statistics.

BY E. S. JELLEY.

Population of India, 320,000,000 (one fifth of the population of the world). Total Protestant missionaries (including the quasi Romanist High church party in the Church of England), 3,848. Hence, allowing that every missionary is a true messenger of Christ, each missionary must reach more than eight thousand people. So it goes without saying that he needs a horse and buggy or a motor bicycle.

American Missions: Methodist Episcopal, 504; Baptist, 379; Presbyterian, 466; Congregational, 103; Lutheran, 82; Dunkards, 66; German Evangelical, 49; Reformed, 28; Seventh-Day Adventists, 108; Disciples (digressive), 74; Mennonites, 49; Free Methodists, 20; Assemblies of God (tongues people), 36; Church of the Nazarene, 24; Pentecost Bands, 12; Women's Union Missionary Society, 12; River Brethren (with an American membership of only 5,000), 11; Hephzibah Faith Mission, 7; First-day Adventists, 6; Church of God (Gospel Trumpet) 9; Church of God (General Eldership), 5; Burning Bush, 6; Quakers, 3; Peniel Mission, 3; the loyal churches of Christ, 2 (E. S. Jelley and wife); Free Gospel and Missionary Society, 2.

In view of the above, what do you think of our claim to being the only body obedient to the great commission? What are you going to do about it? Will you send out missionaries, or will you admit that we are not as sound as we have claimed to be? When will we begin to mend our ways to take away the reproach of the church of Christ?

And remember that the above is not a faithful comparison, for the other missions all have equipment, houses, schools, automobiles, hospitals, and scores of Indian employees; while the sound and loyal churches have none of these, except one school and five Indian employees, including the schoolmaster. I am very much afraid some of us have forgotten Calvary, or we would not have allowed ourselves to get down to the very foot of the list in spreading the message.

JELL-O

Ice Cream Powder

HOME-MADE ICE CREAM

TWO packages of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder cost 25 cents and make one gallon of ice cream. One package of the powder and one quart of rich milk make two quarts of ice cream.

Stir the powder into the milk and freeze it. That is all there is to do and anybody can do it. All grocers sell it.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N. Y.

The Plum Street Church of

Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

New York City Church of Christ

239 West Sixty-Ninth Street

Services: 2:30 P.M., Bible Study; 3:15 P.M., Preaching and Communion.

E. E. Shoulders, Evangelist, 699 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Phone, Flatbush 6857.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

The Cause at Marshall, Texas.

BY C. W. LA GRONE.

I read with interest, in the "Texas-Oklahoma Department" of the Gospel Advocate of July 13, the following: "J. W. Dunn closed a meeting in Marshall, Texas, with seventeen baptisms—a great meeting for that place." Not knowing the idea the writer had in mind or who he is, I would like very much to know why the phrase "for that place" was used. It was not used in any of the other reports. For fear the good people who helped us build our house of worship may misunderstand, I beg to give some facts in reference to the church here.

We shall have occupied our house of worship two years this coming October. We have had three meetings in it, two of which were held by Brother J. W. Dunn and one by Brother T. W. Phillips. We consider each meeting a wonderful success. No better preaching could have been done, as I view it. We believe we managed to support the meeting very satisfactorily. We have kept up our payment of forty dollars per month on the house, also keeping up the interest on all the principal, which is now three thousand dollars. This has been extremely hard to do, as we are all poor in this world's goods.

We met at the City Hall for several years before we built our house, and at the City Hall we had from two to thirteen in attendance. The last Lord's day we had eighty-seven at Bible study, not mentioning those that came in to worship. Our Lord's-day collections seldom run under fifteen dollars and sometimes thirty-five. We have one of the most harmonious bands to be found. No cranks, but a real congenial spirit. We have a beautiful little house on one of the best-paved streets in the city, one of the most public streets, and near the college of Marshall, in one of the best parts of the city. When we get our debt off our hands, we shall try to locate with us one of our best preachers and do much at this place for the advancement of the Master's cause. In the meantime, to you that helped us, you have no cause to regret. We are absolutely doing the best we can under the existing conditions, and we believe we can compare results favorably with many places much older than we are. We are not able now to keep a preacher all the time, but we have our Bible study, with good, uplifting talks by those in the congregation that are able to teach.

Brethren, may we have your prayers for the cause at this place?

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

After Thorough Trial a Detroit, Mich., Man Endorses Pe-ru-na

The following letter written from Detroit, Michigan is no snap judgment expressed on the merits of Pe-ru-na, the well-known catarrh remedy, but rather a mature, sober opinion formed after a full year's trial.

This is the way Mr. Michael Fako of 906 East Palmer Avenue, in the Michigan Metropolitan, writes: "After using PE-RU-NA for about one year will say I have found it a very good medicine for catarrh. It has helped me a great deal and I am very well satisfied. I have gained in weight, eat and sleep well, my bowels are regular and better color in my face.

"PE-RU-NA has done wonders and to me is worth its weight in gold. I shall continue to use PE-RU-NA as long as I live and recommend to my friends who are troubled with catarrh."

Nothing can be more convincing than an endorsement of this nature from an actual user. There are many people in every community whose experience, in using Pe-ru-na, has been identical with Mr. Fako's. It is the standby for coughs, colds, catarrh, stomach and bowel disorders and all catarrhal conditions.

Put up in both tablet and liquid form. SOLD EVERYWHERE.

HARDEMAN'S TABERNACLE SERMONS

A series of evangelistic sermons preached by N. B. Harde-man during the Great Nashville Meeting, held in the Ryman Auditorium, March 28-April 16. These sermons ring true to the Old Book, and have a charm of style and freshness of illustration that put them in a class by themselves.

All the profits derived from the sale of these books will be used to create a fund to help poor boys and girls attend Freed-Hardeman College.

The book will contain about 350 pages, with pictures of Harde-man, Pullias, and the audience, a history of the meeting, about twenty sermons, and an address delivered by Brother Pullias before the Exchange Club.

Bound in cloth, stamped in gold. Price, $1.50.

Book now being mailed to advanced subscribers.

Send all orders to N. B. HARDEMAN, Henderson, Tenn.

Stop that Pain!

It's spoiling your enjoyment and ruining your health.

When you're suffering from headache, neuralgia, sciatica, rheumatism, earache, toothache or any other pain.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will bring relief without unpleasant after effects.

Buy them of your Druggist.

Field Reports

Westport, Tenn., July 19.—On Saturday, July 15, I received notice that it would be best to call in my appointment at Hickory Plains for the next day; so, as I had "a day off," I decided to investigate conditions at Hollow Rock Junction, a rapidly growing town at the junction of two divisions of the Nashville, Chattanooga and St. Louis Railway, where the shops for these divisions have been located. I arrived at 10:30 A.M., and by 4 P.M. I had found four persons who are content to wear the name "Christian" only. It was then too late to arrange for services that afternoon, so I proposed that we select a place and have services at night; but the strike was on, and the sects had the time all monopolized. By this time my home train was due, and I hastened to get my ticket and returned home. I do not know that any one appreciated my visit, though I was treated kindly. Perhaps they thought I was a tramp or a detective. If I can get a few brethren interested, I may go back sometime and try again. It is a pity that churches will not take more interest in mission work near home. These people do not need money (as I see it) to build a house, but they need to be taught to use to the glory of God what they are now wasting in luxury.—W. N. Abernathy.

Pulaski, Tenn., July 19.—On Saturday night, July 1, I began a meeting with the little band of loyal disciples in Cullman, Ala. Several years ago the church there went "digressive," leaving only one family to worship "as it is written." I was told that the Wallace family met many times for worship when no one else would be present. At times when the weather was bad they worshiped in their home. Brother Wallace now rests from his labors, and his works follow after him in the persons of his faithful wife and daughters and others who have been encouraged by their example. Some have returned to their "first love," others have moved in from country congregations. These, with the new material that has been added, bring their number up to about fifty. During the meeting six were added by membership. I had a delightful home with Brother J. R. Tucker and family. Brother Creel, who preaches for the congregation, led the song service and assisted otherwise in the meeting. We were further encouraged by having Brother Frank Moody and Brother P. E. Hinton with us. We are expecting Brother N. B. Hardeman to begin our meeting in Pulaski on the second Sunday in August. Brother Willis H. Allen has promised to be with us as song leader. We are expecting a great meeting.—J. T. Clark.

THIS IS WORTH TWENTY-FIVE CENTS

I WANT all the names I can get of people who use tobacco. I want to tell them about GOLDEN STAR, the wonderful remedy that will kill the tobacco habit. Send me the names and addresses of ten persons who use tobacco, together with seventy-five cents and this slip, and I will send you a $1.00 box of GOLDEN STAR, postpaid. Your own name will not be revealed to them. One box will often stop the tobacco habit. Address L. O. Hinton, Box 96, Spencer, Ind.

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 15, 1910

HOLDS SHIRT DOWN
SOX UP
DON'T BIND LEGS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good
WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY
WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by
Washington Manufacturing Company
Nashville, Tennessee

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 15, 1910

NO BULGING OF
SHIRT NO MORE
VARICOSE VEINS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

MCQUIDDY PRINTING CO.
NASHVILLE.

ENGRAVED VISITING CARDS

PLATE AND 100 CARDS

One Extra Line Lines
$3.25 $1.50

1	Mrs. Morris E. Barr	5.25	2.75
2	Miss Virginia Haley	3.25	1.50
3	Miss Ruth Heath	3.25	1.50
4	Miss Emma P. Leathers	3.75	2.00
5	Miss Almyra Reams	5.25	2.75
6	Mrs. Carey N. Posegate	3.75	2.00
7	Mrs. Edward Glenn Walker	5.25	2.75
8	Mrs. Helen Simpson Cooper	3.75	2.00
9	Miss Elizabeth Burthell	5.25	2.75
10	Miss Kathleen Vaughan	5.25	2.75
11	Mrs. Justin Potter	4.25	2.25
12	MR. JOHN T. CAMPBELL	5.50	3.00
13	MR. FRANK B. EMMERLING	5.50	3.00
14	Miss Hester E. Bratten	3.75	2.00
15	MR. JACK SWANEY	4.25	2.25
16	MR. WILLIAM A. HUDSON

50 Cards reprinted from plate.....	$1.50
100 Cards reprinted from plate.....	1.75
100 Plate-Marked Cards, extra.....	.25
50 Mourning Cards from plate.....	2.50
100 Mourning Cards from plate.....	3.00
Erasures on Copper Plate, per line.....	1.25
On orders of 100 Cards, with 50 name only and 50 with address, charge $1.25 for each lot of 50.
Charge 25 per cent extra line rate for adding Mr., Mrs., Miss, etc., to old plates.

In answering advertisements, please mention this paper.

Gospel Advocate

Volume LXIV. No. 31.

NASHVILLE, TENN., AUGUST 3, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

What Is It to Be Spiritually Minded?.....	722
OUR CONTRIBUTORS.....	723
Notes from West Tennessee—A Call to the Thoughtful and Unprejudiced—Practical Christianity—Is One Church as Good as Another?—The Lord's Cotton Patch—Denver (Col.) Notes—Liberty in Christ—Reply to Brother Lee Jackson.....
HOME READING.....	727
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	728
CURRENT COMMENT.....	730
QUERY DEPARTMENT.....	731
EVANGELISTIC NOTES.....	732
EDITORIAL.....	734
Rationalism—Inspiration of the New Testament Scriptures—The Gospel Advocate Company—"Don'ts" for Writers.....
The Overbey-Crawford Debate—An Appeal from Summit, Ga.....	737
Fannie Stout Jean—Competing with Denominations.....	738
OBITUARIES.....	740
McClellan—Morgan—Davis—Scott—Jones—Comer—Karnes.....
Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost.....	741
AMONG THE COLORED FOLKS.....	742
Notes from Florida—Fraternal Manifestations.....	743

WHAT IS IT TO BE SPIRITUALLY MINDED?

[The following is a reprint from the pen of Brother E. G. Sewell, published in the Gospel Advocate in 1876. Many now are using the term "spiritually minded," and this article may help some to get a clear conception of the subject.—H. Leo B.]

"For to be carnally minded is death; but to be spiritually minded is life and peace." (Rom. 8: 6.) It becomes every child of God to ponder well the meaning of this passage, so as to be able to answer scripturally the above question; and not only to answer for others, but that we may know individually how we may all become spiritually minded. Many professors of religion have much to say about being spiritual, who have not a single correct conception of what it is to be spiritually minded. They belong to the church, or to "some church," live a tolerably moral life in general, go to hear preaching on the Lord's day, and then go home to attend to the business affairs of life through the week, and perhaps not a chapter read, not a single prayer offered to God, nor even thanks offered at their table through the whole week. And thus matters pass along the year through, except occasionally some sort of a revival or exciting meeting comes up. Then they become greatly enthused, and run almost wild with excitement for a few days, claiming that the Spirit of God is working wonders with them. But this enthusiasm lasts no longer than the big meeting lasts, and they fall back into the same old channel again. And while they are in the frenzy of excitement they are ever ready to taunt others, and especially those who doubt their having been moved by the Spirit, as having a cold, formal religion without any spirituality or life about it. And thus they mistake animal excitement for the Spirit of God. Such persons are only impulsive Christians, if Christians at all, and are very far from being spiritually minded.

But the question is still before us, What is it to be spiritually minded? All that we know about the Spirit of God is what we learn regarding it from the Bible. The Bible was dictated through holy men, by the Spirit of God; and thus, while God himself is the prime author of the Bible, the blessed volume is at the same time the product of the Spirit of God. The Bible is given to man in spiritual words—that is, the Spirit of God gives the will of God to man in his own words. It is utterly vain, therefore, for any man to claim that he has a spiritual mind, unless that mind be formed upon and in accordance with the words of the Spirit as found on record in the Bible. When a Christian reads the words of the Holy Spirit in the New Testament, which reveal the entire round of Christian duty, until his whole mind is formed upon these heavenly truths, and his whole mode of thinking on the subject of religion is in accordance with the word of God, then that man is to that extent a spiritually minded man. But this is by no means all that is necessary to make one spiritually minded in the Bible sense of that term; for we have known many men that made no pretensions to the practice of Christianity at all, whose minds were well informed upon the whole scheme of human redemption, and could correctly instruct others on the subject, and could readily detect errors in the lives of Christians, and who, in fact, were not even professors of religion. No one, therefore, could say, in the sense of Paul, that such men are spiritually minded. Neither this nor blind enthusiasm can make one spiritually minded. But when a man has been instructed by the Spirit of God through the truth until he understands the plan of salvation through Jesus our Lord, and obeys from the heart the gospel of Christ, and then studies, loves, and follows day by day the directions of the Spirit, meditating upon them by day and by night, with the continued desire and determination to do what the Spirit directs, this man may truthfully be said to be spiritually minded. And short of this, it could be truthfully said of no one.

But it may be said, if it takes all that to make one spiritually minded, there are but precious few spiritually minded Christians. This, we doubt not, is true, and for this very reason we write these things, that we may, if possible, stimulate others to reach this point. But we must insist upon it, that mere enthusiasm does not make any one spiritually minded. The Mohammedan may be very enthusiastic and devoted in his religion, but spiritually minded he cannot be. The heathen are very enthusiastic in their religion, very devotional in their way, but not spiritually minded. The Roman Catholics were very religious, very devotional, when in former years they were putting people to death for not submitting to their religion; but who will say they were spiritually minded in the true sense of that term? That they were enthusiastic, any one will admit. The Catholics are to-day exceedingly enthusiastic in observing the external forms of their religion—in keeping the feasts and fasts of their church—in going to confessional and paying their dues. But will any one instructed in the Bible say these people are truly spiritually minded? Not one can say so. Protestants are exceedingly zealous in defending their creeds and confessions of faith; they are even enthusiastic to a high degree. But they are not in these things spiritually minded; for, in defending these creeds they are acting utterly contrary to the mind of the Spirit, are rejecting the teachings of the Spirit, and thus cannot be spiritually minded. We have never in life seen more enthusiasm manifested anywhere than in altar or mourning-bench scenes; never saw more earnest devotion to anything on earth. But in these very things they reject what the Spirit of God directs in order to make Christians and set up a plan of their own; and in doing this they cannot possibly be spiritually minded. In the fourteenth verse of this same chapter, eighth of Romans, Paul says; "For as many as are led by the Spirit of God, they are the sons of God." In order, therefore, to be the sons of God, and, of course, to be spiritually minded, we must be led by the Spirit, must follow his directions. But these altar or mourning-bench workers are not led by the Spirit of God, for the Spirit gives no such directions. Those, therefore, that work in these things are mere enthusiasts, but not spiritually minded. Indeed, they seem to have a sort of horror for what the Spirit of God says in order to pardon of sin. At the very time that they are praying over believers at the mourning bench, or anxious seat, the Spirit of God says to these very persons: "Repent, and be baptized every one of you in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins, and ye shall receive the gift of the Holy Ghost." Will any one of these altar-working preachers repeat this language of the Spirit of God to their mourners? Not one of them will do it; and they would be filled with holy horror if any one else were to rise and repeat it to their mourners in their presence. Such men are mere enthusiasts, and are in no proper sense spiritually minded. They emphatically rebel against the Spirit and refuse to teach his words. No use, therefore, for any one to claim to be spiritually minded, who is not both willing and anxious to follow all the directions of the Spirit of God as given in his word. And outside of the word of God there are no directions of the Spirit of God to man, for God says he has "not spoken in secret from the beginning." (Isa. 48: 16.) Men may be very enthusiastic in the get-religion system, but spiritually minded they cannot be.

And our own brethren often find themselves in similar predicaments. The Spirit of God says: "Not forsaking the assembling ourselves together, as the manner of some is." This assembling mentioned here is certainly the assembling of the disciples on the first day of the week; and yet many of our members can stay away a month, six, or even twelve months at a time without feeling a single remorse of conscience, apparently. But when the protracted meeting comes on, an interest gets up, and sinners begin to obey the gospel, these brethren who have been so much absent from the Lord's house seem to be as zealous or even more so than those who have attended every Lord's day in the year. Now, can it be truly said of these members that they are spiritually minded? Most certainly not, when they are rejecting the teachings of the Spirit nine-tenths of their time in regard to the Lord's-day meeting. And most of these persons neglect the reading of the Scriptures at home, neglect family prayer, and entirely neglect the daily cultivation of their hearts upon the divine plan given by the word of God; and yet, many of these members would feel insulted to be told that they are not spiritually minded. But that such is really the truth there can be no doubt. Some brethren become easily offended at their brethren, and when offended become stiff and set themselves high upon their dignity, and refuse to be reconciled again, and continue to cultivate a feeling of hatred and malice against the one at whom they are offended, and sometimes go so far as to say that if the church will not withdraw from the one that offended them they will withdraw from the church, assuming that they are too holy and too spiritual to remain in a church that will suffer such things. These brethren that act thus would be insulted if told that they are not spiritually minded, but following the flesh and Satan; and yet for such to be claiming that they are spiritually minded is but a false claim, and such are deceiving themselves when they for one moment suppose they are following the Spirit of God. Brethren who hoard up riches around them and at the same time fail to bestow liberally of their goods to feed the poor, to relieve the afflicted, to spread abroad the pure gospel of Christ, and strive to save lost sinners and to edify and build the church, lay a false claim to being spiritually minded. They are worldly minded, fleshly minded, but not spiritual. The Jews gave more than one-tenth of all their income to support their religion, while many members of the church of God do not give one-fiftieth, and some none at all, and yet vainly dream that they are following the directions of the Spirit of God. If Christians would only read and study the word of God more, to learn what the Spirit of God requires of them, and would set their hearts more and more upon heavenly things and cultivate a continual longing of heart to do the things required by the Spirit, we would then have spiritually minded Christians; and without that we never will. We should read the word of God more in our houses, in our families, in our congregations; in fact, everywhere and at all times. And not only should we read the Scriptures, but we should meditate upon them, that we may learn our individual duties before God and toward one another. Then will we be spiritually minded, and then will our lives as Christians attract our fellow men to come and go with us.

Mother.

I remember my mother's prayers, and they have always followed me. They have clung to me all my life.—Abraham Lincoln.

The real religion of the world comes from women much more than from men—from mothers most of all who carry the key of our souls in their bosoms.—Oliver Wendell Holmes.

Mother! Her love and mindfulness have never failed me. I am as sure to have them as I am to have the sunshine, air to breathe, or God's mercy exercised toward me.—Frances E. Willard.

TRACTS AND BOOKLETS.

The following tracts and booklets can be had from the Gospel Advocate Company:

The Establishment of the Kingdom (L. R. Sewell)05
Modern Geology Rebuked (I. N. Jones)05
Faith that Qualifies for Baptism (Durst-McQuiddy)10
Instrumental Music in the Service of God (D. Lipscomb)	Free
Theological Grub Ax (W. L. Butler)10
Church Organization (E. G. Sewell)	Free
Walking by Faith (Kurfees)05
Sincerity Seeking the Way to Heaven (B. Franklin)05
Review of John B. Cowden's Tract on Instrumental Music in the Church (Kurfees)	Free
Searching the Scriptures (T. Fanning)10
Christian Eldership (Scobey)10
Is Salvation Conditional? (Dalton-Burnett)15
Doctrine of Sanctification (Carr)10
Bible Doctrine of Sanctification (Elam)10
Stark-Warlick Debate50
Theological Debate (Breits-Herod)25
Out of Darkness into Light (Z. T. Winfree)05
Philip Worthy (Debet)25
Evidence of Pardon (Holt)25
God's Foolishness vs. Man's Wisdom (McPherson)	Free
A Review of J. E. McHaffey's Tract on Baptism (Smith)15
The Place and Purpose of Baptism (Floyd)	Free
Methods of Work and Worship in the Church (Scobey)10
Christian Unity (D. Lipscomb) 64 pages10
Worship (McQuiddy)	Free
The New Birth (Waldron)10
The New Name (Kidwell)10

Many other tracts are in the office for distribution. They are good for use in protracted meetings.

Address Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Our Contributors

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

A CALL TO TROY (Continued).

In a night or two after Sister Turner was baptized her husband cooled down; he thought the matter over and decided that, after all his objections, perhaps she had done the very thing God required of her. He confessed faith in Christ and went "the same hour of the night" to be baptized. When he "came up out of the water," he was very happy; he shouted long and loud. He was so happy that he went away forgetting his coat and vest, which he took off before going into the water. Radical changes are often brought about by the gospel.

The Masonic fraternity had outgrown the size of their house and offered to sell us their house and lot. Brother Ott and others at once went to work and bought the house and lot, and the congregation was set in order and met in this house until the congregation outgrew it and had to build a larger house—which they did. The congregation now worships in a beautiful brick-veneer house which is a credit to the congregation at Troy. The congregation is doing a good work, for which we all rejoice.

While establishing the cause of Christ in Troy by use of a tent, many things had to be endured and much opposition met. A colored Baptist preacher had gone to Troy to build up a congregation of colored Baptists, but he found the colored people as full of prejudice as were the white people. While I was serving the congregation once a month, the Baptist preacher invited me to preach in the evening for his congregation, which I accepted. Several of the brethren went with me. I shall never forget that discussion and that appreciative audience of blacks. I was very particular to read and make everything just as plain and simple as I could. "Did yo' ever heah de like?" They began in real earnest to sanction everything said, and so expressed themselves. "Dat is so, and no 'sputin' it. Dat's what the Book says." "Dat white man shore am a preacher." "Nebber heard anything like dat in all my born days!"

Leaving the meetinghouse in company with Brother Ott and Brother L. E. Jones, Brother Jones said to Brother Ott: "I have just learned that Brother Williams' mission is to the negroes, for I never heard him preach such a sermon before." They, of course, had the laugh on me for preaching better to the negroes than to the whites. I told them perhaps they were right. I told them the difference between preaching to the whites and blacks was that the blacks expressed their appreciation and sanction of what I said, and that the whites gave no expression of approval, not even a grunt. After all, you may be correct as to my mission, and perhaps if I had gone to the negro race with the gospel I could have accomplished more good for them than I have for the white race. One thing I can truthfully say: I never in life preached for a congregation that expressed appreciation as did that congregation of negroes at Troy that Sunday evening. The call to Troy included a call to preach for the negroes. Mixed multitudes and mixed results.

A few years ago I was passing through Troy and stopped a while for a rest. A member of the congregation, speaking to me of the work at that place, said: "Brother Williams, you don't know anything about the prejudice there is in Troy and the hard fight we are having with the sects." I replied: "I should know something about it, as I started the work here and fought many battles in establishing the congregation." "Did you establish this congregation? Did you ever preach in Troy?" How soon, together with my work, was I forgotten at Troy! He seemed to be perfectly surprised to know that I had ever preached in the old town of Troy. When the new meetinghouse was ready for use, I was invited to preach the first sermon in it, which I did, and for which I feel very grateful to be remembered by them.

Only a few of the members of the beginning at that place remain to tell of the hard struggle we had in building up the congregation and starting it to worship God "as it is written."

One thing that gives me encouragement: God will not forget the labor, toil, and suffering of his faithful servants, and this should encourage all to go on and serve faithfully to the end. I hope the congregation at that place may grow in influence for good and never, never forget that it owes its origin to a poor old Lakeite preacher not big enough for Troy.

Next, "To Number Seven."

A Call to the Thoughtful and Unprejudiced.

BY S. H. HALL.

It has been my intention to say more under the above heading, but I have been hindered in getting to it. I have a number of letters commending what has been said, some insisting that I say more; and I have received one letter tacitly indorsing what has been said, but wanting me to discuss more directly schools that now exist. I also understand that a certain paper has done practically the same thing. So allow me to resume these articles for further study.

Our friend Moore, in the Baptist Flag of July 20, has something to say about one statement in my article that was published in March. I want that article first re-read in toto, then I will give you what Moore has to say. He heads his comments, as you will see, with, "Is the Church School Essential?" You will please observe that my article calls not for "church schools," as our friend Moore seems to think. The point, as any should be able to see, is that "the local church, in many instances, can never carry out her God-ordained work without doing some school work." By this I simply mean some work done in the schools, and only that that is indispensable with the local church's actually doing what "the great commission" says—viz., "teach all the nations," "preach the gospel to every creature." This commission comprehends every language under the sun. But my article speaks for itself. Read it, then next week we will give you Moore's remarks with my reply.

Our readers, I hope, remember what has already been said under this heading. I have insisted that some one show me how I could establish a school over which I have absolute control and leave the Bible out. I would be afraid to do a thing of this kind were I following this line of work for a living.

But I am now asking another question—viz.: I want some one to show me how we can ever, as a church, carry out the great commission without some thought given to school work. All that I have heretofore said has had reference solely to our work as individual Christians. I believe the individual Christian who is making school-teaching his calling in life would take a very embarrassing position were he to establish a school and allow not the Bible its rightful place in the education he proposes to give to his boys and girls. I could let the Bible go with me in the school and defend myself. Were I to leave it out, I confess my inability to defend myself. If some one wants this job I claim I am not equal to, he is welcome to it; but excuse me.

But now I am taking a position that is a bit new, so far as the agitation of the school question among us is concerned. The position is this: That body of people who call themselves "the church of Christ" cannot defend their past record on the school question. Instead of our being great sinners for establishing schools, we are to be blamed for not doing more school work as a church. Some one will ask: "Do you believe the local church has the right to do school work?" I answer: The local church, in many instances, can never carry out her God-ordained work without doing some school work.

Of course, you call for "book, chapter, and verse," and I am on the ground with it. Turn to Matt. 28: 19 and Mark 16: 15. The first says: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations." The latter says: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation." Now, don't you go to dodging by saying, "We are not under the great commission." For certainly Christ foreknew that some would try to dodge it; hence, he said: "Teaching them [the ones you teach and baptize] to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you." This commission was not only bound upon the apostles, but they were instructed to bind it upon all whom they taught and baptized.

Now for a few questions: (1) Can we teach the nations without talking to them? (2) Can we talk to them without language? (3) Does not this necessitate our learning their languages, else teaching them our own language, so that we may communicate with them? (4) In fact, does not the great commission make it the duty of the church of our Lord to give to every nation the pure word of God in their own language? The apostles could do this without study, but we can never do it without study. And preparing men to give the Bible to all the nations on earth in their own language, both by word of mouth and on the printed page, demands much school and college work, does it not?

I never felt this so keenly in all my life as I did while in Los Angeles. I had preached it in Atlanta; but one language sufficed there, because the few foreigners we had knew our language, hence I was not handicapped. But imagine how I felt when I got to Los Angeles and began to study the field! There was nearly every nation, and I could speak but one language successfully. I could not reach the Japanese, the Mexicans, and others too numerous to mention. Nor was the church there able to furnish me men and women that knew the languages of these other nations. Don't you tell me that we are loyal to the great commission when we teach the Bible merely in the language in which we happen to be born.

Every local church is duty bound to give the nations, to say the least, in its own section, the pure word of God unmixed with sectarian error. Who will deny this? Simply stay with the location in which the congregation exists: while most certainly I believe each local church must think of the whole world, for the commission says "all the nations," "the whole creation." But if we restrict it simply to the city in which the local church exists, we have many congregations who can never be, indeed, the church of Christ without establishing schools, or, as a church, doing quite a bit of school work.

I shall let this question rest for a while. You think about it. Give me light if I am in the dark. But I must contend, as matters now appear to me, that the church, as such, must give some thought to producing translators of the Holy Scriptures. Is it not a burning shame that we have not one translation even in our own language that scholars we have made produced? What if I had started a mission among the Japanese while in Los Angeles and had stood sorely in need of the New Testament in their language? Where would I have been forced to go for it? Would it not have been to the sects, who we know corrupt the plan of salvation? Is it right for us to depend on them for a pure translation? Must we take what they give us and guess it is right, or be men and produce scholars who can tell us they know it is right?

You may be pleased with our record here, but I am not. Instead of listening to all this twaddle against Bible colleges, every local church with which I labor must give some thought to the idea of having enough sense to meet the demands of the great commission. The Adventists give their doctrine to all the nations in their native tongue. So do the Russellites. What have we done? My face almost burns with shame. Give the nations God's word in its purity. This demands much of us. And even if we can find God's word correctly translated by others, still we must have enough language sense obtained by schooling to know it. We do not want doctors to guess when they give medicine to us and our children. Let us not guess a translation is right. Let us be men enough to see that it is.

Practical Christianity.

BY R. P. CUFF.

Since my arrival in Rockmart, Ga., a few days ago, I have heard it said that ministers of the church of Christ do not preach enough about practical Christianity. I presume that means that some preachers do not lay sufficient stress on principles of morality. If the charge be true, some one has blundered. Certainly the Christian should be moral. Indeed, his morality should be of the highest type. Let it not be forgotten, however, that Christianity embraces more than morality. Many a man is moral beyond question, but is not Christian, for he has never "named the name of Christ." The moral man may be the first to call at the home and express sympathy at the bedside of a sick friend or neighbor; he may be scrupulous in seeing that the man with whom he deals in a commercial way receives every penny due him; he may use language removed to the last degree from obscenity and vulgarity; and he may protect the honor of his family and the sanctity of his home. But Christianity reaches farther than that. Christianity abides by the special laws that Christ has ordained for the government of his people. A Christian is a follower of Christ. Any one who follows Christ must be moral; necessarily so, for Jesus was a sinless man—spotless and immaculate, innocent as the smile of an infant, pure as the crystal waters that swell ever onward in the river of life that flows through the celestial city; a man whose character was unsoiled by the degrading influences of the world. But the follower of Christ will "do all in the name of the Lord Jesus;" will eat the Lord's Supper in memory of him; will give of his means for the spread of the gospel; will go to the assembly of the saints for worship; will desire to be known to the world as a Christian; and will use the influence of his life for the success of the cause. How many there are who tenderly care for the sick and minister to the poor that have never been baptized into Christ and, hence, are not in him! How many who are honest to the core in money matters that never commemorate the death of Jesus! How many who would not let a lie stain their lips and heart that go seldom, if at all, to the house of God! To the moral man, who is unchristian, I would say: "Why not go the full length? You have so much that is good, why not make the best possible of your life?" To the man who poses before the world as a Christian, but whose gross immorality is plainly visible, I would say: "Be ashamed for soiling the garments of God—the Christian clothing that he gave you. They were made clean in the blood of Jesus. Call upon God to cleanse them again, and then, by his grace, keep them unspotted, that you may have the blessed privilege of walking with Jesus in white as a heavenly reward."

Below is affixed a list of duties that the Christian should observe. It makes no pretensions to being exhaustive. The reader may easily supply many others, but these are sufficient to show that Christianity is a practical thing and that every child of God is duty-bound to be "up and doing." Please study the list:

- (1) Worship God. (Matt. 4: 10.) (2) Control self. (1 Cor. 9: 25.) (3) Be kind. (Eph. 4: 32.) (4) Be forgiving. (Col. 3: 13.) (5) Encourage the faint-hearted. (1 Thess. 5: 14.) (6) Be long-suffering toward all. (1 Thess. 5: 14.) (7) Forsake not the assembling. (Heb. 10: 25.) (8) Love one another. (Heb. 13: 1.) (9) Give liberally. (Rom. 12: 8.) (10) Be diligent. (Rom. 12: 11.) (11) Be hospitable. (Rom. 12: 13.) (12) Pray, pray, pray! (Rom. 12: 12.) (13) Be in subjection to the higher powers. (Rom. 13: 1.) (14) Condescend to things that are lowly. (Rom. 12: 16.) (15) Be not wise in your own conceits. (Rom. 12: 16.) (16) Be peaceable. (Rom. 12: 18.) (17) Take no vengeance. (Rom. 12: 19.) (18) Do not commit adultery. (Rom. 13: 9.) (19) Do not kill. (Rom. 13: 9.) (20) Do not steal. (Rom. 13: 9.) (21) Do not covet. (Rom. 13: 9.) (22) Abhor that which is evil. (Rom. 12: 9.) (23) Profess honest occupations. (Tit. 3: 8.) (24) Remember the death, sufferings, and sacrifice of Jesus by observing the Lord's Supper. (Acts 20: 7; 1 Cor. 11: 24, 26.) (25) Teach others the way of the Lord. (2 Tim. 2: 2.) (26) Suffer hardship. (2 Tim. 2: 3; 2 Tim. 4: 5.) (27) Lead a tranquil and quiet life. (1 Tim. 2: 2.) (28) Let your speech be always with grace, seasoned with salt. (Col. 4: 6.) (29) Do all in the name of the Lord Jesus.

(Col. 3: 17.) (30) "If there be any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself." (Rom. 13: 9.)

"What doth Jehovah require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Mic. 6: 8.) "Fear God, and keep his commandments; for this is the whole duty of man." (Eccles. 12: 13.)

Is One Church as Good as Another?

BY O. C. LAMBERT.

People say: "One church is as good as another, for it is not the church that saves you, anyway." This is some of the devil's most subtle sophistry. They would explain this by another statement equally as deceptive. "There is no salvation in the church, for it is Christ who saves," as though it would be inconsistent for Christ to save through the church. We have a parallel case in Noah and the ark. It could have been as truthfully said that there was no salvation in the ark, because it is God who saves. The truth is that God saved them by means of the ark. All who were in it were saved; those outside were lost. They might have given utterance to the fallacy that one ark is as good as another, and that it makes no difference what ark we enter, as the ark does not save us, anyway. But the record plainly shows that only those who entered the ark which the Lord built were saved.

Having shown by a parallel case that the reasoning is specious, that it is perfectly consistent for God to save through the ark and for Christ to save through the church, let us inquire into the merits of the first statement. With what would they support the contention that one church is as good as another? If all were human institutions, we could reasonably believe them to be of equal value—that is, of no value at all; for "every plant, which my Heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up." If the Lord build not the house, they labor in vain that build it." If they were all divine institutions, we might argue with some consistency that one is as good as the other. They certainly will not claim that they are all human, for that would make the church which Jesus shed his blood to purchase a human institution. I am perfectly willing for them to call all others human institutions—that is, they originated with men and not with God. Surely no one would contend that a church is divine that is not once mentioned by Jesus, the apostles, or any other inspired man. That only is divine which is ordained of God, and that only human which originated with men. Some churches are human; only one is divine. How can any one claim that one is as good as the other? All churches of human origin are false and worthless, but Jesus said of his: "Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." In other words, there is absolute safety in it. I cannot believe that Jesus shed his blood to purchase a worthless institution. Since it is impossible for divine and human productions to be equal in value, the statement that one church is as good as another is absurdly untrue.

The Lord's Cotton Patch.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

One day recently my children and grandchildren, except two children and one grandchild, assembled at the park on Reelfoot Lake for a family fish fry.

About two o'clock two autos from Steele, Mo., came for a few-days' outing on the lake. To my great surprise, Brother Pleas Kelly, of Steele, was in charge of the outing.

Brother Kelly told me the congregation at Steele had purchased a beautiful corner lot and in the near future intended to erect a beautiful brick building in which to worship God and preach the gospel as did the apostles of old. The membership at Steele are poor in the things of this world—that is, the majority of them are.

"We must have the money to build a house for the Lord." It was decided to plant ten acres of cotton, to be known as the "Lord's cotton patch." They met, broke and prepared the land, and planted the ten acres in cotton. Certain days were set apart to meet and cultivate the cotton. When the day arrived, all parties were on hand. Even men who were not members of the church gave time and labor to the cultivation of the Lord's crop.

Brother Kelly told me the cotton was fine; in fact, all of them had the finest prospects for a good crop they had had for many years. I asked him who was the originator of that scheme. He said: "They give me credit for it, but I got the idea from an article in the Saturday Evening Post." He told me that, unless something prevented the maturity of that crop, they expected to sell five hundred dollars' worth of cotton from that ten acres. No boll weevil in that cotton up to the present.

Brethren, here is a precedent for all rural congregations. Let each congregation agree to plant and cultivate a certain amount of land, to be known as "the Lord's crop," the proceeds to be given to the Lord for his work. You poor fellows that are always saying, "I have no money," here is the way to get it. Will you do it? I will see how many congregations I can get to take hold of the Kelly method in order to have something for the Lord's work. Let the first congregation that will accept and carry into effect the Kelly method inform me of the fact, as I desire to keep tab on all that will take hold of this matter. Who will be the first? Time will tell.

Denver (Col.) Notes.

BY JOHN D. EVANS.

Brother S. P. Pittman, of Nashville, Tenn., is spending his vacation doing evangelistic work in the Colorado field this summer. In the latter part of June he was with us in a series of meetings in Denver. There were six confessions and baptisms. Brother Pittman proclaimed the old-fashioned gospel with great power and proved himself to be indeed "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed, handling aright the word of truth."

We are now in the midst of an interesting meeting in Colorado Springs. Audiences fair and interest good. No visible results as yet. Will close this series next Sunday night. The brethren at Colorado Springs worship in their own new building, and they are gradually building up the work in that destitute "City of Sunshine."

We go next to Fort Collins to spend a week or two in a meeting. This was the home of Brother E. C. Fuqua until recently, when he went to take up the work in California. Bellvue is only a short distance from Fort Collins, and will cooperate with the congregation there in the meeting. Brother W. F. Parmiter, a minister of long experience, is making his home there.

The brethren in Colorado are fortunate in having Brother Pittman with them for so long a period. We are keeping him pretty busy, but he rather likes that. He will be with us in this field until toward September 1.

We are hoping to complete arrangements soon to keep one or two evangelists in the Colorado field all the time.

Apparently we have forgotten a few of the erstwhile simple things of life. A backward look will reveal them as the big things. Get the habit of happiness. Utilize your enthusiasms. The world is hungry for faith. The young man is the future incarnate. Let every failure teach you the game. Public confidence is the young man's best asset. Get down to earth; that is where the people live. The world is not down on you; it is just busy, that's all. A man who won't get up when he is knocked down is of no use. These are all workable problems. Try them out.—Texas Christian Advocate.

Liberty in Christ.

BY F. R. SRYGLEY.

"For freedom did Christ set us free: stand fast therefore, and be not entangled again in a yoke of bondage." (Gal. 5: 1.)

This passage refers directly to Christians who had formerly been Jews. They had lived under the law of Moses; and though Christ had redeemed them from the law, had abolished it, had taken it out of the way, yet they were slow to learn that they were under no obligation to keep any part of it. The effort of the apostle in his letter to the Galatians is to convince these brethren that they were free from every demand of the law of Moses, but still they were under the law of Christ. "To them that are without law, as without law, not being without law to God, but under law to Christ, that I might gain them that are without law." (1 Cor. 9: 21.) While the gospel of Christ frees the Christians from the law of Moses and from every other law that conflicts with it, yet it places the Christian under the strongest obligation to obey Christ and to worship God as he directs. While the Christian has freedom from sin and freedom from the law of Moses, yet he is a servant of Christ and should never forget his obligations to his Master. In matters of worship he is free from the commandments of men, but he is limited in his worship by the commands of Christ.

It is remarkable how many preachers feel that their freedom in Christ relieves them from the commands of God even in the items of worship. In my debate with Brother Gast, in Portsmouth, Ohio, after he had tried for two sessions to prove that the Greek word "psallo" means to play on an instrument, he surprised me by saying: "I do not say that God specifically commands the use of the instrument in his worship." I asked him if God did not specifically command it, how did he command it, and he said: "He did not command it at all, but only permitted it." His position seemed to be that under the idea of Christian liberty we are permitted to use the instrument in worship. If that be so, then are we not at liberty to use anything else that we want to use? If this position is true, then what benefit is the Bible to man? If one church has the liberty to use one thing in the worship of God just because it wants to use it, why would it be wrong for any other church to use anything just because it wants to use it? It seems to me that this position carried to its logical results would put an end to God's authority in his worship.

I have been creditably informed that one of the prominent preachers in the city of Nashville on Sunday before he left for his summer vacation preached a sermon on Christian liberty, in which he said that he was not in the organ business, and that if the Ninth and Russell Streets Church did not want the organ they could let it alone, but that he and his church wanted it and under the teaching of Christian liberty they could and would have it. If this logic does not apply to everything else these brethren might want in their worship, I am unable to see why it does not. After preaching this sermon the brother left next day for his summer vacation, and left the church in the care of his assistant pastor. On the next Sunday the young man had somewhat to say on the same subject that his chief had so recently handled, and he it said to his praise that he raised a little caution on the subject by telling the congregation that they could carry the principle too far. There are some things in which we have no liberty, but we must obey God. He cited in proof of his contention the command to be baptized. In this the young man is evidently correct, though illogical in singling out one command to the exclusion of others. Has not God told us just as plainly what kind of music to make in his praise as he has what kind of a subject to baptize? When God commands the baptism of believers, this excludes unbelievers; and when he commands his people to sing in his praise, instrumental music is likewise excluded. I compliment the young man for his caution, notwithstanding his failure to grasp the entire situation, and I must say that in giving this caution he shows himself to be safer as a teacher than his chief. If the young man can be shown where his logic leads him and can be induced to follow it, it would be well to allow the chief to protract his vacation as long as possible. I have another regret, though. This same pastor is one of Brother Cowden's committee to arrange the preliminaries of our long-talked-of debate, and I am very much afraid that, with his position as herein expressed, it will be hard for Brother Cowden to get him to agree for his side to affirm that the New Testament teaches the use of the instrument in the worship of God. We can all see that this brother is back on the old line, and not on the issue which O. E. Payne has raised in his book, "Instrumental Music Is Scriptural." Is it possible that these brethren have indorsed and circulated a book which they do not believe themselves? Brethren, stand up to the issue which you yourselves have made or repudiate O. E. Payne's book and apologize to your brethren and to the world for circulating it. We are still waiting.

Reply to Brother Lee Jackson.

BY T. J. MARRS.

In Dan. 2: 44 the "image" does show as a continuous sequence. But in considering Alexander's kingdom we should note: The great horn (Alexander) was the first king of the third kingdom; and when he died, four others stood up in his place, or kingdom; therefore, Alexander being first, we should not consider it as being a new kingdom, but as the same (divided toward the four winds). As Dan. 2: 44 shows this God-made kingdom "fills all the earth" and "stands forever," we would naturally ask Brother Jackson: Did God establish such a kingdom immediately after the Grecian kingdom? If so, we never heard nor read of it.

As Daniel refers to four great empires, "the fourth" refers to only the fourth of this list. In the sequence of the "four beasts," the "ten horns" refers to the same as the "toes" of the "image," for it is said, "The kingdom and dominion under the whole heaven shall be given to the saints of the most High," etc., showing it to be same kingdom, for each shows an everlasting world-wide kingdom. Both Daniel and Revelation show this "beast" wars against the saints, but Daniel shows it was the "little horn" which rose among the others that caused the persecutions. The saints were to be under the dominion of Daniel's beast "a time, and times, and a half time." Three and one-half Jewish years equal twelve hundred and sixty days. The beast of Revelation was to "continue forty-two months. Forty-two times thirty days is twelve hundred and sixty days. The "woman" had a place prepared for her (on the back of the beast) "a thousand two hundred and threescore days," while her offspring was sitting as the god of that heaven, and ruling the nations with the iron rod of the iron (Roman) kingdom.

As Dan. 2: 44 shows, "the sovereignty of the God-kingdom will not be left to another people;" then no "Roman" kingdom comes after it.

[As was announced last week space forbids further discussion on this subject. All have had opportunity to express themselves through the columns of the Gospel Advocate.—H. Leo B.]

Publishers' Items.

The second edition of "Travels in Bible Lands," by Andy T. Ritchie, is now ready. It is pronounced by all who have read it as being the best book ever written on travels in the Holy Land. It is illustrated and contains 335 pages. Cloth bound. Price, $1.50, postpaid, to any address. Send for your copy to-day.

Home Reading

The Things We Can't Afford.

We can't afford to win the prize
That means another's loss;
We can't afford to miss the crown
By stumbling at the cross.

We can't afford the heedless jest
That robs us of a friend;
We can't afford the laugh that finds
In bitter tears an end.

We can't afford the feast to-day
That means to-morrow's fast;
We can't afford the feud that comes
To tragedy at last.

We can't afford to play with fire
Or tempt a serpent's bite;
We can't afford to think that sin
Brings any true delight.

We can't afford with serious heed
To treat the cynic's sneer;
We can't afford to wise men's words
To turn a careless ear.

We can't afford for hate to give
Like hatred in return;
We can't afford to feed a flame
And make it fiercer burn.

We can't afford to lose the soul
For this world's fleeting breath;
We can't afford to barter life
In mad exchange for death.

But blind to good are we, apart
From Thee, all-seeing Lord.
O, grant us light, that we may know
The things we can't afford.

—William Allen.

He Dared to Tell The Truth.

Mr. Jones was accounted a hard master. He never kept his boys; they ran away or gave notice they meant to quit. So he was half his time without or in search of a boy. The work was not hard, opening and sweeping out the shop, chopping wood, going on errands, and helping around. At last Sam Fisher went to live with him.

"Sam's a good boy," said his mother.

"I should like to see a boy that had a spark of goodness in him," growled the new master.

It is always bad to begin with a man that has no confidence in you, because, do your best, you are likely to have little credit for it. However, Sam thought he would try. The wages were good, and his mother wanted him to go. Sam had been there but three days when, in sawing a cross-grained stick of wood, he broke the saw. He was a little frightened. He knew he was careful, and he knew he was a pretty good sawyer, too, for a boy of his age; nevertheless, the saw broke in his hands.

"Mr. Jones never makes allowances," said another boy who was in the woodhouse with him.

"Why, of course, I didn't mean it, and accidents will happen to the best of folk," said Sam, looking with a very sorrowful air on the broken saw.

"Mr. Jones never makes allowances," said the other boy. "I never saw anything like him. And Bill might have stayed, only he jumped into a hen's nest and broke her eggs. He daren't tell of it; but Mr. Jones kept suspecting and suspecting and laid everything out of the way to Bill, whether Bill was to blame or not, till Bill couldn't stand it and wouldn't."

"Did he tell Mr. Jones about the eggs?" asked Sam.

"No," said the boy; "he was afraid. Mr. Jones has got such a temper."

"I think he'd have better owned up at once," said Sam.

"I suspect you'll find it better to preach than to practice," said the boy. "I'd run away before I'd tell him." And he soon turned on his heel and left poor Sam alone with his broken saw.

The boy did not feel very comfortable or happy. He shut up the woodhouse, walked out in the garden, and went up to his little chamber under the eaves. He wished he could tell Mrs. Jones, but she wasn't sociable.

When Mr. Jones came into the house, the boy heard him. He got up, crept downstairs, and met Mr. Jones in the kitchen.

"Sir," said Sam, "I broke your saw, and I thought I'd come and tell you."

"What did you get up to tell me for?" asked Mr. Jones. "I should think morning would be time enough to tell of your carelessness."

"Because," said Sam, "I was afraid if I put it off I might be tempted to lie about it. I am sorry I broke it, but I tried to be careful."

Mr. Jones looked at the boy from head to foot, then, stretching out his hand, he said heartily: "Sam, give me your hand; shake hands. I'll trust you, Sam. That's right; that's right. Go to bed, boy. Never fear. I'm glad the saw broke; it shows the mettle's in you. Go to bed."

Mr. Jones was fairly won. There never were better friends after that than Sam and he. Sam thinks justice had not been done Mr. Jones. If the boys had treated him honestly and "above board," he would have been a good man to deal with. It was their conduct which soured and made him suspicious. I do not know how that is. I only know that Sam Fisher finds in Mr. Jones a kind master and a faithful friend.—Selected.

Take Care of That Odd Boy.

Do not discourage that boy of yours because he is odd, because he does not get the highest grade, because his card shows he is dull. Why, that may be one of the signs that he is great, but not exactly in the line of the books crammed into his hands for him to cram into his head. Recall that Beecher said that he got more discipline out of inventing excuses why he could not get his lessons in mathematics than he ever did from the books. Longfellow has expressed our thought:

Perhaps there lives some dreamy boy, untaught
In schools, some graduate of the field or street,
Who shall become a master of the art,
An admiral sailing the high seas of thought
Fearless and first, and steering with his fleet
For lands not yet laid down in any chart.

Do not disparage the boy who seems dull. It may be his way. One of the things of which our colleges boast is one of the things of which they ought to be ashamed—namely, that they will send a student home if his marks on examination are not up to certain percentages. Forsooth! That is something to shame a school. Let the student get what he can assimilate. He will get a lot out of association and effort and encouragement. Why brand him as a fool because certain studies do not wedge themselves into his brain, just exactly as in the texts? Education should be democratic. Some would gear it simply to the intellectual aristocrats. Moreover, read again those lines of Longfellow. They have often come true.—Selected.

The moment we expect or demand gratitude, that moment we cease to deserve it. To give and then to claim because we have given is to miss the whole beauty of giving.—Selected.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

The Preacher.

BY C. R. N.

Some months ago a young man sought an interview with me. In the conference I learned that he was anxious for my advice in determining what his work in life should be. He said: "I have noticed in the secular press, particularly a recent article in the Literary Digest, that there is a shortage in men for the ministry in all the churches, and I have thought that with the proper preparation on my part I would be able to find many openings." I answered the young man about as follows:

(1) "The greatest work in which a man has ever engaged is that of preaching the gospel. One soul is of more value than the whole world. True preachers are workers with God (2 Cor. 6: 1, 2); they save people (1 Cor. 9: 22). But let me tell you, young man, there is not a more unpopular necessary work in the world than that of preaching the gospel." The young man seemed astonished. I had only to refer to the existing "shortage" as proof of the statement. In addition, I said: "Ministers are often ridiculed, and true ministers are often persecuted. Not the persecution which results in physical death, or imprisonment, such as the apostles and early preachers underwent; but it is persecution none the less. Many men can face death on the battle front without any external indications that they are disquieted, who would fly into a frenzy and manifest an ugly spirit if subjected to the nagging reflections the gospel preacher at times must endure at the hands of the ignorant and sectarian bigot. Ridicule is a weapon which usually cuts to the soul and destroys one's equanimity and poise. All ministers are classed together; on them as on no other class of men falls the censure for the mistakes or sins of any one of their number. It matters not to what church a man may minister, if he falls, if he 'goes bad,' it reflects on me as on all other ministers. Let a stranger pass down the street and be identified as a minister, and often some one will tell of some preacher who disgraced himself. The presence of a minister on the street often subjects him to a slighting remark.

(2) "The life of the true minister is filled with hard work. He must be a constant student—and much study is a weariness to the flesh. He must be versatile, and withal a mental acrobat. It may be his in the morning to lecture to the high school; at ten o'clock to conduct a funeral; to be toastmaster at some lunch at the noon hour; to meet the ladies' Bible class in the afternoon; to say a marriage ceremony in the early evening; and later in the evening to be called to the bedside of some sick person. The minister must work—many days he will find that he must toil.

(3) "The minister is regarded by many as a leech, a parasite, a beggar, and many will begrudge the mite they give to his support. Monetary consideration must not be a factor in leading you to the work of preaching the gospel. Most ministers, when they have become old men, if, indeed, they live to be old men, have not saved enough to keep them from want in their days of inactivity. When the minister has grown old, he is usually forgotten.

(4) "In the work of the true minister, he strives to keep self in the background. It is his to exalt Christ, to feature the beauties of the Christian religion and the transforming power of the gospel.

(5) "Do not become a preacher if you can keep from it.

I mean by this: If there is not a holy desire in your heart to preach; if this desire to tell your fellows the gospel story is not so intense that it will not hear a "no;" if you can quiet your conscience and not preach, then by no means become a preacher.

✱ ✱ ✱

"Shall We Criticize?"

BY U. G. WILKINSON.

I have tried occasionally to "break into print" in a feeble protest against our gospel preachers entering the "profession" and adopting "rules" that would prevent us from "reproving and rebuking with all long-suffering and doctrine," even when the subject of our reproofs was a professional preacher. I had decided that maybe I was almost in a class by myself, with the possible exception of Brother Tant and maybe a few others. True, the "professionals" seemed swift enough to criticize us "old fogies" who refused to join the profession, but maybe that is not a violation of the "ethics." But Brother Tant assured me recently in a private letter that Brother Nichol and Brother Whiteside and a number of other "old liners" were still just plain Christians. It made me rejoice to know this, to "thank God and take courage." And when I read what Brother Nichol and Brother Whiteside had to say about it in the Gospel Advocate, I rejoiced exceedingly. I am still, like Brother Whiteside, a plain Christian, and, like Brother Nichol and many others, set for the defense of the gospel, as an elder who "labors in word and doctrine," and, as such, to be accounted worthy of double honor, but not yet a professional clergyman. I am glad to render my protest against the professionals, and with good old Jeremiah call for a return to the "old paths." (Jer. 6: 16.) May God abundantly bless all faithful men who humbly preach the unsearchable riches of Christ.

This idea of the professional preacher, I fear, is producing a class who seem to regard themselves as the favorites of fortune, who alone should be selected to do the preaching, criticizing, etc., the rest to be weeded out as undesirables. It will be a sad day for the cause of our Lord when the old-time gospel preacher, debater, and defender of the truth generally in town and country is no more, and we have to depend exclusively on the "profession" to extend and defend the truth. And herein is the cause of the preacher dearth. Not that we do not have the preachers. If any one thinks we do not, just let him put a call for a preacher in the papers and see how many will respond to it. But this weeding-out process will, no doubt, soon rid us of the "nonprofessionals" who still insist on belonging to the laity, and maybe this will cure the preacher dearth. Of course it is not unethical for the professional to criticize the nonprofessional, just as we find it in the other professions, but it would be unethical to commend them. I myself am a member of the legal profession and was once in active practice. If I should commend as an attorney one not a member of the bar, it would be such a breach of professional ethics as would subject me to disbarment proceedings. Maybe this is why the professionals among us cannot recommend us ordinary disciples to preach and baptize sinners any more, like Ananias, who baptized Saul of Tarsus, who himself was only a "certain disciple." By commending us nonprofessionals they might subject themselves to the danger of being disbarred from the "profession." But as long as the Holy Spirit directs me to do so, as it certainly does, I shall continue to teach and baptize sinners according to the opportunity, though a Saul of Tarsus needed my assistance to "arise, and be baptized, and wash away thy [his] sins." And let me say to all: Make known the way of salvation to dying sinners, great and small; "reprove, rebuke, exhort with all long-suffering and doctrine," "preach the word," regardless of whether you violate the ethics of any profession. This is God's plan.

Selecting the Preacher.

BY R. L. WHITESIDE.

A well-regulated church of Christ has its elders and deacons. Without going into details as to the qualifications of elders and deacons, let us remember that they must be men whose attainments, both intellectual and spiritual, command the respect of the community. Upon them falls the responsibility for the management of the affairs of the congregation. The elders are the overseers, the leaders, in all the activities of the church. It is evident to any Bible student that while God never intended that they should do all the teaching, he does make them responsible for the teaching done in the congregation, for he puts upon them the duty of convicting the gainsayers and stopping the mouths of unruly men. They are to see to it that the congregation receives such teaching as it needs. This is implied in the command to "feed the flock." A flock is not properly fed only as it receives the food it needs.

From time to time the needs of a congregation vary, and an elder fails in his duty when he does not realize this. A little reflection will enable you to see this. Sometimes a general indifference is manifest, sometimes there is a falling off in the contributions, and sometimes the church becomes indifferent in missions, and so on. The wise elder will keep in touch with the congregation so as to realize its needs. When any general or specific defect is observed which he finds he is unable to correct, he will call for help. This necessitates his being sufficiently acquainted with the preachers so that he will be able to wisely select the proper one for the work. Some are warm-hearted and enthusiastic. They can stir the hearts of the people and warm them up. At times your church needs such a man. At other times the church may need to be more firmly rooted and grounded in the great fundamentals of the gospel. Some preachers are much better fitted for a work of that sort than others. These same things are true as to all the other things affecting the life of a church. An elder who does not recognize these facts is poorly qualified for his duty as an elder. In discharging his duty along this line, he will be greatly aided by counseling with the better-developed members of the church. The elder should not allow his admiration for any man to determine his selection. He should have regard solely for the needs of the church and community.

But what is the general practice? Whose influence, whose word, usually determines the selection of the preacher? Brother elder, whose influence determined the selection of your preacher? Does it not happen sometimes like this? You decide to call a preacher. "Whom shall we call? Shall we get Brother Blank?" "No, let's not get him; he doesn't interest the young folks." Another says: "All the denominations like Brother So and So, and want us to get him." So it goes. And such talk frequently determines the matter. The real needs of the congregation are sacrificed to the likes or dislikes of those who do not know the real needs of the congregation and are not interested in the advancement of the cause of Christ. It is certain that if you allow the sectarians to select your preacher, they will select one who will not interfere with them. Sometimes elders allow such considerations to influence them to act contrary to their best judgment. But the church will never be what it should be as long as such conditions prevail.

✻ ✻ ✻

Personal Notes.

T. H. Etheridge closed at Oletha, Texas, with five baptisms.

C. R. Nichol closed in Morrilton, Ark., with seven baptisms.

F. J. Berry is in a meeting at Elkhart, Texas, with four baptisms to date.

D. F. Draper is in a good meeting at Shady Grove, near Big Sandy, Texas.

J. S. Daugherty recently closed at Saratoga, Texas. He is now at Hope, Ark.

Lee Sanders is in a meeting at Boon Prairie, Texas, with six baptisms and four otherwise.

J. W. McKinney, Lamesa, Texas, can be had to labor for all his time with some congregation.

W. P. Jones closed at Ragtown, Okla., with three baptisms. He is now at Cameron, Okla.

C. W. Holley closed at West, Texas, with ten baptisms, and at Bogata, Texas, with five baptisms.

J. E. Wainwright closed at Cason, Texas, on July 23. He will begin at Brinkley, Ark., on August 4.

C. H. Kennedy closed a meeting at Princeton, Texas, on July 13, with two baptized and one restored.

Tice Elkins is in a meeting in Lakeview Addition, Fort Worth, Texas. He will soon be in meetings out of town.

F. L. Young writes: "Our home meeting, Paris, Texas, with home forces, is the best ever. Ten confessions and other additions."

W. P. Skaggs closed in Rogers, Texas, with six confessions. He will be with that church again next year for a meeting.

Thomas E. Milholland closed his third meeting with the church in Winters, Texas, with twenty-two additions to the congregation—fifteen baptisms. Hugh Clark has been doing splendid work with the Winters church.

W. T. Kidwill closed at Lisbon, Texas, with two baptisms, and at Dulaney, Texas, with six baptisms. This was his fourth meeting with the Dulaney church. Brother Kidwill will be with some of the Tennessee churches this fall.

The church in Tyler, Texas, has been aggressive for several years, though their house has not been well located. In the congregation are some of the most effective workers. They have acquired a lot, well located in two blocks of the Public Square, at a cost of seven thousand dollars. On this lot they are now erecting a temporary building at a cost of two thousand dollars. In addition to this work, the church is preparing to do some missionary work in the section of country surrounding their city. The church in Tyler will continue to grow.

J. H. Lawson, who labors with the First church of Christ, Houston, Texas, writes: "The work with the church here is fine. Interest is all we could well expect. We are trying to arrange for a debate with the Seventh-Day Adventists. If we succeed in perfecting the arrangements, we will expect you to present the truth in the debate. Just at present I am in a mission meeting in Hearn, Texas. This is a town of some three thousand, and this is the first effort to establish the church of Christ in this town. One confession and splendid audiences and the best of attention. I expect to leave a congregation here. The First Church in Houston is supporting me in this work. I shall begin in Lynn, Ala., on the fifth Sunday in July."

How little it costs if we give a thought
To make happy some heart each day;
Just one kind word and a tender smile.
As we go on in our daily way!
Perchance a look will suffice to clear
The cloud from a neighbor's face,
And the press of a hand in sympathy
A sorrowful tear efface. —Selected.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We are trying to increase the circulation of the Gospel Advocate, knowing that as we increase its circulation we are broadening its field of usefulness and thereby doing more good for our Master. Will you coöperate with us in this good work? The subscription list of the Gospel Advocate is growing daily, and we want you to help us do even greater things for the Lord through its columns. Here is our Special Offer: If you will send us two new subscribers for a year, we will send you a copy of Peloubet's "Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons." This book includes all the Sunday-school lessons for the year 1922. It formerly sold for $2. The price of the Gospel Advocate is $2 per year. Send to the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Current Comment

Is Baptism a "Nonessential?"

The Baptist Courier quotes the action of the Northern Baptist Convention affirming that the New Testament is the "all-sufficient ground of faith and practice and we need no other," and deduces from this that no Baptist church in that convention can now consistently refuse admission to any one coming from any Protestant church without baptism. We do not so understand the effect of this action, but it does permit any Baptist Church to receive such applicant without baptism. But this is what some of them have probably been advocating already.—Baptist Record.

The Baptist Courier and the Baptist Record are both confused. However, the Baptist Courier is right in "affirming that the New Testament is the 'all-sufficient ground of faith and practice and we need no other.'" The trouble with these journals arises from the fact that the New Testament knows nothing about the Baptist Church nor any other church, save the body of Christ, or church of which our Lord is the head. (See Col. 1: 18.)

Again, why should they be so particular about "baptism?" It is a nonessential, so far as one's salvation is concerned! The editors of the papers named above wrangle with each other over a nonessential and impose a nonessential upon all who seek membership in the Baptist Church. Why not seek to honor God in the only church of which Christ is the head and let the New Testament be the all-sufficient guide for God's people?

Would Celebrate Pentecost.

Why do we celebrate Christmas and Easter and neglect the festival of the flaming tongue? The day of Pentecost, if not the birthday of the church, was at least the day of its awakening and indument with power, changing it from a timid band to a world-moving fellowship.

Power we have of many kinds, but what we need is a profounder sense of the power available by faith and prayer and unity, a new visitation of the Cleanser, the Comforter, the Quickener. On the day of Pentecost the will to fellowship was realized not by might, not by power, but by the Spirit of God. If the world is to learn to live together, the way of Jerusalem is better than the way of Genoa.

In a day when the brotherhood of the world is broken and the yearning for Christian unity is poignant, if not prophetic, there should be a revival of the celebration of the day of the outpouring of the Holy Spirit, such as led the guilds of the Middle Ages to march in procession to the cathedrals on Whitsunday. Why can we not make the day of Pentecost the annual festival of Christian unity, the better to dramatize and bring to a focus the growing passion of the church for the prophetic prayer of our Lord that his disciples shall be one?—Christian Century.

The Christian Century "would celebrate Pentecost." Well, there is about as much authority for celebrating Pentecost as "Christmas and Easter." But why celebrate any of these days or events? The New Testament gives no authority for any of these celebrations, and yet it is affirmed that the sacred writings "are able to make thee wise unto salvation through faith which is in Christ Jesus." (2 Tim. 3: 15.) Pentecost, or the "feast of weeks," was a Jewish feast day; it was one of the three "set feasts" commanded by the law of Moses. It came on the fiftieth day after the "passover feast." (Lev. 23: 15-17.) It was abrogated or taken out of the way when the law was removed and a new covenant made. As it was not made a part of the new covenant by Christ and his inspired writers, we should not enjoin it upon any one, neither should we catalogue it or any other day not authorized by the New Testament as a day of celebration for God's people to-day. God knew that man would be inclined to "keep feast days" and "celebrate" events and occasions which the New Testament did not authorize, hence the warning against such "celebrating:"

"Let no man therefore judge you in meat, or in drink, or in respect of a feast day or a new moon or a Sabbath day: which are a shadow of the things to come: but the body is Christ's." (Col. 2: 16, 17.) Again, Paul rebuked the "churches of Galatia" for doing the very thing that the religious people of this age have their heart set on doing. "Ye observe days, and months, and seasons, and years. I am afraid of you, lest by any means I have bestowed labor upon you in vain." (Gal. 4: 10, 11.)

The simple worship of the people of God on the Lord's day as revealed in the New Testament is important in developing Christian character. The assembling of the saints for prayer, praise, study, edification, and eating the Lord's Supper is what God requires of his people. This should be done. Those who are so persistent in celebrating Christmas, Easter, Pentecost, Mother's Day, Children's Day, etc., are very neglectful in doing what God requires on the first day of the week. Man seems prone to neglect the day which God has appointed and very determined to appoint days of his own choosing. The only day which God has appointed as a special day of worship man has ignored and misnamed it, calling it the "Sabbath." No, let us not add another day to the catalogue of man-appointed days.

The American Standard Bible.

We give space to the following announcement only to call attention to the great service rendered to the world by the American Bible Revision Committee. It may be said that the American Revised Version, the product of this committee, is the best and clearest statement of God's revelation to man now extant. All honor to the ripe scholarship, consecrated energy, and faithful perseverance that gave to us such a translation of the Bible as the Standard American Edition of the Revised Version of the Bible. But here is the announcement:

The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church in the United States has gone on record in favor of the proposed celebration to mark the fiftieth anniversary of the first formal meeting of those eminent American scholars who constituted the American Bible Revision Committee, and whose persistent labors during the ensuing thirty years resulted in the publication of the American Standard Bible. The resolution is as follows:

"The General Assembly learns with interest of the purpose to celebrate on Wednesday, October 4, 1922, the fiftieth anniversary of the first formal meeting of the eminent American scholars who constituted the American Revision Committee, and whose persistent labors during the ensuing thirty years resulted in the issuance of the American Standard Bible. It recalls that the head of this committee was an honored minister of our own communion, Philip Schaff, and that others of its ministers served in the same cause. Welcoming, as it does, all new light upon the word of God, and all new light from that word, it commends the celebration of this anniversary to presbyteries, churches, and people, as an opportunity to present anew the living and refreshing truth of the Scriptures."

Church Federation.

The tendency among the leaders of nearly all the denominations is toward union—federation. They have seen that division is wrong; that the party spirit which animates all the churches is divisive and destructive. The purpose and mission of each denomination, if carried out, would destroy all the other denominations. This relationship that each sustains, doctrinally, to the other is illustrated by the story of the fight between two snakes: "Each snake swallowed the other." The leaders see this and are trying to bring about a more consistent attitude toward each other.

The New Testament does not teach a federation of churches of different faiths and practices. It does teach a vital union of all God's people in Christ. The Savior prayed for all those "that believe on me through their word; that they may all be one." (John 17: 20.)

Query Department

BY J. C. McQUIDDY

A sister who wishes her name withheld for prudential reasons wishes an answer to the following questions: "(1) Is it right to have classes in the church? (2) Is it right to use the literature? (3) Is it right for a woman to teach the children's class in the church? (4) Is it right for the elders to stay away from the meeting until the classes are over? (5) Does 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35 forbid women's teaching the children's class?"

1. So long as Christians have different capacities, so long will it be necessary to have different classes. Babies should be fed on milk and the full-grown on meat. "For when by reason of the time ye ought to be teachers, ye have need again that some one teach you the rudiments of the first principles of the oracles of God; and are become such as have need of milk, and not of solid food." (Heb. 5: 12.) A teacher must have a class to teach. The class may be one or many. This no more says that "teach" means "class" than to say that one cannot eat without food says that "eat" means "food." For a teacher to teach a class in one part of the house while another teacher teaches in another part of the house does not create confusion and is only one speaking at a time to the same persons. I have no knowledge of any law of God that dividing into classes violates; but it destroys efficiency and decency and custom and common sense to feed old folks and babies out of the same spoon.

2. If it be right to use the Bible, it is right to use literature, for the Bible is literature. The Bible was first printed in fragments very much after the manner of lesson leaves or helps. Why is it right to listen to a preacher teach a truth orally and refuse to read the same truth taught by the same preacher on the written page? Written teaching is usually far more accurate than oral teaching. Why is it right for a preacher to use a blackboard in presenting the truth and wrong for him to use literature in teaching the truth? Webster defines "literature" as "learning." Anything learned is literature. It refers more especially to what is learned from books or what is written. To spell and read is to use literature. Anything learned from the Bible is literature. We call what is learned from the Bible "sacred" literature, and what is learned from other sources "secular" or "profane" literature. The Bible is literature in the strictest sense. It is written. The one who speaks or hears what is taught in the Bible or other books or things uses literature just as much as does he who writes or reads what is taught. The word of God was first spoken, then written, by the Spirit of God. God authorizes learning the truth as much by reading as he does by hearing. Some people may be too lazy to read who are not too lazy to hear, but this does not change the fact that the truth which reaches the heart through the eye will save as surely as a truth that reaches it through the ear. All objection to literature by persons who speak or hear, read or write, to teach or learn, is self-stultification. We should follow God's example—use both speaking and writing as a means of teaching.

3. Priscilla and Aquila taught Apollos. (Acts 18: 24-26.) Lois and Eunice taught Timothy when a babe. (2 Tim. 1: 5: 3: 15.) I am sure that a woman may teach the Bible to old or young, male or female, at home, at a neighbor's house, at the meetinghouse, on any day in the week, if they know less than she does, provided she does it in a quiet and modest way.

4. No. Elders should be examples to the flock. They should be in the meeting teaching the truth. Why should they be "apt to teach," if they are not to exercise the gift?

In the New Testament church all took part in teaching: "And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' teaching and fellowship, in the breaking of bread and the prayers." (Acts 2: 42.) Elders who deliberately stay away from the teaching of the church are not elders in deed, but in name only. They are man-made and not God-made elders.

5. 1 Cor. 14: 34, 35 reads: "Let the women keep silence in the churches: for it is not permitted unto them to speak; but let them be in subjection, as also saith the law. And if they would learn anything, let them ask their own husbands at home: for it is shameful for a woman to speak in the church." The context shows that it was public speaking. It was speaking to the whole church, as we learn from verse 23 of the same chapter. Teaching a class of children is not speaking to the whole church.

T. W. Stone, Haleyville, Ala., writes: "(1) Who was the testator of the old testament? (2) Did some one have to die in order for it to be in force? (See Heb. 9: 16, 17.)"

The scripture to which reference is made reads: "For where a testament is, there must of necessity be the death of him that made it. For a testament is of force where there hath been death: for it doth never avail while he that made it liveth." (Heb. 9: 16, 17.) It is clearly taught in the Bible that the sacrifices and services of the law of Moses were temporal and temporary. They were of short duration, and were added because of transgression until the people were educated and prepared for the coming of Christ. The salvation was temporary and typical and was perfected only when the types and shadows gave place to the perfect and true sacrifice of Jesus Christ, the righteous. Sins were forgiven only typically under the law of Moses through the typical shedding of the blood of Christ. "Wherefore even the first covenant hath not been dedicated without blood. For when every commandment had been spoken by Moses unto all the people according to the law, he took the blood of the calves and the goats, with water and scarlet wool and hyssop, and sprinkled both the book itself and all the people saying, This is the blood of the covenant which God commanded to you-ward. Moreover the tabernacle and all the vessels of the ministry he sprinkled in like manner with the blood. And according to the law, I may almost say, all things are cleansed with blood, and apart from shedding of blood there is no remission." (Heb. 9: 18-22.) Christ died in type and blood was shed for the dedication of the law of Moses. Christ in type was the testator of the law of Moses. The death of a victim was necessary to the inauguration of the law of Moses, which pointed to Christ's death. When the types and shadows had served their purpose and the law had led to Christ, Christ took them out of the way, nailing them to the cross, and by the shedding of his blood sealed the new testament. "So that the law is become our tutor to bring us unto Christ, that we might be justified by faith. But now that faith is come, we are no longer under a tutor." (Gal. 3: 24, 25.)

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN THE WORSHIP

By M. C. Kurfess

Cloth. 300 pages. Price, postpaid.....$1.50

This is the most comprehensive book on this important subject now before the public. In it the Greek verb "psallo" is philologically and historically examined, together with a full discussion of kindred matters relating to music in Christian worship. The book is the result of a lifetime of critical study and research, and has become the standard of information on the music question. It has been highly recommended by scholarly brethren in the church of Christ and in the religious world.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY
Nashville, Tenn.

Evangelistic Notes

W. S. Long is in a meeting at Cornersville, Tenn.

B. F. Harding is in a meeting at Town Creek, Ala.

J. T. Denson is in a meeting at Antioch, near Cookeville, Tenn.

J. E. Dunn is in a meeting at Clifton, Texas, with one baptism to date.

O. C. Lambert has just closed a meeting at Hill's Chapel, near Nashville, Tenn.

W. W. Heflin closed a meeting at Bemis, Tenn., on July 15, with four baptisms.

J. P. Sewell, Abilene, Texas, says: "You are getting out a mighty good paper lately."

Morgan H. Carter is in a meeting at Greenwood, Tenn., with three additions to date.

J. Clifford Murphy is at Puyton, Ala., with three baptisms and one restoration to date.

Jarratt L. Smith is in a good meeting at Central City, Ky., with fine crowds and interest.

H. C. Harris has just closed at Vernon, Ala. He is now at Cross Roads, near Tupelo, Miss.

Armstrong Traylor is in a good meeting at Hilham, Tenn., with seven baptized to date.

R. L. Ludlam, Jr., is in a meeting at his childhood home, Ottumwa, Iowa, with good interest.

J. T. Harris recently closed a meeting at Belmont, Miss., with two baptized and two restored.

David Thompson closed a meeting at Azotas, in Stewart County, Tenn., with one restoration.

W. Claude Hall is in a meeting at Little River, near Hopkinsville, Ky., with good interest.

T. B. Larimore has just closed a three-weeks' meeting at Washington, D. C., with six baptisms.

Vernon Rozar can hold a meeting beginning on August 23. Address him at Watertown, Tenn.

C. A. Norred, Knoxville, Tenn., reports three additions to the Broadway Church, that city, on July 23.

J. Roy Vaughan has just closed at Cork Schoolhouse, near Ackerman, Miss., and is now at Reform, Miss.

J. L. Hill closed a meeting at Sulphur Well Academy, near Paris, Tenn., resulting in nine additions.

C. Barton Laws closed a meeting on July 28, at Wilder Schoolhouse, with one addition and good attention.

J. M. Dennis closed at Lucas, Ky., on July 25, with three additions. He is now at Haywood, near Glasgow, Ky.

G. W. Jarrett, Fair Hope, Ala., will be busy until September. He wants to arrange for work this fall and winter.

R. L. Colley closed a mission meeting at Bethel Springs, Tenn., with two additions. L. N. Moody led the singing.

J. E. Thornberry is in a good meeting at Coal City, Ind., with three additions to date. He goes next to Borden, Ind.

Attention is called again to Brother Larimore's meeting at Cookeville, Tenn., beginning on the first Lord's day in August.

J. O. Barnes has just closed a tent meeting in Miami, Fla. He will begin another soon. Aruna Clark led the singing.

William P. Walker closed a meeting at Philippi Church, in Stewart County, Tenn. This was his fourth meeting at this place.

C. H. Smithson has just closed a good meeting at his home, Hatfield, Ark., with ten confessions and two reclaimed. He is now at Dierks, Ark.

H. R. Daniel, Elkton, Ky., has some time for protracted meetings. He commends "Hardeman's Tabernacle Sermons" very highly.

C. Petty, Pineapple, Ala., is visiting his aged mother at Belfast, Tenn. She is in feeble health. He expects to be busy preaching soon.

George W. Bowles, Hopkinsville, Ky., says: "I wish for the Gospel Advocate a wide circulation. We look for it with pleasure every week."

C. H. Woodroof closed a good meeting at Berea, Warren County, Tenn., with ten baptisms. He is now in a meeting at Burnett's Chapel, near Una, Tenn.

John H. Arms reports an interesting meeting at Eminence, Tenn., where there is fine interest among the young people. One baptized and one restored.

J. H. Morris preached at Morning Star Schoolhouse on July 21, and at Tusculumbia on July 23, morning and evening, and at Melrose Schoolhouse in the afternoon.

J. W. Brents, Springfield, Mo., reports about forty additions to the church there since Christmas. He is now in a tent meeting. He will be in Tennessee in August.

R. E. L. Taylor has just closed a good meeting at Summitville, Tenn., with forty-eight baptized and three restored. He is now at Finley, White County, Tenn.

Leslie Thomas, who has been doing the work of an evangelist in Flint, Mich., and vicinity, under direction of brethren in Detroit, is changing his field to Speaker.

There is a good opening for a high-grade physician at Dayton, Tenn. Write Will J. Cullum, Box 38, Dayton, Tenn., or the elders of the church of Christ at Dayton.

E. Gaston Collins closed a thirteen-days' tent meeting at Lafayette, Ga., with one restored and eight baptized. He is now at Corder's Cross Roads, in Lincoln County, Tenn.

C. A. Wheeler, Jasper, Ala., a faithful old soldier of the cross, has just closed two meetings in and near Cardwell, Mo., with nine additions. Song service led by C. A. Summitt.

Leland H. Knight will begin a meeting at Vardaman, Miss., next Lord's day. He reports his home congregation at Fort Smith, Ark., as doing well, with two baptisms recently.

A. B. Lipscomb closed a successful meeting at McHenry, Ky. Two were baptized and one gave up the Baptist name. He will begin a meeting at old Salem Church, in Franklin County, Tenn., next Sunday.

W. T. Beasley began a meeting at Pegram, Tenn., on the fourth Lord's day in July, and continued it at night until the following Friday, with one baptism. He is now at Cedar Dell, Marshall County.

A Correction.—F. W. Smith writes: "In my article on 'A Confusion of Terms,' in the Gospel Advocate of July 20, the last sentence should have been 'the feelings of one' instead of 'the feelings of love.'"

A. B. Gunter began a meeting at Shipp's Bend, Hickman County, Tenn., on Sunday, July 23, which continued until the following Friday night. Five were baptized. He is now at Brushy, near Aetna, Tenn.

J. W. Dunn closed at Cherokee, Texas, on July 26, with thirteen baptisms and five restorations. Four young men in the congregation are preparing to preach, and one of the elders is kept busy in the mission field.

The church at Jericho, Warren County, Tenn., wants some one to teach a singing class for twenty nights. Write Perry A. Gribble, Rowland, Tenn., Route 1. F. C. Sowell will begin a meeting there on August 6.

E. D. Martin has just closed a meeting at Eureka Church, Warren County, Tenn., with seventeen additions. This congregation is a result of the good work of L. T. Hutchinson. He is now in a mission meeting near McMinnville, Tenn.

H. F. Mathis closed a meeting on July 23 at Benton, Ill., which was begun by L. E. Jones, of Metropolis, resulting in twenty-eight additions—six by baptism. They will meet in private homes. Brother Mathis is now at Christopher, Ill.

Mrs. W. A. Rappolee, Dexter, Ky., writes: "I have been a subscriber for the Gospel Advocate only six months, and it has been such a help and comfort to me. Each copy is a jewel. I send them around among the brethren after reading every article."

Any one desiring the services of a sister as governess, waitress in dining room, or clerical work, should correspond with Mrs. S. S. Fulmer, 235 Equator Street, Florence, Ala. She is a widow with five children. B. F. Harding is her reference. Other references if necessary.

"Religion is not a luxury; it is a necessity."

The reckless man is sure to be wrecked.—John Plato.

M. V. Showalter preached at Belmont Avenue, this city, last Lord's day.

Fred M. Little is in a meeting at Anniston, Ala., with one baptism to date.

Vernon Rozar closed on July 30 at Grant, Tenn. They are beginning to work in their new house.

E. O. Coffman recently closed at Nolensville, Tenn., with eight baptisms. Bob Locke led the singing.

L. B. Douthitt closed at Leachville, Ark., on July 2, with twenty-four additions. He is now at Hearn's Chapel.

The man of sense does not whet his scythe all day; he cuts grass.—Dean Charles R. Brown.

N. B. Hardeman has just closed at Baldwin, Miss., with seventeen additions, four of which were from the Christian Church.

H. M. Phillips closed at Mount Juliet, Tenn., on July 28, with seven baptisms. He is now at Southall Church, near Franklin, Tenn.

F. C. Sowell closed a fine meeting with the church at Dibrell, Tenn., on July 29. There were three baptisms and one restoration.

Allen Phy recently held a meeting at Sulphur, Overton County, Tenn. He also preached five sermons at Linary, Cumberland County.

R. P. Cuff closed at Fairfield, near Wartrace, Tenn., on July 28, with nineteen baptisms. Tommie Nicks, of Nashville, led the singing.

Living forever is no tax on faith. Could we but think at all, living at all is the tax on faith and the humbler of conceit.—W. A. Quayle.

Charles Tidwell closed a fifteen-days' meeting at Dunn's Chapel, Dickson County, Tenn., on July 16, with two baptisms. He is now at Jackson Temple, near Burns, Tenn.

D. D. Woody's meetings at Kenton and Christian Chapel, two Tennessee churches, resulted in seven baptized and one reclaimed at Kenton and seven baptized at Christian Chapel.

H. D. Jeffcoat closed a meeting at Hamilton, Miss., on July 21, with one addition; also closed at a schoolhouse at Deemer, Miss., on July 28, with three additions. He is now at Holly Ridge.

F. B. Srygley closed at Silver Point, Tenn., with three baptisms. They have a small house, but there is strong talk of building a larger one. He will begin next Sunday at Glass, Tenn.

H. W. Wrye has just closed a meeting at Yell, with ten additions, and one at Hardin Chapel, with three. Both these points are in Marshall County. He is now at Smyrna Church, in Maury County.

Faith is not a way of talking, but a way of walking. It is not a problem to answer, but a path to follow. It is the habitual loyalty of a disciplined life to a living and loving God.—Francis Greenwood Peabody.

Earnest C. Love closed at Antioch, Van Buren County, near Quebec, Tenn., on July 28, with five baptized and one reclaimed. They had a basket dinner and two sermons at Old South Point, in Maury County, on July 30.

S. Houston Proffitt, of Chattanooga, Tenn., preached at Twenty-second Avenue, North, this city, last Lord's day. This was a memorial service for N. W. Proffitt, of Paris, Texas, who was greatly loved by this congregation.

S. E. Templeton reports one addition from the "First Christian Church." He closed a mission meeting at Martha, Okla., which was supported by the church at Altus, Okla. Two were baptized and one restored. He is now in a meeting near Altus.

N. W. Ware, San Augustine, Texas, writes: "I am in my ninety-second year and am getting feeble and my eyes are failing, but I still want the Gospel Advocate. I was a subscriber when Lipscomb and Fanning were editors. After reading it, I give it away."

J. W. Beasley has just closed a meeting at Boston, Tenn., with four baptisms and three restorations. Good interest and attendance throughout. He has time during September in which he could hold meetings. Address him at 1413 Cahal Avenue, Nashville, Tenn.

W. Claude Hall is in a fine meeting at Little River, near Hopkinsville, Ky. A. B. Reavis is leading the songs. Brother Hall states that he finds many leaders in church activities in that State who were once students in David Lipscomb College. He goes next to Macon, Texas.

W. M. Oakley closed a meeting at Pleasant View, Tenn., on July 12, in which one was baptized and one restored. On July 27 he closed at Bethel Church, near Joelton, Tenn., with five baptized and one reclaimed. He begins at Chapel Hill Church, in Cheatham County, Tenn., on August 6.

Willie Hunter closed an interesting meeting at Bethlehem, Putnam County, Tenn., with twenty additions. He is now at Zion, in Jackson County. He desires to locate near a school and railroad, where he can spend all his time preaching the gospel. Write him at Livingston, Tenn., Route 1.

Van. A. Bradley recently held a ten-days' meeting at Dozier, Ala., resulting in one baptism. He also preached four days for the church at Esto, Fla., and is now at Christian Home Church, in Houston County, Ala. G. C. Brewer is to hold the annual meeting at Mount Hope Church, beginning on the second Lord's day in August.

A. H. Smith held a meeting at Spring Hill Church, in Benton County, Miss., beginning on the third Lord's day in July and resulting in five baptisms. On the fourth Lord's day he began a meeting at Union Church, in Tippah County, which closed on the following Thursday, with one baptism. He is now at Crockett, in Tate County. He goes next to Grenada, Miss., then back to Tippah County.

S. W. Bell, Sedalia, Mo., July 13, writes: "Sister Willie Shepherd, Glasgow, Mo., is very much interested in the Lord's work. She and one man, C. W. Ballew, seem to be all the 'Christians only' in that part of the country. A man is needed to spend all his time in this field. This I could do, if the support were sufficient. It would be a great sacrifice on the part of the few in Central Missouri. I pray that the faith and zeal of these few may grow."

A. A. Bunner, 7808 Hope Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio, writes: "I rejoice to note that the Gospel Advocate is growing stronger with each issue. I used to think there could be no improvement, but in looking over recent issues I have given that idea up. It should be in the hands of all lovers of the truth. It makes my heart sick that I cannot work for its circulation as I once did. I sent in subscribers by the score then. Brother McQuiddy well remembers my work for the Advocate then. All that I can now hope to do will be confined to the narrow limits of this city. Brethren, help me to circulate both it and Brother Kurfees' great review of O. E. Payne. I am now sending sample copies of the Advocate to the preachers of this city who use instruments in the worship. If I can get money enough with which to purchase Kurfees' review, I will travel from house to house, by the help of the Lord, and distribute them together with the Advocate."

Morgan H. Carter sends in the following: "The following note is being mailed to a few individuals and congregations with whom I am personally acquainted; and as others may be interested in coöperating to help us continue one of the best pieces of mission work with which we are acquainted, we publish this letter to lay the situation before them clearly: 'One of the greatest mission fields of America is New York City. Over six million people are in Greater New York and the Jerseys just across the Hudson. We are not doing our duty as Christ commanded in his great commission unless we take a profound interest in winning men to Christ. I hope that you, as a congregation, are laboring in some worthy field or fields as well as in your own community. All Christlike efforts to serve and to save are commendable. But New York is one of those really great places that needs our immediate attention. The small congregation which God blessed us in establishing there two years ago this month is working for Christ. E. E. Shoulders and wife are coöperating with them. The outside support for Brother Shoulders is not sufficient. Some one must come to the rescue, if Brother Shoulders is to continue his labors on the present plan. Brother McKee, of Atlanta, Ga., Brethren Johnson, and others are giving more liberally than the average church member by far. We must have more financial support, prayers, and cheering words for this field. We are coöperating, and we invite the church to assist to the extent of at least five or ten dollars per month. Please lay this before your local congregation as soon as possible, and communicate with G. M. McKee, Station N, Box 15, New York, N. Y. He is the treasurer of the congregation, and acknowledges receipt of all money for the support of Brother Shoulders.'"

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate," and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS.
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

Rationalism.

BY J. C. M'Q.

There are those who claim to believe the Bible, yet they deny the deity of Christ, his miraculous birth, his atoning death, and his resurrection. Such men represent Christ as a great and superior person, as were Socrates, Plato, and Shakespeare, but that he was not divine. Advocates of rationalism deny the story of creation as recorded in the Bible and claim that the law of evolution is as sure and fixed as is the law of gravitation. They regard the Bible narrative that a sea monster swallowed Jonah as a fable or a myth. Briefly, rationalists deny all supernatural teaching, and in the same breath assert their faith in and loyalty to the New Testament. If Christ is not divine and is not the equal of God, as he claimed to be, then he is an impostor, and instead of being a great moral Teacher, he is the greatest deceiver and falsifier ever known. I cannot believe in the New Testament and at the same time deny the deity of Jesus Christ and every supernatural event in his life on earth as recorded in the New Testament. Neither can I reject the story of the ark and of Jonah as narrated in the Old Testament and at the same time believe the New Testament, for they are so linked together that to reject one means to reject both and to accept one means to accept both. The New Testament is a fulfillment of the Old. Things that happened under the old covenant were written as warnings to us. "Now these things happened unto them by way of example; and they were written for our admonition, upon whom the ends of the ages are come." (1 Cor. 10: 11.)

Christ fulfilled and indorsed the Old Testament. Christ indorsed the inspiration of Moses when he said: "For if ye believed Moses, ye would believe me; for he wrote of me. But if ye believe not his writings, how shall ye believe my words?" (John 5: 46, 47.) Thus Christ reasons that the man who does not believe the writings of Moses cannot believe his words. It is as impossible for a man to reject the inspiration of the Old Testament and at the same time believe in Christ as it is for him to destroy God. Again, we read: "And he said unto him, If they hear not Moses and the prophets, neither will they be persuaded, if one rise from the dead." (Luke 16: 31.) Jesus indorsed the psalms when he quoted from David: "And Jesus saith unto them, Yea: did ye never read, out of the mouth of babes and sucklings thou hast perfected praise?" (Matt. 21: 16.) Probably the most comprehensive indorsement of all the Old Testament Scriptures by Christ is found in Luke 24: 27-44: "And beginning from Moses and from all the prophets, he interpreted to them in all the scriptures the things concerning himself. . . . And he said unto them, These are my words which I spoke unto you, while I was yet with you, that all things must needs be fulfilled, which are written in the law of Moses, and the prophets, and the psalms, concerning me." The rationalist, Jehoiakimlike, thinks he can cut the Scriptures to pieces with his penknife, but our Lord Jesus Christ accepted them as a whole as a revelation of his Father to a sin-cursed and sin-burdened race. Making even stronger, if possible, his approval and indorsement of the Old Testament, he says: "Think not that I came to destroy the law or the prophets: I came not to destroy, but to fulfill. For verily I say unto you, Till heaven and earth pass away, one jot or one tittle shall in no wise pass away from the law, till all things be accomplished." (Matt. 5: 17, 18.) Then, to reject any part of the Bible is to reject Christ. But Christ, evidently knowing that some men who are wise in their own conceits would be ready to cut all the supernatural out of the Bible, indorses the story of Jonah and the sea monster. He says: "For as Jonah was three days and three nights in the belly of the whale; so shall the Son of man be three days and three nights in the heart of the earth." (Matt. 12: 40.) To reject the whale story is to reject the resurrection of Christ, for they are inseparably joined together. To deny that the whale swallowed Jonah also denies that Christ was in the heart of the earth. He who accepts one miracle accepts all miracles, and he who rejects one miracle rejects all miracles. The man who rejects the supernatural and superhuman thereby rejects Christianity, for it is both supernatural and superhuman. Christianity is opposed to human nature and is distasteful to wicked men. It is not a plant that sprang up naturally from the soil of human nature. Christianity, which is destructive of all that is peculiarly Jewish, could not be the product of Jewish thought. The Jews were narrow, bigoted, and illiberal in the highest degree. How could they have become the authors of a religion the most comprehensive and liberal possible? To assign to them the authorship of Christianity is to make them supernatural.

The account of creation as given by Moses is superhuman. The unity of the Bible and the self-restraint of Bible writers are superhuman.

The worldly-wise and self-conceited have never been fit vessels for carrying out the purposes of God. He has never chosen such to do his bidding. "For the word of the cross is to them that perish foolishness; but unto us who are saved it is the power of God. For it is written, I will destroy the wisdom of the wise, and the discernment of the discerning will I bring to naught. . . . For behold your calling, brethren, that not many wise after the flesh, not many mighty, not many noble, are called: but God chose the foolish things of the world, that he might put to shame them that are wise; and God chose the weak things of the world, that he might put to shame the things that are strong; and the base things of the world, and the things that are despised, did God choose, yea and the things that are not, that he might bring to naught the things that are: that no flesh should glory before God." (1 Cor. 1: 18-29.)

In the light of inspiration and the clear teaching of the last-quoted scripture, we should not be surprised that Prof.

Edwin Mims, of Vanderbilt University, recently said in effect to a large number of teachers in a public address on Peabody campus: "The story of Noah and the ark was intended for children, not for intelligent people to believe. If the time comes when I have to believe that story, I will say farewell to my mind." If that story is not to be believed by adults, why does he say it was intended for guileless children to believe? Why palm off the false on them? The Professor evidently has no sense of justice. It is blasphemous even to think that God intended for children to believe what only an insane man should believe! This is about as well as any man in Professor Mims' class can do. When a man dethrones Jehovah and attacks his word, he is sure to run amuck. But I am wondering if Vanderbilt will indorse a teacher who teaches such infidelity, and if those who believe the Bible will continue to patronize the institution if it does indorse the rationalism of the Professor. I have seen a letter from the Professor to H. Leo Boles in which he admits he has not been misrepresented. He is another living example of the statement of Jeremiah that "it is not in man that walketh to direct his steps."

It is time for Christians to act. Such an utterance is opposed to the Bible. Do we want our children taught to repudiate the word of God? If he is correct, then Jesus Christ was not a great moral Teacher; he was not divine, but the greatest deceiver the world has ever known. If rationalists are right, Christians are without hope. If they are right, God has made no revelation of himself to the human family. If they are right, the word "Christian" is a falsehood and Christianity has not advanced one whit beyond the point reached by Socrates and Plato. If they are right, Christ has not been raised, our faith is vain, we are yet in our sins, and they also that have fallen asleep in Christ have perished. "If we have only hoped in Christ in this life, we are of all men most pitiable." (1 Cor. 15: 19.)

Inspiration of the New Testament Scriptures.

BY H. LEO B.

No theory has been espoused in the writing of this series of articles on the inspiration of the Scriptures, neither is claim made of having presented all that can be given on this subject. A few suggestions and arguments have been presented with the hope that some one may be encouraged and strengthened in the hope of the gospel.

It has been proved that the New Testament Scriptures testify to the inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures; it is equally certain that the New Testament Scriptures claim the seal of inspiration. The inspiration of the Old Testament Scriptures is a strong argument in favor of the inspiration of the New Testament, because the two Testaments stand so related to each other that each becomes an argument in favor of the other. The Old Testament is incomplete without the New Testament; the New Testament is the complement of the Old. Much of the Old Testament would be meaningless if it were not for the New; the promises, prophecies, types, and symbols must have the New Testament for their fulfillment; they point unerringly to the New Testament, and the New Testament very minutely and exactly becomes their supplement. Indeed, if the Old Testament is inspired, the New Testament is also inspired; they stand or fall together.

That the New Testament Scriptures claim to come from God, and are therefore inspired, is clear and emphatic. Paul wrote thirteen, probably fourteen, of the twenty-seven books of the New Testament, and in each of these books he proceeds upon the fact that he is speaking for God—that he is being used of Jehovah in revealing and declaring God's will to men. He says to the church at Corinth: "My speech and my preaching were not in persuasive words of wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." (1 Cor. 2: 4, 5.) Again, he declares: "That we might know the things that were freely given to us of God. Which things also we speak, not in words which man's wisdom teacheth, but which the Spirit teacheth; combining spiritual things with spiritual words." (Verses 12, 13.) Paul in these quotations includes with himself all the other apostles and teachers. Again, in writing to the churches of Galatia, he says: "For I make known to you, brethren, as touching the gospel which was preached by me, that it is not after man. For neither did I receive it from man, nor was I taught it, but it came to me through revelation of Jesus Christ." (Gal. 1: 11, 12.) Again, he emphasizes this claim to the church at Ephesus: "Which in other generations was not made known unto the sons of men, as it hath now been revealed unto his holy apostles and prophets in the Spirit." (Eph. 3: 5.) Again, he declares with equal clearness to the church at Thessalonica: "When ye received from us the word of the message, even the word of God, ye accepted it not as the word of men, but, as it is in truth, the word of God, which also worketh in you that believe." (1 Thess. 2: 13.) These quotations could be greatly multiplied.

Peter bears like testimony and includes some of the writings of Paul in the holy Scriptures. He says: "And account that the long-suffering of our Lord is salvation; even as our beloved brother Paul also, according to the wisdom given to him, wrote unto you; as also in all his epistles, speaking in them of these things; wherein are some things hard to be understood, which the ignorant and unsteadfast wrest, as they do also the other scriptures, unto their own destruction." (2 Pet. 3: 15, 16.) Here Peter says that Paul wrote, not out of his own wisdom, but "according to the wisdom given to him." He says that Paul wrote some things "hard to be understood," and that "the ignorant and unsteadfast" pervert or wrest the things which Paul had written as "they do also the other scriptures." Thus we clearly see that Peter classes Paul's writings along with the "other scriptures." Peter had already declared that "no prophecy of scripture is of private interpretation. For no prophecy ever came by the will of man; but men spake from God, being moved by the Holy Spirit." (2 Pet. 1: 20, 21.) He includes Paul as one who "spoke from God," as one who was "moved by the Holy Spirit," as one who had "the word of prophecy made more sure."

John makes equally as strong claim in the following language: "We are of God: he that knoweth God heareth us; he who is not of God heareth us not. By this we know the Spirit of truth, and the spirit of error." (1 John 4: 6.) Again, John declares that he "was in the Spirit on the Lord's day," and that he was delegated to "bear witness of the word of God, and of the testimony of Jesus Christ, even of all things that he saw." (Rev. 1: 2.) John wrote five books of the New Testament Scriptures; Peter wrote two, and probably dictated another one of the New Testament books; Paul wrote at least thirteen of the books of the New Testament. These three writers wrote at least twenty of the twenty-seven books of the New Testament Scriptures. The other writers of the New Testament make equally as strong claim upon inspiration as do Peter, Paul, and John.

Sometimes the charge is made that Paul did not always claim to write by inspiration, and, as proof of this charge, we are referred to the first Corinthian letter. The passage quoted usually is: "But unto the married I give charge, yea, not I, but the Lord, That the wife depart not from her husband. . . . But to the rest say I, not the Lord," etc. (1 Cor. 7: 10-12.) Again, this passage is quoted: "Now concerning virgins I have no commandment of the Lord; but I give my judgment, as one that hath obtained mercy of the Lord to be trustworthy." (Verse 25.) These quotations do not sustain the charge that Paul was not inspired. Paul means to teach that he had no direct "command" from the Lord for what he was saying upon that particular point; that he had no word of Jesus spoken while on earth, such as he had upon the subject of marriage. Paul did claim that he had "the Spirit of God" in giving his instruction or his judgment in this matter. He even goes further and declares: "If any thinketh himself to be a prophet, or spiritual, let him take knowledge of the things which I write unto you, that they are the commandment of the Lord," (1 Cor. 14: 37.)

In conclusion, the Bible as a book has the source of inspiration in its influence on the lives of those who put their trust in it. This is a very forcible argument for inspiration. The Bible leads men unto God and to Christ; it makes men wise unto salvation; it gives instruction in all the departments of life, furnishing the man of God completely for every good work; it teaches how to live soberly, righteously, and godly in this present world, and to look "for the blessed hope and appearing of the glory of the great God and our Savior Jesus Christ."

"Don'ts" for Writers.

BY H. LEO E.

The following list of "Don'ts" for all who write for publication, clipped from the Christian Standard, expresses so well the sentiment of all who handle the subject-matter of religious papers that we are giving it to our readers. Please read them with care and help us make the Gospel Advocate the best paper published.

Don't prepare your manuscript hurriedly. The essay written before breakfast or while waiting for dinner or in any fragment of time "snatched" out of a busy day is usually narrow and shallow and ill planned. Now and then one may have a "flash" and "just dash off" a readable article, but it is the exception and not the rule.

Don't write with pencil. If you have a typewriter, use it. If you have no typewriter, write with pen and good ink and on good paper, and write every word in well-formed letters. Remember that if your article goes in to the printers, it must be read by editor, linotype men, and proof-readers—men who also want to go to heaven and must therefore not be provoked beyond what their religion will stand.

Don't make your article too long—the majority of manuscripts that never find their way into print are rendered unavailable by their length.

Don't say in the letter which accompanies your manuscript: "Print this in your next issue." As a usual thing, compliance with such a request is impossible—the average journal is blocked out at least a week or two ahead. And it is quite frequently the case that a good essay must await its opportunity weeks or months—occasionally longer.

Don't send copies of your manuscript to all our papers, unless it be news you are conveying to the brotherhood; and even when writing news, it is better to send each paper a specially prepared item. When an essay is sent to two or more papers, one is likely to use it before the other, or others, can, and no journal wishes to yield space to something that has already been given the public.

Don't conclude that your article is delayed because the editors see no merit in it. There are a hundred and one reasons why articles of merit do not always immediately find their way into print.

Don't get it into your head that the editors are "fresh" simply because your articles appear in print cut down a little or it may be with a few sentences added. Space in a paper is very exacting and must be obeyed. If an article is a few lines or words too long, it has to be shortened; and if it lacks a few lines or words, it must be lengthened.

Don't forget that editors are made of flesh and blood, that they have nerves, that they put in long hours, that they have a multiplicity of things to think about and do and worry over, and that the last straw can break the camel's back even in an editorial office.

Don't get mad at an editor and consign him to perdition, unless he steals a horse!

The present is the time of the earth's finest and biggest and most inspiring opportunities. Get in the path of one. Take it. Make it your own.—William E. Barton.

The Gospel Advocate Company.

BY H. LEO E.

I believe it was Disraeli who said: "A book may be as great a thing as a battle." But sometimes a book is a battle—a conflict between two giant intellects, or a combat between two great lines of thought, or the expression of a contest between truth and error.

Here are a few of the many debates published by the Gospel Advocate Company. Are they in your library?

"Folk-McQuiddy Discussion on the Plan of Salvation." The most momentous subject in the world is the plan of salvation. This book will help you to get a clearer conception of this great question and will enable you to understand more fully God's revealed will on this subject. Mr. Folk was editor of the Baptist and Reflector at the time this discussion was had, and it was published in the Baptist and Reflector and the Gospel Advocate. Later it was put in book form. The book covers 350 pages. Price, $1.50.

"Why the Baptist Name." This discussion was between F. W. Smith and Dr. George A. Lofton. In this book Dr. Lofton presents the strongest arguments that can be given in defense of the Baptist position, and Brother Smith presents the scriptural arguments in a clear and convincing way in behalf of the truth. The book is not marred by a single unpleasant line. It is a very readable book. It contains 320 pages. Price, $1.50.

"Cayce-Srygley Discussion." This debate is on the question, "Is salvation conditional or unconditional?" C. H. Cayce is an editor and leader of the Primitive Baptist faith. He affirmed: "God gives eternal life to an alien sinner without a condition upon his (the sinner's) part, and the Scriptures so teach." Brother F. B. Srygley affirmed: "Faith, repentance, and water baptism are conditions of pardon to an alien sinner." The book contains 352 pages. Price, $1.50.

"Brents-Herod Debate." This debate is between that clear logician, T. W. Brents, and E. D. Herod, of the Primitive Baptist Church. Dr. Brents affirmed: "The Scriptures teach that salvation from sin is conditional, the condition or conditions to be performed by the sinner in order to salvation or freedom from sin." Mr. Herod affirmed: "The Scriptures teach the unconditional election and salvation from sin by Jesus Christ of all his seed or generation." This book is paper-bound. Price, 25 cents.

"Stark-Warlick Debate." This is a discussion between J. Carroll Stark and Joe S. Warlick. Stark affirmed: "The word of God authorizes the use of instruments of music for praise in the church of Jesus Christ." This is a live subject. Every member of the church should be acquainted with the arguments presented in favor of the use of musical instruments in the worship and the teachings of the New Testament, so that he be not deceived by the sophistry of the admirers of instruments in the worship. It is paper-bound. Price, 50 cents.

Order from Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Ten Helpers for You.

1. Politeness—will attract attention.
2. Cheerfulness—will make friends.
3. Honesty—will strengthen friendship.
4. Faithfulness—will be appreciated.
5. Thoughtfulness—will avoid trouble.
6. Intelligence—will be respected.
7. Enthusiasm—will bring good results.
8. Diligence—will insure success.
9. Regularity—will retain friends.
10. Consecration—will win souls.

—Selected.

The best argument for Christianity is a good man.—Exchange.

Do You Need a Good Blood Medicine

And for troubles of your Stomach, Kidneys and Liver?

For the very best that medical skill can make,—

That has been used in hundreds of homes for nearly fifty years,—

That has proved its value by a wonderful record of success,—

Take Hood's Sarsaparilla.

It will purify your blood, give you a good appetite, promote assimilation, build you up and put you in good condition for the season.

Get Hood's Sarsaparilla today.

DANDRUFF

QUICKLY DISAPPEARS WHEN

Tetterine

Is Applied. Fragrant and Soothing.

50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

ECZEMA

PSORIASIS—ITCH

RU-BON Will Remove Every Spot.

Ask Your Druggist.

SPURLOCK-NEAL COMPANY,

Wholesale Distributors.

CANCERS CURED AT THE KELLAM HOSPITAL

The Kellam Hospital cures Cancers, Sores without the use Burns, and Chronic Tumors, Ulcers, X-Ray of the knife, X-Ray, Radium, Acids, or Serum, and we have cured over 90 per cent of the many hundreds of sufferers treated during the past twenty-three years. Ministers treated free.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, Inc.

1617 West Main St. Richmond, Va.

LITTLE PAPPAS CAFE

Rooms, Bakery, Lunch. Open all hours.

Frank Tant, Manager of Men's Service Station Barber Shop. Private booths for self-shaving. Showers and Tub Baths in the basement. 212 Fourth Avenue, North.

Ladies Let Cuticura Keep Your Skin Fresh and Young

Soap, Ointment, Talcum, 25c. everywhere. For samples address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden, Mass.

BE A SALESMAN

Make Money in Spare Time

An hour each day for a week can net you $25.00. Earn 50 per cent commission selling Primo Cleanser for the personal toilet and general household use. Send 25c for salesman's outfit, including a one-pound can of Primo, literature, and instructions. THE PRIMO CO., 2617 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM

Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling—Restores Color and Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair. 50c and $1.00 at Druggists. Hiseox Chem. Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDER CORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiseox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

The Overbey-Crawford Debate.

BY DAVID THOMPSON.

This discussion between Brother Coleman Overbey, of Murray, Ky., Christian, and E. C. Crawford, of Mayfield, Ky., Missionary Baptist, was held in a tent two and one-half miles north of Murray, beginning on June 27 and ending on June 30. Each man affirmed his side of the apostasy and baptism questions, using one day each, thus making two days' work to each question. The usual arguments on these questions were used, together with some new ones, each man laboring earnestly to prove the proposition to which he had committed himself. Mr. Crawford made a hard fight to prove Missionary Baptist doctrine from the teaching of the Bible; and while I think all appreciated the sincerity of the effort he made, yet I am sure that the unprejudiced and thoughtful saw clearly the unscripturalness of the positions he was endeavoring to prove. Brother Overbey made a clean, earnest, and able fight for truth, showing clearly the teaching of the Bible and exposing error without mercy.

The spirit of the debate was excellent from start to finish. Each speaker conducted himself as a Christian gentleman should. The discussion was almost entirely free from personalities and other things that so often mar religious discussions. I am sure that all had an opportunity to learn the truth and also to see that religious discussions can be carried on in the name of Christ.

The audiences were exceptionally good, considering the very busy season of the year. Farmers were as busy as they get any time of the year, yet the large tent in which the debate was held was well filled at all times. There were about fifteen or sixteen preachers of the church of Christ present at times during the debate, and a number of Baptist preachers also. Mr. Dennington, of Sedalia, Ky., moderated for Mr. Crawford, while I moderated for Brother Overbey.

An Appeal from Summit, Ga.

Emanuel County's first church of Christ was established on November 20, 1921, at Summit, Ga., by Brother J. Bedford Beck, and now has twelve members meeting every Lord's day in the Knights of Pythias Hall to take the Lord's Supper and study the Scriptures, using the Gospel Quartermen. McGregor, the nearest loyal church, is forty miles from us and has twelve members. Brunswick is one hundred and fifty miles from us and has eighteen members. These two churches joined the faithful few at Summit in supporting Brother Beck in this field. We are doing everything we can, and

JELLO

Ice Cream Powder

THE LADIES MADE IT

THE delicious ice cream served at lawn fetes and church suppers is often made by the ladies in charge since the use of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder has lessened the cost of ice cream and simplified the making of it. One package of the powder and one quart of rich milk make two quarts of ice cream. All grocers sell Jell-O Ice Cream Powder at two packages for 25 cents, a dozen for $1.50. A dozen packages make six gallons of ice cream.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N. Y.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specially designed gift for the bereaved. Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the deceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

CANCER

HOSPITAL. Intra-venous treatment for cancer. Operation. Radium and X-Ray unnecessary. Booklet giving full information upon request. Box 2127, ATLANTA, GA.

Brother Beck is making a great sacrifice to stay with the work. He has done his work well, and we feel that he is truly the right man in the right place. We have a good town, a splendid school, and three well-established sectarian churches, and we are compelled to buy a tent to hold our meeting in, since the hall in which we meet will not seat more than seventy-five people. Brother Price Billingsley is to hold our meeting, beginning on August 13, and we are making an earnest appeal for help through this crisis. "Come over and help us." The field is white unto the harvest, but the laborers are few, and we are so anxious to plant the Master's cause in its simplicity and truth in this vast field. All donations will be appreciated and promptly acknowledged.

MRS. R. T. CHANCE,

MRS. L. H. BRYANT,

MRS. JESS W. BROWN,

Summit, Ga.

WORKING GIRLS LOOK HERE

Read What Mrs. Lucas Writes Concerning Her Troubles, Which May be Just Like Yours

St. Louis, Mo. — "I had troubles that all women are apt to have, with pains in my back, weak, tired, nervous feelings and a weak stomach. I had been this way about a year and was unable to work or stand on my feet for any length of time. My husband's aunt told me how much good Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound had done her and begged me to try it, so I did. All my pains and weakness are gone, my stomach is all right and I do my work at home and also work for Swift's Packing Company. I recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends and you may publish my letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. LULU LUCAS, 719A Vandeventer St., St. Louis, Mo.

Again and again one woman tells another of the merit of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound.

You who work must keep yourself strong and well. You can't work if you are suffering from such troubles. Mrs. Lucas couldn't. She tried our Vegetable Compound and her letter tells you what it did for her. Give Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound a fair trial now.

McShane Bell Foundry Co.
BALTIMORE, MD.
CHURCH, CHIME and PEAL
BELL'S Memorials a Specialty

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Eucapine
Salve

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Inflammation)

is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

Fannie Stout Jean.

BY W. W. FREEMAN.

Fannie Stout was attractive in personal charm, dress, and conversation. In early life she became a Christian. She was married to Foree C. Jean, both of Jeffersonton, Ky. No preacher ever had a more pleasant place to stay than in the home of Brother and Sister Jean. Cedar Springs, their home church, has stood for almost a century. It was the first place Brother James A. Harding ever held a meeting away from home. Sister Jean in recent years was a leading spirit in having the house moved from an inaccessible place and put in a new location near by, where it was surrounded ideally for modern conditions and was refinished and equipped inside. At present the church, always her first concern, is in a prosperous condition, John L. Rainey being the minister.

After about seven months of illness, Sister Jean, on May 30, 1922, went to her reward. Brother Jean was left heartbroken; but he has a daughter and two sons, all Christians, to comfort him. The memories of a congenial companion and a happy home bring real satisfaction. Such homes and lives are few. A good woman is priceless. A Christian woman is the crown of God's creation. While relatives and friends sympathize with the family in their loss, all who knew Sister Jean feel the power and challenge of her pure, quiet, industrious example. Such a sainted mother must be a source of inspiration and an object of pardonable pride.

If younger women would pattern their lives after such home makers as Sister Jean, the future would be safe. Her house was kept clean and orderly. Few as good cooks ever lived. Her children were trained in the way they should go. She worked hard, but was always cheerful and ready to help any good work. A sad loss to all is her departure; but, rather than call her from the Savior's prepared place, we should all imitate her beautiful life, that our going may be one of similar triumph.

Competing with Denominations.

BY H. M. PHILLIPS.

In one way it is almost if not altogether impossible for the church of Christ to make a success in trying to compete with denominations. They can build finer houses, have more music, make use of societies, get money by more ways, and in general outstrip the church of Christ, mainly because the church cannot do all such and still be the church of Christ. About the only thing in which the church can compete with the denominations is teaching and living as the

GIRLS! LEMONS WHITEN SKIN AND BLEACH FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day; then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

JACOBS
&
COMPANY
SPECIAL ADVERTISING
AGENTS
PRINTERS
DESIGNERS
PHOTO-ENGRAVERS
ELECTROTYPERS
Catalogues —
— a Specialty
HOME OFFICE
CLINTON, S.C.

For Brain Fatigue Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Especially effective in rebuilding impaired nerve force, and invigorating the nervous system. Aids digestion. A wholesome tonic. Buy a bottle. At all druggists.

Sure Relief

BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION
25 CENTS
6 BELL-ANS
Hot water
Sure Relief
BELL-ANS
FOR INDIGESTION

word of God directs. In this we can well make an effort, with the assurance that God will be with us and we with him. In worldliness, the denominations can outstrip the church, for the crowd is larger and more outside relation; so in that there is no need to try. When it comes to shows and entertainments, the church is far behind, if it is to attract the people that way. They can all join in and have a great occasion, and the church cannot join with them because of questionable things. There are many denominations that have a baseball team, and I feel sure the church could not take part in a match game and hold close to the purity of the ideal given in the Word. I might go on mentioning things in which the church of our Lord could not compete with the denominations, but these are enough to clearly prove the issue.

Now the question comes, Does the church want to compete with the denominations? Israel tried to be like the nations around, and soon separated from God. Many a good congregation has done likewise, and many are now not profiting by the lesson.

There is such a mixture of the religionists to-day that it is hard to tell where some stand. Calling on one another to help out in the public service is no doubt a compromise by the church. When a member of the church of Christ calls on one to take a public part, and this one has only been sprinkled, who is ready to say that all is well? In this you may compete with the denominations, yet I am sure you will not be pleasing to God. We ought to be able to say, as once it was, that the church of Christ can do its own work without calling on outsiders, and be ready to quote the word, and so live as to impress all that we have been with Jesus. Some, it seems, have tried to compete in sin, division, fuss, worldliness, and a host of other things, which only causes Christ to grieve. There are but few things in which the church of Christ can compete with the denominations, and I fear they are neglected because of an effort to engage in that which is not pleasing to God. In what can the church compete with the denominations?

Admonitions to Churchgoers.

Don't visit; worship.

Don't hurry away; speak and be spoken to.

Don't wait for introductions; introduce yourself.

Don't choose the back seat; leave it for late comers.—Selected.

Loss of Vitality is loss of the principle of life, and is early indicated by falling appetite and diminishing strength and endurance. Hood's Sarsaparilla is a great revitalizer. It acts on all the organs and functions, and builds up the whole system.

Have you lost your appetite? Do you get so tired with the day's duties that you're unable to enjoy an evening with friends or at the movies once in a while? Are you losing your rosy cheeks and your springy step?

Dr. Miles' Tonic

It was made to restore health to people in your condition. It has been of permanent benefit to thousands who were afflicted just as you are. Why don't you try a bottle? Get in line for better health—beginning today. Every Drug Store carries Dr. Miles' Medicines.

PRICES OF OUR HYMN BOOKS.

PRAISE HIM.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 50	Single copy.....	$ 60
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	17 00	Per fifty.....	22 50
Per hundred.....	32 50	Per hundred.....	43 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

CHRISTIAN HYMNS.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 55	Single copy.....	$ 65
Per dozen.....	6 00	Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	23 00	Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	45 00	Per hundred.....	55 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

WORDS OF TRUTH.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 45	Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	18 00	Per fifty.....	23 00
Per hundred.....	35 00	Per hundred.....	45 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

VOICE OF PRAISE.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 35	Single copy.....	$ 40
Per dozen.....	4 00	Per dozen.....	5 00
Per fifty.....	16 00	Per fifty.....	20 00
Per hundred.....	30 00	Per hundred.....	36 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

CHRISTIAN HYMNS AND WORDS OF TRUTH, COMBINED— CHRISTIAN HYMNS AND VOICE OF PRAISE, COMBINED.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 70	Single copy.....	$ 75
Per dozen.....	7 20	Per dozen.....	8 75
Per fifty.....	28 00	Per fifty.....	36 00
Per hundred.....	55 00	Per hundred.....	70 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

GOSPEL PRAISE.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 50	Single copy.....	$ 60
Per dozen.....	6 00	Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	23 00	Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	45 00	Per hundred.....	55 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

SEVENTY-SEVEN SWEET SONGS. Flexible Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 25	Per fifty.....	$ 7 50
Per dozen.....	2 50	Per hundred.....	14 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

NEW CHRISTIAN HYMN BOOK.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 40	Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	16 50	Per fifty.....	22 00
Per hundred.....	32 00	Per hundred.....	42 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

In answering advertisements, please mention this paper.

Obituaries

McClellan.

Sister Sarah Jane McClellan fell asleep in Jesus on July 18, 1922. She was seventy-eight years old. She obeyed the gospel fifty-eight years ago, and was a faithful Christian until death. She was the mother of eleven children. Six of them are still living, and, with their children and grandchildren, mourn her death. The writer conducted the funeral in the presence of a large audience. She was laid to rest in the Pleasant Grove Cemetery.

G. B. LAMBRIGHT.

Morgan.

Brother W. O. Morgan was born about seventy years ago, and for a goodly part of that time was a member of the church. He was a man of kindly disposition, leading a quiet, unpretentious life. He was the father of several children, having been married twice. He made his home with his daughter, Mrs. M. Young, 2610 Felicia Avenue, Nashville, Tenn. Brother Morgan passed away recently at the City Hospital, as a result of the after effects of pneumonia, from which he suffered considerably. Brother Morgan believed that Jesus was able and willing to save those who put their trust in him, and was not ashamed to confess it before men. May the loving Father above comfort the sad hearts left behind.

LYTTON ALLEY.

Davis.

Brother John C. Davis was born on November 24, 1864, and died on June 7, 1922. He became obedient to the gospel in August, 1907, and, so far as one can tell, he was faithful unto death. He suffered much, but through it all he was resigned to the will of Him who doeth all things well. There are many things that perplex us here. Why it is pain and suffering, toil and care, instead of ease and rest, for God's servants, we may not know; but the Father knows, and cares for us. Brother Davis is survived by his wife, two sons, and three daughters. I would say to them: Weep not as for them that have no hope. The funeral was held at the residence, Brother F. O. Howell making a good talk. He was laid to rest in the family cemetery at Refuge Chapel.

W. A. HARDY.

Scott.

Sister Jane Scott was born on July 19, 1854; was baptized into Christ in October, 1873; was married to John Scott in November, 1876; and departed this life on June 3, 1922. She leaves a husband, two sisters, and a host of relatives and friends to mourn her departure. She lived a consistent Christian life till she was called to go. She bore her afflictions with patience till the end came. She was laid to rest in the Obion burying ground after a good talk made by J. B. Brown, who had known Sister Scott all his life. She was better known as "Aunt Jane." To know her was to love her. She was ever ready to help them that needed her help, and ready to speak a word of comfort to those that were downhearted. I would say to husband, relatives, and friends: Weep not as for them that have no hope, for we know that "Aunt Jane" is in the hand of One that doeth all things well.

W. A. HARDY.

Jones.

On June 22, 1922, at his home in Columbia, Tenn., Thomas M. Jones passed into the higher life. In his passing his wife lost a true, devoted husband; his children, a fond, indulgent father; many friends, one whom they could always trust; the church, a conscientious follower of Jesus; and his community, a public-spirited, Christian citizen. He was charitable to a fault, and even the colored race found in him a true friend and adviser. He leaves his family the rich heritage of a good name and the influence of a noble life. He was born in Hickman County, Tenn., on November 13, 1847, and his early life was spent on his father's farm. He was associated with the Phillips & Buttorff Manufacturing Company as traveling salesman for thirty-five years. He was a devoted member of the church for more than thirty years, and was a member of the congregation at Columbia at the time of his death. He married Mattie G. Smith in the summer of 1887. She and three children—Claude M., Herman L., and Ruby Jones, all of Columbia—survive him. The funeral was conducted at the Rose Hill Cemetery in Columbia, where he was laid to rest, by Elder H. H. Adamson, of Lewisburg, Tenn., and was attended by a large assembly of sorrowing friends.

CHARLEY MAY SELPH.

Comer.

It was my happy lot to associate with T. W. Comer for more than thirty years in the varied relationships of life. He was born near a little village in Monroe County, Ky., seventy and odd years ago, and spent a large portion of his life in his home county. He engaged in different occupations, farmer, teacher, banker, and representative (one term) for Monroe and Metcalfe counties. He filled these stations with credit. His people were noted for their honesty, integrity, and strict adherence to the principles of Christianity. It was in the work of the Master where I was most intimately associated with him. He was a man of more than ordinary ability, which he used to the glory of God and the uplift of humanity. He was a positive character, a man of convictions and courage of the same. He was, considering his talents, a very unpretentious and reserved character, willing for others to take the lead, and would follow if they adhered strictly

Cured Her Rheumatism

Knowing from terrible experience the suffering caused by rheumatism, Mrs. J. E. Hurst, who lives at 508 E. Olive St., B-439, Bloomington, Ill., is so thankful at having cured herself that out of pure gratitude she is anxious to tell all other sufferers just how to get rid of their torture by a simple way at home.

Mrs. Hurst has nothing to sell. Merely cut out this notice, mail it to her with your own name and address, and she will gladly send you this valuable information entirely free. Write her at once, before you forget.

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE HENDERSON, TENNESSEE

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING AND GIRLS' DORMITORY

A standard junior college maintaining the following departments: Grammar School, High School, Collegiate, Bible, Business, Shorthand, Typewriting, Instrumental Music, Voice, Vocal Music, Expression, etc. New $75,000.00 Girls' Home. Strong Faculty. Christian atmosphere. Reasonable rates. Write for catalog.

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE HENDERSON, TENNESSEE

to the old paths. To his bereaved ones I would say: He left to you a rich inheritance, not in gold, but a good name. He died a tragic death because of an unbalanced mind; but he died in the Lord, where he lived so long.

J. D. SMITH.

Karnes.

Eula, the daughter of Joe S. and Mollie Frazier McCorkle, was born at Yorkville, Tenn., on July 27, 1872; was baptized into Christ by Elder T. E. Scott, in August, 1886; was married to T. M. Karnes on December 13, 1894; died on May 18, 1922. She leaves a husband, four sons, one daughter, an aged father, a sister, and two brothers, besides a host of friends, to mourn her departure. Brother Fred Blanchard conducted the funeral services. While we shall see her sunny smile no more here, her example and influence for good will live in the hearts of those who knew her. Her faith in Christ was implicit, and her greatest desire was to walk in the footsteps of Jesus and to let her light so shine that others seeing it might glorify God. Her prayer was that her children might be Christians, and she lived to see the three oldest obey the Lord. She suffered much, but fought a good fight, and we believe she was fully prepared to answer the summons to leave all earthly cares and enter that richer and fuller life with the Christ she loved. To the bereaved ones I would say: We share with you in this great trial, and earnestly pray that God may lighten the dreadful burden now resting upon your sorrowing hearts by giving you Christian courage and resignation.

KATIE PEARL FOX.

Blasphemy Against the Holy Ghost.

BY A. H. SMITH.

Nearly every writer and speaker who says anything about the unpardonable sin speaks of it as "the sin against the Holy Ghost." This implies that there are sins which are not against the Holy Spirit. Will some one please mention a sin or two that is not against the Spirit of God?

The expression, "the sin against the Holy Ghost," is not found in the Bible, but is found only in the writings and sayings of uninspired men. Every sin that man commits is against the Holy Spirit, but there is one particular sin that is unpardonable. That is the sin of "blasphemy against the Holy Ghost." (Matt. 12: 31.) It seems that some of the Pharisees committed that sin in charging that the Spirit by which Christ cast out devils was the spirit of Beelzebub, the prince of the devils, instead of the Spirit of God. The reason Jesus gave the lesson on blasphemy against the Holy Ghost was "because they said, He hath an unclean spirit." (Mark 3: 30.) On this and all other subjects let us speak as the oracles of God speak.

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

First Aid to the Injured.

A little girl whose rôle in the nursery game was that of nurse rang an imaginary telephone on the wall to talk to her companion at the further end of the room, who was playing the part of doctor.

"Hello!" said the nurse. "Is that the doctor?"

"Yes," said her companion, in a deep voice, "this is the doctor."

"This lady is very sick," he was informed.

"What is the matter?"

"She has swallowed a bottle of ink," said the nurse.

The doctor, with great gravity, inquired what had been done for the patient.

"I gave her two pads of blotting paper," said the nurse.—Public Ledger.

For the HAIR—

To make it soft, fluffy, and free from dandruff, use

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good

WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,

HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,

SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY

WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by

Washington Manufacturing Company

Nashville, Tennessee

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

AN OPEN LETTER

To the Disciples of Christ Everywhere:

We are sure you have been impressed with the perils which are about us. Old faiths, old conventions, and old standards are being rapidly forsaken. Infidelity, skepticism, sin, loose living, lack of reverence for things sacred are all about us. There is economic, academic, moral, and spiritual chaos. The people are unsettled and dissatisfied as perhaps they never were before.

This means that there is a special need for an unyielding, progressive, aggressive, intelligent fight for the inspiration of the Scriptures, the divinity of Christ, and for his authority in all things spiritual.

We believe the times have never been as opportune as now for our great plea for the restoration of the original faith, spirit, and practice of the New Testament church. That grand old slogan, "Where the Bible speaks, we speak; where the Bible is silent, we are silent," and all it stands for, should be shouted from the housetops. The people must be pointed to the "old paths" and shown how to walk in them. The only thing that can move them is the light that is in God's word. We are the only people in the world who are free from human authority to keep our Bibles open and to search out and give them that light without human intervention. All of us should remember that this is no time for letting up in the preaching and teaching of the great fundamentals of our holy religion. It is no time for temporizing and compromising and popularizing. We must "preach the word" with all the power we possess. The people must be shown the truth as it is in Christ Jesus. Nothing else can save the world.

All of these things are especially true of our young people. In many of the educational institutions our children are in the midst of every conceivable evil teaching and influence. We are giving our lives here to maintaining an institution that is academically sound and at the same time spiritually sound. Not only the Bible classes, but all other classes, are taught by people committed to the principles outlined in this letter. All social life and recreation are directed and supervised by people whose hearts are devoted to the same principles.

We are asking you to cooperate with us in our effort to save as many young people as possible. We can't teach them and influence them without having them here. You can send them to us. In doing so you will save many of them. We are depending on you.

Sincerely and fraternally,

ABILENE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE.

H. E. Speck, Dean.

By J. P. Sewell, President.

Write for our literature. Address, Abilene, Texas.

Dodson's Liver Tone

Instead of Calomel

Calomel is quicksilver. It attacks the bones and paralyzes the liver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it will regulate the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel, without sickening or salivating you. Fifteen million bottles sold.

A Brand-New Book

"OLD LIMBER" or THE TALE OF THE TAYLORS by DELONG RICE

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their eloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

He states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice. Into one hour of reading he has gathered the strange and romantic story of the two most wonderful political campaigns of Tennessee—the thrilling tale of the happy comradeship and the lifelong rivalry of the two famous brothers—a disclosure of the remarkable and heretofore unpublished incidents that attended the political division of the Taylor family—the wonder of "The War of the Roses" that attracted the attention of the world—and the truth about "OLD LIMBER," the peerless and now immortal fox hound that played the leading role of sentiment in the political campaign of last fall, from the Mississippi River to the Unaka Mountains.

With a "Cast of Characters" extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound, the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase. THE BOOK is beautifully printed and bound, appropriately illustrated, and packed in a neat gift box, ready for mailing.

PRICE, $1.00 THE COPY,
POSTPAID TO ANY ADDRESS.

Correspondence with Bookstores and News Agencies is invited.

Special club rates to Fox Hunters' Associations, if ordered in sufficient numbers.

Where we have no Bookstore customer, we will offer an attractive proposition to any energetic woman or man who may desire to handle the book.

Write to us to-day.

McQUIDDY PRINTING CO.,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

Among the Colored Folks

I am now (July 12) in a tent meeting at Tullahoma, Tenn. The attendance is excellent. Opposition is strong, but I am sowing the seed. The meeting is being supported by the white congregation of Tullahoma. I have had three discussions with Methodist and Baptist preachers, but the interest is growing. I shall begin a ten-days' meeting in Widener, Ark., on July 17. Widener is a destitute place.

ALONZO JONES.

On Wednesday night after the third Lord's day in June I began a meeting at Martin, Tenn. This meeting was supported by the white church of Christ at Martin. This was my second meeting for them, and they have engaged me for thirty days next year. This meeting was held under a tent that had never been used before. The white church bought it to do mission work. I spent nearly three weeks here. Interest was good from the beginning. People came for miles every night. The white brethren told me that I had preached to white people that would not come to the white church, and one white man was baptized by one of the white brethren. I am glad that God can use me to preach to all nations. When I heard of this white man obeying the gospel, I thought of a meeting that I held several years ago at Henderson, Tenn., when thirty-five white persons obeyed Christ after hearing the gospel preached by me. Brother N. B. Harde-man baptized them. In this meeting a Methodist preacher attacked the doctrine I taught, and I did my best for him, with the result that two of his members were baptized for the remission of sins, which made a total of six that were added to the church of Christ, and two were restored. One old lady who was baptized about forty-three years ago had gone into the Methodist Church, but, upon hearing the pure gospel, again took her stand with the people of God. The colored brethren and sisters who live at Latham, about fourteen miles from Martin, came nearly every night and helped greatly in the song service. I shall never forget the encouraging words of Brethren Winstead, Smith, and Paisley. These brethren will never know how they strengthened me in my work. There were other white brethren, also, who gave every encouragement possible. I thank God for the privilege of working with such Christians as the church at Martin has in it, and I hope other white churches will take up mission work among the negroes. I thank God for

Renew your health
by purifying your system with

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are free from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c and 35c packages, bearing above trade-mark.

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

New York City Church of Christ

239 West Sixty-Ninth Street

Services: 2:30 P.M., Bible Study; 3:15 P.M., Preaching and Communion.

E. E. Shoulders, Evangelist, 699 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Phone, Flatbush 6857.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debility and weak heart. Relieves headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains, and reduces fever. No depressing effects. Made by a formula which is in general use by leading physicians. 35c per package at your druggist's or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

Unless the church is growing, it is dying.—Charles K. Brown.

what little I am able to do, and pray that I may continue to work in his vineyard until death. Brethren, let us work while it is day; for the night will soon come, when no man can work.

M. KEEBLE.

The white churches of Christ at Antoine and Delight, Ark., engaged me to hold a meeting for the colored people at a point one and a half miles west of Antoine. The meeting began on May 20 and continued over five nights. We had much opposition, this being the first time the gospel of Christ has had an opening among members of my race. They were hindered much by the white denominations. However, some of them attended well. Brother J. T. Wingfield did his best to make the meeting a success.

T. H. MERCHANT.

Notes from Florida.

BY S. W. COLSON.

Brother D. A. Martin recently baptized one person at Citronelle and seven at Lacota.

Brother William Rucker has been assisting the Oxford congregation in a meeting for the past ten days. The interest is growing.

Brother W. A. Cameron is to begin a mission meeting at De Leon on Saturday night before the fifth Sunday in July. This meeting was planned and arranged for by the congregation at the Clifton Schoolhouse, which is only about fifteen months old. Shame on some older congregations! They have rented a furnished cottage, and Brother Cameron will have his family with him to assist in the meeting. I am sure that they will render valuable aid. Who wants to fellowship them in this meeting?

The congregation in Ocala is moving its house of worship, and we hope to soon have it located on our lot, with the needed repairs.

Fraternal Manifestations.

BY CARL BARNETTE.

Yesterday (July 9) I filled my regular appointment at Berea. Just numbers of children and young people were present. I began preaching for them two years ago and was to continue until they got a better preacher. Some of them are steadfast, and some drifted away a few years ago. When the evil one appears, some one is sure to get in the net. When I began there, I was told how much enmity existed between them. I just kept going, and have missed only twice; once I was sick, and once on account of rain. Dear old Brother Woodruff was there the day I was sick.

As I have previously stated, Brother T. M. Brown's house burned in March. The brethren and neighbors went to work, and in twenty-seven days he moved into his new house, and a much better one. From reports, I was surprised to see so much brotherly love manifested in this.

In April, Brother F. C. Thomas' son was taken seriously ill. It was just eleven weeks yesterday. Brother and Sister Thomas remarked yesterday that they had not suffered for one bit of help. They are very grateful to the good people of Rocky Creek and the brethren at Berea. There is hope now of their son's recovery.

Some years since Brother Raymond Hicks was undermined and deceived by those who hated the true gospel, and with the fickle mind it had its effect. The church almost went to pieces. My effort to rebuild is a hard pull, but it is very encouraging to see the children so attentive to the lessons we present.

Our summer meeting will begin on the second Sunday in August. We hope to have a successful meeting with the help of the Lord.

RENWAR VS. RHEUMATISM.

It is certainly a pity that so many people suffer year after year the intense pains of rheumatism when it can be so easily expelled from the system by the simple treatment of taking Renwar Rheumatic Salts. Rheumatism is caused by uric acid in the blood; and in order to effect a complete cure, it is necessary to entirely eliminate this acid from the blood. Renwar is guaranteed to relieve, or your money refunded. It contains no injurious drugs. It is the one sure remedy, and it does not in the slightest degree injure the stomach or affect the heart. Mr. Joseph L. Boehmer says: "One 50c bottle has done me more good than all sanatorium treatments; and what it did for me, why should it not do the same for others? Should any one doubt the virtue of Renwar and the certainty of curing this malady, refer them to me." For sale by druggists; price, 50c; or by mail on receipt of price from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

Salesmen Wanted

to sell Marble and Granite Monuments, the product of one of the largest plants in the country, located near the famous Georgia quarries. Liberal commissions. In a little spare time you can earn excellent profits. Write for full information.

ETOWAH MONUMENT CO.

ATLANTA, GA.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

R. K. MORGAN, Principal
Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn.

Your Greatest Problem—That Boy of Yours

What kind of a man will he be ten, twenty, thirty years from now? You know—every parent knows—that it depends entirely upon the training he is getting right now, his associations, his ideals, his inspirations.

Mr. Robert K. Morgan, Principal of the Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., has been training boys for twenty-five years. He wants your boy. He recognizes in him one of the men who may some day manage big affairs, and he wants to train him for that end. His school has been built and equipped and his instructors chosen with the first and only consideration of giving the boy the mental and physical training, the associations with clean, high-minded men, the ideals of character, the inspirations to ambition, which the world expects. Robert K. Morgan is a Christian gentleman of strong, wholesome, inspiring personality, and his school is the material projection of that character. Write Mr. L. I. Mills, Secretary Morgan School, Petersburg, Tenn., to-day, and let him send you a catalogue and tell you what this school can do for your boy.

YOU ARE WANTED for a GOOD POSITION at a BIG SALARY

All that you need is training. Draughon's Practical Business College will train you, at your home, within only a few months. This is the College that has trained more than 300,000 men and women for good positions. Ask for big book, "Guide to Business Success." It's FREE. Address
DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE,
Dept. GA, Nashville, Tenn.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, backaches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting

CAPUDINE

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Field Reports

Waverly, Tenn., July 24.—Having given up work on the farm and arranged to devote my entire time to evangelistic work, I am now doing mission work under direction of the Twelfth Avenue Church, of Nashville, Tenn. This engagement ends the middle of September, and after that time I shall be ready for new engagements, unless they should see fit to continue to use me. Brethren, I must keep busy, and prefer to continuously engage in preaching the gospel; but, if I am not kept busy at that, I shall do like scores of others are doing—look for some secular employment. If you need my services after September 15, address me at Madison, Tenn.—Andy T. Ritchie.

Avon Park, Fla., July 25.—Since my last report I have met with and preached for the brethren at Antioch, Plant City, Zolfo, and Sweetwater. Antioch is one of the oldest congregations in Hillsborough County. They have had many ups and downs, and are in a measure down now. I agreed to return in September and try to help them up at Plant City. The brethren own a nice, comfortable house of worship, and should accomplish great things for the Master. Since I began preaching at Zolfo and Sweetwater, more than twelve years ago, they have had many strong men visit them and preach for them, and at each place they have a few true, faithful men and women who will not give up the fight. We need a tent to use in preaching the gospel in this country.—John B. Peden.

Hopkinsville, Ky., July 25.—Our meeting at McBroom's Chapel continued eight days. Fine crowds, the largest they ever had at that place; excellent singing; good interest. I was asked to save a date for another meeting in 1923. There were four confessions and baptisms. This was my third meeting at that point. I visited the church at Cookeville and preached one time. I found Brother Ezell just in from the field, but he began on Sunday afternoon at a nearby point. Brother Hall is in a meeting near here (Little River) that will continue over the first Lord's day in August. At that time I shall begin a meeting at Philippi, in Todd County, Ky.; on the third Lord's day in August, at Antioch, in Jackson County, Tenn. We are now putting the roof on our new meetinghouse here in Hopkinsville, in which we hope to be able to hold a meeting soon.—Charles L. Talley.

Crandall, Texas, July 23.—A party, consisting of Sister Edith Hutcheson; my son, Paul, and grandson, George, Jr.; and wife and myself, left our home at Cleveland, Tenn., in a car on July 6, at 2:25 P.M., for Texas. We came by way of Atlanta, Ga., and Montgomery, Ala., arriving at the latter place at 9 P.M., Saturday, and staying with our good Brother and Sister Little over Lord's day. Here we had the privilege of meeting with the Catoma Street Church on Lord's day, and for which I preached at 11 A.M. and 7:45 P.M. We enjoyed our visit with Brother Little's family very much. I got a fine impression of the Catoma Street congregation. They have a fine congregation. Brother Little is wide-awake and is doing a great work for them there. At 3:30 P.M., Monday, we started on our journey, coming by way of Selma, Ala.; Meridian, Jackson, and Vicksburg, Miss.; Shreveport, La.; Dallas, Texas; and on to Crandall, arriving at this place at 10 P.M., Saturday. Our meeting here began at 11 A.M., Lord's day, with fine audiences and good prospects. My son, Paul, is leading the singing. I go from here to Scurry, Texas, for a meeting, beginning about the first of August, after which I shall go back for work in Tennessee.—George W. Farmer.

ASPIRIN
Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package, which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

FREE TO ASTHMA
AND HAY FEVER SUFFERERS

A Trial Treatment of "HIMALYA"

We don't care who you are or where you are—a man or woman, young or old, or whether you have had Asthma for fifteen years or fifteen months—all we want is your name and address, so that we can send you, free of charge, a trial treatment of "Himalya," our simple, convenient and reliable home remedy for Asthma and Hay Fever.

We want to show you, at our expense, and prove to you beyond any shadow of doubt, and to your entire satisfaction that Himalya will stop all difficult breathing, wheezing, choking spells, and all smothering sensations and painful paroxysms once and for good. We want to demonstrate to you conclusively, that, regardless of what climate you live in, your age or occupation, that this splendid remedy will do for you exactly what it has done for thousands of other sufferers in past years. We want you to know how different Himalya is from other treatments—inhalers, deuchs, opium preparations, fumes, smokes, etc.—how it purifies the blood and renovates the whole system, eradicating the disease by removing the cause. Don't delay. Don't wait until another attack comes, but start the treatment at once. Send no money, simply mail the coupon below.

Just Sign and Mail
This COUPON

The Himalya Company,
427 Warren Avenue, West,
Detroit, Mich.

Please send postpaid, and at once, free trial of Himalya to:

Name

Town

State..... R. F. D.....

TETTERINE
Drives Away Pimples

and leaves your skin soft and spotless. 60c at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Send us a new subscriber to the Gospel Advocate

WINTERSMITH'S
CHILL TONIC

SOLD 50 YEARS — A FINE GENERAL TONIC

If not sold by your druggist, write Wintersmith Chemical Co., Louisville, Ky.

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Gospel Advocate

Volume LXIV. No. 32.

NASHVILLE, TENN., AUGUST 10, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

The Immortality of a Gift.....	745
OUR CONTRIBUTORS.....	746
"The Harm in It"—Annual Visit to Bethlehem Church— Notes from West Tennessee—A Call to the Thought- ful and Unprejudiced—The Debate Is Over—The Fight Is On—Settling Our Troubles at Home—A Letter from Brother Lee Jackson—A Dangerous Practice.....	752
Evangelistic Notes.....	752
QUERY DEPARTMENT.....	753
EDITORIAL.....	755
The Term "Church" as Used in the New Testament— Strikes—Church Discipline—Brother Briney's Reply— The Gospel Advocate Company—Honesty.....	760
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	762
CURRENT COMMENT.....	763
A Council of War Regarding Your Mission.....	764
FIELD REPORTS.....	766
OBITUARIES.....	766
Cairn—Ray—Lamb—Royse—Callen—Benard.....

THE IMMORTALITY OF A GIFT.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

A WONDERFUL CONTRIBUTION.

It was "contribution day" at Jerusalem, and Jesus and his disciples were in the temple. The Master sat over against the treasury and watched the multitudes cast in their gifts. He noted that many rich men cast in much. And then he was strangely impressed with a gift that was deposited by some unknown somebody. It was the widow of whom you have so often heard, she of immortal renown, but at that moment obscure and unknown. Like the nameless soldier whose body rests in Arlington at Washington, the representative of all the unknown American dead sacrificed in the World War, so this nameless widow is known throughout the Christian world because of her sacrifice. It may have been the widow Isaacs, who gathered olives for rich Jews for a living, or some Ruth, bereft of her husband, who went gleanings after the reapers. The Master saw her make her way to the treasury and cast in her gift. It is not likely that anybody else saw the coins, so modest and unpretentious was she; but the Master knew the coin value as well as the real worth of her contribution, and it was marvelous in his eyes. It was only two mites, "which make a farthing," which amounts to about one-fourth of a cent in our money. But, behold, the hand cannot hold the abundance of her alms, and the Teacher immediately called his disciples and said: "This poor widow cast in more than they all: for all these did of their superfluity cast in unto the gifts; but she of her want did cast in all the living that she had." A wonderful contribution indeed, to be greater than all those lavish gifts of the rich!

A HOMELY ON A FAMILIAR SUBJECT.

The Savior's sermon was brief and occasioned by an incident that appeared trivial enough, but it was a marvelous lesson that he drew. His theme—giving—may have appeared distasteful to his disciples and his talk intolerably long—if human nature then was what it is to-day. At any rate, a question asked by one of the disciples shifted the discourse to the magnificent temple, and Jesus told of its impending ruin—talk that must have set their hearts burning and their imagination aglow with forebodings. But as for this lesson on giving, it may have occurred to the disciples that our Lord was giving an unnecessary homily on a familiar subject. Did they not know by heart the command of the law as to giving? Was not tithing a lesson that had been taught to them from childhood? Why, then, emphasize the matter, especially with such an object lesson? A poor widow whose contribution must of necessity be small and, as they thought, relatively insignificant. They, too, may have seen her as she quietly dropped her gift into the treasury, but a second glance was hardly demanded by the occasion until the Savior called their attention to his living text now disappearing from sight in the throng. They lacked interest. If, by some strange chance, they were told that she had dropped in a gold coin of great value, then, at once, there would be good cause for great astonishment, every tongue would be loosed, and various speculations indulged in. Perhaps she was some wealthy person in mask. But there is no disguise and no such dénouement. She is only a poor widow; her dress tells the story. She cast in only two mites, as the Master said. And he was talking so strangely about her gift! Why, he declared that it was greater than the aggregate of all the other gifts, some of which were munificent!

WHAT THE LORD SAW IN THE GIFT.

But what was it the Lord saw in the widow's humble act—he of the eyes like a flame of fire (Rev 1: 14), from whose searching scrutiny nothing was, or is, or shall be hid? First, the devotion of a sincere heart to what she esteemed the cause of God; then, that this devotion involved the very extreme of self-denial; finally, the same being saturated with a love that gave all. Yes, she went the limit—for there is nothing more than all. Hence, her action could endure the searching gaze of Christ, to whose scrutiny there are few human deeds that are without flaw and that meet his unqualified approval. It is true that the gift was bestowed upon a system that had been corrupted and was nigh to passing, but it came from a sincere heart, and our Lord shows that it is the motive that he judges. He looketh on the heart, and not on the outward appearance. And the poor widow's heart was perfect before him, and hence he could accept her gift and bestow upon her his unstinted praise. She gave of her deep poverty, even all her living, and not to be seen of men; whereas the rich gave of their superfluity, and in many instances, no doubt, to draw attention to themselves. She gave until it hurt—until she felt the pinch of sacrifice; whereas they felt no loss and made no sacrifice. She was blessed and commended; they received no true blessing and were disapproved. They would not be mentioned to-day had not the poor widow given more than they all. The immortality of her gift casts eternal shame upon their pretense.

HOW THE LORD VALUES GIFTS.

We have thus learned how the Lord values our gifts—how he counts money. The worth of a gift is reckoned by the motive and the sacrifice. The money itself is of no value to the Lord, and this regardless of whether the gift be great or small. He is not poor that he should need money. All our earthly possessions are the borrowed goods of the Lord; and no matter what the State may do,

God gives us no title deed to our property. It is left to us as to whether we will give that it may increase to our account. And the Lord looks on our hearts to know whether we be cheerful givers, and how much we purpose to give, whether we will return him sure interest of all we have. In proportion as our gift is genuine and adequate sacrifice does the gift become precious in his sight. He counts the sacrifice; and thus it was that the widow gave more than all the other donors, because she sacrificed more than they. We see, too, that a very small gift may be acceptable. The Master will accept even our pennies if they represent our proper sacrifice. He will count the penny more than the rich man's dollar if it be given at a greater sacrifice. Hence, let us not be discouraged because our means are limited. It is for us to see to it that we do not rob God; that we purpose to give, and give, not grudgingly, nor of necessity, but of a cheerful heart, as we have been prospered of the Lord. If we have been prospered much, we should give much, or we, like the rich men, giving of our superfluity, shall receive to ourselves condemnation. Better the gift of the widow with the Lord's approbation than lavish gifts that gain only the empty praise of the world.

LAYING UP TREASURE IN HEAVEN.

Let it be remembered that the eyes that noted the poor widow's deed are still noticing all that is done in his name and passing judgment on it. Still do "the eyes of Jehovah run to and fro throughout the whole earth, to show himself strong in the behalf of them whose heart is perfect toward him." The great gifts of to-day prompted by worldly consideration and pride will avail no more than those of the rich men who at Jerusalem cast in of their superfluity; while heaven's blessing will attend those donors, whether obscure or of fame, whose unheralded alms are done in humility and sacrifice to please God. Gifts that miscarry, like those of the rich at Jerusalem, are doomed to forgetfulness; while those prompted by a perfect heart toward God, like that of the widow, are treasures laid up in heaven. The story of the poor widow's gift has become immortal. As was said of the woman who anointed the Savior with precious ointment, so may it be said of this humble, nameless donor in the temple: "Whosoever this gospel shall be preached in the whole world, that also which this woman hath done shall be spoken of for a memorial of her."

Every man, for the love of his own mother, should handle all womankind gently, and hold them in all honor.—Alfred Tennyson.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We are trying to increase the circulation of the Gospel Advocate, knowing that as we increase its circulation we are broadening its field of usefulness and thereby doing more good for our Master. Will you cooperate with us in this good work? The subscription list of the Gospel Advocate is growing daily, and we want you to help us do even greater things for the Lord through its columns. Here is our Special Offer: If you will send us two new subscribers for a year, we will send you a copy of Peloubet's "Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons." This book includes all the Sunday-school lessons for the year 1922. It formerly sold for $2. The price of the Gospel Advocate is $2 per year. Send to the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Our Contributors

"The Harm in It."

BY EARNEST C. LOVE.

Just now there is some little interest in the instrumental-music question in Tennessee and adjoining States. The "digressives" have been working long and hard to get a foothold in the old Volunteer State. So far they have made little headway. They have, perhaps, forty or fifty congregations in the State. Now they are proposing to debate the issues. If the "digressives" had allowed free discussion of this question, the chances are that we never would have divided. They have always opposed debates before, and I strongly suspect now that they will be willing to debate only where they have nothing to lose. But I started out to show a few places where instrumental music is sinful.

1. It is either a commandment of men or a commandment of God. It is not a commandment of God, or it would be authorized in the New Testament. Therefore, it is a commandment of men. Being a commandment of men, it is vain worship—a plant not planted by the Heavenly Father. (Matt. 15: 7-14.) Vain worship is sinful.

2. All worship originates either in the will of man or of God. Worship originating in the will of man is sinful—displeasing to God. (Col. 2: 18-23.) Instrumental music in worship originated in the will of man—God's word does not authorize it; therefore, it is "will worship," and is sinful.

3. It is a violation of the motto, "Where the Scriptures speak, we speak; and where the Scriptures are silent, we are silent," and is a compromise of our plea for the unity of all Christians upon the Bible as a basis. It hinders union. It makes unnecessary division. Whatever makes division is sinful. Even those causing division contrary to the doctrine must be marked and avoided. (Rom. 16: 17, 18.) Not only is it sinful to use instrumental music in worship, but those who help to put it into churches are to be marked and avoided as above.

4. It is sinful because it is added by man to the appointments of God. It is a violation of Rev. 22: 18. No one can put instrumental music into the worship without adding something to the appointments of the Lord. Some may say Rev. 22: 18 does not cover this case, as it deals with adding to the word of the Lord. That is only a technicality. There is no principle of reasoning by which one could justify adding items of worship while condemning the adding of mere words. Hence, those who add instrumental music to the worship may expect to have added to them "the plagues that are written in this book."

5. Trying to worship God with an instrument is like offering "strange fire before the Lord." (Lev. 10: 1, 2.) There were two kinds of fire; common or "strange" fire and sacred fire. The sacred fire was taken from the brazen altar. (Lev. 16: 12.) The only difference between "strange" fire and sacred fire is that God commanded the use of the sacred fire and said nothing at all about the other. Nadab and Abihu "offered strange fire before the Lord, which he commanded them not." He had not yet given the commandment concerning the fire. (See Lev. 16: 12.) They did something without a command and died before the altar.

There are two kinds of music—vocal and instrumental. One of these (vocal music) has been commanded of the Lord; the other he has said nothing about. The one God selected and approved is sacred and the other is "strange." Now, Cowden and Myhr take each his own organ and offer strange music before the Lord. May they expect a fate different from that of Nadab and Abihu? The only difference is that their punishment will be deferred till the judgment.

6. To place instrumental music in the worship is to impeach the wisdom of God. The ordinary acts of worship, such as singing, praying, breaking bread, giving, preaching, and teaching, are all authorized in the New Testament, either by command, approved example, or necessary inference. None of these things can be neglected by a church without displeasing God. God wants all these things in the church because he put them there. We have assurance that having done those things we have pleased our God. Nothing has been left out that should be put in. (2 Tim. 3: 16, 17.) Once we allow ourselves to think that anything has been left out that should be put in, and we have no assurance that any of us ever have or ever can please God, for we have no means of knowing when we have pleased him.

There can be only two reasons for God leaving instrumental music out of the worship—(a) he forgot it or (b) he did not want it in. Now, our digressive friends tell us they are sure God wants it in the worship; so they believe in a God that wanted instrumental music in the worship, but forgot it! They here fall under the condemnation of Uzzah. (2 Sam. 6: 6, 7.) I warn the "digressives" right now that a greater thing than the ark is here. The God that smote Uzzah dead for touching the ark is living yet, and it is he with whom we have to do. Woe unto those who lay unholy hands on sacred things! Beware of the second death! (Rev. 20: 12-15.)

7. Wherever an instrument is put into a meetinghouse, there are three classes of people—(a) those who want the instrument and will have it or die; (b) those who know it is wrong and who will go some other place to worship when it is put in over their protest; and (c) those who believe it is wrong, but, being weak in the faith, they go on and worship with it against their conscience, rather than make a fight against it. They are thus led to sin against their conscience. The man who so sins against the brethren, and wounds their weak conscience, sins against Christ. (1 Cor. 8: 7-13.) No organ can be placed in a church without sinning against Christ in that sense. Christ will say to those who sin against him: "Depart from me, ye accursed, into everlasting fire prepared for the devil and his angels." (Matt. 25: 41.)

There is no way of excusing this sin. It is not a matter of taste, or what one likes or dislikes, as so many seem to think. To put instrumental music in the worship is to give up Christ and the Bible, and the history of our digressive friends shows this to be true.

Annual Visit to Bethlehem Church.

BY JAMES E. SCOBEE.

On the first Sunday in July I had the pleasure of preaching for the congregation at Bethlehem, six miles east of Lebanon, Tenn. For several years past I have preached there once a year. My first remembrance of attending a church service and to hear preaching was at Bethlehem. The church house then stood about two miles nearer to the town. It consisted of a large barnlike building of hewn poplar logs. There was no chinking or jointing between the logs. The cracks had boards nailed over them. The man I heard preach on that occasion was old Brother Bomar. There was a large shelter standing hard by, and a few dilapidated and falling-down cabins partially surrounding the shelter. It had been a Presbyterian camp ground. My grandfather, James Scobey, was a Presbyterian, and I have heard him say that he had often camped there during the meetings. There was great religious excitement at some of these meetings, and he had witnessed men and women affected by the "jerks." Young women with disheveled hair would jerk their heads back and forth with such suddenness and force as to make their hair pop like a wagon whip, and men would go to trees and howl like a dog would do when he had treed a "varmint." He said he then thought it was all the work of the Holy Ghost. But Barton W. Stone came into that part of the country and preached the gospel and converted nearly all the members of the Presbyterian Church to the way of the Lord. They used the house no longer as Presbyterians, but as disciples. They were called by others "schismatics." In a few years they wanted and needed a better house in which to worship. They concluded they would build on the bank of Jennings Fork Creek. The location is not attractive, but I suppose they made the choice because there was "much water" there. They built a good frame house, in which I have heard nearly all the old pioneers preach. I do not think they called on any church to help them build. Bethlehem is the mother church in Wilson County and, so far as I am advised, of the State of Tennessee. The house in which I had heard so many of the old soldiers preach, and where I had heard my grandfather, Edward Sweatt, preach after his conversion by Barton W. Stone, and where I confessed my Lord under the preaching of Sandy E. Jones, became old and weatherbeaten, and the congregation has built a larger and better one, in which they meet on the first day of the week and worship "as it is written." I preached in the old house fifty years ago. I taught school in the neighborhood for five years before the Civil War. All the children around there were my pupils. There are but two of them living there now. On the Sunday that I preached there only one old pupil was present, but their gray-headed children and grandchildren were largely in evidence. I was greatly gratified to observe that these young people were interested in the work. The Lord's Supper was attended to by the young brethren decently and in order.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

THE CALL FROM BROTHERS ALEXANDER AND SMITH.

While holding the meeting in Troy, Brethren J. S. Alexander and G. W. Smith (both dead) came with an earnest and urgent call for me to go into No. 7 District of Obion County and help them. Brother Smith was the father of G. Dallas, Robert D., and John T. Smith, all good preachers. Brother G. Dallas has gone to his reward; the other two are doing good work for the Master in Texas.

When they told me what they wanted, I told them I had no time to give to that place then, as all my time was promised. I shall never forget how earnestly they pleaded with me. Looking over my engagements, I found that there was one week I had not promised, intending to spend it at home, sweet home, with wife and children, resting. "We must have that week. You must go." I promised and went.

On Sunday evening I went as far as Brother G. F. Botts', near Rives, for supper. After supper, Brother Botts, wife and children led the way, and we started for Critten's Grove Schoolhouse in No. 7. A big rain came up, and we spent some time on the covered bridge across Obion River. For a while it seemed that we would have to spend the night on that bridge. About dark the rain ceased, and we returned to Brother Botts' for the night. On Monday morning we started again, and reached the schoolhouse in time to begin the meeting at eleven o'clock. Quite a crowd had assembled to hear "that Campbellite preacher from Reelfoot Lake that held a meeting in Troy."

I had read from the pen of Brother D. Lipscomb "that there was no room in the mind of man for the truth until the error was removed." So I started in to remove the error and replace it with the word of God. Brother Alexander got scared in the beginning and, I think, was sorry he had called me. "You are preaching it too hard. They will not hear you—get mad and quit. You must ease up a little. I am not expecting any additions this meeting—just want to get our plea before the people and reap afterwards." He begged me to be easy and give it to them in sugar-coated doses. I told him that if he had said at Troy what he was saying then, I sure would not have gone to No. 7. "If my manner of preaching does not suit you, I will quit and go elsewhere." "Your preaching suits me all right—it's the truth—but I am afraid the people will quit coming." But they did not quit. They came. Brother Smith led in song service, and the singing was fine. The meeting continued from Monday morning to Sunday night following, which was my week to rest. Twenty-five were baptized—three of Brother Smith's sons and one of Brother Alexander's.

In the spring following I was called back to preach on Sunday and Sunday night. Then I met Brother G. Dallas Smith for the first time. From that night to the day of his death we were great friends. Brother J. C. Shipp and wife were baptized at that appointment, which ended my preaching in the schoolhouse at Critten's Grove. The fight had to be kept up. A lot was purchased, a tent secured, and the work started in real earnest.

On putting up the tent for the first time, the brethren stretched it over a nest of yellow jackets. When we met, it was full of jackets. "You certainly aim for me to fight, and have given me a big job—the devil and yellow jackets." The jackets were killed out and the meeting went on, but the devil still remains, but slowed up a little.

I related this to a Methodist preacher. He told me of a similar circumstance with the Methodists. A large brush arbor was erected. At one corner was a nest of yellow jackets. On Sunday a negro woman took her seat over the nest. In moving her feet about she uncovered the jackets, and they proceeded at once to remove the negro by stinging and biting. She began to jump, clap her hands, and holler, "Good God," "Jesus Christ," etc. People thought she was happy, and soon all the shouters were engaged, which started the meeting off in good order. So you see a shout can be started by yellow jackets as well as by the Holy Spirit. The spirit that moved that audience was the negro spirit operated on by the yellow jackets by biting and stinging. So the beginning of my tent work in No. 7 was a fight with the devil and yellow jackets, with the influence of one and the sting of the other not all gone yet. Both still at work. For a number of years the tent meetings in No. 7 were feeders for Harmony, Mount Pelia, and Rives.

Next, "No. 7 Work," continued.

A Call to the Thoughtful and Unprejudiced.

BY S. H. HALL.

As our readers will remember, in last week's issue I republished in full my article under the above heading and stated that our friend Moore, of the Baptist Flag, undoubtedly misunderstood it, as under the heading, "Is the Church School Essential?" he has the following to say in his issue of July 20. Read carefully what he has to say, then note the comments:

"I want some one to show me how we can ever, as a church, carry out the great commission without some thought given to school work." (S. H. Hall, in Gospel Advocate, March 2, 1922.)

The Hardshells are the only people we know of in this country who do not have the school thought, and they do not have anything to do with this great commission. There are three great duties set forth in this great commission to the churches. First, make disciples in all nations; second, baptizing these disciples; and third, teaching the baptized disciples to "observe all things whatsoever I have commanded."

Christ is its author, and these three things named are to be carried out till he returns. Jesus did not build or recommend the establishment of a school while on earth. He gave the commission to his churches; and if they carry out his command, the churches cannot have time nor money for anything else.

Church schools are not in the great commission. But one says: "Teaching is in the great commission, and church schools teach; therefore, church schools are included in the great commission." But teach who, and what? Teaching disciples only, to observe "all things commanded thee." Church schools teach saint and sinner, and teach all things taught by literary schools and some theology. There is not an institution under the sun, save churches of our Lord, commissioned to teach the "all things" commanded by Christ.

Why not hear our Lord and not try to improve his methods by violating his commission and farming it out to boards and schools?

"You, then, don't believe in Christian education?" I don't believe in any other kind of teaching but Christian. Even our free schools should not teach unchristian principles. Things true are Christian; things false are unchristian.

If I am wrong, some good theologian put me right.

Upon the above I submit the following:

1. From reading the above and not seeing the article from which the quotation is taken, you would judge that I am an advocate of what our friend Moore calls "church schools." In this he is sadly mistaken, as those who read carefully the article republished in last issue can see.

2. My position was and is that, in many instances, the church cannot carry out the great commission without doing some school work. I know better than to advocate that the church has the right to establish a school for the purpose of teaching all branches of learning commonly taught in our schools. But I contended in that article, and now contend, that she is duty-bound to do any amount of school work necessary to the carrying out of the great commission. Christ's command to the apostles was to teach all the nations, preach the gospel to every creature. I said this could not be done without communicating to the nations by means of language; hence, that we either had to learn their languages, else teach them our own; that we are duty-bound to give all the nations the Bible in their own native tongue. Will Moore deny this? The apostles did not have to learn these languages, for they could speak in any tongue by the power of the Spirit and were not dependent on having to learn the different languages as we to-day. We cannot do this, hence must recognize the fact that the great commission demands some school work. The church does not have to teach astronomy, botany, calculus, and the many other branches taught in our schools and colleges. But this fact is before us—viz., the church of our Lord can never carry out the great commission without grappling with the languages of the nations of the earth. This is a part of the school work, and it is this part for which I contend.

3. It is a very significant fact that our "Hardshell Baptist" friends "have no school thought," as Moore admits, and along with this "they do not have anything to do with the great commission." But he is mistaken when he says they are the only ones "who do not have the school thought," for I know some who believe in the great commission, as they claim, who make eternal war on those schools in which the Bible is taught. But they, like our "Hardshell" friends, have not a missionary in any foreign field on earth.

4. He is right in saying "church schools are not in the great commission," and I am delighted to hear him plead for the people to "hear our Lord and not try to improve his methods by violating his commission and farming it out to boards and schools." One of the greatest lessons in the New Testament is the all-sufficiency of the church of our Lord to do everything under the sun that is essential to carrying out the great commission. Her only officers, if you may call them such, are the elders and deacons. (See Phil. 1:

2.) But I contend that these men can arrange for the education of those members who desire to teach those of other nations the pure word of God. Take places like New York, Los Angeles, San Francisco, Chicago, etc., and imagine a local church existing there and striving to give each nation the Bible in their own tongue. Cannot the elders scripturally take that interest in school work that is indispensable to their meeting the demands of the great commission? If not, why not? And may I say it again: those people who call themselves the "church of Christ" cannot defend their practice here. Let more and more congregations learn what the great commission comprehends and do enough school work, to say the least, to meet the demands in their own locality. But if there should be but one nationality in her community she still must give thought to other nations, encourage those whom she finds hungering to give others what they themselves are enjoying—viz., the pure teaching of our Lord and the hope of endless life—and do enough school work to equip those desiring to go to foreign fields with that which is indispensable to their giving the nation to whom they are sent the word of God in their own tongue by word of mouth and on the printed page. And God bless those of our number who have chosen the profession of teaching as their calling in life for desiring to teach only in those schools and colleges where the word of God can have its rightful place in the education of our boys and girls, our young men and women.

5. But our friend Moore is badly off when he claims "church schools" are wrong because they teach both "saint and sinner." This is not why a "church school" is wrong. He says the great commission says teach. But he asks: "Teach who, and what?" His answer is: "Teaching disciples only, to observe 'all things commanded thee.'" He seems to think that the church must teach disciples only, and not teach the world. Here it would be well to say that I have heard of a few who claim to be identified with the church of Christ who take this position.

It is certainly true that the church must teach disciples. But in teaching the disciples to observe all things Christ commanded the apostles, she teaches these disciples to "go teach all the nations," for this is exactly what Christ had commanded them to do. I hardly think the church has the right to teach her members to "go teach all the nations," but has no right herself, as such, to have a part in this teaching. Paul declares that it is God's "eternal purpose" that the "manifold wisdom of God" "be made known through the church." (Eph. 3: 10.) Christ had it right, therefore, when he said: "It is written in the prophets, And they shall all be taught of God. Every one that hath heard from the Father, and hath learned, cometh unto me." (John 6: 45.) "Then will I teach transgressors thy ways; and sinners shall be converted unto thee." (Ps. 51: 13.) I hope that our friend Moore does not take the position that the alien is converted independent of teaching. But he has left no place for teaching aliens in what he has said above.

The Debate Is Over.

BY F. B. SRYGLEY.

I am in receipt of a long, irrelevant communication from John B. Cowden, declining to defend in public discussion the position maintained by O. E. Payne's book, "Instrumental Music Is Scriptural." He says: "Payne is abundantly able to defend his own book, if it needs any defense." Well, if he is, perhaps the Commission on Unity had better select him to hold this discussion, for I am sure it needs defending. Brother Cowden knows, and the readers of the Gospel Advocate know, that all this correspondence between us came up over the fact that he and his Commission on Unity were circulating the Payne book. Is it possible that they have quit circulating the worthless book and are now trying to get out of it without admitting they were wrong in doing it? Why did not the brother just write to me at the start that they had changed their minds about the Payne book; that they thought at first that he had proved that the word "psallo" meant to sing and play an instrument, but now they know it just means to sing, and they expect to play the instrument in their worship "on their own hook?" Brother Cowden says the reason his committee would not agree to discuss the proposition with the phrase in it, "in the worship," is because this phrase makes instrumental music an integral part of the worship, which no church believes. This is perhaps the reason he is not willing to undertake to defend the position maintained by O. E. Payne's book. Well, this ends the matter with me. If Brother Cowden's committee and the one I named can agree on something else, they may be able to have a debate, but this one is over. His committee can call the one I named at any time. But I have never had any other question up with the Commission on Unity, except the position maintained by O. E. Payne, and I shall go on as before trying to show that his position needs defense.

The Fight Is On.

BY A. G. FREED.

Many interesting articles in the Gospel Advocate of late have impressed me. Among them are the timely writings of Brethren Srygley, Kurfees, and Barret. Our "fiddling crowd" has taken a new stand. O. E. Payne's book has given them new light. Only a few years ago H. L. Calhoun, as their champion, contended through the columns of the Advocate that instrumental music in the worship was only an expedient; that no scholar would contend for more; that "psallo" did not contain the idea of instrumental music. Now O. E. Payne gives the latest stand: "The New Testament teaches the use of instrumental music in the worship of God." Where does Calhoun now stand?

As their campaign of education is to begin soon, and their preachers are instructed by "the power" "to speak out plainly," we feel like the fight is on. Since their first attack at planting a "denominational church" where they have none is to be in West Tennessee, we come with the challenge to them to meet a square issue. We propose for this challenge to be placed before them at Covington and kept there as long as they hold to their policy of "education."

The challenge: "The New Testament teaches the use of instruments of music in the worship of God." Is there a man among them who will affirm it? If so, we will have "a program of education" adopted all over West Tennessee, beginning at Covington, the like of which was never heard before.

"Finally brethren, put on the whole armor of God."

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN THE WORSHIP

By M. C. Kurfees

Cloth. 300 pages. Price, postpaid.....$1.50

This is the most comprehensive book on this important subject now before the public. In it the Greek verb "psallo" is philologically and historically examined, together with a full discussion of kindred matters relating to music in Christian worship. The book is the result of a lifetime of critical study and research, and has become the standard of information on the music question. It has been highly recommended by scholarly brethren in the church of Christ and in the religious world.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY
Nashville, Tenn.

Settling Our Troubles at Home.

BY W. F. LEMMONS.

Our Savior, in Matt. 18: 15-20, teaches us how to settle our troubles that arise between individual members of the church, and the language is so plain that the simplest among us may understand it. It neither needs an interpreter nor interpretation. "Moreover if thy brother shall trespass against thee, go and tell him his fault between thee and him alone: if he shall hear thee, thou hast gained thy brother. But if he will not hear thee, then take with thee one or two more, that in the mouth of two or three witnesses every word may be established. And if he shall neglect to hear them, tell it unto the church: but if he neglect to hear the church, let him be unto thee as a heathen man and a publican."

The Common Practice. The first thing we do when offenses come is to "tell it to everybody," the world included. The news is spread, and the first two principles of this injunction are violated. The matter is carried to the church first. In many instances a scandal or a near scandal is spread, and the church is injured to the extent that it will take many years of hard work to get back to normality.

1. If I offend my brother or sister, his or her first duty is to come to me privately; and if I am really dominated by the spirit of Christ, we will settle the matter at once by my making the necessary apology and the offended party forgiving me. With this case settled here, it should never reach the third party. Here it should be laid to rest forever in the grave in which the church buries its troubles.

2. In case we differ on the question and cannot settle it between ourselves, we should call "one or two"—no more—to assist us as witnesses. If it can be settled with this move, the matter should be buried here, and never mentioned either by the offender, the offended, or the witnesses. In this way publicity is eliminated, the church as such is not affected, and no one stands in the way of sinners. If it should be published, even after it has been satisfactorily and scripturally settled, it is more than likely that some long-tongued member would magnify the incident, get it started again, and the same offense would become a greater one than it was in the beginning. I know of just such a case—a case that was settled under this very rule—that was resurrected and resulted in the destruction of a church that had a bright future before it. Hundreds, possibly, that might have been converted in the community are robbed even of the opportunity of hearing the gospel.

3. Last of all, when every other scriptural means and method has been used and the matter cannot even be settled with a jury, the case must be appealed to the supreme court—the church. If it cannot be settled by the church, then the case is to be turned over to the devil, and the party or parties guilty are to become to us as heathens—Gentiles—who were not recognized by the Jews. That is the attitude the church is to hold toward such parties after every scriptural effort has been put forth under these three rules. But, if the church can settle it, it is better for it to be settled in a public assembly than not settled at all. How can we violate all these rules and get out and tell everything among ourselves and to the world and escape the judgment of God? Those who publish these offenses that arise between us are as great sinners as are those who commit the actual offense or violate any other law of God.

"It Ought to Be Published." This is one of our common statements. I can remember a few years ago when I thought that everything ought to be published. I looked at it from a one-sided view. I was acting on the principle of applying the third rule first, and thus reversing God's law. About one pass at this method some years ago opened my eyes, and I realized that the wrong thing had been done. For the past eighteen or twenty years I have looked the truth squarely in the face and have tried to settle everything right. The result has been that I have seldom undertaken the settlement of a case so hard that I have failed. Success generally crowns my efforts. My confidence is that there is no case so complicated that it may not be settled if the Lord's remedy is applied in the spirit of Christ.

Taking Sides. The reason some preachers and elders of the church do not get things settled is that they go into it with their minds made up. They accept the task with the view that it is next to impossible for one side to be wrong. They seem to forget that all men are human; that good men do wrong, and that our best friend might be the one that is in the wrong. Even in case we have our opinion as to which side or party to a difficulty is wrong, we should not act upon that principle, remembering that even a criminal has a right to the doubt until he is proven guilty. "But if ye have respect to persons, ye commit sin, and are convinced [convicted] of the law as transgressors." (James 2: 9.) I have never seen the truth fail yet, and I have tried it and been tried on every inch of the ground. It is my intention to write another article on another phase of the question later.

A Letter from Brother Lee Jackson.

Oakland, Miss., June 16, 1922.—To Elder M. C. Kurfess, Louisville, Ky.—Dear Brother in Christ: I have just finished reading your good article on the "loyal Christian" and the "loyal church." There appears to be so much confusion among brethren in regard to the meaning and use of the term "church," including certain qualifying terms that are used in connection with it, that some of us would like to have you express your ideas as to the scripture teaching on this particular point a little further than you have gone. There are some few of us who are convinced that many of the issues that are being discussed, and which are taking up space for no profit in our papers, causing alienation among brethren, are issues that grow out of this general misunderstanding of the meaning and use of the word "church" in the New Testament. Some twenty-five years ago Brother David Lipscomb took me to task for my unscriptural manner of applying the word "church," and this led me to begin a restudy of the subject. As a result of this restudy, I have adopted the rule of telling my hearers that, as a Christian, I am a citizen of the kingdom of Christ and of God; but, as a member of a church of Christ, I belong to nothing that is larger than the local congregation with which I am associated in worship and work. Is not this a safer teaching than that which leads persons to erroneously believe themselves to be members of something as a general institution, thinking this general institution to be the "church of Christ" as restored by Alexander Campbell? If the work of Campbell has given origin to a "church of Christ" as a general body of people scattered over a State, a nation, or as scattered over the world, is not the name "church of Christ" thus unscripturally applied? And if the work of Campbell has thus given origin to such a general body of people, calling itself the "church of Christ," is not this one general "church of Christ" as much an ecclesiastical denomination as if it had called itself by some other name? With your well-recognized scholarship, it will help some of us to read your answers to these questions. There now appears to be preachers and teachers among us who hold the idea that Alexander Campbell restored to the world the "church of Christ" as a general institution, and that we as a people are that institution. These questions are asked on the basis of the accepted understanding that the word "ecclesia," as used by Christ and his apostles in the hearing of the common people, simply meant a congregation or assembly of persons.

Is there in existence a standard Greek lexicon, defining Greek words as used when the New Testament was written, that defines the word for "kingdom" and the word for "church" as meaning the same thing? I am not a great scholar, but I think that I know enough to at least reach a correct conclusion occasionally, and to me it seems strange that men who are scholars will write so loosely as to speak of "Christ's church or kingdom," thus making the two words precisely equivalent to each other in meaning. Is it not true that the work of Campbell did not restore the kingdom of Christ and of God, for this kingdom had not been destroyed? And is it not equally true that he did restore some congregations to the ancient order of teaching and worship? These congregations, if there be any such, are the churches of Christ, modeled after the New Testament ideal. As a "church" member, I belong to only one of these; but as a loyal Christian, I am a loyal subject of the kingdom, being under the sovereign authority of Christ as my King. "The head of every man is Christ." (1 Cor. 11: 3.)

Yours in Christ,

LEE JACKSON.

A Dangerous Practice.

BY C. E. HOLT.

[Brother Holt has pointed out a very ugly feature of some brethren who use such terms. We are determined to close the columns of the Gospel Advocate against all who use unkind and unchristian language. Let each article be a model in Christian courtesy and breathe the Spirit of Christ.—H. Leo B.]

Every evil among us is hurtful, and, when discovered, should be pointed out and corrected. The church of Jesus Christ is made up of human beings—men and women beset with human imperfections. One chief object of the Christian religion is to combat and destroy the evils which are imbedded in, and which grow out of, our sinful nature.

The practice of circulating unsavory and slanderous reports about preachers is alarming and threatens the cause of our Lord and Master with direful results. To hear some people talk, one would be impressed with the idea that preachers—the majority of them—are very corrupt in morals and are very unreliable in the affairs of life. Preachers, like all the rest of humanity, have fleshly weaknesses, and have to struggle against such things.

Occasionally a preacher goes wrong in some way. This is conceded. But such is an exception and not the rule. Sometimes a wife will prove untrue to her husband, and a husband proves untrue to his wife. Because this is true, would it be fair and honest and right to bring a wholesale charge of infidelity against all husbands and wives? Sometimes a banker will steal the money deposited in his bank. Are all other bankers to be regarded as thieves? Men in all departments of life go wrong.

It has become a business, almost, with many "church members," to defame, malign, and slander preachers. They stand with open minds to catch every ugly and hurtful rumor upon every passing breeze against preachers. They welcome with avidity and satisfaction and real pleasure every unsavory tale against a preacher. With every passing breeze there is some insinuation or intimation that a certain preacher is bad and should not be recognized. As already stated, some preachers go wrong; but I am strongly of the conviction that the vile habit of circulating unsavory things about preachers of the gospel is a work inspired by the devil, and in this way we are rapidly destroying ourselves. I do not believe in encouraging any man in a sin, whether preacher or "layman," if you please, but we should never condemn any man upon mere rumor.

"They say" is one of the greatest and one of the basest liars in the world. He is a liar that cannot be found. Like the treasure at the end of a rainbow, he is always just beyond one's grasp.

But how to correct this evil is a serious question. The fault lies chiefly at our own doors. Are preachers themselves, in a large measure, responsible for this evil? Do they help, and that willingly, to damage the reputation of each other? Do preachers become envious or jealous of each other in regard to being great among the best and strongest churches? Do they allow some difference of opinion about some policy or polity or "politics" to influence them? Do they sometimes use their special friends and admirers to help them, in a surreptitious or underhanded way, to "push" other preachers into the background or into utter oblivion, to make a place for themselves? Do they, when some preacher's good name is being damaged by some evil report the origin of which is "apocryphal," assume a significant silence? Do they often speak kindly of each other, but "punctuate" with that significant and suspicious "but—?" Do they sometimes reluctantly admit that certain other preachers do actually preach the gospel, but at heart they are not sound on certain points of polity or expediency, etc.? Especially are they not sound on etc., etc., etc.

Of course, that charity that suffereth long and is kind would say that gospel preachers would not be guilty of such things; and we all know they should not. No preacher ever tried to hurt another preacher that he did not hurt himself and the cause which he represents.

Another fruitful cause of this evil is traceable to the discussions between preachers in our "religious" journals. Two brethren differ in regard to some question. It may or it may not be of much importance. But the spirit and method of conducting the controversy becomes the most hurtful feature in the matter. Common ethics would restrain them from the use of the word "lie," but they do not hesitate to accuse each other of dealing in things that are "absolutely false." Now, if a man tells me that I have said a thing that is "absolutely false," I take it that he has accused me of lying. Now, my brethren, do you realize that we are destroying ourselves in this unchristian practice? Do you realize that when you malign or mistreat a gospel preacher, or any Christian, so far as that is concerned, you are hurting the church of God? Let us go to work and, with the help of God, correct this gigantic evil that is being fed by the fires of hell, and which will sooner or later bring utter ruin upon our own heads. May we be filled with the Spirit of Christ and "do unto others as we would have them do unto us."

Pronouns.

The Lord said:

"Say, 'We.'"

But I shook my head,

Hid my hands tight behind my back, and said,

Stubbornly:

"I."

The Lord said:

"Say, 'We.'"

But I looked upon them, grimy and all awry—

Myself in all those twisted shapes? Ah, no!

Distastefully I turned my head away,

Persisting:

"They."

The Lord said:

"Say, 'We.'"

And I,

At last,

Richer by a hoard

Of years and tears,

Looked in their eyes and found the heavy word

That bent my neck and bowed my head.

Like a shamed schoolboy then I mumbled low:

"We, Lord."

—Karie Wilson Baker.

Evangelistic Notes

F. W. Smith is in a meeting at Hurricane Mills, Tenn.

O. C. Lambert will preach at Reid Avenue, this city, next Lord's day.

C. B. Douthitt recently closed an eight-days' meeting at Sharpe, Ky.

W. A. Sevedge is in a meeting in St. Louis, Mo., with two additions.

R. L. Ludlam is in a meeting at Ottumwa, Iowa, with a well-filled house.

Hugh E. Garrett recently closed a fine meeting at Union, Ga., with eight confessions.

Noel B. Cuff has just closed at Baxter, Tenn., with twelve baptisms and one restoration.

A. R. Hill is in a good meeting at Central Academy, Miss., with seven restorations to date.

J. T. Harris has just closed a meeting at County Line, Tenn., with three baptisms.

A. L. Dixon, Delrose, Tenn., is available as song leader or singing-class teacher after September 1.

William P. Walker has just closed at Hickory Plains, in Carroll County, Tenn., with nine additions.

Jesse Love is in a mission meeting at Henderson, Ky. He hopes to establish a congregation there.

Warren E. Starnes changes his address from Dallas, Texas, to 703 Omer Street, Houston, Texas.

T. B. Larimore is in a meeting at Cookeville, Tenn., and the Cookeville brethren will be glad to have visitors.

W. S. Long, Sr., Union City, Tenn., writes: "Success to the Gospel Advocate, the best paper in the brotherhood."

S. M. Spears changes his address from Tuberculosis Hospital to 1705 Twelfth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Eugene L. Pearson changes his address from Monticello, Ky., to Halls, Tenn., where he will be engaged in teaching.

L. E. Pryor has just closed at Poplar Hill Church, in Kentucky, with two baptisms. He began last Lord's day at Minton.

H. I. Copeland, Ripley, Tenn., closed a good meeting at Bakerville, Tenn., resulting in seven baptisms and one restoration.

A. Y. Howell was recently at Red Hill Church, near Sweatman, Miss., in a meeting, with seven baptisms when last reported.

L. R. Wilson recently closed at Friendship, near Searcy, Ark., with two baptisms. He is now at Webber's Chapel, near Bethesda, Ark.

W. S. Moody preached for the Twelfth Avenue congregation, this city, last Lord's day. H. Leo Boles will preach there next Lord's day.

B. C. Goodpasture closed at Lynnville, Tenn., on July 28, with eight baptisms and increasing interest to the end. He is now at New Providence.

E. Gaston Collins has just closed at Corder's Cross Roads, in Lincoln County, Tenn., with eight by baptism and three who gave up unscriptural names.

A. T. Hamiter, Avon Park, Fla., has just closed at Pryorsburg, Ky. If you desire his services in that territory next year, address him at Avon Park.

J. D. Jones closed at Ivy Bluff, near Morrison, Tenn., on July 29. Seventeen were baptized and two reclaimed. He is now at Elkins, near Woodbury, Tenn.

William F. Etheridge has just closed a meeting at Hickory Grove, near Murray, Ky., resulting in fourteen baptisms. He is now at Hohenwald, Tenn.

Sister Essie Mae Vaughn and Brother Hugh Tucker were united in matrimony by Charles F. Hardin on July 12. The Gospel Advocate extends hearty congratulations.

L. L. Brigrance recently held a meeting at Caruthersville, Mo., with three baptisms. There are only five or six members there. Leonidas Holland led the song service.

G. B. Lambright, Jasper, Ala., Route 5, Box 31, is in a meeting at Big Ridge, near his home, with twelve additions to date. He can hold one more meeting in September.

C. M. Gleaves recently closed at Grissom's Corner, near Lebanon, Tenn., with two baptisms and one restoration. He is now at Flat Rock, in Smith County, with three baptisms to date.

R. P. Cuff preached on the fifth Sunday in July at Harts-ville, Tenn. C. R. Nichol began a meeting there last Tuesday night. Brother Cuff is now at Beech Grove, in Coffee County, Tenn.

L. L. Yeagley has just closed at Bell's Branch Church, in Hickman County, near Graham, Tenn., with five baptisms and three restorations. He is at Union Schoolhouse, near Gallatin, Tenn.

George W. Farmer, Cleveland, Tenn., assisted by Will J. Cullum, will begin a meeting at Reid Avenue, this city, on August 20, to continue indefinitely. All are cordially invited to attend.

H. C. Harris, West Point, Miss., recently closed at Cross Roads, near Tupelo, with one addition. He lives at Tupelo and would like to have other meetings near home. He is now at Houston, Miss.

J. A. Jenkins is in a meeting at Hazel Green, Ala. He goes next to a point near Lynchburg, Tenn. He could hold a meeting the first of September. His address is 13 Main Street, Huntsville, Ala.

Willis G. Jernigan has just closed a meeting at Lebanon, Col., with five baptisms and two restorations and a congregation established. This makes three new congregations in Colorado since June 1.

O. W. Rawlins, Savannah, Ga., writes: "Work at this place moves along nicely. We expect to be in our new church house on August 6. I think the Gospel Advocate improves with each issue."

A. S. Landis closed an eight-days' meeting at Pleasant Grove, Tenn., on July 23, with five baptized and two reclaimed. On July 30 he closed at Pine Branch, with three baptized and three restored.

E. E. Shoulders, 699 Flatbush Avenue, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes that Brother and Sister Larimore were with them for four days, during which time Brother Larimore gave them some very inspiring lessons.

H. H. Adamson closed at Laurel Hill, near Snowden, Va., with eight baptized and one restored. There were only ten or twelve members there before the meeting. He is now at New Salem, near Snowden.

Will J. Cullum is in a good meeting near Carrollton, Miss. This is the only congregation within thirty miles of Carrollton. He is to return to Nashville to assist George W. Farmer in a meeting at Reid Avenue.

J. H. McBroom has just closed at Hilham, Tenn., with seventeen baptisms and three restorations. J. V. A. Traylor began the meeting and did the singing. Brother McBroom is now at Flat Creek, in Overton County.

Harry Hayes, of Hornbeak, Tenn., is giving up teaching and devoting his time to singing and preaching. He can be secured after August 26. He is now singing for A. B. Barret at Troy, Tenn., with one baptism to date.

A. A. Bunner, Cleveland, Ohio, preached on the fifth Sunday in July to his home congregation on "Church Government" and was requested to continue the subject last Lord's day. He is now in West Virginia for a few weeks.

W. F. Etheridge is now laboring permanently with the Dodson Avenue Church, Fort Smith, Ark., with the work improving. He could hold some meetings in August or September. Address 1319 South Eleventh Street, Fort Smith, Ark.

George W. Graves recently held a meeting at Stewart, near McMinnville, Tenn. Next he was at Bloomington Springs, near Cookeville, Tenn., with one restoration. He is now at Smyrna Church, near Cookeville, with one restored to date.

A. G. Freed writes: "The meeting with the Green Plains Church, near Hazel, Ky., continues. The audiences both day and night are large. The interest is great. Nine have been baptized. I am making headquarters at Brother and Sister R. L. Cannon's. The home is all the name implies. From here I go to Pottsville, Ky., then to Henry, Tenn. The coming session of Freed-Hardeman College will be great. Write for catalogue."

F. B. Srygley is in a meeting at Obion, Tenn.

T. Q. Martin is in a meeting at Shelbyville, Tenn.

R. N. Gardner is at Gainesboro, Tenn., in a meeting.

Noel B. Cuff began last Lord's day near McMinnville, Tenn.

E. A. Elam is in a meeting at Bethany, Wilson County, Tenn.

James E. Chessor changes his address from Centerville to Spencer, Tenn.

Morgan H. Carter is in a meeting at Bethlehem, in Wilson County, Tenn.

W. R. Essex closed a mission meeting at Wayland, Tenn., with very fine interest.

J. A. Hines, Woodsfield, Ohio, is in a meeting at Liberty Valley, near Belfast, Tenn.

H. H. Ussery is in feeble health just now and is not able to hold any meetings at present.

R. L. Colley has just closed a meeting near Booneville, Miss., with one baptism. He goes next to Millville, Ark.

W. H. Owen is home from a good meeting at Haleyville, Ala. Good interest throughout, but no visible results.

H. M. Phillips has just closed at Southall, Tenn., with three baptisms and one restoration. He is now at Alamo, Tenn.

E. P. Smith has just closed a meeting at Thompson's Station, Tenn. He will begin next Lord's day at Union City, Tenn.

I. B. Bradley closed a meeting at Clearview, in Sumner County, Tenn., with fine interest. He is now at Auburn, Tenn.

John W. Beasley preached for the Neeley's Bend congregation, near Nashville, last Lord's day. One young lady was baptized.

H. E. Winkler has just closed a meeting at Pasquo, near Bellview, Tenn., with nine baptisms. He is now at Fairview, Ky.

H. W. Jones has just closed a meeting at Glade, in Marshall County, Ky., resulting in two baptisms and five restorations.

F. L. Paisley has just closed a fine meeting at Blood River, near Buchanan, Tenn., with twenty-one baptized and three restored.

David Thompson closed a meeting recently at Mount Pleasant, near Mayfield, Ky. He is now at Poplar Springs, Stewart County, Tenn.

J. H. Hines, of Montgomery, Ala., paid this office a pleasant call and reported his meeting just closed at Greenville, Ala., with one addition.

C. H. Baker recently closed a meeting at Sharp, Tenn., with two baptisms. He is now at Mount Vernon. He can hold a meeting after October 8.

There is a little congregation of Christians worshipping at 5491 Blackstone Avenue, Chicago, Ill. This is near the corner of Fifty-fifth and Blackstone.

W. N. Carter, McGregor, Texas, is at Bishop in his fifth protracted meeting at that place. He says: "I have never had as many baptisms as I have had this year."

C. H. Smithson is in a fine meeting at Dierks, Ark., with two additions to date. He goes next to Ben Lomond, Ark. He can hold a meeting in September. His address is Hatfield, Ark.

J. Clifford Murphy has just closed near Lineville, Ala., with eleven baptized and one reclaimed. Last year at the same place there were twenty-seven baptisms and four restorations.

Smith Chambers, Booneville, Miss., preached on the fifth Lord's-day morning and night for the Harbert Avenue congregation, Memphis, Tenn., and in the afternoon at Highland Heights.

M. S. Mason closed at Shiloh, near Dexter, Mo., on July 14, with four additions. He closed at Rector, Ark., with two additions, and is now at Cash, Ark. He goes next to Wad-dill, near Stella, Mo.

M. L. Moore and B. M. Taylor recently closed a fine meeting at Files Valley. Twelve were baptized and five restored. The orphans from the Presbyterian Home came to the meeting. He also preached in their chapel.

F. L. Paisley recently held a tent meeting near Sharon, Tenn., with two additions. He is at present conducting a meeting at Blood River. This congregation has begun a meeting on this same date for more than seventy years.

J. C. Moseley recently closed at Athens, near Sparta, Tenn., with fourteen baptisms, and practically the whole church confessed their faults. He preached at Cookeville, Tenn., on August 4, and is now in a meeting at Newbern, Tenn.

A. J. Bachman, Mentone, Ind., writes: "The sixth annual grove meeting of the church will be held in Brother Miller's grove, five miles southwest of Mentone, on Sunday, August 20. All are cordially invited to come and enjoy the day with us."

J. E. Green, Winston-Salem, N. C., reports three meetings. First, at Winston-Salem, resulting in three baptisms; next, at Corinth, near Statesville, with seven additions; and at Jericho, near Mocksville. He is now at Haw Pond, near Germanton.

W. Wilford Heflin reports the following meetings: One week at Leedy, Miss., beginning on the first Lord's day in July, with one baptism; in Bemis, Tenn., for one week, with four baptisms; Christian Chapel, Carroll County, with four baptisms; Lynn Grove, with twelve baptisms.

R. A. Craig, Shelbyville, Ky., on account of ill health, has been advised to cancel his engagements for protracted meetings. He expects to be able to resume evangelistic work next year, and also intends to continue his monthly appointments, and requests the prayers of Christians for his recovery. He reports work progressing nicely at Shelbyville, but asks for a contribution to enable them to complete their house of worship.

The Central Church in Los Angeles, Cal., held an annual all-day meeting on the fifth Lord's day in July. Visitors were present from Ontario, Riverside, Pomona, Pasadena, Downey, Huntington Beach, Alhambra, Sierra Madre, and perhaps other places. The following preachers were present: D. W. Nay, J. J. Wyatt, J. H. Moore, S. H. Dally, H. E. Bartlett, Orlie Badders, Russell King, and R. E. Wright. Excellent talks were made by Brethren Nay and Hoffman.

F. P. Fonner writes: "During recent months I have received from Gospel Advocate readers and other friends something over one hundred dollars to help me to get well, if it be at all possible. I heartily thank all the donors. Please address me at Box 81, Buffalo, W. Va. If I should pass away suddenly, I do not know what my poor wife would do. She has not been well since she hurt herself two years ago. In any event, even if I get better, it will likely take all the money I can get to put us through the winter."

George W. Farmer, Scurry, Texas, August 5: "The Crandall meeting closed last Lord's-day evening after running fifteen days. Six persons obeyed the gospel and the church seemed to be encouraged and built up very much. The attendance and interest, notwithstanding the extremely hot weather and very busy time for the men in that community, was fine. Some seem to think it was the best meeting, in point of deepening and far-reaching effect, that has been held in Crandall for a long while. After spending three days with our sick daughter and family at Italy, Texas, my son, Paul, and I came here and began the meeting on August 3. The audiences are very large and prospects are fine. After this I shall go back to Tennessee to begin with the Reid Avenue Church, in Nashville, on August 20."

There will be a debate at Womack, La., beginning on September 4 and continuing three days, between Jesse F. Love (Christian) and Isaiah Watson (Missionary Baptist). Brother Love affirms the following propositions: (1) "The church of which I, Jesse F. Love, am a member, known by me and my brethren as the church of Christ, is identical with the church of Christ described in the New Testament in origin, organization, doctrine, faith, name, and practice." (2) "Baptism of a believing penitent is for (in order to) the remission of (past) sins." (3) "A saved person, or a child of God, may so fall away and apostatize as to be finally lost in hell." Watson affirms the following: (1) "The Missionary Baptist Church, with which I stand identified, is identical with the church described in the New Testament in origin, organization, doctrine, faith, name, and practice." (2) "In conversion the Holy Spirit operates on the sinner's heart directly and independent of hearing the word of God."

Query Department

Mrs. Ella C. Whitfield, Columbia, Tenn., says: "Please give an explanation of Luke 7: 28; 18: 25."

The passages in the order named are: "I say unto you, Among them that are born of women there is none greater than John: yet he that is but little in the kingdom of God is greater than he." "For it is easier for a camel to enter in through a needle's eye, than for a rich man to enter into the kingdom of God."

1. It is clear (1) that John the Baptist was not in the kingdom of God; (2) that, as no greater than John had been born of women, no one had yet entered the kingdom; (3) that, therefore, it had not been established, but, as John, Jesus, and the twelve under the first commission preached, was at hand; and (4) that all in the kingdom are superior to John because they enjoy superior privileges and blessings.

2. It is easier for a camel to go through the eye of a needle than for those who trust in riches to be saved. Mark (10: 23, 24) explains this: "And Jesus looked round about, and saith unto his disciples, How hardly shall they that have riches enter into the kingdom of God! And the disciples were amazed at his words. But Jesus answereth again, and saith unto them, Children, how hard is it for them that trust in riches to enter into the kingdom of God! A man who has only five hundred dollars may trust in riches, as well as the man who has five hundred thousand dollars. The man who trusts in his riches cannot be saved.

✱ ✱ ✱

Daisy L. Taylor, Beech Grove, Ky., says: "I wish to have a clear explanation of 1 Cor. 11: 3-16, concerning the covering of the head. It seems to me that this covering may refer to the hair or apparel, and not, as some contend, to the hair only."

The teaching is that a woman must have her head covered. If her hair is long, and not cropped or shaven, this is sufficient covering. If cropped or shaven, she should wear a veil or covering on her head. I quote David Lipscomb's answer to the same query, found on pages 114, 115 of "Queries and Answers," compiled by Shepherd:

The women wore very much the same clothing as men, frequently only with a kerchief of cloth tied over their heads. The chief difference was her long hair. There were three styles to wear the hair: (1) To have the hair long; (2) to have the hair cropped, as is common with men; (3) to have it closely shorn, as with lewd women. Paul required that a woman should have her head covered with her long hair; or, if her hair was not long, she must have a veil or kerchief as a covering. For her to have short hair like a man's and to be without covering was the same as to be shaven like a lewd woman. The men and women in the days of the Savior, in going out, wore large, loose coverings. The women frequently drew these up over the head as a covering to the head. The Jewish women, from the days of Abraham, through the period of the Savior, down to the present time, have never veiled themselves in the presence of men, either of their own family or that of strangers. Sarah did not go veiled when among strangers, nor Rebekah (Gen. 24: 15), nor Rachel (Gen. 29: 11). The women that journeyed around with Jesus and the apostles, that ministered to them, were not veiled. The facts mentioned by the Scriptures and the employment of these women prove they were not. They went very much as our women do. Paul was not telling them how they should appear before men, but before God. When they came before God to pray or to prophesy, they were to come with their heads covered in token of their subjection to men. Jesus was the head of the man; so he cannot approach God save in subjection to his head, Christ. Man is the head of the woman, and the woman cannot approach God save in subjection to her husband, or man. The token of her subjection to man is her covered head. The head must be covered by having the hair long or having a veil over her head. The covering is for the head, not the face.

Then a man must not have his head covered when he comes before God, either with long hair or with a hat, veil, or cloth of any kind. This would be a shame to him. He may have it covered at other times, but not when he approaches God to pray or prophesy in his name. The woman, when she comes before God in prayer or in prophesying, must do it with her head covered either with long hair or with a veil or covering of some kind. Paul is telling how she must appear before God, not before men; and this applies to her appearance before God in the closet as well as in the public assembly. In the public assembly she may not lead in prayer or prophesy in public. There were spiritually gifted women who did prophesy or teach by inspiration. The four daughters of Philip, the evangelist (Acts 21: 9), did prophesy, but they did it at home. I do not doubt that Priscilla was a spiritually gifted woman; but when she taught, she took them to themselves to do it. The women commanded to be silent in the church (1 Cor. 14: 34) were inspired women. The whole chapter is about those possessed of spiritual gifts. Many women in the days of the apostles possessed these gifts. They exercised them in the private circle, never in the public assembly. The veiling of the face in the East is a Mohammedan custom, not a Jewish or Christian custom. To cover the head in the presence of God is both Jewish and Christian.

✱ ✱ ✱

Miss Georgia Hancock asks the following questions: "(1) If the ark is a type of the church of Christ, how were unclean animals permitted to go in? Can any unclean thing get into Christ? (2) Please explain Matt. 18: 17. What church is referred to in the passage? Can it be the church of Christ before Pentecost? (3) Explain verses 18, 19 of the same chapter. Does this give man the right to bind and to loose in the church of to-day?"

1. It is dangerous to stress the analogy between the type and the antitype. The Bible nowhere says that the ark built by Noah is a type of the church of Christ. It may be taught by men that the ark is a type of the church; but one thing is sure, the church is not intended for animals, clean or unclean. Christ did not die to save or redeem animals. This is true. Eight souls were saved through water, which also in the antitype doth now save us, even baptism. As they entered the ark, we are baptized into Christ. (Gal. 3: 27.) Alford says: "Water saved them, bearing up the ark; it saves us, becoming to us baptism." (See 1 Pet. 3: 20, 21.)

2. Matt. 18: 17 reads: "And if he refuse to hear them, tell it unto the church: and if he refuse to hear the church also, let him be unto thee as the Gentile and the publican." The marginal reading for "church" here is "congregation." We read of the church in the wilderness, which means the congregation in the wilderness. A church is a called-out and separated band. The personal followers of Christ were the only such in his day. They were to tell it to them. Since then the church was set up on Pentecost, local churches have been planted, and the church of which the parties are members is the one to which to tell it.

3. "Verily I say unto you, What things soever ye shall bind on earth shall be bound in heaven: and what things soever ye shall loose on earth shall be loosed in heaven. Again I say unto you, that if two of you shall agree on earth as touching anything that they shall ask, it shall be done for them of my Father who is in heaven." (Matt. 18: 18, 19.) What was first said to Peter is now said to all the apostles. It is spoken to all the second time. (John 20: 23.) The apostles were all inspired of God. They were commissioned to announce the conditions of salvation by the gospel and to make known the rules of church discipline. These conditions and rules as found in Acts and the Epistles bind and loose men. As they were to speak and write as moved by the Holy Spirit, what they announced would be ratified in heaven. Two shall constitute a Christian fellowship. The united prayers of this fellowship in faith and according to God's will would be heard. The assurance of this is found in the fact that where two or three are gathered in the name of Christ, he will be present.

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipsecomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-119 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

The Term "Church" as Used in the New Testament.

BY M. C. K.

On page 750 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate may be found a thoughtful and timely communication from Brother Lee Jackson, of Oakland, Miss. I am sorry we could not publish it sooner, but the delay could not be well avoided. I ask the reader to give it a careful examination before reading these comments. In view of the denominational environment confronting and confusing the people of the present age, it is of the first importance that the term "church" be studied strictly in the light of its New Testament usage. The denominational usage of the term is almost wholly misleading. Some of the principal erroneous usages to which our brother calls attention have grown out of denominationalism. But it is impracticable in the present study to enter into an exhaustive treatment of the question, though such a treatment is not necessary in order to a correct idea of the term as it is generally used in the New Testament. To simplify the investigation, I shall first invite attention to its different uses in the New Testament, and then to a consideration of our brother's questions.

Let it be noted, first of all, that the term ecclesia—the New Testament Greek word for our word "church"—literally means "called out," or "a called-out assembly." Its common signification among the Greeks of the time of Herodotus, Thucydides, and Xenophon, the fourth and fifth centuries B.C., was "an assembly of the citizens," and it meant this regardless of the purpose for which the assembly was called. It was sometimes applied to a mob, and is one time so used in the New Testament. (Acts 19: 41.) Its first occurrence in the New Testament is Matt. 16: 18—"Upon this rock I will build my church." This meant the people whom Christ would call to be his followers, and there was a peculiar fitness in designating them as an ecclesia, a called-out people, for he distinctly says of them: "If the world hateth you, ye know that it hath hated me before it hated you. If ye were of the world, the world would love its own: but because ye are not of the world, but I chose you out of the world, therefore the world hateth you." (John 15: 18, 19.) Again, referring to his disciples, he says: "They are not of the world, even as I am not of the world." (John 17: 14.) Hence, in all religious usages of the term in the New Testament, this idea, that it means the called-out people of God, appears and is common to them all. Let us now consider:

I. ITS DIFFERENT USAGES IN THE NEW TESTAMENT.

1. The general sense. By "the general sense" is meant its use to denote God's people anywhere and everywhere without regard to any particular locality. It is thus used in Matt. 16: 18—"Upon this rock I will build my church." Of course he did not mean his people at any particular place, but at all places wherever they might exist, and, therefore, in this place, it means his church or people in all the world. In all occurrences and all usages of the term in the New Testament it included all the people of God in the territory to which it was applied. It is used in the general sense in 1 Cor. 12: 28; Eph. 1: 22; Phil. 3: 6; Col. 1: 18, 24; and other passages.

2. The local sense. By this is meant the church or people of God at a particular place. For example, "the church of God which is at Corinth" (1 Cor. 1: 2; 2 Cor. 1: 1), "at Colosse" (Col. 1: 1); "the church of the Thessalonians" (1 Thess. 1: 1). Here it included all the people of God in any one of these places to which it was applied.

3. The provincial sense. It is used one time in this sense as found in Acts 9: 31: "So the church throughout all Judea and Galilee and Samaria had peace, being edified." This usage justifies applying it to any similar district, as, for example, the church in Kentucky or the church in Tennessee.

4. The house church sense. This means where the Christians or people of God composing a household were called the church in the said house. For example: "Salute Frisca and Aquila, my fellow workers in Christ Jesus: . . . and salute the church that is in their house." (Rom. 16: 3-5.) "Salute the brethren that are in Laodicea, and Nymphas, and the church that is in their house." (Col. 4: 15.) And Paul says to Philemon: "To the church in thy house." (Phile 2.)

Hence, we see, as illustrated in all four senses in which the word is used in the New Testament, that it always, without exception, included all the people of God in the territory to which it was applied, and, therefore, when it is used to-day to include only a part of God's people in a given territory, the sense is purely denominational.

II. BROTHER JACKSON'S QUESTIONS.

1. Our brother says: "As a Christian, I am a citizen of the kingdom of Christ and of God; but as a member of a church of Christ, I belong to nothing that is larger than the local congregation with which I am associated in worship and work." And he asks: "Is not this a safer teaching than that which leads persons to erroneously believe themselves to be members of something as a general institution, thinking this general institution to be the 'church of Christ' as restored by Alexander Campbell?" While the idea is correct that, outside of denominationalism, one does not "belong to" any "general institution" in the sense in which one belongs to "the local congregation with which" one is "associated in worship and work," nevertheless it is true that, since the church, as we have seen, exists in the general sense, meaning the people of God throughout a province or throughout the world, it must inevitably follow that every individual Christian, in addition to belonging to a local congregation, is also an integral part of the church in this general sense. But those who designate as "the church of Christ" the people identified with what is called "the Campbell Restoration Movement" are using the term "church of Christ" in a purely denominational sense. When they thus use it, they do not include in it all the people of God in the territory to which they apply it, which, as we have seen, is clearly a violation of New Testament usage; or, as our brother puts it, "the name 'church of Christ'" is "thus unscripturally used," and "this one general 'church of Christ'" is "as much an ecclesiastical denomination as if it had called itself by some other name," such as Baptist, Methodist, or Presbyterian.

2. Those "preachers and teachers among us who hold the idea that Alexander Campbell restored to the world the 'church of Christ' as a general institution, and that we as a people are that institution," are also as completely denominational in their conception of the church and their phraseology as are those who designate themselves as Baptists, Methodists, or Presbyterians. The term "church" in New Testament usage is never restricted to a part of the people of God to the exclusion of others in any territory to which it is applied.

3. Finally, as to "the word for 'kingdom' and the word for 'church'" basileia being the former and ecclesia being the latter, there is no "standard Greek lexicon" which defines these two words in their radical import "as meaning the same thing." As mere words, they do not mean the same thing. In Herodotus, basileia means "a kingdom, dominion," "a king's reign," and the same idea, in the general sense, is transferred to the New Testament; whereas ecclesia, as we have seen, meant during the same period "as assembly of the citizens," "a called-out assembly." But, in their practical application, the two terms, nevertheless, are used in the New Testament to designate the same people, God's people, or Christians. Even here, however, though the same people are thus designated, they are contemplated under different aspects by the use of the two terms. God's people are in the kingdom, and, in a sense, they are the kingdom. Paul says: "Who delivered us out of the power of darkness, and translated us into the kingdom of the Son of his love." (Col. 1: 13.) And John says of himself and other Christians: "He made us to be a kingdom." (Rev. 1: 6.) And the same people are called "the church." Paul identifies "the church of God which is at Corinth" with "them that are sanctified in Christ Jesus, called to be saints." (1 Cor. 1: 2.) Thus, from one point of view and conveying a special idea, God's people are called a "church;" and from another point of view and conveying a different idea, they are called a "kingdom." Possibly those who "speak of Christ's church or kingdom" mean nothing more than this. If by their usage they mean that "church" and "kingdom" convey the same idea, they are mistaken. Moreover, it is true that "the work of Campbell did not restore the kingdom," and it is equally true that it did not restore "the church." It called the attention of a divided Christendom to the word of God and to the one church revealed therein and urged these divided people to return to the primitive order. It is true also that he led "some congregations to the ancient order of teaching and worship." I, too, would join our brother in saying that "these" and all other such "congregations, if there be any such, are the churches of Christ modeled after the New Testament ideal." Assuredly it is not correct to designate as "the church of Christ" those Christians constituting what is called "the Campbell Restoration." They are only a part of that general institution, the whole of it consisting of all Christians or children of God wherever any exist in all the world.

When we make nearer approaches to God, we have more use of ourselves.—Benjamin Whichcote.

Strikes.

BY J. C. M'Q.

No one thinks that strikes are pleasing either to God or the people. It is not held that they are best for the employers, strikers, or the public. I recently saw a cartoon representing three men. The man representing the public was down, and a man representing the strikers was standing on his back and another representing employers was standing on his legs, struggling with the man representing the strikers. Certain it is that the public suffers from strikes. Because strikes, sin, and wickedness are prevalent in the world, many people claim that Christianity is a failure. It is not Christianity that they are condemning, but the lack of Christianity. The religion of Christ has not been given a trial. There is nothing wrong with Christianity, but the wrong is with those professing the religion of Christ. They do not apply it to the ills that afflict the human family. Micah prescribed a remedy for the terrible ills that afflicted the people in his time. He says: "He hath showed thee, O man, what is good; and what doth Jehovah require of thee, but to do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God?" (Mic. 6: 8.) This passage applied by all concerned to the coal and railroad strikes will terminate them immediately. "To do justly" is positive and not negative. Confucius about seven hundred years before Christ stated this great law in a negative form, while it was being stated by Isaiah and other prophets in an affirmative way. It was left for Christ, the meek and lowly, to give emphasis to the Golden Rule in the Sermon on the Mount. The law as announced and emphasized by Christ is not to be treated as a beautiful expression of an impracticable idealism, as something to be admired, but never attained. This law was given to control us in all our dealings with our fellow creatures. It is worthy our best thought and most devoted practice. Read it: "All things therefore whatsoever ye would that men should do unto you, even so do ye also unto them: for this is the law and the prophets." (Matt. 7: 12.) The man who practices this law treats his fellow creatures justly. No fault has been or will be found with the law. Our failure to practice it is bad and leads to many and grievous ills. Arthur Nash has truly said: "The Golden Rule is the divine law governing human relationships, accepted by all religions and proclaimed by all prophets and teachers of every creed. It is the only infallible, workable, industrial and economic law in the universe to-day." While all religionists theoretically accept the Golden Rule, they do not practice it. The difficulty is to get the people to do what they know is right. We all know that somebody's practice is terribly out of joint when thousands of people are refusing to work and the whole country is suffering from their idleness. Either one or the other, but more probably both operators and strikers are actually refusing to practice the Golden Rule, or it would not have been necessary for President Harding to make the following proclamation:

Whereas, the United States Railroad Labor Board has recently handed down decisions, one affecting the wage of the shop-craft employees, the other declaring the contract system of shop-craft work with outside agencies to be contrary to the intent of the Transportation Act, and, therefore, that such practice must be discontinued; and

Whereas, the shop-craft employees have elected to discontinue their work, rather than abide by the decision rendered, and certain operators have ignored the decision ordering abandonment of the contract shop practice; and,

Whereas, the peaceful settlement of controversies in accordance with law and due respect for the established agencies of such settlement are essential to the security and well-being of our people;

Now, therefore, I, Warren G. Harding, President of the United States, do hereby make proclamation, directing all persons to refrain from all interference with the lawful effort to maintain interstate transportation and the carrying of the United States mails.

By issuing this proclamation the President assumed full charge of the situation. But conditions did not improve. May I ask why? Simply because there is a growing sentiment in our country to obey neither the law of God nor of man. Men who have little or no respect for God do not hesitate to disobey the law of the country. Men who worship and love God with all their hearts are slow to transgress the law of our land. Our growing ills are due to a growing disposition to disobey God. When Satan tempted Christ to fall down and worship him, Jesus said unto him: "Thou shalt worship the Lord thy God, and him only shalt thou serve." A perfect worship of God would be a perfect panacea for all our ills. To stop strikes and horrible massacres such as recently occurred at Herrin, Ill., we must lead the people to accept and obey the word of God. Men who belittle obedience to God will also belittle obedience to the government of the United States. Those who are indifferent to the law of God will also be indifferent to the laws of the land. Those who obey God make good citizens. We cannot work out a perfect human system for controlling our existing industrial relations; but where all human systems fail, the divine law is still infinitely adequate. The teaching of Christ is as sound in practice as it is beautiful in ideals. If this nation is not to go down in ruin, then it must be guided by the word of God in solving its labor and industrial problems, as well as in everything else.

Church Discipline.

BY H. LEO B.

There exists to-day very much confusion in the minds of church people on this subject. This confusion is due in a large measure to a failure to study the Bible on this subject. Another source of confusion is a lack of willingness to do what God requires. We may expect any church to suffer that ignores any part of divine instruction or rebels against divine authority.

The church, in its local application, means a group of Christians worshipping at a certain place; it includes all the people of God in that locality. In this congregational capacity, it is independent of all other groups or churches. It is vested with all the authority that any church can have on earth. It is vested with all the authority of the Lord Jesus Christ on earth, without the aid or coöperation of any other church. There is no ecclesiastical body that can interfere with the independence and full and free activities of the church. The church in this local sense is, like the family, a self-governing body, and its government is a divine government.

The church is composed of members. Each Christian is a member, and is to function fully and freely as a member of the body. Each member is entitled to the sympathy, encouragement, and coöperation of all the other members. While each member is functioning in the God-ordained work, it has a right to claim the support and help of the other members. Each member working as God ordained that it should constitutes the work of the church. Each member is also responsible to the other members and to the whole body. Each member must walk orderly or else the work of the whole church is hindered. Just as when one member suffers, the whole body suffers, so when one or more of the members are unfaithful, every other member suffers. This calls for an invested power to correct all evils and wrongdoings among the members. This correction is discipline.

The church should exercise discipline for its own sake and also for the sake of the sinner. Each member should see that the welfare and mission of the whole body is affected by sins of one member. Each member must understand that if the sin is not corrected the whole will be leavened. This shows that each member must be interested in the dis-

FROM PROF. H. L. CALHOUN

The author of the Review of the Payne book on "psallo" has received and highly appreciates the following note of commendation from Brother Calhoun, of Bethany College:

Mr. M. C. Kurfes.—My Dear Brother: I write this to thank you for the very excellent and scholarly piece of work which you have done in reviewing Brother Payne's book on "psallo." In the interest of truth and scholarship, I think your review is all that could be desired.

In Christian love, your brother,

HALL LAURIE CALHOUN.

Bethany, W. Va., July 20, 1922.

cipline. In every case of discipline the welfare of every member is involved and at stake. So often members fail to appreciate this point. Again, every member should understand that the welfare and destiny of the sinner is involved, and every member should be prayerfully interested in the salvation of the sinner. If these two phases of discipline were understood and fully appreciated by all the members, it would help to make discipline more effective. The aim of discipline should not be lost sight of. It should be administered with humility and love.

The authority invested in the church for disciplining is directed by the elders or overseers. The authority of God and the spirit of Christ must control the church. The test of fidelity to God is to let his authority control the body of Christ. The test of loyalty of each member is to submit to the authority of God and see that God's authority is obeyed in the church. The elders have no authority except that which is given them of God; they are the leaders and spokesmen for Jehovah; they are the agents of Christ, the head of the body. If they act according to the law of God, it is God's authority enforced; it is God's discipline. If they do not act according to the law of God, they have no authority whatever. No elder or leader has any authority, save that which comes from God.

When the authority of God expressed by his faithful agents is obeyed, it is obedience to God; when it is disobeyed, it is disobedience to God. A failure on the part of any member to give full and frank encouragement to this authority is to rebel against God. The whole body must act in unison or else the spirit of Christ is violated. The elders or leaders should never become partisan in any discipline. The moment this spirit is breathed, that moment they cease to represent God's authority. All discipline must be exercised with patience, prayer, kindness, and love for the one who is being disciplined. The true aim of discipline must be kept in mind—the welfare of the church and the salvation of the sinner. The discipline may be painful, yet it must be done. No one should shrink from carrying out fully and freely God's authority in the affair. Each must remember that in church discipline the honor and the authority of Christ are exalted. He who lets fleshly feeling or family relations hinder his giving full encouragement to the discipline shows that he loves man more than he loves Christ. Even the love of parents for the child should not stand in the way of the father and the mother in enforcing the discipline according to God's will. Just here many of the cases of church discipline prove futile. Sometimes the leaders show favor and act upon impulse rather than being guided by the teachings of God; often passion and prejudice rule the leaders instead of the law of God. Such discipline is a farce and degrades the church of the Lord Jesus Christ. It is a most serious crime for the leaders of a congregation to attempt any discipline that is not carrying out the mind, purpose, authority, mercy, and love of God. It is a crime against the church and a crime against the sinner. It cannot result in good.

When the elders and all the other members have followed the spirit and the teaching of Christ and discipline has been administered, then the one disciplined must submit to it because it is submitting to God's authority. To stubbornly refuse to recognize it is further rebellion against God. Any other church that does not recognize the discipline that has been administered by the authority of Christ becomes a party to sin; it encourages the sinner in a perverse and rebellious way. Churches should be slow and patient in dealing with the disorderly, and then they should recognize and honor the authority of Christ in all matters of discipline. May the Lord help his people to honor his authority on all occasions of discipline.

Brother Briney's Reply.

BY F. W. SMITH.

While I am disappointed at the turn matters have taken regarding my request that Brother Briney have my answer to his question published in the Christian Standard, and in view of this fact feel under no obligation whatever to publish his present communication, I shall, nevertheless, let our readers see what our brother has said:

Holden, Mo., July 14, 1922.—My Dear Brother Smith: I have read your reply to my request that you cite me to the passage of scripture that "clearly forbids" the use of instrumental music in worship, with interest, but with utter disappointment. I asked you not to refer me to a passage from which you infer that such music is "clearly forbidden," but to give chapter and verse in which it is "clearly forbidden." Instead of doing this, you refer me to illogical inferences that J. B. Briney drew from certain scriptures more than fifty years ago, which inferences J. B. Briney repudiated not long after he drew them! Was J. B. Briney any more authoritative in 1869 than he is in 1922? Brother Smith, does this method of argumentation satisfy you? The question is, "What do the Scriptures actually and plainly teach on the subject?" and not, "What did J. B. Briney infer from the Scriptures in the days of his less mature thinking?"

According to your admission, I could, if I were disposed to beg the question, cite arguments from F. W. Smith in favor of instrumental music in worship, but that would not get us anywhere. You changed your mind on the subject, and so did I, as we both had a right to do; but these changes do not affect the merits of the question at issue. I have not said that I am ashamed of those old arguments, as you have said in regard to yours, for I am not. Indeed, I am rather glad that I made them, for they have furnished a kind of refuge for the opponents of instrumental music in the worship when they found themselves unable to find support in the Scriptures!—It is rather a source of pleasure to me that some of my brethren, whom I love, can find some comfort in my cast-off clothes! "A little fun now and then," etc. Again I call for the chapter and verse in which instrumental music in worship is "clearly forbidden."

You ask what has become of those scriptures from which I inferred a half century ago that instrumental music in worship is disallowed. They are still in the Book, thank the Lord; but my mind has changed its attitude to them, and I have come to see them in their true light. In turn, I might ask what has become of the scriptures from which once you inferred that instrumental music in worship is allowable, but that would be child's play. If we are to have a discussion on the subject, let it be upon the merits of the question. However, in addressing you my note, I did not expect to provoke a newspaper discussion. My thought was that possibly two brethren loving each other as we do, and having the utmost confidence in each other's integrity, as we have, might possibly, through a private investigation, reach common ground—a consummation devoutly to be desired. Kindly permit me to say that your suggestion that the matter appear in the Christian Standard is out of order for two reasons. In the first place, the question was not raised in the Standard and that journal is in no way responsible for it. In the second place, I am not in the office of the Standard and have no voice in shaping its policy, and I am quite sure it would not consent under the circumstances to carry the discussion.

As a friend, I admire the adroitness of your attempt to put me in the affirmative on the question. You positively asserted that instrumental music in worship is "plainly forbidden" in the Scriptures. To that assertion I took exception, and that is the only issue between us at present. If we thresh that out, and you then desire to discuss my affirmative position on the music problem, well and good. But in the present issue you are in the affirmative, and I again call for the passage in the word of God that "plainly forbids" the use of instrumental music in the worship.

In view of the fact that you published my private note without my consent, and offered criticisms upon it, I am satisfied that your sense of fairness will prompt you to let the readers of the Gospel Advocate see this communication.

Thanking you for your kind words concerning myself, and for the Christian spirit in which you wrote, I remain,

Most fraternally yours,

J. B. BRINEY.

With all due respect to my brother, I am wholly unable to see that my request was "out of order," as he says, for any reason at all, much less for "two reasons." The question to which I replied was "raised" by one of the editors of the Standard; and while it was not done through the columns of the Standard, it comes in bad grace, it seems to me, for that same editor to say, "I am quite sure it would not consent under the circumstances to carry the discussion." Why not? The Standard charges the opponents of instrumental music in Christian worship with not being willing to investigate the subject, but our brother here shows that the alleged unwillingness to investigate the subject is on the other side. Brother Briney complains of my publishing what he calls his "private" note without his consent; but the note was not marked "private," and as it pertained to a published statement of mine, I thought he wished a public reply to his question. I shall now attend to our brother's reply.

1. As I before conceded, the New Testament does not contain a single passage that says in so many words, "Thou shalt not have instrumental music in Christian worship," and neither does it contain a single passage that says in so many words, "Thou shalt not baptize an infant," and yet Brother Briney has been teaching all his ministerial life that infant baptism is "clearly forbidden" by the New Testament. Now, in all candor and fairness, I ask him to give us "chapter and verse" where it is "clearly forbidden," or to tell us how it is otherwise clearly forbidden, and I kindly, yet firmly, remind our brother that he must either meet this demand or show by his refusal that there was no point in his demand for "chapter and verse" forbidding instrumental music. Which horn of the dilemma will he take? I maintain that when the New Testament tells us what kind of people to baptize—viz., believers—that all other kinds are "clearly forbidden." I also maintain that when a Jew was told to offer a sheep to God, that any other kind of an animal was "clearly forbidden," and that, too, by the very passage of scripture that told him to offer a sheep. Now, let Brother Briney tell us how he makes it out that infant baptism is "forbidden," and how the command to offer a sheep would forbid offering any other kind of an animal. I respectfully insist that he tell us. Brother Briney has shown us in what has been published that to add "water" to the bread and wine in the Lord's Supper would vitiate and make void that holy institution, and he will not now dissent from that position. Why? Is it because he finds "chapter and verse" with a clearly expressed "Thou shalt not add water to the bread and wine?" Not if his life depended upon it; and yet he holds that the New Testament "clearly forbids" such a practice. I insist that he tell us how the New Testament "clearly forbids" adding water to the bread and wine. Is our brother's position against the adding of "water" to the bread and wine one of the "illogical inferences" that J. B. Briney drew from certain scriptures more than fifty years ago? If not, why contend that precisely the same law of interpretation and course of reasoning regarding the kind of music to be offered to God in praise is an "illogical inference drawn from certain passages of scriptures?"

2. There is the width of the heavens between the sources of the former arguments that Brother Briney and I made on the instrumental-music question. I argued for it without any scriptures to support my contention other than the Old Testament, not having any proper conception of the difference between the old and the new covenants and the relation of the blood of Christ to Christian worship, while Brother Briney supported his contention against such music in Christian worship with what thousands of clear-thinking people regard as one of the most scriptural and logical arrays of facts and arguments ever drawn from the New Testament on any subject. If he could produce one-tenth of as clear, strong, and scriptural arguments in favor of such music in the worship of God as he did fifty years ago against it, I would cease my opposition to it. It was such facts and arguments as Brother Briney produced fifty years ago that opened my eyes and converted me to my present position, and I frankly say that I much prefer his "cast-off clothes" to the new suit he now wears. Brother Briney tells us that his "mind has changed its attitude to" those scriptures in which he once saw "with the clearness of a sunbeam" that instrumental music in Christian worship was "sinful per se." Now, he will confer an everlasting favor on multiplied thousands of people by showing that those same scriptures or any other scriptures authorize instrumental music in Christian worship. Brother Briney wrote fifty years ago the following: "Now, the New Testament Scriptures are just as silent upon the 'accompaniment' as upon infant baptism." Now, what I, with many others, wish to know from him is, since he claims that the New Testament has broken its silence regarding the "instrumental accompaniment" and now clearly authorizes it in Christian worship, where and how does it do so?

3. I regret that Brother Briney failed to answer the questions I put to him, and I respectfully insist that he give them attention. Here they are: (1) When God commanded a Jew to offer a sheep, did that forbid offering a cow? (2) Is the burning of incense in Christian worship forbidden? If so, how? (3) Is not everything not included in Christian worship excluded? Brother Briney himself has opened the way for these questions, and he must answer them, or I think we shall not be at a loss to know the reason why he does not. As a controversialist, Brother Briney, when on the right side of a question, has, in my judgment, few equals and no superiors. I have followed his pen for more than thirty years, and that pen has been of great help to me. I love him for much that he has done, and pray that his last days may be peaceful and undisturbed.

[We think that the Christian Standard should give the above space in its columns, as Brother Briney is one of its editors.—H. Leo. B.]

The Gospel Advocate Company.

BY H. LEO B.

Attention is called again to the Gospel Advocate Company. The company publishes the Gospel Advocate, Bible-school helps, song books, religious books, tracts, etc.

The Gospel Advocate should be in every Christian home. Its influence for good cannot be estimated. It is free from all unpleasant personalities and full of good, wholesome instruction. It is a benediction to a family and a source of inspiration to every member who will read it. There are homes that it has visited weekly for more than forty years. The fathers and mothers of these homes will tell you that it has helped them train their children "in the chastening and admonition of the Lord." The sons and daughters of these homes, who are now fathers and mothers, will testify that the Gospel Advocate, next to the Bible, has impressed them with many lessons of piety and reverence for God's word. What a mistake to refuse to let it visit your home and bless your family!

"Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons" can be had from this office now at $1.25; the former cost was $2. Every teacher should have one.

All kinds of Bibles and Testaments are handled by this company. Each member of the family ought to have a Bible. There is personal responsibility on each member of the family; each must study God's word for himself. Each member owning his own Bible is like each one owning his own clothes—it develops individuality.

This company publishes a number of good song books. The "Christian Hymns," both new and old is a standard. Other song books are compared to it and their merits rated by the "Christian Hymns." Every congregation should have enough song books to give each member one, and especially each visitor one. It increases interest in the song service. Try it, and watch the results.

Many splendid books are published and handled at this office. Good, religious books should be kept in each home. They have a refining influence on the young. Their educational value cannot be overestimated. The Gospel Advocate Company would like to help you educate your family by introducing good books to your library. "Evenings with the Bible" is a fine book to develop piety and spirituality, as well as very instructive. "The People's New Testament with Notes" is very helpful to Bible students. Here is a list that should be in every home. How many of them have you?

"Gospel Sermons," by T. W. Brents.

"Sermons," by J. W. McGarvey.

"A New Commentary on Acts of the Apostles," by McGarvey.

"Cruden's Concordance" (complete).

"Lands of the Bible," by McGarvey.

"Eunice Loyd," by R. N. Moody.

"Salvation from Sin," by D. Lipscomb.

"Letters and Sermons of T. B. Larimore."

"Travels in Bible Lands," by A. T. Ritchie.

"Seventy Years in Dixie," by F. D. Srygley.

"Larimore and His Boys," by Srygley.

"The Gospel Preacher," by B. Franklin.

"Bible Reading," by Isaac Errett.

"The Querist's Drawer," by Errett.

"The Glorious Gospel," by Adeock.

"Patriotic Illustrations for Public Speakers," by Brown.

Many others too numerous to mention can be had by writing the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Honesty.

BY J. C. M'Q.

I am glad to have the following from S. R. Drake:

Columbus Junction, Iowa, July 31, 1922.—Dear Brother McQuiddy: In your editorial on "Honesty," in the last issue of the Gospel Advocate, the last two sentences of third paragraph, you state: "The difference is not in the word, but in the soil. God himself does not expect to make saints out of dishonest people." Don't you think that the nature of the soil can be changed by the preaching of the gospel? Or, to put the question in another form, don't you think that the New Testament teaches that dishonest people can be made honest and become Christians by preaching and teaching the gospel? Does not the great apostle say: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel of Christ; for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek?" (Rom. 1: 16.)

Yours sincerely, S. R. DRAKE.

I preach the gospel to people who are dishonest to make them honest. When they become honest, they may soon be led to Christ; but so long as they remain dishonest, there is no hope for them.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

Taking the Measure.

By M. O. DALEY.

"Measure the temple of God, and the altar, and them that worship therein." (Rev. 11: 1.)

In making measurements when accuracy is necessary, we select a measure both reliable and standard. When the measuring is faithfully performed with this kind of a measure, a remeasurement of the same kind will not be dangerous.

That "the temple" and "the altar" are the church and the worship will, I think, be freely admitted by all. That being so, there can be no trouble in identifying the "worshippers." Then, in view of the perilous times to come, indicated by the "holy city being trodden down by the Gentiles forty and two months," the command to "measure" is both timely and fortunate. This is further evidenced by the fact that the "witnesses" were to be assaulted, overcome, and killed. When this is done, it is but natural that the "pattern" be lost and bogus claims set up in which various standards of measurements are brought forward.

When I was a boy, I was the proud possessor of a five-dollar gold coin. There came a fake fortune hunter to our community claiming to be able to locate lost treasure by the use of a "divining rod," and to prove his claims my gold coin was substituted for the supposed lost treasure. It was placed on the ground a few feet away and the "rod" set to work. It was a success. Then it was moved further away and in a different direction. Again it was a success. I was told to move it again, and to move it away off. By this time my youthful credulity was beginning to grow cloudy and visions of more lost treasures began to appear; so, instead of placing the coin at the indicated place, I slipped it in my pocket and returned to near the operator to await developments. This time, as before, it was a success. It worked perfectly toward the spot where the coin was supposed to be; but not once did it "point" toward my pocket, where the coin really was. Since then I have looked on "fakers" with a bit of suspicion.

The Lord took time by the forelock, by pocketing the coin, knowing that when the witnesses were killed there would come a swarm of religious fakers, who with their theological divining rods would locate the "treasure" wherever fancy or imagination dictated.

Every denomination in the land has measured itself and has proved to its entire satisfaction its claims of divine origin, and all using different measuring reeds, different methods of measuring, but all succeed in establishing their identity. They set their "rods" to work, and back through the theological jungles of human speculation they go, "feeling" that they know exactly where the coin is. On they go, "wattling twigs of every kind together," proving their identity by the "succession reed." After they emerge from the jungles, they locate the "spot"—some during the personal ministry of Christ (no definite time), some in the days of John the Baptist, some in Abraham's day, and some in Adam's time. No wonder there is confusion in the world. Well has Dr. Robinson said: "Uninterrupted succession is a specious lure, a snare set by sophistry into which all religious parties have fallen. They have wattled twigs of every kind to fill up remote chasms. It is of service only to those who regulate their faith and practice by tradition, and for their use was first invented." And as truly as Dr. Vedder declared: "If every church of Christ on earth were destroyed to-day, a body of believers could to-morrow establish a true church of Christ by regulating their faith and practice by the word of God, and they would have the only succession worth having." The church of Christ is an established institution, with fixed principles and a definite time of beginning, or else John could not have made it. Its worship is clearly defined and divinely arranged. Its membership is composed of men and women who stand for a principle and know it. Had the work of "measuring" been delayed till now and the effort made to measure modern Christendom, it would prove as difficult as measuring a family of mosquitos in a Florida swamp, because it possesses as much tangibility and stability as they.

There are to-day only two classes of men on earth that are denied the privilege of church fellowship by modern Christendom, if they will, after their own notion, profess to love God. They are the atheist and the idiot. Pity should open the door to the idiot, for policy will sooner or later open to the atheist.

"Arise, and measure the temple"—modern Christendom! Impossible! "Measure the temple of God" in its entirety. Why? In order that we may recognize it. There are many contenders. Regardless of that, we can, and must, locate the true church.

The church had a definite beginning. "And are built upon the foundation of the apostles and prophets, Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone." You cannot safely build a house on a foundation that has not strength enough to sustain it. If it is weak or "sandy," the whole effort results in failure. (Matt. 7.)

You cannot build, fix firmly, establish, an institution "on" a man or men unless these men have the power to enforce the principles or teachings upon which the institution is builded. The church was not built on the apostles as irresponsible or powerless men, but on men of power and authority. "Jesus Christ himself being the chief corner stone"—chiefest in power and authority, giving strength to both apostles and prophets, and cementing into one harmonious whole an age-lasting foundation for the church.

"Christ was declared to be the Son of God with power by his resurrection from the dead." His Sonship and power were not established until he arose from the grave.

To the apostles he said: "Ye shall receive power after that the Holy Ghost has come upon you." This was after his resurrection, and after he had declared that "all power in heaven and on earth" had been given to him. During his personal ministry he did not have this power, but submitted to the dictation of others. This was also true of the apostles. Therefore, no institution could have been "built" (fixed firmly) on them. But when his claims were thoroughly established, and the apostles received power to "bind on earth," which they did on Pentecost, then, and not till then, could they uphold and maintain the church as its foundation.

This tried and tested foundation was presented to the world for the first time in the world's history on the day of Pentecost, and we find the church on it. This church has the power within itself to grow, to perpetuate itself, through the seed of the kingdom, which is the word of God. These facts are clearly "pointed" out by the "measuring reed," but the united witness of the whole fake divining rod fraternity declare it to be untrue. How fortunate it is that John measured the "temple of God!"

In the perpetuating power of the church of Christ we see it standing out in bold contrast to the churches of men. There is not a man-made church on earth that has the power within itself to perpetuate itself. Proof? Here it is: As a whole, they declare that you have to be a member of God's family before you can enter the church. All in the family of God belongs to him. All in the church also belongs to him. When you take of his own and add it to his own, you end just where you began, and nothing is accomplished unless you increase the church at the expense of the family, and in that event the family would in time become exhausted, and there the perpetuity would cease. In either case, the reign of Christ is not extended. Right here the whole sectarian world has been "milling" round with their fake "rods" for ages, and many honest people believe they are locating the coin! I declare to you that in the matter of church perpetuation the fraternal orders of the day stand head and shoulders above all the man-made churches in the world.

Brother, the "temple of God" stands foursquare to the world. God had it measured and has given us the measurements, and will not modify or revise them. Men have added humanly devised "shed rooms" all around without and made it a "den of thieves" within. But "be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap."

Dissatisfaction with the Lord's measurements brought "the man of sin" into the temple, where he exalted himself above God and laid claim to the power that belongs to God (2 Thess. 2), and made measurements of his own and changed the laws of God (Dan. 8). He changed the law of induction into the church, as well as the worship of the church. Perhaps the greatest crime in the whole catalogue of religious crimes has been committed by those who have declared that only God's measuring reed can be used in measuring the church, and then have pronounced it wholly inadequate when it comes to measuring the worship and the worshipers.

"They that worship him must worship in spirit and in truth"—must be done honestly and as the truth directs. The truth never directed that instruments of music be brought into the worship, nor filled the house of God with fairs, festivals, and shows. As well might you do penance or count beads. Neither does it permit us to substitute a humanly devised baptism—be it sprinkling, pouring, or immersion—for the divinely appointed baptism which puts us into Christ and is "for the remission of sins;" nor does it allow infants to be brought where believers only are permitted. Obedience from the heart brings us to the blessing. So declares the divine "reed."

The worship is continuing "in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking of bread, and in prayers," with the heart attuned with the melodies of "spiritual songs" sung, not played.

John measured the church—not the "outer court"—and gave us the measurements, and Heaven has declared them perfect. "The man of sin" published from one end of the world to the other that the job was not completed, and proceeded to measure the court of the Gentiles—get all the world in the church—and then defied Heaven by holding that the dimensions of the church were incorrect, and changed them. His descendants are claiming hereditary powers and are carrying on in the same old way.

Brother, use the measuring reed freely on yourself. It will "point" you to the right church, and the right way into this church, and will lead you to worship aright. Do not allow yourself to think you can get into the right church in the wrong way, or stay in the right church and worship in the wrong way. Those that offend will be gathered out. Everything is measured—the temple, the worship, and the worshipers—and will be measured again, and by the same "reed."

Measure yourself while corrections can be made. "To-day is the day of salvation." The Judge of the quick and the dead, in the long, long ago, hung over the door of the great judgment hall this sign, "No alterations made here," and it still hangs there.

Personal Notes.

C. R. Nichol baptized three in Winfield, Ala.

F. L. Young closed a great meeting in Roxton, Texas.

F. L. Berry closed at Elkhart, Texas, with six baptized.

Hulon Briley closed in Swift, Texas, with eight baptisms.

T. W. Phillips closed in Bynum, Texas, with eleven baptized.

J. B. Nelson baptized one in a meeting in De Leon, Texas.

Lee P. Mansfield closed in Hickory, Okla., without visible results.

W. E. Morgan closed in Weldon, Texas, with seventeen baptisms.

J. E. Weims closed a meeting in Martinsville, Texas, with six baptisms.

F. J. Berry closed a meeting in Huntsville, Texas, with fifteen baptisms.

J. Will Henley has within the past few weeks baptized fifty-one persons.

L. S. White baptized six at the regular service in Sherman, Texas, recently.

C. W. Ing closed in Prairie Hill, Texas, with seven baptisms and one restoration.

Foy E. Wallace closed a meeting in Killeen, Texas, with twenty-seven additions—seventeen baptisms.

Cled E. Wallace closed in Cedar Hill, Texas, with eight baptized. In a recent meeting in Lancaster, Texas, he baptized two.

Tice Elkins closed a mission meeting at the end of Lakeview car line, Fort Worth, Texas. He is now at Hamilton, Texas.

Ira Y. Rice and his brother, John M. Rice, are in an interesting meeting at Sweetwater, Texas, with three baptisms to date.

Elbert L. Cochran, Pilot Point, Texas, has identified himself with the "progressives." I am pained to learn of this departure on his part.

Clyde Utley closed in McComb, Okla., with twenty-five baptisms and seven restorations. McComb is the home of W. Hammit, a faithful preacher.

It is with regret we learn of the death of E. H. Rogers. He was one of the most fruitful men in the early work in Texas, loved for his faithfulness as well as ability in the work of the Lord. Thousands were taught the truth by him.

Thomas E. Milholland, supported by the church at Vernon, Texas, closed a meeting at Guyer, Texas, near Vernon, with twenty baptisms. He reports that the seed had been sown by Tillet S. Teddlie while teaching a school at that place.

M. L. Vaughn reports a debate in Abilene, Texas, between A. R. Lawrence and Noah Cowan. Noah Cowan is opposed to the use of literature and the arranging of those who attend Bible study on Sunday into groups according to their ability to understand, and teaches that all who thus teach should be withdrawn from. He is willing to make an oral comment and let the people study his statement; but to make a written comment, and have the people examine his written statement—no, no, such must not be!

Batsell Baxter, Abilene, Texas: "On the first Lord's day in September I am to begin a meeting with the church at Berea, in Sumner County, Tenn. This is my first visit to Tennessee since I graduated from the Nashville Bible School in 1911. The meeting at Berea touches a tender chord in my heart. It was here and at the Berea south of Franklin, and some other places, that I began to preach as a schoolboy. I remember the names and the faces of many in these congregations. Some of the scenes are almost as vivid now as they were eleven years ago when I left Tennessee. I remember with gratitude New Shops and Twelfth Avenue, in Nashville, also Lancaster and Lynchburg and others. I hope some time to visit them all."

Commending the Young People.

"I have examined The Young People with care, and find it to be just such a paper as is truly needed all over the country among the churches of Christ. You have my best wishes and fervent prayer for a wide circulation." (P. B. May.)

Current Comment

Union or Disunion.

The strenuous efforts of late years on the part of a radical element in our church for Christian union, on nearly any old terms, opposed by another element of the church who must dictate all of the terms of union, have up to date resulted in more disunion than union.

It is to be noticed that none of the other great denominations are rending their garments, or falling apart, over the question of Christian union. In fact, no one of them is making any serious efforts toward union, but each pursuing the even tenor of its way, careful to preserve its own autonomy. Now, this brings the question of union down to "brass tacks." Suppose, for the sake of discussion, that should we as a church agree unanimously on Christian union (which is rather a rank supposition just now), who are we to unite with? Where are we to go? And what are we to do when we get there? None of the other denominations would take us except on their own confession of faith. We would be like the fellow that was all dressed up and no place to go.—A Layman, Webster Grove, Mo.

The above excerpt is taken from the Christian-Evangelist. It presents the obstacles which are in the way of uniting all the churches from a "layman's" point of view. This writer claims that the efforts toward union have "resulted in more disunion than union." What is the matter? There seems to be no "adhesion" between the churches of denominationalism, and even the "cohesion" in the different religious bodies is greatly disturbed by every effort to federate the churches. Yet division is sinful. So long as the churches press their separate claims division will be fostered; so long as each denomination fills its mission and functions as a denomination the unholy strife of the present age will continue. The very spirit and nature of denominationalism is divisive. Take away the party spirit, and the churches cease to function. "The body apart from the spirit is dead."

The emphasis of the New Testament teaching is placed on the union of God's people. There is no uncertain sound in the voice of the Holy Spirit as expressed through the New Testament. All of God's people are closely united by virtue of a common birth; all have the "one God" as "Father of all." All of his people have been "born anew," "born of water and the Spirit," and belong "to the general assembly and church of the first-born." They have been "called in one hope" into "one body" with "one faith," animated with "one Spirit," and have "one Lord" to rule in and over them. "Whom are we to unite with?" Let all be united with Christ, and then the union of the Lord's people will be effected. Submission to the authority of the "one Lord" unites all, and then each must give "diligence to keep the unity of the Spirit in the bond of peace." (Eph. 4: 3.)

✻ ✻ ✻

Baptists Help Us—We Help Them.

We need the Baptist Church very much, and do not see how we could get along without it. They are not only helped by the Methodists, but they help the Methodists. We have no objection to their mode of baptism, if we could only set them straight on the theory of baptism. They really magnify it above the sacrament of the Lord's Supper. They make no fetish of the Lord's Supper as to form or method. The laymen distribute the elements. But in baptism the method is regarded as vital, and even baptizers must be in an imaginary line of succession of immersionists. We are convinced that the Baptist peculiarity in this respect is not necessary either to their usefulness or strength.—Wesleyan Christian Advocate.

A denominational reciprocity; a coöperation between two very distinct religious bodies; a mutual interchange of pious influences. This is the situation described in the above quotation.

It is strange that two denominational churches differing so widely and fundamentally as the Methodist Church and the Baptist Church could be worth very much to each other. They differ in name, in church polity, in claims to church origin, and in their relation to baptism—its mode, subject of, and design of the same. There is a wide difference between them on the doctrine of apostasy. In fact, there are very few things upon which they agree. Yet the Wesleyan Christian Advocate says: "We need the Baptist Church very much, and do not see how we could get along without it." Well, why does the Methodist Church need the Baptist Church? If the claims of each are true, each got along fine for many centuries without the other. Why cannot each get along now without the other? What has brought about a federation of interests? When did this interdependence arise?

They may need each other, but one thing is sure—the church of our Lord does not need them. How do I know that it does not? The church of God, whose description and function we have given in the New Testament, existed for many centuries before any of the present-day denominations were organized. The church of God filled its mission and functioned in the redemption of the human race long before man organized any church. It filled its mission then without denominations, and could fill its mission to-day better if society were not afflicted with so many man-made churches. Let us return to New Testament order and have "one body, and one Spirit, even as also ye are called in one hope of your calling; one Lord, one faith, one baptism, one God and Father of all." (Eph. 4: 4-6.)

✻ ✻ ✻

Respect for Law.

Everybody is ready to sustain the law he likes. That is not in the proper sense respect for law and order. The test of respect for law is where the law is upheld even though it hurts.—Charles E. Hughes, Secretary of State.

Mr. Hughes is a profound statesman; he has been a close student of law and its application for many years. He has a legal mind, and his varied experience has given him a training that abundantly prepares him to be a judge of law and obedience to it. He correctly states a truth not well recognized by the average citizen when he says "the test of respect for law is where the law is upheld even though it hurts." It should be impressed upon all that obedience to a law or a command is proper respect for it.

This is not only true in respect to the laws of state, but it is also true in regard to God's law and commands. The test of loyalty to God and respect for his commands is obedience, prompt and faithful. Jesus gave this test of love: "If ye love me, ye will keep my commandments." (John 14: 15.) No one can claim to respect God or his law and at the same time refuse or neglect to do his will. Mr. Hughes expresses a general principle. It belongs to all constituted authority. Law is the expression of the will and authority of the person or body that expresses it. Respect for God's law is respect for God; disrespect for God's word or law is disrespect for God. Even church people in general need to learn the lesson that "to obey is better" than to profess, and "to hearken" to God's commandments is better than to pose as a church member.

"Everybody is ready to sustain the law he likes" in religion—that is, everybody is ready to do that which pleases himself in religious activities. All things in the Bible which do not please the average person are rejected or ignored. All must learn "to please God" and not man. "The test of respect" for God and the principles of Christianity may be expressed in the language of the prophet: "To do justly, and to love kindness, and to walk humbly with thy God." (Mic. 6: 8.)

Why It Is a Good Family Medicine

From its splendid formula, its superb blood purifying qualities, its prompt tonic effects, and above all its unequalled record in practical use by three generations,—Hood's Sarsaparilla is the favorite medicine in many homes. If you need a good family medicine why not get the best, that which has been known to the people of America for half a century—that made your mother and grandmothers well and that is reasonably sure to do you good? You know Hood's. Get it today.

TETTERINE

Clears Baby's Skin

and drives off the rash and pimples. Harmless, Soothing, Fragrant.

50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Eucapine Salve

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Inflammation)

Is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

New York City Church of Christ
239 West Sixty-Ninth Street

Services: 2:30 P.M., Bible Study: 3:15 P.M., Preaching and Communion.

E. E. Shoulders, Evangelist, 699 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Phone, Flatbush 6857.

CANCER HOSPITAL. Intra-venous treatment for cancer. Operation. Radium and X-Ray unnecessary. Booklet giving full information upon request. Box 2127, ATLANTA, GA.

A Council of War Regarding Your Mission.

BY E. S. JELLEY.

Last night I dreamed I was in the great World War, doing exploits against the Germans. Then I awoke to the fact that I am engaged in a greater world war, in which, in place of killing men, we help them to secure eternal life.

There are many points of similarity between physical and spiritual warfare. For instance, until Britain awoke to the fact that it must make sacrifices and send supplies to its army in the field, it was able to do little. Then Lloyd George said that they "must rain shells forty days and forty nights" on the enemy, and the next news was that the British troops had cheered for Lloyd George from trenches which they had captured with the aid of his new munitions.

Let us, however, drop military language and look at some plain facts in regard to the work in India. Considerable time, money, energy, and even precious life has been spent by the churches for this work, and the results have been remarkable indeed (some twenty-four hundred baptisms in ten years). The results have been the cause of wonder, surprise, and even envy upon the part of other missions—missions which spend money by the thousands without securing such results. Still, after all, energy and self-devotion cannot do everything, and wise men realize that it is wisest and best to provide something in the way of equipment.

A word to the loyal supporters of the great commission is sufficient; so I shall not make an appeal, but just a suggestion that the brethren in America could economize in time, energy, health, and even in life itself, by providing their missionaries with a sanitary place in which to dwell.

I do not wish to add one cent to the burden of the churches who are so nobly supporting us; but there are hundreds of individuals and churches who have thought best in times past to go to the expense of sending us to India, or to contribute considerably to the work before my support was taken over by Nashville congregations. Now, if each one of these should send us ten dollars for the mission house, it would supply us with a place for us and our children, where we could hope to be reasonably free from epidemics, etc., and have a school and meetinghouse. One such contribution, I say, would do all this. However, many are not able, and some, owing to the defection of certain other missionaries, may not be so inclined; so those who are able and willing might do a little more.

Remember, we are, I greatly regret to say, the sole representatives of the "loyal" churches in America among India's 317,000,000. There are hundreds of Indians now thanking God for you, that you have led them into the light. It is always best, when you have invested money in an enterprise, to try to make it a success.

SORES

BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

Take a box with you

If you have headache, backache, toothache, neuralgia, rheumatism, sciatica, you'll be surprised at the quick relief

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will give you.

A package of these pills in your pocket or in your shopping bag may save you hours of suffering.

Buy them of your Druggist.

No One Need Buy Cuticura Before He Tries Free Samples

Soap, Ointment, Talcum, 25c. everywhere. Samples free of Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden, Mass.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

CHILDLESS HOMES MADE HAPPY

Presence of Little Ones a Great Blessing

Four Interesting Letters

Cortland, N. Y.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound because I was weak and wanted to become strong and have a child. My husband read about it in the 'Cortland Standard' and thought it might help me. It certainly did for I now have a lovely boy fifteen months old who weighs forty pounds. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to my friends and you can certainly use my testimonial in your little books and in the newspapers, as it might help to make some other childless home happy by the presence of little ones as it has done mine."—Mrs. CLAUDE P. CANFIELD, 10 Salisbury St., Cortland, N. Y.

Married Three Years

Brooklyn, N. Y.—"I am certainly very thankful to you for your Vegetable Compound. I was married three years and did not have a child. My husband had often heard of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and he made me take it and I became the mother of the healthiest little boy I know. When my friends tell me their bad feelings the first thing I say is, 'Take the Vegetable Compound.' I am willing for you to use these facts as a testimonial."—Mrs. ANTOINETTE MARANO, 113 Nostrand Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.

St. Louis, Mo.—"I want to tell you what Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound did for me seven years ago. I was run down and had a weakness such as women often have. I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and after being married sixteen years became the mother of a sweet little girl. I now have four lovely children—three fine boys and the little girl six years old. I had longed for children all the while and wept many a day and envied every woman with a child. I was 36 years old when my first baby was born. I recommend Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound to any woman who is ailing with female weakness."—Mrs. J. NAUMANN, 1517 Benton St., St. Louis, Mo.

Was Weak and Run Down

St. Louis, Mo.—"My mother took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound when I was a girl, and when I was troubled with cramps I took it, and later when I married I again took it to make me strong as the doctor said I was weak and run down and could not have children. I took it and got along fine and now I have three girls. So you know why I keep the Compound in the house. I am a well woman and do my work and sewing too."—Mrs. JULIUS HARTMAN, 2501 W. Dodier St., St. Louis, Mo.

Field Reports

Miami, Fla., August 1.—Showers of blessings came our way on the night of July 25. The brethren and sisters of the Miami church gave us a delightful surprise shower of flowers, money, and good things to eat—a token of esteem and appreciation for my work in evangelization of the city and suburbs. These expressions, together with the many words of encouragement, inspire me to press on. Churches like the one in Miami will never die. After a prayer and a presentation address by Brother Aruna Clark and words of appreciation by the writer, and the refreshments served by the ladies, all went to their homes happy.—J. O. Barnes.

McMinnville, Tenn., August 1.—I have had the pleasure of assisting at four different places in meetings in July. My first meeting was at Theta, in Maury County, with two baptisms. My second meeting was at Water Valley, in the same county, with four baptisms and one reclaimed, and closed with a fine interest and a promise to hold the meeting next year. My third meeting, at Dibrell, in Warren County, resulted in three baptisms and one reclaimed, and closed with a great interest and with a promise to hold the annual meeting next year. My fourth meeting, at Arlington, in the same county, is two days old, with four confessions and a houseful of people.—F. C. Sowell.

Springfield, Mo., July 30.—I am closing one of the best tent meetings the brethren have ever held in Springfield. There have been eighteen additions to date. Five of this number came out of the apostate Christian Church, three or four from the First Baptist Church, and the others from the world. I am glad to see the fight continue against digression. It has gone to seed in this country. I met a lady recently, who is a member of one of the Christian churches here, who was "accepted on her sprinkling." From what I can see, these people here in Springfield are at the head of the procession when it comes to departures from the word of God; and yet, with all these abominations practiced by this people, some preachers in Tennessee want such seed sown, "which will interpret to the world the idea and principles of the Restoration Movement." These people, from a political standpoint, would be "high-handed traitors." Brethren, keep up the fight. The work here with the Broadway and Madison Church is fine. There have been near fifty added since our coming last Christmas.—J. W. Brents.

Jackson, Miss., August 1.—The meeting at Duck Hill, Miss., closed on July 28. The meeting in many respects was one of the best meetings I ever held. There were no additions to the little band at Duck Hill, but four women who had been worshipping with the Adventists were shown

Loss of Appetite is commonly gradual; one dish after another is set aside. It is one of the first indications that the system is running down, and there is nothing better for it than Hood's Sarsaparilla—a good tonic medicine.

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good
WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY
WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by
Washington Manufacturing Company
Nashville, Tennessee

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 15, 1910
HOLDS SHIRT DOWN
SOX UP
DON'T TEND LASS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL
STYLE A

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL
STYLE B

Shir-Gar
PAT. FEB. 15, 1910
NO BULGING OF
SHIRT—NO MORE
VAIN VISE VING

$362.50 Commission On One Order

We offer a very attractive commission proposition to responsible men selling our line of guaranteed monuments, in Marble and Granite. On one deal our Mr. Fuller of North Carolina, made $362.50; Mr. Bryan of West Virginia, $206.25; Mr. Duncan, of Tennessee, $193.25; Mr. Willard, of Illinois, $131.25. These commissions have all been earned within the last 60 days. We have many other agents making from $200.00 to $400.00 per month.

Our monuments are well finished. No trouble to sell.
Write for full particulars and confidential contract.

National Marble & Granite Corporation
Dept. A., BALL GROUND, GA.

the error of that connection, and, as they moved to Memphis, Tenn., during the meeting, made the necessary arrangements to become identified with the church of Christ there. I preached to the largest crowds in this meeting we have had at any place since I came to take this work. The other religious peoples of the town came almost every service, and there was some very significant comment on my preaching by them and their preachers. I feel that a great amount of good was done and that another meeting there will mean many additions to the one body. We had a good service in Jackson last Lord's day. The brethren here are awake and willing to do all they can, and they are to be commended. Many good meetings have been held in the Mississippi field this season, and we hope and pray for many more. I have been asked why I do not report more often to the papers. I am so busy with meetings, both day and night, with visits and correspondence, that I do not take time to do it. Please note the change of my address from 1268 North West Street to 520 North President Street.—Charles P. Hardin.

Pine Heights Sanitarium, 707 Georgia Avenue, North Augusta, S. C., August 1.—I have been thrown in a place where I have been unable to find any brethren with whom to meet on the first day of the week. I have been in this place since April 22, 1922. I met with the digressive people a few times only. I wrote through the Gospel Advocate for help in getting some one to preach the gospel here, but failed to get any response. I have rented a building in which to meet. We meet on the first day of the week to worship at 3 P.M. We are having preaching at this time also at 8 P.M. each evening. I am doing the preaching to the best of my ability. I have written to Brother Playl Hall, in Atlanta, Ga., to come and help us, if it is possible for him to get here at this time. I mean to battle on until I get help. My wife and I are the only members we know of thus far. We meet in the name of the Lord, and we are assured that he meets with us, because it is two meeting in his name. Our crowds have been small so far, but seem to be increasing each evening. We just got started last Lord's day. If any Christian feels it is his or her duty to send an offering to help pay the expenses of this work, we will appreciate it if you will do so at once. I hope Brother Hall will be with us soon. I hope with his help we will be able to get a little band to meeting here on the first day of each week to worship according to Christ's teachings. I ordered one dozen song books from the Gospel Advocate Company, which I received promptly, but still owe for them. I hope and pray that the followers of Christ throughout the country will help us in this work, that we may be able to do a great and lasting good. The devil has a very strong hold here. I felt the need of work being done here until I could not lie idle any more, so I stepped out and went to work. Interest seems to be growing as rapidly as could be expected. I have a box in the building where we meet for questions to be dropped in, and I have announced that any one has the privilege of asking any scriptural question he may wish to ask, and I will try to answer it with the Bible. It causes me to feel that some one is interested when they begin to make suggestions and ask questions. I will write more of the meeting later. I wish to ask all who send donations to send them to James O. Rail, 707 Georgia Avenue, North Augusta, S. C. The meeting is being conducted in Augusta, Ga., which is the larger part of the city. I ask the prayers of every Christian.—James O. Rail.

Not Feeling Much Better.

Many are not being benefited by the summer vacation as they should be. Notwithstanding much outdoor life, they are little, if any, stronger now than they were. The tan on their faces is darker and makes them look healthier, but it is only a mask. They are still nervous, easily tired, upset by trifles, and they do not eat nor sleep well.

What they need is what tones the nerves, perfects digestion, creates an appetite, and makes sleep refreshing; in other words, they should take Hood's Sarsaparilla. Pupils, teachers, and others generally will find the chief purpose of the vacation best subserved by this great medicine which "builds up the whole system."

If a cathartic or laxative is needed, Hood's Pills will give entire satisfaction. It is difficult to conceive of anything better for biliousness or constipation.

Dodson's Liver Tone

Killing Calomel Sale

Don't sicken or salivate yourself or paralyze your sensitive liver by taking calomel, which is quicksilver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it regulates the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel without making you sick. Fifteen million bottles sold

THE B. H. STIEF JEWELRY CO.

We are preparing our mailing list for our New Catalogue. If you are interested in a free copy, write us.

B. H. STIEF JEWELRY CO.
CHURCH STREET
Nashville, Tennessee

MAKE BIG MONEY

Selling Your Friends

Call on a few friends, hotels, or hospitals, each day at spare time, and sell them a can of Primo Cleanser for the toilet and general cleansing. Send 25c for salesman's outfit, including a one-pound can of Primo, literature, and instructions.
THE PRIMO CO., 2617 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE HENDERSON, TENNESSEE

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING AND GIRLS' DORMITORY

A standard junior college maintaining the following departments: Grammar School, High School, Collegiate, Bible, Business, Shorthand, Typewriting, Instrumental Music, Voice, Vocal Music, Expression, etc. New $75,000.00 Girls' Home. Strong Faculty. Christian atmosphere. Reasonable rates. Write for catalog.

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE HENDERSON, TENNESSEE

GIRLS! LEMONS

BLEACH FRECKLES

AND WHITEN SKIN

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan bleach and complexion whitener.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day, and see how freckles and blemishes bleach out, and how clear, soft, and rosy-white the skin becomes.

To Reduce Fever Relieve Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

Use

Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely safe to use as it does not depress the heart even in extreme cases of debility or weak heart, neurasthenia or anaemia. Manufactured by a formula in use by leading physicians generally. 19 parts pure Aspirin, 1 part pure Caffeine, 4 parts excipient, in convenient tablet form. 35c per package at your druggists or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

JACOBS & COMPANY
SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENTS
PRINTERS
DESIGNERS
PHOTO ENGRAVERS
ELECTROTYPERS
Catalogues —
— a Specialty —
HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S. C.

Obituaries

Certain.

Sister Certain was to be laid to rest at the cemetery near Bethlehem Church, in Wilson County, on the day of my appointment at that place; so I was requested to attend to the funeral exercises at the church at 4 P.M. There were many at the funeral. These are memoranda handed me: "Tommie May Swift died on July 2, 1922, aged twenty-eight years, ten months, and twenty-nine days. She obeyed the gospel on August 26, 1908, when fifteen years old. She was married to Robert Certain on July 27, 1913." I was told that she was a faithful, true Christian. Her father, mother, husband, and three small children, with other near relatives, survive her. May they all have the comforts of the gospel of Christ.

JAMES E. SCOBAY.

Ray.

The writer of this knew R. C. Ray for more than a half century, and has seen him under pressure of the burdens of life many times and in many ways. Brother Ray met these tests with unwavering courage, true to the principles of righteousness. He made no compromise with error, yet was charitable toward those who differed with him in opinion. In about the year 1876 Brother Ray enlisted as a teacher in the cause of his Savior, following it at intervals for a number of years, at the same time rearing a large family of devoted children. For a number of years he had been an invalid and partially blind. In sadness and grief we take leave of our dear brother, and realize that he is safe from the burdens of life. Brother Ray died on June 12, 1922, aged seventy-eight years.

E. B. CURD.

Lamb.

Little Charleine, infant daughter of Mr. and Mrs. A. B. Lamb, departed this life on Sunday afternoon, June 25, 1922. Her stay on earth was brief, but long enough to endear her to all those who knew her. She was a few days past thirteen months old when the Lord saw fit to clip the brittle thread of life. We all loved her dearly; and while loving hands could keep her here no longer, we rejoice in the words of the apostle: "All things work together for good to them that love God. I would say to the broken-hearted father and mother: Take courage; remember, you have a precious darling in heaven, where the chain will never again be broken. In the presence of a large gathering of friends and loved ones, Brother J. S. Westbrook delivered a splendid talk, after which the little body was laid to rest in the family burying ground at Link, Tenn.

MABEL BUEBIS.

Royse.

Mary Jane, daughter of William and Susanna Blakeney, was born in Vermillion County, Ill., on February 9, 1853. She was married to A. J. Royse on March 26, 1871. To this union

JELL-O

Ice Cream Powder

ICE CREAM THAT MOTHER MAKES GOES FAST

UP to very recent times home-made ice cream was not the real thing at all. Now when mother (or the maid or the cook) makes ice cream she uses one package of Jell-O Ice Cream Powder and one quart of rich milk for half a gallon of ice cream—and she never fails to have "good luck."

Jell-O Ice Cream Powder is sold by all grocers, two packages for 25 cents.

The Genesee Pure Food Company—Le Roy, N. Y.

DANDRUFF

QUICKLY DISAPPEARS WHEN

Tetterine

Is Applied. Fragrant and Soothing.
60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, back-aches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting CAPUDINE

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

SOLD 50 YEARS
A FINE GENERAL TONIC

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid
of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots. Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion. Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Renew your health
by purifying your system with

The purified and refined
calomel tablets that are free
from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel
and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c
and 35c packages, bearing above trade-mark.

LITTLE PAPPAS CAFE

Rooms, Bakery, Lunch. Open all hours.
Frank Tant, Manager of Men's Service Station Barber Shop. Private booths for self-shaving. Showers and Tub Baths in the basement. 212 Fourth Avenue, North.

TETTERINE

Makes hair beautiful, free from dandruff, and keeps the scalp healthy.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-
TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

For Nervousness

Take HORSFORD'S
ACID PHOSPHATE

Half a teaspoonful in half a tumbler of water relieves nervous tension, brings peaceful rest. Refreshes and restores vitality to tired folks. All druggists.

Many Ills Due To Catarrh

The mucous membranes throughout the body are subject to catarrhal congestion resulting in many serious complications.

PE-RU-NA

Well Known and Reliable

Coughs, colds, nasal catarrh, stomach and bowel troubles among the most common diseases due to catarrhal conditions.

A very dependable remedy after protracted sickness, the grip or Spanish Flu.

PE-RU-NA is a good medicine to have on hand for emergencies.

Tablets or Liquid Sold Everywhere
IN USE FIFTY YEARS

were born eleven children, four of which preceded her in death. The remaining children and faithful husband cared for her every want during her lingering illness, which she so patiently bore. On July 6, 1922, she peacefully fell asleep at her home in Covington, Ind., at the age of sixty-nine years. She leaves a broken-hearted husband and seven loving children.
She obeyed the gospel call early in life, being baptized by Raleigh Martin. She was a noble Christian, a faithful wife, a loving mother, and a kind friend and neighbor, always ready to aid in any possible way she could, and was loved by all who knew her. The funeral services were to her liking—brief and simple, devoid of show. The scripture was read by Charles T. Cook, of Clinton, Ind., and the sermon was delivered by William Ellmore. Burial took place in the Upper Mound, or Rogers cemetery.

ADA ROMB.

Callen.

Brother J. R. Callen was born near Fort Deposit, Ala., on September 11,
1860; was married to Miss Emma V.
Cates on January 25, 1883; obeyed the gospel on July 14, 1883, being baptized by Brother Tom Butler; and his spirit returned to God on July 23, 1922, at 8:30 P.M. He leaves, to mourn his loss, a wife, three sons, four daughters, nine grandchildren, a mother, six sisters, two brothers, many nieces and nephews, and a multitude of friends.
In the presence of a large crowd with sorrowing hearts and tear-dimmed eyes, Brother C. A. Buffington spoke words of comfort and exhortation to the bereaved ones, after which the body was laid to rest in the family burying ground. Brother Callen was a useful citizen, a true Christian, and for thirty-nine years a faithful soldier of the cross. His last day on this earth was the first day of the week.
He was present to worship God as it is written in his word, after which he returned home and spent the remainder of the day with his family. His death was a great shock to the entire community. Surely by his godly life seed was sown that will bear the peaceable fruits of righteousness.

R. C. TAYLOR.

Benard.

The death of Mary E. Benard, oldest member of the church of Christ at San Angelo, Texas, marks the passing of a pioneer wife and mother and a saintly character. She was born in North Carolina on September 16, 1838, and was partially reared in Virginia, and came to Texas in her early girlhood. She was married to Thomas Benard on March 18, 1862. She was the mother of seven children and reared two stepsons. All survive her but one stepson. Sister Benard obeyed the gospel in 1862, being baptized by Brother Polly. She and her husband were among the charter members of the church of Christ at Rollins, Dallas County. She had a sweet smile at all times and was ever ready with words of comfort when needed, ready to share our pleasures and never shirking duty. As long as strength would permit, she was faithfully in her place at the church. She had been a constant reader of the Gospel Advocate since the first issue was published.

She never really grew old in heart and spirit. She died on April 16, 1922.
Services at home were conducted by Brother T. M. Carney, after which her remains were taken to Rollins and tenderly laid to rest. The funeral was conducted by Brother J. B. Nelson.

JOSEPHINE MCGLOSSON.

ASPIRIN

Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package, which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents.
Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacidester of Salicylicacid.

Law School

Cumberland University

The Course of Study, more than 10,000 pages, covers the entire field of American law. It is completed in ONE COLLEGE YEAR with degree LL.B. It is taught by daily assignments of textbook lessons with classroom recitations and MOOT COURT practice. For catalogue, address LAW SCHOOL, Box 272, Lebanon, Tennessee.

Harmless, purely vegetable, infants' and
Children's Regulator, formula on every label.
Guaranteed non-narcotic, non-alcoholic.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator

Children grow healthy and free from colic, diarrhoea, flatulency, constipation and other trouble if given it at teething time.
Safe, pleasant—always brings remarkable and gratifying results.

At All
Druggists

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

THOUGHT FOR OTHERS

Our noblest deeds are those that are inspired by unselfish thought for others. Life insurance is a practical system, scientifically worked out, making it possible for man's thought for others to extend far beyond his lifetime.

Life insurance enables one to put by a relatively small amount annually to guarantee food, clothes, and education to children, and provision for his wife and other dependent relatives, should he come to an early death.

Life insurance not only protects widows and orphans, but it may be used as a savings system with which to accumulate funds for education, as in our Thrift Policies for Children and Young People.

It is used by business women to build up endowments or annuities for old age.

The cash value on any policy may be used by the insured for old-age protection, in the event he outlives the period of his family's dependence upon him.

Last, and not least, life insurance is necessary to provide cash with which to pay all debts, funeral expenses, doctors' bills, etc. Death comes to all. It is unfair to leave the burden of expense to others.

THE COST IS NOT GREAT

All values considered, life insurance is the least expensive thing we buy. To illustrate:

A man of twenty may invest $68.85 a year with us and secure our Special Ordinary Life Policy for $5,000.00. At the end of twenty years he will have paid in $1,377.00, if the policy does not become a claim before that time.

At the end of twenty years the policy will have a cash value of $845.00, which subtracted from $1,377.00, the amount paid in, leaves $532.00 net cost for twenty years, or $26.60 a year for $5,000.00 protection.

RATES AND VALUES AT OTHER AGES

Age When Taken	Total Premium on $5,000.00	Cash Value in 20 Years on $5,000.00	Actual Cost a Year on $5,000.00
20	$ 68.85	$ 845.00	$ 26.60
25	77.40	1,030.00	25.90
30	88.40	1,255.00	25.65
35	102.75	1,510.00	27.25
40	121.80	1,790.00	32.30
45	147.55	2,080.00	43.55
50	182.95	2,365.00	64.70
55	231.70	2,635.00	99.95
60	299.60	2,920.00	153.00

The habit of looking ahead and saving day by day, which is developed with the life-insurance system, is the foundation of thrift and character.

A. M. BURTON, President

THE LIFE AND CASUALTY INSURANCE COMPANY OF TENNESSEE

Organized 1903

HOME OFFICE, NASHVILLE

Cash Capital, $500,000.00

Gospel Advocate

Celebrating
Life and Casualty Bids

Volume LXIV. No. 33.

NASHVILLE, TENN., AUGUST 17, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Why Was the Christian Religion Established in the World?	769
OUR CONTRIBUTORS	771
Not a Hoof Left Behind—The Supreme Gift—Studies in Christian Stewardship—A Call to the Thoughtful and Unprejudiced—Notes from West Tennessee—"The Golden Rule."
EVANGELISTIC NOTES	776
HOME READING	778
CURRENT COMMENT	779
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT	780
EDITORIAL	782
The Victory Over Self—The First Epistle to the Thessalonians—Diotrephes, Ancient and Modern.
Old Rock Creek Church	785
Reply to O. E. Payne's Open Letter to A. O. Colley, "Instrumental Music Again"	786
An Interesting Report	787
FIELD REPORTS	788
AMONG THE COLORED FOLKS	789
Back Home from Japan	790
To the Friends of the Gospel Advocate	791
The Way of the Cross—Mission Meeting at Quitman, Ark.	792

WHY WAS THE CHRISTIAN RELIGION ESTABLISHED IN THE WORLD?

[The following is an extract from a sermon preached by P. S. Fall at Frankfort, Ky., in 1842. It was "delivered at the opening of the house of worship erected by the Disciples of Jesus Christ in Frankfort, Ky."—H. Leo B.]

Keeping in view the principle on which the Christian revelation has proceeded, and on which it has been established—namely, that an example is necessary to the comprehension of its truths—we can have no difficulty in understanding this point.

What, for example, is the primary idea of the Christian religion respecting the divine Being? "To us there is but one God." The unity of God, then, is the first lesson taught us respecting him in this religion. This idea it is necessary to impress on the hearts of our fellow beings, for a correct knowledge of God is essential to their piety and humanity. It will not do to teach them that there are "gods many, and lords many." The God whom the world long tried to find is revealed by the Christian religion.

Now, how is this to be done? By the church, of course. But by what means? By telling the world that there is but one God? This is not enough. No general or primary truth can be, by any means, so well impressed on the mind of a learner as by permitting that truth to force itself upon him as the result of previous observation. The most natural way—God's way of teaching—is to present to man a number of particular facts that, from the study of them, may infer the law that governs them. And thus we arrive at the primary truth.

Precisely on this plan is the world to be taught that there is but one God, and it is to be taught by a contemplation of the church. No man has seen God at any time; but we have seen, and felt, and handled, and listened to the Word of Life; and we can now see the church which, it is declared, partakes of the divine nature.

Still we are not at the point. It may be asked: "How is the church to impress this idea upon the world, if not by what it says? Can it do this in any other way?" Certainly; By its own unity.

Suppose an individual to have heard that a religion has been introduced into a part of the world, that is destined to make all who yield to it happy, in the only true sense of that word, in this world, and in another, which that religion alone describes. He cannot but feel great interest in this communication, both because he has found that he never yet was happy, and because he is ignorant of what follows that event which all men dread—namely, death.

He starts in search of some one who can give him information on the subject. He arrives at a city, and inquires where he can learn what he desires to know. He finds the people apparently unconcerned about the matter, but is carelessly directed to some "house of worship," which he accordingly enters. He beholds a man who calls himself the servant of God—the minister of Heaven; who tells his hearers that God has sent to the world a message by him, and that he has qualified him to deliver that message, which he proceeds to unfold. In doing this a certain number of "essential doctrines," say five, are propounded, and reference is made to a small book which he has sworn to teach, as embodying the system of truth contained in the Bible.

Not only does the inquirer learn this, but he sees a certain routine performed, and hears that Book called the Bible extolled; but he is told that the book the minister has sworn to teach contains an epitome of what the Bible teaches.

Not feeling perfectly satisfied, he makes further inquiries, and is pointed to another "place of worship," where he can learn all he wishes. He enters. There, likewise, he is told that the speaker is "called, qualified, commissioned, and sent forth" by God to teach what he hears. But the very doctrines that were taught in the other house are flatly denied in this, and are opposed by five other "essential doctrines." The Bible is still extolled; but another book, quite different from the former, is said to contain "views of what the Bible teaches." He observes, too, that the rites in this house differ from those in the other.

His mind is now more unsettled than ever, and he approaches a third place of worship. What now does he see and hear? While the leader professes still to be sent of God, he declares another set of doctrines, performs another set of rites, and claims for both the homage of all men, as did the others.

Suppose that, in like manner, this inquirer were to enter the houses of all the religious denominations, and were to witness all the rites, to listen to all the doctrines, and to examine all the claims, made upon all men, for submission to each system in its turn. What would be his conclusion? Could he possibly decide that all those teachers were sent by one God—that all the people worshiped the same God? I do not see how he could. And yet the impressions made on his mind, if any, are not what the religious world, in its present state, would make. He certainly would decide that there are "gods many, and lords many," and that he would be no better off by embracing any one of these systems than he is under the influence of his own.

But suppose him to enter an assembly and to hear the Bible read; its truths permitted to make their own impression—its writers to speak for themselves. Were he to see those truths exemplified in the deportment of the worshippers and to behold the spirit by which all were animated, to be the spirit of that book; were he to enter any number of places of worship, and to witness in all the same acts, to see in all the same spirit, and to hear in all the same truths; were he all over the land to pursue his inquiries, to find things everywhere the same—would he not exclaim: "The unity of these people in word, in actions, and in feeling, convinces me that there is but one God; that he speaks by them, and that here am I to find what I have long sought!"

I shall not now dilate upon that system of unities, if I may so speak, of which Christianity consists. I only intend to show that if the church would convince the world that there is but one God, she must herself be one. She is left on earth to propagate the knowledge of the Lord—the responsibility of it is thrown upon her; and how can she answer for the impression she makes upon those who behold her unhallowed schisms? Is it possible to persuade a thinking man that the God of the Calvinist is the God of the Arminian? In character, in sentiment, in government, in practice, in feeling, they differ wide as the poles. One loves all men; the other, only a part. One gave his Son to die for the human race; the other, for the elect. One sends his Spirit into the heart of every rational creature; the other confines it to those whom he selected in eternity as the bride of his Son. Their differences are endless, and wholly and irreconcilably separate them, as the revelations they have made have done the two great schools of divinity.

Now I do not undertake to say which of these is the God the Bible reveals. I neither approve nor condemn either Calvinism or Arminianism or the advocates of either. But one thing must be clear to all thinking persons. These two Gods, so different in every point, cannot be one and the same. These systems, therefore, present to the world two Gods; and the same remark will apply to all the variant systems of the day. Each one describes and defends a separate God.

Another feature of the God of the Bible is love. Now, how can the church declare this divine perfection to the world? It will not do even to mention this attribute of the divine Being, while the members of the church do not love one another. By the church, it must not be forgotten, is intended the religious mass, and not any denomination exclusively.

Does the church, then, now declare to the world that "God is love?" It cannot be by its conduct that it teaches this; for the members of the church seem to try how far they can separate themselves, and to work themselves up to the highest possible degree of difference and animosity.

In the prayer the Messiah offered before his crucifixion, he asked the Father that the disciples might be one, that the world might believe on him; and he likewise said to them: "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye have love one to another."

But it is not my object to dwell on this theme. Let me say only, if the church would exhibit the love of God, it must be by its own love.

The Bible reveals the justice of God. Now, how is the church to teach this? Of course, by being perfectly just itself, in all things, in all relations. And does any one "branch" of it treat another justly?

The mercy of God is also everywhere displayed in the Bible. And the church must not only "do justice," but it must "love mercy."

The truthfulness of the church is to convince the world that God speaks the truth. And thus every moral attribute of the divine Being may be presented to the contemplation of our associates.

It has already been seen that our own characters are formed by the views we take of the character of God. We cannot study his character, under the influence of his fear, without being assimilated to him. If, therefore, we are in all things the opposite of what we ought to be, we certainly do not know God or think upon him. If divisions, hatred, strife, emulation, injustice, falsehood, unmercifulness, instead of their opposites, distinguish the church, how can the church exhibit the perfections of God to mankind?

We have now ascertained the ends had in view in giving the Christian religion to man, and have seen that it was intended to exhibit the character of God and of human nature, under proper influences, to the world. We have shown that the religion was introduced to give this knowledge, and was established that the church might propagate it.

It now becomes proper to inquire if Christianity, as it is now beheld by an impartial inquirer, answers these ends. And if this does not, what will?

God in Nature.

Pluck not the flower in meadow or bower,
Growing so sweetly in rainfall and dew;
Let it bloom on, where perchance it has grown.
God, through its beauty, is smiling to you.

Harm not the birds that in pairs and in herds
Are mating and nesting the whole summer through;
In the music that floats from their delicate throats,
God, through their gladness, is singing to you.

Disturb not the quiet that comes with the night
As evening descends, and day bids adieu.
In the hush and the still, the weird and the thrill,
God, through the twilight, is whispering to you.

Observe, then, all nature, each plant and each creature,
Voicing a language so simple and true;
Requiring no learning, but just the discerning
That God, through all nature, is speaking to you.

—J. D. Karns, in Exchange.

TRACTS AND BOOKLETS.

The following tracts and booklets can be had from the Gospel Advocate Company:

The Establishment of the Kingdom (L. R. Sewell)05
Modern Geology Rebuked (I. N. Jones)05
Faith that Qualifies for Baptism (Durst-McQuiddy)10
Instrumental Music in the Service of God (D. Lipscomb)	Free
Theological Grub Ax (W. L. Butler)10
Church Organization (E. G. Sewell)	Free
Walking by Faith (Kurfees)05
Sincerity Seeking the Way to Heaven (B. Franklin)05
Review of John B. Cowden's Tract on Instrumental Music in the Church (Kurfees)	Free
Searching the Scriptures (T. Fanning)10
Christian Eldership (Scobey)10
Is Salvation Conditional? (Dalton-Burnett)15
Doctrine of Sanctification (Carr)10
Bible Doctrine of Sanctification (Elam)10
Stark-Warlick Debate50
Theological Debate (Brents-Herod)25
Out of Darkness into Light (Z. T. Winfree)05
Philip Worthy (Debet)25
Evidence of Pardon (Holt)25
God's Foolishness vs. Man's Wisdom (McPherson)	Free
A Review of J. E. McHaffey's Tract on Baptism (Smith)15
The Place and Purpose of Baptism (Floyd)	Free
Methods of Work and Worship in the Church (Scobey)10
Christian Unity (D. Lipscomb) 64 pages10
Worship (McQuiddy)	Free
The New Birth (Waldron)10
The New Name (Kidwell)10

Many other tracts are in the office for distribution. They are good for use in protracted meetings.
Address Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Our Contributors

Not a Hoof Left Behind.

[The following sermon was delivered by N. B. Hardeman at Dickson, Tenn., June 29, and was reported by Miss Grace Dawson.]

I want to express to the people especially to-night my appreciation in general for their response to this engagement, and especially on behalf of the congregation of Dickson to those of you that have come from Nashville by special train. I am sure that I can speak the sentiment of all this congregation in extending to you a most hearty welcome and in having made the best preparations possible for your comfort and for your pleasure. Personally, I cannot begin to express the appreciation that I have for the kindness and the courtesy and the very fine compliment that your special trip and and visit implies.

In Ex. 10: 26 there is found this statement: "Our cattle also shall go with us; there shall not a hoof be left behind; for thereof must we take to serve the Lord our God; and we know not with what we must serve the Lord, until we come thither." Gathering from that verse the subject in its shortest form to-night would be this: "There shall not a hoof be left behind." Bible students will recall that this is the language of Moses addressed to Pharaoh. It embodies some interesting history that I think serves as a setting and a background from which there may be a splendid lesson drawn.

God Almighty called unto Abraham 1921 years before Christ, bidding him to leave Ur of Chaldea, loose himself from his country and from his kindred, and to march out unto a land concerning which he would afterwards show him. There was demonstrated wonderful faith on the part of Abraham in that he responded to the Lord's call. For two hundred and fifteen years he, together with Isaac and with Jacob, journeyed about from place to place in the land of promise, down into the land of Egypt, back up to Mesopotamia, and so on; and in the year 1706 B.C., the posterity of Jacob, about seventy and five souls in number, descended into the land of Egypt, there to dwell for another two hundred and fifteen years, bringing the chronology down to 1491, just four hundred and thirty years from the call to Abraham and from the promise of God to him. During that time this seventy and five people had increased to between two and three million souls.

Every student of God's word appreciates, I think, the servitude and the hardships to which they were subjected. They served under taskmasters and overseers of the Egyptians, and by their servitude the coffers of the great nation of Egypt overflowed with the richest treasures known to any people on earth. It has been said that these Israelites engaged largely in the building of the pyramids along the great river Nile; that the masterpieces of architecture that are there still found are but evidences of the gigantic work wrought by them while in captivity and in bondage.

During the latter part of their stay the record tells us that Moses was born. He was seen to be a goodly child, and, as you know, was hid away for three months, after which time spent in concealment his mother and his sister set him adrift in a little ark that had been made. Pharaoh's daughter, having gone down to the river, as an act of worship, largely, discovered this vessel floating among the flags there, had it brought unto herself, and adopted Moses as her son, with his mother to be the nurse thereof. Moses grew and developed, became trained and learned, equipped in all manner of literature and Egyptian lore, until by and by, at the age of forty years, it came into his mind, he having already decided to suffer affliction with the people of God, rather than enjoy the pleasures of sin for a season, that he should be the leader and deliverer of his people from bondage; and hence, you remember, under a mistaken idea, Moses started out by physical warfare to put the matter to a test and to extricate his people from the servitude to which they had long since been subjected. When finally his rash act was known unto the authorities, and a decree went forth that was contrary to him, Moses fled eastward, and dwelt in the land of Midian, and there stayed, securing greater schooling, greater education, and greater preparation for the wonderful task that was still before him. In that country he married Zipporah, the daughter of Reuel, unto whom various sons were born; and when he stood fourscore years old—namely, eighty—he decided that he would go back from watching his father-in-law's flock and see how it was with his people. And as he journeyed on toward the land of Egypt he came unto the wilderness country, and there was a strange thing that attracted his attention. In passing along he saw a bush on fire, and yet, by careful observation, it was not consumed. Moses decided he would turn aside to see what all that meant, and the Lord told him to put off his shoes from his feet, "for the ground whereon thou standest is holy ground;" and then he made known himself unto Moses, and gave him a wonderful charge, that he should go back and deliver that mighty host of people out of the bondage to which they had been long since subjected. At first Moses made all manner of complaint. The Lord said: "As an evidence of the genuineness of my appearance, it shall be that when you bring them out of bondage, I will appear unto thee in this very mount and communicate there with you." But Moses said: "If I go back unto the Israelites, and especially unto the Egyptians, and tell them I am thus authorized, the first question they ask me will be: 'Who was it, Moses, that thus spake unto thee and gave you this authority?' What, then, Lord, shall I say to them?" And Jehovah thundered down to Moses in these terms: "You tell them that I AM hath sent you." I take it that the reason God thus said and so describes himself was because he knew that the Egyptians called their god "I Am;" and, "if you can tell them that that character has authorized you, it will give more prestige and more force to your demand."

As Moses thus was convinced on that point, he next thought about this objection. "Now," he said, "Lord, when I go to tell them that the great I AM hath sent me, why, they won't believe it, and they will question all about it. Now, what evidence shall I have to convince them?" And the Lord said: "Moses, what is that in thine hand?" And he said: "It is a rod." "Now cast it on the ground." Moses did so, and it became a serpent, and he fled from before it. Then the Lord said: "Moses, put forth thine hand and take it by the tail." There is a wonderful test of Moses' faith again. I have often wondered what some of us would have done under a crisis like unto that, and we ought to be grateful, I think, as I am sure Moses was, that the Lord told him to take it by the tail rather than by the head; for, if I had been there, and had had to obey that commandment, I would have been thankful it was put in the mildest form possible. Moses then did so, and the serpent became a rod back in his hand.

Now the Lord said: "Moses, if they will not believe after that, then do this—put your hand in your bosom." Moses did so, and upon taking it out it was as leprous as the snow. "Now put it back into your bosom," he said. Having done it the second time, he took it out, and—lo!—it was as his flesh aforetime.

"Now," he said, "if they will not believe that, then here is a third thing, and the third miracle—you take water up out of the river and pour it upon the dry land, and it shall become blood."

Well, Moses thought that surely those three miracles would be convincing in their nature; and now bear it in mind that the purpose of these miraculous performances was that people might be led to believe that God had sent Moses and that a supernatural power was back of him.

Having been thoroughly satisfied in that line, Moses serves as a model for many of us. He was not without excuse still, and he said: "Now, Lord, I never was much of a speaker. I have always been slow of speech and dull of presentation of the thoughts that may come into my mind; hence, I just cannot go and tell the people of the things that are required." And the Lord rebuked Moses. "Who made thy mouth, and the giver of thy tongue?" That objection was finally overcome by saying: "Aaron, thy brother, three years thy senior, may be your speaker. Now, I shall be a God to thee, thou shalt be a mouth to Aaron, and he shall speak unto the people." Thus were all difficulties removed and all objections finally overcome. Moses and Aaron were ready to hear the charge, and here was the commandment: "Now both of you go into the presence of Pharaoh, one of you eighty years old and the other eighty and three, and you make of Pharaoh this request—namely: 'Let these people go three days' journey in the wilderness, that they may worship God and serve him.' And the Lord said: "I am sure that Pharaoh will not agree to do this; but you make the request, and I will show him wonders in heaven above, signs on the earth beneath, and I will get me glory and honor out of Pharaoh because of this request."

Now, as a further setting, I might just as well suggest it now. I think, without any question, friends, that Pharaoh in this wonderful type and glorious picture represents the devil; that the land of Egypt and bondage to which they were subjected represents the bondage of sin; that the Red Sea separating Egypt from the Sinaitic peninsula represents the line of separation between sin and entrance into the family of God; that Moses, their great leader, represents Jesus the Christ; that Aaron, the speaker of the occasion, represents none other than the apostles; and that they were headed toward the land that overflowed with milk and honey, as you and I to-night, followers of the Lord, are looking toward the heavenly Canaan in the paradise of God beyond. Now, with all that before us, get the picture as it is. Moses and Aaron stand in the presence of Pharaoh, the king of the greatest country on earth, and they make a very simple request of him in these words: "Let these people, I pray thee, go three days' journey into the wilderness, that we may worship God and serve him."

When that was first presented, Pharaoh said: "Who is thy God that hath made such a request? I know him not." And instead of yielding in the least part to the proposition, his heart was hardened, and he sent word to his taskmasters, saying: "These people are idle: they are out of employment; and, therefore, they are talking about worshipping and serving some other god. So, then, you impose upon them extra duties and inflict upon them greater burdens. Instead of furnishing the straw out of which their bricks have been made, withhold that; reduce not the number per day, but make them, in addition, go and gather their own straw with which to perform their daily task." And when the lash was cracked over their backs, so to speak, and thus the added burden was imposed, the Israelites, likewise Moses, grew a little bit skeptical and doubtful regarding the God of their being. Instead of their burdens being lightened and deliverance smiling upon them, salvation coming their way, their burdens were heavier. They went to Moses and told him that all that had resulted was that their burdens had been made heavier, their work harder, and, therefore, to take the matter unto the Lord. Moses went to God in prayer and interceded in behalf of the people. The Lord met it by suggesting: "I will bring to pass certain plagues and demonstrations that will ultimately condemn Pharaoh and make him glad to let you go from him."

I want to submit to you, ladies and gentlemen, that I am not wholly a critic of Pharaoh, either, for from every standard on earth he had his grounds. In the first place, I can appreciate his refusal, for that request was against Pharaoh's financial interest. For a king to let go three million people that were bringing day by day into his coffers, already overflowing, immense treasures, is against the ambition and the cupidity of any king on earth; and not only that, but it does not look well, from the king's point of view, for three million slaves to march out from under his authority and to reduce the population of his country over which he reigned. It is against his pride, it is against his politics, it is against his financial interest, the financial interest of the Egyptian monarchy, to yield unto this demand, and no reason for it outside the recognition of the power of God divine, and a consciousness that a higher thing is back of the request and of the demand.

Moses pressed the matter, and said: "Let us go three days' journey, that we may worship God on the other side of the Red Sea, out into the midst of the wilderness." Pharaoh objected, and then it was that God inflicted the first four plagues. The waters of the river, of the pools, and of the ponds all about were turned to blood. There was no water for the people to drink, short of their digging new wells and slaking their thirst therefrom.

After that Moses was commanded by Jehovah to wave his wand out over the waters of the river Nile, and, as the result, frogs came forth galore, so much so that they covered all the land; they entered into all the homes of the Egyptians; the frogs got not only in their sitting rooms, but the Bible says in their bedchambers. They were so thick that they got into their ovens, and when they went to make up biscuits they were therein—frogs on every hand; and these frogs galore ran over the land of Egypt, until by and by Pharaoh sent to Moses, and said: "Entreat the Lord in our behalf, that all these be removed." And thus as Pharaoh would relent, and show evidences somewhat of penitence, God's hand stayed the plague, and thus the remedy was brought about. The record shows that they gathered up the frogs, they piled them up in heaps, and the land fairly stank with the stench and the effluvia thereof.

After that there was a great plague of lice that came from the dust of the earth, until every home in all the land of Egypt throughout the length and breadth thereof was filled therewith; and when Pharaoh still hardened his heart and refused to let the Israelites go, swarms of flies were sent upon the Egyptians, such a swarm as Egypt had never seen before, nor should ever see thereafter.

When these four plagues were visited out, one following in direct track of the other, old Pharaoh, with all of his magicians, sorcerers, enchanters, and his soothsayers having failed on the last of these to make any kind of a show, because the record says they could not duplicate them, finally thought that he had better give some recognition.

(To be continued.)

The Supreme Gift.

BY LOULA MAY ADRISSON.

Paul in his great symphony clearly portrays in all its beauty and simplicity the greatest Christian attribute—love.

The greatest thing in earth below is love;
The greatest thing the angels know is love;
The greatest grace in God's own heart is love;
In earth and sky, all things above, is love, wonderful love.

It matters not if one "speak with the tongues of men and of angels," if he can utter prophecies and understand all mysteries; it matters not if he is wise as the wisest philosopher, if he has the greatest faith possible, and if he gives freely of his substance, frequents the house of the Lord, and makes the supreme sacrifice; yet, if he has not love, it shall profit him nothing.

And what are the constituents of this important and desirable attribute? "Love suffereth long, and is kind." Love is not critical; it does not "use a microscope to detect the faults of others," or delight in their discovery. It bears with and forgives others. It has been said that one is not required to forgive unless his forgiveness is asked, but the tenor of the Bible refutes this idea. Jesus said: "Love your enemies, and pray for them that persecute you." There are things one could not forgive for any human's sake, yet, when we think of Jesus' sublime utterance on the cross, "Father, forgive them," we are enabled to forgive for his sake. Life is too brief and uncertain, too full of beauty and poetry, yet too full of sorrow and sadness, for us to nurse anger or harbor malice in our hearts. Sometimes the sense of an injury looms so big before our mental vision when viewed from the human side; but just turn to the spiritual side, view the affair in the light of God's word, in the light of eternity—look at it from every side—and oftentimes its littleness will become so apparent that our only desire is just to turn the thought of it loose and let the stream of time bear it swiftly away. One who is dominated by love can truly echo the sentiments of these lines:

I can good for evil give,
Though 'tis hard to human heart.
I can love as Jesus says,
Those who unloving art;
Love, and o'er and o'er forgive,
Freely, all for Jesus.

Kindness is benevolence and sympathy. A great writer says: "No debtor is so superbly honorable as kindness; no debtor so abundantly repays us." Love does not find displeasure in the excellence of others. There are a few rare, beautiful souls who seem to know not envy, but with the majority of people this is a weak link in the golden chain of love. Many, too, have suffered from the ill effects of other people's envy. Love is not boastful or egotistical, knowing that through the valley of humility the mount of exaltation is reached. We are told: "In lowliness of mind let each esteem others better than themselves." I do not think the service rendered by a proud heart—one of the "big I and little you" type—could be acceptable to God. He who hates a proud look would surely be displeased with a proud heart. And "why should the spirit of mortal be proud?" God created man and made him all that he is, and has given him all that he has, even to the breath of life.

Love is not rude or boisterous; it is polite and courteous to every one; it is truly refined. Love respects the rights of others; it does not greedily seek all for itself, unwilling for others to have an equal amount. It is not wrong to seek what is rightfully ours, but love "seeketh not its own" at the expense of another. Love "is not provoked." Situations that are vexatious will arise where it seems impossible not to be provoked, but we should guard against the tendency to become vexed too easily. Love looks for and finds the good in all; it magnifies their virtues and minimizes their faults. It thinks as little evil as possible.

Love finds no pleasure in the wrongdoings of others, but its delight is in righteousness and in the truth. Love is not spiteful and does not seek retaliation; it leaves vengeance in the hands of the Lord. It bears troubles and trials with a stout heart and courageous spirit, knowing that "whom the Lord loveth he chasteneth," and knowing that his way ultimately leads into the green pastures of plenty, beside the still waters of peace. Love, believing all that God has spoken, waits and hopes for the fulfillment of his words. Love endures temptations, also persecutions if necessary, for Christ's sake; it endures to the end.

"Love therefore is the fulfillment of the law." Love is the essence of Christianity; it is the passport into that city of gold; it is the breath of Heaven.

Many of us have read and meditated upon Henry Drummond's great work on this subject. Therein he portrays love in its broadest and deepest analysis. Perhaps many of us have laid the book aside with a sigh of longing and regret—of longing to attain the heights depicted there; of regret because we feel it is impossible to do so. But, as the poet says:

There are no noble heights thou canst not climb,
Nor triumphs win in time's futurity,
If only thou wilt not halt nor faint,
But lean upon the staff of God's security.

This kind of love is not perfected in a day or a year; but if it requires a lifetime to achieve this crowning glory of the Christian's character, it is well worth the effort. We shall be the happier here, and shall be prepared to enter that haven of love that lies beyond life's transient days.

"Studies in Christian Stewardship."

BY H. LEO B.

This is a small treatise by Traverce Harrison on Christian giving. It places special emphasis on the scriptural principle that God holds the title of ownership to all things; that "the earth is the Lord's, and the fullness thereof; the world, and they that dwell therein." (Ps. 24: 1.) The author very clearly shows that Christians are only trustees or stewards over the things of God; that all are to render "unto God the things that are God's." (Matt. 22: 21.) He stresses the system of "tithing" as the way to render unto God the things of God. "Setting aside one-tenth of our income to sustain his cause was evidently God's original plan," says the author, and that it "has never been abrogated." This statement is too dogmatic. The New Testament does not give any command or sanction to the "tithing system," but encourages all to cultivate a liberal heart and to give as they have been prospered. (See 1 Cor. 16: 1, 2.) The giving should not be "grudgingly, or of necessity; for God loveth a cheerful giver." (2 Cor. 9: 7.) There is much in the book to be commended. It is especially adapted for use in Bible classes. Suggestive questions are placed at the close of each chapter.

The book is published by the Standard Publishing Company, Cincinnati, Ohio. It can be had for forty cents at the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

SERMON OUTLINES

A Book of One Hundred and Fifty New Sermon Outlines

Just the book for preachers, elders, deacons, Bible-class teachers, and others that take public part in church services.

The book has one hundred and fifty sermon outlines and a helpful supplement containing funeral texts, marriage ceremonies, forms for church letters, and Hedge's "Rules" for debate.

A good book to use in your Lord's-day services, prayer meetings, and young people's meetings. Let the leader announce the subject, hand slips of paper containing different sections of the outline to the members who are to take part in the next meeting, requesting them to make a talk or read the scriptural references on that section of the outline. Or, let the leader put the outline on the blackboard, omitting the scriptural references, then ask the congregation to supply the correct scriptural references at the next meeting, and give reasons why they selected these references.

Price, $1, postpaid. Address the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

A Call to the Thoughtful and Unprejudiced.

BY S. H. HALL.

It is a genuine pleasure to me to continue these articles concerning the Bible's place in the education of our children, our young men and women, and the fact that no child of God who has chosen school-teaching as his calling in life can establish a school of his own without giving the Bible a place in that school. I have asked some one to show me how a Christian could do this, and up to this date not one has even attempted to do so.

In a friendly discussion of this question with a most excellent man who is very much opposed to Bible schools and colleges as they now exist, and who is one of my best friends, in answering me on this point, he had the following to say: "There is nothing wrong in you or in any other Christian establishing a school of your own for the purpose of making a living out of your profession; and should you do this, you would be compelled [italics mine.—S. H. H.] to teach the Bible as one of the studies of that (your) school." And he admitted that I could have other Christians to coöperate with me in this good work. And perhaps one of the strongest in opposition to schools in which the Bible is taught says: "He proves a point about which there is little dispute." I am glad for men who oppose existing schools in which the Bible is taught to admit my point is established, is proven. But I am accused of fixing up some ideal school that does not exist in the universe and defending it, instead of taking some college with which I have no connection and defending that. Here I state again my position—viz.: Let it be understood now that I am not defending any school known to me in which the Bible is taught except that school with which I am personally connected, and just now I am not personally connected with any school commonly known as "Bible school" or "Bible college." Those who establish such schools must defend them, as they know better what they are doing than those not connected with them. I am granting the right to establish schools for the purpose of allowing the Bible its rightful place in the education of our sons and daughters. But I am defending only what I am doing as a Christian and would do were I out making school-teaching my calling in life. I would defend no local church of Christ except the one with which I stand personally connected, and, hence, for the scripturalness of which God will hold me to account, and even then I would not defend all the local church does unless I could succeed in getting it to do as I understand the Scriptures to teach. Many local churches go wrong, do things the Bible forbids, and fail to do what our Lord expects of them. This was true of local churches even in the days of the apostles. Some went very far wrong. But this does not prove it wrong to establish local churches. I think it has been said that some of the schools in which the Bible is taught are doing things they cannot defend. This may be true. But pointing to the mistake some school has made falls short the width of the heavens of proving it wrong to have schools in which the Bible is taught.

Now, I cannot see how any "thoughtful" and "unprejudiced" soul can fail to see my position as to existing schools in which the Bible is taught, some of which by name I have been challenged to defend. Such challenges sound "noisy" and "big." But follow me, as I am, with my whole soul, striving to point out a sore evil among us. And the "thoughtful" and "unprejudiced" will follow me and help me, and not strive to pull this study into something wholly unprofitable. Please get the following questions and facts:

1. My question was this: "Show me how a Christian who has chosen teaching as his calling in life can establish a school or college over which he has absolute control and leave the Bible out." A "thoughtful" and "unprejudiced" brother whom I love and who is opposed to what is commonly known as "Bible schools" says: "You would be compelled to teach the Bible as one of the studies" in that school. Another whom I do not know so well says: "He proves a point about which there is little dispute." But I am accused of "fixing up some ideal school that does not exist under the heavens." Since it is conceded that my point is proven, I judge that "ideal" here is used with the following thought which is given as one of its meanings: "Conceived as perfect, supremely excellent, or very desirable; as, ideal conduct, ideal home."

Now, look at the above squarely in the face and think a bit. Most certainly I have presented an ideal, and a scriptural ideal, by which those who have chosen teaching as their calling in life should be governed. Now, whether such a school exists in the universe or not is not the question. The question is this: Should not every school and college owned by Christians be just such a school or college? If not, why not? And if they do not exist, it is just because some of God's people living "under the sun" are not doing their duty. But among those who have so much to say against schools and colleges that now exist, I would judge there are some, at least, who have chosen teaching as their calling in life. Would it not be a greater blessing to the cause of Christ if they would bring into existence one of these ideal schools which it is admitted I have proven to be right, and in which to make it ideal the Bible would be compelled to go, than to do so much challenging for debates over some school to which you object? If Christ's cause you love, some constructive work we will see you doing.

2. But I have another question: Show me how any man who claims to be a Christian can consistently send his boy or girl away from home to some school or college without giving some thought to that boy's or girl's studying the Bible while in that school or college. It has been admitted over and over again that God has but two organizations on earth—viz., the home and the church. Am I right when I say that the education of our boys and girls stands vitally connected with the home life, and that the responsibility of the education of the children rests on the father and mother, except in those cases where the parents are taken by death and it falls upon the church to take the place of the father and mother? Am I right in saying that the Bible must take the lead, so far as books are concerned, in this education? What does the following mean? "Hear, O Israel: Jehovah our God is one Jehovah; and thou shalt love Jehovah thy God with all thy heart, and with all thy soul, and with all thy might. And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be upon thy heart; and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thy hand, and they shall be for frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the doorposts of thy house, and upon thy gates." (Deut. 6: 4-9.) I say again: What does this command mean to fathers and mothers? What does "bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord" mean? (Eph. 6: 4.) Does the Bible have an indispensable place in the education of our children? Most certainly it has.

Now tell me, I pray, how any soul who claims to be a Christian, and who is making Bible teaching a part of the home training while the child is at home, can consistently send that child to some school or college to finish his or her education and make no provision for a continuation of this Bible study? Is it not true that one of the greatest dangers that now confronts us is (to use a good word from our friend Moore) our "farming" our boys and girls out to schools in which infidelity is taught and where their faith in God and the Bible is ruined? Tell me again, I say:

How can we consistently turn a part of our work as parents into the hands of others, unless these others are Christians and will continue the Bible training that belongs to the home? The education of our children is a home duty, if you please.

If the point which it is admitted that I have proven and this one in addition that I have introduced will be taken hold of by our people and lived up to, the school question will take care of itself. But more later.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

THE ALEXANDER-SMITH CALL. (Continued).

For several years tent meetings were held in an effort to build up a congregation in No. 7. In the beginning we got rid of the yellow jackets, but to this good day we have not got rid of the efforts of the devil to overthrow and destroy all the good that has been done. During one of the meetings a man told that he heard me say in the pulpit that my mother was in hell because she had never been immersed. Soon every one was talking it, and some of the brethren were just about ready to send me back to the lake, while others said: "Brother Williams said no such a thing." I told the brethren if they at any time saw the man under the tent that started the report, to let me know it.

One night a brother came to me and said, "That fellow is here," and told me where he was seated under the tent. I called attention to the report that was circulating in that neighborhood, and said further: "I am informed that the man that said he heard me say that my mother is in hell because she had never been immersed is under the tent." I asked for the time and place that I said it. No response. "Christ said the devil is the father of lies; and as this is a lie, we know the father of it. My mother still lives, and has been immersed for a long time." I told him he should be more careful in his selection of lies and tell one that had a little resemblance of truth in it.

In a short time some who were enthusiastic over the work in No. 7 began to grow tired of it and wanted to abandon the work. Brother Alexander and Brother J. C. Shipp greatly desired the work to continue and begged me not to quit them. I promised to stay with them until the victory was won or the efforts completely lost. A few changes were made by calling another preacher for a meeting and the fall back on me. You see, I was held in reserve—when a big preacher could not be secured, then the little preacher from the lake was called back.

During my first meeting in No. 7 I baptized Robert D. Smith, now a great preacher in Texas, and later, at one of the tent meetings, I baptized John T. Smith, a brother of Robert D., and both of them brothers of G. Dallas Smith, now dead. God has spared me to live to see some of the great results of the tent meetings in No. 7. God also spared the life of Brother George W. Smith, the father of these three preachers, to see three of them grow into good, loyal, strong preachers of the gospel, and only one of them had obeyed the gospel when I went into No. 7.

In 1908 a good, neat, substantial meetinghouse was erected and ready for service on Thanksgiving of that year. I preached at eleven o'clock and Brother George W. Smith preached at 2:30 P.M. A great crowd was present at the opening, and a great dinner was spread on the ground. A congregation was set in order, and I have never witnessed a happier and more devoted congregation than was Berea in the beginning and for several years afterwards. For quite a while I preached for the congregation monthly and conducted a meeting each year. There, as elsewhere, the sects were very bitter against me for the reason that I broke into their ranks at nearly every meeting. So they devised a scheme by which they could get rid of me, and it worked. They would go to some members who were not very "strong in the faith" and say: "Why do you keep Williams so long? You have better preachers than he is, and we do not intend to hear him any more. If you expect us to attend your meeting, you must get another man." The heaven began to work and some members began to say: "Brother Williams is too hard on the sects, and we think it time for a change." The change came after the victory was won, and let us hope that the change was best for all concerned. Berea is still on the map as evidence of the hard fight and many hardships endured to plant the church of God in No. 7. As I think of those days and the many true and faithful brethren and sisters that stood by the work so faithfully, a feeling of joy fills my heart which time can never remove.

Next, "Swapped for an Organ."

"The Golden Rule."

BY EDWARD S. HARRIS.

Surely there is no principle that should characterize a young man as much as the one of which I write.

I am sorry indeed to say it, but, from experience and observation, I am forced to believe that the majority of the young people are growing ignorant of the fact that "whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap." (Gal. 6: 7.) Now, young man (and I am one), let us learn a lesson from this great exhortation. For the call upon us boys who claim to be Christians is imperative, because the world (the wicked) is watching every step that we take. We are the light of the world; and if we claim to be this, let us not be so little when so much is at stake.

Now, you may think I have gone to the extreme, but I trust you will not think so when you read further, because I believe if we take these great principles and fathom the depths of the meaning thereof, and live them out in our lives, our time will certainly not be spent in vain.

With these thoughts before us, let us center our minds upon one great principle. First, let me ask a question: Am I, or can I be, a Christian, if I do not treat the other boy's sister as I would have him treat mine? I say no. Surely there are none that will differ with me on this. Granting now that we all agree, why do some of us transgress that which we believe to be right? We know it is right to treat the other boy's sister with all respect; we know he would like to have his sister treated as we do ours. Then, why do some of us seek to rob some boy's pure, noble-minded, Christian sister of all that she has in this world, and to cause her hopes to be blasted?

Now, boys, I believe it is in our power to maintain as true a type of Christian girls as our mothers were, and by doing this we make it possible for the future generations to live a Christian life. But if we are determined to do that which is not pleasing to Jehovah, then we will be overtaken by the devil, and then woe be unto us on that great day when the Lord will say unto us, "Thou wicked and slothful servant," and then he will say to his angels: "Cast ye the unprofitable servant into outer darkness: there shall be weeping and gnashing of teeth."

But now let us turn to the bright side and see if we can picture the future happiness that is to be ours in the years that are to come, if we act and live as Jehovah our God would have us live. Yes, there awaits us peace, happiness, and joy in this life, and perfect peace in that home beyond.

Boys, hurry, let us write now, not to-morrow, these words in golden letters across the high heavens above: "I will treat the other boy's sister as I would have him treat mine." There is everything to gain and nothing to lose.

Some men preach a sermon, and some men preach Christ. The people can get along without the sermons, if they can find in the spoken word the Christ.—Selected.

Evangelistic Notes

J. O. Barnes is in a tent meeting in Alapattah, Fla.

F. J. Berry is in a good meeting at San Marcos, Texas.

Thomas C. King is now at Hanceville, Ala., in a good meeting.

T. G. Curd closed at Viewpoint, near Milan, Tenn., with one addition.

L. B. Jones has just closed at Rock Springs, near Smyrna, Tenn., with six baptized.

John T. Lewis recently held a brush-arbor meeting at Gayosa, Ala., with four baptized.

Frank Baker, Berry, Ala., recently closed a good meeting at Cloverport, near Toone, Tenn.

T. Q. Martin is starting off well at Shelbyville, Tenn. Brother Nix is leading the singing.

Charles F. Hardin is in an excellent meeting at Coldwater, Miss. One reclaimed to date.

J. Clifford Murphy is in a meeting at Cherry Creek, White County, Tenn., with good interest.

John Hayes is in a good meeting at Jennings Chapel, near Athens, Ala., with two baptisms to date.

A. T. Hamiter has just closed at Sweet Gum Head Church, in Alabama, and is now at Lecanto, Fla.

Charles R. Nichol has just closed a meeting at Winfield, Ala., with three additions. He is now at Hartsville, Tenn.

H. A. Rogers recently closed a short meeting at Wood End, Canada, resulting in one baptism. He is now at Harp-tree.

Mrs. L. R. Hutchison, Enterprise, Ala., writes: "I have just read 'Hardeman's Tabernacle Sermons,' and think they are fine."

L. R. Wilson recently closed at Webb's Chapel, near Bethesda, Ark., with twelve baptisms. He is now at Pangburn, Ark.

J. S. White recently closed at Unity Schoolhouse, near Hardin, Ky., with one baptism, and, later, at Aurora, with fine interest.

G. B. Lambright, Jasper, Ala., Route 5, closed at Big Ridge, near his home, with twelve baptisms. He is now at Corinth, near Cordova, Ala.

J. F. Chambers closed at Antioch, in Union County, Miss., with five baptisms, and three discarded the Baptist name. T. M. Anglin led the songs.

T. B. Thompson closed at Calvert, Ky., with eight baptized and three restored. This was his second meeting there, and he will be back next year.

J. C. Pendergrass has just closed at Lick Fork, near Livingston, Tenn., with twelve baptized and six restored. He is now at Andrews, and goes next to Liberty.

E. D. Shelton and Grace M. Hooper were united in holy wedlock at the home of the bride's parents, near Pegram, Tenn. Brother R. C. White performed the ceremony.

J. W. Brents, Springfield, Mo., has just closed a fine meeting in that city. It continued one month and resulted in twenty-five baptisms. Richard Mobley led the singing.

Aruna Clark, Miami, Fla., reports the work progressing nicely there. J. P. Prevatt, of Dasher Bible School, preached some very helpful sermons for them recently.

W. A. Record, Paducah, Ky., has just closed a fine meeting at Bluff Springs, Ky., resulting in forty-three baptisms and several restorations. This was his third meeting there.

J. E. Wainwright preached six days at Boyd, Ark. Thirteen were baptized, six dropped human names, and three were restored. He is to begin at Haworth, Okla., on August 16.

W. F. Lemmons closed recently at Casa, Ark., with six additions, and is now at Swifton. He will be at Elbright, Tenn., July 19-30. Write him there or at Little Rock, Ark., general delivery.

Willie Hunter closed at Zion, in Jackson County, Tenn., on July 30, with fine interest. He is now at Neverfail, in Cumberland County. He goes next to Big Branch, in Jackson County, then to Big Bottom.

H. L. Kirby, Albany, Ala., closed a meeting at Oneal, near Athens, Ala., on August 5, with six baptisms and three restorations. He is now in a mission meeting at Harris, near Albany, with one baptism to date.

William P. Walker has decided to remain in Tennessee. He has some time in 1923 for meetings. Address him at Dover, Tenn. He is to be in Florida in January, and would be glad to have other meetings while there.

H. M. Phillips reports two good services at St. Elmo, Tenn., with two baptized and one restored. One baptism at Tyner in the afternoon. He is now at Alamo, Tenn. He says: "The Gospel Advocate is excellent."

It was gratifying to have a visit from S. M. Spears. He has been very ill for some time, but is improving rapidly. He deeply appreciates the prayers of the saints and attributes his improvement to Him "who doeth all things well."

G. F. Gibbs is in a fine meeting at Greenville, S. C., with eleven baptisms to date. They have bargained for a lot and expect to build. Twenty-six members were present last Sunday, and twenty-eight others. Four have been baptized since.

R. E. L. Taylor became ill and closed his meeting at Finley, Tenn., after one week's duration. Four were baptized and one confessed his wrongs. He will hold meetings in the following order: At Viola, Tenn.; one in Illinois; and two in Kentucky.

R. D. Smith recently closed a meeting at Huckabay, Texas, with seven baptisms. He also preached at Mount Vernon, Texas. He expects to return soon to Wichita Falls, Texas, where he expects to spend another year laboring for the church there.

J. C. Coffman recently held a meeting at Lexington, Ala., resulting in two baptisms and one restoration. He closed on August 5 at Antioch, Lauderdale County, Ala., with nine baptisms and seventeen restorations. He is now at Kilburn, near Florence, Ala.

J. Paul Slayden held a meeting recently at Trenton, Tenn., with two baptisms and one reclaimed. He preached at McMinnville, Tenn., one day, with two confessions at the night service. He also held a meeting at Fosterville, Tenn., with seven baptisms and two reclaimed.

The new house at Clarksville, Tenn., is now completed, and H. H. Adamson, of Lewisburg, Tenn., will begin a meeting there on September 10. The Lewisburg church is supporting Brother Adamson. September 10 will be their initial service in their new house, and Christians everywhere are cordially invited.

L. E. Pryor closed on August 6 at Pasear Hill, near Mintonville, Ky., with five baptisms and three restorations, and one took membership. This was his fourth annual meeting there, and he will be there again next year. He is now at Mintonville, Ky. He will go to Mount Pleasant, Ill., on the fourth Sunday in August.

Charles R. Brewer writes as follows: "In the meeting at Smyrna there were seven baptisms. I was assisted in the song service by Jack Meyer, Armstrong Traylor, and Samson Lester, all promising young men in the ministry of the word. At Greenfield three were baptized and two took membership with the congregation. Leonidas Holland and Bennie G. Swinney are excellent song leaders. I am now at Guntersville, Ala."

J. D. Jones, Huntsville, Ala., closed a meeting at Short Mountain, near Woodbury, Tenn., on July 15, which resulted in five baptisms and one restoration. He closed at Ivy Bluff, near Morrison, Tenn., on July 29, with seventeen baptized and two reclaimed. His next meeting closed at Elkins, near Woodbury, Tenn., on August 6, with four baptized and two reclaimed. He then began at Iconium, near Woodbury. He has four more meetings in Tennessee, then will return to Alabama.

Sister A. M. Bibb, 17 East Marshall Street, Charleston, Mo., writes: "I am thinking of having a meeting here this fall. There is only one other sister here, and I am the only one to support the meeting. There is a small digressive church here, but they have no preacher. It seems to me an opportune time for a meeting. Will the churches elsewhere help us to have this meeting? I can take care of preacher and singer and get the place to preach, and also do some toward their support. R. C. White, of Nashville, Tenn., once held a meeting here; so I refer you to him. Will the churches not help this sister in this heroic effort?"

"Have a care, but do not have a fear."

W. F. Etheridge is in a meeting at Hohenwald, Tenn.

Flavil Hall is in a good meeting near Hornbeak, Tenn.

"The worst mistake is to be discouraged by a mistake."

J. N. Armstrong is in a good meeting at Paul's Valley, Okla.

H. N. Mann is busy doing missionary work around Riverside, Tenn.

A. B. Barret closed at Troy, Tenn., on August 6, with seven baptisms.

S. H. Hall is in a fine meeting at Altus, Okla., with three baptisms to date.

C. E. Holt is in a meeting at Moore's Springs Church, near Paris, Texas.

T. B. Larimore is in a meeting at Cookeville, Tenn., with increasing interest.

W. L. Reeves is in a good meeting at Humboldt, Tenn., with two baptized to date.

"Big things are crowding us to-day, and only little souls desire to have no part in them."

J. L. Hines closed a good meeting at College, Tenn., on August 9, and is now at Gilstrap, Ky.

Lee Sanders recently closed at Om, Texas, with eight baptisms. He is now at Crowell, Texas.

Harry Hays, of Hornbeak, Tenn., can arrange to sing for a meeting from August 23 to September 9.

W. E. Morgan is in a meeting at Gen, Ark. He goes from that place to Tennessee for three meetings.

A. B. Gunter has just closed on Brushy, near Aetna, Tenn., with seven baptized. He will return next year.

"Keep on trying keys; after while you will find one that will open the door into boundless opportunity."

"Lot's wife lost because she did not keep moving on. The soldiers used to say: 'Let's go.' They won."

Russell S. King preached for the Central Church, Los Angeles, Cal., on August 6. One confession is reported.

Tim Walker, Haleyville, Ala., closed at Pleasant Valley, near New Site, Ala., on August 6, with twelve baptisms.

Harvey W. Riggs has just closed at Beech Grove, near Tompkinsville, Ky., with twelve baptized and five restored.

J. T. Harris has just closed at Bold Springs, with four baptisms. He is now at Stayton, in Dickson County, Tenn.

F. L. Young closed in Roxton, Texas, with sixteen baptisms. This was his third meeting with that congregation.

F. L. Young closed at Pattonville, Texas, with twenty-four confessions and four reclaimed. He is now at Lawson, Okla.

J. W. Dunn closed at Charlie, Texas, on August 10, with fifteen baptisms and four restorations. He is now at Fargo, Texas.

H. C. Harris, West Point, Miss., has just closed at a point near Houston, Miss., and will return next year. He is now at Stewart, Miss.

J. V. Armstrong Traylor began a fine meeting at Willow Grove, Tenn., which has resulted in eight baptisms to date. J. H. McBroom will continue there.

I. A. Douthitt and A. J. Veteto recently held a good meeting at Scott's Hill, Tenn. They have since closed a meeting at Lexington, Tenn., with five baptisms.

W. P. Jones has closed a meeting at Cameron, Okla., which had resulted in twelve baptisms and six restorations when last heard from. He is now at Hackett, Okla.

Charles Tidwell closed at Jackson Temple on August 3, with one baptism. He preached at Centerville, Tenn., on August 6-8, and is now at Antioch, in Hickman County.

George W. Farmer, Cleveland, Tenn., assisted by Will J. Cullum, will begin a series of meetings at Reid Avenue Church, this city, next Lord's day, to which all are cordially invited.

W. W. Freeman recently held a meeting at Harville, Ga., with one baptism; next, at Williams, with four added. He is now at Day's Cross Roads, where the meeting started in the Baptist house, but they were turned out in the grove; but the meeting continues with interest.

W. L. Reeves is in a good meeting at Humboldt, Tenn. A. B. Gunter is leading the singing. On August 22 he is to begin near Brownsville, Tenn. This is a mission meeting. If any should desire to assist him to stay long enough to accomplish something, address H. V. Hood, Route 5, Brownsville, Tenn.

J. C. Hollis closed a meeting on Second Creek, in Lawrence County, Tenn., on July 29, with one baptism. On August 6 he closed a very successful meeting at Appleton, Tenn., with thirty-three confessions and one restoration. The brethren at this place made him a present of a nice baptismal suit, for which he is very thankful.

H. I. Copeland has just closed at Huntsburg, Tenn., with two baptisms. He says: "They are going to build a house of worship. Their property is protected by the 'restrictive' deed. They are poor and will need help. Send contributions to J. C. Crockett, Denver, Tenn. The church is at peace and working eagerly to promote the cause."

W. T. Beasley began a meeting at Cedar Dell, near Caney Spring, Tenn., on the fifth Sunday in July and continued it day and night throughout the week, with no visible results. From there he went to Chapel Hill, August 6, and continued to August 13, with three baptisms and three restored. He begins next Sunday at Oak Ridge, in Obion County, Tenn.

A. O. Colley, 5728 Junius Street, Dallas, Texas, makes the following announcement: "The 'Colley-Tyndall Debate' is now ready for delivery. If any one fails to receive a copy that has already been paid for, please drop me a card. Some orders may have been lost. The price is twenty-five cents the copy or two dollars a dozen. Special prices for fifty or one hundred lots."

C. C. McQuiddy reports five additions at Alco, La., on regular preaching days recently; a meeting at Maxie, La., with one addition; and at Turkey Creek, with thirteen additions. Of this number, two came from the Baptists, two from the United Brethren, one from the Holiness, and three from the Catholics. One man, eighty-eight, and his wife, seventy-two, and granddaughter, thirteen, were all baptized together.

E. C. Fuqua writes from Pasadena, Cal., August 7: "About two weeks ago the meeting at Santa Ana, Cal., came to a close after a three-weeks' campaign under the tent. G. W. Riggs and I were together in the Santa Ana meeting. If I remember correctly, there were nine accessions and considerable good otherwise done. The Santa Ana Church is noted for good works, and I found there most excellent brethren and sisters. The meeting was a great pleasure to me. Brother Riggs is now in a meeting with C. C. Condra at Santa Paula, and I am preaching at Sichel Street Church, Los Angeles."

Will J. Cullum, Rockwood, Tenn., writes: "After continuing thirteen days, the meeting at Old Union, in Carroll County, Miss., closed on Friday night, August 11. This was in every way a most interesting meeting. The attendance and attention were good all along, and the church co-operated with me in every way. Twenty-two were baptized and seven were restored, all of whom were grown people but two, twelve being heads of families. Of those baptized, seven were Baptists, three were Methodists, and one was a Presbyterian. My next work will be with the Reid Avenue Church, in Nashville, Tenn., assisting George W. Farmer in a meeting; next, to Owen's Cross Roads, Ala.; and then I will return to Rockwood and Dayton, Tenn., to my regular work. I will move to Rockwood about October 1."

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN THE WORSHIP

By M. C. Kurfess

Cloth. 300 pages. Price, postpaid.....$1.50

This is the most comprehensive book on this important subject now before the public. In it the Greek verb "psallo" is philologically and historically examined, together with a full discussion of kindred matters relating to music in Christian worship. The book is the result of a lifetime of critical study and research, and has become the standard of information on the music question. It has been highly recommended by scholarly brethren in the church of Christ and in the religious world.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY
Nashville, Tenn.

Home Reading

It Is All Because of You.

Dear old Bob: I have your letter,
And I'm glad to hear from you;
Glad to know you're well and busy,
But I fear you're feeling blue!
For you write of folk immoral
And of times so out of joint,
That you're thinking of removing
To some more "uplifting" point!
That your neighbors are ungodly,
Slaves to narrow, selfish pride,
Giving all their time to pleasure,
Swept away on sin's dark tide!
That your land is but a Sodom,
Steeped in greed of gold and lust!
That the people are but heathen,
Leaving naught to God in trust!
But the words that most impress me
Is the statement you have made,
That "the place is God-forsaken,"
And that you are quite dismayed!
Now, I trust you'll pardon briefness—
I am busy here to-day—
But I pondered o'er that statement
And have naught but this to say:
If your land is God-forsaken,
And you do not like the sin,
Tell me, friend, why don't you let Him—
Let that very God come in?
It is up to you, good knocker,
Just a matter of your heart;
For that God is not a slacker,
And he never will depart
From the heart that doth awaken
To its duty, loyal, true.
If your town is God-forsaken,
It is all because of you!

P.S.—Quit your knocking; do your duty;
God is in each passing breeze;
If your land is God-forsaken,
Get you down upon your knees.

—Henri Fortesquire.

✱ ✱ ✱

Thoughts.

BY MRS. J. DUDLEY TAYLOR.

Some learned man has said: "Thoughts are real forces, living messages of power. Love thoughts even, when brought to bear upon our pains and trials, transform them and make them educational."

We mothers should be so careful to help our children think beautiful thoughts, educational thoughts, thoughts that give strength and power.

So often I have thought, when one of our little ones burst out with an ugly sentence or a bad word, that I was not teaching them to think right, and then sometimes so pleased I have been to hear a sweet sentence and words of love come forth from their precious lips. Then I knew they were thinking sweet thoughts, and maybe their mother had helped them in the right way to these thoughts. Their mother had been "about my [her] Father's business," the work God had given her to do—the blessed work of training right a living plant—a plant with a soul and "made after God's own image." Is there any grander, greater work than this? And often I have heard such dear little mothers say: "I wish I could do some work for God." And what greater work can we do than train the minds and souls of little children?

The child's surroundings have much to do with his thoughts. In a dirty, unkept house, with no sunshine and very little fresh air, sweet, pure thoughts come "few and far between." In a clean, sweet home, where flowers bloom, and sunshine is allowed to come, and fresh air has full sway, and where good books are read, clean songs are sung, it is easier to rise above poverty and pain, and trials of all kinds, and think pure thoughts; and it is more possible for pure, sweet thoughts to come to a well-trained mind, a mind full of God's own love and sunshine, faith and hope, learned from the study of his word. So often I have seen a little white Narcissus blooming bravely and sweetly under the most adverse circumstances—by the hard roadside, among rocks and gravel, in the blazing sun, and in dark places, surrounded by weeds and bushes—and the little white flower was just as sweet and white and pure as were the ones in our own flower garden; and this was because the little brown bulbs are full of food for leaves, flowers, and roots, for colorings and fragrance. So, with all this nourishment, it is well able to resist weeds and rocks, hard dirt and gravel, and bloom out sweet and beautiful. So it is up to us, mothers, to fill to overflowing the minds of our little ones with sweet, pure thoughts of strength and resistance. Then, through the storms of passion and weeds of sin they can so easily live on the stored-up nourishment of faith, hope, and love; with their minds filled to overflowing with sweet, pure thoughts of strength and resistance, they can keep on blooming out sweet and pure and beautiful, and make a little of the big world around them better and purer by their presence, and by their sweet thoughts and words, their kind deeds, their helpful, hopeful lives.

You are pure, you say; are your thoughts as white
As the snow that falls with the midnight hush?
Could you see them blazoned in letters of light
For the world to read, and feel no blush?

If you stood in the court of Heaven 'mid swift,
Glad greetings of loved ones who knew no wrong,
Could you bare your heart to them all and lift
Unshrinking eyes to that spotless throng?

If you can do this, man, woman, boy, girl, then your thoughts are what they should be—pure.

✱ ✱ ✱

Tongue Twisters.

Do you want some very good tongue exercise? You can get it by reading, or attempting to read, rapidly the following sentences. For those who may have in future life to read or speak in public there is more in such exercise than mere fun:

Six little thistle sticks.

Flesh of freshly dried fish.

Two toads, totally tired, tried to trot to Tedbury.

The sea ceaseth, but sufficeth us.

Give Grimes Jim's great gilt gig whip.

Strict, strong Stephen Stringer snared slickly six sickly silky snakes.

She stood at the door of Mrs. Smith's fish-sauce shop welcoming him in.

Swan swam over the sea; swim, swan, swim; swan swam back again; well swam, swan.

A haddock, a haddock, a black-spotted haddock: a black spot on the black back of the black haddock.

Susan shineth shoes and socks, socks and shoes shineth Susan; she ceaseth shining shoes and socks, for socks and shoes shock Susan.

You know the tongue twister, "Peter Piper;" but there are others which are harder. One of the worst is "Mixed biscuits." Try saying that rapidly, and if you succeed, say: "Stop at the shop at the top of Sloane Street."

Then try saying over and over again, just as fast as you can, "Six slender slick saplings," and see if your tongue does not get nicely twisted.—The Presbyterian.

✱ ✱ ✱

I owe to my mother's loving wisdom all that was bright and good in my long night.—Helen Keller.

Current Comment

Reading the Bible.

A Southern Baptist lady tells in the Christian Index of a recent adventure in rapid reading of the word of God: "I have read the Bible through several times, covering a year each time. I have studied it by books and by subjects. On May 8 I began this last and fast method, reading no other books in the meantime; but, being a housekeeper, wife, and mother, I have many duties. I averaged three and one twenty-ninth hours a day for twenty-nine days. Total hours reading from Gen. 1 to Rev. 22: 21, eighty-eight hours. It has been a wonderful reading and a blessed experience to me."—The Baptist.

The above furnishes an occasion to emphasize the importance of regularly and prayerfully studying the Bible. There is a dearth now of Bible knowledge. People are not reading the Bible; even church members are not interested in studying the word of God. Christians cannot grow without a knowledge of the truths of the gospel. We are commanded to "grow in the grace and knowledge of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." (2 Pet. 3: 18.) No one can hope to become "strong in the Lord and the strength of his might" without earnest, prayerful study of the Bible.

When Israel obeyed God, it was a strong nation; but when the people ignored God's law, and forgot it, Israel became a very weak nation. When the children of Israel followed this command of Jehovah, "And these words, which I command thee this day, shall be upon thy heart; and thou shalt teach them diligently unto thy children, and shalt talk of them when thou sittest in thy house, and when thou walkest by the way, and when thou liest down, and when thou risest up. And thou shalt bind them for a sign upon thy hand, and they shall be for frontlets between thine eyes. And thou shalt write them upon the doorposts of thy house, and upon thy gates." (Deut. 6: 6-9.) A daily drill in the law of Jehovah made a strong nation of God's people. A father in Israel could not teach "the words" which Jehovah commanded without studying the law of Moses daily. The ability to teach and aptness to instruct the young in the law implied a study of it.

"Knowledge is power." The wise, prudent, and powerful people were those who had been faithfully trained in the principles of righteousness as set forth in the law. If knowledge is power, ignorance is weakness.

The decline of Israel began with its failure to follow God's will in studying and teaching the law. The darkest period of Israel's history is when the leaders lost or destroyed all the copies of the law and the people groped in dense ignorance of God's law. The prophet Hosea laments with the following language: "My people are destroyed for lack of knowledge: because thou hast rejected knowledge, I will also reject thee, that thou shalt be no priest to me: seeing thou hast forgotten the law of thy God, I also will forget thy children." (Hos. 4: 6.)

The church may well take warning from the decline and fall of Israel. The hope of the church is to be found in an educated membership, a membership that lets "the word of Christ dwell in" them "richly." Let all encourage the reading of the Bible. ❖ ❖ ❖

The Churches and War.

Whereas, we believe the spirit of war to be contrary and antagonistic to the spirit of our Lord, as expressed in his prayer recorded in the seventeenth chapter of John: and to the prophetic description of conditions which shall obtain in the kingdom of Christ, as recorded in the eleventh chapter of Isaiah; and

Whereas, we believe it to be the duty of all Christian people to strive to bring to realization, in the hearts and lives of man individually and internationally, this prayer of our Lord and this prophecy of his servant:

Therefore, be it resolved, That we, the Committee on Church Coöperation, approve the observance of Sunday, July 30, as "No More War" Day; and recommend to the pastors of our city and State that on this day they speak in condemnation of war as a means for the settlement of international disputes.—The Christian Council of Atlanta.

One great lesson from the World War was impressed again on the public mind—the horrors of war. Many who were opposed to Christians' engaging in carnal warfare tried to impress this lesson during the late war, but the bloody scenes on battle field and death-dealing equipments of the recent war have indelibly stamped the lesson on the present generation as never before. It is to be hoped that the lesson will never be forgotten.

It is encouraging to learn that the "Committee on Church Coöperation" has gone on record as approving "no more war," and that this committee urges the preachers to "speak in condemnation of war as a means for the settlement of international disputes." All that the preachers will have to do is to preach the Bible; preach Christ as the "Prince of Peace" and the King of Righteousness; preach that Jesus, the King, said: "My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence." (John 18: 36.) Surely, if denominational churches see the evils of carnal war and teach and preach against it, the church of our Lord should teach his attitude toward, and condemnation of, every evil way.

The spirit of war and the waging of it are so contrary to the spirit of Christianity that one cannot have both spirits at the same time, neither can one practice war and Christianity at the same time. Some one has truly said: "Without the help of the devil, we could not make warriors of men to-day." We need to weigh our present social order in the scales of New Testament ethics and adjust our standard of civic righteousness by the principles of the "Prince of peace," if we lay claim to the title of a "Christian nation." Now is the time to teach members of the church; now is the time to impress the public mind with the principles of peace as taught by Christ and the Holy Spirit. This is the time for the church, the body of Christ, to emphasize the things that make for peace.

The department of "Current Comment" commends most earnestly the above resolution and trusts that "the pastors of our city and State" and all others may carry out the spirit of the resolution in all their activities.

"Learning could be more easily disseminated without a school than Christianity without the church."

SPECIAL OFFER.

We are trying to increase the circulation of the Gospel Advocate, knowing that as we increase its circulation we are broadening its field of usefulness and thereby doing more good for our Master. Will you coöperate with us in this good work? The subscription list of the Gospel Advocate is growing daily, and we want you to help us do even greater things for the Lord through its columns. Here is our Special Offer: If you will send us two new subscribers for a year, we will send you a copy of Peloubet's "Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons." This book includes all the Sunday-school lessons for the year 1922. It formerly sold for $2. The price of the Gospel Advocate is $2 per year. Send to the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

Great Needs.

BY W. P. SKAGGS.

There is always something needed in this imperfect world, but it seems that the needs of to-day are greater and more varied than ever before. Perhaps this condition is more apparent than real. Perhaps as age comes and we increase in experience and observation, we come to see more clearly the frail nature of humanity, and we become more anxious about the needs of mankind, and so we come to think the needs greater, when, in fact, it is our vision that has been quickened. But whether it is our vision or the great increase in the needs, they are here, and it becomes us to do our part in the great work of giving relief.

The beginning of the great World War seemed to open the very pits of destruction and to turn loose all the elements of sin and destruction on this old world. Every evil passion of the heart seemed to be fully aroused, and, breaking the bounds of needful restraints, they surged upon society, and at the close of that awful conflict they threatened the whole world with a reign of anarchy and ruin. Civilization seemed to be tottering to its death. But, thank God, the forces of righteousness and civilization have been partially aroused, at least, and are struggling hard to lead the world back to a higher plane of peace and righteousness. The tide is turning toward "normalcy;" the victory is coming. The day will dawn when men "shall beat their swords into plowshares, and their spears into pruning hooks." But that this much-desired and long-looked-for day shall come, we have some great needs.

1. We need a great revival—a revival of the "old-time religion." We need a revival of the religion of the fathers, a revival of religion as it was given to us by Christ and his apostles. Indeed, we need a revival of New Testament religion—a religion that warms the heart in divine love for God and man; a religion that gives an abiding and energetic interest in the welfare of all mankind; a religion that will banish jealousies, bickerings, and evil seekings, and make us hunt for the good and seek to implant only good in every heart; a religion that will give us such an abiding confidence in the ways of Jehovah that we will trust him in all the things of life, and that will give us a joy to see all things moving in obedience to his word.

"O for the faith that will not shrink
From any earthly foe;
That will not tremble on the brink
Of any earthly woe."

2. But that this religion may be revived, we need men—real men. We need men of heroic character, who are willing to bare their breasts to the storm; men who are not afraid to stand before the advancing avalanche of destruction and ruin and stem its awful tide. We need men who are not afraid to trust the Lord; who realize that he will bring good from all this evil, and that our God will part the clouds, dispel the gloom, and cause the sunlight of peace and good will to shine in this old world again. God uses the sun to warm this old world and make it to give life to the vegetable and animal kingdoms; and God has given his Son to dispel the dark clouds of superstition and error, and warm the human heart, fill it with love divine, and give eternal life to all who will accept its divine influence.

We need men of great ideals. I am persuaded that the height to which we attain in this life is something near the height of our ideals. We must grasp ideals of life that are high above the cesspools of war and bloodshed. Offensive war is but the tearing up of international law and a brutal attempt to override the rights of others. We need the great ideal of the Golden Rule to be firmly intrenched in every human heart. When the Golden Rule becomes the standard of individual conduct, then it will be the standard of national conduct; for the national conduct is but the sum of the conduct of its individuals. The Golden Rule is the ideal of Christian citizenship, and God grant that it may become the ideal of all citizenship. We need men to lead us into the light of the glorious day when the word of God shall indeed be a "lamp unto our feet, and a light unto our path." When this glad day is come, then will come to pass the saying that is written: "The wolf and the lamb shall feed together."

We need men at the head of every congregation of the church of Christ who will make each congregation a great light to lighten the whole community, and to be a unit in the great light that is to fill this world with light. When each congregation is keeping its light burning brightly and each member is filled with that enthusiasm that should characterize the children of God, we will see sin vanishing as the clouds before the morning sun, and we will behold sinners falling down and giving glory to God.

We need more men on the firing line—men to tell the good news to a lost and ruined world. We sometimes wonder why more boys do not consecrate themselves to the ministry of the word. The field is so ripe, the harvest so rich and wide, the labor so great, and the reward so abundant and glorious, why this dearth of preachers? Of course, I think I see some of the causes that have led to this condition. (1) The dearth of these real men to take this real place in life is because there is a dearth of real Christians. The dearth of preachers is no greater than the dearth of Christians. As Christians increase, preachers increase; and as preachers increase, Christians increase; the one is dependent on the other. (2) Perhaps this is another cause that stands in the way of young men's engaging in this greatest of all works. (a) Other fields of labor offer greater opportunities of renown and greater remuneration for labor bestowed. They see in other avocations a better opportunity of preparing for old age. When the preacher gets old so he is no more in demand as a preacher, he is turned over to "cold charity" to be cared for. Perhaps they ought to be willing to make the sacrifice, and many, many are making it every year; but why should this demand be made upon them? The preacher has the same right to comfort in old age that any one else has. We certainly need some way to prevent old preachers from being turned out to "root, hog, or die," in their old age. (b) They know that only a few preachers can own their homes; they must live from "pillar to post" all the time. A few preachers have succeeded in living at one place long enough to own homes, and I thank God for them; but the majority must move every year or so and cannot afford to own a home. "Why move?" Because so many brethren think preachers wear out. The elder doesn't, the farmer doesn't, the "lay member" doesn't, and I don't think that even the preacher will wear out in heaven, but down here in this old world the preacher is made to realize that he must move on. Or he may own a home if he will spend his time away from it traveling and doing missionary work. I have no complaints to make; the brethren have been good to me, and I have done my best for the cause of Christ. But we need to realize that preachers must have the backing of the church "e'en down to old age," or the dearth will not be relieved.

These great needs will be supplied when Christians spend more of their time on their knees, wearing the knees of their pants out praying to the Lord, instead of wearing their pockets out trying to tie the pocketbook tighter. God help us all to do our whole duty and to be men—real men.

Corsicana, Texas, and the Lot in Japan.

BY C. R. N.

The Corsicana church of Christ, through Brother C. G. Vincent, correspondent and treasurer, makes the following statement relative to the Kamitimizaka work in Japan:

The mission in Tokyo, Japan, known as the Kamitimizaka work, was started by Brother Eugene Snodgrass, deceased, and continued several years by Brother W. J. Bishop, who went to his reward on April 4, 1913. Brother C. G. Vincent was connected with this mission a little more than three years. The efficient native evangelist is Brother Y. Hiratsuka, whom to know is to love. The lot contracted for in 1919 is situated at 73 Myogadani Street, a few blocks from the present meeting place at 15 Kamitimizaka Street. There is a nice American-style missionary's home occupying a part of the Myogadani lot. Owing to the high cost of real estate in Japan, the custom of building on rented land is quite common; but it is very far better to own the land, as landlords can demand high rent, and they raise the rent at every opportunity. Hence, the Japanese brethren and others on the field thought it wise to purchase this lot. There is room enough on it to put up a church house later. The old meetinghouse now at 15 Kamitimizaka, which also stands on a rented lot, will be sold for old lumber or used in the construction of the new house. The lot cost $6,750. Total paid, $4,997, including $815 remitted on July 5. Balance to be paid, $1,753. Amount already pledged, $756. Cash in bank, $28.45. Total in cash and pledges, $784.45. Assuming that these pledges will be paid, we yet need to raise $968.55. The plan so far followed is to get Christians to give so much monthly. Some are giving 25 cents; some, 50 cents; some, $1; and one sister, $1.50 a month. The final payment must be made on December 31, this year. This final remittance should leave here by December 1, as it takes from three to four weeks for mail to reach Tokyo.

In addition to this fund, another need is a devoted and qualified couple to go out and give all their time and effort to this mission. Who will help to finish paying off the indebtedness, and who will volunteer to go? Remittance should be made to C. G. Vincent, Corsicana, Texas.

I am very glad to know that the church in Corsicana is undertaking to see that the lot in Japan is paid for, and in their inability, in connection with other work they are doing, that they ask sister congregations to have fellowship with them in this work. I have no encouragement for a missionary society composed of one man, who is often self-constituted to receive and forward funds to some mission field or for his own support. Each congregation should have, in connection with other work, her missionary program. The church in Corsicana asks that you assist her in paying for this lot.

✱ ✱ ✱

Multum in Parvo.

BY R. L. WHITESIDE.

We worry about our children, and forget that our parents used to worry about us.

Any religious body in the wrong is less harmful as an enemy than as an ally.

A person is never richly endowed with a virtue of which he boasts.

When humility says, "Look at me," it ceases to be humility and becomes arrogant self-righteousness. Obtrusive humility is only a cloak worn to be seen of men.

It is sometimes hard to tell whether a man is full of enthusiasm or simply so full of egotism that he thinks nothing will be done right unless he looks after it.

There is a marked difference between swelling and growing; but the egotistical bombast thinks he has grown immensely, when he is only afflicted with the swell-head.

And we also conjure with the words "firmness" and "stubbornness." If I refuse to be turned from my course, it is firmness; if the other fellow does the same, it is stubbornness.

Another strange thing. Rich men talk about what a blessing youthful poverty was to them, and in the next breath express a determination that their children shall not be hampered by poverty as they were.

It is said that some women sleep with their gloves on to make their hands soft. That reminds me that perhaps some men sleep with their hats on.

A crank is a useful thing if kept under proper control, but many a Ford owner knows how dangerous a crank is if the explosion comes too soon.

And, too, every congregation needs a crank, if it hasn't a self-starter.

Brethren frequently say they do not believe in making a preacher rich, and they practice what they preach.

If the devil had any self-respect, he would not associate with some of his children.

✱ ✱ ✱

Personal Notes.

C. W. Holley baptized one in Hogansport, Texas.

T. W. Phillips closed at Bynum, Texas, with eleven baptisms.

C. G. Vincent closed at Montford, Texas, with eleven baptisms.

J. B. Nelson closed in Florence, Texas, with twelve baptisms.

R. L. Whiteside, Denton, Texas, may be had for some meetings this fall.

W. P. Skaggs closed at "String," near Temple, Texas, with fifteen baptisms.

Tice Elkins closed a meeting in Fort Worth, Texas, at a mission point, with three baptisms.

D. S. Ligon is again in the field, after an operation which kept him in the sanitarium for some days.

Liff Sanders closed in Clovis, N. M., with six baptized, and in Idalou, Texas, with twelve baptisms.

J. I. Reagan closed at Rattan, near Cooper, Texas, with eighteen baptisms. This was his third meeting with that congregation.

Ira Womack recently held a meeting at Sulphur, Okla., in the community where he was teaching. He began last Sunday at Wirt, Okla.

Charles H. Roberson, Austin, Texas, closed at Patrick's Chapel, near Waxahachie, Texas, on August 6, with twelve by baptism and two by membership.

Coleman D. Nichols reports that though he has recently been elected County Treasurer of Erath County, Texas, and will move to Stephenville, Texas, he will do much work preaching in reach of his home.

Ben West reports another addition to the South Side congregation at Fort Worth, Texas. He will change his location on September 1, and is undecided where he will locate. Does your congregation need him?

T. W. Phillips will, on September 1, move to San Antonio, Texas, and begin with the new congregation recently formed in that city on Beacon Hill. He cancels all promises for protracted meetings after that date.

C. E. Wooldridge baptized four at "Antioch," near Hillsboro, Texas. In a meeting in Dawson, with Brother Scott, of McKinney, directing the song work, he baptized eighteen. Brother Scott is a successful director of songs.

J. D. Matthews, Maysville, Okla., has just closed a short meeting at home, resulting in one baptism and one restoration. He is now at Brock, Okla. From Brock he goes to Rody Schoolhouse, near Wynne Wood, Okla. He could hold a meeting somewhere after the second Lord's day in September.

L. S. White writes from Itasca, Texas, August 9: "A few days ago I closed a good meeting at Whitewright, Texas. J. A. Dickey led the singing. Three were baptized and three took membership—all grown people. The church there determined to enlarge her usefulness; so on the last day of the meeting they arranged with Brother Dickey to move there and work all the time under the direction of the church. He is a splendid young preacher and a fine song leader. I am now in a fine meeting in Itasca. Brother Dickey is song leader. He will move to Whitewright at the close of this meeting. The church in Itasca is a good one. W. P. Skaggs has done a good work here for the past three years."

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 117-119 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate," and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

The Victory Over Self.

BY J. C. M'Q.

In one sense a person should be selfish. He should be more concerned about his own weakness and frailty than about the shortcomings of other people. It is far worse for a man to tell a lie, in so far as he is concerned, than it is for others to misrepresent him. What others do cannot shut us out of heaven, but it is what we do ourselves that may bar the pearly gates against us. God would not have us surmise evil, but wise unto that which is good and simple unto that which is evil. To think evil, surmise evil, and dwell upon the evil sours our nature and unfits us for usefulness.

God requires us to control ourselves. He nowhere tells us to magnify the shortcomings of others and to feast our souls upon what we imagine to be the frailties of others. He demands of us self-control. Temperance, or self-control, is one of the Christian virtues: "Yea, and for this very cause adding on your part all diligence, in your faith supply virtue; and in your virtue knowledge; and in your knowledge self-control; and in your self-control patience; and in your patience godliness; and in your godliness brotherly kindness; and in your brotherly kindness love." (2 Pet. 1: 5-7.) We are not admonished to give all diligence to control others, but to practice self-control. If some people were just as zealous in governing themselves as they are in pointing out the defects of others, what towers of strength they would be! We can only commend the ignorant egotist to the mercy of God.

The man who practices self-control is great. He is strong, for it requires great effort to govern self. "He that is slow to anger is better than the mighty; and he that ruleth his spirit, than he that taketh a city." (Prov. 16: 32.) Men must put down their evil thoughts, must be slow to anger, and must control themselves, if they would be good. It is better to be good than powerful. Paul, great, good, and mighty as he was, found it necessary to subdue self. It is only upon a subdued nature that one rises out of the mire and filth of this world to the sunlight of God. "But I buffet my body, and bring it into bondage: lest by any means, after that I have preached to others, I myself should be rejected." (1 Cor. 9: 27.) It must be a constant warfare with self from the cradle to the grave. Paul fought the evil until in his weariness, but not despair, he cried: "Wretched man that I am! who shall deliver me out of the body of this death?" (Rom. 7: 24.) The clouds did not long hang as a pall over him, for the sunlight from God's throne penetrated them, and we hear him say: "I thank God through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The mastery of self is not to be attained in our own strength. We must implore God's strength and fight the battle in the strength he gives us. That Paul should not be unduly exalted, a thorn in the flesh, a messenger of Satan, was given to buffet him. He besought the Lord thrice that it might depart from him. The thorn in the flesh was not taken away, but God gave him strength to endure it. "And he hath said unto me, My grace is sufficient for thee: for my power is made perfect in weakness." (2 Cor. 12: 9.) God does not use the self-righteous and the self-strong. The self-righteous, pharisaical mote hunter is a stench in the nostrils of Jehovah. God cannot and will not justify such. These mote hunters trust in their own righteousness and set all others at naught. For their benefit Jesus gives us this parable: "Two men went up into the temple to pray; the one a Pharisee, and the other a publican. The Pharisee stood and prayed thus with himself, God, I thank thee, that I am not as the rest of men, extortioners, unjust, adulterers, or even as this publican. I fast twice in the week; I give tithes of all that I get. But the publican, standing afar off, would not lift up so much as his eyes unto heaven, but smote his breast, saying, God, be thou merciful to me a sinner. I say unto you, This man went down to his house justified rather than the other: for every one that exalteth himself shall be humbled; but he that humbleth himself shall be exalted." (Luke 18: 10-14.) Those who go down exalt themselves; those who go up humble themselves. Humility is not natural, but must be cultivated. It is much admired, but little practiced. It is becoming to all. Without it, the Christian is weak. The man who knows he is sinful, who pleads no worth or merit of his own, who pleads for mercy because he is a sinner, is justified rather than the Pharisee who magnifies his defects and proclaims his own virtues (?) on the housetop. The man who delights to feed on the carcasses of others is terribly depraved. "There are six things which Jehovah hateth; Yea, seven which are an abomination unto him: Haughty eyes, a lying tongue, and hands that shed innocent blood; a heart that deviseth wicked purposes, feet that are swift in running to mischief, a false witness that uttereth lies, and he that soweth discord among brethren." (Prov. 6: 16-19.) It is hard to conceive of any good that the haughty, self-righteous Pharisee expects to attain by sowing discord among brethren. Such devisers of wicked purposes should be ignored as a blot on humanity. Such a life is so out of joint with the spirit and purpose of Christianity that it is unpleasant to dwell upon it. "Love taketh not account of evil." In humility, considering our own weakness, let us press forward to nobler and better things. Let us repent of the evil we have done, forget the good already done, and, with Paul, "press on toward the goal unto the prize of the high calling of God in Christ Jesus." "Except ye turn, and become as little children, ye shall in no wise enter into the kingdom of heaven. Whosoever therefore shall humble himself as this little child, the same is greatest in the kingdom of heaven." (Matt. 18: 3, 4.) Feeding the hungry, winning souls to Christ, and helping them bear their burdens should so consume our time that none is left for wrangling with one another.

The First Epistle to the Thessalonians.

BY F. W. SMITH.

Pursuing the notice of this epistle, I call attention to the following verses: "Knowing, brethren beloved of God, your election, how that our gospel came not unto you in word only, but also in power, and in the Holy Spirit, and in much assurance; even as ye know what manner of men we showed ourselves toward you for your sake." (1 Thess. 1: 4, 5.)

REFERENCE TO THEIR ELECTION.

The Bible, beyond any question, teaches the doctrine of election, both conditional and unconditional. As examples of an unconditional election, I submit the following: "Now Jehovah said unto Abram, Get thee out of thy country, and from thy kindred, and from thy father's house, unto the land that I will show thee: and I will make of thee a great nation, and I will bless thee, and make thy name great; and be thou a blessing." (Gen. 12: 1, 2.) Here is a man elected to be the head of a great nation, and, so far as he was concerned, it was entirely unconditional. "For the scripture saith unto Pharaoh, For this very purpose did I raise thee up, that I might show in thee my power, and that my name might be published abroad in all the earth." (Rom. 9: 17.) Pharaoh was a wicked ruler, and God elected him as a vessel through whom he might demonstrate his power and glory. "That saith of Cyrus, He is my shepherd, and shall perform all my pleasure." (Isa. 44: 28.) This was another heathen king elected of God, and that, too, hundreds of years before he was born. He was elected for a specific purpose, as were the others mentioned. "And not only so; but Rebecca also having conceived by one, even by our father Isaac—for the children being not yet born, neither having done anything good or bad, that the purpose of God according to election might stand, not of works, but of him that calleth, it was said unto her, The elder shall serve the younger. Even as it is written, Jacob I loved, but Esau I hated." (Rom. 9: 10-13.) Here was an individual elected before he was born, who formed a link in the purposes of God. These were all unconditional elections, and not one of them pertained to the salvation of the person elected, and neither is there such an election in the Bible that had direct reference to the salvation of the person, family, tribe, or nation so elected. Now the election to which reference is made in this epistle to the Thessalonians is conditional, and depended upon their obedience to the gospel. Hence, this election pertained to the salvation of the Thessalonians. The gospel requires a certain character to be eligible to election unto salvation; and when one by faith and obedience fills the requirements of that character, he or she is elected to salvation from past sins. But, to be saved in heaven, there are other conditions. Hence, Peter says: "Wherefore the rather, brethren, give diligence to make your calling and election sure: for if ye do these things, ye shall never fall: for so an entrance shall be ministered unto you abundantly into the everlasting kingdom of our Lord and Savior Jesus Christ." (2 Pet. 1: 10, 11.)

HOW THE GOSPEL CAME UNTO THEM.

It did not come unto them simply by "word of mouth," but also in the confirmation of the Holy Spirit. The apostles and evangelists performed miracles to prove their mission. "Then Philip went down to the city of Samaria, and preached Christ unto them. And the people with one accord gave heed unto those things which Philip spoke, hearing and seeing the miracle he did." (Acts 8: 5, 6.) "How shall we escape, if we neglect so great salvation; which at the first began to be spoken by the Lord, and was confirmed unto us by them that heard him; God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will." (Heb. 2: 3, 4.) The gospel came not only to them in word and miraculous power, but in "much assurance" also. There was no room for doubt concerning the message brought to them, and it challenged the fullest investigation then as it does now.

HOW THE GOSPEL CAME TO US.

It came to us in precisely the same way, and producing the same results. It is true that there are no living apostles and Spirit-gifted evangelists to give ocular demonstrations of miraculous power, but these miracles are recorded. John says, that we might believe. (John 20: 30, 31.) Jesus said to Thomas: "Because thou hast seen me, thou hast believed: blessed are they that have not seen, and yet have believed." (John 20: 29.) The word is all-sufficient, having been fully attested by miraculous power.

Diotrephes, Ancient and Modern.

BY H. LEO B.

Diotrephes, like many others of to-day, finds a place in the affairs of the church, not because of his consecrated service and real merit, but because of his ambition to have the preëminence. Many think that Diotrephes was an elder or bishop of a church to which the apostle John wrote in his third epistle. This epistle is addressed to Gaius. It is supposed that this epistle was written to Gaius to be read to the church. It is not known where the church was located. Diotrephes lorded over this church with a false ambition and an ungodly motive. The beloved apostle John, in this third epistle, refers to him in the following: "I wrote somewhat unto the church: but Diotrephes, who loveth to have the preëminence among them, receiveth us not. Therefore, if I come, I will bring to remembrance his works which he doeth, prating against us with wicked words; and not content therewith, neither doth he himself receive the brethren, and them that would he forbiddeth and casteth them out of the church." (Verses 9, 10.) This shows that Diotrephes was contentiously resisting John's authority as an apostle and inspired teacher; and he not only resisted the truth as taught by John, but he also forbade other members of the church doing that which the spirit of Christ taught them to do. He would not obey the authority of God himself, and used the power that he had in his official position to keep others from extending a Christian hospitality to those who needed it. He was so domineering that he even cast "them out of the church" who would not submit to his authority. He was of the class of those who "rule or ruin," "boss or bust." He "loveth to have the preëminence among them." He loved to rule everything in the church according to his own pleasure. He did not consult or acknowledge the will of the Lord. His own will was the only law he acknowledged. Everything and everybody must submit to him or there was trouble. He was ambitious for authority, and used that authority haughtily in the church. It is small wonder if that church had peace. No church can have peace with such a leader tyrannizing over its members.

An ungodly ambition has been productive of great evil to the human family. Such an ambition may be designated as "supreme selfishness." It may be manifested in many ways and given different names to deceive. When a false ambition strives for mastery in the political world, it calls itself "patriotism." The demagogue eloquently pleads for the interest of "the dear people" and the honor of his country. He always denounces with bitter terms his opponent and tries to show him up as an enemy of the country. They have the same spirit in worldly affairs that Diotrephes had in the church.

In fact, the modern Diotrephes, who loves the preëminence in the church, always pleads that whatever he does is for the good of the cause of Christ. This modern Diotrephes is very zealous for the church and for the simple teaching of the Bible and the supreme authority (?) of Christ. He is always "prating against us with wicked words," at the same time assuming the attitude of a righteous man. He often deceives himself into a notion that his motives are pure, that he is working for the glory of God, when, in truth, pride, envy, and jealousy are the real motives of what he says and does. Of course, he always knows what is best to be done, and is stubborn about his own way of doing it. He belongs in the class of Job's friends of whom he said: "No doubt but ye are the people, and wisdom shall die with you." (Job 12: 2.) The modern Diotrephes may be able with his hypocritical pretenses to deceive some, and even deceive himself, but is unable to deceive many of the people of God or even of the world.

His pride, envy, hatred, jealousy, and revenge cannot be covered up by his prating about "the good of the cause" or "the welfare of the church." The vanity of the world and all of its ambitions and pomp, with its empty titles and foolish dignities, have great attraction for him; his heart loveth these things. He cares naught for the piety and humility that adorn the Christ life when they are in the way of his gaining preëminence. He is more interested in guarding his "sacred honor" than he is the honor and glory of God. Selfishness and the love of preëminence have blinded him to all the real things of life. He is kept busy extolling his pride, ambition, and preëminence.

The sin of loving "the preëminence" is almost as old as the human race; it is at least as old as the church. The little band of disciples as they followed the Master around in Galilee and Judea were disturbed by this sin. We are told that "there arose also a contention among them, which of them was accounted to be greatest." (Luke 22: 24.) Jesus taught that true greatness was measured by the service that one did: "Whosoever would be first among you, shall be servant of all." (Mark 10: 44.) The modern Diotrephes ignores this fundamental principle of greatness; his ambition and love for preëminence blinds him to it; his false standard of greatness excludes it.

The modern Diotrephes, like the ancient one, wants to exclude every one from the church who does not bow with grace and humility to his authority. He considers every one who does not acknowledge his preëminence an enemy. He so identifies himself, in his own estimation, with the cause of Christ that to oppose his self-appointed preëminence is to oppose the cause of Christ. His authority, in his own judgment, is the authority of Christ, and to fail to submit to his authority is to antagonize Christ. His blindness and self-conceit and bigotry have caused him to substitute his own notion, pleasure, and will for the authority of Christ. It is a high crime to dispute his authority. No one can be loyal to the church who opposes him in his conceited judgment.

What is to be done with the modern Diotrephes? Truly, "his work which he doeth" must be rebuked in the spirit of Christ and the positiveness of truth. He must be deposed before the church can prosper.

Hill Hunger.

I want to stride the hills! My feet cry out
For hills! O, I am sick to death of streets:
The nausea of pavements and people always about;
The savagery of mortar and steel that beats
Me under, hedges me in; the iron shiver
Of traffic!—I want to stride the hills, I want Hills toned frantic silver or a quiver
Of scarlet; hills that hunger and grow gaunt!

I am tired of steps and steps, and a thousand flights
Of stairs resounding, shuffling, quarrelling
With shoes. I want a hill on windy nights,
When April pauses with me, clambering
Over the purple side to the top, until
We pull ourselves up by a star—the hill! the hill!

—Joseph Auslander, in the Atlantic Monthly.

Publishers' Items.

Many splendid books are published and handled at this office. Good, religious books should be kept in each home. They have a refining influence on the young. Their educational value cannot be overestimated. The Gospel Advocate Company would like to help you educate your family by introducing good books to your library. "Evenings with the Bible" is a fine book to develop piety and spirituality, as well as very instructive. "The People's New Testament with Notes" is very helpful to Bible students. Here is a list that should be in every home. How many of them have you?

"Sermons," by J. W. McGarvey.

"Eunice Loyd," by R. N. Moody.

"Bible Reading," by Isaac Errett.

"The Glorious Gospel," by Adcock.

"The Querist's Drawer," by Errett.

"Lands of the Bible," by McGarvey.

"Gospel Sermons," by T. W. Brents.

"Cruden's Concordance" (complete).

"Larimore and His Boys," by Srygley.

"Salvation from Sin," by D. Lipscomb.

"The Gospel Preacher," by B. Franklin.

"Letters and Sermons of T. B. Larimore."

"Travels in Bible Lands," by A. T. Ritchie.

"Seventy Years in Dixie," by F. D. Srygley.

"Patriotic Illustrations for Public Speakers," by Brown.

"A New Commentary on Acts of the Apostles," by McGarvey.

Send us a new subscriber to-day for the Gospel Advocate. Price, $2 a year, in advance.

Write us to-day for sample copies of The Young People for boys and girls. The price is in reach of all.

If you know of any congregation not now using our Bible Lesson Helps and will send us the address, we will gladly furnish them sample copies.

If you have friends who are not subscribers to the Gospel Advocate, kindly furnish us their names and addresses so that we may send them sample copies.

"Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons" can be had from this office now at $1.25; the former cost was $2. Every teacher should have one.

Every church should know its membership. In order to keep informed as to the residence and membership of your church, you should have a church record. Our Church Record is the very thing you need.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Miner's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories.

All kinds of Bibles and Testaments are handled by this company. Each member of the family ought to have a Bible. There is personal responsibility on each member of the family; each must study God's word for himself. Each member owning his own Bible is like each one owning his own clothes—it develops individuality.

This company publishes a number of good song books. The "Christian Hymns" both new and old is a standard. Other song books are compared to it and their merits rated by the "Christian Hymns." Every congregation should have enough song books to give each member one, and especially each visitor one. It increases interest in the song service. Try it, and watch the results.

Many others too numerous to mention can be had by writing the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Good Blood

Rich and Pure

Is essential to health, happiness, energy, willingness to work and good appetite.

Lack of it means disease, rheumatism, catarrh, humors, headache, wandering pains, cold hands and feet, decline of health-tone.

Hood's Sarsaparilla is recommended for all these and other symptoms, because it is made from the best ingredients physicians prescribe, combined by pharmacists who have made a life-long study of medicines.

YOU ARE WANTED for a GOOD POSITION at a BIG SALARY

All that you need is training. Draughon's Practical Business College will train you, at your home, within only a few months. This is the College that has trained more than 300,000 men and women for good positions. Ask for big book, "Guide to Business Success." It's FREE. Address DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE, Dept. GA, Nashville, Tenn.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debility and weak heart. Relieves headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains, and reduces fever. No depressing effects. Made by a formula which is in general use by leading physicians. 35c per package at your druggist's or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, E. C.

LITTLE PAPPAS CAFE

Rooms, Bakery, Lunch. Open all hours. Frank Tant, Manager of Men's Service Station Barber Shop. Private booths for self-shaving. Showers and Tub Baths in the basement. 212 Fourth Avenue, North.

Salesmen and Salesladies WANTED

Also boys and girls, to sell Primo, the wonder cleanser for personal toilet or general household use. Many clear $5 to $10 per day. Fifty per cent profit. Send 25c for salesman's outfit, including a one-pound can of Primo, literature, and full particulars. THE PRIMO CO., 2617 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

CANCERS CURED AT THE KELLAM HOSPITAL

The Kellam Hospital cures Cancers, Sores without the use Burns, and Chronic Tumors, Ulcers, X-Ray of the knife, X-Ray, Radium, Acids, or Serum, and we have cured over 90 per cent of the many hundreds of sufferers treated during the past twenty-three years. Ministers treated free.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, Inc.
1617 West Main St. Richmond Va.

Old Rock Creek Church.

BY JOHN C. GRAHAM.

In the summer of 1921 I held a meeting at old Rock Creek Church, in the southwestern part of Colbert County, Ala., which resulted in eleven baptisms. This summer I held another meeting for them, with two baptisms. The singing in both meetings was led by Brother Jim Daniel.

Among the active members of this congregation are Brethren High Denton, John Hill, Mont E. Smelser, and Jim Daniel.

One custom of this congregation is singular, and that is that they have no night services. The services are held at eleven o'clock and two in the afternoon. There are well-filled baskets, and everybody is expected to eat and enjoy the social hour as well as the services. Most of the audience are on the grounds by nine o'clock in the morning. The song service starts some twenty or thirty minutes before the sermon and there is a season of praise in song.

It is refreshing to worship with people who are not in such a hurry to get away from the church. In most places we rush to the place of meeting, usually some minutes late, sing three or four songs, have one prayer (two or three would get on our nerves), a short scripture reading, and a short sermon. If the preacher runs over the twelve-o'clock mark, we all turn and look at the clock almost every minute. The clock is on a side wall so that the preacher will get the full benefit of our looking at it. We get through with the breaking of bread as soon as possible and rush home without stopping to inquire about the welfare of our brethren in the Lord. The assembly at Rock Creek is quite a contrast to the picture just given.

This congregation is one of the oldest in Northern Alabama. The present meetinghouse was built about 1870, and there was an older house near the same spot. Age does not seem to affect their interest in the work. Although the roads are bad in winter, they never miss the assembly on the first day of the week. They train the young people to sing and the young men to take part in the public part of the worship.

One of the most interesting things about this congregation and community to me is that it is the home of the lamented Fletcher Srygley and our esteemed brother, Filo Srygley. The people of that community esteem them very highly and enjoy telling incidents in the lives of their ancestors and how the "boys" use to come back and hold meetings. While there I spent some time in the home of

GIRLS! LEMONS

BLEACH SKIN WHITE

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents; shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day; then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

Brother John Hill, who lives in the house where the "boys" were reared.

It is said that the country in which a people are reared stamps itself in the character of that people. The Greeks are a product of a country with blue skies, fertile valleys, verdure-clad valleys, and cloud-capped mountains. No part of their country was out of the sound of booming of the serf as it dashed against the foot of a cliff. Their moods were a reflection of the moods of the sea and the seasons. The Egyptians, on the other hand, were a moodless, unimaginative, changeless people. They lived under a sky that was forever dull and gray and in which no howling storm cloud or gorgeous waves of sunset ever floated. They were never moved by the beauty of the changing seasons, for they had no seasons. When I think of these things, I am not surprised that that "old war horse," F. B. Srygley, should be such a fighter; for no boy could be reared among those hills, rocks, and trees and not be by nature a fighter. He would have to fight for his existence; and when he got to be a man, he would be trained to fight in a good cause or a bad one, depending on the way his energies were directed. May the Lord continue to produce boys in the back districts among the hills so that the world may always have such men as Abraham Lincoln, T. B. Larimore, and F. B. Srygley; and may the Lord continue to bless old Rock Creek Church, with all those who meet to worship him in his appointed way.

Dare to do right,
Dare to be true,
You have a work
That none other can do.
Do it so bravely,
Do it so well,
That angels will hasten
The story to tell. —Selected.

FROM GIRLHOOD TO WOMANHOOD

Woman Relied Upon Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

Emporia, Kansas.—"I began using Lydia E. Pinkham's medicines years ago when I was a girl. For several years I had severe pains at menstrual periods, making me very weak and interfering with my regular duties. I tried several remedies without obtaining relief. I was induced to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound by friends and it restored me to normal health. I often have occasion and do recommend your Vegetable Compound to my friends who have troubles similar to my own. You may use these facts as a testimonial."—EVA ALDRICH, 218 Union St., Emporia, Kansas.

There are many women who first used our Vegetable Compound during their girlhood days. They found it a valuable help during trying periods. In later years they use it whenever they feel those annoying symptoms which women often have.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a woman's medicine. It is prepared carefully from the best quality of medicinal plants, whose properties are especially adapted to correct the troubles women have.

TETTERINE for the COMPLEXION

60c at your druggist's or from
Shuptrine Co., Savannah, Ga.

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

Reply to O. E. Payne's Open Letter to A. O. Colley, "Instrumental Music Again."

BY A. O. COLLEY.

The letter, under the above title, appeared in the Christian Standard of July 8, 1922.

In this letter my erring Brother Payne tries to "air" much of his troubles in a pretense to be replying to something I had published concerning a debate with him.

Hear him: "As you began our correspondence by a virtual challenge to me through the public press to discuss the question of musical instruments, and as you have kept the matter before your followers by publishing the progress we are making, I am more than justified in striving to thus reach as many opponents of such music as possible by publishing an open reply to yours of June 2."

When a man wants to do a thing, good or bad, he can usually find an excuse for doing it. My letter to him of June 2, as referred to by him, was a private letter, in answer to one of the same nature from him concerning Brother Floyd M. Edwards, of Unionville, Mo., taking his place in oral debate with me.

Since he has written the above, just enough to make it appear that we are treating him awfully, I think it well for me to go briefly over the items as I have them.

1. In June of 1921 I ordered one of his music books direct from him, and he judged from my letterhead that I was one of his kind of preachers.

2. He wrote me the following in a letter of June 17, 1921: "This book is perfectly equipped to win all truth seekers; it affords the means of doing the most profitable evangelistic work possible. Take my advice. Don't dispute privately or publicly. Don't try to unhorse somebody. Teach the facts of the book publicly and study it privately, not to offend, not to defeat, but to win." Other glaring statements were: "In my State it has won in one afternoon some of the elders of the noncoöperative churches," etc. This, as I viewed it, needed some attention. I promptly wrote him my anxiety to meet him in oral debate, denying plainly the truthfulness of his title-page, "Instrumental Music Is Scriptural." This has so upset him he has been turning and twisting in every way possible to get out of defending his book in oral debate.

3. He wrote me that he would furnish Brother Floyd M. Edwards, one of his recent converts to the music theory, converted by his book. I promptly wrote Brother Edwards to know: "(1) Do you indorse in full the O. E. Payne book on this subject? (2) Will you defend it in debate?" His reply was: "I think it is good literature to circulate, but would not agree to defend any uninspired writing." Good literature, but can't defend it! Well, now, there is your witness and substitute debater. I aim to meet Brother Edwards in debate as soon as time and place can be agreed upon, with the hope of showing him that he has been deceived by this artful dodger in his book; but, as I wrote Brother Payne on June 2, the letter that seemed to stir him up to go into the papers, I shall not accept him in lieu of O. E. Payne unless he will agree to defend O. E. Payne's book in full.

Now, Brother Payne, as to your complaints about the way you are treated through the papers. I am not in control nor a side partner of any of the papers. The editors and owners of such papers have a right, as I view it, to say what shall go through their columns. I have complained at times at the Standard's not letting things go into its columns that were written in my behalf, especially concerning a report of the Colley-Tyndall debate that we thought needed correction. They did not let the correction in. I did not like it, but it was all the same.

The brethren think that the O. E. Payne book has had more press notice already than it deserves and do not care to keep on writing about it.

I have at no time expressed a desire to meet you in written debate. I believe the review of your book as given by M. C. Kurfess through the Gospel Advocate, and now printed in tract form, all that is necessary through such avenues. I want to see you face an audience while you make those arguments. If you do not aim to meet me in oral debate, the matter is closed, so far as I am concerned.

Ousts Rheumatism.

Here it is. Those awful pains of rheumatism so common during the cold, rainy weather are completely forgotten, and the rheumatism is expelled from your system, by the very simple treatment of taking Renwar Salts, which neutralizes the uric acid in the blood, and Renwar attacks the very cause of this malady and expels the uric acid from the system. Renwar is entirely dependable. It does not in any way injure the stomach or affect the heart. It is prescribed by the best physicians, and your money is refunded if Renwar fails to relieve you of rheumatism. Give Renwar a trial, and you will never regret it. Mr. Benagh, of the Nashville Railway and Light Company, says: "Within two or three days after using Renwar my rheumatism disappeared." Price, 50 cents. Ask your druggist for it, or write WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

Church Furniture

WORK OF THE HIGHEST QUALITY
AT REASONABLE PRICES

Write for Catalogue

BUDDE & WEIS MFG. CO.
JACKSON, TENNESSEE

What God Hath Promised.

God hath not promised
Skies always blue,
Flower-strewn pathways
All our lives through;
God hath not promised
Sun without rain,
Joy without sorrow,
Peace without pain.

But God hath promised
Strength for the day,
Rest for the labor,
Light for the way,
Grace for the trials,
Help from above,
Unfailing sympathy,
Undying love.

—Annie Johnson Flint.

An Interesting Report.

BY PAUL C. WITT.

As bursar of Abilene Christian College, I am submitting to the disciples everywhere the appended report. I am doing this because Abilene Christian College is your institution, and I believe you will be interested in the service this report will reveal to you. From it you will see that it is not only serving and blessing those who are able to pay, but that it is doing much to assist those who are not. Please bear in mind that the college has no endowment and that every cent of the money given by the brethren and the city of Abilene has been invested in permanent improvements.

This service is made possible by our president, his wife, and the other faculty members, all of whom are serving here for far less than they are frequently offered elsewhere. The more buildings you give us and the more students you send us who can pay, the more of the kind of service indicated by this report we can give.

And please remember that it costs the student who pays in full less to attend Abilene Christian College than to attend any other standard college in the country.

REPORT.

The following table shows the total enrollment, with number of students given financial assistance, for a period of ten years.

Year.	Enrollment.	Students Assisted.	Percentage of Enrollment.
1912-13	163	27	16 per cent
1913-14	134	20	14 per cent
1914-15	142	25	16 per cent
1915-16	145	16	11 per cent
1916-17	147	26	17 per cent
1917-18	136	23	16 per cent
1918-19	267	54	20 per cent
1919-20	486	62	12 per cent
1920-21	637	83	13 per cent
1921-22	728	110	15 per cent

Total enrollment for ten years, 2,985; total number of students assisted, 446, or 15 per cent of total enrollment.

Tuition given to preacher students, preacher's children, and preacher's wives (including summer school): Year 1919-20, $2,956; year 1920-21, $2,541; year 1921-22, $5,300. Total for three years, $10,797.50.

Wages allowed students for work on campus, in kitchen, and on buildings and grounds owned by the college (including summer school): Year 1919-20, $4,134.35; year 1920-21, $5,523.45; year 1921-22, $8,135.05. Total for three years, $17,792.85.

Total for work and free tuition for three years, $28,590.35.

The Bounty of God.

How came this creation so magically woven that nothing can do me mischief but myself—that an invisible fence surrounds my being which screens me from all harm that I will to resist? If I will stand upright, the creation cannot bend me; but if I violate myself, if I commit a crime, the lightning loiters by the speed of retribution, and every act is not hereafter, but instantaneously, rewarded according to its quality. Virtue is the adopting of this dictate of the universal mind by the individual will. Character is the habit of this obedience, and religion is the accompanying emotion, the emotion of reverence which the presence of the universal mind ever excites in the individual. —Emerson.

The Hot-Weather Test makes people better acquainted with their resources of strength and endurance. Many find they need Hood's Sarsaparilla, which invigorates the blood, promotes refreshing sleep, and overcomes that tired feeling.

Sore Feet?

Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Eucapine Salve

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection)(Relieves Pain)(Allays Inflammation)

Is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

Renew your health
by purifying your system with

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are free from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c and 35c packages, bearing above trade-mark.

TETTERINE

Makes low necks and short sleeves possible. It clears the skin

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specially designed gift for the bereaved. Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the deceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

JACOBS & COMPANY

SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENTS

PRINTERS DESIGNERS PHOTO-ENGRAVERS ELECTROTYPERS

Catalogues —
— a Specialty

HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S.C.

HARPER COLLEGE

J. N. ARMSTRONG, President

The School Which Cultivates the Heart as It Trains the Mind

COLLEGIATE DEPARTMENT offers two and three years of work in Bible, Botany, Chemistry, Education and Psychology, English, French, German, Greek, History and Political Science, Home Economics, Latin, Mathematics, Physics, Public Speaking, Sociology, Spanish, Zoölogy.

HIGH SCHOOL DEPARTMENT, offering more than forty units of work in the languages, sciences, vocational training, social sciences, etc.

NORMAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT for students intending to teach.

SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS, offering work in Piano, Harmony, History of Music, Theory, Voice, Public Speaking, etc.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT, offering competent instruction in Book-keeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, etc.

STANDARD GRADE SCHOOL under experienced and well-trained teachers.

TEACHERS' CERTIFICATES

The work of all departments accredited. Our second-year college students receive State Teachers' Certificates in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and other States, without examination.

UNUSUALLY STRONG FACULTY OF CHRISTIAN MEN AND WOMEN

Every teacher holds degrees from standard colleges and universities. Every regular teacher has been trained in Christian schools, and loves the work.

THE SCHOOL WHICH GIVES YOU MOST FOR YOUR MONEY

Tuition only $20 and $25 a term, or $40 and $50 for entire year. Board last year, $14.89 a month; this year, expected to be $14 or under. Rooms from $5 to $8 a month. Almost no fees. Can you beat this anywhere?

Write for a Catalog. Have Your Room Reserved Now

HARPER COLLEGE, HARPER, KANSAS

J. N. ARMSTRONG, President

L. C. SEARS, Dean

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE

HENDERSON, TENNESSEE

ADMINISTRATION BUILDING AND GIRLS' DORMITORY

A standard junior college maintaining the following departments: Grammar School, High School, Collegiate, Bible, Business, Shorthand, Typewriting, Instrumental Music, Voice, Vocal Music, Expression, etc. New $75,000.00 Girls' Home. Strong Faculty. Christian atmosphere. Reasonable rates. Write for catalog.

FREED-HARDEMAN COLLEGE

HENDERSON, TENNESSEE

Now is the time to renew your subscription.

Field Reports

Ackerman, Miss., August 8.—Brother J. Roy Vaughan, of Jackson, Miss., now at Kitchener, recently held two successful meetings in this county—one at Friendship, four miles north of Ackerman, and one at Reform. There were fourteen additions in all—four at Friendship and eleven at Reform. These churches were greatly benefited by his strong, scriptural lessons, and we think much prejudice was removed. We thank God that this young man is doing such splendid work. Having been intimately associated with Brother M. C. Cayce, it seems that he has picked up his mantle. May he ever remain humble and true to the Lord.—Mrs. H. D. Jeffcoat.

Natchez, Miss., August 8.—I have just closed my work near Utica, Miss. For ten days I preached at Carpenter, where we have a small congregation of loyal members. Brother R. L. Sweeney, formerly of Hillsboro, Tenn., has the oversight of this work. He has lived in this community for the past eleven years and has never given up the fight, notwithstanding his many discouragements. This meeting was well attended, the attention was fine, and one was baptized. At the close of this meeting I went to preach for a few nights to the people living on Brother Sweeney's plantation. Brother Sweeney, together with his good wife, has been meeting with and teaching these people each Sunday afternoon for some time. We had good crowds at this place. Three were baptized, and the wife of one of those baptized came from the Baptists. I will begin at Whiteapple, Miss., next Sunday; next, at Ridgeland, near Jackson, Miss.—T. C. Fox.

Elmdale, Montana, August 1.—I have been too busy for the past few months to make a report. I have been preaching all that I could and care for my sick boy, who has undergone two operations in the last three months. During the past three months I received two hundred and fifty-six dollars and sixty-five cents. I have paid out fifty dollars for my own expenses while preaching the gospel; my family had to be fed, and my boy is now in the hospital, with about three hundred dollars expenses. I am now going to the harvest field and work to catch up. My wife will cook for harvest hands while I am in the fields. Brethren, we have nothing about which to complain. We are no better than Paul, who labored with his own hands to supply his needs. We appreciate the love that has been shown us, and we will try to live to be worthy of that love. Whether we are abased or made to abound, it matters but little; for, as Paul says, when we are weak, then are we strong. I will be "blowing my gospel horn" again as soon as my obligations are met. Please do not forget that I am one of the building committee trying to build the first house belonging to God in this State. If I could find ten brethren who are willing to sacrifice as much as myself, this house would be built.—J. O. Golphenee

Among the Colored Folks

North Georgia Negro Mission Meeting.

BY W. U. BENTON.

Last July that grand, good man, Brother J. A. Perdue, held a meeting in Texas Valley, near Holland, Ga., under a brush arbor, for the colored people. He baptized me. Since then I have been devoting my time to Bible study and trying to prepare myself for usefulness among my neglected people.

During last winter Brother E. W. Moon assisted me at night in my studies, being kind and patient always, seeming glad to instruct me. For ten years he taught me at intervals through his depot ticket window as I would chance by for a ticket, handing me something good to read, and always manifesting an unusual interest in my behalf. Finally it was hard to give up the church of my dear old mother, but truth demanded it. While time shall come and go, I shall not forget the kindly interest of Brethren Perdue, Moon, Meers, and others, in my struggles to extricate myself from the bondage of sectarianism.

I thank and praise God for the gift of his Son, who washed me in his own blood, making me a son of God. "My heart's desire and prayer to God" is that my people, the unfortunate and neglected colored race, may begin to hear the glad story of the cross of my Redeemer. To this end, Brother A. J. Gilmer (colored), of Morrilton, Ark., has agreed to come here for some meetings in August and September. Brethren, you can make this possible by a contribution, and I feel sure that you will do it. Let us start a colored mission in Georgia and keep it going.

Things We Can't Afford.

We can't afford to win the gain
That means another's loss;
We can't afford to miss the crown
By stumbling at the cross.

We can't afford the heedless jest
That robs us of a friend;
We can't afford the laugh that finds
In bitter tears an end.

We can't afford for hate to give
Like hatred in return;
We can't afford to feed such flame
And make it fiercer burn.

We can't afford to lose the soul
For this world's fleeting breath;
We can't afford to barter life
In mad exchange for death.

But blind to good are we apart
From thee, all-seeing Lord;
O, grant us light that we may know
The things we can't afford!

—The Christian.

"A Hundred to the Good Already!"

"What a cinch it is to save once you get going. The big thing though, fellows, is to stick!"

ONE DOLLAR STARTS YOU HERE

THE AMERICAN NATIONAL BANK

NASHVILLE

"A GREATER BANK

for GREATER NASHVILLE."

FARMERS AND MERCHANTS BANK

NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE

OFFICERS

A. E. POTTER, President
JOE S. BOYD, Vice President
EDWARD POTTER, JR., Cashier
FRANK M. THONI, Assistant Cashier
GEORGE W. BATES, Assistant Cashier

DIRECTORS

O. W. Staley	Harris Solinsky	Leon B. McQuiddy
Jos. C. Scheffer	G. A. Harrington	W. J. Wallace
John P. Stumb	L. Kornman	Justin Potter
A. E. Potter	Chris. J. Power	Louis Huggins
H. Z. Lipscomb	Joe S. Boyd	Edward Potter, Jr.

FOUR PER CENT PAID ON SAVINGS ACCOUNTS

We Invite Your Banking Business

PARKER'S HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Wks. Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Callouses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Cuticura Soap

—Is Ideal for—

The Complexion

Soap, Ointment, Talcum, 25c. everywhere. For samples address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. V, Malden, Mass.

ASPIRIN

Insist on Bayer Package

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package, which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

THE B. H. STIEF JEWELRY CO.

We are preparing our mailing list for our New Catalogue. If you are interested in a free copy, write us.

B. H. STIEF JEWELRY CO.
CHURCH STREET
Nashville, Tennessee

Stop Itching

Skins with Tetterine

60c. at your druggist's or from
SHUPTRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

WATCH YOUR ADDRESS LABEL

Look at the address label that comes with each copy of the Gospel Advocate. If it bears a date that has passed, please send renewal of subscription—$2.00 a year.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE
Nashville, Tenn.

For Dyspepsia Take HORSFORD'S ACID PHOSPHATE

Agreeable to the most delicate stomachs. Taken before meals, tones the stomach, promotes appetite, and prevents distress. Quiets nerves, induces restful sleep. All druggists.

Back Home from Japan.

BY LILLIE CYPERT.

It has been a little over two weeks since I landed at mother's. I did not mean to be so long about thanking the brethren for this privilege, but that time has been so full. Every minute has been taken.

I had as nice a trip over as one could expect. I was not seasick, and had only one day and part of one night that could be called rough.

We were in Honolulu from Sunday morning until Monday morning. I was met at the ship by Brethren Langpaap and Bowman and was very hospitably entertained by the two families while there. I also had the privilege of meeting with the brethren on Sunday.

I was met at the pier by Sister McRae in San Francisco, Cal., and very kindly entertained in her home over two nights. I was also met by one of our Japanese brethren who is in San Francisco. I went from there to visit my brother, near Porterville, Cal.; and while at Porterville I visited one of the congregations in Fresno, and met several brethren that I had long read and heard of. My next stop was in Los Angeles. I was there over Sunday, and heard Brother Fuqua preach two mighty good sermons. I was entertained in the hospitable home of Brother and Sister McIntosh while there. After that I visited in order the following places: Abilene, Brownwood, Fort Worth, Cleburne, Mansfield, and Windom, Texas. I was given a brotherly welcome at each of these places.

I was glad to find a summer school in session at Abilene. I spent the night there with Sister Bishop. It was interesting to talk over things of mutual interest to us. I lived in their old home in Japan. It was also interesting to meet and talk with Brother Ishiguro (our Japanese brother) again.

The church at Brownwood was so enthusiastic, and the courtesy of the brethren—the Clardys, for instance, where I spent two nights—made me love those people more and more. They have had a great part in the work in Japan almost ever since I have been over there, and perhaps longer.

At Fort Worth, Miss Nellie Straiton was waiting for me at the station gate. It is enough to say that her mother knows as well how to be a mother to strangers as she does to her own family. I was there from Saturday until Tuesday evening. I visited two congregations in Fort Worth, also Cleburne and Mansfield, while there.

The Cleburne brethren are indeed a wide-awake congregation. May God

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is sold in that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine, as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, backaches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting CAPUDINE

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard, and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

New York City Church of Christ 239 West Sixty-Ninth Street

Services: 2:30 P.M., Bible Study; 3:15 P.M., Preaching and Communion.

E. E. Shoulders, Evangelist, 699 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Phone, Flatbush 6857.

direct them to do what they really can do.

It being July 4, I met only two sisters at Mansfield. That church has been faithful in holding up my hands while "over there."

I believe the most enthusiastic church I met with was at Windom. The congregation there is mostly women, but there are some faithful men. They are carrying on their work without a preacher, because they do not feel financially able to support one. But they always have a part in the missionary work.

The most troublesome part of my trip was from there on home. I visited my other brother, near Okmulgee, Okla. From there I had to spend two nights in hotels and two with friends before I could get home, the cause being the uncertainty of trains and rain.

Mother met me at Leslie, Ark. I was glad to find her much improved in health over what I had expected. In fact, I think she is stronger and looks better than she did when I went away.

I desire to express my gratitude to each one who is responsible for this great pleasure of being with friends and loved ones again, and sincerely thank all concerned for their contributions for my traveling expenses—a total of five hundred dollars. This was sufficient to have come home first-class all the way. But I knew the brethren had sacrificed to supply this, and I knew the needs in Japan. Therefore, I secured a second-class steamship ticket, which cost only half what a first-class ticket would have cost. The ticket cost one hundred and fifty dollars, and with the rest I put all of my part of the work over there on a three-months' financial basis and had enough left for my railroad fare home. I got clergy rates to Porterville, Cal. From there I got a round-trip tourist ticket, which cost less than a straight ticket at clergy rates and gave me all the stop overs I wanted. I arrived home with a little more than twenty-six dollars. I received at Brownwood, Texas, $7.85; at Windom, Texas, $8.95. My railroad expenses home were about one hundred and twenty dollars; total expenses home, about two hundred and seventy dollars.

"To the Friends of the Gospel Advocate."

BY S. F. MORROW.

I noticed some weeks since what Brother McQuiddy said in regard to Brother H. Leo Boles' connection with the Gospel Advocate Company; also Brother Hall's article, "To the Friends of the Gospel Advocate." I want to commend everything Brother Hall said. I note also the statements of Brother Boles in a recent issue on "The Mission of the Gospel Advocate." It appears to me that upon that platform every Christian could go to work for the success of the Gospel Advocate and double the subscription list within twelve months. Every preacher and elder should speak publicly in its behalf, and an active person should be selected in each congregation to take subscriptions.

Reading what Brother Boles had to say of the mission of the paper carried my mind back to his statement upon becoming president of the Nashville Bible School. He said he felt his littleness for such an undertaking, but, by the help of God and with the prayers of the brethren, he would do his best. It goes without saying that he kept his pledge. The lamented David Lipscomb said to me time and again that he had never had a helper so prompt as Brother Boles. I hope and pray that he may be as successful in his present undertaking.

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with
Gray's Ointment
 Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

The Heart of a Child.

There is all that's earnest
 In the heart of a child,
 There is all that's finest
 With naught of guile.
 You've a wax plant there,
 So handle with care.
 Don't crush or beguile
 The heart of a child.

It is easy to reach
 The heart of a child;
 So hurry and teach
 That which is worth while.
 Plant only the best—
 It is worth the test—
 Ere thoughts grow wild
 In the heart of a child.
 —Anna Venable Taylor.

CANCER HOSPITAL. Intra-venous treatment for cancer. Operation, Radium and X-Ray unnecessary. Booklet giving full information upon request. Box 2127, ATLANTA, GA.

Dodson's Liver Tone

Instead of Calomel

Calomel is quicksilver. It attacks the bones and paralyzes the liver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it will regulate the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel, without sickening or salivating you. Fifteen million bottles sold.

McShane Bell Foundry Co.
 BALTIMORE, MD.
 CHURCH, CHIME and PEAL BELLS
 Memorials a Specialty

A Grateful Mother writes:

Galveston, Texas,
March 12, 1920.

Anglo-American Drug Co.,
New York, N. Y.
Dear Friends:

I want to tell you, as well as thank you, for what your preparation has done for my baby. He was a little, cross, crying baby, awfully constipated all the time, when I started to give it to him. But now he is a big, fat baby, and I cannot speak too highly of your preparation.

I know there is nothing that can come up to Mrs. Winslow's Syrup for a baby and I feel that it was a God-sent blessing to me. I will tell any mother what it has done for my baby.

With all good wishes to you and your preparation,
 Respectfully,
 (Name on request)

Diarrhoea, colic, flatulency and teething troubles are relieved by this safe, pleasant preparation. Non-narcotic, non-alcoholic.

MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP

The Infants' and Children's Regulator
 Open formula on every label. At All Druggists.
ANGLO-AMERICAN DRUG CO., 215-217 Fulton Street, New York
General Selling Agents:
Harold F. Ritchie & Co., Inc., New York, Toronto, London, Sydney

ShirGar
 PAT. FEB. 15, 1910
 HOLDS SHIRT DOWN
 SOAKS UP
 DON'T BIND LEGS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER GIVE IT A TRIAL.

STYLE A

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good
 WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
 HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
 SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY
WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by
Washington Manufacturing Company
 Nashville, Tennessee

ShirGar
 PAT. FEB. 15, 1910
 NO BULGING OF
 SHIRT NO MORE
 VARICOSE VEINS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER GIVE IT A TRIAL.

STYLE B

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

If not sold by your druggist, write Wintersmith Chemical Co., Louisville, Ky.

SOLD
50
YEARS

The Way of the Cross.

BY L. T. RIGHTSELL.

Jesus told, in his talks to the people who thronged him, that it is futile to think about being a Christian without taking up one's cross and following him. It is not merely futile; it is wicked. Nothing is more contemptible and reprehensible than "joining the church" to better one's social position or to have the church carry one along without much self-help or self-denial.

Thoughtless people censure the Bible because it reveals and approves of this self-denial and self-sacrifice involved in the plan of salvation. But it is the real and logical factor in all achievement. The tool wears itself out in shaping the wood or metal required in the construction of anything whatever. The man wears out in the task of amassing a fortune or in acquiring great scholarship. The woman who rears a beautiful, well-respected family, "her jewels," becomes faded and worn and frail in the exercise of her strenuous task. All must lose themselves in order to find themselves.

The physician who saves the lives of thousands loses himself through his great task. He denies himself joy and self-indulgence in the days of youth and elasticity. He spends in his laboratory in toilsome research the days and hours that he really needs for rest and recreation. He often engages in experiments that expose him to contagion and danger of death, that he may continue his services to mankind. He attains his end, but he is a worn-out and used-up human being. So a Christian becomes great in the kingdom of heaven by being the servant of all.

Mission Meeting at Quitman, Ark.

BY J. D. TANT.

I have just closed our mission meeting at my home in Quitman. The churches were kind enough to send me help to pay my singers, Brother Phillips, of Tennessee, and Brother Waldrip, of Arkansas. Buying sixty song books for the meeting and paying all incidental expenses, as well as my time, the meeting cost me about one hundred dollars. Yet I have held few meetings that I believe reached as many people as this one did. There were only four confessions, yet hundreds of people heard the gospel for fifteen days. As this has been a Methodist stronghold for fifty years, I am greatly pleased with our hearing and look forward to a time when we will have a strong church here. If I can persuade some strong church to send me a preacher and singer for ten days this fall, and follow with another meeting next summer, we hope to build a strong church here. This is not only a beautiful country, but a fine farming country. A man can buy a far better home here for three thousand dollars than he can for ten thousand in the black lands of Texas. I would be glad to locate from ten to twenty Christian families here. We have a good school and mean soon to have a good church. If any are interested, write me. Many of the sects are getting restless on account of my Bible teaching, and see nothing but the downfall of their churches if the Bible is taught here, and are anxious to sell and leave. I know of some extra good farms for sale. To all the churches and individuals who had fellowship in this meeting I give my love and thanks.

Unless the church is growing, it is dying.—Charles K. Brown.

COLLEGE LIFE

is more than studying textbooks and meeting classes.

EDUCATION IS PREPARATION

This means preparation for the highest and best living possible. Thorough preparation is more than theory; it is more than a setting forth of general principles.

"EXPERIENCE KEEPS A DEAR SCHOOL," and not only fools learn in no other. All of us learn by "trying"—by doing. Abilene Christian College, for these reasons, seeks not only to impart theoretical knowledge and implant principles, though these aims are doubtless fundamental—she strives also to provide for her students ways and means of really learning by doing. Hence,

STUDENT ACTIVITIES

of various kinds are sponsored by the faculty. Literary and debating societies, dramatic clubs, choral and glee clubs, orchestra, brass band, and other musical associations, various athletic organizations, a society for the development of journalistic talent, and, not at all the least, plenty of wholesome, joyful, clean social life for all students—these things serve the double purpose of providing development into the well-rounded man or woman and removing the humdrum effects of the continual daily tasks of college life, substituting for the monotony

WHOLESOME RECREATION AND REAL FUN

Come where there is play, as well as hard work. Write for literature.

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

ABILENE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

JESSE P. SEWELL, President

ABILENE, TEXAS

When You're Nervous

Whatever the cause—overwork, worry, grief, loss of sleep, excitement, business troubles, stimulants, narcotics—there's one medicine that will help you.

Dr. Miles' Nervine

has relieved thousands of cases of headache, dizziness, irritability, sleeplessness, hysteria, epilepsy. Buy a bottle of your druggist and start on the road to better health today.

You'll Find Dr. Miles' Medicines at your Drug Store.

Dr. Miles' Guaranteed Medicines.

Dr. Miles' Nervine
Dr. Miles' Heart Treatment
Dr. Miles' Tonic
Dr. Miles' Blood Purifier
Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills
Dr. Miles' Laxative Tablets
Dr. Miles' Tonic

Gospel Advocate

Volume LXIV. No. 34.

NASHVILLE, TENN. AUGUST 24, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Creeds	793
OUR CONTRIBUTORS	794
Free Literature—Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes—Not a Hoof Left Behind—Some Questions from K. C. Moser—A Placard—Cookeville, Tenn.—The Annual Convention—Singing.
EVANGELISTIC NOTES	800
EDITORIAL	802
The Second Great Commission—Questions Growing Out of Denominational Confusion—The First Epistle to the Thessalonians—Commendations.
HOME READING	806
CURRENT COMMENT	807
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT	808
Croft Academy—Financial Report of Work at Washington, D. C.	810
True Aims and False Aims	811
A Special Plea	814
AMONG THE COLORED FOLKS	815
FIELD REPORTS	812, 813, 816

CREEDS.

[We are glad to give our readers a vigorous article from the pen of Jacob Creath on "Creeds." This is a reprint from an essay published in 1845 by Brother Creath. He lived in St. Louis, Mo., at the time he published his essay on "Creeds."—H. Leo B.]

We shall use the word "creed" in its usual and popular acceptance. Judge Blackstone says it is the usual or common signification of a word that determines its meaning. Words are the stipulated signs of ideas; these are clothed with words as our bodies are with garments. Webster defines the word "creed" to be a brief summary of the articles of Christian faith. The Popish Manual contains a brief summary of the Catholic faith. The Episcopal Prayer Book contains a brief summary of the faith of the Church of England. The Westminster Confession of Faith contains a brief summary of the Presbyterian faith; it is styled, "The Constitution of the Presbyterian Church in the United States." The London and Philadelphia Confessions of Faith contain a brief summary of the Baptist faith; and the Discipline contains a brief summary of the faith of the Methodist Episcopal Church, according to the above great names of Blackstone and Webster. A creed, according to them and the above illustrations, is a visible, tangible, written and printed book, set forth to the world by each of the above-named and highly respectable and numerous denominations, as a brief summary of their respective faiths.

The English word "creed" is derived from the Latin verb "credo" (I believe) and from the Saxon word "creda" (I believe). According to the above popular use of the word "creed," a man's writings are not his creed—his sermon is not his creed—his views are not a creed. Calvin's Institutes are not the creed of the Presbyterian Church, but the longer and shorter catechisms. Wesley's sermons and writings are not the creed of the Methodists, but a book called "the Discipline." Gill's and Fuller's writings are not the creed of the Baptists, but the London and Philadelphia Confessions of Faith. We do not call the sermons, nor the discourses, nor the writings of one man, the creed of a denomination; but a brief summary put forth by the whole fraternity. According to Webster, these denominations have not their creeds in their heads, nor in their pockets, but in a printed book. This is a fair and common-sense meaning of the word "creed." There was no Hume's History of England, nor Gibbon's History of the Fall of Rome, before they were written, printed, and circulated. They were not called histories while they were in their authors' heads, but when they became visible and tangible. A man cannot carry Hume's History in his head. The word "creed" is a definite and clearly defined word, as much as the word "history," "chair," "table," or "house." A person cannot carry a creed, nor any of the above-named things, in his head. A creed must be written, printed, visible, and tangible, so that it may be examined and appealed to by the denomination who set it forth, and by the public. So much, therefore, for the popular meaning of the word "creed." And, according to this broad and popular meaning of the word "creed," the denomination to which the author of this essay belongs has no creed. If it has, he has not seen it nor heard of it; and if our denomination had a written and printed creed, that would not prove that it was right to have creeds; two wrongs cannot make one right—two blacks cannot make one white.

The next question is, Are the above creeds authorized by the word of God—the Bible—or are they made by human authority? We say they were made by poor fallible man. Let him that says they are authorized by the sacred writings point us to "Thus saith the Lord, You shall have a brief summary of faith." This, the advocates of creeds are bound to do. Protestants, in their discussions with Catholics about the utility of the mass, the cross, and the Pope's supremacy, say: "Give us apostolic precept or example for these things, and we will have them, too." James, the apostle, says, there is one Lawgiver, who is able to save the obedient and to destroy the disobedient. Reader, how many do you say there are—one or four—one or fifty? Is the Pope the one lawgiver? or is it Luther, or Calvin, or Wesley? We say, it is Jesus Christ, the Son of God.

To all persons who believe that uninspired men have power to make laws to bind the consciences of men, we submit the following interrogatories: (1) Have the Pope and his cardinals a right to make a creed for the Protestants? (2) Has the Pope a right to make a creed for all the world? (3) Who gave him such authority? (4) Has one Protestant a right to make a creed for all the other Protestant denominations? (5) And will all of them agree to be bound by the creed of one? (6) Can any one sect in Christendom renounce their creed and submit to that of any other and maintain its own separate existence afterwards? (7) For example, can the Baptists adopt the creed of the Methodists and remain Baptists afterwards? (8) Can the Catholics adopt the creed of any one of the Protestant sects and maintain the separate identity of the Catholic institution afterwards? (9) Can America adopt the British constitution and maintain her republican institutions afterwards? (10) Can the European States adopt the American constitution and maintain their kingly governments afterwards? (11) Can two constitutions be obligatory upon one people or nation at the same time? (12) Can America be bound by the British constitution and the Bill of Rights at once? (13) Can any denomination of Christians be bound by a creed and the Bible at the same time? (14) Can all the European governments be grouped under the American constitution and support their separate identity? (15) Can the Catholics and Protestants be grouped under the New Testament and still remain Catholics and Protestants? (16) Can all the Protestant sets be couched under the New Testament and remain as they now are?

We subscribe, most heartily, to the following quotation from the twentieth page of the Presbyterian Confession of Faith: "The Supreme Judge, by whom all controversies of religion are to be determined, and all decrees of councils, opinions of ancient writings, doctrines of men and private spirits, are to be examined, and in whose sentence we are to rest, can be no other but the Holy Spirit, speaking in the Scriptures." And on page 150: "The Scriptures of the Old and New Testaments are the word of God—the only rule of faith and obedience." They are not simply a rule of faith, or the rule of faith and obedience, but the only rule of faith and obedience. Therefore, it is wrong to have any other rule than the only rule of faith and obedience.

Thus we have demonstrated—fully demonstrated, I trust, to the entire satisfaction of the reader—our first proposition—to wit: "That human creeds are unauthorized by God; that they are human productions; that they were made by fallible men; that they are human opinions, inferences, and deductions of the human mind from the Scriptures; that they are traditions of men; that they are not binding upon the human conscience; that they are unscriptural and unnecessary."

The Bible is the Christian's creed. The Old Testament contains the Jews' religion; the New Testament contains the religion of Jesus Christ. If these two religions are false, then there is no true religion; then Mohammedanism is false, paganism is false, and all other religions are false. The attributes of the Christian's creed are seven. (1) The Christian's creed is inspired; for Peter says: "Holy men of God spake as they were moved by the Holy Spirit." All Christians agree to this; but they do not agree that any human creed is inspired. (2) The Christian's creed is authoritative: "The words that I speak to you shall judge you in the last day," says the Lord from heaven. (3) The Christian's creed is intelligible. Paul says: "When you read, you may understand my knowledge in the mystery of Christ." (4) The Christian's creed is moral in its tendency: "The word of the Lord is pure." (Ps. 19: 119.) (5) The Christian's creed is perpetual: "The word of the Lord endures forever, and this is the word which has been announced as glad tidings to you." (Peter.) (6) The Christian's creed is catholic: "He that is of God hears God's word; "Preach the word;" "Preach the gospel to every creature." (7) The Christian's creed is perfect: "From a child thou hast known the holy scriptures, which are able to make thee wise unto salvation;" "All scripture is given by inspiration of God, and is profitable for doctrine, for reproof, for correction, for instruction in righteousness: that the man of God may be perfect, thoroughly furnished unto all good works."

If the creeds agree with the Bible, then they are as useless as a fifth wheel to a wagon; if they disagree with the Bible, then they are pernicious and impious, and should be burned, as the Ephesians did their magical books. (Acts 19.) This one argument sets them aside forever."

INSTRUMENTAL MUSIC IN THE WORSHIP

By M. C. Kurfess

Cloth. 300 pages. Price, postpaid.....$1.50

This is the most comprehensive book on this important subject now before the public. In it the Greek verb "psallo" is philologically and historically examined, together with a full discussion of kindred matters relating to music in Christian worship. The book is the result of a lifetime of critical study and research, and has become the standard of information on the music question. It has been highly recommended by scholarly brethren in the church of Christ and in the religious world.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY
Nashville, Tenn.

Our Contributors

Free Literature.

BY C. E. HOLT.

"Free literature" means books, tracts, and papers for free distribution among the reading public. Every religious body holding to one or more points of doctrine peculiar to itself, and which it regards essential to the salvation of men and women, seeks through every available channel to get such point or points of doctrine before the people. Books and tracts which lay especial emphasis upon such peculiar points are written and sold and given away with the hope of interesting others in such teaching.

Of course, every religious body founded upon, and nourished by, such peculiar tenets or doctrines peculiar to itself regards such doctrines as constituting the only remedy for all the errors in religion and the infallible cure for every ill. Their object is to convince others that they have found the "pearl of great price" in the religious field, and their zeal for, and loyalty to, such a propaganda often awakens in the minds of their readers or hearers a feeling of interest which sometimes leads to an acceptance of their peculiar tenets.

The Adventists, Russellites, Mormons, Christian Scientists, and some others, each has what it regards the greatest and most valuable doctrines for man's good in this world and the surest guarantee of eternal life in the world to come. There is one fact about such peculiar things that is often overlooked by superficial minds—and most minds are superficial—and that is that the things which are peculiar to each religious body are found somewhere in the Bible. The peculiarity consists, then, not that their teaching is not found in the Bible, but in the use to which it is put and the application that is made in reference thereto.

For example, we take the doctrine of Sabbath observance as taught by the Adventists. There are many very plain statements in the Bible in regard to Sabbath observance. The seventh day of the week, hallowed by Jehovah at the conclusion of creation, and which stood as a day of rest in commemoration thereof, was incorporated into, and became a part of, the fundamental law of the Jewish nation. But it belonged to, and was an essential part of, the national law to Israel. That law was a pedagogue (schoolmaster) to lead to Christ. That law was not abrogated nor repudiated, but was fulfilled—filled full—by Jesus, whose death upon the cross marked its cessation, its demise, and the legal divorcement of Israel therefrom, and the opening up of the "new and living way" through which all men can come to God through Christ Jesus. It is no trouble to find where God required Israel—old Israel—to observe the seventh day of the week, but no Christian was ever commanded to observe it. When the Sabbath became a part of the law to Israel, a new meaning was attached thereto. It became a "sign" between God and the children of Israel—a day to be observed in memory of their deliverance from the bondage of Egypt.

The second coming of Christ is not peculiar, so far as the New Testament is concerned, for its pages just sparkle with the promise that he will come to earth again. But Mr. Russell took this precious truth and trimmed it up to suit his visionary kingdom, the coming of which was not only imminent, but which is to bring about conditions which are purely Russellistic or some other kind of an "istic."

In view of these facts and other facts to which attention might be called, I ask, have we any doctrine or tenet that could be properly styled "peculiar?" If not, then I would suggest that the best literature that we could distribute, free or otherwise, is the twenty-seven books called the "New Testament." Does the New Testament contain the entire and complete will of God to man? But is it safe to put the New Testament without notes or comments or explanations into the hands of the "common" people—the masses? This question fifty years ago would have been answered in the affirmative. Should it be so answered now? But we may be told that peculiar conditions have arisen within the last few decades which make it unsafe, or, at least, inadvisable, to advise the people to read the New Testament without note or comment or explanation. Granted that new conditions have arisen, are they of such a nature that the New Testament does not cover the ground? What are some of these conditions? Is it a fact that some of our congregations, or congregations that were once identified with us, use instruments of music in worship? This is true, and this has made a division which, from all we can see and know, is permanent. But the question is now in order, did this practice of using instruments in divine worship grow out of, and is it really based upon, anything either in precept or example found in the New Testament? When instruments were first introduced among us, no one claimed even the shade of a shadow of authority in the New Testament for their use. They were brought in and defended upon the ground of "expediency." They were classed with song books, blackboards, tuning forks, and other accessories and expedients. Later some have undertaken to argue that the Greek verb "psallo," translated in every authoritative English version under heaven by the English verb "sing," contains authority for the use of instruments in the song service. Neither the ordinary mind nor any other mind, whether weak or strong, not prepossessed by a wish or desire to use instruments in worship, would ever get such an idea or suggestion from reading the New Testament Scriptures. If people would read the New Testament more and human literature less, it would be much better for them.

Now, I am not seeking to make the impression that good papers and good books on Bible subjects should not be published and distributed and read. The printing press can and should be used in preaching the gospel to the people. Every book and tract and religious paper should have one object in view, and that one object should be to induce the people to accept and follow the New Testament Scriptures in everything connected with their salvation. It is unwise and unsafe to exalt one truth or doctrine to a degree of prominence that would lead people to make that truth paramount to all other truths with which it is connected and of which it is a part. This is the great mistake of all the sects in Christendom.

If I had a million dollars to use in the publication and distribution of "free literature," I would spend the greater part in printing copies of the New Testament in large type, accompanied with a small tract containing instructions how to read the word of God to the best advantage. A tract on the all-sufficiency of the word would be valuable in this age of the world.

Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes.

BY W. EDGAR MILLER.

The last two or three Lord's days at the Central congregation, 1720 South Flower Street, have been among the very best we have had since the beginning, the first of the year. Both the numbers and the contributions have been on the increase.

Sunday, July 31, was the day of our first annual all-day meeting. The invitation to attend had been scattered broadcast and had been well received. As the hour approached for the services to begin, the visitors began to come in from all points of the compass and continued until we had an audience of two hundred and eighty-four. This made it necessary for us to throw open the double doors and allow the hall adjoining to receive the overflow. Nearly all the congregations in this section were represented, and there were seven visiting preachers, each of whom made a short address on the subject of "Working Together." Each address contained a good lesson and was well received. There were also three visiting song leaders, each of whom took turn in leading a number of the good old songs. At the close of the services the congregation adjourned to Sycamore Grove, where a basket dinner was spread and enjoyed by all. At the grove we were joined by a number from the different congregations who had attended services at their home congregation and had come to enjoy the afternoon with us. It was the largest basket dinner we have had in the history of the work in Los Angeles, and many lingered until late in the afternoon to visit and get better acquainted with each other. These meetings tend to better fellowship and coöperation, and the wish was expressed by a number that there might be more of them, as there doubtless will be.

Immediately after the dinner Brother R. E. Wright, who has labored with us for the past five months, left for a visit to his home in Tennessee, expecting to be gone about thirty days. Brother Wright has greatly endeared himself to us all in the few months he has been with us, and we only let him go back on condition that he would "hurry back." He has a little farm back in the Tennessee hills, and he intimated quite audibly that it would not be safe for any one to offer him too much for it while he was there, or they might find they had "bought a ranch." Well, that would suit us all right, as Wright suits us.

Now, while we shall miss Brother Wright, we consider ourselves very fortunate in having another good man to take his place during his absence, in the person of Brother Russell King, of Nashville, Tenn., who is sojourning in Los Angeles for a few weeks on business. Brother King is one of those quiet, modest, unassuming men that one would hardly suspect of being a preacher; but when he unlimbers himself in the pulpit, we find that he can shoot hard and straight. He is a fearless and able proclaimer of the word and ought to be kept busy preaching all the time instead of having to "make tents" for a living. Quite a number have expressed a wish that he might come to California to stay, and I believe Brother King is beginning to feel a little that way himself.

There is not a greater field in the whole wide world than this coast; but whoever comes here will find that the devil has to be contended with here just the same as anywhere else, if not a little more so than in some places. But the greater the victory, the greater the joy and satisfaction of having won it.

Not a Hoof Left Behind.

(Continued from last week.)

Now watch the transition and the change. At first it was stubborn rebellion, absolute refusal. Pharaoh proposed not to go into any kind of a conference with them; but when the matter began to get a little bit serious, due to the fact that plagues, four in number, had been visited out upon the Egyptians, and not upon the Israelites over in the land of Goshen, Pharaoh began to think: "Maybe I had better consult with them and see if we can adjust the matter." So he came to Moses and proposed a compromise on the question, and I would have you get it as found in Ex. 8. "Now," he said, "Moses, if you Israelites want to worship God, there is no use of your going clear across the Red Sea and three days' journey into the wilderness; worship God in the land with us. You don't have to leave Egypt in order to worship God. Just stay right where you are. And if you are determined to worship some other than the Egyptian god, you don't have to run away to do it, but do so right here in the land of Egypt." And Moses said: "Really, we can't do that." "Now, why?" "Because we worship our God by the sacrifice of the sheep and of the lambs, and that to the Egyptians is a sacred animal. Now, shall we offer the abomination right in the presence of the Egyptians? We could not do it. I will have to turn your proposition down and insist upon the original—namely, that we go out of the land of Egypt, that we cross the Red Sea, that we go three days' journey into the wilderness, and there worship the God of our being."

Well, Pharaoh presented another proposition, compromise number two, immediately following that, and said: "If you are determined to worship God, and determined to cross the Red Sea, I will agree to that on one condition." "Now, what is it?" "On the condition that you go not far away, but just go over on the other shore thereof, and we can look and play back and forth, and carry on a flirtation, and I will not especially object." Well, Moses, just deliberately, and speaking as egotistically, apparently, as if he had been the superior of Pharaoh, absolutely and positively rejected the proposition and the terms thus made, and said: "Not so, Pharaoh, but my original request must be granted. We will go out into the wilderness three days' journey."

After that, Pharaoh hardened his heart, stiffened his neck, took more courage and more zeal, more tenacity and determination, and positively said: "You cannot go at all." Then what? The Lord said: "Moses, I am going to send upon the cattle which is in the field, upon the horses, upon the asses, upon the camels, upon the oxen, and upon the sheep, a very grievous murrain, so that all the cattle of the land of Egypt will die; but regarding the cattle of the Israelites just across the border, up in the land of Goshen, there shall be no ailment, no murrain or disease among them." And by and by the time came, and this plague was visited upon the Egyptians, so that all of their cattle died; hence, there was a general destruction or devastation of the cattle of all the people of Egypt.

Following that, Moses took some ashes out of the furnace, and threw it up into the air, and it settled down upon all the Egyptians, and all things connected therewith, and broke out in boils with blains—that is, with little white blisters in the midst thereof—until all Egypt was sorely distressed because of the terrible plague of boils that had been visited out upon them.

After that, and scarcely before its passing, God said: "Moses, I will send such a destruction upon the land, and upon the vegetation, as has never been." Then a terrible plague of hail came down and destroyed all of their vegetation that was then growing and ripening until there was scarcely anything left. The record says that thunders came, and hail came, and lightnings, and fires played along the ground until a terrible scene was characteristic of the land of Egypt.

After that was past, Pharaoh said: "Moses, let me see you a minute. I have another proposition to make to you. I certainly want us to arrange some terms, and now let us have a compromise, and both of us yield. Moses, I want to know who it is that wants to go, anyhow, to worship God. Now, I will tell you what: you that are men go—I will agree to that, I will go that far. I will agree for all the men folks and the older folks to go to worship God—but just leave your little ones here with me." Be it remembered, my friends, that the devil is mean and wily, cunning, exceedingly scheming in all of his doings, but you never have yet even thought of charging him with lacking ability and intelligence. I want to say to you that he has never been charged with being a fool in the common acceptance of the term. He had an eye to business, and he knew as well then as you and I know now that if just the older people would go and leave the young ones back in Egypt, they would not go very far until they would be coming back and forth, and it would be but a question of time until all were again in servitude under the authority of Pharaoh.

Well, that proposition was likewise turned down; and it does seem that Moses is unrelenting, absolutely unyielding, in all the propositions and compromises made him.

After that, Pharaoh hardened his heart, and said, "Well, sir, the thing is all off," or words equivalent thereto. Then what? The Lord said: "Moses, stretch your wand over the sea." Moses did so, and it brought forth such a host of locusts as the world had never before seen, and every particle of vegetation, the last vestige of it that was left from the hail, was utterly devoured by that terrible company of locusts that poured forth upon the land of Egypt until it looked like death and destruction and starvation was evidenced upon every hand.

That having passed, God says: "Next I will cause a great darkness to come over all the land of Egypt, a darkness so thick that it may be felt, until every man is shut up in his home, and that he cannot see another inmate thereof." And all Egypt sat in the very midst of darkness, thick enough, figuratively speaking, that it might be felt, for a period of three days. Then, when Pharaoh relented and became apparently penitent again, God withdrew the plague and the proposition was again put up to Moses, compromise number four, and he said: "Now, Moses, I first agreed for you to worship God—I yielded that much—but I wanted you to do it in the land of Egypt. Upon your refusal to accede to that, I went a step further: I offered compromise number two, that you might go across the Red Sea, if you would not go far, but just stay in sight on the further shore. You refused that. Then I came with terms again, and with conciliation. I proposed the next time that all of you that were men, and all the older ones, could go, only that you leave your little ones behind. Now, I have come with my last proposition, and I want you to act on it." He said: "Moses, if you are determined, and if these plagues are to continue upon us, I am ready to make the final suggestion." Now note. "All of you go. Take your older men, likewise your women, and take your little ones, your children, your infants—all of you—and go to worship God. Just one request. Leave behind your flocks and herds." Then Moses gave the sentiment that I chose as my text, without stopping to quarrel about it or to take the matter under advisement. He had already decided. "Why," he said, "Pharaoh, there shall not a hoof be left behind, for thereof must we serve and worship the God of our being. Without our flocks and our herds, what could we offer in sacrifice unto God?" And when that last statement was made, they started out toward the waters of the Red Sea, with the positive understanding and agreement that they would burn the bridges, that all of their possessions should be gathered; not even so much as one hoof should be left behind of their horses, their cattle, their asses, but all of them should go across the Red Sea, three days' journey into the wilderness, that they might worship the God of their being.

(To be continued.)

Some Questions from K. C. Moser.

"WHAT MUST I DO TO BE SAVED?"—WHY THE CONFUSION OF ANSWERS?

Divisions have existed so long that many pass them by as indifferent, and a few strangely attempt to justify them. We are accustomed to divisions on vital matters. It is even true that the greatest disagreement is found in answer to the question, "What must I do to be saved?"

Think of it. Did Christ procure the salvation of man and then fail to tell him plainly how to be saved? If so, is he not mocking man? Would such a failure be consistent with the love that caused him to die? Would I fail to tell plainly my own brother how to escape death? Nothing could possibly be more absurd than for Christ to die for the world, then to darken his teaching so that no one could certainly know what he must do to be saved. If the Bible, when correctly translated, is not plain at this point above all others, is it the word of God?

Peter was not asked by any of the great multitude present on Pentecost to explain his answer to the question: "Brethren, what shall we do?" Three thousand by their prompt obedience bear evidence of its simplicity. The simplicity of the answer is further realized when it is remembered that this was the first time the gospel in its completeness was ever preached, and certainly the first time that Peter's answer was ever given. Does the inspired explanation of things to man need an explanation by man?

When the eunuch, puzzled over the prophecies of Isaiah, had Christ preached to him, did he fail to understand? His prompt obedience again argues the simplicity of the divine message.

The jailer, too, asked the question: "What must I do to be saved?" "The same hour of the night" found him in the possession of an intelligible answer. Likewise Paul, Cornelius, Lydia, and hundreds of others found no difficulty in understanding their duty. The Lord said: "I will tell you plainly of the Father."

Whence, then, the present trouble? "For the time will come when they will not endure the sound doctrine; but, having itching ears, will heap to themselves teachers after their own lusts; and will turn away their ears from the truth, and turn aside unto fables." (2 Tim. 4: 3, 4.) Peter wrote that false teachers would "privily bring in destructive heresies." (2 Pet. 2: 1.) Paul warned the Ephesian church that out of their own number some would arise, "speaking perverse things." (Acts 20: 30.) And, finally, the Galatians were troubled with a perverted gospel.

Yet these false doctrines are not said to be the result of a misunderstanding, but of willful perversion. Sound doctrine could not be endured. Destructive heresies were "brought in." The sin was premeditated. "Perverse things" were spoken by those already in the church. Now, question: Do these perverted gospels, willful departures from the truth, find their parallels in the false teachings of to-day?

Was Luther dishonest? Did he know the truth, but could not "endure the sound doctrine?" Or, if honest, was it impossible for him to learn the truth? Did Calvin practice deception? Did he willingly "bring in destructive heresies?" Or, if honest, was it impossible for him to learn the truth? And were the Campbells simply false teachers after the lusts of men who turned away their ears from the truth and turned aside unto fables? How can the acknowledged simplicity of the answer to the query, "What must I do to be saved?" be harmonized with the disagreement among the learned and pious? What strange things happened unto them that honest, learned, and pious men must differ on such a vital point? Or did these men, in spite of their differences, learn enough truth to be saved?

A Placard.

BY A. B. BARRETT.

There hangs upon the wall of the room in which I happen to be making my home at this writing a placard that speaks volumes to me. It is only a piece of white cardboard with a dark-pink border and would mean nothing, perhaps, to any one, save a preacher. In fact, it is not so much the significance of the placard itself as it is the inscription thereupon. The legend inscribed by thoughtful and loving hands is a most unusual one, as it is the first that I have observed after a ministry among the people of twenty-five years' duration. But there is no wonder that such a placard should be found in this home when you come to know the husband and wife who dwell herein. I formed their acquaintance twenty-three years ago, and I have never heard nor known anything but good of them for all these years. And now I am thinking of a certain Shunammite and his wife of Old Testament times. All preachers, Elishalike, do love to meet these Shunammites, for they so often long for just such a place, where they can find genuine hospitality and relaxation. No wonder God says in his holy Book that this was a great woman!

The legend of the placard is as follows:

OUR PREACHERS' HOME.

LIST OF THOSE THAT HAVE USED IT.

Brethren, there is a world of meaning in these words, and a big lesson for every one of us. "Our Preachers' Home"—think of it! They are our preachers, and, of course, our homes ought to be theirs; but I fear that in the mad rush of this materialistic day we are letting the search for fleshly entertainment crowd all such nobility of heart out of us in too many instances. I find some people, however, who yet appreciate the privilege of entertaining a "holy man of God" in their homes. "Given to hospitality" is language that ought to characterize not only elders, but all Christians.

Of course, brethren are sometimes imposed upon by so-called "gospel preachers;" but, taken all in all, our preachers are a noble band of men who are sacrificing much for the Master's sake, as witness the list of those that have used it: A. G. Freed, Henderson, Tenn.; J. L. Holland, Greenfield, Tenn.; John R. Williams, Hornbeak, Tenn.; W. S. Long, Washington, D. C.; C. S. Austin, Mount Pleasant, Tenn.; W. H. Trice, Fresno, Cal.; W. C. Hall, Nashville, Tenn.; R. C. White, Nashville, Tenn.; E. P. Smith, Martin, Tenn.; N. B. Hardeman, Henderson, Tenn.; W. S. Long, Sr., Union City, Tenn.; F. O. Howell, Obion (Jackson), Tenn.; J. C. Taylor, Obion, Tenn.; I. A. Doughitt, Sedalia, Ky.; C. E. Holt, Iron City, Tenn. (1901, 1902); Earnest C. Love, Fresno, Cal.

What a grand galaxy of talent these men represent! You would have to travel a long way and a long time to find their superiors. And it is befitting that Elder A. G. Freed should stand at the head of the roll, for he is the preceptor of Long, Austin, Trice, Hardeman, Howell, Taylor, Doughitt, and possibly one or two others of the list. It is a great honor to have trained such men for the ministry of the word. And now think of the work these men have accomplished; try to imagine the ultimate results of their efforts! Eternity alone can tell the good they shall have done when they all get home to heaven. Take John R. Williams, the senior of them all, perhaps. His name is a veritable fire-side word in all this wonderful country, and those he has led into the service of the Lord must be numbered by the thousands, I am sure. I have never met him face to face; but I am just now in his own "diocese," and it is with great love and respect that every one mentions this hero of many a battle for the Lord God Almighty. Thousands upon thousands will rise up in eternity and call this man blessed.

And see where these men have gone in their labors of love! From the east to the west you will find them, going up and down in the earth, proclaiming "the acceptable year of the Lord." Think of the sacrifices they are making to press the fight! Who begrudges them the fellowship that has been extended to them, the hospitality, the coöperation? It is an honor to have part in the life work of a man of God.

And there stand back of these soldiers of the cross noble companions in love, who remain behind to bear the burden of home duties all but single-handed and alone. I am sure the angels will joyously gather themselves together in the home of the soul and rejoice at the coming of every preacher's wife when she goes home to be with the redeemed of the earth.

Then back of these companions we see another gathering; these are fathers and mothers in Israel, like this doctor and his wife, himself an elder and she a helper in Zion. All praise to them for their devotion to the Master's house!

Cookeville, Tenn.

BY H. LEO B.

It was my pleasure recently to visit this thriving little town and renew my acquaintance with many old friends and form new acquaintances. I had held a meeting there some fifteen years ago and had preached many times during the first few years after my meeting there, but of recent years it had not been my privilege to visit the church. I was greatly surprised to see the wonderful growth of the town as well as of the church.

The church has a beautiful house, with modern conveniences. Brother Larimore was in a meeting there at the time of my visit. He was having large audiences, which showed that the church was in a good spiritual condition. Brother Larimore was preaching simple gospel lessons in his own peculiar and impressive way. Brother Elam Derryberry was leading the song service, to the delight and pleasure of the entire congregation.

Brother J. Pettet Ezell is their local preacher. He is an enthusiastic and energetic worker. The church has taken on new life since he began working with it. There is no better worker than Brother Ezell. He is devoting much time toward developing the young men of the congregation. He has a number of boys and young men who are taking part in the public exercises of the church. The church holds him in very high esteem, and the young people respond promptly to his suggestions as a leader.

With the help of Brother Ezell, I secured a large number of subscribers for the Gospel Advocate. Brother Ezell was of great assistance to me in locating and visiting the different members of the church. I appreciated very much the encouragement given me by the church. Our slogan was, "Put the Gospel Advocate in every Christian home in Cookeville." Very few homes that we visited refused to subscribe for the Advocate, and these promised to subscribe a little later. The Advocate now has a long list of readers in Cookeville, and we sincerely hope that the paper will help the church in filling its mission. May the Lord bless his people in Cookeville.

The Annual Convention.

BY F. B. SRYGLEY.

The following quotation is from the report of the annual convention of our erring brethren who delight to be called "progressive Christians." This report was made by H. L. Patterson, of Paris, Tenn., who signs his name to it as official reporter; so the report comes to us as an official document. The first paragraph of the report reads as follows:

The annual convention of the churches of Christ in Tennessee that met at Ovoca Park, near Tullahoma, June 12-16, stands in the history of our work in Tennessee as the greatest convention to date. Ovoca, the home of the orphans of the Knights of Pythias, by its cottages built under the shade of the trees, overlooking a beautiful lake where delegates enjoy delightful bathing privileges, is coming to be recognized as the choice convention location of our Southland.

It will be noted that one of the chief attractions of Ovoca as a convention location is the beautiful lake where the delegates can have bathing privileges. Now, it is granted that all delegates to such a convention need bathing, but a tub and a bathroom are sufficient for such overworked, perspiring delegates. I have an idea that this beautiful lake is not so inviting to these young people as a necessary bathing place, but that its chief attraction is found in the fact that it is a swimming hole for men and women. It will be noticed that the brother mentions but one lake, and from the report there were many women present at the convention as well as men. You may call this "bathing privileges" if you want to, but the bathing part of it is the least attraction. It is not swimming or bathing alone, but it is the association of the men and women together in such delightful "privileges;" and the sad part of it all is, it is done in the name of religion.

In this same report our brother says: "There was a very good attendance of young people at the convention, and they enjoyed every moment of the five days." I do not doubt this statement in the least. A nice outing in the cool shade of trees, with such a lake where they could all swim together, is very enjoyable to certain classes of young people. Some of us have believed for some time that these conventions are kept up largely by the railroads that are paid to handle the traffic and the fun-loving delegates that want an outing at little expense.

I have recently had the opportunity of seeing some of the evil effects of men and women bathing together. Stone River for many miles above Nashville is one continuous "bathing beach," and I take this opportunity of informing our convention brethren that the best element of society along that river is becoming disgusted with it. I believe the time will soon come when the practice will be outlawed by the best people. If I were a believer in such conventions, I would never recommend a location for a convention on the ground that there was a beautiful swimming lake near by. I would advocate moving the lake or the convention. It would be more like the Scriptures to turn the convention into a protracted meeting and the swimming lake into a baptizing pool.

I could not tell from the report just how many preachers attended this convention, but I take it there were above twenty. Each one of them spent five days at the convention besides the time for going and returning. Each preacher lost a week and railroad fare. They could have held twenty meetings in that time; and if these meetings had averaged only ten additions to the meeting, it would have resulted in two hundred souls saved. Why cannot these brethren see that they are wasting their time and money in a frolic over a swimming hole? These young people do not need encouragement on such lines. They will do enough of these frivolous things—not to say wicked things—without the encouragement of these twenty or more preachers.

These conventions furnish good opportunities for preachers to distinguish themselves with great speeches and the older ladies to pass resolutions while the young people frolic in the lake. How long will it take people to see through such a thin covering? The convention is an unscriptural meeting, and it leads to more ungodliness.

Singing.

BY "UNCLE BILLIE."

What is singing? Singing is making musical sounds with the voice. According to this, people and birds can sing, but only human beings can sing intelligently.

Why do we sing? For several reasons. In the first place, it is the Lord's will that his people shall sing to praise him and to magnify his name and to edify themselves. Then we sing not only because it is a duty, but because it is a great privilege, and because we feel like it and enjoy it and are benefited by it. We sing also because it is a forceful way of presenting a thought, more so than to simply read or speak a thing.

There are two important things connected with songs and singing. One is the music or tune, and the other is the sentiment or the words and their meaning. The music by itself may be nice and pleasing to the ear, but the edifying comes from the sentiment; but the words and the tune together make the thoughts more impressive and edifying.

Then, what should we sing. Paul says psalms, hymns, and spiritual songs—that is, religious songs that have sentiments that are in harmony with the teachings of the Scriptures on the subjects upon which the songs are written. Our songs are, or ought to be, based upon some passages or expressions or thoughts contained in the Scriptures; and if they do not do this, we cannot consistently sing them and should not do so.

How shall we sing? Paul says "with the spirit" and "with the understanding." How is this done? To sing with the understanding, we need to know what the words of the songs are, and know what they mean, and realize what we are doing when we sing them; and in order to benefit others, we must sing in a way that we can reach their understanding. Then, to sing with the spirit, we must indorse the sentiment of the song and mean what those words mean when we sing them. In singing, we are liable to fail to fully understand the meaning of the songs and are apt to place too much stress upon the music or tune and too little importance upon the sentiment or meaning of the words where the edifying comes from. It would be well for our leaders, when a song is announced, to interpret or explain it by telling what part of the Scriptures suggested the idea of that song being written, so we who are less informed could comprehend it and sing it more intelligently. When we sing a song we do not understand, we fail to get the food there is in it; and while our singing it may be an effort to praise the Lord, it may be a failure. Some say they cannot sing, and this is true in some cases, but it is difficult to see how any one can fail to like music and fail to sing when he can. If they cannot sing, they can get some benefit by looking on and listening while others sing. If we will only read and meditate upon the hymns without singing them or even knowing the tune or time, we can to some extent imbibe the spirit of the song and be benefited.

We have various kinds of songs for different occasions. We have songs of praise, songs of rejoicing, songs of encouragement, songs of invitation, and some which seem to be simply prayer set to music, and so on, and it is important that we know just what the occasion demands and sing it.

Very many songs have been written, and there is no end to the making of new ones, and quite a number of them are sound and wholesome, but none better than the good old songs our parents and grandparents sang years ago when all the congregation could and did sing. We sing more scientifically now and more according to the principles of music, but our singing does not have any more life and feeling or any more effect than the singing used to when there was less formality and precision about it. Our songs were not written by inspired writers, but most of them have the sentiment of inspiration because the thoughts in them originated from that fount—the Bible—from which all wisdom comes.

Gospel Advocate Company.

BY H. LEO B.

This company is headquarters for Bibles, song books, Bible Lesson Helps (including Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary Quarterlies, Lesson Leaf, Picture Cards, and Young People), the Gospel Advocate, and religious books too numerous to mention.

A good book is a good friend; and if it be a great book, it is a great friend. No Christian home is complete without a large number of religious books.

Here is a brief description of a few books that should be in your home:

"The Word of Reconciliation." By J. D. Floyd. This volume contains 231 pages, neatly bound in cloth. It is well adapted to the masses of the people. It presents the story of salvation in a simple yet attractive manner. The way of salvation is presented to sinner and saint alike, in a way that is neither too profound nor too voluminous for the masses. Its simplicity, clearness, and thoroughness charm the scholarly. Price, $1.

"Civil Government"—Its Origin, Mission, and Destiny, and the Christian's Relations to It. By David Lipscomb. This book is the outgrowth of the author's most matured thoughts on this subject. Attractively bound. Pages, 158. Price, $1.

"Commentary on Acts." By David Lipscomb. A commentary on the Acts of Apostles, with questions suited for the use of families and schools. This commentary is especially adapted to the comprehension of the masses of the people. It also contains a chronology of the Acts, map showing Paul's missionary journeys, brief biographies of the apostles, and an introductory chapter on the Holy Spirit. Cloth; 250 pages. Price, postpaid, $1.50.

"Salvation from Sin." By David Lipscomb. This book is composed of the editorials of David Lipscomb, collated by J. W. Shepherd, and contains many of the best and most profound thoughts of its author. It contains an index to subjects and an index to scriptures. Cloth; 440 large pages. Price, postpaid, $1.50.

"Life of Elder John Smith." By John Augustus Williams. A biography that is a romance of religious experience. "Raccoon" John Smith was the Peter Cartwright of the Restoration, and a humble, powerful, fearless man of God, with strong convictions and gigantic faith. It presents a graphic account of a period in the history of the early days of the Reformation in Kentucky. This narrative of great self-sacrifice and devotion has seldom been equaled. His wonderful personality, his utter fearlessness, and his wide knowledge of the Scriptures and of the great issues of life are among the great heritages of the Restoration movement. Cloth. Price, postpaid, $1.50.

"The People's New Testament, with Notes." (Two volumes.) By B. W. Johnson. A splendid commentary, comprising the entire New Testament. Volume I., four Gospels and Acts; Volume II., Epistles and Revelation. Price, per volume, postpaid, $2.50.

Sunday School Record. This record is neatly and substantially bound, and has space for fifty-two Sundays. Price, postpaid, $1.50.

Church Record. Every church should know its membership. Our Church Record is the very thing you need. Neatly and substantially bound. Price, postpaid, $1.50.

This company publishes a number of good song books. The "Christian Hymns" both new and old is a standard. Other song books are compared to it and their merits rated by the "Christian Hymns." Every congregation should have enough song books to give each member one, and especially each visitor one. It increases interest in the song service. Try it, and watch the results.

Order from the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

SPECIAL OFFER.

We are trying to increase the circulation of the Gospel Advocate, knowing that as we increase its circulation we are broadening its field of usefulness and thereby doing more good for our Master. Will you cooperate with us in this good work? The subscription list of the Gospel Advocate is growing daily, and we want you to help us do even greater things for the Lord through its columns. Here is our Special Offer: If you will send us two new subscribers for a year, we will send you a copy of Peloubet's "Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons." This book includes all the Sunday-school lessons for the year 1922. It formerly sold for $2. The price of the Gospel Advocate is $2 per year. Send to the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

Apropos the Waxahachie Meeting.

BY C. R. N.

Following is a letter which Brother Dunn feels should be given the readers of the Gospel Advocate. I submitted the letter to Brother Sewell for such comments as he might feel that in justice to himself and in the interest of the truth he might wish to make.

I regret that there have been some false reports about the meeting. Some of the reports referred to by Brother Sewell came to me, but I declined to publish them, and on investigation found some statements being made which were not in keeping with the facts.

I wish to commend the frank, free, and open statement made by Brother Sewell.

I trust that good has come, and will continue to come, from the exchange of views about the course followed in this meeting.

It has been my wish to do all parties right in the exchange of views, and my effort has been to confine my remarks to the facts. With this the discussion closes, unless there are facts which have not been brought to the attention of the readers.

BROTHER DUNN'S LETTER.

Dear Brother Nichol: Since seeing Brother Sewell's letter of May 17 in the Gospel Advocate of June 15, I am sending you this letter, which you will please publish.

I feel that justice to all parties concerned demands that the following facts be given to our readers of these articles. Brother Sewell says: "I frankly say I saw things all the way through [meaning the meeting.—J. E. D.] that were objectionable." I wrote Brother Sewell and also told him after he came that he was absolutely free under God to preach whatever he wanted to preach. He had the free privilege of telling us or any of us publicly and privately of any things he saw that were objectionable. Brother Sewell was with us fifteen days, talking twice each week day and three times on Sundays to very large audiences of representative people from all the churches of Waxahachie, and especially the members of "the Main Street Christian Church" and "the College Street church of Christ." He had the favor of the people. The people of Waxahachie love Brother Sewell and he has great influence over them. I believe he had one of the finest opportunities a man ever had to present, clear cut, the teaching of the New Testament on all things that pertain to life and godliness. I doubt if another such opportunity shall be offered in a generation in Waxahachie.

I hold that a man can go anywhere people are to preach the gospel to them. I can think of but two conditions. One is that he behave himself as a Christian should, and the other, that he preach the truth, the whole truth, and nothing but the truth. I have been the preacher in three similar meetings. In each of these meetings I selected the best time to get the largest audience. I advertised it through the daily papers and preached a sermon each on "Why We Do Not Use Instrumental Music in Our Song Service in Worship unto God" and "How the Churches in New Testament Times Did Missionary Work."

Most sincerely,

JOHN E. DUNN.

BROTHER SEWELL'S STATEMENT.

Abilene, Texas, August 3, 1922.—Dear Brother Nichol: I think far too much has been said about the Waxahachie meeting; but if Brother Dunn insists on the publication of his letter, I desire to submit a few observations.

I have no desire to escape my part of the responsibility. I think we made a mistake in holding the meeting. Brother Dunn does not. This is a matter of judgment. He may be right. I refrained from any public statement until I felt compelled to make one, and then said just as little as I could. I am not criticizing Brother Dunn, the Waxahachie church, or myself. I simply think we made a mistake, and I do not intend to make the same kind again.

Here are the things which to me seem objectionable. It was daily advertised in the paper that the "Main Street Christian Church" and the "College Street church of Christ" were coöperating in a meeting. Thousands of people read these announcements who did not hear one of the sermons. I think they could not escape the impression that the "College Street church of Christ" was coöperating with the "Main Street Christian Church" on the basis of equal Christian doctrine and practice. In that I think we made a false impression on Waxahachie.

I believe the Main Street people have obeyed the gospel, and on an average may be just as good people in their daily lives as the College Street people or any of the balance of us; but I believe they are, as a church, teaching and practicing things which are unscriptural and antiscritural to the extent that they are apostate. I preached on the principles involved as my judgment dictated all during our meeting, but I doubt if it did them or any one else any good, because we recognized and fellowshipped them. People do not take our preaching against anything very seriously as long as we fellowship those who practice it. For instance, there are members in the church who dance. I preach against it. But before doing so I invite them, with full knowledge of their practice, to come, and not simply attend, but to co-operate with me in my meeting (of course we will not have any dancing during the meeting), and before and after the preaching I invite the ones who dance to take a leading part in the meeting, to lead the singing and prayers, serve at the Lord's table, etc. Do you think they would take my preaching very seriously? I think not. In fact, I do not think I could maintain my consistency and keep within the bounds of gentlemanly conduct and say so very much about dancing under such circumstances. The dancers would say something about like this: "Brother Sewell is a dandy good fellow. He believes dancing is wrong, but he is broad-minded and liberal and does not condemn us who dance. He is true to his convictions and preaches against it, but he doesn't disfellowship us." I imagine that is about the way the Main Street people of Waxahachie feel about Brother Dunn, the College Street Church, and me now, as to their innovations. "Brother Dunn, Brother Sewell, and the College Street Church believe instrumental music in the worship, our societies, etc., to be wrong, but they fellowship us and recognize us on an equal church basis with themselves." I don't. I think there is less excuse for their existence than for the existence of any other religious body on earth that calls itself "Christian." They do not offer the world one thing they cannot get just as well elsewhere.

Brother Dunn repeatedly told me of the three meetings to which he refers in his letter. They were not "similar" at all. Two of them were for straight-out digressive churches. The other was for a loyal church, when the Christian Church invited him and his brethren to use their house. Neither is "similar" to a meeting where a digressive and a loyal church "coöperate" on an equal basis. I could feel far freer under either circumstance in preaching.

I hope Brother Dunn and all others concerned will understand that all I am saying is that I think we made a mistake. We were all sincere. We did what we thought was right. We did our best to bring good out of it. I am convinced we made a mistake. I have given my reasons. I hope they will be convinced.

Since it has seemed necessary for me to say this much, I feel that I should say a little more. There have been a lot of things circulated and published about the Waxahachie meeting that are pure falsehood and slander. Those of us who were in that meeting did not intentionally compromise truth and right at any point. But if we had, our sin would be no greater than the sin that has been committed in circulating and publishing the slanders that have gone out about it.

The fact that certain brethren make a mistake does not prove that they are rebels against God and disloyal to his truth. And it certainly does not justify rushing into the papers, to be read by thousands of people, statements that are absolutely false through and through, as has been done in this case. I believe Brother Dunn and the College Street church of Christ love the Lord and are just as loyal to his will as any of those who have criticized them. I believe those who have criticized had a perfect right to do so. None of us are too perfect and too good to be criticized. The papers had a right to publish the criticisms. But no one had a right to write absolute falsehoods about what was done, and no paper had a right to publish them.

There was no contest held between the choirs of the two churches to decide whether they would sing with organ or without it. It was distinctly understood from the first informal conversation that no instrumental music would be used.

There was no agreement, implied or otherwise, that the College Street Church would return the courtesy by co-operating with the Main Street Church in a meeting at their place. Brother Dunn tells me that, to save any possible misunderstanding or hard feelings, he explained that this could not be done; that the Main Street people could come and coöperate with the College Street people without any compromise of conscience, but that the College Street people could not thus go and coöperate with the Main Street people.

There was not one addition to the Main Street Church as a result of Brother Sewell's preaching, and certainly not "about thirty."

The Main Street Church offered the College Street Church a check at the close of the meeting, and it was refused; so Brother Hardeman in his commendable conduct at Nashville has nothing on the College Street Church in this respect.

Brethren, let me insist that all should do as Brother Nichol has done—criticize the mistake that was made, and not circulate a lot of slander about the people who made the mistake.

Sincerely and fraternally,
J. P. SEWELL.

✱ ✱ ✱

Notes of Colley-Tyndall Debate.

BY C. R. N.

Often do we see manifested the trite saying: "A drowning man will catch at a straw." Some years ago A. O. Colley met D. A. Leak in debate in Clarendon, Texas, on the use of instrumental music in the worship of the church of Christ. At the close of the debate, before Brother Colley left the town, there was formed in Clarendon a congregation of Christians who refused to use instrumental music in the worship. This congregation has prospered.

Last summer Dr. Tyndall, of the Christian Church, while in a series of meetings in Clarendon, delivered rather a novel sermon on the use of instrumental music in the worship, contending that its use was scriptural. Those who use the instruments were "carried off their feet" by the "new discovery" and declared that Dr. Tyndall was "unanswerable." Brother Colley was secured to meet in debate this new champion. It was my pleasure to hear the debate. At the close of the debate I said to Brother Colley: "The people are disillusioned. Mr. Tyndall is not so strong as they thought, and his so-called 'arguments' are no more than figments of his own mind. The people thought he made strong arguments because it was a new position. As a debater on this subject, Tyndall is done for; you will never have the opportunity to meet him again; nor will his people put him forth as a defender of his position."

Brother Colley has published in tract form a synopsis of the debate, giving briefly the arguments pro and con as made in the debate. Read the tract. Order from A. O. Colley, 5728 Junius Street, Dallas, Texas. Twenty-five cents per copy.

✱ ✱ ✱

Hardeman's Tabernacle Sermons.

BY C. R. N.

This book contains the sermons delivered by Brother N. B. Hardeman in the Nashville (Tenn.) meeting a few months ago. We are, and have the right to be, justly proud that this series of sermons has been published in book form, that they may be read by many who could not attend the meeting, as well as bless coming generations. The sermons are interesting, instructive, and scriptural. Brother Hardeman has a firm grasp on the great fundamentals of New Testament teaching, a pleasing style in recitation, and fearlessly presents the truth.

The net proceeds from the sale of this book will be used to assist worthy students to attend the Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn. You should have a copy of the book in your library, and by securing a copy you will also be assisting some worthy student.

Cloth binding; 287 pages; $1.50 per copy. Order from N. B. Hardeman, Henderson, Tenn.

✱ ✱ ✱

Personal Notes.

Lee P. Mansfield closed at Maud, Okla., with twenty baptisms.

C. A. Buchanan closed a mission meeting five miles from Cleburne, Texas, with twenty-nine baptisms, and one at Blum, Texas, with two baptisms.

C. W. Ing closed in Reagor Springs, Texas, with eleven baptisms, two restorations, and the congregation reconsecrating herself to the work of the Master and a pure life.

J. S. Daugherty closed a well-attended meeting at Hope, Ark., with several baptized and one taking membership. He is now in a meeting at Newark, Texas, with bright prospects.

J. K. Bentley has recently held meetings as follows: At Argyle, Texas, with two baptized; Santo, Texas, seven baptized; near Lamesa, Texas, twenty baptized, six restored. Mount View, Okla., nine baptized and the meeting continuing.

W. D. Bills closed in Quanah, Texas, with thirty-eight additions to the congregation, most of them by primary obedience, though several were from the Christian Church. U. R. Forest labors with the Quanah church regularly, and is doing a splendid work.

D. F. Draper is in a fine tabernacle meeting at Neches, Texas. Wendell Bedichek, of Abilene Christian College, is visiting and leading the singing. Brother Draper is to be in Tennessee during September and October, and has time for another meeting while here. Address him at Georgetown, Texas.

Flavil L. Colley, who is a student of Abilene Christian College, has been spending his vacation with the church in Terrell, Texas. He reports the work there doing well. Two baptisms recently, one of the number having been a member of the Baptist Church. Brother Colley will return to Abilene for the coming school year.

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50 in advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate," and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS.
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

The Second Great Commission.

BY J. C. M'Q.

The first great commission is: "Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matt. 28: 19, 20.) Mark records the same commission: "Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to the whole creation. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." (Mark 16: 15, 16.) The second great commission is given to all who have heard, believed, and obeyed the gospel, and reads as follows: "And the Spirit and the bride say, Come. And he that heareth, let him say, Come. And he that is athirst, let him come: he that will, let him take the water of life freely." (Rev. 22: 17.)

It is not enough for men to be baptized and fail to grow in grace and in the knowledge of the truth. When a man becomes a Christian, he commits himself to the greatest work the world has ever known. Christ is the hope of the world. Christians must reflect the light borrowed from him. It is the duty of every Christian to evangelize the world. He who hears and obeys the gospel is obligated to say "Come" to the alien sinner with the full strength of his manhood. His must not be a half-hearted service. "Thou shalt love the Lord thy God with all thy heart." An indifferent service God will not accept. The value of souls is too great, the horrors of hell are too awful, and life is too short for a Christian to waste his time on entertaining himself.

God never told his church to sow the seed of the kingdom all in one place, but to scatter it broadcast. The gospel is God's power to save, but it must be proclaimed to the world. It is not designed to save a soul in ignorance. The church of God that spends the time in idleness is not the pillar and ground of the truth. It is the active, praying, and working church that is "the light of the world," "the salt of the earth," "the pillar and ground of the truth." Too many churches are like the church at Sardis, of which the Spirit says: "I know thy works, that thou hast a name that thou livest, and thou art dead." (Rev. 3: 1.) The churches everywhere should make an invoice of what they are doing from year to year. How many conversions has each to its credit? To how many people has each church said, "Come?" What sacrifices has each made for evangelizing the world? Let each church honestly inquire: How can the world be converted without the evangelization of the world? Who will evangelize the world if the church does not do it?

In this age of strikes, Bolshevism, and social upheavals, the gospel is our only hope. If it is not preached to the people and they are permitted to remain in ignorance, it will not save them. Paul demonstrated his faith in the power of the gospel to save by realizing his indebtedness to preach it to all and by doing so with all the earnestness of his soul. He declares: "For I am not ashamed of the gospel: for it is the power of God unto salvation to every one that believeth; to the Jew first, and also to the Greek." (Rom. 1: 16.) Yes, it is the power of God to save, but only as it is used. Water is God's power to slake the thirst, but it must be drunk to slake thirst. Food is God's means to satisfy hunger, but it must be eaten and assimilated in order to satisfy hunger. Then, can we permit the gospel to lie dormant and convert the world? Nay, verily.

Like Paul, Christians must give their time, talents, and means for the conversion of sinners. To be a Christian is to be a missionary. It is a misnomer to say a Christian is an antimissionary. The man who realizes the blessedness of salvation is hungering and thirsting to tell others of the love of God and of Love's wonderful redemption. Paul expresses the same thought when he says: "For to me to live is Christ, and to die is gain." (Phil. 1: 21.) Every pulsation of the heart of Christianity is for the salvation of the lost. Christians cannot be happy so long as they know they are not really working for the salvation of sinners.

The churches should hold up the light to the world. "He that heareth, let him say, Come." This does not mean for all to be public proclaimers of the gospel, but that all should say, "Come," using whatever talent God may have given them. If you know how to make money, use your money to spread the gospel. If you cannot go yourself in person to the heathen, go with your prayers and with your means with those who do go. Don't simply find fault with the workers while you do nothing.

The church should be positive and aggressive. It should wage war upon sin everywhere. They should plant the seed in new fields, feed the babes until they are strong enough to stand and teach others, and then move on to other fields.

Questions Growing Out of Denominational Confusion.

BY M. C. K.

On page 796 of this issue of the Gospel Advocate the reader will find a letter from Brother K. C. Moser, of Wewoka, Okla., for which I solicit a careful reading. I am requested to answer the questions which this letter propounds. Let it be observed, first of all, that the matters which it contains are only one of the numerous proofs that the general denominational hotchpotch of to-day is not only not the simple order of things found in the New Testament, but it is a system which, while teaching much of the truth of the New Testament, is, nevertheless, a system of false and contradictory doctrines by which a large part of the world is kept in perpetual confusion and bewilderment.

There are good and valid reasons for believing that the greatest day's work ever done by Satan for his own cause and against the cause of Christianity was the day when he introduced strife and division among its professed adherents. Of course, some of the questions here propounded cannot be specifically and dogmatically answered for the simple reason that sufficient facts are not available to warrant an answer; but I shall endeavor, nevertheless, to present such facts among those which are available as will at least show in principle the way out of such an entanglement. I shall, in the main, notice his points in the order of their occurrence in his letter.

1. He asks: "Did Christ procure the salvation of man and then fail to tell him plainly how to be saved?" Without hesitation, I answer no. Christ not only procured salvation and made the way plain for its attainment, but he has made it so plain that all responsible men can clearly see it, provided they do not place themselves or permit others to place them in an environment which hides it from them.

2. "If the Bible, when correctly translated, is not plain at this point above all others, is it the word of God?" This question means that it is inconsistent with the character of a just and merciful God not to make such a matter plain, and I not only indorse the position, but unhesitatingly add that it would be irrational to take any other view. For any being to profess to open a way of escape from danger and then deliberately and willfully to block the way so that those exposed to the danger could not see the way of escape would be so far from either mercy or justice that it would be basely wicked. Hence, if the Bible were really such a production, it would be conclusive evidence that it never came from such a being as our Heavenly Father.

3. "Does the inspired explanation of things to man need an explanation by man?" No, emphatically no. What "the inspired explanation of things" needs, and all that it needs, is to be preached to the people precisely as God has made it in the Bible, without addition, without subtraction, and without modification. The inspired charge to preachers is to "preach the word" (2 Tim. 4: 1, 2), not to explain the word. The word needs no explaining, except as one part of it throws light on other parts. Let preachers and all other religious teachers say, on any subject, precisely what God says on it, and all that he says on it, no more and no less, and let it go at that. It will be just as plain as it needs to be made, and will be certain to make the impression which God wants it to make.

4. "Do these perverted gospels, willful departures from the truth, find their parallels in the false teachings of to-day?" It is impossible to say dogmatically that the two conditions are exact parallels in all respects. So far as I know, no one but God can know this. We can know and do know that they are parallels in some things; and since, as the letter observes, we are divinely assured that the "false doctrines" and "perverse things" of the apostolic period were "brought in" and the inspired prediction was made that such things would occur in the future, the conclusion is forced upon us that the present-day situation is largely the same in kind, and is doubtless led, in some instances, as it was then, by willful perverters of the truth. Even in such a case, however, it would not follow that all the victims of such perversion are themselves also willful perverters of the truth. No doubt many of those who are the hapless victims of false systems are devout and sincere in the course which they pursue; and no doubt many others, like those of our Savior's day, shut their eyes and deliberately refuse to see the truth. This may be the case with many of those to whom our brother refers. Religious prejudice often plays havoc in obstructing the way of the truth. (See Matt. 13: 14, 15.) "This people's heart is waxed gross, and their ears are dull of hearing, and their eyes they have closed; lest haply they should perceive with their eyes, and hear with their ears, and understand with their hearts, and should turn again, and I should heal them." The divine charge here is that those persons "closed" their eyes against the truth. A fearful condition, and possibly some are in it now.

No, no, let us never concede that God has not made the way plain. Indeed, we may say with infallible certainty that all men can see and walk in the plain way of the Lord unless one of three things is true of them: (1) That they have not sufficient mind to see and are, therefore, not responsible. (2) That, although sincere in the false doctrines they are following, they are, nevertheless, blinded by ignorance of the right way, as was Saul of Tarsus, and hence do not see the truth. (3) Like those of our Savior's day, they willfully shut their eyes and refuse to see the plain and simple way. Some one of these things will account for all of those who do not walk in God's way.

5. As to Luther, Calvin, the Campbells, and all the rest, they, like all of us, must stand or fall by the same principles. Of course, we may not be able to say just what, at any given point, prevented any one of them from seeing the truth. We do not need to say—in fact, no one can possibly know—that Luther was "dishonest." We know in his case, as we know in others, that it was not "impossible for him to learn the truth" unless some one of the things before noted veiled it from him and made it impossible. It is "impossible" for any man "to learn the truth" while his eyes are covered with a veil which will not allow him to see the truth. The truth is veiled in some way from thousands to-day. If we come at the matter properly, we can usually get those who are honest and sincere and desire nothing but the truth to lay aside the veil so that they can see what is and what is not the truth.

6. "How can the acknowledged simplicity of the answer to the question, 'What must I do to be saved?' be harmonized with the disagreement among the learned and pious?" By the second of the three ways already noted. If men are "learned and pious," and hence desire nothing but the truth, they can see it unless a veil hides it from them. If it does, and we remove the veil, they will see and accept the truth. But sometimes the truth is veiled from men when they not only do not see it, but they do not desire to see it. While they are in this condition, it is impossible to get them to walk in the truth. They are by choice joined to something else, and have no desire to be divorced from it. It is impossible to lead men while in such a condition into the light of the truth. But we need not hesitate to conclude that when "honest, learned, and pious men must differ on such a vital point," it is because of the second of the three things before noted; and when this is the case and the truth is presented to them, they will, like Saul of Tarsus, accept it.

7. Concerning Luther, Calvin, the Campbells, and others, he asks: "Did these men, in spite of their differences, learn enough truth to be saved?" I must respectfully say that I do not consider it the province of a teacher of God's word to parcel out the truth in different quantities and to say that learning so much of it and no more is "enough truth to be saved." When men who are honest and sincere fail to obey and walk in the truth at any point, no matter how much of it they have obeyed at other points, the safe course for teachers of God's word is to leave the disposition of such cases to the Lord himself. We may rest assured that he will do right about it, and in this way we will not be taking chances on misleading somebody else or confirming those who have already been misled. When it is proper to preach at all, it is always and everywhere safe to "preach the word," and the word alone.

Every man, for the love of his own mother, should handle all womankind gently, and hold them in all honor.—Alfred Tennyson.

The First Epistle to the Thessalonians.

BY E. W. SMITH.

"And ye became imitators of us, and of the Lord, having received the word in much affliction, with joy of the Holy Spirit; so that ye became an ensample to all that believe in Macedonia and in Achaia. For from you hath sounded forth the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your faith to God-ward is gone forth; so that we need not to speak anything." (1 Thess. 1: 6-8.)

RECEIVING THE TRUTH AMID AFFLICTIONS.

The apostle refers to the saints in Thessalonica as having become imitators of himself and the other apostles, as well as the Lord Jesus Christ. In this he had reference to the sufferings endured for the truth's sake, for it was, as he says, "in much affliction" that they received the word. How different with us! We were not subjected, as were these Thessalonians, to mistreatment, scoffs, jeers, and possibly bodily harm, like many of the earlier Christians. We have been, in this respect, much better favored than they, but it is doubtful if we enjoy our privileges in the kingdom as much as they did. The blessings which come to us through trials and tribulations are more highly prized and more greatly enjoyed. These Thessalonian saints were somewhat compensated for their afflictions by the gifts of the Holy Spirit which were bestowed upon some of their number, for the confirmation of the truth which they had received and which they offered to others.

AN EXAMPLE TO OTHERS.

In thus suffering for the gospel's sake, their patience, love, and joy became an example to all the believers throughout Macedonia and Achaia. We cannot unduly exalt and magnify a good example in Christian living. Such an example bequeathed to children is far better than gold, silver, or houses, and lands. Children cannot lose a good example, and neither can they spend it in riotous living, but it will cling to them like the ivy to the oak. Whatever else Christians may strive to do, they should bend their energies to leave to the world the example of patient service to God even in the face of suffering, sickness, misfortune, and disappointment.

AN EXAMPLE IN MISSION WORK.

Paul says that from the Thessalonian saints had been "sounded forth the word of the Lord, not only in Macedonia and Achaia, but in every place your [their] faith to God-ward is gone forth." This statement is worthy of the most serious, careful, and prayerful consideration of every church and individual Christian in this world. The missionary activity of this church had impressed itself, not only upon the immediate or adjacent territory, but even upon distant lands. This was done to such an extent that an apostle did not find it necessary to urge upon them this most important work. He said regarding their work along that line, this: "So that we need not to speak anything." Their sufferings and patience in the gospel had reached all the centers of commerce and trade, and was borne from these places throughout every place. They sounded out the word; but, as we sometimes hear, many churches are content to simply sound in the word—that is, have it preached to themselves and nowhere else. But such a policy is suicidal to any church; for our salvation, in part, depends upon our efforts to save others. If the same in this respect could be written of all the churches of Christ, it would not be many years until all who could would be converted to Christ. If the same missionary zeal characterized the churches now that filled many of the early Christians, churches would be planted all over the earth, and few would there be without an opportunity to hear, believe, and obey the gospel. Take, as an illustration, the Jerusalem church. The record of that church is a most remarkable one indeed.

A great persecution arose against it, and the disciples were driven from their homes and scattered in every direction. But this did not quench their zeal for Christ and the salvation of souls, for it is said of them: "They therefore that were scattered abroad went about preaching the word." (Acts 8: 4.) The hand of persecution that broke up the sweet and tender ties of home and loved ones could drive them from their firesides, but it could not seal their lips nor tie their tongues. The results of such fiery and unquenchable zeal are thus given: "They therefore that were scattered abroad upon the tribulation that arose about Stephen traveled as far as Phenicia, and Cyprus, and Antioch, speaking the word to none save only to Jews. But there were some of them, men of Cyprus and Cyrene, who, when they were come to Antioch, spoke unto the Greeks also, preaching the Lord Jesus. And the hand of the Lord was with them; and a great number that believed turned unto the Lord." (Acts 11: 19-21.) These persecuted and outraged disciples had the gospel of Christ so deeply rooted in their souls and had such a consuming desire for the salvation of others that naught but death itself could stop them. The church at Thessalonica whose history we are studying had the same faith and zeal, and thus became an example for all churches for all time. May she be, in this respect, reproduced throughout the length and breadth of the world.

Commendations.

I trust with becoming modesty and genuine humility the following commendations are submitted to our readers to show an appreciation for loyal friendship and coöperation in making the Gospel Advocate a greater blessing to our readers:

Dear Brother Boles: I am glad to note your presence in the office and your accession to the Gospel Advocate force. It pleases me much, and I hope a career of increased success and prosperity is before us.—M. C. Kurfes.

I was delighted to learn that you were to give your time and splendid talents to managing the Gospel Advocate. I certainly wish you the greatest of success, and feel sure that you will have it.—Claud F. Witty.

I am glad, Brother Boles, you are on the Gospel Advocate. Your presence, unbiased judgment, and fair dealing will go far in restoring confidence. May the Lord bless you in your efforts to give the world a great religious paper.—C. G. Vincent.

I wish to heartily indorse the article, "The Mission of the Gospel Advocate," of July 13, 1922. I believe Brother H. Leo Boles will do his best to help the Advocate do the work of teaching the "whole counsel of God" through the press as outlined in this article. But he needs, and has a right to expect, the unselfish coöperation of all loyal preachers and all other members of the church of Christ. Brethren, let us turn the past loose and work together in the future to help the Advocate do constructive work in teaching the gospel to saint and sinner.—J. H. McBroom.

I am glad to know it, and it interests the brethren of Western Kentucky and Tennessee very much to know that you are a coworker with the Gospel Advocate Company.—A. B. Senseney.

My Dear Brother Boles: Allow me to congratulate you upon your new promotion.—E. L. Pearson.

I shall not save the flowers, but let me give them to you now by saying that the brotherhood is fortunate to secure you for such an important place. The Gospel Advocate is great and gets better all the time. I hope to be able to do more for its circulation than I have done. I want you to know that I am with you and ready to do anything to advance the Advocate at any time.—W. S. Long.

I am delighted that you are connected with the Gospel Advocate as office editor. I especially appreciate the articles that you have recently written on the inspiration of the Scriptures.—W. Claude Hall.

I have noted with much interest and pleasure that you are to be vitally connected with the Gospel Advocate. I certainly rejoice in it and feel that you will be a means of getting the paper on a higher plane, and I predict for it a growth such as has not been in some time. I want to write more for the paper and try to get it in more homes. I want you to feel that you have a friend in me; and if I can be of any service, do not fail to call on me. May the Lord bless you in making the paper a blessing.—H. M. Phillips.

As to the Gospel Advocate, I feel it will soon be bigger and better than ever, and that's saying much. Really, Brother Boles, I think you will fit in the new work like a keystone in an arch. You have my hand in every good work and word.—H. H. Adamson.

I have just learned that you are to have charge of the Gospel Advocate under the new arrangement. I knew that changes were being made, but I did not know who was to have the management of the new order of things. I think the brotherhood is to be congratulated in having you to serve in that capacity. If I can serve you in any way, I shall be glad to do so.—Charles R. Brewer.

I am glad for several reasons. The Gospel Advocate says it is your desire to see division among brethren cease. For that reason I am glad. I am pleased also because of your friendly interest in the young church workers. They need the help and encouragement of maturer minds. I appreciate what you did for me while I was in college under you. May the Lord give such men as you a long life in which to be useful.—R. P. Cuff.

Dear Brother Boles: I am glad that you have cast your lot with the Gospel Advocate. I think you are the right man in the right place. The Advocate is to be congratulated. I predict for it a future of unusual growth and usefulness. Whatever my friendship and coöperation are worth, you know that you have them. Never hesitate one moment to call on me when I can serve you.—B. C. Goodpasture.

Dear Brother Boles: Permit me to say to you that I am very glad indeed to see you on the Gospel Advocate work. I pray that God may use you to his glory and for the good of the cause of Christ.—E. P. Watson.

Dear Brother Boles: I am truly rejoiced over the announcement that you are to pilot the Gospel Advocate, as I read in last issue. I think it was a good selection the company made when they placed the work under your care.—J. G. Allen.

Publishers' Items.

Many splendid books are published and handled at this office. Good, religious books should be kept in each home. They have a refining influence on the young. Their educational value cannot be overestimated. The Gospel Advocate Company would like to help you educate your family by introducing good books to your library. "Evenings with the Bible" is a fine book to develop piety and spirituality, as well as very instructive. "The People's New Testament with Notes" is very helpful to Bible students. Here is a list that should be in every home. How many of them have you?

- "Sermons," by J. W. McGarvey.
- "Eunice Loyd," by R. N. Moody.
- "Bible Reading," by Isaac Errett.
- "The Glorious Gospel," by Adcock.
- "The Querist's Drawer," by Errett.
- "Lands of the Bible," by McGarvey.
- "Gospel Sermons," by T. W. Brents.
- "Cruden's Concordance" (complete).
- "Larimore and His Boys," by Srygley.
- "The Gospel Preacher," by B. Franklin.
- "Letters and Sermons of T. B. Larimore."
- "Travels in Bible Lands," by A. T. Ritchie.
- "Seventy Years in Dixie," by F. D. Srygley.
- "Patriotic Illustrations for Public Speakers," by Brown.
- "A New Commentary on Acts of the Apostles," by McGarvey.

Send us a new subscriber to-day for the Gospel Advocate. Price, $2 a year, in advance.

Write us to-day for sample copies of The Young People for boys and girls. The price is in reach of all.

If you know of any congregation not now using our Bible Lesson Helps and will send us the address, we will gladly furnish them sample copies.

If you have friends who are not subscribers to the Gospel Advocate, kindly furnish us their names and addresses so that we may send them sample copies.

"Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons" can be had from this office now at $1.25; the former cost was $2. Every teacher should have one.

Every church should know its membership. In order to keep informed as to the residence and membership of your church, you should have a church record. Our Church Record is the very thing you need.

"Questions Answered," by David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell, should have a place in every library. Those who have seen and examined it closely are highly pleased with it. Cloth bound; 700 pages. Price, $3, postpaid.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Miner's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories.

All kinds of Bibles and Testaments are handled by this company. Each member of the family ought to have a Bible. There is personal responsibility on each member of the family; each must study God's word for himself. Each member owning his own Bible is like each one owning his own clothes—it develops individuality.

Many others too numerous to mention can be had by writing the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Leadership.

There are two classes of leaders. In the first class are those who stand out distinctly from the crowd, and speak bravely for new principles, which, as a rule, are rejected in their own day, but eventually are accepted for the greatest good. In the second place come those who keep their ear close to the ground, and, having determined what the crowd, or, at least, a majority of the crowd, wants, stand forth and lead the crowd in the direction it wishes to go.

Young men in the colleges of the country must determine squarely in their own minds whether they wish to be leaders or merely followers. If they wish to be leaders, they must be willing to speak out truthfully their own convictions, despite criticism and abuse which may result from such action. They must be ready, possibly, to suffer crucifixion. If they will be mere followers of the crowd, then ruined lives and disaster will result.—Selected.

OUR WORKERS.

BY H. LEO BOLES.

We have a number of worthy young men who are gospel preachers in the field working for the Gospel Advocate and its publications. Among them may be mentioned B. D. Morehead, Thomas A. Nicks, Samson Lester, A. B. Senseney, and Robert Williams. Any favors that may be shown them will be gratefully received by them and highly appreciated by the Gospel Advocate Company. They are worthy of your encouragement and help. Some of them are working during vacation to be able to finish their education. They offer you good books at reasonable prices. You will benefit yourself as well as help them by placing an order with them.

Home Reading

Just a Little Post Card Faded.

In a volume, quite forgotten,
Which I chanced upon to-day,
There, between the leaves all faded,
Was a card I'd tucked away.
Just a post card from an old friend
Down in Dixie by the sea,
Closing thus a friendly greeting:
"Say, why don't you write to me?"

Only now I feel the meaning
Of those words I'd long forgot.
Only now I feel the heartache
Of procrastination's plot.
Why, of course, I'd write a letter
When sometime I'd be full free
To reply at length unto his
"Say, why don't you write to me?"

And to-morrow came, but, passing,
Seemed to dull the card's appeal;
While the next day found me thoughtless
Of a true friend's cheer and weal.
Shall I write him now and tell him
How I'd long again to be Close beside him who was asking:
"Say, why don't you write to me?"

No, I cannot, cannot, cannot Hope a letter will reach Bill;
For he's sleeping down in Dixie
On a little green-turfed hill,
Where they laid him 'neath the daisies
Close beside the sleepless sea,
And he ne'er again will ask me:
"Say, why don't you write to me?"

O, to-night within my bosom
There's a heartache's numbing pain!
In my mind remorse and anguish!
On my soul a sick'ning strain!
Just a little post card faded,
But it stings with memory
Of a question left unanswered:
"Say, why don't you write to me?"

—Henri Fortesquire.

✱ ✱ ✱

How One Father Solved the Boy Problem.

"My! But you seem to have been very fortunate with that boy of yours!" exclaimed Mr. Brooks. "I wish you would give me a few pointers. You know, I have a little chap at home; he's five or six years younger than your son, but already he's a problem."

"Why don't you make a pal of your boy, then? Try being a chum," suggested Mr. Mackey. "When Roger was about fifteen, he got into a foolish schoolboy scrape that resulted in a bill for damages for ten dollars or so. I knew nothing about it till a week afterwards, when he came to me and made a clean breast of it."

"Why did you not tell me before?" I asked him.

"Well," said Roger, "I was in hopes I could borrow the money from some of my friends and pay a little at a time without your knowing, but they were all hard up."

"Didn't you consider me as one of your friends?" said I. While he hesitated an idea came to me. "Well, anyway," I said, "I'd like to be a friend of yours from now on. I am still something of a boy, and I'd really like to have a pal about your age. Why can't we get together every now and then and talk over our affairs, including our troubles and scrapes, if there are any—share our secrets, in fact, just like any two boy friends?"

"We shook hands on it, and I soon came to enjoy our little intimate chats. They ranged from baseball to business and from school matters to politics. Yet at first it did seem to me that I was opening up a little more freely than he was.

"My business made necessary a good deal of traveling. One night at a hotel I ran across an old acquaintance, a prosperous manufacturer, who asked me to join him and two of his friends in 'a little game.' I never really cared for it and was absolutely without skill; but Browne insisted, and I went along. Soon it was suggested that some small stakes would make it a bit more interesting. Without going into particulars, when we got through I was interested to the extent of about one hundred dollars. When I went to my room that night, I thought of Roger, but I shook my head.

"I had to come to it, though. What kind of confidential terms would we be on if I kept back the only thing I was really ashamed of? I guess that no boy ever dreaded a session with his father more than I dreaded my next confidential talk with Roger. But I got through with it after a fashion—it was pretty lame, I can tell you—well, he was disposed to let me off easy.

"Never mind, dear old dad," he said. "Let's forget it. You don't have to do it again. The new camera that I spoke to you about—I'll get along without that now, and it will partly help to make up the loss. We can cut out part of our vacation."

"He had misunderstood me in one particular, and I had to explain that it was Browne who had lost, while I had won.

"O!" said Roger; and I could not help seeing that for just a moment I had risen somewhat in his estimation.

"But that makes it worse," I said. "I can't keep that money, and yet I don't know how to get rid of it."

"Give it back to Mr. Browne," Roger said.

"He would not take it," I replied.

"Roger thought for a few seconds, and then he said: 'If you tell Mr. Browne how you feel, perhaps he will take the money back and give it to some good cause.'

"Good logic or not, I acted on Roger's advice. At first Browne scoffed at the idea; but when I explained the situation, he finally took the money, with the understanding that it should be given to the public fund for the poor.

"A week or two after that I met Browne. 'Hello,' he said. 'Want another little game?'

"No, thank you," said I.

"Well, you could not have it with me if you did!" said he. "I've quit that for good. Fact is, I've got a youngster coming up, and it occurred to me that if I could do something on account of your boy, it was a great pity I could not do something on account of my own."—Selected.

✱ ✱ ✱

Cruelty to Children.

"An old lady in Vermont was much concerned by the contents of a letter she had received from her sister in Boston. "Listen to this, Henry," she said to her husband, as she proceeded to read from the letter. "I call it nothing short of cruelty."

"Why, what's the trouble?" asked Henry.

"In this letter," resumed the old lady, "Abigail tells me she gets help in raisin' her children from a mother's club. I do believe in a slipper sometimes, an' a good birchin' don't do a child any harm, but I never in all my life used a club on any of my offspring!"—Harper's Magazine.

✱ ✱ ✱

Checking Up.

"What are you reading, Charley?"

"It's a book called 'Child Training' that I borrowed from Mrs. Jones," returned the young son.

"Do you find it amusing?" laughed his mother.

"I'm not reading it for that. I merely wanted to see if I had been brought up properly."—Country Gentleman.

Current Comment

Who Is Spiritual?

Is he a spiritual man? That is the query frequently propounded by religious program builders and by congregations who are on the lookout for pastors to fill their vacant pulpits. It is a query that merits serious attention.

To be spiritual, it is not necessary that a man shall be anemic, nor that he shall refrain from smiling. There is a sickly piety the contemplation of which gives wholesome persons a feeling closely akin to pain. There is an air of funeral solemnity about some professing Christians that is positively stifling.

Spirituality is not marked by a pitying, patronizing attitude toward other members of the fraternity. Now and then we meet with a brother who is on precious good terms with himself. He seems obsessed with the idea that he has a monopoly on truth, and he regards himself with undisguised serenity of soul. He has an unciousness which the uninitiated are prone to regard with awe, but which causes the judicious to grieve.

Neither is spirituality synonymous with emotionalism. There are people who can weep copiously when appeal is made to the feelings, but who cannot be trusted to live the life of common honesty. Alexander MacLaren remarks: "There is a strange underground connection between religious emotionalism and a shady life." In the normal Christian the emotional element has its proper place and function. But let us beware of identifying saintliness with intensity of feeling.

The spiritual man is he who gives free and full expression to the Christ life. Christ lives in him and works through him. He experiences the enlightenment and guidance and power of the Holy Spirit. He possesses the grace of humanity, being acutely aware of personal limitations and shortcomings. He feeds daily on the Word and neglects not the trysting place where he meets alone with God. His ethical standards are high and noble. He is fair and square in his dealings with his neighbors. He is a hater of wrong and a despiser of meanness and hypocrisy. He is charitable in his judgments and merciful toward sinners, having himself experienced the wonderful mercy of God. He is a lover of peace. He knows the joy of salvation. Men can see the Christ light of gladness in his face. He is essentially optimistic in his philosophy, being persuaded that the universe is in the hands of a God of infinite power and goodness. He yearns over the souls of his fellow men and strives to win them to the Savior. He is wholesomely and earnestly religious seven days of the week—in the home, on the street, in the place of toil, in the social circle—wherever his life touches the life of others. His heart overflows with sympathy. He is a liberal giver, regarding himself as a steward of God. Every day he illustrates the master passion of friendship and seeks opportunity to render unselfish service. He is a growing man, ever attaining unto the higher things of the Christian life. His face is toward the goal of perfection in Christ Jesus. Some day the Master's loving hand will place upon his brow the victor's crown.—United Presbyterian.

The above expresses so well an answer to the question, "Who Is Spiritual?" that "Current Comment" gives it space in order to emphasize a much-needed lesson. The average church member needs to give more heed to the demands of a spiritual life. Each one must cultivate a deeper yearning for spiritual things.

There seems to be a ritual formality in much of the worship of to-day. Paul's admonition to be "fervent in spirit, serving the Lord," has been forgotten by many and a lukewarmness prevails. "Fervent" means zealous, boiling, very hot. All the worship of God and service of the Lord should be vital with enthusiasm, and every expression of praise should be an outburst of sincere joy and genuine love; a "free and full expression" of the gratitude of the soul. This will exclude all cold and indifferent formalities in worship.

But how can one become more spiritual? "Set your mind on the things that are above, not on the things that are upon the earth." (Col. 3: 2.) More attention must be given to things divine. No business could prosper, no profession can succeed, without earnest, thoughtful attention; neither can any Christian life be developed until it "be strong in the Lord and in the strength of his might" without consecration and prayer. This calls for a daily prayer that "the words of my mouth and the meditation of my heart be acceptable in thy sight, O Jehovah, my rock, and my redeemer." (Ps. 19: 14.)

When Was Paul Converted?

This question is sometimes asked, and the answer perhaps has some practical as well as doctrinal value. When, lying on the Damascus roadside, Saul of Tarsus looked up into the face of Jesus Christ and said, "Lord, what wilt thou have me to do?" old things had passed away and everything had become new; his will had been surrendered to that of Christ, and he was henceforth "not his own, but had been bought with a price." His subsequent experience of receiving sight and baptism was a mere incident of his conversion. They were not necessary to it, although they were needful to prepare him for the service he was ordained to render.—Western Recorder.

"When was Paul converted?" This question is of small moment to us, except that it emphasizes the time or how people are converted to-day. God's law on this point, like all of his laws, is general in its application, universal in its scope, and all-comprehensive in its intention. Since the reign of Christ began as "head of the body, the church," the law of conversion has not been modified or changed. It has not been nullified, but stands to-day as an expression of the will of the Father, sanctified by the blood of Christ. Since the church began on earth, all have been converted the same way and by the same means. The gospel is God's power unto salvation; it was when Paul was converted; it is now, and will continue to be until the reign of Christ shall cease.

Paul was converted when he became a Christian, and he became a Christian the moment his conversion was consummated. His conversion, his becoming a Christian, his entering the church, and his entering Christ are all simultaneous. The process that makes one a Christian at the same time constitutes that one a member of the church, and that process is conversion. When Paul's conversion was completed, at that moment he became a Christian, was adopted into the family of God, was made a member of the church, entered "into Christ." When he was converted, he entered into Christ, and then, and only then, did he become "a new creature." "Wherefore if any man is in Christ, he is a new creature: the old things are passed away; behold, they are become new." (2 Cor. 5: 17.)

When did Paul enter "into Christ?" Since Paul was inspired, it would be well to let him answer that question; and in answering that question, he answers "when he was converted." Paul says: "Or are ye ignorant that all we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?" (Rom. 6: 3.) So Paul says that he and the Christians at Rome "were baptized into Christ." That settles the question as to when Paul's conversion was completed. Surely no one will claim that his conversion left him out of Christ. Neither does he say that his "baptism was a mere incident of his conversion," but that he and the others at Rome "were baptized into Christ." He does not say that his baptism was "not necessary," but that by the act of baptism he and others were inducted "into Christ Jesus." Paul, in writing "unto the churches of Galatia," said: "For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ." (Gal. 3: 27.) So Paul, the Christians at Rome, and the Christians in Galatia "were baptized into Christ." Is it not time for religious teachers and journals to quit saying that "baptism is not necessary," when Paul repeatedly states that the act of baptism puts people "into Christ?"

Evangelistic Notes

Price Billingsley is in a good meeting at Summit, Ga.

Allen Phy recently closed at Sykes, Tenn., with three baptisms.

W. H. Arms has just closed an interesting meeting at Corinth, Ky.

Charles L. Talley is at Antioch, in Jackson County, Tenn., in a meeting.

Fred M. Little has just closed at Anniston, Ala., with nine additions.

R. L. Ludlam is in a meeting with increasing interest at Ottumwa, Iowa.

Leland H. Knight reports five baptisms since he went to Fort Smith, Ark.

S. H. Hall is in a meeting at Altus, Okla., with eight additions to date.

L. B. Jones is in a meeting at Moulton, Ala., with three baptisms to date.

Charles R. Brewer will begin a meeting at Ethridge, Tenn., on September 10.

J. C. Mosley is in a meeting near Newbern, Tenn., with eight confessions to date.

Thomas E. Milholland is in a meeting at Hollis, Okla., with twenty-five additions to date.

R. P. Cuff has just closed at Beech Grove, in Coffee County, Tenn., with two baptisms.

Earnest C. Love is in the midst of a meeting at Indianapolis, Ind., with one addition to date.

G. W. Jarrett has just closed at Muscogee, Fla., with three additions. He is now at Fair Hope, Ala.

F. W. Smith closed a few days ago at Hurricane Mills, Tenn., with two baptized and one restored.

W. F. Lemmons closed at Sneed, near Swifton, Ark., with three additions. He is now at Elbridge, Tenn.

W. Claude Hall recently conducted a meeting at Little River, Ky. He also preached one time at Hopkinsville.

J. E. Wainwright closed at Brinkley, Ark., with two baptisms. He will begin at De Kalb, Texas, on August 30.

L. D. Perkins and wife stopped in the city en route to Cookeville, Tenn., to attend Brother Larimore's meeting.

Noel B. Cuff closed a meeting at Grange Hall, near McMinnville, Tenn., with four baptisms and one restoration.

I. B. Bradley closed a meeting recently at Auburntown, Tenn., with seven additions. R. C. Moore led the singing.

W. R. Hassell held a meeting four miles west of Bradford, Tenn., resulting in three baptisms and two restorations.

C. H. Woodroof, of Albany, Ala., has recently closed at Kimball, Tenn., with ten additions. He is now at Diana, Tenn.

W. E. Morgan, Fort Worth, Texas, is in a meeting at Glenwood, Ark. W. T. Breedlove is conducting the song service.

T. B. Thompson has just closed at Beardstown, Tenn., with two baptisms. He says: "Perry County is ripe for the harvest."

C. L. Purdom, formerly of Paragould, Ark., is now located at 509 Fruit Street, Santa Ana, Cal., after a pleasant overland trip.

R. N. Gardner has just closed near Gainesboro, Tenn., with eight baptisms and five restorations, also fine crowds. He is now at Dunmor, Ky.

Will W. Slater reports a fine meeting at Teneha, Texas, resulting in twelve additions, six of which were baptisms. He is now at Floyd, Texas.

C. M. Pullas closed a meeting at Walter Hill, in Rutherford County, Tenn., with twenty-three baptisms, and is now at Antioch, in the same county.

W. T. Ethridge, who is now in a meeting at Gilbertville, Ky., closed recently at Hohenwald, Tenn., with eleven baptisms and two taking membership.

C. D. Crouch preached a few nights recently at Marrowbone, near Ashland City, Tenn., and is now in a meeting at Berry's Chapel, near Franklin, Tenn.

W. M. Oakley has just closed at Chapel Hill, in Cheatham County, Tenn., with four baptized and one restored. He is now at Walnut Grove, near New Hope, Ala.

F. B. Srygley is just home from Glass, Tenn., where he had ten baptisms and two restorations. He will begin a meeting at Corinth, Ark., next Lord's day.

A. S. Landis began a meeting at Sam's Creek, in Cheatham County, Tenn., on August 6, and closed it on August 13, resulting in four restorations and one baptism.

W. P. Jones closed at Cameron, Okla., with nineteen additions—twelve baptized. He is now at Slaytonville church, at Hackett, Ark., after which he will return to Oklahoma.

H. W. Wrye closed at Smyrna, near Columbia, Tenn., with one addition. He is now at Verona, in Marshall County. He is to begin at Fifth Street, this city, the first Lord's day in September.

W. S. Long closed a meeting at Cornersville, Tenn., on July 30, resulting in eight baptisms and many restored. He is now at Mars' Hill, Ala., after which he will return to Washington, D. C.

Vernon Rozar, Watertown, Tenn., is in a meeting at Commerce, with two additions to date. He goes next to East Tennessee. He has three weeks' spare time the latter part of September for meetings.

W. C. Phillips, Cleveland, Tenn., closed a meeting at Spring Creek on July 29, with eleven baptisms; also closed at Pleasant Grove, near Trion, Ga., on August 13, with two baptisms. He is now at Dalton, Ga.

Joe L. Netherland, Yuma, Tenn., recently held a meeting at Maury City, Tenn., with four additions, and one at Fairview, in Gibson County, with one baptism. He is now at Oblion Chapel, in Carroll County.

Joe Ratcliffe closed at Bethany, near Trenton, Tenn., with three additions. He can hold a meeting embracing the first and second Lord's days in September, and can bring singer. Address him at Bardwell, Ky.

Tim Walker, Haleyville, Ala., closed a grove meeting at a destitute point in Winston County, Ala., with eight baptisms, and three others confessed and will be baptized later. They are planning to build at once.

Willis G. Jernigan, Olathe, Col., writes the following: "I have read with pleasure the splendid articles in recent issues of the Gospel Advocate on the music question." He is at Stone Meeting, Col., with good crowds.

Lucas North, Ethridge, Tenn., writes: "I have been acquainted with the Gospel Advocate since about the time it began to be published; and while it has been a good paper from its beginning, it seems to me to get better and better."

F. O. Howell reports three meetings of the recent past—at Gadsden, Ala., with good crowds, twelve baptisms, and ten thousand dollars raised toward erecting a house of worship; at Bradford, Tenn.; and at Rogers Springs, with fourteen additions. He is now at Nance, near Alamo, and will begin at Middleton, Tenn., on August 27.

J. C. Coffman closed recently at Kilburn Schoolhouse, near Florence, Ala., with nine baptisms and one restoration. Among those baptized was a man eighty years of age. Brother Coffman is now in a meeting at Old Macedonia, in Lauderdale County. He says: "I look forward eagerly for the Gospel Advocate each week. It is great."

John B. Hardeman since last report has held three meetings—at Cottage Grove, with one addition; at Oak Grove, near Fulton, Ky., with four additions; and at Farmington, Ky., with twenty-nine additions. He is now in a meeting at his home, Sedalia, Ky., with two added to date. He has one more meeting, and will then enter his work as teacher.

H. C. Denson, Fairmont, W. Va., writes: "The church here is gaining ground. We have bought and equipped a new tent recently. I have conducted a meeting in it for the last four weeks. T. H. Kirkman will continue it a few days. There have been six baptisms to date. We need a good man here to give his whole time to the work. I am unable to do this, as I work every day. We have a wonderful opportunity here."

C. M. Stubblefield is in a good meeting at Martin, Tenn.

E. A. Bedichek is in a good meeting at Frankston, Texas.

Coleman D. Nichols, Hico, Texas, can be had for a meeting in October.

E. O. Coffman closed at Locust Grove, Ky., with seventeen additions.

E. G. Cullum recently held a meeting at New Hope, near Nashville, Tenn.

R. V. Cawthon is in a meeting at Cedar Grove, near Nashville, Tenn.

W. A. Record is in a meeting at Fruits Chapel, near Hopkinsville, Ky.

T. Q. Martin has just closed at Shelbyville, Tenn., and is now at Lynchburg, Tenn.

D. H. Friend is in a meeting at Oglesby, on the Edmonson pike, near Nashville, Tenn.

C. H. Baker closed at Mount Vernon, Ky., with three restored. He is now at Kedron.

G. A. Dunn, Sr., is in a meeting at the Tenth and Francis Streets Church, Oklahoma City, Okla.

R. C. White has just closed an interesting meeting at Dresden, Tenn. He is now at Florence, Tenn.

Gus Nichols closed on August 13 at Kingsville, Ala., with six baptized and more than a dozen restored.

William F. Etheridge's meeting at Hohenwald, Tenn., resulted in eleven by baptism and two by membership.

Charles Tidwell recently closed at Antioch, in Hickman County, Tenn., with nine baptisms. He is now at Sulphur.

J. A. Cullum has held meetings this season at Elk City and Sulphur, Okla., and is now in a meeting at Jester, Okla.

W. Wilford Heflin, Boaz, Ky., closed at Poplar Springs, near Clarksburg, Tenn., on August 11, with eleven baptisms.

R. D. Smith reports a very pleasant visit to Mount Pleasant, Texas, his old home. He is now back home—Wichita Falls.

The "camp meeting" at Thorp Spring, Texas, with R. C. Bell and F. B. Shepherd preaching, closed with fourteen baptized.

R. P. Cuff preached in Riddleton, Tenn., last Sunday, and reports a fine audience. S. T. Nix preaches there each fourth Sunday.

Vernon Rozar closed at Commerce, Tenn., with two additions. He begins next Lord's day at Harris' Creek, in Bradley County.

H. F. Pendergrass has time for a meeting to begin on September 10. His address is David Lipscomb College, Nashville, Tenn.

E. D. Martin has just closed at Smyrna Church, in Warren County, Tenn., with seventeen baptisms. He is now in a meeting at Mount Olive.

George W. Farmer closed recently at Scurry, Texas, with seven baptisms and two restorations. He is now in a meeting at Reid Avenue, this city.

W. Claude Hall closed at Macon, Tenn., on August 19, with three baptisms. Practically the whole church confessed their wrongs, and two were withdrawn from.

A Correction.—In the Gospel Advocate of August 17, in "Evangelistic Notes," Mrs. A. M. Bibb's address should have been 217 East Marshall Street, Charleston, Mo.

William P. Walker closed at Williams Chapel, near Westport, Tenn., with eleven baptisms. He is now at Clarksburg, and will go next to Bellwood, in Stewart County.

L. L. Brigrance began last Lord's day at McKellar Avenue, Memphis, Tenn. Take the Florida Street South Memphis car and get off at Mallory station, then go one block east.

James E. Laird is now in a meeting at Charleston, Ark. He held a mission meeting there last year and baptized fifteen. Since that time they have built a house of worship.

Carl Etter closed a three-weeks' meeting at Buffalo Church, near Rankin, Okla., with thirty-six baptisms and two restorations. Three were from the Methodists and Baptists.

H. L. Kirby's meeting at Harris Station, Ala., resulted in four baptisms and one reclaimed. In recent months at his monthly appointments they have had fourteen other additions.

Alonzo Williams closed at Lone Ridge, Ky., with three additions, and at Bethany, Tenn., with thirteen baptized and one restored. He is now at Bethel, near Friendship, Tenn.

J. A. Hudson will change his address, September 1, from Oklahoma City, Okla., to Memphis, Tenn., where he is engaged to preach the coming year at the Harbert Avenue Church.

Just before going to press we received a telegram that E. W. Moon, of Holland, Ga., died on August 20. Brother Moon was a very useful man, and the Gospel Advocate extends sympathy to the bereaved family.

A. H. Smith closed a short meeting at Crockett, in Tate County, Miss., on August 10, with three baptisms. He then preached a few days near Algona, in Pontotoc County, with two baptisms and three from the Baptists.

E. L. Whitaker closed on August 6 at Good Springs, Tenn., with six baptisms. That evening he began at Shoal Bluff, near by, and continued to the following Thursday, with twenty baptisms. He is now at Cordova, Tenn.

I. B. Bradley closed a good meeting with the church at Auburtnow, Tenn., on Tuesday night, August 15, with seven baptized. The church there is in fine condition. He began at New Hope, near Readyville, Tenn., on August 20.

Andy T. Ritchie and J. D. Derryberry began at Pegram Schoolhouse, in Humphreys County, Tenn., on August 6 and continued to August 18, with fine crowds and nine baptisms. They are now at Grassy Valley, in the same county.

J. M. Dennis closed a tent meeting at Haywood, in Barren County, Ky., on August 13. He is now at Bellview, in Metcalfe County, near Edmonson, Ky. He will go next to Corinth, in Sumner County, Tenn., and will begin at Brushy Chapel on September 17.

John M. Rice and N. W. Allpin closed a good meeting at Knox City, Texas, with thirty-eight additions. Thirteen months ago they started with twenty-six members; now they have ninety and a nice house of worship. Brother Rice is moving to Abilene, Texas.

John T. Smithson, Louisville, Ky., has just closed at Oak Grove, in Warren County, with ten baptisms and three restorations. Recently he conducted a meeting at Gassaway, in Cannon County, Tenn., with six baptisms. He also held a meeting at Pea Ridge, also in Cannon County.

Will J. Cullum preached at Twelfth Avenue, North, this city, last Lord's-day morning, to a large audience. He will begin on September 3 at Owen's Cross Roads, Ala., after which he will return to Rockwood and Dayton, Tenn., where he labors regularly. He will move there on October 1.

Norman Cooper, Salem, Ark., writes: "There are eight preachers in this (Fulton) county, and all are busy. There are ten congregations, and each is having some preaching done. The one at Liberty Hill sees that the poor children are clothed for school." Brother Cooper will go to Baxter County on August 27.

W. L. Reeves closed at Humboldt, Tenn., on August 17, with seven baptisms. A. B. Gunter led the singing and did the baptizing. Brother Reeves is now at Brownsville, Tenn., in a mission meeting, and he hopes to establish a church while there. If you desire to assist this meeting, address H. V. Hood, Brownsville, Tenn., Route 5.

A. B. Lipscomb and E. Gaston Collins have just closed a meeting at Old Salem, which was well attended throughout. Eight were baptized and two restored. One came from the Methodists who was satisfied with his baptism. Brother Lipscomb will begin next Lord's day at Guin, Ala. Brother Collins is now at Shady Grove, in Lincoln County.

B. C. Goodpasture, Atlanta, Ga., writes: "Don Hockaday recently closed a tent meeting in Lakewood Heights. One was baptized. He is now in the midst of an interesting meeting in East Atlanta. Hugh E. Garrett is now in the last meeting of a two-months' campaign in South Georgia. He began the Pine Grove meeting yesterday (August 13). One was baptized at West End last Sunday. Brethren Bearden, Hockaday, and Klingman preached at West End during the month I was in Tennessee on my vacation. Large audiences heard and appreciated their inspiring messages. Three were added under their preaching. There have been forty-five additions at West End during the last three months."

The Health Value of Blood Medicine

By "blood medicine" we mean, for instance, Hood's Sarsaparilla, for nearly 50 years the standard remedy for blood disorders.

Working through the blood, the great distributing agency of the body, it carries purity, health, strength, vitality to every organ.

The general health quickly responds to the powerful influences of this good blood medicine. One old friend wrote us: "I seem to feel a thrill of new life just as soon as I begin my annual course of Hood's."

Buy Your Bibles, Testaments, Song Books, Bible Lesson Helps, and Other Books

From
Gospel Advocate
Company

Let's make it mutual; we will help you, you help us

Address all orders to
GOSPEL ADVOCATE
COMPANY, 317-319
Fifth Avenue, North,
Nashville, Tennessee

TETTERINE

Ends Complexion Worries

Healing, Antiseptic, Soothing, Fragrant

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-
PRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Cuticura Soap — The Healthy — Shaving Soap

Cuticura Soap shaves without mug. Everywhere 25c.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

The Heart of Home.

O, home is a wonderful thing!
In all the world so wide
There's never a place
With half the grace
Of the spot where our own abide!
And always we see it clear,
Wherever we may roam;
For home is the heart
Of the world's great mart—
And love is the heart of home!

O, hard may the struggle be Against the wind and tide;
The waves may dash,
And the thunders crash,
As the world's rough sea we ride;
But ever we gain toward shore
Where a light shines over the foam,
And love's own strength
Shall win at length,
For love is the heart of home!

—Minnie Leona Upton.

Croft Academy.

BY R. N. GARDNER.

This is a Christian school located in the country near Paragould, Ark. It is conducted by Christians that are convinced that it is their duty to educate their own children. The brethren pay all expenses of the school and make tuition free to worthy students unable to pay. Board may be secured for twelve dollars a month.

The church house, with an additional room for recitations, is used for a school building.

The Bible, all the grades, and about two years of high-school studies are taught.

These brethren are thus setting a worthy example for all other Christian parents, who should either found such a school in their own community or move where there is one. If this were done, the result for good could not well be imagined. We should then have more and better Christians, elders, teachers, and preachers.

When it can be avoided, Christians should not turn their children over to the government to be educated. They learn the ways of the world and the governments and grow up comparatively ignorant of God's will and way. Almost any community of Christians is as able to maintain a local school as these brethren are.

If you wish to learn more of this school or if you wish to patronize it, write R. N. Gardner, Nashville, Tenn., Route 7.

Financial Report of Work at Washington, D. C.

BY E. L. MILLS.

This report is submitted for the information of all whom it may concern.

Total amount received from individuals and churches outside of Washington, D. C., $29,830.19.

Contributions by the Washington congregation for the last three years:

January to December, 1919, $2,677.18;
1920, $4,404.65; 1921, $3,969.88.

The original cost of the property was $40,000. Additional cost of seating, baptistery, and carpet was about $3,000. The indebtedness at present, after the application of $6,000 for lots originally bought on which to build, and cash now on hand, is approximately $8,500. The above-mentioned lots have been sold for $6,000 at a profit of $750, excluding the use of the money invested and cost of transfer, etc., the profit approximating the interest.

The church here appreciates your coöperation in the past. It is hoped that you will assist other needy fields as liberally as you have the work here.

Paper Bags.

Empty paper bags have many uses. Slipped over the chimney of a kerosene lamp, one such will keep it clean and ready for such an emergency as the night when the electricity fails. In closets paper bags are a convenience to slip over footwear out of season, for it keeps off the dust. Small-sized paper bags slipped over pint or quart jars of canned fruit not only keep the jars free from dust, but help preserve the fruit. Paper bags are useful to garner seeds from the flower and vegetable garden for the next season's planting.—Selected.

SORES BOILS, CUTS and BURNS have been healed since 1820
with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg.,
Nashville, Tenn.

To Reduce Fever Relieve Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

Use

Aspitone is very efficient and absolutely safe to use as it does not depress the heart even in extreme cases of debility or weak heart, neurasthenia or anaemia. Manufactured by a formula in use by leading physicians generally. 19 parts pure Aspirin, 1 part pure Caffeine, 4 parts excipient, in convenient tablet form. 35c per package at your druggists or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

All my Own.

I do not own an inch of land,
But all I see is mine—
The orchards and the mowing fields,
The lawns and gardens fine.
The winds my tax collectors are,
They bring me tithes divine—
Wild scents and subtle essences,
A tribute rare and free;
And more magnificent than all,
My window keeps for me
A glimpse of blue immensity,
A little strip of sea.

Here sit I, as a little child;
The threshold of God's door
Is that clear band of chrysoprase;
Now the vast temple floor,
The blinding glory of the dome,
I bow my head before;
The universe, O God, is home,
In height or depth, to me;
Yet here upon thy footstool green
Content am I to be,
Glad when is opened to my need
Some sealike glimpse of thee.
—Lucy Larcom.

True Aims and False Aims.

BY JARRATT L. SMITH.

"Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart to judge thy people, that I may discern between good and bad: for who is able to judge this thy so great a people?" (1 Kings 3: 9.)

These were the words of a very wise and great man; and it is said that his speech pleased the Lord.

The men whose names the world will not willingly let die are those who find in others' good their greatest joy. The names of self-gratifiers, self-seekers, die out. The men whose unselfishness leads them to say, "Give me these that I may judge thy people, that I may civilize and educate and evangelize, that I may bless my generation"—their names become the echo, ever sounding throughout the ages, for the sacrifice they once chose to make for others. The two great teachers from among the kings of Israel learned in suffering what they taught in song, proverb, and parable.

In the chapter containing our text we read of Solomon's ascending to Gibeon and sacrificing at once a thousand burnt offerings. Solomon found out that very night that these offerings were not wasted. God appeared to him and said: "Ask what I shall give thee." Solomon came up to the height of a great choice, and the choice pleased the Lord. God comes to every one of us, saying: "Choose what I shall give thee." We must choose; and it is this liberty to choose one's aim in life and one's destiny at last that makes life so serious. We must choose between religion and irreligion; and if we choose aright, it is well for us.

"Give therefore thy servant an understanding heart." It must begin with the heart. The pure in heart alone can see God (Matt. 5: 8); and if a man cannot see God in the world, he cannot see anything else in its true proportions.

Choose between good and bad in your companions, your books, your pleasures and habits. You are in a world of temptation; and it is a manifestation of wisdom when the true aim in life is chosen.

It pleased the Lord that Solomon had asked wisdom and rejected that which was false. It pleased God that he did not ask for long life. Then, is that a wrong desire? Well, it is a nobler thing to act well your part than to be constantly wishing for long life. Life is not measured by length of days. "We live in acts, not years." Methuselah lived for nine hundred years, and never said a word worth putting down in the Bible. Jesus Christ was here for only thirty-three years, and his name has gone through the earth, filled heaven with its praise, and his deeds shall be spoken of throughout the eternal ages. Life is yours to fill it, as Christ filled his, with noble deeds of help to others.

It pleased the Lord that Solomon did not ask for riches. Then, is it not wrong for us to desire riches? As the great absorbing passion in life, it is wrong. Jesus did not teach that riches are the root of all evil, but "the love of riches." The evil was here before the riches. There was not a penny in the world when the first sin was committed. But if mammon be your great aim in life, you will be the worse for every coin you gather.

It pleased the Lord that he did not ask the life of his enemies. Neither should we. Some say that it is the sweetest thing in life to have revenge upon an enemy. Another has said: "Revenge is mine, saith the Lord." Christianity is the only religion that teaches all men to give over their vengeance to the Lord.

The reason why it pleased the Lord that Solomon rejected the false and chose the true aim in life is, he chose what enabled him to be serviceable to others—"an understanding heart to judge thy people," he chose to walk in the statutes of a good father; and, furthermore, he chose God himself as his portion, rather than all his gifts. But God gives abundantly more than you ask. His gifts never bring leanness to the soul; but they bring a feast of joy, until the Christian is ready to cry: "All these, and Christ, too!"

Goodyear Raincoat FREE. We will send a handsome Rainproofed, All-Weather Coat to one person in each locality who will show and recommend it to friends. Write to-day to The Goodyear Mfg. Co., 7066-R Goodyear Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

ASPIRIN

Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Headache	Toothache
Lumbago	Colds
Rheumatism	Neuralgia
Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package, which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylic acid.

JACOBS & COMPANY
SPECIAL ADVERTISING AGENTS
PRINTERS
DESIGNERS
PHOTO-ENGRAVERS
ELECTROTYPERS
Catalogues —
— a Specialty
HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S.C.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, back-aches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting CAPUDINE

CANCER

HOSPITAL. Intra-venous treatment for cancer. Operation. Radium and X-Ray unnecessary. Booklet giving full information upon request. Box 2127, ATLANTA, GA.

GIRLS! LEMONS

WHITEN SKIN AND
BLEACH FRECKLES

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day; then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach, because it doesn't irritate.

FRED K. JONES

Buying, Selling, and Exchanging
REAL ESTATE

I Make an Effort to Assist All
Who Call on Me

43 ARCADE

NASHVILLE, TENN.

W. W. PERRY
President

A. D. PERRY Manager

W. D. PERRY
Treasurer

We Invite Your Patronage

PERRY FURNITURE
COMPANY

GENERAL HOUSE FURNISHERS

Phone, Main 1491

208 THIRD AVENUE, NORTH
NASHVILLE, TENN.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid
of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

When Tired and Depressed
Take HORSFORD'S
ACID PHOSPHATE

Delightful tonic drink that refreshes and brightens the brain, soothes the nerves, aids digestion. Good for young and old. All druggists.

Field Reports

Quitman, Ark., August 8.—I have just closed a fine meeting at Albion, Okla., with thirty baptisms, and thirteen who had run off after the devil came back home. I go next to Strawberry, Ark.; then to New River, Ala.; and then to Ozark, Ark., on September 20, to fill Brother C. R. Nichol's date in debate with Stewart on the infidel doctrine of a future kingdom and soul sleeping.—J. D. Tant.

Altus, Okla., August 15.—On the night of August 4 the church here closed its second mission meeting this season at Pleasant Point Schoolhouse, with six souls baptized into Christ and one restored. I did the preaching. On August 6 Brother S. H. Hall began a meeting here. To date there have been fifteen added to the church from all sources. The meeting will continue through next Lord's day. Brother Hall, as is his constant habit, is presenting wonderful truths in each one of his addresses.—S. E. Templeton.

Etowah, Tenn., August 18.—Brother Flavil Hall began a meeting here on July 2 and closed it on July 16. His son, Gardner S. Hall, led the song service, and also conducted a class in vocal music. Brother Charles Holder began a meeting at Englewood on July 21 and closed it on August 14, with thirty-one additions. This was a mission meeting and held in a tent. There was no congregation there previous to this meeting. An effort will be made to build a house of worship. Gardner Hall led the song service. The Etowah congregation furnished the singer. There is much to do in East Tennessee, and this is a sample of what can be done. Brother W. C. Phillips closed a meeting recently for the Spring Creek congregation, with fourteen additions. He is now in Georgia in a meeting.—S. S. McMahon.

Hanceville, Ala., August 17.—On Thursday following the first Lord's day in July I began a meeting at Kimberly, Ala. I was not well, and grew worse as the meeting progressed, and after six days returned home, having baptized two persons there. Then for two weeks I was unable to do anything. On the fifth Sunday in July I began a meeting at Pleasant Hill Church, as a result of which three were added to the body. I am going to do some evangelistic work under the direction of this church next year. I shall begin a tent mission meeting for this church on the third Sunday in September, the Lord willing. I am now in the midst of a meeting near Arkadelphia, Ala., with good interest, especially among the members. I have time for a meeting between the first and third Sundays in September. Write to me if you need my services. This is only my third year in the work, and I am determined during the coming year to put all I have into it. There is no paper like the Gospel Advocate.—Pride E. Hinton.

Hornbeak, Tenn., August 17.—On Friday night, July 21, Brother R. C. White, of Nashville, Tenn., began a meeting at this place and closed it on

SUCCEEDS WHERE DOCTORS FAIL

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound Often Does That.—Read Mrs. Miner's Testimony

Churubusco, N. Y.—"I was under the doctor's care for over five years for backache and had no relief from his medicine. One day a neighbor told me about your Vegetable Compound and I took it. It helped me so much that I wish to advise all women to try Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for female troubles and backache. It is a great help in carrying a child, as I have noticed a difference when I didn't take it. I thank you for this medicine and if I ever come to this point again I do not want to be without the Vegetable Compound. I give you permission to publish this letter so that all women can take my advice."—Mrs. FRED MINER, Box 102, Churubusco, N. Y.

It's the same story over again. Women suffer from ailments for years. They try doctors and different medicines, but feel no better. Finally they take Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and you can see its value in the case of Mrs. Miner.

That's the truth of the matter. If you are suffering from any of the troubles women have, you ought to try this medicine. It can be taken in safety by young or old, as it contains no harmful drugs.

WATCH YOUR ADDRESS LABEL

Look at the address label that comes with each copy of the Gospel Advocate. If it bears a date that has passed, please send renewal of subscription—$2.00 a year.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE
Nashville, Tenn.

Tuesday night, August 1. I had the pleasure and benefit of hearing him several times. The sermons were full of scripture, logic, and pathos, appealing to the intellect and emotions of the heart. Three were baptized. It was a great meeting. On the first Lord's day in August, Brother F. B. Srygley, of Nashville, began a meeting at Glass and closed it on Tuesday night, August 15. Ten were baptized and two restored to fellowship. I had the pleasure and benefit of hearing him only twice. Those who know Brother Srygley know the kind of preaching he did. It was a great treat to me to be with these godly men and learn from them. Brother Flavil Hall has been in Obion County for nearly a month. I did not get to see him, and have not heard of the visible results of his work. My meeting at Jones Chapel, in Lake County, began on the first Lord's day in August and closed on the second Lord's day. Seven were baptized and four were restored to fellowship. My twelfth meeting there in succession, and I am called again for 1923.—John R. Williams.

Rector, Ark., August 16.—Brother Lacey L. Holt, of Batesville, Ark., and I closed one of the greatest meetings ever held in the State, at Egypt, Ark., on Monday last, at the water. There were one hundred and forty-four additions from all sources—one hundred baptisms and forty-four accessions from reclamations, statement, and by letter from other congregations. A great many of those baptized came from the Baptists, expressing a desire to obey from the heart that form of doctrine once delivered. Most of those baptized were of mature age, heads of families. Brother Holt preached at night to the world and the writer spoke to the church in the morning services. The success of the meeting is largely due to the fact that the congregation was ready for the meeting—had their spiritual house in order and all things ready. The preachers tried to preach the gospel as God's power to save, and the faithfulness of the congregation gave the people a desire to hear the truth. I have been preaching regularly for this congregation for some years, and they listened to my plea to get all things ready. The meeting continued over three Lord's days.—J. W. Dollison.

Union, S. C., August 14.—We are greatly rejoiced to be back in tent work. On August 10 we pitched our new tent which Brother White made for us and began a meeting at Moore, S. C., with about one hundred and twenty-five present. On Friday night the audience was fine, considering the threatening weather. Yesterday afternoon we had a good crowd, and last night we could not seat all who came. I have never seen better attention; and as this is the first time that they have ever heard the gospel in its purity, it is uncertain as to the outcome. We have two brethren living in this neighborhood, and they are very anxious to establish a congregation. Brethren, pray for us. We had a fine crowd at the services at home in the forenoon. Some were out for the first time and seemed to be highly pleased with the service. One confession. Brother Gibbs' reports from Greenville are very encouraging. Certainly the congregation at Waverly-Belmont, Nashville, Tenn., is rejoicing that they are having fellowship with him in the great work that he is doing. Just think—about thirty members already! I really believe that Brother Gibbs is doing what he can with what he has to work with. He is badly in need of a Ford to use in the work. I do not know of a better way some congregation could spend a few hundred dollars. It seems that, with just two preachers in this State, the brotherhood cannot afford to let the work be handicapped so much on account of the price of a Ford. Who will speak first? It might save many souls. We are also badly in need of about two hundred folding chairs to be used in our tent work. If you have any number stored away that you do not need, you would do well to ship them to us.—Thomas H. Burton.

HARPER COLLEGE

J. N. ARMSTRONG, President

The School Which Cultivates the Heart as It Trains the Mind

COLLEGIATE DEPARTMENT offers two and three years of work in Bible, Botany, Chemistry, Education and Psychology, English, French, German, Greek, History and Political Science, Home Economics, Latin, Mathematics, Physics, Public Speaking, Sociology, Spanish, Zoology.

HIGH SCHOOL DEPARTMENT, offering more than forty units of work in the languages, sciences, vocational training, social sciences, etc.

NORMAL TRAINING DEPARTMENT for students intending to teach. SCHOOL OF FINE ARTS, offering work in Piano, Harmony, History of Music, Theory, Voice, Public Speaking, etc.

BUSINESS DEPARTMENT, offering competent instruction in Book-keeping, Shorthand, Typewriting, etc.

STANDARD GRADE SCHOOL under experienced and well-trained teachers.

TEACHERS' CERTIFICATES

The work of all departments accredited. Our second-year college students receive State Teachers' Certificates in Kansas, Oklahoma, Texas, and other States, without examination.

UNUSUALLY STRONG FACULTY OF CHRISTIAN MEN AND WOMEN

Every teacher holds degrees from standard colleges and universities. Every regular teacher has been trained in Christian schools, and loves the work.

THE SCHOOL WHICH GIVES YOU MOST FOR YOUR MONEY

Tuition only $20 and $25 a term, or $40 and $50 for entire year. Board last year, $14.89 a month; this year, expected to be $14 or under. Rooms from $5 to $8 a month. Almost no fees. Can you beat this anywhere?

Write for a Catalog. Have Your Room Reserved Now

HARPER COLLEGE, HARPER, KANSAS

J. N. ARMSTRONG, President

L. C. SEARS, Dean

Shir-Gar

PAT. FEB. 13, 1910
HOLDS SHIRT DOWN
DOES UP
DON'T TROUBLE LEGS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good

WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,
HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,
SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY

WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by

Washington Manufacturing Company

Nashville, Tennessee

Shir-Gar

PAT. FEB. 13, 1910
NO BULGING OF
SHIRT—NO MORE
VARICOSE VEINS

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER
GIVE IT A TRIAL

STATE BANK AND TRUST CO.

NASHVILLE, TENN.

BROADWAY BRANCH

Ninth and Broadway

4 Per Cent Interest Paid on Deposits

WINTERSMITH'S CHILL TONIC

SOLD 50 YEARS — A FINE GENERAL TONIC

If not sold by your druggist, write Wintersmith Chemical Co., Louisville, Ky.

In answering advertisements, please mention this paper.

Renew your health
by purifying your system with

The purified and refined
calomel tablets that are free
from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel
and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c
and 35c packages, bearing above trade-mark.

GET PAID

For Your Spare Time

Make a few dollars extra each day selling your friends Primo Cleanser for personal toilet or general household use. Fifty per cent commission. Send 25c for salesman's outfit, including a one-pound can of Primo, literature, and full particulars.

THE PRIMO CO., 2617 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

TETTERINE

Drives Away Pimples

and leaves your skin soft and spotless. 60c
at your druggist's or from the SHUPTRINE
CO., Savannah, Ga.

Sore Feet?

Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry.
Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Inflammation)

is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

A Special Plea.

BY MAX LANGPAAP.

This article is not written in the spirit of complaint. A plea is not a complaint. We are not complaining.
We simply desire to spur on a renewed and greater effort on behalf of the Honolulu mission work.

We have been in Honolulu a little over one year. The mission is on a fair start toward greater things for the kingdom. Perhaps not a very great deal has been accomplished up to date. But the start has been made, and we are trying to lay the foundation deep and strong and solid—that is, on Jesus Christ. Our conscience is clear in this respect.
We have not compromised in anything with the sectarian world or with the world itself in order that we might make our work seem more prosperous and more of a success. What we have already done, we have done the way the Bible teaches us to do, and it is our firm resolve in our struggle upward to rely solely on the strength and merits of the gospel of Jesus Christ. If I cannot do the work allotted to me here in Honolulu in this way, I am ready to quit. If I did it any other way, I would be false to God and to the brethren who are supporting this work.

Now, people are not crowding around us and imploring us by the hundreds and thousands to tell them what to do to be saved and demanding to be immersed. We feel delighted when we find one who cares to hear the gospel and is honest enough to care to search out with us whether these things be so. Our work will be somewhat laborious and results slow. But we want to do it as the Master requires. No compromise on this score. May it always be truly said of me that I stuck to the old paths, even if I did not seem to accomplish much.

Our first year here has resulted in two baptisms. More than once we had eager hopes of reporting others, but they did not materialize. I am sure they heard enough of the gospel to know what was required.

Besides this, we have property easily worth five thousand dollars that is being used for the mission, and will be used as long as it is ours. We could wish that it was clear of debt; but it is not,
and will not be clear for several years unless our special plea bears good fruit. Brother, I am not asking you to give just so much as your part in this work, but I am going to leave it with God to plead with you for us to do just as much for us as we ought to have done in order that we may be enabled to push forward with greater speed. We do not know that we are hindered and thwarted when we speed. We know that we are being enough problems to meet and solve, enough difficulties to overcome in matters spiritual, without being hindered overmuch in material things.

During July we received ninety dollars. Taking from this the monthly payment of fifty dollars, we have forty dollars left. Figure out, if you can, just how far a family of four can get with forty dollars in such a country as this. What do you think about this, reader? Ponder well our work and pray for us. We need more than we are getting, and it needs to come in steadily, not spasmodically. If we can clear this property, we can broaden our field. We believe that this is as promising a field for future results as can be found anywhere. There is a special field among the young Orientals. Will you help us reach them?
All who love to see the kingdom of Jesus increase will be glad to help us in this work. Then let us push forward to greater things. It is not right to be at a standstill too long on account of lack of means. God's work is too great and too important for that.
Give the Honolulu mission a special place in your prayers and in your fellowship.

Recuperation. There is not so much in the ordinary vacation as there is in a single bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which refreshes the tired blood, sharpens the dulled appetite, restores the lost courage. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla this summer.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specialty designed gift for the bereaved.
Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the deceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

STOMACH CATARRH

Causes untold misery and suffering, all of which is needless. Pe-ru-na acts as quickly and surely on catarrh of the stomach and bowels as in cases of that common form, nasal catarrh.

PERU-NA

IN USE
FIFTY YEARS

Exercises a soothing, healing effect upon all mucous linings.
Relieving gas, sour stomach, nausea, vomiting, cramps, pains in the abdomen, diarrhoea, constipation are all symptoms of a catarrhal condition in the organs of digestion.

Don't suffer another day.
It is needless and dangerous. Two generations have found Pe-ru-na just the medicine needed for such disturbances.

Sold Everywhere
Tablets or Liquid

Renew your subscription to the
Gospel Advocate.

Among the Colored Folks

On the second Lord's day in July I began a meeting at Obion, Tenn., which continued one week, with fine interest. The brethren and sisters were much encouraged. This is a small congregation, but they are willing workers and faithful in the work of the Master. The white brethren and sisters attended each night and helped to support me while there. I have promised to return next year and remain longer.

On the third Lord's day in July I began a two-weeks' meeting at Henderson, Tenn. Although this was my seventh meeting at this place, the interest seemed to be greater than ever. The house was packed at each service and the singing was excellent. Brother A. G. Freed was present one night and spoke a few words of encouragement. The white people attended each night, and they seemed to enjoy seeing the people worshipping God in spirit and truth who once were entangled in sectarianism. This meeting resulted in twenty-two precious souls obeying the gospel. I have consented to labor with them again next year.

On the fifth Lord's day in July I began a meeting at Center Point, Ark., and continued it two weeks. Interest grew from the beginning. The white people attended in large numbers, some coming thirty miles in cars, and they did all they could to encourage me in my work. There were seven additions and one restoration. This was my second meeting with these good people, who did all they could to make my stay among them a pleasant one. By request I preached on Tuesday at eleven o'clock for the white people, and Brother Billingsley (white) was present and seemed to enjoy the services. I have promised to labor with them next year.

My next meeting will be at Capleville, Tenn.

I sincerely thank the white Christian people for their hearty coöperation in my work wherever I go. A white brother wrote me a few days ago, stating that there were several colored people who wanted to be baptized at Martin, Tenn., where I closed a meeting a few weeks ago. He says the people are reading their Bibles since I left. Just as soon as I find an opportunity I will go back to Martin. Whenever my people see the light of the pure gospel, they will come to Christ.

M. KEEBLE.

This world is not so bad a world
As some would like to make it;
And whether good or whether bad,
Depends on how we take it.
—Selected.

Diamond Rivers.

The geological formation of the famous diamond region in the state of Bahia, Brazil, shows that at some time in the history of the world the mountains there were thrown up by a hot mass and the carbon in the stone crystallized into gems. It was, in effect, an electric furnace on a gigantic scale. In Brazilian diamond mining natural water courses play an important part. Water and the weather gradually disintegrate the rocks, and the diamonds are washed down into gullies and the beds of rivers, whence they are recovered by the miners. In some places divers are employed to work at the bottom of the rivers, filling sacks with silt that contains the diamonds. The river beds are rich in precious stones which cannot be extracted advantageously, if at all, by the methods now in vogue.—Selected.

THE B. H. STIEF JEWELRY CO.

We are preparing our mailing list for our New Catalogue. If you are interested in a free copy, write us.

B. H. STIEF JEWELRY CO.
CHURCH STREET
Nashville, Tennessee

For the HAIR—

to make it soft, fluffy, and free from dandruff, use

TETTERINE

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

PRICES OF OUR HYMN BOOKS.

PRAISE HIM.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 50	Single copy.....	$ 60
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	17 00	Per fifty.....	22 50
Per hundred.....	32 50	Per hundred.....	43 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

CHRISTIAN HYMNS.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 55	Single copy.....	$ 65
Per dozen.....	6 00	Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	23 00	Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	45 00	Per hundred.....	55 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

WORDS OF TRUTH.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 45	Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	18 00	Per fifty.....	23 00
Per hundred.....	35 00	Per hundred.....	45 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

VOICE OF PRAISE.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 35	Single copy.....	$ 40
Per dozen.....	4 00	Per dozen.....	5 00
Per fifty.....	16 00	Per fifty.....	20 00
Per hundred.....	30 00	Per hundred.....	36 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

CHRISTIAN HYMNS AND WORDS OF TRUTH, COMBINED— CHRISTIAN HYMNS AND VOICE OF PRAISE, COMBINED.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 70	Single copy.....	$ 75
Per dozen.....	7 20	Per dozen.....	8 75
Per fifty.....	28 00	Per fifty.....	36 00
Per hundred.....	55 00	Per hundred.....	70 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

GOSPEL PRAISE.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 50	Single copy.....	$ 60
Per dozen.....	6 00	Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	23 00	Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	45 00	Per hundred.....	65 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

SEVENTY-SEVEN SWEET SONGS. Flexible Cloth.

Single copy.....	$ 25	Per fifty.....	$ 7 50
Per dozen.....	2 50	Per hundred.....	14 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

NEW CHRISTIAN HYMN BOOK.

Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 40	Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	5 60
Per fifty.....	16 50	Per fifty.....	22 00
Per hundred.....	32 00	Per hundred.....	40 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

Field Reports

Imboden, Ark., August 16.—I have recently conducted meetings at Noland, Maynard, and Biggers, Ark. At Noland we had a very good meeting. The crowds were large every night. Attention and interest were fine. Four were added to the one body. We began at Maynard on July 28 and continued over two Lord's days. Twenty-seven were baptized and eight were restored. Among those baptized was a Baptist preacher, who was a member of the faculty of the Ozark Baptist Academy at Maynard and who had been preaching for the Baptist people for about nine years, but he declares that hereafter he will preach it as "it is written." This was the best meeting of the year for me. I promised to hold their meeting next year. In spite of the fact that the Methodist people were in a meeting at the same time, we had a fine meeting at Biggers. The crowds and interest were fine throughout the meeting. Eleven souls were baptized into Christ and four were reclaimed. Brother C. E. McCord, of Palatka, Ark., who was there at the time in a singing normal, had charge of the song service in the meeting. From here I go to a point near Swifton.—A. H. Porterfield.

Covington, Ky., August 14.—On the first Lord's day in August I spoke to the congregation at Branch Hill, Ohio. This was formerly a digressive congregation, which seems to have been abandoned by our erring brethren as to preaching, and was partially set in order by Brother J. L. Hines, they having agreed to give up everything unscriptural except the instrument. The brethren here have been extending as much encouragement as possible to this congregation, and have asked them to cooperate with us in supporting Brother Hines as resident evangelist when he reaches here on October 1 to take up such a work among the local brethren, provided they will give up the instrumental music also. The Covington brethren continue steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine, etc., and are trying to engage in the things which pertain to salvation for ourselves and those who are without. We have rendered assistance to needy widows and orphans among the members and also without our number, have helped to support preachers of the gospel who come among us, and have started a building fund. We are still meeting in a rented hall on the third floor, which very greatly retards our progress. We have invited a number of other local congregations to cooperate with us in supporting a resident evangelist for work here, and have received assurances from several congregations that help may be expected. Brethren everywhere are requested to pray for the success of our efforts.—R. C. Hammons.

Be not disturbed by infidelity. Religion cannot pass away. The smoke of a little straw may hide the stars, but the stars are there and will reappear.—Carlyle.

Dodson's Liver Tone

Killing Calomel Sale

Don't sicken or salivate yourself or paralyze your sensitive liver by taking calomel, which is quicksilver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it regulates the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel without making you sick. Fifteen million bottles sold

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

New York City Church of Christ

239 West Sixty-Ninth Street

Services: 2:30 P.M., Bible Study; 3:15 P.M., Preaching and Communion.

E. E. Shoulders, Evangelist, 699 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Phone, Flatbush 6857.

$362.50 Commission On One Order

We offer a very attractive commission proposition to responsible men selling our line of guaranteed monuments, in Marble and Granite. On one deal our Mr. Fuller of North Carolina, made $362.50; Mr. Bryan of West Virginia, $206.25; Mr. Duncan, of Tennessee, $193.25; Mr. Willard, of Illinois, $131.25. These commissions have all been earned within the last 60 days. We have many other agents making from $200.00 to $400.00 per month.

Our monuments are well finished. No trouble to sell. Write for full particulars and confidential contract.

National Marble & Granite Corporation
Dept. A., BALL GROUND, GA.

EXPERT DYEING AND DRY CLEANING SEND BY PARCEL POST

"Over Forty Years' Experience"

McEWEN'S LAUNDRY
NASHVILLE, TENN.

"HERE ARE THOSE ANTI-PAIN PILLS"

"I don't need them very often, but when I do, I need them quick. One or two and the pain is gone."

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills will relieve you quickly and safely—no unpleasant after effects—no danger of forming a drug habit.

Next time you pass a drug store stop in and get a box.

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills contain no habit forming drugs.

Your Druggist Has Them.

Gospel Advocate

CEWORTH'S
Life and Casualty Bldg

Volume LXIV. No. 35.

NASHVILLE, TENN., AUGUST 31, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

Alien Prayer	$17
OUR CONTRIBUTORS	$19
Servants of God—How Inert Are Some Churches!
The Question of War Reconsidered—Counterfeits—
Not a Hoof Left Behind—The Blight of Selfishness—
Notes from West Tennessee.
EDITORIAL	$26
Doing Good—Evolution.
EVANGELISTIC NOTES	$28
HOME READING	$30
QUERY DEPARTMENT	$31
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT	$32
Consecration—A Letter from Brother G. C. Brewer.	$33
Notes from Florida—Orphans' Home in Florida.	$34
New York City Notes—Missionary News—An Announcement.	$35
FIELD REPORTS	$36
Among the Colored Folks.	$37
OBITUARIES	$38
York—Hall—Agee—Kibler—Sparkman.
One Tent and Five Preachers Wanted.	$40

ALIEN PRAYER.

[This week our readers are treated to an article on "Alien Prayer" from the trenchant pen of the lamented D. Lipscomb. This is a reprint from the Gospel Advocate of 1876.—H. Leo. B.]

A brother asks for a scriptural consideration of alien prayer, referring to the prayer of Cornelius.

The question of "alien prayer" is not treated in the Bible. It is the outgrowth of a corrupted religion and of false ideas concerning that religion. In the primitive age of the religion of the Redeemer, the idea of a man praying to God who was not willing to obey him does not seem to have been recognized. The principle in the Old Testament is plainly laid down that the man that turneth away his ear from hearing the law, even his prayer shall be abomination." (Prov. 28: 9.) But this did not refer to the alien from Israel, but to the child of Abraham who refused obedience to the laws of God. It was a knowledge of this universally recognized rule of dealing with the disobedient Jew that prompted the blind man who was healed to say: "Now we know that God heareth not sinners; but if any man be a worshiper of God, and doeth his will, him he heareth." (John 9: 31.) This is spoken to the Pharisees as a well-known and universally accepted principle among the Jews, and is quoted by the apostle with full approbation as the rule under the Christian dispensation. Solomon gave further expression to the same truth. "Because I have called, and ye refused; I have stretched out my hand, and no man regarded; but ye have set at naught all my counsel, and would none of my reproof: I also will laugh at your calamity; I will mock when your fear cometh; when your fear cometh as desolation, and your destruction cometh as a whirlwind; when destruction and anguish cometh upon you. Then shall they call upon me, but I will not answer; they shall seek me early, but shall not find me: for that they hated knowledge, and did not choose the fear of the Lord: they would none of my counsel; they despised my reproof." (Prov. 1: 24-30.) But this is directed to the Jew, in covenant relation with God, but who turns away and refuses to hearken to his commands or to obey his laws. John says: "Whosoever we ask, we receive of him, because we keep his commandments, and do those things that are pleasing in his sight." (1 John 3: 22.) But this is spoken to and of those who are in Christ, who have put him on. The lesson is taught as plainly that we cannot neglect God and his laws, cannot treat them lightly and refuse to hearken to him until calamity comes upon us, until danger threatens, then turn and pray to him and be heard. He has said to such that he will laugh at our calamities, he will refuse to hearken when we call. This principle is doubtless as true with reference to one out of covenant with God as to one in it. These seem to indicate clearly that the whole habit of refusing to obey God until sickness and death come upon us, and then in the distress of our souls calling on him with the expectation of being blessed, is a delusion. Many take the mere fact that they call on God as evidence that he will accept them. But he says they will call, but he will not hear, because when he called, when they were young and in health, they refused to hearken to him. That they sometimes imagine he pardons them and get happy is just no evidence at all. People frequently delude themselves on this subject as on many others. A dying man knows no more about his future state than the man in good health.

We let our sympathy for man frequently cause us to lose sight of God's power and God's law. God's honor is violated and outraged when we teach that man has been allowed to rebel against God all the days of a long and active life of vigor, and then in a few moments of weakness, in a dying hour of mental and bodily feebleness, implore help, and assure him he can obtain it. When we in health and vigor refuse to hearken, he will not hear us when in weakness and calamity we call upon him.

But to the question. It does not seem to us that the Scriptures anticipate what is called "alien prayer." It means the prayer of one who is staying away from God, who is refusing to obey him, who recognizes by a cold mental assent that he is God, yet refuses to come near to him, to be his servant, to be his child, to honor him in his life, and with his body. Can there be any doubt as to the reception God gives a prayer of such a person?

Why should a man who would pray to God be an alien? He certainly need be an alien no longer than to submit to him to whom he prays. If he will not submit to him, why pray to him? Certainly if he prays to him in faith, he believes in him, trusts him; why not, then, obey him? All the teaching of the Bible is that so soon as an alien believes in Christ, he will at once obey him and cease to be an alien. So his prayers at once would cease to be alien prayers; they would become instead the prayers of a child of God. If the man's prayer is not in faith, it is a hypocritical prayer. If he is not a believer, his prayer is not in faith. "Whosoever is not of faith is sin."

The whole difficulty about alien prayer has grown out of the error that a man may be a child of God while refusing to submit to him, while out of Christ. This error eradicated, the difficulty vanishes. Men now stay away from God, refuse to obey, violate his commands, and for years and years pray to God to bless them, to save them. These prayers cannot be granted if the Bible be true. Now, these men, while praying to God, either believe in God through Christ or they do not. If they believe in him, why not obey him and put themselves on the Lord's side, in his kingdom, enter into Christ and become his children? If they do not believe in him or trust him, their prayers are in unbelief, are not of faith. Only the prayer of faith is answered with a blessing.

There is no excuse for any man now, who knows enough of God and has faith enough in him to pray to him, not to obey him. Sometimes we apologize for them that they are timid and lack confidence. Timid of God, a kind Father, but not timid, not fearful of serving the devil? They lack confidence to serve God, but have confidence to serve the devil.

The whole truth is, the timidity, lack of confidence toward God, is unbelief, and unbelief because we love sin; a lack of faith because we do not desire to serve God.

We need waking up on this lethargic, insulting position we occupy toward God. Pray to God, ask his favor, yet will not submit to him, will not let him lead us, will not let him direct and rule over us—that is alien prayer. Of course God will not hear or answer that kind of a prayer. But what was Cornelius' condition? He was not a Jew, and he prayed. But Cornelius, to the extent that he knew the law of God, was obeying it; and the moment he learned the will of God, he gladly obeyed. He did not find objections, he did not see how many excuses and pretexts he could invent to keep from obeying. When he prayed, he connected with his prayer an anxiety to know the will of God that he might do it. What prevents any man who desires to do the will of God now from knowing it? Prejudice, you say. What is prejudice but a blindness to the truth, because we love something else better than we love the truth? We love somebody else's ways better than we love God's ways. That is prejudice. Prejudice of this kind is one of the highest crimes against God. Prejudice is blindness of the heart. But it is "the god of this world" which "hath blinded the minds of them which believe not, lest the light of the glorious gospel of Christ, who is the Image of God, should shine unto them," "to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ." "If our gospel be hid, it is hid to them that are lost." (2 Cor. 4: 4-6.) If people are so blind that they cannot see the truth to obey it, it is because they are serving the god of this world. While they are serving him the God of heaven will not hear them. Those to whom the gospel is hid must perish.

I have no doubt that every man who prays as Cornelius did, under like circumstances, that God will hear his prayers. Every man who sincerely desires to do the will of God—who is doing it so far as he knows—God will enable him to know it. But a man with the Bible who refuses to read it, or, reading, refuses to obey it, is not like Cornelius. A man with prejudices that will not let him see the truth is not like Cornelius. The word of God was all Cornelius wanted to induce him to obey it. He was not prejudiced; he was more anxious to receive and know and obey that than anything else in the world. This much in reference to alien prayer. No earnest, true man, anxious to obey God, will remain an alien any longer than he can obey the law that makes him a child of God. If he refuses obedience, his prayer will not be heard. If he prays like Cornelius, he will be blessed like him, not with a miracle or inspired men, but with that which is the sum of all inspiration—the Bible.

The question of alien prayer, then, is not the question to be considered. Whenever a man comes to believe in God through Christ, he is brought to realize his own weakness, blindness, sinfulness, and helplessness. He sees God's power, goodness, love. He as naturally prays when he realizes this as he breathes. But if he is honest with himself and true to his own integrity and his Maker, he earnestly starts on the work of obedience to God. He turns himself right around and starts heavenward. At every step he prays, and with every breath of prayer he steps forward in obedience. There is no separation with the true, honest lover of God between prayer and obedience. What we object to in the individuals that merely believe is not their prayer. It is depending on prayer alone without obedience. They are taught and they practice praying that God will bless, will pardon, while failing to go forward in obedience. We want them to go forward by faith in prompt obedience, praying as they go. When God says, "Repent, and be baptized . . . in the name of Jesus Christ for the remission of sins," instead of going forward in glad and joyful obedience, they stop, refuse the obedience, yet pray to God to forgive them their sins while refusing or failing to obey him. God never answered that kind or character of prayer in Cornelius or any other being. The alien prayer is a prayer for the blessing while refusing to comply with the conditions on which God has suspended the blessing. Cornelius never prayed that prayer; God never answers that prayer.

There is no shadow of excuse for any man not knowing what the Bible requires him to do, except that he wants to do something else—is blinded by his love for something else than the way of the Lord. Man is responsible for keeping a good and honest heart. We should plainly teach the world its true responsibility on this matter of prejudice and blindness instead of apologizing for it.

Publishers' Items.

Many splendid books are published and handled at this office. Good, religious books should be kept in each home. They have a refining influence on the young. Their educational value cannot be overestimated. The Gospel Advocate Company would like to help you educate your family by introducing good books to your library. "Evenings with the Bible" is a fine book to develop piety and spirituality, as well as very instructive. "The People's New Testament with Notes" is very helpful to Bible students. Here is a list that should be in every home. How many of them have you?

- "Sermons," by J. W. McGarvey.
- "Eunice Loyd," by R. N. Moody.
- "Bible-Reading," by Isaac Errett.
- "The Glorious Gospel," by Adcock.
- "The Querist's Drawer," by Errett.
- "Lands of the Bible," by McGarvey.
- "Gospel Sermons," by T. W. Brents.
- "Cruden's Concordance" (complete).
- "Larimore and His Boys," by Srygley.
- "The Gospel Preacher," by B. Franklin.
- "Letters and Sermons of T. B. Larimore."
- "Travels in Bible Lands," by A. T. Ritchie.
- "Seventy Years in Dixie," by F. D. Srygley.
- "Patriotic Illustrations for Public Speakers," by Brown.
- "A New Commentary on Acts of the Apostles," by McGarvey.

Send us a new subscriber to-day for the Gospel Advocate. Price, $2 a year, in advance.

Write us to-day for sample copies of The Young People for boys and girls. The price is in reach of all.

If you know of any congregation not now using our Bible Lesson Helps and will send us the address, we will gladly furnish them sample copies.

If you have friends who are not subscribers to the Gospel Advocate, kindly furnish us their names and addresses so that we may send them sample copies.

"Questions Answered," by David Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell, should have a place in every library. Those who have seen and examined it closely are highly pleased with it. Cloth bound; 700 pages. Price, $3, postpaid.

Have you read "Sunshine; or, Uncle Miner's Stories?" This is a very attractive book for children as well as for old people. Children read it with much interest. It is profusely illustrated, and contains many interesting incidents and stories.

Our Contributors

Servants of God.

BY J. G. ALLEN.

A servant is one who serves. That naturally implies a service. The Bible tells us about different kinds of servants; but let us notice this word in its highest sense—that is, in the sense of a person that dedicates himself to the service of another by the choice of his own will.

The apostles did that very thing. Hear them: "Paul, a servant of Jesus Christ." (Rom. 1: 1.) "James, a servant of God and of the Lord Jesus Christ." (James 1: 1.) "Simon Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ." (2 Pet. 2: 1.) "Jude, the servant of Jesus Christ." (Jude 1.)

I have referred to the apostles first for the reason that no one, I suppose, will call in question but what the apostles were servants of Jesus Christ—that is, they rendered their service to Him.

The next point I call attention to is the service that Jesus Christ commanded them to do. Whatever that service was, they did it, because God indorsed it by enabling them to perform miracles as proof that they pleased him. "And many wonders and signs were done by the apostles." (Acts 2: 43.) "God also bearing them witness, both with signs and wonders, and with divers miracles, and gifts of the Holy Ghost, according to his own will." (Heb. 2: 4.) I have briefly referred to the apostles here for the reason that no one can doubt for one moment but what the apostles were true servants of God; yet many are in doubt to-day about many things that many so-called "servants of Christ" are doing and trying to impose on the church.

I have said nothing so far about the service the apostles rendered, only emphasized the truth that the Lord placed a service upon them and that they were faithful in performing it. We will now look for the work they were to do, which can be easily found by any one anxious to find the truth.

In Matt. 28: 19, 20 we find the last interview the Savior had with the apostles: "Go ye therefore, and teach all nations, baptizing them in the name of the Father, and of the Son, and of the Holy Ghost: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you: and, lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." Mark (16: 15, 16) tells just what they were to preach: "And he said unto them, Go ye into all the world, and preach the gospel to every creature. He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that believeth not shall be damned." Luke (24: 47) tells us where they were to begin: "And that repentance and remission of sins should be preached in his name among all nations, beginning at Jerusalem." If any one failing to understand the last three quotations will read Acts of Apostles, together with the letters to the churches, he cannot fail to understand just what the apostles taught. So we have learned thus far that the apostles were Christ's servants, also the service they performed, and that God indorsed their work.

Now, the important lesson for us to learn is, what service does God require of you and me? When the Savior commissioned the apostles, he required them to teach all the converts they made that it was their duty to do for others just what the apostles had done for them. (See Matt. 28: 20.) I know the apostles did exactly what they were commissioned to do from the very beginning of their work. "And they continued steadfastly in the apostles' doctrine and fellowship, and in breaking bread, and in prayers." (Acts 2: 42.) Yes, every convert was required to preach just like the apostles. "Therefore they that were scattered abroad went everywhere preaching the word." (Acts 8: 4.)

The apostles laid the foundation, and all Christians are required to build thereon. "According to the grace of God which is given unto me, as a wise master builder, I have laid the foundation, and another buildeth thereon. But let every man take heed how he buildeth thereupon." (1 Cor. 3: 10.)

"Those things, which ye have both learned, and received, and heard, and seen in me, do: and the God of peace shall be with you." (Phil. 4: 9.) "Simon Peter, a servant and an apostle of Jesus Christ, to them that have obtained like precious faith with us." (2 Pet. 1: 1.) Say, is your faith the same as the apostles? Hear the apostles. "It was needful for me to write unto you, and exhort you that ye should earnestly contend for the faith which was once delivered unto the saints." (Jude 3.) "We are of God: he that knoweth God heareth us; he that is not of God heareth not us. Hereby know we the spirit of truth, and the spirit of error." (1 John 4: 6.)

Brethren, are we who claim to go by the Bible doing our duty either to God or our fellow man when we fail to impress upon every member of the church the importance of each individual doing his duty? The teaching of the apostles is the standard of measurement that is to test each one, and may God help us all to examine ourselves and see how we compare with the standard. I am persuaded that, if we all should resolve to close our mouths against others until we shall have examined ourselves, much of the time spent in wrangling over others' faults would cease and the truth would spread more rapidly than it is doing. Yes, brethren, let us all turn over a new leaf and watch ourselves a while.

How Inert Are Some Churches!

BY R. P. CUFF.

Our blessed Lord is the giver of life, and light, and love. How alive he was on the holy mount of transfiguration when "his face did shine as the sun!" How instructive and light-giving he was when he preached the Sermon on the Mount which set moral standards high and called for purity of heart! How brimming full of love for the race of men his heart must have been when he declared that all authority in heaven and on earth was his, and when he authorized the preaching of the gospel to all the nations of the world!

Hundreds and thousands of souls are dying in darkness to-day, far away from the gleaming, glad, glorifying light of truth. They perish with hunger for the bread of life. They go out of the world at death without having experienced the joys of the Christian life. That brightest, sweetest, happiest life in the world a stranger to them! Think of it! Think of the millions that groan for the grace of God; that sob in their sorrow and sigh in their sin; that wail in the bitter anguish of a broken heart!

Why not bear more bravely, more fervently, and more frequently to this world that groans in travail our Lord's lessons of life, and light, and love? "Aye, there's the rub!" The heart of Christ would not suffer such sorrow and sin; but his way of reaching undone and downtrodden souls is through his messengers, and too often the messengers are unfaithful. Too many men that ought to be making some sacrifice to tell the glorious gospel story are living on the fat of the land. They selfishly stay in places of peace. They like to lie at ease in the luxury of little work and much money. Too many churches that ought to be active for Christ are so dead they do not realize that they have died. Long since they have ceased to function. It is many a day since there was a heart throb or a pulse beat in some churches. Their hands lie folded across their motionless breasts. The presence of death is so strong as to be felt. All that some churches need for burial is a casket and a funeral song. I wonder if Christ does not feel lonely at the way his supposed-to-be servants sometimes treat him!

Upon the church of God rests the responsibility of circulating the truth of the gospel. Faithful men must preach or the story of the cross must suffer. "Seeing it is God that said, Light shall shine out of darkness, who shined in our hearts, to give the light of the knowledge of the glory of God in the face of Jesus Christ. But we have this treasure in earthen vessels." (2 Cor. 4: 6, 7.) The church is "the pillar and ground of the truth." (1 Tim. 3: 15.) Let her catch the spirit of Christ; gather more of the light, life, and love which he imparts; and communicate his message to those in peril.

The Question of War Reconsidered.

BY F. B. SRYGLEY.

The following article appeared in the Firm Foundation of August 1 without comment. I have been requested by several good brethren to publish and review it in the Gospel Advocate. It is the general opinion of these brethren that the article will do more harm and less good, if believed, than anything which has appeared in any of our papers lately. I am unable to see how this article could possibly do any one any good.

WAR IS RIGHT.

I have reconsidered this question, and for the following reasons it would seem that war is right. The illustrations I shall use are only such as come into the daily lives of man in general.

Let us take, for instance, the matter of lying—a practice almost universal. It has generally been looked on as bad; but is it really so? Ordinarily it may seem so, but are there not certain circumstances in which lying even becomes a virtue? Let us suppose that my daughter and I are traveling alone through a lonely part of the country, not an unlikely supposition at all. We meet a company of ruffians. They demand that I turn her over to them to abuse. Physical opposition is out of the question. I insist that she is not a woman, convincing them to that effect. We pass on unharmed. How can one say that was wrong?

Some great catastrophe comes upon the world like the ancient flood and sweeps away every human being on the face of the earth, save two, a man and his sister. The continuation of the race depends on them. It is unlawful for them to marry, and, moreover, there is no one to perform the marriage ceremony. Would it not be perfectly legitimate for them to assume the marriage relation to save the race? Thus adultery, commonly looked on as unlawful, becomes a virtue.

Stealing is popularly looked on as wrong, and even most civilized governments legislate against it; but why should they? I am hungry even unto death and am where there is plenty. No one will give me to eat. Under such conditions even the prodigal son wouldn't touch his neighbor's stuff. But would it not have been perfectly right for him to have helped himself? Even the disciples once took the grain of their neighbor without leave, and the Master did not reprove them, but rather took their defense.

In like manner war, so much dreaded by timid people and old women, is not what some extremists on the question of peace have attempted to make it. It is only the amputations of the diseased portions of human society. The Lord distinctly directed the wars of Israel, and we are told that the officer of to-day, appointed by him, beareth not the sword in vain. Shall I not defend my wife and children against a ruffian? Who wouldn't do it?

Thus it appears from the reasons above given that the distinction between what is commonly called good and evil is merely an artificial arrangement of the imagination. Is not all conduct alike? And though some deeds may appear to be evil, in reality, does not the whole course of human events tend upward toward a final goal, the ultimate end of which is bliss?

J. M. McCaleb.

68 Zoshigaya, Tokyo, Japan.

The brother begins his article with the statement that he has reconsidered the question of war and has reached the conclusion that war is right. This is calculated to make the impression on the readers that Brother McCaleb believes now that it is right for Christians to assist in bringing on and fighting in carnal war. But that which he offers as proof does not prove the proposition. His first attempt to prove his proposition is by three illustrations which only prove, if they prove anything, that people are justified in lying, stealing, and committing adultery under certain circumstances. But what does this have to do with the question as to whether war is right or wrong? Absolutely nothing, so far as I am able to see.

Notwithstanding Brother McCaleb says, by way of preface, that he will use only such illustrations as "come into the daily lives of man in general," he presents three that never came into my life, and I am a "man in general." I am forced to differ with the brother on this point, for I believe such things rarely, if ever, happen to a Christian. As to his supposed flood, I can assure him on the promise of God that such a thing will never happen. His illustrations remind me very much of those impossible things which have been used all over this country against God's command to the penitent sinner to be baptized. Such impossible illustrations have been overlooked, and I am surprised that the brother should take them up at this late date to prove his error. But suppose we admit (but I do not) that lying, stealing, and adultery are right under certain circumstances, does that prove his proposition that war is right?

In the brother's first illustration he says that "physical opposition is out of the question." Very well, then; if it is, your illustration is off of the question, for war is physical opposition; and if that is out of the question, then the illustration is not on the question. But the brother asks: "Are there not certain circumstances under which lying even becomes a virtue?" I have never seen it recorded in the Bible as one of the virtues of the Christian under any circumstances. God says: "He that telleth lies shall not tarry in my sight." (Ps. 101: 7.) Abraham tried the trick here mentioned in trying to protect his wife, and I see nothing to indicate that God approved his falsehood.

The brother's illustration to prove that adultery may be a virtue, I know, is impossible, for God made a covenant with Noah and with his seed after him, and with the fowls, the cattle, and with every beast of the earth, that all flesh would never be again cut off by a flood, and the token of that covenant is the bow in the clouds. (Gen. 9.)

His next illustration in proof (?) that war is right favors stealing as a virtue. He says, "Stealing is popularly looked on as wrong, and even most civilized governments legislate against it;" and he then asks, "But why should they?" I answer, because it is wrong to steal, and God legislated against it for the same reason. It seems to me that the brother criticizes the Savior's parable of the prodigal son because he would not steal his neighbor's stuff. Does he think the poor, sinful boy should have turned to stealing instead of going home, when his father had plenty to give him without stealing it? The brother says that "even the disciples once took the grain of their neighbor without leave, and the Master did not reprove them, but rather took their defense." The Savior did not defend the disciples for taking their neighbor's grain without leave. Their conduct was not called in question on that point at all. They had the right under the law to eat of their neighbor's corn in his field. "When thou comest into the standing corn of thy neighbor, then thou mayest pluck the ears with thine hand; but thou shalt not move a sickle unto thy neighbor's standing corn." (Deut. 23: 25.) The Jews called this act of the disciples in question, not because they plucked their neighbor's corn and ate it, but because they did it on the Sabbath day. It was no more stealing for the disciples to pluck and eat this corn than it is for a man to use the public roads which have been lawfully deeded to the public.

"In like manner," says the brother, "war, so much dreaded by timid people and old women, is not what some extremists on the question of peace have attempted to make it." I suppose, then, a man like Brother McCaleb does not dread it. I am sure he is no old woman, and from the tone of this article he is not any longer one of the timid kind, or an extremist on the subject of peace, as he has here announced his change on the subject. With the brother now, war "is only the amputations of the diseased portions of human society." I deny this. War does not amputate the diseased parts of society. It cuts off the innocent young men, and the hardened old sinners that brought it on and forced our innocent boys into the slaughter pen of war are never touched by it. Look at the German kaiser and the men in the legislative halls that brought that terrible destruction upon the world. They are living to-day in plenty, while my boy and many others are sleeping beneath the sod as the result of that unholy "amputation." These innocent boys were the "diseased parts of society," were they? The Lord have mercy on the man that would for one moment think so!

We come now to the only point in the brother's article that can in any way bear on the question: "The Lord distinctly directed the wars of Israel, and we are told that the officer of to-day, appointed by him, beareth not the sword in vain." If the Lord distinctly directed Israel in their wars, I would say that they were distinctly justified in going at his direction; but as he is not now distinctly directing his children to go to war, but has distinctly directed them not to do so, would they not now be in rebellion to him to go to war? Our King said: "My kingdom is not of this world: if my kingdom were of this world, then would my servants fight, that I should not be delivered to the Jews: but now is my kingdom not from hence." (John 18: 36.) The brother asks the question: Since the officers of the law of the land beareth not the sword in vain, "shall I not defend my wife and children against a ruffian?" I answer, no; let the officers of the law defend them. They are much more competent to do it with the sword, trained to its use, than our brother would be, even though he is neither an old woman nor one of the timid sort.

"Thus it appears," says he, "that the distinction between what is commonly called good and evil is merely an artificial arrangement of the imagination." Is it possible that our brother has waded around in ancient philosophy until he has dropped into the doctrine of the Epicureans, who relied on experience and not on reason or revelation? I am really afraid the brother has gotten more from the heathen philosophy taught, no doubt, in the schools of Japan than he has given them. I cannot help the feeling that no man is a safe teacher of the truth who believes that the difference between what is called good and evil is only imaginary. But in what way can Brother McCaleb or any one else be benefited by such teachings? Surely our religious papers will call a halt here. It troubles me to read such articles and to know that they have the wide circulation of a religious paper that has stood for truth in the past. The article here under review puts Brother McCaleb in the list with those who slandered the apostle Paul. "But if the truth of God through my lie abounded unto his glory, why am I also still judged as a sinner? and why not (as we are slanderously reported, and as some affirm that we say), Let us do evil, that good may come? whose condemnation is just." (Rom. 3: 7, 8.)

Counterfeits.

BY O. C. LAMBERT.

When some person offers in exchange for your earthly possessions money which is different in any particular from that issued from the treasury department of our government, you refuse it, and rightfully so, for a person may ignorantly or intentionally accept and circulate such to his sorrow. Any person is a desperately lawless rebel who assumes any of the powers and prerogatives of the authority to which he is subject. A government cannot allow its powers to be impeached by such treasonable conduct and long continue its existence. Since the coining of money is a privilege of the government alone, counterfeiting is considered a great crime, for which severe punishment is inflicted.

So in religious matters all power and authority and dominion are invested in the Godhead—the Father, the Son, and the Holy Spirit. Any assumption upon the part of mankind is presumption and treason against the authority of God.

"All power is given unto me in heaven and in earth." (Matt. 28: 18.)

"And gave him to be head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fullness of him that filleth all in all." (Eph. 1: 22, 23.)

"Who hath delivered us from the power of darkness, and hath translated us into the kingdom of his dear Son; in whom we have redemption through his blood, even the forgiveness of sins: who is the image of the invisible God, the first-born of every creature: for by him were all things created, that are in heaven, and that are in earth, visible and invisible, whether they be thrones, or dominions, or principalities, or powers: all things were created by him, and for him; and he is before all things, and by him all things consist. And he is the head of the body, the church: who is the beginning, the first-born from the dead; that in all things he might have the preëminence. For it pleased the Father that in him should all fullness dwell." (Col. 1: 13-19.)

Jesus is Lord, invested with supreme power inasmuch that even his inspired ambassadors at no time arrogated any of his prerogatives, privileges, and powers, and were empowered to speak only "whatsoever I have said unto you." No one but the Lamb of God was ever armed with authority to build a church.

"Husbands, love your wives, even as Christ also loved the church, and gave himself for it." (Eph. 5: 25.)

"The church of God, which he hath purchased with his own blood." (Acts 20: 28.)

"Upon this rock I will build my church; and the gates of hell shall not prevail against it." (Matt. 16: 18.)

"Gave him to be head over all things to the church, which is his body, the fullness of him that filleth all in all." (Eph. 1: 22, 23.)

Because Jesus is the omnipotent head of the church which he alone could build, any man, inspired or uninspired, or any being, mortal or immortal, is a rebel against heavenly authority, is an infamous counterfeiter, who builds a church, or attempts to do so. I have as much right to found a church according to my likings as Luther or Calvin or Wesley.

The ferryman should not be surprised if the passengers prefer the safe boat to the leaky one, and it should not be thought strange for men to ask for the genuine rather than the spurious and false.

This carefulness should not be confined to temporal things. If it is at all possible, all should find the church of the Bible. I will not accept a counterfeit; for, "Every plant, which my heavenly Father hath not planted, shall be rooted up" (Matt. 15: 13); and: "Except the Lord build the house, they labor in vain that build it." (Ps. 127: 1).

The next article will attempt to show how we may distinguish the true church from others.

John Milton, John Bunyan, Jerry MacAuley, "Billy" Sunday, Dan Rice (the circus clown), Moody's "Burke the burglar," and Elijah Brown, editor of The Ram's Horn, are given as examples of men who "came back" from lives of sin and rebellion against God, or from unbelief, to great usefulness in the kingdom of Christ. There are thousands of such returned "exiles" now doing good service.

Not a Hoof Left Behind.

(A sermon delivered by N. B. Hardeman at Dickson, Tenn., on June 29.)

(Continued from last week.)

My friends, I have given you the story as found in the first part of the book of Exodus. That is God's great picture of the plan of salvation to-night. It is thrown there in such splendid types and outlines that it would be almost impossible for you and me to fail to understand the fact therein found. If a man to-night would become a child of God, and cross the river Jordan at last safely, and be initiated into the land of Promise, just beyond the shores thereof, he must have that sentiment, that disposition, that resolution, that will power that was exhibited by Moses in the presence of the great enemy of the Israelites long ago.

What is the request that a sinner to-night ought to make? He ought to have the courage and the faith and the disposition to march up to the very presence of Satan himself and say: "Sir, I am going to bid farewell to your territory. I am fixing, if you please, to move out of the land of sin. I am going to cross the waters of baptism, and I will not stop on the other shore. I am going three days' journey out yonder into the wilderness, which represents the church of God, clear out of sight of Egypt, clear away from the certain sin and the attractive features thereof—I am going out three days' journey into the service of God, that I may worship him undisturbed and unmolested."

But while Pharaoh was drowned in the midst of the sea, there are representatives and agencies still pleading, arguing, enticing, and misleading. What is the first proposition that was made to Moses? "I do not care," said Pharaoh, "for your worshiping God, but I want to tell you that you can do so here in the land of Egypt." You do not have to leave the devil. To-night, my friends, through various agencies and representatives, when a sinner makes up his mind that he intends to worship God, and to serve him, the devil is willing to offer you compromise number one, and say: "Well, if you are thus determined, why, you don't have to become a member of the church to do that; just worship him here in your own land. I do not care." And, friends, you can put it down, the devil doesn't care if a man wants to worship God, provided he will do so in the devil's territory. If he will just let the devil direct the affair and manipulate the method and the process thereof, why, he says: "I care not, and you don't have to go out of the satanic realm; you don't have to leave sin and cross the Red Sea; just stay right here in my territory and worship God." It is surprising, my friends, as to who it is that is chiming in the sentiment of old Pharaoh. Every infidel on earth to-night would say to the sinner: "If you determine to worship God, you don't have to become a member of the church [they generally say: "You don't have to join the church"]; just worship him where you are; for," say they, "there are as good men out of the church as there are in it." That is the language and the message and the preaching of all infidels, of all materialists; and I regret to have to say that the same sentiment is proclaimed by some professed preachers in this land of ours—that a man does not have to go outside of the land of Egypt, there is no use in crossing the waters of the Red Sea, notwithstanding the fact that he knows that the Israelites crossed over that margin, that border, and upon the further shore they sang the song of deliverance; notwithstanding the fact that they left their pursuers and their enemies in the midst of the Red Sea, and were not free from them until they marched on the further shore, to sing Redemption's glad song of freedom from Egyptian bondage.

What next? Moses having refused that positively, as every sinner to-night ought to refuse the same kind of a suggestion, then what? Pharaoh proposed next: "If you want to worship God, and are determined; if you are going to cross the waters that separate us; if you are determined to be baptized, which marks the dividing line between you and the wilderness yonder, I will tell you what to do: You just stop on the other side of the creek, and we will play back and forth, and carry on a general flirtation; just simply go ahead toward the waters there, be baptized and then quit." Let me tell you, my brethren and friends, in plain terms, many people say for you to go just to this margin of the sea and there stop, that you don't have to pass through. Some of my brethren say: "O, no, let's cross over and sit down on the other side." If disobedience to God's word means my undoing, I think it matters not on which side of the creek man starts out toward the eternal realms of the darkness of despair. Such a mistaken idea, that just barely going outside of Egypt, just barely crossing over the waters of baptism, then to sit on the other side, as if the crown had been won and the victory ours, is a delusion and a detriment to the progress of Christianity to-night. That wasn't Moses' demand, absolutely not. What was the request? Not that they stop just on the margin of the further shore, but that they take up their line of march, and go three days' journey into the wilderness, that they might worship the God of their being.

After that was refused by Moses, the devil suggested that the men folks go—those of you that are older, but leave your little ones behind. What is the application of compromise number three? My friends, I take it to be this. The devil says to-night: "Now, Christianity and religion and working in the church are all right for older people, for your grandfathers and your grandmothers, those whose hairs are silvered, those whose cheeks are furrowed." The devil says: "I think they ought really to go ahead and worship God, but I believe that the little ones and the younger ones ought to remain back in Egypt." And there are so many parents that cannot see three inches down the line that give an attentive ear unto the devil's suggestion, and they fancy that son or daughter ought, by virtue of their natural surroundings and disposition, to spend the time of their youthful days in the land of Egypt—that is to say, in the service of sin—and after they have sown their wild oats, and have brought upon themselves that which possibly means wreck and ruin, the undoing and the unstabilizing of their character and the hope of the future, with the idea that when at last they become aged and somewhat worn out in the service of sin, then to cross over and enter into the church of God as a final resting place.

Friends, that kind of a theory originated in the very depths of hell itself. Every passage, every sentiment of scripture in the word of God is contrary thereto. "Remember thy Creator in the days of thy youth." I would be ashamed to-night to be responsible for an influence ever going out from me that it was legitimate and right that I yield to the suggestion of the devil in even encouraging boys and girls to sow their wild oats and to have what they call their "good time" in the service of the devil. But I do not mean, boys and girls, that I would, if I could, rob you of a single legitimate pleasure or extract from your lives one particle of the joy. I think it is a misconception and a mistake for any person to believe that the pleasures of earth and the good times are only to be found in the service of sin. While I grant you that sin has its pleasures, be it remembered that they are transient, they are ephemeral in their nature. Indeed, the pleasures of sin are like the poppies that have been spread—you seize the stem, and the bloom is sped; or they are like the snowflake on the river—just a moment white, and then gone forever. There are pleasures galore in the service of God Almighty that are real, permanent, genuine, lasting, perpetual pleasures and enjoyment, given as a consciousness, first of all, of having submitted to the authority of the God of our being, of having spent our time in the service of humanity, in banishing the clouds and making the sun to shine in the path hitherto dark, in plucking out the thorns and in planting in their stead the sweet-scented roses along the pathway of life; and unto the boy or girl that proposes to be a Christian, that proposes to study God's word, to take an interest in the betterment of his sort, there are the sweetest pleasures that earth can give, and all the pleasures of heaven wrapped up therein for evermore, while upon the earth he or she may dwell.

I know that there are splendid pictures upon this earth, painted from the imagination of the artists and the sculptors; but let me say to you now, I believe the most splendid picture that earth can give, the most attractive picture to mortal man, is a clean young man and a pure, sweet young woman starting out in life conscious of their power, anxious to try themselves out in the affairs of life, looking out upon a future bright with hope, a prospect in which, indeed, fancy rears her towering palaces and builds her splendid monuments. A young man that proposes to be a Christian in all that that term means can be the greatest benefactor to humanity that all this earth has ever seen, and can only be equaled by the girl whose life is consecrated and dedicated to the service of God; and one such as that is worth a thousand of the smartest little "flips" and society characters that the world has ever seen.

Hence, if I yield to-night to Him, content for wife and myself to enter into the service of God, but as for our daughters, just blossoming and blooming into young womanhood, to wink at their sinfulness, and try not to impress upon them the necessity of becoming obedient to the faith, I become—not consciously, but, nevertheless, in truth—an agent of the devil, duplicating the suggestion of Pharaoh himself. So let not that be.

But again, when Moses turned that down, positively refused the suggestion made and spurned the insinuation that it carried, Pharaoh finally came back with his last card to play, and said: "Moses, one more thing: if you are determined to go, and if with you all the people are firmly resolved—if I must give up the inhabitants and the service—let me make one more request, and that is this: I want you to leave your flocks, your horses, your cattle, your herds, your all, back in the land of Egypt." What, my friends, is the application of that? Why is that statement in the Bible so significant? What significance does it have? Unless I read it wrong, and I think I do not, it suggests this one thought, that when you and I, friends, decide to become Christians, when we get the consent of our minds to worship God, to go across the Red Sea out three days' journey into the wilderness, it means this, that we propose to make a clean sweep, not only with ourselves, but with all that we have—our flocks, our herds, our lands, our bank account, our government securities, our finances, our all. There ought to come ringing down the ages from Christian people, in the ears of the devil: "'There shall not a hoof be left behind.' I am done with the service of sin. I seek and demand from the great Judge of the Superior Court a divorce in the absolute. When I become a Christian, under the leadership of Christ, all that I have, all that I am, shall from that day thereafter be dedicated and consecrated to the service of God." Unless, my brother, that be your resolution and your resolve to-night, we are as certain to be coming back and having our interest centered in the service of sin as God reigns; for wherever your treasure is, there will your heart be also. A man cannot serve God acceptably with himself in the church and his affairs back in the service of sin—absolutely not.

Last summer Brother John D. Evans, of Denver, Col., told a very fine story. He mentioned some old gentleman out there that had spent a number of years, most of his days, in the service of the devil, and had spurned the preaching and the invitations that had hitherto been given; but finally he came to himself, and decided that he wanted to become a child of God, to cross out of Egypt, out of sin—to cross the Red Sea. Having made up his mind to that effect, when the invitation was extended, he responded and marched down the aisle, publicly acknowledged his faith in the crucified One, and when asked regarding the baptism, said, "I am ready now." Some of the brethren knew that it was his custom to carry quite a sum of money, and, just before he started down into the water, one of them said: "Brother, I will hold your watch and your purse." "O, no," he said, "I want my pocketbook and my money, my all, to go through the Red Sea and come up on the other shore. I am done." Do you know, my friends, that expresses the sentiment. Perhaps many of us have been baptized and crossed the Red Sea, but have never reached Canaan because our possessions were left behind. If the church of God to-night in this country, as strong as it is, were absolutely one hundred per cent converted to God, and its wealth and its possessions and its all consecrated and dedicated to God's service, we could do anything under heaven that we ought to do; but, instead of that, what an embarrassment, what a humiliation, on account of the fact that our treasures are back in the world! We do things so niggardly, sometime so penuriously, we give so scantily—we can't do this, that, or the other. Why? We haven't the wherewith. Where are our possessions? Back in Egypt. None of them in the wilderness, all back yonder in Egypt; and therefore we are handicapped. But you say that would break us up and render us poverty-stricken. I want to say to you, my friends, unless you doubt the Bible, unless you have no faith in God's word, you cannot but believe that prosperity would crown every effort, rather than reverses. I haven't a shadow of a doubt to-night but that every Christian man that has carried his possessions with him into the service of God and that stands ready at all times for legitimate expenditure and service—I believe that is the most prosperous man in the church of God. Tell me not that the man that devotes himself and his all unto the cause of Christ will be made to suffer! Absolutely not. "The soul that is liberal shall be made fat, and he that watereth shall likewise himself be watered." "Cast your bread upon the waters, for after many days you shall gather it up." The five-talent man and the two-talent man went and traded as disciples of the Lord God, and as faithful servants God blessed them with one hundred per cent increase. Nothing short, therefore, of a lack of faith in God's word would argue to the contrary from the principle announced by Moses.

I would that every soul whom I have ever influenced in any manner to become a child of God would catch the lesson that should be gathered from Moses' relationship to Pharaoh, so that they would say, certainly and positively: "There shall not a hoof be left behind. I have started out from the service of sin, facing the city that hath foundations. I am going to cross the Red Sea, the waters of baptism. I am starting out into the church of God, three days' journey out of sight, out of hearing distance, out of direct contact with the world, with all that I have, not a hoof left behind, that I may therewith worship God." Do you know what Moses said in one statement when the suggestion was made to him, "Leave your flocks and herds?" Why, Moses said: "That would rob us of our worship. We have to have our flocks and herds, for therewith we worship God." Friends, is it that way with us? Do we propose to serve God with our flocks and our herds, or without them? Is it a fact that the further away they are, the better we love the service? These people said: "We have to have them, for therewith must we serve God." If I had a farm, some cattle and stock thereon, some mules, etc., when I became a Christian, all of it ought to pass into the service of God, that I might feel the joy that comes from the extension of the borders of his everlasting kingdom.

But I have talked long enough to-night. I want to ask now, as a concluding thought: Are there those in this company that have seriously reflected, that have coolly observed their own bearing and relationship? Have you really studied the proposition? Are you on the journey that flows with milk and honey? Will you cross out of the bondage of sin into the church of God, there to worship and serve him while here on earth we dwell, and at the close of our life, when our earthly pilgrimage is done, cross over the river Jordan and enter that land that flows with milk and honey in the paradise of God for evermore? Then you must make up your mind now to follow in the footsteps of the great Leader—not Moses, but Christ—not hearing the voice of Aaron, but of the apostles—submit to Heaven's will, and put your hand in the wounded palm of the Savior, and sing: "Through floods and flames, if Jesus leads, I will follow where he goes."

The Blight of Selfishness.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

THE LOVE OF SELF.

The love of self may be defined as wishing well to oneself alone and to others only for the sake of self. Every act, therefore, of the selfish person springs from selfish motive. Every word and deed of his traces back to his supreme care for his own interests. And what are these interests? They may be summed up in three items—namely: property, person, reputation. The selfish person cares for these interests only. Anything that affects, directly or indirectly, his property, his person, or his reputation, draws his immediate attention. Indeed, his life is one of anxiety about these personal assets of his. He loves them supremely and makes provision for them with whatever of ability he possesses. His life, therefore, is painfully narrow and cramped and withal unnatural.

THE DECEPTIVE NATURE OF SELFISHNESS.

Selfishness oftentimes assumes a false guise and hides for the moment the deeper reality from our eyes. By no means does every act of the selfish person appear to be prompted by self-interest. Such a person may seem to be philanthropic, or public-spirited, or patriotic, or religious. He may serve his fellows and social organizations, his government and country, or even the church, with apparent marked fidelity and zeal—but all in the interest of self. The gospel of Christ may be preached with power, not sincerely, but designedly, in the interest of personal honor, emolument, or station. Thus selfishness incarnate often stands in the pulpit proclaiming the unsearchable riches of Christ that a puffed-up pride and a selfish interest may be gratified. Moreover, the selfish person may flatter another with hope of eliciting flattery of self in return; and the latter he expects in heaped-up measure. So, too, he may peradventure contribute to charity with the object of reaping more benefit than he has bestowed. He may even lead people to believe that he is a good churchman that he may have opportunity to fawn upon Christians, "supposing that godliness is a way of gain."

THE TEST QUESTIONS OF SELFISHNESS.

The selfish person does good, then, to church, state, or society for the sake of his own reputation and interest, and not in pure love of service. Unless he can see the interests of self subserved, he will not bother to render service. Even though he may claim to be a Christian, he takes no cognizance of the fact that his mission is to minister unselfishly to others. Self-centered and blinded to his highest duty, he will do nothing that does not bid fair to ultimately accrue to his own benefit, and he must see his end from the beginning. He tries every proposition by his own peculiar narrow standard. Every demand made upon him—whether by church, state, or society—he will subject to the test questions of selfish interest—namely: "Why should I do this? How does it concern me? What shall I get from it?" After careful investigation, if he can see reciprocal benefit, with the lion's share of the bargain going to himself, he will grant the request eagerly; but if not, he will render excuse. He will not sow unless assured that he will reap more than his seed. It is evident, therefore, that he does not love God, the church, his country, or his fellow man. His delight is in self and the objects of his selfishness.

THE NARROW SPIRIT OF SELFISHNESS.

To revert to our definition, we see that the love of self will permit of doing good to others for the sake of self. The selfish person may love others selfishly. And he does indeed love his own. In particular, he loves his immediate family, his wife and children. Others of near kin dwell in the suburbs of his good pleasure, more distant relatives further off, while mankind in general have no interest in his affection. Now, this love of his own household is but natural; it is a God-given property that he cannot cast off if he would. He must love his own because they are his flesh and blood, and "no man ever hated his own flesh; but nourisheth and cherisheth it." And so for his own house he will make selfish provision. In general, he loves all who are at one with him and who render him good in gratifying measure. To serve these is to serve himself, for they are his puppets. They commend, honor, serve, and pay court to him, and so share in his esteem. His "neighbor" is the man that shows mercy on him, but expects no adequate return of the favor. To illustrate the narrow spirit of selfishness, let us recall the case of Dives. With him the blood tie was strong; he loved his five brothers, and, of course, other members of his family. And no doubt he also had his wide circle of friends who shared his luxury. But the beggar, who could render him no good turn, he took no knowledge of. His selfish soul could not go out to Lazarus.

SEEKING OUR NEIGHBOR'S GOOD.

To love the Lord our God with all the heart, soul, and mind, and our neighbor as ourselves, is the whole Christian religion. The love of self as defined above, therefore, has no place in the Christian heart. The teaching of the New Testament on this point is positive and emphatic. Paul complained, once, that he had no servant with him that was free from this blight of selfishness, except Timothy: "For I have no man [except Timothy], who will care truly for your state. For they all seek their own, not the things of Jesus Christ." Is this not also the condition to-day? Why, for instance, the dearth of preachers? Note these further warnings against selfishness: "Not looking each of you on his own things, but each of you also on the things of others." Again: "Let no man seek his own, but each his neighbor's good." Moreover, the life and mission of Jesus is one long sermon against the incubus of selfishness that lies like a blight upon the hearts of so many Christians. Jesus came to help others. And our greatest happiness also is in seeking the good of others. Our souls dilate in such service. The good Samaritan sought his neighbor's good by ministering to the mangled traveler on the Jericho road, and enriched his own soul. What the priest and Levite lost in seeking their own interest that day it would be difficult to tell.

THE SELF-IMMOLATION OF THE ROMANS.

I have always admired the self-immolation of the old Romans. The Romans, you remember, possessed many stern excellencies. They were abstemious, contemptuous of luxury, obedient to law, self-controlled. But the finest thing in Roman character was the spirit of self-immolation for Rome—the willingness to sink personal or party advantage for the public weal. They loved their country unselfishly. They had their gods and superstitions and knew not the teachings of the true God as did the Hebrews, but their austere morals and ideals gave no place to selfishness. Here is a lesson for Christians. Let them cultivate the spirit of self-immolation for Christ, for their neighbor. Let them sink personal interest for the good of Christianity. Let them root selfishness out of their hearts. And let them, in the freedom and light of Christ, live such unselfish lives that the example of the old pagan Romans shall not put them to shame.

THE CURE OF SELFISHNESS.

The prevention and remedy of selfishness lies in God. We must know, first of all, that all things belong to God, even ourselves; that we are his trustees for the highest good and for the highest life of mankind. We must know that seeking the highest good of mankind is seeking our own highest good. We must discount earthly goods, and permit God to destroy utterly the smallest vestige in our hearts of love for sordid things. Then, imbibing the Christ spirit of sacrifice and humiliation, and cleaving to him with purpose of heart, making his life our life, and giving to him all the praise and the glory—this is the only true principle of the Christian life, and the only safeguard against selfishness.

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

SWAPPED FOR AN ORGAN.

The preaching I was doing in Lake County and in the hills and hollows of Obion County began to fall into notice and calls came to me for meetings where our strongest preachers had gone. For a while I refused to go, from the fact that I knew more of my ability to preach than did others, so I thought they should let me alone in my chosen field.

The congregation at Newbern, Dyer County, Tenn., seemed very anxious for me to go there and assist in a meeting. Some time went by before I would consent to make an effort where the strong preachers had served. I felt that I was too small in point of ability to meet conditions as they existed at that place. Finally, with "fear and trembling," I accepted the call for one little meeting, at least. So I went. The brethren and sisters all seemed to be rejoiced, and all took hold and worked faithfully in the meeting, which gave me much encouragement and made me feel much better. A very prominent lady was baptized—one the other preachers had failed to move—which caused great rejoicing as well as much comment among the brethren. "See what Brother Williams has done!" Several were baptized and the congregation greatly encouraged.

At the close of the meeting the congregation gave me a unanimous call to preach once a month and hold a meeting the following year. I accepted the call and began work the first of the year. Soon after I began work an unforeseen and unexpected trouble arose. "We must have an organ in the worship." Through fear, ignorance, or cowardice, I had said I would not work for a congregation that used the organ in worship. I thought to myself: "Surely they will not prefer an organ to the man they begged so hard to come and preach for them." At this point, however, is where I got the jolt of my life. Later I learned that that jolt was for my good. In my imagination I could hear the townsfolk say: "There goes Williams, the preacher who once preached on the lake and in the backwoods, now preaching in town." There is a little bit of humanity about all of the preachers I have met, and with some it seemed to be all humanity. "Now that I am preaching for the congregation in Newbern, it will not be long before I will be called to Nashville, and after that called to Texas." So you see that in my imagination I was making rapid strides toward the top (Texas). But to Texas I have never gone, from the fact, I suppose, that I have not gone to Nashville preparatory to a trip to Texas.

When they came to me with the organ proposition, I had no other thought but what I could settle it in a jiffy.

"Certainly they will listen to the preacher they have called to labor for them." I told them that to accept an uncertainty in place of a certainty was risky, dangerous, and that while we had the certainty—about which there could be no doubt—we should be satisfied. Christ said: "All authority hath been given unto me in heaven and on earth. Go ye therefore, and make disciples of all the nations, baptizing them into the name of the Father and of the Son and of the Holy Spirit: teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I commanded you: and lo, I am with you always, even unto the end of the world." (Matt. 28: 18-20.) "Now, if you will show me where Christ taught the apostles to teach and to use instruments of music in the worship, I am ready to accept it; but until you do that, I cannot accept it." I am still calling on the "fiddlers" to show where Christ taught it. The Jerusalem congregation "continued steadfastly in the apostles' teaching." The apostles were teaching what Christ taught them; they did not teach the use of instrumental music in the worship; therefore, Christ did not teach it to them. When the "fiddlers" will show me where Christ taught it to the apostles, then the question is settled forever with me.

Just at this point I serve notice on the "fiddlers" that the church of God in West Tennessee stands ready to meet them at any time and place they may select. What do you say?

Next, "The Swap Completed."

Things That Make You Bigger.

Start your day with a definite plan and carry it through.

Smile outside and radiate smiles, no matter how you may feel inside.

Let no day pass without asking for help and guidance from God.—Exchange.

TRACTS AND BOOKLETS.

The following tracts and booklets can be had from the Gospel Advocate Company:

The Establishment of the Kingdom (L. R. Sewell)05
Modern Geology Rebuked (I. N. Jones)05
Faith that Qualifies for Baptism (Durst-McQuiddy)10
Instrumental Music in the Service of God (D. Lipscomb)	Free
Theological Grub Ax (W. L. Butler)10
Church Organization (E. G. Sewell)	Free
Walking by Faith (Kurpees)05
Sincerity Seeking the Way to Heaven (B. Franklin)05
Review of John B. Cowden's Tract on Instrumental Music in the Church (Kurpees)	Free
Searching the Scriptures (T. Fanning)10
Christian Eldership (Scobey)10
Is Salvation Conditional? (Dalton-Burnett)15
Doctrine of Sanctification (Carr)10
Bible Doctrine of Sanctification (Elam)10
Stark-Warlick Debate50
Theological Debate (Brents-Herod)25
Out of Darkness into Light (Z. T. Winfree)05
Philip Worthy (Debet)25
Evidence of Pardon (Holt)25
God's Foolishness vs. Man's Wisdom (McPherson)	Free
A Review of J. E. McHaffey's Tract on Baptism (Smith)15
The Place and Purpose of Baptism (Floyd)	Free
Methods of Work and Worship in the Church (Scobey)10
Christian Unity (D. Lipscomb) 64 pages10
Worship (McQuiddy)	Free
The New Birth (Waldron)10
The New Name (Kidwell)10

Many other tracts are in the office for distribution. They are good for use in protracted meetings.

Address Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Gospel Advocate

Conducted for a half century by D. Lipscomb and E. G. Sewell.

TERMS OF SUBSCRIPTION

$2.00 a year, in advance; to Canada and foreign countries, $2.50. In advance.

Remittances will be at our risk when sent by express or post-office money order, in registered letter, or by draft payable to our order.

This paper is mailed regularly to all subscribers until definite orders in writing are received and all arrearages paid in full. If you wish us to stop your paper, write us to that effect; but do not ask it unless you have paid all arrears, if there are any. Do not ask your postmaster to attend to it for you, but do it yourself.

When changing your post-office address, tell us your old as well as your new address; otherwise two papers might be charged to you.

Subscribers, after paying for their papers, will favor us by noting whether the date on the address label is changed, and, if it is not changed within a month, by writing to us. We are careful, but mistakes may occur or letters may be lost. Our rule is to change the date on the day payment is received; but the mechanical work of correcting and printing the list takes time, and payments even from near-by places may not appear the first week. Credits for payments from a distance may be even more delayed. Mistakes are easily rectified if prompt notice is given.

All communications should be addressed to Gospel Advocate, 217-219 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Guarantee of Advertising.

All the advertisements in this paper are, we believe, signed by trustworthy persons. To prove our faith by works, we will make good to actual subscribers any loss sustained in trusting advertisers who prove to be deliberate swindlers. We shall not attempt to adjust trifling disputes between subscribers and honorable business men who advertise, nor pay the debts of honest bankrupts. To make this guarantee effective, in all cases say in writing to advertisers, "I saw your advertisement in the Gospel Advocate;" and if anything goes wrong, notify us immediately in writing.

JACOBS & CO., ADVERTISING MANAGERS,
Clinton, S. C.

Entered at post office at Nashville, Tenn., as second-class matter.
Published weekly at Nashville, Tenn.

Editorial

Doing Good.

BY J. C. M'Q.

The Christian develops in activity and dies in idleness. The Dead Sea is stagnant and foul because it is forever receiving and never gives out anything. The Christian who is content to devote all his time and means on himself is worthless. Without helping others it is not possible to be happy. "For none of us liveth to himself, and none dieth to himself." (Rom. 14: 7.) Doing a little for others each day that we live, we will accomplish great good during our lives. "The continual dropping wears the stone." It is not possible for one who improves his opportunities for doing good, for one who helps others to bear their burdens, to fail to be useful. The Spirit says: "Bear ye one another's burdens, and so fulfill the law of Christ." (Gal. 6: 2.) If all were burden bearers, what a blessed world this would be in which to live! Our hearts are filled with joy and gladness every time we lift a burden from other shoulders. How much better to be a lifter than a leaner! There are so many hearts to be cheered, so many hungry to be fed, and so many orphans to be clothed and fitted for life that no one can plead a lack of opportunity for a failure to do good. "Be not deceived; God is not mocked: for whatsoever a man soweth, that shall he also reap. For he that soweth unto his own flesh shall of the flesh reap corruption; but he that soweth unto the Spirit shall of the Spirit reap eternal life. And let us not be weary in well-doing: for in due season we shall reap, if we faint not." (Gal. 6: 7-9.) God's law is unalterable. Happiness is impossible without obedience to it. Happiness and usefulness come to those who delight in the law of God. It is as natural for the Christian to find joy in caring for orphans as it is for the sun to shine. "Then shall the King say unto them on his right hand, Come, ye blessed of my Father, inherit the kingdom prepared for you from the foundation of the world: for I was hungry, and ye gave me to eat; I was thirsty, and ye gave me drink; I was a stranger, and ye took me in; naked, and ye clothed me; I was sick, and ye visited me; I was in prison, and ye came unto me. Then shall the righteous answer him, saying, Lord, when saw we thee hungry, and fed thee? or athirst, and gave thee drink? And when saw we thee a stranger, and took thee in? or naked, and clothed thee? And when saw we thee sick, or in prison, and came unto thee? And the King shall answer and say unto them, Verily I say unto you, Inasmuch as ye did it unto one of these my brethren, even these least, ye did it unto me." (Matt. 25: 34-40.) How indescribably sweet will be the joy of the righteous as they enter into eternal life! In the supreme bliss of that hour all the trials, disappointments, and sorrows of life will be forgotten. Living in anticipation of this eternal inheritance should fill us with joy and contentment here below.

By way of encouragement to give to and to help others, the Christ announces the truth that "it is more blessed to give than to receive." (Acts 20: 35.) Has not the money you spent to bless other lives brought to you more happiness than the money you have spent for tobacco and luxuries for yourself? Has not the money you have spent in dissipation really made you miserable and wretched, while that which you have spent in self-denial for others has really made you stronger and happier? The answer to these questions is clear to all. In selfishness and dissipation we sink down to ruin.

The first Lord's day in October is the day for a contribution to the Tennessee Orphans' Home. Those connected with this institution are praying and working to bring it to the highest efficiency and usefulness. It is the purpose of the management to give more attention to the spiritual training and manners of the children in the Home. The new matron, looking to the manners of the children, has requested the directors to provide chairs for the dining room. Benches have been used in the past. It will require several hundred dollars to provide the chairs. I am sure that to mention this need is all that is necessary. We shall rejoice to have a contribution from the churches that will take care of all the real needs of the orphan children in the Home. It would be well for Christians to adopt orphans. Give them ideal Christian homes.

Send your contributions to the Tennessee Orphans' Home, Columbia, Tenn.

Evolution.

BY H. LEO B.

Paul said to Timothy: "Guard that which is committed unto thee, turning away from the profane babblings and oppositions of the knowledge which is falsely so called; which some professing have erred concerning the faith." (1 Tim. 6: 20, 21.) There seems to be a more urgent need now to heed this admonition which is given to Timothy than ever before. The stress that has been put upon education and the research of our day has caused many to falter in their faith, and not a few are rejecting the Bible as God's revealed will to man. The popularity of education among preachers and college professors has caused preachers and teachers to err "concerning the faith" in the Bible. Bacon warned us in the following language: "A little philosophy inclineth man's mind to atheism, but depth in philosophy bringeth men's minds about to religion." This reminds us also of what Pope said:

A little learning is a dangerous thing;
Drink deep, or touch not the Pierian spring.

The tendencies with the modern-day education is toward infidelity in respect to God, Christ, and the Bible. Evolution is said to be the cause of this condition which exists in so many schools and colleges, and, I might add, in many of the pulpits and pews of the churches. I wish here to make a brief study of the subject and present a few observations which may help some one to hold tenaciously to the Bible as the book of God.

WHAT IS EVOLUTION?

An accepted definition of evolution is here given: "It is a scientific and philosophical theory designed to explain the origin and course of all things in the universe." Note here that evolution is a theory. Evolution is viewed in science purely and strictly as a process of orderly change in the form of things. At best, evolution is a hypothesis, a mere guess at things in their formation. It is a theory systematized by man to account for the creation of all things; a theory or guess by man as to how the things were created. This guess as expressed by evolution may be correct or it may not be correct. Man can never know whether it is correct or incorrect. Whether evolution be true or false, it deals only with the process of the development of things; the Bible gives no account of the details of the process or how things were created.

Evolution, in its broadest sense as now applied, covers a very wide field. There is what is called "cosmic evolution," or evolution as applied to inorganic things. The second kind is "organic evolution," which refers to all life. These two kinds of evolution are subdivided or split into subclasses, but it is not necessary to notice them in this brief study. Organic evolution is applied to all branches of biology. Greater stress is laid now in our schools and colleges on the science of biology than ever before. Biology and psychology as now taught in the curriculum of all the schools become the fertile source of infidelity, and this is because the theory of evolution is made the basis of these sciences. In the explanation of evolution as a process, God is ignored; inherent force is attributed to matter. Of course, those who teach evolution, like infidels in general, do not agree.

Evolution, according to its most ardent admirers, implies plan, purpose, and aim. Evolution without these would be absurd, and the scholarly teachers have noticed this and have conceded that there is a general design, plan, and purpose which are carried out in evolution. The teachers of evolution stumble and blunder fatally when they are asked: Where did evolution get its plan and purpose? Who or what is the designer or planner? In answering these questions, God and the Bible are ignored. Who or what force started evolution to evolve it? It had a beginning somewhere and at some time. Even granting all that may be claimed for evolution as a process or a theory, some power and some great intelligence must have started it. The Christian says that "in the beginning God created the heavens and the earth." It is an axiom even with evolutionists that "ex nihilo nihil fit"—"Out of nothing, nothing comes." Those who say that God is the great First Cause are called "deists." While they say that God is the First Cause, yet they reject the Bible and accept the theory of evolution in some of its phases.

It is an axiom that something or some being always was, or else nothing could have ever been. Whatever may be accepted as the process of creation, there was a time when this process began, and there was also a plan for this process to follow. There have been "fixed laws" which have controlled the process. But may we ask again, who "fixed" the laws by which this process has followed? Or who has regulated the laws of the process in the order of evolution? Sometimes it is said that nature just follows its order. But who gave nature its order? When the scientist speaks of the unchangeable, unalterable, or invariable laws of nature, what being or power has fixed these laws? It cannot be claimed that they planned and purposed and fixed themselves.

Evolution as a process or theory implies an evolving or the state of being involved. It is the opposite of involution. There must have been the process or state of involution before there could be an evolution. The plan and purpose must have existed before the law of evolution could embody plan and purpose. The great First Cause must have contained all that has been evolved. It matters not if the universe began with but "two contiguous atoms," there must be power somewhere to bring inorganic matter to its present state. This power could not reside inherently in the two atoms, but must be a force operating upon them. With whom or in what did this intelligent force reside?

Gospel Advocate Company.

BY H. LEO B.

This company is headquarters for Bibles, song books, Bible Lesson Helps (including Advanced, Intermediate, and Primary Quarterlies, Lesson Leaf, Picture Cards, and Young People), the Gospel Advocate, and religious books too numerous to mention.

A good book is a good friend; and if it be a great book, it is a great friend. No Christian home is complete without a large number of religious books.

Here is a brief description of a few books that should be in your home:

"The Word of Reconciliation." By J. D. Floyd. This volume contains 231 pages, neatly bound in cloth. It is well adapted to the masses of the people. It presents the story of salvation in a simple yet attractive manner. The way of salvation is presented to sinner and saint alike, in a way that is neither too profound nor too voluminous for the masses. Its simplicity, clearness, and thoroughness charm the scholarly. Price, $1.

"Civil Government"—Its Origin, Mission, and Destiny, and the Christian's Relations to It. By David Lipscomb. This book is the outgrowth of the author's most matured thoughts on this subject. Attractively bound. Pages, 158. Price, $1.

"Commentary on Acts." By David Lipscomb. A commentary on the Acts of Apostles, with questions suited for the use of families and schools. This commentary is especially adapted to the comprehension of the masses of the people. It also contains a chronology of the Acts, map showing Paul's missionary journeys, brief biographies of the apostles, and an introductory chapter on the Holy Spirit. Cloth; 250 pages. Price, postpaid, $1.50.

"Salvation from Sin." By David Lipscomb. This book is composed of the editorials of David Lipscomb, collated by J. W. Shepherd, and contains many of the best and most profound thoughts of its author. It contains an index to subjects and an index to scriptures. Cloth; 440 large pages. Price, postpaid, $1.50.

"The People's New Testament, with Notes." (Two volumes.) By B. W. Johnson. A splendid commentary, comprising the entire New Testament. Volume I, four Gospels and Acts; Volume II, Epistles and Revelation. Price, per volume, postpaid, $2.50.

Church Record. Every church should know its membership. Our Church Record is the very thing you need. Neatly and substantially bound. Price, postpaid, $1.50.

This company publishes a number of good song books. The "Christian Hymns" both new and old is a standard. Other song books are compared to it and their merits rated by the "Christian Hymns." Every congregation should have enough song books to give each member one, and especially each visitor one. It increases interest in the song service. Try it, and watch the results.

Order from the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Evangelistic Notes

G. W. Jarrett is in a meeting at Prichard, Ala.

Work is the greatest blessing we have.—F. C. McConnell.

J. Clifford Murphy is at Pleasant Grove, near Puyton, Ala.

L. B. Douthitt is in a meeting at Zion Hill, near Palmersville, Tenn.

Leslie G. Thomas reports the work moving along nicely at Melvin, Mich.

Human nature shows itself in its treatment of the Bible.—W. W. Landrum.

Thomas H. Burton is in a tent meeting at Moore, S. C., with fine interest.

The Bible is a library of religious experience inspired by God.—Lyman Abbott.

Allen Phy has just closed at Garth, near Paint Rock, Ala. He is now at Gus, Ky.

H. A. Rogers reports eleven additions last week at Hart, Saskatchewan, Canada.

Hugh H. Miller has just closed a good meeting at Lone Oak, near Paducah, Ky.

"The world is always going wrong for the man who is headed that way himself."

J. R. Stockard, Milan, Tenn., has time to sing or hold meetings after September 3.

C. M. Gleaves closed at Flat Rock, Tenn., with five baptisms and good attendance.

The most difficult doctrine of the church is the declaration that God is love.—Bishop Gore.

God chooses the humble to represent him in the high places of the world.—Christian Oracle.

A. G. Freed is in a fine meeting at Pottsville, Ky., with sixty additions when last heard from.

A. B. Barret closed at Cairo, Tenn., on August 22, with twelve baptisms. He is now at Toone, Tenn.

David Thompson has just closed at Poplar Springs, near Sharpe, Tenn. He is now at Poplar Bluff, Mo.

J. A. Jenkins closed a meeting at Hoover Grove, in Moore County, Tenn., on August 2, with one baptism.

J. L. Hines closed at Gilstrap, Ky., with three baptized. He is now near Dyersburg, Tenn., in a meeting.

No graver injury can be done to man than to limit the range of his fears and hopes.—Sir Henry Jones.

S. P. Pittman when last heard from was in a meeting at Pueblo, Col. He is soon to return to Tennessee.

J. G. Malphurs closed an eight-days' meeting at Green Hill, near Mount Juliet, Tenn., with three baptisms.

J. Ridley Stropf recently conducted a meeting at Ivy Schoolhouse, near Repton, Ala. One baptism reported.

Fred M. Little on his four-weeks' "vacation" preached thirty sermons, resulting in a total of eleven additions.

J. H. McBroom has closed at Willow Grove, Tenn., with forty-four additions. He is now at College Grove, Tenn.

R. L. Colley has just closed at Millville, Ark., with eleven baptisms and two restorations. Hugh Hogg led the singing.

O. E. Coffman began at Charlotte, in Dickson County, Tenn., on last Lord's day. Tommie Nicks leads the singing.

D. H. Friend closed on August 23 at Woodson's Chapel, near Nashville, Tenn., with one baptized and one reclaimed.

H. H. Adamson closed at New Salem, Va., on August 13, with eight baptized and two restored. He is now at Salem, Ind.

Any law looks blue to the man who wants to violate it, and all any criminal wants is to be alone.—William H. Anderson.

What shall it profit the church if it gain all the college graduates and lose its God, its Bible, and its Christ?—W. J. Bryan.

L. B. Jones has just closed at Moulton, Ala., with three additions. Good crowds and good singing. They are planning to build soon.

W. E. Morgan is in a good meeting at Glenwood, Ark., with five additions to date. He goes next to Camden, Ark., and then to Tennessee.

Charles Holder closed recently at Englewood, Tenn., with three baptized and seven restored. The interest was fine. A congregation was started there.

Miss Willie Bruner, Fort Deposit, Ala., says: "I look forward to the coming of the Gospel Advocate every week and read every word with interest and pleasure."

G. B. Lambright, Jasper, Ala., Route 5, has time for another meeting in September. He says: "I held an eight-days' meeting and received two dollars. No visible results."

T. Q. Martin and Tommie Nicks closed at Shelbyville, Tenn., on August 20, with eight baptisms and three restorations. Brother Martin is now in a meeting at Lynchburg, Tenn.

R. N. Moody conducted a meeting at Bethel, near Athens, Ala., on August 6-19—the last five nights, three miles away. Five were baptized. He is now at Ephesus, five miles from Athens.

J. S. Peacock, Burnet, Texas, writes: "I have examined carefully a recent issue of The Young People, and pronounce it a splendid work, and no Christian home should be without it."

David Thompson has been preaching jointly with Mr. Hamilton, a Holiness Methodist, at Cane Creek Methodist Church, near Poplar Bluff, Mo. The cardinal differences were discussed.

M. L. Moore is in a meeting at Beech Grove, on Jennings Creek, in Jackson County, Tenn. During the month of July he labored in Texas, at Filo Valley, near Grandview. Twelve were baptized and five were restored.

J. O. Barnes has just closed his second tent meeting of three weeks each in Miami, Fla. He is now at West Palm Beach trying to gather together a congregation. He expects to return home (Lake City) about October 1.

J. C. Hollis closed at Union, near Anderson, Ala., on August 11, with eight baptisms and three from the Baptists. On August 8 he closed at Union Hill, Ala., with eleven baptisms, two from the Baptists, and one restored. They are planning to build soon.

A. A. Bunner, Fairmont, W. Va., preached on August 13 for his old home church, Blueville, W. Va., and last Lord's day at Nebo, in Marion County. He is now in a meeting at Fairmont. Should any one want to assist Brother Bunner in purchasing literature for the work at Cleveland, Ohio, address 7808 Hope Avenue, Cleveland, Ohio.

J. Leonard Jackson recently conducted a meeting of ten days' duration at Flippin, Ky. From there he went to Meigsville, in Jackson County, for eight days, and is now at Bluff Springs, in Marshall County. After this meeting and a few days' rest at his home, he will resume his work with the Lindsley Avenue Church, in Nashville.

R. H. Johnson recently held the following meetings: At Choctaw, Ark., July 1-10; Cave Springs, Ark., July 15-29; with five baptisms and three by membership; Centerton, Ark., July 29 to August 9, with one addition; Linker Mountain, near Dover, Ark., August 12-20, with eleven baptized and two restored. He is now at Elakemore, near England, Ark.

Thornton Crews, Rogersville, Ala., has conducted the following meetings this summer: At Tanner, with three confessions; Oliver, with one confession and restoration; Oakland, with six baptisms and two restorations; Mount Carmel, with sixteen baptized and nine restored. All these places are in Limestone County, Ala. He is now at home, where J. H. Horton is in a good meeting, with one confession to date.

A. D. Dies recently held the following meetings: At Corinth, in Wilson County, Tenn.; White House, near Haleyville, Ala., with fourteen baptisms and seven restorations (his eleventh annual meeting there); Christian Chapel, near Amory, Miss. He is now at Center Chapel, Tenn., and will go next to Castalian Springs, Tenn., for a union meeting of the churches. We are sorry indeed to learn that Brother Dies' wife and only son are ill. We pray for their recovery.

G. C. Brewer is in a meeting at Murray, Ky.

J. Pettey Ezell is in a meeting at Portland, Tenn.

J. V. Armstrong Traylor is in a meeting at Cedar Grove, near Smyrna, Tenn.

R. D. Smith, after a month's absence, is back at Wichita Falls, Texas, his home.

J. C. McQuiddy is spending his vacation in the White Mountains of New Hampshire.

Miss Fannie Burks writes: "I am still enjoying the good things in the Gospel Advocate."

C. M. Pullias will begin a meeting at Twelfth Avenue, North, this city, on September 24.

R. N. Moody is at Ephesus, Ala., Route 1, with fine attendance and twelve baptisms to date.

W. S. Long, Sr., Union City, Tenn., writes: "The Gospel Advocate gets better with each issue."

H. Leo Boles is in a meeting at Franklin, Tenn., which has already resulted in nine baptisms.

R. E. L. Taylor closed a ten-days' meeting at Viola, Tenn., with six baptisms and three restorations.

T. Q. Martin will begin a meeting with the West End congregation, Birmingham, Ala., on September 10.

S. H. Hall reports two fine audiences and one confession at Russell Street Church, this city, last Lord's day.

William P. Walker is in a meeting at Clarksburg, Tenn., with twelve baptisms and one restoration to date.

J. T. Harris has just closed at Stayton, Dickson County, Tenn., with eleven additions. He is now at Philippi, near Columbia, Tenn.

G. A. Dunn, Jr., has just closed at Reed Schoolhouse, near Gainesville, Texas. There were no members there, but he had a fine hearing.

J. H. McBroom closed at Riggs Cross Roads, near College Grove, Tenn., with six baptisms and fine interest. He is now at Granite, Okla.

F. L. Young, Paris, Texas, closed a fine meeting at Fort Lawson, with eight baptized. He reports a very successful season in point of additions.

L. R. Wilson closed his third annual meeting at Pangburn, Ark., on August 19, with nine baptized and one reclaimed. He is now at Enola, Ark.

Alonzo Williams closed at Bethel, near Friendship, Tenn., with eleven baptized and two restored. He is now in a brush-arbor meeting near Friendship.

G. W. Graves closed recently at Lewisburg, a suburb of Birmingham, Ala. A congregation was established, and they are going to build a house of worship.

W. P. Skaggs has changed his address from Sunset Heights to Madisonville, Texas. His meeting at Barksdale resulted in three baptized and six restored.

Frank Baker is in a mission meeting in a virgin field near Vincent, Ala. He baptized five the day last heard from, one a lady past seventy. The house is overflowing.

I. B. Bradley has just closed his ninth meeting at New Hope, in Cannon County, Tenn., and reports the church there in excellent condition. He is now at home in Birmingham, Ala.

J. R. Endsley closed at Minor Hill, Tenn., on August 24, with fourteen baptized and one restored. Two of these baptized were from the Methodists. He is now at Prichard, near Minor Hill.

W. M. Oakley has just closed at Oak Grove, near New Hope, Ala. He is now at Grant, Ala. He will be glad to answer calls for meetings any time from the second Lord's day in September to October 15.

J. W. Dunn closed at Fargo, Texas, on August 24, with thirty-two baptisms and fourteen restorations. He and J. C. Rigney are now at St. Jo, Texas. Brother Dunn will begin at Tyler, Texas, on September 10.

Aruna Clark reports two good services at Miami, Fla. Some attended services at Homestead in the afternoon. If you are contemplating spending the winter there, write Brother Clark, 444 N. W. Tenth Avenue.

John E. Dunn and C. T. McCormack closed at Pilot Grove, Texas, on August 16, with twenty-six additions to the congregation. Brother Dunn is now in a good meeting at Garrett, Texas, with four baptisms to date.

B. W. Davis, who has been ill for some time, wishes to thank every person who assisted in any way during that time. He is now well and will begin at Scottsboro, Ky., on September 3. Everett Derryberry will lead the singing.

S. W. Colson writes that a mission meeting by W. A. Cameron, at De Leon, Fla., closed on August 20, with six additions. Since last report Brother Colson has preached twice at Turnbull Bay, Port Orange, Mims, and Maytown.

F. L. Paisley closed recently at Marmaduke, Ark., with one baptism. A. J. Veteto led the singing. Since that time he has held a meeting at Johnston, Ark., with four baptized and five restored. Alvis Jackson led the singing. He is now at Lone Oak, near Paducah, Ky.

Emmett Creacy reports as follows: "Tent meeting at Center Point, in Hart County, Ky., with six baptisms; Antioch, in Barren County, six baptisms; Philippi, in Monroe County, eleven baptisms." He is now at Willow Shade, in Metcalfe County, for his fourth meeting at that place.

We learn with regret that David Parks is unable, on account of ill health, to continue in the evangelistic field. This accounts for the fact that a great deal of his correspondence has not been attended to. All inquiries will be answered by his daughter, Mrs. J. A. Lowry, Weatherford, Okla.

T. W. Barnett reports the following contributions received for Florida tent work. Most of it was given by individuals, but he only reports the names of the congregations where they worship: Oxford, $30; Umatilla, $59.25; Charter Oak, $22.08; Moss Bluff, $5; Ocala, $8; Lacota, $2; Fairfield, $3.50; Lecanto, $10; Lake City, $1; Capulet, $7.50. Total, $148.33.

C. D. Crouch paid us a pleasant visit and reports a good meeting at Berry's Chapel, near Franklin, Tenn., which closed on August 23, with two baptisms. He closed earlier than he had anticipated on account of the illness of his wife. He is now in a mission meeting near enough home that he can nurse his wife during the day and preach at night. He could arrange for some meetings.

S. C. Garner, Bakersfield, Mo., began his protracted-meeting season on March 1. Since that time he has held meetings in the following order: At Dongola, Ill.; Rogers Schoolhouse, near Loring, Mo.; Fayetteville, Ark.; Clinton, Ark.; Pottersville, Mo.; Rummel, Ark.; Magness, Ark.; Newark, Ark. These meetings resulted in forty-one baptisms and nine restorations. His time is all taken until November, when he will take up his Bible-school work again.

From A. G. Freed, Mayfield, Ky., August 18: "The meeting with the church at Green Plains, Tenn., closed on Monday, 6:30 A.M., at the water. There were twenty-two baptized and two restored to the fellowship. I am now with the church at Pottsville, Ky. The interest is fine and the audiences are great. Seven have been baptized. We look for many more. One more meeting with the church at Henry, Tenn., thence to Henderson for the opening of school. Write for catalogue of the Freed-Hardeman College, Henderson, Tenn."

H. A. Rogers writes from Harptree, Saskatchewan, Canada: "L. L. McGill ('Timothy,' as he is often called) closed at Harptree on August 10 and is en route to McCrorie, where he is to conduct a meeting. I baptized Brother McGill in 1916. I am in a meeting at Hart. We are doing all we can to pass the 'good news' on. Russellism and many other 'isms' are crowding into the West because preachers of any sort are so scarce the people lend a willing ear to the first one who comes along. I am arranging for a debate with the Russellites later."

A. J. Veteto writes as follows: "The meeting at Hot Springs, Ark., was begun on the second Lord's day in July and continued eight days. T. B. Clark did the preaching and the writer led the singing. The meeting was held in the courthouse. The audiences were small, but composed of very fine hearers. There were no additions, but there was much interest manifested on the part of the few who are as yet out of Christ. Contributions totaling sixty-two dollars and eighty-five cents were given for my support while there. When I found that I could go and help in this most worthy cause, I went, not knowing that I would receive one cent, but with unshaken faith in the Lord. I wrote letters to some of these brethren, together with three others who neither sent nor said. Either would have been appreciated. May the Lord bless the thoughtful. My expenses were about fifty dollars. Any one visiting Hot Springs will find the little band of worshipers in the courthouse at ten o'clock on Lord's-day morning."

Home Reading

For Those Who Weep.

"For I fancy but thinly the veil intervenes Between that fair city and me."

BAREFOOT DAYS.

BY CLARA COX EPPERSON.

(In memory of Billy-Boy.)

Now the gladsome barefoot days have come,
And happy children play around the home,
But—O!—your joyous, running feet
No more our aching, longing hearts will greet.
And yet it seems I almost hear
The childish voices sweet and clear,
As you with angels run and play
Adown some heavenly, golden way.

'Twas Christ who said that your dear angel face
Would evermore behold his Father's face;
His glorious smiles forever on you shine
In heaven's home, O boy of mine.
Then surely some day we may join you, too,
And dwell beneath the skies' eternal blue,
In perfect joy to watch your merry feet
At play with angels down some heavenly street.

BILLY-BOY.

BY CLARA COX EPPERSON.

His eyes were a bit of the skies' own blue
That the angels gave him as he came through;
His hair had a touch of the sunset's glow,
And the gentle, loving winds that blow
Gave to his cheeks the tint of the rose—
The sweetest, most perfect pink rose that grows;
His sunny smile and merry voice
Made the household daily rejoice.
A gift of gold without alloy
Was the gift from God—our Billy-Boy.

But God wanted him and called him home,
Into our lives a blank has come;
No more his merry, childish voice
And running feet our hearts rejoice;
No more with his comrades glad he plays,
And our hearts ache through the empty days;
But heaven is dearer, sweeter, more fair,
Because our boy is playing there,
Beneath the sunlight of God's own smile,
The dear one we've loved and lost a while.

About Spider's Webs.

No one who has spent much time in the country can have failed to observe and admire the beautiful webs of the little garden spider. These webs, circular in outline, with radiating threads running from center to circumference and supporting a system of concentric lines, are regarded by naturalists as the highest architectural achievements of spiders.

The maker of the web sits at its center, where the slightest vibration caused by the struggles of an entangled victim is instantly felt. The threads are so fine as to be almost invisible in some lights, and at the same time so strong that no insect not too powerful for the spider to overcome is able to break them.

The great ingenuity and perfection of these geometrical webs naturally give rise to the question, how did the spider learn the art of making them? The naturalist is not satisfied with the reply that it is a matter of instinct. He finds that there are wide differences among the webs of different spiders, and his observations lead him to think that he can discern distinct progress in the art of web-making among spiders.

The common house spider spins a web quite different from that of the garden spider. The house spider's web consists of a silken tube hidden in a dark corner, with an irregular sheet of closely woven meshes spread before it. The tube is the spider's lurking hole and place of refuge; the outspread web is its snare.

The wolf spider makes a tubular hole with a hinged door for a refuge, and spreads no snare. Still another species of spider constructs a far simpler tube of silk without any lid or door.

Now, according to the view of more than one authority, these different kinds of webs or nests represent so many stages of development. It is thought that at the beginning the only kind of web that any spider knew how to spin was a simple cocoon intended to protect its eggs.

Then a web for the protection of the spider itself from its enemies was woven around the cocoon. This web had an opening for ingress and egress; and such webs, intended for use only during the time that eggs are hatching, are still spun by some species of spiders.

The next step was the development of a snare. It has been suggested that this may have resulted from the accidental spinning of threads over and around the opening of a tubular retreat surrounding a cocoon. This was further developed in the outspread net of the house spider, and it reached its highest form when the garden spider learned to construct its beautiful radiated web.

One may trace in all this some resemblance to the progress of architecture among men. The earliest representatives of the human race were content to dwell in caves and rudely constructed huts. And to-day there are savage tribes which have not advanced much further in this respect.

Then more elaborate dwelling places, and buildings intended for other purposes, were constructed until, by successive steps, we have arrived at the temples, palaces, and houses of civilized life.—New York Herald.

Precious Bible! Here is knowledge without decay; here are treasures that never wax old. The old man leaning on his staff, and tottering to the tomb, reads it and thanks God he was born to die. The gray-haired matron soothes her sorrow by its record of love; the light of a hope kindled by its inspiration projects beyond the desolation of death. Childhood and youth pillow their heads upon its truths in nature's last struggle, and die with their fingers between its promise-freighted leaves. At the grave of the buried it chants the hymn of hope, preaches the patience of faith to stricken friendship and undying love, and crystallizes the tears of sorrow, and gems the crown of life with these rich mementos of earthly suffering.—Selected.

The Best Kind of Music.

"O, father, I wish I could sing," said Gertrude one evening. "Florence sang at the club to-day, and we all enjoyed it so much. She sings every night to her father, too. I'd give anything if I could, but there isn't any music in me."

"Is that so?" asked her father, taking her wistful face between his hands. "Well, perhaps you can't sing, but don't tell me your voice has no music in it."

"Why, father, how can you say so?"

"Almost every evening," answered father, "when I come home, the first thing I hear is a merry laugh, and it rests me, no matter how tired I am. Yesterday I heard that voice saying, 'Don't cry, buddie; sister'll mend it for you.' Sometimes I hear it reading to grandmother. Last week I heard it telling Mary: 'I'm sorry your head aches. I'll do the dishes to-night.' That is the kind of music I like best. Don't tell me my little daughter hasn't a sweet voice."—Selected.

Query Department

T. J. Marrs, Dale, Okla., requests me to give the church affiliations of the scholars of the American Revision Committee of the New Testament, especially of J. H. Thayer.

The New Testament Company as given by E. B. Chappell in "The Story of Our Bible" were:

CHAIRMAN.

The Rev. Theodore Dwight Woolsey, D.D., LL.D. (Congregationalist), formerly President of Yale College.

SECRETARIES.

The Rev. Joseph Henry Thayer, D.D. (Congregationalist), Professor of New Testament Exegesis in the Theological Seminary, Andover, Mass.

Charles Short, LL.D. (Episcopal), Professor of Latin in Columbia College, New York.

Ezra Abbot, D.D., LL.D. (Unitarian), Professor of New Testament Exegesis in the Divinity School of Harvard University.

The Rev. Jonathan Kelsey Burr, D.D. (Methodist), Trenton, N. J.

Thomas Chase, LL.D. (Friend), President of Haverford College.

The Rev. Howard Crosby, D.D., LL.D. (Presbyterian), Ex-Chancellor of the University of New York.

The Rev. Timothy Dwight, D.D., (Congregationalist), Professor of New Testament Exegesis in the Divinity School of Yale College.

James Hadley, LL.D. (Congregationalist), Professor of Greek, Yale College.

The Rev. Horatio Balch Hackett, D.D., LL.D. (Baptist), Professor of New Testament Exegesis in the Theological Seminary, Rochester, N. Y.

The Rev. Charles Hodge, D.D., LL.D. (Presbyterian), Professor of Theology in the Theological Seminary, Princeton, N. J.

The Rev. Asahel Clark Kendrick, D.D., LL.D. (Baptist), Professor of Greek in the University of Rochester, N. Y.

The Rt. Rev. Alfred Lee, D.D., LL.D. (Episcopal), Bishop of the Protestant Episcopal Diocese of Delaware.

The Rev. Matthew B. Riddle, D.D. (Reformed Presbyterian) (Congregationalist), Professor of New Testament Exegesis in the Theological Seminary, Hartford, Conn.

The Rev. Philip Schaff, D.D., LL.D. (Presbyterian), Professor of Sacred Literature, Union Theological Seminary, New York.

The Rev. Henry Boynton Smith, D.D., LL.D. (Presbyterian), Professor of Systematic Theology, Union Theological Seminary, New York.

The Rev. Edward Abiel Washburn, D.D., LL.D. (Episcopal), Rector of Calvary Church, New York.

C. Orendorff, Adairville, Ky., wishes to know if baptism is a church ordinance. He says: "For the benefit of some who are being misled by a man who claims to be a preacher of the church of Christ, I want you to fully explain in the Gospel Advocate whether or not baptism is a church ordinance. He also says that Lipscomb and Sewell took the same position that he does, that it is a church ordinance."

"Ordinance" means a statute, law, established rite. Baptism is a command of Christ and not of the church. Christ is the head of the church. Believers are baptized into Christ. The Spirit teaches: "Or are ye ignorant that all we who were baptized into Christ Jesus were baptized into his death?" (Rom. 6: 3.) "For as many of you as were baptized into Christ did put on Christ." (Gal. 3: 27.) Baptism is the act through which the believer is inducted into the kingdom of God. It belongs to faith, is a part of faith, and is inseparable from faith. Through it one renounces his allegiance to the world and declares his faith in Christ. "He that believeth and is baptized shall be saved; but he that disbelieveth shall be condemned." (Mark 16: 16.) "Except one be born of water and the Spirit, he cannot enter into the kingdom of God." (John 3: 5.) Christ established and fixed the law by which one becomes a member of the church, and also the law by which one continues a member of his body. The church receives and obeys the orders of Christ, but it is not a lawmaking body. Some people call the Lord's Supper an ordinance of the church, but it is not. It is an appointment of Christ, the head of the church, for the spiritual uplift and growth of the church. Lipscomb and Sewell never taught that baptism is an "ordinance of the church," for they both knew too well and had far too much respect for the Bible to take any such position.

A brother inquires about his vocation: "Will you give me some light on what course I am to pursue in regard to my vocation so as to meet the approval of God? I am a watchmaker, employed in a jewelry store. My duties are to repair watches principally, and also to repair jewelry, sell jewelry, etc., at odd times. Can I continue dealing in luxuries (I have intended going in the jewelry business for myself), or would you advise me to concentrate my efforts in repairing timepieces only, because they are a necessity to us now?"

The passages which bear upon this subject are here given. "In like manner, that women adorn themselves in modest apparel, with shamefastness and sobriety; not with braided hair, and gold or pearls or costly raiment; but (which becometh women professing godliness) through good works." (1 Tim. 2: 9, 10.) "Whose adorning let it not be the outward adorning of braiding the hair, and of wearing jewels of gold, or of putting on apparel; but let it be the hidden man of the heart, in the incorruptible apparel of a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." (1 Pet. 3: 3, 4.) Wearing apparel for adorning is forbidden the same as is wearing gold for ornament. If a man is forbidden to deal in gold because women are forbidden to wear it for adorning, then for the same reason he is forbidden to deal in apparel. While both are used by many for adorning, yet they are used for other purposes. The wearing of gold or apparel for ornament or adorning by Christian women is prohibited, and those who disregard this command of God are guilty of reckless folly. There are many uses to which gold may be put, for which uses nothing else will serve so well. It is only when worn as an ornament that it is a sin, because it violates the law of God. If our brother is forbidden to deal in jewelry because some people make a sin out of the use of it, then for the same reason he is forbidden to deal in apparel or anything else. Christians should not be extravagant. They should not squander money on needless luxuries, but their adorning should be "the hidden man of the heart" in that which is not corruptible, even the ornament of "a meek and quiet spirit, which is in the sight of God of great price." Women should adorn their lives in kindly, helpful deeds.

OUR WORKERS.

BY H. LEO BOLES.

We have a number of worthy young men who are gospel preachers in the field working for the Gospel Advocate and its publications. Among them may be mentioned B. D. Morehead, Thomas A. Nicks, Samson Lester, A. B. Senseney, and Robert Williams. Any favors that may be shown them will be gratefully received by them and highly appreciated by the Gospel Advocate Company. They are worthy of your encouragement and help. Some of them are working during vacation to be able to finish their education. They offer you good books at reasonable prices. You will benefit yourself as well as help them by placing an order with them.

Texas-Oklahoma Department

By C. R. NICHOL

All articles, reports, orders for Gospel Advocate and books, from Texas and Oklahoma, should be sent to C. R. Nichol, Clifton, Texas.

Review of Payne's Book on "Psallo."

BY C. R. N.

Throughout the controversy touching the use of instrumental music in the worship of the church of Christ, every affirmant of the righteousness of its use has attempted its justification from a different viewpoint. Their futile efforts have in every instance been apparent.

Mr. Payne's book was hailed by many of those who use instrumental music as a "godsend," and so very cocksure were they that this book would convince every fair-minded reader that many copies of the book were sent forth as missionary propaganda in the interest of their cause. Evidently they thought the very high recommendation the author gave himself, his pretensions to scholarship, with many quotations from lexicons, augmented by the stamp of approval given the book by those sending it forth, would overawe and effectually stop any reply to or review of the book. They "reckoned without their host."

Because Brother M. C. Kurfees and his book on "Instrumental Music in the Worship" was adversely criticized by Mr. Payne, it was insisted by many that Brother Kurfees offer some strictures on Mr. Payne's book. I think when Mr. Payne read the review of his book as written by Brother Kurfees, it did not cause any reverential "psalloing" in his heart.

If you do not have a copy of this review, by all means secure a copy. It appears to me that only he who is blinded by prejudice will fail to see that Brother Kurfees has demolished every effort at an argument made by Payne to prove that instrumental music is scriptural in the worship of the church of Christ.

The review is twenty-five cents per copy. Order from the McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

✻ ✻ ✻

Co-Operation in Mission Work.

BY C. R. N.

Since the close of the apostolic age there has not been, possibly, so much activity in missionary work by the church of Christ as now, especially in the foreign field. Some congregations are supporting a missionary in the homeland. Were it not for the missionary work, many would never learn the truth. Let no one expect to get out of the work of the Master more than he puts into it.

With some there is the question: How may congregations coöperate in mission work? How can one or more congregations coöperate in supporting a man in the home field or the foreign field? It is well to be concerned about having the gospel preached to those in darkness, to be solicitous that we extend the borders of the kingdom of the Lord, and that the work be done in a scriptural manner.

Let me suggest that each congregation take stock touching its financial ability in an effort to determine if it can support a missionary without the need of assistance from some sister congregation.

So far as the divine record reveals, Paul was more abundant in missionary work than any of the apostolic school. With the assistance of his colaborers, the church in the heathen city of Philippi was planted. (Acts 16.) From Philippi they traveled to the southwest, passing through Amphipolis and Apollonia to Thessalonica. In this city they availed themselves of the opportunity to preach in the synagogue, and then to Berea, where they preached; and leaving this place, they came to Athens, and in that city of learning preached Christ; then to Corinth, where they planted a church.

Some years after having established the church in Philippi, Paul wrote them: "And ye yourselves also know, ye Philippians, that in the beginning of the gospel, when I departed from Macedonia, no church had fellowship with me in the matter of giving and receiving but ye only; for even in Thessalonica ye sent once and again unto my need." (Phil. 4: 15, 16.) Philippi and Thessalonica are both cities in Macedonia; but when Paul passed from that section to a foreign land, the church in Philippi did not forget him nor to fellowship him in his work, and not under a temporary enthusiasm, for some years after establishing that church he says they fellowshipped him from the "first day." (Phil. 1: 5.) Were it not for the missionary spirit of Christians and the desire that others know the gospel story and be brought to the wonderful joys of salvation in Christ, would the congregation of which you are a member have an existence. Would you have learned the truth? Are you grateful? Show your activity in some missionary activity. The church at Philippi fellowshipped Paul even when he was laboring in other places than in that city. What is the church of which you are a member doing to support the man who planted it? If you do not know where he is, or if others are supporting him, there are many other faithful men of God who need to be in the field preaching. I insist that there are but few congregations unable to support a man in mission work for all his time, if only the congregation as a whole wants to.

It is a pleasure to labor with congregations, to be associated with the saints in the work; but the field is white to the harvest, and souls are perishing for the want of gospel light. Is it not a fact that the virgin fields are being neglected? Is it not an additional fact that those who are called our strongest men are not often found in the mission fields of our own country? There are some few exceptions. My observation leads me to say: In most places where the gospel has not been preached it is the young men—faithful, loyal, consecrated gospel preachers—who have had but little experience, and who have not been schooled through a long series of years in dealing with opposition, who open the work and plant the churches. The older and stronger men have promised all their time to the well-established churches. When a church wants a meeting, they seek the strongest man to be had.

Recently one of our preachers who has had years of experience in evangelistic work and engaged in many debates said: "My time is promised for more than two years, with not a day in which to 'book' another meeting, and the time is all promised to places where we have congregations; but if I had my rathers, I would be the servant of some church, as they serve Christ, have them supply me with a good tent, a song director, and I would seek some place where a congregation does not exist, and there we would pitch the tent and remain there till a congregation was planted, if it took two months, six months, or a year." Is there a congregation which will place this man in the field, furnish him a singer, books, literature—everything necessary to carry on the work as it should be? It could be done with five hundred dollars per month. Do you say the expense is too much? My brother, one soul is worth more than the world. The recent meeting in Nashville, Tenn., was at an expense of several thousand dollars. I think it was money well spent, and I am certain the churches in Nashville will so declare.

Would the congregation of which you are a member like to see more mission work done, but find themselves unable to do the work? Why not ask some sister congregation to coöperate with you?

CHURCH COÖPERATION.

Paul affirmed that the churches contributed to his support while he labored in Corinth.

The church in Canadian, Texas, is caring for a number of orphans. They find the work greater than they are able to finance, and they have asked sister congregations to assist them in the work. To this end, they send W. L. Swinney as a messenger to the churches to tell them of the work and to invite their fellowship. This is scriptural.

The church in Corsicana, Texas, has set her hand to the work of paying for a lot in Japan on which to erect a house for the Japanese Christians; and through Brother Vincent, their servant, they have the matter brought to the attention of sister congregations, asking that they assist them in this work. No, no! There is not a "board" formed, composed of men from different parts of the country, to do this work or to have this work in charge; but it is the divinely constituted institution, the church, and there is coöperation of the churches. No, there is no ground for some self-constituted overseer of the mission field.

Is there a needy field for work? Let some congregation send a man to that field; and, if they are unable to support him, unable to finance the work, let them bring the matter to the attention of a sister congregation and ask their coöperation. The congregation may select some man to look after the details of the work, but let the congregation as such function. If one man may conceive work to be done, then appoint some man as secretary to that work. We might as well have an aggregation of men to direct the work apart from the church. Unto God be glory in the church.

Personal Notes.

C. G. Vincent closed in Pursley, Texas, with ten baptisms.

L. E. Carpenter closed in Trauby, Texas, with six baptized.

U. R. Beeson closed near Bremond, Texas, with one restoration.

C. E. Wooldridge closed in Little Elm, Texas, with four baptized.

C. R. Nichol closed in Hartsville, Tenn., with seventeen baptisms.

C. W. Ing, Hillsboro, Texas, may be had or some meetings in October.

John W. Hedge closed near Bremond, Texas, without visible results.

C. W. Holley and W. E. Morgan closed in Pison, Ark., with one baptism.

C. J. Robinson closed in Cross Plains, Texas, with four-teen baptized.

J. K. Bentley closed in Mountain View, Okla., with sixty-nine additions to the congregation.

Cled E. Wallace closed in Crosbyton, Texas, with twenty-four baptisms and seven restorations.

J. S. Daugherty is in a meeting at Newark, Texas, with large crowds and two baptized to date.

Hugh H. Miller recently held a meeting at Taylor, Okla., with twenty baptized and one reclaimed.

S. H. Hall has closed at Altus, Okla., with twenty-two baptisms and nine added from other sources.

John M. Rice closed in Sweetwater, Texas, with twenty-eight added; in Knox City, Texas, with thirty-eight added.

M. C. Cuthbertson closed with the Glenwood congregation, Fort Worth, Texas, with seventeen baptisms; in Ennis, Texas, with nine baptisms.

Elmer L. Nichols, Anson, Texas, has just closed at Mount Calm, Texas, with twenty-five baptisms. Brother Nichols is in his twenty-first year and has been preaching eighteen months.

Ira Womack, Sulphur, Okla., has been teaching during the day and preaching at Prairie View, near by, at night. Seven were baptized and four restored. On August 20 he preached morning and evening at Ardmore and in the afternoon at Berwyn.

James F. Cox, who has been teaching in the College of Industrial Arts at Denton, Texas, during the summer and preaching for the church there, is leaving now for Abilene, Texas, to take up his work there. He has taught education there two years.

"Consecration."

BY H. LEO B.

The following extract and note have been received from Sister Lipscomb, the widow of Brother David Lipscomb, who labored so long and faithfully with pen through the columns of the Gospel Advocate. Our readers will appreciate the extract for its own merits, and, in addition to that, they will be glad to read a note, though brief, from Sister Lipscomb commending it.

Brother Boles: I thought Braunstein's article on "Consecration" in a recent number of the Christian Herald so good that I copied a short extract. If you think it proper, it might be worth while to give it a corner in the Gospel Advocate. I like your publication of articles from the old brethren on the first page. MARGARET LIPSCOMB.

EXTRACT FROM BRAUNSTEIN'S ARTICLE.

Christianity is a giving religion. The Master gave himself. We are expected to give ourselves, if we are his disciples. Righteous progress and Christian civilization are the products of noble giving of time and talents, cash and character, for the making of a better world.

"I would give the world for Christ," some one exclaimed in the presence of Gladstone. The statesman replied: "Start by giving one-tenth of what you get." It shows more religion to give one-tenth of what I have than to want to give the whole world, which I have not.—Richard Braunstein, in Christian Herald.

A Letter from Brother G. C. Brewer.

Murray, Ky., August 25, 1922.—H. Leo Boles, Nashville, Tenn.—Dear Brother Boles: Let me congratulate you on your management of the Gospel Advocate. You are giving us a good paper each week. I am glad that you are to have charge in the office. I believe that you are not only capable, but adapted to do that sort of work.

Since I have been on this side of the Mississippi several persons have asked me why I do not write each week for the Advocate, and some have asked if I had had a "fuss" with the editors. Now, the only reason I do not write is, I do not have time. My work is very heavy, and I cannot write regularly each week for any paper and should never have undertaken such a task. If you care to do so, you may say over my signature that there has been no sort of misunderstanding or difficulty between me and the editors of the Advocate, and that I am for the paper and will contribute to its columns as often as my other work will permit.

I predict for you success in your new position.

With all good wishes,

Faithfully yours,

G. C. BREWER.

[We appreciate Brother Brewer's good letter and hope that he can find time to contribute often to the columns of the Gospel Advocate.—H. Leo B.]

SPECIAL OFFER.

We are trying to increase the circulation of the Gospel Advocate, knowing that as we increase its circulation we are broadening its field of usefulness and thereby doing more good for our Master. Will you coöperate with us in this good work? The subscription list of the Gospel Advocate is growing daily, and we want you to help us do even greater things for the Lord through its columns. Here is our Special Offer: If you will send us two new subscribers for a year, we will send you a copy of Peloubet's "Select Notes on the International Sunday-school Lessons." This book includes all the Sunday-school lessons for the year 1922. It formerly sold for $2. The price of the Gospel Advocate is $2 per year. Send to the Gospel Advocate Company, 317-319 Fifth Avenue, North, Nashville, Tenn.

Do Not Neglect Your Blood

If it is in abnormal condition, the longer you delay taking a good blood medicine like Hood's Sarsaparilla, the longer it will take and the more difficult it will be for you to get back to "normalcy."

Not only boils, pimples, eruptions, but headaches, nervous spells, "all-gone" feelings, indigestion and loss of appetite are readily traced to impure blood. Thousands date getting on the right road to health from the day they began taking Hood's Sarsaparilla. Why not try it?

TETTERINE

Makes hair beautiful, free from dandruff, and keeps the scalp healthy.

50c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

JACOBS & COMPANY

SPECIAL ADVERTISING
AGENTS

PRINTERS DESIGNERS PHOTOENGRAVERS ELECTROTYPERS

*Catalogues
— a Specialty*

HOME OFFICE:
CLINTON, S.C.

THE B. H. STIEF JEWELRY CO.

We are preparing our mailing list for our New Catalogue. If you are interested in a free copy, write us.

B. H. STIEF JEWELRY CO.
CHURCH STREET
Nashville, Tennessee

PARKER'S
HAIR BALSAM
Removes Dandruff—Stops Hair Falling
Restores Color and
Beauty to Gray and Faded Hair
60c. and $1.00 at Druggists.
Hiscox Chem. Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

HINDERCORNS Removes Corns, Cal-
louses, etc., stops all pain, ensures comfort to the feet, makes walking easy. 15c. by mail or at Druggists. Hiscox Chemical Works, Patchogue, N. Y.

Notes from Florida.

BY S. W. COLSON.

On the fourth Sunday in July I began a series of meetings with the church at Umatilla. Brother D. A. Martin reached us on Monday night and assisted very much in the meeting. We had good attendance and considerable interest was manifested. Five were baptized and one came from the Baptists. On the fifth Sunday we had our get-together meeting and raised the money to buy a tent so we can carry on more effectively the mission work that has been undertaken in this part of the State.

Brother G. E. Claus began a meeting at Lake Butler on July 17 and continued it until July 28. The attendance was the best they have had for years. The house would not hold the people. Three were baptized. Brother Claus went from Lake Butler to Trenton, where he began a meeting on the fifth Sunday in July, with encouraging prospects.

When last heard from, Brother D. A. Martin was in a mission meeting at Citronelle.

Brother W. A. Cameron has been in a mission meeting at DeLeon Springs for the past two weeks. When last heard from, he was having a good hearing, and there has been three additions, with prospects for more. Brother Cameron is hopeful of establishing a congregation there.

During our meeting at Umatilla some people from Mount Dora invited me to preach in their town. I promised to do so if they could get a house. They secured the Baptist's meeting-house. There was not a person in town that claimed to be simply and only a Christian. I went there on the second Sunday in August and preached three times and baptized one woman. Mount Dora is a pretty town situated on Lake Dora. It has about twelve or fifteen hundred inhabitants.

The brethren at Ocala have moved their house of worship to the new location. We will be able to meet there on the third Sunday in August.

Orphans' Home in Florida.

BY JOHN B. PEDEN.

In answer to my letter relative to establishing a Home for orphans, I received letters from fifty-seven brethren, fifty-three of the fifty-seven agreeing to help in a financial way to raise the ten thousand dollars. All seem to think the plans outlined, if put into practice, would be a success. We are indeed thankful to see so many interested and willing to help in this much-needed work. We are hopeful of establishing such a Home in this beautiful Southland. But we failed to get the land at the price offered and our plans were broken up for the present. We are looking out for a suitable location, and hope to be able to report in the near future. I am busy in the Lord's service. We need more workers in Florida. Will you help in the cause of our Lord?

Try Renwar for Rheumatism.

It is not necessary any longer for you to suffer those intense pains and aches of rheumatism. Renwar is a salts combination scientifically prepared to neutralize the uric acid in the blood and thereby cure rheumatism. Don't wait until those rheumatic pains return. Buy a bottle of Renwar and forget about that rheumatism. Renwar is an old, well-established remedy. It is prescribed by the best of physicians and has thousands of friends. President L. A. Bauman, of Varley & Bauman Company, Nashville, says: "Renwar entirely relieved me of my rheumatism." For sale by druggists; price, 50 cents. Positively guaranteed by money-back offer. If your druggist doesn't carry Renwar in stock, tell him to order it for you from WARNER DRUG COMPANY, NASHVILLE, TENN.

School Desks

Opera Chairs,
Folding Chairs,
Kindergarten Chairs,
School Supplies,
Blackboards.

SOUTHERN DESK CO., Hickory, N. C.

Housework and Headache

There's relief for you housewives who suffer from aches and pains.

When lack of fresh air, working over a hot stove and the odor of cooking make your head throb, your back ache, your limbs tremble, just take 1 or 2

Dr. Miles' Anti-Pain Pills

They'll relieve you quickly and safely.

Your druggist sells them.

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

New York City Notes.

BY E. E. SHOULDERS.

Thus far the progress of our work is by no means setting New York in a whirl, neither are there any indications of it at this writing; but, like the tortoise, we keep plodding along. The results from our efforts among these eight millions of humanity may well be compared with the results as seen from the tossing of a tiny pebble into the ocean.

Now to the point. How many churches or individuals are truly interested in the New York work and want to see it prosper? You say: "O, I'm deeply interested in that work. I pray every day for you good people who are standing by that work up there. I just know you need the prayers, sympathy, and encouragement of God's children." Yes, indeed we need these encouragements, and others besides. Will prayers, sympathy, and words of encouragement spoken, only, make a work progress? Will these alone build a church house? Can a man buy goods with these only?

Here is the situation. At this writing we have a few cents more than three dollars in the treasury. With hall rent, advertising, purchasing of literature, and the support of the evangelist, we have our doubts about progressing much longer, but facing the probability of drifting back into the "old rut" which characterizes so many lifeless congregations "just holding together."

How many churches or individuals are willing to send ten dollars per month to the support of this work for one year? How many are willing to send five dollars per month for one year, beginning now? Brethren, in the name of Christ, we need your financial support now, as well as your support in prayers. Act now.

Send all contributions to George M. McKee, treasurer, Box 15, Station N, New York, N. Y.

Missionary News.

BY NELLIE STRAITON.

Sister Lillie Cypert is now at home, enjoying her furlough, resting and regaining her health and strength to better fit her for her future work. She arrived in San Francisco on June 11, but did not reach her home till a month later, as she stopped at a number of places en route. Among the churches visited were those at Abilene, Brownwood, Fort Worth, Cleburne, and Windom, all in Texas.

I personally enjoyed her visit with us, and was greatly interested in what she told us regarding the work in Japan. I know, too, that all those at Fort Worth and other places visited, who had the pleasure of meeting Sister Cypert, listening to her talk, and seeing the many interesting Japanese clothes, images, etc., which she showed us, were also glad to have come in touch with the Japanese work through Sister Cypert; and Sister Cypert appreciated very much indeed the hospitality of those who helped make her trip from California to Arkansas more comfortable and enjoyable.

Now that Sister Cypert is at home, please do not neglect to support her work in Japan, part of which is being carried on. The biggest item of expense is the printing of the literature for use in five Bible schools in Japan. Two of Sister Cypert's Sunday-school teachers are continuing the translation from English to Japanese, but they need our cooperation in paying for the printing. And even though she is at home, we should not altogether forget her personal support. While in Japan she was extremely liberal in using her personal funds in furthering the work, when she might have spent them for clothes or saved for future personal needs. Let us remember her now, as I am sure many will be glad to do. Address Miss Nellie Straiton, 1020 South Lake Street, Fort Worth, Texas.

An Announcement.

BY E. W. DANIEL.

Brother E. P. Watson will not be with us at Dickson, Tenn., after November. He does not know just where he will locate. He has one or two good places in view. We wish to state that Brother Watson has done a fine work here for us, and we can truthfully say that he is "a workman that needeth not to be ashamed." During his two years here there have been eighty-eight additions to the church and nearly eight thousand dollars has been contributed and passed through the treasury. We have had fine attendance every Lord's day and also at night, and the Sunday school has about doubled in attendance.

Fifty Against Two. It is not reasonable to expect two weeks of outing to overcome the effects of fifty weeks of confinement. Take Hood's Sarsaparilla along with you. It refreshes the blood, improves the appetite, makes sleep easy and restful.

BABIES LOVE
MRS. WINSLOW'S SYRUP
The Infants' and Children's Regulator
Pleasant to give—pleasant to take. Guaranteed purely vegetable and absolutely harmless. It quickly overcomes colic, diarrhoea, flatulency and other like disorders. The open published formula appears on every label.
At All Druggists

Dodson's Liver Tone

Instead of Calomel

Calomel is quicksilver. It attacks the bones and paralyzes the liver. Your dealer sells each bottle of pleasant, harmless "Dodson's Liver Tone" under an ironclad, money-back guarantee that it will regulate the liver, stomach, and bowels better than calomel, without sickening or salivating you. Fifteen million bottles sold.

WATCH YOUR ADDRESS LABEL

Look at the address label that comes with each copy of the Gospel Advocate. If it bears a date that has passed, please send renewal of subscription—$2.00 a year.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE
Nashville, Tenn.

BOYS AND GIRLS

Earn Your Pocket Money Easy

Sell your friends and relatives Primo Cleanser for personal toilet and general household use. Get half of what you sell. Little time. Big profit. Send 25c for salesman's outfit, including a one-pound can of Primo, literature, and instructions.
THE PRIMO CO., 2617 Olive St., St. Louis, Mo.

DANDRUFF

QUICKLY DISAPPEARS WHEN

Tetterine

Is Applied. Fragrant and Soothing.
60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

For Fever Headaches and Neuralgic Pains

An improved Aspirin tablet which is absolutely safe to use even in cases of extreme debility and weak heart. Relieves headaches, neuralgia and rheumatic pains, and reduces fever. No depressing effects. Made by a formula which is in general use by leading physicians. 35c per package at your druggist's or by mail from the manufacturers, Piedmont Laboratories, Inc., Clinton, S. C.

ASPIRIN

Say "Bayer" and Insist!

Unless you see the name "Bayer" on package or on tablets, you are not getting the genuine Bayer product prescribed by physicians over twenty-two years and proved safe by millions for

Colds	Headache
Toothache	Lumbago
Earache	Rheumatism
Neuralgia	Pain, Pain

Accept only "Bayer" package, which contains proper directions. Handy boxes of twelve tablets cost few cents. Druggists also sell bottles of 24 and 100. Aspirin is the trade-mark of Bayer Manufacture of Monoaceticacid-ester of Salicylicacid.

Headaches Vanish

Sick or nervous headaches, back-aches, women's aches, almost instantly respond to the liquid remedy CAPUDINE. It stops the pain by removing the cause. Every home should keep a bottle handy. Sold by druggists—10c, 30c, 60c. Insist upon getting

CAPUDINE

Sure Relief FOR INDIGESTION

YOU ARE WANTED for a GOOD POSITION at a BIG SALARY

All that you need is training. Draughon's Practical Business College will train you, at your home, within only a few months. This is the College that has trained more than 300,000 men and women for good positions. Ask for big book, "Guide to Business Success." It's FREE. Address DRAUGHON'S BUSINESS COLLEGE, Dept. GA, Nashville, Tenn.

Comfort Baby's Skin With Cuticura Soap And Fragrant Talcum

For sample Cuticura Talcum, a fascinating fragrance. Address: Cuticura Laboratories, Dept. Y, Malden, Mass.

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

Field Reports

Jackson, Miss., August 21.—Since last report I have closed a meeting with the Antioch congregation, near Coldwater, Miss., which resulted in nine baptisms, three reclamations, and one confession of faults. The entire congregation was persuaded to do a better and more effective work in that part, and I expect to hear some good things of them. Respect of persons and some who have sown the seeds of error there in times past has been the cause of some retrogression among them. I am engaged in a meeting at Tishomingo, Miss., which promises to be very good. The attendance is unusual for this place. I go next to Abbeville, Miss.—Charles F. Hardin.

Columbus, Ga., August 20.—We began meeting from house to house in April. Brother Hugh A. Price, of Birmingham, Ala., held a fifteen-days' meeting for us, after which we rented a storehouse, bought chairs, and are now keeping house as "it is written." Brethren Garrett and Little have had a part in this work, too. We find opposition very great. The masses here have never heard of us, but we are moving along in our feeble way. There were thirty-one present this morning, and one was restored. Brethren, we need help to keep a man here in the work all the time. If several congregations would help each month, it would not burden any one.—Mrs. R. W. Stagers.

St. Joseph, Tenn., August 25.—During the winter and spring I baptized seven at monthly appointments. On July 2 I began a meeting near Booneville, Ala., which closed without any additions; at Mount Springs, Ala., on July 17, with ten baptized and two restored; on July 23, at Mount Pleasant, with five added; on July 30, at North Carolina, with seven additions; on August 6, at Summit's Chapel, in Dyer County, Tenn., with six baptized and two restored. This is where the Tant-Clark debate was held, and its good effects are still being felt. The outsiders say Brother Tant had the truth, and they commend his gentle, Christian spirit. One of the additions was from the Baptists.—William Behel.

Ackerman, Miss., Route 4, August 22.—The work at all places where I have been this summer is doing fine. "Greater things for God" seems to be the desire of all the churches. Since my last report I have held three meetings—one at Holly Ridge, which resulted in five baptisms; one at a brother's home near Berclair, with one baptism; and one at Nile, with two baptisms. I am now at home resting for a few days; then to Sturgis, where Brother Roy Vaughn will be with me. He is a fine preacher. We are expecting a good meeting. I expect to go from Sturgis to Burdette, Ark. A brother and his wife from Illinois are living at Duffee, Miss., and are wanting a meeting. I must get to them. Brethren, pray for me that I may be faithful and preach the truth in love.—H. D. Jeffcoat.

Middleton, Tenn., August 21.—I am in a good meeting with the New Hope Church, out seven miles from Middleton. Prospects are flattering for a good meeting. Brother J. D. Alford, one of the best song leaders in this section, has an excellent class, and the singing is extra good. My meeting at Valley View, Texas, closed on the second Sunday in August, with three baptisms. On account of a case of laryngitis, I was unable to preach for three days, and Brother Gustus A. Dunn, Jr., of Gainesville, Texas, came and preached five sermons for me. He is an excellent speaker and is going to make an able preacher. He is only eighteen years old, but has better control and knows his lessons better than many older preachers. He baptized two for me. May God bless our young preachers.—J. B. Nelson.

West Point, Miss., August 20.—I have just closed a meeting four miles from Stewart, Miss., with two additions. We have only a few scattered brethren here. They have no leaders and do not keep up the worship. We need local leaders. It would be easy to convince the world if we could have a living demonstration of the gospel. Crowds were good and interest fine. I was requested to return again. I go from here to a place near Cleveland, Miss., for a meeting. I have several meetings yet. We need help here in this destitute field. People up in Tennessee can hardly realize the situation here. There are very few congregations here, and most of them are very weak. The preacher has to go partly at his own charges. But somebody must make the sacrifice. I try to get the people wherever I go to take the Gospel Advocate.—H. C. Harris.

Let thy discontents be thy secrets.—Benjamin Franklin.

WINTERSMITH'S
CHILL TONIC
SOLD 50 YEARS
A FINE GENERAL TONIC

A BRAND-NEW BOOK

"OLD LIMBER"

OR

THE TALE OF THE TAYLORS

By DeLONG RICE

"ALF and BOB TAYLOR, with their eloquence, their fiddles, and their fox hounds, have wrought for themselves a niche of eternal melody in the hearts of their country."

So states the author of this little book, which we present as the best product of the pen of DeLong Rice.

With a "Cast of Characters extending from a President of the United States to a fox hound," the story touches a wide range of human sentiment; and through it all is the aroma of crackling camp fires and the music of the chase.

THE BOOK is beautifully printed and bound, appropriately illustrated, and packed in a neat gift box, ready for mailing.

PRICE, $1.00 THE COPY.
POSTPAID TO ANY ADDRESS.

Correspondence with Bookstores and News Agencies is invited.
Write to us to-day.

McQUIDDY PRINTING CO.,
NASHVILLE, TENN.

Among the Colored Folks

I have recently held meetings at Celina, Tenn., and at Martinsburg, Ky., with good interest at both places. At Celina twenty-three were added; at Martinsburg, seven. The sanctified people, with two of their preachers, withstood me there. I returned home (Cookeville, Tenn.) and found Brother T. B. Larimore in a fine meeting. I am very thankful for the opportunity of hearing him once more. It is hard for me to hold meetings, because they are unable to support me. My health has been poor, and I am not able to report as much as I once did.

GILBERT A. JOHNSON.

As so many inquiries are coming in from different sections of the country as to my welfare and whereabouts, it may be well for me to say that I am yet alive and contending for the faith that was once delivered to the saints at Jerusalem.

Although my journey thus far has not been on flowery beds of ease, yet God, through the agency of his people, both white and black, has not forgotten me, nor have I been forced to beg bread. I pray that I may so live that whatever I do, in word or in deed, will reflect credit upon all who have assisted me through these years of constant toil.

During the three years that I have been in Nashville my eyes have been opened to the fact that the greatest results in life are usually attained by simple means and the exercise of ordinary qualities. The Hardeman-Pulias meeting held here a few months ago is one of the clearest illustrations of this fact. This meeting, with its great historical importance, has been felt, no doubt, in some way, throughout this whole country of ours, and only God can tell what it has contributed to human welfare and human happiness, and yet it was carried out from beginning to end by simple means and the exercise of ordinary qualities. The churches of Christ in and around Nashville, under whose supervision the meeting was conducted, did not give picnics, banquets, "tacky" parties, etc., in order to raise funds to support the cause, but by the simple means of giving as they purposed in their hearts; nor did Brother Hardeman preach to those great audiences "with enticing words of man's wisdom, but in demonstration of the Spirit and of power: that your [their] faith should not stand in the wisdom of men, but in the power of God." Truly he is a man of God. I would to God that more meetings of this nature were conducted throughout this country; then peace, tranquillity, happiness, and prosperity would once more smile upon the face of the earth.

ANNIE C. TUGGLE.

The meeting held in Tullahoma, Tenn., beginning on July 6, was well attended. The white congregation there manifested a great interest in the meeting in the way of supporting it. Brother J. W. Smith, of Lynchburg, Tenn., was with us in the meeting, and did all he could to encourage me as a young preacher. Brother T. H. Busby conducted the song service. Brethren Busby and Smith helped me to sow the seed in Tullahoma, which I believe will produce a harvest in the future. The meeting closed with a crowded tent, but no additions. On July 17 I began a tent meeting in Widener, Ark. I was in Widener two weeks, but, due to heavy rainfall, I preached only five sermons. One precious soul was baptized. On August 4 I began a tent meeting in Goodrich, Tenn., which continued eight days, with two confessions on the last night of the meeting. An old lady, eighty-two years old, who had been a Methodist about sixty years, was baptized. On August 13 I began a meeting in Hillsboro, Tenn. The meeting was well attended. Eight were baptized and one was restored. I am now in a tent meeting nine miles from Columbia, Tenn. The meeting is two days old, with one confession to date. Prospects are bright. I am doing all I can to get the gospel of Christ to our people. I ask the prayers of all the faithful white brethren.

ALONZO JONES.

On the fifth Lord's day in July I began a meeting at Mars' Hill, near Santa Fe, Tenn., and continued it eight days. One young lady was baptized. I came back to Nashville and preached on Monday night; thence to Thyatira, Miss., where I preached eight days and nights. Twenty-nine were baptized and four were reclaimed. I began at Tusculum, Ala., on the fourth Lord's day in August, to continue for one week. We will begin our meetinghouse next month, and just as soon as it is finished we will begin a meeting. I am so glad that our white brethren in Corinth have stood by us.

J. HANNON.

God can use a weak man, but cannot find a place for a lazy one.

Adversity is sometimes hard upon a man; but for one man who can stand prosperity there are a hundred that will stand adversity.—Carlyle.

Renew your health
by purifying your
system with

The purified and refined calomel tablets that are free from nausea and danger.

No salts necessary, as Calotabs act like calomel and salts combined. Demand the genuine in 10c and 35c packages, bearing above trade-mark.

FRECKLES

Now Is the Time to Get Rid
of These Ugly Spots.

There's no longer the slightest need of feeling ashamed of your freckles, as Othine—double strength—is guaranteed to remove these homely spots.

Simply get an ounce of Othine—double strength—from your druggist, and apply a little of it night and morning and you should soon see that even the worst freckles have begun to disappear, while the lighter ones have vanished entirely. It is seldom that more than one ounce is needed to completely clear the skin and gain a beautiful clear complexion.

Be sure to ask for the double strength Othine as this is sold under guarantee of money back if it fails to remove freckles.

BOOK OF COMFORT

Specially designed gift for the bereaved. Contains choicest gems of comfort from greatest writers. Each selection a masterpiece. Memorial record page for the de- ceased. Beautifully decorated. Flowers fade, but "consolation" may be cherished for years. Price $2.00, postpaid. Send to McQuiddy Printing Company, Nashville, Tenn.

BOILS Old Sores, Cuts and Burns have been healed since 1820 with

Gray's Ointment

Sold by all druggists. Write for sample to W. F. Gray & Co., 716 Gray Bldg., Nashville, Tenn.

McShane Bell Foundry Co.
BALTIMORE, MD.
CHURCH, CHIME and PEAL
Memorials a Specialty

CANCER

HOSPITAL. Intra-venous treatment for cancer. Operation, Radium and X-Ray unnecessary. Booklet giving full information upon request. Box 2127, ATLANTA, GA.

Renew your subscription to the Gospel Advocate.

GIRLS! LEMONS

BLEACH FRECKLES

AND WHITEN SKIN

Squeeze the juice of two lemons into a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of the best freckle and tan bleach and complexion whitener.

Massage this sweetly fragrant lemon lotion into the face, neck, arms, and hands each day, and see how freckles and blemishes bleach out, and how clear, soft, and rosy-white the skin becomes.

The Plum Street Church of Christ, Detroit, Mich.,

Now meets in its new building, corner Hamilton Boulevard and Tuxedo Avenue. Visiting brethren welcome.

New York City Church of Christ

239 West Sixty-Ninth Street

Services: 2:30 P.M., Bible Study; 3:15 P.M., Preaching and Communion.

E. E. Shoulders, Evangelist, 699 Flatbush Ave., Brooklyn, N. Y.; Phone, Flatbush 6857.

TETTERINE

Clears Baby's Skin

and drives off the rash and pimples. Harmless, Soothing, Fragrant.

60c at your druggist's or from the SHUP-TRINE CO., Savannah, Ga.

Sore Feet? Don't Worry. Here's a Remedy!

Hot foot bath. Dry feet carefully. Rub thoroughly with Eucapine Salve. Towel till dry. Then off to bed with a happy heart for your poor, sore feet will be better in the morning.

*Eucapine
Salve*

Antiseptic Analgesic Antiphlogistic
(Prevents Infection) (Relieves Pain) (Allays Inflammation)

is a great comfort in cases of inflamed conditions of the skin and of the membranes of the air passages. 50c per 2 oz. jar, at your druggist's or by prepaid parcel post from the manufacturers. Full size jar free to physicians and quantitative formula supplied if desired.

Piedmont Laboratories, Inc.,
Clinton, S. C.

Obituaries

York.

Mrs. Frederick York was born in Connecticut in 1835; was married about 1859; and had lived in the vicinity of Meaford, Ontario, Canada, about fifty-three years, and will be remembered by many aged brethren and sisters. She and her family moved to Saskatchewan, Canada, thirty-two years ago. Her husband died in 1920, at the age of eighty-nine; she died on July 3, 1922, at the age of eighty-seven. The writer knew them both and loved them for their work's sake. Seven children survive her.

H. A. ROGERS.

Hall.

Annie Pearl Brummett was born on October 18, 1896, near Brownsville, Tenn., and died on December 10, 1921, at Brinkley, Ark., where she was undergoing treatment in a hospital. She obeyed the gospel in the days of her youth, and always loved the church and its appointments, and, when possible, was a constant attendant at its services. In August, 1919, she was married to Mr. Wendell Hall. She leaves her husband and a little boy, Wendell, Jr. She is also survived by her father, W. A. Brummett, four sisters, and three brothers, who are sad because of her going away. Her body now rests in Brownsville cemetery beside that of her precious mother, who preceded her just three months. Funeral services were conducted by Brother L. L. Brigrance, of Henderson, Tenn. (Mrs.) ANNIE R. CASEY.

Agee.

E. H. F. Agee was born on June 15, 1842, and died on July 31, 1922, aged eighty years, one month, and sixteen days. A faithful child of God has been called away. He leaves to mourn for him a wife, who had been a devoted companion for fifty-seven years, also ten children, thirty-two grandchildren, nine great-grandchildren, and a host of relatives and friends. He was a good husband, father, and neighbor, and for forty years a faithful member of the church of God. By his godly life he won the respect and esteem of all. I would say to the bereaved ones: Be faithful, as father was, and God will take care of you. Funeral services were conducted by Brother Joe L. Netherland in the church at Antioch, after which his body was laid to rest near by to await the resurrection morn.

T. J. FARROW.

Kibler.

Our little friend and neighbor, Paul Kibler, aged six years, departed this life on August 9, 1922. Paul was sick only a few days, and his life came to a close unexpectedly. All that loving hands could do was done for him in his brief illness. To know him was to love him. His little mind was far advanced for a child of his age. He always asked for an answer for anything that his baby mind could not comprehend. Weep not, dear parents,

WOMAN COULD NOT WORK

Made Strong and Well by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound

St. Paul, Minn.—"I took Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound for a tired, worn-out feeling and painful periods. I used to get up with a pain in my head and pains in my lower parts and back. Often I was not able to do my work. I read in your little book about Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and I have taken it. I feel so well and strong and can do every bit of my work and not a pain in my back now. I recommend your medicine and you can use this letter as a testimonial."—Mrs. PHIL. MASER, 801 Winslow St., St. Paul, Minn.

Just another case where a woman found relief by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. Many times these tired, worn-out feelings and pains about the body are from troubles only women have. The Vegetable Compound is especially adapted for just this condition. The good results are noted by the disagreeable symptoms passing away—one after another.

Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound is a Woman's Medicine for Women's Ailments. Always reliable.

Buy Your
Bibles, Testaments, Song
Books, Bible
Lesson Helps,
and Other Books

From
Gospel Advocate
Company

Let's make it mutual; we will help you, you help us

Address all orders to
GOSPEL ADVOCATE
COMPANY, 317-319
Fifth Avenue, North,
Nashville, Tennessee

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

for your child. He has gone on before to that home that Jesus has prepared for those that love him, and his heavenly home is far better than any earthly possession. Our earthly home is made sad, but we know that one more jewel has been added to the heavenly host. Funeral services were conducted by Brother C. M. Stubblefield, and the little body was laid to rest in the Oak Grove Cemetery, Paducah, Ky.

A FRIEND.

Sparkman.

Samuel Thompson Sparkman was born in Williamson County, Tenn., near Boston, and died at Brentwood on July 29, 1922, aged eighty-nine years, one month, and eighteen days. He is survived by his widow; two daughters, Mrs. Z. A. McConico and Mrs. W. J. Rushton; and six grandchildren. He was the son of Seth Sparkman, who was known in all his country as a pioneer convert in the restoration begun by Barton W. Stone, the Campbells, and others. He was a devoted student of God's word and knew what it taught. His sons and daughters, all of whom have now passed away, he reared in the nurture and admonition of the Lord, and were strong in the faith. The subject of this sketch obeyed the gospel early in life and thenceforward lived the life of a Christian. He was married, on November 13, 1858, to Eliza Agnes Oakley. Brother Sparkman in the latter years of his life was somewhat of an invalid. He and his aged wife had the best of care from their children. His influence for good will yet be felt. Indeed, it were better for him to be absent from the body and present with the Lord. Suffice it to say that his reputation was that of a genuine Christian gentleman. His word was his bond. His integrity was never impeached, nor his honesty called in question. His life is worthy of emulation.

JAMES E. SCOREY.

My Talent.

I cannot speak to crowds;
I can to one;
And tell him what for me
The Lord hath done.

I like to think that He,
Whose love I tell,
Spoke to one needy heart
By Jacob's Well.

His brother, Andrew sought,
For Christ to win;
He preached: three thousand souls
Were gathered in.

When Philip's feet were led
To one strange tryst,
He showed one seeking soul
The seeking Christ.

If 'mid the ones and twos
My work shall be,
Gladly will I fulfill
This ministry.

Some many talents have,
I have but one;
Yet I with them may share
The King's "Well done!"

—H. T. Lefevre.

Goodyear Raincoat FREE. We will send a handsome Rainproofed, All-Weather Coat to one person in each locality who will show and recommend it to friends. Write to-day to The Goodyear Mfg. Co., 7066-R Goodyear Bldg., Kansas City, Mo.

An eminent surgeon says: "Encourage your child to be merry and to laugh aloud. A good, hearty laugh expands the chest and makes the blood bound merrily along. Commend me to a good laugh, but to one that will sound right through the house;

it will not only do your child good, but will be a benefit to all who hear, and be an important means of driving the blues away from a dwelling. Merriment is very catching, and spreads in a remarkable manner, few being able to resist the contagion."

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER GIVE IT A TRIAL

ATTENTION, READERS!

When You Want Good

WORK SHIRTS, OVERALLS,

HANDKERCHIEFS, GARTERS,

SUSPENDERS, AND ELASTIC—

BUY

WASHINGTON DEE-CEE MAKE

Manufactured and Guaranteed by

Washington Manufacturing Company

Nashville, Tennessee

THE MOST SATISFACTORY GARTER GIVE IT A TRIAL

PRICES OF OUR HYMN BOOKS.

PRAISE HIM.
Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 50	Single copy.....	$ 60
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	17 00	Per fifty.....	22 50
Per hundred.....	32 50	Per hundred.....	43 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

CHRISTIAN HYMNS.
Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 55	Single copy.....	$ 65
Per dozen.....	6 00	Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	23 00	Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	45 00	Per hundred.....	55 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

WORDS OF TRUTH.
Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 45	Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	6 00
Per fifty.....	18 00	Per fifty.....	23 00
Per hundred.....	35 00	Per hundred.....	45 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

VOICE OF PRAISE.
Music Edition—Boards.
Single copy.....	$ 35	Per fifty.....	$16 00
Per dozen.....	4 00	Per hundred.....	30 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

CHRISTIAN HYMNS AND WORDS OF TRUTH, COMBINED—
CHRISTIAN HYMNS AND VOICE OF PRAISE, COMBINED.
Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 70	Single copy.....	$ 75
Per dozen.....	7 20	Per dozen.....	8 75
Per fifty.....	28 00	Per fifty.....	36 00
Per hundred.....	55 00	Per hundred.....	70 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

GOSPEL PRAISE.
Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 50	Single copy.....	$ 60
Per dozen.....	6 00	Per dozen.....	7 20
Per fifty.....	23 00	Per fifty.....	28 00
Per hundred.....	45 00	Per hundred.....	55 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

SEVENTY-SEVEN SWEET SONGS.
Flexible Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 25	Per fifty.....	$ 7 50
Per dozen.....	2 50	Per hundred.....	14 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

NEW CHRISTIAN HYMN BOOK.
Music Edition—Boards.		Music Edition—Cloth.
Single copy.....	$ 40	Single copy.....	$ 50
Per dozen.....	4 80	Per dozen.....	5 60
Per fifty.....	16 50	Per fifty.....	22 00
Per hundred.....	32 00	Per hundred.....	40 00

All prices are f. o. b. Nashville. If shipped by Parcel Post, Parcel Post to be added.

GOSPEL ADVOCATE COMPANY,
NASHVILLE, TENNESSEE.

One Tent and Five Preachers Wanted.

BY J. D. TANT.

I have recently spent one month in Florida. On account of the fast development of the country, town after town going up like magic, with a few scattered members in each town, I have never seen such grand openings for missionary work.

Many preachers have gone to Florida for a meeting and have done much good; yet much of the good they did was lost after they were gone, as no one was left to properly train and lead the new converts.

Among the preachers permanently located there, as I learned from those who knew them, Brother John B. Peden, of Avon Park, and Brother Cameron, of Largo, have made more sacrifices, have been with the work longer, and have done more lasting good than any other men in the territory. They know the people, and I found that the people had much confidence in them. They are not only handicapped in financial support, but in finding a place to preach. Much of their preaching is done outdoors, as the sects will not allow them to preach the Bible in their church houses. A small, one-pole tent that can be carried from place to place in an automobile, one that will seat from two hundred to three hundred, is large enough for all needs. This tent can be used in that State twelve months in the year. I shall write personal letters to many churches of West Tennessee for one Lord's-day's contribution to help pay for this tent.

I want five churches who are able to keep a located minister to do the work the elders should do to each let the few brethren in Florida have their preacher for a month's meeting under the tent where those brethren think best, and the home church support the meeting. I shall call on Jackson to send F. O. Howell; Dyersburg, to send J. W. Dunn; and Henderson, to send a man. Will some other preachers take it up with their congregations and help to hold at least five meetings in Florida next year? With that much help, the churches there can be worked up to support Brethren Peden and Cameron in the work all the time, and we can soon put Florida on the map with many new congregations.

Will the churches of West Tennessee take this matter up at once and give just one Lord's-day's contribution for a tent, and report to me at Quitman, Ark., or to J. B. Peden, Avon Park, Fla., until we get enough to buy the tent?

In answering advertisements, please mention the Gospel Advocate.

JUST A FEW MORE DAYS

In Which to Make That Very Important Decision in Regard to Your Next Year's School Life

"GREAT EVENTS HANG BY A THREAD!"

Upon this decision depends much of your future life. Do you realize that to a large degree your future associates and friends, your purposes and ideals of life, your habits and morals, your capacity and probability of success will be determined by your answer to this question:

"WHERE AM I GOING TO SCHOOL?"

The decision cannot be made without careful consideration and thoughtful investigation. Abilene Christian College invites the most scrutinous examination of her faculty, her equipment for service, her ideals of education that are impressed upon the students. Here is offered the most pleasant and beneficial association; here are upheld the highest ideals; here are impressed the noblest qualities of moral and spiritual character; here is offered the most excellent training for successful living.

The Seventeenth Annual Session Opens
September 19, 1922

WRITE FOR A RESERVATION OF ROOM

Address

OFFICE OF THE PRESIDENT

ABILENE CHRISTIAN COLLEGE

JESSE P. SEWELL, President

ABILENE, TEXAS

HARDEMAN'S TABERNACLE SERMONS

A series of evangelistic sermons preached by N. B. Harde-
man during the Great Nashville Meeting, held in the Ryman Auditorium, March 28-April 16. These sermons ring true to the Old Book, and have a charm of style and freshness of illustration that put them in a class by themselves.

All the profits derived from the sale of these books will be used to create a fund to help poor boys and girls attend
Freed-Hardeman College.

The book will contain about 350 pages, with pictures of Harde-
man, Pullias, and the audience, a history of the meeting, about twenty sermons, and an address delivered by Brother Pullias before the Exchange Club.

Bound in cloth, stamped in gold. Price, $1.50.

Book now being mailed to advanced subscribers.

Send all orders to N. B. HARDEMAN, Henderson, Tenn.

CANCERS CURED AT THE KELLAM HOSPITAL

The Kellam Hospital cures Cancers, Sores without the use of Burns, and Chronic Tumors, Ulcers, X-Ray of the knife, X-Ray, Radium, Acids, or Serum, and we have cured over 90 per cent of the many hundreds of sufferers treated during the past twenty-three years. Ministers treated free.

KELLAM HOSPITAL, Inc.,
1617 West Main St. Richmond, Va.

For Nervous Debility and Exhaustion

Take HORSFORD'S
ACID PHOSPHATE

Soothing to "ragged nerves," invigorating to the nervous system. A brain-refreshing, wholesome tonic that aids digestion and restores physical vigor. At all druggists.

Gospel Advocate

CEW DORRIS
Life and Casualty Bldg

Volume LXIV. No. 36.

NASHVILLE, TENN., SEPTEMBER 7, 1922.

$2 PER YEAR, IN ADVANCE.

CONTENTS.

OUR CONTRIBUTORS.....	842
Denominationalism—Christian Education—God's Promises—Brief Homilies—Notes from West Tennessee—Los Angeles (Cal.) Notes—Hindrances to Christian Living—How May I Know the Church of God?
EVANGELISTIC NOTES.....	848
EDITORIAL.....	850
Must an Elder Be Inspired?—Reverence for the Word of God—A Family Reunion—Evolution: Its Limitations.
HOME READING.....	854
QUERY DEPARTMENT.....	855
TEXAS-OKLAHOMA DEPARTMENT.....	856
CURRENT COMMENT.....	857
The Work of the Lord in Saskatchewan.....	858
The McMurray-Hartgraves Debate.....	859
More Baptist Bunk.....	860
Success and Failure.....	862
The First Resurrection.....	863
The Dead Yet Speak.....	864

THE GREATEST HINDRANCE TO THE SPREAD OF THE GOSPEL.

[Our readers will appreciate this selection from the late lamented James A. Harding, who gave his life of service to the Lord in spreading the gospel.—H. Leo B.]

That for which every Christian should live, the chief object of his life, the thing to which he ought daily to give more thought than to anything else, the work to which everything else should be subservient and for which everything else should be conducted, is the salvation of the soul. One of the greatest mistakes of men, of Christians as well as others, is practically to look upon this life as an end, not as a means. Most men have some sort of belief in existence beyond the grave, but their faith in it is so weak, their conception of it so vague and shadowy, their lives here are affected but little, if any, thereby. Men think and talk and toil and sweat for the welfare of themselves and their children for this life, as though death ends all. With them the bread-and-butter problem is the chief thing.

What shall we eat? What shall we drink? Wherewithal shall we be clothed? Where shall we dwell? In what shall we ride? When shall we drive? What shall we do if we are sick? How shall our children fare after we are dead? These are the questions that, for the most part, absorb the attention and enlist the energies of most men, even of members of the church of Christ.

The Master, of course, foresaw this state of affairs. It was plainly manifested to him, no doubt, in his own day on earth, so he said to his disciples: "Be not therefore anxious, saying, What shall we eat? or, What shall we drink? or, Wherewithal shall we be clothed? For after all these things do the Gentiles seek; for your heavenly Father knoweth that ye have need of all these things. But seek ye first his kingdom, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." (Matt. 6: 31-33.) Jesus came into this world to seek and to save the lost; and he wanted his disciples to live for the same purpose, to devote their lives to the same great end, the building up of the kingdom of God. He knew that the chief obstacle to their doing this would be fear for the temporal welfare of themselves and their children; that the greatest hindrance to the building up of God's kingdom on earth, and the salvation of men through it, would be the absorption of his disciples in providing for the temporal wants of themselves and their children. He knew they would not be concerned simply about the present, but about the future of this life for years to come; and that the passion for hoarding up temporal supplies for needs that might arise in the years to come would grow upon them. He knew that Satan would use this passion more successfully than any other weakness of Christians for hindering the success of the kingdom of God; and so, in his great introductory sermon, in which he lays down the great fundamental principles of the kingdom of God, showing how completely the new covenant will supplant the old, how radically the doctrine of Christ will take the place of that of Moses, he devotes far more time and space to teaching and exhorting his disciples not to lay up for themselves treasures upon earth than to any other one doctrine.

As it is printed in the Bible from which I am reading (the standard edition of the American Revised Version), he devotes sixty-seven lines to it in one paragraph (Matt. 6: 19-34), and twenty-two in another (Matt. 7: 7-12); while to prayer, the next longest topic, he gives thirty-eight lines, and to prophets twenty-nine. Think of Jesus in the greatest sermon that ever went to record, which was designed to set forth the fundamental principles of the kingdom of God, which is full of thought from first to last, and which has not one superfluous word in it—think of him devoting more than twice as much time, thought, and energy to this one topic as to any other! We may be sure it is one of infinite importance. And now to prevent his disciples from wasting their lives in accumulating earthly riches, he proposes in good faith and in all solemnity to make this contract with them: "Seek ye first his [God's] kingdom, and his righteousness; and all these things shall be added unto you." He who devotes his life to God's kingdom and his righteousness is just as sure to be supplied with everything he needs as that Christ is true. The Master meant every word he said, and he is in the proper position, and is perfectly competent to make his contract good. You can depend upon it with as much confidence as you can upon the rising of the sun to-morrow. When the disciples of Jesus in his day hesitated to believe this teaching, he accused them of little faith, and said unto them: "Seek not ye what ye shall eat, and what ye shall drink, neither be ye of doubtful mind. For all these things do the nations of the world seek after: but your Father knoweth that ye have need of these things. Yet seek ye his kingdom, and these things shall be added unto you." (Luke 12: 29-31.)

Next to the doctrine of the resurrection of Jesus, I doubt if there is one in all the book of God that Satan more intensely hates. He shows his hatred of it by the persistency with which he fights it and tries to obscure it. If possible, he would deceive the very elect on this point—I am certain he has obscured the subject to many of the elect. He circulates all sorts of false ideas to prevent this idea from being accepted and acted upon. He teaches that God made this world and subjected it to law; that if any man, saint, or sinner, would have food and raiment, he must work for them according to this law; that the sinner has as good chance as the saint for securing temporal blessings, and upon the same terms; that God has no special blessings for anybody, nor did he ever have under any dispensation, so far as temporal blessings are concerned.

Our Contributors

Denominationalism.

BY C. A. NORRED.

I. WHAT IS DENOMINATIONALISM?

Denominationalism is defined: "Adherence or devotion to a denomination, sect, or party; specifically, a disposition to maintain sectarian ideas in religion." An understanding of this definition necessitates an understanding of the terms "sect" and "denomination."

"Sect" and "denomination" are synonyms, but each word bears a peculiar meaning. "Sect" as a New Testament term conveys the idea of party. Now, as one looks upon the body of the followers of Christ to-day, he observes that these persons are divided into parties or factions. Every party which has separated itself from the larger interests of the kingdom and formed a distinct following among the followers of Christ is a sect. But it will be observed that every sect is marked by a peculiar name which distinguishes it from every other sect. This differentiating name makes the sect a denomination. "Denomination" literally means "of a name." It has been pointed out that a denomination is a sect. But the word "denomination" carries the idea of a name. In fullest terms, then, a denomination is a sect marked by a distinctive name. "Sect" and "denomination," while synonyms, have their respective shades of meaning, "sect" signifying party or faction, "denomination" signifying that the sect considered bears a distinctive name.

The truth just elicited makes clear the definition presented at the beginning of this article. Denominationalism among the followers of Christ is that partyism which manifests itself in the wearing of partisan names. As you look upon the followers of Christ to-day, you may observe that many are not content with being followers of Christ, but wish to identify themselves with certain groups or sects among these followers of Christ. These persons, in order to carry out their desires, adopt the names which mark these sects. This practice of adhering to a denomination is denominationalism.

WHY IS DENOMINATIONALISM WRONG?

1. The clannishness and exclusiveness inhering in denominationalism are contrary to the example and teaching of Jesus. Both the example and teaching of Jesus enjoin us to love one another. (John 15: 12, 13.) But behold how the members of one sect banish from their fellowship the members of other sects admitted to be Christians! Such narrowness is unworthy of the followers of Christ.

2. The division inherent in denominationalism is a hindrance to the supreme work of the church and the Christian. The supreme work of the church and the Christian is that of leading men to accept Jesus as sent of the Father. (Matt. 28: 19, 20; 1 Pet. 2: 9.) Unity among the followers of Christ is indispensable to the accomplishment of this work. (John 17: 20, 21.) But denominationalism is a hindrance to this unity. It therefore remains that denominationalism is a hindrance to the supreme work of the church and the Christian. Denominationalism is making more disbelievers than will be counted this side the judgment.

3. The division inherent in denominationalism is condemned as sinful. Please read 1 Cor. 1: 10; Gal. 5: 19-21. In these passages the division of denominationalism is pointed out as sinful and listed among the gravest sins. Denominationalism is as plainly and truly sinful as the gravest immoralities.

WHAT IS THE REMEDY FOR DENOMINATIONALISM?

The remedy for denominationalism is simply avoidance of denominationalism. When the followers of Jesus Christ avoid denominationalism, denominationalism will cease to exist among them. This was the conception of those worthy pioneers who over a century ago began pleading with the followers of Christ to be Christians only. The expression, "Christians only," was used as meaning Christians who were identified with no denomination. Frequently one hears the expression "churchianity," and occasionally one hears the expression "undenominational Christianity." While these expressions are open to criticism, they show thinking in the right direction. They indicate a discrimination between Christianity and denominationalism. They point toward the condition in which the follower of Christ is a Christian only.

Avoidance of denominationalism is confessedly possible. One of the most common expressions is: "Become a Christian, and then join the denomination of your choice." This expression presupposes an intervening time between becoming a Christian and joining a denomination, during which the person in question is a Christian without denominational affiliation. Avoidance of denominationalism is confessedly possible.

The remedy for denominationalism is avoidance of denominationalism.

CONCLUDING THOUGHTS.

One of the greatest evils of this generation is denominationalism. This is recognized by persons in all denominations. Various schemes are offered as means of avoiding the hindering influences of denominationalism. Why not cast the thing itself aside? This article assumes the desire in the heart of every follower of Christ to be a Christian and seeks to show that when the followers of Christ are content to be Christians only, denominationalism will vanish away.

"Now I beseech you, brethren, through the name of our Lord Jesus Christ, that ye all speak the same thing, and that there be no divisions among you; but that ye be perfected together in the same mind and in the same judgment." (1 Cor. 1: 10.)

Christian Education.

BY IRA L. WINTERROWD.

"Train up a child in the way he should go; and when he is old, he will not depart from it." (Prov. 22: 6.) "But bring them up in the nurture and admonition of the Lord." (Eph. 6: 4.) "It is written in the prophets, And they shall be all taught of God. Every man therefore that hath heard, and hath learned of the Father, cometh unto me." (John 6: 45.)

These are only a few examples of divine teaching on the subject of education. The manner in which God taught the Israelites may be seen in such passages as Luke 4: 15-20. It is an account of the great Teacher and his method of reaching the Jews. Their schools were many, being constructed conveniently for their customs and laws. We read in the above scriptures: "And he taught in their synagogues, being glorified of all. And he came to Nazareth, where he had been brought up; and, as his custom was, he went into the synagogue on the sabbath day, and stood up for to read. And there was delivered unto him the book of the prophet Esaias. And when he had opened the book, he found the place where it was written, The Spirit of the Lord is upon me, because he hath anointed me to preach the gospel to the poor; he hath sent me to heal the brokenhearted, to preach deliverance to the captives, and recovering of sight to the blind, to set at liberty them that are bruised, to preach the acceptable year of the Lord. And he closed the book, and he gave it again to the minister, and sat down."

How should we teach to-day? By preaching to the multitudes? Yes. Is there any other way? Certainly; the manner of Jesus. Synagogue means "gathering together." He taught them out of the Book. May we not do the same? Well, why not? He said: "Go, . . . teach all nations: . . . teaching them to observe all things whatsoever I have commanded you." (Matt. 28: 19, 20.)

But the following are examples of how we have neglected the instruction of the young, from the Christian Education Monthly, a publication by the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, headed, "Facing Moral Bankruptcy Through Spiritual Illiteracy." It reads: "The present method of the religious instruction of children will eventually give us a whole nation who know nothing about God and have no spiritual foundation of character." And: "We have kicked the Bible and religion from the schools, and some have put in soldiering and military tactics. Our schools can teach pagan mythology, heathen religion, Hindu philosophy, and modern fiction; but the Bible is barred from the classroom by the law of the land. They are required to memorize such as 'The boy stood on the burning deck,' but cannot recite 'the parable of the prodigal son.' Even from the Etude, a musical magazine, we have this excerpt: "With the flickering of the spiritual candles, the world is but a step from moral chaos. In Russia it exists at this moment." And again: "America is unquestionably weakest in the most significant of all factors in education—character building."

What does this mean? Are we awake to the needs of our country? The future of our nation and the world depends upon how our posterity is trained at the present time. Too many people are thinking more of the good breeding of their stock than of their own children. Better farming, better houses in which to live, better machinery—better everything, it seems, but better children and citizenship. How unreasonable!

While the public schools are making progress in the methods of teaching the secular branches, they are not supposed to look after the religious, and very little of the moral side of the child. Then why not build schools where the heart can be educated along with the intellect? A rascal may be bad, but he is not half as bad as an educated rascal. This is not saying that all are rascals; but should you spend money on one, you will not get good returns. He will be a poor asset to any community.

Some institutions have been built for the purpose of helping this great need. Can you make an effort to do as much for your children as for your hogs? Four years of Christian education will bring happiness to the receiver, and joy and gladness to the donor. It will strengthen the State, build the nation, influence the world as a little leaven, and, best of all, likely save a soul from death. Think on these things, and act before it is too late.

God's Promises.

BY W. CLAUDE HALL.

"The Lord is not slack concerning his promises, as some men count slackness." (2 Pet. 3: 9.)

Isn't it a glorious thought to know that our God cannot be prevented from fulfilling every promise he has made? Man is circumscribed by so many powerful factors each of which is strong enough to influence him sufficiently to thwart his purposes, however good they may be. Not so with God. Every power is susceptible to his control; all elements are handled at his will, and time has no effect upon his doings. "One day is with the Lord as a thousand years, and a thousand years as one day." (2 Pet. 3: 8.) There are two concrete illustrations of this principle which have been of considerable interest to me, while influencing my life for good.

The first of these came about thus: The children of Israel were being led from Egypt and had journeyed as far as Rephidim, where thirst was about to overcome them. Some were feeble and unable to keep up with the procession. These old and feeble people were pounced upon by the Amalekites and slain. (Deut. 25: 17-19.) A fierce battle ensued in which Moses' hands were held up by Aaron and Hur so that Israel might prevail. (Ex. 17: 8-16.) Apparently, immediately following the termination of the conflict God made this remarkable promise to Moses: "Write this for a memorial in a book, and rehearse it in the ears of Joshua: that I will utterly blot out the remembrance of Amalek from under heaven." (Ex. 17: 14.) Time passed on by centuries, and nothing was suggested about the promise here made. Moses died; Joshua led the ill-fated Jews to many victories, yet no intimation that God would fulfill the word. The judges came as a natural result of God's dealing with Israel, bringing Gideon, Jephthah, and other great judges into prominence, but as yet the promise did not come to pass. Finally, four hundred and twelve years after the incidents narrated above, Samuel, the last judge, had word from God to send Saul, the first king, down to the Amalekites, and destroy "everything that hath breath." Though Saul disobeyed in many particulars, yet, here, after this long period of time has elapsed, God shows that he is not slack concerning his promises.

The second case is found in Josh. 6. This chapter is a graphic description of the marvelous way in which Joshua captured Jericho. Immediately after the destruction of this renowned city the victorious captain seems to have called his subjugated people around him and said: "Cursed be the man before Jehovah, that riseth up and buildeth this city Jericho: with the loss of his first-born shall he lay the foundation thereof, and with the loss of his youngest son shall he set up the gates of it." The location of Jericho fell almost into oblivion and nothing is known as to any activities upon its territory. The times of the judges came and passed. King after king came to the throne of Israel and Judah, but none mentioned anything with respect to Jericho. Ahab, the wicked king, ascended the throne, during whose reign Hiel rebuilt Jericho. Though five hundred and forty-one years had gone since Joshua had announced the curse upon the rebuilders, yet God was not slack concerning his promise, whereupon Hiel in the very beginning of his undertaking lost Abiram, his oldest son, and when all had been completed, the gates thereof set up, Segub, his youngest son, lay down and died. (1 Kings 16: 34.) No wonder Isaiah said: "It [my word] shall not return unto me void, but it shall accomplish that which I please, and it shall prosper in the thing whereunto I sent it." (Isa. 55: 11.)

May God bless every effort everywhere that is being put forth to spread and exalt the word of God. The papers need to be circulated, preachers need encouragement, books need to be read, and Bibles distributed; however, these things will not avail unless we give some time and energy to the study in a prayerful way of the great and underlying principles of the laws of God, remembering that he is not slack concerning his promises.

Things That Make You Bigger.

Have an inward reverence for your body, and keep it healthy.

Be generous to a fault. It may sometimes hurt, but it will never harm.

Always keep a brave front and carry a fighter's heart. Never admit failure.

Abolish idleness from your life. Use every minute. Keep thinking, planning, and building.

You have ability which no one else in the world has. Use it to the highest end you know.

Do at least one helpful act every day, that will mean special planning on your part, and then soon such acts will come about without planning.—Exchange.

Brief Homilies.

BY JAMES E. CHESSOR.

"BEHOLD, I THOUGHT!"

Presumption is a sin God has warned against throughout his word. So great a king as Saul fell because of his willful way. At first he was "little in his own sight," but place and power and victory so puffed him up that he became very great in his own self-conceit. Instead of choosing the fear of Jehovah, Saul set at naught all his counsel and despised all his reproof: so God permitted him to be filled with his own devices and to go his own way to destruction. No, we cannot have our own way without eating of its bitter fruit; we cannot dictate to God with impunity. But sometimes we do presume to dictate in our prayers. We ask God for something and then decide how we wish the prayer answered; and because it does not come to pass, we conclude that prayer is futile. We are disappointed because God will not grant our requisition. We may even be furious with him as Naaman was wroth with the prophet. You remember the case of the Syrian captain. He appealed to God through his prophet, which was well; but he erred in that he forgot that God is no respecter of persons—that rank and human rating count for naught with him. Naaman was a great captain; and so also was Cornelius both great and good, but God regarded not their station. Nor king, nor captain, nor peasant shall pass muster with God unless he wills to choose God's way. Now, Naaman had pride of opinion, and so the bluff answer of the man of God wounded and disappointed him sorely. Hence, "Naaman was wroth, and went away, and said, Behold, I thought . . ." Yes, he had it all figured out—"Behold, I thought!" "Why, yes, I have thought this thing all out, and I have a mental picture of it—just how it should occur; and it turns out so different! Bathe in this muddy Jordan—rot! It doesn't stand to reason!" Very human indeed, that. Very much like you and me. We also do a good deal of such "thinking" and such picture making; and the folly of it! When we set metes and bounds for God to respect, we are apt to be wroth and to go away in a rage and say silly things, for God never accepts dictation. He will hear prayer, not dictation. If we account him true that hath promised: if we trust not to our own understanding, but in all our ways acknowledge him, he will bring it to pass. He will hear our petitions if we approach him humbly.

THE PRODIGAL'S HUMILITY.

It is to the credit of the prodigal son that he did not ask too much of his father. He considered that he had forfeited his sonship by wasting in riotous living his part of the inheritance. He realized that he had sinned grievously. So he is willing to go back as a hired servant. "Father," said he in his confession, "I have sinned against heaven, and in thy sight: I am no more worthy to be called thy son: make me as one of thy hired servants." But realizing the genuineness of his repentance, the father in his affectionate reception smothered the son's very thought of becoming a servant. He interrupted the confession of his boy and bade the servants prepare a banquet. It was the undisguised sincerity and deep humility and penitence of the son that touched the father's heart. Had he returned in any other spirit—if, for instance, he had laid claim to his sonship—he could not have expected such a reception as was accorded him; and here is a lesson for fallen Christians. When we sin, we must repent and come back and make good like Peter; and we must come humbly like the wayward son. But are we willing to do this? Does our humility in the confession of our sins stoop as low as the prodigal's? How deep, and how free, and how full is our confession of sin to God and to man? Are we willing and anxious to lay bare our utmost sinfulness, the depth of our degeneracy in the "far country?" If so, we have hope of restoration to the Father's favor. He is a merciful Father and open to entreaty if we come with frank confession and sincere penitence; and such undisguised repentance will go far toward restoring us to the confidence of our brethren in Christ. But if we hedge and seek to cover our iniquity and to offer excuse and are unwilling to make public confession, God will cast us off and the brethren will not repose faith in us. What is more, the public will not believe us and the world will ridicule the cause of Christ because of us. Neither will it avail us anything to lay claim to any vestige of worth of our own. All such claims vanished when we willfully left the Father's house and broke his law. We proved worthless in that "far country." We forfeited our sonship. So we must go back with avowed sin and in deepest humility. We must return in the very spirit of the prodigal son if we expect such a reception and such free pardon. We must know and acknowledge that we have sinned against high heaven and that we are "no more worthy" of God's favor and our former unique position as his child. We must know that our iniquities have separated between us and our God. Avowing all this openly to the Father and repenting in all sincerity, he will restore us immediately amid rejoicing among the angels.

SATAN'S QUESTION MARK.

Some one has said that the real Bible student, the sincere truth seeker, will never place a question mark where God has placed a period. Satan began the question-mark business in the garden of Eden when, concerning a statement God had made to Adam forbidding his eating of the tree of the knowledge of good and evil—which statement God had punctuated with a period, so to speak—Satan asked: "Yea, hath God said, Ye shall not eat of any tree of the garden?" Yes, God had said, and the woman knew it, and Satan knew it, and the use of the interrogation mark there was a denial of God's word which led to the fall of the whole human race. Satan questioned God's word and perverted it and the woman gave heed to a lie, and Satan has ever been a prevaricator of the inspired word of God. It is his business to deceive, and he can quote scripture for his purpose. He will cast doubt upon God's word whenever he can, and he will insert a question mark where God has made a positive law, a positive command. And why, let me ask, be thus deceived by Satan's device as was the woman? Why doubt his word? Why question a syllable? Why listen to destructive higher critics? The Book has stood the test of ages, the acid test of criticism; and after centuries of keenest investigation and bitterest attack, it stands unscathed and as a thing that endures when all else crumbles to ruin. It courts investigation because there is no flaw anywhere. "Search the Scriptures," both Old and New. They are true. In them you will find food and drink and life. The word of God is an indestructible volume of indestructible books. Still hold true the words that fell so calmly and so majestically from the lips of the Son of God: "Heaven and earth shall pass away, but my words shall not pass away."

Notes from West Tennessee.

BY JOHN R. WILLIAMS.

THE SWAP COMPLETED.

In answer to my arguments and protests against the introduction of the organ, I was told that a canvass of the congregation had been made and that a majority of the membership had signed a petition favoring the use of it, and certainly the minority should be willing for the majority to rule. I thought I would try one more argument by telling them that in all ages of the world the majority was always on the wrong side—that in all ages of the world God's people had always been in the minority and that God had given no instructions to have things settled by the majority. If a majority should say to meet on Saturday to take the Lord's Supper, would that make it right? If the majority should say, "Let us sprinkle and pour for baptism," would that make it right? The majority had said: "We want the organ and intend to have it, regardless of whose conscience is wounded." This is what hurt me—to know that the majority of the members at Newbern thought more of an old organ than they did of me. They knew that when the organ was put in, that would put me out. "Surely I will not be superseded by a lifeless, spiritless invention of man." In all this I was mistaken. In it came, out I went. It is still in and I am still out. I was never called again by them, although I had held a good meeting for them, with several additions, and all rejoiced over the good meeting, which led to a call for monthly work, which led to their exchanging me for an organ.

The body of Christ was torn asunder and left bleeding at every pore in the town of Newbern. Worse than all, if possible, a lawsuit was entered to decide which side should hold the house. Brother Lipscomb advised against the entering of a suit and did what he could to prevent it. The court could not try the case by the law of God, but by the laws of the State. The suit was lost by those who opposed the organ—those who brought the suit. Perhaps those very brethren had voted for the judge before whom the case was tried. He had taken an oath to uphold the laws of the State, and in this case the laws of the State were against the law of God. These brethren voted for the men that made the laws of the State and for the judges to uphold them; so, after all, they were reaping what they had sowed. They helped to make the laws that gave the meetinghouse to the majority, regardless of what the word of God had to say. A bitter dose of their own concoction! Brethren, why will you vote to make laws that are contrary to the law of God? Be consistent. "Come out from among them, and be ye separate, saith the Lord."

The spirit of division still exists in Newbern, and neither side has made any progress, spiritually, since one side swapped the preacher for an organ over the protest of the other side. I have never had much love for an organ, and since I was replaced by one I have less. I never see Newbern but what I think of that trade when I was placed on a level with an organ and afterwards sent below its level by those I loved. All I could do or say had no weight with those whose hearts were set on having an organ in the worship of God. However, if those brethren and sisters think they were benefited by the swap and that the use of the organ in the worship of God would save more souls than my preaching would, I should let it go at that.

